PRINTER TO THE UNIVERSITY

PREFACE

To the Index of the Fellows in the first volume was subjoined a note that on the completion of this series a general index corresponding to that in the first series would be printed. This volume is the fulfilment of the undertaking. The last fruits from an old tree which began to grow as a sapling under the shadow of the walls of the College in the year 1836.

The first series, by Dr. Bloxam, of the Foundation Members (beginning with the Choristers and ending with the Demies) is in seven volumes, of which the first was published in 1853 and the seventh in 1881; the Index in 1885. The first volume of this series (containing the Fellows to 1910) was published in 1894 and the seventh in 1911, thus extending to the same length in time as its predecessor. The Index has been divided into three classes for the sake of facility of reference. A list of names of places and countries mentioned has been added which was not included in the former Index, but which has been often found to be wanted. In this, under the head of the College itself, I have given, under separate sub-headings, the details of the Chapel, Hall, Library, School, Buildings, and Plate, which at once afford a brief summary view of the history, while a mass of other details which could not be classified are under the head of Miscellaneous.

All who are interested in local history or family records will appreciate fullness in the Index of Names. Additional particulars of some of the Fellows recorded will certainly be found as investigation of wills and parochial records is extended. Of this, Mr. J. Challenor Smith, F.S.A., has given proof by the many instances in which he has imparted information gained by his genealogical researches. To him my thanks are eminently due.

At the suggestion of Mr. Günther, and with the approval of the College, there is added to the volume the description of the memorials of departed members existing in the Chapel in 1913, with an account of those that have been lost, which he printed privately last year. The details and illustrations are given with great accuracy, and the paper is full of interest, not only for the members of the College but also for a wider circle. I am grateful to Mr. Günther for proposing its inclusion.

W. D. MACRAY.

CORRIGENDA

- Vol. ii, p. 73, l. 19, for "on St. Mark's day" read "the Monday before St. Mark's day".
add "One of S. Perrot's daughters, Mary, the wife of William Westley, was the mother of William Westley, Fellow in 1638."
p. 219, l. 23, for "Earl of Somerset" read "Earl of Worcester".
Vol. iii, p. 124, l. 9, dele "Possibly". Barnes's will proves that he was vicar of East Ilsley.
Vol. vi, p. 70, l. 12, for "Kent" read "Lincolnshire".
Vol. viii, Appendix on the Monuments, p. 10, l. 27, add "The name is corrected by Macray in vol. ii, p. 225." The date is 1480.

* Communicated by Mr. J. Challenor Smith, Jan. 1912.

the name of Doctour Edmunde Froctour my bringer upp, and let the boke be given to Magdaleyne Colledge in Oxforde.'

The memorial brass in the Chapel is a palimpsest from the Greyfriar Church in London where part had been dedicated in memory of one Thomas Cobbe and his wife only half a century before! There are parts also of a still earlier brass, of a priest and of a lady. See Waller's Monumental Brasses, Proceedings of Soc. of Antiquaries, sec. Series, vol. xxiv, pp. 219-20, and Transactions of Monumental Brass Society, vol. vi, pp. 248-51.

Cowper, William, i. 118. In his will, dated 1521, 'householder and dweller in the town of Guyldeforde,' he leaves to the College 'my sylver pece and my sylver goblett, there to be praied for as a benefactour thereto.' [Communicated by Mr. J. Challenor Smith in Jan. 1912.]

Drope, Edward, iii. 153. He resigned the living of Stratfield Turgis 16 Sept. 1671. [Mr. J. Challenor Smith, from the Parish Register, in March, 1909.]

Goodwin, Thomas, 1684, iv. 133. Recommended to the Chancellor of the Univ., the Duke of Ormonde, by a kinsman, Sir Will. Boreman, 21 Nov. 1681.

Calendar of Ormonde MSS. (Hist. MSS. Commission) vol. vi. (1911) p. 235.

Gunnes, or Gonnes, Gregory, Chaplain, ii. 38; iii. 263. Born in Norfolk. Went also under the name of Stone. Examined before Magistrates at Henley 8 June, 1585 as a suspected papist and a friend of Campion, popish relics being found on him; Calendar of Domestic State Papers, 1585, p. 244. He had been accused in 1566 at the Visitation of the College by Bishop Horne of having used some 'verba papistica', but was acquitted. He resigned, however, in the following year, being then appointed to the rectory of Yelford, Oxon.

Hallay, Richard. In 1524 six silver spoons were bequeathed to him when Demy by one of the same name, vicar of Stow, Bucks. He is not found in Bloxam's list of demies.

Hanson, Robert, iii. 135. The following extract from the will of his father, Nicholas Hanson, of Elland, Yorkshire, dated 16 Sept. 1613, was kindly communicated to me in 1911 by Mr. H. Ormerod, of Green Royd, Brighouse, from the original in his possession. The father states that his son 'hathe fallen into such a distemperance and kinde of infirmite by fitt that he is neither able well to governe himselfe nor his place', and makes earnest suit to the President and College to grant one more year of trial 'from the tyme of absence already given him in cureing of hismallady', charging his son or executor to give to the College on his resignation 'the usual benevolence' out of the profit of his fellowship, and also one piece of plate of or about the value of five pounds. The College gave further leave of absence not only for one year but for four. The date of Hanson's death is not known, but it probably occurred about the time of his resignation in 1619.

Poole, Reginald Lane, vii. 78. By an unfortunate misplacement of a slip, an important item in the list of the works edited by Mr. Poole was accidentally omitted, viz. John Bale's Index Britanniae Scriptorum, from Bale's original MS. in the Bodleian Library [Selden, supra 64], printed in quarto at the Clarendon Press in 1902. The book is most carefully annotated throughout. The editor was assisted by Miss Mary Bateson.

Rider, William, iv. 67. He died about the end of the year 1651, his will [42, Bowyer] being proved 11 Feb. 1652. He directed his burial to be in the Chapel; to his father and mother he bequeathed one spur royal apiece; to his brother Edward his cloak, best suit and best boots; to the school of Brayton-in-Hales, Shropshire, two pounds to buy books, and to the poor of the parish three pounds; Mary Prince, of Oxford, executrix, to have all his books and other goods in his chamber, study, or elsewhere. [Communicated by Mr. J. Challenor Smith in Sept. 1912.]

Stephenson, George, v. 129. In 1807 he published a volume of discourses entitled The Romish Church; a review of some of the leading doctrines, compiled from Archbishop Secker and others. He was then curate of Bishop Wearmouth as well as vicar of Kelloe.

Warren, Thomas Herbert, vi. 187. Appointed Knight Commander of the Royal Victorian Order, Nov. 1914.

West, Richard, iv. 170. An anonymous tract, Thoughts on Convocation and the notion of its divine right, 4° Lond. 1699, is ascribed to him.

Wilkinson, John, iii. 117. His will was dated 22 Dec. 1649, and proved 6 March following. Legacies in money and lands to his wife, nephews, friends, and four servants. Debts due to him £1,516. Administration given to his nephew Thomas Richardson.

A DESCRIPTION OF BRASSES AND OTHER
FUNERAL MONUMENTS IN THE CHAPEL OF MAGDALEN COLLEGE

BY
R. T. GÜNTHER, M.A.
FELLOW OF THE COLLEGE

PREFACE

ALTHOUGH Magdalen College Chapel could never boast any of those ‘wrecks of splendid mortality’, the tombs of the illustrious, ever drawing pilgrims aside from their tour of the world, since those of our alumni who have gone from us to make history in the great world have not returned to be buried within our walls ; yet our Memorials are of interest as symbols of the religious, intellectual, and artistic progress as well of the nation as of the College. More of the past of England, as Mr. Green has truly remarked in the introduction to his History of the English People, is told by the brasses of burghers in the church of a simple English town, than by many a page of conventional history books.

Some of our Memorials of intermediate period, now that the ‘cooling touch of time’ has permitted criticism unrestrained by sentiment, may be regarded unfavourably : we may smile at their grotesque and fantastic ornament of frame and phrase ; yet they vividly present to us the artificial and rococo style of the period, and they show us the artificiality of Oxford in the eighteenth century.

The old brasses of the fifteenth century show a more genuine art, with all the added interest of a superior antiquity. Some are older than the College itself ; others present the contemporary records of the fashion of clothes of our academic predecessors, and several bear portraits of the deceased engraved with convincing clearness.

In the Statutes which he gave to his newly-founded College of S. Mary Magdalen, our Founder, William of Waynflete, ordained that his Scholars should be of ‘good morals, and dispositions fully equipped for Study, and able and likely to make real proficiency, competently instructed in reading and in plain singing’ ; but he could not ensure that they should always be competent to take charge of ancient monuments. With extraordinary truth he foresaw the character of the kind of person who would come to govern his College in the future. ‘It often happens’, he declared, ‘that the structures which a Founder builds carefully and durably to the honour of God are recklessly allowed by his successors, through slothfulness and neglect, to decay and become ruinous.’ In writing this Waynflete had the fabric of the Chapel more particularly in his mind; but his words have applied with greater truth to the Memorials.

We have to deplore two crises in the history of our Memorials, both caused by alterations to the fabric of the Chapel, by which some temporary improvement, seemingly expedient at the time, was effected without due regard to the preservation of the Memorials.

The first was caused by repaving; the second by heating.

In 1634–5 the floor of the Chapel, ‘covered with the monuments of the dead buried beneath, like that of the Choir at Christ Church,’ was unfortunately disturbed, in order that it might be covered with black and white marble pavement-quarries. Some of the larger monuments were then shifted into the Antechapel, and many of the smaller inscriptions were lost. Some of the monuments which were relaid after this move were again disturbed when a new heating-apparatus was installed in 1838, and several brasses were actually lifted from gravestones and stored with other precious metal in the Bursary. There they remained for a number of years, and of course their identity got forgotten, until five of them were rescued by the piety of Mr. Macray, and were relaid in the Chapel in 1893. Sundry fragments still loose in 1911 were finally replaced by College Order. In that year, it is pleasant to record, parts of President Tybard’s gravestone and brasses were most fortunately discovered among building-rubbish on the ground-floor of the Great Tower. These were recombined with his effigy and were reinstated in the floor of the Chapel of which he had watched the building.

A cemetery for those members of the College who were not interred within the building was found in S. John’s Quadrangle, just under the western wall of the Chapel. For a long period this space was covered with turf, and probably also with halfobliterated gravestones. In 1809 an Order was passed to remove the turf and to gravel the space; and the gravestones were either removed or buried beneath the surface. Some years later the turf was replaced.

It is uncertain which memorials are referred to, but there is a note in Bloxam that in 1832 'tablets were removed from the clustered columns and placed in some convenient situation'.

In 1855 an order was issued by the Queen in Council prohibiting for the future all burials in the Chapel, Antechapel, or Cloisters, except those of the President or other Members of the Foundation dying within the precincts of the College, who might still be buried in the Antechapel or Cloister provided that 'every coffin be enclosed in lead, embedded in charcoal and entombed in an air-tight manner' (Bloxam, ii. 393).

In modern times many Fellows have been buried in St. Peter's Churchyard and more recently in Holywell Cemetery.

It is an unfortunate circumstance that the spots selected for the relaying of the most interesting of the older brasses are just those which are most liable to be walked upon or to have Chapel furniture dragged over them, to the inevitable deterioration of the brasses. It should be remembered that the bronze alloy in which they are cut is not a very hard metal, and engraved lines soon lose their sharpness and get rubbed down. Since the art that produced these memorials is gone, and the monuments of it are comparatively rare, it may be suggested that the fifteenth- and sixteenth-century originals should be preserved in a place of safety, or attached to a wall, and twentieth-century electrotypes should be laid in their present places on the floor.

The description of the costumes of the older brasses has been supplied by Mr. Brightman, to whom I am indebted for much help and for the following note on the academical costume of the period, which has frequently been misinterpreted even by experts.

'The clerical, and therefore the academical, dress of the middle ages consisted of (i) an undertunic (subtunica, tunica), the modern 'cassock'; (ii) an overtunic (tunica, supertunica, toga, gona), the modern 'gown'; and (iii) a hood (caputium), consisting of a cape

‘The clerical, and therefore the academical, dress of the middle ages consisted of (i) an undertunic (subtunica, tunica), the modern ‘cassock’ ; (ii) an overtunic (tunica, supertunica, toga, gona), the modern ‘gown’ ; and (iii) a hood (caputium), consisting of a cape

enveloping the shoulders nearly down to the elbows, and a head-piece, with a ‘poke’ (liripipium, tippetum), falling down behind. To these, beneficiaries, dignitaries, and graduates added (iv) a habit (habitus), which was of several forms : (1) the cappa, which took four shapes : (a) the cappa clausa, the modern cappa magna and ‘parliament robe’ of prelates, used academically by Doctors of Divinity and of the Canon Law, which had the hood attached to it, or rather was itself a huge hood, the cape of which reached to the feet, with a slit in front through which the arms were passed ; (b) the chimere (chimaera, pallium), a cappa with two side-slits for the arms, used by Bachelors of Divinity and Canon Law and Doctors of Medicine and the Civil Law ; the present ‘Convocation habit’ of Doctors in Oxford, and the chimere of Bishops, prescribed in the Decretals of Gregory IX and still used by English Bishops ; (c) the cappa manicata, a chimere with long sleeves which were already unused in the fifteenth century and left to hang loose from the shoulders, while the arms were passed through the side-slits ; used by Doctors of Civil Law, and surviving in Cambridge till the end of the seventeenth century (see Loggan’s plate in Cantabrigia illustrata) ; (d) the cappa nigra, a short chimere used by Masters of Arts ; and (2) the tabard (tabardum), a tunic with short pointed sleeves, distinctive of Bachelors, but used by higher degrees as a matter of convenience, of course in the colour of the faculty. The Hood of the ordinary form was used over all these habits except the first. The Hood for graduates was lined and edged with fur, or, from the first quarter of the fifteenth century, in summer (i.e. from Easter to All Saints) with silk, if desired ; and gown and habit might be, and commonly were, similarly lined and edged.

Authors of books on monumental brasses have adopted a terminology of their own, based on a certain misunderstanding of the facts. They have called the overtunic a ‘cassock’, which is a mistake ; they have separated the hood from its cape and called it a ‘tippet’, whereas the ‘tippet’ is quite a different thing, being the modern ‘scarf’, derived from the liripipe, not from the cape, of the hood; while the chimere has been called a ‘rochet’, which is absurd, and the cappa nigra a ‘sleeveless tabard’, which, while no doubt it describes the superficial appearance of the cappa nigra after the middle of the fifteenth century, ignores its name, and, therefore, probably also its origin.’

It is with great pleasure that I take this opportunity of acknowledging my debt to Messrs. Wilson and Greene for help in textual, heraldic, and historical matters, and above all to Mr. Brightman, from whose careful rubbings the reproductions on pp. 3, 5, 9, 12, 13, 15, 17, and 25 have been prepared, and who has given much time to secure the accuracy of the transcriptions.

BRASSES AND OTHER FUNERAL MONUMENTS IN MAGDALEN COLLEGE CHAPEL.

XIII–XIVth Century.

The oldest funeral monument within the College which has been exposed in recent years, is undoubtedly the nameless and fractured tombstone of some member of St. John's Hospital, which was found in the summer of 1913 in the middle of St. John's Quadrangle during alterations to the drainage system carried out in that year.

Mr. Poole, who was fortunately in residence at the time, took careful note of the circumstance.

The fragments of the tombstone are at present in the Tower. They measure about 2 feet across, and are identified by a cross cut upon the stone.

The Eagle of St. John (new). The Angel of St. Matthew (new).

Gravestone and brasses moved from Inner Chapel to under the great west window of the Antechapel in 1635. When a new heating-apparatus was installed, the stone and brasses were raised and were mislaid for many years; but in 1911 two large portions of the Purbeck marble slab were found in the Great Tower and were relaid with new stone and re-engraved inscriptions in the floor of the Chapel. The monument has been completed by the identification of a nameless effigy in the Chapel by Mr. Mill Stephenson, F.S.A., as that of Tybard.

Now on the south wall of the south aisle of Antechapel.

It is possible that the north-western nameless half-figure in the choir may have belonged to Bentley's memorial. It is a half-figure in undertunic, overtunic with fur-edged sleeves, plain tabard, and hood lined and edged with fur.

This brass was loose in 1861 and was figured by Haines, p. 84.

Macray has 1487-8: but apparently by confusion with Ralph Perch, whose grave is mentioned in the accounts for 1448. (Macray, i, 19.)

According to Gutch, the gravestone and entire set of brasses were intact in 1786 under the great west window of the Antechapel; but for some years before 1911 the inscription brass was on the south wall of the Antechapel, and several fragments of the marginal inscription were lying loose in the Bursary. The missing portions were restored with the help of some rubbings in the possession of the Society of Antiquaries and are shown in white in the figure. They have now been fixed to the north wall of the Antechapel.

George Epworth. Fellow. (Macray, i, 115.)

The inscription (p. 90) is lost, but it is possible that the whole-length figure (p. 12), in undertunic, overtunic with close silk-edged sleeves, cappa nigra with silk-edged arm-slits, and hood lined and edged with silk, lying to the S.E. of the choir floor, may belong to Epworth. It was reported as loose in 1861, when Haines saw it. Haines, p. 169, and fig. on p. 85.

1490.

Thomas Freer. (Bloxham, iv, 2; Macray, i, 107.)

The inscription (p. 90) is lost, but it is possible that the other whole-length figure (p. 13), in undertunic, overtunic with close silk-edged sleeves, cappa nigra with fur edging at the hem and the arm-slits, and hood lined and edged with fur, lying to the N.E. of the choir, may belong to Freer. It was loose in 1861. Haines, pp. 85, 169, dated this brass as c. 1480.

Three-quarter length figure, head lost, now $6\frac{1}{4}$ in. high; in undertunic with edged sleeves; overtunic with wide sleeves lined with fur and turned back at the wrists; tabard with edged pocket-holes under the arms, and with the sleeves divided up the front; and hood lined and edged with fur. [There are only two other known examples of the tabard with divided sleeves; viz. on one of the sons in the brass of John Avening, formerly in the parish church of Cirencester, now lost (figured in Davis's Monumental Brasses of Gloucestershire, 209); and in the brass of William Goche at Barningham, Suffolk.]

This small brass, after lying loose in the Bursary for several years, was framed and fixed to the south wall of the Ante-chapel in 1911. The reverse was carefully cleaned and rubbed by Mr. J. Challenor Smith in Feb. 1901 (Macray, iv, 186).

Nicholas Goldwell, M.A. Fellow 1518-23. (Macray, i, 156.)

A clumsy full-length figure in undertunic with edged sleeves; overtunic with wide sleeves lined with fur and turned back at the wrists; cappa nigra with edged arm holes; hood lined and edged with fur, and apparently divided down the front; wide-toed Tudor shoes. No tonsure, since he was not in orders.

Issuing from the mouth of the figure towards a representation of the Virgin and Child (lost, Haines) is a scroll.

Succurre m' [virgo maria].

The missing words in brackets were re-engraved in 1911.

Height, 15 $\frac{3}{8}$ inches.
Stone, 3 ft. 1 in. x 1 ft. 10 in.

Under his figure :

John Hygden, President 1517-25; Dean of Cardinal College 1525-32 (Macray, i, 123).

Full-length figure; in two undertunics; wide-sleeved overtunic; surplice; amess; cope; square cap. This figure was found in 1911, attached to one of the slabs of Purbeck marble belonging to the Tibarde monument; but it undoubtedly belonged to a much later period, and Mr. Mill Stephenson has suggested that in all probability it belonged to the Hygden monument. It is now mounted as Perch (1911).

Inscription under figure (Wood).

[Pray for the soul of John Hygden, which hath stablysyd and founded a perpetual exhibition for eyght students in this college.]

Marginal inscription.

[Hic iacet Johannes Hygden Sacre Theologie Professor et Collegii Henrici Octavi in Oron. primus Decanus qui obiit xiiii die Januar. anno Domini millesimo quingentesimo tricesimo secundo. Cuius anime propicietur Deus. Amen.]

Removed from the Inner Chapel c. 1635, and not to be found 1786 (Gutch), nor since. A design for the restoration of this monument has been prepared by Messrs. Gawthorp, and is shown in the figure.

Head and neck and lower part restored.

Suggested restoration for brasses to John Hygden, 1532.

1558.

Arthur Cole, B.D., President 1555-8. Canon of Windsor.

Full-length figure ; in undertunic ; tunic with slightly widened sleeves ; surplice ; amess ; Garter mantle. (Amess in grey metal ; Garter cross enamelled red.)

Inscription under figure. Letters with underlines are red.

Moved from the original position in the Inner Chapel to under great west window of Antechapel in 1635, but 'restored in a new stone, and replaced in the Inner Chapel before the eagle' (College Order, May 9, 1859) ; head repaired in 1860 and again in 1911, when rubbings from the brasses were taken and exhibited at a meeting of the Society of Antiquaries in London, and published in their Proceedings for April 18, 1912. See also Waller, pt. xiii.

Height, 3 ft. 2 in.

Stone, 4 ft. 6 in. x 3 ft. 6 in.

The inscription comes beneath the figure.

1431, c. 1450 and 1516.

On the reverse of the brasses to Cole, 1558.

On reverse a priest, lacking head and feet, in mass vestments —viz. amice and alb, both appareled; stole and maniple, both fringed and of the same diapered stuff as the apparels; and full chasuble, plain except for a narrow embroidered border. c. 1450.

The piece at the bottom appears to have been cut from the brass of a kneeling figure with a tasselled girdle.

The reverse of the head shows the Royal arms.

The inscription plate is made up of two inscriptions :

1. Robert Cobbe, citizen and tailor of London, d. Oct. 28, 1506, and his wife, Margery, d. June 24, 1516, and probably their son, Sir Thomas Cobbe, the date for whose death is left blank.

William Langton, President 1610-26.

This monument was moved in 1635 from the north wall of the Choir to the north wall of the Antechapel. Two sculptured figures draw back curtains and show a half-length portrait bust of the President, in close-sleeved gown, chimere, hood, and cap. The monument is surmounted by a group representative of Charity and by two other figures. It should be remembered that monuments in this style were more in harmony with the interior of the Chapel as it then was, in the classical style with its Corinthian pillars and pilasters, than with either the earlier or later styles of architectural decoration.

1635.

John Lyttelton.

Thomas Lyttelton.

'This Monument of the Lytteltons' was executed by Nicholas Stone, Master-Mason to King Charles I, and much in vogue as a Statuary in the preceding reign. "The History of his works is fully recorded by himself. Vertue met with his Pocket-Book, in which he kept an account of the Statues and Tombs he executed, of the persons for whom done, and of the payments he received." Out of this pocket-book the following is an extract: "In 1635 I made a Tomb for the two Sonns of Sir Thomas Littleton, and sett it up in Malden-college in Oxford, where the boys were drowned, for the which work I had 30l." ' (Walpole's Anecdotes of Painting, vol. ii, 4to, p. 26, 30; 8vo, p. 41, 47.)

This large monument, flanked by two sculptured youths mourning, now occupies its original position in the middle of the east wall (north side) of the Antechapel. In 1832 it was determined, probably on Mr. Cottingham's recommendation, to move it to the opposite wall of the Antechapel, but two years later better counsels prevailed, and it was left in its original situation.

Arms—

- i. Quarterly, first and fourth gules on a chevron argent between three horse-pistols as many roses [Hopkins]. Second and third party per fess argent and azure a wyvern statant counterchanged [Toovey].
- ii. Magdalen.
- iii. Trinity (of which College he was an undergraduate) blazoned thus :

Party per pale argent and purpure, on a chevron between three griffins' heads erased four fleurs de lys all counterchanged.

This is a mistake in the hatching; the proper tinctures are, or and azure.

- iv. Eton (where he was at school) blazoned thus :
- Gules three lilies argent, two and one, on a chief party per pale, dexter sable a fleur de lys, sinister argent a lion passant gardant.*

This is again wrong; the correct arms are :

Sable three lily flowers argent, on a chief per pale azure a fleur de lys or and gules a leopard passant of the fourth.

Frederick Bulley, President 1855–85 (Macray, vi, 129).

The mural tablet on the east wall (north end) of the Antechapel is bordered with a running rose ornament, within which is a carving of the Crucifixion between two shields. The design was by Bodley from a sketch by the Rev. F. H. Sutton (the last of the ‘gentleman commoners’).

LOST BRASSES.

The following brasses have been lost since the time of Wood, from whose work on the Colleges of Oxford the descriptions are borrowed.

1465.

Roger Bulkeley, D.D. Principal of Hare Hall 1438 and 1444; became a member of Magdalen College between 1450 and 1460, probably in consequence of the conveyance of Hare Hall by St. John's Hospital to Waynfleet in 1448. (Macray, i, p. 88.)

Hic iacet Magister Rogerus Bulkeley in Sacra Theologia Professor, quondam specialis Benefactor huius Collegii, qui obiit vi die Mensis Maii anno Dom. Mcccclxv. Cuius anime propicietur Deus.

Wood, Colleges (ed. 1786), p. 335 : now lost.

1474.

John Goolde, A.M., S.T.S. Fellow in c. 1471 (see MS. 49, given by him).

Orate pro anima Mrí Johannis Goolde Magistri Artium et Scholaris Theologie, Socii Collegii Scholarium de Valle¹ Sarisburiensis Diocesis, qui obiit xxvi die mensis Junii an. dom. Mcccclxxiiii² Cuius anime propicietur Deus. (Wood, p. 335.)

² Error for Mcccclxxiiii (Macray, i, p. 90).

Formerly under west window of Antechapel (Wood).

Now lost.

One of the four small nameless figures was identified by Haines as possibly that of Goolde, but none appear to be quite so early in style.

1480.

Edward Middleton.

Hic iacet Edwardus Middleton, filius Johannis Middleton quondam Civis et Mercerii ac Aldermanni Civitatis London, et Elizabethe uxoris eiusdem Johannis unius filiorum Thome Wolseley de Wolseley in Com. Stafford Armigeri. Qui quidem Edwardus obiit decimo nono die mensis Aprilis anno Domini millesimo cccclxx. Cuius anime propicietur Deus.

Arms—Parted per fess erm. and ermines a lion rampant counter-changed. ‘But they do not belong to Middleton, as I can find.’ (Wood.) Perhaps they belong to Killingmarch.

George Epworth, M.A. Fellow c. 1487-9. (Macray, i, 115.)

Hic iacet Georgius Epworth in Artibus Magister ac quondam Socius istius Collegii, qui obiit primo die mensis Septemb. an. Dom. Mccccclxxxix. Cuius anime propicietur Deus.

Formerly in the Chapel.

Now lost.

It is suggested that the brass figured on p. 12 may have belonged to Epworth.

1490.

Thomas Freer, M.A. Fellow 1483-90. (Macray, i, 107.)

Drate pro anima Thomae Freer nuper Magistri Art. et Consort. huius loci, qui obiit xxiii¹ Junii an. Dom. millesimo cccclxxx. Cuius animae propicietur Deus. Amen.

Formerly in the Antechapel (Wood). Now lost.

It is suggested that the brass figured on p. 13 may have belonged to Freer.

¹ His will is dated 27th.

1499.

Richard Barnes or Barnes, M.A. (Macray, i. 81).

The Tomb of Richard Patten, Father of the Founder.

Richard Patten was buried in the Old Church at Wainflete All Saints, where a tomb was erected to his memory by his son William of Wainflete. The monument was described by Hollis in 1628, as being in the south aisle of the church.

Wainflet ōmn̄ sanctorum
In choro australi

Statua alabastrina Viri, cuius pulvillus ab epo: et monacho sustentatus; et inferius ad caput bini angeli gestantes, Insignia aurea periscelide, cincta, quōr dextra.

Novissima memorare—Credo videre bona dñi in terra viventium—Bursa. Pugiunculus, G globuli oratorii ad Cingulum, Tumulus ligno inclusus.
Ut dicitur, Pater est Willi Wainflet Episcopi Winton.¹

In the eighteenth century a heavy brick tower, raised in the place of the original lighter wooden spire, weighed so heavily on the old foundations that it caused them to sink, and then pressing hard against the main fabric of the church, made arches and columns lean dangerously over to the west. By 1809 the evil had grown beyond repair, and the ruinous church was closed. When the church was taken down, the monument to Patten was ‘wantonly demolished’. The parts that escaped total destruction were collected by Mr. Wilcox, and were preserved in the school-house in 1829 (Oldfield, Wainflet, p. 41). From the school-house the tomb was transported to Magdalen College in Oxford, and in 1832 a Gothic recess was built in the Antechapel for its reception, at an estimated cost of £94, by Cottingham. Whether the tomb was actually erected in front of the recess we do not know, but in November 1833 Cottingham’s plan was abandoned, and the monument was removed to the Founder’s Oratory near the Altar under the direction of Buckler.

The following is Dr. Chandler’s description of the monument:

‘Richard Patten is recumbent in effigy on the slab of a fair altar-tomb of alabaster, within a strong moveable enclosure of wooden palisades designed to defend it from injury. He is represented as a tall, well-made person, not aged, of a comely pleasing countenance, without a beard, his eyes open and turned upwards, his hands closed as in prayer. He is bareheaded; his hair regularly divided in wavy locks from the centre of the crown, and cut round, reaching only to the ears. He has a large figured ring, which seems to have had a stone or seal set in it, on the forefinger of the right hand; and a narrow plain ring on the little finger of the left. He wears a gown or robe with wide puffed sleeves and with plaits, reaching from the breast to the feet; a broad hem or border at the bottom; and underneath, a vest or waistcoat, of which the sleeves are tied at the wrists with double strings. The two standing collars of these garments are round, and closed at the neck. The inner garment appears at the opening of the sleeves. A belt is fastened about the waist with a buckle; the strap falling to the knee. It is studded with roses of stones, and the whole breadth near the end, decorated with a wrought ornament terminating in a single stone. From the belt hangs by the middle a rosary; the ends, at which are two tassels, falling parallel; the beads roughly cut, and near an inch diameter: also, by a double string, a purse with two small cords, to open and shut it, ending in tassels reaching almost to the bottom, which has a tassel at each corner. A whittle or knife was likewise suspended to it; the string yet remaining with a portion of the handle, and the entire sheath under his right side. His feet rest on scattered lilies and other flowers, and his shoes have pointed toes. His head lies on a pillow placed on a cushion, with two large tassels at the corners; and is supported on his left side by John and on his right by William Waynflete.

‘John Waynflete is represented as sitting with his feet drawn up, his right hand beneath the pillow, his left holding a large open book lying on his left knee, under which his right foot is placed. He has the clerical tonsure, and his hair is cut short and even. His features are strong and masculine, his aspect venerable, his air solemn, and his eyes lifted up as in prayer. His dress is a hood; that, it is likely, of a bachelor of canon law, reaching to his loins, deeply indented or scalloped at the extremity; with a cowl behind, like the cloak of a Capuchin friar. Under it is a full flowing garment with open sleeves, probably a surplice, as he appears to be attending on the last moments of his father in the character of a priest.

placed under the bending of the right knee, his left hand supporting the pillow. He is represented as a bishop, and that hand has a glove upon it from which hang some small beads. The mitre on his head is set with precious stones, and richly adorned with broad figured lace; some traces of the painting and gilding still visible. The middle part of the staff of the crosier, with his right arm and the hand, which held it, and, it is probable, had likewise a glove on, is gone; but the lower end remains under the shoulder of the large statue ; and the upper, reposing on his own shoulder and touching the mitre, has above it some imperfect traces of the pastoral crook. His robes are loose, flowing to his feet, and spreading on the marble behind. His countenance is amiable and benevolent, but serious and expressive of sorrow. His face resembles that of his father, but is younger ; and is neither so broad nor so aged as that of his brother.

'The sides of the tomb are ornamented with compartments carved in fret-work, alternately of unequal width. In two at the head are angels, slender figures, with curling hair and pentagonal caps, their wings expanded, and robes flowing to their feet ; holding each on his breast an armorial shield, encircled with the garter, once painted and gilded, tied in a knot below. Traces remain of letters, probably of the usual motto. The shield on the dexter side has the bearing of William Waynflete, Lozengy three lilies in chief. The other is now plain ; time, it is likely, having obliterated the arms of the see of Winchester, for which, perhaps, it was intended.

'The wooden fence approaches the head of the tomb, so as not to admit of a passage within it, probably because the inscription was placed in that part, and not on a fillet round the rim ; one side being close to the wall. At that end the cornice is of freestone, and loose ; and, on removing it, light enters through the transparent alabaster. The middle is filled up with solid masonry. A remnant of the inscription was copied in 1629 : — novissima memorare — credo videre bona Dñi in terra viventium — and celebrates the pious confidence of the deceased, if I mistake not, by recording his last words : "I believe verily to see the goodness of the Lord in the land of the living."—Ps. xxvii. 15' (Chandler, Life of Waynflete).
