NEW ORLEANS:

THURSDAY, MAY 21, 1829.

New-York, May 1st.

MELANCHOLY EVENT.—The public mind was a good deal excited yesterday, in consequence of a circumstance which occurred on board the steam packet Benjamin Franklin, on her passage from Providence to this city. Among the passengers was George W. Adams, Esq. of Boston. On Wednesday he complained to one of his friends, that owing to the motion of the boat, or some other cause, he felt a severe stricture on his stomach, and a rushing of blood to his head; and proposed, on his arrival at New-York, to send for a physician and be bled. About 3 o'clock, yesterday morning, Capt. Bunker being on deck, heard him calling with a loud voice at the Crew's window. This circumstance excited a little the surprise of Capt. B., but at that moment meeting with an accident himself, he thought no more of the matter.

Soon after, a passenger happening to pass near Mr. Adams.—"What did you say, Sir?" said Mr. A. starting from a leaning posture on some baggage. "Nothing at all, sir," replied the gentleman. "Ah! I understood you to say that Mr. Adams had jumped overboard. He then spoke to a gentleman, and said that the passengers had drawn up a dangerous paper against him, and had all signed it.

Shortly afterwards his hat was found near the verge of the upper deck, without the presence of the owner. The impression now became general that he had fallen or thrown himself overboard and perished.

Every effort was now made in accordance with the melancholy apprehensions entertained—but the night was dark, and nothing could be discovered. The boat was by this time in the East River. Since the unfortunate event took place, several circumstances have been recollected by the passengers, which seem plainly to indicate that Mr. Adams was laboring under mental derangement; and it was doubtless in this state of mind that he committed the fatal act.

Mr. Adams was a son, we believe, the eldest of the late President of the United-States, and was on a journey to his father. He was from twenty-five to thirty years of age,—an attorney of promising talents,—and had been a member of the Legislature of Massachusetts; but so far as we know, not otherwise engaged in political life. The City Authorities are making all proper efforts to obtain further information on this melancholy subject. —Journal of Com.

The brig Arctic, captain Philip, arrived at Baltimore on Thursday, from New-Orleans. George Swearingen, late Sheriff of Washington County, Pa. the reputed murderer of his wife, was a prisoner on board, and on his arrival, after an examination before Justice Galt, was fully committed for trial.

From Lima.—By the arrival at Baltimore of the ship Benj. Rush, captain Duff, from Valparaiso, 95 days from Callao, we have received a file of the Mercurio Peruano, published at Lima, from the 2d to the 14th of January inclusive, politely forwarded to us by the editor of that paper.

There is great complaint of the increase of robbers and other malefactors who infest the roads and valleys in the neighborhood of Lima. Their depredations have become so frequent and systematic that neither couriers, merchants, proprietors nor even those who supply the city with provisions, can travel the highways without danger, and they have even ventured to perpetrate their crimes within the walls of the city itself.

Such is the substance of the preamble of a decree issued by Manuel Torrevo, prefect of the department of Lima. Orders have therefore been issued for parties well armed and mounted to scour the country and cross the public roads in every direction. The proprietors of plantations have been directed to keep their slaves within the limits of their estates, and to give information of malefactors, deserters or suspected persons, taking refuge with them. In the mean time, a party of the police are to patrol the streets of Lima continually day and night, for the purpose of preventing the designs and seizing the persons of malefactors and of apprehending such as may come to seek refuge in the city, from the military parties who are hunting them in the country. The keepers of the pulperias or drinking houses are ordered to close them at the hour of nine. The order bears date the 31st of December.

A private letter from Madrid giving an account of an interview between Per-dis and a kind of embassy from the Indians of the South American Continent, with a project of recovering the South American provinces to the Spanish dominion, by means of an expedition of 25,000 men from Havana, has occasioned some speculation at Lima. The Mercury says, that as soon as the invading army should set foot on the shores of the continent, instead of marching immediately to any of the great interior capitals, it would have to struggle with a mass of difficulties almost insurmountable—to provide means of subsistence, to mount its cavalry, and to penetrate the country by difficult, rugged and circuitous roads.

Worn down by painful marches, encumbered by repeated ambuses, they would at length fall an easy prey in a general combat with the possessors of the soil, fresh, full of resources and fighting with desperation, as all men do who fight for their homes.

These papers contain no intelligence respecting the political relations between Peru and Colombia. Neither Bolivar nor General Sucre is spoken of very respectfully in them.

N. Y. Ev. Post.

Latest from Rio-Janeiro.—By the brig Jane, Capt. Atwater, which arrived last evening, we have received the Journal du Commerce, to March 10th, inclusive.

The state of the public finances was very low, occasioned by the excessive importation of goods during the war with Buenos Ayres, the exportation of gold and silver for the purchase of slaves, and other causes.

The state of things in the Northern Provinces was such as to indicate that an explosion might be near; some arrests had recently taken place; and branches of the old conspiracy were constantly discovered. These circumstances, together with the prospect of a war with Portugal, rendered the public mind very unquiet.

The death of Count d'Egengnolte is mentioned, commander of the forces in Maranhão.—N. Y. Jour. Com.

Extract of a letter from Washington.

I hear not a word whispered of the person intended to succeed Mr. Brown at Paris; nor any thing more of the missions to the Netherlands, and Mexico. The consulship at Liverpool has not yet been disposed of, I understand that several applicants are added to the former list, and that one of them has arrived in this city more effectually to press his suit. I had supposed the alternatives lay between Mr. Francis Ogden of New York, and our worthy townsmen, Mr. George Winchester. The places being of the highest consideration seems to command the measured deliberation of the President. Of the fitness of Mr. Ogden and Mr. Winchester, there is no question, both being regarded worthy the confidence of the government.—E. Post.

From the English papers.—Private letters from Constantinople, received at Vienna, by express, speak of the inflexible resolution of the Sultan not to be dictated to, but to exert every effort to meet the dangers which threaten them.

Nagi-Effendi, chargé d'affaires of the Pacha of Egypt, is gone to Alexandria with an order from the Sultan to the Vicerey of Egypt to equip as soon as possible 40,000 men, and send them to join the Imperial Army. Similar orders have been sent to join the Imperial Army. Similar orders have been sent to Syria, Bagdad, and to all the Pachas.

Three thousand sailors have arrived from Egypt at Constantinople, to reinforce the crews of the fleet, in the fitting out of which workmen are employed day and night, as it is to be ready to put to sea in the beginning of April.

The Danish admiral Olert Fischer, who distinguished himself in the battle with Lord Nelson, died a few days since at Copenhagen, in his eighty-second year.

Lancaster.—At a meeting of the Corporation of Lancaster, a resolution against further concessions to his Majesty's Roman Catholic subjects was carried by a majority of two, fifteen voting for the resolution, and thirteen for the following amendment:

That this Council, having perfect reliance on the wisdom and integrity of the Legislature, deem it most expedient to interfere with the question of Catholic concession, either by petition to Parliament, or in any other manner, that can have a tendency to embroil his Majesty's Government, at this peculiarly momentous crisis.
