In connection with the change proposed by your formulated, and as a part of one system for antility the condition and supplying the wants of he navigation interest, they deem it their duty to right upon the serious consideration of the houst he experience of authorising the enterprising cities of New Orleans to talke the projected timizens of New Orleans to racke the projected un- the state of Louis analy rovement of the port lying above canal stree, upo the terms and in the manner proposed by them. chis privilege is greater, and the projected imr wement is complete t, it will form an epoch in leannals of our state, and gile a new spar to it rivigation, commentum la griculture, well calcuthe state.

Your committee are of the op nion that the for wing consi erations are con lusive of the queson of expelien wof the proposed alteration, and i auth assing the projected improvement.

The present accommodations for the commercial I New O cans (which is the commerce of the ate) when it did not amount to more han one half - present value. Then it did not exceed twen y, ow it has risen to near forty millions.

That the steam boats and other craft which waf our port the vast productions of the valley of the dississippi have to pay levee duties very onerous when compared with the limited means of accomexistion afforded, and are, more wer, subjected to elays in discharging their cargoes, that to hem rive proved much more onerous and vexitious, a in that of excessive levee duties.

The batteau in front of the 1st and 6 h wards, he space assigned to steam boats and flat loats to ay at and discharge upon have gradually encroach-I apon the river, no has on ed materially to renor the accommodations intended for them less ominishious and secure than when projected; an econsequence of this extension of the batteau the orpora'i a, at considerable expense, basevionder iew of removing the disadvantages arising from s increase, but long experience has proved that hey do not answer the expectations of the mos adusiaste in favor of heir erection. In the first place, they only afford accommoda ms to steam and flat boats during the highesage of the river, and even then, boats discharg of thereon are necessarily competled to roll their ir_oes of sugar, cotton, &c. upwards of one haned Vards over them, in order to place them in sirations for the drays to receive them. The exense incident to this mode, besides the loss and amage sustained by the planter in having his each oughly handled, and exposed to the inclemency of he weather. ) is in many instances a very serious drawback upon the profits of the vessels enraged in that branch of the trade.

In the second place, most wharves are only tem orary in their nature, and besides this not answering the en is proposed, their reparation from year to year, draws from the city treasury large sums monev.

The erection of a levee and extending the street is represented on the diagram of the projecte tin provements, could in the opinion of the committee is well, also, as those long conversant with the changes to which our giver is naturally subjected be the means of preventing or avoiding any future change, and at the same time afford permanent and mple accommodations to meet the growing wan's which the increasing trade of the city necessarily eman is in our port arrangement.

Another evil very serious in its nature, would e in some measure overcome by completing the casure contemplated by the memorialists.
