GOFERNOR, J. B. DAWSON.

It cannot but be a subject of regret to every magnani mone Louisianien to find the names of two of our repri tetives, Messas Bullard and White, recorded against the ed.

Passage of the bill for shodlifying the tariff. So far as we are able to understand their views, from what has fallen Arabuse, attacked the furiress and overpowered and their views, from what has fallen are able to understand the control of t trum the one on the floor of congress, and from the other in the shop of letters and circulars to his constituents, they under his charge. He has since been delivered over to gar duty one half a cent upon the pound, will, if effected, be prejudicial to that particular interest, and edverse to the lawless tyranny, committed during his comments Leuchi prosperity of the state. Intelligent planters sesure w that they have no feets on this securer they say that is hay, indeed, create some temporary embarrasement; that it may prestrate some of those establishments that are the mere creatures of logislative enactment, and which have been artificially nursured. But nothing will happen which was not perfectly natural to expect from the adoption of such a system, and which, therefore, common sagacity might not have foreseen, and common presence avoided.— It is unreasonable to expect a continuance of the present high rate of duties, after the government has no need of beenue which they produce.

The guestion, in the present crisis, is, what, under preto at circumutances, ought we now to do? What ought the the bay of Gulveston, 75 miles to the eastward of the menufacturers, having especial regard to their own interests, to do? We may philosophize and declaim about the importunce of union to our national glory and independence, but this pageant of patriotism will be powerless to allay the discontents that have sprung from the present system.—What, then, ought to be done? The language of Messes. White and Bullard, is, the south could to cease its mur murings against a policy which is obviously subversive of its interests, and under which they have for a long time groshed, last the alignitest modification should occasion tempo razy suffering among those who have exclusively benefited of :t. And this is "concession!"

The correspondent of the Emporium, who is certainly not the gradiloquent of the establishment, in disguise, not only "misses a figure," but states what he knows to be untrue, if he knows my thing about it, when he says that those three papers [the three which support gen: Dawson favor of Mr. Prieur." No such thing .- This is the onjournal of the three, which, in this city, support gen.

Jeposon, and opposed Mr. Pricur's re-election. The two others warmly advocated his cause. Such frequent bluntless will induce us to bolieve, before long, that the Emporium is given to "wilful misrepresentation We have New York papers of the 29th uit. and Washington of the 2d inst. They are wholly barron of news, either domestic or foreign. . The official returns from the parishes in the second cor gressional district of this state, give gen. Ripley twentynine votes over his competitor, the hon. Philemon Thomas, the present incumbent. Mr. T. will retire with the respect of all parties—he has faithfully represented the interests Louisiana. His loss will scarcely be regretted, however, zincs it must be admitted on all hands, this his successor is a centleman with whom the interests of the state, will be safe, and who is possessed of every ability to defend and advance

Our intelligence from the third congressional district i till very imperfect. In the parishes of St. Mary, St. Mart n. Layfayatte, St. Landry, Avoyelles, Rapides, and Catshoels. Mr. Bullard has 136 majority; and the parishes of Vatehituatios, Washika and Concordia remain to be heard from. The parish of Natchitoches will certainly give a respoints to Mr. Mouton, possibly sufficiently large to turn the scale in his favor; Washit too, it is believed, will g've a majority for him; and the probability is strongly in-dicative of the defeat of Mr. Bullard. Mr. D. Holstein is elected to the house of representative of the state legislature from the parish of Catahoula.

We transfer to our columns, from the Nashville Banner a very able and lucid article on the subject of the politics of South Carolina. It is from the pen of the editor of that le every sincere lover of the union.

We do not copy the new tariff bill, not only because we page ive that it is destined to undergo various alterations in nan, Milligan, Newman, Nuckelle, Pa ton. Pearce, senate, but because at the time of its being reported we published an analyzing it, from which its provisions will be as well understood as by the bill itself. It will be found White, Wickliffe, Wilde—65. in our paper of the 4th of June.

> From the Cleaveland (Uhio) Advertiser. June 20. DREADFUL INDIAN MASSACRE!

A large and respectable menting of the others of the state of the stat

Party, while the other has selected the distinctive ap-pelletion of Free Trade and State Rights. The memere tauntingly styled, by their opponents, submissiones. The nailifiers maintain the constitutional power and right of a state government to declare null and voice and right of a state government to declare null and void, and to render inoperative within its limits, any act of the general government which may be considered by a majority of the people of the state, or perhaps by a maindustry of the state legislature, inconsistent with the fe detal constitution. The union party, or, as they ar acrat constitution. The union party, or, as they are saferingly termed, the submission men, deny the right of a state, as such, to interfere with the operations of the national government, and insist upon the obligation of obadience to all the laws enacted by the constituted declared unconstitutional by the regular judicial tribu The leading nulliflers insist that their remedy percent, simple, and effectual—that it is perfectly consistent with the most ardent attachment to the union of the states and with the most respectful and loyal deention to the supremacy of the laws. The other party on the centrary, consider millification as synonymous ith revolution and anticipate, as its inevitable result a fearful collission and an unequal conflict between the nullifying state and the rest of the union. They pro-pose therefore, as a substitute for the inefficient and sperate process of nullification, the call of a convention from the southern states, to consult on some meas noxious tariff and to so operate with energy and strength in maintaining southern rights and interests against the oppressions and invasions of an unjust and despotsime oppressions and anymonous of an impact and despot-ic majority of the nation. The nullifying party is de-cidedly the strongest and is rapidly gaining accessions. They have the popular enthances on their side, and their leaders know how to employ it to effect. The present and approaching crisis is represented as anoth er glorious era in the history of Carolina, requiring the same patriotic ardor, the same heroic self devotion, the some personal sacrifices, and the same fearless disre-gard of consequences which distinguished and immor talised the citizen soldiers of that proud and illustrious state during our first revolutionary struggle. The govroment of the United States at this time is compared to the oppressive and tyranical government of Great Britain during our state of colonial dependence, and the protective system is considered as precisely analogous to the stamp act and tax upon tea which our forefathers resolved to resist, at the point of the bayonet and mouth of the canon. The union man are represented as modern tories, willing to yield and abandon their rights and therties, and tamely to submit to tyranny and oppres dras, are Cherokees; since the march a number of their sion. In this way, the most powerful and successful tribe have arrived in Necogloches, declaring that those and high sense of honor of the young, enthusiastic, and ardent, and a degree of odium is attacked to the opposers of mullification, which no arguments can remove and no counter declamation can successfully withstand. The great mass of the people are thus infected with a narrow and exclusive feeling of state devotion and with melancholy feeling of jealously and matility towards the federal union. The contest is considered as one for principle, and nothing therefore can now be satisfactory, but a total, unconditional, and immediate surrender of the of the protecting policy in the adjustmen of the tariff. No compromise, no partial reduction of duties—nothing short of the shandoment of the princi--can meet the demands of the oppress ed and outraged people, who, having taken a stand in vindication of their rights, cannot now recede without disgrace, until the object is folly attained.

Such at least to be ground taken by the nullifiers, and such are the kentiments avowed by their numers, and such are the sentiments avorted by their followers generally. It is possible indeed that a modification of the tariff at the present session of congress, though not entirely satisfactory. Sould so check the enthusiasm of the people and furnish the union party with such efficient weapons of resistance to violent measures, as would nighter that the millifactory and had been seen to be a first and the millifactory. as would paralyze the efforts of the nullifiers and lead projects. But unless there be some such modification, and perhaps even with a modification regarded as a mere mockery, no one who has witnessed the prevailing excitement in South Carolina and who is acquaint of with the already great and rapidly increasing strength of the nullifying party there, can reasonably doubt the at the next ression of which will certainly contain a large majority of pullifiers, -- probably two thirds of each house—some act will be passed in con-formity with the popular theory of the state, and the collection of duties under the law of congress will be under the law of congress will be phibited and resisted. What would the issue of such r fearful collission be-of deep and awful interest. WARRINGTON, June 2. far as it goes, may be considered highly favorable to the prospects of the bill in that house. By a vote of one for Liverpsol.

Travelling several miles in the country with two or three friends, we met with a large black snake which was soon slain; and to make "assurance doubly sure," thook a large flat stone as large as I could conveniently manage, and threw it on its hiddle and left it lying in the road. Returning about four or five hours afterwards, to my utter a tonishment I found two stakes inboth exactly of the same length lying as close together as possible. My first impression was, that some one in our absence had killed the second snake and had taken the pains to place it by the side of its mate nder the stone, which remained exactly as I had left Rut on approaching their heads. I some discovered mistaker a sparkling eye told me that the last one had taken its present position from choice rather than compulsion, and a hissing tongue served to warn me though an enemy to anakes. I could not muster resolu-tion enough to kill it, since it appeared to possess so mucl attack ment and affiction for its mate: but my cumpan ions, a little more resolute, declared that no seapen should over escape from them when it was in their power to prevent it.
