PERTINENT COMMENT

RANDOM REMARKS OF TRAIL TRAMPS

Jay Randall and I never will agree as to who gave the best imitation of DeVore's sawmill during that blessed night's sleep at Camp West Fork. Morning found us with a few spots slightly sore, but full of ambition to try the trail again—after tackling a stack of Mrs. DeVore's hot cakes. DeVore's Talking Machine.

That talking machine I mentioned hearing as we came down the trail toward Camp West Fork is a curiosity. The mechanical part is quite ordinary. It is the spruce horn that is interesting. Mr. DeVore took off the old metal horn and made a sound box out of thin spruce boards which he cut in his sawmill. The horn is not large, but the tone is big and resonant. Mr. DeVore hopes to find a market for some of his selected spruce among musical instrument manufacturers.

After breakfast we had to go up on the little mesa and see the garden and the reservoir which gives the 80-foot fall for the water wheel which runs the sawmill. Mrs. DeVore is mighty proud of that garden, as she has a right to be. It has helped her get a reputation for setting a fine table. She must be a busy lady, with her duties about the camp, as well as teaching the boy, Kenyon, who is out of reach of the schools, but who will be ready for high school in another year. Hitting the Trail Again.

"Well, how do you feel? Want to stay here and rest up until you are able to ride back to Sierra Madre?"

"Go chase yourself up a manzanita bush. I'll get to Pine Flats before you quit trying to drink Tujunga dry at the foot of the grade."

"If we go to Victor Hill's cabin at Chilao we had better stock up on grub. This is the last place we can buy a meal or groceries."

"All right, we'll take along enough for a couple of days, if you'll carry your share."

"Don't say I didn't warn you when you give up and turn back. But since you insist, we're on our way."

At the ranger's cabin. "Jolly Roger" Bodine was just packing some trail tools to take down to Fletcher Hayward.

"Place looks just like it did when we used to visit Norman Ross here."

On the Up Grade.

"This is where we ought to have stayed the night we hiked to Sturtevant's in the dark and nearly froze there."

"Here's where we go up the Trail Fork—two miles up the canyon and two miles of zigzag up to the Tujunga divide. There's another mountain crossroads. Take the trail to the left for Barley Flats for one of the prettiest spots in the mountains. Trail directly down the north slope connects with the Tujunga trail to Alder Creek. We take the trail to the right."

"If you think this zigzag is steep and hot, just wait till we start up the Pine Flats grade!"

Excelsior! Eureka! Etc., Etc.

"Here we are at the telephone on the divide. Look back at Mt. Wilson, only about a thousand feet higher than we are. Then turn around and look at Pine Flats. You've climbed Mt. Wilson. You ought to be able to make Pine Flats if you persevere. The elevation is about the same. Nice easy trail down to the creek where we can get a drink before we climb the zigzag."

"Look at this old miner's pan. Wonder how long ago some prospector was trying to wash gold out of the Tujunga sand. We'll find evidences all over these mountains of attempts to find pay dirt."

"On your way, boy. This is a long, long trail. Nice shade on every bit of the trail that is covered by your shoe. White clay that blinds you and grinds to dust that chokes you. Rocks that roll under your feet and all the other trimmings to make you wish you had stayed beside the babbling brook at Camp West Fork."

"Rave on, rave on! Here's the first pine tree. Oh, boy! This is what I came for. A nice place to flop on the pine needles and get your breath. Look back at that trail—we're high as Mt. Wilson now."

QUICK ADJUSTMENT FOR FIRE LOSS

Something of a speed record was accomplished in adjustment of the loss when fire damaged the roof of the S. Q. Croxson residence on West Montecito recently. The property is owned by Mrs. Arline A. Wilson of New York, who is now in Paris. The fire occurred about 10:30 a. m. Andrews & Hawks, agents for the Home Insurance Company, had an estimate of the loss and before 12 o'clock Contractor T. M. Webster was ordered to make the necessary repairs.

spicy scented air—
To the sea breeze you will maybe doff your hats.

But of all the wide world's breezes there is none that can compare With the wind that whangs across Pine Flats, especially after you have carried a pack up the trail from the West Fork in the August sun.

"Where's that letter Jolly Roger Bodine gave us for Elmer Hertwick? Let's stick it under the door of the ranger's cabin, since he doesn't seem to be at home. Probably out on one of his long patrols or he would be back by this time."

"Can you beat this spring water? Queer how the water stays in the ground so near the top of the ridge. Must be a tremendous snowfall here in the winter. Wouldn't you like to see it here among the big pines where there is no brush?"

"There's the trail down past that public camp location. That bunch with the burros must be the Boy Scout expedition Jolly Roger told us we would see. Bet they are having a whale of a time. I hope they have a good, experienced Scoutmaster. Otherwise, they had better not tackle a trip like this."

"The Good Old Days."
"Last time I was on Pine Flats I stayed with Charlie Gray and Arthur Carter at the ranger's cabin. Captain Bacon of Duarte and the Cooper boys from San Gabriel were in camp at their cabin above. A great bunch of old-time southern gentlemen. It was a joy to know them. Ike Cooper died a few years ago, but Tom comes up to see Lew Newcomb and the rest of the old bunch in Sierra Madre."

"Thought you said this was all down hill?"

"Well, it's down and up and down again. Wonder how many times Lew Newcomb has been over this trail? He starts out from Sierra Madre in the evening and is at his cabin the next morning before the sun is hot."

SINGS COMMENCE IN TWO WEEKS

Season Tickets Will Be Sold to Assure Financial Support of Enterprise.

Community Singings will resume regular sessions on Saturday evening, September 9.

This will be good news to all who participated last year. Others are expected to find out what fun the sings afford, till the number will be greatly increased over last year's attendance.

Hugo Kirchhofer, whose success as a leader was so wonderfully demonstrated last year, has agreed to give Saturday evenings to the local sing. It is hoped this will avoid conflicting waters with all regular events in Sierra Madre, so that there will be no interference with the success of the sing in that respect.

Financial Plan
Some assurance of support other than contributions collected from week to week was found absolutely necessary from last year's experience. Accordingly the sale of season tickets at $10 each was decided upon by the organization committee. This sum can be paid in a lump or in two installments.

These tickets will not be used as admission tickets, nor will attendance be limited to holders of the tickets. Indeed, it is the desire of the directors that every one feel free to attend, even though they may not feel they can afford to buy the tickets. They will be permitted to make such contributions as they feel able from week to week.

Money received from the sale of tickets will be placed in a reserve fund to be drawn upon when the weekly contributions do not meet running expenses. The tickets will be furnished so that the holders may display them at the time the collection is taken, to show they are not merely getting something for nothing.

OFF TO MOUNTAINS
FOR MONTH'S STAY

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Hill left yesterday for their cabin at Chilao, expecting to spend a month enjoying high life (5300 feet elevation) among the pines. If Victor could just transport the News print shop back there and handle the mechanical end of the business at long range he would probably be happy. In his past years of mountaineering he has had to be his own cook, and he's some cook at that. But having taken a real cook along this year it has been prophesied that he will come home from his outing fat and plump. Can you imagine it?

STICKLAND BUILDS ON NORTH BALDWIN

Double Store Building Now in Process of Erection for Feed Concern.

J. W. Stickland, the feed dealer, has begun the erection of a double store building at 41 N. Baldwin Avenue. The building will have ground dimensions of 60x60. The front will be divided into two store rooms of 24 feet each, with covered driveway adjoining the room on the north side.

Mr. Stickland's growing feed business will occupy the room on the north. The store room will be at the street level in front, with the large room in the rear elevated to a convenient level for loading delivery wagons and avoiding lifting. Several different prospective tenants have been negotiating for the south room of the building, but as yet no lease has been closed.

The new building will be of hollow tile and brick construction, Contractor Harry Russell having that part of the work in charge. The front of the building will be faced with pressed brick. Mr. Stickland plans a novel open front for his feed store, while the other room will have windows and doors arranged to suit the tenant.

The new building will be an important addition to the North Baldwin Avenue section. For a time the building activity of the business district has alternated between North Baldwin and West Central. The effect has been to preserve the balance about the intersection of Central and Baldwin as the business center of the town, the logical effect of the junction of the two main highways.

LAW ENFORCEMENT TOPIC OF MEETING

Mrs. Hester Griffith Miller will address a public meeting under the auspices of the Woman's Club next Monday evening at 8 o'clock. Her topic will be "Law Enforcement," a subject in which every citizen ought to be enough interested to assure the speaker of a large hearing.

CARRIER THOMPSON LAID UP AGAIN

Mail Carrier John E. Thompson was compelled to take a layoff Monday because of a recurrence of the difficulty with his foot, which was injured in May. The foot has been so painful that he has been confined to his home all week. Clerk E. H. Carpenter has been getting the mail out to the patrons on Mr. Thompson's route and Mrs. W. R. Lees has been helping Mrs. Wright inside the office.

Park Survey Ordered By City Trustees

In response to a request from a delegation representing the Chamber of Commerce, the city trustees last night instructed City Engineer Gierlich to make a detailed survey of the 30-acre tract owned by the city in the arroyo of the Little Santa Anita. He will prepare a topographical map with one-foot contour intervals, showing in detail all present buildings, trees and other objects on the landscape which might have any bearing on the park development.

The request was made of the trustees by George B. Morgridge, chairman of the delegation. His remarks were supplemented by the other members, Mrs. J. H. Wright, Major Floyd, D. H. Stovall, Woodson Jones and J. F. Sadler. In addition to the survey which is desired immediately, it was requested that the city attorney be instructed to prepare such legislation as might be necessary to establish the tract officially as a city park. Attorney Baker raised the point that the land required for the pumping plants should not be included in the park jurisdiction, for fear of complicating administration of the water system. But it was pointed out that this land could be retained by the water department and improved in harmony with any general park plan which might be adopted. Even should it be found necessary to use the upper portion of the tract for a disposal plant for a canyon sewer system, the survey will provide necessary information for such work.

Trustee Topping referred to the bad condition of East Grand View Avenue, and advocated selling off a row of lots along the Grand View frontage of the tract to provide city revenue and make possible the improvement of the tract. Trustee Richards and others protested vigorously against such policy. The motion of Trustee Richards to order the survey was passed by the favorable votes of Chairman Sparks and Trustees Richards and Karicofe.

G. I. Farman and I. L. Tribble appeared to ask if the city would accept a deed to the west half of Sierra Place between Central and Suffolk. The land is now used as a street, but is privately owned and the property owners desire to have it permanently dedicated as a street if it can be done without costing them too much. The matter was taken under advisement.

Superintendent Tom Henderson was authorized to fence the Grand View frontage of the water department tract and post signs prohibiting dumping of rubbish there. The scattering of rubbish elsewhere than on the regular dump has become a nuisance.

POLLING PLACES FOR ELECTION

Owing to the increasing number of voters in Sierra Madre, the city has been divided into four voting precincts for the primary election next Tuesday. The polling places and officers who will have charge of the election have been announced by County Registrar of Voters Lyons as follows:

No. 1 Polling Place—Kindergarten, Highland Avenue. Inspector, Marie P. Watson; judges, Virginia L. Roess, Minnie B. Davis; clerks, Elizabeth Walker, Lillian W. Young, Mildred E. Taylor.

No. 2 Polling Place—Garage, 37-45 West Central Avenue. Inspector, T. P. Cook; judges, Bessie Rhodes, E. C. Foster, Jr.; clerks, Mattie F. Seeley, Minnie E. Kimball, Anna B. Brandt.

No. 3 Polling Place—Restaurant, 149 North Mountain Trail. Inspector, H. J. Mitchell; judges, William D. Richards, Cora B. Corum; clerks, Genevieve Neutzel, Julia B. Shannon, John W. Wire.

No. 4 Polling Place—Garage, 53 North Mountain Trail. Inspector, J. H. Wright; judges, Ma. an. ees, William A. Wright; clerks, Lenita H. Klunk, H. E. Long, Kittie Buie.

Burglars Make Rich Haul Of Radio Supplies

Radio sets and material valued at $750 were stolen from the store of the Sierra Madre Electric Company some time last Friday night. Entrance was effected by breaking a small hole in a rear window, whereby the window catch could be turned and the window opened.

The burglars evidently had expert knowledge of radio supplies, as nothing but the best material was taken. Head sets, tubes and other equipment were sorted out and only the highest grade articles were taken.

The largest single article taken was a complete $265 Westinghouse set, which was taken out of the front display window. The other loot consisted chiefly of parts and supplies.

Discovery of the loss was not made until G. I. Farman, the proprietor, opened the store Saturday morning. Officers were called and put to work on the case immediately. Opinions differ as to whether it was an "outside" job or was pulled by home talent. Various clues have been followed but none to the point justifying arrests.

There was nothing to indicate the hour of the burglary. The general supposition is that it took place just before daylight Saturday morning.

Mr. Farman has advertised two rewards, one for $100 for recovery of the loot and one of $25 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the guilty person or persons.

EARLY START PROMISED ON MONORAIL SYSTEM

Promoter Says He Expects to Begin Construction of Mountain Road Soon.

W. H. Shepard of Los Angeles spent the early part of the week in Sierra Madre laying plans for his monorail road from Sierra Madre to Mount Lowe. He promises to begin construction work within two weeks, provided he can complete arrangements for the right of way. Unexpected complications have been encountered, but Mr. Shepard declares he will start condemnation proceedings if necessary, though he does not like the idea of such prolonged delay.

ZONING ORDINANCE BACKED BY C. OF C.

Secretary Floyd of the Chamber of Commerce has addressed the following letter to the board of city trustees:

August 22, 1922.

"Honorable Sirs:
"At the meeting of the board of trustees on the night of August 17, 1922, the president pro tem suggested to our secretary, Major Floyd, that the Chamber of Commerce endorse and co-operate with the board of trustees in the adoption of a zoning ordinance for the city of Sierra Madre.

"Our board of directors, at their meeting of this date, adopted the following resolution:

"That the Chamber of Commerce approves a proper zoning ordinance for the city of Sierra Madre and assures the board of trustees of its hearty support in this measure."

"Further, the Chamber of Commerce will do all in its power to create and stimulate popular approval of this measure, and offers its services to the board of trustees to assist in developing a proper zoning ordinance.

"We are,

"Yours respectfully,

"SIERRA MADRE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

"C. S. Floyd, Secretary."

The question of a local zoning ordinance will be the topic for discussion at the weekly Chamber of Commerce luncheon at the Venture Inn next Tuesday noon, August 29.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben M. Lyon and Ben, Jr., have returned from Coronado Tent City, where they spent a month. Mr. Lyon went to San Diego again on Sunday to look after his business interests.

The Public Library has received a copy of "Kith and Kin of the Dixon Family," compiled and published by Willis M. Dixon of Los Angeles. The author was formerly a resident of Sierra Madre, and owned property near the corner of South Hermosa and Live Oak.

eral terms and is now a member of the county board of supervisors. The following endorsement has been issued for Mr. Snyder:

Fellow Citizens of Sierra Madre: We believe that our next legislature will have some of the most perplexing questions of legislation to deal with that we have known for many years. Voters should exercise every caution in the selection of representatives to the State Legislature, since these men make our laws. They should be men fitted by experience and understanding for the task.

We believe that W. C. Snyder, Republican, of South Pasadena, is such a man. We heartily recommend him to the voters of the Sixty-ninth Assembly District. He is a young man, 37 years old, married, a successful lawyer, with a broad understanding of men and the problems before us and is not committed to any special interests.

FAMOUS SCOTCH

"Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush" Coming to the Congregational Church.

One of the finest film attractions ever brought to Sierra Madre will be shown next Tuesday night at the Congregational church. "Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush" is the Paramount production of the famous Ian MacLaren story as dramatized by Augustus Thomas.

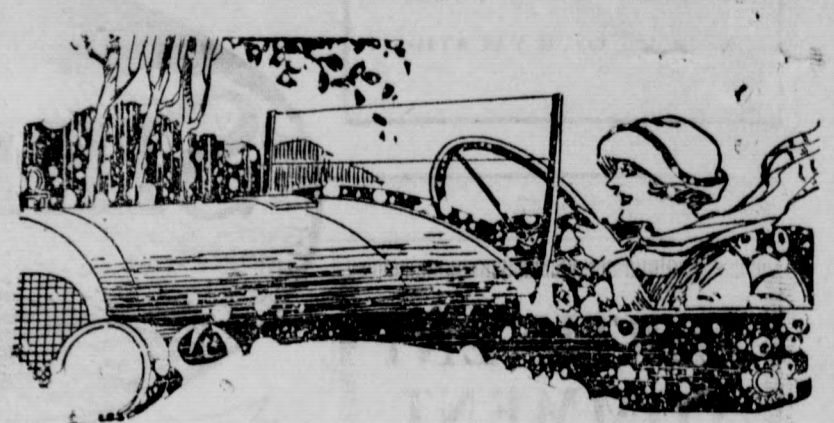

The picture will begin at 8 o'clock. There will be no admission charge, but a silver offering will be taken. This picture would be shown at 35c and 50c and it is hoped the offering will be in proportion.

Modern improvements have hit Scotland, much to the disgust of the American motion picture directors who are now there making pictures for American distribution. Donald Crisp, who produced "The Bonnie Brier Bush" for Paramount, in England, made a trip through Scotland hunting locations. He particularly wanted to find a few little cottages with thatched roofs, to be used as the background of his production.

But Mr. Crisp found that time has wrought changes in Scotland's villages. The Scotch peasant of Drumtochty days may have thatched his roof with straw, but the modern Scot is much more practical, if less picturesque. He prefers corrugated iron, and Mr. Crisp was obliged to motor several hundred miles before he found what he wanted. At last he discovered the Drumtochty of his dreams near Killin on Loch Tay, thatched roofs, brier bushes and all. Two hundred persons take part in the village scenes in the production.

The leading roles of "The Bonnie Brier Bush" are in the hands of Mr. Crisp, who is seen as a shepherd, Alec Fraser, a Scotch nobleman, and Mary Glynne, who is seen as the daughter of the shepherd and the sweetheart of the nobleman. Mrs. Hayden Coffin and Humbertson Wright also are in the supporting cast.

It is needless to tell the story which is familiar to every reader. It is one of general appeal and in its picturized form there is little lacking to make it one of the most interesting themes ever developed on the screen.

St. Rita's Parish School Will Open Sept. 11th

The Tidings, the official organ of the Catholic diocese of Los Angeles, contains the following reference to the opening of the new school in connection with St. Rita's Parish, Sierra Madre:

"Sierra Madre, the beautiful little foothill city of Southern California, will soon bear witness to the phenomenal growth of the church within its borders. For on September 11, the doors of its first Catholic school will swing wide to admit students, a large number of whom have already registered for the ensuing term.

"The group of buildings consisting of combination church, school and rectory form a picturesque whole. The architecture is Spanish in style. Airy, spacious classrooms present a most attractive feature of the new school building. The church offers a seating capacity of 300 persons, while the arrangement of the base is modern in equipment and well arranged for various parish activities.

"These splendid structures are enduring monuments to the generosity and zeal of the devotees of St. Rita, for it was through their whole-hearted co-operation that the devoted pastor, Rev. F. Woodcutter, undertook the colossal work which has reached an auspicious completion.

"About three years ago Father Woodcutter was sent to Sierra Madre to organize the first Catholic congregation. Frail in health, yet strong in faith and zeal, he labored tirelessly in the work of promoting God's glory. The tiny mustard seed has grown and expanded with phenomenal rapidity.

"St. Rita's school at Sierra Madre will be in charge of the Sisters of St. Francis from Rochester, Minn., members of the community in charge of the Teresian University of Winona, Minn. The efficiency of these Sisters of St. Francis in the educational field needs no introduction. The Teresian University is registered for Teachers' License by the New York Board of Regents, accredited by the Association of American Universities, holds membership in the North Central Association of Colleges, and offers a standard degree course of Arts and Science leading to the degree of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science.

"One of the three standardized conservatories of music in this country is maintained in connection with this university.

"Parents desirous of a good school where an excellent and thorough standard of work will be maintained by a capable staff of teachers will make a wise choice in placing their children in St. Rita's School at Sierra Madre."

That trail to the right of the signpost leads to his cabin, a mile further on. Then it goes on over the divide to Buckhorn and the Mount Waterman country. We'll go there some time—if you don't have to carry me out on your back this trip."

"We must take this trail to the left, marked 'Loomis' Ranch 5 Mi.' These new signs the Forest Service and the Sierra Club are posting through the mountains are good stuff. I crave nourishment. What'll ew have for dinner?"

Like Home, Sweet Home.

"There is Vic's cabin in that clump of big yellow pines across the creek. What a site! Stream's almost dry, but look at the water seeping out of the bank. We can dig a hole and have a fresh spring in no time. This whole flat, ten acres anyway, must have water within a couple of yards of the surface."

"Vic and the other boys did a good summer's work last year. Isn't that cabin a dandy? Look at those roof rafters. Strong enough to support ten feet of snow. Split shakes half an inch thick. There isn't a better built log cabin in the mountains. He has a right to be proud of it."

A Shelter in the Time of Storm.

"This is the cabin where those two Hollywood high school boys stayed two days when they got lost in the January snow storm. They were on their way from Loomis' Ranch to Pine Flats. Broke into the cabin and found a little flour and coffee. Could have kept alive several days if they had only stayed instead of trying to get back to Loomis's. By that time the storm would have subsided. But they started too soon, got lost in the storm and froze to death."

"The government ought to encourage responsible people who want to build permanent houses throughout the mountains. It would not only save lives, but would increase the public interest in fire protection for the forest reserves."

Bedtime.

"Sing me to sleep, you pine trees. Can you beat that song? This is worth traveling 25 miles with a pack in hot weather."

"Glad it is near the dark of the moon. Did you ever see the stars brighter? This is the way to study astronomy—flat on your back on a comfortable cot, with a good binocular. There's the north star over there hanging on the tip of that pine branch. This end of the cotton faces almost due east. There is Mars over on your side chasing Scorpio. Venus and Jupiter are those bright ones we saw on the other side of the cabin. That is a beautiful bunch of constellations coming up there in the east. We can lie here and watch the procession—if we have any trouble getting to sleep."

Did You See This?

"Great Scott, what's that light?"
"Flashed up like a floodlight."
"Did you turn around in time to see that?"

"Zowie, what a meteor!"
"Never saw anything like it. Great big blue-white ball of fire, wasn't it?"

"Long tail, sort of yellow. Must have traveled an arc of 20 or 30 degrees after I saw it. Seemed to go down behind that ridge."

"Eight o'clock, Saturday night, August 12. We'll have to find out if the papers had anything about it, when we get home. Must have been visible in the valley."

"No wonder superstitious people think a thing like that foretells some great occurrence. But this is the time of year for meteors."

LAMANDA PARK MILL BOUGHT BY MATTESON

C. C. Matteson of Pasadena has bought the Lamanda Park Planing Mill and is now conducting the business under the name of Matteson Manufacturing Company. The mill is equipped for all kinds of planing mill work, cabinet making, etc., and makes a specialty of store fixtures. Charlie Matteson, the new proprietor, has many friends in Sierra Madre who will be glad to know that he has taken over the Lamanda Park mill, which is the nearest establishment of the kind to Sierra Madre.

FOR CHIEF JUSTICE,
CURTIS D. WILBUR
ASSOCIATE JUSTICE OF THE
SUPREME COURT.

THE PRIMARY ELECTION
WILL DETERMINE WHO IS TO BE
THE NEXT CHIEF JUSTICE.

FRIEND W. RICHARDSON

Will Make Good as

GOVERNOR

because he has always made good before in larger and larger things

¶ As State Printer, Richardson cut the cost of publishing State School Books in half, as well as every other form of state printing.

¶ As State Treasurer, Richardson runs his office with the same force as six years ago, regardless of the immense increase in business, and the increased payrolls of every other department of the state.

¶ As Governor, Richardson will make good in his promise of economy and efficiency, as he has always made good before.

THE CONTRAST

¶ Four years ago Governor Stephens went before the people on an economy platform. He promised a reduction in the state tax burden. How has that promise been kept? In 1919 the governor signed bills exceeding $52,000,000. In 1921 the budget totalled more than $91,000,000. An increase of 74 per cent in the state tax burden was the governor's answer to his solemn pledge of economy.

¶ The governor also promised efficiency. Efficiency was one of the slogans of his campaign. What has been the answer? A reorganization plan which has abolished no offices, has increased the payroll, has renamed a number of officers, has weakened the efficiency of civil service, and has caused endless confusion; a plan without harmony or co-ordination, a stupid camouflage intended to fool the taxpayers.

¶ The administration of Governor Stephens has been marked by an increase in the budget of 150 per cent, while the population of the state has increased 25 per cent. The expense of government under a man pledged to economy has been six times as great as the increase in population.

¶ The political machine has fattened and multiplied at the public crib in the same proportion and now there are more than eleven thousand employes, more than half a thousand pleasure automobiles, and political bosses unnumbered are chasing up and down the state at the people's expense pleading with them to continue in power the present extravagant political machine.

WHO IS GETTING IT?

THE most important prosperity problem for the small community is summed up in the Department of Agriculture's recent estimate that city and farm prices are so far out of line that the farmer's purchasing power is a fourth less than in 1913.

This situation vitally affects the small town, for the small town is the link that connects farm and city. When the exchange of products between farm and city is not balanced, the small town is caught in a nutcracker.

Since the farmer's buying power is a fourth less than it was before the war, the natural question is, "Who's getting more than his share?"

There are a number of answers, dovetailing into each other.

The greatest trouble is the defect in the system of distribution, by which the city man pays sky-high prices for products that the farmer literally sells for a song. The rake-off or profit to the average commission man is far too big. In the same class are those city retailers who overcharge. In many cases, the retailer is the victim of high rents.

The single-taxers pick up the argument at this point and insist that rent is what is keeping production and distribution costs so high. To some extent, correct.

As far as manufacturing industry is concerned—that is, the production of city-made products bought by the farmer—it, with relatively few exceptions, is handicapped by over-capitalization. There have been too many stock dividends and too much floating of watered stock. Thus, a business that used to make $12,000 a year profit or 12 per cent on a capital of $100,000, now finds itself with $200,000 capital and is trying to earn the same old 12 per cent—which totals $24,000 on the new capitalization.

When price deflation is finished, some way will have to be found to deflate the over-capitalization of industry. The traffic can bear only so much, then it is bound to crack.

The farmer is between the devil and the deep sea. He not only is not getting enough for his products but he also is paying too much for what he has to buy. Like all big problems, it will be taken care of by time.

APPRECIATES WORK OF FIRE DEPARTMENT

Forest Official Commends Prompt Action in Preventing Mountain Fire.

City Marshal Udell received the following letter from Tom Sloane, Deputy Forest Supervisor, complimenting the Sierra Madre Fire Department for the way the threatening grass fire at the head of Auburn Avenue was extinguished recently:

Mr. A. M. Udell,
 Sierra Madre, Cal.
 Dear Udell: I was just talking with Ranger Hayward and he tells me about the splendid piece of work you did Saturday when you extinguished a fire above Sierra Madre that was headed for the mountains. You certainly have a good fire fighting organization and it is of considerable satisfaction to us to know that if a fire pops up near Sierra Madre you will hop onto it at once. Atta-boy, Udell. This is good work and I hope none of them get away from you throughout the summer.
 Very truly yours,
 T. W. SLOANE,
 Deputy Forest Supervisor.

STATE CITRUS ACREAGE SURPRISINGLY LARGE

Three-fourths of an acre of citrus fruits for each person in California in 1920 is the record California growers have made. About 78 per cent of the acreage is in bearing oranges and 20 per cent in lemons, while new plantings are about 62 per cent oranges and 35 per cent lemons.
 Formerly the navel orange made up about 70 per cent of the orange crop, but in 1921 it was only a little over 56 per cent. On the other hand the Valencia has increased until it now makes up about 43 per cent of the oranges.

To assist growers in understanding cultural and market practices, the University of California College of Agriculture is offering its services in several ways. The County Farm Advisors, the Division of Citriculture, the Citrus Experiment Station and a correspondence course on Citrus Fruits are all helping growers to keep up with the best practices and to understand changes taking place in the citrus industry.

THE SIX RULES FOR THE PREVENTION OF FIRES IN THE MOUNTAINS

1. Matches—Be sure your match is out before throwing it away. Matches whose heads glow after the flame is out are dangerous.
2. Tobacco—Throw pipe ashes, and cigar or cigarette stumps in the dust of the road, and stamp or pinch out the fire before leaving them. Don't throw them into brush or leaves.
3. Making Camp—Build a small camp fire. Build it in the open, not against a tree or log. Scrape away the trash from all around it.
4. Leaving Camp—Never leave a camp fire, even for a short time, without quenching it thoroughly with water or earth.
5. Bonfires—Never build bonfires in windy weather or where there is the slightest danger of their escaping from control. Don't make them larger than you need.
6. Fighting Fires—If you find a fire, try to put it out. If you can't, get word to the nearest U. S. Forest Ranger or State Fire Warden at once. Keep in touch with the Rangers.

MENACE TO MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP

"Municipal ownership of water and electricity is not only menaced, but restricted by the $500,000,000 water and power constitutional amendment," said Mr. Bruce Brown, manager of the Southern Board and Paper Mills at Vernon, in an address to his employees. "Under the provisions of this act, a municipality might be permitted to construct its own distribution system, but it would be obliged to contract with the water and power board for its supply of water and power. This autocratic board would have the right to fix rates and control the source of supply, making the municipality absolutely subservient to its dictates and abrogating all of the principles of home rule, which is the basis of municipal ownership. There is also in this initiative measure a sinister thrust at municipalities which have water and power resources in their vicinity, upon which they have possibly filed, with a view to future development. Under this act, the water and power board has the right to demand that the city either develop the prospect within a short period or else forego the right to do so. Failure to develop within a period, which would be quite impossible and probably impracticable for most cities and towns, would result in giving the water and power board control of the water or power within or adjacent to its boundaries, at such rates as three political autocrats should see fit to fix."

Cracks in the Wall.
 To remedy unsightly cracks in a wall place in a saucpan one pound of flour and rub in a little cold water until free from lumps. Add three quarts of boiling water, place on the stove, bring to a boil and stir in a tablespoonful of alum. Cut a quantity of newspaper into fine bits and stir it into this paste until it is about as thick as putty. Roll and stir until smooth. Fill the cracks with this with help of a putty knife or a broken pointed case knife. Crowd it into the crack as far as possible, and finish it off level and smooth.

A FLYER IN AUGERS

Chapter VII.

"From that report, I conclude that we are to again pass our dividends!" snapped J. E. Cuspard, his iron-gray eyebrows bristling.

"It is still necessary," acknowledged President Diggs, looking resentfully at his board of directors.

They seemed particularly unpleasant this afternoon.

"It has been necessary for nearly three years!" objected Walter Henderson, the thin director with the multiplicity of wrinkles between his eyes.

"Diggs' hard-boned face became harder.

"As I have so often explained, we have keen competition," he declared, again resentfully. "Until that is eliminated, we can scarcely show a profit."

"At present we show a deficit!" gruffly criticized big Hal Tullingham, who was an extensive coal operator, and was impatient of any moribund proposition.

"You can't conduct a campaign of this sort without heavy expense, and some loss," argued Diggs. "We've gradually monopolized the market, and, when we have finally shut out competition, we shall be able to pay fancy dividends."

"I don't believe it," again snapped Cuspard, rising and jamming his hands in his trousers pockets. "Diggs, you started after young Greenwood's scalp two and a half years ago, and you've been promising us, every three months, that you'd have him out of the way by the next quarterly meeting. He's still making augers!"

"He's operating at a loss," retorted Diggs. "The end has to come some time, and we can stand the strain better than he. We have more capital."

"I object!" wheezed the asthmatic old president of the First National bank. "We have double his capitalization, but we haven't any more cash! It's my opinion we have less! We're in debt!"

"So is Greenwood!" growled Diggs.

"How do you know?" demanded Cuspard.

"It's impossible for him not to be," argued Diggs. "He's a wasteful young fellow, who spends money on such fool office embellishments as pig-skin waste baskets with gold monograms!"

"If he's in debt, I don't know it!" wheezed the president of the First National. "The only paper of his that ever found itself through my place is checks, and none of them ever came back!"

J. E. Cuspard stood up again. "Somebody's been making monkeys of us!" he declared, without being too specific. "I've been picking up my paper every morning for two years, to look for the bankruptcy of the Greenwood Square-Hole Auger company, and, by George, I believe we're going to beat them to it!"

"I believe it myself," snarled a weasened old director with three absurd hairs on his head. "Our concern's in a rotten condition! Why don't you consolidate with Greenwood?"

"There's no terms to be made with him," complained Diggs. "He has fool young notions of pride! He won't stand for any alterations in the name of his father's firm, nor would he share the management of the consolidation. When I found him so bullet-headed, I refused to talk any more with him."

A stolid looking fat director who had not yet taken part in the discussion, now spoke.

"Oh, h—!" he said.

"I've gone just far enough with this thing Diggs!" announced Cuspard angrily, and Diggs felt a chill wave in the room, for Cuspard was the principal stockholder. "I've heard so long that this fool college kid was tottering, that I'm going to find out about it! I move this meeting adjourn for one hour!"

"Second the motion!" wheezed the president of the First National.

Chapter VIII.

"Now, Ames, I'll take that share of stock," agreed Cuspard, popping into the lobby of the Tyler Avenue hotel. "Here's your hundred dollars."

"It's already assigned," replied Ames, producing the document in question. "I knew you'd be back after it."

Cuspard glanced hastily at the certificate and shoved it in his pocket.

"Come on," he said, and he led the way to his automobile. "Look here, Ames," he demanded, as they whirled down the street, "what's your interest in this?"

"Three-fold," explained Ames pleasantly, and with no hesitation. "First, I have an aversion, which amounts to a passion, to wasted business opportunities; second, I have developed a sincere admiration for Rick Greenwood; third, I'm to get $25,000 if the competition is removed from the square-hole auger business."

For the first time that day J. E. Cuspard laughed.

"That's rich," he admitted. "The boys will enjoy that when I tell them."

Young Richard Greenwood looked up in surprise as Cuspard and Ames plunged into his office.

"Young man I want to see your books," Cuspard demanded.

"What?" gasped young Greenwood, with a look from Cuspard to his friend Ames.

"I have a right to see them," asserted Cuspard crisply. "I'm a stockholder in this company," and he tossed down his certificate.

Greenwood glared at Ames with contracted brows.

"You've done this!" he angrily charged.

"I bet you," grinned Ames. "Business is business, Rick, and it's pretty cold-blooded."

"I'm in a hurry," interposed Cuspard. "The Diggs company's board of directors is waiting for certain information."

Young Greenwood, with little knots working in the muscles of his jaw, first rang for his bookkeeper, and then decided to go himself. He came in a moment later, with a huge armful of books, and slammed them on the desk, meanwhile glaring ferociously at John Ames.

"Help yourself!" he blurted.

"All right," accepted Cuspard with a chuckle, and coolly sat down at Greenwood's desk, while the young president of the Greenwood company went to the window and fiddled on the pane, and John Ames sat down, and smiled and smiled.

There was one thing about J. E. Cuspard. He knew a bookkeeper's book from cover to cover, with his eyes shut; and the way he sailed through the Greenwood ledger was a joy to the Greenwood bookkeeper, who had followed in, to hover over the process. She had streaks of gray in her hair, and she had kept those books like a set of engravings since the elder Greenwood had put them in her charge, twenty years before. Cuspard looked up once, to see her standing there.

"Yours?" he queried.

She nodded.

"They're great!" he told her, and went on with his job. Presently he looked up again. "Let me see your balance sheets of about this date, one, two, and three years ago," he directed.

"Yes, sir," she said with alacrity, for J. E. Cuspard was a nice man even though Greenwood didn't like him. She went to Rick to find out. "He wants to see the balance sheets," she whispered.

"All right, Mary, show them to him," he ordered, in a queer mixture of curtness for Cuspard, and affection for Mary.

Fifteen minutes later J. E. Cuspard folded a piece of paper, and stuck it in his pocket and stalked out of the door. John Ames, smiling serenely, strolled out after him; for the atmosphere of that office was too tense for a traitor.

Half an hour later J. E. Cuspard came back, followed by the serenely smiling John Ames. Cuspard threw a huge bunch of documents on the table.

"Would you like to have this junk?" he inquired of young Greenwood, who had risen, at his desk, to resent this second imposition.

"What is it?" blurted Greenwood, backing away from it.

"Eighty-five per cent of the stock of the Diggs Mortising Auger company," explained Cuspard. "The boys brought it with them to the meeting today, and I just went up to make a collection of it."

"I don't understand!" faltered the young president, seeking the eyes of John Ames; but that traitor was grinning out of the window on which Greenwood had drummed.

"Take it," urged Cuspard. "Consolidate the concerns, run a bluff competition with them; do anything you please. We're busy men, and tired of fussing with it."

The blood began to come back to Rick's cheeks. He drew the certificates toward him.

"I don't understand," he again faltered.

"You'll get on by and by," chuckled Cuspard. "Young man, I want to congratulate you," and grasping Rick's limp hand, he shook it briskly. "You've kept 90 per cent of your business, you don't owe a cent, and you're running a three-year-old automobile. Take that stock and give us ten-year notes for it."

"I'm afraid I haven't capital to swing both companies," worried Greenwood.

"You can get all you want at the First National," advised Cuspard, looking around the room. "Where's that pig-skin wastebasket with the gold monogram? Oh, yes, here it is. How did you come to buy that thing, Rick?"

"To express my attitude toward my father's business," Rick explained, smiling. "By the way, what about Diggs?"

"Oh, I'd give him a good job," decided Cuspard, as he went out of the door. "You better give Ames his twenty-five thousand."

Rick walked over and shook John Ames by the hand. They stood there chuckling at each other like two fools.

Chapter IX.

Rick's Mummy was giving a "party" in honor of Rick's triumph. John Ames, still puzzled, watched Margaret in the midst of a group of her admirers, and suddenly realized why he had been puzzled; why there had never been between Margaret and himself the intense attraction which can ripen into love.

A dapper little friend of Ned Cross was introduced to her; and John saw the handshake which passed between them. He saw, too, the light in her eyes, which had never been in his own.

Queer he had not realized it before. This was Nature's eternal effort at readjustment. Something within the tall Margaret Greenwood, of which she was entirely unconscious, made it impossible for her to ever love a tall man; and something within the tall John Ames had made it impossible for him to love the beautiful and attractive Margaret Greenwood.

"I think I shall be going away tomorrow," he told her at the close of the evening.

"Oh, no!" she protested, genuinely pained. "We shall miss you. We've been such good friends!"

Again he felt the thrill of her voice and saw the fire beneath the chill of her eyes and noted the red fullness of her lips.

"I guess I'm doomed to be a wanderer," he lightly said, and shook hands with her in farewell.

His own hand came away willingly, but he was no longer puzzled!

What You've Wanted

A HAND-IRONING DEPARTMENT

Our Hand-Ironing Department, patterned after the peculiar wants of particular housewives, has shown the greatest increase in volume of business since January 1, 1922, of any similar period in its history. Perhaps these are a few of the reasons:

1. WASHING IN NETS—Guarantees cleanliness with utmost personal attention.
2. EXPERT HAND IRONING—Only women who have had years of experience and the best training in hand-ironing are employed in this work. No time is spared in doing the ironing perfectly. Hand irons are equipped with automatic switches which keep them at the proper temperature all of the time.
3. DELIVERED IN BOXES—Hand-ironed garments and linens are carefully folded, each article in its particular manner, and placed in boxes to insure delivery in good condition.

ALL ABOUT VACUUM TUBE AS AMPLIFIER

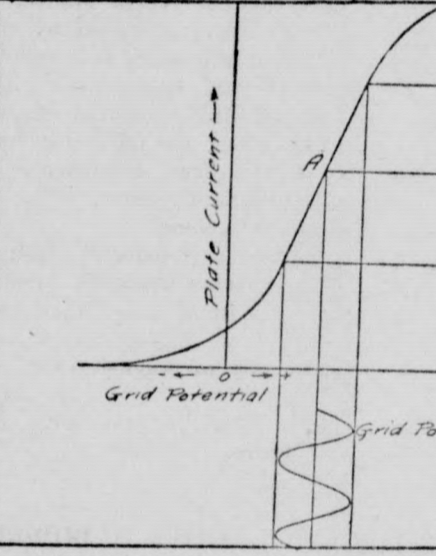

Connected Up to Furnish Rated Filament Current and Maintain Plate Potential.

Figure XXIV shows a three-electrode vacuum tube connected with the "A" battery to furnish the rated filament current and a "B" battery to maintain rated plate potential. In the plate circuit is a current meter to read the plate current. A "C" battery is connected in the grid circuit to maintain the grid at the positive potential O-A in order to have the tube operate at the point A on the characteristic curve. To T-T will be connected the alternating difference of potential having a maximum positive value equal to A-C and a maximum negative value equal to A-B.

The resulting variation in plate current is shown in Fig. XXV. Inserting the tube functioning as an amplifier, with an amplification factor of K, between the supply of alternating difference of potential at T-T, was just K times what it actually is. All these considerations have been based on the assumption that the total impedance (resistance to the flow of an alternating current) of the entire plate circuit existed internally in the tube between the filament and the plate, and that the external electrical circuit from the plate to the filament had zero impedance. Of course, this condition never exists in practice. The external plate circuit always has impedance in it in the form of telephone receivers, resistance choke coils, or transformer primaries, depending upon the means that is employed to couple the successive tubes together.

It is only where the external plate circuit of a vacuum tube has zero impedance that the plate voltage is equal to that of the "B" battery. As soon as an impedance is introduced into the external plate circuit, part of the total potential of the "B" exists as a drop across the external impedance, so that only a portion of the total "B" battery is available at the plate.

Fig. XXVI represents the characteristic curve of the tube as we have been discussing it, with no impedance in the external plate circuit. This curve is called the "static" characteristic curve, to differentiate from the others. Suppose that we introduce into the external plate circuit an impedance in the form of a resistance as shown by R in Fig. XXVII. When the current flows around through the plate circuit, there will be a voltage drop across the resistance R equal in value to R times I, where I is the plate current in amperes. If the internal impedance of the tube be denoted by Z, then the drop in voltage from the plate to the filament inside of the tube is ZI. The sum of these two voltage drops, ZI plus RI, is always equal to the applied voltage of the "B" or plate circuit battery. The voltage of the "B" battery is constant. As the plate current increases, the value of RI increases because R, the external plate resistance, does not change in value. So if the sum of ZI plus RI is always equal to a constant when RI increases, ZI must decrease. This means that when a constant "B" battery potential is applied to the plate circuit of a vacuum tube, containing external resistance, an increase in plate current causes a decrease in the potential existing between the plate and the filament.

The "static" characteristic curve was drawn on the assumption that the difference in potential between the plate and the filament remained constant, obviously then, when the external plate circuit has other than zero impedance, the static characteristic curve no longer holds true.

The characteristic curve of a tube having other than zero impedance in the external plate circuit is the "dynamic" characteristic. The greater the variations in plate current, the greater the variation in the voltage existing between the plate and the filament. If the value of R, the external plate impedance, is increased, the greater will be the variation in the plate to filament voltage for the same variation in plate current.

In Fig. XXVI (2) is represented the dynamic characteristic of a tube with a certain definite value of R in the plate circuit. Curve (3) represents the dynamic characteristic of the same tube with a larger value of R in the plate circuit. Finally the extreme condition is reached, in which R is made infinitely high and the dynamic characteristic becomes parallel to the grid voltage axis as in (4). This shows that variations of grid potential would produce no variation of plate current, but maximum variations of plate potential variations. These would be amplified variations of grid potential variations.

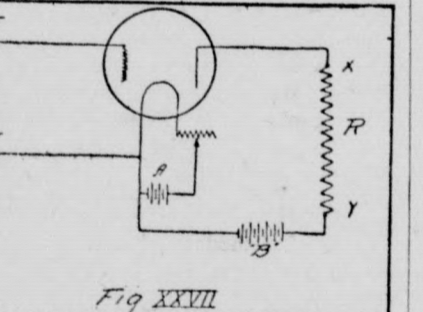

This last condition of having the variations of plate potential amplified variations of grid potential variations is the ideal condition sought for in vacuum tube amplifiers.

In Fig. XXVII as the current of the plate circuit flows through the resistance R there is a drop in potential across R between the points X and Y that will be proportional to the current flowing. If the value of R and the plate potential are high enough this potential variation between X and Y will be exactly proportional to and K times that applied to the grid of the tube at T-T.

To amplify a signal from a radio receiver then, it is only necessary to have a circuit whose output is to be amplified connected to T-T and the amplified output taken off at X and Y. If greater amplification is desired the output from X and Y is run through another circuit similar to that shown in Fig. XXVII.

SPARKS

The "Totemites," a society of radio fans at Seattle, decided that receiving code signals during broadcast programs is inevitable, and instead of registering complaints, opened a free school to its members for instruction in the code.

People living in isolated sections are getting great satisfaction from radio, as it is a cure for loneliness. They not only feel that they have friends within "speaking distance" but that entertainers of the highest grade are next door neighbors.

Major General Squire, chief signal officer, U. S. A., told the graduates of the Camp Vail signal school there had been greater developments in radio in the past decade than in any other science. Also that in future wars barrages and bombardments would be laid down by radio.

The British have developed a two-purpose vacuum tube for use in conjunction with radio. The new tube, or valve, as it is called in England, is the Mulard Ora. The plate voltage is given as 30, and the filament voltage at 3.6 to 4. The base of the tube is of the four-prong type. It is said to combine efficiently the qualities of the rectifier and amplifier, which make it possible to use one tube for all purposes.

POWELL-WATHEN

The wedding of Miss Ethel B. Powell to Mr. Joseph Earl Wathen took place last Saturday morning at Echo Park Episcopal church, Los Angeles. Only close relatives were present at the ceremony. The young couple are enjoying a wedding trip, after which they expect to return to Sierra Madre and make their home in the bride's residence at 287 West Central. The bride has been a resident of Sierra Madre since girlhood and the many excellent qualities of her character are highly appreciated by her many friends. She is the niece of S. R. Norris and of Miss Diana Norris. The groom is the son of Mrs. J. B. Wathen, who has been a resident of Sierra Madre for several years and is employed by the Southern California Supply Company of Los Angeles.

CHIEF KELLEY IS DESERVEDLY POPULAR

Charles H. Kelley, chief of police of Pasadena, is a candidate for sheriff of Los Angeles county. He has thrown his hat into the ring in an effort to do as his friends have desired.

The record of Chief Kelley in the Crown City is such that those who are behind him in this race declare that he will have an almost solid vote there. His strength is also shown in Monrovia, Azusa, Pomona and Long Beach, where he is well and favorably known for his work in police and detective circles.

The bootleggers know Chief Kelley. He has driven them out of Pasadena and says that if elected sheriff of Los Angeles county he will make this county as clean as Pasadena. That this is not an idle boast is proved by the statement he has made.

"Elect me sheriff of Los Angeles county and I'll drive the bootleggers out," says Kelley. "There is no need for any man to make excuses. I won't need more money, I won't need more men, than our sheriff now has. Give me a chance to show what I can do and I'll prove that it is possible to make a clean-up with the funds and the forces we now have.

"It makes me sick to say how much money it takes to do these things. We've cleaned up the bootleggers with a marked ten-dollar bill in Pasadena. Why not use similar methods with the blind pigs of our county and we'll smoke them out and then clean them out. There'll be no need for Ku Klux Klans if I'm sheriff of Los Angeles county."

ORDINANCE NO. 264 AN ORDINANCE OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE CITY OF SIERRA MADRE REPEALING ORDINANCE NO. 205 OF SAII CITY, ENTITLED "AN ORDINANCE OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE CITY OF SIERRA MADRE CREATING A CITY PLANNING COMMISSION FOR SUCH CITY," ADOPTED OCTOBER 28, 1915.

The Board of Trustees of the City of Sierra Madre do ordain as follows: SECTION 1. That Ordinance No. 205 of the City of Sierra Madre, entitled "An ordinance of the Board of Trustees of the City of Sierra Madre creating a City Planning Commission for such city," adopted October 28, 1915, be and the same is hereby repealed.

SECTION 2. The City Clerk shall certify to the passage of this ordinance and its approval by the President of the Board of Trustees and shall cause the same to be published by one insertion in the Sierra Madre News, a weekly newspaper of general circulation, published and circulated in said City of Sierra Madre and the same shall thereupon and thereafter be in full force and effect.

Adopted and approved this 24th day of August, 1922.

J. D. SPARKS, President pro tem of the Board of Trustees of the City of Sierra Madre.

Attest: L. DIETZ, City Clerk of the City of Sierra Madre.

State of California, City of Sierra Madre—ss.

I, L. Dietz, City Clerk of the City of Sierra Madre, do hereby certify that the foregoing ordinance was duly adopted by the Board of Trustees of the City of Sierra Madre, State of California, and signed by the President of said board at a regular meeting thereof, held on the 24th day of August, 1922, and that the same was adopted by the following vote:

Ayes: Trustees Karicofe, Richards, Topping and Sparks.

Noes: None. Absent: Trustee Mitchell.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the official seal of the City of Sierra Madre, this 24th day of August, 1922.

INTERESTING BOOK OF BOYS' STORIES

The editor of the News acknowledges with gratitude a copy of "The Spell of the Shang Kambu," a collection of stories for boys written by Dennis H. Stovall. The author recently bought a home on Sycamore Place and came to Sierra Madre to reside. His stories will grip the interest of any youngster, being full of action and adventure, with the qualities of mystery and suspense interwoven to a degree which sustains interest to the last. The stories are clean and on a high plane, but without any effort to inculcate lessons by the rubbing in process. Mr. Stovall's stories appear in a number of young people's publications, both in short story and serial form.

PROGRAM VARIETY AT THE COLONIAL THEATER

Variety enough to suit all tastes has been provided by Manager Alexander at the Colonial Theater, Monrovia, for the coming week. Wallace Reid in "Nice People" and Thomas Meighan in "If You Believe It, It's So" have drama of the opposite strata of New York city life. David Powell in "The Spanish Jade" will let you revel in Sunny Spain, while the James Oliver Curwood story, "The Man from Hell's River," takes you to the frozen North. In addition to these features, a comedy and current events go to make up a good program in as comfortable a playhouse as can be found anywhere.

L. C. Tucker was on the sick list the early part of the week, the aftermath of his outing in the Sierras a few weeks ago. During his absence the jewelry store was kept going by Miss Eleanor Tucker and by Frank Fraiberg.

CHURCH OF CHRIST

Meeting at 182 W. Highland Avenue. will dismiss their service next Lord's Day, August 27th, for an all day meeting at Pasadena Church of Christ. Basket dinner will be served on the ground and all are invited to attend. Church house located on Meredith Avenue, nearly one block south of Colorado Street.
