U.S. WORLD PLANES ARE AT ATTU ISLAND AND DOISY OF FRANCE IS AT BANGKOK

Lieut. Smith and Companions Had Fair Weather Trip From Atka Island to Attu Island, Aleutians; French Aviator Steadily Moving Toward His Goal at Tokio; No Trace of Major Martin and Harvey

Cordova, Alaska, May 10.—The three United States army aviators who are attempting to encircle the globe landed safely at Attu Island at 9 o'clock last night, Pacific Coast time, after a journey of 530 miles from Atka Island, in the Aleutian Islands, according to a wireless message to-day.

The expedition, under the command of Lieut. Lowell H. Smith, piloting the air cruiser Chicago, made the trip in ten hours and fifteen minutes, having left Atka Island at 10.10 a.m. yesterday. The flight was made through fair weather, with some head winds encountered.

CROWDS CHEER PIONEERS AS THEY ARE DRIVEN TO SEE MARCH OF PROGRESS

Ninety-four Year Old Veteran in Leading Car of Procession to Points of Historical Interest; Camera and Moving Picture Men at Government House Reception

Cheered by hundreds of people who crowded the streets and spaces around the Parliament Buildings, the four hundred or more pioneers gathered in Victoria for the memorable reunion of the hardy old men and women who blazed the trail in British Columbia were driven around the city and its environs to-day. Three pioneers whose combined ages total over 250 years were given pride of place at the head of the procession in the Government car driven by the Provincial Secretary, the Hon. Dr. J. D. MacLean, hon. president of the B.C. Historical Association, which organization with the Native Sons and Daughters of British Columbia, in convention here, is responsible for the opportunity which the pioneers are so keenly enjoying.

NINETY-FOUR YEARS OLD
Riding with Dr. MacLean was the venerable Mike Finnerty, ninety-four years of age, or as Finnerty would say, "I'm ninety-four years young. Justifiably proud of his position in the leading car, the old veteran plainly enjoyed the cordial reception accorded the party. Clean shaven, erect and smiling Finnerty is a distinguished and dignified specimen of old age which follows a clean healthy life and commands youth's greatest tribute to those who have prepared the way in this country for them.

Also in the car was Mrs. P. T. Johnston, eighty-one years of age, who came around the Horn in 1851, Victoria, who she arrived, consisted of the Hudson Bay log fort and a few log houses outside of it.

In the same car was James R. Anderson another veteran of eighty-three years of age. Mr. Anderson came to Victoria when he was nine years of age when his father Alexander C. Anderson was placed in charge of the Post, and is believed to have a longer residence in Victoria than any other living man.

A FLEET OF CARS

Rotary, Kiwanis and Gyro Club members and other citizens rounded up a fleet of cars which were placed at the disposal of the pioneer guests and the Native Sons and Daughters and members of the B. C. Historical Association also joined in the procession.

FINANCIAL POSITION OF CITY TO REACH CRISIS WHEN RATE IS STRUCK

The city will be forced to strike a mill rate of about 44.6 on Monday, an advance of five mills, unless Government assistance is forthcoming. This statement was made by Alderman Sargent, chairman of the civic finance committee, to The Times this morning when stating that no indication of an added contribution to the cost of the Johnson Street bridge or of a grant in lieu of taxation exemption had yet been forthcoming from the provincial authorities.

"The public does not realize how serious it will be for the city, when a refunding issue has to be floated in July, if financial houses should learn that the tax rate when its tax paying capacity was risen five mills in 1924.

LIBERAL GOVERNMENT APPEALS TO B.C. ELECTORS FOR SECOND TIME; LEGISLATURE IS DISSOLVED TO-DAY

Premier Oliver, Announcing Election Date, Expresses Absolute Confidence Over Outcome of Poll; Expects Larger Majority in Next Legislature; Nominations to Be Made on May 30; Government's Campaign Manifesto to Be Issued Next Week; Premier Plans Mainland Tour

Friday, June 20, was fixed by the Government to-day as the date of the general provincial election. Nominations will be made Friday, May 30.

Announcement of this date by Premier Oliver this afternoon followed the formal dissolution of the Legislature by the Administrator, Chief Justice Macdonald.

The Premier's announcement followed a busy morning, during which newspaper correspondents waited for definite news of dissolution. Early in the morning Mr. Oliver attempted to get into touch with the Administrator to arrange an interview, but it was almost noon before he met Chief Justice Macdonald in the Parliament Buildings. The Administrator then formally dissolved the House. The Premier refused to talk after his interview with the Administrator and immediately called his Cabinet into conference at noon.

At 12.45 p.m. Mr. Oliver telephoned to the press gallery to make the bare announcement that the election would be held on June 20 and nominations made May 30. He added that he would reserve any further statement until the beginning of the week.

The Premier will work over the week-end on his manifesto to the electors and issue it next week. He plans to preserve the interior on a speaking tour early in the week. His plans, however, have not been completed yet.

Following the announcement of the election date the Premier gave out a statement in which he expressed absolute confidence of the outcome of the poll.

"Information which has reached us from all parts of the country," he said, "indicates but one result—that the Government will receive a larger majority than it enjoys at present. We are absolutely confident of this result."

The Liberal Government, which is about to place its fate in the hands of the people for the second time, was elected eight years ago—on September 14, 1916, under the leadership of (Concluded on page 2.)

138 Socialists Locked in Big Cage At Trial in Italy

Seven hundred and sixty witnesses will be called at the trial, which is expected to last three months.

POINCARÉ'S FOLLOWERS EXPECT TO HAVE MAJORITY IN FRENCH CHAMBER AFTER VOTE TO-DAY

Paris, May 10 (Canadian Press Cable)—Victory at the polls to-morrow is being predicted to-day by Premier Poincaré and his supporters and it is believed the chances of the re-election of the National bloc with Poincaré at its head are better now on the eve of the voting than at any previous time during the present contest. The Agricultural bloc is expected to swing Premier Poincaré back into power. France has 4,500,000 landowners, most of them peasants, among whom are about one-third of the national electorate. The farmers have been making more money in the last two years than ever before, and it is difficult to find in the rural districts any peasant or proprietor who is not in favor of keeping Poincaré in power.

DAUDET'S SUCCESS

Paris, May 10.—A notable feature of the French election campaign is the unexpected success of the royalist leader, Leon Daudet, in the Third District of Paris. His meetings throughout the week have been crowded. Little fear is entertained, however, that the royalties will make such a showing in the election as to render them dangerous, but it is now generally conceded Daudet will be re-elected.

WAS WELL-KNOWN AS LUMBERMAN
Thos. H. Van Norman Died at Duncan This Morning
Duncan, May 10.—Thomas Henry Van Norman, one of the best known lumbermen on Vancouver Island, and a resident of the Duncan district for the past nineteen years, passed away at his residence, Eagle Heights, early this morning. Although he had been in ill-health for a short time, the end was not expected, and came as a great shock to his family and to a host of friends.
The late Mr. Van Norman was born in Ontario sixty-six years ago, and is survived by his widow, one son and three daughters, Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. McEay and Mrs. Islay Muter of Duncan. Funeral services will be conducted at the Masonic Hall, Duncan, on Monday at 1:30, after which services will be held at the Presbyterian Church. Interment will be made in Somenos Cemetery.
The death occurred this morning at the Provincial Jubilee Hospital of Clifford Neil at Sooke. He was born at Minnesota thirty-one years ago and had resided at Sooke for the past sixteen years. He is survived by his parents, three brothers and seven sisters. The funeral will be held from the B.C. Funeral Chapel on Tuesday at 2 p.m. Interment will be made at Colwood Cemetery.
Funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Jennie McCulloch were held this morning at 10:30 at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Longstaff, Highland Drive, Rev. Dr. Clay officiated and among the friends present were the members of the ladies' committee of the Protestant Orphan's Home. Interment was made in Ross Bay Cemetery. Major Longstaff, Messrs. A. E. Haynes, E. E. Blackwood and H. D. Patterson acting as pallbearers.
Services for the late Thomas Lindsay was held yesterday morning at 11 o'clock in the chapel of the B.C. Funeral Company by the Rev. Dr. Clay. Many friends attended, and the casket was covered with flowers. The hymns sung

PENSION REPORTS
PLEASE VETERANS
Encouraged in Fight For Permanent Fixed Scale
The news received from Ottawa yesterday regarding the statements made by Hon. Dr. Beland, the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen and Robert Forke at the Amputations Association convention banquet, that they would give their support to the claim of the pensioners for a permanently fixed pension, was received with great satisfaction by local veterans in receipt of pensions. While these statements were made at the Amputations Association Convention it should be clearly understood that they affect all classes of pensioners, including widows and dependents.
The local branch of the Amputations Association, the Tuberculous Association, had been endeavoring to make the pensioner and the public fully understand the situation in regard to the present method of awarding pensions and it was intended to call a mass meeting of all pensioners to discuss the situation and obtain the public support in a protest to the Government.
In view of the news now received it is thought unnecessary to hold this meeting, but there may be need for further action when pension matters are brought down in the House at Ottawa.

LIBERAL GOVERNMENT

The late H. C. Brewster, on Mr. Brewster's death in the following year Mr. Tansley became leader of the Government and his administration was endorsed at the polls on December 1, 1923.

LIBERAL GOVERNMENT
APPEALS TO ELECTORS
The Government goes to the country to-day with a record of success. A careful analysis of the situation indicates that the Liberals will cut into Conservative territory seriously in the interior and hold their strength on the coast. The Government will have twenty-eight or thirty supporters in the next House as against the twenty-four Liberals in the present House.

LEADERS SCATTER
The next two weeks will see leaders of all parties scattered all over the Province. Members of the Government are expected to start almost at once for their constituencies to conduct their own campaigns, while some of them, like the Premier, will cover large portions of the Province in the course of speaking tours. W. J. Bowser, leader of the Conservative Party, is already in the interior hurrying his party for the election. The early election date announced by the Premier to-day is not satisfactory to him as his preparations are far from complete. It is an open secret that he would have preferred an election in the middle of Summer or, better still, in the Fall.

PARTIES READY
Announcement of dissolution finds both the Liberal and Conservative parties well ready for the fray. Within the next two weeks candidates of the two parties will be in the field in every constituency of British Columbia, and in many districts rival standard bearers already are carrying on their campaigns. The Provincial Party, which is not expected to be an important factor in the election, and which was practically crushed by the Pacific Great Eastern Railway report, is far behind the other two parties in its preparations. While it is making frantic efforts to offset the effect of Mr. Justice's verdict on its P.G.E.R. charges, it has nominated comparatively few candidates. Heads of the party assert, however, that it will nominate candidates in all ridings.

THE DEATH TOOK PLACE THIS MORNING at the Royal Jubilee Hospital of John James Duckworth, age sixty-five years. He was born in England and had been a resident of this city for the past twelve years, lately residing at 2907 Scott Street. The late Mr. Duckworth is survived by four daughters and one son. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.
The funeral of the late Thomas Henry Noek, who passed away last Wednesday, took place yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, from the Sands Funeral Chapel. The services, which was conducted by the Rev. Robert Connell, was largely attended, and the hymn sung was "Abide With Me." The pallbearers were Messrs. R. A. C. Dewar, T. Miller, A. W. Howman, W. Peddie, L. Palmer and E. W. Maynard, all members of the B.C. Electric Division No. 189. The remains were laid to rest in the Royal Oak Burial Park.

The assassin first shot the Chinese statesman, who was always a popular figure, generous and of a friendly disposition. He leaves behind him a record unblemished and the reputation gained through former work well and thoroughly accomplished.

McNeill, second commander of the historic steamer Beaver, and one of the chief factors of the Hudson's Bay Company here; Cadboro Bay, named after the Cadboro, the first vessel to enter the bay and also to ascend the Fraser River, and which was eventually wrecked at Port Angeles in 1862; Landsdowns Road to the Gorge, Craigflower House, open farm, Parson's Bridge, Colwood Farm, Langford, where the old farm house is still standing; Admirals Road, and the Skinner Farm opposite the naval hospital at Esquimalt.
The return to the city was made over the old Esquimalt Road, and a visit made to the Wharf Street neighborhood, where Sir James Douglas posted the official notices taking possession of land for the fort on an oak tree at the foot of Fort Street.

MOVING PICTURES
This afternoon the pioneers were taken to Government House where a reception was held between the hours of 3 and 6 o'clock. Mr. Justice Macdonald and Mrs. Macdonald received the guests. Batteries of cameras in the hands of both professional and amateur photographers have followed the guests wherever they have been and this afternoon moving picture operators were busy in the grounds of Government House and at the Parliament Buildings taking group pictures and feature pictures of some of the oldest of those attending the reunion.
This evening an informal reception will be held at the Imperial Library and Archives from 7:30 to 10 o'clock where visitors will be given an opportunity of viewing the many interesting exhibits connected with the early days in British Columbia, which are housed in this building. Old-fashioned bouquets of flowers will be distributed among the pioneers attending the gathering.

FRENCH ELECTION
The surprise of the morning was a final appeal by the Radical Party to its followers to vote for Socialists to-morrow in districts where the Radicals appear to have the best chance of winning and where a coalition ticket has not been formed. This is regarded as most significant as the Radical Party is the backbone of the coalition of the Left formed by the Radicals and Socialists to defeat the Government and has probably three times as many votes as the Socialists.
The Radicals make their appeal on the grounds that it is their conviction that the Republican regime would be imperilled by the re-election of the present Government majority. The examples of Mussolini in Italy and General de Rivera in Spain are cited as cases showing the danger in giving too much confidence to one man and Poincare is accused of aspiring to such a dictatorship.

SOUTH AFRICANS ARE

Followers of Smuts Predict They Will Have Majority in New House
Leaders of Nationalist-Labor Group Say They Expect to be in Control
Pretoria, South Africa, May 10 (Canadian Press Cable via Reuters)—The political campaign in South Africa which will end June 17, when the electors will decide at the polls whether the Government of General Jan Christian Smuts is to be returned or the Nationalist-Labor combination is to be put into power, is warming up very noticeably.
The feature of all the Nationalist speeches is the strong bid that is being made for the votes of the English-speaking electors. The Nationalist leader, General Hertzog, continues to repeat that the Nationalists never have been a secessionist party.
PREDICTION MADE
Following is the forecast of the Nationalist-Labor combination as to the probable results of the voting on June 17:
Nationalists 64, South African Party 47, Labor Party 19, Independents 5. Total 135.
The South African Party, on the other hand, express confidence that whatever happens at the polls, Premier Smuts's followers will constitute the largest individual party in the new Parliament.

PARTY CO-OPERATION
URGED IN BRITAIN
Austen Chamberlain Thinks Conservatives and Liberals Should Agree on Aid
N. Chamberlain Says a Conservative Government Would Support Imperial Preference
London, May 10 (Canadian Press Cable)—Austen Chamberlain, his brother Neville Chamberlain, and Lieut.-Colonel I. C. Amerly were among the speakers at the annual meeting of the Conservative Association last night in Birmingham.
Austen Chamberlain referred to the question of Conservative-Liberal co-operation in the House of Commons and said:
"May we not ask our Liberal friends to consider well and maturely whether the time has not come when it is folly for those who think alike to act in hostility?"
He did not argue, he added, with Winston Churchill, nor did he favor a new coalition, but he favored the honest co-operation as between men who thought alike. The present subservience by the bulk of the Liberal Party to the Socialists, from whom they differed, was less creditable than a coalition between Liberals and Conservatives would be, however discreditable this might be regarded by some people.
Neville Chamberlain, former Chancellor of the Exchequer, referred to the question of Imperial preference and said that if the Conservative Party were returned to power again the Conservative Government would carry out the agreement made between former Prime Minister Baldwin and representatives of the Dominions at the Imperial Economic Conference.

Mr. Clearhise has been a druggist for the past seventeen years, owning a store in Victoria West for ten years of this time, and for the remainder of the period associated with the Owl Drug Company here. He announced this morning that the business policy of the firm of Dean & Hiscocks will be everything that it has been for the past many years, and in addition, to this will specialize in prescription drug work.
Business conditions are steadily improving, so far as I can see," stated Mr. Clearhise, "and I believe that 1924 and 1925 will be the biggest years that we have had for some time past. The tourist trade gives a good deal of business to the druggists during the summer months, for they are particularly anxious at all times to purchase British-made goods, especially brushes and combs and articles of this nature. The reputation established by British drug manufacturers also attracts the American tourist especially, and we have a good sale in this department."
The premises of Dean & Hiscocks at the corner of Yates and Broad Streets will not be altered in any way, save that a new up-to-date line of goods is being placed in stock.

U.S. EXCLUSION BILL
DATED JULY 1 NEXT
House and Senate Conferees Agree Law Barring Japanese to be in Force Then
Decision Follows House's Refusal to Accept Coolidge's Plan For Delay
Washington, May 10.—The Japanese exclusion provision in the immigration bill will become effective July 1, 1924, under a new agreement reached to-day by House and Senate conferees.
The compromise reached to-day is substantially that reported as the first agreement of the conference, which was reconsidered in deference to the wishes of President Coolidge. New action by the conference was made necessary when the House yesterday refused to approve March 1, 1925, as the effective date.
As it now stands, the exclusion provision contains no reference to the negotiation for abrogation of the "Gentlemen's Agreement" and the President has told the conferees that in any case no time for such negotiation would be left if exclusion is to become effective next July 1.

AMAZING RESULTS IN GOOD HEALTH FROM THE FRUIT TREATMENT

Intensified Fruit Juices in the Form of "Fruit-a-tives" Promptly Relieves Many Diseases

You have always known that Fruit is healthful. Doctors say "eat more fruit." Experts on food and diet urge the eating of fruit. But—fresh fruit is expensive—and there is only a small quantity of the medicinal or healing principle in fruit.

Now, a 50c box of "Fruit-a-tives" contains all the medicinal principle of dozens of oranges and apples and pounds of figs and prunes.

By the wonderful discovery of a well known physician, it is possible to obtain the medicinal properties of the fresh juices of apples, oranges, figs and prunes concentrated and intensified in a small tablet, with tonics added.

This is "Fruit-a-tives"—the Fruit Treatment—the quick, pleasant, inexpensive way to make you well and keep you well.

Seems Almost a Miracle

Just read this letter from Mrs. Clara Sloat, Perth Junction, N.B.

"For many years I was a great sufferer from Indigestion, Constipation and Chronic Rheumatism. My stomach was weak and gave me constant distress, while the Rheumatism in my joints made me almost a cripple. Physicians and their medicines did me no good. Finally, I was induced to try "Fruit-a-tives" and at once this wonderful fruit medicine seemed to help me. Soon the Constipation and Indigestion were relieved and the Rheumatism began to go away and, in a few months, entirely disappeared."

Thanks To "Fruit-a-tives," Am Once More Well

Well Known Resident of Portland, Maine

Mr. Otis M. Bryant, of 49 Anderson Street, is most enthusiastic about this famous fruit medicine. He writes "I was troubled with Constipation ever since I can remember; as a result, I have suffered from distressing headaches and pain in my left side. I tried many and various remedies for the Headaches and Constipation, without receiving relief. About four months ago, I began the use of "Fruit-a-tives." Since then, I have been free of Headaches, bowels regular, no pain in my side. After the use of several boxes of "Fruit-a-tives," I feel justified in pronouncing them a remedy of true and exceptional merit."

Mrs. Honora Valiquette, 1182 Notre Dame St. West, Montreal, is deeply grateful to this famous fruit medicine. She says, "I wish I could tell every sufferer in the world what "Fruit-a-tives" have done for me. For three years, I was much troubled by Bad Headaches, Nervous Dyspepsia and Liver Trouble. Then I commenced taking "Fruit-a-tives." Very soon my condition improved, and now, thanks to these wonderful tablets, I am once more entirely well."

Take "Fruit-a-tives" and get well. 50c and 50c a box, at all dealers or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

C. H. UNVERZAGT TO BE TAKEN EAST FROM SEATTLE FOR TRIAL

Seattle, May 10.—It was out of the frying pan into the fire yesterday for Charles H. Unverzagt, whose fight against extradition to New York, where he is under indictment for fraudulent use of the mails, has been protracted.

Unverzagt was haled into Federal Court yesterday afternoon. First, Judge Jeremiah Neterer signed an order, previously given from the bench, denying Unverzagt's petition for a writ of habeas corpus, and, through his attorneys, Frank Reagan of Seattle and Glenn Madson of Bellingham, then announced he had raised his $10,000 bail, which he posted. His attorneys gave notice of their appeal from Judge Neterer's decision.

Unverzagt's friends, who had rallied to his defence since his arrest, gathered to congratulate the defendant on his temporary freedom gained by posting bail. Deputy United States Marshal A. E. Smith re-arrested Unverzagt in the courtroom on a warrant based on a second indictment received from Buffalo, N.Y. This bill, longer than the first, contains substantially the same allegations. The defendant was taken before United States Commissioner A. C. Bowman, who held him on $10,000 bail on this complaint.

Unverzagt's departure from Seattle for Buffalo under guard to-day is expected.

106 Were Killed In a Disturbance In Mesopotamia

London, May 10.—One hundred townspeople and six native soldiers were killed in a serious disturbance at Kirkuk, Mesopotamia, May 4, according to official advices received by the Colonial Office. The disturbance followed an altercation between the soldiers of the native levy and shopkeepers of the city.

BOOTLEGGERS' UNION APPEALS TO CONGRESS

Opposes Move to Legalize Sale of Beer in United States

Washington, May 10.—Word reached Congress yesterday that the Bootleggers' Union, meeting in solemn convention May 1 in New York, unanimously adopted a resolution protesting against modification of the Volstead Act to legalize 2.75 per cent beer.

A petition forwarded to Representative Griffin, Democrat, New York, said delegates from locals along the Atlantic coast attended the meeting and were convinced that "various ill-advised and misguided informers have initiated a vicious propaganda to break down the drastic and wholesome provisions of the Volstead Act."

Declaring that the object of bills to legalize beer have the "avowed object of encouraging the consumption of the so-called lighter drinks to the detriment of whisky and other alcoholic beverages," the petition said that enactment of such legislation would "undermine and perhaps utterly destroy the important industry which this union with its affiliated locals has painstakingly built up, not to speak of the vast personal property in the pursuit of their chosen calling."

ENTITLED TO SUPPORT

It has been the settled policy of the government to encourage and protect infant industries, the petition said, adding that the bootlegging industry has shown sufficient evidence of vitality to fall within this category and consequently be entitled to the protection and support of the government.

Mr. Griffin filed the petition with the House and it was referred to the Judiciary Committee, which handles prohibition legislation.

U.S. WINTER WHEAT CROP IS ESTIMATED

Washington, May 10.—The smallest crop of winter wheat in the United States since 1917 is forecast by the Department of Agriculture. The production of winter wheat, according to May 1 conditions, is 553,012,000 bushels, or fifteen bushels an acre. That is 19,377,000 bushels less than produced last year.

The rye crop, forecast at 61,729,000 bushels, also is smaller than last year's by 1,254,000 bushels.

The winter wheat crop, less severe on acreage having been 2,624,000 acres, or 6.5 per cent, of the area sown last autumn, was the result of a drought now announced, was 39,933,000 acres. The acreage remaining May 1 to be harvested was placed at 35,998,000 acres.

Abandonment of acreage was heaviest in the South and California. California's acreage is fifty-four per cent, less than the national total. Mississippi's fifty per cent, less, Georgia forty-two per cent, less and Kentucky and Alabama more than fifty-four per cent, less.

The condition of the crop on May 1, which was 84.8 per cent, of normal, was better than a year ago, but below the ten-year average.

WHOLESALE PRICES SHOW DECREASE

Ottawa, May 10.—The index number of wholesale prices compiled by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and weighed according to the commercial importance of the 236 commodities included shows a further decline of 3.2 points, being 151.1 in April as against 154.3 in March. Twenty-four price quotations were higher, 71 lower and 141 were unchanged.

The index number of seven of the eight main groups moved downward. Consumers' goods, namely, food, beverages, tobacco, clothing, and household goods, especially, fell from 152.8 to 147.3. The drop was chiefly due to a price rise for flour, milk, butter, cheese, sugar, eggs, potatoes and coal.

Grain prices on the whole were fairly steady.

MOBILE, ALABAMA, HAD $500,000 FIRE

Best Remedy for Women of All Ages

Says Mrs. F. Blackburn of Dodd's Kidney Pills

British Columbia Lady Has Used and Recommended Dodd's Kidney Pills for 25 Years

Vancouver, B.C., May 9 (Special).—I am always telling people about Dodd's Kidney Pills. So states Mrs. F. Blackburn, who resides at 4070 Knight Street, this city.

Asked to give her reason, Mrs. Blackburn said: "I have used Dodd's Kidney Pills for twenty-five years and am now 71 years old. I think they are excellent. I always keep a box in the house. They are the best kidney remedy for women of all ages."

It is noticeable that people who have used Dodd's Kidney Pills are enthusiastic in recommending them to others. That is how Dodd's Kidney Pills have made and maintained their reputation.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are purely and simply a kidney remedy.

If you have not used them yourself, ask your neighbors about them.

Secretary of U.S. Navy Appoints Inspectors of Oil Reserves

Washington, May 10.—After a conference with the Government special oil counsel, former Senator Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts and Attorney General Stone at the Navy Department yesterday, Secretary Wilbur announced plans in furtherance of his policy of keeping in closest touch with developments regarding the naval petroleum reserves.

The Secretary said he had established in Los Angeles the office of the inspector of naval petroleum reserves in California, and had authorized the opening in Casper, Wyoming, of an office of the inspector of naval petroleum reserves in that state, Colorado and Utah.

Commander H. A. Stuart was assigned to the Casper office. Lieutenant Commander I. P. Landis to Los Angeles. Both officers have had extensive experience with naval petroleum reserve problems, and will be directly responsible to the Secretary of the Navy.

The inspectors will keep in close touch with all operations of the naval petroleum reserves. Secretary Wilbur said, "making such inspection trips for that purpose as they may deem necessary. They will, as far as possible, keep their feet with activities on lands within the naval petroleum reserves in private ownership and on lands bordering on the reserves. Oil shale reserves will be visited only when directed."

"They will at once bring to the attention of the Secretary of the Navy, and to the attention of the receivership to the attention of the receivership by the Navy Department, all matters which they consider prejudicial to the interests of the navy."

DECLARED INNOCENT BEFORE EXECUTION

Roy Leona, Hanged in Louisiana, Wrote He Tried to Save Five Companions

New York, May 10.—Thirty-six hours before he was to be hanged at Amite, La., with five companions for a murder committed three years ago, Roy Leona wrote his wife, Vera, that he was innocent of the crime, but that he had attempted to shoulder the entire blame for it, in an effort to save the men condemned to die with him.

"I knew I had not very much longer to live, as my lungs couldn't last much longer at best," he wrote his wife. "I told the police that I was alone to blame—that I had done the killing. But it did no good. They will hang the others too. I am innocent."

Mrs. Leona, who divides her time between a ten-hour day in a factory and caring for several small children in a Brooklyn tenement, received the letter shortly before her husband was hanged yesterday. Her husband, a sufferer from tuberculosis, had gone to Louisiana, seeking health.

BURIAL OF BODIES

Amite, La., May 10.—Six men whose attempt to rob a bank three years ago, resulted in the murder of a man, were to be buried at the home of the hangman's parish yesterday in the Tangipahoa Parish jail here.

The bodies of Andrea Lamantia, Joseph Giglio and Roy Leona were afterwards sent to Brooklyn, N.J.; Joseph Rini's body will be taken to Chicago by his father.

Natalie Desautels at her home in New Orleans; Joseph Bocchio, the friendless boy, who had a liking for literature and music and who was expected to be priest, will escape the potters' grave through a welfare organization which will bring his remains to New Orleans.

Three of the men were twenty-one years of age when the crime was committed. Four left widows and children. Two had served in the World War with the United States forces.

FORTY BUSINESS FAILURES REPORTED

Toronto, May 10.—Forty commercial failures were reported through-out Canada during the week-end yesterday, compared with fifty-seven during the corresponding week of 1923, according to a report of R. G. Dup & Company to-day. Five failures occurred in Manitoba, six in Saskatchewan, one in Alberta and four in British Columbia.

CARDINAL MUNDELEIN GREETED IN NEW YORK

New York, May 10.—George Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago, delayed several hours by fog and heavy weather at sea, was met off the liner Berengaria when she reached quarantine at about 8.30 o'clock last night by the small steamer Macon, which carried a large welcoming committee down the bay to meet the new primate of the Roman Catholic Church.

Ottawa, May 10.—The Government supports in its entirety the stand taken by Hon. H. S. Beland, Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, as reflected in his address to the delegates of the Amputated Army & Company to-day. Five failures occurred in Manitoba, six in Saskatchewan, one in Alberta and four in British Columbia.

Ottawa, May 10.—Notices of thirty-one bankruptcies appear in the current issue of The Canada Gazette.

FOUR STATED VIEWS ON FEDERAL BUDGET

Debate Continued in Commons; W. D. Euler Will Vote Against Proposals

Ottawa, May 10.—Speakers in the budget debate in the Commons yesterday afternoon and last evening were W. D. Euler, Liberal, North Waterloo, Ontario; Hon. H. H. Stevens, Conservative, Vancouver Centre; H. E. Spencer, Progressive, Battle River, Alberta, and B. W. Ansher, Progressive, East Lambton, Ont.

Mr. Euler congratulated the Government on the excellent showing made this year in its balanced budget. He continued, however, that he was sorry the Government had not seen fit to abolish the "nuisance tax" on commercial papers and receipts.

Party allegiance should be something apart from tariffs, Mr. Euler believed. "If my views on the tariff do not let me call myself a Liberal," he said, "my lifelong conviction of Liberalism has been incorrect."

Mr. Euler advocated a tariff board made up of representatives of all classes. They should be able to go into industries and ascertain the costs and profits of production.

Mr. Euler said the chief objection he had to this budget was that it violated principles in which he believed and which the Minister of Finance last year had recommended in his budget. If the utterances of the members of the Government had given any assurance that this was an isolated and final case of tariff reduction, it would not be serious. But the Acting Minister of Finance had given no such statement.

STEVEN'S VIEWS

Mr. Stevens said he advocated adequate protection for Canadian industry. It was of little advantage to Canada, with her wealth of natural resources, to ship the raw materials to other countries, he said. If Canada was to reap the full benefit she must export the manufactured goods to the West to carry on. Rates could not be reduced if eastern manufacturers were to be reduced from comparative prosperity to beggary.

AGAINST PROTECTION

Mr. Fansher objected to protection because it inevitably meant somebody else had to furnish protection.

The cut in the sales taxes would not prove nearly as beneficial to the Canadian people as a proportionate reduction in the tariff would have been. The reason, he said, was that the price of protected articles to the consumer increased in proportion to the protection given.

FOR AMENDMENT

Mr. Spencer announced that he proposed to support the Woodworth amendment.

Mr. Spencer said it had been urged that a higher standard of living be established in Canada. At the same time immigrants were being brought in from Central Europe and other countries where the standard of living was lower. It was his belief that the standard of living in Canada should be brought up to the level of the other countries.

Church Union Bill Hearing in Ottawa is Ended

Ottawa, May 10.—The formal hearing on the Church Union Bill by the Private Bills Committee of the House of Commons closed yesterday afternoon.

On Thursday Rev. W. G. Brown, Red Deer, Alberta, a witness against the bill, stated he had heard Rev. Dr. Gandler, Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, at a meeting of the Union Committee, say: "This is the beginning of a great national Protestant church. No government would dare resist such a church."

Just after finishing the first statement for the Unionists, Rev. W. C. Pidgeon, Toronto, handed the chairman a denial of this utterance by Rev. Dr. Gandler. "I desire to say," said Dr. Gandler, in his statement, "that no such statement was ever made by me."

At once George A. Campbell, K.C., Montreal, counsel for the opponents of the bill, stated that he had permission to file an affidavit in regard to the matter.

The permission was granted.

The hearing on church union occupied seven full days of the committee.

NON-PARTY LINES BEST LABOR PLAN, STATES GOMPERS

Montreal, May 10.—The executive council of the American Federation of Labor is in session here with Samuel Gompers, president of the association, in the chair.

"The 'hallelucination of lunatics' was the verdict of Gompers when speaking to press representatives on the view expressed by 'Reds' in Canada and the United States, that organized labor here would line up with the Third Internationale of Russia."

"The labor movement in Canada and the United States is the most potential, important and successful of any labor movement of any country in the world," Mr. Gompers declared. "It has yielded less in flamboyant declarations and proclamations, but our movement is engaged in the achievement and the accomplishment of things for the men and women of labor. Any movement must be judged by its accomplishments in the interests of those associated with it, and in the matter of economic and social conditions of life and labor the conditions in Canada are better than those of any country on the face of the globe."

These superior conditions had been obtained primarily, and principally through working along economic lines, in the opinion of Mr. Gompers. "We do not, however, believe in abstaining from political activity," he emphasized, "but we do not regard it as the dominant factor in defence of the rights and interests of the workers. We work on non-party lines."

RUMANIAN KING NOW AT GENEVA

Ferdinand and Queen Marie Give Support to League of Nations

Geneva, May 10.—Coming especially to pay an official visit to the League of Nations, King Ferdinand and Queen Marie of Rumania arrived here this morning and were received with military honors at the railway station. President Chuard and other officials of the republic welcomed the visitors on behalf of the nation and Sir Eric Drummond, Secretary-General, and Albert Thomas, head of the Labor Bureau of the League of Nations, on behalf of the League.

The King and Queen were acclaimed by the populace as they drove through the streets.

The visit of the king and queen is interpreted by the Geneva press as an answer to those who accuse Rumania of being imperialistic, nationalistic and militaristic, their call on the League being interpreted by the newspapers as inspired by a desire to show that Rumania seeks only to collaborate with the League for European consolidation and the maintenance of peace, and to demonstrate her determination to work for the development of the ideals of the League.

The visit of the Royal couple to the League of Nations palace was a striking ceremonial. King Ferdinand took the leading part, delivering a discourse in which he predicted a great future of international service for the League.

AMERICA WINS CUP

London, May 10.—America won the Bather's cup, emblematic of the international championship at court tennis through the victory of Jay Gould of Philadelphia, over E. M. Baerlein, the British champion, in the singles to-day. Gould defeated Baerlein in straight sets 6-5, 6-3, 6-1. America having clinched the cup the remaining singles match scheduled will not be played.

Paris, May 9.—The French police are on the trail of a one-armed man seen hovering about the dressing-room of the American Olympic rugby football team at the Colombes Stadium yesterday, and suspected of being responsible for the robbery of the players, who lost about 6,000 francs and several hundred dollars as well as several watches and other valuables.

Lodge Has a New World Court Plan

Washington, May 9.—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge yesterday laid before the Senate and the country a new world court plan of his own.

It provides for the reconvening of The Hague Conference at the call of President Coolidge and creation by it of a permanent court to which the nations could submit their disputes for final adjudication.

The resolution of the Foreign Relations Committee chairman made as direct mention of the international court already set up under the auspices of the League of Nations and commended to the Senate by Presidents Harding and Coolidge as an institution worthy of American support.

Instead it proposed to build a tribunal about the framework reared at The Hague years ago, with the judges selected much after the manner those in the court sponsored by the League, except that the League judges would have no part in the procedure, while the United States would act with Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan through a special committee having a veto power over elections.

There are more cars stolen yearly in the twenty-eight major cities of the United States than the total number in use in Europe, except in France and England.

"Tired and Worried Nervous and Despondent"

Mrs. M. Chevalier, Belle River, Ont., writes:

"For eight years I suffered from despondency and nervousness. Sometimes I could not sleep at night for worrying and the next day I would be so tired that my work was a burden to me. I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and can say I am now entirely relieved of the nervousness from which I used to suffer, and things do not worry me as they used to."

"Dr. Chase's Ointment also relieved me of eczema on my arms, which had bothered me for three years. My house is never without Dr. Chase's Medicines."

GETTING AHEAD

A FAVORABLE balance of trade, that is, an excess of exports over imports, is not possible with every country and often has little meaning because of the failure to take into account the invisible exports, which are large in the case of the older countries with extensive foreign investments.

At our present stage of development, however, it is important that Canada should sell more to the rest of the world than she buys in order to pay her foreign debts, keep solvent and prosper. This, we have been doing to an encouraging extent during the first three months of this year, according to the trade reports from Ottawa. During January, February and March, we sold to other countries goods worth $13,500,000 more than what we bought from them. This is in contrast with the figures for the corresponding months of the preceding three years when we were buying from outside $22,000,000 to $36,000,000 more than we were selling.

The following official table tells the story:

Table with columns for Imports-Down and Exports-Up, showing monthly and quarterly figures for 1921, 1922, 1923, and 1924.

When an individual produces and sells more than what he buys, he is on a sound basis financially and it getting ahead. That is also the way it is with a country.

"LOOK BACK TO 1897"

THE MONTREAL HERALD recalls that when the Liberals came back into power in 1921, Mr. Fielding, as Minister of Finance, reminded the House of an experience which he had before the Liberal budget of 1897 was brought down. A deputation, he said, waited upon him. They came to him and pleaded that the Government should not touch the tariff at all. They pointed out the interblending and interdependence of interests. All interests were interwoven into a network, they argued, and if the Liberal Administration touched the tariff at all, "dreadful things would happen."

Mr. Fielding remarked that if the deputation's views had been acted upon, no tariff changes would have been made. But the Government of that time did make changes, important changes, in the direction of freer trade. For many years afterward the people of Canada flourished as they had not flourished for years before. So, on the return of the Liberal Party to power, Mr. Fielding asked any manufacturers who might be disturbed, "to look back to the record of 1897 and to remember that the alarm which they then felt was uncalled for," and he urged that it was as uncalled for to-day.

His words may well be recalled at the present juncture, when so many dire prophecies are being made concerning tariff changes.

SAVE THE BEACHES

PERSONS who enjoy our beaches are looking to the City Council for some action next week when the question of pollution of tidal waters will come up.

Garbage of all kinds and dead animals are being washed ashore along Dallas Road, making the beaches there places of filth and unpleasantness. The evidence is there; and now it is up to the City Council to take steps to fix the responsibility and have conditions rectified.

It is a matter of dollars and cents to Victoria. Our salt water beaches constitute one of our great natural assets, an asset such as every city cannot have. From sentimental and business reasons we cannot afford to let that asset be impaired.

Analysis of the vote at the elections last Sunday in Germany indicates that about 15,000,000 of the 29,000,000 voters registered approval of the Dawes-McKenna reparations recommendations. This majority was obtained by the socialists, democrats, centrists and folkpartei candidates, all of whom were pledged to support the plan. For the nationalists, folkists and communists who were pledged against the report, there were 11,000,000 votes. The other 3,000,000 votes were scattered among the rest of the two dozen parties who were mildly for or against the plan. It looks as if there is still a chance of Europe pulling through.

SOCIALISM'S DEFECTS

THE publication a short time ago of an arresting volume, "Democracy at the Crossroads," by Dr. F. J. C. Hearnshaw, professor of history in King's College, University of London, has been followed up by the publication of "Democracy and Labor" by the same author.

In this book Professor Hearnshaw deals with the defects of socialism. His points are pertinent because of the inaccurate notion some people have that Britain is now under a socialist government, because labor party leaders, most of whom are not socialists at all, are in office. The defects which Professor Hearnshaw finds in socialism may be summed up in this way:

1. The psychology of socialism is wrong: Socialism does violence to such natural and irrefragable human instincts as love of liberty, love of property, love of emulation, love of offspring.

2. The economics of socialism are wrong: The socialist theories of value and surplus value are false theories; the socialist doctrines of land, capital and labor, or rent, interest and wages are all distorted by class prejudice; of foreign commerce and international finance few socialists seem to have any conception at all.

3. The history taught by socialism is wrong: It is engrossed with economic factors to the exclusion of those more spiritual; hence it is pervaded by the grossest inaccuracies and partialities.

4. The sociology of socialism is wrong: It absurdly underestimates the influence of character in determining human destiny; it is at open war with the proved results of modern biological research.

5. The politics of socialism are wrong: Socialism, while professing to seek the good of the community as a whole concentrates all its attention upon the interests of a single class, attacking all the rest in person and in property; it aims at an equality which is to be secured by the leveling down of all that rises above the swampy flats of the proletariat.

6. The ethics of socialism are wrong: They are selfish, materialistic, utilitarian, opportunist.

Professor Hearnshaw is not a book pedant writing in a cloister. His conclusions are drawn from experience gained in testing out theories on conditions. As a result of the publication of his earlier books he was invited to address labor meetings in Glasgow, Liverpool, Cardiff, Stockport, Gravesend, Halifax, Southampton, and Hull-on-Thames. "I came back to London," he said, "with the conviction that socialism and its offshoots have no real hold on the English workingman and no very strong hold on the workingman of Scotland and Wales." And least of all in Canada, he would add if he had come here.

General McRae says he is now in so deeply that he cannot let go. He means that he is in so deep he cannot see daylight.

Canadian-made automobiles, under the Snowden budget, will enter Britain duty free instead of paying 22 1/2 per cent. Why, asks the Toronto Globe, should the Canadian motor industry not still find a market in free-trade Britain, even if the preference of 11 per cent. over cars of United States origin is no longer in force. If the preference is gone, so is the customs taxation that made preference possible.

COMMON COMPLAINT

PITILESS PUBLICITY

If income tax returns are made public, the next step may be a law compelling women to wear duly attested price tags on their new hats and gowns.

HISTORY IN WORDS

The study of words—words which endure longer than temples hewn out of solid rock—teaches us to know the likeness of the human heart in all countries and in all ages—to recognize the superiority in many respects of nations long deemed barbaric—and to understand dimly the existence of that wondrous law of intellectual development which adapts faith to purposes and hopes to necessities, and tempers the sense of beauty according to human powers of acquisition.—Lafordio Hearn.

THE IDEAL STATE

Education and good morals will be found to be almost the whole that goes to make a good man, and the same things will make a good statesman and a good king. The truest definition of a complete citizen that can be given is probably this: That he shares in the judicial and executive part of the government. A state, consisting of a multitude of human beings, ought to be brought to unity and community by education.—Aristotle.

WHEN MORNING CAME

Last night I heard mysterious whispers— The Wind sat something very soft and low; The Tree replied, but I caught not his answer, Ere the Wind lifted up his wings to go. All night the Shadows met in secret councils, With mystic rites the star-shot darkness hid; Birds in the boughs gave little dream-like murmur, As if they wondered what the Shadows did. When morning came and thrust the mist-scander, I saw what shadows in the dark had over; The Tree stood glistening in a bridal dress, Respondent to her wedding to the Sun. —A. B. Leigh.

Dr. Frank Crane on "Wanted--Gentlemen"

THE greatest need of the world today is Gentlemen.

While it might be said that the greatest need is the Christian, that would connote too much. The legacy of two thousand years of struggle makes the idea of the Christian suggest credulity, party, contention and war cries.

The word Gentleman contains about the practical substance of the word Christian, what you might call its usable residuum.

If there is anything that is a Simon pure and genuine "long-felt want" it is the Gentleman.

We even need the Gentleman in the pulpit. That is, we need less Bible thumping and more appreciation, courage, enthusiasm and inspiration from the Sacred Desk.

At least, we need a little more restraint and consciousness of responsibility.

The Gentleman is needed in the newspaper office. Even the reporter can tell the truth without being a boaster. The editorial writer would carry much more weight if he realized that vividness, sincerity and fearlessness are vastly more convincing than reckless attack.

We desperately need Gentlemen in Congress, and Legislature. We need men there who will not take advantage of their immunity to make statements they would not dare to make outside. We need men there who realize that fearlessness, honesty and honor are not inconsistent with common sense.

What characterizes the Gentleman? A Gentleman will not say of a man behind his back what he would not say to his face.

A Gentleman does not assume that his opponent is a scoundrel; he must have that fact proved.

A Gentleman recognizes his responsibility for his utterances.

A Gentleman depends, for his effectiveness, upon facts, and not upon an offensive manner. A Gentleman habitually understates, and is careful not to exaggerate.

A Gentleman plays fair, works fair and talks fair. A Gentleman is one who controls himself; thus he is equipped to control others.

A Gentleman is considerate of those weaker than himself, and not afraid of those stronger than himself.

A Gentleman conceals a hand of iron under a glove of velvet; the non-Gentleman conceals a flabby hand under an iron glove.

We need reformers, we need protesters, we need business men, legislators, preachers, bricklayers and hatters, but more of all we need that every one of these shall be a Gentleman.

INSECTS' "SOCIAL SENSE"

CERTAIN species of insects, whose life is passed in the closest company of their fellows, have so strong a "social sense" that they cannot live alone. The observer of bees, for instance, has known for a long time that bees which are taken from the hive and segregated soon perish, even when they have abundance of honey and are well cared for.

Several experiments of this kind have been made with bees, bumble-bees, and wasps. Bees placed singly or in pairs in receptacles of various kinds, and under the most favorable conditions, could not live alone. No difference could be observed whether the bees were young or full-grown. Workers or bumble bees or wasps kept under the same conditions died almost as quickly. On the other hand, insects which have not the same dependence on a social life, could be kept alive under such conditions for weeks. This is the case, for instance, with female bumble bees and wasps that have just survived the winter and are just about to pass to nest building, or with allied species that habitually live alone, such as solitary bees.

It has now been established that the death of these socially-minded insects is not caused so much by their being alone as their being deprived of their building and nursing activities. Ants kept singly have been known to live for weeks, provided they have opportunity to tend their young and if earth is at their disposal for building purposes. If one of these is absent their life is considerably shortened; if both are absent, they die in a few days, even when kept in companies of two or four individuals. A further experiment which shortens the life of bees is the absence of a queen. This seems to have a similar effect, also, on communities of bumble bees and wasps.

SONG OF THE "A' AE OO"

A Dialogue on Scottish Wool. Recalls Some Old Verses. From The Toronto Globe. THE Scottish dialogue on wool, in 'Damo Ethel Smith's book, has stirred the memory of "Scottish Jolly" of Ixona, Ontario, who, in addition to protesting against some of the spelling of Scottish words, quotes part of an old Scottish song. She writes: Please let me correct. The prospective purchaser looks up from the goods and the query is: Translation.

Q. Oo? Woof? A. Aye, oo. Yes, woof. Q. A' ae oo? Yes, all wool. A. Aye, a' ae oo. Yes, all one wool. A. Aye, a' ae oo. Yes, all one wool.

Away back from the limbo of the past comes the remembrance of an old Scottish song—at least I can remember only part of it. It was entitled "A' Ae Oo": A dainty dame is Granny Soot, And canny in her ways, Aye thinkin' twice for aince she speaks, An' watchin' whaur she gae, An' are she buys her tartan plaid She scans it thro' an' an'.

Then comes a lot about the Scottish people, who are all one wool, and all good goods, and the last verse is: Then dinna daud the thistle tap, Or it may jag yer thoom, But gently rax a friendly haun' We loe our frien' an' a' skip oor foe, Nor fash nor mak' ado; We're either in or out o' folk— We're a' ae oo, we are; We're a' ae oo.

WAR MEMORIAL

To the Editor:—Will you permit a little space in order to present to the people of Victoria another aspect of the proposed War Memorial.

At the present time, on the Causeway before the Parliament Buildings, at the Gorge Road junction, and Oak Bay junction, exist lasting tributes to the prowess of Canadian soldiers overseas, both dead and living. In addition to this, every church, school, fraternal society, and public utilities corporation has its Honor Roll prominently displayed, and all this without mentioning the many memorials in which Memorial Avenue is being completed.

Why put the people of Victoria to the expense of erecting another elaborate and costly monument to its dead heroes, five years after the war has been won?

At least our citizens are aware that they have within their borders many of the late war heroes, existing in misery and want, lacking adequate means of providing themselves and their dependents with the necessities of life. Men still suffering as a result of their service overseas, and without any arrangements made for their employment, and unable to compete in the open labor market.

As one such seeking employment, and with all due respect to my fallen comrades, I wish to record a protest against the spending of more money for such purposes. I am convinced that my fallen comrades, having fallen, are more fortunate than without mentioning by experience during the last five years. A COMRADE

TRIBUTE TO VICTORIA

To the Editor:—Holidays in Springtime, a disappointment to many, a boon to me who come in search of beauty and find it so abundantly, so lavishly displayed in this little "England of the West."

Perhaps it was "Kipling's Almanac," his eloquent appreciation of Victoria, perhaps what Westerners are so fond of terming "the call of the West," that prompted my sojourn here. Suffice it to say I shall be glad to do my part for the glory of your beautiful city and hope that some day in the not too distant future I may journey Westward again, not as a passing stranger, but one who could wish for nothing better than a bungalow overlooking the sea. Mount Baker and its foothills pictured in the distance.

One small protest may I be permitted to indulge? In my desire to become familiar with town as well as country, I was, I think, a frequenter of most of Victoria's cafes—the Hudson's Bay with windows overlooking a magnificent panorama of the city, the Empress, a delightfully artistic and altogether charming place to while away the tea hour; others, too, the names of which I have forgotten. One thing only was lacking—music, and here where all is beauty, that lack seems poignantly felt.

Time draws nigh for my departure, but I shall take with me ever happy memories of your hospitable little city and shall deem it a privilege to add yet another name to that surely long list of "Victoria Boosters" but one who could wish for nothing better than a bungalow overlooking the sea. Mount Baker and its foothills pictured in the distance.

Sidelights on a Great Industry Annual Payroll $50,000,000

LUMBERMEN PAY HUGE PROPORTION OF WAGES IN B. C.

Sum Exceeds Provincial Revenue For Last Three Years

THE payroll of the combined British Columbia timber industries is not less than $50,000,000 or close on one hundred dollars per capita of the whole population of the Province's men, women and children.

This enormous annual amount represents the total revenue for the last three years, that is to say, it costs less to run the Province for three years than it does the B.C. lumbering industry for twelve months. This sum also exceeds the total paid-up capital of the three principal chartered banks in the Dominion of Canada.

Over 3,500 Firms This estimate is not a rough and ready one, but is carefully calculated from the latest statistics made available by the Workmen's Compensation Board, the Department of Labor, Victoria, and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

There are over 3,500 firms exclusively engaged in the production, manufacture and handling of B. C. wood products. They may be divided into three classes: Class 1 (Raw material)—355 firms, includes logging operations, pulp, paper and the camps, timber cruisers and forest engineers, scalers, inspectors and timber brokers.

Class 2 (Manufacture)—555 firms, includes sawmills, planing, lath and shingle mills, veneer plants, sash and door factories and concerns manufacturing B. C. woods into furniture.

Class 3 (Distribution)—415 firms, includes lumber exporters, wholesalers, lumber dealers, accountants, inspectors and woodyards.

There is also a fourth class, which might comprise the tug-boat owners solely engaged in boom and raft towing and the firms exclusively manufacturing logging and sawmill equipment. (This class is not included in the present estimate.)

Fifty million dollars is a huge sum. It represents at least one-third of the total industrial payroll of the Province of British Columbia and at a conservative estimate proves the means of support for at least a quarter of its total population.

Mrs. Hubert Work, Wife U.S. Secretary, Died Suddenly

Washington, May 10.—Mrs. Hubert Work, wife of the Secretary of the Interior, died suddenly late yesterday in her automobile from angina pectoris. She had suffered for several years from spasmodic attacks of the disease and was sixty-four years of age. Mrs. Work had been shopping and was returning to her hotel when she was struck by her being only a maid besides the chauffeur.

Born at Madison, Ind., she was married to Secretary Work at Greeley, Colo., in 1887. In addition to her husband she is survived by two sons, Dr. Philip Work and Robert Work, Bishop of Denver, and a daughter, Mrs. A. W. Bissell of Evanston, Ill.

Premier Addressed Women.—At the meeting of the Liberal Women's Forum held in the headquarters, Broughton Street, yesterday afternoon, Premier Oliver gave an interesting address on the history of British Columbia's efforts to secure equalized freight rates. Mrs. R. R. Taylor occupied the chair. After an attractive musical programme by Mrs. W. D. Todd, afternoon tea was served and a social hour enjoyed.

PIONEERS GUESTS AT BANQUET AND REUNION DANCE

Reminiscence and Goodwill Feature Biggest Gathering of Its Kind in B.C.

Of all the gatherings held in Victoria few, if any, could equal in enthusiasm or in the real spirit of comradeship, the banquet at the Empress Hotel last evening when four hundred and twenty-two pioneers and native sons and daughters of British Columbia were the guests of the B.C. Historical Association, Post No. 1 Native Sons and Post No. 3 Native Daughters.

Me and women, now grown feeble, but who came over the trail in the days of their youth and hardships found memories kindled anew at the sight of the novel table decorations. At the head table was a miniature replica of the trail with covered wagons, camping outfits, pack-horses and mules, placer miners and their equipment, primitive log houses and Indian teepees as well as a miniature replica of an old Indian suspension bridge. The decorations representing the handwork of Mrs. Fisherbut Bullen, granddaughter of Sir James Douglas, a pioneer Governor of B.C. Seventy-five of the oldest pioneers also found at their places charming little water-color sketches of familiar landmarks of historic interest, these being also the gift of Mrs. Bullen.

The banquet opened with the saying of grace by W. H. Kinman, a native son, and closed with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" and the National Anthem. Many eyes were dimmed as the strains of the Scotch songs of fellowship rang out, the faltering tones of the older people and the stronger notes of the younger native sons and daughters blending in pleasant harmony.

PIONEERS WELCOMED
Hon. J. D. MacLean, honorary president of the B.C. Historical Association, presided, in proposing the toast of "The King." Dr. MacLean conveyed messages of regret from a number of distinguished guests who were unable to be present. He cordially welcomed the visiting pioneers to their old stamping ground, Victoria, and expressed the hope that their descendants would carry on the high standards of citizenship which they had set in pioneer days.

The Minister made a request on behalf of the Historical Society that pioneers possessing writings and documents of historical value and interest should forward them to the Provincial Archives, where they would be preserved in the official records of British Columbia for all time.

A NANAIMO PIONEER
Mayor Hayward in proposing the toast of "Our Guests, the Pioneers," greeted the visitors on behalf of the city.

Response was made on behalf of the pioneers by Mark Bate, a pioneer of Nanaimo. Mr. Bate drove his stakes in Nanaimo in 1857, and he had been a worker for that city ever since. He believed, he said, that Nanaimo contained more pioneers than any other place in the Province, and they were all as willing to carry their share, and perhaps a little bit more, to the pre-eminence by their services to the province, Dominion and Empire, including the late Sir Richard McBride, Dr. John Todd, whose research work in medical science has made his name known throughout the world, and others.

Mr. Borge also paid tribute to the native daughters, urging them to follow in the footsteps of their pioneer mothers. (Continued on page 1.)

Don't dose your Child—feed it

Children who are rightly fed rarely need physic. Virol is a food specially prepared for growing children. Dosing often weakens; Virol feeds and builds.

Virol is a combination of the foods which Nature has designed for growth—egg, bonemarrow, malt extract, organic iron and phosphates rich in vitamins—and the most delicate can assimilate it. That is why doctors all over the world employ Virol.

That Infected Sebum
We have discovered most all falling, lustreless hair due to infection of the scalp oil (sebum). Now quickly overcome. Hair regrown on 91 heads in one hundred.
Sebum forms in the glands at the follicles of the hair. Its natural function is to lubricate the hair. But frequently it becomes infected. It clogs on the scalp, clogs the follicles and plugs them. Go to the mirror. See it on your scalp, either in the form of oil, or when accumulated and dried with other ingredients, as dandruff.

Distinguished Woman Doctor Studying Hospital Systems

Dr. May Thorne, of Royal Free Hospital School of Medicine, London, is Visitor in City

Dr. May Thorne, who was among the first women to practice medicine and surgery in England, and is now honorary secretary of the London Royal Free Hospital School of Medicine for Women, is a distinguished visitor in the city. She recently arrived from a tour of the United States and will remain in Victoria for several weeks before proceeding to Los Angeles, where she will speak before the Federation of Women's Clubs.

WAS LEADING SURGEON
Recognized as one of the foremost women in the British medical world and for many years a physician and surgeon in Harley Street, the home of London specialists, Dr. Thorne had the honor of being the first woman appointed in England as a public vaccinator for instructional purposes. She was also one of the first to be appointed by the Local Government Board to the Central Midwives' Board.

Dr. Thorne, in common with other leading medical women, has always staunchly upheld the doctrine advocated by the late Dr. Garrett Anderson, the pioneer woman doctor of England, who took the stand that women-doctors should maintain the highest standard in their work and, giving of their best, should be paid on the same scale. It required many years of quiet but persistent endeavor to secure recognition of this precept, which is slowly but surely becoming universally accepted.

STUDYING HOSPITAL SYSTEMS
To a Times representative this morning Dr. Thorne stated that her mission to this continent was for the study of the private nursing system for patients in general hospitals. In England it has been customary to reserve the general hospitals for free treatment only, private nursing homes catering to those patients able to pay for care. But the demand is now arising in England for private rooms in hospitals for patients able to pay well and desirous of securing the facilities and advantages available only in a well-equipped hospital.

The Royal Free Hospital Medical School was the "alma mater" of many of the well-known medical women of today. This hospital has the proud distinction of being the first to open its doors to women for clinical instruction in its wards. It was in 1873 that the London Free Hospital took this step of so much moment to women, and this action was in the second year of the hospital's history. A field of work hitherto considered the prerogative of men, it is still the only hospital where women students only are accepted, although a number of other hospitals have a co-educational system open to men and women.

But there is still another feature which makes this hospital and its work of particular interest to women—the second one. In the Royal Free Hospital, states Dr. Thorne, there is the only unit of obstetrics and gynecology at present organized in London. And in this department of sixty-eight beds, forty-five are given over solely for treatment of maternity patients and much investigation has been made into the illnesses and taxonomies of pregnancy.

TO LESSEN MATERNITY RISKS
Dr. Thorne observed that it is only within the last five years that maternity lines and it is believed that in course of time much will be done to relieve the illnesses attendant upon maternity so that the child will have every chance of healthy birth with a minimum risk to the mother. One part of this ward has been named the Washington Ward at the request of the American Women's Club of London and it is hoped that beds may be endowed in the name of well-known American men and women.

Until five years ago all patients in this hospital were treated free of charge, but since the war and the increase in the cost of operation it has been found necessary to ask the patients to pay what they can, said Dr. Thorne. At present the fees received from patients represent about one-sixth of the cost of maintenance. The balance is raised through voluntary subscriptions and donations, assisted by a very small endowment. Dr. Thorne stated that the hospital departments operate with great difficulty in paying its milk, egg and meat bills.

BOUQUET PRESENTED
A pleasing little incident was the presence of a beautiful bouquet, the gift of Miss Coupe of the Marinello Parlors, to Mrs. Eliza Lyall, of Victoria, who came here in 1853 and was thought to be the oldest woman pioneer present.

MUSICAL PROGRAMME
The musical programme arranged by Miss Russell, included community singing led by Bob Webb in which such well-known favorites as "Old Black Joe" were sung, with Ira Dill-bird's "Navy Song," Miss Eva Hart and Herbert Kent sang solos. One of the most popular features was the singing of Edward White, a silver-haired pioneer who delighted his hearers with "Punchinello" and other old-time favorites, his voice still retaining much of the quality and purity characteristic of the day when he was a soloist in the Methodist choir.

OLD FASHIONED DANCES
At the close of the banquet the floor was cleared for dancing. To the spirited strains of Osard's orchestra the guests, augmented to a throng nearly 500, danced with evident enjoyment such old-fashioned dances as gallop, polka, Sir Roger de Coverley, the Lanciers, Scotchicotte, and others of a by-gone day.

As pleasing interludes, a graceful cello dance was performed by eight young ladies, including Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Munroe, the Misses Jattray, McDonald, Chapin and Codrington, while Madame Valda and Miss Fawcett in Louis Seize costumes danced a graceful passtime to the delight of the appreciative on-lookers.

Kumtuka Club—As details of the supper to be given on May 24 for the entertainment of members of the Vancouver and Seattle Clubs will be discussed, it is hoped that all members of the Kumtuka Club will attend the monthly business meeting to be held in the Alexandra Club, Pemberton Building, on Monday evening, May 12, at 8 o'clock.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE VISIT OF THE FLEET

To the Editor:—An article appeared in the morning paper a short time ago giving a considered estimate of the amount of money that was hoped would be made out of the British Fleet during its forthcoming visit to Victoria, both of what the officers and seamen would spend and the amounts accruing to the local merchants by the contracts they might obtain.

I admit I read the article with dismay and I must vigorously protest against this sordid view of the Fleet's visit.

The Fleet is being sent around the world at great expense to the British taxpayer as an instrument of education and to encourage the Dominion to increase their assistance to Imperial Defence.

Reparations Are Blamed For Miners' Conflict in Ruhr

Berlin, May 10.—Both sides to the mine conflict in the Ruhr and Rhineland blame the uncertainty of the reparations issue for the situation. Fritz Thyssen and other operators declare it is impossible to decrease the working hours of the miners while Germany is loaded with a "mountain" and reparations burdens. Other stockholders say increased production and reduced working hours do not go together, and that if Germany does not produce the requisite quantities she must buy foreign coal.

Heilman Hitting His Head Off in American League

Detroit Slugger in Front, Having Hit Every Second Time He Has Been at Bat

Hornsby Loses the National League Lead to Wheat by Hurting His Thumb

Chicago, May 10.—With more than three weeks of the Major League pennant race completed, Harry Heilman of Detroit, 1923 batting champion of the American League, is making a whirlwind race for the 1924 title with the remarkable average of .43.

The slugging ace of the Tigers, whose batting has been an important factor in pulling the Detroiters closer to the Yankees, has smashed out a hit every second time he has faced a pitcher since the start of the season. He has hit safely thirty-four times, making five home runs in addition to nine doubles.

Cobb in Slump

Cobb, the Detroit manager, who gave Heilman such a spirited run a week ago, fell into a slump which carried him down in the list, the runner-up position going to Williams of St. Louis, with an average of .428. Joe Harris of the Red Sox, is third with .427.

George Sisler, manager of the St. Louis Browns, is challenging the leaders with an average of .352. Babe Ruth is making the lead in home run honors with six.

Bill Barrett, White Sox outfielder, and his captain, Eddie Collins, are fighting it out for stolen base honors with Barrett leading Collins 7 to 6. Neither has any close competition.

Other leading batters are: Summa, Cleveland, .407; Meusel, New York, .395; Cobb, Detroit, .385; Jamieson, Cleveland, .382; Dugan, New York, .358; Veach, Boston, .358; Simmons, Philadelphia, .358; Fournier, St. Louis, .362; Sheehey, Chicago, .348; Judge, Washington, .346; Jacobson, St. Louis, .345; Hooper, Chicago, .334.

Wheat on Leading

A damaged thumb, forcing him out of the game, cost Rogers Hornsby the St. Louis star, and 1923 batting champion of the National League, the leadership this week. Zack Wheat, the Brooklyn star, is pulling away from the commanding position with an average of .457 attained as a result of making sixteen hits in his last seven games.

Hornsby was hitting .426 when he was forced to retire when he hurt his thumb sliding into a base a week ago at Pittsburgh. Fournier, of Brooklyn, Williams, of Philadelphia, and Hartnett, of the Cubs, are in a triple tie for the home-run honors, each having made five. Max Carey of Pittsburgh, is pulling away from George Grantham of the Cubs, for the base-stealing honors, leading Grantham by three. Carey has stolen eight bases.

Other leading batters: Kelly, New York, .409; Frisch, New York, .375; Grantham, Chicago, .361; Fournier, Brooklyn, .352; Grimes, Chicago, .350; Pinell, Cincinnati, .338; Harper, Cincinnati, .333; Bohne, Cincinnati, .328; Johnston, Brooklyn, .325; Heathcliff, Chicago, .316; Blades, St. Louis, .316.

Pittsburg, May 9.—Three pitchers of Pittsburg were unable to turn back the Boston team yesterday on a field soaked by two days' rain.

Canadian Football Team Plays to Draw In Its First Game

Sydney, N.S.W., May 10 (Canadian Press Cable)—The Canadian All-star Football team and the Metropolis team of this city played a scoreless draw here to-day. It was the first game of the Canadian-Australian tour. Twenty thousand persons assembled to witness the contest and they gave the Canucks an enthusiastic welcome.

The play favored the Canadians although they were unable to score. Shooting on goal was somewhat erratic. Anderson played a great game and Chapman and Linning delighted the huge crowd with their play. Chapman was unfortunate, however, in missing three scoring chances.

The visitors from the Dominion are being royally entertained, theatre parties are being given in their honor and to-night they were guests at a banquet and dance.

Roseworthy, Armstrong, Bowman, Wilson, Hood did not appear on the Canadian lineup yesterday.

Two Bills Absent From Net Team to Go From America

Tilden and Johnston Will Not Go to Olympic Games; Team Is Selected

New York, May 10.—America will be represented in its first attempt to lift Olympic tennis laurels by a fairly strong team. This was revealed yesterday when the Davis Cup committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association announced that the men's team would consist of R. Norris Williams II, of Philadelphia, as captain, Vincent Richards of York, N.Y.; Francis T. Hunter of Beckley, W. Va., and Watson M. Washburn of New York.

The women's team, selected some time ago, includes Miss Helen Willis of Berkeley, Calif., national champion; Miss Eleanor Goss of New York, national champion; Miss Edith Whitman of Boston, as captain.

GETS WEEK'S HOLIDAY

Richard was included in the men's squad after a brief controversy over his status as a player-writer. His engagement to cover the Olympic games as a reporter for a news agency at first created a barrier to his selection, but this was solved when his employers consented to a leave of absence for him during the week of Olympic tennis competition, July 15 to 20.

The selection of William T. Tilden of Philadelphia, national champion, who withdrew from international play over the player-writer controversy had been taken by Hunter.

The team thus does not include the first two ranking stars, Tilden and William M. Johnston, who were unable to accept an invitation to go, but it has the next three ranking singles experts in Williams, Richards and Hunter. Washburn ranks fifteenth, but he and Williams rank highest on the national doubles list and form the strongest combination available for the personnel of the Olympic team.

C. N. Ford of Portland was second for the day's shooting with 197 and W. G. Warren of Huntington Park, Calif., and R. R. Ruzes of Billings, Mont., were tied for third with 196.

Chilean's Dream of Gaining Title Busted by Floyd

Romero Knocked Out in Furious Battle With Johnson in Seventh Round

South American Proved That He, Like Firpo, Can Assimilate Punishment

New York, May 10.—Quinton Romero, Chilean heavyweight, imported by Tex Rickard as a possible successor to Luis Firpo, in the American prize ring, to-day realized that his dream of becoming champion of the world was still just a dream. On the other hand, Floyd Johnson, of Iowa, stood out in the minds of boxing critics as "the man who might come back."

But before he was eliminated from the heavyweight series in the seventh round of their ten-round bout the Chilean reinforced the conviction that by Firpo that South American can fight: Four times before the knockout the invader, streaming with blood, was beaten to the canvas, but after the second of these falls, he sent Johnson sprawling and after the fourth he returned with a final spasm of fury that sent the American reeling before him about the ring.

FURIOUS STRUGGLE

The knockout blow came after a minute and 43 seconds of the round. It was one of the most furious struggles of the season. The Chilean, blinded by blood that gushed from a cut over his left eye, groped around the ring in the final round in a pucky effort to remain on his feet, while absorbing tremendous punishment from the invader.

The Iowa's attack beat Romero's face into a red-puipy mass. Wild scenes followed the end of the bout as Referee Magnolia had apparently counted up nine when the bell sounded. Romero was on his knees, preparing to rise. Simultaneously with the bell the referee waived both men to their corners.

FIGHT AT RINGSIDE

Newspapermen at the arena thought the Chilean had been saved by the bell and that he would come up for the next round. A report spread that a member of the state boxing commission had ordered the bout stopped and a technical knockout awarded to Johnson to save his rival from further punishment. Controversy remained in the building and centered at the ringside where a general fist fight started among protesting partisans at the time-keeper's table.

The police finally subdued the ringside mob and permitted the announcer to declare that the referee had completed his ten swings, that Johnson had registered a clean knockout and that the bell had been sounded in a mistake.

In the semifinals Morris Schlaifer, of Omaha, knocked out Harry Malone of Jersey City, in the sixth round of a scheduled eight-round bout.

Joe Stossel, of New York, knocked out Tommy Gardiner, of California, in the third round of a scheduled six-round bout.

Garrison, Navy and Esquimalt Won Close Indoor Ball Games

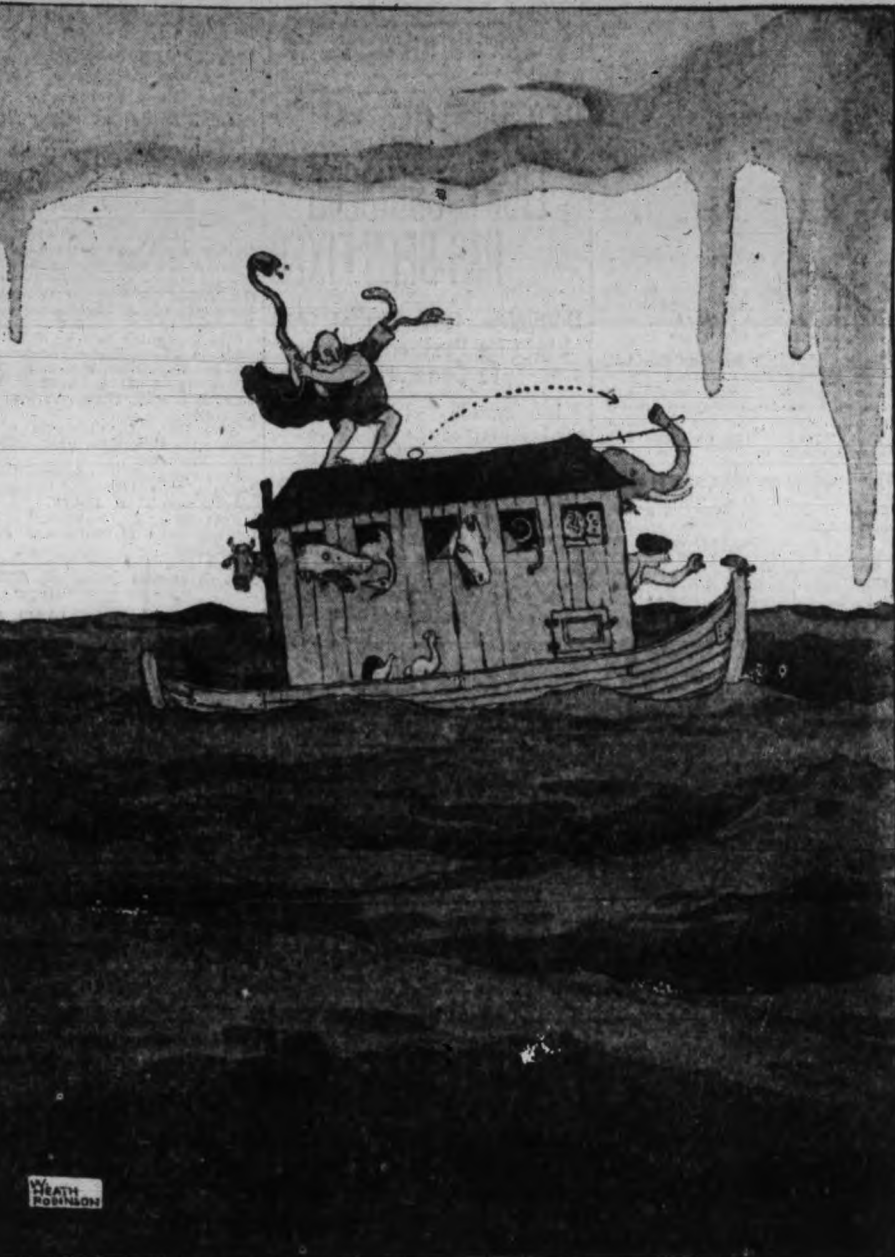

As a result of the Garrison defeat- ing the Navy, 18-7, and the Naval Barracks scoring a 12-7 victory over the Civil Service these teams are now occupying the premier berth of the Victoria District Indoor Baseball League. The third game played last night between the Tillamook and Esquimalt was won by the former by default, but a friendly match was played which resulted in a win for the latter by the score of 12-11.

In the game at Work Point between the Commodore and the Esquimalt, the Commodore won by a score of 11-10. The Commodore's victory was a big lead in the first inning which they held during the rest of the game. Not until the eighth inning did the Commodore's lead, when they crossed the plate five times, adding a couple in the ninth, which brought their total to seven.

At the Canteen grounds the Civil Service were handed their second defeat by the Navy men. The game was a hard battle from start to finish and at one stage the Civil Servants were on the long end of the score, but in the fifth inning the men of blue crossed the plate for three runs while they held their opponents scoreless. The game runs were held out during the game. Langlois of the Navy and Ford of the Civil Service being the hitters.

Canadian Olympic Swimming Tryouts Set for Vancouver

Only Four Swimmers to go From Canada; Track Coach Cannot Come West

Vancouver, May 10.—Captain Cornelius of Hamilton, official coach of the Canadian Olympic team, will be unable to attend British Columbia's track and field eliminations at Brockton Point on May 17.

This news was received on Wednesday by Bert Tennant, B.C. representative on the Canadian Olympic committee, in a wire from the East stating that Captain Cornelius had promised to attend the Maritime provinces' eliminations at that time.

The Canadian team will be in Winnipeg from May 30 until June 4, however, and will give the men who perform at the western trials the onco-view. British Columbia will be asked to send its Olympic candidates to this meet, where they will receive coaching from Mr. Cornelius.

MUST GO EAST

B.C. athletes who make the trip to Winnipeg must be prepared, if chosen, to continue to the training depot at Montreal and there await the final Canadian trials.

Coupled with this information is the news that the final trials for the Canadian swimming team will be held in Toronto on June 21. Only four swimmers will be named to represent the Dominion in the aquatic events and competition will be keen.

The Canadian Olympic committee has suggested that swimming trials for British Columbia be held in Vancouver about the end of May and that those swimmers who make the best marks at that meet be sent to the Canadian trials.

The match between the touring South African and Derby was drawn. The former ran up 241 for seven wickets and declared. Derby made 87 runs with the loss of five wickets.

Canadian Davis Cup Team to be Picked In Toronto July 7

Winnipeg, May 10.—Selection of the personnel to comprise the Canadian Davis Cup team, will be made at the Canadian tennis championships in Toronto, during the week of July 7. The winner of the Dominion championship will be included on the team, while the other representatives will be given a place either through an elimination process or selection on merit by the executive of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association.

The Canadians will meet the Cuban team on the grounds of the Ridgetown Tennis Club, Ottawa, July 24, 25 and 26.

According to decision reached by the association, the maritimes will be regarded as one province while the same plan will apply to Saskatchewan and Alberta. All other provinces are considered as separate units and entitled to send two players to Toronto.

The Dominion Association will pay the expenses of one representative from each section and the expenses of the other entry will be defrayed by the local association.

Willie Hunter and Von Elm Will Seek P.N.W. Golf Title

Famous Golfers Will be Among Starters at Vancouver Next Month

Vancouver, May 10.—President A. S. Kerry, Seattle, of the Pacific Northwest Golf Association, was in Vancouver this week in conference with the secretary, H. P. Taylor, and K. A. McLennan with regard to the championship which will be played over the Shaughnessy and Burquitlam courses from June 23 to 28. The visitor expressed himself as well pleased with the condition of both courses.

Mr. Kerry brought the information that while practically all of the stars of the Pacific Coast states will be in Vancouver for the week, Willie Hunter, former British amateur champion, and George von Elm, who won the P.N.W. title in 1922, would be among the starters. In addition, it is hoped to secure the entries of Miss Edith Cummings and Miss Kavanaugh, California champions.

This year the amateur champion will have the option of accepting a cup or medal, or transportation to the national championships at Philadelphia. A recommendation will be made that last year's champions be not required to compete until the challenge round. This will be decided by mail vote. It was stated that seventeen applications had been received for the one-armed man event which will probably be made a feature.

Many Transfers Put Through For Final Football Series

Vancouver, B.C., May 10.—With the arrival of the papers of Dick Sneed of Ladysmith and A. M. Morton of the Transvaal United, forty-one transfers of British Columbia soccer players have been put through by Secretary Armstrong of the British Columbia Football Association. Most of the players are changing their affiliations for the Connaught Cup series which starts to-day. Both of the island men go to Canadian Nationals of Edmonton. The transfer of Al McKinnon to Shellys was also put through last night.

Soccer followers will regret to learn that Whitehurst, the star right half of St. Andrew's, who has been out of the game for the last few weeks, was taken to Tranquille Sanitarium last night for a course of treatment. An initial attack of bronchitis developed into lung trouble.

DELANEY A WINNER

Two Seattle Golf Teams Will Visit City For Matches

Seattle, May 10.—There will be a big exodus of Seattle golfers to Victoria next week-end. The clubs are sending teams up to the British Columbia capital for engagements with clubs there.

The Seattle Golf Club's excursion will be for the first half of the annual battle between the locals and the Victoria Golf Club of Oak Bay for the Biggerstaffe Wilson trophy, which was won by the Seattle stalwarts last year.

At least twenty men will make the trip, but Captain Roy Campbell believes that the number will be nearer thirty. The second half of the match will be played here in September.

The other club to make the jaunt north is Rainier which has little effort to make with the local club. About twenty-five men will go, Captain Ed Crider estimates.

Singles will be played Saturday and four men Sunday morning. Both Seattle parties will return on Sunday afternoon's boat.

Keen Competition for Americans at Paris Olympiad

Coach on Other Side of Line Expects His Team to be Stronger Than Ever

European Nations Will Have Some Star Athletes to Oppose Yankees

BY ROBERT EDGREN

Lawson Robertson, American Olympic team track coach, stood on Franklin Field, Philadelphia, watching the work of a couple of hundred sprinters, middle and long distance runners. There were a few visitors but most of the men were Pennsylvania team candidates.

Robertson, a tall fellow, has a habit of dropping his head forward as if looking at the ground, seemingly indifferent to everything going on around him. But while his head bobs down his eyes, rolled upward and peering through heavy eyebrows, miss absolutely nothing. No lifted heel or slightest knee action escapes his notice.

We, editorially speaking, asked Lawson the leading question right off the bat: "What are America's chances in the Olympic games this year?"

Sometimes Lawson is diplomatic, even evasive in a Scotch way. But not this time.

"We will win at Paris," he said positively. "We will have a team at least as strong in average scoring strength through the program as events as any we've had. In some events we will be stronger than ever before."

FINNS WILL BE STRONG

"The only thing that may cut into our points is the greater strength of European teams. Every country competing is likely to have much better athletes than we have. And we are going to be up against a lot of hard competition. Especially from Finland. Those Finns are corking athletes. They've given us our heaviest rivalry in the field events, where they may break about even with us. They have some wonderful runners too—Nurmi, for instance, who has broken the world's records for a mile and some of the metric distances. But I think it is in the field events that they shine most. They are big, lean, powerful, born athletes. They don't have many luxuries in Finland, and they're hard on their feet and endurance. They're all-around athletes—most of them."

Commercial Ball Teams Will Sooner Get Into Action

Three Teams Are at Present Entered; Last Year's Winners Not Competing

Commercial League baseball teams will again be seen in action this year. At a meeting of the league held this week it was decided to carry on. Last year this league proved very successful, there being four teams competing for the trophy which was won by the Native Sons of Canada.

At present three teams have announced their intention of entering the league this year. The teams are Spencer, last year's runner-up, Sidney and the Pirates who won the Junior league last year. The league officials are expecting that one or two additional teams will enter. It is thought that the Hudson's Bay will again enter a team in the league.

SONS DISAPPEAR

Last year's winners, the Native Sons of Canada, will not be in the league to defend their honors. Last season the Sons made a great showing only losing one game but this year they find it impossible to enter on account of a number of their players being signed on senior amateur teams.

Spencers will have a strong team this year and they expect to win the championship. Last year they gave the Sons a hard fight and were the only team to defeat the champions. Sidney has strengthened considerably this year and will have a number of players from "Up-Island" points. Although Sidney was at the bottom of the league last year they intend to make a better showing this year and are confident the championship will come to them.

JUNIORS ARE GOOD

Nothing need be said about the Pirates who won the Junior league last year. The snappy team of youngsters played great ball last season and they should make the remaining teams step lively.

At the meeting this week officers were elected for this year. Arthur Pike was re-elected president while H. Hill, of Sidney, was elected vice-president. Jimmy Kelly will look after the secretary-treasurer duties this year.

Polo Club Starts Practicing Next Week at Willows

Ponies Now Being Schooled; Games Will be Played in Couple of Weeks

Actual play by the Victoria Polo Club will be started at the Willows within the next few weeks. The club now has sixteen ponies at its disposal and these are being schooled and made ready for the players who will take part.

Practice will commence next week on Wednesday and Friday. The practices will start sharp at 7 o'clock. This will give the experienced players a chance to brush up before actual play starts, while those who wish to learn the game will have a good chance to find their legs.

As soon as a good team is ready games will be played between the club members and outside teams which will be brought here for games.

SIZE OF GROUNDS

Polo is played on a ground 250 x 160 yards, with four players to a side. The game is decided on the number of goals scored, the goals being eight feet wide and 23 feet apart. The rules of the game are somewhat the same as association football.

"The Breaking Point" is Newest Herbert Brenon Production

In "The Breaking Point," a new Herbert Brenon production for Paramount which is being shown at the Capitol Theatre, the action begins in New York where a wealthy and dissolute millionaire is infatuated with a successful actress, Matt Moore, as Judson Clarke, and Nita Naldi, as the actress, Beverly Carlisle, both roles in which one becomes a fugitive from public opinion, the other a woman in each of the two lives, which Matt Moore portrays. The first is Miss Naldi, the other the charming Patsy Ruth Miller. Both have a legitimate claim to him, and both love him, and the difficulty increases when, with the recovery of his lost memory, he is unconscious of both loves. George Fawcett plays a fine character in Dr. David Livingston, the only man who knows the entire secret of the mystery which surrounds Judson Clarke, alias Dick Livingstone. All the aforementioned players are featured. Theodore von Eltz is also well cast. He is a part of the mystery and holds locked up in his mind the one link which makes the chain of events comprehensible to a great many others who have been puzzled for ten years.

Others in the strong supporting cast of the picture include Cyril Ring, a reporter; Charles A. Stevenson, John Merkel, Julia Faye and Edythe Chapman.

"Wild Man From Borneo" Showing for Last Time Today

To-night will see the last of the "Wild Man from Borneo" which has proved such a wonderful success at the Playhouse this week. This musical fare has attracted a deal of attention owing to its novel features and its excellent music. Particularly has been mentioned the delightful rendition of "The Torsador" from Carmen by Ernie Tetch, a number in which his ringing voice is given full scope.

"No Trespassing" is also a great drawing card being a good story well told by fine actors amidst some of the most beautiful scenery in the world. Irene Castle will long be remembered for her work in this picture.

Underworld Story Based on Life Shatters Theories

When crime experts and sociological workers discuss popular tradition by saying that there is no "honor" among thieves and that the romantic situation in the stories of famous criminals are introduced to the average reader of underworld fiction smiles and thinks that some one is being "kidded." A large portion of the public refuses to believe that crime isn't romantic.

Critics have long said that the screen has the greatest power of any art to impress on people a new fact. Consequently, there is importance attached to "White Tiger," the Universal-Jewel photoplay starring Dean Jagger at the Columbia Theatre by police authorities, who say that in ridiculing the popular conception of "romance" in crime it does an incalculable good.

Tod Browning wrote the story of "White Tiger" originally for Miss Dean's use, and incorporated in it those elements in which she finds the best material for stirring triumph, elements similar to those in the sensational underworld picture, "Outside the Law," a former Dean Browning success. But more than that, Browning wrote in "White Tiger," a humorous analysis of the so-called romantic interest of a criminal life.

Anna Nilsson at Her Finest in New Triumph by Beach

One of the best possible recommendations for Richard Walton Tully's screen dramatization of Rex Beach's "Flowing Gold," the first National picture shown at the Royal Theatre for the last time today, is the fact that the leading female role is in the hands of Anna Q. Nilsson. Add to the fact the presence of Milton Sills in the leading male characterization and success is assured.

Miss Nilsson is recognized as one of the most capable, as well as most beautiful players of the screen. She has appeared in so many greatly successful photoplays that an enumeration is impossible, and her popularity is ever on the up-grade. She is recognized in Hollywood as one of the most conscientious performers of the screen.

the studios, and is credited with being just about the best "trouper" of them all.

Her characterization in "Flowing Gold" is difficult but interesting, and is played with her usual finesse. She plays the role of Allegheny Briskov, an uncouth daughter of a Texas dry farm owner, who blossoms out under proper influences and with the assistance of wealth after "dad" strikes unheard-of quantities of oil all over the farm.

Other players of distinction appearing in "Flowing Gold" are Alice Calhoun, John Roche, Crawford Kent, Josephine Crowell, Bert Woodruff, Charles Selton, Cissy Fitzgerald, Francis Powers, Frank Farrington and Evelyn Sherman.

Tropical Scenery Transplanted for De Mille's Picture

In order to supply the locale for the island scenes in "Male and Female," founded on Sir James M. Barrie's famous play, "The Admirable Crichton," the resourceful director, producer of this latest Paramount-Artcraft picture coming to the Capitol Theatre next week, arranged to give his former set built on Santa Cruz Island in the Pacific Ocean, just off the California coast. But a tropical island was needed. This did not worry the resourceful director, who had great loads of foliage and tropical plants transplanted, so that the American island resembled a spot in the South Seas. This is but one example of the lavish scale upon which Barrie's play has been adapted to the screen, though the delightfully human touch of the distinguished dramatist has been fully retained.

The charming story of Crichton, the English butler who became his master's master and almost his son-in-law when a private yacht was wrecked on a desert isle, is interpreted by a great cast of players, including Thomas Creed, De Mille, Swanson, Lila Lee, Theodore Roberts, Bebe Daniels, Guy Oliver, and others. Mr. de Mille is said to excel even his former set in his artistic point of artistic production.

Mae Busch Lived as Little Girl on Island of Tahiti

Mae Busch, who plays Lou's companion in "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," the National picture now playing at the Dominion Theatre, has been featured in many of the screen's biggest productions. She played the leading female role in "The Christian" and "Name the Man"; besides important roles in such productions as "Brothers Under the Skin," "Nellie" and "The Beautiful Girl," and "Souls for Sale."

It was but natural for Miss Busch to choose a stage career. Her mother was an opera singer and her father was conductor of the Symphony Orchestra of Melbourne, Australia, where she was born.

Part of her girlhood was spent in picturesque Tahiti. At the age of twelve she was sent to America to attend St. Elizabeth's convent at Madison, N.J. While singing at a reception given by one of her friends two weeks before graduation she was approached by Elsie Janis, who praised her voice and introduced her to the stage. She had never appeared on the stage before, she was given the leading female role in "Over the River," with Eddie Lang. She scored an immediate success.

After appearing in many notable stage productions she accepted an offer to go into pictures. Her first picture, in which she has appeared as Eric Von Stroheim's "The Devil's Passkey" and "Foolish Wives."

Victor Hugo's Greatest Work on Silver Screen

If Victor Hugo could but return to the world for one single night there is little doubt that he would gasp in amazement at the magnificence of the Universal production "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," adapted from his greatest masterpiece. Each tiny detail of the book and of the Universal production is months and faithfully reproduced on the screen, and the hardened critics of New York, Chicago and a score of other cities, united as one man in declaring that here, at last, is the quintessence of perfection in screen art.

Victoria is eagerly awaiting the advent of the production at the Capitol Theatre on Monday, May 12. The fame of the wonder picture reached here a few days after its opening at the Astor Theatre in New York City and the audience was justly pleased expressed when it was learned that the manager of the Dominion had "acquired" all opposition and landed the production for this city.

Lon Chaney is the star of the production. He is supported by a brilliant cast including Edna Best, Frances, Patsy Ruth Miller, Tully Marshall, Norman Kerry, Brandon Hurst, Caesar Gravina and Gladys Brockwell. In all there are seventy-five principals and 325 extra players.

The entire Cathedral of Notre Dame was reconstructed especially for the production, as were eight blocks of Parisian streets and houses of the time of Louis XI.

The last detail that makes for the final bit of perfection and the ultimate entertainment is the special musical score that was prepared by Dr. Hugo Rosenfeld and a half dozen other noted musical conductors. The music puts the audience in the right mood for the various scenes, and conveys just that subtle shading that makes for perfect understanding.

BRITISH BUDGET NOT SOCIALISTIC

budget which would please poverty while, at the same time, it reassured wealth. With consummate dexterity he achieved these two apparently irreconcilable aims. The budget, in the House gave him such an ovation as they have not yet accorded to any of his former achievements, which reflected credit on Mr. Snowden's adaptability.

A CLEAR THINKER

The first Socialist Chancellor is reputed to be the clearest mind in the Cabinet. He is certainly the most lucid and logical speaker on the front bench and you cannot have clear speaking without clear thinking. Mr. Snowden's extraordinary precision of phrase indicates a precise mind. He has none of the ragged cloudiness which mars the Prime Minister's speeches. One gives you the impression of having worked out his sum in detail before giving the result. He has a habit of making his auditors an impression that he has been thinking out his problems in phrases.

The budget speech was a model of luminous exposition and it raises the Chancellor of the Exchequer to the position of being the one unequalled success of this administration.

NOT SOCIALISTIC

But for all that, the Socialist budget is not in the least Socialistic. There is not a particle or speck of Socialism in its whole composition. It is all resigned to the fact that the existing system for its "failure adequately to utilize and organize natural resources produces the Prime Minister's necessary standard of life for vast numbers of the population, and believing that the cause of this failure lies in private ownership and control of means of production and distribution," he invited the House to declare that legislative efforts should be directed to gradual suppression of the capitalist system by an industrial and social order, based on public ownership of the instruments of production and distribution.

THE GLADSTONIAN TOUCH

His financial proposals do not walk one step in that direction. There is no hint of any move towards suppression of the capitalist system. It is just the budget which Liberal statesmen like Mr. Gladstone, who were a profound believer in the existing order of society, would have introduced, in the conviction that his proposals were giving strength and support to that order. Reduction in food taxes, provision for payment of debt, abolition of taxes on industry and promotion of rigid economy, have all the true Gladstonian touch, and they help to reconcile the worker to the "capitalist system," and by that means its suppression becomes less urgent. Whilst Socialist members sneer at Liberalism as an effete sham, the one success of their government has been to persuade the public that their proposals were framed strictly in accordance with the principles and precedents of Liberal statesmanship. When they cheered their Chancellor so vociferously at the end of his budget speech, they were applauding the Liberal tradition.

It is only with a call attention to the most important characteristic of the Anglo-Celtic stock wherever it is to be found, whether in Great Britain or elsewhere, that the British public, its members can indulge in capers of phantasy as mad as those which are cherished by any other race, but as soon as they are

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Klesinger, 1410 Fairfield Road, a delightful party was held by Miss Florence Klesinger. The guests included John Blair, Michael Grant, Brian Neary, Richard Duncan, Jack Bellis, Ronald Pelee, Aloysius Wacker, Victor Montaldi, Corbey Collins, Gordon Fletcher, Leonard and Ray Klesinger, and the Misses Kathleen McConnell, Eileen Tnain, Isabelle Johnson, Nora Reid, Laura McDonald, Marie Baines, Mary Monahan, Mary Bantly, Phillipa Robina, Sicily Moseedale, Macie McLean, Janet Pearce and Ellen Collins. A delicious supper was served by Mrs. Klesinger, and the Misses Kathleen McConnell, Eileen Tnain, Isabelle Johnson, Nora Reid, Laura McDonald, Marie Baines, Mary Monahan, Mary Bantly, Phillipa Robina, Sicily Moseedale, Macie McLean, Janet Pearce and Ellen Collins. A delicious supper was served by Mrs. Klesinger, and the Misses Kathleen McConnell, Eileen Tnain, Isabelle Johnson, Nora Reid, Laura McDonald, Marie Baines, Mary Monahan, Mary Bantly, Phillipa Robina, Sicily Moseedale, Macie McLean, Janet Pearce and Ellen Collins.

DEBT REDUCTION

The figures given by the Chancellor on debt reduction are very striking. "Total debt reduction, both external and internal, since December 1919, has been over $50,000,000 pounds, practically the amount of the national debt at the outbreak of the war. No other country, certainly no European country, can point to such a record of debt reduction. It is interesting to note that so far as the richest European country or it is because she was not so hard hit by the war as the other countries."

REMARKABLE ANALYSIS

The answer to these questions is to be found in the very remarkable analysis of the cost of the war to the British people, published by the Bankers' Trust Company of New York. (The Inter-Ally Debt—An Analysis of War and Post-War Public Finance, by Harvey E. Fisk). It comes to the conclusion that the direct money burden of the war fell heaviest on the British people. "Reckoning the actual cost to '1812 dollars,' it finds that the cost of the war, per capita, to Britain was $24.85, to France $20.20, to Italy $15.55, to the United States $7.91 and to Germany $2.87. It is interesting to note that, both in cash and in 'battle losses,' Germany suffered more heavily than even France. The French battle deaths were 2.31 per cent, the German 2.35. When Britain points to the magnitude of her financial contribution, the answer is given that she could better afford to pay than any of her allies. But in this book, there is also computation of the cost of the war in proportion to the national income of the various belligerent nations. Here also Britain comes first. The British percentage is 36.92, the French 25.52, the Italian 19.18, the American 13.52 and the German 3.15. To the direct cost of the war, it is fair that there should be added the expenditure on repairing the devastation caused by the war. But even making full allowance for the cost of repatriation, Britain is still the heaviest sufferer as far as the financial burden of the war is concerned. Moreover, being the largest international trader, she has been the heaviest sufferer in so far as the effect of the war on trade and commerce is concerned."

TAXATION FIGURES

The figures furnished as to taxation are also instructive. British taxes are easily the heaviest. They were imposed during the war, and have remained without substantial relaxation to this year. That is what accounts for British surpluses. British reduction of debt and restoration of British credit. Whilst continental budgets, without exception, have shown heavy deficits, covered by borrowing and printing, the British budget has revealed substantial surpluses for four years. Whilst continental indebtedness has increased year by year, British debt has steadily diminished in spite of serious depression in trade and great unemployment. This is due entirely to the heroic sacrifices made by British taxpayers of all classes. The Snowden budget, whilst remitting taxation to the extent of £24,050,000 and £47,943,000 in a full year, this year provides £45,000,000 towards paying off debt. The recent increase of French taxation, belated as it is, may compress the same result in restoring French credit to its pre-war position. That is, if the French taxpayer does not elude payment. M. Poincaré's imposition of these taxes and his forcing them through at such a moment and on the eve of election is the bravest episode in his career and, if the taxes are honored in collection, will do more to rehabilitate France than all the reparations expedients that ingeniously can devise.

BUDGET POPULAR

In spite of much truculent criticism of the abolition of the McKenna duties, the budget is popular. It has a little present for every household, rich and poor. The reduction in tea and especially the cut in sugar duties will endear the Chancellor to every housewife. In the middle of the eighteenth century, the consumption of sugar in Britain amounted to only £1 per head per annum. To-day it has reached £72, a serious time for the worried domestic Minister of Finance. The reduction will enable her to invest in other necessities. Even optimistic critics are doubtful as to the wisdom of having given so much away this year. A surplus of £4,000,000 is an inadequate margin to meet the inevitable deficit on the nation's house-building bill, the most of the promised abolition of thrift limit on old age pensions, and it certainly leaves nothing for widows' pensions which the Labor Government, as well as the Liberals, have undertaken to grant.

The real verdict on the budget as a financial proposition will be delivered by next year's budget. If there be a large deficit next year—and that seems inevitable if the Government programme materializes—then it does not seem to be sound finance to take off taxes one year in order to impose new taxes the following year. Mr. Snowden is relying much on trade improvement and on economies in public departments. In both respects it is an optimistic budget. If his anticipations are not realized, next year will probably bring an increase in death duties and a stiffening of the super-taxes. His only alternative would be to suspend the sinking fund. I can hardly see Mr. Snowden doing that. But an increase in taxes on wealth will not haunt him. The probabilities therefore are that the morrow of the next budget will not see the repetition of the spectacle we witnessed this year—stocks jumping for joy over an unexpected reprieve.

HOSPITAL DAY MARKS PROGRESS IN INSTITUTIONS

HAS CARED FOR OVER FIFTY THOUSAND CASES DURING A LONG CAREER

St. Joseph's Hospital Takes New Status of Public Usefulness; Significant Figures Show Value of Its Work

Now that St. Joseph's Hospital is seeking a larger share of public recognition, its managing sisterhood is especially desirous that the public should understand something of the work that is done within its walls. The Provincial Government has already recognized the institution, and many new additions in equipment have been made to qualify for the high standard demanded by the American College of Surgeons.

the hospital pays a monthly rent of $175.00. St. Joseph's has on its staff eleven sisters who are registered nurses.

How Catholic Hospital Movement Has Grown Throughout the World

From a Paper Read at the Last Convention of the B.C. Hospitals' Association. To the casual observer the Community Hospital is a rather important building well designated, where there are a number of sick people more or less carefully nursed, and where doctors treat them and where nurses are trained.

BIG DEMAND FOR ROOM MAKES NEW EAST WING URGENT REQUIREMENT

Jubilee Hospital Extension Will Be Opened at End of August; Some Salient Statistics of Institution

When the new wing of the Royal Jubilee Hospital is opened for public use, which will be in the last week in August or the early part of September, there will be an immediate occupancy of its capacity. At the present time in the existing quarters the accommodation is overtaxed, particularly in connection private rooms. Recently it has been necessary for members of the hospital staff to turn out of their own quarters in order to provide accommodation.

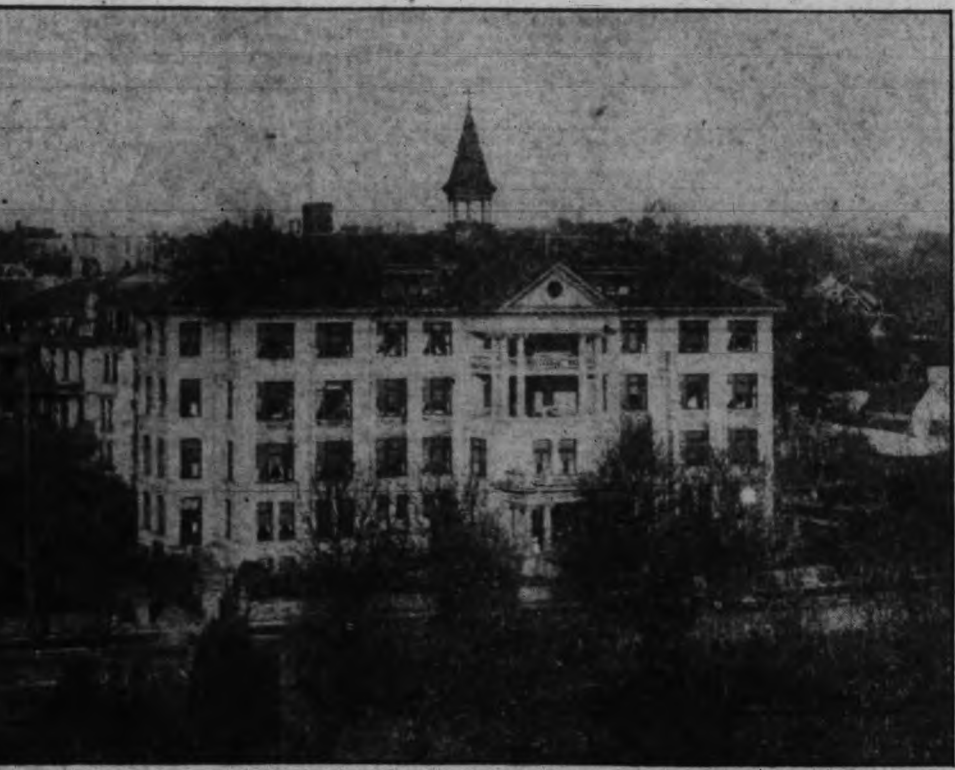

PATIENTS AT JUBILEE TUBERCULOUS WARD

Scientific Advance Makes Greater Demand To-day For Trained Help Than Ever

It is well to remember that the study of nursing had its conception with the early Christian women, the noble abbesses, monks and nuns, the Sisterhoods, and the military nursing orders that sprang from the Crusades. On down through the pages of history the service and sacrifice of women who have banded themselves together under the slogan of "Service" marks a bright spot in the count of world happenings.

which remains to this day a great medical institution, also Bethlehem, Bridewell and Christ's Hospitals along with the first mentioned constituted the five hospitals of London.

How much all this hospital achievement owes to Innocent III. will be best appreciated by Virchow's account of the German hospitals and this historian is not likely to exaggerate the beneficent influence of their administrators. He speaks thus: The main cause decisive in influencing and arousing the interest in hospitals at that time was the enthusiasm in the matter. The beginning of their history is connected with Pope Innocent III. who made the boldest movement by the establishment of such institutions he thought to bind humanity more closely to the church, in so doing he turned his eyes sympathetically upon the poor and sick and aided the helpless and neglected of the streets, and saved the illegitimate children from death in the waters.

AT ST. JOSEPH'S. St. Joseph's Hospital has extended a cordial invitation to the public to visit the different departments of the hospital next Monday. The hospital will be open from 2 to 5 o'clock for general inspection, and members of the Ladies' Auxiliary are undertaking to serve tea, while the members of St. Joseph's Alumnae will constitute a reception committee to guide visitors and explain the features of the various departments.

VISITORS WELCOME. Visitors will be heartily welcome at the Jubilee Hospital on Monday afternoon to see the new East Wing, which will be open for inspection.

By WILLIAM TRANT

Noted International Journalist of the Last Half of Last Century and Now a Resident of Victoria

THE grand thoroughfares of Paris would have been almost deserted but for the galling about of the Commune's ordures.

All the public offices had been appropriated, and the mounted messengers conferred between them on richly caparisoned horses themselves in fantastic dress, with an air of importance that was ludicrous.

The messengers were supplemented by aides-de-camp and others who galloped furiously down the Champs-Elysees and along the Rue de Rivoli, as they came from the battlefield with despatches from their superiors. These men always brought "good news." But we all knew better. Day by day the sound of the cannon and the noise of battle grew more and more distinct; shells began to fall in the Avenue des Champs-Elysees, and we realized that the end was nigh.

The Commune, as it saw its troops being driven back, showed its chagrin by excesses in imitation of the revolutionists of 1793. The red flag was displayed on every public building. Banks, insurance offices, and other establishments were laid undered contribution. The churches were pillaged, the tombs desecrated, and the bones of the dead piled in heaps at the doors of these edifices. Newspapers that dared to criticize the actions of the Commune were suppressed; those that supported them were subsidized. Rents were remitted, private property was abolished, capital was to be socialized. So close was the imitation of the early revolutionists that the ordinary calendar was abandoned, and with its Gregorian, its Thermidor, and so on was substituted. An attempt was made to restore the practice of wearing "caps of liberty," but this was a failure.

COMMUNISTS' RULE
Then came the overthrow of the Vendome Column because it was a Bonapartist memorial, which I witnessed from the balcony of Worth, the dressmaker, whose establishment was then getting into working order again. It was a silly thing to do, but has some justification, however, in the fact that its restoration is not a Bonapartist memorial.

Then, again, as a token of enmity to the government, the house of M.

Thiers was destroyed, an act of vandalism for which not one word of defence can be said. Reprisals were adopted because the Versailles were killing all the men they wounded or captured; but on this question of reprisals the Commune was weak and did not always carry out its threats. Among the hostages were the Archbishop of Paris and some orients. These the Commune had not the courage to execute by way of reprisal; but when all was nearly over, in their frenzied desperation they shot them down from the balcony of Worth, mad as the stain of a foul murder will never be effaced from the Commune.

SHELLS FIRED PARIS
On Palm Sunday I went to see the procession of young girls, clad in white, going to the Church of St. Roch to take their first communion. I shall never forget their pleasant faces as they sang "Hosanna to God, but hark! What is that? 'Boom, boom!' Again, 'Hosanna to God,' and again, 'Boom, boom.' It was Fort Valerien that had opened fire, and contributed an awful accompaniment to a child's hymn to heaven. The shells were falling, and the shells often fell rather to the near one to be comfortable. Persons became used to dodging them, however, by practice, and I was thus able to watch Fort d'Issy, the batteries at Montretout, and Fort Valerien destroy the epine and batter the west front of the Arc de Triomphe, and others set fire to houses far down the Avenue des Champs-Elysees. This was done by the regular troops, the Commune's troops never fired a shot in these directions, and the petroleum bombs, which were used, were under the control of the regular troops.

ENGLISH LEAVE PARIS
About this time the British representatives were informed by Sir E. H. Malet, then second secretary at the British embassy in Paris; that the protection of the flag was withdrawn. All of them were counseled to return to England, and pecuniary means of doing so was offered to those who desired to do so. I was convinced that the entry of the troops was close at hand. On the night of the 21st, my friend and I, accompanied by a friend at a cafe near the Tuileries, when one of the National Guard entered and said quickly, "They are in," and I know that this was several days before they were expected.

Paris had been captured by a surprise. I said "As please!" to my friend, and promised to meet him the next day, but I never saw him again. He was among the victims of the week of terror that had begun.

FIGHT IN CITY
Early next morning (Tuesday) I was awakened by a terrible cannonading in the street below. (I lived at the acute angle where the Rue d'Arantouille slides into the Rue St. Honore.) I hastened forth, and found myself prevented in one direction by the National Guard, and in another by the firemen, then going to work, taking insignificant by-roads, however, I was able to reach the Place de l'Opera, the Versailles were close at hand. They had taken the station of St. Lazare, and were pushing rapidly eastward. A shell falling on a barricade in my immediate neighborhood, wounding some men and killing others, caused the barricade to be abandoned and obliged me to beat a retreat.

NO SLEEP IN PARIS
As though the horrors above described were not sufficient to remind us of our perilous position, patrols of the National Guard paraded the streets, warning us, and with all lights, not to close the window-shutters, and to leave the doors open—precautions taken either so they might see if the Versailles adopted that plan, or so they might see if the Versailles were not to go to bed. This warning was quite unnecessary. Shells were falling with such rapidity, setting a house on fire here and another there, that the front rooms were abandoned under the mistaken idea that the back rooms were more secure; and when these were found untenable, my fellow inmates sought refuge in the cellar. In these circumstances sleep was an impossibility.

On the following morning, Wednesday, I again sallied forth. The first sound that fell upon my ear was "Vive la Commune," and I was in the corner of my dwelling-place were the soldiers of the line, who for two hours had advanced in single file along the Rue St. Honore, keeping close to the houses, thereby finding shelter from the mitraille that was poured against them from the buildings by misdirected shells, a fact of which I earnestly ask the reader's remembrance, for a reason that will shortly appear.

On returning to my residence I found that during my absence a shell had carried away a portion of the balcony of my rooms. Missiles of all descriptions were literally pouring into the street, and the shower increased in intensity during the whole of the afternoon and evening. While in the streets in the morning I had been able to see something of the plan of operations of the regular troops. They avoided the great streets, and pouring a torrent of men on the smaller barricades in the narrower streets, obtained possession of these; then breaching the houses (with cannon when necessary), by which means several houses were fired, they secured access to the wide thoroughfares at places where they could attack the barricades in reverse.

THIERS PROTECTS PEOPLE
"No," thundered Thiers; "these guns are for the enemies of France, and the statesman that would dare to turn them against the people of Paris, even were he successful, would deserve to pass into oblivion." Leroux vainly urged that the guns of these "bastilles de Paris," as he called them, might be turned on the people of Paris.

I reached the Place Vendome, which was then poorly guarded, and was almost in the hands of the Versailles in possession of the Rue Boissy d'Anglas, near the British embassy, and as fighting was still going on, I was then able to reach the Place de l'Opera, the Versailles were close at hand. They had taken the station of St. Lazare, and were pushing rapidly eastward. A shell falling on a barricade in my immediate neighborhood, wounding some men and killing others, caused the barricade to be abandoned and obliged me to beat a retreat.

and down that passage, convolving like a huge serpent fastening on the city. Everywhere they went they were received with cheers.

TRICOLOR FLIES
The tricolor was hoisted out of the windows of the great shops that had been closed during the last two months. After the infantry came batteries of artillery, and after these squadrons of cavalry. A hat was made at the spot (above indicated) where I was standing, and the commanding officer, a young fellow, smoked a cigarette and consulted a plan of instructions.

PICKLE POPULACE
I knew the faces of many of these people. They were neighbors of mine. A few months before, I had heard them creak themselves hoarse with "Vive l'Empire," "Berlin," then followed "Vive la Republique," and after this "Vive la Commune," and now it was "Vive la Ligue." Two hours after this I was as used to seeing men similarly shot as in younger days I had been to see cruel schoolboys stoning frogs on a hillside.

"Bas la Commune!" shouted some soldiers of the line, pointing to two brothers in the Rue St. Honore, who were immediately shot. The needless formality of half a minute's trial being dispensed with.

Prussians, all this would not have happened.

WHOLESALE EXECUTION
The method of formal execution by young cigarette-smoking colonels, as above indicated, was the usual kind of execution. The honor of a firing-party was reserved for a few persons of distinction, such as Milliers, who had resigned his seat as deputy for Paris in the National Assembly to become a member of the Commune. He was placed in front of the Pantheon, and with arm raised cried, "Vive le peuple!" There was a roll of snare-drums, a murmur, and he was dead.

As I was walking away from the sad spectacle I met Mr. Holt White of the Pall Mall Gazette, who said to me, "I am sorry I am too late. I wanted to see Milliers. People say he looks so much like Jesus Christ."

We then witnessed a sight that made us both shudder. Up to the previous day the light had been going on beneath a glorious sun and a cloudless sky. I was astonished to find how few traces of the carnage were to be seen in the streets. The reason was that the sunshine had dried the blood and it had become covered with a concealing layer of fine dust. Now, however, there had been showers of rain, and the effect was as if the very stones of Paris were bleeding afresh. Near the Pantheon, at a spot where several men had been shot, blood was trickling in sluggish streams to the gutter. Soldiers, fatigued with the day's massacre, reposed on the wet pavement, using it also as a dining-table. We saw them eating raw meat, which they were too fatigued to remove from the streams of blood that trickled about it—a sorry banquet for M. Thiers' heroes!"

HOSPITAL DAY MARKS PROGRESS IN INSTITUTIONS

REV. FATHER C. B. MOULINER, S.J., the veteran head of the Catholic Hospitals Association.

of management, usually that of St. John of Jerusalem, prevailed. These provided that the administrator, rector or master, besides being general superintendent, was responsible for all hospital property, money and money deposited for safe-keeping. It was also his duty to receive patients and assign them to their proper place in the hospital.

Rich and poor, soldiers and citizens, Jews and Mohammedans alike must be admitted. Hospital attendants were at times obliged to go into the streets and search for the maimed and injured. The regulations provided that the sick should never be left without attendance; that seriously ill be removed to a private room, while similar provision was made for maternity patients. That due attention was paid to cleanliness and comfort, is evidenced by records of baths, bed-linen, and heating by means of fire-places and brasiers.

FREE FROM DEBTS

Not content with the above regulations, the hospital authorities of Ireland provided for further requirements in keeping with Irish thought and sentiment. These known as the Fishon-laws provided that amongst other things, hospitals shall have at least four doors, be free from debts and there must be a stream of water traversing its middle. That whoever inflicted bodily injury upon another, had to pay for his maintenance in case he required hospital attention. That doct and fools and female scolds be kept away from the patients, lest they be tried.

During the earlier hospital history, medical and surgical treatment was ministered partly by ecclesiastics, but as medical schools and universities developed, this was entirely removed to the hands of the especially trained physicians and surgeons.

THE REFORMATION
With the Reformation, hospitals suffered much by the uprooting of the monasteries, and many passed out of existence because they were under the control of the state or sovereign while others clung to their original status. Nevertheless hospital progress in the ages received a severe setback, which however, only served to stimulate at a later date, a more intensive movement, and marks the beginning of secularization of hospitals and various other modes of administration in existence to-day.

It is worthy of note that the general requirements of hospitals, as to design, location, management and regulations, etc., of that period differ only in detail to the present-day administration, but that detail so marks the value of experience, study, science, co-operation and sacrifice that the end results of the labors of those institutions must necessarily be compared with that of the modern twentieth century hospitals. Due credit, however, must be given to the endeavor of that period for its sincere effort to alleviate the sufferings of mankind in accordance with their enlightenment and the limited progress of science.

MOVEMENT IN AMERICA

Coming nearer home the first of the churches' hospitals to be established in America was built in the City of Mexico about 1524 while the first in the United States was erected in the Manhattan Island in 1662 on Manhattan Island. In 1629 the Hotel Dieu at Sillery, near Quebec, marked the beginning of the hospital movement in Canada. This institution was later moved to Quebec, where it still stands. In 1844 the Hotel Dieu of Montreal was founded by Jeanne Mance, and it must be remembered that for two centuries it was the only hospital in Montreal.

spread throughout the length and breadth of the universe.

THE SISTERHOODS
There are to-day in Canada and the United States 700 Catholic hospitals, which constitute more than fifty per cent of the beds of all hospitals in these two countries. One hundred and thirty different orders of sisterhoods control and supervise these hospitals with a combined total of 800 sisters ministering to the sick and a similar number of lay nurses.

About 4,000,000 patients pass through their doors each year. This strength alone makes it apparent that there is a full warrant for a separate and independent Catholic Hospital Association, of which I shall speak later. This strength warrants the request for a wider recognition of Catholic hospital service and a greater consideration of their charity.

As in the earlier history, before mentioned, their doors are open to all regardless of creed, poverty or wealth. For their continued growth and progress, there can be no other satisfactory explanation than the tireless, patient, whole-souled, devoted service of the nuns. There is no salary list for the Sisters, and no earthly financial reward, every dollar saved by their relentless efforts goes to build, repair, or improve an institution for the benefit of the sick. Controversial reasons maintain that Sisters receive no salary, are indeed proclaiming a terrible sacrilege.

The centre of our Sisters' Hospital, whether architecturally or figuratively, is the chapel. Here all corridors must converge. Holy communion, meditation and prayer give the Sisters strength and courage for their life of sacrifice and devotion. Unfortunately, however, is the nurse who loses reverence for sacred things, and who can look with cold indifference upon a body helplessly wrought with disease and a soul crying for light and comfort. The chapel and spiritual side of sisterhood and the sweet influence of religion has ever been the means of dispelling the nervous gloom of patients so dangerous to their well-being, and physical recovery, while countless thousands of souls have been strengthened or saved as a result of the influence of hospital environment. To Florence Nightingale, who spent considerable time in the Sisters' Hospital in Paris, is attributed the following words: "I appreciate the strength of religion in work for the sick. I do believe that religious motive is essential to the highest kind of nurse."

teriological and dietetical laboratories, and this calls for more trained workers and skilful technicians. The Sisters are endeavoring as speedily as possible, to rise to the standard of requirement. Practically every floor of the Sisters' hospital is supervised by a trained and graduated Sister. Many of the laboratories and X-ray departments are under the direct charge of one of their members, especially trained in the work. Not because they excel, but because of the difficulties of securing permanent and competent technicians, and also for economic reasons. Their policy is to regard scientific development to be lacking nothing in their equipment, within reason, to aid the physician in his diagnosis and treatment, but especially trained in the work.

THE ASSOCIATION
Another important step, far reaching in its achievements, was the organization of the Catholic Hospital Association of the United States and Canada. This was accomplished through the efforts of the Reverend Father Mouliner, its great founder and president, in his purpose to help the Catholic hospitals of United States and Canada to study the whole complex problems of hospital management and institutional medical service to patients. The principles on which it was founded, and under which it will endeavor to consistently develop, its progress in the development and application of medical science to the well-being of humanity under the guidance of the true and proven principles of ethics and Christianity. It is represented in its membership by hospitals, doctors, sisters, nurses and chaplains, and has grown from a membership in 1915 of forty-two hospitals and twenty-three individual members to a present-day membership of 100 hospitals and 1,600 individual members.

The work of this association in many respects duplicates and intensifies that of the American College of Surgeons, but is intended to cover ground not touched upon in their plan of procedure, such as the shaping with precision and exactness, the ethics of Catholic hospitals, and the medical men practicing therein.

TECHNICAL TRAINING
The plan by which this great body of Catholic hospitals pursue their growing in scientific efficiency, and keep pace with medical advancement and scientific research, is to establish on the continent as many as required, consistent with economic measures, of high-grade, centrally located schools, for the training of every department of hospital work, including laboratory technicians, record-keepers, dietitians, and social workers from any single or combined effort on the continent or I may add throughout the universe.

These schools, one at least already under way, will be so located and managed that the religious and scientific will go hand in hand with the most advanced scientific ideas for the life's work. This briefly states the purpose of the Sisters' activities in a general way of Catholic hospitals and their hospital association. Their record of achievement for the well-being of humanity have not been equalled let alone surpassed by any single or combined effort on the continent or I may add throughout the universe.

They have been the pioneers in the work of collectively caring for the sick and homeless. The charity of the sisters is an all-embracing one, and their success has been a tender report than usual, namely personal salvation and the constructive alleviation of human ills, mental and physical.

While their institutions and ever will be private owned institutions, their demand for public recognition as a result of public service rendered, is being heeded more and more throughout the continent and almost without exception wherever their requirements necessary have been fulfilled, there have been accorded a large measure of public consideration and treatment, which is so justly coming to them. Much credit is due to the justly given Sisters' hospitals for their efficient financial success. This success varies a great deal in different institutions and localities, and has been somewhat erroneously ascribed to the savings of salaries paid in their institutions.

ing sickness, insurance for ill health and also provision for old age maintenance, it may be ascertained that when all has been considered, that the salary is not much the factor, but rather that the Sisters consecrate their lives to economy in management and to specializing in their particular duties.

LOCAL SITUATION

Since I am now on the financial question, you may pardon the introduction of some rather pointed statistics as regards public service. Had the Government of British Columbia been paying to St. Joseph's Hospital of Victoria a grant of 45 cents per hospital day, for the period of ten years preceding 1923, they would have paid to the institution during that period of time $160,000. During the year 1922 alone, under similar conditions they would have paid to St. Paul's Hospital of Vancouver, the sum of $30,000 covering 62,880 hospital days.

These sums of money would necessarily have to be spared from the public treasury. During the year 1922 St. Paul's Hospital gave 10,924 hospital days free treatment to indigent patients, while St. Joseph's Hospital gave 4,135 such days' treatment.

Of the patients admitted to these hospitals during that year fifteen per cent alone were of Catholic faith. These statistics, which I have quoted, though limited, are purely local and within easy means of daily observation, but differ in no wise to the general policies and ideals throughout the continent and universe.

claimed charitable accomplishments, both past and present. This inter-association and co-operation with other hospital associations great and small has done much to broaden their ideas, and enable them to accomplish things in a large unified purpose, much more than in the past.

MEASURE OF CONSIDERATION

For this reason I bespeak for them a measure of consideration and forbearance in all deliberations and concerted efforts for co-operative advancement. For whatever may be the difference in the interpretation of hospital administrative ideals, let us in the true sense of charity, give the Sisters' Hospital credit for a sincere endeavor in the past and present to accomplish many things for the physical, social, ethical and religious well-being of mankind. Their hospital walls are eloquent with the story of the sufferings of the first great Physician and Healer, their banners are emblazoned with the symbols of charity and benevolence. May they ever continue to develop in resourcefulness and enthusiasm to bear aloft the flaming torches of health and life.

CLAIMS CARAVAN HIS AND NOT MRS. FORBES'

Ahmed Hassanein Bey, Companion of Famous Woman Explorer to Kufara Honored by Geographical Society

MRS. ROSITA FORBES may have belittled the share of Ahmed Hassanein Bey in her famous trip to Kufara, the forbidden city of the Libyan desert, but the Royal Geographical Society and Egypt, cognizant of all the facts, have given him their highest honors.

When Mrs. Forbes with Ahmed Hassanein Bey came out of the Libyan desert in 1921, she was the heroine of the hour. She had made a wonderful trip in disguise across 400 miles of desert to the mysterious and sacred city of Kufara, the headquarters of the great religious sect of the Senusis.

It was after Mrs. Forbes' account of her trip to the Royal Geographical Society that the high position of Hassanein Bey began to be clearly understood. "I am sure that Mrs. Forbes would like me to include in our congratulations her companion Ahmed Hassanein Bey, whom I knew fairly well during the war, and of whom I have a very high opinion," said Dr. C. G. Hogarth, director of the Ashmolean Museum at Oxford and authority on things Arabian, in seconding a vote of thanks to Mrs. Forbes.

Mrs. Forbes, during her address, had explained the presence of Hassanein Bey as one who accompanied her. "Hassanein Bey," she said, "kindly consented to accompany my expedition, and his knowledge of the religion, language and customs was invaluable to me, as also his original friendship with the Sayeds (chiefs)."

In the controversy that followed Hassanein Bey made only one statement, in a letter to the Scotsman. Not only did he state that the caravan was his and did not cost Mrs. Forbes a cent, but that he had planned the trip as far back as 1916. It was proved, by documentary evidence, that the expedition had only been possible on account of his friendship with the emir and the Senusis princes on a previous visit to the sacred city as a special envoy of the British government during the war.

Dr. Hogarth called attention to the high rank of Ahmed Hassanein Bey. He is bey of the first class, or high caste Egyptian government official, a cultured gentleman with a rank equivalent to that of colonel in the British army. He is the son of a very celebrated Moslem divine. He was educated in England, taking high honors at Oxford, where he was a Balliol man. During the war he was attached to the staff of the British commander-in-chief, with the rank of colonel, and was a member of the British headquarters mess. Entrusted on several occasions with difficult and delicate missions by the British government, including his trip to Kufara, he carried them all out successfully with advantageous bearing upon the ultimate issue.

Later, confidential reports were made by Ahmed Hassanein Bey to the Royal Geographical Society, covering especially the scientific results of the trip with Mrs. Forbes.

Last year he made a second, a camel trek of 2,200 miles, back to Kufara, and on into a hitherto unexplored section of the southern part of the Libyan desert, discovering two unknown oases on the way to Darfur.

The Kufara people encouraged Hassanein's expedition, principally because they thought that he would never come back, and there would be no more visits to the sacred city. After eleven days of exhaustive trekking, some of the camels having died, his expedition reached the unexplored oasis of Ouenat, where an interesting discovery was made. A collection of inscriptions of animals was made from the rocks. There were drawings of giraffes, ostriches, lions, gazelles and other animals, but none of the camel. And yet Ouenat cannot be reached in modern times by any other means than by the camel.

Another lap of 430 kilometres followed, without any wells. A heat wave again affected the caravan. Only night traveling was possible, and the weary guides often lost all direction. Hassanein and his followers were reduced to rags and in the last stage of exhaustion when they finally reached the upper reaches of the Nile with their eighteen tired camels. The journey, which altogether occupied six months of last year, extended from the Mediterranean through Kufara across the entire length of the Libyan desert and thence to Khartoum and was a valuable survey of the trade route.

FROM THE CANON'S MOUTH

ONE ambition of Canon Hay Aitken, vice-dean of Norwich Cathedral, is to beat John Wesley's record of preaching 27,000 sermons. But Father Time may intervene. The canon is eighty-two; and, starting when he was seven, he has now delivered 22,000 sermons.

"He has never preached from a written one, and as it is stated that Wesley made one sermon serve many times it is possible that the Canon has already delivered more original discourses than the great Nonconformist.

SOLVED THE PROBLEM

AT literary banquets the art is to talk of the guest of honor as if you had read all his books. On one occasion Mr. Thomas Nelson Page, the American, had to introduce Sir Hall Caine at a certain function. Just before the toasts began a guest passed his menu card with the request that Sir Hall Caine would sign it.

"That's a great idea," said Mr. Page. "I must do that too. I have to introduce him in a few minutes, and I want to be able to say I have read something he has written."

Be Wiser and Funnier Than Others Says Chauncey Depew, Now 90

And Live to Be a Hundred—Worked All Day and Talked All Night, and Was As Fit As a Fiddle Next Day—"Stick, Dig, Save," His Advice to Young Men

"If I have lived longer than others," said Chauncey M. Depew to P. W. Wilson on the eve of his ninetieth birthday last week, "it has been because I had the will to be wiser than others. Take eating. Most people eat what they like. I only eat what likes me. There are many things that I like which I don't touch. And the result is that the machine works without my thinking of it."

"But at banquets?" "Pass the rich stuff that will only do you harm."

For years Mr. Depew has touched neither alcohol nor tobacco. He is thus an auto-prohibitionist.

"Recreations?"

"There again—when Commodore Vanderbilt asked me to join him in 1866, there were only 20,000 miles of railroad in the United States and about 160 miles on what has become the New York Central. We have now 10,000 miles on the New York Central and 300,000 miles in the United States. This has meant a stiff day's work for all concerned, and not least for me when I was president of a railroad employing 150,000 men. Now, many of my colleagues carried their work with them day and night, and came to the office in the morning still tired with the fatigue of the previous day. That was not my practice. Naturally, I felt the stress and strain of dealing with so immense a mass of workers and of serving the public while satisfying the stockholders who owned the railroad. But at five in the afternoon I left all these things behind. I went home and took a nap for ten minutes—to which habit I had trained myself—and then I turned to quite another interest in life."

"Which was—"

Always Arrived Late for Speeches

PUBLIC speaking, I enjoyed it, and would dine out five nights a week. I had an excellent reference library. And I would walk up and down gathering ideas and allusions to the topic of the evening. Usually I arrived at the table late, and they used to say that I did this to get the applause. But the real reason was that I had to have my speech in hand. I insisted on being called on early in the program—even if it was not my turn—and so I got home by eleven. Next morning when I reached the office I was as fit as a fiddle. You see, I had used a different set of intellectual muscles. And the brain that I needed for business was thus rested."

That the speeches were a success was indicated by the fact that hundreds of requests came from persons who wanted Mr. Depew to prepare their speeches as well as his own.

It is to his humorous way of looking on life, as well as to his rules about eating, that Mr. Depew attributes his long life, according to Mr. Wilson, in the New York Times.

"My grandfather," explained Mr. Depew, "died of worry, and my father died of worry, and I was dying of worry when I decided to take up humor—to see the genial and amusing side of life. And I found that the mind controls the body. It was humor that saved my health."

Gave Up Tobacco, Bought House

"If a young man were starting life, what I would be your advice to him?"

"Three words," came the prompt rejoinder—"stick, dig, save."

"I can understand sticking; I can understand saving; but what do you mean by digging?"

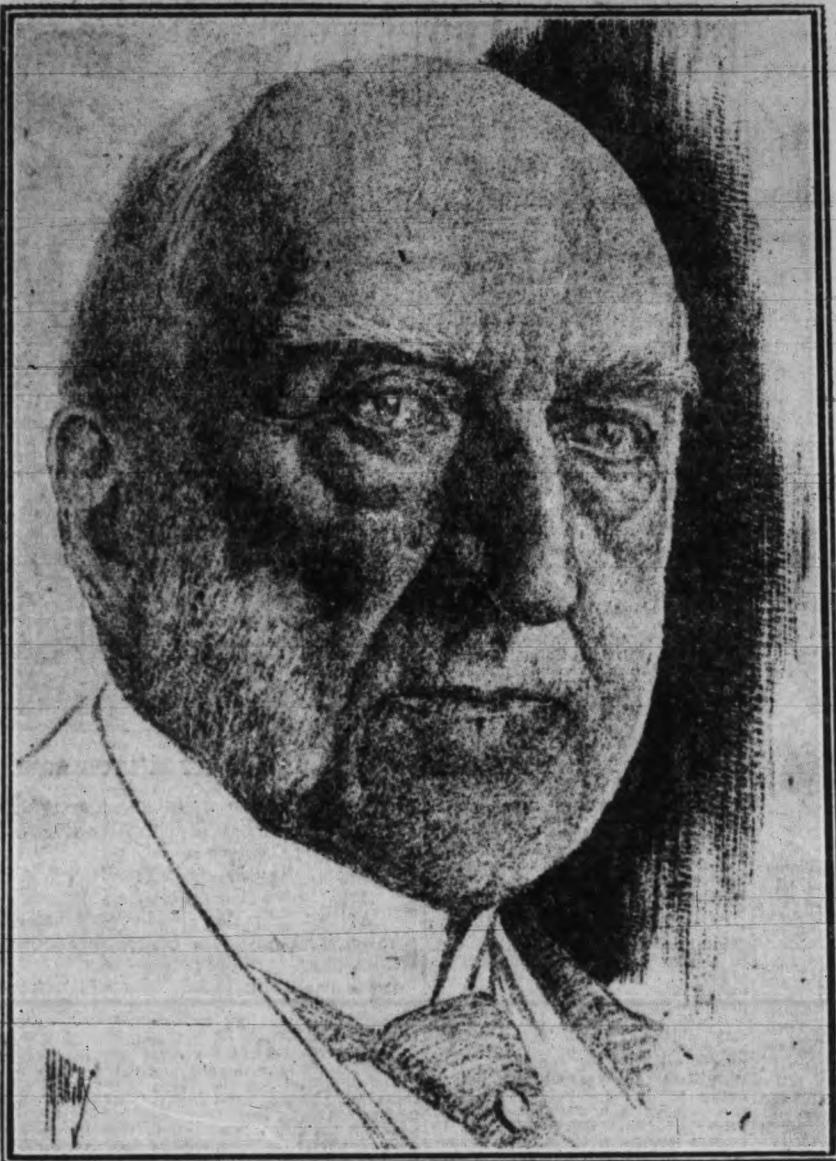

"I mean this," Mr. Depew said. "Let us suppose that a man is employed in a great organization. He should be ready to help all around him. The more willing he is, the likelier he is of promotion. It is the ready man who is wanted."

"So with sticking. A man may not be wholly satisfied with the career he has chosen, but he can adapt himself to it. And by 'saving'—my third word—he will find that nothing promotes independence so surely as does a balance at the bank."

Mr. Depew once boasted that he bought Surgeon-General Hammond's house in Fifty-fourth

"Light at Eventide"—The Lord Chancellor's Mother at Ninety-Nine. SO old and yet so alert is she that she still writes daily to the Lord Chancellor, her son, Viscount Haldane. Mrs. Haldane, indeed, is so vigorous that she can read without glasses, her son's compactly-thought-out book on Relativity, which she is seen holding in this charming portrait by Olive Edie, F.R.P.S. Interested in everything going on around her, not the least in politics, she still reads and writes French with the greatest ease. Her character is so strong that someone once said she would make a splendid judge. Indeed, people who come to be nice to her, end by telling her all their troubles and getting her advice. She is full of courage not only for herself, but for others. That is why her room has most fittingly been called the Chamber of Peace. Of this beautiful old lady, with white hair and wonderful eyes, it has been finely said that "her face is a magnet for a former life and a love-letter to all mankind."

Chauncey M. Depew on his Ninetieth Birthday

street out of what he saved on giving up tobacco.

To this day you will find Chauncey M. Depew in his office of a morning at 10.30 o'clock to the minute. When I saw him there in the afternoon, he had been actively shopping in a department store. True, he carries a stick, but the tap-tap of that stick on the corridor is as sharp and prompt as a ticker or an automobile signal.

For many years Mr. Depew acted as a kind of unofficial ambassador to Britain. Everybody—King Edward, Gladstone, Rosebery, Salisbury—was glad to be his host, and what he said about the United States was received as gospel. Indeed, he knew Gladstone better at the dinner table than on the platform, and his admiration for that great man is not untinged by a hint of criticism.

"Gladstone was a monologist—except when he met you first. Then he would proceed with marvelous skill to draw from you in one hour all the special information of your business which it had taken you a lifetime to acquire. When next you met him you would be interested to hear the great man retail what you had told him as if the knowledge were entirely his own."

As a matter of fact Mr. Depew resembles Gladstone, and was once photographed in London as Gladstone's double.

Sitting in his chair, complacent, comfortable and contented—Mr. Depew thus took from his memory, one by one, the puppets of history and again the once omnipotent marionettes were vitalized. After all, Gladstone may have been four times prime minister, and King Edward ("whom I knew since he was a boy") may have ruled an empire, but neither of them lived to be 90—that's the point!

EARNED HIS TIP

THE wife of the new first lord of the admiralty, Viscountess Chelmsford, tells an amusing story of the time when her husband was viceroy of India.

A party of English ladies, friends of hers, were being conducted by a native attendant over that wonderful mausoleum, the Taj Mahal.

When they had seen everything, and were about to take their departure, the leader of the party hesitated a moment, and then turned to the guide and said:

"I see that by the rules 'tips are forbidden.' 'Most honorable mem-sahib,' replied the native, salaaming low, 'what you say is true. Tips are forbidden, but so also, they tell me, were apples in the Garden of Eden.'

"How is that?" he asked.

The shopman shrugged his shoulders apologetically.

"Well, sir," he explained, "it always happens here when a dinner is given by the lord mayor to the gentlemen of the press."

NO DRESS SUITS

THE well-known newspaper proprietor, Sir William Ewart Berry, tells a good story concerning a friend of his who was bidden to the annual press dinner at Liverpool given by the lord mayor.

To his annoyance, when about to dress at his hotel for the function, he discovered that his evening clothes had not been sent on.

In this dilemma he had recourse to a shop-recommended by the hotel porter—where he was assured that dress suits of all sizes could be hired.

But here a disappointment awaited him. The proprietor's whole stock of evening clothes, it transpired, had already been hired out.

"How is that?" he asked.

The shopman shrugged his shoulders apologetically.

"Well, sir," he explained, "it always happens here when a dinner is given by the lord mayor to the gentlemen of the press."

THE PARSON AND THE PIG

FAMOUS as the author of "Onward, Christian Soldiers," the late Rev. S. Baring-Gould, told a quaint story of an old Cornish woman who was worried about the health of her favorite pig, and asked him to say a prayer over it.

He suggested that it might be as well if she brought a "vet" to the animal, but she had such faith that he went to the pigsty and thus addressed the porker:

"O pig, if thou livest thou livest; but, O pig, if thou diest thou diest."

The animal got well and strong, and the old lady believed that it was the parson who cured it!

INTERPRETING HER

A DELIGHTFUL story, reminiscent possibly of his own schooldays, was told recently by General Sir Ian Hamilton.

It concerned a lady who drove up in a beautifully-appointed motor-car to the entrance of the football field of a certain big public school. Alighting from her car she called to one of the boys, and said, "Will you tell the Hon. Algonson de Montmorency that his mother, Lady Fitzwalter, wishes to see him?"

A moment later the boy was heard shouting, "Stinker, your mother's landed?"

South Perth Electors Know Irvine's Record

Saying of His Mother Proved True—Governor-General Wrote on Her 92nd Birthday

MCCAUSLAND IRVINE, M.P.P. for South Perth, is one of a family of twelve children, all of whom are still living. His mother was that noted old lady whom the governor-general honored by sending her this personal letter during the war which ran as follows:

Feb. 2nd, 1916.

Dear Madam: The Governor-General has heard that tomorrow, February 3rd, is your ninety-second birthday, and desires me to send you his congratulations and best wishes.

His Royal Highness has heard with much interest of the large number of socks you have been able to knit for the soldiers and also of your four grandsons who are now serving in the Canadian forces.

I am dear madame yours faithfully, Arthur F. Sladin, private secretary.

Mrs. Irvine, R. R. 1, St. Mary's, Ont.

Of this family, several won distinction but Mac, as he is familiarly called, remained on the old homestead, and cared for his aged mother, until she died at Easter time, 1915.

This devout old lady prayed earnestly for her children, but the boy at home was always her richest blessing.

A gathering of women at a social afternoon tea were discussing the clever points of their families, but Mrs. Irvine remained silent. One lady turning to her said: "Have you nothing to say in favor of your family?" she calmly answered, "They'll speak for themselves."

This saying proved true in McCausland's life when he was honored by electors of South Perth as their choice for member of Parliament.

BOOTH EXPLAINS SON'S GENEROSITY WITH TIPS

Veteran Lumber King Gave Only the Regulation Fee to the Hotel Stable Boy

M R. J. R. Booth, the veteran Ottawa lumber king whose granddaughter recently became Prince Erik's bride was in the habit of leaving his horse and buggy in charge of the stable boy at one of Ottawa's hostels. Twenty-five cents was the stable boy's regular tip.

Mr. Booth's son, Mr. J. Fred Booth, on the other hand, usually gave the boy fifty cents. The boy decided that a gentile hint to J. R. might be profitable. So on receipt of his next quarter he said, "Your son usually gives me fifty, sir!" "Ah," said Mr. Booth, smiling, "but he has a wealthy father."

HOW HE KNEW THIS SHIP

SCOTSMEN tell stories against one another with gusto but it has been reserved for no less a personage than the Marquess of Aberdeen to start broadcasting them.

Here, for instance, is one and to an Aberdeen audience, too!

An old pilot at a certain port of entry professed to be able to tell the home port of any incoming vessel within a reasonable distance by what seamen still call "the cut of her jib," meaning thereby her general appearance, and did so.

To test his powers still further, however, an onlooker called his attention to one in the far distance.

The pilot gazed long and earnestly, and eventually pronounced her to be an Aberdeen boat. He proved to be right, and a chorus of surprised voices inquired how he knew.

"No seagulls following her?" was his terse reply.

I thank Heaven that I was born poor.—Sir Ernest Pollock.

AGE OF GREAT MEN PAST SAYS WELLS TO A JAP

Celebrated English Author Writes Something More Than His Signature in Japanese Duster's Autograph Book

H. G. WELLS has his hero-worshippers. Sinclair Lewis, the celebrated author of "Main Street" and "Babbalanza," crossed the Atlantic as a young man on purpose to see Wells. Lacking the courage in the disreputable state of his clothes to knock at the author's door, he contented himself with gazing at him through the library window. But the Japanese Gentleman With a Duster went right in by appointment. His naive portraits of distinguished Englishmen now compose one of the best sellers of the season in Japan. The author is a son-in-law of Baron Goto, who lately visited England.

"With a thrilling heart I went up in the lift to the apartment of H. G. Wells," he says. "I found the great writer had just come in. 'Good morning, come in,' he hailed me. He looked at least ten years younger than his age, with keen blue eyes and light hair. His well-marked eyebrows and unstrained looks gave me a pleasant first impression."

"I thank you for giving me part of your time just before leaving for Russia," I began. "Though it may be disagreeable to you, I am a hero worshipper, and one of the greatest attractions of my visit to England was the hope of seeing you personally, as I have long been an ardent reader of your works."

"Thanks," he replied. "I admire Japan from the points of view of both peace and war. Japan did not fight for 300 years. Finding, however, the necessity of taking arms in self-defense, she rose and showed admirably excellent talent. Just as you came here in European clothes, Japan defended herself with western armament against China and Russia. If Japan had failed to do so, she would have had the fate of India."

"Cordial words flowed from his lips and the courtesy and simplicity forming the groundwork of genius seemed to create quietness in the room. I did not forget to present my autograph book."

"I shall be glad if you will write something besides your signature."

"With pleasure, but it is difficult to get an inspiration at once." Saying this, he smiled and, moving round, wrote, "All educated men are citizens of one State—the Republic of Mankind. H. G. Wells, Sept. 16, 1920, in beautiful writing."

"I wonder," I said, "how could we retain the aristocracy, which, I believe, is indispensable to make human life noble. In this respect I am with Matthew Arnold, and I want to hear your valuable opinions on this."

"Have you read my 'Research Magnificent'?"

"No, I have not," I replied. Then Mr. Wells wrote the title of the book on a slip of paper, and, turning again to me, said: "The age of great men is past." These words impressed me very deeply: I repeated it in my mind. He continued:

"Generally, men have been looking on human greatness with exaggerated respect. Shakespeare was thought to possess 150 times as much brain as ordinary men only because his literary works were so grand. But I think people are mistaken in this. The difference of human ability is not so great. Shakespeare may have had perhaps a 50 per cent. better brain than the average. The idea that a great man is necessary to lead and guide the world is a conception found only among uneducated people; it has no significance to-day. As history shows, the ancient times and the Middle Ages were the times of Emperors, great statesmen and powerful soldiers. But the history of modern times should be one of the people."

"Then what will control society?"

"The people themselves."

"No, I have not," I replied. Then Mr. Wells wrote the title of the book on a slip of paper, and, turning again to me, said: "The age of great men is past." These words impressed me very deeply: I repeated it in my mind. He continued:

HER PROPERTY

LADY WARWICK can tell many good electioneering stories. As everybody knows, her sympathies are with the Labor cause, and in the past she has often canvassed for Labor candidates.

Once, when thus engaged, she knocked at the door of a house in a mean street. Her knock was answered by a severe-looking matron, who stood with arms akimbo regarding her in no friendly spirit.

"May I see Mr. Blank?" she asked.

"You can't," replied the matron.

"But I want to see what party he belongs to," pleaded Lady Warwick.

"Well, take a good look at me," retorted the matron. "I'm the party what he belongs to!"

MADE THE PRINCE LAUGH

AT a luncheon recently at which the Prince of Wales was present, the new colonial secretary, Mr. Thomas, told a story that made H.R.H. laugh heartily.

"On my first visit to the colonial office," declared Mr. Thomas, "I presented myself in all humility at the main entrance."

The porter asked me whom I wanted to see, and I replied that I wanted to see my office; adding, by way of explanation, "I am the colonial secretary."

"He looked at me, and then, turning to another porter, said, but in a voice audible to me, 'Oh, another shell-shock patient!'"

UNIFORM SIGNS ON CANADA'S HIGHWAYS

Road Placards Uniformity in Dominion Now Almost Assured

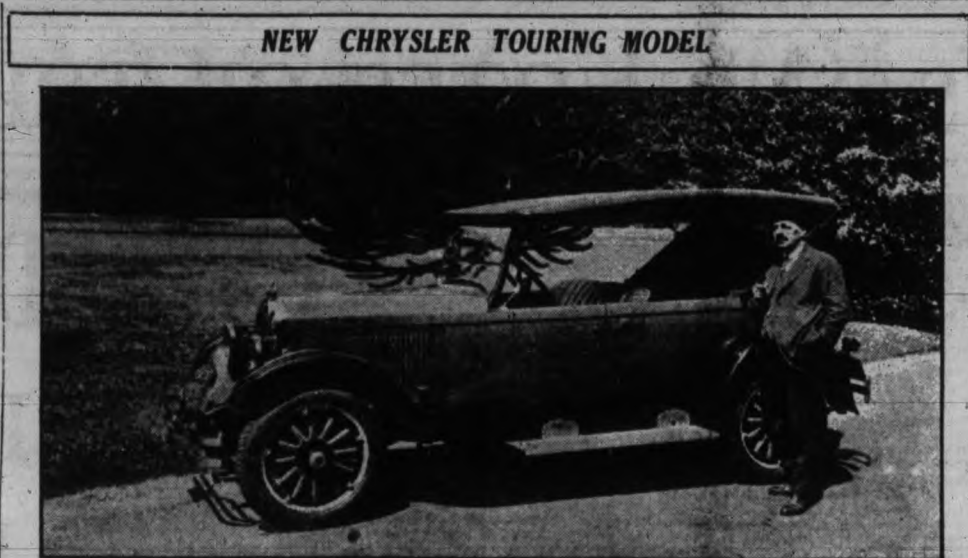

Uniformity of road signs throughout Canada in the course of a few years is practically a certainty. At the last annual meeting of the Canadian Good Roads Association held in Winnipeg a universal set of signs was adopted and this has been approved by practically every province in the Dominion. The city of Win-ipeg has approved the new type of signs and the provincial authorities, when any new signs are placed in rural sections, has signified its intention of falling into line. The new type of sign will be particularly serviceable to motor tourists who will not have to learn the meaning of the signboards in each new district traveled and by common usage they will be able to tell at a glance what each sign means. At the forthcoming convention of the Canadian Good Roads Association at St. Andrews by the Sea, on June 24, 25, 26 and 27 next, a further conference of provincial highway officials and engineers will be held to discuss other matters of uniformity regarding the use of the highways and the administration of departments on uniform lines with a view to securing greater efficiency and economy.

NEW SYSTEM OF REPAIR WORK IS NOW SUGGESTED

Flat Rate For Automobile Work Would Be Boon to Motorists

The flat rate system as applied to motor car repairing is simply a development of the modern trend of business towards the standardization of prices. For instance, if you have occasion to take a meal at a restaurant, the prices of all the dishes are clearly set forth on the bill of fare. You can accurately determine beforehand just what the prices of your meal will be. This same system can be, and is, applied to automobile repair work which is a saleable commodity just as is food or any other merchandise.

It is equipped with every modern device known to experienced experts in the automobile manufacturing business.

The flat rate system is simply the quotation of a definite fixed price for certain definite repair work. There are certain necessary steps which have to be taken in order to operate satisfactorily under this system. They are:

1. Thorough inspection of the car to accurately determine the work to be done.

2. A classified list of all possible repair operations on the car with the price for each.

The greatest advantage of the flat rate system is that the amount of work to be done and the price, are agreed upon by both the car owner and the shop owner before the work is started. This important feature of the system will eliminate a great deal of annoyance which owners frequently experience under the old system in connection with what they consider over-charging for repairs.

The flat rate price is for labor only, and any new parts necessary are supplied at an additional cost. The cost of parts, however, is well known, being listed in standard parts price list in the hands of every authorized dealer and service station. Provided the number of parts to be supplied is known, the total cost can be very easily arrived at.

Door hinges are often neglected. A drop of oil on the hinges and locks now and then will help lengthen the life of the door. When a door has to be slammed shut because the hinges are rusty or the lock action is stiff, it shakes and strains the body every time the door is shut. Oil the hinges and locks now and again, but be careful to wipe off all surplus so that it will not get on your clothes when entering the car.

NEW CHRYSLER TOURING MODEL

BALLOON TIRE IS LATEST IN FORD EQUIPMENT HERE

Revercomb Motors, Ltd., Experimenting With New Tires on Sedan

Balloon tires on a Ford car are something of a novelty in Victoria, but with a view to accepting or declining to handle such tires the Revercomb Motors Limited is testing them on one of their new Ford sedans. The car is being fitted out fully with extra "perch" balloons, with twenty-one pounds of air pressure, and will take the road today, in order to demonstrate the feasibility of balloon tires on light cars, particularly of the Ford variety.

Walter Revercomb, one of the proprietors of the Revercomb Motors Limited agents for the Ford car in Victoria, stated yesterday that the placing of the balloon tires on the company's machine was simply an experiment and that he would not care to say whether or not the Ford cars passing through his hands would be equipped in similar manner to that on display now.

These tires are of the gum-dipped cord type, which the big manufacturing concerns hold in high approval. There is a far greater air capacity in the gum-dipped cord balloon tire, for the simple reason that the pressure is so much lower than in the ordinary cord. This increase is generally obtained by reducing the size of the wheel, and leaving the outside circumference of the tire substantially the same as the ordinary type. The hush sound structure of the balloon is so flexible that it prevents localized strain, and distributes the wear over a larger surface. The flexibility of the side walls of the tire have no effect upon their service, for the tests undergone by the balloons have proved their mile-age capacity beyond doubt in the eyes of the manufacturers. The dealers have yet to prove this point for themselves. But indications are that the balloon tire has great potentialities in automobile mountings for the future. The way it carries the car and the apparent service it gives, make it a marked part of modern equipment, and satisfaction is expressed by those who have used them.

GAS TAX TAKES MILLIONS FROM MOTOR OWNERS

California Automobile Drivers Pay Millions Yearly to State

California's two-cent gasoline tax may bring the State in the grand total of approximately $15,000,000 a year.

This is the estimate made following announcement by the state board of equalization that the tax shows returns of $2,983,255.07 for the first quarter ending December 31.

Rough estimates obtained from gasoline distributing companies indicate that consumption during the six Summer months runs from forty-five to fifty per cent more than the consumption during the Winter months. This being the case, the increased number of automobiles in 1924 and the larger Summer business should see total gas receipts around $15,000,000.

The equalization board, in commenting on the gasoline tax, said: "The motor vehicle fuel tax or license on the business of distribution of fuel represents at once the most nearly scientific method of raising road revenue yet adopted by any state, and, at the same time, the method simplest and most economical of administration."

"The Californian system of collecting at the source or for the business of manufacturing, producing, distributing, etc., reduces the number of taxpayers with which the state has to deal to a minimum, thus reducing both complications and cost of administration. The entire $2,983,255.07 so far accounted for will be collected from only fifty-nine distributors and comes in amounts ranging from $298.13 to only a few dollars in some cases."

"The total shown for distributions of 149,142,753 gallons, if calculated at an average price of fifteen cents per gallon, shows expenditures for gasoline in the state of California for the quarter reached a total of $22,364,412.50, and, at the same average for the year, the sum of $89,457,651.60."

Cooling System Should Be Carefully Inspected Before Warm Weather Arrives

During the cold weather, you have probably been using an anti-freeze solution, and they usually have a certain amount of effect on the rubber of the hose connections. In addition to this the hot water circulating through them, has a tendency to rot the rubber. The outside of the hose connections may look all right, but if the car has seen very much service, the rubber skin inside the hose may have rotted and curled up, so obstructing the free flow of water through the cooling system. It is a good investment to remove both upper and lower hose connections each season and renew them. You are then sure that they will give no trouble by leaking or obstructing the flow of water through the circulating system later in the season.

If there is any mud or dirt between the fan of the radiator, take a hose with a good strong pressure behind it and flush through radiator from the rear. Before you do this, however, cover up the spark plugs and ignition system so that these parts will not get wet.

Now start the engine and if convenient take a run for a mile or so, then stop and examine to see that the radiator or hose connections are not leaking. If the radiator leaks, have a good radiator repair man repair it. Do not use any of the patent "stop leak" preparations to make a permanent repair. Most of these are all right for a temporary repair while touring, etc., but are not to be trusted for making a permanent job.

Now have a look at the Fan Belt to see that it is adjusted properly. The belt must not be kept too tight or you will have trouble with it stretching and breaking, and you will also put a strain on the fan bearing. It must not be too loose or it will slip. If the belt is adjusted correctly, you should just be able to slide the fan pulley on the belt by pressing down with moderate pressure on a fan blade. If it slips around too easily, you will find an adjustment that will enable you to increase the tension on the belt until it is correct. The belt should be inspected about once a month, and the fan bearing lubricated about once a week.

If your cooling system is of the Thermo-Syphon type, the above is all the attention it will require to put it in first class condition. If, however, you have a pump to circulate the water, fill the radiator nearly full, then start the engine and observe to see if the water in the radiator bubbles or churns when the engine is running. If it shows no sign of movement, then have it examined by a good mechanic, as it is possible that the key holding the impeller blades on the pump shaft is sheared, and the water is not circulating. This trouble is generally caused when the water in the cooling system freezes, then when the engine is started, as the impeller blades are frozen solid and cannot move, something has to go, and it is usually the key in the pump shaft.

If the water is circulating all right, then examine to see that the pump glands are not leaking. If they are, tighten the packing nut. Be careful in doing this, however, that you do not tighten it too much or you may cause the shaft to bind and cut, and the pump will then leak worse than ever. If you find you cannot stop the leak by tightening the packing nuts, then the glands will have to be replaced. To do this, unscrew the packing nut and wind a few inches of hemp that has been soaked in graphite grease around the shaft, then tighten the packing nut. If you notice that the shaft has a series of rings where the packing goes, then it may be necessary to fit a new shaft to make a good job.

NEXT WEEK—THE IGNITION SYSTEM AND WHAT TO INSPECT IN IT

When Gasoline Drips From Improper Use of Choke Causes Trouble

If you notice that when the car is standing gasoline keeps dripping from the carburetor, take the cover off the float chamber and examine the float. If the float is a metal one, shake it to see if there is gasoline inside. If there is, the float is punctured. It is much better to replace a punctured float with a new one, but if this is not possible a repair can be made as follows: Immerse the float in a bowl of very hot water, and note where bubbles arise. Make the hole slightly larger, and also punch another very small hole on the edge of the float. You can now shake out the gasoline. When it is empty, drop a small spot of solder into the hole, but be very careful not to use too much or you will upset the balance of the float. Be careful not to use very much heat or you will open up the seams in the float and ruin it. If the float is made of cork, the probability is that it is water logged. In this case dry it out in an oven with a very mild heat, then give two or three coats of shellac. If, however, the float is all right, then the drip may be caused by a small piece of grit under the float valve. This can be removed by gently spinning the valve up and down with the fingers, allowing the gasoline to wash out the seat. If the valve face or seat is badly ringed, then a new valve will have to be fitted, a job for an expert carburetor repair man.

When You Have a Breakdown on the Road

If for any reason you have a breakdown while out on the road, pull over as far as you can to the right side of the road so as to give the traffic as much room as possible to pass. Never stop near a corner or opposite another car or in such a position that you make it difficult for another car to pass you.

Preventing Rattles

Sometimes a spare wheel is carried on a bracket attached to the body and if it is not kept tightened up, will cause a most annoying rattle. Mudguards, hood fitting, under-shields, floorboards, etc., should all be kept tightened down to prevent rattling.

ESSEX

"The Car for Everyone"

says noted "MOTOR" authority

The New Essex possesses many qualities which I did not believe could be incorporated in a closed car selling for the price.

"It is a type long needed in this country. It possesses grace and beauty, can travel at sustained high speed without passenger discomfort, is surprisingly economical to operate and does not cost much to buy.

"It is unusually smooth, accelerates better than the previous Essex, which is saying a great deal, and is 'the' car for everyone."—H. A. Tarantous, in MOTOR.

Into the attic

FEW Youngsters to-day ever saw a horse-hair sofa. They wouldn't know what to do with a fire taper, carpet stretcher, or coal oil lamp. They couldn't braid rags into a rug, or wind yarn without tangling. But they know the how and why of typewriters, phonographs, telephones, automobiles; what happens when a push of the button gives light, or a kodak's flash fixes their image on paper.

Their education is as modern as the advertisements they see. They have no more use for the lamp and chimney of yesterday than you for the wick and tallow of the day before.

Advertisements induce such progress. They urge wide use that means improvement. They help you lift the out-of-date into the attic—rid you of the water buckets and soap kettles of slavery. They bring late improvements within your reach.

Read the advertisements regularly. Keep alert to the new.

Without advertising, you would never know a product's worth until you had bought it

Record Output of Motors in First Quarter of Year

Production of motor vehicles for the first quarter of 1924 totaled 1,040,755, which is the largest output on record for this period of the year. Each month exceeded the corresponding month in 1923, and the three months' total was 10 per cent above the first quarter a year ago.

The March figures, reported to the directors' meeting of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce at New York, total 354,595, slightly more than March last year, and a 2 per cent drop from February this year.

Brought on the Pacific Coast, the heavy production schedules of February and the prevalence of bad weather in many sections slowed up sales and output sharply during the early part of March. In the last two weeks, however, demand and increase in manufacture have returned.

Reports from retail trade centres throughout the country record fewer used car stocks on hand than at this time last year, with larger stocks of new cars. Dealers are carrying more new cars this Spring, since many were unable to make deliveries at the peak of demand last Summer. Few truck stocks are reported as moderate or small except in a few centres.

NEWS AND LOCAL CHURCHES

UNDERWORLD OF VANCOUVER WILL BE EXPLAINED

Dr. Davies to Tell of His Observations in Joints of Mainland City

In company with two of the most famous underworld detectives in Vancouver, one having sixteen years experience and the other twenty years close association with the underground of Vancouver's social under-strata, Dr. Clem Davies spent a night making observations of the Chinese section, hop-joint, gambling joints, the tenement district, bootlegging, and the various haunts of these places and denizens of the dark, conversed with drug addicts, Chinese gaming house keepers, and made a close personal study of the underworld of British Columbia's largest city.

Dr. Davies said that it was the most strenuous night from many standpoints, that he had even spent in his life.

While there will be nothing unsavory in his discourse on Sunday, when Dr. Davies will speak on "Vancouver's Underworld and its Lessons to Canadian Citizens," and as chaste nomenclature as possible will be used, it is thought advisable that adults only should hear the sermon and on those grounds the sermon will not be sent broadcast over the church's radio plant.

The anniversary of the Sunday School will be celebrated in the morning and afternoon. In the morning Dr. Davies will speak to the young people of the congregation particularly on the subject, "Why Should Young People be Christians?" The sermon will constitute a frank and compelling presentation of the claims of the church, and its programme upon the interests and lives of the youth of the land. In place of the regular Sunday School session on Sunday afternoon the anniversary exercises will take place. A pantomime pageant, "The Passerby and the Flowers" by a group of little girls will be presented, and Dr. Davies will address the school.

In place of the vested choir a chorus of young men will occupy the choir loft at the evening service, and the echo song, a unique feature which was introduced into a Sunday night service some time ago will be repeated.

Special Preachers At Christ Church

The Rev. J. M. Comyn Ching, rector of Christ Church, Edmonton, will be the preacher at the 11 o'clock service on Sunday morning in Christ Church Cathedral. At the evening service at 7 o'clock, the sermon will be preached by the Venerable F. H. Graham, Archbishop of Kootenay.

Mr. Comyn Ching, who arrived in Victoria this week, will have charge of Sunday services in Christ Church Cathedral for a period of two months, during the absence of Dean Quinton in England.

MOTHERS' DAY

Sunday, May 11 will be recognized on this continent as "Mother's Day." There never was a day in the history of the world where there was greater need for endeavoring to strengthen the ties of family life and to recognize the sacredness of motherhood. It occurs at times that the mothers of great men in the history of the world are remembered, but every mother in every home in the land puts the nation under a debt of gratitude for it is from such these possibilities of all noble living come, and we do well to turn our minds to the debt we owe to the love and patience and care bestowed upon us in life's tender years.

Mother's Day works a special opportunity for us in this regard. Let us go to the House of God, and honor our mother's presence or memory by devotion and worship before God who has given us all the priceless gift of a good mother. The morning service at Metropolitan will be a combination of the regular morning devotion and the Sunday School exercises. Those present will wear a white flower in honor of mother's memory and others a red flower if mother is still with them in the life that is. Make Mother's Day a happy day by your thought of mother and go and tell her you love her as of yore and that she is one of the best mothers in the world to-day.

Jubilee Year of Baptist Mission Work in India

The Baptists of Canada are holding a series of meetings throughout all the provinces to celebrate the fifty years of independent missionary work in India. This does not mean that they have been engaged in missionary work for only fifty years as a matter of fact they have been active in foreign mission work for over a century. To the Baptists goes the honor of sending the first missionaries that ever sailed from British North America, and the first single lady missionary in the history of missions. For fifty years the Baptists of Canada have had an independent mission in India among 5,000,000 Telegus along the west coast of the Bay of Bengal.

The jubilee meetings were launched in Massey Hall, Toronto, on Monday, April 7. It had been proposed to raise a special fund of $50,000. At the close of the meetings in Toronto it was announced that $33,000 had already been pledged. It is now confidently expected that the fund will reach $100,000.

After the Toronto meetings a series of celebrations carried on in the Maritime Provinces, and are now being held in the various centres of the West.

The distinguished natives of India, Dr. Joshee and Dr. Eva D'Praxer, both of whom are Baptist missionaries, accompanied by the return missionary, Rev. J. B. McLaurin, are visiting these various centres to aid in the celebration of the jubilee. Dr. Joshee, in addition to carrying on a very large practice, is mayor of his home city. Dr. D'Praxer is a lady physician of prominence, and has come to Canada at her own expense to aid in the jubilee meetings. Mr. McLaurin is the son of the pioneer missionary, Rev. John McLaurin, who opened the work in India in 1874.

The Baptists of Victoria will hold their celebration next Wednesday, May 15, when the three visitors will be in the city. A reception will be held in First Baptist Church, corner Yates and Quadra, at 2:15 on the arrival of the boat from Vancouver. Dr. D'Praxer will be the chief speaker at this meeting.

The evening session will be held in Emmanuel Church at 8 o'clock, when all three visitors will speak.

The music will be under the leadership of Fred Parfitt, with a combined choir from the Baptist churches of the city. The public are invited to all these meetings.

ST. BARNABAS

On Sunday night at St. Barnabas Church there will be a Confirmation Service, with special music. The service will start 7 p.m.

Grace English Church Now Has Junior Choir

Rev. Theodore A. Jansen, the new pastor of the Grace English Evangelical Church, corner of Blanshard and Queen's Avenue, has already inaugurated himself in the hearts of his congregation.

Since Pastor Jansen there has been a marked increase in the attendance of the church and the services have been well patronized. Under the leadership of Arthur E. Reading, the organist, the training of the newly formed junior choir has been most successful.

Vestments have been provided for the choir and next Sunday morning this choir will be in attendance to lead the singing. The large choir will be welcomed.

Mrs. T. A. Jansen has become attached to the church and is taking with her a number of friends who have already made many friends in this city.

ISAIAH AND THE ASSYRIAN CRISIS
II Kings, Chapters xviii-xx. Isaiah, Chapters xxxvi-xxxviii

A paragraph about the man and his time. Isaiah prophesied to Judah, the southern and much smaller kingdom, as Elijah had prophesied to the northern and much more powerful kingdom of Israel. Judah was a petty state, back among the hills and away from the great lines of travel and traffic between the east and west; northern Israel was right on the main thoroughfare, and all the armies marching between Egypt and Assyria found her across their tracks. The world Empires of that day were Egypt and Assyria, with Babylon for a time Assyria's powerful rival; of the three, Assyria was all-conquering. The two things which Isaiah's mind were ever impinging on his own people against the forces playing about them, and the Omnipotence of his God, Judah could do nothing of herself, but Judah's God held down all the world activities to a divine purpose and made them serve the interests of His Kingdom. Isaiah's message is always a summons to trust and obedience, and Jehovah will bring His people through.

He dates his call by the death of King Uzziah. This king was the conquering hero of the South as Jeroboam II was of the North, and they were contemporaries. Like Jeroboam, he was succeeded by weaker men, but while Jeroboam's successors were wicked, and landed the nation in a rout, Uzziah's successors were a resolute defender of his realm, even though not as great as his father, and Hezekiah, though anything but a genius, was a soldier-saint of the most heroic and devoted type. Between these two was Ahaz, a weakling.

Isaiah's ministry originated in the vision of God seated in chapters 6 & 7. It came to him in the year of King Uzziah's death. King Uzziah had been smitten with leprosy while trying to pierce his way into the holy place, the temple, and he died a leper's death in separation from his people. That tragedy brought Isaiah's hope down with a crash. To a youthful patriot, like Isaiah, imaginative and devoted beyond his years, the conquering king was the light of his eyes and the hope of his soul. Uzziah's achievements proved that God meant the best for Judah, and here was God's instrument. Now he is gone, he has no successor and everything goes with him. At the moment when all his earthly expectations had tumbled into the veil of the temple was swept aside before the seer's eyes, and there sat Jehovah, enthroned surrounded by the heavenly host. From that time on, Isaiah's hopes centered in God alone. The best earth could offer had broken under the weight of its own success; God alone was the foundation firm enough for the people's safety. God cleansed him, and then called him into His service in a way that brought out Isaiah's own initiative, and from that time onward he is God's man in a trying and sinful age.

The core of his message is—"Trust in God and keep faith with man. The one involves the other. Steadiness, diligence and faith ought to characterize the nation that has with it the God of all the earth. It does not need to be excited about the schemes or threats of petty princelings or to change its course because of the movements of the irresistible; God is in command. The conduct of His people should be worthy of Him; no matter what other breeds may do, what He is, His people ought to be.

For example, during a brief pause in Assyria's westward march, the kings of Northern Israel and of Syria combined against Judah (Isaiah 7). Either of them alone was more than a match for Ahaz' little state and together their might was overwhelming, and, says Isaiah, "the heart of the king trembled, and the heart of the people, as the trees of the forest tremble with the wind." (Isaiah 7:2) Ahaz decided to call on the king of Assyria for help; it seemed the only way out of the danger. This meant sending him the treasure available, and accepting him as his overlord. Against this proposal Isaiah remonstrated with all the earnestness

NATURE NOTES
By ROBERT CONNELL

THE PAGEANT OF SUMMER
Nature's wonderful annual moving picture is upon the screen. "There is neither speech nor language, and yet who shall say that no voices are heard in the wonderland of plants? Far more refined than ours might well be their sense of color, and the background of diverse greens. The large fringe-cup, Tellima grandiflora, is opening its curious fringed flowers of pink or white, which near by the meadow are brilliant with the red of the Heuchera micrantha, is preparing to show its panicles of creamy white blossoms. The Achillea with its odd-shaped three-lobed leaf, so well known for its vanilla-like perfume, is in bud and will soon lift above its foliage delicate spikes of perfumed flowers. On rocky hills the tufted saxifrage, S. caespitosa, is already in blossom, one of the most charming of true alpine plants. In the woods where the ground is damp the wild lily-of-the-valley, Maianthemum is in bloom, in bud and will soon be a pretty sight, so thick are the plants in favorable places. Near by may be found the smaller False Solomon's Seal, Smilacina asarifolia. Overhead the Dogwood gleams in the woods with innumerable white leaves which enclose the flower groups, and its roots are in places especially within reach of the silvery white blossoms of the Arbutus you will be sure to enjoy its rich perfume of honey. And while trilliums, the Spring lilies, the rock peacocks and the sayrinchins are almost gone, the blue of camass and the gold of innumerable buttercups.

A PRETTY PARASITE
In our minds something quite visibly unwholesome looking as well as unwholesome being. And it is for the most part a parasite on a certain silvery charm about Indian Pipe. At the present time, however, it is to be seen in grassy places especially on rocky hillsides. The purple Broomrape is only a stem crowned with a few flowers, whose roots rather thick rootstock. It is parasitic on the roots of other plants from which, in the manner of parasites, it draws its sustenance. The consequence of this habit of life is that it has no green leaves for it is innocent in that that expenditure of energy by which, with subtle chemistry, the chlorophyll of the leaf co-operates with the sun in the production of starch and sugar for the plant's needs. The little broomrape is only three or four inches high, does not work, but at least it brightens up the grass with its flowers, whose rich blue-purple is modified with yellow. The family to which it belongs is far gone in parasitism; all its members prey upon plant society. Except for a very slight difference in structure they are singularly like the Scrophulariaceae, a highly reputable house, which includes some of the handsomest wild and garden flowers, such as the veronica, snapdragon, foxglove, columbinus and eye-bright.

CHILD'S STORY OF THE HUMAN RACE

By Uncle Ray

GIVING FACES TO SKULLS

"How can bones help us know the people of the olden days looked like?" This question was contained in the letter of a child who is reading

This man lived many many years ago. His skull gives us an idea of how his face once looked.

this series. The answer is: "Bones can never tell us exactly how these people appeared, but they give us a good idea of the size and shape of the heads and bodies."

To show you how scientists often go about such work, we are publishing the picture of a skull covered with clay. This skull belonged to a man of the early days. It was found in a cave in the little village of Cro-Magnon, France. The cave was discovered by workmen who were building a road in the village. Look carefully at the picture. On the left side, the skull itself can be seen. In the right, you see the clay modeled outside the skull. The modeling was done by a man who had studied this subject deeply. He could tell how the face probably looked. Near his skeleton, he discovered other skeletons were found. Two of these belonged to young men, another was of a woman whose forehead bore the mark of a wound from some heavy blow. Pieces of a child's skeleton were also unearthed in this cave.

These people lived years ago. Much older skeletons have been found, but the people of the Cro-Magnon cavern are of special interest because they lived during the time these remarkable cave paintings and engravings were made. The Cro-Magnon men were rather tall, average about five feet eleven inches. They had broad faces, but their noses appear to have been narrow and good-looking. Their lower jaw was thick and strong. Their shin bones were long, which points to swiftness of foot. Best of all, their skulls prove that their brains were much larger than those of most men who had lived in previous ages. This fact fits in well with their fine ability as artists and makers of stone tools.

Many more skeletons of people who lived at about the same time have been found in other places. For instance, in four caves near Grimaldi were fourteen skeletons of people related in race to the Cro-Magnon. The average height of the men in this group was six feet one and one-half inches. Some of the other men of that age were not so tall. For instance, seventeen skeletons were dug up in the cave of Aurignac, France. The men average only five feet three inches in height.

STORY IN A BULL'S BONES

In a museum at Copenhagen, Denmark, there is preserved the skeleton of a wild bull which grazed in the fields of Denmark a great many years ago. The bones of this animal were found in the bed of a dried-up lake. With the remains were several arrow-heads. Two of the ribs showed the mark of arrow wounds. One would have healed before the animal died. The other had never healed. Imbedded in the bone was still a piece of the flint arrow-head.

The drawing represents the hunter preparing to send a last arrow at the bull in the lake.

What story lies back of this skeleton? Something like the following: A hunter was seeking prey. He heard a bull and sent an arrow at it. The arrow missed the bull, which began running away with all its might. The hunter shot another arrow, and this time struck the animal in the upper part of one of its ribs. The wound was slight, however. The bull kept running and escaped. In time the wound healed.

On another day, this same wild creature was out browsing in a meadow. A hunter carrying a bow and a number of arrows happened along. He saw the bull, fitted an arrow in his bow, and sent it whizzing through the air. The brute was struck in the lower part of one of its ribs. The wound was serious but not mortal. The hunter gave chase, firing arrow after arrow—sometimes hitting, sometimes missing. The bull left a trail of blood as it ran. Finally, he came to a lake and plunged in. Reaching the shore—hot and angry—the hunter sent another arrow at his intended victim. This arrow sank home. The bull kept swimming bravely, but loss of blood and the last cruel arrow wound proved too much. It gasped and gave up—sinking to the bottom of the lake.

The hunter saw the animal sink and was vexed. He realized that it would be foolish to go far out in the lake and try to recover the carcass. So he turned away and sought other game. The time came when the hunter died, as did his children and children's children. Many years passed. The lake began drying up, and there was a marsh where it had been. Shrubbery and trees grew in the marsh. As many centuries rolled by, this plant life died away. The stalks and branches and leaves were formed into dry peat, which people burn nowadays. One day in recent years, a man was digging up some of this peat. About ten feet down, he discovered the skeleton of the bull! The bones were examined carefully, and tell us the story I have just related.

WHEN MEN MOVED UPON LAKES

In the year 1854 it didn't rain for a long time in Switzerland. This caused the lakes to dry up around the shores. People living in a bay of the Lake of Zurich decided to take advantage of the low water and enlarge their gardens. They dredged the bay, but to their surprise they struck against posts which had been driven in the bottom of the lake! Who had put these posts there? That was the question. Scientists were asked to find out. They discovered that in the mud around these posts were stone tools. Other lakes were dredged. In their bottoms, also, posts were discovered. Remains of an early people were found in lakes of England, Germany and Italy, but Switzerland proved the great centre of discovery. In one Swiss lake were thirty-two groups of posts, in another forty-nine groups.

What did each group mean? It meant a lake village had been there. Tens of thousands of men, women, and children built homes on lakes. To do so, they cut tree trunks into posts from 10 to 30 feet long. Each post was pointed at one end. Sometimes wading, sometimes paddling in their heavy tree-trunk canoes, they carried the posts out into the lake and pounded them into the lake bottom. Over the tops they built platforms with tree trunks which had been smoothed by stone axes, hatchets and chisels.

The next step was to build huts on top of the platforms. The picture will give you an idea of how some of these huts are believed to have looked. They were more substantial than most of the huts built on the land in previous times. In some lake villages there were hundreds of huts. From each village, one or more platforms led to the shore. Many pottery jars, dishes and bowls have been uncovered where the villages once stood. Bone hooks are also among the debris. Some indicated that the lake-dwellers used to fish from their houses. Wooden boats and pieces of fishing nets were found from mud. Some of the fish nets were made of straw, others of flax fibres.

LAKE DWELLERS AND THEIR HERDS

Why do you suppose thousands of people built hut villages over the surface of lakes in Switzerland, northern Italy and other parts of Europe? The main reason must have been a desire for safety. There was now a special cause for fear. Lake-dwellers owned herds of animals which might be killed by wolves or bears, or stolen by members of other tribes. We have already spoken of tame horses, sheep and goats. Great numbers of oxen and a few boars

(pig ancestors) had also been tamed. Bones of all these animals have been found in the mud around the stakes and posts which once held up the huts. The bones of oxen were most numerous. The remains of many wild animals have also been found in the lake mud. Brown bears, badgers, martens, wolves, foxes, wildcats, beavers, bison and deer were the tell which animals were tame and animals killed most often by the lake-dwellers. The ability of men of science to trace the wild is a great marvel. One way they do it is by noticing

How to Make Happy

Happy the Hottentot has a very simple Spring outfit of clothes, one that you can surely make as well as Happy himself. If you are a bit used to sewing. You have most of the makings if the scrapbag will furnish a piece of tan or black cloth about seven by eight inches. To transfer onto tan, use a sheet of carbon paper between this pattern and your cloth. For black you must prick holes along all lines, then mark through with chalk. Do all embroidering before cutting into the dotted lines.

Happy must have white eyeballs, with black pupils. The hair is black yarn or darning cotton in many French knots. The mouth should be red, the bracelet and French-knot beads just any bright color. If he is a tan Hottentot, all the other markings like arms and legs may be a black outline stitch, but if his complexion is clear black, better do these lines in white or tan.

His "dress" can be made any of several ways. It may be a real calico, applique patch fitted on now before he is cut, and sewed into the side seam. Or Happy may be made up without clothing and a "mala-bula" skirt put on him when finished. To make this kind, knot numerous 3-inch lengths of yarn at the middle onto a sash piece that ties about his waist. These inch and a half wisps should be pushed close together, and all turned down of course.

To sew him up turn the embroidered sides in and stitch tightly around to the outside edges of his toes. Turn, and stuff with cotton or fine rags. A full length strip of cardboard, wide as his neck and rounded like the top of his head may first be inserted for stiffness. Fold in the edges and overcast the bottoms of his feet.

A barbarously decorative finishing touch may be given by adding ear-rings. These may be brass or bone rings, sewed onto his ears or beads that dangle down. And the beads around his neck might be real ones, too, sewed on a stitch to a bead.

How to Cook Eggs

Eggs in the Springtime

Eggs are cheaper and more wholesome in the Spring than at any other time. A raw egg is a perfect food, but hardly anybody likes to just take them from the shell without "fakin'". However, an egg beaten in a tumbler, a level teaspoon of sugar, a sprinkle of cinnamon and then the glass filled up with cold sweet milk, makes a drink that is better than most things we buy at the soda fountain.

Eggs for Breakfast

Poached: Have a saucepan nearly full of boiling water to which has been added a scant tablespoonful each of vinegar and salt. Stir the rapidly boiling water round and round then break one egg into the centre of the whirl and cook three minutes. Poached eggs have to be cooked one at a time, and are usually served on buttered toast.

Boiled: To soft-boil eggs, put them into boiling water, then set on a slow fire for three minutes.

small differences in the bones. For instance, certain bones of wild boars found in the mud around the stakes and posts which once held up the huts. The bones of oxen were most numerous. The remains of many wild animals have also been found in the lake mud. Brown bears, badgers, martens, wolves, foxes, wildcats, beavers, bison and deer were the tell which animals were tame and

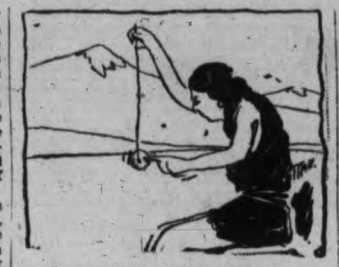

There must have been headmen among the lake-dwellers to take care of the sheep, goats and oxen while they grazed during the daytime. Perhaps this work was given to boys and old men, so the stronger members of the tribe could go hunting.

At night the animals were driven upon platforms built over the water, near the hut village. Shelters were made to protect them from rain in Summer and from snow and icy winds in Winter. Railings kept the beasts from tumbling in to the water while being driven back and forth.

THE FIRST SPINNING WHEELS

The flax-plant grows wild in many parts of Europe, usually standing about two feet high. Members of the tribes which dwell in the Swiss lake villages learned that the inner bark of the flax stalk could be separated into long thin strands. They also found that these strands could be made into thread.

To get the best results, the stalk had to be soaked in water for several days, then dried in the sun and cracked open. After that was done, to a bunch of flax stalks, hundreds of thin strands of flax—each eighteen or twenty inches long—were obtained. To make the strands strong enough for thread, they were twisted. The twisting was first done between the fingers, but this was too slow. Someone tied a stone or pebble at one end of a flax strand, and spun it around. This gave the strand a very good twist, but was clumsy.

Later it was learned that a round stone would spin best, and that a hole in the middle made it easier to fasten the strand. At this point, the spinning-wheel was invented. The first spinning-wheels, were small round stones, from one to two inches in diameter. Many of these have been found in the ruins of Swiss lake dwellings.

Other spinning-wheels were made of clay, and many of these have also been found. Flax thread wound about a small round stick was found beside one clay spinning-wheel. It is one of the first spools of thread there ever was.

TRUTH WILL OUT

Every second Thursday was Mrs. Jones' "at home" day. It was her habit on these occasions to start receiving her friends at 3 o'clock and give them tea at 5 o'clock.

On this particular Thursday her little son, Tommy, had a half-holiday, and so his mother told him that, if he was very good, he might come in and have tea with the visitors.

"Mother," he said, as the cake was being handed round, "can I have some tongue, please?"

"There isn't any tongue, dear," answered Mrs. Jones, with a fond smile.

"That's funny," commented Tommy; "father said there would be plenty of it."

SILENCE GOLDEN

"What do you make a week?" asked a magistrate of an Italian organ-grinder who was complaining of boys throwing stones at him.

"Four pounds, sare."

"Oh, what? Four pounds for grinding an organ?"

"No, sare; not for da grind—for to shut up and go away!"

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggily and Buddie's Bug

(Copyright, 1924, by McClure News paper Syndicate)

By Howard R. Garis.

"Wait for me, Uncle Wiggily. Please wait for me!" called a voice to the bunny rabbit gentleman one morning.

Mr. Longears was hopping along, twinking his pink nose so fast as never was, but when he heard the voice he stopped.

"I believe it will be safe for me to wait," he said to himself. "I hardly think it can be the Fox or Wolf. They wouldn't say please."

The old gentleman rabbit looked around and waited until he saw Buddie Pigg, brother of Brighteyes, the little guinea pig girl, running along the path and wagging his tail behind him.

"Oh, no! Excuse me! I forgot. Guinea pigs haven't any tail so they can't wag it; can they? Anyhow, if Buddie had had a tail he would have wagged it for he felt very happy because Uncle Wiggily was waiting for him."

"Hello, Buddie!" laughed Mr. Longears in his jolly voice as the little guinea pig boy caught up to him. "Why are you in such a hurry?"

"I don't want to be late for school," answered Buddie. Uncle Wiggily said that was a good way to feel about it, and he noticed that Buddie was carrying a little round pill box.

"I hope you aren't ill, Buddie, and must carry medicine pills to school," spoke Uncle Wiggily, as he hopped along beside the brother of Brighteyes.

"Oh, no!" whistled Buddie, for guinea pigs whistle when they talk.

However, Uncle Wiggily thought Uncle Wiggily what was in the box, except to say it wasn't pills, and the rabbit gentleman thought to himself:

"I guess it must be Buddie's lunch. But is a very small one, hardly enough for a baby mosquito. But perhaps Brighteyes, who went on to school a little while ago, is taking Buddie's lunch with her."

Then, thinking no more about it, Uncle Wiggily hopped along with Buddie until they reached a flat stump near where some beautiful flowers nodded their heads in the breeze.

"Let's stop here a minute and rest," said Buddie. "I'm all out of breath from going so fast, Uncle Wiggily."

"All right," agreed the rabbit uncle. "We have plenty of time and while you are resting I will gather some flowers for the Lady Mouse Teacher in the Hollow Stump School."

Buddie sat on the stump, putting his little round pill box beside him, and as Uncle Wiggily gathered flowers the flowers the rabbit heard the little guinea pig boy say:

"We'll soon be at school."

"Hum! He must be talking to himself," thought Uncle Wiggily, for he saw no one near Buddie.

After a few minutes were gathered Mr. Longears hopped along with Buddie again until they came to a place where a brook ran bubbling over green, mossy stones.

"Let's sit here and rest a minute, Uncle Wiggily," begged Buddie. "I am tired and there is still lots of time before the last bell will ring."

"All right," said the rabbit gentleman. "You sit on the log beside the brook, Buddie, and I will get the flowers I gathered so they will be fresh and lovely for the Lady Mouse Teacher."

While Uncle Wiggily was doing this the rabbit heard the little guinea pig boy say:

"I'll soon let you out and you may sit on teacher's desk."

"This is queer," thought Uncle Wiggily to himself. "I wonder to whom Buddie is talking. I see no one with him—only the school box on the log. Perhaps he is reciting a piece he is going to speak in school—yes, that must be it."

Uncle Wiggily stepped up from the bank of the brook, with the flowers freshened from their bath in the water, and just as the rabbit was going to hop on to the school, out from the bushes stepped the Bushy Bear.

"Ho! Ho!" growled the Bear, "where are you going, Uncle Wiggily?"

"I am going to the school with Buddie," answered the rabbit.

"No! No! You are going to stop here with me!" growled the Bear. "I shall let Buddie go on to school, but not you, Uncle Wiggily!"

The little guinea pig boy arose from the log. Suddenly he opened his little round pill box.

"Go bite the Bear!" cried Buddie, and out of the box flew a big black pinching bug with strong nippers. Right at the Bear flew the bug, pinching the bad chap on his nose.

"Ouch! Ouch! Let go!" howled the Bear, and brushing the bug off his nose with his paw, the Bear lumbered back into the woods.

"Ha! Ha! That was very clever of you, Buddie!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "But where did you get that bug?"

"I found him crawling in the woods," answered Buddie. "He had fallen into a puddle of water, but I fished him out and put him in my little box to keep dry. I said I'd take him to school and he could sit on Teacher's desk and here we recite. And when he gets ready he can fly away home."

"That was very kind of you, Buddie," said the rabbit. "The bug did me a great favor."

Uncle Wiggily thanked the bug, which crawled back in Buddie's box and went on to school. And there, after helping the animal children sing their morning song, the bug went to sleep in Teacher's desk again, noon, when it flew back to Buddie.

And Mr. Longears told the children this story of how the bug saved him from the Bear.

So if the tooth brush doesn't try to shoot the cake of soap with talcum powder and scare the wash rag so that it jumps in the bathtub, tell your next about Uncle Wiggily and the butter.

Last Week's Who

The Tiger

The tiger will no doubt be found upon the earth long after the lion has disappeared. He is a far better hider, a more skillful hunter, less given to taking foolish risks and he does not advertise his presence and invite his enemies by the bombastic roaring in which the lion delights to indulge. The tiger is an animal of serious mind, and he attends strictly to business. A lion will stalk into the open, in broad day, but the tiger attacks closely to cover until the friendly-darkness renders it safe to roam abroad.

Despite the dense population of India, and the ever present English hunters, the tiger inhabits all parts of the country, and is a constant menace to the people. He is a ferocious beast, and delights to kill. He lives only on fresh killed meat, and the natives are his favorite meal, so the "Man-killer" is thoroughly hated and feared.

Though so dangerous, the tiger is perhaps the most beautiful of all wild beasts, and if taken when very young, can be raised and tamed with fair success.

However, even though raised as a pet, if he ever gets a taste of raw meat, all his jungle fierceness will come to him and death will follow in his path. The tiger is second to the lion in strength, but that is still tremendous. He has been known to kill a buffalo weighing over 1,000 pounds and carry it away, though he himself does not weigh half that much. He carries off men without an effort.

While Uncle Wiggily was doing this the rabbit heard the little guinea pig boy say:

"I'll soon let you out and you may sit on teacher's desk."

"This is queer," thought Uncle Wiggily to himself. "I wonder to whom Buddie is talking. I see no one with him—only the school box on the log. Perhaps he is reciting a piece he is going to speak in school—yes, that must be it."

Eggs and Sweets

Have a small piece of bread crumbed in your cup, with a lump of butter, salt and pepper. Onto this break your hot eggs and stir well. Two eggs served this way make a very substantial breakfast.

Eggs for Luncheon

Eggs in tomatoes: Select large, ripe, firm tomatoes. Plunge them into boiling water for a moment to remove the skins. Cut out hard stem ends, making a hollow sufficiently large to hold a broken egg. Into each hollow drop a fresh egg without breaking yolk. Season with butter, pepper and salt, and bake in a moderate oven until tomatoes are tender and eggs set. Serve on rounds of buttered toast, either plain or with cream sauce.

Goldenrod Toast

Chop the whites of four (or four slices) hard boiled eggs, and add to a cream sauce made as follows: Melt two tablespoons of butter, mix in 2 1/2 tablespoons of flour, and 1/4 teaspoon of salt, then slowly one cup of cold milk, stirring all the time. Pour over toast, then sprinkle with the grated yolks in a graceful "goldenrod" spray.

OH LOOK, THE "SOVIET SHINGLE!"—Maybe they will call it the "left wing" bob; or it may be named the "Soviet shingle." Anyway, it's the haircut of Miss Ostromova, secretary to the Soviet delegation that has been meeting with the British Premier. Like Bolshevik it will be said by many to be a bit extreme.

"ORIGINALS" PARADE.—Some of the old originals of the Great War held their annual church parade in Toronto recently. Photographs shows the large banner which was carried in front of the column in memory of their fallen comrades.

LATEST IN HATS.—Mlle. Lenois, famous Parisian actress, is shown wearing the latest in that style. It is of black straw, with turned-up brim, the latter covered by a heavy georgette silk of Scotch plaid design, ending in a scarf effect.

BEAUTY.—Irene Russell, new English beauty, who is appearing in Charlott's Revue in New York.

ON TOUR OF INSPECTION.—Miss Elizabeth Smelle, general superintendent of the Victorian Order of Nurses in succession to Mrs. H. C. Hanington, was a visitor in Victoria during the past week. She has been making her first tour of inspection of V.O.N. branches throughout the Dominion.

ROYAL FAMILY TAKING THE AIR.—During and following the Easter holidays the King has made a point of taking his daily ride through Windsor Great Park. Left to right: 1, the King; 2, an attendant; 3, Viscount Lascelles; 4, the Duke of York; 5, Prince Henry and 6, Prince George.

DIDN'T TESTIFY.—Mrs. Jake Hanson, widow of the Oklahoma millionaire political boss, as she appeared upon the witness stand.

CHICAGO'S FAREWELL TO WANDA STOPA!—Ten thousand morbidly curious men, women and children crowded into Chicago's "Little Poland" for the funeral of Wanda Stopa, the artist student. Five thousand more waited three, four, even five hours at the cemetery just to catch a glimpse of the casket. Here is a section of the crowd that jammed the street in front of the Stopa apartment while the services were in progress. In the circle a police detail is seen keeping back the lines as the casket is being lifted into the hearse. A peanut vendor did a thriving business through the crowd. Old school chums served as palbearers and carried the floral offering that marked friends' sympathy for the girl who ended her life after she had killed Henry Manning, caretaker at the suburban home of the man she loved, Y. Kenley Smith, an advertising expert.

PROTECTING AN OUTPOST.—Another exclusive action picture from the Spanish-Moorish war zone in the Rif. It shows an outpost at Tizi-Azzi under fire.

AWAITING THE WEDDING GUESTS.—Miss Cornelia Vanderbilt, who became the bride of Lord Cecil at Biltmore, N.C., snapped on the eve of her wedding walking to the station to meet guests. With her is (right) Miss Sue Dresser.

OLD BRIDGES NOW REMOVED

Obstruction at Cowichan Lake Was Out of Repair
Special to The Times
Cowichan Lake, May 9.—School Inspector Stewart visited the Cowichan Lake Public School on Wednesday.
The old wagon bridge at McCullum's Landing has been pulled down under the supervision of M. B. Manley, bridge inspector. This bridge, condemned some years ago as unsafe for vehicular traffic, had continued to be used as a foot bridge, and served a very useful purpose as such during that time. However, in the course of time, it had become more and more dilapidated, until it was considered unsafe to leave it standing at all, added to which was the fact that it has always been an obstruction to navigation in the high water. As a considerable portion of the approach has been left standing, it is hoped, that at some future time, a foot bridge will be built at a suitable place of the old structure.

SAYS LIBERALISM IS BEST POLICY

F. R. Carlow Explains Why He is Running Under Banner of Government

"I am a Liberal candidate because I believe the principle of Liberalism, the greatest good to the greatest number, when properly understood and applied in the political life of the country will produce those results to which our people are justly entitled," said Frank R. Carlow, Liberal candidate for Esquimalt, in opening his campaign at Lonsdale last evening.
He made the remark in stating his sympathy with labor and his interest in matters pertaining to the well-being of the working people.
Mr. Carlow pointed out that he was a native son, raised in the riding, and had fourteen years' business experience since to help him in confronting the problems which confront the country, in the forefront of which he placed the Asiatic problem. Amendment of the Workmen's Compensation Act, and reform of the civil service were, in his judgment, also matters of urgency.

LOCAL QUESTIONS
"Shortly after receiving the nomination as a candidate for this riding, I made certain statements, while speaking at a meeting of the Liberal Association at Esquimalt, which appeared in the papers and which have produced a certain amount of criticism from sources opposed to my election," he continued.
"I suggested on that occasion that the traffic going north on the Island should be diverted from the Gorze Road, which is a purely residential section, through Esquimalt, which should be our chief industrial centre, and that Admirals Road should be improved from Esquimalt Road to the Island Highway to encourage such traffic to come that way. I also suggested that a tourist camp should be established by the municipal authorities near the new drydock, which when completed many tourists traveling through the country will want to see, and many of whom being captains of industry and stopping overnight in Esquimalt would create possibilities for industrial enterprise.
I further suggested that a path or sidewalk should be constructed on the East Road at Colwood for the use of school children, similar to the one at Langford from Millstream Road corner to the school, and mentioned the necessity of improving the highway from Colwood to Luxton at the junction of the Sooke and Happy Valley roads for the benefit of the farmers of Sooke and Metcoun districts who have long trips to make coming to market with their produce and who would appreciate the help that a good road in this section would give them.

He pointed out that substantial progress had been made on the plans outlined, and that the Minister of Public Works had promised to include a sum in the estimates for the portion of Admirals Road, seven-tenths of a mile, which the Government controlled, to be improved.

POLITICAL OPPOSITION
Mr. Carlow then reviewed the circumstances of the election of the public works yard, and proceeded to refer to the Pooler letter, in which R. H. Pooler, M.P., had stated that he had advocated the improvements from year to year, and questions had been put to the Minister with a view to political results. On this matter Mr. Carlow said:
"And now after twelve years your member, four of which he served with his own party in power and eight years as a member of the Opposition, tells you that year after year in the House he has been looking into the future and plotting to trip the Government to insure his own re-election. I am glad he has told you this because it suggests a reason for many of the things your member has done ever since he commenced his campaign of slander and abuse, which has been going on in this Province since 1921."

GAME BOARD INQUIRY
Mr. Carlow alluded to the unsubstantiated charges brought by Mr. Pooley against the Game Board, an inquiry which cost the taxpayers $11,000. The candidate asked if Mr. Pooley had that money expended to secure publicity for himself.

PROVINCIAL PARTY
The candidate dealt at length with the Provincial Party, and concluded: "It is my opinion that if McRae and his gang ever get control of the government of this Province they will introduce a system of 'class legislation' beneficial to the lumbering and timber interests that will deplete the revenue from this source that your taxes will have to be doubled and trebled to make revenue meet expenditure."
MR. CLEARHUE
J. B. Clearhue, M.P., spoke on behalf of the candidate, pointing out that Mr. Carlow has the confidence of the Government, was a successful business man, and had done much for Liberalism in the city. He did not believe the Esquimalt Liberals could have chosen a better candidate. He addressed the gathering on the benefit the province had already secured in lower freight rates, pointing out that as a result of the Premier's activity, it had resulted in 47,000,000 bushels of wheat being shipped by the western route this year. The reductions obtained so far in grain alone has saved the province $450,000. In dealing with liquor administration, Mr. Clearhue pointed out that the overhead cost was considerable less than in other provinces, from which it could be argued that the department was particularly well managed.

The meeting ended with a motion of confidence both in the Government and in the candidate. Mrs. Campbell, district president, who occupied the chair, made a strong plea on behalf of the candidate. She assured the audience that it was certain, owing to the help given by Esquimalt in the past two years by Mr. Carlow, that the vote of the township would go largely to him.

BOARD SPLITS ON FATE OF POLICE WOMAN OFFICER

Suspension Extended Until Matter Comes Before Meeting at Later Date

Charges of insubordination against two police constables were dealt with by the City Police Commission in special session yesterday afternoon. Motorcycle Constable Thomas Palmer, charged with failure to proceed on street duty when duly warned, was fined a month's pay and ordered to present himself for foot patrol on Monday.
Miss M. J. Wark, suspended by the commission one week ago, as in the Palmer case, was charged with failure to comply with the orders of the chief and the board in respect to making daily reports on her work, and also with making a false report. Miss Wark countered that under the statute dealing with the treatment of infectious cases before the government clinic she was precluded from disclosing the names of delinquents even to the Chief of Police. As to the false report, Miss Wark denied wilful intent to deceive, stating that the matter arose out of an error in time.

Going into private session the board pronounced sentence in the Palmer case after a few moments' deliberation. A deadlock was reached, however, in the charges against Miss Wark. One commissioner was for immediate dismissal, another for complete abolition. The mayor, left with a casting vote, was inclined to favor neither and so the meeting room with Miss Wark under indefinite suspension until the board decides her fate at a future meeting.

Premier Says Nominated Passage System Best Devised For Country's Needs

Adelaide, South Australia, May 10.—In a statement concerning immigration, Premier Gunn said the nominated system was undoubtedly the most satisfactory for South Australia. The Government, by judicious advantage and organization, he said, intended to endeavor to improve the present system by making more widely known the conditions under which persons in South Australia may nominate relatives and friends in the United Kingdom for assisted passage to South Australia. The scheme was intended to assist well-established firms needing skilled and semi-skilled labor. Such firms would be permitted to nominate unnamed migrants. The scheme would also assist farmers needing rural workers.
