grown from a very small business to a very substantial manufacturing plant."

Mr. Douglass' death was a distinct shock to Mr. Ready. However, the manner in which he quickly took up the management of the business and carried it on portends the success with which the company will, undoubtedly, meet under Mr. Ready's direction.

DEMAND FOR "RADAK" RADIO SETS

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., September 5.—The Clapp-Eastham Co., of this city, reports an exceptional demand for its radio sets. This company, founded in 1906 and incorporated in 1908, was one of the first companies in the field. From the small space occupied by this concern in 1906 the business has grown so that it now occupies not only its main fourteen-story factory building at Cambridge, but has several other factories where parts are made.

Last month the announcement was made of the adoption of the name "Radak" as the distinguishing name for Clapp-Eastham products and an extensive advertising campaign was placed through the Churchill Hall Advertising Agency, New York City, in national publications, featuring this new name in connection with Clapp-Eastham sets. An extensive Fall campaign has been started and attractive literature prepared for the jobber and dealer.

There are three ways in which to find the value of a dollar; one is to find out what you have to give in order to get a dollar; the second is to spend it and see what you can get for a dollar; the third is to save it and see what you can do without and keep the dollar.

APPOINTED CHIEF EXECUTIVE

W. A. Ready Advanced to Important Position in National Co., of Boston—Well Qualified by Experience for New Duties

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., September 8.—Announcement has been made by the National Co., of this city, of the appointment of W. A. Ready as chief executive of the company. Mr. Ready has been associated with the National Co. for the past seven years and was closely associated with R. L. Douglass, the former head of the company, in his executive duties, thus qualifying him admirably to occupy the place recently left vacant through the death of Mr. Douglass.

Mr. Ready greatly admired his former co-worker and briefly outlined to a representative of The World the remarkable career of Mr. Douglass. He said, in part: "Mr. Douglass was born in Plymouth, Mass., November 14, 1879. His father, Roswell S. Douglass, was one of the owners of the Plymouth Woolen Co., which later became a part of the American Woolen Co. He attended the public schools of Plymouth and then graduated at the East Greenwich Academy, at East Greenwich, R. I., at the age of fifteen years. He later entered Wesleyan at Middletown, Conn.

"His first business experience was with the Judson L. Thomson Rivet Co., of Waltham. Later he was employed by the F. S. Webster Co., of Boston, and with it advanced very rapidly, until he became head of its Philadelphia office. He later resigned his position and joined the advertising department of Collier's Weekly. His next business was as sales and advertising manager of the B. F. Sturtevant Co., of Hyde Park, Mass., where he remained for five years. He resigned in 1914 with the intention of traveling in Europe, but the war broke out and Ragtime Rastus had just been patented, so Mr. Douglass and his associates formed a company for the sale of the talking machine toys. During the past seven years, through his efforts in the National Co., it has

*Unexpected Increase in Sales
Volume Raises Spirits of Merchants — Activities of Month*

BUFFALO, N. Y., September 7.—From wholesalers and retailers come reports of a business improvement that exceeds anything which the trade had hoped for at this season of the year. Sales of machines and records increased in unexpected volume during the last half of August and the first week of September. There is every indication that the improvement will not only continue but will increase when the busy season for the trade is reached. Many firms report August showing a very large increase over July in the amount of business transacted and also a big gain over the corresponding month of 1921. Inquiries as well as sales have shown a splendid gain and throughout the trade there is a pronounced feeling that the end of the depression has been reached and that the talking machine merchant is due to have a Fall and Winter of real prosperity.

Victor dealers are greatly interested in the announcement of the new flat top models, which have been followed by the placing of many orders by retailers. Both C. N. Andrews and the Buffalo Talking Machine Co. report dealers placing orders for large numbers of the new machines, and predict that they will become very popular additions to the Victor line. It is expected Model 210 will develop into a real Victor leader.

Meetings of the Victor Talking Machine Dealers' Association of Western New York will be resumed in September, it is expected.

Frank E. Bolway & Son, Inc., of Syracuse, distributors of the Edison line in western New York, recently completed a most successful week's showing of the line which they represent. Parlors were engaged in the Lafayette Hotel and letters were mailed inviting 1,000 dealers to visit the displays. Every Edison machine ranging in value up to $375 was shown and all were demonstrated to the score of dealers who called each day to see the exhibit, which included the new junior models. Delight was expressed by the trade generally at the first showing of the new junior models and also at the quality revealed by some of the new records which were played. The exhibit was in personal charge of C. L. Eddy, general sales manager of the Syracuse company and some important agencies were closed.

The Utley Piano Co., Edison dealer, will be forced to seek a new location, as the property which it occupies in Main street has been sold to a jewelry company and will be taken over by them when the present lease expires on November 1.

William F. Froehley, for many years musical instrument and record dealer in Hamburg, a suburb of Buffalo, died recently at his home in that village, at the age of 63 years. He was postmaster of the village for 17 years.

G. D. Lynch has opened an up-to-date music store in Main street, Medina, and is devoting a large portion of his establishment to talking machines and records. The store will be a unit of the chain operated by Goold Bros., of this city. Mr. Lynch was formerly with the J. N. Adam & Co. music store here.

The Sonora has a fine new home in Buffalo, the store of the John G. Schuler Co. at Main and West Utica streets having recently expanded. An additional adjoining store room has been taken over by the company and is now being used. New departments and display windows have been installed in the increased space.

Charles H. Hutchens, founder of the Hutchens Music House in Lockport, died at his home in that city after an illness of two months. He was formerly proprietor of music stores in Ridgeway and Olean. His son, Henry W. Hutchens, took over active management of the Lockport store some time ago.

Stephen Butler has resigned as manager of the new music store of J. N. Adam & Co., one of the largest and finest in western New York. The store recently moved into the building which it now occupies in Washington street. Mr. Butler's successor to this position has not been named.

Victor & Co. have remodeled their talking machine department and have installed five new booths for demonstration purposes. This firm recently took over the stock and Victor franchise of C. E. Siegesmund. President Arthur Victor is giving a large share of his time and attention to the new department.

A Pathé Actuelle was featured in the act of Rasso, European juggler, which was recently presented at Shea's Theatre.

ANNOUNCE NEW POPULAR PRICE MOTOR

The Favorite Mfg. Co., 105 East Twelfth street, New York City, is introducing a new motor for talking machines which is available in quantity lots at a very popular price. The product is of original design with double spring and playing four ten-inch records. It has a cast-iron frame, is worm-driven and of the beveled gear winding type. A ratchet device prevents clicking and it has other points of merit.

The Favorite Mfg. Co. is also making a special sales campaign on graphite lubricant, the manufacturers of which are Ilsey, Doubleday & Co. It is taking particular pains also to introduce to the talking machine trade Hohner harmonicas.

THE BIGGEST MONEY MAKING HIT OF THE TALKING MACHINE WORLD

"SNAPSHOTS OF YOUR VOICE"

You see it everywhere—in hundreds of stores, in thousands of homes—the new wonder that you can sell to everyone who owns a talking machine and is a buyer of records.

WHAT IT IS

Kodisk is a silvery metal disk on which you make your own phonograph records—by using your own phonograph to record and then playing it on the same machine like any ordinary record with a steel needle.

WHAT IT DOES

It records songs, voices, etc.—even baby's laugh and prattle is perfectly reproduced.

WHO BUYS IT

Every man or woman who owns a phonograph wants it, the minute you show it and explain its wonderful possibilities for fun and entertainment.

HOW THE RECORDS ARE MADE

Use an ordinary paper megaphone as an amplifier to sing into the horn of any phonograph—or for still more perfect and professional results, use the SPECIAL KODISK RECORDER (retail price $6.00)

Eight-inch KODISK RECORDS—ready to record, RETAIL for 60c. (double-sided)

WARNING! KODISK Records are manufactured under United States Patent No. 1421045, issued June 27, 1922. Our patent protection extends not only to all kinds of sound records made in metal tablets with any type of groove, but also covers broadly the process of recording in metallic substances, including the grooved blanks intended for home use on ordinary phonograph machines.

We accordingly advise the trade that only the blanks sold under the KODISK trade-mark and manufactured by the Metal Recording Disc Company are authorized to be made, sold or used.

CLEVELAND

Opening of New Knabe Warerooms a Great Event—Handles the Victor—Clever Columbia Stunt—New Brunswick Dealers—The News

CLEVELAND, O., September 8.—Monday, August 28, was a big day in Cleveland's musical circles, for on that day what may well be considered the last word in a music establishment catering to the ultra made its bow to Clevelanders with the opening of the Knabe Warerooms. The event marks another step in the retail talking machine industry here, in that it is the only independent exclusive Victor establishment on the avenue.

The Knabe establishment consists of three floors located in the Bulkley Building. The first floor comprises a window, in which only one instrument at one time will be displayed; a lobby graced with Oriental rugs and furniture in keeping with the same, a broad aisle flanked on one side by nine Victor demonstration rooms, and on the other by a series of grand pianos, representing the last word in the product of the Knabe, the Fisher and the Franklin.

The main room on the second floor will be given over to Victrola display and sale. This second floor is one of the few unique shops in the upper story of the Bulkley Building.

M. O. Mattlin, who has opened this establishment, points out that the new store opens with a new policy in music merchandising circles here. While, of course, the policy of one price will be maintained and rigidly adhered to, it will also have the distinction of being one of the most exclusive music merchandising enterprises in the country.

It was with this idea in mind, Mr. Mattlin explains, that after negotiating with Edward B. Lyons, general manager, the Eclipse Musical Co., Victor wholesaler, he determined to put in the Victor line to be the exclusive talking machine sold in the new warerooms. Ralph Rolan, well known in local talking machine circles, is in charge of the Victor department here.

Brunswick Chippendale Admired

A shipment of the new Brunswick Chippendale models was received here last week, and a display of these machines made at the Halle Bros. Co. and the May Co. was much admired.

Great Columbia Publicity Stunt

The Cleveland branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co., working with Wm. Taylor, Son & Co., put on one of the biggest publicity "stunts" last week ever staged by any talking machine company in Cleveland. A display featuring the Columbia period Grafonolas was exhibited in the lobby of Loew's State Theatre, and in connection was an exhibit showing the various processes necessary in manufacturing the Columbia record. This theatre is reported to have the largest lobby of any theatre in America, and over 60,000 people are in attendance at the theatre during the course of the week.

The display was attractively arranged and received widespread interest and comment. George Krauslick, Dealer Service manager of the Cleveland branch, recorded the first sale of the exhibit by disposing of an electric model, P-27, Grafonola to Kenneth Reid, manager of Loew's State Theatre.

Featuring Victor Health Records

The newest additions to the health records which have arrived in Cleveland are those put out by the Victor people, and from all reports they are proving big sellers. The Buescher Co. is introducing these new records to the public in a novel way. An advertisement is being run in the dailies and on one side of it is an acrobat dressed in black tights juggling three big records on his feet. In heavy print at the top of the article is the announcement, "Keep Fit to Victor Music," under which is the following explanation, "Good health—the prized possession of those who exercise—is easily maintained by regular daily exercise, made attractive by cheering, rhythmic music. Twelve new complete exercises planned and supervised by Professor Chas. Collins. You'll be astonished by the invigorated feeling that follows their use. Hear them to-day!"

The May Co. is also promoting the Victor health records. A health room is now established in this store in which the Victor Health Records, the Walter Camp Health Builders and the Wallace Reducing Records are all displayed.

Baby Console Edison Model in Demand

The Phonograph Co. announced the fact last week that the "Baby Console" model of the Edison, retailing at $175, is now available for dealers. This phonograph, like the higher-priced console types, is equipped with a "reproducer-locating device." It is expected to prove a big seller, as the Edison phonograph is a well-known make, and other console types are not being received in large enough numbers to supply the demand.

Mr. Hyre recently announced that a golf tournament will be held at the annual convention and that Henry Dreher, of the B. Dreher's Sons Co., Cleveland, will present a golf cup to the winner.

New Brunswick Accounts

J. L. Du Breuil, district manager for the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., tells of four new accounts which have recently been closed. With the opening of E. W. Edward & Sons, a department store in Buffalo, N. Y., another dealer will be added to the already long list of exclusive handlers of the Brunswick records. D. D. Rupert, of Currensville, Pa., and the M. Huff Piano Co., of Clarion, Pa., will also handle Brunswick goods exclusively. A piano store is soon to be opened by J. W. Green & Co., of Toledo, at Fremont, O., and in addition to the piano stock it is to be an exclusive dealer for the Brunswick records and machines.

Columbia Activities and New Agents

George Krauslick, the wide-awake service manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., is attending the State Fair in Columbus. He is well able to handle exhibitions and should be a great help to W. S. Minek, of Columbus, who is having an exhibit of Columbia machines at the fair.

The right to sell Columbia records and machines has been given the Ackerman Piano Co., of Marion, it was announced by S. S. Larmon, branch manager of the Columbia Co. Other new Columbia accounts opened during the month include: A. D. Baumhart, Vermillion, O.; Chas. F. Finck, Fredericktown, O.; F. M. Le Page, Sycamore, O.; Joseph C. Fisher, Monroeville, O.; C. W. Sipe, Shelby, O., and the Collins Furniture Co., Spencerville, O.

Doing Well With Strand Line

The new Strand line is being featured by the Fischer Co., distributor for this territory, in a series of displays which have already resulted in the opening of a number of new accounts, according to R. J. Jamieson, sales manager. Displays were held in Columbus and Toledo, resulting in the opening of nine accounts.

HUNT MUSIC HOUSE CHANGES

Leonard E. Teed Becomes Secretary and Treasurer of White Plains Concern—Jas. A. Stafford Heads Talking Machine Department—Many Improvements Made in Store

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 5.—A change has been brought about in the official organization of Hunt's Leading Music House here through the election of Leonard E. Teed, Deputy County Treasurer of Westchester County, as secretary and treasurer of the company, succeeding L. R. Yeager, resigned. John H. Hunt continues as president of the company, with N. D. Hunt as vice-president.

An important recent addition to the staff of the store is James A. Stafford, a well-known and experienced talking machine man, and formerly connected with the advertising department of the Victor Co. in Camden, who has taken charge of the Victor department of the Hunt store and has already accomplished much in that capacity.

John H. Hunt, president of the company, reports a very satisfactory volume of business, which is increasing steadily with the growth of White Plains as a business and residence center. The company has placed Victrolas in practically all the public schools of the city and recently sold a Krakauer grand and a Victrola to the new Pelhamhurst Country Club.

The store has recently been remodeled to provide more space, the improvements including a mezzanine floor to house the offices and the newly equipped sheet music department. The grand piano department has been moved to elaborate quarters in the basement.

At the present time Hunt's Leading Music House handles Estey, Krakauer, Leins and Kohler & Campbell pianos and players, Victor talking machines and records, Q R S music rolls, sheet music and musical merchandise.

Mr. and Mrs. Hunt and Mr. and Mrs. Teed returned recently from an automobile trip through the Adirondacks and Canada, coming back by way of the Green Mountains.

The Del Norte Talking Machine Co., San Francisco street, El Paso, Tex., recently doubled its floor space to take care of increased business.

O. J. DEMOLL VISITS GOTHAM

Washington Music Merchant Says Prospects Are Bright in the National Capital

Otto J. DeMoll, head of O. J. DeMoll & Co., Washington, D. C., representative for the Aeolian Co. line of pianos, Pianolas and Duo-Art pianos, as well as wholesale representative for Vocalion phonographs and records, was a visitor to New York recently, he having brought his daughter from a Summer camp in Vermont to Atlantic City, where Mrs. DeMoll and two other daughters have been spending the Summer.

Mr. DeMoll stated that business prospects in the National Capital were for the most part very encouraging. The Government had discharged thousands of clerks who had been engaged in war work, but there were still left many thousands who are excellent prospects for piano and talking machine sales. An interesting feature of the Washington trade is that it is not subject to industrial changes to any degree, the bulk of the population being on the Government payroll regularly.

BECKER MUSIC CO. OPENS IN CAIRO

CAIRO, NEB., Sept. 5.—The Gaston Music Co. one of the oldest concerns engaged in the musical instrument business in this part of the State, has been succeeded by the Becker Music Co. Pianos, player-pianos, Victor talking machines and Edison phonographs are handled.

H. C. Sebiri, connected with the sales department of the Self Service Phonograph Co., is planning a pleasure and business trip through New York State.

SAN FRANCISCO

Sales Volume Increases—New Victor Styles Interest—To Hold Music Week in November—New Managers and Other News of Month

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., September 4.—Buying on the impulse of the moment is no longer an important factor in the music business on the Coast, say the leading dealers of San Francisco, yet for all that the sales volume is steadily increasing. Talking machine sales have increased as well as piano sales and the buyers seem largely to weigh and consider most deliberately before purchasing. The increased sales are not due to the special prosperity of any one class, though the employed class has shown greater purchasing power of late, probably on account of the activity in the many California seasonal industries. The railway strikes have caused prices of agricultural products to drop somewhat in the local markets, but the general condition of the growers is perhaps normal. Most crops are reasonably heavy, and some are unusually so.

Interested in New Flat-top Victor Consoles

The trade is showing much interest in the new flat-top console type machines announced by the Victor Co., and the announcement of another record exchange, the second for the year thus far, is welcome news to the talking machine dealers. B. R. Scott, assistant wholesale manager of the Victor department of Sherman, Clay & Co., says September records may be a little late in arriving on the Coast on account of the railroad troubles.

Mr. Hamilton, traveling representative for the Victor Co., is back on the Coast after a trip to the factory at Camden. He was in San Francisco a few days and then left for Los Angeles. He will be in the South for about a month and then spend most of his time in northern California for several months to come.

Master Syncopationist Buys Brunswick

Paul Ash, the popular pianist and musical director of the Granda Theatre Orchestra, recently purchased a Brunswick phonograph at the Sterling Furniture Co., which company has one of the most active Brunswick departments on the Coast. Paul Ash is a master syncopationist whose jazz programs have excited the wonder of modern music-lovers.

New Manager at Hauschildt's

Clarence Moran, manager of the talking machine department of the Hauschildt Music Co., has resigned his position to accept one in the piano department of the Wurlitzer store, in this city. Mr. Myers, the assistant manager of the Hauschildt department, has been promoted to the post of manager.

Apollo of the Sales Game Tells Secret

Billy Morton, manager of the retail Victor department of Sherman, Clay & Co., in this city, is generally considered an Apollo in the local talking machine fraternity. "My wonderful physical development," says Billy proudly, "is due entirely to the Victor Health records. I demonstrate these records so often that I have become the living apotheosis of the doctrine they promulgate—the doctrine of physical health and beauty."

Outlook Is for Lively Fall Trade

Raymond E. Wolfinger, manager of the talking machine department of the Wiley B. Allen Co., has returned from a vacation trip to Lake Tahoe and the Yosemite Valley. He says the local business of the company is very good and that the outlook is for a lively Fall trade.

James J. Black, treasurer of the Wiley B. Allen Co., is shortly to become a benedict, so Dame Rumor has it. At least he has been seen out with the same girl twice lately.

A Progressive Columbia Manager

The most successful business record of the San Francisco branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co. in the last year is due largely to the progressive and energetic activities of P. S. Kantner, who has been the acting manager. Mr. Kantner's success has been recognized by the company and his appointment as manager of the branch has been confirmed in a letter from G. W. Hopkins, the general sales manager. Mr. Kantner has lined up the California Columbia dealers in his district so that they now work with great effectiveness in the various co-operative advertising campaigns. The Eastern Outfitting Co., San Francisco, one of the largest Columbia dealers in the district, sold 509 Columbia machines during the last three advertising campaigns. Mr. Kantner is at present on a trip to New York.

November 5 to 12 Will Be Music Week

The time has been definitely decided for Music Week in San Francisco. The week from November 5 to 12 is the time chosen as being the best to suit all those musical interests which will line up to make the week a success. The co-operation of all sorts of clubs and societies is assured and no doubt the week this year will make a decided stir. The talking machine dealers will see to it that the phonograph is given due prominence in many of the musical programs being planned.

Install Talking Machine Department

E. M. Loveland, of Ferndale, Cal., has installed a talking machine department in his store, but as yet is handling records exclusively. He has the Okeh line.

Broadcasting Conditions in Radio Field

Radio interest in the interior districts of California is not growing as fast as it should by reason of the inadequate broadcasting. The average radio set cannot receive at long enough distances to make the Coast broadcasting available, and the local broadcasting is usually none too attractive. Interest in the large cities continues to increase steadily. Vocal and instrumental selections by the artists themselves produce the best results through the ether, though the record broadcasting is sometimes very satisfactory. J. J. Black, of the Wiley B. Allen Co., who is a splendid singer, sang for the radio at the Hale Bros. station this month.

Takes on Music Rolls

The California Phonograph Corp. in this city, has departed from its time-honored policy of dealing exclusively in talking machine merchandise and now has taken on the Q R S music roll line distributed in this territory by A. L. Quinn, the Pacific Coast manager of the Q R S Music Co., of Chicago.

PHYSICAL CULTURE RECORD SET

Dr. Royal S. Copeland Author of Series of Exercises Set to Music Issued by Bridgeport Die & Machine Co.—Opportunity to Keep Fit

BRIDGEPORT, CONN., September 6.—A new physical culture record set has been placed upon the market by the Bridgeport Die & Machine Co., record manufacturer of this city. Dr. Royal S. Copeland, well-known health commissioner of New York City, is the author of the various exercises and also gives a series of talks on health. The set consists of five ten-inch records in an album. On the A side of each record are contained the various physical culture exercises and on the B side a health talk. The exercises are to musical accompaniment and charts are supplied. It has been stated that Dr. Copeland will answer without cost health inquiries in connection with this record set which may be mailed him by owners of these sets at any time.

Both James W. Ogden, president, and W. A. Macfarlane, secretary and treasurer of the organization, are giving much of their attention to this new end of the business and are making a number of trips throughout the country in the interest of the physical culture set and the Puritan records, which this concern also produces.

CABINET & ACCESSORIES NEW HOME

Growth of Business Compels Removal to Larger and Well-equipped Quarters at 3 West Sixteenth Street, New York

Growing business has again made a move to larger quarters by the Cabinet & Accessories Co. imperative. This company, under the whole-hearted leadership of Otto Goldsmith, president, started several years ago with a small beginning and the representation of a very few lines of merchandise. At the present time, however, the Cabinet & Accessories Co. distributes practically everything in the talking machine accessory line and also has many articles of interest for the piano and radio dealer.

Attractive quarters have been secured at 3 West Sixteenth street. Occupation of the new building will be accomplished between September 15 and 20 and is so planned as to eliminate any interference with the regular business of the company. Over 3,000 square feet have been secured and the company will occupy the entire second floor of the building, which is modern in every respect. The floor will be attractively arranged and an excellently planned showroom will enable a proper display of the many lines distributed.

National Bureau for Advancement of Music Issues List of Nearly 400 Articles of Special Interest to Members of Trade

The National Bureau for the Advancement of Music has just compiled a list of nearly 400 newspaper articles on musical subjects of special interest to the trade and the public with the suggestion that dealers get copies of the articles of direct interest to them either for publication in their local newspapers or for use in connection with their own publicity.

The Bureau sends to the newspapers of the country four articles each week, the articles covering a surprising range of subjects along musical lines. The articles are of a character that make them useful in many ways and it will be well for members of the trade to get in touch with the Bureau and secure copies of the articles of special value to them.

The fact that the 400 articles listed have been sent out by the Bureau in about a two-year period affords some idea of the work of that organization in only one of its phases. The list is too lengthy to print here, but copies can be secured from the National Bureau for the Advancement of Music, 105 West Fortieth street, New York.

An attractive music studio has been opened in the Y. M. C. A. building, Burlington, Vt., by C. W. Ross, formerly connected with the College Music Rooms. Mr. Ross will specialize in pianos, talking machines and radio outfits.

Absolutely true to its period, with inlay at both front and ends, and with 3/4-inch, 5-ply panels, this William and Mary Console combines both quality and compactness. It is 34 1/4 inches high, 32 3/4 inches wide, and 20 inches deep. Finish is in burl walnut or highly figured mahogany. There is not a single nail in its entire construction. Though priced at only $185, this Jewett model competes successfully with any phonograph in the $300 class.

❖ The Lions Roared ❖

The Lions of musical instrument merchandising heard our call and they've been roaring ever since. As a result, we are closing new contracts all over the country, in rapid succession, for the Jewett Line—the Line for Lions—Phonographs, Radiophonographs and Radio.

For, with such a line, the Lion of every community sees that he can get the Lion's share of the business.

On the sound foundation of his phonograph goodwill, he will also sell Radio. And the additional trade, thus built up, will bring him more phonograph sales.

Leadership and Permanence are the rewards which each Lion is going to wrest from his competitors during the selling season now beginning.

Are you still hiding your head like the Ostrich, when Radio is forced on your attention? Or have you the courage and foresight to be a Lion and get the Lion's share of the business of your community, Phonograph and Radio combined?

If you're really a Lion, cut loose with that roar!

USING ADVERTISING TO STABILIZE A NEW INDUSTRY

Waldemar Kaempffert, of Thos. F. Logan & Co., Gives Interesting Résumé of the Radio Corporation's Activities and Progress in the Radio Field in a Recent Issue of Printers' Ink

The feature article in the August 31 issue of Printers' Ink is entitled "How the Radio Corporation Is Using Advertising to Stabilize a New Industry," and under this heading Waldemar Kaempffert, of Thos. F. Logan & Co., gives an interesting résumé of the Radio Corporation's activities and progress in the radio field. Thos. F. Logan & Co. are handling the advertising of the Radio Corporation of America, and Mr. Kaempffert is therefore in a position to give authoritative data on the tremendous publicity campaign sponsored by this well-known company.

Mr. Kaempffert points out that, in co-operation with other manufacturers, the Radio Corporation is endeavoring to establish radio as a permanent influence in American homes, and in his article he traces briefly, but most interestingly, the phenomenal growth of the radio industry during the past year.

Practically every form of successful publicity is being used by the Radio Corporation of America in behalf of the industry as a whole and R C A products in particular. Mr. Kaempffert, in his article, reproduces some of the advertising that the Radio Corporation is using in national periodicals, trade papers and newspapers, emphasizing the fact that in order to protect the dealer trade-marks and trade names were adopted. The name "Radiola" was given to all receiving sets, the name "Radiotron" was given to vacuum tubes and the letters R C A, distinctively drawn and enclosed in a circle, were adopted as the official trade-mark. Dealers displayed this trade-mark either in the form of decalcomanie window designs or in the form of wall cards. It is to be found in every advertisement, whether addressed to the public in magazines and newspapers or to the dealer and trade papers, and, of course, is found on every piece of apparatus supplied by the Radio Corporation of America.

Mr. Kaempffert, in his article, points out the motive and policy influencing each and every piece of advertising used in the Radio Corporation's campaign. Some of the advertisements do little more than classify the different types of Radiolas and explain very simply what may be expected of each. Other advertisements are devoted almost in their entirety to an explanation of the Radio Corporation's relation to the public, to the dealer and to radio itself, thereby constituting an expression of policy.

Last Spring, when it was impossible to meet the demand for radio apparatus, the Radio Corporation of America took the public into its confidence, showing the public that men and women were working day and night in its factories in an effort to meet the demand for apparatus and accessories. Production figures were given and definite pledges were made that the output would be increased by named months. When these named months were at hand advertisements again informed the public of the fact that the pledges had been fulfilled.

Referring to the trade paper advertising used by the Radio Corporation of America, Mr. Kaempffert in this article states in part as follows:

"In the trade paper advertising which is aimed at the dealer the selling assistance that the Radio Corporation of America is willing to render is stressed as much as the character of its apparatus. In addition, the policies set forth in the popular magazines and newspapers are outlined for his benefit. Dealer helps, now widely used by all good merchandisers, are even more necessary in successfully selling radio products than shaving soaps and automobiles because radio is still a mystery to the man behind the counter. The salesmanship displayed by many dealers in handling radio supplies has rarely been brilliant.

"Last Winter the retailer had little to do but take orders. Next Winter he must be prepared to talk interestingly and convincingly about the radiolas and the radiotrons which he must not only display in his window and on his shelves, but also advertise in his local newspaper. He must be prepared to meet his customer again and again after a sale has been made, because that customer is sure to return for an interpretation of instructions that he cannot understand, despite all the care that has been taken to make them simple and clear. Hence the Radio Corporation's dealer helps constitute a special course in radio merchandising, which supplement its educational advertising in national mediums and newspapers."

PAUL SPECHT SIGNS WITH COLUMBIA

Paul Specht's Famous Orchestra Arranges to Record Exclusively for Columbia Co.

The Columbia Graphophone Co. announced last week that arrangements had been completed whereby Paul Specht and his orchestra, known as Paul Specht's Society Serenaders, would record exclusively for the Columbia library. The first records of this well-known organization will be issued in the October list and will consist of "Silver Stars" and "In Rose Time."

This announcement by the Columbia Co. will undoubtedly be received with enthusiasm by Columbia dealers from coast to coast, as Paul Specht and his orchestra represent one of the most successful and popular dance organizations in the country. Paul Specht has attained national renown as a leader in the individual interpretation of modern dance music and is the originator of the expression "Rhythmic Symphonic Syncopation." His organization has made a specialty of providing the popular dance hits with a unique and distinctive tone shading that has been a paramount factor in the success of the orchestra.

Paul Specht is an accomplished musician, and studied music under the capable guidance of his father, Prof. Chas. G. Specht, a well-known violinist, and one of the best-known organists and band leaders of his day. He also studied piano, violin and counterpoint at Coomb's Conservatory at Philadelphia, thereby gaining an invaluable musical education.

Paul Specht organized the "American Collegians" orchestra that toured the entire West with remarkable success, and shortly afterward appeared with his orchestra at the Alamac Hotel in Atlantic City. His success at this well-known hostelry was instantaneous and he was next engaged to supply the dance music for the Hotel Addison at Detroit. In that city his orchestra soon became a by-word for the best dance music obtainable, and when he severed his connections at the Hotel Addison Mr. Specht was the guest of honor at a banquet which was attended by practically all of the leading musicians in Detroit.

After leaving Detroit Paul Specht's Society Serenaders were engaged for the Hotel

Astor roof dances, where the orchestra is now appearing. Under his capable direction his orchestra has attained a foremost position in New York's amusement circles, and the Hotel Astor roof is crowded nightly with dance enthusiasts who appreciate and recognize the distinctive playing of Paul Specht's Orchestra.

According to his present plans, Paul Specht will soon send three orchestras to London, and his Metropolitan orchestra, under the direction of J. Denny, is now playing Keith vaudeville in the Middle West. It is understood that Paul Specht's Society Serenaders will also be booked

FINAL EXCISE TAX REPORT

Music Industry Paid Nearly $5,000,000 During Last Half Year That Tax Was in Force

WASHINGTON, D. C., September 5.—Although in force only during the first half of the fiscal year, which ended June 30 last, nearly $5,000,000 were collected from the tax on pianos, organs and other musical instruments, according to figures which have just been made public by Commissioner of Internal Revenue David H. Blair. Collections for the period from July 1 to December 31, 1921, totaled $4,951,752, it is stated, while for the entire fiscal year 1921 they had amounted to $11,568,034, indicating that the musical instrument business had held up wonderfully during the months of general trade depression.

NEW STORE AT ATLANTIC CITY

Luigi A. Ferrari, the well-known musician of Atlantic City, N. J., has opened a new music store at 3902 Ventnor avenue, that city, where he handles a complete line of pianos, player-pianos, Victrolas and small musical instruments.

The Platt Music Co., of Los Angeles, Cal., has purchased the music business formerly conducted by the Whightman Music Co., 334 Fine avenue, Long Beach, Cal.

The Trade in PHILADELPHIA and LOCALITY

PHILADELPHIA, PA., September 6.—While many of the talking machine dealers of the Quaker City declare that their Fall business has started out in fine shape, nevertheless, the talking machine distributors feel that the complete adjustment of the rail strike as quickly as possible is necessary to ensure Fall business reaching, or even approximating, the usual figures for this time of the year.

Although Philadelphia does not lie in the heart of the coal regions, nevertheless, talking machine distributors were affected by the walk-out of miners to a considerable extent. They point out that many people not even connected with the coal industry have delayed making purchases of talking machines and records until the trouble was readjusted, as their natural conservative instinct warned them not to spend recklessly when conditions are not wholly normal. This attitude on the part of the public naturally caused the dealers to refrain from sending in their orders for new stock for the Fall and, therefore, the entire industry is more or less affected.

Talking machine dealers who are dependent solely upon Philadelphians and residents of the surrounding cities and towns for their business assert that their sales are improving rapidly and most encouragingly, but even this class of dealers say that they are confident that their sales would be increased to an even greater amount if normal industrial conditions prevailed.

Health Records Popular

There have been few innovations in the talking machine record business that have swept over Philadelphia with such success as have the Victor Health Records recently issued and recorded under the direction of Professor Charles Collins, head of the Collins Physical Training Institute, of this city.

An unusually interesting demonstration of the Victor Health Records was held at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel last month, following a luncheon of the Kiwanis Club. The demonstration was arranged by H. Royer Smith, well-known local Victor dealer, and Prof. Collins himself spoke. After the lecture and demonstration the club members went through the various exercises.

This exhibition was witnessed and, in fact participated in, by a number of the leading Victor distributors of Philadelphia who were present at the Kiwanis luncheon as the guests of Mr. Smith. These leaders in the talking machine trade of this city included G. W. Hoover, the president of the Victor Dealers' Association; A. C. Weymann, of H. A. Weymann & Sons; T. W. Barnhill, of the Penn Phonograph Co.; Louis Buehn, head of the firm that bears his name, and E. J. Dingley, assistant sales manager of the Victor Co.

H. Royer Smith was also the first Victor dealer in this city to give exhibitions of these health records in the show windows of his store, and the number of sales that he made during these demonstrations as well as that before the Kiwanis Club serve to indicate the popularity these records have attained in such a short time.

Tone Tests at Atlantic City

The Girard Phonograph Co., jobber of the New Edison, is planning to make a series of tone tests during the coming week at Atlantic City, on Young's Million Dollar Pier, during the progress of the annual pageant. Among the artists who will assist during these tests, so that the audience can try to distinguish between their actual singing tones and those recorded by the New Edison, are Helen Davis, the mezzo-soprano; Victor Young, pianist, and Walter Chapman, the violinist. The Girard Phonograph Co. has recently fitted out a large number of dealers and is expecting a record-breaking business during the coming Fall months, according to Arthur W. Rhinow, one of the officials of the company.

"We have been opening several new accounts every week for the last six weeks and we are looking for the biggest year, as far as business is concerned, that the Edison has ever had," he said. "With the adjustment of the coal and rail strikes there is nothing that can stop the onward sweep of the Edison, I am sure. We are planning to give quite a number of tone-tests during the Fall months, as we have during past years, only this year the demands for these tests have assumed such large proportions that we have been obliged to sign up two troupes of tone-test artists instead of the single troupe that has done this work in the past. We have arranged for the services of Helen Davis, Victor Young and Walter Chapman, as the members of one of these troupes, while Marie Morrissey and Jacques Glockner will make up the other troupe.

"We are also preparing to place on the market the four new junior models of the Edison that will sell at lower prices than those charged for other Edison models, so that the Edison

A STATEMENT OF FACT

Every indication points to this Fall being a Victor Selling and a Victor Buying Season.

Fundamental business conditions are better. This means increased buying power for the people. In our line it should be strongly reflected in greatly increased Victor Sales.

Victor Sales because people now demand a quality product of known value. Big sales of bankrupt stocks are apparently at an end, but not the effort to get rid of bad buys. This means selling hundreds of Victrolas to people who are dissatisfied, even to the extent of sacrificing their odd make.

Grafonola Dealers Meet

Members of the Philadelphia Grafonola Dealers' Association held their usual monthly meeting last Tuesday, August 29, at the Adelpia Hotel. J. G. Oldwurtle, the president of the Association, presided and general trade conditions and prospects for Fall business were discussed.

Helping Dealers to Demonstrate

George A. Tatem, of the Talking Machine Co., has been arranging for a number of demonstrations of the Victor Health Records in the show windows of the dealers' stores. He has secured the services of Miss Dorothy Settler, who has been most successful in the demonstrations which she has given during the last three or four weeks under Mr. Tatem's direction. These demonstrations are being furnished free of charge to the dealers of the Talking Machine Co. and have been held recently in Trenton, Wilmington, Camden, Millville and Reading, while Mr. Tatem has just completed arrangements for further exhibitions in Harrisburg, Lancaster, Lebanon and several other surrounding cities.

Some Recent Visitors

Among the recent visitors seen by Mr. Tatem was Dan Egan, manager of E. S. Applegate Co., of Trenton, who is conceded to be one of the most progressive dealers in the Victor business. Another of Mr. Tatem's recent visitors was John Huff, of Shenandoah, who is expecting a large business during the coming months, with the coal strike adjusted, as Mr. Huff says that he has found that the residents of that vicinity are well supplied with money, but are reluctant to spend it for anything but the necessities of life until the strike is settled and conditions return to normal again.

Opens Handsome New Store

H. Housel, of William H. Housel & Co., of Williamsport, was a recent visitor to the Louis Buehn Co. showrooms. Both F. B. Reineck, secretary, and C. W. Miller, the vice-president of the company, attended the opening of the handsome, newly renovated store of Joseph Heim Co., at 3800 North Broad street. The formal opening of the new store, which was attended by a number of the officials of the Victor Talking Machine Co. and fellow dealers and friends of Mr. Heim, was held on Friday, September 1. Mr. Heim was warmly congratulated upon the handsome appearance of his new store, which has been enlarged to include the buildings 3800-2-4-6-8 North Broad street. A new front has been completed and the entire interior has been beautifully decorated and furnished and a number of booths have been installed for the comfort of customers listening to Victor records.

Remick's Remarkable Musical Emporium

The retail branch warerooms of Jerome H. Remick & Co., at 125 South Broad street, which were recently completed, are said to comprise an absolutely complete musical merchandise department store. A place has been provided for everything in the music line with no detail overlooked.

Much attention has been given to the selection of the proper fixture equipment throughout. Dust-proof glass wall cases have been provided for such merchandise that is affected by exposure, such as musical instruments, strings, etc. Sheet music and talking machine records are well provided for in an efficient rack system arranged for ready and quick selling, and well displayed for the attention of the customer. A series of spacious hearing rooms has also been provided for the convenience of the patrons. Van Veen & Co., New York City, the builders of the equipment, state that the Remick establishment is a model one in every detail and after which all the branch stores of Jerome H. Remick & Co. are patterned.

Ability to Size Up a Prospect

"The ability to properly size up a prospect and sell a machine within that prospect's means is a quality of much value to the talking machine retailer," stated H. W. Weymann, wholesale manager of H. A. Weymann & Son, Inc., Victor wholesaler. "If a $200 machine is sold to a $100 prospect a repossession is likely, or even if there is no repossession the heavy payments on the higher-priced machine, which ought to be paid off in the same time as a lower-priced machine, will preclude the regular monthly purchase of records. It is a generally accepted fact that the regular purchase of records keeps up interest, which is greatly to be desired, and I feel sure that it is much wiser for a dealer to sell a machine the payments for which will not be beyond the purchaser's means and will allow a balance for the purchase of new records."

In referring to local conditions Mr. Weymann stated that the employment and building situations in Philadelphia were exceptionally good. New homes are being erected in all sections of the city. "Philadelphia," said Mr. Weymann, "is strongly Victor. It considers the Victrola as a home industry and it is safe to predict that 80 per cent of these new homes will be equipped with Victrolas."

General Radio Corp. Proves a Success

The phenomenal success of the General Radio Corp., of this city, in the few months of its existence, is a tribute to the untiring effort of Walter L. Eckhardt, the head of the organization. Through his former connection with local Pathé affairs Mr. Eckhardt is well known to every dealer in the entire city. Mr. Eckhardt's acquaintanceship also extends to all large centers throughout the country.

When the General Radio Corp. was originally formed it distributed radio sets and the Strand line of talking machines. At the present time the General Radio Corp. distributes, in addition to Strand talking machines, Okeh records and the products of the Radio Corporation of America. In addition to the lines distributed the General Radio Corp. also manufactures a wide line of quality radio products under the brand of "Geraco," and the Music Master Amplifier, a sound magnifying radio horn.

Mr. Eckhardt has hinted of other items now in the laboratory stage which are expected to be added to the line before the Winter is over.

Cheery Report Anent Business Expansion

The Fall season is bringing with it renewed efforts on the part of the talking machine dealer for increasing his business. T. W. Barnhill, president of the Penn Phonograph Co., Victor distributor, reports that business is increasing regularly and that many dealers are sending in orders for the Penn-Victor miniature dogs to increase their business.

G. D. Shewell Ends Canadian Tour

G. D. Shewell, Eastern sales representative for the Cheney phonograph, has returned to his headquarters here from an automobile tour of Canada. The party, which included Mrs. Shewell, stopped at a number of points including Montreal and Lake Placid in the Adirondack Mountains. G. D. Shewell, Jr., associated with his father in the management of the business, left for a trip through Maine immediately following the return of Mr. Shewell.

Popularity of "Little" Songs

The popularity of "little" songs has been pointed out by B. H. Rogers, head of the Lincoln Business Bureau, distributor of the Vocalion phonograph and records. "The vogue of these 'little' songs is still with us," he said. "It started with such favorites as 'The Little Grey Home in the West,' 'Little Mother of Mine' and others using the endearing diminutive. Colin O'More, the Irish tenor, sings the newest of all these songs, 'I Love a Little Cottage,' for the new Vocalion record that tells a simple and likable little musical tale.

"One gets the habit of looking to the Ziegfeld Follies each year," he continued, "for the last word in beauty, fashion and up-to-date music. True to its reputation for the latter, this year's show has both the South Sea and the radio craze as subjects for big hits; namely, 'The South Sea Moon' and 'Listening on Some Radio,' double-headed Vocalion fox-trots performed by the Bar Harbor Society Orchestra."

H. W. Weymann on Motor Trip

Increasing sales were recently reported by H. W. Weymann, head of H. A. Weymann & Sons, who has returned from a well-deserved vacation in motoring through the New England States and Canada with a party of friends. He had a most enjoyable time.

AVOID "WOTINELL" ATTITUDE

The average individual dislikes to go into an establishment and wander around trying to discover where he can quickly be served or obtain the information he may be seeking. If he has, added to this, the feeling created by the familiar "wotinell" attitude so many persons delight in assuming toward an inquirer he is quite likely to go away with an unfavorable impression of those with whom he has been forced to transact his business.—Electrical World.

TWO NEW VICTOR RECORD RELEASES

"Three O'Clock in the Morning," by Whiteman, and "Mister Gallagher and Mister Shean," by the Originators, Just Announced

The Victor Talking Machine Co. has just announced special release of two new records of unusual interest, the first bearing on one side the waltz success, "Three O'Clock in the Morning," and on the other "Oriental," fox-trot, both played by Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra, and the second, a record of "Mister Gallagher and Mister Shean," recorded by Gallagher and Shean themselves and including a number of new verses. The new records will be placed on sale on September 22 and will appear also in the regular November supplement.

The Victor Co. has also announced a special release of three foreign records, including one German and two Neopolitan, which are offered in response to popular demand.

EXPORT TRADE RECOVERING

Analysis by First Federal Foreign Banking Association Shows Expansion

The export business of the manufacturing industries of the United States has shown a remarkable gain since the low point reached in February, and there seems reason for believing that it has started upon a period of recovery, according to an analysis of the situation published in a bulletin of the First Federal Foreign Banking Association. The article points out that the United States is selling a bigger dollar-volume month by month, selling more kinds of manufactured goods and expanding the area of distribution.

Form in business is knowledge of the job. When that is mastered you become runner-up for the opening just a little higher up. But before you can climb there must be a foundation upon which to get a toe-hold.

Optimism Permeates Trade as Sales Climb to Record for Month—Fall Business-building Plans Under Way—Month's News Budget

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., September 7.—August was an extraordinarily good month with Indianapolis talking machine dealers. Almost without exception they report business far ahead of August, 1921. Plans are under way for Fall campaigns which are expected to firmly establish the trade on a normal basis.

"Buyers' Week," promoted the last week in August by the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce and local wholesalers, brought a large influx of buyers to the city. Railroad fare was paid for every buyer who visited the city that week and registered with some wholesale house. The amount of actual buying done by the visitors far exceeded expectations, according to reports from all the leading houses.

Dealers Welcome New Edison Models

H. G. Anderson, general sales manager of the Kipp Phonograph Co., Edison distributor, says the company's agents are very enthusiastic over the prospect of handling new models being placed on the market by the Edison Co., especially as they will be in a position thereby to offer a machine at a price as low as $100.

The sales force of the Kipp Co. was busy the latter part of August taking the semi-annual inventory. "Just as soon as we have finished this job," Mr. Anderson said, "we will plunge right into the liveliest and, we expect, the most productive Fall campaign we have ever put on. Business is to be had and the dealers are all very enthusiastic over prospects."

J. R. Jones a Visitor

J. R. Jones, Indiana representative of the Ohio Talking Machine Co., of Cincinnati, recently visited the Indianapolis Talking Machine Co., the Pearson Piano Co. and the Pettis Dry Goods Co. All of them report a rapidly increasing improvement in business.

"I have been in the talking machine game twenty years," Mr. Jones said, "and I am frank to say that this Summer has been the hardest I ever experienced. We are back, now, to the 1912 basis and we have to work for every sale. Fall orders, however, are showing a marked increase of confidence. There is a decided improvement in city accounts, while business in the country is very much more stable. I am having exceptionally good results in the sale of the new Victor console No. 210. My prediction is that the Victor line will be going as strong as ever during the coming holidays."

Good Victor Business

Ira Williams, manager of the Victor department of the Pettis Dry Goods Co., reports that his August business was the best for that month in the history of the store. Record sales, he says, were chiefly responsible for the month's good showing.

Manager A. C. Hawkins, of the Indianapolis Talking Machine Co., says that the Victor business for the month of August was very satisfactory, considering the extremely hot weather which prevailed through most of the month.

Sonora Sales Increase

Edward L. Mayer, manager of the Sonora department of the Kiefer-Stewart Co., reports that the past month developed numerous sales in all new models of the Sonora. "This looks like a big year for period models," he said. "Dealers from the small towns have been particularly active in buying and they all say that the farmers are in a decidedly more receptive mood than they have been for many months. As a matter of fact, reports show farmers' spending power to have increased 50 per cent in this territory and that means just so much new money thrown into business channels."

Pearson Piano Co.'s Display at State Fair

H. A. Brown, manager of the talking machine department of the Pearson Piano Co., says his record business during August increased about 35 per cent over August of last year and that his machine business increased about 25 per cent. He has planned as a feature of the State Fair exhibit the giving away of a $325 Style 6 Cheney machine to the holder of a lucky ticket. All visitors at the booth will be given an opportunity to win the machine. He will have nine machines on display throughout the week.

Features Golf Records

Walter J. Baker, manager of the Brunswick Shop, featured the new Chick Evans golf records in his window display during the last week of August. The records are in a set of five.

The sales of Brunswick machines and records during the month represented a decided increase over the corresponding month of last year, Mr. Baker said.

News Gleanings

The sales of Edison machines and records during August aggregated more than during the month of October, 1921, according to W. O. Hopkins, manager of the Edison Shop.

H. G. Power, general manager of the furniture and Victrola departments of the Taylor Carpet Co., has left that company and become associated with the Foster Furniture Co., of this city. He is succeeded by K. T. Chapman, former advertising manager. Miss Minnie Springer, buyer for the Victrola department, spent the latter part of August with relatives at New Orleans, La., and Gulfport, Miss.

Expressions of Optimism

After having struggled successfully against the inclination of store executives to reduce his advertising appropriations, F. R. Follis, manager of the Victor department of L. S. Ayres & Co., was able to show for August the best business he ever had in that month. Mr. Follis plans to use a Victrola at the L. S. Ayres & Co. booth at the State Fair to furnish music for the promenade of fourteen living models who will display costumes each day during the fair.

"Our machine business in August increased close to 40 per cent over the business of August, last year," says C. P. Herdman, talking machine manager of the Baldwin Piano Co.

"Our business in August was about the same as usual," reports W. G. Wilson, of Widener's Grafonola Shop. "The Granby machine continues to sell well. We are enjoying our best business just now, however, with a new $110 console model, which we are only distributing locally at the present time."

Competition on the part of off brands of talking machines is apparently less than it has been for several years, according to H. E. Whitman, of the Circle Talking Machine Shop. Victor sales are rapidly coming back to normal, he says, and there is a more hearty response to newspaper advertising.

Stewart Co. Distributes Jewett

The Stewart Sales Co., formerly the Stewart Talking Machine Co., has announced to the trade that it is the distributor for Indiana and Kentucky of the Jewett line. The company is taking advantage of the State Fair to place on display its first showing of the Jewett machines.

Lillard-Getmen-Hughes, Columbia dealers in Champaign, Ill., had an extensive display at the recent Champaign County Fair. I. S. Leon, Illinois representative of the Columbia Graphophone Co., spent two days at the fair in the dealer's exhibit booth.

Strikes Retard Business—Window Displays Win Praise—Consoles in Favor—News of Month

DENVER, COL., September 6.—Denver music dealers are almost agreed on the fact that not a great volume of business is to be expected in the early Fall, but they do expect a fair business and are not at all discouraged over the prospects. The two strikes still have a tendency to retard business. The slow delivery of new models of talking machines that have been put out by several of the leading manufacturers make it impossible to show customers new models nationally advertised and in some cases new models have been sold as quickly as placed on the floor. There is a decided increase in the sales of consoles, one firm, handling four makes of talking machines, claiming 60 per cent of the sales this Summer have been in the console models.

The Laman-Johnson Music Co., at 35 Broadway, recently took an option on a building at 60-64 Broadway. The lease on its present store does not expire until May, but an effort will be made to sell the lease and get into its own building by October. The new store will give the company much larger quarters. G. A. Laman says the store's record sales have been much increased within the last few months.

A. E. Emrick, who recently gave up his position as traveling salesman for the Denver Dry Goods Co., Edison distributor, to go into business for himself, has gone back with the Denver people. His business at 1624 Tremont street goes on, however, the Emrick-Nadler Music Co. being conducted by Mr. Emrick's daughter and an assistant.

Workmen will begin, shortly, on the remodeling of the basement of the Charles E. Wells Music Co. store. Roy E. Thompson, head of the talking machine department, says his department will then be moved from the first floor to the basement, where much larger quarters will be arranged. Business was excellent during August and many machines were sold during this period.

An attractive window was arranged under the direction of H. V. Huntoon, manager of the Victrola department of the Knight-Campbell Music Co., the first week in September. The background typified a section of a wall done in gray, in the center of which was placed a wall mirror and on either side fancy side lights. In front of this wall stood a console model Victrola, showing how nicely this type of musical instrument fitted this particular wall space. So many calls were made for the wall mirror that the department put in a stock and handled them along with the sale of talking machines. The mirror also served to bring people into the department. The balance of the window was a typical living-room setting. Business for August went ahead of the same month a year ago. Mr. Huntoon said he looked for good business with the two new Victor flat-top models, Nos. 210 and 230.

The McKannon Piano Co. has sold every console type Edison that has come in and regrets the inability to get these machines more rapidly. The company has just stocked up on radio merchandise and is showing how it can be connected up successfully for parlor use with the Edison phonograph. Mr. McKannon believes that radio and music must go together.

J. H. Blinn, manager of the talking machine department of the Baldwin Piano Co., says that, despite the two strikes, if business keeps up as it has done all Summer he will have no complaint to make.

The sale of Edison re-creations is keeping up well, says Norman D. Tharp, buyer of the Edison department, wholesale and retail, Denver Dry Goods Co. The popularity of Hawaiian music and piano numbers continues. Charles L. Clark, an Edison dealer from Laramie, Wyo., was a caller on the Edison distributors last week and reported he expected a pretty good business this Fall. He and his son had a booth at the fair held in Laramie during September, in which Edisons and pianos were displayed. Another caller was Wiley H. Clements, Edison dealer, of Canon City, Col. He reported a large fruit crop, with indications that a good business in Edisons would result this Fall.

Oscar Frazier, of the talking machine department of the Darrow Music Co., says that talking machines have sold better than records and efforts will be made to build up the sale of records.

An attractive Edison window was featured early in September by the Arvidson Piano Co., at 523 Sixteenth street.

R. B. Johnson, business manager of the wholesale and retail end of the Aeolian Co.'s branch house at St. Louis, has returned, after spending two months with the talking machine department of the Charles E. Wells Music Co.

T. P. Pattison, of the Pattison Music Co., has returned from his vacation, spent at Wagon Wheel Gap, Col.

INTRODUCE THE "BLUE BELLE" NEEDLE

Samuel Eshborn, well known as a distributor of talking machine parts and accessories, at 65 Fifth avenue, New York City, is introducing a new steel needle under the trade name "Blue Belle." This needle is a specially designed product of blue steel, non-rustable and made in various tones. The product has been given preliminary trials in many homes in Eastern territory and the result has been that Mr. Eshborn acquired the sales rights.

LIQUIDATING ITS BUSINESS

The Music Shop, Inc., Helena, Ark., handling Victor machines and records exclusively, is liquidating its business and expects to have its affairs wound up shortly after September 15. H. S. Blackwood is president of the company, H. C. Porter vice-president and I. A. Metz, secretary-treasurer.

Optimistic Outlook in Northwest—Dealers' Stocks Are Low and They Are Now Ordering Heavily—New Agencies—News of Month

MINNEAPOLIS and ST. PAUL, MINN., September 7.—Everything is almost all right in the Northwest—meaning that if the constituted authorities will settle the coal and railway strikes one way or another the Northwest will resume business in the good old Western style. The farmers are ready both to sell and buy, but there must be cars for moving grain, potatoes and other farm products and to bring fuel and other necessities. The farmer is beginning to think that he is something on the order of the "goat." After he has been working desperately hard ever since the Spring thaws, with the hope of recuperating from the heavy losses sustained during the past two years, he finds the grain prices sliding down so rapidly that he cannot figure out a profit, not to speak of recoupment for past losses. But, as he always has done, he will make the best of the situation and if he can't get the prices that he thinks he should have he will take the best he can get and proceed to put the country on an even keel again.

The coal strikes are supposed to be settled, but very little coal has come to the Northwest and, unless the Washington authorities get freight cars in motion, numerous Northwestern industries will have to close for a time.

Stocks Low Throughout the Northwest

Local dealers are anticipating their Fall wants on the basis of a return of prosperity and are placing orders accordingly, says Eugene F. O'Neill, of Beckwith-O'Neill Co., distributor of Victrolas and Victor records. Rad J. Sabra, formerly with Foster & Waldo and later manager of the Victrola department of Davis & Rubin, has joined the Beckwith-O'Neill Co.'s road staff and will cover Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Business Tripled in August

Manager Sharar, of the phonograph department of G. Sommers & Co., distributors of Pathé machines and records, informs The Talking Machine World that business in August was triple that of the July comparative volume and is far ahead of the August, 1921, totals—all of which is satisfactory to a comparatively new manager.

New Brunswick Agency

"Phonograph dealers with whom I have talked tell me that the talking machine business virtually has resolved itself into the handling of one or two standard machines," remarked E. L. Kern, director of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. "I think that they are about right. There are many machines in the field, but we believe that the Brunswicks are coming to the fore. We are opening new accounts constantly and the record demand is increasing very rapidly. The new Giliusen-Raudenbush Co. store in Duluth will handle Brunswicks phonographs exclusively and, by its style, will give our machine a great vogue in that territory."

Columbia Line With Friedman Store

Progress is reported by the Northwestern headquarters of the Columbia Graphophone Co. Collections are much better, but no great increase in sales is expected until the farmers can market their grain and other farm products. The harvest still is on the farms, as the railroads are unable to move it and rural traffic is seriously impeded in consequence. The Friedman Department Store, in Superior, Wis., recently opened a phonograph department, which will be devoted exclusively to Columbia Grafonolas. Manager W. L. Sprague spent the tail end of August in New York in conference with officials of the company.

Edison Display at Minnesota State Fair

Laurence H. Lucker, Edison jobber in this territory and head of the Minnesota Phonograph Co., has made preparations for a general display of Edison wares at the Minnesota State Fair. Several salesmen were added last week to the St. Paul and Minneapolis retail stores and to the traveling road force. The retail totals for August show far greater than for July and also greater than August, 1921.

Vocalions and Red Records in Favor

Vocalion machines and the "Red" records are public favorites, as a result of the steady publicity and active work of the Stone Piano Co., Northwestern distributor. Manager Munson states that everything is in excellent position for fine Fall trade and this reflects the attitude of all dealers.

Consoles Have the Call—Trade Steadily Bettering—Edison Activities—Shortage of Machines Probable—Live News of Month

CINCINNATI, O., September 6.—The call of the console! That's the factor that has been keeping the local talking machine trade on its legs. The popularity of this style of machine has grown steadily and proves that it is no early blooming and rapidly fading affair. Most dealers report that the console type is selling far in excess of any other type at the same price, and jobbers note that the retailers, in new orders, are giving more and more attention to these machines. The only explanation of this popularity seems to be that the console can be made to fit in less obtrusively and more like a piece of furniture than can the upright type, and so far the fact that it undoubtedly requires much more room has been of little detriment to success in selling it.

Business in upright styles has not been bad; however, August trade was far in advance of July trade and was also better than business of August last year. This encouraging report is had from everyone in the business. Retailers are stocking up more completely with comprehensive stocks than has been the case for many months, and all indications point to the fact that Autumn business is going to be good. Jobbers are already anticipating a probable shortage of machines, especially of certain types much in demand, and are crowding manufacturers to send these needed machines. Jobbers also are warning retailers, in a way not to be misconstrued as selfish policy, that the demand is likely to exceed the supply.

Business in records this month picked up all around the trade in this city, and dealers declare it is only a foretaste of the real increase to come as soon as the weather is cool enough for chokers and felt hats.

Consoles Lead, Says A. H. Bates

A. H. Bates, of the Ohio Talking Machine Co., is one of the more enthusiastic of the jobbers. He said: "The prospects are that trade in September and October, with cool weather and evenings indoors, will be brisk. I truly believe there will be a shortage in machines this Fall. We are cautioning our retailers to that effect, and are stocking up to our capacity ourselves. We expect to do an excellent business in the two new Victor models, No. 210 and No. 230, which will be ready for general trade in October. These are console models and, with the prevailing popularity of these models, a good business is sure to be had."

Mr. Thimele, manager of Ray C. Dilgard Co., Auburn, Ind., and Howard A. Brown, Pierson Piano Co., Indianapolis, Ind., visited Cincinnati and were entertained by Mr. Jones, Indiana representative of the Ohio Talking Machine Co. Mr. Brown and Mr. Thimele are Victrola dealers and report improving business.

Alterations at Adams Music Co.

The Adams Music Co., Covington, Ky., of which Mrs. Taylor is manager, has made extensive improvements in its Covington store. New record racks, new display windows and a new display room on the second floor have been added, making facilities for adding to an already large trade.

New Edison Consoles Attract Attention

The New Edison Co., P. H. Oelman, manager, is another house to have been favored by the advance in trade as compared with that of previous months and the same period of last year. Business, both in machines and records, has been excellent, according to Mr. Oelman, who said: "Our trade this month has been really encouraging and I think that the next two months will see us out of the woods. Console types have been selling exceptionally well. The new Edison consoles, especially the baby console, a moderately priced machine, have made a deep impression upon our dealers and very likely will be in great demand."

Several Edison dealers visited the local office at various times during the month. Among these were: R. A. McKee, Charleston, W. Va.; C. H. Hutchison, Ripley, O.; E. Sensenbrenner, Circleville, O.; Warren Spring, Eaton, O.; A. G. Krebs, Hamilton, O.; M. E. Radebough, Columbus, O. These dealers came to Cincinnati primarily to inspect the new baby console, and all were very much pleased with it.

Interesting News Brieflets

According to J. F. Van Court, of the Otto Grau Piano Co., which sells Victor and Brunswick products, the talking machine business has been very good. The extensive advertising of the company is bearing fruit.

The Victrola department of the Baldwin Piano Co. is busy. The record stock is showing a gratifying regularity in turnover and machines are in demand. The plan of having two salesmen tour surrounding country in a truck, with machines and supplies of records ready for instant sale to homes along the way, is working out with considerable success.

Morris Fantel, manager of the Widener Shop, remarked that business for August has been much better than any month in a very long time. "You may ride in Summer, but, after all, there's nothing like good music in Winter. The indoor days are almost here. Then we'll have our innings," he said.

Howard L. Chubb, of the Chubb-Steinberg Music Shop, also reports an excellent business in machines, records and radio equipment, a separate department which the Shop has established. Mr. Chubb's clever window displays continue to draw large crowds to his windows.

EARLE E. CONWAY DISCUSSES CONDITIONS IN EUROPE

President of Hallet & Davis Piano Co., Boston, Returns From an Extended Visit Abroad and Makes Interesting Comments on Conditions As He Found Them in France and England

BOSTON, MASS., September 2.—President Earle E. Conway, of the Hallet & Davis Piano Co., is home from his European trip. He was greeted at the wharf, as the "Olympic" docked in New York, and there also was a splendid home-coming for Mrs. Conway and their two daughters, Miss Janet and Miss Virginia Conway. Mr. Conway and his family came immediately to Boston, and when it came to interviewing this leader in the industry it was evident that the thing that most impressed him was the gigantic restoration work that is going on in France and Belgium and which is bound to get its true recognition from all the countries that had a part in the recent international struggle. Mr. Conway also expressed himself as impressed with the serious aspect which the reparation question in both France and Germany is assuming.

Arriving in England, Mr. Conway said, he and his family toured that country and Scotland, and then went over to Paris, which they made their headquarters as they toured over France and Belgium, spending days on the battlefields. As to general conditions, President Conway said:

"It is almost unbelievable the way in which the people of France and Belgium, from the well-to-do down to the peasants, have put their shoulder to the wheel and cleaned up the domestic and industrial chaos in the war-torn areas. Class barriers are forgotten for the time; a common end prompts men and women to work from six in the morning until dark, rebuilding, replanting, reclaiming. What this spirit of love of home means is shown by the fact that in Belgium, of 70,000 building units destroyed, 56,000 have already been restored.

"The living costs in Paris and London about parallel the living costs in New York. In Vienna, however, a $30,000 house can be bought for $700 in American money.

"Business conditions are fair in France and England, but the piano trade is quiet in both countries. France is now making about 2,000 pianos a year and England 60,000, probably fifty per cent of normal capacity. A high tariff fence has been built about this industry in both England and France. In the latter country a tariff of thirty-five per cent is imposed and that is based on the cost of manufacture of equal grade of product in France. It is expected that the tariff will soon obtain in the Colonies also, and this is a situation which holds little hope for importations at present.

"The political aspect is uneasy. The great problem in France to-day is that of war reparation. I did not meet one man in France who was not unalterably firm in his belief that France should collect reparation, as laid out by

E. E. Conway, President, Hallet & Davis Co. the war-reparation board, even if she has to play a lone hand. The French patience is being sorely tried. On the other hand the Germans had led themselves to believe that they are being prodded, without rhythm or reason, to pay their debts. This vicious condition tends in no way to soften the antagonism in Europe and, indeed, there is open talk of another war in fifteen years; time enough, let us hope, for the Peace Tribunal to work out its anti-war plans."

Like all keen executive minds that have visited Europe and made a close study of the way law is meted out over there, Mr. Conway was profoundly impressed with Continental judiciary systems. He was loud in his commendation of the justice of the English courts, which exercised the element of common sense in handling cases, and the privilege of appeal, which is so overdone and abused in this country, gets very little encouragement over there, he said.

On reaching his office in this city Mr. Conway was made to feel that he was among friends, by the receipt of a handsome silver cigarette container bearing this inscription: "From the factory, the roadmen and office force of the Hallet & Davis Piano Co."

MAGNAVOX AND "RADIO"

J. A. Goldstein Entertains Kiwanis Club With Elaborate "Radio" Concert

J. A. Goldstein, proprietor of "The Music Shop," Columbia dealer, at Niagara Falls, was recently elected vice-president of the local Kiwanis Club. At one of their luncheons he was called on to furnish the entertainment for a dinner to be given the following week and decided to surprise the members with a "supposed" radio concert.

With a rather elaborate radio outfit, which he stocks, and the assistance of a concealed Magnavox, Columbia records and an accomplice, he proceeded to give a lengthy talk on the technicalities of radio, then announced he would "tune up" with Pittsburgh, whereupon strains of "Stumbling" came trickling from an unknown source.

After having played several other Columbia records the climax was reached by announcing the members would now hear the voice of an absent brother who had been called to Pittsburgh and had been asked by himself to go to the broadcasting station there and address the club at this time. After considerable delay in fake tuning came the absent one's voice from afar (in next room) "with many apologies for being so far from the beautiful Niagara" and, removing the voice attachment from the Magnavox with hanging cords and plug, the "absent one" walked into the room, leaving many in dismay and wondering, until Mr. Goldstein explained everything to the satisfaction of all, and got some mighty fine advertising and orders for some of the popular records.

S. A. COLAHAN TAKES A BRIDE

Cheney Manager in New England Marries Marguerite K. Taylor, of Hallet & Davis Co. Staff

BOSTON, MASS., September 4.—This was the wedding day of Miss Marguerite K. Taylor, for some time private secretary to R. O. Ainslie, of the Hallet & Davis Co., and Stephen A. Colahan, the New England manager for the Cheney talking machine, the two having first met when Mr. Colahan came to Boston to take care of the retail business of the Pathé at the Hallet & Davis headquarters. The ceremony was performed this morning at St. Rose's Roman Catholic Church, Chelsea, in which city the bride resided, and the officiating clergyman was M. J. Scanlan, pastor of the church.

Following the wedding a breakfast and reception were held at Fraternity Hall, and for this and the ceremony there were a large number of friends of the bride and bridegroom from the Hallet & Davis offices and other music houses in the city. After a honeymoon trip by automobile to Maine Mr. and Mrs. Colahan will make their home at 112 Boston avenue, West Somerville.

"TALKER" HELPS GOOD ENGLISH

Dr. Vizetelly, Discussing the Charms of English Speech, Pays Tribute to Work of Talking Machine Companies for Their Timely Aid

"There are very few of us who realize the great debt we owe to the telephone companies for the vigorous campaigns they have been, and are still, conducting on behalf of standardized speech, and to secure the standardization of human voice sounds," says Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly, editor of the Practical Standard Dictionary, in an article in which he emphasizes the proper pronunciation of vowels and their value in bringing out the beauty of our language. "To them and to the phonograph companies, whose vociculturists have aided in the work, we are under an obligation that none of us can ever repay, for it is owing almost as much to their efforts as it is to the increased facilities of travel that standard English has spread, and that we are rapidly marching toward that uniformity of vocal sounds which will ultimately bring English into the same class as Italian as the language of song. But before we attain this distinction we must learn to give our vowels their full force, and to use our consonants with proper discretion. Then, wherever the English language is used in accordance with its best traditions, there standardized English will be found, no matter in what quarter of the globe this may be."

EDISON WAS GUEST OF HONOR

Thos. A. Edison was the guest of honor at a dinner given by the Edison Co., at the Hotel Commodore, on the evening of Monday, September 11, in connection with the fortieth anniversary of the first electric illumination of the downtown buildings in New York and the operation of the first central power house. The invitations state that the dinner was "in commemoration of forty years of Edison service in the city of New York." One guest at the dinner who was with Mr. Edison that September forty years ago was Samuel Insull, now president of the Edison Co., Chicago, and another was John W. Lieb, vice-president of the Edison Co., a resident of New Rochelle.

BROOKLYN DEALERS ARE READY FOR BIG TRADE

Distributors and Dealers Have Perfected Plans to Meet Demands—Radio Grows More in Favor—New Sonora Agencies—Stores Change Hands—Long Island Phonograph Co. Activities—Demonstrating Victor Health Records—Splendid Spirit of Optimism Prevails

Brooklyn and Long Island talking machine dealers are ready for an active Fall and Winter business. Carefully laid plans prepared during the last three months have equipped these dealers with an organization and a stock of talking machines and records to meet any demand which it is expected they will be called upon to supply the coming months. The sales personnel have been reorganized in some cases and special pains have been taken to train sales people and, no doubt, they will be able to give their clientele a superior service in every way, resulting in sales being better handled and correspondingly increased. In the case of those dealers who have been in fear of over-ordering their stock there will be the usual amount of complaining when business actually begins to come, but fortunately most dealers in this section are not in this class, as most of them have been far-sighted enough to order a plentiful stock. However, there must be some in any district who will not order in advance and these few will be sadly disappointed and consequently lose a lot of business which they would get, provided they had the stock to sell. Wholesalers and manufacturers have been urging the necessity of placing early orders to meet the expected Fall business and the wise dealer has followed this advice and he will be the one to reap the harvest.

Look Favorably on Radio

A general survey of the retail trade here seems to show that talking machine dealers are looking upon radio as a favorable asset to their business and without question many of them will carry radio stock this Winter. It seems that this radio equipment will consist of complete receiving units, which seems to be the vogue, and, no doubt, many of these will be sold by Brooklyn talking machine dealers during the coming Winter months. Already some dealers have a representative stock in their stores, while others have placed orders for early Fall delivery and are devoting a space in their store exclusively to the radio product, in charge of experienced radio men.

All in all, the situation is very encouraging and everyone is confident that the business done this Fall and Winter will show a decided increase over last year and if plans of these dealers are carried out there will be no doubt as to the outcome of this prophecy, for they offer every indication of fulfilling every plan in a highly satisfactory manner.

American Talking Machine Co. Activities

The American Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler, reports that the outlook for Fall and Winter trade is very encouraging and that its dealers will be prepared for an active Fall business. The carefully developed plans and strenuous work done by this wholesaler during the Summer months are now bearing fruit and orders for machines and records are being filled to capacity. R. H. Morris, general manager of the company, is very much pleased with the situation generally and he remarked to The World that this Fall and Winter promises to be one of the most active seasons experienced by talking machine dealers since the war.

Chas. Offerman, popular representative of this company for Long Island, spent the last two weeks of August on a well-earned vacation in New England. He started in his automobile with the intention of visiting the leading resorts, returning by a different route. He reported back prepared to do valiant work for the talking machine dealer this Fall and Winter.

H. A. Heinemann, assistant to Mr. Morris, spent his two weeks' vacation in Northern New York State, where he goes each year to enjoy his pet hobby of catching real fish and taking many thousand pictures with his various kodaks.

Fred Oldehoff, who handles record orders of talking machine dealers for this company, is back at his desk "full of pep" after two weeks spent on a most enjoyable vacation.

Demonstrated Victor Health Records

To demonstrate that Long Island dealers are progressive, the Woodhaven Music Shop recently created considerable interest with the new Health records, recently issued by the Victor Talking Machine Co. David Feiner, proprietor of this shop, engaged three attractive young ladies, who demonstrated these records in the spacious show window of the store. The girls were dressed in bathing costume and to the music of these records went through the calisthenic exercises at periods of fifteen minutes throughout an entire day and evening. Mr. Feiner was the first dealer in Long Island to take advantage of this scheme, with the result that the new Health records were given a decided boost and also attracted hundreds of people into the store who not only purchased Health records, but other selections from the Victor catalog as well. The publicity alone derived from this opportune and clever advertising was well worth the time and money spent and, no doubt, will be emulated by many other dealers shortly. Mr. Feiner intends to repeat this again in a short time and it is his intention to resort to it many times during the Winter, for, as he stated, "it not only boosts the sales of the Health records, but increases materially sales of machines and other records as well."

of one of the oldest dealers on Long Island after many years of catering to the talking machine trade in Oyster Bay. Groebl Bros. were pioneers in the talking machine field and had established in their long years of service a business of large proportions. The proprietors of this talking machine shop are retiring and will locate in California and enjoy the fruits of their labors and a well-earned rest. The store, stock and fixtures have been purchased by Theodore Jospe, who conducts a talking machine store at Glen Cove. Mr. Jospe intends to rearrange this new store and it is expected he will make as large a success of his activities there as he did in his Glen Cove establishment.

Progressive Plans of L. I. Phonograph Co.

The Long Island Phonograph Co., wholesaler of the Sonora phonograph, reports that dealers are now beginning to place real orders for machines and that every indication points to a prosperous Fall season. New dealers have been added and this Fall and Winter will see an increase in this dealer list—larger than the company has ever had before. E. E. Schratweiser, sales manager of the company, has been co-operating with the dealers in helping them get their stores in shape for Fall business. He states that Sonora dealers in this section are well prepared and have stocked a large number of machines.

This month the company is sending out a very timely letter, bearing on the Fall campaign, and is also distributing among dealers the new Sonora machine catalog, which has just come off the press.

A special feature of the service which this company is offering its dealers during the month of September is the service of a special representative direct from Sonora headquarters in the person of Forrest P. Conklin, who is calling on Sonora dealers with the Long Island Phonograph Co.'s representative and doing timely work in offering dealers ideas and suggestions and helping them plan intelligently their Fall campaigns.

Lee Coupe, Long Island representative of this company, is back again at work after an enjoyable vacation spent at a Long Island Summer resort. Miss May McWalters, assistant to Mr. Schratweiser, also returned from a vacation spent in and around New York resorts, all ready to take up her active duties again.

Big Call for Bruns Maderite Cover

A. Bruns & Sons, manufacturers of the Bruns Maderite cover for talking machines, report that they are extremely busy filling orders from dealers all over the country for their now well-known product. These covers have met with considerable favor with the trade everywhere and during the past year many new features have been added to the line with the result that dealers have ordered in considerable quantities. Officials of the company stated that from the way dealers were writing in for covers it seemed a sure indication that business this Fall would be a very prosperous one and that the company is expected to be kept busy as never before.

Park Music Co. Has Sonora Line

The latest addition to the large list of Sonora dealers, established by the Long Island Phonograph Co., is the Park Music Co., at Floral Park, L. I. A. E. Swenson is the proprietor of this live store, which will feature the complete Sonora line the coming season. To properly introduce the Sonora to his clientele, Mr. Swenson recently carried a very fine window display showing these models, which created considerable interest, and followed up this display with an appropriate sales letter, which he sent to several hundred people in his vicinity. One entire day was devoted to the Sonora line and people who visited this store during that day were given souvenirs and little remembrances in the way of a large Sonora fan. Another feature of this day was the presence of a Sonora representative, who co-operated with the dealer in meeting his clientele and who boosted Sonora prestige with this dealer in a considerable degree. This account was secured through the efforts of E. E. Schratweiser, sales manager of the Long Island Phonograph Co.

George M. Millard's New Store

George M. Millard, 1803 Myrtle avenue, one of the most progressive dealers in Brooklyn, has just taken on in conjunction with his other line the complete Sonora line of phonograph models. He intends to feature this well-known phonograph and in order to give it right representation is planning to enlarge his store to more than double its present capacity. He plans to take over the entire building at this address and is to devote the first and second floors to his large talking machine business. Complete new equipment, such as sound-proof hearing rooms, up-to-date record racks and record counters and new fixtures are installed. A feature of these alterations will be one of the finest show windows in all Brooklyn. Mr. Millard expects to occupy these new quarters and have them entirely finished by October 1 and will announce the opening of this modern store at that time in an appropriate manner.

Jacob Corp. Buys A. H. Taylor Interests

Jacob Piano & Phonograph Corp., at 997 Broadway, which conducts one of the most attractive talking machine shops in this section, has recently purchased the entire stock and fixtures and good will of the store conducted by A. H. Taylor at 316 Fulton street, Jamaica. Mr. Taylor has conducted this store for many years past and is one of the pioneers in the Brooklyn talking machine field and is retiring from business after many years of catering to the talking machine public. He intends to have a long vacation, but it is rumored that he may after a time take up active duties again in connection with another talking machine shop in another section of the city.

The Jacob Corp. is planning to devote much of its time to the rearrangement of its new store, which will be in charge of a competent man. When alterations are completed this section of Brooklyn will have a talking machine purchasing center of the very finest type, and, no doubt, this store will become as well known as their thriving establishment at 997 Broadway.

Kept Business at Top Notch

M. Chale, manager of the Prospect Talking

Machine Shop at 357 Saratoga avenue, Sonora dealer, reported back for duty this week after a very pleasant vacation spent in northern New York State. Mr. Chale is considered one of the best-equipped talking machine men in Greater New York and through his efforts this establishment has grown into one of the most prosperous retail stores in Brooklyn. Mr. Chale stated that business during July and August had not slumped materially, simply because considerable time was spent calling on new and old customers and interesting them in the latest records by playing them in their homes. Also the repair man was sent out to many old customers and in that way much additional revenue was obtained through oiling and general overhauling of their talking machine motors. He seemed very confident that this coming Fall would be a prosperous one in every way.

Completes Renovation of Store

S. Leider, who conducts a talking machine shop at 216 New Lots Road, in the Canarsie section of Brooklyn, has just completed the renovation of his store and has added a very attractive display window. Mr. Leider is a Sonora dealer and recently displayed to advantage in his newly arranged windows several Sonora models, which aroused much interest and resulted in good sales. Record business Mr. Leider reports as very satisfactory, with all indications pointing to a very fine machine business for the Fall and Winter. With his new equipment he is well prepared to take care of this expected increase and results will more than warrant the expenditure entailed.

G. T. Williams Co.'s New Quarters

G. T. Williams Co., Inc., Victor distributor, is being congratulated on its new model distributing plant, 272 Flatbush avenue extension. The executive offices, shipping and other departments are all well arranged. The location of the quarters is most accessible.

CANTON

Betterment in Business—Exhibitors at Annual Fair—Recent Store Changes and Other News

CANTON, O., September 6.—The talking machine business in this section showed a distinct improvement during August and there is every indication that, with the settlement of the coal strike practically accomplished, trade during September will show a substantial improvement. More machines of the better class are being sold and dealers report that collections are keeping up in excellent shape.

The store of William R. Zollinger & Co. will continue to operate on its former policy and there will be no change of merchandising methods with the assumption of the business by Charles W. and Harry R. Zollinger, sons of the late William R. Zollinger. This announcement was made this week. Manager Pyle declared that the store was going in heavy on its county fair exhibit this year and that he expected the Zollinger booth to be one of the handsomest at the fair.

George Wille, head of the George C. Wille

Music Co., with stores in Canton and Massillon, proved a pleasing host Wednesday, August 30, to employes of his two stores. He entertained some forty employes and their families at his cottage at Turkeyfoot Lake, where a most pleasant afternoon was spent. At six o'clock he served a picnic supper on the lawn of his home. Business with this house shows steady betterment.

C. M. Alford, of the Alford & Fryar Piano Co., announced this week he would attend the annual meeting of the Ohio Music Merchants' Association, to be held September 26 and 27 at Toledo, O.

One Store Less in Canton

With the closing of the store of the J. W. Brown Piano Co. another Sonora agency passes from this district. It is understood that the Van-Fossen Smiley Piano Co. will now give much attention to the Sonora machine, which it has been selling for some time past.

The general store of the Garver Bros. Co., at Strasburg, O., known as the largest country store in the world, is making ready for its anniversary sales. It is expected that several piano and talking machine houses will have representatives at the store during the sales.

More than the usual number of music dealers have booths at the annual Stark County Fair, which opened Monday. Their displays in the new exhibition hall are attracting much attention. Dealers are displaying all kinds of musical instruments and sheet music and novel stunts are being used to attract patrons.

Invite Canton Dealers to Participate

The annual Fall exposition and sales week, to be held by the retail merchants' division of the Chamber of Commerce, is announced to open Monday, September 11, and for three days merchants will offer special window displays. Music dealers have been invited this year to join with other merchants in this promotion and have accepted. They, too, will dress up their windows and offer some sort of a special trade-pulling stunt. It will be the first year that the music dealers have taken part.

NEW VICTOR DEALER IN MEXICO

W. M. Cox, formerly connected with Coa. Fonografica de Ventas S. A., of Mexico City, as manager, has resigned and organized the firm of Buena & Cox, S. en C., in Guadalajara, Jal., handling the Victor line exclusively. It is the first talking machine shop in that section of Mexico.

During a recent visit to New York of F. K. Dolbeer, manager of the traveling department of the Victor Talking Machine Co., he was the guest of William J. Haussler, vice-president and general manager, and Jerome Harris, secretary of C. Bruno & Son, Victor distributors, and Fred P. Oliver, vice-president and general manager of the Blackman Talking Machine Co., Victor distributor, at an informal theatre party.

Mid-West Point of View

WESTERN DIVISION OF THE WORLD, CHICAGO, ILL., SEPT. 10, 1922. THE opinion is being expressed by various persons in this territory that the people of the Mid-West have no money to spend. But at the

the slightest consideration is sufficient to show the absurdity of such a claim. For the banks are well known to be filled with savings account money and the prices of Liberty Bonds are high. Now, when any one talks about the people not having money, let him be politely but firmly led to the bulletin board and invited to inspect the figures which show what "Liberties" and savings bank deposits are doing. He will find plenty to astonish and excite him in the process. For when the people have no money they throw their bonds on the market. They do not try to buy, but to sell till the prices of "Liberties" have gone down, down and again down. The same, of course, is true of savings bank deposits. But, on the other hand, when prices of bonds and totals of deposits continue to rise, whilst at the same time business men say that things are not moving fast, the conclusion is also obvious. The people are holding their money. When people hold their money it is for two reasons always. One is the belief that prices are fictitious. The other is that some exciting disturbance will pass away shortly and that there will be general loosening up and spending when this occurs. People who are not even remotely touched by anything going on in the way of industrial disturbance nevertheless feel just that way about it and act accordingly. Well, that is just what is the matter at this moment. The railroad strike situation has been annoying and irritating everybody, but the outlook is better. The coal situation has only just been mended and, of course, the beneficial effects are partly neutralized by the shortage of cars on the railroads. There is the explanation of the whole present slackness. Money is plentiful, employment is not bad, but the people are uncertain and disinclined to make a start until there is something in the nature of a general settlement. That this is imminent we do not doubt, for a variety of reasons which need not be discussed here. Then look out for speed!

THIS railroad car question, by the way, should be heeded by merchants everywhere. It must be remembered that when the shop-

men's strike shall have been settled, there will be on hand a vast quantity of bad-order locomotives and cars. Of course, the statements made by the union officials about the condition of the rolling-stock at this moment have been exaggerated for technical reasons. Yet it is certain that the freight car shortage already exists and that in consequence there will be of a surety much delay in shipping goods during the early Fall. It is, therefore, highly advisable to place orders as early as possible. This sounds like rather familiar advice, yet it is highly important and should just now be kept in mind. In offering it we are thinking quite as much of the merchants as of the manufacturers. Of course, no manufacturing organization can hold its personnel together during an indefinitely long period of hand-to-mouth ordering by merchants too much frightened to be able to go out and dig up business. Personnel rapidly disintegrates, and there follow delay and consequent deterioration in output before the leaks can be patched again. But there are still more important reasons—important, that is, to the merchant—than these. The merchant, in other words, should realize that he cannot even put himself in position to care for prospects whom he does dig up if he has no stock on his floors. Now, it is a well-known fact that machine stocks are low, lower than record stocks in most cases. To allow them to degenerate still further is rank folly; nor is there anything at all in the present or prospective business situation to suggest that one ought to hesitate in building them up to a respectable position just as quickly as the factories can supply the goods.

THE story of the Milwaukee-Chicago music trade picnic would be wholly incomplete if we did not point out that a very large part of its success was due to the presence and active interest of the talking machine contingent. There are many talking machine men in the Chicago Piano Club and in the Milwaukee Music Trade Association. Moreover, when these two decided to have their annual outings together, the Columbia Graphophone Co.'s Chicago branch decided to join the merry throng, the more so because Manager John McKenna is secretary of the Piano Club, of Chicago. So the Columbia branch closed up the office and all the boys and girls went out to Ravinia to swell the crowd. One result, naturally, was that a great many Columbia dealers came along, got acquainted with the Piano Club members and went away impressed with the value of intra-trade social work. Of course, and the facts lead one to ask why the idea of co-operative outings should not be carried still further? We assert that if the whole trade closed down for a day and went off together in one huge picnic once a year, the results would be altogether to the good. It is worth trying and the result of one trial would, undoubtedly, justify a repetition. And while that notion is sinking in, permit us to remark that in our opinion the Milwaukee Music Trade Association comprises one fine bunch of live boys. Yes, sir!

WITH the beginning of the Fall there will be a recrudescence of activity in the radio field, and we may expect to hear of numerous novelties in equipment and service. Meanwhile the air is filled with rumors of new radio-phonograph combination outfits. But with this cheerful news must go a warning, if many of our good readers among the merchants are not to be disappointed, as some of them have been disappointed already. We must again warn merchants, in fact, to keep an eye on that feature of the radio game to which Otto Schulz, president of Magnolia Talking Machine Co., drew attention last month. That is, that the reproduction of music via radio telephony must on no account be compared with the reproduction common to high-class talking machines to its manifest disadvantages if misunderstanding and many complaints are to be avoided. The fact is that those who buy these combination outfits must be carefully educated to understand that the two systems are totally different and that radio telephony is in its infancy, especially as respects receiving. With all due admiration for the remarkable achievements of physical discovery which have led to the present developments of radio telephony, it has to be acknowledged that the sort of reproduction which is commonly obtained with the best outfits would be justly considered intolerable if it came from the diaphragm of a talking machine. Radio telephony is in its infancy and merchants should, therefore, be careful to realize the facts about it before they start selling. With the customer rightly understanding what to expect there can be no trouble.

THERE is a great deal of uneasy, though hardly as yet perceptible, talk among business men and in business circles about the present strike situation in the basic industry of transportation. A word of cold analysis may not be out of order. In the first place let it be plainly said that, whether rightly or wrongly, ninety-nine in every hundred dwellers in the United States haven't the slightest desire to see any institution torn down or any violent change of any kind made in forms or systems of government. The one in every hundred who does desire all or part of a program of violence to be put into operation usually has very little analytical understanding of what he really expects to achieve, and his only value lies in the fact that he does know why he wants what he wants. There is a great need for education, a great need for serious thinking among the rank and file of the people of the United States when industrial or economic questions are to be considered. We unfortunately have a lot of citizens who will not think, will not act, will not even vote. If the pillars of the Temple fell in on them whose fault would it be?

ARTHUR E. NEALY

A. SNYDER

CHICAGO, ILL., September 8.—From all indications we can look forward to an exceptionally busy Fall trade in all kinds of musical instruments. This is the belief of all men in the wholesale and retail trades here. The retail men believe that there will be keen competition this year and that it will tend to expand business to elaborate proportions. The wholesale men believe likewise.

There are, also, indications throughout the Chicago territory that many of the manufacturers will spring surprises in the line of talking machines which are out of the ordinary. At any rate we are sure of innumerable new designs and added features. Radio combinations will, in all probability, become important factors in the coming season's business. On every hand we see new companies coming out with radio receiving sets, often in combination with the regular talking machine. Just how strong these instruments will be on the market is as yet a matter of conjecture, but, at any rate, it is almost certain that we shall see many of them.

The retail business for the past month has been truly trying. During the first week in August retail business was going along fairly well throughout Chicago, but during the next three weeks the city was in the grip of the hottest spell of its existence. The thermometer seemingly was on a rampage, and only the parks and bathing beaches really did any business; retail trade, not only in music, but in everything else, got more or less of a setback and for a few days retail business was practically at a standstill. However, Chicago gets a real hot wave once every year, whether it likes it or not, and when this time it actually slowed down the wheels of industry part of the retail trade was alarmed. The men in this end of the game are old-timers and know from past experience that they have to expect a few weeks, at least, of real sweltering weather that puts a crimp in every business. Knowing this, they made preparations accordingly and most of their vacations were taken during this particular time.

Another event that slowed up business was the car strike, which lasted a week. This, for a while, brought about a chaotic condition in all lines of industry in Chicago, but, owing to the efficiency of the traffic regulations put into effect by the police department, the workers and shoppers got to and from their homes in fairly good time, with little added expense.

The railway shop strikes centered in and about the shops in Chicago territory, particularly at Pullman, Hegewish and other car-repairing and building centers, have slackened up business considerably in those territories. This controversy has been protracted to such an extent that many of the former shop workers have gone into other lines of activity and, in all probability, there will be quite a shortage of help when the car shops and other places affected by the strike have settled their grievances.

The mining situation in the strip and other soft coal mines, upon which Chicago greatly depends for its coal supply, is easing up somewhat and the daily papers report that in certain sections the miners have resumed their work. Of course, this resumption of work by the miners will not stimulate business in those sections to any great extent for the time being, but it is hoped that ere long the good effects of this resumption of activity will begin to assert themselves.

The farmers of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and other surrounding States were up against a difficult proposition for a while during the latter part of August. The continued heat and the lack of rain came near destroying the bumper crops in these sections, but, somehow or other, with the help of a little shower once in a while, the crops as a whole have survived the drought.

Kimball Announces Improvement in Orders

The W. W. Kimball Co. reports that there has been a real improvement in phonograph orders within the last thirty days. This activity is especially noticeable in the farm communities and might be attributed to three things. One of them is the exhibits and county fairs that are now being staged at this time, the second is low stocks now prevailing and the third is that many of the dealers are putting on the special sales and starting the advertising campaigns which are customary with the opening of the Fall season.

Among Department Stores

Retailers are joining in with the wholesalers in declaring that business has shown a noticeable increase during the past month. Although it might be well to mention that there is a good deal of irritation prevailing at this writing, due to the strikes which are holding things back,

Announcement

“The Jewel Phonoparts Co., 154 Whiting St., Chicago, Ill. have added many refinements and improvements to their line of Jewel Tone Arms and Reproducers, and from Sept. 15th will be in production and will be pleased to furnish the Manufacturing Trade, on request, with illustrations, samples and prices on the highest grade Tone Arms and Reproducers that long knowledge of the business, money, skill and carefulness in manufacture, assembling and inspection can produce at the lowest possible cost consistent with the quality.”

nevertheless, conditions have shown a big improvement. Everybody asserts that as soon as the strike situation is relieved a "grand and glorious feeling" will be produced and buying will be noticeable on the part of all. While on the subject of strikes we might comment on the recent street-car strike that hit Chicago the first of August. After a strike of this kind there naturally would be expected quite a rush of orders, due to the fact that many buyers were handicapped during this period, and the reports are that business far surpassed expectations. Not only did prospects of long standing make a rush for talking machines, but there seemed to be a different spirit among those who had heretofore merely been lookers-on. Rothschild & Co., who handle various makes of the standard lines of talking machines, noticed this in particular. W. B. Papineau, manager of the talking machine department of The Fair, also reports that this condition was very noticeable, not only in talking machines and records, but also in small goods. There has been an unusual demand for ukuleles during the past month. A novel idea was presented to the attention of The World man at this department in the way of a record booster. Along the sides of the demonstration booths the latest hits and popular records are placed. These are mounted on attractive backgrounds with a cut-out of the title page to catch the eye.

New Cheney Distributor in Cleveland

The Cheney Talking Machine Co. announces that the large music house of W. H. Buescher & Sons Co., of Cleveland, O., has taken on the Cheney. This connection gives the Cheney Talking Machine Co. splendid representation in the Cleveland territory and is decidedly complimentary to the manufacturers. In fact, the connection is advantageous to both companies, as it not only gives the Cheney Talking Machine Co. excellent representation, but also affords the Cleveland house a splendid new line with which to develop increased sales.

Chicago Travelers Back on the Job

When those important cogs of the industry, the travelers, return to their respective territories after vacation full of pep and enthusiasm and begin to send in the orders we realize that the Fall season is close upon us. The Chicago Talking Machine Co. is keeping abreast of the situation and making plans for the volume of business that is expected within the near future. A. D. Geissler, president of the Chicago Talking Machine Co., recently paid a visit to the local office to prepare for the Fall trade. H. A. Diehl, traveling representative, has returned to his territory after a vacation. R. E. Kane, who travels Illinois and part of Iowa, is again back with his dealers and T. W. Williams is calling on the Chicago dealers once more. Everyone is settled for the Fall.

Lakeside Supply Co. Active

We are hearing a great deal about business betterment, and in some cases it is just optimistic talk, but when optimism is backed up by facts we really know that business is good. W. A. Fricke, of the Lakeside Supply Co., is very optimistic and says that business is picking up, both in the radio and phonograph fields. "From present indications we are going to have a bumper crop of business," says Mr. Fricke. "We have just finished a new loud speaker device for our radio which is now ready for the market. We have also opened up a retail department for the sale of Aeolian records. Miss Dawson, who has charge of this department, had previously been associated with a large concern in this capacity and is getting good results from the campaign she is putting on." Mr. Fricke further states that the Crossley radio equipment, because of its low price and wonderful reproducing powers, is appealing strongly to the music dealers. In fact, every music dealer ought to be interested in this line because of its marked appeal to public taste and quick turnover.

Columbia Men on the Job

Messrs. Sebok and Wichhorst, representatives of the Chicago branch of the Columbia Co., were aboard the S. S. South American on their way to call on G. H. Wickman, Columbia dealer, Mackinac Island, Mich. On board they met Charles Jiran, son of Joseph Jiran, Chicago Columbia dealer, and his bride, who were on their way to Buffalo, N. Y. Messrs. Sebok and Wichhorst realized that it is every young couple's desire to have a beautiful and cozy little home. Immediately Mr. Wichhorst placed Columbia Console Grafonola broadsides in every conspicuous spot on the ship, while Mr. Sebok related the happiness and pleasure that a Columbia Console Grafonola would give to the bride and groom. The result was that a Queen Anne design Grafonola will grace the choicest spot in the living room of their new apartment.

Paul S. Kantner, manager of the San Francisco branch of the Columbia Co., paid a visit to the Chicago office the early part of the week and reported that business conditions on the Coast are improving immensely and that a big Fall business is anticipated.

Miss Gerlach, of the Chicago office of the Columbia Co., is spending a two weeks' vacation in New York. While there she paid a visit to the New York executive offices and had the pleasure of watching Cyrena Van Gordon, Chicago, opera star, make records.

Oriola Scores Big at Edgewater

One of the biggest musical sensations that have hit these parts in many a day is the Oriola Terrace Orchestra, which is now playing at the Edgewater Beach Hotel. This is a Detroit organization which has lately come to the front with rapid strides. The present engagement at the Edgewater Beach Hotel, Chicago, will terminate October 31, when the musicians will entrain for New York for a week's recording at the Brunswick Recording Laboratories. The orchestra will move to Detroit for the opening of the big new Oriola Terrace on September 15. The Oriola Terrace Orchestra is composed of twelve pieces, with Ted Fiorito, BEAU BRUMMEL In Squeaky Shoes!!

A thing may be durable and yet most objectionable.

Not so long ago, all motors were noisy. The coffee-mill-like winding sounds and the mechanical sounds of the motor were the accustomed though annoying prelude to an operatic air.

Today, instruments equipped with our enclosed, automatically lubricated motors avoid this objectionable defect. Not a sound—No intrusion of mechanics into the artist's offering, they are musical instruments—not machines.

Also, manufacturers were accustomed to bear a certain amount of bother and expense due to motor troubles after their instruments were sold.

Most of the makers of fine Phonographs now use our equipment, their motor troubles are forgotten, their costs as well as their overhead expense are reduced, and their cabinet work, no matter how exquisite, is matched in refinement and quality by the mechanism inside.

Let us send samples for trial at our expense to your Mechanical Department. See for yourself just what we offer at less money than you are doubtless now paying.

office, is the latest victim of the ever-prevalent disease known as nuptials, and from now on Jack will divide the "give and take" game of giving orders and will probably be satisfied to do the latter. Mr. MacNichols made the speech at the ceremonies held by the local office, at which Mr. and Mrs. Kapp were presented with the past two weeks and will remain over another by popular request. Norman is the author of the big song hit "Nobody Lied." Dealers have found this tie-up a most profitable one, as the song sung by Marion Harris is a knockout.

Columbia dealers all over the Chicago branch territory are tying up to the new picture by Vitagraph, titled "My Wild Irish Rose." The Vitagraph Co. is furnishing splendid advertising material for window displays and wide-awake Columbia dealers have lost no time in taking advantage of this wonderful opportunity to stimulate the sale of Columbia record A1852 of the same name by the Columbia Stellar Quartet.

The Famous Players are putting out a Paramount picture, titled "Nice People," which made its initial appearance in Chicago at the Chicago Theatre on August 20. This is another big scoop for Columbia dealers in Chicago and many dealers are tying up to this picture with Columbia record A3445, the same selection by Furman and Nash, stellar Columbia artists.

Novel Exploitation

Marvin Lee, Western sales manager for Waterson, Berlin & Snyder, has been engaged for several days planning a coast-wise trip. In this connection he decided that it would be a good idea to announce his coming beforehand by some quite unique plan. So he secured a quantity of blank talking machine records, placed them on a dictating machine and then dictated the announcement relative to date of his arrival in each important town. It was necessary to dictate an individual record for each and every dealer he had scheduled on his trip. For many years Mr. Lee has adopted something new and unusual for the purpose of exploiting his firm's specials, but this time he feels he has hit upon an idea which will make and a selection of benches and music cabinets, all products of the Steger factories.

One of the features of the exhibit was the new "Adam Model" Steger phonograph, distinctive because of the beauty of its design. The artistic hand-carvings which embellish it are all hand work. A style 506 Steger phonograph was used for demonstrating, and its wonderful tone reproducing qualities evoked many favorable comments from visitors.

Ray Reilly Married

Ray Reilly, Loop representative of the Columbia Graphophone Co., was wed to Irma Fisher, of this city, on Saturday, August 19. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride and among those invited were several prominent men of the local talking machine industry. Mr. and Mrs. Reilly spent their honeymoon in the East, traveling to Washington, Philadelphia, Atlantic City and New York, arriving home on Labor Day. After September 10 they will be at home at 4903 Monticello avenue.

A. J. Kendrick Was Marooned

The newspapers of the country have been publishing accounts of the now famous railroad train which was marooned with all its passengers in the desert recently. Among those aboard this train was A. J. Kendrick, sales manager of the phonograph division of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. Mr. Kendrick left Chicago about the middle of August for a trip through the Southwest and coast sections of the country and, while aboard the train at Albuquerque, N. M., the train crew deserted and left the passengers all by their lonesomes. For this reason Mr. Kendrick was delayed for ten days, as he had intended to return to Chicago on or about September 5. It was his intention, originally, to follow the coast north to Vancouver, then hit the large States in the Northwest and return to Chicago by way of Minneapolis.

Annual Picnic of Columbia Forces

Wednesday, August 9, the Chicago office of the Columbia Co. held its annual picnic, which was a big success in every respect, it being held in conjunction with the picnic given by the Piano Club of Chicago at Ravinia Park. Several of the Columbians were prize-winners in the contests held. A nail-driving contest for mothers and daughters, one of the features of the picnic, was won by Miss Sullivan and her mother. Twelve late records was the prize given. In the peanut race Miss McCarthy won the honors. It was obviously a "nutty" affair. A beautiful pair of silk hose was the prize for this affair. Ed Blinke, one of the greatest catchers around Chicago years ago, participated in the baseball game between Chicago and Milwaukee, which the former won by the small score of 22 to 3. Bauer, of Columbia, also played and enjoyed himself by hitting a home run. Blinke also carried off first honors in the horseshoe match, which he won handily and for which he was awarded a handsome pair of cuff links. After a good picnic supper the crowd took in the opera, "The Love of Three Kings." This picnic is considered by the Columbia family to be the best one to date.

New Melody Radio Set

The Melody National Sales Co. is just placing on the market a new three-step audio-frequency-radio-frequency receiving set. This radio set comes in combination with a handsome Melody console type talking machine, and has a range of 1,500 miles. The wave length ranges from 150 to 600 meters. The list price of this handsome new radio talking machine console is $350. C. C. Slack, head of the Melody Co., also announces that a Melody portable long-range receiving set will be offered to the trade within a few weeks.

Vacationists and Travelers

Walter Deissler, of the Chicago Talking Machine Co., has just returned to his desk, after spending a delightful motoring vacation. He was accompanied by Mrs. Deissler, and spent all of the time touring through near-by States. Mr. and Mrs. Deissler spent a few days in Evansville, Ind., visiting relatives.

Ned Wilson, of New Orleans, La., is spending a few weeks in Chicago, calling on old friends.

L. C. Wiswell, manager of Lyon & Healy's wholesale and retail Victor departments, returned the first part of the week from South Haven, Mich., where he and his family spent a month's vacation. Mr. Wiswell motored from his home in Chicago to South Haven, and on the way to Michigan City he was passed by a flivver sedan, driven by a certain Talking Machine World representative. It was indeed a very, very hard thing to be out on a country road and have a flivver pass you; nevertheless, it happened.

A Center of Brisk Business

The Geo. H. Bent Music Shop, located at 3135 Logan boulevard, in the heart of Logan Square, has been the center of some brisk business this Summer. With special sales, attractive window displays and additional departments—namely, sheet music and small goods—this shop has enjoyed an unusual Summer business. For five years the Logan Square music-lover's shop handled only Victor talking machines and records. But it was seen that there was a big demand for sheet music, so a sheet music department was added during the month of July and the sales have passed expectations. A complete line of Martin band instruments was also taken on the first of August.

Lyon & Healy Radio Department

The radio department of Lyon & Healy, under the supervision of Charles P. Hindringer, has for the past two or three weeks been developing a scheme which has made a tremendous hit with radio fans and music lovers in and about Chicago. It is worked as follows:

The concert hall of Lyon & Healy is known all over this part of the country for its concerts, and during the season is kept packed by people who come to hear the latest Victor records, well-known artists, etc. When Mr. Hindringer was placed in charge of the radio department he thought it would be a good idea to broadcast these concerts. Accordingly he made arrangements with the management of station KYW, the Westinghouse Company's broadcasting station at Chicago, for a special wire, to be run direct into the concert hall. The necessary apparatus for transmitting the concerts from this broadcasting apparatus was then installed. Since then every concert that has been given at the Lyon & Healy hall has not only been heard by those in the hall, but for hundreds of miles around, by the radio enthusiasts who tune in on a 360 meter wave length.

Another feature in connection with radio, which was recently installed in Lyon & Healy's big store under Mr. Hindringer's direction, is the Arlington time announcer. This equipment has been set up in the retail radio department and picks up the Arlington, Md., time signals. This method of announcing time has been taken advantage of by nearly everyone who passes by the radio department, and it has proved its worth by the curiosity it has aroused.

Three Victor Specials

Victor dealers around the Chicago territory are preparing themselves for the special Victor record numbers, scheduled for release September 15. The records are: "Struttin' at the Strutter's Ball" and "The French Trot"; "Why Should I Cry Over You?" and "Blue"; "Say It While Dancing" and "I'm Just Wild About Harry." Owing to the increasing popularity of these selections the Victor Co. made an advance release from the October supplement dance records. The Victor jobbers of Chicago furnished a special window card featuring these specials.

Teaches Music Via Record

An educational talking machine record has made its appearance on the Chicago market. The purpose of this new record is to teach people who cannot read a note of music nor play a violin, mandolin, or mandolin banjo, to become proficient musicians, in their homes, with the aid of the talking machine.

F. M. Schneider, the originator of the record, has been teaching the above-named instruments in Chicago for many years and has been working on the teaching-by-record plan for several years. In connection with his records is a 64-page instruction book. The records and book cover a musical course equivalent to two years of instruction. Mr. Schneider states that he conceived the idea after close observation of hundreds of students. There are certain types of students who are slow to catch on, and always feel humiliated when they get up in their classes. With the new records a student can play his lesson over and over again, as often as he desires, and in a short while cover a two years' course at the very minimum expense. The records are so arranged that they answer every question the student may ask as he goes over the instruction book.

Mr. Schneider announces that in a short time he will place these records on the market. In fact he is already casting about for distributors.

Brunswick-Balke-Collender Cartoon

The advertising department of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. is using in its general publicity work a very interesting cartoon that combines a selling story with a humorous appeal. This cartoon is illustrated above, and, while the humorous angle is uppermost, it also serves the purpose of linking up the various Brunswick products.

MRS. JOCKO: WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH THAT FOOL-ACTING ELEPHANT?

Good Roads Encourage Business

E. A. Fern, of the Consolidated Talking Machine Co., has returned to Chicago from a month's business trip throughout the Lake States. In all he traveled something over 1,700 miles by auto. He stated that it was really remarkable to see what the good roads are doing for the small towns, especially in Michigan. The good roads are bringing the tourists from all over, and the business men of the small towns are reaping the profits. The benefits are being divided among all kinds of business and the talking machine men are getting their share of this business. Mr. Fern was accompanied on the trip by A. Thallmayer, of the Foreign Record Department of the General Phonograph Corp. Both Mr. Fern and Mr. Thallmayer called on Okeh dealers throughout their entire

Magnola Activities

Fred P. Bassett, vice-president of the Magnola Talking Machine Co., has returned to his desk, after spending a very pleasant vacation with his family, in their automobile.

F. J. Sheldon, office manager of the Magnola Talking Machine Co., is enjoying a two weeks' vacation with his family in Wisconsin.

Otto Schulz, Jr., son of Otto Schulz, president of the Magnola Talking Machine Co., is visiting friends in Tulsa, Okla., prior to his return to Princeton University for the beginning of his senior year. Mr. Schulz spent much of his vacation period working in and about the Magnola plant, in order to familiarize himself with the varied details of manufacturing.

One Thousand at Lyon & Healy Outing

Members of the Chicago Piano Club are not the only ones who are boasting of a successful picnic this Summer, for the annual outing held at Delwood Park by Lyon & Healy was equally successful. C.H. Anderson, chairman of the committee, with a host of assistants, put over one of the best picnics ever held by Lyon & Healy. With music furnished by Sweet's Band, of Joliet, as a special feature, mingled with an exciting baseball game between the single and married men; Henry S. Roethig, magician and trickster, to entertain, and dancing in the evening, there was something doing every minute of the day. The early arrivals participated in an indoor baseball game and horseshoe contest. The baseball game started the afternoon session, the married men beating the single men seven to one. Captains, Agnew and Buchal. Umpires, M. A. Healy and C. R. Fuller. Coaches, Collins and Roche. More than one thousand men, women and children attended the big event. The palatable supper was furnished by Lyon & Healy and was served in cafeteria style. The program concluded with dancing, which lasted from 6:30 to 9:30 and completed one of the most enjoyable reunions ever held by this house.

"It Pays to Advertise"

James Davin, alias "Jimmy," went swimming one afternoon recently at Edgewater Beach, and after the swim discovered he had lost the watch and chain which were presented to him some time ago by some talking machine men in the East. He reported the loss to the authorities and also inserted an ad in one of the Chicago dailies, whereupon the party who found the watch returned it promptly to Jim. "This proves," says Jimmy, "that it pays to advertise."

Statement From Krasco Mfg. Co.

The Krasco Mfg. Co., of Chicago, desires to point out what it says is an error of statement in an advertisement which was published on page 149 of the August issue of The Talking Machine World by James X. Galbaugh, of 1204 Consumers Building, Chicago. In this advertisement Mr. Galbaugh offered for sale what were described as "all tools, dies, machinery, patents, etc., necessary for the manufacture of the famous Krasco enclosed motor." The Krasco Mfg. Co. now states that the motor referred to by Mr. Galbaugh was invented by L. P. Valiquet and that although the old Krasberg Engineering Co. expended many thousands of dollars for experimental work on this motor it was never placed in production and was never sold under the name of Krasco. When the Krasberg Co. was dissolved Mr. Balbaugh came into possession of certain parcels of property, among which was this Valiquet enclosed motor. It seems that Mr. Galbaugh has had this in his possession for some time, but recently decided to offer it for sale. Not being familiar with the details concerning the older company he used the Krasco name in error, according to the Krasco Mfg. Co.

Make Serious Charges

The recent scandals in the Board of Education of Chicago have culminated in the finding of several indictments against members of the Board of Education and officers of various business concerns who have sold supplies to the school authorities. Among the concerns implicated is the Hiawatha Phonograph Co., which is charged by the Grand Jury with selling phonographs at excessively high prices for use in the schools through undue influence with the political powers in the City Hall.

All efforts so far made to obtain a statement from officers of the Hiawatha Phonograph Co. have, however, been unsuccessful. Newspaper reports of the testimony before the Grand Jury quote Wm. H. Wade, of the Wade-Twichell Co., as stating that he had drawn up specifications for school phonographs which had been afterward changed by someone else. The Hiawatha Co. then obtained the contract for 300 machines at $157 each.

Geer Repeater Now Listed at $1.50

W. H. Huth, head of the Walbert Mfg. Co., of this city, manufacturer of the Geer record repeater, announced this week that the company had reduced the price of this repeater to $1.50. Jobbers and dealers throughout the country have already been advised of this new price, and they have responded enthusiastically by forwarding large orders for immediate delivery.

For some time past Mr. Huth has been devoting a considerable part of his time and energies to a study of the manufacturing details incidental to the production of the Geer repeater, with the idea in mind of giving the trade the full benefit of any possible increase in factory facilities and efficiency. Mr. Huth finally decided upon certain important manufacturing policies, which, coupled with the tremendous demand for the Geer repeater, enabled the Walbert Mfg. Co. to reduce the retail price of the Geer repeater from $2.50 to $1.50.

The Geer repeater is now being handled by dealers from coast to coast, and is one of the most popular accessories on the market to-day. As a pioneer in the repeater industry the Geer record repeater has won the general approval of the industry, and its new retail price will undoubtedly act as a powerful stimulant to increased sales. An intensive merchandising and publicity campaign is now being prepared by the Walbert Mfg. Co. and will be announced in detail in the near future.

Krasco Re-enters

The Krasberg Engineering Co., which a few years ago placed the famous Krasberg motor on the market, has been reorganized as the Krasco Mfg. Co. and is on a bigger and stronger financial basis than ever before. The Krasco motor gained much popularity and favor with the trade during the war period and the old company grew to great proportions, but during the great slump that hit the industry shortly after the war reverses were met with and the

A New Member of the Sterling Family

In response to a demand for a Throw Back Tone Arm, we have designed the No. 82 which embodies all the advantages of Sterling construction with the addition of the Throw Back feature. When in its normal operating position the Sterling Reproducer maintains perfect alignment under all conditions.

Showing how the No. 82 clears when in the Throw Back position.

When in its Throw Back position the reproducer, even when adjusted for Edison or hill and dale records, "clears" the tone arm.

A new and improved needle holder is another added feature.

company was forced to discontinue business.

All the patents, together with manufacturing rights, have now been taken over by a new organization, which will continue manufacturing the Krasco motors under the name of the Krasco Mfg. Co. This company has been for the past two months steadily manufacturing the Krasco motor and is now in a position to supply the trade in any quantity. To-day the company is unhampered by indebtedness of any kind and has tangible net assets exceeding $100,000. Many changes and additions have been made during the last year or so to the Krasco motor, due to the incessant work of Walter E. Lent, production manager of the company. Mr. Lent is a man of wide experience in the production of motors and is himself an expert of no mean ability. His efforts in perfecting the new Krasco motor have resulted in bringing it up to a state of high efficiency.

Other officers of the new company include D. S. Root, manager, who has had a wide experience in the commercial field and has been connected with some of the biggest manufacturing establishments in the country as director. He is assisted in his work by A. Wozny. Mr. Wozny has been closely associated for many years with many of the enterprises with which Mr. Root has been connected. He will act in the capacity of assistant manager for the Krasco Co. with complete charge of all Krasco sales. He is very familiar with all parts of the Krasco motor and states that he is glad at any time to give all the assistance or information he can regarding the motor. The Krasco Co. is furnishing its motors with complete equipment, such as turntable, turntable brake, winding crank, etc. The motors it is placing on the market are of the two, three and four-spring variety, which have a range from four to eight ten-inch records on one winding.

Wyman, Babb & Co., who have warerooms in the Republic Building in this city, report that the months of July and August were the biggest months in their history with the exception of the months preceding the holidays of the booming years of 1918 and 1919. It is also the first Summer during which they advertised consistently, as in all previous Summers they had reduced their advertising copy to a minimum with the approach of warm weather.

Cheney Activities

Prof. Forest Cheney, of the Cheney Talking Machine Co., who has been traveling all over the country in his famous Packard, "Blue Gull," making an educational tour among Cheney dealers, is getting ready for another trip to New England and the Atlantic Coast States. The professor's twin-six has run 8,000 miles this season and is going better than ever. Professor Cheney will leave Chicago on September 11 and make Buffalo his first stop.

These trips are being made by Professor Cheney to keep in touch with Cheney dealers and he intends to call on all Cheney distributors throughout the East, giving personal talks to them on selling methods and the meritorious points of the Cheney product. Professor Cheney is an exceptionally good talker and lecturer, who thoroughly knows his product and its points of merit. Members of the Chicago Piano Club had an opportunity a few weeks ago to hear this gentleman, when he gave a short but excellent talk on salesmanship. Professor Cheney will be in New York at the end of this month, at which time a banquet will be given at the Commodore Hotel in his honor by the Eastern distributors.

Speaking of the Cheney factories at Grand Rapids, Professor Cheney says: "Our shipments are practically double what we had anticipated and figured on. The months of June, July and August showed that business was very healthy and is building up very rapidly. It seems that there is a larger demand for the more expensive models and that public taste jumps from the smaller models in the uprights right up to consoles, which jointly occupy the post of best sellers."

Opens Office in Indianapolis

B. V. Van Korn, of the Van Korn-Shower Co., with headquarters in Detroit and Grand Rapids, has recently opened an office in Indianapolis. The Van Korn-Shower people are Michigan distributors for the Cheney line and are very enthusiastic over the product. They are now taking over Indiana also.

O. F. Benz a Visitor

O. F. Benz, of the executive office of the Columbia Co., was a recent visitor to the Chicago office of the company. He took the evening train for St. Paul, Minn., where he will call on the local branch and will then call on the Kansas City and Omaha branches. Mr. Benz was highly elated over the sales of records in the mid-West.

An Asset to Accessory Lines

The Oro-Tone Co. has offered to the trade a new needle case and container for the well-known Orotone Edison reproducer. The new cases comprise a receptacle for the purpose of retaining the Oro-Tone Edison reproducer when not in use. At the side of this receptacle are three needle cups, one of which is reserved for discarded needles. They are finished with substantial and durable mahogany color leatherette.

These needle cups are of fine gun-metal finish.

The Oro-Tone Edison attachments are now being sent out ready-packed in these new Oro-Tone needle cases. The trade may also obtain empty needle cases for customers who already own Edison attachments and who will appreciate the advantages this little case offers.

Hank Steussy, of Milwaukee, was knocked out of the box, Herzog replacing him in the fourth. Here is a complete report of the first inning, which is a good example of the five innings played:

Goldsmith grounded to Lufkin behind first. Lufkin made a pretty pickup on the run and then beat out Goldsmith in the race to first. Przylysky struck out and the Chicago fans applauded Bristol. Paul Netzow hit a bouncer

OUTING OF CHICAGO-MILWAUKEE CLUBS A HUGE SUCCESS

Association of Music Industries. The participation of the local Columbia forces, who held their outing at the same time, gave quite a talking machine coloring to the meet. The outing was such a decided success that the greatest possible credit is due to those actively interested in the affair, such as H. D. Hewitt, chairman of the outing committee, for his ability in securing the co-operation of his various sub-committees; to Sid Sachs for effectively discharging the duties of master of ceremonies; to Axel Christiansen for keeping things moving when the crowd had arrived; to Percy Tonk the finances—in fact there was such a unanimous and enthusiastic support of the affair that it would be invidious to go on naming others.

The baseball game was the most exciting feature of the day, and of course there were other events which held the attention of the assemblage. Judging from the score of 25 to 2, one would not imagine that the game was worth while, but it was, all the same. Milwaukee came out on the short end of the count, yet the Cream City boys sure did hit the ball. It was the star fielding of the Chicago aggregation that made third base seem so many to third. Hoppe picked it up neatly and nailed Netzow at first with a perfect toss to Lufkin. No runs.

Harry Schoenwald hit up a high fly back of third. Netzow got it and he was out. Blimke singled to short right for the first hit of the game and the Chicago outfit let out a wild yell. Jimmy Bristol smashed out a terrific liner to deepest left-center for a home run, scoring Blimke ahead of him, while the Chicago fans cheered and applauded uproariously. Hoppe hit a grounder to Herzog, who fumbled, and on that error Hoppe reached first. Lufkin laid down a pretty bunt for a single and Hoppe advanced to second. Bauer cracked a screeching liner to deep center for a home run, scoring Hoppe and Lufkin ahead of him, and the Chicago rooters went wild again. Percy Tonk caught a fast one on the nose and cracked it into right for three bases. More noise. Al Koch drove a single to center and Tonk romped home. Michaels worked Steussy for a base on balls. Steussy was wild. Schoenwald fanned. Blimke ended the inning by going out on a high fly to Warner in right. Six runs.

The line-up of the two baseball teams follows:
Piano Club of Chicago: Schoenwald, 2b; Blimpke, ss; Bristol, p; Hoppe, 3b-c; Lufkin, 1b; Bauer, lf; Tonk, cf; Koch, c-3b, and Michaels, rf.

Milwaukee Association: Goldsmith, 2b; Przylysky, c; Netzow, 3b; Herzog, ss-p; Steussy, p-ss; Zimmers, lf; Scheft, cf; Pugh, 1b; Warner, rf, and Christophersen, x.

The other sports included races for boys, races for girls, fat men's race, fat women's race, four-footed race, peanut race for ladies, potato race for ladies, Cheney sales talk contest, nail-driving contest between mothers and daughters, sword swallowing contest for men, horseshoe pitching contest for men, chewing the string contest for married couples, kite-flying contest and a tug of war between Milwaukee and Chicago.

The prizes were well worth while and were as follows: Boys' race, won by Edward Blimke, Jr., a drum donated by Ludwig & Ludwig; girls' race, won by Margaret Whitsit, a ukulele donated by W. B. Papineau; fat men's race, won by H. D. HINDLEY TALKS ON SALESMANSHIP

Tom Hindley, of Mandel Brothers, Wins Cheney Prize for a Two-minute Selling Talk at the Chicago Piano Club Picnic

One of the events at the picnic of the Chicago Piano Club and Milwaukee Music Trades Association was the contest for a cash prize donated by Professor Forest Cheney, of the Cheney Talking Machine Co., for the best two-minute talk on "How to Sell a Musical Instrument."

No notice was given to the five contestants who were invited to participate, and the talks were therefore entirely impromptu. The contest was won by Tom Hindley, manager of the Aeolian Vocalion Salons of Mandel Bros., Chicago. He spoke as follows:

"I shall not attempt to give you an absolutely 'cut and dried' formula for salesmanship, because, like the fourth dimension, such a thing does not exist. Where an element so variable as human nature enters in no rule can be laid down which will fit every case. There are, however, certain self-evident prerequisites which every salesperson ambitious to succeed should strive to acquire. Foremost among these are a personality that quickly inspires confidence, a cheerful disposition, patience, a fund of common sense and just enough knowledge of psychology to understand the peculiar characteristics of different types of customers.

"It always helps to greet your customer cordially—by name if you know it, thus breaking down that first cold barrier of hesitation. Assume that the customer has really come in to buy. The continued propaganda of your house, comprising, as it does, advertising, window display, service and the recommendation of satisfied customers, has already paved the way and served to instill the desire to possess a musical instrument. Endeavor to size up your customer's station in life and sell him the grade of instrument that it is really fitting he should install in his home.

"Proceed to describe the features and merits of your instrument in language that can be understood by the layman. Avoid technicalities and argument. Don't try to awe, but rather flatter and encourage what may be, as yet, only an embryonic musical taste. Don't do all the talking; give your customer a chance at least to commit himself on the particular instrument he considers within his means. From this point on actually begin to sell and work up to the close.

"There is liable to be one real obstacle loom up—especially if your store is located in a large city. The customer combats you with—"I have no time"—you can usually bank on this being said purely in self-defense and as an excuse to get away. So don't just let this go in one ear and out the other. Don't even let it go into one ear.

"Beware of the moment when the customer gets restless and asks if you have any descriptive literature. Consider that sale lost unless you can promptly get your 'back to the wall' and muster up sufficient courage to start off on a different and more successful tack. There is no time like the present for, unfortunately, prospects are not like Madame Bernhardt or Mr. Thomas' cat—they don't always come back!

"Don't knock the other fellow's goods—this might turn out to be a boomerang for you and a boost for him.

"Sell your instrument clean—always remembering that honesty is the best policy. Try not to undersell or oversell.

"Don't promise the impossible or you will surely come to grief.

"Be kind and courteous.

"Wear a smile and sell with enthusiasm.

"Finally—let all of us be proud of the fact that we are in the music business—helping to convey happiness into homes that would otherwise be dull and sordid."

EDISON TAKES OVER KIPP BUSINESS

Prominent Indianapolis Edison Jobber Forced to Retire Because of Ill Health—Edison Interests to Operate Business Under the Management of John M. Vandervoort

A. H. Curry, vice-president and manager of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., announces that the Edison interests have purchased the jobbing business of Walter E. Kipp at Indianapolis, Ind. The new organization will have for its name Phonograph Corp. of Indiana. The headquarters will be in Indianapolis and the territory covered will be that tributary to this city. John M. Vandervoort, who assumed his duties the early part of September, is manager of this jobbing organization.

Mr. Kipp, who has been an Edison jobber for more than twenty years, has lately suffered from extremely poor health. He was told by his physicians that he could avoid serious consequences only by completely severing his connection with active business.

Apart from their regret at losing Mr. Kipp's valuable and energetic services, the Edison interests immediately decided that his business was of too much importance to be entrusted to strangers. They accordingly decided to form a new corporation to take over the Indianapolis jobbing business. This new corporation has purchased the Kipp interests outright.

"Walter is really one of the family," said Mr. Curry, when interviewed recently at West Orange. "He would have been as discontented at allowing new people to succeed to his business as would we. We're going to try to carry on the fine establishment he has built up with the least possible number of changes."

Mr. Curry planned to make a trip to Indianapolis for the purpose of witnessing the inauguration of the regime.

PHONOGRAPH FACTORY FOR CHINA

Massachusetts Man Leaves to Take Charge of Selling End of New Enterprise

NORTH ADAMS, MASS., September 8.—Harold Bradley, of this city, who spent nearly five years opening up sales agencies for the Standard Oil Co. in China, is shortly to return to that country as sales manager for the first phonograph factory to be established in the Celestial Republic, of which he is one of the promoters.

The company, organized by men of long and intimate experience in Oriental commercial enterprises, has just been incorporated under the laws of Canada, and Mr. Bradley will leave for Montreal in about two weeks to take part in the completion of the organization. He expects to be ready to sail for China in about two months.

The factory for the manufacture of both phonographs and records will be erected in Shanghai, and will be under the supervision of a man who for more than twenty years has been prominently identified with both the experimental and manufacturing business in this country.

At the outset the recording will be confined entirely to the reproduction of Chinese music, of which there is said to be an almost universal appreciation among all classes of Chinese.

B. R. FORSTER BOUND FOR COAST

President of Brilliantone Steel Needle Co. Starts on Extended Business Trip—Increasing Demand for American Needles Reported

Byron R. Forster, president of the Brilliantone Steel Needle Co., New York City, left around the first of the month for a Western trip, embracing the principal cities in that territory and extending as far as the Coast.

The Brilliantone Co. has found business exceptionally good and a heavy demand is reported for this needle. Harry W. Acton, secretary of the company, pointed out that the supremacy of the American-made needle is well realized throughout the trade, as indicated by the fact that the demand for Brilliantone needles is exceeding former records. This despite the competition of needles of German manufacture being packed in this country and sold under American names.

Mr. Acton is the originator of a decided novelty in needle boxes which will shortly be produced. These new boxes are a combination record cleaner and needle box, holding 500 needles.

LARGER DEMAND FOR "DAILY DOZEN"

Coming of Fall Brings Increased Demand for Walter Camp's Health Records

R. B. Wheelan, president of Health Builders, Inc., New York City, producer of Walter Camp's "Daily Dozen" health-building records, reports that business picked up remarkably during August and continues to increase steadily.

"Competition is the life of trade," stated Mr. Wheelan, "and has had an effect in increasing our business, I believe. It all helps to educate the public upon the necessity of having health-building exercises in their homes and that Walter Camp's 'Daily Dozen' is specified is to be found in the large volume of orders we receive."

ATLANTA

Resume of Situation in Southeast—Fair Prices for Bumper Crops Augur Well for the Trade

ATLANTA, GA., September 8.—The Atlanta National Bank is responsible for the following forecast regarding the business outlook in Georgia: If Georgia raises the same size cotton crop this year as she did last, at the prices now quoted, Georgia farmers are promised a return of $90,000,000, or $30,000,000 more than last year. And there is every indication the crop will be larger.

This increase, coupled with the fact that the crop this year has been raised much more cheaply than last year's crop, will greatly increase the paying and purchasing-power of the Georgia farmer and this is bound to be reflected in every line of business. Other crops have added to the stability of the rural sections.

In the cities of the State labor is well employed and building permits show that the shortage of homes and business houses is being overcome. In Atlanta alone building permits have been issued calling for an expenditure of nearly $12,000,000 since January 1. The Atlanta bond issue of $8,000,000 will soon be flowing into all channels of trade.

The one disturbing feature is the freight situation. Unless the railroad strike is soon settled many merchants will find themselves short of goods at the very time when buyers are plentiful. It is necessary to anticipate requirements to a greater extent than usual and to place re-orders before stocks are exhausted. This can be more safely done this Fall, because of the business outlook as quoted above, than has been the case for several seasons past.

"Hot Lips" and "Georgette" are special releases by all of the prominent record companies and in consequence head the list as the two best sellers of the month.

The Atlanta Phonograph Co., in anticipation of an active Fall business, is erecting two new record booths. It reports that machine sales have been excellent and that buyers of instruments at $100 and upwards invariably choose the flat-top console design, which is steadily gaining popularity.

Chamberlain-Johnson-DuBose Co., the large department store, which has maintained an exclusive Victor department for many years, is retiring from the talking machine business. The space will be used for other lines.

The J. K. Polk Furniture Co. has become the distributor in this territory for "Honest Quaker" products. A complete line of main-springs, repair parts and accessories has been stocked.

M. O. Giles, special Okeh representative from New York headquarters, has just spent several days here.

The Columbia Graphophone Co. will be without the services of its assistant manager, John Mohl, during the month of September. Mr. Mohl is convalescing from an operation performed early in the month.

Manly Robison, manager, Phillips & Crew Piano Co., has returned to his duties after an illness of more than a week.

The Phillips & Crew Piano Co., Victor dealer, was well pleased with the results of its special advertising featuring the consolette Queen Anne design. Although it was mid-August, the Atlanta public quickly bought out the entire stock. In addition, a large number of sales of regular Victor products were made to prospects brought in by the special consolette offering.

The trade outlook in the Birmingham district is most promising. The twenty per cent increase in wages in the steel industry and the similar increase in the pay of the coal miners is responsible for greatly increased demand in all lines, so that merchants have been forced to order liberal stocks.

Okeh records of the "Lonesome Mama Blues" and "Nobody Lied" continue to outsell all other recent offerings.

Paul Byrum, who for a number of years was assistant to J. P. Riley, of the Atlanta Phonograph Co., left about the first of the month to accept a position with a local firm of coffee roasters.

The J. K. Polk Furniture Co. is actively working its territory in behalf of Okeh records, outfitting portables and its line of talking machine accessories. Manager P. C. Brockman is using an automobile for the purpose of intensively covering this field and plans to keep in continuous contact with it, either personally, or through his sales force.

R. M. BIRD WITH SHERMAN, CLAY & CO.

Victor Man Leaves for Pacific Coast—Friends Tender Dinner and Present Watch

CAMDEN, N. J., September 8.—R. M. Bird, associated with the Victor Talking Machine Co. as assistant manager of the record order department, resigned on September 1 to join the forces of Sherman, Clay & Co. in San Francisco, Cal., in the talking machine department. Mr. Bird had been associated with the Victor Co. for a number of years, with the exception of a short period, during which he was with Sherman, Clay & Co.

Before his departure for the Coast a number of his friends in the Victor Co. tendered a farewell dinner to him and Mrs. Bird at the Bala Country Club. Gus T. Wielage, head of the record order department, acted as toastmaster and presented him with a gold watch inscribed with the sentiments of the donors.

BUSINESS-BUILDING SUGGESTIONS

Knickerbocker Talking Machine Co. Presents Some Timely and Valuable Data for Dealers

The proper adaptation of general selling ideas to individual businesses has had noticeable effects in many instances of increasing business. Realizing this, it has long been the policy of the Knickerbocker Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler, New York City, to place before Victor retailers, from month to month, many excellent ideas in selling. Abram Davega, president of the company, has devoted much of his personal attention to this end of the business. The latest effort in this respect covers five closely typewritten pages and presents two alternative plans, together with suggested letters, a questionnaire for the proper classification of prospects, an optimistic quotation from Babson's statistical report and general suggestions on business building, advertising, etc. Dealers are taking full advantage of these suggestions.

Meyer Price has been appointed manager of the Newark, N. J., warerooms of Landay Bros., Victor dealers, according to a recent announcement by the company. Mr. Price succeeds L. H. Jacobi, who has resigned.

AKRON, O.

Ford Shut-down Threat Hurts Trade—Sales Reach Fair Total

AKRON, O., September 5.—Sales results for August with the talking machine dealers in this section were very satisfactory, registering a substantial increase over June and July totals. There was every prospect of a very active September until reports came of the proposed shutting down of the Ford motor plants in Detroit and the immediate effect the announcement had on certain tire manufacturers and others engaged in supplying parts and material for the Ford Co. Business men generally, including music merchants, are living in the hope that the Ford people will reconsider the matter and remain in operation.

Miss Elsie Baer, head of the talking machine section of the M. O'Neil Co., stated that her sales slips for August were far ahead of those of the previous months and that in the face of existing conditions she expected her department to show a gain in September over the corresponding month of a year ago. Records, she said, are still quiet with a noticeable pick-up the last part of the month.

F. W. Van Scoyoc, of the F. W. Van Scoyoc Piano Co., reports his talking machine section the past month experienced a good business, in spite of the fact it is a newcomer.

Better for Dales

The talking machine business at the store of the George S. Dales Co. during August was double that of July, according to Charles A. Savage, the new manager of the talking machine section of the store. The record service booth, opened on the main street level, reports very substantial sales of records. Victor and Cheney machines have also been in demand.

Busy With Concert Series

Earle Poling, of the Windsor-Poling Co., Victor dealer, reports his famous artists' series of concerts is meeting with hearty appreciation and that the advance ticket sale is very heavy. Jascha Heifetz, violinist, opens the course on November 1. All concerts will be in the armory. This music house has fostered popular artists' concerts here for several years.

"Moon River" and "The Little Red School House" have been featured records for the Windsor-Poling Co. This firm has but 200 out of an order of 1,000 of the former number left on its shelves. "This is an example of what featuring a record with a snappy window trim will do," said Mr. Poling.

Radio Supplies Selling

Radio supplies in talking machine shops of Akron are enjoying an excellent business and dealers are well pleased with the success of their new lines. Most of the stores maintain separate departments for radio accessories and say that demand for this class of merchandise is very much on the increase at this season of the year. The majority of the dealers say there is absolutely nothing to the rumor that it is hurting the talking machine business; in fact, they say it is helping it.

Wants Merchants Protected

Retail music dealers of Akron have joined with other merchants of the Rubber City in an effort to have the city council pass legislation preventing any person from holding an auction sale within the city of Akron unless he has been in business at least one year. Merchants claim the "fly-by-night" merchant comes into Akron a few weeks before Christmas, opens a temporary store and unloads thousands of dollars' worth of inferior merchandise on the public, to the disadvantage of local merchants.

A. Gourse has opened a new shop at 38 South Howard street and has, in connection with many other lines, installed a musical merchandise section. The shop is modern in every respect.

SELLS SONORAS TO SCHOOLS

LANSING, MICH., September 5.—The Sonora Shop, of this city, owned by W. W. Cummings, recently delivered nine Sonora phonographs to a number of the schools in this city, where they will be utilized by the department of music for instruction purposes. The Sonora Shop also furnished the department of music with 200 records, which were selected by the music departments of the various schools. Mr. Cummings is delighted with the order for Sonora phonographs, as there was keen competition for this sale and a number of the leading makes were investigated before the Sonora was selected.

CONGRATULATIONS

George Seiffert, president of the Modernola Sales Co., Eastern distributor of the Modernola talking machine, is receiving the congratulations of his many friends in the trade upon the arrival, a week or so ago, of a young son. Mr. Seiffert bears the honors well, as this is the fourth time he has received similar congratulations. Mr. Seiffert's family now numbers two boys and two girls.

*Busy Fall Expected to Follow Excellent Summer Trade—John Steel
Guest of Music Men—Platt Music Co. Remodels—The News*

LOS ANGELES, CAL., September 5.—Vacations are over and members of the trade are settling down to the approaching Fall business, which is traditionally supposed to be far more active than the Summer. However, Summer sales have been so excellent that it will take a good deal to overshadow their totals. Several improvements and enlargements of talking machine departments have been made or are being made in several stores, in order that better service can be given and the increase of customers taken care of.

John Steel Guest of Association

The well-known tenor and Victor artist, John Steel, was the specially invited guest of the Music Trades Association of Southern California at the August meeting and banquet, and he gave them great pleasure by singing a number of songs. The fact that Mr. Steel sang to the members was especially appreciated, on account of the fact that he was due later at the Orpheum Theatre, where he was filling a three weeks' engagement and where he had met with an extraordinary popular reception, night after night.

Platt Music Co. Alterations

The front and main floor of the Platt Music Co. is all torn up through extensive alterations. The store adjoining the Platt Music Co., and until recently occupied by a tailoring concern, has been taken over and thereby the main floor will be increased to twice its former size. This will make very handsome quarters and double the window display space. The Victrola and musical departments will occupy the entire space which has been secured.

New Manager at Bullock's

Don C. Pcyton has been appointed Victrola sales manager at the music department of Bullock's, to succeed W. Ray, who recently resigned. Mr. Pcyton was formerly manager of the phonograph department of Meier & Frank, Portland, Ore., and previous to that was for some time with the Aeolian Co. in New York and Chicago. He was also connected with the sales department of Silas E. Pearsall Co., Victor distributor in New York City.

New Victor Styles Please Dealers

The announcement by the Victor Co. of the new flat-top, horizontal models has been received with great satisfaction by Victor dealers throughout the southern California district.

Brunswick Sales Manager in Los Angeles

A. J. Kendrick, sales manager of the phonograph division of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., was a visitor to Los Angeles during the latter part of August. He expressed himself as very well pleased with the phenomenal business and fine representation in this territory and extended congratulations to Local Manager Howard Brown.

Starr Manager Enjoys Vacation

F. L. Valentine returned recently from a much-enjoyed vacation at Warner's Hot Springs. This particular location is well off the beaten track, Mr. Valentine declares, and resembles the California of early days. Its adobe buildings, vast cattle ranges and Indian inhabitants are pleasing in the extreme to anyone who delights in exploring places which are not known to the ordinary vacation hunter.

Vocalion Record Sales Manager Here

Oscar W. Ray, sales manager of the Vocalion wholesale record department of the Aeolian Co., visited Los Angeles early last month and completed arrangements with the Munson-Rayner Corp., whereby the latter becomes distributor of the Vocalion records for southern California.

Cheney Distributor Moves

The Munson-Rayner Corp. has found it necessary to move to larger quarters. Although it has been in business as Cheney phonograph distributor three or four months only, business has already assumed such large proportions that it has been found impossible to conduct it satisfactorily in its large suite of offices and warerooms in the Homer Laughlin Building and it is now moving to the Knickerbocker Building, on Seventh and Grand streets. The Munson-

Rayner Corp. is also jobbing phonograph accessories and has recently acquired the distribution of Vocalion records for this territory. E. R. Darvill, sales manager, reports business as gratifying in the extreme.

Association Receives Banner

The banner awarded by the National Association of Music Merchants at the National Jubilee Convention, held in New York in June, to the Music Trades Association of Southern California for "organized effort" was formally presented at the August meeting. The banner is a handsome blue satin affair, suitably inscribed with gold lettering.

So. California Music Co. Installs Brunswick

The Southern California Music Co. has added the Brunswick line to its Victrola and Edison departments. This is one of the oldest music houses in Los Angeles and was one of the first to operate a phonograph department. The company will, in the near future, open a new additional store on Broadway in a seven-story building, now under construction, between Eighth and Ninth streets.

Parmelee Dohrmann Co.'s New Department

The new phonograph department of the Parmelee Dohrmann Co. on the main floor is now completed and ranks as one of the best in town. The new department was installed by the Unit Construction Co. and the work was supervised by J. J. Grimsey, southern California manager of the Walter S. Gray Co., Pacific Coast agent for the Unico System. Mrs. H. P. Howard is manager of the phonograph department.

Columbia Gleanings

The E. E. Long Piano Co., Columbia dealer, which purchased the fixtures of the Jerome H. Remick Co., has entirely remodeled its store at San Luis Obispo and the interior of the store now presents a most pleasing appearance. Mr. Long is planning to institute an aggressive sales and publicity campaign, which he feels certain will produce desired results.

C. W. Austin, exclusive Columbia dealer at Anaheim, Cal., recently purchased a 1922 Haynes automobile and has embarked on a vacation, to be in the nature of an automobile trip through the entire Pacific Northwest.

A recent visitor to the Los Angeles branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co. was Jack Kapp, of the Chicago branch, who visited this city in the course of his honeymoon trip. Another recent visitor was J. W. Joachim, star salesman for Summerfield & Hecht, Columbia dealers at Detroit, who stopped several days in Los Angeles while on an overland camping trip from Detroit, through the Northwest, down the Pacific Coast and back through the Middle Western States.

NEW ORLEANS

Dealers Prepare for Big Fall and Winter Trade Because of Fine Crops—Aggressive Merchants Get the Business—Month's News

NEW ORLEANS, LA., September 7.—While August has been a much better month than July with the retail dealers, and statistics show much larger returns than for the previous month, and even last August, still it remains for the wholesalers to tell the story of what has been done during the Summer and what the outlook is for the Fall.

It was worth a great deal to sit and listen to R. R. Sparrow at the Columbia Co.'s branch and John A. Hofheinz, of Philip Werlein, Ltd., the Victor wholesalers, as they recounted the encouraging stories coming in from the surrounding territory and from the local retail trade. Rivaling closely in optimism these stories are the reports from the local Edison and Brunswick dealers.

With the present prices of cotton, sugar and rice as good as they have been, even before the war, the chances for the Southern farmer paying off his debts and making a profit are better this year than they have been in some years. Upon this basis the country and city music dealers have been preparing for a big Winter and are boosting all lines of stock.

Value of Energetic Methods

As for the past Summer, a number of the retail dealers have complained that the season just passed has been an exceptionally dull one, but those who have dug to the bottom and scratched have gotten results. Mr. Hofheinz cites an instance of a dealer in the Southern part of the State who has made use of all of the campaigns and sales ideas offered by the Victor Co. and, during the past six weeks, he did more business than the entire seven months prior to that time.

Another instance of what advertising has done comes in a story from Jesse French & Sons, agents for the Columbia line in Mobile, Ala.

T. B. Parsons, the manager, is a firm believer in attractive window displays. The last one cost him just $9.50 and the day following this new display one salesman alone sold seven machines for cash. The window was called "Sunshine Alley," after the record which was being featured at that time. At another time, when "My Wild Irish Rose" was being featured in a picture show just across the street, Mr. Parsons had a window to suit the occasion, bedecked with bright green ribbons and colored lights, which increased both his sales and the popularity of his store. Mr. Parsons reports: "Sales for August larger than last December, and cash sales the highest in the history of the store."

Ordering Machines by Wire

Max Schilling, the El Dorado dealer who made such an excellent showing last month with Grafonolas, comes back this month and orders twelve machines by wire to be shipped by express. J. J. Goldman, from Morgan City, wired Mr. Sparrow at headquarters for twenty-two machines.

New Columbia Agencies

A new Columbia agency has just been established in Jackson, Miss., with the Hidelbing Furniture Co., in the territory of Salesman W. R. Richardson.

H. H. Irving has taken over the Columbia territory formerly covered by W. W. Twigg, who is now with the wholesale department of the Edison Co. Mr. Irving was formerly specialty salesman for the Firestone Tire Co. His headquarters will be Alexandria.

Talking Machine Man Is Mayor

An instance of the popularity of the music man in the community is seen in this item. L. I. Lefeaux, exclusive Columbia dealer for the city of Port Allen, La., was recently elected mayor of the town. Mr. Lefeaux is one of the many enthusiastic "sell-by-truck" Columbia dealers. This has given him first-hand information as to the condition of the roads.

One of his first official acts was to take steps to improve the streets and roads in and about the city, and now they are in a condition that causes the residents to loudly boost their mayor. A recent newspaper item states that, since his election, the town has taken on new life. He has put co-operation and enthusiasm into every department of the city works and is making signal progress in much-needed improvement. Mr. Lefeaux stated that one of the planks of his platform was "more congenial homes," which is another way of saying "more homes with music."

New Manager in Baton Rouge

Frank Allen, assistant to J. D. Moore, of the talking machine department of Maison Blanche, will, on September 15, assume the duties of manager of the Columbia department of the Globe Furniture Store, of Baton Rouge. This department of the Globe firm has just been reorganized under the supervision of E. L. Estes, Nor have the country dealers been grabbing all the business. Listen to this!—The Barnett Furniture Co. here, as the result of one full-page ad in the New Orleans Item, sold twenty-seven machines in one day and, it is said, fifteen machines the second day.

The Levy Furniture Co. has been conducting a special drive during the past month on Grafnolas and has done more business in that line during August than the entire seven months previous to that time.

R. R. Sparrow, manager of the Southern district of the Columbia Co., has just returned from a two weeks' business trip to New York, where he has been preparing for the Fall business, and has been arranging the details for moving into the new home here on October 1.

Helping the Dealer to Sell

The substance of the talk which the correspondent had with John Hofheinz, manager of the Victor wholesale department at Werlein's, Ltd., is this: that the Victor people are leaving no stone unturned to help the dealer; they are going the limit in planning attractive "go-getter" campaigns and selling plans for them to follow. The dealer is encouraged and is welcoming the aid from headquarters. This attitude, plus the general outlook on the outside, in the industrial and agricultural world, is the best indication of a big revival of business.

Among the features planned for the dealers this Fall are: A drive on the Club Plan for Style 80 and a Caruso Record Sales Plan. Again, the two flat-topped console models, due out in the early Fall, are expected to increase the sales of the respective dealers. Horizontal type Victrolas have been very popular all the Summer and it is expected that their popularity will even pass the demand for the vertical types during the last half of 1922.

Dealers Placing Good Orders

As for the Fall orders and Winter stocks the local dealers have all pretty well anticipated their needs and have sent in pretty big orders, as have a large number of the country dealers. "Some, however," said Mr. Hofheinz, "have failed to heed the warning and if, as it is possible, there will be a shortage in some types these dealers will find it a hard matter to get the number of machines they would like."

Increased Demand for Re-creations

Over at the Diamond Disc Shop they reported an increase in business during August of 75 per cent over July in machine sales, while record sales increased approximately 50 per cent. A new plan of the Edison people has been to put out a new crew of two men with a truck, starting a house-to-house canvass placing machines in homes on the approval plan. According to the estimate of Mr. Billiet 60 to 75 per cent of the business is done on the approval plan and he has backed up his opinion by putting it into practice, and he attributes his increased business largely to this new plan.

Reports from the local retailers as a whole have been much better than last month. About three-fourths of the sales managers, however, of the talking machine departments at the different stores are away on their vacations and detailed news from these stores has been almost unobtainable.

Personals

J. D. Moore, manager of the talking machine department of Maison Blanche, is away on his vacation. With his family he is motoring to Brown Wells and expects to be gone about two weeks.

Edgar Newman, of the Maison Blanche music department, is motoring in New York State with his family. Ralph Young, manager of the Grunewald Victrola department, is off on his vacation. J. L. Billiet, manager of the Diamond Disc Shop, has just returned from an extensive trip through California State.

Miss Emma Delery, of the wholesale department of Philip Werlein, Ltd., who has been ill for some time, has just returned from a month's stay at Dawson Springs, Ky., where she has been recuperating.

CLOSES IMPORTANT MACHINE DEAL

Player-Tone T. M. Co. Purchases Entire Stock of Emerson Model 20—I. Goldsmith Returns From Buying Trip—Business Showing Substantial Increase—Fall Outlook Is Good

PITTSBURGH, PA., September 5.—I. Goldsmith, president of the Player-Tone Talking Machine Co., of this city, returned a few days ago from Grand Rapids, where he closed an important deal, whereby his company takes over the entire stock of the instrument formerly known as the Emerson upright model No. 20. This model is one of the most popular in the Emerson line of phonographs, having achieved considerable success because of its attractive cabinet design and the fact that it is equipped with a No. 44 Heineman motor, music master horn, Emerson tone arm and a record filing album device.

In a chat with The World Mr. Goldsmith stated that he is planning to feature the Emerson Model 20 through the medium of an intensive sales campaign, as he believes that the time is now ripe to introduce an instrument of this type to the dealers throughout the country. He states that the phonograph factories in general seem to be on a sounder basis and that the outlook for Fall and Winter is excellent.

Mr. Goldsmith believes that the larger purchasers of talking machines are becoming tired of buying merchandise that does not build for the future, and that hereafter they will depend on standard, reliable merchandise as the backbone of their business.

The Player-Tone Talking Machine Co. is closing an excellent business, the sales totals for the year showing a substantial increase over 1921. Inquiries are being received from dealers in the leading trade centers and, judging from all indications, the 1922 Fall trade will compare very favorably with banner seasons of previous years.

Spaulding's Music Store, Exeter, N. H., W. C. Spaulding, proprietor, is now located in larger and more attractive quarters. Victrolas and Victor records are handled.

SUMMARY OF NEW TARIFF BILL SHOWS MANY CHANGES

Washington Bureau of The World Prepares Synopsis of the Important Changes Made in Former Tariff Rulings by Present Tariff Bill Which Directly Affect the Music Industry

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 5.—For the benefit of its readers the Washington bureau of The World has prepared the following summary of the tariff bill, as passed by the Senate on August 19, showing changes made by that body:

A rate of 40 per cent ad valorem is provided in Paragraph 1441 for musical instruments and parts thereof, not specially provided for, pianoforte or player actions and parts thereof, pieces for musical instruments, pitch pipes, tuning forks, tuning hammers and metronomes, strings for musical instruments composed wholly or in part of metal; $1 per thousand and 35 per cent ad valorem for tuning pins; 45 per cent ad valorem for violins, violas, violoncellos and double basses, of all sizes, wholly or partly manufactured or assembled; 40 per cent ad valorem for unassembled parts of the foregoing instruments.

Paragraph 1442 provides that phonographs, gramophones, graphophones and similar articles and parts thereof, not specially provided for, shall carry a rate of 30 per cent ad valorem; needles for phonographs, gramophones, and similar articles, will be dutiable at 45 per cent ad valorem.

Chamois skin, pianoforte, pianoforte action and player action leathers will be dutiable at 20 per cent ad valorem. Catgut, whipgut, Oriental gut, and manufactures thereof, not specially provided for, and manufactures of worm gut, will be dutiable at 50 per cent ad valorem. Ivory tusks in their natural state or cut vertically across the grain only, with the bark left intact, are on the free list, but manufactures of ivory or vegetable ivory will be dutiable at 35 per cent ad valorem. All animal, vegetable or mineral wax not specially provided for is on the free list. Wood is also on the free list, as well as unmanufactured worm gut.

The ad valorem duties in the Senate bill are to be based upon the foreign valuation, while the House provided for the assessment of such duties upon the American valuation. It is believed that, after considerable discussion, the foreign valuation basis will eventually be adopted.

The Senate bill provides authority for the President to deal with dumping and unfair practices in importation by increasing or decreasing rates to an extent not to exceed 50 per cent of the rates fixed in the bill, after due investigations and hearings by the Tariff Board. He is empowered to take steps, either by changing rates or by prohibiting importation in extreme cases, to meet dumping or unfair practices in the importation or sale in this country of foreign goods, and is authorized to take retaliatory action against foreign governments attempting to restrict exportations to the United States by means of export duties or otherwise.

The bill is now being considered by a joint committee of the Senate and the House with a view to ironing out the differences in the measure as adopted by the two bodies and preparing the bill for final adoption. It is hoped that a final report will be made shortly so that the complete bill may be signed by the President.

ABILITY TO PICK ACTIVE SELLERS

Sol Kronberg, of the Banner record division of the Plaza Music Co., 18 West Twentieth street, New York City, in a recent chat with a representative of The Talking Machine World, was quite optimistic regarding Fall conditions. He said: "It is quite true that there is always a falling off of sales during the Summer months. This year, however, a marked improvement in activity has been seen. There was a stronger and more consistent demand, and as far as Banner records are concerned, we attribute this to the merits as well as the favorable retail price of the product."

Mr. Kronberg stated that his company was very fortunate in its selection of fast-selling numbers, and the ability to pick the active sellers was accredited to the fact that it is an extensive operator in the sheet music field, having a national distribution among sheet music dealers in all parts of the country.

VICTORS USED IN BROADCASTING

Victor records are used exclusively in the weekly radio concerts given by the Edmonton Journal, of Edmonton, Alta. The records are loaned by Mason & Risch, Ltd., of that city.

Announcing Reduced Prices and New Models LONG CONSOLES

Due to heavy demand, necessitating large cuttings, we have been able to reduce our manufacturing costs. We pass this saving to our customers—more than 10 per cent below former prices:

Please note that while Consoles 601, 602, 603, 608 and 610 are regularly fitted to take care of Victrola VI, these same cabinets can be fitted to take care of Victrola IV, and, when taking the reduction in price of Consoles into consideration, it enables the dealer to sell an up-to-the-minute standard outfit at a very moderate price.

Long Consoles are broadly covered by patents.
 Long Consoles are distinctive in design and have the divided top.
 Long Cabinets are regarded by the trade as the Standard of Quality.

FOUR VERY ATTRACTIVE MODELS OF THE NEW EDISON

These New Designs, Which Range in Price From $60 to $135, Have Made a Great Impression On the Trade and Public and Orders Have Been Coming in From Distributors in a Lively Way

ORANGE, N. J., September 9.—Thomas A. Edison, Inc., recently announced four new models of the New Edison, which are of a revolutionary character insofar as price is concerned. Hitherto the New Edison instruments have comprised what the trade regarded as a high-priced line and at one time the lowest-priced model have been demonstrating their enthusiasm for the new models brought out earlier in the year in a most convincing manner. The announcements of the further additions to the line have amplified this enthusiasm to a great extent, as it is the unanimous feeling of the Edison trade that the new models broaden the market and width, 17½ inches; height, 42½ inches; depth, 18½; Re-Creation capacity, 33; price, $100.

London Console, mahogany finish (brown); length, 35 inches; height, 35 inches; depth, 20½ inches; Re-Creation capacity, 34; 2-piece top; price, $135.

DINNER FOR SALESMANSHIP CLASS

Those Attending Second Class of Victor Salesmanship School in Boston Guests of Local Jobbers at Dinner and Theatre Party

BOSTON, MASS., September 8.—The second class of the Victor Salesmanship School, which attracted a most satisfactory number of entrants, was brought to a close last night with a dinner party at the Hotel Brunswick, followed by a theatre party at the Colonial Theatre to see "Sally," when the sixty-one students were the guests of the local Victor jobbers, the Eastern Talking Machine Co., Oliver Ditson Co. and M. Steinert & Sons Co.

JOIN BRISTOL & BARBER STAFF

Bristol & Barber, distributors of talking machines and accessories, New York City, have enlarged their organization through the addition of four new members to the sales staff, consisting of: Alfred Friedman, formerly with the Plaza Music Co., who will cover New Jersey, part of New England and New York State south of Albany; Harry J. Steinberg, formerly with the Emerson Phonograph Co., covering Brooklyn; S. J. Palmer, formerly with the General Phonograph Corp., covering New York City in the interest of Okeh records, and Arthur J. O'Neill, at one time with the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co., who will cover New York City on Q R S music rolls. All four of these new members of the staff have had a wide experience in the talking machine field.

was $167. The new machines are all priced to cater to a demand for instruments selling around $100 and less. Certain economies have been effected in the casework in order to make possible the low prices on these models, but in every instance the mechanical features of the New Edison are similar to the more expensive models.

The new instruments were announced to the trade a short time ago and already orders have been placed for an extremely large quantity of each model—a quantity which will keep the Edison plants and assembling centers busy to capacity throughout the balance of the year. For some time past the Edison jobbers and retailers turnover volume of the Edison trade by about 100 per cent.

Deliveries throughout the country will be made on these new models in plenty of time to cater to the Fall trade. In the words of a prominent Edison official, these models bring the New Edison "within the reach of all." The new models include:

The London No. 1, mahogany finish (brown); width, 17½ inches; height, 19½ inches; depth, 18½ inches; price, $60.

London No. 2, mahogany finish (brown); width, 17½ inches; height, 40 inches; depth, 18½ inches; price, $75.

London Upright, mahogany finish (brown);

A QUALITY SOUND BOX

Here is a sound box that has won a reputation for its quality features of design, construction and tone.

It reproduces a full, mellow, resonant tone of unrivalled volume and clearness.

Settlement of Miners' Grievance Felt in Local Trade Circles—Appearance of Prominent Record Artists Helps Trade—The News

ST. LOUIS, Mo., September 8.—With the beginning of September there was an improvement in the demand for the higher-priced talking machines, particularly consoles, which, it was felt, would have been more pronounced if it had not been for the unsettling effect of the railroad strike. The improvement in the local trade territory was helped by the settlement of the coal strike, particularly in Illinois, where the effects of that strike were most directly felt. However, the railroad strike was more disastrous than the coal strike in disturbing public confidence and interfering with industrial revival. The record business, however, was not seriously affected by either strike and held up very well during August and the first week of this month. The feeling is that, with the ending of the railroad strike, an immediate and active improvement in the demand for machines will be felt and there will be very good business through the Fall and early Winter, culminating in a record holiday business.

Public Favors Brunswick Artists

There never was anything like the success of the first appearance of Gene Rodemich and his celebrated orchestra in a free performance at the Vandervoort Auditorium of the new September Brunswick records. It is estimated that, after the auditorium had been filled to its capacity of 700, there were between 4,000 and 5,000 turned away. The congestion in the store became so great that traffic cops had to be called in from Olive street to clear the aisles. The stage was arranged with a handsome setting of palms and ferns. After the first number by the orchestra the lights were turned off and a Brunswick machine, in an upper box, took up the strain and was given full spotlight honors. The entire program was received by the audience with marked favor. Manager Hosier is vastly pleased with the success of the event, which will be repeated each month on Brunswick release dates.

F. L. Horning Arrives

Frank L. Horning, of Boston, has arrived to take the management of the Stix, Baer & Fuller talking machine department, succeeding F. J. Ennis, who recently, on account of ill health, went East and has concluded to remain there. During the interim the department was efficiently handled by Miss Helen Hatfield.

G. C. Friend, formerly with the Columbia Co.

at Kansas City, Mo., and Thomas Murphy, formerly with the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co. at Memphis, Tenn., are now with the Widener Shop as outside men.

"The Merely Ornamental Victrola" is the subject of a disquisition in the Koerber-Brenner advance list of records for October. The merely ornamental Victrola, it is explained, "is one that sits in a corner of the living room—and just sits there. It's a beautiful piece of furniture—it fits its corner nicely—it harmonizes with and balances off the rest of the living-room furnishings—but, like the well-trained small child, it's seen and not heard.

"It's really surprising what a lot of Victrola owners there are who allow their machines to become 'merely ornamental.' Do you know how many Victrola owners like that there are in your town? You can find out. Just go over your books and make a list of those customers who haven't bought any records during the past six months or so. It's a ten-to-one bet that, in the homes of those people who have quit buying records, the Victrola isn't played one-half hour a week. * * *

"Why not make a determined effort to bring those who haven't bought records for some time into the fold of regular buyers? A telephone call will get some of them. A letter, enclosing a well-chosen list of records, will get others. A personal call may be necessary to get the more reluctant. But whatever effort it takes to get them, that effort is worth while. Not only every Victrola but every talking machine in your town ought to be a source of month-after-month record sales for you. You can't afford to allow many of them to be 'merely ornamental'."

Class in Musical Appreciation

The School Board of Lebanon, Ill., granted the use of the school hall to Miss Estelle Heuman, of the Victor department of Daumueller's, and on each Tuesday morning a class in music appreciation is held. Thirty-five children attended the first class and the attendance promises to grow.

Victor Artists Play to Large Audience

Another striking success was the opening concert given by Dave Silverman's Orchestra in the talking machine department of the Famous & Barr Co. on the Victor release date. The orchestra played the same arrangements as the records and a large audience was keenly appreciative. The orchestra has been engaged by Manager J. F. Ditzell to appear on all Victor release dates.

Artistic Float Attracts Attention

The DeMerville Piano & Music Co. entered an attractive float in a recent competitive parade of South St. Louis merchants. The float consisted of platforms built on the auto delivery body and draped in white with red Victor pennants. A dog and reproduction of the Victor trade-mark were part of the display as well as a horizontal Victrola. Mr. DeMerville distributed Victor puzzles to the children along the line of march and his was voted the most popular float in the parade.

An interesting contrast is shown in pictures received by Koerber-Brenner from Marion, Ill. The one shows the first Saturday morning children's class conducted by the Cline-Vick stores and has but nine children. The second shows the class a month later, held in a public park and numbering nearly fifty.

Paul Whiteman's Club Royal Orchestra

Paul Whiteman's Club Royal Orchestra, of New York, appeared recently for a week at the Grand Central Theatre, under an arrangement made by Manager J. F. Ditzell, of the Famous & Barr Co. talking machine department. During the orchestra's stay its Victor records were effectively exploited in Mr. Ditzell's section.

The talking machine sections of the department stores are again open six days a week.

Columbia News Items

A few weeks ago the Arkansas Light & Power Co.'s radio broadcasting station at Pine Bluff, Ark., arranged a program entitled "An Evening with Columbia Artists," and this was broadcasted. Operatic, symphony, popular dance and comedy music were included in the program, which was reproduced on the Grafonola and both records and Grafonola were supplied by the Knox-Walker Furniture Co.

Rolens & Millikan, of Murphysboro, Ill., used a Magnavox in connection with the County Fair held in that city recently. This enterprising dealer occupied the judges' stand immediately across the amphitheatre, and displayed a large sign advertising new Columbia records. Each time a record was played on the Magnavox the name of the record was shown on the sign, and this unique publicity was well received.

George Ermantraut, of Ermantraut & Sons, of this city, Columbia dealers, was married recently, and is now receiving the congratulations of his many friends in the trade.

Mr. and Mrs. Phil Dallmeyer, of Jefferson City, Mo., were recent visitors at the St. Louis branch of the Columbia Co. They stated that conditions in their home town were excellent.

this broad land of ours.

For example: June and July were the biggest months of production and sales in the automobile industry, not even excepting the profligate years of '19 and '20.

And of the sales made a large percentage were first-time buyers.

These people had gone along economically and quietly and had been saving their money.

The automobile season is dropping off.

The talking machine season is just beginning—and there's lots of money around the country.

KANSAS CITY

Bad Effects of Coal and Rail Strikes Minimized by Aggressive Tactics of Dealers—Workers Help—Optimism for Fall Prevails

KANSAS CITY, Mo., September 5.—Talking machine jobbers and dealers in this territory differ somewhat as to existing business conditions and future prospects, although the majority are in an optimistic frame of mind and look for a very substantial Fall trade.

The coal and railroad strikes have had a rather bad effect on business in this territory for the reason that there are a number of communities which depend chiefly upon the patronage of miners and railroad workers.

Farmers also have been hit to a certain degree, being unable to move their crops freely and suffering in some sections from the effects of drought. However, there is still enough money in circulation to keep the trade moving more or less satisfactorily.

In spite of these discouraging conditions, or maybe because of them, certain dealers are more active in their preparations for going after the business than usual. They argue that if the business is hard to obtain, then it is all the more reason that they should use every possible means to secure it. Therefore, they are doing out-of-the-ordinary stunts.

One of the interesting plans is connected up with the Western Amateur Golf Tournament, in which "Chick" Evans successfully defended his title as champion. The Brunswick people are pushing the records which give the "Chick" Evans directions for playing golf. These records are displayed with a life-size picture of "Chick" and with an attractive assortment of golf paraphernalia. The golf fans are interested, further, in the statement that the profits on the sales of these records are to be devoted to establishing the "Chick Evans Foundation," which is to be devoted to carrying on the work of the National Caddies' Championship.

Sales Manager Schoenley, of the wholesale Victor department of the Schmelzer Co., is working out a campaign for the Tungstone needle, which is meeting with an enthusiastic reception from the dealers. He has several needles, duplicates of the real needle, but 110 times as large, which are to be sent from dealer to dealer and used in window displays. The actual size of the gigantic needles is six feet long and seven inches in diameter.

The campaign on Victor Health Records, which has been put on also by the Schmelzer Co., has met with good co-operation by the dealers, but it is generally agreed that the real results from this campaign will not be secured until after the hot weather.

Dealers in this territory are looking forward to the coming of the factory representatives of the Victor Co., F. A. Delano and his corps of assistants, who will hold a school of salesmanship in Kansas City during the Fall. The dates have not yet been arranged, but preliminary announcement has been made. The school will last five days and will be held in the Victor wholesale department of the Schmelzer Co. The course will be similar to that followed in other cities. Indications are that the attendance will be large.

G. W. Collins & Sons, exclusive Columbia dealers at Belleville, Kan., are staging a great sale on the occasion of their thirtieth anniversary. The drawing card of the sale was a voting contest of the most popular local resident.

Samples of the new line of Edison consoles have arrived here and Manager Blackman, of the Phonograph Co., states that they have been received with great interest and enthusiasm by the dealers. It is considered a step toward popularizing the Edison that the factory is now able to announce a genuine Edison at a price as low as $60. Other machines of the line sell at $75, $100 and $135. The baby console is receiving a hearty welcome in this market.

The Chappell Music Co., of Salina, Kans., exclusive Edison dealer, has determined to enlarge its business and add a line of pianos, player-pianos and other musical instruments. The first addition will be the Packard line. The company is moving into beautiful new quarters and reports a nice Summer's business. Herbert Bailey, who has been associated with Mr. Blackman in this city, will have charge of the enlarged business at Salina.

The appearance of Miss Florence E. Hazlett, educational representative of the Columbia Co., working out of the Kansas City branch, at Lexington, Mo., received much favorable comment. Miss Hazlett was on the program of the Lafayette County Teachers' Meeting at the high school building of Lexington, appearing in the afternoon of the first day's session to demonstrate the use of the Grafonolas in the public schools. Her appearance was well received and B. R. Young, the local Columbia dealer, reported that the sale of Columbia school records was greatly stimulated by the appearance.

Louis Deitsch, proprietor of Scanlan's Hardware & Furniture Co., St. Joseph, Mo., is using a novel scheme to secure replies to his letters to Grafonola and Columbia record prospects. He encloses a bright new penny to cover the postage of the return reply. The plan has been unusually successful in securing replies.

The Sweeney Automobile School, which has one of the most complete broadcasting stations in the country, has a special broadcasting room fitted up artistically with period design furniture, including a P-7 Charles II period design Grafonola.

R. H. Brown, for years connected with the teaching of music in Kansas City public schools, has moved to Manhattan, Kans., having purchased the music business of Harry Smethurst, of the Smethurst Music Co. The concern will be known as the R. H. Brown Music Co. Columbia Grafonolas, records, pianos and small musical instruments will be handled.

The Allen Phonograph Parlor, Columbia dealer, at Independence, Mo., has just started a Grafonola campaign and, to support this campaign, is running a series of full-page newspaper advertisements and it has distributed throughout the territory adjacent to Independence, Mo., 5,000 circulars featuring Grafonolas and the sale which it is now conducting.

Reports on the sales of the new style horizontal-topped Victor consoles indicate that the public has been waiting for them. One dealer has ordered at one time as many as twenty-five of them from the Schmelzer Co.

Victor dealers are combining to connect up in an advertising and selling campaign in connection with the visit to Kansas City of John Steel, who appears at the Orpheum. The Paul Talking Machine Co. will display, together with his records, a Victrola in the lobby of the theatre in which Mr. Steel will appear.

SING OLD HYMNS FOR BRUNSWICK

Chorus of Sacred Harp Singers Recording Exclusively for Brunswick Co.—Perpetuating Hymns of the Pilgrim Fathers

A recent addition to the artists recording for the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. are the Sacred Harp Singers, chosen the official chorus of the United Sacred Harp Musical Association, which numbers over 5,000,000 persons in the United States and dates back to the beginning of American history, according to an announcement emanating from the Brunswick Co.

The Singers, who are now recording exclusively for the Brunswick Co., were selected from a delegation which came to New York from Texas early in July to fire the opening gun in a nation-wide campaign to bring about a revival of the old-fashioned choir singing of the Pilgrim Fathers. Typical hymns sung by

Among the recordings which have already been made and which appear on the Brunswick Purple Label list are the following: 5150—New Britain, C. M., Canaan's Land, C. M. D., Mixed Choir of the Original Sacred Harp Singers; 5151—Soft Music, Pleyel's Hymn, C. M., Mixed Choir of the Original Sacred Harp Singers; 5146—Penick, C. NOW MANUFACTURING RADIO HORNS

Standard Metal Mfg. Co., Newark, N. J., Enters New Field of Activity—Is Widely Known

The Standard Metal Mfg. Co., Newark, N. J., which for over twenty years has manufactured metal amplifying horns for the talking machine trade, is now manufacturing radio horns in addition to its other products.

The radio horns are in several designs and sizes. A particularly popular amplifying radio horn is that made of rubberoid, black enamel finish, designed to be used with all makes of radio receivers. It is of heavy material in order to avoid blast in amplification. The Standard Co. also manufactures a radio horn similar to the flower-shaped bell found on the old Edison phonograph. This is produced in rubberoid black enamel finish and also in grained mahogany.

Horns for the interior of cabinets are made upon specification and of every design and dimension. W. A. Lawrence, president of the Standard Metal Mfg. Co., is well known throughout the talking machine industry. In addition to the large volume of work for talking machine manufacturers, which includes horns for the interior of cabinets, the Standard Co. also had for many years close connection with the retail field through the manufacture of the old style exterior horns for talking machines.

In speaking of the demands for its earlier type of talking machine horn Mr. Lawrence said: "Although there is only a small retail demand for the machines with exposed horns in this country, and those particularly for school use, we are still delivering to the larger manufacturers many such horns for foreign consumption, particularly for South American and India trade, many orders coming direct.

NEW SONORA ELECTRIC SIGN

Day and Night Sign Announced by Sonora Advertising Department in Demand

A new "Da-Nite" sign has just been announced by the Sonora advertising department. The accompanying illustration shows the daytime effect of this sign and at night it is illuminated by an electric bulb flashing on and off at regular intervals, giving an appearance as though the letters were composed of myriads of small electric bulbs. The color scheme of the background is blue and black, with white letters, and the size of the sign, 14½ inches by 20¼ inches, should make a distinct appeal to the Sonora dealer who aims to give his store 100 per cent publicity day and night.

NEW ERA OF PROSPERITY FOR THE TRADE, DECLARES RAY

General Manager of Vocalion Record Division of Aeolian Co. Brings Back Satisfying Report Regarding Conditions and Prospects on Return from Transcontinental Trip

O. W. Ray, general manager of the Vocalion record division of the Aeolian Co., recently returned from a six weeks' trip to the Coast and to the Canadian Rockies and reports that the phonograph dealers and distributors, both in the Central West and on the Coast, express great faith in the new era of prosperity.

"This new era of prosperity in phonographs and records means far more for the permanency of the industry than the wave of prosperity that swept the phonograph industry during 1917, 1918 and 1919," said Mr. Ray upon his return. "To-day we find the dealers and distributors trained merchandisers in financing, banking and credits as well as on sales. In the period beginning 1917 manufacturers, dealers and distributors were all optimistic and paying a great deal of attention to sales and this attitude made a very dangerous factor for the industry. To-day every dealer is a banker, financier and credit man, as well as a sales expert, and it has made a factor of safety for the manufacturer that makes the phonograph industry more permanent than ever before and assures the dealer and distributor of making money.

"Reports show, in Indiana and Kansas, the greatest corn crop in the history of these States and offers the farmer the opportunity of paying his debts and having some money left over to spend on articles for his home. In Denver, Col., the mines are opening and crops are very large and the return of a permanent business is reported by all dealers.

"In Salt Lake City the Strevell-Paterson Hardware Co., which we have just appointed as distributor for Vocalion records, and the Consolidated Music Co., who is a dealer for Vocalion instruments and records, expresses a feeling of great confidence in the return of the phonograph business in this territory and the opening of the large copper and silver mines assures them of a very prosperous business this season.

"In Los Angeles one finds John Boothe, manager of the music department of Barker Bros., doing a Christmas business the year round. Houses in Los Angeles are going up on Monday, the decorators are in on Tuesday and the phonograph is sent out on Wednesday. The Munson-Rayner Corp., 315 South Broadway, Los Angeles, has just been appointed distributor for Vocalion Red Records, with Mr. Darville in charge. This concern is being stamped with Vocalion record business and promises to be one of our largest distributors.

"One of the most impressive things that I saw on my trip was the amphitheatre at Hollywood. It brought a message to me and I would like to carry this to the music industry as one of the many things that are being done on the Coast for the development of music. This amphitheatre seats 25,000 people, with a natural stage backed with mountains that rise one thousand feet high, and to step into it on the ever-starlight night of the California climate with a city of people sitting there as quiet as the night and to hear the symphony concerts conducted by Hertz, formerly of the Metropolitan, gave one a new realization of the power of music.

"At San Francisco I was royally entertained by Mr. Steers and Mr. Travers, of the Magnavox Co., and during my stay had the very pleasant opportunity of meeting our dealers in the San Francisco territory and talking to them. The spirit and enthusiasm and the following that the Vocalion Red Records have attained with our distributors were expressed by the fact that the dealers were present in 100 per cent attendance.

"Business conditions in both Portland and Spokane are improving and the prospects for a big lumber business and the tremendous wealth of the great Northwest in mines gives one a feeling that some day this territory will be one of the wealthiest in the United States. Meier Frank, in Portland, expresses his confidence in the future of the phonograph industry by greatly increasing the size of his department, and the Simon Piano Co., who is a Vocalion instrument and record dealer in Spokane, has a large business this Summer and expects a very large business this Fall.

"One of the largest crops of wheat in the history of Montana, North Dakota and Minnesota promises this section a large business for the Fall and the Stone Piano Co., of Minneapolis, has already felt the effects of this optimism.

"My return visit to Chicago found H. B. Levy, the manager of our Chicago branch, with one hundred dealers in Chicago, demanding more Vocalion records and August was the biggest month in the history of Mr. Levy's business.

"My short time in New York since my return leads me to believe that New York City is one of the starting points of this new era of prosperity for our industry and I believe that all members of the talking machine industry should be proud of their association and the future that this well-established industry offers."

[EDITOR'S NOTE.—This is the twenty-third of a series of articles by William Braid White, devoted to the various interesting opportunities which prevail in the domain of education for the retailer of talking machines. The subject is one of great interest and we commend these articles to the consideration of all who are devoting attention to the featuring and developing of the musical possibilities of the talking machine.]

5—THE CROWN OF MUSICAL FORM

If what I said last month has been comprehended, the reader will now be ready to take another step along the delectable road of musical discovery. How fortunate he is in being able to take that journey in the magic vehicle of the talking machine! How happy is the fate of those who can have all music at their disposal and choose what they shall hear, when and how they want it!

The great classic masters of the late seventeenth and the early eighteenth centuries did not, of course, realize that they were doing revolutionary work. Telemann, Hasse, Buxtehude and Sebastian Bach were simple and humble men, who sometimes enjoyed court favor and the security of a small official position, who were always obscurely and quietly working for the sole purpose and to the sole end of giving rein to their own emotions and ideas. They wrote music because they could write music better than they could do anything else. They wrote without the slightest thought of the future; nor was their posterior fame even remotely anticipated by them. Now, it was they who worked out the art of Fugue until it stood complete as a Gothic cathedral in its marvelous co-ordination of detail into unitary design. In thus virtually exhausting the art of Fugue the masters of the Bach-Handel period set the stage for the next move in the ever-advancing development of the art of music.

It was Carl Philip Emanuel Bach, son of the great Sebastian, who perceived the desirability of breaking away from the strict art of Fugue, and of Contrapuntal form in general, and of turning to a music more artless and delicate, more elegant, if less majestic. His small pieces for the keyboard instruments of his day, harpsichord, spinet and clavichord, are drawn from a boundless imagination, warmly interested in the slowly opening mind of the new age of free thought and free inquiry. His work opened the way, through a train of followers and co-workers, for Josef Haydn, father of the symphony and spiritual parent of Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Schumann, Wagner and Brahms. It is with him that we must begin if we are to understand something of the crown of modern music, the symphony.

"Papa Haydn"

Haydn, born in 1732, was twenty-four years old when Mozart came into the world, and outlived his famous contemporary by no less than eighteen years. A Croatian by birth, he showed his Slavic warmth and geniality throughout a career which was extraordinarily well shaped to give him the opportunity he needed to develop his genius. Comparatively early in his course he found himself directing the private orchestra maintained by the head of the great house of Esterhazy in Austria, and he remained in this position for more than twenty years. By virtue of his position he was able to experiment with the make-up and arrangement of the orchestra, to compose music suitable for the ideas he desired to test, and, in general, to do a wonderful preparatory work whereby his successors were able to step into a region of tone already explored and partly subdued, by the force of Haydn's genius.

Haydn was, of course, in a position that no musician would care to occupy, or indeed could occupy, to-day. The great Esterhazy family ruled its Hungarian estates with all the primitive suzerainty of a feudal lordship. A private court was maintained. The country house was a palace, while the town mansion in Vienna was only less elaborate and formal in its arrangements. Haydn, as Kapellmeister, was simply a sort of upper servant, coming after the major-domo and chief cook, but before the second butler. His instructions included a daily appearance, in white wig and white stockings, before the Prince, to receive orders about the dinner music and the various entertainments to which he was obliged to contribute. Shocking as the situation of this remarkable man now seems to us, however, we must remember that he was better off than poor Mozart, whose independent spirit led him to death at a premature age, by what was not very far removed from starvation. It remained for Beethoven to prove that a musician might remain independent of the patrons and the great, and yet earn his daily bread.

What Haydn Achieved

Now what exactly did Haydn achieve for the development of musical art? In the first place, having before him as good an orchestra (from 20 to 35 pieces) as the day could afford, he set to work where his predecessors had left off, and began to develop a more flexible vehicle for his ideas than the strict contrapuntal art of Bach could afford. He had, for background, the work of Carl Philip Emanuel Bach, who had discovered in the dance forms and popular songs of the day much material which could be worked up into effective shape. Bach had set many of his orchestral pieces in the forms of the older dances, gavotte, minuet, bourrée, sarabande. These, indeed, are still most charming, as the student will find by getting out the Victor records of the Suite in D major and listening carefully to them. But this listening will also show that Bach conceived the orchestra merely as a set of abstract parts, about as much distinguished from each other as are the various voices of a mixed choir, but not even thought of as possessing color values of their own to be used for their own sake. It remained for Haydn to follow up an idea which Carl Philip Emanuel Bach had partly worked out in his so-called Sonatas for the keyboard instruments, and to apply this to the orchestra along with his own rapidly deepening belief that the orchestral instruments have each its own vocal color, which should be utilized accordingly, and not as mere abstract fillers-in of parts.

C. P. E. Bach's Idea

This idea of C. P. E. Bach was that an adequate form for a piece which is to be played but not sung, that is, for an instrumental piece. [Sonata is Italian for "sounded." A "Sonata" was therefore originally simply a piece for an instrument and not for the voice.] He thought that two contrasting themes could be worked out separately and gradually brought to an harmonious close, without any need for strict counterpoint. He was not entirely alone in this idea, of course, but his work was perhaps the most critical. Haydn had this idea before him in the shape of some little "Sonatas," by C. P. E. Bach and his contemporaries, and with his fine orchestra at his disposal was able to work out the form which crystallized as the Symphony, under his able hand.

What Is a Symphony?

The word "Symphony" was used, of course, long before Haydn's time, as, for instance, by Sebastian Bach, and then meant simply any ensemble of music, any concert of two or more instruments or voices. Haydn attached the name to his finest compositions in the form developed from C. P. E. Bach, and it has since been reserved for a particular style of writing for the grand orchestra, a style of which Haydn is the founder and his best works of the kind are still excellent examples.

Let me suggest to the student that he look up the record catalogs and discover for himself some of the symphonic works there available. He will find examples by Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven and Mendelssohn (to take the results of a hasty glance through the Victor, Columbia, Edison and Okeh catalogs). At the right moment, we shall select from these a certain symphony by Haydn, the famous Surprise Symphony, which may be found recorded by the Victor Orchestra in the Victor catalog, among the educational records.

The Quartet Form

Before taking this, however, let me make a needed observation. I am going to ask my reader to become acquainted with what I am calling the "crown of musical form," that is to say, with the most perfect and beautiful of all musical structures, the orchestral symphony. But it is necessary to say that the form on which the Symphony is constructed may be applied also to music intended for a single instrument, for two instruments, or for a quartet, or quintet of instruments. When designed for a single instrument it is called a Sonata, as, for example, we have sonatas for piano and for violin and piano, or 'cello and piano, since the violin or 'cello is not able to carry the harmonies and the needed number of parts by itself. When, again, the music is written in this symphonic form, or for a stringed quartet, two violins, viola and 'cello, it is called a "Quartet." And so on.

We may, therefore, say that a sonata is a symphony for a solo instrument, or for two instruments, that a quartet is a symphony for a set of four instruments (nearly always the four stringed instruments of the violin family mentioned above); and that, conversely, a symphony is a sonata for orchestra. In each case, of course, the elaboration of the treatment and the richness of the whole structure are dependent upon the magnitude and complexity of the instrumental means. An orchestra can do work enormously surpassing the possibilities of a quartet in power, richness, variety and complexity. Hence, the writing must be differentiated, according to the nature of each case.

Haydn and Mozart both experimented so much with the quartet of stringed instruments that an introduction to the mysteries of symphonic form can hardly be had more perfectly than by comparing with each other some of the recordings of quartets by Mozart and Haydn, which are to be found in the catalogs, especially the Victor. As an introduction to what shall follow in the way of orchestral symphonies, we shall discuss some of the Flonzaley Quartet's recordings of some Haydn and Mozart quartets, and thus prepare ourselves for the Haydn symphony which is to follow, and which will then be much clearer to us.

Some Preliminaries to Hearing

As preparation for the actual hearing, let me

remind the reader that the sonata or symphony form commonly includes four movements, distinct and separate from each other. The first is the most important. It is usually marked Allegro (lively), but is sometimes preceded by a slow introduction of a few measures' length. The Allegro opens with a sharp, decided theme or tune, usually very crisp and snappy. This is repeated and then more or less "developed," that is to say, expanded out and put into varied instrumental dress, until the composer is satisfied that his hearers are familiar with it. Then is introduced a second theme, usually feminine, gentle and appealing in character. Then comes what is called the "development section," in which either or both are worked in all sorts of different ways, being subjected to rhythmic, and harmonic changes, as the learning and fancy of the composer dictate. The first theme is usually chosen for this development. The second theme then comes in again, usually, and there is a recapitulation of the first theme in something like its original form. Then comes a Coda or tail-piece, pulling the threads of the musical thought together and ending the movement. A quartet example is the allegro moderato from the Haydn quartet in D, recorded by the Flonzaley Quartet.

The second movement (usually marked Andante or Adagio, moderate speed or really slow, but in either case gentle) consists of a song-like melody, developed graciously and beautifully, aiming to charm more by its grace than by its power. A good example is the Andante from the Quartet in D, by Mozart, recorded by the Flonzaley Quartet.

The third movement was, with Haydn and in all his quartets, a minuet, or dance movement, based thereon. The minuet was a dance in 3-4 time, graceful, stately, and in every way charming. Beethoven worked it out into the more violent and energetic Scherzo, of which we shall speak later. An excellent quartet example is the Minuet from Mozart's Quartet, in

The finale or fourth movement is usually built much like the first movement. An actual example is not to be had at present, so far as known, in quartet recordings, but a good substitute is the Finale from Mozart's Symphony or orchestra, in E flat, as done by the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra. This is clear, lightly orchestrated, and easy to grasp.

Now, as a preparation for next month's article, please get down the record of the Allegro from the Haydn quartet in D, and start it going. Listen carefully to it and see if you can distinguish the first and second themes, the development and the coda. Listen carefully to the separate work of the fourth instrument, the first violin playing the highest part, the second violin playing a little lower, the viola playing the alto parts, and the 'cello the tenor and bass.

I shall talk further about this and other quartet movements next month, and then get down to the symphonies, beginning with Haydn's Surprise Symphony, as said before.

Noted Singer and Vocalion Record Artist Attracts Great Audiences Abroad

John Charles Thomas, noted American singer, light opera star and Vocalion record artist, who has been in Europe for some months, is reported to have taken the European capitals by storm and at his recitals has attracted audiences that have packed to capacity the various halls. In London only Albert Hall, seating 12,000, was able to accommodate his English following.

Mr. Thomas will return to the United States in October and arrangements are being made for a transcontinental recital tour.

Dealers Jubilant Over Excellent Business—Local Exhibits at State Fair—Review of Trade

DETROIT, MICH., September 11.—The past month was an exceptionally good month for the talking machine dealers of Detroit. From all sides one hears only jubilation over the volume of business transacted during that time. R. B. Alling, of the Phonograph Co. of Detroit, operating also the Edison Shop, said: "We have just closed one of the best months in the history of our concern—bar none. I am particularly pleased over our showing, not only for the past month, but for the entire Summer as well."

Cheering Reports on Business

H. S. Porter, of Grinnell Bros., is another to report a very pleasing business. As early as the sixteenth of August they had disposed of two-thirds of their quota for that month and, while figures are not available at this writing, it was confidently expected that the month would exceed that of 1921. Mr. Porter attributes a great deal of their brisk trade to the fact that they are out working for it all the time, instead of being content to let the public come to them. A new truck has recently been added to their sales force, to cover the outlying portions of the city. This makes three trucks which are manned by expert salesmen, who take a phonograph directly into the home of the prospect and there let him hear the machine under the same conditions that occur after purchase. Mr. Porter is very careful in the selection of the men he sends out to represent Grinnell Bros. and has managed to gather about him a group of high-powered salesmen who have literally "brought home the bacon." As a result of their success with this method, they are convinced that the usual Summer slump is but a fallacy and that it is folly to encourage this idea. H. W. Fish, manager of the Kimball Piano Co., reports that sales of Kimball phonographs and Okeh records have been highly pleasing. Mr. Fish is of the opinion that the local music dealers are headed for one of the biggest Fall seasons it has been their lot to experience in a long time. The ten branch stores of the firm are also doing a very brisk business in records and phonographs.

Exhibitors at State Fair

The Starr Piano Co., in company with J. L. Hudson Co. and Grinnell Bros., maintained an exhibit at the Michigan State Fair, which ran from September 1 to September 10. Business for the first half of the fair was very promising and it looks, at this writing, as if the exhibit at the fair will bring in more business than has been the custom for a number of years. E. P. Andrews, of the J. L. Hudson Music Store, said: "We are mightily encouraged over results of the display at the fair. It looks quite like the old times, when the fair could be counted on to boost our sales considerably."

Pleased With New Model

W. H. Huttie, district manager of the Starr Piano Co., is very pleased over the reception accorded the new small console model Starr phonograph and the new cabinet model. These two machines are on display for the first time in Detroit or vicinity, at the fair, and from the interest they are evoking will, undoubtedly, be one of the biggest selling lines of the Starr phonographs. Mr. Huttie recently had a very narrow escape from death while traveling from Flint to Detroit via automobile bus, when the car was ditched while turning out for a road hog. The machine went down an embankment and turned turtle twice. Aside from several severe bruises and minor cuts on his body, Mr. Huttie was unhurt and able to make the journey home in the company of friends who drove upon the scene shortly afterwards.

are now under way and are expected to be completed by the twelfth, after which the finals to determine the grand prize winners will be conducted. The Edison Shop was the scene of one examination on the evening of September 7, when contestants from several districts were given an opportunity to display their knowledge of the masterpieces of music. Between 72,000 and 75,000 persons from the different districts and classes are entered in the contest, making the judging of the winners a difficult task. The contest as conducted by the Detroit News and the contributing music dealers has been most successful and has elicited a vast number of inquiries as to the manner of launching such an affair. This contest is the most stupendous one ever attempted in the United States and as a result the eyes of music dealers and organizations throughout the country have been fastened upon Detroit, eagerly watching results and absorbing information concerning it. Both the News and the dealers have been very generous in supplying information to all interested parties. August 31 saw the third and last of the famous music memory balls, put on by the Gardner-White Co. and the White Furniture Co. in collaboration with the contest. Only a limited number of tickets were given out, as the second dance was so heavily patronized as to necessitate the calling out of police reserves to handle the crowds. Prizes were awarded for the best dancers and the crowd thoroughly enjoyed themselves, although they regretted the passing of these dances. Themes used in the music memory contest were played by the orchestras at the Palais de Danse for these three affairs and did much to convince the dancers that the so-called classics could be utilized very favorably for dance purposes. These complimentary dances have been found to be one of the best means to promote interest in the contest itself and were the direct outgrowth of an idea of Percy Keen, of the Gardner-White Co.

In speaking of the tremendous amount of interest in the contest, Peter C. Sweeney, chairman of the contributing music dealers' committee, said: "We are very gratified over the large number of contestants enrolled in the contest, which involves the awarding of over $16,000 worth of prizes. While it is impossible to estimate the educational value of the contest in actual dollars and cents, every dealer in the campaign feels that the time and effort he has expended have brought him very good returns and that the influence of the campaign will not easily wear off, but can be counted upon to bring in more business for him in the future." Practically every make of phonograph sold in the city is represented in the list of awards, in addition to the grand prizes and the competition has been and still is keen.

Business Situation Reviewed

Reports for the first four working days of September show that the month has gotten away to a very good start, which, if maintained, will make the present month rank as one of the best of the year 1922. The outlook for the balance of the year is very bright, provided shutdowns of the large industrial plants can be averted, and the general opinion is to the effect that nothing of this nature will occur. However, many heavy advertising campaigns, slated for September, by the leading dealers are being held in abeyance, pending future developments among the motor car plants. If the Ford plant does not shut down on September 16, causing many smaller and affiliated concerns to close, then the dealers are planning on "knocking the public cold" with some heavy advertising, sustained throughout the balance of the season and so devised as to appeal particularly to and bring in a lot of the good trade they are convinced is in wait for them this Fall.

SEPTEMBER SALES EXCELLENT

New York Talking Machine Co. Gives Favorable Business Report—Chas. B. Mason Back at Desk—R. E. Drake a Visitor

Chas. B. Mason, sales manager of the New York Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler, returned to his desk last week after spending about ten days trying to turn in a card of 100 or less at nearby New Jersey golf links. Mr. Mason has set 104 as his mark, but has not yet reached that figure.

In a chat with The World he stated that September sales for the first two weeks had been excellent, the increase being particularly noticeable in the demand for Victrolas of all types and descriptions. Mr. Mason stated that the most encouraging feature of this activity was the fact that practically all of the company's dealers reported a general buying movement on the part of the public. This included both Victrolas and Victor records and, judging from all reports received at the company's offices, Victor dealers in metropolitan territory are preparing for a banner Fall season.

OLD FAVORITES REVIVED

Leo Feist, Inc., is the publisher of the new song series in book form under the title, "Good Old Timers." This is a collection of seventy-five songs arranged for singing and dancing and described as numbers "you can't forget." The songs have been compiled and edited by Lee Olean Smith and Theodore Morse. The contents include such numbers as "And Her Golden Hair Was Hanging Down Her Back," "Anona," "The Cat Came Back," "Curse of an Aching Heart," "Farmer in the Dell," "Picture No Artist Can Paint," "Where Did You Get That Hat?" and many other well-known titles. The publication will retail for fifty cents.

Jack Harris Carries Off Honors at Annual Singing Contest at Asbury Park Casino

Jack Harris, who has represented Jack Snyder, Inc., the publisher and writer of "Meet Me Next Sunday," "In Maytime" and other successes, has spent the Summer in Asbury Park, N. J., where he was one of the features at the Casino on the boardwalk.

Each year William Whittel, manager of the Casino, gives a silver cup to the winning singer of the most popular song of the season, the judges being the audience and the contestants going through an elimination test. This year's cup was won by Jack Harris for the singing of the song, "Meet Me Next Sunday."

J. F. Ulery, prominent jewelry dealer at Eagle Lake, Tex., has added a talking machine department to his store. This department is modernly equipped and is a feature of the establishment which is planning to push the "Talker" line.

EXPLOITATION THE BIGGEST FACTOR OF EXPENSE IN THE POPULAR MUSIC PUBLISHING BUSINESS

The Cost of Making a Song "Popular" and Therefore a Good Seller Is So Great That Music Publishers Cannot Issue Music to Retail at 10 or 15 Cents and Remain in Business

The most important factor in making popular music "popular" is undoubtedly the exploitation of the song. If all the expense a big publisher has in connection with a song were the cost of printing and the royalties paid to the writers he could sell music at 7 or 8 cents a copy and make money. A sheet of music is the most difficult kind of merchandising proposition, because the intrinsic value of the paper and printing amounts to only a few cents, but you must make this article so desirable that a customer will willingly pay 30 cents for it.

Now, what makes a song worth 30 cents? Simply the exploitation put behind it by the big publisher. Probably not oftener than once in a year will a publisher get what is called a "natural" hit—by that is meant a song that catches on immediately without any great effort or expense on the part of the publisher. All the other song "hits" have to be "made." Now, take into consideration the cost of "making." In an article some months ago we pointed out that a publisher has to do the following things before he publishes his song in marketable form: Make the piano arrangement, calling for the services of an expert arranger, usually a very high-priced man, as manuscripts are rarely if ever handed in to the publisher in a form that can be published—usually all they get is a "lead sheet and lyric." The arranger must put it in a suitable key and score it in a manner to come within the range of the ability of the average buyer of sheet music.

Then come the "professional" copies, vocal orchestrations in three or four different keys, the special versions for singles, doubles, quartets, extra catch lines, extra choruses, slides, dance orchestrations, etc., etc.—all this work for the purpose of trying it out with vaudeville performers and dance orchestra leaders to see if the public likes it. If it shows signs of being popular then it is published as a "regular" copy in the form in which the public buys it. But—and here's the rub—if the performers and public do not take to it all of this work and material is discarded. This costs money. It costs money for the publisher to find out if he has a song worth publishing. The very small percentage of songs tried out in this manner that ever see the light of day, or, in other words, ever get published in "regular copy" form is really surprising. Actually dozens of them are worked on and discarded in the course of a year as not being "commercial" songs; that is, songs that will sell.

Now, assuming that the preliminary work has been encouraging and it has been decided to "go after" the song and work on it to make it a hit, what happens?

What the Professional Department Does

Additional quantities of professional copies, vocal orchestrations, dance orchestrations, band arrangements, slides and "special material," consisting of extra choruses, patter, catch lines, etc., to interest the performers, are then printed and supplied to the various offices of the publishers throughout the country. A word about these branch professional offices is not amiss here, because they add to the expense of "making" songs popular. The big publishers maintain them in the principal cities from coast to coast, starting in the East at Boston, then New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Atlanta, New Orleans, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Buffalo, Detroit, Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City, Denver, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, etc.

These offices employ from three to twenty men, according to locations, and their purposes are twofold, the first being to rehearse acts and get them "up" in the songs being exploited. They not only call upon and solicit acts playing their respective cities, but they also "follow up" acts that have been interested in the songs by the home office, usually in New York or Chicago.

Secondly, these branch office men, having covered the acts each week in the several theatres of their cities, must not overlook the possibilities of local "plugs"; that is, placing their singers in the picture houses, cabarets, band concerts, or any public gathering where it is possible to have the songs sung or played. Many of these men are paid $75 or $100 a week, besides the expenses they incur in traveling and entertaining. But this is all necessary if the song is to be "made"—songs are not going to make themselves—somebody must go out and work and spend money to get the tune in the air.

The Question of Advertising

Another item of expense is theatrical and trade paper advertising. Those performers who cannot be personally solicited must know about the new songs and the only way they can be reached is through the theatrical papers. The correspondence of this end of the business is a tremendous item in itself. For the small performer must get service by mail and get it quickly with the proper material so that he can put the song on without the aid of a professional rehearsal. A man handling this department must know what to write, and act, give the artist the proper "interpretation" of the songs by mail as well as possible; see that he gets the version best suited to him or her and an orchestration in the proper key. One of our big publishers retains a staff of six or seven arrangers just for the purpose of giving acts an orchestration suitable to their voice qualifications, or voice limitations. They are high-priced people, too. They get paid by the page, not by the day.

Every big publisher retains an expert arranger just to make special arrangements for quartets. He is another high-priced man. There are special departments maintained by every big publisher to keep the orchestra leaders all over the United States informed as to what's what in New York and Chicago. There are as many as 30,000 orchestra leaders on the lists of these big publishers and it is safe to say that each of them receives a special letter once or twice a month.

Super-salesmen Needed

The men on the professional department staffs of the big publishers are super-salesmen in their own field. On Monday afternoons you find them in the theatres of all the vaudeville circuits. If Brown and Jones are singing a ballad, or a comedy song, or a novelty song, and it is not one published by the house they represent, you'll find them back-stage immediately after the act is off presenting their "sales-talk" and trying to convince the act that it would be a bigger hit if it would sing their song.

Many New York publishers have fifteen sound-proof piano rooms for rehearsals, besides larger rooms for rehearsals of big acts and new orchestras just being formed. Duplicate this in the several cities mentioned above and there is shown a nice "overhead" investment in pianos alone. It all costs money, but it is needed to "make" songs. Eliminate the professional department, the orchestra department, cut out all advertising, discharge the staffs of highly trained professional office men, leave nothing but the printing presses and the dealer would not pay 2 cents a copy for the songs—songs the record manufacturers and roll manufacturers would not issue because there would be no "demand."

Creating the Demand

"Demand" is a powerful word and the only way to make a demand is to spend money—barrels of it—in "exploitation." That's where the real "cost" is in a song, not in paper, ink and fancy covers, but without exploitation there would not be any hits and without hits there would not be any popular music business.

Hits cannot be made on printing presses—it is that tremendous amount of work between the printing press and the ultimate consumer that makes a piece of paper with notes on it salable merchandise.

The above are the outstanding factors involved in the cost of presenting and exploiting present-day song successes. These are the activities that are not discernible off-hand, but are influences that are most valuable and can hardly be dispensed with. They are not, however, all of the factors that add to costs. Popular publishers have, in addition, other activities, and expensive ones, which the trade, at least, is familiar with, such as "dealer helps," specific and general advertising, cut-outs, hangers, window strips and streamers and other material for display purposes, animated electric signs and advertising mats. That about completes the expensive activities; there are other minor factors and it may also be said that each song being an entity creates some particular need which cannot be included in a general summing up.

Nothing has been said of the cost of interesting and the expense involved in co-operating with the mechanical reproducers of songs and instrumental numbers.

The time and effort that are often required to put over a song can hardly be realized by those not actively engaged in the work. Take the case of the current waltz success, "Three o'Clock in the Morning." The publishers, Leo Feist, Inc., started work on this number in September, 1921, just a year ago, and worked for six months before any real results were noted. The waltz is only now at the height of its popularity, which indicates that persistence wins.

The early Fall weeks have shown a decided revival in sales of sheet music. This, naturally, is of interest to talking machine dealers, for sales of sheet music are reflected in the demand for talking machine records and player rolls.

"SCANDALS" HAS PREMIERE

George White's New Production Contains Several Song Hits

The annual George White "Scandals" opened in New York the last week in August and apparently it is to have its usual popularity. The music in the present production is of particular importance and it can be said that there is at least one song of hit caliber; that is, "I Found a Four-Leaf Clover." The book of the new "Scandals" is by Andy Rice and George White and the production is staged by Mr. White. The lyrics, however, are by the well-known B. G. DeSylva, and the music is from the pen of the equally well-known George Gershwin and includes such titles as "Argentine," "Cinderelatives," "She Hangs Out in Our Alley," "Where Is the Man of My Dreams?" and "I'll Build a Stairway to Paradise." Harms, Inc., is the publisher of the above numbers.

"CRY" NUMBER A HIT

Song by Cohn and Miller, Published by Feist, Proving Very Popular

CHICAGO, ILL., Sept. 5.—The new Leo Feist number, "Why Should I Cry Over You," written by Chester Cohn and Ned Miller, is declared to be one of the biggest hits in this part of the country. The words were written by Chester Cohn, while Ned Miller composed the lyric. Messrs. Cohn and Miller have originated several other popular hits, but their latest number has proved to be the biggest sensation. Hundreds of acts are taking on this hit and the large talking machine companies are recording this number. Mr. Cohn has been assistant professional manager of Leo Feist's Chicago office for a number of years, but it is only recently that this gentleman has been counted in the ranks of the popular songwriters.

"Why Should I Cry Over You," "Stumbling" and "Three o'Clock in the Morning" now lead the Leo Feist catalog as the three popular hits.

PUBLISHER HELPS RECORD SALES

Some Excellent Advertising Material Issued in Connection With the "Dancing Fool"

One of the Summer successes in both record and sheet music form is the Waterson, Berlin Window Display of Landay Bros.

& Snyder issue, "Dancing Fool." The number, both in song and instrumental form, rose to popularity in a very short space of time and it has for some time been one of the main features of many dance programs. The publishers issued some excellent advertising material which adapted itself particularly for window displays. This was in the form of almost life-size cut-outs of a dancing girl arranged on a dark cardboard background, giving the figure a spirit of animation. Herewith is shown a reproduction of the window display of the Fifth avenue, New York, store of Landay Bros., who operate a series of remarkably attractive retail shops in the metropolitan district.

BELWIN PUBLISHING "ZENDA"

New Fox-trot Featured in Conjunction With Photoplay of That Name

Belwin, Inc., is the publisher of the song and fox-trot "Zenda," which is being exploited in conjunction with Rex Ingram's production of the "Prisoner of Zenda," now being shown at the Astor Theatre, New York.

This photoplay, from all indications, ranks with the super films and bids fair to play an extended run at the Astor Theatre. Of importance to the musical world is the fact that the accompanying music has been arranged with great care. A novel ten-minute prologue, conceived by Ernst Luz, musical director of Loew, Inc., is one of the musical treats of the program. Miss Eva Clark, late of the Ziegfeld "Midnight Frolic," has the role of Princess Flavia in the prologue and sings the Belwin, Inc., number "Zenda." Miss Clark is noted for her perfect diction and a clear, bell-like tone.

During the showing of the picture "Zenda" is played nearly a dozen times in various tempos and at the finish of the last scene many in the audience are whistling the tune.

"Zenda" is by that successful young composer, Louis Breau, who is responsible for "Humming" and a series of waltzes. It is understood that "Zenda" will shortly be released by all the mechanical reproduction companies.

The number is assured of nation-wide popularity through the fact that the exhibition of the "Prisoner of Zenda," together with the special musical prologue, is to be shown at such theatres as Loew's State, Los Angeles Cal.; Loew's Warfield, San Francisco; Eastman Theatre, Rochester, and Massey Hall, Toronto.

New Musical Comedy Has Premiere—Harms, Inc., Publishing the Score

"Orange Blossoms," a new musical comedy presented by Edward Royce, with a book by Fred De Gresac and music by Victor Herbert, together with lyrics by B. G. de Sylva, opened recently in Philadelphia, Pa., and will shortly have its New York premiere. The prominent songs are "Way Out West in Jersey," "Legend of the Glowworm," "Then Comes the Dawning," "This Time It's Love," "A Kiss in the Dark" and "The Lonely Nest." Harms, Inc., publish the above numbers.

HARMS PUBLISHING THE SCORE

Music of "The Gingham Girl" Proving Very Popular

Schwab & Kussell are the producers of the new musical comedy entitled "The Gingham Girl," which recently opened up in New York City, the lyrics of which are by Neville Flesson and the music by Albert Von Tilzer, both of whom have been contributors to musical successes in the past. Harms, Inc., is the publisher.

NEW COHAN SHOW A BIG HIT

"Little Nelly Kelly" on the Way to a Long Run —Witmark Publishing the Score

George M. Cohan's new show, "Little Nelly Kelly," opened at the Tremont Theatre, Boston, Mass., and from indications the show will have a run well into the Fall season in that city. The offices of George M. Cohan look forward to this new offering being a worthy successor to his late productions, "Mary" and "The O'Brien Girl."

Mr. Cohan has a novelty in his book, a satire on the present-day mystery plays woven in musical comedy form. He is responsible for the book, lyrics and music, including a dozen individual numbers. Of particular importance are: "You Remind Me of My Mother," "Nelly Kelly, I Love You," "When You Do the Hinky Dee," "The Voice in My Heart," "Til My Luck Comes Rolling Along" and "The Name of Kelly." M. Witmark & Sons publishes the score.

NEW "GREENWICH FOLLIES"

Victoria Pub. Co. Issuing Numbers Heard in New Revue

The "Greenwich Village Follies," which is scheduled for an early New York premiere, opened recently in New Haven, Conn. The production is by John Murray Anderson, with a book by George V. Hobart and lyrics by Irving Caesar and John Murray Anderson, with music by Louis A. Hirsch. The song of particular importance, which should be heard frequently during the Fall months, is "Sweetheart Lane." Other numbers in the show are "Sixty Seconds Ev'ry Minute, I Think of You," "Jenny Lind" and "You Are My Rain-Beau." The above numbers are published by the Victoria Pub. Co.

SECURES "YANKEE DOODLE BLUES"

Irving Berlin, Inc., Takes Over Publication Rights of Song and Instrumental Selection From Harms, Inc.—The First Berlin Purchase

It was announced late last week by Irving Berlin, Inc., that that company had closed negotiations with Harms, Inc., whereby the Berlin organization will take over the publication of the current success "Yankee Doodle Blues." This song and instrumental selection from the pens of Bud de Sylva, Irving Caesar and George Gershwin has, in a very short space of time, leaped into unusual popularity. It caused so much comment throughout trade and professional circles as to induce the Berlin company to make overtures for the publication rights.

"Yankee Doodle Blues" is considered more than a mere popular song. It has many other merits that commend it, some even going so far as to say it is a typical national song, bordering on the anthem type.

The announcement from the Berlin offices created more than a little comment. The fact that this publishing company has on its staff such well-known writers as Irving Berlin, Joe Young, Sam Lewis and George Meyers makes it unnecessary for it to acquire outside publications. Aside from this, however, the fact that the purchase was made from such a well-known and successful publishing house as Harms, Inc., gives the move added news value.

The sales department of Irving Berlin, Inc., states that this is the first time in the company's history that it has purchased a song from another publisher and justifies the move by saying "Yankee Doodle Blues" is one of the greatest songs ever issued.

The various branch offices of the Berlin organization, the band and orchestra department and the professional department have arranged an intensive publicity drive on the number.

PUBLISHING UKULELE SCORES

Fred Fisher, Inc., New York, First Publisher to Adopt Suggestion Made by Jerome Harris

The plan recently outlined in The World for publishing ukulele arrangements of popular numbers on sheet-music was put into operation recently. Fred Fisher, Inc., New York, was probably the first publishing house to publish the ukulele score and chose "Ji Ji Bo" as the first selection. This plan was originated by Jerome Harris, secretary of C. Bruno & Son, Inc., Victor wholesalers, and also wholesalers and importers of musical merchandise, New York City, and received the hearty commendation of many of the publishers.

MAMMOTH SONORA CAMPAIGN

Sonora dealers throughout the country received this week a copy of a four-page broadside issued by the advertising department of the Sonora Phonograph Co., giving them full details regarding the mammoth Sonora publicity campaign started this month. In this broadside there were reproduced copies of four of the advertisements that will be used by the Sonora Phonograph Co. every week during September, October, November and December in sixty-six of the leading trade centers. The combined circulation of these newspapers is over 12,000,000 and L. C. Lincoln, advertising manager of the company, states that this is only a portion of the Sonora publicity campaign for the Fall of 1922.

Among the cities represented in this newspaper campaign are the following: New York (five papers), Chicago (three papers), Philadelphia (two papers), Cleveland (two papers), Boston (two papers), Pittsburgh (two papers), Detroit, St. Louis, Baltimore, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Buffalo, Milwaukee, Washington, Cincinnati, New Orleans (two papers), Minneapolis, Kansas City, Seattle, Indianapolis, Rochester, Portland, Ore.; Denver, Toledo, Providence, Columbus, Louisville, New Haven, Reading, St. Paul, Akron, Atlanta, Omaha, Des Moines (two papers), Worcester, Birmingham, Syracuse, Memphis, Richmond, San Antonio, Dallas, Dayton, Bridgeport, Houston, Hartford, Scranton, Grand Rapids, Youngstown, Springfield, Mass.; Fort Worth, Trenton, Nashville, Salt Lake City, Norfolk, Albany and Wilmington, Del.

This broadside also calls attention to Sonora's widespread outdoor advertising, together with the new series of posters that were recently issued. On the fourth page of the broadside there are reproduced a number of the other Sonora sales helps, including descriptive window signs, period screen lithographs, price cards, moving picture slides, display cards, walking doll, etc. All impressive evidences of constructive work for the dealers' benefit.

In a chat with The World Mr. Lincoln stated that this broadside emphasizes the Sonora Co.'s confidence in the business outlook for the 1922 Fall and holiday season, and also indicates the exceptional co-operation that is planned for Sonora dealers this Fall. The Sonora advertising department is leaving nothing undone to assist the dealers in making 1922 a banner year and this four-page broadside substantiates the company's faith in the future of the industry as a whole.

COLUMBIA DEALER ELECTED MAYOR

L. I. Lefaux, exclusive Columbia dealer, at Port Allen, La., was recently elected Mayor of the town. Mr. Lefaux is one of the most enthusiastic "sell-by-truck" Columbia dealers in the South and he has used this method of merchandising extensively in his sales work. Incidentally, it is stated that, since his election, the town of Port Allen has taken on new life and every department in the city administration is showing a general improvement. This shows the influence of music.

NEW PHOTOGRAPHIC RECORDING PLAN

Inventors Demonstrate in New York New Simplified Method for Recording and Reproducing Sound Through Means of Light on Film

One of the many new mediums being invented and developed for the purpose of recording and reproducing sound, particularly that of the human voice and of music, is what is known as "Fototone," invented for the recording of sound waves by photographic means on a film similar to that used for motion pictures. The device is the invention of Prof. E. I. Wenger, in association with Louis Brinkman, and has been demonstrated in New York recently.

The recording box is very similar to a motion picture camera, with the usual film storage and take-up magazines. By talking into a sensitive telephone transmitter the volume of light, reaching the film from a tiny lamp through a specially constructed slit, is regulated perfectly.

When reproducing, the film is run under a special electric lamp and the various photographic shadings upon the film regulate in turn the volume of light that reaches a sensitized and specially treated coil wound on soapstone. The coil is hooked up with a telephone receiver and regulates the volume and quality of sound.

Through the use of various forms of amplifiers it is possible to hear clearly and at some distance the sounds as reproduced from the film. The process is still in an experimental stage, but the Fototone laboratories are being established in Rochester, N. Y., to manufacture the device on a commercial basis.

The inventors claim that, through the use of their method when perfected, it will be possible to record complete operas and symphonies on one film record, reproducing the music through machines designed for home use.

W. L. Branson, of Sebree, Ky., is opening an up-to-date music store at Providence, Ky.

BELIEVES IN WINDOW DISPLAYS

Phillips & Crew Co. Keep Tab of Public Interest in Their Specially Prepared Windows

ATLANTA, GA., September 6.—The Phillips & Crew Piano Co., the oldest music house in Georgia, and exclusive representative in this city of the Steinway and the Duo-Art pianos, and also one of the oldest Victor representatives, is a great believer in window display as a means of interesting the public in its products. We are illustrating herewith a window prepared by this company in which "Lonesome Mama Blues" was featured.

The Phillips & Crew Co. kept careful check of the number of passers-by who were attracted to the various window displays, and it is said that this window held the attention of more than one in three of those passing during the hours when the count was made. This window display was so successful that another special window, again using carefully prepared figures, was designed to feature the special releases, "Hot Lips" and "The Dancing Fool."

EXCELLENT EDISON PUBLICITY

Thomas A. Edison, Inc., Makes Reprints of Story of Edison Phonograph Achievements in New York World for Dealers' Use

ORANGE, N. J., September 10.—A very imposing story, occupying nearly half of a front page and devoted to a story of Thomas A. Edison and his prophecy of the phonograph, appeared in the New York World in one of its morning editions this Summer. The story included a large illustration and a complete description of the evolution of the phonograph in the light of Edison's personal experience and inventive work.

The advertising department of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., was quick to capitalize this unusual publicity in an effective manner. Full-size reprints were made of the front page of the New York World containing the Edison story and were supplied to Edison dealers throughout the country for display in their windows. A large number of Edison dealers inserted these reprints in their windows, with good results.

OGDEN CABINET CO. EXPANSION

Growing Popularity of Products Results in Expansion—Arrangements Completed to Make Everything in Store Equipment

LYNCHBURG, VA., September 6.—The Ogden Sectional Cabinet Co., of this city, has widened its line of manufacture to include everything in the equipment of talking machine warerooms. For many years the Ogden Co. has produced record cabinets, sectional and otherwise, for both store and home. More recently this company produced the "You-Nit" service table for the demonstration room and also to accommodate various table model machines. There have lately been added demonstration rooms and counters. In the demonstration rooms the Ogden Sectional Cabinet Co. uses the sectional feature, providing standardized sections simply and accurately made in three-foot widths. It is claimed that one of these rooms may be erected within an hour by a person without any experience. It is further claimed by the company that they are so constructed that they cannot be put up wrong and are subject to any arrangement and rearrangement which may be desired at a later date. Clamps are already set and only need to be tightened. The same system applies to the sectional record rack, and each complete roll or section is finished with a detachable panel end.

The record counter is six feet in width and is supplied with gliders or casters, as preferred, without variation in price. It is supplied with sectional compartment drawers for card files or accessories; also three upright compartments and two shelves.

J. B. Ogden, president of the company, has announced price reductions on the regular line of the company, effective September 15.

PORTLAND, ORE.

Value of Advertising and Display of Merchandise Demonstrated in Concrete Manner—W. Hodecker in New Post—Review of Trade

PORTLAND, ORE., September 6.—That it pays to advertise and put your goods on display whenever the opportunity affords has been demonstrated to a marked degree by the phonograph department of the Reed, French Piano Co. This department had a most attractive booth at the Multnomah County Fair, held at Gresham, Ore., in August, and many good results were obtained by the demonstrations given of its Edison and Victor machines, according to M. C. Collins and Allen E. McLean, who were in charge of the exhibit.

The big Edison Chippendale proved the big seller for the week and one sale that especially pleased the firm was made to Mrs. Y. Smith, wife of the Superintendent of Agriculture at the Multnomah County fair and who was in charge of the art booth, right next to the phonographs.

E. B. Hyatt, president of the Oregon Music Trades Association, announces that activities will soon be resumed in full force, as the Association members, after a rest during the Summer months, are now ready for good Fall sessions of the Association. A "get-together" meeting has been called for September 8, when the campaign for the coming season will be the big question of the day. Some interesting announcements will soon be made by the various committees and a busy season is anticipated.

W. H. Beach, treasurer and general manager of the Bush & Lane Piano Co., was a Portland visitor from Holland, Mich., and spent a week looking over the situation with J. C. Gallagher, local manager. Charles T. Corbin, general manager of the Pacific Northwest, with headquarters in Seattle, was also here during the week. Mr. Gallagher reports business for August excellent in Bush & Lane machines and Victrolas.

Wm. Hodecker, for many years manager of the Victrola department of the Seiberling-Lucas Music Co., resigned his position to accept the management of the Meier & Frank phonograph department, where extensive improvements are under way. Mr. Hodecker succeeds Harry Andrews, who resigned on September 1. No successor has been appointed in Mr. Hodecker's place.

W. Graham, of San Francisco, representative of the Sonora Phonograph Co., was a visitor at the Sonora department of Lipman, Wolfe & Co. and paid his respects to Roy Feldenheimer, owner and manager of the department.

Jack Carney has been appointed district manager for the Columbia Graphophone Co., to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Wm. Smith. Wm. Lawton, manager for the Pacific Northwest, with headquarters in Seattle, was a recent Portland visitor and acquainted Mr. Carney with his duties and introduced him to the various dealers.

L. D. Heater has returned to Portland after spending a month in California, visiting San Francisco, Los Angeles, Sacramento, Santa Monica and various cities in the interest of his lines. Mr. Heater, who is a jobber in phonograph accessories and agent for the Portophone, reports excellent business all through California. Mr. Heater put his brother, A. A. Heater, in charge of his San Francisco business.

J. D. Fleming, formerly with the phonograph department of the Bush & Lane Piano Co., has been made assistant manager of the Remick Song & Gift Shop and will have charge of the Columbia Grafonola department. Paula Kuhl, who was with Remick's, has affiliated with the Bush & Lane Co. in the piano department.

Miss Lois Wesson has been appointed cashier of the Sherman, Clay & Co. store, in place of Margie Tucker, who severed her connection with the company to become Mrs. Elrod Malory. In appreciation of her faithful service the firm presented Miss Tucker with a handsome silver electric percolator, silver tray, sugar and creamer, and her friends in the Victrola department presented her with a set of beautifully etched drinking and sherbet glasses.

Mrs. "Billy" Watts has returned from her operation for appendicitis and is being welcomed back by her many friends to her post in the record department of the Wiley B. Allen Co.

August was an exceptionally good record month and the Red Seal list contained many things that were welcomed by the real musicians. Most popular among the dance records, according to Leita Hayes, of the G. F. Johnson Piano Co.; Erma Ewart, of Wiley B. Allen's, and Emma Reynolds, of the Hyatt Talking Machine Co., were, first, "The Sneak," which all say is the most popular number since "Whispering"; "Three o'Clock in the Morning," "Stumbling," "Nobody Lied," "Indiana Home."

TOM GRIFFITH PLAYS GOOD GOLF

Sales Manager of Udell Works Comes Close to Winning Amateur Golf Championship

Tom Griffith, sales manager of the Udell Works, Indianapolis, Ind., was an important contender at the Indiana State Golf Amateur Championship Tournament held at French Lick Springs last month. Mr. Griffith was runner-up to the high man and has since challenged him to a special match, which will be played off somewhere in the East. This tournament naturally brings out each year the cream of golf talent in the State of Indiana, and Mr. Griffith's performance was therefore of an exceptional character.

IN PITTSBURGH

End of Long Mine War Brightens Outlook—Optimism Permeates Trade—Unusual Sales in August—Radio Booms Record Sales

PITTSBURGH, Pa., September 11.—Keen satisfaction is expressed by the talking machine trade here over the ending of the bituminous coal miners' strike, which lasted over five months. As a result of the signing of the wage scale agreement more than 50,000 miners have returned to the mines, and the general outlook for improved industrial conditions is excellent.

Talking machine dealers here, as a rule, are quite optimistic concerning the coming Fall season and are confident that there will be some extra good business handled. One of the outstanding features of the trade here the past month have been the unusual sales for August. As a rule the talking machine trade is "off" during the Summer months, especially August, and little or no effort is made to attract business until after Labor Day.

At the offices of the Columbia Graphophone Co. Assistant Manager J. J. McGeehan stated that August sales showed a marked improvement over the same month a year ago. Mr. McGeehan stated that all indications pointed to a satisfactory Fall season. He declared that the demand for Columbia records was brisk.

At the Buchn Phonograph Co. Assistant General Manager H. M. Swartz vouchsafed the information that "our Edison business is good and we have no complaint to make as far as business is concerned." Mr. Swartz is of the opinion that there will be a busy season ahead for the Edison dealers in the Pittsburgh zone.

At the Standard Talking Machine Co., Victor distributor, Wallace Russell stated that the demand for popular Victrola models was good and he was of the opinion that there would be a shortage of these models if the demand is maintained for any time at the present-day rate. Mr. Russell was rather optimistic relative to trade conditions for the talking machine trade as a whole.

Broadcasting the New Records

One of the features of the KDKA radio broadcasting station of the Westinghouse Co., at East Pittsburgh, was the broadcasting of the September Victor records. The records broadcasted were: "My Rambling Rose," Whiteman's Orchestra; "Dancing Fool," Club Royal Orchestra; "Hot Lips," Whiteman's Orchestra; "Send Back My Honey Man," The Virginians; "Oogie Oogie Wa Wa," Benson Orchestra; "Deedle Deedle Dum," Benson Orchestra. These records were loaned through the courtesy of the S. Hamilton Co.'s Wilksburg store and were reproduced on a Brunswick phonograph loaned by Gray & Martin, of Pittsburgh. The latter firm also has arranged for a Brunswick record concert to be given with the release of new Brunswick records. Edison records and an Edison phonograph were furnished through the courtesy of J. E. Bumbera, Edison dealer, of Swissvale, Pa.

An interesting fact is the large number of sales of records that are made just after some new records have been "sent out over the wireless." Frequently the dealers who loan the records are given mail orders that come from localities as far as 200 to 300 miles distant. These letters are from live-wire "radio lovers," who express in their letters keen appreciation of the records played and ask that they be sent them.

Favor National Record Week

The suggestion made in the editorial in The Talking Machine World for August relative to a National Record Week has met with a cordial reception among the trade in Pittsburgh. The World representative, when querying some of the downtown dealers concerning the proposition, was told that the plan was "a good one." John Henk, the well-known manager of the Columbia Music Co., Columbia and Edison dealer, in referring to the National Record Week, said: "It is a very excellent idea and one that the talking machine dealers should boost to the limit. A National Record Week will be a stimulus to the trade as a whole that will bring about very pleasing results to the dealers. It is a plan that should be started soon—that is, plans made for the week—so that ample time can be given to dealers to prepare for such advertising and other publicity methods they may wish to utilize to bring about the principal goal—selling more records. I believe the week can be put over with but little expense or trouble and I am more than convinced that it will prove a paying proposition to those who engage in it in a whole-hearted and public-spirited manner."

Plan Big Fall and Winter Campaign

Thomas T. Evans, the well-known manager of the wholesale Victor department of the C. C. Mellor Co., is preparing for what he terms is a "big Fall and Winter business ahead." Mr. Evans is reviewing the field that the firm covers and, after meeting with some of the principal Victor dealers that he serves, is of the opinion that a very satisfactory season for the Victor line is approaching.

Some Columbia News

J. G. Heckman's Music Shop, Meadville, Pa., Columbia dealer, recently completed a new Columbia record sales plan, in which prizes were offered to youthful contestants for the sale of Columbia records, and reports sales to date at 800. Excellent publicity was also received as the result of this plan and the dealer is enthusiastic regarding the results of the campaign.

Chauncey Parsons, manager of the music department of the Rosenbaum Store, Columbia dealer, returned recently from his vacation, a Enthusiasm among Columbia dealers in Youngstown, O., is running high, due to the announcement of the appearance of Al Jolson in "Bombo" in that city on September 15 and 16. Among the dealers who are planning to use effective tie-ups during Mr. Jolson's appearance are: the L. H. Cahn Co., L. M. Ress Co., Oster Bros. and the Ress Music Store.

The Rothert Co., Johnstown, Pa., one of Pennsylvania's leading musical houses, is featuring a line of Columbia period design Grafonolas in the Johnstown Furniture Store. Mr. Rothert has attained considerable success with the Columbia line, and the period model display cannot fail to add to his prestige as a leading Columbia dealer.

T. E. Shortell, manager of the Victor department of the S. Hamilton Co., reports an increase in business for August and is of the opinion that, with industrial conditions improved here, there is bound to be a reflection in better sales of the Victor line.

News of the Vacationists

A. A. Buehn, treasurer of the Buehn Phonograph Co., spent several days at the Edison factory the past week.

Wm. C. Hamilton, president of S. Hamilton Co., Victor dealer, has left for a vacation trip to the East.

S. H. Nichols, the well-known manager of the Pittsburgh offices of the Columbia Graphophone Co., is spending his vacation at Battle Creek, Mich.

J. C. Roush, president of the Standard Talking Machine Co., was a business visitor to the East and also paid a visit to the Victor Talking Machine Co. plant at Camden, N. J., the past week.

Wallace Russell, of the Standard Talking Machine Co., spent his Summer week ends with his family at Lake Chautauqua.

EUGENE A. WIDMANN IN EUROPE

Eugene A. Widmann, of the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., is now in Paris, where he will spend several weeks at the headquarters of Pathé Frères, which is termed the parent house of the American concern. Mr. Widmann sailed during the latter part of August on the "Aquitania" and while in Europe will make a thorough study of conditions in that country and will make arrangements for new Pathé offerings in this country. He will also give much attention to radio interests which the Brooklyn organization is developing.

The Wonder Talking Machine Co., a New York corporation, which was succeeded by the Wonder Phonograph Corp., a Delaware corporation, early this year, has been dissolved. The Wonder Phonograph Corp. is continuing the manufacture of talking machines at its South Norwalk, Conn., plant, and in addition is manufacturing radio parts.

KIDDIE REKORD CO. ORGANIZED

New Company, With Capital of $30,000, to Make Records Especially for Children

BRIDGEPORT, CONN., September 6.—Announcement was recently made of the incorporation of the Kiddie Rekord Co., of New York and this city, with a capitalization of $30,000. It is stated that the new company will take over the business already commenced in the manufacture and sale of Kiddie Rekords, which are seven-inch, single-faced discs, with attractive pictures on the reverse side, and contain children's songs and verses. Much attention has been given to the selection of the matter and the recording artists. The discs themselves are well recorded and are said to have excellent wearing properties. The officers of the company are: Victor H. Emerson, president; J. F. Lounsbury, secretary, and James W. Ogden, treasurer. Both Mr. Emerson and Mr. Ogden are well known in the talking machine record industry. Mr.

Ogden is also president of the Bridgeport Die & Machine Co., manufacturer of the product, with headquarters at Bridgeport. The following distributors of Kiddie Rekords have been announced: Musical Products Distributing Co., New York, and the Fox Philadelphia Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Clarence L. Price, vice-president and general manager of Ormes, Inc., Victor wholesaler, returned to his desk last Friday, after a well-deserved ten days' rest. Mr. Price, accompanied by his family, motored to Mt. Holly, N. J., where relatives reside, and, realizing that the 1922 Fall season would be exceptionally active, he decided to take a "real" vacation. For a period of ten days Mr. Price forgot all about Victrolas, Victor records and possible shortages, devoting all of his time to the thorough enjoyment of his vacation. His appearance indicates that he was benefited by his rest.

O. F. Benz Visits Chicago and Toronto—L. L. Leverich Takes Brief Vacation—R. F. Bolton Again at Helm—Other Timely News

Lester L. Leverich, advertising manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., accompanied by Mrs. Leverich, spent the Labor Day week-end at Atlantic City. Mr. Leverich did not indulge in a Summer vacation this year, so that his Labor Day vacation was in the nature of a well-deserved rest.

O. F. Benz, record sales manager, visited the Columbia Co.'s Chicago branch recently and while there represented the recording department in connection with several new numbers made by Frank Westphal and His Rainbo Orchestra. Immediately upon his return to New York Mr. Benz visited the Canadian branch at Toronto, accompanied by Robert F. Porter, field sales manager of the company.

Among the recent visitors at the Columbia executive offices were: W. L. Sprague, man-

NEW MODEL DETECTOR AND TUNER

Atlantic Instrument Co., Whose Receiving Sets Are So Popular, Announces Further Contributions That Appeal to the Radio Amateur

The Atlantic Instrument Co., New York, N. Y., manufacturer of the Atlantic Junior Radio Receiving Set, reports that the demand for this set has been far beyond expectations and that dealers throughout the country are now sending in repeat orders. These "repeats" are very gratifying, as officials of the company feel that the test of the genuine performance of the product is reflected by these orders, which, they state, has given satisfaction to hundreds of users.

The company this month is announcing to the trade a new model detector and tuner set, designed by its engineers, which contains several new and interesting features in radio units which, it is expected, will make a strong appeal to the amateur. Simplicity in design and operation is the keynote of this set. It is designed in such a way that, although simple and compact, it will not lose any of its efficiency, but will receive radio messages in a highly satisfactory manner. All necessary adjustments to this instrument are confined to two dials, one control being used for tuning and the other for the audion filament. All connections except that for the telephone are made through the rear of the instrument, eliminating annoying, unsightly connections in front of the cabinet. Another feature of this small instrument is a mounted colored jewel sunk into the panel directly in front of the audion which serves as a signal light and allows the operator to immediately assure himself that the audion lamps are lighted.

Officials of the company have been hard at work all Summer planning the Fall and Winter campaign, which consists of advertising and the distribution of attractive literature. It has already shown results, and it is expected that Fall and Winter business will be larger than last year.

The Dallas (Tex.) Music Industries Association held its first meeting of the Fall season at the Oriental Hotel, Dallas, on September 4.

TALKING MACHINE MEN MEET

Many Interesting Features Mark the First Fall Meeting of the Local Organization

The first Fall meeting of The Talking Machine Men, Inc., the organization of talking machine dealers of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, was held at the Café Boulevard on Wednesday, September 13, in connection with the usual luncheon, and proved a decided success. Dealers, for the most part, were in an optimistic frame of mind and full of the energy that makes for business.

There were a number of interesting features scheduled for the meeting, including a talk by Otto Heineman, head of the General Phonograph Co., on the future of the phonograph industry and another talk by Edward Strauss, of the Brunswick Co., along the same lines.

Goodman & Rose, Inc., had several representatives present who demonstrated the latest songs put on the market by this company, and the Fairway Co. staged a demonstration of the new Victor Exercise Records.

A special committee reported on the radio situation and it was evident that the interest in this new development on the part of the dealers was very keen.

The entertainment committee reported that plans were being completed rapidly for the dance to be held on October 30 under the auspices of the Association.

ANNOUNCE THE TRIANGLE RECORD

BRIDGEPORT, CONN., September 6.—The Bridgeport Die & Machine Co., of this city, widely experienced and favorably known in the 50-cent record field, has announced the production of a new 50-cent record, to be known as the "Triangle" record. The Bridgeport Die & Machine Co. has always paid much attention to quality production and the early release of the popular record hits.

FILLING AN ARTISTIC WANT

and wareroom managers report that there is a decided demand on the part of the buying public for specially finished talking machines and the Mohawk Works of Art has been very busy on this class of work.

Making promises is a harmful practice unless the intention is to live up to them. Many a customer has been lost because a dealer or salesman promised to secure an article or make a delivery on a certain date and did not do so.

NEW BRUNSWICK MODEL—THE YORK

Attractive New Instrument Designed for Use Where the Space Is Limited

The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., Chicago, has just introduced to the trade and public the latest style of Brunswick phonograph, an attractive flat-top console known as The York.

The new model is thirty-five inches wide, twenty-one and a half inches deep and thirty-three and a half inches high, and is obtainable in mahogany, Adam brown mahogany or American walnut. The list price is $150. This latest style is equipped with all the standard Brunswick features, including the Ultona reproducer, the new all-wood oval tone amplifier, the tone modifier and other special equipment.

In announcing the new model the company states that it is specially designed to meet the popular demand for an instrument of that type which occupies but a limited floor space. The first of the new styles has already been placed in the hands of dealers.

FAMILIARITY BREEDS CONTEMPT

Courtesy is one of the basic principles of successful selling. Reserve is another. Many salesmen make the mistake of too much familiarity with customers. People enter a store to make a purchase, not to listen to levity and "breezy" remarks. These things breed contempt.

ADDING TO STORE ATTRACTIVENESS

Zimmerman-Bitter Construction Co. Has Several Important Contracts Under Way Which Indicate Business Activity

The Zimmerman-Bitter Construction Co., New York, N. Y., manufacturer of all types of talking machine store equipment, reports that business in its line has been on the increase since the company started a few months ago. Several stores have been completely equipped with its product and many others are now in the process of construction. The company has just finished two very attractive jobs, one in Newark, N. J., at Broad and Market streets, and the Grenler Bros. store, at Ninety-sixth street and Broadway, New York, N. Y. Plans have been completed and some of the construction has already been started for the complete installation in the new store recently opened by Bucci Bros., at 163rd street and Third avenue, of seven private sound-proof hearing rooms, record racks and counters and a modern show window. When completed it will represent one of the finest and most attractive equipments manufactured by this company. Officials of the company stated that one of the largest contracts yet secured by them has just recently been signed, which will be announced at a later date. This contract is for one of the leading retail establishments in New York City and was secured after a thorough investigation and inspection of the creditable work already done by the company.

The Zimmerman-Bitter Construction Co. has also just secured a contract for the complete installation of store equipment for Szivos Bros., who recently purchased the entire block at Third street and First avenue, New York, which will be renovated throughout, the first floor of 120 East Third street being devoted to their talking machine business. This company will not only install show windows along the entire front of the building and record booths, racks and counters in the talking machine store, but it will install interior equipment throughout the entire building. This is one of the largest contracts yet secured by this company, the officials of which are much gratified because it was closed after a thorough inspection by Szivos Bros. of the work done by this company in other sections of the city.

THOS. F. GREEN BACK AT DESK

Popular Victor Executive Recovers From Recent Illness—Pearsall Sales for Month Very Satisfactory—Outlook Most Encouraging

The many friends in the trade of Thos. F. Green, president of the Silas E. Pearsall Co., New York, Victor wholesaler, will be sorry to learn that this popular Victor man was confined to his home for over two weeks recently through illness. Mr. and Mrs. Green had planned to spend some time at the home of W. T. Haddon, president of the Ohio Talking Machine Co., Haddonfield, N. J., but shortly after reaching Haddonfield Mr. Green became ill and was obliged to return to his home at Great Neck. He returned to his desk a few days ago, although not entirely recovered.

Lloyd L. Spencer, sales manager of the Silas E. Pearsall Co., in a recent chat with The World, commented upon the fact that August sales had been very satisfactory; in fact, well beyond expectations. September business for the first two weeks was splendid and Mr. Spencer believes that Victor dealers as a whole will experience one of the most active Fall seasons of recent years.

LaRoe Bros., Victor dealers at Woonsocket, R. I., were recent visitors at the Pearsall offices, stopping in New York for a day or two, en route to their home, after spending several weeks at Atlantic City.

LAURENCE WALSH A BENEDICT

Laurence Walsh, of the sales staff of the New York Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler, was married a few weeks ago to Mrs. Grace Weir, a daughter of Mrs. Leila L. Weir, of Hartford, Conn., and well known in musical and theatrical circles. Mr. Walsh, who is covering New England territory for the New York Talking Machine Co., has attained pleasing success and has won the esteem of Victor dealers throughout his territory.

The arrogance, pride and splendor of a barbaric Eastern court, its voluptuous raw colors, mysticism and magnetic sense appeal is the picture that frames itself for you as you listen to "Prince Igor" by the Metropolitan Opera House Orchestra. The Columbia recording of this selection is a masterpiece of phonetics. The Zampa Overture on the reverse is an equally brilliant recording of one of this orchestra's greatest presentations. A-6218.

EXHIBIT NEW ORANOLA MODELS

Three New and Interesting Types of Oranola Receiving Instruments Shown and Demonstrated at Recent Merchandise Fair

One of the exhibits that attracted unusual attention at the National Merchandise Fair, held in the Grand Central Palace, New York City, during the early part of August was that of the Oranola Radio Corp., whose executive offices are at 228 Seventh avenue, New York City. This company displayed three new models of the Oranola radio receiving instruments, which have just been perfected and are now being introduced to the trade.

Radio sets of the upright cabinet and console style seem to be finding particular favor with the public and of the three models manufactured by the Oranola Co. two are uprights and one is of the console table type. This instrument is the invention of men who have been long connected with the talking machine industry and who have had wide experience in sound-reproducing machines.

They are Edward B. Jordan, Jr., president, and Edward B. Jordan, treasurer. The latter is well and favorably known to the people of Philadelphia, where he founded the Lulu Temple. At the demonstration Edward B. Jordan, Jr., said: "The Oranola sets include radio and audio frequency transformation of the energy received from the transmitting station, so proportioned that the volume of sound is obtained without any annoying distortions which so frequently occur.

"Despite the fact that in the warm months there is plenty of static in the air, the pure tones of song and speech are heard and all the enunciation of words is clear and natural when received through our machines.

"The current supplied to the vacuum tubes is controlled by a single push-button switch and the tuning is accomplished by a single adjustment. The signal strength is regulated by a potentiometer gradually to a maximum with detector and filament current controlled by rheostats. The wave length adjustment is from 200 to 500 meters. In the console type and in one of the uprights the instrument is equipped to operate without outdoor or indoor aerial. The antenna is placed within the cabinet in such a manner that directional effects in receiving are avoided as far as possible. However, there are binding posts and connections provided for outdoor aerial and the latter can be used where the receiving set is made to function over a long range. In design, workmanship and from any engineering standpoint the product is of the best."

ROYAL T. M. CORP. BANKRUPT

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed by creditors against the Royal Talking Machine Corp., of 3945 North Western avenue. The concern is the manufacturer of the De Luxe and the Superb talking machines.

SONORA EXECUTIVES VERY ACTIVE

S. O. Martin and Jos. Wolff Visit Saginaw Factory—Frank J. Coupe Calls on Sonora Jobbers—H. C. Valeur Visits the Trade in Canada

S. O. Martin, vice-president and general manager of the Sonora Phonograph Co., New York, spent a few days last week visiting the Sonora factories at Saginaw. At the present time the Sonora factories are working to capacity in order to keep pace with the requirements of the jobbers and dealers.

Frank J. Coupe, vice-president and general sales manager of the company, made a trip recently to several of the leading trade centers en route to Chicago, spending a few days at Buffalo and Cleveland and visiting Sonora jobbers and dealers in those cities.

Joseph Wolff, vice-president and manager of production, returned recently from a visit to the factories at Saginaw and was delighted to find that, during his brief absence from New York, the business situation had shown a decided improvement all along the line.

H. C. Valeur, secretary and treasurer of the Sonora Phonograph Co., spent a few days at Toronto last week, conferring with the Sonora jobbers in that city and visiting some of the dealers.

CAROLA CO. MAKING PROGRESS

Cleveland Manufacturer Making Plans for Active Fall—New Equipment Added to Factory Facilities to Meet Growing Demand

CLEVELAND, OHIO, September 7.—The Carola Co., of this city, is now swinging into full production upon its talking machines, and recent installations of equipment are making it possible to take care of all comers this year. Such was the statement of N. I. Schwartz, general manager of the company, when interviewed today. "We expect to do an excellent business this Fall," continued Mr. Schwartz, "not only because of the general upward trend of business but because we have made certain refinements and improvements in our products which our friends say remove the last criticism. The trade is beginning to realize that our product is not a toy, but a real machine, capable of good music in volume. Of course, it is true that our machine is wonderfully suited to the younger generation and some of the department stores are doing an immense business on that basis, but our machine is a real machine and must be regarded as such."

D. K. M. SALES CO. CHARTERED

The D. K. M. Sales Co., 108 South La Salle street, Chicago, Ill., was recently incorporated by A. N. Dutton, P. B. Kuykendall, D. W. Martin and Charles Madden, with a capital of $50,000. The concern has a factory at Vincennes, Ind., and will market a device for starting and stopping talking machines.

SELVIN'S ORCHESTRA TO RECORD ONLY FOR VOCALION

Prominent and Successful Organization Put Under Exclusive Contract by the Aeolian Co.—Enjoys a Wide Reputation for Producing Dance Music

The Aeolian Co. has just announced that a contract has been signed with Selvin's Orchestra, one of the most popular dance orchestras in New York, to record exclusively for Vocalion records. The organization has already made a number of Vocalion records which have proven very popusons and is at present playing at the Boardwalk Restaurant which was opened for the new season on September 11 and promises to be among the popular rendezvous during the Fall and Winter.

Vocalion dance records have won a wide repu-

lar. Under the new exclusive arrangement the Selvin Orchestra will be featured frequently in future Vocalion record lists.

Selvin's Orchestra has played in prominent Broadway resorts in New York for several seasons and is at present playing at the Boardwalk Restaurant which was opened for the new season on September 11 and promises to be among the popular rendezvous during the Fall and Winter. Vocalion dance records have won a wide reputation and the addition of Selvin's Orchestra to the list of exclusive Vocalion recording organizations will have the effect of increasing this reputation to a very material degree throughout the country.

NEW RCA DEALER DISCOUNT

Radio Corp. of America Announces New Discount Schedule—Increased Dealer Discount Enthusiastically Received by Trade.

The Radio Corporation of America, New York, manufacturer of RCA radio products, sent out recently an important announcement to its wholesale distributors advising them of new distributors' and dealers' discounts. This new schedule calls for increased discounts for the dealers, and the talking machine trade will undoubtedly welcome this new list.

For several months the sales department of the Radio Corporation of America had been working on a new discount schedule, especially in view of the fact that the company had appointed five well-known distributors in the talking machine field. These distributors were advised by talking machine dealers that if it were possible to secure discounts approximating the average talking machine discount, radio business would be more profitable and more productive of results. The new discount schedule reflects the intention of the Radio Corporation of America to co-operate with its jobbers and dealers in every possible way and the company has been congratulated upon its move in this direction.

In its announcement to the trade the Radio Corporation of America suggests that distributors request their dealers to place orders for the Fall trade as quickly as possible, as the increased demand which has already materialized may find the dealers unable to make prompt deliveries.

J. H. TROUP MUSIC HOUSE EXPANDS

Adds Two Floors to Quarters—Large Space for Talking Machine Department—Victor and Edison Machines Featured by This House

HARRISBURG, PA., September 11.—The J. H. Troup Music House, 15 South Market Square, this city, is planning to enlarge its business to include two additional floors of the building which it occupies, making four floors in all, according to an announcement by J. H. Troup, head of the concern. Extensive plans for the remodeling of the quarters are under consideration. These include the construction of booths on the first floor, which will be devoted to the sale of records. The second floor will be turned over to the display of the Victor and Edison lines and the remaining space will be used for the display of pianos and musical instruments.

Radio and phonograph combined in the LYRADION—your customers will prefer this line

Lyradion Italian Renaissance

Combination radio and phonograph. A beautiful hand-carved cabinet in polychrome finish for large homes and clubs. Wired for Westinghouse "set" or complete with Lyradion 5 stage non-regenerative set. All instruments and batteries completely housed.

Radio enthusiasts are expressing their preference for the Lyradion line of attractively housed radio sets in no uncertain terms. While the lady of the house has tolerated the old method of placing batteries and sets on the library table and floors as a matter of necessity in the past, she is now demanding the attractive Lyradion combination radio and phonograph completely housing instruments and batteries and offering dual and perpetual entertainment features. Besides these attractive cabinets harmonize with the furnishings of the modest as well as the most luxurious home surroundings.

The wonderful Seabrook amplifying horn used on all models is responsible for the remarkable reproducing qualities of Lyradion instruments. This horn employs entirely new principles of sound reproduction which are fully protected by basic U. S. patents.

Lyradion cabinets can be furnished wired complete for Westinghouse two-stage R. C. sets or with Lyradion five-stage non-regenerative receiving sets.

Territory is being rapidly allotted—dealers or jobbers should write or wire immediately for proposition.

MANY FINE DISPLAYS AT CANADIAN NATIONAL EXHIBITION

Interest of Trade and Public Turned Toward Music Building of Exhibition Housing Exceptionally Fine Displays Showing Development of Talking Machine Industry—Other News

TORONTO, ONT., September 8.—The rapid growth and importance of the talking machine industry is being forcibly demonstrated here in the splendid display in the new Music Building at the Canadian National Exhibition. One of the largest exhibitors at the fair has as many as twenty-two or twenty-three different models. Averaged among the makers, it is estimated that fifteen models of each make are being manufactured. They comprise a complete list of types designed to harmonize with furniture of all periods. In the display, which has been prepared by a dozen or more manufacturers, in the Music Building an infinite variety of sizes and shapes are shown.

A music building is something new to the exhibition, although musical exhibits have been there as long as the fair has been held. This year there is a real music building in what was, a year ago, the Dairy Building. The interior of this structure has been remodeled. Phonograph booths abound on every side and its walls have been paneled and decorated. The granting of this space to the music trades is one of the many indications of the growing importance of the industry in Canada. Many thousands of visitors throng the aisles of the new building.

The fair runs from August 26 to September 9. One million, two hundred and forty-two thousand was the total attendance at the Canadian National Exhibition in 1921, which means that over one million people viewed the talking machine exhibits in the east wing of the Horticultural Building. To date the attendance is 119,000. The new music building is devoted entirely to phonograph displays, with the exception of the amphitheatre in the center of the building, which has a seating capacity of 88,800 persons. Nearly ten thousand square feet of floor space are actually devoted to the displays. Individual exhibits were maintained by the Columbia Graphophone Co., this city; Gerhard Heintzman, Ltd.; McLagan Phonograph Corp., I. Montagnes & Co., Sonora phonographs and needles; Musical Merchandise Sales Co., Brunswick phonographs and Brunswick records; Scythes Vocalion Co., Ltd., Aeolian-Vocalion and Vocalion records; Sun Co. of Canada, Ltd.; Starr Co. of Canada, Ltd., Starr phonographs and Starr records; the Sun record, Apex phonographs and Apex records; the R. S. Williams & Sons Co., Ltd., Edison phonographs and Edison Re-creations; Simplex Electric Phonograph Motor Co., Ltd., Montreal.

Selections by Canadian artists who have attained fame in the musical field through recordings of their specialties on records form a feature of the exhibits.

At the request of the Canadian Phonograph Manufacturers' Association, which has fathered the musical competitions for the past three years, and also at the request of the Exhibition management, the competitions this year are being conducted by the Canadian Bureau for the Advancement of Music. The following constituted the trade committee, which was known as Music Day Committee: F. A. Trestrail (convenor), John A. Fullerton, G. B. Heintzman, E. C. Scythes, W. B. Puckett, convenor of the Canadian Phonograph Manufacturers' Association's Exhibition Committee, and J. S. Atkinson, secretary of the Bureau. G. B. Heintzman was appointed to secure the co-operation of the piano exhibitors. Gordon Thompson, representing the sheet music men, in charge of publicity; E. C. Scythes in charge of open-air music, and W. B. Puckett in charge of attractions in the amphitheatre of the Music Building.

T. Nash, manager of the Sun Record Co., distributor of Apex records, recently visited the principal points between Toronto and Kingston in connection with Apex records and machines.

G. M. Browning, of the Gold Seal Co., Inc., New York, was a recent trade visitor here, the purpose of his mission being to arrange for the promotion of the sale of the Gold Seal record repeater in Canada. This repeater has won meritorious approval throughout the United States market, over half a million, it is said, having been sold since its appearance only a few months ago. It can be made to retail in Canada at $1.35. Mr. Browning intimated that it was the intention of his firm to open a Canadian branch for the manufacture of Gold Seal repeaters, Gold Seal needles and other Gold Seal products as soon as arrangements can be effected.

New local incorporations include the Purdy Radio Phonograph Co., Ltd., Toronto, and the Sonora Phonograph Co., Ltd. The latter concern is capitalized at $40,000, according to an announcement just made.

BERLINER GRAMOPHONE EMPLOYEES HOLD ANNUAL PICNIC

River Sail and Numerous Athletic Events Mark Day of Jollity at Picnic of Employes of Berliner Gramophone Co., Ltd.—Continued Improvement in Sales Indicates Busy Fall

MONTREAL, CAN., September 8.—Employes of the Berliner Gramophone Co., Ltd., together with friends, held their annual picnic at Lavaltrie recently. Luncheon was served on board the steamer "Three Rivers" and various games and contests were held during the day at the picnic ground. On the return trip a dance was held on board. E. Berliner, vice-president of the company, with J. S. Shield, a director, officiated at the baseball game.

At a recent radio concert, broadcasted from Station C. FCF Montreal, Miss Joan Zafaro, the celebrated soprano, entertained the radio fans with a medley of classical airs. Leo Feist's popular Montreal representative, Gus Hill, also rendered the following numbers: "Why Should I Cry Over You?" "Stumbling" and "Georgia."

The Starr Co., of Quebec (Montreal), L. R. Beaudry, manager, is elated over the popularity of the Starr records in French. It is only two years ago that a few of these recordings were introduced. To-day they total over 125 listings with new numbers coming through every month.

The first prominent concert of the season will be given in the St. Denis Theatre on October 2 by Madame Galli-Curci, the great coloratura soprano and His Master's Voice artist.

In the big parade of St. Jean Baptiste, held in St. Hyacinthe, Que., lately, J. Bouchard, the well-known dealer of 19-21 Laframboise street, won second prize for his "float," which was twenty-three feet long, fifteen feet high and seven feet wide. The inside of the float, where an orchestra was placed, measured eighty-four square feet. In the front appeared two Victrolas—one a No. 50 portable and the other a No. 240 Console model. A big forty-two-inch reproduction of "Nipper," the famous His Master's Voice trade-mark, appeared on the top. On each side was a cut-out of a record thirty-four inches in diameter. The orchestra was composed of six players—three violins, piano, cornet and drums. All the selections played were directly advertising the recent issues of His Master's Voice records.

During the past month Creatore and his famous band attracted huge crowds to Dominion Park. Needless to say, Columbia dealers took advantage of his appearance and ran large-sized newspaper copy featuring this artist's extensive repertoire.

"The splendid classical and operatic selections being rendered weekly by the orchestras of the Capitol and Allen Motion Picture Theatres are creating quite an inroad on our stock of Victor Red Seal records," said Mr. Brown, of Brown's Talking Machine Shop.

Brunswick record sales with J. W. Shaw & Co. and Layton Bros., Ltd., continue to climb steadily every month and particularly in the call for Isham Jones Orchestra hits, which are becoming steadily more popular.

A noticeable improvement in sales of Edison phonographs and records is cited by Layton Bros., Ltd. This house is now busy formulating extensive sales plans for Fall and Winter business.

"While it is between Summer and Fall our sales of Sonora and Columbia Grafonolas have kept up wonderfully well," said C. W. Lindsay, Ltd., "and Columbia records are also in good demand."

Goodwin's, Ltd., Norman F. Rowell, manager, is most optimistic as to Fall business and has in sight the closing of a number of deals for Brunswick phonographs and is stocking up heavily in His Master's Voice records in anticipation of a good Winter and holiday selling season.

THOS. A. EDISON'S CONTRIBUTION

A despatch from Alexandropol, Armenia, states that sixty carloads of foodstuffs which the school children of New Jersey contributed to the American Orphan City, where the Near East Relief is maintaining 20,000 Armenian children, have arrived there. Among the interesting items were seventy-seven cases of phonographs, the personal gift of Thos. A. Edison.

ELECTS TWO VICE-PRESIDENTS

David Sarnoff and William Brown Honored by Radio Corp. of America—Promotions Well Deserved—Both Well Known to Trade

Edward J. Nally, president of the Radio Corporation of America, New York, manufacturer of RCA products, announced a few days ago that the directors of the company had voted the rank of vice-president to two officials of the company. David Sarnoff, who is general manager of the company, was also elected vice-president. William Brown was elected vice-president and general attorney in recognition of his services in the legal department.

Mr. Sarnoff, who is only thirty-two years old, has been identified with the Radio Corporation of America and its predecessors for nearly sixteen years. He is recognized as one of the foremost radio authorities in the country, and at the recent music conventions in New York was one of the speakers at the noonday luncheons. His address was enthusiastically received by the music merchants in attendance, as it gave them a practical idea of the plans of the Radio Corporation of America in so far as they related to the music industries.

OTTO HEINEMAN VISITS CANADA

Otto Heineman, president of the General Phonograph Corp., spent a few days recently visiting the company's factory at Kitchener, Ont., Can., and the Canadian branch of the General Phonograph Corp. at Toronto. Mr. Heineman found business conditions in Canada very satisfactory, with every indication that the 1922 Fall season will be one of the most active periods of recent years.

A. Frangipane, secretary of the Mutual Talking Machine Co., reports a noticeable increase in business. Orders received during the first ten days of September were already in excess of the total amount for August. The volume of export business this month has exceeded any month in the history of the organization.

POST-VACATION TIME IN CAMDEN

Victor Co. Executives Now Actively Engaged in Carrying Out Large Production Schedule

CAMDEN, N. J., September 11.—The various executives and department heads of the Victor Talking Machine Co. have now returned to their desks in the executive offices after the vacation period and all forces are working hard in the carrying out of the ambitious production laid out for the factory from now until the first of the year.

Ralph L. Freeman, director of distribution, returned to-day from a three weeks' vacation with his family, most of which was spent in Canada, where some good fishing served to take Mr. Freeman's mind off of business matters.

Economic Conditions Show a Continuous Betterment Toward the Goal of Trade Prosperity—Review of Radio Conditions in Great Britain—Freight Decision on Records—Wireless Club to Organize—Billings Long-playing Record—"His Master's Voice" Salesmanship Course—Interesting Patent News—Origin of Goods Must Hereafter Be Certified—New Gramophone Needle—News of Month

LONDON, ENGLAND, September 7.—Economic conditions continue to show a slight improvement and each month is registered an advance towards that goal of trade prosperity which is the inspiration of human endeavor. Recovery to something like normalcy may be a slow process and it is possible the much-predicted golden boom in trade will this season pass us by. That trade will buck up considerably, however, is a foregone conclusion. Far-seeing men are not looking to be rushed off their feet, so to speak, but their expectations rightly incline to the belief in a steady progress that will react favorably on the semi-luxury industries, of which the gramophone is a typical example. Around the trade, it is true, opinions vary somewhat. Certain members' views, I think, are to an extent colored by the present quietness. But this is generic to all industries, more or less, and is appropriate to this period when so much business is held up owing to holiday making. That passing phase begets inactivity. It is about over now and we shall see a big leap forward within the next few weeks. As a fact I know that manufacturers have placed substantial orders with supply houses whose present output capacity is being pushed to its utmost. The record trade, too, shows good signs of a forward movement. Dealers, perhaps, are ordering a little slowly as yet, but though not overlarge in bulk calls are more frequent—a sign that the public has commenced to buy. That is the foundation movement upon which rests the satisfaction of dealer, factor and manufacturer. Let us all do our best by every means possible to keep it going.

The Gramophone Dealer "Listens In"

Without a doubt the retailer of gramophones means to handle a fair share of the new radio business. And in this he is encouraged by the wireless manufacturers, who, I think, fully realize the importance of utilizing the well-established distributing channel represented by the great army of music dealers throughout the country. Gramophone factors and manufacturers in increasing numbers are planning to feature wireless receiving sets; already about a dozen such firms have actually marketed either crystal or valve, or both types. The whole business, however, is in a state of suspended animation pending the equipment of broadcasting stations (there are only two or three private ones in occasional use at present) and completion of arrangements for the issue of licenses to manufacture. Foreign instruments are barred for two years. A license to manufacture will only be issued after inquiry as to the bona fides of applicants who must guarantee their goods as of British manufacture throughout. Taking a leaf out of the American book of experience, our government means to control service and output through the medium of a so-called committee of the chief manufacturers. Herein, of course, is scope for abuse of privileges and already there is an outcry suggestive of the establishment of monopoly. As to that, we shall see when the control plans are published. Nobody knows how things stand at the moment except that the whole development of radio is in the air. I write this at a time when there is every anticipation of an early official statement upon the subject. The postmaster-general is ready to approve and authorize plans upon receipt of the memoranda and articles of association of the new Broadcasting Co. And it is almost certain that by the time these lines are published the firms included or interested in the Broadcasting Co. will have agreed on a complete scheme and probably started their service. The Marconi people have already fixed up with some of the leading artists.

Freighting of Gramophone Records

The judgment given by the Railway Rates Tribunal applicable to the carriage of gramophone discs restores the conditions prevalent in 1916. The evidence showed that parcels of records average about twenty-five pounds and travel up to 200 miles for 3s. 10d. under the full parcels scale rate. On owner's risk conditions the rate would be 2s. 1d. The 1916 conditions which now apply provide that when "properly" packed records will be carried at the full parcels scale, company's risk; when not properly packed, they will be carried at owner's risk. Packing to be proper must conform to certain reasonable regulations laid down.

burg square, Utrecht, the seventh annual exhibition of goods of all descriptions and nationality will open September 4. There is to be a musical instrument section and, though a good attempt has been made to interest British manufacturers, the response so far has proved very disappointing to the London agents of the Fair promoters.

Wireless Clubs for Amateurs

With the completion of broadcasting arrangements near at hand a great speeding up of interest in wireless science is bound to follow. Amateurs all over the country will want to get together and discuss problems and initiate schemes for local experiments. Already about a hundred clubs or societies are at work in different parts of the country and by all reports an amazing development of this movement is under way.

When the private gramophone societies began to get busy people were astounded that there could be found so many enthusiasts willing to devote an evening per week listening to or criticizing records. As the movement spread a development of the original idea naturally followed, until to-day we find these societies are of real technical value in the advancement of the science of sound and its reproduction. At first regarded as of no importance, gramophone manufacturers are now only too glad to demonstrate their instruments or records before such critical audiences as the societies and to invite judgment.

Broadcasting opens up another useful avenue of self-seeking enlightenment and pleasure for gramophone societies. Existing clubs are therefore making arrangements to devote part time at present for discussion and interchange of opinions anent radiophony in general and its application to the gramophone. In one case brought to my notice the question has been raised for consideration that the title of the society be revised to incorporate the word wireless or broadcasting. This practical interest is all to the good of the new science of wireless.

Pemberton Billing's Long-playing Record

World Record, Ltd., is the name of the company formed to exploit the remarkable invention of Pemberton Billing, who is managing director of the new concern. Those who have seen and heard this wonderful long-playing record, with the device for speed control, are enthusiastic as to the prospects of the company's undertaking. I am informed that a factory at Mortlake has been equipped and a start made in the recording of a first batch of records comprising about 150 titles covering all phases of vocal and instrumental music. All the records will be of twelve-inch size, single-sided. If occasion necessitates the company is prepared to issue double-sided disks, but it is not anticipated that the need will arise as up to twenty minutes of music can be recorded on one side of these records.

Queried as to price, Mr. Hughes, sales manager, informed me that three grades of records will be marketed. Prices will figure at 5s., 7s. 6d. and 10s. 6d. each retail, being determined according to class and reputation of the artist or instrumental organization. Plans are under way for a big sales campaign early in October.

The controller device by means of which the turntable is regulated to run at an even but sufficiently slow speed to play these records will retail at £1 19s. 6d. This controller operates on any kind of gramophone.

Brief Trade Paragraphs of Interest

The "Oranola" gramophone, which is now before the American public, has been revived here by the Musical Instruments Development Co. Capt. Bailey, the inventor, tells me that he has evolved several new models of unique design ranging in price from 10 to 75 guineas. Within the near future, I understand, Capt. Bailey will revisit New York.

The popular advertising manager of "His Master's Voice," V. S. Homewood, has entered the realm of matrimony. He first met his charming bride, Miss Lilian Bowers, at the Hayes office of the company. The marriage took place on July 22 and a big reception was afterwards held at the Hayes Council school. Hearty congratulations!

Tungs-tone needles eliminate a deal of trouble. Judging by the big demand for "His Master's Voice" brand the public appreciates this. The recently introduced loud-tone needle has met with a wonderfully good reception.

The Federation of British Music Industries draws attention to Iceland as a likely market for British musical goods. The present demand is mainly for gramophones and small musical instruments. British manufacturers may be expected to revise their guarantees "to withstand hot climates" to "hot, medium or cold."

The Board of Trade Journal contains particulars of a ruling of the Fiji Commissioners of Customs that the rates of duty on gramophone records are 15 per cent ad valorem British Preferential tariff and 27½ per cent general tariff.

On July 24 the registered unemployed numbered 1,362,300, nearly 7,000 less than the preceding week and over 461,000 less than at January last. All good for trade!

Australia now takes German goods. A consignment of musical instruments was unloaded at Sydney in July.

The "His Master's Voice" Salesmanship Course

In connection with the above, it is stated that classes are filling up well ahead. There is an opportunity now for dealers to take a course before the busy season commences. It is part of the company's free service to their agents and those who have attended the school—the number runs well into three figures—speak appreciatively of the knowledge gained and its sales value. These dealers can actually trace results. One big London dealer whom I always thought of as a highly successful salesman told me that he attended "His Master's Voice" class somewhat out of curiosity. He quickly realized that he had a lot to learn and having completed the course can now speak in terms of unqualified praise of its sales value. The Gramophone Co. stands alone as a pioneer of this unique scheme and the more who take advantage of it the more will its sales influence be felt during the coming season.

Origin of Goods Now to Be Certified

In exercise of the powers conferred by the Safeguarding of Industries Act, the Board of Trade now directs that certificates of origin be required, so far as concerns the classes of goods covered by the act, in the case of goods consigned from all foreign countries in Europe. The necessary instructions have been issued to H. M. consular officers abroad and the form of certificate of origin prescribed by the Board of Trade can be seen on application to any customs and excise office.

Important Report Anent Empire Patents

Of considerable interest to gramophone traders and inventors is the report of a conference of representatives of the Patent Offices of the British Dominions. It was held to consider the practicability of instituting a system of granting patents which should be valid throughout the British Empire. The conference agreed as desirable the granting of patents which would be operative throughout the Empire, provided that it in no way affected the autonomy of the Dominions and India, or the rights and facilities which an inventor at present enjoys in those countries. With this object they decided on a scheme for the establishment of a central office for the reception and examination of applications for, and the granting of, patents. Until it should be possible to introduce the full scheme decided upon, a simply worked provisional scheme was adopted. Copies of the full report may be obtained from H. M. Stationery Office, London, at the price of one shilling and a penny.

Record Reviews by Post

In connection with the Federation's newspaper propaganda "the committee adopted the organizing director's proposal to offer regular reviews of new gramophone records to newspapers not already publishing such reviews." This very important statement is conveyed through the medium of the Federation Journal, August issue. The value of the idea lies in the fact that quite a large number of provincial newspapers are run by hard-worked men who could find little or no time adequately to review records, given that they had the opportunity so to do. As a matter of fact it is obviously out of the question to supply sets of records to every paper, unless done by enterprising local dealers. All things considered, therefore, it is highly probable that editors of the smaller class of newspapers, of which there

While the proposed record review service will doubtless interest a number of newspapers, it is as well to face the probability that the more influential journals, who employ their own musical critics, would scarcely accept reviews representing an outside opinion. They must be approached in another way. Some of these newspapers already give occasional space to the review of records, and in these instances the reviews are the work of the journal's musical

IMPORTANT RADIO INSTALLATIONS

Radio Corp. of America Equips Central America Station—Also Secures Important Order From the Government of Sweden

The Radio Corp. of America announced recently that it has received orders from the United Fruit Co. and the Tropical Radio Telegraph Co. for five radio sets; three for Central America and two for the United States, each one having a sending radius of more than 2,000 miles. The three Central America stations will be located on the corners of the triangle embracing Honduras, Nicaragua and Panama. The United States terminals of this communicating system will be at New Orleans, La., where the present station of the Tropical Radio Telegraph Co. will be enlarged, and at a new station which this company will erect near Miami, Fla.

Competing with English, French and Germans, the Americans were successful, according to a message received recently from E. F. W. Alexanderson, chief engineer of the Radio Corp. of America, in securing a contract with the Swedish Government for furnishing apparatus for a nine-power radio station to handle two wireless communications between the United States and Sweden. The total cost of the station erected will probably be over $2,000,000.

The Sampaio Correia seaplane, which hopped off from New York August 16 on its attempted flight to Brazil, was equipped with a radio receiving set by the Radio Corp. of America. This set was capable of picking up stations within a radius of 500 miles and Lieut. Walter Hinton, pilot, who understands the radio code, used the receiving set to splendid advantage during the course of the trip.

critic, who receives the records direct from the manufacturing firm. Dealers will doubtless know how to profit by the scheme when it is in full swing.

Trade Treaty Between Britain and Spain

It is officially stated that arrangements are under sanction whereby all goods of United Kingdom origin will be entitled to the preferential rates of the Spanish customs tariff which might be granted by Spain to the goods of any other country.

A Wooden Gramophone Needle

From a Liverpool firm comes news of the manufacture and marketing of a new shape wooden or fiber needle which is said to give excellent results. I have tried the natural thorn and found it highly successful as a means of reproduction. The Puratone needle, as it is called, reminds one somewhat of a thorn and, though shorter, it is similar in its fine taper. Each needle is good for about twenty times, given careful handling. A special holder is necessary and this with two dozen needles retails at thirty pence. Fiber or wooden needles find an increasing appreciation with the British public.

HAS HAD AN INTERESTING CAREER

Simon H. Galperin, Music Dealer, of Charleston, W. Va., an Energetic Business Man

A recent issue of the Weekly Roar, the official organ of the Lions Club, of Charleston, W. Va., contained a very interesting story regarding the career of Simon H. Galperin, head of the Galperin Music Shop, 21 Capital street, Charleston.

Mr. Galperin was born in Russia in 1894 and came to Charleston in 1907, where he received his public school education, later going to a commercial college and finally to a technical school. Up to the time of the war he was engaged in the jewelry business with his brother. He enlisted in the army for service during the World War and, upon his discharge, opened his music shop, carrying pianos, Columbia Grafonolas, musical merchandise and practically all musical goods.

Mr. Galperin has met with much success in his business interests and also takes an active interest in the social and civic happenings of the growing city in which he resides.

G. D. SHEWELL AS A COMPOSER

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., September 6.—G. D. Shewell, president of the Cheney Sales Corp., of this city, has, in addition to his powers as executive and salesman, an accomplishment as a musician. Among recent releases of the Ampico music roll, produced by the American Piano Co., is a selection entitled "The Dance of the Popinjays," a classical piano solo composed by G. D. Shewell. It is a masterly composition which will win favor.

NEW CERTIFICATE

The accompanying illustration shows the new certificate which is now furnished to all authorized Sonora dealers. The size of this certificate, 11 inches by 15 inches, is suitable for framing, and Sonora dealers throughout the country will undoubtedly display this certificate prominently, as it is handsomely engraved. A new certificate is issued each year, and Sonora dealers have found that these certificates are important factors in building up customer confidence.

MANY ORDERS FOR UNITED MOTORS

CHICAGO, Ill., September 9.—The demand for talking machine motors manufactured by the United Mfg. & Distributing Co., Lake Shore Building, this city, has increased to such an extent that the company's factory is running to capacity. The demand for these motors is nation-wide and many large orders are being received, including a carload order from a concern in Saginaw, Mich.

Thomas Kirkman, president of the Kirkman Engineering Corp., reports that orders received during the past month give just cause for optimism regarding Fall business. Increased orders are being received for both the K-E stop and record cleaners in substantial quantities.

LATEST PATENTS RELATING TO TALKING MACHINES AND RECORDS

WASHINGTON, D. C., September 8.—Phonograph. Carl J. Pearson and Sigrid L. M. Pearson, Chicago, Ill. Patent No. 1,419,514.

This invention relates to sound-producing instruments, particularly to those which are used for musical purposes, and it has for its object the improvement of the tones produced by the talking machine. One of the methods by which the tone is improved, provided by the invention, is by the use of means for cleaning the groove of the record as the instrument is in use, and at the same time for lubricating the groove in a suitable manner, so as to reduce to a minimum the roughness of the groove and the friction of the needle therein.

Another object of the invention is to provide a horn or trumpet on each side of the sound box, so that the sound may not only be passed downwardly into the casing of the phonograph in an ordinary manner, but may also be passed directly cut from the sound box. A further object of the invention is to improve the horn by means of its shape, by suitable shutters and otherwise, and particularly by the introduction in an improved manner of suitable framework supporting properly tuned strings or wires. Other objects of the invention will be apparent from a consideration of the accompanying drawings and the following description thereof.

Of the drawings Figure 1 is a vertical sectional view of a phonograph embodying the features of the invention. Fig. 2 is a fragmental elevation of the front portion of the horn. Fig. 3 is a sectional view along the line 3—3 of Fig. 1. Fig. 4 is an elevation of a shutter used in connection with the horn, and Fig. 5 is a plan view of an additional trumpet which we provide.

Phonographic Sound Box. Wesley E. C. Lau, Klemme, Iowa. Patent No. 1,419,505. The general object of the invention is to provide a sound box wherein the stylus arm is not pivotally mounted upon the sound box, but is itself mounted upon a somewhat flexible support, which has a central opening, through which one end of the stylus-carrying arm projects, this end or extremity of the stylus-carrying arm being attached to the diaphragm to thus provide a mount for a stylus-carrying arm in which there are no bearings to wear, thus transmitting the record groove impulse directly to the diaphragm without its being transmitted through a bearing.

And a further object of the invention is to so mount the stylus-carrying arm or member that it is fully insulated from the body of the sound box, so as not to transmit vibrations thereto.

Figure 1 is a diametrical section through a sound box constructed in accordance with the invention, and through the tone arm connected therewith; Fig. 2 is a face view of the sound

Sound Box for Talking Machines. James C. Drake, Rochester, Minn., assignor to Sears, Roebuck & Co., New York. Patent No. 1,419,238.

This invention relates to sound boxes for talking machines. It has for its objects to enable the parts to be assembled from the back instead of from the front, as in present practice, thus gaining certain advantages in manufacture without sacrificing tone quality; to enable the outside rim to be made of a metal that will take plating better than the die-cast material heretofore employed in practice.

These objects are attained by making the back of the box of solid metal carrying the coupling member to attach it to the tone arm, with a groove on its inner face to receive the rubber tubular gasket usually employed, and the front of the box of a ring having a similar groove on its inner face to receive a second rubber gasket, the diaphragm lying between these gaskets when the back and face are placed together. Both the back and the front around the grooves referred to have internal projections which alternate around the peripherics, so that they intermesh and interlock when the parts are assembled, and during assembling retain the rubber gaskets in position, thus curing a trouble now existent of falling out of a percentage of gaskets. By this device alone the number of boxes assembled by one person is increased approximately 25 per cent, or from 100 to 125 per day.

This invention relates to the needle and needle holder for phonographs. More specifically, the invention relates to those types or makes of phonographs the sound box mechanism of which includes a sound box secured to the tone arm, a needle receiving member or socket connected to said sound box, and a lever arm connecting said needle socket with the diaphragm of the sound box.

In the drawings Figure 1 is a side elevation showing the sound reproducer of an ordinary phonograph, with the needle and holder secured thereto, the needle being in playing position upon a record, and Fig. 2 is an enlarged longitudinal section of the needle and holder.

Phonograph Record Holder. Philip Morgan, Lindsay, Ontario, Canada. Patent No. 1,409,392.

The principal objects of this invention are: to facilitate the handling of phonograph records and to provide a form of holder which will keep the records in good condition and enable their being handled with ease and without danger of marring same.

A still further object is to devise a holder which will have an extraordinary storage capacity for records.

The principal feature of the invention consists in the arrangement of a plurality of arms upon a pivotal support, said arms being adapted to carry the records and to be swung upon the support independently the one of the other.

In the drawings, Figure 1 is a perspective view of the improved record holder; Fig. 2 is an enlarged vertical elevational sectional view through a portion of the device.

Phonograph.—Ray H. Manson, Elyria, O., assignor to the General Phonograph Mfg. Co., same place. Patent No. 1,419,938.

This invention relates to phonographs and more particularly to sound boxes and sound-conducting arms, the objects of the invention being to increase the efficiency of such devices and to provide devices which can be more conveniently and cheaply made than those at present in use.

Other objects of the invention and the invention itself will probably be better understood from a description of an embodiment of the invention.

Sound Recording Process.—Aloysius J. Cawley, Pittston, Pa. Patent No. 1,420,304.

This invention relates generally to sound recording; more particularly it involves a process whereby sound is recorded upon a celluloid or similar film mechanically. A sound record groove may be impressed in a moving picture film as it passes through the camera, thus rendering it possible to record motion and sound, including articulate speech, simultaneously on the same medium.

By this process the film is for all intents and purposes a wax-like substance only during the actual time of recording and only at the precise place on the film where the sound is to be recorded. Just as soon as the record is impressed in the medium the latter immediately becomes hard and tough, precluding any possibility of damage to it. A master record can thus be produced directly on the margin of a motion picture film, from which a metallic or other matrix may be made.

Figure 1 is a view of the heating device in contact with a celluloid film, together with the sound recorder; Fig. 2 is an elevational view of a plurality of such devices, each independently heated; Fig. 3 is an elevational view of a heating device combined with an auxiliary temperature controller; Fig. 4 is a sectional view of three different types of heating device; Fig. 5a is a sectional view of a heating device in contact with the film on its sprocket wheel; Fig. 5b is a plan view of the heating strip in contact with the margin of the film; Fig. 5c is a plan view of a modified form of the heating

tact with heat strip; Fig. 7b is a side elevational view of the same device.

This invention relates to an improved device for lifting and supporting in lifted position a cover on receptacles, and is particularly adapted for the covers of phonographs.

The invention is designed to provide a device of this kind in which the cover, when released in its closed position, will be raised without shock, the lifting mechanism being so arranged that the initial movement of the cover, which is the hardest to perform, gives way to a less pressure as the cover rises, so that it stops gently and without shock.

The invention is illustrated in the accompanying drawing, in which Figure 1 is a section of a portion of a phonograph case with the raising and supporting device shown in elevation, and Fig. 2 is a sectional view showing a means for holding the cover down.

Phonograph Reproducer.—Burr B. Blood, Chicago, Ill., assignor to the Jewel Phonoparts Co., same place. Patent No. 1,419,913.

This invention relates to sound reproducers for phonographs and has for its object the provision of a construction wherein the stylus-bar is provided with a cross-head so formed that a proper pivotal mounting of the stylus-bar on the shell or casing may be provided, which enables all vibrations encountered by the stylus or needle to be thoroughly imparted to the flexible or mica diaphragm of the reproducer, without, however, permitting undue or improper vibration of the stylus-bar, the construction enabling a reproduction of sounds in greater volume and without loss in the tone quality.

The object of the invention, as well as its advantages, will be more fully comprehended from the following detailed description of the drawing, wherein:

Figure 1 is a front elevation of the improved reproducer with a portion of the tone arm to which it is secured; Fig. 2 is a side elevation of the reproducer, looking at the stylus receiving socket of the stylus-bar; Fig. 3 is a detail perspective view of the cross-head of the improved stylus-bar.

Process for Recording Sound Records.—Henry L. Wadsworth, Lexington, Mass., assignor to the Metal Recording Disc Co., Inc., New York. Patent No. 1,421,045.

This invention relates to talking machine records or tablets, and its object is to provide a novel and improved tablet and process of making the same. The invention has particular reference to a record having the laterally cut groove, so called, but is not confined to that type.

This invention relates to electrical time mechanism for picture-display attachment for phonographs, and has for its object to produce mechanisms for infallibly synchronizing the display of pictures illustrative of particular words of a phonograph record, with the reproduction of such words by the phonograph. A further object is to produce attachments of the character referred to, which can be applied to any of the approved types of phonographs at small expense, so as to be within the means of private users as well as exhibitors catering to the public in theatres and the like.

A still further object is to provide mechanism for enabling the owner of a phonograph and electrically operated picture-projecting mechanism or apparatus to produce an electric switch for any record, which will make and break the electric circuit controlling the operation of the picture-projecting apparatus at the exact moment desired for flashing a picture on a screen illustrative of particular words reproduced from the record.

In order that this invention may be fully understood reference is to be had to the accompanying drawings in which:

tion taken through the tone arm support to disclose the tone arm, the phonograph record and the timing mechanism in elevation; Fig. 3 is a section taken through the support for the tone arm, in the vertical plane of the axis of the rotary element of the timing mechanism; Fig. 4 is an enlarged detail illustrating certain features of construction of the timing mechanism, and Fig. 5 is an enlarged vertical section of part of the timing mechanism.

Sound Amplifier.—Walter F. Luhnnow, Oak Park, Ill. Patent No. 1,420,719.

This invention relates to means for modulating and amplifying sound, as, for instance, in sound-recording devices and especially in phonographs. It follows in a large measure the lines of co-pending applications, Serial No. 349,- 444, filed January 5, 1920, and Serial No. 357,300, filed February 9, 1920, but is distinct therefrom, particularly respecting the structure of the amplifying chamber or horn.

The main objects of the invention are to provide for enriching the tones to be recorded or reproduced; to provide amplifying means of improved form in connection with sound recorders and reproducers to selectively pick up and amplify the tones and qualities desired, and to provide such a device adapted for use in various forms in combination with a recorder or reproducer, either in a cabinet or, if so desired, apart therefrom.

In the accompanying drawings Figure 1 is a view of a complete phonograph partly in side elevation with the upper part in vertical section through the center from front to back. Fig. 2 is substantially a horizontal section through the branched end of the amplifying chamber on the line 2—2 of Fig. 1. Fig. 3 is an underside view of a modified form of branched amplifying chamber. Fig. 4 is similar to Fig. 3, except as to the form and arrangement of the branches. Fig. 5 is an axial section through a modified form of amplifying chamber or circular cross-section, with branches distributed about the main axis, and the sound admission tube being connected directly opposite the end of the inner part of the chamber. Fig. 6 is a section on the line 6—6 of Fig. 5. Fig. 7 is a front elevation of the sound discharge end of the amplifying chamber. Fig. 8 is an axial section of a bell-shaped chamber having a stepped inner wall. Fig. 9 is a side elevation of a horn with a medial sound inlet and with open-ended amplifying branches shown in dotted lines.

Phonograph. Peter J. Landin, Denver, Colo. Patent No. 1,422,453.

The object of this invention is to provide a phonograph which has superior means for transmitting the sound vibrations and which is so constructed as to almost entirely eliminate scratching and vibrations from the motor.

In the drawings: Figure 1 is a perspective view showing the complete instrument; Fig. 2 is a vertical section from front to rear through the instrument; Fig. 3 is a side elevation showing the hood and cover lifted. Fig. 4 is a plan with the hood and cover removed; Fig. 5 is an elevation of the amplifier and its tone arm; Fig. 6 is a vertical section through the amplifier and tone arm; Fig. 7 is a plan thereof; Fig. 7a shows a modified form of tone arm and sound box; Fig. 8 is an elevation of the usual sound box provided with a specific needle holder of the present invention; Fig. 9 is an elevation of said needle holder; Fig. 10 is an end view thereof; Fig. 11 is a fragmentary elevation showing the releasing means for the sound box and the stopping means for the turntable; Fig. 12 is a detail of the motor unit; Fig. 13 is a perspective showing the tone arm, sound box, stopping means and resetting means; Fig. 14 is a view looking in the direction of the arrow 14 of Fig. 13; Fig. 15 is a view looking in the direction of arrow 15 of Fig. 13; Fig. 16 is a view similar to that of Fig. 15, showing said sound box as it is about to engage the resetting means; Fig. 17 is a detail elevation of the releasing means for the sound box.

A new external shape of grace and beauty—without changing the internal design:

That same angle turn with the solid inclined plane deflecting the sound waves straight downward into amplifying chamber. That same famous Scotford tone—the tone of refinement—genuinely musical. Now in a tonearm of accepted, conventional, popular design. WRITE FOR SAMPLES.

NEW CONSTRUCTION

The long straight tube is of drawn Yellow Brass. Tonearm Base, Main Elbow and Connection Elbow and the Reproducer Frame, Face Ring and Back Plate are cast of TENSO White Brass Alloy—an alloy more than double the tensile strength of cast iron—much stronger, harder and lighter in weight than ordinary white metal alloys. New dies have been produced for casting all parts. The new parts are solidly cast, and are very substantial and durable.

Is New Quality Smashing the Old One-line Idea?

Why is it that more old-established one-line stores are taking the Sonora agency than ever before?

Why is it that more and more music lovers throughout the country are demanding comparison with the Sonora before they buy any instrument?

Because time and again Sonora has proved the magnificent beauty and truth of its tone, when fairly tested.

Because it is coming to be realized that Sonora, being the result of profound concentration on the part of a great company upon making a phonograph only, MUST have striking points of superiority over all other phonographs. "The Best Record is Better on a Sonora."

These facts mean a harvest of sales to every dealer who has the gumption to act, and act quickly, so as to get the benefit of this season's Sonora business.

EFFECTIVE PROSPECT-GETTING PLAN

Services of Teachers and Mail Carriers Used to Secure Prospects by the Talking Machine Department of the Campbell Furniture Co.

After disastrous experience with canvassers, who would make unauthorized promises, misrepresentations as to price and all that, the talking machine department of the Campbell Furniture Co., of Piqua, O., discontinued the employment of strictly outside men and has developed a system of getting rural prospects through mail carriers and school teachers. Arrangements have been made with teachers in charge of rural schools to furnish the store with the names of live prospects in their respective districts. Of course the teacher not only knows the children under her tutelage, but often the parents and sometimes the actual home conditions. The teacher furnishing names of those who are open for, or could use, a talking machine is given a small commission on each prospect.

The rural mail carriers are used in a different manner. The teacher cannot actually talk machines or give time after school hours to selling. The carriers, on the other hand, at least those around Piqua, finish their routes at noon and have their afternoons free. They have their own automobiles, know the people living on their mail routes and are not only in a position to furnish names of prospects, but, where they develop possibilities as salesmen, the store uses them in the actual placing and selling of talking machines and records.

VICTOR SCHOOL TO OPEN IN PEORIA

Classes Under Direction of F. A. Delano to Be Held in Headquarters of Putnam-Page Co., Victor Distributor, November 6 to 9

PEORIA, ILL., October 5.—A Victor Salesmanship School, under the direction of F. A. Delano, who has had charge of the Red Seal School classes at the Victor factory in Camden, N. J., and who has been conducting salesmanship classes in New York, Buffalo, Washington and other cities, will be held at the headquarters of the Putnam-Page Co., Victor distributor, of this city, November 6 to 9, inclusive. The different phases of retailing, such as record selling, machine selling, stock keeping, etc., will be thoroughly gone into and Victor dealers and salesmen are eagerly looking forward to the opening of the school.

EDWIN G. EVANS HONORED

An honor of no small magnitude has been bestowed upon Edwin G. Evans, sales representative of C. Bruno & Son, Inc., Victor wholesalers, New York. Mr. Evans has received the nomination for treasurership of Darien, Conn., in which he lives. Mr. Evans' universal popularity with his neighbors and the fact that he has been nominated on the ticket that always wins in Darien make his election next November a certainty. It is stated that Darien's budget amounts to $160,000 a year and, therefore, Mr. Evans will undoubtedly be a very busy man as he will assume these duties in addition to his usual occupation.

OPEN TALKER STORE IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 1.—Charles Schwartz & Son, 708 Seventh street, N. W., are among the latest additions to the talking machine business here. The new concern has opened what is considered one of the largest as well as one of the most attractive talking machine stores in the city. The lines featured are the Vocalion, Edison and Brunswick.

UNUSUAL PUBLICITY FOR VICTROLA

New York Hippodrome Uses Giant Victrola in "The Grand Opera Ball"—Liberty Theatre Uses This Instrument in "Molly Darling"

The products of the Victor Talking Machine Co. are receiving some excellent publicity through the medium of New York theatrical productions. The famous New York Hippodrome and the Liberty Theatre are both using Victrolas in their current productions. At the Hippodrome the widely known Victor advertisement showing characters from the various operas issuing from an immense Victrola is reproduced on the stage as a feature of the act entitled "The Grand Opera Ball." Thousands of persons have already witnessed this spectacle, which is indelibly stamped on their minds, and undoubtedly many more will witness it. The instrument used in this production is a giant in size and the world-renowned Victor dog trade-mark of huge dimensions also plays an important part in the production.

"Molly Darling," the musical comedy which recently opened at the Liberty Theatre, which to a large extent is based on operatic characters, also uses a large Victrola as part of the stage property of the production, and here, too, thousands of people are having the Victrola brought to their attention.

TAKES OVER SWINEHURST MUSIC CO.

MANHATTAN, KANS., October 3.—R. H. Brown, formerly connected with the public schools of Kansas City, Mo., as a teacher of music, has purchased the business of the Swinehurst Music Co., this city. The name of the business has been changed to the R. H. Brown Music Co. Columbia Grafonolas and a complete line of musical instruments are handled.

High School Students Make Good Prospects

Written for The World by FRANK V. FAULHABER

The talking machine dealer who has been mailing letters as a means of attracting business may find, as did one dealer in Brooklyn, N. Y., that his appeals will not pull as effectively as when they are directed to a certain class of people. As the dealer explained: "Making your sales letters specific certainly will contribute toward their effectiveness, but I have found that a sales-letter campaign brings more returns when one's efforts are confined to attracting certain classes of people and telling those people why they should buy talking machines."

This talking machine dealer then went on to relate how he had overcome a problem that had been bothering him. He believes in mailing clever little letters to prospects, yet he realized the trade was not coming in response to his letters as it should. What did he do? Simply this: He felt that he should direct his appeals to other people, and he had a good reason, for in his case many of the letters went unanswered; therefore he decided to tackle his problem from another point—he would send letters to high-school students instead, addressing his appeals, of course, to them, and pointing out why and how talking machines could easily be bought on the instalment plan.

This enterprising talking machine dealer was fully aware that such a sales-letter stunt would be out of the ordinary, and for that reason alone should be particularly effective. Many talking machine dealers will, perhaps, send out letters to prospects including all classes of people, all of the letters being along the same lines. But the dealer in Brooklyn concentrated his efforts on high-school students, emphasizing

OUR EXPORTS OF TALKING MACHINES

Exports and Imports of Talking Machines and Records Show Improving Tendency as Compared With Last Year—Our Buyers Abroad

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 10.—In the summary of exports and imports of the commerce of the United States for the month of July, 1922 (the latest period for which it has been compiled), which has just been issued, the following are the figures on talking machines and records:

The dutiable imports of talking machines and parts during July, 1922, amounted in value to $49,081, as compared with $35,180 worth which were imported during the same month of 1921. The seven months' total ending July, 1922, showed importations valued at $311,032, as compared with $382,071 worth of talking machines and parts during the same period of 1921.

Talking machines to the number of 4,839, valued at $181,193, were exported in July, 1922, as compared with 2,133 talking machines, valued at $100,279, sent abroad in the same period of 1921. The seven months' total showed that we exported 28,042 talking machines, valued at $1,001,020, as against 22,757 talking machines, valued at $1,084,195, in 1921.

The total exports of records and supplies for July, 1922, were valued at $74,440, as compared with $128,761 in July, 1921. The seven months ending July, 1922, show records and accessories exported valued at $611,250, in 1921, $1,397,384.

The countries to which exports were made in July and the values thereof are as follows: France, $99; United Kingdom, $5,333; Canada, $80,412; Central America, $1,847; Mexico, $23,029; Cuba, $1,099; Argentina, $9,574; Chile, $2,299; other South America, $7,179; China, $5,313; Japan, $13,827; Philippine Islands, $4,256; Australia, $7,593; Peru, $3,756; other countries, $15,577.

He suggested that a talking machine be purchased as a birthday present, thus surprising a parent. Apart from the selling arguments that were stressed the dealer also pointed out how the young people could go about earning the necessary money to pay for the machines. In one letter he discussed the foolishness of spending money carelessly, money that often went for various useless odds and ends. In this wise he was implanting the art of thrift in the young people.

The results that accrued from the dealer's efforts assuredly satisfied him. Many of the high-school students visited his establishment to talk over the matter with him, having been invited to do this in the letters that were sent. It was said here alone the returns were more satisfactory than in the case where sales letters were mailed indiscriminately, with no definite object in view. As the dealer wisely observed: "Pick out your prospect, then confine your attention to that prospect."

High-school students often earn money outside of school hours, and those who do not can readily enough be encouraged to place themselves in the way of a few added dollars. Naturally, the talking machine dealer will find in them many prospects that can easily be turned into customers if but the proper effort is exerted. In many cases where parents cannot be induced to buy a talking machine their children assuredly represent logical prospects. Anyway, the experience of the Brooklyn dealer in the high-school field is worthy of emulation

Helping Customers to Get Greater Variety Into Their Record Collections :: By Frank H. Williams

One big reason why talking machines remain unused for long periods of time, collecting dust and acquiring an aged, neglected appearance, is that the owners haven't sufficient variety in their collections of records. Where the only records in a collection are jazz, or, perhaps, vocal or band, it is no wonder that the talking machine owner acquires that tired feeling which makes him inclined to feel that a machine is an unnecessary piece of furniture.

There is, therefore, a splendid chance for the live-wire talking machine dealer to get more business by helping the owners of lop-sided record collections inject more variety into their collections and, by getting this greater variety in records, to find more pleasure and profit in playing their instruments.

Most people, it should be remembered, are still somewhat shy in the matter of musical education. They know, perhaps, one musical instrument and so, when they come to buy talking machine records, the majority of their purchases are of selections of that one particular instrument, and this leads to insufferable monotony in music.

The alert dealer, realizing all this, could make a powerful appeal to the owners of lop-sided record collections by advertising or by sending out a personal letter which might read somewhat as follows:

"LET US HELP YOU GET VARIETY IN YOUR RECORD COLLECTION.

"We have found that many of the talking machine record collections of our customers are somewhat lacking in variety. Some collections, for instance, are heavy with violin selections, but have no harp records. Others are strong with piano pieces but neglect mandolin, vocal and band records, etc.

"Here's the idea: Make up a list of the records you have in your collection. Bring the list to us. We'll go over it carefully and suggest some new records which will give variety and tone to your collection and which will harmonize with your musical tastes. By getting more variety into your record collection you will find that you will get more enjoyment out of your phonograph.

"The greatest beauty of the talking machine is its versatility. You are not cashing in on your instrument as strongly as you might if you aren't getting the biggest possible variety of music out of it. Time and again we've found that people have experienced a greatly revived interest in music by the simple expedient of securing new records which give them greater variety.

"Of course we are glad to render this suggestion to you as a part of our regular service. We'll make the suggestions of the records you might get in order to secure the desired variety in your collection, but our doing this entails no obligation on your part. You don't have to buy all of the records or any of them. It's entirely free service on our part. Come into our store and learn what sort of records you ought to add to your collection NOW!"

This sort of an advertisement or letter would be sure to attract attention and create a great deal of comment. It would, undoubtedly, bring some people into the store with lists of their records. And it would, then, be merely a matter of good salesmanship to sell some additional records to these people.

In addition to using this sort of copy in newspapers it would be a splendid idea to use a placard in the display window carrying the same sort of copy. And, as suggested, it would be advisable to use similar copy in direct mail advertising matter sent out to all of the store's regular customers and prospective customers.

This stunt, after the initial effort, could then be used effectively in other ways for attracting attention to the store and in boosting the store's business. The store could, for instance, very easily frame some exceedingly interesting window displays on this theme.

One such display could show a well-balanced collection of fifty records, including a good variety of all kinds of instruments and of all classes of music. Such a display would appeal to the average talking machine owner because the collection wouldn't be so big as to be beyond the reach of the average individual. The records in this display should be spread over the floor of the window so that people could read the titles for themselves. Then an accompanying placard might read as follows:

"IS THIS THE PERFECT RECORD COLLECTION?"

"There are fifty records in this collection, representing a splendid variety of instruments and various classes of music. It has been prepared with great care by music lovers who are experts in getting the greatest possible enjoyment out of their instruments. The collection is displayed for the purpose of suggesting new kinds of records to YOU which will make you get greater enjoyment out of your talking machine. Study this collection carefully. Then come into the store and let us tell you just how many jazz records there are in this collection, how many vocal selections, how many band records, etc.

"Get greater variety into YOUR record collection and get more enjoyment out of your talking machine."

This sort of a display would, undoubtedly, make a very deep impression on many people. It would set them thinking about the need of getting more variety into their record collections if they want to get greater enjoyment out of their phonographs and all this would lead to the store making more sales of records.

Also, by not listing the numbers of records in each classification included in the collection of fifty records the store would be arousing the curiosity of many people and this curiosity would bring them into the store, with the result that it would simply be a matter of salesmanship to make sales of records to the inquirers.

Another interesting window display which could be quickly and easily framed on this theme would be that of illustrating the sort of uneven record collections which some talking machine owners have. This could be done by means of diagrams.

For instance, a diagram might be arranged to show a typical lop-sided record collection. A long, vertical, heavy line might visualize the number of jazz records in the collection. Then very small, thin lines might be used to represent the number of high-class vocal selections and high-class instrumental selections in the collection. Another diagram might show a tremendous preponderance of high-class vocal pieces. Still another might show a collection top-heavy with violin or band selections.

People always like to look at diagrams in show windows. So such a stunt as this would attract a lot of attention. And this vivid way of visualizing the lack of variety in many record collections would, undoubtedly, have the effect of making many of the people who stop to look at the window enter the store and purchase records which would give greater variety to their collections.

Of course, with these displays and with similar displays the store should use window cards on which would appear strong copy emphasizing the fact that the greatest enjoyment of the talking machine comes when the record collection is completely and carefully balanced with a wide variety of all available forms of music representing the great vocalists both in operatic and popular fields and the celebrated instrumentalists popular the world over.

How the Collection Department Can Co-operate With Sales Organization :: By Alonzo K. Foster

The instalment plan has grown to be an important part of the talking machine business and many establishments make a greater percentage of their sales in this way than on the cash basis. Now it would seem that where so much trouble is taken to gain the patronage of this class of customers an equal effort should be made by the management to retain their friendship with an eye to future business, but in many instances such is not the case.

Following the opening of an account and the purchase of a machine the customer comes in contact with the collector or the cashier of the firm more than with any other member of the business; therefore it would seem that these two employes should be selected with particular care, mainly because they possess those qualities of personality and courtesy which naturally appeal to the average customer and enhance the prestige of the firm. A man or woman acting in the capacity of cashier who handles the payments of customers has a wonderful opportunity of making friends and increasing the business of the firm. On the other hand, if the cashier or collector acts in a condescending manner when coming in contact with these people incalculable harm is being done to the business and the friendship of a customer with all that means in the way of future sales has in all probability been irretrievably lost.

The post of the person coming in contact with these customers is equally as important, if not more so, than that of the salesman, and the person selected for the position should not only possess a courteous and amiable disposition and a pleasing personality, but should also have some real sales ability.

In order to make the necessity for the above

qualifications clear, let us analyze by a concrete example their value to the firm. John Jones buys a talking machine on the instalment plan and each week or month, according to the arrangements made at the time of the purchase, he comes to the store to make a payment. He walks up to the desk where the payment is to be made and he is greeted by name, cheerfully and with a smile, and he is asked to sit down.

Cashier Handling Instalment Payments Should Be a Person of Tact and Possess Real Sales Ability

While the payment is being made the cashier, who should be familiar with the record stock, suggests new numbers which are proving popular and requests that he listen to several of them. If the customer is interested the cashier turns him over to the care of a salesman, who conducts him to a booth where the selections mentioned will be played. This plan not only results in sales but it implants in the mind of the customer the conviction that he is looked upon as a friend by the company, and if he does not make a purchase at the moment he will surely do so when he does decide to buy records.

When the contract has been signed and the machine delivered it is up to the management to see that the customer stays sold and the cashier can be of material assistance in this direction. Many people purchase a new machine and find after using it a short time that minor troubles develop. When such is the case the customer often asks himself whether he received his money's worth and he develops an attitude of suspicion towards the store where the purchase was made. This can be overcome by the cashier by simply asking the customer when he makes his payment if the machine is rendering good service, and if some trouble has developed either instruct the purchaser how to overcome the difficulty or send someone to make the necessary adjustments.

In most establishments where there are instalment accounts the cashier is either behind a screen or looks out at a customer through a small window, takes the payment in a silent, impersonal and sometimes grouchy manner, passes out a receipt and the customer goes away feeling that he has intruded in entering the store. Sometimes, also, under this arrangement patrons are forced to wait in line before they receive attention, and the business is transacted in a semi-public manner which is distasteful to the average man or woman.

A small private office for the cashier will overcome these difficulties and at the same time furnish the means of closer personal contact. A bench or several comfortable chairs may be placed along the outside of the office for the comfort of patrons while they await their turn. The expense of making these arrangements will be amply repaid by the increased sales.

CLEAR ROAD AHEAD FOR BUSINESS ADVANCE

THE end of the coal and railroad strikes and the enactment of the new tariff law, which have served to disturb business throughout the country to a greater or less extent for several months, are to be welcomed as opening the way for the resumption of business on a national and normal scale. While certain sections of the country, or rather definite localities, have suffered more than others from the effects of the two strikes, the threat of a Winter without adequate fuel for factories and homes and the abandonment or at least disarrangement of transportation facilities naturally had a bad effect upon the business of the country as a whole. Happily these disturbing influences are now removed.

In view of the confidence with which the talking machine trade has entered into the Fall season—a confidence that has proved itself through the medium of substantial orders—the settlement of the disturbing factors in question should bring about a volume of sales in excess of even the most optimistic forecasts. Calculations of Fall requirements were for the most part made when the strike shadows still hung over us and, with that danger removed, there is nothing on the horizon that should tend in any way to interfere with the development of a business that, while it may not break records, will at least bring in substantial profits.

"TALKER" ENLARGES SPHERE OF USEFULNESS

THOSE who have kept in touch with the development of the talking machine record during the past decade will naturally hesitate to make any prophecy regarding the status of that sound-recording medium ten years from to-day, from the fact that almost every month there is discovered some new field of usefulness for it.

Originally intended by the inventors simply for the recording and reproducing of business correspondence, the talking machine record found its first great field as a musical entertainer, coming back into the business and commercial world on a large scale later. Then came the conquering of the field of education with the resultant placing of talking machines and record libraries in practically every school throughout the country. We find also the talking machine used for the teaching of languages, and for the circulation of speeches of noted men. Then, too, have come talking machine records to make the taking of physical exercise pleasant and easy, as well as records for the training of the voice and for other purposes, including the advertising of real estate auctions.

In fact, there seem to be few fields that have not been invaded by the talking machine record in one way or another. Each new field thus uncovered is calculated to do its share in insuring the permanence of the talking machine and, consequently, of those engaged in the producing and marketing of machines and records.

Some day perhaps some historian will take it upon himself to write a real history of the industry and embody therein the romance so closely interwoven with it.

A MOST SIGNIFICANT TRADE DEVELOPMENT

ONE of the best indications of the confidence in the future felt by the majority of members of the retail talking machine trade is the amount of new equipment that is being installed in talking machine stores and departments throughout the country. During the past few months there have been scores of establishments either entirely remodeled or partially remodeled with a view to giving more needed space to the demonstration and sale of talking machines and records, and one of the largest manufacturers of booths and other store equipment for talking machine dealers has reported a record-breaking number of installations of such equipment, in many instances running into thousands of dollars for a single store.

A retailer may talk optimistically because he feels that is the proper thing to do, and because it is calculated to dispel any feeling of distrust he may hold regarding the future of his business, but the man who backs up his optimism by spending real money to improve and enlarge his establishment certainly has some basis for his calculations regarding coming business demands. Incidentally, the character of talking machine stores is being improved steadily until there is hardly one without a sizable battery of soundproof demonstration booths and record-selling facilities that make for speed, accuracy and, most important, more sales. It is a most encouraging development and a condition complimentary to the good sense and ambitious efforts of the dealers as well as a recognition of the sales-creating value of artistic store installations. Broadly considered it is a trend indicative of the health and permanency of the industry.

BETTER HOMES AND BETTER MUSIC

THERE has just been celebrated throughout the country what is known as "Better Homes in America Week," with various individuals and organizations joining together to support the propaganda of better homes and better home equipment, on the theory that improvement in homes and living conditions means improvement in the character of our citizenry.

At the instance of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce music trade interests in a number of sections co-operated more or less actively with local committees with a view to emphasizing the rightful position of music in the modern home of culture and refinement, and it is to be hoped that numerous talking machine dealers took advantage of the opportunity to hook up with this new propaganda.

It is unfortunate there are so many movements constantly under way that the public has become rather indifferent and does not respond readily to special celebrations or events. There is hardly a week during the fifty-two when there is not being featured some propaganda or another, but when a movement such as that for better homes is under way it is well deserving of the support of those who are merchandising the products that go into the rapidly increasing number of better homes in America.

Any movement that makes for better home equipment makes directly for sales of musical instruments, particularly of talking machines as they possess the advantage, through the medium of records, of providing both entertainment and the means for a musical education.

IMPORTANCE OF CONTINUOUS ADVERTISING

FOR the next few months at least there will likely be a considerable volume of talking machine advertising in local newspapers as well as in magazines of national circulation with the idea of arousing public interest to the buying point during the holiday season. Such advertising naturally has a very stimulating effect upon retail business, but it is unfortunate that so many members of the trade, manufacturers as well as retailers, are inclined to use the bulk of their advertising appropriation within a certain season such as during the Fall or Winter months, and then cut down or eliminate it for the remaining six months of the year.

Perhaps it is well to increase advertising appropriations at certain seasons, say just prior to the holidays, but that does not get away from the fact that to be effective advertising should be continuous and conducted on a year-round basis. It is well enough to declare that there is a natural dropping off in business in the Summer, and that liberal advertising during the Spring and Summer months is not calculated to bring in enough business to make it a paying proposition. This is very true so far as it applies to the man who spends $100 for advertising one day and expects to get it back in increased business the next, but for the individual who understands the theory of advertising and has some general appreciation of its cumulative value the thought is not so much what business will be brought in the next day, but what business can be developed in the future through means of publicity.

There have been a number of concerns in all lines of trade that owe the continuance of their business on a substantial basis throughout the war and post-war period to the fact that they believed in continuous advertising and adhered to that policy despite the upward and downward trend of business. By keeping at it they developed and maintained an advertising momentum that proved their salvation.

The manufacturer or retailer should no more discontinue his advertising during any given period than he would discontinue his selling effort. If a man only went after his sales prospects three months at a time and then left off for two or three months some competitor would land the sale. He knows this and "keeps on the job" until the deal is either closed or definitely lost. Yet, advertising is simply selling through the printed word and the same danger of deferred interest applies.

MONEY TO BUY MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

THOSE who are of the opinion that a large proportion of the population is not at the present time in a financial position to purchase musical instruments of the better sort have a surprise coming to them in the report of the American Bankers' Association to the effect that there are nearly 27,000,000 savings bank depositors on record, or an average of more than one depositor for every family in the United States.

It is significant that during the past couple of years, while the country has been going through what has been termed a period of depression, the number of savings bank accounts and the amount of deposits in such accounts have been increasing at a rate that has surprised even bankers in close touch with the situation.

The record may be taken to indicate that the spirit of thrift has gained ground in the United States and that the great majority of our people are putting aside a very sizable portion of their incomes for the coming "rainy day." With the money actually available, even in savings accounts, and with the public trained to save, the musical instrument salesman has an opportunity before him that should in no wise be neglected.

If there is anything at all in the slogan "Music As an Aid to Thrift," which has been put forward by the music industry for the past couple of years, then it should be capitalized right now. It may not be that the 27,000,000 savings bank depositors represent that many prospective talking machine or piano buyers, but certainly a very substantial proportion of them are in a position to be convinced of the desirability or rather necessity of owning a musical instrument of some sort.

INTEREST IN MUSIC IS STEADILY EXPANDING

FROM various sections of the country during the month have come reports of a more general attention given to music in the public schools in various cities. In certain localities general music instruction is being attempted for the first time and in others definite school credits for music study are to be allowed. Then, too, plans are announced for the holding of music weeks and particularly music memory contests during the Fall months. With all these musical activities under way, and with the time for spending evenings indoors approaching, there is real reason to look forward to the selling at retail of a very substantial volume of talking machines, records and all kinds of musical instruments.

Methods of Modern Business Management-- How Best to Figure Percentage :: By G. W. Hafner

Manager of G. W. Hafner, Inc., Chicago.

Tradition says figures don't lie. Yet the wrong interpretation of figures may throw the head of the business completely off the track. Mercantile agencies report that a large number of commercial failures are directly due to the proprietor's or manager's belief that the business is making a profit, when, as a matter of fact, it is running at a loss. And the reason for this is that, in at least the majority of cases, the business man has been deceived by the use of percentages in allowing for profits.

What Is Percentage

In using percentages as a tool to work with we should have a clear understanding of what percentage is. Percentage is a standard of comparison for amounts, just as a thermometer is a standard of comparison for temperature, or an inch, foot or yard is a standard of comparison for lengths. The word "percentum" means 100 parts or 100ths. Therefore, amounts are compared by per cent or hundredths, as lengths are compared by inches and feet and temperature by degrees.

Accordingly one amount compares with another amount as each contains a less or a greater number of 100ths in the same manner that one temperature compares with another temperature according as it contains a greater or less number of degrees, or that one length compares with another length as it contains a greater or less number of inches. It is seen from this that percentage is simply a means for measuring figures.

How to Find Percentages

In finding percentages we always have a clearer view of the matter if we put the figures in the shape of a fraction. Percentage, from the viewpoint of mathematics, is fundamentally nothing else but decimal fractions. You say that 50 is one-half of 100. That means that 50 is fifty one-hundredths or 50 per cent of 100. Likewise 20 is twenty one-hundredths or 20 per cent of 100, and 10 is ten per cent, and 5 is five per cent. The principle here is the same as that governing the change of common fractions into decimals, which is: "Divide the numerator by the denominator" or "divide the upper figure of a fraction by the lower."

To illustrate let us assume that the annual sales of a certain business amount to $100,000.00 and that the annual expenses aggregate $25,000.00. What we want to determine, first, is what percentage of $100,000.00 is $25,000.00. To do this we put the figures in the shape of a fraction and divide the upper figure by the lower, thus:

We find, then, that the total yearly expenses of $25,000.00 represents 25 per cent of the total

Percentage Is a Standard of Comparison for Amounts as the Thermometer Is the Standard for Temperature yearly sales of $100,000.00. And we know from this that, in making up our selling prices, we must add 25 per cent for expenses, plus whatever margin of profit we desire to make.

Why Anticipated Profits Are Not Realized

This is all apparently simple enough. And yet it does not always work out just right, it seems. Let us see, then, what it is that tangles up so many of us in attempting to handle percentage.

For purposes of illustration, let us take, first, the method of the business man who knows nothing about what his expenses are. He has perhaps heard some other man in the same trade or industry say that he figures to make 10 per cent profit, and because that is what he thinks others are asking he will figure something like this on a sale, which costs him, say, $20.00:

Cost of goods	$20.00
Add 10% of $20 for profit.....	2.00
Total.....	$22.00

He will probably mark the goods to sell for $25.00, thinking that the extra $3.00 will cover his overhead expense and that he will make his 10 per cent profit and perhaps a little over. Let us see, now, what has really happened:

Cost of goods	$20.00
Expense 25% (not of $20, but of $25, which will be explained later)	6.25
Total cost	$26.25
Sales price	25.00

Net loss $1.25
or 5 per cent of the selling price.

Next let us illustrate the method of the business man who knows, from last year's figures, that his expenses amount to 25 per cent of his sales, but does not know how to apply that knowledge correctly. Probably his estimate will show up like this:

Cost of goods	$20.00
Expenses 25% of $20	5.00
Profit 10% of $20	2.00
Total.....	$27.00

Let us see what has happened in his case:

Cost of goods	$20.00
Expenses 25% of $27 (instead of $20)....	6.75
Total.....	$26.75
Sale price	27.00

which is .926 per cent (less than one per cent) of the sale and not ten per cent.

The differences between actual and anticipated profit, developed in the above illustrations, are due entirely to the fact that two different bases have been used in arriving at the results. In the first instance the percentage of expense of 25 per cent was arrived at by using the sales at selling prices. In the second instance this percentage was applied to the sales at cost prices. This is the error too often made by business men.

Suppose the cost of a given article or commodity is $1.00 and a merchant wishes to add a margin of 33 1/3 per cent to the selling price, how would he figure it? Adding 33 1/3 per cent to the cost will not give the desired result, because:

33 1/3 per cent of $1.00 equals 33 1/3 cents.
$1.00 plus 33 1/3 cents equals $1.33 1/3, or the selling price.

33 1/3 cents divided by $1.33 1/3 equals 25 per cent.

Hence, instead of earning 33 1/3 per cent on the selling price, as he had planned, the business man would actually earn 25 per cent only, because different bases were used in the calculation.

The following table gives the equivalent percentage to be applied to cost prices in order to secure a given margin of profit on selling prices:

Desired Per Cent on Selling Prices	Corresponding Per Cent on Cost Prices	Desired Per Cent on Selling Prices	Corresponding Per Cent on Cost Prices
26	.351	39	.639
27	.370	40	.666
28	.390	41	.695
29	.410	42	.724
30	.430	43	.754
31	.450	44	.786
32	.471	45	.818
33	.493	46	.852
34	.515	47	.887
35	.538	48	.923
36	.563	49	.961
37	.587	50	1000

Rule for Figuring Percentages

In this matter of figuring percentages the very first thing we must get a firm hold on is this: The sale price represents 100 per cent.

To figure by per cent intelligently we must have somewhere something that represents 100 per cent, which in this case is the sale price.

whole as 100 per cent we immediately get into difficulty. All component parts are measured as 100ths of this 100 per cent. Hence,

If expenses represent	25%
And profit represents	10%
We have accounted for.....	35%
And the cost of the goods must, therefore, represent	65%
Making the sale price.....	100%

In other words, the $20 cost of goods is 65 per cent of the sale price, which sale price is represented by the total of 100 per cent.

In figuring percentages of this kind the following rule must always be observed:

Divide the amount of the cost by the percentage it represents—the answer will be the sale price.

$20 divided by 65 per cent equals $30.77, which should be the selling price of the merchandise, provided the price paid for the goods is $20, expenses are 25 per cent of the sales, and the dealer wishes to make a profit of 10 per cent net.

How do we know this is correct? A method to be of any value must be susceptible to mathematical proof. Let us therefore prove the proposition thus:

Cost of goods.....	65%	of 30.77 equals	$20.00
Expenses	25%	of 30.77 equals	7.69
Profit	10%	of 30.77 equals	3.08
Total.....	100%		$30.77

This method is absolutely correct, whether it is applied to a 50c sale or to a $500 sale.

The selling price is 100 per cent, or the whole. All component parts are represented by 100ths, or percentages of the whole. There is nothing in the entire equation that represents 100 per cent except the selling price. Hence, all percentage computations should be based on the selling price.

Good advertising is 85 per cent brains and 15 per cent goods to back it up. Brains include knowing what to say and how, when and where to say it.

The Radio Dealer and the R C A Sales Policy

The dealer who handles RCA apparatus, who displays the RCA symbol, is more than a customer of ours, more than a trade-outlet. He is an integral part of the RCA organization, as much so as our laboratories, factories, and sales force.

Hence, the sales policy of the Radio Corporation of America considers not only prices, but merchandising helpfulness. It includes the building of public confidence in RCA dealers. It protects the RCA dealer by enabling him to offer only apparatus which has been developed by the foremost research organization in the world and which has been thoroughly tested before it is announced. It is concerned not only with the present, but with the future.

The dealer who is interested in future as well as in present profits cannot afford to associate his good name with apparatus manufactured by mere speculators.

Of These Things the R C A Dealer Can be Sure:

1. The Radio Corporation of America by protecting its own good-will and name protects his.
2. The Radio Corporation of America is an organization that systematically conducts research to improve the art of radio broadcasting and communication. Its Radiolas, Radiotrons and other apparatus always embody the latest approved discoveries. The RCA dealer is always sure of carrying in stock the best apparatus that can be produced at the time.
3. No other radio manufacturing company conducts systematic, nation-wide advertising on such a scale as the Radio Corporation of America for the benefit of the dealer.

Among R C A distributors are the following famous music houses:

ALBANY RADIO CORPORATION, Albany, N. Y.

Making the Telephone a Most Profitable Sales Medium for the Dealer :: :: By J. S. Bell

The telephone can be made not only an effective but a profitable sales medium if it is intelligently used by the bright salesman who is after the elusive record customers. The live talking machine store keeps a list of its customers and when they fail to show up for any reason a call is probably made upon them, or letters sent, informing them of the latest records by eminent instrumentalists or singers. When this doesn't succeed in arousing interest or enthusiasm it has been found very effective to play over the phone some of the newest and best records to the elusive record customer. All that is necessary is to hold the transmitter of the phone close to the amplifier of the talking machine and an excellent reproduction of the record is conveyed to the ear of the listener.

A talking machine salesman, who has had quite some success along this line, told the writer the other day that he had awakened the interest of a great many old customers for records through this medium. It is a well-known fact that a great many users of talking machines tire of the instrument once in a while, and this is largely due to the absence of new records. The playing of the same old pieces time and time again—no matter whether they are classical or jazz—creates a feeling of weariness that results in indifference to the merits of the instrument. This is the class of people the salesman arouses by means of playing records over the phone. He creates a "desire" for records and thus demonstrates his skill as a psychologist and as a salesman.

This little happening illustrates the necessity for constant action, continued attention, even to the minutest phases of merchandising. No salesman can be certain that he has a 100 per cent of satisfied adherents in his list of customers. Human nature is not built that way. There is always a continued flux in the domain of buying as in everything else, but the dealer or the salesman who, by persistent, intelligent efforts, perfects and puts into operation plans that will keep his house and his product well before the attention of his customers is unquestionably bound to reap a larger percentage of sales than those who are content to drift along without making any effort to hold or expand their trade.

The dealer or salesman has an important mission these days. New interest in the talking machine and records must be developed and every effort must be made along these lines. By meeting discouragements with a spirit of optimism and alert persistence there is no question that the salesman on the battle front will succeed in bringing about the much-desired business activity. This Fall and Winter should be distinguished by the absence of sluggards in the sales fields. Men of action are needed who will inaugurate and develop a campaign that should mean high scores in the talking machine sales field.

APPLETON, Wis., October 2.—William H. Nolan, formerly connected with the Louis Buehn Co., of Philadelphia, Pa., has purchased the Carroll Music Shop, this city, from Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Carroll. NEED OF CONSTRUCTIVE PUBLICITY

The need for real constructive advertising—advertising with an idea in it—was never so necessary as to-day, particularly in the retail field. Manufacturers or distributors have really a duty in this respect to their dealers. They must get close to them and lead them into safe and correct paths in the retailing of their products. Where this has been done dealers are manifesting a new spirit in the domains of publicity and salesmanship.

Salesmanship should rarely, if ever, use destructive criticism. Value each piece of merchandise, each musical composition, for its own points and never condemn it for lacking what it does not embody.

Classification of Recordings Lends Force to Sales and Advertising Drives :: By Frank L. Parsons

Unlimited opportunities for bringing his record stock before the public in a forcible manner are open to the merchant who takes advantage of the large variety of recordings which compose his library and turns them to good use in his advertising and window displays. The operas, foreign language records and several types of popular recordings offer unsurpassed material for effective window displays and may also be used as the basis of an advertising campaign in the interests of this branch of the business. The merchant should strive for one result, and one result only—quick stock turnover at a profit, and this can only be brought about by intelligent merchandising, i. e., an appeal to the music-loving public which is different from the average run and which not only sticks in the minds of prospective customers, but which also tends to suggest his store in connection with the goods advertised when a purchase is contemplated. There are three methods of making an appeal of this nature which have been found most productive of results: Advertising, direct-by-mail literature and window displays.

First, let us consider advertising. In comparatively few cases does the dealer use special space in the newspapers to advertise his record stock. In most cases he either combines machines and records in his ads or neglects the latter almost entirely. Of course, most people take it for granted that where talking machines are sold records may also be obtained. While this is true the fact remains that no special effort is made in the advertising to create a desire on the part of owners of machines to buy certain records and, consequently, the dealer sells only those records information of which may have been obtained by the customer from another source and then he may be assured that only people who have been his steady customers will come to him for these selections. This in itself is very well, but the dealer is the loser because his stock turnover depends too much on outside influences and there is nothing to attract new customers who may be purchasing their records from one or more other local establishments.

The following suggestions for an advertising campaign in the interest of the record end of the business should prove of value in stimulating the demand for records of all classes: For the purposes of the campaign list your records according to composers, artists, operas, languages, various musical mediums, such as vocal, orchestra, violin, etc. Now, if it is your desire to push records of a certain composer list these records in an attractive manner in the advertisement. The theme may be carried still further by a very brief sketch of the composer. This adds the human interest touch which is often hard to secure and which is one of the secrets of effective advertising.

There are many people who particularly favor the work of a certain artist and this liking may be taken advantage of by advertising the recordings of the various artists in a manner similar to the above. Of course, one complete advertisement should be devoted to the recordings of a single artist.

The operas, foreign language records and other types of recording could be treated in generally the same manner with excellent results. The foreign language records offer an especially attractive field for advertising of this character. In every community people of a certain nationality predominate and in the larger cities there are Slovak, Italian and German sections, the people of which the dealer can reach in this manner. Special care should be exercised to display the ads in such a manner that they will attract the attention of these people. If there are any foreign language papers in your community make it a point to advertise recordings of the nationality represented by the newspaper through that medium. For example, if there is an Italian newspaper in your city reach the readers through that paper and advertise only records made in the Italian language. The operas are especially popular with these people. The same plan should be followed if there is a local Jewish newspaper, etc.

The dealer should strive to break the monotony by giving to each advertisement an individual touch, so that the interest of the public will not wane and that, on the contrary, they will begin to look for the ads. Each advertisement should also tell a story designed to, first, attract attention; second, arouse interest, and last, but not least, stimulate action. The latter is really the reason for all advertising. If there were no possibility of action—that is, the desire for ownership carried out by making a purchase—there would be no use in spending good money for advertising.

Another form of advertising is direct-by-mail literature. In this case many dealers have departed from the old method of merely sending the record supplements to the list of customers each month and are employing various new and more or less effective means of increasing their sales. Most of the departures from the old methods consist merely of a letter to the prospect containing a list of the records which the dealer thinks will please the particular prospect to whom it is sent. Sometimes, also, a postcard containing the same message is sent. Now, this plan has proved extremely profitable to those dealers who have employed it, but there is little doubt that, if it were enlarged the returns would increase in an equal measure. The advertising campaign carried on in the newspapers could be supplemented by sending direct-by-mail literature to customers. This literature should carry out the ideas suggested in the newspaper advertising. Probably the most effective stunt would be to alternate; that is, while the advertising centers around the works of a certain composer the direct-by-mail literature should con-

It is easy to sell what you believe in!

THE great success of the phonograph business rests on the fact that in practically every human being is a lively hunger for good music. In the exact degree to which you can satisfy that hunger your sales will increase—no more, no less.

As a phonograph and record merchant are you fully aware of the musical beauty of Columbia Records?

In selling Columbia Records do you know you can truthfully say, "In all the realm of music there is nothing finer than the selections which bear the Columbia mark."

If you can say this with solid conviction and prove it, can't you see how Columbia Records will sell themselves? You can easily prove this fact to yourself so completely that nothing can unsell you. You can prove it to your customers in the same way.

For instance—"A Dream," by Bartlett, Columbia Record A-79287, is one of the most beautiful lyric ballads ever written. As sung by Charles Hackett, it is one of the most beautiful records ever made. Other artists have sung this song for other record makers, giving their interpretations. They are excellent. But Hackett has given it a touch of tender sweetness and sympathy beyond compare. His voice, his way of singing it are exquisitely perfect. When the song is ended and the listener rouses from his reverie he wants that little chunk of rapture for his own.

Do you know this Columbia Record? Have you ever compared it closely with the same selection in any other make? Do it and you'll be absolutely convinced that "A Dream" as Columbia has made it has never been equaled. Make the same comparison for any customer and he will prefer the Columbia rendition to any other. Don't take our word for this. Test it out on yourself or your customers.

Another example—Columbia Record 49666 is a tenor and baritone selection by Hackett and Stracciari of the "Solenne in quest ora" duet from Verdi's opera, "La Forza del Destino." If one is familiar with this song, as made by other record manufacturers, one knows the song to expect. But when one listens to these two magnificent voices as they blend and burst into the enchanting harmonies of this operatic gem he listens fascinated. It is a thrill of complete musical satisfaction that is as rare as it is wonderful.

If you haven't heard this Columbia Record you have a treat ahead. Get it! Let its beauty sink into you. Then get records of the same selection as made by others. They are great, too, but any one with or without a trained ear will say the Columbia recording and the beautiful balance of the voices in the Columbia Record are infinitely better. Play these competing records, one after the other, to any customer, don't tell him which is which, and he will tell you to wrap up the Columbia.

Columbia

Are you aware of the veritable gold mine of fine music which Columbia Records offer you as customer winners and profit makers?

Are you able right now to play for your customers a programme that will give them a fair idea of the excellence of Columbia music?

If you want to stamp Columbia quality into the minds of your customers so they will never forget it, we suggest you order the following Columbia Records, then get their competitors and make a demonstration. Play them incognito and you'll be more than surprised at the result.

"A Dream." Tenor Solo. "Souvenir." Violin Solo.
Charles Hackett. 79287. Kerekjarto. 79708.

"La Forza del Destino" "Fiddle and I." Soprano (Solenne in quest ora). Solo. Hulda Lashanska.
Hackett and Stracciari. 78391.
49666.

"Pirate Dreams." Soprano

"One Fine Day." Soprano Solo. Hulda Lashanska.
Solo. Rosa Ponselle. 49571. 77878.

After all, you and Columbia are not selling records. We are in the wonderful business of selling happiness, pleasure, amusement. The name Columbia on the record, the name of the selection, the name of the artist are, so many handles by which the buyer grasps identification.

CLASSIFICATION OF RECORDINGS

centrate on the recordings of a certain artist or opera. When the "composer" campaign is concluded the direct-by-mail literature should bring these recordings forcibly to the attention of the public, thus the repetition will have its full effect and the dealer is practically certain that his campaign has reached the attention of those who for some reason have failed to notice it in the newspapers and, furthermore, those people who have made up their minds to purchase certain records and have let the matter slip their minds will be reminded and more sales will result. The completeness of an advertising campaign determines its effectiveness and no opportunity should be neglected to round out the drive in such a way that the greatest possible force will be given to it. The money spent will be found a sound investment and once the dealer realizes what he can accomplish by well-directed advertising he will never return to haphazard methods.

Undoubtedly one of the most important means of bringing talking machines and records before the public is through the medium of attractive window displays. A wise plan is to tie up the window display with the advertising campaign and the plan suggested for moving records through publicity can be visualized and amplified through the window display. Take, for example, the records made by McCormack. A number of these placed in an attractively arranged window are bound to be more effective than a conglomerate mass of discs of various kinds. A neatly printed card in the window should explain the nature of the display and contain a list of McCormack's recordings and, if possible, a large picture of this artist should be placed in a conspicuous position. A window display of this character is not only sales producing in its effect, but it is inexpensive. These displays also have the advantage of being quickly made and, therefore, the dealer can change them more frequently than would be the case where an elaborate layout is used.

ANENT COAL SUPPLY FOR TRADE

Music Industries Chamber of Commerce Addresses Letter to Federal Fuel Distributor Setting Forth Requirements of Industry

In addition to its recent appeal to the governors of fourteen States for consideration of the needs of the music industry in the matter of coal, the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce has addressed letters to the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Federal Fuel Distributor at Washington, D. C., calling attention to the requirements of the industry and the set-back to its recovery from two years of dull business which a coal shortage would cause between now and the first of the year.

The letter points out that a recent survey made by the Chamber shows that retailers' stocks of musical instruments are now at a minimum and they are depending upon heavy shipments of merchandise from the factories during October, November and December to provide stocks for the anticipated Fall and holiday business.

Replies received from the fourteen governors to whom letters on this subject had previously been written indicate that the interests of the music industry will receive consideration either from them or from the fuel administrators who have already been appointed in many States.

The Greensboro Music Co., Victor dealer, of Greensboro, N. C., is featuring the Victor line in a series of excellent window displays, which are deservedly attracting considerable attention in that city and locality.

Okeh Factories Are Working Day and Night

Three years ago Okeh Lateral Records made their first bow to the public. A few dance numbers and a popular song or two comprised the list.

Today—Okeh factories are working day and night to supply the demand. Today—the Okeh line has expanded to include every musical classification, and beyond—Okeh releases each month the greatest number of dance recordings. Okeh originally discovered and made commercially possible the negro record business. Okeh brought from Europe and established in this country the finest repertoires of foreign language records in existence.

Okeh Has Grown!

Okeh dance records have gained a national reputation for their clearness, pep and novelty. Organizations like Lopez, Markels, Samuels, Raderman and others, famous as dance music exponents, have made them supreme where there is dancing.

Okeh discovered Mamie Smith and developed the negro record business to its present proportions. Okeh has the most complete repertoires of foreign language records, actually recorded in the homeland by native artists. Through special arrangements with Europe's leading record companies Okeh dealers can offer records recorded in Europe, the home of Opera, by world-famous operatic and concert artists.

This list of classifications opposite, will give you an idea of the extensiveness of the Okeh line.

We are proud to announce that Okeh Records are manufactured 100% in our own factories. Every record issued must measure up to the high standard of quality we have set for our product.

In the past three years Okeh Records have made such rapid strides that additional factory equipment has been necessary. The new equipment just added will enable us to speed up production and give Okeh dealers a larger and better service.

Likewise, our policy of steady growth extends to our laboratory. We have endeavored to give Okeh dealers records by artists of reputation. Sophie Tucker, Vincent Lopez and His Hotel Pennsylvania Orchestra, Markels Orchestra, Gerald Griffin, Mamie Smith, Rega Dance Orchestra, and other well-known artists and organizations have signed contracts to record only for Okeh Records. This policy is sales insurance for our dealers, reserving for them alone the sales value accruing when these artists can be heard only on Okeh Records.

"THAT BOOB" GOES SHOPPING

By EDWARD FRASER CARSON

Edward Fraser Carson

"That boob dunno what he wants."

I had been in a phonograph store on upper Broadway looking for a particular record. I had not found it. And I was leaving empty-handed when the "salesman," who had been annoyed by my efforts, turned to a friend who was loitering in the store and I heard him say:

"That boob dunno what he wants."

But the "salesman" was dead wrong. "That boob" DID know just what he wanted. He also knew what he didn't want and that included some of the jazz stuff that the salesman had tried to unload. "That boob" went to another store a block further on and there found what he wanted. He found more. He found a polite salesman who took an interest in his problem. And one result was that he bought three records instead of the one he had gone in to purchase.

That remark of the first "salesman" is likely to prove a costly one for his employer. It is true that there was no loss of immediate business for, presumably, he did not have the record I wanted, although even on that point I am still in doubt. But it is obvious that when I am next in search of a record I shall give a wide berth to that particular store. Also my friends have heard of my experience and it is likely that they, too, will not be likely to put themselves in the way of an insolent clerk.

That particular salesman is typical of a class of young men in the business world who are always at odds with their job. It is no doubt annoying to them to have to wait on "boobs" who come in to look and not to buy. Doubtless there are many such people in the world. But it is the task of the real salesman to turn a looker into a buyer. That is what he is paid for. He is the young man who realizes that if there were no lookers there would be fewer buyers. And fewer buyers would mean fewer salesmen and less money for those who were left—for they would only need to be order-takers—and order-takers may be had cheap at any time.

The remark of that young salesman showed his attitude of mind and that in turn is the cause of the continual shifting about of a large, a too large number of youths who are always looking for "a better job." Also it is the reason that the remark is heard so frequently nowadays that it is "almost impossible to get a good man."

Just put yourself in the position of the shopper. That ought to be easy, for every salesman is a buyer—has frequent needs and has to fill them. You know—or think you know—what you want. But whether you do know or not you do not feel that just because you went into a store you necessarily must buy something. You don't feel that you have got to spend some money just to satisfy and salve the feelings of the salesman.

Time was in this country when to go into a store meant a sort of moral obligation to make a purchase. That is the shopkeeper's idea in the big cities of Europe today. So definite is this feeling that unless one has a real intention to buy he will not—if he is wise—go into the small store of London, Paris or any other large city. If he does go in and leave without buying he is sure to hear just such comments as I have quoted.

Progressive American merchants realize that everyone who enters their store is not necessarily a buyer just at that time. But they know that he—or she—is a potential buyer to-morrow and that it is the part of good business to make the shopper so welcome to-day that he will be a buyer to-morrow.

The salesman of to-day is the merchant of to-morrow. Somewhere in this land, working as a clerk or salesman, is the big successful merchandiser of to-morrow. And that young man is laying the foundation for his future success by giving as careful attention to the "boob" who doesn't know what he wants as he gives to the buyer with money in his hand.

Are you laying such a foundation?

ENJOYS VACATION IN BERMUDA

Harold J. Lamor, manager of the sales and order departments of Collings & Co., the well-known Victor distributors of Newark, N. J., spent the early part of September in Bermuda. Mr. Lamor was accompanied by his wife. The young couple had a most enjoyable vacation in that Southern island.

YOUNG PEOPLE BUY MOST RECORDS

Advertising Campaign Directed Toward Young People of Community Is Bound to Bring Results in Sales of Popular Records

Music and youth go hand in hand, and it is to the young people of the community that the dealer should address much of his advertising and other sales plans at least in equal proportion to the efforts made to secure the attention of the older folks. The parents purchase a machine for their own pleasure and also for a greater and, to them, more important reason—the entertainment of their children. The great bulk of the records sold to-day are purchased by the younger generation. They want music with a great deal of snap and vim; the kind of melodies that induce the pedal extremities to glide into a dreamy waltz or a fast fox-trot.

Unlimited possibilities for publicity and, consequently, more sales of talking machines and records are offered dealers through the appeal to the young and in behalf of the young folks. Bring forcibly to the mind of young men and women of the community the possibilities of entertainment through the talking machine and point out to them the value of the latest records in this connection and the chances are that record business will make rapid gains.

The older people, the parents, can be appealed to on behalf of their children. Any father and mother will invest in a talking machine or, if one is already owned, in the latest records of the kind preferred by their children if they can be convinced that it is wise to buy.

RECORD ADS FOR DEALER'S USE

Writer in Printers' Ink Suggests Record Sales Talk on Records to Be Played by Dealers.

"Yesterday I went to lunch with Bill," says C. L. Funnell, in Printers' Ink. "He's an agency man; an inveterate agency man. He's interested in everything, Bill is. And his mind is more interrogative than that of the gentleman who celebrated the income tax blanks.

"Right after lunch Bill steered me into a music store while he bought his wife some new records for her birthday. He got halfway in and stopped.

"Why the deuce doesn't some phonograph company do it?" he inquired in astonishment.

"Maybe it costs money," I suggested. "What is it, by the way?"

"Make a bunch of records with a sales talk on them like this:

"Yes, this is the place. This is the store where they sell Crystal Records. Clear as a drop of dew. The new October records have just been received from the factory and they include the latest song hits from 'I Can if You Can,' 'Blooie-Blooie' and 'Winter's Came.' Listen to these six bars from the chorus of 'Your Eyes Were So Blue That I Thought You Were Sad': Plink-a-plink-a-plink, deedle-de-dum-de-doo. Complete record on sale inside for 79 cents. Come right in."

"Bill paused for breath. I started to answer his question, but he was off again.

"The phonograph people could make those records up fresh every month and send 'em out to all the dealers. Dealers play 'em in front of the store. Loud needle. Pull business right in. Why don't they do it?"

The pianos exhibited included the Steinway grand, a Duo-Art, a Ludwig and one or two other models, and there were frequent demonstrations given. Among the small instruments the saxophone attracted particular attention

Dyer & Bro.'s Handsome Musical Display from some hundreds of young men, many of them non-residents, who expressed their desire of soon owning one of those instruments.

W. J. Dyer & Bro. have exhibited at the Minnesota State Fair for a number of years and have always found the venture a profitable one.

OCCUPYING NEW ENCORE PLANT

New Factory at 290 Chestnut Street, Newark, Gives Encore Repeater Co. Splendid Facilities for Large Output—Reports Growing Demand

NEWARK, N. J., October 4.—The Encore Repeater Co., manufacturer of Encore record replays, has taken possession of its new factory at 290 Chestnut street, this city. It is stated that the new factory has capacity for an estimated output of from 1,500 to 2,000 Encore record replays. M. S. Davis, president of the Encore Sales Co., New York City, factory distributor for the company, reports that the sales of Encore replays are increasing substantially and that the new plant was an absolute necessity to take care of the demand. Mr. Davis expects that this demand will continue strongly, at least through the balance of the year.

An attractive new music store was recently opened in Elkhart, Ind., by Robert Stewart and Louis F. Schultz. The establishment handles talking machines and musical instruments of all kinds.

Necessity of Definite Standard by Which to Measure Results Accomplished :: By A. M. Burroughs

Burroughs Adding Machine Co.

To operate a business successfully it is necessary that you have some definite standards by which to measure results accomplished. You must have a mark to shoot at. After an analysis of your territory and its prospects you may find, for example, that you can reasonably anticipate an annual sales volume of $36,000.00. Then divide it like this:

$36,000.00—Annually
3,000.00—Monthly
693.00—Weekly
116.00—Daily (six-day week)

Your daily sales quota is $116.00, but right now is the time to see if that will yield an adequate profit after your daily expense has been deducted.

Make a chart of the daily expense that is involved when you open your doors every morning. The business month will consist of twenty-six days, and each week of six days in applying rent, light, heat, etc. The figures given below are used simply as an illustration of the principle only. In practice these accounts must be carefully based on actual conditions.

Rent	$5.75
Light, heat and power	2.00
Postage, telephone and telegraph	1.00
Interest paid and cash discount given	1.00
Salaries	9.00
Taxes and insurance	2.00
Shop expenses	3.25
Advertising	2.50
Depreciation	1.20
General expenses50

$28.20

In these expenses a salary is included for the proprietor. This is a part of the expense. You should draw your salary as any other employe of the business. It must be included in the salary amount if you are to have a true basis for figuring profit.

Cash discount given is rent paid for money just as truly as interest, so that item is included in the expenses. Depreciation is actually figured annually. It should, however, be estimated and charged monthly. At the end of the year an adjustment can be made.

From our daily charts we find that our anticipated sales are $116.00 daily, and our fixed expense at least $28.20 daily.

$ 87.80

This leaves $87.80 for the cost of goods sold. For purposes of illustration we will say that you mark up your merchandise 30 per cent on sales (and all mark-up should be figured on selling price). Perhaps your mark-up is larger or smaller. Conditions vary in different locali-

Talking Machine Dealers Who Desire to Win in Business Must Shoot at a Definite Mark So as to Score ties. Using 30 per cent, then your gross profit will be:

Thirty per cent of $116.00	$34.80
Expense	28.20

Net profit

Per cent net profit

This is not an adequate return for the time, effort and capital invested. It would give you only about $2,000.00 net return on annual sales of $36,000.00. To increase net profit you must do one or more of three things—

1. Increase selling prices.
2. Increase sales volume.
3. Decrease expenses.

Competition and established sales policies have fixed the selling prices and for this reason you cannot increase the mark-up.

But the last two factors are within your control. You can possibly increase your net profit by both increasing sales and lessening expense. Better service, a more intelligent cultivation of territory and greater sales effort will increase the sales volume. You can add at least $9.00 per day to your sales by these means.

By careful use of light and by adopting other economies you should save 25 cents per day. You can probably save 25 cents a day in the store by eliminating wastes and lost time. Possibly a salary saving of 50 cents per day may be made in the salary account.

On this basis refigure the daily quota of sales and expense and profit.

SALES
$39,000.00—Annually
3,250.00—Monthly
750.00—Weekly
125.00—Daily

EXPENSES
Rent	$ 5.75
Light, heat and power	1.75
Postage, telephone and telegraph	1.00
Interest paid and cash discount given	1.00
Salaries	8.50
Taxes and insurance	2.00
Shop expense	3.00
Advertising	2.50
Depreciation	1.20
General expense50

$27.20

PROFIT
Thirty per cent of $125.00	$ 37.50
Expense	27.20

Net profit

Per cent of net profit

Net profit on $39,000.00 annual sales

If 30 per cent is your gross profit and your fixed daily expense is $27.20, then you must sell each day $90.70 worth of goods before you have made a cent of profit.

For 30 per cent of $90.70—$27.20 daily expense.

Then 30 per cent of every additional dollar sold is net profit.

Set up this daily quota. Keep a record of it. Compare your actual sales with your quota daily. Quota should be your minimum performance. When you fail to make your daily quota, add the deficit to the following day.

MANY NEW PATHE DEALERS BOOKED

Greatly increased business is reported by H. T. Leeming, of the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co., Brooklyn, N. Y. "Not only have we received largely increased orders from the dealers now on our books," stated Mr. Leeming, "but many new dealers have been added. I can state without exaggeration that we are now adding new retailers at the rate of one a day. Both Pathé and Actuelle records are in heavy demand and the outlook for the future is bright."

"Better Safe Than Sorry!"

When the end of this year has come, every Victor dealer will be either safe or sorry. It has not been an easy year to reckon with. Until very recently no one could know for certain whether 1922 would mark the come-back of business or would be just another year of waiting.

But the die has been cast. Every bit of available proof shows that 1922 is destined to go down in history as the time of economic restoration in America.

What have you done to assure your participation in the prevailing prosperity as a Victor dealer? If you have not been lulled entirely to sleep by the indifferent business of a year ago, you realize that now there is not a moment to be lost in safeguarding a continuous supply of goods for fall and winter—yes, and spring's—requirements.

The Victor Company looked far ahead, as did many of the Victor jobbers. Copious stocks of Victor Talking Machines and Victor Records were accumulated by the far-sighted ones. But the torrent of demand that is breaking loose is shooting the supply full of holes. Retail stocks are proving to be shorter than any of us bargained for.

The outlook is that within a very few weeks every particle of goods that can be obtained from the Victor Company will have its retail destination waiting before it reaches the wholesaler's stockroom.

Get your needs into the hands of your wholesaler today, Mr. Victor Dealer, before your competitor's needs have secured priority with him! For certainly he cannot sell you goods he does not know you want to buy!

The Talking Machine World in its September editorial warns, "There is evidence of increased industrial activity and agricultural prosperity, based on bumper crops in most sections, that promises a volume of demand that will tax retailing facilities. The period of liquidation in the retail talking machine trade is practically at an end, and there should be nothing to interfere with a very substantial Fall business that will measure up fully to the most optimistic expectations. In fact, the question promises to be not that of getting business but rather that of getting sufficient stock to handle it promptly and to the best advantage."

FAR BETTER IS IT TO BE SAFE THAN SORRY!

FREDERICK & NELSON ADD SONORA

Well-known Seattle Firm Becomes Sonora Agency—Deal Closed by Magnavox Co.

SEATTLE, WASH., October 3.—E. E. Graham, Northwestern representative of the Magnavox Co., Sonora distributor on the Pacific Coast, reports that he has just granted a Sonora agency to Frederick & Nelson, of this city. The addition of this distinguished establishment will undoubtedly lend a greater dignity to the fine array of high-class general merchandise stores throughout the United States that are adding the Sonora in ever increasing numbers. Mr. Graham reports that conditions in the Northwest are fast improving and this means a great stimulus to the talking machine business in general.

GETTING THE FOOTBALL ATMOSPHERE

The baseball season is nearly at an end; football is now the vogue, and dealers would do well, particularly in centers of football activity, to give a coloring or atmosphere to their window displays during the football season. This may be done by including in their exhibits of talking machines and records the paraphernalia used by the football enthusiasts, embodying if desired the colors of the colleges or universities of national celebrity.

SCHWARTZ BROS. OPEN FINE STORE

NORWICH, CONN., October 1.—One of the most recent additions to the talking machine stores in this city is that of Schwartz Bros., who held their formal opening last month. The store is advantageously located in attractive quarters at 76-82 Main street. A host of friends and prospective customers attended the formal opening, which was featured by music and dancing. Souvenirs were distributed to those present.

DEMAND FOR "DAILY DOZEN" GROWS

Immense Orders Being Received for Walter Camp's Health Builders' Course—New Publication Will Bear Title of "The Health Builder"—Many New Dealers Add Line

Health Builders, Inc., New York City, producer of the Health Builders' course of Walter Camp's "Daily Dozen" set to music on talking machine records, is experiencing greatly increased business—orders are coming from all parts of the country.

Robert B. Wheelan, president of the company, reports business at the present time as far ahead of the good months of last Spring. The mail order end of the business is almost double and talking machine dealers are sending in greatly increased orders. A large number of new dealers have also been added. The Fall advertising campaign has already started with appreciable results and good business is looked forward to for the balance of the year.

Doubleday, Page & Co., publishers of "World's Work," "Country Life," "Garden Magazine" and other well-known publications, and who are interested in Health Builders, Inc., have announced the issuance of a new publication on October 15. It will bear the name of "The Health Builder." Its editorial contents will be concerned with the development and conservation of the health of the individual and it will cover subjects such as exercises, hygiene and diet. It is expected that this new publication will have a decidedly favorable effect upon the sale of Health Builders' records, as it is widely acknowledged that Walter Camp's "Daily Dozen" set to music has aroused national interest in health, considered individually and collectively.

The Eclipse Talking Machine Co., of Paterson, N. J., has purchased a three-story brick building, at 169 Main street, for $85,000.

STEWART CO. FILES SCHEDULES

Meeting of Creditors Held in Office of Referee George Crowe to Prove Claims

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., October 3.—The liabilities of the Stewart Phonograph Co. are $294,570.27 and its assets are $1,050,881.81, according to the schedule filed recently with George J. H. Crowe, United States Referee in Bankruptcy. And $950,000 of the assets claimed by the company represent the value that the company places on its copyrights and patents from the United States Government.

Included in the assets of the company, as filed in the schedule, are the value of the property they own minus mortgages and other encumbrances to the value of $32,299.49; machinery and tools, $21,722.39, and other property and assets to the value of about $40,000. The largest item of the assets, however, is the amount claimed by the company to represent the value of its patents, as registered in the United States Patent Office relative to phonographs and improvements thereon. Another item on the list of assets is $8,696.30 on outstanding bills owed the company.

There are 1,617 creditors to whom the company owes $294,570.27. About 1,500 of these represent persons who paid a dollar down for a phonograph which the company accepted on order but failed to execute.

The largest single creditor is A. W. Lueke, of Cleveland, who has claims of $4,911.91 on the company in secured claims and $106,658.16 in unsecured claims, representing loans. The company owes the United States $6,591.21 in internal revenue taxes, the tax commission of New York State $1,555.70 and the city of Binghamton for taxes, $439.20.

The first meeting of the creditors was held at Referee Crowe's office here on October 3 to elect a receiver and prove their claims.

MESSAGE OF CHEER TO CREDIT MEN

Says Industry Is Prepared for a Slow but Sure Improvement—Deplores Strikes—Credit Conditions Show Decided Improvement.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., October 6.—"The commercial wreckage has been cleared away and we are ready for a slow but sure improvement in business," declared J. H. Tregoe, of New York, executive head of the National Association of Credit Men, at the annual meeting here.

"We are all set for a complete recovery, but, as the National Association of Credit Men has been pointing out during the past few months, there is no boom in sight," Secretary Tregoe continued.

"The strikes are settled for the time being, but I cannot feel that the strike problem in this country has been settled at all. The strike is a clumsy, costly and ineffective method of adjusting trade disputes. Like every other archaic piece of mechanism it will disappear. Meanwhile the credit man's gospel of co-operation and hard, intelligent work can perhaps help to get things right.

"Credit conditions have improved partly because of the liquidation of hundreds of businesses founded on false theories and suffering from reckless management. The extravagance of the past few years has been wiped out and business and agriculture have paid a heavy bill for their improvidences. By the exercise of economy and by the good crops of the present year the farmer is coming back into the market. This can but have the most healthy effect upon general business.

"The National Association of Credit Men feels extremely confident of the future of the nation's business, but we are under no delusion. We know that prosperity, when it comes, will be the result of continuous and thoughtful labors on the part of all elements of business."

PHONOGRAPH SHOP PLANS NEW STORE

Victrola and Sonora Dealer, of San Francisco, Making Extensive Changes in Equipment to Permit of More Efficient Service

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., September 28.—The Phonograph Shop, 109 Stockton street, Sonora and Victrola dealer, this city, is completely remodeling and will be ready for the opening of the new store about October 1. Very decided changes will be made in the present equipment and furnishings and the entrance and show windows are being decidedly changed to give them a more refined and roomy appearance. An entire new scheme of decorating will be adopted and the method of lighting the individual record rooms will be with pedestal lamps instead of the customary ceiling lights.

The system of handling the Victor and Vocalion Red records has also been changed very materially, which will also aid the service given the patrons.

A very material increase in business should result on account of these substantial changes.

SHOW TALKING MOVIES IN BERLIN

Public Presentation of German Invention in German Capital Arouses Wide Interest—Same Principle as DeForest's Invention

Talking moving pictures, presented for the first time in the Alhambra Theatre, Berlin, Germany, are arousing wide interest in that country among scientists. Among those who watched the initial performance was Professor Albert Einstein. The invention, the work of Hans Vogt and Joseph Masolle, is similar in principle to that recently announced by Lee DeForest, who is planning to present his invention in New York in the near future.

Although the German invention leaves much room for improvement, the synchronization between the picture and various sounds, such as music and the human voice, was perfect. During the demonstration it was found that violin music was reproduced more efficiently than other sounds. The human voice was far from perfectly reproduced and much improvement must necessarily be made before the invention will be feasible for use in theatres.

As in Mr. DeForest's invention the sound is literally photographed on the same film which is used to record the action. The microphone vibrations of sounds cause violet rays to record on a selenium tube, and thus when the film is projected the sounds issue from the film in perfect synchronization with the action.

IMPROVING VOCAL MUSIC BY RADIO

Frank La Forge, Pianist and Musical Coach, Advances Interesting Theory of Value of Radio in Improving Articulation

A novel yet convincing theory of broadcasting's direct benefit to vocal music is offered by Frank La Forge, pianist and well-known musical coach, in the current issue of Wireless Age.

Mr. La Forge calls attention to the fact that so much of a concert is lost to the audience at present due to careless diction on the part of the singer. Having the music and his personality to rely on, he or she is content to let the lyric go by default, thus frequently losing the best and most beautiful part of the song. Mr. La Forge believes that broadcasting will develop a school of more careful elocutionists, since by radio it is altogether necessary that the words be clearly articulated in order to obtain the maximum of pleasure from the concert. He says in part:

"When we have a concert or an opera or a musical comedy, or any entertainment where the one who entertains is visible to the audience, proper voice cultivation is not by any means the only point of importance. The audience can see the singer, it can see the action, but in a large measure the American audience has not placed a great amount of importance on the words of the song. In the case of the radio-telephone, however, everything except the actual voice is eliminated and for that reason it is highly necessary, in order to give the audience the pleasure it expects, for the singer to have proper diction, in order that every syllable, and I might say every letter of every word, may be made audible. Too many singers cannot do this.

"In fact, faulty diction is general not only among entertainers, but is common throughout our country in every walk of life. The next time some one telephones listen a little more sharply than usual and discover for yourself how clumsily the speaker on the other end slides over important consonants. Vowels invariably are easy to be understood, but when it comes to pronouncing consonants clearly American people fail.

"Unless the artists who sing over the radio-telephone are experts in the art of proper diction, radio audiences will soon tire of hearing them. And there is nothing that the audience can do about it."

Let not a day pass, if possible, without having heard some fine music, read a noble poem, or seen a beautiful picture.—Goethe.

FACTS FOR DISCOURAGED SALESMEN

Insurance Salesman Gives His Viewpoint on Action When He Fails to Make a Sale—Law of Averages Obtains as a General Rule

Talking machine salesmen who are easily discouraged when they fail to close expected sales should take a lesson from the experience of a successful live insurance salesman, who, in a talk with one of the executives of the Putnam-Page Co., Peoria, Ill., remarked: "I do not get discouraged if I go some time without making a sale. Immediate earnings per call over monthly and quarterly periods remain practically constant. I first discovered this in book selling. My earnings then averaged one dollar to a call. If I made 150 calls a month, I made $150; if 175 calls, $175, and so on. It was really surprising how steadily the average was maintained.

"In insurance my average remains equally constant, around $17 a call. It hardly varies over quarterly periods, except for a slight gradual gain due to increasing experience.

"So when I make a dozen calls without a sale I feel as if I had earned the money just the same. I have gone for as long as three weeks without a sale; but so often had I seen the rule of averages work out that I did not feel downhearted. And sure enough, I made my average for the quarter."

This plan would help any salesman and be particularly encouraging to the talking machine salesman who becomes despondent once in a while when he can't close that sure-fire sale.

BUYS OAKLAND VICTOR BUSINESS

The Oakland branch of the California Phonograph Co. was purchased recently by Harry N. Chesebrough. The new proprietor has remodeled the store, adding new record demonstration rooms and enlarging the record stock. Victrolas and Victor records will be featured.

D. A. CREED VISITS VICTOR CO.

A recent visitor to the Victor Talking Machine Co. headquarters in Camden, N. J., was Daniel A. Creed, vice-president of the Chicago Talking Machine Co., Chicago, Ill. He also stopped at the headquarters of the New York Talking Machine Co. for a conference with Arthur D. Geissler, president.

The John Breuner Co., of Oakland, Cal., has inaugurated a special display and selling campaign on the Walter Camp Daily Dozen records, which are very popular in that territory.

MUSIC APPRECIATION FOR CHILDREN

Victor Shop, of Lebanon, Ill., Starts Classes in Music Appreciation for Children

LEBANON, ILL., October 4.—The Victor Shop here has started a class in music appreciation and exercises for children ranging in age from six to fourteen years, under the supervision of Miss Estella Heumann.

The Board of Education of the Lebanon public school has given the privilege of using the school hall, where Miss Heumann will meet with the boys and girls every Wednesday morning at the hour of nine o'clock.

The purpose of this work is to interest little children in good music. This is accomplished by the use of Victor records and by telling a story pertaining to the selection in question.

Exercising to music is another feature of the program, using the Victor exercise records. Marching and singing is also introduced.

REVIVAL OF BUSINESS EVIDENT

Phil Ravis, Head of the Peerless Album Co., Tells of Conditions in the West—Everything Points to a Big Fall and Winter Trade

Phil Ravis, head of the Peerless Album Co., 636 Broadway, New York City, recently returned from a trade trip through the Middle West. He stated that business is taking on renewed activity in all of the territory which he visited and there seemed to be very little doubt that the Fall months would see a revival of business such as we have not had for two or three years.

Among other places Mr. Ravis spent some time in Chicago making his annual call on his friends in that city. Here he found dealers particularly enterprising and most optimistic as regards the Fall outlook. He urged dealers everywhere to stock goods well in advance. Those who do not plan ahead will find a shortage of products in some lines.

Mr. Ravis took particular pleasure in introducing the new Peerless record-carrying case. The sales of this new product are already quite active and many dealers, he said, are finding it an additional money-maker. The record-carrying case can also be used for sheet music and player rolls and many dealers are making sales for such use by purchasers. It will accommodate twenty-five ten or twelve-inch records, is substantially built with brass trimmings, with double strap fasteners and a suit case handle.

The arrival of cooler weather should stimulate salesmen to renewed efforts in selling records.

GREATEST ECONOMIC REVIVAL NATION HAS EVER KNOWN

Reasons Why Retailers of Talking Machines and Records Should Be Alive to the Opportunities Confronting Them—Spirited and Timely Message From Unit Construction Co.

A spirited message of optimism is to be found in a recent communication from the Unit Construction Co., Philadelphia, Pa., manufacturer of Unico equipment for talking machine warehouses, which was sent to the talking machine trade. The practical settlement of the various strikes is summed up in the following expression: "American industry has overcome the last obstacle in the way of the greatest economic revival the nation has ever known." It is pointed out that this economic revival is getting under momentum just sixty days in advance of the greatest annual harvest period for retail musical merchandise, embracing the three months starting November 15 and extending to February 15. It is claimed that 50 per cent of the total annual retail business of the music trades is normally accomplished during this period. For the merchant who is properly prepared it is predicted it will be a reaping of profits in all probability exceeding those of any previous years of experience; for the "I'll wait and see" merchant it will be a season of regrets and lost opportunities.

Preparedness is described as consisting, first, of a sales organization that is sold on the fact that business revival has actually arrived; second, a sufficient stock of merchandise to supply the increased demand; and, third, sales facilities, modern and efficient, and ample enough to back up the sales organization and properly house and display the merchandise, thus rendering satisfactory service to the customer.

It is reported that during the past sixty days far-seeing merchants have been putting their houses in order. This activity has not been confined to any one section of the country, nor to any particular class of dealer. Over 100 orders for Unico equipment were received at the headquarters of the company in a period extending from August 1 to September 15. These orders were received from fifty-eight cities in twenty-five States and ranged in value from $100 or less to $40,000 each. The Unit Construction Co. has now eleven branches situated at strategic points throughout the country, thus making possible a maximum of service to every dealer, no matter where located. All these branches are going energetically after business with excellent results. It is stated that a large stock of Unico equipment in a wide variety of designs is on hand, completely finished and ready for immediate shipment, allowing instant improvement of talking machine warehouses of a given dealer in advance of Fall and holiday activity. This is ample evidence that forward-looking dealers are preparing for a busy Fall season.

SALES TALK ON RECORDS EFFECTIVE

Stove Company Supplies Dealers With Sales Talk on Talking Machine Records—Dealers Pay for Privilege—New Field of Operation

From time to time the use of talking machines and records by large concerns to stimulate sales of their products have been brought to light, especially more recently, indicating that the talking machine is becoming constantly stronger in the field of commerce along other lines than the sale of these instruments as reproducers of music. One of the most recent concerns to realize the value of talking machines and records in sales promotion work is the Estate Stove Co., of Hamilton, O., manufacturer of the Estate Heatrola, a heater for the home which is very much similar in appearance to the talking machine.

The product of this concern is handled by many furniture and hardware stores, a majority of which also handle a line of talking machines. Accordingly, the Estate Stove Co. boiled down its principal selling points to a concise selling talk, which was recorded on an ordinary talking machine record. These records were distributed to a number of dealers, who found them a valuable aid in making sales of the company's product. The plan became so popular and the demand for records so great that the company had no difficulty in obtaining 75 cents for each record. The company, which makes a specialty of demonstrations at country fairs, is planning to use the talking machine in this connection. Each one of the demonstrators is to be supplied with the record and a talking machine, which, the company is confident, will make the demonstrations much more effective.

BRUNSWICK TEACHES BIRDS TO SING

There is a man in St. Louis who is using a Brunswick talking machine to teach canaries how to sing. He bought it the other day at the store of the Lehman Piano Co. He told Mark Mayer, who made the sale, that the canaries were so encouraged by the talking machine that they started to sing three months sooner than they otherwise would.

It is obvious that an airship will fail if its propelling power ceases. It is just as obvious that the salesman or dealer who is not continually thinking out new ideas and moving forward in a business way cannot fail to cease functioning successfully. There is no room in modern business for dead wood.

Four-Minute Conference on Business Topics

No. 6—Your Job—And What It Means

[This is the sixth of a series of four-minute conferences on topics of direct interest to business men in the talking machine trade which have been prepared for this publication by Lester G. Herbert.—EDITOR.]

Every person who is at all worth while has a job of some kind which is his to do. It doesn't make any difference whether we are rich or poor, or located in a small community or a large one. There is some task—some big life task—which Fate designs we shall perform, and if we do not do it then the balance of the whole universe is thrown out of kilter. Either our work is left undone or someone else has to do it and neglect his own part of the world's work. It is a mighty responsible thing to be alive, and no individual who is self-respecting wants to be a shirk.

Sometimes we feel that we could do better at somebody else's task, but we should remember this—everyone gets dissatisfied sometimes, but the right sort of a man will succeed anyway. So it is up to you and to me to make good where we are, or to get out of this position and into another where we can justify our own belief in ourselves.

Your job is you. It expresses your ideals, your business integrity, your vision, your ambition, your initiative, your stick-to-it-iveness, and your ability actually to do things. When you find fault with your job you find fault with yourself, for big men make big things of little jobs.

Let me repeat—your job is YOU! It doesn't make any difference whether you are manufacturing a jack-knife or a pair of shoes, or selling automobiles, or drugs, or furs, or houses, or talking machines. Your job will never be bigger than you are!

A job is big or little according to the man who is behind it and according to his ideas of service. The individual who is selfish, ready to call what he has done in a half-hearted manner "Good enough," or willing to satisfy himself with the argument that he has done as well as the people around him, will never claim a very big job for his own.

This is a wonderful time in which to live! It is a time when men can make their efforts count, and the harder the task the less the competition in doing it.

Some people fail because they have not a clear-cut idea of just what their job is. They have drifted along from day to day and year to year. They do not see their way out of the blind alley in which they are situated, and so they do not see the glory of the opportunity which is theirs. They do the work of the day because they must eat and be clothed and housed—and that is about all it amounts to.

But someone else says to himself, "I will make every home in this community happier and its outlook wider because I will put that which is worth while within the reach of all"—that man gets rich. He is rich in happiness as well as cash. He has a vision of service and he carries it out. People know about him because he is doing a big job and doing it in a man's way. But some of the very ones who envy him would not be willing to put the same effort, the same sacrifice and the same sincerity into their own tasks.

YOUR JOB IS YOU! ARE YOU DOING YOURSELF JUSTICE?

ISSUES "RUB-IN" POST CARDS

Richardson Illustrating Co. Introduces Interesting Novelty for Victor Dealers

The Richardson Illustrating Co., New York, has just produced a series of unique "rub-in" postcards for the use of Victor dealers in local advertising. There are six cards in the set, each of attractive design and each with return card attached. On the cards is a stippled field which, when rubbed with a coin, develops a picture of an artist, a Victrola or a record. The cards are particularly desirable for reaching and interesting not only the children, but the grown-ups as well. They are most artistically conceived and should make a strong appeal.

WM. P. BERRY GOES TO SALT LAKE

Well-known Talking Machine Manager of New Orleans Takes Charge of Glen Bros.-Roberts Piano Co. Department in Salt Lake City

NEW ORLEANS, LA., October 2.—New Orleans has lost one of its leading Victor sales managers in William P. Berry, of the Dwyer Piano Co., who left on September 25 to take charge of the talking machine department of the Glen Bros.-Roberts Piano Co. in Salt Lake City.

After two years in service, eleven months of which were spent overseas in command of the 1105 Aero Squadron, Mr. Berry entered the employ of the Victor Co. as factory representative in the Southern territory. In 1920 he changed to Philip Werlein, Ltd., as traveling representative. Later, when Dwyer secured the Victor agency, Mr. Berry took charge of the department.

Not only has he built up the Victrola department to its present standing, but he also took over the player rolls and has made a live and going department there.

His club plan to stimulate sales of records among the older customers is his latest success. Mr. Berry has made many friends here and it is with regret that they see him go.

He leaves to take charge of a much larger department, which handles Victor, Columbia and Edison machines. He will be succeeded at Dwyer's by Frank Allen, present assistant sales manager of Maison Blanche music department.

BANNER 50c RECORDS

The Story of a Dealer who "Sidestepped" the 50c Record!

Brown was deaf to the great demand for a good 50c record. His partner was blind to the fact that people insisted on getting it.

But the people who bought the records would not be denied. They speedily shifted their preference to Smith, who did handle a good 50c record.

And Smith profited handsomely! More people came to his store. People bought more records there—not only of the 50c popular numbers, but the high-priced "blue ribbon" classics.

So much for that. Smith did the business and Brown the grumbling.

But there are many "SMITHS." They are taking advantage of the great national demand that exists for the good 50c record—a demand purely the result of offering an equally good quality at a lower price—made possible by a wide elimination of jobbers' profits and excess overhead—manufacturer direct to dealer.

Of course we refer to BANNER 50c RECORDS. They are helping many dealers to a bigger and more profitable business. They will help you be the "MR. SMITH" of your town.

Send for BANNER RECORDS. (you will find a November list in the last pages of this publication). Test their quality. Test the demand for them.

DAN JONES NOW A PROUD DADDY

Local Paper Takes Due Cognizance of Arrival of Boy at Home of Talking Machine Man

Judging from the following item, which appeared in the Martins Ferry, O., Daily News on September 8, the arrival of a son in the family of a talking machine man in that town means something:

"His Master's Voice"

"Did'ja notice the broad, all-inclusive smile that enveloped the Victrola Department in Noble's store this morning? Like many other events of importance, there was a reason. Dan Jones, who warbles with no mean ability, was uncertain whether the 'event' would be a second Caruso or a Galli-Curci. The first lusty trill of the boy last evening convinces the family the new son was a chip o' the o'd block and that Dan was, at last, listening to 'his master's voice.' 'Twas a baritone and not a soprano. Mother and son are doing nicely."

RECORD OF HAND SAW MUSIC

An Interesting Novelty Found in the Vocalion Record List for October

A distinct and interesting novelty in the Vocalion record list for October is the successful recording of the music produced by "playing" a hand saw with a violin bow. The feat of playing a saw has been observed in vaudeville on numerous occasions, the saw being bent back and forth to produce the various tones, but this is believed to be the first instance where such music has been successfully recorded. The saw is played by Sam Moore, with guitar accompaniment by Horace Davis, the selections being "Mother Machree" on one side and "Mighty Lak a Rose" on the other.

A sad spectacle is the man who gets into a rut. He does the same things in the same way with monotonous regularity and ultimately the sheriff puts the lock on the door of another failure.

BRILLIANTONE NEEDLE SALES GROW

H. W. Acton, of Brilliantone Steel Needle Co., Points to Favor of American-made Needles Over Those of Foreign Manufacture

Harry W. Acton, secretary of the Brilliantone Steel Needle Co., reports that the tremendous demand existing for Brilliantone steel needles which has been evidenced within the last few months is steadily increasing. In a conversation with a representative of The World Mr. Acton remarked: "The popularity of the American-made needle over needles imported from other countries with the buying public is not only evidence of loyalty to American-made products, but is, moreover, a tribute to the superiority of the American-made needle. The needle industry is one of the many in which this country excels. Many attempted inroads by foreign manufacturers have been made, but both the trade and the public seem to insist upon domestic needles. The made-in-America stamp on the needle package has become a guarantee of the uniformity of both length and quality. It is only when foreign merchandise is received in this country in bulk and packed in this country that the public is confused. The law governing the marking of foreign-made merchandise unfortunately does not extend this far. If the imported needles are received in separate packages the law provides that they must be marked, 'Made in ———,' supplying the name of the country of manufacture. But where both shipments are received and the contents packed in this country this marking is not mandatory, and thus many purchasers, believing they are buying American needles, are receiving foreign-made merchandise. We are realizing more and more the importance of a well and favorably known trade name. The entire talking machine trade and the public in general are well aware that Brilliantone needles are made in America. This, undoubtedly, accounts for the tremendous demand for our product. Brilliantone needles are not only made in America, but are made by what is claimed to be the oldest established firm in the world manufacturing talking machine needles. They are made at the plant of the W. H. Bagshaw Co., of Lowell, Mass., who have a half-century of needle making behind them. We are experiencing exceptionally good business at the present time and every indication points toward the steady continuance of this demand."

A photograph showing the heart of the Manhattan Radio Headset—the coils and the magnet.

It's What's Inside the Receiver Case that Counts

REMOVE the cover of a Manhattan Radio Headset. Note the large horse-shoe magnet. It is made of Tungsten Steel—the most expensive material for permanent magnets, and the best because of its "hardness and property of retaining magnetism indefinitely."

In the center of the case is the electro-magnet with its pole-pieces made of Silicon Steel. Energy received from a wireless message is exerted on the diaphragm through the pole-pieces. If the pole-pieces absorb any of this energy, the pull on the diaphragm is less and the performance of the Headset weakened. Silicon Steel pole-pieces cut down energy loss, and give strong signals.

These are two points in the interior construction of Manhattan Headsets which make for superiority.

The country-wide Red Seal Battery "Finish-the-Sentence" Contest is on now, right at the peak of the radio season—Nov. 1—Nov. 15. Radio sets and Manhattan Headsets are the prizes. Carry Manhattan Radio Headsets on your shelves and display them in your windows with the Contest Window Display. Use the Contest to sell Manhattan Headsets as well as Red Seal Batteries. Sacred Harp Singers

Now Record for Brunswick Exclusively

The Officially Selected Chorus of the United Sacred Harp Musical Association, commonly known as the "Sacred Harp Singers," has become an exclusive Brunswick organization.

The formation of this society, which is non-denominational, dates back to the Pilgrim Fathers.

Its choirs retain the original close harmony of the Pilgrims, rendering their songs without musical instruments of any kind, the singers getting the proper key and pitch by running the scale.

The Sacred Harp Singers' Records will be of interest not only to the 5,000,000 members of the society, but to all lovers of good music. For in their own particular field the Sacred Harp Singers are acknowledged supreme. Many of the songs in their official hymn book were first sung in the New World by the passengers of the Mayflower. The first recordings, listed below, are typical examples.

The sweeping melodies of this Chorus, the most famous of its kind in the world, amazed opera singers and musical critics on its recent visit to New York.

For a long time the Sacred Harpists were opposed to the phonograph as a musical instrument, but finally consented to record their truly marvelous choral singing in Brunswick Studios.

DR. DE FOREST EXPLAINS DETAILS OF TALKING MOVIES

Inventor of "Phonofilm" Busy in New York Studio Perfecting Talking Film for Exhibition in New York Soon—Details of Process Used to Synchronize Film and Sounds

Dr. Lee de Forest, inventor of the audion tube, who recently announced that he had developed the talking film to a state suitable for public exhibition, arrived from Germany recently and is now busy preparing his first talking films.

These will consist of monologues, dialogues, violin solos and other musical pieces, which will be worked out in co-operation with Hugo Riesenfeld and other theatrical and motion-picture men. Films will talk in public for the first time in about two months, probably at the Rialto Theatre, according to Dr. De Forest.

In regard to the German invention, an account of which appears in another section of The World, Dr. De Forest said: "Their process differs from mine in several respects. They use a mouthpiece to catch the sound, for instance, while I use a vibrating disk of parchment. They also render the sound differently. They follow my device closely, however, in photographing sound waves on the film and translating them into electrical waves, then photographing them and translating them back into sound waves."

In Dr. De Forest's invention the sound waves first hit the parchment disk, which vibrates at the faintest sound. At each fluctuation of sound this disk modifies a high-frequency electrical current. This current passes through a tube about the size of the little finger. This tube is full of a gas which gives an intense, bright light as it is ionized by the electrical current. The light varies with every variation of the current. Thus, in its turn, the light reproduces the pattern of the sound waves.

This tube emits light by a tiny slit, which is about a tenth of an inch long and an imperceptible fraction of an inch in width. This light falls on the right side of the film between the scene photographed and the perforation. Constantly fluctuating with the sound waves, this light registers every fluctuation of sound on the film. It registers the high-pitched notes on the film at the rate of about 3,000 a second. That means that, in one second, each of the vibrations of the parchment disk is transferred to the current and that the light brightens and wanes 3,000 times in a second and that the film records them at the same rate. These appear like lines, one-tenth of an inch long. So fine that they might have been drawn with a needle or a diamond. They seem to be horizontal lines, one on top of the other, each bright line separated by a dark one. The dark line is only dark when, speaking comparatively, it registers the lesser light of the lamp at the period of its decline, which period may be one-three-thousandth part of an inch.

On the film beside these lines is photographed the motion-picture part of the film. Each picture records scores of vibrations of the actor's voice. They must be developed and printed together. Great care is needed in obtaining uniformity in developing and printing, as the voice lines are blurred if they are overdeveloped and rendered feeble if they are underdeveloped.

The reconstruction of the voice or the notes of music from the strip of celluloid is another interesting process. An intense light is passed through the moving strip on which appears the track of the voice or the horizontal lines which represent the sound waves. The dark and light lines modify the light passing through it, as it was originally modified in the gas tube. This light, with its infinitely fine fluctuations, falls on photo-electric cells. These are cells with chemicals which have the strange property of being non-conductors of electricity in darkness, but good conductors in light. The electrical current passing through them is constantly modified by the fluctuation of light. It again reproduces the sound wave.

The audion amplifier, invented by Dr. De Forest, is used to give power to the vibrations which originally appear in the sound disk. Earlier in the process the vibrations are exaggerated several thousand times in order to give the sharp changes necessary to produce the sharp fluctuations in the light in the gas tube.

The audion amplifier is required again in the latter part of the process. After the photo-electric cells have transformed the lines on the film into vibrations in the electric current, the vibrations are again exaggerated a thousand times more. This raises them to a strength which enables them to operate the loud-speaking telephone devices, exactly as is done in long-distance telephoning. In the early and the latter part of the process the amplifiers are used to multiply the original strength of the vibrations by about 10,000,000 times. This amount of multiplication, however, only reconstructs the human voice or musical note to its original power.

Selenium cells are not used. These used to be considered miraculous, because of their power of resisting electricity in darkness and conducting it in light—a property used in wireless torpedoes. The selenium, however, is coarse and unsatisfactory in comparison with the new photo-electric cell, whose composition has not been made public.

"So far the work has all been on the technical side," said Dr. De Forest. "From now on I will work in my studio here with motion-picture men, actors, speakers and others, working out the technique of acting for the talking film. The talking films which I have now are rough-and-ready affairs of our laboratory which would prejudice the invention if I put it before the public."

"The development of technique will take much time and thought. The question how far the actor or actress should stand from the vibrating disk is one thing. Conditions providing absolute silence are necessary. The slightest sound is registered and becomes a disturbance. During a song by my wife on the film I said 'Louder!' once or twice in a small voice, but it sounds like a shout on the films."

"For a while I had great difficulty because the camera registered its own clicking and all the other sounds of its internal mechanism. I managed to hood it and keep this out. Absolute silence, not even a whisper, will have to be the rule in studios where talking-films are taken."

"One roll of film will record a whole opera or symphony. Such a film would be about fourteen inches in diameter."

"Until very recently I have found phonograph manufacturers cold on the matter. Recently I have been receiving inquiries. The motion-picture men have been prejudiced against the idea because efforts to hitch up phonographs with films have been unsatisfactory. The photographing of the voice on the film, however, produces a different effect."

The A. I. Ross Music Store, Victor dealer of Queens, N. Y., has added a stock of musical instruments.

Talking Machine Section of the John Wanamaker Store in New York in Spacious Quarters on Mezzanine Floor—Large Record and Machine Stock Is Admirably Displayed

The talking machine department of the John Wanamaker store, New York City, is now comfortably located in spacious quarters on the mezzanine floor in space formerly occupied by part of the piano department. Through this move the entire music department of the Wanamaker store is now concentrated on one floor. The talking machine department about a year ago was moved to the eighth floor, but the separation of the units of the music department was not found to be helpful to business.

The talking machine department is not only attractive, but admirably arranged. There are five large rooms, handsomely furnished, in which the various machines, including the Victor, Brunswick, Sonora and Cheney, are demonstrated. These rooms have been constructed along the walls of a larger room in which the different types of instruments are on display. A feature of the department is the record racks, which were designed by H. L. Bertine, manager. A stock of more than 30,000 Victor and Brunswick records is handled and instead of the usual service counter small tables have been placed outside the racks. On these tables are the latest lists of records and customers, after making the selection from these lists, have their wants quickly supplied. On both sides of the record racks are sound-proof hearing rooms for record demonstration purposes. The move has already been amply justified by increased business.

STREAMERS FOR DISPLAY PURPOSES

The Banner record division of the Plaza Music Co., New York City, is issuing each month five window streamers which feature the biggest popular hits of the season. This publicity material is most attractive and is in several colors. The illustrations are of the same peculiar and striking character that has marked this company's advertising matter for some time.

It is planned to induce the dealer to use this set of streamers each month and, as they will be issued along the general style as the initial shipment, it is expected the public will look forward to these announcements as a guide for its record purchases.

In addition to the above there are to be supplementary streamers of a smaller size and the usual catalogs, cards, etc. This is a new service which has been planned with great care and the sales organization of the Plaza Music Co. is under the impression that it will be most valuable to the trade.

CULP BROS. HEAD GROWING FIRM

Established Only Six Years and Enjoy $200,000 Annual Business in Musical Instruments

FT. SMITH, ARK., October 7.—The Culp Bros. Piano Co., Inc., was organized here in July, 1914, and since that time the business has steadily grown to a volume of approximately $200,000 annually.

When the company was formed the main retail house was established at 1104 Garrison avenue, and since that time branch houses have been located at Russellville, Ark., Hartshorne and McAlester, Okla. Each of the stores does a splendid business, which is steadily increasing.

W. M. Culp is in charge of the store at Russellville, H. C. Hullender at Hartshorne and C. K. Culp at McAlester. J. H. Culp and B. D. Culp, Jr., are in charge of the Fort Smith house.

The Culp Co. handles exclusively the Hallet & Davis, Packard, Chase Bros., Hobart M. Cable, Story & Clark and Cable pianos. The following line of talking machines is handled also by the Culp Co.: Hallet & Davis, Brunswick and the Columbia Grafonola.

In connection with the retail music house a complete repair shop for pianos and talking machines is operated in Fort Smith, under the direction of B. D. Culp, Jr., and J. E. Dotson.

"TALKER" MADE FROM CIDER BARREL

Instead of the Liquid That Cheers Music Flows From This Unique Instrument

Something strictly new in musical instruments has been evolved by William T. Weinschank, of Chicago, who converted a cider barrel into an attractive talking machine at a cost of only $11.75, according to the Popular Science Monthly.

After thoroughly cleaning the barrel Mr. Weinschank cut double doors in the top side with a keyhole saw and swung the doors on hinges. A second-hand spring motor and tone arm suspended from the inside of the barrel completed the works. The crank protruded from one end.

To give the talking machine a finish the barrel was placed on a special support into which the circular heads fitted, and, as a final realistic touch, a spigot was added.

R. W. PORTER BACK FROM CANADA

R. W. Porter, field sales manager for the Columbia Graphophone Co., New York, is again back at his desk at Columbia headquarters after an extended trip throughout Canada. He reports that general conditions in Canada look very bright and all indications point to one of the best Fall and Winter businesses Canada has enjoyed for some time. Business, he states, has taken a decided boost in the Dominion and Columbia dealers are bound to reap a harvest in sales if they carry out the campaigns which they have planned for Fall and Winter.

Interesting Analysis of Reasons Prompting Customers to Patronize a Store :: By F. H. Williams

"Of course we are constantly getting new customers at our store," said a successful talking machine dealer, in the course of conversation with the writer. "But what brings these customers to our store? Is it our advertising? Is it our location? Or what is it?"

"Recently I have been doing some thinking along this line and I felt that if I could determine just what was most instrumental in bringing new customers to the establishment I would be able to better conduct my store promotion work so as to increase my business.

"With this idea in mind I recently questioned 100 new customers, as they came to my store over a considerable length of time, as to what had brought them to the store. I was very much interested in the answers they gave me and they were very valuable. I'm going to tell just what this investigation showed because, I am sure, it will also help other dealers in talking machines and records throughout the country who are looking for merchandising helps.

"Fifty-one of the 100 new customers said that they came to my store because it had been recommended to them by friends or relatives. This shows pretty conclusively that care and courtesy and service in handling present customers is not only worth while because it assures you of more trade from these customers in the future, but it is also worth while, because the better impression the store makes on its present customers the stronger boosters these customers will be for the store and the more recommendations for the store they will give to friends and relatives with the result that more of these friends and relatives will come to the store.

"Some of the 100 new customers stated that they were attracted to my store by the advertising we've been doing. This was a very gratifying discovery because it showed me that my advertising is not only effective in selling machines and records to people who are already in the habit of patronizing my store, but is a real aid in selling to new customers. I had for a time been rather dubious as to the wisdom of continuing my advertising, but this convinced me that it was worth while to keep on with this form of publicity.

"Nine of the 100 new customers stated that they came to my store in response to a direct mail advertising campaign which I had conducted among the club women of the city. I had secured the names of local club women from the annual programs which the local clubs publish and had then circularized these women with advertising telling about machines and new records and emphasizing the value of the talking machine in the home in helping to entertain club meetings. Of course, many of the women circularized were already patrons of my store, so this evidence that many new customers had been made by this publicity was gratifying.

"Eight of the 100 new customers stated that they came to the store because my location was most handy when they were downtown on regular shopping trips. Which indicates that the store's location is highly important.

"Eight of the 100 new customers declared that they had been attracted to my store by my window displays.

"Five of the 100 new customers declared that the reason they had started patronizing my store was because they had been attracted by a special musical program I had recently staged.

"The others among the new customers were unable to assign any definite reason why they had started patronizing my store. But they had started and that was sufficient.

"All of which was exceedingly interesting to me and very valuable in showing me just what forms of promotion and publicity to which I should pay the most attention.

"I am passing the result of this little investigation along to other talking machine dealers with the recommendation that they conduct a similar investigation in their own stores."

Reifsnnyder's Music House Holds Formal Opening of Fine New Store

READING, PA., September 30.—Among the new business concerns to enter the local field is Reifsnnyder's Music House, 951 Penn street. Perry B. Reifsnnyder, proprietor. Besides the Reading store he conducts a large establishment on Market Square, Lebanon.

A formal opening of the new store was held and in celebration of the event souvenirs were presented. The spacious display room presents a beautiful scene with rows of exhibits of various models of three of the leading piano makers of the country. A big display of talking machines is also made. Mr. Reifsnnyder has gone to considerable expense in making necessary renovations to his new establishment, including changes to the front, private talking machine booths, illumination, etc.

VICTOR DEALER PUBLICITY HELPS

Victor Talking Machine Co. Sends Varied Dealer Publicity to Dealers Each Month

Some excellent posters and other advertising material have been sent out by the Victor Talking Machine Co. to dealers for use in pushing October records. The advertising matter includes two domestic hangers, one foreign hanger, window streamers and proofs of the Victor magazine, foreign paper and educational advertisements.

During October the Victor Talking Machine Co. will use back covers of a number of popular magazines with national circulation. In addition special copy has been prepared for educational magazines in which the value of the Victrola as an educational medium is emphasized.

A talking machine and piano store has been opened in Shelbyville, Ind., at 38 East Broadway, by Omar Bausback, who was formerly connected with the Pearson Piano Co.

"TALKER" AIDS BUSINESS STUDENTS

Schools in Milwaukee Adopt Talking Machines to Speed Up Typewriter Students

Several schools in Milwaukee, Wis., have adopted the "Remington Blues" as part of their regular business course, and, according to teachers in these schools, the system is a decided success.

The plan is to have a talking machine near the desk at which the stenography student is at work. At the start of an exercise the machine is started, and, according to the tempo of the music, the exercise is completed. Thus, on sedate business letters, which require extra accurate work, some selection like "Down by the Old Mill Stream" is played. If the letter is a peppy sales creation the latest jazz selections are chosen. And students and teachers find that the work of learning the various exercises is simplified.

The head of one business college where the music method is used was emphatic in her praise of the system.

"We find that with the rhythm of the music as a guide the students sooner get the swing of the exercises, and the work is done more accurately with less attendant fatigue. As the student advances in the work the music is played faster. We have used the musical accompaniment method for several years and the results are most gratifying."

Another instructor believed that the otherwise tedious process of teaching the typewriting lessons was shortened by the addition of music. "As the work progresses we play faster selections, until our pupils are able to keep pace with the normal tempo of the most rapidly played selections."

UNESSENTIAL DETAILS IN SELLING

Salesman Who Enlarges on Minutest Details of Talking Machine in Trying to Make a Sale Bores Patrons and Drives Them Away

Insulting the intelligence of customers is unconsciously done by many salesmen in their zeal to make a sale. When a prospect enters a talking machine establishment for the purpose of looking over the line of machines it should be assumed on the part of the salesman that the person is at least familiar with certain details concerning the instruments. There are few people to-day who do not roughly understand the operation of a talking machine, and when the salesman presumes to go into too many minute details he not only makes a bad impression on the customer, but there is also danger that too much talking, instead of intensifying the interest of the prospect, will bring about a contrary condition and the sale could easily be lost. Concise, intelligent presentation of the facts is what the average busy man or woman desires above all else.

COLUMBIA BRANCH IN NEW HOME

The Columbia Graphophone Co., New York City, has made the announcement that the New Orleans branch of the company is moving into larger and more commodious quarters on Peter street. This new move was made to enable this branch more adequately to take care of its steadily increasing business and to give the dealers in the South a more thorough and efficient service. Up-to-date equipment has been installed, a feature of which will be a much enlarged Dealer Service department that will be of considerable help to dealers in this territory. With these increased facilities to take care of dealer business, a prosperous Fall and Winter business is expected.

John McCleary, Sr., formerly with Goggan Bros., of Houston, Tex., is preparing to open a piano business in Brownsville, Tex., in connection with the business of John McCleary, Jr., a Victor talking machine dealer in that city.

ACTIVITIES OF COLUMBIA ARTISTS

Al Jolson on Tour With "Bombo" Company—Eddie Cantor Moves to Chicago—Ray Miller and Ted Lewis Make Hit in Gotham Theatres

Considerable news of interest has been emanating from the Columbia Graphophone Co. headquarters recently pertinent to the activities of exclusive Columbia artists, well known through their recordings in the past year.

Al Jolson has left New York on a tour with his company of "Bombo," appearing in Youngstown, O., after which he moved to Chicago for an extended stay there.

Eddie Cantor with his show, "Make It Snappy," has left New York for Chicago, where he opened with this successful production at the Majestic Theatre. He is booked for a long period in Chicago, probably for the entire Winter and, no doubt, will receive a hearty reception from the Chicago public, which is now familiar with several numbers of this show, which he has recorded on Columbia records and which have been on sale for some time.

Ray Miller and His Black and White Melody Boys have made a decided hit in their appearance at the Fox Fourteenth Street Theatre, New York. After fulfilling this engagement they have been booked to appear at the Fox Audubon Theatre, Washington Heights.

Ted Lewis and His Jazz Band, who have been appearing at Keith's Palace Theatre, New York, have scored big as a record seller.

QUALITIES WHICH SALES MANAGERS SHOULD POSSESS

Quiet, Unassuming Manners, Plus the Ability to Direct the Work of the Salesmen, Are Characteristics Which Are Much More Valuable Than the Ability to Domineer and Bluster

"If I were looking for a new sales manager," declared a prominent executive in another line of business, "I would select the fellow who is apparently quiet and unassuming, and who tells the salesmen under him how to get more business rather than simply ball them out for not producing greater results.

"If there is anything that is disgusting to the executive who has had to do with the handling of men it is the domineering, loud-mouthed type of so-called sales manager who believes that he is scaring his men into getting better results when as a matter of fact he is simply building up a wall of enmity or making himself a laughing-stock. This type of sales manager rarely has a constructive selling idea to offer his men, and it is most likely that his bulldog attitude is simply a cloak for inefficiency.

"It is a recognized fact that the greatest selling effort is developed where the salesman is working either on salary with commission or on straight commission, under which condition he can see his income grow with every sale. The sales manager who believes that he can drive that type of salesman to greater effort by sarcasm and loud talk is simply fooling himself. Such a sales manager cannot under any condition hold the respect of his staff. They are working not for him, but for the commission, and when the pinch comes are going to make that attitude plain.

"The most successful sales manager I ever knew was the fellow who never raised his voice and forgot there was such a thing as sarcasm, which is always repugnant to any man of intelligence. This man knew his line and the territory in which it was sold, and best of all he knew his salesmen.

"At the regular meetings and in the regular house correspondence to the salesmen on the road there was evident no domineering attitude.

If the sales seemed to fall off in a certain locality the man in that territory was not simply balled out and told to do better. Instead he was asked frankly for any reason that he might assign for the drop in business and then was given real constructive suggestions as to how to proceed in an effort to recover the ground. It was felt that the salesman did not need any more stimulus to increased effort than a glance at his dwindling commission sheet. What he needed was good advice, and that was what the sales manager gave.

"The efficient management of salesmen just now is a problem of great importance. In many lines of business orders are not so easy to get as they were in the past. Conditions have changed, and changed radically both in the wholesale and retail fields, as well as in the attitude of the public. The sales manager, therefore, who keeps his men irritated and 'sore' by his loud talk and sarcasm, instead of giving them instructive suggestions, which probably is beyond his ability, is simply tearing down rather than building up. What is needed is a man who has an understanding of the situation, has a certain streak of sympathy for the individual salesman who is really trying, and can draw upon his own experience and study for practical helps and suggestions that will enable the salesman to get his share of business."

The foregoing sermon on the sales manager applies quite as much to the talking machine trade as it does to other lines of business. The selling organization that is getting results and making itself felt almost without exception has as its head a sales manager who is not content to sit at his desk and tell his men what they ought to do, but goes out with them if necessary and shows them how to do it.

The average salesman working on commission, whether or not he draws a salary with it, should not need any argument as to the necessity for going out and working energetically to close sales. His desire for a larger income should provide that incentive, and if the lure of having some more money to spend does not move the salesman to real effort then he should be replaced by a live man. Such a condition cannot be remedied by the sales manager's conversation, but requires more drastic action.

SOME PLEASING FALL POINTERS

B. R. Forster, president of the Brilliantone Steel Needle Co., New York City, reports increasing business throughout the West and Middle West, from which territory he is now returning. He experienced everywhere a general optimistic outlook regarding Fall business.

V. C. Kent, who covers the New England territory for the Brilliantone Co., reports that the cessation of strikes has greatly improved business in that territory and dealers are placing good orders for the Fall and holiday trade.

Stanley Risser, metropolitan representative of the company, is proving that there is enough good business within fifty miles of City Hall to keep a good man busy. Dealers in this territory are placing heavy orders for Fall business. The volume of business of the Brilliantone Steel Needle Co. during the past month has set a new record and the outlook for the future is equally bright.

MEETING WITH FAVORABLE RESPONSE

Revival of 75-cent Popular Record Catalog by Emerson Phonograph Co. Liked by Dealers

A. Abrams, president of the Emerson Phonograph Corp., states that the revival of the Emerson 75-cent popular record catalog has met with a most favorable response from the trade. The Emerson Co., which has a most comprehensive catalog of standard, operatic and foreign records, was induced to again issue popular songs and dance selections upon the earnest solicitation of many Emerson dealers. Since that time other dealers have shown interest and new accounts in varying quantities are being opened from day to day.

The popular records issued are all carefully selected as to merit and sales possibilities. It is the object of the company to give the trade who carry its standard catalog a popular record which will have a quick turnover and make the need for return of unsold records almost an impossibility.

The dealer is supplied each month with much advertising material and particular attention has been given to the use of hangers which incorporate the monthly list. These are invariably used in the window and about the store—particularly in the record booths where sales are made.

TERMINAL PHONO. SHOP CHARTERED

The Terminal Phonograph Shop, Inc., of Boston, Mass., has been chartered in that State with a capital of $10,000. The incorporators of the concern, which will deal in talking machines and musical instruments, are Marion Dunn, Louis Rosenthal and Bernard K. Cohen.

SOME SALES STIMULATORS

Now is the time to make preparations for Fall and Winter concerts. Any dealer with sufficient space in his establishment should seat his customers comfortably so that they can get the most enjoyment from these concerts. During an operatic concert only those people with an inclination toward this music should be invited and the same applies to music of other kinds. The invitations should be made as personal as possible. A good plan is to have some one connected with the staff write them and they should be signed by the head of the firm. Special concerts might be arranged to which only persons who have not purchased machines but who are on the prospect list should be invited. This is an effective means of bringing the talking machine, and particularly the line handled by you, to their attention.

A plan which has produced excellent results in the stimulation of talking machine record sales was recently put into effect by the Tri-State Talking Machine Co., 103 South El Paso street, El Paso, Tex. Post cards are sent to all customers containing the list of special records released by the Victor Talking Machine Co. monthly. The list is neatly printed on the card, with the names of the selections in bold type so that they stand out. The plan is producing excellent results not only in sales but in bringing the company and its line to the attention of those receiving the cards.

A sales-producing plan recently put in effect by a talking machine dealer in a medium-sized town in connection with the building up of his prospect list consisted of making personal visits to those prospects who had failed to answer his inquiry as to whether they were interested in a talking machine. In this manner he secured certain information as to their worth as prospects and as a result many of the names on his list were dropped as worthless. Those who signified their interest in his line were approached by a salesman and a number of sales were made.

In every city where there is a large foreign colony the talking machine dealer can well afford to send out salesmen or canvassers who understand the language of these people to boost foreign records. It is a well-established fact that foreigners are more receptive to the approach of persons who understand their language and sales are more quickly closed.

The spirit of competition is keen with most men, and they will strive energetically for a small prize when more substantial inducements in which there is no element of competition would leave them cold. Prize contests among the salesmen are well worth the expenditure. Small cash prizes for the three salesmen doing the greatest volume of business during a monthly period are certain to result in stimulation of effort and more business.

Stop! Look! Buy! That is what the talking machine dealer tries to have passers-by do by means of his window. Remember the least expensive and most effective publicity, when properly carried out, is the window display. A moving object is bound to attract people and this plan has resulted profitably for many dealers. One merchant even put a number of live fish in a bowl in his window. Many people stopped to look and most certainly they saw not only the fish, but the machines and records which were displayed.

TO CONSIDER EXPRESS RATES

Interstate Commerce Commission to Hold Hearings Next Month to Consider Appeals of Shippers for a General Reduction

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 7.—Whether the present level of express rates is too high, as claimed by shippers, will be determined by the Interstate Commerce Commission as a result of hearings which will be started on October 30. The inquiry will go deeply into the question of express charges on all commodities in all sections of the country and will proceed along the line of the investigation of freight rates made last Winter which resulted in a decided reduction in those rates in July.

It has been complained by shippers using express service that express charges are still at their high level, although freight rates have been reduced approximately 10 per cent, and the same arguments which resulted in the freight reduction can be applied to express rates.

START BIG BUBBLE BOOK CAMPAIGN

National and Local Advertising Include Broad-sides and Dealers' Helps in the Way of Hangers and Display Stands.

Harper & Bros., manufacturers and distributors of Bubble Book records for children, have inaugurated a campaign this Fall designed to help the dealer increase his sales during the coming Winter months. Intensive advertising is to be resorted to in the leading national magazines of the country, and local newspapers throughout the country will be used. Attractive literature has been prepared by the advertising department for the use of the dealer that is bound to create sales. Some of this literature is in the form of a four-page broadside featuring the fourteen Bubble Books now available for the dealer, executed in an attractive manner, showing the pictures of Bubble Book characters with a word of explanation underneath the picture of each book. This broadside also features Bubble Book selling helps that Harper & Bros. furnish their dealers. These selling helps include attractive display stands which hold six and twelve Bubble Books and can be placed on the counter of the dealer's store or in record-hearing booths.

Another feature of the intensive campaign which they have inaugurated is a very attractive hanger, just sent out to the dealers, showing a list of the entire Bubble Book catalog. A very attractive drawing by Rhoda Chace graces the top of this hanger, which shows a home scene with a talking machine and four children listening to Bubble Book records. This hanger is so designed that it will fit the regular rack which the dealer has in his store for announcing the new records by different talking machine companies.

Bruce McClure, in charge of the Bubble Book activities for Harper & Bros., reports that Bubble Book sales during the entire Summer have been very satisfactory, and that all indications point to a very active Fall and Winter. With this intensive campaign in full force and a co-operative service which the company is offering to its dealers this coming season will, no doubt, find Bubble Book sales materially increased.

SUFFERS HEAVY LOSS IN FIRE

Eberhardt-Hays Music Co. Sustains $40,000 Damage in Disastrous Blaze

WICHITA, KAN., September 30.—The Eberhardt-Hays Music Co., located in the Odd Fellows Temple Building, 128-130 North Main street, this city, suffered damage estimated at $40,000 by fire on Sunday of last week. For a time the total destruction of the store and building was threatened, but quick work on the part of the firemen subdued the flames.

The Eberhardt-Hays Music Co. is one of the best-known music houses in this part of the State. The policies of the firm have been instrumental in building up a large clientele.

McCOLEMAN MUSIC CO. IN NEW HOME

RAYMOND, WASH., October 5.—The McColeman Music Co., of this city, which was seriously damaged by fire recently, has reopened in the new Stenzel Building, at 229 Third street. The new quarters are unusually attractive and are ideal for the music business. A complete line of well-known pianos and talking machines, including Burnham Supertone phonographs, are featured. In addition a complete line of small goods and sheet music will be handled.

RECORDS OF MENDELSSOHN MUSIC

In his "Songs Without Words" Mendelssohn gives us his innermost ideas, and these are full of moral purity and poetic charm. For these reasons the songs have made their way into every musical household, and, as musical pictures, possess melody and delicious harmonies. These melodic gems are to be found in the regular lists of our leading record manufacturers and no library can be called complete without a goodly assortment of Mendelssohnia.

O. H. WILLIAMS MOVES TO BUFFALO

Rejoins Staff of Buffalo Talking Machine Co., the Prominent Victor Distributor

BUFFALO, N. Y., October 3.—The latest addition to the staff of the Buffalo Talking Machine Co., Victor jobber of this city, is O. H. Williams, who until quite recently was in the retail business in Brooklyn, N. Y., and who was also connected with the Victor jobbing firm of E. J. Chapman, of Rochester, N. Y. A number of years ago Mr. Williams was with the Buffalo Talking Machine Co. and he is, therefore, familiar with the territory served by it.

OPENS VICTOR DEPARTMENT

EDWARDSVILLE, ILL., October 2.—An attractive Victrola department has been opened by Ike Schwartz, proprietor of a large furniture house here. Mr. Schwartz has planned an extensive advertising campaign in the local newspapers in behalf of Victor talking machines and records.

Interesting to Know What the Federal Trade Commission Says Business Men Must Not Do

George W. Harrington, of New York, writes to Printers' Ink under recent date in this wise:

"I haven't done nothin' that I know of—but every time I see a reference to the activities of the Federal Trade Commission I begin to wonder if maybe I am not next. It (the Commission, that is) appears to be breaking out in a new place all the time, and if this keeps up the American manufacturer will soon feel like a man on a tight rope over Niagara Falls.

"Seriously, however, I am very much in the dark as to the actual functions of the Commission, and most business men of my acquaintance are equally uncertain on the subject. I think you would do a service to many of your readers by publishing some authoritative information on this point. The lawyers know, of course—but a business man as a rule doesn't care to hire an attorney every time he wants to blow his nose."

The editor of Printers' Ink in the issue of September 7 prints the above with the following illuminative response which conveys much information of interest to members of this and other industries:

"Mr. Harrington's uneasiness with respect to the Trade Commission's activities arises from the fact that the commission is mainly operating in the field of business morals instead of dealing with specific offenses. Moral precepts cannot, as a rule, be expressed in absolutely definite terms and the limits within which they are operative cannot be staked out precisely in advance. No one can imagine in advance all of the possible methods of unfair competition which human ingenuity may devise, and any attempt to establish a precise definition of unfair competition would merely constitute an invitation to discover methods which would be outside of the definition. The Federal Trade Commission, therefore, is charged with the general duty of preventing 'unfair methods of competition,' and it is left to the conscience of the individual business man to determine whether the methods he is pursuing are unfair or not.

"The commission was created by an Act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, and designed to supplement the existing anti-trust laws. The act declares in general terms that 'unfair methods of competition in commerce are hereby declared unlawful,' and goes on to prescribe minutely the powers and duties of the commission, the privileges of appeal to the Federal courts, and so on. The Clayton Act, passed in October of the same year, also gave to the commission specific power to enforce certain sections of that law, and it also was granted certain powers under the Trading With the Enemy Act and the Webb-Pomerene Law, authorizing manufacturers to combine in seeking export trade. There are five commissioners, appointed by the President for a term of seven years.

"It should be noted that the commission is not empowered to restrain 'unfair competition,' but to prevent unfair methods of competition. It has no authority to punish, nor to impose damages; thus its orders can only be enforced by an appeal to the courts. The limit of its power is the issuance of a formal order to cease and desist from certain specific practices, which, if not obeyed, must be appealed by the commission to a Federal court in order to secure enforcement. Any person against whom an order is issued also has the right to appeal to the Circuit Court, which is empowered to enforce, set aside or modify orders of the commission.

"Any individual can start the machinery in motion merely by writing a letter in which specific charges are made against some other individual or corporation. If this letter appears to constitute a clear case of unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce it is docketed as an application for complaint and turned over to an examiner for investigation. Following this, it goes before a board of review, consisting of two lawyers and one economist, which makes a recommendation as to whether or not a formal complaint should be issued. The case is then studied by one of the commissioners to whom it has been assigned and who makes his recommendations to the full commission. After a discussion a vote is taken to determine whether or not a formal complaint will be issued. In order to result in a formal complaint it must be clear: (1), that the case involves interstate commerce; (2), that the methods reported are actually unfair; (3), that there is actual competition between the parties, and (4), that the case is of sufficient importance as to concern the public interest.

"When a formal complaint is issued, the proceeding becomes a public record, the respondent is given an opportunity to file an answer in writing, after which the case comes up for trial. If the respondent does not believe that the findings of the commission are justified, he has the right to appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

"The practices which have already been condemned by the Federal Trade Commission as representing unfair methods of competition are listed in the 'Congressional Directory' as follows:

Misbranding of fabrics or other commodities respecting the materials or ingredients of which they are composed, their quality, origin or source.

Adulteration of commodities, misrepresenting them as pure, or selling them under such names and circumstances that the purchaser would be misled into believing them pure.

Bribery of buyers or other employees of customers and prospective customers to secure new customers or induce continuation of patronage.

The payment of bonuses by manufacturers to salesmen of jobbers and retailers to secure their special services in selling their goods, and making unduly large contributions of money to associations of customers.

Procuring breach of competitors' contracts for the sale of products by misrepresentation or other means.

Procuring the business or trade secrets of competitors by espionage, by bribing their employees, or by similar means.

Inducing employees of competitors to violate their contracts or enticing away employees of competitors in such numbers or under such circumstances as to hamper or embarrass them in business.

Making false or disparaging statements concerning competitors' products, their business, financial credit, etc.

The use of false or misleading advertisements.

Making vague and indefinite threats of patent infringement suits against the trade generally, the threats being couched in such general language as not to convey a clear idea of the rights alleged to be infringed, but nevertheless causing uneasiness and fear in the trade.

Widespread threats to the trade of suits for patent infringement arising from the sale of alleged infringing products of competitors, such threats not being made in good faith but for the purpose of intimidating the trade.

False claims to patents, or misrepresenting the scope of patents.

Intimidation for the purpose of accomplishing enforced dealing by falsely charging disloyalty to the Government.

Tampering with and misadjusting the machines sold by competitors for the purpose of discrediting them with purchasers.

Trade boycotts or combinations of traders to prevent certain wholesale or retail dealers or certain classes of such dealers from procuring goods.

Passing off products or business of one manufacturer for those of another by imitation of products, dress of goods, or by simulation of advertising or of corporate or trade names.

Unauthorized appropriation of the results of a competitor's ingenuity, labor and expense, thereby avoiding costs otherwise necessarily involved in production.

Preventing competitors from procuring advertising space in newspapers or periodicals by misrepresenting their standing or other misrepresentation calculated to prejudice advertising mediums against them.

Misrepresentation in the sale of stock of corporations.

Selling rebuilt machines of various descriptions, rebuilt automobile tires, and old motion-picture films, slightly changed as and for new products.

"The commission also has authority, under Section 6 of the Trade Commission Act, to make economic investigations; to gather and compile information concerning the organization, business, conduct, practices and management of any corporation engaged in interstate commerce except banks and common carriers. It has further investigatory powers in connection with violation of the anti-trust laws and the manner in which decrees of the courts are being carried out. The commission is also entrusted with jurisdiction over violations of those actions of the Clayton Act which refer to price discriminations, tying contracts, 'holding companies' and interlocking directorates. Its functions under the Trading With the Enemy Act and the Webb-Pomerene Law do not concern the present discussion."

Persistence in selling, as in every other endeavor, is a prime essential.

COMMUNITY SERVICE FEATURES "TALKER" IN PROGRAMS

Plans Musical Programs for Use of Community Service Organizations Throughout Country in Which the Talking Machine Plays Important Part—Programs Carry Lists of Records

The talking machine is made an integral part of the programs of Community Service, Inc., headquarters in New York of the various Community Service organizations in various cities, towns and villages throughout the country. The movement is one which should have the support of talking machine dealers everywhere and offers not only an opportunity for civic service, but in the music programs an opportunity for public musical education and increased sales of talking machines and records.

One of the plans outlined by the Community Service which already has been successfully used by various organizations, such as schools, churches, etc., consists of giving opera with the aid of the talking machine. The plan is as follows: The story of the opera is narrated and then the records of the various airs are played on the talking machine in their proper sequence. With the bulletin describing this plan the Community Service sends a list of the recordings of the various record manufacturing companies bearing on the opera. Some of the operas suggested are "Carmen," "Aida" and "Martha."

The Community Service has also prepared a program in honor of the late Stephen C. Foster, composer of many American folk songs, including "Old Folks at Home," "Old Black Joe," "My Old Kentucky Home," and many others, in which the talking machine plays a prominent part. Somewhat the same procedure is followed as in the presentation of the opera. Interesting facts concerning Foster's life are narrated by a speaker and the songs of the deceased composer are played on the talking machine and sung by those present. In this instance also the Community Service has listed the songs composed by Foster and suggests what records to buy. The list includes Victor, Edison, Columbia, Brunswick and Vocalion records.

One novel use of the talking machine was recently made by Community Service, of Texarkana, Ark.-Tex., under the direction of S. W. Papert. According to this plan several of the local instrumentalists and singers competed with famous artists in their respective fields as recorded on talking machine records.

This idea appealed to the local musicians, since it interested them to appear with famous artists, who performed by proxy through the talking machine. It also interested the public as the feature of a most unusual and delightful special concert.

The plan in brief is as follows: A record of a violin piece played by Jascha Heifetz was run on the talking machine. This was followed by the playing of the same piece by a local violinist according to a prearranged schedule. Next came a vocal record by Galli-Curci or Schumann-Heink, bracketed with the actual singing of the number by a local artist. In the sequence of numbers vocal and instrumental records alternated for the sake of variety. The stunt, needless to say, scored big.

FINE NUMBER OF "THE AEOLIAN"

Current Issue Devoted Largely to Paderewski and His Career

The current number of "The Aeolian," the house organ of the Aeolian Co., just issued, is a most impressive volume and indicates the success of the plan to broaden the scope of that publication. It is known as the Paderewski Number, and, in addition to several excellent portraits of the great pianist and Duo-Art artist, there appears a most interesting article on Paderewski from both the artistic and political angles, written by Pearl Spaulding, editor of "The Aeolian."

PLANS COMPLETED FOR RETAIL ADVERTISING CONTEST

Committee of Music Industries Chamber of Commerce Formulates Rules Under Which the Advertisements Will Be Judged—Twelve Awards Provided For

The final details of the Retail Advertising Contest proposed at the annual convention in June have just been completed by the Trade Service Bureau of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce working with a special committee appointed by President R. W. Lawrence. The object of the contest is to stimulate better advertising in the music field and it is expected that as a result of the movement there will be available a collection of high-grade business-building advertisements, which will serve as a guide to advertising writers throughout the field.

The idea has been approved by the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World. It was announced at the conference of the Educational Department during the Advertising Clubs' convention in Milwaukee that such a contest had been undertaken by the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce and that a committee of advertising and merchandising experts would be appointed by the A. A. C. of W. to cooperate with a like committee from the Music Industries to judge this contest. All trade associations and Chambers of Commerce were urged to appoint Better Advertising Committees for the purpose of securing better advertising in their industries or their communities.

Thus the music industries occupy the position of leading the way toward better advertising through trade association service. So far as can be learned no trade association has previously conducted such a contest.

Advertising Standards

The standards by which the advertising will be judged are announced as follows:

1. Sales Appeal—Creating interest, desire and action.
2. Prestige Value—Commanding confidence and good will.
3. Attractiveness—Attention value, illustrations, language and typography.
4. Truthfulness—Freedom from exaggerated price claims or quality comparisons; fairness to competitors.
5. Individuality—Evidence of originality and ingenuity in illustrations and copy; personality, persistence and continuity of character in expressing retail service.

Prize-winning Awards

The first prizes will be awarded to winners of the contest in the following divisions: Class A—Silver trophy to the winner in a city of more than 20,000 population. Class B—Silver trophy to the winner in a city of less than 20,000 population, and ten honor award certificates in each class will be issued to those advertisers whose entries stand next highest in the opinion of the judges.

Rules and Regulations

1. The contest will be confined to newspaper advertising run during the year ending March 31, 1923.
2. All clippings must be submitted to the Trade Service Bureau, Music Industries Chamber of Commerce, 105 West Fortieth street, New York City, in time to be placed in the committee's hands not later than April 10, 1923.
3. Only the advertising of firms represented by membership in the National Association of Music Merchants at the time of the first announcement of the contest will be eligible.
4. Not less than twelve advertisements from a contestant will be considered. They may be a consecutive series or selections from the entire year's advertising. As many may be submitted as desired.
5. The judges reserve the right to include other advertising of the advertiser than that submitted.

Committees on Awards

The Chamber's special committee on the Retail Advertising Contest, working with the Trade Service Bureau, will pass on the merchandising merit of the advertising from the viewpoint of the music industry. The members of this committee are: Thomas H. Fletcher, Aeolian Co., New York City; C. E. Byrne, Steger & Sons Piano Mfg. Co., Chicago, Ill.; B. H. Jefferson, Lyon & Healy, Chicago, Ill.; H. E. Lawrence, Standard Pneumatic Action Co., New York City; A. L. Walsh, Thomas A. Edison, Inc., Orange, N. J.; Phillip Wyman, Baldwin Piano Co., Cincinnati, O.; Thomas F. Green, Silas E. Pearsall Co., New York City, and A. F. Price, Price & Teeple Piano Co., Chicago, Ill.

The special committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World will pass on the advertising from the viewpoint of technique and merchandising appeal to the public. President Lou Holland, of Kansas City, has named: Jesse H. Neal, executive secretary of Associated Business Papers, Inc., treasurer of A. A. C. of W.; John Clyde Oswald, publisher of The American Printer, and Earle Pearson, Advertising Development Department, A. A. C. of W.

The judges' decision will be made in time for announcement of the winners at the 1923 convention in Chicago.

NEW SCRANTON FIRM CHARTERED

A charter of incorporation has been granted to the Jennings-Huenle-Donahoe Co., of Scranton, Pa., to deal in musical instruments and talking machines, with a capital of $50,000. Incorporators are J. J. Donahoe, F. G. Huenle and R. Jennings.

DRIVE ON RECORDS BRINGS RESULTS

Collings & Co., of Newark, Report Fine Business—Meeting Increasing Demand for Records From Dealers—Many Merchants "Hooking Up" With Concert Stars

September business with Collings & Co., the well-known Victor distributors, of Newark, N. J., showed a very heavy increase over any other month of the present year. This is true both in regards to sales of records and Victrolas. L. W. Collings, head of the company, is very much gratified at the continued growth of his firm as well as the increased volume of business during the present season.

Collings & Co. have given particular attention to the record end of their business for the past several months. The sudden increased demand for popular records was anticipated and quantity stocks were on hand, thus enabling the company to give unusual service to the dealer. This renewed activity in point of sales was well taken care of and the dealers' needs in Collings' territory were promptly met, thus bridging over the several weeks necessary to receive unlooked-for orders from the factory.

The sales organization of the company is imbued with a spirit of optimism which has been completely justified by the public's interest. It is now carrying on a campaign among dealers to give more attention to the various musical activities in their localities. It is Collings & Co.'s contention that "hooking up" and taking advantage of the appearance of concert stars, musical shows and other organizations of prominence will well repay the dealer. Many are responding to this campaign and this is particularly true with the coming personal appearance of Paul Whiteman, who is to bring his Dance of Rhythm Orchestra to Newark on October 31. The musical shows, "Rose of Stamboul" and "Spice of 1922," are also booked for Newark and other cities in this territory, and the United States Marine Band has also toured the State.

MOVE TO NEW QUARTERS

The Triangle Radio Supply Co., Inc., distributor of radio products, has moved from 122 Fifth avenue to 112 East Twenty-third street. The new location is on the ground floor of the building. This company was organized some time ago by Lambert Friedl, who is well known in the talking machine industry.

FAIR TRADE AT SALT LAKE CITY

Music Week Plans Dropped — Radio Loses Ground—E. B. Jones Buys Lyric Music Co.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, October 5.—The talking machine business in this city has been fairly brisk during the last month. The interest in radio has dropped, it seems, to a point near zero. One jewelry store that gave free radio concerts has dropped them because, as the president of the concern explained, there is no interest in them now.

A local optical company—the Young Co., located in the Judge Building—has put in a line of talking machines. This is the first optical concern here to sell musical instruments.

Music Week, which was to have been held the first week in October and which promised a short time ago to be something worth while, is to fall through, it seems. Fred Beesley, secretary of the Utah Association of Music Industries, tells your correspondent that nothing has been done toward putting on the final touches and he thought the affair would not come off.

Ezra B. Jones, who has been with the Glen Bros.-Roberts Piano Co., has purchased the talking machine business of the Lyric Music Co., Washington avenue, Ogden, and will conduct it from its present location. Sonora and Vocalion machines will be sold. C. L. Madsen, manager of the Lyric Co., will hereafter devote all his attention to the sale of pianos and will continue in the present store.

WILSON MUSIC CO. TO MOVE

STEVENS POINT, WIS., October 6.—The Wilson Music Co., G. M. Farrin, manager, which has been housed in the Boston Furniture Store, this city, has leased attractive new quarters in the Hotel Whiting. A full line of Victrolas, Victor records, pianos and player-pianos, etc., will be installed. Mr. Farrin expects to open about October 15.

ARTI-PHONE CO. OPENS BRANCH

New Kansas City Branch Will Distribute Arti-Phone and Strand Phonographs and Okeh Records—New Brunswick Consoles Displayed

KANSAS CITY, KAN., October 6.—The Arti-Phone Co., of St. Louis, Mo., has opened a jobbing branch in this city. The branch has secured the jobbing franchise of the Arti-Phone and the Strand phonograph and the Okeh records. The product of the Arti-Phone Co. is claimed to be a satisfactory product which is sold at a popular price. The company promises a vigorous selling campaign for its products.

One of the new attractions to be found in musical instruments in the shops this week was the new Chippendale consoles in walnut cases on sale at the Wunderlich Music Co.'s store and manufactured by the Brunswick Co. This model is exciting considerable interest.

INVENTORS BUSY ON TALKING FILM

Americans and Europeans Busy With Inventions to Synchronize Film and Sound

The zeal with which American and European inventors are turning toward the solving of the problem of synchronization of the moving picture film and sound has brought to light another system of talking pictures invented by Prof. A. L. Rankine, of England, who follows almost entirely the procedure of Prof. Tykociner, whose method was described in the last issue of The World.

Another Englishman, Grindell Matthews, has succeeded in working out a method of recording the voice of the moving picture actor by means of a small mirror which oscillates in harmony with the vibrations of the diaphragm of the microphone. Mr. Matthews uses separate recording devices for voice and picture. Other inventors in various parts of Europe are working on the same project.

This is by no means the closest test in the Cheney factories. Some parts are held to a variation of not more than $3/4$ of $1/1000$ th of an inch.

The third test of The Cheney Motor

After passing the most rigid kind of tests for noise and duration of uniform pull, Cheney motors reach the third test for uniformity of speed and pull, under the hardest of actual playing conditions.

Magnified two times in diameter

A Vital Difference of $5/1000$ of an Inch. Can You See It?

One of the Exacting Tests Which All Parts of Cheney Mechanism Must Pass

Above is a picture of one of the gauges used in the testing of Cheney motor parts. As is indicated by the illustration, there is a difference in the spread of the gauge above and below the notch of $5/1000$ ths of an inch.

The little picture at the left shows The Cheney drum shaft in the process of being tested on this gauge. The drum shaft must be so accurately made that it will fit into that part of the gauge which is 1.0655 inches in diameter, and will not fit into that part which is 1.0605 inches across.

Only $5/1000$ ths of an inch difference—about the diameter of a human hair—yet it is so vital a difference that unless the drum shaft measures to these specifications it is thrown out.

Such are the exacting standards used throughout in the manufacture of Cheney mechanism. They explain why The Cheney has achieved its reputation as the "Master Instrument."

Tidewater Oil Co. Secures Dealers to Handle New Oil by Unique Campaign

Large corporations throughout the country, in search of unique advertising mediums which will prove worth while, are turning more and more to the talking machine. One of the most recent concerns to use this medium is the Tidewater Oil Co., manufacturer of Veedol lubricating oil, Tydol gasoline and Fordol, which is placing its proposition before prospective dealers by means of specially recorded talking machine records. Each salesman of the company was requested to send in a list of the twenty-five best Fordol dealer prospects, and to these was mailed a talking machine record on which were recorded the various good qualities of Fordol, a special oil for Ford cars, for which the company is seeking a large distribution.

The reasons given by the Tidewater Oil Co. for selection of talking machine records as a means of bringing its product before the dealers were that there are more talking machines in the United States than there are automobiles, and it was estimated that almost every dealer to whom a record was sent would have a machine, and those who did not would be able to play the record on a friend's machine. The big idea was that few dealers would throw the record away. The company depended on the curiosity of the dealers to play the records and, of course, once they were on the machine they would listen to the sales talk.

On one side of the record, under the title of "Carry Me Under Your Bonnet," was a short sales talk on Fordol which ended up with the sentence serving to win an introduction for the salesman who called a few days later. On the other side was a parody on a well-known song in which Fordol was played up, entitled "The Song of the Road."

C. B. Larrabee, who described the entire campaign in Printers' Ink, pointed out the possibilities in this form of advertising and emphasized its success as used by this company.

SALE OF EROOKS MFG. CO. ASSETS

SAGINAW, MICH., October 3.—The assets of the Brooks Mfg. Co., of this city, including realty holdings, machinery, lumber and all other properties of the company, which were scheduled for sale on September 19, will be disposed of at a public sale on Thursday, October 5, according to a notice emanating from George A. Marsten and Paul H. King, referees in bankruptcy. The Brooks Co. was the manufacturer of the Brooks Automatic Repeating Phonograph.

STAGES VICTOR PUZZLE CONTEST

Spengel Furniture Co. Adds Many Names to Prospect List Through Children

HIGHLAND, ILL., October 6.—The Spengel Furniture Co. here used the new Victor cut-out puzzles in a very effective manner recently. An advertisement was placed in the local paper stating that to every child calling at the store would be given a puzzle and information concerning a contest to occur later. To every child responding was given one of the puzzles, of the same kind, and a card to fill out, indicating the desire to enroll for a contest later and, incidentally, whether there was a musical instrument in the home.

Two hundred children asked for puzzles. These ads continued to appear for one month, at which time the children enrolling received a letter asking if they still intended to take part in the contest and a card to return if they desired to. Of the ninety-eight cards returned fifty-three girls and thirty-five boys were present on the day of the contest. The three prizes, consisting of a Victrola IV and two toy talking machines, were awarded the winners.

VICTOR EDUCATORS IN MID-WEST

Members of the educational department of the Victor Talking Machine Co. have been busy throughout Illinois during August and September and their activities will continue through October. Many county institutes and Summer schools have been covered and the result should be an immense impetus to school business if it is followed up by the dealer.

An extensive campaign of development work in this territory is being planned by this concern.

MANY ARTISTS HOME FROM EUROPE

Mme. Gadski, Frank Damrosch, Elly Ney and Other Notables Back for Fall Season

Mme. Johanna Gadski-Tauscher, Victor artist, returned last week on the "Reliance," from a trip to Berlin with her daughter, Lotte, who, her mother announced, has become engaged to a young Berliner, Ernst Busch.

Other musical notables on the liner were: Frank Damrosch, of the New York Symphony Orchestra; Mrs. Damrosch and Miss Helen Therese Damrosch, Mrs. Ada Bodansky and her family and Albert Spalding, the American violinist and Edison artist, who has been abroad eighteen months traveling through Europe, where he said playing at concerts and festivals had to be done for "art's" sake because the remuneration from the American viewpoint was a mere pittance.

Other noted artists who arrived from abroad recently included Elly Ney, Brunswick artist, in company with her four-year-old daughter, and Leopold Godowsky, pianist, who also makes records for the Brunswick.

The Strong Record Co., of New York City, has increased its capital from $500,000 to $1,000,000.

OPPORTUNITY

THE Victor retailer with vision and foresight is facing the greatest opportunity in the history of the Victor industry. The Victor line is complete today in every detail, and the sales possibilities are unlimited.

IMITATION may be the sincerest form of flattery. But it also is the means of deceiving the public and bringing a good product into disrepute. Brilliantone needles have not escaped this unscrupulous competition.

It has come to our attention that a few distributors of talking machine needles are packing nondescript foreign-made needles in Brilliantone boxes, offering them as apparently American-made needles. These inferior substitutes can be easily detected. They lack the playing qualities of Brilliantone needles. They vary in length and thickness. Many have turned or no points.

INDIANAPOLIS

Phonograph Co. of Indiana Organized—Leading Companies Active in Promoting Sales—W. J. Baker a Live Wire—Herdman Active

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., October 7.—The Phonograph Corp. of Indiana, organized to take over the business of the Kipp Phonograph Co., Edison distributor in Indiana, is now in full operation. John H. Vandervoort, formerly employed in various executive capacities at the Edison factory, is in charge of the company's Indiana wholesale interests as assistant manager. William H. Meskill, former assistant to the general treasurer of Thos. A. Edison, Inc., is assistant secretary and credit manager of the Indiana branch. H. G. Anderson is retained as general sales manager. Announcement of Mr. Kipp's retirement and of the policy of the new company was made to the trade formally by A. H. Curry, vice-president of the Edison Co., last month.

Mr. Kipp is continuing with the new concern for some time in an advisory capacity, but it is understood his activities will be confined in a large degree to the retail end of the phonograph business through the Edison Shop, which for some time has been owned by him and W. O. Hopkins. In addition to Edison phonographs this company is also handling pianos.

R. R. Karch, assistant secretary of the Edison Co., was a visitor in Indianapolis a few days during September. He reported that in the course of extensive travels over the country he has found the phonograph business to be steadily improving.

Displaying New Cheney Models

H. A. Brown, manager of the talking machine department of the Pearson Piano Co., says he has just received twenty new Cheney period models which are the finest he has ever had in stock. The purchase of these, he says, is in line with plans of the company to specialize this Winter in "big stuff." The sale of both machines and records has kept up during September as well as he expected it would, he reports. Purchasers of machines, he says, are displaying steadily increasing interest in the higher-priced period models.

Develop Plans for Fall Campaign

R. H. Woodford, Cincinnati branch manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., and E. D. Follin, general manager of Widener's Grafonola Shops, were visitors at Widener's Indianapolis store the latter part of September. They conferred with W. G. Wilson, manager, in preparation for Winter business, which, in the opinion of all three, is to be exceptionally good. V. O'Banion, who has been sent to Indianapolis from Cincinnati to take charge of the Indiana territory for the Columbia Co., reports also that activity in both machines and records is brisk. How C. P. Herdman Quickens Record Sales

C. P. Herdman, manager of the talking machine department of the Baldwin Piano Co., held another penny record sale in September for the purpose of stimulating his business, as he has found such sales have done in past months. During the three days of the sale in which he offered one record at the regular price and two records at the regular price plus one cent he disposed of about 1,200 special records. In addition, he says, he sold many Brunswick and Columbia records, at regular prices which he otherwise would not have sold.

"We have been very much gratified with the business that has developed in both records and machines this Summer," said Mr. Herdman. "Sales have not been as frequent as we should like to have them be, but the development of prospects has been particularly good. Our salesmen have made twice as many house-to-house calls this Summer as during any other Summer. Figuring on the regular percentage of returns there is every reason to think that business this Fall and Winter will more than make up for the slack weeks we have been through since the first of the year."

September proved to be an "ordinary month" for T. H. Bracken, of the Starr Piano Co. He did much to stimulate the sale of records by the use of a machine with amplifier attachment which was played daily at the entrance to the store. This proved to be a good drawing card and almost every day several records were sold directly from the machine in addition to others chosen from the catalog list.

To Handle Jewett Line in Lafayette

John A. Cartwright, manager of the sales promotion department of the Stewart Talking Machine Co., State distributor for the Jewett Radio & Phonograph Co., recently completed arrangements with O. L. Foster, of Lafayette, to handle the Jewett line in that city. Mr. Cartwright says that the interest in radio is directing attention to the Jewett machines in a surprising manner and that many new agencies will be opened in the State in the next few weeks.

Miss Springer during the last month has featured the Gold Seal phonograph repeater by having one in operation continually day after day in an individual show case in front of the entrance to the store.

Unico Equipment for Brunswick Shop

Walter J. Baker, manager of the Brunswick Shop, is preparing for bigger business by having extensive alterations made in the interior of the store. He is putting two large machine display rooms on the second floor so as to release the front of the store for display of records. Mr. Baker's office will be moved from the second floor to the rear of the first floor, where the records now are sold. The equipment is being made by the Unit Construction Co. with headquarters in Philadelphia.

Mr. Baker says that he hesitates to say how good business has been with him in both machines and records for the reason that no one who read about it would believe he told the truth. His record sales were stimulated considerably in September by the appearance of the Oriole Terrace Orchestra, an exclusive Brunswick recording organization, at Keith's Theatre. Mr. Baker had the orchestra at his store one afternoon. The organization did much to raise jazz music in the estimation of many phonograph owners, according to both Mr. Baker and Mr. Herdman, of the Baldwin Piano Co. The latter said that the sales of Brunswick records were unusually good during the appearance of the orchestra in the city.

How Mr. Baker Gets in Contact With Public

In connection with his efforts to keep the public thinking about Brunswicks Mr. Baker has evolved a series of eight letters and seven blotters which he is mailing alternately to prospects. The letters are illustrated with such line drawings as, for instance, may be conceived to fit the first letter, which reads as follows: "Ever draw pictures? When things are quiet we draw pictures. First we draw a man starting out to look at phonographs. Then we draw him listening to an ordinary machine. Then we draw him listening to a Brunswick. What do you think of our pictures?"

The blotters are illustrated also with text that is brief and clever. One, for example, shows the bald and enlarged head of a "high-brow." Across the spacious brow is the word "Incite." The text reads: "The other day a highbrow was listening to Brunswick phonographs. We played an operatic record and he remarked, 'that is soul-stirring.' After he went we looked in the dictionary. 'Soul' is the immortal spirit of man and 'stir' is to 'incite.' So—if you buy a Brunswick phonograph you must expect to have your immortal spirit incited." Not a bad phrase.

Just Marking Time

No effort is being made by the Mooney-Mueller-Ward Co., Pathé distributor, to develop new business pending instructions from the main office regarding the work of reorganization, according to C. S. Dearborn, manager of the Pathé department of the company. He says, however, that the sales of machines and records are keeping up well on past efforts. No new machines are being bought for distribution.

Installs Gabel Automatic Entertainer

A new Gabel Automatic Entertainer has been installed in the talking machine department of the Binkley & New store, this city, by the Central Music Co. Under an agreement with the company installing the machine the latest releases of Gennett records will be provided each month.

Sonora Dealers to Meet

The annual State convention of Sonora dealers will be held in the Lincoln Hotel October 11, according to Edward L. Mayer, manager of the Sonora department of the Kiefer-Stewart Drug Co. Responses so far to notices of the meeting indicate a record attendance, Mr. Mayer reports. Among the speakers for the occasion will be George E. Brightson, president of the Sonora Co.; Frank J. Coupe, vice-president and sales manager; George J. Corrigan, manager of the inspection department of the factory; G. B. Moxeley, vice-president of the Kiefer-Stewart Co.; O. C. Mauer, manager of the sundries department of that company, and Mr. Mayer. The convention will be an all-day affair, with a buffet luncheon at noon and a banquet at night. A musical program of unusual excellence has been arranged.

Kimball Upright Models Popular

A return to popularity of the upright models is a feature of the Kimball business, according to C. F. Kahn, of the Capital Paper Co., Kimball distributor. Mr. Kahn says that in his estimation the console models have ceased to be a fad and have become a staple which always will be in demand. He reports trade to be brisk over the territory, with new dealers being signed up each week.

Frank and Harry Williams, formerly associated with the Stewart Talking Machine Co., have opened the Paramount Music Shop at Massachusetts avenue and Walnut street in Indianapolis. They are featuring records and player rolls.

ZANESVILLE, O., October 6.—With the expanding of the store of the Williams Co., of this city, which will take place soon, the Victrola department has been moved to the rear of the main floor, where it will be operated in the future as a separate section, L. H. Williams, head of the concern, announced this week. New lines will be added and the present stock greatly increased, Mr. Williams said.

FACTORY FORCES BEING INCREASED

Big Plant of Wasmuth-Goodrich Co. at Peru a Busy Spot—What President Wasmuth Says

PERU, IND., October 7.—The big plant of the Wasmuth-Goodrich Co., located here, is now working very busily and additional factory forces have been taken on. Continuance of this activity is predicted by E. M. Wasmuth, president of the company, who says:

"Our books are filling with orders and we are very busy now. Furthermore, are anticipating a steadily increasing demand for merchandise for the next three or four months. Then around the first of the year we expect to increase our line with some models that we are sure will have a very strong appeal. In my opinion there will be a good market for instruments selling at around $175 this year and we are endeavoring to give special attention to that particular demand."

The Wasmuth-Goodrich Co. manufactures the Emerson phonograph.

FOR A PERMANENT TARIFF COURT

Bill Providing for Creation of Non-partisan Court Introduced by Congressman Anson

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 5.—The creation of a permanent, non-partisan tariff court is provided for in a bill which has been introduced in the House of Representatives by Congressman Anson, of New York, and which would divest Congress of its tariff-making powers.

Under the terms of the measure Congress would announce the principle or basis on which the tariff should be computed, as at present, but the power to hold hearings and determine the facts, apply the principles and levy rates would be vested in the court. The members of the court would receive annual salaries of $12,500 each, and would be appointed for life.

"Under the proposed plan," said Representative Anson, in discussing his bill, "the power of Congress would be limited to enacting a tariff law setting forth the basis of the tariff—whether on a protective basis of difference in cost of production here and abroad, on the basis of revenue, or on such other basis as Congress may determine. There the function of Congress will cease. It will then be the duty of the tariff court to apply that law after hearing the facts, as any equity court might hear the facts and apply the law in every case."

NEW TOLEDO STORE OPENED

Whitney, Blaine & Wildermuth Co. Opens Attractive New Headquarters—Many Ohio Convention Visitors Attend Opening

TOLEDO, O., October 3.—One of the interesting features of convention week was the formal opening of the handsome new piano and talking machine showrooms of the Whitney, Blaine & Wildermuth Co., at 622 Adams street, in the heart of the business section of the city.

The new store is on the second floor and occupies a space 100 by 40 feet, attractively decorated and well lighted. The main space is given over to the piano stock, but liberal provision is made for the display and demonstration of talking machines and records, four sound-proof, well-ventilated booths being provided.

In the piano and player line the company handles the M. Schulz, Werner, Acoustigrande, Boardman & Gray, Laffargue and other makes and contemplates opening a special parlor for a line of reproducing pianos. In addition to pianos, Victor talking machines and records and Q R S music rolls are handled.

D. M. Blaine is president of the company, H. C. Wildermuth, treasurer, and F. H. Ridley, secretary. Before moving to the present location the company was located at 320 Superior street.

A large number of convention visitors attended the opening and inspected the new quarters.

"Sincerity and Service" Must Be the Slogan of the Salesman Aiming to Win :: By W. Braid White

Last month in The Talking Machine World I ventured to set forth the outline of a sales presentation which appeared to me to possess the elements of scientific principle, combined with practical adaptability. Of course, no standardized presentation is ever adhered to letter for letter, simply because circumstances are never exactly the same in any two cases. But all presentations, simply because they deal with what is always the same process in principle, go through the same stages. Because they go through the same stages they all emerge, finally, in the same result, which is sale. Now, when a sale has been made, in the sense that the contractual obligations have been satisfied, and the order has achieved legal enforceability, there always remains something lacking before the real conclusion can rightly be said to have been reached. For no sale is really complete until there has been created in the mind of the purchaser a sense of satisfaction.

This sounds, perhaps, like a very long way round to an old statement. But in reality it is not so at all. Only within the last few years has the understanding come among business men that no sale is really completed until there has been created within the mind of the purchaser a feeling of entire satisfaction. So long as there lingers the slightest trace of misunderstanding or of belief that any statement has been made which is not strictly true the sale is not really complete. For even if the legal obligation is both enforceable and enforced, even though the money may have changed hands, the purchaser will feel disappointed, perhaps a little angry and certainly not quite satisfied.

Like a Leak

Now, a dissatisfied customer is like a leak in a boat. One small leak does not seem to be of much importance, but if it is allowed to remain uncaulked it will ultimately founder the boat. Worse still, one leak often leads to others. One dissatisfied customer sows dissatisfaction in the minds of other customers, actual or prospective. Too many leaks founder any vessel.

In the talking machine business, then, what is the practical aspect of securing satisfaction? It lies, of course, in what may broadly be called service. But it also lies in what may equally accurately be called sincerity. Of all the many rules which have been and constantly are being given to salesmen no one is more important than the simple one which says in three words: Tell the Truth. Let the smart persons and the would-be game-beaters say what they please, this old and tried rule beats every other scheme that can be imagined or that has ever been imagined yet.

Tell the Truth

In other words, there is no gain and there is all loss in any habit of making statements which cannot be backed up. It may be said that candor will often spoil a sale. To that the answer is that no one is compelled, or even called on in the interests of truth, to put the worst face upon affairs. Talking machines need care, but no one needs to enlarge upon what will probably happen to a machine in the extremely probable event of its not receiving care. In other words, the need for care should be emphasized, but there is no call for the assumption that care will probably not be given.

Again, it is chiefly in respect of technical statements that mistakes, misunderstandings and positive falsehoods are likely to be made. There will be some who will say that the ordinary purchaser knows nothing about tone-quality and that any good salesman ought to make his machine sound so good to the prospect (by dint of what he says about it) that no matter how rotten it may actually be the prospect will be charmed with it. This is a plausible way of putting the facts, but it is not quite true. If the prospect is satisfied there is nothing more to be said, but to talk inflated nonsense about reproduction where there is not the slightest basis even for pride in the machine makes only for the generation of a habit of lying. Now a lying salesman is not wanted in the business world of to-day.

What Is Service?

Satisfaction, however, is just as much a matter of what may be called service. Now, in the talking machine business the word service covers principally the maintenance of friendly relations with the purchaser after machine and records have been safely installed in their new home. There are several possibilities in the way of service. For one thing, it should be a rule in every store that no machine may be left overnight in its new home without the visit of a service man, who shall set it up, show the owners how to use it and give them needed instruction in the matter of handling records, changing needles, using needles of different kinds, taking care of the motor, and so on. It may not always be the easiest thing in the world, but it can be done, and where it is done as a matter of rule the effect upon the sense of satisfaction generated in the prospect's mind is highly beneficial always.

Then there is the still more important matter of securing that the feeling of satisfaction shall translate itself into the steady purchase of new records. If the machine is a good one and reproduces well there is no reason why any purchaser should be satisfied with just a dozen records or so, especially when the popular sort are all so much alike that a dozen of them are, in point of variety, hardly worth more than just one. The way to bring customers to the store is to keep up with the friendly relations by sending around a service man once a month, to inquire into the health of the machine and to find out if all is well. When it seems that early enthusiasm has slightly cooled there is the suggestion ready that some nice new records be sent out on approval. Let then a record salesman take out the package, demonstrate the music and leave behind those which the family think they would like to have. Unless the same are returned within twenty-four hours in perfect condition a bill is sent. And there you are.

There are many ways of looking at this question of service, but the fundamental principle is always that a feeling of satisfaction must be generated and maintained. When the customer is satisfied the sale is made, and both parties to it have secured their profit. Now, sales are the life blood of business, but healthy sales are the only healthy blood, and therefore so the only kind the business can afford to have. Such sales are produced by the habit, based on a thoroughly understood principle of seeing to it that the customer is first made happy and then maintained in that delectable state by sincere service carefully thought out and diplomatically applied.

FORM MAYER BROS. & BRAMLEY, INC.

New Firm Will Manufacture Fischer Phonographs—Sidney N. and Julian T. Mayer Also Principals in Roth Bros. Piano Co., Inc.

With the passing of J. & C. Fischer, Inc., into the hands of the American Piano Co., on October 1, comes the announcement from Sidney N. Mayer of the organization of the firm of Mayer Bros. & Bramley, Inc., with offices and warerooms at 417 West Twenty-eighth street, New York. This company will continue the manufacture and merchandising of Fischer phonographs.

Mr. Mayer in a letter sent to the trade recently also states:

"We will continue, however, as the sole export sales representatives for the Fischer pianos throughout the world for the American Piano Co. We also control the trade-mark 'Fischer' as applied to phonographs and will continue the manufacture and sale of Fischer phonographs.

"To provide for these and other activities there has been incorporated Mayer Bros. & Bramley, Inc., office and warehouse, 417 West Twenty-eighth street.

"Wholesale and retail connections with the piano industry will be maintained by the Roth Bros. Piano Co., Inc., controlled and directed by Messrs. Mayer."

REMODEL THE PHONOGRAPH SHOP

San Francisco Talking Machine Home to Have Attractive New Quarters—System of Handling Records a Feature of New Store

The Phonograph Shop, which handles the Victor and Sonora lines at 109 Stockton street, San Francisco, Cal., has been completely remodeled and a formal opening of the new store will occur the middle of this month. Very decided changes have been made in the equipment. Carpetings and furnishings are complete throughout and the entrance and show windows have been decidedly changed to give the entire store a more refined and roomy appearance.

The system of handling the Victor and Vocalion red records has also been changed very materially, which will also aid the service given the patrons.

An entire new scheme of decorating will be adopted and the method of lighting the individual record rooms will be with pedestal lamps instead of the customary ceiling lights.

A very material increase in business is expected to result on account of these substantial changes, both in equipment and environment.

G. E. CATER RETURNS FROM ABROAD

Visits Columbia Headquarters on Arrival From Extended European Trip

An important visitor to Columbia headquarters last week was George E. Cater, Jr., of the George E. Cater Furniture Co., Columbia dealer at Anniston, Ala. Mr. Cater arrived in New York after an extended trip in Europe, visiting principal cities there, and had a most enjoyable vacation. Being actively interested in Columbia products he stopped long enough in New York to pay a visit to Columbia headquarters, talking over plans and general business activities pertinent to retailing of Columbia Grafonolas and records. Mr. Cater spent considerable time in the Columbia Dealer Service Department and left for home after a three-day sojourn in New York.

Another visitor to Columbia headquarters last week was Edgar Newman, manager of the Grafonola department of the Maison Blanche, the largest department store in New Orleans, La. Mr. Newman is a very enthusiastic Columbia booster, and he reports that business during the past few months has been very satisfactory and all indications point to a very healthy Fall and Winter demand.

THERAPEUTIC VALUE OF MUSIC

Interesting Experiments by Professor M. Boguslawski, of Chicago Musical College

Experiments on therapeutic value of music are being conducted by Professor Moessaye Boguslawski, head of the piano department of the Chicago Musical College, at Bellevue Hospital, New York, and at the Cook County Asylum, Dunning, Ill. In commenting on his experiments Mr. Boguslawski says that he first tries to learn from the patient what sort of music is liked best, and he then analyzes the reasons for the preference. In cases where no preference is shown he subjects the patients to four groupings, namely, nursery melodies, melodies of the schoolroom, songs of romance and adventure, and national anthems and dances. He states that most patients seem to fall under one of these groupings and points out the merit of music in the treatment of the sick, as well as its value as a supplement to surgery.

MEMPHIS DEALERS GO AFTER SALES

Stage Interesting Features to Attract Trade—Fine Exhibits at Tri-State Fair

MEMPHIS, TENN., October 7.—Talking machine dealers in this city and vicinity have enjoyed a fairly good business during the past month, due to the fact that they have staged many interesting features and are energetically going after the sales. The Tri-State Fair, which opened its fourteenth annual meeting here late in September, drew a crowd of more than 100,000 people, and talking machine dealers spared no effort in getting any benefits to be derived from this event. A number of local dealers had very imposing booths and their handsome displays attracted considerable attention.

Bry's music store has just completed the remodeling of its establishment. A special entrance has been constructed from the Main street side to the basement, offering more efficient facilities for handling customers.

The music department of Goldsmith's has installed a radio, and weekly concerts are staged. New booths for the display and demonstration of Brunswicks and Victrolas have been installed, and the Misses Levy and Sturgeon, who are in charge of the department, are kept busy supplying the wants of customers.

TAKES OVER GOETZ & CO. BRANCH

William Ackermann, Former Secretary of Company, Purchases Far Rockaway Store

FAR ROCKAWAY, N. Y., October 5.—The local branch of Goetz & Co., located at 698 Central avenue, has been taken over by William Ackermann, former secretary of the company. Mr. Ackermann was connected with Goetz & Co. for thirty years and has a broad experience in the retailing of musical instruments.

This is one of the finest music stores in this section of the State. A large assortment of musical instruments, pianos, player-pianos and Sonora talking machines comprise the stock of the company.

CLARK MUSIC CO.'S FINE STORE

Clark Music Co., Well-known Syracuse Music House, Completes Construction of Artistic Warerooms—Many Features Installed

SYRACUSE, N. Y., October 9.—The Clark Music Co., located in the Clark Music Building, 416-20 South Selina street, this city, has just completed the new addition to its store in that building. The new quarters are unique in that they are only 110 feet long and not very wide; mirrors placed along the entire left wall give the effect

Clark Music Co.'s Talking Machine Department of a room twice as large. The Clark Music Co. has also taken advantage of the fact that nightly hundreds of people attending the Keith Theatre immediately adjoining spend the intermission of ten or fifteen minutes in a court in the rear of the store. Large windows have been placed in the rear so that these people may see the Victrolas and other musical instruments exhibited.

Another feature of the establishment is the lighting system. The new Duplex arc light is used and this is ideal for store illumination purposes because of its even diffusion of light. The main display room and ten Victor display booths are finished in old ivory. A complete stock of records and Edison Re-Creation and Edison machines are displayed in an adjoining part of the store, the entire scheme being most attractive.

OTTO GRAU BUYS AEOLIAN BRANCH

Arrangements Completed by W. H. Alfring for Transfer of Cincinnati Aeolian Branch to Otto Grau Piano Co. Beginning October 1

CINCINNATI, O., September 30.—The development of most recent interest among local piano dealers is the transfer in its entirety of the stock of the Cincinnati branch of the Aeolian Co. to the Otto Grau Piano Co. The deal required some time for completion and will become effective October 1. W. H. Alfring, head of Aeolian interests, is now in Cincinnati to close this deal.

Under the terms of the agreement the Otto Grau Co. will take over for regular sale all lines of Aeolian player-pianos, Duo-Art pianos, Vocalion talking machines and records. The Grau Co. at the same time will dispose of its agency for all other makes of reproducing pianos, including the Ampico and the Chickering, which the Grau Co. not long ago added to its stock. In addition, the Grau Co. will make purchases of all Aeolian lines, much of this stock to be supplied fresh from the Aeolian factory.

The completion of this deal represents a combination of the experience of twenty years or more in the piano trade in this city. During that time the Otto Grau Co. has steadily grown and developed, and it was not until the Aeolian Co. was convinced that its interests could be taken care of with efficiency and energy that a deal which involved the closing of its branch store here was considered.

The agreement does not include the taking over of the lease held at 25 West Fourth street by the Aeolian Co. Although no disposition of this lease actually has been made, it is the plan to sub-rent the property until its expiration. Many Aeolian employees will be taken over by the Otto Grau Co. and will continue in their present positions with that concern.

The fellow who plans ahead of his competitors is usually winner in the race for business.

A NOVEL TALKING MACHINE

An unusual talking machine made from a large open log is described in the current issue of Popular Mechanics. The log, which is hollowed out, serves as the talking machine cabinet. The interior is lined with aluminum and on the top of the cabinet is a hinged cover which houses the mechanism of a high-priced talking machine. As in the ordinary upright cabinet, the lower part is used as a receptacle for records. Around the cover and base two polished brass bands add to the appearance of the instrument.

Demand for Console Models Main Feature of Trade—Dealers Suffer Console Shortage—Lehman Store to Have Formal Reopening

ST. LOUIS, Mo., October 7.—With the return of Summer vacationists there has been an improvement in the demand for talking machines, particularly console models, but real activity is, to a large extent, still more of a promise than an accomplishment. Consoles continue to have the call, as against the uprights, and the entrance of cheaper models of consoles as a recognition of the demand has met with marked response. There is a growing inclination on the part of owners of uprights to trade them for consoles, which exchanges dealers are willing to make on terms fair to both, provided that they have sufficient stock of these instruments.

In the case of Edisons there has been some difficulty on this score. There is a scarcity of the popular-priced Edison consoles, priced at $135 and $175, which has made it difficult for the Silverstone Music Co. to supply its straight-purchase customers. In some instances it has been necessary to put in upright models temporarily until the console orders can be filled.

There is no present indication of fulfillment of the prophecy made several months ago that there would be a reaction this Fall toward uprights. The record business continues in better condition than the machine business, but the latter is constantly improving and is expected to be normal in a short time.

Plan Formal Reopening of Lehman Store

The Lehman Music House, at 309 Collinsville avenue, East St. Louis, has been so completely remodeled that Fred Lehman, the proprietor, and other members of the organization feel that they have a new store. Fourteen talking machine booths and four player-piano booths have been installed by the Unit Construction Co., of Philadelphia. They are all sound-proof and the finish of the booths and of the rest of the interior is in ivory. The store now has six more booths than before. The work for the Unit Co. was in charge of Mr. Montgomery, of Chicago. There will be a formal opening the second week in October.

Fred Lehman, proprietor of Lehman's Music House, has been attending the annual meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association of Illinois, of which he is a director.

Consoles in Demand, Says A. W. Hosier

Manager A. W. Hosier, of the Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney talking machine department, says there is such an improvement in the demand for consoles that he anticipates a tremendous business in these instruments the coming Fall, provided the car shortage does not prevent getting adequate stock.

F. S. Horning Optimistic

Frank S. Horning, new manager of the Stix, Baer & Fuller talking machine department, says September shows a substantial improvement in business and he looks for a big Autumn trade. He says 60 per cent of the business this year is in consoles. The radio department will be developed under his management. Although there has been a lagging of interest in radio during the Summer, he anticipates a great revival in it as soon as Winter forces people to spend more time indoors.

E. D. Follin a Local Visitor

E. D. Follin, supervisor of the Widener Shops, Inc., was in St. Louis a few days with Manager H. J. Arbuckle, of the local shop. He has been on a tour of all the stores. He found conditions here very satisfactory, with business getting better every day, as Manager Arbuckle expressed it.

P. A. Starck in New Home

The P. A. Starck Piano Co. is now in its new store at the southeast corner of Eleventh and Olive streets, where it has an attractive arrangement of talking machine space.

News Gleanings

J. W. Parkhurst, of Blytheville, Ark., was a local visitor recently and placed his Fall order for Edisons. R. N. Monaghan, of Gillespie, Ill., was another Edison dealer here recently.

The Baldwin Co. has been making a window display of golf sticks, advertising Chick Evans' ten golf lessons on Brunswick records.

Paul Gold, who formerly conducted the Edison Phonograph Shop, Memphis, Tenn., which has gone out of business, has been appointed retail manager for the Silverstone Music Co., succeeding J. A. Schlichter, who resigned to take a position with the Meyer Bros. Drug Co.

J. M. Morrison and G. Manning, of the Edison Laboratories, have been here several weeks organizing clubs of Edison owners for the distribution of circulating records.

Miss Marian Cartwright, of the Kieselhorst Victrola department, has returned from Hannibal, Mo., where she attended the funeral of her brother.

G. P. Ellis, of the Chicago Talking Machine Co., was here the last week in September.

H. L. Coombs, sales manager of the Dodge Mfg. Co., which makes the Radiom Radio, was a visitor recently.

Earl E. Fay Pushing Starr Line

Earl E. Fay, manager of the local branch of the Connorsized Music Roll Co., which handles the Starr talking machine line, has been on a trip through the territory formerly covered by his brother, Frank L. Fay, who resigned recently to take charge of the Kansas City branch of the Weile Publishing Co. at the Jones Store Co. Earl Fay was also in charge of a display of machines, records and music rolls at the Jefferson Hotel, Peoria, Ill., in connection with the annual meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association of Illinois. He reported that the last two weeks in September were the largest he had had at the St. Louis branch since last December. He was first on the market in St. Louis with "Call Me Back, Pal of Mine," sung by Sam Ash, and the sales the first week were more than 3,000.

Columbia Graphophone Activities

The local branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co. advises that the Davis Piano Co., of Alton, has remodeled its store and upon completion of this work will handle Columbia Grafonolas and records exclusively.

At the Jackson County Fair held recently in Murphysboro, Ill., Rolens & Millikan, Columbia dealers, furnished part of the music with Columbia Grafonolas and records. This concern also just recently closed a successful prize contest on the sale of Columbia records and they are certainly extending themselves in promoting the sale of the Columbia line.

The Columbia dealer at Hillsboro, Ill., A. W. Klar, recently purchased a new two-story building. He states that when the interior of the building is finished he expects to have a Columbia Grafonola department equal to any in his territory.

Clever Koerber-Brenner Publicity

Salespeople in the Koerber-Brenner territory have been receiving a series of brown postcards featuring the Victor record sales manual. The value of this book is cleverly set forth by one Sally Green, who, in her amusingly slangy way, shows how helpful this sales help can be if backed by the interest of the manager.

Dealers Feature Victor Artists

Each of the Victor dealers' windows in this city bear the card announcement of the Club Royal Orchestra's appearance in this city and a large picture of the leader, Clyde Doerr. Victor Dealer's Clever Stunt Lebanon, Ill., had a home coming in September which is one of the big events of Southern Illinois. The biggest event of the day was an illuminated Mardi-Gras parade. One of the twenty-eight floats was that of W. C. Daumueller. The float was a complete living room, including davenports, easy chairs, piano-lamp and, most conspicuous of all, a Victrola 300. Girls occupying the float distributed Victor puzzles to the crowd and advertised the contest to be held at a later time in Mr. Daumueller's store. The puzzle contest was held in the Victrola department the latter part of September and was won by a fourteen-year-old girl, who succeeded in putting the puzzle together in one minute and twenty seconds. A large number of Lebanon children entered the contest.

Use Koerber-Brenner Victor Special Display

The Wellston Talking Machine Co., one of the finest Victrola stores in this city, just completed a week of the Victrola Exposition. Many people evinced interest in the display. Mr. Coleman, owner of the Wellston store, reports a very satisfactory week.

The Spengel Furniture Co., of Highland, Ill., was another concern to use the "Victrola Exposition" originated by the Koerber-Brenner Co. for its exhibit at the Highland County Fair. With a background of white muslin, peace palms and flags, Mr. Spengel had one of the finest exhibits ever shown at the fair.

A guessing contest was conducted to get prospects' names. This consisted of a glass jar filled with Victor Tungs-tone needles. To the person guessing the nearest number of needles was given a Victor record-carrying case, filled with twenty-five Victor records. The following week the exposition material was used by the F. S. Bulpitt Sons at the Farmers' Institute at Taylorville, Ill.

RECORD DEMAND RAPIDLY GROWING

H. G. Neu, sales manager of the Regal Record Co., New York City, says there now can be no doubt that the record business is not only returning to normal, but that the Fall season will establish some new figures for such sales. During the past few weeks the sales reports on the Regal record show that the sales are increasing by several thousand each day. Recently, in one week, the week's total showed an increase of 3,000 records a day. This was repeated by almost like figures in the following week.

JOHN H. WILSON, Manager

324 WASHINGTON ST., BOSTON, MASS.

BOSTON, MASS., October 7.—Nine months of the current year have come to a close. To put it another way, three-quarters of 1922 are in the background and what has the trade to say of conditions? Well, the man, the dealer, who has hustled has no fault to find; he had a fair Spring business; a Summer business that was normal and the sort that usually is looked for during the warm months; and with the advent of Fall, dating, say, from Labor Day, he found things rapidly improving and now, as he looks ahead, he sees a very satisfactory business within easy reach. One hears the cry all around of a shortage of goods and several houses honestly claim that they have not been able to get anything like all the machines they have wanted. Such a situation as this is distinctly healthy. If the business but continues up to January the way it has already started for the Fall there will be no kick coming from anybody. Some accomplishment!

E. W. Killgore With Eastern T. M. Co.

The really important news of the month comes from the Eastern Talking Machine Co., where the recent death of George A. Dodge, elsewhere referred to, has left quite a void. Herbert Shoemaker, who, in the capacity of general manager, has done very effective work from the time he arrived in Boston several years ago, will continue to hold the same post, as he has proved himself a distinct asset to the company; but with him will be Edward W. Killgore, who has lately been traveling man for the Victor in the Connecticut, western Massachusetts and Rhode Island territory. Mr. Killgore is an able man, a hard worker and has decidedly made good in promoting the best interests of the Victor, and when it was decided by the Eastern Co. that some good man was essential by way of relieving Mr. Shoemaker of the burdens that for some time he had been practically carrying alone it was Mr. Killgore whom the Eastern Co. looked to as the man for the place. Accordingly, the Eastern Co. made overtures to him and satisfactory arrangements having been made Mr. Killgore came to Boston and entered upon his new duties on Monday, October 2. His title will be sales manager.

E. W. Killgore

Mr. Killgore is a University of Pennsylvania man, class of 1915, and has had experience in other lines besides talking machines. He made a record for himself in the air service during the war and he was the first man to fly over the Rocky Mountains. He also won further renown through being one of the first to carry the mails by airplane from New York to Chicago. He has been with the Victor Co. for two years and, as already stated, made an excellent record. It is understood that the company released him with great reluctance.

Edgar Stone "Up In the Air"

Edgar Stone, who is the talking machine manager of the Washington street store of the Iver Johnson Co., spent practically all of his two weeks' vacation in an airplane. He has a friend, Harland Banks, of Framingham, who had him up with him on numerous occasions, the two flying along the down-east coast to several of the shore resorts, taking in Portsmouth, N. H., then inland to Dover, that same State, and finally landing back at Framingham. Mr. Stone only returned from his trip a few days ago. If business permits of his taking a few days away within the next few weeks it is Mr. Stone's desire to fly over Mt. Washington. As he is considerable of a mechanic he is a great assistance to the expert flyer on these trips. Mr. Banks, by-the-by, was in the Canadian air service during the war and earned his Croix de Guerre from the French Government for landing within German territory.

Official Opening of Steinert Store in Fitchburg

The new M. Steinert & Sons store at Fitchburg is to be officially opened on the afternoon and evening of Monday, October 9. The store, which is handsomely and effectively decorated and furnished, is in Day street, not far removed from the former store of this company. It is in the addition to the Raymond Hotel, which has lately been remodeled and enlarged, and one of the admirable features is that the store is connected with both the beautiful ballroom and concert hall, which are big features of the hotel. Miss Velma Balcom is to supervise a recital on the afternoon and evening of the opening day and this promises to be a feature that will attract many. The store, as before, is managed by A. D. Renz, with Miss M. D. Fenton in charge of the Victor department. It is of special interest that this Steinert store is right in the midst of Fitchburg's "Gay White Way," which, with its brilliant illumination, promises to be a great night rendezvous for Fitchburg people. Kenneth Reed, the Steinert wholesale manager for the Victor, is planning to go up for the opening.

L. K. Scott Succeeds D. S. Pope

Toward the latter part of September D. Stuart Pope resigned from F. C. Henderson's Brunswick shop, as the store at 156 Boylston street is called, and to succeed him has come from Pittsburgh L. K. Scott, who was in charge of the Henderson store in that western Massachusetts city. Mr. Scott has had a valuable experience. Before the World War he was located in Baltimore and following his service in behalf of the nation he was located in Buffalo, leaving there less than two years ago to go to Pittsfield. Mr. Scott is familiar with the details of the talking machine business and is a man of pleasant personality, which counts for much in business.

Doing Well With Columbia in Portland

The local trade was glad a while ago to welcome Jack Shaughnessy, the president and general manager of the United Music Stores, at Portland, Me., who several years ago was one of the valued attaches of Arthur C. Erisman's Tremont street establishment. Mr. Shaughnessy had been over in New York and when calling on Manager Fred E. Mann here in town he said that he was well satisfied with Portland as a place to do business in. Mr. Shaughnessy does not get down to Boston very often. Incidentally, he says there is going to be a good business in the Columbia line in his part of Maine this Fall and Winter.

New Columbia Dealer

Some new dealers in New England who have lately signed up to carry the Columbia line are the J. E. Berry Drug Co., at Farmington, N. H.; Edward H. Crie Co., of Rockland, Me.; W. H. Moore, of Woodstock, Vt.; F. E. Quinam, of Wiscasset, Me.; Frank Lech, of Bondsville, Mass.; Holliston Pharmacy, at Holliston, Mass.; S. J. Gordon, at 23 Causeway street,

Optimistic Over Trade Outlook

Manager Fred E. Mann, of the New England department of the Columbia Co., is more than satisfied with what September did, for the month closed, he says, with the best business the local branch has had for the whole year thus far. Mr. Mann says further that everything points to a splendid wind-up for the year. The improvement is seen in both the machine and record departments. The local force has recently been enlarged to meet the needs of increasing business.

Geo. W. Hopkins Outlines Fall Plans

George W. Hopkins, vice-president and general sales manager of the Columbia Co., was in town the latter part of September, having come over to address the Boston branch salesmen. Mr. Hopkins carefully outlined the Fall sales plans, which are considered very liberal and beneficial to dealers' organizations.

Sonora Jobbers Tell of Activities

Like poor Mother Hubbard's cupboard the stockroom at the Columbus avenue quarters of the Musical Sales & Equipment Co. is very bare just now. Manager Burke says that 700 Sonora machines were shipped out in a single week. Tom Burke, his brother, who is sales manager for the company, was over in New York last week hastening up deliveries, and Joe himself is going over soon on the same errand. The J. L. Lougee Co., in Essex street, Salem, is one of the new stores to sign up for the Sonora representation. Here a new talking machine department has been installed which will be managed by Ernest Tuck. Manager Burke reports that F. N. Joslin & Co., of Malden, who recently put in the Sonora line, sold more than 100 machines in the first six weeks.

Sales Conference Closes With Theatre Party

It was a fitting finale that was provided by the three Boston Victor jobbers for the visiting salespeople who were in town for the second of the Victor class in salesmanship conducted by F. C. Delano. Acting for the Oliver Ditson Co., the Eastern Co. and the Steinert Co., Kenneth Reed, wholesale manager for the Victor for the latter-named house, arranged for a theatre party and dinner, so on the Thursday evening before the final session he and Herbert Shoemaker and Henry Winkelmann were on hand at the Hotel Brunswick to welcome the guests. After a splendid dinner all the company went to the Colonial Theatre to enjoy "Sally." Certainly those who attended the two Victor classes can have nothing but the pleasantest memories of the way these three Victor jobbers took care of them.

A Visitor From Boston

A recent Boston visitor was C. F. Baker, president of the Baker Music Co., of Albany, N. Y., who spent several hours with New England Manager Fred E. Mann, of the Columbia. Mr. Baker has a large organization of canvassers who operate from his Albany store and who use trucks to great advantage.

Returns From Enjoyable Vacation

Miss Grace M. Crosby, who is private secretary to Kenneth E. Reed, of the wholesale department of the M. Steinert & Sons Victor department in Arch street, is home from her vacation, which was spent at that delightful spot, North Conway, N. H.

Frank Crumit Visits Fred E. Mann

Frank Crumit, exclusive Columbia artist, who is playing with Julia Sanderson in "Tangerine" at the Shubert Theatre, has been a caller at the local Columbia wholesale department, where he got a cordial welcome from Fred E. Mann. Mr. Crumit is spending all his spare time on the golf links around Boston and having the time of his life.

George W. Lyle Welcomed in Boston

George W. Lyle, president of the Manufacturers' Phonograph Corp., Inc., which handles the Strand, was a visitor to Boston the latter part of September, remaining in town several days in consultation with Arthur C. Erisman, who has the Strand for this territory.

Likes the Ancient Scotch Game

G. Frank Baldelli, of the Arch street Victor store of the M. Steinert Co., is home from his vacation, which was spent at Cataumet, down on Cape Cod, where he had his family. Baldelli became proficient in several new accomplishments while away and hereafter it will be hard to keep him off the golf links.

F. C. Visits the Dealers

Assistant Manager George P. Donnelly, of the Columbia forces, spent ten days out among the Maine dealers, accompanied by Salesman W. R. Ingalls. Mr. Donnelly reports having found healthy conditions everywhere with everyone looking for a quick upturn in business.

Will Cover New England Also

Walter K. Badger, New England representative of the Unit Construction Co. for the past year, is now making his headquarters at 299 Madison avenue, New York City. He has lately been appointed district manager for New York City, but will also cover the New England States as heretofore.

Erisman Reports Steady Progress

Arthur C. Erisman, of 174 Tremont street, corner of Avery street, is having most pronounced success in jobbing the Vocalion records, and daily he is signing many new concerns throughout New England to handle this line. Oscar W. Ray, who is in charge of the wholesale end of the Vocalion record business for the home offices, was a Boston caller last week, making his headquarters at Mr. Erisman's office. The Strand machine, too, is meeting with marked favor in the same territory. Mr. Erisman has now had the wholesale privileges for this instrument a little more than a year, but in that time he has induced a great many New England dealers to carry it.

Mr. Erisman now has associated with him M. C. Perkins, who still continues his interest in the Perkins Music Store, which he organized in Malden several years ago.

Makes Cheney Sales on Honeymoon Trip

Stephen Colahan and his bride (Marguerite Taylor) have returned from their honeymoon, which was taken by automobile through Maine. Mr. Colahan did not let the grass grow under his feet and made his honeymoon also a business trip, visiting Portland, Lewiston, Augusta, Waterville, Bangor, Old Town, Lincoln, Holton, Fort Fairfield, Caribou and Presque Isle. At Holton Mr. Colahan was able to sign up with the Astle Music House to represent the Cheney machine and at Fort Fairfield he placed the Cheney with Goodhue's, and at Bangor he arranged with the Libby & Skinner Piano Co. to handle this line. At this store Mr. Colahan gave a creditable demonstration of an expensive Cheney machine before a large group of people.

Stephen Colahan was up in Springfield the latter part of September to give a personal demonstration of the Cheney at the Eastern States Exposition, where Forbes & Wallace, of that city, had a large booth in which the Cheney was featured.

Says There Will Be a Shortage

Kenneth Reed, wholesale manager of the Victor department of the M. Steinert & Sons Co., spent several days down in Providence and Pawtucket the middle of September and found conditions very good indeed. He is going over shortly to Camden to hurry up Victor consignments, for Mr. Reed says there is bound to be a shortage of goods later and coming at a time when they are most urgently needed. He expects a very good Fall business and is sure that the year is going to show up very well for the house of Steinert in particular.

"Ken" is prolonging his visit at Orleans, down on the Cape, until the middle of October and as the early Fall shooting is good down in that section he has provided himself with a rifle shot gun—at least that is what he asked someone to procure for him. It's surprising the game he has brought down with this unique firearm.

Increasing Vocalion Demand

Business has shown a decided improvement in the Vocalion line, according to Manager Birdsall, of Vocalion Hall in Boylston street. A very good month has been closed and Mr. Birdsall looks for a healthy and steady demand for goods from now on through the holidays.

GEO. A. DODGE'S DEATH UNIVERSALLY REGRETTED

Vice-president and Treasurer of Eastern Talking Machine Co. Passed Away After Month's Illness—Esteemed in Trade and Public Life

BOSTON, MASS., October 4.—The local talking machine world was thrown into a state of grief upon learning of the death of George A. Dodge, treasurer and part owner of the Eastern Talking Machine Co., which is one of the large Victor jobbing houses hereabouts. Mr. Dodge's funeral took place Tuesday from his home, 452 Chestnut Hill avenue, Brookline, and was largely attended by members of the trade as well as many of Mr. Dodge's friends, who were legion, in all departments of life, and by representatives of the Masonic fraternity and other bodies to which he belonged. Interment was in Lakeside Cemetery, Wakefield.

Mr. Dodge was a native of Ipswich, where he was born in 1866, and for a man comparatively young he had had a very remarkable and successful career. He was a tireless worker and it was his insatiate desire for always keeping busy and the worry incident to caring for his many interests that told eventually upon his health. His breakdown occurred about a month before his taking away and a rest in the mountains was recommended by the family physician. Subsequently he was taken to a hospital at Whitefield, N. H., and it was there that he died on September 20.

Among Mr. Dodge's ancestors were some who were the early settlers of Massachusetts. He first worked for a modest salary in a grocery store, devoting his evenings to the study of music. At the age of twenty-one years he was in business for himself in Boston, buying and selling whalebone, and eventually he became closely identified with this business. Twenty years ago he turned his attention to the promotion of Summer parks and was one of the prime movers in organizing Steeple Chase Park at Nantasket Beach, which subsequently became Paragon Park, one of the best-known of the shore resorts on the Eastern coast. About 1913 Mr. Dodge acquired the Hotel Pemberton and Pemberton Inn property at Hull, which is a continuation of Nantasket Beach, and these in time became splendid paying properties under his management. Several years later Mr. Dodge started the Georgian in Park Square, which was a large eating place, and this continued prosperous until prohibition caused Mr. Dodge to relinquish the property.

In October, 1918, Mr. Dodge turned his attention to the talking machine industry; for with the disposal of the Georgian he had nothing especial to enlist his attention during the Winter months, and from the day he acquired the Eastern Co., which then was located in Tremont street, he gave a great deal of attention to the business. He had offices in the upper floor of the building that later became the Tremont Talking Machine Co. when this became solely a retail store, for, deciding to devote the Eastern Co.'s entire attention to the wholesale end, the business was moved to Essex street, where it now occupies the whole of the second floor.

To the talking machine trade Mr. Dodge was affectionately known as "G. A.," and his genial personality and generous nature made for him many friends in various walks of life. His friends in Hull, for which he had done much to advance its interests, wishing a few weeks before his death to give him special honor, urged him to allow his name to be used as a candidate for the legislature from the Third Plymouth District, which included the towns of Hull, Colhasset and Hingham, but he did not get the nomination. Mr. Dodge is survived by his widow, a son and a daughter.

OPENING OF SCHWARTZ BROS. STORE

NORWICH, CONN., September 28.—Several thousand people attended the opening of the new store of Schwartz Bros., Inc., in this city, which took place the middle of the month. Manager Fred E. Mann, of the Boston Columbia branch, was present and in fact acted as master of ceremonies at the evening exercises, at which time some of the leading officials of the city were present. Schwartz Bros. is one of the finest furniture stores in Connecticut and the new building, in which an exclusive Columbia department has been installed, cost $200,000. This department is under the management of L. H. Webber. Abner Schwartz, the president of the concern, and all those immediately associated with him were heartily congratulated.

COLUMBIA AT SKOWHEGAN FAIR

SKOWHEGAN, ME., October 2.—J. D. Symons, the enterprising Columbia dealer in this city, had an extensive exhibit of the Columbia product at the Skowhegan Fair the latter part of September. Supervisor Peter McIneeny, of the Boston branch dealers' service, was present to assist Mr. Symons.

LUSCOMB IN CHARGE IN NEW BEDFORD

NEW BEDFORD, MASS., October 2.—Russ H. Luscomb, for a number of years located with the Boston branch of the Columbia Co., has accepted the management of the talking machine department of the New Bedford Dry Goods Co. of this city. Mr. Luscomb is a man of wide experience in the talking machine industry.

A BUSY WORCESTER HOUSE

WORCESTER, MASS., October 3.—Widener's Grafonola Shop here, of which Mr. Kennedy is the aggressive and live-wire manager, reports a really surprising business. Mr. Kennedy has the assistance of Elsie Ewin, who was thoroughly trained in Columbia activities by Mrs. A. W. Graves, the record sales and stock keeping expert of the Boston Columbia branch.

The Atherton Furniture Co., of Brockton, had an exhibit at the Brockton Fair last week and its line of talking machines has been admired by a large number of people. This house has been having a fine Fall demand.

Special Displays and Concerts Attract Crowds at Fall Fashion Show—Plan for 1923 Music Week

DENVER, COL., October 7.—Several Denver music houses participated in the Denver Fall Fashion Show held on September 28 and 29. Thousands thronged the streets both nights to see the special window displays. In this connection the Darrow Music Co. gave a concert both evenings which completely blocked the streets at its corner. The middle section of the Fifteenth street window was removed and put on rollers so that it could be rolled back, leaving an opening so that people on the street could hear perfectly. In this window an Emerson player-piano was placed and at the piano sat Mrs. Hebert, who plays the piano, the violin and sings at one and the same time. Preliminary to the style show afternoon concerts had been given in the window and the talking machine department took advantage of the opportunity to put in one window the new Brunswick flat-top model known as the "York." Oscar Frazier, head of this department, said he had sold several of this model upon its arrival and was certain there would be a big demand for it in the future.

Opens Concert Season

The Oberfelder concert series was opened Monday night, October 2, at the City Auditorium by Rosa Ponselle, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company. While in the city she visited a number of the dealers handling Columbia records, Ponselle being an exclusive Columbia artist. Several of the music dealers connected up the Ponselle concert with advertising of Grafonolas and records in the newspapers. The phonograph department of the Baldwin Piano Co. did a nice business on Ponselle records. The Darrow Music Co. supplied the Knabe piano for the concert and also sold many of her records during her stay in the city.

Music Week to Be Held Next May

Denver's Music Week in 1923 will be held May 13 to 20. The City Auditorium will be reserved on these dates for Music Week activities, and out-of-town bands and choruses are being communicated with in an endeavor to extend the music week idea to the entire State of Colorado. A good idea!

Knight-Campbell Window Display

A feature window for Fall Fashion Week arranged by the Victrola department of the Knight-Campbell Music Co. consisted of a reproduction of the well-known Victor trademark. The talking machine and the dog, mounted on tiny shelves, were framed with a black curtain in the background, which lent distance to the framed scene. H. V. Huntoon, manager, reports many sales of small model machines for use by college boys in their rooms. This in turn has brought about sales of dance records. A new upright model, No. 111, which has just arrived, Mr. Huntoon is certain will be a good seller.

Records Sell Well

Kerekjarto, famous violinist and exclusive Columbia artist, was recently on the Orpheum bill here. While in the city he was taken on a trip to Lookout Mountain by the manager of the local Columbia branch. He also visited the local dealers handling the Columbia: J. H. Blinn, manager of the talking machine department of the Baldwin Piano Co., reported quite a sale of Kerekjarto's records. Mr. Blinn, handling the Sonora and Columbia for the Baldwin Co. for the last four years, says September was the biggest month yet in the sale of machines. His records show a 64 per cent increase over September a year ago and 30 per cent of the business was cash.

Brieflets

Miss Riley has been added to the clerical force of the record department of the Darrow Music Co. in this city.

E. P. Hagemeyer, of the Baldwin Piano Co. local office, was called to Cincinnati, O., by the death of his father, A. P. Hagemeyer, treasurer of the Baldwin Piano Co.

Manager A. W. Mason, of the phonograph department of the Daniels & Fisher Stores Co., reports a better sale of Sonora machines during the past month. The flat-top model is proving very popular.

Business with the talking machine department of the Charles E. Wells Music Co. was better for the past month than for the same period a year ago, says Manager Thompson. The new model "York" Brunswick is bound to take well, he says. Mr. Thompson hopes to get into his new downstairs location by November 1.

IRWIN KURTZ OPENS TWO BRANCHES

Well-known Metropolitan Dealer Plans Additional Stores in Downtown Section

Irwin Kurtz, well-known metropolitan talking machine dealer, is planning to open two new stores in the lower section of Manhattan. One branch, to be opened about November 1, will be located at 17 John street, and the other will be located at 50 Broadway, one of the busiest sections of New York City. The present store at 170 Broadway will be continued. Aeolian, Sonora, Brunswick and Columbia machines and Okeh records are handled by Mr. Kurtz.

WILSON MUSIC CO. IN NEW HOME

On October 15 the Wilson Music Co., Victor representative at Stevens Point, Wis., moves into new quarters in the recently constructed Hotel Whiting on Strong avenue. The company has occupied a temporary downtown location since last April. G. M. Farrin, manager, said now that the new quarters have been taken over the company will be in a position to expand to put into effect new merchandising ideas which he has had under contemplation since last April.

Improved Conditions Induce Dealers to Stock Up—Foster & Waldo's Artistic Alterations—Newach Co. Makes Debut—The News

MINNEAPOLIS and ST. PAUL, MINN., October 5.—While all Northwestern industrial and commercial institutions would like to see the farmers obtain better prices for their grain and potatoes they are plodding along to make the best out of the present conditions. As a consequence there has been considerable stir in the business world and the dealers in all lines are kept stepping rather lively. The upward trend to grain prices is filling the hearts with joy as the prices are approaching the figures that the farmers think they should have to break even with the game.

Time for Dealers to Stock Up

"We have had very nice business of late," said George A. Mairs, head of the Victrola department of W. J. Dyer & Bro., "and we hope that it will continue. We are advising our customers to lay in stocks as they may be caught short later on in the season. Whether this advice will have its effect we are unable to say at present. Just now the situation is a little uncertain, but we know that the Northwest is right and we are confident that when the industrial and other troubles are disposed of we will then certainly come into our own. In the meantime the Victrola business is holding its own in this territory."

Sonora Expansion in the Dakotas

J. E. Date and Forrest P. Conklin, of the Minneapolis Drug Co., have traveled very extensively in the two Dakotas during the past month in the interest of the Sonora phonographs and have found conditions quite conducive to good business and to Sonora sales. They are full of enthusiasm for their field and promise to make the Sonora instruments known where they never were known before.

New Edison Styles Much in Favor

Edison business is growing apace, say the reports from the office of Laurence H. Lucker, Northwestern distributor. Sales in both the wholesale and retail branches are well beyond the totals for a year ago. The Minnesota Phonograph Co. stores in Minneapolis and St. Paul have had exceptionally fine business. The big seller is the baby console at $175, which is making history. This model also is taking well in the country. The Edison records are showing an immense increase in sales, due mainly to the fact that the management is getting out the newest music very speedily. This policy is likely to give a great impetus to Edison record sales.

Foster & Waldo's Artistic Establishment

One of the finest talking machine establishments in the country will be completed this month by the Foster & Waldo Co., with the aid of the Unit Construction Co. Well, some go so far as to say that it will be the finest talking machine shop in the United States, which, of course, means in the world. Be that as it may, the Foster & Waldo Co. shop will be one that will command attention for years to come. The entire first floor of the quarters at 811-13 Nicollet avenue has been rearranged. The general offices, which occupied a considerable part of the floor space, has been established on a new mezzanine floor in the rear. The two big show windows have been greatly deepened and are about the dimensions of a goodly sized drawing room. The main floor will be left open with the record counter and demonstration booths arranged along the walls to form a sort of a court. There will be fifteen booths and ample record racks to carry the modern records.

The general color scheme will be cream ivory with panels of and ornamentation in steel blue. The elevator shaft and floor pillars are rendered quite inconspicuous by ornamental arrangements. The description conveys little idea of the harmonious beauty of the design and, as the saying goes, "It must be seen to be appreciated." Extensive alterations also will be made on the second, third and fourth floors and in the basement. The Unico people are certainly artists when it comes to store equipment.

Newach Piano Co. Will Handle "Talkers"

The Newach Piano Co. opened for business October 4 at 825 Hennepin avenue, Minneapolis. R. C. Newach, president and manager, is an experienced piano man and has been connected with Minneapolis houses for fifteen years. The company will have the exclusive Minneapolis agency for the Baldwin lines. A line of talking machines and records will be carried by this house in suitably arranged quarters and under competent management.

Vocalion Line Wins Favor

President C. R. Stone, of the Stone Piano Co., distributor of the Vocalion instruments and records, states that the Vocalion lines steadily are winning in favor. Road men testify that the purchasing public look upon these instruments as one of the famous phonographs.

When you think you have reached your limit make one more effort. It is the last effort, when things are bad, which often succeeds.

It serves three purposes, equally well; as a closed cabinet it will add charm to the finest drawing room; as a musical instrument it will gratify the artistic taste of the most cultured musician; and when used as a desk it makes its final appeal to those more practically inclined. When used in the latter capacity its mechanism is entirely concealed if so desired, only its disappearing writing surface and stationery compartments being exposed.

Business Revival Is Strongly Evident—To Exhibit at Household Show—Dealers' Displays at Fair—Improving Stores—The News

MILWAUKEE, Wis., October 10.—Industrial and agricultural conditions in Wisconsin and the upper peninsula of Michigan—the trade territory of the local talking machine distributors—are important factors in the forming of the local talking machine market. The current of business revival which had set in strongly the first half of the year was met by cross-currents caused by labor troubles during the beginning of the second half, but now, with the settlement of all national strikes, business is recuperating and the earlier current of good business is well in evidence.

Wage deflation is doubtless at an end for the immediate future without its having gone as far as the deflation in prices. The cost of living, using the Bureau of Labor's figures for the past month, stands at about 166 compared with 1913, while the average weekly earnings are somewhere about 190 on the same basis of comparison. Assuming that wage deflation has stopped considerably short of price deflation, it follows that some increase of prices can be expected as a matter of adjustment. Prices are not based primarily on costs, but upon what consumers are able and willing to pay. Some can be persuaded to buy in excess of their ability and their needs, but the majority measure prices by the yardstick of their purchasing power. This is particularly true of the fixed income classes, which during all of last and a part of this year have been the mainstay of the commodity markets. Judged by the standard of ability, working men should be good buyers since wages have undergone less deflation than prices. Great expectations are entertained of farm buying on account of the abundant crops. It is true that the crops are worth about one-fifth to one-fourth more than last year. Allowance must be made, however, for farm debts, which are still heavy. Furthermore, the price situation at present is working against the farmer. Grain prices have been declining while prices of many manufactured products important to the farmer have been going higher. This disadvantage is partly offset for after the seasonal slump grain prices will recover. On the whole it would seem that the farm market ought to be much better than it was last year, but perhaps not quite up to normal.

Collections are generally reported as fair or good. A noticeable improvement has occurred in the past few months. Easier conditions in commercial credit generally follow easier conditions in the money market, but may lag some time after. The period of liquidation is now ended and business firms are again in sound condition. Improved collections reflect these changes.

To Display at Household Exposition

The Badger Talking Machine Co., Victor distributor for Wisconsin and upper Michigan territory; the J. B. Bradford Co., dealer in the Brunswick; Yahr & Lange Co., Sonora and Okeh representative; the Edmund Gram Music House, Cheney and Brunswick representative, and the Flanner-Hafsoos Music House, Edison representative, are several of the city's prominent talking machine companies which will be represented at the annual Household Exposition to be given at the Municipal Auditorium during the last week in October. Booths are being planned and advertising campaigns by the dealers pointed to Exposition Week. A number of the companies are planning to give novel entertainments in the form of miniature dances on specially constructed revolving platforms at their booths. Other companies will give away miniature clocks with phonographs for cases, or combination phonograph-ash trays and similar souvenirs.

Eight Victor Artists on Tour

The Eight Famous Victor Artists will begin their concert tour in Wisconsin this month. The artists will present their programs in Superior, Appleton, Wausau, Eau Claire and other cities before they tour other States. Victor dealers in each city are linking their advertisement with the coming of the Victor artists. The Fox River Valley Victor Dealers' Association will hold its regular monthly meeting at Appleton on the day that the artists are scheduled to appear in that city. The Victor dealers will meet in the afternoon and give a dinner at the Hotel Sherman, at which the visiting artists will be guests of honor. After the dinner and business meeting the talking machine dealers will attend the concert in a body.

Northwestern Wisconsin Victor Dealers Meet

The regular monthly meeting of the Northwestern Wisconsin Victor Dealers' Association was held Tuesday in the Beaumont Hotel at Green Bay, Wis. H. L. Fricke, prominent Victor representative of Chicago, spoke at the meeting. Other speakers included E. D. Carroll and Henry Stoffel, of Appleton. It was decided at the Green Bay meeting to hold all future gatherings of the association in Appleton, Wis., because of the centralized location. The question of affiliation with the Fox River Valley Victor Dealers' Association was also discussed. Victor dealers of Wisconsin in every city are considering forming a strong State association.

season. Included in this class is the C. Niss & Sons Co., Edison dealer, 699-709 Third street. A three-story 70 by 150 foot addition will be built to the present store.

The Winter Piano Co. is redecorating and remodeling its Grand avenue store. H. J. Duffey, manager, and Columbia representative, stated that when completed the company will have one of the most modern and best equipped stores along "music row." New record racks and special demonstration rooms are being built. New lighting systems are being installed and the store front is being reconstructed, he said.

Other Wisconsin talking machine dealers who are making improvements are the Irving Zuelke Music House, at Neenah, Wis., and the Wilson Music Co., at Stevens Point, Wis. The Zuelke Music House is constructing new booths for its phonograph department, the largest and best furnished in the city. Additional record files and a larger and more choice selection of everything in the music line are being arranged, Mr. Zuelke announced this week. The entire interior of the building is being redecorated and new electrical lighting effects will be installed. On the completion of the program of improvements a formal opening will be held.

Dealers Exhibiting at Fairs

Talking machine merchants were well represented last month at the various county, city and State fairs given in Wisconsin. All of the leading phonograph dealers of Milwaukee were represented at the Wisconsin State Fair, held in that city. The Victor booth of the Sundet Music Co., featured by a large plaster reproduction of "His Master's Voice," was a prize winner at the Northern Wisconsin State Fair at Chippewa Falls. The W. D. Sproesser Co., Victor dealer, and J. D. Casey Co., Sonora representative, entered special displays at the Watertown Fair. Few fairs were staged in Wisconsin without an unusually large representation from the talking machine dealers in the respective cities. Most of the merchants who entered phonograph and record displays timed the launching of their advertising plans for Fall with the appearance of thousands of out-of-town visitors at the fairs.

Chickering Bros., of Chicago, manufacturers of pianos, closed a contract last week which makes the Noll Piano Co., of 1055 Muskegon avenue, this city, representative of the company in this city. The Noll Piano Co. has a large-sized phonograph department and recently set a record in console model sales.

Ready for Harvest Festival

Henry Gottschalk is head of the committee on arrangements for the harvest festival and carnival week given by the Upper Third Street Advancement Association in this city. Talking machine dealers on upper Third street are members of the Association and all officials have announced their intention of entering their windows in the special window display contest. On October 16 an old-fashioned rural parade will be formed to tour the business district of the city. Participants will be dressed as farmers and will carry light farming tools, pumpkins, corn leaves and other farm produce in season. Third street, from Locust street to the end of the district, will be ablaze with lights during carnival week.

Observing Copyrights

Milwaukee radio broadcasting stations, the two largest of which are located in prominent talking machine dealer stores, unlike other stations throughout the country, are respecting the ultimatum sent out recently by the Music Publishers' Association, forbidding the sending out of copyrighted music. The Kesselman-O'Driscoll Music Co. has been granted a permit to carry on, provided that it announces before each of its nightly numbers that it is being rendered by the authority of the Music Publishers' Association. Many of the radio stations are taking the attitude that as virtually 99 per cent of all popular music, operatic selections and even the majority of hymns are subject to copyright, the ban would be a death blow to broadcasting.

Suffers Heavy Fire Loss

Joseph Goldman, talking machine merchant of South Side Milwaukee, reported to a representative of The World that the fire of unknown origin which started in the basement of a barber shop adjoining his business block and music store, destroying the basement and first floor, caused damage now conservatively estimated at $50,000. Mr. Goldman's stock of phonographs and records was damaged only by water and smoke, he stated.

Record Flashers Popular

Record flashers, attached to a battery, to illumine phonographs and player-pianos, have been selling in unusually large numbers this Summer to vacationists who own Summer cottages and find the need of a light to prevent record scratching and the improper manipulating of player rolls, G. E. Bernecker, of the Standard Accessories Corp., declared. The accessory has so proven its usefulness that it is now in good demand for city homes, he said.

Netzow Goes In for Art

Charles F. Netzow, of the Netzow Manufacturing Co., piano manufacturer and phonograph distributor of prominence, heads a list of thirty-two business men of the city in the organization of a sketch club. The club was formed in connection with the Milwaukee Art Institute at a dinner in the Hotel Pfister this week.

New H. J. Smith Co. Officers

The H. J. Smith Music & Jewelry Co., of Racine, Wis., held a special election of officers at which Mrs. Flora D. Smith was chosen president, Henry G. Keiser vice-president and secretary and Louis E. Shaw treasurer. An active Fall campaign was planned by officials at the election.

Nationally Known as Song Leader

Frederick W. Carberry, widely known as a vocal teacher and all-around musician, Chickering and Brunswick dealer, and president of the Milwaukee Association of Music Industries, is nationally known as a leader of community singing. His ability to induce even the most apathetic audience to join in songs has been extensively recognized and he has appeared at many national gatherings throughout the United States. Mr. Carberry has appeared in Milwaukee so often before clubs, organizations and general meetings that thousands have a personal acquaintance with him. He toured the country at one time in vaudeville. Mr. Carberry has just returned from a convention of Rotarians at Atlanta, where he led members of seventeen Southern cities in a great community songfest.

Files Bankruptcy Petition

Listing liabilities at $110,394 and assets at $111,268, the Mills Cabinet Co., of Racine, Wis., filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in Milwaukee Federal court. The schedule was signed by Almer Coe, president, and William S. Hubbard, treasurer. Listed as liabilities are unsecured claims aggregating $69,502 and secured claims of $31,022. Taxes due the United States amount to $1,504 and other taxes $6,500. Debts due to open accounts are worth $3,600, the schedule states. Stock of cabinets is valued at $72,798, and machinery and tools, $34,560.

CANTON, O.

Increased Sales Mark Closing of Summer—Shipments, Delayed by Rail Strike, Replenish Stocks

CANTON, O., October 6.—A substantial increase in talking machine sales for the month of September is reported by dealers of the Canton district. This situation, in spite of conditions, is most encouraging, merchants declared this week when interviewed by The World. Shipments of merchandise long delayed because of the railroad strike are now coming through with much regularity and there probably will be no further inconvenience from this source. A survey the past week would indicate that the medium-priced talking machine has the call in all makes. Collections are reported better and those of the working class who are many months behind with their talking machine payments are beginning to pay some of their arrearage.

Demand for the upright model talking machine has the edge on the console locally, but from indications this situation is due for a change within the next two or three months, dealers said. Records are showing a big improvement since mid-September and October has opened strong with all companies offering a good selection of new numbers. Industrial conditions in the Canton district continue good and plants of all kinds are operating at top speed. Orders on hand would indicate that these plants will operate steadily until after the first of the year.

Shows Big Gain for Month

A gain of 100 per cent for September over the corresponding month a year ago is reported by Manager Pyle, of the talking machine section of William R. Zollinger & Co. He says people are giving more consideration to the talking machine salesman to-day than at any time since before the war and that indications are excellent for a good Fall and Winter trade. Mr. Pyle expects that the new $100 Console Victor Model, soon to be placed on the market, will be one of the biggest sellers in recent years.

Wille Says Business Is Fair

The George C. Wille Co., with stores here and in Massillon, experienced a fairly good month, according to Mr. Wille. "We are selling medium-priced machines and some better ones, but the volume of business is on the former," he said. Record sales with this store are on the increase. Sheet music is moving better and there is an increased demand for musical merchandise at the Massillon store, in which that shop specializes.

Interest in New Models

Victor dealers are showing keen interest in the forthcoming new Victor models which soon will make their appearance. They believe that the $100 flat-top console model will be a factor in the trade before it is known to the public longer than a month. They also believe that the higher priced flat-top model soon to be offered by the Victor Co. will greatly help to stimulate their business.

Department Store Sales Normal

With the moderate-priced machine more in demand than ever the talking machine department of the Klein-Heffelman-Zollars Co. is enjoying very satisfactory business, though record sales are good only at times.

Anderson With Rhines Edison Shop

J. W. Anderson, for some years identified with the music firm of George C. Wille Co., has accepted a position with Rhines Edison Shop here. He was for some weeks with the Massillon store of this company.

Have Good Exhibit

A Bush-Lane grand piano, made from the stump of burl walnut that cost $4,400 and from which several exhibition pianos were made, attracted much attention during the Alliance, O., style show in the windows of the J. H. Johnson's Sons in that city a week ago. New console models of Victor and Edison machines were also shown.

Miss Bromley to Cleveland

Miss Betty Bromley, who for some years has been assistant manager of the talking machine section of the William R. Zollinger Co., has resigned to assume a similar post with the Euclid Music Co., Cleveland. Her successor is Mrs. Ralph Dearhart, formerly of the Klein-Heffelman-Zollars Co.

Much Interest in Artists' Appearance

Much interest is manifested in the coming of the Eight Victor Artists, the opening number of the People's Music Course, in the City Auditorium. In this connection Klein-Heffelman-Zollars Co. and the George C. Wille store used a full page spread in the local newspapers calling attention to the fact that numbers on the artists' program during the Canton concert were available at their stores.

Edison Sales Grow Bigger

Rhines Edison Shop is doing an excellent volume of business on the new Edison console model, which has been on the market only a few weeks. Manager Rutledge, in charge of the local Edison store, reports that records also have shown a substantial gain this month. This store reports that many prospects secured through the medium of its display at the annual Stark county fair a month ago have made purchases during the past ten days.

Potters' Strike Hurts Business

Retail music merchants who have suffered heavily from the loss of business caused by the street car strike which has been in effect in East Liverpool for the past six months were further discouraged this week when all pottery plants in the East Liverpool district suspended operations due to a potters' strike over wage differences. The retail business of the pottery city is 40 per cent off at the present time.

L. H. Wheat, Brunswick dealer, of Newark, N. J., is preparing to move into new quarters.

Patricia Parmelee Talks on Physical Culture at Wanamakers With the Aid of Health Builder Records Which Are Greatly in Vogue

On Saturday, September 23, a large audience in the auditorium of Wanamaker's New York store witnessed an excellent demonstration of Walter Camp's "Daily Dozen" on Health Builder records. Patricia Parmelee, an authority, gave as a part of the afternoon's entertainment a most interesting talk on physical culture and demonstrated her discourse through the use of a set of Health Builder records. Health Builders, Inc., New York City, producer of this course, reports this, together with many other similar demonstrations throughout the country, has had a very favorable result in the increase of sales.

GENTILE BROS. OPEN STORE

KENOSHA, WIS., October 6.—The formal opening of Gentile Bros., 857 Market street, this city, recently was featured by a number of dancing girls who appeared in the windows of the establishment and danced to the tunes of Columbia records played on a Grafonola, which the concern will handle exclusively. The new store has been fitted with all modern conveniences and offers an ideal atmosphere for the selection of machines or records.

LECTURES AT SHERMAN, CLAY & CO.

SPOKANE, WASH., October 5.—A campaign in the interests of lectures to be delivered by Miss Finney, of the Victor educational department, who will make a three-day visit to this city during the latter part of the month, is planned by Miss Ethel Brasel, manager of the talking machine department of Sherman, Clay & Co. These lectures have proven of great value in stimulating interest in "talkers."

SUCCESSFUL IN PERSONAL RECORDING

J. B. Allison Also Has Studied Separation in Orchestra Recording With Successful Results—Laboratory Open to Artists Who Wish to Make Test Records—An Important Move

After having studied and experimented with the development of the phonograph and the recording and pressing of records since boyhood, J. B. Allison a short time ago established an experimental laboratory at 21 East Palisade avenue, Englewood, N. J. Having become interested in this work at first more as a hobby than anything else his enthusiasm grew to the extent that he finally developed recording devices of his own which are proving to be very successful.

Mr. Allison, although young in years, has a long record of experience behind him and is also an illustrator and musician. It is through his keen appreciation of music as well as a natural musical sense that he has become successful in the recording field and he has made records for many prominent vocalists and other musicians during the past six years which have proved most satisfactory. His attitude toward the making of records summed up in his own words when he said to a representative of The World this week:

"I have been interested in and have experimented in phonography since boyhood. My laboratory is open to those who wish to experiment with various musical combinations with a view of recording them.

"It is necessary to possess a keen musical sense in order to do good recording. I have conducted countless experiments and made hundreds of test records during the past six years in both the lateral and hill and dale type of disc recording. I believe I am able to secure results above the average in recording the piano. In the interest of this art I welcome artists to the studio for the purpose of making experimental test recordings.

"In the average orchestral records it does not seem to me there has been enough thought given to what I term 'separation' of the instruments; that is, a recording in which it is possible to pick out the various instruments in a combination of instruments, such as anyone with a musical ear can do in listening to an orchestra in real life. This has been one of my aims and I believe I have succeeded in accomplishing this."

NO LOWER PULLMAN CHARGES

Interstate Commerce Commission Refuses to Grant Salesmen's Request for Reduction

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 10.—Salesmen and others in the music trade who are on the road a great deal will be interested in the decision rendered on September 22 by the Interstate Commerce Commission dismissing the complaint of the United Commercial Travelers of America against the Pullman Company's rate increase of 20 per cent which became effective May 1, 1920. The traveling men assailed the rates as unreasonable and excessive and asked that the increase be repealed.

It was contended by the traveling men that a rate reduction would stimulate travel in Pullman cars to such an extent as to increase rather than diminish the company's revenues, but this contention was held by the Commission to be "too speculative to be accepted as a basis for condemning the rates."

Salesmanship Classes Well Attended—Exhibitors at Palace of Progress—Euclid Co. Absorbs McMillin—Columbia Dealers Meet

CLEVELAND, O., October 9.—One of the biggest business-getting conferences which have ever been attempted took place in Cleveland this month, when one hundred and twenty-five retail members of the talking machine trade came to Cleveland from all over northern Ohio to attend a week's salesmanship school conducted by F. A. Delano, of the Victor Talking Machine Co. This school was brought here especially through the co-operation of the wholesalers serving the Cleveland territory, the Cleveland Talking Machine Co. and the Eclipse Musical Co.

The event was arranged and personally conducted by Howard J. Shartle, general manager, the Cleveland Talking Machine Co.; Edward B. Lyons, general manager, the Eclipse Musical Co.; F. C. Erdman, special representative of the Victor interests in this district; George (The) Deacon, of the Cleveland, and Phil H. Dorn, of the Eclipse.

F. A. Delano, head of the school, showed his students definitely not only how they could get business, but how they could keep it after once getting it. The series lasted four days, and was attended by practically 100 per cent of those trade members invited to take part.

It was the belief of Mr. Delano and the leaders in the trade here that, with the exception of New York and Chicago, Cleveland drew the biggest attendance in these schools which the Victor interests are conducting in the different cities of the country.

A dinner dance was given by the wholesalers on the closing day of the school in the Rainbow Room at Hotel Winton. Philip Spitalny's Allen Theatre Band played and Taylor Holmes and Frances White, Victor artists, appearing in "The Hotel Mouse," were introduced to the dealers. Children from the Zimmerman Dancing Academy sang and danced. Raoul S. Bonanno, Cleveland's only Victor artist, sang baritone solos of Italian folk songs. The menu and program were equally unique in that they represented quite accurately a listing of Victor records, with funny quips about members in the trade interspersed. Howard J. Shartle and Ralph Rolan, of the Knabe warehouses, arranged this novelty.

Exhibit at Palace of Progress

During the last two weeks the talking machine industry of Cleveland was well represented with two standard lines in the Palace of Progress at the Public Hall, full lines of Columbia and Cheney instruments being displayed at the exposition.

Co-operation and personal support were loaned by the Columbia Graphophone Co., Cleveland wholesale division to the Columbia dealers, who united in their exhibit, and by the Cheney Phonograph Sales Co., with the Euclid Music Co., in the latter's exhibit.

H. C. Cooley, assistant branch manager of the Columbia, was in charge of the Columbia booth throughout the exposition, with a representative from each of the exhibiting dealers present each day.

The Columbia dealers who united on the project were: Alhambra Music Co., Antel's Music Shoppe, Bernstein Piano Co., Hayden Music Co., Frank Cerne, Jirasek's Music Store, Levy's Music Store, Joe Meszaros, A. J. Motika, Spohn's Phonograph and Record Store and Werner Music Co.

All the varieties of Cheney instruments were included in the Euclid Music Co.'s display. A. G. Lapham was in charge of the exhibit.

Treat for Columbia Dealers

Manager S. S. Larmon, of the Cleveland branch of the Columbia, arranged an unusual musical treat for the Cleveland Columbia Dealers' Association at the branch last week, bringing Professor G. C. Hantelman, of Akron, O., to give a talk on the opera "Rigoletto." Professor Hantelman is the possessor of a private collection of over 2,300 operatic and symphony records and has devoted a lifetime of study to operatic and symphony music. He illustrated portions of the opera with recordings of Columbia Artists Stracciari, Ponselle, Lazaro, Barrientos and Hackett.

McMillin Co. Sells to Euclid Co.

Cleveland talking machine dealers were interested to learn that the McMillin Music Co., which has been located in this city for some time, recently sold its retail sales rights in Cleveland to the Euclid Music Co.

G. N. Papcke, manager, who has been with the McMillin Co. for twenty-six years, says that the company is getting out of the retail end of the business so that it can take better care of the wholesale line, which has been steadily increasing during the past year. The McMillin Co. has always carried instruments, sheet music and talking machines for both the retail and wholesale business.

The New Knabe Victor Warerooms

In the description of the attractive new Knabe Victor warerooms, of this city, in the last issue of The World, no mention was made of the fact that the entire equipment was installed by the Unit Construction Co. The fine appearance of this Unico installation has excited considerable comment, according to George A. Lyons, sales manager of the Unit Construction Co., Philadelphia, who was present at the ceremonies incidental to the formal opening and many compliments were received because of the convenient arrangement of the interior of the establishment.

Marion Harris Helps Brunswick Record Sales

Mr. Hughes reports that the initial appearance of Marion Harris as an exclusive Brunswick artist in "My Cradle Melody" last month created a great deal of interest among music lovers and her next records, "Sweet Indiana Home" and "Blue," are expected to go big. The accompaniments for both of these records is to be played by Jones' orchestra.

Edward B. Lyons, general manager for the Eclipse Musical Co., together with P. J. Towell, spent several days visiting the eastern part of the State, where they called on all their accounts.

T. W. Wade, of the Vocalion Co. of Ohio, says that many dealers in small towns have taken the Vocalion concert plan and are finding it quite successful.

J. H. Heinsman spent a week with A. B. McLean, who had a large display of Sonora machines at the county fair at Painsville during the last month.

An Effective Window Display

The window display of the Buescher Co. during the past few weeks is in harmony with the presence of Sousa and his band in this city. A big Victor record is placed in the center of the window with a small replica of Sousa before it. A motor is attached to the small figure and its arms are propelled. The remarkable fact is that when one of Sousa's records is played almost perfect time to it is kept by the toy personage. Tickets for Sousa's concerts are being sold at the Buescher Co. and from morning until evening a long line of persons can be seen waiting to buy tickets.

The Buescher Co. has also inaugurated an intensive drive on the Cheney line. Large newspaper space and unusually attractive window displays are features of the campaign. Steady increase in its business has resulted in the construction of four additional booths by the Buescher Co. These booths have been handsomely furnished and offer record buyers ideal surroundings in which to hear the records they select.

Columbia Sales Managers Meet

A Sectional Sale Convention was held at the Columbia branch in Cleveland during the past month and all the sales managers and sales force of Buffalo and Detroit were present. Sales plans for the coming Fall season were laid and a contest between the Cleveland, Buffalo and Detroit sales forces was announced. The contest is for the greatest number of sales and will close in January. The losing branch is to entertain the other branches, S. S. Larmon, branch manager of the Columbia Co., says.

Taylor Sons & Co. have taken on a complete line of Sonora machines, according to an announcement by J. H. Heinsman. Taylor Sons & Co. are conducting an extensive drive on their new acquisition.

PATHE REORGANIZATION NEAR

Only Awaiting Final Sale to Proceed Along Outlined Plans for Development of Business

The complete reorganization of the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., seems to be now but a matter of weeks. Pursuant to an order issued by the Hon. Edwin L. Garvin, District Judge of the United States District Court, in the Borough of Brooklyn, dated September 15, William C. Redfield, Eugene A. Widmann and Benjamin M. Kaye, receivers in equity for the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co., have mailed to each and every one of the creditors, stockholders and note-holders of the company a notice of sale. This sale was scheduled to be held before the aforementioned court on Friday, September 29, and included cash, merchandise, stocks, securities, bills of accounts receivable, rights, claims, demands, good-will, trade-marks, trade names, patents, patent rights, etc., of the company.

Due to a legal technicality pertaining to a required 30 days' notice on some real estate, the date of sale was advanced to October 30.

An offer on behalf of the Reorganization Committee of the creditors of the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co. was made to purchase all the assets of the aforesaid company under the terms and conditions set forth, which would allow the committee, upon securing control, to proceed along the carefully made plans for reorganization which have been previously outlined in the columns of The World.

BUFFALO

Trade Grows Better—Association Activity—Sales Forces Increase—Month's News in Detail

BUFFALO, N. Y., October 6.—There has been a striking improvement in the talking machine and record business of Buffalo and vicinity during the past month. Every jobber and retailer interviewed by The World correspondent substantiates this statement. Many of them admit the volume of business which they transacted during September was a real surprise and greatly in excess of their expectations.

Jobbers report dealers stocking up in anticipation of a very heavy Fall and holiday trade. Dealers report buying on a scale which is most gratifying. Record business has improved and has reached proportions which have not been equaled in many months. Throughout the trade optimism is replacing pessimism and strong selling campaigns are being planned to extend from now until the first of the year.

Association Meetings to Be Resumed

President B. E. Neal, of the Victor Dealers' Association of Western New York, announces that this organization will resume its meetings this month. Evening dinners to be served in one of the local hotels will be followed by discussions of timely topics and addresses by men of prominence both in and outside the trade.

C. N. Andrews, Victor jobber and president of the Music Trades group of the Chamber of Commerce, will in the near future issue a call for a November meeting of this organization. Mr. Andrews is one of the jobbers who report business on the up grade and substantial in proportions throughout the district which his house serves.

Important New Brunswick Agency

Active representation is now being given the Brunswick line in the exclusive shopping district of central Main street where the new Edwards department store has just opened as exclusively Brunswick. The department has been handsomely furnished and includes a number of demonstration and record booths. The company plans to give the Brunswick line a prominent place in its unusually extensive newspaper advertising. Although the department is just getting under way sales are reported to be most gratifying to the management.

Utley Piano Co. Closes Out

One of the most active Edison dealers in western New York has retired from business. The Utley Piano Co. closed its doors on September 20, the closing being forced by the sale of the property which the firm had occupied. The building will be remodeled and converted into a jewelry store. Because of the limited time given the company to dispose of its stock the unsold portion was taken over by Denton, Cottier & Daniels, who have been conducting a special sale of the instruments and records held by the Utley Co.

Sales Force Increased

The sales and service forces of Neal, Clark & Neal, who conduct one of the largest talking machine houses in western New York, have recently had several valuable additions. Walter Anderson and Miss M. Tomlinson, who were formerly with J. N. Adam & Co., and Miss F. Fry have joined the staff of the Neal Co. Business with this company is excellent and a live campaign is under way.

Many valuable selling hints and helps were received by members of the sales department of the Buffalo Columbia branch at a meeting held on September 25 in Cleveland under the direction of Field Sales Manager Robert Porter.

Orchestras Help Columbia Record Sales

Columbia record sales have been largely increased by the appearance here of Ted Lewis and Ray Miller and their orchestras, the former at the Teck and the latter at Loew's State.

J. A. Goldstein, Columbia dealer of Niagara Falls, had Mr. Lewis and his band appear in that city. Mr. Goldstein, who is one of the livest dealers in the territory, has purchased a movie camera outfit and in co-operation with the Fox Film Co. and the Pathé Frères Co. is taking a weekly news film.

The News Boiled Down

H. L. Peters and S. Nathan are most recent additions to the staff of Columbia dealers in western New York. Both have had successful beginnings in their new line.

Columbia booths were shown at the Genesee County Fair by G. F. Schafer, and McNall & McNall had a large exhibit at the Orleans County Fair at Albion.

Miss Florence Throm, secretary to Manager Haring, of the Buffalo Columbia branch, is home after an enjoyable vacation of two months. She toured the Pacific Coast from Canada to Mexico.

John Philip Sousa and his band appeared here recently and further increased the sale of their tremendously popular Victor records. Another record maker who was a recent visitor here was Rasso, of Pathé Actuelle fame.

The William Hengerer Co., which operates an unusually successful talking machine department, has inaugurated an intensive drive on physical culture records. Both the Wallace and Victor reducing records are handled and the company, as part of the campaign, has mailed letters to 1,500 school teachers calling attention to the value of the records.

JACKSONVILLE CONCERNS MERGE

Arnold Music Co., Victor Dealer, Merged With F. O. Miller Piano Co. of That City

JACKSONVILLE, FLA., October 6.—The Arnold Music Co., considered the largest Victor dealer in this city, has been merged with the F. O. Miller Piano Co., which will be known as the Arnold-Edwards Piano Co. in the future. The officers of the new company, which has temporary quarters at 45 West Forsyth street, are: President, W. E. Arnold; vice-president and secretary, W. M. Edwards, and F. O. Miller, chairman of the board of directors. In addition to the Victor line of talking machines and records the concern handles pianos and players.

HALLET & DAVIS CO. ACTIVITY

The Hallet & Davis Co. is pushing its new talking machine throughout the New England territory and especially are all the dealers of this manufacturing concern taking hold of the instrument vigorously. Now that R. O. Ainslie is home from his Southern trip he is giving considerable attention to this proposition.

Future plans covering the activities of the Gaelic Phonograph Record Co., Inc., New York, were discussed at a recent meeting of the stockholders, directors and creditors of the company.

DRIVE TO PLACE SHEET MUSIC IN PHONOGRAPH STORES

Music Publishers' Protective Association Has Inaugurated a Campaign to Interest Talking Machine Dealers in Opening Sheet Music Departments—Co-operating With Sheet Music Jobbers

The Music Publishers' Protective Association has inaugurated a campaign for the purpose of interesting talking machine retailers in the distribution of sheet music. This plan has been given consideration over a period of months and it is only now that the entire membership will allow the arrangement for the exploitation of songs through the new channel to be consummated.

Over 8,000 talking machine dealers in various parts of the country will receive literature carrying propoganda, including attractive advertising material, calling their attention to the value of installing sheet music departments in their stores.

It is understood that the Association is working with the music jobbers and is planning to place a small stock of music costing $100 or less with every talking machine dealer in the country. By special arrangements the sale of the initial order is to be guaranteed so the talking machine dealer is not in any way obligated over any period to handle the products he has been induced to stock at the outset.

It is the music publishers' opinion that there are thousands of talking machine stores throughout the country where music could be sold at a profit to the dealer and at the same time serve to boost his aggregate sales of merchandise. This opinion is based on the knowledge of some of the distributors who have felt out the market and have found a desire on the part of talking machine dealers to stock such products.

The discontinuance of the sale of sheet music by some of the syndicate stores has no doubt lent weight to the proposition as outlined above. This, together with the fact that many talking machine dealers have found the installation of music an attraction as well as a profitable move, influenced the Association to present the plan. Particular credit was given to the phonograph dealer in the issuance of the material by the Association wherein it states that in most instances the stores operated by talking machine dealers are of the more aggressive type in comparison with those of the average sheet music dealers. It is the publishers' contention that with proper sales methods the talking machine dealer, as well as the sheet music dealer, can find not only direct profit, but he can make sheet music of the popular variety an advertising asset to his establishment.

They, the publishers, further contend that the sheet music dealer operating in most communities does little or nothing of a co-operative nature to assist the publisher in exploiting his songs. The publishers also say that if the legitimate dealer did give the proper attention to the popular sheet music trade he would find that it is not only profitable, but that it would make his store most active.

Publishers catering to the wants of the legitimate sheet music dealer bear in mind the fact that the standard field is the one more often than not uppermost in the dealer's mind. In this channel he finds the music teacher, the conservatory and the purchasers of the better type of music generally. However, it is only in a few exceptional instances that it is possible for him to "cash in" in a large way on such products.

We mention all this because the average sheet music dealer does not give enough attention to his popular sheet music department and if it is profitable, considering costs, to stock a number that is called for only at long intervals why should he not give more consideration to the popular music field which has a quick turnover and which, if anything, will attract more business to his store? He will have a larger clientele, for he can appeal to the people who do the bulk of the buying.

The popular publishers, in preparing for a broader distribution of their products, make the claim that the present limited distribution of sheet music curtails sales. And when it is considered that there are somewhat over 17,000 stores selling talking machine records and close to 5,000 stores selling pianos and accessories, the quoted figure of somewhat over 2,000 legitimate sheet music stores is very small. This particularly, considering that sheet music is, after all, the basis upon which pianos, talking machine records and rolls are sold.

Bearing all this in mind the publishers feel that the present distribution of current popular numbers is not being exploited advantageously. They even go so far as to say that despite the fact that they have a little over 2,000 points of distribution at present the retailers fail lamentably to carry out the campaigns inaugurated by the popular publishers at great expense.

The publishers point out that the average talking machine store is always a greater center of musical attraction than the legitimate sheet music establishment, and this fact should tend, eventually, to place the sale of current sheet music largely in the hands of such active retailers.

The thing for the legitimate sheet music dealer to do under the present circumstances is to place his popular sheet music counter in the forward part of the store, and in his window displays and in other manners give conspicuous space to such offerings. If he does not he may be sure that the majority of sales of current popular numbers which allow quick profits and turnover will be captured by those whom he now considers strictly record and talking machine dealers.

HERBERT YOUNG WITH GRIFFITH CO.

Well-known Talking Machine Man to Do Special Work for Sonora Distributors in Newark, N. J.—Has Had Wide Experience

The Griffith Piano Co., Sonora wholesaler for the State of New Jersey, has announced to the trade that Herbert Young, a talking machine man of long experience, is now a member of its organization. Mr. Young is to do special work for this Sonora representative, visiting dealers in all sections of the State preparatory to one of the largest campaigns ever initiated by this progressive distributor.

Mr. Young comes to the Griffith organization after a successful career in both the retail and wholesale fields. He has been connected with the Musical Instrument Sales Co. organization for the past seven years, holding managerships of retail departments conducted by this company throughout the country. He has also had experience in the wholesale field of the talking machine business and was at one time connected with the Thomas A. Edison sales force.

It is expected that Mr. Young, with this valuable experience, will prove a decided asset to the Griffith organization and will be of material assistance to Sonora dealers throughout the State. His many friends in the trade are congratulating him on this new change in his activities and he carries with him their best wishes for a complete success.

HOW GERALD GRIFFIN SCORED

Popular Okeh Artist Inaugurates Novel Feature in Stamford, Conn., Theatre Program—Sings Songs Which He Has Recorded

A very novel stunt was recently put across by Gerald Griffin, well-known exclusive Okeh artist and singer of Irish ballads, when he appeared before the public at a theatre in Stamford, Conn. Before making his bow to the Stamford public Mr. Griffin arranged with the manager of the theatre to have the audience request songs which he had recorded for Okeh records. The audience entered into the spirit of the idea and requested him to sing "The Low Back'd Car," "Kathleen Mavourneen" and especially his own composition, which he has recorded for Okeh, "It's Only a Step From Killarney to Heaven." The last song mentioned brought down the house and his clear Irish tenor evoked encore after encore. He was conceded to be quite the hit of the program. Mr. Griffin has recorded some new numbers for Okeh records which will be released in the near future.

EXHIBIT EDISON INVENTIONS

Edisonia Museum Opens in Grand Central Palace, New York City

The Museum of Edisonia, consisting of models, apparatus and documents concerned with Thomas A. Edison's inventions, has been placed on exhibition in the Grand Central Palace, New York City. Instruments used by Edison in his first laboratory at Menlo Park when he was working on the incandescent lamp, the phonograph and the shunt-wound dynamo are shown. Early installation equipment and parts of the underground transmission equipment used before the invention of the cable have been grouped in cases. From the Prospect House in the Adirondacks, the first hotel to be lighted by electricity, have been brought the old fixtures used in the early eighties.

There are models of the world's first power station in Pearl street and of the huge Hell Gate station, put in operation last year. Mr. Edison has loaned the original electric locomotive and the first steam dynamo.

Josef Diskay, noted Hungarian tenor and Columbia artist, has been engaged for a tour of the Keith vaudeville theatres.

DEALER SERVICE OF SPECIAL VALUE

Stone Piano Co., Minneapolis, Issues Weekly Bulletin Giving Information Regarding Music Being Featured at Local Playhouses

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., October 4.—V. T. Stevens, who recently took charge of the wholesale Vocalion record department of the Stone Piano Co., this city, has been doing some excellent and effective work among the dealers and has succeeded in opening a number of new accounts. He has been particularly energetic in developing the dealer service, one of the features of which is the issuance of a weekly bulletin entitled "Live Hits," which is presented in typewritten form and gives some valuable information regarding the new Vocalion records and the best means for featuring them.

Mr. Stevens believes particularly in hooking up with theatrical activities and through cooperation with the leading music publishers presents each week a list of musical numbers being featured at the local theatres, together with the name of the publisher and the number of the Vocalion record on which each number is to be found. He also lists the best sheet music sellers, together with the most successful Vocalion records for the guidance of the dealer.

For years talking machine merchandisers have urged retailers to keep in close touch with what is going on at the local theatres, particularly the vaudeville houses and musical comedy shows, with a view to hooking up their publicity and window displays with the current attractions where records were available. The new Stone Piano Co. service gives to the dealer in simplified form complete information regarding each week's musical activities at the local show houses. This sort of service produces results.

DEFENDS QUALITY OF RADIO MUSIC

Edward B. Jordan, Jr., Takes Exception to Published Statement of Chicago Manufacturer and Declares That Radio Music Compares Favorably With That of Talking Machine

Edward B. Jordan, Jr., president of the Perfection Talking Machine Co., Inc., and the Oranola Radio Corp., New York City, who, previous to the organization of the above companies, was head of one of the best-known cabinet manufacturing concerns in the country, having been one of the pioneers in the making of talking machine cabinets, has taken exception to the statements of a Chicago piano and talking machine manufacturer that the reception of music through the radio can in no wise be compared to that rendered by a high-class talking machine. It is Mr. Jordan's contention that the better class radio receiving sets installed in cabinets are to-day quite comparable to a good talking machine. He says: "We most cordially extend an invitation to the talking machine manufacturer and others to visit our offices, 228 Seventh avenue, New York City, during the broadcasting periods and we will demonstrate and prove that the modern radio receiving set, if not superior, is at least comparable to the music rendered by talking machines. An experience of thirty years identified with the talking machine industry qualifies me to judge. There is the same relative difference between radio receiving and the talking machine as there is in having a friend talk on the telephone or receiving a letter from him. Radio is no longer in its infancy and to state that it is to exhibit a lack of knowledge of the great progress being made. The public is demanding radio as well as talking machines. A combination set is the logical outcome and the wise retailer should bear this in mind."

Business Conditions More Favorable—Robt. M. Bird Discusses Conditions—Sonora Dealers in Convention—Other Timely News

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., October 6.—Pacific Coast dealers are showing confidence in future business by planning for a big holiday trade. General business conditions are becoming more and more favorable with every passing week. It is very seldom that one week fails to show progress. Interest in period models is stronger than ever and the console types are popular. The Coast is getting very nearly its full requirements in records these days and no shortage of merchandise is expected for the holidays.

Music Memory Contest Starts

The second annual Memory Contest for San Francisco school children, which will be held during Music Week on Saturday morning, November 11, promises to attract even more attention than the contest of last year. Handsome prizes of money and merchandise are offered to the winners of the contest by the managers. The music trade, as usual, is co-operating both by financial means as well as by personal service. The contest started September 25 and there will be a preliminary test held in the schools during the week of October 23 to 27. The prizes will be awarded in the rotunda of the City Hall on December 2. Already the sale of records of the fifty musical selections to be used in the contest has been considerably stimulated.

Robert M. Bird With Sherman, Clay & Co.

Robert M. Bird, who formerly was with Sherman, Clay & Co. in San Francisco for seven years, and who for the last five years has been with the Victor Co. at the Camden, N. J., plant, has returned to San Francisco and assumed the post of wholesale manager of the Victor department of Sherman, Clay & Co. "I am certainly glad to be back on the Coast," says Mr. Bird, "and I hope I shall be of good service to the talking machine trade in this territory. I fully realize the dealers' viewpoint and needs and shall endeavor to do everything in my power to meet their requirements and give them intelligent service. Business conditions on the Coast are much better on the average than in the East, though the East has shown steady improvement since July 1, especially in the sales of records. The many Victor hits have done much to stimulate business for the dealers and we can promise that future releases will be just as attractive if not more so." When in San Francisco five years ago Mr. Bird was assistant to Andrew McCarthy, head of the wholesale talking machine department and secretary of Sherman, Clay & Co.

A new live member of the wholesale talking machine department of Sherman, Clay & Co. is A. C. Love, a former San Francisco manager for the Columbia Co. Mr. Love is covering San Francisco and the Bay territory, where he is well known to the trade.

Opens New Department

The White House has installed a model radio department on the third floor of the large department store. The department has three rooms, including a comfortable listening-in parlor, and there is a room also where customers may construct their own sets under the direction of Sidney Fass, the technical manager, who has been associated with the radio business since 1908.

Heads Nathan-Dohrmann Co. Department

Ben R. Scott, who has been with Sherman, Clay & Co. for seventeen years and is trained in both the wholesale and retail ends of the talking machine business, has just accepted the important position of manager of the new phonograph department of the Nathan-Dohrmann Co., one of the largest mercantile establishments in San Francisco. Victor machines and records are featured and the Blue Bird line is also handled. Victor and Vocalion records are sold.

Hallet & Davis Representative Here

J. L. Cotter, of the Hallet & Davis Piano Co., Boston, is visiting in the city, making his headquarters with the Clark Wise Piano Co., which company handles the Hallet & Davis phonographs in addition to the Victor line. Mr. Wise says the new Hallet & Davis models are meeting with the approval of his customers and that the Victor business has improved steadily in the last two months.

To Open New Branch

The Hauschildt Music Co. is looking for a location on Fillmore street, San Francisco, for a new branch store. Mr. Hauschildt says both Victor and Columbia business is fine and that the business outlook for Fall and Winter promises to be of satisfactory volume and character.

Convention of Sonora Dealers

About sixty Sonora dealers assembled at the Palace Hotel, San Francisco, on September 25, and were the guests at luncheon and dinner of the Magnavox Co. They were also guests of the same concern at a theatre party at the Orpheum in the evening, at which function the ladies were present also. At the dealers' convention in the afternoon the dealers were addressed by George E. Brightson, of New York, president of the Sonora Co., and by J. W. Booth, manager of the very successful talking machine department of Barker Bros., Los Angeles. Mr. Travers, of the Sonora Co., presided at the Palace Hotel dinner and luncheon.

O. M. Smith, manager of the phonograph department of the H. C. Hanson Music Co., says 80 per cent of his machine sales are period models and that Sonora portables are still selling well. He expects to see the portables hold their own all Winter as they are becoming popular as a home machine.

To Enlarge Present Quarters

Manager Quarg, of the Phonograph Studio, Powell and O'Farrell streets, San Francisco, expects shortly to add five more demonstration booths and another machine room. Extra space for this enlargement is being arranged for.

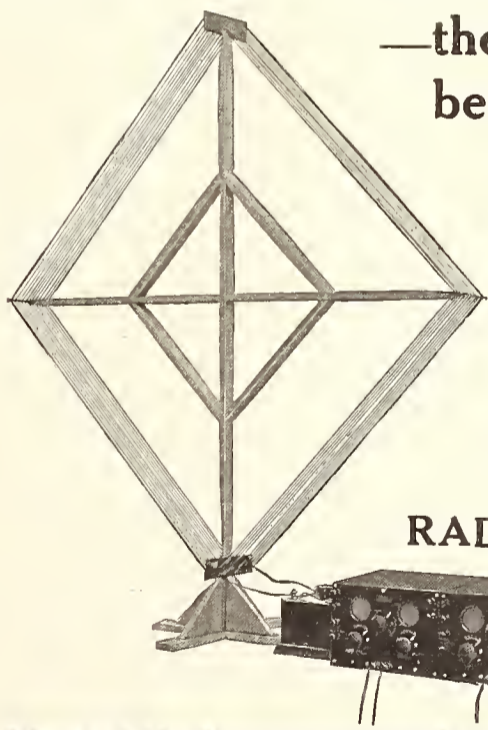

Columbia Sales Conference

B. S. Kantner, manager of the San Francisco office of the Columbia, held a sales conference here this month just after his return from the East and outlined plans for the holiday merchandising campaign. Mr. Kantner is now calling on the dealers in the North.

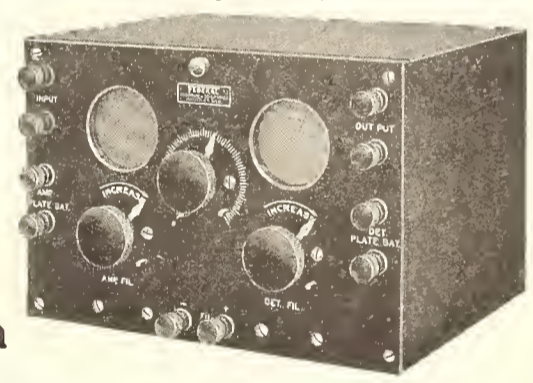

PROMINENT TRADE MEN AT ORANGE

Among the recent visitors to the executive offices of Thos. A. Edison, Inc., were F. H. Silliman, president and general manager of the Pardee-Ellenberger Co., Edison jobber in Boston; Fred Keeney, of the same organization; H. G. Stanton, general manager of R. S. Williams & Sons Co., Ltd., of Toronto, Canada, and P. R. Hawley, general manager of the Girard Phono. Co., of Philadelphia. All of these Edison jobbers reported a wonderful improvement in business conditions in their respective territories and spoke most enthusiastically of the new models of the New Edison.

NEW ORLEANS

Business Slow, but Dealers Expect Big Fall and Winter Trade—Talking Machines in the Schools—News Happenings of the Month

NEW ORLEANS, LA., October 5.—September seemed to be an off month in the talking machine business, according to the consensus of opinion of the dealers, it being, in most instances, less active than the month of August. Without one exception, however, the merchants are all anticipating a big Fall and local jobbers are already being flooded with orders, which they are experiencing difficulty in filling.

Though it is estimated that about 40 per cent of the cotton crop is harvested and about 50 per cent of the rice crop, the planters have not yet begun to let go of this year's profits. Cotton planters are being advised to hold their cotton for a time on the ground that the present price of about 20 cents is way below the present value of the article based on the present statistical position of the market.

The sugar men are all expecting good profits in spite of the recent decline. The tariff is in their favor and the forecasted production for this year for the State is nearly as large as last.

The barometer of unemployed is dropping fast with the return of the rail workers to their places. The lumber industry is going at full tilt. This in general is what the talking machine man sees and accounts for his optimism for the Fall season.

The part that music is playing in the New Orleans public schools was clearly demonstrated in the Teachers' Institute which was held here the three days prior to the opening of school. It was shown that New Orleans schools have discarded the old "do re mi" method of teaching and that the talking machine is playing a prominent part in the new method of teaching the children the "Appreciation of Music."

Prof. Louis Mohler, the Columbia University authority on music, gave three lectures before the institute on the "Appreciation of Music," "Teaching of Music" and "Departmental Work." Prof. Mohler stressed the uses of the talking machine particularly in the accompanying of songs, referring to the community song records of Prof. Dykema, of the University of Wisconsin.

R. R. Sparrow, manager of the Southern district for the Columbia Co., reports a wonderful demand for the Garber-Davis dance records. Two new Columbia agencies have been established here at the Reuben Blitz Furniture Store and the Kotteman Furniture Store. There is, at present, a state of disorder at the Columbia headquarters in preparation of the move to the new quarters at 323-29 North Peters street.

The Dugan Piano Co. has most encouraging reports from the local Victor dealers. Mrs. Tremble states that the past month was the biggest month of 1922 in all lines. The horizontal style continues to hold the lead in sales and demand. A large cash business has been done in records, stimulated by the dollar sale campaign.

E. W. Wilson, Jr., of the Collins Piano Co., as usual, came out this month with something new in the way of window display, which resulted in the sale of the entire stock of the record "Ship of Dreams." Mr. Wilson has just returned from a ten-day business trip through the Middle West.

J. A. Hofheinz, manager of the Victor wholesale department of Philip Werlein, Ltd., has just returned from a sixteen-day trip through the entire Southern district, where he has been visiting the various dealers. J. Briou, formerly of the Diamond Music Co., has just joined the force of the Werlein house in the wholesale department.

At Edison headquarters the same optimism prevails. New agencies are being established in both the larger and the smaller towns. The Feld Furniture Co., Vicksburg, Miss., has just added Edison machines to its line of talking machines and has sent in orders for a number of the more expensive models. The Edison turntable comparisons have been featured in the new Vicksburg agency.

Mr. Feld, who also has the agency for the Columbia Grafonola, reports trading rather quiet, but that business is continuing to show a monthly increase.

New Edison agencies have been established at the Escambia Drug Co., Atmore, Ala.; A. H. Clayton, at Jonesborough, La., and R. A. Castille, at Sunset. In New Orleans the Barnett Furniture Co., one of the biggest in town, has just added the Edison to its department.

The Brady Furniture Store, of Natchez, has just sent in an order for forty-two machines and does not feel that this will in any way affect its Christmas business.

The Globe Furniture Co., of Baton Rouge, is already anticipating a shortage and has sent in an order for twenty machines. The baby Console has proven very popular in that section.

Two more traveling representatives have been added to the Edison wholesale department: A. W. Roux, who will handle the Mississippi and Alabama territory, and E. A. Ecquya, who will travel in west Louisiana and north Texas.

Melvin H. Heald, of Portland, Me., is the new manager of the Edison Phonograph Store in that city.

HEALTH BUILDERS MARKET NEW SET

Musical Weight Reducing Exercises for Men and Women Announced on Five Ten-inch Double-disc Records—Reports Indicate Great Popularity for This New Product

A new product has just been placed on the market by Health Builders, Inc., New York City, which is well known throughout the entire talking machine industry as the producer of Walter Camp's "Daily Dozen," set to music on Health Builder records. This new product is called "Health Builders' Musical Weight Reducing Exercises for Men and Women," and consists of carefully selected exercises for weight reducing, while the "Daily Dozen" are especially designed for "keeping fit" purposes.

The "Weight Reducing" course, like the "Daily Dozen," consists of five ten-inch double-disc records and the same high quality record, careful recording, spirited music and clear commands which mark the "Daily Dozen" are to be found in the "Weight Reducing" course. These records are contained in an attractive cloth-bound album embossed in gilt with special index. Accompanying the set, and as an integral part of it, is a booklet of instructions with an entire page devoted to each of the ten lessons and containing eighty-two photographic poses clearly portraying the different positions in the various exercises. The book also contains a specific chart showing which records to use for certain results and tabulating what each Health Builder "Weight Reducing" record will do for the user. There is also a suggested schedule given for beginning the course and a few suggestions for menus that can be used to advantage, particularly in the early stages of the process of reduction, are also given.

In an introduction to the course, written by Robert B. Wheelan, president of Health Builders, Inc., it is stated: "In planning and designing these reducing records we did not look to any single authority.

"These exercises have been selected by a committee of experts from the greatest authorities in America, France, Sweden and England." In closing it says: "Perform each exercise exactly as scheduled and you cannot fail achieving the desired results and of obtaining once more the proportions which nature intended you to have."

The new set was offered to the trade for the first time last week by the various representatives of Health Builder, Inc. The results are reported to be very gratifying. Almost all dealers who carry the Walter Camp "Daily Dozen" sets placed substantial initial orders for the "Weight Reducing" course and it is expected that this new course will reach a very large volume of sales and a wide distribution by the end of the year.

UNICO EQUIPMENT FOR BRUNSWICK

Attractive Model Shop Installed at Brunswick Headquarters in New York by Unit Construction Co.—Handsome Equipment Throughout

Credit for the attractive model phonograph shop installed in the New York branch of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., which was described at length and illustrated in The World last month, is due to the Unit Construction Co., of Philadelphia, Pa.

The equipment is Unico throughout and is planned to serve as an excellent model for Brunswick dealers to follow. The demonstration rooms, record department, service fixtures, lighting and ventilating are all of the newest type and are said by the officials of the company to represent the latest in wareroom equipment. Many favorable comments have been received on this installation not only by the Brunswick Co., but by the Unit Construction Co. as well.

DEATH OF WILLIAM KOENIG

FREEMONT, ILL., October 7.—Freeport's oldest retail business man, William Koenig passed away on the evening of September 19 at his home, 641 West Stephenson street, after an illness of two weeks.

Mr. Koenig was born in Erie County, Pa., in 1853 and went with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Koenig, to Ogle County, Ill., when he was a small child. After a few years the family went to Freeport. Mr. Koenig embarked in the furniture business while a very young man and continued in it, progressing and expanding until at the time of his death his business embraced a most extensive display of furniture and a complete stock of Columbia Grafonolas and records. He owned much valuable real estate and was prominent in Masonic, Odd Fellows and other fraternities. His widow survives, as does a son, Robert F. Koenig, and a daughter, Mrs. F. G. Caffee. The latter is a resident of Kansas City, Mo. Mr. Koenig also leaves four sisters, three of whom live in Freeport. The deceased was interested financially in various manufacturing and other enterprises here and elsewhere and was regarded as an extremely successful business man.

Marked Business Revival Since End of Strike—Big Send-off for Pioneer Co.—Interesting Review of General Trade Conditions

PITTSBURGH, PA., October 11.—With the ending of the coal strike and the return to work of the striking miners and railroad men there has come about a marked revival in the industrial centers of the Pittsburgh district, with the result that there is a marked feeling of optimism among the business people of the Steel City. In the latter class the talking machine fraternity must be reckoned and they are in high glee over tangible signs that are now manifest which indicate that the coming Fall and Winter seasons will undoubtedly be very brisk. This is especially true of the industrial towns and hamlets adjacent to this city, where for the past few months there has been enforced idleness in practically all industries, due to the miners' strike, with the result that the tradesmen were "hard hit." In this slow-up of business the talking machine dealers were vitally affected and they were, it is notable to report, among the first to recover with the revival of business.

In Pittsburgh proper all of the leading talking machine dealers are a unit in declaring that the "tide has turned" and that business is showing every evidence of increasing as the day's pass by.

Columbia and Edison Demand Increases

The World representative stepped into the large talking machine shop of the Columbia Music Co., conducted by John Henk, one of the best-known and most popular talking machine dealers in western Pennsylvania, a few days ago and found Mr. Henk much pleased over the volume of business that he was handling. Mr. Henk sells the Columbia Grafonola and the Edison phonograph. In speaking of business conditions, Mr. Henk said: "It appears to me that with the passing of the coal strike business in the talking machine line is bound to increase. We have been quite busy the past few days and have made some good sales of Edison consoles and high-grade Columbia machines. We find also that our Edison and Columbia record business is increasing at a satisfactory rate. We have a staff of expert salesmen and saleswomen who know their business and that is a factor in the successful handling of talking machines that must not be overlooked."

Pushing Starr Line

The Starr Phonograph Co. of Pennsylvania, which is now located at 634 Grant street, has a fine display of the latest models of the Starr phonograph as well as the latest Gennett records. H. C. Niles, secretary and manager of the company, stated that sales are brisk and he anticipated that his September and October deliveries of Starr phonographs and Gennett records would far exceed the deliveries made the same months a year ago. Mr. Niles said: "The console type of the Starr phonograph is a good seller and we have had considerable difficulty in securing enough instruments to care for the demands made by our clients in this territory."

Columbia Demand Gains Steadily

S. H. Nichols, manager of the Pittsburgh offices of the Columbia Graphophone Co., is back at his desk again after a delightful vacation trip to Battle Creek, Mich. Mr. Nichols, always an optimist relative to the Columbia line, emphasized the fact that the outlook for business was excellent and stated that reports for business handled in September showed a decided gain over August as well as a good gain over September of 1921. Mr. Nichols also stated that the Columbia record business was in a very healthy condition and that sales of records were above his anticipations.

Victor School of Salesmanship

Under the auspices of the three Victor distributors in this district the W. F. Frederick Piano Co., the C. C. Mellor Co. and the Standard Talking Machine Co., a Victor school of salesmanship was held in the Moose Temple the week of September 11, opening Monday and closing Thursday. F. A. Delano, of the Victor school of salesmanship, was the instructor. More than one hundred students from western Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia were enrolled in the class. The instruction was in keeping with the high standard maintained by Mr. Delano and the class proved to be a decided success. On the closing day the students were the guests of the three distributors at a dinner dance held at the Fort Pitt Hotel.

Demonstrates Victor Health Records

T. E. Shortell, manager of the Victor department of the S. Hamilton Co., had a demonstration given in the show window of the main store, 815-817 Liberty avenue, of the Victor health records. Miss Emma Francis, of Glassport, Pa., was the demonstrator and did her work before a large and interested crowd of observers. A similar demonstration by Miss Francis was given at the East Liberty store of the S. Hamilton Co.

A. V. Williams in New Post

A. V. Williams, vice-president and sales manager of the W. F. Frederick Piano Co., Victor dealer, has relinquished that post and returned to Cumberland, Md., where he will manage the Cumberland business of the Frederick Co. Mr. Williams was in Pittsburgh for the past eighteen months and prior to that was in Cumberland for more than twenty years. He is widely known there and is now "back home." C. E. Lucore, a former manager of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co.'s local store, succeeds Mr. Williams as sales manager.

Pioneer Music Co. Opens Branch

The Pioneer Music Co., of Indiana, Pa., held the formal opening of its new local piano and talking machine house on Friday, September 15, and it was largely attended. The first floor and part of the second floor of the new building occupied by the Pioneer Music Co. is devoted to the display and demonstration of the Victor talking machine and Edison and Brunswick phonographs. A full line of Victor, Edison and Brunswick records is also kept in stock. The treasurer is H. C. Trader, a former traveling salesman for the Buehn Phonograph Co., Edison distributor. J. M. Stewart is president of the company and C. F. Gaylord is vice-president. Among the guests at the opening were Wallace Russell and J. Ferguson, of the Standard Talking Machine Co., Victor distributor; George Baish, of the C. C. Mellor Co., Victor distributor; T. A. Dillon, of the Buehn Phonograph Co., and Burt Hengeveld, of the S. Hamilton Co., all of Pittsburgh. The Victor Co., of Camden, N. J., the C. C. Mellor Co. and the Buehn Phonograph Co. also sent handsome floral pieces in honor of the opening. Prior to the opening the firm served a complimentary dinner to the sales staff and other attachés, artists and out-of-town guests. The Pioneer Music Co. succeeds the old-established house of S. Ren Pollock, Inc., which was founded in 1891. The entire store was remodeled and is now one of the most modern and up-to-date music houses in the State.

Mrs. M. H. Pickering-Steele Passes Away

Mrs. Mary H. Pickering-Steele, president of the W. H. Pickering Co., Pathé dealer, died at her home on September 28, aged 80 years. She was a native of England and came to Pittsburgh when quite young. The Pickering store is one of the largest stores of its kind in this vicinity and has a very complete Pathé department. The store was closed Friday and Saturday, September 29 and 30, in honor of the de-

The Advantage of the Victor

The advantage of the Victor is that it is absolutely first in public favor.

Anyone thinking of buying a talking machine thinks of a Victor first and thinks of it as the best.

And then, after the purchase is made, the buyer has the satisfaction of knowing and saying that he owns the best machine made and he knows it won't get out of order.

Another thing! Have you ever realized the tremendous value of the Victor line and of Victor records as a nucleus around which to build the "musical headquarters" of your city?

We are helping many Victor dealers to attain this very thing.

Sonora Publicity Drive

The Peerless Queen Anne period style Sonora was featured by the Sonora Distributing Co. in some very excellent newspaper publicity. This publicity was unusually artistic in character.

Marion Harris' Appearance Boosts Record Sales

The feature of the past week in the Davis Theatre, Keith vaudeville house, was the appearance of Marion Harris, the noted Brunswick record star. Miss Harris was given an ovation at every performance during the week and "The Phonograph Girl," as she was called, made a decided hit. Brunswick dealers stated that as a result of the coming of Marion Harris to Pittsburgh the sales of her records were materially increased.

Fine Vocalion Publicity

The Sonora Distributing Co. used excellent publicity methods in the Pittsburgh newspapers on the eve of the release of the Vocalion records for October. The Vocalion line has achieved widespread popularity in Pittsburgh, due to the wide-awake and progressive methods utilized by the management of the Pittsburgh distributing offices.

Player-Tone Going Strong

The outlook for Fall and Winter business of the Pal Player-Tone talking machine was declared to be excellent at the offices of the company here. It was pointed out that a number of new distributors and dealers were taking on the Player-Tone line.

HIGH PRAISE FOR SILENT MOTOR

Hallet & Davis Piano Co., of Boston, Writes in Commendatory Words of the Merits of the Silent Motor—Have Used Over 1,000

Charles A. O'Malley, president of the Silent Motor Corp., 325 Dean street, Brooklyn, N. Y., recently received a letter from the Hallet & Davis Piano Co., of Boston, Mass., one of the oldest piano manufacturing organizations in the United States and a company of national prominence, both in the piano and talking machine fields, in which the Silent Motor Corp. was thanked for its co-operation and service in the delivery of a large shipment of Silent motors to that company.

The Hallet & Davis Piano Co. also remarked that there are over 1,000 Silent motors either in the homes of its customers or on its dealers' floors and that the company has not yet received a complaint.

The Silent motor is manufactured in three models, playing in excess of two, three and five records. The company is now delivering motors to several well-known manufacturers of talking machines and its production is being increased.

DEATH OF THOMAS J. LEONARD

Former Sales Manager of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., Passes Away at Home in Orange, N. J.

Hosts of friends in the phonograph trade will mourn the death of Thomas J. Leonard, formerly general sales manager of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., who passed away at his home in Orange, N. J., early last month, after four weeks' illness.

T. J. Leonard

Mr. Leonard joined the staff of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., in 1905 as a member of the accounting department, having before that time been connected with the General Electric Co. His ability and rare personality won for him quick promotion until he finally occupied the sales manager's chair. Some months ago he resigned from the Edison Co. to become sales promotion manager for the Dunn Fountain Pen Co., which position he occupied until his death.

The Dubilier Condenser Co., a New York corporation, has changed its name to the William Dubilier Co.

Dear Mr. O'Malley:

Att'n of Mr. O'Malley.

Now that you have completed shipment to us of the first 3,000 motors for our Hallet & Davis phonographs, we wish to thank you for the very fine cooperation and service that you have given us from the beginning.

Better still, however, we wish to tell you that we already have about 1,000 of our phonographs, either in customers' homes or dealers' stores, and have yet to receive a complaint on the motor.

The writer has had a good deal of experience with phonographs and phonograph motors in the past ten years and is frank to admit that he never dreamed of finding a phonograph motor which is so absolutely fool-proof as your Silent motor.

With very kindest regards, I am

Yours very truly,

BROOKLYN DEALERS ARE IN AN OPTIMISTIC MOOD

In Metropolitan and in Long Island Area Dealers Have Arranged for Active Campaign to Capture Trade This Fall and Winter—Long Island Phonograph Co. Honored—Many New Stores Opened and New Lines Added—Liberal Orders Placed for Stocks

In Brooklyn and Long Island the activities of talking machine dealers are much in evidence, resulting in some substantial business. The general belief is that business in point of sales totals this Fall and Winter will be much larger than that of last year. Vacation time is over and everybody is hard at work carrying out plans formulated the past few months and in many instances dealers have renovated and rearranged their stores and added new equipment. Considerable effort has been made by the wholesalers in this section to impress upon dealers the necessity for ordering their quota of machines at this time and actually getting them into their warerooms or storehouses, where they will be available when the busy season is under full sway. A majority of the dealers have taken this advice and have placed orders for Fall stocks, but the usual number of them are holding back until the last minute, and these same dealers are going to be sadly disappointed when they want machines to sell, according to jobbers, who point out that manufacturers are limited in their production in these short months between now and the first of the new year, and consequently, while they have tried to figure on the dealers' demands and have produced accordingly, it is impossible to expect them to produce quantity enough to meet a rush demand for machines that dealers are bound to create by withholding orders.

Victor Dealers Ordering for Fall

The American Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler for this section, is working its forces to full capacity, filling orders that are being sent in by dealers from every corner of Brooklyn and Long Island. So far, according to R. H. Morris, general manager, September has shown a decided increase which, he states, is most gratifying and is significant of the fact that business is improving. A feature of this increased sales activity has been in the record end of the business, which has taken a decided spurt. Repeat orders for popular numbers ordered on the first of the month are being sent in by dealers, indicating that every effort is being made to keep record stocks up to standard.

Chas. Offerman and Main Rountree, representatives of this wholesale house, have been tremendously busy visiting as many dealers as possible during the month of September and trying to help them put stocks and stores in shape for Fall and Winter business. They report that their dealers are very optimistic as to the business to be done this Fall.

C. W. Keith Concentrates on Sonora Business

An important event in the activities of the Long Island Phonograph Co., Sonora wholesaler, is the news that C. W. Keith, father of R. H. Keith, president and general manager of the company, has retired from his other business interests in order to devote his time exclusively to the interests of the Long Island Phonograph Co. Mr. Keith has been treasurer of the company heretofore, but now will take up the duties of financing this company personally and will take full charge of the credit department of the business as well. He was formerly connected with the Underwriters Salvage Co., of New York City, where he handled many varied lines of merchandise, which required his active and personal supervision at all times. R. H. Keith, president of the company, will still continue as general manager and E. E. Schratweiser will continue with his duties as sales manager, while the rest of the organization will be intact as heretofore.

In discussing general condition in the talking machine trade in this section R. H. Keith stated that so far business has shown a decided increase over that of last year and that all indications point to a very prosperous Fall and Winter for Sonora dealers everywhere. He also remarked that Sonora dealers who have not ordered a sufficient supply of machines at this time will probably find themselves short during the holiday rush.

C. Rommele to Become a Benedict

Charles Rommele, popular Victor dealer, who conducts a store at 11001 Jamaica avenue, is soon to leave the ranks of the bachelors and join forces with the married men. In honor of this occasion he gathered together a large number of his friends, to whom he gave a bachelor dinner. He was presented with a suitable gift and received the best wishes for his success in this new venture. Mr. Rommele is one of the progressive talking machine dealers in this section of Brooklyn and his store has grown to large proportions through his continuous efforts.

Heretofore he has devoted some of his store to a sporting goods department, which he now is in the process of liquidating, so that he can make room for his talking machine business. Very shortly this additional space is to be completely renovated and talking machine equipment installed and when completed it will give Mr. Rommele one of the most attractive and largest talking machine shops in this section.

Fine Sonora Sale

A sale worthy of mention recently made by Geller & Selden, who conduct a Sonora talking machine shop at Rockville Center, L. I., was for three Sonora Deluxe models, which re-

The purchaser was the owner of a Deluxe model which he secured some time ago and was so enthusiastic about it that he purchased three similar machines and gave them to members of his family. Geller & Selden are progressive dealers of the best type and have to their credit many fine sales.

Cup Presented to Long Island Phonograph Co.

An important event in the activities of the Long Island Phonograph Co., Sonora wholesaler for Brooklyn and Long Island, was the formal presentation of the prize-winning cup to them by George E. Brightson, president of the Sonora Phonograph Co. This cup is awarded each year by the Sonora Co. to the jobber doing the greatest volume of business per capita for his territory, and this past year this enviable record was held by the Long Island Phonograph Co.

The presentation was made at the office of the Sonora Co. in New York City, to Robert H. Keith, president of the Long Island Phonograph Co., and was preceded by a luncheon at the Merchants Club, which was attended by the sales staff and officials of the Long Island Phonograph Co. and members of the Sonora Co. of New York. In his presentation Mr. Brightson brought out the fact that the competition had been very keen and that at all times the race was a neck-and-neck affair and was not Pres. Brightson Presenting Cup to Mr. Keith definitely decided until the very last month. He added that the winning of this cup was a truly commendable feat, owing to the fact that the Long Island Phonograph Co. was the youngest member of the Sonora wholesale family.

R. H. Keith, president of the company, in commenting upon the winning of this prize cup, stated that every member of the Long Island Phonograph organization was materially instrumental in its winning and had set for themselves a goal which they hope to equal, if not exceed, this coming year. No doubt Mr. Keith will have this wish gratified, for the organization to-day is running along in the smoothest manner possible and with the same continued effort sales totals this year ought to be greater than ever.

Jerome W. Ackerly Prepared for Busy Times

From reports received during the past month, Jerome W. Ackerly, who conducts a Victor shop at 42 Ocean avenue, Patchogue, L. I., is extremely busy trying to catch up with his talking machine activities in this section. Mr. Ackerly is keenly optimistic as to the prospects for Fall and Winter business and he expects to do a greater volume of business this Fall and Winter than ever before. He has made elaborate plans to take care of this expected increase through the construction of additional record racks and additional counter space which will enable him to handle this business more efficiently. Mr. Ackerly is considered one of the most progressive dealers on Long Island and no doubt will be able to show a gratifying increase in sales this Fall and Winter.

Liberty Music Shop Has Sonora Line

A new addition to the roster of Sonora dealers established by the Long Island Phonograph Co. is the Liberty Music Shop, corner 110th and Liberty streets, in the Richmond Hill section of Brooklyn. Charles Miller, the proprie-

To introduce the Sonora phonograph to his clientele he devoted an entire window for the display of every model in the Sonora line, which created considerable interest and attracted many people into the store. During the time this display was in the window several large-size Sonora models were sold, and in addition many prospective customers were interviewed, which will result in sales later on. From all indications this progressive store will reap its share of the harvest that is expected this Fall and Winter.

Hoffman's Music Shop Opens in Valley Stream

A newcomer into the ranks of the talking machine trade in Long Island this month is Hoffman's Music Shop, recently opened at Valley Stream, L. I. This new store is equipped with modern furnishings and is expected to become one of the best-known establishments in this section before long. The store will feature the Victor line of machines and records exclusively and intends to carry a complete stock at all times so that it can give to the people of Valley Stream a service of the best kind.

Rearranges and Renovates Store

The Michnoff Talking Machine Co., of 1239 Broadway, Brooklyn, has just completed the rearranging and the renovation of its store preparatory to an expected Fall and Winter business. Private hearing rooms have been rearranged and record racks and counters placed in more convenient positions, new fixtures installed, and the general renovation tends to give the store a much more attractive appearance. Business during the Summer months, officials of the company stated, was very satisfactory considering conditions, but this month has shown a decided spurt, and all indications seem to point to very bright prospects for this Fall and Winter. With the rearranging and additional equipment this concern is well prepared to take care of a large volume of business and be able to offer its clientele a superior service in every way.

New Home of G. T. Williams Co., Inc.

The new home of the G. T. Williams Co., Inc., Victor distributor, at 272 Flatbush avenue extension, is now completed and is one of the very finest wholesale equipments in all Metropolitan New York. The plant runs through an entire city block and has entrances on three different streets which lead to all departments. Large plate glass windows have been installed on all sides of the building and are used for display purposes, which present a very attractive appearance. Two elevators are available, which give access to all floors of the building, one of which is used exclusively for the handling of freight. This particular one is situated on the sidewalk where loading and unloading of machine stock can be done easily and efficiently. In addition to the plant on Flatbush avenue the company has secured a large storage warehouse where surplus stocks of machines and records will be kept. The plant on Flatbush avenue will be used for the storage of current orders and sufficient quantity of stock will be carried here to take care of these in the shortest time possible.

Joseph Scholz Opens New Store

Joseph Scholz, well known in talking machine circles in Brooklyn and Long Island, is now busy making plans preparatory to opening a new talking machine store at 765 Fourth avenue in the College Point section. Mr. Scholz is to equip his new store with every modern convenience which, when completed, will be one of the most attractive in this section. He plans to feature the Sonora line of phonographs and one or two well-known makes of records with which he hopes to establish himself firmly with the talking machine buying public in this vicinity. Mr. Scholz is an experienced talking machine man and his many friends are congratulating him and wishing him every success.

David Feiner Now Sole Owner

David Feiner, of the Woodhaven Music Shop, Inc., at 9309 Jamaica avenue, Woodhaven, L. I., has now become the sole proprietor of this progressive talking machine store. Mr. Feiner recently purchased the interest formerly owned by M. Rappaport, who was president of the corporation. Mr. Rappaport is to retire from active business and Mr. Feiner will conduct the store as heretofore. The shop will be known as the Woodhaven Music Shop.

WESTERN DIVISION OF THE WORLD, CHICAGO, ILL., OCT. 10, 1922.

IN politics, in publicity, in general notice, the Eastern centers of population and influence continue to obtain an amount of attention which is rather disproportionate to their actual importance. It is true that New York is the national money center; but since 1913 there is not quite so much to being a money center as there used to be. It is true that the Eastern States have the poise of self-assurance and the sense of superiority which come from long experience and the habit of headship. Yet one may sometimes beg to doubt the reality of some of these pretensions. The Middle West has been rather in the position of the political step-child during past years. One remembers when Sockless Jerry Simpson was acclaimed the representative and archetype of mid-West belief and customs. But really it is just a little bit different to-day. Say what one will, the balance of political power lies to-day in the region which is bounded to the east by the Alleghanies and to the west by the Mississippi. In twenty-five years the boundaries will be the Wabash River and the Rocky Mountains and the center of population will be the center of political and economic importance. The balance of those powers lies already in that region of which Chicago is capital. Whether one thinks of politics, of business or of social amenities, to know the Middle West's mind is to know the general mind of the American people. And that is why business men in any department, branch or line of activity, industrial or commercial, financial or economic, should realize that when they know what the mid-West is thinking they know what the American people as a people will be thinking to-morrow. When they know what the mid-West is doing they know what the American people, as a people, will be doing to-morrow: in the things that matter.

The Mid-West Mind

TRUE, it is easy enough to say things like these, easier than to prove them. But the economic, the sociological, the political facts are on our side. American national opinion is nearly always coincident with mid-West opinion; a fact which politicians have long since recognized. Let business men recognize them, too. And in recognizing them, let business men, East and South and Far West, know that the mid-West is not quite so provincial and hopeless as its detractors would have it. We, out in the great middle empire, are pacific, but we are not peace-at-any-price folks. We are individualists, but we know that capital cannot be allowed to tyrannize any more than labor can. We laugh at the idiots who prate to us of class consciousness and the proletarian revolution; but we don't believe that a coal digger is a criminal because he wants decent treatment. We may be like the citizenry of Gopher Prairie or like the family of Babbitt; but we believe we are not so blamed unhealthy, at that, in our views and our ways. And, so far as the business of the country is concerned, we feel that there is no reason on earth for gloom. We feel that there is just a little too much high finance about the condition of the money market and that business men are not getting from the banks all the help which they need just now. We feel that corrupt bargains between both parties in industrial controversies sometimes have more to do with high prices than is usually admitted. We feel that the people want peace and prosperity more than anything. We know that we are a country of average people, neither very clever nor very stupid; and we realize that average people, when they are Americans, want the best out of life in a quiet and rather simple way. A few joy-riders, booze hounds and would-be "society" folks don't mean anything real in our community life. Music means much more. It would do the heart of many an atrabilious Easterner good to see at first hand what our smallest communities are doing in music. We have always believed in God, our country and our fellow-man. We are beginning to believe in music, too. And that is why those of us who have music to sell are not a bit afraid for the future of the music industry in our mid-West land.

What We Are and Do

OUR good friends of the Consolidated Talking Machine Co. are enthusiastic jobbers of Okeh records, which accounts for the fact that we caught ourselves the other day looking over the quite fascinating foreign language lists of records issued by General Phonograph Corp. Now, of course, foreign language records are put out by other makers, too—as witness the really astonishing and highly elaborate lists, in a baker's dozen of languages, sent out each month by the Victor, Columbia and Edison companies. But it is not the fact of foreign language records being a staple product that intrigues our fancy. It is the realization that in this country—and not less in our Middle West—there is a very remarkably rich field awaiting cultivation by every merchant who is wise enough to keep his eyes, ears and brain open. It is curious how much the native American ignores the existence in his own community of foreign enclaves, and how little he realizes the vast wealth of music and art which the so often despised foreigner has to give his adopted land, if only we knew it. Certainly, from the most cold-blooded business point of view, it is simply silly to overlook or neglect any business opportunity so obvious as this. They say that forty-nine languages are spoken in New York City. In Chicago Polish, German, Croatian, Serbian, Swedish are spoken still by large groups, while their music and especially their songs not only are now but always ought to be preserved and cherished. Here is business, just waiting for the man who has sense enough, brains enough and courtesy enough to treat the foreign-speaking man right and give him what he wants. Why overlook a good bet?

Our Polyglot Field

ONE of the most interesting and encouraging features of contemporary trade development in Chicago and the mid-West generally is to be found in the continual growth of neighborhood retail stores. The City of Chicago offers a most instructive set of examples. Every residential district which has been opened out of bare subdivision acreage during the last ten years is filling up with the greatest rapidity. First come the two-flat buildings and the bungalows. Then along the streets, where the trolleys run, come the meat market, the grocery, the delicatessen and the ubiquitous drug store, which sells everything first and drugs last. Within a couple of years a drygoods store has poked its way into the neighborhood, and then come a milliner, a shoe store and a little specialty shop for women. By this time the neighborhood is awake and realizes that it has come into the possession of a community consciousness. Balaban & Katz, Ascher or some other local magnate then proceeds to fill up a large vacant lot with a movie theatre, seating a couple of thousand people, to find that from the first day it is crowded. Lastly, come the music stores. They come in very quietly and rather hesitatingly. Usually they start with a few talking machines, some records, a little sheet music and a player-piano. Sometimes on the other hand they open up with a grand hurrah. In the neighborhood which honors the writer by allowing him to live in it there have been within the past month two elaborate openings of music stores, within half a mile of each other, along the same main thoroughfare. One is a most elaborate and really beautiful affair, run by a former wholesale expert of the talking machine business, who lives in the neighborhood and has resolved to devote the rest of his life to doing musical good to the same. The other is more of a piano store, but is handling one of the most expensive, beautiful and exclusive of talking machines, along with records and sheet music. Ten years ago the sites of these two stores were raw prairie, with scarcely a house in sight. To-day they are built up as far as the eye can see. This is true, not only of the mid-West, but of the entire country as well. Every large city has several distinct communities within itself which have developed on the outskirts and not a few of these have music stores of an exceptionally high character, and many of them supply the musical wants of their entire community. The moral is simple: Believe in your community, stay in it and work in it. It pays.

CHICAGO, ILL., October 7.—During the past few weeks there has been a noticeable change in practically every phase of the talking machine business in Chicago and vicinity. Starting about September 15 the manufacturers, jobbers and dealers experienced a spurt in orders and sales, which gives every indication of going on without interruption throughout the Fall and holiday season.

Almost without exception the talking machine manufacturers in this section of the country are receiving substantial orders from their jobbers and dealers. There is no doubt that the dealers as a whole refrained from placing advance orders during the Summer months with the idea in mind of being as conservative as possible in view of general conditions. Soon after Labor Day, however, the industrial situation began to improve and with the cessation of the various strikes there was almost a boom in practically every Western trade center. The majority of manufacturers prepared themselves in advance for such a condition and as a result shipments of machines are being made with a minimum of delay. In some instances, however, the demand has been so far beyond expectations that even day and night shifts are inadequate. Probably the most gratifying feature of this business spurt is the fact that it seems to be steady and consistent rather than meteoric and spasmodic.

Among the manufacturers of motors, tone arms and sound boxes there is also a better feeling, consistent with the spirit of the season. As might have been expected, many talking machine manufacturers did not place good-sized orders for parts during the Summer, as they had practically no assurance of a prosperous Fall business from their dealers. The early part of September marked the start of the buying season on the part of the manufacturers and practically all of the motor, tone arm and sound box makers are enjoying a healthy Fall business, that, in all probability, will continue into next year.

From the dealers' angle the most interesting feature of the month's activities has been the resumption of record buying on the part of the public. There is no gainsaying the fact that record sales during the Summer of 1922 were at a low ebb. For many years the talking machine dealers have anticipated a drop in record sales during the Summer, but this year the drop took the appearance of a stagnation, and during July and the first two weeks in August record sales in Chicago territory were a bitter disappointment to almost every dealer. Toward the end of August, however, there was a slight improvement and with the return of the vacationists the early part of September many of the dealers noticed an increase in record sales that was most encouraging.

This improvement has continued steadily for the past several weeks and at the present writing there is a shortage of records of almost every make and description. Of course, this shortage applies particularly to the popular hits of the day, but it is gratifying to note that in this category of popular hits there must be considered a larger number of selections than have been recognized as hits for several months. The dealers in the North side, for example, report a demand for "Three o'Clock in the Morning" that is far beyond their highest expectations, and one dealer stated that he had been obliged to accept a shipment of fifty records, whereas he had placed an order for 200. This same condition applies to a large number of other hits and with the advent of cool weather the dancing enthusiasts throughout the city are again in evidence and their activities are reflected in the demand for dance hits.

The wholesale distributors in Chicago are to be congratulated upon the service and co-operation they are extending the dealers at the present time and upon their foresight during the Summer months. At a time when the dealers were only buying from hand to mouth jobbers were obliged to place orders for September and October, and under these conditions they have given the dealers exceptional service. It is true that the jobbers' stocks of machines and records are pretty low just now, but they are doing everything possible to bring their stocks up to requirements and their representatives are co-operating with the retail merchants along practical and result-productive lines.

General business conditions in Chicago and the surrounding territory are very satisfactory, with the situation improving day by day. With the finish of the railroad and coal strikes labor conditions began to reach a stage of normalcy and there is apparently a wave of prosperity in almost every industry in Chicago.

phenomenal," said D. A. Creed, vice-president and general manager of the Chicago Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler, in a recent chat with The World. "We had expected that our dealers would experience a business revival around the middle of September, but the reports to date show that this revival has been far beyond anything we had figured upon. What is even more gratifying than this activity on the part of the dealers is the fact that the public is in a buying mood and the members of our sales staff tell us that there is a steady, constant call for Victor products that will undoubtedly be reflected in the sales totals of the next few months. We are doing everything possible to co-operate with our dealers and are taking care of their requirements, but there is almost certain to be a marked shortage in practically every type of Victrolas and Victor records this Fall and Winter."

Important Campaign Soon

turers of Jewel tone arms, sound boxes and attachments, returned recently from a visit to the East. While out of town Mr. Cornell spent some time at the executive offices of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., in Orange, N. J., discussing with the sales executives of that company the details of an important campaign that will shortly be introduced by the Jewel Phonoparts Co. in connection with Jewel attachments for playing Edison records.

In a chat with The World Mr. Cornell stated that Jewel attachment business during the past six weeks had shown a tremendous increase and the Jewel factory is now working to capacity to take care of the demands of the dealers and jobbers. Substantial orders have also been received for Jewel tone arms and sound boxes and the prospects are that the Jewel Phonoparts Co. will close in 1922 the best year in its history.

New Price Increases Business

The recent announcement by the Walbert Mfg. Co., of this city, advising the trade that the retail price of the Geer repeater had been changed to $1.50 has met with the enthusiastic approval of the trade. W. H. Huth, head of the company, states that this approval is reflected in the receipt of orders from jobbers and dealers in every section of the country. The Geer repeater, which is a pioneer in the repeater field, is now being merchandised by representative jobbers and dealers everywhere and Mr. Huth is making plans for an intensive co-operative sales campaign that should prove of material assistance to the dealers in developing the demand for Geer repeaters. Mr. Huth spent several days out of town recently arranging for the return of his family from South Haven, Mich., where they had spent a very delightful Summer vacation.

Krasco Co. Opens New York Office

The Krasco Manufacturing Co. announces the opening of a New York office on the twelfth floor of the Wurlitzer Building, 120 West Forty-second street. These new headquarters will be in charge of D. S. Root, general manager of the Krasco Mfg. Co. W. E. Lent, production manager and technician, leaves on the first of the month for a visit with talking machine manufacturers throughout the country. Mr. Lent will call on a great number of concerns who manufacture talking machines with an idea of bringing about better co-operation between them and his company. He intends to go into the matter of motors very thoroughly with the production men of each company he visits, in order that he may be of help to them in the matter of securing maximum service as regards motor equipment.

Phil Ravis Visits Chicago

Phil Ravis, president of the Peerless Mfg. Co., of New York, manufacturer of Peerless albums, was a recent visitor to Chicago and was given a hearty welcome by his many friends in the trade. Mr. Ravis commented favorably upon general business conditions, stating that the demand for Peerless albums had steadily increased during the past few months and that the Peerless factory is now working to capacity. While here Mr. Ravis used up quite a number of his order blanks and opened up a number of new accounts.

Establishes Many Jobbing Accounts

R. W. Moon, general manager of the Swanson Sales Co., with offices in Los Angeles, Chicago and New York, spent some time in Chicago during September, making his headquarters at the Swanson factory at 308 West Ontario street. Mr. Moon made Chicago a central point in connection with several trips to nearby cities during which he established important jobbing connections for the Swanson portable. Mr. Moon left Chicago on October 1 for the East and before leaving stated that he would soon have an important announcement to make regarding his future plans for the development of Swanson business.

Books Large Orders for Motors

The United Manufacturing & Distributing Co., 536 Lakeshore Drive, manufacturer of United enclosed motors, has received quite a number of good-sized orders during the past few weeks from well-known talking machine manufacturers in different parts of the country. Lynn D. Rudolph, president of the company, states that a number of important accounts have been opened recently, full details of which will be announced in the near future. This company has one of the best-equipped motor plants in the trade and the popularity of the United enclosed motor is evidenced in the fact that it is now being used as standard equipment in many well-known makes of machines.

Formal Opening of the Jefferson Shop

The latest newcomer to the Victor family of Chicago is the beautiful Jefferson Music Shop, at 4766 Milwaukee avenue, which was recently opened under the management of Hans Schoessling. Mr. Schoessling is president of the company and Lionel C. Lenz is secretary and treasurer. The dimensions of the new shop are 26 by 115 feet, and it is equipped with eight

Not so long ago, all motors were noisy. The coffee-mill-like winding sounds and the mechanical sounds of the motor were the accustomed though annoying prelude to an operatic air.

Today, instruments equipped with our enclosed, automatically lubricated motors avoid this objectionable defect. Not a sound—No intrusion of mechanics into the artist's offering, they are musical instruments—not machines.

Also, manufacturers were accustomed to bear a certain amount of bother and expense due to motor troubles after their instruments were sold.

Most of the makers of fine Phonographs now use our equipment, their motor troubles are forgotten, their costs as well as their overhead expense are reduced, and their cabinet work, no matter how exquisite, is matched in refinement and quality by the mechanism inside.

The Jefferson Music Shop is carrying a complete line of musical instruments, as well as talking machines and pianos, and in the talking machine line will feature the Victor product exclusively. On the day of the grand opening more than 1,500 people attended.

It might be well to say in this connection that Mr. Schoessling is well acquainted with the Victor trade throughout this section, as he was connected with the wholesale Victor department of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co. for the past eighteen years. Delegates from the three Victor jobbers in Chicago were also present at the opening.

Joins General Phonograph Corp. Forces

L. M. Sebok, who for the past three years has been in charge of the foreign record division of the Columbia Co.'s Chicago branch, has severed his connection with that company and has taken up activities with the General Phonograph Corp., of New York. In his new association Mr. Sebok will have to do with the foreign record distributing division of the General Phonograph Corp. All told, Mr. Sebok was with the Columbia Co. for about five years. When he first went with the Columbia Co. his duties were of a promotional type in conjunction with Columbia foreign record business in the mid-Western and Southern States. Two years after this he came to the Chicago branch and up to the time of his resignation had been taking care of the Columbia dealers in this territory.

One of Mr. Sebok's assets as a foreign record salesman lies in the fact that he speaks six foreign languages. This alone has enabled him to become very intimate with dealers who handle foreign records. He is of Hungarian birth and received his collegiate education in Europe. Before coming to this country he made quite a good record for himself as civil engineer and was instrumental in building electrical power plants in Constantinople, as well as a 150-mile railroad in the high plateau regions of Bolivia, South America. Mr. Sebok has left Chicago with the best wishes of all of his friends in the trade, who are very sorry to see him go.

Jewel Products Popular in Japan

"The sun never sets on Jewel products," said A. B. Cornell, sales director of the Jewel Phonographs Co., of this city, in a recent chat with the World. To substantiate this broad statement Mr. Cornell showed a set of photographs that he had recently received from a phonograph manufacturer in Japan who is using Jewel equipment exclusively.

The accompanying photographs will give some idea of the distinctiveness of these Japanese instruments, and on one of them the Jewel octagon arm and reproducer is noticeable, ready for playing in Edison position.

Mr. Cornell states that the Jewel export business is growing rapidly, and orders are being received from manufacturers and jobbers in all parts of the world. The Jewel plant is now working at capacity and plans are being made to give the trade increased service during the Fall and holiday season.

Congratulations, Mrs. Gelbspan

Friends throughout the trade are congratulating Mrs. L. Gelbspan on her splendid recovery from a recent surgical operation. She was taken ill some five weeks ago and since that time has been in a local hospital. Mrs. Gelbspan is now able to resume her duties as head of the Boston Book Co. and at present is planning to catch up with the vast amount of work which has accumulated on her desk since she was taken ill. As evidenced by the amount of orders and inquiries received by this company in the past month, talking machine business throughout the country is picking up in a pleasing manner. There is a heavy demand at present for record albums and it looks as though the trade were anticipating an excellent Fall and holiday business.

Cable Company Ties Up With Radio

Talking machine men have long appreciated the value of tying up their advertising and window displays with matters of current interest as a means for stimulating business and it is quite common for dealers to take full advantage of the various opportunities offered along this line.

The Cable Company, of Chicago, piano manufacturer and exclusive Victor dealer, is one of those concerns which never fail to take advantage of the opportunities for good tie-ups and as a result some substantial business increases are reported at regular intervals by the retail department of that company.

The latest tie-up of the Cable Company embraces a combination of radio and talking machine which in itself is rather unique so far as Chicago is concerned. The story of the tie-up of the radio and talking machine is interesting.

Some time ago Eugene McDonald, head of the Chicago Radio Laboratories, decided that he would dismantle a small radio transmitting station which he had aboard his yacht. After the instrument was taken down he brought it over to his headquarters in the McCormick Building and had it installed. This little instrument is now installed and known out of Government records as station "WJAZ." After these matters were taken care of he made known to Zenith dealers that he would, upon request from them, broadcast talking machine records on a 300-meter wave. It was then that the Cable Company, which retails Zenith receiving equipment, took advantage of the tie-up possibility and immediately let its clientele know that the latest Victor monthly releases could be heard in the regular demonstrating booths on Victor talking machines or could be heard over the radio as the choice might be. The effect of this announcement brought large numbers of people into the Cable Company's retail Victor shop and not only has increased the sale of records, but it has also stimulated the sale of Zenith retail receiving sets and Victor talking machines. The Cable Company has also devoted one of its large show windows to the radio-talking machine tie-up.

In the center of the window has been placed

a large map of the United States above a radio receiving set. Streamers from the radio set to the map indicate the various broadcasting stations in the different cities from which messages and other program features have been picked up by the Zenith receiving set installed in the Cable warerooms.

Interesting Review of Brunswick Activities

A. J. Kendrick, general sales manager of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., has just returned from a month's tour of all Brunswick branches west of the Mississippi River. Upon his return he stated that the spirit of optimism regarding business conditions has, in his experience, never been so pronounced. "The sentiment of the average dealer is that of a man who has fully recovered from a prolonged illness," said Mr. Kendrick, "and although the merchant is buying as he is selling he is ready and anxious to buy the things he can sell. The retail salesmen, I find, are on their toes and ready to go, and the expression that 'business is good' is very common to-day. This situation prevails in Kansas City, Dallas, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland and Minneapolis."

Throughout the territory he visited an extremely affable attitude, backed up with real sincerity, characterizes the talking machine dealers' establishments. The sales people are greeting those who come into the stores with a sincere welcome that makes one feel at home. This attitude on the part of the sales force is beginning to make the customer feel at home whether he buys or not.

In Los Angeles, particularly, according to Mr. Kendrick, retail transactions are not executed as quickly by the merchants as is the case in other sections of the country. Retired farmers and people from the Middle West who take life easy make up the bulk of population in southern California. Therefore, they are in no great hurry to buy and, while they have money, they buy carefully. Yet, it is extremely noticeable that each opportunity to sell a talking machine is looked upon more eagerly on the Coast than in any other part of the country. When a prospect leaves the store without buying he is called on the next day. Coast merchants put "sell" into everything. Even the store equipment is designed to effect a superfine store atmosphere or setting which makes for successful sales results.

In speaking about the Brunswick conditions in general Mr. Kendrick mentioned that there is a possibility of a shortage in certain styles and finishes of Brunswick phonographs. This is already apparent. Production has been carried on at top speed all Summer in preparation for a good Fall season. The season, however, has opened up better than expected. There will be no further changes in the Brunswick line this year. This also applies to prices.

New Warehouse for the Brunswick

The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. has purchased from George H. Shank the five-story building at the southwest corner of Pershing Boulevard (Thirty-ninth street) and Federal street, this city, for the purpose of providing necessary additional facilities for taking care of the company's growing volume of phonograph and record business.

The building has a 90-foot frontage on Pershing Boulevard and extends 202 feet on Federal street. The floor space comprises about 90,000 square feet. It was erected during the war for Government use as a medical warehouse and will be utilized by the new purchasers as a distributing warehouse for Brunswick phonographs, records, tires and other products. A five-car switch connection with the Chicago Junction Railway will greatly facilitate the receipt and dispatch of carload shipments.

Strong Vocalion Billboard Campaign

The local branch of the Aeolian Co., of which H. B. Levy is manager, has been developing a great line of billboard publicity for Vocalion phonographs and particularly Vocalion Red Records. At the present time there are, in and about Chicago, 158 twenty-four sheet posters beautifully designed in nine colors telling the public of the value of the Vocalion product. Each of the billboards carries at the bottom the name and address of the neighborhood Vocalion dealer, of whom there are at the present time 126 in Chicago territory.

The billboard campaign has also been introduced in Milwaukee, where the Edmund Gram Piano Co. and the J. B. Bradford Piano Co., Vocalion representatives in that city, have been showing twenty-five of the posters on the main streets and highways.

Doing Well With Vocalion Records

The recently opened Ted Snyder Song Shop here is doing particularly well with Vocalion records and has been realizing a strong demand for the record of "Three o'Clock in the Morning," being forced to reorder that number several times each week.

New Representative in Springfield

Abe Wolff, treasurer of the Abe Wolff Music Co., Springfield, Ill., is one of the latest additions to the list of Vocalion dealers and has opened a most attractive shop for the handling of that line opposite the Court House in Springfield.

Vitanola Moves Headquarters

Sam S. Schiff, general manager of the Vitanola Talking Machine Co., announces that the Vitanola Co. is just about to complete the removal of its factory from 1900 South Fifty-second avenue, Cicero, Ill., to Saginaw, Mich. Vitanola's big plant at Saginaw has been working at top speed for the past few months taking care of orders and at the same time preparing to receive the departments hitherto at Cicero.

The Saginaw plant, as noted in the May issue of The Talking Machine World, is a very commodious affair, with 180,000 square feet of floor space. The main building is three stories in height by 500 feet long and is devoted exclusively to fitting and shipping departments. Coming off this main structure is a three-story wing, 350 feet long, where the Vitanola cabinets are built. In addition to this there is another wing, four stories high, used as a warehouse.

The Saginaw plant of Vitanola is well equipped with shipping utilities, having a four-track spur with track connections to the Michigan Central lines. The capacity of the plant exceeds 200 complete instruments every twenty-four hours.

Mr. Schiff has not as yet stated just what disposition the company will make of the big million-dollar plant at Cicero, which is owned and controlled by the Vitanola Co. exclusively and is burdened by no encumbrances whatever. Mr. Schiff has just purchased a home in Saginaw and has moved his family there.

Lakeside Increases Capital

The Lakeside Supply Co., of this city, is offering $25,000 of its 7 per cent preferred, cumulative stock. The capital will now, including the new issue, be $60,000, $25,000 of which is 7 per cent preferred cumulative and $35,000 common. After the preferred dividends at the rate of 7 per cent have been paid the common stock will receive dividends semi-annually.

The Lakeside Co. has been in the talking machine business since the year 1916 and has become internationally known as a jobber of talking machine parts and complete instruments. The company is now most favorably known in the trade and has built up a fine credit and reputation.

About eight months ago the Lakeside Co. added to its talking machine line a complete line of radio parts and assembled machines, which have been jobbed and also retailed from the Wabash avenue headquarters. The radio business has developed so rapidly that the company finds it necessary to increase its present capital in order to meet the growing radio and talking machine demand. The net tangible assets of the Lakeside Co. will, according to its statement, equal more than the entire stock issue when conservatively appraised and in addition thereto the business already developed, plus good-will, patents and developed results in patents and improvements, will, in their opinion, be worth many additional thousands of dollars. The average yearly sales for the Lakeside Co. for the past three years have been $144,523 and the company believes the business is merely in its infancy, so that the next two or three years should show a development far beyond anything heretofore accomplished.

The Lakeside Co. is, and will continue to be, under the active management of G. C. Fricke, president, and W. A. Fricke, secretary. These gentlemen have founded and developed the Lakeside business from its inception. Both are widely and favorably known throughout the talking machine industry and have excellent reputations for business integrity, for their knowledge and experience, and on account of the many years of practical experience in the telephone and telephone instrument business, which was theirs before they got into the talking machine game.

Columbia Store Moves

The popular Columbia music store located on the Northwest Side has moved to larger and more up-to-date headquarters at 3130 Armitage avenue. The new store was formally opened to the public on September 30 and in the evening a popular concert was given, which was largely attended. Besides a full line of Columbia goods this concern handles sheet music and makes a specialty of German and Scandinavian records.

Cheney Factory Working at Capacity

A. C. Harper, general manager of the Cheney Talking Machine Co., in commenting upon Cheney business, reports that his company has shown a very large gain during the past four months. The factory is working to capacity and is doing everything in its power to catch up with the orders. In discussing the trade situation Mr. Harper pointed out that, although general retail business has been somewhat dormant during several months, Cheney wholesale sales, nevertheless, have shown much improvement. This is accounted for by the fact that the Cheney Co. has been making a big campaign throughout the trade. Dealers and jobbers have been working very hard also. The business coming from the Coast section of the country is especially good and about 60 per cent of the demand is for upright cabinets.

Chas. E. Byrne Returns From the East

Charles E. Byrne, secretary and treasurer of Steger & Sons Piano Mfg. Co., has returned from a visit to the trade in the East. He spent about a week in New York City looking over things and reports that everyone in that section is anticipating a large volume of Fall business. Sherwin Murphy has just returned from a pleasant vacation, which was spent in golfing and fishing at Mackinaw Island, Mich.

New Tonofone Needle

In order to meet the demand of the trade for a loud-tone needle the Tonofone Co., of this city, set about a few months ago to fill this want. The effort met with success and there is now a Tonofone needle which gives a volume twice as great as the well-known medium Tonofone needle. This new loud needle is now ready for the trade and the Tonofone Co. is at present engaged in sending out samples to all jobbers and retailers. The new Tonofone, which is practically as loud as a loud steel needle, is differentiated from the regular Tonofone in finish, being gold-plated. The retail sale price will remain the same as before, six for fifteen cents and twelve for twenty-five cents. The new loud Tonofone still maintains the original resilient, flexible, non-scratching point and will play some twenty to fifty records. The loud-tone needle is particularly adapted for playing dance and band records, whereas the best results for the medium-tone needle are obtained when playing vocal, violin and other instrumental numbers where large volume is not required. The Tonofone Co. recently announced that owing to increased production it is now able to give larger margins of profit to both wholesaler and dealer.

Bill Nolan Visits

"Billy" Nolan, formerly of the Louis Buehn Co., Inc., Philadelphia, was a recent visitor to the Chicago trade. Mr. and Mrs. Nolan passed through Chicago together en route to Appleton, Wis., their new home. Mr. Nolan has purchased Carroll's Music Shop at Appleton and will carry on this exclusive retail Victor business. Mr. Nolan has had an interesting career in the talking machine field and has gained a wide and valuable experience as well as a large acquaintanceship throughout the Victor trade. When he first entered the business ten years ago he associated himself with the Educational department of the Victor Talking Machine Co. and after several years came over as retail manager of Lyon & Healy's Victor department. He held this position with Lyon & Healy for two years and three years ago took up activities with the Louis Buehn Co., Inc., remaining with this institution until he recently purchased the Carroll Shop at Appleton.

Looks Over Chicago Trade

Joe B. Ryde, of the firm of Fuller-Ryde Co., Victor dealer at Indianapolis, Ind., spent some time renewing acquaintances throughout the Chicago trade the first of the month. Mr. Ryde spent several days here viewing conditions in the Chicago trade and had an enjoyable visit with his many friends here. Mr. Ryde was formerly connected with Lyon & Healy's Victor department, serving as assistant manager to L. C. Wiswell.

Alto Business Increasing

There is a constantly growing demand for fibre needle cutters, according to a report given out to The World this month by the Alto Mfg. Co. This concern has for years been putting out clever little fibre needle cutters of the scissors type, which retail for $1. Every item in the manufacture of this needle cutter is made in its entirety by the Alto Co.

World receive the October issue the big Radio Show at the Coliseum here will be well under way. From present indications this will be the greatest radio show ever attempted and will, in all probability, be the forerunner of an annual event. Radio manufacturers with plants scattered all over the United States are demonstrating their goods to the public. The organization of this exhibition has been worked out to an exactness that causes many old show people who have looked over the plans to marvel. Every little detail, regardless of how small, has been given very careful consideration. There is a plan on foot at present to organize radio manufacturers of the entire United States. The plan is tentative as yet, but it calls for an organization of these manufacturers along lines similar to those put into execution by the motion picture industry. According to a newspaper account, Charles Pettijohn, special assistant to the president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, announced recently that he had arranged for a general conference of radio men during the Chicago Radio Show to prevent legislation censoring broadcasting. Such legislation was attempted in Missouri and the new organization is to prevent a spread of similar efforts.

One of the main features of the Chicago Radio Show will be music and particularly talking machine music as applied to radio. Every conceivable kind of an instrument for the utilizing of combinations of radio and talking machines will be featured. Reports coming from the box office indicate that the advance sale of tickets is far greater than anticipated and it is expected by the men in charge of this exhibit that ere the closing date rolls around a new record of gate receipts for paid admission into the Coliseum shall have been made.

Dempsey Marches to Happiness

Some few moons ago, as everyone well remembers, there was a large argument on the other side of the world which necessitated the intervention of these United States. A call for arms was sent out and many a young man answered. Among the many was one, Frank A. Dempsey, of Chicago, who put on his marching shoes and marched into the fray with the American Ambulance Corps. After the war was over Mr. Dempsey marched home again, not as a mister, however, but as "Private" Dempsey. When he marched a few steps around his neighborhood he was espied by a beautiful young lady named Miss Lydia A. Barley. Feelings of admiration for each other sprang up between the two and then Private Dempsey marched on downtown and right into the offices of the Emerson Phonograph Co. The Emerson people liked the way Mr. Dempsey conducted himself and ere long he was top-notch salesman for this concern for its Chicago territory. But all during this time he never lost sight of this little girl, who lived up on 4656 Clarendon avenue. So the other day he marched into her home and then marched her up to the minister, who took their oath of allegiance and sent them marching joyfully on the road to happiness.

Barnhart Bros. & Spindler Display in Boston

R. N. McArthur, advertising and sales manager of Barnhart Bros. & Spindler, has returned from an extended visit through the East. While in the East Mr. McArthur spent a week or more supervising the Barnhart exhibit at the Graphic Arts Exhibition, which was held in the Copley Plaza Hotel, Boston. The exhibit consisted of everything in the printing line that is manufactured by Barnhart Bros. & Spindler, which concern, by the way, is one of the largest type foundries and die casters in the country. At the close of the exhibit Mr. McArthur spent a number of days vacationing throughout the eastern section of the country.

Reporting Good Business

The General Radio Laboratories, whose headquarters are at 1740 Tribune Building, in this city, is reporting this month that the G.R.L. products are meeting with an exceptionally fine reception from the talking machine trade. The General Laboratories Co. is marketing a high-grade radio receiving set, which is put out in a cabinet which simulates a miniature grand piano. The instrument is equipped with a loud speaker which emits its tone through a wooden sound amplifier cleverly concealed in the cabinet. The tone may be modulated by the fallboards of the miniature piano and this is opened and closed by means of a foot pedal. When in operation the lid of the cabinet may be lifted up so as to permit easy accessibility to the knobs and dials which control the wave lengths, meter lengths, etc. Besides this complete instrument, the General Radio Laboratories put out a large line of radio accessories, such as radio telephone receivers, variable condensers, radio plugs, jacks, variometers, dials, knobs, binding posts, etc.

The Lyon & Healy Radiopera

The latest thing in radio cabinets to be introduced to the trade in this section of the country is the Radiopera cabinet, which is being manufactured by Lyon & Healy. This new instrument is being brought out under the supervision of Charles P. Hindringer, manager of the radio department. It is a radio receiving set which contains the highest grade of radio equipment obtainable. The part of the set manufactured in the big Lyon & Healy plant is merely the cabinet, which comes in red and brown mahogany finish, equipped with an R. C. Westinghouse receiving set and Western Electric loud-speaking unit. When ready for the trade this instrument comes completely equipped with a rubber-encased Willard storage battery, Tunger battery charger, "B" battery, antenna, lead-ins, etc.

The set has a range of 1,500 miles and the wave length is from 180 to 700 meters and when a loading coil is added this is increased from 1,800 to 2,800 meters. The loud-speaking unit is of the highest grade manufactured by

Confers in Chicago

Sam Green, president of the Paragon Phono Parts Co., Newark, N. J., was a visitor to Chicago for a few days last week, arriving here to confer with Nat Golden, sales manager of the company, and making an extended trip through the West. While here Mr. Golden closed an important deal, which will be announced in detail later, and incidentally found it so difficult to dodge Chicago taxicabs that he left town twenty-four hours earlier than he had anticipated. Mr. Green is now calling on the trade in Minneapolis and the surrounding territory and will probably return to Chicago in a few weeks.

George E. Brightson in Town

George E. Brightson, president of the Sonora Phonograph Co., New York, was a Chicago visitor this week en route to New York, after making a trip to the Pacific Coast. While here Mr. Brightson held a conference with Frank Goodman, assistant sales manager of the company, in reference to a change in Sonora jobbing representation in this city. Mr. Brightson was keenly enthusiastic regarding general business conditions throughout the country, stating that Sonora jobbers and dealers are closing a Fall season that will compare favorably with the banner periods of previous years. As usual, Mr. Brightson is making a careful survey of business and industrial conditions wherever he visits and his comments regarding the business outlook are, therefore, worthy of more than passing attention.

W. E. Hotchkiss Arrives

W. E. Hotchkiss, of New York City, has arrived in Chicago to take charge of the Interstate Phonograph Co. headquarters here. This institution jobs Pathé and was formerly looked after by C. S. Taÿ, who has severed his connection with the Interstate Co. and is now associated with the General Radio Corp. Chicago headquarters at 53 West Jackson boulevard.

New Mailing Idea

The Brunswick Co. has just come out with a new idea for the mailing of a monthly memorandum which is very artistically and cleverly gotten up. The idea behind this new trade stimulator is to do away with the cumbersome envelopes, stuffed with fillers, so long made use

A New Member of the Sterling Family

In response to a demand for a Throw Back Tone Arm, we have designed the No. 82 which embodies all the advantages of Sterling construction with the addition of the Throw Back feature. When in its normal operating position the Sterling Reproducer maintains perfect alignment under all conditions.

When in its Throw Back position the reproducer, even when adjusted for Edison or hill and dale records, "clears" the tone arm.

A new and improved needle holder is another added feature.

of by the trade in general. The new mailer is known as the Brunswick Courier, "a picture message." It is a large sheet, approximately ten by sixteen inches, and printed on both sides in color. The illustrations contained in this piece of printed matter show advertisements of Brunswick window cards in miniature. When folded up the set becomes a perfect envelope wherein can be placed the regular monthly bulletins, supplements and so forth. Other pieces of publicity now being put out by the Brunswick Co. are big, handsomely colored folders which show on one side small facsimiles of all magazines wherein the Brunswick Co. will carry its publicity campaign for the coming year. The reverse side of this tells of the tremendous sales appeal which the Brunswick Co. is making to the people of the country. It also names every magazine and paper wherein the Brunswick ads will appear during the coming year, as well as data which, when totaled, show that the Brunswick Co. will be putting Brunswick publicity under the noses of 14,520,293 people each and every month during the coming year. This persistent work means much for the dealer and the line he represents.

New Kimball Model

The W. W. Kimball Co. has brought out a new Kimball Console type talking machine which will be ready for the trade about October 15. This new model will be known as Style "S" and is of a modified Queen Anne type with simple, graceful lines. One of the interesting features of this new instrument is the specially constructed horn and tone control, which modifies the volume from soft to loud without interfering with tone reproduction. Style "S" carries a high-grade universal tone arm which permits it to play all disc records. A novelty of this instrument is a sliding door which forms the sound modifier of tone control. Tradesmen in and about Chicago who have already had the opportunity of viewing the new instrument have expressed a very favorable opinion of this par-

Style "S" comes completely equipped and carries six record albums. In size, the new model is thirty-five inches high, thirty-seven and one-half inches wide and twenty-one and three-fourths inches deep.

sales conference of the sales force of the Columbia Co.'s Chicago branch. Several splendid sales plans were discussed and adopted and the sales force left immediately after the meeting for their respective territories, full of enthusiasm, as well as ambition, to make this Fall one of the greatest in the business history of the local Columbia branch.

F. D. Hall Laid Up

Frederick D. Hall, founder of the Hall Mfg. Co., is slowly recovering from a severe attack of sciatic nerve inflammation which has confined him to his home for a number of days. Mr. Hall recently returned from a protracted visit to the Coast, on which he was accompanied by Mrs. Hall. Reports coming from Mr. Hall's home say that he is slowly but surely getting over his affliction and will soon be able to return to his desk at company headquarters.

Whiteman's Orchestra Opens in Chicago

Paul Whiteman's Club Royal Orchestra is making a tremendous impression on Chicago's music lovers since its opening day in the Pompeian Room of the Congress Hotel. The orchestra is being directed in Chicago by Clyde Doerr. This organization, as is already known to the trade, is one of the Victor Co.'s most famous record makers. The engagement at the Congress Hotel will be a lengthy one. On the opening day Victor wholesalers and retailers throughout Chicago and this section of the country turned out en masse to welcome the artists. Mr. Doerr and his musicians before coming to the Pompeian Room played a short engagement at the Grand Central Theatre at St. Louis.

Formal Opening of Lester Store

Announcement has just been received in the Chicago office of The World telling of the formal opening of Leslie's Music Store at Urbana, Ill., Saturday, October 7. The new store succeeds the old organization, which was known as Leslie's Drug Store. The new store is at 121 West Main street and carries a complete line of musical instruments and makes a specialty of Victrolas and records. The formal opening was largely attended by other Victor dealers throughout that section of the country, as well as an aggregation of prominent members of the Victor's jobbing houses in Chicago. Mr. Leslie, by the way, is president of the Central Illinois Retail Victor Dealers' Association, which meets in Peoria next week.

New Consolidated Travelers

H. M. Ritter, formerly assistant foreign record manager of Columbia's Chicago branch, is now associated with the Consolidated Talking Machine Co. He is looking after the foreign Okeh record business of this concern. Mr. Ritter is well known throughout the foreign trade of this section and is planning an active campaign for the furtherance of this business. He will handle Chicago and contiguous territories and will make personal calls on all Okeh dealers who make a specialty of foreign records.

Another newcomer into the ranks of the Consolidated sales force is J. T. McGrath, who, up to a few months ago, covered the Wisconsin territory for the Fuller-Morrison Drug Co., Pathé distributor. Mr. McGrath has established headquarters at 771 Twenty-eighth street, Milwaukee, and will cover the Wisconsin territory for the Consolidated. He will represent this company's line of Strand talking machines, Diamond consoles and Consolidated talking machine accessories.

A. T. Miller, who at one time represented the Consolidated Talking Machine Co. in Michigan, but who resigned and went over with the Price & Teeple Piano Co.'s sales force, has again returned to the ranks of Consolidated Co. and will resume his old duties representing Okeh records and Strand talking machines throughout the Michigan territory.

A Super-phonograph

That the phonograph can still be improved is evidenced by the statement of B. B. Blood, of the Blood Tone Arm Co., who gives us the information that he has a phonograph which he has tested for three years. He claims it possesses a quality and volume of tone that is unbelievable. He makes the following statement:

"Ever since I began making tone arms and experimenting with a view to improving them I have been possessed with the thought that too little attention is paid to the tone chambers. The tone arms in many cases do not come up to expectations on account of these poor tone chambers in the cabinets they are tested on. Of such great importance did this seem that I decided to try some tests of my own, and after a considerable amount of experiment I stumbled on to an idea which I have embodied in a machine. This was about three years ago. From that day on I have tested this phonograph against everything and have never found its equal.

"This improvement is entirely in the tone chamber construction and is very cheap to manufacture. By using my latest tone arm with this machine I obtain results that actually astonish the listener. It works equally well on any record, from the most delicate harp or violin to the heaviest bass or band record. Unless you were told you could look this machine over and would not be able to determine what it is that produces the result.

"This device entirely upsets some of the pet theories regarding tone chambers and proves beyond a doubt that the phonograph is capable of still further development. And to prove that this is a real improvement I am willing to put this machine up against anything that can be shown for tone quality and volume."

The "Capitol" Is Going Big

Perhaps one of the busiest sales managers in this territory at present is none other than I. Lowenthal, general sales manager of the Burns-Pollock Electrical Mfg. Co., of Indiana Harbor, Ind. Mr. Lowenthal recently opened a Chicago sales headquarters in Room 300 of the Republic Building, this city, and has been busily engaged in putting on new travelers for over six weeks. He has in this time not only put on in the neighborhood of eighteen salesmen, but he has personally gone out into the territories assigned to the men in order to "start the ball rolling." Mr. Lowenthal has been in charge of sales departments for a quarter of a century and has been instrumental in numerous instances in putting over some of the most popular articles and pieces of goods seen in the commercial field to-day. Each and every time a new sales representative is taken on Mr. Lowenthal goes out into the field with that man and spends from one day to two weeks in personally supervising the work and laying out a sales campaign.

Mr. Lowenthal has been in charge of Burns-Pollock sales for quite a while now and since he has been with this institution he has been the means of building up the plant capacity from a few Capitol talking machines per day to an output great enough to demand additional factory space.

The Capitol, as the trade well knows, is a beautiful combination of an electric table lamp and high-grade electrically driven talking machine. This instrument has been on the market for a number of years and has on many occasions proved its worth not only as a trade stimulator of exceptional value, but as a first-class business builder as well.

Many New Vocalion Accounts

During the past month there have been many new Vocalion accounts added in the city. Wm. P. Krause is opening an exclusive retail music shop at 4626 Lincoln avenue and will handle the Vocalion exclusively. A unique frontage, handsome interior decorations and up-to-date sound booths are a few of the features of this establishment. An idea may be gathered of the attractiveness of this shop when we say that it was designed as near as possible after the model of the Aeolian Hall in New York.

DEPARTMENT STORES DOING WELL

Talking Machine and Music Departments Shown to Be Prospering

A survey of the retail trade and a recent canvass of department stores show a very promising outlook for the Fall, which is already beginning to materialize. During the latter part of September and the first of October business began to pick up and has steadily maintained its pace. This point is significant, for it shows that prospects who have heretofore been merely lookers-on have now become buyers. Throughout the past Summer there were only occasional spurts and no clear conception of the true status could be gained. But now that this condition has changed, there is every indication of a very good Fall.

Probably the above statements are too conservative to match the report of at least one department store, viz., Rothschild & Co. They have had an exceptionally good Summer. Their music department has been going after business very strongly all Summer, advertising in the daily papers every week, and has doubled last year's business. These efforts during the hot spell proved worth while, judging from the large number of prospects that were gained in addition to sales.

W. B. Papineau, manager of the music department of The Fair, is also very optimistic over present conditions. He finds that special sales and advertising stunts are a great stimulus. One sale in particular which he had planned to hold several days lasted one day only on account of the exceptionally large demand that was created. Some changes are being made in the music department of The Fair to take care of the Winter business, which greatly add to the attractiveness of the appearance of the department. sories are mounted on cardboard and displayed in show cases, so that the purchaser can pick out the desired items immediately. This is a very quick method of making sales, as it does away with taking out a lot of dusty boxes which have been stored away out of sight. Mr. Papi-neau has arranged the department in accordance to the class of trade that is catered to.

T. W. Hindley, manager of the Vocalion Salon of Mandel Bros., says that there has been a big increase in the demand for console models. The higher-priced consoles are occupying the post of best sellers. This has been brought about by the wonderful new lines the Aeolian Co. has recently brought out and the demand for period models that period furniture has created. Mr. Hindley says that more and more the demand is turning to period models. Furniture manufacturers are advertising the period idea in home furnishing, with national campaigns of advertising, the effect of which is reflected in the popularity of period talking machines for the home.

STEGER SIGN ON "DIXIE" HIGHWAY

Several large painted signs, featuring Steger pianos, player-pianos and phonographs, have been completed recently on the walls of the factories of Steger & Sons Piano Manufacturing Co. at Steger, Ill. One of these artistic and well-arranged signs fronts on the "Dixie" Highway and occupies the full width of west wall of the Steger lumber kiln, which is one of the largest dry kilns in use in the piano industry. This display is more than a hundred feet wide and it attracts the attention of thousands of passing motorists and interests them in the Steger.

GREAT OPPORTUNITIES AHEAD

For the Aggressive Talking Machine Dealer, Says C. E. Sanders, Provided He Goes After Business Intelligently and Persistently

CHICAGO, ILL., October 9.—C. E. Sanders, of the Cheney Talking Machine Co., believes that the coming months hold great opportunities for the talking machine dealer provided he shows a proper spirit of aggressiveness in going after business. In this connection he said:

"There is only one way of getting a volume of business in the phonograph field to-day and that is to go after it. A dealer who expects to make a real success must organize a sales force and put them to work soliciting prospective customers in their homes. Realizing that this plan is necessary we have tried to assist our dealers by supplying them with literature to be given to prospects personally and by sending to the dealers' prospects a series of letters with the understanding that the dealer or salesman will call upon the prospects during the time this series of letters is being sent to them.

"We believe that only hard work and continued effort will bring results in the sale of talking machines and for that reason we do not attempt any stunts. There is no longer a talking machine craze, but there is, and always will be, a continued demand for a good reproducing phonograph, and inasmuch as we have that kind of a product we have tried to develop our trade by assisting the dealer in working direct with the prospects who want that sort of an instrument. We feel sure that if the dealer organizes himself to go after the business and delivers service to his customers after he has sold them, thereby proving to them that he is interested in his business and their welfare, there will be no question of his success."

In commenting upon the development of the Cheney distribution Mr. Sanders said:

"During the last year we have successfully opened the New England territory under Stephen Colahan, the central New York territory under J. A. Scanlan, the Missouri-Kansas territory under Mr. Hubbell. Van Korn & Shower, of Detroit, Mich., in the Michigan-Indiana territory, have increased their sales many times. The California territory has recently been taken by Munson-Raynor in Los Angeles with E. Darvill as director of sales. They are doing a business even beyond their fondest hopes. In addition to this our previous jobbers under the guidance of Mr. Shewell in the New York-Philadelphia territory, Mr. Madison in the Cleveland territory, Mr. Hoch in the Minneapolis territory, Mr. Whiting in the Omaha territory and Mr. Johnson in the Portland territory make a combination which means success in the sales end of our enterprise.

"That our plans were founded upon good judgment is attested by the fact that from January 1 to September 23, 1922, inclusive, we have delivered over 400 per cent more instruments than we did during the same period of 1921 and during the first three weeks of September, 1922, we delivered nearly 1,000 per cent more than during the same period of 1921."

PHONOGRAPH POST CARDS IN FRANCE

To enable people to send their voices to their friends through the mails is the ambition of three French inventors, who have united their ingenuity in the production of a wax-like material called "sonorine," which may be spread upon a postcard. Spoken messages may, it is said, be impressed upon the prepared cards by placing them in a phonographic apparatus, into which the sender speaks. The recipient has only to put it through a receiving phonograph in order to hear the voice of his friend.

Actuelle records are reported as having a brisk sale by the Pittsburgh Talking Machine Co., Pathé distributor, Pittsburgh, Pa. The Pathé line of phonographs, it was also stated, is selling better than had been anticipated.

SOLVES THE AUTOSTOP PROBLEM

An Automatic Stop is no longer a Talking point. It is Recognized by all High-Grade Manufacturers to be a Necessity. The question now confronting the manufacturer is "What Stop Is the Most Efficient?" We say (and we base our belief on the opinions of many manufacturers of high-grade phonographs) that the is without question the most accurate and dependable Autostop on the market today. The component parts of the TEMPLAR (which are fewer in number than is the case with any other autostop) are designed to compensate for all the lost motion of its moving parts. There is absolutely no wear on any of its parts nor is there any possibility of these parts getting out of order. The ease with which the TEMPLAR is mounted on the motor-board, plus its simplicity of operation, its accuracy and its reasonable cost, are a few of the features which cause TEMPLAR to be so highly recognized throughout the trade.

LOUIS K. SCOTFORD PASSES AWAY

Trade Mourns Loss of Prominent Talking Machine Man—Was President of Oro-Tone Co.

CHICAGO, ILL., October 7.—The trade has just learned with great sorrow of the passing away of Louis K. Scotford, president of the Oro-Tone Co., of this city. Mr. Scotford at the time of his death was resting at his Summer home at Lake Catherine, Antioch, Ill. He was seventy years of age, having been born September 21, 1850, in a small town near Kalamazoo, Mich.

Mr. Scotford was a pioneer in the talking machine trade and was looked upon as one of the best-versed men in the industry. He had to his credit over thirty patents applicable to talking machines, which involved sound boxes, tone arms, turntables, etc. His first entrance into the trade was something like twenty years ago, when he brought out his initial patent, which was a contrivance for keeping turntables and records from wobbling while the motor was in motion. He was an acoustician of recognized ability and spent considerable time in evolving ideas for better record reproduction.

Besides his activities in the talking machine business Mr. Scotford was also recognized as an authority by manufacturers of rubber stamps, and in this line he developed and patented several hundred improvements. At the time of his death he was president of the Superior Type Co., of which concern he was one of the founders. He was also vice-president of the Hill Independent Mfg. Co., of Philadelphia, Pa., which institution makes a specialty of manufacturing numbering machines.

Mr. Scotford was associated with the Cheney Talking Machine Co. years ago when this concern was founded and he held the office of vice-president for a time. This connection, however, was of short duration, as he soon found that he could not do justice in so far as his time was concerned to the rapidly growing Cheney Co. A few years later he brought out the Scotford tone arm, a very ingenious piece of mechanism that achieved considerable success.

In 1919 Mr. Scotford was elected president of the Oro-Tone Co. This concern manufactures the well-known Oro-Tone tone arms, sound boxes and Edison attachments, many of which were developed personally by Mr. Scotford.

Mr. Scotford's death was due to heart trouble, with which he had been bothered for several months, although he had never been seriously ill until about a week before his death. His widow, Martha W. Scotford, was at his bedside when the end came. Besides his widow he is survived by three children, L. C. Scotford, a resident of Chicago, who has been interested in Oro-Tone activities for several months; John R. Scotford, of Cleveland, and Mrs. L. F. Dewey, of Okanogan, Wash.

The funeral was held on September 25 from

Mr. Scotford's Summer home at Lake Catherine and interment was in the North Shore Cemetery, near Waukegan. The funeral was attended by many of Mr. Scotford's associates in both the type manufacturing and talking machine trades. The pallbearers were all, with the exception of William Tures, secretary of the Oro-Tone Co., officers of the Superior Type Co.

OKLAHOMA T. M. CO.'S NEW HOME

Many Features Included in New Structure Especially Constructed for Wholesaling the Victor Line of Talking Machines

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA., October 7.—The latest structure devoted exclusively to the wholesaling of Victor products is the new home of the Oklahoma Talking Machine Co., at 626 West Main street, this city. Designed especially for the handling of Victrolas and records at wholesale, the building is a model of its kind and it has many distinctive features. The famous Victor trade-mark adorning one sidewall of the structure the full height of the building is one of the largest in the world. On the other side the word "Victrolas," a 140-foot word, is equally distinctive.

The building is two stories in height and constructed so as to permit of the building of additional stories without affecting the architectural harmony. The general offices are on the ground floor front. At the rear are the record racks and storage space for the surplus record stocks. An unloading dock with an incline runway from the second to the first floor permits of the rapid handling of freight. The second floor also accommodates a very complete parts and repair department.

MARION CHENEY CONCLUDES TRIP

President of Pittsburgh Cheney Talking Machine Co. and the Record Sales Co., Okeh Jobber, Points to Bright Outlook

PITTSBURGH, PA., October 7.—Marion Cheney, manager of the Pittsburgh offices of the Cheney Talking Machine Co. and the Record Sales Co., Okeh record distributor, returned from a business trip to West Virginia and Ohio the past week. Mr. Cheney stated that the outlook for Cheney and Okeh record sales is bright. He stated that conditions in the Pittsburgh district proper are improving and that the local dealers were preparing for a brisk Fall and holiday season. The Cheney dealers in this city are: Joseph Horne Co., Boggs & Buhl, Dauler-Close Furniture Co., Goldman & Wolf, Gray & Martin and the National Phonograph Co.

During the stay of Marion Harris, popular Brunswick artist, in Pittsburgh, Pa., at the Davis Theatre recently, a large model of a Brunswick phonograph and a number of Brunswick records made by Miss Harris were on display in the lobby of the theatre.

DEMAND FOR VAN VEEN EQUIPMENT

Notable Installations Made Throughout the Country—Interesting Chat With Leon Tobias on the Expansion of Van Veen & Co., Inc.

Van Veen & Co., Inc., New York, manufacturers of Van Veen equipment for talking machine warerooms, report considerable activity on the part of the talking machine dealer in the improving of his warerooms.

Leon Tobias, secretary of Van Veen & Co., in a recent interview with The World was optimistic regarding the future of the talking machine trade and as evidence told of a number of installations recently completed by his company and in course of construction.

What is claimed to be one of the handsomest departments in the western part of New York State has recently been completed for the Clark Music Co., Victor retailer, of Syracuse. It consists of ten hearing rooms and a complete record department, providing for 20,000 records with necessary counter equipment. The color scheme is antique ivory.

"We have recently completed a handsome equipment for Landay Bros. in their new building in Bridgeport," continued Mr. Tobias, "also a large job for J. H. Remick Co., Philadelphia, and we are now engaged in putting in a very fine store at Broadway and Ninety-sixth street, New York, for the same company. We are also installing new booth and record rack equipment in the Boston store of Remick on Tremont street. The Remick concern has given us seven installations in all, having done work also for the Remick Co. in Brooklyn, Chicago, Newark, Washington and Boston.

"The installation in the new warerooms of Landay Bros., in Bridgeport, Conn., consists of hearing rooms, record racks, plate-glass musical instrument wall cases, wainscoting, counters, show cases, etc. On the second floor of the building two large demonstrating rooms are being built, twenty by thirty feet. The finish is in mahogany and the effect is artistic.

"We are now engaged in completing a fine Colvan Grafonola department for Leo K. Snyder, 2113 East Monument street, Baltimore, Md. This consists of six hearing rooms, Colvan double construction, record racks, roll racks, sheet music racks and counter equipment, also arch and colonnade treatment and when completed will rank among the finest talking machine stores in Baltimore. We also recently completed an installation for the Mazor Piano Co., 730 East Baltimore street, in the same city.

In Washington we are at present engaged in building additional equipment for Louis & Co., at Seventh and G streets, N. W.

"Other jobs, either completed or in the course of construction, are: Haines' Pharmacy, Mellbrook, N. Y.; Brown Talking Machine Co., Victor retailers, Newark, N. J.; the Griffith Piano Co., Scranton, Pa., and also Reisman Book Store, of the same city; Blumstein department store, Victor department, New York City; Chiesman Victrola Shop, Saranac Lake, N. Y.; Hays' Music Co., Yonkers, N. Y.; Schwartz Bros., Norwich, Conn.; the Berkshire Furniture Co., Pittsfield, Mass., and the Greenland Brunswick Shop, 141 Main street, White Plains, N. Y."

DA-LITE DISPLAYS FOR JAPAN

Da-Lite Electric Display Co. Fills Initial Order for Sign Equipment and Panels for Use in the Flowery Kingdom

TOLEDO, O., October 3.—The Da-Lite Electric Display Co., of this city, is continuing to issue some effective panels for calling public attention to the new Victor record releases through the medium of the special lighting equipment. The October panels feature "Why Should I Cry Over You?" "I'm Just Wild About Harry," "Coal Black Mammy" and "Oriental Fox-Trot" and are shown in attractive colors and pleasing designs.

Henry Cuddeback, head of the company, is finding a strong demand for the Da-Lite electrical display equipment in fields outside the talking machine trade and has disposed of a number of such equipment including special panels for use in foreign countries. Only recently he filled a substantial order for equipment and panels advertising the Pompeian toilet preparations with the wording in Japanese. The Da-Lite signs were observed by a group of Japanese business men touring the country who were so impressed with the idea that they took steps to secure a supply of them. The Japanese are keen observers.

Record-Breaking Business Keeps Jobbers on the Jump—All Lines Enjoy Boom—Freight Situation Hampers Deliveries of Orders

BALTIMORE, Md., October 12.—The talking machine business has taken a real boom here since the first of September and every wholesaler at present is more concerned as to how he is going to fill his orders than in booking new ones. "My last month's business was 134 per cent greater than that of September, 1921," said W. F. Roberts, manager of E. F. Droop & Sons Co., Victor distributor. "We had the largest day's business in our history, covering seventeen years, last month, selling over $2,000 worth more than any previous day in the firm's history. We are giving the closest attention to filling the orders already booked and are doing our best with the new ones which are steadily being received. There has been a steady increase in business since practically the first of August, and our August business was about 100 per cent above that of August last year. There is still a shortage and we are way behind in orders on 240's, 260's and 110's. We are filling orders as fast as the goods are received, but owing to the difficulties of present freight shipments we are having considerable difficulty in filling orders already booked."

This situation is typical of both the other Victor dealers, Cohen & Hughes and Eisenbrandt's, both of which report excess orders for practically all types of the Victor products.

Manager Shaw, of the Brunswick Co., also reports a great increase in business the past month, especially in the southern portion of the Baltimore territory, notably North Carolina, which is experiencing a big boom in business just at present, and practically all dealers are placing heavy orders in anticipation of a big holiday trade.

Practically the same report is made at the Columbia headquarters here. Manager Parks is now making his tour through the Southern States and reports a very encouraging outlook for the Fall and holiday trade. According to Mr. Parks, many of the dealers who are not placing their orders now will find themselves sold out before the holiday trade sets in.

The same situation applies to the Victor line, according to H. T. Bosee, manager of sales of Cohen & Hughes. Mr. Bosee said that practically all salesmen had been using every effort and means to get Victor dealers in their territory to place their orders, and while a number of dealers have already done so, quite a few are holding off, giving as a reason that they want to dispose of their stock on hand before ordering new goods. These dealers, according to Mr. Bosee, are the ones who are going to run short before the holiday trade is over. He also reports a shortage in the popular types of the Victor, both in uprights and consoles.

James Robinson, formerly with the Edison

Co., is now city salesman for Cohen & Hughes.

J. W. Hebling, formerly of the St. Louis branch, is now with the local Brunswick house, taking the place of H. H. Sheldon, who has been transferred to St. Louis. A. S. Fordham, formerly of the Columbia branch, is now selling for the Brunswick people. Edward Wallerstin has been transferred from the Virginia to the Maryland territory.

Manager Shaw, of the Brunswick, announces a big advance sale on the new $150.00 console, "The York," delivery on which is expected about the middle of the month.

The Lexington Talking Machine Shop has been doing some unique advertising of "Say It With Music" in the way of having a man dressed as a typical countryman, pulling a small wagon through the streets with a small Victrola playing the piece, "Say It With Flowers," which produced big results.

L. E. Parker, manager of the Morris Music Shop, Portsmouth, Va., has been making a big hit with an unusually large type of horn Victrola with which he has been giving concerts at church affairs and entertainments in that city, according to reports received at the office of Cohen & Hughes.

Julius J. Borarasky, proprietor of the Music Shop, of Charleston, W. Va., has one of the most unique music shops in that section of the country and one which is attracting considerable attention in the trade.

William Berdy, Brooklyn, N. Y., Victor dealer, with headquarters at 1198 Fulton street, is recovering from an operation performed in Baltimore, Md. After a short stay in Atlantic City he will return to Brooklyn.

ANNOUNCES RECORD SERVICE RACK

Diamond Products Corp. Doing Well With Diamond Rack for Installation in Private Hearing Rooms and Juvenile Console Phonograph—General Manager Foster on Trip

The Diamond Products Corp., New York, manufacturer of the Diamond record service rack for talking machine dealers and the Diamond Juvenile console talking machine, is very optimistic about Fall and Winter business. The console machine designed for children has been exceptionally popular with talking machine dealers in every section of the country and it now has a distribution in every State. Recently the company announced to the trade, in addition to its line, a record service rack designed for installation in private hearing rooms of talking machine stores. This service equipment is made to hang on the walls of the booth and has two pockets which will hold a quantity of records. One of these pockets is labeled "records selected" while the other is labeled "records not wanted." It also has a spindle in the center of the rack above the pockets where a record can be placed in full view of the prospective customer. This record rack is made in two sizes and finished in mahogany, ivory or gray. In the short time that this product has been on the market it has met with considerable favor everywhere and has proved a stable addition to the Diamond line of products.

R. H. Foster, general manager of the company, has been exceedingly busy these past two months both in the New York office and at the Oswego factory getting ready to meet the large demand created for this popular line. He stated that the factory is being rushed to capacity to meet the demand for the Juvenile console and the record service rack and that all indications point to a very prosperous Fall and Winter. Mr. Foster is now on a business trip which will take him to Chicago and large centers in the Middle West and expects to be gone about four weeks.

J. B. Price and Lee Conover, representatives for the Western and New England territories respectively, are both away on trips through their districts and are booking large orders for both the Juvenile console and the record service rack and before Fall is over they will have turned in a most gratifying sales total.

GERMAN AND POLISH RE-CREATIONS

Thos. A. Edison, Inc., Releases Re-Creations by Famous Artists on Order

Thos. A. Edison, Inc., recently issued an imposing list of German and Polish Re-Creations released on order. This special list of foreign selections was produced as the result of a constant and increasing demand for them and consequently they are meeting with an immediate popularity with the trade.

The German Re-Creations, which number fourteen double discs, include numbers by such famous artists as Marie Rappold, Jacques Ur-lus, Margaret Matzenauer, Arthur Middleton, Otto Goritz, Karl Jorn and Eduard Mittelstadt—all of them international figures.

McNAMARA SOLE EMPIRE PROPRIETOR

Takes Over Interest of John H. Steinmetz Estate in Empire Phono Parts Co.

CLEVELAND, O., October 6.—W. J. McNamara, president of the Empire Phono Parts Co., of this city, recently purchased the interest of the John H. Steinmetz estate, of Chicago, in the business and is now sole owner of the enterprise of which he was one of the founders. The late Mr. Steinmetz was the organizer of the Empire Talking Machine Co. and also held a financial interest in the Empire Phono Parts Co. The company is enjoying a steadily growing volume of business in tone arms and sound boxes, according to Mr. McNamara. It indicates great activity in the manufacturing field.

DEATH OF JUDGE HENRY WELLNER

GARY, IND., October 6.—Judge Henry Wellner, of this city, died unexpectedly recently. He had been very active in local politics and was greatly instrumental in organizing various civic organizations. He formed the first complete negro jury to try negro cases in Gary, which brought him State-wide publicity. In addition to his political activities, Judge Wellner was also interested in the musical business in this city, having for years been one of Gary's most successful merchants. In his stock he carried a most complete line of Columbia records in various foreign languages. In Judge Wellner Gary has lost one of its leading and most desirable and beloved citizens.

The Trade in PHILADELPHIA and LOCALITY

PHILADELPHIA, PA., October 4.—All of the talking machine dealers and distributors of the Quaker City are most enthusiastic over the business that they have been doing during the past month and a most optimistic feeling seems to pervade the local trade concerning the outlook for the coming Fall and Winter months.

The distributors in particular have been doing an especially good business and without a single exception they assert that they expect to establish new sales records during the remainder of this year. The end of the recent railroad and mine strikes, together with the increasing volume of business in nearly every line of industry, have all combined to help in bringing back normal conditions and the dealers and distributors reason that there is now nothing apparent to interfere with a continued increase in all branches of their business.

Weymann's Big Advance Shipment

One instance of the fine business that the dealers are enjoying is to be found in the report of H. W. Weymann, head of H. A. Weymann & Son, who states that on October 2 his firm made the heaviest shipment of Victrolas on advance orders taken during the past months and which aggregated the largest in dollars and cents and also in volume of any other shipment that the Weymann firm has ever made in any single day since they became distributors for the Victor Co.

"Not only have we just sent out this record-breaking shipment," said Mr. Weymann, "but the indications all point to the fact that we will in all probability make equally large, if not larger, shipments of Victrolas in November, as most dealers realize that it is to their advantage to secure a complete stock for the Fall trade so that they will not be caught short in their deliveries to their customers. Style No. 111 Victrola, I have found, is very much in favor, like all the other horizontal models, for which there is a remarkable demand. The reports which we are receiving from our dealers almost daily cause us to be most optimistic over the prospects for business during the next three months, not only on the Victor lines, but also on Q R S rolls and other musical small goods.

Dealers Keeping in Touch With the Public

F. B. Reinecke, of the Louis Buehn Co., reports business as picking up splendidly and that dealers are all active in putting their goods before the public in attractive and interesting manner. The Baker-Flick department store, of Camden, drew an audience of more than four hundred persons to a Victor concert it gave on September 27. The concert consisted of a well-selected program of Victor numbers, followed by a dance, and was under the management of Mrs. Ray T. Lute, who is considered an expert in Victor lines, having been at one time in charge of sales promotion for the Eclipse Musical Co., of Cleveland, O., and other concerns in the West.

Remarkable Illustration of Quick Service

The Unit Construction Co., of this city, builder of talking machine wareroom equipment, is providing excellent service to the talking machine dealer in making quick installations in time for the Fall and holiday business.

The following several instances of quick work are reported by the company: In Alexandria, La., Pincus & Murphy placed an order for a larger Unico department in a special Adam Period design. This order was placed on September 18 and shipment was made on September 30, twelve days from the date of the order. In Scranton, Pa., Donahoe & Haenle ordered a carload of Unico equipment which was completely loaded and car ready for shipment two days after the receipt of order. The Elsasser Co., Cleveland, O., recently ordered a complete Unico department and installation was completed sixteen days from the date of order.

Many other instances were given and orders are still being received at the headquarters of the company from dealers who desire immediate shipment to take care of their increased Fall and holiday business.

Miles F. Goodman's Good Work in Lancaster

Miles F. Goodman, of the Keystone Furniture Co., recently proved to the people of Lancaster that he is the most progressive merchant in the town. He engaged the "Happy Six Orchestra" (of Columbia Graphophone fame) to play in the window of his store from 6:30 until 8:30 p. m. Each selection was announced through a megaphone with the Columbia record number. For a week previous signs, cards and extensive newspaper advertising, broadcasting Columbia and the Happy Six, heralded the event. It required five policemen to keep a passageway open so that customers could enter the store where Mr. Hoffman, the genial manager, and the efficient sales force took care of them.

From 8:30 until 12 o'clock the "Happy Six" furnished the music for a dance held in Heimenz Auditorium. Between the dances a Grafonola tickled the palates of the music lovers with a fine program of the latest Columbia releases.

NOW IS THE TIME

Dealers who have delayed estimating their needs and placing orders for Victrolas should do so now. Any further delay will cause serious inconvenience later.

The Victor Company's recent assurance of no further change in style this Fall and the addition of two Flat Top Victrolas places the trade in the most favorable position to meet competition.

Business has improved and will get better so the big problem later on will be to obtain enough goods.

We have never been better prepared to give service and have orders on file at the Factory for additional large quantities of goods.

New Salesmen for Heppe

George Witney, manager of the Heppe stores, also gives excellent reports of the amount of business being done by his firm and, in fact, he has found that the Heppe business is increasing so consistently throughout all parts of

Wm. J. May

Wm. E. Trout

Pennsylvania and other nearby States that he has just taken on two new salesmen who will be employed in the wholesale Victor traveling department. These new salesmen, whose photographs are shown on this page, will start out on their new work in a day or so. They are William J. May, who will have charge of the Maryland, Delaware and New Jersey territory, and William E. Trout, who will have charge of the eastern Pennsylvania territory.

Installs Unico Equipment

Joseph Heim Co., Inc., talking machine dealer of this city, recently added to its sales efficiency through making an attractive installation of Unico wareroom equipment made by the Unit Construction Co., also of this city.

Paul Specht Scores in Reading

Paul Specht and his Hotel Astor Orchestra (exclusive Columbia record artists) appeared at the Rajah Theatre in Reading, September 25, 26 and 27. Through the efforts of Columbia dealers and the co-operation of the management of the Rajah Theatre the appearance was most successful. Local dealers tied up to all the theatre ads and a Grafonola was placed in the lobby of the theatre and the Paul Specht record No. A-3672 was played before and after the show. The theatre furnished signs to all Columbia dealers for their windows. Mr. Specht visited and was enthusiastically received by all Columbia dealers and is more than pleased the way they are co-operating.

The dealers report a gratifying sale of his initial record and the best part of it all is that the public is hungry for more.

General Radio Corp. Expansion in All Lines

Good demand for the entire line distributed by the General Radio Corp., of this city, is reported by Walter L. Eckhardt, president of the company. "September business looked like old times back once more," said Mr. Eckhardt.

The sales of Okel records have been exceptional. August, which was the first month in which the General Radio Corp. was distributor of this well-known brand, far surpassed expectations and September sales have eclipsed the August record. Strand phonographs, which the company also distributes, are selling well.

In the radio field not only has the volume of business substantially increased, but many new dealers have been added to retail RCA sets and the Geraco line of radio parts. The sales of Music Master horns have already reached a large figure and are steadily increasing in volume. The General Radio Corp. has just placed on the market a new product that is creating large orders wherever shown. It is a new combination attachment adaptable to either the Victrola or Columbia talking machines whereby the amplifying horn of either of these makes may be converted into a loud speaker for radio sets.

The General Radio Corp. recently opened Chicago offices under the direction of C. S. Tay in the Monadnock Block. Mr. Tay is an experienced talking machine man and merchandiser and was long closely identified with Mr. Eckhardt in his former connection with the Interstate Phonograph Co. He is exceptionally well qualified for the important duties attendant upon his office as Chicago manager. Further expansion is planned by the General Radio Corp. through the opening of an office in Pittsburgh which will shortly be announced. Mr. Eckhardt is extremely optimistic over the future and is going after all available business.

Fox Philadelphia Co. Expanding

Harry Fox, head of the Fox Philadelphia Co., is finding that business is increasing steadily with each succeeding week. Mr. Fox has a wide circle of friends throughout Philadelphia and vicinity which was built up through his former connection as manager of the Emerson-Philadelphia Co. He recently established his own company with headquarters at 723 North Twenty-sixth street, and already has secured the distributing agency for a number of well-known talking machine accessories. Mr. Fox reports that the demand is strong for the entire line. With the approach of the holiday season a very strong demand is noticeable for the Kiddie Rekord, of which the Fox Philadelphia Co. is the local distributor.

Penn Co.'s Campaign for Record Trade

T. W. Barnhill, head of the Penn Phonograph Co., is looking forward to one of the best and most prosperous seasons in the history of his firm. Under the direction of Mr. Barnhill, Victor Moore, who is in charge of the Penn order department, has sent out a number of letters to the Penn dealers calling their attention to various Victor numbers that are especially worthy of note and comment. The interest that these letters have aroused among the Penn dealers is indicated by the large number of orders received recently for these particular records. Mr. Moore describes with enthusiasm the beauties of the records, giving the entire overture from "Tannhauser" on two records, and states that "the discriminating customer will have no difficulty in discovering the excellence of these records and your sales people should, by all means, have them called to their attention." He also points to the many beauties of the Victor recording of Jascha Heifetz's performance of Chopin's Nocturne in E Flat and says that, while many people have undoubtedly heard this composition performed many times, they have not been familiar with the name of its composer and that if this record is called to their attention it will certainly result in many sales.

National Record Albums in Demand

The demand for record albums continues strongly. The National Publishing Co., of this city, reports that business is continuing in a very satisfactory manner and the factory is busy taking care of orders. H. C. Fry, of the company, reports that there is a strong tendency towards increased prices in the paper market, which, if continued, may result in increased prices for albums.

Extensive Advertising of Vocalion Records

B. H. Rogers, head of the Lincoln Business Bureau, distributor of the Vocalion records, has been doing some extensive advertising in connection with the many novelties contained in the new list of the October Vocalion records.

He has featured in detail the many interesting numbers in a manner to win attention.

Interesting Literature on Main Springs

Main springs and their importance to the talking machine are treated upon in an interesting manner in a recent piece of literature copyrighted by Everybody's Talking Machine Co., of this city, producer of the well-known "Honest Quaker" brand of main springs.

"There is a difference," the message states, "in main springs, a difference that can make or mar the capacity of a talking machine motor. The function of the talking machine motor spring is the receiving, retaining and giving up of energy. The spring must possess sufficient energy to absorb the power created by the winding. It must be built so that it will give back the exact measure of energy thus created. It must not give off more, for by doing so it is giving away its own strength. It must not give off less than what was received, otherwise it is not a proper conductor of energy, thus failing in its prime function, which is to use its power in driving the motor. Quality and consistency of material, correctness and uniformity of specifications, therefore, all play an important part in determining the performance of this most important part of the modern talking machine." After the introduction appears the "Honest Quaker" main spring chart, showing sizes, specifications and prices in various quantities of the entire line. This chart is claimed to be one of the largest and most complete ever published. The "Quaker Mica" diaphragm chart is also shown on another page, which is claimed to show the correct dimensions of practically any and every diaphragm used in the talking machine field.

Everybody's Talking Machine Co. has in the course of preparation a new catalog which is about ready for distribution. It has been very carefully and attractively prepared and is expected to constitute one of the most complete listings of repair parts ever produced.

C. E. SHEPPARD WITH BUEHN CO.

Succeeds Wm. H. Nolan as Traveling Representative—Latter in Business at Appleton

PHILADELPHIA, PA., October 5.—William H. Nolan, who long has been connected with the Louis Buehn Co., Victor distributor of this city, as traveling representative for the last five years, severed his connections on October 1 in order to engage in business on his own account at Appleton, Wis. This is a town close by his home town of Oshkosh.

Louis Buehn, president of the company, has announced the appointment of C. E. Sheppard to the sales staff of the company. Mr. Sheppard is an experienced talking machine man, having been in the business for the last ten years, and is expected to be a valuable addition to the Buehn traveling force. He will cover practically the same territory that Mr. Nolan did.

EVERYBODY'S CO. NOW IN NEW HOME

The Manufacturers of "Honest Quaker" Main Springs, Diaphragms and Other Specialties Have Spacious Quarters in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, PA., October 8.—With astonishing rapidity Everybody's Talking Machine Co. has "got to rights" in its new home at 810 Arch street. Although only occupying the new quarters about a month everything looks, and business is conducted, as though it had been in operation there for years. The large supply bins in the storage room are already well stocked with every conceivable part used in the construction of the talking machine. The keeping up of these stocks requires considerable effort and ability as the demand for "Honest Quaker" main springs, "Quaker Mica" diaphragms and other parts produced by Everybody's Talking Machine Co. has been exceptional.

S. Fingrudt, of the company, reports that business is excellent, with the demand well apportioned throughout the entire line. Turntable felts of an exceptionally good quality which Everybody's Co. is cutting itself and marketing under the brand name of

"Quaker Felt" are proving very popular and large orders are being received. The market is reported well cleaned of stock and dealers in most cases are ordering complete sets of talking machine parts. "Honest Quaker" springs are in much demand and the upward price tendency in the steel market may have its effect in the upward revision of spring prices. Foreign business is also active.

[EDITOR'S NOTE.—This is the twenty-fourth of a series of articles by William Braid White, devoted to the various interesting opportunities which prevail in the domain of education for the retailer of talking machines. The subject is one of great interest and we commend these articles to the consideration of all who are devoting attention to the featuring and developing of the musical possibilities of the talking machine.]

6—MORE ABOUT QUARTETS

I suggested last month the Allegro from Haydn's quartet in D as a fine example, not only of good recording, but of the sonata form on which all symphonies, trios and quartets are more or less strictly founded. The Haydn work is for our purposes especially good because it is so simple. I suggested that those readers who are following this series should get that record and listen to it carefully several times in preparation for the description which is now to be made. If any have not done so let me remind them that I am referring to Victor Record No. 74726.

The music opens very simply. There is a sort of Ta .Ta .Ta .Ta.Ta .Ta .Ta .Ta . Ta . .Ta . . . rhythm in the lower instruments which in a moment the first violin takes up and transforms unto the graceful simple first theme. The characteristic rhythm in 4/4 time is maintained for eight measures and there is a second section of the tune for eight measures more, continuing, however, in the lower instruments the same Ta .Ta .Ta .Ta.Ta . . rhythm (in which the stress goes on the last syllable). In this way the first theme is set forth for us all to hear and to recognize and enthuse over.

What "Development" Means

Now we have a little development, which lasts just about half as long again as did the first enunciation of the theme. Haydn takes his first tune and works it over somewhat, changing the arrangement of the parts between the instruments and experimenting, as it were, to see how he can make it sound best. But it is the same theme right along. He goes on in this way for a little while and then one finds him working into another key, the dominant of D, namely A. As soon as he gets into this key he slows down his pace and the music flows on into his second theme. This is still not draggy at all, but is a little less tripling than the first. It is the first definitely separate tune since the first theme came in and although it is very quietly introduced without even a pause it can be recognized by the four-time repeated chord which introduces it.

Now begins general development of the ideas which Haydn hasn't up till now introduced. The first theme is again most prominent and the work is mostly devoted to working it out in various changes of rhythm and harmony with much variation of parts as between the four instruments. However, the whole thing is very simple to the ear and nothing is more delightful to the music-lover who is growing in appreciation than the pleasure of listening to the weaving and interweaving of sounds in which the composer clothes his type and discloses his thoughts of beauty. Toward the close of this development section Haydn brings in again his second theme and then immediately proceeds to a restatement of the original tunes, carrying out in this way the method of construction which he originated and which is a recognized element in the sonata form. After this recapitulation comes the coda or closing piece and with this (based on the first theme) the movement comes to an end.

Of course it is impossible to write an analytical description, even one so simple and non-technical as this one, which shall wholly avoid the charge of dryness. But this cannot be helped. The remedy fortunately is simple. One only has to go back and listen to the music. Immediately all that reads on paper so dryly becomes lovely and luminous, and even more so than before, since the dry analysis has now made it not only charming, but intelligible.

About Slow Movements

Of course the first-movement form is the most important in the composition of a quartet, which again, let me remind my readers, is the same thing as a symphony for four pieces, just as a sonata is a symphony for one or two instruments and a symphony a sonata for orchestra. In a previous article I showed how the second movement of a quartet consists always of a sort of slow song-like melody, which is worked out more freely than the first-movement form would allow and which in general consists of three sections. The first of these, as was said, is melodious, sustained and deliberate, worked out very much as if it were actually a song and very often carried along to a quite considerable extent of development, though never leaving the original text, as it were, and always as clear and simple as possible. The second section is sometimes brought in as a complete contrast to the first, for an example of which the reader may refer to the "Nocturne" movement of Borodin's quartet (Victor Record No. 74733). The third section is always a repetition of the first. This tripartite system is used in song-writing and in many instrumental forms such as the Nocturne

IF there is one kind of merchandise that sells itself, it's Bubble Books.

And if there is one time of year that's better than another for these sales, it's right now, and for the next two months.

Bubble Books are the ideal children's gift at any time of year—but with Christmas just ahead, they're positively indispensable. Parents know this, and they only need to be reminded.

So be sure you do your reminding early and often.

Don't wait a minute. If you haven't already stocked up for the holiday, order at once, being sure to include plenty of the two fine new numbers 13 and 14.

Then display Bubble Books. Put them right up front, and the rest will take care of itself. For that's the great thing about Bubble Books. They sell themselves, not once, but over and over!

This is the New Bubble Book Hanger which will help you sell Bubble Books. Write for particulars.

Remember, when you sell one you sell a habit, and when you sell a habit, you're building business.

Romance, etc., which are in effect songs without words.

Excellent specimens exist, however, of slow movements all in one section, and among these I can quote the Andante from Tschaiikowsky's string quartet (Victor Record No. 74575) as played by the Elman quartet, a modern work, but very gracious and showing well the one-section style.

Since, however, I referred to these slow movements last month and since the reference made at the same time to the minuet and finale movement forms was sufficient for our present purposes I may now invite the reader to pass on to the end of another stage in this voyage of discovery.

A Little Sales Digression

Before we leave the quartets for good, however, let me once more urge all my readers to listen to as many of these delightful pieces as time and opportunity will allow. Whether Jazzy Jim and Shimmy Susan care for them or not the fact remains that the more the salesman knows about these treasures of musical art the less will he or she feel inclined to doubt or be pessimistic about the dignity and fineness of his work. After all, it must be remembered that we have not yet begun to scratch the surface of the talking machine field. The top-dressing of cheap immediate demand is pretty well scraped over, to be sure, but underneath all this lies a soil as yet hardly touched. The music-lovers of this country, the true appreciators of music, whose taste is being cultivated every day by the thousand-and-one musical enterprises which are making our country by degrees artistically worth while, are as yet hardly at all cultivated by the talking machine trade. For one among these who knows and loves the beautiful records I have been discussing, or the thousands of others of the same kind, there are ten thousand who neither know nor care about the fine art of recording. The fault is with us of the trade, because we have allowed the manufacturers to put their money and their energy into organizing the artistic status of the talking machine and then have deliberately neglected all this structure of fineness in order to catch just the easy sales; quite forgetting that these easy sales are always spasmodic, never dependable and utterly incapable of forming the foundation of permanent business.

The most original retailer of records in this country who has had astonishing success in digging out and capitalizing the latent love for fine music in this community says in effect: "Don't waste your salesmanship on the Blues and the Jazz. They sell anyway. Use your salesmanship on the standard music, on those who buy it year in and year out. They are not seasonal customers; and they stick."

But enough of such talk or this article will begin to look like yet another preachment on salesmanship, which heaven forbid. There are plenty of those in the earlier pages of The World this month. Let us return to our muttons, the same being animals which graze in the delectable land of music.

Papa Haydn's Surprise

So we come back to Papa Haydn and his Surprise Symphony. I have already told you something about the genial little man who for so many years, in humble station, quite happy and contented withal, worked and thought, experimented and wrote, till he had laid the foundations of the modern orchestra and its music. His Surprise Symphony survives, with perhaps half a dozen more of the hundred and fifty he wrote, because it, with these few others, is a developed conception with ideas which commend it to modern taste. Most of the old man's work is too thin and tentative for our liking, but the Surprise lives on. It was one of the London Symphonies, so called because it was written for the concert season he gave in London toward the latter part of his career when he was already a figure of international importance. He wrote a whole set of symphonies for the season of 1792, known as the London Symphonies, which were repeated with great success during his second visit three years later.

The name "Surprise" is given because of the celebrated crash of the drums, brass, wind and strings together, which comes so suddenly and unexpectedly in the second movement. This is written as a theme with variations and affords an excellent typical example of this form because it is so clear and simple. The theme is as naive and childish as possible. It can be symbolized in rhythm by the following:

Ta.Ta. .Ta.Ta. . .Ta. .Ta. . .

Ta.Ta. .Ta.Ta. . .Ta.Ta.Ta. . .

There is the gentlest sort of announcement by the strings which seem to be preparing a quiet accompaniment for some solo to follow later. But just as the ear is becoming rather sleepy over the whole performance and wondering when something is going to happen the whole orchestra comes out with one grand smash that wakes up every sleeper and makes the ladies jump. Papa Haydn was found one day laughing over this music in his rooms in London. Some one asked him what was the matter. Haydn replied that the Surprise Symphony would be played that evening and added: "I am going to make all the women scream." Even to-day, despite our familiarity with noise, the contrast is piquant.

Victor Record No. 35243 contains this second and the fourth movement. The first movement and the Minuet (third) are on Record No. 35244. Let me suggest a little course of listening to No. 35243 before we go on any further.

DETROIT

Music Memory Contest a Huge Success—Many Prizes Distributed—Business Continues Good

DETROIT, MICH., October 3.—The big city-wide Music Memory Contest, conducted by the local music dealers and ably assisted by the Detroit News, is now a thing of the past. Over $16,000 in prizes were offered and close to 75,000 contestants entered the affair. Elimination examinations were held during the greater part of September and the final elimination to determine the winners of the three grand prizes was held at Orchestra Hall on the evening of September 26. Out of all the thousands who had enrolled only fifty-four survived the preliminary examinations and were present to take the finals. The house was packed to capacity with friends and other interested parties, for the contest had aroused an unusual amount of interest all over the city. Only ten numbers were given in the final examination and these were played by the Detroit News Orchestra. At the end of the examination the curtain was lowered and the judges retired to mark the papers and select the winners. Peter C. Sweeney, of the Edison Shop, and H. S. Porter, of Grinnell Bros., represented the contributing music dealers. While the judges were at work on the papers a very pleasing program was given for the benefit of the audience, following which announcement of the winners was made. The first of the grand prizes, a $1,200 grand piano, was won by Osborn P. Stahl, a man who admits to being unable to play a note, but who has a love for good music; second prize, a Grinnell Bros. player-piano, was won by E. C. DeSmet, and third prize, a Brambach baby grand piano, donated by the J. L. Hudson Music Store, was won by John Korolishn. Fourth prize, a $375 Edison phonograph, was tied for by three women, which necessitated a re-marking of the papers. Mr. Stahl, who won the first prize, turned in an absolutely perfect paper, never missing on one of the questions asked. He later told how he was enabled to turn in such a perfect paper. He purchased the records of the pieces used in the contest and then played them at home on the phonograph until he had become thoroughly familiar with them. All that remained to do was to become familiar with some details concerning the composers, and in this he was very fortunate, having picked up a great deal of knowledge before the contest was announced. Music students and critics declared that Mr. Stahl's performance was a remarkable demonstration of musical concentration. The present week has seen the contributing dealers busy in shipping out the many prizes which they donated to the various prize winners. Phonographs furnished the bulk of the prizes and there are many homes in Detroit and vicinity that to-day are happier as a result of winning one of the prizes. While it is impossible at present to estimate the exact money value of the contest, dealers have the satisfaction of knowing that they have done a great deal to further the cause of good music and a public that has acquired a taste for this class of music is bound to more than repay the dealer who helped to instill it in them.

Business Conditions Are Excellent

General business conditions in the talking machine line in Detroit are very good. Business is brisk and from all sides one hears how good the future looks to dealers. September was the biggest month of the year and in some cases the best month in several years. The music trade in Detroit shows an increase in volume of sales of 24.34 per cent more for August, 1922, than for the same month of 1921. This is especially encouraging. Incidentally August, 1922, was 46.65 per cent greater than was July, 1922. These figures were given out by the Retail Merchants' Bureau and this makes the fifth consecutive month that retail sales have shown an increase.

J. Francis Quinn Reports Progress

J. Francis Quinn, of the Brunswick Shop, reports that September, 1922, was considerably ahead of September, 1921, and so far in advance of September, 1919 (one of their best years), as to be almost too good to be true. Mr. Quinn is expecting that October will keep up to this average and is very optimistic about the future. Mr. Quinn expressed the belief that those dealers who were not stocking up on phonographs while they still were able to get their orders filled were making a big mistake. The dealers who are waiting until the last minute to place their orders stand to lose out, is his opinion. Mr. Quinn is a close student of economic affairs and bases his belief on the results of his observations. The Brunswick Shop is looking forward to the greatest Fall and holiday trade this year that it has ever experienced.

P. J. Gordon, well known to dealers throughout the State through his having been for so long a time connected with the wholesale end of the phonograph division of Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., is now associated with Mr. Quinn at the main store of the Brunswick shop as chief of salesmen.

Sympathy for W. H. Huttie

W. H. Huttie, district manager of the Starr Piano Co., had the misfortune to lose his young son, Charles, through diphtheria on September 20. His many friends and acquaintances were grieved to learn of his bereavement and extended their deepest sympathies.

Music Merchants to Meet

The first meeting of the Music Merchants' Association of Detroit is announced for Tuesday, October 10, by A. H. Howes, president. At this time affairs dropped during the Summer months will be resumed and the organization gotten into shape for Fall and Winter activities.

The J. L. Hudson Co.'s music store reports a wonderful Summer business in all lines. Several new salespeople have been added and every salesman is easily getting his quota.

Okeh Recordings Popular

The new Okeh recordings by Vincent Lopez and his Hotel Pennsylvania Orchestra are proving very popular with Detroiters, according to reports received from the Kimball Piano Co., which handles these records in Detroit. "We find it hard to keep a sufficient supply of these records on hand," said H. W. Fish, manager of the store. "Dance records certainly are selling heavily with us and I believe Vincent Lopez recordings have helped greatly in this respect."

Oriole Terrace Orchestra a Big Favorite

The Oriole Terrace Orchestra, hailed as Detroit's Own, which enjoyed a very successful engagement at the Edgewater Beach Hotel in Chicago this Summer and has since been playing a number of the leading cities on the Keith circuit of vaudeville, is due to return to Detroit on October 18, when it takes up quarters in its new home on East Grand Boulevard in the Oriole Terrace. It recently appeared in Detroit at the Temple Theatre and was greeted by capacity houses at each performance. The Brunswick Shop reports that it is impossible to obtain any of Brunswick records of this orchestra owing to its popularity. Since Brunswick has been pressing records at Muskegon it is hoped that the shortage will be relieved to some extent.

Some Jewett News Gleanings

Al Doty, formerly credit manager of the Jewett Radio & Phonograph Co., of Detroit, has left that organization and is now office manager for Lind-Marks Co., local Aeolian-Vocalion distributor.

Jack Riley, formerly Pennsylvania representative for Jewett, has been appointed to succeed Mr. Doty as credit manager.

N. Sinclair Reid has been appointed representative of Jewett for London, England, and the British Isles. Word received from him lately says that the samples have been received and are arousing a great deal of interest among music lovers and radio fans over there. He anticipates a brisk trade to follow.

Admire Edison Baby Console

The Edison Shop has received a sample of the Edison baby console model and is using it for display purposes. It is very attractive and is eliciting a great deal of favorable comment. There is no doubt but that when deliveries can be obtained on this model it will be one of the most popular of the Edison styles.

A. MIDDLETON SCORES IN AUSTRALIA

Cables and newspaper clippings received by the officials of Thos. A. Edison, Inc., disclose the fact that Arthur Middleton, the famous Edison artist, is receiving tremendous ovations during his concert tour through Australia. The houses in which he appeared have been sold out in advance and plans are already being laid for return engagements throughout this music-loving continent.

EDISON RE-CREATION RECORD

Clear, well-defined tones, but not harsh—mellow, but not muffled—high in volume, but low in surface noise and always faithfully responding to the recorded sound waves—truly a scientific achievement

THOUSANDS of people of your city own talking machines other than the Edison. With the CLARAVOX they can now double the enjoyment of their phonograph through being enabled to play Edison Records with no loss of those rich mellow overtones which make possible a seemingly exact reproduction of the original vocal selection or instrumental rendition.

The CLARAVOX is not just another reproducer. It is a wonderful scientific instrument developed after years of research. It embodies a diaphragm of unusual shape connected by a balance spring tension to a light stylus with a microscopically polished diamond point, guaranteed not to cut the record.

The CLARAVOX reproduces Edison Records on Victor, Sonora, Silvertone and other talking machines with a clear natural tone and plenty of volume for dancing. It is today's most talked about talking machine improvement.

DEALERS

Christmas is but two months away. You will do a greater volume of business in CLARAVOX Reproducers than in any other single item in your store. The CLARAVOX will increase your talking machine business and your

KANSAS CITY

Many Dealers Place Orders for Fall Stock—Public Turns to Talking Machines Following Strike Settlement—Month's News

KANSAS CITY, Mo., October 6.—Business in the talking machine line has been much better during September than in the month previous, according to reports from dealers and jobbers. The strikes have been settled, and grain is moving, and the fear of a tie-up of freight is removed, and so the dealer is ordering freely, and the public is buying more liberally.

As an indication of the fact that the market is to be for the larger and better class of machines mention may be made of the sales campaign of the Jones Store, of this city. A Christmas Club has been organized, and the terms are the same liberal ones that were offered last year. As a result of this offer the Jones Store took orders the first ten days for thirty machines. The prices ranged from $150 up—none of them at a lower price. This is a much higher average than the sales of last year. In the same manner Mr. Lee, the manager of the Victor and Sonora department, states that the sales of records show that there has been a decided change for the better in the demands of the public. More Red Seal records are being sold this year than ever before. This is to be accounted for, first, in the change of the public demand and, second, because of the fact that the public has come to know, during the past year, that the Jones Store is prepared to furnish all the higher-grade records on demand. The boast of Mr. Lee is that he keeps his stock full and up to date and he has been insistent in making this fact known to the public through liberal advertising, which included billboard, motion picture, direct mail and newspaper advertising.

Jobbers are feeling pretty good, also, in regard to the trade. They report that all over the territory the demand is good, and what is worrying some of them a little is that the delayed orders from dealers may turn into a rush which may result in the jobber not being able to supply the demand. Some of the jobbers think that a shortage of stock is inevitable before the end of the year.

Live Columbia Dealer

Louis Deitsch, manager Scanlan's Hardware Co., at South Saint Joseph, Mo., has considerable faith in advertising and is making the people of South Saint Joseph conscious that he is a real, live Columbia dealer. This is shown by a set of pictures recently received by the Kansas City branch of the Columbia Co. showing a painted sign on the corner of his building which features a large Columbia record with all-star Columbia entertainers recording exclusively for Columbia. Mr. Deitsch has named this record the "Illinois Avenue Blues." (Illinois avenue is the street on which his business is located.) The "Illinois Avenue Blues" is frequently played by Scanlan's Trio of the American Legion Post.

Another large fence sign on a principal street featuring Columbia Grafonolas and records also registers for Scanlan's Hardware Co. and in the interior of his store is a large door panel painted to portray a music room which displays the Grafonola to good advantage. Mr. Deitsch is putting on an outside Grafonola salesman, saying that he knows that real accomplishment and results will come through consistent efforts.

Fred Jenkins Ends Western Trip

Fred Jenkins, manager of the Victor wholesale department of the J. W. Jenkins' Sons Music Co., has just returned from the West, and states that the people out there are spending money freely for musical instruments. As a feature of the record business worthy of remark he mentioned that the foreigners were buying heavily of records in their own languages.

Mr. Edgar, of the Edgar Shoppe, Tulsa, Okla., was in town this week, and went over the plans of the Christmas Club with Mr. Lee, of the Jones Store, and returned home with the intention of putting a similar campaign on in Tulsa.

Music Appreciation in Schools

One of the big orders of the Fall has been to supply records for the public schools of Kansas City. The School Board has arranged to have the pupils given lessons in music appreciation, using the selections which are to be given at the symphony orchestra concerts. There are to be over ten thousand pupils who will attend these concerts. It is the intention for all of them to be given these lessons in appreciation before they go to the concerts, so they may be able to understand and enjoy the selections when they are played. Other pupils will be given the opportunity to hear the records and have the benefit of the lessons in music appreciation. About $1,000 worth of records have been bought for the schools.

Dealers Tie Up With Victor Artist

Victor dealers here took full advantage of the recent visit of John Steel, the popular young tenor of the Victor family. He appeared at the Orpheum and attracted large audiences. The jobbers and dealers united in distributing at the theatre the September number of the Favorite Records Review, in which Steel occupies a conspicuous position. This was also distributed by mail. The result of this and other advertising was a most satisfactory sale of his records. The enterprising manager of the Wunderlich Victor department, Mr. Standke, induced Mr. Steel to autograph a number of records for him, and this added feature made these records very desirable.

Victor Displays at Fairs

Mr. Schoenley, of the Schmelzer wholesale Victor department, reports that Victor dealers throughout the territory are taking advantage of the fairs that are being held to make special displays and offer attractive propositions, which are resulting in large sales. He also states that the demand for Victor literature has been unusually heavy this Fall.

Changes in the Edison Shop

The retail shop of the Edison Co., at 1012 Grand avenue, has been redecorated and now presents a very striking and attractive appearance. It has been done over in browns and tans, which harmonize beautifully with the woodwork. Mr. Herbert Bailey, who was formerly with Mr. Blackman in the wholesale department here, is now in charge of the retail store. The statement that he had gone to Salina, Kan., was an error. Mr. Chappell still has charge there. A full line of Packard and Bond pianos is being added to the stock of the retail store.

The Edison Shop is proud to announce that Mr. Wilson, who has made such a fine record as salesman in connection with the H. P. Ripley store at Leavenworth, Kan., is to be connected with the local store in the future.

Record Demonstrations Please

Dealers and jobbers have just had a demonstration of the value of the mid-month release of records, as the sales during the latter half of the month have been about equal to those of the first of the month. This is a new development of the business, and is much appreciated by the trade.

Fine Columbia Publicity

The following paragraph in connection with the Teachers' Institute is from the front page of the Courier-Index, of Marianna, Ark.:

"The time given to 'Musical Interpretation and Appreciation' by Miss Florence E. Hazlett, representative of the Columbia Graphophone Co., was decidedly the most entertaining feature of the week's program. Her demonstration of the many uses of the Grafonola in schools could not be improved upon. All per-

Columbia Artists Boost Own Records

The appearance of Frank Westphal and His Rainbo Orchestra, Columbia artists, at the Main Street Theatre, this city, during the week ending September 30, was a distinct success.

The Grafonola Shop, 1120 Grand avenue, exclusive Columbia dealer, sold an immense quantity of Westphal records through a tie-up with the artists, having placed two Grafonolas in the lobby of the theatre. They also circularized their large mailing list with announcements of Westphal's appearance and calling attention to his records, which could be secured at their store.

Edison Elizabethan for Ivanhoe Auditorium

The Edison Shop has just installed in the Ivanhoe Auditorium one of the Edison thousand-dollar Elizabethan period models. This auditorium has been chosen for the concerts of the Little Symphony Orchestra this year. The first of the series of concerts scheduled for this auditorium was given this week when Madam Schumann-Heink appeared. While here she sang for the radio of the Kansas City Star.

Manager Blackman reports that the new $175 console model of the Edison is making a hit with the trade.

New Brunswick Dealers

Manager Briggs, of the Brunswick, reports that the Baldwin Music Shoppe, of Okmulgee, Okla., and the Newman Mercantile Co., of Enid, Okla., have been added to the list of Brunwick dealers. He states that business has been better for the year than during the corresponding months of 1921.

McDowell-Castator Co. in New Home

The McDowell-Castator Music Co., of Pawhuska, Okla., Columbia dealer, has moved into new quarters at 621 North Kihekah avenue, which will give them much more room to display their stock of Grafonolas, pianos and a general line of small goods and sheet music. The store is centrally located, modernly equipped with hearing rooms and up-to-date fixtures. Mr. Clark, the manager, anticipates a large increase in business in their new location.

Mr. Brown is ably assisted in the store by Miss Hostrup and Miss Moore.

REGRETS DEATH OF LIEUT. WILLIARD

A. H. Curry, vice-president of Thos. A. Edison, Inc., and in charge of the phonograph division, was found in a sad mood when a representative of The World recently called on him. Upon inquiry it was learned that the pilot, Lieut. Gene Griggs Williard, who carried Mr. Curry by aeroplane from Dallas to San Antonio, as reported in The World last month, was recently killed when his plane crashed to the ground.

Made Sales Manager of New Concern—Widely Experienced in the Trade

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 7.—Francis X. Regan, formerly connected with the firm of Thomas Goggan & Bros., Houston and Galveston, Tex., and then connected for several years with Knabe Warerooms, Inc., this city, has been appointed sales manager of the newly formed firm of the Homer L. Kitt Co., which, in addition to the Victor line of talking machines, features Knabe pianos.

The Homer L. Kitt Co. had a very successful sale during the month of September in closing out the stock of the Knabe Warerooms, Inc., that they had purchased. Mr. Kitt looks for a very successful and prosperous year.

TONE ARM OF NEW DESIGN

Samuel Eshborn, 65 Fifth avenue, New York City, manufacturer and distributor of talking machine repair parts and accessories, who recently introduced a blue steel talking machine needle under the trade name “Blue Belle,” now announces a tone arm of an entirely new design. This new product has an arm with a gradual flare, a gracefully curved elbow and a ball-bearing base. It is claimed that the reproducer is of a particularly fine quality and gives a splendid tone.

W. M. Duven, furniture dealer of Orange City, Ia., has purchased a store near his headquarters to house his new Victor department.

EDISON DEALER-JOBBER MEETINGS

Group Reunions Under Auspices of Phonograph Co., of Manhattan, Held in New York, Newark, Middletown and Scranton

The Phonograph Co., of Manhattan, Edison jobber in the New York district, recently held a series of group meetings between Edison dealers located in the territory served by this organization and S. Roth, manager, and P. J. Burns, sales promotion manager of this jobbing concern.

The purpose of the meetings was to familiarize the Edison dealers with the new London models of the New Edison. All the new instruments were exhibited and examined and sales promotion plans discussed in an extensive manner. These group meetings were held in New York, Newark, Middletown and Scranton.

Over 85 per cent of the Edison dealers located in these jobbing zones attended one or more of the meetings and the new models were unanimously received with tremendous enthusiasm. In several cases these meetings resulted in effective news stories appearing in the local newspapers, bringing out the idea that the new models have been priced so as to bring Edison instruments within the reach of all.

BANQUET TO GEORGE E. BRIGHTSON

President of Sonora Phonograph Corp. Tendered Elaborate Dinner by Barker Bros., Los Angeles, on Recent Visit to That City

LOS ANGELES, CAL., September 29.—A banquet was given at the Los Angeles Athletic Club last evening in honor of the visit of George E. Brightson, president of the Sonora Phonograph Corp., by Barker Bros., the exclusive Los Angeles Sonora dealers. Mr. Brightson, in an inspiring speech, told of the policy for producing "quality" goods, which had been the keynote in the success of the Sonora since its first inception. J. W. Boothe, general manager of the music department of Barker Bros., acted as chairman and told of the continued success which his house had met with in handling the Sonora. Clarence A. Barker, vice-president of Barker Bros., gave an interesting talk on the history of the music department of their great furniture store. F. B. Travers, president of the Magnavox Co., Pacific Coast Sonora distributor, and A. G. Farquharson, secretary of the Music Trades Association of Southern California, also delivered addresses. Those present included George E. Brightson, Clarence A. Barker, F. B. Travers, J. W. Boothe, Sibley G. Pease, Earl S. Dible, Wilbur Spray, Ralph Cassell, Chas. McQuay, Frank Moreno, F. B. Smith and A. G. Farquharson.

EDISON CONCERTS FOR ADVERTISERS

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., October 4.—One of the real features of the Fashion Show and Exhibits of National Advertisers recently held on the Million Dollar Pier of this famous resort was that staged by the phonograph division of Thos. A. Edison, Inc. The Edison exhibit consisted of an elaborate and effective Edison Tone-Test rendered by the two well-known and famous Edison artists, Victor Young and Helen Davis. The concerts were given four successive days to audiences of two thousand each day.

BRUNSWICK ACTIVE IN NEW ENGLAND

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., October 7.—Harry Spencer, of Kraft, Bates & Spencer, Boston, has been spending a couple of days in this city in the interest of the Brunswick proposition, calling on dealers who handle this instrument. He reports a heavy demand for the Brunswick throughout New England and each week sees some good houses signing up for representation of this line. Dealers are beginning to vigorously clamor for machines and it now looks as though there may be a shortage ere many weeks go by.

NEW REGINA PHONOGRAPH STYLES

Musical Instrument Specialty Co., of Rahway, N. J., Makes Important Announcement

The Musical Instrument Specialty Co., Rahway, N. J., manufacturer of the Regina phonograph, music boxes and other musical instruments, announces the addition of a number of new models to its Fall production. These include two console models as well as several of upright design. The Regina phonograph is being equipped with an improved motor and it carries as well the Regina patented tone arm and reproducer.

The Musical Instrument Specialty Co. is the successor to the Regina Co. and the same personnel that was connected with that firm for almost a quarter of a century is now associated in this new manufacturing organization. Included in these are M. Chaillet, who was formerly business manager of the Regina Co., and G. A. Brachhusen, who contributed much technical knowledge to the development of the various Regina products as well as a series of patents.

ANNOUNCES NEW EMERSON CONSOLE

PERU, IND., October 6.—A new Louis XV console model has been announced by the Wasmuth-Goodrich Co., this city, manufacturer of the Emerson line of phonographs. The new model, which is exceptionally handsome in appearance, is made only in walnut and mahogany finishes. The exposed metal parts are gold-plated throughout. Many inquiries and requests for samples from dealers have already been received by the company.

CLEVER ADVERTISING STUNT GETS RESULTS

Indianapolis T. M. Co. Runs a Number of Miniature Ads in Each Issue of Daily Papers and Discovers Returns Through Gifts

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., October 10.—Another Indianapolis dealer who is bending his energies to making his advertising returns bigger and better is A. C. Hawkins, manager of the Indianapolis Talking Machine Co. He has cut his newspaper advertising space into small sections so that in place of running a 150-word ad he runs seven separate ads measuring one inch over two columns. In each of these small spaces he has been featuring one particular item such as a record. For instance, one day he had seven ads scattered through the paper with the word "Blue" in large black type. Three of the seven were worded thus: "Blue. Guess who. Victor Record No. 18933. The Indianapolis Talking Machine Co., 134 North Pennsylvania street. Main 2188." "Blue. You just couldn't be when you hear Victor Record No. 18933 at the Indianapolis Talking Machine Co., 134 North Pennsylvania street. Main 2188." "Blue. There are seven Blue ads in to-day's paper, any one of which, when presented at our record department, will entitle holder to one miniature Victor dog free. Children must be accompanied by parents. 134 North Pennsylvania street."

As will be seen by the last quoted ad Mr. Hawkins offered the dog as a means of ascertaining just how effective the many small ads were. He recovered a large drawer full of the clippings and learned that he had hit on a worth-while means of advertising.

"This is an idea that I shall use in the dull seasons particularly," Mr. Hawkins explained. "When business picks up, as it will near the holidays, I shall use large space in the newspapers. However, the plan of cutting up the ads is good for an exclusive store which cannot afford large space throughout the year. This is especially true when the advertising must be done in a medium that is filled with page and half-page ads that draw attention away from smaller ads. Where a reader will miss seeing a 150-line ad he will be pretty sure to notice distinctive small ads scattered through the various pages.

"In the small ads as well as in large space I try to get away from the stereotyped forms. To do that I have to write my own copy and I stay awake nights thinking it up. Advertising is important and it is well worth any store manager's time to spend it on ad writing rather than trust such writing to some one who does not know the store or the stock and who is not so interested in good copy as the man who is responsible for sales. During the slack season just passed I did not make any increase in our advertising appropriation, but I got three times the ordinary results by breaking up the ads and scattering them through the paper."

Mr. Hawkins says the approaching cold weather season gives promise of being exceptionally good. July, August and September were the best late Summer months he ever experienced, he said. He attributes this to the fact that he has kept a crew of outside men busy. Just now each of his outside salesmen has a Ford roadster and carries a Victrola with him. "Going after prospects without ammunition is like going hunting after rabbits without a gun," Mr. Hawkins explains in regard to that plan of equipping salesmen. The procedure each salesman follows is to put the machine in the house and demonstrate it before the prospect at the time of approach. The salesmen rely on the help of boys or anyone who is willing to earn a few extra cents by helping to lift the machine off and on the car.

J. P. Nelson, Victor dealer of Yankton, S. D., made several sales and secured a number of prospects as the result of an attractive Victor display at a local fair.

INTERESTING CUSTOMS DECISION

Kraft paper containers, especially designed and exclusively employed for holding phonographic disc records, were the subject of a decision by the Customs Board sustaining protests of M. A. Graser-Rothe and Starr Piano Co., of Cleveland and Detroit. Duty was levied on these containers at the rate of 25 per cent ad valorem under paragraph 332 of the Tariff Act of 1913 as manufactures of paper not specially provided for. The importers contended for duty at 15 per cent ad valorem under the specific provision in paragraph 327 for "paper envelopes, folded or flat," and this claim is upheld in an opinion by Judge Fischer.

VICTOR DEALERS OPEN BRANCH

EDISON TONE-TEST SEASON OPENS

Big Array of Artists to Be Heard Throughout the Country in Conjunction With Local Dealers' Work to Develop and Broaden Trade

The Edison Tone-Test season of 1922-23 has just opened and bids fair to be one of the most successful in point of number of artists on tour and concerts given. Practically the entire country will be covered by these unique comparison concerts and in each case the Tone-Test will be held in conjunction with local Edison dealers.

These Tone-Tests have played a prominent part in Edison sales promotion work for many years past and there now remains no doubt but that the idea is likely to become a permanent and exclusively Edison institution.

Among the better-known Edison artists who are already en route are Marie Morrissey, contralto; Walter Chapman, pianist; Jacques Glockner, 'cellist; Helen Davis, mezzo-soprano; Victor Young, pianist; Hardy Hindermeier, tenor; Glen Ellison, Scotch baritone; Alta Hill, pianist, and the Dann Trio.

VICTOR SALESMANSHIP CLASS SCORES BIG IN TOLEDO

Fully One-fifth of the Dealers in Toledo Territory Send Representatives to Class Conducted by F. A. Delano and Under Auspices of Toledo Talking Machine Co.—Banquet Follows

TOLEDO, O., October 3.—One of the outstanding events of the past week was the Victor Salesmanship Class, conducted by F. A. Delano, of the Victor Co., under the auspices of the Toledo Talking Machine Co. The effort aroused wide attention and proved that merchants are desirous of promoting their record and machine trade. Fully one-fifth of the dealers in the Toledo territory sent representatives. While the undertaking required much work and close attention, it is believed the direct benefit to the dealer will extend far into the future.

Chas. H. Womeldorff, manager; Warren L. Kellogg and W. B. Gannon, road representatives, and Arthur Laybourn and Miss Marg. Muth, of the Toledo Talking Machine Co., appointed themselves a committee to look after the comfort and the welfare of the students. The committee divided and met trains, boats and interurbans and saw to it that candidates were properly quartered.

The sessions opened on Monday morning in the French Parlor at the Hotel Waldorf and lasted four days. Study hours were from 9 to 12:30 and 2 to 5:30.

On Tuesday evening the class took advantage of the invitation of the Toledo Association of Music Merchants, who were hosts to the Ohio Association in convention, to join the moonlight lake sail on the steamer "Owana," which proved a delightful event. Mr. and Mrs. Warren Kellogg chaperoned the class group. On Wednesday evening, as guests of the Toledo Talking Machine Co., the class visited the Toledo Industrial Exposition at the Terminal Auditorium. Thursday evening the company again acted as host. This time the class was tendered a banquet in the private dining hall of the Waldorf; the menu card was an especially attractive souvenir.

At the banquet W. B. Gannon was chairman. The first speaker introduced was A. J. Pete, manager of the Lion Store Victrola rooms. After praising the work of Mr. Delano, the Victor Co., and above all that of the local distributors, he directed his remarks to Mr. Delano. He presented him with a gold Victor dog watch charm set with a diamond as the gift of the class. This, he said, would be something substantial and would remind him always of Toledo and the class he inspired.

F. A. Delano's talk was in reply to that of A. J. Pete and also dwelt upon the forward movement of the work and upon the good which would result from the class efforts.

Following this, Wm. Gaston, Ohio and Michigan representative of the Victor Co., spoke upon the message those in attendance should carry to the workers at home and instruct them in the methods learned.

Then, acting upon the suggestion of Mr. Delano, Harry W. Doran made a motion that the class work be carried on through a permanent organization. James B. Watson seconded the motion and Arthur J. Pete was elected secretary by acclamation.

Chas. H. Womeldorff closed the meeting with an address of appreciation and thanks. They were grateful for the opportunity to be instrumental in instructing and entertaining the guests, he said.

Among the students and the firms which sent them were: Constance Sawkins, Sawkins Piano Co., Alma, Mich.; Ada Lehman and May A. Allemendinger, Schaeberle & Son, Ann Arbor, Mich.; Grenievre Olinger, E. O. Little, Auburn, Ind.; J. Gorton Milliken, Milliken-White Music House, Bay City, Mich.; N. E. *Dealers Report Big Trade Gains —Machine Shortage in Sight—
Monthly Review of the Trade*

TOLEDO, O., October 4.—Talking machine merchants are enjoying a volume of trade considerably in excess of twelve months ago. The reason for this is so well established locally that no less an authority than Babson is making it known to the country at large, for Toledo's industrial growth over last year is 30 per cent, which establishes this city as the most prosperous town in the State of Ohio and one of the best in the land.

Toledo began to show improvement last Spring and ever since that time has maintained a steady climb. That's why talking machine dealers have experienced increases ranging from 10 per cent to 100 per cent. That, too, is the reason collections are upon a fairly solid basis. Now retailers are sending their sales people into every part of the city in quest of trade and they are closing contracts. The aggressive dealer is getting more than a mere portion of the business, for he is securing a volume which has made the past months perhaps the most prosperous in his history.

Moreover, a shortage of certain types and styles of talking machines has already set in. Retailers were told weeks ago that a shortage was coming, but they are sometimes hard to convince. Consequently to-day some are searching nearby markets for merchandise. With Fall trade about to start in earnest it is feared a general shortage will exist before many weeks.

Conventions Bring Many Visitors

Furthermore, the past month has been a busy one for dealers. The Knights Templar State conclave brought thousands of visitors to the city. The Music Merchants' Association of Ohio convention drew merchants not only from Ohio, but from neighboring States as well. And the Victor salesmanship school was well attended both from a local and outside viewpoint. In each of the affairs dealers were concerned and took an active part.

Prospects of a Shortage

At the Toledo Talking Machine Co. Fall trade is booming. A few numbers are far oversold, particularly the 240 and 260 Victrolas. It is predicted that inasmuch as the Victor factory is producing to its utmost, a shortage of many models may result. Chas. H. Womeldorf, manager, is of the opinion that unless merchants cover their wants at once they will find themselves with orders, but no goods with which to fill them.

However, many of the larger dealers have realized this situation was coming and have bought for the future.

Warren L. Kellogg and W. B. Gannon, representatives of the Toledo Talking Machine Co., report a fine improvement over their respective territories and a cautious awakening of the farmer to his musical needs. That individual's buying power is far greater to-day than at any time within the past two years.

Warren Kellogg entertained as his house guests Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Snyder, Lima, O., bride and groom. Mr. Snyder is manager of the talking machine department of the B. S. Porter Son Co., of that city. His bride was formerly Miss Lena Sharp.

Interest in the New Records

Interest in the four special Victor releases to go on sale Saturday, October 14, is greater than usual. It is believed approaching cooler evenings are responsible in a measure for the stimulation. Moreover, the music shows and vaudeville stars are aiding the sale of records.

Launch Annual Christmas Victrola Club

At the Lion Store Victrola rooms a splendid increase in sales is recorded, according to A. J. Pete, manager. The growth amounts to more than 25 per cent. It is stated more demonstration space will have to be provided under present increased business. The annual Christmas Victrola Club was launched October 2. This provides a means for securing a Victrola for $1 down and $1 a week. Half-page announcements in each of the dailies marked the start of the club for the season. In other years returns from this early effort have produced nearly one-quarter of the advance Christmas trade.

Reports 100 Per Cent Increase

At the LaSalle & Koch Co. Victrola shop the past month the increase reached 100 per cent, R. O. Danforth, in charge, reports. The gratifying development was made possible by the generally improved conditions locally, by advertising and service to the customer.

General Sales Manager R. V. Davis, of the F. C. Henderson Co., Boston, visited the LaSalle & Koch Victrola shop on his trip West. The store is a member of the Henderson chain.

The Goosman Piano Co. is making progress with country trade, C. E. Colber, sales manager, said. Adjacent communities are being solicited with a crew of workers and the result is a decided increase in sales.

Buy Grubbs Music Shoppe Stock

Compton Bros., owners of the Record Shop and a chain of talking machine stores in northwestern Ohio, have purchased from the receiver the bankrupt stock of Grubbs Music Shoppe. The stock will be moved to the Findlay, O., store and the fixtures will be disposed of in Toledo. It is the intention to greatly enlarge the record rack space in the Record Shop and to employ a force of house-to-house solicitors. Trade is showing a growth over last year. October has opened especially well. Brunswick talking machines and records are featured.

An Effective Window Display

At the J. W. Greene Co. the increase for the month past was likewise very gratifying, E. A.

Kopf states. A panel window display of the Cheney phonograph, Style Six, was of interest to customers and created much favorable comment. The parts from this instrument were shown separately attached to panels which were placed at either side of the instrument. The feature of the display illustrated just how the tone of the Cheney is developed. Another window feature was the working out of the Knight Templar crown and cross with colored needle boxes. This also created a fine impression and built good-will for the store.

A direct advertising campaign which exceeds any previous similar effort was inaugurated the first of the month. Forty-five thousand letters are going to a list of prospects, among the number are many farmers. It is believed that now is the proper time to solicit the outside resident as well as the city dweller and get him started toward purchasing a machine for the holidays.

Rae & Maxwell, Jefferson avenue, and Frank Felightner, Cherry street, Columbia dealers, cashed in upon the recent appearance at the Saxon Auditorium of the exclusive Columbia artist, Nora Bayes, in her new musical show. Her records were prominently displayed and advertised with gratifying results on the cash register.

PERMANENT RADIO FAIR OPENS

Radio Exhibits at Imperial Hotel, New York City, Under Glass Cases

There opened on September 30 at the Imperial Hotel, New York City, a Permanent Radio Fair which is scheduled to be an exhibit at the above hotel until May 30, 1923. This fair is under the direction, and is the idea, of Raymond Francis Yates, editor of the Radio Department of the New York Evening Mail.

There are very few demonstrations given, the various exhibits being in glass cases, and the public is only otherwise entertained by a radio device which can be asked and does answer questions. This latter portion of the Fair is of Coney Island type and does not make the appeal that was expected by those who conceived it.

Among those who have exhibits at the Imperial Hotel are the Eagle Radio Co., Newark, N. J.; Federal Telephone & Telegraph Co., Radio Corp. of America, DeForest Radio Telephone & Telegraph Co. and the Globe Art Co.

The Mercury Radio Corp.'s exhibit should be of particular interest to talking machine dealers, inasmuch as it is installed in a console cabinet containing a combination talking machine and radio receiving apparatus.

Now Is the Time to Buy!

Now is the time to buy Small Goods—now, while prices are low and stocks are full.

Wholesale prices are advancing steadily. The market pages of your daily paper tell of increased costs all along the line.

And read the new tariff law just gone into effect! See what it does to Musical Instruments!

The Musical Instrument Trade will be affected by the causes that are driving up prices in all lines. It is inevitable.

Now is the time to buy! The coming Fall and Winter seem to promise a business revival on a big scale. And far-seeing merchants are hastening to protect their prospects for a big holiday business by starting early to get in their stocks.

To-day is none too soon to make your purchases—particularly on imported merchandise.

We can serve you promptly now from full stocks and at prices that are remarkably low, when compared with replacement costs.

Why not turn to-day to Catalog No. 22 and Trade Price List No. 5, and place a portion of your Fall order now while we can serve you best? If you haven't these two books, let us send them to you, FREE. A request on your business letter-head brings them by return mail.

Well-known Victor Traveler Joins Sales Staff of New York Victor Wholesalers

C. Bruno & Son, Inc., Victor wholesalers, New York City have announced the appointment to their Victor sales staff of Richard H. Nolan, succeeding and covering the territory of B. C. Bloedon. Mr. Nolan is a Victor man of wide experience and engaging personality. He needs no introduction throughout the Victor trade in the Metropolitan district, as some time ago, as representative of the Victor Talking Machine Co., of Camden, N. J., he covered this territory under Thomas McCready, at that time district manager. Later he was promoted to full charge of the Minnesota territory with headquarters in Minneapolis. From this important position Mr. Nolan comes to C. Bruno & Son, Inc., and is already enthusiastically taking up his new duties.

TWENTY-NINE NEW AGENCIES

Established by Ed. E. Hohmann for the Well-known Product of the Modernola Co.

JOHNSTOWN, PA., October 7.—Ed. E. Hohmann, manager of sales of the Modernola Co., this city, has just returned from a six weeks' trip through the Middle West and reports that he established twenty-nine new agencies for the product of his company and renewed many of the old customers, who had been lost to the company through the fact of their being burned out some time ago and being out of business for practically a year. He also reports that a distributor has been appointed for Porto Rico and that shipments are going forward weekly to this concern.

Mr. Hohmann reports that the small portable machine which is put out by this company was a wonderful success during the season and the sales are still continuing very large, as the dealers have come to realize that this is an all-year-round proposition and not a seasonal one.

Under the direction of the Kiwanis Club an industrial exposition was held in Johnstown last week and among the more prominent displays was that of the Modernola Co., which was commented on very favorably.

CAROLA ACTIVITIES INCREASE

Cleveland Manufacturers Making Rapid Progress—Instrument Being Received Favorably

CLEVELAND, O., October 5.—The Carola Co., of this city, manufacturer of the new Carola cabinet phonograph, has just issued a very attractive folder, which is included as part of the equipment of every Carola phonograph that leaves the factory. This folder tells the purchaser just how to operate the Carola, pointing out its distinctive features and giving general ideas as to the mechanical qualities of this instrument.

During the past few weeks the Carola Co. has been very busy taking care of the requirements of its jobbers and dealers and preparing to meet the requirements of the trade during the Fall and holiday season. The new Carola cabinet phonograph embodies distinctive acoustic principles which give it exceptional tonal volume, and this instrument, which is a perfect miniature reproduction of the standard cabinet phonograph, is being received enthusiastically by the dealers, as its moderate retail price can be utilized as the basis for an effective sales and publicity campaign.

PORTABLOOP WITH LORD & TAYLOR

The Eagle Radio Co., Newark, N. J., manufacturer of the Portabloop, a device which eliminates outdoor aerials for radio receiving apparatus, is having its product featured in the talking machine department of Lord & Taylor, New York City. Other large department stores in the metropolitan district are negotiating for sales rights of this particularly effective receiving apparatus which has a particular appeal to apartment houses where the possibilities of outdoor aerials are limited.

CONFERENCE HELD TO DISCUSS BROADCASTING PROBLEMS

Radio Interests and Publishing Organizations Meet in General Conference to Discuss Plans Whereby Equitable Arrangements Can Be Made for Payment of Royalties on Music

The conference called by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, to which the executives of the various radio broadcasting stations were invited and which was held for the purpose of giving consideration to the recognition of the rights of copyright proprietors and the public performance of their copyrighted works by radio broadcasting stations, was held in the directors' room of the offices of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers on Wednesday, September 20.

E. C. Mills, chairman of the Board of Governors of the Music Publishers' Protective Association, was appointed chairman of the meeting and the following associations and business firms interested in radio attended: American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, Authors' League of America, Music Industries Chamber of Commerce, Music Publishers' Protective Association, Music Publishers' Association of the United States, Department of Commerce, American Telephone and Telegraph Co., Radio Corp. of America, General Electric Co., Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co., G. Schirmer, Inc., and the National Radio Chamber of Commerce.

In opening the meeting Mr. Mills said that consideration was to be given to the public performance of copyrighted works within the meaning of the law. It was the contention of the Society that, first, the factors involved in the Association should receive recognition of their rights, as assured them in the copyright law of 1909; second, the collection of fees, the amounts due for public performances by radio broadcasting stations and from whom and how such fees should be collected were to be discussed.

Nathan Burkan, the attorney for the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, made a short talk in which he pointed out that the discussions were to be general and informal and in no wise binding.

In a further introduction Mr. Mills outlined some of the outstanding features of the present methods of collecting royalties as arranged for by the copyright law of 1909 and those which have been imposed on certain users of music in public performances for profit as arranged for by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers and which have been sustained in a number of decisions by Federal Courts as well as by the Supreme Court.

He stated that at the present time there were over 7,000,000 talking machines in the homes of the United States, all users of records, from the manufacture of which music publishers received royalty; that there were over 700,000 player-pianos in use in the United States and that the manufacturers of player rolls to be used with such player-pianos paid the publishers a royalty on the manufacture of such products.

He said it would be the contention of publishers that to the extent that radio entertainment replaced the use of the above instruments or affected the sale of the products for such instruments the publishers should be recompensed.

The question was brought up as to the use of talking machine records by radio broadcasting stations and whether or not they have the right to make use of such products when the royalty on the manufacture of such records had already been paid. This was answered by Mr. Mills by saying that the right to manufacture only was included in the royalty and not the right to publicly perform. It was here remarked "the law contemplates the copyright proprietor shall, among other exclusive rights, enjoy the exclusive and sole right of public performance, with the exception where permission is given by the copyright proprietor to another."

C. Townley, of the Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co., spoke in behalf of his organization which created the original broadcasting station as an experiment in Pittsburgh, Pa. He said that they wanted to comply with all laws and be most fair in their dealings with the publishers. At the present time there was no direct revenue from broadcasting stations; on the other hand, they were quite an expense. He remarked that in case an arrangement was made for the payment of fees to publishers the free talent now at the disposal of the broadcasting stations would, naturally, in a short space of time consider that they should be paid for their services.

He closed by saying that he hoped the question would be kept open for some time; that it was indeed unfortunate, so far as his organization was concerned, if not embarrassing, for it to be brought up at this time, particularly inasmuch as it was thought in some circles that the Government would finally operate the broadcasting stations and that the whole industry was undergoing constant change.

While it was not hoped to have any decision made at the meeting, there is little or no doubt that the larger factors in broadcasting activities have given consideration for some time to the necessity, at some period not far off, of paying royalties to publishers for the use of copyrighted works. The meeting resulted in a general understanding tending to recognize music as a big factor in radio programs and there seemed to be little or no question of the recognition of the rights of copyright proprietors. Points to be decided are when, how and where such royalties should be collected.

DEMAND FOR JENKINS' HITS

Business Continues to Break All Records, Says E. G. Ege, Manager

KANSAS CITY, Mo., September 30.—According to E. G. Ege, manager of the music publishing department of the J. W. Jenkins' Sons Music Co., business last month in his department was the best in the history of the company. He attributed the fact to the great popularity of their leader, "Lonesome Mama Blues." The orders on this one piece are running from two thousand to five thousand copies a day. While up North during the Summer Mr. Ege bought from the McClure Co., of St. Paul, their song, "If You Want to Linger Longer You Will Have to Love Me Now." This new song has taken a place in sales next to the leader and is proving a remarkable seller. "Stories" is also a good seller, and all the numbers in the catalog are doing well.

"BLOSSOM TIME" ON TOUR

The dress rehearsal of the special touring company of "Blossom Time," the operetta with Schubert's music, now in its second season at the Ambassador Theatre, took place late last month. The company, headed by Hollis Devanny, Laurel Nemeth, Horace Ruwe, Teddy Webb and Edna Temple, opened a transcontinental tour quite recently, in Norwalk, Conn. Engagements were played in Bridgeport, Worcester and other Eastern cities and early in October the company headed toward the Pacific Coast by way of Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, Winnipeg and the Northwest cities. Leo Feist, Inc., publish the music.

FORSTER BUYS NEW WALTZ

CHICAGO, ILL., September 14.—Forster, Music Publisher, Inc., has purchased from the Morrison Music Co., San Francisco, a new waltz song, entitled "Sweet Anabel," which, according to some very good judges, is destined to score in popular favor.

NOTED BANDMASTER WINS WAGER

Edwin Franko Goldman Writes Popular Song on a Bet—Sold to Publisher at Large Price

Several months ago one of the well-known publishers approached Edwin Franko Goldman, the famous bandmaster, proposing that he write a song of the popular variety, which might incidentally be used as a fox-trot. It was suggested that if Mr. Goldman could write a number that would strike the public just right he might realize a considerable sum of money on royalties. In view of the fact that many of the best-selling hits of the day had been founded on themes taken from the music of the masters, in other words, classics popularized, Mr. Goldman was asked to weave some well-known classical theme into his number.

The original proposition was made by the publishers to Goldman's manager. When the subject was broached to Mr. Goldman the bandmaster was indignant at the very idea that he should be asked to do such a thing. The manager felt convinced, however, that inasmuch as Mr. Goldman had written many spirited marches that have achieved success he could certainly write something in accordance with the publisher's idea and make good on it.

In order to get Goldman interested the manager made a wager with him that he could not write a song that would strike the popular fancy. Goldman took up the bet, the result being a corking fox-trot song called "In the Springtime," worked out on a strain from Mendelssohn's "Spring Song." The publishers were delighted, the song is making one of the biggest hits of the season and Mr. Goldman is debating whether a red or a green Rolls Royce would go best with his complexion or an all-gray one to match his hair.

Mr. Goldman's other big hit of this season is "The Chimes of Liberty" March, which is being played all over the country, having scored big at the Columbia Green concerts.

SINGING WITMARK NUMBERS

The Eight Famous Victor Artists, whose annual singing tour of the country is looked forward to with pleasure in hundreds of cities, have selected, for a portion of their program, three successes from the catalog of M. Witmark & Sons, Arthur A. Penn's ballad, "Sunrise and You"; Ernest R. Ball's latest song, "For the Sake of Auld Lang Syne," and that continuous, popular favorite, "Angel Child."

LEO FEIST CELEBRATES 25TH BUSINESS ANNIVERSARY

Prominent and Successful Music Publisher Tenders Elaborate Dinner at Home in Mt. Vernon to Business Associates and Friends to Mark That Important Occasion

In celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of his entrance into the music publishing field Leo Feist, founder and head of the prominent house of Leo Feist, Inc., New York, tendered an elaborate dinner to his business associates and friends at his home, Corcoran Manor, Mt. Vernon, N. Y., on Saturday evening, September 16. A number of the Feist branch managers from Eastern and Middle West cities came to New York to attend the function, and incidentally to extend their congratulations to their chief, who enjoys the sincere affection of everyone who has been associated with him during his business career.

The guests assembled at the Feist executive offices, 235 West Fortieth street, early in the evening and were taken to Mt. Vernon in automobiles. On arrival at Corcoran Manor they were received by Mrs. Leo Feist and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar F. Bitner, following which the guests were presented to Mr. Feist, who was seated on the Summer porch, surrounded by his sons, Nathan, Milton and Leonard Feist.

The dining hall and table were beautifully decorated with a profusion of flowers and at each plate there were found an elaborately engraved and embossed menu card, with the name of the individual guest appearing prominently thereon. As a souvenir of the occasion Mr. Feist presented each guest with a leather wallet bound in solid gold and bearing the guest's initials on a gold plate in the center.

Felix Feist, brother of the host, acted as toastmaster and first introduced Leo Feist himself, who appeared in fine spirits, and extended a formal welcome to his guests in a short and witty speech, in the course of which he credited the loyalty of his co-workers for much of his business success.

Among those who made short talks, in which the outstanding feature was the enthusiasm shown by the Feist organization and the spirit which has made the firm of Leo Feist, Inc., a great power in the music publishing field, were: Edgar F. Bitner, Francis Gilbert, Phil Kornheiser, A. S. Gilbert, Lee Orean Smith, J. A. Decatur, O. W. Vaughan, Felix Feist and others.

Souvenirs of the occasion were forwarded to the Feist branch managers who were unable to attend, these including H. C. Johnson, Harry Coe, Fred Dempsey, Harry Kessell, Billy White, Arthur Huskins, Dave Frank, Lew Mahan, Billy Lloyd and Fred Kemlo.

The guests were all returned to the city by automobile, each being taken to his home.

Those who attended were: Edgar F. Bitner, Phil Kornheiser, Cliff Odums, Theo. Morse, Lee Orean Smith, Meyer Jacobs, J. A. Decatur, Henry Heine, Lester Santly, Arthur Hoffman, Solly Cohen, Gordon V. Thompson, Fred Auger, Floyd Kinney, Bob Miller, Rocco Vocco, A. S. Gilbert, Francis Gilbert, William R. Teller, Vincent Walsh, O. W. Vaughan, B. McClelland, Victor E. Meyer, Felix F. Feist, Nathan Feist, Milton Feist, Leonard Feist, Dr. N. B. Saunders, Luther G. Battin, Al Kornheiser, Paul Whiteman, Howard Johnson, Jos. McCarthy, Harry Tierney, Frank Novak, Walter Dean, Sam Danks, Frank E. Barry, F. C. Bruns, Percy Wenrich, Dave Klein, Sam Meyer, Abe Metzger, Sol Feist, Mrs. Leo Feist and Mrs. E. F. Bitner.

PREDICTS MORE INTEREST IN MUSIC

Mischa Elman, Famous Violinist, Just Returned from Europe, Points to Growth of Interest in American Music During Recent Years

That the United States will soon experience a remarkable growth in the development of musical interest is the opinion of Mischa Elman, who has just returned from a two years' concert tour abroad.

"In my opinion," says Mr. Elman, "the day of American music is imminent. The American musician is fast obtaining the recognition that is his due and the compositions of American composers are being received with interest.

"Everywhere I went abroad I found intelligent understanding of American musical achievements. People referred accurately to our operatic singers and concert stars. And although this is in itself a small matter, it was indicative of attentions far more than casual."

"IN MAYTIME" A HIT IN ENGLAND

Jack Snyder, Inc., publisher of "In Maytime" (I Learned to Love) and "November Rose," the latter which is being hailed as another "April Showers," was the recipient recently of a letter from the Caesbrooke Dancing School, Caesbrooke Rd., Liverpool, England, in which it was stated that at the annual dance of that school, for which a £200 prize is given, "In Maytime" was rendered throughout the evening for all the contestants. The arrangement is two-step in various movements known as "Prof. Anderson's Waltz" and is now the vogue in London.

SOME GREAT BERLIN "HITS"

The song "Yankee Doodle Blues," recently taken over by Irving Berlin, Inc., from Harms, Inc., is proving one of the most active numbers in the catalog of that company. The whole Berlin organization, including the professional, band and orchestra, as well as the sales departments, are giving this publication attention.

The new Irving Berlin song, "Homesick," is showing up well and from present indications it will rival in popularity his former successes, "Some Sunny Day" and "All By Myself."

Among the new songs in the Berlin catalog which are showing much activity are "Don't Bring Me Posies" ("It's Shoesies I Need"), "Truly," "Night," "Send Back My Honeyman" and "While the Years Roll By."

The London String Quartet is one of the most celebrated musical organizations of the world. In Columbia releases for November we offer the first recordings made in America by this famous quartet. They have given us two beautifully rendered old English songs, "Cherry Ripe" and "Sally in our Alley," that are as fine as bits of old lace. It is impossible to produce more exquisite music than this. Both are on one record, A-3677.

535 FREE CONCERTS IN NEW YORK CITY THIS SUMMER

What the City Administration Has Done and Plans to Do Under Supervision of City Chamberlain Berolzheimer in the Matter of Developing a More General Public Appreciation of Music

Some idea of the amount of free music and good music that has been made available to the citizens of New York during the Summer months just passed is indicated by the fact that through the efforts of City Chamberlain Philip Berolzheimer, who has charge of the free concerts in the city, some 535 such concerts have been given in the public parks and on recreation piers during the Summer season.

Not only were there some scores of "contract concerts" given by paid organizations, but the bands representing the various city departments and playing without special compensation, such as the Police, Fire and Street Cleaning Department Bands, gave several concerts each week and through the efforts of the Chamberlain a large number of bands representing and made up of employes of various industrial organizations gave their services free to the public in a great many instances. In short, there were more free concerts in New York last season than ever before since the band concert idea was first instituted. Not only did the bands give their services, but many noted vocalists, artists of recognized standing, volunteered their services as soloists in connection with the various open-air concerts, and thus did their bit for the cause of better music appreciation.

It is not only in the matter of open-air concerts in the Summer that the present City Administration is lending its support to better music, for arrangements have been completed for a number of indoor concerts, recitals and operatic performances during the Winter season, all of them to be free to the public.

Music has received recognition from the city also in other directions, for it has not been so long ago that Vincent D'Indy and Richard Strauss, noted European composers, when arriving in America for a visit, were tendered a public reception at City Hall and given the freedom of the city with as much ceremony as were the same honors presented to General Pershing and Marshal Foch on their return from the battlefields.

Increasing attention is also being given to music in the various city schools, high schools and colleges, liberal appropriations being made for the purpose of musical instruction. The city is also giving serious consideration to the question of providing a site for the proposed Temple of Art and Music to be erected by popular subscription and to be made a center for the artistic life of the city as a memorial to those of her citizens who fell in the recent World War. The setting aside of a site by the city for the proposed memorial was authorized by the New York State Legislature last Spring.

In all the various concerts given under city auspices the programs have been distinctly well balanced, music of the highest class being interspersed by the lighter classics and on occasions with what are termed popular numbers of the better type. In short, the city has not only given the public music, but has also given it better music. Five hundred and thirty-five free public concerts during a single Summer represent a mighty fine record.

From a purely commercial standpoint there is no question but that this great quantity of free music under city auspices has had, and will have, a decided influence on the creation of a substantial demand for musical instruments of various sorts. If only for that reason alone the attitude of the city toward music should receive the hearty endorsement of the trade.

New Cohan Show Extends Its Boston Engagement—Witmark Publishing the Score

The new George M. Cohan show, "Little Nelly Kelly," which has had a successful run at the Tremont Theatre, Boston, Mass., has had its engagement indefinitely extended. One of the outstanding songs of the show is "Little Nelly Kelly." M. Witmark & Sons publish the music of this recognized success.

FEIST SONGS IN VAUDEVILLE

Among the songs that the professional department of Leo Feist, Inc., is placing in vaudeville acts are "Why Should I Cry Over You?," announced as another "I'm Sorry I Made You Cry" and "Coal Black Mammy," the English success. The songs and novelties also include: "You're Just Dreaming," "Toot, Toot, Tootsie," "Those Star Spangled Nights in Dixieland," "All for the Love of Mike," "Wake Up, Little Girl," "Hot Lips" and "Three o'Clock in the Morning."

"The Nightingale of Phonographs"

An embodiment of many remarkable new and exclusive features in the art of phonographic rendition.

While the new CAROLA weighs only seventeen pounds and occupies less than a square foot of floor space, it is not a toy but a full-fledged talking machine which delivers full rich tones the equal of machines costing many times the price.

CAROLA is built for service, both musically and mechanically.

CAROLA reproducer is full sized, carefully made on the most modern principles and is easily the equal of those found in many high-priced machines.

CAROLA amplifier embraces new and logical principles. The tone is carried from the reproducer through a special violin fibre horn to the convex lid of the phonograph, which acts as the amplifier and throws the sound outward and upward—the logical way for sound to travel.

CAROLA motor is sturdy, noiseless, self-lubricating and is the result of long experiment. It is absolutely guaranteed to withstand the most vigorous tests and we invite detailed examination by your mechanic.

Sells especially well with children's and physical culture records.

The new CAROLA plays all lateral cut disc records of all sizes perfectly.

PLAN HEAVY INCREASE IN VICTOR CO'S. CAPITAL STOCK BOOKLET ON "PERPETUAL INVENTORY"

Stockholders to Vote on October 23 on Proposal of Board of Directors That Capital Stock of Victor Talking Machine Co. Be Increased From $5,000,000 to $35,500,000

PHILADELPHIA, PA., October 4.—Announcement was made on Monday to the effect that the directors of the Victor Talking Machine Co. have decided upon an increase in the capital stock of the company from $5,000,000 to $35,500,000, of which $35,000,000 will be common and $500,000 preferred. A special meeting of the stockholders of the company has been called for October 23 to pass on the proposal of the directors.

At the Victor Co. headquarters it was stated that no advance announcement could be made at this time regarding the disposition of the additional capital stock, inasmuch as the matter of the stock issue rested upon the action of the stockholders at their meeting on the twenty-third, although it is naturally presumed that the stockholders will take favorable action.

The proposal for an increase in capital stock does not come as a complete surprise, inasmuch as, compared with other businesses, the company has been greatly under-capitalized, the physical properties of the company, such as the immense plant in Camden, being of far greater value than the entire present issue of capital stock.

Interesting and Helpful Volume Now Available Through Chamber of Commerce

Through its membership in the Chamber of Commerce of the United States the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce has now available for the use of its members a pamphlet on "Perpetual Inventory or Stores Control," which is designed to facilitate the maintenance of an even flow of production, the keeping of inventory at a feasible minimum, and the promotion of the official use of material. The pamphlet is the result of an exhaustive investigation and co-operation of many prominent business authorities, and contains forms that should prove of great value to members of the trade.

Among the sub-titles are the following: "Advantages of a Material Control System," "Extent and Range of a Stores Department," "Contents and Arrangement of the Store-room," "The Routine of Material Control," "Forms for Material Control" and "How Foremen and Workmen Can Assist."

The Trade Service Bureau has ordered a supply of these pamphlets, which will be distributed to members of the Association without charge, upon request.

E. W. McCullough, manager of the Fabricated Production Department of the Chamber of Commerce of the U. S., Mills Building, Washington, D. C., offers to discuss with any members of the music industry any phase or problem arising from a study of the pamphlet, or to receive any comments relative thereto.

DEMAND BEGETS LARGER QUARTERS

Increased business has necessitated the Mohawk Works of Art taking larger quarters in the same building, at 160 Fifth avenue, New York. This company specializes in the redecorating and refinishing, in exclusive designs, of talking machines for the dealer.

M. E. Estrin, head of the organization, reports that business conditions are good and a steadily increasing volume of orders is being received. This business is coming not only from pleased customers of the past, but many new dealers are reported to be sending their talking machines to the Mohawk Works of Art for special finishes. Mr. Estrin stated that his company is not only doing work for dealers situated in all sections of the country, but a number of foreign inquiries have been received as well. Although talking machines are being redecorated in a wide range of designs the most popular at the present time seems to be Chinese and Japanese lacquer work.

There is a world of truth in such old platitudes as "honesty is the best policy."

HUMAN NATURE

A study and understanding of human nature is necessary to be successful in business. Human nature cannot be disregarded and yet it often pays to disregard its tendencies. In other words, those who make the greatest success do not usually follow the crowd. They analyze human nature, make allowances for it, but with the courage of their convictions at times act contrary to it with success.

It was an exhibition of human nature when during a run on a bank a depositor did not take her money when she found she could get it.

Human nature in the Victor business causes Victor dealers to demand Victrolas when they cannot get them and to refuse to take them when available. It is human nature for us to be extremists.

Last month in our full page announcement headed "The Danger Ahead and How to Meet It" we advised the placing of advance orders and preparation against a shortage of Victrolas. Human nature has caused some dealers to mark time and to disregard this warning. Others, however, have placed advance orders—believing in the sincerity of our recommendations—and in our judgment they are going to "cash in" accordingly.

On October 1st we shipped against advance orders a quantity of Victrolas greater in value than on any day previous in the 20 years history of our business.

We will do our best to take care of all our dealers, but cannot disregard advance orders for Victrolas.

Could we be fairer than to solicit advance orders for October, November and December delivery with the privilege of adjustment, according to current needs? Can we prepare for our dealers' requirements safely without their co-operation in this respect?

The shortage is already here on some style Victrolas. Beware of extravagant promises. Good intentions are not as dependable as stock on hand in the dealer's store.

Now is the time to think it over, Mr. Victor Dealer, and to act.

MONTHLY CENSUS OF MUSIC TRADE OUTPUT SUGGESTED

Federal Census Bureau to Ask Opinion of Musical Instrument Manufacturers Regarding Contemplated Plan for Compiling Monthly Census of Production

(Special to The World)

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 10.—A monthly census of the production of pianos and talking machines is under contemplation in the Census Bureau, and manufacturers of those articles will be asked in the near future to give their ideas upon the advisability of undertaking such work. A questionnaire is now being drafted which will be sent out within a few days in which the manufacturers will be asked whether they favor the collection of monthly production figures; whether the records of manufacturers are in such form that it is possible for them to furnish such data without much cost or inconvenience, and whether it is believed that a monthly publication of such statistics would be of value to those engaged in the industry. Whether the work will be undertaken by the Census Bureau at this time depends entirely upon the sentiment expressed by the manufacturers involved. The taking of such figures by the Director of the Census was authorized under a blanket act passed by Congress about a year ago to enable the Secretary of Commerce to make such inquiry into production, stocks, distribution, etc., of various commodities as he deemed necessary.

The Bureau is now taking figures on the monthly production of shoes and on stocks of hides, skins and leather, also upon the amount of sugar refined, and about a dozen other commodities are now under consideration. It is believed in the department that the taking of the figures of production of pianos and talking machines will be of value to those engaged in the industry, but the work will not be undertaken unless the sentiment is practically unanimous in favor of it.

VICTOR PLANT WORKING OVERTIME

Various Departments of Big Camden Factory Operating Nights to Increase Output

CAMDEN, N. J., October 5.—The factory of the Victor Co. is one of the genuine hives of industry in the Philadelphia district, for the reason that practically all departments of the factory are working overtime at present in an effort to meet the demands of the distributing factors of the industry as completely as possible.

The production schedules made out by the company from August until January first call for the working of the factory to capacity, being based upon requisitions from the trade already in hand. The volume of Fall trade, however, has apparently been underestimated even by the optimistic and an overtime schedule was therefore put into force to reduce any possible shortage of Victor products to as low a point as possible.

Even in the face of the efforts of the Victor Co. to maintain production at a maximum, reports indicate that retailers who have not anticipated their requirements with sufficient generosity will have cause to regret that action before the end of the year rolls around.

Please note that while Consoles 601, 602, 603, 608 and 610 are regularly fitted to take care of Victrola VI, these same cabinets can be fitted to take care of Victrola IV, and, when taking the reduction in price of Consoles into consideration, it enables the dealer to sell an up-to-the-minute standard outfit at a very moderate price.

Long Consoles are covered by basic patents and infringements will be prosecuted.

Long Consoles are distinctive in design and have the divided top.

Long Cabinets are regarded by the trade as the Standard of Quality.

Deliveries can be made at once.

Made in dark red mahogany only.

Predictions of Improvement Come True—Dealers Placing Orders For Fall and Winter—Otto Grau Co. to Handle Vocalion Line

CINCINNATI, O., October 6.—Industrial, financial and trade conditions can be described with no more accuracy by anyone here than by A. Clifford Shinkle, president of the Central Trust Co., who expresses the belief that local dealers in all lines of trade are almost certain to have an excellent season ahead of them. Industrial conditions, Mr. Shinkle says, are becoming settled more completely each day and there is little likelihood of trouble in the near future. There is not likely to be, he thinks, a coal shortage of sufficient stringency to hamper manufacture or trade.

This prediction of good business is already being borne out in the talking machine trade. Dealers report a good business both in records and machines and jobbers note the fact that retailers are stocking up in anticipation of fairly heavy Fall and Winter demands.

A. H. Bates, president of the Ohio Talking Machine Co., said that business is very good. "Our trade throughout our territory," he said, "is excellent. Dealers are demanding shipments of substantial size, both of records and machines. There is an especially lively demand for the new models of flat-topped consoles now ready for the market. We look for a splendid business throughout the Fall and Winter."

F. J. Spengler, of Spengler's Art & Gift Shop, Lexington, Ky., has set up a very good sales record for the Summer months. During August Mr. Spengler sold Grafonolas at the rate of one each day. One of these Grafonolas was a "D-2" and the balance were all cabinet models, which proves that business is to be secured if a man will go after it. Mr. Maddox, manager of the Pioneer Drug Co., of Montpelier, Ind., has just returned from a vacation at Tippecanoe Lake, Ind. He spent most of his time fishing.

Mr. Oelman, head of the Cincinnati branch of the New Edison Co., also reports good business done during September, and excellent prospects for the months just ahead. "Our new models," said Mr. Oelman, "especially new console types, are in demand and, we feel sure, will continue to go well."

The Otto Grau Co., in connection with a deal whereby that company acquires for regular sale the entire stock here of the Aeolian Co., which is closing its store and turning over its interests to Otto Grau, will sell the present stock of Vocalion talking machines and will restock and continue with the Vocalion line, in connection with Victor and Brunswick goods. Trade in talking machines and records at the Otto Grau Co., according to J. F. Van Court, has been very good, and the prospects are fine for an excellent Winter.

At a recent meeting of the Terre Haute, Ind., Ad Club the program committee brought into the meeting several housewives who were asked to take papers for the past month and criticize ads and campaigns that had been running during the past thirty days.

Prominent among the several ads submitted by the ladies was the $1-down advertising and the regular record advertising of the Columbia Graphophone Co. The women were greatly impressed with the excellence of the copy, its strong appeal and the fact that Columbia record advertising is localized for each individual town.

While there is nothing of outstanding interest in the way of personalities in the Cincinnati district virtually all stores—Baldwin Victrola Shop, H. & S. Pogue Co., Steinway, Brunswick Salesroom, Widener's Grafonola Shop, Columbia branch, and others—report the same good business and same excellent outlook.

At a meeting held at Akron, O., September 26 and 27, A. B. Smith, of Akron, was elected to be president of the Ohio Music Merchants' Association. He succeeds Fred N. Goosman, of Toledo. Other officers elected were: Vice-president, Charles Yahrling, Youngstown; secretary, Rex Hyre, Cleveland, and treasurer, William V. Crowe, Columbus. Cincinnati was chosen as next year's meeting place.

Chas. Long, of Winchester, Ky., with his wife and son, visited the Cincinnati branch on August 14 and on that same date W. E. Mattingly and wife, of the Ideal Furniture Co., Hazard, Ky., were visitors. While here Mr. Mattingly selected new hearing rooms, record racks and display cases for the Grafonola department of his new store in Hazard.

Elmo Smith, of the Smith, Yager & Falk Co., Decatur, Ind., was married on August 7, and immediately left for a honeymoon via auto to Yellowstone Park.

A NEW UNICO REPRESENTATIVE

Walter K. Badger to Represent Unit Construction Co. in New York and New England

Rayburn Clark Smith, president of the Unit Construction Co., Philadelphia, Pa., manufacturer of the well-known "Unico" equipment for talking machine warerooms, has announced the appointment of Walter K. Badger in charge of New York and New England districts. Mr. Badger has covered the New England territory for quite some time and is well and favorably known throughout this field. He will make his headquarters at the New York office of the company, 299 Madison avenue.

VICTOR CO. INAUGURATES GREATEST RECORD EXCHANGE

Provides for Exchange on Even Basis of 1,040 Numbers, Nearly 20 Per Cent of Entire Catalog, at a Cost to the Company of $2,000,000—Total Exchange Cost $3,500,000 for Year

CAMDEN, N. J., October 5.—The Victor Talking Machine Co. has just announced to its dealers a new record exchange proposition that is heralded as the most comprehensive exchange plan ever put in force in the industry. The exchange is to operate on an even basis and cover the list of 1,040 records, or approximately 20 per cent of the present Victor record catalog.

A significant feature of the exchange is that the estimated cost to the Victor Co. will approximate $2,000,000, bringing the total cost of the record exchange propositions carried out by this company during the current year to a figure estimated at close to $3,500,000. This is the sort of service to the retailer that will enable him to keep his stocks in most salable shape and should meet with a full measure of appreciation.

In announcing the list of 1,040 records subject to exchange the Victor Co. states that it is made up of selections which, due to lapse of time and changing market conditions, there is no urgent need to continue in the catalog.

The significance of the move lies in the fact that it will enable retailers to release very substantial sums of money for the purchase of new Victor instruments and records which will be so urgently needed during the coming months. Through the operation of the exchange the dealer's shelves will be cleared of many numbers, both in the popular Red Seal classes that do not prove quite so salable as some other selections, and it will thus be possible to have stocks in perfect shape for the holiday trade.

Of particular interest, too, is the fact that the exchange is to be operated on an even basis —that is, full credit will be allowed for each record returned in each separate class against which credit memorandas will be issued to cover fresh purchases by the dealer.

For several years during and immediately following the war, when production was considerably curtailed, no exchanges were arranged for the reason that they would have reduced stocks already limited without opening the way for filling the gaps. When production at the Victor factory again assumed normal proportions, however, the company officials immediately took steps to clean up record stocks through exchanges, which, during the current year alone, have represented an expenditure on the part of the company of close to $3,500,000, for the records returned have no market value whatever.

The expenditure referred to means that the company has actually taken that sum of money from profits realized in other years, a fact that is to be appreciated by those who have profited, and will profit, by the service.

Complete details regarding the exchange, including the list of cutout records and the method of their handling, were forwarded to all Victor dealers this week.

VALUE OF MUSIC MEMORY CONTESTS

Texas Newspapers Testify to the Value of Music Memory Contests in Educating Children to a Greater Love for Good Music

Important new evidence as to the educational value of the Music Memory Contest and its popularity with the school authorities has just come to the National Bureau for the Advancement of Music through clippings from a number of Texas papers and a letter from the University of Texas stating that the contest had been adopted as a branch of the activities of the State Interscholastic League.

This means that through this contest it has been possible to introduce music as one of the fields in which thousands of children in the schools of hundreds of Texas cities will compete in the annual district and county meets of the league, covering practically the entire State, and winding up with the finals at the University of Texas in Austin. Heretofore the league's contests have been held in athletics and various school subjects, but from now on music is to be given an equal place with the other activities.

Commenting on the innovation the Fort Worth Record says, "In incorporating this contest in the league on the same rating as other contests, music is being given an equal place with other subjects by the University of Texas, it being a foregone conclusion that greater interest in the subject will result. The very announcement of this plan lays bare the inadequate equipment available throughout the schools of the State for putting over such a contest."

The introduction of the Music Memory Contest as a State event in Texas was due largely to the efforts of Miss Henrietta Pyle, music supervisor in Wichita Falls, who conducted an experimental contest in a number of neighboring towns and cities with a view to determining the feasibility of the plan as part of the League's activities. Miss Pyle had the constant cooperation of the Bureau for the Advancement of Music in this work, both in the contest in her own schools and in the larger experimental contest.

Roy Bedichek, head of the Interscholastic League at the State University, refers to "literally thousands of Music Memory Contests" to be held during the year in the individual schools of his State. This indicates that at least 200 or 300 cities will have organized the contests on a city-wide scale.

C. W. Lindsay, Ltd., Montreal, has sold to Station CKAC (La Presse Publishing Co.) a Sonora phonograph which will be used for radio purposes.

ACHIEVING HUNDRED PER CENT DEALER CO-OPERATION

Campaign Inaugurated by Sherman, Clay & Co., of San Francisco, of Stimulating the Work of Dealers in the Promotion of Victor Retailing Merits Study and Commendation

Under the heading "One Hundred Per Cent Dealer Co-operation Achieved" there appeared in a recent issue of Western Advertising a very interesting article regarding Sherman, Clay & Co.'s co-operation with their Victor retailers. This article, which was written by Charles St. John, read as follows:

"Occasionally a manufacturer or distributor gets up a portfolio of advertisements and lays them before his retailers with a fine flourish.

"There!" he says. "Pick out what you want of 'em and I'll send the mats to you. All you have to do is run 'em and pay for the space in your local newspapers."

"Fine!" says the retailer, momentarily suffused with an equal enthusiasm. "Send me numbers O-1022 to P-4077, inclusive, and I'll shoot."

"Then, in the course of weeks, or maybe months, the mats arrive at the retailer's establishment, including (although it may be March) the stuff the retailer had ordered the previous September to accelerate his Christmas rush.

"What shall I do with this box, boss?" asks the retailer's assistant.

"Times are slow—I guess I won't advertise just now—stack the stuff behind the counter," answers the retailer, between transactions with his customers.

"And there they lie.

"There they lie until another portfolio arrives, another order for mats is consummated and dispatched, another fatal delay occurs (hours or months, it's equally fatal to the would-be advertiser's fine glow of temporary enthusiasm)—and another lot of advertising material reaches the retailer to be dumped and shoveled, ultimately, into the air-tight stove.

"Sherman, Clay & Co. have altered this picture of the usual fate of a dealer service considerably.

"Hanging on the wall of the office of Neill C. Wilson, advertising manager of the music house at its San Francisco headquarters, is a map of five or six Western States plugged full of colored pins.

"From Alaska to San Diego, from the fringe of coast cities clear to Montana, are pins denoting dealers in Victrolas and Victor records who, regularly, week in and week out, actually use a dealer service inaugurated by Sherman, Clay & Co. for their wholesale Victor department's customers.

Every Advertisement Used

"Every month a batch of mats or electros goes forward to the cities that are indicated on the map and every one of the advertisements is used. If there are two newspapers to the city usually every ad is used in both.

"There are two things that are equally certain in Sherman, Clay & Co.'s consciousness: that the sun will rise every morning for the next twelve months at least and that these little Victor ads will appear in the selected cities.

"Moreover, the space is paid for by the dealers, not by the distributors; and they are even willing and glad to pay for the mats also—a clean contribution, on their part, to the cause of good advertising and what Sherman, Clay & Co. can accomplish with it.

"In fact, this big Western music house has given a brand new twist to the theory of a dealer advertising service—has eliminated every particle of waste, lost time and lost enthusiasm—has taken all the guesswork out of it and reduced it to a month-to-month certainty.

"Briefly, Sherman, Clay & Co. have devised a three-cornered agreement between the dealer, the dealer's newspaper and themselves whereby Mr. Wilson, originator of the system, is empowered to send fifty-two advertisements to the newspaper direct, at the rate of one each week.

A Three-cornered Agreement

"The day of the week for such insertions is named in the tripartite agreement. Sherman, Clay & Co. pay the cost of good art work, good composition and good sales copy. The dealer pays for the mats at somewhat less than the market rate and for the newspaper space.

"Started last October the scheme was a tentative one for the first six months. The first agreements ran for twenty-six weeks only. Would the agreements be renewed?

"Were the agreements renewed? Oh, boy, were they!

"Nearly everybody came tumbling back for more. Mr. Wilson explains the success of his method as follows:

"The Sherman, Clay & Co. Victrola advertising service was organized to serve the dealer. We deal with his newspaper direct, conserving his interest, seeking good position, getting the mats out on time, trying to make the advertisements correspond to his stock—in other words, be his advertising agent.

"There is no profit in this for us, except in the sale of more Victor goods at wholesale. It means an enormous amount of extra detail. The advertising department of Sherman, Clay & Co. used to serve ten stores. Now it serves four to five times that number.

"But we are glad to do this because it takes all the guesswork out of dealer co-operation in the matter of advertising.

"And we have the satisfaction of knowing that every mat we send out is certain of being published. I dare say a good many dealer advertising services are scarcely 10 per cent efficient. This thing is a positive 100 per cent.

"I don't believe, however, that our Victor dealers would accept our services so splendidly if the Victor product were not so well known, its retail representation of such a uniformly high class and the subject itself so adaptable under the copywriter's hands. After all, music is a wonderful material for an advertising man to work with. Even the commercial artists get a real enthusiasm up over the subject, and that, I maintain, is "going some"!"

Radio and phonograph combined in the LYRADION—your customers will prefer this line

Lyradion Italian Renaissance

Combination radio and phonograph. A beautiful hand-carved cabinet in polychrome finish for large homes and clubs. Wired for Westinghouse "set" or complete with Lyradion 5 stage non-regenerative set. All instruments and batteries completely housed.

Radio enthusiasts are expressing their preference for the Lyradion line of attractively housed radio sets in no uncertain terms. While the lady of the house has tolerated the old method of placing batteries and sets on the library table and floors as a matter of necessity in the past, she is now demanding the attractive Lyradion combination radio and phonograph completely housing instruments and batteries and offering dual and perpetual entertainment features. Besides these attractive cabinets harmonize with the furnishings of the modest as well as the most luxurious home surroundings.

The wonderful Seabrook amplifying horn used on all models is responsible for the remarkable reproducing qualities of Lyradion instruments. This horn employs entirely new principles of sound reproduction which are fully protected by basic U. S. patents.

Lyradion cabinets can be furnished wired complete for Westinghouse two-stage R. C. sets or with Lyradion five-stage non-regenerative receiving sets.

Territory is being rapidly allotted—dealers or jobbers should write or wire immediately for proposition.

Trade Active—Dales Expansion Shows Trend—Smith's Election Pleases—News of the Month

AKRON, O., October 6.—With the advent of October came the predicted revival in the talking machine industry and most dealers seen by The World expressed satisfaction with trade conditions the past month. The consensus of opinion here is that the Fall season will be one of the best in recent years.

Dales Co. to Have Large Department

The talking machine department of the George S. Dales Co. will be enlarged to twice its present size within the next two months, when improvements to the third floor of the building, which recently was acquired by this firm, have been completed, according to Mr. Savage, manager of the talking machine department. "We intend to devote the entire second floor of the store to the sale and display of talking machines," he said. It is planned to devote the third floor to piano sales and displays and it will be so arranged that talking machine concerts may be given and informal dances held under the supervision of the store officials.

Pleased With Smith's Election

Akron music dealers are well pleased with the election last week of A. B. Smith, head of the A. B. Smith Piano Co., of this city, as president of the Ohio Music Merchants' Association, at the Toledo convention. It is possible now that a local association will be formed, as Mr. Smith intends to stimulate interest in such an organization, which has been inactive for quite some time.

Features Galli-Curci Window

Probably one of the most attractive window displays offered by a local music firm was that of the Windsor-Poling Co. recently. Exploiting the latest Victor record by Galli-Curci, "My Old Kentucky Home," the window presented an old log cabin, along the shores of the Mississippi, and in the background was a river where steamboats moved continuously. An old nigger mammy danced on the levee, giving the picture the needed Southern atmosphere.

Secures Many Prospects at Fair

The George S. Dales Music Co., which had five booths at the annual Summit County Fair last month, recorded some 2,000 names of Akron and nearby town people who were interested in talking machines or pianos. This firm for two weeks has had a crew of five solicitors calling on these prospects and according to officials of the company many sales have resulted from the exhibit.

Larger Quarters for Van Scoyoc

The F. W. Van Scoyoc Co., which moved recently from Exchange street to South Main street, will enlarge its talking machine section, according to announcement this week by Mr. Van Scoyoc. Two floors are now available for display and sale of talking machines.

M. O'Neil Boosts Reducing Records

"Get Thin to Music" is the slogan of the talking machine section of the store of the M. O'Neil Co. This department, in charge of Miss Elsie Baer, is doing an immense business in reducing records owing to classes being formed.

APPOINTS NEW SONORA DEALERS

C. L. Marshall Co. Makes Excellent Business Report—New Sonora Accounts in Ohio

DETROIT, MICH., October 4.—The C. L. Marshall Co., of this city, Michigan and Ohio distributor for the Sonora phonographs, announced recently that arrangements had been completed whereby Wm. Taylor Son & Co., of Cleveland, became Sonora dealers. This company have one of the best-known retail establishments in Cleveland and they are planning to feature the Sonora product in a high-class and effective way. The entire line will be presented, including the De Luxe period models.

In a recent chat with The World Mr. Marshall stated that September was an exceptionally fine month not only in greatly increased orders, but because of the addition of a number of new accounts. Among the new Sonora dealers are the Anderson Piano Co., Hamilton, O.; Mintz Piano Co., Cleveland, O.; Witt Music Co., Lorain, O.; Willoughby Music Co., Willoughby, O., and the Goldgleid Furniture Co., Detroit, Mich. All of the Sonora dealers in this territory are enthusiastic over the advertising campaign outlined by the Sonora Phonograph Co. for September, October, November and December, and this campaign has been an important factor in opening new accounts in this territory.

Frank J. Coupe, vice-president and sales manager of the Sonora Phonograph Co., together with H. J. O'Connor, of his staff, visited Detroit recently en route to the East from the Saginaw factories. Mr. Coupe stated that the Sonora plant was operating to full capacity at that time in order to take care of the demands of the jobbers and dealers.

The Household Furniture Co., Penn avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa., has been featuring Vitanola phonographs in some unusually attractive displays.

WISCONSIN SONORA DEALERS MEET

Gather in Milwaukee to Attend Sales Conference Which Is Addressed by Geo. E. Brightson, President of Sonora Phonograph Co.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., October 10.—George E. Brightson, president of the Sonora Phonograph Corp., New York City, addressed a special meeting of Wisconsin and upper Michigan Sonora dealers called by S. R. Christopherson, of the Yahr & Lange Co., State distributor, at the Milwaukee Athletic Club, Thursday night, October 5. Seventy-five dealers attended the meeting, including prominent distributors from Racine, Green Bay, Eau Claire, Watertown and points in Michigan. George Campbell, State representative, also returned to the city from a business tour of Michigan for the meeting. President Brightson was returning to New York City from a convention of Pacific Coast Sonora dealers and was requested to stop off in Milwaukee by Mr. Christopherson. The meeting was arranged at the Milwaukee Athletic Club and Mrs. Fred E. Yahr, wife of Fred Yahr, president of the company, took charge of the meeting.

The address of the evening was given by Mr. Brightson, who outlined the history of the Sonora Phonograph Co., telling in detail of the early triumphs of the company and its recent success in the Western part of the country. The enthusiasm and alert business qualities of Wisconsin dealers were cited by Mr. Brightson as foundations for the unparalleled increase of new business in this territory.

Others who addressed the meeting were W. F. Trubenbrodt, Monroe, Wis., and J. J. Slik, Watertown, Wis. Miss Marion Yahr, daughter of President Fred E. Yahr, danced at the dinner. Mr. Christopherson announced at the meeting that another gathering of the Wisconsin and Michigan dealers would be called during the last week in October to organize a Wisconsin Sonora Dealers' Association. It is planned to hold regular meetings of the new organization to be featured by educational sales talks, sales plans and other sales promotion projects. A foundation will be laid at the next meeting, according to Mr. Christopherson.

NEW STEGER PRICE LIST

CHICAGO, ILL., October 7.—The Steger & Sons Piano Mfg. Co., of this city, manufacturer of Steger phonographs, announced this week a change in the prices of six models. These new prices as compared with the old ones are as follows: Style 500, formerly listed at $65, is now $50; style 503, formerly listed at $165, is now $135; style 505, formerly listed at $200, is now $165; style 506, formerly listed at $250, is now $200; style 509, formerly listed at $225, is now $175, and style 510, formerly listed at $250, is now $200. There is no change in the prices of styles 501, 502 and 504, which are listed respectively at $100, $125 and $150.

RECENT UNICO INSTALLATIONS

Prominent Concerns Throughout the Country Manifest Faith in the Industry by Installing Latest Equipments of Unit Construction Co.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., October 11.—That the talking machine retailers are confident of good business ahead is well evidenced through the large number of retailers who have placed substantial orders for wareroom equipment with the Unit Construction Co., of this city, manufacturer of the well-known Unico line of equipment. An added interesting fact to be brought out from this progressive movement is that it is not confined to any one section or locality. Dealers in every section of the country and also from England are planning additional equipment to handle more efficiently the better business which is already noticeable.

Among recent installations, either completed or in the course of construction, are the following: Frederickson-Kroh Co., Oklahoma City, Okla.; Samuel J. Kemp, South Manchester, Conn.; Ludwig Baumann Co., New York City; Hangens Music House, Reading Pa.; F. M. Leslie, Urbana, Ill.; Automatic Repeating Phonograph Sales Co., Binghamton, N. NEW RECORD BY COLIN O'MORE

Popular Irish Tenor Sings "Three o'Clock in the Morning" for the Vocalion

The Aeolian Co. has just offered a new Vocalion record of unusual interest by Colin O'More, the popular Irish tenor, who sings the reigning waltz hit, "Three o'Clock in the Morning," as one feature, and "For the Sake of Auld Lang Syne" for the reverse side of the record. The new number has already aroused much interest.

"DURRO" QUALITY SPIRIT VARNISH

Imported by Buegeleisen & Jacobson, New York —Has Won Strong Commendation—Automat
Assortment Popular With Live Dealers

Buegeleisen & Jacobson, New York City, importers and wholesalers of musical merchandise, report that they have received a shipment of exceptionally high-grade "Durro" quality spirit varnish and oil varnish in assorted colors, such as chestnut, red, Nile green, golden brown, yellow, amber and dark brown. This varnish is popular with talking machine and musical merchandise dealers for use in retouching scratched or marred surfaces.

C. E. Andrews, general manager of the company, reports that it has been impossible to get this quality varnish made with the best German dyes since before the war. He reports that a great demand for it has been evidenced and that many back orders were on file until this shipment arrived.

"Its qualities are exceptionally good," stated Mr. Andrews, "and I believe that every music store in the country will find it valuable to have a bottle or a can on hand, for many times an instrument will get scratched while in stock or on display and this can easily be remedied by touching it up with this varnish."

It is reported that two factories are now at work on the No. 11 Automat assortment showcase, which is patented and produced by this company. Buegeleisen & Jacobson report that a very large number of these display cases have been sold throughout the country and that many dealers have written in that they have found it very valuable.

It is described as a complete little store in itself, carrying strings and accessories for different instruments, taking up very little room and beautifully finished in mahogany with enameled plates showing the name of the item in each compartment and the retail price of same. It is also reported that many dealers who do not carry a line of musical instruments are using this case and find that patrons coming in for records and seeing it displayed often purchase some of the articles.

Keep your record stock up to date.

RECORD-BREAKING CROWDS VIEW DISPLAYS AT EXHIBITION

Musical Competitions More Successful Than at Any Other Fair—Musical Merchandise Sales Co. Introduces New Brunswick Model and Secures Encore Repeater Agency—The News

TORONTO, ONT., October 7.—After breaking all attendance records the forty-fourth annual Canadian National Exhibition recently closed its gates. In the thirteen days of the Fair this year 1,372,500 paid admissions, against 1,242,000 last year, an increase of 130,500. The musical competitions, vocal and instrumental, held under the direction of the Bureau for the Advancement of Music, were the most successful of any which have been held at the Fair, as there were 176 contestants, compared with 72 in 1921.

The Musical Merchandise Sales Co., Canadian Brunswick distributor, has introduced to the Canadian market the new York Brunswick console, which is being well received.

The agency of the Encore repeater has been taken on by Musical Merchandise Sales Co. The Encore is all metal, retailing in Canada at $1.50. The efficient operation of this record repeater is bound to result in a favorable reception by Canadian talking machine owners.

One of the interested trade visitors to the recent Canadian National Exhibition was Otto Heineman, head of the General Phonograph Corp., New York, whose Canadian factory is at Kitchener, Ont. He expressed himself as greatly delighted with the enormous proportions of the Exhibition and the phonograph and supply displays. Mr. Heineman told The World correspondent that he believed there was good business in store for the talking machine trade this Fall.

The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., this city, where the Brunswick phonographs are made for the Canadian trade, has just completed the construction and delivery of a superb period model Brunswick phonograph for one of the palatial homes in Vancouver. This instrument was sold through the Kent Piano Co., of that city. Complete details of design and carving were forwarded to the Brunswick factory.

To market Sonora phonographs more aggressively and provide the retailers with selling helps and in a general way co-operate with them more closely than ever before is the purpose of Sonora Phonographs, Ltd., which has just been organized with a Dominion charter. The new firm, of which I. Montagnes is general manager, will continue the business of wholesaling Sonora phonographs in Canada established by the firm of I. Montagnes & Co. in 1915.

E. D. Coots, who has already spent several weeks in Canada visiting Sonora dealers, is sales manager of the new concern and he is putting in operation a policy of dealers' helps that has already worked successfully in the interests of Sonora dealers in the United States. Following a visit of some weeks in Canada Mr. Coots returned to New York for Mrs. Coots, making the return journey by motor car.

Sonora Phonographs, Ltd., is located at 172 John street, to which premises I. Montagnes has removed from the Ryrie Building, the new location being much better adapted to the needs of a wholesale trade. The new warerooms, which until recently were occupied as a distributing warehouse by the General Phonograph Corp., Ltd., are on the ground floor with excellent shipping facilities and storage warehouse.

The Reverend Kenneth J. Beaton, of the Canadian Methodist Mission in China, has just purchased a model 207 Brunswick phonograph from the Stanley Piano Co., of this city, for use at his post at Chang-tu, Province of Sz-Chuan, about 1,800 miles inland from Shanghai. This instrument has been specially packed for transportation under the peculiar conditions in China, where the last 300 miles of the journey must be made on foot, and the instrument will be carried by several coolies. It will cost the Reverend Beaton just $30 to have this instrument carried these 300 miles by manpower.

Eddie Cantor, Columbia artist, recently appeared in person at the Royal Alexandra Theatre here and made a decided hit with the large audiences present at each performance.

The World correspondent understands that C. Brandes, Ltd., manufacturer of Brandes headsets, has established a Canadian factory in Toronto.

What proved to be a very novel and interesting contest was held during the recent Canadian National Exhibition at the exhibit staged by the Musical Merchandise Sales, Ltd., booth.

The daily papers announced that a new model "York console" Brunswick phonograph, retailing at $200, would be given to the person who could come nearest to specifying the distance covered by the needle when playing a double-sided 12-inch Brunswick record. It is interesting to note that the distance covered by the needle in traveling over the record, as computed by an engineer, measured 1,429 7/10 feet. The winner in the guessing contest, G. T. Thompson, estimated it at 1,430 feet. Guesses ranged from five feet to 13,000 feet.

The following well-known artists are booked to visit Toronto during the coming Fall and Winter season: Jeanne Gordon, Marie Novello, Mischa Elman, Martinelli, Boston Symphony Orchestra with Frieda Hempel, Emma Calve, Josef Hofmann, Rachmaninoff, New York Symphony Orchestra, Seidel, Geraldine Farrar, Pablo Casals and the London String Quartet.

FALL BUSINESS MAKING RAPID STRIDES IN MONTREAL

New Brunswick and Edison Models Arouse Interest of Dealers and Public—Window Display of Second-hand Machines Results in Many Sales—Simplex Employees on Outing

MONTREAL, QUE., October 7.—Fall business is now in full swing. One representative dealer stated that he had had his full share of business for the past month, the majority of it developing from sales made to September brides. "I had to go out personally and create the desire for ownership, then make the sale," he pointed out. "I was amply rewarded, as in every case I sold, in addition to the machine, a large library of records." The greater proportion of sales covered console models of the period type.

Layton Bros., Ltd., state that the new York console Brunswick model has created quite a favorable impression and this applies also to the new baby Edison console, which has caught the public fancy and made a decided hit.

When it comes to honest-to-goodness explicit window selling efforts we take our hats off to William Lee, Ltd. This firm recently had a window display of second-hand machines of a certain make. On each machine was displayed the original figure for which the instrument sold with the present-day price, together with the type or design, length of time it had been in use, mentioning the fact that each and every instrument was guaranteed for a certain time.

The employees of the Simplex Electric Phonograph Motor Co., Ltd., this city, recently enjoyed a day's outing at Belle-Plage (Lake of the Two Mountains), where a program of aquatic events took place. Over fifty prizes were distributed to the successful winners, including a number of gold medals. The day's enjoyment concluded in the evening with a bonnet hop and dance, a fete de nuit and a splendid display of fireworks. Elmer Farmer, president of the Simplex Co., and D. Farmer, vice-president, were largely responsible for the successful frolic.

Starr phonographs and Gennett records were exhibited at the St. John, N. B., fair by the local branch of Starr Phonograph Co. of Canada, Ltd. The display created considerable interest and attention.

The show windows of a number of leading retailers on St. Catherine street, West, during the past month contained displays of Gold Seal record repeaters.

Harry Farmer, of the Simplex Electric Phonograph Motor Co., Montreal, Can., is receiving the congratulations of his many friends in the trade upon his recent marriage to Miss Helen Mildred Chrysler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pembroke Arthur Chrysler, of Chicago, Ill. The wedding took place recently in St. Mark's Church, Chicago, and the honeymoon was spent in New York, Atlantic City and other points in the immediate vicinity. They will reside in Montreal. The happy couple were the recipients of numerous handsome gifts attesting their popularity and large circle of friends.

Goodwins, Ltd., are featuring, as far as their space will permit, a duplication of the Brunswick phonograph exhibit at the Canadian National Exhibition, which terminated so successfully recently, and in addition the concern is featuring the new York model in some excellent advertising.

A general meeting of the Canadian Authors' Association will be held soon to consider and, if thought advisable, to adopt certain amendments to the constitution, notably those providing for the extension of the membership to include musical composers and producers of graphic art.

C. W. Lindsay, Ltd., this week had on display in their handsome show windows, St. Catherine street, West, an array of Sonora and Columbia Grafonola period models which attracted considerable attention. This exhibition was supplemented by impressive newspaper copy in all the local dailies.

ATLANTA

Review of Trade—Consoles in Favor—Distinctive Record Advertising—News of the Month

ATLANTA, GA., October 9.—The talking machine trade in this territory has not yet started the season's business to any marked degree. There is a widespread feeling that the trade will develop rather late and many dealers are postponing the purchase of their Fall requirements until the demand is actually upon them. Such a policy will result in a congestion of orders, with the resultant shortage of supply, especially of the console design, the most popular type on the market at present.

The Victor announcement of consoles with flat tops is a recognition of the popularity of this style, which, in the opinion of talking machine dealers, will largely supersede the present horizontal type because of greater attractiveness and utility. In consequence dealers are eagerly awaiting the initial supply, but to date none have arrived in this territory.

M. O. Giles, who has been spending the past month here co-operating with the Okeh jobber, the J. K. Polk Furniture Co., has left for Cincinnati. He and Mr. Brockman made a very successful automobile trip throughout the Piedmont section of the Carolinas, opening a satisfactory number of Okeh accounts.

John Mohl, assistant manager of the Columbia Graphophone branch here, has returned after a month's absence to resume his duties incident to the coming season's business.

The consolette is maintaining its popularity. Cable-Shelby-Burton Co., at Birmingham, is one of the prominent music houses in the Southeast featuring this cabinet.

Goodhart-Tompkins Co. here has featured the latest Victor release, "Three o'Clock in the Morning," by using a specially illuminated dial. Its distinctive effect created a demand which made this record the best seller of the month.

The Haverty Furniture Co.'s success in disposing of three or four hundred period consoles proves the universal acceptance of this style. The buying public is eager to purchase these designs when offered at a moderate price.

The recent appearance of De Wolf Hopper in the repertory of Gilbert & Sullivan's light operas was taken advantage of by local dealers who called public attention to their selections from the Mikado and Pinafore, etc.

An advertising campaign in behalf of Okeh records has been inaugurated in the local papers which carry a well-displayed advertisement featuring some of the recent "hits" under which were alphabetically listed the names of the dealers who handle this product. It is understood that the advertisements are to be run weekly.

FINE STARR EXHIBIT AT FAIR

Anderson Piano Co., Distributor of Starr Products, Stages Attractive Display at New York State Fair in Syracuse

SYRACUSE, N. Y., October 9.—The Anderson Piano Co., of Utica, New York, distributor of the Starr phonographs, Gennett records and Starr pianos, had a very effective display of Starr products at the State Fair, this city, late in September. A number of models of Starr phonographs, pianos and a variety of Gennett records were on display and were commented upon by hundreds of visitors to the fair. Volume of tone possible through the use of the new Starr Concert Amplifier was demonstrated with the Starr Style X phonograph, and the latest Gennett records were heard continuously throughout the great exhibition building.

Hearing on Petition to Have Receiver Continue Business for Another Ninety Days to Be Held in Newark, N. J., on October 16

The creditors and stockholders of the Arto Co., Orange, N. J., have been ordered to show cause before the United States District Court, Postoffice Building, Newark, N. J., at 10:30 a. m., on Monday, October 16, why the receiver of the company should not be authorized to conduct the business for a further period of ninety days from October 9, 1922.

In announcing the hearing it is reported that during the period from January 1, 1922, to September 30, 1922, the receiver realized a profit of $10,382.16 on the business, and that during the period from May 1 to September 30 the income from the business was $70,078.35, with disbursements of $75,243.54.

this country only a short time he has already won enthusiastic praise among the Jewish people throughout the country.

Cantor Roitman was only twenty-three years of age when he became Cantor of the largest synagogue in Wilna, Russia, and four years later was appointed Cantor of one of the most important synagogues in Petrograd. He won fame at a concert that he gave at the Petrograd Conservatory and added considerably to his prestige by composing a number of hymns which he sang in Petrograd and Odessa. Cantor Roitman also composed selections for the piano, violin and cello which became very popular.

ALL SET FOR THE BIG DANCE

Annual Dance of Talking Machine Men at Hotel Pennsylvania on October 30 Promises to Be Most Successful Event in History of Organization—Noted Orchestras to Be Heard

The members of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., the organization of talking machine dealers of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, together with their friends, are all set for the annual dance of that organization, to be held at the Hotel Pennsylvania on Monday evening, October 30, and which, from every indication, will prove the most successful affair of the sort held in the history of the Association.

The committee in charge of the dance have been working steadily for many weeks in preparing the program and securing the various orchestras and artists for the evening with the result that those who attend will be privileged to dance to the music of such noted recording aggregations as the All Star Trio, Benny Krueger's Orchestra, Club Royal Orchestra, Dixieland Jazz, Happy Six, Isham Jones' Orchestra, Markel's Orchestra, Paul Whiteman's Orchestra, Ray Miller's Orchestra, Ted Lewis' Band, Vincent Lopez Orchestra and the Yerke's Flotilla Orchestra.

The tickets for the dance will be sold at one dollar each and the advance demand indicates that the pasteboards will be at a premium.

NEW SONORA DEALERS

Recent additions to dealers handling the Sonora line include Samuel Mulwitz & Sons Furniture Co., Portchester, N. Y.; the Trinity Talking Machine Shop, New York City, and Rosenbaum's department store, Pittsburgh, Pa.

The affairs of the Gaelic Phonograph Record Co., Inc., 40 West Fifty-seventh street, New York, have been placed in the hands of a creditor committee, which has recommended settlement on a 20 per cent basis.

PORTLAND, ORE.

Building Boom Augurs Well for Trade—11,000 Talking Machines Arrive via Panama Canal—Sales Increase—Consoles in Demand

PORTLAND, ORE., October 4.—Building activity in Portland this year will break all records in the city's history. This was apparent when the city's building inspector announced that the aggregate of permits issued for the first nine months had reached the sum of $18,544,330. The previous record was in 1910, when permits totaled $20,886,202 for twelve months.

The last week in September the intercoastal steamer, "Edgar F. Luckenbach," steamed into Portland from Philadelphia via the Panama Canal, having on board 11,000 talking machines and over 1,000 pianos for distribution on the Pacific Coast, and Portland received her share of the instruments before the "Luckenbach" left port.

The talking machine and record business has taken a big jump and all dealers report an increase of sales as compared with the same period of last year. The console models continue to be the big attraction and the demand for all period types shows no abatement.

The newly renovated talking machine department of the Meier & Frank Co. was formally opened to-day with thousands of visitors calling to inspect the remodeled quarters. Twelve audition rooms and two large demonstration rooms have been installed. Record racks have been placed in the middle of the department with a service counter adjacent thereto. The front of the department is used for the display of the Victor, Columbia, Vocalion and Edison machines. The department has been done in ivory and the booths furnished in wicker settees, with a bright touch of color given by beautiful floor lamps. Taupe velvet carpet covers the entire floor space. Wm. Hodecker, manager, is installing a complete line of Victor foreign records and will be able to meet the demand of the European and Oriental element in Portland. Mr. Hodecker has added Miss Charlotte Clecley and Kathryn Rogan to his sales department.

The Oregon Music Dealers' Association held its annual monthly meeting Friday, September 22. E. B. Hyatt, president, was out of town and W. A. McDougall, vice-president, held the chair. No important business was transacted, but a good get-together meeting was held.

A. C. Ireton, Pacific Coast manager of the Edison Phonograph, Ltd., was a Portland visitor from San Francisco and while here called a meeting of all Edison dealers from Oregon, Washington and Idaho. A luncheon was held at the Hotel Multnomah and a most interesting and instructive talk was given by Mr. Ireton. Four Edison models were demonstrated to the dealers by Mr. Ireton, one console, one small machine and two uprights. The Reed French Piano Co., Meier & Frank and the Hyatt Talking Machine Co. are the three representative Edison houses of Portland.

The Reed French Piano Co. announces the first Edison tone test of the season, to be given under its auspices, at the Municipal Auditorium, November 15, with Hervey Hindermyer, tenor, and the Dann Trio as assisting artists. Mr. Hindermyer will sing in comparison with the Edison and will also give several solo numbers.

Mrs. Helen Briggs, for three years assistant in the Victrola department of the Seiberling-Lucas Music Co., has been placed in full charge to take the place of Wm. A. Hodecker, who recently resigned to take charge of the Meier & Frank phonograph department. Hallie Erwin, formerly with the Thomas Music Co., of Marshfield, Ore., has been appointed assistant to Mrs. Briggs.

Louis Mack, for ten years a successful sheet music dealer of Portland, and who for several years has been doing business in the Bush & Lane store, has moved to 124 Broadway. In addition to sheet music he will now carry a complete line of the musical merchandise accessories and the Starr phonographs and Genett records.

L. D. Heater, jobber in phonograph accessories, who for several years has done business at Twelfth and Washington streets, has moved to 357 Ankeny street. He handles the Strand and Portophone machines. He still retains his warehouse at Twelfth and Washington.

H. H. Princehouse, for six years assistant manager of the Lipman, Wolfe & Co.'s piano and phonograph department, has gone into the retail business for himself at 86½ Broadway. He is handling talking machines and pianos.

The G. F. Johnson Piano Co. had a most attractive exhibit at the recent Oregon State Fair and its display of the Cheney console model, No. 120, created much interest. The booth, in charge of Mr. Johnson and Miss Eva Richmond, was surrounded at all hours of the day by an interested audience. All-day concerts were given on the Ampico and the Cheney and they both proved a most excellent medium of advertisement.

The phonograph department of Lipman, Wolfe & Co., Roy Feldenheimer, manager, reports a brisk business. The bulk of the sales were in the Sonora and Brunswick machines, which were of period styles, said Mr. Feldenheimer. The department has recently acquired the agency for the new Steger phonograph.

J. C. Gallagher, manager of Bush & Lane Piano Co., when asked how business was, said, "We went over the top in all departments last month. Sales of the Bush & Lane phonograph exceeded our highest expectations."

P. J. Heintz, manager of the phonograph department of Powers Furniture store, reports excellent business for September, with a 30 per cent increase over September of last year.

A. J. Kendrick, general sales manager for the Brunswick Co., of Chicago, was a visitor to Portland recently and called on the trade in and around Portland, in company with M. Davis, district manager. Mr. Kendrick, who made an extensive tour, reports finding a wonderful spirit of optimism everywhere he visited.

J. M. Dvorak, representing Lyon & Healy, of Chicago, whose headquarters are in Los Angeles, was a recent Portland visitor on his return South after making an extensive trip throughout the Pacific Northwest looking for business for Lyon & Healy, of which, he says, he was able to get a big share.

Mrs. "Billy" Watts, for the past four years popular in the record sales department of the Wiley B. Allen Co., has resigned and will take a complete rest after an operation for appendicitis.

Genevieve Peck, who for the past sixteen weeks has been traveling as advance agent for the Ellison-White Chautauqua circuit, has returned to her duties in the record department of the Hyatt Talking Machine Co.

Here's a good one told by one of the young record salesladies of the Hyatt Talking Machine Co.: A customer came into the store the other day and asked for the "Remnants of Ireland." Some tall, fast thinking was necessary when it flashed upon her that there was an Edison record labeled "Reminiscences of Ireland." It was produced and the sale made.

DELZELL VISITS COLUMBIA CO.

Well-known Denver Columbia Dealer in Gotham to Talk Over Fall and Winter Plans

An important visitor to the Columbia Graphophone Co. recently was C. A. Delzell, manager of the Denver branch of the Columbia Stores Co., dealer in Columbia Grafonolas and Columbia records. Mr. Delzell expects to spend some time at Columbia headquarters to talk over plans for the Fall and Winter campaign on Columbia products which has already been started by his company. In making this long trip East Mr. Delzell is planning to make this sojourn one of pleasure as well as of business and expects to return to Denver with many ideas that are bound to show tangible results this Fall and Winter. He is regarded by the Columbia Graphophone Co. as a high-class merchandiser of Columbia products and has made a success of retailing Columbia Grafonolas and records in the West.

OPEN NEW REPAIR SHOP

H. F. McCann, formerly service manager for the Sonora Phonograph Co., New York, and David Meyers, recently connected with the United Retail Stores Corp., have formed a new concern which will be known as the Phonograph Service Co. This company, which will conduct a repair shop, specializing in dealers' work, has opened offices and laboratories at 71 West Broadway, New York.

RETURNS FROM WESTERN TRIP

A. J. Coté, President of Outing T. M. Co., Returns From Successful Trip—Several New Jobbers Appointed—Business Grows Better

MT. KISCO, N. Y., October 5.—A. J. Coté, president and general manager of the Outing Talking Machine Co., of this city, returned yesterday from a two weeks' trip, which included a visit to the leading trade centers in the South, together with a visit to the Middle West as far as St. Louis. In a chat with The World Mr. Coté stated that conditions were improving everywhere, especially in the Western section, where he appointed several new jobbers for the Outing portable phonograph.

Mr. Coté was glad to find that the jobbers and dealers are selecting their portable lines with extreme care and are showing a preference for products that can be merchandised at a fair margin of profit with a fair discount to the wholesaler and retailer. The Outing factory is now going ahead at full speed and nothing is being left undone to give the company's jobbers and dealers efficient service and co-operation.

WILSON MUSIC CO.'S NEW STORE

METHODS OF DEVELOPING RECORD AND ROLL BUSINESS

Comparatively Few Retailers Are Enjoying the Fall Possibilities Offered Them in the Record and Player Roll Field, According to C. C. Baker, Because of Failure to Know the Business

This very interesting paper by C. C. Baker, of Columbus, O., was read before the second day's session of the Music Merchants' Association of Ohio at its annual convention held recently in Toledo, and points out some of the weaknesses which are all too prevalent in the merchandising of rolls and records, together with some valuable suggestions for correcting the same.

What is the fundamental part of your business? What does your business depend upon and what do most owners of business pay the least attention to? Will automobiles run without gas? Will a watch run without a main-spring? No. Owners of music stores will continue to go on indefinitely without the intelligent merchandising of records for talking machines and music rolls for their player-pianos—not all maybe—at least the majority will. How many men here could go to their stores tomorrow, take charge of records and rolls and intelligently order the same to insure their customers real service and at the same time balance their stock so that a profitable turnover is achieved? Remember that you are not the only one selling records and rolls. They can be bought at many other places than in your store, therefore you are confronted from the standpoint of your customer with service only. The player-piano or the talking machine is no more than a piece of furniture without music rolls or records. Rolls and records are such a fundamental part of the business that attention must be paid to the kind of rolls and records sold if the interest in player-pianos and talking machines is to be perpetuated. How many automobiles would there be on the boulevard if watered gasoline were sold? Gasoline that would not produce real efficiency of the car is no good if the owner did not get power out of it. There is not one of you that would think of putting on a tuxedo coat and going without your shoes polished. Yet you will run a music store and turn the roll and record department over to some one and know little about it yourself. You are not in a position to advise them because of the little knowledge you have of it—because you have always found it a side issue and do not get into it yourself. You must remember if you expect to sell more player-pianos and talking machines it is necessary for you to put more energy, more hard work and real intellect back of your record and roll department. I believe I am making a correct statement when I say there are more idle player-pianos and talking machines to-day than live ones. I mean, by this, the owners of player-pianos and talking machines are not buying new records and better records, thereby injuring your new business to such an extent that it is alarming. Some of us are merchandising a record or roll of an inferior quality, thinking we are making a little profit, but the boomerang from such merchandising is doing more harm than any of us realize.

Perpetuating Good Music

I am going to ask all of you to reflect and give a little thought to this statement. For the success and the future of our business we must perpetuate the right kind of music so the non-owner of a talking machine or player-piano will be proud to be the possessor of one. I had a customer ask me the other day why I did not carry the cheap records. I said, yes, the cheap records had the same tune, but I could take him out to-day to a restaurant and get two steaks, cut from the same rump, have them cooked by two different cooks, one who knew how to cook a steak and the other that just cooks steaks. You are able to eat one and the other you are not because it is badly prepared. It does not necessarily mean because it is the same tune you get the same music any more than you might partake of the one steak the cook has spoiled because he did not understand how to cook it. If any music dealer who is in the business for his own selfish gain will go home and figure his overhead expense on each cheap record which he sells he will find there is no profit and the only thing he is doing is injuring his own business as well as the rest of us.

Some Startling Experiences

This Summer I called on twenty-five music stores of which I have a memorandum. Now, get this. I walked into the store, went to the record or roll department, usually both, and asked this simple question: "What have you in a good record?" The results were that twenty-three immediately suggested "Stumbling," "Nobody Lied" or a similar number. Remember, I asked for a good record. Two of them asked me my classification, what I would like to hear. Both of these were in the northern woods of Wisconsin, and I want to tell you, gentlemen, that some of you in this room may be owners of the very stores I called on. What have you done? You have loaded up the users of records and rolls with a bunch of popular stuff. You have actually sold the popular stuff instead of increasing the future of our business with better music. Some of you think you made additional sales. Every customer to whom you sold these records would have bought them anyway and you are out the profit you might have had if you had sold better music, thereby being instrumental in helping the advancement of better music. If you carry a good line of records or rolls regardless of make you will find that you have but one thing to sell, and that is service. What is service? Service covers a smile, a "thank you" and many other little courtesies which are necessary to sell any line of merchandise successfully. We must use this kind of service to be successful and it must be embodied in our every sales movement. In addition there are two essential items that cover service in the music business. First, to have the record or roll which is asked for in the line you carry. Second, the art of suggestion. There will be times you may be out of the number that is called for and a special order should be taken and followed up, not put on a notebook and put aside for a week or two, but should be ordered immediately so your customers may be telephoned to, or drop them a post card telling them you have the merchandise they desired. The amount invested to carry a complete line will be repaid from the profits of your additional sales, also rendering a service to your customer, and your store will soon be known as a record and roll store in place of a store to shop for records or rolls. What about the art of suggestion? This, with a complete stock of rolls or records, is your profit.

The Value of Radio

There has been developed a wonder of the age, the biggest help to our business that has ever been given to it, and that is radio. What could be better for your business than a well-rendered song of "Sweet and Low" or a wonderful orchestra playing an overture being broadcasted into millions of homes by the way of radio? Every listener appreciates it and the radio has caused a desire in every listener to hear that selection again, but in radio they may never hear it again. So radio will sell records and rolls if you will follow up the opportunity. Every selection that goes out by radio is the biggest incentive for the listener to buy a record of that individual selection. This will illustrate the art of suggestion. Radio has suggested to millions selections that are made on our records.

Every boy is interested in radio and he is a prospect for a player-piano or talking machine. Radio travels fast. It is in the air, it is everywhere. We must watch close and take advantage of the opportunity of our best salesman which is constantly working for us. We must give more time, put more energy in our record and roll departments and intelligently merchandise the life of our business.

Do not wait for a day or a week or a month to start some of the things which will help build up your business. Do you realize that in less than three months the holiday business will be a thing of the past? Get ready for the holiday business. Sit up at night if necessary to plan some aggressive way to let your customers and those whom you hope to have as customers know you are anxious to serve. Here is a holiday suggestion that you should take advantage of. Over half of the Victory 4¾ per cent bonds will be redeemed by the Government December 15. Look ahead to getting some of that money. Your banker can tell you about how many thousands or how many millions will be paid out at that time by the Government. In my home town of Columbus, counting Franklin County into the total, approximately $10,000,000 will be paid out. In addition to that money the United States Government will redeem in cash the war savings stamps which fall due January 1, 1923. Your postmaster can tell you about what sum of money is going to be paid out in this way. In Franklin County the total is $3,500,000. Of course some of that will be reinvested, but some of it will be used to purchase the things which the women folks and the men folks have been denying themselves for many, many months, and with proper business suggestion on your part it will be records, player rolls, talking machines and player-pianos, and I am going to get some of that money.

LOS ANGELES

Series of Concerts Attracts Wide Attention—George E. Brightson, Sonora President, Dined by Barker Bros.—Month's News

LOS ANGELES, CAL., October 4.—From a truly musical standpoint, the most remarkable series of concerts was held during the Summer months in this city at the Hollywood Bowl and was attended by tens of thousands of persons. Some forty concerts were given stretching over a period of ten weeks from the beginning of July to the middle of last month. Eighty-five members of the Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra, with the famous Alfred Hertz as their conductor, played musical selections of the highest type only and the crowds showed their appreciation by enthusiastic plaudits and loud clapping.

These concerts were the result of one woman's conception—Mrs. J. J. Carter, who first originated them and who was instrumental in their success. We might add that Mrs. Carter publicly thanked the Music Trades Association of Southern California, whose members advertised, boosted and sold tickets for its support, and she declared that this assistance and help contributed immensely towards the final success.

Now, we would also like to mention that one of the chief causes of the success of these concerts was the fact that so many people are familiar with the great overtures and other masterpieces, which they have heard and learned to love through talking machine records.

Banquet to Sonora President

Barker Bros., who enjoy the exclusive sale of Sonoras in this city, gave a dinner to George E. Brightson, president of the Sonora Phonograph Corp., the details of which are mentioned elsewhere in this issue. Among those present was F. B. Travers, president of the Magnavox Co., Pacific Coast distributor of the Sonora, who, in a brief address, praised Barker Bros. for their success in the sale of Sonoras. He pointed out that over one-third of the entire stock of these instruments shipped to the ten Western States for which the Magnavox Co. is the distributor were sold by Barker Bros.

Mr. Brightson, in a brief talk, outlined the efforts of the Sonora organization in the production of instruments of highest quality and emphasized that sales should be made in such a way that buyers would be impressed with the high quality of these machines. J. W. Boothe, general manager of Barker Bros.' music department, acted as chairman. Clarence A. Barker, vice-president of Barker Bros., outlined the development of their music department, which, he pointed out, was due in a large measure to the activities in talking machine merchandising.

A. G. Farquharson, secretary of the Music Trades' Association of Southern California, who had been specially invited to attend, explained the activities and uses of the Association, to which Mr. Brightson replied by congratulating Southern California on having such an organization and declared that similar co-operation was needful in all parts of the country.

Brunswick Sales at New Level

The local branch of the phonograph division of the Brunswick Co. reports that sales for August and September exceeded all anticipations. Howard Brown, local manager, states that he considers himself very fortunate in being able to obtain shipments, with almost no interruption, in spite of the critical transportation conditions which have recently existed. Mr. Brown also reported that he had recently engaged John T. Murphy and Harry L. Ream as members of the sales force. Both are men of long experience in the talking machine wholesale business.

Walter S. Gray Visits South

Walter S. Gray, president of the Walter S. Gray Co., distributor of talking machine accessories and supplies, motored from San Francisco last month, accompanied by Mrs. Gray. He reports excellent business all down the Coast and is specially gratified with the sales of the Strand phonograph, for which his company is the California jobber.

Sherman, Clay & Co. in New Quarters

C. H. Ruggles, manager of the local branch of Sherman, Clay & Co., is to be congratulated on the splendid new quarters, at Santee and Tenth streets, which have been completed for his offices and warerooms and into which he has, at last, been able to move. The building itself was carefully planned and measures up to all requirements, while the furnishings and equipment are exceptionally fine and impressive.

New Phonograph Manager at Fitzgerald's

Clarence H. Mansfield has been appointed manager of the Brunswick and Edison phonograph department of the Fitzgerald Music Co. Mr. Mansfield was well known in Dallas, Tex., where he was president and manager of a phonograph store. He was also president for one term of the Dallas Music Trades Association.

Miss Cross Leaves for San Francisco

Miss Donzella Cross, special representative of the Educational Department of Sherman, Clay & Co., left on October 1 for San Francisco after a long stay in the Southern California territory. She will be very much missed by Victor dealers, to whom she has rendered splendid service; the lists of overtures and classical selections, played at the Hollywood Bowl concerts, which were compiled by her and sent out with mailing lists by dealers, have proved wonderfully productive in selling high-class records.

Orange County Dealers' News

J. H. Padgham & Son Co., Santa Ana, have disposed of their jewelry stock and will devote their entire efforts to the sale of the Brunswick phonographs. They have recently equipped, in the most modern and up-to-date fashion, a new Brunswick shop on North Main street. J. H. Padgham, Ray Stedman, Mr. Morrison and Miss Mitzel compose the personnel.

Carl G. Strock, Santa Ana, has received a very large shipment of the new Edison period models and is most enthusiastic over their appearance and sales possibilities.

The Orange County Piano Co. has been appointed a Cheney phonograph dealer in Santa Ana. Manager Crawford reports a number of sales.

Messrs. Dunham and Knipe, of Anaheim, Edison and Sonora dealers, have returned home after an extended trip in the East. They are affiliated with the Danz Piano Co.

Nelson Edgar reports excellent business at his Brunswick Shop in Orange.

A new Victor dealer has opened in Orange, the Sawyer Music Co., Ernest T. Sawyer, proprietor.

OCCUPYING HANDSOME NEW HOME

Cabinet & Accessories Co. Now Settled at 3 West Sixteenth Street, New York

The Cabinet & Accessories Co. is now settled in its new quarters at 3 West Sixteenth street, New York. These new offices, showrooms and stockrooms cover not only far more floor space than formerly, but far surpass them in both attractiveness and facilities. The Cabinet & Accessories Co. is the only business tenant in the five-story white marble building located at the above address and illustrated herewith. Situated on the first floor above the street, easy access is gained by both stair and elevator. The entrance, in figured marble and handsome electric fixtures, would grace many a Fifth avenue residence. An entire floor is occupied, the front of which is devoted to salesrooms and office purposes. Three particularly large windows admit a maximum of light.

Otto Goldsmith, president of the company, and Miriam Goldsmith, treasurer, have their desks located on this floor and the arrangement of the showrooms gives excellent display to the full line of accessories carried by the company. The rear part of the floor has been systematically arranged with storage bins to hold supplies and an efficiently laid-out shipping room provides excellent facilities for the prompt filling of orders. The growth of this business from a one-room office in the Flatiron Building to the present large quarters is a distinct tribute

DOING BIG VICTOR BUSINESS

RIDGEWOOD, N. J., October 9.—A one hundred per cent increase in business so far this year is reported by J. A. Bliesenick, proprietor and manager of the Ridgewood Talking Machine Co., Victor dealer, of this city. Mr. Bliesenick has adopted an aggressive attitude in his merchandising policies which is meeting with excellent results.

SALES FOLLOW MAIL DRIVE

ELIZABETH, N. J., October 9.—Rapid strides forward are being made by the Victor talking machine department of McManus Bros. here. Manager Evans, of this department, attributes much of his success to the fact that he is constantly bombarding prospective customers with direct-by-mail literature. A circular recently sent out by Mr. Evans requested patrons and prospects to call for the new Victor puzzle. The response was encouraging and this was made more effective by a special window display.

Many people can go to sleep right beside work.

AN IMPORTANT NEW MOVE

New York Evening Mail Starts Department on "Getting the Most Out of Your Phonograph" Under Auspices of Chas. D. Isaacson

Charles D. Isaacson, famous for his excellent work for music as editor of the Music Page of the New York Evening Mail and prior to that as editor of the New York Globe Music Page and manager of the Globe concerts, has inaugurated an important and interesting weekly department in the Mail under the caption, "Getting the Most Out of Your Phonograph." The department occupies a page and is made up of articles regarding the leading recording artists and the music they record, together with suggestions regarding the selection of records and record programs for special purposes.

NEW OUTING JOBBERS ANNOUNCED

Distributing Corp., 5 South Wabash avenue, Chicago, Ill.; Stewart Talking Machine Co., Indianapolis, Ind., and the Sterling Roll & Record Co., Cincinnati, O. Mr. Coté also stated that a number of additional jobbers would be announced in the near future covering important sections throughout the country.

HANDLES "TALKERS" AND RADIO

MARSHALL, Mo., October 9.—The Kelley-Vawter Jewelry Co., talking machine dealer of this city, has installed a line of radio receiving sets and supplies. W. A. Vawter, a member of the firm, who is in direct charge of the radio and talking machine departments, is working on the theory that handling radio supplies is not only profitable, but this is especially so where talking machines are handled, provided there is co-operation between departments.

INTRODUCE "BESTONE" RADIO SETS

Henry Hyman & Co. Announce Two Types, a Crystal Detector and a Vacuum Tube, Which Will Be Extensively Advertised

Henry Hyman & Co., Inc., New York City, well known in the manufacturing field of high-grade electrical specialties for household and commercial use, are announcing to the trade this month a line of radio receiving sets that is expected to have a strong appeal to talking machine dealers throughout the country. Hyman & Co. with their large organization have had an experience covering many years in the manufacturing of electrical specialties and this new addition to their line will be manufactured with every facility necessary to produce a product of a high type in both appearance and efficiency.

The "Bestone" Radio Set

These radio receiving sets are to be of two types, one of the crystal detector type while the other will be a vacuum tube type set. The firm have adopted for a name for these radio products the word "Bestone," which they are planning to advertise extensively and make it a household word in every section of the country. In addition to the complete radio receiving units they will also carry a large stock of individual parts for the construction of radio sets by amateurs and are prepared to deliver to dealers immediately. Plans at present call for an intensive drive on the vacuum tube set which they propose to feature as the leader in their line and are expecting to place this particular set along with other sets in their line in talking machine dealers' stores everywhere.

MAGNETIC DANCERS MAKE BIG HIT

BOSTON, MASS., October 9.—The National Co., of this city, manufacturer of talking machine toys, is experiencing a good demand for its newest offering, the Magnetic Dancers, which are made on a distinctly different principle from the other toys in the line. Whereas Ragtime Rastus, Boxing Darkies and the other toys are operated from the turn-table spindle, the Magnetic Dancers are placed on the side of the turn table and operated through friction from the edge of the turn table with a revolving magnet in the center. With the various dancing plates included in the set the dancing couple will either fox-trot, waltz or two-step as desired. The Magnetic Dancers are produced well in time for the holiday trade and it is expected that a large volume of business will be done in that period with this new talking machine toy.

VISITS COLUMBIA OFFICES

An important visitor to Columbia headquarters recently was H. N. Ferguson, manager of the Minneapolis branch, who was here conferring with the officials of the Columbia Co. and discussing Fall and Winter plans. While East Mr. Ferguson took advantage of the annual reunion of the 79th division, which was being held at Atlantic City, having served in this well-known outfit during the war.

Harry Cuddeback, head of the Da-Lite Electric Display Co., Toledo, O., manufacturer of signs for Victor dealers, was in New York recently.

INCREASED EQUIPMENT DEMAND

Zimmerman-Bitter Construction Co. Filling Many Important Contracts—Outlook Good

The Zimmerman-Bitter Construction Co., New York, manufacturer of store equipment for the talking machine dealer, is exceedingly busy at this time installing new equipment in various shops throughout the city. The plant, at 325 East Ninety-fourth street, has been working overtime in order to catch up with the amount of work on hand, and officials of the company state that it will be some weeks yet before they will have completed orders already secured. Mr. Bitter, who spends considerable time visiting the trade in the interests of his company, is well pleased with the general outlook. He stated they will be kept busy during the entire Winter, which reflects the confidence talking machine dealers have in the value of improved equipment as a sales factor.

Among the many new installations this company has made during the past two months is that of Landay's Forty-second street store, which it expects to complete this month. This installation is one of the largest yet erected by the company and calls for the renovation of practically the entire store. Twelve new booths have been constructed with a large number of musical instrument cases, sheet music racks and in addition includes the complete equipment of the Landay radio department. Some work is being done also in the offices at this store and when all is completed it will be one of the most elaborately equipped talking machine retail stores in New York City. In addition to the Forty-second street store equipment the company is now manufacturing and installing one of the most unique store show windows in the Landay Newark store. This is being done in a zenithan block effect which when completed gives an appearance of old English stone construction which is admirably adapted for the display of Victor talking machines and records. This show window is unique and admirably conceived.

Another installation which has just been completed is that of the Sterling Piano Co., at 81 Court street, Brooklyn, which consisted of the fitting up with modern booths and display rooms in the three floors of this store. A feature of this construction is that each booth will be constructed of a different design representing different periods of architectural design. Some of them will be used for the display of pianos as well as talking machines.

The company has just completed the installation of private hearing rooms and general equipment in the retail store conducted by Theodore Jospe at Oyster Bay, L. I. Also several changes have been made in the Glen Cove store of Mr. Jospe which the Zimmerman-Bitter Co. constructed for him.

Among the most recent of the contracts secured by this company is that of the University Music Shop, Burnside avenue, New York City, which calls for a complete store equipment of hearing rooms, display rooms, record racks and counters. This is to be equipped in a distinctive Zimmerman-Bitter design.

RADIO CORP. BUYS $1,000,000 HOME

Manufacturer of RCA Products Purchases Ten-story Building—New Home Will Be Known as the "Radio House"

The Radio Corporation of America, manufacturer of RCA products, purchased last week the White Oil Building at 64-68 Broad street, New York. This building, in which are now housed some of the offices of the Radio Corporation, will probably be known as "Radio House," and will be the point from which all messages from and to the United States will be sent and received. The building is ten stories high and contains 43,000 square feet. Its purchase price involved approximately $1,000,000. Transoceanic traffic has already been centered there and it is understood that the executive offices of the company, which are now located in the Woolworth Building, will eventually be established at the "Radio House."

It was also announced recently by the company that new stations were being built and soon would be established at Warsaw, Poland; Marconi (formerly Coltano) Italy and in Sweden.

RETURNS FROM VACATION

O. F. Benz, record sales manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., New York City, was away from his desk the last two weeks in September enjoying his annual vacation, which he spent in the White Mountains. Mr. Benz left New York City by automobile and toured through New England and made a permanent stop in the White Mountains for a period of ten days, after which he motored back to New York and to his desk. This trip was a most enjoyable one for Mr. Benz and he comes back to his desk ready to carry out intensive plans for Fall and Winter Columbia record business.

SONORA EXPORT MANAGER HOME

C. A. Richards, manager of the export department of the Sonora Phonograph Co., returned to New York last week after an extended trip from many of the important countries of Europe. Mr. Richards states that the demand in Europe for American-made phonographs is rapidly growing, and on this trip he added many dealers to the lists of European firms selling Sonoras. His reports regarding general conditions are decidedly optimistic and Sonora is making rapid progress in European countries.

The Kimball Piano Co. has opened a branch store in Kenosha, Wis., under the management of Joseph Cardinal. Kimball phonographs, pianos, etc., are handled.

NINE CLASSES OF CREDIT RISKS

Family Where Head of House Is in Reputable Business Heads List as Ideal Risk

Applications for personal charge accounts may be classified by the careful merchant into nine groups, credit managers have decided. Risks may generally be determined beforehand by this method to the extent that merchants may know how much credit to extend. The nine classes of risks are:

A man engaged in a reputable business for himself, or the wife of such a man, who has satisfactory accounts at other stores and good bank connections, is an almost ideal risk.

Virtually as good is the case of a man who for a number of years has been connected in a responsible capacity with a reliable, long-established concern.

A less satisfactory risk is the small "hole in the wall" household, with a $100 bank account and friendly references, but giving every evidence of living up to the last cent.

Further down the scale is the man who has a minor position with a concern or the one who holds a good job, but who is extremely extravagant and lives entirely beyond his means.

Next is the single man who "breezes" into the office, leans over the desk and says very confidentially, "I want the account for accommodation, don't you know," and then proceeds to buy out the store.

The single woman with little or nothing to fall back on in a financial way follows next.

Then come school teachers and other city employes to whom sales are made largely on the strength of their position, because in the event of a forced settlement their salaries can always be garnisheed.

Professional people, doctors, lawyers, artists and others whose incomes are fairly large, but undependable as to date of its receipt and who as a class lack to a certain degree the proper sense of financial obligation.

Last come separation cases, the most important of which is the woman about to break away from the husband, but who wishes to provide herself first with plenty of clothing at her husband's expense.

RECEIVER FOR INTERNATIONAL RADIO

Samuel R. Kessler has been appointed custodial receiver for the International Radio Corp., of 42 Branford Place, Newark, N. J., by Judge Charles F. Lynch. An order was issued requiring the directors of the company to show cause why the injunction should not be made permanent.

It is charged that the corporation represented that it had acquired the assets of the P. W. P. Mfg. Co., which it was said had a nationwide reputation. An affidavit by Alanson F. Bartlow stated that the corporation had been engaged in the manufacture of apparatus for two months before March, 1922, with $3,600 assets.

TALKING MACHINE TROUBLES AND HOW TO REMEDY THEM

Conducted by Andrew H. Dodin

ASCERTAINING TURNTABLE SPEED

New York, September 30, 1922.

Editor, The Talking Machine World:

I find that at least two of the companies manufacturing machines and records insist that the speed of reproduction must be the same as speed of recording to insure perfect results. In one case this speed is given at seventy-six revolutions per minute and the other at seventy-eight. I have a device for ascertaining the correct speed, but would like to know whether it should be operated while the record is playing or with the reproducer at rest and the record running free. I imagine that the pressure of the needle in the groove, even though light, would tend to retard the speed of the motor somewhat. An answer to this would be appreciated.

John H. Rogers.

Answer—The speed should be ascertained while the machine is in operation, that is, with the weight of the sound box bearing upon the record surface, through the needle point. It is obvious that, were you to count the revolutions of the turntable running free, you are not meeting the condition that exists when playing a record. The moment the needle is placed upon the record the speed is retarded, and it takes a few revolutions of the record for the motor to pick up and gain its full speed. You may contend that a very powerful motor, one, for instance, with three springs, has enough pull or power to overcome the friction of the needle and the weight of the sound box. No doubt it will have, but in placing on the market a device of this kind it would be advisable to meet all existing conditions, and in constructing it in such form that it can be placed on the machine while actually playing a record would make it absolutely dependable under all conditions.

CLEANING THE RECORD SURFACE

Dayton, O., September 5, 1922.

Editor, The Talking Machine World:

A member of our club has presented us with an old style Edison cylinder machine with which we want to make records of our dance orchestra. We purchased several blank records and made some attempts to make a record, with the result that blanks are all used up. As there is no device on the machine for cutting off the surface of the record we would like to know if there is any way that we can clean them so that we can use them over again. We would be pleased to hear from you.

Dayton Athletic Club, Henry Meyers, Sec'y.

Answer—Take a piece of absorbent cotton, well soaked in kerosene, and rub the surface of the record lengthwise (without too much pressure). A few minutes' constant rubbing will give you a new surface on the record, which will be as good as if it were shaved on a record-shaving machine. Clean well with a piece of clean, dry cotton.

IMPROVEMENT IN ACCESSORY FIELD

BOSTON, MASS., October 9.—A decided improvement in the accessory field is noted by the Lansing Sales Co., of this city. This enterprising concern has built up an excellent business and reputation through the high-class distribution of many of the best-known accessories in the field. The improvement of labor conditions throughout New England and the nation at large has had a stimulating effect on business, and Henry Smith, head of the organization, is putting into effect an energetic sales campaign which is fully covering the Fall and holiday seasons.

BEE RADIO SET MAKES ITS DEBUT

Many Requests for Retail Agencies Follow Exhibit at Newark Radio Show

F. W. Matthews, head of the Wax & Novelty Co., 167 Bloomfield avenue, Bloomfield, N. J., who is well known in talking machine recording circles, has recently become interested in radio activities. He has been making a series of experiments in an endeavor to produce a radio receiving set which would sell at an exceptionally popular price, but which would afford entertainment to two or more members of the home.

Mr. Matthews displayed his new receiving set at the recent radio show in Newark, N. J., and it met with so much success that dealers in that territory began immediate negotiations for its retail sale. Mr. Matthews is marketing his product under the name The Bee Radio Set. It is complete and is equipped with two listeners. However, these may be increased if the purchaser is so minded. This product, it is claimed, is probably one of the most popular-priced successful radio receiving sets on the market, particularly so when the number of persons who can take part in the entertainment is considered.

SIMPLEX TO HAVE DEALERS' IMPRINT

The Kirkman Engineering Corp., New York City, manufacturer of the Simplex circular record cleaner, has made the important announcement that these cleaners may hereafter be obtained in quantity lots with dealers' imprint if so desired. The Kirkman Engineering Corp. placed this product on the market many years ago and previous to the World War. With the exception of the war period, when the production was somewhat curtailed, the popularity and sales of the cleaners have enjoyed steady growth. The dealers' imprint upon these cleaners will now allow them to be used as souvenirs at openings and other special events as well as a good selling accessory.

Thomas Kirkman, president of the company, reports that K-E automatic stops are also enjoying heavy demand and is entirely optimistic over future business conditions.

IMPROVING CONDITIONS EVERYWHERE

H. Marjorie Brown, of C. Bruno & Son, Inc., Victor wholesaler, New York City, recently returned to Bruno headquarters from an extensive trip covering most of New York State and Pennsylvania. She found conditions in both these territories not only greatly improved, but very promising as regards the future. Miss Brown's methods of providing special service to the Victor dealer in his various sales problems have been much appreciated and her visits are always looked forward to throughout the trade.

Gramophone Dealers' Association Revives Hire-Purchase Question—Three-to-One Exchange Evil Doomed to Extinction—Progress in Wireless Field Suspended Pending Settlement of Proposed Association—Many Dealers Booking Space for British Industries Fair—Distribution Plans for the New World Record Make Favorable Progress—Facilities for Private Recording—New "Gem" Needle Makes Its Bow—Introduces Novel New Record Album to the Trade—The Duophone, a New Gramophone, Arouses Interest in Trade

LONDON, ENGLAND, October 4.—A gradual re-awakening to the vast trade possibilities of the system of hire-purchase has taken place since the war. At the instance of two or three gramophone manufacturers some retailers have embarked upon initial schemes and find the result highly encouraging. Presently the channel of hire-purchase will be used to a more general extent because its development is now under consideration by the Gramophone Dealers' Association. The subject is regarded as of enormous importance to all sections of the trade and was tabled for discussion at the Association's annual meeting September 29. Most traders believe that the hire-purchase system of trading has come to stay. That being so there is a general desire to arrive at an understanding for the introduction of a common method of working policy which may be adapted to the best interests of the whole industry. Considerable divergence of opinion prevails as to the best system. For instance, "His Master's Voice" institution has adopted a plan whereby the customer makes an initial payment of 10 per cent of the cash price, the balance being payable over a period of twelve months and subject to interest at 2d. in the pound only on the outstanding amount each month. The Sonora people adopt a different way. They charge 5 per cent on the cash price, divided into twelve equal payments monthly, or any first payment by the customer is deducted from the cash price, add 5 per cent to the balance, which is payable in six or twelve equal monthly instalments.

As to the merits of either system it is difficult to lay down any very definite opinion because what may suit one locality or class of public will not another. The general adoption of one system or a combination of the two, so to establish a rock foundation of working principle, is, however, necessary. To thresh out this matter from every angle of viewpoint is the determination of the G. D. A. That it will arrive at a satisfactory solution of the many difficult aspects of the question I hope and believe.

The Three-to-One Exchange Doomed

With about twenty different records on the market, all publishing up to a dozen new titles each month, it is not surprising that the average retailer is thrown into a state bordering upon confusion. If he runs only three or four different makes, to be up to date and successful, it means the monthly stocking of a number of each new issue. Some of these, a good many, in fact, prove out-and-out duds from a sales viewpoint, and within a few months the dealers' shelves are loaded with more or less dead stock.

This represents his profit on other record sales which should be in the bank or available for business development. What does he do? He goes to the maker and requests an equitable exchange of these duds for records that the public want. The manufacturer is sorry; he has borne the expense of making these records, reminds his dealer that in no other industry are goods exchanged, and finally winds up with an offer to take back one unsalable disc at par value providing that for each one so exchanged an order is placed for two others. In other words the dealer who wants to clear, say, 200 dead records, must find room for 600 right off, probably 50 per cent of which are either very slow sellers or unsalable. Not being allowed to sell the dud stock at cost the unfortunate dealer is forced into accepting a three-to-one exchange. Thus, month by month, is the position aggravated, until eventually the "unscrupulous" retailer takes the bull by the horns and secretly disposes of the dud records at a cut price or otherwise clears his stock.

To sum up: Retail trade is restricted, the maker loses orders, bad debts accumulate, price cutting is encouraged and the whole business disorganized. After considerable pressure it may be said that record manufacturers now admit the grievance of retailers is justified and the necessity of doing something to remedy it. The case calls for the adoption of a broad policy reacting advantageously for all sections of the trade. No half measures will do. Any solution must take into consideration the interests of maker, jobber and dealer. There is a proposal on foot for the establishment of a regular semi-annual exchange of a certain percentage of records purchased each six months, this to be on a free basis of par value. It is for the manufacturers to agree.

The Wirelessness of Gramophone Dealers

Development of the wireless broadcasting scheme is still in suspense. As I reported last month the whole matter is more or less in the hands of a combination of firms which, under official direction, are forming a company. The result of their deliberations has materialized in the submission of "articles of association" to the Postmaster General, who in turn has raised objections to certain of the combine's proposals. Some of these, as expected, take the form of a monopoly and if put into operation would exclude and restrict British manufactures in addition to all imports from foreign countries. Very naturally a storm of protest has been raised against the suggested introduction of restrictions at a time when freedom of action (within limits) would result in a vast expansion of what is, to the public and the music trade at any rate, quite a new business and form of entertainment. Pending a settlement along definite and acceptable lines the Postmaster General has seen fit to suspend the further issue of licenses for receiving sets. Thus manufacturing and selling is practically at a standstill. Gramophone dealers who at first evinced considerable enthusiasm are losing interest and, in fact, the development of wireless trade has received a setback from which it will take some time to recover. The general belief is that the Government has given too free a hand to the combine and strong measures are necessary to secure an easement of the situation.

Edison Trade in Great Britain

Edison disc business in this country is to be speeded up. The sale of such high-class products is at present in the hands of a few prominent dealers, but the London office will shortly offer inducements that will enlist the interest of a wide circle of dealers.

As regard the Amberol machines and records, important price reductions are announced by a London firm of jobbers.

The Next British Industries Fair

The B. I. F., to use its common abbreviation, will be held as usual at the White City, Shepherd's Bush, next February. Musical instrument firms are now booking space and my inquiries go to show that it will be more representative of the whole trade than was the case at the last exhibition. There are certain restrictions as to the exhibit of foreign goods and the percentage of foreign parts that may be incorporated into exhibits of (so called) British manufacture. With an increasing improvement of trade the next B. I. F. should create a wide interest among traders the world over.

Unique New "His Master's Voice" Model

Of exceedingly pleasing appearance is the new horizontal grand model just announced by the Gramophone Co. The casework, in mahogany, presents one of the most graceful designs known in the trade. Were it possible I should like to show an illustration, as no word description could describe adequately its remarkable beauty. It is now being shown in the windows of prominent London and Provincial dealers and from all accounts has properly commanded most enthusiastic praise.

The New Long-playing Record

As reported last month arrangements for marketing the World records are making good progress. Recently I visited the company's works on the riverside at Mortlake, comprising a picturesque old mansion of over forty rooms adapted admirably to the business requirements of the different departments. Cromwell Works, as the name implies, bespeaks an association with history. Oliver Cromwell's house stood on the site and indeed a part of it still remains in the form of an old ivy-covered wall. The present house, which is well over a century old, stands in extensive grounds—some six acres. The whole aspect of the place is decidedly rural.

Received by the managing director, Pemberton Billing, and in company with A. E. Hughes, sales manager, a tour of the works was made. The company's organization appears to have been planned out most effectively. There are two finely equipped recording rooms, reception and concert rooms, music library, store and stock rooms, general offices, etc., apart from managerial and departmental sections. Nothing has been left to chance, the most up-to-date systems having been installed and put into operation to promote efficient handling of the big trade anticipated.

The product itself may be described as revolutionary, since on one side of a twelve-inch record it is possible to imprint up to fifteen minutes of music, speech or song. As soon as the output of World records is sufficient to meet the home demand a selling campaign will be inaugurated in the American and other overseas markets.

Private Recording

Facilities for the private individual to record his or her own voice have been somewhat scarce. But to-day there are two firms in existence catering to this class of business. The first was the Darbycord Studios, run by Sinkler-Darby, whose experience dates back a couple of decades or more. Now we have the great music publishing house of Darewski entering the field. In this new business—or shall I call it a profession?—there are vast possibilities. A permanent phono record of your child's voice—a little song or recitation, a lecture on your favorite subject, a sermon, an electioneering or political speech, sales arguments; indeed, there are a hundred-and-one uses to which private recording may advantageously be put. It is even suggested as substitute for a Christmas card to send a personal message of greeting appropriate to the season or upon any other suitable occasion. An excellent idea, certainly. It is all just as easy as going to a photographer's. The cost is a little different, though, all things considered, quite moderate. For a dozen ten-inch records the charge is six guineas, extra discs at 3s. 6d. each. A dozen twelve-inch would run you into nine guineas, with 5s. 6d. for each extra record. The scheme is going very well, I am told, and patrons seem quite satisfied "to hear themselves as others hear them" via the Darewski service.

A New Gramophone Needle

Samples of a new needle called "The Gem" have been received. Being gold-plated it is of good appearance with medium taper point. The makers guarantee the tempering of this gramophone needle "to be identically the same as used for high-class surgical needles." I have tested the Gem on different records and should say that it doesn't miss much. Certainly every engraving on a record is reproduced to advantage and traders out to stock reliable "points" are quite safe with the Gem. It is the product of the Chemical Sundries Manufacturing Co., of Manchester, which, by the way, showed considerable enterprise in exhibiting at a recent wireless show in London. Here I had an interesting chat with Mr. Robson, who is not unknown in the States. This gentleman is an enthusiastic gramophone man of ideas. His "Glissoline," claimed to impart a new lease of life to old records, seems to have made "a palpable hit," judging by the manner in which it is advertised and sales results.

An Unspillable Record Album

Messrs. J. E. Hough, Ltd., of Edison-Bell fame, have introduced a new line of record albums which they call the Unspillable. It is built upon the expanding screw principle and so will carry up to 18 ten or twelve-inch discs. The album opens out flat and there is a pull-out index for easy selection of any record desired. Such a unique line is bound to appeal strongly and already good orders have been placed by the dealers.

A New Zonophone Program

This month's new record program of Zonophone issues is of a varied and pleasing quality. Among the vocals we must give pride of place to Sir Harry Lauder's new songs, which will doubtless prove as popular as the great artist himself. As a fact the two are inseparable. "Bella, the Belle o' Dunoon" and "Saturday Night" on G. O. 57 makes a really entertaining record and presents Sir Harry at his best. 2240 carries "Harlequin" and "Tom o' Malmesbury," a couple of attractive songs well rendered by Leonard Hubbard, baritone. Sweet-voiced Sydney Coltham, tenor, sings "Still as the Night" and "Farewell to Summer" in duet with Leonard Hubbard. Their voices blend harmoniously and both songs are rendered throughout with pleasing effect. On 2246 Melville Gideon sings and accompanies two of his own compositions, "If Winter Comes" and "Meanderin'." "Sunshine Bay" and "Wherever You Are" figure on record 2244 by Stuart Vaughan.

A couple of good selections by the Black Diamond Band are heard to advantage on record 2238. Described as a vocal waltz, "Drifting" is one of those ear-haunting compositions which will most certainly figure on every dance program this season. This chorus is twice sung by Stuart Vaughan as interlude between the fine rendering of the Black Diamonds. This band is responsible for another pleasing selection on the obverse, "The Sheik," an Arabian fox-trot. Altogether a very satisfactory list of which the above only forms a part.

The Duophone

This is a new gramophone just marketed here. The dual achievement which the name implies is represented by a double tone arm and twin sound boxes. Joined together, edge on as it were, the first diaphragm carries what is called a treble stylus, the second being equipped with a stouter bar for the bass. Both run into a single needle holder. By means of the double sound box arrangement sound is directed along separate channels or tone arms to the resonating chamber. This unique system is but one of several new features incorporated in the Duophone gramophones which are put up in choicely designed cabinets of different woods and styles. By the pressure of a knob on the outside of the cabinet the motor can instantly be stopped and the needle lifted off the record simultaneously. Quite a useful device.

At a recent and well-attended demonstration to members of the press the Rt. Hon. Earl of Hardwicke took the chair. Amid much enthusiasm several kinds of records were played and it was very evident by the applause of those present that the Duophone well justified its ability to distil sweet music with remarkable fidelity. The inventor, C. Leslie Newland; Wm. Noon, managing director, and other officials of the company were well pleased with the results of this public christening of the Duophone.

Miscellaneous Notes of Interest

Mme. Tetrizzini is once more with us. She has brought with her Signor Toto Amici, said to be a wonderful player of the guitar, who will accompany Madame when she makes some new H. M. V. records. A novel combination.

The Sonora agents here, Keith Prowse & Co., Ltd., announce that the price of Melodie model is reduced from £23 10s. to £19 10s. A pleasing effect of improved British-American money exchange.

The Vocalion record people have made a competitive move here by reducing the price of several labels and reclassifying others.

Notwithstanding a certain amount of opposition to the working basis of the hire-purchase scheme introduced by the Gramophone Co., Ltd., it is going stronger than ever. The success of this scheme, I am informed, justifies its continuance. To make it more widely known and appreciated the scheme is being generously advertised throughout the press.

Trade rumors that the Guardsman record is defunct are denied by Messrs. Lugton & Co., this city, who inform me that as owners of the trade-mark, matrices, etc., they are carrying on, making new issues monthly.

At the last Leipzig Fair the Gramophone exhibitors numbered twenty-seven. Many more exhibit at the Spring show.

Big sales are anticipated for the Regal records of the U. S. Naval Reserve Band just issued by the Columbia Co.

J. E. Hough, Ltd., announce a reduction in the prices of their Edison-Bell Discaphones and all orders are now executed on carriage-paid terms.

As bearing upon the industrial situation and the spending power of the people it is good news that during August a reduction of over five points in wholesale prices has been registered, while the price of industrial materials fell by 1 per cent.

Each week, too, shows a reduction of the number of unemployed. On August 28 the total of wholly unemployed was 1,331,400, being 2,289 less than in the preceding week and 492,333 below the figures recorded in January. Also there is a reduction of the number of short-time workers receiving relief.

The newspapers here have been devoting much space to the effect of the new import tariff adopted by America. Traders this side naturally raise strong objection to an increase of your tariff scale, averring that it will result in the almost entire exclusion of British manufactures from the U. S. A. markets. A political cloak, too, is thrown over many of the arguments raised against what is described as an economic problem. In comparison with other trades the amount of musical goods exported from this country to America is of negligible quantity. Nevertheless it is felt that your increased tariff duty will bar the export of British musical products.

VALUES ON CANADIAN IMPORTSAmended Form of Oath and Certificate of Value to Be Required After October 1

WASHINGTON, D. C., September 30.—An amended form of oath and certificate of value will be required by the Canadian Government for importations to Canada beginning October 1, according to advices received by the Department of Commerce. The most important change is the elimination of the following clause relating to fair market value from Oath Form 2, Certificate Form M and Declaration Form N:

"And that such fair market value is not lower than the wholesale price of the said goods at the said time and place, and that in the case of new or unused goods such fair market value is not less than the actual cost of production or similar goods at said time and place, plus a reasonable profit thereon;" and by adding the following paragraph to Forms M and N:

"That each article on this invoice is bona fide the produce or manufacture of the country specified on the invoice in the column provided for that purpose."

A column will now be required on Forms M and N, for the entry under general tariff, showing the country of manufacture or production.

LATEST PATENTS RELATING TO TALKING MACHINES AND RECORDS

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 10.—Phonograph.—Severin Joel Rognlie, Lewiston, Mont. Patent No. 1,420,668.

This invention is an improvement in phonographs and has for its object to provide mechanism for connection with a phonograph of any character, for providing a greater variety of tone, wherein, in addition to the main horn, there is an auxiliary trumpet horn opening at the back of the cabinet to produce a distant, trumpet effect. In the drawings: Figure 1 is a vertical section through a phonograph cabinet provided with the improvement; Fig. 2 is a similar view at right angles to Fig. 1; Fig. 3 is a side view of the connection between the trumpet horn and the main horn or amplifier; Fig. 4 is a vertical section of the same.

Sound-recording and Reproducing Machine.—Wm. E. Birket, Peoria, Ill. Patent No. 1,422,022.

This invention relates to sound-recording and reproducing machines, having especial reference, however, to certain mechanism in connection with the motor thereof and the so-called "tone arm," by which to govern the speed of rotation of the turntable upon which the record-disc is carried.

In present-day motor-operated machines the turntable is rotated at a certain definite speed. That is to say, the shaft carrying said table, in one type of machine at least, is driven at the arbitrary speed of seventy-eight revolutions per minute. This shaft speed, or any other speed, for that matter, means, therefore, that the record-disc must have the same speed. At the inner end or terminal of the scroll this rate of travel for the disc beneath the stylus is perhaps desirable, but at the margin of the disc the travel beneath the stylus is exceedingly rapid, which means, for purposes of comparison, that at said margin or the starting end of the scroll a recorded sound will be very long and two recorded sounds will be very widely spaced from one another, whereas at said inner terminus these recorded sounds will be short and lie very close together.

Now, were the impressions at the margins and over the entire intervening surface of the disc as closely placed as at the said inner terminus of the scroll it is clear that a much longer "record" could be produced in the same length of scroll for any given diameter of disc. And that this may be done it is necessary that the rate of travel of the disc beneath the stylus be the same at all times without respect to the position of such stylus.

The main object of the invention, therefore, is that of providing mechanism for so controlling the motor, whatever its type, that the speed of travel of the disc beneath the stylus will be the same at all positions of the latter between the beginning of the scroll and the terminus thereof, both in a recording and reproducing machine.

In the accompanying drawing Figure 1 is a plan of a conventional type of sound reproducing machine; Fig. 2 is a sectional elevation of part of the same on a larger scale taken on line 2—2, Fig. 1; Fig. 3 is a cross section of a tone-arm and a cam attached thereto; Fig. 4 is an elevation similar to Fig. 2 in which the parts are produced on a larger scale; Fig. 5 is a plan of certain mechanism shown in the previous figures, and Fig. 6 is a transverse section, in elevation, of a part shown both in Fig. 5 and some of the other figures.

Apparatus for Resetting Sound Reproducers. Jacob J. Riser, Shelbyville, Ind. Patent No. 1,421,568.

The present invention relates to mechanism for automatically repeating the reproduction from the record of a sound-reproducing apparatus, and the object is to provide a relatively simple structure which can be readily placed upon and will properly operate the usual mechanism of an apparatus of the above character.

In the accompanying drawings Figure 1 is a plan view of one well-known type of reproducing apparatus, showing the novel mechanism in place; Fig. 2 is a sectional view on the line 2—2 of Fig. 1; Fig. 3 is a plan view of the reproducer return mechanism; Fig. 4 is a detail sectional view on the line 4—4 of Fig. 3; Fig. 5 is a cross-sectional view taken substantially on the line 5—5 of Fig. 3; Fig. 6 is an end elevation of the structure shown in Fig. 3; Fig. 7 is a side elevation; Fig. 8 is a view in elevation of the stop abutment; Fig. 9 is a perspective view somewhat diagrammatic in its character of the operating mechanism; Fig. 10 is a plan view of a slightly modified form of construction.

Correction Device.—Frank C. Hinckley, Bridgeport, Conn., assignor to the Columbia Graphophone Co., same place. Patent No. 1,421,472.

This invention relates to so-called "correction devices" for sound-recording and sound-reproducing machines, and it has for an object to provide an improved device of this character which may be manipulated with ease and speed, and which is simple in construction, inexpensive to manufacture and install, and efficient in operation.

This application is a division of application Sr. No. 156,044, filed March 20, 1917.

Stated broadly, the invention comprises, in combination with a record-tablet support and a sound box movable across a record-tablet mounted thereon, a correction device comprising a support for a correction sheet, which is preferably rotatable, one or more markers for coaction with a correction sheet on said support, preferably mounted for movement into and out of operative relation with said support, and means for causing relative movement of said support and marker or markers simultaneously with and in proportion to the movement of the sound box across the record-tablet. When a plurality of markers are employed they are preferably so positioned as to coact respectively with different paths on the correction sheet, and also preferably so constructed as to make marks or indentations directed to the same point on a scale.

The invention is capable of receiving a variety of mechanical expressions, one of which is shown on the accompanying drawings, but it is to be expressly understood that the drawings are for purposes of illustration only and are not to be construed as a definition of the limits of the invention.

In said drawings Figure 1 is an elevation of a sound-recording or reproducing machine provided with a correction device in accordance with the present invention; Fig. 2 is a bottom plan view of the machine; Fig. 3 is an enlarged vertical section of the correction device; Fig. 4 is a perspective showing somewhat diagrammatically the operative connections between the sound-box carriage and the correction-sheet support; and Fig. 5 is a detail of certain elements of the correction device.

Talking Machine.—Delaware J. Hood, Philadelphia, Pa. Patent No. 1,422,712.

The object of this invention is to provide a talking machine and a support and enclosure therefor, so adapted one to the other as to enhance the beauty of the whole, reduce the required floor space and at the same time provide an amplifier of relatively large area.

The invention comprises a talking machine, all the parts of which, including the motor, sound record table, tone arm and amplifier, are mounted on the rear of a door which may constitute the front of an enclosure. The enclosure may be portable, the amplifier being arranged vertically above the record table and opening through the upper part of the door itself, thereby directing the sound into the upper portion of the room.

Fig. 2 is a sectional view; Fig. 3 is a detached front view of the sound amplifier; Fig. 4 is a detail sectional view through a portion of the door and the portion of the amplifier adjacent thereto; and Fig. 5 is a detail view of the adjustable sound box.

Automatic Phonograph.—Hadwen Swain, San Francisco, Cal. Patent No. 1,422,321.

This invention relates to an automatic phonograph.

It is the principal object of this invention to provide a phonograph adapted to be actuated to consecutively or selectively play a series of phonograph records.

The invention contemplates the use of a disc magazine which operates in conjunction with a mechanism for selectively removing the discs from the magazine and placing them in playing relation to a reproducing mechanism for consecutive or continuous playing, thereafter restoring the disc to the magazine after the playing operation and discontinuing the operation of the motor by which the entire apparatus is driven, said mechanism also embodying means for automatically adjusting the tone arm to records of varying diameters.

The example in the drawings: Figure 1 is a view in plan disclosing the phonograph case within which is positioned the disc magazine, the reproducer mechanism and the timing apparatus connecting the magazine and said mechanism; Fig. 2 is a view in vertical section as seen on the line 2—2 of Fig. 1, particularly disclosing the mechanism for controlling the discs and whereby they are transferred from the magazine to the turntable and thereafter returned. Fig. 3 is an enlarged view in plan illustrating the coin control mechanism. Fig. 4 is a view in end elevation illustrating the stop arm for receiving the records and further disclosing the manner in which this arm is oscillated to accommodate records of various diameters; Fig. 5 is an enlarged fragmentary view illustrating the timing mechanism of the apparatus; Fig. 6 is an enlarged view in side elevation illustrating the cam by which the magazine escapement is operated; Fig. 7 is a view disclosing the gear latch mechanism; Fig. 8 is a fragmentary view in plan illustrating the disc return mechanism; Fig. 9 is an enlarged view disclosing the magnet by which the disc return is effected; Fig. 10 is a view in elevation illustrating the shifting yoke used in the disc return mechanism; Fig. 11 discloses views in side and end elevation of the lower disc runway; Fig. 12 discloses views in side and end elevation of the upper disc runway; Fig. 13 is a view in elevation illustrating the disc centering mechanism as seen transversely of the machine; Fig. 14 is a view in elevation illustrating the connecting members by which the centering pin is operated, as shown in Fig. 13; Fig. 15 is an enlarged view of the reproducing arm and the contact members carried thereby as well as the electrical connections to said contact members; Fig. 16 is a view in end elevation of the reproducer arm; Fig. 17 is a diagrammatic view of a phonograph disc proper with the stop members which the present invention requires; Fig. 18 discloses views in plan and side elevation of the stop member, which is applied to the phonograph disc; Fig. 19 is a view of a switch member; Fig. 20 is a view in plan illustrating a circular disc magazine; Fig. 21 is a view in elevation illustrating the ratchet holes therealong; Fig. 22 is a view illustrating a lock plate in its operative and inoperative positions; Fig. 23 is a view in elevation illustrating the magazine feed pawl; Fig. 24 is a view in elevation illustrating the magazine lock pawl.

Phonograph. James Shaw, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. Patent No. 1,422,310.

This invention relates to improvements in phonographs, and the object of the invention is to devise means for increasing the tonal qualities of the instrument, to take away all harshness and to mellow and enrich the tone.

tional view on line 2—2, Fig. 1; Fig. 3 is a diminutive perspective view of the device for increasing the tonal qualities of the instrument.

Record Turner for Phonographs. Glenn R. Knick, Troy, Ohio. Patent No. 1,422,989.

This invention relates to new and useful improvements in phonographs and particularly to mechanisms for manipulating the records thereof.

One object of the invention is to provide a mechanism by means of which a record will be lifted from the turntable, turned over, and replaced on the turntable.

Another object is to provide a mechanism whereby the sound box and tone arm will be lifted from the record, when the inner groove has been reached, the record lifted and turned over, the record replaced on the turntable, and the sound box and tone arm moved into position for playing the other side of the record.

A further object resides in the provision of means for adjusting the mechanism for operation with either a ten or twelve-inch record.

In the drawings:

Figure 1 is a side elevation of the mechanism, the top board and turntable being shown in connection therewith; Fig. 2 is a side elevation viewed from the opposite to that of Fig. 1; Fig. 3 is an elevation looking toward the back of the tone arm; Fig. 4 is a top plan view, a portion of the turntable being removed; Fig. 5 is a bottom plan view of the top or motor board, showing the portions of the mechanism mounted thereon; Fig. 6 is a vertical sectional view through the device, on the line 6—6 of Fig. 4, showing the record gripping means and the spring engaging the flattened portion of the shaft thereof; Fig. 7 is a vertical sectional view through the device on the line 7—7 of Fig. 3; Fig. 8 is an enlarged detail view of the tripping pawl means, in connection with the ratchet wheel, of the record turning arms; Fig. 9 is a detail view of the blocks by means of which the record gripping arms are regulated to grip

a ten-inch or twelve-inch record; Fig. 10 is a horizontal sectional view taken on the line 10—10 of Fig. 1, just below the lower face of the motor board; Fig. 11 is a detail view of the gear 72 and the pawl means carried thereby.

Phonographic Sound Box. Louis J. Bergdoll (by judicial change Bergson), Philadelphia, Pa. Patent No. 1,423,387.

It is an object of this invention to provide a phonographic sound box, for use with the usual types of phonographic and other similar sound-reproducing machines, that from a record will reproduce music and faithfully, and that will avoid to a minimum the production of sound occasioned by the usual scratch or contact interference of the stylus-point or equivalent on the record.

With this object in view, the invention provides between the sound box and stylus-point means so arranged as to absorb shocks imparted by inequalities in the record to the stylus-point in a plane substantially parallel with that of the diaphragm.

Brush for Talking Machines. Thomas S. Grow, Allentown, Pa. Patent No. 1,324,523.

This invention relates to a brush device used in connection with talking machines for sweeping the record discs thereof and thus dislodging and removing all dust and other foreign particles from the grooves of the disc in which the needle works.

The invention has for its object to provide a very simple and efficient brush device of the kind stated, which can be readily attached to the machine, and which is so positioned that it does not interfere with the proper operation of the machine.

In the drawing: Figure 1 is a plan view of a phonograph partly broken away, showing an embodiment of the device and Fig. 2 is an elevation of the device partly in section.

Mrs. Hilda Murphy, formerly with the R. L. Berry Music House, Springfield, Ill., is now connected with the record department of Block & Kuhl, Victor dealers, of that city.

WILLIAM B. MURRAY TO WED

DAVENPORT, IA., October 7.—The engagement of William B. Murray, manager of the Victrola Shop in the Harned & Von Maur Store and well known to the talking machine trade in this section of the State, to Miss Laura Barry, of this city, has been announced, and Mr. Murray is receiving the congratulations of his many friends. Miss Barry is in charge of the record department, where she has achieved considerable success. The wedding is scheduled for October 16.

POPULAR IN SOUTH AMERICA

The Wall-Kane Needle Mfg. Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., manufacturer of needles of this brand name, reports generally good business. The volume of business from South American countries, where Spanish is the spoken language, has reached such proportions that the familiar Well-Kane packages, counter display stands, cartons, etc., are now printed in Spanish as well as English. These Spanish-printed cartons, etc., are also available to dealers in Spanish-speaking sections of this country.

DEMAND HAS GREATLY INCREASED

NEW HAVEN, CONN., October 9.—A considerably increased demand for its product was reported by the Bell Hood Needle Co., of this city, to a representative of The World. The Bell Hood needle has been on the market for several years and it was stated that it is proving an excellent sales item to the many dealers carrying the line. A number of new dealers have been added this season. The future business outlook is reported to be very encouraging.

TO CONTINUE BUSINESS

W. H. Hill, jeweler, of Punxsutawney, Pa., has sold the talking machine and record department of his business to Samuel X. Jordan, who will continue it.

The NEW Scotford Tonearm and Superior Reproducer

A new external shape of grace and beauty—without changing the internal design:

That same angle turn with the solid inclined plane deflecting the sound waves straight downward into amplifying chamber. That same famous Scotford tone—the tone of refinement—genuinely musical. Now in a tonearm of accepted, conventional, popular design. WRITE FOR SAMPLES.

NEW CONSTRUCTION

The long straight tube is of drawn Yellow Brass. Tonearm Base, Main Elbow and Connection Elbow and the Reproducer Frame, Face Ring and Back Plate are cast of TENSO White Brass Alloy—an alloy more than double the tensile strength of cast iron—much stronger, harder and lighter in weight than ordinary white metal alloys. New dies have been produced for casting all parts. The new parts are solidly cast, and are very substantial and durable.

OPENS MANY NEW SONORA ACCOUNTS

Griffith Piano Co., Sonora Distributor, of Newark, N. J., Places Sonora With Live Dealers—Intensive Drive Now Under Way

NEWARK, N. J., November 8.—The Griffith Piano Co., Sonora wholesaler for the State of New Jersey, is extremely busy at this time taking care of Sonora dealers throughout the State. Plans formulated a short time ago which called for an intensive campaign are now bearing fruit and very gratifying results in sales of all models of Sonora phonographs are being enjoyed. Herbert Young, who has been doing special work for this progressive wholesaler, and who recently joined the organization, is spending considerable time with dealers everywhere, helping them make plans for the holiday rush and putting their stores in first-class shape. This service is keenly appreciated by Sonora dealers, who have been materially helped in many ways.

Mr. Young in his trips around the State has found dealers very optimistic concerning business this Winter and prophesies one of the most prosperous seasons on record. Sales of all Sonora models have been very gratifying and especially so has this been true in the sales of the Marquette, Lafayette and Queen Anne models, which were recently added to the Sonora catalog.

Several new Sonora dealers have been established, including H. Pinsky & Son Co., which conducts a live talking machine store on Broadway, Camden, N. J. This new account is one of the largest yet secured by the company and in a short time will be housed in a large new store which Mr. Pinsky is erecting a few blocks from his present location. A complete line of Sonora models has been installed by Mr. Pinsky, who is engaged in a vigorous sales drive. The Sonora was featured by him in a very attractive window display, which created considerable interest. Other new dealers are Fred Michaelis, who has conducted a talking machine business for some time past on Jackson street, Jersey City, and the Hyde Music Shop, 366 Central avenue, Jersey City; Weeguahic Music Shop, at 1001½ Bergen avenue, Newark, which has taken on the complete Sonora line. This concern was introduced to the Newark public by an informal opening, which was attended by a large number of people. F. Allen, of the Griffith Piano Co., accompanied by Herbert Young, were in charge of the opening. Another dealer opened recently is the store conducted by A. Renenschneider, of this city. This store carried a very attractive window display, resulting in the sale of a Queen Anne $250 Sonora model and an Imperial $150. Attractive literature was distributed to a large number of persons and numbers of the Sonora walking dolls were given away.

GERALDINE FARRAR'S RECITAL TOUR

Geraldine Farrar, famous Victor artist, started on a concert tour last month, appearing in a number of cities, among them Portland, Ore., where Victor dealers took advantage of her appearance to feature her recordings for the Victor Co. Victor dealers in other cities where the artist is scheduled to sing should take advantage of this opportunity of tying up with Miss Farrar in advertising and window displays, thus profiting from her appearance.

CROSBY BROS. REMODELING STORE

TOPEKA, KAN., November 2.—Crosby Bros. department store is improving its music department by thorough reorganization and remodeling. The phonograph department, in which Edison machines and records are featured, is being moved to the front of the mezzanine floor. Miss Sally Knight has been placed in charge.

GREAT RADIO BROADCASTING STATION AT AEOLIAN HALL

Radio Corp. of America to Erect Station on Roof as Central Broadcasting Headquarters—Will Broadcast Two Programs at Different Wave Lengths Simultaneously

Formal announcement has just been made of the consummation of arrangements by the Radio Corp. of America for the erection of a most powerful and complete broadcasting station on top of the Aeolian Building, 29 West Forty-second street, New York. The announcement has aroused great interest not only among radio fans, but among those interested in the promotion of music.

Negotiations for the erection of the station have been pending nearly a year and were closed last month. The erection of the station has already begun and it is expected to be in operation within a very short time.

The selection of Aeolian Hall as the metropolitan headquarters of the combined broadcasting of the larger companies promoting this industry in this city was made after a survey of all possible locations in New York City. There were a number of severe requirements in locating this station, in that it will probably be not only the largest and most powerful of its kind, but also serve as a model for radio activities throughout the world. The Radio Corp., which will operate this station in conjunction with the companies of which it controls the sale of their products, will here create an entirely new standard of broadcasting music. Hence it was absolutely necessary to find a building with a clear aerial path and one so centrally located that it be accessible to all artists participating in broadcasting. It was also of great importance that the building itself be a representative one in the minds of the public.

On the roof of the Aeolian Building will be erected two 100-foot skeleton towers and between them will be stretched the aerial for transmitting this radio service. On the sixth floor of the building large quarters have been leased for the studios of the Radio Corp., where all of the programs will be carried out, and these, in turn, will be relayed to the roof from where the power transmission will take place. The Radio Corp. engineers have prescribed equipment of the most modern character for this station, and when in operation it will for the first time send out two concerts simultaneously, using different wave-lengths. Thus an owner of a radio receiving set will be able to choose between two different programs.

The choice of Aeolian Hall as site for a central broadcasting station is a happy one, for not only is the equipment of the Hall with its magnificent pipe organ and other resources ideal for the purpose, but it will make a special appeal to the artists who participate in the broadcasting programs.

The Aeolian Co. has for some time past taken a very active interest in the preparation of broadcasting programs and has been instrumental in having a number of its exclusive Duo-Art and Vocalion record artists demonstrate their talents via radio, either in person or through the medium of their recordings.

DEVELOPING SALES OF ACCESSORIES DURING HOLIDAYS

Energetic Drive on Accessories Should Be Made an Integral Part of Holiday Campaign—Proper Presentation Will Find the Public in a Receptive Mood, Especially at This Season

With the holiday season almost at hand and dealers everywhere preparing elaborate advertising and sales campaigns to bring their wares forcibly before the public, the question of pushing accessories, no doubt, will be overlooked by many. Most of these drives will take the form of urging the public to consider talking machines and records as gifts. It is safe to say, however, that many merchants have given little or no thought to pushing equally hard the many talking machine accessories now on the market which add so greatly to the effectiveness and enjoyment of the instrument.

Now, accessories, especially at this time, can be made an important part of the business and, moreover, since quick stock turnover measures profit the dealer will be given an opportunity of disposing of stock which has graced his shelves for some time, thus realizing a profit on his investment and at the same time providing greater enjoyment to his customers from their talking machines and opening up possibilities for increased record sales.

How to do this is the question, but the answer is simple enough—merely advertising and window displays along the same lines used in the holiday campaigns on talking machines and records. It is not necessary to devote exclusive advertising space to accessories alone, but a portion of all advertising should, in the most attractive and forcible manner possible, call the attention of the public to the necessity of certain accessories, such as sound boxes, record albums, record repeaters, record brushes, etc., for the enjoyment of their instruments.

Nor is it necessary to devote an entire window display to accessories. The power of suggestion is a great force and a window in which a talking machine, a few records and accessories are displayed in such a manner that the necessity of each for the other is brought out will produce results. Placards, neatly printed, could be used to advantage in showing a display to explain the functioning of each accessory and be used to suggest certain accessories as gifts.

Every organization is made up of a certain number of units and no business can be an outstanding success if certain units of the business are pushed to the exclusion of others. It is a game of co-operation and true co-operation in the talking machine business means quick turnover on each unit, i. e., talking machines, records, accessories. A fair-sized stock of accessories takes a considerable investment, and while not nearly as large as that required for a complete machine stock or record library no merchant can afford to neglect this branch of his business.

MANILA DEALER VISITS NEW YORK

O. S. Cole, Vice-president of France & Goulette, Inc., Manila, P. I., Calls at World Sanctum

A visitor to New York this month was O. S. Cole, vice-president of France & Goulette, Inc., of Manila, Philippine Islands. This firm has been in business for a number of years, handling Sonora phonographs and musical instruments of all kinds, and Mr. Cole's visit to the metropolis was a combined business and pleasure trip. While here he visited several recording companies with the object in view of becoming the local agent for a line of talking machine records.

Business in Manila has shown a decided increase recently, according to Mr. Cole, who visited The World offices while in town. He declared that although the first months of the present year were exceptionally dull in the musical field the steady increase in trade during the last few months indicates a bright future.

Meeting the Problem of Maintaining the Owner's Interest in the Talking Machine

One of the chief problems of the dealer in musical instruments of the automatic and semi-automatic types, such as talking machines or player-pianos, is that of maintaining the interest of the purchaser in the instrument so that he may prove a good customer for records and rolls. It is found, in many cases, that six months represent the average period during which the family takes a really active interest in their talking machine or the player-piano, and after that time the instrument is played only at intervals and the interest in the buying of new records and rolls begins to wane.

It is for the purpose of keeping the owner interested in his instrument that retailers are so strongly advised to feature records of the better sort—records that will be as interesting and timely ten years from now as they are today, for when a substantial library of such records can be placed in a home it means that the instrument will be kept more or less in steady operation and the demand for the popular numbers of the current monthly lists will keep up in proportion.

To build up a record library that will have the proper appeal to the individual owner requires a considerable amount of intelligent study on the part of the dealer or his salesmen. It is not sufficient for him to go through the record catalog and pick out a score or a hundred good records at random, but he must endeavor to select records of a character that will appeal directly to the individual he seeks to interest. It is not essential that the owners have a broad musical education to be interested in records of good music. On the contrary, the individual with only a limited musical knowledge is frequently found to be partial to records of certain classes—such as violin and 'cello solos, trio or quartet numbers, or vocal records of a particular sort, or by a certain favorite artist or artists.

Also it happens frequently that the average talking machine dealer is too well content in confining himself to the handling of the monthly record releases and in featuring better records only in his own store to develop and carry on any definite campaign that has for its object the building up of record demand six months or a year hence. He finds for himself that by selling a sufficient number of machines each year he creates new record customers and gets from them a fairly satisfactory volume of business. The fact that machine buyers of last year are often missing from his list of regular customers does not worry him as it should.

Although it is estimated that there are over six million talking machines in use, or rather in homes, in the United States, or one machine for every three or four families, and instruments continue to be produced and sold at the rate of several hundred thousand annually, the point of satiation, so far as the talking machine is concerned, seems to be far in the future. However, the thinking minds of the industry have been and are considering ways and means for keeping the business on a healthy permanent basis, at some time in the future when the instruments themselves are not so greatly in demand as at the present time. All such plans for insuring the permanence of the trade naturally rest on record distribution. Even under present conditions the average talking machine owner cannot be kept interested in his instrument continually and the problem, therefore, must be threshed out from the present-day angle, so that future emergencies may be met intelligently.

It can be said with truth that every piece of music, among the classics and semi-classics, that has real merit has already been recorded in one form or another. The talking machine record catalogs offer a wealth of music greater than the world has ever known before. Simply to have it in a catalog, however, is not sufficient. It is by the establishment of comprehensive and valuable talking machine record libraries in the home that the permanence of the industry can be assured.

There are those who see in the campaign being carried on for the advancement of music a solution of the problem through the development of a greater appreciation for music among the masses, but we must not lose sight of the fact that the talking machine itself has been more of a contributor to this cause of musical advancement and increased musical appreciation than it has benefited therefrom.

The problem for the future, summed up, is that of making the talking machine an object of interest in the home, not only for three or six months, while it is new and novel, but for a period of years. The profits of the industry lie primarily in record sales, and the record sales of the future will depend upon this maintenance of continued healthy interest.

GRAINGER COMPOSING IN DENMARK

Percy Grainger, the celebrated pianist and Columbia artist, is now in Denmark visiting Evald Tang Kristensen, Denmark's greatest collector of folk songs and folk lore. Grainger and Kristensen have motored through the country accompanied by a phonograph of the old cylinder type and in the course of seven days collected no less than eight melodies, many of them of great antiquity and rarity. It is not at all improbable that Mr. Grainger will embody these folk songs in compositions which will be heard later the world over.

BUSH & GERTS ADD BRUNSWICK LINE

DALLAS, TEX., November 6.—The Brunswick line of phonographs and records has been added to the lines handled by the Bush & Gerts Piano Co., this city. The Bush Temple of Music, 1311 Elm street, which was constructed following a fire last June, is considered one of the finest music houses in the Southwest. On the opening day an unusually attractive window display featuring the Brunswick line created considerable comment.

Unpreparedness Is the Foe of Opportunities in Modern Business :: :: By H. A. Beach

Vice-President Unit Construction Co.

The spectacular recovery of talking machine business during the past two months should once and for all put at rest those "doubting Thomases" who, because the buying public found it necessary to declare a holiday on things not absolutely essential in order to get its wind after the strenuous war-time period, entertained and expressed fear that the talking machine would no longer hold sway in the realm of music and that it was time for them to hunt other fields of profit and endeavor. Unfortunately there were quite a number of dealers who held such views and it was probably they who prevented a quicker return to prosperity than has actually been experienced.

Now that we are back again—and surely no one can doubt it—why not look the future squarely in the face determining that we are through with the silly idea that this business has its limitations and buckle into the harness for the strongest pull ever made for the returns that we all know the talking machine is capable of giving.

Yes, and why not give to the limit, as your respective positions allow, for the furtherance of the high public regard for the talking machine and help it to forever maintain its standing in the American home as The Musical Instrument Supreme.

Remember, Mr. Dealer, full satisfaction in business does not come from participation in profits alone, for the real satisfaction comes from the thought of being a contributor to the general scheme of things. Therefore, if you intend to rest your business on a good solid foundation and expect to derive happiness from this delightful and profitable business take an interest in its uplift and give full quota to helpful advertising, develop and put behind your line all the promotional strength and prestige your position will permit and see that the trade name of your line is a by-word in your community, well linked with your own honestly earned reputation. By such means only are you going to become a "stockholder" in this big enterprise.

Happily many added refinements are to be noted this year among the standard lines and the dealer is in much better position as a result to meet the demands of his discriminating customers. The fact is that the up-to-date talking machine store is a veritable art shop, not to be surpassed by those shops handling any other high-class art objects. The transformation from those stores of ten years ago is truly remarkable. We cannot help but wonder what the next ten years hold forth.

Getting back to trade conditions the writer knows of no better barometer for this industry than the business in which he is involved, for the simple reason that the average dealer does not make expenditure in added store equipment unless satisfied that the "times" justify.

To say business has been active for the past two months and more is putting it mildly. The Unico plant is a veritable beehive and hurry-up orders are coming in to us every day, usually with an advance query by wire of "When can you ship?" Invariably the answer is "Immediately." This typifies the state of mind of the average dealer. He had waited for the break and now that it has arrived he is determined not to get caught napping if he can help it.

If your house is not in order—

If your sales force is not recruited to proper strength to meet busy times—

If your store is not properly arranged to take care of a volume of business—

If your sales facilities are in any way inadequate—

If your own and your sales people's minds are not adjusted to the new era we have just entered, get busy now, for there is no time to lose.

Opportunity waits for no unprepared man; it comes, and if preparations for its coming have been made it will tarry, if not, there are other places to go.

EQUIPPED FOR APPEAL TO BUYING PUBLIC

THE predictions made early in the year regarding an unusually active Fall and holiday season in the talking machine trade are proving to have been well founded and the retailers throughout the country handling the leading lines of instruments and records have begun to realize the soundness of the advice offered by manufacturers and wholesalers some months ago to order early and liberally in order to avoid the troubles that come with a shortage of stock. This shortage has already made itself apparent in the machine field and promises to become more serious as the peak of the holiday demand approaches.

Meanwhile the dealers have, through the efforts of manufacturers, been placed in an ideal position for making an unusually strong appeal to the buying public and doing a great volume of business. In the matter of machines there have been put on the market, during the past year by the leading manufacturers, a number of new and very desirable styles, particularly in horizontal or console models, at prices that enable the leaders to appeal to all tastes and pocketbooks.

Then, too, just as the Fall business gets really under way, the Victor Co. announces the largest and most comprehensive record exchange plan in the history of the trade, cutting out over a thousand recorded selections, practically 20 per cent of the entire catalog, at a cost to the company estimated at $2,000,000. The Brunswick Co. has also announced a record exchange which is calculated to clear the dealers' shelves of slow-selling numbers and give them a chance to invest in and exploit records of a more popular character. The Columbia Co's cut-out took place in the Summer.

The record exchanges coming at this particular time not only serve to clear out slow-selling records, but release for the dealer tied-up capital running into hundreds and, in many cases, thousands of dollars. This comes about through the fact that the record exchange makes it possible for the dealer to replenish his record stock without the expenditure of cash, and the money that would ordinarily go for the purpose of such new record stock can be used for the purchase of more machines or for the development of business along other lines.

In announcing record exchange plans the various companies show in a most tangible manner their interest in the dealer's welfare and their desire to place him in a position to keep his stock in shape to produce quick and profitable turnovers. It is to be admitted that this interest is in a sense selfish for the prosperity of the manufacturer naturally rests upon the prosperity of the dealer, but the trade is to be congratulated upon the fact that the manufacturers, whose ability and foresight have made the industry what it is, realize those things that are necessary to keep it active and healthy. For a company to recall and destroy $2,000,000 worth of records requires courage and foresight.

With record stocks in first-class shape at holiday time talking machine dealers will be in a position to take full advantage of opportunities for business building and to get all the sales that are in sight. This improved record situation will, in some way at least, offset losses of sales that are in prospect because of the scarcity that will develop in certain types of machines. Altogether it looks as though the talking machine business during the next few months will be of a volume that will make history.

KEEPING IN TOUCH WITH MUSICAL EVENTS

THE formal opening of the musical season occurs this month, and from now until next Spring we will hear the greatest artists in the world in opera, and artists equally as great in both instrumental and vocal recitals. A large number of these artists are widely known in the talking machine trade and in the musical world generally through their records, and it behooves the dealers to keep in close touch with their activities and so shape their publicity plans and window displays as to tie up with the work of these celebrities and capitalize their reputation and fame.

There have been some complaints that only a very small percentage of the dealers in our industry pay heed to this advice. Whether because of indifference or lack of comprehension of the value of tying up with these musical events, the fact remains that a great many dealers have not done as much as they might in utilizing these effective sales means.

Keeping in touch with the artists and utilizing their activities in a popular way emphasizes not only the importance of the talking machine but its artistic position in the musical world. It impresses those skeptically inclined with the wonderful position which the talking machine occupies as a real interpreter of the music of the great masters as well as the favorites in the popular field. It also conveys the fact that the talking machine is to-day a tremendous factor in the development of musical knowledge and appreciation.

As a matter of fact talking machines and records have accomplished more in this direction than all the other mediums in the music trade and profession combined. Hence every dealer should deem it a duty to develop his business along lines that will tie up with musical affairs. He should be a leader in the community. He should keep in touch with music advancement in the broad sense of the word and should be interested in every band or orchestral concert, every community sing and every music memory contest which occurs in his community. Every affair of this kind creates a direct interest in the instruments that produce music, and among such instruments the talking machine stands well to the front. For the next six months great operatic and orchestral organizations and singers and instrumentalists of international fame will be strongly in evidence, and the dealer is not doing his duty to himself or to the industry if he ignores them.

SHORTER TERMS AND MORE CASH DESIRABLE

IN many lines of business where fixed prices do not obtain, either through definite agreement or general understanding, prices are regulated chiefly by the law of supply and demand. When goods are scarce there is a tendency to take advantage of the situation and jack up the price, while on the other hand when goods are plentiful competition forces the shaving of prices. In the talking machine trade a shortage of stock does not bring with it an opportunity for increasing prices from the fact that prices of various models are well advertised, nationally and locally, and the advertised price is invariably the maximum price.

Talking machine dealers, however, can and should take advantage of the machine shortage that already exists in some localities, and promises to develop in others, to shorten terms and hold out for cash wherever possible. When there is a surplus of machines it takes courage to chance the loss of a sale rather than let the instrument go out on terms that run over a year, but when the dealer has only a limited number of machines to offer he owes it to himself to demand and hold out for cash or terms that are well within reason.

He must bear in mind that the instruments sold between now and Christmas cannot in many cases be replaced until after the first of the year, and if he has let them go out of his store on a basis of $3 or $5 a month he is going to feel pretty badly if he is later compelled to turn down cash-paying prospects for machines of that particular type. The manner in which the average dealer handles the question of terms during the next couple of months will have a direct bearing on whether or not he realizes the profit that should be his as a result of an unusual business opportunity. If, on the other hand, he is content to have a safe full of installment paper in lieu of cash that is his lookout.

TIMELY RECORD MERCHANDISING SUGGESTIONS

EVERY once in so often the daily papers carry news stories telling of renewed activities of those who, for one reason or another, feel that they are called upon to save the nation from the "curse of jazz," and who announce through appropriate propaganda that they plan to elevate the character of the popular songs of the day. At more or less regular intervals also, the various associations in the music industry, local and national, put forth a demand for better music and discuss seriously the question of featuring sheet music, rolls and records of better grade, to the exclusion of jazz and popular music. Fortunately for the trade, however, business is conducted primarily for profit, and even those who are loud in their condemnation of the low musical taste of the public realize that over 80 per cent of the roll and record business, particularly, is in popular music.

While making up the bulk of their monthly lists from the popular music, the record and roll manufacturers are not paradoxical when they urge that the retailers devote their attention largely to the exploitation of classics and semi-classics of the more permanent type. The logic of their position lies in the fact that popular numbers sell themselves, while music of the other sort must be sold to the public or at least exploited to a point where the buying public gains an appreciation of its real value.

One prominent dealer in the West makes it a rule in his establishment for the salesman to recommend some standard or semi-classic record whenever he is asked by a customer for something that is good. This particular dealer realizes that the bulk of his business is in popular numbers but also realizes that they sell themselves. His argument is that by pushing records of the higher grade numbers he is really creating an extra sale because the customer is going to buy the popular record anyhow without solicitation.

Popular records, of course, are what keep the average talking machine store running profitably, and the fact that every sale of high-class records makes profit over and above operating expenses should prove a distinct inducement to the dealer and his salesmen

THE Talking Machine World offers a prize of ten dollars monthly for the next three months for the best article of from four hundred to five hundred words from a dealer, salesman or traveler setting forth an original and practical idea, or a proven plan, for selling or exploiting talking machines or records, or improving collections. The contests will close on the first day of December, January and February. One dollar each will be paid for all articles which do not win prizes, but which are deemed worthy of publication because of the ideas they contain. The plans or ideas must be practical and tested. Address articles to "Contest Editor, Talking Machine World, 373 Fourth Avenue, New York."

to concentrate on that department of the business. If selling effort must be put forth it can just as well be used where it is needed rather than where it is really unnecessary.

FORCING THE ISSUE IN HOLIDAY TRADE

THE Christmas buying season will be well under way when the next issue of The World comes out, and it is timely to suggest that dealers throughout the country should give most careful attention to the perfecting of ways and means of interesting the public in talking machines, records and accessories to a greater extent this year than ever before. While talking machines and records have grown in favor as Christmas gifts, their sales in this connection can be increased a thousand per cent provided dealers display more intelligence and enthusiasm in bringing their merits to the attention of the purchasers in their locality.

With ample stock on hand dealers should start their advertising and window campaigns early. They should let the public know exactly how it can be served around the holiday season, and why talking machines and records are most acceptable gifts—how they act as a constant reminder of the thoughtfulness and generosity of the donor and afford unending pleasure.

There are plenty of arguments to be adduced in favor of talking machines and records as Christmas presents, and it is the duty of the small dealer as well as the large dealer to go after this holiday trade and capture his share of it. It will be well for dealers to analyze the sales field from every viewpoint, and by their methods and policies convince the public that their store is the store to visit and to do business with. The buying mood must be cultivated and this should not be difficult because there are so many good reasons why people should express their sentiments of affection and greetings through music.

Four Merchandising Suggestions Worthy the Consideration of Dealers :: By Frank H. Williams

There ought to be a talking machine in every restaurant and in every candy store in your city with a good supply of records which could be played by customers free of charge whenever they felt like doing so.

Most candy stores realize that a little music in the store is a big asset. It attracts people as almost nothing else will. And there's no doubt in the world that music supplied by the talking machine is particularly adapted for such establishments. So there should be no very great difficulty in making sales to these stores.

With the restaurants there might be a little more difficulty, due to the fact that the owner would be compelled to pay a royalty to the publishers of all copyrighted selections. Prospects should be apprised of this fact during the course of the sales talk. A good sales argument follows:

"You say you never heard of the average popular restaurant using a talking machine in this way. Well, is that any reason why it shouldn't be started? You know, of course, how valuable music is to the bigger restaurants of the larger cities in getting more patronage. You know that these bigger restaurants employ special orchestras and make a big thing of their musical programs. And, surely, if music is a fine thing for the bigger restaurants it will also be a good thing for the smaller restaurants. People like music with their meals. By putting in a phonograph and letting the customers themselves play the machine, if desired, you will be giving your patrons music in as wide a variety as possible and also attracting trade."

Of course, whenever you do put a talking machine in a local candy store or restaurant you should play up the fact in your newspaper advertising and use each sale as an argument why other institutions of the same class should buy machines from you for the same purpose.

Selling the Returned Vacationist

A wide-awake dealer in a Western city worked a stunt the other day which is worth noting. He got in touch with the people in his community who had been away on vacations for the Summer and who had now returned to their homes. The idea behind such a plan was that the majority of these people had heard and appreciated talking machine music during their vacations and might now be in a mood favorable to the purchase of machines and records for their own homes.

Practical Pointers on Varied Opportunities for Increasing Trade in Talking Machines, Records and Supplies

The salesman who made the personal call used this line of argument: "No doubt a phonograph added greatly to your Summer enjoyment. It helped you dance and made the evenings pass more pleasantly. Isn't this the case?"

In most instances the answer was in the affirmative, which encouraged the salesman to descant as follows: "Of course talking machines are important in adding to the delight of the Summer vacationist, but they perform their greatest service in making homes happy in the Winter time. There is nothing like music around the house to cheer one up. Let us prove this contention by putting a talking machine in your home for a demonstration."

If it developed that the person to whom this talk was being addressed already owned a machine then the salesman swung the conversation around to the selling of records and emphasized the wonderful array of new records which had been placed on the market in the past three or four months, placing special emphasis on certain records which, he felt from his conversation, the party was interested in.

This salesman found that the people who had come back from vacations and were fixing up their homes for the Winter were in a very receptive frame of mind for the purchase of machines or, where they had them, of records. The experience of this dealer is worth passing along to others. It is not yet too late, because the majority of home people do not commence to arrange their apartments for Winter occupancy until late in November.

Tying Up With Orchestras and Recitals

Now that the Fall is here the alert dealer handling talking machines and records should keep in close touch with the local song recitals and particularly with the programs of the popular orchestras which are playing in the hotels and halls where dancing is greatly in vogue. For instance, study the program played at some local hotel or dance hall and note the pieces that are most in favor by the dancers. Select the records of these pieces and place them in your show window with a placard reading like this: "The patrons of the So-and-So hotel or dance hall are crazy about these selections," and follow it up with another window card talk to the effect that "The most popular dance music now being played by the ——— orchestra at the ——— hotel or dance hall is to be found here on these records. Why not get these selections and dance to them in your own home? You will then understand their popularity."

This sort of window display would be timely and unusual, and for this reason would be sure to attract a greater amount of attention and would be certain to insure larger sales.

Again, when some high-class song recital or instrumental recital by famous artists of international reputation is given there should be a complete "tie-up" with these concerts, and this could be easily done because the leading artists are now represented in the catalogs of the leading record manufacturers. This "tie-up" calls for a unique and artistic window display and arrangement of records of the artists, featuring especially the songs or numbers they are singing or playing. It also calls for window-card publicity setting forth the importance and value of the records. This kind of publicity not only interests, but it also advertises to the public the fact that the dealer is decidedly up to date.

Using the Window as a Salesman

"I find that the oftener I change my window displays the more business I do," said a suc-

FOUR MERCHANDISING SUGGESTIONS

successful Middle Western dealer in talking machines. "My store," continued this dealer, "is located on a side street where the people passing the store are 'regulars'—that is, the folks who pass my store on one day are pretty sure to be the same folks who will pass my store on the following day and on the next and so on. This means that when I arrange a window display the majority of the folks passing my store during the course of a week or two weeks will see the display on the first day and after that will pay no further attention to my show windows until I have something else on display. So when I change my displays frequently I am doing just that much more to attract the attention of the 'regulars' and sell them goods.

"I find, too, that it is much the best plan to make the window displays just as different from one another as possible. For instance, if I have a display in which red is the predominating color I see to it that the next display is blue or green or some other color as its foundation. Also, if I have been showing phonographs in one display I see to it that in my next display the main thing exhibited is records. And so on with all of my displays.

"It doesn't take such a tremendous amount of time and attention to change displays with the required frequency. In fact it is possible to so regulate the window trimming that it will be done at odd moments during the day when there is nothing else doing around the store. It is a splendid way of putting in time which would otherwise be used in loafing or in waiting for something to turn up.

"For my own part I am thoroughly sold on this proposition of frequent changes of window displays and I believe that it would be as successful for other stores in getting more business as it has been for me."

NOW IT IS MUSIC IN THE MORNING

Walter Camp's "Daily Dozen" set to music on Health Builders' records, has been credited for having greatly increased the talking machine playing day. In an article in a local New York newspaper it is stated "where the disc used to swing into action at 5, 6 and 7 o'clock in the evening it now starts at 5, 6 and 7 o'clock in the morning." Although the article is written in a somewhat facetious vein, it decidedly gives credit to the great popularity of the health building course and its rapid growth to almost universal use.

Thomas A. Edison Examines New Talking Moving Picture Machine at Plant of the General Electric Co., in Schenectady, N. Y., in First Visit in Twenty-five Years

Thomas A. Edison, who has dealt in marvels all his life, was amazed at some of the things he saw in the General Electric Co. laboratories in Schenectady, N. Y., on his visit recently, in company with his son, Charles Edison, and Mrs. Edison—his first in twenty-five years.

He saw a mercury boiler so much more efficient than steam that when it is perfected it will mean a saving of one-third in coal used to produce power. He saw a machine for registering the voice by light on a moving picture film that has unlimited possibilities of development—including talking-movies. And he saw vacuum tubes that have in them the germ of greater things than the world has yet known in electrical science.

Dr. Irving Langmuir, inventor of the vacuum tubes, which very recently took the place of enormous alternators in wireless stations, showed him some of the big lamps he and his assistants have been working on. Edison bent his hands around them, gestured and talked of the difficulties of making them, for he had tried to and failed for lack of time.

The radio room held a lot of the vacuum tubes which Mr. Edison had heard of and wanted to see almost more than anything else in the place. The evolution by which they were changed from air-cooled to water-cooled tubes, so that they could be built larger and larger to carry more and more power, was explained. In the room were two lines of pieces of wood strung on wires, which waved up and down to make a visualization of energy waves as they are built up on the receiving antennae of a wireless plant.

The Pallo Photo Phone, the machine which registers sound on a moving picture film so that voices and music may be reproduced in ordinary wireless loud-speaking phones and may be developed into talking movies in which the picture and sound would be perfectly synchronized, was demonstrated to Mr. Edison by the inventor, C. A. Hoxie.

This machine, while still in the experimental stage, has had great things predicted for it. The record is made by causing the sound waves to produce vibrations on a minute mirror. A beam of light reflected by the mirror strikes a photographic film kept in motion and which, when developed, shows a band of white with delicate markings on the edges which correspond to the sound reproduced. On account of the small mirror, its low inertia, and other factors, it is possible to produce a sound record which includes the very delicate overtones which give quality to music and speech and which, it was said, had not been so successfully accomplished by any other method of recording sound waves.

The reproduction of the sound from the film is accomplished by moving the film in front of a delicate electrical device which produces an electromotive force that varies with the amount of light falling upon it. By a combination of vacuum or electron tubes an apparatus has been produced which responds to variation in the light falling on it with a speed so high that it can only be compared with that of light itself, or with the speed of the propagation of wireless waves in space. Therefore when this film is moved continuously in front of such a device, the device produces an electric current corresponding very accurately to the original sound wave.

This electric current may be used to operate a telephone or loud speaker, and has been used to operate the radio transmitting station WGY of the General Electric Co.

Mr. Edison was asked to talk into the machine, so that a record of his voice on the film might be made, but he declined.

"You can't get me to talk, even on a phonograph," said the inventor of the phonograph.

The visit of Mr. Edison to the General Electric Co. laboratories was made the subject of wide comment in the newspapers, for these giant buildings cover the site of Mr. Edison's first plant and much of his earlier work was carried on there. Indeed, quite a number of men who worked with Mr. Edison in his early inventions are still on the staff of the General Electric Co. and his visit was like a family reunion. He received an enthusiastic greeting from the 17,000 or more employes of the great electric plant.

FEDERAL RECORD CORP. FUNCTIONS

Despite Serious Damage by Flames, Albany, N. Y., Manufacturer of Records Continues Operations—Master Records Saved

ALBANY, N. Y., November 7.—Although serious damage was suffered by the Federal Record Corp., manufacturer of talking machine records, to its offices and factory in this city last month, there has been practically no cessation of business. In a chat with The World, J. P. O'Brien, general manager of the concern, said:

"Fortunately, our entire catalog of master records has been saved and we have contracted for and are now receiving a big supply of working molds from them. Pressing and shipping arrangements have already been concluded and we are taking care of our customers on our complete catalog without the slightest delay. Our laboratory in New York City is recording its usual schedule and our November 1 list will be right up to the minute, as usual.

"Temporary executive offices were established here on the very day of the fire and while we were badly handicapped for a few days we managed to keep functioning and to take care of our going business. We have made no definite plans for a change of quarters and business will continue in the usual way until further notice."

SONORA DEALER VISITS NEW YORK

George Geake, who sells the Sonora in Albuquerque, N. M., in large numbers, and who is famed in that part of the country not only as an energetic dealer, but as a musician of unusual accomplishment, was in New York for a few days last week and visited the Sonora offices. Mr. Geake says the great Southwest is going to do more than its share of phonograph-buying during the present season and that the business outlook is excellent.

Big Possibilities for Xmas Trade in Juvenile Machines and Records :: By Wm. Bliss Stoddard

It is none too early to begin to feature Christmas gifts, for on all sides one hears the slogan, "Do your Christmas shopping early." Especially is this true of the substantial gifts that run to two figures at least. (I am not speaking at this time of the regulation phonograph, which is having a wonderful sale this season.) When it comes to buying what parents consider a "toy" that costs more than ten dollars the majority want a little time to consider. Once they are educated to the idea that quality toys are the cheapest in the long run they buy willingly, but the majority are from Missouri and want to be "shown." For that reason the dealer handling juvenile talking machines and records should begin his publicity campaign early in the season.

The modern idea, fostered by all interested in the training of children, is that toys should be constructive, and every gift should be one that a child could use to some purpose. Such being the case children's phonographs can be given wide publicity. They fit in well with the exploitation of all nursery supplies and furniture and have already been the subject of several attractive displays, which, with modifications, could be used to advantage by many other dealers throughout the country.

The J. L. Hudson Co., of Detroit, showed a nursery with light-hued rugs and flowered panels on the walls. At one end was a little table set for tea, with several dolls in chairs and a little mother hovering near. At the other end was a juvenile phonograph, tinted blue, upon which an older girl was placing a record, while a small lad was listening to the music. From the rear was coming another girl, bringing a record. On the floor were a number of juvenile records, including several of those from the Bubble Books. A large card in the midst of the display called attention to the price of the juvenile cabinet—$25. This firm also sent out picture-card postals to a long list of children,

Toy Talking Machines Offer Dealers a Wide Avenue for Adding to Profits During Holiday Shopping Season

on which this window scene was reproduced, inviting the little ones to come down to see the actual display, and added:

"When you give a doll's party to some of your little friends you, of course, want music. Here is a phonograph, just like mamma's big one, that will enable you and your companions to sing and dance and have a big time generally. Results greatly exceeded expectations."

The Bon Marche of New Orleans was another firm that gave wide publicity to juvenile phonographs and records through its essay contest. In the department was erected a little house, with actual doors and windows, but so low that only youngsters up to ten could enter. This was fitted up with children's furniture, and in the drawing room was one of the juvenile phonographs. On Saturdays there was a little girl who acted as hostess, who met the kiddies at the door and conducted them through the house, ending with the living-room, where she played several selections for them on the phonograph. But to go back to the contest: This playhouse was given a good send-off in the Bon Marche ads, and three prizes were offered of $15, $10 and $5 each for the best essay, not to exceed 500 words, telling of the interesting things in the playhouse and elsewhere in the department. It was not necessary for children to make any purchases in order to enter the contest, but, of course, they had to come to the store and look over the merchandise, and it is safe to say that few of them went home without telling their parents of some particular item that met their fancy—and while the results were not immediate many a parent remembered this wish when it came time to do the Christmas shopping.

Buescher's, of Cleveland, was a third firm that carried out the idea of pushing juvenile phonographs, though they went a step further and brought in the Bubble Books, which have been so popular for several seasons past. Their ad, which was admirably arranged typographically, was addressed to all children, and read:

THE BOOK THAT SINGS

—It sounds rather impossible, but see the Bubble Book for kiddies, with its nursery rhymes, prettily illustrated, and just at the right section, where the jolly miller begins his song, a small record is enclosed, and one may read the words in the Bubble Book while the record is being played.

These Bubble Books, as well as other juvenile records, were demonstrated every Saturday in November by a boy and a girl, one of the children's phonographs being used for this purpose. In order to call these records and cabinets to the attention of those who might not have seen the ad they arranged a big window which they fitted up as a nursery. The floor was covered with a rag rug, while the walls were of gray with felt figures appliqued upon them. There was a complete set of children's furniture, with a small phonograph cabinet occupying the center of the stage, so to speak. On the table were piled a number of the Bubble Books and records, while a little girl in white was placing a record on the phonograph. A big card down front read, "Children's Console Model," and one on the wall called attention to two new Bubble Books just issued. Juvenile records were scattered over the chairs and floor and a Victor dog looked out from among the ferns banked at either end. On two Saturday afternoons, one in October and one in November, the firm pulled off a stunt that almost blocked traffic. Most of the furniture was taken out of the window, the little phonograph moved to one end and the services secured of four little dancers, who danced to the music of the machine, operated by a fifth child. The evident pleasure the youngsters took in the music—at intervals they sang as well as danced—was one of the best selling ideas ever put out, for every mother and father who watched them had it brought home to them how much pleasure their own children could get out of such an instrument.

JOHNSTOWN FIRM ADDS EDISON LINE

Steele & Harris, Inc., Remodel Store to Handle Edison Line of Phonographs and Re-creations as Result of the Greatly Increased Demand

JOHNSTOWN, PA., November 2.—The complete line of Edison re-creations and phonographs has been added to the stock of Steele & Harris, Inc., one of the leading music houses of this section. The concern has secured a special store for the display of pianos and the main show-rooms have been remodeled and modernly equipped for the advantageous display of phonographs and records. Mr. Steele, one of the members of the firm, has been engaged in the music business for a number of years, having been associated at one time with the W. F. Frederick Piano Co., of Pittsburgh. While his attention has been directed mainly to the merchandising of pianos in the past, he states that the increasing demand for both pianos and talking machines resulted in his decision to add a complete line of the latter and make this an important branch of his business.

FURFURAL FROM CORNCOBS

Bureau of Chemistry Announces By-products Obtained From Corncocks—Furfural Can Be Used in the Manufacture of Records

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 6.—Six years of persistent research at the Bureau of Chemistry of the Department of Agriculture has resulted in establishing the fact that a number of interesting and useful by-products can be derived from the humble corncob. Chief among these is a colorless oily liquid called furfural. One use of furfural would be as a cheap and satisfactory substitute for formaldehyde, as used in combination with carbolic acid in making a synthetic compound which is used for the manufacture of talking machine records, varnishes, etc.

GOOD REASONS FOR PROSPERITY

Evidence of Prosperity Throughout the United States Abounds in Late Bank Figures Presented by Officials of Federal Government

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 3.—Further evidence of the increasing prosperity and public thrift of the people of the United States and their ability to buy more talking machines this Winter than ever before in history is to be found in the fact that savings bank accounts throughout the country have climbed to a new high mark, according to reports received by Comptroller of the Currency Crissinger.

There are now 5,782 national banks in the continental United States carrying savings accounts or operating savings departments in which $3,046,054,000 in savings deposits are credited to 8,873,327 depositors to whom the banks are paying interest at an average rate of 3.75 per cent, the reports show.

These figures, compared with June 30 last year, show an increase of 162 banks which are featuring this kind of business, an increase of 764,085 depositors and $88,499,000 in deposits, and represent the greatest amount of savings deposits ever reported by national banks.

New York leads all cities in the total deposits, Chicago coming second with little more than half as much deposited in its banks, although they outnumber the New York banks, twenty-four to sixteen. Eastern States rank first in the number of depositors and total deposits, with the middle Western States second.

Announcing Columbia

ON October 31st we announced to the public, in full-page newspaper space, the achievement of a great advance in phonograph record manufacture—The New Process Columbia Record—which after years of experiment we present to the world—perfected.

New Process Columbia Records are practically free from surface noise, of greater durability, of crystal-clear tone.

These things are made possible by the use of a new surface material, ultra fine in texture and marvelously smooth; our patented three-ply laminated construction and our superior recording proficiency.

Columbia

New Process Records

New Process Columbia Records challenge comparison with any phonograph record made, in any department of music. You may prove this to your complete satisfaction by playing New Process Columbia Records in direct competition with records of the same selections as produced by other record manufacturers.

The public has noticed the improvement in Columbia Records during the last several months. It will be quick to appreciate their present superiority.

EXHIBITS AT FOOD AND HOME SHOW

Talking Machine Department of Hahne & Co. Attracts Interest Toward Its Line of Talking Machines—Cashes in on the Appearance of Paul Whiteman's Orchestra on Halloween

NEWARK, N. J., November 3.—The talking machine department of Hahne & Co., one of the leading department stores in this city, under the able management of J. Blake, recently staged an exhibition at a Food and Home Show, in the First Regiment Armory here, which proved a decided success, not only from the standpoint of publicity, but because of the number of live prospects secured and the number of sales which could be traced directly to the exhibit. Victor, Sonora and Widdicomb machines were attractively displayed.

Mr. Blake also cashed in on the appearance here of Paul Whiteman and his orchestra at the First Regiment Armory. Mr. Whiteman played for the benefit of the United War Veterans on Halloween and this event was played up by the Hahne & Co. talking machine department in its advertising. Mr. Blake also succeeded in placing a Victrola at the entrance to the armory over which was a placard announcing that Paul Whiteman was a Victor artist and his records could be obtained at the Hahne & Co. talking machine department.

Business in the Hahne & Co. music department has shown a decided improvement during the past month and in order to give better service to customers in the talking machine department H. Hopping, an experienced salesman, has been added. Mr. Hopping was formerly connected with Chalmers & Co. and the L. Bamberger talking machine department.

The business man who continually goes around with a chip on his shoulder is hurting no one but himself. He is courting failure.

SPECIALIZES IN FOREIGN RECORDS

New Store of the Canton Music Co., Canton, O., Giving Particular Attention to That Line—Has Very Attractive Quarters

CANTON, O., November 6.—With the opening of the new store of the Canton Music Co. in the East Tuscarawas street arcade, Canton's music industry now boasts of a store offering the trade a department where foreign talking machine records are available. This is said to be the only local establishment specializing in this particular service.

This music shop, located in the heart of the new East Tuscarawas street retail shopping district, features three talking machine lines, Columbia, Vocalion and Brunswick. Records of the same make are also carried by the store. Steinway pianos, Pianolas and other makes of pianos are also among the featured lines. Two attractive record booths have been installed for the convenience of the trade.

Sam Mirkin, late of the international record department of the Columbia Graphophone Co., Cleveland branch, and a man of varied experience in the talking machine field, is manager of the new shop.

NEW VICTOR RECORD BOOKLETS

First of Series of Booklets Designed to Help Machine Owner Build Up Well-balanced Library Just Issued by Victor Co.

The Victor Talking Machine Co. has just issued the first of a new and interesting series of booklets designed to promote the understanding and sale of records of the higher class, including those of operas and the classics.

The first booklet is entitled "Music Everybody Wants to Know" and is devoted to the listing with proper descriptive matter of numbers from various operas, including "La Boheme," "Aida," "Carmen," "Faust," "Madama Butterfly," "Rigoletto," "Tosca" and several others. A short paragraph gives a brief description of the opera, following which are listed the records with their numbers and some pertinent comment. The new booklet is of a size that makes it ideal for slipping into regular-sized envelopes and is intended for general distribution among talking machine owners by retail dealers.

The new series of booklets is designed to assist those talking machine owners who desire to build up well-balanced libraries, but are unable to make decisions from among the thousands of records listed in the regular Victor catalog. When records of certain types are separated and exploited by themselves it is found that the record purchaser can make a selection with little trouble. The booklets should be of decided value in promoting Red Seal business.

Four-Minute Conference on Business Topics

No. 7—Your Profits and How to Be Sure of Them

[This is the seventh of a series of four-minute conferences on topics of direct interest to business men in the talking machine trade which have been prepared for this publication by Lester G. Herbert.—EDITOR.]

Profits are a very important consideration with every business concern. Without profits, which are steady and sufficient in amount, business integrity cannot be maintained and expansion and progress are impossible.

In fact, if profits are too small, the business is likely soon to be embarrassed for ready cash for the reason that the overhead will eat up this small margin rapidly, actually leaving the business at a standstill. When a business stands still decay has set in and the end is in sight.

A great many firms make the mistake of thinking that extreme business and a large volume denote prosperity. This may or may not be the case. It cannot be emphasized too strongly that prosperity is gauged not by the volume done, but rather by the profits made.

However, this need not necessarily be a high percentage of profit, for it is often better business judgment to be satisfied with a modest percentage and to encourage volume, thus making sure that the aggregate amount of profits reaches a satisfactory sum. In other cases where supplies or service move more slowly it becomes necessary to plan for a larger profit in order to keep the balance level.

It is almost a truism that profits are insured through three avenues. The first is careful buying, the second is the elimination of waste and the third is economical selling and distribution.

It often happens that a busy executive or business man will buy supplies where he bought them last, or, having waited until their use is immediately necessary, is compelled to purchase at the most available source of supply or where the goods can be obtained quickly.

This lack of looking ahead and of anticipating one's needs is an expensive habit, for oftentimes a higher price must be paid than can be obtained elsewhere, or goods must be purchased and delivered by expensive means. Even the smallest concern should take careful consideration of the importance of the official purchasing agent and hold this individual responsible for the condition of stock supplies. Even when it is not advisable to purchase in advance the purchasing agent of the firm should at all times be posted just where goods can be secured at short notice and the cost. This will prevent false moves and the innumerable annoyances consequent thereto.

The elimination of waste includes wise business management and all it stands for. It is wasteful to put a man in one job or at one task who can do another one better. It is wasteful to fail to articulate the routine of the day's work so as to produce the best results. It is wasteful to keep on the payroll individuals who are not earning their own wages and a profit for the firm.

It is sure to be mighty expensive not to have some one person in the organization who fills the position of a local efficiency expert to keep a weather eye to windward in order to see that everything is made the best use of, short cuts employed, by-products used up, methods speeded up and details involving expense worked out on an accurate and scientific basis. All too many firms lose heavily because they guess that this or that is about right in place of actually knowing.

The profits which arise from careful selling are satisfactory. To oversell a customer is to prejudice him against the firm and its goods. To neglect a patron is to invite competition. To be passive in selling is to give the other fellow who is more aggressive a "head start." An accurate knowledge of the field, timely approach through advertising and personal touch and prompt follow-up work are all necessary in the present condition of business.

The expense of distribution can be such as to lower the profits substantially. Orders improperly filled, which necessitate many returns, are expensive. Loose collection methods increase the cost of doing business. And credits extended too long are a menace.

Actual delivery work should be an exact affair so that the cost of delivery is known and can be taken into account in fixing the original price. Careless deliveries which have not been figured out as to what they represent eat up profits very fast.

On the whole it is safe to lay down the principle that easy business makes difficult profits, and that careful, efficient and far-sighted business methods insure ample and permanent profits.

VOCALION DISTRIBUTOR IN QUEBEC

Charles Culrose, of 610 St. Catherine street, West, Montreal, Quebec, has been appointed distributor of Vocalion phonographs and records for the Province of Quebec by the Scythes-Vocalion Co., Ltd., of Toronto. This move insures the Vocalion dealers of the Province of Quebec of getting direct and efficient service when and as desired.

The Immense Sales Opportunities for Dealers in the Foreign Record Field :: By A. G. Griffen

When one considers the millions of people of foreign birth in America, many of whose affiliations, to a large extent, remain foreign, and then considers what a paucity of effort has been made toward reaching this vast army of people by talking machine dealers with the object of making sales of talking machines, and particularly foreign records, it must be conceded that there has been a large amount of neglect or lack of appreciation of the great market that exists as well as of the opportunities of increasing profits from this source.

The trouble probably lies in the fact that few dealers take the time and the mental exercise necessary to analyze the great opportunities that prevail. In the first place there exists in every city, town and hamlet a number of people who have so recently come to America from the lands of their birth that they have been unable to grasp the intricacies of our language. Then there are the others, composed principally of foreigners who had reached maturity before they immigrated to this country, who have no desire and, in many instances, lack the ability to learn a new language. This condition is further augmented by the fact that persons of any nationality, like the Italians, Greeks, Spaniards and Germans, for example, usually manage to colonize a certain portion of the city which they have chosen for their homes.

Now the chances are fifty to one that these people often long for the music of their homeland. They want to hear the folk songs and operas sung in a language which they can fully understand and appreciate. The majority of them do not know that they can satisfy their desires and secure this music through the medium of the talking machine. No one has approached them and the probabilities are that they are just a little bit timid about entering an attractive store. Probably they have tried it, and the fact that they were unable to clearly understand the English language eliminated the possibility of their buying at that time. Also there are many clerks who do not accord these customers the proper amount of attention and courtesy because they are poorly dressed. At any rate the fact remains that few talking machine establishments can boast that they do any decent amount of business with foreigners. Nevertheless the field is rich and awaits development.

One dealer has built up his foreign record department to large proportions through making a sincere effort to reach the Italian people in his territory. Not only that, but he has sold a vast number of machines to these people and the sales are growing. True, they are not the most expensive machines, but many of them are medium in price and the total per year is surprising. This dealer has secured the services of a young Italian salesman. This man speaks perfectly good English also and when he is not engaged in attending to the wants of his Italian clients he attends to other customers. At periodical intervals he goes over to the Italian quarter of the city where he has made himself very well known and liked and spends the day mingling with these people and calling upon them. He invariably returns to the store with a substantial amount of business secured. He understands the people with whom he is dealing, thereby appreciably reducing the risk of making unsatisfactory sales.

After having read this article, think the matter over, analyze your opportunities in this branch of the business and go to it.

INCREASES FACTORY FACILITIES

National Metals & Depositing Corp. Making Rapid Progress—Capacity Increased 300 Per Cent This Year—Outlook Is Excellent

In a chat with The World recently M. G. Lumsden, secretary and treasurer of the National Metals & Depositing Corp., Mt. Vernon, N. Y., manufacturer of masters, mothers and stampers for talking machine records, stated that the company had again increased the capacity of its plant; the new increase being approximately 100 per cent. Since January 1 the company has increased its factory facilities practically 300 per cent.

Mr. Lumsden stated that they have added many new customers during the past few months and that judging from all indications this activity will continue well into Spring. The fact that the company has concentrated on an important phase of the industry has enabled it to give exceptional service and co-operation to its clientele and practically all of its new business has resulted from the recommendation of satisfied customers.

VERY DECIDED IMPROVEMENT IN THE SALES OF RADIO

More Favorable Atmospheric Conditions Resulting in Satisfactory Broadcasting Prove a Decided Factor in Increasing the Sales of Radio Sets—Some Interesting Radio Facts

There has been a decided revival in radio sales within the past few weeks. This in a large measure is due to the ideal static conditions which now prevail. Only recently a radio musical program broadcasted in Newark, N. J., was picked up in London, England, and ships en route across the Atlantic Ocean were reported as enjoying this concert played in the United States. Long-distance concerts are being heard with great distinctness these days and in one instance a Davenport, Ia., broadcasting station gave a concert in which a local orchestra was utilized and it was heard in many Eastern points as clearly as if the band was playing in the homes of the listeners.

With such splendid reception already taking place, one can well look forward to many delightful hours of entertainment from stations hundreds of miles away as the crisp, cold Winter weather approaches, making radio king of the air as the static of Summer vanishes into the regions of the equator.

Why is the cold atmosphere of Winter so superior for radio to the heat of Summer? This question is answered by the radio editor of the New York Times in this wise: It has been estimated that the sun's rays absorb about 70 per cent of the strength from the radio waves. During the Summer months the sun's strength is at a maximum in the Northern section, the duration of daylight is longer, and, therefore, absorption of radio's strength reaches its highest point. The heat of Summer greatly influences the amount of electricity or static in the air, producing atmospheric disturbances which cause interference to radio. Then comes Winter, with the strength of Old Sol at a minimum in the north, long cold Winter nights and practically no static.

The Ideal Atmospheric Conditions

The long hours of darkness and the cold atmosphere represent the ideal condition for excellent radio transmission and reception. Radio fans who installed sets during the Summer are now feeling the greatest thrill and fascination the ether creates when they tune for some near-by broadcasting station which they have been accustomed to hear throughout the Summer and instead of the familiar call they hear the clear sound of a strange voice announcing the strains of music about to be broadcast from a station hundreds of miles away, on the Pacific Coast or from a city along the Gulf of Mexico.

The difference between daylight and darkness in the effect upon radio communication, especially in relation to spark signals, is well known to commercial operators on ship or shore. Many times a vessel only a few miles off the Irish coast will be able to establish communication at night with a station along the American shore. Transmission may be perfect throughout the hours of darkness and then suddenly fade as if something were wrong with the transmitting or receiving apparatus. The experienced operator knows that the sudden silence is merely an indication of dawn far off in the east where the ship is, although the eastern sky may be as black as the west along the Atlantic seaboard. Then when darkness falls again the ship's messages return probably with greater intensity than the night before because it has been moving nearer to the United States.

The Amazing Speed of Radio

The sound of a singer's voice or the music of an orchestra travels through the air at a little more than 1,000 feet a second. If the same sound is sent through the microphone of a radiophone broadcasting station it travels through the ether at the same speed as light, 186,000 miles a second. The circumference of the earth is 25,000 miles, so the radio wave carries the sound around the world approximately seven and one-half times in the twinkle of an eye.

A radio message spoken in New York can be heard in Portland, Ore., in one-sixty-second of a second. If sound unaided by radio were capable of carrying the message it would take four and two-fifths hours to reach Portland. In that time the radio message would be nearly three billions of miles out in space, far beyond Neptune. It takes eight minutes for light to reach the earth from the sun. It would take the same length of time for a radio signal to bridge that distance. While the radio message was speeding on toward Old Sol a sound message would reach only about 100 miles, if it could travel that far. A radio message flashed to the North Star to-night would not reach its destination for fifty years, so far is the polar star from the earth.

Another example of the tremendous velocity of radio waves is illustrated in the following. Suppose in broadcasting the world's series at the Polo Grounds Grantland Rice spoke through a powerful megaphone at the same time his words struck the transmitter to be broadcast from WJZ. Through the megaphone the address of the speaker could probably be heard distinctly 1,000 feet from him. Again comparing the two rates of speed, or sound and radio, it will be found that a radio listener 500 miles away will hear the voice from the Polo Grounds many fractions of a second before any one at the edge of the crowd only 1,000 feet away from the speaker. Almost before the crack of the bat knocking out a home run echoed through the grandstand and the ball dropped into the bleachers the radio audience hundreds of miles distant would have the news before the player crossed the plate to record the circuit drive.

Radio operators on ships in the Pacific have often demonstrated the terrific speed of radio waves by receiving the midnight time signal from Honolulu, and then, by a quick adjustment, and at the same tick of the watch, caught the noontime signal from Nauen, Germany.

EDISON ARTISTS SCORE IN TEXAS

W. W. Dyer, Manager of Edison Shop, Dallas, Tex., Secures Services of Artists

DALLAS, TEX., November 2.—W. W. Dyer, wide-awake manager of the Edison Shop, one of the most active phonograph stores in this city, recently was instrumental in bringing to the Coliseum two Edison artists, namely, Miss Helen Davis and Victor Young. A feature number was staged at the Coliseum, consisting of some songs by the artists and comparison tests with the same selections reproduced on an Edison phonograph. This number not only proved to be one of the hits of the week, but it was instrumental in creating much valuable publicity for the Edison machines and also the Edison Shop. This establishment has enjoyed a steadily growing business as a result of its aggressive sales policies.

SINGING SOOTHES INSANE PATIENTS

Experiment Financed by Empire State at Manhattan State Hospital for the Insane Is Successful—Chicago Soprano Sings

The State of New York recently engaged Miss Ethel Pamminga, of Chicago, whose soprano voice has a peculiar pitch, to sing at the Manhattan State Hospital for the Insane, on Ward's Island, in an attempt to relieve some of the inmates of their obsessions.

Dr. Marcus Heyman, superintendent of the hospital, called the young woman on the advice of famous alienists, who say that a certain pitch of a certain voice has the ability to ease defective brains. The experiment proved a decided success.

The King Edward School, Edmonton, Alta., has just installed a fine model of a Starr phonograph for the purpose of teaching musical appreciation and physical exercise.

The Biggest Little Phonograph in the World

The New Cabinet CAROLA Phonograph

"The Nightingale of Phonographs"

An embodiment of many remarkable new and exclusive features in the art of phonographic rendition.

While the new CAROLA weighs only seventeen pounds and occupies less than a square foot of floor space, it is not a toy but a full-fledged talking machine which delivers full rich tones the equal of machines costing many times the price.

CAROLA is built for service, both musically and mechanically.

CAROLA reproducer is full sized, carefully made on the most modern principles and is easily the equal of those found in many high-priced machines.

CAROLA amplifier embraces new and logical principles. The tone is carried from the reproducer through a special violin fibre horn to the convex lid of the phonograph, which acts as the amplifier and throws the sound outward and upward—the logical way for sound to travel.

CAROLA motor is sturdy, noiseless, self-lubricating and is the result of long experiment. It is absolutely guaranteed to withstand the most vigorous tests and we invite detailed examination by your mechanic.

Sells especially well with physical culture and children's records.

Pertinent Suggestions Designed to Speed the Flow of Xmas Gift Dollars :: By Lester G. Herbert

Be ready for the Christmas shoppers in good season. In fact, in selling musical goods, an early start is absolutely necessary, for where an outlay of any considerable amount is to be depended upon, the customer must be allowed time for selection and decision. So begin your advertising and Christmas window displays in good season in order to let people know that you are on the map and ready to serve. Suggest, even urge, the making of early selections. Expect more business this year than ever before—and then plan to get it. Take your goods, your service and the selling opportunities of the season seriously. Be convincing in your publicity and in your selling efforts when you come face to face with the prospect for musical supplies.

Make your establishment an easy one in which to buy during Christmastime. It is true that the majority of people are in a buying humor, but most of them have to stretch their dollars as far as possible. Remember this. Emphasize the many advantages of music in the home and the good values you have to offer at the present time.

Provide places for the people who drop in to sit down. Many of these people have been going from store to store and are tired. See to it that there are seats enough for those who wish to use them. Make it easy for the person who has a number of parcels to put them safely to one side while an instrument is being tried or good music listened to.

Incidentally, find out, if you can do so tactfully, just what members there are in the family of the one whom you are trying to please and to sell. If, for example, there are young people it is easy to suggest that a talking machine and good records always help to content the young people at home and are an admirable means of entertaining their friends; that an acquaintance with the works of the good musical composers is an education and a wonderful means of refinement; that music and its beneficent influence sweeten character and actually build health.

If there are only husband and wife in the family the arguments may be advanced that many a quiet evening of real pleasure together will be possible; that guests will enjoy the music also, and that appreciation of professional music will be all the greater and keener because of the familiarity in the home with the finer musical themes.

Be ready to cash in on the opportunity to sell music and all that music means to those who show an interest by coming into your place of business.

The Value of a Special Advisory Helper

Remember that for the average individual the Christmas season is a very busy one. There are endless details for the housewife, the mother and the business woman and the business man to attend to. This is the reason that a Special Advisory

The Bell on the Cash Register Will Ring a Merry Accompaniment to Xmas Chimes Where Early Plans Are Made

Helper, advertised as such, or by his or her own name, should prove a distinct business-builder.

The public is informed that anyone who cannot come in person may call for the service of the Special Advisory Helper and obtain such help free of charge. For example, Mrs. Jones is tied up because of a recent illness, but she would like to buy a dozen new records as one of her Christmas gifts for her son and daughter. If she can talk with the Advisory Helper as to the new selections and tell the kind of music she prefers she can order these without coming to the store.

Or old Mr. Blakeley, who is laid up with the rheumatic gout, may have the idea that he would like a large and much finer phonograph than the one the family now owns. If he can make an appointment and have the Advisory Helper call upon him and talk the matter over and find out just what he has in mind he will be willing to have a machine sent up for demonstration and purchase if it pleases.

Or someone who has a silent piano which has scarcely spoken since the family of young people grew up and went away may be interested to talk over the expense and benefit of a player-piano as a special Christmas celebration. Once a musical instrument is actually in a home the strong tendency is to keep it there and the Advisory Helper can nearly always arrange for such a demonstration if the prospects warrant.

Why Not Use a Slogan on Music?

Why not use a slogan this year which will be absorbed by the buying consciousness of the public? Such a slogan becomes an educator and leads to actual buying. For example, "Say It With Flowers," "Gifts That Last" and "Try the Drug Store First" have been repeated until they really are worth a very large amount of money in themselves. Why not a music store slogan such as "Make Home Happy With Music," or "Music and Joy Are Twins," or "Good Music Is a Taste of Heaven," or "The Best Gift of All Is the Gift of Harmony—MUSIC."

Talking Machine as a Gift

More and more is the public coming to appreciate the common-sense idea of offering Christmas gifts which are capable of giving lasting pleasure. Happily, the fashion is out of date which favors a lot of dust-catching "ornaments," foolish bric-a-brac and strange things which few want after they get them. Changing conditions of life call for simplicity rather than for the multiplication of things to handle and care for. To-day the Christmas gift is most favored which will give pleasure and continue to give pleasure indefinitely. Can anything fill this bill better than the wherewith to produce sweet melodies, rollicking tunes or soul-stirring music?

Attractive Displays Make Sales

Make goods talk for themselves by the manner in which they are displayed. A window made up entirely of one kind of products badly set in rows will not speak nearly as eloquently as the window in which a few of the items are placed in their natural settings. Suggest the use of the goods by the surroundings and, where possible, indicate prices or the range of prices. There are many people so practical-minded that they need to connect the article they are interested in closely with the number of dollars which will buy it.

Distinctive Christmas Advertising

Make Christmas advertising individual. Study to achieve that art which will enable people to recognize your publicity as yours—even if the name and business address were cut from it, just as your friends would recognize you although you may not carry a sign card or sandwich board announcing your name. Individualized publicity is the sort which arrests attention, focuses interest on the lines you are offering and brings customers to your doors ready to be interested in what you have to say.

Make it a rule that salespeople shall thank their Christmas patrons with a smile. It is an easy habit to acquire and a valuable one. Then when the holiday buying period has ended the smiling habit may become so natural that it will persist.

At this time use the usual newspaper space yourself for an announcement of appreciation for the generous response of the buying public—if you can honestly do so—and promise continued effort of service of an acceptable character. Suggest that your firm will go on striving for the business embodiment of the highest ideals in all its branches. Make the announcement reasonably brief, but in every instance let it ring true.

The models shown on this page — to the minutest detail — exemplify the beauty of cabinets, unusual mechanical precision and perfection of tone which is The Cheney. In interest of design, beauty of finish, and range of price, they satisfy all the varied demands of your trade:

Note particularly the two-tone finish of The Oxford and The Westminster. Two-tone furniture is so popular this season that these models have proved exceptionally good sellers.

At the prices now established for The Cheney the values you can offer are hardly short of sensational. With these models you can advertise, and you can deliver, a rarely artistic musical instrument famous for its superiority of tone — which cannot be duplicated — at the price of an ordinary phonograph.

TO SPEED FLOW OF XMAS DOLLARS

Well in advance of the Christmas rush plan to suggest in newspaper, by direct-by-mail letters to a selected mailing list or in such other ways as you may deem advisable, to MAKE THIS A MUSICAL CHRISTMAS. Point out how much the season could be made to count for if every home would increase its possibility of harmony and musical pleasure. Again suggest that, instead of a lot of small gifts often purchased with hesitation for fear they will not please—that funds be pooled, if necessary, and a truly worth-while purchase in the way of musical equipment be made. This will be something which all can enjoy and will cater to the æsthetic sense of the family, help to furnish in a refined manner and will actually increase the cash assets of the home.

Encourage Volume Purchases

Encourage volume purchases on the part of each customer. Frequently the conversation of the prospect will offer definite buying "leads" as to what will be of further and immediate interest.

For example, the customer who has purchased records may be interested in a record-cleaning brush, some automatic attachment or possibly in another instrument entirely. For some reason or other, boys and young men are especially fond of stringed and wind instruments and even the showing of some of these in a sympathetic manner may bring that same customer back to buy a harp for the daughter, a saxophone for the son, a long-anticipated violin or possibly a fine new piano. Encourage volume purchases and be ready to show goods, but do not over-urge.

Handling Complaints Because of Delays

Delays are likely to occur at Christmastime. This is partly due to the immense amount of shopping, mail, expressage, etc. However, the business management which addresses itself specifically to the working out of details will prevent needless delays. At this time of year particularly people are anxious and displeased if promises are not kept and deliveries not made promptly. Make it evident that you will do all in your power to keep any promise made and if unavoidable delays arise in spite of you telephone and make frank explanations.

A Few Good Rules to Follow

Make it a rule that those who do not buy, even though they may take a good deal of time and attention, will be just as pleasantly treated as if they reached buying decisions. They are likely to come back, you know, and in any event we cannot expect to sell to everyone every time.

Those who make belated small purchases may often be encouraged to take home such parcels as they can carry without inconvenience. The inquiry during this period of, "Do you wish to take this with you?" will often meet with the ready "Yes, I think I will," or, "I might as well." When delivery expenses are saved, money is saved. Of course, with some purchases this is impossible.

Stress values and ultimate satisfaction, pointing out, if need be, that purchase price actually disappears in time, although the goods themselves and the pleasure and satisfaction they represent remain long after that price is forgotten.

Avoid carefully the impression in advertising or actual salesmanship method of "I am after your money." That always causes a withdrawal of confidence. Serve rather to throw out the cordial suggestion, "We are here to help you buy just what you want and it is our pleasure to do it." Remember that helping the customer buy is quite as important an angle as helping the store sell. When we sell with only that thought in mind we seldom win customers who come back. When we help customers buy in the right way we have made friends and the store is the gainer.

Love and kindness are the Christmas impulses. They are the instincts which actuate the gift-making at this season of the year and the desire to do for others. When your own business expresses this same spirit of kindness and friendliness, people feel at home, have confidence in what you say and offer and so sales resistance is removed.

Christmas Gifts to Patrons

Plan some little Christmas surprise for your patrons. It may be a card of greeting used as a package enclosure. It may be a souvenir which will be kept and valued. One firm gave aluminum thimbles in a little Christmas box. Each thimble bore the words, "Say It With Music. Merry Christmas," and the firm name. Another firm gave celluloid rulers of good quality with this message:

"Make It a Rule to Have Music Every Day in Your Home—Then Christmas Will Last the Whole Year Through." These rulers were only given to those purchasing over a certain amount.

Location and class of trade determine whether such a plan is a good one or not, but, after all, people are very much alike and enjoy the thrill of the unexpected.

What would you think if your boss preached constantly about the harm done by salesmen losing their tempers and then the very first time an irate customer entered the store lost his?

DAVENPORT CABINET WORKS RUSHED

Steadily Increasing Demand for Davenola Phonograph Noted—Changes Made in Plant

DAVENPORT, IA., November 6.—The Davenport Cabinet Works, of this city, manufacturer of the Davenola phonograph, has increased its production to capacity to meet the steadily growing demand for these instruments experienced during the past few weeks. To fill the influx of orders the forces of this concern are working overtime.

Some changes were recently made in the factory, which has 23,100 feet of floor space, including the installation of the heavier machinery in the basement. Cabinet work is done on the first floor and the finishing and installation of motors on the second floor. The phonographs manufactured by the company, in mahogany, quartered oak and walnut, have made rapid strides in public favor and all indications point to the steady continuance of the demand for these products.

SUPREME COURT DENIES PETITION

Refuses Petition of Victor Co. to Review Case Against Starr Piano Co.

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 30.—The United States Supreme Court has denied the petition of the Victor Talking Machine Co. for a review of the case of the Victor Talking Machine Co. against the Starr Piano Co., in which the former brought suits for infringement of Claims 6 and 8 of the Johnson patent relating to records.

The District Court dismissed the Victor Co.'s bill of complaint for alleged lack of invention and abandonment and the Circuit Court of Appeals later upheld the decree of the District Court. The Victor Co. then filed its petition with the Supreme Court with the result already stated.

SOWDERS-BOLLING CO. FORMED

EVANSVILLE, IND., November 4.—A new musical instrument house in this city is Sowders-Bolling Piano Co. at 13 and 15 Main street. The members of the firm are L. S. Bolling, who operates a large musical house at Fort Worth, Tex., and Theodore Sowders, who has been a resident of Evansville for many years.

The new company will carry a large line of pianos and musical instruments, including the Bush & Lane, Waltham, Smith & Barnes and Jesse French. The company will also handle Brunswick talking machines and a complete line of records and accessories.

MILLS CABINET CO. BANKRUPT

The Mills Cabinet Co., an Illinois corporation, with headquarters at Racine, Wis., has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. Liabilities are listed at $110,304 and assets are estimated at $111,268.

BRUNSWICK RECORD EXCHANGE PLAN WINS MUCH FAVOR

Dealers Permitted to Return Brunswick Records Not Exceeding 10 Per Cent of Record Purchases for Preceding Three Months—A Radical Move of Great Importance to the Dealer

CHICAGO, ILL., October 28.—The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. has recently announced a Brunswick record exchange plan which is one of the most important sales ideas that have been introduced to the trade for some time past. By means of this plan Brunswick dealers will be permitted to return Brunswick records not exceeding 10 per cent of the dealers' total record purchases for the preceding three months. Any records listed in the current Brunswick catalog are eligible for return.

A dealer will be credited against his return on the basis of 90 per cent of the purchase price or wholesale value of these records and will be required to order a quantity of records equal to the credit allowance on those returned, series for series. His exchange order may call for any records listed in the catalog except those on the previous two release lists immediately preceding the month in which the exchange is effective.

Returns of records will be allowed quarterly and must be made within ten days of date of notice and the first exchange will be effective January, 1923, based on October, November and December purchases.

FILM COMPANY URGES TIE-UP

Goldwyn Pictures Corp. Enlisting Victor Dealers to Tie Up With Film Release of Rupert Hughes' Interesting Story, "Remembrance"

The Goldwyn Pictures Corp. are enlisting the aid of Victor talking machine dealers in tying up their advertising with the latest release of the film corporation based on the Rupert Hughes story entitled "Remembrance." The Goldwyn Corp. urges dealers to feature in their advertising and in special window displays standard and past popular records appropriate to the time and locale of the story. The film, of course, is appearing in moving picture houses all over the country and the Goldwyn forces are enlisting the co-operation of the dealers through the film exchanges and theatres for the benefit of both the moving picture houses and the dealers. It is pointed out that this will afford an opportunity to exploit very popular records of twenty years ago, as well as some of the late releases.

ANCILLARY RECEIVERS APPOINTED

Federal Court in Trenton, N. J., Appoints W. C. Matlock and Louis Jersawit Ancillary Receivers for Remington Phonograph Corp.

TRENTON, N. J., November 1.—Judge Lynch in the U. S. District Court has appointed William C. Matlock, of this city, and Louis Jersawit, of 2 Rector street, New York, as ancillary receivers for the Remington Phonograph Corp., New York, a Delaware corporation. The receivership followed a bill of complaint filed in the Federal Court here recently by James S. Holmes, vice-president and a director of the Remington Corp., who stated that he was a creditor to the extent of nearly $3,000. The complaint was also made on behalf of other creditors. Mr. Jersawit was some time ago appointed by Federal Judge Knox, of the New York District, as receiver in equity for the assets of the Remington Corp. Creditors are asked to file their various claims on or before January 23.

The Direct Personal Letter Is a Strong Medium for Increasing Sales :: By Arthur H. Foster

The point has been emphasized repeatedly in connection with selling by mail that the direct personal letter is many times more effective than the best possible circular letter in interesting the prospect and actually closing the sale. Naturally, the direct personal letter is more expensive, particularly in the matter of time and labor, than the form letter, but the experience of those who have tried both types generally indicates that the cost per sale under the special letter plan is the lowest.

There are many ways in which the talking machine dealer can use the direct letter to advantage for each new shipment of records and each new record supplement presents many opportunities for the dealer who is alive. The retailer who is acquainted with the musical tastes of his customers can put that knowledge to good advantage while going over the new advance record lists, and when he comes across records that he knows will appeal to certain of his customers it is a more or less simple process to dictate a letter to them something as follows: "Just ran across several new records by (artist's name) entitled (name of selection) that I think will interest you. Will you not drop in and hear them or may we send a messenger with the records to your home for a demonstration?"

A talking machine dealer near New York, who also handles music rolls, has adopted a very excellent and profitable system for interesting his customers in new records and rolls by his special letter appeal. This dealer sends a well-worded letter to the customer in which he refers to past sales and to the fact that he has received some new records or rolls that fit in well with the customer's previous selections. The last paragraph of the letter reads: "We would like to have you hear these rolls (or records) and if you will fill out the enclosed card we will send someone to demonstrate them for you at your home at the appointed hour."

Accompanying the letter is a post card, self-addressed and ready to mail, bearing the paragraph: "Kindly send your representative on _____ date at _____ o'clock to play the records (or rolls) or (title of pieces) for my approval." All the customer need do is sign and mail the card and the salesman plays the rolls or records in his own home for his benefit at the time he himself has selected.

The dealer reports that the sales results are close to 100 per cent, for the customer, as a rule, feels more or less under obligation to buy the rolls or records after the dealer has gone to so much trouble to have him hear them. Where only one record or roll is sold each time the sales expense would be prohibitive, but the profits lie in the fact that when making the call the salesman carries with him from a half dozen to a dozen other new and carefully selected records likely to appeal to the customer and generally gets rid of several, if not all, of them before leaving the house.

Another factor that offsets the selling expense

Greater Expense and Labor Worth While in View of Resultant Profits and Reputation for Good Service

is the fact that those who have received this special service are naturally favorably inclined to that particular dealer and not only visit his store whenever they themselves feel the urge to buy some new rolls and records, but urge their friends to do so.

When special letters are referred to it does not mean necessarily that each customer should receive a personal letter written only for him. As a matter of fact, the dealer who goes into the matter thoroughly can so classify his customers that a half dozen letters can be drafted and sent to the entire list, each letter appealing to a certain type of client and giving him the impression that it was written for his own particular benefit.

The important thing, however, is that the letter must be typed separately and written to the individual. The ordinary type of mimeographed letter simply filled in with a ribbon of the same color will not do, for even the non-business person will quickly recognize the deception.

A Western dealer who does a very substantial business through the medium of the mails has found that the customer who, when he comes into the store, is likely to favor violin solos or particular classes of vocal selections or orchestral records almost exclusively, does not necessarily respond with enthusiasm if the dealer calls his attention only to records of those particular types which have just been issued or have become available. In fact, the customer who favors the classics will, with surprising frequency, buy a record of a popular number of merit if it is called to his attention, for he does not always favor a one-sided library. Such songs as "Smilin' Through," and instrumental selections, such as "Three o'Clock in the Morning," can frequently be sold to the lover of McDowell or Grieg, if he is made acquainted with their tunefulness.

One of the main things to be considered is that there is no fixed formula for solicitation of business by mail. There are certain factors that experience has shown will prove effective in many instances and there are certain things to avoid, as experience has shown. The average dealer must, however, depend upon his common sense, his selling ability and his understanding of the people with whom he does business to make a campaign by mail either through form or personal letters really effective.

MAKING EXTENDED BUSINESS TRIP

N. Cohen, president of the Wall-Kane Needle Mfg. Co., left recently for an extended trip embracing many of the principal cities of the country, in the interest of Wall-Kane needles. This ten-record needle is enjoying good demand and good distribution through the medium of jobbers located at strategic points throughout the country.

A POISONOUS FORMULA

Mix a few ounces of laziness with equal parts of pessimism, disregard for the feelings of customers, the public-be-damned attitude and uncontrollable temper and you have failure.

The WORLD FAMOUS CHIMES WALTZ THAT IS MOVING A MILLION FEET

ON THE USE OF SLANG

By EDWARD FRASER CARSON

Many young men to-day seem to have an idea that to speak correctly is effeminate. They seem to think that it is a mark of manhood to use slang. They think it smart to adopt for everyday use the language of the sporting pages of the alleged comic sheets.

Edward Fraser Carson

If these chaps could only hear themselves as others hear them, or better, if they were to hear their sisters and mothers use such language, they would quickly see how far from smart it sounds, and it might be that they would be minded to mend their ways.

There may be—I don't say "are," but "may be"—times and places where the use of slang is justified, but surely it has no place in business, and the young salesman who sprinkles his talk with the jargon sacred to Mutt and Jeff, Crazy Kat and Ignatz Mouse stamps himself at once as being handicapped by a single-track intelligence, and is lacking in that degree of good breeding which one must possess if he hopes to climb far up the ladder of a successful business career.

This was brought home to me a few days ago in one of the big specialty shops on Fifth avenue. A young woman was waiting for change for a purchase she had made, and she pleasantly remarked to the sportive young cashier that it was a fine day. He replied:

"You sure said a whole mouthful, kid, I'll tell the world."

I wondered then whether that same young cashier would have made that same remark to his employer. I wondered what the young man would have thought had he heard his mother say that. And I wondered if he would say that to his mother under the same circumstances.

American slang, I grant, is expressive. It gets "right down to brass tacks," but it frequently, if not usually, does "jar" the sensibilities.

A slang word or phrase may convey a world of meaning like the portmanteau words of Lewis Carroll, but as a rule the more highly meaning is thus crystallized the more objectionable the word is in the ears of refined people.

It is true, too, that many slang words become assimilated into the English language until they finally come into perfectly proper use. But this is no reason for anyone's setting himself—yes, or herself—the task of hastening this process. The life of slang words is a case of the survival of the fittest. If the word is needed in the language the better to express an idea, it will, in time, come into its own.

The language you use when in your own home, or away from your place of employment, is, of course, your own business, but if you have real ambition to succeed you will set a watch on your tongue at all times, even at home, that you may have assurance that it will not slip during business hours.

The English language contains half a million words, more or less. Surely you can find among them words to express your ideas without assaulting the ears and insulting the intelligence of all who are unfortunate enough to be compelled to listen.

MUSIC DEALER DECLARED BANKRUPT

Receiver Appointed for Business of J. H. Rupert, of Ridgway, Pa.

PITTSBURGH, PA., October 31.—Judge W. H. S. Thomson, of the United States District Court, adjudged J. H. Rupert, music dealer of Ridgway, Pa., a bankrupt. James H. Thompson was named as referee in bankruptcy and a hearing of the creditors was held at the referee's office in St. Marys, Pa., during the week. Mr. Rupert has been engaged in the music business for many years. The bankruptcy proceedings were instituted by Mr. Rupert. Liabilities are given as $8,826.54 and assets $2,107.25.

There are two kinds of discontent in this world—the discontent that works and the discontent that wrings its hands. The first gets what it wants and the second loses what it has. There's no cure for the first but success; and there's no cure at all for the second.

BRISTOL AUDIOPHONE REPRODUCER

Waterbury Manufacturer Introduces Device Which Amplifies and Improves the Tone Quality of the Talking Machine—Active Campaign to Introduce Device Now Under Way

WATERBURY, CONN., November 6.—The Bristol Co., of this city, has placed a comprehensive campaign behind the Bristol Audiophone phonograph record reproducer outfit. This reproducer and loud speaker form a combination that is giving excellent results. The Audiophone, or loud speaker, is built on the same high-class principles as the Bristol Audiophone used for radio purposes. Together with the Audiophone is the Audiophone phonograph reproducer, a special reproducer which can be used independent of the regular talking machine reproducer. The Audiophone reproducer is claimed to amplify and improve the tone quality and gives a large volume of sound. It is so built that it may be attached instantly to any make of phonograph without mutilating it in any way. A loud and soft sound control is also available and where a large hall is used a number of loud speakers can be attached to the one reproducer, thus thoroughly disseminating music throughout the space. If so desired, a hand speech announcer may be included in the outfit for announcement purposes and speeches.

The Audiophone reproducer has been developed for a number of years. William H. Bristol, president of the company, has given much of his personal attention toward the perfecting of this instrument. The Bristol Co., manufacturer of the Audiophone, occupies a large group of factory buildings situated on the outskirts of Waterbury and has built up an excellent reputation covering a period of many years in interior recording thermometers and other instruments. Its experience in the building of delicate and finely sensitized instruments has stood this company in good stead in the development of the Audiophone.

H. L. Griggs, sales manager, and J. B. Kelsey, assistant general sales manager, are devoting their entire energies to the promotion end of the business with excellent results. Branch offices of the company are to be found in all of the principal cities of the country.

F. O. SEXTON OPENS VICTOR SHOP

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 2.—The F. O. Sexton Co., which recently opened a Victrola shop at 647 H street, N. E., with a large stock of machines and records, is the first Victor retail establishment to open in this section of the city. The business is located in one of the busiest sections of the city and, according to reports, a considerable trade has already been built up. F. O. Sexton, head of the enterprise, is well known here, having been prominently connected for years in an important capacity with the War Department.

LONG DISTANCE RECORD SHIPMENT

PITTSFIELD, MASS., November 6.—The champion long distance shipment of talking machine records ever made from this city was recently made by Wood Bros., who shipped a number of records a distance of 16,000 miles to a mission in Africa. Wood Bros. have made many foreign shipments.

BRAINS, NOT BEAUTY, AN ASSET

Many Dealers Favor Women With Good Looks When Selecting Saleswomen — Brains in Every Instance Should Be First Consideration

A fact worthy of note is the increasing number of young women entering the sales end of the talking machine business. The personnel of almost every talking machine establishment includes one or more women and the dealer is now faced with the problem of selecting the correct types of saleswomen and training them in the art of salesmanship. This is one phase of the business which has been neglected in many instances. The woman clerk should be trained to become a real saleswoman. Of course much depends upon the character of the women selected. It is a fact that men are often influenced in their selection of women by beauty and pay entirely too little attention to quality of mind.

Good looks may be an asset, but salesmanship is a greater asset. A beautiful women with little else in her head excepting vanity is a poor investment. What is desirable is the woman, regardless of her looks, who is ambitious enough to put some real intelligence to work in the merchandising of talking machines and records. Of course where the rare combination of beauty and brains is secured so much the better for the dealer. What the merchant desires above all else is sales, and applicants for positions on the sales force should be selected only for their sales ability or their potentialities in this direction.

purpose of studying under DeReszke and other noted teachers. While in Europe Mr. Thomas found the opportunity of giving several recitals, three of them in London, where he achieved remarkable success. One of his feats was to fill the famous Albert Hall, London, to capacity with an enthusiastic audience.

Mr. Thomas' first recital upon his return to New York was given at Aeolian Hall on Sunday, October 15, and the newspapers were loud in their praise of his performance and particularly upon the improvement shown in his voice and in the handling thereof. In commenting upon the recital the New York Times said: "Should be a successor to Bispham if yesterday's big matinee house at Aeolian Hall voted truly."

Mr. Thomas plans to give a number of recitals during the season and is scheduled to make a number of new Vocalion records that should prove unusually interesting to an increasing army of admirers.

MUSIC LEADS IN ACCOMPLISHMENTS

Girls of a Middle Western State almost unanimously place music as their favorite accomplishment. In the course of a careful study of girl life in the open country of the State the question was asked: "What is your favorite accomplishment?" Out of 269 replies 238 named music. Embroidery, the second choice, had only nine votes in its favor.

Concealed Cord Tips

THIS is an important feature of the Manhattan Headset. Concealed Cord Tips have two real advantages:

The first is the elimination of all possibility of unbalancing the receiving set and decreasing the strength of the headset signals by having the hand come in contact with exposed cord tips or terminals. The loss of strength due to this contact is often as great as 50%.

Manhattan Headsets have concealed cord tips.

By enclosing the cord tips, all obstructions on the outside of the receiver are removed and the smooth molded case will not scratch the handsomest furniture.

The Manhattan Headset case is free from obstructions.

In addition, the cords of the Manhattan Headset are designed with two other important features.

1. Strain on the terminals is relieved by a tie-cord attached to a small eyelet in the case.
2. The polarity of the cords is indicated and the terminals within the receiver case marked. This permits the headset to be correctly connected in the circuit to give the best results.

Manhattan Radio Headsets are a quality product that build consumer good will. With the Red Seal Battery Contest now running and Radio sets and Manhattan Headsets as the prizes—you are losing a wonderful opportunity if you are not displaying them on your shelves and in your window to use the Contest to sell Manhattan Headsets and Red Seal Batteries. INTERMOUNTAIN VICTOR DEALERS HEAR NOTED SPEAKERS

Thomas Holland, of Glenn Bros.-Roberts Piano Co., Made President at Conclave of Intermountain Victor Dealers' Association in Salt Lake City—J. J. Davin, Principal Speaker

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, November 3.—The convention of the Intermountain Victor Dealers' Association, held here early in October under the auspices of the John Elliott Clark Co., was unquestionably the most successful and most resultful meeting in the history of the organization. The attendance totaled about seventy-five dealers and salesmen, many of them coming over six hundred miles to participate.

John Elliott Clark, assisted by Fred A. Bain and Miss Bess B. Jackson, who has charge of the Butte branch store, extended a hearty welcome to the visitors and did everything in their power to make their stay enjoyable.

Important Topics Discussed by Speakers

The meeting came to order with an address by President Thomas Holland in which he discussed conditions past, present and prospective and impressed on the dealers the necessity for continuous forceful efforts for the purpose of scoring during the coming holiday season and Winter the greatest business in the history of the trade in Intermountain territory.

Henry M. Adkinson, of the Chamber of Commerce, in discussing the business outlook, told the dealers of the increase in the production and prices of wool, cattle and minerals, stating that silver was at its highest price in the history of the State to-day. He stated there was a constant betterment which should be reflected in the ability of the people of the State to buy such necessities for the home as talking machines, records and musical instruments of all kinds. His remarks were couched along most optimistic lines and were favorably received.

W. C. Winder, speaking on "The Victor Dealer's Opportunity," referred to the wonderful service the Victor dealer and his sales force are rendering humanity in bringing music into the lives of the people and stated that in accomplishing this there was a greater satisfaction than merely a monetary one—that they were elevating the tastes of the community and inculcating a desire for the best in music.

Fred A. Bain, secretary of the Association, spoke in his usually able and interesting way on "Cultivating Prospects." He gave a number of examples to illustrate his viewpoint and the dealers present were evidently greatly interested in the ways and means set forth for developing their business.

Martin L. Pierce, president of the Hoover Suction Sweeper Co., presented the paper, "If I Were a Victor Dealer," and it was well received inasmuch as it gave the view of an outsider on the opportunities that should present themselves to the live talking machine dealer. Mr. Pierce's views were most timely and occasioned much favorable comment.

The next speaker was John Elliott Clark, of the John Elliott Clark Co., who dwelt at some length on the importance of "Knowing Your Goods." He emphasized the importance of dealers getting below the surface of their business and securing the fullest information regarding Victor products, both machines and records. The dealer or salesman who can enlighten the customer as to the composer of a certain vocal number, or the opera from which a number is taken, and whose general information on the latest Victor designs and products is such as to interest the buyers, has certainly a great advantage over those who have given little or no attention to the business.

New Officers Elected

The first business of the afternoon was the election of officers, which resulted as follows: Thomas Holland, of the Glenn Bros.-Roberts Piano Co., Ogden, Utah, president; Lester Taylor, of Taylor Bros. Co., Provo, Utah, vice-president; Fred A. Bain, of the John Elliott Clark Co., Salt Lake City, secretary-treasurer; George Tiss, of the Sampson Music Co., Weiser, Idaho, and Gerald Beesley, of the Beesley Music Co., Salt Lake City, were elected members of the executive committee.

The principal speaker of the afternoon was James J. Davin, secretary of the Reincke-Ellis Co., Chicago, who gave one of his usually interesting and stimulating talks. His wide practical experience in the talking machine business and his range of traveling from coast to coast, which has brought him into the closest intercourse with leading men in the talking machine business and their methods of merchandising, have made him, in truth, an expert whose views are based on practical knowledge and not theory, hence his talk to the dealers was a real man-to-man analysis of ways and means of developing business along the most progressive lines. Questions were invited from the dealers present and Mr. Davin enlightened all who desired information on varied phases of modern merchandising. A most interesting and helpful discussion followed from which everyone derived a great deal of profit. This phase of the meeting was unique in that it was informal and "loosened up" the ideas of a great many dealers who ordinarily would not be inclined to participate in a formal way.

Other speakers were Albert Shenkney, who discussed "Advertising and Its Possibilities"; Charles Pike, who spoke on "Ordering Records"; Lester Taylor, who discussed "Sales Demonstration"; Bess B. Jackson, of Butte, who spoke most interestingly on the subject of "Selling Records." Her remarks were couched along admirable lines. They were informative and stimulative and were well received by those in attendance. The question-box discussion closed the program.

Banquet and Entertainment Closes Convention

In the evening the visiting dealers and their ladies were the guests of the John Elliott Clark Co., Victor distributor, at the banquet and entertainment which was given at the Newhouse Hotel. Mine host of the Newhouse provided an appetizing feast which was accompanied by cabaret dancing and Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Christensen, devotees of Terpsichore, gave a number of new ballroom dances which were greatly enjoyed by the guests.

The convention covered practically two days and the visitors and their friends were taken on a tour through the city and vicinity. The Utah copper mines, the greatest in the world, were visited and the experience greatly enjoyed. In fact, nothing was overlooked to make the visit to the Intermountain Victor Dealers' Association Convention one of pleasure and profit. Everyone present expressed his appreciation of the attention, time and efforts devoted by John Elliott Clark and his associates to make this reunion one of the red-letter conventions of the talking machine industry in the Intermountain territory.

A DEPARTMENT DEVOTED TO PROMOTING RETAIL SALES

Thanksgiving as a Sales Stimulator

DON'T forget Thanksgiving, November 30, when planning your window and store displays. Your sign may read, "After the Thanksgiving Dinner . . . a (name of machine). Come in now and choose yours!" With some orange crepe paper, ears of yellow corn, chestnut burrs and some of those painted roast turkeys sold by the novelty shops you can arrange an effective display as a reminder of the approaching holiday. A few concrete suggestions on how to stimulate business by building your sales campaign around Thanksgiving follow:

The opportunity to get something for nothing is one few people can resist. And if the object to be given away is alive and moves haughtily—and is a turkey of giant size—and the month is November—and since everybody in every family insists that turkey is a necessity for November 30—why, it is a sure thing that everybody who hears about this matter will be interested at once. Get a big, live turkey (about twenty pounds), and put it in the window with appropriate cards, etc. Then circularize your customers, telling them that the turkey will be given free to some one who purchases at your store between November 20 and November 29. Each purchaser during these days will get a numbered coupon. The numbers to be given purchasers should have duplicate stubs on which the customer's name, address and phone number can be inserted, so you can notify the winner promptly. It will be a good plan to get the winner to the store and you can arrange with the staff photographer of your local paper to take a picture of the winner with smiling countenance standing alongside the turkey. And if you are very diplomatic you might get a flashlight of the family of the winner eating the big bird on Thanksgiving Day. The papers will doubtless be glad to run these photos with a news item giving you excellent publicity. Save all the stubs, for they will make a good permanent list of record prospects, etc. Give several prizes of different weight turkeys if your volume of business warrants. Here is a unique plan which will attract scores of interested buyers to your store and will build up your November sales nicely.

The Arrangement of the Window

ARRANGE the window as a turkey roost. There will be the house for the turkey, grass on the floor; little trees or twigs in the background, and, as part of the landscape, erect two miniature bill boards. Have this wording:

New November Record Hits Are Here Hear	The Biggest Stock—The Best Service Your whole family will be delighted if you win this bird. Every buyer here has a chance. Come in!
---	--

On a long, white strip of paper extending the whole width of the window and placed about eight feet from the ground have this message:

Every customer from November — to November — will receive a number coupon. You get a coupon for each purchase—whether you buy a paper of needles or a talking machine. On November — we shall draw the lucky number. It will win this noble bird. Buy your talking machine, records, needles, etc., here now. Get a coupon. You may be the winner!

On the outside of the window, at the lower right corner, paste a sheet listing latest records, and also paste up several (empty) needle envelopes. At the lower left corner paste a sheet carrying these words: "Here is music for every family and a wonderful meal for one family—possibly YOURS!"

A Letter to Your Mailing List

SEND the following letter to your mailing list: "Dear Sir or Madam—November is the month of Thanksgiving. Everyone who has been away tries to get home to make the family circle complete and to see loved ones again—also to partake of real home cooking.

"In our window is a handsome turkey weighing about twenty pounds—and it will be given FREE to one of our customers.

"Every purchaser here from November 20 to November 29 will be given a number ticket with each purchase, whether the article bought be a paper of phonograph needles or a talking machine. On November 29 we shall draw a lucky number and the person holding this number will receive this turkey with our compliments.

"Call here now for whatever you need in music and save the numbered coupons which you receive. You may be the winner!

"Very truly yours,

_____"

A Letter to Heads of Families

MAIL this letter to women with homes and families—owners of talking machines:

"Dear Madam—Although a record may be played scores of times without losing much of its beauty, it is unwise to play records to death. It is very easy to become tired of both the record and the talking machine if one selection is played over and over again.

"It is wisdom to purchase new records from time to time. They freshen up your record library and give you the pleasure you should get from your instrument.

"Thanksgiving Day is the time when you'll want new selections because everyone in the family will be home. You may have guests and after the big meal they'll need music for entertainment.

"We have here the just-issued numbers, as well as many of the older ones (with some of which you, perhaps, are not familiar). Call now and select your new records to give enjoyment to your family and friends. Our stocks are exceptionally complete and you'll like our courteous, intelligent service. We hope to see you soon.

"Respectfully yours,

_____"

Another Thanksgiving Suggestion

HERE is another display worthy of any store: In the center of your window place a cabinet model machine. On top of it set a card with a heading: "Thanksgiving Day Offer—This Model with $10 in Records (Your Choice)—$10 Down." On either side of this machine set large signs of upright shape. These may be of rich brown color with lettering in white and borders of orange and gold. The two signs read as follows:

In 1620

The Pilgrims, founders of our nation, planted their standard on New England shores and forever dedicated their lives and their country to liberty, political and religious. On the day after their first harvest in the new land was gathered they assembled in their little meeting house and devoutly gave thanks to God for the blessings He had bestowed. This was the first Thanksgiving Day.

In 1922

Our nation, grown mighty in material and spiritual resources, blessed with abundant harvests, comforts and conveniences beyond anything the Pilgrims knew, gives thanks for the greatest of all blessings—MUSIC—the comforter in sorrow, the consoler in loss, the bringer of joy, the destroyer of care. You may truly give thanks on November 30 if there is MUSIC in your home.

At the foot of the "1620" sign place an ear of field corn, a small pumpkin, a sheaf of wheat, a few bright red apples and other fruits of harvest time. At the foot of the "1922" sign place an open record album with loose records scattered about in a heap to balance the heap at the foot of the "1620" sign. If your window is a large one, add several talking machines of various models, with a card on each one featuring a special Thanksgiving term offer. These small cards should all be the same in color scheme and design as the two big signs. The effect is much enriched if the background is draped in the same brown color, with gold and orange ribbons on narrow strips of crepe paper loosely hanging down.

EDITOR'S NOTE—Mr. Gordon will publish on this page any good ideas submitted by you for the benefit of the trade, and will also answer any questions you ask him concerning merchandising problems. Use this department as much as you like. It is intended to serve you—to be a forum for the discussion and exchange of ideas of interest.

Mr. Dealer:- Do You Use The "Impresad?"

"Impresad" means Free Advertising for Live Phonograph Record Dealers.

Print your name in the blank space around the label on every record sold. Let that record go out and tell the world you are in the business of selling phonograph records, pianos, musical instruments or whatever you sell.

Do you realize what it means and how many records would carry your message in one, five or ten years? How firmly and rapidly your name is associated with your business.

There is no publicity or no advertising which you can buy that will place your name in the home as does the "Impresad."

The casual buyer, the transient customer, the fellow who forgets and all the rest, are continually reminded of your name and business. Newspapers, circular letters, delivery envelopes and all others find a resting place in the waste basket once read, but the "Impresad" goes on working for you day and night.

The price you pay for imprinting a few thousand delivery envelopes will pay for an "Impresad" outfit.

Order an outfit now, make up for lost time, begin at once to accumulate advertising. If you only sell one record a day it means three hundred advertisements working for you at the end of a year.

A CLEVER PUBLICITY STUNT

Brandeis Store in Omaha Brings Victrola and Records to the Attention of Diners in Store Restaurants in an Unusual Manner

OMAHA, NEB., November 8.—One of the cleverest stunts to bring the talking machine and records forcibly to the attention of the public was recently put into effect by the J. L. Brandeis & Sons department store of this city.

These restaurants are usually crowded and Peter G. Spitz, manager of the talking machine department, decided to cash in on this through the medium of carefully arranged concerts.

Subtlety was used in the arrangement of the program. Instead of featuring the talking machine and records so prominently that the character of the performance would bear the earmarks of an ad, the program for one day was opened with a piano selection.

COLUMBIA CO. IS INTRODUCING NEW PROCESS RECORDS

Announces New Method of Producing Records Which Eliminates All Surface Noises—Inaugurates Full Page Advertising Campaign in 600 Newspapers Throughout the Country

The Columbia Graphophone Co. is now running a full-page advertisement in 600 newspapers located in practically every leading trade center throughout the country announcing that the company has discovered a new process that it states will virtually eliminate all surface noises. In this advertisement the company refers to this important discovery, in part, as follows: "After years of experiment the Columbia Graphophone almost inaudibly and with imperceptible wear. "The playing-result from the use of this new material is actually astounding—no other word can describe it. Melody unmarred by penetrating, obtrusive surface sounds, harmony without disconcerting scratch or scrape—think what this means to you and to every phonograph owner in the world.

"This is made practical by Columbia's patented laminated, or three-ply, construction. The core or center leaf in Columbia New Process records, because it is absolutely distinct from the playing surfaces, is made of a harder, more durable substance. Over this rigid backbone are laid the two playing faces made of the new, ultra fine, ultra smooth surface fabric. This laminated construction gives greatly increased strength and longevity plus the most noiseless surface ever perfected.

"In no other record can you get the same wonderful degree of surface quietness and pure, uninterrupted music, for the simple reason that Columbia alone possesses the secret of making a material which, employed as a surface for phonograph records, obliterates obnoxious and intrusive surface sounds.

"This new substance does not hush loud surface noises. They are never created. Surface noise is merely friction, the point of the needle grinding on microscopic roughness and multiplied by the sensitive reproducer. In New Process Columbia records this microscopic roughness is refined away till friction is almost a fiction."

The ad is most attractively designed.

Diagram Showing Laminated Construction

"A" indicates much smoother playing surfaces made of a new substance. "B" shows hard center core which resists warping

Co. to-day presents to the world a record that is virtually noiseless. This record has been made possible by the discovery, in Columbia laboratories, of a process by which we are able to produce a surface material so fine in texture, so marvelously smooth, so free from friction that the phonograph needle travels over it

PEERLESS ALBUM CHRISTMAS DRIVE

Planning Co-operative Campaign With Dealers to Push Peerless Albums With Records

The Peerless Album Co., manufacturer of delivery bags, record stock envelopes, record-carrying cases and record albums, has arranged a campaign in conjunction with its dealers for the holiday period. The plan is to make a combination offer to the consumer of groups of records in albums. These will be in several lots at various prices, so as to meet the needs of the pocketbooks of every class.

Phil Ravis, president of the above company, is quite enthusiastic over this plan and states that the co-operation of hundreds of dealers is already assured. In fact, he has received a series of letters commenting upon the idea and offering to give the plan window displays and otherwise carry out the idea.

More than the usual attention should be given this method of disposing of records. First of all, it assures group sale of records in more than the average volume. The placing of records in an album makes the presentation of the records as a Christmas gift most inviting.

Any idea that will have a tendency to bring into the talking machine retail establishment the purchaser of gifts, both large and small, should be encouraged. Too often the man on the street feels that the gifts from the talking machine store involve the purchase of a machine or has the impression that a gift of one or two record selections does not do the situation justice. With the group sale of records in albums at various prices this class of trade finds the gift from the talking machine store is most appropriate. It is the additional sales that formerly went to the novelty store, the haberdashery and what-not establishments which the talking machine dealer may secure through this plan which makes it so inviting.

If you have a man working for you who is not fired with enthusiasm and you cannot fire him with enthusiasm, then promptly fire him with enthusiasm.

Standards of Modern Salesmanship Show an Upward and a Broader Trend :: By W. Braid White

Standards of all kinds are slowly changing their meaning for us. The world is steadily, though very gradually, revising its beliefs and the measurements, as they may be called, which it applies to its ideas. We all live by sets of rules, which are partly of our own individual making, but many more are made by the common consent of the world. The norms or measurements which we apply to our rules of conduct and behavior change constantly, however, though very slowly, and as they change, the manner of life changes slowly with them.

"Smart Aleck" Idea Is Obsolete

These abstract statements find concrete confirmation in the present-day position of salesmen and of the art which they practice, known usually by the name "Salesmanship." I am quite old enough to remember a time when it was considered not quite to a man's moral credit that he should be a "successful salesman." It was felt that such a man must certainly be a "smart man," but that this very "smartness" in itself implied a certain tinge of moral instability. It was felt that the very "smart salesman"—who was then the only successful salesman in public estimation—could not be quite square and was perhaps just a shade too "smart" to be a comfortable vis-a-vis in a business transaction. Every man of middle age can remember when advertising was the merest crude puffery of not perfectly reputable goods and salesmanship its mere translation into common speech and action between man and man.

Business Rests on Salesmanship

To-day one cannot indeed say that the old ideas are entirely dead, or that, in the music industries at least, the smart-aleck conception of salesmanship has been totally smothered in favor of a more civilized belief. But it is at least certain that the world has been thinking about selling and salesmanship generally, in a manner much more searching and intense than once would have been thought possible. Out of the thinking is gradually emerging a new conception, the conception of salesmanship as a profession, the profession of commercial distribution.

The fact is that during the last twenty-five years there has been a very great deal of heart-searching among all classes of the community concerning the relation of business to politics, to Government and, in fact, to Life itself. The individual business man does not fail to see the disquieting facts concerning the financial control over the entire population not too obscurely exerted by the vested interests of big business; while on the other hand the more impatient, because less materially responsible, thinkers have concluded in large numbers that the whole business structure on which modern civilization rests is totally false and must needs be pulled down.

No Blinking the Facts

There is no blinking the facts thus disclosed, for they are to be seen exemplified all round us. On the one hand there is too much concentration of power, on the other too much loose thinking and desire for loose action to match. Between the two extremes the vast mass of the business structure looms solid, supported by a myriad individuals, no one of whom is vastly important perhaps or vastly encumbered with riches, but each of whom is vitally necessary to the efficient operation of the entire organism. This vast mass of small and middle-sized business men and interests depends entirely upon salesmen and salesmanship.

And it is this middle class, this class to which the readers of this page naturally and commonly belong, which represents the only possible healthy conception of a working method for keeping civilization going, for getting things done. If the destinies of the world were wholly left to the representatives of the extreme Right we should end in financial and industrial oligarchy, exerted by a few monarchs upon the whole State. If they were allowed to drift into the hands of the representatives of the extreme Left we should face the equally uncomfortable alternative of slavery to another oligarchy, this time based upon "class-consciousness" and "proletarian dictatorship." Between the two it is not very easy to choose. One guesses that the typical business man and his associates prefer neither.

Business a Natural Growth

Modern business has its faults, which are many and grave; but modern business is the slow-built product of human minds and human thought. It has the virtue at least that it gets things done. If it is neither evolved into one sort of tyranny, as it need not be if we show a little wisdom, nor disintegrated into another, as we shall not permit if we retain our sanity, the chances are that, with the clearer thinking that is being carried on in these latter days, it will clear itself of its cruder dog-fight aspects and begin gradually to realize its true vocation; which is to keep civilization going by providing machinery, practical and workable even if not theoretically perfect, for the exchange of commodities and the distribution of produced wealth. Modern business is not perfect, but

Deliveries

We have always been optimists. If trade wasn't good today, we were certain it would be tomorrow. The system works out.

During the past Summer, when all phonograph makers had a "breathing spell," we felt sure of a fine trade for the Fall and Holidays.

We manufactured for it, and the demand came,—as expected. Business has been very fine,—thank you.

When the Fall demand hit us, we redoubled our production efforts with the result that we can today give you a satisfactory delivery schedule.

Consolidated Dealers

Okeh Records insure 100% satisfaction. This is a fact that "holds water." Consider this: We carry a complete stock at all times of every record in the Okeh catalogue, not only the hits and a few specials, but all of them. This enables our dealers to secure prompt delivery on every record.

Our Service extends still further. Dealers not only receive every "advertising help," but also the closest cooperation, in order to keep their turnover rapid.

The proof of the service is profits. Our average dealer turns over his stock ten times a year—larger profits on smaller investment.

MODERN SALESMANSHIP STANDARDS

then again modern business has not yet half realized how much more perfect it can be without becoming either communistic or autocratic.

Salesmanship and the Modern Order

Now, the function of modern business is to get things done, to make possible the distribution of the wealth which industrial processes create. It, therefore, rests upon salesmanship. In other words, if there were no salesmanship there would be very little distribution possible. One of the mistakes commonly made by apostles of what is rather assuredly called the New Order is to suppose that in a State purged of all the evils of modern business methods the arts of advertising and salesmanship (exchangeable terms) could somehow be dispensed with. Well, perhaps they could; but all experience shows that people do not naturally act with decision, that they constantly procrastinate, that they leave things undone, and that the sort of industrial civilization they have found growing up around them is very largely, if not mainly, the work of advertising and salesmanship. In fact, we have built up a world-order, which most of us would have very much difficulty in exchanging for anything else so good, upon the basis of a gradually developed art of salesmanship. We produce goods in enormous quantities. If financial control were a little less selfish we should produce much more. But to get these goods distributed we have to rely on salesmanship. How they are going to be distributed, if and when the world-rebuilders shall have destroyed salesmanship on the quite correct theoretical ground that it is a permanent overhead charge on industry, is something concerning which one may speculate for a long time without coming to any satisfactory conclusion.

Fallacy of Extremist Doctrine

Salesmanship, therefore, in the estimate of those who think about things instead of merely looking at them, has to be evolved into a scientific process of securing due distribution of product. Already this fact is being recognized, at least to a certain slight but definite extent, by the more thoughtful among those business men who constitute the great middle class of the American community. Of the music industries, among which the talking machine business is included as of right, not the most radical or intransigent thinker from the economic Left will deny the right to exist as cultural and civilizing media, and as bringers of the greatest possible happiness to the greatest possible number at the lowest material cost. Yet if any one could propound a method for inducing the people of the country to invest in what is, to tell the truth, permanent pleasure and happiness, without the use of the persuasion called salesmanship, certainly the makers of talking machines and other musical instruments would not be sorry to learn of it. But one suspects that it cannot be done and that the silence of the economic extremists upon this point is merely the corollary to an uneasy consciousness that the answer has not yet, by them at least, been discovered.

Meaning of "Profession"

All of which simply emphasizes the significance of the title given to this article. Salesmanship has to be built into a profession and the salesman must obtain professional status. Now a profession is distinguished by the fact that its votaries are interested in performing a function even more than in claiming a reward for it. The reward indeed they must have, and the more they can earn the better pleased everyone should be, but the function in due performance is the first consideration.

Again, a profession is invariably built on something like a science. It rests upon rules which are accepted by all, because they are founded on some science which is at its base and because of which it exists. Selling is an art of this kind. It is based upon ascertained laws of human behavior, although these are neither completely nor correctly understood as yet. It can be learned. Its rules, some empirical, some theoretical, all more or less wise and useful, can be applied successfully, with results which vastly surpass the results of unsystematic effort. In the talking machine business there is really a vast opportunity for the application of scientific salesmanship, for there is no other thing in all the world which does so much human good at so small a cost. Therefore, the selling end of the talking machine business ought to be regarded as worthy of careful study, ought, in fact, to be taught, ought to be practiced as an honorable and indeed necessary calling; in short, as, what it is, a profession.

This conception is as yet somewhat new. But it is founded on truth and must be steadily more clearly recognized and adopted. It is my intention to press home these conclusions in future articles, to show something of the rules and laws of human behavior on which rightful salesmanship methods rest, and how their application to the talking machine business must make for the greater happiness of the community and for the individual benefit of those who profess and apply them.

VICTOR JOBBERS VISIT NEW YORK

Several out-of-town Victor jobbers were callers on the New York trade recently, among the visitors being Arthur A. Trostler, Schmelzer Co., Kansas City, Mo.; W. F. Davison, Perry B. Whitsit Co., Columbus, O.; Joseph C. Roush, Standard Talking Machine Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., and E. C. Rauth, Koerber-Brenner Co., St. Louis, Mo. All of these jobbers had called at the Victor factories in Camden before visiting New York, and while here were the guests of Thos. F. Green, of the Silas E. Pearsall Co., and several other local Victor jobbers who gave the visitors a royal welcome. They all spoke enthusiastically of business conditions in their respective territories, stating that the shortage of Victrolas was becoming acute, with the dealers reporting an extraordinary demand for all Victor products.

NEW PATENTS BEARING ON RECORDS

American Inventors Busy in the Domain of Record Improvement—Recent Contributions

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 6.—In the patents relating to talking machines and records for the past month or more recorded in the patent office quite a few bearing specifically on the improvement of the record are in evidence. Earl E. Jones and E. R. Harris, of Arlington, N. J., have been granted Patent No. 1,425,018, the general object of which is to obtain a greater clarity of reproduction than has been heretofore possible and to greatly increase the number of record lines to the inch, thus increasing the length of the record which can be placed upon any one record tablet or disc.

Donald B. Porter, of San Francisco, Cal., has been granted Patent No. 1,425,281, the primary object of which is the provision of a phonograph record adapted for playing a plurality of selections or parts of selections without necessitating the resetting of the phonograph stylus.

Thomas D. Jones and John H. Barr, of Kansas City, Mo., have been granted Patent No. 1,425,486 for an improvement in phonograph records. The invention consists in the provision on the face of the record of a scoring or groove intersecting at its outermost point one of the non-reproducing grooves or the innermost extremity of the final sound reproducing groove of the record and extending first inward and then outward toward, but not beyond the said non-reproducing or innermost extremity of the final sound-reproducing groove.

Charles H. Gill, Chicago, Ill., has been granted Patent No. 1,427,373 on a multiple sound-record tablet. The particular advantages claimed for this invention are that it will allow of the selection by the purchaser of the specific sound records upon each side of the double-faced records or tablets instead of having to select the particular record wanted and take whatever may have been put upon the opposite side by the manufacturers; also the protection against breakage and warping of the tablets which it affords and the advantage of allowing the tablet to attain full rotational speed before contacting with the reproducing stylus.

Jacob L. Bauer, Milwaukee, Wis., has been granted Patent No. 1,426,034 on an improvement on talking machine discs, which primarily has for its object the provision of a device adapted to lift or raise the record from the table, thereby enabling the operator to more conveniently grasp the record when its removal is desired.

LARGE ORDERS FOR THE PHONOMOTOR

ROCHESTER, N. Y., November 6.—The Phonomotor Co., of this city, manufacturer of automatic stops and electric motors for talking machines, has been unusually busy since September 1 taking care of a large number of orders received from dealers who are evidently ready for an active Winter business. "These orders," remarked W. F. Hitchcock, "are pouring in not only from dealers in the United States but from Canada, England and France as well, which is gratifying to us, as it proves the popularity of our products and the demand for them from dealers everywhere. So far, business for September and October has shown a decided increase over the past few months, and from all indications this Winter will prove a highly successful one in every respect."

J. F. Hitchcock, the other member of the company, has been spending a most enjoyable two weeks' vacation in upper New York State on a hunting trip. Accompanied by four other friends he journeyed to a hunting camp which they own, on an annual pilgrimage. No doubt, members of the Hitchcock family will be enjoying venison steak dinners on his return, as each year he gets his usual deer.

H. L. Willson Reports Bridgeport Plants Working at Full Capacity to Supply Records

In a recent chat with The World H. L. Willson, president and general manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., stated that the company's record factories at Bridgeport are working night and day and that record sales have increased so rapidly during the past few weeks that the factory force is wholly inadequate. Extensive advertising for skilled labor has failed to bring the desired number of pressmen and the orders at hand at the present time indicate that the present pace will not slacken, but on the contrary will increase as the holiday season approaches.

While the popular division of the Columbia catalog is meeting with the heaviest demand the symphony record orders are showing a decided increase. Columbia dealers are apparently making a careful inventory of their stock and placing good-sized orders accordingly.

THREE POINTS IN LETTER WRITING

As a preparation for the writing of a letter, there are three things to know: (1) your purpose, (2) your subject, (3) your man, says the Office Economist. Of these three items, knowing your man is perhaps the only one that needs comment. Knowing your man will, in the case of many letters, be a matter of knowing to what general stimuli the average man will react, and using these skilfully. And the correspondent who studies the replies that come in will be able to size up a very large part of his lists with a letter or two so that he can make his letters more effective by playing on his knowledge thus acquired.

Ideas are worthless unless they are put into effect. Action is the thing.

OUR EXPORTS OF TALKING MACHINES

Exports and Imports of Talking Machines and Records Show Decreasing Tendency as Compared With Last Year—Our Buyers Abroad

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 10.—In the summary of exports and imports of the commerce of the United States for the month of August, 1922 (the latest period for which it has been compiled), which has just been issued, the following are the figures on talking machines and records:

The dutiable imports of talking machines and parts during August, 1922, amounted in value to $42,056, as compared with $38,952 worth which were imported during the same month of 1921. The eight months' total ending August, 1922, showed importations valued at $353,088, as compared with $421,023 worth of talking machines and parts during the same period of 1921.

Talking machines to the number of 2,859, valued at $92,430, were exported in August, 1922, as compared with 2,240 talking machines, valued at $111,595, sent abroad in the same period of 1921. The eight months' total showed that we exported 30,901 talking machines, valued at $1,093,450, as against 24,997 talking machines, valued at $1,195,790, in 1921.

The total exports of records and supplies for August, 1922, were valued at $61,454, as compared with $111,337 in August, 1921. The eight months ending August, 1922, show records and accessories exported valued at $672,704; in 1921, $1,508,721.

The countries to which exports were made in August and the values thereof are as follows: France, $1,339; United Kingdom, $4,510; Canada, $10,207; Central America, $3,974; Mexico, $12,386; Cuba, $2,263; Argentina, $3,086; other South America, $4,503; China, $1,194; Japan, $10,348; Philippine Islands, $1,868; Australia, $17,862; Peru, $1,212; other countries, $17,678.

SPECIAL BANNER RECORD RELEASES

Waltz Hit, "Three o'Clock in the Morning," Recorded as a Vocal Selection—"The Laughing Record" a New Novelty

The Banner record division of the Plaza Music Co. has released the successful waltz, "Three o'Clock in the Morning," as a vocal selection. It is a tenor solo with orchestra accompaniment, sung by Billy Burton. The instrumental of this number has such a wide sale that the vocal edition was brought out because of the insistent request of numerous dealers. Another addition to the recent Banner releases is called "The Laughing Record." It is a novelty that should attract unusual attention and from present indications the Banner sales department's preliminary publicity on this release will be increased.

In conjunction with the release of Banner records the Plaza Music Co. has arranged a free window display set that has met with favor in many retail establishments. This material is unusual in design and is most attractive.

RECORDS BY EUROPEAN ARTISTS

Victor Co. Issues Special List of Records by Famous European Artists, the Majority of Whom Have Never Been Heard Here

The Victor Talking Machine Co. has just issued to the trade a most interesting and comprehensive list of records by European artists, pressed from masters made abroad, and which will go on sale with the December Victor records. Some two-score records are listed and the artists represented include Arthur De Greef, pianist, and the Royal Albert Hall Orchestra, under the direction of Sir Landon Ronald; Benno Moiseivitch, the noted pianist; special symphony orchestras under the direction of Albert Coates and Percy Pitt; Feodor Chaliapin, famous Russian bass; Mattia Battistini, baritone; Dmitri Smirnov, tenor; Renee Chemet, violinist; Jacques Thibaud, violinist, and Fernand Anseau, tenor. A special eight-page booklet has been issued by the Victor Co. featuring the records by European artists, which will be shipped with the records themselves.

In announcing the records the Victor Co. says: "These records are, with few exceptions, made by artists and musical organizations who have not appeared in this country and will be the means of bringing to music lovers many artists whom they might not otherwise have an opportunity to hear. We feel that these records will prove extremely interesting to lovers of good music and we predict for them a very cordial reception."

BUYS A. B. TAGGART CO. ASSETS

TOLEDO, O., November 2.—The assets of the A. B. Taggart Co. have been purchased by Hyman Rothenstein from the receiver. The business will be conducted at its old location at 618 Madison avenue under the name of the Ignaz Fischer Music Co. Talking machines, records and all kinds of musical instruments will be handled. Plans are under way to dispose of the old stock to make room for new stock.

GREAT GRANBY FALL CAMPAIGN

Widespread Publicity Given to Drive by Metropolitan Papers—Advertising Listing Dealers to Appear in Daily Papers—Important Move

The big Fall campaign instituted by the Granby Phonograph Corp., of Newport News, Va., has attracted the attention of the New York Evening Journal's trade news edition, which devoted three columns to the subject in a recent issue. The Granby proposition is described as providing for the dealers not only the basis for immediate profit, but building for the future. The good beginning made by the Granby Corp. in its entrance into the field some years ago is reviewed and it is pointed out that this company entered the field only after a careful survey of conditions, so that the important problems of manufacturing, distribution and selling were properly dealt with from the very beginning. It is stated that the Granby Phonograph Corp is accordingly to-day established on a sound and permanent basis. Its ample financial resources and personnel of experienced men are noted. Referring to its policies, the fulfilment of promises, quality production, adequate dealers' profits, provision for future growth, and its advertising and merchandising plans they are taken up in fullest detail. The beginning of a retail advertising campaign for the benefit of the dealer in the

New York Journal and the American is announced. The advertisements in the daily papers will list the local dealers' names. A comparative table is given listing the various models and showing the great reduction between the present-day prices and the former prices of these models. This extensive campaign entered into has the full backing of the Granby Phonograph Corp. and through the medium of J. F. Stapleton, of Newport News, and O. P. Graffen, New York manager of the company, is being energetically carried out.

VOCALION RECORDS SCARCE IN WEST

The Aeolian Co. is receiving reports from the Munson-Rayner Corp. in Los Angeles and the Magnavox Co. in San Francisco, two very active Vocalion Red record distributors on the Coast, of a very great shortage of Vocalion records and that the dealers' demands greatly exceed the amount of records they are able to supply.

Special shipments are being rushed to the Coast at the present time to help take care of the tremendous increase of Vocalion record business in this territory.

RESIGNATION OF E. F. O'NEILL

Secretary of Beckwith-O'Neill Co., Victor Wholesaler, of Minneapolis, Minn., Retires as Result of Physical Breakdown

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., October 31.—The announcement has been made of the resignation of E. F. O'Neill as secretary and general manager of the Beckwith-O'Neill Co., Victor wholesaler of this city, and his severance from that company.

Mr. O'Neill's retirement comes about as a result of a physical breakdown and on the advice of his physician, who urged him to withdraw from commercial life for an indefinite period in order to regain his health.

In announcing Mr. O'Neill's resignation, George C. Beckwith, president of the company, said: "Mr. O'Neill carries with him continued interest and best wishes of everyone in our organization. The business of this company for the present will be carried on with no change in personnel, and we will continue to serve Victor dealers in the Northwest in the same careful and painstaking way which has been a distinguishing mark of this company's activities in the past."

Mr. O'Neill has been a member of the company seven years and has been a very active factor in its development.

Dealers in This City Display Alertness in Preparing For Holiday Trade—News of Month

COLUMBUS, O., November 6.—Stewart Bros. Furniture Co., Victrola dealers, 467-471 North High street, have instituted a Christmas advertising campaign featuring the formation of a Christmas Club. Facilities are offered prospective buyers of Victrolas through membership in this club, which will soon enable them to become owners of talking machines. According to P. W. Stewart, president of the company, this arrangement has already resulted in the sale of a number of machines and many inquiries have been received.

The McAllister-Mohler Furniture Co., 142-146 North High street, has opened an attractive phonograph department under the proprietorship of Robert L. Seeds, well-known talking machine dealer of this city. Cheney phonographs and Columbia and Edison records are featured.

Before taking up his duties with the McAllister-Mohler Furniture Co. Mr. Seeds operated a music store at State and High streets, where he had the exclusive Cheney agency. This establishment is now in charge of his two sons, M. K. and I. S. Seeds, who are both experienced in the merchandising of talking machines. In addition to the Cheney line Columbia Grafonolas are handled at the State and High streets store.

Mr. Seeds is one of the most progressive talking machine dealers in this city and although this new branch of his business has just been started the volume of sales so far indicates that the enterprise will be a success.

H. F. Fleateau, vice-president of the Z. L. White Co., Victor dealer, has assigned a quota as an objective toward which to strive each month. The department seldom fails to attain the quota assigned it. Now the members of the department are anxious to double the quota and according to F. J. Connor, manager of the department, there is every indication that this will be accomplished. Mr. Connor believes that the sale of records ought to be stressed more than it is at the present time. "More attention must be given in working up the record sales. When that is done with the present condition of machine sales we will enjoy a profitable business," said Mr. Connor.

The main office of the Cardinal Sales Co., recently established here, with F. F. Dawson as treasurer and manager to handle the Cardinal phonograph and record business, is now well established. The New York and Cincinnati offices have been closed and the local office is now the seat of operations. The sales organization has been organized by Mr. Dawson and an intensive campaign to place Cardinal products before the public is under way. Mr. Dawson is widely experienced in the distribution of talking machines and records, having been for many years branch manager for the Columbia Co. in Cincinnati, where he also conducted the Sterling Roll & Record Co. for several years.

L. Metzger, formerly of Zanesville, O., has joined the sales force of the Stewart Bros. Furniture Co. as manager of the Victrola department.

An advertising stunt which has received the commendation of advertisers in various lines was that put on by the Robins Piano Co., Brunswick dealer, 80 South Third street, before members of the Kiwanis Club at their regular weekly luncheon meeting at the Hotel Chittenden. Instead of having the regular program scheduled for these meetings J. N. Robins, proprietor of this concern and member of the Kiwanis Club, arranged a musical program which, in the words of one of the members, "scored one of the hits of the noon luncheon season in this city." Mr. Robins presented Joel Lay, of Chicago, baritone, and Earl R.

Billings, pianist, also of Chicago, in a varied program in which the capabilities of the Euphona Reproducing piano were demonstrated. At the suggestion of Mr. Robins the wives of the Kiwanis members were invited to this luncheon.

A Victor artist scheduled to appear in this city is Margarete Matzenauer, contralto. This will be the third appearance of this artist here in the last three years. The seat sale for this concert is being held at Heaton's Music Store, Victrola dealer.

Preparations are still under way for the salesmanship school to be held in Columbus the week of November 20 under the auspices of the Perry B. Whitsit Co., wholesale jobber of Victrolas and Victor records. The Columbus school will be the twenty-first school to be held in a distributor's city. The purpose of the school is to give the Victor sales people and dealers a better understanding of music contained in the Victor record catalog, a thorough knowledge of the construction and functions of the Victrola and many other points that should prove advantageous to dealers. The classes will be conducted by F. A. Delano, of the Victor Co.

The Curry-Harper Co., 116 North Front street, is the latest addition to the music stores of this city. This concern has secured the local agency for Strand phonographs, which are destined to win a large measure of favor.

CENSUS OF MANUFACTURES ISSUED

Complete figures of the 1919 census of manufactures of musical instruments in the United States have just been issued by the Department of Commerce, Bureau of the Census, Washington, D. C. A detailed analysis of that portion of the census appertaining to the talking machine industry appeared in the August issue of The World thanks to advance data supplied to this publication.

Every customer for the popular music is a prospective customer for the classics. The sales force should keep this in mind.

ARGUE RIGHT TO FIX DISCRIMINATORY PRICES

Federal Trade Commission Outlines Policies of Fair Price Fixing by Wholesalers in Interesting Case Now Before the Court of Appeals

The right of a wholesaler to fix different prices for his product to different groups of purchasers was argued before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals recently in the suit of the Federal Trade Commission against the Mennen Co., manufacturer of toilet products, to compel conformity to its rulings. While conditions such as this are not known to exist in the talking machine trade, the suit is of interest because of the principle involved and its importance to the retail and wholesale trade, as well as to manufacturers in general.

The general principle contended for by the Commission is that the Mennen Co. and all other manufacturers must sell their products for the same price to concerns which are in competition with one another. The case was argued for the Government by W. H. Fuller and W. T. Kelly, lawyers for the Commission, who asserted that the Mennen Co. was selling its talcum powder and other products to one group of wholesalers at one price and to another group at another price. The Government does not contend that the wholesaler may not sell at one price to the retailer and at another to the wholesaler, but insists that it is restraint of trade to discriminate in price between one wholesaler and another or between one retailer and another. The complaint of the Government is that the company classes many concerns as retailers that are, in fact, wholesalers.

The question is complicated because of the fact that many retail stores have joined hands and formed co-operative buying agencies, seeking to buy from manufacturers at the manufacturers' price. Some of these agencies, however, have gone into the general jobbing business and not only sell to their own members but to the general public. When they do engage in general business they are entitled to the manufacturers' price, according to the Federal contention.

Felix H. Levy, counsel to the National Wholesale Dry Goods Association and a number of other associations, submitted a brief for his clients as amici curiae, arguing that the principle laid down by the Government, if carried to its logical conclusion, meant that every manufacturer would have to sell at the manufacturer's price to any retailer, consumer or other individual who sought his product.

He said in part: "The obvious result of this would be the impairment of the business of the wholesaler and of the retailer and a serious derangement and disorganization of the business of the manufacturer.

"Even if these results should not occur in the precise detail and to the precise extent indicated, such interference and control on the part of the Government would necessarily tend to check the initiative of the merchant and manufacturer, by imposing upon the free exercise of his judgment as to the most efficient method of conducting his business the judgment of a governmental tribunal and of the courts. It cannot be doubted that such a procedure would impair efficiency, check and hamper individual enterprise and energy and tend to deprive the trade and commerce of the country of those benefits which normally flow from business skill and acumen when not exercised by methods inherently wicked or constituting offenses mala in se—methods not claimed to be present in the case at bar.

"The value of the 'old line wholesaler' in the scheme of distribution of manufacturers is an economic fact long established. They constitute, in substance, the salesmen of the manufacturer. They gather together under one roof the products of many manufacturers and hold in readiness in their warehouses these countless products for prompt and ready distribution in small quantities to the retailer. By closer acquaintanceship derived from propinquity with these retail customers they are better able to judge of the financial credit of the latter than the more distant manufacturer. If these wholesalers be driven out of existence the manufacturer in most lines of industry would be confronted with the need of making direct deliveries to countless customers at great distances, in relatively small quantities, and without adequate opportunity of determining the credit and standing of such customers."

USE OKEH RECORDS AT REHEARSAL

Gerald Griffin, the eminent Irish tenor and exclusive Okeh artist, recently wrote the play and lyrics for the new act of Ned Bolles & Co. When a recent rehearsal was called the company had difficulty in securing a suitable pianist to rehearse the numbers and Mr. Griffin, who happened to have his Outing portable with him, suggested that the Okeh records be used for musical numbers. The act was rehearsed to the accompaniment of several Lopez dance records and the results were surprising. The rhythm and tempo were perfect and every member of the company was enthusiastic regarding this rehearsal innovation.

ANNOUNCE PLANS FOR RADIO WEEK

Week of December 23-30 Designated as Radio Week—Committee Appointed to Handle Publicity—Extensive Promotion Campaign in the Interest of Radio Is Planned

The American Radio Exposition, which is sponsoring a radio show to be held at the Grand Central Palace, New York, December 21 to 30, was the host at a luncheon given recently to the editors of various radio publications. At this luncheon plans were formulated whereby the week of December 23 to 30 will be designated as Radio Week. It is planned to have Radio Week activities in the hands of a general committee which will include the editors of radio trade papers, trade papers in allied industries and radio editors of daily newspapers. This committee in turn will be represented by an executive committee of five members which will be in charge of the actual work.

Major J. Andrew White, editor of Wireless Age, was appointed chairman of the executive committee and his associates will be the editors of several radio trade papers. It is planned to use every possible form of publicity in behalf of radio week and it is expected that the broadcasting stations will co-operate to the fullest extent. L. S. Byers, executive secretary of the American Radio Exposition Co., presided at the luncheon and gave encouraging reports as to the progress of the exposition.

The most important element in life is time. Lost time can never be regained.

CELEBRATES WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Frank Roberts, Veteran Blackman Man, Celebrates Golden Wedding Anniversary—Presented With Watch by Blackman Employees

J. Newcomb Blackman, president of the Blackman Talking Machine Co., New York, Victor wholesaler, and Mrs. Blackman spent a few days in Atlantic City the week of October 30 as hosts to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Roberts, who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on October 30. An informal reception was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Roberts at Atlantic City and telegrams of congratulations were received from their friends in all parts of the country.

Frank Roberts is one of the veterans of the Victor wholesale industry and, in fact, has earned the title of "the grand old man." When the Blackman Talking Machine Co. was organized Mr. Roberts was its first employe, and until three years ago worked indefatigably in the interests of the organization. He was retired by Mr. Blackman on full pay as a partial recognition of the exceptional service that he had rendered the company during a period of sixteen years. When he retired Mr. Roberts was secretary of the company and during his many years' association with the Victor industry he had won the esteem and friendship of Victor dealers throughout the metropolitan territory. His unfailing courtesy and kindness to every one whom he met in the day's activities gained for Mr. Roberts the good will and good fellowship of the entire Victor trade.

Before leaving for Atlantic City Mr. Roberts was presented with a beautiful gold watch by the employes of the Blackman Talking Machine

Co., with whom he had been associated for so many years. The watch was suitably engraved, the first line bearing the following inscription: "Presented to Frank Roberts, the grand old man, on his golden wedding anniversary, October 30, 1922, by his friends in the Blackman Talking Machine Co."

VICTOR RECORDS OF GOLDMAN BAND

December Victor List Contains Two of Edwin Franko Goldman's Famous Marches, "The Chimes of Liberty" and "The Sagamore"

Among the many interesting numbers in the advance list of records for December issued by the Victor Talking Machine Co., which appears in our record department this month, is a double-disc record made by the famous Goldman Band, whose open-air concerts at Columbia Green, New York City, attracted more than a million people during the Summer months. The numbers listed on this record are: "The Chimes of Liberty March" and the "Sagamore March," of band leaders and players the country over. The numbers possess an individuality that stamps Goldman as a composer and conductor to be kept in mind—a man from whom bigger and better things may be expected.

As before remarked in these columns, the Goldman Band is an aggregation of artists whose ensemble work has elicited the highest commendation. It is orchestral in quality because of the admirable balancing of the various divisions of the brasses, reeds, strings, tympani and accessories. Its performances have been a great educational force in the community and Mr. Goldman's many admirers will be delighted to have in their homes a permanent reminder of his band and of his ability. This record will both written by Edwin Franko Goldman, the conductor and organizer of this splendidly trained band of artists. These compositions are well and favorably known to New Yorkers for their inspiring and stirring measures and their admirable scoring which shows the skill of a real musician. In many respects this record made by the Goldman Band is worthy of the closest study, not only of the music lover, but also help to enlighten musical people the country over how fortunate New York is in having such an organization which perhaps in the near future may make a coast-to-coast trip, thus welding a closer musical union between New York and her sister States.

E. B. Cavannaugh, Victor dealer, at Sanborn, Ia., has had his store remodeled.

Not Chance---But Good Sign Building

LOOK down the street and consider the signs. Some stand out from the rest not because of their size or their coloring, but because they have a certain distinction which is lacking in the others. It is largely a matter of design—design combined with advertising thought, superior construction, the right combination of certain decorative features and illumination. It is not chance at all, but the proper application of the sign builder's art.

For more than ten years the Flexlume organization has been trained to put selling power into electric signs. And back of all this is the largest plant in the world devoted exclusively to the making of electric signs, and a service organization which is more than nation-wide.

UKRAINIAN NATIONAL CHORUS

First Recordings of the Great Singing Organization Recently Made at Brunswick Laboratories—Won Praise of Musical Critics

The Ukrainian National Chorus, which is making records exclusively for the Brunswick Co., has just completed its first recordings at the Brunswick laboratories. This unique and colorful aggregation of artists recently appeared

Nina Koshetz With Some Members of Chorus in two concerts at Carnegie Hall, in this city, and was received with great enthusiasm by music lovers. The chorus is now on a concert tour throughout the country and is booked to return to the metropolis for several appearances later on.

The first recordings on Brunswick records will comprise four native folk songs, selections which are bound to create an unusual interest. They are so distinctly different, and tuneful, that they will be sought for by music lovers generally and will be, no doubt, a valuable addition to the Brunswick record catalog.

Some people are so busy doing nothing that they have no time to attend to their talking machine business.

UPBUILDING OF A RECORD BUSINESS

F. Baumgart, of the Actuelle Music Co., Tells of His Experience, Which Is Interesting and Stimulative to Dealers Who Wish to Succeed

YOUNGSTOWN, O., November 1.—In response to the question "How Do You Do It?" F. Baumgart, owner of the Actuelle Music Co., of this city, has told of the energetic and resourceful methods he has employed in the building up of his business.

"While there is no secret or mystery concerning the sale of records," said Mr. Baumgart, "there is a lot of hard work and the application of common horse sense is necessary. My first venture in selling records was very novel, indeed. I had never before sold a phonograph record, but, being a successful salesman, and having just enough pep, confidence and energy, I came to the conclusion that people will spend money for records if the proper appeal is made. As far as I knew the following idea was new and worked out wonderfully well. Recognizing the fact that people must eat every day and, therefore, visit the food markets regularly, I checked up on the patronage at the various marketing houses and selected a dignified, well patronized and sanitary market. I contracted for space and put in the best line of records which I thought would be a success. These records were demonstrated on a Magnavox and all the people entering the market had to listen to the music. Hearing a record that appealed to them they bought it, buying many records that they would not otherwise have asked to have played. In one afternoon and evening we sold 1,952 records in this manner.

"Business is good and is getting better. It is necessary to give the people what you know they want and when they want it, and with a pleasant smile which costs nothing and helps the sale."

Mr. Baumgart has sold a number of different lines, but is now centering his activities on the Pathé Actuelle record as the name of his company, the Actuelle Music Co., would imply. Mr. Baumgart is an enthusiast over this record and the service which the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co. is giving. He states that he now has five stores and that others will probably be added.

GEORGE W. HOPKINS IN DALLAS

General Sales Manager of the Columbia Co. Delivers Address at Salesmanship Club

DALLAS, TEX., October 31.—George W. Hopkins, general sales manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., was a recent visitor to this city, calling upon Fred Erisman, manager of the local branch and visiting some of the dealers in this territory. Mr. Hopkins made a very interesting address at a special meeting of the Salesmanship Club at the Adolphus Hotel. In the course of his talk Mr. Hopkins gave some timely facts regarding the progress that Columbia has made the past year, emphasizing the co-operation that the Columbia organization had tried to give Columbia dealers during the business depression. While here Mr. Hopkins made a short talk from the WFAA radio station, conducted by the Dallas News and the Dallas Journal. This talk, which was semi-humorous, was enthusiastically received by the radio fans.

DEALERS TAKE ON BRUNSWICK LINE

Baker-Flick Co., of Camden, N. J.; M. Feldman & Sons, Johnstown, N. Y.; Muir's Department Store, Newark, N. J., and Others Secure the Representation of This Well-known Line

The phonograph division of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., in New York City, reports that Brunswick activities throughout the East are most encouraging, and E. A. Straus, general manager of this office, says that all indications point to one of the most prosperous Winter seasons yet experienced by this company. Records have been much in demand this month and Brunswick dealers are bending every effort to get their share of this business.

New Brunswick dealers established this month include the Baker-Flick Co., of Camden, N. J. This dealer introduced this well-known line by carrying a very attractive window display and held a formal reception throughout an entire day which was attended by hundreds of people. Selections were rendered by an orchestra during the day and in the evening Margaret Young, popular exclusive Brunswick artist, entertained those present. E. A. Straus, accompanied by O. J. Jester, of the Philadelphia branch of the Brunswick Co., was present and assisted this dealer in the arrangements for the opening.

The M. Feldman & Sons store, of Johnstown, N. Y., is another new Brunswick dealer this month who will devote a large space in his store to the showing of Brunswick models. The complete Brunswick record catalog will be carried.

Muir's Department Store, of Newark, N. J., has just completed the installation of a modern phonograph department, where it will feature the Brunswick line of phonographs and records. This new Brunswick account was established this month by the New York office of the Brunswick Co. This department will be in charge of Edwin J. Struck, who comes here after an extensive experience gained in the Chicago talking machine field, where he made for himself an enviable reputation.

Other new Brunswick dealers established recently were the Gotham Shop, at 17 John street, New York, and S. G. Remenschneider, of Newark, N. J., who are to carry the complete line of Brunswick models and records.

SMITH PIANO CO. CLOSES BRANCHES

A. B. Smith Piano Co., of Akron, Closes Three Branch Stores in Adjacent Territory

AKRON, O., November 6.—The A. B. Smith Piano Co., of this city, one of the best-known music houses in the Middle West, announces the closing of retail stores in Canton, Steubenville, O., and Montgomery, W. Va., and stocks of these three stores have been moved to Akron. No reason for the closing of the three stores is given by Mr. Smith. The Columbus, O., store is still in operation and will not be closed.

A stock of pianos estimated at $50,000 is being offered at a special sale and is being widely advertised. Included in the sale offerings are 150 new and used talking machines.

A. B. Smith, head of the company, is the new president of the Ohio Music Dealers' Association.

SONORA DEALER VISITS METROPOLIS

George Geake, who sells the Sonora phonograph in Albuquerque, N. M., in large numbers, and who is famed in that part of the country not only as an energetic dealer, but as a musician of unusual accomplishment, was in New York for a few days last month and visited the Sonora offices. Mr. Geake says the great Southwest is going to do more than its share of phonograph-buying during the present season.

BRIDGEPORT LANDAY STORE OPENS

Attractive Three-story Branch Is Opened in Connecticut—Building Entirely Remodeled

BRIDGEPORT, CONN., November 8.—"Landay's Temple of Music," 1192 Main street, an innovation in music stores in this city, was thrown open for inspection by the general public, under the personal direction of T. C. Canfield, manager.

From top to bottom the three-story building has been renovated and done over. The entrance, of latest design, which provides ample space for show windows, is most artistically arranged. Inside, on the first floor, the general sales department for musical instruments, music rolls, records, etc., is located. Here are six sound-proof booths for record demonstrations.

A modern automatic elevator carries customers to the second and third floors. On the second floor a complete line of talking machines, from the small portable to the largest cabinet types, is displayed, while the top floor houses the sales rooms for pianos, including player, baby grand and upright designs. The same design of decoration is followed out in the entire building, being ivory with paneled walls.

This is the ninth Landay store to be opened, the company operating five in New York, two in Newark, one in New Haven and one here. Van Veen & Co., New York, supplied the equipment.

Service Problem? There Isn't Any!

TO this company—or to any other sincere builder of an exclusively high-grade product—Service is really no problem at all, for there is never anything complicated, hide-bound or mechanical about a Square Deal.

Back of every Phonograph or Radio Set we build is the guarantee of a Company financially stable and permanent, with full respect for its good name, confident of the quality of its merchandise and, above all else, HUMAN.

When this Company is forced to govern its Service Department by a set of iron-clad, distrust-inviting rules, it will cease building phonographs.

We invite and hold relationship only with dealers who are themselves reasonable, sincere and Humanly Square. Such men can never be wrong. So where is the Service Problem?

Are you, Mr. Phonograph Merchant, open to a sales proposition as clean cut as this Service Problem? Ask us for it; we'll get in prompt touch with you.

PROMINENT BRUNSWICK ILLUMINATED DISPLAY ATTRACTS

Great Sign Located at the Northeast Corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street, New York City, Seen Approximately by 750,000 People Daily—Impressive Form of Publicity

Illustrated herewith is the new Brunswick illuminated display located at the northeast corner of Fifth avenue and Forty-second street, New York City.

There is an estimated circulation at this corner, both pedestrian and automobile, of approximately 750,000 people daily, and more automobiles pass this point in a day than any other location on the American continent.

This display is opposite the New York Public Library and but a short distance from the Grand Central Station, the terminal of the famous Twentieth Century Limited and all New York Central, Michigan Central, New York, New Haven & Hartford trains. Millions of people arrive and depart annually from this station.

The Brunswick people consider themselves fortunate to have been able to secure this location for a period of six months, this being the first time in years that it has been available. It is considered one of the best in the United States, as it offers national and local prestige.

THE TWIN CITIES

Railroad Embargo a Hindrance to the Development of Talking Machine Trade Inasmuch as Jobbers and Dealers Can't Get Stock

MINNEAPOLIS and ST. PAUL, MINN., November 6.—Right on top of the strike trouble comes the embargo and the talking machine trade is quite convinced that life is just one blamed thing after another. But the average merchant is a game fellow and is hustling right along. Several of the dealers are short of some of their best selling models and are anxiously waiting for the Interstate Commerce Commission and the railways to untangle the congestion and get the railways to function as they should.

"We are still starring the Starr," declared M. L. McGinniss, of M. L. McGinniss & Co., Starr distributors, to The World representative. "We are able to report a decided increase of business right along both in machines and records. The demand for Gennett records has exceeded all our expectations and we have had considerable difficulty in keeping up our stocks."

Director Edward L. Kern, of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., gets quite enthusiastic when any one asks him about Brunswick phonographs. The department is "coming big," he says. His only worry is the failure to get goods. Consoles lead the demand and the shortage of these instruments is keenly felt by dealers. The new record factory at Muskegon has proved the salvation of the record trade, which was in a bad way because of the limited number of records received from the old factories. The road men are signing new dealers right along and are getting some very nice accounts. Large furniture houses appear to like the phonograph side line and it is almost daily that one learns of another furniture house inaugurating a phonograph department.

Laurence H. Lucker, Northwestern distributor of Edison phonographs and records, has been a guest at Orange, N. J., talking Fall business with the moguls of Thomas A. Edison, Inc. He is doing big things for them in the Northwest. The $175 console type is a brilliant success here in the Twin Cities. Colder weather is bringing a large number of buyers into the stores.

The talking machine department of W. J. Dyer & Bro. is particularly hard hit by the freight embargo. According to Mr. Dyer the company has orders aggregating more than $40,000 which it is unable to fill because no talking machines are coming through the freight impasse. Victor goods are in ever increasing demand and very many buyers will have no other talking machine than the Victrola.

Mort Schaeffer, road man for the Stone Piano Co., returned last week from southern Minnesota with a book of nice orders for Vocalion phonographs. Manager Monson is pleased with the outlook, both in the wholesale and retail branches of the business. He had as guests recently R. M. Kempton, wholesale manager of the Vocalion department of the Aeolian Co., and H. B. Levy, the Aeolian Co.'s Western manager.

The Foster & Waldo Co. is now settled in its handsome new store, to which reference was made in this letter last month. While the older lines carried by the house, namely, the Victrola and Sonora lines, retain their popularity, Mr. Foster states that the Cheney is making steady progress and is earning new admirers continually.

USE OF TACT A VITAL NECESSITY

Salesmen Should Consider Characteristics of Each Customer and Handle Accordingly

There are many excellent salesmen whose sales averages suffer because they lack one of the prime essentials necessary for success in their work, namely, tact. The salesman who handles every customer according to a standard plan and does not take into consideration the individual characteristics of each customer as far as he is able to learn them in the few moments preceding the actual sales talk and demonstration of a machine or records is losing sales. For example: The person inclined to jocularly cannot be handled in the same manner as the dignified personage. It is up to the salesman to cater to the likes and dislikes of his patrons. To chill the jollity of a prospect by an excessively formal and unbending demeanor is to make that prospect uncomfortable and to arouse his dislike. The dignified person will have as little as possible to do with an establishment where his dignity has been ruffled. This example is sufficient to point out the application of tact and the salesman who puts thought behind his work should be able to call to mind many other types of individuals who require special methods of handling.

KELTIC RECORD CO. CHARTERED

The Keltic Record Co., of New York City, has been granted a charter of incorporation under the laws of New York State, with a capital of $70,000. The concern, which will deal in talking machine records, was chartered by M. Caret and F. O'Callaghan.

Gentlemen:-

As an old Advertiser in the Talking Machine World and desirous of giving credit where credit is due, I want to tell you of the exceptional results and returns which I have received from my regular and continued advertising in your columns.

The scope of the Talking Machine World's circulation and its pulling power has been beyond imagination. We have received orders not only from all sections of this country but from various parts of the civilized world. The profits from one order which we received was sufficient to cover the cost of several years advertising in the Talking Machine World.

We are writing this to show our appreciation of the efficiency of your publication and the results have been so gratifying that it is our intention to continue to place our sole advertising appropriation where we have found it will bring the best results.

Yours for continued results,

SOME SALES STIMULATORS

In every community there are a number of churches and the merchant with an eye for opportunity can take advantage of this fact by staging church concerts during the Winter. Bubeck & Gallagher, the live talking machine dealers, of Marshall, Ill., tried this stunt and found that the demand for records was substantially increased as a result. By issuing invitations to members of the church, on the back of which are questions such as whether a machine is owned by that person, what type of music they are interested in, etc., some good machine and record prospects may be obtained.

A record week at periodical intervals, say once each month, could be made profitable as a stimulator of certain records which the dealer is especially anxious to push. For example, during one week each month the dealer could arrange concerts in his store featuring an opera one week, records of a certain artist the next record week, etc. Not only concerts, however, would bring the best results. The event should play an important part in the advertising a week before it is scheduled and invitations should be sent out as well as announcements with the direct-by-mail literature.

A wide-awake talking machine dealer sent the following letter to his customers, announcing a new service which he was planning:

"Dear ———:—The Blank Talking Machine Shop is planning to inaugurate a new service for the benefit of its customers. In order to aid them in the selection of records and the building up of their record libraries we will send three of the latest records to all customers each month on approval. In order that these records may be of the type you are interested in will you kindly answer the following questions and mail same to us:

"What kind of music do you prefer?

"What make of instrument do you own?"

"Sincerely," etc.

Customers appreciated the fact that they would be able by this plan to get the latest selections as soon as they were received by the dealer and the idea was well received.

The average man or woman is curious. Many dealers have increased public interest in their lines by taking advantage of this fact. The window is the most potent means of cashing in on human curiosity. The Des Moines Music Co., Des Moines, Ia., recently secured the services of two young ladies who danced in the display window of the store to talking machine music. Crowds gathered—sales ensued.

The credit manager of a large concern rates the credit standing of customers according to their occupations. The occupations of these people give him a line on their probable earnings and when members of the sales staff visit them they are supplied with complete instructions as to credit allowances on purchases. For example: A man who belongs to a union and works at the electrical, plumbing or carpenter trade has an income which approximates $45 to $50 per week. This customer cannot meet the payments on a very high-priced machine without embarrassment, but he can easily pay the instalments on a medium-priced instrument. Thus if this prospect desires to purchase an extremely expensive machine the salesman uses all his skill to sell him one less expensive, unless, of course, he discovers that there is another source of income in the family, such as other members working, etc. In this manner customers are never oversold and repossessions are reduced to a minimum.

HAS ATTRACTIVE DISPLAY ROOMS

Gibson & Snow, of Syracuse, Proud of New Equipment—Sonora Demand Reported

SYRACUSE, N. Y., November 6.—Gibson & Snow, wholesalers of the Sonora phonograph in this city, have just recently completed one of the most attractive display rooms for the Sonora line yet installed by any Sonora jobber anywhere. A large space on the third floor was partitioned off from the rest of the building and modern equipment and fixtures were installed which show off Sonora models in a highly attractive manner. C. B. Malcomb, general manager, is responsible for this new addition to the wholesale plant and is very much pleased with the compliments bestowed by dealers who have visited these new quarters. "Business for the past two months has been nothing short of phenomenal," said Mr. Malcomb, "for at the present time we have on our books many unfilled orders for Sonora phonographs and from all indications there will be a shortage during the holiday season greater than that of last year. However, new shipments are coming in and every effort is going to be made to take care of our dealers as far as possible, so that all of them will have a representative stock of machines to sell during this busy season."

Stepping into Hustling Harry's Grafonola Shop she asked the smart young clerk, "Have you a record by Hulda Lashanska?" "Yes, 'My Curly Headed Baby,'" was the innocent reply.

He was going on to quote the record number, they say, for the first thing he said in the hospital was, "Number 77744."

VICTOR CO. STOCK DIVIDEND

Increase of Capital Stock of Company From $5,000,000 to $35,500,000 Followed by Declaration of 600 Per Cent Stock Dividend

CAMDEN, N. J., October 28.—The stockholders of the Victor Talking Machine Co., at a meeting held on Monday, voted in favor of the suggestion of the board of directors of the company made at a recent meeting that the capital stock of the company be increased from $5,000,000 to $35,500,000, following which the company declared a stock dividend of 600 per cent to go to stockholders of record October 31.

An official statement says: "No change in the dividend policy of the company is anticipated. The directors have in mind very extensive plans for further developments, improvements and expansion of the plant." The company on Tuesday filed a certificate showing an increase in capitalization from $5,000,000 to $35,500,000. It also increased its preferred stock 5,000 shares, to $500,000.

ADVERTISES REASONS FOR SUCCESS

Don C. Preston, Prominent Merchant of Bakersfield, Cal., Outlines Successful Policies and Thanks Patrons for Support

BAKERSFIELD, CAL., November 6.—Something different in the way of advertising was recently attempted by Don C. Preston, music merchant, with warerooms at 1631 Nineteenth street, this city, on the occasion of the third year of the existence of the firm. The advertising was something in the nature of a statement of the earnings of the concern during the three years and an outline of the policies which have contributed to the success of the undertaking.

For the first two years Victor talking machines and records were featured exclusively and nearly a year ago the Sonora line was added. The rapid growth of the business is indicated by the fact that a branch was opened in Taft, Cal., a few months ago. In addition to talking machines, several makes of high-grade pianos are handled.

Linking Up Christmas Talking Machine Displays With National Advertising :: By E. A. Dench

There is a decided spurt in talking machine sales during the few weeks prior to Christmas. Particularly at this season of the year do people wonder why they have waited so long before owning a phonograph. The aggressive and convincing advertising of the well-known talking machine manufacturers is, in a large degree, responsible for this desirable condition of affairs. All you have to do is to link up your window displays with this national advertising and many a sale is as good as made.

The Christmas Fireplace

was a fireplace, simulated with red brick paper, placed over the slightly projecting structure. A log fire in the center of the fireplace was blazing merrily, thanks to the red crepe paper covering electric lights underneath the logs. All the comforts of home were suggested by life-like cut-outs of a cat and a dog beside the fireplace. The mantelpiece was occupied by a candlestick at each end, with bric-a-brac in between. Several holly wreaths, alternated with framed pictures, adorned the rear wall, the center of which was constructed with a French window effect. A wintery appearance to the French windows was imparted by attaching pieces of absorbent cotton to represent snow.

There was a cabinet machine at each rear side, with a lighted lamp on a little table between them. The floor was covered with rugs.

Overcoming the Lack of Background

The P. A. Stark Piano Co., Minneapolis, Minn., arranged a Christmas talking machine window along similar lines. There was the simulated fireplace, the floor before which was covered with a bear rug. This window had no background in the strict sense of the word, the same being framed at the top, rear and sides with alternate strips of red and green crepe paper. The paper, which was about three inches wide, was slightly twisted. A frame or stage effect was obtained with the assistance of a cross beam at the rear, crepe paper being hung from the top of the cross beam to the floor. More crepe paper decorated the sides of the cross beam. The simulated fireplace, obtained in the usual manner, as per Howard, Farwell's display, was inside the stage-setting effect, with a bear rug placed on the floor in front of the fireplace. There was a basket of logs of wood, fire tongs and several cushions beside the fireplace. Each center side was occupied by a cabinet phonograph, decorated with red ribbon streamers. A sign down in front suggested:

"This Christmas give your family a phonograph. Transform the long, restless evenings into bright home gatherings encouraged by music."

Increasing Show Window Space

Young & Chaffee's, Grand Rapids, Mich., deepened their show window in order to allow more scope for a Christmas display. The extra space gained was graduated backwards and upwards to produce perspective and the effect of distance. A cave-like aperture was formed in this manner, with three mounds, each covered with absorbent cotton to serve as snow, inside the aperture. Three cabinet talking machines, electrically driven, reposed on the mounds. A frosty atmosphere was obtained by cold grey-blue drop drapes at the side and rear of the aperture. The cave mouth was arched by a number of small holly wreaths, on which the name of the make of machines was spelled. At the left side were three cabinet instruments in oak, while three cabinet models in mahogany were placed at the right front side. Records and needles were displayed here and there on the floor.

On Christmas Morning

The Oak Park Music Shop, Oak Park, Ill., also deepened its background at the center by removing several of the panels and widening the space by about two feet. Inside this opening were cut-outs of a contented husband and wife and their two little children, grouped around the Christmas tree, beside which was a cabinet phonograph. It was evident that Friend Husband had surprised his wife with a phonograph on Christmas morning. The rear part of the opening was enclosed with beaver board, covered with decorated paper of Santa Claus riding his sled above the house tops. Records in the Christmas gift envelopes were neatly arranged about the floor, with a single row of Christmas records out of their envelopes along the beveled edge by the window glass. A cabinet model was stationed at the left side.

The Poinsettia Sign

An appropriate Christmas display was made by the Victor Talking Machine Co., Germantown, Pa. The eye of the spectator was caught by a unique sign, which was suspended from the ceiling at the center by means of red rope chains. The sign, which was about six inches wide and a foot long, appeared to be six poinsettias strung together in a row. The flowers were made of cardboard, with a letter on each flower, so that the word "Victor" was formed. A large cabinet model, with the tone chamber doors opened, occupied the right-hand side. Red rope ribbons were attached to a shutter-like contrivance inside the chamber. The ribbons parted their respective ways and extended to easels on which records were displayed.

The Miniature Rooms

The O. K. Houck Piano Co., Little Rock, Ark., attracted attention by constructing two miniature rooms in a typical home for show-window exhibition purposes. The rooms were built on a scale of one inch to the foot, the size of each room being sixteen inches by eighteen inches. The left side room contained a miniature cabinet phonograph and a grand piano and was also furnished with doll furniture. One well-dressed girl doll was "cranking" the talking machine and another doll was seated before the grand piano. The living-room at the right was also furnished with doll furniture, but did not contain any musical instruments. The room was populated by a family of dolls seated around the table. Each room was screened with a mechanical panel which could be raised and lowered at regular intervals. These panels were also utilized to convey the following messages:

"Will there be music in your home this Christmas?"
 "Will your home be without music this Christmas?"

There was green crepe framework enclosing the two rooms, with black records forming a border around the framework, plus the following streamer along the top:

"May your Christmas be made happier by the music of the Victrola."

Green garlands were strung from panel to panel along the beaver-board background, with a frieze of Winter scenes along the top. There was a musical instrument at each side, with a record and a music roll alternated on the floor at a considerable distance apart.

A Wintery Setting

The Christmas atmosphere in a display by the San Antonio Music Co., San Antonio, Tex., was accomplished by covering the floor with absorbent cotton, with a large mirror, to represent an ice-covered lake, placed on the floor in the middle. The edges of the lake were covered with cotton, while artificial snow was liberally sprinkled over the lake. The absorbent cotton on the floor toward the rear was piled much higher in order to produce the effect of hills, at the tops of which were several boy dolls, with their tiny sledges, ready to descend the hills. To the left of the lake was an old water mill, the revolving wheel of which bore a number of records.

To the right was a miniature bungalow, with cows and horses grazing in the snow-covered grounds. Green and red crepe paper served as the background covering. A cabinet talking machine was stationed at the right rear corner.

DEMONSTRATES TALKING MOVIE

Dr. E. B. Craft, Chief Engineer of the Western Electric Co., Exhibits Device at Yale—An Interesting Demonstration

NEW HAVEN, CONN., November 4.—With President Angell, of Yale, and former President Hadley among the audience of scientists and local people numbering 2,000, Dr. E. B. Craft, chief engineer of the Western Electric Co., gave the first exhibition of a talking movie in Woolsey Hall at Yale last Saturday night. The moving picture showed the operation of the Western Electric vacuum tube, and the explanatory lecture accompanying it was delivered automatically by a bevy of electric phonographs and loud-speaking telephones.

The speech was recorded several days ago in the company's laboratories in New York, using a recently developed electrical recording device. By the use of his apparatus Dr. Craft said a political speaker could simultaneously address any number of audiences at widely scattered points, or a great actor could preserve his voice and gestures for all time. The speech was unusually clear and distinct and had none of the blur characteristic of many phonographic speech records. Thomas A. Edison and Lee De Forest appeared in the movie film.

Dr. Craft also gave a demonstration of sending five telephone messages over one wire. He had two microphones on the desk before him, huge horn amplifiers above him and other equipment on each side of the stage. A screen was in position for lantern and motion pictures. As he supplemented diagrams showing sound waves with comments and instructions to his assistants, one could hear from the horns a message on the retirement of a boxing champion, another reporting the stock market, etc. They went on the wire at the same time from a number of assistants, but were "filtered" and isolated until at last they came tumbling out one after another in a manner that amazed as it interested the audience.

Discussing the development of radio Dr. Craft intimated that Mars could listen in if there be humans there. Long distance plants call for long wave, low frequency equipment and are very expensive. As for secrecy, he said, the great expense necessitated makes it practically impossible as yet. In a local way, twenty-five conversations from the same point are feasible. The radiophone can be used across the continent if the needed funds are forthcoming.

STARR LINE DESCRIBED IN FOLDER

An artistic folder has been prepared for dealer distribution by the Starr Phonograph Co., of Richmond, Ind., in which the entire line of Starr phonographs is illustrated and described. Among the instruments featured are the Jacobean and Adam styles, eight upright and three console models. The foreword of the folder stresses the high quality of the Starr instruments and points out the care with which materials for their construction are selected.

FINE EXHIBITS AT TEXAS FAIR

Dallas Music Dealers Attract Crowds to Booths With Splendid Exhibits at State Fair—Latest Designs of Talking Machines a Feature

DALLAS, TEX., November 3.—One of the outstanding features of the State Fair here was the section devoted to exhibits of talking machines, many of which have only recently been placed on sale. Victrolas and Brunswicks were shown by Bush & Gerts, Edisons by the Edison Shop, Columbias by the Columbia Graphophone Co. and Victrolas by Sanger Bros., who maintained a separate booth for their music section at the fair.

The York model Brunswick, included in Bush & Gerts' exhibit, attracted favorable attention from visitors to the booth, according to F. G. Coppedge, in charge of the exhibit. A gold-plated model was also a new style on display.

A complete display of all models of Edison instruments was shown at the Edison booth.

Among the models which attracted special attention was the Adam, while the William and Mary and Chippendale also received attention from visitors. A large rest room was maintained in connection with the display where visitors rested and listened to the music.

A Gothic period design Victrola was included in the display of Sanger Bros., in charge of J. H. Corder. A complete showing of the newest models was included in the display which attracted a great deal of attention.

Several novel cabinet designs were displayed in Columbia machines, in charge of Fred R. Erisman. Among the more attractive was a Japanese cabinet design. Several new upright models were also shown.

NEW LINE OF LONG CONSOLES

New Cabinets Announced to Accommodate A2 Grafonola—Well Advertised by Columbia Dealers to Good Purpose Throughout Country

HANOVER, PA., November 6.—The George A. Long Cabinet Co., of this city, manufacturer of Long console record cabinets, recently announced a complete line of cabinets to accommodate the Columbia A2 Grafonola. These cabinets, which are designated as styles C601, C603, C611 and C612, are being featured extensively by Columbia dealers throughout the country, who are using them to excellent advantage in stimulating the demand for the A2 Grafonola. The new Long consoles for Columbia Grafonolas embody the various distinctive features of the Long console cabinet line which has been on the market for nearly two years. They are manufactured in red mahogany with two-piece tops and attractive literature has already been distributed in connection with this new line.

Laughing Record

Has Started The World Laughing

A recording expedition was sent out from the International Talking Machine Company to secure new recordings. They happened, by chance, to stop at a small Bavarian Village. A company of local performers was amusing the villagers with a laughing sketch. The laughing was so natural and the skit such a riot of fun that a recording was immediately made.

The record started all Europe roaring. The matrice was imported by the General Phonograph Corporation and now America is literally "in stitches."

It Has Broken Every Sales Record

Though The Okeh Laughing Record has been released only a few weeks tens of thousands have been sold in spite of the fact that no publicity was given to it. Now, our publicity campaign is informing the entire country about this sensational novelty record.

Order now, from your nearest Okeh distributor, Okeh Record No. 4678—The Okeh Laughing Record.

The bill collector scowled! Dad played The Okeh Laughing Record for him. The collector wants to LEND him money now!

Sister has given up vamping. She plays The Okeh Laughing Record for the boys—she finds it more effective.

THE CARUSO PLAQUE AT DITSON'S

Bas-relief of Tenor Carved by Own Hands Has Interesting History — Now Displayed in Wholesale Victor Department of Ditson & Co.

One of the features of the Victor wholesale department of Chas. H. Ditson & Co., New York, which never fails to arouse the interest of visiting dealers, is a plaque bearing the head

The Great Caruso Pictured by Himself of the late Enrico Caruso and modeled by the noted tenor himself. The plaque is the property of Mrs. Chas. H. Ditson, and was loaned by her to Paul Carlson, manager of the wholesale Victor department of Ditson & Co., in order that members of the trade might see it on display.

In sending the plaque to Mr. Carlson Mrs. Ditson offered the following interesting bit of its history:

"Some years ago, in fact, during his first years in America, Caruso came with two or three friends to take luncheon with us. He brought a mysterious package (wrapped in a newspaper, by the way), which he would allow no one to touch, but carefully laid it aside while we were at luncheon. As we finished he waved us all into the drawing room, saying he wished to do a little work. As he had been making caricatures during the meal, I thought he wished to touch up some of these. As I glanced back on leaving the dining-room, however, I saw him open his precious bundle, and seizing a silver knife, which he most amusingly resisted all efforts of the butler to remove, he began to work deftly at the thing before him. It was the bas-relief (still a bit damp, evidently, and plastic) on which he wanted to make some slight alterations. It was plain to me that the butler would like to have supplied the amateur sculptor with some humbler instrument than one of his best knives! I forestalled any such interference, however well-meant, and quietly told the man not to disturb Mr. Caruso, but to let him have whatever he wished. Naturally!

"In a few moments he appeared with his delightful smile, holding aloft, in triumph, the bas-relief, to which he had put the desired finishing touches, and which I have always treasured, not only as a good likeness of the great and much-beloved tenor, as he looked at that time, but as it was the work of his hands."

PAUL SPECHT'S ORCHESTRA SCORES

Paul Specht and his orchestra, making Columbia records exclusively, formally opened on October 30 the Monte Carlo, a new dance palace located at Fifty-first street and Broadway. Mr. Specht was given an ovation during the evening and there is no question but that the Monte Carlo will prove one of the most popular places of entertainment along Broadway. The popularity of Paul Specht and his orchestra is reflected in the fact that on opening night reservations were on file for three times the number of tables that were available.

JOSEPH C. SMITH WITH BRUNSWICK

Popular Gotham Orchestra to Record Exclusively for Brunswick Co.

Wm. A. Brophy, managing director of the Brunswick Recording Laboratories, announced recently that Joseph C. Smith and His Orchestra had been added to the fast growing list of exclusive Brunswick artists. This orchestra, which plays at the Hotel Plaza in New York, is one of the foremost dance organizations in the country, and Joseph C. Smith is recognized from coast to coast as a leader in the rendition of the most popular types of dance music. Record owners everywhere are familiar with the recordings of Joseph C. Smith and His Orchestra, and his addition to the Brunswick record library will be welcomed enthusiastically by Brunswick dealers and their patrons.

ATTRACTIVE JAMERSON HOUSE

East St. Louis Dealer Has an Admirably Arranged and Equipped Establishment

EAST ST. LOUIS, ILL., November 8.—The E. W. Jamerson Music House, this city, deservedly takes high rank among the many beautiful

Attractive Jamerson Victor Department music shops in Illinois. It is finished in ivory throughout and arranged for convenience and efficiency as well as beauty. The ground floor is entirely devoted to the sale of Victor merchandise and the ample basement to that of pianos. Mr. Jamerson is an energetic and enthusiastic young man thoroughly experienced in both the Victor and piano lines, having handled them for several years in another East St. Louis store. He has specially trained sales people in both departments and since his opening in July of this year his shop has been a busy as well as a beautiful place. It is located in the heart of the business district.

MME. ONEGIN NOW BRUNSWICK ARTIST

Famous Swedish Concert and Opera Singer to Record for Brunswick Library

The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. will issue very shortly records by Mme. Sigrid Onegin, well-known Swedish concert and opera singer, who arrived in New York recently to join the Metropolitan Opera Co. Mme. Onegin is recognized throughout Europe as one of the leading operatic and concert artists of the present day, and she has appeared in every important European city.

Wm. A. Brophy, managing director of the Brunswick laboratories, is keenly enthusiastic regarding the acquisition of Mme. Onegin to the Brunswick library, as she will make Brunswick records exclusively and there is every reason to believe that her European success will be duplicated in this country, judging from her reception at Carnegie Hall last week.

BOOKLET GIVES RECORD TEXTS

New Columbia Booklet Gives Texts of German Records—Has Important Sales Appeal

In connection with the December German record releases the Columbia Graphophone Co. is sending out an attractive booklet with a caption in German which, when translated, means "Text of Columbia Christmas Records." This Title of Columbia German Record Volume title is a complete description of the contents of the book, for the verses of practically all of the German Columbia records for Christmas are listed here. The Columbia Co. felt that there was a real demand for a booklet of this type, principally because it is so difficult to clearly record a foreign language in a manner so that people who have been away from their home country for a long time can understand every word perfectly. This booklet will give each German customer the complete words of every German record that is bought. The booklet is artistic to a degree, the cover being printed on antique cover stock in red and green.

DEMAND TELLS OF IMPROVED TRADE

Samuel Eshborn, 65 Fifth avenue, New York City, who recently introduced the Blue Belle steel needle, has found a ready response in trade circles for this product. The Blue Belle needle is manufactured in several tones. Packed in attractive envelopes and in cartons of 100 packages, when placed upon the dealer's counter it attracts the customer's attention. Mr. Eshborn says that the production of the Blue Belle needle has had to be increased considerably in order to care for orders and he anticipates that the holiday business will further justify this move.

UNIQUE HEALTH BUILDER PUBLICITY AT WINTER GARDEN

Famous Beauty Chorus Goes Through Walter Camp's "Daily Dozen" Exercises at Winter Garden Show in New York—An Unsolicited Tribute to the Health-building Value of These Records

It is well known that in many houses the services of highly paid publicity men are secured to increase general interest in a product. In other instances the universal popularity of a product itself brings unsought publicity of untold value. In the latter classification Health

Camp's," in which forty of the Winter Garden's famous beauty chorus go through Walter Camp's "Daily Dozen" at each performance. This is entirely the result of the popularity of Walter Camp's "Daily Dozen," as Health Builders, Inc., employ no publicity men and R. B.

Winter Garden Beauty Chorus Doing Its "Daily Dozen" Act

Builders, Inc., manufacturer of health-builder record sets, consisting of Walter Camp's "Daily Dozen" set to music, is particularly fortunate, for it has become a household word from coast to coast, and both public prints and stage abound with reference to it.

One of the greatest pieces of publicity ever accorded this well-known health-building system is to be found in the Winter Garden Show this year, in New York City. Among the most popular numbers on the program is "At Wheelan, president of the company, was not aware of the act until it was staged.

At the Winter Garden the curtain rises on a full-set stage with a back drop depicting a huge talking machine. A tremendous horn is projected through this drop, from which are issued the announcements and commands. Mr. Wheelan, who attended the show at one of the early performances, stated that the act was announced as Walter Camp's "Daily Dozen," and further publicity was secured in the suggestion that the audience go through these exercises with talking machine records in their own home.

The Winter Garden chorus is known throughout the land as consisting of a careful selection of some of the most beautiful girls in the country, many of whom have never before appeared behind the footlights. They are attractively costumed in gym suits and go through the entire twelve exercises pleasingly and perfectly.

The act always receives a full measure of applause and in an article appearing in one of the daily papers it was stated that the "Daily Dozen" was also proving of much value to the Shubert Co. in keeping the girls in good trim.

THE "UNIQTONE" AMPLIFYING DEVICE

Important Contribution to Record Sound Perfection Introduced by Herman Segal, of New York City—Conceived Along Novel Lines

Herman Segal, who is well known in the metropolitan New York talking machine field, where he has been actively engaged for many years past, has just announced to the trade that he is now ready to place on the market an amplifying device to be known as the "Uniqtone" which he has just perfected. Mr. Segal has taken his reproducer perfected some time ago, which has many features of note, and has attached to it a small aluminum horn which permits the sound to be conveyed in a much larger volume and with more detail. This increase of sound is in addition to that which comes from the regular talking machine amplifying horn. The "Uniqtone" can be attached to any make machine hence it is bound to appeal to every record buyer. Mr. Segal's reproducer is adjusted through the use of suspension springs, a new departure in sound box construction, instead of the screw adjustments commonly used, which, as he states, eliminates all chance of blasting and reproduces a clear, full tone.

This interesting device will be marketed by the Unique Reproductions Corp., with offices at 32 Union Square, New York City, where a large space is devoted to assembling this device for sending out to the trade. The "Uniqtone" has been shown to the trade in and around New York, and is already being handled by well-known wholesalers and dealers, all of whom showed considerable interest in the results obtained through its use. Mr. Segal stated that this new device was the result of intensive work and many experiments on his part to produce a device that will bring out the fullest details of any record played, particularly of orchestral numbers, as it reproduces faithfully the several instruments. An intensive campaign is now under way to introduce this device throughout the country for the purpose of placing it in dealers' stores everywhere.

Earl L. McCoy, music dealer, of Morristown, Pa., has enlarged his establishment by securing the building adjoining his present store.

MILWAUKEE

Shortage of Machines for Holiday Trade Viewed as Menace to Business—Fine Exhibits at Household Exposition—The News

MILWAUKEE, WIS., November 6.—How to get new business seems to be less of a problem for the talking machine trade at this stage of the pre-holiday selling season than the matter of getting merchandise promptly. The railroad freight transportation situation is the most serious it probably ever has been and it is growing worse as cold weather and snows are imposing additional handicaps upon the railroads of the entire country. There does not seem to be much hope of relief before Spring, for the carriers entered the Winter already badly crippled for cars.

There are a good many jobbers and dealers in Milwaukee who had the foresight and ability to lay in surplus stocks of talking machines during the Summer in anticipation of the active Fall and holiday business that is now here. Even these interests are already complaining about the trouble they meet in getting goods, for business has been active all through October and warehouse stocks in many cases are down to a point where they are uncomfortably small in view of the likelihood that demand is going to increase sharply in two to three weeks as Christmas comes to hand.

Goods Going Out Faster Than Coming In

Harry A. Goldsmith, secretary of the Badger Talking Machine Co., Victor jobber, says while momentarily the condition of wholesale stocks is satisfactory Victor dealers in this territory are ordering goods so fast that there is every reason to expect a shortage before long. Goods are very slow in coming from the East and delays are growing more harassing. The Badger Co., since moving into its present large headquarters building at 191-193 Fourth street, has a much larger capacity for storage than before, but despite filling this space and some leased warehouse room elsewhere it expresses considerable fear over the ability to make deliveries when the real rush at retail sets in early in December.

"It has been difficult to make the average dealer understand that the car shortage was actually so serious as it has proven to be," said Mr. Goldsmith. "In fact, we had trouble in making ourselves to see it, but as soon as our investigation proved that everything said was true we passed the word along to our dealers as a warning to get covered on Fall and holiday needs. Some of the dealers do not yet take much stock in our repeated warnings, but I fear they will regret this before long."

Freight Delays Hurt Business

Thomas I. Kidd, general manager of the local branch of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., is not an alarmist in any way, but he sees grave dangers in the present freight situation and its effect upon the prompt movement of any kind of goods. Brunswick dealers have been anticipating their needs to a considerable extent, but hardly a single one has enough stock to last judging by the way retail sales are increasing. Even now it is necessary to resort to the express lines for shipments, principally records. Expressing bulky goods like instruments is an expensive proposition and adds largely to the cost of doing business. At the same time express lines are running into more and more delay in making deliveries.

Christopherson Reviews Situation

S. R. Christopherson, sales manager of the Sonora and Okeh record department of the Yahr & Lange Drug Co., jobber for the Wisconsin and northern Michigan territory, finds himself fairly well fortified with stock, but he reports increasing delays in getting freight shipments through from the East. The situation, he says, is one that requires some very careful thought on the part of all interests and he notes that the retail trade is undergoing an awakening which is reflected by larger and more pressing orders coming in daily. With a month and a half still to go the Sonora business of Yahr & Lange already exceeds the best previous year's record for sales. The showing is really remarkable.

Business Shows Steady Betterment

Columbia and Edison trade is in very satisfactory position, according to the local representatives of these instruments. The jobbing trade as a whole feels more encouraged by the state of business than it has ever been, even in the halcyon days just following the war.

Exhibitors at Household Exposition

A decided stimulus was given retail talking machine business here by the holding of the fourth annual Food and Household Exposition at the auditorium from October 23 to 29. Many of the leading dealers made displays of talking machines, these exhibits being grouped largely in two of the smaller halls connecting with, and on the same floor as, the great main arena of the auditorium. Most of the principal distributors of Milwaukee conducted community displays in co-operation with their dealers. The Milwaukee Victor Dealers' Association, acting in conjunction with the Badger Talking Machine Co., made an effective group display. The Sonora exhibit of the Yahr & Lange Drug Co. represented all of the local Sonora dealers. Similar representation was given the Brunswick dealers through the local branch. The Edison was well represented through the exhibit of the Flanner-Hafsoos Music House, and the Vocalion was prominent in the display of the J. B. Bradford Piano Co., which also showed the Brunswick and Victor.

The attendance for the seven days of the show ran well above 150,000, a record figure. The Bradford Co. gathered more than 50,000 names deposited by show visitors, and several other dealers conducted similar means of getting some live prospects. The total of names requires an enormous lot of elimination, naturally, but it is figured to be worth all its costs.

Henry M. Steussy, sales manager of the Kesselman-O'Driscoll Co., who had personal charge of its large exhibit of general music merchandise, reports a most gratifying volume of actual sales at the show, the best business being in saxophones, with Victor and Edison instruments next. On this occasion the company introduced itself as the representative of the Vitalux, a new Milwaukee-made machine whereby the family is able to take its own moving pictures and then project them on its own screen.

Wurlitzer Co. in New Quarters

The local branch of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., until now located in the Palace Theatre Building, formally opened in its new building at 421-423 Broadway on November 1. A four-story building, erected about three years ago, has been entirely re-equipped as a model music shop. The Victor department is especially well designed and equipped and excellent facilities for the sale of records are provided on the main floor, adjacent to the main entrance. L. J. Kinnel is manager of the branch and is responsible for this material enlargement of Wurlitzer service facilities in Milwaukee.

Lyric Music Co. in Kenosha

The Lyric Music Co. has opened a new branch store in Kenosha, Wis., in the former Maywood Hotel Building at Main and Wisconsin avenues. Joseph Cardinal is manager. The Kenosha store will feature the Kimball talking machines and pianos.

Edmund Gram Music House in Racine

The Edmund Gram Music House is sponsoring a new store opened at Racine, Wis., by George and Charles Salak. It is located at 306 Fifth street and features the same lines as the Gram house, namely, the Vocalion and Cheney phonographs, the Steinway, A. B. Chase and other pianos. Dorothy Murphy and Erma Olle, of Racine, will operate a sheet music department in the new store.

The Gram House recently staged an impressive demonstration of the Wallace reducing records in the artistic main display windows of the store. For an entire week Miss Norager, from the Wallace Institute, in Chicago, showed the women of Milwaukee how to get thin to music.

Winter Co.'s Attractive Show Window

The Winter Piano Co. has been doing some notable work in demonstrating the Brunswick as well as new Brunswick record numbers through the display window medium. Recently it introduced "The Sneak," with two handsome girls in harem costume dancing before a background of an Arab desert scene. Similar demonstrations are to be made every two weeks.

Opens Branch Store in Stevens Point

The Wilson Music Co., of Oshkosh, Wis., which opened a branch store in Stevens Point, Wis., recently, under the management of G. M. Farrin, has moved into its permanent quarters in the new Hotel Whiting block. Until now it shared space with the Boston Furniture Co. The Wilson Co. is Victor dealer, besides handling several makes of high-grade pianos, including the Ampico line.

Now the Paulus Music Co.

The Paulus Bros. Music Co., at Manitowoc, Wis., has changed its name to the Paulus Music Co. following the retirement of Walter Paulus, who is moving to California. The business is being continued by Herman Paulus. The business was established twenty-five years ago and is one of the largest in eastern Wisconsin.

RUTH ROYE COLUMBIA ARTIST

Popular Vaudeville Star Will Make Columbia Records Exclusively—Well Known on Vaudeville Stage—Great Favorite With Audiences

The Columbia Graphophone Co., New York, has just announced that Miss Ruth Roye, one of the most popular stars on the big-time vaudeville circuit, has signed a contract to make Columbia records exclusively. Miss Roye's first records will be announced in the very near future and her popularity among vaudeville goers from coast to coast will undoubtedly act as a powerful stimulant in the sale of her records.

Miss Roye has been on the vaudeville stage for the past six years and for practically this entire period has been a headliner, having appeared a great many times at the Palace Theatre, New York, which is recognized as the foremost vaudeville house in the country. Although Miss Roye confines her work solely to ragtime or specialty numbers, she has achieved considerable success with selections closely approaching the standard class of music. Columbia dealers are planning to feature Miss Roye's records extensively and their campaigns will, of course, receive the co-operation of the Columbia advertising department in New York.

The Surest Way

To Kill Off Your Trade

The quickest, as well as the surest way to drive your customers from you is to give them inferior merchandise. This is particularly true of phonograph needles. For a defective needle not only mars the reproduction but is harmful to the record as well. When you sell such needles to your customers you lose their good will and their trade. You are headed for the rocks of business ruin.

There is now being offered by unscrupulous dealers inferior and harmful foreign-made needles masquerading in fancy envelopes as high-grade needles. These imitations are a non-descript lot. They are of a variety of lengths and thicknesses; some are polished, many are not; some are made of carbon steel, only an occasional one is really perfect. They are in plain language, Truck. And they have all the dangers of "truck" merchandise.

Why take such risks? Give your customers needles that you know will play their records as they should be played. Give them Brilliantone Needles, the finest of them all. Brilliantone Needles are wonderful business builders. They satisfy the most particular. And satisfied customers build your business.

Even the greatest artists have moments of supreme inspiration and exaltation. Rosa Ponselle was in such a mood and in rarest voice when she made her record of the selection "Ernani involami," from Verdi's opera "Ernani"—98028 on the December list. Such singing as this makes a memorable day at the Columbia studios.

CANTON, O.

Normal Operations of Steel Industries Boom Trade—M. M. Potee in New Post—Month's News

CANTON, O., November 4.—There has been a striking improvement in the talking machine business in Canton and vicinity during October. A survey the past week of every dealer in the city and in nearby small towns substantiates this statement and in some instances business was 75 per cent over the same month of 1921. There is a much better attitude toward buying, dealers say, than has existed for several months. This is because the steel-working industries in the Canton district are working at near normal basis and there is little unemployment.

Dealers say that the discouraging factor in the trade at this time is the inability to get merchandise. They say their orders are coming through only a third filled and that models most in demand are not obtainable. Factories are behind in orders and from what local dealers can learn all towns are similarly affected.

Collections with most dealers show improvement and fewer people are asking for credit to-day than at any time since the war.

C. B. Rutledge, manager of the Canton store of the Rhines Edison Shop, says business with the Massillon store shows a gain over a year ago, due to the increased operations in the steel mills there. The Canton store also is running slightly ahead of a year ago in the matter of sales. The company is unable to get the larger models of the Edison because of a shortage at the factory. The new console model is in great demand.

Two leading local music houses are represented with booths at the Elks Festival of Progress being held this week in the city auditorium. The George C. Wille Co. has a very attractive booth, showing radio receiving sets and a complete line of accessories. A radio contest on Tuesday night was in charge of this company.

The Alford & Fryar Co., in addition to featuring Herma Menth, widely known pianist, in connection with the Hallet & Davis Angelus reproducing piano, has an attractive booth in which are featured the newest models of the Cheney talking machine, one being an electric.

Samuel Mirkin, manager of the new Canton Music Co. store, told a representative of The World this week that there is an increased demand for foreign records and that his store has gone in rather extensively for this class of musical merchandise. Mr. Mirkin makes it a practice to work the foreign sections of the city in the interest of his newly established record sales service. He says that there is more interest manifest in musical merchandise among the foreigners with the resumption of the many steel working plants of the city.

M. M. Potee, formerly manager of the music store of R. Wurlitzer Co. in this city, and at one time associated with the A. B. Smith Piano Co., Akron, is now identified with the Van Fossen-Smiley Piano Co., local agents for the Sonora phonograph. This firm, with the closing of the A. B. Smith store here, becomes exclusive Canton agents for this line.

October was an excellent month for the Cheney talking machine and the Alford & Fryar Co. sold more machines by quite a few than the same month a year ago. "Business is coming casier," Mr. Alford said. "Night appointments are more frequent and our sales force has been very busy for the past six weeks."

"Unusually low prices being received for produce and the uncertainty of the tariff issue are factors that are proving a great hindrance to the country store which depends largely on the rural trade for its existence," said G. A. Garver, head of the Garver Bros. Co., dealer in the Edison line at Strasburg, O. He predicts a good holiday buying season and says the store has bought heavier this year than last of merchandise for the Christmas season.

A 75 per cent increase in sales this November over last is reported by M. C. Pyle, head of the talking machine department of the William R. Zollinger & Co.'s department store. Mr. Pyle declared that the trade was taking kindly to the new console models of the Victor line and that the store at this writing was entirely cleaned out of newer styles.

The Webber Music Store, at Leetonia, O., which opened this week with a large crowd in attendance, will carry a complete line of Edison machines and records and will feature pianos and musical merchandise. Miss Helen Flooding is in charge.

The Thurin Carpet & Rug Co., in existence in Canton more than fifty years, may open a talking machine and piano department, it was learned here this week. Officials of the company are considering adding this feature.

MARIE TIFFANY'S ODD EXPERIENCE

Brunswick Artist Makes a Test of the Acoustic Value of Stone Mountain for Amphitheatre Purposes—Atlantans Appreciate Her Courtesy

Marie Tiffany, the well-known Metropolitan opera star, who records exclusively for the Brunswick Co., had a unique experience while on a recent concert tour through the Southern States. Her itinerary included a visit to Atlanta, Ga., where she appeared before an enormous audience.

The city of Atlanta has for some time been contemplating the erection of a large outdoor amphitheatre at the base of Stone Mountain, famous for its Confederate connections in Southern history. The plan of the City Fathers was to make use of the side of the mountain as a reflecting board, whereby music and singing could be heard by people for a great distance. This immense mountain has a beautiful natural setting and the possibility of utilizing it as a large amphitheatre has been under consideration for a long time. Leading musical people in the city took advantage of Miss Tiffany's visit to make a test. Miss Tiffany was taken out to the mountain, where an impromptu platform was erected, from which she sang several numbers. A delegation of more than one hundred people of Atlanta was distributed in different sections and at various distances while Miss Tiffany sang an old-time Southern song, entitled "Old Car'lina," which she recorded for the Brunswick Co. some time ago and which has had a tremendous sale, especially in the South. She also sang "Coming Thro' the Rye,"

"Kathleen Mavourneen," and finished up her obliging test program with the very dramatic Wagner number, "Brünnhilde's Battle Cry." The possibility of making the base of Stone

Marie Tiffany Singing at Stone Mountain

Mountain into an amphitheatre was so favorably impressed upon the persons who heard Miss Tiffany render her selections that a committee of prominent citizens was immediately formed to raise funds in the city for carrying on the work to completion and it is expected that this will be accomplished during the Winter. Miss Tiffany's aid in the testing of this new project was greatly appreciated and she left Atlanta with the best wishes of every musical person in the city.

JOHN J. MENTON PROMOTED

Made Buyer and Manager of Recently Enlarged Talking Machine Department of Quackenbush Store in Paterson, N. J.—A Worthy Tribute

PATERSON, N. J., November 8.—John J. Menton, who has been associated with the Quackenbush Department Store for the last twenty-three years in the capacity of assistant manager in the furniture and phonograph departments, has been promoted to the position of buyer and manager of the newly enlarged phonograph department of the store.

This tribute is in recognition of long and faithful service with the company, and will no doubt meet with the approval of thousands of Patersonians who have come in contact with him. Mr. Menton has been for years looked upon as one of the most wide-awake phonograph merchandisers in this part of the State. The Edison line is featured as the leader in the Quackenbush store.

THE TALKING MACHINE AS TEACHER

At a school session for teachers held at the Alberta University, Edmonton, Alta., recently there was a music course given in which the phonograph as a teacher played a large part. J. Norman Eagleson, the musical superintendent, used a Columbia Grafonola for the full course in musical appreciation, which he also found valuable in demonstrating certain lessons.

Dealer Activities Stimulating Business—Advertising Brings Results—All Lines in Demand

DENVER, COLO., November 4.—Raffaello Romanelli, famous sculptor, of Florence, Italy, is in Denver, having a commission to make the memorial design for the tomb of the late Verner Z. Reed. The coming of Romanelli is of interest to music lovers in that a few years ago, when the late Caruso was sojourning at Florence, Italy, Romanelli induced Caruso to sit for him. For two hours the great singer posed for the noted sculptor and the head of Caruso, first made in clay, was then cast in bronze. The bronze portrait is a striking likeness of Caruso. Only two of these bronze facsimiles of the great singer are in existence, one owned by Mrs. Caruso and the other in possession of the sculptor. Romanelli brought his with him to Denver. Recently he called on the Knight-Campbell Music Co. H. V. Huntoon, manager of the Victrola department, became acquainted with Romanelli on this occasion and induced the famous Italian sculptor to permit the exhibition of the bronze memorial of Caruso in one of the Knight-Campbell display windows. This is the first time this work by Romanelli has ever been exhibited in the United States or the world for that matter. It is attracting no end of attention and favorable comment.

Reports Outlook Bright

J. M. Spain is the live city salesman for the Columbia Stores Co., distributor of the Columbia instrument for this territory, which takes in about five States. He reports that business with the Columbia dealers in Denver is brisk.

An Innovation at Baldwin's

Manager J. H. Blinn, of the talking machine department of the Baldwin Piano Co., is trying out an innovation. He has engaged a young woman who sings well to sing the words on the player rolls in the demonstration booths. He believes that this method will stimulate the sale of Q R S player rolls. The sale of talking machine records for October has broken all records for volume thus far this year. The new Sonora console in the Queen Anne design promises to sell well.

Spreading the Sonora Gospel

When Moore, Bird & Co., Sonora jobbers for Colorado, Wyoming and New Mexico, opened their Denver office about three and a half years ago the Sonora was little heard of in this territory. In fact, Mr. Bird attributes much of the success in making it known to outdoor advertising. Large advertising billboards were used on prominent corners which were changed three times a year. It took about a year of this kind of advertising, says Mr. Bird, to create a demand for the Sonora. It was noted then that people went to the music stores and began asking to hear a Sonora and soon a market was created. Business has been on the up-grade ever since. Of course newspaper advertising has done its share, for the local dealers all use plenty of printer's ink to spread the Sonora gospel. "Our business," says Mr. Bird, "will double that of last year."

The company has just taken on the Vocalion record distribution for this territory, a stock having been received the last of October.

Results From Advertising

"I never had such direct results from display newspaper advertising as I have experienced in the last two weeks," said H. V. Huntoon, manager of the Victrola department of the Knight-Campbell Music Co., to The World representative. "I don't mean to say that so much business was done, but inquiries have poured in and an interest has been awakened as a direct result of these two weeks of advertising." During this period a sale of used instruments was held and some who came in to buy used instruments decided to buy new ones. Mr. Huntoon said he tried the small classified advertisements to sell these instruments, but he found they did not pull at all, but the display advertisements went over big. The classified advertisements on the other hand bring business always when pianos are the instruments listed.

Edison Sales Are Active

The Denver Dry Goods Co., Edison wholesale and retail distributor for this territory, is more than pleased with business for the month of October. Re-creation sales have been active, while the four new console type Edisons are meeting with much favor.

The A. L. Arvidson Piano Co., handling the Edison, is much pleased with sales of the new console models for the month of October. Instruments have been selling and the sale of Re-creations has improved.

Forming Christmas Club

A Christmas Club has been formed in the talking machine department of the Darrow Music Co. One pays $1 down to join the club and the machine is delivered at Christmastime. Oscar Frazier, head of the department, reports business with the Columbia and Brunswick as being very satisfactory for October.

Window Advertising

A number of local dealers made window displays on the occasion of the showing of "Where Is My Wandering Boy To-night" at the America Theatre the week of October 22-28. The McKannon Piano Co. took advantage of this event to advertise the Edison Re-creation and the Q R S player roll recording of this number.

Two great artists, Rosa Raisa and Giacomo Rimini, were heard at the City Auditorium October 24. The Denver Music Co. took advantage of the fact of their coming to announce that these artists use Mason & Hamlin pianos exclusively. They also record exclusively for the Vocalion records.

Knight-Campbell Radio Nights

The new and continuous array of talent that is being brought out by the Knight-Campbell Music Co. each week at the radio stations has awakened music lovers to the fact that Denver is becoming a vast center of music and dramatic art. In an ordinary city of Denver's size it would be an utter impossibility to give a change of program and artists at each Knight-Campbell night radio concert and not be compelled to resort to repetition. But up to the present time it has been done successfully and there are still splendid voices, instruments and organizations to be heard.

LYRIC MUSIC CO. DOING THINGS

E. B. Jones Pleased With His First Sonora Sale for Utah School—Other Activities

OGDEN, UTAH, November 3.—E. B. Jones, who recently purchased the phonograph department of the Lyric Music Co., this city, is much elated over his first Sonora sale, which was made to the Clinton Public School of Davis County, Utah, after the music supervisor and teachers had made comparisons between several makes of phonographs. Mr. Jones is also getting considerable publicity through two Sonora models which he loaned to the Pantages Theatre here to be used in the sketch "Indoor Sports," which played a week at that theatre recently.

BOESCHEN-SMITH CO. CHARTERED

The Boesch-Smith Piano Co., Inc., Park avenue and Fayette street, Baltimore, Md., has filed articles of incorporation in that State, with a capital stock of $50,000. The concern handles talking machines, pianos, etc. John F. Boesch is the incorporator.

IMPORTANCE OF COLLECTIONS

Dealers who measure their success according to the volume of sales often fail to take into consideration the percentage of collections. Slow collections have often resulted in embarrassment.

NEW STORE IN NASHVILLE, TENN.

"Our Phonograph Shop" Will Handle Edison and Brunswick Lines—Unico Equipped

NASHVILLE, TENN., November 5.—With the opening of "Our Phonograph Shop" in the course of a few days music lovers of Nashville will have at their command talking machine service which is all that the name implies. The location on Church street facing Capitol boulevard is right in the center of the shopping district, just a few doors from Keith's Theatre and the department stores.

The Sharp & Howse Furniture Co., owner of "Our Phonograph Shop," arranged to have Unico equipment throughout its new store. For several years it has handled talking machines in its furniture store, where Unico equipment proved so satisfactory that it was used in the new store as a matter of course. Seven Unico rooms—a complete record department—offer every facility for merchandising the Brunswick and Edison lines, which are carried. Under the active management of T. Lawrence, recently operating the store of Lawrence & Bruggs, and formerly connected with the O. K. Houck Piano Co., the success of the new undertaking seems assured. George A. Lyons, of the Unico staff, visited Nashville recently and completed all arrangements for this installation.

F. S. Nicholson, former general manager of the Vermont Hydro-Electric Co., Rutland, Vt., has purchased the United Talking Machine Business, 7 Center street, from James E. Pollard.

YERKES ORCHESTRA ON TOUR

Popular Dance Organization Meeting With Great Success in Canada and the West

The Yerkes Flotilla Orchestra, which has won great popularity among dancers for its playing last season at the Flotilla Restaurant, New York, and particularly for its recordings for Vocalion records, is now on a most successful tour through Canada and the Middle West under the management of Harry Yerkes and with Richard Barton as director.

The orchestra recently played at Shay's Theatre, Buffalo, then went to Toronto, where it registered an immediate success. After making a number of new Vocalion records the orchestra will travel through the Northwest and then return to fill a number of engagements in and around New York where it has a steadily increasing army of admirers.

Big results are predicted for Mr. Ross in his new location and he was showered with the good wishes of his many friends at the time of his opening.

SYSTEM IS NECESSARY TO SUCCESS

Many Business Men Fail Because They Do Not Use System in Merchandising

Where there is no system there is chaos. In no other instance is this so true as in the conduct of a business. The merchant who works blindly and haphazardly really has no control over his business and, therefore, does not have a complete knowledge of where he stands. If he is losing money he does not know it and thus shortens his chances of making a success of his enterprise.

Complete systemization is the solution to this problem. The merchant should at all times have a complete knowledge of his overhead, his stock, outstanding indebtedness, payments due, and, in short, all the details which have an important influence on his success or failure. The tasks of securing this information may be delegated to employes, but always under the direct supervision of the proprietor or some one with the experience to handle the job properly.

FOSTER MUSIC IN GOTHAM SCHOOLS

Talking Machine Men, Inc., Plan to Extend Co-operation in Staging Series of Music Memory Contests in Schools in 1923

The regular monthly meeting of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., was held at the Café Boulevard on Wednesday, October 18, the meeting proper being preceded, as usual, by a luncheon. Among the guests of the occasion was H. Briggs, vice-president of the Southern California Music Dealers' Association.

Irwin Kurtz, president of the Association, is collaborating with Frederick M. Davidson, assistant supervisor of music of the New York Public Schools, to hold a series of music memory contests during 1923. The Association passed a resolution to support Mr. Kurtz in his plans for these courses and prizes are to be offered by the dealers in various localities in which schools are situated. Teams from all of the different schools will be arranged for and the prize winner of each will contest with successful teams from one of the other New York boroughs for which it is planned to have some of the leading talking machine record manufacturers contribute prizes. The borough teams will also compete and a grand prize will be awarded by the Talking Machine Men, Inc.

M. Max, chairman of the committee for the investigation of the possibility of the retail sale, through the talking machine dealer, of radio products, made a report in which it was shown that only a small portion of the dealers in the metropolitan district had successfully stocked such goods. It was the committee's opinion that the dealers should be open-minded in regard to such merchandise, but should move with care when investing in stock. Mr. Max concluded by pointing out that over 50 per cent of the radio manufacturers concede that the music dealer is the logical distributor of such goods. In substantiating this view he called the attention of the Association to the fact that over fifteen leading department stores of the United States also hold the same opinion.

The Association went on record as supporting the Kelly Bill, which will be brought before Congress early in 1923. The secretary was instructed to send a questionnaire to the Democratic and Republican Senators of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut for the purpose of getting their expressions on the Kelly Bill and whether or not they will support the measure. It will be the purpose of the Association to support only such Senators as are in favor of its passage.

Much discussion of the present discounts given by talking machine manufacturers, particularly on talking machine records, followed. No action was taken, but the consensus of opinion appeared to be that there should be some increase in discounts.

W. H. NOLAN, JR., ARRIVES

W. H. Nolan, formerly associated with the Louis Buehn Co., of Philadelphia, and who recently purchased Carroll's Music Shop, at Appleton, Wis., is receiving the congratulations of his friends upon the arrival at the Nolan home recently of a baby boy, who has been christened "Billy Jr." The arrival of the Nolan heir followed closely on the heels of the exceptional success achieved by Mr. Nolan in connection with a concert given by the Eight Famous Victor Artists at Lawrence Chapel in Appleton. "Billy" Nolan is one of the most popular members of the Victor trade and his thorough knowledge of retail merchandising should enable him to achieve unlimited success in his new venture, which is growing steadily under his able management.

STRAND CLOSING ACTIVE TRADE

Iroquois Sales Co. Appointed Strand Representative—Autophone Co. Given Increased Territory—Geo. W. Lyle Returns From Very Successful Trip Throughout the South

Geo. W. Lyle, president of the Manufacturers Phonograph Co., New York, manufacturer of the Strand phonograph, returned to New York recently after an extended trip which included a visit to Washington, D. C.; Atlanta, Ga.; Birmingham, Ala.; New Orleans, La.; Dallas, Tex.; Kansas City, Mo.; Chicago, Ill., and the Strand factories at Salem, Ind. At the last-named place Mr. Lyle presided at an important conference of the Strand representatives.

In a chat with The World Mr. Lyle commented upon the fact that business conditions generally are showing a decided improvement and Strand representatives from one end of the country to the other are closing a business far beyond their expectations. As a matter of fact, the Strand factory at Salem is now working to capacity to take care of the requirements of Strand dealers and there is every reason to believe that there will be a marked shortage in several styles of Strand phonographs and consolettes.

Upon his return Mr. Lyle announced the appointment of the Iroquois Sales Co., Buffalo, N. Y., as a Strand representative. This concern is one of the best-known wholesale organizations in the East and plans are already under way whereby dealers in Buffalo territory will be given efficient co-operation in the development of Strand sales. Mr. Lyle also announced that the Artophone Co., which has been a Strand representative at St. Louis, Mo., has opened a branch office at Kansas City, Mo., where it will also act as a Strand representative. Shipments to Strand dealers in this section of the country will be made direct from the warehouses at St. Louis to Kansas City, the point of distribution.

OPENS MANY JEWETT ACCOUNTS

A. A. Fair Returns From Successful Eastern Trip—Shortage of Jewett Models Predicted

DETROIT, MICH., November 3.—A. A. Fair, sales manager of the Jewett Radio & Phonograph Co., returned recently from an Eastern trip upon which he established a number of important accounts. Among the cities where Mr. Fair opened new Jewett agencies are the following: New Haven, Conn.; Newark, N. J. (two accounts); New Britain, Conn.; Boston, Mass.; Hartford, Conn.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Philadelphia, Pa., and Worcester, Mass. Mr. Fair states that quite a number of Jewett accounts have also been established in the last month in Michigan, Indiana and Ohio.

Jewett sales during the past few months have shown a steady increase and Mr. Fair comments particularly upon the success achieved by the new No. 9 William and Mary console. Judging from all indications, there will be a shortage of several of the Jewett models this Fall and Jewett dealers are enthusiastic regarding the general outlook in their respective territories.

TRADE ACTIVITIES IN MEMPHIS

MEMPHIS, TENN., November 6.—The Armstrong Furniture Co., Pathé distributor of this city, has added the Edison Re-creations, on which it is planning a strong sales campaign, according to a recent announcement by the company. The music department of the Armstrong Furniture Co. has been considerably enlarged to adequately handle the growing volume of business. C. L. Wainwright is manager of this department.

The Briggs Furniture Co., of Memphis, Tenn., has moved into its new building on South Fourth street. The company has built up a fine talking machine and record business through aggressive merchandising policies.

The Hunt Bros. Furniture Co., operating stores in Memphis, Humbolt and Dyersburg, Tenn., has opened a talking machine department.

EDISON JOBBERS HOLD CONCLAVE

Annual Fall Meeting at Edison Laboratories Results in Perfection of Plans for Great Campaign—Planning to Meet All Demands

The annual Fall meeting of the executive committee of the Edison Jobbers' Association was held at the Edison Laboratories, in Orange, the last week in October. Both the meetings of the committee and the joint conferences with the officials of Thos. A. Edison, Inc., proved highly successful.

The principal matter that came up was the question of shortage. At the present time the Edison Co. is well oversold on every one of the seven new models of the New Edison, which were introduced during the current year. Edison dealers throughout the country are clamoring for increased shipments from their jobbers and the jobbers in turn have been making strenuous efforts to increase their respective supplies from the factory. As a result of this condition the Edison Co. is doing everything within its power to bring production to a maximum and the executive committee satisfied themselves that everything is being done that could be done to accomplish this end.

The members of the executive committee who attended were L. H. Lucker, manager of the Phonograph Co., of Minneapolis; Albert Buehn, manager of the Buchn Phonograph Co., Pittsburgh; P. H. Oelman, vice-president of the Phonograph Co., of Cincinnati; D. W. Schultz, of Schultz Brothers, Omaha; F. S. Hemmingway, president of the Diamond Music Co., Inc., New Orleans, and M. N. Blackman, of the Phonograph Co., of Kansas City. The sessions were also attended by H. T. Stanton, general manager of the R. S. Williams & Son Co., Ltd., Toronto, and C. E. Goodwin, of Chicago.

The Irving Zuelke Music Store, Neenah, Wis., has enlarged and rearranged its talking machine department.

The Trade in BOSTON and NEW ENGLAND

JOHN H. WILSON, Manager

324 WASHINGTON ST., BOSTON, MASS.

BOSTON, MASS., November 2.—The talking machine business is back to its old-time glory insofar as present business and future outlook are concerned. Again does one hear the cry of scarcity of goods, a complaint that has not been voiced with such widespread uniformity in several years; but that is not alone the trouble just now, for while shortage of goods finds its cause at the factory, there is trouble between the factory and the wholesale distributor, that is, in transportation. Not in a long time has the trade been face to face with this problem in so aggravated a form. One jobber told the writer that the time was when with an express leaving New York at seven in the evening it would reach Boston at seven the next morning, and the shipping wagons would be delivering the goods at the back door at half-past eight. By way of comparing that good service with a case that he faced a short time ago he said that that express was reported the other side of Providence about eleven o'clock the next morning, and did not reach Boston until after three o'clock that afternoon. This same jobber blames this condition on the bad facilities, the poor rolling stock which the railroads have. But to call a truce on complaints for the time being and look at the rosier side, business is splendid and the trade is very properly happy and would be considerably happier were it not for the matter already mentioned.

Secures Hallet & Davis for Connecticut

The Hallet & Davis Piano Co. was fortunate a short time ago to make most satisfactory arrangements with the Direct Equipment Co., of New Haven, Conn., whereby this concern is to handle the Hallet & Davis talking machine for the State of Connecticut. The company, of which William S. Hayes is president and Joseph E. Larkins manager, has opened well-appointed quarters at 341 State street in a most convenient section of the city, and already it has four men out in the territory and all of them are doing remarkably well. Associated with the Direct Equipment Co. is G. H. Appel, who was recently sales manager for another large house. Mr. Appel is well liked in musical circles throughout Connecticut.

H. C. Spain Concludes Trip

H. C. Spain, New England representative for the Hallet & Davis Co., returned a few days ago from a week's trip into Maine. He went first to Portland and from there proceeded on to Lewiston, Augusta and Bangor. He came back greatly impressed with the stability of the business boom which is now well in evidence in the Pine Tree State.

George R. Guppy a Local Visitor

George R. Guppy, manager of the Victor wholesale department of Sherman, Clay & Co., San Francisco, Cal., was a welcome visitor here during the latter part of the week. As Mr. Guppy, who was making his first visit so far East, had known Herbert Shoemaker, of the Eastern Co., quite well when the latter was in the Coast territory, it was but natural he should early look him up. As it happened, Mr. Shoemaker was at the factory when Mr. Guppy reached here, but the two arranged to meet over in Philadelphia.

E. W. Killgore Making Good

Edw. W. Killgore, new sales manager of the Eastern Talking Machine Co., is rapidly making good, and while renewing the friendship of old friends is also making many new pleasant associations both in a business and social way. As he is a man of strong personality, a close student of psychology in its relation to the business side of human nature, it is a foregone conclusion that he will make good and be a great asset to his connection. Mr. Killgore's wide experience in that part of the New England field which he lately covered for the Victor Co. has stood him in good stead in paving the way for his present post. One could scarcely imagine a better trade-winning business than Herbert Shoemaker and Edward Killgore.

Passing of W. T. Miller

William T. Miller, president of the Henry F. Miller & Sons Piano Co., died the latter part of the month after a short illness at his home in Brookline. Mr. Miller, although primarily a piano man, was for several years interested in the Victor line to the extent of having an agency, but a few years ago this was taken over by Walter Gillis, who had earlier been with the Miller concern, and who has always continued the department in the same location, the second floor of this Boylston street house. Mr. Miller was a member of the New England Music Trade Association and a past president. He was the youngest son of the late Henry F. Miller, the founder of the Miller firm, and he was born in Melrose in 1860. He studied at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, of which he was a graduate in the class of '80. His son is Stanwood Miller, who is one of the directors of the firm. At a meeting held subsequent to Mr. Miller's death and funeral Burton R. Miller, his nephew, some years ago associated with the firm, was elected president.

Encouraging Columbia Report

Fred E. Mann, New England manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., makes a most encouraging report of business with the advent of November and says that October, just finished, made a splendid showing so far as unit business is concerned. The house, he says, is suffering considerably from poor transportation facilities, which is as true of express as of freight systems. Were the house able to get the goods in any kind of time dealers would soon dispose of them, for everywhere the New England Columbia representatives are asking for long-promised goods.

G. W. Hopkins Addresses Salesmen

George W. Hopkins, vice-president and general sales manager of the Columbia Co., was over for the sales conference a few days ago, and another who was able to drop in on the conference was S. S. Larmon, manager of the Columbia branch at Cleveland, O., who had come over primarily to attend the Dartmouth-Harvard game at the Stadium. Both Mr. Hopkins and Mr. Larmon addressed the gathering of salesmen, discussing some of the company's sales plans for the future.

Changes in Columbia Co. Ranks

Several new appointments within the New England ranks of the Columbia Co. have been announced by Manager Mann. Salesman Edward W. Hanna is now in charge of No. 1 territory, which includes Suffolk and Norfolk counties and a few cities in Middlesex county, all this territory lately being in charge of Roy Ott, who resigned to enter another field. Pending the appointment of Mr. Ott's successor Mrs. Alice W. Graves, record sales and stockkeeping expert at the Boston branch, is holding this territory. In No. 2 territory, comprising eastern Massachusetts and southeastern Hampshire, Salesman Walter G. Barrows succeeds A. R. Champagne, and in No. 5 territory, which consists of the four western Massachusetts

Trade Represented at Radio Show

Recently there was a radio exposition in Mechanics Hall and all the fans were there night and day to enjoy the marvels of this new development. There was also a convention of the New England Amateur Association at the same time. The exhibit was attended by a great many local talking machine men, who themselves carry radio outfits, and not a few of these had space in the exhibition and made a creditable showing.

Joseph Burke at Roper Co. Opening

Manager Joseph Burke, of the Musical Supply & Equipment Co., was one of those who went up to Worcester a while ago to be present at the opening of the Marcellus Roper Co.'s remodeled store, which is now one of the finest stores in that city. While a full line of Victor goods is carried in this Worcester establishment Mr. Burke naturally points with pride to the many types of Sonoras which Mr. Roper has in stock. Meanwhile Manager Burke says that he is finding difficulty in getting goods enough to fill the demand.

New Sonora Agencies

Manager Burke announces several new connections by which the Sonora will get increased sales. These are the National House Furnishing Co., of Gloucester, the Home Furnishing Co., of Belfast, Me., Smith & Geary, of New Bedford, and the W. E. Lee Co., of Salem.

Dealers Plan to Tie Up With Artists

It is an interesting bit of information that Eddie Cantor, in "Make It Snappy," is coming to one of the Boston theatres next week after a long run in New York. This information is especially for the benefit of the Columbia dealers who are carrying this artist's records, which are finding ready sale. In anticipation local Columbia dealers are focusing interest on this comedian's records. By the same token there is interest in the forthcoming concert of Rose Ponselle, which is to take place at Symphony Hall, November 12, under the direction of Fred McIsaac, who is rapidly winning favor as a manager of select concerts.

Activity With the National Co.

The National Co., of this city, manufacturer of various well-known talking machine toys, is very busy. Although these toys offer the dealer an all-year-around proposition it is natural that articles of this character should receive an accentuated demand during the Christmas season. Ragtime Rastus and the Boxing Darkies have been on the market for many years, but despite this fact the demand for these ingenious devices continues as strong as ever. Shimandy, a later addition to the line, is also in good demand. This Fall the National Co. placed on the market the Magnetic Dancers, which waltz, two-step or fox-trot, as desired. This newest addition to the line is built on a somewhat different principle than the other toys. It has already received excellent distribution and it may be noticed in the windows of many of the leading dealers throughout the country, for in addition to its quick-selling properties it provides an excellent window attraction as well.

George A. Dodge's Will

The will of George A. Dodge, of the Eastern Talking Machine Co., was offered for probate at Brockton last week. It disposed of property valued at $250,000, most of which is left to members of his family. The will was drawn March 11, 1922, and the executors are John T. Hughes, Charles H. Farnsworth, who is a member of the Eastern Talking Machine Co., and Phillips Nichols, of Boston. There are bequests to members of his family and a bequest to one of the executors, Mr. Hughes. The widow receives the residue of the property.

New Lansing Sales Co. Representative

The Lansing Sales Co., of this city, has announced the appointment of Edward N. Lucas as Middle West representative of the company in charge of the Lansing cover lines. Mr. Lucas is well known throughout the talking machine industry through his former connection with the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., of Chicago. He will make his headquarters at 4352 Kenmore avenue, Chicago, and will cover the Middle Western States. Business has increased to a remarkable extent not only in Lansing covers, but in the entire line of accessories which this company distributes.

Remarkable Business With Victor Dealers

The Eastern Talking Machine Co., Victor distributor, reports that Victor dealers throughout New England are experiencing remarkable business. Orders are coming in thick and fast and the stock of merchandise is rapidly disappearing. The Eastern Talking Machine Co. is well known throughout New England for its service and at this important time the executives of the company are, through their un-

Harry Spencer, of Kraft, Bates & Spencer, Inc., who handles the Brunswick for the New England territory, is up in Vermont at this writing and was planning to go down to New York City for a few days on matters pertaining to the Brunswick distribution. Mr. Spencer was confined to his house through illness early in the month, but he is now himself again and ready to do a day's work with any of them.

Cheney Getting Good Representation

Stephen Colahan, New England manager of the Cheney interests, is away just now on a business trip which is taking him to Worcester and Springfield, Mass., and New London and Norwich, Conn., in all of which places the Cheney is getting good representation. Mr. Colahan has lately placed the Cheney in the hands of several good houses throughout New England and good orders have been placed.

Joins Forbes & Wallace Forces

Frank Colahan, who for a year or so has been associated with his brother, Stephen, in the wholesale end of the Cheney, has gone to Springfield, where he is now associated with the large talking machine department of Forbes & Wallace.

New Edison Models Popular

The new models of the Edison instrument are finding a ready market throughout New England and the staff working out from the Boston headquarters of the Pardee-Ellenberger Co. are finding business unusually good, although Manager Silliman voices the common complaint as to the difficulty experienced getting goods through because of the transportation facilities.

Now Carrying a Strong Line

Vocalion Hall is undergoing certain changes which will make it one of the most noticeable and convenient stores on Boylston street within the next week. Having taken on the Victor line, in addition to the Edison and Vocalion, a better arrangement of the interior was made necessary and the record department, which formerly was on the left midway down the length of the store, which also has an entrance from Park square, is now further to the front and on the right. New booths down the length of the floor also are being installed on both sides. When these are completed there will be a total of nine, all sound-proof and artistically furnished. The office will be at the rear. The words, "Vocalion Hall," are in a beautiful tone of blue across the middle of the large show window and the names of the instruments carried also are in blue at the lower right and left sides. Manager Birdsall says business is now coming along finely and a large clientele is coming in daily to become familiar with the various lines, and incidentally to buy.

Doing Well With the Strand

Manager Arthur C. Erisman, whose name is so closely identified with the Grafonola Co., of New England, whose headquarters are at the corner of Tremont and Avery streets, is meeting with great success in jobbing both the Strand instrument and the Vocalion record line for the New England territory. Arthur Chamberlain is away on a two weeks' trip in the interests of both lines, his field being western Massachusetts. H. M. Blakeborough is traveling in the same capacity through Connecticut, and Norman T. Mason is looking after these lines in the Greater Boston territory. In the Red record line (Vocalion) there is an especially large demand for "Mary Dear" and "My Buddy."

Manager Erisman was over at Salem, Ind., the middle of October in attendance on the convention of the Strand official staff and he came back convinced of the determination of the Strand officials to make a fine instrument. He says it is not a case of seeing how cheaply the machine can be made, but how to give the purchaser the very best for his money.

Perfection Sound Boxes and Attachments

The New England Talking Machine Co., manufacturer of Perfection sound boxes and attachments for playing lateral cut records and hill and dale needles, has experienced a decided increase in orders. Each succeeding month has shown improvement over the preceding one and it is, therefore, entirely possible that November will prove the banner month of the year.

News Gleanings of the Month

Alexander Steinert, head of M. Steinert & Sons, was over in New York early in the month, remaining in the metropolis several days.

Portland, Me., for several days the early part of November.

Charles Von Euw, who has been head of the stock room of the Victor department of M. Steinert & Sons Co., this city, was married recently to Miss Helen O'Conner. The wedding was followed by a reception at the home of the bride. The couple are enjoying a wedding trip.

Charles S. Norris, the Tremont street talking machine dealer, spent several days recently in New York, where he got in several games of golf with some of his friends who are as enthusiastic as he on the links.

E. H. McCarthy, crew manager of the Boston branch of the Columbia Co., is recovering from a serious illness which has laid him up for several weeks at his home in Cambridge.

John Cotter, vice-president and treasurer of the Hallet & Davis Piano Co., returned a few days ago from an extended trip to the Pacific Coast, and he is most enthusiastic over the prospects for good business from now on. En route home he and Mrs. Cotter stopped at Pueblo.

INSURANCE AGAINST SHORTAGE

Hallet & Davis Co. Maintains Stocks of Phonographs at Four Central Distributing Points to Facilitate Deliveries to Dealers

BOSTON, MASS., November 6.—The Hallet & Davis Piano Co., which is meeting with unusual success in featuring its talking machines throughout the country, has for a number of months been preparing to take care of a substantial increase in demand that is always expected to come with the approach of the holiday season, and during the Spring and Summer season manufactured a substantial reserve stock as an insurance against possible shortage.

The company's stock of machines is now in warehouses at four important points, namely, Boston, headquarters, Philadelphia, Chicago and San Francisco, and its foresight in thus distributing the instruments in advance has proved its value in making possible quick deliveries to retailers in practically every section. In view of the serious delays in freight transportation from the East to Middle and Far West points that are being experienced just now, the advantage of having machines stocked at strategic points is readily appreciated.

The dealers handling the Hallet & Davis phonograph are enthusiastic over this line and the various features incorporated in it.

NEW ENGLAND DEALERS MEET

Annual Meeting of New England Music Trade Association Held Recently in Boston—William L. Nutting Elected President

BOSTON, MASS., November 6.—The annual meeting of the New England Music Trade Association held in this city the latter part of October proved to be one of the most interesting staged by the organization in many moons. Particularly satisfying was the selection of new officers for the coming year, with William L. Nutting, of Nashua, N. H., president; Roger Brown, of the McPhail Piano Co., first vice-president; Harry Spencer, of the firm of Kraft, Bates & Spencer, Inc., second vice-president, and William F. Merrill, the veteran secretary and treasurer, back at his old post.

The annual meeting was held in connection with a luncheon held at the Engineers' Club, when the Brock sisters from "The Music Box Revue" gave a very pleasing entertainment. The official guest at the luncheon was Melville L. Morse, representing the Babson Statistical Organization. Mr. Morse delivered a thoroughly optimistic talk, in the course of which he said:

"As far as this Winter is concerned the stage is set for good business. This applies in varying degrees to all parts of the country, but particularly to New England and other primary industrial centers.

"Boston has had its share of troubles. Because it is an industrial center it is always among the first to feel a depression. For the same reason, however, it is now one of the first to feel the effects of better times. When, two years ago, the average citizen found the prices of things beyond the reach of his income he had to cut down his buying. There was no general buyers' strike. It was from hard necessity and not from choice that he started to wear out his old shoes and use the old suit another season.

"Naturally, those localities which depend on manufacturing were the first to feel the pinch. Fundamentally, however, the readjustment has been good for us all. It gave us a chance to straighten out our personal finances and it gave business concerns the chance to cut down their operating costs. We now have started on the upward side of the business cycle. So far as the immediate future is concerned prospects are good. Statistics point to an excellent holiday trade—15 to 20 per cent larger than last year, and in profits the best since 1919."

Mr. Morse also took occasion to dwell upon the development of suburban life throughout the country and the various agencies that were promoting that development, particularly the automobile. The building and occupying of these many suburban homes opened the way for a better American home life in which musical instruments of all kinds were bound to find an important place.

PUBLIC BALL IS HUGE SUCCESS

Talking Machine Men, Inc., Sponsor Important and Successful Entertainment—Leading Dance Orchestras in Attendance—Financial and General Success Judged From Every Angle

Attracting a capacity attendance at the largest hotel ballroom in the city the second annual public ball given by the Talking Machine Men, Inc., at the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York, on Monday, October 30, was one of the most important events that has ever been held in the talking machine trade. More than 2,000 people attended this ball and at times the floor was so crowded that it was almost impossible to dance.

The committee in charge of this ball had worked for several weeks along practical lines with the idea of bringing the attendance up to a high-water mark and they certainly succeeded. From eight-thirty until two o'clock in the morning the dance devotees in the metropolitan territory were given an opportunity to listen to the finest dance music that could be procured and there is no question but that everyone who attended the ball received many times the value of the dollar admission price.

In accordance with its usual custom the committee had arranged for a resident orchestra, which this year was Bennie Krueger's Orchestra. This orchestra, which is well known to dance enthusiasts, makes Brunswick records exclusively, and it played throughout the evening, appearing between the appearances of the visiting orchestras. The dance organizations that appeared during the course of the evening were as follows (in the order in which they played): Selvin's Orchestra (Aeolian-Vocalion), Coleman's Montmartre Orchestra (Aeolian-Vocalion), Paul Specht's Orchestra (Columbia), Paul Whiteman's Orchestra (Victor), Dixieland Jazz Band (Victor) and Vincent Lopez Orchestra (Okeh).

Aside from the financial success of this ball there is no question but that the Talking Machine Men, Inc., conferred an invaluable benefit upon the record manufacturers by introducing these orchestras to the general public. As indicative of the interest aroused by the personal appearance of the various orchestras, several hundred dance devotees were always to be found surrounding the orchestras in order to gain a personal knowledge of their individual characteristics. During the course of the dancing many of the guests asked the various leaders of the orchestras the names of the selections that were being played and if they could be purchased from talking machine establishments. These minor incidents served to emphasize the fact that these public balls, introducing orchestras that make talking machine records, have a practical and material value to the record manufacturers.

The entertainment committee of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., which was in charge of this ball, was heartily congratulated by the members of the association and by the guests upon the care and attention which they had given to every detail. The members of this committee had given up a considerable part of their time to furthering the plans for this event and they well deserved the praise which they received from everyone present. The personnel of this committee was as follows: Sol Lazarus, chairman; Chester Abelowitz, Max Berlow, E. G. Brown, Otto Goldsmith, Harry Conn, E. G. Evans, V. J. Faeth, Al Galuchie, N. Goldfinger and Cass Riddle. Irwin Kurtz, president of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., acted as an ex-officio member of the committee and with his usual enthusiasm was an important factor in the consummation of the various arrangements incidental to the ball.

They will be "Jimmie," the fox-trot from "Sally, Irene and Mary," and "I Gave You Up Just Before You Threw Me Down," another new fox-trot that is "going strong."

PROF. CHENEY VISITS NEW YORK

Among recent visitors at the New York offices of the Cheney Sales Corp. was Prof. Forrest Cheney, inventor of the Cheney phonograph. Mr. Cheney stated that the sales educational campaign, which has thus far covered the important cities east of Chicago, is proving a decided success from every angle.

CLEVELAND

Dealers on Alert to Interest Public—As a Consequence Sales Result—Several Recent Examples—New Agencies and Changes

CLEVELAND, O., November 9.—Clevelanders have been kept up on their toes during the last month by the local branch of the Columbia Co. Hardly a week goes by that this company, under the able leadership of George Krauslick, service manager, does not put over some original stunt which arouses even from the newspapers comments on its uniqueness.

A great deal of publicity for both Eddie Cantor and the Columbia was obtained here a few weeks ago, when that gentleman made his first appearance in this city since joining the ranks of Columbia artists. Mr. Cantor was playing in "Make It Snappy," at the Hanna Theatre, when M. Seigel and H. Simmons, of the Hippodrome Song Shop, conceived a brilliant idea. When explained to Mr. Cantor he agreed with them on its brilliancy, and the result was that within a few days a large notice appeared in the daily newspapers stating that the artist would appear on a certain day at the Hippodrome Song Shop and sing some of the songs he had recorded for Columbia. The day arrived and so did the crowd. Mr. Seigel and Mr. Simmons prepared a solid Eddie Cantor window, which helped to attract the attention of passers-by. Results? When it is stated that forty other local dealers followed in the footsteps of Mr. Seigel and Mr. Simmons and ran display windows of Mr. Cantor, and at the end of the week reported that they were more than pleased with the results, the effects of this drive can be readily seen.

Apes Dance to Grafonola

The week before this clever advertising Mr. Krauslick showed his ability to place Columbia before the public in a novel way. Max, Moritz and their child, Akkra, three educated apes, were performing at the Ohio Theatre. They displayed unusual intelligence, and, after seeing them, Mr. Krauslick conceived the idea of having a moving picture made of the apes dancing to music played by a Grafonola. A Cleveland firm, the Bradley Producing Co., made the film, which is being run in conjunction with its weekly showing of "Cleveland Happenings." This is shown in sixty local theatres, and in a number of moving picture houses throughout the State. A reproduction of the apes dancing to the Grafonola was also printed in the rotogravure section of the Sunday paper.

Columbia Exhibits at Palace of Progress

Mr. Krauslick, together with M. C. Stehlick, secretary of the Columbia Dealers' Association of Cleveland, was responsible for the exhibit by local Columbia dealers at the Palace of Progress last month. Representative period and upright Columbia models were shown in the Columbia booth and records were played constantly. Siam Soo, the Oriental dancer, was also in attendance, with the result that there was a crowd around the booth at all times. Because of the unusual attention attracted by Siam Soo she received three write-ups in Cleveland newspapers during the course of the exhibition. In conjunction with the exhibition a closed-car exhibit was conducted in the basement of the auditorium and a Columbia Grafonola substituted for an orchestra.

Publisher Ties Up With Columbia Dealers

Sam Fox, publisher of "Romany Love," which was produced on Columbia Record A-3673, tied up with the Columbia release of this record with great success. He supplied Columbia dealers with publicity matter of various sorts, featuring the number, and also had a large poster made which was sent around to the different Columbia stores. The result was that this selection received a great deal of advertising throughout the whole city.

New Brunswick Agencies

Two of Cleveland's leading firms have taken on the Brunswick line, J. L. Du Breuil, district manager of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., announced this month. The firms are Wm. Taylor, Son & Co., one of the biggest department stores in the city, and Buescher Co., one of the oldest exclusive phonograph dealers here.

Manager T. A. Davies, of the phonograph department of Wm. Taylor, Son & Co., inaugurated the opening of his department with a five-column advertisement in the three leading Cleveland newspapers, telling of the complete and wonderful display of both upright and console types which they were carrying.

Mr. Du Breuil also announced the opening of the following new accounts: Frederic Ell-

Marshall Drug Co. Enters Field

The Marshall Drug Co., of this city, opened a complete musical department. A complete line of records and piano rolls is carried. At the present time the Gennett record is handled, but later on other lines are expected to be added. Mrs. Hazel Smith, who recently came from New York, is in charge.

New Victor Account

Howard J. Shartle, general manager of the Cleveland Talking Machine Co., reports a new agency. The Halle Bros. Co., one of the largest department stores in the city, is the latest account taken on by the Cleveland Co. The entire Victor line will be carried.

Many Vocalion Accounts Opened

The Vocalion Co. reports the following new accounts: Medical Building Pharmacy Co., the Burky-Kerner Co., Cleveland; Greenwood Piano Co., Youngstown, O.; J. A. Long Music Shop, Akron, O.; Willoughby Music Shop, Willoughby, O., and the Music Shoppe, this city.

Rexford C. Hyre, secretary of the Cleveland Music Trade Association, is still away on his honeymoon, but is soon expected home.

The H. B. Bruck & Sons Co. continues to display the Modernola talking machine with great success. The demand is steadily expanding.

SAN FRANCISCO

Business Grows in Volume—Sherman, Clay Efficiency—Better Store Equipment Popular—Many New Agencies—News of Month

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., November 4.—General business in talking machine merchandise is holding up satisfactorily and plans are under way for the holidays. The dealers will be well supplied for a big trade this year, as they have been preparing in anticipation of a greatly increased demand. The numerous teachers' institutes in the various counties recently have greatly stimulated the demand for educational records. Interest in these and physical culture records grows apace in response to the special work of the missionaries in the field who address institutes and other bodies of educators. The promotion of musical interest by means of memory contests and direct instruction in the public schools is of permanent benefit to the whole talking machine industry.

Phonograph Shop Remodeled

The Phonograph Shop, Stockton street, has just been remodeled along the most advanced lines. The whole front has been altered, making the show window space more effective and the entrance wider. The record department has been rearranged, a rest room fitted up on the main floor and the machine demonstrating rooms on the mezzanine floor have been refurnished with polychrome willow furniture. The machine demonstrating rooms have also been made sound-proof. The whole store has been repainted in French gray. Manager Compton says that while the alteration work has interfered somewhat with the efficient conduct of business, the sales volume has continued to increase.

Remodeling at Rudolph Wurlitzer Store

The large store of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., on Stockton street, is in the course of radical remodeling. An entire new front will be put in and changes made all throughout the six-story building. The improvements will make the establishment one of the finest in the city and will cost thousands of dollars. Business at present is being conducted under difficulties. Special attention is to be given to alterations in the talking machine department.

Nathan-Dohrmann Business Tripled

Ben R. Scott, new manager of the talking machine department of the Nathan-Dohrmann Co., says business has tripled in the last month owing to the success of a special sale on console type machines. The department will be enlarged for the holidays. A very effective window display of the company this month showed over

Walter S. Gray, the well-known jobber of talking machine accessories and agent for the Strand phonograph, has gone to Chicago on a business trip. He will be back to headquarters here in a few days.

White House Adds Cheney

The White House, hitherto exclusive Victor dealer, has just added the Cheney phonograph to the lines in its talking machine department. Manager Morton expects a heavy holiday trade this year and plans have been made accordingly.

Attractive Edison Display

The Edison Shop on Geary street is featuring the beautiful Edison William and Mary models in its show windows. This display is one of exceptional dignity and simplicity.

Sherman, Clay Changes Add to Efficiency

The wholesale office of the Victor department of Sherman, Clay & Co. has been rearranged so as to permit a more logical handling of detailed work. Robert M. Bird, manager, says the talking machine dealers of San Francisco are showing wonderful co-operation in the conducting of the Memory Contest. Miss D. Cross, of the educational department, is handling the contest for the dealers and she expects it to be the most successful yet held. All the dealers report great interest among the public school pupils who throng the demonstrating rooms at the periods when memory records are played.

New Victor Agency

The City of Paris is the latest to take on the Victor line in this city. The line was first displayed on November 1 and will be featured in the holiday campaign. Mr. Storms, department manager, has made a splendid success of his department and has the record of making the City of Paris one of the chief centers for the retail distribution of Sonora and Columbia phonographs.

News Gleanings

The mid-month specials of Victor records have proved a fine business-getter to the California dealers. This makes two opening days a month and thus a great many people are attracted to the store who ordinarily would not have come more than once. It is realized that the dealer who plugs for the sale of records also sells the most machines and that the dealer who neglects to take advantage of every opportunity to stimulate the sale of records is likely to find himself playing a poor hand.

The California Phonograph Co. had a large display at the recent Industrial Exposition in this city. Many orders for machines were received. The regular members of the sales force took turns in taking charge of the booth.

The display of Sherman, Clay & Co. at the Industrial Exposition gave due prominence to Victrolas of the latest models. Frequent demonstrations of records were given.

The Wiley B. Allen Co. opened a fine new store at Fresno last month. The old store had been outgrown and larger and more modern quarters were needed. In its decorations and arrangements the new place is ideal.

Talking machine business in Oakland and other Bay cities has been exceptionally strong in the last few weeks, a fact which is attributed to the recent completion of thousands of new dwellings and to the activity of seasonal industries.

OUR CONGRATULATIONS, MR. EVANS

The new treasurer of the city of Darien, Conn., is now Edward G. Evans, of the sales staff of C. Bruno & Son, Inc., Victor wholesaler, New York City. As was announced in a previous issue of The World, Mr. Evans was nominated for this important office, running on the Republican ticket. Although the city is strongly Republican things did not run true to form. Democrats now occupy most of the city offices. It is, therefore, highly complimentary to Mr. Evans that he ran ahead of his party and was elected treasurer by a substantial majority.

INCREASED PROSPERITY IN UTAH

Improved Industrial Conditions Insure Better Prospects in the Talking Machine Field

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, November 6.—The outlook for business in this territory is excellent. Unemployment is practically nil while the two new steel companies are making active preparations for business. It is believed that this State is about to embark on an era of great prosperity.

Wm. P. Berry, of New Orleans, who, as announced some time ago, will be the new manager of the talking machine department of the Glen Bros.-Roberts Piano Co., succeeding George A. Bolduc, resigned, is already on the job. Miss Charlotte Hillstead of the record department has resigned to go to the Pacific Coast for the Winter.

The Salt Lake Hardware Co. will close its retail department in the course of two or three weeks, according to announcement by the management. The company will hereafter devote all its attention to the wholesale business. The Main street store has been sold. This firm did a good talking machine business.

The Daynes-Beebe Music Co. put on a $100,000 talking machine sale during the early part of the month that attracted much attention.

Branch Manager G. C. Spratt, of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., has just returned from a two weeks' trip through the State of Idaho, as has R. F. Perry, representative of the firm, though they did not travel together. Both report conditions in the Gem State as much improved. Dealers reported that business is much better this Fall than last. The following new agencies have been opened by the company in Utah and Idaho: Baring Bros., Buhl; Ferry Furniture Co., Glen Ferry; Dignan's Drug Store, Arco; Stephens-Harper Drug Co., Victor, all of Idaho; Manti Music Store and Heber Drug Co., both of Utah. Mr. Perry said the demand for the new console model York is very heavy.

EDISON TONE TESTS IN FULL SWING

Dealers Appreciative of the Splendid Results Accomplished in a Sales Way by Edison Tone Tests—Expect Banner Season

The New Edison tone test season of 1922-3 is now in full swing and all reports that have come in thus far to the Edison Laboratories indicate it will be a banner season. A very large number of letters has been received from Edison dealers located in every part of the country. These letters constitute a very enthusiastic and potent testimonial to the Edison artists now on Tone Test tour and to the merchandising value of the Tone Test to the Edison dealers, from the standpoint of immediately increasing the sale of instruments and Re-creations. These letters also evidence the fact that the Tone Tests are as popular as ever with the music-loving public, as in every case the attendance has been large, both from the standpoint of the seating capacity of the concert halls in which the tests have been given and the respective population of each city in which a test has been given. The attendance has ranged from a minimum of five hundred up to several thousand and the average attendance has been in excess of one thousand.

RESERVATIONS FOR RADIO SHOW

Well-known Radio Manufacturers to Be Represented at New York Radio Show—Publicity Campaign Now Under Way

L. S. Byers, executive secretary of the American Radio Exposition Co., New York, which is sponsoring the radio show to be held in the Grand Central Palace, New York, from December 21 to 30, stated recently that the following well-known manufacturers of radio products had reserved space at this show: Western Electric Co., Inc.; Radio Corp. of America, C. Brandes, Inc.; National Carbon Co., Novo Battery Co., Sleeper Radio Co., General Insulate Co., Sound Wave Corp., Pacent Electric Co., Executive Radio Council, Stromberg-Carlson Mfg. Co., Holtzer-Cabot Co., National Airphone Co., Clapp-Eastham Co., Hutchison Radio Co., Henry Hyman & Co., De Forest Radio Tel. & Tel. Co., and the Dubilier Condenser Co., Inc.

Mr. Byers also states that in addition to the twenty-two concerns mentioned herewith nineteen more of the principal manufacturers have made reservations for space. Plans are now under way for an intensive publicity campaign in behalf of this show and Mr. Byers is asking the radio trade to give him any suggestions that will enable his company to make this show an outstanding success.

REDECORATING SERVICE A SUCCESS

Gotham Studio Opened by Rudolph Robichek for Refinishing and Redecorating Talking Machines Busy With Holiday Orders

Of interest to the trade is the opening last month at 123 Fifth avenue, New York, of a studio by Rudolph Robichek for the redecorating of talking machines for manufacturers and dealers. This is one of the few enterprises of this kind in the country, and that a need for a service of this character exists is evident from the volume of orders which he has already received.

Mr. Robichek is an artist of unquestioned ability and experience and is considered an authority on cabinet decoration and finishing. Special orders for refinishing period models in new and antique finishes—lacquer, polychrome and gilding—have been received for the holiday trade, which will keep the studio working overtime for some time to come in order to supply trade needs.

In Europe, particularly in Germany, Mr. Robichek was the winner of several prizes in competition for his original work, which created for him an enviable reputation in the artistic redecorating field. After some years in this field he was offered and accepted a professorship in one of the leading art schools of Germany, where he taught young artists for an extended time.

Mr. Robichek's many friends in the trade are enthusiastic over the opening of his own studio in New York and are wishing him every success.

BUFFALO

*New Columbia Dealers—Victor
Dealers Elect Officers—O. L.
Neal an Optimist—Edison News*

BUFFALO, N. Y., November 9.—The past month has been quite an eventful one in the history of the local Columbia branch. Manager H. B. Haring is announcing that the E. W. Edwards department store and the Braner Music Shoppe, of this city, have been added to the list of Columbia dealers. The E. W. Edwards store is well known throughout New York, having stores in Syracuse and Rochester. They have taken over the H. A. Meldrum store in Buffalo and have installed a beautiful talking machine department. The Braner Music Shoppe is controlled by the two famous orchestra leaders of Buffalo, who recently purchased the Music Shoppe on Main street. A full line of Columbia Grafonolas and records have been added and the shop is now enjoying a splendid business.

The annual meeting of the Victor Talking Machine Dealers' Association of Western New York was held Wednesday of last week in the salesrooms of the Buffalo Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesalers. A representative body of dealers was present and discussed trade topics and problems in an informal manner under the direction of Acting President B. E. Neal. The annual election of officers was held and by a unanimous vote the following were named to serve the Association during the coming year: President, Carl Berlin, Seneca street, Buffalo; vice-president, Charles Kaoppel, Jr., of Kaoppel Bros., Inc., of Buffalo; secretary, W. B. Herbert, of the Erion Piano Co., of Buffalo; treasurer, Isadore Melzer, of I. Melzer, Inc.

It was decided to hold meetings of the Association at monthly intervals on the second Wednesday of each month, beginning in November. The gatherings will probably take the form of evening dinners followed by addresses or entertainments.

From the remarks of the dealers attending the meeting it was gathered that Fall business has developed into what may almost be regarded as a real boom. Some of the dealers reported orders placed by them last July are still unfilled and said there is a pronounced shortage of many models of Victor machines. The record demand was reported to be showing a most gratifying improvement.

The sales of Grafonolas have taken a decided spurt during the past few weeks. Not for several years has Grafonola and record business been in such splendid condition, and the upward trend continues. Numerous carload sales have been made to Columbia dealers, but some say they have difficulty getting some of the popular new models. Max Lang, of Olean, was one of the fortunate ones to get his shipment, which came by trucks, covered with large banners, announcing the $17,000 shipment on the way to Mr. Lang's shop.

Ray Miller and his band of syncopaters, of international fame, recently appeared in Buffalo in person, although their achievements in the musical world have been heard in hundreds of Buffalo homes. The engagement was at Lowe's State Theatre, during the week of October 9.

One of the most unique and most successful demonstrations of the New Edison was given at a recital at the Twentieth Century Club recently, at which Marie Morrisey sang and Walter Chapman and Jacques Glockner, pianist and 'cellist, played in solo, duet and trio work. The voice and instruments were accompanied by the New Edison, then the re-created music continued alone. Any skeptics were soon convinced, for in Miss Morrisey's initial number her lips ceased to move but her song went on. Slowly it dawned upon the mystified audience that Miss Morrison was no longer singing, though her voice came clear and sweet as before. The audience only knew when she was singing by the movement of her lips. The tones of the New Edison were identical with those of the living artist; it was impossible to detect any difference. After the applause, following this exhibition, Walter Chapman, pianist, and Jacques Glockner, 'cellist, shared the stage with her. Only by watching them could one tell when the living artists alone were being heard and when they played in unison with their re-created art. Press comments were flattering.

The Buffalo Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler in this city, who caters to upper New York State Victor trade, is very busy this month taking care of dealers' demands for both machines and records. Sales have been more than gratifying, so much so that it has now become a question of getting enough machines of certain models to satisfy each dealer in the territory. More gratifying has been the demand for records, which the dealers have been ordering in large quantities, so as to have their stocks complete for the holiday rush. This increase in record business is a welcome turn in conditions, as during the past few months dealers' stocks have not been replenished in this respect as well as they might have been. O. L. Neal, general manager of the company, predicts that this is a sign of a very prosperous season and that it indicates that Victor dealers throughout the State are leaving no stone unturned to reap their share of Victor business this Winter.

"Our service to the dealer," stated Mr. Neal, "is of the highest caliber, not only in the work we can do with him in his store, but the service we render in quick delivery of machines and records, through the fact that Buffalo is admirably situated, having many trunk railroad and steamship lines available for shipping. Our city forms practically the center of railroad activities for the entire East and parts of the Middle West, as we are located at an overnight's ride in any direction from all large centers in the territory we cover. Orders which we receive from dealers are shipped the same day and these are delivered in the shortest possible time, a service which we believe makes a strong appeal to all Victor dealers. These facts are substantiated by the gratifying increase which we have shown in the past few years, and from all indications this Winter will see one of the largest businesses we have yet enjoyed.

The John G. Schuler, Inc., music store, 1394 Main street, announces the acquisition to its line of the New Edison line of phonographs and Re-creations. E. J. Doherty, who has been associated with the Utley Piano Co. the past twelve years, will have charge of the department.

The Song Shop reports increased sales of Columbia records, made by Ted Lewis, after a recent appearance made there by him.

Giovanni Martinelli, tenor, who recently appeared in concert at Elmwood Music Hall, so greatly pleased his audience that dealers took advantage of his appearance and made special displays of his records, and report increased sales of them.

Harry C. Brown, Columbia artist, appeared recently in Buffalo in the "French Doll," at the Majestic Theatre. He was a welcome visitor at the Buffalo branch.

Manager Haring is now in New York, making his headquarters at the Columbia executive offices.

The following Columbia dealers were in Buffalo during the past month: Gust Swanson, of Jamestown; Mr. Grinel, of McNall & McNall, Albion; J. A. Goldstein, of Niagara Falls; Max Lang, of Olean, and R. H. Allen, of Ithaca.

Halloween was an incentive for many artistic display windows and Neal, Clark & Neal can be given credit as having had an especially attractive one. Everything in the window caught the spirit of the event. One of the most attractive features was a Victrola done in Halloween colors for the display.

Aileen Stanley, known as "The Phonograph Girl," who sings for the Victor records, appeared in personal recitals in the record department of Neal, Clark & Neal, where she made a great many new friends and increased sales of her records are reported.

MERIT—BUILT IN

The merit of Van Veen equipment is built in. Surface decoration may beautify, but cannot make a real hearing room. Even a fence may be painted to look pleasing to the eye; don't make the error of buying highly decorated fence to serve as sound-proof hearing rooms.

A corner of the new Victor department of Griswold, Richmond & Glock, Meriden, Conn., considered one of the finest retail talking machine warerooms in New England.

Van Veen patented double construction hearing rooms combine structural superiority with beauty and dignity of design. Their efficiency goes below the surface.

The moderate cost of Van Veen equipment places it within the reach of the most economical dealer.

Complete equipment on hand ready to ship will give you a month's business in the time it takes others to build the job

RUDY WIEDOEFT SCORES SUCCESS

Prominent Saxophonist Now a Member of the Eight Famous Victor Artists

Victor dealers throughout the country have learned with pleasure that Rudy Wiedoeft, famous saxophonist, is now a member of the Eight Famous Victor Artists. Mr. Wiedoeft has been appearing with this well-known organization since the season opened and has been achieving phenomenal success. He is well known from coast to coast as one of the foremost saxophone players in the country, having appeared as a vaudeville headliner with several of the most prominent dance organizations.

Rudy Wiedoeft

In announcing Rudy Wiedoeft's acquisition to the staff of the Eight Famous Victor Artists, P. W. Simon, manager of this organization, has also advised the trade that Fred Van Eps, well-known banjoist, is no longer a member of the "Famous Eight," as his activities in New York and vicinity prevent him from making tours for extended periods.

NEW COMBINATION CABINET

George A. Long Cabinet Co. Announces Radio and Talking Machine Cabinet—Many Distinctive Features—Well Received by Trade

H. C. Naill, of the George A. Long Cabinet Co., Hanover, Pa., manufacturer of Long console and record cabinets, was a visitor to New York recently, spending quite some time at the New York Furniture Show. Mr. Naill left for Jamestown, N. Y., a few days ago, where his company is represented at the Jamestown Furniture Exposition.

In a chat with The World Mr. Naill called attention to the fact that the George A. Long Cabinet Co. had recently produced a combination radio and talking machine cabinet which had been received by the trade with keen interest. This cabinet is made in two styles, known as numbers 650 and C651. The former is designed to accommodate the Victrola 6 with a radio outfit and the latter is designed for a Columbia Grafonola A2 and radio outfit. This new cabinet (C651), which is shown in the accompanying illustration, has many distinctive features which will undoubtedly attract the attention of the trade. Head-sets or a loud Combination Radio and Talker Cabinet speaker may be attached to the radio terminals and the radio chamber is large enough to accommodate any radio set seven inches or less in height. There is also room available for dry batteries and in the cabinet that is shown there is used a Westinghouse Aeriola receiving set with a Baldwin loud speaker. Mr. Naill is very enthusiastic regarding the sales possibilities of this combination cabinet and good-sized orders have already been received from the dealers.

Mid-West Point of View

WESTERN DIVISION OF THE WORLD, CHICAGO, ILL., Nov. 10, 1922.

OCTOBER and early November reports from all the territory which is ordinarily included within the scope of this department are decidedly encouraging. Curiously enough, the good news of brisk business is coming even more from the retail than from the wholesale trade. It is indeed well known that manufacturers are working overtime and that dealers' orders are not filled sometimes as readily as one could wish, simply because they were not placed well ahead as they might, could and should have been. Meanwhile the country at large continues to display economic, industrial and commercial improvement. Mid-west business conditions show up most encouragingly. For instance, there was an increase for September of twenty millions of dollars over the figures for August of Chicago bank clearings. At the same time and for the same period the Chicago Federal Reserve Bank's loans to member banks increased by twenty-two millions, while, contrariwise, business failures were fewer and bettered the 1913 figures for the same month. In the same way, consideration of the general business statistics of the whole country during the opening weeks of the Fall season show that there is every reason for confidence. Commodity prices have been very slowly rising and are now on the 1916 level. Business failures throughout the nation continue to decline in number, and bank clearings to increase in magnitude. Considering all the circumstances, we should rightly rejoice. The sister industry of piano manufacturing and selling is at the moment facing a situation which one hardly knows how to characterize. For there is an actual shortage of manufacturing, due to shortage of help mainly, whereby many dealers are finding themselves with stocks depleted and business brisk. This state of things has not been known in the piano business now for some two years or more and goes to show once more the invincible strength of the music industries. The dealer is not using his intelligence when he supposes that the public demand for music is ever in danger of dying. What we need is simply good merchandising and intelligence. Even without much of either we get along surprisingly well.

Economic,
Industrial and Commercial

LITTLE note has been made of the highly interesting fact that the great music house of Kimball could, if it wished, this year celebrate a sixty-fifth anniversary. Sixty-five years measures a lengthy space of time, stretching back to the days when Chicago was an overgrown village of muddy streets, wooden sidewalks and frame buildings. Still, even Chicago is growing old, surely though it seems slowly. One hundred and ten years have elapsed since the Fort Dearborn massacre and eighty-five since Chicago obtained her city charter. Yet that charter was but twenty years old when the great Kimball house was founded. The Civil War was already, to the mental vision of the clear-minded, palpably on the horizon of the future, but no man could have foreseen the fire which came six years after its close. To-day the Kimball house can boast that it has gone through three wars as well as one catastrophic fire and that, like the community which has made it wealthy and powerful and which it in turn has contributed to make great, it has come out all the stronger for its experiences. The number of those who can still remember the old Crosby Opera House Building on Washington street where the Kimball store was running at the time of the fire, is to-day no longer large. One is sometimes tempted to wonder how far behind her present position Chicago would have been if the fire had never compelled her to build herself over again in durable and magnificent form. The extent of material and moral progress between the old Crosby Building and the magnificent skyscraper which to-day stands at the corner of Jackson and Wabash, with the name Kimball Hall upon its portals, is vast enough; nor should we be surprised that its scope is measured by the growth in public taste for music and musical instruments. We talking machine men are apt to forget sometimes that the music business is irresistible in its strength, because it is founded on an irresistible human desire; the desire for that uplift of the spirit which music best gives. On that foundation the music industries can brave any storm, as the history of the Kimball house abundantly shows. Now that the name Kimball is also a phonograph name, the splendor and the solidity it implies are being reflected in even greater degree and to an even greater extent into every part of this great country.

Kimball's
Sixty-fifth

As these words are being written preparations are going forward for the Victor Red Seal Salesmanship school under the auspices of the Putnam-Page Co., Victor distributor at Peoria. The news is not perhaps extremely surprising, but it affords a text from which to preach a little, and much needed, sermon on salesmanship. Perhaps it would be better to say on the lack of salesmanship in the talking machine business. For if there is any one truth more obvious than another in respect of the talking machine business it is the truth expressed in the last nine words of the preceding sentence. Now salesmanship is not a secret process. It may be defined as the application of intelligence to the work of distribution. Even the most obvious, the most needed goods are not acquired by the most of mankind without the intermediation of salesmanship. The reproduction of music for the home constitutes one of the most useful and valuable of human developments. No home should be without it, for no home without it is truly complete. Yet, we all know that the number of talking machines bears a most inadequate proportion to the number of families. Why is this? It is not because the prices are too high. It is because the methods of selling are poor, unsystematically thought out, opportunist, unscientific. That is why. Salesmanship should be a professional occupation. Salesmen should be, nay, must to-day be, trained men and women, who have undertaken to acquire theoretical and practical knowledge concerning the goods they have to sell and the behavior of men and women who are exposed to the selling suggestion. The organization of modern society is very complex and the distribution of goods among the members of this society more and more has to be systematized. Salesmanship, therefore, is becoming a profession. Chance must give place to system and luck to science. In the talking machine trade this is just as much a necessity as it is in the sale of gilt-edged securities. We welcome the appearance of the Victor salesmanship school downstate.

The
Salesmanship

AN observant pedestrian discovers a good many things which are hidden from him who sees but does not observe. The particular observant individual we have in mind has been doing a great deal of observing lately upon our city's thoroughfares and reports many interesting things. He says, for example, that the amount of local billboard advertising being done by talking machine manufacturers is really very large indeed and that there seems to be more of it in evidence every day. In his walks and rides around the city gathering the news of the talking machine trade, he keeps his eye open for billboard advertising, and very little of it gets past him. Well, if it be true, as inquiry among those chiefly concerned seems to indicate, that billboard publicity is effective publicity, this only confirms the wisdom of those who long ago saw that even the most refined and beautiful things can be beautifully and effectively advertised by the billboard. The old-fashioned poster indeed is giving way to the painting done directly on the wood of the board, or on a canvas stretched over it. The result is more attractive, neater, more durable and far more artistic. The Victor name has long been brought to the attention of the public by such means, and lately we have noted in ever-increasing numbers cleverly designed and well-executed pictures of the delights and beauties of Columbia, Vocalion, Brunswick, Cheney and Starr. The talking machine, like anything else which pertains to music, affords a splendid subject for outdoor publicity.

CHICAGO, ILL., November 8.—From all sides we hear that manufacturers of talking machines and parts essential to their manufacture are specially busy. This activity began to manifest itself something like sixty days ago. About this time these manufacturers had really got down to business and took note of a long neglected part of said business, viz., publicity. Many of them put their travelers back on the road and followed this up with announcements of their wares. These announcements appeared throughout the trade press and were also sent through the mail. Needless to say the results soon became apparent through activities in the factories.

It had been known for a long time that dealers' stocks were very low. In fact many dealers had been buying from hand to mouth for quite a number of months. They were conserving their resources because of the chaotic conditions then existing throughout the country, but which, for instance, the coal and railroad controversies, are now to all appearances settled. Business in general has quit thinking about them. Consequently, the thoughts that had been applied to the aforementioned controversies are now being applied to production and sales, so that trade is going along in a fairly normal manner.

It is customary each year for everyone to take an inventory of his progress and it is natural therefore for a trade paper to take an inventory of the progress of the industry it serves. After going over the trade situation for 1922 we have discovered several little facts which should be very interesting to the trade. We, therefore, are ambitious to say something regarding at least one or two of them. Perhaps it will be considered a premature inventory, since the year is not closed; but even so, please regard it as at least a part of one which is worthy of consideration. Here goes: One of the big faults that formerly prevailed in the talking machine industry was a lack of stability throughout the retail end of the industry. This was due to an apparent laxity on the part of merchants in regard to their places of business. For a while, particularly two or three years ago, dealers in general were doing a tremendous volume of business, and in this they were quite content. It was not necessary for them to be salesmen, nor did they feel it necessary to pay much attention to the fittings of their stores. This condition, of course, did not apply to all dealers, but to quite a number of them. After the day of order-taking had passed away it was found that in order to do business not only had real salesmanship to be instituted, but the appearance of stores had to be looked after. The dealer found that to do business he must make himself a permanent part of his community life. In order to do this he found it necessary to establish himself firmly in his community, and there was only one way to do that. That way was to show his clientele that he was there to stay. In order to do this he found it necessary to look after his equipment. Good equipment plays a most important part. It creates an air of prosperity which is highly regarded in every community—it adds to the comforts of the customer and assures him that he is in the hands of first-class business men who are not only anxious to sell him, but keep him sold. To-day our inventory shows us that nearly every dealer we come across has stabilized himself by investing anywhere from $1,000 to $25,000 in store equipment. By virtue of this investment the talking machine man is regarded as one of the best assets in his community. He has no trouble in raising money to-day, throughout financial circles in his community, and this in itself spells stability of the highest order.

Talking Machine Store as Radio Outlet

Another thing the talking machine man is paying quite a bit of attention to lately is radio. For a long time manufacturers of radio sought the most logical outlet. After much investigation and consideration the palm has been handed to the retail music man. One of the main reasons for this decision has been already gone over in detail above. Another is to be found in the close similarity between radio and the talking machine. It had been thought by a great many radio manufacturers that the sales of radio should go to electrical dealers, but this thought is being abandoned for several reasons, e.g., the talking machine man has a larger investment than the electrical dealer; likewise, the sale of radio depends on service, which the talking machine man is able to give better than the electrical dealer can. Then again, the electrical man is a technical man. He knows electricity, or is supposed to. Radio-telephony is now regarded not as simply electrical, but as a form of electro-magnetism, in regard to which much less is known. Therefore the electrical dealer with his electrical knowledge is too prone to go into technicalities and neglect to talk on subjects which will cause the buyer to make a purchase. The average retail talking machine man knows comparatively little of the technicalities of electricity and he therefore must talk upon music in the home and the enjoyment to be derived from radio. This, by virtue of his long association with a trade which is selling music, enables him to get right down under the hide of his prospect and make a customer of him. Then again, when a comparison of the electrical dealer and music man is made, we find that the music man knows how to handle a piece of merchandise that is sold on the deferred payment plan much better than the electrical dealer does. This is essential, because if anyone cares to take note he will see that the larger institutions marketing radio are putting out sets carrying retail prices which necessitate deferred payments.

Summarizing the whole situation we find then that talking machine dealers want high price radio outfits and nearly everyone of these dealers is taking them on, whereas, in the electrical field we find more and more indifference to radio, at least in a musical way, from day to day. We feel, therefore, and have every reason for so feeling, that ere long the music man will be considered the principal outlet for high-grade completed sets and the electrical man, because of his technicalities and his love for them, will be an outlet for parts rather than complete units.

Sonora Distributor Changed in Chicago

Van Houten & Zoon, who for several years were wholesale distributors for the Sonora Phonograph Co. in this city, have discontinued their activities in the talking machine business and have returned to their original enterprise, namely, the distribution of cocoa. They have accordingly closed their Chicago headquarters and returned to New York City.

The wholesale Sonora business has been turned over to a new distributor known as the Sonora Phonograph Co., Inc., of Illinois. The head of this new concern is A. R. Rodway, of the A. R. Rodway Co., Inc., New York City, broker and wholesaler of groceries. Mr. Rodway is president and general manager.

L. Golder, who was assistant sales manager of the Sonora branch of Van Houten & Zoon's Chicago offices, is now sales manager of the Sonora Phonograph Co., Inc., of Illinois, and J. E. Corcoran, formerly of Van Houten & Zoon, is now assistant secretary and treasurer of the new concern.

The Sonora Phonograph Co., of Illinois, will maintain its present headquarters at 720 South Michigan avenue and will also maintain the warerooms formerly occupied by Van Houten & Zoon. The showrooms at this address are equipped purposely for the benefit of Sonora retail dealers. Wholesale business only will be carried on at this place.

The territory that the new organization will cover will be the River towns of the State of Iowa and the entire State of Illinois. A comprehensive advertising campaign featuring the Sonora is now being carried on in the local newspapers of this territory.

A Visitor From Calumet

Lucas Hermann, of the firm of Hermann Brothers, of Calumet, Mich., paid the Chicago branch of the Columbia Co. a visit the early part of the week. "Conditions are much improved in the Copper Country," said Mr. Hermann, "and we are preparing for an unusually large Fall and Holiday business."

Dog Days in Chicago

The most (in some ways) spectacular parade ever seen in Chicago was held on Saturday, October 14. It was the parade of the unpedigreed canines and their owners. You see, it was this way. One of the local papers has been working up interest in "Kids and Their Dogs," and so got up the show of hounds of low degree. Kids and dogs of every kind and description were in the procession, including canines who possess the loudest barks, the longest tails, the homeliest faces, the prettiest eyes, etc. The parade itself was one of the biggest hits of the season and an observer for The World could only see one man in line who took advantage of the advertising possibilities of the event. This man offered the use of his Stutz roadster as a means of conveying some of the officials who made the award in the dog contest. His scheme was very novel. The World representative was unfortunate in not securing the gentleman's name, but he had mounted on top of the radiator of his car one of the familiar little Victor dogs with a sign hanging below it, "His Master's Voice." We immortalize the famous event, not for the purpose of giving any particular dealer a boost, but to call the attention of the trade to the possibilities that offer themselves almost daily for "tie-up" purposes, from the most unlikely directions.

Victor Delivery Bags

The Chicago Talking Machine Co. reports splendid results from the campaign recently launched in behalf of Victor delivery bags. The response from dealers has been far greater than anticipated. These delivery bags are of paper and come in ten and twelve-inch sizes. There are illustrations on the front in four designs, which include scenes from operas, as well as Victor advertisements. Space is left at the bottom of the illustration for a three-line imprint. The quality of these bags is typically Victor and they constitute a kind of advertisement calculated to stimulate any dealer's business.

Enlarge Talker Department

For the second time in a year H. L. Freedman, manager of the talking machine department of W. A. Wieboldt & Co., has found it necessary to enlarge his space. The department has now been moved to the third floor of the big building at Milwaukee avenue and Paulina street and has added a considerable number of listening rooms. This department is probably the largest of its kind in the West Side business

Now Have Twelve Booths

The Lincoln Talking Machine Shop, at 3100 Lincoln avenue, which handles the Sonora and Brunswick machines and Brunswick records, has recently added to its equipment several new hearing rooms, as well as larger counter space. This concern can now boast of twelve booths. Besides the first floor this concern recently added the basement of the building to its selling space, and this is now equipped in a most modern fashion with all the up-to-date improvements necessary for the sale of records and talking machines.

Increases Capitalization

The capitalization of Ray-Di-Co Organization, which was incorporated in May, 1922, under the laws of the State of Illinois with a capital of $100,000 common stock, has been increased to $250,000. The new capitalization calls for 1,500 shares at a par value of $100.

The Ray-Di-Co Organization, Inc., is the outcome of a consolidation between two pioneer firms in the radio business, viz., the Ray-Di-Co Organization and Hawthorne & Co. All of the assets of these two firms, including their goodwill, their registered trade marks, etc., were acquired by the Ray-Di-Co Organization, Inc., several months ago. This business began in a small way about two years ago and its products are said now to be handled by some 900 dealers.

A. R. Campbell in Charge of Radio Department

A. R. Campbell, a young man widely known in the commercial field, has been appointed manager of the retail radio department of the Cable Piano Co. Mr. Campbell is well versed in radio, having gained his knowledge while in the United States Navy. The department looked after by Mr. Campbell makes a specialty of Zenith receiving sets, manufactured by the Chicago Radio Laboratory.

Featuring Fletcher-Wickes Line in Canada

At the headquarters of Fletcher-Wickes, Inc.,

at 6 East Lake street, the representative of The World was shown some exceptionally clever advertising copy written around the Fletcher reproducer by the McLagan Phonograph Corp., Ltd., whose head office is in Stratford, Ontario, Can. The copy is enclosed in a pen-sketched border, showing two singers, a man and a woman. Immediately between the two heads is a drawing of the Fletcher reproducer. The drawing shows the mouths of both singers open in a natural manner and it will be seen on close inspection that this natural contour of the lips simulates a hexagon. The established shape of the Fletcher reproducer is hexagonal also. The connection is obvious.

The text matter then goes on to tell how it remained for Elmer Fletcher, an American genius, after many years of patient experiment, to discover the principles now embodied in the Fletcher reproducer. Mr. Fletcher abandoned the accepted ideas relative to reproducers and proceeded along new and radical lines. During his experiments he discovered that high or soprano notes are made in the center of the diaphragm of the reproducer and the low or bass notes are made nearer the edge. Continuing the experiment he found that six sound openings placed at certain positions behind the diaphragm provide proper spacing and correct control of all ranges of human voices and musical instruments.

Pushing the Starr Line

The Chicago office of the Starr Piano Co., manufacturer of the Starr phonograph and Gennett records, has a specially fine display of the latest Starr models at the local Wabash avenue warerooms. Sales are quite brisk and anticipations are that November and December deliveries of Starr phonographs and Gennett records will far exceed the deliveries made during the same months of last year. This augurs well for the local branch, as everyone connected with this institution firmly believes that the coming season will be the biggest ever. The console type has proved itself a very good seller and although considerable difficulty was met with in securing enough of these beautiful instruments to care for the demand some time ago, it is believed that increased deliveries will enable the local branch to take care of its coming Holiday trade.

Edison Phonographs Selling Fast

Retail Edison business is going at a fast pace, so they say, at the new Knabe Edison Shop on Wabash avenue. Retail sales are well beyond anticipations. The big seller is the baby console at $175, which is making Edison history in this territory. Edison records are showing an immense increase in sales, due to the fact that Edison is getting out the newest music very speedily. This policy is giving a great impetus to record sales and indirectly is greatly stimulating the sales of Edison phonographs.

Increases Force to Supply Demand

The United Mfg. & Distributing Co., of this city, recently increased its force of workmen and at present is turning out unprecedented quantities of the well-known United motor. In recent publicity the United Mfg. & Distributing Co. has heralded its product in a very novel way by asking the trade to think of the anachronism, "Beau Brummel, In Squeaky Shoes." Now, of course, no one familiar with the social life of that bygone and very interesting personage could conceive him wearing squeaky shoes. This little bit of publicity is causing many manufacturers to think of their best instruments as Beau Brummels and to get rid of their squeaky motors. All manufacturers know that to-day talking machines equipped with noisy, wobbly or squeaky motors are very objectionable in the home, and are therefore paying more attention to the elimination of these faults than ever before.

In Saginaw we have always had and—now that all Vitnolas will be made here—will have in increasing degree the benefit of skilled labor at a fair price. The men who work in our Saginaw plant, many of them, have been with us since our beginning. They own homes, and are skilled artisans who work because they like to create something worth while, not merely because they are compelled to hold a job.

In this big modern factory, then, under one roof we shall continue to produce the VITANOLA with the thought in mind that to-day the American public wants phonographs as badly as ever, BUT the quality and the price must both meet rigid competition. At the same time the dealer's interest must be protected.

ber for a luncheon in the Florentine room of the Congress Hotel. It was the first real meeting that the Sonora dealers have had in quite a while and was, in fact, the initial get-together meeting of the new Sonora Phonograph Co., Inc., of Illinois. It was the means of personally introducing the new officers of the aforementioned concern to the Sonora dealers of Chicago. The chairman of the occasion was L. Golder, sales manager of the Phonograph Co., Inc., of Illinois, who, after a few introductory remarks, introduced A. R. Rodway, president of the new company. Mr. Rodway told of his enthusiasm as regards Sonora phonographs and gave details as to the immense amount of business being done in New York City and throughout the East.

He could not see why Chicago, with its wonderful territory, cannot compare with any other big city, insofar as Sonora business is concerned. Mr. Rodway also spoke in a sort of historical way relative to the founding of the Sonora Co. and its success. The success of growing institutions depends on the ability of the men behind them, both wholesale and retail. It also depends upon the policies of the institutions marketing the product and the qualities of the product. Mr. Rodway's talk was quite interesting and aroused the hearty approval of all those present, who assured him that every possible co-operation will be his, and that 1923 will be a banner year in Chicago and the rest of the territory looked after by the company, of which he is president.

The keynote of Sonora's 1923 business will continue to be the best possible quality of merchandise, according to Frank J. Coupe, general sales manager of the Sonora Phonograph Co., who went into details concerning the company's endeavors and ambitions to make their 1923 merchandise of even better quality than obtains to-day. "The goods of to-day will stand up in competition with those of any other company and are never found wanting," he said. "We are doing our best even to surpass our present quality record." He called attention to the fact that the holiday rush was keeping the Sonora factories working overtime, but even at that there is bound to be a shortage of these instruments. "Sonora recommends good competition," he continued, and in closing he congratulated Sonora dealers on their good fortune of securing such high-grade men as now associated with the new Illinois Co. for business co-operators.

Co-operation between dealer and distributor was the keynote of an impromptu talk given by C. W. Keith, of the Long Island Phonograph Co., of Brooklyn. The immense amount of business this concern is doing in the East is attributed to a combination hard to beat and composed of two important factors, viz., superior goods and real co-operation. These will withstand the onslaught of any competition and win in the end. Mr. Keith warned his listeners to beware of cheap advertising; for example, dollar down and dollar a week advertising. This is ruinous to any establishment, as it cheapens the article that is offered for sale. When a man cheapens his merchandise he only invites for himself greater labor with less results.

The meeting was very successful. During the luncheon the guests were entertained with music and high-class vaudeville acts. The table was arranged around three sides of the room and the space within was decorated with palms and artistically set off with the entire line of Sonora instruments, which were placed effectively on display. At the close of the meeting Chairman Golder announced that all authorized Sonora dealers in this territory will be presented with elaborate Sonora dealer certificates framed and ready to be hung up in the dealer's place of business. It was also announced that all Sonora advertising during the present campaign will carry the names and addresses of all authorized Sonora dealers.

Ben Wood on Business Trip

Ben Wood, general manager of West Phono, Inc., left on the first of the month for a trip which will take him through the Eastern and Southeastern States. The purpose of this trip is to establish jobbers for the Orpheum portable talking machines which his company is making.

Peter Nees Elected Orotone President

The first of the month the board of directors of the Orotone Co. called a meeting of its officers to take action to fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of Louis K. Scottford, president of the Orotone Co. An election of officers followed the meeting and Peter Nees was duly elected president and the other officers were re-elected. William Tures remains secretary, with Leigh Hunt, treasurer and general manager. Mr. Tures, who was one of the founders of this organization, will devote a great amount of his time to traveling throughout the country calling on manufacturers of talking machines, as well as jobbers and retailers who handle the well-known Orotone-Edison attachments. Mr. Tures is a recognized authority on tone-arm and sound box construction and the purpose of his visit to the trade will be to familiarize it with the various methods utilized in tone reproducing. The Orotone Co. is meeting with great success in the development of its business and the demand for its product is a tribute to its worth.

New Cheney Store Opens

One of the latest entrants into talking machine circles of Chicago is the Thomas Piano Co., which recently opened its second store at 4338 Milwaukee avenue. The formal opening was attended by a large number of visitors, who enjoyed the excellent program especially prepared for the occasion. Music was furnished by the Seese Jazz Band.

This new store, besides a line of pianos, makes a specialty of Cheney talking machines. It is one of the most beautifully decorated stores on Chicago's North Side and its paneled walls are artistically decorated. The lighting effects are very beautiful and the furnishings are of

AN EXQUISITE CABINET WITH A CRUDE MOTOR

A thing may be durable and yet most objectionable.

Not so long ago, all motors were noisy. The coffee-mill-like winding sounds and the mechanical sounds of the motor were the accustomed though annoying prelude to an operatic air.

Today, instruments equipped with our enclosed, automatically lubricated motors avoid this objectionable defect. Not a sound—No intrusion of mechanics into the artist's offering, they are musical instruments—not machines.

Also, manufacturers were accustomed to bear a certain amount of bother and expense due to motor troubles after their instruments were sold.

Most of the makers of fine Phonographs now use our equipment, their motor troubles are forgotten, their costs as well as their overhead expense are reduced, and their cabinet work, no matter how exquisite, is matched in refinement and quality by the mechanism inside.

Let us send samples for trial at our expense to your Mechanical Department. See for yourself just what we offer at less money than you are doubtless now paying.

a kind that create a homelike air throughout the store. One of the features of their display was a $1,200 Cheney instrument of Oriental design.

W. B. Thomas, the energetic and enterprising young man who heads this concern, conducts another retail music store at 4326 Milwaukee avenue, wherein he carries a full line of sheet music and small goods.

Sonora Advertising Campaign

The nation-wide advertising campaign, which was recently launched by the Sonora Phonograph Co., Inc., of New York City, is beginning to make itself felt in the Chicago territory. Sonora advertisements of various sizes have recently been appearing in the Chicago American, Chicago Daily News and the Tribune, whose combined daily circulation reaches something like one million and a half. It is estimated that the combined total circulation of all of the newspapers throughout the country which are carrying Sonora advertisements is 15,000,000 daily.

The Sonora Phonograph Co., of Illinois, which recently took over the wholesale Sonora distribution in this section when the firm of Van Houten & Zoon retired, has tied up with this big Sonora publicity campaign and is mailing many hundreds of leaflets, broadsides and dealer helps to prospects throughout the territory. The new institution is doing everything it can to stimulate Sonora activities throughout the river towns of Iowa and the entire State of Illinois.

The Up-town Chicago Exposition

Every year the business men of the North Side get together and hold what is known as the Up-town Chicago Exposition. This is generally held in the Broadway Armory on the North Side. The exposition this year was opened on October 16 with addresses by Edward E. Gore, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce; Loren Miller, president of the Exposition Association, and Mayor William Hale Thompson. The exposition lasted for one week and attracted crowds from all parts of the city. Music was the big feature of the entire show and quite a number of North Side dealers took advantage and exhibited their goods.

The Fenton Music Co., of 4736 North Racine avenue, had a very attractive display of Victor talking machines, as well as Kranich & Bach pianos. The Victor display was highly artistic and the coloring and lighting schemes accentuated its beauty.

A. M. Bensinger, head of the Brunswick Phonograph Shop, 4732 Broadway, had a very attractive line of Brunswick models on display, and exploited Brunswick records to very good advantage. The shop controlled by Mr. Bensinger claims to be the oldest Brunswick shop in the country, Mr. Bensinger being, it is said, the first dealer to sign a Brunswick contract. Another Brunswick exhibit was given under the auspices of the Devon Music Co., whose place of business is at 1560 Devon avenue. This concern made a special feature of Brunswick De Luxe console models.

Enlarge Victor Department

The Hartman Furniture Co., of Chicago, which operates branch stores throughout the city, has just completed the work of enlarging the Victor department at the Sixty-third street branch. This branch is near Halsted street, the center of business activities in the big Englewood district of Chicago. The enlargement consists of five additional audition rooms, a large record rack, counters, etc. Manager Goldsmith, who supervises the entire store, is elated with the amount of Victor business his branch is doing, and believes that before long it will be necessary for him again to enlarge his Victor department.

Another Shop Opens

S. D. Selverstrom is the name of the proprietor of the talking machine shop which recently opened its doors to the public at 656 East Seventy-fifth street, Chicago. The new store is known as the Music Box and carries a comprehensive line of high-grade talking machines, namely, Aeolian, Vocalion and Columbia. The first equipment consists of demonstration rooms and a large record department, all of which were fitted out by the Unit Construction Co. in a most attractive way.

Across the Lake

News comes from Ann Arbor, Mich., that Harvey Stofflet has opened up an exclusive Brunswick shop in the McNichol Arcade. The new shop, which has been Unico'd throughout with six audition booths, record racks, lights, fans and trade stimulators, is known as the Stofflet Phonograph Shop.

First Phonograph Exclusivist

The Chicago office of The Talking Machine World has just received an announcement from St. Louis which tells of the opening of the new talking machine department of Trorlicht-Dunker Co., of that city. The department occupies a brand new store and is the only exclusive talking machine store in the down-town district of St. Louis. Victor and Brunswick machines and records are handled by this institution. R. M. Clucas, who manages this new store, is very warm in his praise for the efficiency and business-like manner in which W. D. Montgomery, Chicago manager of the Unit Construction Co., fitted out the place. The treatment is typically Unico, conceived in white ivory, and consists of five audition rooms and nine machine rooms, arranged artistically along the sides of the store. There is also a forty-foot record rack and counter. The lobby of the store is treated in Unico Adam design. The Unit organization made record time in providing this equipment. Shipment was made complete four days after receipt of order.

Important New Brunswick Artists

The advance list of Brunswick December records, which was released on November 15, contains some very interesting news regarding the activities of the record division of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. This list contains the first records made by several artists, who, although new to the Brunswick catalog, are widely known to the public.

They are John Barclay, baritone; Joseph C. Smith and his orchestra, and Arnold Johnson and his orchestra. John Barclay is an Englishman who came to this country last Summer.

Arnold Johnson and His Orchestra

He has made appearances with the Mendelssohn Choir of Toronto, the Philadelphia Orchestra, the Philharmonic Orchestra of New York and the Cleveland Symphony. Mr. Barclay is now making his second American tour. He is the originator of the famous "Barnstormers," that picturesque group of British singers and actors, who, during the war, accompanied the British armies during battle. Mr. Barclay was a captain in a London Territorial regiment and led the "Barnstormers" with General Allenby's army through the Holy Land.

The Arnold Johnson orchestra is at present playing at Pelham Heath Inn in New York. Mr. Johnson, several years ago, was director of the orchestra at Tait's famous café in San Francisco. He was also at Nat Goodwin's in Los Angeles, the Green Mill Gardens in Chicago and the Cafe de Paris in New York City. Last season Mr. Johnson assembled a noteworthy organization of famous musicians from all over the country. His orchestra played during the Winter season at Miami, Fla.

Joseph C. Smith and his orchestra constitute a well-known musical organization which for the past eight years has been playing in and about the city of New York. Most of this time he has been indissolubly associated with the famous Plaza Hotel, New York City. It is understood that this famous orchestra will record exclusively for the Brunswick institution.

Another exclusive Brunswick organization whose records will be released in January is the Ukrainian Chorus, which received a tremendous ovation upon its appearance here at Orchestra Hall on October 30. Among the artists are Mme. Nina Koshetz, soprano of the Moscow Opera; Mme. Oda Slobodskaja, soprano of the Petrograd Opera; Mme. Nadia Platinova, Russian folklore interpreter; Nicholaj Stember, accompanist, and the conductor, Alexander Koshetz. Madame Koshetz sang last season with the Chicago Opera Co. and has appeared with the Boston, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Detroit and Minneapolis orchestras. Madame Slobodskaja was with the Imperial Opera of Petrograd up to ten months ago, where for over four years she sang leading dramatic soprano roles. Since leaving Petrograd she has given four recitals in Berlin to capacity audiences in the Beethoven Salle, where she received unusual praise from press and public.

J. J. Davin Returns from Pacific Coast Trip

J. J. (Jim) Davin, secretary of the Reincke-Ellis Co., of this city, returned recently from a trip to the Pacific Coast, during the course of which he attended the national convention of the Intermountain Victor Dealers' Association, held at Salt Lake City, Utah, under the auspices of the John Elliott Clark Co., Victor distributor. En route to the Coast Mr. Davin visited Kansas City and Denver and in San Francisco spent some time with Robert Bird, who was recently appointed manager of the Victor wholesale division of Sherman, Clay & Co.

In a chat with The World Mr. Davin stated that in Los Angeles and in the other Coast cities he found the finest Victor store fronts that he has ever seen in any part of the country, and he talks from an experience that includes a visit to every large trade center from coast to coast. The Platt Music Co., of Los Angeles, has opened up a new store which Mr. Davin believes is the last word in Victor installation and which would be a credit to the Fifth avenue shops in New York. Regarding business Mr. Davin stated that it is brisker on the Pacific Coast than in any part of the country he has visited this year and that the dealers are preparing for the best Fall and holiday trade in history.

interest during the recent radio show when it exhibited its latest innovation—a combination radio receiving set and talking machine. The new instrument is enclosed in a handsome electric table lamp. The radio receiver contains four tubes, one being the detector unit and the other three being audio frequency-radio frequency units. Stations within a radius of one thousand miles have been easily picked up. The wave length is adjustable from 200 to 600 meters. The radio element of the instrument is composed entirely of Crosley parts. The talking machine part is very compact and arranged so that the amplifying horn of the talking machine may be used as a loud-speaker for the radio.

On several occasions during the radio show the "Aladdin Lamp," as it has been christened by Lakeside, was used for broadcasting purposes, for which it is remarkably well adapted on account of its compactness.

Plans Extensive Trip

W. D. Montgomery, manager of the Unit Construction Co., Chicago branch, left Chicago on the first of the month for an extensive trip, which will bring him into personal contact with nearly every dealer located in the large towns throughout his territory. The trip will last a month or more, and its purpose is personally to call the dealer's attention to the fact that there will be an advance in Unico prices on January 1. The trip is in line with the Unit Construction Co.'s policy of giving dealers every advantage of prevailing prices.

A Minneapolis Visitor

A representative of the Foster & Waldo Co., of Minneapolis, who was recently in Chicago, stated that this company will throw open the doors of its greatly enlarged store to the public on or about November 15. This concern, which is one of the oldest and best-established music houses in the Central Northwest, has been in business for sixty-four years and in the year 1919 sold over $650,000 worth of talking ma-

The talking machine department was formerly on the third floor of the building occupied in its entirety by Foster & Waldo, but the recent remodeling which was carried on brings the talking machine department to the first floor. The job of remodeling this store amounted to something over $15,000 and was handled by the Unit Construction Co. through its Chicago branch. There are now thirteen audition rooms, fifty feet of counter space and a record rack with a capacity of 50,000 records. The treatment is in ivory and steel blue, known to the trade as Unichrome.

The offices are now located on a balcony on the first floor, reached by a grand central stair-

New Unyversal Album

The Unyversal Utylyty Unyts Co. has just announced a new record album which it is getting ready for the trade. The album is of a solid wood, one-piece construction back, which has five dove-tailed grooves running its entire length. Into these grooves are set twin pocket unit leaves. At the center of these leaves is a scoring between the two pockets and upon this scoring is laid the filler which may be of various materials, but preferably wire. The leaves are then folded around the wire at the point of scoring and are most easily slipped into the unit back grooves exactly as a dove-tailed joint is utilized in furniture construction. The result is an instantly and readily removable leaf—a flexibly formed hinge and union.

Some More Remodeling

The Barker & Sullivan Drug Co., of Rochelle, Ill., has recently had its place of business completely Unico'd with new booths, record racks and counters. This enlargement is temporary, as the concern expects to open an exclusive talking machine shop in the near future. Barker & Sullivan handle the Brunswick line of talking machines and records.

Dealers Must Be on Guard

Every once in a while one runs across a package of fibre needles in a dealer's store which are not made in America. Whenever The Talking Machine World hears of a thing like this it hastens to call the trades's attention to the fact, in order that it may be on the lookout, the reason being that fiber needles not made in America are questionable. There is only one original fibre needle, viz., the Hall, which was originated and patented not only in the United States, but in foreign countries, by Frederick B. Hall a number of years ago. This needle represents many years of experience in tone development. Manufacturers in foreign countries have attempted on several occasions to unload spurious fiber needles on the market, but have always failed to do so because the trade in general has always recognized the superiority and originality of the Hall fiber needle.

Vitanola in New Home

The Vitanola Talking Machine Co., which recently moved from its Cicero headquarters to its big plant at Saginaw, Mich., announces this month that all departments are working at top speed in an effort to take care of holiday orders that are pouring in. Reports indicate that orders are coming in about three times the limit of the present capacity and it is believed that this condition will continue to exist for at least five or six months.

To Open New Store

A. Schlesinger, one of the most successful Columbia dealers in Chicago, will open his new store in this city in the near future. He will carry pianos, although the main end of his business will be Grafonolas and records.

Vocalion Publicity Brings Results

Somewhere in the neighborhood 126 enthusiastic Vocalion dealers are reaping the benefits derived from the recent billboard campaign which was instituted here by the local Aeolian branch, of which H. B. Leavy is manager. The 158 billboards, carrying 24-sheet posters, are scattered throughout Chicago and thousands of passers-by are being influenced to take interest in the Vocalion product. From present indications the coming holiday season will well reward the local Vocalion dealers, who anticipate great sales, not only of Vocalion talking machines, but Vocalion Red records as well.

Cheney "Resonator" Out

The November issue of the Cheney Resonator, published by the Cheney Talking Machine Co., in the interest of its dealers, has just been issued. Like previous numbers, this issue contains interesting and constructive articles, not only beneficial to the Cheney dealers, but also to salesmen and the trade in general.

Special attention is called to an article by Prof. Forrest Cheney, entitled "Refining the Phonograph Ear—How the Cheney Takes Its Place as a New Educational Factor in Transmitting the World's Great Musical Records."

Why John McKenna Is Optimistic

John McKenna, manager of the Chicago branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co., has returned from an extended trip throughout the territory with a growing report of the prospective Fall business situation. "Conditions have improved wonderfully and to-day are the best we have had in two years," remarked Mr. McKenna. "Activities among the dealers tend to substantiate the general opinion that the Grafonola business will be the biggest we've ever had. The supply on several types is already exhausted and it is problematical if the demand for some of the models can be filled."

A. J. Kunde Visits Chicago

A. J. Kunde, of A. J. Kunde, of Milwaukee, Wis., distributor for Starr phonographs and Gennett records in Wisconsin and the Upper Michigan Peninsula, was in Chicago last week and announced that he has been appointed agent for the Starr pianos for this territory. Mr. Kunde has made a recent trip through Wisconsin and says that he found business very favorable to what it had been in the months past. "I found that the old stocks of talking machines and records are fast being consumed," said Mr. Kunde, "and the dealers are ordering for the holiday business. Everybody is of an optimistic state of mind and they are all looking forward to a very normal Fall." Mr. Kunde feels as a result of this trip there is going to be a very live Fall, not only for talking machines and records, but for Starr pianos.

Lyon & Healy Radio Activities

Probably one of the most complete retail radio stores in Chicago is that which was recently opened by Lyon & Healy in their big building at Jackson boulevard and Wabash avenue. The news of the opening was carried in these columns several months ago, but at the time we were unable to show the illustrations of the interior which we now give. Counter displays worthy of special note, designed to fit the needs of radio customers and show off radio goods to the best advantage, can be seen. These bear a very attractive and complete array of accessories for parts. Special demonstration booths are installed, where the customer may test out the various sets before purchasing. Daily concerts are given in the big Lyon &

Use Glass Model for Cheney Exhibit

The Cheney department of Marshall Field & Co. is using for demonstration purposes one of the most interesting talking machines that have ever been seen in the Western trade. The instrument is none other than a Cheney Art Model, the casing of which is built of triple-plate glass, with all of the metal parts heavily gold-plated. This elaborate machine is given a prominent place in the center of the talking machine department, with the purpose of showing a prospective buyer exactly how the working parts of the Cheney instruments are disposed. It is a perfect working instrument and any Unique Cheney Exhibit in Glass record can be played on it. It has precisely the same tonal quality as a regular instrument.

When a prospect wants to know some of the constructional features of the Cheney instrument the salesman makes use of this glass model and thus easily explains everything to the satisfaction of the inquirer.

Real Talking Machine Fans

A visitor to the Chicago office of The Talking Machine World recently left behind him a clipping from the San Francisco Examiner, which seems to show that the talking machine men of Chicago must be putting talking machines in every home in that town. The text is as follows: "More than half of the punctures brought to a local tire house are declared to be caused by phonograph needles. The needles pass through the casing and prick tiny holes in the tube, causing slow leaks. The needles become imbedded in the casing and are hard to find.

"The only explanation is that the people unknowingly sweep the needles from their homes and passing cars pick them up."

MEETING CHANGING CONDITIONS WITH NEW METHODS

E. P. Van Harlingen Tells How Harry Schlau Moved Stock and Interested the Public in His Store When Others Were Cultivating Pessimism—Constructive Views on Radio

Trade is looking up; there is no doubt about that. However, there are certain problems confronting general business, also specific problems confronting the music industry. All this is recognized by the thinkers in this trade. Leaders in the industry are of the opinion that these problems present no insuperable difficulties, but will be successfully overcome by the man who keeps his head and if need be meets changing conditions with new methods. One of the few big "complete music stores" in Chicago is that of the Harry A. Schlau Co., 3234-38 Lawrence avenue, some miles from the Loop, but probably the finest store of its kind outside the Loop.

It is recognized as such by all who see it. Mr. Schlau is not only a successful piano, talking machine and general music man, but is a man of affairs. He has built up a successful business in a relatively short time, and now occupies his own building in the heart of Albany Park, as that district of the city is known. He is president of the Albany Park Merchants' Association, director of the neighborhood bank, owner of the neighborhood paper and several other things. He is a man whom dull times fail to "buffalo." He is not a blind optimist, but thrives on difficulties. During this last Summer, which has not been a period of unexampled prosperity, he did some notable things.

As an instance of his aggressive methods he put three intelligent women out last Summer to act as canvassers and give away small bottles of piano and talking machine polish. They called at the homes, presented a bottle of polish, told the recipient how to use it, said it was given with the compliments of Mr. Schlau and that he was interested in knowing how they were fixed in the musical line. They readily gave the required information. As a result of these women's labors, reports on 4,000 homes were secured, including what musical instruments were owned, those who were without music in the home, etc. A number of sales have already been made as the result of this survey and the store's card index is as live a prospect list as can be found anywhere. These prospects are being carefully and regularly fol-

Mr. Schlau's activities are not confined to his neighborhood. He has solicitors throughout the city and they also invade the agricultural districts of Cook and adjoining counties. He believes that no store can depend for success on the sale of pianos and talking machines in its immediate neighborhood and also that the greatest market in musical instruments in America to-day, and the least developed market, is to be found among the farmers.

Mr. Schlau has profound convictions regarding the radio proposition as applied in the music field. He sees in broadcasting a positive stimulus for the sale of musical instruments and particularly of talking machine records. He thinks that considerable advancement will have to be made before broadcasting becomes an absolute success. He thinks, for instance, that much the same care and scientific study must be given to grouping of instruments as is expended in record laboratories in order to get proper ensemble effects. Considerable harm has been done the industry temporarily by selling outfits of limited range to people in isolated districts. Studies of local conditions must be made and only instruments sold in a district which are adapted to the listening range of that district.

Suppose a man hears a famous artist through the radio. Perhaps his neighbor says, "That's beautiful, I wish I could hear it again." "Well," comes the reply, "I guess she won't sing it over again for you on the radio, but I've got a record of that very voice and that very number at home. You can buy one and hear it as often as you like." Or one becomes infatuated with a voice from hearing it once and wants to hear that same voice in other numbers. The result is increased sales of records, and if he hasn't got a talking machine he is pretty likely to buy one.

Things like this happen all the time. A group of young people are sitting around listening to a radio concert. "Hot Lips" or "Three o'Clock in the Morning" comes syncopating via radio. One of the boys grabs a girl and they go one-stepping around the room. "That certainly is the stuff," someone says. They are simply crazy when the thing stops. They can't turn it on again as they can a record, possibly played by the same instrumental organization which did the broadcasting.

"Better conditions are being created right now," said Mr. Schlau. "I cannot agree for a minute with anyone who thinks that radio is going to hurt the talking machine business. While I know my views will be questioned by many I believe that ultimately the great talking machine companies will arrange for the broadcasting of the voices of the exclusive artists in order to stimulate the sale of the records of these artists."

CHICAGO RADIO SHOW SUCCESSFUL

Display Was One of Nation's Best—Exposition Lasted Eight Days

CHICAGO, ILL., November 6.—The Chicago Radio Show, the first ever endorsed by the National Radio Chamber of Commerce and the radio division of the National Electric Manufacturers, which closed on October 21, proved to be one of the largest trade expositions ever held in this city. When the doors of the Coliseum were thrown open to the public on October 14 practically every large manufacturer of radio apparatus was represented. It was, so to speak, the first time the manufacturer had ever taken the opportunity to meet the jobber, dealer and public at the same time. It was a great get-together convention for all persons interested in radio. Dealers, jobbers and radio fans from all over the Middle West were present and meetings of the more important committees of the National Radio Chamber of Commerce were held at the same time. Throughout the entire week everyone was entertained by an elaborate musical program. There was a society night, a ladies' ball, children's afternoon and other features. All told, the show was a success from one end to the other and the "bugbears," viz., the loud speaker elements, which caused so much bother during other shows throughout the country, were handled in a very diplomatic and pleasing way, and there was no terrific din of squawks and squeals. At the beginning no one could figure out how this particular bit of business could be handled, but through the ingenuity of both U. J. Hermann, managing director, and Jas. F. Kerr, manager, everything came off in ship-shape manner and everyone was satisfied.

Among the exhibitors were the following: Precision Equipment Co., Cincinnati, O., manufacturers of Ace radio products; Electrical Research Laboratory of Chicago, Earla parts; American Hard Rubber Co., New York, Radion hard rubber insulating metal; Allen-Bradley Co., Milwaukee, Bradleyometers; Metric Metal Works, Erie, Pa., parts; Illinois Radio Engineering Co., broadcasting radio equipment; Federal Telephone & Telegraph Co., Buffalo, combination receiving and amplifying sets; The Benson Co., Chicago, radio phone receivers; New York Coil Co., radio frequency, amplification; Illinois Radio Engineering Co., radio frequency, tuners, detectors, etc.; American Radio & Research Corp., complete Amrad line; Collin B. Kennedy Corp., St. Louis, radio receiving equipment; Harmony Mfg. Co., radio frequency receivers; Pacent Electric Co., New York, radio essentials; Clearstone Radio Co., short wave tuners, detectors and two-stage amplifiers; The Dayton Fan & Motor Co., variometers, etc.; Cook Electric Co., protective devices; Lyradion Mfg. OGDEN EQUIPMENT ORDERS BOOM

Orders for Demonstration Rooms, Record Racks, Counters, etc., Keep Ogden Sectional Cabinet Co. Working to Capacity

LYNCHBURG, VA., November 2.—Although the Ogden Sectional Cabinet Co., of this city, has only marketed its talking machine wareroom equipment, consisting of demonstration rooms, record racks, counters, etc., for a short period of time, the plant of the company is very busy. J. B. Ogden, president of the company, states that this end of the business has now compelled them to put on expert workmen as fast as they can be secured in order to keep abreast with orders. He stated that the September announcement which appeared in The Talking Machine World created considerable interest in the equipment from jobbers in general, and orders have been coming in very satisfactorily.

A large demand is also reported for the stands for portables and table models. Mr. Ogden attributes this increasing demand to the desire on the part of a large number of owners of portable models to use them in conjunction with stands during the Winter months. This would also apply to owners of table models as well. Another contributing feature of their increasing sales, Mr. Ogden believes, is their desirability as holiday gifts to friends. A large amount of new wareroom equipment being installed has also had its effect in the increased demand for service tables for demonstration rooms. The entire line, including the sectional record cabinets, is going big and Mr. Ogden is very enthusiastic and optimistic over the future.

PRaise VIOLIN SPRUCE REPRODUCER

Scientific American Refers to Its Use in Broadcasting—Twenty-six Dealers in Cleveland Commend It—Attractive Literature Sent Out

CLEVELAND, O., November 8.—The Diaphragm Co., of this city, manufacturer of the Violin Spruce reproducer, is meeting with very pleasing success in the introduction of this reproducer to the trade throughout the country. Although the company only began the actual sale of its reproducer the early part of September, it has already established itself in many of the leading trade centers and in Cleveland has won exceptional popularity. A recent advertisement in Cleveland newspapers featured the Violin Spruce reproducer over the signatures of twenty-six of the leading talking machine dealers in this city, all of whom are handling this reproducer and are enthusiastic regarding its sales possibilities.

Paul H. Bradley, manager of the Diaphragm Co., has been an important factor in the sales and publicity policies of the company. Under his direction attractive literature has been prepared and the dealers have been furnished with every possible means of co-operation. The company has shipped its reproducer broadcast throughout the United States on a ten days' trial basis, and from a total of 600 reproducers shipped to music lovers on this basis less than twenty were returned. In the majority of these returns the reproducers had been damaged in transit and new ones were accepted by the consignees.

The Violin Spruce reproducer was the subject of a very interesting article in the November issue of the Scientific American and the reproducer was also tested on a special talking machine constructed for Cleveland's wireless broadcasting station. The results from the use of this reproducer were so satisfactory that it is now being used for all concerts transmitted from this broadcasting station.

The Diaphragm Co. manufactures different models of its reproducers for the various types of tone arms and in order to co-operate properly with Edison dealers has designed a reproducer for playing lateral cut records on the Edison Diamond Disc phonograph.

USES CLEVER AND ORIGINAL SIGN

Missouri Concern Adopts Railroad Crossing Sign for Advertising Purposes

St. Louis, Mo., November 6.—The West Frankfort Housefurnishing Co., of West Frankfort, Mo., has adopted a clever sign, the originality of which has made a strong appeal to newspaper columnists as well as to the public at large. The sign is placed at the railroad crossings and bears a large skull and crossbones at the top. Underneath the text reads: "Railroad Crossing. Beware. Drive Slowly or We May Lose a Customer."

NEW ORLEANS

Business Better But Uneven—Dealers Branching Out in All Departments of the Industry—Many Add New Lines—Other News

NEW ORLEANS, LA., November 7.—Business has not been quite up to expectations during the past month in the downtown retail music stores, although information from the country trade and the wholesale departments here indicates a tendency toward better business. Sales managers for the Southern districts have had very good results all through the past month. The Columbia country dealers are stressing advertising in their town papers, while the Edison agents are taking advantage of the State and Interstate fairs. The Victor dealers are steadily forging ahead, but are being held in check somewhat by a scarcity of goods.

Many New Edison Accounts

W. W. Twigg, sales manager for the Edison Co., reports the opening of many new agencies through Louisiana and along the Gulf coast. Among them is P. H. Rodrigue, who is handling the Edison in Pascagoula and who is now going to open an exclusive Edison shop in Biloxi, Miss. He plans to serve the entire Gulf coast by truck. Mr. Rodrigue has a reputation of being a thorough canvasser and is a firm believer in advertising, and these policies have successfully built up his fine business. Another Edison agency was secured in Abbeville with the Bourque Furniture Co. At Oakdale, La., Dr. M. G. Hargrave, with the assistance of Roy Clark, has opened up an Edison agency.

Look Forward to Special Victor Release

The local Victor dealers are looking forward to the release on November 18 of the record, "I Wish I Could Shimmy Like My Sister Kate," played by the Virginians, but written by A. J. Piron, a local negro, director of the popular band playing at Tranchinas, a famous suburban restaurant. This record will be a special release and is expected to go over big.

Many of Dwyer Force Ill

At the Dwyer Piano Co. illness has been playing havoc with the sales force. Both Mr. Allen, manager of the Victrola department, and Mr. Fried, manager of the piano department, have been ill. Activity of other members of the force has been curtailed for this reason.

Edison Exhibit at Shreveport Fair

Mr. Twigg has just returned from the Shreveport Fair where the Edison was the only phonograph having an exclusive exhibit. The Booth Furniture Co. featured period Edison consoles and many sales resulted from this exhibit.

C. K. Mansfield a Local Visitor

C. K. Mansfield, Edison agent at Mansfield, a good sized town located in the center of the oil district, was a visitor at Edison headquarters here recently and reported a big increase in his October business over September. He is enthusiastic over the outlook for the Winter.

Diamond Disc Shop Adds to Staff

J. L. Billet, manager of the Diamond Disc Shop, has added two new men to his sales force and a truck for his repair man. Shortage of stock has been the main difficulty in supplying the Edison demand, according to Mr. Billet. The Chippendale and baby console models are being sold as fast as they arrive.

Fine Business at Philip Werlein, Ltd.

Philip Werlein, Ltd., seems to be the one bright light in the retail line. Mr. Rosenbaum reports business good, better than last month. Sales have shown no let-up within the past thirty days, according to Mr. Rosenbaum. Record sales also have been excellent and it was found necessary to add another young lady to the sales force. That lady is Miss Thelma Kellier.

Remodeling New Columbia Headquarters

The new Columbia headquarters on North Peters street are being remodeled and the work is rapidly nearing completion.

Mr. Sparrow, general manager, has just returned from a trip through Southern territory, where he has been putting forth a number of sales plans for the Christmas season.

New Columbia Dealers

At El Dorado Max Shilling has found the Columbia line so profitable that he is opening an exclusive Columbia store. Other new dealers just placed are R. T. Wallace, Tchula, Miss.; J. M. North, Wayside, La., and Sackler Furniture Co., Hattiesburg, Miss. Conditions in southwest Louisiana and east Texas, Mr. Sparrow reported, are unusually good.

Columbia Activities

The Columbia district sales conference of all salesmen in the Atlanta, New Orleans and Dallas territories is to be held here the present week. Robert Porter, field sales manager, will be present to outline the next year's plans.

George Hopkins, general sales manager of the Columbia Co., was a visitor here recently. He addressed the salesmen of this district, presenting plans for this year as well as outlining plans for 1923.

Oswald Arrow, chief accountant, and Mrs. James Leitch, assistant bookkeeper, have just been added to the Columbia office force.

Victor Displays at Fairs

Victor dealers have been very active at the State Fairs. Particularly at the New Iberia and the Alexandria Fairs. Fine Victor displays resulted in the sale of many machines. "His Master's Voice" was also at Donaldsonville, Florida parish, Southwest Louisiana, Mississippi State and Mississippi-Alabama Interstate Fairs.

The Sonora Shop is the name of a new talking machine establishment opened by James J. Mead and W. J. Simpson at 20 West Sixth street, St. Paul, Minn.

NEW PLANT TO TURN OUT "KODISK"

Metal Recording Disc Co. Secures New York Factory—"Kodisk" Sales Increase

The Metal Recording Disc Co., manufacturer and distributor of "Kodisk," a metal record for recording and reproducing in the home, reports that the demand for this little record has been far beyond expectations, and at the present time it is being sold by talking machine dealers throughout the country. Dealers handling the "Kodisk" are very enthusiastic and report brisk sales.

In order to better handle the large amount of business on hand and also the expected increase this Winter the company has found it necessary to acquire an additional plant in New York City where "Kodisk" will be manufactured. This plant will be known as the New York City plant, the other factory being in Plainfield, N. J., where "Kodisk" has been manufactured heretofore. The new plant will be located at 227 West Sixty-first street, a few blocks away from the company offices at Fifty-seventh street.

The text is illustrated by over ninety pictures and thirty-eight diagrams, sufficiently simple to be understandable by the amateur.

TEGO RECORD BRUSH LIKED

Big Sales Campaign in Rochester Disposes of 10,000—Reaching for National Support

ROCHESTER, N. Y., November 6.—The Sturgis Novelty Co., manufacturer of the Tego brush, which automatically cleans the record of dust while playing, reports that its business during the past two months has been exceptionally good. This brush has been distributed in a short time in many cities throughout the country, and talking machine dealers are very enthusiastic about it and report a lively demand from their customers. Recently, in the city of Rochester, the company carried on an extensive selling campaign which disposed of over 10,000 brushes to talking machine owners. John Goodbody, general manager of the company, personally took charge of this campaign, which, he stated, was carried on most successfully and proved without a doubt that this little brush can be sold as an accessory that appeals to the talking machine owner. During this campaign members of the new Eastman Theatre Orchestra purchased brushes for their talking machines. Officials of the company state that present plans call for an intensive drive throughout the Winter, and it is expected that in the next few months the Tego brush will be placed in the leading talking machine stores throughout the country.

PHILADELPHIA

The Trade in PHILADELPHIA and LOCALITY

PHILADELPHIA, PA., November 8.—While the talking machine dealers of the Quaker City report sales increasing most satisfactory and are united in agreeing that the prospects for the holiday and Winter trade are very bright, the large majority of the dealers are complaining of a shortage in stock that is said to be unparalleled in this city.

Naturally, the distributors for the various talking machine companies are the first to feel the effects of this shortage of instruments and while they are doing everything in their power to fill the orders sent in by their dealers they find that the only fair way is to let each of their dealers have a pro rata share of the machines available. In this way they are trying to satisfy, in part, the demands for machines that are pouring in from their dealers. Many of the leading distributors, however, while taking a most optimistic view of the prospects for business throughout the trade, do not hesitate to predict that the present scarcity of stock is merely an indication of the conditions that will prevail to greater extent during the latter part of this month and during the month of December.

Arthur W. Rhinow Discusses Situation

In discussing plans to alleviate this shortage of machines that is so general and not confined to only one or two manufacturers, Arthur W. Rhinow, of the Girard Phonograph Co., said that their only worry at the present time was occasioned by the shortage of Edison phonographs to fill the orders from their dealers that are being received day by day in continually increasing numbers. In its efforts to effect an improvement in this situation the Girard Phonograph Co. has inaugurated a special auto trucking service to bring the New Edison machines directly to this city from the Edison Laboratories at Orange, N. J.

"We have always had the Edison Re-creation records sent by trucks to our local offices from the factory at Orange, N. J., but only a few days ago we contracted for this new service whereby we will have the Edison machines sent to this city by the same means in order to avoid the freight embargoes that are in force in many parts of the country," said Mr. Rhinow, in telling of these unique caravans of talking machines that will help to relieve the prevailing shortage.

"On account of the numerous requests that we have received from our dealers, who ask that Edison tone-tests be held in their respective localities," Mr. Rhinow continued, "we have been obliged to engage another group of artists to take up this work, so that now, for the first time, we will have two troupes of artists on the road for this purpose. One includes Helen Davis, soprano, and Victor Young, pianist, while the second is made up of Marie Morrissey, soprano, Jacques Glockner, 'cellist, and Walter Chapman, pianist. Their season has been extremely successful so far and the dealers in the localities in which the tone-tests have been held up to the present all declare that they aroused unusual interest in the New Edison machines and records, with the result that their sales have been nearly doubled as a direct result of these tests."

Both Mr. Rhinow and P. R. Hawley visited the Edison factories at Orange on several occasions recently for the sole purpose of trying to secure sufficient machines to fill the demands of their dealers, especially in the new console models which have become very popular.

Victor Dealers' Association Meets

On October 12 the Victor Dealers' Association of Philadelphia held its first meeting of the present season after having remained inactive during the Summer months. An unusually large number of Victor dealers turned out for the occasion. One of the features of the meeting, held in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, and which was presided over by G. W. Hoover, the president of the organization, was the address by Mr. Lange, of the A. W. Shaw Co., of Chicago, on the subject of "Intensive Selling." Following this address the dealers mapped out the Winter campaign to be followed by the organization. According to Mr. Hoover, who is the head of the G. W. Hoover Co., 1031 Chestnut street, he is arranging for a series of talks to be given at each meeting of the Association by men prominent in the talking machine industry. The next meeting will be held on November 9.

Discusses Brunswick Activities

A serious shortage in Brunswick machines is reported by O. F. Jester, the genial manager of the local Brunswick headquarters. This scarcity, Mr. Jester asserts, is due in part to the prevailing freight embargoes in many parts of the country and also to the heavy demand that is being made by both the dealers and the public for the New York model of the Brunswick machines, which sells at $150 and has only appeared on the market very recently.

Among the many new dealers who have taken on the Brunswick are the Lipkin Furniture Co.,

Two months ago we advised the need for preparation for an increasing demand for Victrolas. This demand has arrived and will continue to increase, fulfilling our prediction that the big problem later on would be to secure enough goods.

The Holiday demand is almost upon us—If you have not done so, order Victrolas now. It may be too late but we pledge ourselves to give the best possible service to all our dealers, recognizing of course the responsibility we have to those who co-operated with us by placing orders early.

of Bethlehem, Pa., and the Reifsnnyder Music House, of Lebanon and Reading. Recent visitors seen by Mr. Jester were J. I. Monroe, of Williamsport, Pa., and Miss Edna J. Mentzer, in charge of the Brunswick department at Watt & Shand's department store, of Lancaster, Pa. Miss Mentzer informed Mr. Jester of the many favorable comments that were heard concerning an original and very unique window display which was arranged under her direction and which featured both the Brunswick machines and the Halloween festivities.

T. F. Mentz, of the Commercial Investment Trust Co., of New York, whose firm finances many of the Brunswick dealers, arrived in Philadelphia a few days ago for the purpose of making a survey of conditions in the talking machine trade of the Quaker City territory. He will be here for several weeks.

Mr. Jester is well pleased with the success that has followed the Brunswick billboard advertising campaign which he launched here recently and which has attracted widespread attention and commendation. He also reports that eight freight carloads of Brunswick machines are now on their way to Philadelphia and it is hoped that if they are successful in avoiding the freight embargoes this big shipment should temporarily help to satisfy the demands of local dealers for Brunswick machines.

Tie Up With Van and Schenck

Van and Schenck, exclusive Columbia record

artists, headed the bill at Keith's Theatre the week of October 23 and they were the big hit on the bill. A large cut-out of this "Pennant-winning Battery of Songland" was placed in the lobby of the theatre announcing that Van and Schenck were exclusive Columbia artists. Columbia dealers tied up with this popular duo's appearance and the sales of Van and Schenck records were greatly stimulated.

Junior Sales Representatives Meet

Columbia junior sales representatives from Philadelphia, Boston and Baltimore attended a sales conference held at the Philadelphia branch of the Columbia Co. Robert Porter, field manager of the Columbia Co., instructed the junior salesmen on the finer points of selling.

George Ross, a progressive Columbia dealer, has opened his new store at 4666 Frankford avenue. Mr. Ross' personality has won him the title of "The Smiling Columbia Man" in Frankford. A deserved compliment.

W. A. Wilson, manager of the educational department of the Columbia Co., was a recent visitor to the local branch.

Talker Men as Masqueraders

While his many friends would scarcely be likely to think of Mr. Jester, of the Brunswick Co., as a pirate, nevertheless, he admits that he is no amateur Captain Kidd when it comes to masquerade dances. In his high hip boots and armed with a wide variety of cutlery of the more deadly type, Mr. Jester was one of a number of talking machine and piano trade men who attended a masquerade dance that was given on Halloween at Estey Hall, Seventeenth and Walnut streets, by Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Quimby, who conduct the piano and phonograph departments of the Estey Piano Co. Among the other guests at this entertainment were Mr. McCormick, of Louis Buehn Co., and Mr. Wise, of H. A. Weymann & Son.

the Penn Phonograph Co., who declares that their October sales were far ahead of those made during the same month of last year and that in his estimation the prospects for business during the coming months are exceptionally bright. Mr. Barnhill recently has been presented with some decorations for his new offices in the Penn Building on Arch street. Included among these new ornaments for his desk is a large and beautiful basket of American Beauty roses that have been made from feathers by Monroe Johnson, the progressive Victor dealer whose store is located at 5441 Germantown avenue. Hundreds of these unique imitation flowers, made by Mr. Johnson, are being purchased by local talking machine dealers for the purpose of providing an unusual and attractive decoration for their window displays.

Among the recent visitors seen by Mr. Barnhill was H. A. Gupty, of Sherman, Clay & Co., of Seattle, Wash., who was making his first visit to the East. Mr. Barnhill escorted Mr. Gupty to many points of historical interest throughout the city and also took his guest to the top of City Hall's tower in order to secure an unequalled bird's-eye view of the Quaker City.

Henry F. Miller, secretary and treasurer of the Penn Phonograph Co., has been at Atlantic City for the past two months while he is recuperating from a severe attack of rheumatism.

Vocalions for Broadcasting

One of the latest and most attractive Vocalion models has just been furnished by H. O. Rogers, head of the Lincoln Business Bureau, local representatives for the Vocalion Co., to Durham & Co., the dealers and manufacturers of radio supplies, for use in the new Durham radio broadcasting studio, which is located in the store at 1936 Market street. This will constitute an excellent advertisement for the Vocalion, Mr. Rogers points out, as the broadcaster at the Durham radio station will announce after the rendition of each record on the Vocalion both the name of the composition and also the fact that the Vocalion records and machine were provided through the courtesy of Mr. Rogers and the Lincoln Business Bureau. As this radio station has often been heard in Denver and other far Western cities, this announcement will be heard by thousands of people in all sections of the United States.

A big sale of records is being held by Gimbel's under the direction of Robert McCarthy, the head of the piano and talking machine departments, at this store and more than 1,000,000 records were on hand during the sale. Mr. McCarthy reports that all records for the sale of phonograph records at Gimbel's were broken.

New Department Wins Compliments

Many favorable comments have been heard concerning the up-to-date Victor department which was opened recently under the direction of Frances Eastburn, at Stern & Co.'s new store at 712 Market street.

Reports Increased Business

The United Music Stores, wholesaler and jobber of talking machine records, accessories, music rolls, sheet music, etc., is receiving its share of the increased business of the season. O. Kearns, general manager of the company, is an indefatigable worker and has already instituted a Fall and holiday campaign which is showing appreciable results. For the holiday season this company is featuring for the dealer talking machine records and music rolls of the Christmas theme with the suggestion that the dealer in turn feature these as "Christmas Presents That Are Different." The line includes Christmas greeting records and also music rolls on the Christmas subject. The records are attractively boxed for the season.

Louis Buehn's Welfare Campaign Work

In the Welfare Campaign, which has engrossed the attention of every Philadelphian, Louis Buehn, president of the Louis Buehn Co., Victor wholesaler, has been appointed captain of a team of ten men in raising funds for this worthy and charitable work. It is planned to raise $3,000,000, which will be distributed among 124 hospitals and charitable institutions throughout the Quaker City. Mr. Buehn's team consists of ten men well known throughout Victor circles. They are as follows: F. B. Reinicke, Harry Peirce, Frank Ransley and Thomas Hower, of the Louis Buehn Co.; Ed Hipple, Lin Brown and Messrs. Krygier and Mayberry, of the Penn Phonograph Co., and George A. Tatum and Carl Sandman, of the Talking Machine Co., all Victor distributors.

C. E. Sheppard, of the Buehn traveling staff, who is now covering the territory formerly covered by William H. Nolan, has entered the holy bonds of matrimony and recently returned from a week's honeymoon in New England.

ISSUES HANDSOME CATALOG

Everybody's T. M. Co. Issues Comprehensive Catalog of Its Products—Completeness of Book Gives It Practical Value

PHILADELPHIA, PA., November 9.—The Everybody's Talking Machine Co., of this city, has just issued its 1923 catalog of repair materials for talking machines and accessories. Excellently printed on glossy stock and bound within an attractive cover, this catalog ranks among the most distinctive pieces of literature issued to the trade. It is said to be the most complete listing of talking machine repair material ever compiled. The front page carries the well-known "Honest Quaker" trade-mark of the company with the quotation: "He Profits Most Who Serves Best." The slogan, "Worthy merchandise at a fair price—nothing inferior at any price," is presented. The half-tone illustrations are profuse and show a complete line.

In the price list is shown practically every conceivable part used in the building of the talking machine. In addition to the smaller parts there are listed tone arms, "Honest Quaker" main springs, Umantone needles, the "Repairman's Friend" (a combination of tools), graphite, motors, "Quaker Ideal" attachments to play all lateral-cut records on Edison machines, Ideal sound boxes, "Quakercut" turntable felt, "Quaker Mica" diaphragm chart, Wall-Kane needles, sapphire balls for Pathé, sapphire points for Edison, diamond points and hardware. This complete catalog will undoubtedly serve as a prized reference book for the trade during the coming year.

The Everybody's Talking Machine Co. has built up an excellent reputation in this field and its steadily increasing business reflects the satisfaction that its service and products are giving.

IN PITTSBURGH

Delays in Getting Stock Only Hindrance in Complete Development of Business Possibilities—Review of the Month's Trade

PITTSBURGH, PA., November 10.—With a marked revival in business, the one outstanding hindrance to a full and complete optimistic tone in the talking machine circles of Pittsburgh is the fact that it is difficult for the dealers to get the desired merchandise on time. Many of the prominent talking machine dealers of the Steel City have been handicapped by the tardiness in which talking machines, records and other accessories to the trade have been coming in, due largely to the congestion of freight on the railroads. One prominent dealer stated that it took twenty-two days for a shipment of talking machines to reach Pittsburgh from New York. And the seriousness of the situation is further intensified by the frank statement of some of the railroad officials that, with the advent of cold weather, the efficiency of the railroads as far as the handling and transportation of freight is concerned will be cut from 35 to 45 per cent.
