Inspection of Hoardings.

To the casual observer it would seem that after a bill poster had gotten his work up, namely, had given the advertiser the showing he is entitled to, according to contract, his work with the advertiser, or what is more often the case, the middleman, then ceased, except for the mere mailing in of lists and bill. But this is not exactly so. The condition of the weather plays no inconsiderable part during the period of the showing, and then the question of renewal enters into the transaction and becomes a matter of some import.

A first class listed and protected display is what the big advertisers invariably bargains for, and it is the duty of the bill poster to be in a position to give his customers precisely what the contracts call for, in spite of any contingencies that may arise. That day has long since passed when the bill poster simply daubed the sheets upon the boards, or at least as many of them as he could, and then let the showing take care of itself.

Business methods are now in vogue, and all bill posters who have the interests of the craft at heart and are deeply concerned about its future are bending their energies towards a strict and accurate fulfillment of these methods. Yet there are many obstacles to be overcome, many kinks to be straightened out, before the advertisers cease complaining. Every honest and experienced bill poster must admit that one of the most serious drawbacks to the business is the lack of a proper system of inspection. Too much emphasis can not be impressed upon this point, and it does seem rather remarkable that, notwithstanding the many meetings held by those who pose as leaders of the craft, this subject apparently has never been introduced for consideration.

What can be more damaging to the business than for an advertiser to receive a report stating that the bill poster had failed to perform his duty, and that, for instance, stands could not be found on certain locations, as listed, while others were torn down, damaged or destroyed almost beyond recognition. And what is worse for the bill poster than that this information should be false, unjust or malicious, furnished to the advertiser by some incompetent or negligent inspector. Yet such a happening is not an uncommon thing, and vigorous efforts can not be too quickly made to suppress it, for the integrity of the bill poster is at stake, as well as his business methods calling for honorable dealing, which it has taken years to establish. The only real remedy for this nefarious condition, it seems, would be the adoption of a perfected system of inspection. This remedy rests principally in the hands of bill posters themselves, and should not be entrusted exclusively to advertisers, or even middlemen. Of course, all who are interested in the matter should have a voice in bringing such a system into shape, but as the bill poster is the chief sufferer from an adverse and unjust report, it is very clear that he should have considerable to say about the manner in which inspection is done.

At the present time the advertiser usually reserves to himself the right of inspecting, although the middleman sometimes takes this burden upon himself. The advertiser generally calls upon his traveling salesmen to look after this duty, but in some instances he hires an outside agency for the purpose. This agency in most cases nowadays is the American District Telegraph Company, and the nature of the work which this concern is capable of performing is best illustrated by an example. Last week a well-known bill poster in a large Western city called the attention of "The Billboard" to the following facts:

The manufacturers of Heilio Soap, who have been sending out a great deal of stand work during the past few months, shipped a liberal quantity of these stands to the bill poster in question. He took pains to give as fine a showing as could be desired, and mailed his list promptly to the firm. In the his firm, or the bill posting craft at large. According to the report, which it was afterwards discovered had been made out on the authority of messenger boys who were sent forth on their bicycles to do the inspecting, about seventy-five of the stands were in execrable shape, damaged and partly destroyed, while quite a few were said to be missing. After the bill poster's anger had cooled down, he insisted that he was entitled to fair play in the matter, and to that end he readily convinced Mallory that the only thing that remained to be done was that both should start forth without delay on a tour of inspection of the hoardings. Although the manager was pressed for time, he deferred to the bill poster's request and spent the whole day threatened to bring suit for damages, while Manager Mallory positively states that the A. D. T. messengers will never be called upon to inspect another Heilio showing.

This incident is a fair sample of the modern method of inspection. A change from this custom is not only desirable, but even imperative. Let us study ways and means whereby a sensible and fair-minded system can be brought into existence. Let us appeal to the "brains of the bill posting business," if necessary, which are said to be crowded in in the narrow precincts of Manhattan Isle and which, at present, are engaged in exploiting schemes of Utopian promise. Let these men put their endowments and energies to a practical purpose, and with the assistance of their fellow-members throughout the country, let us hope that a system of inspection, suitable alike to advertiser and bill poster, will be quickly evolved. Newspaper have a way of keying their advertisement so that no caprice of ill chance or unfair criticism can be indulged. Let bill poster assemble and put a similar system of inspection into operation. And let this be done as quickly as possible.

A Pioneer Passes Away.

William O. Reagan, second vice president of the New York Bill Posting Company, died at his home in New York City on Sunday, May 6. Death was due to a complaint of paralysis and hiccoughs, from which the deceased was a sufferer since 1872. During his lifetime he had been attacked by no less than six strokes of paralysis.

Mr. Reagan was 62 years of age, and had the honor of being the pioneer bill poster of New York City. In 1856 he joined hands with Alex. Clark, under the firm name of Reagan & Clark, which continued until Dec. 1, 1890 when they consolidated with Harry Monroe and O. J. Gude and incorporated the New York Bill Posting Company. Mr. Reagan was one of the directors of the New York Bill Posting Company, as well as second vice president. He was also a director of the Paterson Bill Posting Company, of Paterson, N. J.

He was a Grand Army man, and belonged to Anderson Williams Post, G. A. R. He went to the front with the Ellsworth Zouaves, and was with Ellsworth when the latter was shot. He participated in the battle of Bull Run, and was caught in a bayonet and sentenced to be shot, but on account of his identity with the F. & A. M. was given a chance to escape. His funeral took place Sunday, May 13, the interment being at Woodlawn.

How About This, Sam?

What will the members of the Associate Bill Posters have to say when they are confronted with positive evidence that the New York Bill Posting Company, 3 Murray street, New York City, is shipping paper to opposition bill posting firms throughout the country? Mr. O. J. Gude is vice president of the big New York bill posting plant, and one of its ruling spirits; moreover, he is one of the most prominent members of the Associate Bill Posters. How can the gang and its following reconcile these facts when they peruse the following interesting letter?

Inter-State Bill Posting & Advertising Co.,
912 Walnut street, Kansas City, Mo.

Gentlemen—We shipped you by express prepaid, one package containing thirty-five sheets, of which post twenty-five for six weeks, reserving the extra ten for renewal. This is for a first-class hotel in New York City, and our client asks for the very best locations that you have, and requests that you place them on separate theater 3-sheets. As the theatrical season is about over, we trust that you will follow his instructions and so place them in the central locations and main line of travel, and if results follow from this advertising and you are pleased with same you may be favorably with subsequent orders of this character. Send list as soon as posted to this office. Yours truly,

NEW YORK BILL POSTING CO.,
New York City.

The humor of this letter lies in the fact that the Inter-State plant was sold out about six weeks ago, but this doesn't alter the gravity of the case.

CHARLES BERNARD,
Secretary of the South-Eastern Billposters' Association, and Proprietor of the Savannah, Ga., and Charleston, S. C., Plants.

course of a month or more Mr. Mallory, one of the managers of the soap concern, visited the city where the bill poster, who is a prominent member of the Associated Bill Posters, is engaged in business. After making local inquiries as to the reliability and uprightness of the bill posting company, which were met with more than satisfactory replies, he called upon the bill poster and produced for his edification the report of an inspection of the Heilio work which had been made by the A. D. T. Company. The bill poster looked it over and was chagrined to find that the report was anything but complimentary. In fact, it was practically libelous and constituted as detrimental and damaging a document as any that could be circulated against driving about the city viewing the various locations. When the tour was finished, he frankly apologized to the bill poster for the falsity of the report he had received, and candidly congratulated him upon the condition of his plant and the fine showing that had been extended to Heilio, for not a single stand was found missing, or even damaged. At the bill poster's office the manager was shown the renewal paper, and not a sheet had been used. A trip was then made to the local branch of the A. D. T. Company, where, in the presence of the bill poster, Manager Mallory unburdened himself to the representatives of the corporation in no unmistakable terms. The latter were profuse with apologies and explanations. The bill poster has

When Pratt Dictates to Gude.

They say that sawed-off Sammy,
That sleek and artful mite,
Just started up that project
To help him in the fight
Which threatens Greater Gotham.
Not very long from now;
'Twill be a lively rumpus,
A blooming, big bow-wow.

But the weather will be chilly,
And stormy, rough and rude,
And gold-brick games seem silly,
When Pratt dictates to Gude.

To Meet in Chicago.

A number of prominent Western bill posters will meet in Chicago the latter part of this week, probably Friday or Saturday, in response to the call issued by Charles K. Haager, of St. Louis. The purpose of this meeting will be to exchange views and discuss the alleged merits and benefits supposed to be in store for all those who have signed what is known as the Protective scheme, projected by the Eastern clique. It is impossible to give an actual forecast of the results of this meeting, but it is known positively that at least a half-dozen of the leading Western cities will not put any money into the scheme under any circumstances.

This of course means that Fitch will be compelled to remove a few names from his listed and protected "window" showing. Whether any of the Eastern gangsters will attend the Chicago meeting for the purpose of whoring recalcitrant members into line is not definitely known, but it can hardly be expected that they would let such an excellent opportunity glide by to show their strength, were it not for the fact that perfect harmony, it is whispered, by no means exists among the bosses themselves. However, the ultimate success of the project depends in a great measure upon the Chicago meeting, and the eyes of the New York gangsters will be strained in that direction for a few days at least.

Ohio State Convention.

Just twenty-three members of the Ohio State Bill Posters' Association were assembled in a room of the City Hall at Xenia, O., when President Phil Oliver rapped the meeting to order at 1:45 o'clock in the afternoon, May 8. Reading of the minutes of the last meeting was dispensed with.

Among those in attendance were the following: President Phil Oliver, of Findlay; Vice-President Charles A. Hood, of Delphos; Secretary W. C. Tirrell, of Lima; Treasurer H. H. Tyner, of Springfield; Al. and Charles Bryan, of Cleveland; Burrell B. Chapman, of Cincinnati; S. E. Rihlet, of Galion; M. J. Kuhn, of Hamilton; C. O. Miller, of Miamisburg; Chas. B. Rodgers, of Sidney; R. W. Lodwick, of Portsmouth; G. E. Penne, of Urbana; Chas. L. McClellan, of Xenia; S. D. Hunter, of Steubenville; Hixson Brothers, of Piqua; Sandusky Bill Posting Company and Columbus Bill Posting Company.

From the very opening of the meeting the Bryan influence—an echo of the Eastern gangsters—began to assert itself in a domineering and bulldozing way. This influence shaped all things pertaining to the meeting to its own way of thinking, save one very important matter—and the convention, which was advertised to last two days, was railroaded through in a hurried and high-handed manner. There was only one session, and that lasted about four hours.

The only real exciting thing that occurred throughout the proceedings cropped up during the reading of Secretary Tirrell's report. Then it was that the Bryans made the only blunder of the day, when they attempted to have a resolution passed censuring the president and secretary for authorizing the advertising of the official call of the State meeting in "The Billboard." These efforts were bitter and vindictive, but they failed, and the Bryans accordingly were disappointed and chagrined beyond measure.

A lengthy communication was read, from General Manager F. E. Fitch, of the new Protective company, which contained nothing strikingly new. It provoked hardly a murmur, and no action was taken in regard to it.

During the time allotted to the discussion of trade topics, the representatives of certain tobacco firms were raked over the coals. The matter of the opposition in Cincinnati was not even touched upon. In fact, all questions of great importance were carefully avoided, and the meeting, on the whole, was one of those tame and innocuous affairs, which hardly leave an impress on the memory.

The officers elected for the ensuing year are as follows: President, Charles A. Hood, Delphos; Secretary, Charles L. McClellan, Xenia; Treasurer, S. E. Rihlet, Galion.

South African Letter.

Cape Town, April 11, 1909.
To the Editor of "The Billboard":

Dear Sir—Enclosed please find postal order for two years' subscriptions to your much esteemed paper.

We regret to say that owing to the war in this country, trade is absolutely at a standstill, and more especially in our bill posting department.

Everyone is hopeful of a speedy settlement of hostilities, which will mean much prosperity, and will place this country on a proper footing.

American merchants and manufacturers will do well to watch events closely, and they would do well to commence advertising at the present time, as it means the first in will score, the country possessing so many probabilities.

From the enclosed circular you will notice we have the patronage of the War Department of the British Imperial Government, and have received the appointment of sole advertising contractors. Wishing you every success, yours faithfully,

E. G. GLASS,
Proprietor South African Advertising Co.

Levyne's Letter.

To the Editor of "The Billboard":

Dear Sir—Knowing the interest you take in the welfare of all bill posters, I take your paper as a medium of expressing my thanks to my bill posting friends, whose cities I have visited the past season, for their cooperation and hospitality. And as each season passes by I note with gratification the closeness existing between me—as a poster salesman—and them as bill posters.

As a rule, I find the bill posters a hard-working lot of business men, and all they seem to want is to be let alone. As one expressed himself, "We are getting ruled to death." I find the best service in cities of about 50,000 population, and more actual profit in consideration of the investment comes out of a plant of that size than in larger cities. As a large National advertiser said, "Tis just the happy medium."

What most attracted my attention this season was the knowledge of the customers to the inner points of the business, and which I can only attribute to the bill poster.

The bane of the bill poster's life is a three-sheet to be placed on a four-sheet high board, the bill poster to buy only four-sheet high paper.

As a salesman who covers such vast territory I have had abundant facility to become acquainted with so many bill posters that I can see the service grow from season to season, and this education I find among the merchants must be placed to the credit of the bill posters more than to the paper salesman.

I would like to make a trip with my old friend, John Moore, once again to see how his eyes would open at the improvement even in the short time he has been away.

The greatest improvement I find is in the cities of 15,000 to 75,000 population. The very largest cities seem to have stood plumb still. Say, it just popped into my head why Mr. Pratt is working on his 40 or 100 cities plan.

And now, bill posters, wishing you a prosperous year, and once again thanking you for your past assistance, promising you to call again in the fall with "4-high" paper, I remain your truly,

M. L. LEVYNE.

More Trouble for Wilshire.

To the Editor of "The Billboard":

Dear Sir—Some time ago this city passed an ordinance aimed against bill posting, which was so absurdly unconstitutional that even the little, humble police court threw it out as invalid. On the spur of the moment the city appealed to the Superior Court, but later repented their foolishness, and repealed the ordinance, having come to the conclusion that it was invalid, and then passed another ordinance which, although equally unconstitutional, is not quite such an exhibition of aldermanic stupidity as the first one. However, Judge Smith, of the Superior Court, a superior joker, has just declared, much to the astonishment of the aldermen, that their old, abandoned ordinance was quite the right thing, after all, and has intimated that they were too hasty in repealing it. He also went beyond himself, and even advised them that the present ordinance is also quite unconstitutional, and let them know that if ever he has a chance at it he will sustain it.

Inidentally, I was fined $25 for violating the old repealed ordinance. I will not pay this fine, because the city can not fine me for violation of an ordinance which has been repealed before I had a chance of appealing to Supreme Court. However, this is a quibble and unimportant as to the main question of the constitutionality of such old ordinances.

I am momentarily expecting a decision from the police court upon the constitutionality of the new ordinance. It is possible in view of the Superior Court judge's (unconstitutional) decision that the police judge will date to that decision and hold the new ordinance void. I will then be fined, and upon refusing to pay, will be thrown into jail, and from there will be taken out on a writ of habeas corpus to either the Supreme Court or the Superior Court, as I may elect. I could go into some other judge than Smith in the Superior Court, but inasmuch as local prejudice colors their decisions, I will probably go to the Supreme Court. However, I have no doubt that almost any other judge of the Superior Court would decide in my favor. Of course I hate corporal punishment, so I can choose my judge. The reason this case got before Smith was owing to its being an appeal case from the justice court, which will not be the case with the next one, as I shall not appeal, but get out my writ.

That decision in the Rochester (N. Y.) case against the bill posters there, and which is now in the Court of Appeals in New York, backs up the courts here to decide against me. It will be a good thing when Rochester finally wins out, as I have not the least doubt will be the ultimate result there.

In the meanwhile, my business continues at the old stand, with no interruption of trade. In fact, I am getting more business than I ever had before, and no doubt much due to the advertising so freely bestowed upon me by the newspapers. Faithfully yours,

H. G. WILSHIRE.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 10, 1909.

Hood Purchases Tirrell's Plant.

Delphos, O., May 11, 1909.
To the Editor of "The Billboard":

I wish to inform my friends that on May 11 I bought the fine bill posting plant and everything included with it at Lima, O., owned by W. C. Tirrell & Co., and have taken charge at once. This gives me two of the best plants in the State outside of the large cities.

As I do nothing else but attend to the advertising business, giving it my personal attention, I am prepared to give national advertisers a run for their money.

Speaking of the Ohio Bill Posters' Association, of which I had the honor of being elected President, it leads all others in the United States, having more members in good standing and a reputation for service that is second to none.

CHARLES A. HOOD.

Clean Up the Waste Paper.

"The Billboard" has always been a stickler for cleanliness in bill posting. Not only should the hoardings be kept in shipshape condition, but it is the duty of the bill poster to see that the ground adjacent is also kept free from masses of torn and littered paper, which is sometimes washed off after severe storms. Bill posters should give particular attention to this matter, if for no other reason than to prevent newspapers from indulging in envenomed rhapsodies like the following editorial screed which appeared in the St. Paul Dispatch of May 7 issue:

"If the people demand bill boards, and apparently they do, or they would not print their public highways to be one continual hell-scape for transient advertising, they might at least insist that these boards be limited in advertising to sum what to a gaudy proportion of the board itself. Instead of that, the prairie lots on the outskirts and the city streets further down town are permitted to become whirling masses of all verbiage, which the wind blows wherever it lists, and every man knows whence it comes and whether it should, according to ordinance, go, but no one insists on that position. The pictures are posted up for a week and a day, and serve their purpose. Then they are scraped down in great irregular masses, to make way for their successors, and if the bill board is raised a few inches from the ground it offers so convenient an enticing a graveyard for these tattered and torn ladies and gentlemen of the stage, the fashions and cosmetics, that they are straightway thrust beneath, and this undertaker's work is done. There may be some follower who is supposed to cart away all this pasty mass of microbe-bearing and disease-breeding material, but he certainly fails to find a not inconsiderable part. With the high winds of recent days there has been an epidemic of waste paper raging about the streets, and its counterfeit presentations enables one to diagnose the case exactly. It is due, as is typhoid fever and lead government, to the indifference and negligence of the people. They see that ordinances and statutes are placed upon the books, and think the books will look after the execution. Thanks to the housewives of the municipality, the down-town streets are kept as clear from flying papers as thoughtless human nature can be persuaded; but further out there is still ample evidence that in the matter of municipal cleanliness we are barbarians. The paper should go, if bill boards do not."

Chicago.

The R. J. Gunning Company is now just completing the painting of the State of Iowa for "Bull Durham" tobacco. Every important market of that State has been covered and their principal points of vantage covered by mammoth reproductions of the "Bull." Conjointly with the business building department the campaign has been a very successful one—"Durham" has forged to the front, and is literally in almost every smoker's pipe of that State.

Many new ads are appearing on Gunning's bulletin boards, notable among which are those for the "Bulldog Camera" Company of Springfield, Mass.

"Volupt Mantel" Cigar of T. J. Dunn & Co., Philadelphia.

"Living Gold Starch" of the Oswego Starch Factory, Oswego, N. Y.

"Dandridge" of the Knowlton Dingleine Company, Chicago.

"Kawartha" of the Marine Company, Chicago.

"Edelweiss Beer" of the Schenckmen Brewing Company, Chicago.

In addition to the above the company has put up a large display about ten bulletin signs for "Wartewanda." "Blind" advertising has been used in the exploitation of this article, supply the name and a catch-line—different reading matter on each appearing simultaneously in all parts of the city. The phrases are unique, bright and original, and stirred up a great deal of comment. It is now being followed up by a permanent sign telling the strong features of the "Wartewanda" water.

WILLIE H. KARNES.

Detroit Doings.

Strauss, Pritz & Co., Cincinnati, O., are using a twelve-sheet poster, advertising their famous "Lewis '96" whisky on one boards. This is the first town in the United States that they have filled, and results thus far have been very satisfactory. Paul Jones whisky is also being filled heavily, and H. N. Marin & Sons are pushing their anti-trust tobacco, "Worth Navy," in Detroit and throughout Michigan. They also are new people on the bill boards, and more than pleased with results.

H. W. WALKER.

Awaiting the Decision.

We are in receipt of many letters from bill posters who are members of the Associated Bill Posters, stating that they would like very much to run their advertisements regularly in "The Billboard," but in view of the boycott established last October by the directors of the organization they prefer to avoid trouble with their arbitrary rulers. But just as soon as the matter is settled to the United States Circuit Court they will be with us again, stronger than ever.

"The Billboard" enjoys popularity among the masses, and is widely read. Large advertisers peruse its columns closely.

The policy of "The Billboard" is to toady to no single man or clique of men. We simply go after the news and print it regardless of fear or favor, and we have abundant evidence that thousands eagerly read our journal through every week.

Cincinnati Fall Festival.

Cincinnati is making energetic efforts and displaying surprising enthusiasm in the preparations that are now well under way for the great Fall Festival, which will be held during the latter half of September.

This festival will be advertised like a circus. There will be innumerable three-sheets and all sizes of work, up to twenty-four sheets in size. Nobody within 10 miles of Cincinnati will have any excuse for not knowing that Cincinnati has on her holiday clothes during the ten days between September 19 and 29. It has been determined to get out a booklet, giving in detail the program, as proposed and which is now under revision. Manager Ziegler has received bids and offers of corporations from other cities, but the association has determined that all this work shall be left in Cincinnati. Some magnificent designs have been received from the Donaldson Lithographing Company, the Henderson Lithographing Company, the Enquirer Job Print, the Russell & Morgan Company, Heneghan and others. The pictorial and descriptive work is to be divided equally among all the connaît's great concern. The designs for the illuminated pageant are particularly gorgeous, and they will be carried out to the letter.

Athens, Tenn., Affairs.

To the Editor of "The Billboard":

Dear Sir—My work for the past month has been phenomenal. Have had more than I could do, and was forced to strengthen my force and build new boards. The census in this State is so heavy that few citizens can make money; and being something of a politician myself, I am working a great effort to get the tax reduced. Any word you can let out our tax law and the legislature in general will be greatly appreciated by the bill posters of Tennessee. I would be glad if you would state that I have started this movement, and request bill posters in Tennessee who are interested in the movement to correspond with me.

I have just completed large contracts for the Continental Tobacco Co., New York. New Spencer Med. Co., Chattanooga. I hold contract for all Tennessee for these companies: Mr. Shoop Med. Co., Chattanooga; Med. Co.; Pageant Special Co., Atlanta; Pooc Cola Co., Atlanta; Pensil. Co., Nashville; Thatch'r Med. Co., Chattanooga; Peruna Co., Columbus; Chattanooga, Chattanooga Carnival; Athens City Directory, and others.

There is good opening here for a circus, as it has been five years since we have had a good one.

I wish "The Billboard" the top of success.

"The Billboard" Directories.

Once more we call the attention of bill posters and distributors to the importance of having their names appear in our weekly lists or directories, which will start with the issue of June 2. For the sum of $1 your name will thereby appear before the adver seen of the whole country for fifty-two times during the year. All men in the advertising business know that it pays to advertise themselves, that is the reason why we ask you to put your name in, simply because it will pay you to do so. We do not seek your advertisement merely as a favor or because of loyalty to our cause, but because it is an excellent business investment. "Let your light shine before men," and let advertisers know that you are in business. No journal devoted to the interests of proper and paying publicity is more closely scanned by the large advertisers than the "Weekly Billboard." We have a multitude of flattering letters to substantiate this statement. Our directories are in constant use by these big advertisers; the men whose names appear in these lists will tell you so, and they know by fruitful experience. A few have written that they can not afford to keep their names in weekly, but this argument is a very weak one. If our directories can bring more than four dollars' worth of work which a bill poster or distributor would not otherwise get, then the bargain in itself is an excellent one, but then our directories are sure to bring more than ten-fold the amount invested, and that is as good a bargain as anyone can desire. By all means, have your name in from the start.

Not Jim Dishon's Men.

With the opening of spring and the advertising season, says the Terre Haute Express, property-owners and citizens in general are making complaint of the promiscuous distribution of dodgers and boys and men tramping over lawns surrounding residences. The city has an anti-dodger ordinance, but so far there has been little effort to enforce it, and in consequence of this lack of interest on the part of city officials, the yards of residences have become strewn with papers and greatly damaged by the distributors walking over the grass. The men who disregard the dodger ordinance are not the distributors employed by J. M. Dishon, the city bill poster, as he insists on his men placing every bill in the letter boxes, and especially warns his men against walking on lawns.

"I watch my men closely," said Mr. Dishon, "and if I am satisfied that my order regarding the throwing of dodgers in yards and tramping over the lawns have been ignored, the man is discharged. My men have been uniformed in order that they may be identified, and I will be glad if any person who can catch them violating the ordinance will notify me. I am just as anxious as residents to insist on my distributors placing dodgers in the letter boxes and keeping off the grass. Bill posting and distributing is my business, and I believe it is necessary for the success of my business that all laws and ordinances should be obeyed. I would not allow a man or boy to throw a bill in my yard or walk over my lawn, consequently I insist on my men respecting other people's property the same as my own. If bills are thrown in yards it is not my men, and I want the public to know it. Many property owners have made complaints to me within the past few days, but on investigation it was shown that I had nothing to do with the men who were violating the law."

Waterbury, Conn., News.

I have second shipment under way from Dr. Miles Med. Co. since January. About cross road advertising I will say it costs from $8 to $10 per thousand to reach small villages in my section. I know it, and have been told so by firms who have tried small villages. I could mail advertisements to said villages at less expense to about twenty to thirty-eight small manufacturing towns and farming districts. If advertisers desire this service, I take good care of same. Local barbers have been well supplied with Perrina books. Pinkham booklets distributed in center of city twice. On one street about noon I have seen the man throw from eight to twelve pieces on the veranda floors. Of course this gives a great amount of work for that distributor, and keeps him from going to the outskirts. These two firms do not seem to care about their advertising matter, or else do not want to pay anything to have their work done properly. Mr. Chase, Philadelphia, made two distributions here. They have a new man each time. Smith's Green Mountain Renovator has a sign in drug store, size of bass drum; glass signs in front, with advertisement on spine, red glass.

Ringing Bros.' Circus has been here. They had a fine parade, "Paws-Sells Pros" show here May 15, and New Haven May 19. We have had two ten cent side-shows in town for over two months. J. A. NEFF.

The Amazons Again.

Derby, Conn., May 11.—The Woman's Club of Derby, Shelton and Ansonia has instituted another reform by attacking the handbill nuisance, which it is determined to abate. At its last meeting, Mrs. James R. Mason, chairman of the Civic Committee, took the matter in hand and secured the club's permission to pass copies of the following petition among the members for the purpose of obtaining signatures: "The distribution of circulars and handbills is becoming a public nuisance and a great annoyance to the householders of the associated communities, the undersigned citizens do hereby appeal to all merchants, managers and agents of Derby, Shelton and Ansonia and neighboring towns to cease this mode of advertising." As many of the merchants have already signed the petition, the presumption is that the nuisance will soon cease.

The new woman is certainly a wonder. What next!

An Advertising Bombshell.

An Italian inventor has recently invented what he calls an advertising bombshell. The bombs are made of paper-mache, and, as designed, consist of two members adapted to screw into each other, leaving a space for the explosives and a space for the handbills, a fuse completing the unique distributing device. The idea is to send this bomb up in the air in rocket fashion and then have it explode, when, instead of a shower of toy balloons, mice, cats, elephants, dice, flowers, etc., descending, as is usual in Japanese day fireworks, a shower of handbills would be scattered broadcast over the streets.

Leads to Obscurity.

Some one has discovered that there is a peculiar harbinger of comparative obscurity hovering over the doubtful honor of having a cigar named after you, if you happen to be a stage player. Jessie Bartlett Davis was stung with perfect happiness four years ago when she received a box of Perfects bearing her name on the cover—and now she is in retirement. Robert Mantill thought it an excellent advertising device to have his portrait pasted on every cigar and newsstand of the country as the trade mark of a cigar, but now he is certainly on the decline, thus of Tehuantepec. Their intentions are to send their circulars broadcast throughout the United States and to every part of the globe where people are interested in the cultivation of tropical products.

"Philadelphia merchants are mighty candid advertisers," says the advertising man. "I've always known that fact, but I never saw it so strikingly illustrated as I did in the Philadelphia papers recently. I picked up one of the leading papers there and read over the bargains the big stores had to offer, and in the middle of one advertisement, under the head of "Hats" I found this: "What do you get when you buy a $4.50 hat at other stores?—stuck. Same here, $3.50." Of course I thought it was a break, but I got the other papers and I found the same thing in every one of them."

NOTES.

Guy W. Hart is the bill poster at Lake Odessa, Mich., and, according to all accounts, is an enterprising hustler.

There is much speculation as to the reason why Balle Carrot so suddenly dropped out of sight and sound. Guess the gang could explain.

J. B. Nevin, manager of the opera house, Rome, Ga., writes that he will institute an opposition bill posting and distributing plant in that city.

The following clipping is from "The Citizen" of Athens, Tenn., and is a positive proof that advertising in the smaller towns brings its results:

We have received the May number of "The American Printer." It is one of the handsomest of the illustrated monthlies, and does great credit to the publisher, Mr. J. Clyde Oswald.

One of the best bill posting lists that has ever come under the observation of "The Billboard" is that issued by the Los Angeles Bill Posting Company of Los Angeles, California.

Lewis N. Morton, writes that he has started a bill posting plant at Shawnee, Okla., a good town of 8,000 population. Shawnee sprung into existence only four years ago, and was without a regular bill poster until Mr. Morton started in.

Robt. J. Wilson, the advertiser and distributor at Kewanee, Ill., notifies us that he has received his certificate of membership in the I. A. of D. He says work this year has been very good, and he contemplates starting a bill posting plant.

J. Wier, of the firm of J. Wier & Son, city bill posters and distributors, Nebraska City, Neb., writes to inform us of the death of his daughter-in-law, which occurred on May 4. She was 28 years of age, and had been ill for several months.

According to an exchange, the advertisements on the cars, omnibuses and tickets of the London County Council trams brought in nearly $10,000 during 1899. Of this the Council netted about $30,000, the balance going in commissions.

W. H. Steinbrenner, the well-known Cincinnati distributor, has recovered from his recent illness. He reports that the annual convention of the I. A. of D., scheduled to be held at Kansas City, will very likely be changed to Detroit or Milwaukee and postponed till August.

By order of the street committee of the village council of Painesville, O., tin and cardboard signs advertising plug tobacco, yeast, soap, etc., are being torn down from telegraph and telephone poles. More than 2,000 have already been removed. The action is taken under a hitherto unenforced ordinance.

R. W. Lodwick, the bill poster and distributor at Portsmouth, O., was a "Billboard" caller on May 9. He is a hustling young fellow, who succeeded in knocking his opposition out of business about a year ago. His plant is strictly up to date, and he reports that both his bill posting and distributing departments are continually increasing the volume of business.

"The West Bill Posting Company, of this city, has come to the front in that line of advertising. They have just completed a contract with the Star Tobacco Company for all towns between Knoxville and Chattanooga, and the elegant displays on their board have attracted much attention. This is one of the largest advertising companies in East Tennessee. Manager West says he has posted over 10,000 sheets this month."

Al Bryan has held many important official posts in his day, and has exhibited considerable executive ability in the discharge of his duties, but no position has ever weighed him down, he declares, with so much responsibility, worry and insomnia as the directorship of the Eastern clique's white elephant journal, which was handed over to him at a recent meeting during his absence and without his asking. Al, moreover, says that his position as director of the International Distributors' Association is also very trying and onerous.

According to the "Berkeley Gazette," of Berkeley, Cal., the sightly bill board has at last made its debut in Berkeley. It has selected the most conspicuous corner in the city. Passing to and from Berkeley Station the traveler will soon see emblazoned on green signs, in red letters, "Borrow Money From Uncle Bill," "A Long, Sweet Puff," or at "The Dewey Next Week." It is veritably an age of show. The business world expects a man to display his sign and make himself known. The American child learns its letters at the early age of three or four years. One-third of life is perhaps spent in reading, and every advantage possible is given the young student an opportunity to learn. Bill-posting agencies recognize that striking colors add attractiveness to the sign, and, accordingly, following the first law of color, sight and sensation, display their signs in bold colors.

Moline, Ill., Matters.

News in this section is very scarce. The reason is because I am too busy to pay any attention to anything but work. I have put out upward of 70,000 booklets and samples so far this season, and have correspondence for several thousand more. My bill boards (of which there are 1,700 running feet) are fairly well filled, and I have plenty of paper on the way to fill them. I am satisfied this will be the banner season for outdoor advertising, and I can cheerfully state that I attribute part of my success to the advertisement I ran in "The Billboard." You are all right. Very truly yours, R. H. TAYLOR.

and is successful only in small cities. Agnes Booth also had her name on a cigar wrapper, and she is now living in retirement in Boston. Lillian Russell made up her mind to have a cigar named after her—and behold, she is now a burlesque actress at Weber & Field's music hall, and the public sees her no more.

Time to Callers.

A business man of Sterling, Ill., is the originator of a novel advertising card. It is in the form of business rules, and gives the length of time a business man should devote to callers. Among other rules are: Peddlers, one-fourth second; friends who want us to go to lunch, thirty minutes; friends who wish to give an order, thirty minutes; friends who want to talk longer, all day; friends who want to borrow over $50, no time at all. Reporters are allowed ten seconds. The last rule is subject to amendment, in case the merchant has some important news to impart.

Tallapoosa, Ga., is rejoicing over a brand new set of bill boards. James G. Stickney is the owner of the plant. He is a member of the I. A. of D.

Every member of the Associated Bill Posters who possesses a spark of manhood knows that he has a right to a voice in the choice of the Head of Directors, and will fight for that right.

The management of the Interceanic Railroads, whose headquarters are in the City of Mexico, have decided to introduce a new style of advertising in that country. They will use a recent article published in the "Two Republics" as a circular, describing the many advantages in the close connection made by their road with the Alvarado Road at Vera Cruz, thereby facilitating travel to the Is-

ANENT OPPOSITION.

Opposition has been the problem which has bothered the Associated Bill Posters more than all other trade questions combined, for the simple reason that in spite of the most rigid regulations it has never ceased to exist in certain forms and in various localities. Those who are most experienced and conversant with the subject freely declare that there is only one sure way of driving an opposing party out of the business, and that is for a bill poster to fight his own battle by starving an opponent out and keeping the work off his boards at my cost.

The only requirements for success in such a contest are a thorough knowledge of the business, full confidence of the local commercial community, coupled with tact and a limited amount of capital. Against this composite and co-operating force, no mount of aggressiveness, backed by abundant bank-rolls, can eventually triumph.

It is well-known that many oppositions have failed disastrously in the past, not because of insufficient finance, but owing to the lack of practical and detailed knowledge of the modern system of bill posting. Without this knowledge, which can only be acquired by time and experience, there can be no success, and this fact is fully realized by the leading representatives of the craft.

One of the greatest latter-day bill posting fights took place last summer, and although this contest was a comparative brief one, the amount of all dog tenacity and dare-devil daring displayed by the respective gladiators was so maddening and foolhardy that when the smoke and din of battle had cleared away it was found that the casualty list included an aggregate loss of something more than 50,000, about evenly divided. Yet this stupendous clash might have waxed much longer and still hotter had not one of the field officers literally got down on his knees and begged his associates of the East to hasten to his support and save his firm from annihilation. These men of the East put the whole machinery of their organized force into action, and then responded. Their efforts were not in vain, for they succeeded in bringing about a condition of peace, it is true, but was it not at the humiliating sacrifice of a one-sided compromise? And even at that the surface-condition of peace obtained can not conceal the old scars and aching wounds, and from those apparently serene skies it would not be surprising to behold a thunderbolt dart suddenly forth at some future date.

In San Francisco, up to within a few months ago, a bitter fight was in progress for about three years, and at the finish the accumulated losses, it is estimated, were considerably in excess of $200,000. But from out that pile of charred ruins the phoenix of a magnificent out-door advertising service arose, and the Golden Gate city can to-day boast of a plant second to none in America. It can also justly claim a triumvirate of proprietors who are as brainy, accomplished and energetic as any to be found elsewhere in this line of business.

At the present time New York City appears to be in a rather sullen mood, and unless all signs should fail and the predictions of the soothsayers prove erroneous, something, which can not be classified as a mere skirmish, will likely transpire before the October ale begins to circulate. Many bill posters are under the impression that this struggle will be a sort of an underground affair until the rallying wind-up, while some are shortsighted enough to believe that loving-cup at Atlantic City may be an effective means of reconciling the opposing forces. Loving-cups have been called into service in the past, but their cementing influence was found to be about as ephemeral as the sparkling effervescence they contained. At all events New York will continue to be the cynosure of all eyes, until some outbreak occurs or some understanding is reached.

ATLANTIC CITY.

By the way, the Atlantic City convention is near enough at hand to cause bill posters to begin to don their thinking caps. This resort by the seashore with its famous boardwalk recalls many pleasant reminiscences to the fraternity. Three years have glided by since the Associated Bill Posters assembled there, and some of the events that took place at that time involuntarily flash across our minds to-day. For instance, it will be remembered how Gude arrived in pompous style, just a day late, with an attack of gout and a colored lackey in livery. Nor will it be forgotten how Stahlbrodt made a fruitless attempt to have the editor of the official organ banished from the convention hall. And that wind-jamming stool-pigeon from up the state. Who could forget him? Let's see; where did he come from? Some village on the outskirts of Buffalo, with a population of about—well, Runey is familiar with such things. How he did pose and push his chest out! And, under secret instructions from Stahlbrodt, how he did spout throughout the various sessions, until he became a veritable bore. Wonder if he's going to monopolize the floor this year. Then, again, there was our esteemed friend, Eddie Donnelly, who met with an outside attraction about the middle of the meeting and never showed at a session thereafter. And the hall to which Say Robison first welcomed the visitors should not be left in the background of reflections; nor Hote's beaming bunch of dangerous smiles and still more risky stories. Shall these fascinating scenes and episodes be reproduced this year? Wait, and we shall see.

They Say —

Reports from all sections of the country show that an immense amount of distributing matter is being placed.

Walker Co., of Detroit, have built up an excellent plant and are carrying a fine line of work, both local and national.

That Charlie Bryan's motto seems to be, "The Eastern gang can do no wrong." Charlie knows how to carry out instructions.

That the gangsters expect to remain in power another year yet, although a strenuous effort will be made to defeat them at Atlantic City.

The cheapness of the bill board method of advertising and the prominent publicity thereby obtained are its strongest recommendations.

The New York City Posting Company is sending out to a number of large cities some attractive three-sheets, advertising the Plaza Hotel, of New York.

That many bill posters are still prone to couple the name of Campbell with that of the Hood in connection with the latter's notorious fiasco in Chicago.

That Lou Ramsey is gradually but surely extending his interests throughout the State of Kentucky. Wonder if Lou is as great a baseball fan as he used to be?

Numerous bill posters are authority for the statement that the Kansas City City Posting Company is the slowest firm in the business in answering correspondence.

The appearance of the bill boards in several large cities would indicate that many of the prominent railroad lines have at last adopted poster advertising in earnest.

That Jim Curran will have more than the usual number of clerks to register when he comes East this summer. Jim says, with a grinning chuckle, that he's in real earnest this time.

That neither side in the New York struggle has shown any indication of an attack of polar props or frapped underpinnings as yet. Campbell ought to be there with his milk-white plume.

That many of the cities set down in Fitch's list as having paid up a certain amount to the Protective Company have not in reality contributed a single penny, nor do they intend to do so.

That Old Hote laughed leeringly up his left sleeve when he heard the report that Gude and Stahlbrodt were contemplating another permanent reconciliation act by forming a partnership.

That Charlie Hager is simply sawing wood in a serious, silent way. For the benefit of Frank Fitzgerald and a few others who have much difficulty in telling how it ought to be, Charlie has purchased an ear trumpet.

A number of the leading distillers of the country have become regular patrons of the bill boards in the past few years, and, according to reports, the results secured by this method of advertising has proved abundantly satisfactory.

That the venerable O. P. Fairchild, of Covington, Ky., attended the Ohio State convention for the chief purpose of gaining further information regarding the Eastern combination project. But he found nothing there to expand his knowledge in the matter.

That W. C. Tirrell, of Lima, O., is deserving of much credit for the able manner in which he served his state organization for several years in the capacity of secretary. Not only is Tirrell a great hustler, but he is also exceedingly popular and widely known.

That Colonel Burr Robbins simply looks on and smiles inwardly. Only a few of us know where the Colonel has just emerged from when he struts down Madison street on certain afternoons with a jaunty air, a clean-shaven face and a highly polished pair of boots.

That the clam-like silence and menkish humility of Henry H. Tyner at the Ohio State Convention was a perfect revelation to his conferees. Henry surprised every one by voting solidly with the Bryan gang on every point. Can it be possible that Stahlbrodt has frowned him into line.

That George Rife, with that same perennial air of contentment and smiling self-satisfaction, paces along as leisurely as of yore. Wonder why San Robison hasn't attempted to steal Baltimore before this? Hey, George? You know the covetous glances he once cast towards Washington.

A certain well-known Ohio bill poster has a stack of the gangsters' official organs in his office, from which the wrappers have never been removed. They represent the accumulation of months. "I quit reading it a year ago," he explains, "for I never found anything in it worth while."

That Tom Murphy, of Brooklyn, would like to know why Bob Campbell, of Chicago, failed to keep the promises he made at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York last March. Tom ought to get a few pointers from Gus Dreutzer, of the Riverside Printing Company, in regard to Campbell's promises.

That George Leonard has a bee-a-buzzing. Probably that's the reason why he was present at the Wisconsin State convention, and is making similar other trips. Well, George is a first-class fellow, even if he is closely allied with the gangsters, and we wish him no disappointment. Geographically, he is far enough away from the curve & twist manufacturers to be an acceptable candidate.

That when "Roaring Robert" was in control of "The Billposter," in Chicago, he had the temerity to permit his name to be presented as an applicant for membership in the Peacock Club of Chicago. Shade of Horace Greeley, Charlie Dina and Joe Medill! The "Roarer," as an editor, is just as unimposing as Hubble as a business man. But then he was advised to withdraw his name before being black-balled, and skulkily did so.

That the most amusing and excitable incident to mark the proceedings of the Ohio State convention was the attempt on the part of the Iryans to pass a resolution of censure against President Oliver and Secretary Tirrell for advertising the State call in "The Billboard" in preference to Stahlbrodt's sheet. Both officers explained this action on the ground that they wanted the bill posters of Ohio to know that a convention was to be held, and that "The Billboard" was the only means of imparting that information. Then Charlie Iryans, in a spirit of rancor, introduced the censoring resolution, while Al breathlessly jumped to his feet and seconded it. But it met with the fate it deserved—it was defeated.

One of the most prominent officials of the Associated Bill Posters and a director of the official band organ, wrote the following to the editor of "The Billboard" under date of May 10:

"You ask me to give our advertisement to your paper, and I most willingly would do so if I could see myself clear out of it. Any information I can give you at any time don't be bashful in writing. As to my opinion of the so-called official organ, I don't think it is worth ten cents a year as far as the bill posters are concerned."

The Circus Season.

Now the merry circus season spreadeth o'er the land;
Mark the flaming posters looming up on every hand;
Maiden with the six-foot tresses;
Trapeze girls in scanty dresses;
Beasts from unknown wildernesses;
Girl who lion fierce caresses;
Birds that no known land possesses;
Calloope that nerves distresses;
Clown who audent jokes expresses;
Farmer who at shell game guesses;
Procession that with pomip progresses;
All of which our wealth assesses.
See the people throng the sidewalks when they hear the band.

Note the fearless bareback rider dashing
'round the ring;
See the ancient damsels from a lofty trapeze swing;
See the red lemonade a-flowing;
Mark the last year's peanuts going;
Scent the jungle zephyrs blowing;
Hear the sacred white bull lowing;
See the strong man make a show;
That a half-ton weight he's throwing.
Mark the rural lad, all-knowing;
Hear the scores of babies crowing;
Watch the cowboy's lasso-throwing;
And the baby lion growning;
Crane your neck and strain your eyes at every wondrous thing.

Hear the small boy's fervent pleading to attend the show;
Pater says the kid needs guarding—so he'll also go;
Even mater gets excited;
When the big white tent is sighted,
Hunts until she is invited;
Pink shirt-waisted girls delighted;
Stingy dad is much affrighted;
Urchin's face with joy is lighted;
Skies with rain clouds are benighted;
Hopes of sunshine always brightened;
Every other thing is slighted;
When the circus has alighted;
Night as well pull down the shades and lock the door, and go.

Sells-Gray Shows.

If there is any one show in America about which more curiosity is manifested than another it is the Sells-Gray Show, which opened at Elwood, Ind., May 5. Every one in the business knows Will Sells, and all are keenly interested in his venture.

The show made Aurora, Ind., May 12, and the Cincinnati contingent was present in force. Among the visitors were Dan R. Robinson and wife, Jas. Hamilton and wife, Rudynka, Chas. Arnold, Mike Mueller, Mrs. Notby Clark and many others.

The weather was all that could be desired, but the show was not seen to the best advantage. An accident to one of the cars had spilled a lot of stringers, only four of which had been recovered, and the accident, coupled with extremely bad weather for four days previous, had resulted in many of the workingmen deserting. As a consequence they were slow in getting up.

Barnum has the canvas.

There are six cages in the menagerie, but these are supplemented by three tableaux wagons and a water buffalo, and the arrangement of the candy stands does away with all suggestion of bareness, and conveys an impression that is satisfactory to the average visitor.

The tops are by Murray, the menagerie being a 65 with two 30-foot middle pieces, and the big top 110 which lays out 103, with two 50-foot middle pieces.

The ring performance, however, is great, and proved not only a great surprise, but a source of wonder to all present. It is a safe bet to assert that it is the best offered by any ten-car show on the road. "Stick" Davyport is riding in great form. Rose Marretta is at her best, and her protege, Miss Edna, is certainly a wonder. A great many marvelous things have been said about this young lady's riding lately, some of which have seemed at times to have been overdrawn or at least over enthusiastic.

Since witnessing her act, however, we are able to state unequivocally that it is the most finished, graceful and daring lady principle act in America. The ease with which she throws somersaults and the lack of effort with which she regains her balance and easy poise are unequalled. Description or adulation, however, are of no value in conveying the many merits of her turn. It must be seen to be either understood or appreciated.

"Stick" Davyport is also entitled to bounded praise. His riding this year is far and away above the average. He has improved most wonderfully.

The clown band is another pleasing feature of the performance, and Harry Tyler's high diving dog, "Charlie," is fairly entitled to recognition as such also. This dog climbs a perpendicular ladder of 40 rounds to platform right under the hood of the canvas and jumps to a net. His work is all done obviously, barking and with tail wagging. He enjoys it and requires no orders or cues from Tyler from the time he starts up the ladder.

The seating capacity, as we said before, was rather limited, but this has been remedied ere this. The blues are ten tiers high and the reserves eight tiers high.

There are two side shows, one the regulation museum, the other a hooche-coochie joint generally uptown.

The concert is fairly good, as concerts go. Bunk Allen and John Barton have all the privileges. John Talbert does the fixing. Denial Nobby Clark is selling belts. John Hummel is manager in the absence of Mr. Still, who is forced to jump on the advance frequently.

Shorty Green has the stock, and it is all good stock, too. It was nearly all furnished by Gray, who, by the way, has had several seasons' experience in a small way, and bids fair to develop into a very able showman.

There are ten ears, and, resplendent in new paint, they make a very brave appearance. Mr. Selis is deserving of great credit. Every one who knows the disadvantages under which he labored, and the difficulties that he had to encounter, will acknowledge that he has accomplished wonders.

He has succeeded in organizing a show that will make money if it is kept in the towns in which it belongs and it gets its share of good weather.

Troubles at Newport, Ky.

For a short time during the evening performance of W. H. Harris' Nickel Plate Shows at Newport, Ky., May 7, it looked as if all kinds of trouble was brewing. The circus was playing to capacity, and people were being turned away in crowds, when a fight started between some white and colored circus employees, in which the tough element of the town, who were refused admittance to the show, took a hand and bombarded the tents with stones. Just as a small-sized riot was impending, a mad dog, a big Norwegian, made its appearance and created additional disturbance. The police finally dispersed the mad dog and scattered the rioters, but the concert at the close of the circus had to be dispersed with, and the management refunded the money to all those who had purchased concert tickets.

George Peck has one of the nicest, clearest sideshows on the road, and is getting all kinds of money with it.

Doc. Colvin's Troubles.

There was a wild scene and almost a panic on the German steamer Irisa, on board of which a consignment of camels for the Zoo has just arrived. Among the other animals, which are from the Hagenbecks in Hamburg, Germany, was a large panther, which escaped from its cage, which was located between decks forward of the bridge. Before the steamer landed the panther got out of its cage in some way, and efforts to catch it proved fruitless. The passengers became frightened, and it became necessary for the captain to shoot and kill the animal. In addition to the camels for the Cincinnati Zoo there were ten elephants, six Royal Bengal tigers, three ostriches, 100 monkeys. The consignment of camels includes five fine specimens. They will reach the Zoo Monday. —Cincinnati Times-Star.

Turned them Away.

Buckskin Bill's Wild West turned 2,000 people away at the night show at Memphis, Tenn., Wednesday, May 10. They got roasting in the papers for not carrying more seating capacity, although they had up fifty-six lengths of seats. The crowds were so dense that no one could see the show to advantage, hence the newspaper criticisms. Whitey Larkin now has the stock (146 heads), and Jack Pfeifferberger has the canvas, and the show is now handled with ease and certainty. George Fisher is the twenty-four-hour man.

J. A. Robinson Dead.

James A. Robinson, formerly a contracting agent for circuses, died at Philadelphia May 6. For several years he was in the employ of John O'Brien, afterward enlisting under the banner of the late Adam Forepaugh, with whom he remained as long as he cared to travel, having inherited a considerable fortune. In 1891 he was made the local manager of John A. Forepaugh's Temple Theater, Baltimore, and in 1892 was connected with the Forepaugh Theater, Philadelphia.

Dan S. Vernon is handling Cowslip Farm in the capacity of business manager. It is a point on the order of "Way Down East."

Spaul's Railroad Show opened at Port Jervis, N. Y., May 14 for one week to good business. Mr. Gordon Wrighter is manager.

Albert L. Blodgett, formerly in advance of W. H. Harris' Nickel Plate Shows, is now the manager of the New Haven Bill Posting Company.

Charles H. Day met the man who put him in the circus business at the Ringlings at New Haven, Conn. If Charles H. is the old circus man, "for sake's alive how old is Mike Coyle?"

Dr. John E. Healy, who once conducted a circus at the Aquarium, New York City, is largely interested in real estate at New Haven, Conn. His former partner, Charles Bigelow, is president of the Kikapoo Indian Medicine Company.

The final hearing in the case of the Donaldson Lithographing Company against J. H. La Pearl occurred at Canandaigua, N. Y., May 9. Judgment was rendered in favor of the Donaldsons. La Pearl did not appear, and his attorney threw up the case.

The Frank C. Bostock Midway Carnival Company showed at the National Ball Park, Washington, D. C., May 8, and did good business there for the remainder of the week. Harrison's New and Ancient South (under canvas) also played Washington at the same time.

The following performers are with the W. H. Harris Nickel Plate Shows: The St. Louis Family, acrobats; Emma Latee, slack wire; the Smiths, flying trapeze; Al Orton, bareback; the Conklins, limber-limb acrobats; Parney Shay, clown; Pete Jenkins and Claude Orton.

The Forepaugh-Sells Show goes 100 per cent better under canvas than it did in the garden, despite the fact that there are—well, several less people in the dressing room. The difference is not only noticeable, but is truly remarkable. The performance as now given is full of ginger, dash and go, and the entertainment pleasing in every detail.

The Tennessee bill posters are beginning to realize that the heavy circus tax in their State means a loss in dollars and cents to them. There is some talk of legislation to reduce the tax. It is about time that the people of other States, also, began to see the tax question in its proper light, not only the bill posters, but citizens in many other tranches of business as well.

Thomas H. Davis, the theatrical manager, was at one time a circus agent after the manner of his brothers, "Jumbo" and Charley. Tom is now also the publisher of a literary home journal, and the only one in the country giving a bottle of whisky with every fifty-cent subscription, and, as an offset to the booze premium, will shortly present John Kermel as a lecturer on temperance. Mr. Davis is versatile as well as enterprising.

In Advance of a Circus.

Advertising contributes so importantly to the success of a circus that, from the general advance agent and special press representative to the meanest bill poster, the work actually employs more men than there are performers in the "arena" when the "show" is "on the road," says the "New York Evening Post." One of the largest traveling circuses now in this country spends more than $200,000 in a season of 200 days, and employs 80 men for a much longer time for nothing but to announce its coming and boom its attractions. In this circus's roster of performers in the rings for last season there were 75 names. The number of "people" with the "show," of course, was very much larger. From the traveling proprietor to the cook, and including the canvassmen, the sleeping-car quarters, the sideshow "orators," the blacksmiths, and the smallest groom, who does what he is told and sleeps when and where he can, there were 627 employees. Nevertheless, the proportion of advertising agents is surprisingly large.

There are three kinds of advertising—newspaper, bill board and "freak." The bill board announcement of the coming of the circus is the first. To advertise the circus referred to, no less than 2,400,000 lithograph "sheets" were posted on bill boards and dead walls, and hung in shop windows, through a season of 215 days—an average of 1,200 a day. The lithograph bill of a circus in a year is one of the largest items of expense the proprietors are put to. It cost the proprietors of one circus more than $100,000 to "paper" the "show" for appearance in 164 cities and towns. This sum was the cost of printing alone, the whole cost of transportation, posting and distribution was considerably more. For that season, according to the proprietor himself, there were ordered from the printers about 1,200,000 sheets of two "illustrated pamphlets," and 1,200 "folders."

The circus has four advertising cars, to distribute this "paper" and keep it "moving" and "fresh." Three of them go over the same route at intervals of one week to the very day; the fourth is an "emergency" car, to meet unexpected circumstances. The first advance car leaves the winter quarters, fully stocked with bills, three or four weeks ahead of the show. It has a gorgous exterior, and is always stalled in a conspicuous place in the railroad yard. If the chief agent knows his business, it carries a general advance agent to oversee the work, a contracting press agent to arrange for advertising space in the newspapers, and a "boss" bill poster and his "gang." All this work is inspected by the second advance car, which arrives a week later.

It is the duty of the men on his car to "cover" the "excursion" routes—that is to say, the towns within a radius of fifty miles not "covered" by the general advance agent in the first car. They not only put up the paper, but interest the newspapers and arrange for and advertise the excursions to the show town on the show day. The third car arrives in the week following to freshen the "paper" which the other two have posted.

The emergency car is a very important factor in the advertising. It is sent any distance at any time where it may appear to the managers that a wedge should be driven in. If, for instance, word of the intention of an opposition circus to appear at any point on the route comes to the proprietor, the emergency car is immediately dispatched to that point. They are sometimes sent over queer routes, now attached to a cattle train, and again to a through express.

"The first work in advance of a circus, however," said Frank O. Miller, an advance agent, "is done when the route is being laid out, months before the start is made from winter quarters. Men are sent out to discover the business conditions in the territory through which it is planned to take the show. Where the crops are poor, or where any exceptional circumstances have arisen to keep the people poor, the show never goes. This first advance work is very important, and it takes an intelligent, careful man to do it. The last advertising is done on the morning when the show enters the town, by three or four press agents, whose duty it is to look after the newspaper men, see to the distribution of the final announcements, and provide notices of the afternoon show in the evening papers. The men in this work must be keen, companionable fellows; their duty is not so easy as it would appear, and they are busy the whole day long."

The "fake" advertising, by which is meant a sensational plan to attract attention to the circus, is done whenever the opportunity arises. The agent who can conceive the schemes is a valuable man and draws a good salary. The "elephant's bath" is a favorite device. It is well advertised that the elephants are to be taken to the river at a certain hour, and as surely as the hour comes the townspeople crowd the banks. One circus nearly lost a huge beast at Topeka, Kan., last year; the animal got in soft sand, and was nearly drowned—all of which was excellent advertising, in that it gave the local reporters something to write about.

"The old-fashioned advance agent is disappearing," said James De Wolf, another agent. "The new men are men of business from the ground up, who can make a good contract quickly and interest a man of good manners. Most of the work is done with newspaper editors and reporters, who can see through an affection of good fellowship as quickly as most men. The proprietor of the circus I am with, though he is liberal, frowns on 'expenses' for drink, and it is simply for the reason that that way of doing business is not the best way. Time was, no doubt, when the circus man could buy a drink and get a paragraph. It can't be done now, however."

Will Have A Celebration.

WORTHINGTON, Minn., May 14.—(Special)—The St. Louis Fair Association has postponed until next Thursday, May 17, the opening of this season's race meet. The opening was to have been to-day, but the big strike at east prevented. The Inaugural will be run Thursday, however, strike or no strike, and the Mound City Stake will be decided on Friday, and Debatoante on Saturday.

Postponed.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 11.—(Special)—The St. Louis Fair Association has postponed until next Thursday, May 17, the opening of this season's race meet. The opening was to have been to-day, but the big strike at east prevented. The Inaugural will be run Thursday, however, strike or no strike, and the Mound City Stake will be decided on Friday, and Debatoante on Saturday.

Lake Park Springs.

Lake Park Springs, the park at Nevada, Mo., is one of the finest pleasure resorts of the Middle West. It is situated one mile from the city, and an electric car line, just completed, makes easy access to the park. Lake Park Springs contains 120 acres of land, has four fine medicinal springs and a large auditorium, for which attractions will be wanted. Harry C. Moore is proprietor.

Circleville, O., to Celebrate.

At a special meeting of the Circleville Athletic Club held recently, it was decided that a large Fourth of July celebration be given this year. Whether the amusement will be in the nature of a street fair and carnival, horse races or a country circus to be held at the fair grounds has not yet been arranged, but every effort will be made to surpass if possible the fete of last year, which was no doubt one of the grandest fourths in the history of Circleville. The plans are in the hands of the following competent committee, who will have charge of all the arrangements: Dr. A. W. Holman, chairman; Irvin F. Snyder, Dr. W. G. Corner, George R. Haswell and Howard Sweetman.

Agricultural Department's Work.

The exhibit at the Paris Exposition, which is expected to prove of the greatest commercial value to the United States, is that prepared under the special direction of the Agricultural Department. The Paris Exposition has been taken advantage of by the agriculturists of this country to make a great bid for European trade. Everything possible has been done to show the excellence of American cereals and agricultural products. The Paris Exposition will present a splendid opportunity to make all Europe acquainted with this country as a grain and fruit producer. The Agricultural Department has gone into the present exhibition with the sole idea of helping the farming and export interests, and it is believed as a result a large demand will be created for our goods abroad.

Peru in Line.

The committee having in charge the arrangements for a grand Fourth of July celebration in Peru, Ind., this year is putting forth every effort to make the event the most successful held here in a number of years. Features of the celebration will be military drills and sham battles, and already favorable letters have been received from captains of National Guards in neighboring cities. Much depends on the amount of funds that can be secured. John G. Krieg is chairman of the committee, and Carl Kurz is secretary. MIDWAY AT HALLAS.

The B. P. O. Elks of Dallas, Tex., will give a big Midway carnival May 28. It will be a very elaborate affair, and the tree attractions will be of the best. Hassen Ben Ali will be in charge.

West Virginia Fair.

To the Editor of "The Billboard."—The West Virginia State Fair, to be held this year during the week of September 10, will be a departure from the former ones, inasmuch as new features and new ideas will be used as inducements to attract the country brethren and the city chaps within the gates. Of course, the now-failing rural exhibits which have always marked so successfully the fairs in this city, will be kept up to the same high standard, and if an increased premium list can do it, this particular end of the show will be larger and better than ever. Larger purses will have the desired effect of making the track performances exciting and interesting.

One of the new things to be introduced will be the night sessions, at which a special program will be rendered in racing and general amusements. For these Secretary George Hook is casting his weather eye over the available material, and promises the best outdoor amusements money can buy when the time comes. He has also arranged to give the Midway features increased space this year, and the night sessions will make them mighty popular. The grounds and buildings will be made as light as hundreds of electric arc lights can make them. The association will put in a fully equipped electric plant for use during this and future fairs. The merchants of Wheeling have decided to hold another "Merchants' Day" this year, that of last season having proven such a success. Instead of one, there will be two days of entertainment, and the most elaborate fireworks display ever seen in the city is contemplated. The time has been set for September 12 and 13 during fair week.

Both the Wheeling (W. Va.) and Mozart Parks opened for the season Sunday, April 29. Ideal weather caused the attendance at both resorts to be very large. Secretary Conrad Hirsh, of Mozart Park, and W. C. Landau, Jr., of Mozart Park, both promise a good line of attractions during the heated term.

Calumet (Mich.) citizens are planning for a big time at the U. P. Firemen's tournament. The time set for the meet is August 8, 9 and 10. The committee decided to have

The picnic will be made a big event, and invitations to all the Knights of Pythias lodges in the vicinity of Altoona have been sent. Competitive drills, to be participated in by uniform rank lodges, will be part of the attraction, and a grand display of fireworks at night will be given by the street railway company.

M. J. Morley, contracting agent for the Oriental Midway Carnival Company, has closed contracts with the Commercial Club of Topeka, Kan., to place their ten shows at Topeka's Street Fair and Carnival. Mr. Morley has excelled the famous jumbo of Ringling Bros.' Circus by jumping his Midway company from Savannah, Ga., to Topeka, Kan., for the same reasons. He found Midway companies in the South thicker than watermelons in Georgia. By this move he is the first in the field and the best territory in the country for street fairs, Kansas, Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin.
