Let's work on: All featured articles and lists on all Wikipedias

Featured articles are at the core of another draft idea. It proposes to make a selection from this or similar kinds of distinguished articles across languages.

basic idea: "Let's send up the best of the best. All featured articles and lists on all Wikipedias. This would create a strong incentive for people to bring their favorite topics up to featured status. Imagine the kind of public relations this initiative would get: "Wikipedia community sends the best it has to offer to the moon"." See full discussion here!

Featured content in Wikipedia

Featured content represents the best of Wikipedia, including articles, pictures, and other contributions that showcase excellent results of the collaborative efforts of Wikipedia.

All featured content undergoes a thorough review process to ensure that it meets the highest standards in order to serve as the best example of our end goals.

“Sounds nice, but ...why?”

THIS IS NOT OUR WORLD

- Wikipedia is about building bridges, not walls
- Wikipedia as a force for knowledge... and knowledge is a force for peace and understanding
- This year's program focuses on "Wikipedia as a driver for change," celebrating and investigating the impact Wikipedia has on the world. I can think of no better sign of our impact than people.
