Northern States Has Good Entry

570 Birds at Alexandria in Live and Dressed Exhibits; Entries and Quality Not Affected by Armistice Day Storm.

By GEORGE W. HACKETT

The eleventh annual exhibit of this great show was a success in every particular with an entry which exceeded all calculations following the devastating storm of November 11th. Actual entries were 310 in the live classes and 260 dressed birds. That number of entries, in such quality as was shown in both live and dressed classes at Alexandria, makes a wonderful exhibit wherever found and with all the booths of allied industries, a very splendid banquet, radio broadcasts from the showroom on two days during the week, combines to make this one of the best shows of the kind in the entire country and well worthy of national reputation.

Live bird entries came from four states comprising North and South Dakota, Nebraska and Minnesota. Dressed bird entries came from the same states with Washington added. There were 24 exhibitors of live birds and 25 exhibitors of dressed birds. In the latter, four exhibitors from the state of Washington (see exhibitors list) came next to Minnesota in number of birds entered. In live birds, by states South Dakota came next to Minnesota. It will be noted by study of awards that distribution of sweepstakes prizes was quite even among the different breeds, but with the unusual occurrence of Grand Champion, Reserve Champion and Master Breeder Display going to two of the lesser breeds, Bourbon Reds and Blacks. It appeared to be the consensus of opinion, however, that the awards were well placed.

Thieke's Bourbon Red yearling tom, which was awarded Grand Champion, was one of the finest specimens of this breed that has appeared to date and he acted the part both in his coop and out of it. The runner-up, a yearling Black by Oakdale Farm, was also a bird of top quality, of excellent type, right size and fine color. Tanner's adult Bronze tom, which was awarded Champion Bronze, was also a fit candidate for the grand championship; of excellent type, right size and with only slight color defects which kept him from placing tops.

Brown's White Holland young tom was placed Champion young tom of the show and well deserved the high honor. He was every inch a champion in quality and behavior, lacking only a little in development. His conformation and color were almost faultless. Champion Slate was Martinson's adult hen, a beauty in every particular, only a shade too light in color. But any one of the breed champions was fit to grace a grand champion display cage in any show; one of the finest lineups of breed champions the writer has yet seen.

Sweepstakes pen of the show went to Al Brown's young pen headed by a tom about the equal of his breed champion brother, and the two young hens with him in the pen were of about the same high quality. First Master Breeder Display was won by Oakdale's Blacks by a narrow margin over Gilbertson's Narragansetts which placed second. Champion young hen was awarded to a Narragansett shown by Gilbertson in very close competition with Risbrudt's 1st young Bronze hen, the latter losing only on weight. First Bronze young tom was shown by a new exhibitor, Earl Tanner, who made entry here as his first experience in showing turkeys. The bird was an excellent specimen in both type and color and is sure to be heard from later. Second and third young Bronze toms, by Allen Turkey Farm, were the equal of first in type and lacked but little in color.

In the 25 placings of the 38 young toms entered in the Bronze class differences in quality were so slight that many could have been reversed without much ground for criticism. The improvement in type, over a like class in any show two or three years ago, showed so much improvement that it was most gratifying to both judges and exhibitors who took the trouble to go over the class on the table for conformation, to note the great advances being made in market type in standard turkeys.

This was further shown by the awards in the dressed department. While this comment is directed to the Bronze class in particular, it applies as well to the other breeds, and to all the classes in each breed and thereby demonstrates the value of the show in the improvement of quality.

For the first time at this show a class was provided for the non-standard, Broad-Breasted turkey. The entry consisted of 1 yearling tom, 2 yearling hens, 5 young toms and 8 young hens. The yearling tom was estimated to weigh between 43 and 45 pounds and the yearling hens about 25 pounds each. There was no question about the meat type of these birds and if great weight is desired it can be found in this class of turkey. However, it was noted that some of the young birds exhibited which were raised in regular farm flocks were not much heavier, nor of the more meaty type, than was found in standard Bronze classes. The heavy birds referred to were entered by Sunny Slope Farm, Nebraska, and many of the exhibitors took the opportunity offered by the judges to give the birds close inspection.

Favorable weather throughout the week brought out good attendance. A majority of all exhibitors were present most of the week. An atmosphere of friendliness pervaded the show room at all times. If there was any criticism of awards it was kept entirely under cover. Many favorable comments were heard. It was Judge Cleve Angen's first show of importance to officiate at and several favorable comments were heard on his work. George Gilbertson again served as superintendent of the turkey exhibit. The cooping was well arranged and with the able assistance of Howard and Earl Tanner the birds were well handled and well cared for. The Dressed Division was again in charge of Emil Johnson, ably assisted by John Allen and M. J. Albjerg. Prof. O. A. Barton of the North Dakota Agricultural College placed the awards. We have asked Mr. Barton for comments on this department. Congenial Holger Hanson, acting as both secretary and manager, was on the job most of the time in spite of the very busy season at the Alexandria Post Office where he earns his bread and butter. Holger is the sort of fellow one always enjoys meeting. To him and a few of his most active associates is due the credit and foresight of getting Lloyd Larson on the job to take care of publicity, which has done much for this show in the past two years. An extended co-operation of feed concerns and other interests have also added much to the general makeup of the show.

The Banquet

The big annual banquet was again held in the spacious dining room of the Congregational church, where the ladies of the church served 250 guests, and served them RIGHT. It was a turkey dinner and plenty of it with all the trimmings. Good organization gave speed to the service and the tables were most attractively decorated with an air of the approaching Holiday season.

The entertainment, ably handled by Dr. H. J. Larson, consisted of music, introductions and short talks and some humor mixed in, which seemed to please everyone. An unusual and very pleasing feature was the presentation, by Manager Hanson, to Mr. Ernie Fliegel of Minneapolis, of an elaborate specially designed trophy, in recognition of the service Mr. Fliegel and his brother are doing for the turkey industry in promoting consumption of turkey meat at their "620" Club, 620 Hennepin Ave., Minneapolis. During the past year they have used well over 90,000 pounds of dressed turkey and their trade is ever increasing. This recognition is to be most highly commended. Turkey growers who get to Minneapolis should drop in at 620 Hennepin Ave., meet the Fliegels and see what they are doing for the industry. This eleventh annual event of the Northern States Turkey Show stands as the most successful of any they have yet held.

Fine Oakland Show

Northwestern Turkey Show at Oakland, Ore., Dec. 10-14, Attracts Many Entries; Hudson's Narragansett Wins Grand Champion.

The twelfth annual Northwestern Turkey Show at Oakland, Ore., Dec. 10 to 14, had on display 1100 entries, over 600 live birds and the remainder in the dressed exhibit. Not only were the regular standard and broad-breast breeds shown, but exhibits were on hand of wild turkeys, Royal Palms, and small type Whites, direct from Kentucky.

The most striking and colorful event of the show was the crowning of King Albert I, Emperor Max, and Premier George, christened after their owners, A. D. Hudson, Tangent, Ore.; Max Lyons, Portland, Ore.; and George Bonebrake, Dixonville, Ore.; as Grand Champions of the Standard, the Live Market, and the Dressed shows, respectively. Queen Joyce, duly elected majesty from the Oakland high school, and her retinue performed the ceremony.

In the Standard division A. D. Hudson realized the ambition of a lifetime, when his yearling tom was proclaimed Grand Champion. Hudson also won Champion young tom in this part of the show. The Bronze, Bourbon Red and Narragansett sections had gloriously hot competition, as may be seen by glancing at the score sheets.

The Utility, or live market divisions, were the scenes of many hot conflicts in all breeds. Most interest centered in the Broad Breasts, in which Max Lyons won the championship and placed very high in all classes. Nelia Butler, of Hillsboro, made a wonderful showing with her Bourbon Reds in both utility and standard sections. Her chief competitor, Ward Cockeram, however, took sweepstakes with an entry list of nearly 40 very fine Bourbons.

George Bonebrake, the unknown, unheralded breeder, took the breath from the old guard in the dressed show with a 38-pound young tom, Broadbreast type, and won the Grand Championship of that section. This bird was, the experts say, the widest and most massive young tom ever shown here.

Show week here felt the hand of polaris rigoris, with freezing weather night and day. The dressed show room instead of needing refrigeration was filled with electric heaters at night. The birds were sold to the Northwestern Turkey Growers, Salt Lake, and were displayed as a special feature in San Francisco.

The banquet Friday evening was a very beautiful and peculiarly effective event, combined with both planned and impromptu speaking and music. E. B. McNaughton, president of the First National Bank chain, Portland, Ore., was the guest speaker. As usual the banquet was served by the ladies of Oakland.

Officers of the show for next year were elected as follows: E. F. Strong, Oakland, president; Henry Domes, Rickreall, vice president; E. G. Young, Oakland, treasurer; Mrs. O. C. Brown, Dixonville, secretary; Directors: Ward Cockeram, Oakland; Mrs. Willard Herman, Harrisburg; Albert Hudson, Tangent and Ervin Rice, Oakland.

Will Storm Injury Affect Breeding and Production By GEORGE W. HACKETT

That is the question now being discussed wherever turkey growers meet. A correct answer to this important question is greatly desired by turkey producers everywhere, as its effects extend the country over. However, any answer would be largely speculative and as we have heard many remark: "One guess is as good as another."

Some growers from outside the territory of the storm have been wondering if the vitality of breeding stock might not be affected. We have handled a lot of flocks in this territory since the storm and have found no evidence of lowered vitality. Birds that survived the storm were affected only temporarily, if at all, and that mostly from damaged plumage. The high standard of vigor and vitality of birds from many breeding flocks, exhibited at recent shows, substantiates these statements. Fortunately, many of the flocks from which breeders are offered for sale were sheltered more or less from the storm. It is probable that the small percentage of birds that were found half-dead in the drifts after the storm were vitality damaged, but the breeder who has his own interests in mind is not offering any such birds for sale as breeders.

As to what the general effect of the storm loss will be on next year's production, it requires careful observations and calculations to arrive at probable results. Quite extensive inquiry makes clear that within the storm area there will be many less breeding hens in next season's flocks. This is only as would be expected, for in the larger flocks, many of the hens already selected for breeding were lost and cannot be replaced. In all flocks where losses were heavy it will be necessary that flock owners reduce production materially to finance the great loss they suffered. Many large breeding flocks were wiped out altogether and turkey raising on such farms is over, for the present at least.

One hoped-for result which it seems reasonable to expect is that fewer plunges will be made into mass production, which has been very detrimental to the average turkey grower. The result of this will be felt mostly in the smaller demand for early hatching eggs from the west and south, as the storm area has been the most fertile field in the sale of hatching eggs. We do not look for any material increase of production outside the storm-covered states, nor do we look for much, if any, decreased demand for hatching eggs and poults produced within the area and there are certainly less breeders held over within the area.

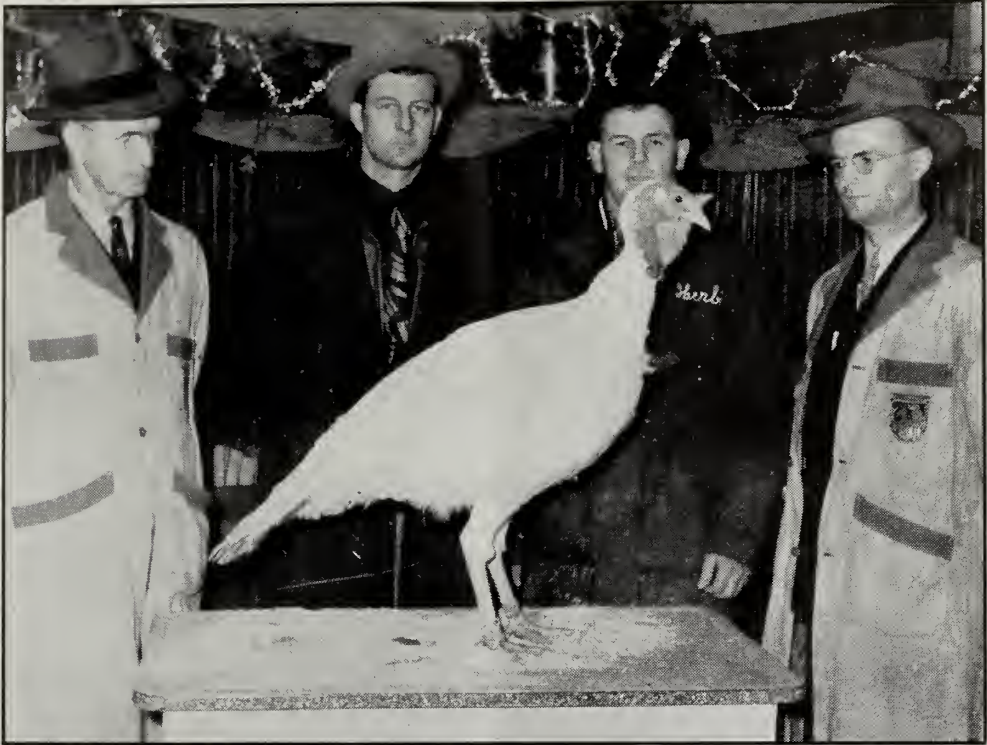

These conclusions have been reached after extensive conversations with prominent people engaged in different phases of the turkey industry. While the great storm loss cannot be regarded as less than a catastrophe which brought financial ruin to many growers, the number hard hit is comparatively small and the effects will soon be forgotten except by those whose losses were most critical.

Most of the larger flocks were insured but not sufficiently to nearly cover loss. The general result will be greater caution and better preparation in the future. New growers will soon come forward to fill the places of those who were forced to quit. The industry is too big and too widely distributed to be seriously affected, even by so hard a stroke of ill fate.

IOWA POULT SHOW SET FOR MAY 8-9-10

Announcement has been made by the Iowa State Poultry Club, Ames, that they will hold their annual Poultry Show May 8, 9 and 10, 1941. This is the 7th annual holding of this unique exhibition devoted exclusively to turkey poults. Entries last year were attracted from as distant states as Pennsylvania and Oregon.

Ronald Moses, Ames, Iowa, is superintendent of the Poultry Show and inquiries should be addressed to him.

North Dakota Show Sets New Record

North Dakota State Turkey Show at Minot Rounds Out 10 Years of Continued Progress.

By ETHEL H. COOLEY

The 10th Annual North Dakota State Turkey Show, held in Minot, December 9-14, 1940, set a new all-time record for quality in both the live and the dressed divisions. The annual show sponsored by the North Dakota State Turkey Improvement Association and the Minot Association of Commerce rounded out a decade of turkey improvement work regarded by many as the foundation of a larger general improvement program that is now reaching the commercial phase of the industry as well as the breeders.

Placing the birds in the show were Judge P. M. Pierce, Denver; Judge Frank E. Moore, Fargo; and Mrs. James Thoreson, Pingal, N. Dak. In his resume of the show following the announcement of awards, Judge Pierce said: "I cannot too highly commend the breeders who have exhibited their birds in this state turkey show. The general quality is outstanding in all of the five breeds that make up the live division of the show.

Among all the classes there was none at the bottom of which there was an ordinary bird. All of the turkeys were very good 'way down to the last bird on the judging table, and decisions were closer than in several of the country's larger shows.

"While the Bronze were up to the usual North Dakota standards—which in itself is praise enough—I might add that the breeders deserve much credit for adapting their type to meet the new standard requirements in so short a time. In all of the breeds there is noticeable improvement in body conformation, while retaining the necessary careful attention to plumage.

"There are more breeders of good Narragansetts in this Northwest area than most anywhere in the country. There were some remarkably fine individuals among the Narragansetts shown. An outstanding example of the high standard of perfection attained in this breed is the yearling hen that was named reserve champion of the show. (This hen was bred and exhibited by Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Payne of Towner).

"The Bourbon Reds, stronger in numbers this year than formerly, have excellent quality. The type here is to be highly commended when one considers the tendency elsewhere not to hold down weights to standard size.

"The White Hollands were the sensation of the show. Not only were the White Hollands in prime show condition, but they showed plainly that they had had good feeding and wonderful care from start to finish. It is very seldom that a young bird is awarded the grand championship of such a strong show as this. But when we find a bird that shows such outstanding quality, such wonderful finish and feather development, age is not to be considered. This bird, a young tom (from the flock of Herbie Olson of Bergen) is of almost perfect type, excellent body conformation, and is shown in superb condition, with not so much as a broken feather to mar his perfect conditioning. This Grand Champion illustrates what fine results can be had from pedigree mating. "In turkey production there are two important factors to be considered: the net return to the grower; and the consumer demand. The fellow who eats the turkey is the one who has the last word. And we've got to listen to him. He is asking for the broad-breasted type. The broad-breasted have come in to some of the larger shows as a non-standard variety. Some of the breeders are now working for good plumage as well as body conformation. We might as well recognize the fact that the Broad-Breasted turkey is here to stay, and make provision for its exhibition in our turkey shows."

Fine Dressed Quality

"While the quality of the birds exhibited in the dressed division of the State Turkey Show surpassed anything we've ever had here, the numbers were somewhat disappointing." Judge Frank E. Moore, who placed the birds in the dressed division, said. "We have here some of the finest fleshed, finest fattened and most expertly dressed individuals in both the standard and the Broad-Breasted one could wish to see. The Grand Champion is a 16-pound Broad-Breasted young hen of practically flawless conformation, finish and dressing.

"If our standard breeders will, they can produce a bird just as desirable from a market standpoint as all the publicity that's been released would lead us to believe the Broad Breasted is. The dressed department was one of the most attractively decorated we have seen anywhere. Much credit is due Mr. Earl Rogers, manager of the Armour Creameries, who designed it.

It added much to the prestige of the show to have a half hour's broadcast originating on KLP, Mutual's affiliate in Minot, and carried over the North Central regional network of the Mutual Broadcasting System, reaching eight states."

The Broadcast Over MBC

The theme of the broadcast was "Turkey Improvement." Speakers included Judges Pierce, Moore and Thoreson Mrs. Lars Lovig of Bantry, retiring president after 10 years of progress; the newly elected president, Casius Hardy of Ross; Mrs. A. C. Payne- secretary of the North Dakota State Turkey Improvement Association; C. D. Ackler, President of the Northwest North Dakota Development Association; Mr. A. C. Payne, member of the North Dakota State Poultry Improvement Board; A. J. Lanz, Executive Secretary of that Board; Herbie Olson, Bergen, breeder of the Grand Champion of the live show; Mrs. Dolly Haga, champion turkey caller; and music was furnished by the Jaycee Chorus.

AMERICAN-ROYAL HAS 254 BIRDS

This popular and growing turkey show, sponsored by the American Royal Turkey Club, is held annually under the auspices of the Missouri State Poultry Show in connection with the American Royal Live Stock Show, one of the greatest of its kind held in the United States. Notwithstanding the great size of the Live Stock Pavilion the immense show crowds the poultry and turkey exhibit into smaller space than they should have to make the exhibit most attractive and convenient for the great number of visitors attracted from all parts of the country by the great combined shows.

However, under the able management of Mr. T. W. Noland, secretary of the State Poultry Board, and for many years in charge of the Noted Mountain Grove Experiment Station and Laying Contest, the show is conducted in good order and the birds well cared for by efficient assistants.

In the past the greatest disadvantage to the turkey exhibit has been the early date on which the show was held, in October, but this year it was more than a month later, which pleased the turkey people greatly. The great advantage of this show is in the immense crowds who visit it during the week.

The Entry

This year entries were listed from four states comprising: Wisconsin, Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri. The total entry was 254 birds divided among breeds as follows: Bronze, 77; Narragansett, 34; White Holland, 34; Bourbon Reds, 16; Slaters, 9; Blacks, 5; and Non-standard (Broadbreasts) 79. This is the first year that the latter has been listed at this show and it will be noted they outnumbered even the Bronze by two birds. It was noted that there were many birds of excellent market type in this class but with the usual variation found in all breeds.

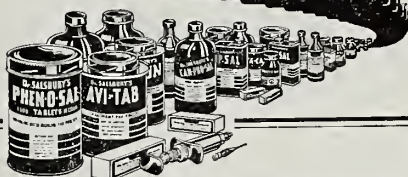

Grand Champion of the show was awarded to a yearling Bronze tom owned and exhibited by Mr. and Mrs. Earl Turner, Ottawa, Kans. The same bird was 1st Young tom at this show last year. Sweepstakes Display went to Mr. C. E. Bidleman, Kinsley, Kans., also on Bronze.

The presence of most of the exhibitors was noted and many of them remained all week. Other well-known turkey breeders who did not show were also present. Among these were Mr. and Mrs. Roy G. Utne, noted Bronze breeders from South Dakota, and Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Amos of Missouri. That turkey breeders and exhibitors are much alike in all parts of the country is attested by a quotation from Mr. Noland's letter as follows: "Our turkey show was fine, and the exhibitors seem to be very enthusiastic people and very congenial."

For a time a dressed exhibit was contemplated for this show, but the matter of room (Turn to Page 16)

COUNTING OUR BLESSINGS

Tonight, the old year passes out. The records of 1940 become history. To most turkey people the country over it has been a satisfactory year; a record of interesting events, healthful employment and satisfactory returns. To some, in our northwest states, the storm catastrophe was little short of tragedy. But we have had no "blackouts," our crops, fields, cities and homes have not been destroyed. Families and friends have recently assembled to celebrate what was the merriest and most extravagant Christmas on record in this country. There is health and plenty in the land and promise of a bright future.

We should all be most happy in counting all these blessings, and unselfish in like degree. In retrospect we are looking back over the past few years as it applies to the turkey industry and to our friends, the turkey breeders; to the great progress that has been made and the happy associations that have been made among turkey people. To all, THE AMERICAN TURKEY JOURNAL wishes a most Happy and Prosperous New Year, 1941.

This issue brings to a close nine years of service by this magazine to the turkey industry. If there has been anything wrong with the spirit and technique of this service it has been because of error in judgment and not in purpose. The first issue of the American Turkey Journal was on February 1st, 1932. From the introductory editorial in that issue we quote: "This, friends, is the formal introduction of the AMERICAN TURKEY JOURNAL, dedicated to AMERICA'S GREATEST BIRD, and devoted to the SINGLE PURPOSE of serving a great industry and the promoters of the same. In the great future of this industry, we, the sponsors, have unlimited faith and to the active support intended to further advance that industry, we pledge our EVERY EFFORT." The many commendations and kind expressions from our readers encourages us to believe that we have made good these promises.

We would like to have achieved more but conditions have not warranted it. We have been uncompromising in the support of Standard turkeys, with no compromise for any but the BEST of MARKET type. Our editorials have sought to give due credit to every effort and accomplishment that has tended to make the turkey more economical and more beautiful. We have been uncompromising in promoting the system of standard making and breeding improvement which has transformed the original, diminutive Wild turkey to the present status of our several breeds of marvelous turkeys.

In the matter of better management and better marketing we have also advocated the latest and best methods, and particularly through further improvement through selection. The field is wide and there is still much to do.

Through the continued confidence of our friends, and the support our efforts merit, we are determined to make 1941 the best we have experienced for all concerned. We know of no way in which to better accomplish this than by renewal of the pledge made in that first issue and with the continued cooperation of our good friends, WE SHALL SUCCEED.

This issue of THE JOURNAL is largely given over to reports on leading turkey shows of the country, most of which were held during December. Many of our readers, perhaps, are not particularly interested in show reports, but there are also many who are, and it is for them that we devote most of this issue to articles on the various shows. Our regular articles and departments will be resumed again next month.

We have a new member this month, Mr. John Brustad, Osakis, Minn. Mr. Brustad raises Standard bred Bronze while his wife raises Narragansetts. The past season, they raised 1600 turkeys but lost 630 in the November storm. Both Mr. and Mrs. Brustad are still optimistic about turkeys and plan on raising a good size flock the coming season.

Mrs. W. J. Janda

Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Brustad, Dalton, Minnesota, showed a beautiful string of Bronze at Alexandria, Minn., including some top notch young hens. Their dressed birds were extra fine. They raised 325 Bronze and were among the fortunate ones who did not lose any birds in the storm.

M. J. Albjerg, Vining, Minn., was on duty in the dressed department of the show. He did not raise so many turkeys this season but did a good business selling eggs from 135 hens.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl R. Turner, Ottawa, Kansas, write as follows: "This is to thank you for the beautiful walnut trophy awarded by the All-American Bronze Club for the Champion Bronze at the recent American-Royal show, which was won by our yearling male. We were so pleased to win it in such strong competition.

"We raise the "Double Breasted" Bronze that conform to the Standard requirements in size, shape and color. We have been raising them the past six years. Last year was our first year to exhibit and we won many awards in three shows—American-Royal, Denver Poultry Exposition and Northern States. We have won two Grand Champion gold medals the past year. We are not growers of large numbers but try to raise only the best. Our birds sold on the market at higher than Kansas City prices this fall. They are bred to produce "Extra weight and beauty."

Keith A. Chidley, Palatine, Ill, writes: "Thanks for the membership card and good wishes. They came while my wife and I were attending the Central States Poultry Show at New Castle, Indiana. We entered six birds, one in each class, and took five firsts and a second. Our young hen captured the Grand Championship. We have entered them in the International in Chicago and are hoping for the best. We are close to Chicago and have a growing retail business. Dressed 650 birds for Thanksgiving and hope to move about that many in December. Have been striving to develop full-breasted birds and still hold color. Good color attracts new customers and well plumped dressed birds make them steady customers."

The Northern States Turkey Show at Alexandria, Minn., was, as usual, a huge success. In spite of the devastating storm that hit that section of the country the hardest, the turkey folks turned out in good numbers and showed their usual string of birds. No one seemed to be down in the dumps about their losses and were as cheerful and optimistic as ever. You just can't get a turkey grower down. They take their losses and still carry on. As the winnings will be in the show report I will mention only a few of the Bronze specials. Howard Tanner's adult tom was breed champion, and he was a fine representative of the breed. In fact the Bronze exhibits were the best ever, both in color, size and type. It gives us Bronze breeders the greatest thrill to see these beautiful, graceful and colorful birds preening and strutting in their cages. They seem to know that they are the Standard bearers of turkeydom.

John Allen's young hen was Reserve Champion in the dressed division. They also won Sweepstakes Display of the show, winning our club trophy. Mrs. Allen also won first on gift pack.

There were 325 live birds of which 115 were Bronze. Out of the 300 dressed birds, 93 were Bronze. All in all it was a grand show.

The Bronze breeders had a meeting Wednesday, Dec. 11th, at Hotel Alexandria. Plans were made for the annual meeting to be held at the All-American at Grand Forks Tuesday, Jan. 21st. Please be sure to attend, as matters pertaining to our Bronze breed will be taken up at this meeting. Officers will be elected. If you cannot attend write me your suggestions on changes in the Bronze breed Standard, also send in sealed votes for President, Executive Vice President, and Secretary and Treasurer. Will see you at the annual meeting and a Happy, Prosperous New Year to you all.

Happy New Year! May it have lots of good luck in it for all of you in every way, especially with your turkeys. The year just past is gone. Let us all look forward to a brighter, happier year than the past.

The State Turkey Show this year was one of the best we've had in the past ten years. Competition was keen. Classes were large enough throughout the show to make it interesting. A complete story of the show will be found elsewhere in this issue.

It takes more than turkeys to make a show complete. We had some splendid exhibits by feed dealers and promoters of better qualities in North Dakota. The Farmers Union Feed company of Minot had a booth with samples of their feed and Hubbard Sunshine Concentrates. Mr. L. A. Hanson, Grand Forks territory man, was in charge of this booth. He also showed moving pictures every afternoon during the week, showing Mr. Farmer how he could make more money through proper feeding of his livestock. Visitors at this booth registered for a drawing to be made the last day of the show. Five lucky winners were each awarded 100 pounds of feed. Along with Mr. Hanson was genial, good natured Dr. Haney, of Thief River Falls, Minn.

Mrs. A. C. Payne

The State Mill and Elevator had a booth again this year. Mr. Frank Kahoteck of Grand Forks, was in charge throughout the week with visits by local distributors, Jim Eide and his brother. Frank has been here several times and it seems we cannot think of State Feeds without connecting him with them.

Roy Aney, and Purina Feeds, are as essential to the completeness of the show as the judges are to the rest of the show. As usual Roy was there with a complete exhibit of Purina feeds. Believe every lady in the show room had a pencil with the compliments of "Aney Feed and Nursery Company," but myself. I was too busy taking memberships. I know, though, that "Purina" is splendid feed and many champions have been raised on it. Roy not only sells feed but is one of the good promoters of the State Turkey Show.

Dr. Salsbury's Laboratories had a booth at the show this year for the first time. Mr. Charles Fry, Jamestown, was in charge and was always ready to give advice to anyone who had problems to discuss. Mr. Fry says he makes trips throughout the state every month and is always glad to discuss your poultry problems with you. Dr. Salsbury's Laboratories are co-operating closely with turkey growers through shows, fairs and others public gatherings where the turkey industry is promoted.

The Greater North Dakota Association had a booth again this year. Their representative was William Brandstad, Amentia, N. D. Mr. Brandstad has lived in North Dakota for seventy years, and knows the hardships as well as the more pleasant facts of our state. He had exhibits of seeds, grains, honey, pottery and everything new in production. He had a fine lot of pictures taken in various parts of the state. Mr. Brandstad said he had great faith in North Dakota. In a speech at the banquet he compared land values fifty years ago and today; the home then and now. He had with him an old wagon wheel put on rubber. He called it "Streamlining the old wagon wheel." This exhibit attracted much attention. The Greater North Dakota Association sends representatives to vocational schools and have exhibits at fairs, etc. In 1939 they paid the expenses of 22 girls and boys and their chaperons to the World's Poultry Congress at Cleveland, says Mr. Brandstad.

Radio Station KLPM, Minot, now an affiliate of the Mutual Broadcasting System, again gave the show much publicity through the broadcasts given many times each day. Various exhibitors, feed dealers and visitors were invited to greet their friends over the air. On Thursday afternoon a half hour broadcast was arranged over the northwestern hookup which reached far beyond the borders of our state. Mrs. Cooley had charge of all these broadcasts and we as exhibitors surely appreciate her splendid cooperation which she always gives so willingly and smilingly.

Judge P. M. Pierce, Denver, Colo., was new on our judging staff this year, but his method of handling the birds and careful conscientious judging met with favor with all the exhibitors at the show.

Leslie Maupin, Secretary, and his assistant, Mrs. Al Lambert, did a splendid job of recording the show. Everything was all set for cooping the birds when they arrived so handling was facilitated. Much credit should be given to Roy Farsley, who was in charge of setting up the show. He was always on the job and ready to help wherever help was needed.

We shall miss Mrs. Lovig as President of the Show next year, but know that as President Emeritus and a faithful exhibitor, she will be with us again. With the responsibility of the show lifted from her shoulders she will enjoy the show and let the rest carry on the work she has begun.

Cassius Hardy, Ross, is the newly elected president of the show as well as of the Improvement Association. Mr. Hardy has been an exhibitor at the show for several years so needs very little introduction to turkey raisers. Let us as turkey producers get behind Mr. Hardy with our support and help him carry on the work of making the State Show bigger and better.

During the business meeting of the Improvement Association it was voted to raise our yearly dues to one dollar. So, friends, please remember this change when making your 1941 remittance. We also voted to become an affiliate of the National Turkey Federation, thereby giving our support to those who are trying to keep turkeys on a firm foundation.

My sincere sympathy is extended to Mrs. Henry Botz, Cando, at the loss of her brother, Senator B. W. Lemke, who passed away at the Mercy Hospital in Devils Lake, Nov. 30th. We missed Mrs. Botz at the show this year as she always has a nice showing of her Bronze beauties.

MRS. A. C. PAYNE.

WINNER, S. DAK.. HAS SHOW

This was the second all-turkey show held at Winner and exhibitors, mostly from that section, entered 120 turkeys of very good quality. Several years ago, when the writer used to judge this show, chickens comprised the greater part of the entries, yet the turkey entries were good for that time and the quality above the average. While the annual exhibits at this time were excellent in every way, and interest good, it was before the turkey came "into its own" and became the industry it is today. Now the "Rosebud" country is known to be ideal for turkey raising and the industry has become the best "cash crop" in that section.

The show was judged by Howard Tanner, noted Bronze breeder of Gettysburg, S. D., assisted by Mr. Ralph Mernaugh, extension poultryman from Brookings. The Bronze breed constituted by far the larger part of the show. We do not have the exact number

Colds in Turkeys Quickly Relieved

Readers with colds in their flocks should read this letter from E. H. Mathill, Hudson, Wyo.:

"Several of our turkeys had infectious colds. One was very bad. Its head was so swollen it couldn't see. I applied Group-Over and in 6 hours, the swelling had all gone down, and the bird was eating and drinking, as happy as any of the flock. Group-Over stopped the whole trouble in a hurry."

It is amazing how quickly Group-Over checks colds in poultry. A few drops in the nostrils usually solves the whole problem, while a little in the drinking water, as a preventive, guards the whole flock. For a liberal supply, send 50c (or $1.00 for the extra large size) to Burrell-Dugger Co., 716 Postal Station Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind. As Group-Over must satisfy you perfectly or money refunded, it costs nothing to try.

NOTES ON THE NORTHERN STATES SHOW

A goodly number of the finest turkeys in the world, cooped in an ideal setting, would not make a satisfactory showing without the congenial friendships and cordial greetings of which turkey folks are noted. All these were present at Alexandria during the week of the Northern States Turkey show and that accounts for its marked success.

The arrival of the Tanner brothers, Howard and Earl, late Monday night, with their string of 27 high class Bronze on their "Overland" trailer, was really the "first gun fired" to announce the show was on. George Gilbertson had previously taken care of the arranging and setting up of the cooping to be ready for the early arrivals and early Tuesday morning the work of cooping got under way in earnest, the Tanners assisting. At no time was there undue congestion and everything proceeded with clock-like regularity.

Tuesday was cooping day and from morning until late at night birds were arriving, some in regulation crates, some in crates more elaborate with names and addresses painted on them and with many from local farms wrapped in gunny sacks, but all quickly found their places in coops assigned to them, in perfect order as to breed and class. That is what the judge likes to find and adds greatly to the appearance of the show.

Among the exhibitors who came from long distances with their birds were Mr. and Mrs. John Allen, of Radium, Minn., bringing both live and dressed exhibits which won their usual high placings in both classes. Their presence all week added much to the personnel of the show. Mrs. Eric Norrie, Narragansett breeder of Crookston, Minn., came with the Allens, bringing dressed birds only, which also got well into the winnings. Mrs. W. J. Janda, secretary of the All-American Bronze Club, was also present, bringing with her a dressed exhibit which placed well. Her habitual smile and congenial ways was another asset to the show and you may be sure she was boosting for STANDARD BRONZE.

Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Risbrudt, well known Bronze breeders, brought in one of the largest entries and were present all week to greet their many friends, hold turkeys at the judging table and always ready to lend a hand wherever needed. Their excellent winnings bespeak the painstaking care they apply to their turkey raising. Mr. and Mrs. Ole C. Nelson, owners of Oakdale Turkey Farm, are another couple who are always ready to do their part and who would be greatly missed at the show. They were present most of the week and their Black turkeys made a notable winning for them this year. George Gilbertson's Narragansetts made up one of the largest entries at the show, and again made a notable winning.

Al M. Brown, of Nome, N. Dak., came down with a string of his high quality White Hollands and was present all week. All his birds placed well as will be noted by awards and other comment. But there were other entries in White Hollands which gave plenty of competition, shown by Alfred Foslien, and Mrs. S. M. Dalager.

Another exhibitor from North Dakota who was present all week was Clarence Mairs, well known for the high quality he and his son produce in Bourbon Reds and White Hollands. He exhibited in both live and dressed classes and won some of the top placings in both. No turkey show of note in the northwest would be complete without the presence of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Thieke, of Beardsley, Minn., noted breeders of Bourbon Reds, who have exhibited the country over. They, too, were present all week and their joy was unbounded when it was announced that they had won Grand Champion of the show on their yearling Bourbon Red tom. They had been long in achieving that goal and were worthy in every way of the many congratulations they received. Their presence, too, always adds much to the showroom.

Other exhibitors we think of who had important entries and were present were: M. J. Albjerg, Clitheral, Minn.; Emil Johnson, Kensington, Minn.; Mr. and Mrs. John Brustad, Osakis, Minn.; Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Skrove, Dalton, Minn.; and we noted a fine exhibit of Bronze by Mr. and Mrs. Roy G. Utne, of South Dakota, who were not present. Others who came from a distance to attend the show and banquet, were Mr. J. A. Gutzler and son Edwin, Park Rapids, Minn.; Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Street of Osseo, Minn.; and Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Anderson of Swanville, Minn. The latter exhibited in dressed birds. Mr. and Mrs. O. O. Krueger of Morris, Minn., and Mrs. Krause of the same place were also present. Many have been missed who should be mentioned but we are writing from memory and so must be pardoned for omissions.

We have no specific report on the broadcasts which went out on two days of the show from the show room. We know there were several interesting speakers representing different phases of the show. These included Mr. Axel Hanson, president of the Bronze Club; Mrs. John Allen, Manager Holger Hanson. The broadcasts were in charge of Lloyd C. Larson of Mankato.

Gentlemen:

At market time, as we hear praises for our fine quality turkeys, we want to pass these words of praise on to you where credit is due.

We have raised about 5,500 turkeys this season, and are finishing our most successful year in breeder production, incubation, and brooding.

We have used HUBBARD SUNSHINE CONCENTRATE in our feed, prepared by U. D. Thompson & Son, Cambridge, Ohio, for six years. We maintain a breeding flock of more than 1,000 breeders, and 58,000 egg capacity incubators (turkey only). We brood several thousand poult and market some birds of our hatchery customers, so we have an ideal opportunity to observe feed results.

The difference in hatching results and quality of market birds, due to different feeding methods, was once dubbed 'sales talk' by us. But now we gladly give HUBBARD credit for our steady increase in profitable turkey production from a few hundred to thousands of breeders and market birds.

Sincerely yours,

Howard F. Frisbee
