WEDNESDAY EVENING, OCT. 2, 1833.

We have received this morning two additional mails—furnishing New-York dates to the 26th, Boston to the 28th, Baltimore and Washington to the 29th inst. There had been two arrivals from Europe—in London papers to the 11th August have been received, and at New-York, Portsmouth papers to the 13th. Their contents are of no importance, and the reason we refer to them at all, is merely to satisfy the anxiety of our readers who have been so long deprived of European intelligence.

THREE DAYS LATER FROM ENGLAND.

London papers to the 11th of August were received at Boston on Friday, by the packet ship Tuscarora, but they contain hardly a word of news worth extracting.

The French papers received on the 10th in London, with the exception of some details of the fêtes in Switzerland, contain little of a nature to excite interest out of Paris.

It appears very possible that the cause of the affairs of Portugal may speedily be followed by some not unimportant changes in Spain.

The British and French cabinets have formally signified to the Representatives of Don Pedro, their wish that he should withdraw all pretensions to the Regency of Portugal. One ground of this proposition is that the Ex-Empress is personally obnoxious to certain sovereigns, whose consent is required to the final arrangement of the Portuguese question. It is not thought however, that Don Pedro will relinquish the Regency.

LONDON, Aug. 9.

The Globe says, that advices received this morning from Brazil, states that the friends of Don Pedro are acting very strenuously to form a strong party in favor of his return to that country and restoration to power. The consummation of such an intention might be attended with no inconsiderable embarrassment.

Preparations were making at Paris for the departure of Donna Maria for Portugal. It was not known certainly where Miguel was, or where he would take refuge. The purpose we have of him is, that during the battle before Oporto, and the attack on Lisbon, he went to Mafra on a visit from Lisbon to Oporto, with his ministers and two priests, and that on receiving news of the complete ruin of his party, he set out for Colombia with intention to join the Spanish Prince Don Carlos, and sail with the vessel sent by the Spanish government to convey that Prince to Italy.

In the House of Commons on the 7th August, Mr. Lyall read a petition from merchants and brokers of London, complaining of the evils resulting from the transmission of patent-Perryan Pens.

No decisive ... modifications in the ... prepared you to ... taken on the ... Portugal. It is ... representations of M. de ... and Miguel, in conformity with the views of M. de Zea, and M. ... the Kings Secretary ... orders were given last ... the army of ... on the frontiers of Portugal ... formed.

An opportunity was thus ... Mr. de Zea ... draw from the Council ... which could not have failed to propose his return in a triumphant manner to the head of the cabinet. But ... after having suffered too much time to elapse ... he could make up his mind to speak with firmness ... courage to act in conformity with the language. ... resolved to remain in the cabinet, and Mr. de Zea was ... enough that he should do so, because he would be a less dangerous enemy in office than out of it. The effect of this will probably be that the ministerial changes which the affairs of Portugal may render inevitable, Mr. d'Ofalia instead of superceding Mr. de Zea, in the premiership will have to go out with the latter.

The Queen appears to have regained the ascendancy over the mind of the King. His Majesty was cast a-fresh again indisposed. He had a violent pain in his ... which gave some uneasiness to the Queen, who was constantly by his bed, was again able to exercise her former influence.—Reports have, in consequence, been circulated of ... changes in the administration. It was said that the Duke de San Fernando would be made Prime Minister, and that the department of Foreign Affairs would be joined to the other offices attributed. The Duke de Florin Blanca ... to have the Home Department, and General Amarillo that of the War. As it was thought that the King's illness would be of sufficient duration to make it necessary or more that the Queen should act as Regent, it was proposed that the exercise of the Regency by her, however short, should be turned to the advantage of the liberal interest, at least in a moderate way. Some concessions were to be made to the liberal party, and Donna Maria was to be acknowledged as the legitimate Sovereign of Portugal.

The packet ship Sovereign at New York, brings Portsmouth (Eng.) paper of the 12th August, from which the Journal of Commerce makes the following extracts:

Among the passengers of the Sovereign, is ... man, Mr. Hopkins, American Charge de Affaires at Stockholm, and family.

Madrid, July 27.

We are assured that Mr. Zea Bermudez had recently, by every means, in order to persuade the king to interfere in favor of Miguel, declared him, among other things, that he might rely on the approbation, and even support of Russia and the Holy Alliance. To this the monarch is said to have replied:—"How little you know of the present situation of Portugal. That country is circumscribed by Spain, with all the ... of its revolutions. France and England, ... the greatest interest in the ... of Europe, carefully watch all ... the success of their ... Those ... in their ... quarrel ... to the ... and ... have ... their ... Portugal ... Spain ... their ... Russia ... Austria ... Prussia ... Holy Alliance
