Charles C. Moore's Candidacy Commented Upon by Mr. James

"When the people have a chance to put a successful business man in the senate, the experiment certainly is worth trying. It would afford him the opportunity to extend the use of the common sense methods that have won for him in private life," asserts Henry James this evening in his comment on the tendency to send so many lawyers to congress.

Continuing Mr. James says: "In this connection the thought comes to mind that Charles C. Moore is a large figure in the world of business and affairs."

"Most of us have notions of possession, according to James W. Foley in 'The Listening Post' this evening. He says that most of us believe that what we may have or gain belongs to us, to do with what we choose. But to get the real enjoyment out of 'The Listening Post' you must read it yourself."

One of the most poignant editorials of the day deals with the Herrin mine horror, while there are several others of equal import.

Completing one of the most interesting editorial pages in this territory, are the fascinating daily feature articles by Dr. Frank Crane, Della Stewart and John Pilgrim. Besides this there is the eastern point of view, correct English and a beautiful poem.

Press-Newton and Merchants to Give Concerts

Enterprising business houses of Glendale have aligned with receiving sets to the broadcasting of the Press-Newton concerts, and are now offering free concerts to their patrons.

Owing to the failure of the opening concert, there has been little announcement of the co-operation of these local merchants, in view of the possibility that their patrons might be disappointed.

The Press now, with the station working regularly, is pleased to announce the list of those who have worked in with it since the beginning of broadcasting.

At these stores the public can hear the concerts between 8 and 9 o'clock, every evening. The programs will not be given at the Press building, in the future, since the local station cannot broadcast and receive at the same time.

These merchants have taken the responsibility of transmitting the concert to you. They are the pioneers in the Press-Newton broadcasting:
Brenkman Electric Co., 1524 South San Fernando road.
Park Avenue Pharmacy, corner Brand and Park.
The American Legion hall, on East Broadway.
Roberts & Echols, southeast corner of Brand and Broadway.

$790,945 BUDGET OKED BY CITY COUNCIL FOR THE CURRENT YEAR OF '22-'23

Shows $34,979.55 Unappropriated Balances From Earnings of the City and Its Revenues From Various Sources

GENERAL BONDED INDEBTEDNESS REDUCED

Total of $54,062.25 Paid on All Bonds and Interest Against the City of Glendale, Under Schedules Approved Last Night

Seven hundred and ninety thousand, nine hundred and forty-five dollars is the estimated gross total cost of operating the city and the public services of the city during the current year, according to the general, the electric and the water budget adopted at the meeting of the city council last night. Funds to meet the budgets were accordingly appropriated.

Of this amount a combined total of the three budgets shows $34,979.55 is unappropriated out of the gross revenue, after payments of $54,000 on bonds and interest are provided for, giving the net cost of running the city, including these payments of debt, $765,965.45.

The general budget calls for an expenditure of $232,550; the electric budget for $313,710, and the water budget for $184,885.

Against the general budget, the revenue is estimated as $190,000 taxes and miscellaneous revenues, $10,350, of which it is noted as significant, the police court fines pay the enormous figure of $25,000, mainly from traffic violations, be it said.

Building permits are estimated at $17,500, electric meter charges, $30,000, and business licenses, $8,000.

The total capital outlays of the general budget is given as $26,490.25 and the total operating expense is given as $257,487.70. The totals for expenditures for the general government, public welfare, public safety, police and fire, and public works being $283,977.95. This leaves an unappropriated balance of $8,382.05, which is added to the general budget for the current year.

The recapitulation of the electric budget shows total revenue of $313,710, a total capital and operation expense of $295,292.50, giving an unexpended balance of $18,417.50 over cost, making the total budget $184,885.

The water budget shows a gross revenue of $184,885, with $176,695 in total expenditures. The net profit, unappropriated, of $8,190 makes up the total water budget of $184,885.

Fifteen thousand dollars are set aside for payment on the bond and interest redemption, general government bond issues on which there are principal charges of $7,592 and interest charges of $10,467.50, leaving a net debt balance of $2,352.25.

In the electric budget there is a further payment of bond interest expense of $9,902.50 in the budget, and in the water budget $33,452.50 for bond interest expense to come out of the operating expense, giving a total of $54,062.25 to be paid out of the current funds of all budgets for bonds and interest.

EDUCATIONAL WORK OCCUPIES ROTARY MEETING

Members Explain Ideas of Purpose and Principle of Organization

The educational committee with their "stunt" occupied the greater part of the regular luncheon and meeting of the Rotary club, held Thursday at the chamber of commerce auditorium, with 33 members and guests present.

Visiting Rotarians were Arthur J. Lynch and "Bill" Kilgore of Los Angeles, Charles Ashe and Hanford Wattle of Topeka, Kan.; Wade Gray of Ventura, Calif.; Will Smalley of Lawrence, Kan. Other guests were W. B. Heinecke, deputy district attorney, who is also major in the National Guard and commanding officer of the battalion to which the Glendale companies belong.

Several real "snappy" songs were sung by the members, led by France Henry, but the main feature of the day was the "stunt" which had been prepared by the educational committee, which is composed of George U. Moyses, chairman, and Arthur Dibbern.

The complete result of the educational work will be found on another page.

MRS. WILLIAMS IS HAPPY; MOTHER'S COMING

Parent Lost in Hardships of European War, Arrives From Poland

Mrs. Nettie William of Tujunga was overjoyed this week when she received a letter from her sister, Mrs. Jacobson, Winthrop, Mass., stating that her mother, Mrs. Alta Schwartz, had arrived safely from Poland. Mrs. Williams will leave here July 5, to spend some time with her mother and sister, hoping to bring the mother to California upon her return.

This is Mrs. Schwartz's first trip to America, and on account of the terrible conditions existing at the present time in Poland, Mrs. Williams never expected to see her mother again. Mr. Schwartz, who is a graduate of Harvard medical school, at Boston, made a trip over here just before the world war, returning to Poland, expecting to bring his wife to America. But the war broke out while he was there, and he met instant death when he was stabbed by a German soldier. From that time on, Mrs. Schwartz has had to undergo many hardships, and nearly starved several times. Mrs. Williams also has a brother in Poland, Dr. F. Schwartz, and it is hoped that conditions will be such that he may come to America soon.

Mrs. Williams was formerly assistant to D. H. Smith at the Brand boulevard branch of the Los Angeles Trust & Savings bank.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., DECORATOR TO SETTLE HERE

F. J. Vandersypt Finds Glendale Is About Right for His Work

Mr. F. J. Vandersypt, a contracting painter and decorator, of Albuquerque, N. M., came to the west coast on a prospecting visit last summer. Of all the many places visited he liked Glendale the best. So, when Mr. McConnell, of 1115 Campbell street, offered him a trade he promptly took him up. Then disposing of his extensive business, in which he employed 24 men, he came to Glendale with his wife, to spend the remainder of their days. This was a little over two weeks ago. As soon as he can rent a suitable room, Mr. Vandersypt will engage in his former occupation of painter and decorator in Glendale.

OUT OF THE DUST AT THE T. D. & L.

"Out of the Dust" is the attraction at the T. D. & L. theatre today. This production is without doubt one of the best dramas that has been produced in recent years. It is sensitively directed, well cast and scenically it has western settings which leave nothing to be desired. There is heart interest throughout the story which holds the attention.

Russell Simpson, whose characterization dominates the performance, is an actor of unquestioned ability. The story is of the type popular a few years ago, but less common of late. It has in its make-up Indian fighting and post cavalry. These, of course, are but incidental features of the story, a story of love and revenge that stands the test of entertainment.

COUNTRY INN TO OPEN DOORS

Chicken Dinner to Be Served in Rural Style

Sunday marks the formal opening of Montgomery's Country Inn, a quaint eating place reminiscent of the old rural taverns so lovingly described in Washington Irving's works, at 4050 Tropic boulevard, formerly known as Los Feliz road, three blocks west of the Southern Pacific tracks.

The opening will be signaled by a chicken dinner to be served country style. The proprietors believe that in offering fresh farm food, artistic and exotic surroundings, comfortable chairs and tables, and willing service by pleasant girls, they will fill a real need.

ROTARY'S MOTIF TOLD BY MEMBERS

Many Minds Work Out Answers in Educational Campaign

Rotary motivation, defined by the members of the Glendale Rotary club members, is an interesting development of business philosophy, it appears from the words of the members. The correct answers to questions as to meaning of the organization, follow. Arthur Dibbern acted as chairman of the work of education:

1. What does a Rotary club consist of? A body of men (one from each line of business in the city in which it is located) who meet once a week at noon luncheon for the purpose of advancing their best interests and those of the community for promoting higher ideals and encouraging community welfare.

Gilbert Cowan
2. What does Rotary encourage? Fair dealing. To encourage and promote good fellowship and regular attendance at all meetings. Activity in all undertakings. High ethical standards in business. Interchange of ideas and development of opportunities for service.

Dave Crofton
3. What does Rotary discourage? Vicious practices which are reprehensible, cliques, the mixing of Rotarianism and politics, unfair business methods, fault-finding, and in fact, anything that would tend to subvert the good that we have set ourselves to do.

Arthur Dibbern
4. What does a member of the Rotary club owe to his club? Strict attendance at all its meetings, keen devotion to its precepts. Regular attendance to all its meetings, keen desire to serve faithfully in any capacity. To promote the spirit of co-operation and good fellowship. To be a big-hearted, broad-minded man of action and energy. A real Rotarian.

Owen Emery
5. What does a Rotary club owe to its members? The training of each of its members into better citizens, better members of the chamber of commerce, more loyal Americans. To create the inspiration for active participation in all forms of civic betterment training along the lines of high ethical standards.

Franc Henry
6. How does Rotary improve the personality of its members? By extending their horizon of their views by presenting to them viewpoints of higher and nobler things in life. The inspiration for nobler deeds, higher thoughts and cleaner life soon stamp their impression upon the human countenance, the mirror of a man's personality.

Ed Hewett
7. It what way does Rotary help a member in his business? By creating within him a desire to give better service by greeting his customers with a smile, by a desire to be more than fair in all his dealings.

Val Hollister
8. In what way does Rotary help a man in bettering his home? As a man improves his good nature and his personality and resolves to place himself above reproach in all things. He reflects this good in his home life by a desire to place all his prideful possessions of which his home is the greatest.

Bill Howe
9. What does Rotary require of its members in the way of attendance? Regular attendance or forfeiture of membership or a reasonable and just sufficient excuse for being absent.

George Kerr
10. What is the object of first name acquaintance? It lends a feeling of warmth, cheer and good fellowship. Makes you feel that you have a pal. Makes the older member feel like a youngster. Makes the younger member feel that he is entitled to the fellowship and experience of the older member.

Roy Kent
11. In what way should a Rotary club help the city in which it is located? By co-operating with its chamber of commerce by interesting itself in all matters of public importance which are not of a political nature. By promoting and taking part in all matters that would lend a good influence toward the youngster who will be its future citizens.

George Moyle
12. What is accomplished by the noonday luncheon meeting? The getting together, the rubbing of elbows, the jolly songs, the inspirational talks, the driving away of dull care which has its influence which carries through until the next meeting day.

Al Eastman
13. Should members be called upon occasionally to give impromptu talks, and what would be the results? By this method a member is given greater confidence in himself. By this practice he discloses what influence Rotary is having upon him. By it he is often able to gather inspiration for better thoughts and deeds of greater good.

Reo Olin
14. What is meant by "Service in Rotary"? To give cheerfully and unselfishly of one's time and energy, not only for the benefit of his club, but also for his business or profession to reflect the teachings of Rotary to benefit himself and all those with whom he comes in contact.

Ed Phillips
15. What should a Rotary club's attitude be toward clubs of like nature? The hearty approval to any worthy enterprise is one of the biggest things a man, club or organization can give. Rotary can do this because it builds within its members that broad-minded viewpoint.

Bill Hunter
16. Why does a Rotary club restrict its membership to one of each calling or line of business? That a member may feel free to discuss any problem or proposition concerning his business without fear of contradiction or of disclosing that which he may have good reason to keep from becoming the knowledge of a competitor. It also has a tendency to keep a local club from becoming too large and unwieldy.

Ernest Ford
17. Why is Rotary not considered selfish in restricting its membership to one of each line of business? Because it has been proven that this restriction makes the organization efficient and workable.

If it were not for this it would be impossible to accommodate its members at its weekday luncheons.

Mr. Kirkman
18. How may a man desiring membership in the Rotary club, obtain such membership? By having so lived above reproach that he will be suggested by a member which he will be investigated and if found well qualified and of a business or profession not already represented, he will be given a membership—after the regular procedure has prevailed.

Bill Tanner
19. What are the virtues of Rotary? Honesty, morality and sobriety, which form the basis upon which Rotary was built and upon which it stands today.

Tom Watson
20. Why has Rotary been able to drive forward as it has? Because it is a mighty wheel rolling forward with a motive power generated by strong friendships it has formed within the Rotary circle with friendship strong enough and staunch enough there is nothing to stop its progress.

Harry Webb
21. Why was the name "Rotary" selected for a club? Because the original members of Rotary from the business or office of one to the other in holding their meetings; also it was intended to re-elect all members each year, electing only those who stood the test of regular attendance, but other methods accomplished the desired result.

Dick White
22. What was the desire that prompted the formation of Rotary clubs? The desire of certain men meet at certain times. To help each other in business and social life, men who wanted that fellowship which comes from the realization that brotherly love is a virtue which draws true men together and without which there could not exist that love and friendship that prompts them to meet together in Rotary.

50 CENTS PER YEAR FOR COSMETICS IS ENOUGH

So Says Colleen Moore, In California Drug Journal

"A touch of cosmetics goes a long way" is the claim of Colleen Moore, film beauty, who is herself an expert in the art of makeup. Miss Moore thinks the expenditure of 50 cents a year for cosmetics, which, according to the statement of Bert Butterworth, publisher of the California Drug Journal, represents the actual consumption, is sufficient for the average woman.

"Cosmetics are an aid to beauty only so far as they do not take on the appearance of cosmetics," said Miss Moore today. "After that they are a disfigurement." After that they are a disfigurement. Then she gave this recipe for the perfect complexion:
1 grain of cosmetics.
10 grains of common sense.
40 grains of fresh air.
30 grains of proper exercise.
40 grains of right living.
"This amount of cosmetics taken with the other ingredients I have named," said Miss Moore, "will keep American women, the most beautiful in the world."

SHOP CRAFT HEAD FAILS TO APPEAR

CHICAGO, June 30.—Bert M. Jewell, head of the shop crafts, who are scheduled to strike at 10 a. m. Saturday, today refused to appear before the United States labor board.

Jewell refused to answer to a citation asking him to attend a conference of union chiefs, railroad executives and members of the board.

Jewell claimed the board had exceeded its authority in issuing the citation.

None of the other heads of the unions scheduled to strike tomorrow was on hand for the conference. Railroad executives who have been asked to appear were present.

The maintenance of way union, which has not yet ordered a strike but which has taken a strike vote, was not represented.

President C. H. Fitzgerald of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, Station Employees and Freight Handlers, later appeared. His union is taking a strike vote, but no walkout has been ordered.

INDIAN SCHOLARS SHOW ADVANCEMENT

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., June 30.—It is becoming evident to even those opposed to the plan that the money being spent by the state for the education of the St. Regis Indians is bringing results. Indian farmers on the reservation north of here who have taken the agricultural course, last season raised record crops, despite the fact that it was a poor farming season. This year they are planning for even better results.

As a result of education, Indian children are also proving the mental equals of white children. In some studies they are superior, as was a little Indian girl of 11 who this spring won the Franklin county spelling contest. She is Ruth White, the daughter of Chief Moses White, of the St. Regis tribe, and will contest at the state spelling contest at Syracuse.

WHITE CORE IN ICE EXPLAINED

Question of Air Content Not A Reflection on Its Purity

"Why is it that each 300-pound block of manufactured ice shows a white core, or center?" This question is often asked by ice consumers—and seldom answered.

According to ice experts, this white core does not imply any lack of purity; it merely indicates the presence of air in the ice. When the cans, prepared for freezing, are lowered to their compartments in the brine tank, an air pipe is inserted. This pipe is connected with a blower, the function of which is to keep the water agitated, thus expelling the air in the water during the freezing period. When the block of ice is partly frozen, the air pipe is withdrawn from the can, the water in the center of the block about the air pipe is pumped out, fresh water is poured in, and the freezing completed.

Thus, the white core simply means that that portion of the block in hardening has not been freed from air.

With the processes now in vogue in all raw water ice plants, the last vestige of impurity is removed before the water reaches the freezing cans.

Paris Shows New Silhouette For Young Miss of Today

But, This Is for Evening Gown Alone and the Flapper Can Be As Flipperish As Usual During the Daytime and Sunlight

NEW YORK, June 30.—Just when we are beginning to fear that there is nothing new under the Flapperdom sun, Paris answers our S. O. S. with an entirely new silhouette idea for the young miss. The tight fitting bodice and the long, flaring skirt are with us again.

Before you chuckle too gleefully over this good news, let it be stated that this new silhouette affects the evening gowns only. Th flapper can be as short-skirted and as flapperish as her little heart desires during the daytime, but for evening attire she must don the fashions of her grandmother—lace mits black velvet, wrist bands and all.

One wonders whether this is not a comeback on the part of the designers, who have always been more or less sympathetic with the peculiarities and "swankness" of the dress of the young miss of today. Whatever their designs may be, they will enable grandma to see that though they flap by day, the young girls of this era can be as demure looking in their evening frocks as the tinytips of 1850.

Designers declare that all the furbelows of the period gown is to accompany these new frocks; long cameo earrings that reach almost to the shoulders, wide flat bracelets, silk mits and even the petticoat.

Still another silhouette, the straight line dress which has been predicted many times before is declared to have come forward with a certainty. This type of gown is not considered appropriate for the younger girls.

Many of the Paris houses are using the Egyptian ideas for fall. Bronze and almond green are the favored colors for these. Many of the tulle and new silks favor the changeable effects which are extremely lovely when worked in the Egyptian designs in dull gold threads. Gowns of this type lend themselves well to the new straight line silhouette.

Quantities of metal brocades accompanied by metallic ribbons are being used for the new fall gowns. The tweed suit which, like Mary's little lamb, goes everywhere that Mary goes, is said to be as dead as a doornail in Paris.

Smart tailored suits of soft gray mixtures are being worn in their place for morning use. With hem the mannish little vests of the cloxy are often seen.

Among the smartly gowned women who through the club house enclosure at Belmont Park these days one notices a preponderance of red tones which range from deep rose to orange. Often it is the hat which carries the coloring, but recently the weather has made wraps unnecessary and entire gowns of brilliant red are seen.

All white costumes are also popular and make a pretty contrast to the more vivid colors. Most of the gowns are made up on simple lines, relying entirely upon their sleeves for distinction. When sleeves are not exaggerated as to length or width, they are entirely missing, in which case rows of bracelet s cover the arms.

Gloves are not being worn at all. Few slipon sweaters are seen. Most

THE REALM BEYOND FASCINATES MEN OF SCIENCE

Review of Laboratory Experiments in Psychics, in England

By DAVID L. BLUMENFELD LONDON.—(By Mail).—Curiously enough, the very men who are foremost in the belief of life after death today are men whose years have largely been spent in the pursuits of science.

Oliver Lodge, knighted for his research work in the laboratory, needs no introduction. Conan Doyle, now Sir Arthur Conan Doyle was at one time a medical student, and while he wrote his Sherlock Holmes stories (can one imagine anything more material and "earthly" than the famous detective stories) was studying the physical aspects of the spheres. Stanton Moses was no tyro to science. Neither was Swedenborg, whose teachings on afterlife have taken such a hold on the United States today.

"Alright," he told me, "you have fired those six shots. Physically—as we mortals know it—I am dead. Actually I am more than ever alive. Probably I don't even realize that I am 'dead.'"

"Good heavens!" he burst out explosively, "can anyone in his right sense believe that a little piece of lead is actually capable of destroying a mind and an intelligence, which, God-given, has been in process of maturation through ancestors for aeons and aeons? Of course not. I find myself, then, still alive. Probably I'm a bit puzzled. Maybe I am still in the very room where you have fired your six-shooter at me—until I realize that I am perfectly free to leave it. I imagine, too, that I shall—rather should—be able to go where I pleased in a fish, for, you see, you have kindly deprived me of the cumbersome of a body."

"In my case," he said, "having made a study of afterlife I think that I shall not remain long on this earth plane. I shall, undoubtedly, have work to perform and shall try to find it in the sphere to which my mind directs me."

What those duties will be, Sir Arthur does not attempt to define. "That is not for me to say," he said, "but I think that whatever work man has liked and done well to it, he takes up in the afterlife. I don't mean to insinuate that there are such institutions as railroads and banks in the next world, but I sincerely believe that a man who has been say, an engineer, or a banker on earth, afterwards uses his broadened mind to help those below on earth in tasks similar to those which used to perform himself. The musician undoubtedly receives his inspirations from those masters of the music world who are 'dead,' so does the artist learn from the 'passed-over' painter; the chemist from the deceased scientist; the surgeon from the skilled physician who cured many while on earth, but who was unable to operate on himself."

Any girl can find a good looking sport costume to correspond with her pocketbook. A white flannel skirt, a pretty slip-on sweater, a jaunty sport hat and sport shoes are all that is required to give one a "chic" appearance in summer. Many girls who knit can have several changes of these slip-ons. The most popular sweaters just now have the Navajo designs and those with riotous color combinations are finding great favor. There are few Tuxedos worn this year except by some of the older matrons. In every instance sweaters are belted below the normal waistline.

If one favors the three-piece sport costume, there are numerous models in Jersey cloth and light weight flannels that are very inexpensive. One of the prettiest suits of this kind can be easily made and without incurring much expense, is of white flannel with the uneven edged cape outlined in yellow braid. The one-piece dress has slit sleeves bound in the yellow.

Yellow holds sway. Yellow, by the way, holds first place in the summer color scheme. Henna and rust follow as close seconds and lavender is seen a great deal.

Summer a Big Help to Girl With Thin Purse

Lots of Pretty Clothes She Can Make for Herself with a Very Small Cost

By HEDDA HOYT While the costly furs of the rich are hibernating in cold-storage vaults along with the velvet brocades and the ostrich fans, home dressmakers are turning out duplicates of the high priced cotton dresses that appear in the avenue windows, and fashioning the poor girls of the east side into perfect replicas of their wealthier sisters.

The evening gown of the miss who must hang tightly to the strings of her pocketbook should not be too gaudy in color or in design, or it will become wearisome long before it is worn out. Simplicity is the keynote of the evening gowns for summer. Perhaps nothing is as inexpensive in the long run as the georgette crepe gown for it wears well, presses easily and can even be tinted into other pastel shades when one tires of its original color.

The simpler these georgettes are made the prettier they appear. It is best to have little trimming on them, outside of hemstitching or roses made of same material. One of the most girlish looking models is made on the straight one-piece lines with the elastic waist-line. The neck is bateau shaped and the short sleeves are left open from the neckline to the hem where they are held together with a georgette rosebud. Over the plain skirt are draped four long oblong pieces of the material which attach to the waistline at even intervals. These require two yards of material, which are cut into four pieces and hemstitched about the edges. They are tacked to the waist by the center of one of the long edges. The neck of this gown is trimmed with tiny rosebuds with silver centers. These are easily made, being just little folded pieces of material shirred around a little loop of silver ribbon.

The above gown would be pretty made in all white georgette with white roses and yellow centers. "Gavinettes," a waterproof paper cut and shaped so that it covers a hat of any size and forms a little cape effect which permits water to run off, is a new invention which will add joy to the hearts of those who would rather defy the elements than carry an umbrella.

This waterproof arrangement comes in black and in light brown and can be folded up so that it is pocket size. A great many of them are used at the ball games lately. Oxford of white linen which sell at about $6, are receiving favor with the flappers of late. They clean easily and their low Cuban heels are comfortable for dancing. The Linette underslips, with the knee length hems, are indispensable for the summer wardrobe.

Rather than wear the long kid and silk gloves these hot days, New York-women are going gloveless. At Atlantic City they wear dove grey hose with white shoes. Bandana handkerchiefs will go up in price if some of the debbies do not "lay off" of them. They wear them about their hats, hanging artlessly from their belts and about their necks as do the cowboys.

Chats With MARTHA ALICIA

COOKING HINTS Slices of green pepper are good cooked with cabbage. Celery may be curled up by cutting the ends and crisping in water. Cabbage may be cooked with celery, creamed and served on toast.

ESPECIALLY ATTRACTIVE FROM which to serve the season's cooling drinks and luncheon is the new line of lacquered trays to be found at the Japan Art & Tea store, 135 South Brand boulevard. They come in two handy sizes and are decorated in a pretty green, black and gold design. Oh, yes, and you should see the new odd beds that have just arrived—something you will not find elsewhere in Glendale. There are a great many colors and varieties and some are exceedingly foreign-looking, which makes them all the more attractive. And the prices too, are so reasonable. I was so glad to know that the 10 per cent discount is still available on the crockery and china—china which had always longed to earn, with the plain gold band just like grandmother used to have. Another attractive feature about this china is that it is made at home—that is, by the Empire China factory at Burbank.

ON THESE WARM summer days one must stop for a little rest between one's work. And what could be found any more comfortable than a day bed from Glen Porter, the furniture man at 124 West Broadway? These day beds are becoming so popular. They have attractive covers for the mattress and if unexpected company comes in, just pull out a sliding spring and you have a full-sized bed with mattress and it is really very comfy. Mr. Porter also has a line of splendid new gr second hand rugs of all sizes. I don't think of anything nicer for the cozy corner on the porch than a congo-leum rug. They are so cool and easy to keep clean. Other of his specialties are stoves with the oven heat regulator and Nu-Fold davenport with drop ends, so that, even though they are shorter than some, you can rest most comfortably on them.

WHAT COULD BE PRETTIER on a white enamel dresser than one of the new embroidered dresser scarfs, either in pink or blue, at Fisher's Variety Store, 212 East Broadway. They come in several designs and sell for $1.25 each. And, to add more to the beauty of your bedroom, you can get pillow slips to match, either scalloped or hemstitched, at $1.59 per pair. The material is very good and will launder beautifully. They also have a buffet scarf of a tan material in the basket weave, embroidered and scalloped, at only $1.45. It really doesn't pay to embroider your own towels when you can get fine, honeycomb ones, all embroidered in several pretty patterns for 59 cents.

DON'T you just love those sheer, thin dresses for warm summer days, both in light and dark colors? Well, really, the Stop-and-Shop at 223 North Brand boulevard has some of the prettiest and lightest ones I have ever seen. They just spell the word "cool" in their very appearance. And the colors—why! there are so many different ones that anyone's taste may be suited. And don't you adore a hat that matches your summer frocks? They are putting all their millinery on sale at very special prices now and the hats are so attractive and summery looking. I'm sure you could find just what you wanted.

Marguerite Maxwell wears a lovely frock and sleeveless coat of grey-blue homespun in "The Law Breaker."

Black crepe-back satin is used for a cape which is gathered at the front and the back to a shallow yoke. The upstanding collar is faced.

MOST OF US are planning a vacation for this summer, and when we start out we will want to take our most comfortable shoes. Perhaps the heels are a bit run over or the soles are getting thin. Why not take them to Bales's Shoe Repair Shop, 312 East Broadway, and save several dollars? You can have a pair of ladies' shoes soled and heeled for only $1.50 and he only charges $1.90 for soles and rubber heels on men's shoes. This is terribly reasonable when you consider the price of a new pair, and really, the old ones are as good as new on top. Only the best Rock Oak leather is used in all this work. So many of us like rubber heels on white shoes and they can fix you with either black or white ones. And, of course, if you are going away, you will want some cleaning fluids. Well, he has every kind.

A very lightweight twill in beige color is used for a charming suit. The skirt is plain at the front, with belt cut in on one side with insets.

An unusually narrow collar is one of the interesting details of a covert cloth suit. The wrap-around skirt is plain at the front and back.

DR. JOHNSON BACK FROM RIALTO SINFUL HEARTS AT BASE OF WAR LUST SAYS PROUT

Predicts Orange Shortage Because of Frost Which His Ranch Escapes

Dr. A. S. Johnson, 816 East Stanley avenue, has just returned from a trip to his orange ranch at Rialto, where he has been cultivating.

There will be quite a shortage of oranges this year, Dr. Johnson predicts. The June drop was very heavy on account of the exceedingly warm weather, and estimates there will be only half the usual navel crop. Dr. Johnson, however, has been very fortunate and not suffered much loss.

Rialto has been peculiarly favored this year. It was one of the few places that was not affected by the frost. There was an article in the Literary Digest for April which mentioned this fact, saying that Rialto, Montana and Bloomington were the only towns untouched, and they attributed this to the fact that in this district the wind was blowing.

The new system of smudging has not been tried out as yet at Rialto. Dr. Johnson states that he himself did not smudge at all last winter, and his Valencia crop was shipped 90 percent fancy, averaging $8 a box.

EAGLE ROCK CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH BENEFIT

The Arbogasts are sewing a pretty Garden Fete. On the lawn and 'neath the Peppers. And this Friday is the date.

There'll be ham from old Virginia. And candy, cake and pie. Where the blackbirds all are singing. But not a drop of rye.

There'll be fishing in a fishpond. But not a sign of fish. 'Cause the fishes will be prizes. That everybody'll wish.

There'll be cards and lovely dancing. 'Neath the tall and spreading trees. Where all may do some prancing. Or recline themselves at ease.

There'll be fortune telling ladies. And a country store or two. And popcorn by the bushel. And some stories ever new.

The place is on North Highland. In the town of Eagle Rock. Where the doves are cooing softly. And the mocking birds do mock. "UNCLE ED" CUTTING. June 30, 1922.

EAGLE ROCK PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Van Denberg of Brea, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar S. Elvrum, 600 West Colorado boulevard.

Miss Mary Ellen Bolton, 211 North Peyton avenue, is entertaining Miss Kurtima Coffey of Los Angeles.

Dr. and Mrs. Neal Wood will leave in a few days for Venice, where they will spend the summer.

Mr. George Sherwood, who is spending the summer with his mother, Mrs. Robertson Abbott, 315 North Peyton avenue, has as his guests, Mr. Allen Johnson of New York City, and Mr. Emerson of Birmingham, Alabama, who are making a tour of the west. They are all classmates at Yale.

Y. M. C. A. BOYS AT CATALINA CAMP ENJOY LIFE

Rex Kelley Returns With Story of Activities of Members

Rex C. Kelley, secretary of the local Y. M. C. A. returned to Glendale Thursday evening with his group of boys from the camp at Catalina island, after a most enjoyable week.

Due to the lateness with which the Glendale schools closed, these boys were a little late in arriving at the camp, but they were heartily welcomed and instead of putting the Glendale crowd in separate tents, they mixed them through the camp, which made it much easier to become acquainted, and easier to swing into camp activities.

During the week they held a track meet in which several camp monograms were given away for a certain number of points won in the meet. A monogram was given for the winning of seven or more points. There were 94 boys competing and out of this number seven won monograms, two being from Glendale. They were George Jordan and Tommy Wood.

The camp also has an honor society called "The Rag Society." Honors in this are won by the manner in which the boys enter into camp life and activity. The highest honor being the Red Rag. Next is the brown rag and last the blue rag. These are awarded each year and those from Glendale who won the blue rag, were Tommy Wood, Dick Pomeroy, Paul Fruhling and Fred Peck. Mr. Kelley and Mr. Butterfield, due to their work for several years, were awarded the Red Rag.

One of the main features of each day was the evening campfire, around which the different tents would do stunts, sing songs and enjoy a splendid program. The King Vidor Moving Picture company had been taking pictures on the island and camped near the Y. M. C. A. camp. That evening the boys invited them over to enjoy their huge campfire, and the evening was greatly enjoyed by stunts and a program put on by the moving picture people. In the afternoon they played an exciting ball game, the Y. M. C. A. boys winning and following this, they had a barbecue. Then came the evening's entertainment.

Everything in the camp went off very smoothly and the cooking was excellent. The matter of washing dishes was so arranged that dishes for about 34 people could be washed in about 2 minutes.

Roy E. Dickerson of Denver was in charge of religious education and the whole theme of religious program was "Things That Matter Most—Convictions."

The last evening was certainly the most impressive, for the boys all gathered around the campfire and while they were singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," the tent leaders slipped away to the hills a short distance away, and when the boys had finished they also sang the same song, as an echo. The bugler then blew taps and the boys adjourned to their tents.

The boys who attended from Glendale were Dick Pomeroy, Geo. Jordan, Paul Fruhling, Thomas Wood, Fred Peck, Howard Butterfield, George Wintz, Vernon Stumbo, Roy Proctor, Code Morgan and Floyd McKenzie.

EAGLE ROCK TO PROTECT LOCAL YUCCA

Trustees Pass Ordinance to Save Plants From Vandals

Of more than passing interest to the residents of Eagle Rock city is the emergency measure passed yesterday by the board of trustees to protect yuccas in this county. This ordinance, which goes into effect at once, will be rigidly enforced.

The hills around Eagle Rock city are covered with yuccas this year, and they have proved a beautiful sight, not only for those who live here, but also the thousands who daily drive along the boulevards.

There is not a day, however, but what little boys in the community climb the hills and chop down the plants to carry home. This, coupled with the havoc that passing motorists are creating, will soon despoil our hills of the beautiful yucca.

The ordinance is so worded that it makes it unlawful to pick yuccas on private as well as public property. It is the first time that a law has been passed to protect the wild flowers from extermination.

Let the vandals beware, for the trusty officers of the law will now be lying in wait for them, to kindly invite them to part with 50 of their hard-earned dollars, or else spend 30 days as guests of the county, when they will have plenty of time to meditate upon the beauty of the flowers which they have so ruthlessly destroyed.

In Texas the short cotton crop forced a large number of negroes to the cities. One of these applied for a job at one of the large employment agencies.

"There's a job open at the laundry," said the man behind the desk. "Want it?"

Truths in Epigram

The future is a world limited by ourselves; in it we discover only what concerns us and, sometimes, by chance what interests those whom we love the most.—Maeterlinck (1864).

Some books are to be tasted, others to be swallowed, and some few to be chewed and digested.—Bacon (1561-1626).

NOT A CLOSED INCIDENT

Apparently the "Herrin horror" is so estimated by all not close to it. By people of the locality it seems to be regarded as a mere incident, and to have been closed with the closing of the graves concealing the victims of murder.

There does not come to mind a more disgraceful series of crimes in this country. It would be difficult to cite another instance of murder on so large a scale conducted with equal ferocity. The brutality displayed towards men dying, or dead, was unspcakably shocking. The senses would shut out the picture or deny its accuracy, were such course possible. The picture, drawn in blood on the face of a great commonwealth, cannot be effaced yet.

An additional shock comes in recognition of the fact that nobody at Herrin seems to regard this orgy of slaughter seriously. Far from being a crime, the local view makes of it a trifling break in the ordinary routine. If there is law in the county, if the state is an organization, if the government of the United States still is in working order, this indifference is hard to explain. When murders are heaped on murders, the tendency, outside of the immediate scene of operations at least, is to think of corrective, and even of repressive measures.

DODGING RESPONSIBILITY

For a long time the senate considered the case of Newberry of Michigan. The charge had been made that there had been illegal use of money in his election. So far as the country was able to judge, the evidence sustained the charge. Final determination, however, rested with the senate. The situation was embarrassing. There were precedents for seating Newberry whatever the facts concerning his campaign methods. In instances where, according to statute, a seat has been forfeited, partisanship had been known to rise above the law. As in the instance under consideration, the defendant has been permitted to win by a party vote. Such a vote is not based on merit, but on expediency. An issue of this sort gives a senator a chance to rise above organization and put himself on record in favor of honest elections. Comparatively few, it is painful to relate, have the inclination or the courage to do this.

In the vote on Newberry's admission it plainly was the duty of every senator to express his sentiments. If he stood by his party, to the ignoring of the evidence, at least he had shown a type of loyalty to something. If for the moment, he defied the mandate of the party, and voted according to conscience, naturally he would be regarded as displaying a loyalty much finer. But if he dodged the issue altogether, and, aware that the vote was to be taken at a certain time, arranged to be absent, he cut himself off from all possible commendation from any source. By this course he "got in bad." Useless thereafter for him to make excuses. He had had his chance, and he had thrown it away.

California's who know Charles C. Moore know that in a crucial test he would not have been afraid or ashamed to make his sentiments known. They know that he would not have dodged, and that while he is a republican, he would have been guided by conscience alone. It is this strong faith in Mr. Moore that opened his campaign in confidence, and continues it with enthusiasm and high hope. He is of a constructive mind. His successes have been many, and never has one of them been achieved by dodging performance of a duty.

THE WHITE SPOT

Throughout a long period of financial depression in other parts of the country southern California was known as the "white spot." There were abundant reasons for this. The principal reason was the faith of the residents of this region in themselves, and in the resources all around them. Logically, they had much the same excuse for being panicky that was felt elsewhere. They simply refused to be scared. They said in effect "This is nonsense. We have money, we have raw material, we have labor; the section is rich and getting richer; we are contented with the prospects. Don't talk panic to us. You're foolish."

Then the man with capital set it at work. He did not lock it in a strong box and decline to let it out on good security. The man who had planned to build a house or a factory or a steamship line, or to improve his land, went right ahead. There was no possible pretext but timidity for doing otherwise, and with one accord the people refused to be timid. They declined to shy at the ghosts conjured up by the prophets of woe.

fornia grew in prosperity, and so it continues to grow and develop beyond all precedent.

Community spirit in southern California is a wonderful type of capital. It causes each community to do the best possible for itself. Go where you please in this end of the state, there is to be found the city or town that honestly deems itself the finest and fairest on which the sun shines. It strives to improve, to expand, to make the most of its productive capacity, or of the beauty of its setting, the suavity of its climate. Thus it contributes to the gleaming radiance of the white spot. It helps itself, and so helps its neighbors. After all, each little social center is a part of the larger community, and the community advances as a whole, moving forward swiftly and certainly.

OVERPRODUCTION

By DR. FRANK CRANE

I think that if I were a gentleman of leisure whose maiden aunt had left him a large fortune, and I had nothing to do but to occupy the best rooms at Mrs. Posenby's house as the star boarder, to wonder which suit of clothes I should wear today, and which show I should elect to visit tonight, and otherwise to occupy myself with new methods of diversion, I should collect canes.

China is too fragile, takes up too much room, and is too much at the mercy of absent-minded housemaids.

Pictures require of a collector too much education, besides one has to be constantly dealing with experts, and I am a little afraid of them. They are so positive. And if I were to be simply a gentleman of large leisure and capital I should want to avoid all positive people.

As for collecting butterflies, wild animals, or even fleas, I say nothing against them, but they do not appeal to me.

As for women—but, of course, they only collect women in the Orient; in more civilized countries one has to have ingenuity and moral courage of M. Landru to get away with it.

I have several now, but my collection is very modest. I do not go to the extreme of the noted author Couperus, who took his cane out for a ride in the automobile every day, and always propped it up by him in the restaurant when he ate. I like canes, but I am not so fond of them as all that.

There is one cane I have which is gold-headed. It is of ebony. It was given to me once by a mistaken group of admirers. I never carry it. It implies too much. One would have to be a judge or a bishop to carry that thing along the street.

Then I have a hickory cane, quite rude and uncultured, which I bought at French Lick Springs of the thief of the world who sells them out there. This I carry on my walks in the country and at such times as I am afraid of dogs.

I have a nice little straight cane, a sort of magnified lead pencil, which I once bought in a moment of youthful expansion. I have not carried it for years. It goes with poetry and with dear Anabel, who long years ago married the butcher and left me desolate.

My favorite is a Malacca with a curved handle. It is large and of very light wood and reminds me of what some of my critics have said of myself. We are great friends.

I have also a sword cane which I bought in Belgium. I never take it out in the street, of course. I just keep it in the rack for little boys when they come to see me to investigate. It makes them think I am some desperate and ferocious fellow. I like to be admired by little boys.

I have other canes, but not nearly as many as I would like. I would like whole forests, or rather, canebreaks of them, one for every mood and a few extra for tenases.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

(Copyright, 1922, by The Associated Newspapers.) FOR THE OFFICE (Find the error in this article).

Indentation

The question of indentation is a familiar problem in the modern office.

The older and more conventional form calls for the indentation of the second line of the address either five or ten spaces, and the third line either five or ten spaces more. Consistency would then call for the indentation of the first line of each paragraph a similar distance. The address on the envelope would be subject to a similar regulation. Those who defend this form do so in many instances because they are loath to change a traditional custom. Others, however, who style, or feel that through it the communication is more clearly set forth.

The new and modern block form calls for the squaring off of the address at the top of a letter and on the envelope, and the starting of every line of each paragraph at the same distance from the edge of the paper. It is claimed that this style is more economical, for the carriage of the typewriter is thrown back quickly to a uniform stop at the left of the page, and there is no loss in spacing. Furthermore, this form is simple, distinctive, and pleasing to a growing number of business houses.

Anyways, one's artistic sense would seem to demand the adoption of either one of these forms, and not the mixing of the two.

Yesterday's Error

"The toleration of such expressions as 'ain't,' 'me and Jim,' 'he must have went,' etc. Avoid the use of "etc." as much as possible. Do not use it at all, if you can help it, in formal writing, and in personal letters; and never use it after "such" or "as" because the series following it is selective.

Vocabulary

It is perhaps for these fifty years past no one has heard a dogmatical expression escape me.—Benjamin Franklin.

Dogmatical: "Give to or characterized by dogmatism; dogmatic."—Century.

Dogmatic: Employing or characterized by positive assertions; making statements without argument or evidence.—New Standard.

Pronunciation: dog-mat' ik (o as in not; a as in at; i as in habit)—Standard, Century, Webster and Oxford.

For observation: See preceding definition; also dogmatically (adverb); dogmaticalness (noun); dogmatism (noun); dogmatist (noun); dogmatize (verb); dogmatizer (noun); dogmatize (verb); dogmatism—a dogma (Greek).

THE LISTENING POST

Most of us have notions of possession. What we may have or gain belongs to us. It is our possession. To do with what we choose. Nobody to deny us the right.

Thus with beauty. Intelligence. Skill or genius or special ability. Our own individual possession. To be used by us for us. That is a belief we have. Arising from long custom and agreement.

In olden times the notion of possession was more intense perhaps than now.

Feudal barons held castles and estates and commanded the bodies and lives of men. And in later days there was possession of human beings in slavery.

Then there was possession of children. Absolute right of life and death over one's progeny.

Possessions of peoples. As in absolute monarchies. The right of life or death over human beings.

No appeal.

So possession is an old notion.

Firmly fixed in the human consciousness. And we have inherited it. To a great extent.

Although some of us are getting away from the idea. And gaining the notion that we hold things as trusts.

Responsibilities. For the benefit of all people rather than for our own special and particular advantage.

Thus with genius. It is a possession but to be exercised for the benefit of all people. With children. To be reared and educated for the use and benefit of the world.

With riches. To be held and administered for the greatest good of the greatest number.

The very wealthy man today is coming to look upon his wealth more as a trust.

Not as a possession to be squandered and wasted and dissipated in luxury for the benefit of the owner alone.

That was the old notion of emperors and monarchs and rulers. And it made for the downfall of absolutism.

Public office, for instance. Not a possession of the individual. But a responsibility of the individual to the whole people.

Human life, for example. Not a possession of the individual to be squandered and wasted.

But a trust. A responsibility of the individual to human society.

To be discharged faithfully and fairly and honestly and well.

JAMES W. FOLEY.

SONGS OF THE POETS

Orpheus—Attributed to both Shakespeare and John Fletcher

Orpheus with his lute made trees And the mountain tops that freeze Bow themselves when he did sing: To his music plants and flowers Ever sprung; as sun and showers There had made a lasting spring.

Everything that heard him play, Even the billows of the sea, Hung their heads and then lay by, In sweet music is such art, Killing care and grief of heart All asleep, or hearing, die.

THE SUN CURE

By DR. EDWIN E. SLOSSON

The curative value of sunlight that long has been vaguely surmised or cultivated as a fad is at last to be incorporated into the realm of sober science. For many years Dr. Rollier has been treating tuberculous sores and swellings by exposing them to sunshine on his Alpine farm at Leysin, Switzerland, where the boys work and play all day long in the open with no clothing but a breech-cland. Those too weak to stand are exposed in beds on the porches and given ten minutes sunning the first day, twenty minutes the next and so on, being carefully watched to see that the rays do not burn the skin or set up a fever.

The Germans have carried their Nackkultur as they have their other forms of Kultur beyond the limits allowable in other countries. The British have taken up the sun cure although they have not much of any sunshine to work with.

In our own country Dr. A. F. Hess of New York reports the prevention and cure of rickets in infants by exposure to the sun's rays for half an hour a day. There is nothing magical about the sun. He gets the same results by exposure to the rays from a carbon arc lamp such as is employed in taking motion pictures. But the light must be received direct for even window glass shuts off those rays which effect the cure. The babies in the hospital behind glass windows developed rickets while those set outside in the sun did not, although both were fed on the best of milk. When the rickety infants were put out on the porch in the sun their bones stiffened up and their blood showed an increase of the phosphates necessary for bone building.

Experiments on white rats gave the clue to the secret. They developed rickets even in the sunlight if kept in a glass box, but not if they received occasionally the direct rays of the sun. The mercury vapor lamp—those bluish tubes that make you look so ghostly at the photographers—worked as well as the sun provided that the enclosing tube was made of quartz instead of glass.

This indicates that the curative part of the rays are those with the very short wave length that lie beyond the violet end of the spectrum, for these rays cannot pass through glass although they will through quartz. The x-rays which have the power to penetrate to the depths of the body and break up the flesh, causing sores, if left on too long, far beyond these wave lengths.

What is the action of the ultra-violet rays on the human system is not yet known. The sunlight falling on the skin somehow changes the composition of the blood and may cause it to resist the poisons and possibly the germs that cause disease. Sunning is said to alleviate rheumatism and to hasten the recovery of convalescents from fevers and wounds. The "blue glass" fad that some of us are old enough to remember may have been on the right track—if they had only left out the glass.

But those who propose to try heliotherapy on the beaches or meadows this summer should look out for two things, one is the local police regulations, and the other is to take the remedy in small doses at the start. For you may be one of those who burn instead of brown. Also it has been found that certain drugs and foods will sensitize the system and that exposure to the sun's rays will develop a serious case of fagoprimism, something of the sort. If you don't know what that is, all the more reason for looking out for it.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

WILL GERMANY ABSORB RUSSIA? [By Ellis Barker in the Forum]

There are pamphlets, articles and speeches that mention, German expansionists demanded the creation of a greater Germany stretching from the Rhine to the Bering Sea, and from the North Pole to the North Pacific. A Russo-German empire may, inevitably arise, and it may prove a very real danger to the peace of Europe. The Germans have hitherto proved as war in the hands of conquerors. Their national character has not changed. No other nation in the world have patiently borne the misrule of the bolsheviks. If the Russians were to have a good government and administration, the population of the country should double and triple very speedily, its wealth should increase amazingly, and its military power should become almost irresistible. A Russo-German empire would dominate the two most populous continents of the world.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Doubtless countless people have wondered at the tendency to send so many lawyers to congress and to less important legislative bodies. It happens almost invariably that members of the legal profession are in the majority in all such gatherings.

Naturally the lawyer is concerned in questions of law. This does not mean that he is more competent than another to originate a proper measure. Conceding that law-making has been left pretty much to the lawyer, it must be conceded also that he has made a mess of the job.

Despite legal authorship of a law, nobody knows whether or not it is a law until a court has passed upon it. The court settles the matter, but often without satisfying the public mind. When the court is almost evenly divided, it is possible to retain the individual opinion that the majority erred. As to the operation of the law, of course this doubt is without effect, but it constitutes a sort of fly in the ointment.

When the people have a chance to put a successful business man in the senate, the experiment certainly is worth trying. It would afford him the opportunity to extend the use of the commonsense methods that have won for him in private life. In this connection the thought comes to mind that Charles S. Moore is a large figure in the world of business and affairs.

Discussion of the gland operation continues. It has been enlivened by the proposal of certain legislators to forbid the operation by law. The proposal is said to be objectionable to a number of millionaires.

The general desire is to be fair in all matters. If a gentleman who desires to be benefited by this form of surgery is able to demonstrate that his welfare is more important than the comfort of the goat, perhaps it would be all right to let the performance go on.

Mexico is said to have made some progress in a deal with American bankers for a loan by frankly signing a debt statement. Probably an equal frankness towards the United States government would lead to progress in the matter of recognition.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

The last time I saw my neighbor's young Ben—that is, the last time before this last time—he was a young horse for size and a young goose for brain. That isn't precisely the truth, either. He had brain enough but he didn't show it. He was too easy going. He smiled too much. He thought he could grin his way through life. He was as soft as a bucket of mush.

"What's the matter with you?" his father asked him once, and told me later. "Why don't you buck up? Why don't you give people the hard eye? You can, you know. But you let 'em run you all around."

"I like the easy way better, dad," said the young horse. "I shrink from quarreling with people. It actually hurts me."

His old man said that it is not quarreling to tell the other man in a deal that he cannot be permitted to pry out your right eye but he could not woe the kid from his milk ways. So he pulled the only bit of strategy I ever knew of his using. He took advantage of the young horse's admiration for a hardy ruffian in his college class who had worked his way through school, and persuaded them to go away together on a tour. They were to work their way, every foot of it. The young horse was more than willing. He was champing at the bit. He had no idea that he was not as hard as hinges.

"Toughen up this fool kid of mine," the ancestor said to the other chap. "I don't mean spoil his morals, but stiffen his backbone. Teach him how to give other people the hard eye."

Well, the kid came back with the knowledge. He went broke in Arizona and was made the foreman for a crew of Italian section hands, who held the proper European contempt for all Americans. Also they had their own padrone, to whom they looked whenever the young horse gave an order. The young horse bore it for a day or two. Then he asked his more mature and embittered pal: "If you can't make a Dago section hand mind you what do you amount to, anyhow?" he asked. "Don't come crying to me."

And so he went back to the gang, being very sorry for himself and gave that Dago padrone the one outstanding, monolithic, surprising, American lick of his life. There is one Italian whose opinion about college athletes has been terribly altered. And he stood the rest of the gang off with a handy pick and made them put an actual frenzy in their excavating operation to make up for the temporary loss of the padrone.

Funny thing, but only one experience like that is needed. The young horse has as competently hard an eye today as you ever looked into.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

Wise Lady Astor! Safely back on her adopted shore, she refrains from giving a snap judgment of Americans at the present. She will give "a considered statement" later—when her mind has had time to settle from its ferment of being entertained, loved, criticized, held up as a pattern of woman in public life, censured as one who tried to force her own convictions unasked on others, all in a few short weeks.

"Considered statements"—how much trouble we women might save ourselves did we wait to make them! In our home life, when provoking details bother and the other members of our family oppose their ideas to ours; in our club life when discussing helpers and plans; most of all in our newly entered political life, working alongside practical, seasoned politicians. Silence for the time until we have secured a firm grasp of the matter and understand all its details, while it might not gain for us the reputation of a quick mind, would hold us back from many a pitfall and make our words when they did come worth more thoughtful acceptance.

This holds for good intentioned speech as well as for that not so kindly meant. It isn't always wise to attempt to uplift. Sometimes it's wading into those one would influence. That's where so many very well-intentioned persons make themselves generally disliked and fall of the good they would do. Nowhere is tact more needed than when one would help raise standards. We're so resentful of having our standards raised. Yes, we are. We want to jog along in the same old path at the same old gait.

"Considered statements"—they're the wisest every time. Happy are we if we can wait to make them.

Seeks Higher Efficiency in Use of Funds From Fresno South

LOS ANGELES, June 30.—A merger of Pacific Southwest banks, involving resources of approximately $200,000,000, headed by the First National Bank of Los Angeles, the Los Angeles Trust and Savings bank and the First Securities company, of which organization Henry M. - HUNTINGTON PARK Branch of Los Angeles Trust and Savings bank.
- LINDSAY Lindsay National bank.
- LOMPOC Branch of Commercial Trust and Savings bank, Santa Barbara.
- LONG BEACH The City National bank.
- LOS ALAMOS Branch of Bank of Santa Maria.

- LOS ANGELES First Securities company.

- PASADENA Union Trust and Savings Bank of Los Angeles Trust and Savings bank.
- REDLANDS The First National Bank of Redlands.
- REDLANDS Savings Bank of Redlands.
- SAN PEDRO Marine Branch of Los Angeles Trust and Savings bank.
- SANTA BARBARA Commercial Trust and Savings bank.
- SANTA MARIA Bank of Santa Maria.
- TULARE

National Bank of Tulare. Savings Bank of Tulare. VISALIA

First National Bank of Visalia. Producers' Savings bank.

Under the form of the merger, the stock of all of these institutions is pooled and beneficial certificates are issued to all present stockholders, giving to each a pro rata ownership in all of the merged institutions.

Following the merger plan, it is announced that all merged banks will operate under the name of the Los Angeles Trust and Savings bank, with the exception of the First National Bank of Los Angeles and the First National Bank of Hollywood. The latter will be taken directly into the First National Bank of Los Angeles and will operate as the Hollywood agency of the First National Bank of Los Angeles.

The First Securities company will furnish underwriting assistance to sound California enterprises of good management and proven earning power, and will recommend to investors good securities which have first been carefully investigated and are deemed worthy of investment by the banks' own funds.

In creating this merger no effort has been made to achieve "bigness." The plan has been to unify some of the best banks of the Pacific Southwest occupying key positions in the various districts, in order that more complete financial assistance may be given the marketing of the various seasonal crops of the Southern California territory from Fresno south to the Mexican line, and to provide the necessary financial machinery for the upbuilding of this territory upon balanced lines.

It is announced that the merger has been the result of two years of careful investigation of the needs of the Pacific-Southwest. Particular attention in this investigation has been given to the working out of plans whereby the credit of the community may be equitably allocated to the various agricultural and business interests of the entire Pacific-Southwest.

By this merger money returned to the Pacific-Southwest in the spring from the sale of the orange crop of Southern California can be used for financing the raisin crop in the San Joaquin valley. Money obtained in the fall from the marketing of raisins is available for the early vegetable grower of the Imperial valley. Similarly, the diversity of seasonal movements of other products results in the elasticity of bank credits, and this elasticity in turn results in additional service to the various communities.

Henry M. Robinson, president of the First National Bank of Los Angeles, the Los Angeles Trust and Savings bank and the First Securities company—the man who brought this merger about and who will direct its operations—in outlining the policies to be pursued by the merged institutions, said:

"One of the results of the experience in the great war has been that people have come to know definitely that economies can be made and wastes eliminated by the merging of institutions in practically every line of endeavor, and it will be observed that this tendency is very strong in all parts of the world and in all lines. It is a form of co-operation on a definitely organized plan, in which a given activity in various communities is co-ordinated for the benefit of all of the communities. This particular merger contemplates the co-ordination of institutions within an economic area which constitutes a part of the great Pacific-Southwest, to the end that the institution's work will prove of general benefit throughout the area. "The area in which this merged institution will carry on its activities directly is that part of California, including Fresno and south to the Mexican boundary, and in this section the products, agricultural, mining and manufacturing, are harvested and marketed in such seasons that it will make substantially a continuous use of credits and flatten the curve of peak demands to the minimum. This gives a more economic use and co-ordinates the funds within the area to the advantage of all concerned.

"It is a fallacy to think that size and 'bigness' are desirable ends. In a country producing as prolifically as this, and where nature is so kind, it should be the endeavor of all the producers to improve the quality of their products. The California co-operative associations which are outstanding successes, as compared with co-operative associations in other parts of the country, are committed to the policy of improvement in the quality of product. So, too, in the banking institution the aim should not be volume, size and figures, but on the other hand should be a continual striving for improvement in the quality of service. The immediate benefit runs to the customer, the secondary benefit to the institution itself, and to its stockholders.

"Our theory is that the necessary thing is to bring banking institutions together in such a way that the merged institutions will have the co-operative assistance of officers, directors, and stockholders who have cared for the needs of their respective communities and have knowledge of their requirements and the desirability of customers in their respective communities and districts. We have felt that the mere installation of branches, or the absolute outright purchase of already existing banks, would not accomplish the fundamental purpose. It is for this reason that the present method of co-operation has been worked out, a method by which none of the local control or knowledge is lost through the entering of any particular bank into this system. The old stockholders retain a proportionate interest in the new institution and accordingly each locality has a proportionate interest in the whole operation. We are doing in banking the thing which has proved in other lines of human endeavor, and we have adopted as fundamental the aim to improve

PEER TELLS WHAT HAPPENS AFTER WE ARE DEAD

Death Is Not the End; We Live, Learn, Says Lowther

LONDON (by Mail).—What happens when we die? Where do we go? Are we totally eliminated, our personalities lost forever, or do we progress onwards in some strange world with our full senses and our minds clear and unhampered?

Opinions on this subject are so varied and contradictory, even those of the greatest thinkers living today, that their views are well worth reading.

There are, of course, many who have only one viewpoint. They, without further parley, state emphatically that there is nothing. Death, they say, is the end of it all.

But the others, deep thinkers, seekers after knowledge, men whose minds, though working on the material, can also grasp the ethereal, these are the men whose views will be given.

What does the average man think who is inclined to believe in something after death deprives us of what we are pleased to call life?

The writer once asked Col. Claude Lowther, a member of the British parliament and one of England's aristocrats of the old school—besides being one of the greatest living authorities on antique works of art—what he thought would be his lot in the hereafter.

Lowther was at the time bending over a remarkable piece of tapestry by Lucas Van Leyden, spread across the stone floor of the old armorial hall in his castle of Hurstmonceux, Kent, a Gothic castle, beautiful outside, rich inside its foot-thick walls with treasures of bygone ages—Renaissance, Gothic, Hispano-Moresque, Quincento Italian, Louis XV.

"What will I do?" asked Lowther, looking up as his hands crossed the golden wires of the tapestry. "Why, I'll live, of course, and go on learning about beautiful things. Why shouldn't I? Do you think that the mind of a man who conceived a tapestry like this can perish? Bah! When I'm dead and gone, my dear sir, I'll be talking with the great intelligences, if they'll have me, with Michael Angelo, with Lucas Van Leyden here, with Benvenuto Cellini, admiring, learning, learning all the time."

Lowther explained that his was not a selfish point of view.

"God made me, just as he made Omar Khayyam, General Grant, Martin Luther and Massasoit (famous in Pilgrim Father history) not that they should live for themselves, but that they should gain knowledge on this earth, where with they might afterwards help those who are struggling down here with spiritual guidance. I like to think that what knowledge I have of beautiful things will be increased a thousandfold after my death by converse with the great ones; so that I, in turn, may direct my thoughts to some poor, hard-working artist, putting into his brain the germs of a masterpiece."

The speaker looked up from his tapestry again, and blew a cloud of cigar smoke upwards. The blue line of it trailed up to the oak rafters of that wonderful hall spiraling up and up, eventually to be lost among the tattered banners of ancient knights emblematic of the lives they led in the mediaeval long ago.

"Death," said Colonel Lowther, watching the blue whisp, "is much like that." He stared thoughtfully a minute. "That smoke isn't really lost. To our view, yes, but I know and so do you—that what has happened to that smoke is really changed."

Let us leave the tall figure of the man there among his tapestries, and his Gothic chairs, and his Lazarino Commizano pistols, and his Reinsner settees of Louis XVI—settees on whose cushions rested many a white powdered head, destined to fall beneath the blade of Robespierre's guillotine.

His is one viewpoint, a beautiful one, but still the view of only one man—a recluse, if you like, a man with more than the average intelligence, but not a student of the after life such as Conan Doyle, Oliver Lodge, the late Stanton Moses, or others of that ilk.

MOVIE STUDIOS USE RADIO
Marshall Neilan, it is announced, is the first film producer to install a radiophone at his California studio. The players are at the studio from 9 in the morning to midnight practically every day. Much tedious waiting is experienced by players when scenes are taken in which they do not appear, and between scenes. This is especially trying to players when working long shifts.

Neilan has discarded the phonograph and substituted the radiophone, which gives the players great diversion and keeps them pepped up and fresh when they are called to appear before the camera. The players are now dancing to famous orchestras, listening to famous singers, or hearing the news bulletins when not actually before the camera.

Naturally, the rounder is not a many-sided man.

IT'S EASY NOW FOR RADIO FANS TO ENJOY THEIR GOLF

A golf club near New York City has installed a radio system on the links. Each tee is connected up. The photograph shows a fair golfer pausing in her round to ascertain if there is anything particularly interesting to her buzzing through the air.

MARY GARDEN LIKES RADIO
Radio telephony has a new "fan" and Mary Garden, noted opera star and directress of the Chicago Grand Opera company, has a new "hobby."

Miss Garden on arrival in San Francisco recently, with her company of songbirds for two weeks of opera, ordered as her first official act, installation of a radio telephone set in her hotel room.

MUSIC FOR NEW YORK BUSESSES
Radio music was received recently on a New York city motor bus, it was announced by the Fifth Avenue coach company, of that city. It was not necessary to erect antennae or to construct a dragging ground wire. The metal roof of the bus served as an aerial and the counterpoise grounding was accomplished by attaching the ground wire of the radio set to the rail of the bus stairway.

The radio set was a Westinghouse senior, with ear receivers. Starter Zimmerman held the receiving set in his lap and enjoyed the noon program from WJZ in Newark, while Joseph Conniff stopped the bus on Riverside drive at various points from 125th street to 96th street and back. No interference was experienced and the radio novelty was enjoyed by the passengers.

Experiments are to be continued with receiving sets and amplifiers on the buses.

RADIO AT REFORMATORY
The New Jersey state reformatory for boys, at Rahway, will install a complete wireless receiving outfit for the benefit of the 500 inmates. The complete radio set with amplifiers is the gift of the Radio corporation of America. Boys will be permitted to attend concerts every night provided their conduct has been good during the day.

FOLLIES WILL JAZZ TO AIRPHONE MUSIC
NEW YORK.—The Ziegfeld Follies of 1922-23 beauties will dance this year to the jazzy music of the snappy radio waves, according to a person who knows. A large cabinet-radio receiving instrument has been installed in the theater to receive radio music from broadcasting stations throughout the country. Radio dealers expect an increase in sales through "Johnnies" buying portable sets.

VACATION BOATS TO ENTERTAIN BY RADIO
DETROIT, Mich.—Many of the lake steamers will be provided with radio receiving sets for the entertainment of vacationists this summer. Sets that are equipped with loud speakers especially designed for boats that make special vacation trips around the lakes during the summer. Boats on the lakes can receive from either Detroit or Chicago, which makes a form HT T cago.

FOLLOWERS OF ROAD CARRY SET ON HIKE
NEW YORK.—A novel method of testing the reaction of people throughout the country to radio broadcasting has been undertaken by Jean Murray Bangs, a young writer who is starting on a 3,000-mile hike from New York to the Pacific coast. Mrs. Bangs and her husband plan to carry a portable outfit with them and to listen in on many curious happenings on the way.

MOST USEFUL IN NEW AND UNCHARTED COUNTRIES
NEW YORK.—The importance of radio to explorers in wholly or partially uncharted country was demonstrated as far back as 1915. They story of the so-called Machu Picchu Peruvian joint expedition of the National Geographical society and Yale university was told in the February, 1915, issue of the monthly magazine of that society by Prof. Hiram Bingham of Yale, who directed the expedition.

Previous expeditions in 1911 and 1912, it seems, had met with serious difficulties because of the inadequacy of the maps furnished by the Peruvian government. The pioneers had run into large areas of territory that were so completely unexplored as to have not even been represented on the maps.

Map Parties Sent First
This it was thought advisable to send out topographical parties in 1915 in advance of the expedition proper, whose task it would be to prepare better maps.

On shipboard chronometers are regularly used to determine longitude. These very delicate instruments are likely to be put out of order in being transported from place to place and a very slight error in the chronometer will cause a grave deviation in the longitude calculations based on it.

In the case of the expedition in question these difficulties were obviated by the use of radio in the following manner:

Radio Time Signals Used
Arrangements were made with the Peruvian government radio stations in Lima to have time signals sent out so that more exact data than had hitherto been available could be obtained. Mr. Burnstead, the head of the topographical party, according to Professor Burnham, was enabled by means of these time signals to determine the longitude of the areas to be explored with a great degree of accuracy.

PLAN REGULAR FARM SERVICE
Vegetable market reports from the Indianapolis, Pittsburg, Chicago and Cincinnati markets soon will be sent to Indiana vegetable growers by radio twice daily, according to H. B. Brown of Lafayette, secretary of the Indiana Vegetable Growers' association.

The vegetable market reports will be sent from radio station WOH of the Hatfield Electric company, at 10:15 a. m. and 4 p. m., in conjunction with the livestock market reports now being sent out daily by the Indiana Federation of Farmers' associations.

An effort is being made to get the United States government to supply radio service that will give information concerning the daily vegetable market in Chicago, Cincinnati and Pittsburg. A request has been made to have this information sent by radio or telegraph from Washington or some other station, direct to the Indianapolis radio station. From this station it will be broadcasted so that the farmers and vegetable growers who have receiving sets as well as the country farm agent may pick it up.

TEMPERED COPPER
History tells us that the ancients were proficient in many lines that have been lost to the present generation. Notably among these we find tempered copper, and the reference has been made many times to the fact that the tools of that period, as well as the war implements, were made of a substance that seemed to all intents and purposes to be copper that had been tempered to such a degree of hardness that edge tools were forged from it. This art or process passed out, as did the race of people producing it, and we have today only relics of those times in the form of axes, spears, etc., that in every way substantiate the belief that copper was actually tempered the same as steel.

By recent analysis it has been found that the copper tools contained a percentage of aluminum which was no doubt introduced from the clay of which they made their crucibles, by absorption and without their knowledge, a fact that seems to be borne out by the fact that this hardened copper was only found in regions where the clay was aluminum bearing.

The fact that the hardness or tempering was the same entirely through the metal and not a surface condition.

PREDICTS TELEVISION BY RADIO IN NEAR FUTURE
Nikola Tesla recently predicted that television, a method of seeing by radio, soon will be in as common use as the telephone. There will be no limit to the distance such transmission, predicts Mr. Tesla, so that we may be able to

RADIO RECORD MADE BY TELEPHONE ENGINEERS

In these days of radio telephone publicity when the public mind is keyed up to the anticipation of great developments in the radio field, it is an interesting fact that the first demonstrations of the vast possibilities of the radio telephone were made by the scientists and engineers of the Bell system back in 1915.

Speech was successfully transmitted that year from New York city over the wire of the Bell system to the radio station at Arlington, Va., and thence by wireless to the radio station at Mare Island, Calif.

Later that year, a still more remarkable demonstration was made by the Bell system engineers, when words spoken into the radio telephone at Arlington, Va., were heard with remarkable clearness at the Eiffel tower in Paris and in the Hawaiian Islands. This demonstration established a long-distance radio telephone record which has never been surpassed.

The following year, 1916, during the three days' mobilization of the communication resources of the nation undertaken by the staff of the Bell system at the report of the secretary of the navy, with the cooperation of the navy department, the secretary of the navy sitting at his desk in the navy department at Washington, talked by radio telephony with Captain Chandler of the battleship New Hampshire cruising under orders off the Virginia Capes, the captain reporting his position every hour to the navy department.

The use of the radio telephone in connection with the wire system was demonstrated on this occasion, when the commandant at Mare Island, California, was able to converse with Captain Chandler of the New Hampshire, while the battleship was battling with a storm on the Atlantic ocean. This conversation was transmitted over the transcontinental wire circuit from Mare Island to Arlington and thence by wireless to the ship at sea.

In this test radio apparatus developed by the engineers and scientists of the Bell system were used.

talk to and see at the same time any person in any part of the world. Mr. Tesla will be remembered for his research in power transmission by radio.

The Barton Bedtime Stories

DID FOOL'S PARSLEY CURE FRISK'S FOOLISHNESS?

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

I don't know which was the more ashamed, Maltie Kitten or Tad Doon. Here they were trying to take care of little Frisk Squirrel, and the very first thing they let him make himself awfully sick on Tommy Peete's sweet corn. And I don't know which was the more worried, Maltie Kitten, who knew what a tummyache was because he'd had one, or Tad, who didn't. "Hey, hey!" called Maltie when he saw Frisk choking down a fat green seed. "Don't you swallow another thing till Dr. Muskrat brings some medicine. Tad's gone for him."

"Dr. Muskrat'll be here soon, Uncle Tad's hurrying."

"You wouldn't dare!" said the worried cat. "Medicine's dangerous to take, unless you know just what you're doing. Lots of it's poison." "But I do know," sobbed the squirrel. "It was the medicine or foolery. My mammy twisted me to make me take it yest'day mornin'." "He was feeling better already, wasn't he?" "Well, he was feeling better, but he was still waddling." "Cuddle down, kitten, cuddle down," purred Maltie, curling himself into a big furry nest for Frisk to snuggle in. "Dr. Muskrat'll be here very soon. Uncle Tad's hurrying."

"The doctor seemed very much relieved. And if that's so, he wasn't any fool himself." But poor Frisk was so sound asleep he didn't even hear it.

NEXT STORY: FRISK'S MOST FOOLISH NOTION OF ALL.

TO COMBAT RED SPIDER Preparation should be made at once for combating the summer attacks of red spiders, advises E. R. de Ong of the division of entomology, University of California. Prune, plum, peach and almond trees are especially subject to attack. Other varieties occasionally injured are pear, walnut, apricot and cherry.

The common red spider or two-spotted mite is perhaps the most injurious pest of deciduous orchards in the interior valleys. Not only is there great loss through decreased crop yield and lowered grades of fruit, but the buds for the following season's crop are seriously injured. Spraying as a control for the common red spider should be done at the time the attack has usually begun in previous years, even though the mites cannot be seen. Spray very carefully and thoroughly, using five pounds of sulphur (made into a paste with calcium caseinate or glue water) to 100 gallons of water. Should the spraying be delayed until the red spider is abundant, add one gallon of lime-sulphur concentrate (or its substitutes) to 100 gallons of the foregoing spray-mixture and apply two or three times at three weeks' intervals. An important item is abundant moisture for the trees. The trees should be kept in vigorous condition by adequate supply of moisture in order that they may be as well prepared as possible to withstand the attacks of the pests. Control methods are useless if the trees are weak from drought.

Sulphur dusting as a control is of the greatest value in regions of light wind and moderate humidity. Use a 10 per cent dusting of hydrated lime in all dusting sulphur and apply every ten to 15 days. Three applications are usually necessary unless all conditions are very favorable.

AMERICAN WOMEN WORK IN SOUTH

BUENOS AIRES (By Mail).—Over 500,000 pesos in the past five years have passed through the hands of a little group of American women living in Argentina, known as the patriotic Society of American Women.

This sum has been raised through various social enterprises and has been devoted first to war work and later to local charities, so that now numerous worthy memorials bear the name of the group. A certain degree of national pride has characterized the projects and "over the top," that slogan long since worn out in the United States, still lives in the spirit of the patriotic Society's endeavors. Last year its financial force was put behind the McLaughlin memorial scholarship, by means of which one deserving poor child each year is now being provided with an education at a dall personal needs at Mercedes orphanage.

SUPERVISED PLAY TO START IN GLENDALE

The summer playgrounds at public schools will be opened for the season on Saturday afternoon. The grounds at the intermediate and grammar schools will open at 1 o'clock. A. T. Blanford, athletic director for the grammar schools of the city, will be the supervisor of the grounds and have charge of the intermediate playgrounds.

The following instructors have been appointed for the other grounds: M. L. Alvas, Central avenue school. The instructor for the grounds at Cerritos street school has not been chosen.

The school playgrounds will be open from 1 to 6 p. m. on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday and from 1 to 7 p. m. on Thursday and Friday.

Regular schedules will be arranged for indoor baseball, touchball, basketball, handball, tennis, volleyball and regular baseball.

There will be teams selected for each sport and games between the city playgrounds as well as teams from other cities will be arranged. There will be teams in four classes for the various sports. The classes are to be as follows: Midgets, under four feet six inches; juniors, between four feet six inches and four feet 10 inches; intermediate, for players between four feet ten inches and five feet two inches. The senior class will be for boys over five feet two inches.

While anyone will be admitted to the various playgrounds the events will be arranged so that the high school program will be for the boys of high school age and men. The programs at the other grounds will be for the younger boys.

The opening of the playgrounds here for the summer will fill a long-felt want in Glendale, is the opinion of the members of the school boards and the city officials. Great care has been taken in the selection of directors for the various grounds. Only men of known ability and good character have been selected.

Mr. Blanford urges that the boys of the city visit the playgrounds on opening day and get acquainted with the directors and at the same time line up for one or all of the various teams.

HISTORY OF THE AMERICAN FLAG

Written Exclusively for the Glendale Daily Press

By ELLA B. POWELL

Early in 1817 there was an agitation for a new flag, as there were at that time 20 states in the Union. Capt. Samuel Chester Reid, the famous commander of the General Armstrong, and friend of Congressmen Peter H. Wendover of New York, was asked to prepare a design for the Stars and Stripes; one that should represent the added number of states without destroying the distinctive character of the flag.

There were many difficulties presented for under the custom of adding a stripe for each new state, there would then be 20 stripes with the possibility of an indefinite number of stripes in the future.

Captain Reid found a happy solution of the problem. "He recommended that the stripes be reduced to the original number of 13 states, and to form the number of stars representing the whole number of states into one great star in the Union, adding one star for every new state, thus giving the significant meaning to the flag, symbolically expressed, of E Pluribus Unum."

Captain Reid made a flag of the new design and sent it on to congress, where it was adopted on April 4, 1818, under the following act:

"An act to establish the flag of the United States:

"Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., that from and after the fourth day of July next, the flag of the United States be 13 horizontal stripes, alternate red and white; that the union have 20 stars, white in a blue field.

Section 2. Be it further enacted, that on the admission of every new state into the Union, one star be added to the union of the flag; and that such addition shall take effect on the fourth of July next succeeding such admission."

But even under that act the Stars and Stripes had not yet received its definite form. It had not yet been determined how the stars should be arranged. Flags were displayed with the stars grouped in many different ways. It was not until March 18, 1896, that the arrangement was definitely fixed by an order issued by the secretary of war, in regard to army flags:

"The field or union of the national flag in use in the army will, on and after July 4, 1896, consist of 45 stars, in six rows, the first, third and fifth rows to have eight stars, and the second, fourth and sixth rows seven stars each, in a blue field."

The Stars and Stripes were first unfurled in California in 1829. James P. Arthur of Massachusetts, who was mate on a trading vessel, went with a party of sailors to cure hides on shore at San Diego. They manufactured a flag from the shirts of the party, with which to salute vessels that might pass their camp, though at that time there was no suggestion of California being a part of the Union.

However, another flag was raised in California, on June 14, 1846, by a handful of Americans under the leadership of Gen. John C. Fremont, and this time with the definite idea of taking possession of the Pacific coast in the name of the United States and this time to stay.

THE ROSY DREAMS OF YOUTH

Sometime I will come back to this old town
Where I am living now and I'll step down
From the big auto which I'm riding in -
And wonder if it's true I'd ever been
A boy in this small place and wonder how
I ever stood it here when I am now
A city banker or the president
Of some big railroad who has come to hunt
His poor relations up and tell them then
They'll never need to want for bread again.

And as we spin along the streets I'll say:
"There is the school I used to go one day,
And there's the creek where we went swimming when

The train came through and had to dive again
Until it's out of sight; and there's the place
I first looked into Amy Jones' face,
And said I loved her." But she's married now
And lives above the butcher shop and how
It nearly broke my heart when Amy said
She's going to take the butcher's boy instead.

Perhaps I might go into Amy's store
To see if she would know me any more,
And buy bologna sausage just to throw
Her and her husband off the scent you know.
And then I'd say: "You don't remember me."
And tell her who I am. And she would be Surprised to know that I had done so well,
And when she saw how I am dressed so well,
She'd think of the old days and know that in Our life it's sad to think what might have been.

J. R. GRAY ASKED TO ASSIST STATE WATER BOARD

Consulting Board of State Investigating Asks for Views

In a communication received yesterday, J. R. Gray of Glendale has been asked to assist the consulting board, state water resources investigation, with suggestions as to the maximum conservation and use of water resources in the state and how the state may best accomplish this.

As provided in the legislative act authorizing the investigation now in progress, Governor Stephens has appointed the consulting board of ten members to act in an advisory capacity to the state department of public works. In order to fulfill their duties with the highest degree of satisfaction this board is seeking suggestions from all who are concerned in the work.

Pursuant to chapter 38 of the 1921 statutes, the state department of public works is conducting an extensive study of the water resources of the state. The purpose, as stated in the bill, is to determine a comprehensive plan for accomplishing the maximum conservation, control, storage, distribution and application of all the waters of the state and to report the result of such investigations, with recommendations, to the legislature not later than the session of 1923.

The department is making rapid progress with the ascertainment of physical fact and by the close of the year will make a presentation of the potential possibilities of the water resources of the state. The watering of the 25,000,000 acres of agricultural land which needs irrigation for maximum productivity and the conversion of the hydroelectric energy of our mountain streams into industrial activities are fundamental to the ability of this state to support the population which its climate and natural advantages are attracting. It is, therefore, of paramount interest to all that the development of the waters flowing in the streams of the state proceed on an orderly and economic program which will ultimately lead to the maximum use of this resource so fundamental in value.

GORDON'S DOLLAR DAY GOES OVER BIG

Proprietor Declares Sales Exceed Most Optimistic Expectation

Gordon's Dollar Day sale went over big yesterday. At the end of the day Mr. Gordon, proprietor of the store at 119 North Brand, said that the sale exceeded even his most optimistic expectation. He added that he was glad the sale is only a monthly occurrence.

The doors of the store opened at 8:30 a. m. and at the time of opening there were approximately 200 people waiting for admittance. Mr. Gordon said that they had been waiting since 7 o'clock.

Six extra clerks were required to wait on the people. Several lines had been sold out completely by 10 o'clock. Altogether this was one of the most successful sales that Mr. Gordon has ever conducted.

'FOUR HORSEMEN' HAS NOVEL FEMALE

In these days of short skirts and short bathing suits it sounds almost unbelievable to find a motion picture actress who comes out unqualifiedly for the comfortably conning garb of other years. But there is one female character in "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," a Rex Ingram production for Metro, now being shown at the Glendale theatre, who doesn't care a hoot about the latest Paris creations and who was so set in her antipathy to the modern costumes that she appeared in the picture in her own dress.

This actress with very much of a mind of her own is a full-blooded Cheyenne Indian, with a picturesque and long drawn out name, which as a matter of convenience and sentiment, Director Ingram shortened to "Minnehaha."

Minnehaha makes her appearance in the film version of the novel of Vincent Blasco Ibanez very early in the picture as a sort of maid of all work on the big ranch of Madariaga, the Centaur, in South America, and when he dies and the family is broken up, she goes as an old retainer with the Desnoyers to Paris.

For the Argentine scenes the old Indian woman was right in her element, but when the Desnoyers family moved to Paris it was desired that she be attired in the more civilized garb so as to carry out the idea of the change in the family in making their residence in Paris. For one rehearsal Minnehaha appeared in the tight waist, the abbreviated skirt and high heeled slippers.

But when the camera man was ready to shoot the scene Minnehaha was missing and for two days this part of the filming of "The Four Horsemen" was held up while the missing Indian actress was sought all over the lot. When finally discovered she protested that even the novelty of appearing in the picture was not sufficient to offset the terrible inconvenience of the modern style of dress and so finding persuasion futile, Director Ingram decided to shoot the "faithful retainer," even in the Paris scene, in the garb with which she appears in the Argentine scenes.

The adaptation for the film was made by June Mathis.

It Wasn't Rheumatism

"I thought the pains in my back were caused by rheumatism," said a woman who came into a Cantilever Shoe last week, "and for a month I've been dosing with aspirin and rubbing ointment. Today I went to the doctor and he said nothing was wrong but my shoes. And he prescribed Cantilevers."

The Cantilever Shoe has never had many aches and pains caused by strained tendons, irritated nerves and the unnatural posture induced by artificial footwear.

The flexible shank allows the muscles free play, eliminating any tendency to weak arches. It also promotes vigorous circulation, so that clammy feet disappear. You enjoy a new sense of well-being and walk or stand with easy grace, a stranger to fatigue.

The Cantilever models are most attractive, carefully fitted here. We are the sole agents in this city.
