On the feeting of this letter the attorney general went On the feelint of this letter the attorney general went to and had a cufference with the governor, in which, after having developed his opinion more fully than in the letter of the attorney general statled that he was feadly to bring a new action against the bank, and expected to be able to a succeed in obtining a judgment in favor of the state, not withstanding the judgment refiltered in 1827. Which he throught wrong in almost all its paris: but that he desired to have first a demonstration on the part of the legislature, if of their sentiment as to the justice of the claim. He then suggested the idea of referring the subject to a joint com-

committee of both houses; who should report a bill or res-olution requesting or authorising film to act. Shortly after, a committee was appointed to examine the subject and report. In their report, the committee be-stowed great cubicions on the bank respecting the wisdoffi.
