The dealers, and there are a few here, who took advantage of the situation some time back and hearkened to the advice of their jobbers, have ample supplies of talking machines on hand, while others, who hesitated and halted, are now facing what appears to be a very brisk season with the stern reality of having a decided shortage of desirable lines of talking machines. From every angle the outlook for a brisk season from now on for the dealers in talking machines and records is most bright. The industrial situation has clarified to a remarkable degree and with busy mills, mines and factories there will soon be placed in circulation hundreds of thousands of dollars, some of which ultimately will find its way into the coffers of the talking machine merchants. The fact that there is a shortage of skilled and unskilled labor in the Pittsburgh district totaling, according to the State Industrial Board, some 25,000 men, indicates at what high pressure local industry is now operating.

Trade Prospects Reviewed

As to the stability of the talking machine trade here, it was emphasized by John Henk, the well-known proprietor of the Columbia Music Co., Columbia and Edison dealers, who said: "There will always be a field for the live and energetic talking machine dealer. With new houses being built in practically every section of Pittsburgh and the suburban localities on all sides being added to with substantial apartment houses and dwellings, leads me to the inescapable conclusion that the motto, 'A talking machine in every home,' is one that the present-day talking machine dealer will take to heart and exploit to his utmost skill and perseverance. I feel that there is bound to be a very brisk business in talking machines in this city and vicinity this month and all of December, especially the period just before the holidays. The augmented activity in the iron and steel mills, coal mines and other industrial enterprises of Western Pennsylvania insure its prevalence with some certainty. The Columbia Music Co. is well equipped with hearing and demonstration rooms on both the first floor and the balcony. The volume of sales of foreign records, such as German, Polish, Slavish, Italian, Greek, French and other nationalities is quite large. A special department is set aside for this line of merchandising. C. B. Hewitt, well known in the local trade, is floor manager.

Looks for a Shortage

In reviewing the situation as far as the C. C. Mellor Co. is concerned, Thomas T. Evans, the manager of the wholesale Victor department, said: "From all indications there is bound to be a shortage of certain styles and types of Victor talking machines. We are doing all that is humanly possible to take care of the requirements of our customers. Hesitancy on the part of many dealers to place orders in sufficient quality to care for their needs has made it rather difficult at this late date to get for every dealer just what Victor machines he desires. On the whole, it appears to me that the season we are now entering will be a very big one from the standpoint of a Victor jobber."

New Edison Dealers Appointed

The Buehn Phonograph Co., Edison jobbers, report the following new Edison retail dealers as established during the past month: Decosta Bros., Jeannette, Pa.; L. C. Milheim, Butler, Pa.; C. Luther Lowe & Son, Punxsutawney, Pa.; Steel & Harris, Johnstown, Pa.; the Millman Co., Zelienople, Pa., and the Brown Music

Co., Ford City, Pa. A. A. Buehn, treasurer of the company, said: "The outlook for business in the Edison line is excellent. There are unmistakable signs of a revival in business that augurs well for the Edison dealers and we believe that the holiday season will be a highly satisfactory one." Mr. Buehn stated that a series of tone tests would be held in the Pittsburgh zone starting November 20, with the Fleming Sisters Trio and Joseph Phillips as the stars.

Four Successful Stores

The S. Hamilton Co. featured at their four stores the Diamond Juvenile Console, the talking machine for children. The talking machine department, Victor exclusively, is under the direction of T. E. Shortell. He stated to The World representative that there was every indication of a very brisk sale of Victor goods this Fall, basing it on the revival of activity in the various industries that help to make Pittsburgh famous. The main store of the S. Hamilton Co. is located at 815-817 Liberty avenue. The handsome East Liberty store at 6006-08 Penn avenue is under the supervision of H. R. MacHendry. The Bellevue store at 467 Lincoln avenue is directed by Miss M. Maeder, while Miss Hazel McLean is in charge of the Wilkesburg store at 902 Wood street. All handle the Victor line exclusively.

New Joseph Horne Co. Store

A. R. Meyer, manager of the talking machine department of the Joseph Horne Co., is now located on the fourth floor of the new building with his talking machines, records and sales staff. How long he will remain there is a question, owing to the shifting and changes being made as the construction work draws to an end. However, when the new Joseph Horne Co. building is completed the talking machine department will be one of the beauty spots of the new establishment and Mr. Meyer and his staff are eager to take possession of it, if at all possible, before the holiday season rush starts.

Brief But Interesting

J. C. Roush, president of the Standard Talking Machine Co., Victor jobbers, was a visitor to New York and the Victor plant at Camden, N. J., during the past month.

S. H. Nichols, manager of the Pittsburgh branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co., is quite elated over the outlook for business this month and December and stated that all signs pointed to a huge volume of Columbia goods being sold by the retail dealers in and about Pittsburgh. He also stated that the new process Columbia records would have a very large sale.

The J. M. Hoffmann Co., Brunswick phonograph dealers, are advertising the Brunswick Console styles very extensively. Edward Hoffmann stated that there was a good demand for the Brunswick line.

Schiff Bros., proprietors of the Fifth Avenue Music Shop, 1304 Fifth avenue, Columbia dealers, report a very excellent volume of sales during October. Their advance sales of the new process Columbia records was larger than anticipated.

The Rosenbaum Co. utilized considerable newspaper space the past week calling the attention of the public to the line of Sonora phonographs they were selling. C. R. Parsons, the manager of the talking machine department, stated that he anticipates a highly satisfactory volume of sales for November. Mr. Parsons also stated that the sales of Victrolas and Victor records were of an exceedingly satisfactory volume.

The Lechner & Schoenberger Co., Victor, Edison and Columbia dealers, in their daily newspaper publicity are carrying this slogan: "Place Your Christmas Order Now."

The best sellers the past month in records were as follows: Columbia records—"Tomorrow," "Homesick," "Oh, Is She Dumb?"; Victor records—"Tricks," "Are You Playing Fair," "Dixie Highway"; Vocalion records—"Georgette," "Three o'Clock in the Morning," "Hot Lips"; Brunswick records—"Hot Lips," "Dancing Fool," "Blue," and Edison records—"Hot Lips," "Georgette," "Dancing Fool."

VALUE OF SHEET MUSIC DEPARTMENT IN TALKER STORES

Campaign of the Music Publishers' Protective Association to Induce Talking Machine Retailers to Install Sheet Music Departments Proving Most Successful—Interest Aroused

The campaign of the Music Publishers' Protective Association arranged for the purpose of inducing talking machine retailers to open up sheet music departments, or at least stock the current record successes in sheet music form, has brought hundreds of responses to the offices of the Association.

Numerous talking machine stores, which have operated sheet music departments successfully, have also written to the Association for the purpose of receiving the co-operation of that body and its members on furthering the activities of their music departments. The Association feels that the returns on the initial announcement have been most gratifying. Interest has been aroused, which demonstrates that many talking machine retailers are anxious to co-operate with the publishers and at least give the proposition a trial.

The Association has placed before the talking machine retailer the many advantages which accrue to the establishments stocking sheet music, particularly of a popular variety. While it is true that sales of sheet music at retail allow a good margin of profit and justify the handling of such merchandise, the real big advantage, according to those actively interested in the campaign, is the fact that it proves a strong attraction, drawing customers to the windows and into the store and not only creating sales for the sheet music itself, but adding to the volume of sales of the strictly talking machine line.

It has been pointed out that many talking machine stores are in the habit of stocking goods other than that of musical variety. Not a few stores handle kodaks and some dealers have departments devoted to the sale of sporting goods. It is the contention of those who are interested in the present campaign that any dealer who feels the need of increasing his sales by the stocking of merchandise other than talking machines and records, and their accessories, should give thought to the stocking of sheet music, inasmuch as it is closely related to their industry and, naturally, adds to the value of the store from a musical standpoint. Any dealer who is desirous of adding to his stock sales and volume of business should give thought to making his establishment headquarters for music of all kinds. Certainly sheet music and musical merchandise is a better adjunct for the talking machine dealer than merchandise that has no relation to music.

Of course talking machine dealers who do a large business in the sale of talking machines and records may look upon the stocking of sheet music as "small potatoes." It is true that while the profit on each sale of sheet music is substantial, naturally it does not compare with the sales of talking machines which often run into hundreds of dollars.

The really big thing to consider is that sheet music is an important item for it is sheet music that makes possible the large sale of popular records. To a great extent the vogue of the popular song makes possible the sale of musical merchandise of all kinds, including talking machines, and it has been found that the purchasers of records, more often than not, desire sheet music. Particularly is this true of the sale of dance records. Vocal records, of course, answer the purpose of giving the record buyer the lyrics of the song, but with a popular dance tune there comes a desire to also have the words of the popular number which is considered the success of the moment.

Aside from the profits from the sale of sheet music there is behind the stocking of such goods the idea of serving the public and serving them with a musical product. It might also be borne in mind that while the sales might not be as heavy as the average talking machine dealer experiences with his other goods there need be little thought or attention given to the sheet music department. Where self-service display racks are used the selections are made by the customers with little or no attention on the part of the salesman. It is not necessary to carry a large stock of goods, probably fifty current titles will answer the average dealer's needs.

Such goods can also be reordered overnight from music jobbers in territory close to the dealer's store. It is not necessary, and the Music Publishers' Protective Association is not encouraging the dealer, to deal direct with the publisher. It is naturally far better for the dealer contemplating the sale of sheet music to get all his titles from one source. This obviates the necessity of dealing in a very small way with twenty or thirty publishers.

Another thought that should be given consideration is the drawing power of sheet music. Its value in this direction was never better demonstrated than the experiences of the various syndicate stores. Such organization as the S. H. Kress stores and S. S. Kresge stores have, in the past, found the sale of sheet music not only to be quite profitable, but also a means of creating sales in other lines. To show the power of a sheet music department the arrangement of the department in such syndicate stores, as noted above, is worthy of note. The sheet music department is either placed in the basement, on a rear balcony, or in the back of the store. The purpose of this is that the playing of the piano in an out-of-the-way portion of the store lures the shopper to sections of the establishment that would otherwise be overlooked. Naturally, for instance, placing the sheet music department in the basement, with a piano demonstrating current selections, will draw customers to that portion of the store which, under more ordinary circumstances, they might avoid.

The Music Publishers' Protective Association has not suggested that the talking machine store place sheet music in the out-of-the-way sections of his establishment. Most of the retail talking machine stores are not large enough to need to draw customers to various sections of the wareroom. As far as the talking machine stores are concerned, those who have made a success of such departments have found that the placing of the sheet music racks near the forward part of the store, or at the wrapping counter, gets the best results. The idea of placing sheet music racks near the counter where the sales for records and machines are closed has a two-fold purpose. The sheet music is not brought to the customer's attention until after the sales of machines and records are made, and, therefore, it in no way interferes with the sales of records. While the customer is awaiting his or her purchase the multi-colored title pages of the sheet music attract attention and more often than not results in the sale of one or more copies of sheet music, some titles of which have had a particular appeal.

According to the music publishers a representative stock of sheet music can be installed in a talking machine store for approximately $50. This is a small investment and no doubt many dealers will give the proposition a trial.

Sales Volume Grows Steadily—Demand Centers Around Better Class of Instruments—Review of Dealer' Activities—The News

ST. LOUIS, Mo., November 6.—All's well with the St. Louis talking machine world. Meaning that business grows apace, as it should in the ides of November. People are buying talking machines better than they have bought since along about this time last year, and all the signs are that they are going to keep at it, and increasingly, until the eve of Christmas. And they are buying the better class of machines, consoles and the large sizes of conventional models. Small models are the only ones that are hard to sell. Records have held up well all along and they are doing even better now. Not in St. Louis alone, but throughout the Eighth Federal Reserve District is improvement marked, according to William McC. Martin, Federal Reserve agent.

Announcement by the Columbia Graphophone Co. of the New Process records has created marked interest and increased orders at the local Columbia branch.

There was another big crowd at the appearance of the Gene Rodemich orchestra in November Brunswick releases at the Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney auditorium.

Victor dealers of St. Louis had a get-together dinner on the night of November 2 at the Missouri Athletic Association, at which fraternalism and optimism reigned.

Brunswick dealers are complaining of a scarcity of the York $150 models, for which the demand exceeds the supply.

Manager F. S. Horning, of the Stix, Baer & Fuller talking machine department, has a new radio department, adjoining the talking machine department, in which several makes of receiving sets and a complete line of accessories are offered. The radio branch of the business is rapidly developing.

Manager J. F. Ditzell, of the Famous & Barr Co. talking machine department, conducted, in the latter part of October, a sale of phonographs at which 2,000 instruments were offered at attractive prices and a large business done.

H. B. Levy, wholesale manager of the Aeolian Co.'s Vocalion department, Chicago, was here recently.

The Eight Victor Artists are booked for November 15 at the Orpheum, under the auspices of the Tri-State Victor Dealers' Association, and the advance sale indicates a packed house.

The Club Royal Orchestra, which appeared here last month, was brought to the city by Manager J. F. Ditzell, of the Famous & Barr talking machine department. He has arranged also for the appearance on November 11 at the New Grand Central of the Benson Victor Record Orchestra from Chicago.

President Brightson, of the Sonora Phonograph Corp., passed through St. Louis recently on a return trip from the West.

Arthur A. Trostler, of the Schmelzer Co., Kansas City, and Fred B. Jenkins, manager of the wholesale Victor department of J. W. Jenkins' Sons Music Co., Kansas City, passed through St. Louis on their way back home from a visit to the Victor factory.

H. A. Keach, Hopkinsville, Ky.; T. J. Price, Belleville, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. William Vetter, Cape Girardeau, Mo., Edison dealers, were recent visitors to the Silverstone Music Co.

Sybil Sanderson Fagan, whistler, and George Wilton Ballard, tenor, will give an Edison tone test November 18, at the Pershing Theatre.

O. A. Reynolds, traveling representative of the Silverstone Music Co., has recently opened ten new Edison accounts in his territory. This company is closing out its radio stock, having decided to concentrate on talking machines.

The new talking machine department of the Trorlicht-Dunker Carpet Co. is to be equipped with sixteen Unico demonstration booths of the most modern type.

George Marsh, in charge of the Brunswick Shop operated by Vogelsanger Hardware Co., Cape Girardeau, Mo., was a visitor to the Brunswick office recently.

H. H. Sheldon, who was connected with the St. Louis Brunswick organization for over two years, has been transferred to the Baltimore office. J. W. Helbling, of the Baltimore office, succeeds Mr. Sheldon at St. Louis and now travels southern Illinois and Missouri. Another new Brunswick traveling representative is W. F. Nipper, who will travel northern Mississippi, Tennessee, Kentucky and Arkansas.

The Lehman Music House, of East St. Louis, has been making very extensive improvements in its store; in fact, the rearrangements make it a completely new place of business. The Victrola department has been placed in a more accessible part of the store and equipped throughout with Unico booths, record racks and counters. This department now has a depth of 120 feet, with six hearing rooms and five machine demonstration rooms, each of which is 9 by 12. These rooms have solid walls, felt deadened, to make them absolutely sound-proof. Mr. Lehman plans an elaborate opening of an entire week's duration, with everything, from a children's parade, with ten whistlers, in which the marchers will "Toot for Lehman," to personal appearance of Victor artists.

Plans are practically complete for the Victor record salesmanship classes to be held by F. A. Delano in St. Louis on November 13, 14, 15 and 16. The enrollment has been heavy considering the time of year.

The new York Brunswick console model, recently announced as added to the Brunswick console line, met with instantaneous and tremendous success and appears to be the sensation of the year from a standpoint of popular approval.

Fred Wymore, of Wymore Bros., Fulton, Mo., was a visitor to the St. Louis office of the Brunswick Co. recently. Other recent visitors were Gus Grob, of Grob Bros., Columbia, Ill., and Mr. McMackin, of C. L. McMackin & Son, Salem, Ill.

Among the recent visitors to the St. Louis branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co. were the following: H. A. Hampton, Hampton, Lane Drug Co., Christopher, Ill.; C. M. Danner, Winchester, Ill.; W. E. Kidson, Louisiana, Mo.; E. C. Milliken, Rolens & Milliken, Murphysboro, Ill.; I. E. Parkhurst, Plytheville, Ark., and Mr. Boverie, Boverie Store Co., St. Genevieve, Mo.

VICTROLAS FOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS

The public schools of Fulton, Mo., have been supplied recently by Baker & Ashurst, of that place, with two Victrolas and a working list of Victor records. Miss Airy, of the service department of the Koerber-Brenner Co., spent two days in the schools, giving some practical demonstrations of the use of the records in educational work. Miss Vance, music supervisor, plans extensive music appreciation work for the year.

NEW VOCALION DEALERS IN ST. PAUL

ST. PAUL, MINN., November 7.—The appointment of twenty-five new dealers who will feature Vocalion records has been announced by the Stone Piano Co., Vocalion distributor for the Twin Cities. Many of the leading dealers, including the Billman Furniture Co., Dayton's and Donaldson's, have added these records. An intensive sales drive on machines and records has been started and results are already apparent in greatly improved business.

BROOKLYN DEALERS ENJOY GROWING BUSINESS

Optimism of Merchants Justified by Better Trade—High-priced Instruments Lead the Demand—Theodore Jospe Opens Remodeled Store—C. W. Keith on Trip—Verbach Bros. Open Fine Establishment—Miller's Shop Adds Sonora Line—Recent Store Changes

Business for the past month in the talking machine field in this section has been gratifying as regards sales of both machines and records. Dealers in all parts of Brooklyn and Long Island have been able to show an increase over previous months and in most cases this increase has been far greater in total sales than for the same month last year—a sign that talking machine business is well on its way to normal. An interesting fact in connection with the growth of business has been the orders for high-priced models which dealers have been receiving from all classes of customers, rather than for the more conservatively priced types of upright models. This, in itself, constitutes an attitude on the part of the buying public which bespeaks a holiday trade that will in all probability be greater than any previous year. The popular console type of machine has been in great demand and dealers state that from now until the holiday season is over it seems to be a question of getting enough of these popular designs to meet requirements. Wholesalers of talking machines catering to this territory have made efforts to impress on the dealer the necessity of ordering these machines early and they have been able to make deliveries to dealers of many types ordered in the past two months. However, some dealers have disregarded these suggestions and in consequence even now they are finding themselves short of particular models which they failed to order in time. Wholesalers are making every effort to give the dealers a representative amount of machines, so that no one will suffer any great loss in sales by not having ample stock.

At the present time there is a lot of adverse criticism over the fact that some talking machine houses in Brooklyn are finding it necessary to announce in the daily papers a sale of popular-make talking machines at a greatly reduced price from list. All dealers whom this sale affects are bitter in their criticism of the action of these houses. When every dealer is getting a harvest of sales through the normal well-established methods it seems entirely unnecessary for any concern to resort to cut-price methods of getting business. The fallacy of the policy of these dealers is evident through the growth of competitive price-cutting sales which compels them to resort to further price reductions in order to get their share of the business. The result in some instances has been price reductions of such a drastic nature that there has been no margin of profit. Many of the merchants are making strenuous efforts to stop this kind of business and it is earnestly hoped that these dealers will see the injustice to the talking machine business in general by resorting to these tactics.

From all indications this Winter will find business in this section far beyond expectations, and when sales are totaled up for the fiscal year it is expected they will show an appreciable increase.

Ordering of High-priced Records Significant

The American Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler, is having its hands full this month taking care of its many dealers throughout the territory as regards the timely delivery of machines and records. The demand for machines has been very great, stated R. H. Morris, general manager of the company, but more gratifying has been the large number of records which dealers are stocking, in anticipation of the holiday trade. These records have been ordered in the Red Seal class, which indicates that dealers are going to concentrate on the sale of this class of record, which, without doubt, is commendable on their part and will materially help in increasing their total sales. Charles Offerman, who covers Long Island for this company, is spending the greater part of his time with the dealers, helping them prepare their organizations and stores for the holiday trade, and he reports that never has he seen a more optimistic attitude on their part, which certainly indicates a prosperous season. In a chat with The World Mr. Offerman proudly related the fact that his son, William, who is a freshman at Columbia University, is a regular member of the freshman football team and is regarded by the coaches as a first-class player. The boy is about eighteen years of age, weighs 230 pounds and no doubt is desirable material for football. He probably will be heard from later as a member of the varsity team.

Formal Opening of Jospe Store

Theodore Jospe, who last month purchased the talking machine stock and fixtures of Groebl Bros. at Oyster Bay, has completed the renovation of the store and formally opened it this month with a concert, which he gave in the auditorium located on the second floor of the building. Mr. Jospe and his family are well known in Brooklyn as musicians of merit and the program included selections by several members of the family. The concert in the evening was attended by a large number of people and served to introduce this new store and its Victor talking machines and records to the people of Oyster Bay in an admirable manner. "The success of this concert was so great," stated Mr. Jospe, "that we are planning to conduct several more during the Winter at stated times, which we believe will materially increase our sales in both machines and records

Making Every Effort to Care for Dealers

The offices of the Long Island Phonograph Co., Sonora wholesaler, are teeming with activity this month, as Sonora dealers all over the territory are flooding them with larger orders for machines than ever before. This demand is for every model in the Sonora catalog and especially for the console types which the Sonora Co. placed on the market a short time ago. R. H. Keith, general manager of the company, remarked that it looks like one of the busiest and most prosperous seasons talking machine dealers have yet enjoyed, and added: "We are prepared to give our dealers every assistance possible and every effort is being made to supply dealers with enough machines to meet the demand. From all indications it seems that we will be unable to furnish everybody with as many machines as they would like, but they can be assured of delivery of as many as we can possibly get our hands on. New shipments are being sent us from the factory every week and we are making an effort to expedite the arrival of these shipments so that we can place them in the dealers' hands as soon as possible."

C. W. Keith on Important Trip

C. W. Keith, president and treasurer of the company, who has recently joined the company in an active way, spent considerable time this month in the Pittsburgh territory conferring with dealers and the Sonora wholesale representative there. Mr. Keith intends to study carefully conditions in this territory and make plans accordingly to take care of everybody as well as possible. Before his return home Mr. Keith plans to extend his trip to the factory of the Sonora Co., at Saginaw, Mich., where he will spend considerable time looking over the plant and conferring with officials there on delivery of machines. He will be met at the factory by J. J. Schratweiser, sales manager of the company, who has recently taken over transportation activities and who is going to the factory to meet Mr. Keith and confer with Sonora officials there on ways and means for quick delivery of their shipments. Mr. Schratweiser plans to make several stops in upper New York State en route to Michigan in an effort to locate car shipments from the factory which had been lost track of.

Vorbach Bros. Open New Store

The latest addition to the talking machine retail dealer field in Brooklyn is the shop recently opened by Vorbach Bros., at 10927 Jamaica avenue, which is located on a desirable corner in this section and fitted up with new fixtures and a very attractive display window. The store is featuring the Sonora phonographs and Vocalion records. To introduce this store to the people of this vicinity a beautiful window display of Sonora models was made which attracted a large number of people into the store. J. J. Schratweiser, of the Long Island Phonograph Co., spent considerable time in arranging this new store and helped materially in giving it a proper start. Both of the Vorbach brothers are live-wire merchandisers and no doubt will make a success of this new venture.

Fred Becht's Attractive Establishment

Fred Becht, who conducts a Victor retail business at 2587 Atlantic avenue, has just completed the renovation of his store. New fixtures and equipment have been installed and the store presents a most attractive appearance. Mr. Becht enjoys a reputation as a live-wire dealer that has built for him a business of the highest character, and these improvements will materially assist him in giving an additional service to his clientele and increase his prestige and standing with them.

Increases Booth Equipment

Edward C. Wellman, who conducts an exclusive Victor shop in Floral Park, has just completed the addition of several booths and has redecorated the entire store. An attractive show window has been installed where Victrola models can be displayed to advantage. Mr. Wellman started as a Victor dealer in a modest way and in a surprisingly short time he has increased his sales to such an extent that additional room was necessary to take care of it.

Miller Takes on Sonora Line

One of the best accounts yet established by the Long Island Phonograph Co., Sonora wholesaler for this territory, is that of Miller's Music Shop, at 110th street and Liberty avenue, Richmond Hill, which is to carry the complete line of Sonora phonographs exclusively. Mr. Miller recently acquired a very desirable location in this section of Brooklyn. He has fitted his store with every modern equipment and fixtures and has one of the best-equipped shops in this borough. Mr. Miller will carry, in addition to the Sonora phonograph, the complete Vocalion record catalog as well as sheet music and musical instruments. J. J. Schratweiser, sales manager of the Long Island Phonograph Co., was responsible for the addition of this new account and stated that it is expected that this store will become one of the best-known in Brooklyn in a very short time.

New Sonora Representatives

The latest addition to the Sonora dealer list established by the Long Island Phonograph Co. is that of Weber Bros., who conduct a talking machine business at 2202 Eighty-sixth street. A complete line of Sonora models is being featured this month in newspaper advertising and in attractive window displays in their store.

Another new dealer established by this company is B. Hirschlein, who has conducted a retail store at Carlton avenue in Central Islip, L. I., for a long time past. Lee Coupe, representative of the Long Island Phonograph Co. for this territory, is responsible for the acquiring of this desirable account.

J. J. Schratweiser, sales manager of the Long Island Phonograph Co., secured this month an agency for Sonora phonographs in the person of Harris Hermelein, who conducts a store at 1441 Broadway. Mr. Hermelein decided this month to take on the complete line, which he is showing in an attractive window display.

Salesmanship That Sells

Sam Goldman, manager of the Jacobs' Bros. store in Jamaica, is a progressive salesman of the finest type and through his efforts this store is showing a gratifying increase in sales every week. Recently Mr. Goldman sold a high-priced model Victrola through intensive salesmanship that probably would not have materialized for some time to come. After demonstrating the machine to the lady of the house at the store one day she promised to return with her husband, who was at business, some evening later on when they would decide which model they would purchase. However, instead of waiting for that eventful evening to come, Mr. Goldman that same evening placed the model which had interested his lady customer on the store truck and had it sent to this woman's home in ample time to be there on the arrival of the husband. The instrument was demonstrated then and there and the sale consummated before he left, and in consequence one more desirable sale was added to his large total, bearing out the policy that the time to sell a customer is when that particular customer is interested.

Pays to Keep After the Prospect

An important sale recently made by the Freeport Music Shop, of Freeport, was that of a $2,600 Welte-Mignon piano, which was sold in conjunction with a large high-priced Victrola model. The purchaser became a prospect in the early part of the Summer before he left for his vacation, and on his return steps were immediately taken to interest him to the buying point which happily materialized in this important sale this month.

The L. J. Everett Co. department store, which has just opened in Roosevelt square, Jamestown, N. Y., has arranged a prominent place for talking machine records, which department will be one of its leaders.

DETROIT

Unprecedented Business Smashes Sales Records—Good Basis for Optimism—Changes in the Trade

DETROIT, MICH., November 10.—October was the greatest month of the first ten months of 1922, according to the majority of talking machine dealers in Detroit and vicinity. Records established during war-times and immediately following the close of the war, which were never expected to be equaled or even approached, went by the board, were smashed, completely shattered by the volume of business during October, 1922. It was an exceptional month and dealers' faces are wreathed in smiles as they reflect on that fact.

Until last month had rolled around and left everyone gasping over the volume of business it brought with it, October, 1919, had been one of the peak months in the history of the local trade. As a result of the exceptional showing of last month dealers are looking forward to one of the greatest holiday seasons it has ever been their lot to enjoy. November and December, always two big months, are expected to far surpass anything of previous years. Those dealers who had the courage to predict as far back as four months ago that the Fall business would be the best in Detroit's history are now wearing an "I-told-you-so" expression and are busy setting the stage for the holidays.

Substantial Reasons for Optimism

The manager of one of the leading phonograph shops, who did not wish his name used, said: "If the next two months of the year prove to be as good as we expect them to be we will smash our 1919 record to pieces. At the present time the record for the first ten months of 1922 is very close to that for the entire twelve months of 1919." So that's the situation in Detroit. Business is good and is going to be better from now on to the end of the year.

New Jewett Dealers

A. A. Fair, sales manager of the Jewett Radio

& Phonograph Co., made a very extended business trip to Boston and other Eastern cities during the latter part of October. On his return he announced the opening of new accounts in the following cities: New Haven, New Britain and Hartford, Conn.; Newark, N. J.; Boston, Mass.; Worcester, Mass.; Philadelphia, Pa., and Indianapolis, Ind. Mr. Fair said that things were progressing nicely with the Jewett people and that they are making very satisfactory progress. He also reports a shortage on some upright and console models, together with the statement that the new William and Mary console is making a very decided hit with the trade.

The company has started a big advertising campaign in which their No. 10 Jewett console is being featured. On November 1 forty large billboards throughout the city carried Jewett advertising. This form of advertising will be maintained for some time.

Established in New Location

The Brunswick Co. has announced the securing of a new account in Detroit, the Henry S. Doran Co., located at 1416 Washington boulevard. The Doran Co. is an old-established firm in Detroit and was formerly located at 153 Michigan avenue. The company recently held the formal opening of its new location on Washington boulevard. The new store is a most attractive one, and, as the company enjoys an excellent reputation, it should be a big asset to Brunswick-Balke-Collender interests.

Edison Baby Consoles Popular

Peter C. Sweeney, of the Edison Shop, announces the receipt of several of the new Hephelwhite model consoles. These are the baby consoles, which have so long been eagerly awaited by dealers. Mr. Sweeney expects the model to be a very popular one with his trade, as interest in it is running very high. Asked about business conditions, he said that the Edison Shop had been enjoying a wonderful business, of late especially, although the business for the year has been most satisfactory.

Good Edison Record Service

The record department of the Edison Shop has been releasing popular records at the rate of one or two each week, and then including these in the monthly release list. As a result of this superior service the record sales have jumped immensely. Owners of Edisons who are devoted followers of the latest up-to-the-minute dances and songs have been enabled to get some new recent hits each week and thus keep abreast of the market. Owners of other makes drop in and hear the latest records considerably in advance of the release date of their own makes. This idea of having something new for the patron to hear whenever he or she drops in has been very popular. In Detroit Edison rarely fails to have new records first on the market.

New Brunswick Dealers

Brunswick announces the securing of several new accounts out in the State. Among these are the Davis Music House, of Saginaw, and W. K. Cummings, of Lansing, Mich.

Night School for Salesmen

A night school course covering various subjects of interest to persons in selling positions was started recently at the Cass Technical High School. This is in line with the efforts of the Retail Merchants' Bureau to provide better business education for the vast number of retail sales people in Detroit. Among the subjects offered in the night course are Store Organization, Beginning Merchandising, Advanced Merchandising, Advertising, Retail Buying, Principles of Salesmanship, English and Salesmanship for Beginning Salespeople. The Retail Merchants' Bureau is composed of the leading merchants of the city and numbers among its members practically every phonograph or music dealer in Detroit. These latter were especially anxious to see the course installed, as they use salespeople of a very high type, and such a course will do much to develop that type.

A Crosley Radio Receiving Set will solve this problem ~

Mr. Phonograph Dealer

Progressive Phonograph dealers are now waking up to the fact that there is money to be made in the Radio Field. Their reasoning is logical. The phonograph dealer, of all the trades, is the best equipped to handle Radio Products. An extensive knowledge of Radio is not necessary. It is your ability to demonstrate that sells goods. This experience in displaying, demonstrating and merchandising music-reproducing instruments of similar types and values will make the Phonograph dealer a leader in the sale of Radio Apparatus.

Many Radio Enthusiasts have had to forego the pleasures of a Radio Receiving Set because of the high first cost—practically all radio sales in the past have been for cash. By selling Radio Outfits on a time basis, an entire new field will be opened up that has never been touched.

Again, the Phonograph dealer is the logical outlet. You and your accounting and credit systems are equipped to sell on a time basis. The first man to enter the Radio field on the extended payment plan will be the man to reap the harvest of dollars that are sure to come.

Tuned Radio Frequency Amplification has met with universal success wherever it has been used. It simplifies tuning, increases range and eliminates interference. The Crosley Manufacturing Company was the first to bring this feature on the market and has developed it to its highest degree. This is the feature of our two and four tube sets. You can be assured of permanent satisfaction if you sell Crosley Instruments.

The advertisement that appears on this page and others of a similar nature are appearing in all the leading Radio and Electrical publications. Combined with our previous national advertising and the popularity of our instruments, a great demand has been created for Crosley Radio Apparatus and Parts.

CHAS. K. BENNETT BACK IN FOLD

Popular Victor Man Joins Beckwith-O'Neill Organization—Ideally Qualified to Fill Important Post—Veteran of the Trade

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., November 6.—George C. Beckwith, president of the Beckwith-O'Neill Co., of this city, Victor wholesaler, announced his week that Chas. K. Bennett, one of the best-known members of the talking machine industry, would join the company's staff as general manager on December 1. As announced recently in The World E. F. O'Neill has retired from this company, leaving Mr. Beckwith in sole charge.

Victor dealers in this territory will undoubtedly welcome with enthusiasm the news that

Chas. K. Bennett has become associated with the Beckwith-O'Neill Co., for Mr. Bennett's experience in the Victor trade dates back for practically a score of years. He was associated with the Victor Talking Machine Co. for many years, occupying important sales positions, and for over five years was general manager of the Eclipse Musical Co., Cleveland, O., Victor wholesaler, where he won the esteem and friendship of the dealers throughout his territory. He retired from the Victor trade a short while ago, becoming associated with his brother, who operates a dairy products farm at Hudson, N. Y. However, Mr. Bennett has always maintained a love for the Victor trade that could never be supplanted and his association with the Beckwith-O'Neill Co. will enable him to rejoin the industry he loves so well.

TAKES OVER THE CIROLA PORTABLE

Zenith Mfg. Co. Will Manufacture and Market Popular Portable—Extensive Sales Campaign Featuring Cirola and Encore Replayer—Wm. Huguley President of Company

The Zenith Mfg. Co., Newark, N. J., manufacturer of the Encore Record Replayer, has just taken over the name, good-will and other assets of the Cirola Talking Machine Co. and contemplates marketing this portable machine on an extensive scale. The Cirola machine has been on the market for several years and thousands of them are now in use. Under the manufacturing plans arranged by the Zenith Co. the production is to be increased considerably and an advertising campaign arranged for the further exploitation of this product. Several improvements have been made in the equipment and this is to be placed in a high-class quality cabinet.

The Zenith Mfg. Co. also announces a national advertising campaign on the Encore Record Replayer, and it is planned to use a series of ads in the Saturday Evening Post during the next twelve months. The first of these will appear in issues just prior to the Christmas holidays. A plan of dealer co-operation, in conjunction with this national advertising, has also been arranged.

William C. Huguley, an executive of long experience in the manufacture of mechanical devices, heads the Zenith Mfg. Co. The company has purchased its own building and contemplates manufacturing a series of products which will have particular appeal to the talking machine industry.

Mr. Huguley is a mechanical engineer of practical training who began his career by serving an apprenticeship with R. Hoe & Co., printing press manufacturers, as a machinist. He rapidly advanced to the tool-making ranks and worked for a few years with some of the leading concerns in the East. Just prior to the war he started a machine and tool-making business in New York under the name Automat Tool Works, where he designed and built labor-saving devices and automatic machinery. The business was then consolidated with the Specialty Products Co., of Newark, N. J., of which he became vice-president and general manager. During the war this latter firm executed some large contracts for the United States Navy. Later he organized a tool-making shop known as the Zenith Tool Co., of Newark, N. J., with a partner, Henry W. Grewe. This business quickly outgrew its quarters at 23 Marshall street and the new home of the company at 292 Chestnut street, containing 15,000 square feet, is equipped for the manufacture of mechanical devices of all kinds on a large scale.

The French Music & Art Shoppe, Columbus, Neb., has been successful in placing a number of Victrolas in the local schools. The concern is aggressively pushing the Victor line.

WOULD-BE REFORMERS SPREADING ERRONEOUS IDEAS

Propaganda Ostensibly Intended to Raise the Character of American Music Often Fails to Do Any Constructive Good Because of the False Ideas Upon Which It Is Based

Those who have taken upon themselves the burden of purifying American music and purging it of what they term jazz and other forms of degrading music continue to be active in putting forth propaganda that is calculated to reflect upon American music as a whole, although perhaps the reformers are more or less sincere in their attitude from their own viewpoint.

The latest piece of propaganda is found in a dispatch from Atlantic City which reads:

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 13.—Jazz is threatened by a musical counter-revolution, led by Professor Peter W. Dykema of the University of Wisconsin, famous musical authority of the United States, who this week startled the country by his declaration that the majority of Americans are no better than African savages in their use of musical instruments.

Delegates attending the Ninth Recreation Congress under the auspices of the Playground and Recreation Association of America and Community Service today passed a resolution declaring "it is vital that immediate stimulus be given to creation of a song literature embodying the finer ideals of American life." The resolution appealed to the "poets and composers of the United States to devote themselves to creating more worthy songs of the people."

"We are musically undernourished," declared Professor Dykema. "America needs good music as badly as Austria needs good food. What better proof of this fact could one ask than the haste with which the public turns quickly from one bad popular song to another in unconscious search for the songs which will lastingly satisfy their musical hunger? Good popular songs are those which stress some fine and desirable aspect of American life and by both music and words awaken a sincere response in the hearts of the people."

"I do not mean that good songs need necessarily be 'high brow' songs. Let us have lots of songs in lighter vein, songs of humor, sport, friendship, love; songs that express any ideal of American life, not only its loftier moments."

A committee of five was chosen to direct the campaign, including Professor Dykema, C. M. Tremaine, Director of the National Bureau for the Advancement of Music; Sigmund Spaeth, Mrs. Fred W. Ahott, Managing Director of the Philadelphia Music League, and Kenneth S. Clark of the Bureau of Community Music of the Community Service.

The report reproduced is only one of similar character that has appeared in daily papers the past couple of years. Everyone appreciates the desirability of the development and greater appreciation for high-class music, but that is not to say that all the so-called popular music of the day is fit only for the trash basket. As a matter of fact there is no real necessity for any reform movement in American music, for there is little or no jazz music being published at the present time, 95 per cent of all current songs being either melody numbers or popular novelties.

While it is said that there are over 500 orchestra combinations appearing on the vaudeville stage these aggregations are following in the footsteps of Paul Whiteman, Vincent Lopez and Paul Specht, who long ago departed from the rendition of jazz. It is true that they play lively music as well as much of the better class, but there are invariably no jazz numbers on their programs. They, themselves, term their organizations "Symphonic Syncopators" and they are capable of playing, and do play, the very best music with a popular appeal.

Only recently an advance report was given out covering the Fall activities of Paul Whiteman and his orchestra and the various combinations under his direction. It shows that Whiteman alone has eleven bands working in New York, seventeen on the road and forty throughout the country. Vincent Lopez also has a number of orchestras under his direction and Paul Specht not only directs a great number of orchestras in this country, but has booked five or six combinations to appear in European centers during the coming season.

The point is that these, and other orchestra leaders of like calibre, set the pace for the entire country and the orchestras, even in the very smallest centers, try to conform to the standards of these combinations. This is easily done by following the modern orchestra arrangements issued by the popular music publishers and by paying close attention to the leading talking machine records made by Whiteman and others.

Some two years ago there may have been some need for a concerted movement to bring about the elimination of jazz. Now there is little or no foundation for any such movement. It might be well for one of the publishers' organizations to ask these propagandists to be a little more specific. If this is done we think the reformers will look elsewhere for their newspaper publicity.

FEIST SONG THE WINNER

"Why Should I Cry Over You?" Wins First Prize in Songwriter's Contest

Roseland Dancing Academy, the popular New York resort for the younger set, held a songwriter's contest on Thursday evening, October

The Roseland Cup

19, offering as a prize a beautiful silver loving cup suitably inscribed to the winner. The cup was won by Bob Miller and Herbert Steiner, representing Leo Feist, Inc. Each contestant was limited to one song, singing the verse and two choruses. The Feist number which won the cup was "Why Should I Cry Over You?" Other publishers represented in the contest were Irving Berlin, Inc., with the song "Homesick"; Jerome H. Remick & Co., "Indiana"; Stark & Cowan, "Blue"; Jack Snyder, Music Publisher, Inc., "In Maytime I Learned to Love"; M. Witmark & Sons, "Carry Me Back to Carolina"; E. B. Marks Music Co., "Little Red Schoolhouse," and Shapiro, Bernstein & Co., Inc., "Georgette."

While the Feist song "Why Should I Cry Over You?" is undoubtedly one of the best of this season's offerings, the fact that Bob Miller, who rendered the song, was in splendid voice and is an excellent show man must be given some consideration. Herbert Steiner, who accompanied him upon the piano, operated in a manner which brought forth much comment.

NEW JENKINS NUMBER

"Martha," New Fox-trot, Jumps Into Immediate Popularity

The J. W. Jenkins' Sons Music Co. has issued a new fox-trot song called "Martha," which seemingly has met with instant favor. The professional and band and orchestra departments of the company have, through its reception, been induced to inaugurate a special publicity campaign. This is now well under way and will cover every channel of musical activity. Although "Martha" has only been in the hands of the trade a short time the sales have shown much activity and the firm reports a constant increase in the size of repeat orders. "Martha," together with "Lonesome Mama Blues," will be the outstanding features of the Fall catalog.

FEATURING "NOVEMBER ROSE"

Jack Snyder, Music Publisher, Inc., to Concentrate on That Number During Season

The latest Jack Snyder song hit, "November Rose," is proving one of the most popular successes ever offered by this young writer. This song, in connection with "In May Time" (I Learned to Love), will be the feature of the catalog of Jack Snyder, Music Publisher, Inc., during the Fall season.

Al Livsey, business manager of the company, has arranged a special publicity campaign on these two numbers and the plans call for the expansion of the professional activities of the company. Besides the various branch offices and representatives now covering the country for this publishing house, the firm further contemplates the opening of offices in other important cities in the Middle West and on the Pacific Coast.

Many leading vaudeville headline artists are singing "November Rose," and it has been recorded by leading talking machine record and player roll companies. There is little doubt but that it is what can be termed an established success.

The publisher has issued some novel advertising material on this song, including a reproduction of a red rose, which is being distributed by the thousands. On the leaf attached to the stem of the rose is embossed in gold letters the title of the song.

JACK GLOGAU MAKES CHANGE

Jack Glogau, who was formerly connected with Fred Fisher, Inc., having charge of that firm's mechanical reproductions, is now connected with the Harry Von Tilzer Music Co. Mr. Glogau is also the writer of a number of successful songs.

FEATURE FEIST NUMBER

"Why Should I Cry Over You?" Basis of Attractive Window Display

Volkwein Bros., one of the leading retail music establishments of Pittsburgh, Pa., have for many years given particular attention to their window dressings. On several occasions the displays in the Volkwein establishment have not only created comment in the city of Pittsburgh, but have attracted the attention of merchants in other parts of the country.

Herewith is shown the Volkwein Bros. window of "Why Should I Cry Over You?" which was the means of adding considerably to the sales of this popular number during the week in which the showing was made.

Leo Feist, Inc., is the publisher of "Why Should I Cry Over You?" The number is one of the biggest successes as a vocal number on the vaudeville stage. As a fox-trot it has met with favor with both the orchestra leaders and dance enthusiasts and its sale has justified many dealers in giving it special window displays.

SEVERAL POPULAR RELEASES

Shapiro, Bernstein & Co. Catalog Contains a Number of Popular Hits

Among the new songs issued by Shapiro, Bernstein & Co., Inc., are: "Lost, a Wonderful Girl," "True Blue Sam" (The Traveling Man) and "Are You Playing Fair?" The first number is being sung by a large number of vaudeville stars. It has a melody a little better than the average class. "True Blue Sam" is a novelty which was recently introduced by Belle Baker at the Palace Theatre, New York. Other vaudeville performers are including this song in their programs and it is also being heard as a fox-trot.

Another novelty issued by the same company is "Where the Bamboo Babies Grow." This, too, is a popular dance. "Cuddle Me" and the latest song by Mary Earl in waltz time, entitled "Mississippi Ripples," complete the list.

NEW BERT GRANT NUMBER

Waterson, Berlin & Snyder Featuring New Waltz Song by Bert Grant

Waterson, Berlin & Snyder have accepted for publication a new novelty waltz song entitled "Tricky Little Tunes." The number is by Bert Grant, who wrote the music for several revue parts of "Shubert Units," now playing as vaudeville attractions under the titles "Town Talk" and "Jimmy Hussey's Funmakers." The above concern will also publish the "Units" scores.

FEIST TO PUBLISH "JENNIE"

"Jennie," a new novelty fox-trot song, has been accepted for publication by Leo Feist, Inc., which announces its early release. The song was written by Cliff Friend and Con Conrad, who have several successes to their credit.

NEW POST FOR SHEFFIELD

Becomes Manager of Mechanical Reproduction Department of E. B. Marks Music Co.

George Sheffield, formerly manager of the recording department for the Vocalion Division of the Aeolian Co., has been appointed manager of the mechanical reproduction department of the Edward B. Marks Music Co.

Mr. Sheffield is well known in music publishing and recording circles as well as in the concert and vaudeville fields. He is an excellent musician and concert singer and spent many years in the music centers of Europe. He is well equipped for his new post and his experience as a recording expert as well as his familiarity with music trade conditions should stand him in good stead.

The Edward B. Marks Music Co. announces the reorganization of its standard publishing department and greater stress is to be laid upon the needs of the concert star and better class singers generally as well as the teaching profession. This will not in any sense reduce the activities of the popular field. It rather means an expansion of the departments of what is sometimes termed better class music.

Eddie Lewis, prominent in musical and theatrical circles in Chicago, has been appointed manager of the Chicago office of Jack Mills, Inc.

"HOMESICK" WEEK PLANS COMPLETED

Big Campaign to Be Conducted Week of November 18 to 25 on Berlin Hit

Final plans for the week's campaign for the Irving Berlin success, "Homesick," which has been arranged for the week of November 18 to 25, inclusive, have been closed. Much display advertising material is being shipped to the trade for the use of sheet music, talking machine record and player roll dealers. The co-operation of all the mechanical reproducing companies, orchestras, theatres, dance halls and motion picture houses and others who will take part in the campaign has been assured.

The fact that the Berlin organization makes a very wise selection of the number for these national drives assures those who are interested of their success. Those who have taken part in such campaigns as those arranged for "All By Myself" and "My Mammy" hardly need to be induced to co-operate in the forthcoming "Homesick" Week.

NEW FEIST BALLAD FEATURED

Leo Feist, Inc., has just issued a new song entitled "In a Corner of the World All Our Own." The words are by Gus Kahn and the music by Jesse Crawford. This ballad is being featured in Ballaban & Katz's Chicago theatre, the largest motion picture house in the world.

FEATURE WITMARK HIT

"Say It While Dancing" Basis of Attractive Window Display in Los Angeles

In connection with the big fox-trot success, "Say It While Dancing," the publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, are conducting a big publicity campaign among the dance halls of the country with some very remarkable results. "Say It While Dancing" is both a hit and a slogan, and its sales are prodigious. Dealers everywhere are featuring it with striking window displays. Not the least effective among them is the one which was so artistically arranged by Johnston's "Ye Harmony Shoppe" in Los Angeles recently. It held the attention of that hustling city for three solid weeks—an unusual tribute to pay to a popular hit—and resulted in an excellent demand for the number.

HAVING REMARKABLE POPULARITY

"The Parade of the Wooden Soldiers" is being continued in the new production of "Chauve Souris." This was one of the outstanding songs in the past season and its popularity does not seem to diminish. All of the talking machine record and music roll manufacturing organizations have issued it in one or more forms and the trade reports it as having a steady sale. The Edward B. Marks Music Co. is the publisher.

THE SECOND "MUSIC BOX REVUE"

Irving Berlin's Latest Revue a Gorgeously Staged Spectacle Replete With Tuneful Music—Show Praised by Both Press and Public

Sam H. Harris presented Irving Berlin's new Music Box Revue last month at the Music Box, and it fascinated its first audience—the most distinguished seen at a theatre for several months.

The magnificence of the offering may be imagined when it is known that more than $350,000 had been expended on its preparation.

A scene of great beauty and cleverness is "Satan's Palace," which closes the first act. The lighting and mechanical effects in this scene are remarkable. In this scene is introduced the song, "Pack Up Your Sins and Go to the Devil," sung by John Steel.

"The Forest" is a scene of exquisite loveliness and introduces scores of pretty girls, representing birds. "The Little Red Lacquer Cage," sung by the entire company, adds further to the beauty of this scene. They make their entrance from the stump of an old tree. Still another scene which won admiration is "Housetops," which shows a miniature city at night. John Steel here sings, accompanied by the chorus, "Lady of the Evening."

"Crinoline Days" is probably the outstanding song of the whole show. It shows Grace LaRue at her best and the effective setting in which the Crinoline Girls appear is not to be forgotten.

While it is true John Steel sings several songs, his most successful number is "Will She Come From the East?" This, as the title suggests, is a love song showing a girl from Broadway, a girl from the regions of the ice and one from the heart of the West and the inevitable girl from the land of cotton.

"Bring on the Pepper," sung by the McCarthy sisters and the entire company as well as what are known as the Pepper Girls, is not to be overlooked as one of those songs which will be heard frequently during months to come.

THE FORSTER CONSOLIDATION

Forster Music Co. and Forster, Music Publisher, Inc., Consolidated for Greater Efficiency

CHICAGO, ILL., November 9.—The F. J. A. Forster Music Co., doing business since 1903 as jobbers in sheet music, and Forster, Music Publisher, Inc., organized in 1916, publishers of the same, both of Chicago, have consolidated with a capitalization of $250,000, fully paid, and will be conducted at 235 South Wabash avenue. The stock in both concerns is owned by F. J. A. Forster, who will henceforth be in a position to directly supervise the executives of these concerns and so assure even better service.

The combined business per annum has been something over a million and a half and the steady growth has made two establishments rather unwieldy. Additional space to the extent of five thousand square feet being made available, the equipment improved and the personnel placed more comfortably in contact with one another, a very high degree of efficiency will be found possible.

F. J. A. Forster will now have his entire forces where daily association can keep him in touch with them. With these advanced facilities and the increased capital a new era opens for the Forster Co.

FEIST SECURES AMERICAN RIGHTS

Leo Feist, Inc., has secured from Francis, Day & Hunter, London, England, the American publishing rights for the song, "If Winter Comes" (Springtime Will Soon Be Here). This is a composition by Melville Gideon and sung by him in the musical show, "Co-optimists." Inasmuch as there are apparently more than one of a similar title, Francis, Day & Hunter have distinguished their song by adding the above sub-title. This English publication is one of the biggest successes in England at the present time, and realizing that there is a real demand for the number Leo Feist, Inc., has decided to immediately make available copies of the song for the American public.

"IN A LITTLE TOWN NEAR BY" SCORES

One of the latest additions to the famous Black & White Series of M. Witmark & Sons is a song entitled "In a Little Town Near By," by Florence Turner Maley and Amy Ashmore Clark. It was sung last week at the Strand Theatre as the feature prologue and the music theme to the showing of the photoplay "The Bond Boy," in which Richard Barthelmess is starred. The music, seemingly, fitted the picture perfectly. The prologue was staged and sung in the usual artistic manner and scored a big hit with the audience.

MAURIE SHERMAN USES NOVEL SONG-ANNOUNCING DEVICE

Leader of Prominent Orchestra at the Bismarck Hotel, Chicago, Features the Title of Each Number Played by Means of an Attractive Sign—An Excellent Method of Popularizing Songs

During the June convention of the National Association of Sheet Music Dealers much discussion was indulged in pertaining to the advisability of having dance orchestras announce in some form the titles being rendered. The music publishers, too, have long held the opinion that an announcement of a title in conjunction with the rendition of a song or dance selection was quite a valuable asset in the exploitation of any given number. The successful carrying out of such an idea, it has been said, would result invariably in a considerable increase in sales.

All of which makes it doubly appropriate to mention and give credit to the introduction of such a plan by Maurie Sherman, who, with his orchestra, is playing at the Bismarck Hotel, Chicago, Ill. Under Mr. Sherman's arrangement there is in full view of the audience a stand upon which a sign twenty-two inches wide by fifteen inches high is displayed. This is painted in blue and white. The background of the sign proper is blue, and in white letters on the upper half portion of the sign is printed, "Maurie Sherman and His Orchestra Now Featuring." Below this is a space seven inches high by twenty inches wide in which the song titles are inserted. The lettering is similar in design to the announcement that appears above it. With the introduction of each selection its name is slipped into the space and the audience thereby knows the title before the opening bars are played.

Mr. Sherman has been congratulated on his innovation, not only by publishers, but the dancing public has been quick to compliment him upon the idea. The carrying out of his plan is very inexpensive and considering that the public is quick to respond the plan should be adopted by orchestra leaders everywhere.

SOUSA FEATURES WITMARK HITS

SPECIAL VICTOR RECORD MADE BY PRESIDENT HARDING

Two Patriotic and Inspiring Speeches Made by the President of the United States on Noted Occasions Recorded on Double Disc—Royalty to Be Assigned to American Red Cross

The Victor Talking Machine Co. has recently announced the release of a Thanksgiving Special, which is none other than a double-faced record made by Warren G. Harding, President of the United States. This new release, needless to say, is of a very momentous character, and there are many features about it which are very interesting.

On one side is recorded the address which the President made at Hoboken, May 23, 1921, on the occasion of the return for burial of 5,212 American soldiers, sailors, marines and nurses. On the other side is recorded the address which the President made in Washington on the occasion of the opening of the International Conference for the Limitation of Armament on November 12, 1921. The patriotic and idealistic sentiments expressed in these two addresses, as well as the simple dignity of their delivery, give to this record an institutional character. It will, without question, be received with great enthusiasm by the schools and educational institutions of the country, as well as in practically every American home.

The royalty from this record President Harding has assigned to the American Red Cross, and the label on each record bears a notice to this effect: "I direct that the royalty accruing from the sale of this record be given to the American Red Cross—Warren G. Harding."

These records are also being marketed without profit to the Victor Talking Machine Co., and the whole idea represents a very commendable effort to present two important historical utterances of the President of our country in a form in which they can be perpetuated, and, at the same time, to accomplish this end without monetary gain other than that for the American Red Cross.

In view of this record being recorded by the President, and the American Red Cross being the beneficiary therefrom, it is not being handled in any way in a commercial manner. The ordinary commercial publicity and promotion work will be entirely dispensed with, both by the manufacturer and the retail trade. The announcement to the public will be confined to the label on the record, which includes a portrait of the President and his statement regarding the royalties; and to a very handsome poster, which has been approved by the American Red Cross and which contains a portrait of the President, a description of the addresses which have been recorded, a reproduction of the record with label and a statement to the effect that this record was recorded at the White House, May 24, 1922, and that it is being marketed without profit to the Victor Co.

It goes without saying that the Victor trade will handle the entire proposition in a manner befitting the dignity of the maker of the record and will confine its publicity activities entirely to the label and the poster, or reproductions thereof.

COLUMBIA RECORDS BROADCASTED

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., November 4.—Columbia Symphony records and popular hits from the Columbia catalog are broadcasted daily by the KUCO radio station, owned and operated by the San Francisco Examiner. P. S. Kantner, manager of the local branch of the Columbia Co., was instrumental in arranging this splendid tie-up with Columbia records and each day the program is arranged by the Columbia Co. The KUCO station is one of the most powerful broadcasting stations in the West and thousands are enjoying daily the music sent out from this station.

INTRODUCES NEW ACCESSORY

The "Melo-Tone," Invented in Portland, Ore., Declared to Be of Much Value in Reducing Surface Noises and Improving Record Tone

PORTLAND, ORE., November 4.—A. C. Sherbert, of this city, has just perfected a clever device known as the "Melo-Tone" attachment, designed to reduce surface noise and harshness and to eliminate any metallic or throaty tone in reproducing records.

The device was recently tried out at the big radio broadcasting station at the Meier & Frank store, this city. A record was put on a standard machine and radio fans informed that half the record would be played as was, and the last half with the "Melo-Tone" attached. In a short time many telephone messages were received giving unstinted praise to the performance of the "Melo-Tone."

The new device can be attached or detached while the record is playing and is offered at a popular price. L. D. Heater, of 357 Ankeny street, Portland, is jobbing the "Melo-Tone" for the Pacific Coast, but no jobber has as yet been appointed in the East.

CLAYOLA GAINS IN POPULARITY

Bristol & Barber, Metropolitan Distributors, Find Demand Growing—Console Models Favored—Fifth Avenue Shops Exhibit Line

Bristol & Barber, New York City, are doing particularly good business with the Clayola line of talking machines, of which they are distributors. This line, made by George Clay Cox, Rochester, N. Y., is individualistic to a high degree and has a decided quality appeal. The line now consists of five particularly attractive models, three upright and two console. Several of these models are also equipped with radio. Both the talking machine and radio equipment is of the finest and the models are furnished with electric motors and are electrically lighted. Another striking feature of the Clayola line is the cabinet work. Each model is a work of art and well designed to grace any home no matter how pretentious. Many highly favorable comments have also been made on the exceptional tonal value of the Clayola as well.

N. G. Barber, of the Bristol & Barber organization, states that a number of representative talking machine dealers in the metropolitan district have already taken on the line. A number of these retailers are displaying the line on Fifth avenue. At the present time the two console models seem to be in the ascendancy. Shipments are now coming through from the factory in good quantities and it is expected that the Clayola line will provide an excellent selling proposition for the Christmas trade.

MCCORMACK RECORDS POPULAR SONG

In line with its policy of making recordings by distinguished artists of popular numbers that have real musical merit the Victor Co. is releasing a recording by John McCormack of that popular waltz, "Three o'Clock in the Morning." All indications are that this record will be received with great enthusiasm by the American public, as whenever the Victor Co. has adopted a similar policy in the past the American people have been quick to take advantage of the opportunity of manifesting their appreciation.

DEALERS APPROVE K-E AD STUNT

Imprinting of Dealer's Name on Record Cleaners by the Kirkman Engineering Co. Proves an Exceedingly Popular Innovation

The new policy of the Kirkman Engineering Corp., New York City, to imprint the dealer's name on its K-E and Simplex circular record cleaners, has already met with much approval. These record cleaners, which have been on the market for many years, have always enjoyed a good demand and the additional advertising value added by the imprinting of the dealer's name has resulted in a decided stimulation of sales.

The sale of K-E automatic stops has shown an unmistakable increase within the last few months. The demand is heavy and in most cases for immediate delivery, and the Kirkman plant in this city is very busy taking care of the orders.

APPRECIATE VICTOR EXCHANGE

The Wonderful New Encore Record Replayer

Is the fastest selling music device in the world

The manufacturers of the Encore began at the beginning and have built up an absolutely new repeater in every detail. There is not now—nor has there ever been—anything like it since the phonograph was invented. It is a perfect mechanism of nickel-plated steel, simpler, more compact, more flexible in operation, and more readily salable, than any other repeater ever produced. It does not touch the playing surface of the record, nor does it injure the reproducer. Besides, by means of the unique adjusting feature, it is possible to play ALL the record—every line of it. The Encore is not only entirely new—it is so far superior to any other repeating device that right now it is fast displacing all others. Everywhere, Encore is taking the lead and waltzing home the winner. The advantages of the exclusive features of the Encore are so readily apparent to any one that he sells himself as soon as he looks at it. This is the experience of dealers everywhere. The small price never stands in the way. The Encore is just what you have needed to freshen up interest in phonographs and records in general, and to keep up sales during all seasons. Dealers who are demonstrating it in their windows are not waiting for people to come in and buy—they are cashing in big money.

Advance orders for Christmas are coming in so fast that we shall soon be taxed to the limit to satisfy the demand. Avoid disappointment—send your order in RIGHT NOW. First come, first served.

Need of General Sales Policy—Constructive Ideas Pay—Business Improves—New Agencies—General Review of Situation

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., November 6.—Victor dealers in this city recently have been making fruitless efforts to get together on the question of a general sales policy. A dinner and get-together meeting was held October 25 at the Athenaeum ostensibly for the purpose of extending the hand of fellowship to the newest Victor dealers, the Peoples Outfitting Co., but, in fact, to discuss formally suggestions for placing each of the eight Victor dealers of the city on a common basis of doing business.

Reports from the meeting vary somewhat, but they disclose the fact that each dealer in the city is facing the necessity of getting the business by such means as he sees fit regardless of what his fellow dealer may be doing. Unsuccessful efforts were made after the meeting at the Athenaeum to promote a second meeting, to be held three days later, for the purpose of perfecting a permanent organization.

Competition among the dealers of late has taken the form of unprecedented reductions in amount of initial payments, offers having been made of sixty-nine cents, thirty cents, five cents and nothing down with subsequent payments as low as $1 a month. Dealers who have made these offers say an instrument seldom goes out without a substantial initial payment. Other dealers say, however, that the effect of the advertising is bad, regardless of what may actually be collected.

A concert by Sousa's band provided the central theme for a page of co-operative advertising in local newspapers by the Victor dealers the latter part of October.

The Fuller-Ryde Music Co. is promoting a Christmas plan which calls for the payment of $2 the week of October 22 and the payment of $3 a week until December 20, for which any machine up to $150 in value will be delivered at Christmas.

Makes Hit With Personal Records

F. R. Follis, manager of the talking machine department of L. S. Ayres & Co., reports his business for October well ahead of that for October, 1921, despite the fact that his expenditures for advertising were nominal. The business was stimulated, Mr. Follis thinks, by development of interest in personal phonograph records made through arrangement with the Starr Piano Co., at Richmond. This feature was introduced at a musicale in the tea room of the store. A feature of the entertainment was the staging of the process of recording as it is done in the laboratories. Mrs. Florence Kinnaird, an Indianapolis singer, was soloist for the occasion. She and Fred Newell Morris, another local singer, spoke on the subject of music.

In connection with the promotion of the personal record idea Mr. Follis sent a letter to a selected list of musicians to whom invitation was extended to attend the musicale.

The store sells the personal records mainly to accommodate the artists concerned, Mr. Follis says. While the volume of sales is not large the advertising and good-will gained by the innovation are assets well worth going after, according to Mr. Follis.

Features Special Record

The D. H. Craft Co. sold more than 1,000 records made for it by the American Harmonists, entertainers at the Colonial Motion Picture Theatre. The record was made at Richmond, Ind., and featured a song, "Count the Days," which gained wide popularity as part of the theatre's musical program. Mr. Craft reports that the investment in the record proved immediately profitable and that the record continues to be a good seller.

Incidentally, Mr. Craft is using a blackboard sidewalk sign to good advantage in advertising his records and rolls. He applies his own artistic ability in illustrating the songs he wishes to feature and by making the drawings humorous he combines considerable pleasure with the profit he gains thereby.

Fewer Dealers But More Business

T. H. Bracken, manager of the Starr Piano Co., reports that October was the biggest record month his store has experienced. This was in spite of the fact that the store's distributing territory has been reduced to the extent of forty dealers in the southwest part of the State, including Evansville. This territory has been attached to that served by the Caldwell-Lyons Co., of Shelbyville, Ky. Mr. Bracken also has made use of the personal record service to promote the record business. As to his business in both records and machines he says the outlook is better than it has been in the last two years.

Ned Clay Now Retail Sales Manager

Ned Clay, who has been manager of the outside salesmen of the Starr Piano Co. for several years, has been promoted to the position of retail sales manager, with headquarters in this city. He succeeds R. S. Kinnaird, who resigned to accept a position with the Indianapolis branch of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co.

What Enthusiastic Employees Accomplished

Enthusiasm of the sort that employers dream about in connection with their sales forces recently gave Widener's Grafonola Shop one of its most profitable days in the sale of records and also one of the most satisfactory bits of advertising the store ever had. Credit for the success of the occasion, W. G. Wilson, manager of the store, gives unreservedly to Miss Dorothy Ranshaw and Miss Dorothea Jones, of the sales staff.

The enthusiasm of these two young women took form in persistent appeals to the sales representative of the Columbia Co. for an early delivery of J. Russell Robinson's popular number, "To-morrow." Their interest in the number was due to the fact that Robinson is a native of Indianapolis and favorably known in the city, as elsewhere, through the popularity of "Margie." The appeals of the two young women resulted in a special release which placed the number in the Widener stock before any other store in the city had received it.

Encouraged by the success of their efforts to obtain the number Miss Ranshaw and Miss

Jones obtained the services of H. C. They also procured from the Fox Film Co. the first reel of "Silver Wings," showing that week at a local motion picture theatre, and procured from the Circle Motion Picture Theatre the art slides for "Tomorrow," which was scheduled to be shown at that theatre the following week. Thus equipped the Misses Ranshaw and Jones had the display window trimmed to represent a stage and the stunt was a great success from the noon hour until late Saturday night when crowds that blocked the sidewalk and interfered with automobile traffic watched the photoplay and the art slides and listened to the singers, who made the program snappy with both solos and duets.

New Edison Agencies

J. M. Van der Voort, assistant manager, in charge of the Phonograph Corp. of Indiana, Edison distributor, reports that several new agencies were organized in the State during October and that nearly all dealers are doing big business because they are going after it in the manner of pre-war days. "They have learned," he said, "that only by concentrated canvassing can sales be made in a worth-while way. Their experience is that people have plenty of money, but they hate to be separated from it."

H. G. Anderson, sales promotion manager of the corporation, returned the latter part of October from an extended trip over the Edison territory served by the Indianapolis branch. He reported that business was particularly good among the dealers in Illinois, where sales of the last three months were shown to have been twice as much as during the first nine months of the year.

A fire in the warehouse of the Edison Shop recently caused $2,000 damage to machines, according to W. O. Hopkins, manager. It is thought the fire was caused by crossed wires. The damage was covered by insurance. Mr. Hopkins reports that he cannot get enough of the new Edison console models to supply the demand and this situation will curtail his holiday trade, he thinks.

Recent Meeting of Sonora Dealers

Reports received during the annual meeting of Indiana Sonora dealers, held last month, indicate an exceptionally big business, according to Edward L. Mayer, manager of the Sonora department of the Kiefer-Stewart Drug Co. George E. Brightson, president of the Sonora Co., in an address at the meeting said that in a trip over the territory between San Francisco and Indianapolis he had received reports of big business from the majority of dealers. The factory is thousands of machines behind in its orders, he said.

Brunswick Business Growing

Business in Brunswick machines and records is increasing steadily and consistently, according to Walter J. Baker, of the Brunswick Shop, and C. P. Herdman, manager of the talking machine department of the Baldwin Piano Co. The sale of Brunswick records has been stimulated remarkably by the appearance of Claire Dux, Brunswick artist, in an entertainment sponsored by the Matinee Musicale. The two dealers are anticipating a marked increase in record sales as a result of the appearance in this city on November 12 of the Ukrainian National Chorus.

Fred Binger With Granby

Fred Binger, formerly salesman in northern Indiana for the Chicago branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co., was a visitor at the Widener store the latter part of October. He is now representing the Granby Phonograph Co., with headquarters at Fort Wayne, Ind.

EVANSTON BRUNSWICK SHOP FORMED

A charter of incorporation has been granted to the Evanston Brunswick Shop, Inc., 1611 Sherman avenue, Evanston, Ill., under the laws of that State, to manufacture and deal in musical instruments and talking machines, with a capital of $5,000. Incorporators are R. R. Bronson, B. F. Hobbs and John Dragamier.

Hard Work in Sales Field Pays Handsomely—The Activity of Toledo Dealers Proves This

TOLEDO, O., November 8.—Talking machine merchants are working hard and closing a good Fall volume of business. Those dealers who are aggressive and are employing advertising and salesmanship to the fullest extent are, of course, closing the largest volume. They are backing up newspaper publicity with direct-by-mail matter in generous proportions. Letters, leaflets, blotters, circulars and small inserts are employed. Every piece of outgoing mail carries an extra burden of advertising literature.

Business doesn't come easy, but these hustlers are finding it to be obtained if they will work to uncover it. One large retailer relates that he recently sold five talking machines in an adjacent town by simply going after the business and that community boasts a dealer who refers to trade as being slow. Similar experiences are coming to the surface almost every day. It's a market for go-getters—not for drones.

Retailers are finding that hooking up with movie attractions produces a worth-while number of sales. "School Days," "The Eternal Flame," "Remembrance," "Blood and Sand" and other productions, all make it possible to sell music appropriate to the screen story. Far-sighted dealers find sales lead in almost every timely or current event.

Further, dealers are doing much buying and extending their activities. At least four have added new lines of talking machines, including the Vocalion, Columbia, Granby and Pooley.

At the Toledo Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler, sales are good. The demand is brisk and models are shipped out almost as soon as received, Charles H. Womeldorff states. The company, in common with other Victor jobbers, is experiencing a distinct shortage of certain machines. Stocks are broken and it is sometimes difficult to fill orders completely. This situation will become more acute as the holiday season approaches and buying increases. Wide interest is shown in the five special Victor records to go on sale Saturday, November 18.

At the J. W. Greene Co. sales are far in advance of any similar period and outside workers are closing a very satisfactory volume of trade. Solicitors are canvassing nearby small communities and are meeting with good results. Often machines are placed in homes for a short trial and this plan is usually successful in making the sale. Furthermore, the Christmas talking machine clubs have already achieved considerable success.

The new "Greene's Three Best Sellers Record

Service," introduced to customers by means of a direct mail drive, has produced good returns. The plan is this: Each month, at no extra charge, the best selling new records are sent to a list of people, which has grown to number many hundreds, and the records are charged to their accounts. There is no bother and no inconvenience and they receive the choicest numbers on the first day the records are released. Any or all of the records may be exchanged within forty-eight hours if they do not prove pleasing. The dealer soon learns the type of music that suits the individual taste and then sees to it that the three records sent to the customer are of the type he likes best.

At Grinnell Bros. machine sales have shown such an improvement that the total for the past three weeks was nearly double that for the same period a year ago and records sales have increased to the extent of 30 per cent. While this showing is highly gratifying, the fact that a shortage of Victrolas already exists and will grow more pronounced as the season advances is one of the discouraging elements in the talking machine situation. However, volume will be maintained in spite of the fact that models of all types will, without much doubt, be swept from the floor before the holiday demand is satisfied, Manager R. C. Elwell declares.

At the LaSalle & Koch Co. Victrola Shop sales are in advance of a year ago. The Fall outlook continues good. It is the opinion of R. O. Danforth, manager, that the holiday sales volume will equal any yet experienced. The three-section listening counter recently installed is proving a valuable asset in facilitating record service to the patron. Collections are good. The store plan of keeping in close touch with contract customers seldom permits of a repossession.

The Da-Lite Electric Display Co. is bringing out a new sign design, Harry Cuddeback states. The size will not be altered, however, and panels now in use will fit the new sign. November releases are "Suez," "When the Leaves Come Tumbling Down" and a combination panel of "I'll Build a Stairway to Paradise" and "I Found a Four-leaf Clover," also "You Remind Me of My Mother" and "All Over Nothing at All."

The Home Furniture Co., large installment house, has added the Columbia line. This concern also has a branch house in Detroit, and between the two stores a very good volume of phonograph trade is carried on. The announcement of the Columbia as a feature was made through the newspapers and by means of windows gayly decorated with Halloween novelties. Besides the Columbia Grafonolas, Brunswick's are dealt in. The latter line was acquired a few months ago. Helen Canfield is in charge of the department.

Rae & Maxwell, Columbia dealers, coupled their store with the film production, "School Days," by means of the cut-out display signs of a school boy holding a slate. Upon this slate the records "Little Red School House" and "Down at the Old Swimming Hole" were featured.

The Goosman Piano Co. recently became the agent for the Granby phonograph in this territory. This line, in addition to the Columbia and Vocalion, is featured in window displays, cut-outs, signs, etc. Fred N. Goosman states the house is also working in conjunction with the new Vocalion local campaign.

The Ignaz Fischer Music Co. has added the Vocalion phonograph to its line and is going after trade with a comprehensive direct drive. The Aeolian Co. is conducting a newspaper and poster campaign in co-operation with dealers.

Four of the local Brunswick dealers, the J. W. Greene Co., John Veler, B. H. Broer Co. and Compton Bros. Record Shop, are co-operating to bring the exclusive Brunswick orchestra, Oriole Terrace, to Toledo, shortly, for a program of dancing. These merchants are convinced that once the music-loving public becomes familiar with the excellence of the work of this group of musicians sales of their records will increase very materially.

The local appearance of the Benson orchestra of Chicago here on November 26 is the subject of much interest among Victor dealers. They are all lending their efforts to make this event a complete success. Roy Bargy, the director, is a well-known Toledoan.

The Sonora phonograph is reaching out for wider local distribution and this machine is being broadly advertised in the newspapers and upon the billboards. Frank Frazelle, local Sonora dealer, is coupling his advertising and sales promotion work with that of the manufacturers and reports excellent returns.

Frank K. Dolbeer, head of the traveling department of the Victor Co., was a recent visitor.

At the Lion Store Victrola rooms sales for the current week were the largest since last December, A. J. Pete reports. The store is celebrating its sixty-fifth anniversary and in connection with this event Victrolas are being sold on a convenient down-payment. This plan gives a membership in the Lion Store

Sixty-fifth Anniversary Club and entitles holders to select any Victrola in the store and have it delivered immediately, the balance to be paid in weekly or monthly installments.

The department is making extensive preparations for the annual Victrola show which will be conducted November 8 to 18. The Victor

Another View of the Lion Store

Co. has sent one of the original trade-mark machines for demonstration purposes; also one of the new glass machines. Parts of a Victrola cabinet will also be on exhibition to show just how a Victrola cabinet is fitted together. A display of the Hall Fibre Needle Co., Chicago, is another interesting exhibit. It shows the entire needle manufacturing process from the bamboo pole to the finished needle.

WIDENER'S, INC., IN PROVIDENCE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., November 2.—Announcement is made that the Victor department of the Flint-Adaskin Furniture Co. has been purchased by Widener's, Inc. The stock has been transferred to the Callander McAusland & Troupee Co., located in Westminster street, where Widener's will operate a Victor talking machine department. This latter concern is commonly known in Providence as the Boston Store.

WHITNEY STORE DESTROYED BY FIRE

SPRINGFIELD, VT., November 1.—There is general regret locally over the heavy loss sustained last night when Fred W. Whitney's Pharmacy was destroyed by fire. This store has long been the headquarters for the Victor and Columbia lines. The fire came at a bad time, for the store was well stocked with merchandise in anticipation of a big holiday business.

GENNARO PAPI TO DIRECT VOCALION OPERATIC RECORDS

Prominent Metropolitan Opera Conductor Assumes Important Post With Vocalion Record Studio of Aeolian Co. and Will Direct All Vocal Operatic Selections in Co-operation With T. P. Ratcliff—Aeolian Concert Orchestra Organized to Record Standard and Operatic Numbers

A most interesting and important addition to the Vocalion recording organization of the Aeolian Co. is Gennaro Papi, one of the leading conductors of the Metropolitan Opera Co. and a particular authority on Italian opera.

Mr. Papi, who joined the Vocalion organization on November 1, still retains his connection with the Metropolitan Co., his service to the Aeolian Co. being largely in an advisory capacity. Mr. Papi will have general direction of all vocal operatic selections recorded for the Vocalion and will co-operate with T. P. Ratcliff, director of standard and operatic recordings at the Vocalion Studios, in the choice and presentation of various numbers.

The securing of Mr. Papi's services is due to the efforts of Mr. Ratcliff and is an important step in the program for the material enlargement of the catalog of Vocalion operatic records to which much attention will be given in the future. With Mr. Papi will come the services of the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra for such recordings as he directs.

The ambitious plans for the building up of a very substantial standard and operatic catalog of Vocalion records has also resulted in the organization of the Aeolian Concert Orchestra, which will devote its efforts to the recording of standard symphonies and concert numbers, the first record by the new organization being the "William Tell" overture. Other standard numbers will follow in quick succession until the list of standard Vocalion records takes in practically all the worth-while selections.

UNIT CONSTRUCTION CO. EXPANDS

Announces Addition of Unico Wall Rack, Unico Supplement Display and Unico Audition Room Bench to Its Extensive Line

Several new items have been added to the product of the Unit Construction Co. Although the biggest business of this company is founded on audition rooms, record racks, etc., the line has been widened in scope considerably within the past few years until practically every furnishing for the audition room has been included. Announcement is now made of the Unico wall rack, Unico supplement display and the Unico audition room bench. The Unico wall racks are made in three sizes to accommodate four, eight and twelve records, respectively. The Unico supplement display is a decidedly useful, as well as ornamental, fixture for the audition room. The Unico bench is five feet long, sixteen inches wide and eighteen inches high and accommodates a cushion two inches thick. It is claimed that considerable saving of space is effected in the audition room by the use of this bench as with it three customers are comfortably seated in the space formerly used for two.

The Unit Construction Co. has announced special dealer prices on various cabinet stands for audition rooms, these prices being applicable to November orders only and graduated according to quantity. The stands listed are the Unico No. 50, the Unico 4-6 and the Unico 4-6S cabinet stands.

As was announced last month the Unit Construction Co. anticipated last-minute orders for equipment for holiday service and accordingly kept its plant busy even during quiet periods through the Summer months and stored stock. Orders for quick installation are given very prompt attention and many additional records for quick installation have been added to those listed last month.

Mr. Mobley, Sr., was the inventor of the first metal diaphragm and manufacturer of the Mobley reproducer and other reproducers which he made to order. This and other talking machine parts was Mr. Mobley's line of endeavor since 1899, during which time he had patented many new and useful improvements on the reproducer and parts of the phonograph. Mr. Mobley, Jr., states that in the future the company intends to specialize on the reproducer and parts pertaining to the same. An attractive folder has recently been prepared for the trade.

DEVELOPING A BIG DEALER CO-OPERATIVE CAMPAIGN

J. J. Apatow Becomes Advertising and Sales Manager of the Emerson Phonograph Co.—Plans Perfected for Aggressive Campaign in Advertising and Dealer Service Fields

The Emerson Phonograph Co. has advised the trade that it is planning an aggressive campaign to build up its regular accounts and to stimulate new representatives in certain selected cities. Instead of developing a general magazine and newspaper advertising campaign each individual representative will receive personal co-operation to build up his local following, working in the direction of a large volume of repeat business for each city.

The sales promotion service will be "individualized" to meet the conditions of each locality. For instance, the newspaper advertising has been divided into three distinct divisions. First, to assist the retailer in selling his store and service as a local "institution." Through this means, states the company, the dealer cultivates a "stronger" good-will among his regular patrons and stimulates a spirit of friendship among prospective customers.

In this first series of newspaper advertisements the purpose will be to build up yearly accounts rather than individual purchases. Attention will be called to the personnel side of the store and the desire to render a maximum service. Since this first series of "talks" will be to build good-will or store friendships, little or no merchandise will be featured.

The second part of the campaign will give more attention to the individual requirements of the retailer. Such goods as he may prefer to advertise will be featured and, incidentally, the trade-mark of the Emerson Phonograph Co. will be included as a part of each advertisement in the second series.

In the third part of the campaign stress will be placed on the features and sales advantages of the new Emerson record. There are some 5,000 vocal and instrumental numbers available and special numbers will be "played up" to fit the conditions of each individual store. In addition, there are a number of direct mail campaigns that have been prepared for the specific needs of the retailer.

Educational work to stimulate the interest and enthusiasm of retail sales people will be conducted along a new line. The Emerson plan will be to increase the productivity of the retail clerk in his own interest and in that of his firm. There will be some distinctive display cards and considerable other supplementary material of value in developing local business.

In order to conduct this new sales promotion department as efficiently as possible J. J. Apatow, former wholesale sales promotion manager of the Aeolian Co., has been appointed advertising and sales manager of the Emerson Phonograph Co. Mr. Apatow has had some fifteen years of experience as an advertising man and as an executive in sales promotion work. Hundreds of dealers have used his copy and other co-operative material to good advantage. Incidentally, he has served as a clearing house or central source for the solving of retailers' selling problems.

He was also connected with the Fred Gretsch Mfg. Co. and while with that organization developed a plan of working with dealers to build up their local sales volume. Previous to that Mr. Apatow was associated with the Chicago house of Sears, Roebuck & Co. as an advertising writer, and later as an editor of sales promotion copy. While with that organization he was in charge of research work and introduced a psychological process of testing advertising copy and plans. This tended to eliminate inefficient copy and served to strengthen the productivity of the copy of some fifty men employed in producing advertising and plans.

Some thirty well-known corporations are working in co-operation with the scientific men of the foremost universities to conduct research work in human reaction. Broad experiments are being developed to forecast the productivity of certain types of advertising, methods of cultivating retail business and processes of increasing the efficiency of retail salespeople. The organization is known as the Economic Psychology Association and Mr. Apatow has been its secretary since 1915.

AMERICAN PHONOGRAPHS FOR JAPAN

This Country Supplied Ninety-five Per Cent of All Such Instruments in 1921

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 6.—That American musical instruments are popular in Japan is indicated by the fact that in 1920 we supplied 95 per cent of the phonographs and 70 per cent of the musical instruments imported into that country, according to figures just received at the Department of Commerce from Consul Dickover, Kobe. Detailed statistics for 1921 and 1922 are not yet available, but it is thought that while the percentage for 1921 probably was not as high as that of 1920, 1922 promises to be even larger.

The increasing demand for phonographs and musical instruments is due partly to a genuine interest in Occidental music, which has been developing in Japan for years, and partly to a more recent dance craze, which promises to do much toward increasing the popular liking for our music.

A new special extra loud jazz needle has been placed upon the market by the Wall Kane Needle Mfg. Co., Inc., of Brooklyn, N. Y., which N. The new needle differs from the balance of the Wall Kane line, which permits ten playings with each needle, in that the new needle is to be used but once for each record. It is stated that it is made in this country of highest grade American steel. It is attractively packed in envelopes, cartons and display cards and other dealer helps have been arranged. The new needle will be distributed, as are the other needles in the Wall Kane line, through the jobbing trade. Territories are now being awarded to applicants.

CHANGES IN THE DIRECTORATE OF THE VICTOR CO.

Eldridge R. F. Johnson and Levi L. Rue Elected to Membership of the Board of Directors Following the Resignations of Charles K. Haddon and Louis F. Geissler

CAMDEN, N. J., November 3.—At the general offices of the Victor Talking Machine Co. announcement was made today of the recent retirement of two veteran members of the Board, Charles K. Haddon, director and vice-president, and Louis F. Geissler, director and formerly general manager. It was also announced that the vacancies caused by the retirement of Messrs. Haddon and Geissler had been filled by the election to the Board of Eldridge R. F. Johnson, son of President Eldridge R. Johnson, and Levi L. Rue, president of the Philadelphia National Bank.

In discussing the above changes officers of the Victor Co. recalled that Mr. Haddon had spent practically his entire business life in the Victor organization. He served his apprenticeship in the same machine shop where Mr. Johnson was also an apprentice and later, in 1897, took employment as assistant foreman with Mr. Johnson, who by that time was well established in the business from which the Victor Co. has since developed. After a short time Mr. Haddon was placed in charge of the shop office and later in charge of record production. He was one of the incorporators of the Victor Talking Machine Co. in 1901 and since that time has been an active officer, advancing through the grades of purchasing agent and treasurer to the office of vice-president. Mr. Haddon's desire to retire is in part due to conditions of health, but more particularly in order that he may indulge in a long-standing wish to travel extensively. At the present time he is preparing to start with Mrs. Haddon on a trip around the world, which is expected to occupy six months or more.

It was also learned that Mr. Geissler's desire to retire had been known to his associates in the Board for more than four years, but that he had been persuaded to retain his directorship during the readjustment period following the war. Prior to coming with the Victor Co. in 1905 Mr. Geissler had been for many years associated with Sherman, Clay & Co. on the Pacific Coast. Before the incorporation of Sherman, Clay & Co. Mr. Geissler was a junior partner and later one of the very active officers of that company. As general manager of the Victor Co. from 1905 to the end of 1918 he had entire charge of the marketing of a tremendous volume of the Victor Co.'s output. Mr. Geissler's work in behalf of the Victor Co. and the trade at large, coupled with his genial personality, won for him the friendship and admiration of those associated with the music industry at large in various capacities. It was during his regime as general manager that there was witnessed the tremendous development of the Victor Co. which, incidentally, still persists, and it was during that period that the talking machine came into its own as the greatest educational factor in the musical world.

Eldridge R. F. Johnson is the only son of Eldridge R. Johnson. He completed his education at the University of Pennsylvania two years ago, since which time he has been with the Victor Co. under the tutelage of Vice-president Royal for the purpose of acquiring a good, practical foundation for his future activities.

Mr. Rue's selection is a natural sequence of his personal and business friendship with Eldridge R. Johnson, who, as is known, has for some years been a director of the Philadelphia National Bank, one of the largest banks in the country, of which Mr. Rue is president.

MOHAWK WORKS OF ART VERY BUSY

Forced to Add to Staff to Meet Growing Demand for Decorated Talking Machines

Decorated talking machines seem to be in particularly great demand. The Mohawk Works of Art has considerably increased its staff of decorating artists in order to take care of the large volume of business and inquiries which are coming its way.

M. E. Estrin, head of the organization, reports that most inquiries have turned into actual orders and that in practically every case where work was done it was followed by the shipping of a large number of additional machines to be decorated in the same manner. Dealers report that the decorating of talking machines not only makes pleased customers, providing them with standard make talking machines decorated in a manner that particularly harmonizes with the color scheme of the room, but also provides the dealer with additional profits on the decorating work. Arrangements are also being made with several manufacturers whereby the concern will decorate models for them.

LOS ANGELES

E. P. Tucker Elected President of the Music Trades Association of Southern California at Annual Meeting—Month's News

LOS ANGELES, CAL., November 4.—The annual meeting of the Music Trades Association of Southern California held last month was the occasion for the election of officers for the forthcoming year. E. A. Geissler, past president, chairman of the nominating committee, reminded members that this was the fourth year of the present Association which had succeeded the old Los Angeles Talking Machine Men's Association, the work of which, together with a broadened scope, including all other branches of the industry, had been thus carried on. He stated that his committee after careful consideration nominated: E. P. Tucker for president, H. N. Briggs for first vice-president, E. E. Smith for second vice-president, G. B. Epstein for treasurer, and A. G. Farquharson for re-election as secretary. There being no further nominations advanced, a unanimous vote declared them elected.

E. P. Tucker, who is Los Angeles manager of the Wiley B. Allen Co., acknowledged the honor paid him by his election and, after recounting some of the excellent services rendered by his predecessor, J. W. Boothe, and by the other past presidents, assured the members that he would faithfully carry out his duties and fulfil them to the best of his ability. He was of the opinion that many difficult problems would arise as in the past, but he felt sure that they would be successfully met.

J. W. Boothe, retiring president, who was accorded a vote of thanks for services rendered, spoke of the future of the trade, especially of the talking machine business, declaring that it was still in its infancy in respect to volume. He told the members that the increasing interest in period model talking machines had been fostered to a very large extent by the interior decorators of furniture houses who recommended types of instruments which would harmonize with their other furniture.

Frank Anrys, president of the Wiley B. Allen Co., who was the special guest of the evening, addressed the members, congratulating them on their fine organization work, which he declared was the best in the entire country, and the banner which had been awarded them as winners by the National Association was well merited. He attributed their success to the splendid spirit of co-operation which existed in southern California and to their selection and retention of an experienced secretary, whose services are of great value.

Platt's New Victor Department

The enlarged and newly decorated store of the Platt Music Co. was formally opened last month and created much favorable comment from the public and on the part of members of the trade. On the opening day the large store was literally filled with bouquets of flowers sent by friends of the retail and wholesale trade, conspicuous among them being a beautiful offering from the Victor Talking Machine Co. The Victrola department, which occupies the greater part of the main floor, is the "last word" in elegance and convenience; the sound-proof demonstration rooms, of which there are about thirty, are exceptionally well built from an acoustic standpoint, as well as being absolutely sound proof; a large oval record serving counter, with the record racks in the center, stretches fifty feet down the middle of the room. Department Manager Beck reports a wonderful increase in record sales daily since the installation of this new department.

Brunswick Goods Coming Fast

Howard Brown, branch manager of the local Brunswick phonograph division, has been obliged to increase his sales force considerably by adding several well-known phonograph men, the latest addition being William R. Piper. Goods are coming in on time, no less than nineteen carloads reaching here within ten days.

Charlie Chaplin Interested

Persons living in Hollywood become used to seeing famous motion picture stars strolling around the streets and the Forrest Victrola Studio in that town frequently sells Victor records and Victrolas to screen favorites of national and international reputation. Leah A. Ullom, manager, reports that recently she had placed a Victrola at the entrance to the store with a Phonoreel over the record which showed the adventures of Charlie Chaplin with a bulldog. As the machine worked along came Charlie himself, who stopped and looked at the little moving picture of himself with interest for a moment or two, then with a smile and wave of his hand he went on his way—possibly with thoughts of royalty from Phonoreels.

Long Music Co. House-warming

The Long Music Co., of Pasadena, has just completed important alterations and improvements. A large floor has been added and numerous sound-proof demonstration rooms installed. The new store presents an exceptionally attractive appearance and Mr. and Mrs.

Death of Dan C. Voorhies Regretted

The news which appeared in the last issue of The World of the death of Dan C. Voorhies, of the Brunswick Co., was received with great sorrow and regret by all members of the music trade in southern California, where he was well known and greatly beloved. He was a frequent attendant at the meetings of the Music Trades Association of Southern California and was, therefore, known by others besides Brunswick dealers. A silent toast was drunk to his memory by members of the Association at the last meeting.

Victor Cut-out Record Exchange Appreciated

The Victor record exchange cut-out list, with its large assortment of numbers, was received with great appreciation by Victor dealers in this section of the country and has been made the occasion of a special letter to the Victor Talking Machine Co. from the Music Trades Association of Southern California which reads as follows:

"The Victor Dealers' Committee of this Association wish to express to you, as a body, their appreciation of the consideration which you have shown to them through the latest cut-out record exchange. They consider that this is an excellent policy and a protection for dealers as well as for the Victor product in general and they also realize the financial investment which is incurred by you. Such splendid policies as these go a long way toward assisting the dealer in meeting some of the increased overhead expenses which he has to bear; we cannot permit this most generous act to pass without expressing to you our acknowledgment and thanks."

NEW STORE OPENED IN ANN ARBOR

Stofflet's, Brunswick dealer in Ann Arbor, Mich., on November 2 opened a beautiful new branch store in the Nickel Arcade, directly across the street from the campus of the University of Michigan. Unico booths and construction were used throughout in the new shop. To help put the formal opening across in a striking manner, the Oriole Terrace Orchestra was brought to Ann Arbor for the occasion, which excited considerable interest.

Otto Heineman, president of the General Phonograph Corp., was the guest of honor at a Halloween party held at the company's offices in New York on Halloween day, October 31. With his usual good fellowship, Mr. Heineman joined in the festivities with keen enjoyment and was one of the most important factors in the success of the event.

Every member of the General Phonograph Corp.'s organization at the executive offices was included in this party with the exception of W. C. Fuhri, general manager of the Okeh record division, who happened to be out of town when the party was given. A buffet luncheon was served on the twelfth floor, where the company maintains its Okeh offices, and after luncheon Okeh records furnished music for the

GRETSCH LINE FOR THE HOLIDAYS

Famous Line of Musical Merchandise Selling Well Throughout Country—Walter Gretsch Returns From Trip to European Markets

The Fred. Gretsch Mfg. Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., manufacturer of musical instruments, states that business is continuing very good. All records of last year are being surpassed and it would seem as though musical instruments would constitute a very substantial part of the coming Christmas business. Although the entire line is selling well there seems to be a particular demand for tenor banjo-mandolins, saxophones and drums. The increased business that is being received consists not only of larger orders from regular dealers, but every day sees new dealers taking on the Gretsch line, many of whom did not carry musical merchandise at all in the past.

E. E. Strong, sales manager of the company, is optimistic over the continuance of the good business which has been experienced in the past and believes that final records will mark 1922 as one of the biggest, if not the biggest, year in the history of the Gretsch organization.

Walter Gretsch, who has been in Europe visiting the various markets for several months, has returned to Gretsch headquarters.

Start of Business Boom This Month Indicates Record-breaking Winter Trade—Retailers and Distributors in Optimistic Mood

CINCINNATI, O., November 3.—October marked the beginning—and a very fine beginning—of what virtually every dealer in talking machines and records regards as a record-breaking Winter trade. The splendid increase over September business was heartening indeed. Some dealers say that this is the best October that they have had in years, and that, in spite of the fine outdoor weather that marked the entire month.

There is no particular type of machine that is unusually popular. All are being sold in quantities, although the console type continues to rule a slight favorite in buying from wholesalers. All of the retailers are laying in a greater variety and supply of stock than has been the case for a very long while, and all wholesalers are accepting shipments on every machine they can get from the factories.

Leading Distributors Tell of Activity

A. H. Bates, of the Ohio Talking Machine Co., dealer in Victrolas, is among the most enthusiastic of the wholesalers. "Our October business," said Mr. Bates, "and the trade done by retailers handling our accounts, was one of the best in years. We have an enormous stock of Victrolas and records, and have not the slightest doubt but that we shall dispose of all of them. The fact that retailers are acquiring large stocks, and not allowing the jobbers to take the risk, is a very good sign. It is evident that business is going up, and that the next two months will produce something really big in the talking-machine trade."

The same sentiment is expressed by Mr. Oelman, of the New Edison Co., who said: "Throughout the Cincinnati district Edison business is in splendid shape. October was an excellent month, and so far as I can see November and December should really be exceptional. Retailers are asking for large stocks of goods, and we are hardly able to supply enough of new Edison models, which are very popular."

From the Cincinnati branch office of the Columbia Co. comes the report that wholesale business in Columbia goods is on the boom. After a dull, or at best only fair, September, October leaped into prominence as one of the best months in recent years. The very great number of Columbia retailers throughout the district who are asking for substantial shipments, and the prospects for November and December are good enough to celebrate about.

S. Reis, of the Brunswick Co., also reports an excellent wholesale trade during October. The month, according to Mr. Reis, was far above expectations, and augurs so much, after the dullness of preceding months, that the company believes the rest of the Winter is likely to set a record for wholesale and retail sales. The Brunswick record business during October was very good.

Retailers Encouraged Over Outlook

Among the retailers trade is equally encouraging. The definite settlement of the various industrial troubles and the shipment into Cincinnati of sufficient coal to insure the continued operation of virtually all industries are looked upon by dealers as causes for the October increase. Moreover, the great activity in building trades and other indications of returning prosperity incline tradesmen in every line of business to the belief that the Winter of 1922 and 1923 is not by any means to be the "Winter of their discontent."

Howard L. Chubb, one of the most progressive dealers in the city, whose Sixth street store attracts considerable attention, is among the most optimistic. His window displays for the most part are the feature of the talking machine trade here, and his foresight in discovering value in risks which some dealers hesitate to take is being adequately proved. Mr. Chubb said: "Our October business was fine, and I believe that our November and December business will be much better still. People have money, it seems, and if our recent trade is any criterion they are quite willing to spend it on talking machines, records, radio apparatus and the like. We look for an excellent Winter." The Chubb-Steinberg Music Shop is one of the most successful dealers in radio apparatus in the city.

At the Baldwin Victrola Shop business is booming. Machines and records have sold in encouraging quantities all through October, and November looms ahead as a month of remarkable trade. Since Mr. Craig took charge of the Baldwin Victrola Shop business there has been, on the average, really good, even during the dull months.

Morris Fantel, of Widener's Grafonola Shop, also reported a fine trade during October. "All of our lines of talking machines and records, Granby, Columbia and Victor," Mr. Fantel said, "have sold remarkably well. We are doing a fine business in Victrolas, in spite of the fact that the account is comparatively new with us. Record business has been fine. November and December, I am sure, are going to be in the nature of record-breakers."

SUGGESTS PLANS FOR LARGER RECORD SALES

Abram Davega Delivers Instructive Talk at Monthly Record Recital and Sales Meeting of the Knickerbocker Talking Machine Co.

The outstanding feature of the monthly record recital and sales meeting held under the auspices of the Knickerbocker Talking Machine Co., Victor distributor, New York City, at the Knickerbocker auditorium on Thursday, November 2, was an interesting and spirited address by Abram Davega, president of the company, on the subject, "The Modern Way of Playing the Victrola." Mr. Davega stressed the importance of the expansion of the retail dealer's business through the selling of more records and of keeping up the interest of every Victrola owner in the use of his talking machine. Considering the already large number of turntables in existence and the continuous growth and output each year he pointed out that the sale of records should show a tremendous increase. Mr. Davega stated in part: "It is our opinion that the opportunity for developing the record end of the business has only just commenced. Judging by the sale of records, a large percentage of talking machine owners play them to a limited degree. These same owners have available, however, through the Victor record catalog, practically every form of entertainment that there is to be had. Showing your customers how to get the most out of the Victrola means greatly increased record business for you. We suggest a selling system that will educate new purchasers of Victrolas, as well as former purchasers, in the proper way to arrange the playing and selection of their Victor records and the classifying of the records that they own so as to see what form of entertainment they lack. We would suggest that the talking machine dealer and his employes arrange a campaign in the following manner. Place a streamer on the window saying: 'Step inside and we will gladly show you the modern way to play your Victrola' and then when the prospect enters your store show him or her how records from the Victor catalog can be arranged as, for instance, 'An Evening at Vaudeville,' 'An Evening at the Concert,' 'An Evening at Grand Opera,' etc., etc. It would be well to have suggested weekly programs for distribution to your customers, with a full explanation on the modern way to play records, always in program order. These programs must be arranged in such a way that they constitute only the very best form of entertainment. There should be no two records of a similar nature on one program."

Mr. Davega at this point referred to a streamer which appeared on the Knickerbocker stage illustrating the point he brought out, and also called attention to the printed folders which had been distributed throughout the auditorium and which contained a suggested vaudeville program of ten numbers carefully selected from the catalog. Mr. Davega stated that for the convenience of the dealers he had a large quantity of these printed up, provision being made on the back cover for the dealer's imprint.

These he offered to the dealers on a less than cost basis and stated that it was the intention of the Knickerbocker Talking Machine Co. to put out several more interesting programs of this character in the near future. After the idea was thoroughly started, however, it was his opinion that individual dealers could better arrange their own programs from the stock of records on their shelves.

In referring to this program, Mr. Davega continued: "There are very many other titles which can be chosen and the records arranged in the proper playing order for their customers. It would be very desirable to have them play their records in exactly the same order as arranged on the program and keep them in albums, each album being an evening's entertainment. If the dealers will get out programs each week numbering these programs so that they can be used over and over again for the different customers they will find that in a year's time they will have featured 500 records. They will also find that the customers will get more entertainment out of their Victrolas and they will buy more records and it will be the rule rather than the exception for customers to purchase ten records, or a complete program."

In concluding his address, Mr. Davega stated that the business of the Knickerbocker Talking Machine Co. had shown a continuous growth. He also stated that the policy of the company to help dealers sell more merchandise was bearing fruit and that this same policy would guide the destinies of the company for years to come.

After Mr. Davega's address the dealers were guests of the Knickerbocker Talking Machine Co. at a luncheon served at the Hotel Theresa.

ONTARIO TRADE OPPOSES COMMERCIAL AGREEMENTS ACT

Delegation of Manufacturers Registers Protest Against Proposed Legislation—Electric Phonograph Motor Co. Enters Radio Field—Changes and Expansions in the Trade—The News

TORONTO, ONT., November 8.—In connection with the bill before the Ontario Legislature introduced by Hon. W. E. Raney, Attorney-General, known as "The Commercial Agreements Act, 1922," a committee of the House, comprising twelve members from the Government and from the opposition, held, during the third week of this month, a three-day session in consultation with delegations from the various industries. From the talking machine trade there were present Messrs. E. M. Berliner, Berliner Gramophone Co., Ltd., Montreal; N. H. Conley, Mason & Risch, Ltd., Toronto; R. H. Murray, His Master's Voice, Ltd., Toronto; E. C. Scythes, Scythes Vocalion Co., Ltd., Toronto; O. Wagner, R. S. Williams & Sons Co., Ltd., and president of the Canadian Phonograph Manufacturers' Association, and James G. Merrick, secretary Canadian Phonograph Manufacturers' Association.

The key to the proposed legislation is in this clause: "Every agreement entered into between the vender and purchaser of any article, or by either or both with any third person, the object or effect of which is to establish, set or maintain any stated, fixed or common re-sale price of such article, or re-sale price which may later become stated, fixed or common, is hereby declared to be unlawful and shall be null and void."

Before the committee Mr. Merrick pointed out that in his twenty-odd years' close association with manufacturers and groups of manufacturers he had not known of a case where any group had combined or had discussed combining to fix a common re-sale price. In commenting on the question to your correspondent Mr. Merrick observed that any legislation of the nature of that proposed should be the decision of the Dominion Government and not of any provincial government. The bill before the committee would seek to impose upon manufacturers in one section of the country conditions that the same class of business men in the other provinces would be free from, which would lead to chaotic conditions. Mr. Merrick also noted that the opinions expressed by all the delegations were in opposition to the bill, none favoring it. Edgar M. Berliner, on behalf of the talking machine and record industry, in addressing the committee, presented effective argument against the proposed legislation. He pointed out that the experience of many years had demonstrated that on a policy of fixed retail prices the consumer received a better article for less money; that higher quality and more efficient service are possible than could prevail under conditions of haphazard prices. Competition, he pointed out, took care of prices and in this law of economics the public had better protection than anything else could give. Efficient manufacturers preferred the larger production that only lower prices made possible, hence reductions were always made when conditions permitted. Asked by the chairman of the committee if he had ever voluntarily reduced prices Mr. Berliner was able to refer to the decrease made in the price of His Master's Voice records from 85 cents to 75 cents earlier in the month as an evidence of the practice of the principle advocated in fixed prices. In reply to the chairman's query as to whether the decreases were dictated by altruistic motives, Mr. Berliner promptly but good-naturedly refused credit for altruism. The reduction, he assured the committee, was solely a business proposition, made possible by increased manufacturing efficiency and by the certain likelihood of sufficiently large increases in the number of records being purchased by the public because of the lower price. Mr. Berliner pointed out that the retailers of his firm's products preferred the fixed prices because of the clean, straightforward and safe business methods promoted. This policy also made possible the continuing in business of the small dealer, a most desirable feature in the interests of the consumer. Altogether, Mr. Berliner made a telling and well-delivered contribution to the case presented by the opposing forces.

Sensing the demand for a reliable and complete radio outfit at a popular price the Simplex Electric Phonograph Motor Co., Ltd., this city, makers of the well-known Simplex electric motor, are about to enter the radio field with complete radio sets for both local use and long-distance range. The popular price of these sets will, it is believed, place them within the reach of everyone and should be the means of interesting talking machine dealers throughout the Dominion of Canada in these radio sets.

The Gold Medal Radio-Phonograph Corp., Ltd., is adding to its lines electric talking machines and combination radio-receiving and phonograph sets. They also have control of a new silent, enclosed and self-lubricating motor which, they consider, is partly responsible for largely increased sales of Gold Medal phonographs.

Paderewski's reappearance in recital has been definitely fixed for November 17 in Massey Hall, this city.

An interesting and tried-out proposition for Brunswick retail salesmen has been introduced by the Musical Merchandise Sales Co. This is a savings bank in the form of a miniature Brunswick phonograph. The idea is to use it as the reason for a return call when a previous call has not resulted in a sale. It is presented to the prospect with the suggestion that it affords the means of making the purchase possible at a later date with no outlay other than the saving of small change.

The Columbia Graphophone Co., this city, announces a reduction in the price of its ten-inch double-faced records from 85 to 75 cents.

Among recent visitors to Toronto was W. F. Hitchcock, of the Phonomotor Co., Rochester, N. Y., accompanied by his wife. While in the city Mr. and Mrs. Hitchcock gave a dinner party to some of their Toronto friends, among whom were A. B. Beverley, of the National Cabinet Co., and wife, James Pollock and Robert Dearth, of the G. L. Laing Co.

The "Impresad," for which the Musical Merchandise Sales Co., 79 Wellington street, west, is sole Canadian distributor, is making a hit with the trade and orders are coming in freely for this outfit.

During the Summer months plans for an intensive campaign were completed by O. C. Dorian, who is trading under the name Manufacturers' Sales Co., with office and showroom on the second floor of the Tycos Building, 110 Church street. Mr. Dorian, who is wholesaling the "Strand" console line of phonographs, is widely known in the Canadian industry. Associated with Mr. Dorian in special sales work is E. H. Van Gelder, well known from coast to coast through his previous Sonora connection.

Alton F. Parkes, who has been connected with Gourlay, Winter & Leeming, Ltd., for the past fifteen years, has opened the Yvonne Music Shoppe at 2058 Danforth avenue, where he is handling His Master's Voice and Gourlay lines.

W. H. Banfield & Sons have arranged to manufacture completely in Canada various articles of the Oro-Tone range of phonograph equipment. Among these will be the O. G. Tone-Arm, which will be known as the No. 100; the No. 0 concert reproducer and the L. S. reproducer. "These are lines," says E. M. Jones, general sales manager, "that have taken well with the trade in Canada and we can reduce the cost of production and thus give the trade high-grade equipment at fair prices."

The Ventrilophone is a new talking machine made in Canada by the Britannia Cabinet & Phonograph Co., of this city. Its inventor is C. H. Larsson, who utilizes the space usually given over to record storage as a sound chamber.

In co-operation with the Commercial Investment Trust, of New York, and the Brunswick Co., the Musical Merchandise Sales Co., the exclusive Brunswick distributor in Canada, has worked out a plan to provide dealers with a means of doing more business with a given capital. This is a method of discounting their paper at reasonable rates. The plan was satisfactorily tried out in the United States by the Brunswick Co. to its satisfaction.

Samples of Starr phonographs and records were shown at the recent Ottawa fair, the two new Console models, XVIII and XIX occupying a place of prominence on the stand. A large Starr phonograph in ivory and gold proved a strong magnet for capturing public attention.

Other concerts in which Victor artists will appear are being planned by this progressive dealer, one of which will feature the Eight Famous Victor Artists. On December 4 a concert will be staged at Milford under the joint management of La Roe's and Reynold's music stores, the latter a Victor dealer of Milford. A concert to be held at Fall River is also being planned.

TALKING DOLLS INTEREST TRADE

At the recent merchandise fair held in New York one of the most attractive exhibits was the line of "Madame Hendren" dolls, which feature as part of their mechanical equipment talking machine records reciting nursery rhymes and singing songs. Talking machine dealers who visited the fair evinced keen interest in these dolls, not only from a sales viewpoint, but with the idea in mind of using them in window displays to attract the attention of passers-by. The doll shown in the accompanying illustration is known as the "Dolly-Rekord" model and is equipped with a small motor, which, when operated, plays various records with songs making a particular appeal to small children. Madame Hendren dolls, which are manufactured by the Averill Mfg. Co., New York, are being advertised extensively through various forms of publicity.

ANNOUNCES GLOBE RECORD PLANS

M. E. Schechter, President of Globe Distributing Corp., Gives Details of Distribution Plans—Library Now Ready—Dealers Appointed

The recent announcement made by the Globe Distributing Corp., 30 Church street, New York, as to its plans for merchandising Globe records, has attracted the keen interest of the trade and the first announcement in The Talking Machine World last month has produced inquiries from dealers throughout the country and even abroad. The company's plans are progressing rapidly and M. E. Schechter, president and general manager of the company, is personally in charge of all the details incidental to distribution. Mr. Schechter is well known in the talking machine industry, having been Eastern sales manager for the General Phonograph Corp. for four years and prior to that time having occupied the important post of purchasing agent for the Sonora Phonograph Corp. He is, therefore, thoroughly familiar with every phase of the industry and brings to his new position an invaluable experience that will be placed at the disposal of dealers handling Globe records.

Associated with Mr. Schechter in the Globe Distributing Corp. are J. A. Scattergood, who has been elected vice-president of the company, and W. C. Dixon, who has been elected treasurer. Mr. Scattergood was formerly vice-president of the Gotham National Bank and also was an executive of the National City Bank. He is well known in banking circles and will be an important factor in the executive plans of the Globe Distributing Corp. Mr. Dixon is identified with several successful commercial enterprises.

In a chat with The World Mr. Schechter stated as follows: "We are planning to emphasize the five exclusive features of Globe records in every possible way. We have perfected a new and improved type of record that we will guarantee to play at least 250 times and which will last longer than any record now on the market. We have practically eliminated surface noises and the list price of Globe records (sixty-five cents) will undoubtedly be a powerful sales stimulant. Regular monthly lists will be issued and the Globe library will consist of popular and standard numbers. We are working at a distinct advantage with this new record inasmuch as we already have an extensive library that can be merchandised immediately.

"At the present time we are working out our plans for the wholesale distribution of Globe records and full details regarding these plans will be ready in the near future. In all probability our plans for the wholesale distribution of these records will involve new merchandising ideas that will provide Globe dealers with maximum service and co-operation."

The Dubuque Music House, Dubuque, Ia., recently opened a branch in the Ruote Drug Store there.

Vincent Lopez and his orchestra have won recognition as one of the leading dance organizations in the country and the Lopez Okeh records have attained phenomenal success. Paul L. Baerwald, Eastern sales manager of the General Phonograph Corp., collaborated with Mr. Max in the preparation of the program and the details incidental to the concert.

A short while ago Mr. Max arranged to handle Okeh records in the Gimbel talking machine department and during the past few weeks the sale of these records has exceeded all expectations.

The Greater City Phonograph Co., New York, Sonora jobber in metropolitan territory, has been closing phenomenal business during the past few months and Maurice Landay, president of the company, states his chief trouble at the present time is a shortage of merchandise. EDISON ADOPTS NEW POLICY OF RELEASING RECORDS

Inauguration of New Plan in February Will Abolish Monthly Group Record Releases Now in Common Use—New Schedule Provides for the Releasing of Each Record as a Separate Unit

Thomas A. Edison, Inc., has just announced a new plan for releasing records that is radically different from that now being used by any of the record manufacturers and it is a plan which involves many meritorious points that presage its being received by the trade and public with a great deal of enthusiasm.

This new plan, which will be introduced in the month of February, 1923, is revolutionary in that it abolishes entirely and completely the idea of a different group of records being identified with a particular month of the year. Whereas it has been the policy of the Edison Co. for many years past to issue a monthly list of records at a different date each month, the Edison Co. will, with the inception of the new policy, release each new record as a single unit.

In other words, just as soon as a new popular number has proved its merit or its ability to attain popular favor it will be promptly released without reference to any monthly list. According to the schedule now laid out, the Edison Co. will release, each month, six or more "Flashes from Broadway," the new designation for Edison popular records, and six special numbers which will include selections of standard pieces, etc. In addition to these there will be each month other general releases of an unusual character. There will be no specific day of the month when any of these records will be released, and they will, in fact, be spread throughout the entire month, and as released will be classed under one of the three following headings: "Flashes from Broadway" Group, Special Group or General Group.

The idea is, of course, to give the Edison dealer records that will be as readily marketable as possible and to eliminate, in the public mind, the thought that certain records are identified with months that have elapsed and that they are out of date, resulting in a loss of sales.

Along this line of speeding up the turnover of records for the retailer and of keeping the dealer record inventory as low as possible, the Edison Co. will supply its dealers with advertising and promotion material which dovetail with each new record release. There will be a large streamer for the top of the store window which will read, "Edison Recent Record Releases," under which will be room for pasting the name of each new release that comes out during the current month. A record bulletin, with a similar title, will be supplied for display in the store and in the record booths, and the bulletin will also have a space for adding the names of the new records as fast as they come out.

As soon as the window display and the store bulletins contain a list of twelve records a new display and a new bulletin of new releases will be started and the dealer will be supplied with a special booklet which features the last twelve selections to appear on the release bulletin. The dealer will then start to build up a new list of twelve numbers on the bulletin and on his window display and this program will be continued.

There will be nothing contained in the booklets which will designate them as belonging to a particular month, so that whenever any prospective record purchaser picks up any of the booklets all of the pieces featured therein will appear as live numbers. These booklets will, in make-up, typography, etc., resemble the former monthly record supplements.

Under this plan of merchandising records the Edison Co. and the Edison dealers will conduct a vigorous campaign to impress upon the record-buying public the thought that they should be continually dropping into Edison

Good Business Begets Optimism—Shortage of Medium-Priced Machines Felt—Review of Trade

ATLANTA, GA., November 8.—Business conditions generally in Atlanta and adjacent territory are showing rapid and steady improvement and many of the larger music houses state that October was the banner month of the year with much good business still in prospect for the holiday season.

Talking machine dealers throughout the Atlanta territory, which takes in sections of adjacent States, are all in an optimistic frame of mind and a number of them have installed new equipment and remodeled their establishments to take care of the growing demand.

George W. Lyle, president of the Manufacturers' Phonograph Co., New York, was a recent visitor to Atlanta, making his headquarters while here with the company's representative in the South, M. E. Lyle. During his visit Mr. Lyle found time to look up a number of his old acquaintances in the trade. His schedule from here was New Orleans and Dallas, with a stop-over of a day at Birmingham.

A. C. Boatman, who has been manager of the Victrola department of Chamberlain-Johnson-DuBose Co., is now devoting his time exclusively to his work as a teacher of music.

Wm. F. Standke, who was recently appointed district manager of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., with headquarters in Atlanta, Ga., is well known to the talking machine trade in the South, as for seven years he was manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co.'s wholesale branch in New Orleans. He was also identified with the Grafonola Shop in Kansas City, Mo., for three years, and is recognized as exceptionally well qualified to co-operate with the dealers in this section of the country.

There is a shortage already apparent in machines at moderate prices. This is especially true of the console type, several of the more popular models being completely sold out with many sales hanging fire.

The dealers who are handling the Okeh record, "Tune In With My Heart," are finding their sales limited only by their supply. Ernest Rogers, a member of the Journal staff, is featuring this song during his engagement at one of the local theatres.

M. E. Lyle has recently returned from a visit to the Strand factory at Salem, Ind., where he attended the convention of Strand representatives and helped celebrate the first anniversary of the Strand consoles. He has been expecting samples of the new Heppelwhite Strand Console, listing at $100, and the new "Consolette" for the Victor VI and the Chippendale, which will sell for $175.

A recent addition to the sales force of the local Brunswick branch is H. Kaliski, who has had long experience in the talking machine trade in the South, as he traveled for years for the Columbia Phonograph Co.'s New Orleans branch.

In Chattanooga the Clemmons Furniture Co. has moved into its new store. The attractive booths are Unico equipment and conveniently located on the main floor. The building itself is as fine a furniture store as any in the entire South.

The Southern Standard Music Co. has recently become Victor dealer and looks forward to a season of excellent business, since all the principal industries of Chattanooga are working full time.

The R. B. Broyles Furniture Co. is now located in its new store nearer the center of Birmingham's business district.

The Williams Piano Co., Sioux Falls, Neb., has inaugurated a strong campaign among local schools in behalf of the Victor line. The drive is meeting with considerable success.

REORGANIZE DANON RECORD CO.

The Danon Record Co., New York, manufacturer of Rekord Rekordo discs for making records in the home, has been reorganized and the new president of the company is Julius H. Roos, well known in talking machine circles throughout the country. Associated with Mr. Roos are Nestor Roos, who is treasurer of the company, and Ely Nahoum, who is secretary. In addition to making Rekord Rekordos this company is the exclusive sales agent for the Lamp-o-fone, a new combination lamp and phonograph that has been on display at the Hotel Claridge, New York.

W. J. BAGSHAW A VISITOR

W. J. Bagshaw, secretary of the W. H. Bagshaw Co., well-known needle manufacturer, of Lowell, Mass., was among recent visitors to New York City. Mr. Bagshaw reported that the plant is working at full capacity and that the demand this season has been exceptional.

PATHE FRERES PHONOGRAPH & RADIO CORP. OPERATING

Following Reorganization Eugene A. Widmann Becomes President of New Corporation With M. Emil Pathé as Director—Splendid Work Accomplished by Mr. Widmann and Mr. Leeming

Under the name of the Pathé Frères Phonograph & Radio Corp. the reorganization of the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., has been completed. Creditors of the Pathé Frères Co. agreed on November 6 in the Federal Court in Brooklyn to accept stocks and bonds totaling $3,500,000, which equals the sum owed, in the new Pathé Phonograph & Radio Corp. Federal Judge Edward L. Garvin signed an order directing the receivers for the Pathé Frères Corp. and counsel for the creditors to complete the arrangements.

This reorganization in the comparatively short period in which the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co. has been in the hands of a receiver in equity is a distinct tribute to Eugene A. Widmann, who was president of the old company, later one of the receivers in equity in association with the Hon. William Redfield and Benjamin M. Kay, and who is now president of the new organization. Within a short period of about ten months this reorganization to safeguard the interests of the creditors has been accomplished. The detailed plans of the reorganization were printed in a recent issue of The World. Schedules showing that the entire indebtedness of the corporation would be paid in full in cash and new securities were submitted to the United States District Court which resulted in a discontinuance of official supervision by that court.

Mr. Widmann was the first president of the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co. and through the greater part of its history its only president. For a few months previous to the receivership Mr. Widmann retired in favor of W. W. Chase. However, realizing Mr. Widmann's thorough knowledge of the details of the company and his unselfish interest in its progress, he was appointed as one of the receivers in equity. His plans for the new company have been very carefully laid and are most extensive in scope.

It is announced that M. Emil Pathé, of the French house of Pathé Frères, will become a director in the new company and that abundant capital for the execution of extensive operations has been acquired. It is also said that the concern will be maintained as a close corporation and it is planned to expand the company's operations in several important ways. Production of Pathé and Actuelle phonographs and records has been maintained without interruption during the past year. During that period a reduction in the price of Actuelle records was announced which has resulted in an exceptional demand and a corresponding remarkable increase in record production. It is now stated, as may be surmised from the name of the new company, that radio apparatus will be added to the line. A large amount of experimental work has been conducted in the past toward this end and it is expected that it will only be a short time before the radio end of the business will be in full swing.

Eugene A. Widmann

A large amount of credit is also due to H. T. Leeming, who, as general manager of the Pathé Co., has contributed much to its increased business. Under the expert supervision of these two executives and their experienced staff of co-workers it is safe to predict a bright future for the new company.

FINE BRILLIANTONE NEEDLE DEMAND

Byron R. Forster Reports Encouraging Conditions Throughout Country on Recent Trip

Byron R. Forster, president of the Brilliantone Steel Needle Co., New York City, returned to Brilliantone headquarters after an extended trip throughout the West. Mr. Forster brought back with him encouraging reports of good business being done throughout the entire country which were substantiated by large orders for Brilliantone needles. Mr. Forster stated that the demand for Brilliantone needles is exceptional and that a tremendous volume of business has been transacted during the past few months in these needles.

The plant of the W. H. Bagshaw Co., Lowell, Mass., of which the Brilliantone Steel Needle Co. is sole selling agent, is working at full capacity and overtime to keep up with the tremendous demand.

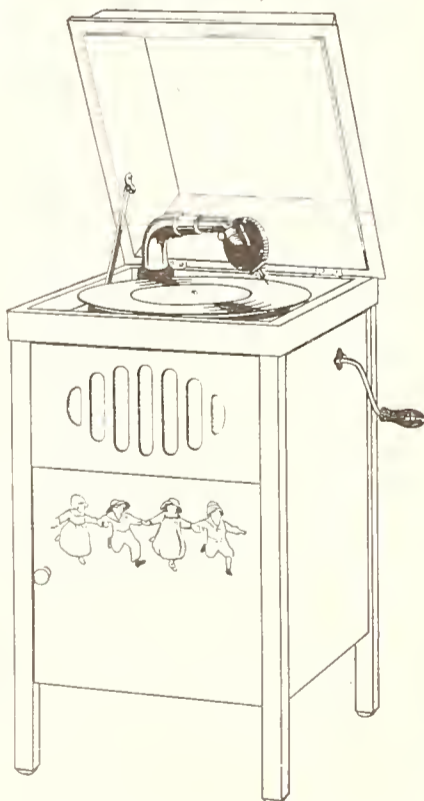

NEW "REPEAT-O-VOICE" AGENCY

The Plaza Music Co., New York City, has closed arrangements whereby it becomes sole selling agent for the "Repeat-O-Voice," a metal disc record which, without extra attachments, can be used for home recording. The record is six inches, double faced, and is retailed at a popular price.

TO appeal to the most exacting tastes in both music and cabinetry this line of phonographs has been produced. Our representatives are able to state with confidence that there is nothing equal in design, mechanism, or tone to be had in phonographs.

CLAYOLA

Cabinets are the design of America's greatest furniture makers and cabinet craftsmen, Irving & Casson, of Boston. The tone chamber is of wood from the same identical stock that is used in the sounding boards of the Steinway pianos. The motor is electric, adapted to both types of current, and has proved itself through years of severe use, and there is an electrically operated non-set brake device, which is exclusive to these instruments. Another important exclusive feature is the "swing out" motor and turntable unit at one end with the tone chamber running the entire length of the table, leaving the top always undisturbed for regular table uses.

In addition to such better known styles as Queen Anne, and William and Mary, the line includes some writing desk and corner cabinet models, of unique beauty and originality. There are special designs that can be had with or without radio equipment.

EXCLUSIVE FEATURES

Cases specially designed by Irving & Casson of Boston.

Horn of Steinway piano sounding-board stock.

A universal electric motor.

Automatic Non-set Electric brake.

"Swing out" turntable and motor unit at end, giving extra long tone chamber.

Non-raising top, giving undisturbed table use.

CELEBRATE FIRST STRAND ANNIVERSARY AT SALEM, IND.

Representatives of the Manufacturers' Phonograph Corp., Inc., Journey From All Parts of Country to Attend Two Days' Session at Salem Plant to Celebrate and Plan Future Business

In honor of the first "Strand" anniversary, sales representatives of the Manufacturers' Phonograph Corp., Inc., located in all parts of the country, met at the plant in Salem, Ind., on October 27 to 28 for a two days' session. Although this is the busiest season of the year, these representatives assembled not only to celebrate the end of a most successful first year, one found an opportunity to discuss important matters with George W. Lyle, president of the company; Ford Smith, factory manager, and other officials. Late in the afternoon the entire party visited West Baden, where dinner was served.

The next day was given over entirely to business sessions, and important conferences were but with the hope that some way might be found whereby a large allotment of Strand product might be secured for each one's individual needs.

Friday was "get-together" day, the various groups arriving throughout the day, one contingent from the North and West coming down in the morning from Chicago, while the Easterners arrived in the early afternoon by way of Cincinnati. Each group was promptly taken in hand and given a trip through the plant, seeing all operations in proper sequence, from the arrival and storage of the lumber, through the different stages, from dry kilns to the final inspection, packing and shipping. As no formal session was scheduled for the first day every-held on policies, product, plans, etc. As a result of the day's meetings the Manufacturers' Phonograph Co. will probably have several important announcements to make in the very near future, all of which will aim to give Strand dealers maximum service and co-operation.

The success attained by the Manufacturers' Phonograph Corp. in the brief space of twelve months is one of the outstanding features of talking machine activities this year. When George W. Lyle, president of the company, announced his plans for the introduction of the Strand phonograph it was freely predicted that his expectations would not be realized, as the company was formed at a time when the business situation was decidedly unimpressive. However, Mr. Lyle inaugurated sales policies and ideas which soon produced results and gradually a sales organization was formed that comprised some of the best-known men in the industry.

The Strand plant at Salem, Ind., is one of the finest talking machine factories in the country, with an equipment that is absolutely perfect and facilities that are unexcelled. It was thought at first that the tremendous output of the plant would soon result in overproduction, but the energy and aggressiveness of the Strand sales organization, coupled with the merits of the product, soon proved otherwise. In fact, there is a decided shortage of Strand consoles and consolettes this Fall, with every indication that the company will close a healthy and successful year in 1923.

The Strand representatives who attended this conference were as follows: George W. Lyle, president of the company; Arthur C. Erisman, Walter L. Eckhardt, R. H. Arnault, Mervin E. Lyle, Ben L. Brown, E. A. Fearn, R. J. Jamieson, Walter S. Gray, A. Schielie, S. M. Wirts and Messrs. Hanover, Schoenwald and McGrath. The factory executives who were present were Arthur L. Stone, Oscar F. Mehorney, Ford Smith and W. C. Shanks. W. C. Fuhri, general sales manager of the General Phonograph Corp., happened to be in Salem, Ind., during the convention period and was invited to attend the informal meetings.

USES TIMELY ADVERTISING

Columbia Dealer Uses Painted Sign to Advantage—Publicity Produces Results

St. JOSEPH, Mo., November 6.—Louis Deitsch, manager of Scanlan's Hardware Co., in this city, is a firm believer in advertising and he is making the people of South St. Joseph and vicinity recognize the fact that a complete stock of Columbia records is carried by this store.

Columbia Sign That Attracted Attention

Included in this campaign is a painted sign at the corner of the Scanlan Hardware Co.'s building, featuring a large Columbia record with an all-star Columbia cast at the bottom. Mr. Deitsch has named this record "The Illinois Avenue Blues," partly due to the fact that Illinois Avenue is the street on which the store is located. "The Illinois Avenue Blues" is frequently played by the Scanlan Trio of the American Legion Post.

BIG CALL FOR PHONO PARTS

A decided improvement in business is reported by William Phillips, president of William Phillips Phono Parts Corp., New York. The first two weeks of November would indicate that the remarkable October record will probably be surpassed this month. It is noticeable that practically all orders request immediate delivery, which would indicate that the talking machine manufacturer is in turn receiving a considerable amount of rush orders from the dealer. This condition illustrates the healthy state of the industry.

LYRADION CO. OPENS WAREROOMS

New Wholesale and Retail Warerooms at 620 North Michigan Avenue, Where Full Line Is Shown, of Great Convenience to Retailers.

CHICAGO, ILL., November 9.—The Lyradion Manufacturing Co. has opened wholesale and retail warerooms at 620 North Michigan avenue, with L. C. Barnett as manager. The complete Lyradion line, comprising twenty models of straight phonographs and radio models and combinations of both, is exhibited at the new headquarters. The models are shown in upright, console and art types.

The new warerooms will prove of great advantage to Lyradion dealers in this territory who, when they have prospects for high-priced instruments, can bring them to the store and display the various models, thus enabling the dealers to make sales without the expense of carrying the full line.

DEATH OF E. E. DAVIDSON

The trade was shocked to learn of the recent passing of E. E. Davidson, who has been a member of the sales promotion department of the phonograph division of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., since 1897. Mr. Davidson died of pneumonia at the age of 63 and is survived by his wife and three daughters. During the years of his business activity Mr. Davidson made a great many friends in the trade on account of his genial personality and his marked ability along the lines in which he specialized.

CONVINCING PROOF OF ACTIVITY

The Dealer Service Department of the Victor Talking Machine Co. reports a very large increase in the demand for electrotypes and cuts of Victor trade-marks of the different models of Victrolas, the Victor borders and Victor advertising illustrations. A similar increase in activity is growing as regards window displays and window display material. All of this activity shows that the Victor dealers throughout the country are going out after business in a more aggressive manner than has been the case until the Fall season opened up so encouragingly.

Now that business is to be had the retailers evidently feel convinced that it is worth while going after through aggressive publicity efforts and the increased demand for dealer service material is, without question, a barometer of the fact that the retail business is improved to a remarkable extent and that the outlook is very fine.

PRICE SITUATION REVIEWED

Max Willinger, president of the New York Album & Card Co., New York City, reports that both plants of the company situated in Chicago and New York are very busy. Mr. Willinger states that paper, cloth and other commodities used in album manufacturing have been increasing rapidly in price and predicts that this increase in price on raw materials will have its ultimate effect in the increased cost of complete albums. At the present time, however, through the farsightedness of Mr. Willinger, the New York Album & Card Co. is still in possession of a fair stock of raw materials which was purchased at the previous prices. Following the long-established policy of this house it will not raise prices while this stock lasts.

NEW EDISON SHOP IN WARREN, O.

WARREN, O., November 7.—Another unit has been added to the music stores of this city in the new Edison Shop, recently opened on the second floor of the Packard Block here. Complete record and machine departments have been installed, together with an attractively furnished rest room. Several tone tests were featured in the opening ceremonies.

"TALKER" AND RADIO FIRM FORMED

The Radio Motion Picture & Phonograph Corp., of Fall River, Mass., and New York City, manufacturer of talking machines, motion pictures, radio apparatus, etc., has been chartered under the laws of Massachusetts, with a capital of $300,000. Incorporation papers were filed by F. X. Perron, F. F. Berseron, J. H. Levesque and others.

The Music Shop is the latest addition to the music stores of Helena, Ark.

G. W. EDWARDS WITH REFLEXO

The Reflexo Products Co., Inc., New York City, maker of "Reflexo" talking machine needles and other brands, has announced the appointment of G. W. Edwards to its sales staff. Mr. Edwards was formerly sales representative of Joe Morris, New York music publisher, and will represent Reflexo products in New England. He has already begun his first trip throughout the territory. Mr. Edwards is well known to the trade and his wide experience will prove valuable in his new connection.

BALTIMORE

Shortage of Machines Acts as Detriment to Complete Trade Development—Sales Double Last Year's Figures—Trade Changes

BALTIMORE, MD., November 10.—The talking machine business here has resolved itself simply into a question of delivering the goods, as practically all the wholesalers in the city are entirely cleaned out and have a large number of unfilled orders on their books.

Business 110 Per Cent Ahead of Last Year

W. T. Roberts, manager of E. F. Droop & Sons, Inc., said to-day that never in the history of the firm have they been sold out as completely or so far behind in their orders as they are to-day, with the one exception of the abnormal war-time prosperity prevailing during 1918.

"We have orders on file now for upright and console types which cannot be filled before next March at the present rate we are receiving them from the factory," said Mr. Roberts. "Our business was 110 per cent last month ahead of October, 1921, and I look for this condition to continue, if not improve, right along until after the holidays." Mr. Roberts' optimism reflects the sentiment prevailing among the other jobbers in the city.

J. C. Shaw, manager of the local Brunswick branch, reports being hard put to keep anywhere near up with orders being booked for the Brunswick, especially the new console type, the York, which has made a phenomenal hit in this section ever since it has been put on the market, and he has been able to supply less than half of the orders booked for this machine while the Columbia agency reports to be in a little better shape insofar as deliveries are concerned. They also are behind in their orders for not only the current, but for the holiday trade.

Southern Conditions Satisfactory

W. S. Parks, who has just returned from a trip through the southern portion of the Baltimore territory, says the business outlook through the South, especially in North Carolina, as very good, due to the increase in the price of cotton and tobacco which growers have been receiving for their products for some time past.

Brunswick for Lansburgh & Bros.

Manager Shaw was greatly pleased the past week over the landing of a contract for the sale of the Brunswick products from Lansburgh & Bros., one of the largest department stores in Washington, D. C. Stanley Lansburgh, one of the members of the firm who has charge of the talking machine department, is featuring the Brunswick machine in all the company's advertising and has installed one of the most complete stock of Brunswick products in this section of the country, including both machines and records.

Mr. Shaw has just closed a contract for the erection of the largest billboard advertisement in the city. The sign, which will be 115 feet by 25 feet, is to be erected opposite the Union Station and will be visible from all the trains passing through Baltimore on their way to the nation's capital and the South.

Flooded With Nondescript Machines

Baltimore is being flooded with sales of no-name talking machines just at present which are being featured by many department stores at bargain prices ranging from $49 for uprights to $99.75 for consoles of various types. These machines, which are extensively advertised without the name or the make being used, are being offered with liberal inducements as to cash payment and monthly payments in addition to a number of records being given free. The payments are as low as seventy-five cents a week on some of the machines.

H. T. Bosse to Go Into Business for Himself

H. T. Bosse, sales manager for Cohen & Hughes, Inc., has resigned to go into business for himself. I. Son Cohen, the head of the firm, is looking after the work formerly done by Mr. Bosse and the position of sales manager will not be filled, at least until after the first of the year.

Columbia Educational Records Popular

Sales Manager Swartz, of the Columbia Co., reports the big increase in the sale of educational records following a visit of Miss Margaret R. Martin, of the educational department of the Columbia Co., to Johns Hopkins and other institutions of learning in Virginia, West Virginia and North Carolina.

A Budget of Brieflets

Mrs. Kirkwood, in charge of the Grafonola department at Murphy's on Lexington street, reports a big advance sale for holiday goods.

W. L. Baker, formerly of the Duroflex Co., Inc., of Baltimore, is now in charge of the Washington sales department of the Columbia Co.

The Voluma Corporation, which in addition to improving the Voluma reproducer has also started the manufacture of talking machines, has just opened in a large, commodious and handsome showroom in the Academy of Music Building on North Howard street.

The Hamman-Levin Co., 212 North Howard street has just opened a fully equipped musical instrument department in connection with its piano and talking machine business. The Martin Hand Craft band instruments will be featured.

The Phonolamp talking machine agency here has moved into new and larger quarters at 111 North Green street.

The Columbia branch reports large sales and advance orders for the new Columbia record which has just been placed on the market here. The agency is doing some extensive advertising of this new record, full-page ads being used in the daily papers of the big cities throughout the Baltimore territory.

S. & K. Snyder have just opened their new and enlarged music shop on East Monument street, where they have one of the handsomest and best-appointed talking machine establishments in the city.

H. H. Sheldon, who recently joined the local branch of the Brunswick Co., has just returned from a trip to North Carolina and reports excellent business in that territory.

NEW STORE IN LEETONIA, O.

LEETONIA, O., October 30.—The Webber Music Store, of Lisbon, will open a branch store on Main street this week. An informal opening will take place during the week and all ladies attending will be presented with favors. The store will be in charge of Miss Helen Flodding, of Leetonia. The Webber Co. has for more than a year conducted a successful retail store at Lisbon, featuring the Edison line of phonographs and records.

W. J. STAATS BACK FROM EUROPE

W. J. Staats, treasurer of the Victor Talking Machine Co., of Camden, N. J., and Mrs. Staats returned last week from Europe on the "Mauretania." Colin E. Cooper, president-director of the Gramophone Co., of England, and also a director of the Victor Talking Machine Co., returned at the same time.

J. W. Jenkins' Sons Music Co. Extends Unique Ad Service to Dealers—Artophone Corp. Opens Offices—News of the Month

KANSAS CITY, Mo., November 6.—The J. W. Jenkins' Sons Music Co., of this city, is rendering its dealers a unique service this Fall in presenting each one with a Jenkins Ad-service booklet. Fred Jenkins states that nearly every dealer in the territory is his own manager, decorator, advertising-man and salesman. Thus, there is little time to arrange advertisements of the appropriate, seasonal type. To make them attractive is an art beyond the average man. Many of the dealers also had trouble in knowing how to order the electrotypes the Victor Co. furnishes on request. The prepared plan was arranged by the advertising department of the J. W. Jenkins' Sons Music Co. to abolish all these troubles and unsuccessful advertising campaigns. Carefully worded advertisements with the electrotypes placed proportionately to attract the eye have been worked out for each week from now until the end of the year. The dealer has only to write the advertising department of the Victor Talking Machine Co. for the electrotypes, giving the number indicated in the copy. There is no charge for the use of the electrotypes except the postage. When they arrive the dealer tears the prepared sheet from the booklet and presents it with the electrotypes to the printer.

Edison Co. Adds Piano Line

Manager Blackman, of the Edison Co., has just returned from New York, where he has been in the interest of his company. He has opened his piano department in the retail Edison Shop and is featuring this week in his advertising and show windows the Bond reproducing grand piano.

Artophone Corp. Opens Local Offices

The Artophone Corp., whose manufacturing plant is in St. Louis, Mo., has located its offices in the Kansas City Life Building on Grand avenue, this city. E. W. Guttenberger is general manager. Foreign records of all nations made by the Okeh Co. are handled as the leader in the record line. Though the company has been in Kansas City but a short time, a rapid growth has been enjoyed and the outlook is exceedingly bright.

Wunderlich Music Co.'s Interesting Contest

The guessing contest being held by the Wunderlich Music Co. is going splendidly, according to Miss McArthur, manager of the record department. It is surprising the number of people that can be interested in this way, she says. The person guessing the serial number or the number nearest the record displayed in the show window receives a record of his choice. The Wunderlich Music Co. recently added the records of the original Sacred Harp Singers, who are now recording for Brunswick, to its already large variety of records.

Sings for Radio

Velma Lyons Weer, of the record department of the Wunderlich Music Co., sang for the Kansas City Star radio broadcasting station recently. Mrs. Weer was the first person to sing over the radio after the change from the 360 to the 400 meter wave length. All her selections were enjoyed. Every one "listening in" remarked the great difference in tonal quality when the radio station changed the meter. Mrs. Weer sang "Smilin' Thru'."

Brunswick Manager Reports Trade Optimism

F. M. Briggs, district manager of the Brunswick Co., returned recently from a business trip through southern Kansas and Missouri, where he called on the trade. Mr. Briggs reports an enthusiasm among the music merchants of these towns which was surprising to him. Since the settlement of the mining trouble in that territory business has shown a decided improvement.

The exclusive Brunswick artist, Mario Chamlee, appeared in Lawrence and Topeka, Kan.,

recently. Additional orders from dealers in this territory for records of this tenor have helped to make the past month a very busy one for the Brunswick people.

Persistent work has enabled Mrs. O. H. Kinman, Columbia dealer at Mankato, Kan., to achieve a record that will be difficult to beat. During a period of only one year she has sold fifty-six Grafonolas to the schools in her territory and when it is realized that the schools in north central Kansas in the vicinity of Mankato are widely scattered her achievement is all the more remarkable.

Besides selling the Grafonolas to the schools Mrs. Kinman also devised plans whereby the schools might raise the money to cover the purchase of the Grafonolas and Columbia records, and she has followed very closely the suggestions advanced by the educational department of the Columbia Graphophone Co. One of the most important factors in the success achieved by Mrs. Kinman in this school work is the use of form letters and invitations which she sends to the teachers regularly, showing the advantages of the Grafonola and Columbia records for school work and promising active cooperation in the plan for financing the purchase of these products.

Duci de Kerekjarto, famous Hungarian violinist and exclusive Columbia artist, appeared in this city recently as a headline attraction at the Orpheum Theatre. He received unusually favorable newspaper notices and played to capacity houses. At several performances his appearance at the theatre lasted nearly a half hour, which is a remarkable tribute to a vaudeville act of this type. All the local dealers reported a noticeable stimulant in the sale of Kerekjarto records and his appearance here has made him

Standke's Grafonola Shop, 1120 Grand avenue, and the North Mehorney Furniture Co., Eleventh and McGee streets, both report greatly increased sales of the Columbia records made by Frank Westphal and his orchestra as a result of their appearance at the Main Street Theatre in this city. Mr. Standke placed two Grafonolas in the lobby of the theatre during the entire week and also carried timely advertising announcing the fact that Frank Westphal and his Rainbo Orchestra are Columbia artists exclusively.

interests in this company and had, therefore, acquired complete control of this well-known organization. In a chat with The World, Mr. Green stated that no changes of any kind were being contemplated, except that plans for expansion and development were being worked out which would be announced in the near future.

Thos. F. Green is one of the best-known and most popular members in the Victor wholesale industry. Since 1914 he has been president of the Silas E. Pearsall Co., and prior to that date was associated for a number of years with the sales division of the Victor Talking Machine Co., Camden, N. J. He numbers among his friends Victor dealers and wholesalers from coast to coast, and his intimate familiarity with every phase of Victor merchandising has enabled him to attain phenomenal success with the Silas E. Pearsall Co. Under his able direction this company's business has increased rapidly, and to-day it is recognized as a leader in the Victor wholesale field. Mr. Green has devoted his entire time to the Pearsall activities, being ably assisted by Lloyd L. Spencer, sales manager of the company.

HOLIDAY DISPLAY WINDOW FOR USE BY EDISON DEALERS

Thomas A. Edison, Inc., has prepared a very effective window display for use of Edison dealers during the holiday season. The display consists of a series of very richly colored and appropriately designed posters which convey brief but pertinent holiday messages regarding very effective plan is to take the instrument out of the window entirely, but to leave the display otherwise as shown in the illustration, except for the fact that the small cards at the extreme right and left should be moved in close to the mounted stand and the two next larger the part which the new Edison can logically play during the holiday season from a gift standpoint.

The illustration shows one plan for using these posters in connection with two models of the new Edison and a number of Edison Re-Creations. There are, of course, many other combinations which can be worked out and one

The advantage of this window is to convey to passers-by the relation of music to the Christmas season, the appropriateness of the new Edison as a gift and the fact that this musical instrument is an ideal solution of the "family gift" problem.

MONTANA VICTOR DEALERS MEET

Many Instructive Addresses and Interesting Demonstrations Feature First Annual Meeting of the Victor Dealers of Montana

BUTTE, MONT., November 3.—The first annual meeting of the Victor Dealers of Montana, which was held in this city October 25, may be counted a decided success. The morning and afternoon sessions were filled with highly instructive addresses and demonstrations, covering Victrola construction, window trimming, ordering, selling and other topics which proved to be of deep interest to all present.

The day opened with an address by a noted Western surgeon, Dr. T. C. Witherspoon, who is conversant with the business conditions of the State and who did not hesitate to promise great things for the immediate future of Montana. Fred A. Bain spoke on advertising, driving home his message with pertinent and timely illustrations. Miss Minnie Tennis, of the Hennessey Co., enthusiastically described the fruitful results of Music Memory Contests she has fostered and carried out in Butte and other cities of the State. Leonard Waters, of the A. W. Hunt Music Co., chose "Selling Points" for his subject and revealed the secrets of his success as a Victrola salesman. Knight B. Owen, representing the Victor Talking Machine Co., brought an illuminating view of the factory's problems to the attention of the retailers. Other speakers of the day were: John Elliott Clark, Newton Congdon, of Orton Bros.; E. W. Softley, Miss Bess B. Jackson and Miss Beth Ericson. The business of the day ended with a general discussion.

In the evening a banquet and dance was held at the Silver Bow Club, at which the dealers and their ladies were guests of the John Elliott Clark Co., which has recently opened a wholesale house in Butte.

It is highly encouraging to find the dealers optimistic regarding Christmas business after the long period of depression they have been passing through. Prospects for the coming year are bright and the dealers are looking forward with a great deal of interest to another such meeting next Fall.

The C. D. Grubbs Music Co., of Houston, Tex., has been opened at 902 Capitol avenue. The new concern will feature Victor talking machines and records exclusively.

PORTLAND MUSIC WEEK SCORES HUGE SUCCESS

Talking Machine Dealers Co-operate With Committees in Making the Event an Outstanding Success—Business Shows Improvement—P. H. Rector in New Post—Other News

PORTLAND, ORE., November 8.—Music merchants of all kinds, including talking machine dealers, are co-operating with the various committees and clubs in the celebration of Music Week, which began on November 5 and will end on November 11 with a great Music Week Ball underwritten by prominent business men and designed to cover the expenses of the celebration. Mayor Baker issued a Music Week proclamation urging all citizens to co-operate in the movement.

General business conditions throughout the Portland district show much improvement and the talking machine dealers have excellent reports to make, the only fly in the ointment being the probable scarcity of machines at holiday time due to freight delays and other causes.

Elmer Hunt, wholesale manager of Sherman, Clay & Co., says: "Business conditions this Fall have improved wonderfully, but unfortunately we are again confronted with the usual Fall shortage. All Victor dealers are demanding goods and we naturally are keen to fill their orders. Shipments have again started to come in larger quantities and from now on we will be better able to supply their increasing needs."

Mr. Hunt announces three new Victor agencies in the Oregon district as follows: B. P. Bratt, of Baker, Ore., who has recently opened a complete new music store; R. E. Mitchell, a druggist, of Hermiston, Ore., and the Linnton Pharmacy.

Mr. Hunt is receiving the congratulations of his many friends on the arrival of Elmer Hunt, Jr., at his home.

Stanton Rowell, of Grant's Pass, Ore., and W. E. Bullard, of Ione, Ore., were two Victor dealers to pay Portland a visit during the past month.

Arthur W. Stein, manager of the Victrola department of Sherman, Clay & Co.'s store, reports a wonderful business which far exceeded that of last year. Sales of the better class of records are increasing, due, Mr. Stein says, to the concert season being here again. Geraldine Farrar and Mme. Margaret Matzenauer, two Victor artists, appeared in concert at the public auditorium during the past month and sang to packed houses.

The Kohler & Chase warerooms and offices have both been moved to 86½ Broadway.

J. P. Carney, Oregon representative of the Columbia Co., reports excellent business and says in the last sixty days twenty-five new Columbia accounts have been opened up throughout the State.

HANDLING OF TARIFF QUESTION

United States Tariff Commission to Deal Directly With All Requests or Petitions for Action or Relief Under Flexible Tariff

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 8.—The United States Tariff Commission will deal directly with those matters relating to tariff placed under its jurisdiction by the new tariff law, under instructions which have been issued by President Harding. The President has ordered that all requests, applications or petitions for action or relief under the flexible tariff provisions of the law shall be filed with or referred to the United States Tariff Commission direct for consideration and such investigation as is to be made. Within a few days the Commission will make an announcement of its plans for working out the duties under the new law. Tentative regulations governing its procedure have been drafted and the various members of the Commission are studying them. The personnel of the Commission is also being increased.

NEW ALTO AUTO-PNEUMATIC STOP

CHICAGO, ILL., November 10.—The Alto Mfg. Co., of this city, has just brought out a new automatic stop, which is something out of the ordinary in that it works pneumatically, being controlled entirely by the swinging of the tone arm. It embodies a non-set principle which is said to be very reliable and accurate in that it plays any record without setting regardless of whether it is hill and dale or lateral cut. The mechanism is easily attached to any talking machine. It is held in place by one or more screws to the motor board immediately under the turntable. Patents have been allowed on this new Alto auto-pneumatic stop in the United States, England, Canada and Germany.

The fellow who forgets is soon forgotten.

WORKING FOR BETTER ADVERTISING

A. L. Walsh, of Thos. A. Edison, Inc., Believes Advertising Contest for Music Merchants Will Have a Strong Elevating Influence

A. L. Walsh, advertising manager of the phonograph division of Thos. A. Edison, Inc., who is one of the executives in the advertising contest for music merchants conducted by the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce, declared himself to be highly in favor of any movement calculated to improve the retail advertising of musical instruments and in that connection says:

"The Music Industries Chamber of Commerce is to be congratulated on its initiative in being the first trade association to conduct a contest for the improvement of retail advertising among its members. Certainly, if ever the advertising of retail music merchants should be elevated to a higher plane, it is now with the music industry just emerging from a period of depression. Extreme care in the preparation of advertisements that bear their names must be observed by both national and retail advertisers if the music industry is to forge ahead again to a period of lasting prosperity.

"The time has passed, if it ever existed, when the advertising of a small retailer can be a paying proposition if handled in a haphazard, hit-or-miss manner. Each day the wise, old American public grows more discriminating and more eager to possess only the most selective merchandise. I do not refer only to the readers of a quality group of magazines, but to the subscribers of the small-town weeklies.

They have been educated to an appreciation of good advertising because bad advertising has been overdone. We all like to quote Lincoln and his statement that 'You can't fool all the people all the time.' Untruthful, exaggerated claims that were unnecessary have caused a lot of people to expect too much of a product and have resulted many times in the manufacturer losing that greatest of all advertisements—a satisfied customer.

"The retailer who is building for permanency should devote a good portion of his appropriation to prestige-building advertising. It is unfortunate that a lot of retailers still consider anything but the 'drag 'em in' brand of advertising worthless. Happily, though, for the good of the music business, this condition is gradually changing.

"Not long ago a representative of one of the big publishing companies canvassed the homes of hundreds of phonograph owners in various sections of the country. I don't remember the exact figures, but an alarming percentage of these owners had not played their phonographs for three months. Doubtless the same condition prevails in the player-piano field. Rather appalling, isn't it? and indicative that a lot of record and player roll business is being lost.

"Better advertising—concerted effort by all music merchandisers would change that situation. The idea that music is necessary in the home, that education is incomplete without it, must be sold.

"The Music Industries Chamber of Commerce has set the pace in arranging this contest and I believe we shall find many other trade associations falling in line. Let's see better advertising among you retailers—advertising that doesn't start the public talking about the other fellow's defects, but about your virtues."

The College Book Store, of Kirksville, Mo., has built a new Victor department in the front of its store and plans to expand the business this Winter. This new department is spacious and attractive.

REPEATER PATENTS IN COURT

E. S. Geer Files Suit Against Zenith Mfg. Co.—Counterclaim Also Filed by Defendant

A suit was filed recently in the United States District Court, Newark, N. J., by Edmond S. Geer against the Zenith Manufacturing Co., of Newark, N. J., manufacturer of the Encore repeater. In this suit Mr. Geer, who is the inventor of the Geer repeater, asks for a permanent injunction, accounting and damages, alleging that the defendant has infringed patent No. 1,173,501, issued to Mr. Geer on February 29, 1916. Geer repeaters, which are being manufactured by the Walbert Manufacturing Co., Chicago, and Gold Seal repeaters, manufactured by the Gold Seal Co. under a license agreement with Mr. Geer and the Walbert Manufacturing Co., are made under this patent.

In filing its answer to this suit the Zenith Manufacturing Co. has filed a counterclaim against Mr. Geer asking for a permanent injunction, accounting and damages, claiming that the Geer repeater infringes the Leisenring patent No. 1,143,289, issued June 15, 1915, and which the company states it now owns. In all probability, the action will be argued in the very near future. Mr. Geer is represented by Duell, Warfield & Duell, New York, and the Zenith Manufacturing Co. by Albert F. Nathan, Newark, N. J.

STANLEY MUSIC CO. ENTERS FIELD

New Haven, Conn., Store Announces Opening With Complete Hallet & Davis Line

NEW HAVEN, CONN., November 6.—The formal opening of the Stanley Music Co., Chapel and State streets, this city, was announced recently through the medium of large display space in the local newspapers. The advertising was of exceptional character, announcing that the Stanley Music Co. had secured the exclusive agency for the Hallet & Davis line of phonographs and that the complete line is on display at the ware-rooms of the company.

G. H. Appel, who has been engaged in the retailing of musical merchandise here for the past twenty-five years, has been engaged as manager for the new concern and he is planning an extensive campaign in the interest of the Hallet & Davis phonographs.

ATTRACTIVE STARR CO. EXHIBIT

H. Wallace Carner, distributor for the Starr Piano Co., in Richmond, Va., handling the company's entire line of pianos, phonographs and Gennett records, had an elaborate exhibit at the Virginia State Fair held in that city recently, and attracted much attention from the many visitors who attended. Some hundreds of Gennett records were given away to visitors in accordance with a special plan evolved by Mr. Carner and special discount coupons providing for a 25 per cent allowance on record purchases were also distributed, many of them having since been redeemed by dealers in the territory.

DEATH OF WILLIAM A. CONDON

The death of Wm. A. Condon, president of the Condon Co., New York, who passed away on November 9 following an attack of acute appendicitis, will be a shock to the members of the talking machine trade. He had been ill but a short time and was apparently in the best of health until a few weeks ago.

FINE BRUNSWICK RECORD DISPLAY

ATLANTA, GA., November 9.—The Julian Prade Co., featuring the Brunswick line, has rearranged its phonograph department to better handle its growing trade. J. B. Ragsdale, manager of this department, recently staged an effective, if gruesome, window display featuring the record "Danse Macabre" (Death Dance), with a skeleton, grave and tombstone in evidence, tying up with this musical number in one of the local theatres.

The Sonora Co. sent out a Clara Kimball Young Sonora moving picture slide for the month of November, which shows the famous film star in an artistic pose admiring the new Sonora Queen Anne model. The slide is beautifully colored and is by far one of the most artistic which has yet been furnished Sonora dealers by the company.

AKRON ENJOYS FINE BUSINESS

One Blot on the Holiday Business Horizon Is Impending Shortage of Machines

AKRON, O., November 6.—With the volume of retail business in Akron increased 12 per cent as compared with the same period in 1921, retail music dealers anticipate continued improvement in business this month and predict that the holiday season will be one of the busiest of the entire year. Jack Moore, secretary of the Akron Merchants' Association, in his monthly summary, announces a 55 per cent increase in music store sales for October over the same month a year ago.

Dealers anticipate their only trouble from now until the holiday season will be the inability to get merchandise. Some shops are keeping one model of a particular make on the floor and are making sales, but are not guaranteeing delivery. Record trade has picked up somewhat, but dealers say this particular phase of the business should be better, especially at this season of the year.

In connection with the forty-fifth anniversary sale of the M. O'Neill department store, the talking machine section offered for the week a number of specials and according to Miss Ethel Baer an immense volume of business resulted.

Several modern record booths are being installed in the rear of the main floor of the F. W. Van Scoyoc Music Co., South Main street, and soon after November 15 it is planned to open a complete record department featuring Vocalion records.

The George S. Dales Co., which concern recently acquired the entire third floor of its South Main street building, will open an enlarged and modern talking machine department on the second floor of the building about November 15. Mr. Savage announces many innovations in the talking machine shop will be introduced when the department is formally opened.

KIDDIE REKORDS BEING MARKETED

Kiddie Rekord Album Now Ready for Trade—Extensive Sales Campaign Under Way—Victor H. Emerson President of Company

The Kiddie Rekord Co., with executive offices in the Fisk Building, New York, has just launched an aggressive campaign featuring the Kiddie Rekord album. This album, which makes a particular appeal at this season of the year, features six nursery rhyme records, sung by well-known artists. The sales appeal of the album, however, lies in the fact that on the reverse side of the record there is presented an artistically colored drawing in harmony with the title of the record. These multi-colored drawings cannot fail to make a favorable appeal to children, and the record album itself is also artistically decorated with colored figures in keeping with the character of the records.

Album No. One features the following standard nursery selection: "Three Little Kittens," sung by Miss Young; "Old King Cole," sung by Mr. Hare; "Mary Had a Little Lamb," sung by Miss Edna Emerson (daughter of Victor H. Emerson); "Jack and Jill," sung by Miss Young and Mr. Harrison; "Little Bo Peep," by Miss Edna Emerson, and "Tom Tom, the Piper's Son," by Mr. Hare.

Victor H. Emerson, president of the Metal Recording Disc Co., and one of the foremost figures in the talking machine industry, is the inventor of the Kiddie Rekord, and is responsible for the perfection of the idea. Mr. Emerson is president of the company, and associated with him are Fred C. Lounsbury and Jesse Lounsbury, both of whom are well known in New Jersey business circles. The Kiddie Rekord album is already being handled by dealers throughout the country, who are featuring it exclusively as a gift for the children. It is expected that volume No. One will shortly be followed by another series of records, and a complete library will be available shortly.

May and William E. Trout. Mr. May will cover New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland, and Mr. Trout will cover eastern and southern Pennsylvania.

INTRODUCING NEW JEWETT CONSOLE

DETROIT, MICH, November 9.—The Jewett Phonograph Co., of this city, announced recently that it is considerably behind in orders, and that, with the exception of two models, it is sold up till the first of the year. In the very near future the company will announce a new console retailing at $125 or less and another one retailing at approximately $150. With the addition of these two models, the Jewett line will have five consoles ranging in price from $125 to $225 and four uprights, from $95 to $175.

H. G. NEU FINDS BETTER BUSINESS

H. G. Neu, sales manager of the Regal Record Co., 18 West Twentieth street, New York City, made a two weeks' trade trip through Eastern territory early in November. Mr. Neu states that the sales of Regal records have shown substantial increases during recent months and from all indications the holiday business will tax the capacity of the manufacturing plant.

FINE COLUMBIA DISPLAY SERVICE

Dealers Find Artistic Columbia Window Display Service Effective in Arousing the Interest of the Public in Grafonolas and Records

The advertising department of the Columbia Graphophone Co. has been congratulated by Columbia dealers upon the sales value of the window display service which it is now presentsents a portion of the December display, will give some idea of the artistic value of the service, together with its sales appeal. Each month's service consists of two large posters, one of which features a Columbia artist and the other presenting a list of specially selected records that may be found in the month's releases. There is also a large hanger, a center-piece and six handsome window cards featuring special selections. The entire display is lithographed in eight colors and can be used to advantage by Columbia dealers regardless of the size of their windows, for there is hardly any window space that cannot be utilized for the display of several of the units if space for the entire set is unavailable.

Dealers who are already using this window display service have found it extremely valuable in interesting the public in the merits of the Columbia line of Grafonolas and records and many inquiries being received daily regarding the service indicate its popular appeal.

SEVERAL NEW MODELS ON DISPLAY

The Cabinet & Accessories Co., Inc., New York City, has on approval at its new headquarters, 3 West Sixteenth street, several additional new models which have been added to the "Standard" line of talking machines which it sells. The line consists of both upright and console models. The new console types are particularly attractive in both cabinet work and in tone value. Increased delivery is now being received from the factory and it is expected the Christmas sales of Standard machines will reach a substantial figure.

RECENT BUSINESS TROUBLES

A petition in bankruptcy was filed a few days ago against the National Motor Accessories Corp., of New York, manufacturer of automobile accessories and radio receiving sets. Judge Learned Hand appointed John L. Lyttle receiver, and it is stated that the liabilities are about $25,000, with the assets about $7,000.

A petition in bankruptcy was also filed against the Raymond Engineering Corp., New York, manufacturer of radio receiving sets. Several judgments were obtained recently against this corporation for amounts exceeding $20,000.

The Air-O-Phone Corp., of New York, manufacturer of Air-O-Phone radio receiving sets, which was adjudged bankrupt some time ago, filed schedules in bankruptcy recently, listing liabilities of $13,119 and assets of $15,180, main items of which are stock, $8,000, and accounts, $6,998.

WEIGHT REDUCING COURSE POPULAR

Health Builders, Inc., New York City, reports that the "Weight Reducing" course which was placed on the market last month met with instantaneous approval. Thus far this month a substantial number of representative talking machine dealers have taken on this new record set and extensive sales drives are under way.

Leverich, manager of the Columbia Co.'s advertising, this service has been augmented considerably and now represents one of the most effective and attractive window display services that have yet been presented to the dealers. It is sold at the rate of $3 per month, and Columbia dealers throughout the country are taking advantage of this low price to become identified with the distinctive Columbia proposition. LONDON, E. C., November 2.—Easement of the somewhat strained political situation way East and the remote possibility of another war permits the average trader to breathe a little more freely. The considerable apprehension that did exist for a time exercised a baneful influence on the upward course of trade and one began to think of all sorts of commercial and social disorganization. But thanks be, it is over; the trade will recall its many canceled and suspended orders and proceed to reap a goodly season's sales harvest according to expectation.

The foregoing about sums up the line of thought among leading men of the gramophone trade. My own observations tend to the belief that a fairly satisfactory season is in store. At time of writing there is a noticeable speeding up of activity in manufacturing and wholesale quarters, which indicates that retail dealers are at last well on the move.

Last week's unemployment figures show a slight increase, it is true, but the future is brighter and one can safely predict that each week's figures will show a pleasing decrease from now onward. The returns pertaining to national trade during September make quite good reading. Compared with August figures exports show an increase of £2,500,000 (about $12,500,000) and imports a decrease of $30,000,000. The export figures, as to about one-half, represent value of manufactured articles, clearly indicating a considerable revival of industrial activity.

Looking over the gramophone trade field one is unpleasantly reminded of the growing expansion of imports of parts and accessories, mainly from Germany and Switzerland. My horizon is not necessarily clouded by insular prejudice; I believe in international trade relations under certain qualifications. As instance: There are several British manufacturers of gramophone motors, tone arms and sound boxes; not all good, I admit, but mostly so. Yet many assemblers and dealers are so hide-bound by the fetish of "cheapness" at any price that their standard of production and service is sacrificed for the sake of a few shillings (often a few pence) difference in favor of the imported article. Do they think a few shillings difference would prevent a sale to a man who really wanted a gramophone? I am afraid the answer is an affirmative one. A broad view of domestic economy should alone enlighten our people to a realization of the devastating effects of such a policy.

Gramophone Dealers Co-operate to Advantage

That gramophone dealers this side recognize the power of combination was made plain at the annual general meeting of their association—the G. D. A. Vice-president Ernest J. Marshall was elected president for the ensuing year in place of E. Rasin Jones, and Mr. Moon, of Plymouth, found favor as vice-president.

The present is a busy time for dealers and that may account for the somewhat sparse attendance on this occasion. According to Chairman Marshall eighty new members had been enrolled since February. Mr. Moon raised an interesting discussion re the question of hire-purchase, to which Mr. Marshall and other members contributed. The feeling of the meeting seemed in favor of standardizing a policy on basis of fixed cash price and for goods hire-purchased—so much down (as much as possible) with 10 per cent on the balance payable in equal monthly instalments over six or twelve months.

Probably of greatest interest was the subject dealing with exchange of unsalable records, raised by Mr. Stokes, of Keith Prowse & Co., the London agents for Sonora. I have previously explained in these columns how dealers are hampered by the present system of having to order three new records for every old one returned, receiving full credit for the one exchanged and paying for two. The difficulty here is that, while the manufacturer has to make good his loss on the deal by forcing a covering order for two fresh records, the retailer finds himself in a worse position than before through overloaded stock, a further portion of which must figure in the next exchange, and so on. Obviously, in the interests of all parties, the matter calls for drastic remedy. Faced with the fact that somebody must bear the cost of record exchanges, Mr. Stokes is evidently of opinion that dealers should certainly pay a share. He thought dealers would cheerfully do so. That manufacturers fully recognized the position was shown by sympathetic response to G. D. A. representation, which in one case resulted in a definite offer—from the Columbia Co. With their agreement Mr. Stokes explained a scheme to take up surplus or unsalable records, twice yearly, to extent of 10 per cent of purchases during period prior, in exchange for new stock up to two-thirds of their value. "Stock could actually be reduced under this plan," said Mr. Stokes, "and the loss to dealers would be only 3 1/3 per cent of their purchases." Ten per cent is evidently regarded as being a fair estimate of records which might be classified as unsalable, that is, given careful buying. The Columbia scheme has the further advantage of eliminating that bugbear of a two or three-to-one covering order, and it is Mr. Stokes' view that probably the percentage of returns would gradually decrease. Anyway, he thought the Columbia offer deserving of serious consideration; it was made in a spirit of friendly co-operation. If dealers would study the matter and forward their views to the G. D. A. secretary some considerable help toward a permanent solution of this unsalable stock problem would surely result, said Mr. Stokes.

Wireless News in General

As reported last month the Postmaster General thought it well to suspend the issue of reception licenses. That ban has not yet been raised and we still await the registration of the Broadcasting Co. For this, however, we shall not have long to wait. Briefly, the present position is as follows: Differences between the wireless companies and the P. G. have been overcome; twenty firms applied for permission to broadcast; any genuine British company manufacturing wireless apparatus may join the new broadcasting company; this company has been formed with a capital of £100,000 guaranteed by six big firms; a simple form of reception license will be obtainable at the post-offices; an indelible mark is to be placed on approved types of apparatus; high-class programs of music and instruction will be broadcasted, no "dud" stuff; broadcasting is to commence from Marconi House, London, and Trafford Park, Manchester; six other stations in different parts of the country to be erected.

Membership in the Broadcasting Co. will not entitle a member to use the patents of other members. The Marconi Co., it is reported, claims to hold patents which are necessary for the construction and use of valve receiving sets. In part, this claim is said to apply to the Fleming valve patent which is nearing expiration. There are certain rules and regulations to which wireless receiving sets must conform and sets will be tested. At the Horticultural Hall, London, a big wireless exhibition indicated the great extent to which the trade has already grown. About fifty firms exhibited apparatus of various kinds and the public attended in thousands daily.

Edison Diamond Disc Activity

It is good news that the Thomas A. Edison Co. is taking steps to widen its sphere of sales representation throughout the United Kingdom. A limited number of high-class music dealers have been handling the Edison disc products with such success as to justify the placement of additional agencies.

That there is a difference between reproduction and re-creation in the Edison sense was made plain to me in the course of an interesting conversation with Mr. Wagner at the London office. By actual demonstration I was able to appraise the Edison products at their true value in the re-creation of the living voice and instrument. So true are these expressed through the medium of "The Phonograph With a Soul," so true in fidelity to the original, that actual comparison between the two is openly invited.

I understand from Mr. Wagner that the company is now prepared to conduct negotiations direct from your side with first-class dealers here, the idea being to secure efficient representation of the Edison goods in each town. For the Diamond disc phonograph the average ruling prices may be stated as from £20 to £130, but for this market the firm has in preparation four new types to be called "London Models," which will range in price from £20 to £45. Each, of course, varies in certain respects, though it is to be observed that the reproducer and motor are exactly the same in all models irrespective of price.

To the further development of Edison business here I have no doubt that most of the best retailers will subscribe. May it so be!

General Election Disorganizes Trade

The uncertainty of the political situation the last few weeks has, in the opinion of those who should know, proved inimical to business interests. The announcement of the Government's resignation and the probability of a general election within the near future have not improved matters. At this time of our seasonal trade a political crisis is certainly unfortunate. And there looms on the horizon the possibility of the return of the labor party in sufficient force to upset voting power in Parliament. All of which is highly disconcerting to the business world.

Gramophones in the Public Libraries?

From Professor Walford Davies, director of music at the Welsh University, comes a valuable suggestion that gramophones and records should find a place in every public library. He thinks they are as much a necessity as books in the scheme of public education. This view is endorsed by Sir Landon Ronald, director of the Guildhall School of Music, who eulogizes the teaching value of gramophone records. "If I could have my way," he said, "every room in the Guildhall School of Music would have its gramophone and library of records. The students would hear how the great artists sing or play this or that piece, and we could say, 'That's how it should be done.'" The value of such examples to the budding student is incomparable. An oral demonstration would be of equal personal value to the proper understanding of the works of great masters as the study of musical books. Records are doing for music what the printing press has done for literature.

The libraries might with advantage take a leaf out of the book of the Federation of British Music Industries. Through its able representative, Major Bavin, musical lectures are being given all over the country. On each occasion suitable records are called into use to illustrate Major Bavin's remarks. The Gramophone Co., Ltd., also conducts occasional lectures on much the same lines. There is certainly good scope for developing the idea through the public libraries, and particularly in the schools. With the latter a good start has been made and there is to-day a large number of schools in which music lessons are conducted with the aid of a gramophone.

Watch Germany!

According to the Deutsche Instrumentenbau Zeitung German exports of musical instruments continue to show an increase in proportion to a decline of the domestic trade. All classes of instruments have so far advanced in price that the German working and middle classes have to economize on purchases. Price increases exceed 100 per cent. In part, owing to depreciation of the mark abroad, export business has greatly developed. Trade accounts have been reopened in many of her old markets. The expansion of the boycott in India of British goods presents possibilities of which German exporters are taking full advantage. For these and other reasons German factories are well occupied. Their greatest handicap is in the purchase abroad of raw materials at high prices. Though this results from a falling currency it cuts both ways and, fortunately for manufacturers in other countries, forces up the price of the finished article to a figure which is giving competitive elements a more healthy chance than formerly. But Germany is astute. Through various agencies her world interests are being quietly rehabilitated and her trade preserved. And whither go the profits—to Germany? No! To turn good foreign money into worthless paper marks is not good enough. Therefore I say watch Germany! Her financial interests are banked abroad and that is where she will stake her trading claims!

This Month's New Zonophone Issues

"A really pleasing program" is a fair description of the latest records published by the British Zonophone Co. Of those listed I would mention A-264 (twelve-inch), bearing selections one and two from Donizetti's famous work, "The Daughter of the Regiment." One of the best discs received for some time, it is magnificently recorded and rendered by the Black Diamond Band. Another twelve-incher is A-265, "I'll Forget You" and "Speak" (Tosti), by Cecil Sherwood. This artist is new to Zonophones; he possesses a tenor voice of undoubted quality, which is reproduced to good advantage. Among the ten-inch records a "special" is 2257, air from "Norma" and "Nocturne, Op. 9, No. 2," recorded by the well-known pianist, John Amadio, to the high standard one expects. Jack Hylton's Jazz Band gives us a couple of fox-trots on 2260, "Rosy Cheeks" and "Say It With Music," and on 2271 "Dear Old Southland" and "Stumbling," fox-trots. Both are well recorded and may be described as good records by those who favor this style of music (sic). On 2249 the Black Diamond Band is under tribute with "A Wistful Waltz" and "Cat's Cradle Waltz," neither of which, in my opinion, is very inspiring. Melville Gideon offers on 2258 "I Shall Remember Your Kisses" and "There's Only One Girl," both composed, sung and accompanied by himself. Diction and reproduction generally are exceedingly clear. Hubert Bath's fine composition, "Freedom," which formed the test piece at the recent 1,000-guinea championship brass band contest at the Crystal Palace, is the subject of a fine playing (on 2262) by the St. Hilda Colliery Band, which organization, by the way, carried off the trophy at last year's contest.

The Federation of British Music Industries

At the recent Grand Council meeting R. W. Gentland was unanimously elected chairman. He was justly described by the retiring chairman, Louis Sterling, as a great enthusiast for the Federation ideals. At the annual general meeting Mr. Sterling's address touched a high note of optimism as regards music trade prospects. Dealing with propaganda work he thought the Federation was gaining the confidence of the public by eliminating abuses from our industry.

According to the Federation Journal, Buxton is the favored venue for the next Music Trades Convention.

Other subjects dealt with included the question of trade lectures and it was agreed to try and arrange for lectures on window dressing and local music trade advertising.

The Federation is very active in the promulgation and execution of useful schemes for the benefit of the whole British music industries. One can already count the value of its existence by actual accomplishments; there is much propaganda work of an evolutionary nature undertaken that necessarily will show concrete results only by the grace of time, continuity of effort and the co-operation of every section of the trade. That the Federation well deserves. Reduction in Price of "His Master's Voice"

Dealers have been advised of an all-around reduction in the price of "H. M. V." gramophones. These reductions came into force the beginning of October and range from 9 per cent in the case of the higher priced models to as much as 20 per cent off some of the cheaper instruments. The price of the school model remains unchanged. This announcement comes at the right time and should result in the creation of extra business, especially in conjunction with the company's hire-purchase proposition.

Miscellaneous News of Interest

Militancy in the gramophone trade is suggested by the introduction of a gun. This, however, is a gun for serving needles. Fully charged, it holds about 30 needles and by an ingenious arrangement serves one at a time without fear of pricking one's fingers.

P. B.'s seven to seventeen-minute World record, after considerable delay, has been marketed. It is playable on even a single spring machine by means of a simple control device to regulate speed.

Great activity prevails at the works of J. E. Hough, Ltd., manufacturer of Winner and V. F. records, gramophones, motors, accessories, albums and many other quick-selling lines. Their new season's list of parts and accessories and a complete catalog of discaphones have just been published. Dealers at home and abroad can get pretty well any part of any machine from this firm and all types of complete instruments.

As mentioned last month two firms are specializing in the making of personal records. Another has entered the field. Robert Howe, the well-known baritone, who has made about 2,000 recordings, now announces arrangements for private recording for five guineas, or one guinea for trial only.

APPOINTED PROVISIONAL PRESIDENT

J. B. Vicini Burgos, Aeolian Co. Representative in San Domingo, Appointed Head of the Republic on Withdrawal of U. S. Military

J. B. Vicini Burgos, of San Domingo, Aeolian Co. representative, has been appointed provisional president of the Republic on the evacuation of the United States Forces of Occupation. H. B. Tremaine, president of the Aeolian Co., immediately cabled congratulations to Mr. Burgos, who replied: "Very many thanks to the Aeolian Co. and yourself personally."

Mr. Burgos has been the Aeolian Co. representative for many years and is a man of varied financial interests. He secured the Aeolian agency following his own purchase of a Weber Pianola piano many years ago, when his enthusiasm moved him to bring the possibilities of the instrument home to the other citizens of the Republic.

Lucy Goldsmith, manager of the export department of the Aeolian Co., who made the original sale to Mr. Burgos many years ago, was also the recipient of an interesting cable from the new president.

LATEST PATENTS RELATING TO TALKING MACHINES AND RECORDS

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 10.—Attachment for Phonographs.—Carleton B. Preston, Providence, R. I. Patent No. 1,423,360.

This invention relates to attachments for phonographs and was primarily designed for use with phonographs of the Edison type.

In using phonographs of this type a separate and distinct movement of the reproducer is necessary to place the same at a point directly above its starting place on the record. This movement is accomplished by means of a lever which controls the horn to which the reproducer is attached. With the eye as the only guide, in a subdued light the proper positioning of the reproducer is difficult and uncertain. A positive guide is therefore desirable and an effort has been made to supply one.

The general objects of this invention are to overcome dependence on the eye for positioning the reproducer, and to accomplish this result in the same movement that lowers the reproducer onto the record, thus combining the two movements in one; and to attain these ends in a positively acting, simple and inexpensive guiding means.

To these ends there is provided guiding means which co-operates with means associated with the horn to swing the horn and its shaft as the parts are being lowered to playing position, thereby causing the reproducer to travel the desired distance toward the record on a diagonal plane, and as the movement of lowering is completed the reproducer travels vertically to playing position.

Figure 1 is a top plan view of a talking machine; Fig. 2, a section along the line 2—2; Fig. 3, a front elevation of the guiding means in engagement with the co-operating projection as viewed on line 3—3 of Fig. 2, and Fig. 4 a like elevation of the same showing the parts in another position of engagement.

Sound Box. Henry Berman, Ossining, N. Y., assignor of one-half to Emil Erik, same place. Patent No. 1,423,707.

This invention relates to phonographs and particularly relates to a construction thereof whereby the horn and reproducer elements thereof are materially reduced in number of parts and cost of production without sacrificing any of their effectiveness.

The invention consists essentially of a collapsible sounding board or shell in lieu of a horn and a removable reproducer co-acting therewith, whereby when the sounding board is collapsed the reproducer and its support can also be removed, leaving the phonograph with a top having no projections therefrom.

One embodiment of the invention is used in an illustrative sense and not a limiting one, for the invention is capable of many different embodiments.

One embodiment of the invention is illustrated in the accompanying drawings, in which—

Figure 1 is a side elevation of the device; Fig. 2 is a front elevation; Fig. 3 is a vertical section thereof; Figs. 4, 5 and 6 are detail views.

Tone Modifier for Phonographs. Fred W. Cooley, Minneapolis, Minn. Patent No. 1,423,832.

This invention relates to sound-reproducing machines, generally designated as talking machines or phonographs, and the invention is particularly directed to the sound chamber or tone arm or tubes of such machines.

It is an object of the invention to construct the tone arms or sound chambers of talking machines so that an improved tone is produced thereby.

The invention disclosed in the present application is an improvement upon that disclosed and claimed in prior Patent No. 1,349,604, granted August 17, 1920, and No. 1,352,115, granted September 7, 1920. The purpose and object of the invention will be readily understood from the following description made in connection with the accompanying drawings, in which like reference characters refer to the same parts throughout the several views, and in which—

Record Wiper for Phonographs. Charley Landgraf and John Hernacki, Chicago, Ill. Patent No. 1,424,023.

The object of this invention is to provide a simple and efficient means in the form of an attachment for phonographs and similar musical and talking machines for wiping the record to remove dust from the surface thereof and particularly from the sound groove as a means of preventing irregular or undesirable vibrations of the needle and protecting the sound groove from injury; and with this object in view the invention consists in a construction and combination of parts, of which a preferred embodiment is shown in the accompanying drawings, wherein: the sound arm of a conventional form of phonograph; Fig. 2 is an end view of the same to show the inclination of the brush holder to correspond with that of the needle.

Reproducer. Charles J. Del'Marmol, Frankford, Pa. Patent No. 1,424,087.

This invention relates to reproducers for talking machines and similar devices for the transmission of sounds and it has for its primary object to provide a reproducer which will effectively reproduce sounds or sound waves, while at the same time the volume of sound so reproduced will be considerably increased.

Another object of this invention is the provision of a reproducer of the type above referred to which is exceptionally light in weight, whereby friction on the records is reduced to a minimum.

A further object aimed at is the provision of a reproducer characterized by an effective insulation of the stylus bar and its mounting from the main or body portion of the reproducer, whereby foreign noises and scratchy sounds due to metallic contacts are obviated and prevented.

A still further object of this invention is the provision of a reproducer, which is simple in construction, neat in appearance, cheap to manufacture, effective in use, not liable or susceptible to derangement, and by the employment of which tonal reproduction is raised to a very high degree of perfection.

With the foregoing and other objects in view as will become more apparent as the following description proceeds, this invention consists essentially of a reproducer having a resonating chamber in front of the diaphragm proper and valvular outlets therefrom disposed in eccentric relation to said diaphragm.

Figure 1 is a fragmentary side view of portion of an ordinary phonograph and tone arm having the improved reproducer applied thereto, the latter being shown from a frontal aspect;

Balancing Cover Support. Frederick C. Aschburner, Chicago, Ill. Patent No. 1,424,550.

This invention relates more particularly to a flexible or jointed support in which springs or friction are utilized to balance the weight imposed upon the support in any adjusted position. In supporting a horizontal hinged member, cover, or the like in adjusted positions the vertical load component varies according to the distance the cover is opened. This is well illustrated in opening a hinged phonograph cover as shown in the drawing in which the vertical load component is greatest when the cover is closed and decreases as the cover is raised. In the preferred construction, the invention contemplates the use of coil spring in a joint or joints and these springs are wound up as the cover is lowered and unwound as the cover is raised, and the increase or decrease of the tension of the spring is substantially proportional to the increase or decrease of the moment of force of the weight computed according to its supporting leverage so that the cover may be held balanced at any desired point. In the past, friction means has been employed for such a purpose, but the same has not proved satisfactory where there is a varying load of any consequence, as the friction means would have to be clamped sufficiently tight to sustain the greatest load, making the operation of the cover or lid rather difficult, and further, under such circumstances, the friction means would quickly wear and become inoperative, since it must support the weight. But under different circumstances a friction joint may be employed. It is therefore an object of the invention to provide a jointed supporting means for a lid or cover in which tension or friction means are utilized to balance the lid or cover.

It is further an object of the invention to provide spring means for a supporting joint that varies in proportion to the sustained load and supporting leverage as well as to construct a cover support which is simple, compact, durable and efficient.

Portable Phonograph. Jacob R. Rose, Philadelphia, Pa. Patent No. 1,424,681.

This invention relates to phonographs and has for its object the provision of a phonograph which is provided with a concave-convex resonator between the tone arm and the amplifier, whereby to improve the quality of sound given out by the device.

An important object is the provision of a phonograph in which the cabinet is formed with a relatively small compartment within which the tone arm and reproducer may be packed when not in use, the cabinet having a cover which closes down and encloses the turntable whereby the entire structure will be encased.

Another object is the provision of a storage compartment in the cover for the purpose of holding the disc records used in connection with the machine.

An additional object is the provision of a device of this character which will be simple and inexpensive to manufacture, easy to set up and knock down, efficient in use, durable in service, and a general improvement in the art.

tional view showing the compartment door open, and Fig. 4 is an enlarged detail sectional view through the resonator.

Phonograph Construction and Housing. Frederick H. Livingston, Binghamton, N. Y., assignor to Wm. J. Vogt, same place. Patent No. 1,424,835.

It is the primary aim of this invention to provide an improved phonograph wherein the housing for the machine and its horn is of a novel construction, being in the shape of a table, which, when the machine is not in use, may be used in the capacity of an ordinary library table, while when it is desired to use the phonograph a drawer containing the main operating parts of the phonograph may be extended so that a record may be played when on the revolving disk while the drawer is in either an opened or closed position.

The principal object of this invention is to provide an improved mounting of this character whereby the stylus will be firmly and rigidly held in its holder so as to effectually prevent the same from being loosened in use.

More specifically described, the invention consists in applying reinforcing means to the stylus holder at its weakest point, that is, where the jewel or stylus emerges or projects therefrom, such reinforcing means preferably being in the form of a collar forced onto the reduced end portion of the holder to a point just above the projecting portion of the stylus so as to grip the said reduced portion under tension.

of the collar has been removed, and Fig. 2 is an enlarged view in side elevation of a finished stylus mounting embodying the invention.

Reproducer for Talking Machines. Evrett M. Low, Brooklyn, N. Y. Patent No. 1,424,838.

This invention relates to that class of devices known as reproducers for talking machines, the object of which is to provide an instrument which will reproduce faithfully sounds as they are recorded, and prevent the introduction of elements into the reproduced sounds that are not in the record or other source of reproduction.

Fig. 1, the needle holder being removed, the better to show other parts. Fig. 4 is a view of the bridge f. Fig. 5 is an elevation of the bracket e.

Apparatus for Recording, Reproducing and Amplifying Sound. Chas. Blieberger, New York, assignor to A. Alexander Thomas, same place. Patent No. 1,425,505.

The basic principle of this invention involves a series of what may be called sound-developing compartments communicating with a sound-receiving chamber into which the sound vibrations to be amplified are suitably introduced. In the preferred form of the invention the sound-developing compartments communicate not only with the sound-receiving chamber, but also with each other through openings of suitable size and arrangement. As the sound enters the receiving chamber it spreads freely in all directions into the sound-developing compartments, through which it passes to the outer air. When the invention is applied to a talking machine the sound-developing chambers are constructed of different volume.

When the invention is used for recording sound, the sound is introduced from the outer air into the compartments and chamber, whence the sound waves are directed to a suitable recording device.

Figure 1 shows a talking machine of the cabinet type, having a portion broken away to disclose the interior. Fig. 2 is a plan thereof with the cover portion in raised position. Fig. 3 is an enlarged cross-sectional view taken on the line 3-3, Fig. 1, looking downwardly. Figs. 4 to 6 and 8 to 13 are sections taken on the various corresponding lines of Fig. 3 of the drawings, and looking, in each instance, in the direction of the arrows. Fig. 7 is a sectional view similar to Fig. 6, but illustrating a modification. Fig. 14 is a face view of the improved diaphragm, and Fig. 15 is an edge view thereof. Fig. 16 is a view showing the diaphragm as embodied in a sound box. Fig. 17 is a talking machine of the cabinet type, broken away to show a modification introducing the concealed horn, and Fig. 18 is a section on line 18 of Fig. 17.

WILL MAKE RADIO SETS

The Eagle Radio Co., Newark, N. J., manufacturer of an indoor radio antennae known as the "Portabloop," has announced a new radio receiving set of simple design which is to be exploited in conjunction with the company's other radio apparatus. The trade-mark name of the new product will be the "Portabloop Receiver." The manufacturer felt a necessity to manufacture this device owing to the popularity of its "indoor loop," the sales of which have been quite heavy. Many dealers who stock the products of this firm requested that it manufacture a complete receiving outfit.

NOVELIST RECOMMENDS "TALKER"

Pays Tribute to Perfection of Recording and Stresses Educational and Entertainment Possibilities of Talking Machines in Homes

Mrs. Gene Stratton-Porter, famous American novelist, in an interesting article in McCall's Magazine, pays tribute to the perfection of talking machine recordings, pointing out that often the record is superior to the artists' actual performance in concert work. The following is an extract from the article:

"To your library add music—violin, piano and harp, played by hand if it is a possible thing. If it is not possible then, even before the automobile, purchase the very highest-grade talking machine you can encompass with your means, and records selected quite as carefully as you select books. If you go less beautifully clothed, less deliciously fed, make a generous selection from the great composers of the world—oratorios, symphonies, sonatas and serenades. Then add a carefully chosen list from the folk lore of the nations of the world.

"I have met a few people who have professed to dislike a talking machine and pronounce it an instrument of 'canned music.' The fact is the average record gives one a better reproduction of the art of the great masters of the world than they themselves give in nine instances out of ten when making public appearances.

"Schumann-Heink once said to a friend of mine that if he wanted to hear her at her best he should buy her records, and the explanation she gave was sane and sensible as morning light. She said that when she was booked for a concert performance, when the day and hour arrived, she must sing perforce. It might be gloomy weather, she might be physically out of condition, she might be depressed mentally—in any event it took several numbers to limber up her voice until it reached its best. When she sang to have her voice recorded she waited until she was physically fit, until her mind was free from care and was fixed tenaciously upon what she was doing. She sang several numbers to exercise her voice before she stepped before the recording instrument. Sometimes she sang a number over, listening to each record of it, to the extent of from ten to twenty-five or thirty times before she got it so that there was not one note upon which she could improve. The record as given to the public was as perfect as it was in her power to make it. She said that the same thing held true of every record that was made for public usage. So do not feel that you are denying your children anything when they cannot go to the concerts, but must listen to the music of the records you buy."

TO IMPROVE SOUND REPRODUCTION

Interference Tube for Talking Machines and Telephones Eliminates Disagreeable Noise

An invention designed to eliminate undesirable sounds in the operation of talking machines has been patented by Mari Elize Wolvekamp, of Oakland, Cal. The invention, which is known as an "Interference Tube for Phonographs and Telephones," is in reality a small tube to be fitted between the tone arm and the reproducer of a talking machine for the purpose of intercepting or interfering with certain high tones which ordinarily make their presence known by a whistling sound. It is said that the use of these interference tubes "makes the voice shorter, clearer and more distinct and very often more agreeable to hear." The same idea can be applied to the telephone by attaching the tube to the receiver.

GEN. HARBORD NEW R. C. A. PRESIDENT

Fighting General of U. S. Marines Elected President of Radio Corp. of America—Edward J. Nally Elected Managing Director of International Relations With Offices in Paris—Changes Go Into Effect January 1

The Radio Corp. of America, New York, N. Y., announced recently that James G. Harbord, the fighting general of the Marines at Chateau Thierry, had been elected president of the company. Retiring from the United States Army, in which he ranked next to General John J. Pershing, he succeeds Edward J. Nally, who has resigned as president of the corporation to become that company's managing director of international relations, with headquarters in Paris.

The creation of this office of managing director of international relations for the Radio

General James G. Harbord

Corp. and the election of General Harbord as the new president took place at the regular meeting of the directors of the corporation held in New York a few weeks ago. General Harbord takes over his new duties on January 1 and the post to which he has been elected is regarded as of vital importance to the Government as well as to the public. General Harbord becomes head of a company whose activities include international wireless, the setting up, maintenance and operation of radio sets and apparatus on ships at sea and the development and sale of broadcast receiving sets for the home.

Mr. Nally has just returned from Europe, after several months' visit there, during which he concluded arrangements with the great wireless concerns of England, France and Germany by which the radio interests of the four great nations will act together in creating and operating international wireless communications with all parts of the world, especially with South America.

BALDWIN MUSIC SHOPPE OPENS

OKMULGEE, OKLA., December 4.—The Baldwin Music Shoppe, an exclusive Brunswick dealer here, held its formal opening recently. Carnations and coin purse souvenirs were given away. A local orchestra furnished music for the occasion. E. Stern and C. B. Howell, proprietors, believe that they will enjoy a nice holiday business as a result of starting off right.

Don't think! Know! In other words, make a study of your business and know its ramifications.

NEW FIELD FOR "TALKER" STORES

The United Projector & Film Corp. Planning Campaign to Interest Talking Machine Dealers in Safety Moving Picture Machine for Use in Homes, Schools, Churches, Etc.

BUFFALO, N. Y., December 8.—The United Projector & Film Corp., manufacturer and distributor of a safety moving picture machine designed for use in homes, public schools, churches, etc., reports that talking machine dealers are showing considerable interest in the sales possibilities of this moving picture machine and its library of films. The company is now busy preparing a campaign designed to introduce this machine into every section of the country, a feature of which will be the appointment of several more distributors in order to give dealers better service.

Among the new jobbers recently appointed by the company is the Prince-Walters Co., of Lowell, Mass., which will act as distributor for the New England territory. This concern is a progressive talking machine establishment and is well known throughout New England, and these machines will undoubtedly be introduced to talking machine dealers in this territory in a manner that will make it a permanent addition to dealers' stocks of machines and records.

In discussing the possibilities of this home moving picture machine, officials of the company were enthusiastic over the new field of sales which it offers the talking machine dealer. This article closely parallels the talking machine in its use and not only is it an aid to public schools, community centers, etc., for its educational value, but it also offers a wide and varied field of entertainment. They stated that the talking machine dealer can carry this high-class article at a small expense, the initial cost of stock being a very small one as only a few machines need be carried and at the most a stock of six machines would cover every requirement. A film service offering a large variety of subjects is available and can be procured on a rental basis at short notice. For the convenience of machine owners the company has established distribution centers in Albany, N. Y.; Toledo, O.; Harrisburg, Pa., and Pittsburgh, Pa., and in addition several more are to be appointed and will be announced shortly to the trade. These centers are for the purpose of exchanging films and will carry complete libraries which consist, at the present time, of over 1,200 subjects. This list is being added to each month and includes reproductions by some of the leading artists in the moving picture field. Several new films are in the process of making at the present time, among which is a new educational and entertaining film by Charles Ray, popular moving picture star, who has already made one or two films for the company.

BROADCASTS COLUMBIA RECORDS

DES MOINES, IA., December 6.—The Des Moines Register and Tribune of this city announces in each edition the fact that it will broadcast the current month's Columbia records at the Tribune radio station, WGF, and then lists the records. Before broadcasting begins the list of records to be broadcast is announced, followed up by the records themselves. Not only has this idea proved an excellent advertising feature for the Register and Tribune, but it has resulted in many responses from radio fans throughout the State of Iowa for encore performances. One day's program resulted in 400 responses of this character from the city of Des Moines, besides several hundred others from the State of Iowa.

"Health and Gymnasium Week" Will Help Sell Health-Giving Records :: :: By Frank H. Williams

The popularity of the various sets of records, to the music of which exercises may be taken, has manifested a steady growth, but as yet the surface has barely been scratched and talking machine dealers cannot afford to overlook any means of bringing the merits of these very unique combinations of music and exercise to the attention of an enlarged clientele throughout the country.

Sales of these record sets could be effectively stimulated if dealers in their localities would inaugurate a Health and Gymnasium Week. During this period the stores should feature all the records procurable which are designed to help people in taking health-giving exercises in their own homes or which could be used to good effect in local gymnasiums for the purpose of putting more pep into class marches and class exercises. Such a week would help the store immensely in attracting attention and in not only selling more of these health records, but also in selling more records of all kinds.

Right now, when people are getting into the routine of Winter and when indoor life is making them feel the need of health-giving exercise, is the very best time to put on such a week. People would pay much more attention to such an event at this season than at any other time of the year and this would mean more business from such a stunt now than at any other time.

This special week could be put on by dealers without much effort or trouble and without the expenditure of any very large amount of money. The first step would be to announce that such an event was to be staged. This announcement could be made in ads in the local newspapers and on placards placed in the show windows of the store. The announcement could be along lines somewhat as follows:

ANNOUNCING HEALTH AND GYMNASIUM WEEK ALL
NEXT WEEK AT THIS STORE.

Now when cold and disagreeable weather are keeping people indoors who during the Summertime were able to get life-giving fresh air at Summer resorts, at tennis, at golf, at baseball and at other sports there is a widespread desire among the alert, enterprising people of the city to take some sort of exercises which will keep them fit during the Winter.

To make it easier and more profitable for such people to take the desired exercises a number of health-giving phonograph records have been issued. These records and all records suitable for playing at home while taking exercises and in gymnasiums for class work and for marches will be featured in our store next week.

For this special week we have laid in a complete stock of records of this character. And to all people who purchase certain quantities of records we will give free an album in which to keep them.

Start now to keep fit during the Wintertime and make fun of your daily exercises by doing them to music.

The store then could arrange some very attractive window displays of the sort of records it would sell during the week and to each record in the window displays it could attach a little card telling all about the record and the use to which it was to be put, etc. An attractive feature of the displays would be to show some of the records already in use in local gymnasiums, in the home and in local schools while the children are taking class exercises.

Daily demonstrations in the store would aid materially in making the event a success and if the dealer could secure the services of some local athlete and have this athlete demonstrate various exercises to the music, either in the window or warerooms, the store would have a drawing card which would be sure to attract large numbers of people and help greatly in selling more of these record sets, which have already proved their worth, such as Walter Camp's "Daily Dozen" and "Weight Reducing Exercises," made by Health Builders, Inc.; "Wallace Reducing Records," made by the Wallace Institute; "Victor Health Records," made by the Victor Talking Machine Co., and the "Copeland Health Records," made by the Bridgeport Dye & Machine Co.

Put on a "Health and Gymnasium Week." It will attract a lot of attention and help business. You can do it easily and quickly and inexpensively.

CHATTANOOGA FIRM ADDS VICTOR

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., December 6.—One of the latest firms in the South to add the Victor line of talking machines and records is the Southern-Standard Music Co., of this city. A handsome Victor department has been opened in this store under the management of L. M. Murphy, who was formerly connected with the Cable Piano Co. Improvements are planned to the warerooms which will make this one of the finest music stores in this section of the State and a vigorous advertising and sales campaign in the interest of the new line has already been inaugurated. The usual forms of publicity are all being utilized in this drive.

Greetings

Off With the Old and On With the New—A Year of Achievement and Prosperity Ahead

How quickly the years roll past! The Christmas season is with us again and treading close upon its heels will come the New Year. In spite of the fact that days are full to overflowing, we cannot help but pause for a little quiet retrospection—a looking back, as it were, to the months which have closed of this year of 1922. When the last chapter is ended the New Year will commence and once more we will enter upon the cycle of new and untried experience which will mark another milestone in Life's journey.

When we were younger we cried out "Merry Christmas!" without thinking very much of all which the words implied. Now, however, we say them with an earnestness which increases as the years go past. A "Merry Christmas" does not mean to us now a day of feasting and celebration, but rather the climax of a year well lived.

And so when we say to you, our friends, "A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year," we mean so much that a volume could scarce contain it. There is nothing perfunctory, or formal, or cold in our manner or heart when we voice these age-old sentiments. We know that your Christmas and ours can only be "Merry" when there is cheer and merriment and joy and a sense of having done well, in our hearts.

In our business lives the great majority of us have worked very hard. It has been necessary—and we are glad of that! Working hard has been good for us. It has taught us to be self-reliant, self-respecting and independent in our thinking. People who are ready to think and work are not lazy. They are not procrastinators. Consequently they get results.

We can have a Merry Christmas in very truth when we know that we have played our part in the Game of Life well; when we have been fair, just, capable and reasonably exacting as business associates; when we have been sympathetic and progressive in home and community life; when we have so planned our time that we have had time enough for the things we needed to do and have not wasted or spent to poor purpose those precious hours which will never come back.

If we can come—you and I—to the end of the year, tired and weary, possibly, but nevertheless able to say with sincerity, "God's in His heaven, all's right with the world!"—then we can have a happy holiday period, because there will be nothing of regret in it. We will know that cordial relations exist between us and our fellowmen and that because we have served well and done something helpful for others, we have a right to peace and happiness and contentment in the closing days of the year.

A Little Reflection Over Events of the Past Year Will Point the Way to Greater Prosperity in 1923

Doing "something" for others is a very large order. Let us consider it a moment.

First of all, we have a responsibility to ourselves, for unless we are healthy, efficient, capable, forward-looking, zealous in our chosen task and ready to give our best to whatever we undertake, we shall not be ready to do for others. The machine which carries us swiftly over the roads to the point of our destination must be in good running order or it cannot serve us. We must be right in mental outlook, in desire to achieve and in the Spirit of Doing or we cannot serve others.

Those who accomplish most are the ones who begin at home and work outward in an everwidening circle. Let us remember this:

"The light that shines farthest, shines brightest at home." That is to say, we will prove ourselves worthy of Christmas joys if we aim definitely to make our own business organization finer, stronger and of loftier ideals. Service is love in action—love is the Christmas spirit.

So let us plan to have glad hearts ourselves and to feel and act in such a kindly manner that old Santa Claus himself would be glad to claim relationship. Some of us, perchance, have not done as much as we might for our chosen calling or profession, through the channels of its trade organization. We have been inclined to question, "What will we get out of it?" This is the spirit of selfishness, as opposed to the spirit of love.

Why not carry the Christmas spirit throughout every day of the New Year? If we do this, we can be sure of good will and harmony and happiness.

We like to think of Christmas as the period when our batteries are recharged by the kindly relations, helpful contacts and efforts in the direction of expansion for the New Year. Some people never have their batteries attended to and then some day the cells go dead at the most inconvenient times. This is the advantage of a regular season for attending to necessary duties, the season for looking over the mechanism of our social and business lives.

Are we grateful and appreciative for the blessings which are ours? Are we doing just what we have to, or as much as we can? Are we unselfish and forward-looking and ready to extend the encouragement which the other fellow needs?

If we have the spirit of Christmas in our hearts there will be little need to worry about the New Year. We are informed that advertising contracts for 1923 already amount to $250,000,000 and the record is not closed. Even at this, there is an increase of 33 per cent over and above the publicity outlays for 1922.

It is usually conceded that the amount of confidence expressed by the country as a whole in its advertising appropriations is a rather reliable indication of what we may expect in the way of increased or decreased business. If this is so, the New Year bids fair to be prosperous. And if it is prosperous there should be an opportunity for more and better service.

After all, we are really standing at the crossroads, looking both ways. We are sure to see where we have made mistakes in the past. We are sure to discover times we might have acted more promptly, more wisely, more understandingly. But if we have done the best we knew as we went along, and if we are ready to do better yet in the days to come, we will be entitled to a 25th day of December, full of happiness, and anticipation of greater achievements in the months ahead.

So, when we say, "A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year," we are thinking of what has gone before and what is to come. We are hoping that the experiences gained will make life richer and brighter and more hopeful.

To each and every one of you we would say, "May Christmas last the whole year through and may the New Year bring you your heart's dearest wish, whatever it may be."

Be very definite in what you want. Head toward that goal, and if it is a possible and reasonable goal, you will reach it. We seldom get to any destination which we do not set out to reach. This is the advantage of resolutions. One resolution firmly determined upon and lived up to is worth a hundred soon forgotten.

A Merry Christmas, and remember that "A merry heart doeth good like a medicine!" And a New Year so happy that it will be a red letter day in the Rosary of the years!

DEVELOPMENTS AND PROSPECTS REVIEWED

BUSINESS in the talking machine field, which opened so hesitatingly during the early months of 1922, is closing in a manner which testifies not only to the improved financial condition of the nation, but also to the strenuous merchandising efforts in evidence in every branch of the industry.

During the past few months there has been a steady enlargement in the demand for talking machines and records in all sections of the country, and those manufacturers, jobbers and dealers who have taken the public into their confidence through intelligent, constructive advertising have been rewarded by an increasingly satisfactory volume of business.

The year, however, has not been without its dark spots. The great cleaning-out of surplus stocks of nondescript talking machines and records interfered in a very large measure with the sales of legitimate, nationally known products. In connection therewith a tendency to extensive price-cutting was evident which naturally was not a factor towards stability or business betterment. Such practices invariably undermine the prestige of those who indulge in this unwise form of trade stimulation.

While the price-cutting situation has considerably bettered, the evil has not entirely disappeared, and it is being "aided and abetted" by the long terms and small initial payments, which have become too prominent these days in the retail field. Dealers make excuses by saying keen competition has brought about this condition, but the fact remains that strong men and strong houses cannot afford to indulge in such practices. Cheapening the product cheapens the makers and cheapens the house selling the product. This condition calls for serious consideration by dealers who have the best interests of the industry at heart.

Judging from reports of improved business which are reaching us from all parts of the country, there is no question but that the talking machine industry is destined to enjoy a very large measure of prosperity during 1923. In this campaign for placing more talking machines and records in the homes of the people of the United States there should be loyal and indefatigable efforts by the trade as a whole toward maintaining the most improved methods of correct merchandising—methods that will be fair to the purchaser, fair to themselves, and fair to the manufacturer.

The musical and industrial standing of the talking machine has received a great impetus during the past twelve months. Prominent writers on economics have paid tribute to the growing importance and stability of the industry, while celebrated musical critics, leading composers and speakers at great educational conferences held throughout the country have recognized afresh the increasing value of the talking machine in the musical life of the Nation and have willingly recognized its aid in imparting musical knowledge not only in the home, but in the great pedagogical institutions.

Record music is unquestionably making America more musical every day. It is compelling our people to become acquainted with the best in musical literature and with the operas. All this is evident despite the tendency of the paragraphers to descant upon the growth of jazz and music of the lighter sort. This has a place in the musical menu for there must be entrées as well as solids, but the fact remains that the people who are enjoying the music of the talking machine have the opportunity of being brought into contact with the very finest minds in the musical world.

TALKING MACHINE RECORDS IN THE SCHOOLS

THE very interesting information has been forthcoming that in compiling its budget for the new school year the Board of Education of New York has set aside a specified sum of money—a small sum, it is true, for the purchase of talking machine records for schools, some 200 titles being listed which may be ordered by the school principals just as are ordered other supplies for school use. Although the sum set aside for records is small, it is to be hailed as an entering wedge and as indicating a new appreciation of the value of the talking machine in the schools in promoting a better understanding of the principles of good music.

Other cities and towns have long ago taken a lead in this matter, and have provided talking machines and library records for the schools without any great argument. Great cities, however, as do all great bodies, move slowly, and that the school authorities of the metropolis of the nation have at last seen the light and seen fit to set aside a portion of a rather limited budget for the definite purpose of buying records is a move that should have a great influence on the rest of the country.

It is safe to say that the attitude of The Talking Machine Men, Inc., in lending practical and material assistance to the cause of music in the schools through offering prizes, providing supplies for music memory contests, has had a distinct influence in awakening the school authorities to an appreciation of the real value of the talking machine.

THE HARMFUL EFFECTS OF LONG TERMS

AS we go about the country we hear talking machine dealers handling various lines complain of the shortage of machines, or at least of the impending shortage that promises to mean lost sales and consequently lost profits before the peak of the holiday buying has past.

On the other hand, we see these same dealers for reasons hard to fathom engage in a hectic rush to put machines into the homes of customers either without initial payment or for a down payment and on terms little short of ridiculous. Down payments of forty-nine and sixty-seven cents or other like amounts on machines selling at $100 or more have been a common occurrence, and terms formerly kept well within the year are now running from eighteen to twenty months.

The evil effects of long terms as a means of inviting carelessness in the matter of payments with subsequent repossessions and particularly in tying up for the dealer much needed capital, have so often been set forth that their repetition is a waste of time. When, however, retailers are faced with the possibility of being unable to get sufficient machines to take care of holiday demands, and then see fit to send out their present stock on ridiculous terms when they know it cannot be replaced, there develops a condition that is certainly in direct variance with sound business principles.

The replacement value of any merchandise should normally have a direct effect upon the sales price and particularly upon the terms, for a machine that goes out for a half dollar or less as down payment to-day will very probably mean a loss of a sound cash sale before the New Year.

It frequently happens that dealers endeavor to explain low terms by pleading that they bring customers to the store and the salesman can then demand and get larger payments. As a matter of fact, advertised terms like advertised prices are taken by the public to represent the maximum and as a general rule are considered subject to reduction rather than increase.

Next year will in all probability be an excellent year for all kinds of business, but the merchant in any line who ties up his good money unnecessarily in long-time paper at the present time is not going to be in a position to realize in the fullest measure on the business possibilities of the coming months.

THE VALUE OF MUSIC MEMORY CONTESTS

THE decision of The Talking Machine Men, Inc., the organization of talking machine retailers in Greater New York and neighboring districts, to take an active part in the conduct of a music memory contest in the public schools of New York in cooperation with the officials of the Board of Education is distinctly a move in the right direction and may be expected to bring the very satisfactory results that have been realized by dealer organizations in other localities that have followed the same course.

The New York plan calls for the direct linking up of the dealers' stores in various sections with the schools in their particular districts, by having retailers offer a limited number of records free for the use of school classes studying for the contest. The cost of the move is ridiculously small in proportion to the wide interest that is bound to be aroused by the contest and to the direct publicity

THE Talking Machine World offers a prize of ten dollars monthly for the next three months for the best article of from four hundred to five hundred words from a dealer, salesman or traveler setting forth an original and practical idea, or a proven plan, for selling or exploiting talking machines or records, or improving collections. The contests will close on the first day of January, February and March. One dollar each will be paid for all articles which do not win prizes, but which are deemed worthy of publication because of the ideas they contain. The plans or ideas must be practical and tested. Address articles to "Contest Editor, Talking Machine World, 373 Fourth Avenue, New York."

for the various members of the association that is certain to result.

Various talking machine companies have accomplished great work for some years past in arousing in school authorities a proper appreciation of the value of the talking machine for music study, but as a rule the local dealers have of their own initiative taken very little advantage of the field thus created. By getting in close contact with the schools through music memory contests and by aiding the school authorities directly in their musical work, talking machine dealers, can, as has been proven, develop a direct contact with, and interest in, themselves and their establishment that means dollars and cents in profit, and a business opportunity that can be realized in no other way.

Even though the direct dollars-and-cents results from musical appreciation work may not be realized by the individual dealer to the extent that he feels warranted in expecting, he must remember that he is first of all selling music and that any movement that directly or indirectly is calculated to arouse a greater appreciation for, and interest in, music is bound in some way or another to prove of benefit to him in his business.

Winter Months Offer Dealers Fine Opportunity of Extending Exceptional Service

The Winter months, with their ice, sleet and snow, offer the talking machine dealer the opportunity of extending service of an exceptional order toward customers and prospects which will strengthen the reputation of any concern as well as result in many sales that would otherwise be lost. For the most part, the woman of the house is the buyer and when the ground is covered with a white mantle of snow and the thermometer is jumping around the zero mark there is little possibility of getting this class of trade to venture from the warm fireside to visit the local music house. No matter how alluring the advertising copy and no matter how much certain records will appeal, there is every possibility that the trip to the music store for a demonstration will be deferred until the quicksilver climbs. In many instances the force of the advertisement will then have been lost or the new monthly record supplements will turn the mind of the prospect toward other and more recent recordings.

Conditions similar to that outlined above can be overcome by the merchant who saves the customer from venturing out by going out into the cold himself. In other words, if the customer will not visit the store it is up to the dealer to visit the customer. This is favorable for the dealer because he can, to a certain extent, choose the time for his visit, and in addition to the records which the prospect has evinced a desire to hear he can take along several other recordings which he is pretty sure will appeal to the customer he intends to call upon.

An hour or so at the telephone each day, taking a certain number of names contained on the mailing list at each sitting, will most certainly result in several appointments with customers interested in some of the latest record releases. The merchant should strive to make the appointments in the evening, when the head of the house is pretty sure to be at home. With the whole family circle listening to the records he has brought along for demonstration purposes his chances for making a large sale are much greater than if he had only one listener. Often what father likes in the way of music may not appeal to mother, and in this advanced age the likes and dislikes of the children play an important part in the decisions of the parents regarding purchases. If there are children in the home and the parents prefer the classics the dealer can probably boost his sales by taking along a few records of popular or dance music.

These home demonstrations can be carried still further by arranging home concerts to which patrons may invite their friends. In the case of a home concert it would be well to arrange a varied program and the dealer could even consult with his patron as to the program. This latter suggestion would prove especially valuable from the standpoint of adding live names to the prospect list and making sales, because the customer would be apt to know what type of music her particular friends would enjoy most.

As has been mentioned in a previous paragraph advertising when the weather is exceptionally bad will not draw nearly as well as when the days are fine and crisp. Therefore, the dealer who desires to build a solid patronage on the basis of service should stress this feature of his business. Advertising in the middle of the Winter should contrast the interior of the home with its warm, cozy fireside and the family grouped around, with the bleak out-of-doors. Of course, the main factor of the ad is the contribution of the talking machine to family entertainment. Each advertisement should also contain a statement of the fact that a telephone message will result in a home demonstration of records which the customer may desire to hear at any appointed time. Thus will the advertising be made to reach the height of its effectiveness.

DECREASE IN PRODUCTION IN TALKING MACHINE FIELD

Department of Commerce Issues Census Figures Showing Appreciable Decrease in Output of Talking Machine Industry in 1921 as Compared With 1919—New Jersey Leads in Production

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 4.—The Department of Commerce announces that the reports made to the Bureau of the Census show a considerable decrease in the activities of the establishments engaged chiefly in the manufacture of phonographs, graphophones and talking machines (the industry including records, parts and accessories) during 1921 as compared with the returns for 1919. The total value of products reported amounted to $98,164,000, a decrease of 38.1 per cent since 1919, when the total products were valued at $158,548,000. In addition, phonographs, graphophones, talking machines and parts valued at $7,173,000 in 1919 were made in establishments engaged primarily in the manufacture of products other than those covered by this industry designation. The corresponding figures for 1921 are not available.

Of the 154 establishments reporting products of over $5,000 for 1921, 38 were located in Illinois, 36 in New York, 19 in New Jersey, 16 in Ohio, 12 in Michigan, 11 in Indiana, 9 in Wisconsin, 8 in Pennsylvania, 5 each in California and Connecticut, 3 in Massachusetts, 2 each in Iowa, Minnesota, Missouri and Oregon, and 1 each in Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia. New Jersey produced 62.7 per cent of the total value of products in 1921, being the leading State in the industry in that year as well as in 1919.

The decrease in production has been accompanied by a corresponding decrease in the number of persons employed, in the total amount paid during the year in salaries and wages and in the amount expended for materials. Considerable fluctuation is noted in the number of wage earners employed each month during the year. In January, the month of maximum employment, 20,407 wage earners were reported, and in August, the month of minimum employment, 14,693, the minimum representing 72 per cent of the maximum. The average number employed during 1921 was 17,938, as compared with 28,721 in 1919. A classification of the wage earners with reference to the prevailing hours of labor in the establishments in which they were employed shows that 9,254, or 51.6 per cent of the total average number, were employed in establishments where the prevailing hours of labor per week were 48; 4,482, or 25 per cent, where the hours were from 48 to 54, and 2,144, or 12 per cent, where the prevailing hours were 44 or less per week.

The statistics for 1921 and 1919 are summarized in the following statement. The figures for 1921 are preliminary and subject to such change and correction as may be necessary from a further examination of the original reports.

THE TALKING MACHINE HER TEACHER

Marion Talley, the Amazing Young Singer of Kansas City, Who Sang for Metropolitan Opera Magnates, Is a Victrola Graduate

Marion Talley, the clever young Kansas City girl whose wonderful vocal talents so aroused the musical people of her native city that she was recently given a hearing before the magnates of the Metropolitan Opera Co., attributes much of her startling vocal proficiency to the talking machine. It is interesting to know that she never heard her idols, Galli Curci or Geraldine Farrar, sing except on the Victrola. From the former's record, "The Wren," she learned to sing the selection which won the instant favor of the connoisseurs who heard her "try-out" recently at the Metropolitan Opera House.

So deep an impression did she make on Gatti Casazza, director of the Metropolitan forces; Otto Kahn, Directors Bodansky and Franko and others who had the privilege of hearing her test recital, that it was decided she was to spend three years studying with the best teachers. In New York, where she will remain indefinitely, Marion Talley will study voice culture, languages and all the other accomplishments necessary to a great prima donna. She will be supplied with tickets for all the Metropolitan productions and have a chance to study at first hand the many celebrities she has heard so much about. The people of Kansas City are quite proud of Marion Talley and they have good reason to be. Her voice is unusually developed for a girl of fifteen; in quality it is more like the finished voice of a woman, of twenty-two.

GOLDEN RECORD CO. ENTERS FIELD

Locates Recording Laboratory in Los Angeles —Plans for Expansion

LOS ANGELES, CAL., December 6.—Asserting that this city is peculiarly suitable for the manufacture of talking machine records on account of atmospheric conditions, Theophilus Fitz has started the first recording laboratory on the Pacific Coast.

The Golden Record Co., of which Mr. Fitz is president, is housed in a suite of rooms at 1044 South Hope street. The company has already made records which are on sale in Los Angeles' leading music shops. Records by nationally known musicians are about to be made. Mme. Constance Balfour and Mme. Aldrich are among the number.

TIES UP WINDOW WITH CONTEST

ROBINSON, ILL., December 2.—A most unusual and interesting contest was recently staged by the Vandaveer Music Co. here, causing considerable favorable comment and widespread interest. The contest was directed toward the children of the city, who were asked to write essays on the ancient city of Cairo, Egypt. Prizes were awarded to the winners. In connection with the contest a special window display was staged by the company, reproducing as faithfully as possible the famous tower and gate to the city.

The Portable Talking Machine Can Be Sold Throughout the Entire Year :: :: By Carl Knittel

Now, some good people in the trade may not agree that the portable talking machine is a year-round product, but they have arrived at that conclusion through some experience previously had when the manufacture of portables was in its pioneer state, or without getting the experience of others so as to form an unbiased judgment. They are firm in their belief that the portable is a seasonal article and, therefore, cannot be sold at times other than in season.

What a peculiar thing is the state of mind. When a man thinks he cannot sell an article he most certainly does not sell it, no matter how well the thing will merchandise when properly pushed, or how rapidly others are selling it.

Many dealers realize the value of selling prospects talking machines who have little or no room and very little funds. These people need talking machines worse than others, as they must stay at home for their entertainment in the majority of instances. What an opportunity there is to sell portables to these people! The cost is such that many sales can be made where a more expensive instrument would not have been purchased.

Any keen merchandiser must instantly realize that this class of customer will prove a steady record buyer and later on will more than likely buy other machines as he becomes more prosperous.

The portable has come to be the ideal gift, for Christmas, birthdays, anniversaries, weddings, graduation, and this fact, with proper attention to mailing list, can be accentuated by dealers. There is no better method of studying the languages than with the aid of the talking machine, and dealers can develop that business owing to the fact that the portable can be carried to rooms where quiet and concentration can be had.

Suppose the children want to dance at the house next door. Over goes the portable and those people next door get a taste of the phonograph pleasure, possibly becoming a future customer. Many dealers are using the portables in the record demonstration rooms, as they play the record very well and allow keeping the larger machines in the salesrooms, without tying up heavy capital. Likewise, they can be set right on the counters and occupy no floor space.

The outdoor uses of the portable we well know, so there will be no need of taking up space to dwell on them. The sick room is many times made more cheerful to the invalid by the music of a portable carried into the room, and, in some sanitariums, from room to room.

Many dealers who indulge in the sending out of house-to-house solicitors in selling either machines or records have found the portable a wonderful sales help. Christmas clubs in factories and offices can be made up in this way by taking the machine right out where these customers are, rather than waiting for them to come in.

In other words, the portable puts a positive punch into your sales campaign, as you can pick it up and go after the business if necessary.

All these thoughts are given with the idea of constructively helping the dealer develop business in a channel that he may not have thought of before and to bring about a realization of the fact that a little effort in a new direction may result in increased business.

SUGGEST LIBRARY "TALKER" ROOMS

New York librarians are discussing a suggestion that a room be set aside in the larger libraries where talking machine music may be played. The idea is based on the theory that music is the closest of the arts to literature and that shelves of text-books on music are only of academic value when there is not a ready means of illustrating them by sound.

A certain talking machine dealer in a small city makes a specialty of catering to automobilists who pass through his community. Bill-board advertising does the trick.

Flexlume Signs

For more than ten years the Flexlume Corporation has been learning how to make electric signs draw business.

There is more to it than glass and metal—design, for instance, the art of making the sign carry advertising thought. There is the science of proper illumination, the right kind of construction and the importance of having a nation-wide service organization.

All these points have been perfected by Flexlume in ten years of specializing on a particular type of sign.

How Advertising of Long Terms Operates to the Discredit of the Industry in Many Ways

During the war period, and more particularly during the more recent general business depression, when money for the purchase of musical instruments was so terrifically scarce and bankruptcies and unemployment generally prevalent, there may have been some real excuse—if there ever is an excuse—for retail talking machine dealers offering their merchandise at a substantial price sacrifice or long terms which seem more like the length of a bond issue than the period for instalment payments on a musical instrument.

But "those days" are no longer here. The average talking machine dealer to-day—and by average is meant the dealer with some real business aggressiveness and ability—is able to do a very fair turnover in both machines and records. Indeed, it is now common to find that shortages on certain models or certain selections prevail with this or that dealer.

Yet, in the face of this quite satisfactory current condition, as well as a very favorable holiday season, and despite the excellent prospects for 1923, retail talking machine dealers, as a whole, have not cleaned house, as regards their advertising appeal, the amount of down-payment required and the length of the period over which instalments are extended.

It is time for the entire retail trade to take inventory of itself, to think very seriously of the foundation on which the business is being built and of its more permanent future. The advertising of long terms operates to the discredit of the industry in many ways, indicating a surplus of supply over demand and a poor financial system. Advertised prices and terms are always to be accepted as maximum and the difficulty of shortening the terms after the customer is in the store is readily appreciated by those salesmen who have to face such a situation.

Current necessity should no longer compel the retailer to do those things which are obviously destructive of his future business.

It is time for dealers to renew the constructive type of advertising which used to be in evidence before and during the war—the kind of advertising that sells talking machines and records to the American public on a basis of the entertainment and culture development they afford; the kind of advertising that betrays the constructional advantage and musical perfection of this or that instrument; the kind of advertising that interests people in the recordings of this or that artist or group of artists; the kind of advertising that makes the people want the music and entertainment that they can get through the talking machine records so badly that the price factor and the terms factor become absolutely subsidiary.

That is the way automobiles are sold and that is the way talking machines should be sold. Price should not be an issue and terms should not be an issue, and neither one will be an issue if the desire is created so strongly that it cannot be denied.

The desire to own a talking machine will be created along these lines, providing the retailers, as a whole, pervade their advertising and sales promotion work with constructive ideas of the sort mentioned.

If the retail trade continues to impress the public with the cheapness of the talking machine, that is, impress the public with the idea that 67 cents or thereabouts will put an instrument worth several hundred dollars in anyone's home, and that it will stay there for time immemorial, providing the purchaser remits 50 cents or thereabouts each month on account, the talking machine industry had better provide for a very poor future. The American public is not going to make a favorite of anything which it is not induced to respect, and this kind of advertising positively does destroy respect for the products of the industry.

Right now is the time to watch credits and shorten terms, for every instrument moved off the floor on terms covering several years or more means a cutting into capital and also the loss of a probable later sale on a cash or short-term basis. Instruments sold on such terms these days cannot be replaced readily and thus have an added value that all too many dealers fail to appreciate. Short terms and good initial cash payments will help solve the talking machine shortage problem during the holidays and Spring, and at the same time bring needed cash to the dealer.

will recognize the truth of what has just been said, and a large majority of them will protect the future of their own business and the future of the industry by refusing to continue to cheapen the wonderful products they are selling and to formulate their sales and advertising policy along lines that befit normal business conditions, rather than utilize publicity and selling methods which belong only to the depression period that has now become history.

Designed to Exploit the Brunswick Phonograph—Has Clever and Entertaining Scenario

The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., with its usual enterprise, has just had manufactured by one of the largest film companies at a cost of several thousand dollars a new moving picture exploiting the Brunswick phonograph. It is entitled "Where Harmony Reigns, in A Flat." The reel is about 350 feet in length and is a finished, artistic production with a complete scenario that is clever and entertaining. The reel will be loaned to Brunswick dealers free of charge for a period of two weeks with the understanding that they make prompt use of it in their local theatres, or they have the option of purchasing it. If desired, the dealer's name and address, as well as his slogan, appears at the end of the film. A very interesting folder bearing upon this new Brunswick film has just been sent to the trade showing how the reel can be made an effective adjunct to the dealer's newspaper and general advertising campaign.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 3.—Woodward & Lothrop, department store of this city, is broadcasting concerts in which one instrument will be featured exclusively at each concert. Recently a "Victrola Concert" was given, every number being rendered by the talking machine. The Woodward & Lothrop radio broadcasting station is one of the best equipped in the South. The concern reports that the sale of talking machines and records has been greatly stimulated since the installation of a complete radio department.

PACKARD MUSIC HOUSE ADDS CHENEY

Prominent Fort Wayne, Ind., Music Concern Features Acquisition of Agency in "Cheney Opening and Demonstration Week"

The VanKorn-Shower Co. points with pride to its appointment of the Packard Music House, Fort Wayne, Ind., as a dealer of Cheney instruments. The Cheney line was acquired by the large Indiana music house the latter part

View of Packard Talking Machine Department of October, when a week was set aside as "Cheney Opening and Demonstration Week."

A very effective showing of all the models was made on the floor and many visitors came to the store. Both partners of the jobbing firm were present, along with a young lady who was brought to do special work during the demonstration. Liberal advertising space was used daily announcing the event. One of the big attractions during the opening was a display in the window of a working model, the case of which was made entirely of plate glass, enabling passersby to view the mechanism as it operated.

A business is as strong as its greatest weakness, whether that be in the sales organization, the collection department, advertising, etc.

STUDY SUCCESSFUL COMPETITION

Some Profitable Pointers May Be Gleaned From Other Merchants in the Same Business Who Are Achieving Outstanding Success

What are your competitors doing? Not the failures, or those making a bare living, but the merchants in your community handling talking machines and records who are doing a good business and, in short, making a success of their enterprises. Are you watching them—studying their methods and gaining a knowledge of the things or policies which are drawing customers to their stores and taking them away from you? If you are not, then begin now and take advantage of what you learn. Try to beat your competitor to it, don't follow in his footsteps.

One thing is sure, when a man makes a success of his business it is because his methods appeal to the public. He attracts their attention by new, forcible and effective methods of presenting his goods. He keeps his line and his store before the minds of the public steadily and persistently and he loses no opportunity of making a sale.

The merchant who sits back and is satisfied to merely take any stray crumbs which may come his way certainly will not make any great success of his business, and he cannot expect to build up a solid, substantial trade in this way. A systematic campaign in all branches of business is the only way in which expansion can be accomplished. This means a vigorous campaign in advertising, publicity of all kinds, sales drives, etc. New ideas put into effect are the things that count. Unusual windows, "different" advertising and concentrated sales drives are bound to result in a general stimulation of trade.

Worry leads to ineffectiveness in business.

VICTOR HOLIDAY DEALER PUBLICITY

Artistic Folders, Illustrating Machines, Listing Christmas Records and Other Special Publicity Matter Sent to Dealers

A lot of very effective and artistic Christmas holiday material has just been sent out by the Victor Co. to its dealers which, if properly handled, should be resultful in developing holiday trade. One of the most artistic is a lithographed folder in several colors which contains illustrations not only of the most popular styles of Victrolas, but also pictures of the leading Victor artists and a stimulative talk on music. This is accompanied by a quality envelope to enclose the folder, which is designed to be sent out with a carefully prepared sealed letter. Another folder is devoted to a list of Victor records best suited to the holiday season. There are also suggestions for three separate and distinctive window displays embodied in a four-page folder which show the best and most effective ways of using the material for window decoration which the Victor Co. is providing.

Two large posters have also been sent out, one suitable for window use and the other for use in the store, both of which contain the selected list of Christmas records.

Dealers are fortunate in being able to secure such a comprehensive array of high-class holiday material—it simplifies their problems of window and store display and enables them to get in close touch with machine and record prospects.

Overloading Salesmen With Too Many Prospects Invariably Results in Lost Sales

The talking machine business depends more on securing live prospects and their proper handling so that the maximum number of sales will be secured than most other businesses and, therefore, this branch of the trade should be made the subject of considerable study so that policies may be formulated which will not only result in the securing of live prospects, but will also bring about sales. Numerous methods of securing prospects are in vogue, most of which bring about the required results and practically all dealers have a fairly live list. Where they fall down is in the distribution of these prospects to the various salesmen and canvassers. The dealer or sales manager loads down his canvassers and salesmen with a great number of names and the result is a lack of concentration. The salesman tries to visit as many of these as possible during the course of a month and in his eagerness he does not give the time he should to each individual prospect. In many instances the salesman has a prospect half sold and he then leaves to visit the next one. Before he returns to the half-sold prospect again the sale has been lost through change of mind or perhaps an instrument has been purchased elsewhere.

The point is that it would be much better for the dealer to cut down the number of prospects which the salesman is expected to see so that more attention can be given to each. In a certain talking machine store in the metropolitan area five outside salesmen were supplied with an average of 700 names and sent out. Now, no salesman can cover the ground which these men were expected to and get the best results. These men made a great number of calls in order to make a good showing on their reports. Sales, however, did not come up to expectations and after much thought the sales manager cut down the number of prospects per salesman to fifty and in a brief talk impressed on their minds the necessity of giving prospective customers more time. In short, the men were told that where

on Individuals Is Very Often the Reason for Poor Results of Really Good Salesmen*

a prospect showed the least interest in the ownership of a talking machine the salesman should stick until the sale was made or lost. The result of this change of policy was far beyond expectations. No more half-made sales were lost and the monthly reports of the salesmen showed a startling jump in sales totals.

A salesman of wide experience in the retail music field recently made a suggestion to the writer which might prove worth trying. He pointed out that a box should be provided in the store into which the salesman places the names of those prospects with whom he is unable to make contact or interest in the line. Each salesman should be supplied with the same number of prospects and when one is taken from the list and placed in the box he must take therefrom another which has been placed there by one of the other salesmen. Of course, he selects a prospect which he thinks he might sell. Thus, one salesman may fail to interest a certain prospect and another salesman eventually secures the name through the box and may be successful for various reasons.

No two salesmen approach and present the merits of their line in exactly the same manner and where one man has failed to appeal to the prospect another may succeed through the difference of approach and presentation. A manner which appeals to one person may not do so to another and, therefore, it is safe to assume that one salesman may arouse a feeling of dislike in the mind of the prospect and thus eliminate any chances of making a sale and another salesman will succeed simply because he strikes the right note.

Read what the experts say:

The Educational Director of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World says:—

"I do not know a better thing that a retail dealer could do to strengthen his own position and increase his own business than hitch his wagon to a national advertising star by using such a cleverly worked out window display as your people have created."

EARLE PEARSON.

The Secretary-Treasurer of the Association of National Advertisers, Inc., says:—

"One of the pieces in the display that first attracted my attention was that of Cyrena Van Gordon as Brunhilde in the Valkyre. I just felt, when I saw that picture, that I wanted to go right off to a Columbia store and buy the record. But if I had not been privileged to see this picture privately, and had been one of the 'men in the street' passing by a dealer's store, how could I know that the dealer had such a record if he did not tell me so in his store window?"

"If I were a Columbia Dealer, I would certainly see that every piece of this display were put to use."

JOHN SULLIVAN.

One of the foremost poster artists of America says:—

"I have seen the Christmas window display of your company, and regard it as an exceptional piece of advertising art."

"It seems to me that we need higher standards of art in retail dealers' windows, reaching as they do, the rank and file of people who pass continually up and down 'Main Street.'"

"Your display has real merit, not only from the standpoint of attracting attention to the dealers' stores, but the whole conception is one calculated to sell goods."

ADOLPH TREIDLER.

The Vice-President of The Art Directors Club, Inc., says:

"Your Christmas display for your Grafonola I consider a fine, if not the finest, of its type that I have seen. . . . It has a freshness and a charm that attracts and invites—something that mere blattancy and color never achieve."

Suggestions for Making Sales of Machines and Records During Holidays :: By W. Bliss Stoddard

St. Louis merchants united last year in a great campaign to push the sale of talking machines and records as Christmas presents. Newspapers, direct mail, window displays, special offers and demonstrations all played their part in acquainting people with the desirability of a talking machine. They say that "the constant drop of water wears away the roughest stone" and the constant repetition of "Buy a Phonograph" or "Buy a Talking Machine" as seen on almost every page of the daily papers was bound to get the reader to thinking about such a purchase sooner or later. These appeals were varied and were imbued with the idea that a talking machine was a welcome gift for any and every member of the family. So much has been said about "phonograph clubs" that this phase of selling was little advertised by the St. Louis dealers.

Goldman Bros. was one of the few firms that spoke of their Xmas Club, through which one could purchase one of the popular-priced machines at the rate of $2.00 a month. What interested most prospective customers, however, was their offer of a complete set of bluebird china with each phonograph. They showed in their window a table set with this china and at the other end one of the talking machines. Broad red ribbons ran from each to a card on the wall, framed with a Christmas wreath, which stated: "Music for the Christmas Holidays—China for the Christmas Feast—All for two dollars down and two dollars a month."

The P. A. Starck Piano Co. was another firm that made a special offer to secure the holiday purchase of a talking machine. It offered free with each machine a handsome floor lamp with silk shade. The instrument and lamp were displayed in the window, while inside, on a low platform covered with a soft rug were placed one of the lamps (lighted) and one of the phonographs. This machine was kept in constant action to demonstrate its quality, and from the large stock of records in the rack any would be played to suit the visitor's fancy. The firm does a large mail order business and one of the main features of its success is the fact that it ships phonographs anywhere for a free trial.

Shattinger's, featuring records rather than talking machines, had one catchy display that called instant attention to the late records. In the corner was shown a Christmas tree, gaily decorated with lights and tinsel, beside which stood Santa Claus with his pack. In the foreground was a talking machine wreathed with pine and holly. Around this was dancing a circle of figures. Each alternate one was a record, with hands, feet and head made of bamboo sticks painted black; while between each was a black cardboard figure, the head of which was in the shape of a music note,

Original Methods to Garner Gift Dollars by Live Dealers of St. Louis Result in Increased Business

while the arms and legs were grotesquely curled. A card with a holly border advised:

Candy vanishes and flowers fade, but MUSIC RECORDS give pleasure long after the first thrill of Christmas morning. Give them as gifts. Let our demonstrators play as many as you wish.

A good idea of the pleasure a talking machine will give, not only now, but in the years to come, was worked out by McNichol. In the foreground was shown a phonograph, in front of which were two children dancing their dolls to the sound of its music. The wall was painted grey, with white clouds. In the center of the first cloud were seen several youths and maidens dancing to the music of a machine. The second cloud showed a mother rocking her child to sleep to the soothing tones of a lullaby from the machine at her side. The third cloud showed a couple well on in middle life sitting close together listening to the music of a phonograph. A card by the actual machine suggested:

YEARS OF HAPPINESS IN ONE CHRISTMAS GIFT

Think of THIS Christmas gift as a gift of year-round Christmas cheer for many years to come. You and your family and friends can enjoy all the music of all the world for a lifetime when you give a Columbia Grafonola.

The talking machine as a means of keeping children at home was recently suggested by the Grand Leader. Their striking window first brought the idea before the public. The floor was covered with cotton to represent snow, and in the background were small trees, also thickly powdered. In the foreground was a toy house, about four feet high. The door was open and the interior brightly lighted. In a high chair sat a doll, gazing at a phonograph of actual size, which took up the greater part of the interior of the house. The window was lighted by bulbs of blue glass, which gave a moonlight effect to the scene—the bright light in the little house causing the phonograph to stand out distinctly. A card near the glass suggested:

NOTHING LIKE MUSIC TO KEEP THE YOUNGSTERS ENTERTAINED

Put a phonograph in your home if you want to keep the children there.

The majority of people have but a faint conception of the great variety of records that are being produced and it takes an ad like that of the Home Music Co., Lancaster, Pa., to bring home the fact that they can get practically any variety they desire. This enterprising firm recently took an entire page in the local paper, in the center of which it placed the cut of a fine Victrola. Above, below and on either side were little boxes on the top of each of which was printed one of the headings—concert songs, sentimental ballads, comic, Italian gems, opera gems, Church hymns, popular songs, sacred songs, marches, transcriptions, Hawaiian airs, folk songs and descriptive; as well as jazz, mazurka, fox-trot, waltz, one-step and two-step. In such a list there was music of a kind to please the most diverse tastes. If it had arranged a window along the same line, with a Victrola, and the records, labeled as above, set in wire racks suspended from the ceiling or laid on the floor, it would have acted as a very potent selling agent for the disposal of these records. Incidentally, considerable publicity was gained for the company's dance records by offering them with a Victrola for the use of public dances. Once the young people found to what good advantage they could be used for the larger dances, they were more apt to see the possibilities of same for little informal at-home dances and the sale of this class of records was given a decided impetus. Not only that, but vocal and descriptive selections to be placed upon the Victrola while the dancers were resting were freely loaned, and in this way the latest song hits of the metropolis were brought to the attention of the public as soon as they were received in stock, resulting in an early call at the store for some of those which had struck their fancy.

TRADE CONDITIONS IN BERMUDA

W. D. Wadson, Here After Victor Shipments, Tells of Big Possibilities on His Island—Installs Sheet Music Department

Walter D. Wadson, of the firm of Thomas J. Wadson & Son, Hamilton, Bermuda, exclusive Victor dealers in that city, was a visitor at the offices of The World late in November. This is the second trip Mr. Wadson has made to the United States since August. Naturally, like all other dealers at this season of the year, he was particularly interested in getting as heavy shipments of Victor goods as possible for the holiday season.

He was also greatly interested in the Music Publishers' Protective Association's campaign which is encouraging talking machine dealers to stock current selections of popular music. His firm has made arrangements to carry popular songs.

In speaking of general trade conditions in Bermuda, Mr. Wadson says he feels that the Victor sales in his territory have hardly scratched the surface of possibilities. While it is true that for a number of years they have done an excellent business he feels that the future will see even a greater expansion in the demand for musical instruments.

Sitting back and wondering how to stimulate collections or increase sales will not do the trick unless the thoughts are backed up by action.

EFFECTIVE WINDOW DISPLAYS

Collins Piano Co., of New Orleans, Features Timely Windows—"Ned" Wilson Firm Believer in This Type of Publicity

NEW ORLEANS, LA., December 5.—The Collins Piano Co., at 155 Baronne street, Victor dealer, has been featuring recently a series of effective window displays that have not only attracted the attention of passers-by, but have produced direct sales. One of these windows featured the popular Feist hit, "Why Should I Cry Over You?" and as a result of this display the Collins Piano Co. sold an exceptionally large number of Victor records featuring this hit.

"Ned" Wilson, manager of the Collins Piano Co., and one of the most popular men in the local trade, is a firm believer in the value of distinctive window displays and under his direction the Collins windows are changed frequently and almost invariably present displays well calculated to produce direct results. He takes advantage of holidays and other timely events to prepare windows particularly pertinent to the season of the year or to the character of the events uppermost in the minds of the public.

Morris Nimcowitz, proprietor of the Morris Music Shops, located at 2030 East Fordham road, and at 659 Lenox avenue, New York, recently entertained his employes at the Parisienne Cafe, Fordham. Those present included M. Nimcowitz, Joe Fisher, manager; Messrs. Dimond, Jordan, Schaffer, Rouch, Berg, Rabinowitz and Teneoit—all employes of the Lenox avenue branch. The guests of honor were Mrs. Nimcowitz, Miss Silverblat, Harry Nimcowitz, Joe Fisher and O. P. Grafen, sales manager of the Granby Phonograph Corp.'s New York headquarters.

The banquet was a most enjoyable affair with Joe Fisher as toastmaster, and during the evening speeches were made by Messrs. Nimcowitz, Dimond, Schaffer, Grafen and Mrs. Nimcowitz. One of the features of the evening's program was a song, entitled "The Yell of Morris," composed by Jordan and Fisher.

During the evening the business campaign was discussed and everybody agreed upon the transaction of $100,000 worth of business during the holiday season. It was also decided to have a reunion of this kind at frequent periods in the future.

3. PAPA HAYDN AND HIS SURPRISE

At the close of last month's article I explained how the "Surprise" Symphony got its name and said a few words about its second movement, in which the "surprise" occurs. I also suggested that the first movement, as given on one-faced Victor record No. 35243, might profitably furnish something interesting and instructive to listen to a few times during the period between November 15 and December 15.

A Reminder on Form

Assuming then that those who are following these articles have listened to record No. 35243 and have some idea of how it goes, let me make a few comments. By this time everybody ought to remember that the first movement of a symphony, as Papa Haydn worked out its form, consists of (a) an introduction, sometimes, but not always, leading to (b) a first theme of incisive, brisk character which, after being announced and (usually) repeated, gives place in turn to (c) a second theme, commonly in the dominant of the main key (that is, a fifth above or a fourth below) and of more appealing feminine character, after which comes (d) a development during which the two themes are worked out to the limit of the composer's ability to make something of them, whereupon there is (e) a recapitulation of the two themes and lastly (f) a coda or closing piece, commonly made out of the material of the first theme.

Now, have you been trying to hear any of these divisions and subdivisions in the charming music of the Surprise? If you have you will at once have perceived that the music, as arranged for the record, has been slightly condensed. For instance, there is not much development and the recapitulation has been shortened. As it is, the music runs about as follows:

Analysis of the Record

First there is a pleasing little introduction of just a few bars in length, sounded by the strings and some of the wood-winds, which briefly but unhurriedly leads into the first theme. This is easily recognized from its rhythm of Ta...Ra.Ta.Ta.Ta... with the stress on the last syllable. Haydn takes this engaging theme and pitches it about, first in his high strings and then in his low ones. His second theme comes in after the first has been well enunciated, so that you cannot mistake the intention to make it his principal idea. It comes in so gently and quietly that you hardly notice it as it sounds its calm way through the low register of the violins. In fact, Haydn scarcely gets it sounded before he proceeds to drop it and dashes into a development of the first theme. Notice how he changes slightly the rhythm and then alters the instrumentation, first giving bits of the melody to the wood-wind and to the brass, and then by a series of scale passages carrying us back gradually to a restatement of the theme in its original form. This safely sounded, he gives us a dashing little coda to close things up; and there we are.

Haydn's Wind Instruments

If you will listen carefully you will notice two or three interesting points. For one thing, Haydn was dealing in those days (130 years ago) with orchestras which had not the capacity of the instruments of to-day. The wind instruments were especially poor in contrast to their modern successors. In fact, the flutes, oboes, bassoons, trumpets and horns which formed the wind sections of Haydn's orchestra (clarinets, English horns, bass clarinets, contra bassoons, trombones and tubas came in later) were not as yet provided with keys or valves. In consequence they were able to sound only the open harmonics of their tubes. On a brass instrument these were obtained by altering the pressure of the lips against the mouthpiece. Modern players, of course, do this, too, but in addition their instruments carry extra crooks to the tubes, controlled by valves, whereby the player can produce all the other tones needed to make a chromatic scale. In just the same way a wood wind instrument of Haydn's time had only finger holes and consequently could not sound all the tones of the chromatic scale, but only the scale of the key which it was built to sound. Naturally, therefore, the wind instruments in Haydn's orchestra did not get much to do except to play accompanying chords to the melodies sounded by the violins and 'cellos. In the first movement of this Surprise Symphony there is a striking illustration of this fact. Right in the middle the melodies suddenly cease and the wind instruments alone, for several bars, sound a syncopated accompaniment, with a rhythm something like this:

Ta...Ta.Ra.Ta.Ta...

Ta...Ta.Ta...Ta.

over and over again, until a sudden rush of scale passages in the violins swallows it up. Now, in the scores of symphonies of this period you will find whole pages of notes for the wind instruments in which nothing more exciting than this takes place. Indeed, if you listen closely in this piece we are now discussing you will hear much the same sort of music for the wind instruments from beginning to end. It is only very occasionally that they get a bit of melody. The reason, of course, is that these instruments were so very limited in their powers. On the other hand, a symphonic composer of today finds that his wind instruments offer him two complete choirs, one of the wood and one of the brass instruments, each able to play a whole piece by itself and to execute passages which even fifty years ago would have been thought impossible.

I said above that the record we have been using has a condensed version of the movement. This, nevertheless, is quite satisfactory as a picture of the complete score, since it only omits a bit of the development and the greater part of the recapitulation. The introduction, the statement of the themes, the development and the coda are all properly represented and though one would have been better pleased to have had the movement entire (by using both faces of the record for the single movement), there is no good cause for complaint in what is given us.

Quartet and Symphony Compared

Referring now for a moment back to last month's article, it is easy to see that the only difference between the classical symphony and the classical quartet lies in the fact that the one is written for a larger and more powerful array of instruments than the other. As the possibilities of the orchestra were more clearly seen, however, the composers of symphonic music became bolder and made more experiments, until to-day we find the symphony much more complex, though at the same time more satisfying, more complete and in every way more wonderful. On the other hand, I personally confess to a vast love for the sweetness and light of eighteenth century music, which did not occupy itself with futile attempts to put metaphysical states into sound, but was content to produce pure forms of beauty.

Turning now to record No. 35244 we listen to the second movement just to remind ourselves of the place where the "surprise" comes in. Nothing more need be said about this little set of variations on a simple theme, for its form and content are as an open book which all can read. But the minuet which constitutes the third movement demands a few moments' attention for its very loveliness.

About a Minuet

I have already reminded readers that a minuet is a stately dance in triple time, not unlike what a slow waltz would be, though the dance itself is more like a formal quadrille, as that used to be danced two generations since. The symphonic composers, however, beginning with

Haydn, made it merrier than ever it was as a formal dance and the present piece fully sustains its writer's reputation for geniality. It begins on the third beat of the bar and trips merrily along for all the world like the homeliest rustic merrymaking and not at all like the stately pageantry of an eighteenth century drawing-room. Interrupted in the middle of its course, the music turns to the Trio (so-called, I suppose, because originally it was written to be played by three instruments, or else because it is always in three-four time). This is invariably a slower and highly contrasting section and in the present case forms an unmistakable but appropriate foil to the merriment of the main movement, which in due course turns up again and trips its merry way to its conclusion.

Entry of the Scherzo

Let us pause, as we take off the record, just long enough to remind ourselves that although Mozart retained the idea of the Minuet in his symphonies, the more serious and powerful mind of Beethoven rapidly inaugurated a change when he substituted the Scherzo, which, in the same rhythm and with the same contrasting middle section, presents ideas of a less trivial and more moving shape and carries on further the modern conception of the symphony as a great epic poem in tone. Beethoven made the definite change in his third (Heroic) symphony and exemplified it still further in the glories of the fifth, seventh and ninth.

Finale!

Back we go now to the first record, 35243, and this time we take its reverse side. Here is the attractive melody of the finale. Haydn was a genial old soul and melody flowed from him without ceasing. He could always write a pretty tune and he never repeated himself. How he did it is not the point. He did it, that is all we need care about. And in this case he lives up to his reputation. The movement is in the general shape of what is called a rondo, which means a sort of circular form in which you keep on going round and round, as it were, coming back to the original tune at equal intervals from beginning to end. There is nothing difficult to follow and so I recommend to the student the simple course of first listening two or three times till the "run" of the piece is well in his mind and then trying it again a number of times to get a line on the instrumentation, that is, on the manner in which Haydn has distributed the parts among his instruments. Again the comparative poverty of the wind instruments will be noted and also the fact that Haydn used so often to write for his bass strings in only one part, making the 'cellos simply double the contrabasses an octave higher. It took Beethoven to learn to treat the violas and 'cellos as separate, individual voices. In the quartets of Haydn's time one also finds the viola poorly treated, as if composers were not quite sure what to do with it and thought it best simply to give it the merest filling in, just enough to thicken up the harmonies and make the chords reasonably full. Mozart soon learned better, as you can find out from listening to the Victor records of Mozart quartet movements as made by the Flonzaley and Elman Quartets. On the other hand, the moment you go to the works of a later period you find a vast difference. The instruments are now treated more individually. It is no longer just a first violin with three accompanists. Beethoven, Schumann, Dvorak, Smetana and Tschaiakowski are represented by Flonzaley interpretations of movements from some of their best quartets and careful attention to these will show exactly what I mean. There are few more fascinating hobbies than the discovery of the inner development of musical composition; nor is any method of pursuing the search comparable with this method of listening critically to fine records.

Misunderstandings Regarding Terms Very Often Cause of Repossessions :: By Arthur H. Foster

The talking machine business is essentially an instalment business and, therefore, one of the greatest problems before the trade is the prompt collection of accounts and the diminution of repossessions. Misunderstanding by customers or inadequate explanation of terms on the part of the salesmen are often at the root of the evil. One of the first essentials of the instalment business is that customers clearly understand the terms which they are required to meet when making a purchase and the members of the sales staff should be held accountable by the sales manager or proprietor if a customer makes a purchase and delivery is made before thorough understanding is established.

The temptation on the part of the salesman or the proprietor to slight over the question of terms in order to insure the making of a sale is undoubtedly very great, but unless an article stays sold the profit on the transaction is lost. This matter of terms and the periods when payments are to be made should be handled in a firm and uncompromising manner.

A woman enters a store to buy a talking machine and the clever salesman has succeeded in selling her on the line he represents. She is financially unable to make a cash purchase and the terms which she can obtain are an important problem to her, just as they are to the proprietor of the establishment. The following is approximately the conversation which causes misunderstandings:

"I like this instrument very much, but I am unable to pay cash for it. What are your terms?"

"Oh, there won't be any trouble there," answers the salesman. "We can arrange that detail to suit your purse," and instead of trying to obtain a reasonable down-payment and profitable payments for his house the salesman opens up the way for the customer to dicker and make her own terms, usually the lowest possible to obtain. When the customer finally closes the deal she leaves the store with the vague idea that she must pay so much every so often. This part is all right, but what the customer does not carry home with her is the impression that the dealer is doing a favor by extending terms at all and that it is absolutely essential and most important that the payments be met on the day they are due.

Since this customer was sold on this dealer's line before terms were discussed the chances are that a frank statement by the salesman of reasonable terms would have been accepted without question and the customer would have left the establishment more satisfied with her purchase and with considerably more respect for that store. When a person buys an article and is able to secure any old terms desired there is always a feeling that she might have done better if she had dickered a little longer, and thus is bred the first dissatisfaction which eventually results in delayed payments.

The dealer must make his collections on the day they are payable insofar as it is within his power to do so. Each day he or someone delegated to the task should go over the books to check up on the payments due that day and if they do not arrive in the next morning's mail a tactful letter should be sent to the delinquent. A more forceful letter should be sent at short intervals thereafter until the money comes in or the point is reached where a repossession is desirable. Beating about the bush does not accomplish anything. The best line to pursue is a straightforward policy which will leave no room for misunderstanding as to the contract which the buyer enters into with the seller at the time of purchase. Some concerns even send out a polite letter of reminder a few days before a payment falls due and in many instances this has been found effective in curtailing delayed payments to a minimum.

The sheriff has placed the padlock on the door of many a failure because that merchant did not realize that making a great many sales is not always the road to business prosperity. A man who sells a hundred thousand dollars' worth of goods and collects only 5 per cent of this amount each month cannot be successful. His available capital has been used to furnish this stock and unless money comes in he will find himself with no money to pay his bills and replenish his stock. The result is obvious. Those to whom he owes money will come down on him like a ton of bricks and voluntary or involuntary bankruptcy is the logical end.

There is only one way in which to avoid this undesirable and ignominious end and that is to establish definite collection and down-payment policies which will place the business on a sound basis. It is exceedingly bad business practice and shows a lack of the fundamental principles of merchandising to place in the hands of the salesmen the power to make any terms so long as the sale is consummated. Each and every salesman should receive instructions regarding the lowest terms which the dealer finally decides are necessary for him to realize a profit and the members of the sales staff should also be impressed with the necessity of making clear to each customer or prospective customer the terms on which the purchase is made and the importance of meeting these terms with the utmost promptitude.

Four-Minute Conference on Business Topics

No. 8—Your Gifts—and the Science of Using Them

[This is the eighth of a series of four-minute conferences on topics of direct interest to business men in the talking machine trade which have been prepared for this publication by Lester G. Herbert.—EDITOR.]

Sometimes we speak of gifts as the offerings, contributions or presents which we make to others. Again we speak of gifts as personal talents. Either interpretation is correct, for our talents are among the richest offerings of Nature to us.

Some people pride themselves on giving away very little. They boast that they always whittle toward themselves. They point out various individuals of generous impulses who have come to want, or whose many offerings have not been appreciated because of their very lavishness.

In doing for others, as in everything else, there is a happy medium. To be too stingy or close is to be a miser, and miserliness is a vice. To be too lavish and to distribute what we have without the exercise of good judgment is extravagance, and that, too, is a vice. However, no man can achieve his own best in point of sympathy, brotherly kindness or the desire for service without doing a certain amount of giving.

The business man is frequently called upon to make contributions to this, that and the other, and often he does this as a matter of policy rather than of desire. Our business benevolences should be as wisely administered as any other part of our finances. It is a good plan to set apart a budget, be it large or small, which we can afford to use for community and public welfare.

Some firms charge this up to advertising, but it is doubtful if this is a wise policy, for many of the solicitations to which we are inclined to respond have no real advertising value. It is better then to have a distinct sum of money, determined on a percentage basis, which can be used in this manner. Some one person may have the administration of this and be held responsible for investigation and suitable disbursement.

Then, when the fund is used up, the method of many firms may be followed of saying pleasantly,

"We are sorry, for we would be only too glad to lend our assistance to this worthy cause, but our appropriation for the year for benevolences has been used up and no more funds are available until the beginning of our fiscal year."

This method prevents the disposition to do too much for one and too little for another. It prevents embarrassment and encourages piecing out the fund in the most thrifty possible manner and so as to touch the worthiest causes. When there is money on hand of this kind the giving can be cordial and prompt. A small sum given in this spirit means a good deal more than a large sum grudgingly handed out after annoying details.

As a rule, solicitors for benefits of this kind are public-spirited citizens who are busy themselves and yet who are giving their own time gratuitously in order to help some good work along. There is a science in business giving as well as in business management. Some firms make the mistake of hit-and-miss, indiscriminate giving, and others are a good deal more systematic. Systematic methods are always more satisfactory.

Our business gifts within our own organization are a different matter. Many a firm has given serious thought to this and has worked the matter out on the profit-sharing, the bonus or commission basis. This has been done with the idea of rewarding faithful workers for conscientious service.

As a rule, extra effort and time are required at certain seasons of the year and some recognition of this makes for good-will, co-operative harmony and a finer degree of morale. It is a good plan also for those in authority to express a hearty word of appreciation from time to time of the help and support given.

It is a peculiar thing, but we never really possess an article of value until we share it with someone else, whether it be a pleasure, a material possession or the intangible spirit of brotherly kindness.

There is a science in giving—the science of giving wisely; of giving so as to strengthen and hearten and not to pauperize; the science of true generosity in that we recognize the multitude of our blessings and are willing to show ourselves worthy of larger responsibilities and commissions. A man is known among the angels by the manner in which he gives!

MENNEN CO. APPEAL IS EXPLAINED

Attorney for Mennen Co. Declares Litigation Between Federal Trade Commission and Mennen Co. a Test Case—Interesting Facts

The following letter concerning the appeal of the Mennen Co. to the Circuit Court of Appeals has been received by The World from Gilbert H. Montague, attorney for the Mennen Co.:

"Your article in your issue of November, entitled 'Argue Right to Fix Discriminatory Prices,' is likely, I am afraid, to mislead your readers as to the point raised by my client, the Mennen Co., in its recent appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals.

"The Mennen Co.'s price schedule is not, and never has been, discriminatory in any real sense. For a considerable period the Mennen Co. granted to wholesalers who rendered a special service in distribution, not rendered by retailers or other branches of distribution, a slight extra discount, in consideration of the special service thus rendered. Probably no business man would ever call this discriminatory, nor would the Federal Trade Commission probably have ever questioned its legality were it not for the fact that one clause in the Clayton Act, dealing with price discriminations, is so broadly worded that the Commission concluded that possibly it forbade any discount for service and permitted discounts only for quantity or differences in the cost of transportation, selling, etc. To clear up the meaning of the Clayton Law on this subject the Commission began two years and a half ago a test case against the Mennen Co. This test case was brought against the Mennen Co. instead of any one of the almost innumerable multitude of manufacturers in every line of business against whom the same point could have been raised, simply because the Mennen Co., not being a monopoly, and presenting no element of combination, deception or oppressive conduct, raised this single question in a particularly clear and uncomplicated fashion. Throughout this proceeding both the Commission and the Mennen Co. have conducted this litigation solely as a test case and for the single purpose of obtaining from the courts a final decision as to just what is the meaning of this particular clause of the Clayton Act.

"Your article may, perhaps, have led some of your readers to believe that certain wholesale associations were parties to the proceeding, or at least had participated with the Mennen Co. on the latter's petition to the Circuit Court of Appeals to reverse the Federal Trade Commission's order. This is incorrect. The Commission's order made no reference to any wholesale association, nor is any wholesale association a party to this proceeding. The appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals was not made on the petition of any wholesale association, but was made solely by the Mennen Co. No association of any kind has participated or contributed, financially or otherwise, to the Mennen Co.'s defense of this proceeding. For two and one-half years the entire burden of this litigation, which involves the very existence of every wholesaler, and also every small retailer whose buying capacity or location precludes him from ordering individually or collectively in large quantities, has been borne exclusively by the Mennen Co."

NEW STARR HOME IN LOS ANGELES

Work Begun on the Erection of an Elaborate Eight-story and Basement Building in That City to House Headquarters of Pacific Division of the Starr Piano Co.

LOS ANGELES, CAL., November 29.—Work has already started on the excavation of the site for the new building to be occupied by the Starr Piano Co. at 634-36 South Hill street, this city. The new building will be an eight-story and basement structure with a mezzanine floor, will have a frontage of 37½ feet and a depth of 138 feet, and will house the headquarters of the Pacific division of the Starr Piano Co.

Breaking Ground for New Starr Co. Building

The Pacific division was organized in 1907 and has served as executive headquarters for practically all the territory west of the Rockies, although distributing warehouses have long been maintained in San Francisco and Portland to give dealers rapid service in the delivery of Starr pianos and phonographs and Gennett records.

The new building has been specially designed to meet the requirements of the company's business. In addition to the structure now being built the company owns the adjoining six-story building with a 75-foot frontage on Hill street which now houses the local headquarters. The present building will be vacated when the new structure is completed.

PLAN TO CO-OPERATE WITH ARTISTS

Dallas Music Industries Association Discusses Co-operation With Artists

DALLAS, TEX., November 27.—A general discussion of the best method of co-operation with the musical artists who will appear in Dallas during the coming season, in order to insure the success of their concerts here, was held at the luncheon meeting of the Dallas Music Industries Association recently.

Following the discussion, a committee composed of Paul Burling, D. L. Whittle, Robert Watkin and F. Gissaldi was appointed to confer with the local concert managers in order that the dates of the appearance of the artists may not conflict and to do all they can to assure the success of the appearances.

PLAYS ON CURIOSITY OF PUBLIC

ADAMS CABINET CORP. TO MOVE

Will Transfer Equipment From Los Angeles to Ontario, Cal., When New Factory Is Completed on or Before January 1

ONTARIO, CAL., December 8.—Construction work on the plant of the Adams Record Cabinet Corp. here will be started at once and is scheduled to be completed not later than January 1.

Immediately upon completion of the building the corporation will move machinery and equipment to the value of more than $30,000 from Los Angeles to this city. The company is now operating in cramped quarters in the Angel City.

The industry represents a local investment of more than $40,000 and will give employment to approximately forty men and women at the start, with excellent prospects of the number being increased to at least 100 during the year.

Officers and directors of the company are George E. Adams, president; A. G. Appel, secretary and treasurer; George E. Abbott, G. W. Christy, E. C. Zweiger, R. B. Hill and George E. Adams.

CLEVERLY ARRANGED WINDOW DISPLAY

SAN ANTONIO, TEX., December 4.—The Brunswick Shop here is putting in some very splendid window displays to advertise Brunswick phonographs and records. Recently it staged a splendid display of the "Haunting Blues," which nearly blocked traffic. There was in the window a life-size picture of a negro parson carrying in a sack a chicken, whisky bottles, etc. The life of the picture was a big black cat that wags its head and tail.

It is poor business practice to try to compete in price with dealers who handle cheap lines of instruments. The trade worth securing will make it a point to do business with the dealer who handles honest merchandise.

MAGNAVOX CO. ENLARGING PLANT

The Prominent Manufacturers Add 32,000 Square Feet to Factory Facilities—Working Day and Night to Keep Pace With Demands

OAKLAND, CAL., December 5.—The Magnavox Co., of this city, has recently added to its already large floor space 32,000 additional square feet to be used for assembling. The present factory is to be used almost in its entirety for a machine shop to produce the many hundreds of parts necessary in the construction of the popular Magnavox radio, Magnavox phonograph reproducers and public speaking voice amplifiers of many different types.

The business has grown rapidly until to-day the Magnavox Co. is one of the largest manufacturing plants in the West, with a worldwide distribution. Large quantities of Magnavox instruments have recently been shipped to England, France, Italy, Australia, China, Japan—in fact, the name "Magnavox" has rapidly spread all over the entire world, due in a great measure to the rapidly increasing popularity of radio telephone reception. During the Spring, when there was a great rush by the public for Magnavox radio, the company, in spite of its best efforts to increase production, got behind with its orders. However, the new addition, with its greater facilities for producing goods in a more efficient and speedier manner, has eliminated the possibility that this Fall anyone will have to do without Magnavox equipment. Radio is essentially a Winter, Fall and Spring sport, and by having its new addition in shape now the demand for Magnavox equipment, it is hoped, will be kept supplied.

Magnavox Plant in Process of Building

The new addition is made of reinforced concrete and brick, with all the modern conveniences which can be possibly built into a factory building. Well over a thousand people can now be easily accommodated, although even at the present time two shifts are necessary in the production of the many pieces of apparatus made by the company. There is an indication throughout the entire world that this season will show a greater amount of radio business than ever before, even in spite of the so-called craze which took place this Spring. People are now really beginning to realize the actual worth of radio outside of the mere amusement feature and are beginning to look upon radio as practically indispensable.

PROSPERITY IN TEXAS TERRITORY

Thomas E. Swann, Victor Wholesaler of Houston, Tex., Visits Camden on Annual Buying Trip—Southwestern Business Brisk

HOUSTON, TEX., November 29.—Thomas E. Swann, president of the Talking Machine Co. of Texas, Victor wholesaler, recently returned from a short trip to New York. While in the metropolis Mr. Swann visited the Victor Talking Machine Co. on his annual Fall buying trip. The Talking Machine Co. of Texas has been enjoying a fine business, according to Mr. Swann, and the outlook for an exceptionally fine holiday trade is excellent. He also pointed out that the shortage of machines which has been keenly felt in the North and East has also struck the Southwest. Dealers in this section of the country are in somewhat better shape, however, because in the majority of instances they placed early orders for large stocks.

RECORDS FROM "YANKEE PRINCESS"

Three new Brunswick records of song hits of the New York light opera, "The Yankee Princess," will soon be released, according to an announcement by the company. These hits will be played by the Joseph C. Smith Orchestra, exclusive Brunswick artists, and are as follows: "I Still Can Dream," "My Bajadera" and "In the Starlight."

Interesting and Instructive Comparison Between Two Dealers' Methods :: By L. T. Schaefer

Iowa and Illinois Traveler for Brunswick Co.

In a certain town in my territory are two dealers. Number One says:

"We have strikes, people are not working, business is bad and probably by this time some new calamity has occurred," which murders any possible idea in his subconscious mind that, if developed and used, would create sales.

I asked him, "Just what are you doing to get business?" He replied, "No use, I called on Mrs. So and So; her husband is on a strike, etc., and after calling on several others with no better results I gave it up."

I then asked, "How much time do you spend on the outside?" He replied, "Not much, just go out occasionally; people don't seem to want to buy."

Again I asked, "Do you advertise?" He answered, "Oh, yes, a little, but not much; people haven't the money and I feel I am wasting mine under the present conditions."

The above is the frame of mind that man is in and were he before a grand jury of successful business men the foreman would probably say, "Yes, he's guilty, but no use hanging him, he's dead and he doesn't know it."

Now let's see what the other dealer in the same town, possibly a worse location, but alive, is doing.

I walked in. He looked busy, but not too busy to smile and say, "Hello, glad to see you. I've got a machine going out on approval, but if you can wait about half an hour or so I will be back and have several things I wish to see you about," and away he went.

The record girl, she was busy too. I wondered what about, and I asked her. Said she was getting up a list of telephone numbers of people who have not been in the store lately, and as she had some good numbers she knew they would like was preparing to call them up. I suggested that she go ahead and not mind me, and she proceeded, so that by the time Mr. Dealer had returned (about an hour later) she had six people planning to come to the store who had not been in for some time.

Think of that! And some dealers wonder why record business is bad.

She afterward explained that numerous customers would forget to return for more records each month if she would forget them, and figured inasmuch as she received a commission on each record sold, she could earn just that much more each month by retaining all old customers and getting new ones as well, and said the customers seemed to like the idea.

I then spoke to Mr. Dealer again, and he said he would give most anything for a couple of good men as he had all he could handle on the outside and felt that he was not covering enough territory, thereby losing additional business he did not have time for.

I asked him what he did to get business and he said: "Same old stuff. Advertise in the newspapers, by personal letters, placing machines on approval and not forgetting to visit people I have sold, to give them service and get new prospects." I inquired about the last and he said a booster is the best salesman in the world and he would not know what to do if they would not give him prospects, as he usually depended on about one-fourth of his sales from former customers' tips.

Business, he declared, is not what he wanted it to be, but he is happy to know he is getting a fair show. About strikes, etc.—"Yes, business is dull if you let it get that way, but everybody is not on a strike, stores have clerks, offices hire help, business men spend money also, in fact, everyone who is earning a salary is a prospect."

I thought of the other dealer who said business is bad, strikes and bla— bla— bla—, and decided he made it that way, because the other fellow assured and convinced me that you only get what you go after.

SOME ADVERTISING CONSIDERATIONS

Pertinent Excerpts From Instructive Address by Charles W. Myers at Advertising Club

The members of the Advertising Club were favored recently by an address by Charles W. Myers, advertising manager of Morris & Co., the big Chicago packers, on the subject of practical advertising and the value of co-ordinating advertising and selling machinery. Excerpts from the address which might prove of value to talking machine dealers follow:

"Advertising is news and news is information. Its function is to connect with the people the things they need and should possess.

"We live and learn," observed the old adage, but, verily, some of us only live. The big idea back of advertising is proper application. How many of us actually know our own markets?

"Have you found the public slow to be convinced as to the products you are merchandising? Why? Are you sure the public needs what you have to offer; that you are taking proper steps to acquaint them of the fact? All advertising may be good, but perhaps your product requires specialized treatment. An overdose is as ineffective as an underdose.

"It has been aptly said, acquaintance begets friendship, confidence comes from friendship and confidence begets business. Affix the link of advertising and you have the secret of successful selling. It is your responsibility to make advertising stand as the first fundamental in this life-up.

"If your business depends upon local distribution back up your long range campaign with close range methods. Utilize your daily newspapers and such other media as will register results. Use enough space to be specific and definite in describing your products. Simply because we and our associates may know all about our goods is no sign that the public knows us. It is well to even consider that the buyer never heard of us when placing our advertising. It would not take long for this self-same public to forget we ever existed if we ceased to advertise.

"Better times lie just ahead of us. Business is improving generally. We must readjust our vision and our plans to meet new conditions. The foremost authorities of our nation predict a trade revival of great proportions. Our tremendous national resources and stabilized monetary conditions augur well for the future. We should be planning right now to stimulate, encourage and create the business which all of us so urgently require."

DELTA CO. MOVES NEEDLE PLANT

LOWELL, MASS., December 6.—The Delta Co., manufacturer of talking machine needles, of this city, has moved its plant to Westfield, Mass., where it is quartered in the Westfield Power Co.'s building. Additional equipment will be installed and the company with these necessary facilities will be able to largely increase production.

SOME SALES STIMULATORS

Besides the ordinary advertising and sending out direct-by-mail literature there are many ways in which the dealer can cash in on publicity which is out of the ordinary. For example: A number of dealers have found it profitable to advertise in theatre programs, others garner the elusive sale by advertising in programs for all sorts of entertainments and concerts under community supervision. One field which is greatly neglected is advertising in the menus of restaurants. Roy E. Purdrum, talking machine dealer at 32 State street, Girard, O., has been advertising on the front covers of menus of local restaurants for a considerable time and he has found this a prolific means of sales. An advertisement of this character has a mighty good chance of being read, more so, in fact, than most other types of publicity, the main reason being that the average person, while waiting to be served, usually toys with the menu and reads it over thoroughly. This is also an opportunity for instituting a Christmas drive in co-ordination with the usual holiday campaign in the newspapers.

The various seasons, Spring, Summer, Fall and Winter, offer the live talking machine dealer an opportunity to play up the seasonal appeal in his advertising, making it decidedly stimulating to readers and bringing about the touch which most often develops into sales. Merchants should now have plans completely formulated for the Winter advertising campaign. Winter copy should play up the contrast between cold, blustery outdoors and the long, warm, comfortable evenings indoors with the music masters as fireside companions.

The Vance Music Co., of Mason City, O., recently secured a fine list of live talking machine and record prospects by advertising extensively the fact that each person visiting the store would receive a gift. The visitors were requested to fill out a card with pertinent information regarding their ownership of a machine, type of music preferred, etc. This opened the way for the sales department to get busy.

In order to bring doubtful prospects to his store a certain dealer transported them to and from the establishment in his automobile. Few refused the temptation of the ride with some good music at the end of it and the formerly reluctant prospects were not only impressed with the service rendered by this establishment, but several sales resulted. Others are at the stage where just a little more effort is necessary to secure the name to the dotted line.

A personal letter to the men of families at this time, stressing the value of a talking machine and records as Christmas gifts, should bring big returns. Man is a sentimentalist where his family is concerned and the appeal should be directed toward this side of the nature of the male of the species.

CLEVER STUNT ANNOUNCES OPENING

The Sterling Piano Co., Brunswick dealer, which has just opened a new store in New Haven, Conn., used a rather unusual publicity stunt in announcing the opening. They had five men attired in bright red uniforms go from house to house and hand out invitations, ringing each door bell and waiting for some one to answer before leaving the invitation to come and see the new store and opening. This stunt brought many to the opening.

SONG SUCCESS IN PUBLICITY DRIVE

Toronto Columbia Dealers Feature "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers"—Publicity Produces Sales and Theatre Co-operates

TORONTO, CAN., December 4.—Columbia dealers in this city participated generally in the dealer contests for three prizes offered by the Allan Theatre for the best dressed windows in connection with the playing of the Edw. B. Marks' hit, "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers." The Allan Theatre, one of the biggest moving picture theatres in Winnipeg, has an arrangement

One of the Prize-winning Windows with the Toronto branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co. to play the selections that are recorded by Columbia at their Symphony Orchestra concerts on Monday nights and the more popular dance records with their thirty-five-piece jazz orchestra Thursday nights.

In connection with this publicity stunt the displays used by the Toronto dealers were responsible for the sale of a large number of "Wooden Soldier" Columbia records. The selection was featured at both concerts at the Allan Theatre and Mr. Stewart, manager of the theatre, donated three prizes for the best dressed window.

"THE TRUTH ABOUT RADIO"

Under This Title the Manhattan Electrical Supply Co., Inc., Carries a Most Illuminating Campaign in the Leading Papers of the Country

Of particular interest to every dealer and radio enthusiast in the country is the series of page advertisements which have appeared during the past month in the newspapers of the larger cities of the country, as well as supplements in different forms in the national magazines of large circulation above the name of the Manhattan Electrical Supply Co., Inc., the oldest national distributor of radio supplies in the United States, operating several stores in New York, and with offices in Chicago, St. Louis and San Francisco, as well as manufacturer of the Red Seal battery and Manhattan radio sets.

These messages to the public have invariably been captioned, "The Truth About Radio," and they have appeared at the psychological moment to benefit the entire radio industry. We reproduce excerpts from one of these advertisements so capably arranged by C. C. Agate, advertising manager of the company, and it will be noted that the text, which follows, is informative and timely.

"Radio, like the automobile and every other new industry, had to go through growing pains. Scarcely over a year old as a home entertainer, it swept the country off its feet into a mad scramble to 'Get a radio somehow—but get one!'

"The supply of worth-while sets and parts made by worth-while radio manufacturers was soon snapped up. Their output, working day and night, couldn't begin to keep up with what was almost a hysterical demand.

"The story moves fast now:

"Almost over night hundreds of new, inexperienced manufacturers commenced turning out radio sets and equipment. Factories sprang up like mushrooms. Now, all of these sets were not bad. A few were excellent. But, in the main, most of them had just about as much relation to radio as a sundial has to a fine Swiss watch. They would work after a fashion under ideal conditions and then only for a time.

Radio Was Blamed

"Every squeak and squawk from an inferior radio set loses a friend for radio. You may have formed your impression of radio from hearing some one of those knocked-together sets. But the poorly made receiving set, whether made of inferior parts, by an inexperienced manufacturer or made of good parts assembled by a novice, is as different in performance as the first talking machine was different from the Victrola.

Why Radio Is Here to Stay

"It is not surprising that you have condemned radio, if you have heard only a poor receiving set. A poor set will give any one a wrong impression. What you may not know is that it is possible for you to buy a set that will meet your most exacting conditions in range of receiving as well as in price. You are assured of absolute satisfaction when you buy to-day if you simply make certain that the set is made by a company having a reputation for making radio equipment.

Better Broadcasting Than Ever Before

"You know how the recent World Series was broadcasted, play by play, by Grantland Rice, of the Tribune. Not only his voice could be heard clearly, but at times you could hear the voice of the peanut boy or of an overwrought fan above the roar of the crowd. And this Saturday you can hear every play of the Yale-Princeton football game reported by radio. This is simply an indication of the many broadcasting features that you will enjoy if you have a radio set in your home.

"Plans are now being worked out to finality for this Fall's and Winter's broadcasting that will amaze even the most ardent radio enthusiast. It will be truer than ever before that the home without a radio set is a home with its doors locked against progress.

How to Buy Radio Safely

"There is only one safe rule in getting a radio set for your home. If you are technically trained—not only in the electrical theory, but in applied mechanics—buy separate parts and assemble them if you must. It is unnecessary to warn such men against selecting poorly made parts; technically trained men always buy the best; always select those materials made only by the most reputable manufacturers.

"But if you are not technically trained, don't try to assemble a radio set. Buy a complete set."

"You wouldn't think of trying to build a phonograph or an automobile, even if you could get spare parts. Yet the phonograph and automobile are far less technical and easier to produce than a satisfactory radio receiving set. And a radio set that won't work as you want it to work is money thrown to the winds."

The closing paragraphs of the advertisement tell how to buy radio receiving sets and tell of the various types on the market, describing them in an interesting way. It is strongly emphasized that "it pays to buy only those sets made by reliable manufacturers."

This advertising merits the highest praise because of its constructive character. Moreover, its lucidity enables every reader to understand the points emphasized; in this way the entire radio industry is benefited—hence it is educational and valuable.

THE IMPORTANCE OF ADVERTISING

The Experience of Emma Calve and Elena Sanz Points a Moral Which Is Well Worthy of Consideration by the Person Sceptical as to the Value of the Publicity Field

One time in Paris Emma Calve and Elena Sanz thought they would try their luck as street singers.

It would be a wonderful experience, they thought, for two opera singers to go out unannounced and astonish the music-loving natives.

After repeated rebuffs they were permitted to enter a court, where they began to sing.

Although they gave the best they had and sang songs that their friends admired, a furious voice inquired, "How long is this howling going to continue?"

As a result of the complaints they were driven out of the courtyard.

That night at the Spanish Embassy they sang the same songs and were overwhelmed with compliments.

Later in the evening they told of their experiences and one of the men present who had been loudest in his praise became the butt of some of his associates because he had confessed still earlier in the evening that he had chased two singers out of a certain courtyard that afternoon.

The two singers, of course, were Calve and Sanz.

This story illustrates what most of us ought to know by this time, and that is the importance of advertising even to products that are meritorious.

There was no question at all of the ability of Calve and Sanz to sing perfectly. In the music world they were known as high-priced artists. When properly advertised and introduced the public was quite willing to pay vast sums to hear them sing.

When, however, these two singers, unannounced and dressed like wanderers, went out into the streets to give their songs away, they received insults for their pains.

The products of many manufacturers are failing to find their way onto store shelves because the makers haven't introduced them to the public by advertising.

Other products that have been on the shelves but which now are unadvertised are being crowded out by advertised products.

The law is: The fit survive and the unfit decline according to their adaptability or inadaptability to environment.

Unadvertised products have a very slim chance in the competitive world, says The Treasure Chest.

COLUMBIA ADVERTISING PRODUCES

The huge, full-page newspaper campaign sponsored by the Columbia Graphophone Co. in behalf of Columbia New Process records has been instrumental in stimulating record sales all over the country. The Galperin Music Co., of Charleston, W. Va., Columbia dealer, reports the receipt of thirty mail orders for New Process records as a result of the advertising over a period of only two days. Similar reports have been received from Columbia branches all over the country. The A. E. Jones Music Co., of Akron, O., stated that its record business was double, attributing this increase to the full pages appearing on New Process records.

DONATED 'BRUNSWICK TO RED CROSS

PEORIA, ILL., December 4.—The firm of Black, Derges & Marshall, this city, donated to the Red Cross a Brunswick Model No. 210. This machine was used to aid the Red Cross drive here. Everyone who joined the Red Cross received a numbered membership card. The holder of the lucky card was presented with the phonograph at the end of the drive.

LANDAU'S IS A SERVICE CENTER

Store Becomes Box Office for Sale of Theatre Tickets and Post Office Sub-station

WILKES-BARRE, PA., December 3.—Landau's Music & Jewelry Store, Victor dealer, 34 South Main street, this city, has built up a fine business through the ultra quality of its service. The concern has become the central box office for the Grand Opera House, in the heart of the business district. Landau's is also usually designated for advance sales of tickets for concerts in Irem Temple. The store is also a post office sub-station. Thus, shoppers are brought to the store who would otherwise go elsewhere for these services.

GLASS BLOCK STORE REMODELS

The Glass Block Store, of Duluth, Minn., has remodeled its phonograph department, putting in four new booths, with Mr. Howe as salesman in charge of the Brunswick department of the business.

REMODELING TWO STORES

Newman Bros., Sonora Dealers in Jersey City and Newark, Making Extensive Alterations

Newman Bros., Sonora dealers of 92 Monticello avenue, Jersey City, N. J., have just finished putting a new front in their store, which is very attractive and represents quite an outlay of money. The two small show windows they formerly had have been combined into one and the additional space created gives them a splendid window for display purposes. Mr. Newman traced sales of two expensive period models within a week after putting in his first display. Their store is now complete with five booths in the Adam period and finished in ivory.

In addition to this, they are also remodeling their store on Newark avenue, Jersey City. This will also be finished in ivory. Mr. Newman was very enthusiastic over the benefits to be derived from having an establishment which he now says is "in keeping with the merchandise I sell, namely, the Sonora."

CAROLA CO.'S RAPID PROGRESS

Four Hundred Dealers Now Handling Carola Line—Practical Publicity Helping Dealers' Sales—Orders Keep Plant Busy

CLEVELAND, O., December 5.—The Carola Co., of this city, manufacturer of the new Carola phonograph, has been meeting with marked success in the introduction of this instrument to the trade, and recognizing the fact that practical co-operation with the dealer is always worth while, the company has been producing a series of sales helps well calculated to attract attention and bring direct results. One of these helps consists of an artistic cardboard easel display which may be placed in the window, on top of a show case or in demonstration booths. This easel display features an actual phonograph from life, showing the Carola in its natural colors, with an illustration of human interest appeal that has attracted favorable comment.

N. I. Schwartz, head of the Carola Co., states that during the past few months more than 400 dealers have arranged to handle the Carola phonograph and that the company's problem the past few weeks has been one of production rather than selling effort. A sales and publicity campaign behind the Carola has been perfected and developed along interesting and practical lines, with the result that the Carola Co. will start 1923 with an excellent dealer representation throughout the country.

RECORD SALES OF MUTUAL PRODUCTS

October and November are reported as the best two months in the history of the Mutual Phono Parts Mfg. Corp., New York City, all previous sales records having been eclipsed. A. P. Frangipane, secretary of the company, predicted in a recent interview with The World that 1923 will witness a renewal of business activity experienced by the talking machine industry in the better years of the past.

EFFECTIVE DIRECT MAIL CAMPAIGN

Series of Blotters and Letters With Human Interest Touch New Brunswick Dealer Help

A complete direct mail campaign plan, which has been successfully used by a Brunswick dealer, was recently described and fully illustrated in a brochure issued by the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. The introduction is written in a manner that is easy to understand and brings out very clearly the fact that it pays to build friendly good will; in other words, to cultivate the prospect before "jumping on him" to close a sale.

The campaign is composed of a series of blotters and form letters, which are sent alternately at reasonable intervals. Both the blotters and letters are full of humor and both are illustrated with clever cartoons. The Brunswick Co. is providing the material with which other Brunswick dealers, who desire to do so, can put on the whole plan.

NEW TYPE OF PHONOGRAPH

BRIDGETON, N. J., December 5.—Oberling Smith, president of the Ferracute Machine Co., of this city, who is well known in engineering circles, has invented a new talking machine known as the Autofono. This instrument carries fifty records, playing any one of them regardless of its position in the magazine. A keyboard in which fifteen push buttons control the fifty selections is connected to the instrument by a small cable long enough to reach any distant room desired. Pressure on any two of these buttons will cause the instrument to play the chosen music. The entire machine can be driven electrically by any standard lighting current.

The Brunswick Store has opened in Lockport, Ill., with a complete line of Brunswick machines. The new firm has installed the most modern fixtures for the convenience of patrons.

LEHENDOFF NEW VOCALION ARTIST

Noted Singer of Russian and Jewish Folk Songs to Record for Vocalion Exclusively

The latest addition to the art of making Vocalion records exclusively is Aaron Lehendoff, noted singer of Russian and Jewish folk songs and hailed as the "Al Jolson" of the Jewish stage. Mr. Lehendoff, who was in Moscow during and after the war, had some exciting experiences before coming to this country two years ago and has met with great success since arriving in the United States. His first Vocalion record will be announced later.

Works of the Season Reviewed and Analyzed by Amy Grant at the Town Hall, New York

Local talking machine dealers and members of their sales staffs who are desirous of brushing up on the details of the grand operas sung during the current season will be interested in the season of opera recitals to be given at the Town Hall, New York, by Amy Grant, during which the works of the season will be reviewed and the text and music analyzed. The first recital took place on November 21, and other recitals will occur on alternate Tuesdays thereafter up to and including April 10.

SYMPHONY RECORDS POPULAR

The sales department of the Columbia Graphophone Co. received recently an interesting photograph from Jorge Metetich, Columbia dealer at Punta Arenas, Chile. The town of Punta Arenas is located a thousand miles off the southern tip of Africa and it is understood that it rains almost twelve months of the year in this place. At the same time, however, the natives seem to have quite a fondness for Columbia symphony series records and, moreover, this enterprising dealer has sold a considerable number of Grafonolas to the music lovers in his section.

A VISITOR FROM BERMUDA

One of the recent visitors at the offices of Collings & Co., Victor distributors, Newark, N. J., was Walter D. Wadson, of the firm of Thomas J. Wadson & Co., Hamilton, Bermuda, well-known Victor dealers of that city. Mr. Wadson had quite a visit with H. A. Lamor, manager of the sales department, whom he had previously met during Mr. Lamor's vacation in Bermuda, and whom he accompanied on his first trip, this year, to the United States, in August.

Churches Offer Fine Field for the Sale of Talking Machines and Records :: By Frank D. Parsons

The importance of music in the church was discussed recently at a conference of eminent churchmen from all parts of the United States which was held in the West. In many of our churches music has long played a preeminent part, noted singers and quartets being engaged on the ground that good music has a spiritual force that soothes and attunes the mind so that it is in a more receptive condition for worship.

While the churches in the great cities can afford to pay noted soloists and famous quartets to interpret the religious music of the masters, the churches in the smaller towns and cities have been at a disadvantage, which it is now possible to overcome thanks to the wonderful accomplishments of our great record makers and manufacturers of the talking machine. To-day the choir leaders are able to secure records for Catholic as well as Protestant churches which fit in admirably with their rituals. By means of these records the great singers—even more famous than those engaged by the big churches in the big cities—are heard in a manner to delight and exalt the worshippers.

And not only is the talking machine a source of delight in the church, but it is utilized for Sunday school entertainments and the various activities of the young men's and women's societies of the parish. This has a commercial value to every local dealer, and it is surprising to find that in many towns and cities dealers have not become awake to the great possibilities of sales to churches, Sunday schools and the many clubs connected with the churches. A little co-operation on the part of the dealer—a suggestion as to how funds may be raised through a fair or small bazaar—will point the way to the purchase of a talking machine and an ample library of records. The churches, Sunday schools, boys' and men's clubs, etc., all have a great advertising potentiality for the dealer who is anxious to expand his business. Indeed no dealer should overlook seeing that a talking machine is utilized by the local churches, in this way bringing more clearly to the attention of a critical public the wonderful possibilities that prevail through the use of talking machine records as a means of worship and entertainment.

In a small church with which the writer is connected Victor records containing numbers from well-known oratorios sung by famous singers were utilized as part of the program of the church concert and no feature of the evening made a more favorable impression. The perfection of the records and the marvelous beauty of the voices of the singers both in solo and chorus work was a revelation to those present, and we venture to say that the dealers in the locality where this church is located benefited materially from this concert.

The success of this concert has induced the writer to urge dealers to get closer to the activities of the young people's societies connected with Christian churches of all denominations as well as our Hebrew friends and it will not require much effort on their part to convince them of the wonderful entertaining qualities of a goodly library of records and a first-class talking machine. Dealers should be on the alert for all opportunities that will expand their business and at the same time emphasize the especially high place which the modern talking machine record occupies in the domain of music.

SOUTH AMERICAN TRADE GAINS

Remarkable Increase Since July Last—Demand Centers on Manufactures

Exports to South America show a remarkable increase with the new fiscal year beginning in July. This is the more remarkable because the fiscal year ending with June showed a reduction of 60 per cent. Every month since the opening of the new fiscal year, according to the National City Bank, has shown a substantial increase in the value of exports despite the fact that most of the merchandise leaving the country is going at lower than 1921 prices.

The value of exports to South America during July, August and September was 36 per cent greater than in the corresponding period a year ago, while exports to other parts decreased.

This increase in our South American trade, the bank points out, is especially interesting in view of the fact that manufactures form the bulk of the materials bought from us.

LARGER STUDIOS FOR ROBICHEK

Decorator of Talking Machines Now Operating in Two Studios—Many Orders Will Keep Firm Busy During the Winter Season

Rudolph Robichek, well known in talking machine circles of metropolitan New York for his work in creating art designs in lacquer work and other exterior decorations on talking machines, has found it necessary, through his increased business, to secure larger quarters. Mr. Robichek, who formerly had a studio at 123 Fifth avenue, has taken a larger one at 156 Fifth avenue and also one at the corner of Twenty-eighth street and Lexington avenue. Headquarters for the company's activities will be at the Lexington avenue address, where most of the work will be done. The studio at 156 Fifth avenue will be used as a workshop, where it is planned to do most of the small pieces, leaving the Lexington avenue studio, which is much larger, for the execution of lacquer work on the larger size talking machines.

Mr. Robichek is keenly enthusiastic at the reception given him by the trade generally. In addition to the work secured from talking machine dealers he has been able to secure several large contracts from manufacturers of talking machines which will keep him extremely busy during the entire Winter.

MICA INDUSTRY OF GUATEMALA

Guatemala, although at present a small producer of mica, may become, as a result of development work now in progress, an important exporter of this mineral, according to a report from Consul Frost. As the United States requires four times the mica it produces, Guatemala should readily find in the United States a market for all that it can export in the future. Today four mines are open and operating, all under American control. A fifth mine will be opened within a month or two, and two more mines are expected to be operating before the end of the year. Present production is at the rate of 600 to 1,000 pounds per month, being about 40 per cent cut mica and 60 per cent rough trimmed, all of which is being shipped to the United States.

FINDS VOCALION TRADE ACTIVE

C. D. McKinnon, District Manager for Wholesale Vocalion Department of Aeolian Co., Finds Satisfying Conditions in the West

Charles D. McKinnon, district manager for the wholesale Vocalion record department of the Aeolian Co., returned recently from a two months' tour of the Middle West, covering the territories under the supervision of the Vocalion Co., of Ohio, distributor in Cleveland; the Lind-Marks Co., Detroit, and the Sonora Co., of Pittsburgh, distributors for that district.

Mr. McKinnon reported that dealers' stocks were in much better shape than they had been earlier in the year and that practically without exception they reported a substantial increase in the demand for Vocalion Red records.

Mr. McKinnon left early this month for Syracuse, where he will spend two weeks co-operating with the Gibson-Snow Co., Vocalion record distributors in New York State, calling on the dealers.

The critical year in the phonograph trade has about passed. Sonora, while the phonograph world was in a chaotic condition, went serenely on with its policy of making better and better phonographs. All through the troubled period Sonoras have sold in good volume and Sonora dealers have weathered the squall, emerging triumphantly during the current season.

The time for self-examination is at hand. 1923 will be a year in which quality comes first. Hundreds of dealers, among them some of the largest stores, recognizing the return of quality demand, have added Sonora. More will do so in 1923. Are you going to be one of that far-sighted number and cash in on the rising tide of Sonora sales? Write for particulars of our dealer plan.

POSTAL SERVICE FOR CONVENTIONS

Post Office Department Orders Special Attention Given to Mail Addressed to Those Attending Trade Meetings in Strange Cities

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 6.—The use of obsolete or inaccurate mailing lists by business concerns is responsible for a large part of the delay and non-delivery that occurs in the mail of commercial houses and firms, according to an announcement just made by the Post Office Department.

This condition is highly detrimental both to the post office and to the business houses affected, as it greatly adds to the clerical expense of handling the mails and results in a serious economical waste through the loss to business men of advertising matter, catalogs, etc., when delivery is not effected.

The Department urges that business men and commercial concerns make every effort to obtain accurate mailing lists in the first place, including house numbers and street addresses, and then see to it that such lists are kept up to date. It is pointed out that the expense of obtaining and maintaining an up-to-date and correct list is usually far less than the loss suffered in postage and advertising matter through the use of incomplete or incorrect addresses.

It is not competition which is the keynote of success, but co-operation.

A MOST ARTISTIC POSTER

Features President Harding's Record of Two Patriotic Addresses Issued by the Victor Co. for the Benefit of the Red Cross

The Victor Co. has issued a remarkably artistic poster in connection with the records made by President Harding at the White House May 24 and which, as related in The World last month, have been made and are marketed without profit to the Victor Co., the proceeds, as well as the President's royalties, going to the Red Cross.

This poster, which is a superb example of the printer's art, features the address made by the President at Hoboken on May 23, 1921, on the return for burial of 5,215 American soldiers, sailors, marines and nurses; as well as the address made by the President at Washington on the occasion of the opening of the International Conference for the Limitation of Armament on November 12, 1921. These historic utterances of the President have been perpetuated for all time on double disc Victor record No. 35718. This poster has deservedly come in for a great deal of praise for its dignity and impressiveness.

MISSION MUSIC HOUSE OPENS

Artistic New Quarters at Long Beach, Cal., Formally Opened

LONG BEACH, CAL., December 4.—Several hundred music lovers visited the Mission Music House, 512 Pine avenue, on the official opening day and expressed good wishes to the proprietors, Bedford Finney and H. H. Hoskinson, in their venture. Both men are known locally for their activities in the music world. Flowers were banked about the spacious store, tokens of esteem from friends and business contemporaries.

One of the features of the decorations proved to be the lighting effect near the miniature building of mission design to be used as individual booths for trials of phonograph records. Oil paintings in harmony with the decorative scheme hang on the walls.

Miss Junita Benoist, soloist, entertained with a pleasing program at the opening. Members of church choirs attended in a body.

CLASSICS AND OPERAS BROADCASTED

Radio Fans Listen to Finest Music—Metropolitan Artists Participate in Broadcasting of Verdi's "Aida"—Other Concerts

During the past month the trend in radio broadcasting of music has been towards the classics and operas. One of the outstanding concerts of the month was broadcasted by the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. from the Kingsbridge Armory in New York. Verdi's "Aida," announced by the broadcasters as "Metropolitan grand opera in oratorio form," was heard by over a half-million people, it has been estimated. Assisting in the program were some of the foremost Metropolitan artists and the Metropolitan orchestra and chorus. This concert was heard within a radius of 1,000 miles and more than 600,000 receivers within this area were notified of the event and were instructed as to the proper meter wave length for receiving from station WEA F of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

Another important concert broadcasted from station WEA F recently was Beethoven's "Seventh Symphony," Strauss' "Don Juan" and other numbers, played by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, directed by Josef Stransky.

This was the first occasion on which a full Philharmonic program by the New York orchestra had been broadcasted. Microphones had been placed in various sections of the great hall of the College of the City of New York and these were connected with special telephone wires connecting the auditorium with the radio transmitting apparatus. In this way all extraneous noises and induction from power lines was eliminated.

Several of a series of Sunday afternoon concerts, consisting of gems from the lighter operas, have already been broadcasted from the WJZ station in Newark. There will be thirteen of these concerts in all.

SALT LAKE CITY TRADE PICKING UP

Business Outlook Growing Steadily Better—George S. Glen Honored—L. E. Larsen With Glen Bros.-Roberts Piano Co.—Other News

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, December 4.—The talking machine business is better than it was and it looks as if both machines and records will move at a satisfactory pace between now and Christmas. The public seems desirous of getting the latest in talking machines, as it does in most other things, and a new model is bound to attract interest. Some of the new things introduced on the local market recently are likely to be in greater demand than the manufacturers can satisfy, according to leading men in the trade. The industrial situation is still satisfactory and the outlook for bigger things grows better each month. All in all, merchants in any line here have no reason to bother about what the future holds in store, but may put their best efforts into their connections with confidence.

A signal honor to the well-known general musical instrument house of Salt Lake City and Ogden, known, however, by the restricted title of the Glen Bros.-Roberts Piano Co., has been paid by the members of the new Inter-mountain Development League—an organization formed to develop the great resources of the New West—during the past few weeks by the election of George S. Glen, manager of the Ogden store and president of the company, to be the first president of the League. It is really an honor to the whole music trade fraternity of the section. Mr. Glen was recently the subject of a lengthy article in the Ogden Standard-Examiner and also appeared in the Desert News' "Who's Who in Utah."

Wayne Alston, manager of the talking machine department of the Daynes-Beebe Music Co., is mourning the loss of his little daughter, who died rather suddenly last week.

The Glen Bros.-Roberts Piano Co. has appointed L. E. Larsen, an experienced phonograph man of Spokane, Wash., to assist Manager Berry, of the talking machine department. Mr. Larsen will spend the greater part of his time on the outside. This is the first time the firm has had anyone represent them in this department in an official capacity on the outside.

The Ogden Commercial Club and Chamber of Commerce announced a new program recently that should be of invaluable service to merchants. First it was announced that hereafter business men would not accept or consider any advertising proposition that had not previously been approved by the Chamber's secretary. It is claimed that thousands of dollars have been spent by merchants on advertising schemes that have been next to worthless to them. The other "stunt" is the inauguration of a Pay-up Week in which everybody is urged to pay at least part of what he owes his neighbor.

M. P. Perry, of Quincy, Ill., a relative of R. F. Perry, of the phonograph sales department of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., has been appointed manager of the talking machine department of the Keith-O'Brien Department Store Co. He succeeds Manager Moore, who has gone to Los Angeles to take a position with a well-known concern in the sewing machine business.

The Daynes-Beebe Music Co. has presented the Children's Convalescent Home with a talking machine. It is said the little patients think a great deal of it and that "it is the first thing they ask for in the morning and the last thing at night." Doctors and nurses are watching them closely to see what effect the music has on their progress toward recovery, believing it will be highly beneficial.

James L. Hamilton, Brunswick dealer at Greencastle, Ind., is making good use of the radio to tie up with the sale of Brunswick records. He broadcasts the Brunswick record releases on the radio.

OTTO GOLDSMITH CONGRATULATED

On Formal Opening of New Headquarters in New York—Many Attend Reception—Interesting Musical Program Well Received

The Cabinet & Accessories Co., Inc., well-known distributor of talking machine accessories, held a formal opening of its new headquarters, 3 West Sixteenth street, on Tuesday afternoon, November 28. A representative gathering of metropolitan retailers was present as well as representatives of various jobbing and supply houses. Otto Goldsmith, president of the company, was also in receipt of numerous telegrams and telephone messages of congratulation from those who were unable to be present. Mr. Goldsmith, Miriam Goldsmith and their staff of co-workers proved excellent hosts and nothing was omitted to provide for the entertainment and comfort of the guests.

In the large auditorium within the building an excellent program of music was rendered. Representatives from Irving Berlin, Inc., were present and presented several of the popular hits produced by this well-known music publishing house. Frank Goodman, of Goodman & Rose, Inc., and Billy Newsome, of Waterson, Berlin & Snyder, presented numbers published by their respective houses which received hearty applause. Mr. Bessinger, of Irving Berlin, Inc., made several recordings before the audience on the Homophone which were immediately reproduced with exceptionally good results. Among other numbers on the program which proved very popular was the McCarthy Sisters from Irving Berlin's "Music Box Revue." During the course of the program refreshments were served and each lady received an appropriate souvenir. The affair was a decided success and will be long remembered by the metropolitan trade.

The Consolidated Music Co., of Salt Lake City, has purchased a building at 119 South Main street, where it expects to locate in the near future.

Sherburne, head of the company, stated that the favorable reception accorded the Sherburne automatic stop had influenced the company to add these three new products to its line and particular attention has been paid to the development and perfection of each product. During 1923 an intensive sales campaign will be inaugurated in behalf of the Sherburne talking machine products and there is every reason to believe that this campaign will prove a pleasing success.

KEEPING TAB ON SCHOOL MUSIC

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

The alert dealer can easily and effectively hook up the selling of talking machines to families with their use in the local schools—all with the result of considerably stimulating the sale of machines for home use.

The way to do this would be by making a survey of the local schools to see which schools have talking machines and which have not and by then running an advertisement summarizing the results of this survey in some such way as this:

"YOU WANT PHONOGRAPHS IN THE SCHOOL YOUR CHILDREN ATTEND.

"You realize that the presence of a talking machine in the school your children attend will increase their love for good music, have a favorable influence on their characters and help them to become better men and women.

"Consequently, you will be interested in a survey we have made of the local schools to see which schools have phonographs and which have not. If the school your children attend hasn't such a musical instrument start a movement now to get one for that school.

"And, while doing this, GET A TALKING MACHINE FOR YOUR OWN HOME!"

"A phonograph in the home is the greatest aid in the world in bringing up children in the way they ought to go—it means that your children will stay home nights and be glad to do so, and that they will bring their friends to your home so that you can become acquainted with these friends.

"Get a talking machine for YOUR home NOW."

At the bottom of this ad there could be a list of the schools in your city with a note opposite each school telling about its musical equipment or lack of such equipment.

Such an ad would interest everyone who was interested in the schools and would, therefore, interest the majority of all the people in your city and help you greatly in selling more machines and records.

VOLUMA RETAIL STORE OPENED

Strand Line and Okeh Records Featured in Attractive Warerooms in Baltimore

BALTIMORE, Md., December 5.—Another attractive talking machine shop has lately been added to those on Howard street. The Voluma Corp., manufacturer of the Voluma reproducer, has opened retail warerooms, which also are serving as the wholesale headquarters of the company, in the Academy of Music building, on Howard street near Franklin. Strand phonographs and Okeh records are carried.

New Voluma Warerooms

The location of these warerooms, with an entrance into the lobby of the Academy of Music, is entirely advantageous from a sales standpoint and the warerooms are kept open each night until after the intermission period of the show. It has been found that numerous record sales, as well as machine sales, have been made during intermission. A number of Strand models have been equipped with a Voluma reproducer which is causing considerable attention. The Voluma reproducer is a sound box of a different principle from others and is the invention of James J. Cook, of this city. Mr. Cook is to be found at all hours of the day at these headquarters ready to demonstrate his invention. Mr. Cook reports that a number of sales agents have been appointed for the reproducer and that sales are steadily increasing.

R. W. PORTER BACK FROM TRIP

Field Sales Manager of Columbia Graphophone Co. Returns From Six Weeks' Trip—Gives Interesting Report Regarding Business

Robert W. Porter, field sales manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., returned to the executive offices at New York City recently after a six weeks' visit to all branch offices except those in coast cities.

Mr. Porter states "Business is hopeful, good and full of life; present conditions forecast a most satisfactory Christmas season. Dealers report floor sales 'way ahead of last year. In cases where dealers are aggressively advertising and working outside, their efforts are being well rewarded. The farm territories are beginning to see a flood of money from the sale of crops. In the industrial and labor centers collections are becoming normal and cash sales are picking up. The settlement of the rail, mine and textile difficulties, combined with the billion and a quarter crop increase, together with the virtual shortage of labor in main towns, puts every dealer on his toes for increased business. While embargoes and the shortage of product in some models are causing a little inconvenience there is hope that both these conditions will be eliminated shortly. Most department and furniture stores throughout the country are advertising holiday goods, with the result that many people are visiting the phonograph department. The New Process Columbia record advertising has created a sensation in the industry and is bringing many people to the record department who have not purchased records for a long time."

Mr. Porter plans to remain in the city until the middle of December, when he will visit some of the Columbia Eastern branches.

BIGGEST YEAR WILL BE 1923

B. R. Forster, President of Brilliantone Steel Needle Co., Optimistic Regarding the Business Outlook—Reasons for This Belief

Byron R. Forster, president of the Brilliantone Steel Needle Co., reports that November was the best month in the history of the Brilliantone organization, and that 1922 proved a very successful year for Brilliantone business in every way. In referring to 1923 President Forster said: "I expect that 1923 will prove our biggest year. The popularity of Brilliantone needles has steadily increased and they have the happy faculty of when once sold staying sold. This has been the secret of the steady increase of our business. We find that dealers' and distributors' stocks of needles are very low and this fact, together with the generally good business conditions which will undoubtedly continue throughout the coming year, makes the future look very bright indeed."

The new Brilliantone needle box, which is a combined receptacle for 500 needles and a record cleaner as well, is proving very popular and will, undoubtedly, be in great demand during the coming year.

UNICO PRESIDENT ON EXTENDED TRIP

Rayburn Clark Smith, president of the Unit Construction Co., recently left Unit headquarters in Philadelphia for a long trip, visiting the branch offices west of the Mississippi River and in the South. The important business centers of the Western territory, as well as the following branch office cities which will be visited are Chicago, Atlanta, New Orleans, Dallas, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Salt Lake City and Denver. Mr. Smith anticipates an active demand for Unico products in 1923 and the purpose of his trip is to fully co-ordinate the Unico sales and service branches with factory activity.

Old Ideas of Salesmanship Must Give Way to More Recent Conceptions :: By W. Braid White

It is gradually coming to be seen that the old ideas of what constitutes salesmanship must give way to other conceptions more nearly founded upon fact. Old ideas, of course, die hard, and it will no doubt be a long time before the dog-fight conception is totally given up. The music industries in particular have always suffered from a singularly low conception of the position of salesmanship and have lagged behind many others in coming to the perception that business should not be a free for all scramble.

Bit by bit, other industries have come to see that the basis of all business is the process of fair exchange and that, apart from all the advantages legitimately earned by superiority of equipment and service, the basis of exchange is value. What the goods purchased will do for the purchaser. This may be called the psychological theory of value. Call it what we will, however, this basis of value is the only basis on which business ever has been, or ever can be, conducted so as to produce more good than harm in the world. For it rests upon the straightforward, simple idea that the value of an article or of an idea is to be measured solely by what it will do for its owner. All sound salesmanship must be a process of effecting fair exchange between the maker of such an article and its would-be possessor, at a price which fairly represents its value to the owner, and on which the profit is the difference between this value and its value when in idleness. This last, in turn, is equivalent to the cost of producing it, for obviously it should be assumed to be worth the value of the raw materials plus the labor and incidentals of manufacture. If it should turn out to be a complete failure, then, of course, its value in the maker's hands (idle value) would cease to exist.

This idea of a psychological basis of value is not, of course, new, and in fact it is in practice much utilized by merchants and manufacturers who have never thought of giving a definite name to it. In other words, the idea is gradually gaining ground among thinking business men that all selling must be based upon fair exchange and that fair exchange is most easily effected when the value of the article to its owner, its value as expressed in what it will bring to, or do for, that owner, is clear and obvious to all concerned.

Evolution of Salesmanship Slowly Eliminating Old Theories to Meet Exacting Conditions of Present

The Place of Price

Truly, price must be considered. But look at this price matter from another standpoint. The Ford automobile is at its lowest price today, while at the same time its output is greater than ever before. Now this simply means that Mr. Ford has had the great wisdom to base all his merchandising upon utility. He discovered what sort of light car would, when stripped to essentials, do the greatest number of obviously useful things for its owner, in respect of running, carrying, getting to places on time and performing the work of road transport at the lowest price and in the least fanciful manner. Having found that out he proceeded to build that sort of a car and no other. For at least fifteen years now he has built nothing else but this (omitting from consideration the other utility product, the farm tractor). The public, he soon found, recognized the utility and were willing to pay the price asked, because that price accurately represented the public belief in the things the car would do for them. In consequence, Mr. Ford was able steadily to increase his output and reduce his price. To-day we have in the Ford car a supreme example of the psychological theory of value in one of its most important aspects, where the application of that theory has reduced prices to the consumer without disturbing the basis of the value or decreasing the profits of the maker. As a matter of fact, it has enormously increased.

Now let us look at this psychological theory of value from the standpoint of our own industry. If one imagines a man coming into the talking machine business from some wholly unrelated line of industry and asked to lay

A Triumph in Tonal Beauty— Visible Charm and Adaptability

The EMERSON Louis XV

THIS LOUIS XV is the crowning achievement of the Emerson line. A bigger attraction to the public—offered at a PRICE that fairly compels sales. Like all Emerson phonographs The Emerson Tone—clear, true, full—does absolute justice to the record. The patented round music master horn carries and amplifies tonal beauty just as does the spruce resonator of the famous old "Strads."

From the standpoint of furniture the working out of the console idea, is especially adaptable because only the centre of the top is raised. Console lights on either side need not be moved while playing. Emerson line offers a machine to suit every taste and pocket book.

out a policy of merchandising, can one suppose him taking any other view than this we have been discussing? He would look at the talking machine, would consider what it does for its owner, would perceive the many wonderful accessories in the way of records, etc., and would at once conclude that the way to merchandise it is to bring to the people everywhere the great message of "what this will do for you." For, when one comes to consider the matter, what else is there to talk about?

The Ford Cycle

The value of a talking machine and a record is precisely measured by what that machine or that record, or the two in combination, will do for the owner of it or them. When, therefore, this idea has once been grasped and the selling price adjusted thereupon, it will be found that the production question becomes relatively simple. If once the merchandising forces can be got to see that the thing they are selling is not a machine at all, but "what the machine will do," sales will begin to increase, output will go up and prices, in consequence, come down. The Ford cycle will once more be gone through.

What We Are Really Selling

It seems that the first need for the talking machine business at this time is a recognition by merchants of this great underlying fact. If merchants did make such a theory the basis of their selling there would be no question of selling one make against another on the score of price. If anyone can imagine a more sinfully idiotic policy than this, we should like to hear; but the fact remains that merchants do commit this crowning enormity and usually because they do not see that they are not in business to help manufacturers cut each other's throats. They are in business to sell, not "machines," but the things that machines will do. Therefore, it is their business to have the manufacturers supply them with a certain variety of styles and types of the mechanical embodiment of the musical service they are selling; for certainly a limited scope of price is convenient. Yet, in fact, even so, there is no real need for bargain price machines. Especially there is no need for machines which look like higher priced ones and are precisely got up to imitate something better than themselves. One can imagine, for instance, the need for a certain variety in price, to suit the peculiarities of human temperament; but to carry an inferior line of showy-looking cases, in the hope of tempting people to believe that they can get something for nothing, is to reverse the whole idea of music salesmanship. It is to substitute lies for truth, dishonesty for honesty, for when I exhibit to a customer a modest cabinet at a modest price and show what this will really do in the way of reproducing music satisfactorily, I am selling the music just as well as if I were doing the demonstrating with the most expensive machine made. But when, on the other hand, I fall into the temptation of trying to sell a cheap, showy case as an imitation of something better, it is obviously impossible for me to demonstrate its musical value, because that value is not there. If it were, the substitute would not be a substitute. It would be an alternative. But in this case it is a substitute, and so when I urge its claims I can only do so by ignoring its musical deficiencies. Should the customer indeed say, "I do not care about the music, the case is what I want," then it might be different. But how many customers in the course of a year are likely to say anything like this?

The real successes in our industry, the successes which all the rest of us quote and by which we all strive to align ourselves and measure our progress, have been built up by this very process, the process of selling music, not mechanics, and of basing the sales policy upon the psychological theory of value, the theory that the price of a thing is rightly measured only by its value to the owner. Let that important fact never be forgotten. All sound merchandising in our industry must be based upon this point and when it is so based, then, and then only, is the sales policy certain to make for success.

Utility and Luxury Values

Let us make one other point clear. Let it not be forgotten that value may be expressed in many different ways. It relates to not one, but many human needs, desires, acquired preferences and so on. For example, the Ford value is a utility value. The Rolls-Royce value is a luxury value. One is expressible in smaller figures than the other, for the world still rates luxury in its estimation above utility, whenever and wherever luxury and utility can be placed side by side. But that is the fault of human nature and we cannot expect to change it. The psychological theory of value is not affected by these facts. There are kinds and degrees of values and these must somehow be measured. The only practical way of measuring them is in terms of money. Luxury value is purchasable only by those who have much money to give for it. So, luxury value is measured in large figures, although actually it is less useful to the world than utility value.

In our business, however, all our values are utility values, save in the very few cases where special cabinet work is utilized. More and more, perhaps, luxury value will creep in; but generally we may say that we are selling pure utility, pure musical utility; than which no higher kind of value exists, though the figures of its monetary measurement are always moderate. And this is simply another advantage in our favor, for we can sell the finest thing in the world and find it measured upon a moderate monetary basis. If mankind knew how great that value really is they would willingly pay as much for a fine talking machine as for a Rolls-Royce. But they don't, more's the pity.

The Payne Music House, of Greenville, S. C., has secured the Columbia line of machines and records. An extensive sales and publicity campaign is being planned which will feature Columbia sales arguments to excellent advantage.

NEW GRANBY CONSOLE MODEL

"Apartment Baby Grand" in Adam Design Is Going to Be Quite a Favorite

The Granby Phonograph Corp., of Newport News, Va., has just placed on the market a new console model. This newest member of the Granby family is aptly described by the company as the "Apartment Baby Grand" of phonographs and meets a demand for a smaller type console table model. The list price of the new model, $135, is expected to be another contributing factor towards big sales. It is produced in the Adam period design and is made with the same exacting care which characterizes the entire Granby line. In all respects it is a very compact instrument with high-class equipment and several exclusive features. It has a tone modifier located inside the cabinet just back of the turntable. The cabinet design is attractively executed and the cabinet panels are constructed of five-ply veneer, the same as found in higher-priced instruments. Although this new model has only just been placed on the market O. P. Graffen, New York manager of the company, states that a demand for this new instrument has already been manifested and that it is growing daily.

With the increased facilities at the Granby factory production is being speeded up on this new model and shipments are being made promptly. Many dealers are securing the new console in time for the holiday trade and already report that it is a good seller.

FINE HOME FOR STEINWAY STORE

Steinway & Sons' Indianapolis, Ind., Store to Be Unico Equipped Throughout

One of the most important musical developments in the Middle West is under way in Indianapolis. Steinway & Sons, the famous piano makers, have secured a new location on Pennsylvania street which enables them to devote much larger floor space to adequately display their excellent line of pianos and the Brunswick phonograph, which they also represent. A survey of the plans for their new store, as developed by Geo. A. Lyons, of the Unit Construction Co., shows a most excellent store arrangement and beautiful interior. An exceptionally attractive window extends the Steinway greeting to the passer-by and upon entering the store an equally beautiful lobby will carry on the good impression created by the window. Immediately adjoining the lobby will be the talking machine department and office. Probably the most attractive feature in the entire layout is the beautiful Steinway Grand display salon, upon which the Unit Construction Co. has displayed its skill in creating a high-class atmosphere so essential to modern musical merchandising of quality products. Separate Unico piano rooms are also provided for the display and sale of the various kinds of Steinway pianos and all together the opening of the new store about the first of January will be an epochal event in the music history of Indianapolis.

CANTON, O.

Shortage of Machines Handicaps Dealers in Supplying Growing Demand—Consoles Lead in Favor

CANTON, O., December 4.—Inability to get desired merchandise on time and the tendency on the part of the trade to buy now for Christmas are the only two outstanding hindrances to a full and complete optimistic tone in the talking machine industry of this city. A survey this week by the representative of The World disclosed that a number of the prominent dealers have been handicapped by the tardiness in which talking machines and some popular numbers of records have been coming in, due largely to the inability of the manufacturers to make deliveries. There is not a make of talking machine handled by Canton dealers that is being displayed in complete lines. Congestion of the railroads and the advent of cold weather is also seriously interfering with the trade, dealers declare.

More people are frequenting music stores since the first of the month and there is every indication of a big holiday business. People want to buy and have the money, but are hesitating in doing so because they feel that they may be able to buy at lower prices before Christmas. Dealers say there is no chance for machines to come down in price and that they are urging their salesmen to stress immediate buying.

The console models of all makes of machines are gaining in favor and although several manufacturers have on display new upright models the console type machines are in greatest demand. It appears that the machine retailing from $100 to $150 is doing the big bulk of the business at this time. Higher priced machines are moving better than in previous months.

Records which have been moving briskly only at times now seem to be enjoying a steady demand, as the present month's list gives promise of being among the best in recent years.

Edisons Selling Well

November was one of the biggest months of 1922 for the Edison machine, both in the Canton and Massillon stores, officials of the Rhines Edison Shop said this week. "People are beginning to look around for Christmas gifts and they all appear to have money," said an official of the concern. He declared that prospects for the Christmas trade were even brighter than a year ago. Decided improvement also is seen in Edison record sales. The Canton store at Cleveland avenue and Third street, N. W., is undergoing some changes that will give it considerably more floor space. Console models of the Edison priced around $125 are in special favor, according to Mr. Rutledge, manager.

Promotes Xmas Advertising Campaign

The Victrola department of the William R. Zollinger Co., the large department store, has instituted a Christmas advertising campaign featuring the formation of a Christmas Club, which has already resulted in the sale of a number of machines and the list of prospects is more lengthy than in months.

Mr. Pyle has been getting some good publicity through featuring records of the current month by means of the Magnavox, which protrudes through a window on the fifth floor of the store. The records are distinctly heard for several blocks by the throngs who are surging to and fro in the public square.

Takes on Music Master

The People's Outfitting Co., which recently moved into its new three-story home at Third street and Market avenue, N., announces that it has taken on the Music Master line of talking machines and will feature same on the main floor of the store. Albert Coyle, manager, will look after the new department. A stock has already been installed and later a separate department with booths for record demonstrations will be added to the handsome equipment.

Blames Manufacturer

C. M. Alford, of the Alford & Fryer Co., one of the best-known music dealers in Eastern Ohio, in an interview this week with The World said that the manufacturer alone is to blame for the apathy in the talking machine industry locally. "There are buyers for talking machines, but we have none to show," said Alford. "Just the models in demand are impossible to obtain and when shipments are received they are usually short."

He says the Cheney machine has been selling very well and that the new upright moderately priced model is probably most in demand at this time. Starr machines also are in good demand and if machines were available Christmas business would see many of these machines moved.

Local Radio Activities

Local music dealers, who have installed radio departments, have been informed of Radio Week, to be observed December 23 to 30. Dealers here are enthusiastic over the event and say they will lend any support to successfully put the week across.

Geo. C. Wille Co. Busy

The George C. Wille Co., with stores in Canton and Massillon, is experiencing a big season in talking machines. Were machines available, sales probably would be greater, but there are many models that are not being shown and consequently there has been a decrease in sales. Sheet music sales have been boosted of late by the appearance here of a number of big musical shows. Victor records had a good month in November, and December to date is very encouraging.

Lauder Helps Business

Sir Harry Lauder, notable Scotch comedian, appeared at the City Auditorium this week with his company and music dealers say that his coming stimulated the sale of Victor records and also helped sheet music sales. Lauder played to an audience of more than 8,000. Several dealers put in special window displays featuring Lauder records.

Holiday Business Starts

The music section of the Klein-Heffelman-Zollars Co., large department store, has taken on the aspect of the holiday season and despite the cold weather business has been excellent the past two weeks. Since moving the talking machine department from the fourth to the mezzanine floor, record sales have increased fully one-third, officials of the company declare, and the general outlook is decidedly better.

ADDATONE WELL RECEIVED BY TRADE

Unique Reproductions Corp. Receiving Many Orders for New Amplifying Device

The Unique Reproductions Corp., New York, manufacturer of an amplifying device known as the Addatone, is very much gratified at the reception accorded this unique and clever device. Orders have been received from every section of the country and talking machine dealers are showing a keen interest in its sales possibilities. Herman Segal, general manager of the company, has been extremely busy during the past month taking care of the large number of orders received.

Several jobbers who have been appointed throughout the country as distributors of the Addatone report that dealers generally are awake to its sales possibilities.

JOHN FIRTH & CO. BANKRUPT

John Firth & Co., Inc., manufacturers of radio products, New York, recently filed a petition of involuntary bankruptcy, estimated liabilities being $250,000 and assets about $100,000. Francis L. Kohlman was appointed receiver by Judge Augustus N. Hand. The concern was organized early this year, taking over various wireless patents, machinery, etc., of Col. John Firth, radio engineer.

MAKES SOME RECORD IN SALES

J. H. Rex, manager of the Hall Drug Co., at Fairmount, W. Va., Brunswick dealer, made his seventh Brunswick phonograph sale to members of the Pople family, of this city. Mr. Rex first sold the old folks and then successively sold each of the six married children, completing the circle.

TRADE BOARD TO ENLARGE SCOPE

Increased Budget for the Next Fiscal Year Allows Wider Scope in Enforcing Laws

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 6.—The Budget Bureau has approved an appropriation of $955,000 to be used by the Federal Trade Commission during the next fiscal year to enforce the laws of unfair competition, administer the Export Trade Act and to prepare economic reports in response to resolutions from Congress and at the direction of the President.

The Federal Trade Commission asked for an appropriation of $1,000,000, but after a series of conferences the sum mentioned above was agreed upon, which Director General Lord announced he would recommend to Congress.

Practically the entire $50,000 increase over last year's budget will be utilized to employ additional attorneys, economists and accountants. The Commission, the Budget Bureau was told at the hearing, is handicapped by a shortage of trained men. This shortage has operated, officials of the Commission state, in delaying attention to applications for relief from the business world. On November 1 the Commission had 589 applications for complaints pending. This was an increase of forty over the previous month.

THE FABLE OF THE FOOLISH MERCHANT

There was once a merchant who thought he was wise. He built up a good reputation by advertising and then he said to himself: "People know me now, therefore it would be foolish to continue to spend money for advertising." He stopped and learned to his bitter sorrow that the public is fickle and soon forgets. The sheriff soon put a lock on the door of a broken man. Selah.

"HAPPY SIX" FEATURED AT CONCERT

Exclusive Columbia Artists Give Concert in Lancaster, Pa.

LANCASTER, PA., December 5.—The Keystone Furniture Co., Columbia dealer in this city, recently featured the "Happy Six," an exclusive Columbia organization, in a most effective manner. This enterprising dealer used considerable advertising to advise the public that the "Happy Six" would give a concert in its store on a certain day, and as a result of this publicity a capacity audience attended the concert. Incidentally, a large number of records were sold and the event proved a financial success. As each selection was played by the "Happy Six" Mr. Eaton, of the Keystone Furniture Co., announced the name so that the audience might be conversant with the identity of the number played. Mr. Lawrence, dealer service supervisor of the Philadelphia branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co., was active in taking care of the many details incidental to the concert.

REMODELING BARNETT MUSIC CO.

BARTLESVILLE, OKLA., December 2.—The store of the Barnett Music Co., Brunswick dealer of this city, is undergoing alterations. New booths, furnishings and equipment throughout are being installed. The store when completed will be very artistic and unique in design and will rank among the most attractive in the State. C. B. Barnett, manager, anticipates having a formal opening in the very near future.

Miss Augusta Franzoni, formerly connected with the sales staff of the O. H. Coolidge store, Rutland, Vt., is now in a similar position with the United Talking Machine Co., that city.

THE TWIN CITIES

New Exclusive Sonora Shop Opens in St. Paul—Retailers in Various Lines Enjoying Excellent Business—Freight Embargoes Hurt

MINNEAPOLIS and ST. PAUL, MINN., December 6.—An exclusive Sonora shop was opened last week in St. Paul by W. J. Simpson and James Meade, two of the best-known phonograph men in the State capital. The new emporium is located at 20 West Sixth street, in one of the busiest districts here.

Sonora Activities

Sonora sales have broadened greatly owing to the activities of J. E. Date, special representative of the Doerr-Andrews-Doerr Co., Northwestern Sonora distributor. All northern Iowa has been added to the company's territory mainly through the efforts of Mr. Date.

A new account is that of Cassell Middleton, of Marshall, Minn., who has opened a music house in that city and will feature the Sonora line.

A. W. Hunt, the leading music merchant at Butte and a Sonora enthusiast, has placed an Italian renaissance De Luxe period model Sonora in his home, where it gets the admiration of all visitors.

Edison Business Grows

The always popular Edisons retain their position in the Northwest, as evidenced by the growth of business with Laurence H. Lucker, Northwestern distributor. Dakota business has developed much better than had been expected in view of the pessimistic reports from the prophets. The local sales of Edisons in the shops of St. Paul and Minneapolis are highly satisfactory and are reported to be far ahead of last year's totals. Console models reign as favorites with the more discriminating buyers.

Pathe Sales Gain

"We are just rolling them out now," said Manager Sharer, of the Pathé department of G. Sommers & Co., Northwestern distributor of Pathé phonographs and records, in describing the course of business in his department. "Our Minnesota business has been fine, Montana business has improved greatly, but we are not very active with reference to the Dakotas."

Slow Deliveries Cause Trouble

Freight embargoes are playing the very deuce with the Victrola department of W. J. Dyer & Bro. Four carloads of machines have been held up on delivery and customers are clamoring for the instruments which they have ordered. George A. Mairs is at his wit's end to pacify and placate his numerous patrons throughout the Northwest, who fear that they will lose out.

Eugene F. O'Neill Resigns to Rest

Eugene F. O'Neill, one of the best-known talking machine men in the world, as his operations have extended from Boston to Japan and China, has severed his connection with the Beckwith-O'Neill Co. He will rest in California for the Winter before engaging again in active business.

Vocalions in Demand

Shortage of the popular $125 and $160 Vocalions is reported by Manager Munson, of the Stone Piano Co., Northwestern distributor of this rapidly growing line. With the Vocalion Red Records the Vocalion line makes a fine business combination that takes well with the rural music merchants.

Fine Brunswick Business

Edward L. Kern, director of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. for the Northwest, states that nearly all the instruments received go out about as soon as they come. Not having to depend upon the East for instruments Mr. Kern has been able to obtain regular deliveries in carload lots. Console types lead the van in popularity at this time.

The exclusive Brunswick concert sale put on in St. Paul by Cardozo was a fine success, attracting general attention by its novelty and giving the Brunswick instruments additional prestige in the State capital.

NEW POST FOR CHAS. H. TRACY

Resigns From Aeolian Co. to Become General Manager of Knabe Studios, Baltimore

Charles H. Tracy, for the past six years connected with the wholesale Vocalion department of the Aeolian Co. in charge of the sales staff, resigned that position early this month to become general manager of the recently opened Knabe Studios at 309 North Charles street, Baltimore. Mr. Tracy has had long experience in the piano field and having some years ago sold Knabe pianos in Baltimore is well fitted to fill his new post in that city.

Mr. Tracy on leaving the Aeolian Co. carries with him the best wishes of his associates and the company's officials and himself expressed regret that he found it necessary to sever such pleasant relationships.

Fear is an enemy of progress and success.

AT this time of the year when a spirit of good will and good fellowship predominates, we consider it only fitting that we thank the trade for their support and patronage during 1922 and express the wish that 1923 will bring unlimited happiness and prosperity.

"Empire" is closing the best year in its history and Empire tone arms, sound boxes and attachments have won many new friends and additional prestige during 1922. For this tangible indication of the industry's recognition of Empire quality, we are deeply appreciative.

INTRODUCES THE WORLD RECORD

Hon. Noel Pemberton Billing, of the World Record, Ltd., London, Eng., Plans to Interest American Capital in New Record

An important visitor to New York this month was the Hon. Noel Pemberton Billing, of London, chairman of the Board of Directors of the firm of World Record, Ltd., who came here for the purpose of interesting the American talking machine industry in his new record. This record has many features which are a radical departure from the methods now used in the manufacture of records. Entire symphonies can be recorded on a single record as well as the complete act of an opera or any selections which are of more than ordinary length. This unique record, which plays for fully thirty minutes, was introduced in England some months ago, where it is gaining popularity in the talking machine trade.

In a chat with The World Mr. Billing stated that American manufacturers of talking machine records have shown considerable interest in the World record and they seem to feel that it has tremendous possibilities here in this country. "We are particularly anxious to introduce this record in this country, but we wish to do so on as high a plane as possible and we are, therefore, taking every measure to place this record with the talking machine trade here in as satisfactory a manner as we can," said Mr. Billing. "Our plan is for manufacturing and recording to be done in this country by a company formed of American interests. However, the World Record, Ltd., is willing and ready to offer to persons interested an attractive proposition, backed by our company to the end of producing the World record in this country. We plan to start an intensive campaign that will introduce the World record in every section of the country and we confidently expect that the American trade will receive our record in an enthusiastic manner."

TO FIND DUTY ON RECORD HOLDERS

Government to Appeal Decision of General Appraisers Fixing Duty on Paper Containers for Talking Machine Records at 15 Per Cent

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 4.—The Treasury Department in Washington has directed the Assistant Attorney-General at New York to file an appeal with the United States Court of Customs Appeals for a review of the decision of the United States Board of General Appraisers wherein the board held that certain Kraft paper containers exclusively employed in holding phonograph disc records, classified as manufactures of paper, dutiable at the rate of 25 per cent ad valorem under Paragraph 332 of the Underwood-Simmons Tariff Act, were properly dutiable at 15 per cent ad valorem under that act, as paper envelopes.

F. N. WYATT ENTERS NEW FIELD

DETROIT, MICH., December 4.—A. A. Fair, sales manager of the Jewett Radio & Phonograph Co., this city, announced recently that Fred N. Wyatt, Ohio representative of the company, had resigned from the Jewett sales staff in order to enter the automobile business. Mr. Wyatt had attained signal success as a Jewett representative and had established a number of important accounts. He numbers among his friends many dealers throughout Ohio territory who will be glad to know that he was successful in securing a franchise for the popular Hupmobile.

Quick turnover and small profit are to be preferred to large profit and slow turnover.

BIG ORDER FOR CABINETS

Wabash Cabinet Co. to Make $1,000,000 Worth of Cabinets for Eastern Concern

WABASH, IND., December 5.—Following negotiations covering several months, officials of the Wabash Cabinet Co. reported that they have received a contract for $1,000,000 worth of new model talking machines from a company in the East.

At present the Wabash Cabinet Co. is working on a large order for the Eastern concern. This order soon will be filled, however, and work will have been started on the new order. The contract calls for the delivery of several thousand machines each month. The cabinets will be made at the local plant and the machines assembled here, with practically a carload a day shipped direct to retailers.

T. F. Vaughn, president of the cabinet company, announced that the firm is completing the purchase of thousands of dollars of lumber veneer, which will be used for the cabinets. The motors and other supplies for the machines will be supplied from the phonograph factory.

OKEH RECORD IN DAILIES

DETROIT, MICH., December 5.—The Pier Music Shop, of this city, recently featured the Okeh laughing record to excellent advantage and under the heading of "Keeping Up Spirits," in the "Town Talk" column of the Detroit News, there appeared the following article: "Ha, ha, ha, ha, he, he, he, ho, ho, ho!" Explosive laughter, uncontained, and endless, issues in a perpetual stream from a horn attached to the exterior of a Jefferson avenue music shop. The mirth is canned and is run off from a phonograph record. Passers-by, hearing it, are forced to laugh, too."

The Two New Hits for The New Year

NEW ORLEANS

Dealers Prepare for Record-breaking Holiday Business—Shortage of Machines the Only Cloud on the Horizon—Month's News

NEW ORLEANS, LA., December 4.—The little cold snap of the past week has filled the downtown shopping district, packed the aisles of the music stores and departments and has given a tone of encouragement to business, which, during the month of November, according to most reports, was not up to normal. Shortages are already being felt by the jobbers and wholesalers of talking machines, though most of the retailers, at least in the city, are well stocked and are prepared for a record-breaking season. Christmas displays are already occupying half and full-page ads in all papers. Two of the papers are getting out special editions for the shoppers, telling them just where they can get what they are looking for. It is understood that the talking machine trade fills a number of pages in each one of these editions.

Edison Consoles Scarce

A shortage in console models is also holding the Edison dealers in check. The new London models and the $350 Chippendale model are sold as fast as they can be shipped from the factory. November business was double the October business, according to one of the officials. Dealers from all sections have increased their orders for both records and machines.

Record Sales the Feature

Record sales seemed to be the feature in the Victor dealers' November business. The mid-month release on November 18 was a great stimulus to trade, according to John A. Hofheinz, Victor manager of Philip Werlein, particularly the record, "I Wish I Could Shimmy Like My Sister Kate," a song written by a local negro orchestra leader. That seemed to have broken all records here and it is reported that even old "blasé" New York has taken up the air played by "The Virginians."

Mr. Hofheinz reports that he is sold out on the No. 210 and No. 230 models, the two new flat-top consoles. Victor dealers are also looking forward to the appearance of the "Famous Victor Eight," who will play here for the first time on January 18.

A Columbia Sales Conference

The district sales conference of the Columbia Graphophone Co. was held here during the past month and was attended by salesmen from the Atlanta and Dallas districts. Robert Porter, field sales manager, was on hand, and spoke to the men on "Sales Plans." A definite and uniform sales plan was worked out at the conference.

R. R. Sparrow, manager of the Southern district, announced a new agent at Elizabeth, La., the Elizabeth Mercantile Co. The Columbia agent at Monroe, La., the Monroe Furniture Co., has just laid plans for a big sales campaign. Also the Jones-O'Neil Furniture Co., in Beaumont, has started on a big campaign. Twenty-seven thousand dollars has been set aside for advertising, bonuses and prizes to the best salesmen. The O'Neil Co. had a large and exclusive display at the South-East Texas Fair which started off the Columbia in that territory.

Mr. Sparrow has just returned from a trip through Mississippi and reports business at Jackson and Vicksburg good, but at Meridian subnormal. In the Southern district, however, said Mr. Sparrow, sales are limited only by a shortage of stock.

New Edison Agencies

The wholesale department of the Edison Co.

announces two new agencies, the Munholland-Danwitz Furniture Co., at Monroe, La., and W. C. Munn, at Houston, Texas. W. W. Twigg, manager of the department, is away in the Eastern territory on business.

Among the visitors at the Edison office this past week were A. H. Jones, dealer at McComb City, La., and H. B. McInnis, Lumberton, Miss.

At the Harris-Loeb Piano Co. the Brunswick talking machine has been holding its own with the rest. An increase in business has been noted within the past two weeks. Record sales have been satisfactory.

Special Room for School Children

The D. H. Holmes Co. has fitted out a room for school children and teachers where they may come and play the Columbia educational records. The yearly memory contests that are held in the public schools have made this a very popular place.

Manager Riche, of the talking machine department of Holmes, reports a good business. Aeolian-Vocalion machines have been fair sellers, as have the Columbia. Record sales have been very good.

"It looks as though the Christmas season has begun at last," was the comment of Ralph Young, sales manager of the Victrola department at Grunewald's. "And though buyers were very late in starting, it appears as though it is going to be a banner season."

While November was better than October at Maison Blanche, business still seems to be off, according to J. D. Moore, sales manager. He is preparing to lure them to Maison Blanche, however, during the next month with page and half-page ads.

The one bright feature about the music business at Maison Blanche has been the record business. "Red Seal records have been going like hot cakes," said Mr. Moore. On the other hand, a dark spot in the department is the loss of Miss Eunice Hardy. She is to be married in the early part of December. Mr. Moore regrets losing her as she was one of the most competent, efficient and reliable salesladies in the department.

A Strong Werlein Campaign

Philip Werlein, Ltd., are waging their Christmas advertising campaign in newspapers, street cars and billboards. They have adopted the slogan: "Ask Santa Claus to bring you a Victrola." Mr. Rosenbaum says that the high-class $350 machines have been very excellent sellers, and along with them the Red Seal records. Mr. Rosenbaum has laid in a good stock of machines and does not expect to run short until the end of the season. The portable and $100 machines are already being bought for Christmas presents.

Manager Frank Allen, at Dwyer's, has also been careful to lay in a good stock of machines and he does not anticipate being worried by shortages. December, said Mr. Allen, is always the big month at Dwyer's, and every man is in training for a big month.

SAN FRANCISCO

Second Annual Music Week Goes Over Strong—Talking Machine Dealers Play Important Part—Place Large Holiday Orders

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., December 4.—The second annual Music Week was held in San Francisco November 6 to 12 and the interest shown by the public proved beyond any possibility of a doubt that this city is deserving of its reputation as a city of music lovers. Hundreds of music programs, big and small, were arranged for the week and practically everybody connected with the music trade, commercially and professionally, co-operated in making the festival a success. The talking machine dealers showed their accustomed progressive spirit by providing for phonograph record concerts in connection with other programs.

Most of the dealers have ordered goods in carload lots for the holidays. The local wholesale distributors say that not for years has there been manifest such a spirit of confidence in the trade. The purchasing power of the people has practically become reconstructed now and there is no reason to fear carrying ample stocks of standard merchandise.

Finals of Music Memory Contest

The finals of the San Francisco Memory Contest were held at Loew's Warfield Theatre on Saturday, November 18, and sixty children made perfect scores, a most remarkable showing. One of the perfect scores was made by a public school pupil only ten years of age. Two Victrolas and a Duo-Art piano, furnished by Sherman, Clay & Co., were used in the final tests. Miss Donazela Cross, who represented the talking machine dealers in the Memory Contest, is lecturing this week, twice a day, in the Oakland public schools for the purpose of preparing the pupils to understand the numbers which will be played by the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra at a special children's concert which will be given in Oakland shortly.

Meeting of School Superintendents

The county school superintendents, the district superintendents and the music supervisors of the State all are holding conventions at the Hotel Oakland, Oakland, Cal., this week and one of the principal speakers in behalf of musical education is Mrs. R. E. Greenwood, of the educational department of Sherman, Clay & Co.

Health Records Are Popular

Robert M. Bird, wholesale manager of the talking machine department of Sherman, Clay & Co., reports most satisfactory results from the distribution of a new colored poster calling attention to the Victor Health Records. The demand for these health records continues to grow rapidly, a fact which would seem to indicate that music is a valuable stimulus to physical development.

Business Best in Years

Clark Wise & Co. say business in the last sixty days has been the best in years with this house. Victor goods are in splendid demand and they have done exceptionally well with the new Hallet & Davis phonographs, especially on the console types.

Period and Console Types in Demand

Manager Compton, of the Phonograph Shop, says seventy-five per cent of the call is for machines of the period and console type of Sonora machines. The flat-top machine seems to meet the favor of all classes of customers.

The California Phonograph Co., San Francisco, is one of the latest talking machine houses to take on the Sonora line.

Ben R. Scott, manager of the phonograph department of the Nathan-Dohrmann Co., says that the customers of this store call almost exclusively for flat-top machines. He sees no possibility of the demand for jazz records waning in the near future.

Fine New Wurlitzer Department

The new ground-floor talking machine department of the Wurlitzer Co. is a marvel of artistic excellence and practical convenience. Every facility for handling customers efficiently has been perfected. The quick-sale or self-selling feature will mean a decided increase in the volume of record sales. The record booths and demonstration rooms are all decorated in French gray and the show windows are most luxurious and dignified, being of a modified French design.

Takes On Brunswick Line

The Redlick-Newman Co., one of the largest house-furnishing concerns in the city, at Mission and Seventeenth streets, has taken on the Brunswick line of phonographs and records.

More Columbia Dealers

P. S. Kantner, manager of the San Francisco branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co., has just been on a business-boosting trip through the Sacramento Valley. He is most optimistic for the holidays. Among the new Columbia dealers reported are the Redwill Piano Co., Turlock, and the Dietz Drug Store, Manteca.

Columbia records recording the marvelous violin playing of Toscha Seidel, the young Russian virtuoso who is making a great recital tour of the country, are in fine demand since the artist's recent successful concert in San Francisco.

Victor Co. President a Visitor

E. R. Johnson, president of the Victor Talking Machine Co., was a visitor in San Francisco this month and among the attentions shown him, one of the most enjoyable was a banquet tendered him by Leon Douglass at the Bohemian Club. Many notable guests were present.

BANNER 50c RECORDS

*75c quality for 50c?
How is it possible?*

Both dealers and the public who have played BANNER 50c RECORDS often wonder at the 50c price.

How is it possible? A logical explanation—rapid turnover, plus a wide elimination of jobbers' profits and superfluous overhead—manufacturer direct to dealer.

It is the natural outcome of the consumer demand for reduced price, but with a maintenance of the finest 75c record quality.

That's important. BANNER gives you a 75c record quality.

That is why it is producing remarkable results for hundreds of dealers. Their turnover is rapid. Their profits are assured.

VAN VEEN EQUIPMENT IN NEW STORE

New Remick Establishment Has Handsome Interior and Exterior—Brunswick Products Featured—Formal Opening Attracts Crowds

Jerome H. Remick & Co. opened officially last week its new store at 2555 Broadway, New York City, which ranks among the most modern and attractive music shops in the city. The entire equipment, both interior, window and entrance, was installed by Van Veen & Co., Inc., New York City. It consists of five hearing rooms approximating six feet by nine feet each in size, twenty-five feet of sheet music racks and a twenty-five foot counter, showcases for musical instruments and also record racks of substantial capacity. The entire interior treatment is in a two-tone effect, gray and white, and includes wainscoting. The installation also called for a new store front and window equipment, the window measuring twenty feet wide by sixteen feet deep. The window interior was attractively constructed of highly figured walnut, giving a remarkably rich appearance. The vestibule has a domed ceiling effect and is constructed of brown stucco and walnut. The opening attracted many visitors. The Brunswick line of phonographs and records is carried.

UNIT CO. FAVORS DEALERS

An example of the fair deal policy which has been held paramount by the Unit Construction Co. in its dealings is found in the recent price protection announcement. An increase in price, effective December 15, was announced in a recent trade letter. This announcement gave Unico customers a six weeks' opportunity to secure 1922 prices on Unico equipment. This price protection has been extended on a liberal plan, which is of unusual service to the dealer.

The Eight Famous Victor Artists recently appeared in Milford, Mass., at a concert under the auspices of Reynold's Music Store.

Vice-president of Phonograph Division of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., Visits Former Home

While there he attended to his wholesale and retail interests in the Texas region and on his return reported that conditions have shown a material improvement in the Southern section and that the outlook for the holiday season and for the coming year is very fine.

APPOINTED CITY TICKET OFFICE

Landau's of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Adds to Its Activities—Many Visitors Attracted by Its Central Location and Excellent Facilities

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., December 5.—Landau's music and jewelry store in this city, Victor dealer, has been made the central city box office for the Grand Opera House, and seats for all attractions appearing at this theatre will be on sale at the store. Landau's is usually designated for the advance sale of seats for concerts and for attractions presented at Irem Temple and with the sale of seats for the Grand Opera House will practically be a central city box office for both places. During the year Landau's store has also been made a sub-station of the local post office, and a separate department is maintained by the firm for the maintenance of the post office activities.

COHEN & HUGHES STAFF CHANGES

Leslie Lore Succeeds F. S. Harris, Retired, as Manager in Washington—Other Additions to Staffs in Baltimore and Washington

BALTIMORE, MD., December 4.—Cohen & Hughes, Inc., Victor distributor, with headquarters in this city and Washington, D. C., has announced several important changes in the staff of the organization in both cities.

F. S. Harris, who has been, for many years, manager of the Washington house, tendered his resignation in order to embark in the retail Victor business for himself in a residential suburb adjoining the capital. Leslie Lore, who was formerly assistant to Mr. Harris, will succeed him as manager.

James A. Stafford, formerly in charge of the Victor Idea Shop in Camden, N. J., has joined the Cohen & Hughes organization as assistant sales manager in Washington. Mr. Stafford has had wide merchandising experience.

The Baltimore staff has been augmented through the appointment of James Robinson to the sales organization. Mr. Robinson is an experienced talking machine man, having spent two years each in the Vocalion, Columbia and Edison organizations.

In January Walter Son will assume the important post of sales manager of the organization with headquarters in Baltimore. Mr. Son is also thoroughly experienced and well qualified for his new duties. It is expected that this staff will be still further augmented by the first of the year.

I. Son Cohen, president of the company, is optimistic over general business conditions for 1923 and he stated that very extensive plans were being made for the coming year. A large publicity campaign is planned which will redound to the benefit of the dealer, and many other sales helps for the retailers have also been prepared. Among other literature a series of attractive folders has been printed leaving space for announcement purposes. It is planned to place in this space such timely news and announcements as may be received from the factory for the benefit of the dealer. The mailing facilities of the organization will allow these communications to be sent out to the dealer the same day that they are received from the factory.

It was announced recently by the sales department of the Sonora Phonograph Co., New York, that the Baldwin Piano Co., of Chicago, one of the leading retail houses in this city, had secured the Sonora agency. The company is doing so well with this line that telegraphic orders have already been received asking for immediate shipments of merchandise.

Another well-known house which recently secured the Sonora agency was the John Church Co., of Cincinnati, O. This is one of the oldest and best-known retail music houses in the Middle West.

RECORDS WELL-KNOWN HYMNS

Columbia Co. Announces Two Popular Christian Science Hymns—Miss Nevada Van Der Veer, Nationally Known Soloist, the Artist

The Columbia Graphophone Co. announced recently that Miss Nevada Van Der Veer, nationally known as a soloist and for some time the soloist in the First Church of Christ Scientist, New York, has recorded two Christian Science records which were released a few days ago. The numbers featured on these records are "Oh, Gentle Presence," one of the best-known and best-loved poems of Miss Mary Baker Eddy, and "How Beautiful on the Mountains." Both of these hymns have appeared in the Christian Science Hymnal for many years and Miss Van Der Veer's splendid contralto voice reproduced them to excellent advantage.

The C. O. Hart Claxtonola Parlors, 1304 First avenue, Seattle, Wash., have added the Vocalion record line.

DENVER

Holiday Demand Making Itself Felt—Expect Machine Shortage—Freight Delays Hurt Business

DENVER, COL., December 4.—Talking machines are beginning to move for the holiday trade, according to local dealers. As usual, December is always a big month, but some worry is expressed that the required number of machines will not be here by the arrival of December 25. Inability to keep up with the demand at the factory end and slow freight shipments are causes for the worry. For a number of the local dealers the month of November went ahead of the same period a year ago and for others the month's business did not come up to that of October.

Little Things Oft Attract

When Russell Gates, Sixteenth street dealer in the Brunswick and Columbia phonographs, wanted to call the attention of the passers-by to the fact that by paying one dollar down they could buy one of the phonographs he handles, Mr. Gates placed a revolving disc made of glass under which reposed a dollar bill and on top of which a small steel ball was attracting a feather in its revolutions. Actual business could be traced to this window trim. Quite a few machines were sold during the month to be delivered Christmas. Records have picked up in volume of sales and one thing that has brought people into the store are large sign cards in the window calling attention to some special number.

Business Picking Up on Broadway

Three music houses on Broadway, the leading business street in South Denver, report business picking up. The Ness Music Co., at 65 South Broadway, reports the Sonora as gaining ground daily in Denver sales. The company handles the Sonora as its main line, but also has the Columbia. The Carl Schultz Piano Co., on South Broadway, reports business with the Edison and Starr a little quiet for November. However, Mr. Schultz is looking for a good holiday trade.

Buys Own Building

The Laman & Johnson Music Co. got tired of having its rent boosted and bought a building for its use, moving about a week ago from 35 South Broadway to 64 South Broadway. The building was completely remodeled and is a decidedly attractive music house for South Denver. Besides the main sales and show room, where Victrolas and pianos are displayed, there are four well-furnished demonstration booths for the Victrolas and a large space set aside for records. At the rear of the store is a well-equipped workshop. In pianos the only new ones handled are those made by Behr Bros. Business has opened up in fine shape in the new location. A window machine, electrically operated, pours forth music that he who runs may hear and as the store is open evenings many come in at that time, attracted by the window machine music, and as a result many records are sold. Mrs. Helen Witwer is the capable talking machine demonstrator and is in charge of the record department.

Reports Two Good Months

C. A. Delzell, manager of the Columbia Stores Co., wholesale distributors for the Columbia Grafonola in Colorado and other Western States, reports October and November as two good months with a large volume of business. Dealers who anticipated a big December will have a big volume of sales to record when the end of December comes. Shipments were pretty well cleaned up the latter part of October. "There has been a tremendous increase in the sale of records and these are coming through in fine shape," said Mr. Delzell. The New Process record, abolishing surface noises, has made a hit and Mr. Delzell has a pile of letters on his desk from dealers throughout the territory telling of the increased sales since the New Process record had been received. The Andrews Music Co., of Trinidad, Col., has held a big campaign for the sale of Columbia machines. The stock was sold out and the company had to place new orders through the Denver wholesale house.

Hitting On All Four

H. W. Sanders, manager of the talking machine department of the Denver Music Co., is much pleased with the business done during the month of November. He handles four makes, the Victor, Sonora, Columbia and Brunswick, and in the sale of these instruments he finds he has been hitting on all four. Two favored Sonora models are the Marquette and the Queen Anne, says Mr. Sanders.

Shipments Very Slow

Norman D. Tharp, buyer for the Edison department, wholesale and retail, of the Denver Dry Goods Co., says November business has fallen off in his territory and that the month's business did not equal that of October. Slow freight shipments make promises for the delivery of machines for the holidays a precarious business. The popularity of the new console models put out by the Edison Co. has swamped the factories. A change is noted over last year's business in that people either want to buy a $100 phonograph or a real expensive model, there apparently being no happy medium. The one spot in this territory where they are doing business and a lot of it is Casper, Wyo., the Edison dealer there reporting a tremendous business. Northern Colorado farmers, whose crops were destroyed by hail this Fall, are not buying many machines and in New Mexico business is quiet. In Denver, Colorado Springs, Durango and Trinidad business is on the increase. The Hausman Drug Co., which formerly handled another agency, has discontinued it and has become thoroughly Edisonized, taking over the Edison agency for Trinidad, which was formerly held by the Trinidad Furniture Co.

Little Bit Ahead

Business for November was a little bit ahead of November, 1921, says J. H. Thompson, manager of the phonograph department of the Charles E. Wells Co. This is due, he says, to the better facilities to handle the trade, the department being in its new quarters on the lower floor with numerous booths for demonstration purposes. Larger instruments seem to be going well. The Brunswick and Victor machines are handled and a special drive has been made on the "York," put out by the Brunswick Co. The new branch store at Casper, Wyo., is doing a good business.

Club Plan Brings Results

H. V. Huntoon, manager of the Victor department of the Knight-Campbell Music Co., says the Christmas club plan has gone over big.

Some very good-sized deals have been consummated, a period model at $750 having been sold this week with many flat-top models ordered. It is hard to keep in stock the record, "Three o'Clock in the Morning," so heavy is the demand for this number.

November Best Ever

"The best November we have ever had," says J. H. Blinn, manager of the phonograph department of the Baldwin Piano Co. He has figures to back up his statement in his sales of Columbias and Sonoras, with Sonoras leading, the period models being the most favored type. The sale of records has also gone big, says Mr. Blinn.

The Place to Sell

Oscar Frazier, manager of the talking machine department of the Darrow Music Co., believes the store is the place to sell the instrument and not in the kitchen. In other words, he does not have salesmen out making a house-to-house canvass for business. He believes in spending money in newspaper advertising and bringing people into the store in that way. At present a big campaign is being successfully prosecuted by the company through the newspapers. A third girl has been added to the department, Miss Alfreda Wilson. The store has been pushing the sale of Wallace reducing records to excellent advantage. A good holiday business in Brunswicks and Columbias is expected.

The Sonora Music Co., on Welton street, anticipates a good holiday business in Sonora sales.

Miss Nell Finn, formerly in charge of the sheet music department at the Kress store and with the organization until sheet music was abandoned, has taken a position as saleswoman with the Charles E. Wells Music Co. She specializes in popular music.

NYACCO SALES INCREASING

Max Willinger Makes Optimistic Business Report—Manufacturers Making Important Plans and Placing Orders for New Year

Max Willinger, president of the New York Album & Card Co., New York City, reports that the demands for Nyacco albums are good from all sections of the country from both dealers and manufacturers. Mr. Willinger recently returned from a trip through the Middle West, calling upon a number of talking machine manufacturers relative to 1923 album equipment. It is encouraging to know that Mr. Willinger found many manufacturers preparing for a big year and planning increased production for 1923. He has already signed substantial business for the coming year, many manufacturers taking advantage of the present Nyacco album prices made possible by the substantial purchase of raw materials when prices were lower.

Mr. Willinger points out that the present buying activity on the part of the general public is an indication that there is no longer any fear of dropping prices, but that confidence has returned in price stability.

HARRY A. BEACH OPTIMISTIC

Harry A. Beach, vice-president of the Unit Construction Co., has been a frequent visitor in New York City recently. The metropolitan district, as well as New York State and New England, come under the direct supervision of Mr. Beach and he reports wonderful progress in the territory within the past several months. Better still, in many respects, he sees ahead a period of steadily increasing prosperity in the talking machine industry.

A. D. and C. H. Rowlands, who recently purchased the furniture and talking machine business of F. E. Harmon, Lima, O., have discontinued handling talking machines.

BUFFALO

*The Volume of Business Surprises
Even Most Optimistic — Artists
Help Record Sales—Recent News*

BUFFALO, N. Y., December 4.—Christmas business that exceeds the fondest expectations of the optimists is now assured to the talking machine trade of Buffalo and western New York. Holiday buyers came early and in large numbers and Christmas eve will find the great majority of retailers in this district with the smallest stocks which they have had in many, many months. Three months ago no dealer in the district would have ventured to predict business on the scale which developed late in November and early in December. An attitude of pessimistic apprehension gave way to a real battle for machines. This is true of practically all the standard lines. Many purchasers, unable to find just what they wanted in one line, went to other stores and after a little shopping found something to their liking. Out of the shortage of instruments has developed a general prosperity that promises to make it a real merry Christmas for the trade in Buffalo and vicinity.

Shortage of Victor Machines

C. N. Andrews, Victor wholesaler here, declares business has gone far beyond the best expectations of the trade. Carload shipments of instruments were distributed as rapidly as they were received and there was a better supply of all models than had been expected, but still not enough to meet the huge demand that developed after November 15. A similar shortage is reported by the Buffalo Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler, which does a very extensive business in this territory.

Anniversary Ads Result in Sales

Charles Hoffman, of the Hoffman Piano Co., Sonora and Brunswick dealer, recently celebrated the twentieth anniversary of this house. An anniversary advertising campaign was instituted which to date has resulted in many sales of various types of instruments.

Columbia Activities

The Columbia national advertising of the New Process records caused a reaction in this section that was tremendous. Local dealers have taken steps to tie up with this publicity by running newspaper ads in conjunction with those of the company and also by installing attractive window displays featuring a cut of the ad. The stock of the local branch is being rapidly depleted. Carload sales are being shipped from the factory direct to dealers.

Van and Schenck, exclusive Columbia artists, were recent players at Shea's vaudeville house, where they were received by an enthusiastic house each night. Dealers made capital of their appearance by featuring them in window displays. As a result the demand for their records has taken a decided spurt.

The following Columbia dealers were recent visitors to the local branch: Mr. Besden, of Markson Bros., Syracuse; Gus. Markson, of Auburn; A. J. Goldstein, of Niagara Falls; Mr. Martin, of Fredonia; Samuel Saeli, of Jamestown, and W. R. Marsh, of Nunda.

"Three o'Clock in the Morning" is still holding its tremendous popularity and is selling better than ever. Others meeting with special favor are Paul Specht's dance record of Tosti's "Good-bye," "Tomorrow," by Ted Lewis, and "Why Should I Cry Over You," by Eddie Elkins.

Victor Artists Boost Record Sales

Elmwood Music Hall was taxed to capacity for the concert of Mme. Amelita Galli-Curci, of the New York and Chicago Grand Opera companies and Victor artist. Floor, galleries and stage were filled, while other admirers of the soprano stood throughout the performance. Dealers in Victor records say that the concert has stimulated the sale of Galli-Curci's records to a surprising degree.

John McCormack, one of the most popular Victor artists, recently gave a concert to one of the most enthusiastic audiences ever receiving an artist in Buffalo.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, also Victor artists, appeared in concert here not long ago and they were received by an enthusiastic audience.

Fire Damages Edwards Store

E. W. Edwards & Sons, one of the largest department stores in Buffalo, carrying a large line of Edison talking machines, suffered fire loss estimated at about $3,000 recently. The blaze was soon under control and the Edison department was not damaged.

Dealers Interested in Community Service

A number of dealers in talking machines in Olean are taking an active part in the newly formed committee of Olean Community Service, an organization formed for the purpose of developing a number of musical projects in that city.

Brief Items of Interest

The Danielson Music House, of Jamestown, N. Y., suffered an $18,000 fire loss to its stock in the $500,000 fire that recently swept the business section of Jamestown.

Chester E. Campbell has been made assistant manager of the Gould Bros. Music Store, Niagara Falls. He is well known in the music trades, having been former manager of the Rudolph Wurlitzer store in that city.

H. J. Stone, president of the H. J. Stone Furniture Co., Niagara Falls, handling talking machines, has announced the purchase by his company of the property adjoining the City Market, having a frontage of ninety feet on Pine avenue, now occupied by eight business concerns.

Vigorous Action Against Moving Instruments

One of the dealers in musical instruments

in Buffalo has taken advantage of the clause in the New York sales law against removing instruments bought on the instalment plan by adopting a vigorous method of action against persons who violate this clause.

A grand larceny warrant is signed by the collector when he finds that the instrument has been moved and the purchaser is soon located by the police. It is very rarely that an agreement is not reached satisfactory to both parties.

It is found that most of those served with warrants agree to make their payments and are more prompt than ever in this respect. In nearly all cases the police have located the instrument which has been moved.

CHICAGO ORCHESTRA WITH OKEH

Guyon's Paradise Dance Orchestra to Make Okeh Records Exclusively—One of the Most Popular Orchestras in Chicago

The General Phonograph Corp., New York, announced recently that arrangements had been completed whereby Guyon's Paradise Dance Orchestra, of Chicago, would make Okeh records exclusively. This organization visited the Okeh recording laboratories a fortnight ago and made several records which will be released very shortly. Guyon's Paradise Orchestra is one of the most popular dance organizations in Chicago and is well known to dance devotees in the northwest section of that city. Guyon's Paradise is probably the best advertised dance hall in Chicago, catering to a high-class clientele that is steadily increasing.

RECENT PATHE DEVELOPMENTS

Old Pathé Business Taken Over by Pathé Frères Phonograph & Radio Corp.—General Stimulation in Trade Reported

The taking over of the business of the old Pathé Frères Phonograph Co. by the Pathé Frères Phonograph & Radio Corp. was accomplished without a moment's interruption in the steady continuance of both production and business. The new company, as previously announced, is officered by men well familiar with the Pathé business.

Eugene A. Widmann, president of the company, and H. T. Leeming, general manager, together with their associates, are planning big things for the coming year and predict that the famous red rooster will crow louder than ever during 1923. The demands for both machines and the Pathé and Pathé Actuelle records have considerably increased and dealers from all localities report good business. The new radio developments of the company are progressing promisingly and it is expected will shortly be ready for the market.

The Webber Music Co. has opened a store on Third street, Red Wing, Minn.

Wishing the Trade A Merry Christmas and A Happy New Year

We take this opportunity to express our appreciation of the large amount of business placed with us which has made possible our exceptional growth.

During 1923 the same high-grade workmanship which has distinguished our business in the past will be continued. We also enter the new year with a greatly increased staff of experienced artists and facilities five times greater.

Big Gains in Business Despite Shortage—Green Expands Facilities—Orchestras Help Trade

TOLEDO, O., December 4.—Aggressive merchants are recording very substantial gains. These gains reach as high as 100 per cent over twelve months ago. Such showings have not been accomplished, however, with old sales methods or with limited salesforces. New ideas have been injected and salesmen have been added. Punch and hard work along with liberal advertising expenditures have put the month well over the top. This holds good with the doers—the go-get-'em type.

Although the holiday season brings with it an unusual opportunity for business it does not guarantee to any talking machine merchant a large volume or an increased demand. That is entirely up to him and is the very thing which makes the game worth while and adds zest to the task.

The employment problem is better than before the war. There is much less complaining about the lack of work than for a long time. Folks are, however, buying with discretion; they are not rushing to stores to be served, but are deliberate, critical and must be shown. They are demanding their full money's worth and getting it.

Machine Shortage Growing

At the Toledo Talking Machine Co. sales for the past month are above the same period a year ago. The shortage of a number of Victor models which has been growing more acute as the advance holiday demand increases is being made still worse on account of the transportation problem. Machines due in ten days are taking sixteen to twenty days to arrive.

Therefore, merchants are having their volume curtailed in many instances. In others orders are piling up which will necessitate extra expense when the machines do arrive in order that customers may be served promptly.

Benson Orchestra Big Attraction

Benson's Orchestra, under the direction of Roy Barge, widely known Toledoan, recently drew one of the largest crowds that ever entered the Coliseum. While the dancers were mainly young folks, all future prospects for records and talking machines, there were people from nearly every station in life. Moreover, a large number of admirers came from surrounding towns to dance. Among the dealers present were: J. H. Halleck, of Crane's Music Store, Bowling Green, O., and a party of six—Wm. G. McClure and party, Napoleon, O.; C. F. Beckman and party, Ottawa, O.; Fred Meier and party, Monroe, Mich., and others. The orchestra created widespread interest in its records and stimulated demand for practically every dealer.

Then again the announcement of the five special Victor records to go on sale December 15, which in the middle of the largest record month of the year, will no doubt result in a large sale. Advance interest is keen. There are three vocal and two fox-trot records in the lot. Window streamers featuring these records will be furnished as usual, Chas. H. Womeldorff states.

J. W. Greene Co. to Expand

The J. W. Greene Co. is announcing a remodeling and enlargement of its business. The third floor of the present building, which was formerly given over to lodge purposes, has been leased for a term of years. This expansion will give them much additional floor space and provide a fine enlarged talking machine department, E. A. Kopf says. Rooms will be apportioned for Brunswicks, Cheneys and Victrolas. These will be known as talking machine studios. Particular attention will be given to art model console types and the more costly machines will be exploited in a home-like atmosphere, and trade able to purchase the best will be solicited in an original manner. The improvement will permit of a certain exclusive elegance which most women admire and will help to stamp the store as a woman's music department store. A special feature will be a concert hall with a seating capacity of 500. The work on this enlargement will start immediately after the turn of the new year.

Interest in Radio

Furthermore, radio developments are being followed with much interest here. The Zenith radio outfit is now being exploited through a direct mail campaign; this instrument is able to pick up programs broadcasted from great distances. It is believed that once the proper air regulations are in effect, with the present fine programs available, radio will forge ahead in an astonishing manner.

Victor record certificates are being widely distributed. These Christmas gift orders are counted upon to produce a good record volume. They are a request to deliver records of certain value to a certain person and to charge the amount to a given customer. In the past they have turned in a good volume of business.

To Bring Oriole Orchestra to Toledo

The J. W. Greene Co. will bring the Oriole Terrace Brunswick Orchestra to Toledo for an evening of dancing January 25. The band created such a favorable impression during its recent local engagement—which was in cooperation with other dealers and the Grotto,—that the Greene Co. decided to negotiate for a return engagement under its own auspices.

Spratt Bros., Fostoria, O., music dealers, will open a Toledo store in Superior street shortly. Brunswick phonographs are to be featured.

Gentlemen:

On July 21, 1922, we installed a complete unico store for our new Brunswick music shop, 64 Washington St., this city. From that time our business increased in great shape, and by September 1st it was necessary for us to add two more rooms to give the service to our customers. We have now a six room installation, complete, with all Unico racks and counters and valances from the front window, and we believe it is the finest store north of Boston.

We are ready at all times to recommend your equipment to any dealer who wants to have an up-to-date efficient music shop. We are doing more than double the business that we did a year ago, and most of this is due to the fact of our installation of the Unico equipment.

Very truly yours,

Graphic Proof of what Unico Service accomplished for one dealer—there are hundreds of similar instances

Yes, you may say, but my problem is different.

Is it, tho? Let's see.

You want to get your share of the increased demand for musical merchandise—then take an inventory of how you are going to get it.

Your first thought is probably advertising—good, that's necessary to get the prospect into your store. But does your advertising stop at the front door?

That's what it does if your store is not attractive and definitely planned to intensify and "cash in" on the good impression your outside advertising creates.

Attractive store atmosphere is a definite part of the advertising effort of the progressive dealer. It appeals directly to the interested prospect and therefore is of exceptional merit.

Unlike newspaper, billboard or other similar mediums, the advertising of "Store Atmosphere" is not continuing expense. An adequate initial investment is the complete cost.

Unico Service will create an attractive store atmosphere for you and it will be permanent advertising of the most economical character.

Now is the time to take advantage of the Unico System and all the benefits of the Unico Service.

Profit by Unico Service—NOW

Winter time is record time. Take full advantage of it, prepare for maximum sales.

to close out trade-ins and old instruments, was able to record a very substantial total. He is also co-operating with the Sonora factory local advertising campaign in an effort to interest new buyers. Vocalion records are dealt in here.

Lion Store Needs More Room

At the rooms in the Lion Store Victrola sales totals are far ahead of last year. The advance holiday demand exceeds any similar period, A. J. Pete reports. The need here at the present time is for more demonstration rooms. It is now necessary to often take customers into the offices of executives in order to provide listening accommodations.

The Benson Orchestra rendered an afternoon concert program at the Victrola rooms during their recent local appearance and several hundred persons crowded into the department to enjoy the music.

Best Selling Records

"Three o'Clock in the Morning," in both the Whiteman and McCormack renditions, continues to outsell other selections. Popular dance numbers in greatest demand are "When the Leaves Come Tumbling Down," "Suez," "I Found a Four-leaf Clover" and "I'll Build a Stairway to Paradise."

The 1923 outlook here is extremely bright. Prospects are numerous and as soon as the machine shortage clears volume will go ahead still more steadily, the management feels certain.

At the LaSalle & Koch Co.'s Victrola Shop sales are going forward consistently. On account of the conservative policy of this high-grade store loud advertising or too liberal terms are not employed. People are buying in waves, big days are followed by quiet ones, R. O. Danforth reports. The machine shortages, while being felt, is not acute at this store.

Building Up Record Sales

A simple sales effort which is making sales is that all salespeople are instructed to ask customers who purchase needles or other supplies, "Wouldn't you like to hear a new record?" People will usually stop to listen to one record, even if in a hurry, whereas if asked to listen to the new discs they generally say no.

L. T. Rae Now in Control

A. G. Maxwell, of the firm Rae & Maxwell, has disposed of his interests in the concern to his partner, L. T. Rae. The house deals in Columbias, Aeolians and Jewetts. The firm style will not be changed for the present. Mr. Maxwell will maintain headquarters at the store, but will devote his time to building a repair and inspection service for all makes of machines. Already several large users have signed for the service.

Activity at Grinnell Bros.

At Grinnell Bros. holiday preparations are at their height. Thanksgiving festivities produced a fine record business and Christmas savings checks will add materially to the demand. The only discouraging sign on the horizon is the inability to secure sufficient merchandise. The talking machine shortage is bad enough, but on top of this is the freight delay, and goods ordered weeks ago have not been received. The future here never looked brighter and the new year gives promise of being a real profit-producing year, Manager R. C. Elwell declares.

Working for Christmas Sales

The Home Furniture Co. is conducting an aggressive holiday campaign to promote Columbia and Brunswick lines. The demand is good and several models are entirely sold out, Miss Helen Canfield states. The instalment plan upon which this house does business is a big factor in closing sales with the working class.

The Nugent Furniture Co. launched a Christmas drive the first week in December for Columbia sales. Instalment terms are offered and deliveries will be made Christmas eve for all who desire the service.

The Goosman Piano Co. has inaugurated an intensive campaign for inquiries. Newspaper ads have a coupon attached which may be filled out and mailed to the store for information. This plan has worked well because many persons expect to buy soon and therefore desire information about machines. The inquiries are followed up by personal calls from salesmen, C. E. Colber, sales manager, states. Columbia, Vocalion, Granby, Fischer and Bush & Lane phonographs are dealt in here.

J. H. Heinsman, sales manager of the C. L. Marshall Co., Detroit, Sonora distributor, was a Toledo visitor the past week.

Talking machine merchants are very optimistic about the new year and are laying plans for an increased business.

SELLS FOUR MACHINES AT ONE TIME

MARTINSVILLE, IND., December 5.—Harry Cure, of Cure & Son, of this city, Brunswick dealers, recently sold four $200 Brunswick machines to one man in Indiana, who is giving them to his relatives as Christmas gifts. Mr. Cure is using this sale as the basis of an intensive publicity campaign whereby he hopes to sell not only one Brunswick phonograph, but from two to four at a time to wealthy music lovers in this territory.

The Trade in BOSTON and NEW ENGLAND

JOHN H. WILSON, Manager

324 WASHINGTON ST., BOSTON, MASS.

BOSTON, MASS., December 2.—November has been a month that the trade is not likely soon to forget, this because of splendid business, and it is all the more to be held in remembrance because of the business in these same periods a year ago and two years ago. Everywhere the December business is expected to be even better, so that it is not surprising that the whole twelve months of 1922 are expected to make a most creditable showing. As was to be expected, a shortage of goods has already manifested itself. Those who predicted this situation several months ago were laughed at in some quarters, for the word shortage has been refused recognition these past few years as the holiday season approached. Time was when the word was almost the bugbear of the business and it had to be heeded else woe to the dealer. These past few years the word has failed to frighten the trade and there were those this year, following their experience of the immediate past, who are now regretting their inaction in not ordering early and largely. To go back to where the writer started, this is going to be a joyous Christmas because of what has led up to it viewed in a commercial way, and the Boston correspondent congratulates the trade for the turn in the tide and hopes that everyone will possess the jubilant spirit that the season warrants.

Boylston Street Merchants' Ad Drive

The extensive newspaper campaign that was launched by the Boylston Street Retail Merchants' Association at a dinner at the Hotel Brunswick a few months ago has borne good fruit and for several successive weeks the Sunday papers have carried full-page pencil drawings of this thoroughfare shown from various angles and in different blocks. "Each window seems to try to outshine that of its neighbor," says an article in the latest issue of the Sunday Herald. In the list of members of the Association one notes the Henry F. Miller Co., which was one of the earliest members; A. M. Hume Music Co., the Barite Talking Machine Co. and the Mason & Hamlin Co., the latter an active factor in the music trade of Boston, though not actually identified with the talking machine end.

Association Holds Luncheon

The New England Music Trade Association held another of its enjoyable luncheons at the Engineers' Club on November 21, with William L. Nutting, the new president, presiding, and with Carveth Wells, F. R. G. S., as the guest of honor.

After the luncheon President Nutting gave a brief outline of what he proposed to do during the coming year for the Association and asked the co-operation of the members in bringing about a settlement of the various problems. Among his suggestions was that of a two-day convention to be held in the Spring.

The return of Burton R. Miller to the industry as president of the Henry F. Miller Piano Co. was made the occasion of a brief reception to Mr. Miller, who expressed his pleasure at being again in the field.

Mr. Wells gave his famous talk on "My Six Years in the Jungle of Malay." He told weird tales of strange fish and animals and spent some time in describing Malay music and the instruments used to produce it, playing several selections in illustration.

Big Increases in Victor Trade

One learns of splendid Victor business in the territory served by M. Steinert & Sons in a conversation with Kenneth Reed, wholesale Victor manager for this widely known Boston house. Mr. Reed waxes especially enthusiastic over the November business, which was the biggest month in volume ever done by the Steinert house since it has been handling the Victor line. And what is better, Mr. Reed is looking for an even larger business for December. Attention in a pleasant and informing conversation was called to such places as Lowell, Fall River, Brockton and Pawtucket, three of these it will be recalled being textile centers, in all of which cities business has been distinctly good—and better. Mr. Reed told of one dealer in Brockton whose November business was 100 per cent bigger than that of November of 1921, and of a dealer in Pawtucket who did a 175 per cent larger business than a year ago. Right here in Boston there is one store which sold thirty-nine Victrolas in a single day and another disposed of thirty-two machines. Mr. Reed further says that out of a large consignment of goods received from the Victor factory a few days ago every one was out of the Arch street storehouse three days later. Mr. Reed says he hears a good deal about a shortage in goods, but he feels quite confident that, thanks to the foresight of the Steinert house, all its dealers will be reasonably well supplied.

Records by European Artists Well Received

Dealers who are served by the Eastern Talking Machine Co. are most enthusiastic over the new list of Victor records by European artists and there appears to be no reason why the large supply of these eight foreign artists, together with the several orchestras included in the list, should not be among the season's best sellers. One can scarcely conceive of a music lover, once hearing one of these records, not wanting the whole catalog, or at least several out of it. Only a few of these artists, as a study of the catalog will soon show, have ever been in this country, which adds to the novelty of possessing such recordings. The Eastern has laid in a large stock of these records in anticipation of an immediate appreciation on the part of the public. As the trade knows, or should know, these recordings are made through an arrangement with the Gramophone Co., Ltd., of London, England.

Now Sonora Co. of New England

The Music Supply & Equipment Co., with which Joseph E. Burke, has long been popularly identified and located at 221 Columbus avenue, has been supplanted by the Sonora Phonograph Co. of New England and will continue its offices at this same address. Mr. Burke continues his close relations with this new concern as he similarly did with the other one, and the new company will continue to serve identically the same territory. For the present John G. Pringle, who is assistant to the sales manager with the parent Sonora Co. in New York, is in Boston completing some of the details incident to the change of name. Mr. Burke reports a very big demand for Sonoras and large invoices being received at this end are eagerly taken by dealers carrying this line. The situation confronting this house is one of oversold.

Run on Hallet & Davis Phonographs

R. O. Ainslie, who is devoting much of his attention to the promotion of the Hallet & Davis talking machine line, says that he is having difficulty in securing enough goods to supply the trade; that the Hallet & Davis dealers, through the New England territory, have taken so many orders that it is a question if these can be filled before the end of the year. Very shortly it is the plan of the company to put out new two models, to be known as J and L, to be of the Hepplewhite design, and of the console type. The sample which has been submitted to the Hallet & Davis officials for their approval is of great beauty and attractiveness.

Strand Consoles Move Quickly

Arthur C. Erisman, whose establishment at the corner of Tremont and Avery streets is a well-known rendezvous in the trade, having sent out cards to the dealers announcing the arrival of the entire line of Strand console machines, numbering six different models, held an opening at the warerooms a week ago, and 265 dealers took the opportunity of giving these machines a careful inspection. The result is that Mr. Erisman is oversold on every type. At this opening Mr. Erisman, who is one of the most enterprising men in the talking machine trade, presented his guests with souvenirs, two of them, one a sterling silver Redipoint pencil, the other a little reminder book in brown leather, both very handy articles. Mr. Erisman is most enthusiastic over the Strand line with which he is having the most pronounced success throughout his territory, in which he has several good men traveling, Messrs. Mason, Chamberlain and Blakeborough. And they are doing well with the Vocalion records, too.

Sees a Record-breaking Month

Manager Herbert Shoemaker, of the Eastern Talking Machine Co., is justifiably jubilant over the November business of his house, which was of large proportions in both machines and records. Already in the latter line the advance orders for December are so large as to warrant a business for the last month of the year that will surpass any month in the history of the business—even November. When December 31 arrives it looks as though the Eastern might have something decidedly worth while to talk about.

Much Talking Machine Advertising

These are the days when the daily papers carry many advertisements of the various houses handling all kinds of machines. The Shepard Stores are calling attention to the Victor and Brunswick lines, featuring the console type. M. Steinert & Sons in most attractive displays are calling attention to the Victor line. The A. M. Hume Music Co. presents the Cheney for consideration. The Houghton & Dutton Co. shows the console Victrola. The Iver Johnson Co. features the Victor. Our old friend, the Pathé, is being offered by one furniture house. The Columbia, too, comes in for a big share of attention in newspaper advertisements and the same is true of the Sonora, Vocalion and Edison lines. The Avona is a machine that the Jordan Marsh Co. has been calling special attention to of late in its newspaper displays.

Business Good With Columbia

Manager Fred E. Mann, of the Columbia, when approached to-day said: "You catch us in a most happy frame of mind, for business is going splendidly. November was a whale of a month, and was 100 per cent better than the best month of this year, and 200 per cent better than the best month of last year." He is looking for a very big year in 1923. He is telling of the large volume of sales made by individual dealers in the New England field which far surpasses anything the best of them had ever done. Mr. Mann is going over to New York early in December for a conference with the official Columbia staff.

Vocalion Hall in Fine Shape

Manager Birdsall, of the Vocalion Hall, is on the job early and late, and now that the establishment at 190 Boylston street has been all refitted and rearranged the facilities are of the best for handling the business in Brunswick, Edison and Victor lines. The window display at this place is always most attractively arranged and holds the attention of a large proportion of those passing by.

Big Shipments of Brunswicks

The demand for Brunswick goods continues unabated. Lately an invoice of machines filling several cars arrived in town and it was only a short time before every machine was distributed among Brunswick dealers. There has been no effort made just lately to take on any new accounts as Harry Spencer, head of Kraft, Bates & Spencer, Inc., feels that it would be unwise since the present dealers are demanding such large quantities of goods, and they must be accorded every courtesy.

On the evening of November 22 sixty-five of the Columbia dealers with members of their sales forces attended a performance at the Shubert Theatre to enjoy Eddie Cantor in

In view of the fact that Eddie is a Columbia artist he was quite at home and he seized the opportunity of letting the audience know just what aggregation was in the house and that he was one of those who made records for the Columbia. It is of interest in this connection to mention that just before the Harvard football team went to New Haven for the game with Yale they had their pictures taken with Eddie in black face sitting in the foreground. Eddie was at the Country Club the night before and had entertained the boys in fine shape. Incidental to the Harvard team's visit to New Haven a pleasant feature was the entertainment furnished the boys by Roy Ward, the Columbia dealer in that city.

Opens New Quarters in Franklin

Kenneth Reed, wholesale manager for the Victor department of M. Steinert & Sons Co., went down to Franklin a few days ago for the opening of the new store operated there by George L. Kerr. Mr. Kerr has been a dealer in Franklin for twelve years and lately he leased additional space adjoining his store and made many changes, so that now he has one of the finest talking machine shops in that part of the State. There was a concert both afternoon and evening, in which G. F. Baldelli, of the Steinert's Arch street store, played a prominent part. Talented boy, this Baldelli. There was a big crowd attending this opening.

Frank K. Dolbeer a Visitor

Frank K. Dolbeer, manager of the traveling department of the Victor Co., was a Boston visitor for several days toward the end of November and visited the jobbers and dealers. While here A. M. Hume, of the Boylston street store bearing his name, tendered him a luncheon at the Engineers' Club.

J. G. Shaughnessy, of the United Music Stores, of Portland, Me., was a welcome visitor to Boston lately. Jack, as the trade familiarly knows him, has an army of friends in Boston, where he was long associated with Arthur C. Erisman before going to Portland.

Robert Steinert, of M. Steinert & Sons, was one of those who went down to New Haven for the Harvard-Yale game, though he himself is a Dartmouth man.

H. L. Pratt, manager of the branch service division of the executive offices of the Columbia, was in Boston several days the end of the month, having come over here with his wife and two children to spend Thanksgiving at his old home.

Miss Anna M. Walsh, who has been in charge of the statistical department of the Boston offices of the Columbia Co. has left for California, where she plans to spend the Winter with a sister. Miss Walsh goes West in the hope of benefiting her health.

Peter McInery, supervisor of the dealers' service department of the Columbia Co., is going up to Spencer early in December for the opening of the new and enlarged store of M. Lamoreaux & Sons, which is an exclusive Columbia store.

Stephen Colahan, New England manager of the Cheney line, has been spending considerable time of late visiting the dealers in his territory and he has signed up with several large concerns to carry this line, beginning with the new year.

Speaking of the Strand's New England popularity, Arthur C. Erisman said the other day that in the month of October fifty-six new accounts were opened.

SELL STEWART PHONO CO. ASSETS

J. W. Kingsbury Takes Over All Assets of Bankrupt Concern in Binghamton, N. Y.—Plans to Continue Business, It is Said

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., December 6.—John W. Kingsbury, former proprietor of the Lewis House, purchased the assets of the defunct Stewart Phonograph Co. for $12,000 at the public auction conducted recently by Trustee William H. Riley. This includes the real estate on Spring Forest avenue, certain patents and other assets, with the exception of cash and accounts receivable. Liens totaling $20,879.94 against the bankrupt estate are also assumed by Mr. Kingsbury.

Despite the seemingly large sales figure the creditors of the concern, outside of the Federal and State Governments, will receive nothing. The claims of the two Governments, of preferred nature, aggregate between $6,000 and $10,000, according to Trustee Riley, and after these have been satisfied and the expenses of administration added in, there will be nothing left for the ordinary creditors.

The patents were sold to Mr. Kingsbury, but without any guarantee. It is up to the new purchaser to argue out the matter with the Banfield Co. of Canada, which claims ownership and voiced opposition to the sale.

It is understood that the business will be continued by a new concern, headed by Mr. Kingsbury.

KERR'S VICTROLA SHOP OPENS

Formal Opening of Woonsocket, R. I., Firm Marked by Concerts

WOONSOCKET, R. I., December 7.—The formal opening of Kerr's Victrola Shop, this city, recently, was marked by concerts in the afternoon and evening which were attended by large and appreciative audiences. Representatives of the Victor Co. from Camden, N. J., and from several Victor wholesalers were present. Mr. Kerr was pleasantly surprised by a gift of a large potted chrysanthemum from one of the Boston wholesale Victrola houses. The affair was a musical success of high order. The warehouse is exceedingly attractive and modern arrangement makes it a convenient place to shop.

*Expect Record Holiday Business
—Resumption of Local Industries Exerts Influence on Trade*

AKRON, O., December 4.—Provided the manufacturers make promised deliveries of many models that have been absent from sales floors, Akron music stores will experience the biggest business volume in recent years during December. A survey the past week disclosed that all stores are busy dealing with holiday buyers and that sales are on the increase with the near approach of Christmas.

Industrially Akron continues to improve. Accounts which have been on the books since the eventful rubber slump of several months ago have been collected and again rubber workers are able to pay as they go. Thousands of dollars in "lost" accounts have been cleaned up by merchants the past three months. Music dealers say they expect fully sixty per cent of the Christmas talking machine business to be cash. Few prospects are asking for credit.

Higher priced machines are moving best, although there has been a big call for the $100 and $125 machines. Console models are moving much better and would probably represent the greatest volume of business were dealers able to obtain sufficient stocks.

Considerable business is reported in the farm districts near Akron. Practically all stores have men out in the rural districts and now that farmers have their crops harvested they are giving more time and thought to the Winter entertainment in the home.

Jerome Dauby New Chamber Head

Jerome Dauby, secretary and general manager of the M. O'Neil Co., operating one of Akron's largest department stores and who for years has supervised the buying of the music and talking machine departments of the big store, at a meeting recently was named head of the Akron Chamber of Commerce. He has been active in the Retail Merchants' Association for several years.

Form Mutual Protective Association

Formation of a Mutual Protective Association and apprehension and prosecution of shoplifters, check forgers and dishonest employees will be a part of the 1923 program of the Akron Retail Merchants' Association, with which 90 per cent of Akron music dealers are affiliated.

Lauder Aids Community Fund Drive

Through the efforts of Edward Poling, of the Windsor, Poling Co., Harry Lauder, celebrated Scotch comedian, who offered a concert here at the Armory two weeks ago, opened the community chest drive with a spirited talk which was heard by 200 business men and chest workers. Lauder's visit here helped sales of his own records materially.

Opens Alliance Branch

Announcement has been made that the store of T. W. Cope & Son, effective immediately, will represent the well-known music firm of Alford & Fryar, Canton, O., in the Alliance district. The new department is now open and the following well-known makes of pianos are being shown: Mehlin & Sons, Bond, Packard, Chase Bros., Hackley and Hallet & Davis. Only pianos will be featured in the department at present, but later it is planned to add a line of talking machines and records.

East Liverpool Merchants Complain

Retail business in the East Liverpool district, despite the fact that the Christmas shopping season is at hand, is off approximately 40 per cent, it was disclosed following a recent survey. Street cars have not been operated in the upper Ohio Valley since May 1 last and more than 17,000 general ware potters left their posts October 1 when manufacturing potters refused to grant them a 7 per cent wage increase.

Joins Warren Firm

Russell Jastatt, former Edison phonograph salesman with the George E. Buss store at New Philadelphia, O., has resigned to accept a similar position with the J. W. Stewart Co. at Warren, O., which store was only recently opened. He left this week to assume his new duties.

Garver's Anniversary Sale

Sales exceeded all expectations at the fifty-sixth anniversary sale of the Garver Bros. Co. at Strasburg, O., known as the world's largest country store. It was of ten days' duration and price concessions were made in every department, including the music sections.

BANNER RECORDS FOR THE HOLIDAYS

Plaza Music Co. Makes Special Release of Appropriate Selections for That Season—Early Ordering Advised to Prevent Delays

The Plaza Music Co., manufacturer of Banner records, has released some appropriate selections for the holiday season. These not only comprise sacred and secular songs, but include several titles with particular appeal to children.

The sales department of the above company had an unexpected rush of orders during late November and early in December which made necessary arrangements for larger production and distribution. The pressing plant of the company will work overtime until after the holiday season. Owing to the prevalence of congestion in shipments during the holiday season it has been suggested that the trade anticipate its requirements well in advance.

The Griggs Music Co., Moline, Ill., has secured more spacious quarters at 1413 Sixth avenue, which it will occupy shortly.

KANSAS CITY

Demand for Machines and Records Increases Steadily as Holidays Approach—Machine and Record Shortage Growing—The News

KANSAS CITY, Mo., December 4.—Judging from reports the trade situation in the Kansas City territory just at this time is comparable with that in other sections with a shortage of machines, and in some cases records, which is growing more serious as the holidays approach and a demand that is growing steadily. Among the machines the console or flat top models seem to be the favorites.

The Victor-Arnold Music Co. reports that the first six months of its handling the Cheney phonograph has been most encouraging. The firm has not attempted anything spectacular in the way of sales campaigns, but has steadily worked to call the attention of the public to the quality of the instrument. The result has been a sales volume very much larger than was anticipated when it took up the work. In connection with the Cheney the firm has handled the Vocalion records with equally gratifying results. Recently it has added to its line the Artophone console model, which has proved very popular. The new console model S, at $125, has made its appearance at the Kimball Kansas City branch and the sales force is enthusiastic about it.

Manager M. M. Blackman, of the Edison Co., is radiating good cheer and optimism. He reports that the new Edison models have been so enthusiastically received that there have been twice as many orders booked as they have been able to deliver. The difficulty is that the factory has not been able to meet the demand despite the fact that it was expected that the demand would be large and the factory increased its facilities something like 25 per cent.

This is confirmed by a statement made by R. R. Karch, vice-president of the company, who is making a tour throughout the West. He has been recently in the North and comes down here through Iowa and Nebraska. He reports that in these States, as well as farther North, business has so improved on account of the splendid crops that there are very large demands, where a year ago there was practically none.

Mr. Blackman, who is running the retail Edison Shop in Kansas City as well as attending to the jobbing department of the business in Kansas City territory, is having a splendid business this Fall. One of the elements of his success, he thinks, is the line of advertisements he is putting out. They are written like a personal letter—signed personally by Mr. Blackman. He says he attempts to make them just like personal talks and that he finds that the people read them and talk about what is in them. Of course, that means sales.

The Brunswick dealer at Pawhuska, Okla., L. J. Briscoe, recently completed a musical census of that city and reports the sales of an unusual number of phonographs as well as compiling a large prospect list.

Phil R. Schul, of the Schul Music Co., Wichita, has erected a new building and is now equipping it with attractive fixtures and everything that enters into the making of an up-to-date, beautifully furnished music store. A complete line of Brunswick phonographs and records will be handled by Mr. Schul.

The Topeka Music Co. has opened a new store at 633 Kansas avenue, Topeka, with a complete line of Brunswick phonographs and records. Mr. Mortiboy is manager of the new establishment.

Aside from Brunswick connections in Topeka and Wichita the Kansas City branch of the Brunswick Co. has recently established a number of other new accounts throughout the States of Missouri and Oklahoma.

The Artophone Corp., in the Kansas City Life Building, has recently added the entire line of the Strand phonographs, including the most exclusive period models, in its shop. One of the Strand products which has had a most unusually heavy sale since the Artophone people have added it is the Consolette.

The J. W. Jenkins' Sons Music Co. has arranged a most attractive Victrola Shop in association with Mr. Jeffries, of the Crestwood Jewelry Shop, at Fifty-fifth and Brookside. Two separate booths have been arranged to display the Victor models. Comfort and beauty were both under consideration in planning the rooms. Divans and attractive chairs are placed there for the convenience of music lovers and pretty little lamps set it off to advantage. The neighborhood is very desirable and the J. W. Jenkins' Sons Music Co. has priority in the territory.

E. R. Smith, Columbia branch salesman for the western part of Missouri, has won a great reputation as a salesman. Just inquire at Noel, Mo., for further information.

The Joplin Furniture Co., exclusive Columbia dealer in Joplin, Mo., appreciate the value of tying up with Columbia artists, and when Florence Macbeth appeared in Joplin on November 13 advantage was taken to arrange a special window display, the distribution of Macbeth circulars, the printing of the program with its ad and by covering with its entire list of record customers through a special letter.

IN POSSESSION OF NEW QUARTERS

Mohawk Works of Art, Inc., Now Enjoys Splendid Facilities for Artistic Decorative Work

The Mohawk Works of Art, Inc., which specializes in artistic decorating on talking machines, has taken possession of its new quarters. Located in the same building, at 160 Fifth avenue, the new studios of the company are on the top floor, which provides a maximum of light and also six times the facilities. Accordingly the staff of decorating artists has been materially increased. M. E. Estrin, head of the organization, has been very careful, however, in the selection of artists and none but thoroughly experienced decorators are employed. The new quarters provide a large reception and display room, an attractive private office for Mr. Estrin, a varnishing room, two large decorating studios and a finishing room.

This enterprising concern, although starting in a modest manner in July of this year, has made rapid progress with the field still fertile before it. While the orders for decorating work were originally from local metropolitan dealers, orders are now being received from all over the country and outside of the United States as well. A number of manufacturers have also placed orders for special decorations. A new policy has been lately inaugurated by this company, which is being accepted by a large number of dealers. An offer has been made whereby dealers placing orders for $150 worth of work or more will be entitled to a window display for these models, including a background and special decorations in Japanese design. This display will be loaned for a period of two weeks.

Mr. Estrin reports that the special decorating of phonographs has become very popular and predicts that in 1923 this idea will have still further growth. He also predicts generally good business throughout the coming year and states that the policy of the company will be, as in the past, to extend every co-operation to the dealer and manufacturer not only in producing work in accordance with its designs, but in providing exclusive designs where desired. The company is preparing its first catalog, which will be ready for the trade about February 1. This catalog will attractively portray some of the original effects to be obtained in the Mohawk studios.

ORDER BRUNSWICK FOR ROUMANIA

Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Younkman, of the Brunswick Shop, of Tulsa, Okla., ordered a Brunswick phonograph shipped to their daughter in Roumania. The instrument was shipped from the New York Brunswick branch office.

Slashing prices breeds suspicion on the part of the thinking public.

IN PITTSBURGH

Yuletide Spirit Makes Itself Felt in Talking Machine Trade Circles—Slow Rail Deliveries a Disturbing Element—The News

PITTSBURGH, PA., December 9.—What will in all probability be one of the best seasons for the sale of talking machines and records in the Pittsburgh district is under way, and practically all dealers are unanimous in affirming the proposition that "business is good and sales are larger than we had anticipated."

The spirit of Yuletide is in the air and the past two weeks have been very busy ones with the trade. The one uncertain element is the fact that some lines of talking machines are hard to get, due to the inability of the railroads to "function" properly. Some of the downtown talking machine dealers are of the opinion that in certain high-grade lines of well-known makes such as the Victor, Cheney, Sonora, Brunswick, Edison and Columbia, there will be a shortage.

A. A. Buehn, treasurer of the Buehn Phonograph Co., Edison distributor, in reviewing the situation, said: "Our business is showing a marked increase over the corresponding period a year ago and if we were able to get our orders of Edison phonographs from the factory on time, it would be most desirable. The railroad situation has certainly played havoc with the prompt receipt of Edison merchandise. From what the various dealers, whom we serve, tell us, it is my candid opinion that the coming holiday season will be a very satisfactory one."

Edison Tone-Tests Bring Business

Mr. Buehn stated that the series of tone-tests which closed a few days ago in the Pittsburgh zone was a decided success. The artists were the Fleming Sisters Trio and Joseph Phillips, the noted singer.

The various Edison dealers who held the tone-tests were as follows: Amsler-Hilliard Drug Co., Coraopolis, Pa.; Home Furniture Co., Braddock, Pa.; Plodinec Furniture Co., Woodlawn, Pa.; Findt Music Co., Steubenville, O.; Webber Music Co., Lisbon, O.; J. M. Burns & Son, Waynesburg, Pa.; G. W. P. Jones Music Co., Washington, Pa.; L. H. Fullerton, Burgettstown, Pa.; Carney & Co., Parkersburg, West Va.; Marietta Furniture Co., Marietta, O.; Furbee Furniture Co., Mannington, West Va.; H. P. Rodewig & Co., Bellaire, O.; M. J. Commons & Sons, Patton, Pa., and Imhoff Music Co., Clarion, Pa.

Local Carola Representatives

The Carola cabinet phonograph is being handled by Boggs & Buhl, Campbells', Kaufmann's, Kaufmann & Baer Co., the Rosenbaum Co., and the Johnson Music Co.

T. A. Shortell, manager of the Victor department of the S. Hamilton Co., stated that business conditions were improving and that all indications pointed to a very satisfactory volume of sales for the holiday season. The higher-priced lines of Victrolas, Mr. Shortell stated, were in good demand.

John Henk, manager of the Columbia Music Co., Columbia and Edison dealer, stated that trade conditions were good and that he anticipated a very brisk holiday season. He said: "From what I can see at present, it appears as though talking machines and records will be popular this year as Christmas gifts. One of the sales we made a few days ago for a holiday gift was a $500 machine with a large number of records. The sales of records are keeping up well."

Long Service Rewarded

John Murray, who for many years was in charge of the talking machine department of Spear & Co., in whose employ he has been for the past twenty-five years, was tendered a testimonial dinner at the Lincoln Club recently in honor of his quarter of a century affiliation with the firm. Officials of the firm presented him with $1,000 and the employes gave him a solid gold watch and chain.

Chauncey R. Parsons, manager of the talking machine department of the Rosenbaum Co., is sending out to his clients a handsome circular devoted to explaining the merits of the new Sonora period model, Queen Anne. Sales of Victor records, Mr. Parsons said, were very brisk.

L. A. O'Neill With Horne & Co.

L. A. O'Neill, who was connected with the Buehn Phonograph Co. for several years, latterly as manager of their retail store, is now connected with the talking machine department of the Joseph Horne Co. A. R. Meyer is manager of the department, which is one of the largest and most complete in the city. Mr. Meyer is looking forward to the usual huge volume of sales that his department records in the holiday season.

Among the new additions to the list of Sonora dealers here are the Fullerton Music Co., of Burgettstown, Pa., and the McDonald Furniture Co., of McDonald, Pa.

With the Brunswick Dealers

Brunswick dealers in the Pittsburgh district are receiving their phonographs, records and supplies from the Cleveland, O., offices, according to a notice sent out recently. Ernest Hart is located at the Pittsburgh offices. J. E. Hornberger has been appointed traveling representative and will cover Pittsburgh and Allegheny County. Mr. Hart will continue his active interest in the trade and confer with the dealers in this territory from time to time. Mr. Hart stated that sales have been good and that every effort has been made to meet the demands of the various Brunswick dealers in

Campaign on New Columbia Records

The Columbia Graphophone Co. has been conducting an extensive advertising campaign in the Pittsburgh district, featuring the new surface records. This has been of great help to the Columbia dealers, who highly appreciate the work of their "big brother" distributor. S. H. Nichols, the well-known Columbia manager, stated that he was highly pleased with the huge increase in sales of the Columbia machines and Columbia records and was convinced that the coming Christmas season would be a very lucrative one for retailer and distributor alike.

William Hampe, manager of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., stated that sales of Victrolas and Victor records were far above his expectations.

Paul S. Mechling, manager of the Dawson Bros. talking machine department, which is now located at 955 Liberty avenue (second floor), reports the sale of Starr phonographs and Genett records as very brisk.

Strong Demand for Victrolas

Fred Drake, manager of the retail Victor department of the W. F. Frederick Piano Co., is very optimistic over the turn that business has taken and is confident that the holiday sales of Victrolas and Victor records will eclipse all previous seasons. High-grade Victrolas, Mr. Drake stated, were in strong demand.

H. H. Fler, manager of the retail Victor department of the C. C. Mellor Co., said: "Our business in the Victor line is showing up remarkably well and the only disturbing factor is the fact that we will not be able to secure sufficient Victrolas of certain styles to meet the demand of our patrons."

C. Valeur, and sales manager, Jos. H. Burke.

The business will be conducted as heretofore at 221 Columbus avenue, Boston, Mass., and Mr. Burke will be in charge of sales, as he was with the M S & E. Plans are being made to give Sonora dealers in New England maximum co-operation in developing their 1923 business.

OTTO HEINEMAN'S TWENTIETH ANNIVERSARY IN INDUSTRY

President of General Phonograph Corp. Associated With Phonograph Trade for Two Decades—
Brief History of His Remarkable Accomplishments and Phenomenal Success Here and Abroad

While Thursday, November 30, was generally observed as Thanksgiving Day throughout the nation, it carried with it just a little more significance to Otto Heineman, president of the General Phonograph Corp., New York, for it marked Mr. Heineman's twentieth anniversary as a member of the talking machine industry. Congratulatory telegrams and letters from his business and personal friends throughout the country and in Europe were received by Mr. Heineman at his home and the day was generally marked by festivities appropriate to the importance of the event.

Mr. Heineman's association with the phonograph industry dates back to November 30, 1902, when in company with two other young men, Max Straus and H. Zunz, a talking machine store was opened in Berlin with the impressive capital of $500 in cash. The business grew slowly, but all of the partners were ambitious and they managed to scrape together about $4,000, with which they purchased the business of Carl Lindstrom A. G., of Berlin. The $4,000 was used as a cash payment, with the balance to be paid over a long period of years.

From this modest beginning there were founded two corporations of world-wide fame, for the General Phonograph Corp., with its factories and offices in different parts of this country and Canada, and Carl Lindstrom, A.G., of Berlin, with its factories and offices throughout the world, are the direct results of the small phonograph store in Berlin. Mr. Heineman and Mr. Straus have both reaped well-deserved rewards for their indomitable energy and pluck, but unfortunately Mr. Zunz, who was a brother of Mrs. Heineman, and an executive of exceptional brilliancy, died in 1906, shortly after the three partners had purchased the Lindstrom business.

In 1914 Mr. Heineman arrived in America for the purpose of studying general industrial conditions for the Lindstrom organization, of which he was a managing director, but when the war broke out he was unable to return to Europe. He thereupon decided to embark in the phonograph business in this country and founded the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., which took possession of a one-room office at 45 Broadway, New York. During the year Mr. Heineman became acquainted with A. G. Bean, of the Garford Mfg. Co., Elyria, O., who is now a member of the directorate of the General Phonograph Corp., and he and Mr. Bean discussed plans for the production of talking machine motors on a large scale. This had never been attempted here before, but Mr. Heineman with keen foresight and intuition realized that the time was ripe for the introduction of phonographs on a larger scale than ever before. He appreciated the fact that motors represented the most vital part of phonograph equipment and he thereupon decided to enter the motor manufacturing business on an impressive scale.

With this vision as a foundation the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co. in the short period of three years won recognition as the largest independent motor manufacturer in the world. Aside from the phenomenal success of his company Mr. Heineman was a direct factor in the establishment of a great many talking machine factories, which for the first time were able to secure motors in unlimited quantities.

In 1918 Mr. Heineman introduced the Okeh record which, at the present time, is the most popular independent record on the market. From the first day that this record was introduced Mr. Heineman had implicit faith in its ultimate success and although the problems that were encountered were numerous and extremely difficult, Okeh records increased in prestige and popularity year after year and for 1922 phenomenal sales totals have been attained.

In 1919 the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co. had increased its activities to such an extent that a new corporate name was deemed advisable and it was decided to name the company the General Phonograph Corp. Mr. Heineman was elected president of the company and has held that office ever since. Under his direction the manufacturing facilities have steadily increased and in addition to Heineman motors, tone arms and sound boxes, the company's products also include Meisselbach motors, tone arms and sound boxes, True Tone needles, fishing reels, insulating materials, etc.

Without doubt the most important factor in the tremendous success of the General Phonograph Corp. was the consummation of arrangements in 1920 by Mr. Heineman and Mr. Straus, managing director of Carl Lindstrom, whereby the General Phonograph Corp. and the Lindstrom organization entered upon a working agreement as to their record repertoires. By the terms of this agreement the General Phonograph Corp. secured for a long period of years all the record matrices made by the Lindstrom organization in any part of the world. This deal has enabled the General Phonograph Corp. to secure original recordings in every known language, as Lindstrom recordings have been made and are still being made in every part of the world. These foreign language recordings, making a direct appeal to millions of music lovers in this country, have been linked up with the Okeh library in a way that has given this record repertoire world-wide fame and prestige.

It is a distinct tribute to Mr. Heineman's personality that notwithstanding the exceptional responsibilities which he has shouldered in a business way he has always found time to pay close attention to the personal and social welfare of his organization. At all of the social festivities in the executive offices Mr. Heineman is an important figure, joining with the members of his staff in promoting goodwill and good fellowship throughout the organization.

GIVES AWAY PHONOGRAPH AT FAIR

TULSA, OKLA., December 6.—The Brunswick Shop, this city, recently gave away a Brunswick model No. 200 in its booth the last day of the Tulsa County Fair. The result was that about 1,500 names of families in the city of Tulsa who did not have a phonograph were obtained. Several nice sales from prospects, developed in this manner, have been made and the probabilities of many future sales from this source are excellent.

JAMES J. DAVIN JOINS ORMES, INC.

Well-known Victor Wholesale Man Appointed Sales Manager of Ormes, Inc.—Ideally Qualified for New Post—Assumes New Duties on January 2—Popular in Trade

C. L. Price, vice-president and general manager of Ormes, Inc., 15 West Thirty-seventh street, New York, Victor wholesaler, announced this week the appointment of James J. Davin as sales manager of the company. Mr. Davin, who will assume his new duties on January 2, 1923, has resigned as secretary of the Reincke-Ellis Co., Chicago, Ill.

This announcement by Mr. Price will undoubtedly be welcomed enthusiastically by Victor dealers in the metropolitan territory, as James J. Davin is one of the most popular members of the Victor trade in the East. He has been identified with the Victor industry since 1914 and during the past nine years has won the esteem and friendship of every member of the Victor trade throughout the country.

In 1914 Mr. Davin became identified with the New York Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler, and was a member of that company's staff until three years ago, when he joined the forces of the Reincke-Ellis Co. While associated with this Victor jobber Mr. Davin made a specialty of familiarizing himself with every detail of the Victor dealers' problems and requirements and gradually became recognized as one of the best posted men in the Victor wholesale trade. There was no problem, large or small, that escaped his attention and he was ready and willing at all times to give the benefit of his service and experience to any Victor retailer who could use it. He also made a detailed study of the possibilities of record sales development and frequently spent a week or more at the establishment of a dealer in order to demonstrate the practical value and efficiency of his plans and ideas.

As sales manager of Ormes, Inc., Mr. Davin will have unlimited opportunities to utilize his exceptional training in the Victor wholesale field. Ormes, Inc., has made phenomenal progress during the past few years under Mr. Price's able direction and the present sales organization is working to splendid advantage with the Victor retailers in this territory. Mr. Price and Mr. Davin should make a working team capable of accomplishing excellent results and both Ormes, Inc., and Mr. Davin are to be congratulated upon the consummation of arrangements whereby J. J. Davin re-enters the Eastern Victor field.

During his stay in Chicago Mr. Davin won many new friends and his only reason for leaving the Reincke-Ellis organization is the desire of his family to return to their old home in the East.

WILL SPEND WINTER IN FLORIDA

Mr. Butler, Sr., of the Butler Music Co., Brunswick dealer, Marion, Ind., will leave shortly to spend the Winter in Florida. He will drive down in his automobile. He has extensive orange groves there.

Disinterestedness of salesmen is one of the big factors in causing lost sales.

AVOID PROSAIC ADVERTISING

Talking Machine Advertising Should Not Be Too Practical—Results of Unfair Competition Can Be Minimized Through Advertising

Why do people buy talking machines and records? There is only one answer and that is, because they want music. This is not theory, but fact. No one spends several hundred dollars simply to get a graceful and useless piece of furniture. The desire for a talking machine is prompted by the love for musical entertainment as has been emphasized by The World many times. Now, music is not a matter-of-fact thing and for that reason should not be treated in a too practical manner.

Although this fact is universally known a large percentage of talking machine advertising appearing in the daily papers is "pricy" to a harmful degree. In most instances there is nothing to spur prospective buyers to action nor is there anything to awaken a desire for a talking machine in people who had not thought of buying one. Advertising that features price and relegates to the background the real selling points of the instrument is unproductive of results. Of course this only applies to standard makes of instruments.

There are many fly-by-night dealers who obtain a large stock of cheaply constructed talking machines, lacking both in artistry of design and reproducing qualities, who have nothing in their favor but price, and this is the kind of competition that legitimate dealers can overcome, not by slashing prices until there is no profit, but by showing the public through advertising that the quality instrument, fairly priced, is the cheapest in the end because of superior reproducing qualities and sturdy construction. Certainly no legitimate dealer can afford to compete in price with the dealer who is selling junk. Of course there are a certain class of people who will buy this sort of merchandise, but the legitimate dealer is better off without this trade.

AUSTIN, TEX., December 4.—The J. R. Reed Music Co., Brunswick dealer of this city, was awarded second place for the best exhibit at the Central Texas State Fair. The exhibit, in addition to a full line of Brunswick phonographs, featured many of the latest Brunswick record hits. The exhibit occupied a space of fifty feet long by fifteen feet wide. It was by far the most popular spot at the fair and resulted in bringing much good business and many good prospects to this popular talking machine firm.

Cleveland Music Trade Association Plans Co-operative Move to Stimulate Public Interest in Music—The Activities of the Month

CLEVELAND, O., December 6.—Joining of forces in the music industry, so that by united effort public interest in music may be stimulated, is a probability for the immediate future in Cleveland as a result of plans proposed at the last meeting of the Cleveland Music Trade Association. At this meeting J. Powell Jones, director of music in the Cleveland public schools, offered suggestions to this end. Primarily a piano organization, the Cleveland Music Trade Association has talking machine factors among its membership. Some of these are identified with the Northern Ohio Talking Machine Dealers' Association.

The proposal for the co-operative move was made by Edward B. Lyons, general manager of the Eclipse Musical Co., Victor wholesaler, and backed by Grant Smith, Euclid Music Co.; George R. Madson, Cheney Phonograph Sales Co.; J. L. Du Breuil, Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co.; H. R. Valentine, the B. Dreher's Sons Co., and others in the talking machine branch of the music industry.

President C. H. Randolph, of the Cleveland Music Trade Association, and Rexford C. Hyre, assistant secretary of that body, will prepare a program for action at the next meeting. This program, however, will aim to have all branches of the music trades—pianos, talking machines, musical instruments and the like—retain their identity in present organizations if they exist, the whole move being one toward co-operation in things musical, without the disadvantage of meetings or discussions wherein only one branch may be interested.

One step that may be considered in this direction was the special meeting called by President Louis Meier, of L. Meier & Sons, and Secretary Dan E. Baumbaugh, the May Co. talking machine department, of the Talking Machine Dealers' Association of Northern Ohio, for the purpose of considering immediate problems in the industry and also to consider reorganization, wherein all dealers in all makes of instruments will be members. With the accomplishment of this purpose it is probable that the membership of the talking machine organization can be better than doubled. It is not unlikely that committees will be appointed to carry out this thought after the holiday rush business has come to an end.

Getting Enough Machines the Problem

Meanwhile, the big problem of dealers here is not on how to close new business for the remaining few weeks of the year, but how to get the merchandise. In fact, it is the opinion of jobbers in Victor, Brunswick, Columbia, Edison, Cheney, Vocalion and all the other leading makes of machines catering to this territory that the extent of business depends now solely upon the ability to deliver the goods. At this time wholesalers despair of meeting all of the demand; in fact, in some instances adequate deliveries cannot be promised until after the first of the year. Credit must be given to the jobbing interests for doing their best at this time, but the fact remains that only those retailers who anticipated requirements months ago are in a position to do the best business now. This is a logical development.

Co-operating With the Retailer

The co-operation of wholesale interests with the retail element is well illustrated in the recent accomplishments of the Cleveland district branch of the Brunswick, under direction of District Manager J. L. Du Breuil. The arrival of the new Tudor model of the Brunswick was featured in a unique exhibit, an instrument and pictures of dealers' stores, being used in the lobby of the Stillman Theatre. The exhibit was prepared by Service Manager E. F. Hughes. At the same time the first of thirty billboards made its appearance in Playhouse Square, illuminating to the people of Cleveland the fact that Brunswick is an excellent instrument.

Ted Lewis and Band Have Busy Time

Equally interesting is the work of the Columbia branch, under direction of Branch Manager S. S. Larmon. For example, while the Ted Lewis Jazz Band was in town the co-operation of the Studebaker Corp. was enlisted, and the members of this Columbia feature were taken to local hospitals to perform in person for disabled war veterans and other invalids, while later they broadcasted, via the Union Trust Co. station, music to all receiving stations in Ohio. Likewise, the band was recorded by the Bradley Feature Films and was seen in action at some fifty local theatres during their stay here. Columbia dealers gained in record and machine sales in consequence of these stunts.

L. Meier & Sons Celebrate

What many old timers in the business believe to be the biggest individual accomplishment by a dealer has been the twenty-fifth anniversary celebration by L. Meier & Sons which lasted for twenty-five days.

A tremendous number of new people were enrolled in the company's mailing roster, and, according to Louis Meier, head of the firm, November really marked the start of the Christmas business, and at that it was far ahead of any previous year's holiday trade.

The Meier Co. started business in a tiny store three blocks from its present main store on Clark avenue. In the last two years two more stores have been added. The Meier family personally operates the business. Associated with Mr. Meier are his sons, Louis and Leonard, and his daughter, Lillian, the latter in charge of one of the new stores.

Rosa Ponselle Sings for Orphans

The local Columbia branch organization is credited with still another unusual tie-up for Columbia dealers in providing entertainment for 300 orphans when Rosa Ponselle appeared at Public Hall. Again the Studebaker, and the Overland organization as well, provided cars for the little folks to ride in to the performance. There was enough human interest in the event to break it into the local daily public prints—and Ponselle record stock rose rapidly in the estimation of dealers and Columbia followers alike.

Many New Stores and Departments

One of the best indications of confidence in the future of the industry in this section, shared in by jobbers and retailers alike, is the unusual number of new establishments opened during November and the expansion of others.

Featuring the Brunswick and Columbia instruments the Alhambra Music Co. has opened its new quarters, about twice the size of the old location, in the Euclid and East 105th district. In keeping with the spirit of the uptown White Way a large electric Brunswick sign has been erected. An exclusive Brunswick establishment is the Glenville Phonograph Co., St. Clair and East 105th, which featured the acquisition of more space with an opening in which an orchestra and local musical talent appeared. At Naples, N. Y., K. D. Bolster has been added to the Brunswick list in this territory, and another new East End dealer is the Hoedl Music House, heads of which are musicians with a wide following in local musical circles.

Among new Vocalion dealers added by the Vocalion Co. of Ohio are the Metzger Bros. and the Kenmore Drug Co., at Akron. More new accounts have been added by the C. W. Marshall Co. in the interest of Sonora, and like improvement is reported by R. J. Jamieson for Strand, following a tour during the last few weeks through the Ohio territory.

In addition to the Brunswick, with which the department opened a few months ago, the Halle Bros. Co. now includes the Victor. Already one of the finest musical departments in the Cleveland section, nothing in the way of sensationalism accompanied this introduction. An unique plan is being used to stimulate record business by Norman H. Cook, department manager. In the programs of the weekly concerts of the Cleveland Orchestra advertising is carried featuring the pieces played by the company and usually a marked increase in demand for records of these pieces follows through the week.

To care for the holiday trade primarily, but also to be a permanent feature, the Buescher Co. is preparing to add several more hearing rooms in its new Playhouse Square store and has completed the construction of a large electric sign that adds to the illumination of Cleveland's own White Way.

An Attractive Granby Souvenir

A novelty that finds its inception in the H. B. Bruck & Sons Co., and which is proving to be the best salesman, in the opinion of H. B. Bruck himself, is a miniature Granby cabinet, with clock, that serves the purpose of a humidifier. These are given away with each purchase of a Granby instrument and much new business can be traced to them, the Bruck people assert. The idea has proved so good that C. H. Kennedy, district representative of Granby, is planning to have the factory develop it in other localities.

New Euclid Music Co. Store

The fourth store of the Euclid Music Co., East Ninth street and Prospect avenue, was opened with a radio concert in which several bands played for downtown crowds and broadcasted the music to all parts of the State. In connection with this event the Euclid Co. added the Brunswick to the Victor, Cheney and other leading lines.

Another new exclusive Edison Shoppe has been opened by F. W. Rose in the St. Clair-East 105th district, and still more Brunswick dealers include Kuhn Bros., Buffalo, and the Pioneer Music Co., at Indiana, Pa.

Old Columbia dealer in new quarters is the Dunn's Music Store, in East 105th street, and among the first of Columbia dealers to order more than 150 instruments for their Christmas trade are Frank Cerne and the Werner Music Store, both of Cleveland.

W. F. Cooper, of the mechanical department of the phonograph division of Brunswick, has come to the Cleveland district, and, with J. L. Du Breuil, district manager, has been covering the territory, including the country adjacent to Buffalo and Pittsburgh, giving practical advice to Brunswick dealers. Brunswick dealers of Cleveland also had the opportunity of meeting Claire Dux during her recent visit to this city.

New Victor Store Opened

Among the new Victor establishments in this vicinity is the Mitchell Hardware Co., Conneaut, for the opening of which Miss Marjorie Barnhardt, exponent of health records, was loaned by Howard J. Shartle, general manager, the Cleveland Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler. A big crowd blocked the street during the performance given by Miss Barnhardt.

During the last six months the business of the Vocalion Co. has been doubled, in the opinion of C. D. McKinnon, of that company. Many new accounts, including dealers in Youngstown, Alliance, Canton, Lisbon and Columbus, have been added in the last few weeks.

Kollie's Music House Celebrates

The second anniversary of the establishment of Kollie's Music House was celebrated December 1. From a store that was strictly of the neighborhood variety, with a small stock of instruments and equally small stock of records, this is now one of the recognized musical instrument places on the West Side of town. The firm now is featuring the Brunswick lines, although pianos, players, rolls and musical instruments of the so-called small variety likewise make it an imposing establishment. The work of developing the strictly residential neighborhood in which it is located has been done personally by J. P. Kollie and his sons, Paul, Julian and Leo, all three aggressive men.

The Music Shop, Racine, Wis., is combining the ordinary Christmas Club and the Brunswick Thrift Bank and is getting good results. The prospect signs up for a Christmas delivery and pays $2 per week until that time and then a regular contract is filled out.

REAPING IN DECEMBER

During 1922 we have shown our faith in the Victor Product by placing larger orders for immediate delivery than ever before. During the summer and fall we accumulated as large a stock of Victrolas as possible, disregarding depressed business conditions and refusal of dealers to buy except on a "hand to mouth" basis. We figured that a "bird in the hand" was going to be worth "two in the bush." We knew the factory could not manufacture enough goods for the holidays during the last few months, so we piled them up as fast as we could get them, discounted every bill as usual, and were charged by many with being foolishly optimistic.

In September, in our printed advertisements and announcements to the trade, we said:

"The Danger Ahead is in the supply of Victor goods not meeting the demand.

"Supplementing the largest and most complete stock of Victrolas that we have ever had at this time of year, we have placed additional orders with the factory for the largest quantity of goods ever ordered by us for the fall and holiday season. Blackman Dealers are going to be in an enviable position if they will cooperate with us.

"Place an order NOW for estimated requirements of all Victrolas for delivery during September, October, November and December."

We said frankly that we could not guarantee delivery, but also that we would, therefore, permit an adjustment of advance orders, according to current needs and even permit cancellations. Continuing, we said:

"The moral obligation on our part is always highly respected and dealers who cooperate with us by placing advance orders are entitled to first consideration."

During October and November our shipments against advance orders seriously depleted our stock. On December 1st the factory still owed us a larger quantity of goods, long overdue, than ever before.

Blackman Dealers, who cooperated with us, as requested, are going to realize that Blackman Dependability by comparison is more of a fact than a hope.

If you are not a Blackman Dealer—ask us about the Blackman Policy—the dividends are high and the premium low.

correctly about general conditions in the retail and wholesale elements in the talking machine industry during the Christmas season. One thing, however, is certain; and that is that retail merchants throughout the Mid-West are doing very well indeed. The lessons which they learned last year and during the first six months of this one have shown them that the people with whom they deal are just as much interested in music as they ever were and that what has been lacking has not been public interest half so much as it has been salesmanship. In other words, the merchants who have perceived this truth and have set to work to apply it have reaped no small reward. There is only one trouble with the talking machine business, and that is that its surface alone has been scratched. There is only one trouble with talking machine merchants—some of them, at any rate—and that is that they do not know how to do anything better than scratch surfaces. Now surface scratching is all very well so far as it goes, but it does not go far. To scratch the surface of sales is not very difficult, but no one has the right to cry that the field has been ploughed when it has really only been harrowed. We are doing in this business of ours much better than at this time last year most of us thought we should ever do again; but still we are not really reaching into the great regions under the surface. How many merchants are really trying to find ways of reaching the musicians, the music-lovers, the amateurs, the opera-going class, the music-loving foreigners of a dozen different races; and all the rest of the prospect-bearing soil which our great communities contain in such rich quantities? How many merchants are still content to sell a few machines when people come in, and a few records when people who see the monthly bulletins ask for them? But that is surface scratching. Now what we need, and all we need, is some ploughing.

THE most interesting of recent facts disclosed by inquiry and investigation inside the trade is the fact that the public is deserting some of its old standbys and going off more and more after new favorites. The console machine is not merely one of these new favorites—it is the principal favorite. There is today a general demand by merchants for consoles at moderate prices, and we sincerely hope that this laudable desire will be helped along by the manufacturers. That is to say, we believe that the console machine in all probability represents the direction in which the majority of talking machine construction will eventually go. It is good-looking, it can be made to fit into any sort of surroundings without seeming to be out of place, and in general it has an air of adequate appropriateness. It is not enough, however, that there should be a temporary demand for console machines. We believe that the trade ought to begin to turn itself towards the day when the console will be the prime factor in our trade. But when this day comes the universal console ought to be something more than an upright turned on its side. Much can be done in the way of mechanical and artistic improvement over the upright and we want to see the console of the future new inside as well as out.

Bacon's Voice
Remains

EVERYONE will admire and no one will be jealous of the enterprise displayed by the Aeolian Company in securing records of the voice of Frank Bacon. Ever since the play in which he made his last and greatest success began to grow in public favor, the lamented comedian had his name on everyone's lips. He was a remarkable man in a great many ways. The homely wit, simplicity and beauty of "Lightnin'" found its way to the hearts of the people in a most extraordinary manner. The country now possesses a permanent record of a remarkable actor and lovable character who was especially endeared to the Middle-West and whose loss will not quickly or easily be made up.

WE take genuine interest in the publication known as "Steger Magazine" which from time to time issues from the offices in the Steger Building on our Four Corners and proceeds to enlighten the rest of the world and us on the doings of that remarkable little community of workers which centers both in that building and in the corporate town of Steger, where Steger phonographs and pianos come from. It is quite an astonishing little magazine, too. Published primarily, as is evident, for the entertainment of the staff, and filled with news about them and their doings, it contains always pithy articles from good writers on all sorts of subjects, by no means of the dry "business" character. Of all things dry in the world, the driest (no jokes intended) is the average "business" article, save perhaps the average "inspirational talk." Some day all makers of "inspirational talks" will be shot at sunrise; then we shall all be happy. But "Steger Magazine" is not that kind of a magazine. It inspires without being inspirational; which reminds us of one Charles E. Byrne, chief (we suspect) conspirator and principal egg-on of Editor Sherwin Murphy. Now friend Byrne is a scholar as well as a business man and will thoroughly appreciate what we are after when, with a slight paraphrase to make it fit, we say of him what Quintilian said in one of his essays on oratory: "ita editori bene dixisse finis est." Gents who desire to have the translation may obtain the same by applying to C. E. B., Steger Building, Wabash and Jackson. We might mention that there is a useful little story in the current Steger Magazine on needle pressures and reproducer weights. Some folks will appreciate the information there conveyed and find it of practical and personal benefit.

Congratula-
Victor!

WE are in receipt from the Chicago Talking Machine Co. of a new list of records now available in this country, made by artists who have so far not appeared in the U. S. A. We are glad to see this, for among our most cherished possessions are catalogues of European record manufacturers and some of the productions of the same. We are, therefore, in a position to say that there is a wealth of wonderful music made abroad not yet available to American consumers through ordinary channels. It is most interesting to learn that, for instance, Andre Chemet's exquisite violin playing is now to be had by American purchasers. Here is a remarkably large and fruitful field for cultivation. May there be many more of these welcome and timely bulletins month by month.

Well,
Well,
Sir Harry!

IT is a far cry from Chaliapin and Chemet to Sir Harry Lauder, whose guid Scots name the fowk wi' a be ca'in Louder. In fact (to drop our ancestral, on one side, Scots), Sir Harry is not Louder but Lorder or rather Lorrnder, and we have been having him in Chicago. The fact that he is a Victor artist naturally gives us a chance to boost Bonnie Scotland again and also brings this paragraph right in place after the glorification we have been doing of the eminent European high-brows. Now the writer of these more or less witty lines is sometimes subjected to the accusation of being high-brow. But he admits that it is hard, not to say impossible, to withstand the charms of Tobermory. "Well, "theer's ither Scots i' Chicagey forbye me" and they all went around to the theatre and whooped it up for the little comedian with the bow legs, and then went off to the Victor shops and bought Lauder records till the Victor dealers had to order Lauder, Lauder order (it rhymes), fast and furiously. All of which leads to the terse remark, considerable tie-up; or may we say "quelque rapprochement!" Which is what we used to say in that dear Patee. Meanwhile, Merry Christmas to all our readers, and that means the trade at large!

CHICAGO, ILL., December 9.—Time and again we have heard the expression that competition is the life of trade and we have always found this to be true. That being the case, we are ready to say without blushing that Chicago is to-day the liveliest center of competitive activity.

Each year at the beginning of the holiday season we like to give out some statement regarding business. If it is good business we give the reason, and if business is bad we also tell why. In the majority of cases dealers were wont to complain that business had fallen off to some extent for various reasons, such as, for example, the condition of the weather and that consequently the Christmas spirit was lacking. This year nothing at all, whether good weather or bad, sun or rain, Christmas feeling or what not is causing the dealer to sit down and play the waiting game as of yore. The dealer has real competition to meet this year and he knows it; consequently he is out after business. He knows that it is there and he also knows that if he does not get it someone else will. Therefore, he is up and at it.

Now, to get back to competition. As we said before, there is keener competition this year than we have ever seen. This is making business good. During other seasons in the past, when business was good it was not due to such keen competition. In fact, competition was practically nil. Selling was practically order-taking. Today there is no order-taking. Selling counts and selling is being done.

Financial statements indicate that business in general is exceptionally good. The bankers show by their statistics that savings deposits are larger than ever before in history. Commercial men by their statements show that the factories are working at top notch. Labor statisticians show that there are one hundred jobs for every ninety-six workers. This latter statement is significant, meaning that in Illinois there is a shortage of labor. It also shows that manufacturing plants are working to capacity with practically full forces, the difficulty being that for the time being there are not enough workers to go around. This, in a nutshell, is the situation in this territory. Just what prevails in other sections of the country we do not know, but we believe from rumors we have heard that other sections of the United States are affected in a similar way.

We are not trying to imply that there is a boom throughout the country. What we are trying to point out is that we are going through a readjustment period which is stimulating business and bringing us back to normalcy. Manufacturers and dealers in musical instruments, however, must not take it for granted that we have completely readjusted ourselves. We have not; for the simple reason that the music industry is always one of the last to be affected by any boom. As a general rule we get our share of generally increased business from three to six months after the balance of commerce reaches its normal period. There are still some things to be considered before we have weathered the storm and have come safely into port and we must, therefore, keep a weather eye out for submerged reefs.

We know from past experience that when we get too cocksure of ourselves something always happens and it is, therefore, best that we continue our conservativeness for a while longer.

From reports around the street we gather that the portable and console machines are having exceptionally good sale. High quality consoles selling at popular prices are going very strong this season. We have had quite a stimulus in console business during the past year or so and from all we can learn around the city we can expect still greater activity in consoles for 1923. Some of the companies are putting out some mighty good little instruments of the console type which will be offered to the trade at prices hitherto unheard of. The designs will be of the straight-line character, devoid of all fancy work, but construction will be exceptionally good and so will the equipment. The same applies to portables. They are getting smaller and better. At present there are quite a number of companies contemplating the manufacture of portables during the coming year and from all appearances we may expect many newcomers on the market before long. As regards these portables, it might be well to say here that their manufacturers are breaking away from the "seasonal" idea and are doing everything they can to make portables an all-year proposition.

announcements that the Sonora line has been taken on by the Baldwin Piano Co. The latter company definitely closed arrangements with the Sonora Phonograph Co. of Illinois late last month. The local Baldwin sales forces seem to be very enthusiastic about Sonora possibilities and are looking forward to a very active selling season.

The Baldwin Co. has planned a comprehensive advertising campaign in the interests of Sonora and this will carry on for the next three months. The advertising copy in the daily papers just referred to carries illustrations showing Sonora Baby Grand, Queen Anne, Lafayette, Marquette and Pembroke models. The text matter tells how the Baldwin Co. "watched the phenomenal growth of the Sonora industries, marveled at the Sonora's ever-increasing popularity and felt the public's insistent demand for this superb instrument."

Snappy Kimball House Magazine

The December issue of "The Musical Herald," which is a professional paper published by the W. W. Kimball Co. for its dealers, is more imposing than ever before and contains excellent articles and beautiful illustrations. Much credit must go to Miss E. Manning for the obviously great amount of time and effort that must have gone into its preparation. In addition to several excellent articles on topics of particular professional interest, there is one devoted to the factory of the Kimball Piano Co. which will interest music dealers. Incidentally, we can say that Kimball dealers all over the country read this little magazine assiduously.

Hoot Mon! Harry Lauder's in Town

Chicago Victor dealers and especially those doing business in the downtown section took advantage of the appearance of Sir Harry Lauder at the Studebaker Theatre during the week starting November 27. Some of the dealers devoted entire windows to Lauder displays and had not only his picture, but his entire list of twenty-nine Victor records on display. The Victor dealers made up their minds that they were going to sell Lauder, and they did it with very satisfactory results.

ally acquainted with several members of the sales force and spent some time discussing the new song, "Stop Your Kiddin'," which was dedicated to them by the Mills Publishing Co. and which will appear on Okeh records.

Both young ladies are Okeh enthusiasts and before leaving the Consolidated headquarters they consented to pose for a photograph. The Consolidated sales force then took a large Okeh record display card from the show window and the twins posed with it between them. As can be seen from the face of the card the publicity is directed towards Vincent Lopez and his Pennsylvania Hotel orchestra, who play exclusively for Okeh. The purpose of the window display was to popularize the Pennsylvania Hotel orchestra and it was put in by C. M. Rickoff, retail sales manager of the Consolidated Co. The window is laid out so as to show the public exactly what instruments are used during recording and they are placed just as they would be in the recording room while recording is going on. The instruments were taken from the stock of the Consolidated Co.'s small goods department. Mr. Rickoff is a newcomer with the Consolidated Co.'s retail sales force and was formerly with the Grand Furniture Co., of Racine, Wis.

Besides handling the Okeh and Edison records and a full line of small goods the Consolidated Co.'s retail branch handles Edison and Brunswick phonographs and records, Columbia Grafonolas and records and Strand talking machines.

Now With the Consolidated Co.

S. A. Burrell, who for the past fourteen years was connected with the Columbia Co.'s Chicago branch as credit manager, is now associated with the Consolidated Talking Machine Co. as manager of its credit department. Mr. Burrell is one of the most experienced talking machine credit men in this section of the country and is personally known to many dealers.

Box Revue," which recently arrived in this city from New York, and is now playing in the Colonial Theatre, is proving profitable to local Brunswick dealers who have tied up with the show. Increased sales of records made by these three popular artists are reported by the dealers who are featuring them in window displays and advertising.

Strand Going Big in Chicago

The Strand line of talking machines is gaining increased popularity throughout the Chicago trade and many new accounts have been opened by the Consolidated Talking Machine Co., which represents this well-known line of instruments. E. A. Fearn, head of the Consolidated Co., gives out the information that the new $100 and $175 models have met with favor from the Chicago trade and that the two-toned wood effects in walnut and mahogany have created much admiration. Mr. Fearn has returned from a three-day trip to the Kansas territory.

Whiteman Appears Here

One of the biggest turning-outs that Chicago has ever seen happened at the Bal Fantastic, Chicago's big annual charity ball held at the Trianon, December 5. The Trianon is Chicago's big new dancing palace at Cottage Grove avenue and Sixty-second street. The feature of the occasion was none other than Paul Whiteman and his orchestra, exclusive Victor artists, and it is said that this engagement, which lasted for six days, netted Mr. Whiteman and his organization $25,000. There were thousands of delighted Chicagoans who attended during the stay and the Victor dealers for miles around knew that such would be the case. The result was a tie-up which moved more Whiteman Victor records than ever before.

Gala Victor Day in Chicago

December 1 surely was a gala day in Chicago so far as Victor dealers were concerned. The day was made possible by the splendid Victor December supplement records, which contained a special list of symphonies and famous artists. These records brought many new and old faces to the Victor stores as they were with few exceptions made by artists and musical organizations who have not appeared in this country heretofore, but will be the means of bringing to music lovers many artists whom they might not otherwise have had an opportunity to hear. Eminent violinists such as Thibaud and Chemet were among the artists whose records appeared for the first time. There were also four exceptionally fine new records by Chaliapin.

The Victor dealers were also supplied with a great quantity of eight-page booklets and hangers featuring these records and they lost no time in sending these out to all customers and prospects.

Kimball Hall Broadcasts Organ Music

What is said to be the first radio organ recital ever attempted in this section was carried out recently by Hugh Porter and Franz Wagner at Kimball Hall from the Kimball concert organ. The concert was relayed to KYW station and thence broadcasted. Four numbers were played in two groups during the hour. The first group consisted of Dickinson's Berceuse and Wagner's Pilgrim Chorus; the second of the Military March by Elgar and the D Major Aria of Bach. This last number was for solo 'cello with organ.

It is said that the organ furnished splendid music over the radio and that the reproduction was exceptionally clear. Similar concerts are planned two or three times each week.

Local Orchestra With Okeh

The Chicago Orchestra, one of Chicago's greatest dance orchestras, which plays at Guyon's Paradise, has just returned to Chicago from New York, where the men went to record exclusively for the General Phonograph Corp. The records they made for the Okeh include "Silver Swanee," "Lost, a Wonderful Girl," "Lovin' Sam," "I'm Through," "Isle of Sweethearts" and "Hawaii." The Chicago Orchestra is one of the most popular musical organizations that have ever been introduced to Chicago's patrons of the dance and when announcement was made at Guyon's Paradise that this orchestra's records would soon be released by Okeh there was much enthusiasm shown by the dancers.

Unico President a Visitor

Rayburn Clark Smith, president of the Unit Construction Co., was a visitor to the Chicago trade during the past week. Mr. Smith was on his way to Denver and the Coast for the purpose of making a general survey of business conditions. From Chicago he made a side trip to Minneapolis, where he visited the Foster & Waldo establishment, which is being refitted by the Unit Construction Co. Mr. Smith anticipates returning to headquarters in the East about Christmastime.

Fire Imperils Consolidated Co.

Fire which practically destroyed the Franklin Hotel at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, November 26, damaged several adjacent buildings, among which was that occupied by the Consolidated Talking Machine Co. The Franklin Hotel is located at 29 North Franklin street, just around the corner from the Consolidated Co.'s building at 227 West Washington street. The rear of the first and second floors of the Consolidated Co.'s building was scorched up to quite an extent and the goods in the basement and the first and second floors were somewhat damaged by smoke and water.

Now, in our immense Saginaw, Michigan, plant, we have co-ordinated all Vitanola activities, including the moving of our general offices to Saginaw from Chicago; and it works out to your advantage as well as our own.

In Saginaw we have always had and—now that all Vitanolas will be made here—will have in increasing degree the benefit of skilled labor at a fair price. The men who work in our Saginaw plant, many of them, have been with us since our beginning. They own homes, and are skilled artisans who work because they like to create something worth while, not merely because they are compelled to hold a job.

In this big modern factory, then, under one roof we shall continue to produce the VITANOLA with the thought in mind that to-day the American public wants phonographs as badly as ever, BUT the quality and the price must both meet rigid competition. At the same time the dealer's interest must be protected.

Write to us to-day, and find out what all this means for you. DEALERS who know have said to us records and the company states it takes the lateral pressure of any blow or weight from the record's sides, also allowing the resilient, straw board corrugations and packing to absorb the blows or weights struck against the records while in transit.

It is planned to produce two sizes of the "Saftee-Shipper," one of which will carry from one to three records and the other from three to ten records. The company is making a special sales drive in behalf of this shipping device, stating that no supplementary wrapping is needed, and that it is fully approved by the postal authorities.

Frank Bacon's Voice Preserved

On Sunday night, November 19, Frank Bacon passed away in Chicago. For over a year Frank Bacon and his cast in "Lightnin'" had showed continuously at the Blackstone Theatre in Chicago. The run of "Lightnin'" has broken all records of continuous performances at this theatre.

Frank Bacon, according to many of the old-time theatregoers of this section, was the greatest American actor since the days of Thomas Jefferson, and some even assert that he was superior to Jefferson. His passing away affected the Chicago theatregoers as greatly, perhaps, as would a national calamity. He had made many friends here and was loved by all who had seen him.

Although this great man has passed out to the Great Beyond his voice will continue on into posterity. This is made possible by the foresightedness of the Aeolian Co., which is said to have been the only company that ever recorded Frank Bacon's voice. The Aeolian Co. recorded Bacon's famous "Bee Story," as well as the narration of the "Reno divorce court." Both these interesting stories appear on Vocalion record No. 14224. Another Aeolian record, 14245, contains Bacon's story of "Me and Grant" and "Lightnin' Bill Jones' escape from the Indians." When news of Frank Bacon's death was made known to the public H. B. Levy, manager of the Aeolian Co.'s big branch, lost no time in organizing his dealers for the purpose of putting in mourning windows in honor of the celebrated actor. Frank Bacon's funeral was held from the stage of the Blackstone Theatre and there were very few Vocalion dealers in town who did not display the Bacon Vocalion records as well as the picture of the great actor.

Sterling Devices Creditors' Meeting

The Sterling Devices Co. held a creditors' meeting on November 16, to which all creditors were invited. It was brought out that the total indebtedness is $20,318.52, against tangible assets of $20,502.51. It appears that the assets consist largely of dyes and special material which would bring at a forced sale only a few cents on the dollar, whereas by finishing the material on hand and disposing of all completed Sterling products there can be had sufficient profit to pay off all indebtedness in full, provided, of course, that sufficient time is allowed by the creditors.

It was therefore resolved by the creditors that Sterling Devices be granted one year's extension on their indebtedness. From present indications all creditors will agree to this resolution and the company will continue the business of manufacturing Sterling Devices, Sterling Edison Attachments and Sterling Radio head-sets, as heretofore.

Steger's Talk on Needle Pressure

Those who have paid attention to the requirements of a tone arm know that the pressure of the needle point on the record has much to do with the playing and life of the record. Talking machines with the round jewel point needle must have a heavy reproducer in order to make the ball point follow the grooves of the record, whereas the machine which has a diamond-pointed needle must have a lighter pressure. Instruments which use fibre, steel or brass needles play best when carrying a medium weight on the needle point. In order to effect the best results inventors have time after time brought out various ideas for assuring proper weight. In the Autumn number of the "Steger Magazine," house organ of the Steger & Sons Piano Manufacturing Co., there is an interesting editorial concerning the method utilized in assuring proper weight on records played on the Steger talking machines. The editorial in part reads: "The Steger phonograph has gone the ordinary 'talking machine' one better, because the patented Steger weight-regulating device incorporated in the Steger tone arm controls the pressure with which the reproducer lights on the record. This feature is exclusive to the Steger and not only prolongs the life of the records, but permits the playing of all makes of records with the exact pressure on the needle point, just as they would be played on the phonograph that they were originally intended for, thereby insuring correct reproduction of every tone and bit of sound.

"The weight of the reproducer is adjusted by means of a small lever on the elbow of the tone arm. This lever is set by pulling out the knob and inserting it in the proper slot. There are no parts to change."

Sonora Ad Campaign

The Sonora Phonograph Co., Inc., of Illinois, recently inaugurated an extensive advertising campaign in the local newspapers and L. Golder, sales manager, is busy putting things in shape for the rapidly expanding business. The present advertising campaign will be augmented in the near future if the present plans are put in effect. Business with this concern, due in great measure to its fine publicity, is of excellent and growing volume.

Generation-old Litigation Dismissed

One of the most interesting lawsuits in the annals of Illinois courts has just been dismissed.

BEAU BRUMMEL In Squeaky Shoes!!

AN EXQUISITE CABINET WITH A CRUDE MOTOR

A thing may be durable and yet most objectionable.

Not so long ago, all motors were noisy. The coffee-mill-like winding sounds and the mechanical sounds of the motor were the accustomed though annoying prelude to an operatic air.

Today, instruments equipped with our enclosed, automatically lubricated motors avoid this objectionable defect. Not a sound—No intrusion of mechanics into the artist's offering, they are musical instruments—not machines.

Also, manufacturers were accustomed to bear a certain amount of bother and expense due to motor troubles after their instruments were sold.

Most of the makers of fine Phonographs now use our equipment, their motor troubles are forgotten, their costs as well as their overhead expense are reduced, and their cabinet work, no matter how exquisite, is matched in refinement and quality by the mechanism inside.

Infringement Notice

THE trade and the public generally are notified of the issue by the United States Patent Office on November 14, 1922, of Letters Patent No. 1,435,660 for Educational Appliance. This patent was granted to Wallace Institute and covers, broadly, the invention of the popular Wallace Records and Charts. All forms of appliances comprising a phonograph record having instructions for physical exercises recorded thereon combined with any sort of an indicator or chart illustrative of such exercises infringe this patent.

Dealers who sell and all who use records and charts of the character above described, unless they be the Wallace Records and Charts, are liable to Wallace Institute for infringement of its patent. This is true whether the records and charts are made by the dealers or some one else.

All dealers are now called upon to cease the sale of infringing devices under penalty of suit for injunction and accounting for profits and damages.

Further Notice also is given that Wallace Institute possesses proprietary rights in and to the trade-mark "Reducing" when applied to talking machine records, evidenced by Certificate of Registration No. 160,758 issued by the United States Patent Office, October 24, 1922.

Dealers selling records under this trade-mark, except they be the Wallace "Reducing" Records, also render themselves liable for infringement thereof.

Violation of the rights above specified will not be countenanced, and warning is given that all infringements will be vigorously prosecuted.

It is said to have been the oldest pending litigation in the Supreme court of Illinois. It seems that twenty-seven years ago the estate of one Frederick Atwood filed a suit for $500.00 against the W. W. Kimball Co. Three times the suit was taken to the Appellate Court during the litigation, of which the total cost is by now in the neighborhood of $5,000.00. The case recently came up again, when it was discovered that neither of the litigants knew anything concerning the circumstances in the case, for in the interim attorneys for both sides had died.

Announces Record Candies

W. P. White, who was formerly connected with the sales force of the Chicago Talking Machine Co., has started out on a new venture which he believes will make a hit with the talking machine trade. During his long experience in talking machines he has made a careful investigation of all things practical for sale by the talking machine man. He decided that high-grade bon-bons were in constant demand at all seasons of the year and after coming to this conclusion figured out a way whereby the talking machine man could cash in on this extensive trade. He therefore brought out a round metal candy box, the lid of which simulates a talking machine record. They are in various colors, red boxes with red center labels for Victor dealers, blue boxes and labels for Columbia and green boxes and labels for Brunswick dealers. Facsimiles of the various record labels are enameled right into the lid of the box. The box is packed with high-grade candy, with room also for the counter cards supplied by the various talking machine companies to their retail dealers.

Sophie Tucker Welcomed

One of the warmest receptions that was ever given a vaudeville artist by Chicago theatre-goers was tendered to Sophie Tucker on her appearance at the Palace Theatre during the weeks of December 4 and 11. Miss Tucker pleased her audience with many new songs and requests for her old favorites were many.

Miss Tucker is one of the most attractive singing artists who have ever appeared in Chicago and has the distinction of holding down the Palace Theatre for two consecutive weeks and playing to packed houses. Needless to say, a great amount of publicity was given to the Okeh records, for Miss Tucker is an exclusive Okeh artist who certainly knows how to boost and is not at all backward in doing so.

Tonofone's Fifth Birthday

November marked the fifth anniversary of Tonofone's introduction to the trade, for five years ago this month the first Tonofone needles were offered to the trade. As an actual fact, however, Tonofone came into being about seven years ago, but before it made its debut to the trade the inventors spent two years in trying out and perfecting it. It was, we are told, the first needle of its kind to be put on the market. Its originality was based on the fact that it was a two-piece affair, having a brass shank, to the end of which was swaged a fine, resilient, non-scratching, flexible point. The purpose of the needle was mainly to give the talking machine owners a needle that was really semi-permanent and which at the same time would not cut up or scratch the surface of the record. In this we have reason to believe that Tonofone has been successful, as numerous testimonials are on hand from all parts of the world attesting to Tonofone's merit. Now to get back to the original story. November does do things for Tonofone. It marks its fifth anniversary, as has been before stated, and at the same time it heralds the introduction of Tonofone's little sister. The new needle will be known as the loud Tonofone and the inventors of this needle claim all the good points of the original Tonofone with the addition of loudness. In this particular instance the Tonofone Co. claims that the new Tonofone needle will give an intensity of sound fairly comparable with what is given out by a full-tone steel needle.

Oro-Tone Broadside

The Oro-Tone Co. has started on a publicity campaign by means of which it intends to reach every possible user of tone-arms and Edison attachments. The tone of the broadside is directed to their O-G arm and O-F concert reproducer. A feature of this Oro-Tone equipment is its adjustability as to length and height, this being controlled by set-screws. This particular arm embodies the improved angle throw-back principle, which permits the reproducer to clear the tone-arm when thrown back, regardless of whether it be in position for playing hill-and-dale or lateral-cut records.

The broadside shows a handsome cutaway illustration of the Oro-Tone tone-arm and small arrows point to the various features. These arrows are keyed and a reference table is printed directly beneath the illustration. The small thumb-nail, mechanical diagram printed immediately under this larger illustration shows, by means of a combined photograph

Another Beautiful Store

One of the most elaborate retail stores which has been opened in Chicago in the past few weeks is the A. Schlessinger store at 623 West North avenue. This new place of business occupies practically an entire building and boasts of the greatest number both of talking machine and piano demonstrating booths, record and roll hearing rooms contained in any store on the northwest side of the city. On the first floor are something like eighteen talking machine booths and on the second floor a dozen piano booths. The furnishings and fixtures are very elaborate and up-to-date. The Schlessinger store handles the Victor and Columbia lines of talking machines and records, as well as a complete line of Okeh and Odeon records.

Tie Up With Opera

Now, with the coming on of the opera season in Chicago, retail dealers here have lost no time in calling the attention of the public to the fact that excerpts from all the operas being offered this season can also be had on records. This publicity is instrumental in causing quite a run on classical records in Chicago. Those dealers here who carry lines of records embracing the operas now being given at the Auditorium are getting the lion's share of the business.

Many of the "opera windows" seen throughout Chicago are taking advantage of mechanical attractions, such as for example small reproductions of the interior of a theatre, with the scenery being constantly changed. Many of these little mechanical theatres show the proscenium-arch, orchestra-pit and drop-curtain. The curtain is automatic and each time it rises a new stage set is seen, together with little paper cut-outs representing the various characters seen in operas such as "Lohengrin," "L'Africaine," "Carmen," etc.

Thomas Head in Town

E. D. Hall, president and general manager of the Thomas Mfg. Co., Dayton, O., paid a visit to the Thomas Mfg. Co.'s Chicago office in the Republic Building during the past week, making a survey of the Chicago trade, which he found very satisfactory. From the standpoint of their own activities Mr. Hall stated that the Thomas Mfg. Co. was up and at it and doing everything it could to keep up with orders.

Brunswick Wholesale Stock Low

A. J. Kendrick, general sales manager of the phonograph division of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., gives out the statement this month that the talking machine division is working at top speed in an effort to catch up with the demand for Brunswick machines. The stockroom is practically cleaned out of all models and of the entire big line there are only seven models of which the Brunswick Co. has a reasonable stock.

The trade has been in a more satisfactory condition this year, according to Mr. Kendrick's views, inasmuch as dealers are now doing their December buying early, whereas last year they waited until almost December before doing their buying for the month. In previous years it has been customary for dealers to anticipate their wants months in advance, but owing to unsettled conditions for the past several months dealers in all lines of merchandise have been extremely conservative. Just now, however, matters are much more satisfactory in this respect—a gratifying development.

Jewel Activities

The Jewel Phonoparts Co., of Chicago, has announced three new tone arms, the first of which, Model No. 3, was formally announced to the trade during November. Model No. 4 will go through in December and the third model is scheduled for introduction in January.

Many new and important features are to be found in these new tone arms, one being that for Edison record playing the reproducer turns to face the record in the well-known Edison position. In other words, the reproducer faces the record horizontally when playing Edison re-creations.

Another feature in the construction of this tone arm is that it also permits the reproducer to be thrown back, but in such a position that there is absolutely no danger of its being injured should the lid of the talking machine be let down. These new tone-arms, as well as all others of Jewel make, are produced in eight and one-half, nine and one-half and ten and one-half inch lengths. The reason for this, according to the Jewel Co., is because constant surveys of the trade teach that manufacturers are apt frequently to change their models in order to make them consistent with variations in price standards.

One of the pleasing features of the new No. 4 tone arm is that the base is fashioned in bell shape. When mounted on its base the outer edge of the bell comes down just close enough to the motor board to avoid touching it. This new design completely hides the flange, but at the same time gives plenty of lateral action. The Jewel Co. has not changed its regulation pivot action being convinced of its absolute freedom.

The Jewel No. 5 arm, which will be introduced in January, will be the Jewel De Luxe model. This arm is very scientifically constructed and the weight of the reproducer while playing the record may be changed by simply turning a set-screw. The weight is controlled by simple spring tension. This arm is also adjustable as regards length from seven and a half inches to eleven and a half inches. The length is also controlled by a set-screw. The No. 5 arm, like Nos. 3 and 4, permits the reproducer to be swung horizontally over the face of the record.

Last, and most important of all, is the fact that the new Jewel reproducers permit the use of a fibre needle in playing an Edison record. This in itself, according to the views of A. B. Cornell, sales director of the Jewel Co., marks a new epoch in scientific reproducer construction. Never before, according to Mr. Cornell, has there been offered to the trade a reproducer which will play Edison re-creations in true Edison position with a fibre needle. Heretofore, the fibre needle has been limited, according to Mr. Cornell, to lateral-cut records, whereas to-day Jewel ingenuity enables the playing in a most effective way of hill-and-dale records by said fibre needle.

New Krasco Lubricant

W. E. Lent, vice-president and production manager of the Krasco Mfg. Co., has just brought out a new spring lubricant which he believes will fill a long-felt want and will go a great way toward eliminating spring breakage. According to Mr. Lent, who is said to be one of the best-versed men in talking machine motor production, a large percentage of spring breakage is due entirely to the lubricant in which the springs are packed. The new preparation has been tried successfully in Krasco motors for the past year or more and according to officials of the company is fulfilling all expectations. Its consistency is such that it avoids any impacting and gumming up of springs—an important consideration.

St. Louisian Visits Chicago

A. E. Hoeger, representing the talking machine division of the Shapleigh Hardware Co., St. Louis, was in Chicago recently calling on many talking machine dealers here. Mr. Hoeger was exhibiting samples of the Shapleigh machines, which are known as Harmographs, including a new portable. The Harmograph portable is handsomely put up and is said to contain many patented features in sound chamber, tone modulator and record compartment. The finishes are in dark fumed oak, mahogany and black fabrikoid and are said to be water, sun and dust proof.

Among Department Stores

A trip through the department stores and retail music establishments will give one an excellent idea of the large amount of music business they are doing and the grasp that the Christmas spirit has on the public this year. The Christmas trade started in November and has steadily increased. Practically all the talking machine departments report an increased business over last year by a large margin. In many instances the sales forces of these departments have been doubled in order to take care of this increased demand.

This early stimulation has no doubt been brought about by holiday advertising, window displays appropriate for Christmas trade and the spreading of holly in general. In this way the music trade has created a large holiday demand that has been stimulated early enough for the trade to take care of, so that the bulk of Christmas business would not come the last week before the holidays. Of course, there will always be a few who will wait until the last minute, but the trade has very successfully stimulated the Christmas buying spirit early this year by getting a good start.

Rothschild & Co., who handle all the standard makes of talking machines, have increased their department and hired twenty more salespeople to take care of the business. As a matter of fact, this department has been successful all year, doubling last year’s business. They have advertised continuously all Summer and have done an exceptionally large business.

Through the efforts of W. B. Papineau, manager of the music department of The Fair, several improvements have been made to enhance the department and more space has been secured, thereby giving ample room for displays. This department has also made preparations to take care of the demand that has been stimulated. Of course, along with talking machines there is also a very large demand for records.

T. W. Hindley, manager of the Vocalion Salon of Mandel Bros., reports a large demand for the higher priced console models. He attributes this demand to the period furniture which is now in vogue.

Marshall Field & Co., who handle the Cheney talking machine, are also going in for the higher grade models of the Cheney.

It is predicted that all records will be broken in the sale of talking machines and records for the holiday trade. At least from present

Important Trade Notice

Wallace Institute announces a statement given out for publication that it has filed suit against three different concerns alleging infringement of U. S. patent number 143560 issued November 14, 1922, and owned by the Institute. This patent, the Institute alleges, covers any combination of phonograph record embodying instructions for physical exercises with an indicator or chart illustrating the same.

Death of Columbia Dealer

Wm. A. Kaun, proprietor of the Wm. A. Kaun Music Co., 19 Wisconsin street, Milwaukee, Wis., Columbia dealer, died recently at his home after a long illness. Mr. Kaun was well known in the talking machine trade in the West as he had built up a successful and growing retail establishment. Mr. Kaun was a brother of Hugo Kaun, prominent German composer and musician.

G. W. Hopkins Presides at Meeting

Geo. W. Hopkins, general sales manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., presided over a sales meeting held at the Chicago branch recently at which new merchandising plans and sales helps for dealers were discussed. Mr. Hopkins was delighted to find that the holiday business closed by the Chicago branch was bigger than had been anticipated. The results from the New Process record advertising have been most gratifying, and the dealers are enthusiastic over the value of this campaign.

Announce the Univernier

The Walbert Mfg. Co., of this city, maker of the Geer repeater, has just come out with a new little attachment for radio sets to which it has given the trade name "Univernier." The purpose of this little instrument is to make possible a very fine adjustment for selectivity. This requirement, according to the Walbert Co., is met very nicely by the Univernier, which combines in one single unit the function of an ordinary knob with the means of obtaining most delicate adjustment. The device consists of a large-sized knob of Bakelite composition, with a self-contained mechanism so arranged that each single rotation of the knob moves the condenser plates or rotor balls to which the knob may be connected only one-twelfth of their distance. In other words, the ratio is twelve to one. When the knob is grasped and pressed towards the panel of the instrument to which it is attached a light spring tension permits ordinary coarse adjustment and increases the ratio one to one. An indicator attached to the knob rotates with the shaft and always shows the true position of the instrument. This little piece of mechanism may be slipped over the shaft of any variometer, variable condenser, coupler, potentiometer or rheostat.

Announce New United Motor

Lynn D. Rudolph, president and general manager of the United Mfg. & Distributing Co., has just announced that the United Co. will place a new two-spring motor on the market early in January.

This new United motor will be of the enclosed lubrication type and will be manufactured to fill demands of the trade for small motors such as used in portable and small cabinet talking machines.

The new United motor will be distributed in two types which will be known as United 2-A and United 2-B. The 2-A is particularly adapt-

These new types are very compactly built and reasonably low priced. They will carry all of the features of the regular United line.

Columbia Artists in Chicago

The week of November 26 to December 3 was a gala one for Chicago Columbia dealers, as no less than six exclusive Columbia artists entertained Chicago theatregoers during that week. Al Jolson has been playing to capacity houses at the Apollo in "Bombo"; Ted Lewis has been scoring an emphatic hit in the "Greenwich Village Follies" at the Great Northern; Nora Bayes has been heading at the Garrick in Shubert vaudeville, while Duci de Kerekjarto, famous Hungarian violinist, achieved phenomenal success at the Palace. Frank Westphal and his orchestra entertain nightly at the Rainbo Gardens, and Paul Biese and his new orchestra are featured at the Pantheon Theatre. Dealers made the most of the opportunity.

Dealers Expect Record Holiday Business Despite Keen Competition—Rural Trade Again in Evidence—Changes of the Month

MILWAUKEE, WIS., December 11.—Despite the fact that competition in the sale of talking machines is perhaps the keenest ever known, the volume of business being transacted by dealers in Milwaukee is mounting to a point where most stores already are expressing the belief that they will top the best previous year's business. It might almost be said that the fact that competition is so keen is responsible for this state of affairs, rather than that the condition exists in spite of the competition, for with every salesman working might and main to sell instruments, the largest part of the public that has ever been approached along this line is subject to solicitation.

The active state of retail business is reflected by the rush orders that are now being received by the territorial distributors and jobbers in the Milwaukee market which, as a rule, extends over all of Wisconsin and in addition, the upper peninsula of Michigan. It is true that dealers bought conservatively during the late Summer and Fall for holiday needs, but even so, their orders were far larger than last year and two years ago. With rush orders now coming in a wave, it is easy to see that the needs placed earlier were far too conservative.

Manufacturers' Advertising Helps

Much favorable comment is heard in the local jobber and dealer trade over the unusually effective manner in which manufacturers are supporting the efforts of dealers. While all of the big and long-established concerns have always done notable promotion work to help dealers, it is the appearance of full-page newspaper displays like that announcing the new Columbia record, or that revealing the entire Brunswick line, published a few days ago, which have brought to more general attention the manufacturers' enhanced efforts.

Harry A. Goldsmith, secretary of the Badger Talking Machine Co., Victor distributor, says he cannot help being enthusiastic over the turn which affairs have taken. While Victor business all year has been satisfactory, the strong revival of demand in the past three to six weeks has served to overthrow the most hopeful expectations in regard to holiday business. The big problem now is to get Victrolas and Victor records into the hands of dealers to make prompt Christmas deliveries possible.

The Brunswick, to use the vernacular, is "going forward like a house afire," and the Milwaukee branch of the Brunswick-Balke-Coller Co. is one of the busiest places imaginable. Full-page advertisements in colors, published in Milwaukee for the last two Sundays, have helped unquestionably to make Brunswick dealer business even more active than before, for there has been without doubt a most favorable reaction from the appeal contained in these broadsides which present the entire Brunswick line in a striking way and pound Brunswick prestige even through the most unimaginative mind.

Rural Trade Again a Factor

S. R. Christopherson, sales manager of the Sonora department of the Yahr & Lange Drug Co., said that, while city dealers are establishing new volume records for business this Fall and Winter, it is the greatly improved demand from the smaller cities and villages of Wisconsin and Upper Michigan that stands out as the most conspicuous feature of business. The rural communities have been slow buyers for more than two years, but, as expressed in the requisitions for new stock being made by small-town dealers, the farmer is once more a prominent factor. Mr. Christopherson, like President Fred E. Yahr, of the company, is pardonably proud of many fine letters which are being received from new and old dealers, complimenting the house upon the splendid support it is giving the men in the field through special co-operative methods recently developed.

Death of Wm. A. Kaun Causes Regret

While it is the new type of Columbia record that is a distinct feature in this territory at present, the Columbia Grafonola is also experiencing a decided increase in business as the holidays come nearer. Milwaukee dealers in the Columbia report the demand much in excess of the same time last year and the impetus is becoming stronger daily.

Genuine sorrow was occasioned in the general music trade and among Columbia dealers by the death, on November 27, of William A. Kaun, head of the Wm. A. Kaun Music Co., 90 Wisconsin street, one of the oldest and best-known Columbia dealers in the city. Mr. Kaun was only forty-five years old and prominent in the artistic music circle as well as in the music trade of this city.

New Department Opened

A large talking machine department is a feature of the new store building opened November 24 by Branta & Rechlicz, furniture and music, at 581-585 Lincoln avenue. This is a new departure for this concern. The management is in charge of W. L. Przbylski, formerly with the Lincoln Avenue Music Store, and one of the best informed talking machine salesmen on the South Side.

Fine New Victor Department

One of the finest Victor departments in any Milwaukee music store is that in the new branch house of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., at 421 Broadway. The Wurlitzer Co. recently purchased a four-story building, remodeled it completely and early in November moved from Addresses Wisconsin Teachers

Frances E. Clark, formerly in charge of music in the Milwaukee public schools, and now director of the educational department of the Victor Talking Machine Co., made her annual impressive visit "back home" during the mass convention of the Wisconsin Teachers' Association at the Milwaukee Auditorium recently. Mrs. Clark is in demand by Badger teachers every year at their meeting, and her talks before the music section are hailed as one of the most interesting and beneficial features of the entire convention. This year the music section also was favored by a talk on "Greater Values from the Phonograph," by Mrs. Nellie I. Sharpe, of the Columbia Graphophone Co., New York.

Benson Orchestra Scores a Hit

The demand for popular Victor records was stimulated to a very fine degree by the recent appearance of the Benson Orchestra of Chicago, Roy Barge, director, for a week's engagement at the Milwaukee Athletic Club. So successful was the engagement that the Club has contracted for a return visit during the week of December 19-24.

Figures issued recently by the Department of Commerce at Washington giving Wisconsin seventh rank in the production of talking machines and records were received with great interest. The report gives a total of nine established companies in Wisconsin, illustrating the formidable array which this industry presents in the Badger State.

Death of Rudolph Olschewski

Rudolph Olschewski, superintendent of the Badger Cabinet Co., at Plymouth, Wis., died November 22 of tumor of the brain. He was fifty-two years of age and prior to going to Plymouth was associated in an executive capacity with the production department of the Wisconsin Cabinet & Panel Co., of New London, Wis., one of the largest woodworking plants of the Thomas A. Edison industries.

Miss Wolff Earns Plaudits

Miss Julia Wolff, manager of the talking machine department of Edmund Gram, Inc., is hearing well-earned plaudits over the splendid record made by her staff this year in merchandising the Cheney, Vocalion and Brunswick. Business in records has been especially active and sales so far in 1922 have exceeded those of any complete year on record.

The Flanner-Hafsoos Music House, specializing in the sale of the New Edison in its talking machine division, is now generally accepted as the largest "consumer" of this line among Milwaukee retail music stores. The Edison department has again undergone enlargement to accommodate more display stock and provide more adequate demonstration facilities.

Gentlemen:--

We have been continuously advertising in THE TALKING MACHINE WORLD, we believe, for at least eight, and possibly nine years. While we have given advertising to other publications it has only resulted in convincing us that our advertising in THE TALKING MACHINE WORLD has always been placed in the best publication. So, therefore, for a long time past THE TALKING MACHINE WORLD has received practically our entire advertising appropriation.

As a direct result of our advertising in your columns we have received orders from all over this country, and also from remote parts of the world, which we know directly resulted from our advertising in THE WORLD. We know this because the orders were sent with "WORLD" clippings attached.

Our cabinets have been introduced to the world through "WORLD" advertising. When any magazine or trade paper brings orders and inquiries from South America, the Islands of the Pacific, Southern and Eastern Asia, as well as Australia and New Zealand, it must truly be a world-wide trade journal.

Yours very truly,

UNUSUAL DISPLAY BOOSTS SALES

Giant Reproduction of Sheet Music Aids Clark & Jones Piano Co. to Dispose of Many Records of the Number Featured

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., December 7.—A sheet of music ten or twelve feet high behind a plate-glass window is so unusual and so easy to read that scarcely anyone who passes will fail to stop and read it. This is the novel idea employed by the Clark & Jones Piano Co., of this city, to run the sales of a single record up to more than 500 a week. The display has been patented by them. Each year they use it only once, featuring a popular number, reaping the benefit of this unique display through increased sales.

A talking machine, which does not show in the accompanying picture, is always used in connection with the giant sheet of music. Not only does the display attract attention because of its unusualness, but it also affords an easy, effective aid to the observant to learn the words of the song being advertised. All through any day the window was so arranged people were seen to stop, take out their note books and

An Original and Effective Window pencils and copy down the words to the song, which was "Three o'Clock in the Morning" this year. Most of those who did not copy the words stood about and hummed them along with John McCormack, Victor artist, whose record of this number is featured and was played constantly for the benefit of passers-by.

According to Robert P. McDavid, manager of the talking machine department of the Clark & Jones Piano Co., several large publishing houses of sheet music have opened negotiations with them regarding the purchasing of the national rights on their patents to this display.

T. F. CLARK ENTERS FIELD

PORT HENRY, N. Y., December 8.—J. T. Breadner, a member of the Phonograph Supply & Repair Shop, this city, has disposed of his share in the business to T. F. Clark, who is now personally managing the business. It is planned to greatly increase the stock and to enlarge the repair department. Springs and repair parts for all makes of talking machines are carried in stock and while the business is comparatively new steady growth has been enjoyed.

The Trade in PHILADELPHIA and LOCALITY

PHILADELPHIA, PA., December 6.—The Quaker City certainly is preparing to "make it a musical Christmas" according to the reports of many of the talking machine dealers of Philadelphia, who assert that the anticipated holiday rush is now well under way and that judging from present indications the volume of their business during the next few weeks will undoubtedly break all previous records.

While these golden expectations are doing a great deal to spread the real Yuletide spirit among the dealers themselves, nevertheless they are proceeding under a distinct handicap since the prevailing shortage of stock becomes more and more acute each week. Consequently most of the distributors and dealers are taking every possible means and opportunity to secure the talking machines they need and it is no longer an unusual sight to see a caravan of auto trucks draw up to the stores of local distributors after having made long trips of possibly several hundred miles in order to obtain machines direct from the factories.

Christmas Buying Evident

"Our business is fine," said George Witney, manager for C. J. Heppe & Son, in discussing prevailing conditions, "and it is remarkable how many people are buying, or planning to buy, a talking machine for Christmas. The only thing that is marring our satisfaction is the scarcity of machines as we are selling them as fast as we can get them and, moreover, we are having great difficulty in filling the orders for Victrolas that we are receiving daily and almost hourly from our dealers."

New Edison Re-creation Release Plan

A distinct innovation in the policy of the Girard Phonograph Co., distributors for the New Edison phonographs and re-creations, in regards to the sale of the Edison records in this territory, was announced to-day by Arthur Rhinow, one of the officials of the Girard Phonograph Co.

"In the future, in fact, from this date on, we intend to abolish the practice of having a special sales date for the Edison re-creations," said Mr. Rhinow, in telling of this radical departure in the sale of phonograph records that has been inaugurated by the Girard Phonograph Co. "This simply means that our dealers will be allowed to put the Edison re-creations on sale as soon as they are received at the stores of our different dealers throughout this territory. In the past it was always our practice to instruct our dealers to wait until a certain date each month before they could place on sale the new Edison re-creations that had been distributed by us as soon as they were issued from the factory. Consequently in the future our dealers will be allowed to put the new re-creations on sale just as soon as they receive them from us instead of being obliged to wait a week or more until the twentieth day of that month, on which date we have been accustomed to release them.

"Under this new arrangement our dealers will be able to put three or four new re-creations before their customers every week at least instead of having to place twelve new numbers before their patrons only once a month. In this way we believe that the dealers will give their customers an incentive to visit their stores more often—once a week, probably—to hear the latest records."

Featuring New Columbia Records

Miller & Kades, the progressive Columbia dealers of Harrisburg, Pa., are boosting Columbia new process records to the sky and cashing in. They have flags, three feet by five feet, flying from all the windows, in red and white, bearing the inscription: "New Process Columbia Records on Sale Here." The record sales have been greatly stimulated in this way.

Merrill Winner a Proud Daddy

Merrill Winner, of Winner Bros., the well-known Columbia dealers of Williamsport, Pa., is receiving congratulations from his many friends in the trade as he recently became the proud father of a nine-pound baby girl.

Mr. Robbins, head of the Robbins Music Co., a prominent Columbia dealer of Trenton, N. J., was a visitor at the Philadelphia branch of the Columbia Co. recently.

W. B. Hill, of Pottsville, Pa., and N. M. Stokes, of Milford, Del., both well-known Columbia dealers, also visited the offices of the local Columbia branch recently.

Big Demand for Brunswicks

O. F. Jester, manager of the local branch of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., at 1002 Arch street, returned from a trip to Allentown, Easton, Bangor and Bethlehem with the statement that the demands for machines made by the Brunswick dealers in these cities had almost overwhelmed him. He told the dealers that he was making every possible effort to obtain the desired Brunswick machines but that it was impossible to make any immediate deliveries as carloads of Brunswick phonographs had been on the road to this city for several months but were being held up by freight embargoes.

Mr. Jester asserts that the $150 York model of the Brunswick machine was so far oversold that the factory can only put out a small percentage of the orders for this model before Christmas.

H. Royer Smith Takes on the Edison

H. Royer Smith, the progressive talking machine dealer located at Tenth and Walnut streets, who has handled the Victor machines exclusively up to the present time, is one of the Philadelphia dealers who have taken over the New Edison line also. Mr. Smith, who is secretary of the Victor Dealers' Association, is widely known throughout the trade in this vicinity.

Sales Limited Only by Supplies

F. B. Reinecke, manager and secretary of Louis Buehn Co., Victor distributor, reports that the volume of their business is being limited solely by the number of machines obtainable for immediate delivery.

Penn Co. Breaking Records

T. W. Barnhill, manager of the Penn Phonograph Co., declares that according to present indications the business transacted by this widely known Victor distributing house during this month probably will break all records for the holiday season in past years.

Planning Smoker for Dealers

Robert McCarthy, manager of Gimbel's phonograph department, has been appointed as chairman of the committee to arrange for a smoker for the Philadelphia Victor Dealers' Association, to be held the latter part of this month, probably at the Manufacturers' Club. The members of this committee include George Witney, of Heppe's, and H. Royer Smith.

Rogers Reports Vocalion Progress

Excellent business is reported by B. H. Rogers, head of the Lincoln Business Bureau, 1011 Race street. Mr. Rogers says that the demand for Vocalion records so far exceeds the available supply that he is obliged to distribute them on the most equitable basis possible. The new list of Vocalion records contains a number of popular hits that are helping to increase the record sales of many dealers throughout this territory.

Opens Many New Accounts

Everybody's Talking Machine Co., 810 Arch street, wholesaler of talking machine parts, reports the continuance of good business and the opening of a number of new accounts. The new catalog has been mailed to the trade. Many commendatory letters are being received at headquarters on this piece of literature. This covers the complete lines of repair materials for talking machines and accessories which this firm handles. The catalog has attracted many favorable comments from members of the trade.

Weymann Reports General Activity

H. W. Weymann, of H. A. Weymann & Son, Inc., reports good business in all departments, which includes Victor merchandise, Q R S music rolls and Weymann Keystone State musical instruments. November business was exceptionally good and it is expected that December business will equal, if not surpass, December, 1921.

Start Comprehensive Sales Campaign

The Philadelphia Badge Co., of this city, manufacturer of the well-known round record cleaners bearing the dealer's imprint and advertisement of the line carried, has entered into a comprehensive sales campaign. Although the record brush business began as a small part of the general output it has already reached large proportions and these brushes are being used all over the country by retailers as advertising novelties. A somewhat more expensive brush has also been made, using bristles instead of cloth, which, judging from the demand, will be a big favorite.

Louis Buehn Reviews Situation

Louis Buehn, president of the Louis Buehn Co., Victor wholesaler, of this city, reported great activity among Victor retailers throughout the territory and the present shortage of Victor merchandise, Mr. Buehn pointed out, was a distinct tribute to the supremacy of Victor products. The demand for Victrolas in the Quaker City has been exceptional despite several mark-down sales being offered in the city by dealers in other lines. The great demand manifested this Fall is better visualized when it is remembered that practically every distributor had accumulated large stocks during the Summer months in preparation for it. The current supply as well as accumulated stocks are practically exhausted. Mr. Buehn called attention to the wide variety of Victrola models available this Fall and how the retailer was able to supply his trade with portables, table models, a wide range of uprights as well as both curved and flat top horizontal types—every one a Victor product and worthy of the famous trade-mark. Visit Talking Machine Co.

Among recent visitors at the headquarters of the Talking Machine Co., Victor distributors, was Howard I. James, a Victor retailer of Lebanon, Pa. Mr. James is an ardent Victor enthusiast and a hustler. Accordingly, he finds business very good. He purchased a period model Victrola, Adam No. 1, for which he sent a special truck to this city. This model will be displayed attractively in his window for the holiday season.

A. J. Heath in Ill Health

Ill health has unfortunately kept A. J. Heath from undertaking his new duties with the General Radio Corp., of this city, as per the announcement emanating from this well-known talking machine and radio distributing house a few weeks ago. Mr. Heath's doctor has ordered him to discontinue all activities until in better health. Walter L. Eckhardt, president of the company, states: "It is very unfortunate that Mr. Heath's health prevents him from entering actively into the work at this time, but it is probably only deferred for a short period until he is in better health."

NEW GENNETT RECORD CATALOG

New Volume Listing All Records Up to January 1, 1923, Just Issued—Carefully Classified and Interestingly Arranged

The Starr Piano Co. has just issued the new 1923 catalog of Gennett records listing all records issued up to January 1. The catalog is a most ambitious work, replete with portraits of prominent recording artists and so classified as to simplify the finding of any particular recorded selection. Special sections of the catalog are given over to the listing of special music and the Gennett foreign records, which represent a most substantial assortment of operatic and other numbers.

The center pages of the catalog are devoted to the listing of the Green Label Gennett records by such artists as Henry Moeller, Edith Gaile, Scipione Guidi, Joseph Holmann and Helen Clark, and interest is added to the pages through the presentation of the portraits of the several artists in connection with the numbers they have recorded.

For the convenience of the machine owner a special section is set aside for Gennett advance records by well-known dance orchestras. The entire volume makes an impressive showing and gives some idea of the steady growth of the Gennett catalog.

DEATH OF HARRY A. VOLZ

Brother-in-law of Jerome C. Harris Passes Away Recently

Jerome C. Harris, secretary of C. Bruno & Son, Inc., New York, was recently called upon to attend the funeral of his brother-in-law, Harry A. Volz, who passed away on November 4 at the home of Mr. Harris' mother. Mr. Harris is particularly grieved at his loss, inasmuch as he and Mr. Volz were almost inseparable companions.

USES BLOTTERS TO ADVANTAGE

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., December 5.—The Remick Song and Gift Shop, of this city, Columbia dealer, recently used a blotter in a unique way and incidentally featured the name of a popular selection effectively. The blotter, which was printed in three colors, was artistically designed and had for a caption, "Don't Bring Me Kewpies When It's Records That I Need." Besides being a clever piece of publicity, the blotter carried a monthly calendar page which added to its utility value. Specific mention was made of the Columbia New Process records and 8,000 of these blotters were mailed to the names on the store's lists. They created a most favorable impression among those who received them.

PUBLICITY PRODUCES RESULTS

GASTONIA, N. C., December 5.—Geo. L. Rawlings, secretary of the Winget Jewelry Co., of this city, progressive Columbia dealer, is enthusiastic regarding the results received from the campaign sponsored by the Columbia Co. in behalf of New Process records. The direct results of the campaign are very satisfactory and in addition to selling a large number of these records to his old clients, Mr. Rawlings has been successful in adding many new customers to his lists.

MME. SCHUMANN-HEINK RECOVERING

Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, famous Victor artist, is recovering from bronchial pneumonia at her home in Garden City, L. I. Announcement has been made by her managers, Haensel & Jones, of 33 West Forty-second street, New York, that a concert which she was to have given in Fort Wayne, Ind., and other engagements to sing in Springfield, Grand Rapids and Cleveland, have been canceled.

COLUMBUS

*Morehouse-Martens Co. Opens
Foreign Offices—Victor Sales School Here—Enjoy Fine Trade*

COLUMBUS, O., December 6.—Announcing the establishment of foreign offices in London, Paris, Barcelona, Chemnitz, Berlin, Milan, Yokohama and Shanghai, the Morehouse-Martens Co., one of the leading department stores and talking machine dealers not only in Columbus, but in Central Ohio, conducted an International Merchandise Exhibit during the early part of November.

An invitation was extended to many clubs, including the Cosmopolitan Club of the Ohio State University, to tour the store in a body and observe the quaint novelties. Decorations, featuring flags and emblems of the countries whose merchandise was represented, were used.

In the music department of this firm the music of six different countries was featured. Young women dressed in the attire characteristic of a particular nationality played the music of that country on a Victrola. These numbers were either the national anthems or popular folk songs.

The Victor business of the Z. L. White Co. has been very good, according to F. J. Connor, manager of that department. However, Mr. Connor does not feel the same way about the record business. "The volume in record sales is not yet what it should be, but we hope to make it as good as our machine business before this year is out," he said.

Miss Marie Smith, of the record department of the Z. L. White Co., has been unusually successful in selling the health records. When customers come into the store she not only calls their attention to this set of records, but takes them into the booth and demonstrates the exercises before them.

Due to the increase in business, Mr. Connor has added Miss Cleo Kerns to his force in the department. Miss Kerns was connected for some time with another talking machine house and Mr. Connor feels that her experience in this line will be helpful.

A large demand for the York model of the Brunswick machines is reported by the F. G. & A. Howald Furniture Co., Brunswick dealers. This is a $150 machine and is so well liked by the patrons of this firm that it has actually been oversold. It is, of course, the popular console type that has recently been put on the market. The more expensive machines, ranging in price from $300 to $1,000, are also selling well in this store.

Many of the Victor dealers responded to the invitation to attend the salesmanship school conducted by F. A. Delano, of the Victor Talking Machine Co. The classes were conducted at the Hotel Deshler and came to a close on Thursday evening, November 23. Dealers as well as salespeople were in attendance. Of those interviewed, everyone stated that he was greatly benefited by this school. The Perry B. Whitsit Co., wholesaler of Victrolas and Victor records, under whose auspices the school was held in this city, gave a banquet at the Hotel Deshler on Thursday evening. This dinner was one of the most delightful events that has ever taken place here. Mr. Delano and the visiting dealers were the guests of the Perry B. Whitsit Co. on this occasion.

When the Eight Famous Victor Artists recently appeared in Newark, O., many of their ardent admirers were forced to forego the pleasure of hearing them on account of other affairs. On account of this fact the Auditorium management has announced that this popular organization has been secured for a return engagement and they will appear at the Auditorium Theatre soon. It was also announced that the program, which will be given out later, will be entirely new.

Mrs. Esther Reynolds Beaver, educational director of the Perry B. Whitsit Co., has been traveling considerably since her return from California late this Summer. In the past week she visited schools in Circleville, O., and neighboring towns where she conducted music appreciation classes. These classes are part of the program to stimulate interest in music.

Visitors at the Perry B. Whitsit Co. recently included G. M. Rice, Wilmington, O.; O. P. Sell, Delaware; O. A. Rider, Nelsonville; L. Phillips, Mt. Gilead; W. W. Rock, Urbana, and Carl F. Seitz, Circleville, O.

SALES PLAN PROVES SUCCESS

Knickerbocker T. M. Co. Awakens Interest in Unique Idea for Developing Record Sales—Victor Dealers Using Plan to Excellent Advantage—Other Fine Dealer Helps

The plan for increasing sales of Victor records, recently announced by Abram Davega, president of the Knickerbocker Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler, New York, is being put into effect by a number of Victor dealers with appreciable results. This plan, which was announced in detail in the last issue of The World, provides for the grouping of records for an appropriate evening's entertainment.

At the last meeting of the Knickerbocker dealers there was distributed, in program form, "An Evening at Vaudeville," in which were listed ten carefully selected Victor recordings for a program of this character. The programs are printed in quantities with space for the dealer's imprint. Since then there has been printed a similar program entitled "An Evening at the Concert." There are also prepared, and in the course of preparation, other groupings such as Christmas, New Year's, Easter, An Evening in Ireland, and other countries, etc. It is planned to ultimately have fifty-two programs prepared, a different program for each week in the year. Dealers are finding that this plan is showing customers a novel way to get increased pleasure from their Victrolas and consequently having its effect in the increased sales of records. There has been prepared for dealers using this plan an attractive window strip with the request to "Come Inside and Be Shown the Modern Way to Play Your Victrola. More Pleasure and Entertainment."

An instruction sheet for Victrola owners, enabling them to properly classify their records, has also been printed. This card contains twenty columns under a corresponding number of classifications, such as dance, novelty, children's records, concert, vocal, sacred, humorous, men's, operatic, violin, etc. The inability of some Victrola owners to provide records for all these classifications is also expected to have the desired effect of increased record purchases. The well-known adage that "Variety is the spice of life" is particularly appropriate in record selections and a knowledge of the general catalog proves that the Victrola brings into the home practically every popular form of entertainment from vaudeville to grand opera.

Another window strip which is to be found in a large number of Victor dealers' windows and which was prepared by the Knickerbocker Talking Machine Co., calls attention to the "Laughing Specialty," Victor record No. 62576.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Landay, of Landay Bros., Inc., have given up their residence in Edgemere, Long Island, and now reside on Riverside Drive, New York City.

Witzmann-Stuber, Inc., have opened a new music store at 99 North Second street, Memphis, Tenn. Talking machines and musical instruments are featured.

COLUMBUS Sends Its Greetings

Victor ideals and aims have evidenced their supremacy during the past twelve months emphatically and convincingly.

We deeply appreciate the whole-hearted co-operation extended to us by the Victor retailers in 1922, and it is our earnest wish that 1923 will prove a year of prosperity, joy and contentment.

A special record has been made at the laboratories of the Starr Piano Co., Richmond, Ind., for the use of Lane and Harper, vaudeville artists, in their telephone act. Lane and Harper are at present making the Keith circuit and their attractive skit, in which the record plays an important part, is being well received. The

OVERCOMES UNUSUAL OBSTACLES

Modernola Co. Completes Successful Year Despite Previous Handicaps—Those Responsible for the Work—Optimistic Outlook

JOHNSTOWN, PA., December 7.—The year just closing has been a successful one in every way for the Modernola Co., of this city. A great deal of credit is due this house for the manner in which it overcame the unusual misfortunes which befell it in the past and successfully completed a year which has been a difficult one for the trade in general.

Organized about five years ago this company set out to manufacture "something different" in the line of phonographs for which it adopted the name Modernola. The warm reception which this new line received made imperative the building of a larger factory to fill the orders. It is remembered that four months after the occupation of the new plant it was burned to the ground and the company was temporarily put out of business. Stunned by the disaster, but not discouraged, it rebuilt the factory, this reconstruction period occupying practically the balance of 1921. This was almost equivalent to starting business all over again at the beginning of the present year. At this time also the management of the company was materially changed and an aggressive campaign entered into. A. Ohlson became general manager and Edward E. Hohmann, sales manager.

In a recent interview with The World Mr. Hohmann said: "The obstacles to be surmounted seemed almost impossible, but we finally got things going and are completing a very successful year. I also suggested to the company the addition of a portable model to the line which was placed on the market during the early part of the year. This portable model also opened the way for sales of the larger machine. It is a mistaken theory that the sales of the portable are confined to Summer months. The sale of our portable model for the month of November was the largest in the history of the company and it is expected that December will surpass the November record.

"Other officers of the company to whom credit is due for the success of the organization are: President F. B. Kinzey, of the Thomas-Kinzey Lumber Co.; Vice-president C. B. Thomas, of the Thomas Department Store; Secretary-treasurer D. M. S. McFeaters, treasurer of the Johnstown Trust Co.

"We look forward to 1923 as a year that will mark still another step forward in the history of this company."

ACHIEVES SUCCESS AS SOLOIST

Miss Jane Neilson Winning Considerable Popularity—Has Appeared as Soloist With Prominent Organizations in Important Concerts

LANCASTER, PA., December 5.—Miss Jane Neilson, of this city, well-known soprano, has appeared at a number of important concerts this year and invariably has won the enthusiastic praise of newspaper critics. She has been a soloist with Conway's Band, the Philadelphia Orchestra, the Fairmount Park Orchestra and has also appeared at the Hotel Ambassador, Atlantic City, N. J.

Miss Jane Neilson

Miss Neilson's fame and prestige have traveled outside of the State limits and there is every indication that next season she will find it difficult to take care of her many engagements. Miss Neilson possesses a voice of exceptional clarity and sweetness and it has been suggested that she make test records at the earliest possible moment, as it is generally believed that these records will prove very satisfactory.

MODEL HOUSE SELLS GRAFONOLAS

Schwartz Bros. Use Timely Publicity—Sell-by-Truck Plan Proves Success

NORWICH, CONN., December 6.—Schwartz Bros., of this city, Columbia dealers, who recently opened one of the most handsome stores in New England, had a model house built on a truck chassis and used this to display and sell Columbia Grafonolas to prospects in outlying districts. This idea was conceived by L. H. Webber, manager of the Grafonola department, and it is proving a signal success. Four men accompanied the model house throughout the suburban towns and supplied the Grafonola message to those who were unable to visit the Schwartz warerooms.

The Schwartz Bros. Truck Operating

The capacity of this model house is six Grafonolas with an adequate supply of Columbia records. The model house has not only produced sales, but has caused considerable comment all along the road, representing a splendid adaptation of the sell-by-truck plan.

The music business located for the past several years on State street, Meriden, Conn., and known as the Pathé Studio, is now located in the new Central Building.

Player-Tone T. M. Co. Closing Splendid Business—Consoles Prove Popular With Trade

PITTSBURGH, PA., December 6.—I. Goldsmith, president of the Player-Tone Talking Machine Co., of this city, states that business since October 1 has shown a tremendous increase and that the factories turning out Player-Tone products are working to capacity to take care of the requirements of the dealers. Mr. Goldsmith is receiving carload orders from all parts of the country and judging from all indications the dealers are moving this stock as fast as it is received.

In a chat with The World Mr. Goldsmith stated that a noticeable feature of this activity was the demand for consoles, and the several new models introduced by the Player-Tone Talking Machine Co. this season have been given a cordial reception by the trade. For 1923 Mr. Goldsmith has important plans under way whereby new models will be added to the Player-Tone line and an intensive sales campaign will be inaugurated in behalf of the entire Player-Tone line.

HOLIDAY WINDOW ATTRACTS NOTICE

Gulick-McFarland Co., of Burlington, Ia., Brings Music to the Fore in Attractively Conceived Holiday Window

BURLINGTON, IA., December 7.—A window display which fairly breathes the holiday spirit and which is attracting considerable attention in this city is that of the Gulick-McFarland Co., prepared by Leland G. Selzer, manager of the music department. The concern handles a complete line of talking machines and other musical instruments and these were featured in an excellent window display, a description of which follows:

A solid background of cotton was the basis, then there was a fireplace in one corner (made to look like white brick), with red light and logs to give the effect of fire. To the right was placed a decorated Xmas tree, next to this a player-piano. Around the tree were records and toys and other small gifts. To the left of the fireplace was placed a large Brunswick with a dummy of Santa Claus standing beside it, with his hands resting on it just as he had delivered it.

In the front corner of the window was placed an apparatus of Mr. Selzer's own invention. A large circular wheel was covered at different places with differently colored tissue paper. Fastened to this was a baby buggy wheel and to it a sewing machine motor. Behind this was a light with a tin reflector. When evening comes lights are turned on, the motor starts and a dozen different colors, changing all the time, is the result. The display has been in three days and so far has resulted in the sale of two Brunswicks.

The firm will move into a new building in February and will equip the music department with the latest improvements. A wonderful Brunswick business is being enjoyed and the sales volume is growing satisfactorily.

LOCAL DEALERS HOLD MEETING

Leo Feist Day Observed at Meeting of Talking Machine Men, Inc.—Dr. Miller Reese Hutchinson Makes Interesting Address—Hugo S. Radt Gives Timely Talk on Banking—Other Practical Subjects Discussed

The December meeting of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., held at the Café Boulevard on Wednesday, December 6, was one of the most interesting meetings held recently, although, owing to the fact that December is the busiest month of the year, many of the dealers found it impossible to attend. Several interesting addresses were on the program and the dealers present thoroughly appreciated the practical value of the meeting.

Irwin Kurtz, president of the association, made several preliminary announcements, one of them being to the effect that it was practically certain that the Board of Education of the City of New York would adopt the plan sponsored by Mr. Kurtz and the Talking Machine Men, Inc., whereby the local talking machine dealers would have an opportunity to co-operate with the different schools through the medium of music memory tests. The Talking Machine Men, Inc., has a number of important and original plans to introduce in connection with this idea which will make it an invaluable aid in the development of record business.

Mr. Kurtz read an interesting letter from Geo. W. Hopkins, general sales manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., pointing out that the week of December 3 to 9 was being observed as American Education Week, and emphasizing the tremendous possibilities that are awaiting progressive dealers who appreciate and understand the unlimited scope of the educational records that are in the catalogs. Mr. Kurtz also read a telegram of good wishes from Otto Heineman, president of the General Phonograph Corp., New York, who expressed keen regret at his inability to be present at the meeting.

The December meeting, from a musical angle, was designated as "Leo Feist" day and representatives from this well-known publishing house were present to entertain the members and to feature the latest Feist hits. Theodore Morse, professional manager of Leo Feist, Inc., was given an enthusiastic reception by the dealers, and in a brief talk pointed out the splendid co-operation and help that his organization is extending to the talking machine dealers. Mr. Morse introduced Messrs. Miller and Steiner, who favored the audience with three of the latest Feist hits, "When the Leaves Come Tumbling Down," "I'm Mighty Sweet on My Sweet Sweetie" and "Toot, Toot, Tootsie."

Abram Davega, president of the Knickerbocker Talking Machine Co., New York, Victor wholesaler, advised the dealers that timely and interesting literature had been prepared to carry out the idea sponsored by his company under the caption, "The Theatre in the Home." This plan provides for the merchandising of Victrolas and Victor records along decidedly original lines.

It had been planned to present at this meeting the new thirty-minute record invented by the Hon. Noel Pemberton Billing, well-known inventor from Great Britain, who sailed for home last week. Mr. Billing, before sailing, made arrangements with Dr. Miller Reese Hutchinson, prominent New York inventor, whereby he would represent Mr. Billing's interests in this country, and it had been planned to demonstrate these new records at Wednesday's meeting. However, through a slip-up in the arrangements, the records did not appear, but Dr. Hutchinson favored the dealers with a brief description of the technical phases of this new record, which is named the "World," and stated that he would be present at the meeting in January to demonstrate the record.

Through the courtesy of Byron R. Forster, president of the Brilliantone Steel Needle Co., the members of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., and their guests were favored with a practical and informative address by Hugo S. Radt, assistant cashier of the Capital National Bank. Mr. Radt, who was formerly identified with the talking machine industry for six years, is also well known in banking circles and he was, therefore, able to give the dealers some valuable pointers as to the desirability of establishing personal and close relations with the banks. Mr. Radt stated that in making loans and in conducting the banking business generally, bankers were guided by three cardinal requisites: character, ability and capital, and he then proceeded to give details as to the importance of these qualifications.

ANNOUNCES IMPORTANT COLUMBIA CHANGES IN LONDON

President and General Manager H. L. Willson, Who Has Just Returned From London, Tells of Sale of the Stock Interests of the English Company to Prominent Financial House

H. L. Willson, president and general manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., who arrived in New York Saturday, November 25, on the S.S. "Mauretania," after a three weeks' stay abroad, announced upon his return that the company had disposed of its stock interests in the Columbia Graphophone Co., Ltd., manufacturing and marketing Columbia products in Great Britain. The purchaser of the Columbia Co.'s stock interest was the Constructive Finance Co., Ltd., of London, one of the most powerful and influential concerns in Great Britain, which is backed by a prominent group of English financiers and industrial managers. The disposition of the stock interests carries with it a perpetual working agreement highly satisfactory to the American company.

The new owners are planning to continue the Columbia business as heretofore under the name of the Columbia Graphophone Co., Ltd., and Louis Sterling will continue with the new organization, occupying the post of managing director. Sir George Croydon-Marks will continue as chairman of the board of directors, the same post that he held in the past.

The new owners of the Columbia Graphophone Co., Ltd., will institute important plans for the development and expansion of the company, thereby continuing to give Columbia products in Great Britain the support to which they are entitled. One of the interesting features of the working agreement between the two companies is the consummation of arrangements whereby additional strength will be given to the foreign language repertoires of the Columbia Co. in this country.

Upon his return to New York Mr. Willson was congratulated by the Columbia directorate on the consummation of this deal, which is one of the most important transactions announced in talking machine circles this year. Mr. Willson's accomplishment is all the more remarkable in view of the fact that he was away from his desk only twenty days, having sailed for Great Britain on the "Olympic" on November 4 and returning November 24.

A. C. VALEUR'S NEW ACTIVITIES

Secretary-Treasurer of Sonora Phonograph Co. Now Associated With Canadian Company—Well Known and Popular in the Trade

It was announced this week at the headquarters of the Sonora Phonograph Co., New York, that A. C. Valeur, director and secretary-treasurer of the Sonora Phonograph Co., Inc., had made arrangements to sever his connections with the parent company and transfer his activities to the Sonora Phonograph, Ltd., of Toronto, the Canadian distributor of Sonora products. Mr. Valeur helped organize the Canadian company and is its present secretary and treasurer, assuming on January 1 the additional duties and responsibilities of managing director.

Mr. Valeur visited Toronto during the recent fair and was so impressed with the future prospects of Canada and so pleased with the general character of the Canadian trade, as a whole, that he arranged for his permanent residence in Canada. Mr. Valeur has had a wide experience in the phonograph industry, principally in the managerial end, and leaves for his new field of endeavor with the best wishes of his many friends.

FINE HOLIDAY TRADE EXPECTED IN BROOKLYN

Drop in Business Due to Curtailed Advertising and Sales Campaigns Causes Resumption of These Activities—Dealers Ordering Heavily in Anticipation of Holiday Rush—Many New Stores Opened—Important Changes in the Trade—Happenings of General Interest

Talking machine dealers in Brooklyn and Long Island report that the month of November and the first week in December showed a slight gain over the same period last year. This, however, has been unsatisfactory, as a larger total business was expected and for some unaccountable reason retail buying, although having a good start in the first week of November, fell off considerably. Dealers who are not enjoying an increased business can explain this to some extent by the fact that their sales campaigns were curtailed immediately at the beginning of the month of November, when on the contrary they should have been increased. During the months of September and October these sales drives were on in full swing and showed excellent results in greatly increased sales. However, most dealers have realized that an intensive effort should be made and kept up and in consequence every live dealer has again taken up intensive sales work with the result that the first week in December began to show a decided spurt in sales in both machines and records. This policy should bring about a large volume of holiday sales.

Wholesalers who cater to this territory report that dealers have been buying large quantities of machines and records in anticipation of the holiday rush. Most of the large dealer demands they have been able to supply, but there is an acute shortage of certain types or models which they claim they will be unable to fill in time to deliver to the dealer during Christmas week. Everybody connected with the wholesale distribution of talking machines is keenly interested in dealers' activities at this time and they are making every effort to impress on dealers the absolute necessity of keeping up intensive sales drives in order to keep business up to par.

The Price-cutting Evil

Unfortunately there is still a wave of price-cutting going on in this section, but it is practiced by two or three local stores only and these same stores are being sharply criticized for their actions. No doubt this offering of standard make machines at cut prices has materially affected the business done by the legitimate dealer who is trying to sell his merchandise at the regular list price. This entirely unnecessary method of doing business, especially at this time of the year, must be frowned on as it is being done without any excuse whatsoever. The legitimate dealers who are adhering strictly to legitimate methods should be commended for their courage in keeping their business on the highest plane possible and no doubt they will in the end be amply repaid for their attitude, as price-cutting only tends to create a bad impression. It must ultimately place the houses which resort to these tactics in a most undesirable light throughout the trade.

Tisch Music Store in Fine Quarters

An important event in talking machine circles in Brooklyn this month was the formal opening of the Tisch Music Store, located at Polk avenue, near Twenty-fifth street, in the Jackson Heights section. Adam B. Tisch, proprietor, is receiving the praises of a large number of friends in the opening of this new store, as it represents the ultimate step in the commendable progress he has made in the talking machine retail field. Mr. Tisch started in business as a talking machine dealer some years ago back in his own home, where he devoted two of the rooms of his house to the display of talking machine models. After a period Mr. Tisch's business grew to such proportions that he was compelled to procure larger quarters near his home, resulting in the opening of the present store. The general arrangement and equipment of the store represents the very latest in retail store construction and is, no doubt, one of the best equipped and most beautiful stores in all metropolitan New York.

On the day of the opening of the store Mr. Tisch secured the services of a troupe of Hawaiian musicians who entertained the visitors with Hawaiian melodies and also rendered some of the latest hits in dance music recently released by the Victor Co. Charles Mason, of the New York Talking Machine Co., and other representatives of the Victor wholesale trade were present and assisted in the opening.

Vorbach Bros. Open New Store

Another new store recently opened in this section is that of Vorbach Bros., 413 Fulton street, Jamaica, L. I. Vorbach Bros., proprietors of the store, also conduct another establishment on Jamaica avenue, in the Richmond Hill section of Brooklyn, and are well known in talking machine retail circles. The new store is one of the finest retail establishments in this city. Eight sound-proof booths have been installed and also one large sound-proof room which will be devoted to the demonstration of talking machines. Record racks have been erected conveniently near the private hearing rooms and also easily accessible to customers coming in for a record, as they are placed close to the entrance of the store. On the day of the opening an orchestra rendered selections and appropriate souvenirs were distributed to all those present. The company features the Sonora line and Lee Coupe, who was responsible for their taking on the Sonora, attended the opening and helped materially in the arrangements for the opening day.

Shortage of Sonora Machines

The Long Island Phonograph Co., Sonora wholesaler for this territory, reports that the demand for Sonora machines during the past month has been unprecedented. Orders for machines have been coming in from all sections of the territory and the question of getting machines enough to meet this demand has become serious. Although shipments have been coming in from the factory with more or less regularity it will be impossible, according to officials of the company, to give dealers all they have ordered. However, steps are being taken that will insure every dealer getting a fair share of the goods received, so that all will be able to have some machines in stock to sell during the holidays.

C. W. Keith, treasurer of the company, as well as J. J. Schratweiser, sales manager, are now back at their desks after a trip which took them to Pittsburgh, Buffalo and to the Sonora factory in Saginaw, Mich. Much fruitful work was accomplished on this trip, especially at the factory, where a closer contact was established which resulted in expediting shipments of machines to headquarters in Brooklyn.

R. H. Keith was away this month, spending some time at the Pittsburgh wholesale Sonora branch and from there journeyed on to the factory in Saginaw to confer with officials there on plans for holiday and New Year business. Mr. Keith was accompanied by Frank Coupe, sales manager of the Sonora Co.

Dissolve Partnership

The Lynnbrook Music Shop, 20 Atlantic avenue, Lynnbrook, L. I., has just dissolved a partnership which existed between J. O. Benton and his brother, Robert, and from now on J. O. Benton will be sole proprietor of the company. Robert Benton, the owner of large real estate interests on Long Island, will devote his time to this business. James Benton was the original active member of the concern and will continue the business as heretofore under the same name and at the same location. This talking machine business has been developed to one of quite large proportions, enjoying the patronage of a very fine clientele.

Delivering Large Orders

The American Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler for this territory, has been kept very busy this past month delivering large orders for machines and records to dealers in all sections of the territory. New shipments of machines are being received from the factory and as soon as they arrive they are immediately despatched to dealers. The record business, stated R. H. Morris, general manager of the company, has been a healthy and normal one. New records for December enjoyed wide popularity with dealers everywhere. Machine sales have been reported to be fair and there is no doubt, Mr. Morris declares, holiday business will be greater than ever before. Chas. Offerman, representative of this company for Long Island, is spending considerable time with dealers, helping them put their stores and stocks in shape for holiday business.

Good Business Practice

To prove that it is worth while to cultivate the friendship of talking machine customers the Neapolitan Talking Machine Co., which conducts a retail store at 311 Court street, recently made a sale of three No. 17 Victor machines through the friendship of one customer. This customer came into the store looking for a medium size Victrola, but good salesmanship brought about a sale of a large, expensive instrument. A few days later this man returned to the store accompanied by three of his friends who were so pleased with this machine that they each purchased one for their own home. James Lanzaro, genial proprietor of the store, is the man responsible for these satisfactory sales, and he stated that incidents like this have happened to him before, proving conclusively that it pays to make friends with every customer the retail merchant sells. In addition to the sale of these machines each purchaser selected a large list of records, which brought up the total to a considerable figure and no doubt will help materially in putting Mr. Lanzaro's yearly business over the top by a very comfortable margin.

E. A. Schweiger, Inc., Enlarges

E. A. Schweiger, Inc., which conducts a retail store at 1525-27 Broadway, opened to the public this month a new addition to their store which has completely changed the old establishment into thoroughly modern quarters. An adjoining store has been added, the dividing wall having been torn out, turning the two stores into one large, spacious showroom. This progressive house is well known throughout metropolitan talking machine circles, as it has conducted a successful Victor retail business at this location for many years past. This addition certainly reflects the progress made and with these added facilities no doubt growth will continue. With every modern convenience known to retail selling installed they will be able to offer talking machine buyers a superior service that is bound to reflect in total sales.

New Sonora Accounts

Among the new dealers recently established by the Long Island Phonograph Co., Sonora wholesaler, is the store of Sarokin Bros., at 125 Church avenue. This dealer, on receipt of his first order of Sonora machines, sold to a customer an Intermezzo model and a Marquette model as well, resulting in the placing of an additional order for machines double the size of the original one. Other new dealers to take on the Sonora include the Zion Music Co., of 179 Tompkins avenue; R. Petraglia, at 871 Liberty avenue; A. L. Young, 2124 Fulton street, and P. Hirschlein, Carlton avenue, Islip, L. I.

All these dealers have taken on the complete Sonora line and are planning to feature it during the holiday season.

Nassau Radio Co. Institutes Drive

The Nassau Radio Co., manufacturer of radio products, is about to launch a campaign designed to interest the talking machine dealer in the possibilities of radio in talking machine retail stores. Ruckgaber Bros., who conduct this company, are well known as talking machine dealers, operating a retail store at 60 Court street. They have in mind at the present time the marketing of a Loop-Tuner antenna which is designed for use with the ordinary tube receiving set and which does away with the outside antenna commonly used. These plans are being perfected and will be announced to the trade very shortly.

A VISITOR FROM CHICAGO

A recent visitor to the executive offices of the Sonora Phonograph Co. was A. R. Rodway, president and general manager of the Sonora Phonograph Co. of Illinois, which was recently appointed as a Sonora jobber in Chicago. Mr. Rodway visited New York for the sole purpose of pleading with the Sonora executives to give him additional merchandise to take care of the requirements of Sonora dealers in his territory. Although the Sonora Phonograph Co. of Illinois has been established only a few months it has already won recognition as one of the most successful wholesale houses in Chicago.

A lease for a term of years has been closed on the store at 95 Summer street, Boston, Mass., by the Barite Talking Machine Co.

Demand for Machines, Records, Accessories Far Exceeds Expectations—Expect Record Month's Business—All Jobbers Active

CINCINNATI, O., December 6.—The pre-holiday trade in talking machines and records—in all accessories, in fact, even down to needles—has exceeded the predictions of even the enthusiastic optimists. This month—December—threatens (what a welcome threat!) to be one of the most profitable in years. The public has money. If you need evidence of that fact, all you need to do is to enter any store—music or otherwise—and look over the floor. You probably will be surprised.

There seems to be a great deal of early shopping among the people who desire musical goods. All retailers are going to have their hands full in supplying the trade that is coming to them, and for the time being, at least, the policy of carrying a short and safe stock is thrown into the discard.

November, as a business month, might be called a prophecy. Its promise, already being fulfilled, was excellent. Indeed, November, 1922, was one of the best Novembers ever experienced by a great many local dealers.

Wholesalers in All Lines Active

At the Cincinnati branch of the Columbia Co. business already is booming and orders are coming in which insure, even this early, a splendid month of business for December. The Columbia branch is making every effort to supply its many dealers in this district fully and promptly and thinks that it will be able to do so though trade is exceptionally heavy.

The Ohio Talking Machine Co., wholesaler of Victor goods, supplying virtually every account in Cincinnati, as well as numerous houses in Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia, also is rushed. A. H. Bates, president of the company, said: "Our holiday business is going to be fine, I am sure. November was a remarkable start toward this big month, and although our stock is huge, we feel that business will be so great that we will be pressed before Christmas."

The New Edison Co., wholesaler for all Edison dealers in this district, also reports a fine trade for November and sees a correspondingly greater trade for December. Manager Oelman said: "Our November trade was a big opening for the holiday business. It was the best November in a very long time, and December is going to fall under the same classification. Our stock is adequate, but we do not expect to have much of it left at the end of December, and we shall take about all of the shipments we can get. The new Edison consoles are very popular, as is our new upright model. These are moderate-priced machines, and are going exceptionally well."

S. Reis, manager of the Brunswick products, said: "Brunswick business for November was exceptional and leads us to believe that December is going to be a banner month. We surely are busy here. Orders are coming in with great rapidity and we are going to have trouble supplying the demand during next month."

November Totals Reach High Mark

Retail business at the Otto Grau Piano Co., dealer in Victor, Aeolian and Brunswick products, reached a high mark during November. "November was remarkable," said J. F. Van Court, "but December, unless all signs fail, is going to be one of the best holiday months we ever have had."

Widener's Grafonola Shop, which deals in Columbia, Granby and Victor lines, also reports a fine month and expectation of a much better one to come. Morris Fantel, manager of the Grafonola Shop, declares that this is one of the best Autumns the trade has seen, and that when December is over there will have been some records made by the retailers, as well as by the artists.

Window Displays Bring Business

The Chubb-Steinberg Music Shop continues to do one of the best retail businesses in the city. Howard L. Chubb is untiring in his efforts to arrange attractive display windows, and his originality always draws a considerable number of people to his store. Moreover, Mr. Chubb is the only dealer in the city who always sees that a good record is being played in his windows, so that no persons can pass without hearing this tantalizing music. Radio sets, says Mr. Chubb, who has a well-supplied radio department, are going good for gifts to the younger boys and girls—and some of the older ones as well.

ATLANTA

Christmas Rush Is On—Urban and Rural Dwellers Offer Fine Opportunities for Live Dealers

ATLANTA, GA., December 6.—With the passing of Thanksgiving there is every evidence that Christmas shopping has started in earnest. The Atlanta dealers report that machine sales are good and that, in addition, deposits have been made on scores of machines, the actual sale to be completed between now and December 25.

Conditions throughout the Southeast are very much better than they have been during the past two years. With cotton selling at about 25 cents, the farmers, even with their short crops, are a great deal better off than seemed possible in mid-Summer.

In the cities work is plentiful, especially in the building trades. Most all the Southern cities are establishing new high records for building construction. Talking machine dealers are optimistic, their chief worry being the shortage of popular-priced product, especially in the console designs.

M. E. Lyle, Atlanta, reports such a steadily increasing demand for Strand consoles that he has been required to carry about three times the usual Atlanta stock.

The many friends of Herbert Brown, manager of the Victrola department of Cable Piano Co., will regret to learn that he is in a local hospital, where he recently underwent an operation for appendicitis.

Loveman-Joseph-Loeb Co., at Birmingham, has obtained the Victor franchise and has already received an initial stock. The talking machine department is in charge of D. G. Green.

E. E. Forbes & Son, of Birmingham, have become jobbers for Paramount records. Mr. Forbes reports a large demand, especially for the jazz numbers by colored artists.

"Bob" McDavid, secretary of Clark & Jones, Birmingham, was a Thanksgiving visitor to Atlanta, coming over to attend the Auburn-Tech football game.

The Southern Sonora Co. is planning to move into its fine new location on Peachtree street about the middle of December.

John A. Cunningham, of Jacksonville, Fla.,

Columbia dealer, has just finished with a very successful Grafonola sale, one hundred and three Grafonolas being sold in two weeks.

F. Miller, Columbia salesman out of the Atlanta branch, has recently been transferred, at his request, from the Tennessee territory to the south Georgia territory. Mr. Miller has a host of friends in his new territory and we are sure his splendid success will continue.

The following firms have recently been added to the Atlanta Columbia branch's list of dealers: Payne's For Music, Greenville, S. C.; Chalifoux Music Co., Birmingham, Ala.; Morgan Furniture Co., Albany, Ala.; United Phonograph Co., Charleston, S. C.; Eugene Brown, Manchester, S. C., and West Furniture Co., Marshall, N. C.

Salesmen of the Brunswick Co.—M. B. Duke, Ralph Hooke and H. Kaliski—were at the branch office in conference with district manager, phonograph division, Wm. F. Standke, the latter part of November, preparatory to covering their respective territories before the holidays.

Congratulations have been extended to C. R. Mordecai, of the firm of Mordecai & Smith, Brunswick dealers, at Savannah, Ga., upon his marriage the latter part of November. Mr. Mordecai and his young bride are spending their honeymoon on a trip to New York City.

Columbia period design Grafonola, Type P-35 electric, was viewed by many thousand people recently at the "Home Electrical," which is the only home erected in the South fully equipped with electrical devices. This popular Columbia model received many favorable comments. People all over the South saw it and a number of sales were made by Columbia dealers as a result of the exhibition.

The Cochran Furniture Co., new Columbia dealer, reports a very nice volume of business for the past two or three weeks on Grafonolas and records. The company is very much pleased with its new line and says that it expects to do even a greater business in the next three or four weeks.

The Mason Furniture Co., Columbia dealer, of Huntsville, Ala., recently sold an $800 period design Columbia Grafonola to a very prominent citizen of that city.

The Sterchi Furniture Co.'s Brunswick department is showing new life and with T. M. and C. V. Jones, brothers, experienced music salesmen in charge of the music department, this store and department is in position to give Brunswick phonograph and record buyers first-class service.

Ludden & Bates Music Co., Brunswick dealer, has found a considerable demand for the Brunswick records of the "Sacred Harp" singers which is not surprising, as Atlanta is the headquarters of the "Sacred Harp" singers.

The Ukrainian Chorus, exclusive Brunswick artists, appeared at the Auditorium Wednesday, November 29, and presented a splendid musical program. This concert was thoroughly enjoyed by the large audience and as a result Brunswick dealers in Atlanta and vicinity are having many calls for the Ukrainian Chorus records.

Nate Bernstein, talking machine dealer of Monticello, N. Y., recently announced his temporary retirement from business owing to deafness. Mr. Bernstein will re-enter the trade following treatment for his affliction.

THE PAST YEAR AND THE FUTURE IN MUSIC PUBLISHING

1922 Has Been Close to Normal With Many of the Publishers, With the Usual Quota of Hits Developing—Optimism Regarding Next Year Shown in the Campaigns Planned

The condition of the music publisher, particularly in the popular end of the business, reflects somewhat on the activity of sales in records. Therefore, a general résumé of the situation in the popular music publishing field is appropriate at this time—practically the close of the year.

There is, of course, nothing stable or permanent in the popular sheet music industry. Therefore, a report on general trade conditions must needs be confined to the amount of salable works which have been issued throughout the course of the past twelve months. There, seemingly, was no dearth in hits. The usual quota of compositions of meritorious and popular caliber has been published and there were at least five or six big outstanding successes.

Probably the most remarkable song and dance success of the past season was "Three o'Clock in the Morning," which is still quite active and which has had a very substantial sale over a ten months' period. There was hardly anything remarkable among the other issues outside of the success of "The Sheik" and "The Kashmiri Song," both of which were linked up with the motion picture entitled "The Sheik." It should also be reported that the year saw the unusual feature of having a particularly popular number during the months of July and August, namely, "Stumbling," which tended to keep what are sometimes termed dull months a little more active than usual.

Following the opening of the Fall musical shows there seems to be the usual quota of numbers with popular appeal. However, it is somewhat early to describe any of them as national successes. Probably "Journey's End," from the new show, "Up She Goes," and "Little Nellie Kelly," from the George M. Cohan show of the same name, are the features in that department of the publishing world.

It should be stated that despite a reduction in the volume of sales of popular numbers the popular music publishers as a whole have not been depressed by this situation. They have admitted that after all the meritorious numbers have had very substantial sales, some of them reaching huge figures. Therefore, their appropriations for the exploitation of works which seem to have possibilities have not been lessened, and, indeed, the majority of publishers are even spending more money than was the case for several years past.

The outlook for the coming year is, indeed, gratifying. Most of the publishing houses have a program that calls for much additional activity and enlarged appropriations for publicity. There has been issued during the past four or five weeks a substantial number of new songs, many of them of great merit and several which have shown indications of creating unusual sales. The publishers are looking forward to a most healthy new year and are making plans accordingly. This additional energy and effort, together with publications of no mean caliber, will, as stated at the outset, be reflected in future sales of popular records.

"DON" LINDEN WITH LEO FEIST

Joins Staff of Leo Feist, Ltd., Toronto, Ont.—Firm Secures Exclusive Sales Rights to "Century" Catalog in Dominion of Canada

TORONTO, ONT., December 9.—Donald S. Linden, familiarly known by his wide circle of friends as "Don" Linden, has joined the staff of Leo Feist, Ltd., this city, in the capacity of manager of the professional department. This important announcement comes almost simultaneously with the news that this firm has acquired the exclusive selling rights in Canada for the "Century" catalog.

The Century catalog comprises some 1,500 of the world's standard compositions. The Century edition music is published by the Century Music Publishing Co., New York, and will retail in Canada at fifteen cents per copy. When dealers know the extent of the advertising behind the Century catalog and the energetic way in which Leo Feist, Ltd., are sure to push this new line in Canada they will realize what is involved in handling Century music. The publisher will run a series of advertisements in national publications featuring this interesting catalog.

"UP SHE GOES" HAS AUSPICIOUS OPENING IN NEW YORK

William A. Brady's First Attempt at Musical Comedy Well Received—Joseph McCarthy and Harry Tierney Collaborate on the Score, Which Is Being Published by Leo Feist, Inc.

With the opening of the new musical show, "Up She Goes," in the Playhouse, New York City, William A. Brady produced his first musical comedy. This production is a musical version of Frank Craven's comedy, "Too Many Cooks." The lyrics are by Joseph McCarthy and the music is by Harry Tierney, both of musical comedy fame. There is an excellent and well-selected company, which includes Richard ("Skeets") Gallagher, Donald Brian, Gloria Foy and others.

Practically every paper in New York City in its review gave the new offering a particularly enthusiastic send-off. The New York Sun says: "A spontaneous, breezy and tuneful show and is well worth a trip. Its only short-coming is the loss of some of the humor of the original—which loss is probably not missed so much when Harry Tierney can supply good tunes to take its place. A superabundance of gay, lilting tunes composed by Harry Tierney, who furnished the music for 'Irene,' are at hand." The Mail, World, Globe, Herald, Times and Tribune and other papers are equally favorable in their comments.

The songs which are mentioned as coming popular successes are "Journey's End," "Lady Luck," "Nearing the Day," "Ty-up," "Let's Kiss" and "Settle Down and Travel." Leo Feist, Inc., is the publisher.

 The Two New Hits for The New Year

LEO FEIST, INC., IS CLOSING A MOST SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Excellent Catalog Combined With Energy and Perseverance of Staff Brings Most Satisfactory Results—Some of the Year's Hits in Popular and Production Field

The noted music publishing house of Leo Feist, Inc., is bringing to a close one of the most successful years in the history of that establishment. This is a remarkable tribute to its meritorious catalog of the past year, the energy and perseverance of the co-workers in the Feist organization and the public response to the Feist slogan “You Can't Go Wrong With Any 'Feist' Song.”

The record is impressive, too, considering the fact that 1922 in music publishing and retail circles has not been considered an overly active year when popular music is under consideration. Any member of the Feist staff would naturally credit, and justly so, the past season's success of that company to the quality of the songs published, but that would not by any means fully explain the year's record. They would also contend that to make songs national hits they must be exploited through the orchestras and professional channels and that this work must be supplemented by appropriate advertising in various channels, which naturally calls for substantial expenditures.

Early this year the Feist organization decided that no matter what the outlook during any period in the course of the year it would continue to exploit its catalog on the same scale that was prevalent during what was considered more prosperous seasons. The year's results certainly justify the early plans.

Among the Feist songs that have been acknowledged national successes during the course of the past twelve months are: “Virginia Blues,” “Georgia,” “Wake Up, Little Girl,” “Stumbling,” “Hot Lips,” “Tricks,” “All for the Love of Mike,” “Swanee River Moon,” “Three o'Clock in the Morning,” “Lovely Lucerne,” “Why Should I Cry Over You?” “Coal Black Mammy,” “Toot, Toot, Tootsie,” “When the Leaves Come Tumbling Down.” The five latter songs are among the numbers the various Feist departments are still actively interested in. In addition to the above, the company has issued the “Feist Dance Folio No. 4,” and the “Good Old-timer's Song Folio,” both of which have had, and are still having, large sales.

The plans of the Feist organization for the year 1923 call for a continuance of the methods and arrangements which were found so successful during the past twelve months. The entire Feist organization with its numerous branches has employed its full quota of workers and will continue its activities without change. All the other arrangements of the departments will

U. S. Consul Reports That Chinese Show Distinct Favor for More Modern Instrument

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 7.—Foreign music is growing popular with the foreign educated Chinese, who are constantly increasing in number, says Consul Heintzleman, Hankow, in a report to the Department of Commerce. They cultivate this taste while they study in the schools and colleges conducted under the auspices of the various foreign governments and mission societies. Piano, organ and phonograph music are equally in favor with them. Phonographs which are comparatively cheaper in price are very popular in China and nearly every foreign family and wealthy Chinese family in practically in every instance be carried out along the same general lines of the past year.

Among the songs announced for the coming season are “Dumbbells,” by Zez Confrey; “Vamp Me,” by Byron Gay; “Japanese Moon,” “Flower of Araby,” “All Muddled Up,” “Apple Sauce,” “Peggy, Dear” and “I'll Give You Back Your Kisses.”

In reviewing some of the activities of the Feist company during the past year no mention was made of the musical shows for which it publishes the music. “Blossom Time” and “Tangerine” of last season's fame are continuing to draw crowds; the former resumed its New York run and has a road show playing throughout the country. Early this Summer the new show, “Sue, Dear,” opened successfully, and more recently the new William A. Brady production, “Up She Goes,” for which Joseph McCarthy and Harry Tierney supplied the songs, made its debut. Another musical comedy, called “The Little Kangaroo,” will also have its New York premiere at an early date.

the treaty ports which has come under foreign influence possess one.

While phonographs have a limited sale among the natives, due to their price, it would seem that an instrument of moderate price would have a wide distribution if it were properly advertised and marketed. Chinese records should be sold with any machine intended for the Chinese. In order to bring American musical instruments to the attention of the Chinese it would seem necessary to work through one of the long-established foreign firms at Hankow.

The gramophone has been made an integral part of the educational facilities of the public schools of Stockport, England, on the theory that only by hearing good music can a love for it be developed in the students.

“RUNNIN’ WILD” WITH “LOOSE FEET” GETTING RESULTS

Latest Feist Numbers Prove Overnight “Natural” Hits With the Leading Orchestras—Quick Arrangements Made to Record Them on Records and Rolls—An Unusual Occurrence

The orchestras to-day put the great majority of songs through preliminary tests in order to find their possibilities. This is done in co-operation with the leading publishing houses and applies to all numbers with the exception of what are strictly ballads or selections that have other points of individuality that would make such early trials valueless.

However, the fact that one or two orchestras show favor or get enthusiastic over a new issue in its original form is no guarantee of its popularity and the public's approval. In instances, and they are rare indeed, where practically all of the orchestras who have had a chance to render the number, accept it as the unusual and what is termed a “natural” hit, there is left little doubt as to its ultimate popular appeal.

Bearing this in mind it was quite surprising to find that practically overnight, early in December, not one, but two numbers from one catalog won this remarkable prominence and favor from all of the leading orchestras in the metropolitan district. The numbers are from the catalog of Leo Feist, Inc., and are entitled “Runnin’ Wild” and “Loose Feet.” Further substantiation of the possibilities of these new publications was noted when several of the leading talking machine record companies requested piano copies or an original manuscript, from which they could immediately make their own orchestrations, following the methods pursued by most of the orchestras who, in a like manner, had their own orchestrations made.

Following the footsteps of “Three o’Clock in the Morning,” “Stumbling,” “Hot Lips” and other Feist successes of this year, these two additions to that catalog mark one of the most successful years in the history of that publishing firm.

The overnight success of “Runnin’ Wild” and “Loose Feet” encouraged the Feist organization to increase substantially the usual appropriation for exploitation. A campaign was immediately planned and is now under way to give these two issues some of the most unusual publicity ever inaugurated in behalf of such a limited number of songs. The professional and the band and orchestra departments, as well as the numerous branch offices, with their entire staffs, have got enthusiastically behind the program and “Runnin’ Wild,” with “Loose Feet,” will, undoubtedly, be heard everywhere. The two titles will be linked up in a manner that will probably mark a new precedent.

The fact that Leo Feist, Inc., has given the trade some of the most remarkable successes of the past year will induce the industry to co-operate upon the same scale as arranged by the Feist forces. In this, we are sure, considering the size, energy and scope of this company and its activities, they undoubtedly will be justified.

A. H. Mayers, of 1983 Broadway, New York, is responsible for the attractive window here reproduced featuring the Victor Talking Machine Co.’s releases from the George M. Cohan successful musical hit, “Little Nellie Kelly,” the score of which is published by M. Witmark & Sons. These active sellers on the Victor records include “You Remind Me of My Mother,” played by Paul Whiteman and his orchestra, and “Nellie Kelly, I Love You,” sung by the American Quartet, the latter backed by “You Remind Me of My Mother,” sung by Henry Burr. Inasmuch as this display was featured simultaneously with the

HEMPEL SCORES IN RECITAL

Famous Edison Artist Delights Large Audience at Carnegie Hall—Sings Also With New York Symphony Orchestra

Mme. Frieda Hempel, famous soprano and Edison artist, gave one of her always delightful song recitals at Carnegie Hall on Tuesday evening, November 28. An immense audience was aroused to great enthusiasm by the interesting program presented and the splendid quality of her singing. Mme. Hempel is unquestionably one of the greatest concert artists now before the public, which realizes that it is always sure of receiving a great musical treat when it goes to hear this singer. Coenraad V. Bos was accompanist and displayed his usual skill, while Louis P. Fritze, flutist, was a delightful aid in Mme. Hempel's singing of Gretry's aria, "La Fauvette avec ses petits," from Zemire et Azor.

Mme. Hempel was also heard on Sunday afternoon, December 10, with the New York Symphony Orchestra, under Walter Damrosch, and received a very stirring manifestation from the public of its appreciation of her ability as an artist and as a woman.

HUGO ERNST NOW CONVALESCING

The many friends in the trade of Hugo Ernst, vice-president and general manager of Paul Whiteman, Inc., New York, will learn with regret that this popular member of the talking machine trade was operated on for appendicitis a few weeks ago at the Polyclinic Hospital. Owing to the fact that he had been exceptionally busy for several months, Mr. Ernst had neglected to heed the warnings of his doctor and was taken suddenly ill while at his home. He was rushed to the hospital, where for a while his condition was considered dangerous, but it is understood that he is now convalescing and will be back at his desk in the near future.

CARUSO'S LARGE RECORD ROYALTIES

Review of Pierre V. R. Key's Biography of Caruso Shows Large Earnings of Tenor From Records Made for the Victor Co.

In the course of an interesting review of Pierre V. R. Key's "Enrico Caruso: a Biography," in the New York World, it is stated that:

"The sum of $1,825,000 in talking machine royalties had been paid to Caruso during the life of his contracts . . . to January, 1920, an average of a little more than $125,000 a year. But for the year from January, 1921, to 1922, the royalties received by the Caruso estate reached the sum of $400,000. Thus a total of $2,225,000 has been earned through this medium."

"DAILY DOZEN" IN POPULAR REVUE

Dealers Should Tie Up With Health Builders Product When "Passing Show of 1922" Reaches Their City—Great Send-off for "Daily Dozen"—An Aid to Increased Sales

Dealers outside of New York City who carry the Health Builder sets of Walter Camp's "Daily Dozen" on talking machine records will now have an opportunity to take advantage of the favorable publicity given them in the "Passing Show of 1922." As was reported in detail in last month's World, this popular revue includes an act entitled "At Camp's" in which the entire chorus does the "Daily Dozen." After a long run at the Winter Garden in New York this show is now routed for a number of other large cities. It is announced from the stage that everybody ought to do these exercises in their own homes through the use of talking machine records. R. B. Wheelan, president of Health Builders, Inc., points to the advantages of the dealer tying up with this unusual publicity in arousing public interest to the buying point.

CREDIT CONDITIONS IMPROVE

Chief Improvement in Business Lies in Credit Situation, Says J. H. Tregoe, Executive Manager, National Association of Credit Men

The chief improvement in business conditions is in the credit situation, according to J. H. Tregoe, executive manager of the National Association of Credit Men, in his December letter to the members of the organization. He adds that there has been a severe shaking down with the result that credit is now very comfortable and ready for service when the time arrives for its prudent use.

Failures, Mr. Tregoe continues, are very far below the number and amount involved of the same period last year. Collections, however, are not all regular and show no marked improvement. In his letter he also points out that the disparity in the purchasing power of the farmer is probably one-third less than what it was in 1913. The purchasing power of the laborer is probably one-third more than it was in 1913, which is too wide a spread for expectations of stable business to materialize.

Mr. Tregoe summarizes the favorable factors toward a business revival as follows: Improved conditions in the fuel supply; the trade volume as reflected by carloadings, bank clearances and other indices of business; the general belief that an inflation would be easy to accomplish just now; increased buying power of the wage earner generally; increased price of cotton and tobacco; increased buying of railroad equipment; the ease in the credit situation.

Arrayed against those favorable factors are five unfavorable ones which he names as follows: The low buying power of the farmer generally reflected in the disparity of the price of farm products and of manufactured products; the car shortage; pessimistic talk; unsettled economic conditions in Europe; the danger of not holding fast to sound economic sense. However, the outlook is brighter than in some time.

PROPER DISPLAYS INCREASE THE SALE OF SHEET MUSIC

The Use of Wall Racks, in Which Sheet Music Can Be Displayed Most Efficiently, Results in Larger Sales—Publishers Designing Title Pages With This Method of Display in Mind

There seems to be a move among dealers to get more sales through popular issues. A great number of dealers are using wall racks for the display of some of the more successful of popular numbers. The use of such displays, in addition to attracting attention, more often than not acts as a silent salesman.

The results obtained through the wall racks in which each title is shown off advantageously are encouraging. There are other advantages, such as simplifying the placing of, say, fifty popular titles before practically every customer.

Naturally, there are moments in every active retail establishment when the normal quota of clerks finds the clientele larger than can be accommodated advantageously. Taking into consideration that most stores, naturally, desire to give service and co-operation to every visitor, the racks at such periods serve a purpose of immeasurable value.

There is hardly any retail establishment that cannot find space available for such purposes. The racks come in small sections and can either be hung from the wall or set on the floor. In some cases dealers have placed them against the back part of the window near the door. This serves the purpose of allotting space for the display of current hits and brings such issues to the mind of every visitor to the store at the time of his or her departure, if not before.

Besides the current issues that can be displayed in this manner the slots in the rack will readily hold most of the dance folios and publications of that type, including, for instance, "The Most Popular Series." They have been found adaptable also for the display of orchestration, in fact, Ben Kline, of the Phoenix-

Kline Music Co., Syracuse, N. Y., impressively brought out that fact at the last convention of the National Association of Sheet Music Dealers.

All of which brings to mind the availability of the designs of title pages for such display purposes. A good many publishers are producing their numbers in a form that easily shows the complete title when inserted in such racks. However, there are still many numbers issued, the titles of which, when placed in such receptacles, do not show enough of the title to acquaint the customer with it without removal. Wherever possible the title page should be made to conform to such display. Naturally, it would hardly be possible to design all title pages in that manner. The publishers of anything but the black and white editions put great value upon the illustration that goes with the title of the song. Most of them have made a study of that feature and naturally it must be taken into consideration in arranging the title proper.

Another point that seems particularly pertinent is the gain or loss in the change of design of a title page following its first introduction to the trade and public. This latter is a question that has never been settled. It has been said on various occasions that dealers have placed before customers, upon request for a certain title, a newly designed covering which brought forth exclamations of surprise. How often that happens has never been figured and whether there is any appreciable loss in sales by the change has yet to be proved. The thought is worthy of some consideration and a word from dealers who have the direct contact might prove important.

Among the recent visitors at the executive offices of the Columbia Graphophone Co. were R. H. Woodford, manager of the company's Cincinnati branch, and Fred R. Erisman, manager of the Dallas branch. Both of these visitors spoke enthusiastically of the business conditions in their respective territories.

FIGHTING FOR MILEAGE BOOKS

National Council of Traveling Salesmen's Associations Files Brief With Interstate Commerce Commission Urging Issuance of Interchangeable Mileage Books as Per Law

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 28.—Charging that the carriers have produced no evidence that would show a possible injury by reason of the issuance of interchangeable mileage or scrip coupon tickets, the National Council of Traveling Salesmen's Associations, through its attorney, Samuel Blumberg, has filed a brief with the Interstate Commerce Commission asking it to order the issuance of such tickets, in accordance with the bill passed by Congress shortly before the session adjourned.

The traveling men's brief summarizes the testimony which was given by their representatives during the hearings held before the commission and reviews the testimony of the carriers. "The commercial travelers who have appeared in these proceedings believe that the evidence presented clearly establishes the fact that there is a demand from the merchants and salesmen of the country for the issuance of an interchangeable mileage book at a reduced rate," it is declared in the brief. "That, in their opinion, the book, if issued with reasonable rules and regulations that will not retard its sale, and yet will at the same time sufficiently protect the carriers against abuses; will result in a great stimulation of business which will bring added revenues to the carriers and generally benefit the business of the country."

A rate of 33 1/3 per cent below normal passenger rates is asked by the travelers.

Elaine Bernstein, daughter of Louis Bernstein, head of the music publishing firm of Shapiro, Bernstein & Co., Inc., was married to Eugene Bohn on the evening of November 16.

Dealers in Keen Competition for Holiday Trade—Ayes Store Celebrates Fiftieth Anniversary—Kiefer-Stewart Co. Elects.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., December 5.—Every conceivable sort of terms are being offered to prospective purchasers of phonographs by the dealers in Indianapolis in their bid for the Christmas trade. Keen competition such as the last few weeks has developed is stimulating trade to a marked degree, but nevertheless there are mutterings of dissatisfaction here and there even among those who are taking full advantage of the instalment plan. Some are accepting the small payment down plan as being the best means of developing business, others use the plan reluctantly as one being forced on them, while a few dealers flatly refuse to advertise any other plan of merchandising than that which they have always accepted as the most desirable.

Helping Out in Holiday Rush

Walter E. Kipp, who recently sold his interest in the Kipp Phonograph Co., Edison distributor, to the Phonograph Corp. of Indiana, is taking an active part in the business of the retail store only during the holiday season, he says. Although he retains his interest in the retail store he proposes to leave the management to W. O. Hopkins. Mr. Kipp's plans include a period of rest, after which he will take up some line of business which he will decide on in the meantime.

F. R. Follis, of the talking machine department of L. S. Ayres & Co., reports that his business for the month of November equaled the total business he had anticipated for both November and December.

Feature Wallace Reducing Records

Mr. Follis promoted the sale of Wallace reducing records one week by having classes for the benefit of customers every morning and afternoon during the week. Miss Vivian Daniels, of Chicago, conducted the classes, which attracted much attention among the shoppers at the store and afforded copy for a feature writer on one of the local newspapers.

Celebrate Golden Anniversary

One of the main features of the retail trade of the city during the month was the “Golden Anniversary” celebration and sale which was staged in elaborate fashion by the Ayres store. Each department of the store was given a quota to be met during the week of the sale. Mr. Follis won a prize for the showing of his department in having the largest increase over its quota of any department during the last day of the sale.

Kiefer-Stewart Drug Co. Elects

G. Barrett Moxley, former vice-president of the Kiefer-Stewart Drug Co., Sonora distributor, this city, was elected president at the annual meeting of the stockholders and directors to succeed the late William Scott. A. Kiefer Mayer was made first vice-president; Edward L. Mayer, second vice-president; Michael P. Lynch, third vice-president, and J. Edward Stiltz, secretary-treasurer. The new board of directors is as follows: Charles Mayer, chairman; Thomas A. Alford, Frederick G. Beckman, A. Kiefer Mayer, Oscar Maurer, G. Barrett Moxley, Bert O. Leary, Ellsworth L. Olcott and J. Edward Stiltz.

Start Ten Days' Sales Campaign

The Edison Shop inaugurated a new merchandising policy the latter part of November by advertising that “50 cents down secures your Edison for Christmas morning.” A ten-days' sale campaign was opened with a full-page ad in the newspapers setting forth conditions of the sale. This full-page was followed by half-page and quarter-page ads on the same proposition.

A New Baldwin Co. Manager

J. J. Carr, formerly with the Wilbur Templin general music store at Elkhart, has been appointed manager of the Baldwin Piano Co. store at Muncie.

New Edison Models Popular

J. M. Van der Voort, assistant manager of the Phonograph Corp. of Indiana, says that the new models of Edison machines have made such a hit among dealers throughout the State that it is impossible to keep pace with orders.

The Schneider Music Co., of Vincennes, has taken on the Edison line. The company also carries Victors and Brunswicks. J. C. Huff, of Tell City, has taken on the Edison as an exclusive line.

Shortage of Brunswicks

C. P. Herdman, manager of the talking machine department of the Baldwin Piano Co., says he has found it impossible to obtain Brunswick machines in sufficient quantities to supply the demand. This condition, which is prevalent in Indiana and adjoining States, says C. A. Moore, general salesman for the Brunswick Chicago branch, will be corrected after the first of the year when the entire output of the factory is to be diverted to Chicago for distribution in Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin.

Mr. Moore recently was transferred from the Davenport, Iowa, territory to the Central Indiana territory to succeed Charles Saylor, who has accepted a position with the Brunswick Shop in Indianapolis.

With the Brunswick Dealers

The Butler Music Co., of Marion, has taken on the Brunswick line. The proprietor, J. Edwin Butler, is president of the National Association of Music Merchants.

The James E. Hamilton Music Store, of Greencastle, is doing some valuable publicity work for the Brunswick by broadcasting the records.

The name of the Lotts Department Store, Brunswick dealer at Anderson, was changed December 1 to the Warner Furniture Co.

New equipment is being placed in the store of J. E. Nash & Son, Brunswick dealers at Franklin.

Mr. Herdman, of the Indianapolis Baldwin store, recently employed Miss Daniels, of Chicago, to demonstrate the use of the Wallace reducing records. The demonstration was on a platform in a show window.

Celebrate Pearson Anniversary

The forty-ninth anniversary sale of the Pearson Piano Co. has proved successful so far as the phonograph department is concerned, H. A. Brown, manager, says. He reports brisk demand for Victor, Edison, Vocalion and Cheney. He is featuring just now on billboards the Vocalion machines and red records.

Business Good at Widener's

"Business is very fine," says W. G. Wilson, manager of Widener's Grafonola shop, "and we anticipate having the best Christmas trade in the history of the store." Mr. Wilson says the Columbia machines are selling well. He is featuring now his new special machine, "Widener's Premier." He also has added a stock of Vocalion records for sale with the Columbia.

Window Display of Gennett Records

T. H. Bracken, manager of the Starr Piano Co. store, put in a window display that attracted a great deal of attention during the last two weeks of November. It showed the materials that enter into the manufacture of Gennett records and the appearance of the record at various stages of its manufacture.

Mr. Bracken reports that he is shy on Starr phonographs and therefore is finding it difficult to meet the demand. November, however, proved to be the biggest month for record sales that the Indianapolis district, including central Indiana, has experienced.

Demonstrates Victor Health Records

Miss Minnie Springer, manager of the Victor department of the Taylor Carpet Co., featured the Victor health records in November. She employed two pupils of a local gymnastic school to demonstrate the exercises in the show window. The publicity was valuable chiefly through the comment it provoked, she reports, although sales of the records as well as sales of machines were stimulated somewhat as a result.

Kimball Machines in Demand

The sale of Kimball machines is particularly brisk now in the better models, according to C. F. Kahn, of the Capital Paper Co., distributor. He reports that the Phoenix Furniture Co., of Indianapolis, conducted a successful campaign by means of circulars during the latter part of November and early in December.

R. M. McNeely, piano dealer of Ellettsville, has taken on the agency for Kimball's in that territory.

Takes Charge of Phonograph Department

M. H. Zeigler, general sales manager of the Mooney-Mueller-Ward Co., Pathé distributor, has assumed charge of the phonograph department. Business is normal for this time of the year, he reports, with the Actuelle records selling well. He anticipates that the company will go after new business with renewed vigor after the first of the year.

Period models are much in demand, says C. H. Becherer, manager of the Sonora department of Chas. Mayer & Co. He says he is making no effort to promote sales by special offers, but is relying solely on the merits of the machine to win trade.

NEW PATHE LOUD SPEAKER READY

Initial Product of the Pathé Frères Phonograph & Radio Corp. Possesses Many Interesting Features—Eliminates the Horn

The plans of the Pathé Frères Phonograph & Radio Corp. to enter the radio field have now taken tangible form in the announcement that the Pathé loud speaker is ready for the market. This newest product of the Pathé Co. has been long in process of development by Pathé engineers. It was the desire of the Pathé Co. to perfect it not only in its electrical and mechanical details, but in the quality of its sound reproduction as well. The Pathé Co., in the production of phonographs, has always given particular attention to tonal quality. This same care has been exercised by the new company and the Pathé loud speaker was not placed upon the market until it was worthy to bear the trade-mark of the famous red rooster.

H. T. Leeming, general manager of the Pathé Frères Phonograph & Radio Corp., described the loud speaker as something entirely new in contrast to all other loud speakers. He points out the sound waves are given in a direct manner from the diaphragm and not from the sides of a metallic horn, thus eliminating any metallic sound. In this respect it is somewhat similar to the Actuelle reproducer. Also, it is claimed there can be no prolonged sound after the original ceases. It is stated that the electromagnetic unit of the instrument is exceptionally efficient, converting into mechanical energy a larger part of the applied electrical energy than other speakers of its class. The use of an external battery is claimed to be unnecessary with the Pathé loud speaker and the operator can vary volume and quality of sound to suit his particular desires and requirements through the means of a knurled thumb-screw adjustment which governs the armature. Although light in weight and extremely compact, the Pathé loud speaker is ruggedly constructed and is not easily damaged. A peculiar property of the diaphragm is that although it may be punc-tured in several places it will continue to give clear sound and should the new diaphragm be desired at any time it will always be obtainable and easily installed at a low cost.

A Pathé official, in describing the loud speaker, spoke as follows: "The fact that the instrument is a loud speaker does not mean that it can be connected in the place of head telephones on an inefficient receiving outfit and give a volume of sound that will fill a room, any more than a large steam whistle can be successfully operated from a low pressure of steam. The receiver must do its part by supplying the energy. To use the Pathé loud speaker it is only necessary to employ a receiver fitted with a two-stage amplifier and a B battery from 45 to 110 volt. The two terminals on the speaker are wired to the telephone binding posts without the use of an auxiliary source of power of any kind. If considerable volume is desired the plate voltage of the amplifier should be increased.

"To get the most out of a Pathé loud speaker the use of a three-stage audio frequency amplifier with a plate battery of 90 to 135 volts is recommended. Such an instrument can be connected to any receiving outfit having a vacuum tube or even a crystal detector and the loud speaker will fill a large room or hall with sound. This arrangement has the advantage over the use of a two-stage amplifier and an instrument requiring a battery to excite its field in that the power consumption is no greater, the volume of sound is, and the three-step amplifier is available for use with ear telephones for the reception of distant signals. The likelihood of leaving a storage battery connected all night is much less when it is employed to light a tube than to energize a magnet which gives no visible indication as to whether the power is on or off."

The thorough experience of Pathé engineers in sound reproduction and the manufacturing facilities found in the large Pathé factory in Brooklyn bespeak the stability and future of this newest loud speaker. Careful laboratory tests and inspection will insure the quality of each loud speaker sent out. Its general attractiveness and moderate price, together with the intensive sales campaign planned and the efficient organization behind it will, undoubtedly, place the Pathé loud speaker in the foremost rank during 1923.

LOUIS UNGER IN NEW POST

Traveling Representative of Brilliantone-Steel Needle Co. Made Treasurer and General Manager of Reflexo Products, Inc.

A happening of interest to the entire trade is found in the announcement of the resignation of Louis Unger, general traveling representative of the Brilliantone Steel Needle Co., which important position he has occupied for the past five years, and his appointment as treasurer and general manager of Reflexo Products, Inc., New York. Mr. Unger is a widely experienced needle and talking machine man. Ten years ago he entered the field in the retail business of his uncle, Sol Lazarus, and later joined the staff of the Brilliantone organization. His former retail experience has been of particular benefit in giving him an intimate understanding of the problems of the dealer and the five years spent in the Brilliantone organization have given him a remarkable knowledge of the needle business. Mr. Unger during that time formed many strong friendships throughout the trade from coast to coast and throughout the Dominion of Canada, which he also covered.

Mr. Unger succeeds B. R. Forster, who recently resigned as treasurer of Reflexo Products, Inc., and he will have full charge of its destinies. Reflexo Products, Inc., was previously allied with the Brilliantone Co. under the management of B. R. Forster, but is now an entirely separate organization under Mr. Unger's direction, and attractive offices have been secured on the sixteenth floor at 347 Fifth avenue. Reflexo Products, Inc., is sole distributor of W. H. Bagshaw Gilt Edge and Reflexo Blue Steel needles, just as the Brilliantone Co. is the sole Bagshaw agent for the staple steel product. Mr. Unger has already enthusiastically taken up his new duties and is making plans for the extension of the business in 1923.

In an interview with a representative of The World Mr. Unger stated: "We are planning big things for the coming year. All indications point towards a big year and this, coupled with the quality of and demand for Reflexo products, gives great promise. The Reflexo Blue Steel needles are selling very well as is also the Gilt Edge needle, which is and always will be a Brilliantone steel needle plated. I am planning to make 1923 the biggest year in the history of the Reflexo organization."

Louis Unger

SONORA STYLES FOR 1923

Artistic New Models to Make Their Debut—
The Entire Line Will Be Representative of
This Celebrated Firm—Preparing Publicity

The Sonora Phonograph Co., New York, announced to its trade this week that it had decided upon its 1923 line. In preparing the Sonora line for the coming year, the company decided to have it embody a representative group of instruments that would give the dealer an opportunity to take advantage of every sales possibility. With this idea in mind, certain models appearing in the 1922 line will be replaced by new ones, among which are the four instruments known as the "Melodie," "Barcarolle," "Serenade" and "Marlborough" and which will be featured by the company during the next twelve months through the medium of the same high-grade publicity that has characterized Sonora activities for so many years. Attractive catalogs are now being prepared for the trade.

The complete 1923 Sonora line with retail list prices is as follows: "Portable," $60; up-rights: "Melodie," $75; "Etude," $115; "Barcarolle," $150; "Baby Grand," $200, and "Elite," $265. The standard line of Sonora period models for 1923 will be the following: "Marquette," $125; "Serenade," $150; "Pembroke," $175; "Marlborough," $185; "Canterbury," $225; "Queen Anne," $275; "Louis XV," $325.

The instruments in the de luxe period model line will be as follows: "Bardini," "Italian Renaissance" (polychrome and antique); "English Renaissance" (polychrome and antique); "Louis XV," "Gothic" (polychrome and antique); "Traymore," "Jacobean" (polychrome and antique); "Chippendale," "Adam," "Sheraton," "William and Mary" and "Colonial."

Good will of customers is vital to success.

ARTHUR H. CUSHMAN WITH EMERSON

Well-known Sales Executive Appointed Sales Director of Emerson Phonograph Co.—Splendidly Equipped for This New Post

B. Abrams, president of the Emerson Phonograph Co., New York, announced recently the appointment of Arthur H. Cushman as director of sales. Mr. Cushman assumed his new duties the first of December, although, strictly speaking, the word "new" should hardly be used, for Mr. Cushman was for a number of years an important factor in the development and growth of Emerson business under the old regime.

Mr. Cushman is well known to talking machine jobbers and dealers throughout the country, as he joined the Emerson organization several years ago and in the capacity of general sales manager built up an exceptionally capable and efficient sales staff. He studied the requirements of the jobbers and dealers in order to give them practical service and co-operation, and gained an intimate knowledge of the record business that was reflected in the growth of the Emerson sales.

More recently Mr. Cushman was associated with the Health Builders, manufacturers of the Walter Camp Daily Dozen, and in rejoining the Emerson organization he brings with him an invaluable knowledge of merchandising conditions that will be placed at the disposal of Emerson dealers.

David Goodman, who has been a member of the Emerson sales staff for quite some time, has been promoted to the position of assistant sales manager and will work in close co-operation with Mr. Cushman.

A. Lesser Features Concert and Music Memory Contest at Opening of New Victor Store at 631 Sutter Avenue in Our Sister Borough

A. Lesser held the formal opening of his handsome new talking machine store at 631 Sutter avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., on December 5, and attracted a large and interested crowd through the medium of some excellent advertising and the featuring of a concert by an Hawaiian quintet.

Mr. Lesser, who handles the Victor line, conducted a very successful music memory contest among the school children in his district, the final examination being held on the night of the opening. The first prize, a gold medal, was won by Anna Schamack, of Public School No. 149, the second prize by Elizabeth Schamack, of the same school, and the third prize by Calmer Fleicig, also of school 149, which is awarded the school banner. The second school banner went to school No. 173. An interesting feature of the opening program was the playing by the school orchestra from No. 149.

OPTIMISTIC FORECAST OF BUSINESS FOR 1923

A. H. Curry, Vice-president of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., Phonograph Division, Makes Interesting Analysis of Business With His House During Past Year—Message of Cheer

A. H. Curry, vice-president in charge of the phonograph division of Thos. A. Edison, Inc., talked in a highly optimistic vein regarding the trade outlook for 1923 when interviewed by The World recently.

He said there seemed no doubt but that the general improvement in Edison business, which has been manifest each month for some months past, predicates an excellent year in 1923, not only for the Edison Co., but for the Edison jobbers and dealers. He estimated that the increase at the factory end would be about 100 per cent over that for 1922; that the jobbers' business would increase about 75 per cent over that for the year, and that the dealers' business would increase on the average of 50 per cent over last year. For some years past the Edison Co. has kept a record of the ratio which has existed between the factory sales to jobbers and the jobber sales to dealers and the percentages enumerated above are based upon this table. The differences in the percentages of increase are, of course, due to the fact that the dealer is first to accomplish liquidation, the jobber next and the factory last.

Liquidation with the Edison retail trade has been practically completed and January 1, 1923, will see the smallest amount of stock on the floor of Edison retailers that has ever been the case. All of this, Mr. Curry feels, will cause a great deal of enthusiasm in so far as selling efforts during the forthcoming year are concerned.

Mr. Curry further feels that the retail dealers will see fit to carry a somewhat larger inventory of instruments than has been the case during the so-called period of depression. Where, in 1921 and the first half of 1922, twenty-five phonographs was quite a stock for the dealer to carry who was selling only from ten to fifteen per month, it is probable that the same dealer will be glad to stock fifty phonographs when he is turning over from sixty to seventy-five per month.

With liquidation accomplished and with the floor stocks at a low ebb the new year will start off on the basis where the dealers will purchase on a basis of actual needs and the jobbers will do likewise. That is a condition for which the Edison organization has been strenuously working for the last year and which the whole trade has hoped would obtain at an early date. Of the 50 per cent increase which Mr. Curry anticipates in the retail business of Edison dealers, he figures that one-half will be due to the new models which were introduced in 1922 and the consequent broadening of the Edison market and that the other half will be due to the general business improvement and increased prosperity of the nation.

He said that the introduction of the new Edison models had already been responsible for increasing the demand for certain of the older styles which had remained in inventory with the jobber until the latter part of the current year. This was a more or less unexpected reflex demand.

The new system of releasing records which the Edison Co. will employ starting in February next year, Mr. Curry believes, will go a long way toward enabling the retail merchant to operate his record department at a continuous profit. It will give the dealer a chance to always have something new to show those who drop in at his store and will in itself be a stimulus to local residents making frequent visits.

Mr. Curry feels that prices will remain stable during the coming year as there is nothing now to indicate any likelihood of a further reduction, due to the fact that there are no over-supplies of raw materials and labor costs do not show any tendency to drop for at least another year.

Surveys made by the Edison Co. indicate that 50 per cent of the potential buyers of phonographs are financially capable of buying or have the space to devote to console models and that as a consequence the total percentage for the industry should normally run something like 25 per cent console and 75 per cent upright models. However, Mr. Curry believes that energetic salesmanship is likely to cause many people to buy console models who should not logically do so and that as a consequence the ratio is more likely to run fifty-fifty.

Terms, Mr. Curry believes, will be definitely shortened during the coming year, chiefly because the purchasing public will be better able to pay for whatever it may be buying. The retail trade has always extended terms when times were bad in order to maintain volume, but when general business is good it has been generally found that a year is sufficient time for the average instalment sale and fifteen to twenty months about the maximum that should be allowed.

Mr. Curry doubts that there will be any radical changes in either phonographs or records and that the industry will proceed on a basis of refining what has already been established as its basic products. He does not feel that radio will prove a serious competitor of the phonograph and in general foresees an excellent year for all dealers who work vigorously and who operate their respective businesses with firm confidence.

EDUCATIONAL WORK IN COLUMBUS

Miss Streeter, of Victor Educational Department, Addresses Teachers, Parents and Music Lovers While in That City—Retailers Enjoying Healthy Volume of Holiday Business

COLUMBUS, O., December 11.—One of the features of the month was the recent visit to this city of Miss Margaret M. Streeter, of the Educational Department of the Victor Talking Machine Co., who delivered a number of addresses before local clubs and gatherings of teachers and music lovers on the question of carrying on education work through the medium of the talking machine and the importance of training children properly along musical lines.

It happened that Miss Streeter visited Columbus at a very opportune time, as the week of December 4 was known as Education Week in this city. In observing this week a special meeting of the Franklin County Parent Teacher Association Council was called for Thursday afternoon, December 7. Miss Streeter was invited to address this body. Because her audience on this occasion was composed of presidents of parent-teachers' associations and principals of public schools, Miss Streeter spoke on music appreciation from a different angle.

She commended the authorities of the State of Ohio for the appointment of Mrs. Nelle Sharp to the office of State Music Supervisor.

"Ohio is now in the class of a few other progressive States in the field of music. It was my pleasure to meet with Mrs. Sharp the other day and I was amazed at the splendid musical innovations Mrs. Sharp has already inaugurated. You are going to have fine results from the public schools in the rural and urban districts. I hope that you mothers and teachers will co-operate with Mrs. Sharp in her work which is needed in Ohio as in many other States in the Union," Miss Streeter said.

Dealers in this city are enjoying a healthy business in both records and machines. E. M. Levy, manager of the Victrola department of the Otto B. Heaton Co., 168 North High street, reports that a very good volume of business was done by this firm in the past month. Of course, with the approach of the holiday season a much larger volume of sales is anticipated. The smaller machines, particularly the new flat top, hundred-dollar consoles, have been very much in demand.

Leslie I. King, manager of the talking machine department of the Morehouse-Martens Co., High and Town streets, has added a number of new people to his sales force. They are Miss Bell Mathews, Miss Violet Hines, Miss Ethel Hoyt and B. C. Lynn. The type of work delegated to Miss Hoyt will take her out of the store. She will visit the homes of prospective customers. The other salespeople will do their selling in the store.

Every talking machine dealer, whether he conducts an exclusive talking machine business or carries that line of goods along with other lines as in department stores, has featured the talking machine records in attractive window displays in the past week. Practically all window displays were arranged so as to suggest a Christmas atmosphere. Among the firms whose window displays are unusually well arranged are the Morehouse-Martens Co., featuring both the Victrola and Brunswick talking machines; the C. C. Baker Co., who carry Victrolas and Columbias; Heaton's Music Store, the Elite Music Store, Spence Music Store, Robert L. Seeds Co., who carry the Columbia and Cheney phonographs, and the Stewart Bros. Furniture Co., Victor dealers.

PERU REVISES CUSTOMS TARIFF

The customs tariff on many commodities, including talking machines and pianos, has been revised by Peru, according to advices received by the Department of Commerce from Attache Dunn, located at Lima, Peru. The increased duties average 22 per cent.

Work on the fine new building of Adolph Winters, prominent music dealer of Richmond, Cal., is being rushed to completion and the large stock of Victrolas, records, pianos, etc., will soon be housed in the new quarters.

DON'T BE AN UNDERTAKER

That's the position of a piano man when only selling pianos. He's like the undertaker who only gets his man once.

More Piano and Phonograph dealers have added Musical Merchandise Departments in 1922 than at any other time in the history of the Music Trade.

Every one of these dealers unanimously proclaims success with their adventure—no dull days—and the quick turnover of their new department more than pays all their overhead expenses.

A bigger year is ahead of you than can possibly be anticipated if you can supply your trade with the right kind of merchandise!

The policy of the house of Durro is: SUPPLYING DEPENDABLE NATIONAL- LY ADVERTISED MERCHANDISE OF QUALITY.

This is one reason that all merchants find it easy to sell such instruments as

BALTIMORE

Business Jumps From Fifty to Three Hundred Per Cent Over Last Year's Figures—Department Stores Dig for Business—The News

BALTIMORE, MD., December 8.—The talking machine business has been exceptionally good since Fall trade started in and a number of the jobbers report last month as the best November in the history of their business, increases over the corresponding month of 1921 being placed as high as 300 per cent and the lowest 50 per cent. The only question now confronting the jobbers is that of being able to fill orders on their books for the holiday trade. Few of the jobbers expect to be able to do this unless the factories make unusually heavy shipments and present freight conditions improve.

Naturally the retail stores have also had a considerably better business both last month and so far in December and this notwithstanding the fact that the department stores this year are all making extensive drives in their talking machine departments.

One of the disturbing factors in the present trade situation is the advertising of machines of standard make at cut prices by one of the large department stores, which, in addition to price inducement, is offering free records.

In addition, the same store also advertises the Eltinola No. 100 phonograph at $29.75. Other makes of phonographs advertised at cut-rate prices in other department stores are the Player-tone, $59.95; the Arietta, $79.75; the Supreme, $69.50; the Vitanola, $95.00; the Supertone, $69.50; the Ellbronola, $79, and the Pathé, $95.00.

A concerted effort on the part of talking machine shops, department stores and furniture houses to make this a talking machine Christmas is being made in the way of extensive advertising in the daily papers. Large and attractive displays are also being featured in the show windows of all shops and stores, which is backed up by attractive advertising in the daily papers.

Pollack's furniture store is featuring the Granby in a Christmas club proposition. The Caulfield Piano Co., on Eutaw street, is making an extensive drive on the Edison machine and reports big business. The E. Paul Hamilton Co., on North Howard street, reports excellent trade in and big demand for the Cheney, while the demand for other well-known makes is equally good.

Manager Roberts, of E. F. Droop & Sons Co., says business so far this year, even without all the holiday trade, is away ahead of last year's record.

Manager Shaw, of the Brunswick agency, says that business of this branch last month more than doubled that of any month in the history of the agency here. Two new Brunswick accounts opened this month are N. Davis & Sons, of Pocomoke City, Md., exclusive dealers, and R. W. Norman Co., of Salisbury, N. C.

Mr. Shaw has just returned from Norfolk, Va., where he went to attend the opening of the Sprinkle Piano Co.'s store on December 9.

A canvass of the retail shops shows conclusively that practically all dealers are very optimistic as to the outlook for the Christmas trade and unless there is a big slump in the business between now and Christmas the holiday trade this year will, no doubt, be greater than any in the history of the business, with the possible exception of the wartime trade, which, of course, was of abnormal volume.

FINE YEAR FOR FRED. GRETSCH

December Will Close Biggest Month in History of Fred. Gretsch Mfg. Co.

"An exceptional year in every respect," is the way E. E. Strong, sales manager of the Fred. Gretsch Mfg. Co., importer and wholesaler of musical merchandise, Brooklyn, N. Y., described 1922. "December will close as the biggest month in the history of the Fred. Gretsch Mfg. Co., with November a very close second. December was a record month not only in the number of instruments, but in dollars and cents as well. In addition to the large amount of increased business from our old dealers we opened many new accounts during 1922. These new dealers report much success in the handling of musical merchandise. One specific instance was a dealer in Hempstead, L. I., who, although only opened a few months, has just made his fifth sale of a saxophone and for spot cash, too. The continued great popularity of musical merchandise, together with the large number of dealers who have added, or are contemplating adding musical merchandise departments, would indicate a very prosperous year for 1923."

Walter Gretsch, whose return from European markets was announced last month, reports somewhat chaotic conditions in the continental manufacturing industries, but a manifested disposition on the part of all to remedy this condition as quickly as possible is in evidence and these efforts will, no doubt, clear the situation somewhat in the not far distant future.

Brisk and Growing Trade Leads to Holiday Optimism—Stores in Gala Attire—Gift Appeal in Ads

DETROIT, MICH., December 8.—The talking machine business in this city is exceptionally brisk and dealers report that they expect to close one of the best years in history. Pre-holiday buying has set in already to a very marked degree. Interest in the consoles offered by the various makers is running high and sales of these models are expected to set a record in themselves. Uprights and table models are also evoking a share of attention that is proportionate with a well-established model.

With the coming of colder weather, interest in radio has taken a big spurt and dealers handling radio outfits and combination talking machines and radio cabinets report that they are receiving a great many inquiries daily in regard to these instruments.

Practically all of the music stores of the city are garbed in their holiday attire, or are busily being decked out at this writing. Advertising of many firms in the city stresses the value of talking machines and records for Christmas gifts.

Comment is being caused by the action of a number of the dealers of the city in offering machines of a reputable make, together with a number of selections, at excessively low terms. Dealers who are not a party to such offers, but who handle the same makes of phonographs, are inclined to the opinion that such a policy is an undesirable one.

Charles W. Smith, manager of the Detroit Music Co., which handles Columbia Grafonolas and records, in addition to pianos, reports that business has been fairly brisk. The new process Columbia records have made a big hit with his patrons, he says.

The J. L. Hudson Music Store, carrying Victorolas, Brunswicks and Cheney phonographs, reports that sales for November were almost on a par with the biggest month in its history.

The Edison Shop, as the name suggests, handles only the Edison phonograph and is enjoying a very brisk business. An interesting case came to light recently at the Edison Shop, with the sale of one of these machines to a customer. The buyer proved to be the tenth member of a family which had purchased Edison phonographs, since the first member of the family had made his original purchase some two years previous. Edison still continues to be the first in Detroit with the latest popular dance hits. One of the most popular records is a piano number of "Three o'Clock in the Morning," by Ernest Stevens.

The Brunswick Shop, exclusive Brunswick dealer, bids fair to be away up at the top of the list of Brunswick dealers, for whom 1922 has been a most successful year. J. Francis Quinn, general manager of the Shop, has an exceptionally high-powered sales force. The Brunswick organization is making a strenuous bid for supremacy here and in Michigan in general. Some of the very best accounts possible to attain, both in Detroit and throughout the State, have been secured by the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co.

H. A. Barnard, of the Barnard Music Co., Jackson, Mich., was a visitor to the Detroit Brunswick Shop on December 7, where he renewed friendships with the members of that firm and gave a brief statement of business conditions in Jackson. Mr. Barnard is an exclusive Brunswick dealer, having handled that line for the past three years. Business conditions in Jackson are not as good as they are in Detroit, owing to the fact that the industrial revival there has been slower in getting under way. Jackson is not only a manufacturing center, but is also a railroad center and the recent troubles in the rail shops have hindered the revival of business conditions to quite an extent.

DUR-A-TONE RECORD CO. FORMED

New Newark, N. J., Concern Organized by G. Howlett Davis—Will Make Talking Machine Records by New Process

G. Howlett Davis, president of the Standard Music Roll Co., Orange, N. J., recently organized a new company for the purpose of manufacturing a new talking machine record which embodies some exclusive patented ideas. The record is formed of laminations of flexible fibrous material with a thin veneer of shellac. It is said that it can be produced at a much lower price than the present records. The new firm will operate under the name Dur-A-Tone Record Co., with offices at 15 Park Place, Newark, N. J.

LOS ANGELES

Start Big Brunswick Publicity Drive—W. S. Gray at Strand Conclave—Vocalion Concert—Association Dance—Other News

LOS ANGELES, CAL., December 4.—Although reports indicate that business is excellent with all the talking machine departments, sales, big as they were in the aggregate for the month of November, did not show the heavy increase over the preceding months as was anticipated. Perhaps September and October, following close on the heels of a wonderful Summer business, were so unusual that a temporary high-water mark was reached. However, November was really very good and, as the saying goes, there were "no kicks coming." Again, if we turn to the wholesalers and jobbers, reports are simply astounding—business swamped all past records and was almost overwhelming and out-of-hand. The reason for this is easily seen, of course, namely, that the dealers were stocking up in anticipation of a monster December holiday trade.

Big Brunswick Guns of Publicity

The Brunswick dealers of Los Angeles started some big half-page newspaper advertisements in all the morning and afternoon papers on November 27 which will continue until Christmas. G. H. Barnes, president of the Barnes Music Co., was appointed chairman of the committee of advertising managers who prepared the copy and he and his conferees have done an excellent job. The Brunswick Co. shared in the expense which was borne jointly with the leading Brunswick dealers of Los Angeles and Hollywood, both exclusive and combination dealers.

Parmelee-Dohrmann Pleased

The talking machine department of the Parmelee-Dohrmann Co. has just celebrated the first anniversary of the opening of its department. Extensive alterations, enlargements and improvements have also been made throughout the main store, which bears the enviable reputation of being one of the highest class concerns in the Southland. The Cheney phonograph and Vocalion records are carried exclusively and the department is under the management of Mrs. H. P. Howard.

Gray Visits Strand Convention

Walter S. Gray, president of the Walter S. Gray Co., jobber of phonograph accessories and distributor of the Strand phonograph, attended the convention of Strand phonograph distributors at Salem, Ind., last month. He returned via Los Angeles and reported that the convention, which was attended by twenty-three distributors, was a very great success and that, in addition to learning about the new Strand sales plans for 1923, two new models were shown. Mr. Gray was especially pleased with the showing of the Los Angeles branch, which was opened in June under the local management of J. J. Grimsey. Sales indicate an increase of 100 per cent over last year.

Wiley B. Allen Shows Big Increase

E. P. Tucker, general manager of the Wiley B. Allen Co.'s southern California division, reports a splendid business during the month of November in the Brunswick and Victor department of the Los Angeles store. He declares that all previous sales totals have been beaten in this department, of which W. Bell is manager. Mr. Tucker also spoke very highly of the steady increase of sales in the record department, which is in charge of Freda Stephan.

Cecil B. De Mille Buys Victrola

W. H. Richardson, president of Richardson's, Inc., has always specialized in Victrola sales to members of the motion picture world and recently sold a Victrola XIV to the famous producer, Cecil de Mille. The instrument was purchased for use on Mr. de Mille's private yacht and some alterations had to be made when it was finally installed in its new home. Mr. Richardson also sold a $375 console model to Helene Chadwick, Paramount star, last week.

Vocalion Artist in Concert

John Charles Thomas, gifted baritone, appeared in concert at the Philharmonic Auditorium in the latter part of last month and was accorded a great reception. Incidentally this was the first concert to be given under the direction of the Fitzgerald Concert Bureau, and Merle Armitage made a point of giving complimentary tickets to the Thomas concert to all the salesladies of the various Vocalion record departments, believing that they had in sales talks to customers given a considerable amount of publicity to the concert.

Association Gives Dance

Members of nearly all the various talking machine departments attended the dance given by the Music Trades Association of Southern California on November 16 at the Goldberg Bosley School of Dancing. A good time was enjoyed by all and many compliments were paid to the excellent orchestra which was provided by Dick Schattinger, piano salesman of Hamburger's Music Salons. J. W. Boothe, general manager of Barker Bros. music department, was chairman of the entertainment committee and arranged for the evening's gaiety. President Tucker, H. N. Briggs, A. C. Danz, Irving Andrews, H. T. McCallon, Harley Long and J. Patten were among those present. Mrs. H. P. Howard, of the Parmelee-Dohrmann Co., and Mrs. Dear, of Barker Bros., and Miss Hallenbeck, of the Broadway Department Store, acted as hostesses during the evening.

Barker Bros. Report Increase

Barker Bros. report a wonderful increase of sales in the Sonora and Victor department during the month of November. J. W. Boothe, general manager, states that he is fearful of a shortage of stock for December business, which

The record sales counter has been enlarged and arrangements have been made to install at least a dozen additional record demonstration rooms for the Victor and Vocalion record departments in order that the great holiday rush can be taken care of. These extra booths will be temporary only and will be taken down after Christmas, the regular space being adequate for ordinary times.

Pasadena House Enlarges

Long's Music House, of Pasadena, has recently undergone extensive alterations and improvements. The entire store was renovated, in fact, and a large mezzanine floor has been added. Fifteen phonograph and record rooms are now available for the sale of Brunswick phonographs and Brunswick records. A reception was held by Mr. and Mrs. Harley Long on the occasion of the formal opening of the store, which was attended by a very large crowd who extended congratulations to their host and hostess.

Edison Dealer Builds

Carl G. Strock, Edison dealer of Santa Ana, has just completed important changes in his Edison department and built additional space for its enlargement. It presents a very attractive appearance and includes six demonstration rooms for records and three phonograph sales rooms.

MAGNAVOX CO. AIDS DEALERS

Issuing First Number of House Organ, the "Magnavox"—Preparing Educational Dealer Campaign on Radio—Fine Sales Reported

W. R. Davis, sales manager of the Magnavox Co., manufacturer of the Magnavox amplifying horn for use in conjunction with radio receiving sets and also for the amplification of music from the ordinary talking machine, reports that sales for this popular horn have kept the factory extremely busy during the past six months. Distributors throughout the country report that sales have been far beyond expectations and that all indications point to a very prosperous Winter for everybody concerned.

This month the Magnavox advertising department is issuing to the trade the first number of the "Magnavox," a house organ designed to help the dealer merchandise Magnavox products. This organ is a high-class one in every respect and is filled with constructive ideas and suggestions that are bound to materially assist the dealer in building up a profitable business on a substantial and lasting basis.

In a chat with The World Mr. Davis was keenly enthusiastic about the possibilities of radio with the talking machine dealer. "However," he stated, "the talking machine dealer and, in fact, every dealer who is now handling radio, or contemplating doing so, is sadly deficient in his knowledge of the technical side of these instruments, and, to overcome this, the Magnavox Co. is preparing a campaign designed to give the dealer a thorough education in the most important technical requirements of radio to enable him to merchandise in an intelligent manner. To back up the dealer we are preparing for 1923 a national advertising campaign that is bound to create a large demand for Magnavox products, and we hope that by co-operating with the dealer by direct contact with him we will be able to fit him so he can capitalize on the demand created by this aggressive campaign."

Another distinguishing feature is that it is adjustable for the different width records, that is, ten inches narrow, ten inches wide or twelve inches. It cannot mar or scratch the record as the foot lever which shifts the tone arm is slightly elevated. Descriptive literature has been prepared and territory is being allotted to dealers and jobbers.

HAPPENINGS IN THE DOMINION OF CANADA

MONTREAL DEALERS ANTICIPATE BRISK HOLIDAY TRADE

Decrease in Unemployment and Increase in Inquiries Basic Reasons for Optimism—Need for Education in Radio Field—Trade Changes and Activities of the Month

MONTREAL, CAN., December 8.—The majority of dealers here anticipate a good holiday trade. For the first time in many months unemployment is decreasing, which is a bright spot on the horizon. They also report improved collections, more inquiries and have generally an optimistic feeling that has been lacking for a long time.

Dealers, wholesalers and manufacturers should take a little of their time in educating their patrons in the science of radio. The general fervor of the recent rush has abated and now the buying public wants to learn as much as it can; how to operate the sets they now have in order to get the best results, etc.

Gauvin & Courchesne, His Master's Voice dealers, Quebec City, ran considerable newspaper copy featuring the personal appearance in that city of Galli Curci. They report a heavy sale of her records.

The Vincent Lopez Orchestra recently played a week's engagement at the Princess Theatre and made a big hit.

New firms registering in Montreal include Radio Victrola Optic Co.

William Lee, Ltd., is doing some heavy advertising exploiting Columbia Grafonolas and Columbia records.

C. W. Lindsay, Ltd., Columbia and Sonora dealer, recently gave over its handsome show windows to a display of Sonora console models, each particular type being labeled with the style number and price in plain figures.

W. W. O'Hara, Ltd., is featuring a Columbia Grafonola Club.

C. Robitaille, Quebec City, has increased his stock of His Master's Voice products, both in machines and records.

Showing the comparison between the old-time Victrola and the present-day console model, J. J. Flynn recently had on view in his show window one of the first Victrolas made. The display attracted considerable attention.

Among the communications read before the City Council the past month was a protest against cotton advertising signs, announcing sales, bankruptcies and failures, on the grounds that they disfigure the appearance of the streets, that they suggest local business being in bad shape and that they constitute a serious fire menace owing to the inflammable material used.

Extensive improvements are being made to the plant of the Berliner Gramophone Co., Ltd., this city, resulting, it is expected, in an increase of efficiency.

The Victrola department of this plant is especially busy. As carload after carload of these instruments arrives and is unloaded, gangs of men are there to open, carefully inspect, repack and reship, which means that a constant stream of Victrolas is entering and leaving the building at the same time. "We expected a big rush on Victrolas and prepared for it," said C. G. J. White, of the company, "but it has gone beyond our expectations."

Ruthven McDonald, the well-known baritone of Toronto, spent a week in Montreal at the recording laboratories of the Compo Co., Ltd., singing for Apex records under the personal supervision of H. S. Berliner.

Very attractive Brilliantone display cases put out by the Musical Merchandise Sales Co. can now be seen in nearly every talking machine store in Montreal and dealers report increased needle business from the fact that their needles are now displayed in such a manner that they attract attention.

IMPROVED BUSINESS IN WINNIPEG

Optimism Prevails Throughout Trade—Many Changes and Alterations During the Month—News of Other Activities

WINNIPEG, MAN., December 8.—G. R. Dring, of Calgary, who travels Alberta and British Columbia for the Musical Merchandise Sales Co., Toronto, said that business was exceptionally good and that all the dealers were optimistic.

Carle A. Brodie, of the Blue Bird Song Shop, Brunswick dealer, has moved to more commodious premises further west on Jasper avenue.

Robinson & Co., large department store, announce the reopening of their talking machine department.

George C. Gower, of Child & Gower Piano Co., Ltd., Regina, Sask., is being congratulated on his marriage, the latter part of November, to Miss Ella Neilly.

Alterations are being made in the Willis & Knabe showrooms, Calgary, Alta. This applies especially to the phonograph department.

The appearance in Winnipeg of Edward Johnson, the Canadian tenor, was taken advantage of by His Master's Voice, Victor dealers, to push his records and large sales of his records are reported.

E. C. Scythes, of the Scythes-Vocalion Co., Ltd., was a recent visitor to Edmonton. Tom Robinson, of the Robinson Piano & Music Co., who has at last secured a fine store opposite the MacDonald Hotel, is his agent here. Mr. Robinson reports an extraordinary demand for the English catalog of the Vocalion records.

Business for the Matthew's Music House, Ltd., Calgary, Alta., has been improving rapidly during the last week or ten days. This firm, in addition to the Brunswick line, handles a big line of pianos. Shelley Higgin has been added to the sales staff.

W. A. Dietrich, sales manager of the Starr Co. of Canada, Ltd., London, was a recent business visitor to Edmonton, Alta. Following out a new scheme of distribution he has appointed Revillion as his wholesale distributor in Edmonton and district.

Gordon H. Bender, representative for Sonora Phonographs, Ltd., was a business visitor here during the past month.

Louis Graveure, Columbia artist, and Reinald Werrenrath, Victor artist, appeared in recital in Winnipeg lately and drew capacity houses.

W. F. Evans, Ltd., Vancouver, B. C., announces that its Brunswick Christmas Club has got away to a good start, a fine response being given to a unique co-operative plan.

TALKING MACHINE DEALERS IN TORONTO VERY ACTIVE

Combination Phonograph and Table Lamp Placed on Market by Local Concern—Toronto Music Men Participate in Fair—Sonora Phonograph, Ltd., Moves—Other News

TORONTO, ONT., December 8.—A new Canadian invention has just been placed on the market in the form of a combination phonograph and table lamp, which is being manufactured in Toronto by Crescent Electrics, Ltd. Thomas J. Strachan, head of the firm, is the inventor.

Fred Ball, of Orme, Ltd., Ottawa, was the "silent booster" at the luncheon of the Canadian Association of Specialty Salesmen which was held at the Russell Hotel, Ottawa, on October 7. One of his prizes was a miniature Victrola in bronze.

The town of Oakville, Ont., where so many Toronto business men now reside and which is the home of quite a group of members of the Toronto music industries, had a great fair this Fall. In addition to the usual fair entries there was a historical pageant on an ambitious scale, which was enjoyed by thousands of visitors. It was under the directorship of R. H. Murray, manager of His Master's Voice, Ltd.

Sonora Phonographs, Ltd., has moved from 172 John street to premises in the Otto Higel Co. building at the corner of King and Bathurst streets to adequately handle growing business.

George W. Lyle, New York, president of the Manufacturers' Phonograph Co., Inc., of that city, paid a flying visit to Toronto recently. Mr. Lyle spent a day with Otis C. Dorian, who has the sales representation of the Strand line of phonographs in the West.

Simplicity characterized the special Thanksgiving window feature in the Yonge street store of R. S. Williams & Sons Co., Ltd., Toronto, during Thanksgiving week. A baby Edison console phonograph occupied the center of an arch on which were neatly arranged several Edison re-creations.

Geo. W. Lyle, who is quite familiar with the trade in Canada through long experience, having visited the different centers on various occasions, was greatly surprised and, incidentally, not the less pleased, with the amount of Canadian business being booked for the Strand line. When in Toronto Mr. Lyle remarked upon the very satisfactory improvement in business in the United States, the return to activity being remarkably rapid.

Repairing an Old Cylinder Machine
Austin, Minn., Nov. 26, 1922.

A. H. Dodin,

Talking Machine World.

Dear Sir:—I have an Edison Standard model cylinder two and four-minute machine in my shop for repair, and find it a difficult problem. There is a loss of power when belt is put on mandrel wheel with feed in contact with worm, although not any too much feed pressure, as it is just enough to feed over. A new feed nut has been put on. Do you think it can be that the new feed nut and the old worm do not work together? The worm doesn't seem to be at all worn. Sleeve for mandrel shaft was tight, but I have ground it down or opened it up with emery cloth, so it seems to turn free now and does not seem too tight or too loose.

Every gear seems to work free but no results seem to develop. The slide rod for the reproducer frame is well oiled, but there seems to be too much load somewhere. Could it be possible that the wrong feed nut has been put on, for instance, one belonging to a Fire-side or some other model?

It is a machine built originally for both two and four-minute records and not one with an attachment put on it, but I cannot get it to play a record through before the speed dies down.

Please give me some light on the matter if you can think of what the trouble might be. Give me an outline of the procedure to follow and I will try again before giving it up.

Answer: Having read of what you have done to this machine there seems to be little left to go over. I would see that the machine had the proper main spring, that there was not too much graphite in the cage (which would prevent proper pull). Also be sure that the belt is not too tight.

If, as you say, you have gone over all the gearings, make sure that the mandrel shaft is not tight in the pivot bearings, and you will have nothing left to attend to with the exception of the feed nut.

The feed nut has been the cause of most of the troubles in the cylinder machines, and it is very hard for me to judge your trouble in this case, particularly when you are not positive whether you are using the correct feed nut on the machine. On the other hand, the feed screw on the shaft may be bruised or worn in such a way that the feed nut will not feed and will cause the machine to stop.

Your trouble undoubtedly lies in the use of an improper main spring and the proper feed nut.

No Book on Machine Repairing
Chicago, Ill., Nov. 24, 1922.

A. H. Dodin,

Talking Machine World.

Dear Sir:—While reading The Talking Machine World I noticed that you are giving advice on repairing of talking machines. I would like to ask you if there is any book published on that subject or that line.

I sometimes do repair some machines but I'm not very good at it, therefore I'm asking about the books. Do you think I could buy one somewhere?—L. J. Schiffner.

Answer:—I do not know of any book published which deals exclusively with the repairing of talking machines. Up to date, the repairman has had to depend on the booklets and catalogs issued by the various talking machine companies. These booklets just give the reader an accurate description and diagram of the particular motor or sound box made by the company issuing same. What to do when anything happens that is not described in the booklet is left for the repairman to figure out for himself. I am sure that it would be a good idea for someone to write up a book on the repair question, and I hope it will not be long before such a book will appear for the benefit of all repairmen in the industry.

STRAND ORGANIZATION IS EFFICIENT AND EXPERIENCED

Manufacturers Phonograph Co. Has Developed Capable and Aggressive Sales Staff—Strand Representatives Well Equipped to Give Dealers Practical Service

As announced in the November issue of The Talking Machine World the Manufacturers' Phonograph Co., New York, maker of the well-known Strand phonograph, celebrated last month its first anniversary. This anniversary was fittingly commemorated by important sales meetings at the Strand factories in Salem, Ind., where Geo. W. Lyle, president of the company, conferred with the members of his sales staff relative to 1922 accomplishments and 1923 plans.

A considerable measure of the phenomenal success attained by the Strand phonograph may be attributed to the splendid sales organization developed by Mr. Lyle. He has appointed representatives in the leading trade centers whose experience and qualifications have enabled them to co-operate to excellent advantage with Strand dealers. They have advanced practical sales suggestions that have stimulated business for the dealers and it is gratifying to note that without exception all of these Strand representatives are closing in 1922 a year far beyond their highest expectations.

In the accompanying illustration there are presented the photographs of some of the representatives who have contributed so much to the success of the Manufacturers' Phonograph Co. and the Strand line. Practically all these "live-wire" representatives are well known in the talking machine trade and they have won the esteem and friendship of the dealers in their territories through the co-operation they have extended.

E. A. Fearn, president of the Consolidated Talking Machine Co., Chicago, Ill., is one of the most successful wholesale men in the Middle West. His company has expanded rapidly and his Strand activities have been an outstanding feature in the Chicago trade the past year, having established many important dealer accounts.

Walter L. Eckhardt, head of the General Radio Corp., Philadelphia, is one of the veterans of the talking machine trade. A thoroughly capable and efficient wholesale executive, Mr. Eckhardt includes among his friends practically every successful dealer in Philadelphia territory. His intimate knowledge of every detail of retail merchandising has enabled him to place the Strand in the front ranks of the Philadelphia talking machine field.

Walter S. Gray, head of Walter S. Gray & Co., San Francisco, Cal., is another member of the talking machine trade entitled to the term "veteran." He is generally recognized as the leading independent, wholesale distributor on the Pacific Coast, and has built up a successful business, founded on confidence and experience.

Arthur C. Erisman, head of the Grafonola Co. of New England, Boston, Mass., dates back his talking machine experience to 1900, and since that time has been an important factor in the New England trade. His recognition of the requirements of New England dealers has enabled him to give the Strand line remarkably efficient and productive representation in this important territory.

M. E. Lyle, head of his own company at tail merchandising has enabled him to place the Strand in the front ranks of the Philadelphia talking machine field.

Walter S. Gray, head of Walter S. Gray & Co., San Francisco, Cal., is another member of the talking machine trade entitled to the term "veteran." He is generally recognized as

Atlanta, Ga., is another "old time" executive who, although a young man in point of years, has spent practically his entire business life in the talking machine field. In a particularly difficult territory Mr. Lyle has made remarkable progress, opening up Strand dealers in practically every important trade center in his section of the South.

As vice-president of the Artophone Corp., St. Louis and Kansas City, Mo., H. S. Schiele is identified with one of the most progressive wholesale concerns in the industry. The Artophone sales organization is an enthusiastic Strand booster, and this line is making rapid headway throughout every section in the St. Louis territory.

Geo. C. Silzer, of Silzer Bros., with headquarters in Des Moines and covering the important States of Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota, was formerly associated with Harger & Blish, of Des Moines, and is recognized throughout his territory as an exceptionally capable phonograph man.

Stephen W. Wirts, who is associated with Ricken, Seeger & Wirts, of Detroit, is a keen admirer of the Strand line, devoting a considerable part of his time to the development of Strand business in Detroit.

O. C. Dorian, head of the Manufacturers' Sales Co., of Toronto, is another veteran of the phonograph industry, having been identified with the Columbia organization for many years. Mr. Dorian is familiar with every angle of the Canadian trade and through his efforts the Strand line is fast winning the recognition it deserves in Canada.

perience in this industry dates back some ten years, and during the past year he has not only developed a splendid Strand business in this territory, but has won the personal friendship and esteem of the dealers everywhere.

H. J. Ivey, Strand representative at Dallas, has been identified with the phonograph industry for fifteen years, spending practically all of this time in the Middle West and Southwest. Texas dealers are receiving excellent service from him, as he is familiar with their needs and requirements.

Wm. Ogden Cardell, with headquarters at Tulsa, Okla., has traveled throughout that territory for one wholesale furniture house for nearly fifteen years. There is hardly a dealer in that territory whom he does not know by his first name and this friendship is reflected in the ever-increasing Strand sales totals throughout Oklahoma.

B. F. Clare, head of the Iroquois Sales Corp. in Buffalo, is devoting considerable time to the development of Strand activities in this part of New York State. The results of his efforts are evidenced in the many new Strand accounts that have been opened recently.

Richard L. Chilvers, Strand representative at Montreal, has been identified with the Canadian phonograph industry for thirteen years and as a Strand representative in this territory is meeting with splendid success.

L. D. Heater, with headquarters at Portland, Ore., has established a general wholesale business in the Northwest and is steadily expanding. Mr. Heater is opening up new Strand accounts with regularity, giving them excellent service and co-operation.

R. J. Jamieson, whose headquarters are located at Cleveland, O., has been identified with the Ohio wholesale talking machine trade for many years, and is generally recognized as one of the most indefatigable workers in that territory. He is a great believer in personal contact, visiting the dealers at frequent intervals and keeping in close touch with their requirements.

Ben L. Brown, manager of the Sterling Roll & Record Co., Cincinnati, O., is a graduate of the Columbia organization, with which he was identified for fifteen years. Mr. Brown is a capable, experienced sales executive, whose enthusiasm regarding the Strand product is being reflected in the success his organization is attaining.

H. H. Kaliski, representing the Strand in New Orleans, La., and the surrounding territory, has to his credit a detailed knowledge of conditions in the South that has enabled him to give the Strand exceptionally fine representation in this important section.

OUR INSTRUMENTS IN BIRMINGHAM

American Player-pianos and Talking Machines in High Favor in English City

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 4.—American player-pianos and graphophones hold high favor in Birmingham, England, according to a report from Consul J. F. Jewell, and are bought whenever obtainable. While there is little evidence of direct importation into this territory there is considerable business carried on with what would appear to be articles of certain American firms who have factories located in Great Britain. These instruments are of very high merit and appeal to a good class market. Although the sale of German pianos is increasing they are now very largely bought from agents in London as it has been found that individual compliance with the full requirements of direct importation from that country are irksome and involved.

DAVIS PHONOGRAPH CO. BUYS FACTORY

OTTO HEINEMAN TO EUROPE

President of General Phonograph Corp. Will Sail December 16—Recently Returned From Western Trip—Found Conditions Excellent

Otto Heineman, president of the General Phonograph Corp., New York, accompanied by Mrs. Heineman, will sail on the S.S. "Majestic" December 16 for a short stay abroad. Mr. and Mrs. Heineman are planning to spend the Christmas holidays in Europe, returning to New York shortly after the first of the year.

A few days ago Mr. Heineman returned to his desk from a flying trip through the Middle West during the course of which he visited Chicago and St. Louis. At the former city he held a conference with S. A. Ribolla, general manager of the General Phonograph Corp. of Illinois, and was delighted to find that this organization was closing a business far beyond all expectations. The outlook for 1923 is very encouraging and Okeh records throughout the Middle West are gaining in popularity by leaps and bounds.

W. PHILLIPS ENDS WESTERN TRIP

President of Wm. Phillips Phono Parts Corp. Finds Manufacturers Active—Firm Starts Marketing of Two New Tone-arms

William Phillips, president of the Wm. Phillips Phono Parts Corp., returned to New York last week after a very successful trip through the West. Mr. Phillips reported much activity among the manufacturers and decided confidence in the outlook for the industry for 1923 in evidence everywhere.

The Wm. Phillips Phono Parts Corp. is placing on the market, at this time, two new tone-arms, which are variations of the well-known Nos. 1 and 2 tone-arms of the Phillips line. This will permit models Nos. 1 and 2 to be obtained in the throw-back type as well as in the regular straight type as heretofore.

THE ATTITUDE OF THE DEALER TOWARD ADVERTISING

L. C. Lincoln, Advertising Manager of the Sonora Phonograph Co., Writes a Most Interesting Article on a Subject That Is Vital to Progressive Members of the Industry

In a recent issue of the "Sonora Bell," the house organ that is published monthly by the Sonora Phonograph Co., L. C. Lincoln, advertising manager of the company, contributes an interesting article under the heading of "The Attitude of the Dealer Towards Advertising." In this article Mr. Lincoln states as follows:

"A recent investigation by the Bureau of Business Research of the New York University on the attitude of the retailer toward the manufacturer's advertising brought out some very interesting information. Most of this was not unknown to the Sonora Advertising Department, nevertheless it is a good thing to have one's opinions, which naturally are based on past experience, corroborated by others equally experienced.

"Few merchants probably realize that the advertising departments of manufacturers are always interested and desirous of receiving their opinions and views. Each merchant's ideas could not, of course, be put into actual practice, but those of the greater number are invariably used when contributed. The sending of questionnaires to merchants is not always satisfactory because merchants frequently have personal reasons for not wishing to present certain information to manufacturers. It is for this reason that the New York University Bureau of Business Research sent out questionnaires direct to the manufacturers themselves in the hope that many of them had made personal investigations on the subject and by gathering in as many reports as possible valuable information would be acquired.

"According to the 219 prominent manufacturers reporting on the subject, the dealers' preference for the media used by manufacturers is in the order following: (1) Daily newspapers, (2) Sunday newspapers, (3) Weekly magazines, (4) Monthly magazines, (5) Women's magazines, (6) Car cards, (7) Outdoor signs, (8) Direct mail. This is just about the way the Sonora advertising department decided a year ago and its 1922 advertising was planned accordingly.

"Sonora general publicity originally was through weekly and monthly magazines, outdoor signs and a small showing in the newspapers. Changing conditions, however, have caused changed opinions, and during 1922 the greater proportion of Sonora publicity has been directed into the newspapers. Outdoor advertising is still used extensively, but is gradually passing out in favor of newspapers.

"This investigation also brought out that only 25 per cent of the dealers are keenly interested in the manufacturers' advertising, 50 per cent mildly, 20 per cent not interested and 5 per cent antagonistic. It is encouraging to note, however, that more than 96 per cent stated that the interest in the manufacturers' advertising is increasing.

"I do not believe that these percentages would apply to the phonograph trade, as I fail to see such a lack of interest by dealers in the advertising of a manufacturer of any but the most unheard-of makes of phonographs. Some make the very best possible use of the catalogs, lithographs, signs, electros, etc., sent to them, but there are others who do not even open the wrappers of the material they receive and it lies around until a general housecleaning occurs. Even a small proportion of dealers making no use of advertising material sent to them reacts unfavorably on all other dealers, the public and the manufacturer.

"These dealers usually believe that the use and display of advertising material does not assist them in making sales. Some make the assertion boldly; others do not express their opinions, but actions speak louder than words. Waste in some kinds of advertising is impossible to overcome, but unless the advertisers, many of whom are experienced in spending millions of dollars annually, are all wrong and the dealers who do not believe in advertising are right, then such dealers should at least make proper use of all available dealer helps. And it is a self-evident fact that the man who spends vast sums of money for advertising year after year is more likely to know why he is doing it than the man who not only will spend nothing, but refuses to make use of advertising material supplied free of charge.

"Practically all advertising appropriations are based upon a certain proportion of the sales, and as advertising material costs money—some of it much money—waste in advertising, failing to influence its proportion of sales, adds to the cost of the product. In other words, productive advertising makes possible lower and stabilized prices, but wasteful advertising prevents lower prices and often fails to prevent increased prices."

CORLEY CO. SUFFERS FIRE LOSS

About $150,000 Damage Done to Company's Stock and Building in Richmond by Fire Which Starts in Basement—Temporary Quarters Secured by Company to Handle Business

RICHMOND, VA., December 4.—The Corley Co., Inc., prominent piano and music merchant of this city and also Victor talking machine wholesaler for this district, suffered a loss estimated at $150,000 as a result of a fire which broke out in the basement of the company's building at 213 East Broad street here late last month and completely destroyed approximately 200,000 records, together with other stock in the basement, as well as causing considerable loss through smoke and water to goods on the upper floors.

The fire gave the firemen a stubborn fight, practically all the apparatus in the city being called to the scene, and although the flames were confined to the basement of the Corley building, it was nearly four hours before the blaze was under control. The store runs from Broad to Grace street and the length of the basement proved a handicap in getting at the flames, which greatly retarded efficient operations by the firemen.

According to officers of the company, about twenty rare violins, several of them worth close to $1,500, were destroyed in the fire.

The Corley Co. immediately opened a temporary office at Third and Grace streets, to be occupied until such time as the burned structure can be repaired. Additional stock was ordered from manufacturers and it is hoped that there will be little interruption of business as a result of the fire. A temporary store has also been opened to take care of the new stock as it arrives and business is being continued as heretofore.

The officers of the Corley Co. are John G. Corley, president; Frank W. Corley, vice-president and general manager; Horace C. Lukhart, secretary, and G. William Greener, treasurer and assistant general manager.

Now for 1923 Profits With

Semi-Permanent NEEDLES

Sonora Semi-permanent needles, well displayed, sell themselves. Not to have them on hand is to miss an unsolicited sale and many a good aggregate profit every month.

For dancing with the record-repeater, Sonora semi-permanent needles are a necessity. For all kinds of playing they are a saving—in money, time and record-life.

It takes but a moment to show why these needles, with the long, uniform point, do not injure and score the record grooves as the ordinary tapered needle does.

Start the year right, with every advantage. Stock and display Sonora semi-permanent needles.

Advertising Guns Rout Pre-holiday Lethargy Caused by Mild Weather—Lehman's Fiftieth Anniversary—Victor Sales School

St. Louis, Mo., December 5.—The Christmas rush for talking machines did not open as early as last year, for which blame was placed on the exceptionally mild weather which continued well up into December, encouraging outdoor interests prejudicial to the talking machine. Although some of the dealers professed entire satisfaction with November business there was a note of strenuousness in the early December advertising which gave support to the stories of backwardness. The broadsides of advertising had their effect, however, in reminding the people that the time had come for turning attention to the talking machine as a Christmas and early Winter proposition.

Special sales appeared to mark the opening of the holiday campaign in the talking machine trade here, one concern offering models of machines in its line at absolute cost, and another offering machines with standard equipment at very low prices.

The new T.-D. Music Box of Trorlicht-Duncker, at 415 North Sixth street, featured Brunswicks in its first Christmas announcement, picturing and pricing the York, Colonial and Cambridge.

Sonora Line for Aeolian Co.

The Aeolian Co. of Missouri recently took on the Sonora line. It is the intention to sell the Sonora with the Aeolian-Vocalion. J. E. Maunder, manager of the St. Louis office of the C. D. Smith Drug Co., of St. Joseph, Mo., distributor of the Sonora line in this section of the country, closed the deal with Mr. Chrisler. Mr. Maunder reports having opened six Sonora agencies in the city of St. Louis in 1922. The Sonora dealers in this section are all having a very large call for Sonora instruments. Mr. Maunder just recently returned from a trip to the western part of the State and reports a very large volume of business.

Lehman's Golden Anniversary

The Lehman Music House, 309 Collinsville avenue, East St. Louis, which was recently remodeled and equipped with new talking machine booths by the Unit Construction Co., had a formal reopening the last week in November which was also made the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the business by Gustav Lehman, father of Fred Lehman, present head of the house, and also of Phil Lehman, head of the Lehman Piano Co., St. Louis. Numerous talking machine men from St. Louis and from the factories attended.

Vandervoort's auditorium was crowded for the monthly appearance of Gene Rodemich's orchestra, coincident with the December release of Brunswick records. The new fox-trot, "Homesick," was featured.

The only thing that Paul Gold, manager of the retail department of the Silverstone Music Co., complains about is the shortage of machines. At first it was only consoles, but now it has got down to the smaller machines, under $200 in price. It has come to such a pass that he needs nearly everything. One reason is that November was a banner month at Silverstone's. One salesman tripled his previous record and the rest did almost as well. And December started off well.

O. A. Reynolds, who travels for the Silverstone Music Co. in Illinois and Kentucky, has returned from a three months' trip on which he opened eight new accounts in addition to making good sales to his old customers.

An Attractive Edison Shop

It is the talk in southern Illinois and over in Kentucky that the Edison Shop of Wahl & Son at Paducah, Ky., is about the last word in niftiness, as talking machine shops go. The booths are built in bungalow fashion.

The Silverstone Music Co. has taken on two additional outside salesmen, Oliver Scott and W. B. Goodenough, who have not before been in this line of business.

Mr. Montgomery, of the Chicago office of the Unit Construction Co., was here in the early part of December.

Doing Well With Radio

The feature of the Kieselhorst Piano Co.'s radio exhibit at the Better Homes Show at the Coliseum was a Zenith set of gold and glass which revealed its inner workings. It was surrounded by a crowd all the time. E. A. Kieselhorst, president of the company, says radio sales are running away from the talking machine sales. Prices range from $240 to $1,000 and cash is paid when the installation is made.

C. C. Sturdy, of the talking machine department of the P. A. Starck Piano Co., Chicago, who had been here for a couple of weeks, left for home the first week in December.

Manager Hosier, of the Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney talking machine department, says the Christmas business is getting a later start this year than last, but he expects it to make up for lost time.

Thomas Husselton, Victor factory representative, was here for more than a week in late November and early December.

Victor Salesmanship Class a Success

The nineteenth Victor salesmanship class held by F. A. Delano under the auspices of the Koerber-Brenner Co., has just closed and everyone is saying that it is the biggest thing that has ever happened to Victor people of St. Louis, and the few people who found it impossible to leave their business at this time of the year are daily receiving such enthusiastic reports of the conference that they are hoping for another one some time.

The conference continued for four days, sessions from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. being held in the Claridge Hotel. On Monday night a large part of the class attended the Geraldine Farrar concert at the Odeon Theatre.

On Tuesday night the class and St. Louis Victor dealers and salespeople were guests of the Skouras Bros., managers of the New Grand Central Theatre, to hear the Benson Orchestra.

Members of the Victor Eight met members of the class during the noon hour Wednesday and autographed records for them. At night the class attended the concert given by them and had the pleasure of meeting them during intermission.

The conference closed with a dinner-dance given by Koerber-Brenner Co. to the members of the class in the ballroom of the Claridge Hotel. Roy Bargy and his Benson Orchestra gave a half-hour program during the dinner. Later Mr. Delano, to the delight of all, was prevailed upon to sing. His selections were "Mandalay" and "Banjo Song," Miss Blanche Rosebrugh accompanying. Mr. Delano was followed by the genial Mr. Husselton, who sang several numbers.

For dancing during the evening, Roy Sauer and his Victor Garden Orchestra played. Mr. Sauer is a Victor dealer from Collinsville. The following people attended: T. La Rue Husselton, R. K. Brandenberger, H. C. Lauth, Miss G. Airy, J. Munie, Miss E. Heumann, Miss Margaret Luthy, Fred C. Lehman, N. Corea, W. D. Wiley, Miss Orpha Hopkins, Miss Grace Maxey, Mrs. Gertrude Gladding, Leonard Truesdale, J. E. Rice, W. G. Bicket, L. F. Parrish, J. W. Strain, R. L. Smith, A. Klocke, Geo. CLOSING A SATISFACTORY YEAR

"Nineteen Twenty-two was a big year for the sales of K. E. automatic stops," stated Thomas Kirkman, president of the Kirkman Engineering Corp., New York City. "The demand for K. E. and Simplex record cleaners was also better than in 1921. Business is continuing good and most orders for the stops specify immediate delivery. We believe that the coming year will undoubtedly even surpass our 1922 record."

CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY OF AEOLIAN CO. PRESIDENT

Henry B. Tremaine, Honored by Aeolian Co. Representatives Throughout the World on Twenty-fifth Anniversary of His Assumption of the Presidency of That Company

During the week of November 20 to 25, inclusive, the Aeolian Co. and its representatives throughout the world participated in the celebration of International Duo-Art Week in commemoration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the regime of Henry B. Tremaine as president of the Aeolian Co., during which period the development of the company as a factor in the musical instrument industry of the world has been most pronounced.

The celebration was in the hands of a general committee of one hundred, made up of prominent lights in musical and industrial circles throughout the world, and special programs of music were arranged for each day of the week, from Monday, which was “International Music

Day,” to Saturday, celebrated as “Popular Music Day.” The programs were carried out simultaneously by Aeolian Co. representatives throughout the world.

During the week Mr. Tremaine was presented with a solid gold cup by a hundred or more Aeolian Co. representatives, and with a silver cup by the officers and directors of the Aeolian Co. He also received messages of congratulation from all parts of the globe, Norway, South Africa, and even Japan, Java and the Dutch East Indies.

A noteworthy feature of the week was the message received by Mr. Tremaine from the Vatican notifying him of his appointment as a Chevalier in the Order of St. Gregory the Great. The cable announcing the appointment was signed by Cardinal Gasparri.

Mr. Tremaine has already been decorated with the Cross of the Legion of Honor by the French Government and has seven royal appointments from the courts of Europe for his achievements in the field of music.

Although the celebration was devoted chiefly to the exploitation of reproducing pianos upon which the business of the Aeolian Co. was founded primarily, the fact that a majority of the company’s representatives handle and feature Vocalion phonographs and Vocalion Red records gave to those products a prominent place in the celebration.

Even the radio was enlisted to assure the success of the program, Mr. Tremaine broadcasting a message from Station WJZ on Tuesday evening and one of the chief concerts being broadcasted from that station. This pleased a big army of Aeolian Co. admirers.

COURT DISMISSES COUNTER-CLAIM

Interesting Decision Handed Down in Repeater Litigation—Arguments on Original Suit to Be Heard Shortly in U. S. District Court

Judge Rellstab in the District Court of the United States, District of New Jersey, handed down an interesting decision on December 5, whereby the counter-claim in the suit of Edmund S. Geer and the Walbert Manufacturing Co. vs. the Zenith Manufacturing Co. was dismissed. In this suit Mr. Geer filed a plea for an injunction, accounting and damages against the Zenith Manufacturing Co., of Newark, on the grounds that this company had infringed the Geer record repeater patents. In its answer the Zenith Mfg. Co. maintained that the Walbert Mfg. Co. and the Gold Seal Co., manufacturing Geer and Gold Seal repeaters, were infringing the Leisenring patents which the Zenith Mfg. Co. owned. In handing down his decision dismissing the counter-claim Judge

Rellstab called attention to the fact that the defendant had acquired its alleged rights to the cause of action stated in its counter-claim between the time of the commencement of the plaintiff's action and the filing of the defendant's counter-claim.

Arguments on the original suit filed by Mr. Geer and the Walbert Mfg. Co. against the Zenith Mfg. Co. will be heard soon.

IMPORTANT RADIO PATENT SUITS

Radio Corporation Files Suit on Vacuum Tube Patents—Action to Be Tried Early in Year—Outcome of Interest to Industry

A patent action of considerable importance to the radio industry has been started in the United States District Court, Southern District of New York, by the Radio Corporation of America, against A. H. Grebe & Co. and the J. H. Bunnell Co., as joint defendants. The complaint alleges infringements of five specific patents concerning the vacuum tube.

The first of two suits instituted against the Grebe and Bunnell companies involves the two DeForest patents, 841,387 and 879,532. The former covers the vacuum tube as a so-called audion amplifier and the latter covers the well known "grid" structure of the modern "triode" or three element vacuum tube. This suit is the more important of the two. The two De-Forest patents were transferred to the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. by Dr. Lee De Forest, of the De Forest Co. The title of these patents has been given to the Radio Corporation of America, together with the right to sue under them for the purpose of this suit and other specific suits.

An interesting feature of the situation created by this action is the position of the seventeen licensees of the Armstrong regenerative patent. These manufacturers were the original licensees and at the time the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. took over the Armstrong patent, they did so subject to the licenses and agreements outstanding. The Armstrong licensees have formed a corporation, the directors and officers of which are in each case representatives or owners of Armstrong licenses. It is said that this corporation will co-operate with the Grebe Co. in the defense of the action.

The second suit involves comparatively minor patents which are alleged to be infringed. The action will probably be tried some time early in the new year, and the outcome will be of keen interest to the entire radio industry.

CLOSES LARGE RADIO BUSINESS

E. E. Bucher, Sales Manager of Radio Corporation of America, Books Large Orders—Jobbers and Dealers Keenly Interested in Sales Possibilities of Radio—Lyon & Healy Closing an Excellent RCA Pre-holiday Business

E. E. Bucher, sales manager of the Radio Corporation of America, manufacturer of RCA products, returned to his desk in the Woolworth Building a fortnight ago after a four and one-half weeks' trip, which included a visit to thirty-two trade centers in the Middle West. Mr. Bucher's trip was decidedly interesting and profitable, as he secured orders for RCA products totaling over three-quarters of a million dollars.

In many of the cities that he visited Mr. Bucher was the guest of honor at dinners given by the Rotary Clubs, Chambers of Commerce and other civic organizations, which evinced a keen interest in the progress and development of the Radiola. Mr. Bucher gave demonstrations of RCA products at all of these banquets, and invariably the merchants in attendance were amazed at the phenomenal results that he attained.

In a chat with The World Mr. Bucher stated that the results of his trip were far beyond all expectations, and that wherever he visited there was a feeling of confidence and optimism regarding the outlook for radio that was most encouraging. In the leading trade centers Mr. Bucher found that the successful electrical jobbers were running as high as 40 per cent of their total business in radio, and that special attention was being given to the development of radio sales.

In Chicago Mr. Bucher conferred with Marquette Healy, president of Lyon & Healy, RCA distributors, and was delighted to find that this famous house was closing a splendid wholesale radio business. Mr. Bucher demonstrated the new Radiola Grand to Mr. Healy, who was so pleased with its many qualities that he placed large orders for immediate deliveries. Whenever he visited Mr. Bucher offered the jobbers and dealers every possible form of co-operation and in many cases this co-operation proved of practical value to the merchants handling RCA products.

BIG DEMAND FOR "TALKER" TOYS

National Co. Enjoys Exceptional Demand for Novelties During Year

BOSTON, MASS., December 11.—The National Co., manufacturer of talking machine toys, has found 1922 an exceptional year. W. A. Ready, president and general manager of the company, stated to a representative of The World: "We are happy to say that this year's business has far exceeded that of last year despite the fact that we found the first three months of this year exceptionally quiet. Our Fall business has been far ahead of any Fall business since the boom year of 1919. The "Magnetic Dancers" have proved far more popular than we anticipated and at the same time the sales on the "Rastus Family" have been increased and have far exceeded our expectations. If sales are any indication of the general trend of conditions in the phonograph industries, then, certainly, there is prosperity in store for everyone during the coming year."

J. Baum.

Mr. Satherley will have associated with him Al Hausman, who was a member of the Columbia Graphophone Co.'s recording staff for a period of years, and Charles Prince, who will act as musical director. The New York offices of the company, 1140 Broadway, have undergone a reorganization and plans to extend the activities of these offices have been arranged. Under the new arrangement recording, plating and pressing of records will be at one source.

PORTLAND, ORE.

Many Changes in Trade—Hold Edison Tone Test—Starr Co. Moves Offices—Seiberling & Lucas to Move—Other Trade Activities

PORTLAND, ORE., December 8.—The first Edison tone test of the season was held recently in the Municipal Auditorium when the Dann Trio and Harvey Hindermeyer, tenor, were presented under the auspices of the Reed-French Piano Co. of this city. The artists presented a very interesting program that served to demonstrate most impressively the reproducing qualities of the Edison to an enthusiastic audience.

Harry Marshall, district manager for Oregon of the Edison company, entertained with a dinner for the artists during their visit, inviting all Portland Edison dealers to meet them.

The Starr Piano Co. has moved its offices and warerooms from 320 Blake-McFall Building to 22 North Tenth street, near Burnside. Charles Soule, wholesale representative, says: "We made the move primarily to have a more convenient location for our shipping purposes and to be in a more accessible location for our dealers. Our motto is 'service' and in our new location on the main floor we are able to make a shipment at any hour of the day, where before we were at the mercy of the elevator man supplied by the building, who did not work after hours under any circumstances." Mr. Soule announces good business in Starr phonographs and says the Gennett record business is going ahead by "leaps and bounds."

The Seiberling & Lucas Music Co., for the past eight years at 125 Fourth street, will move on the first of the year to 151 Fourth street, where they have secured a ten-year lease on the four-story Greenfield Building, formerly occupied by the Graves Music Co. The building is reinforced concrete and will be remodeled and made modern in every way to suit the needs of the music company, who expect to have the finest and most complete music house in the city.

Ernest Stitts, formerly with the Wyckoff-Verriender Co., of Pasadena, Cal., has been added to the sales force of the Meier & Frank phonograph department.

How to keep physically fit by the use of the phonograph was demonstrated in a splendid way by Charlotte Chesley, "champion" health record sales girl of the phonograph department of Meier & Frank Co. Miss Chesley and a corps of attractive and athletic assistants recently held full sway in one of the main windows on Sixth street, going through all the exercises to the strains of the Wallace reducing records, all guaranteed to keep one "young," "slender" and "beautiful." Placards announcing the benefit to be derived from such exercises were displayed and interested crowds were in attendance all day watching these attractive, healthy-looking maidens.

M. Davis, district manager of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., has been so busy keeping up with his out-of-town business and supplying orders of his Portland dealers that he is harder to get in touch with than the President of the United States. However, Brunswick dealers in the city, viz., Wiley B. Allen, Edwards Furniture Co., Powers Furniture Co., and others, all report excellent business and say the new model "York" is a "knockout."

G. F. Johnson, of the G. F. Johnson Piano

Co., reports excellent business in the Cheney phonograph. Mr. Johnson reports advance sales for Christmas very good and anticipates that a record will be set by the end of the month.

Arthur Stein, manager of the Victrola department of Sherman, Clay & Co., reports November business far beyond last year and believes the December sales will be far in excess of business done during the holiday season of last year. Vancouver Barracks were furnished last month with two beautiful electric Victrolas 300, by this department, one to the headquarters company and one to Company F. School marches have also gone strong during last month, according to Mr. Stein, who says that the Music Week activities and the coming music memory contest are partly responsible for the added interest.

"Everything in Talking Machines" is the motto of the Hyatt Talking Machine Co., dealers in Brunswick, Columbia, Victor and Edison phonographs, and from reports received business in all lines is more than good and getting better all the time.

E. B. Hyatt, president of the Oregon Music Dealers' Association, extended invitations to dealers of the Association and their friends to attend a dance to be given December 16.

Elmer Hunt, wholesale manager of Sherman, Clay & Co., announces the change of the Victor account from the Owl Drug Co., of Astoria, Ore., John T. Ray, proprietor, to the Astoria Drug Co., Inc., consisting of P. Paulsen, G. A. Hellberg and F. O. Berg, who bought out the interest of Mr. Ray, who retired.

A complete music store is being installed at Tillamook, Ore., by J. E. Berry, who will carry the Victor line.

H. L. Stoner, who for the past year has been connected with the G. F. Johnson Piano Co., has gone to San Francisco and joined the forces of Kohler & Chase.

OKEH JOBBER DOUBLES SPACE

New York Okeh Wholesaler Leases Additional Floor Space—Sales Steadily Increasing—Plan Increased Service During New Year

In order to handle its fast-growing business, the New York wholesale distributing division of the General Phonograph Corp., distributor of Okeh records in this territory, has leased the second floor of the building at 15 West Eighteenth street, New York. The company has maintained offices at this address for the past year, occupying the main floor, but sales increased so steadily that it was found necessary to secure additional space to handle the requirements of the trade which could not be done most efficiently before.

E. B. Shiddell, general manager of the New York distributing division, is enthusiastic regarding the sales possibilities for Okeh records in this territory, particularly as sales for the past few months have shown a tremendous increase over any period in the history of the organization. With the lease of the second floor there is available more than twice the space formerly occupied, and 1923 service to Okeh dealers will therefore be augmented to a considerable degree.

WEYMANN & SON SUFFER FIRE LOSS

PHILADELPHIA, PA., December 13.—H. A. Weymann & Son, Inc., Victor wholesalers, suffered a loss estimated at $50,000 by fire which broke out in the company's building yesterday. It is stated that there will be no interruption in business.

BUSINESS TO BE A THIRD BETTER

Talking Machine Business May Be Expected to Register a Substantial Gain in 1923, Says Ralph L. Freeman, Director of Distribution, Victor Talking Machine Co.

Ralph L. Freeman, Director of Distribution of the Victor Talking Machine Co., said when interviewed by The World:

"Of course, the most important development affecting our industry in 1922 has been the general improvement in fundamental conditions. In the trade itself the liquidation of inventories of goods that could not stand the strain of a competitive market, the correction of past mistakes in buying, the balancing of stocks and the elimination of irresponsible manufacturers mark mile posts on the road of progress.

Ralph L. Freeman

"As to next year our feeling is that general conditions will be a full third better than in 1922, that the talking machine business will be larger in at least that degree and that standard trade-marked products will enjoy the preference they merit. Our production schedules up to May already in our factories are based on this expectation.

"We believe there already is a noticeable change in demand favoring records of selections of a higher class than those that had such a considerable vogue in the recent past and that this promises to be a feature of next year's business."

PAUL WHITEMAN OPENS TRIANON

Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra Open Trianon and Are Paid $25,000 for One Week

CHICAGO, ILL., December 11.—Chicago, for the first time in its musical history, turned out en masse during the week of December 4 to welcome a twentieth century musical organization. The welcome was for none other than Paul Whiteman and his orchestra, who played one week at the new Trianon ballroom.

Paul Whiteman and his orchestra, as everyone knows, are exclusive Victor artists and for the week's showing this organization was paid $25,000. This amount goes on record as being the largest sum ever paid a dance orchestra.

Thousands of people who have visited the Trianon during Mr. Whiteman's stay here are

The Trianon is said to be the most beautiful ballroom in the world and cost more than a million dollars to erect, the best architectural and decorative thoughts in the country being drafted for its construction. On the night of its formal opening Chicago's society danced for charity and the occasion was known as the "Bal Fantastique." It was given for the benefit of the Illinois Home and Aid Society and the entire building, its operating forces and orchestra were donated to the cause.

On the occasion of Paul Whiteman's appearance here Ferdinand A. Buescher designed, made and fitted out completely the entire orchestra with a set of Buescher gold instruments said to cost about $10,000.

BUSINESS WILL COME TO WORKERS

Geo. W. Hopkins, Vice-president and General Sales Manager of Columbia Graphophone Co., Tells Why Next Year's Prospects Are Bright—Stresses Salesmanship

In discussing the developments of the year in the talking machine trade and the prospects for business for the coming year George W. Hopkins, vice-president and general sales manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., said to The World:

George W. Hopkins

"Elimination of nondescript phonographs, which, like the mule, have no pride of ancestry or hope of posterity, means increasing business for those manufacturers who are building the industry.

"Business will come, however, only to those who will work.

"Storekeepers will take a back seat for merchandisers or salesmen out of retail stores.

"The go-getter type of merchant will find 1923 a happy and prosperous year.

"Quality merchandise will win the business if backed by an aggressive sales policy.

"The salesman who will be welcome in your store will be the man who conveys, not displays knowledge. At 12:01 o'clock January 1, 1923, we will be ready to go."

OKEH BETROTHALS NUMEROUS

There has been an epidemic of betrothals this week at the executive offices of the General Phonograph Corp., 25 West Forty-fifth street. Among the young ladies who are wearing handsome diamond rings are Miss Elsa Schumacher, secretary to W. G. Pilgrim, treasurer of the company, and Miss Beatrice Demhoff, of the billing department. Miss Schumacher is the "veteran" of the secretarial and clerical force at the General Phonograph Corp.'s executive offices, as she has been identified with the company since its inception.

On Thursday evening, December 14, all of the employees of the executive office, recording division, distributing division, Newark factory, together with all of the executives, were the guests of the company at a dinner and dance given at the "Maisonette" on West Forty-fifth street. This was the usual Christmas party given by the company and this year it was held somewhat earlier owing to the fact that Mr. Heineman sails for Europe on Saturday.

Many years ago Mr. Wanamaker realized the tremendous sales possibilities of the talking machine and established talking machine departments in the New York and Philadelphia stores that have won recognition as model talking machine departments. For a number of years the house of John Wanamaker was a Victor distributor and in recent years it has carried several lines of talking machines with the Victor as a leader.

A FEW SALT LAKE CITY BRIEFLETS

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, December 9.—Although merchants in many lines are complaining right now the music dealers, with scarcely an exception, seem to be enjoying a good business. There is nothing in the nature of a boom, perhaps, but the turnover is ample in volume and steady.

Stone & Co., 44 West Second South street, have announced through the press their intention of closing out here and moving to New York, where they will continue as wholesalers and manufacturers. Since this decision was made, however, Mr. Stone states that the local store may be continued by the company as a branch.

Music merchants, as well as others, are much interested in the announcement that "Steel City," a new community, is to be founded between Provo and Springville. It is an outgrowth of the new steel industry in the State.

Fred A. Bain, of the John Elliott Clark Co., Victor wholesaler, says his company cannot get shipments fast enough to supply the demands of his trade. The Style 210 Victrola appears to be the big favorite.

The Glen Bros.-Roberts Co. made a big hit with a recent window display of John McCormack's record of "Three o'Clock in the Morning," resulting in many sales of sheet music, records, rolls and everything. The display was made up of a huge clock with hands pointing to 3 a. m. The face was transparent and through it were seen the shadows of couples dancing.

A recent visitor was William Schonian, Jr., of the Schonian Furniture Co., Duchesne, who reported that the turkey industry was helping that section.

Miss Beth Erickson, of the Educational Department of the John Elliott Clark Co., has returned from a three weeks' tour of Montana during which she met and addressed Boards of Education and groups of teachers and students. She reported her trip to be most successful.

The Daynes-Beebe Music Co. gave each employe a big fat turkey for Thanksgiving in recognition of the loyalty and hard work of the staff during its recent big sale.

OKEH ARTIST'S PUBLICITY

Miss Elsie Clark Uses Unique Publicity—Lobby Sign Attracts Considerable Attention

The accompanying illustration represents a unique idea worked out by Miss Elsie Clark, well-known vaudeville star and Okeh artist, in conjunction with her manager. Miss Clark is well known to vaudeville-goers throughout the country, and the lobby sign that is shown herewith was designed to impress upon the public that Miss Clark makes Okeh records.

Miss Clark's manager, Mr. Story, paid particular attention to the quality of the sign, and Miss Clark's Unique Okeh Theatre Sign the frame is made of wood, handsomely gilded and carved with a green plush background, the borders, designs and lettering being finished in gold. The records are applied by means of screw bolts, making the entire device interchangeable. This sign serves a double purpose, for it not only informs the public that Miss Clark is appearing at the particular theatre featuring the sign, but represents splendid publicity for her Okeh records.

ANNOUNCES THE RADIOLA FOUR

Radio Corp. of America Adds Handsome Instrument to Line—Will Be Advertised Extensively—Self-contained With Many Important Features That Will Interest Trade

The Radio Corporation of America, New York, manufacturer of RCA products, has just announced the addition to its line of the Radiola 4, and in all probability this instrument will be used as the keynote of the company's publicity and merchandising campaign during 1923. Deliveries of the Radiola 4 will be made subsequent to January 1, although it is possible that a small quantity of instruments will be ready around Christmas.

In referring to this new instrument, E. E. Bucher, sales manager of the company, terms it as a radio instrument for the "woman in the home." The Radiola 4, which has a number of distinctive features, will retail at $275. It is a self-contained instrument, operated by dry battery tubes, a new type of tube being used termed the Radiotron 199A, which, it is stated, is much superior to anything used heretofore.

The Radiola 4 has a self-contained loud speaker, and with the exception of the outside antennae, is a complete unit. Tests have proven that with an indoor loop this instrument is capable of receiving broadcasting within a distance of fifty miles, and with the average outdoor antennae the receiving distance is approximately 1,000 miles. It is equipped with a two-wave length range, and has other technical features which will undoubtedly make it one of the most popular radio instruments of the present day.

The Radiola 4 lends itself admirably to high-grade publicity, as it is contained in a handsomely finished mahogany cabinet and has unlimited sales possibilities. This instrument has been in course of perfection the past year, and jobbers and dealers who have visited the RCA offices during the past few weeks are keenly enthusiastic regarding the future of the Radiola 4.

The Radiola Grand, retailing at $350, is another RCA product that will be advertised extensively during the coming year, and this instrument, in combination with the Radiola 4, will give the Radio Corp. of America two products of timely appeal to the talking machine merchant.

PLAN TO MARKET NEW NEEDLE

PHILADELPHIA, PA., December 11.—The United Music Stores, of this city, have been engaged for some time in experimental work in connection with a new Black and White needle which they intend to place on the market about the first of the year. An advertising and sales drive is being planned in the interest of this new product. These needles are especially adapted to records which reproduce one's own voice, according to Oscar Kerns, general manager, and this quality will be featured in the campaign.

DEMONSTRATES HEALTH RECORDS

J. C. Roush, of Standard Talking Machine Co., Arranges Interesting Program for Rotary Club Which Is Keenly Appreciated

PITTSBURGH, PA., December 11.—The Standard Talking Machine Co. conducted an interesting demonstration of the Victor Health Records before the Rotary Club of Pittsburgh at a meeting of that body on Wednesday of last week, the demonstration being arranged by J. C. Roush, president of the company, whose turn it was to provide the program for the club. A woman demonstrator gave an exhibition of the value of the records following a brief health talk, and the 150 members present were much interested in the various setting up and reducing exercises. The Standard Co. has furnished a corps of woman demonstrators to its dealers from the time the Victor Health Records were first introduced.

Revival of Trade Coming Rather Slowly, Although Exports Increase—Change in Cabinets Has Little Serious Effect on Business—Interesting Annual Report of the Gramophone Co., Ltd., Shows Greatly Increased Profits—Talking Machine Helps in Elections—What the New Record Lists Have to Offer—Recording African Dialects for Study Purposes—The Question of Radio and Its Development—Plans Being Made for Convention of Federation of British Music Industries—Success of the Newspaper Propaganda—General News Happenings of the Month

LONDON, E. C., December 2.—Seasonable greetings to my readers; may they be not too dry during the festive period ahead!

Following closely upon your election in the U. S. A., the English parliamentary reference to the people has in a sense resulted in a repudiation of the Lloyd Georgian policy. The Conservative Party has secured a working majority over all other parties; in a word, we are under a new Government. Its policy is to be defensive, rather than offensive. That being a representation of vox populi, it must be accepted with every hope of a good result, which time alone can verdict definitely.

Apart from what must be expected by the turmoil of an election, it cannot be said that there has been any really serious disorganization of business; on the contrary, as far as the music trade is concerned, little or no trade effect can be registered. A steady sales progress has been felt for some time through every department of the gramophone business.

Machine trade is really good and on the record side some manufacturers have been compelled to run night shifts to keep pace with orders from jobbers and dealers. Though this period represents the Summer of our content, as it were, it is nevertheless pleasantly surprising that a semi-luxury trade such as ours should move along so satisfactorily considering the instability everywhere in evidence. Take our national trade. The latest returns show little indication of that effective revival so necessary to the resuscitation of industries generally and the absorption of the mass of unemployed. Compared with September, imports for October rose by over £9,000,000, re-exports increased by nearly £2,000,000 and exports declined to the tune of £2,112,256. A not very cheering schedule! The cost of food values has risen two points and worse still, unemployment, according to latest figures at time of writing, is again on the increase. Yet is the gramophone trade (if not actually prosperous) doing a very satisfactory turnover! Well might folks ask—will it last? Much may be expected of the new Government, but to my way of thinking, 'twere too soon to bank upon any radical improvement of the economic position, at least for some considerable time to come. Its policy has got to be proved, to pass the period of incubation and upon fruition only will it be possible to estimate the value of the new Government's direction of the country's interests. All one can say at the moment is that given a settlement of the Near Eastern troubles, the prospect of concentration upon steps to promote trade and thereby alleviate unemployment, should result gradually in the stabilization of industries at home and abroad.

Financial Report of the Gramophone Co., Ltd.

The report for the year ended June 30 last shows a decided improvement in the trading and in the financial position of the "His Master's Voice" Co. The latter part of last year and beginning of this shares were quoted at as low as 15/-, but rose in gradual stages to 30/-. They are now quoted (time of writing) at 25/- ex-dividend. Compared with only £26,119 last year, the present fiscal year's trading has leaped up to £140,307. This permits of a declared dividend of 15 per cent, less tax, against 6 per cent last year. Comparative figures for 1922 and 1921 are interesting:

	1922.	1921.
Profit	£140,307	£26,119
Brought in	83,453	40,064
War contingencies fund transferred.....	46,048
Dividend equalization fund transferred.....	50,000
Available total	£223,760	£162,231
Debenture charges	£22,800	£22,800
Income and Corporation taxes.....	23,102
Directors' fees and tax	6,303	5,978
Preference dividend	5,000	5,000
Ordinary dividend, less tax—rate.....	15 p.c.	6 p.c.
Ordinary dividend, less tax—amount...	112,500	45,000
Carried forward	54,055	83,453

The directors state that in recommending 15 per cent for the past year they consider that so large a distribution in proportion to the profits earned is justified only by the arrangement made as to preferential dividend at the time of the increase of capital in 1920, and by the sound cash position as shown in the accounts. The company's total assets, as shown by the balance sheet (irrespective of patents, trade-marks and good-will), and of the foreign branches and factories, at June 30, 1922, amounted to £1,938,243, leaving, after deduction of liabilities and debenture stock, net tangible assets of £1,544,939, compared with £1,495,493 at June 30, 1921. The whole of the stock has been written down to market values at the date of the balance sheet. Since the end of the financial year, it is stated, sales have shown steady and substantial increase. On the Continent, however, abnormal conditions still prevail and in spite of increased sales unsatisfactory exchange and general restrictions to commerce continue to render trading unprofitable.

The Gramophone and Electioneering

What an opportunity missed! Over 1,500 candidates for parliament and less than half a dozen made use of gramophone records to acquaint electors with their views. True, a little more costly than cold print. But more telling and to an increased degree if the usual election address be told to the accompaniment of a live song hit or popular musical composition. As it was, very few new ideas were adopted. One candidate made a tour of his constituency accompanied by a man with a bell, the vigorous ringing of which soon collected a crowd. The Conservative candidate for Peckham made gramophone records of several short speeches and by means of a Stentorphone on a van was able to visit every street and address folk in several places at the same time. This proved very successful. Even more successful was the plan of C. L. Nordon, who recorded his election address and afterward had the discs distributed among all voters in possession of a gramophone. Other similar cases could be cited, but taking all things into consideration the valuable publicity channel of the gramophone failed to attain the recognition it deserved.

Miscellaneous News Paragraphs

Severe trade depression last year resulted in 4,840 business failures, over double the figures for 1920, and involving liabilities of £21,887,000! This considered, the comparatively few failures throughout the musical instrument trade can only be characterized as remarkable.

As from commencement of New Year, the Rex Gramophone Co. will be located at 59 Chiswell street, London, E. C.

P. B. in the States

News reached me last month (just too late for inclusion in my November report) that Noel Pemberton Billing, popularly known as "P. B.," was planning a visit to New York. He was due to return November 11, but owing to pressure of business was compelled to postpone departure for a week or so.

As previously stated in these columns, P. B. is the inventor of a special system of recording by means of which as much as 20 minutes of music can be encompassed on one side of a twelve-inch disc. The application of a speed control device permits the playing of this new record on any machine—even a single-spring one. These products have recently been marketed here by World Record, Ltd., to good advantage.

In conversation, Secretary Gendle informs me that though all difficulties have been overcome, the demand is great enough to cause a little embarrassment. Everybody wants to hear, see and investigate the possibilities of the new product. With regard to Pemberton Billing's U. S. A. plans, Secretary Gendle could give no definite information apart from the fact that arrangements were being consummated for the manufacture and marketing there of both the record and the controller. Just what these arrangements are we shall know in due course.

New Zonophone Records

Seasonable titles are beginning to make a somewhat profuse appearance. Most of the companies have catered to the Xmas demand by the issue of special lists. The Zonophone people are, of course, to the fore, and among special issues from the ordinary supplementary list for November is twelve-inch record A-267, bearing "Gesù Bambino" (the Infant Jesus) and "Nazareth." Both are sympathetically sung by Leonard Hubbard, who possesses a baritone voice of pleasing timbre.

Ten-inch celebrity record G. D. 58 carries a couple of good songs by Sir Harry Lauder. Mackenzie Murdock's "Hame o' Mine"—a beautiful composition—though in contrast to Sir Harry's usual style, is nevertheless most pleasingly handled. With this is coupled "It's a Fine Thing to Sing"—a humorous ditty of the usual Lauder rollicking kind and very well sung. A very dramatic rendering of "Sympathy" and "Thank God for a Garden" is given by Cecil Sherwood on disc 2265, which should merit a wide suffrage. On 2266 Olive Fox and Clarkson Rose, in duet, tell us of the comical doings of "A Thousand Years Ago" in contrast to the present period and this, in company with "Our Own Little Home, Sweet Home," goes to the completion of a good record. Two well played and recorded piano solos—"Wun Lung To" and "Theres' a Good Time a-Coming"—are down to the credit of the composer-artist, Melville Gideon on record 2270. A couple of rousing accordion solos on 2267 by Peter Leatham will doubtless meet with a ready sale among those who favor this type of record.

Analysis of Voice Sounds

The London University College is undertaking an investigation into the speech sounds of African languages, which will be studied in their phonetic structure and recorded. The material will be available to those institutions that desire to teach such languages.

The phonetic laboratory contains ingenious appliances for recording and analyzing sounds. But there are other instruments for one to practice making sounds, the oldest and simplest being an adaptation of the Bunsen burner to respond to the human voice. At a certain height the flame will only respond—by flickering—to the vowel "a." It will not respond to a nasalized "a" nor to a mere blow.

Another instrument is a revolving disc which shows a band of light to correspond with the vowel produced by the speaker.

There is also a phonoscope, invented by M. Lioret, of Paris, for the son of the King of Spain, in which the speaker can see what letter he has spoken. Thus the peculiarities of a language are studied through a native.

The "H. M. V." Window Display Scheme

Bulletin No. 1, just issued, deals with new ideas for enlivening gramophone and record sales by attractive window displays. Five inexpensive window schemes are illustrated and explained, with information as to where the necessary materials used may be obtained. Each idea centers around a particular model of "His Master's Voice," because the secret of good display is to stick to one idea. Thus are the company's agents directed along the road of progressive trade.

Wireless News

The Broadcasting Co. is still (at time of writing) an unknown quantity. Until its registration, it does not exist, officially, at any rate. The six big electrical and radio firms were supposed to have agreed on all conditions with the Postmaster General and day by day we are told that everything is ripe for "almost immediate registration." And so we go on hoping. Meantime those gramophone and other firms which have planned manufacture of receiving apparatus are still like Bonar Law—in the unhappy state of not knowing where they are! They know that under the proposals of the so-called "Big Six," who represent the so far non-existent Broadcasting Co., there would be an entry fee to membership of £50 or more, in addition to royalties of, as example, 7/6 per crystal set, £2 5/- per three-valve set, but they protest against this as likely to restrict freedom of trade and wish an inquiry into the patent situation. The trade section of the Radio Association is holding meetings of "outside" firms and dealers to safeguard their interests and take action in opposition to the levies demanded. In consequence of what is considered by many firms as arbitrary conditions of license to manufacture, progress and initiative is in many quarters at an entire standstill. By the time these lines appear, the situation may show a complete change.

sidering the many directions in which this firm caters to retail wants. Another list of up-to-date titles has been issued on the little five and a half inch D/S Bell record, which retails at the nominal figure of 1/3. The standard of the ten-inch D/S Winner record is well maintained throughout the new program just announced. Of outstanding merit is Part I and II of "Freedom," Hubert Bath's stirring composition which figured this year as the test piece at the Crystal Palace band contest. It is magnificently rendered on Winner record 3723 by Foden's Prize Brass Band.

Regular series of "Velvet Face" records continue to make appearance from the factories of Messrs Hough. Programs are confined to exclusively high-class music and songs by special artists.

To assist sales, the firm has marketed a new display rack for records. It is of steel wire with hinged support at back and will hold twelve records with display cards. Dealers should welcome this compact yet highly effective window or showroom sales device.

Arrangements have been made for the 1923 convention of the Federation of British Music Industries, to be held in Buxton beginning on May 22 at the Palace Hotel. It would be difficult to find a more suitable place than Buxton. It is in the very center of England and should meet the convenience of the greatest possible number of the music trades.

At a meeting of the Consultative Committee held in the Federation offices on November 1 Colonel Tatton explained what was being done in regard to newspaper propaganda and told the members of the committee that there were now about eighty-three newspapers which were printing the Federation articles week by week.

He also referred to a series of short paragraphs which were now being sent out week by week and to a new series of monthly reviews of new gramophone records.

A New Idea in Cabinet Gramophones

A very interesting development of the cabinet type of gramophone has been evolved by the Bestone organization here. It consists of a corner cabinet with half front sides of equal depth to the front facet, which gives space for doors to the amplifying chamber and record cupboard under. The construction and equipment of this instrument are entirely unique, resulting in a really wonderful record reproduction.

USE AND CARE OF THE PHONOGRAPHW. A. Willson, of Columbia Co., Has Interesting Views on Timely Subject—Importance of Giving Phonograph in School Proper Care

W. A. Willson, manager of the Educational Department of the Columbia Graphophone Co., has some interesting views on the use and care of the phonograph in the school. In a recent chat regarding this important subject Mr. Willson commented as follows:

"At the present time dealers are selling many phonographs to the public schools. The dealer should always advise the teacher regarding the care and use of the instrument. A piano, to insure satisfaction, must be tuned at least once a year. A phonograph is a more delicately constructed instrument than a piano and requires attention and care. In the schoolroom the phonograph is often left standing for months during the Summer without any use, at which time the lubricant which has been applied to the delicate machinery hardens and when again used will retard the action. Certain parts, at times, become loose and interfere with a proper tone production. If the teacher is advised that the instrument should be gone over at least once each year there will be greater satisfaction to all concerned.

"To illustrate how little teachers in general know of the mechanism of an instrument we will cite this incident: A representative of a phonograph company was told by the teacher that the instrument in her classroom was of practically no account to the school. She said that she had used it very little and that the records made a very unpleasant sound. Being interested the representative called at the schoolroom and found the phonograph in fine condition, but the speed regulator pushed over to the highest speed limit. On examination he found only one type of needle—the very loudest toned. The records were then inspected and it was found in every case that they had been very badly worn. The representative put on a record which had been made especially for schoolroom use, put in a soft-toned needle and adjusted the speed. The result was entirely satisfactory.

"Teachers are customers and are most eager to have the phonograph as a means to bring best music into the experiences of their pupils. They do not know of the possibilities or limitations of the instrument. They need advice concerning types of needles, how to regulate speed and what types of records to use. This is a matter of service on the part of every dealer who sells a phonograph."

STARTING THE DAY'S WORK RIGHTA Philosophic Dissertation on the Point of View to Be Maintained by the Man Who Starts to Business Worthy of Consideration

The individual who feels an instinctive dislike to tackling the day's work as he starts to business should find out what's wrong. If he forces himself to go through the paces he will hold down a job, perhaps, but will he make a success of it? The chances are all against it. The really efficient worker is the one whose mind and body are attuned to his tasks, who doesn't let his work get ahead of him, or "on his nerves," and who does it happily, interestedly and enthusiastically. He never makes the mistake of thinking that smiles were made for leisure hours only, but carries them to business with him. Watch out for him. He's the man to get ahead.—Telephone Review.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 8.—Drop-cover Check. Harold A. Arnold, Lenor, Kan. Patent No. 1,425,568.

The present invention relates to a drop-cover check and has for its principal object to provide a cover supporting and checking means for retaining in open position, and checking or controlling the closing action of a top or cover for talking machines, music boxes and similar cabinets.

section taken on the line 2-2 of Fig. 1, looking in the direction of the arrow. Fig. 3 is an elevation of the cylinder and associated elements. Fig. 4 is a vertical section through the cylinder, and Fig. 5 is a disassembled perspective of the catch mechanism.

Diaphragm Frame Mounting for Reproducers. David H. Wilson, Philadelphia, Pa. Patent No. 1,425,566.

This invention relates more particularly to diaphragm frame mounting for reproducers and the objects are to improve and simplify the general construction of devices of this character and to provide an improved mounting for a diaphragm frame which will afford the frame absolute freedom of motion and vibration.

detailed section through the line 4-4 of Fig. 3. Fig. 5 is an enlarged detailed section on the line 5-5 of Fig. 3. Fig. 6 is a detailed section on the line 6-6 of Fig. 4.

Phonographic Apparatus. Charles C. Guernsey, East Barrington, N. H. Patent No. 1,427,734.

The primary object of the present invention is to form the sound-vibration transmitting elements or devices of a sound-reproducing apparatus of a novel material possessing properties which will result in vibrations being more accurately transmitted than heretofore so that the recorded sounds will be reproduced with a maximum degree of accuracy and without the attendance of any harsh or discordant sounds or noises which is a well-recognized fault of the greater majority of phonographs and similar sound-reproducing apparatuses. As a rule, rather than otherwise, the sound-vibration transmitting elements of sound-reproducing apparatuses are constructed of metal, so that the reproduction of recorded sounds is accompanied by discordant metallic noises, particularly in the reproduction of the higher notes and of band music. It is true, it has been proposed to form the styli of such apparatus from various non-metallic materials as, for example, ivory, wood, bone treated by various processes, etc., but even by the use of such expedients uniformly good results cannot always be obtained. Likewise, it has been proposed to form the diaphragm of such an apparatus from various kinds of material to counteract the metallic sounds attending the use of a metallic needle, but without any great degree of success. As stated, therefore, it is the object of the present invention to form this and other sound-vibration transmitting elements or parts from a material which will insure a uniformly accurate reproduction of the recorded sounds because of a more perfect transmission of the vibrations produced in the travel of the stylus point in the record groove.

Figure 1 is a side elevation illustrating one type of reproducing apparatus, all or a part of the elements of which may be produced in accordance with the present invention. Fig. 2 is a perspective view illustrating the vibration transmitting arm, the needle vise by which it is carried, and the needle, all or a part of which elements may be produced in accordance with the present invention. Fig. 3 is a vertical sectional view through another type of reproducing apparatus. Fig. 4 is a perspective view of a portion of said apparatus, and Fig. 5 and 6 are perspective views illustrating different types of styli produced in accordance with the invention.

Phonograph. Joseph Hoffay, New York. Patent No. 1,425,966.

This invention relates to phonographs, particularly of the built-in horn type, and one of the main objects thereof is to provide means for preventing the escape of sound waves at any point between the sound box and the outer end of the horn while at the same time allowing full freedom of movement to the tone arm during reproduction.

horn member, as on the line 5-5 of Fig. 3. Fig. 6 is a fragmentary view similar to Fig. 2, enlarged, and showing the horn in sections as well as the tone arm, and Fig. 7 is an enlarged section taken on the line 7-7 of Fig. 6, showing the manner of mounting the tone arm and of suspending the horn.

Sound Box. Harry J. Durborow, Philadelphia, Pa. Patent No. 1,426,970.

One object of this invention is to provide an improved sound box for talking machines, which will be instrumental in more accurately reproducing sound than devices previously used for this purpose.

Another object of the present invention is to distribute and equalize the impulse caused by the connection of the stylus bar to the diaphragm prior to the passage of the sound waves through the tone conducting portion of the machine.

Sound Box. Elmer Fletcher, Chicago, Ill., assignor to the Fletcher-Wickes Co., same place. Patent No. 1,427,198.

The invention relates to sound boxes for phonographs or recorders. One object of the invention is to provide an improved sound box in which provision is made for deflecting the sound between the diaphragm and the tone-arm or sound-outlet, so that the sound will be diffused and amplified, but also mellowed, to eliminate the sharp metallic noises or sounds.

Another object of the invention is to provide an improved connection between the needle-support and the sound box, which is simple in construction and efficient in operation.

In the drawings: Fig. 1 is a side elevation of a phonograph embodying the invention. Fig. 2 is a section taken on line 2-2 of Fig. 1. Fig. 3 is a section taken on line 3-3 of Fig. 2. Fig. 4 is a detail perspective showing the parts of the improved pivotal connection between the needle support and the sound box.

Sound Amplifier for Phonographs and Method of Making the Same. Charles J. Dodge, Brooklyn, N. Y. Patent No. 1,429,937.

This invention relates to sound amplifiers for phonographs and the method of making the same. One object of the invention is to simplify the construction of the throat and horn of the phonograph as a matter of facilitating the manufacture of these parts and of making them more uniform. Another object is to provide a throat and horn of homogeneous construction; that is, a construction in which both of these parts are formed of a single piece of material. It has been found that the acoustic qualities of the amplifier are much better where the throat and horn are homogeneous. It is not possible to make these parts from wood and to make them homogeneous, whereas, in the present case, these parts may be made homogeneous and at a cost which is less than the cost of making these of wood in separate parts.

Another object of the invention is to make the amplifier of a moldable material in order to simplify the construction thereof and in order to secure the most advantageous shapes without increasing the cost of manufacture. Another object is to make the amplifier of a moldable composition, which, when set, will have all the tone qualities of wood and in some respects superior thereto. In the present device one is able to obtain the mellow tones usually obtained with wood and to eliminate the irregularities due to the grain of the wood. Where a curved portion of the sound member, such as the throat, is made of wood, the grain is not suitably arranged for all portions thereof, whereas, in the present device, one can obtain the quality ordinarily obtained with wood, but without having a grain structure, so that the sound waves are more uniformly directed.

The invention also includes a novel core or form over which the improved amplifier is adapted to be made.

Figure 1 is a side elevation of an amplifier consisting of the throat and horn, embodying the invention, part thereof being broken away for illustrative purposes. Fig. 2 is a sectional view taken on the line 2—2 of Fig. 1; Fig. 3 is a sectional view taken on the line 3—3 of Fig. 1. Fig. 4 is a vertical sectional view showing the method of making the amplifier on a form or mold. Fig. 5 is a similar view taken

The object of this invention is to provide an improved sound reproducer for talking machines and the like, which in its preferred form can be manufactured at a low cost, and is particularly adapted for use as a part of toy devices of this character.

Another object is to provide an improved mounting for the stylus bar, whereby the same is separated from the sound-box casing by a non-conducting or sound-insulating member, thus preventing the objectionable "scratch" of the needle in the groove of the record from being conveyed to the said casing, as by a continuous metallic path.

A further object is to provide in such a device a diaphragm-retaining gasket having an axially directed extension operative to form the yielding, resilient, sound-insulating support for the stylus bar.

And still another object of the invention is to provide an improved method of mounting the diaphragm within the sound-box casing; to provide an improved means for holding the stylus in co-operation with the stylus bar of the reproducer; to provide an improved method of attaching one end of the said stylus bar to the diaphragm; to provide an improved manner of supporting said reproducer, and other details of construction and operation fully brought out in the following description: Figure 1 is a side elevation of the reproducer and the adjacent end portion of an amplifier. Fig. 2 is an enlarged diametrical section of the sound reproducer in its preferred form. Fig. 3 is a transverse section of the same. Fig. 4 is a plan view of the diaphragm free of the reproducer, and Fig. 5 is an enlarged detail perspective view of the folded metal blank from which the stylus bar is formed.

Convertible Tone Arm. Aubrey R. Malone, Franklin, Ky. Patent No. 1,430,395.

The object of this invention is the production of a convertible tone arm which may be used in playing in order to be used with and reproduce three different forms of phonographic records.

A further object is to provide a device of this character in which the tone arm is formed with three parts adjustable with respect to each other so that the tone arm may be turned into three different positions to thereby provide for the reproduction of Victor, Edison or Pathé records, as may be desired, the stylus lever or holder being so designed as to provide for adjustment of the stylus to correspond with the record which is to be placed.

A still further object is to provide for the lengthening or shortening of the tone arm necessary where the tone arm is adjusted for playing different styles of records.

Figure 1 is a side elevation of the improved tone arm and sound box as applied to a Victor record. Fig. 2 is a similar view of the device as applied to a Pathé record; Fig. 3 is a similar view as applied to an Edison record. Fig. 4 is a plan view of the tone arm and sound box, the full lines indicating the position of the sound box as applied to a Victor record and the dotted lines as applied to an Edison record and a Pathé record. Fig. 5 is a detailed plan view of the tone arm. Fig. 5a is a top plan view of the connector 18. Fig. 6 is a detailed end elevation of the sound box.

Replaying Device for Talking Machines. Russell B. Howard, Windham, Vt. Patent No. 1,430,450.

The principal objects of this invention are to provide a simple and practical device by which a talking machine, or the like, can be caused to play and replay a record as long as may be desired of different lengths, adjustments being arranged for at both ends of the record; to provide connections on a shaft operated by the motor shaft for initiating the various operations or controlling them; to provide automatic means for throwing said devices in and out of operation; to provide an improved and simplified means for lifting the stylus from the record and lowering it back into operative playing position; to control the mechanism therefor by locating it in the tone arm; to provide a convenient device for swinging the tone arm back from the stopping position to the starting position; to provide means connected with the last-named mechanism for controlling the stopping of the said shaft and for locking the shaft starting connections.

Figure 1 is a plan of a talking machine of one type showing such features of this invention as are applied on the top of the casing. Fig. 2 is a sectional view on the line 2—2 of Fig. 1, showing the tone arm and its connected parts in side elevation. Fig. 3 is a plan on enlarged scale of the mechanism shown in Fig. 1 with the tone arm removed. Fig. 4 is a sectional view on the line 4—4 of Fig. 5, which is an elevation of the mechanism for lifting the sound box. Fig. 6 is a sectional view on the line 6—6 of Fig. 1. Fig. 7 is an end elevation of the parts shown in Fig. 6. Fig. 8 is a sectional view on the line 8—8 of Fig. 6; Fig. 9 is a side elevation of the clutch mechanism. Fig. 10 is a sectional view on the line 10—10 of Fig. 8, showing the clutch-locking mechanism in plan. Fig. 11 is a sectional view on the line 11—11 of Fig. 7, showing part of the clutch-locking mechanism. Fig. 12 is a plan taken above the cover of the casing showing a part of the locking mechanism. Fig. 13 is a sectional view on the line 13—13 of Fig. 8. Fig. 14 is a sectional view on the line 14—14 of Fig. 13. Fig. 15 is a sectional view on the line 15—15 of Fig. 7. Fig. 16 is a plan taken above the cover of the controlling mechanism, shown in a different position from that in which it appears in Fig. 3. Fig. 17 is a sectional view on the line 17—17 of Fig. 16. Fig. 18 is an end view of the tone arm moving elements, and Fig. 19 is a sectional view on the line 19—19 of Fig. 15.

Automatic Sound Control for Phonographs and the Like. Orlando E. Kellum, Los Angeles, Cal. Patent No. 1,431,119.

This invention relates to an automatic sound control for a phonograph and is particularly adapted for embodiment in connection with a phonograph which is arranged to operate in synchronism with other mechanism, such, for instance, as a kinctograph.

Figure 1 is a plan view of an apparatus embodying a phonograph kinctograph and the automatic sound control device for the phonograph. Fig. 2 is an enlarged detail sectional view taken as indicated by line 2—2 on Fig. 1, and Fig. 3 is an enlarged side elevation of a portion of the automatic sound control device showing the electric circuits diagrammatically.

The NEW Scotford Tonearm and Superior Reproducer

A new external shape of grace and beauty—without changing the internal design:

That same angle turn with the solid inclined plane deflecting the sound waves straight downward into amplifying chamber. That same famous Scotford tone—the tone of refinement—genuinely musical. Now in a tonearm of accepted, conventional, popular design. WRITE FOR SAMPLES.

NEW CONSTRUCTION

The long straight tube is of drawn Yellow Brass. Tonearm Base, Main Elbow and Connection Elbow and the Reproducer Frame, Face Ring and Back Plate are cast of TENSO White Brass Alloy—an alloy more than double the tensile strength of cast iron—much stronger, harder and lighter in weight than ordinary white metal alloys. New dies have been produced for casting all parts. The new parts are solidly cast, and are very substantial and durable.
