THE

GIRLHOOD OF SHAKESPEARE'S HEROINES,

IN

A SERIES OF FIFTEEN TALES,

BY

MARY COWDEN CLARKE,

Author of "The Iron Cousin;" "Kit Bam, or the modern Sinbad;" "The Concordance to Shakespeare;" &c., &c.

Each of the Fifteen Tales is complete in itself, price 1s.

First Series.—Vol. I.

No. I.—Portia; the Heiress of Belmont.

"There is a grace veritably Shakespearian in the appearance of the heroine. It prefigures the whole coming harmony of Portia's life."—Leigh Hunt's Journal.

No. II.—The Thane's Daughter.

"The girlhood of Lady Macbeth is painted with a terrible fidelity, and a vigorous colouring, which, we confess, we scarcely expected to find. An air of wild barbaric grandeur pervades the scene of her youthful waywardness; and the whole sketch fully foreshadows the dark termination of her career, when she bursts forth into dramatic life in the pages of the great master."—Globe.

No. III.—Helena; the Physician's Orphan.

"There is a great deal of constructive skill exhibited in these tales, and particularly in the one under notice, which gives a lively interest to their progress; and the meeting and farther acquaintance of Helena and the young Bertram are described with such true touches of the natural and the picturesque, combined, as to give the whole an air of wondrous reality."—Weekly Dispatch.

No. IV.—Desdemona; the Magnifico's Child.

"The character of Desdemona is most delicately deduced; and the subordinate personages, and incidents, are devised with great skill and perfect feeling."—Northampton Mercury.

No. V.—Meg and Alice; the Merry Maids of Windsor.

"The act of reading this tale is as refreshing to the jaded spirit as sitting among new-mown hay is to the weary body. In every page it is redolent of the fragrance of rural life in England."—Hull Advertiser.

Second Series.—Vol. II.

No. VI.—Isabella; the Votress.

"Three of these tales display more invention, more study of character, and more intricacy of plot, than will be found in half-a-dozen novels of average success. We are glad to see in how brave and womanly a spirit our authoress touches upon all womanly questions; and in 'Isabella, the votress,' she finds fit occasion to glance at the darkest of them."—New Monthly Belle Assemblée.

No. VII.—Katherina and Bianca; the Shrew and the Demure.

"In 'Katherina and Bianca, the Shrew and the Demure,' the peculiarities of the two characters are elucidated with both spirit and truthfulness."—Plymouth Times.

No. VIII.—Ophelia; the Rose of Elsinore

"From her infancy until her blooming womanhood, the adventures of Ophelia are traced in elegant phrase, and with delicate discrimination; the chief characters in the play also receiving an early introduction to the reader. A new interest in the works of the great master is awakened, after a perusal of these antecedent tales; for it is impossible to throw the latter aside without a desire to take up the first, and there peruse the thread or sequence of the story anew."—Plymouth Journal.

No. IX.—Rosalind and Celia; the Friends.

"The ninth tale in this admirable series contains the probable antecedents of 'Rosalind and Celia.' Every admirer of As you like it ought to read this beautiful prelude to that favorite drama."—York Herald.

X.—Juliet; the White Dove of Verona.

"The incidents are well conceived, and the sprightly tenderness of the character admirably preserved."—Birmingham Journal.

Third Series.—Vol. III.

No. XI.—Beatrice and Hero; the Cousins.

"Beatrice is portrayed with a bold hand—true to the model from which the character is taken. We have the cheerful, warm-hearted, decisive spirit represented, combined with an ever-ready wit, shown alike in reflection and retort, and that singular self-possession which render the Beatrice of the dramatist so great a favorite with his readers."—Cheltenham Chronicle.

No. XII.—Olivia; the Lady of Illyria.

"Mrs. Cowden Clarke's delightful tale of 'Olivia, the Lady of Illyria,' is one of those vivid sketches of the girlhood of Shakespeare's heroines, which she gives with such life-like reality."—North Wales Chronicle.

XIII.—Hermione; the Russian Princess.

"If the Princess herself is unsurpassably full of grace and beauty, her childhood's friend is pictured with a rare appreciation of the elements which constitute a character so sensitively impressionable, and so boldly truthful as Paulina's. Leontes, too, is introduced, and displays the native temper which corrupted a noble heart, and gave birth to his passionate and much-repentant jealousy."—Nonconformist.

No. XIV.—Viola; the Twin.

"Mrs. Cowden Clarke has bestowed more than common pains on the development of Viola's character. There is a skillful plot beautifully woven with the thread of the story, which keeps up the interest to the end."—Southern Times.

No. XV.—Imogen; the Peerless.

"Imogen, the peerless, forms an admirable introduction to Cymbeline, and is a fitting conclusion to a series of tales most ingeniously and beautifully sustained, and reflecting no little light on the genius of him in reference to whom the modest authoress quotes the appropriate lines of Tennyson:—

"Not mine the sweetness or the skill,
But mine the love that will not tire;
And born of love, the vague desire
That spurs an initiative will."

Glasgow Citizen.

Either Series of the above Stories may be bought separately, bound in ultramarine cloth, gilt edges, price 6s.; or 1s. for any single Tale.

Published by J. ALFRED NOVELLO, London and New York.

NEW SONG.—"The Mountain Stream," composed by J. Dürrner; the words by H. L. R.
London: Chappell, 50, New Bond-street.
Edinburgh: J. Purdie, 83, Princes-street.

Just published.

SONG.—"A man's a man for a' that," sung with the greatest success by Mrs. Paget (R.A.M.), the new Contralto, for whom it was expressly composed, by Walter Brooks. Price 2s.

London: Campbell, Ransford, & Co., 53, New Bond-street.

NEW SONGS sung by MADAME CLARA NOVELLO. "Lidi Amati," Romanza, composed and dedicated to Madame Clara Novello by ADOLFO SCHIMON. Embellished with a Portrait of Madame Clara Novello, after Wallace Scott, engraved by W. Humphrys. Price 2s. "Ah se giungo," Cavatina, composed by CAGNONI. Embellished with a Portrait of Madame Clara Novello, after Edward Magnus of Berlin, engraved by W. Humphrys. Price 2s. 6d. And CAGNONI's Duet, "Son esse! oh Giubilo," sung by Madame Clara Novello and Mr. Sims Reeves. Price 1s. 6d.

HANDEL.—TWELVE NEW SACRED SONGS. The Music composed by Handel, with words selected from the Psalms of David, adapted and arranged, and now published for the first time in a complete form, by R. ANDREWS. These songs being additions to the Sacred Songs of Handel, so generally admired, will be found an interesting compilation from the works of the great Composer, now almost lost from the scarcity of copies to be found even in the best music libraries. Many of the present set were met with by Mr. ANDREWS at the sale of the late Duke of Cambridge's valuable Musical Library. To Subscribers, 7s. 6d. Names now received by Mr. R. ANDREWS, 84, Oxford-street, Manchester; and all the principal music-sellers.

The Violin made easy.

The above sent free on receipt of the amount. Concertinas, from 5s.; Instructions, 1s. Pianofortes for Sale or Hire. The Violin and Violoncello Taught.

JOSEPH DEAN, Music Warehouse, East Road, City Road.

EDWARD GREAVES obtained Honorable Mention at the Exhibition, 1851, for the PATENT CHROMATIC TUNING FORKS, sounding all the Tones and Semitones of the Octave; a perfect guide for tuning Pianofortes, &c., and for Leaders of Choirs, &c.

THE ÆOLIAN MUTE, (a combination of the "A" Æolian Pitch-Pipe and the Mute) for the Violin, is more easily applied and detached than the old Mute.

BLUED-STEEL SOSTENENTE TUNING FORKS, superior to all others in tone and finish. Sold by all Music-sellers. Manufactured by EDWARD GREAVES, 56, South-street, Sheffield.

ÆOLIAN PITCH-PIPES, all Notes in the Octave—Diatonic and Chromatic Sets—Sets for the Violin, Guitar, and Harp.

THE PATENT PORTABLE METRONOME (Registered according to Act of Parliament, 6 & 7 Vict: c. 65), is a very complete and perfect instrument for measuring time in music. It is the size and form of a small watch, and may be carried in the waistcoat pocket, being similar to a spring measuring tape, on one side of which are marked the numbers of vibrations in one minute, (as in Maelzel's Metronome) and on the other the Italian musical terms in general use. From its moderate price, small dimensions, and practical usefulness, it is adapted for all classes of musicians and singers. Price, with case and suspender, Brass, 5s.; German Silver, 6s. pearl, 7s.; Shell, 8s.; Electro-plated, 8s.; Gilt, 10s. each.

CHANTS AS USED IN WESTMINSTER ABBEY. Edited by JAMES TURLE.

This Collection of Chants has been compiled under the direction of the Rev. the Sub-dean of Westminster, and is authorized by him for daily service in Westminster Abbey.

The object of it is to combine sufficient choice with order, and, by publication of the arrangement, to enable the congregation to join in the Psalms.

The first Chant for each service throughout the month is adapted from the well-known compilation of the late Mr. Robert Cooke, Organist of Westminster Abbey; the second and third are selected from ancient and modern composers. Some Chants have been written expressly for this work, and presented by the Authors, to whom the Sub-dean of Westminster desires to offer his best thanks. His acknowledgments are likewise due to those gentlemen in whom the copyright of certain other Chants is vested, for their obliging readiness in giving permission for their introduction into this publication.

The Sub-dean of Westminster is also much indebted to Mr. Turle, both for his valuable assistance in preparing the work for publication, and for his acceptable contributions to it.

The Chants specially provided for the "Venite exultemus," are for use when the Psalms for the morning are penitential, and the Chant for the day therefore unsuited to the character of the 95th Psalm.

With such exception, the Chants will accord with the printed arrangement.

Copies may be had of the Vergers of the Abbey, and of the publisher, Mr. J. A. Novello, 69, Dean-street, Soho, and 35, Poultry; also at 389, Broadway, New York.
