PREFACE.

It has been affirmed in works of considerable reputation that the subject of the following 'Passion' was almost wholly unknown to our fore-fathers till the period of the Crusaders, when he is said to have interposed in behalf of the Christians during the expeditions of Richard I.

This statement is, however, untenable, as will be seen by referring to the notices of St. George, which belong to Anglo-Saxon history. The language of the present poem is of itself sufficient to convince us of his general recognition in England even before the Norman conquest. The MS. was perhaps executed somewhat later, but the author of it was none other than Ælfric, archbishop of York, who presided over that see between the years 1023 and 1051. This fact has been ascertained by collating the Cambridge MS. with a volume of 'Lives of Saints,' in the Cotton library (Julius, E, vii), unquestionably the work of Ælfric, as we learn from the preface. He also informs us that he had already translated two volumes of the same kind, to meet the wishes of the English people, while this third was chiefly undertaken for the gratification of the monks. The pages which relate to St. George agree almost literatim with the text of the following Passion.

Nor is this the earliest vestige of St. George in Anglo-Saxon literature. We find him in a 'Martyrology' surviving in Corpus Christi College, Cambridge (No. exevi, p. 12), given, it would seem, by bishop Leofric to the Cathedral Church of Exeter, early in the eleventh century. He

^{*} I transcribe this Passion at length: "On pone preo and twentigovan dæg pæs monves (Eostor-month or April) by vancte Georius tyd pæs ævelan martyres, pone Datianus se casere seofen gear myd unasecgendlicum wytum hyne preatode pat he Cryste wivsoce; and he næfre hyne ofer-swyvan ne myhte. In p. 15, there is a commemoration of Alexandra, who is mentioned in some legends of St. George as the queen of Datianus.

the Anglo-Saxon Church might have become acquainted with St. George, is the Gregorian Sacramentary, once very generally used in our island. It is true, questions have been raised touching the genuineness of the 'Preface,' where St. George is commemorated by name; but other evidence is not wanting to prove that he was already known to Gregory the Great, and therefore to the Roman missionaries, who took part in the conversion of the Saxons. For among the letters of St. Gregory, there is one in which he gives orders for the repair of a church dedicated in honour of St. George.*

But all doubts as to his early introduction among our Anglo-Saxon forefathers are removed by the testimony of Adamnan, whose treatise 'de Situ Terræ Sanetæ' (ed. Ingolstadt, 1619) supplies the following curious information. It appears that Arculf, the early traveller, on his return to his bishopric in France, was carried by adverse winds to Iona (A.D. 701). At his own dictation, a narrative was made of his interesting pilgrimage; and among other particulars we are ðingvuge gigladias, gilef rvmlice, þte ða ðe his vel-fremnis' ve givgað, gefe giselenisne gefes ve gifylga."

told (lib. iii, c. 4): "Aliam quoque de Georgio marture certam relationem nobis S. Arculfus intimavit, quam expertis quibusdam satis idoneis narratoribus in Constantinopoli urbe indubitanter didicit." In proof of the sanctity of the martyr, he subjoins a most singular story touching a man who vowed his horse to St. George, as he was proceeding on some perilous expedition. Having returned in safety, he wished to commute the offering by the payment of a sum of money. Whereupon the saint showed his deep displeasure by causing the animal to become restive, when his rider had mounted for his departure; and after several ineffectual attempts, and the promise of some extra shillings, the vow was at length literally fulfilled by leaving the horse behind. The moral which this story inculcated on the Anglo-Saxons is then stated by Adamnan: "Hinc manifeste colligitur, quodcumque Domino conseeratur, sive homo erit sive animal (juxta id quod in Levitico scriptum est) nullo modo posse redimi aut mutari."

From the same source Bede most probably derived the information contained in his Martyrology, for he was well acquainted both with the travels of Arculf* and the book of Adamnan, which latter, indeed, he has epitomised. The notice at ix Kalend. Maii, is as follows: "Natale S. Georgii martyris, qui sub Datiano, rege Persarum potentissimo qui dominabatur super septuaginta reges, multis miraculis claruit, plurimosque convertit ad fidem Christi, simul et Alexandram uxorem ipsius Datiani usque ad martyrium confortavit. Ipse vero novissime decollatus martyrium explevit, quamvis gesta passionis ejus inter apocryphas connumerentur scripturas."

This last clause will throw light upon the language at the opening of the Anglo-Saxon Passion. It is there stated that heretical accounts of St. George were not uncommon in the Western Church; and that the compiler of the present legend undertook it with the hope of preserving the faithful from all further imposition. In what the heresy of those legends consisted we are unable to ascertain precisely, for the first mention of them, which occurs in a catalogue of spurious writings drawn up at Rome in 495, does no more than enumerate one relating to St. George. may however be conjectured, with considerable probability, that the ground of condemnation was an allusion respecting St. Athanasius, who appears to have been foisted into the narrative at a very early period. As in our own legend, he is made to play the part of a magician in aid of the tyrant Datianus; and since his adversaries were in the habit of taxing him with sorcery, there is reason to suspect that the corruption of the legend is due to Arian malice. This at least has been the opinion of many writers who have investigated the story of St. George, including Baronius, Heylin, and the Bollandists. They also maintain, that the confusion of our saint with the Cappadocian George, who lived nearly a century later, has resulted from similar interpolations.* However this may be, it is clear that the author of the legend from which our Anglo-Saxon text has been derived, reproduced several of the Arian elements, notwithstanding his zeal to vindicate the saint from all heretical misconstructions. This feature of the Passion will be found not the least curious.

I may add, in conclusion, that the accompapanying version claims no merit beyond that of a literal correctness, and that the few various readings are drawn from the Cotton MS. to which I have before alluded.

^{*} The main channel by which this corruption was perpetuated, seems to be a manuscript written in Lombardic characters, and referred to the seventh century. Baronius speaks of that legend of St. George as "multis procul dubio repertam mendaciis", and the Bollandists as "non tantum fide sed ctiam lectione indignissima." They affirm, however, that the basis of the legend was historical, and that it was subsequently expurgated by collation with the purer accounts of the Eastern Church.

Believers in God. And took up his corpse, And conveyed to the borough, Where he was martyred, And buried him there With manifold worship, To the praise of the Almighty. Then sent out the Lord Rain-showers forthwith, And watered the ground That ere had been parched; Like as Georius prayed Ere that he bent him to death. Whereupon Datianus Was suddenly slain By heaven-sent fire, And his colleagues likewise, While on his way home With his notable thancs: But he entered hell Ere (he reached) his house. And the holy Georius Journeyed to Christ, With whom he aye dwelleth In glory. Amen.

PREFACE.

This curious relic of our earlier poetry is preserved at the end of a folio volume of Homilies, by Radulphus Acton, or Achedon, who flourished, according to Pits, about the year 1320. (De Scriptoribus, s. 474.) The volume was presented to St. Peter's College, Cambridge, by Thomas Beaufort, half-brother to King Henry IV, and afterwards Duke of Exeter; the use of it being reserved (as we gather from a note at the commencement) to one Mr. John Savage, "ad terminum vitæ suæ duntaxat." The donor was appointed Lord Chancellor of England in the year 1410, and died in the year 1425 (Lord Campbell's Lives, i. p. 316); by which dates we can approximate with sufficient accuracy to the time when the manuscript reached its present resting-place.

The hand-writing of the Poem belongs to the same period as that of the Homilies, and is possibly the work of the same scribe. It may be assigned to the reign of Edward III, or perhaps of Edward II. This opinion, however, as to the execution of the manuscript, is quite independent of the age of the Poem; and since nothing has survived respecting the author, his date can only be ascertained by the internal evidence of language and historical intimations.

With respect to the language of the Poem, it will be found (speaking generally) to resemble the old English of Piers Ploughman's Creed and Vision, so that we shall not far misdate its composition, if on a prima facie view we consider it not later than 1350. On the contrary, it will appear to be still more ancient. For, first, it contains allusion to certain calamities very prevalent in England at the time of its publication. Thus in stanza 1:

Why werre and wrake in londe
And manslaugt is y-come:
Why honger and derthe on erthe
The pour hath ouer-nome;
Wy bestes beth i-storve
And why corne is so dere,
3e that wyl abyde,
Lystyn and 3e mow here.

And similarly in stanza 78; both which passages furnish proof that the country was then, or had been very recently, suffering from war, famine, and a grievous murrain; and that the price of corn was immoderately high. Now these various historical phases will, I think, be found to synchronize with that portion of thereign of Edward II, which is included between the years 1311-1320. The allusion to war and domestic divisions may be dismissed, by referring to the troubles connected with Piers Gaveston, and the unsuccessful expedition to Scotland. The other topics, which are of a less ordinary character, will be illustrated by the following extract from Stow's Chronicle:*

"The king, in a Parliament at London, gave the rod and office of marshall vnto Thomas of Brotherton, Earle of Norfolke, his brother. Hee also reuoked the provisions† before made for selling of victuals, and permitted all men to make the best of that they had; neuerthelesse the dearth increased through the aboundance of raine that fell in harvest, so that a quarter of wheate, or of salt was solde before mid-sommer for thirty shillings, and after forty shillings. There followed [A.D. 1316] this famine a grievous mortality of people, so that the quick might unneath bury the dead. The beasts and cattall also, by the corrupt grasse whereof they fed, dyed, whereby it came to passe that the eating of flesh was suspected of all men; for flesh of beastes not corrupted was hard to finde. Horse-flesh was counted great delicates; the poor stole fatte dogges to eate. Some (as it was sayd), compelled through famine, in hidden places, did eate the flesh of their own children, and some stole others which they denoured. Theeues that were in prisons did pluck in peeces those that were newly brought amongst them, and greedily devoured them, halfe aliue. A gallon of small ale was at twopence, of the better threepence, and the best fourpence."

[†] These are probably the dietary provisions published in Leland's Collectanea, vi, 36, ed. Hearne. The date is 1315. A second visitation of the same kind is placed by Walsingham in the year 1319. Scotland and Ireland were equally afflicted. See Carte, ii, 337, 340.

Another allusion, of a character more specific, will place our Poem about the same period, i.e., between 1311 and 1320. In stanza 35, the following lecture is read to the order of the Hospitalers:—

An other religion ther is
Of the Hospital;
They ben lords and sires
In contrey over al:
Ther is non of hem all
That ne awt to ben a-drad,
Whan thei bethenken
How the Templars have i-sped
For pride:

Forsothe catel cometh and goth As wederis don in lyde.*

It will be observed that the poet is here moralizing on the suppression of the Knights Templars, and the transferring of their property to the Hospitalers. These changes had been effected at the council of Vienne, in the year 1311; so that a warning like the above, addressed to persons somewhat flushed by their recent good fortune, would be, on our hypothesis, both natural and pointed.

A further corroboration will be found in stanza 58, which refers to a general military conscription:

Whan the kyng into his werre Wol haue stronge men,
Of ech toun to help hym at his werre Fourten or ten:
The strong schul sytte a-doun
For x. shylynge other twelue
And send wreches to the kyng
That mow not help hem selue.

I believe no example of levying forces after this fashion has been recorded before the year 1316, nor have I met with any repetition of it for some time afterwards. In that year, however, we are told, "the great men, and knights of shires, granted the king one able-bodied footman, well armed, out of every village, or hamlet, in the kingdom. Market-towns were to furnish more, in proportion to their bigness and ability to defray the expense of sending them to the general rendezvous, and of paying each man a great a day for sixty days; upon the expiration of which term their wages were to be paid by the king, who declared, by his letters patent, that this should not be made a precedent, nor be drawn into a custom."*

^{*} I.e., "property comes and goes as clouds do in March."

From these, and other incidental allusions, which it is not necessary to particularize, the poem before us may be fairly assigned to somewhere about the year 1320. It would thus precede Piers Ploughman by an interval of more than thirty years, and was (if I mistake not) one of the very earliest satirical poems composed in the English language.

It is well-known that this species of warfare had been long practised by our forefathers through the medium of the Latin language; and that many who on this side the channel imitated the gentler branches of Provençal poetry were not backward in copying its more caustic productions. In neither case, however, was the satire of a popular character; for besides the comparative obscurity of the language, it was nearly always disguised in tropes and allegories. The exceptions, which are few, consisted of short English ballads, directed against some obnoxious individual, and differing in that respect from the poem before us, which is a broadside against whole orders. Indeed (as Warton* observes) the personalities of some of the above-mentioned ballads seem to have occasioned a statute against libels in 1275, entitled "Against slanderous reports, or tales to cause discord betwixt king and people". Probably, through dread of this statute, as well as of ecclesiastical censure, the allegorical species of satire is revived by the author of Piers Ploughman's Vision, who moreover substituted the alliterative style of the Anglo-Saxon period for the rhyme now beginning to be almost universal. Diverse from him in both these respects is the author of the poem before us. His versification is in rhyme, with occasional examples of alliteration; neither does he confine his censures to any mere abstractions, such as pride, avarice, and simony,

[†] In the manuscript the stanzas appear in five long lines, each line divided by the metrical dot, or dash. The first four lines, by subdivision, produce eight lines, which rhyme in alternate pairs. At the end of the fourth long line is added a versicle, generally of two syllables, which (oddly enough) rhymes with the final syllable of the last line.

but proceeds to a direct attack on all states and conditions of men,-the pope, archbishops and bishops, archdeacons, parsons, priests, abbots, priors, monks, eanons, friars (white, black, and grey), hospitalers, deans and chapters, physicians, knights, barons, squires, ministers of state, judges, sheriffs, advocates, attorneys, merchants, and in short, every body.* The tone of our author, though here and there pathetie, must be described as, on the whole, deeply lugubrious, and his matter, with only a few exceptions, one volley of unmitigated invective. All classes of society, he is persuaded, find their chief pleasure in victimizing the poor; and although we do not read that he stirred up any violent demonstration, I cannot help thinking that poems like his had great force in predisposing the populace for the Lollard doctrines, as well as in urging them to Jack Cade excesses.

Still it would be most unfair to argue as if the grievances of the people in that age were either few or trivial. The whole course of the reign of

^{*} There is one exception to this sweeping condemnation, in the absence of all allusion to the pardoner, who in Piers Ploughman and in Chaucer is handled very roughly. I consider this silence a further proof of the early date of the poem. Indulgences were not sold, at least publicly, till A.D. 1313, so that we could scarcely expect to hear of their abuse so early as 1320.

Edward II was one of domestic deterioration and of external disgrace; the king, weak and capricious; the courtiers, lawless, unprincipled, and oppressive. Among the bishops and secular clergy there were too few of those

... Lelc libbynge men

while, in very many cases, the licentiousness of the monastic and mendicant orders kept pace with their pride and rapacity. These latter were widespread evils, and had been gradually provoking a spirit of satire not only in England,* but in almost every corner of western Christendom.†

Again, we have abundant proof that when our poet was uttering his complaint in behalf of the poor and starving, the wealthier classes of the nation were revelling in ease and luxury. A curious picture of these habits is preserved in a dietary, or royal edict, bearing date 1315, and occasioned, most probably, by the famine to which we have before alluded. While all who had the means were faring sumptuously every day, the rest were literally abandoned to destitution, and hundreds, we know, shared the fate of the diseased cattle, to which they were deemed hardly superior.

The last particular, which may be adduced in extenuation of our author's acrimony, has reference to the alleged corruption of the law-courts of that period. The lord chancellor was Robert de Baldock, who stands charged as one of the principal agents in bringing on the troubles of Edward II. "He seems," says Lord Campbell,* "to have been a very profligate man, and to have been unscrupulous in perverting the rules of justice, regardless of public opinion, and reckless as to the consequences." He was afterwards seized by the mob, and thrown into Newgate, where he died of his wounds.

On the whole, therefore, we must admit that there were numerous handles for satire; and if the specimen before us appears somewhat coarse and indiscriminate, it was probably the only kind of corrective which that age could have appreciated.

P.S. I should remark (what was unknown to me when I transcribed this poem) that an *imper*fect copy of it has been printed in Mr. Wright's Collection of Political Songs, from a manuscript in the Advocates' Library at Edinburgh. The printed Poem agrees in the main with this one, not however without important variations of words, and even of lines and stanzas. From one or two circumstances I suspect that the Edinburgh manuscript was a sort of second edition corrected. Mr. Wright simply describes the fragment as very curious, and assigns it to the reign of Edward II. I regret that he was unacquainted with the Peter-House MS., for besides supplying many various readings, it would have enabled him to complete his text, and would thus have enhanced the value of his interesting publication.

NOTES.

^a The words included between brackets have been almost entirely erased; probably in obedience to the proclamation of Henry VIII, who after declaring "Thomas, sometime archbishop of Canterbury, to have been guilty of contumacy, treason, and rebellion," commanded "his loving subjects to destroy all images and pictures of the pseudo-saint Thomas, and to erase his name and remembrance from all books, under pain of his majesty's indignation."

b For a fuller delineation of a monastic gourmand, see

Piers Ploughman's Vision, vol. i, p. 250, ed. Wright.

The Minors were the gray friars, or Franciscans; the Jacobins, the black, or preaching friars, and were so called from their first establishment in Paris (see Fleury, Hist. Eccl., liv. lxxviii, s. 5); the Carmes, or Carmelites, were the white friars, originally established at Mount Carmel; the Austins were friars of the order of St. Augustine. They had all gained a footing in England about the year 1250. In the "Creed of Piers Ploughman" they are satirized at length.

d Cf. Piers Ploughman's Vision, vol. i, p. 133:

" For murthereris are many leches Lord hem amende! They do men deye through hir drynkes Er destynee it wolde."

Sentiments not unlike the above had been uttered long before, by John of Salisbury.

e Allusion is perhaps made to royal edicts and decisions of Parliament, whereby it was ordained that all persons who had a whole knight's fee, or fifty pounds a-year in land, should be admitted to the honour of knighthood. Instances of this practice occurred in the years 1312 and 1316. See Carte, ii, 325, 339.

f The reference is to St. James of Compostella in Galicia, which was then a most famous resort of pilgrims:

"And til seint James be sought
There I shal assigne,
That no man go to Galis
But if he go for evere."

Piers Ploughman's Vision, vol. i, p. 72.

PREFACE.

WILLIAM DE SHOREHAM is, as far as I know, a new name in the list of English writers. His poems are interesting in two points of view; they exhibit to us the popular doctrines of the age on subjects of religion, which alone were consigned to the vulgar tongue, and they present a good specimen of the English language as it was then spoken and written in the county of Kent. They seem to have been written by a zealous, and far from unlearned, preacher, for the purpose of enforcing the doctrines of the Church on the minds of those who were only capable of understanding them when offered in a popular form; and they offer most of the subjects of Christian doctrine which were then considered important. first of these poems recounts and illustrates the seven sacraments of the Catholic Church, and gives a very full description of its principal ceremonies and orders. The second is a rhyming version of some portion of the ceremonies. The third, on the ten commandments, and the fourth, on the seven sins, are short commentaries on Christian morality. The fifth is on the joys of the Virgin, a most popular subject in the middle ages. The sixth is a hymn on the Virgin, translated from Robert Grosteste. The seventh and last, in which the writer becomes at times quite philosophical, is a sort of dissertation on some of the mysteries of the Christian faith, but more especially on the doctrine of original sin.

Our information as to the author of these poems is derived from the colophons at the end of several of them, in which he is called William de Shoreham, and is stated to have been vicar of Chart near Leeds. In Thorpe's Registrum Roffense, p. 207, we have a charter of Walter archbishop of Canterbury, by which he impropriates the rectory of Chart-Sutton to the prior and convent of Leeds, upon which it became a vicarage, and we learn that the first vicar admitted was William de Shoreham. The archbishop alluded to was Walter Raynolds, who held the see from 1313 to 1327. It is therefore probable that our Kentish poet, who was, no doubt, a native of Shoreham, near Otford (about four miles and a half from Sevenoaks), was originally a monk of the priory of Leeds, and he was made vicar of Chart-Sutton on the appropriation of that living to his convent by archbishop Walter. His poems may, therefore, be attributed to the reign of Edward II. It appears from one of the colophons (p. 116 of the present volume) that he was living under Walter's successor, archbishop Simon Mepham (1327-1333): and he, probably, occupied himself in the latter period of his life in collecting his poems into the very manuscript from which they are here printed, which appears to be of the beginning of the reign of Edward III. The manuscript was in private hands at the time my transcript was made; but I am not sure whether at present it be in a private, or public collection. I have every reason to believe my transcript to be a correct one; but, unfortunately, while the present edition was passing through the press, it was not in my power to refer to the original, and to this circumstance, I trust that any errors that may have occurred in editing a text which presents many difficulties, will be attributed.

And for we beth of nonn power
To weryen ous fram schame,
Ther der no fend acombry ous,
Crist is mid ous to-sames
And neade;

Tokene ther-of his Godes bodi At cherche in forme of brede.

And 3et for man his so brotel
Ine his owene kende,
Tha3 he torni to senne a3en
Thorwe fondynge of the feende,
By chaunce,

That he may come to stat ageyn
Thorwe bare repentaunce.

Her-of we habbeth tokene gode,
Wanne we fangeth penaunce;
For sennes that we habbeth i-done,
To pyne allegaunce

Ine fere,

For ther we scholde hit under-go Sote we pinede hit here.

That man ne falle ine wanhope
A-last withoute bote,
Al that he heth i-senoged her
With honden and with foste,
Wyth thoute,
Mouthe, nase, and eysen, and with sist,

Mouthe, nase, and eyzen, and with sizt, Eliinge brengeth hit to nouzte.

5et some hethe suche devocioun,
That hym thingthe he his al ydel,
For to libbe commun lif,
Bote 5ef he hedde a brydel;
Wet thinge

Of harder stat God graunteth Wel tokne throw3 his ordiinge.

5et that man mowe nau5t lecherie For-bere to donne in dede; 5et ne schal he nau5t be for-lore, For God 5efthe hym to rede Spousynge;

Tokene throf his the weddinge At cherche and bitere wyinge. Cristendom, and bisschoppynge,
Penauns, and eke spousinge,
Godes body ine forme of bred,
Ordre, and anellinge,

Thes sevene
Heth holi cherche sacremens,
That beth tokenen of hevene.

God wescht, and marketh,

And forzefth, and joyneth men an wyves,

And frevereth thorwe his body man,

And grace sent, and lyves;

3e. wanne?

Wanne we taketh the sacremens, Thar we seth hit thanne.

That we ne mowe hyt nau;t i-se,
Ne forthe inc bodie inrede,
We sethe hit wel inc ourc fey,
And fredeth hit at nede,
Wel e;athe,

God thorwe miracles ketheth hit A-lyve and eke a-dethe.

And bote he thorwe hys sacramens
Ous thos bi-redde,
Ne scholde we of his grace wite
Wanne we hit toke and hadde,
To wisse;

Ther-fore he that bi-lefeth hit nau;t, Rist wyt neth he of none blisse. Al hit beth in these cherche sacremens,
Thet tokeneth holi thynges,
As hali water, and haly bred,
Li5t, and bel-ryngynges
To leste;

And of alle other sacremens

Thes sevene beth the greste.

De baptismo.

Cristendom his that sacrement
That men her ferst fongeth;
Hit openeth ous to the hevene blisse
That many man after longeth
Wel sore;

For who that entreth ther, He his sauffe evere-more.

Nou ferst ich wille telle 30u
Wet may be the materie,
Wer-inne cristninge may be mad,
That bringeth ous so merie
To honoure.

Hi₅t mo₅t be do ine kende water, And non other licour.

Ther-fore ine wine me ne may,
Inne sithere, ne inne pereye,
Ne ine thinge that nevere water nes,
Thor; cristninge man may reneye,
Ne inne ale;

For-thie hizt were water ferst, Of water neth hit tale. Ne mede ne forthe no other licour
That chaungeth wateres kende,
Ne longeth nau;t to cristendom,
Tha;t some foles hit wende
For wete;
For suich is kendeliche hot,
Tha;t ther no feer hit ne hente.

Ac water is kendeliche eheld,

Thas hit be warmd of fere;

Ther-fore me mey cristni ther-inne,

In whaut time falthe a scre

Of yse;

So mey me naust in ewe ardaunt,

Also me may inne sealte se
Cristny wel mitte beste;
And eke inne othere sealte watere,
Bote me in to moche keschte
Of sealte;

That neth no wateris wyse.

For 3ef that water his kende lest, That cristninge stant te-tealte.

Ac 3yf ther were y-mengd licour

Other wid kende watere,

Ich wo5t wel thrinne to cristnye

Hit nere nefur the betere,

Ac wonde;

For bote that water his kende have,

That cristnynge may nau3t stonde.

In water ich wel the cristny her,
As Gode himself hyt di;te;
For mide to wessche nis nothynge,
That man cometh to so li;te,
In londe;
Nis non that habben hit ne may,
That habbe hit wile founde.

This bethe the wordes of cristninge
Bi thyse Englissche costes,
"Ich cristin the in the Vader name,
And Sone, and Holy Göstes,
And more".

Amen! wane hit his i-sed ther-toe

Amen! wane hit his i-sed ther-toe Confermeth that ther to-fore.

The wordes scholle be i-sed
Witheoute wane and eche;
And onderstand hi more bi sed
In alle manere speche,
Inc lede;
That everich man hi sigge more,
And cristny for nede.

Ac 5if man scholde i-cristnid be,
That neth none deathes sigue,
The pope for te cristny hyne
So nere nau5t to digne
The lesse;
Ther-fore hi beth in cherche brou5t,
To cristny of the preste.

Ac he that zif so large water The fend fram ous to reave, In nede for to crystny men, sef alle men i-leave,

At felle ;

Olepi me mot hym depe ine the water, And eke the wordes telle.

And wanne hi cristneth ine the foungt, The prestes so thries duppeth, In the honur of the Trinité, Ae gode zeme kepeth The ned:

On time a clothe that water i-kest, Ac ope the hevede to bede.

Ac water i-kest another love Cristneth the man alyve, Ae hit his sikerest in the heeved Ther beth the wittes fyve, Wel, brother,

Ne non ne may i-cristened be, Ar 3e his boren of moder.

set gret peryl hy undergothe That eristneth twyes enne, Other to seve asent ther-to, Other for love of kenne For-hedeth; Wanne child arist cristnynge heth,

And that other naust for-bedeth.

Bote hi this conne, hit his peril
To thise medewyves;
For ofte children scheawith quike,
I-bore to schorte lyves,
And deyeth;

Bote he arist i-cristned be, Fram hevene evere hi weyeth.

Ac jif that child i-cristned his
Ac ine fot at me hit weveth,
Thise habbeth forme ther-of,
A Latin that ham gevieth
To depe;

And ich schel seggen hit an Englisch, Nou ther-of neme 5e kepe.

The prest taketh that ilke child
In his honden by-thuixte,
And seith, "ich ne cristin thei naust,
sef thou ert i-cristned,

Eftsone;

Ac 3yf thou nart ich cristin the;"
And deth that his to donne.

Ac 5ct ther beth cristnynges mo,
Ac no man ne may di5tti;
For hi beth Godes grace self,
Men of gode ine wil to ri5ti,
And wynne,

Wanne he wolde i-cristned be, And more mid none ginne. That on his cleped cristninge of blode,
Wanne suche bledeth for Criste;
That other of the Holi Gost,
That moze mid none liste
Be i-cristned;
And deyeth so wanne hi beth deede,

And deyeth so wanne hi beth deede, In hevene hi beth i-gistned.

The children atte cherche dore
So beth y-primisined;
And that hi beethe eke atte fount
Mid oylle and creyme alyned,
Al faylleth;

Hist wortheth cristnynge,

And that child ther-to hit availleth.

De confirmacione.

Confermynge his a sacrement,
And other that we foungeth;
And wanne a man hit ondervangeth
Ine saule hit hine straungeth
Wel lijtte.

For wanne a man y-maked his, The stronger he his to fy₅te.

And be thou siker that mannes lyf
Is rist a knisthod ine londe;
And so seythe Job, the holy man;
Now wote we thanne stonde
To fiste;

The feend, that flesche, and eke the wordle, Azeins ous beth i-di;te.

The feend with prede acombreth ons,
With wrethe, and with envie;
That fleische with slouthe and glotonie,
And eke with lecherie,

Thou wyse;

The wordle, with here falzse scheawinge, Schent ous with coveytise.

Ac he that ine saule is strang,
That he with-stent hi alle,
And hardeliche hert othre men,
A-doun that hi ne falle,
Ac stonde:

So his i-hert thor; confermynge of gode, That for dethe nele nau;t wonde.

Nou ich mot of this sacrement 50u telle the materie,
That maketh man so hardiliche
To stonde ane so merie
Ine goste,

That he me may nau;t y-weid be With blanding me with boste.

Hit his the oyle and baume y-menge,
I-blessed, and wile lestne;
For oyle smereth thane champion
That me ne schel on him evel festne,
Ne presse;

And baume his riche and tokened loog Of there holy prowesse. A prince longeth for to do
The gode kni5tes dobbynge;
And so a prince of Godes ost
Schel do the confermynge,
None lo5er;
Therfore hit mot a bisschoppe be,

Nis non ther-to yn ozer.

That me wasche men over the fant After confirmement, Nis nau;t do bote for that honour Of thilke sacrement,

Soe here;

Ther-fore me wescht and kerfy thane clout, And berneth him in the fure.

The bisschop these wordes seth,
And beth wordes of selthe,
"Ich signi the with signe of croys,
And with the creme of hele Confermi".

Ine the foreheved the crouche a set, Felthe of fendes to bermi.

In the foreheved he croucheth hine,
That hine be aschamed boute;
Bote for to bi-knowe Cristes name,
Withoute alle manere doute,
And with ginne,

Thorwe creymic anount straunge he bi-comthe,
His sauvement to winne.

Ac hou his hit ther bethe so fele Confermed of mankenne, And ther so feawe stondeth styf To fytte agenis senne Maligne?

For hi ne fongeth nou;t that thing, Bote the bare signe.

The signe his of the sacrement,

Mid creyme the markynge;

Ae thing that ther bi-tokned his,

Strengthe his that God-schel bringge

Amonge;

Withoute god fey and god wil,

Mey non this thinge ounderfonge.

Ac nou that wil that is to gode
His al i-set bi-hinde;
And thi bi-leave of Jhesu Crist
His nou al weverinde,
Undigne;

Ther-fore ne habbeth that thing Nau5t bote the bare signe.

Ac thare children take that thinge
In hare childed so povre:
Hit leseth wanne hi cometh to wit,
Thour; hare misaventure
Of senne;

Anon the found fondeth hy so, And he me spareth name. That deth that hi nastondeth nougt,
Ac eche othren aschrencheth;
Ac 3if hy mowe 3ct stonde bet,
Wanne hi ham bet bi-thenketh
To leve,

And do ham to devocioun, 3ef God ham strengthe 3ive.

And thanne Gode that his so god
Anon hi stronge maketh,
As hi habbeth devocioun,
And hie God fey taketh,
Reversed;

And al his thor; that sacrement, Theize hit ne be nau;t rehersed.

For wanne we taketh this sacrement,
His soule prente taketh;
And that hi nefer mo for-lest,
Nau;t hi that God for-saketh,
Ac hine healdeth;

Ine stat that sacrement ine man, Wanne 3c ine Gode by-aldeth.

And as thys ylke sacrement
Her thynge and toke hiis signe,
So habbeth the othere sacremens
Syx5e that bethe so digne,
Crystnynge,

Her signe, droppynge in the water, And thynge hiis for-5emynge. Thys ylke sygne, and eke thys thynge, Ine oure childhode we 3yt toke, Ac afterward we lore that thynge, Tho we to senne toke

By wylle;

Amend we the prente lefth Ine oure saule wel stille.

Hym selve no man hebbe schel
To the bischoppynge,
Ine tokne of febleste of hiis goste,
Another schel him brynge,
And lefte;

Ase he ne mişte nauşt himself To confermynge crefte.

Ac her ich segge aperteliche
Thys men and eke this wyves,
That hi ne hebbe hare oze child
By hare quicke lyves,

And rede;

For 3ef hy dothe man and hys wyfe, Ther draweth God sibrede.

Of seve sacremens thre
Prente ine herte maketh;
That beth cristnynge, and confermynge,
And ordre that men taketh
Wel blithe:

That hy ne take hiis for no man, Bote one-lepy sythe. De sacramento altaris.

Nou hyst by-valth to telle sou,
And so ich most wel nede,
Of Godes flesche and eke hys blode
At cherche ine forme of brede
And wyne;

That frevereth ous in oure exil, And lytheth oure pyne.

His blithe mysten hy be
That folwede Cryst in londe,
That myste hyne eche day y-se,
Hiis swete love to fonde,
Ine keththe;

So mowe we be for our ner he, Hy faylled never seththe.

For the hiis tyme was y-come
No lenge to dwelle here,
That wete brede and honde he toke,
Ther he set atte soupere,

And seyde,
"Taketh and eteth, thys hiis my body,"
Of sothe he ham aneyde.

For-wy hy;t moste nedes be
Al sothe that he sede,
That alle thynge his ase he seith,
Thys resoun wole the rede,
To dede,

He seyde to all the worlde be, And all was ase he sede. Nammore maystrye nys hişt to hym
To be ine bredes lyche,
Thane hym was ine the liche of man,
To kethen ous hiis ryche;
Thet maketh

That hy beth alle mis-by-leved, That other throf for-saketh.

The fend hymself him maky mey
Wel dyverse liknynges,
Of best, of men, and of wymmen,
And mani other thynges,
To nusy;

Wel bet may Gode to oure prou Dyverse formes usy.

The that the bred y-tourned was
Into hys body sylve,
He toke the coppe, with the wyne and water,
And seide eft to the twelve

Y-vere,

"Taketh and drynketh everechon Of this chalice here.

"Thys hys my chalis of my blode
Of testament nywe,
That schal be schad for manye men,
And ase we sey3eth gode and trewe
And kende;

And doth 5e thos wanne 5e hyt dothe, Doth hyt in 5oure mende." The hey5e kynge of hevene,

The hey5e kynge of hevene,

He 5af ham power to don hyt,

And forth power to 5evene,

Wel werthe,

That he ne toke Judas out, The worste man on erthe.

And that power hys y-5ive
Fram bysschoppe to preste,
And so schel al so longe be,
Ase cristyndom schel leste,
Y-mete:

Seththe Crist four ous an orthe come, He nolde ous nau;t for-lete.

That he her were inne, hys manhode
Amanges ous to flotie,
set nere he naust thanne ous so nes,
Ase nou we mowe hym notye
In Gode;

We honorieth hype at i-holliche Ine flesche and eke ine blode.

Wat may amounti that he wyle
So by-come oure fode,
Chaungeth he nau;t ase othere mote
Into oure flesche and blode,
By kende?
Nay, ac he chaungeth ous in hym,
To maky ous gode and hende.

And ase Gode there his hole men mete,
And sike hyt by-swiketh,
So his the mete dampnacion
To hem that senne liketh
To holde:

So he hyt tok and his lore, Judas, that Jhesus solde.

Ther-fore ich segge a Godes half
To alle crystyne folke,
That wanne hy scholle y-houseled be,
That hy ne be abolke.

In prede;

Let ounde and wrethe and coveytynge, Sleuthe and lestes on lede.

Nys none of wymman beter i-bore
To seint Johan the Baptyste,
And 5et he quakede wel ar3
Tho he touchede Crist

In the flomme; Thanne auste we wel aryst to be,

Thanne auste we wel aryst to be, To fange hym on tromme.

Ther-fore 3ef that 3e fredeth 3ou,
That he ne be nau3t digne
For te be housled wyth thys body
Ine this thre holy signe,

Wyth-draweth;

For we that hyst taketh endygneliche, Hys jugement he gnaseth. May som man segge, hou schal me so
Fram ther houslynge dwelle,
Wanne God self aperteliche
Seith ous in the Gospelle,
Wel to mende.

"Who that eteth my flesch and drynketh my blod, Ileth lyf withoute ende."

That thou take hyst wyth the mouthe,
Ne myd teth ther-on ne werche,
Thou takest hyt, man, sef that thou art
A lyme of holy cherche,

To blysse, Wanne eny prest his messe syngeth,

I-lief hyt myd y-wysse.

For on hys Godes flesch to nemme,
Ase mouthe the mete taketh,
Another ase the mete y-zete
Into the membres taketh;
Ac here,

Cryst hys that heved, the prest the mouthe,
The lymes that folke i-vere.

And ase the bred to-gadere comthe
Of menye greynys to-bake,
And ase the wyne to-gadere flouthe
Of manye greyns y-take,
I-lyke,

Cryst and hiis membrys, men, O body bethe ine mystyke. Wet hys mystyke ne mey non wete
Be nothynge a-founde,
Bote wanne ther hys o thynge y-ked,
Another to onderstonde
Ther-inne;

Hy that aredeth thyse redeles, Wercheth by thilke gynne.

So wane that body hym hys ked
Of swete Jhesu Cryst,
Me may wel onderstonde ther,
By thulke selve lyste,
An other;

Cryst and eke alle holy men
Beth o body, my leve brother.

Ther-fore guod beth this sacrement Y-mad of suiche thynges,
That my;te of manye make on,
As Cryst and hys derlynges
I-monge;
Thenne scholde hy at one be,

Thenne scholde by at one be, In love that scholde byt fonge.

Nou onderstand the signe her
Fourme hys of wyne and brede;
Noble hys that thynge, ry3t Cristes body,
And body of quike and dede;
Ae, brother,
3et ry3te body tha; hyt be thynge,
Hy3t hys signe of that other.

Vor ase the ry5te bodyes lemes
Habbeth dyverse wyke,
So habbeth ry5t membrys eke
Of the body ine mystyke,
That weldeth;
Hys honden men beth that wel doth,
The fet that wel op-heldeth.

Alle taketh that ry3t body
Thyse men at hare houslynge;
Ac some to prou, and some to lere,
Ine wyl of sene3ynge,
To derye;
Ac one Code exect but negotia

Ac one Gode ary3t hyt nometh, That body ine hys mysterye.

Ac that we be tokned ther
Ine oure Sauveoure,
Ne lef thou nau; the we be ther,
Ne forthe nau; tof oure
That were;
That ther be tokned thynges two,
Ther nys bot o thyng there.

And that hys swete Jhesu Cryst
Ine flesche and eke ine bloude,
That tholede pyne and passyoun,
And diath opene the roude,
Wel soure;
Ne lef non other Cryste, man,
For safour ne coloure.

For that colour, ne that savour,

Ne beth nau3t ther-inne Cryste,
Tha5 he ther-inne schewe hym,
By hys my5tefolle lyste,
So couthe;

Ne myzte elles bet be seze, Ne beter yuzred inne mouthe.

For 5ef he schewed hym in flesche, Other ine blody thynge, Hydous hy5t were to the sy5te, And to the cast wlatynge, And pyne;

Thanne hys hyt betere in fourme of brede, And eke in forme of wyne.

For bred strengeth the herte of man,
And wyn hys herte gledeth;
And strengthe longeth the body,
And blice the saule fedeth,
And nede;

Ther-fore hys double sacrement, Of wyne and eke of brede.

For he y-brout heth oure body,
Into os he let hys sinke;
And vor the saule ine the blod,
Hys blod he let os drynke;
Nou wost,

Wyther hys double sacrement, For note of body and gost. Ac wen nau;t that Cryst be to-schyft,
Tha; he scheweth ine bothe,
To wene hys body wythoute blod,
By tha weye ne gothe,
To thryfte;
For ther he hys, he hys al y-hol,
Ne mey ine hym to-schifte.

The ther te breke ase ine the mouth,
Other ine thyne honden,
Hyt nas naust he that hys to-broke,
Ensample thou myst fonden
To slyfte;
In a myrour thou myst fol wel thi-selve se,

By thyse ensample thou myst y-se
He hys ine echautere;
Y-hol the prest hys messe syngeth,
These he ne be naust y-here,
Ac wykke,

Bote naust the ymage schefte.

Ase ther beth foles swiche fele Y-sawe al to thykke.

Ac that the prest hys messe do
Inne dedleche senne corse
Thet sacrement, man, be thou syker,
For hym nys nase worse;
For loke,
The sacrement nys nathe wors,
That Judas hyt toke.

Ac that sacrement an honde,
That sacrement an honde,
The bone that swych prest ther by;t
No stel ne schel hym stonde,
Ac derye;

For he despyseth Jhesu Cryst, Wanne he hym scholde herye

And 5yf thou wylt tak hyt to prou,
For the and thyne freende,
Ry5t repentaunt and ry5t devout
Take hys death in thy meende,
Naut ly5t;

The more thou thenkest so on hys death,

The more hys thy meryte.

Manne, wanne thyt takest ase other mete,
Into thy wombe hyzt sedlyth;
Ae ne defith nauzt ase thy mete,
Wyth thyne flesch medlyth,
Ae kevereth

Al other wyse, and so thy body And thy saule hy3t frevereth.

Nabyd hy3t nau3t ase other mete
Hys tyme of defyynge;
And ry3t anon hy3t frevereth
In there oundervanginge,
Destresse,
Of syke men, tha3 hy hyt keste of,

Ne helpeth byt naust the lasse.

For yf the syke man hys gode
In the leve of holy cherche,
The 3 he hy 5 t east op, hyt bylefth
Sauvaeion to werche,

Ry5t there;

For al at ones he mey be god, Ther and elles-were.

He soffreth wel to be kest op,
And zet to be honoured;
Ac he soffreth nozt to be to-trede,
And of bestes devoured,
And neade:

Ase he by-leve assayth in flesche, He assayth ine forme of brede.

That body hy3t hys na3t that ther comthe op, 3ef that a man hy5t keste;

For al so longe hyt hys that body,

Ase forme of brede schel leste

Ine manne;

5et tha3 the fourme of brede to-go,

That body by-lefth h3et thanne.

And 3yf he passeth nau;t fram ous,
Wanne wey ary;tt hym healdeth,
That vod hys for to take hym efte,
Ther wyle he ous so wealdeth,
For mende
Of hys dethe and hys passyon,
Ase he heth hit atte hys ende.

Of pure wete hyt mot be,
And eke of pure wyne,
Thet schel be to thys sacrement
Ry5t of the grape of wyne
I-lete;

For Jesus seyth the vygne be hys, And eke the greyn of wete.

And 3cf mannes devocioun slaketh,
Wanne he by-healdeth,
For hyt thinkth bote other bread
An-hea3 that the prest healdeth;
By-thenche hym

Of the vertue that ther hys,

That non errour adrenche hym.

And tak ensaumple of that he kneuth,
The preciouse stone,
Thaz he lygge amange othere y-lyche,
Me honoureth hym alone,
So swete;
Mid al thy wyl ther vertue hys,
God self ine saerement y-mete.

Namore ne greveth hyt Jhesus,
Thane sonne i-trede in felthe,
Tha5 eny best devoured hyt,
Other eny other onselthe,
Ech screade;
3et al so longe hys Godes body,
Asc lest the fourme of breade.

And al so longe hyt hys blod,
Ase lest the forme of wyne;
Nau;t of fynegre kende chald,
Ne offe water droppynge of wyne;
Ac trye,

So lyte water schel be me[n]gd, That wyne habbe the maystrye.

For water self nys nau;t that blod,
Ae hyt hys an y-lyke,
Ine folke that torneth al to Cryst,
Ine the body of mystyke;
Nou, brother,
I-lef al thys ine gode fey,

I-lef al thys ine gode fey, For hit may no thynge be sother.

 $De\ peniteneia.$

Wane man after hys crystendom
Heth aust i-do wyth wronge,
Penaunce hyt hys a sacrement
That men scholde fonge,

Ande mote; maneres thre,

Penaunce heth maneres thre, Thor3 sor5e, schryfte, and edbote.

Thy sorwe for thyne senne, man,
Mot be ine gode wylle,
That hy ne be nau;t ine wanhope,
That made Judas to spylle;

Ae erye

Mercy to swete Jhesu Cryst, Mid wyl to lete folye. And jet thy wylle mot be so gret,

And ine so gode faye,

That thou wenst thou noldest seneji eft,

Ther-fore the thou scholdest deye,

Ine wytte;

For jef thou woldest for death hyt do, Thy sorje hys al to lyte.

The; sor;e hele man anon
Of velth of sennes slyme, jet thanne were hyt nau;t i-nou;,
The fore sorwy on tyme,
Ac evere,
Ase longe ase, man, thy lyf y-lest,
Elles senne may be kevere.

For so, man, senne greveth in the,
And eke in alle thyne,
That wed schel grewen over the corn,
Wythoute medicyne
Of sorze;

Nou her-on thenche, man, day and ny3t, An even and a morwe.

Thench thour; thy senne thou hest i-lore
Thy blys of hevene-ryche,
An heth i-wrethed thane kynge
That non hys y-liche;
And here,
Thou hest of-served dygnelyche

The pyne of helle vere.

Draj into mende that hydous sijt
Of deade men a bere,
That nadde never deade i-be,
jef senne of Adam nere,
Bye drytte;
jet thou ajtest habbe more hydour
Of thyne ojene unryjte.

Myd sucher sorze schryfte, man,
Wel stylle an nothynge loude;
For repentaunce ondeth the hel,
And schreft hyt mot out-treude,
Al clene;
For zef azt lefth that treude myzt,
God so thou schelt y-wenne.

Ne non ne may hym schryve ary;t,
Bote jef he hym by-thojte
Of sennes that he beth y-do,
And hys lyf al thor; so;te
To kenne;

Ac manie dosper to the prest Al one by-se;e of senne.

And understand that al i-hol
Mot be thy schryfte, brother;
Na5t tharof a kantel to a prest,
And a kantel to another;
And thanne
Tele 3ef thou my5t by-thenche the Wet hou and wer and wanne.

And 3cf thou wylt, man, thor3 thy schryft Lat thy senne al a-drou3c, Ne wynd thou naut thy senne ine selke, Ac telle out al that rou3c,

Tys laze;
zef thou wenst seie, and nast no prest,
Schryf the to another felawe.

Ac that ne schalt thou nevere do,
Bote the wantrokye of lyve;
And 3ef thou comste to lyve a3en,
Eft throf thou most the scryve
To preste,

That heth power to assoyly the, Thor; power of the greste.

Thas man on tyme i-healde be
To schryve hym a zere,
To schryve hym wanne he senezed heth,
Wel syker thynge hyt were
And mete;
Wald zef he sodeynlyche deith,
And wald he hyt for-zete.

For wanne man sodeynleche deith,

Hys tho5t the sor5e tumbleth;

And senne ony schryve wanne he vor-5et,

Hys senne ther be doubleth

To nusy;

For mytter senne that he dede, The sleuthe hine wyle acusy. Man, schryf the, and wonde none schame,
For-wy hyt hys to donne,
A lytel schame hys betere her
Thane overmoche eftsone;
To crefte

Byvore God a domesday, Amang al Godes schefte.

For thas man mose i-sauved be
Thors bare repentaunce,
Wanne he ne may to scryfte come,
sef hym valleth that chaunce,
So holde;
set ne may he naust y-sauved be,
Be he hym schrive wolde.

Ther-fore thy schryfte, man, schel be Wythoute stoneynge,

Myd herte loz, and, zef thou myzt, Myd thyn ezene wepynge,

In treuthe;

Thet ther be non ypocrysye,

Bote repentaunce and renthe.

And 3yf that thou to schryfte comff
Ine thyse manere to fare,
The schryft-vader that varth ary3t
Schal be wel debonayre,
And lo5e;

He schel wystlyche thy senne hele, Bet thane he wolde hys owe. 3ef he the schel anoye a3t,

Hyt wyle of-thenche hym sore;

And otherwyl anoye he mot,

Wanne he scheweth the lore

Of helthe,

Ase mot the leche ine voule sores, Wanne he royneth the felthe.

Ther-fore 5e mote tholyen hyt,
Wythoute alle manere tole;
And do ther-by ententyflyche,
3yf 3e wolleth be hole
To live,

And to a betere beleave goth, 3ef 3oure prest can nau3t schryve.

Te mo prestes that thart i-schryve
Myd alle y-hole scryfte,
The clenner thert azens God,
And of the more thryfte,
Nauzt nyce;
zef hyt ne be nauzt to thy prest
Malice ne prejudice.

Wanne man hys repentaunt i-schrive,
He scholde don edbote,
And the ferste hys that he by-fle
Chypeans of sennes rote,
Ase quances;

He that by-fleke wel lecherye Bi-vlekth foule continuunce. Edbote hys dede after god conseyl Of gosslich medicine, Wanne senne sor y-clensed hys, To tholye a lytel pyne Thet frete,

That he ne be ther-vore i-wrete In purgatoryes hete.

Thre maner peyne man fangeth
For hys senne nede;
Senne hys that on, that other fastynge,
The thrydde hys almesdede;
Ac woste.

Sene hys and edbote y-set For senne do ine goste.

For senne in flesche
Vestyng heth the flesche lothe;
Ac elmesdede senne bet
Of gost and flesche bothe;
For thencheth,
Thet almesdede senne quenketh,
Ase water that fer aquencheth.

To byddynge contemplacion
Longeth rede ande wryte,
To here predicacioun won
Lore and herte smyte,
And wreche,
Dedes to 3yve devocioun
To men ine holy cherche.

Knewelynge, travayl, bar-vot go,
Welle-ward and wakynge,
Discipline and lyte mete,
Thes longeth to vestynge,
And here,
Pelgrymage and beddynge hard,
Flesch fram lykynge te arere.

5eve, and lene, and conseil, Clothynge, herber; and fede, Vysyty syke and prysones, And helpe povere at nede; Muknesse,

For to vor-zevene trespas, Tak dedes of elmesse.

And sene 3er thou scholdest, man,
O dedlyche senne peyny,
Ther-vore al that the prest the hast
To done schalt thou nau3t fyny;
Ac more.

For onmeathe thys ther eny prest That peyne set so sore.

For hy habbeth in syke of men,
Hy more sette the lesse,
And betere hys ffor te apeched be
Of more for; of nesse,

Than wreche;
For 3yf thou to lyte peyne hest,
Purgatorye hyt schal eche.

And 3et ther hys another cas,
That prestes 3yvet so lyte
Penaunce, tha3 me telle ham
Ry3t moche of sennes wyte,
Ine mone;

Me mot ham legge lytel on, Other hy nolde do none.

Beter hys that hy a lyte do
Her ine obedience,
And fol-velle that remenaunt
Ine purgatoryes tense,
Eftsone;
Nys nau;t god to vor-lete a ma

Nys nau;t god to vor-lete a man, That eny yinge hys wyl bone.

The bydde ich, brother, be nau;t loth
To do penaunce here;
For jet ther hys here some reles,
So nys nau;t ine the vere
Areyved;

Ne thor3 the ry5tvolnesse of God Nys no sen omtheyvid.

Man, wane thou sene jyst thre thou dest,
Thou wrethest God almy jty,
To holy cherche onbouxam thart,
Makest thy selve onry jty,
Thos je mote
Make thy pes wyth alle thre,

Sorwe, schryfte, and edbote.

Man taketh thys sacrement,
And geth awey ondigne,
For he ne schryfth nau;t of thet thynge,
Bote of the bare signe,

To wynne;

The signe hiis that hys boute y-do, That thynge hys grace bynne.

Two thynges her wythynne beth,
For-jefthe and repentynge;
Ac repentaunce hys signe also
Of sennys for-hevynge,
Certayne;

For so may man repenti hym, That ther volzeth no peyne.

That was i-ked wel inne the thef
Ope Calvaryes felde,
Tho he escusede Jhesu Cryst,
And hym gelty gan 5clde,
Mid sourwe;

He deide and come to Paradys, Nabod he nauzt fort a-morwe.

De uncione extrema.

Sacrament of ancliinge

Nou her ich wolle telle,

That man vangeth wane he ne wenth

No lenge he my3te dwelle

A-lyve;

The bodyes evel that libbe ne mey,

And sone hit mey to-dryve.

Many for defaute deithe
Of ther anelyynge;
And 3yf hys saule after hys dethe
Soffrey harde pynynge,
In fere,
So scholde hy nau3t hedde he i-hed
Ry3t elyynge here.

For seint James, in hys boke,
Wysseth wyd gode mende,
That 3yf eny by-falthe ry3t syke,
The prest he scholde of-sende
To hys ende;

And he schel elye hym wyth ele, Hys savement to wynne.

Seynt Jame seythe that orysonne
Of ther holy by-leve,
Of hiis siknesse helthe wynthe,
That no fend schal reve
The helthe;
And 5ef that he ine sennys be,

For-zeve hys him that felthe.

Thys his, brother, and gret confort
For for-zetene synnes,
That oure foman aredy haveth
Azeynys that we goth hennes,
Tatuite;

Ac 3cf we ary5t anelede beth, Hy3t gayneth ham wel lytel. And thanne hys man aryst aneled,
Wanne he myd wyl hyt taketh,
Myd by-leve of devocioun
And repentaunce maketh
So digne;

And 3yf he hyt othere-wyse fangeth, He taketh ha bote the sygne.

For the sygne of thys sacrement
The elyyngys boute,
That thyngge hys alleggaunce of evel,
To lyf other diath 3ef he schel lonte,
And hennes,
That he wende that thynge is eke

That he wende that thynge is eke Alleggaunce of hys sennes.

And 3et me schal anelye a man,

Thar that he lese hys speche;

For wet he thencheth in hys mod

Ne may ous no man teche;

Ac stronge,

He mot habbe devocioun, Thet schel a-ry3t hyt fonge.

Ther-fore this children eleth me nauşt,
Ne forthe none wode,
For hy ne conne mende have
Of thilke holy Gode;
Ac fonge

The wode mey that sacrement, Wane reles cometh amonge. A prest mot do thys sacrement,
For-why hy5t hys wel worthe;
And that seyde seynt James wel,
Ther-wyle he 3ede an erthe,
3e hit hedde,

The ich a lite her alone

Thes holye wordes redde.

The matyre of this sacrement
Hys ry3t the oylle allone;
And wanne the bisschop blesseth hyt,
Baume ther-with ne megth he none
Ther-inne;

For baume tokneth lyves loos, Oyle mercy to wynne.

For wanne man deithe, he let his lyf
Ther the god los by-hoveth;
Ae senne 5ef he farthe ary5t,
To bi-rensy he proveth,
To oure Lorde

Mercy he cryth, and biddeth hym Mercy and misericorde.

The wordes that ther beth i-sed,

Hyt beth wordes of sealthe;

For hy biddeth the sike man

Of all his sennes helthe,

In mende;

Ther-to me aneleth the wyttes fy5f,

And feget, and breste, and lenden.

And for the lecherye sy5t

In lenden of the manne,

And, ase the boke ous seyth, hy sit

Inne navele of the wymman,

To hele,

Me schel the mannes lenden anelye, The navele of the femele.

Thys beth the wordes wane me aneleth,—
"By thisse aneliinge,
And be hiis milse, for-3yve the God

Of thine senne;ynge,

Myd eyen";

And so he seyth be all hys lymes, That scholle the oyle dregen.

Caracter thet is prente y-cliped,
Nys non of eliinge;
Ne furth of penaunce ne the mo,
Nof housel nof spousynge,
In thede;

For man ofter thane ones taketh The sacremens for nede.

De ordinibus ecclesiasticis.

Nou her we mote ine this sarmon
Of ordre maky saze,

Ther was by-tokned suithe wel
Wylom by the ealde lawe,

To a-gynne,

The me made Godes hous

And ministres ther-inne.

God ches folkes specilliche
Hys holy folke amonge,
That was the kenred of Levy,
Offyce for to fonge,

Ase brotheren;

For to servy ine Godes house By-fore alle the notheren.

To segge hys Levy an Englysch Fram the notheren y-take; So beth of ordre i-take men, Ase wyte fram the blake, Of lyve;

Gode zeve al y-ordrede men Wolde a-ryzt her-of schryve.

Ase ther beth of the Holy Gost 3eftes ry5tfolle sevene; So ther beth ordres folle sevene, That made Cryst of hevene An orthe;

And hedde hys ek ine hys monheth,

Toke thou hy that were wel werthe.

The ferste hys dore-ward y-cleped;
The secunde redynge;
The thrydde hys i-cleped conjurement
A3enys the foule thynge
To wersiexe;

The ferthe acolyt hys to segge y-wys,
Tapres to bere wel worthe.

The ordre fifte y-cleped hys
The ordre of sudeakne;
And hys the syxte also y-cleped
The holy ordre of dekene,
And the greste;

The sevene hys and hys y-clyped
The holy ordre of prest.

Ine the elde lawe synagoge ferst
God let the ordres werche,
And that was sched of that hys ly5t,
Non wryt ine holy cherche
I nere;

Ich schel telle hou hyt was ther, And hou hyt hys now here.

De hostiariis.

Ine the ealde lawe dore-ward

Lokede dore and gate,

That ther ne scholde onclene thynge

Ry3t non entry ther-ate,

Wel couthe;

So doth thes dore-wardes eke Ine holy cherche nouthe.

And 5ef eny other hyt doth,

Nys hyt ordre ac i-leave,
To helthe wane ther nede i-valth,
Ac me ne schal nau3t reave

The office,

Wythoute leve to don hyt, Ne be no man so nice. The bisschop, wanne he ordreth thes clerekes,
Takth hym the cherche keyze,
And seyth, "taketh and dotheth fol wel,
Ase wane ze scholle deye,
Scholde zelde

Acounte of thet hys ther-onder clos, Hardyst thet wo so hyt felde."

Ine the temple, sweete Jhesus
Thyse ordre toke at ones,
Tho that he makede a baleys,
And bet out for the nones,
Y-mene.

The that bouste and sealde in Godes hous, That has a hous of bene.

De lectoribus.

Nou ich habbe of the ferste y-teld,
That other wyl ich trye;
Ine the alde laze the redere
Rede the prophessye,

By wokke;

So schulle the rederes now By-rede and conne on lowke.

Ther-fore ere hy thys ordre have,

Me schel hy wel assaye

Of that hy redeth that hy wel

Ham conne aneye,

For-bede

Otheren to reden schal me no5t, Ac soffry lyt for nede. Thyse ordre swete Jhesu Cryst,
Kedde wel that he hadde,
Tho he toke Ysaies boke
Ine the synagoge, and radde,
Wet welle,
Wet he ther redde thou my3t se

Ine seynt Lukes godspelle.

The bysschop wenne he ordreth thes,
The redynge boke hym taketh,
And seyth, "tak and by-come redre
Of word that of God smaketh,
And blyce
Schelt habbe ase god prechour,
5ef thou wolt do thyne offyce."

De exorcistis.

The thrydde ordre conjurement,
And was ine the ealde laze,
Go dryve out develyn out of men,
Fram God that were draze
Alyve;
Thanne he mot habbe a clene gost,

Thanne he mot habbe a clene gost,

That schal the oneclene out-dryve.

The bisschop wane he ordreth thes,

Take ham boke of cristnynge,

Other of other conjuremens

Azeyns the foule thynge,

And seggeth,

"Taketh power to legge hand

Over ham that fendes op-biggeth."

Thyse ordre swete Jhesu Cryst kedde
Wel that he hedde,
The he drof develen out of men
That hym wel sore dredde,
The apryse
Ine the elde leze hyt ferst by-gan
Kynge Salomon the wyse.

De accolitis.

The ordre fer the accolyt hys

To bere tapres aboute wist ristte,
Wanne me schel rede the gospel
Other offry to oure Dryte,

To thenche,

That thet ly₅t by-tokneth that ly₅t Thet nothynge may quenche.

And wanne that hey ordred hys,
The bisschop schel hym teche
Hou he schel lokke cherche lyst,
And wyne and water areche,
To synge,

In tokne taper and crowet

To hand me schal hym brynge.

Thet thys ordre hedde Jhesus,
We habbeth wel a-founde
By thet he seyd, "Ich am that lyst
Of alle ther wordle rounde
Aboute,
Wo so loketh, ne geth he naust derke,
Ac lyt ine lyves route."

Ine the elde temple tokne was
Of the ordre of acolytes,
Tho certeyne men ly5te that ly5t,
Ase the la5e 3ef the rytes,
So brode;

Of weche ly3t hys y-wryte Ine the boke of Exode.

De subdiaconis.

The ordre fifte sudeakne hys,
That chasteté enjoyeth;
For sudeakne bereth the chalys
To the auter and aclyveth,
Ande weldeth

Al bare and eke the corperaus Onder the deakne vealdeth.

Ine the alde lawe y-hote hyt hys,
That hy ham scholde clensy
That there that vessel of God,
And myd water bensy,
By rystte,
Clenne schol he in houte he

Clenne schel he in herte be That schal the chalys dizte.

And wanne that he y-ordred hys,
He taketh the chalys bare,
And he a-vangeth a crowet eke,
And a towaylle vare

I-nere:

For he schel honden helde weter, That serveth to the autere. The hym with a touwayle schete Jhesus
After soper by-gerte,
And water inta baeyn
Myd a wel mylde herte,
And wessehte

Al hys apostlene veet,

Thos ordre forthe he lesschte.

De diaconis.

Nou of the sixte telle ich schel,
That hys the ordre of deakne,
Thet hys of more perfeccioun
Thane hys ordre of sudeakne;
He bryngeth
To hande that the prest schel has

To honde that the prest schel have, Wanne he the masse singeth.

Ine the ealde lawe beren hy
The hoche of holy crefte,
And nou the stole afongeth hy
Ope here scholder lefte,
To a-gynne;
And so for thane travaylle her,

The ryst half for to wynne.

And at ordres avangeth hy
The boke of the Godspelle,
For than to rede the gospel,
And sarmone for to telle,
To wake
Hy thet slepeth ine senne slep
Amendement to maky.

Thyse ordre swete Jhesu Cryst
Ine hys travayle kedde,
Tho he prechinde thet folke
To ry;tte weye ledde;
The thredde

Was tho he wakede hymself
The apostles for to bydde.

De presbiteris.

The sevende ordre hys of the prest,
And hys i-cleped the ealde,
Bote nau₃t of 3eres, ac of wyt,
Ase holy wryt ous tealde;
For 3eres

Ne maketh so nau;t thane prest ald, Ae sadnesse of maneres.

And wanne he y-ordred hys,
Hym falth an holy gyse,
Hys honden beth anoynte bothe
Thor -out a cirowche wyse,
Tafonge
Ther-inne Godes ozen flesch,
That fode is to the stronge.

He takth the helye inne of eyther half
Y-joyned atte breste,
Thet no god hap ne he;i hyne,
Ne non harm hyne don deste,
In mode;

Ac thenche on hym that tholede death For ous opone the roude. He takth the chalys wyth the wyne,
And brede of the pateyne;
He heth power to sacry hyt,
And thet throf hys ther seyne,
Wel trewe;
Inne the elde lawe the ordre a-gan,
Ine tokne of thyssere newe.

Cryst kedde that he hys a prest
Ry3t in double manere;
That on the he sacreded hys body,
Ther he set atte sopere;
Thet other,
The he an roude offrede hys body

For ous, my leve brother.

De prima tonsura.

To thys ordre croune bet
Ys an apparyblynge,
Thet hys in holy cherche y-cleped wel
The furste scherynge
Of clerke:

Clerke hys to segge an Englysch, Eyr of Godes werke.

Ac Godes werke an erthe was
The puple for to teche,
And also thour; hys holy dethe
Of sennes he was leche;
Thes werkes
Men taketh after Jhesu Cryst,

Wanne hy by-cometh clerkes.

And 3yf hy douth wel hare dever Ine thysse heritage, Ne may hem falle after thys lyf Non one worth desperage, To wysse,

Ryst y-marissched schelle hy be Ine hevene-ryche blysse.

The croune of clerke y-opened hys, Tokneth the wyl to hevene, That habbe mot that entri schel Into eny of the sevene, And sedder. Tokneth ase he ine ordre a-ryst

That hys the croune breddour.

Ther drof bischop hys digneté To maky thulke sevene, And hyt by-tokneth thane bisschop In the bisschopriche of hevene, So wrethe

Was and hys the pope vicary I-maked here an erthe.

Thythe ordres to thys sacrement By ryste longis scholle, And that mo be that gode beth, Thes maketh al that folle Be a-stente:

Therfore ich abbe ondo zou thos, For thyse sacrement.

And nou ich wolle ondo thys eft
By the wey of mystyke,
For crystene man hys Godes hous,
Hye mote habbe wyke
Ther-inne,

Nou lett ich schel onlouke thys, Ase God wyle grace 3yve.

Thet inewyt hys the dore-ward,
The doren wyttes fyve;
He schel loky wel bysylyche
That no lykynge in dryve.
That stenketh;

That inwyt hys the reddere eke That holy lore thencheth.

Thet innewyt dryfth the fend awey,
Myd meende of Crystes pyne;
Thet inwyt ly3t ther saule ly3t
Myd theawes gode and fyne,
To hele;
Thet inwyt wescht the felthe awey,
And greydeth the fessele.

Thet inwyt redeth that gospel,
Wane hyt herereth Crystes lore;
And 5et ther-to hys charge hyt berth
Of left half swythe sore,
To abyde
After thys lyf the hevene blys,

And krefte the ry;t syde.

That inwyt hys the masse prest,
That ine the herte slaketh
Thane auter of devocioun,
Wane man hys bone maketh;
No lesse

Nys hyt wane man stedevast by-lefth Sacrament of the messe.

On inwyt mey al thys wel do,
And ine the manne to werche,
Ase on may al thys ordres have
Ryt wel in holy cherche,
Ase here;
3ef her nys suiche mynystre nou,
Thys temple stent evere.

Ther-fore ech man that crystene hys
Hys wyttes loky fyve,
And thenche opan the lore of God,
And fendes fram hym dryve,
And lyste
Myd gode theyes all hys lyf

Myd gode thewes al hys lyf, And ther-to do hys my5te.

And wessehe and greydy hys fessel,
And do trewlyche hys charge,
And maked offrynge of hys beden,
Myd wel to elmesse large
Thys wyke;
By thys 5e i-seoth how eth mey do

Ine manere of mystyke.

The signe hys of thys sacrement
The bisschopes blessynge,
Forth myd the admynystracioun
That he deth atte ordynge,
And grace
Of wyt and of auctoryté,
Thet thynge hys ine the place.

De matrimonio.

Her longeth nou to thys sarmon
Of spousynge for to werche,
Thet hys the tokne of the joynyng of
Gode and holy cherche;

And woste

Ry3t holy cherehe y-cleped hys That holy folke ine goste.

And ase ther mot atter spousynge
Be ryzt asent of bothe,
Of man, and of ther wymman eke,
Yn love and nauzt y-lothe,
I-lyche
By-tuixe God and holy folke
Love hys wel trye and ryche.

Thanne afte men here wyves love,
Ase God doth holy cherche;
And wyves nauft afens men
Non onwrestnesse werche,
Ac tholye,
And nauft onwrost opsechem hy
Ne tounge of hefede holye.

Ine wlessche joyneth man and wyf Children to multeplye; And God hath taken oure flesch Of the mayde Marye,

Wel ferren,

Ther-of springeth that holye stren I-lykned to the sterren.

Wel fayr thanne hys thys sacrement,
And marye was by-gonne,
Tho hyt by-gan ine Paradys
Are Adam were y-wonne
To senne;

Ae so changede to vylenye That stat of man-kenne.

For 3ef he hedde i-healde hym,
Ase God hym hedde y-maked,
He hedde y-brout forthe hys bearm-team
Wythoute senne i-smaked;
Wet thanne.

5et holy stren by-tokned hys
By strenynge of the mane.

Hyt was God self that spousynge ferst
In Paradys sette;
The food but was that schools but al

The fend hyt was that schente hyt al Myd gyle and hys abette,

Wranch evel,

Spousoth scheawyth wet God ther dede, Hourdom wat dede the devel. For wanne man drajth to hordom,
And let hys ryjt spouse,
So dede Adam ine Paradys
Hys ryjt lord of house
Of hevene,

The gode for-horede the fend Wyth hys blaundynge stevene.

That deth that God menteyneth
Wel ry;t spousynge her an erthe,
And ever mo schel go to schame
Hordom and thet hys worthe,
I-lome:

Bet some wenth ligge in spoushop, And lithe in hordome.

Ther-fore ich wylle telle 30u
The lore of ry3t spousynge,
That he ne take horedom,
Wanne taketh weddynge;
Nou lestneth,
The lore of of the lore y wryte.

The lore al of the laze y-wryte That holy cherche festneth.

Ase to God hyt were y-now
That bare assent oof bothe,
Wythoute speche and by-treuthynge,
And alle manere othe,

And speche;

Ther mote be speche of hare assent, Holy cherche to teche. And 3ef the man other that wyf
By cheaunce doumbe were,
3ef may wyten hare assent
By soum other abere,

And seave,

Hy mowe be wedded wel 5enge By holy cherche leve.

Two manere speches beth i-woned,
Ther two men for to nomene;
That one of thyng that hys now,
That other of te comene,
Wel couthe;

"Her ich the take" wordes beth Of thynge that hiis nouthe.

And 5ef me seythe "ich wille the have,"
And ther-to treuthe ply5te
He speketh of thynge that his to come
That scholde be myd ry5te
Of treuthe;

Ae that ferste ne faylleth nau5t, That other may for sleuthe.

And 3yf another treutheth sethe,
Wyth word of that hys nouthe,
The ferste dede halte beth,
Ne be hy nase couthe,

As none;

Bote 3ef ther folsede that treuthynge, A ferst flesch y-mone. For thet completh thet spoushed After the by-treuthynge,
That hyt ne may be ondon
Wyth none wythseggynge,
By ry3te;
And that hyt were her ondo,
Ry3t halt wythoute Dry3te.

That doth that manye y-schodred ben Fram hevene-ryche festes.

Ten hestes haveth y-hote God, Ase Holy Wryt ous tealde,

O the two tablettes of ston Wyth hys fynger bealde.

He hys wrot Moyses by-toke
Wylom by da;es ealde,

To wyse man hou sehal wel These ten hestes healde.

In ston ich wot that he hys wrot,
In tokne of sykernesse,

That we that wole y-saved be, The more and eke the lesse,

By-hoveth that he healde hy
Wyth al hys bysynysse.

Allas! feawe thencheth ther-on, Th..... a wykkednesse.

Yet o table hedde thry Of thyse hestes tene.

The thri longeth to love of Gode, Ase hyst schel wel be sene;

The seven longet to love of man,

That none scholde wene, Ine thother table sete tho

To-gadere and al y-mene.

Honury thou schelt enne God, Hym one to by-knowe; Take nau;t hys name in ydelschepe, Wyth ydel wynde to blowe; Halze thou the masse-day, Ase he comthe in the rewe. In these thre the love of God schewy hit, Were byt hys to sewe. Worschipe thy fader and moder eke; Ne brynge no man of lyve; Do the to none lecherye, Tha; the foundyngge dryve; Wytnesse vals ne bere thou non; Of thefthe thou ne schryve; Coveyte none mannes wyf, Ne naust of hys for-stryve. Wer-thor; he ber than hevene kynge,
Worschype hys worthy ine alle thynge
Ine evereche place.

Al that hys bove and under molde,

Hou my;t hyt bote hyt bowe scholde

To hyre owene mede;

Wanne he that al thys wordle schel welde,

To hyre worschipe hys y-helde,

For here moderhede.

Al thyse maydenes wythout bost
If y bereth God in here goste
In hare holy thou;;
Ac hy wythoute mannes y-mone
In body and nau; in gost alone
To manne hyne broute.

Of hyre that hys thos dygne of take,
Hou my;te ich of hyre songes make,
That am so foul of lyve;
And thou me bede, soster, synge,
And alle into one songe brynge
Here swete joyen fyve.

To segge that ich hyt maky can,
That am so oneconnende a man,
Dar ich me nau;t avanty;
Ac tryste ich wolle to oure levedy,
And maky hyt ase hyt wyle by,
And ase hy hy wolde me granty.

As man me hys by leave y-seth,
Joyen of hyre so fele ther beth,
Ne may hyt no man telle,
Ase hy hath of hyre leve sone,
Hyt passeth al mankendes wone,
And out of mannes spelle.

Four manere joyen hy hedde here
Of hyre sone so lef an dere,
Wytnes opan the Godspelle;

And al cometh ofte the blysse,

That hye heth nou wythoute mysse,

So stremes of the welle.

The wylle that hys in paradys

Fol wel by-tokneth thys avys,

Wyth here stremes foure,

Thet orneth out over al that londe,

Nys never erthlyche man that fond

Hou fele come of the stoure.

Thys wulle hys God self man by-come;
Of hym thys joyen beth alle y-nome,
And alle ine nout maner.
The furste was wyth concepcioun,
Tho the angel Gabryel come a-doun
Ine stede of messager,

To brynge the tythynge by-fore,
That Cryst of hyre wolde by bore,
Mannes trespas to 5elde;
For to brynge ous out of helle,
Wo mytte thenche other telle
Wat joye ther y-velde.

In Nazareth the ryche toun,

Ave Maria was that soun

Of Gabrieles stevene;

The was that mayde was y-gret,

And wyth a present wel a-geet

Fram yader oure of hevene.

So he was ine hyre y-come,

For fleasch and blod of hyre to nome,

Ase the angel hyre seyde;

Ne hy of mannes mone neste,

Ne hy ne breke nau;t hyre by-heste,

Ac evere clene a mayde.

Seynt Johan the Baptyst onbore,

The hy spek hys moder by-fore,

Ine joye he gan to asprynge;

Elyzabet wel that aspyde,

Hou aspylede onder hys syde,

And made hys rejoyynge.

More encheyson hadde oure levedy
Joyous and blythe for to be,

Wythoute prede and boste;
For in hyre selve hy hyne fredde,
Fol wel hy wyste hou hyne hadde

Thor; self the Holy Goste.

Joseph kedde that he was mylde,
Tho that he wyste hy was wyth chylde,
Awey he wolde alone;
Ha nolde nau;t he were a-slawe,
Ne forthe y-juged by the lawe
To by stend wyth stone.

Ac Joseph was wel blythe aply5t, So to hym cam the angel bry5t, To segge hym wat he scholde; Wel blyththere myste be that may,
That was y-conforted al day
Wyth aungeles wanne hy wolde.

In thyssere joye we scholde by-louken
Al hyre joyen of vourti woken
The wylest he zede wyth chylde;
Of hyre hyt was god game,
Ther-ine thet unicorn weks tame
That erthange was so wylde.

Thet other joye of hyre y-core,
Was of Jhesus of hyre y-bore
A Crystesmasse ny3te,
Wythoute sor3e, wythoute sore,
And so ne schal ther nevere more
Wymman wyth childe dy3te.

For so hy hyne scholde ferst a-vonge,
Ther nys no senne ther amonge,
Ne noe flesches lykynge;
Ther-fore of hyre y-bore he was,
Ase the sonne passest thor; the glas,
Wyth-outen onopenynge.

In suathe-bendes hy hyne dyste,

Ase hyt hys the chyldes ryste,

And sef hym melke to souke;

Thas hyt were thustre of nyst,

Ther has wane of no lyst,

The hevene gan onlouke.

Out com an aungel wyth great loom
Into the feld of Bedleem,
Amonges the schoperden,
Te telle that Cryst was y-bore,
Ther come singinde ther-fore
Of angeles manye verden.

Thanne sede he swythe wel,

Gracia plena, Gabryel,

And that hys fol of grace;

Wanne glorye of hyre hys fol above,
And pays i-grad for hyre love

Of angeles in-place.

The oxe and asse in hare manyour,
Tho that hy sezen hare creature
Lyggynde ine hare forage,
Alone knowynge thaz hy were,
Hy makede joye in hare manere,
And eke in hare langage.

Ope the he3e e3tynde day
He onder-3ede the Gywen lay,
And was y-circumcysed.
Jesus me clepede hyne ther-vore,
Ase aungeles er he were y-bore
Hys eldren hedde y-wysed.

Mochele joye hy aspyde,

The kynges thre that come ryde

Fram be easte wel i-verre;

Gold, myrre, scor, were here offrynges, That he was lord and kyng of kynges Wel by-toknede the sterre.

The that he scholde y-offred be
In the temple domini,

Ase laze zef the termes,

Symcon the olde man gan crye,

And spek of hym fur prophecye,

And tok hym ine hys earmes.

Tho 3e was bote twelf wynter ald,
And he3he ine the temple he seat wel bald,
And tha3 he speke smale,
Many man wondrede on hym there,
For to alle clerkes that ther were
He 3af answere and tale.

A-lyve vertu was hys childehode,
And so he com to hys manhode;
Ine flom Jordanes syche
He was y-crystned, the hevene onleake,
The Fader of hevene down to hym spake,
The Gost com colvere y-lyche.

To thyssere joye longye scholle

Alle the joyen that hyre folle,

Of hyre chylde God,

Fram than tyme he was y-bore,

For al mankende that was for-lore,

For he deyde one the roude.

The thrydde joye that com of Cryste,
Hadde oure levedy of hys op-ryste
Fram deathes harde bende,
Out of the sepulcre ther he laye,
Ase hyt fel thane thrydde daye
After hys lyves ende.

Wet joye of hym myste be more,
After suiche sorsynge and swyche sore,
Ase hye y-seye hine feye,
Thanne i-size hyne come to lyve azen,
And everest more a-lyve to ben,
And nevere eft to deyze?

That he was lyf and strengthe and myste,
And that he kedde on Estre nystte,
Al ine the dawyynge,
Altha was an erthe-schoke,
And hevene above undertoke
Hys holy uppe-rysynge.

Thar down come aungeles whyte ine wede,
And that he was a-ryse hy sede,
And hare sawe was trewe;
That he ne laye nau;t under molde,
For to asaye ho so wolde,
Thane ston hye over-threwe.

That he ine hys manhoth deyde,

Dominus tecum that a seyde,

The the aungel here by-redde;

That hys to seggene Godes myste, Ine ryste sothe hyt moste sitte, That godhoth wel hyt kedde.

Nedde oure levedy thyse blysse alone,
Ac al hyre frendes in hyre mone,
So meche was here the more;
For more hys blysse god and clene,
Amonge frendes to habbe y-mene,
After sor;ynge and sore.

O that hy were blythe, tho hye were sizen,
So glorious a-lyve wyth hare ezen,
Thet hy y-seye er in paygne;
Furste aschewed hym wyth a fayre chaunce,
To here thet hys ensample of repentaunce,
Marye Magdaleyne.

And so hygeye hyne Peter and sothenes hy alle;
And ther Thomas of Ynde a kowes y-falle
Croped hys holy wounde;
Thare he fond flesche and blod myd the bones,
An nou he gan to crye loude for the nones,
"My Lord ich abbe y-founde."

Houre Lord hym answerde in thet cas,
"Thou levedest, for thou seze me, Thomas,
That thou me haddest y-founde,
Ac, Thomas, ich the telle, y-blessed hy beth,
Tho that on me by-leveth and nau;t me seth,
Ne gropyeth none wounde."

To thyssere joyen scholle be y-leyd
Alle the joyen that moze be y-seyd,
Ine wyttes other in mende;
Fram Crystes resurreccioun,
Wat cometh hys ascencioun,
At fourty dazen ende.

Ne for the joye telle ich may,
That fel opon the Holy Thoresday,
Opon a mounte yne heze;
He sez Jhesus and othere some,
Of flesche and blod of hyre y-nome,
Op into hevene steze.

Al ine joye was hyre mende,
So hy seze here and oure kende
Jhesus, hyre leve sone,
Into the blysse of hevene sty,
To agredy worthy scholde hy be
At hyre assumpcioun.

And 3ct ne were hyt no3t y-no3,
One to agredy hyre loo3
And he3 ine hevene blysse;
Ac oure also, hyt nis non other,
For he hys oure kende brother,
That leve we to wysse.

Ine hym ne schalt hyt nau;t lang be,

That we to hym ne scholle te,

Wanne we scholle wende hennes;

Ac schel on ous, that beth onkende,

Ne drazeth nauzt hys love to mende,

And wretheth hyne wyth sennes.

And jet he hys milde, and sparyeth some,
And ase he wente op he wole come
A domesday wel bryzte;
For to crye manne dede,
And after dede zive mede,
And jugement to ryztte.

Betere red nys ther non here,

For to be Crystes y-vere,

And hy; ine hevene blysse;

Bote folthe of senne to by-vly,

And bydde God and oure levedy,

That hy ous helpe and wysse.

For hyre poer nys nou; ty-lessed,
Ac toup alle othren hys y-blessed,
Sothe wyf and mayde;
Ase that Godspel telleth ous,
Benedicta tu in mulicribus,
Elizabeth hyt sayde.

Al here joyen a lok Sounday,
And alle the that me aspye may,
That hyre and erthe felle,
Al fram Crystes ascencioun,
Al wat comthe hyre assumpcioun,
To thyssere loungy schelle.

The fyfte joye of oure levedy,

Not erlychman hou hyt may by

Ne ther-of more aspye,

Bote that the gloriouse beerde,

Out of thyse world the gloriouse ferde

Wyth greate melodye.

Eve couth to the man hys thes figure,
For the offyce of hyre sepulture

Was al an hevene gyse;
And toller hys man to hevene speche,
Thane be abest, tha; man hym teche,
Reyson and mannes wyse.

Ther-fore nys ther-of naut y-wryte,

For man ne mot nou;t her y-wyte

Wat hys so he; a stevene;

Ac holy cherche der wel by-knowe,

That hy ne tholede none deathes thro;e,

That lower that lyf of hevene.

Hyt hys y-wryte that angeles brytte
To holy manne deathe alyzte
Her an erthe leye;
In holy boke hys hyt i-nome,
That God hymself a wolde come,
Wanne hy scholde deye,

Ther-bye we move wel y-wyte,
That ther he naust of y-wryte,
That Cryst hymself was there;

Myd hym of hevene the ferede,

The eadi levedy for to lede,

Most here no fend offere.

Hy wente uppe, my leve brother,
In body and soule, hyt nys non other,
For Cryst hys god and kende;
That body that he toke of hys ozen,
Hou mytte hyt ligge amange the lozen,
Wythoute honour and mende.

Thanne ieh dar segge, mid gode ryste,
That alle the court of hevene a-lyste
Attare departynge;
And Cryst hymself aseins hyre com,
And body and saule op wyth hym nom
Into hys wonyynge.

That hy hys quen, ase ich er mende,
Here grace hy may doun to ous sende,
Hire joye to fol-velle;
Ich hopye hy nele nau;t let ous spylle,
For he hys al to hyre wylle
Of joye that hys the welle.

For of hyre wombe he hys that frut,
Were-of thes angeles habbeth hare dut,
And men hare holy fode;
Elizabeth hy sede thys,
Et benedictus fructus ventris
Tui, Jesus the gode.

Of songe hys to then ende y-brout,
Ase thou hest, soster, me by-so5t,
Ase ich hene my5tte frede.
Now synge and byde the hevene quene,
Thet hy ous brynge al out of tene
At oure mest nede. Amen.

Oretis pro anima Willelmi de Schorham, quondam vicarii de Chart juxta Ledes.

Marye, mayde mylde and fre,
Chambre of the Trynyté,
One wyle lest to me,
Ase ich the grete wyth songe;
Thaz my fet onclene be,
My mes thou onder-fonge,

Thou art quene of paradys,

Of hevene, of erthe, of al that hys;

Thou bere thane kynge of blys,

Wythoute senne and sore;

Thou hast y-ryzt that was a-mys,

Y-wonne that was y-lore,

Thou ert the colvere of Noe,

That broute the braunche of olyve tre,

In tokne that pays scholde be

By-tuexte God and manne;

Swete levedy, help thou me,

Wanne ich schal wende hanne.

Thou art the bosche of Synay;
Thou art the rytte Sarray;
Thou hast y-brou;t ous out of cry
Of calenge of the fende;
Thou art Crystes o;ene drury,
And of Davyes kende.

Thou ert the slinge, thy sone the ston,
That Davy slange Golye opon;
Thou ert the 3erd al of Aaron,
Me dreye i-se3 spryngynde;
Wytnesse at ham everechon,
That wyste of thyne chyldynge.

Thou ert the temple Salomon;
In the wondrede Gedeon;
Thou hest y-gladed Symeon,
Wyth thyne swete offrynge
In the temple atte auter ston,
Wyth Jhesus hevene kynge,

Thou ert Judith, that fayre wyf,
Thou hast abated al that stryf,
Olofernes wyth hys knyf
Hys hevede thou hym by-nome;
Thou hest y-saved here lef,
That to the wylle come.

Thou ert Hester, that swete thynge,
And Assever, the ryche kynge,
They heth y-chose to hys weddynge,
And quene he heth a-vonge;
In Mardocheus, thy derlynge,
Syre Aman was y-honge.

The prophete Ezechyel, In hys boke, hyt wytnesseth wel, Thou ert the gate so stronge so stel, Ac evere y-schet fram manne; Thou erte the ry3te nayre Rachel, Fayrest of alle wymman

By ry;te toknynge, thou ert the hel
Of wan spellede Danyel;
Thou ert Emaus, the ryche castel,
Thar resteth alle werye;
Ine the restede Emanuel,
Of wany speketh Ysaye.

Ine the hys God by-come a chyld;
Ine the hys wreche by-come myld;
That unicorn that was so wyld
Aleyd hys of a cheaste,
Thou hast y-tamed and i-styld
Wyth melke of thy breste.

Ine the Apocalyps sent Johan
I-se; ane wymman wyth sonne by-gon,
Thane mowe al onder hyre ton,
I-crouned wyth tuel sterre;
Swyl a levedy nas nevere non,
Wyth thane fend to werre.

Ase the sonne taketh hyre pas
Wythoute breche thor;out that glas,
Thy maydenhod onwemmed hyt was
For bere of thyne ehylde;
Now, swete levedy of solas,
To ous senfolle be thou mylde.

Have, levedy, thys lytel songe,
That out of senfol herte spronge;
A5ens the feend thou make me stronge,
And 5yf me thy wyssynge;
And tha5 ich habbe y-do the wrange,
Thou graunte me amendynge.

Oretis pro anima domini Roberti Grosseteyte quondam episcopi Lincolnia.

In holy sauter me may rede,

Hou God thourwe the prophete sede,

Davyd, y-wysse,

That fol in hys herte sede,

Ther nys no Gode, dar man nau;t drede

To don amys.

Thesse hyt hys, so hyt hys grete doute,
That there be woxe of there route

Mani and fole,
That weneth ryt wythoute mysse
That ther nys God ine hevene blysse,
Ne lelle pool.

That eny soche be crystene man, God for-bede, and nau;t for-than Wey socth al day, That menye y-crystnedde were Fareth ryt ase hy nere Nau;t of the fay.

And manye of ham that beth so fele,
That that me godne sekele hem telle,
Naust hyst ne ganth;
Asen hy clappeth thys and that,
And manye of ham not nevere wat,
Ne wat he menth.

To sechen hyt hys wel lytel prys,
Reyson to telle thet hys y-wys,
Ac lete ham be;
For bote hy take a betere fay,
Atte last hy goth to schame a-way,
Me may hyt see.

Ac 5ef thou wenst, man, that errour,
That there ne be no Sauveour,
Ne other lyf,
And hyt be for defaute of lore,
Lest now wat ich segge more,
Wythoute stryf.

And 3ef thou [be] y-lered man,
And onderstant 3et al for-than
No God ne be,
Ich acsy the a questioun,
And ase hyt longeth to reysoun
Andswere thou me.

The erthe hys hevy wythoute wylle,
That wey y-seoth and by al stylle
To gonne throp;
What hou fareth hy that hy nasynketh,
Asc here kende were hyt thenketh,
Ho halt ys op?

Her-to me seyth, and heth y-sed, To healde hy op hyt nys no ned, Ne nevere nes; For chisel gravet stones harde,

Ande here depnysse ry5t doun-warde

Hys endeles.

Tha; that be fals, me may aspye,
By wytnesse of philosophye,
And clerkes fele;
And fals ich may hit provie wel,
Ther hyt hys ned, and were ich schol,
By thysse skyle.

The sonne and monne and many sterren
By easte aryseth swythe ferren,
Ase ham y-worthe;
By weste hy grendeth alle thyse,
And cometh agen ther hy a-ryse
A under forthe.

Thos myst wete wel, wo so wolde,
The wolkne by-clepth al the molde,
And so hyt doth;
Ne may hy naust thanne be endeles,
That thos be go so hys and was,
An that hys southe.

Ac saye ry5t thos, and ich afowe,
That everech man hyt mo5t alowe,
That reson hent,
Hy5t hys a my5t of alle my5tte,
That halt op therthe and sterren bry5te
Aboute i-trent.

Thys ilke mytte, for hyt wel may,
Bryngeth forthe a wyt of swete aray,
Thet no swech nys;
For al that hys an he3 and lo3e,
Hit schift and ditteth ase hys o3e,
And so hyt hys.

Wat maketh sonne, mone, and sterren
To certeyn go aboute and ferren,
And faylleth nouzt?
Hyt mot wyt and wysdom neade,
Thet of the mytte thet ich er sede
Hys forthe arazt.

Nou thou sixte wel hou hyt syt,
Thys ylke my5te and eke thys wyt,
In oure boke;
The mytte hys fader of our crede,
Wysdom the sone, for wyttihede
That he forth toke.

Ever was thys ylke my5tte,

And ever worth, bye gode ryte,

Ne say nau5t nay;

Hon mytte hyt and eft by-gynne,

Thet nede neth of none gynne,

Ac al do mey?

And ase hyt hys by-fore y-nome, That that wyt of the mytte By kende wey; That wyt was evere natheles,
The my5tte nys never wytles,
Ne by ne may.

Her-to accordeth oure fay,
That holy cherche nez eche day
Wel merye syngth,
Ine a song ofte by note,
Quicumque vult thet hys y-hote,
Ryzt ase me singeth.

For ther hyt of the Vader seyth,
And of the Sone to-gadere leyth,
In boke y-set;
The Sone hys of the Fader alone,
Engendred nau;t, y-mad of mone,
Nes othe wat.

Folye hyt hys to meche to thynche
Of the engendrure and thynne adrenche
Of Fader and Sone;
So ase hy bethe, ever were,
And sothe by-3ete nevere nere,
Elles me wone.

Ac nau;t forth than that hyt be soth
Holy cherche to wytene doth,

We wyten hyt wel;
I-lef hyt, other thou ert by-caut,
For ho that nele by-leve hyt nau;t,

To helle he sehel.

And thelke Sone 3et natheles
Ry3t ase the Fader hys endeles,
Ase my3t and wyt;
3ef ever was, ever was sone,
For bethe reysoun and eke wone
Aloweth hyt.

Nou we habbeth Vader and Sone,
Ase hye beth ry;t ine persone,
And thancheysone;
Wat may the Holy Gost nou be,
Persone thrydde in Trynyté,
Nou herkne reysone.

Thou sixt thet al that farth a-ry5t,
Be hyt thyster, be hyt ly5t,
To acord hys wyve;
For 5ef ther were weyre above
Amange the sterren, and no love,
Al hy to-dryve.

And bote a truwe love come

Of thare my3tte and tha wysdome,

Ne my3t hyt by;

And ry5t of ham he moste come,

For wer-of elles te be y-nome

Can non y-sy.

Ever to lef that love were,

For my;tte and wysdom never nere,

Wythoute acord;

For zef acord hem hedde y-faylled, Ar ayder other hedde asaylled Wyth wykked word,

Hon scholde mystte maky wrake,
Other eny descord onder-take,
Wyth e3c wyt?
So nest ac ever weren hy,
Thanne moste love ever by,
Nou thou sixt hyt.

Thys love hys self that holy spyryt,
Ther-to accorde holy wry;t,
Ine thylke songe,
That ich was embe oure faye,
That holy cherche singeth a-daye
At pryme longe.

The holy of Fader ryche,

And of the Sone of other y-lyche,

So he for-comthe,

Nother by hete ne forthe i-wro5t

Of a5t that hys, ne forthe of nau5t,

By lawe hyt nometh.

And ever was that holy spyry3t,
That ylke songe wytnesseth hyt,
And more ther-to;
That hy schal by and hys and was,
That Fader of hevene ry3t endeleas,
And Sone also.

jet our by-leave wole onder-gon,
That thyse thre beth ry;t al on,
And nys no wronge;
Tha; hy be ine reyson dyvers,
O God hyt hys, and stent in vers
Ine thulke songe.

Thas myste, wysdom, and eke love,
Hy thre by ase ich sede above
Divers ine worke;
Ine hem self o God hy beth,
Nys non that ast elles y-seth,
So god clerke.

And natheles ofte hy beth y-blend,
Thyse clerkes wyth here argument,
Ande gynneth lye;
Hare aze wyt hys hym by-kecheth,
That God so sotylleche secheth,
That syt so heze.

The Fader hys God, for he may alle;
The Sone hys swete, for he wot alle,
Wythout crye;
The Gost hys God that oneth al;
5et ne beth hy bote o God al,
Nau3t Godes thry.

Thas mystte be to the Fader y-leyd,

And wysdome of the Sone y-seyd,

And love the Goste;

5et beth hy thre of one my5tte, Of one wytte and love ly5tte, Thor5 faythe hyt wost.

Nou thou syxt wel that encheysone
Of oure by-leve, and eke reysone,
Thet o God hys;
3ef thou thenkest forther hou hyt may be,
Go nau5t to ni3 hys majesté,
To thenche a-mys.

Nou hys al thys by skele ondo,
And by leave alegged ther-to,
That God hys he;
Now we moste y-wyte more
Of thyse wordle some lore,
How hy3t may be.

Fader, thy worldle ever were,
Other a some tyme nere,
And tho by-gan;
Everte mytte hy nau;t by,
Ich schal the telle reyson wy,
Sothe ase ich can.

For Godes my5tte ande eke hys wyt,
And eke hys wylle to soffry hy5t,
So were wo5;
For 5e hys almytty, ase ich er sede,
Al wys and wyl ine godhede,
That hys y-no5.

Ac 3ef he nedde thys world y-wrou3t,
And my3te and couthe and dede hy3t nou3t,
Hyt were a-mys;
Ac hys almy3tty hys of suche entaylle,
And hys almytty hou mytte hyt faylle,
Of thet god hys.

He made hyt al, nys hyt non other,

And that of nau;te, my leve brother,

He made hys werke;

For er he a-gounne hys worke so merye,

Nas nother fourme ne materye,

Ne ly;t ne derke.

Ne acombre nau;t thy wyt and mo,
To meche to thenche hou hyt was tho,
Hyt nau;t worth.
Hou man hyt my;te wete ich not,
For so to wytene ase God hyt wot,
Comest thou nau;t forthe.

Ac some mey acsy, war God was
Tho nothynge of the worlde nas
Ne great ne smal?
Ther the worlde hys nou was he,
And 5ct he hys and ever schal be,
I-hole over al.

He hedde nede of none gynne, Ne 5et hou neth, to wonye ynne, Thou kepe nym; 3ef the faly throf to be aposed, Sey God nys nau5t in ther worldle a-closed, Ae hy hys ine hym.

That al by-5ede.

That al by-5ede.

Thou wost he may by y-tho;t of me Alle y-hollyche, and eke of the;

Wel betere ich plyste,
He may by wel ine dyvers lo;,
Ry;t al at ones, wel y-no;,

That deith hys my;tte.

Thyse wordle he made, as ich er sede,
Al ase hy hys ry5t nou ine dede,
And lo5 and he5;
Ine the gynynge of holy wryt,
Hou he hy made ry5t ther hyt sy5t,
Ich hyt y-se5e.

Ine dazes sixe he made hyt ryzt,
Hevene and erthe and wolkne bryzt,
Thet water to dyzt;
Tren and gras and erthe dreze,
Sonne and mone and sterren greyze,
That beth so bryzt;

Fozeles, fisches ine the depe,
Bestes, wormes for to crepc,
And a-last man;
So that hyt was god and sad,
Al thys world that was y-mad,
Of hym that cam.

Al hyt was god, wythoute lake,
Hard and nesche, wyte and blacke,
And al that was.
Nedes Godes creature
Moste be ry3t by nature,
Al sennes led.

5ef quead so were of Gode y-nome,
By ry5tte he my5tte be wythnome,
Ry5t ase a qued.
Ther-fore ne my5te he nau5t do wrothe,
Ac schrewadnesse beth hym lothe,
And hys for-beade.

And thesse God self hyt for-beade,
Wannes cometh forthe al that quead,
So meche ther hys?
And wel to donne apanyeth neawe,
Ac hym apayneth many a screwe
To do amys.

That God hyt soffreth, hou meny hyt be, Seththe of so great my3tte hys he, Thet 3ef ha wolde, He my3tte vor-do that hys quead, And lete ous libbe, and nau3t be dead, Hyt thingth ha scholde.

Leve brother, 3ef he so scholde,
By the syker that he so wolde,
Ac he hyt nele;
Ich kan the telle reyson wy
He let y-worthe quead to by,
Nou harkne skele.

That alther-ferste that god schop,
That was hevene, ther nys no wop,
Soth for to telle;
For he hyt made of swyche aray,
For alle manere blysse and play
Ther to folfelle.

Ac o blysse hys nys nau;t folfeld,
War-fore that hevene hys al y-dueld,
And 3et nou werth;
Ac ich schel telle wat hys that blysse,
And so we scholle wyte to wysse
Hou quead cometh forthe.

of the by-falth avencement,
Of of the that the was y-ment,
Wel blythe art thou;
And of the falleth to be eyr
Of a regne mechel and fayr,
More hys thy prou.

Ac nys no blysse ne no feste
Azeyns the joye of conqueste,
Thet hys thor; god;
Ne mey me more joye aspye,
Thane wanne a man thor; pur mestrye
Keth hys manhod.

And to great defaute hyt were,

gef no joye of conqueste nere,

So merye hys hy.

Nou sixt thou thanne mytte beste,

How joye that cometh of conqueste

Mot neades by.

Nys gryt stryf wythoute queade,
And ther conqueste hys, stryf hys neade,
And som y-schent.
Thanne nys hyt to God no wrang,
To soffre queade the gode amange
To avancement.

For 3ef quead nere in none thynge,
Ther nere stryf ne contekynge,
Ne no wythsey;
And 3yf stryf nere ne victorye,
So scholde ine hevene that glorye,
Ac hyt ne mey.

Ther-fore ther hys a mastrye schreawe, Wyth hym mo beth and thet nau;t neawe, And neades mote; For he hys heaved of schrewednesse, Ase God hys cheaf of alle godnesse And alle bote.

Hou mytte schreaudnesse by,

Bote scherewen were by,

That hy ferst thou; te?

For God ne dede no quead in dede,

For al was god, ase ich er sede,

Al that he wronte.

Thes ilke screawe so hys hyst barn,
That into helle God at arn
Ferst for hys prede;
Ac God hyne makede fayr y-no5,
Bry5t ande schene and he5est in lo5,
Ferst ine hys dede.

Ac are he were y-mad parfyt,
Ase Gode soffrede hyzt,
He waux wel proud;
He wolde sette hys sete ryche
Of north half, and be God y-lyche,
To be alowed.

And so he werry ferst by-gan
Wyth Gode ine hevene, and 3et te than
Other wel fele,
Wyth hym that helde wyth alle my3tte,
Angeles that God hedde y-mad bry3tte,
Ine alle wele.

Thys by-ganne schrewednesse,
Op an he3 ine hevene blysse,
The ferste day;
Hy3t moste neades for the glorye,
Elles hedde y-faylled fyctorye,
Ac hyt ne may.

Ac alle by weren y-dryven out,
Wyth Lucyfer that was so stout,
Tho5r Godes my5tte;
Hy that ne hylde wyth the left,
Stale woxe that nevere eft
Sene 3y ne my5tte.

Tuo skeles beth that me may wyte,
That none nere y-mad parfyte
Ine hevene ferst,
Er the bataylle y-ended was
By-twexte God and Sathanas,
That now hys worst.

O reyson was for angeles gode,
That chose a-ry;t and faste stode
At thylke dede;
For that hy scholde thor; pur coqueste
Habbe joye evere to leste
For hare mede.

That other reyson was for the devel,
That he schal to mys-wende hys chevel,
Thor; hys malyce;

So that folveld were the glorye, And hym seelf thor; noble victorye Lys al hy blysse.

5ef hy heade be mad parfy3t,
We nedde y-haved ry3t no profy3t
Ine hevene above;
Nou schal man be in hare lo3,
Ande habbe joye and blysse y-no3,
And pes and love.

And seththe hyt moste nides by,
Thet sothe schrewen were hy,
Ase gode hyt mente;
Hou yst thet hy ine helle slabbeth,
And thare tou none grace nabbeth
To repente.

Suppose here hys o justyse,
God and truwe in alle wyse,
And wys of rede;
And dampneth theves for to ordeyne
Peys in londe, nauzt so weyne,
Ne for quoadhevede.

Suppose he that schel hem spylle,
And hongeth hy wyth grete wylle,
And hys wel glad;
Ne he neth reuche of hys eny Cryste,
Tha; hy nevere of thef the neste,
Thes hys a quead.

For that he hys mansle; the pur,
Of wylle of mysaventure,
To spylle blod;
And he that mente hyt that justyse,
Hys to preysy in thysse wyse
For hys wyl god.

So thou sixte that me may dy5te

Quead for gode, and that wyth ry5tte,

And so me deth.

And hy that doth hyt ine deade,

Wyth hare wyl of schrewedhede,

Dampnable beth.

Thos moze we wel by reysoun scheawe,
That that God soffrede such a schreawe
Al for to spylle,
Hyt was for gode, ase ich er sede;
And Lucyfer, in hys mys-dede,
Was wykke of wylle.

And there-vore damphable he hys,
For he was to don amys
The that he myztte;
And God soffred that ylke dede,
For god come throf, ase ich er sede,
As God hyzt dyztte.

Ne hyt nys of god ne malyce, The; he hym soffrede lasse hys blysse, In alle hys wele; Al that he thor; hys grace my;tte, Habbe y-don hym wilni that ry;tte, Now harkne skele.

Hyt ou by-come ine eche place,
3ef echynge hadde y-lyche grace,
To joye and blysse;
And ich mey 3yven, and eke wythdra3e,
Al that myn myn hys by gode la3e,
Wythoute malyce.

Ne may nau;t thanne God also
War he wyle hys grace do,
And eke wyth-dra;e,
fel he wole, wythout malyce,
And wythoute alle manere vyce?
Nys nys god la;e?

5es, y-wys, god laze hys,
Thet hyt be al ase hys wyl hys,
Hyt wyle wel by-come;
Nys non that conne dyzte hyt bet,
Al thaz hyt thenche wel ou net,
Hys wyl to some.

Ther that God wyle grace 5yve,

Ever to libbe hyt mot leve

Ine savement;

And that he wyle wyth grace wythdra5e,

Nys nau5t malyce, ac hyt hys la5e

And jugement.

Ac wy he graunteth grace to one,

And soche and otheren grauntyeth none,

Segge ich ne kanne;

Bote thet hys hys pryveté

Of hys domes in equyté

Wyth wel to thanne.

For ther nys nou;t of thysse wylle
Her to jugy, ac be we stylle,
We beth y-lete;
For Davyd ous to wyten deth,
In boke, that Godes domes beth
A groundlyas pet.

For hys ne may no wyt areche,
Bot tho thet hym self wyle teche,
He scheawyth hy;
And the hevele hy beth pryvé,
Al that y-ordeyned beth he Mot neadys by.

Thus the devel y-dampned hys,

And wyth hym also that beth hys,

Develen wel mo;

For that the grace of God hym faylleth,

Moche hys the pyne that hem eyleth,

And eke the who.

Wy hy ne mowe, ase ich er sede, Wel repenty of hare mys-dede, Lest enne skele, That ich schal segge, ase ich can; Mo beth at thet longy te man, Ne beth nau;t fele.

Swythe fayr thynge hys that wyte,
And ther by-syde bloke alyte
Wel y-dry3t;
The wyte the vayrer hyt maketh,
And selve more hyt blaketh,
And al hyt hy3t.

The wyser man, the wyser soneth;
Ther thet menye foules dremeth,
And no reysone;
The merrer hyt hys ine batayle,
Thet insykth al the vomen faylle,
And falle a-down.

Thys lykynge hys for hevene blysse,
That leste schal wythoute mysse,
Ase evere mo;
Thar hys so meche the more merye,
The develys that me nau;t ne derye
And helle also.

Hy thet ther beth so more y-sy,
Wat peryl ascaped bey hy,
And be the blythere;
So that folveld the joye nere,
Bote evere helle pyne were
And thrynne withere.

Ac wo beth werther for to by

Ever in o helle, thane by

Ther sech gelt hys?

Thenne mey be wel thys skele,

Tha; grace fayllth ham to wole,

No wonder nys.

And ase angeles the faste stode,
For hever eft by-come gode,
And glad and blythe;
Ry5t develon for screawedhede
Ever ine force scholle brede,
And wrethe and nythe.

Ac tho hy hedde ine hevene y-topped,
Wy nedde hy be ine helle y-stopped
For evere mo,
Ac nau;t her in thys myddelnerde,
For to maky men offerde,
And to mys-do?

For the hye weren out y-cached,
And out of hare lot arached,
For hare senne;
We mose weten hyt wel y-nou,
That ase ydel was hare lot,
That hy weren ynne.

And one by comcleche thynge hyt were, 5e3 eny bo3 ther lothy were Servynde of nou3t; Thar-fore God made mannes schefte,
That ylke log al for to crafte,
As God hygt thoute.

Ac manne ne mytte nau;t the glorye
Crefte wythoute victorye,
My leve brother;
For 3ef he nadde hy;t thor; conqueste,
Folfeld ne mytte be hys feste,
Al ase another.

Thare-fore God made hym god and wys,
And mayster over al paradys,
Ac nau;t parfyt;
For o trou thynne God for-bead,
Ase he nolde nou;t be dead,
Nan;t take hyt.

And god reyson was that hevere
Nau;t parfy;t ase other were
To-vore y-sed;
Ac ase he was y-mad of erthe,
Ry;t here an erthe hyt was wel worthe
He were asayd.

Ther-fore nas helle nau;t y-schet,
Ne develyn ther-inne nau;t y-dut,
Ine thare crybbe;
For that hy scholde man asaye,
Wather he was worthe for to deye,
Other to libbe.

Ac the the devel hyt aspyde,
That man hym scholde ther abyde
To be assayde,
He thouste gyle al onder-go,
For of thet he hadde her y-do
He was affrayde.

Nas wonder that he wede affrayd,
For swythe wel he was anayd
Of mannes stad.
For after God semblant he bere,
And he thou; te a thet hym wel er,
Tho he was y-mad.

Ac hys envie ageins man
So great by-cometh, thet al for-than
He nolde lette,
That he nold man afounde,
And an hym bote he mytte stonde,
Hys venym sente.

And dede hym in an addre wede,
That best was of mest schreuhede
Of alle beste;
Hyt moste neades screwed by-come,
Tho that hy hedde me hym y-nome
Soche a tempest.

And he gan to the trowe glyde, That was for-boden, al forte abyde After hys praye. Ac sore hym drade for to faylly, And dorste nau;t Adam asaylly, Al for to waye.

Ac wel hym thou;te that Eve nas
Na;t so stedefast ase Adam was,

That was hyre lorde;
And ase hy come, he gan here knowe,
And to hyre speke out of the trowe

Thys ylke word:

"Leve Dame, say me now,
Wy heth God for-bode hyt now,
Thet he ne mote
Eten of al that frut that hys
Here growynde in paradys
To 5 oure bote?"

"We eteth y-nou," quath Eve, "y-wys
Of alle the trowes of paradys,
And beth wel glad;
Bote thys trow mote we nauzt take,
For bothe me and mynne make
God hyt for-bede.

And seyde 5ef we ther-of ete,

We scholde deye and lyf for-lete,

And alle blysse."

"Nay," quath the fend, "ac 50 ne scholde;

Ac he wot fol wel wet he wolde

That for-bead thys.

3e wot wel 3ef 3e ther-of toke,
Wyth e3en scholde 3e forth loke,
Ry3t ase godes;
And conne bothe god and quead,
And never the rather be dead
For hys for-bodys."

Thos he gan hyre herte ablowe,

And hy se3 that frut ine the trowe

Was fayr and god;

And et throf dame lykerouse,

And maden eke eten hyt hyre spouse;

Hy weren wode.

Anon opened ther bothe hare egen,
And naked that hy weren y-segen,
And woxe of-schamed;
Wyth leaves hy helete hem ther-fore,
Ne mytte hy noseng be for-bore
To be y-blamed.

Ae tho hy herde God speke,

Wel sone an hal by-gonne threke

Wer thet hy mytte.

"Adam!" quath God "wer myzton be?"

Queth he, "Lord, tho we herde the,

We were of flyzte;

And nedes moste, Lord, to sothe,
Al for that we beth naked bothe,
Ase vole thynges."

Queth God, "Ho hath y-scheawed 30u
That he beth bothe naked nou,
Bote 30ure otinges?"

Sede Adam wytherlyche to Gode,
"Nedde ich y-broke nauzt thy for-bode,
Ne nauzt do so,
Nedde the wymman, Lord, y-be,
That to felaze thou madest me,
Hyt dede hyt me hyt do."

So seyde God Almyjty to Eve,

"Wy madest thou man mys-beleve,
And thous mys-went?"

Ac tho seyde Eve, so wey that wyle,

"The eddre, Lord, wyth hyre gyle
Heth ous y-schent."

The by-gan God speke to that worm,
"For thou are redst therne storm
And alle thys hete,
Acorsed be thou bestes by-syde,
Opone thy wombe thou schalt glyde,
And erthe frete.

And ich schal makye contekhede
By-tuyce thyne and wyves sede,
And moche to pleny.
So schal thy power be by-reved,
That 3cf schal wymman trede thine heved,
And thou hyre wayti."

So sede he, "Wymman here lere,
Hou hy scholde al hyre children bere
Ine sorze and stryf;
And thet hy scholde lybbe her
Evere ine mannes daunger,
Al hyre lyf."

To Adam seyde God of hevene,

"For thou dedest by thine wyves stevene
Thet was for-hote,
Ther hys acorsed ine thyne deade,
In swinched then schalt thy lyf leade,
And ete ine swote.

Al wat thou art asen y-come
Into erthe that thart of y-nome,
Thors deathes bende;
For thou nart bote of poudre y-welt,
And asen into poudre schelt,
Manne, at thyne ende."

Thor; the fend that hys oure vo,
Thos by-ganne ferst al oure wo
Thet we beth inne;
An thos by-ganne ferst trecherye,
Thor; the feend, and eke onnye
Manne for to wynne.

And wondervol was thys assay, And wonderlyche zede man away Lyztlyche y-lore; And wonderlyche 5et forth myt than Her ine thys world hys ever man To sorwe y-bore

Ac, crystene man, for al thys wounder,
Loke that thou ne go nau;t onder,
Thou; wantrokynge;
For sothe apreved hys thys sa;e,
Bothe by the elde and nywe la;e,
Wythoute lesynge.

And skefol was thys ordinaunce,
Thaz man by-volle so hard a chaunce,
Thorz trycherye;
For thorz mestrye that he vorth droz,
The feend in hevene has hys loz,
Thorz pur mastrye.

Ry5t also tho he gyle thou5te,
For to brynge man to no5te
Pryvelyche;
God Almy5ty that hys wyl wyste,
A5eyns hym tho5te go by lyste
Also styllyche.

For ine the trowe death was kene,
And that God made wel y-sene,
Thet hyt for-bead.
And 5e weste that God hyt sede,
5ef man throf etc he scholde awede,
And eke be dead.

Ac lyf was also ine the trowe,

Ac that ne myste be naust y-knowe,

For God hyt hedde;

For hyt was pryvé for a wyle,

Ase the fendes privé gyle

The man for-ledde.

For nau;t nas hyt y-cleped ne hys
Trou of lyve in paradys;
Ac wyste,
For ase man was thor; trowe by-cou;t,
In trowe he scholde be for-bou;t,
That the fende neste.

And that was ine the holy rode,
Thor3 the schewynge of the blode
Of Godes sone;
Ase ich her-after telle may,
That he tok of a clene may,
A3ens wone.

Hedde he wyst ther hedde y-be Lyf for-boute ine the appel-tre, He nedde assaylled Nother Adam ne non of hys; Ac are the worlde was and hys Was y-conseyled.

God wyste wel that man schold erry,
And thor; onboxamnesse nerry
Fram alle healthe;

Ther-fore that consayl was wel trye, Azeyns the feendes foule envie To abatye welthe.

Thys consayl hou hyt scholde be,
Al was y-consayled of thre,
Ere eny tyme;
Of Fader, and Sone, and Holy Gost,
That ich was embe that thou wel wost
Ferst in thyse ryme.

And was that conseyl so y-tayled,
That hyt ne my3te habbe faylled,
To bote of manne;
And certeyn tyme y-set ther-to,
And hou hyt scholde be y-do,
And wer and wanne.

And her mankende swank and dalf,
Fy5f thousend wynter and an half,
And 5ct wel mo,
Er thane the tyme of lyve come,
And death man hedde for hys dome,
And helle also.

Thet go so longe abod the skyle,

Wel mey be thys that on of vele

To mannes mende;

For death scholde hys meystryes kethe,

And for-sopil and for-sethe

In deathes bende.

That myste ryst wel y-knowe,
That he was ryst al one threawe,
And harde y-nome;
And the fend hyst myste wene,
Thet men out of so longe tene
Ne myste come.

Ac her aryst question,
The that Adam was brost a-doun,
And Eve also,
Wet gelt hedden hy that the nere,
Thet hy to dethe i-schape were,
And eke to we?

Thou syxt, brother, by than by-fore,
That oure aldren were al for-lore,
Adam and Eve;
For thar nas of ham no partye,
That nas torned to vylanye
So to by-leve.

Ac now be wey of ham y-come,
Wyth flesch and blod of ham i-nome,
Thet was ablowe
Thor; the fenym of the fende;
Thanne falth ous rewelyche by kende,
To soffry wowe.

And thos that chyld to ny3t y-bore, Thas hyt deyde hyt were for-lore, sef crystnynge nere; Thor; the flesch that hyt nome Of hys eldrene that hyt of come, That wykkede were.

And neades moste, leave brother,
Ry3t of ham come and man of other,
And be nature.
For elles nadde man y-be
Nau3t y-lych Gode in Trynyté,
Thor; engendrure.

That hy be thor; senne demeyned,
So has hyt nau;t ferst y-ordeyned,
Thy engendrure;
For the man sene;ed in Paradys,
Al chaungede that flesch a-mys
To mysaventure.

Elles nedde hyt be no senne,
Thy engendrure of al mankenne,
In al thys wone;
Ac senneleas hy hadde y-be,
Ase the engendrure in Trynyté
Of Fader and Sone.

Ase mannes y-lyche y-mad of tre
May nau;t be al ase man may be,
Inne alle thynge;
Ne Godes y-lyche, man, y-wys
Ne may nau;t be al ase God ys,
Of hevene kynge.

For God the fader hys leve sone
Engendrede out of alle wone,
Wythoute tyde;
Ac man hath certayn tyme of elde,
Wanne he may engendrure 3elde,
And tyme abyde.

PREFACE.

The interlude, presented to the modern reader for the first time in the following pages, was printed from a copy formerly in the possession of Steevens, the eminent Shakesperian critic, before it was noticed that a copy in the British Museum contained several variations and superior readings. These were the more important, settling in some places the distribution of the speeches with greater accuracy than they were arranged in the exemplar we used. Perhaps, indeed, this may in some measure have arisen from the one last mentioned having been what booksellers technically term "eropped", but we have noticed all variations of importance in the notes, and some of them seem incompatible with any supposition, except that there were two different impressions in the same year,* or that the Museum copy had been corrected while the work was in the press.

Mr. Collier conjectures that the Trial of Treasure was written some years before it was printed, but subsequently to the composition of Lusty Juventus, which is, he says, "mentioned in it." But it appears to me that the allusion to Lusty Juventus, (p. 5), is merely a generic proverbial title, and has no reference whatever to the old play so called. Mr. Collier, Hist. Dram. Poet. ii, 330, has given a brief analysis of the interlude now reprinted.

December 21st, 1849.

^{*} The Museum copy has a wood-cut on the back of the title-page, which is wanting in the other copy, a circumstance which appears to confirm this opinion.

THE TRIALL OF TREASURE.

Doe all things to edifie the Congregation.

Diogenes, which used a barell for his house, Being fled from his father to the citie of Athens, Comforted himself much in beholding the mouse, Which desired neither castell nor hold for her defence; Concerning sustentation she made no difference, But eate whatsoever to her did befall, And, touching her apparell, she had least care of all; This poore mouses propertie noted Diogenes, Whiche oftentimes also he would have in sight, And though he were disciple unto Antisthenes, Yet he learned of the mouse as much as he might; In the science of Sophy he had great delight, But concerning his state and outward condition, The most can declare, if you make inquisition. On a time he chaunsed accumpanied to be With Alexander, which stode betwene him and the sonne,

What requirest thou to have, Diogenes, (quod he), Is there any thing that by me may be done?

I pray thee stande asyde, and make a little roume (Quod Diogenes), that the sunne upon me may shine, Nought els require I of that that is thine. He used to saie, that as servauntes be obedient To their bodely maisters, being in subjection, Euen so euill men, that are not contente, Are subjects and slaves to their lustes and affection: This lesson unto us may be a direction Which way our inclination to bridle and subdeawe, Namely, if we labour the same to eschewe. Thus see you howe little this Philosopher estemed The aboundaunt possessions of this mundaine treasure, Which yet, notwithstanding, at these dayes is deemed To be the original and fountaine of pleasure; This causeth luste to raigne without measure, To the whiche men are subjects, Diogenes doth say, Yet both lust and treasure in time weareth away. A philosopher is he that wisdome doth love, Which before Pithagoras wyse men were named. Now Diogenes being wyse, this doth approve That some of this age ought as fooles to be blamed. For where the one with treasure lack his life framed, The other travaile, care and labour with gredinesse The same by all meanes to enjoye and possesse. But luste with the lustes converteth to duste. And leaveth of force his pleasant prosperitie, So pleasure, in time, is turned to ruste, As S. James, in his Epistle, sheweth the veritie; Hereof we purpose to speake without temeretie. Therefore our matter is named the Triall of Treasure,

Which time doth expell, with all mundaine pleasure;
Both mery and short we purpose to be,
And therefore require your pardon and pacience;
We trust in our matter nothing shall you see
That to the godly may geve any offence;
Though the style be barbarous, not fined with eloquence,
Yet our author desireth your gentle acceptation,
And we the plaiers likewyse with all humiliation.

FINIS.

Enter Luste, like a gallant, singing this songe.

Heye howe, care away, let the world passe,

For I am as lusty as euer I was;

In floures I florishe as blosomes in May,

Hey howe, care away; hay hewe, care away!

Luste. What the deuill ailed me to singe thus?

I crie you mercy, by my faith, for entring;
Moste like I haue ridden on the flying Pegasus,
Or in Cock Lowels barge I haue bene a ventringe.
Syng: why, I would singe if it were to do againe,
With Orpheus and Amphion I went to schole:
What! laddes must be liuely attending on the traine
Of Lady Delectation, whiche is no small foole.
Hey rowse, fill all the pottes in the house;
Tushe, man, in good felowship let us be mery.
Looke up like a man, or it is not worth a louse;
Hey howe, troly lowe; hey dery, dery.
Ha, pleasaunt youths, and lusty Juventus,
In faithe, it is good to be mery this May:
For of man's lining here there is no point endentus,

Therfore a little mirth is worth much sorrow, some say. Enter JUSTE.

But remember ye not the wyse man's sentence? It is better in the house of mourning to be Then in the house of laughter, where foly hath residence, For lightnes with wisdome cannot agree; Though many have pleasure in foolish phantasie, Ensuing their inclination and luste, Yet much better is the life of one that is juste.

Luste. Sir, in this you seme against me to inuaye.

Juste. Nothing but reason, I thinke, I do saye.

Luste. Mary, you shall have a night-cap for making the reason.

Frinde, haue you not a pece of stocke-fishe to selle? I would you had a dishe of buttered peason. By my faith, your communication likes me well, But, I beseche you, tell me, is not your name Juste? Juste. Yes, forsothe.

Luste. And my name thou shalt understande is Luste, And according therto I am lusty in deede; But, I think, thou haste drunke of Morpheus seede. Thou goest like a dromeldory, dreamy and drowsy; I holde twenty pounde the knaue is lousy!

Juste. Myne apparell is not like unto thine, Disguysed and iagged, of sundrie fashion; Howe be it, it is not golde alwayes that doth shine, But corrupting copper, of small valuation; To horrible besides is thy operation, Nothing more odious unto the juste, Then the beastly desires of inordinate luste.

Luste. It is a shamefull thinge, as Cicero doth saye, That a man his owne actes should praise and commende; Hypocrites accustome thee like, daye by daye, Checking other men, when they doe offende.

Juste. Yea, but it is an harde thing, saieth the philosopher,

For a foolishe man to have his maners reprehended; And even at this daie it is come so farre, God graunt, for his mercy, it may be amended! For tell a man friendly nowe of his faulte, Being blasphemy, pryde, or vyle fornication, He will be as presumptuous as Haman, the haulte, And repaye with revenge, or els defamation: Thus fewe men a friendly monition will beare, But stoutly persiste and mainteine their ill; And in noblemen's houses truly I do feere, There are to many have suche froward will.

Luste. Woundes and hartes, who can abyde this? Nay, ye vyle vylayne, I will dresse you therefore; Your lasy bones I pretend so to blisse, That you shall have small luste to prate any more.

Juste. Behold the image of insipient fooles!

There not a few, euen nowe, of thy propertie,
Untill you be put into pouerties scholes,
Ye will not forsake this folishe insolencie.

Luste. Nay, soft, with thee I have not made an end. [Drawe out his swoorde.

Juste. The just against lust must always contend, Therfore I purpose to wrestle with thee [put it up], Who shall have the victorie streightwaye we shall see.

Luste. When thou wilt; by his fleshe I shall holde the wag.

[Wrestle, and let Luste seeme to have the better at the firste.

Juste. I know that Lust useth not little to brag.

Luste. Thou shalt find me as mighty as Sampson the strong.

Juste. Yea, the battel of lust endureth long.

Luste. Woundes and fleshe! I was almost down on But yet I will wrestle till my bones cracke. [my back; | Staye, and then speake.

Juste. The end of thy presumption nowed oth appeare.

Luste. Yet dooe what thou canst, I will not lie here;
No, by his woundes, you old doating knaue!

[Caste him, and let him arise again.

Thinkest thou Lust will be made a slaue;
I shall mete you in Smithfield, or else other wheare,
By his flesh and bloud, I will thee not forbeare!

Juste. Not of my power I doe thee expell,
But by the mighte of his spirite that dwelleth in me:
Inordinate luste with the just may not dwell,
And therfore may not I accompanie thee.

Luste. Well, goodman Juste, it is no matter,
But, in faithe, I pretend not with thee to flatter;
Though from thy company departe I muste,
I shall liue in as much welthynesse, I truste.

Go out. He must drive him out.

Juste. Where moste wealth is, and most dilectation, There Luste is commonly of moste estimation; For whereas wealth wanteth, idleness doth slake, For where idlenes is, Lust parteth the stake. [Pause. Thus have you seene the conflicte of the juste, Which all good men ought to use and frequent; For horrible are the fruites of inordinate luste, Which in some case resembleth Hydra, the serpent; Whose head being cut of, another ryseth incontinent: So, one of Luste's cogitations being cut away, There ryseth up another, yea many, we may say. It is requisite, therfore, that every degree Against this, his lust, both striue and contende; And though, at the first, he seeme sturdy to be, The Lord will convince him for you in the ende. Your cause unto him, therefore, holy commende, Labouring to anoyde all inordinate luste, And to practise in lyfe, to live after the Juste.

[Go out. Enter Inclination the Visc.

Inclin. I can remember synce Noe's ship
Was made, and builded on Salisbury Plaine; [pip,
The same yeere the weathercocke of Paules caught the
So that Bowe bell was like much woe to sustaine.
I can remember, I am so olde,
Since Paradise gates were watched by night;
And when that Vulcanus was made a cuckold,
Among the great gods I appeared in sight.
Nay, for all you smiling, I tell you true.
No, no, ye will not knowe me nowe;
The mightie on the earth I doe subdue.
Tush, if you will giue me leaue, yle tell ye howe;
Nowe, in good faith, I care not greatly,
Althoughe I declare my dayly increase;

But then these gentlewomen wil be angry, Therfore I thinke best to holde my peace: Nay, I beseche you, let the matter staye, [handes; For I would not for twenty pounde come into their For if there should chaunce to be but one Dalila, By the mas, thei would bind me in Samson's bands! But what meane I first with them to beginne, Seing that in all men I doe remaine? Because that first I remayned Eue within, And after her, Adam, and so foorth to Caine. I perceiue, by your lookes, my name ye would knowe: Why, you are not ignoraunt of that, I dare saye; It is I that doe guyde the bent of your bowe, And ruleth your actions also, daye by daye; Forsothe, I am called Natural Inclination, Whiche bred in old Adam's fostred bones; So that I am proper to his generation, I will not awaye with casting of stones! I make the stoutest to bowe and bende: Againe, when I luste, I make men stande uprighte; From the lowest to the highest I doe ascende, Drawing them to thinges of naturall might.

Drawing them to thinges of naturall might.

Enter Luste and Sturdiness, singing this song.

Where is the knaue that so did raue?

O, that we could him finde,

We would him make for feare to quake,

That loute of lobbishe kinde.

My name is Luste, and let him truste

That I will haue redresse;

For thou and I will make him flie

Mine oulde friende Sturdiness.

Luste. Where is now that valiaunt Hercules?

For all his bragges, he is nowe runne away.

Sturdi. (bragging). By the guttes of Golya it is beste for his ease,

For he was moste like for the pottage to paye.

Inclina. Cockes soule! what bragging knaves have we here?

Come ye to conuince the mightiest conqueror?

It was I, that before you now doth appeare, [ander:

Whiche brought to confusion both Hector and Alex-

Looke on this legge, ye prating slaues,

I remember since it was no greater then a tree;

At that time I had a cupple of knaues,

Much like unto you, that wayghted on me.

Luste. Cockes precious soule, let us conquer the knaue.

Sturdi. By his flesh and sydes, a good courage I have; Stande you, therfore, a little asyde,

And ye shall see me quickely abate the fooles pryde.

[Draw out the swoorde; make him put it up; and then strike him. Looke in your spectacles.

Inclina. Nave, I dare not I, if thou lookest so bigge;

What, suche a bore fight with a pigge!

Put up thy swoorde, man, we will agree;

So lo: doe so much as beare that for mee.

Sturdi. Nay, by his harte then, I will you dresse.

Inclin. Be good in thine office, gentle friend Sturdiness:

For though thou and I doe seme to contende, Yet we are, and must be, friendes till the ende. Sturdi. Come, geue me thy hande, I beshrowe thy harte.

Inclin. Nay, you must take all thinges in good parte; Who standeth yonder, Captain Luste?

Sturdi. Yea, mary.

Inclin. No remedy then, to him go I must.
You have forgot, I dare say, your old friend Inclination;
But let us renew acquaintance again, for cocks passion!

Luste. Why, man, our acquaintaunce hath bene of olde;

I am your's at commaundement, therfore be bolde; For Luste can doe nothing without Inclination, Chiefly in matters concerning a pleasaunt vocation.

Inclin. Indede Luste may be taken for a thing in-Except Inclination be joyned therunto; [different, But when that I once have revealed my entent, As I will men to worke, so commonly they doe.

Luste. Ye have harde of the combate between me and Juste.

Inc. Ye, mary, I harde saye that you laye in the duste.

Luste. What saye ye?

Inc. Neither one worde, nor other, ye may me truste.
Luste. Of mine honestie my company he utterly refused,

And in wrestling with me he gaue me the foyle,
Saying that I had myselfe and other abused,
Leading men in perplexitie and marveilous toile.

Sturdi. By gogs woundes, if we had founde him here, We should by his fleshe haue abated his chere.

Inclin. I perceive, Sturdiness, thou art no foole; Tell me, of felowship, where wentest thou to schole.

Sturdi. What, to reade or wrighte?

Inclin. Nay, to sweare and fighte:

For I thinke thou canst neither wryte, reade, nor spel, But in swearing and fighting thou doest excell.

Sturdi. Thou knowest that I am joyned with Luste, And sturdy, by nature, I am in like case; What, let the worlde wag, all cannot be juste, Some must naturall inclination embrace.

Luste. All men juste? no; I remember the sentence of Tully,

That no man is juste that feareth death, pouertie, or paine, Which I doe feare all, and that marueilously; For fortune is variable, I doe perceiue playne, And notwithstanding that Felix possessed great gaine, Yet when Paule preached of the judgement daye, He trembled for feare, and bad him go awaye.

Inc. Doth such passions often trouble your mynde?

Luste. Nay, not often, but sometime I do them fynde;

But then, to the entent to dryve them awaye,

I either go to sleape, or els to some playe.

Sturdi. By gogs precious hearte, euen so doe I; But sometyme they comber me pestilently.

Inclin. Well, maister Luste, suche dumpes to eschewe, My advise and request you must nedes ensue; That is, to become disciple to doctor Epicurus, And then you shall have myrth by measure and overplus; Tushe, I knowe a cupple companions in store That were marueilous mete for you evermore; I wishe you were knowne unto them.

Luste. Well, then, call them in.

Inc. Here they come, each of them in a knaues skinne.

[Enter Elation and Greedy-gutte.]

With luste to live is our delight, In high estate and dignitie; Seing that the Just put us to flight, Let them alone in miserie.

Stur. Nay, they be lusty laddes, I tell ye.

Ela. What, Inclination! methought I did smell thee: Gyve me thy hande or we forther go.

Inc. Nowe, welcome in faith, and Gredy-gutte also:
But, syrs, are none of you both acquainted with Lust?

Luste. Yes, that they have bene both of them, I
truste;

Welcome, syrs, in faithe; welcome unto me.

Ela. By my trothe, I am glad your maistership to In health and prosperitie, as presently you bee. [see

Gre. Bom fay zo, am I wod all my harte.

Inc. This cowe-bellied knave doth come from the carte;

Ise teache you to speake, I hold you a pounde! Curchy, lob, curchy downe to the grounde.

Gre. Che can make curchy well enowe.

Inc. Lower, olde knave, or yle make ye to bowe!
The great bellied loute methinke can not bende
Yet so lo, he beginneth to amende.

Luste. Well, syrs, nowe I remember Esopes advise Whiche he gave to the Samies against king Crassus; Therfore, it is good to be wyttye and wyse, And being in libertie to kepe me still thus, I cannot abide a life that is dolorous,

And seing that my name is properly Luste, I hate the conversation of the Juste.

Inc. Well, maister Luste, first joyne you to me, Inclination,

Next here with Sturdiness you must you acquainte;
Turne you about and embrace Elation;
And that wealth may encrease without any restraint,
Joine you with Gredy-gutte here in our presence,
That all these in you may have prosperous influence.

(Bowe to the grounde).

Luste. Out, alas! what a sodaine passion is this!

I am so taken that I can not stande;

The crampe, the crampe, hath touched me y-wis;

I shall die without remedie nowe out of hande.

Gre. By my matins chese, our master is sicke.

Inc. Stande back, Nycollnoddy, with the pudding pricke,

More braines in thy skinne then witte in thy braine, Such Gredy-guttes in faith would be flayne! This crampe doth signific nothing in effect; None of all your councels he will now rejecte, And therfore feare not to make full declaration.

Stur. Then feare not the force of these that be juste, But labour yourself to advance and augment; Be jocund and lively, sithe your name is Luste, And then you shall easely obtaine your entente.

Ela. Esteme yourselfe alwayes equall with the beste, And seeke for promotion, power and dignitie; It is good when men may live as they luste, And unto the juste beare hate and malignitie.

Gre. O, zur, ye must be gredy to catche and clawe.

Inc. Well said, Gredy-gutte, as wyse as a dawe!

Gre. Eate up, at a mouthfull, houses and landes.

Inc. There's a vengeable mouth to-(Gape and the Vise gape).

Gre. Never feare God, nor the governours lawe, But gripe, gripe, gripe gredely all that cometh in your hands.

By the masse, but Hewe Howlet is pestilent witty, What guttish gredinesse the horeson can teache! That thou art not ejected, in faith, it is pitie, As hie as three trees and a halter will reache. Mary, syrs, but your councels hath set me on fire! Hey, lusty lad, how freshe am I nowe! Leade me, Inclination, to have my desire, And then at thy requeste I wyll ever bende and bowe; He that bendeth to followe his own inclination. Must nedes live a wicked and vile conversation. But so, maister Luste, I will leade you to a place Where you shall have pleasure enough in short space; Yea, but shall not this company go thether? Yes, mary, we foure will all go together; But Sturdiness shall tary to face out the matter, If Juste peradventure against you should elatter: By the masse, and well said, but first let us sing, I must tune my pipes first of all by drinking. Tushe, what then? I praie thee help us a part; Yes, I will sing the treble with all my harte. Luste shall be led by Inclination To carnall cogitation;

Where luste is led wholy by me,
He must fall to Cupiditie;
For carnal cares shall him assaile,
And spedeley they shall prevaile;
I, Sturdiness, will face it out
In his cause, sturdy, stiffe and stoute.
Then Gredy-gutte shall make him eate
Both house and lands like bread and meate;
Elation shall puffe him hie
For to aspier above the skie;
Then naturall and lordly Luste
Shall with his poure dispise the Juste.

Elation. Our songe is ended, haste thou other in store? Inc. I shall not have done this halfe houre and more. Yet I will, nowe I remember. Come in, Luste; That I go before is but nedeful and just. You shall be nowe led by me, Inclination, To reason and talke with Carnall cogitation. Is there more vanitie underneath the sonne Then to be inclined after this sorte? Well, Luste doth now as others have done, Yea, and doe daye by daye, esteming it a sporte; This Luste is the image of all wicked men, Whiche in seeking the worlde haue all delectation; They regarde not God, nor his commaundements tenne, But are wholly led by their owne inclination. First, to inculcate with Carnall cogitation, And, after, to the desier of all worldly treasure, Whiche alone they esteeme the fulness of pleasure. With Elation, or pride, he is also associate,

Which puffeth up his sences with presumption pestilent; Then Gredy-gutte maketh them continually to grate On the mock of this world, which he thinketh permanent. I, Sturdiness, to heare out all things am bent: Thus, see you howe men that are led by their luste Dissent from the vertuous, godlie, and juste.

[Go out. Enter Juste and Sapience. Sapience. The advise of Aristippus haue in your mynnde,

Which willed me to seke such thinges as be permanent, And not such as are of a vanishing kinde,

For the one with the other is not equivalent.

Be circumspect, therefore, forseing and sapient,

For treasures here gotten are uncertain and vaine,

But treasures of the mynde do continually remaine.

Juste. This is the mynde of ——, and I remember Like as presently you have advertised me,
For the whiche I cannot but thankefully render
Such commendations as is requisite to be;
And as your name is Sapience, thus muche I see
That on heavenly wisedome you doe depende,
And not on as time doth bring to an ende.

Sapience. Truthe, indeed, and therfore your name being Juste,

With me and my documentes must be associate; Where, contrary, suche as are led by their lust, To incline cuill are alwayes appropriate:

They have not, as you have, battel and combate Against the cogitations that inwardly spring, But rather are obedient unto the same thing:

And this is the occasion that men are so ambitious, And so foolishe, led by the luste of their braine Sometime to couet, sometime to be vicious; Sometime the councell of the wyse to disdaine; Sometime to clime till they fall down againe; Sometime to usurpe the possessions of other; Sometime to disobeye bothe father and mother.

Juste. Alas, what availeth it ryches to enjoye,
Though as muche in comparison as Cressus the king?
What helpeth it to haue Helene in Troye,
If the conscience of man continually sting?
Elation and Pride no commoditie doth bring,
But is often knowen the forerunner of shame,
And the blotte of immortall memorie and fame.

[Enter Inclination, the Vise.

Inc. Nowe, by my hallydome, it is alone a,
Better sporte in my life I never sawe,
It is trimme, I tel you, to daunce with John and Jone a,
We passe not a point for God nor his law;
But lust is
Cogitation and he in one bed doth lie.
Here is maister Juste, with his cancred corage,
What, and olde doting Sapience! then I am dressed I.
So often already Juste hath me restrained,
That I dare not entise him any more,
For through Sapience he hath me clerely disdained,
That my courage is spent and I have no more.

[Make a going back.

Sap. Nay, softe, syr, we must talke with you or ye go.

Inc. I can not tary at this time, the truthe is so.
Juste. Nay, there is no remedy with you; we muste talke.

Inc. By the body of me, I holde best that I walke, Or els learne to speake language another whyle, And so I may happen the knaves to beguyle.

Juste. Turne back or you go, we have somewhat to say.

Inc. Non point parla fransois, nonne par ma foy.

Sap. To deceive us nowe himselfe he doth prepare.

Inc. Ick en can ghene englishe spreken von waer.

Body of me, let me go, or els I shall ...;
I wis, maister Juste, you have loved me or this;

Therfore nowe be ruled after my councell,

And godly thinges for your commoditie I shall you tell.

Sap. Let him that is juste not lightly ensue
His vile inclination and carnall concupiscence,
But let him rather contende the same to subdue;
And chiefly those that have knowledge of Sapience:
Therfore to brydle this luste do your diligence,
His craftie provocations utterly to restraine,
That Just may live while life doth remaine.

Inc. Godd man Hoball, speake you in earnest?
What doest thou saye, shall the Just bridle me?
No, no, brother Snappes, doe the worst and thy best,
I will not be bridled of him nor of thee.

Juste. Seing Sapience consisteth in heauenly document,

And that heavenly document consisteth in Sapience, To bridle this wretch I cannot but consent, Sithe I of his purpose haue had oft intelligence.

Inc. Yet again brydle it doth not preuayle;
I will not be bridled of the best of you both.

See you this gere? heres one will make you to quaile;
Stande backe! to kil you, maister Juste, I would be loth!
You have been so burned and fried of late,
That it were pitie to hurt you any more.

Back, I say, or my dagger shall about your pate, By the masse, but I will, syr, yle make your bones sore. [Struggle two or three times.

Juste. I will bridle thee, beast, for all thy bragging.

Inc. In faith, good man Juste, yle holde ye wagging;
Nay, brother, ye shall find me a curste colt to bridle,
Nay, in faith, better yet I will make thee to struggle.

Sap. Never leve him, but ensue the councell of Sapience.

Juste. Lo, nowe I have brought him under obedience.

[Brydle him.

Inc. Not so obedient as thou thinkest me to have;
Nay, brother, ye shall finde me a coltishe knave:
We, he, he, it is good for you to holde faste,
For I will kicke and winche whyle the lyfe doth laste.
Sap. Thou shalt kicke indeed, but no victorie wynne;

Neither to conquer the Juste to ungodliness nor synne.

Inc. O yes, O yes, I will make a proclamation.

Juste. What shall that be?

Inc. If ye will geve me leave, then you shall see.O yes! is there any man or woman that hath lost Λ gambolling gelding with a graye tayle,

Let him come to the Crier and pay for his coste,
And he will tell him tidinges without any fayle.

Sap. To the entent that you may him sharpely restraine.

Let him not enjoye so muche of the raine.

Bridle him shorter.

Inc. Cockes sole, now the snaffel cutteth my lip, I would this luberly knave had the pip!
I shall leape no hedges whyle this brydle is on, Out, alas! I think it will fret me to the bone.

Sap. Thus should every man that wil be called Juste

Brydle and subdue his beastly inclination,
That he in the ende may obtaine perfect truste,
The messenger of God to geve sight to salvation.

Juste. That truste to obtaine with him I have struggled.

Sap. Then let us departe, and leave this beast bridled. [Go out both.

Inc. May the deuill go with you and his dun dame! Suche horse maisters will make a colte quickely tame; I would he were hanged that this snaffell did make, It maketh my chappes so shamefully to ake; Ye haue no pitic on me, you, I se, by your laughing; I care not greatly if I fall to gambolling; We, he, he, he, he, he, come alofte, I saye, Beware the horse heles, I avyse you stande awaye; The raine of my bridle is tied so shorte, That I can not make you any more sport. But though I be bridled now of the Juste,

I doubte not but I shal be unbridled by Luste, And let not Juste thinke but I will rebell, Although he bridle me tenne times all well; Though Nature saith one done with a croche, It will not lie long but incontente aproche; Even so though that I be bridled a whyle, The colte will at length the curser beguyle.

Enter Gredy-gutte running and catche a fall.

Gre. Chill ran I as fast as I can,
Zures, did none of you zee a man?
Cham zent in haste from my maister Luste,
So that Inclination nedes come to him must.

Inc. Where is he now? I pray thee tell me.

Gre. Why what have we here, Jesus, benedicitie!

I holde twenty pounde it is Baalam's asse, Nay tis a colte, I see his tayle by the masse!

Inc. Am I a colte? nay, thou liest lyke a knaue,

Somewhat for thy labour nowe shalt thou haue.

Gre. Hoball, ho, lousy jade, must ye kicke?

Inc. Who euer sawe suche a desperate Dicke?

Why, Gredy-gutte, doest thou not knowe Inclination?

Gre. Body of me, who hath drest thee of that fashion?

Thou arte brydled for byting nowe indeede,

Syra, maister Luste would have thee make spede.

Inc. I am bridled I, euen as thou doest see,

Therefore desirr him to come and helpe me. But what is the matter that he for me sente?

Gre. Mary, to gather with Grediness nowe he is bent;

He hath had long talke with Carnal Cogitation, And is set on fier by the means of Elation, So that he is so lusty he cannot abyde, Therefore one or other for him must be spied.

Inc. Well, Gredy-gutte, I praye thee, go and make haste.

Gre. Tush, feare not, chill spend no time in waste.

Inc. I had rather then xL pence that he were come;

If I be bridled long I shall be undone.

So sharpe is this snaffell called restrainte,

That it maketh me sweate I am so fainte:

Harke! I heare the voyce of my maister Luste;

Now I shall be unbridled shortly I truste.

Enter LUSTE.

Luste. Cocks precious woundes, here hath bene vilanie!

Inc. Heye, they have used me with to much vilanie,

That old knave Sapience so counseled Juste; But let me be unbridled, good maister Luste.

[Unbridle him.

Luste. Lo, now thou art unbridled, be of good chere. Inc. By Lady, I am glad I have gotten thus cleare. But harke you, maister Lust, if I may do you pleasure, Whisper, whisper, she is called Treasure.

Luste. O my harte is on fyre till she come in place.

Inc. O maister Luste, she hath an amiable face;

A tricker, a trimmer, in faith that she is,

The goddess of wealth, prosperitie and bliss.

Luste. But thinke you that this minion long endure shall?

Inc. For euer and euer, man, she is immortall. There be many other, but she exceeded them all.

Luste. What be they, have you their names in store? Inc. Yea, harke, in your eare—And many other more. Luste. Sithe that the apple of Paris before me is east,

And that I may deliuer the same where I will,
I would Prometheus were here to helpe me holde fast,
That I might have a fore witte with me euer still.
Pallas I consider in science hath skill,
But Juno and Venus good will do I beare;
Therefore to geue the appull I know not where.

Inc. Be conciled by me, and geve it Lady Treasure,
It shal be for your commoditie in the end without measure,

For having the company of this minion lasse,
You shall never wante the societic of Pallas;
Juno, nor yet the armipotent Mars,
Can not resiste your strengthe be they never so fearce;
And as for Venus, you shall have at pleasure,
For she is bought and solde alwayes with Treasure;
She of her power hath whole countries conquered,
The moste noble champions by her hath ben murthered;
Acon for her sake was stoned to death.
Tushe, innumerable at this day spende their breathe,

Luste. Which way should I worke of her to haue a sight?

Sume hange or be hanged, they love her so well, She is the great goddesse, it is true that I telle. Inc. I, Inclination, will leade you thyther right;
But we must have Gredy-gutte, and also Elation
Luste. They are at the house of Carnal Cogitation.
Inc. Whether I would wyshe that we might departe;
I will lead you thither with all my harte.

[Go out. Enter Just.

Trust, a woman plainly, and Contentation, knele down and sing, she have a crowne.

So happy is the state of those
That walke uprighte and juste,
That thou, Lorde, doest thy face disclose
By perfect hope and truste.

Their inclination thou dost stay,
And sendeth them Sapience,
That they should serue, and eke obey

Thy highe magnificence.

Thou sendest Contentation,

That we in thee may rest.

Therefore all adoration

To thee perteineth best.

saye,

Juste. God careth for his people, as the prophet doth And preserveth them under his mercifull wynges; Namely the juste, that his will do obey, Observing his holy commaundement in all thynges; Not for our sake, or for our deservinges, But for his owne sake, openly to declare, That all men on earth ought to live in his feare.

Truste. Howe God hath blissed you all men may see; For first, at your entraunce you conquered Luste, Not by your power, but by might of the deitie,

As all persons ought to doe that be juste.

Then through Sapience which God did you sende,
You bridled that brutishe beaste Inclination,
And also ordered you with Contentation.

Con. Those that are contented with their vocation Be thankefull to God; this is a true consequent; And those that be thankefull in their conversation, Can not but please the Lorde God omnipotent; But those that be sturdie, proude, and disobedient, The Ruler of all rulers will them confounde, And rote their remembraunce of from the grounde.

Juste. When Solon was asked of Cressus the king, What man was moste happie in this vale terestriall, To the ende he semeth to attribute that thing When men be associate with treasures celestiall, Before the ende can no man judge, he doth saie, That any man is happy that here beareth breath, But then by his end preteley judge we may; Thus true happines consisteth, saith he, after death. If this be a truthe, as undoubtedly it is, What men are more foolish, wretched, and miserable, Then those that in these treasures accompt their whole blys,

Being infect with ambition, that sickness incurable; A! wicked Adrastia, thou goddes deceiuable,
Thus to plucke from men the sence of their mynde,
So that no contentation therein they can finde.

Truste. The treasure of this worlde we may well compare

To Circes, the witche, with her craftie cautilitie,

Wherewith many mens myndes so poysoned are,
That quite they are carried into all fidelitie;
They are conjured in deede and bewitched so sore,
That treasure is their truste, joye, and delighte.
True truste is expelled, they passe not therefore,
And against contentation they continually fight.
But though wicked men folowe their luste,
Crying on earth is our felicitie and pleasure,
Yet God doth so guide the bartes of the juste.
That they respect chiefly the celestiall treasure.

Con. Alas! should we not have that estimation Which God hath prepared for his dere elect? Should not our myndes rest in full contentation, Having truste in this treasure, most highe in respecte? St. Paule, whom the Lorde so high did erecte, Saith; It passeth the sence of our memory and mynde, Much lesse can our outward eyes the same finde, And as for treasures which men possesse here, Through fickelnes of fortune sone fadeth away; The greatest of renowme and most worthy here Sometime falleth in the ende to myserie and decay. Recorde of Dionisius, a king of much fame, Of the valiaunt Alexander and Cæsar the strong. Record of Tarquin, which Superbus had to name, And of Heliogabalos, that ministred with wronge; If I should recite all, I should stand very long, But these be sufficient plainly to approue Howe sone by uncertaintie this treasure doth remoue.

Juste. It is true; therfore a mynde well contente Is great riches, as the wyse king Salomon doth say. We have sene of late days this cancard pestilent
Corrupting our realme to our great decaie,
Ambition, I meane, which chiefly did raigne
Among those that should be examples to others;
We sawe how their brethren they did disdaine,
And burned with fire the childe with the mother;
It is often seene that such monsters ambitious
As spare not to spile the bloud of the innocente,
Will not greatly sticke to become seditious,
The determination of God thereby to prevente.
God graunt every one of us earnestly to repente,
And not to set our minds on this fading treasure,
But rather wyshe and wille to doe the Lordes pleasure.

Truste. O ye emperours, potentates, and princes of Truste. O ye emperours, potentates, and princes of renowne,

Learn of Juste with Truste yourselves to associate.

That like as your vocation by right doth aske the crown,
And also due obedience, being the appointed magistrate,
So rule that at the last you may be resuscitate

And raigne with the Almightie with perfect continuance,

Receiving double crownes for your godly governaunce. Ye noblemen whome God hath furnished with fame, Be myndefull to walke in the wayes of the Juste, And be not ourcome of concupiscence or luste. Fle from lone of treasure, catche holde of me, Truste; And then double felicitie at the last you shall possesse, And in all earthly doings God shall gene you succes. Ye poore men and commons, walke well in your vocations,

Banishe lust and desier, which is not convenient;
Let truste worke in you a full contentation,
Considering that it leadeth to treasures more excellent,
For these are uncertaine, but they are most permanent.
Your necessitie supplie with vertue and truste,
And then shall you enjoye your crown among the just.

Juste. As I, being properly nominate Juste,
Am here associate with Contentation,
So have I my whole felicitie in Truste,
Who ilumineth myne eyes to see my saluation.

Truste. Feare you not, shortly you shall have consolation,

If I were once growen in you to perfection,

Euen thus goeth it alwaies with the children of election.

Juste. I will departe now; will ye go with me, Truste?

Truste. Yea, I must alwaies associate the Juste.

Cont. A psalme of thankesgeuing first let us sing,

To the laude and prayse of the immortall Kinge.

(Here if you will: sing "the man is blest that feareth God", &c.—Go out).

Enter Inclination laughing.

Inc. Lust (quod he) nowe in faithe he is lusty, Lady Treasure and he hath made a matche; He thinketh that I ware marvelous trusty, Because I teache him to clawe and to catche, And now a daies amitie doth therein consiste; He that can flatter shal be well beloued; But he that saieth, thus and thus, saieth Christe, Shall as an enemy be openly reproued.

Friendship, yea friendship consisteth now in adulation; Speake faire and please the lust of thy lorde, I warrant thee be had in great estimation, When those that tel truthe shal be abhorde. A! unhappy lingua, whether wilt thou ten? Take heed, I advise thee, least thou be shent; If ye chaunce to tell any tales of these gentlewomen, With flesh hokes and nayles you are like to be rent; Nay, for the passion of me be not so moued, And I will please you incontinent againe. Above all treasures you are worthy to be loued, Because you do no men deride nor disdaine; You do not contempte the simple and poore; You be not hie-minded, proude, and presumptuous, Neither wanton nor wyly you be neuer more, But gentle, louing modestie, and vertuous. Behold howe a lie can please some folkes diet! O pacifie their myndes maruellous well, All whyste, I warrant ye, so they in quiet. Howe to please you hereafter I can tell: Harke, I heare Luste and my lady Treasure, They are given to solace, singing, and pleasure.

Enter Luste and Treasure, a woman finely appareled.

Lust. Ah, amorous lady, of bewtifull face,
Thou art hartely welcome unto this place;
My harte is inclined to the, lady Treasure,
My love is insatiate, it kepeth no mesure.

Treas. It is I, maister Luste, that will you aduaunce;
Treasure it is that things doth enhaunce;

Upon me set your whole affection and luste,
And passe not a point for the wayes of the Juste.
Treasure is a pleasure, beare that in mynde;
Both trusty and true ye shall me alwayes finde.

Inc. As trusty as is a quick ele by the tayle!
What, lady Treasure, welcome withoute fayle;
To be better acquainted with you once I truste,
But I dare not in the presence of my maister Luste.
Ye are welcome, syr, hartely; what! be of good courage;

Drawer, let us have a pinte of whyte wine and borage.

Luste. Wherefore, I praye thee tell?

Inc. Mary, methinke you are not well.

Luste. Not well, who can a better life craue,

Then to possesse suche a lady as I haue?

Is there any wealth not contained in Treasure?

Ah, lady, I love thee in faith out of measure.

Inc. It is out of measure indeede, as you saie,
And even so must men love her at this daie;
Oh, she is a mynion of amorous hewe,
Her pere in my daies yet I never knew.
Old (quod you) I am an old knaue I tell ye,
Nay, never laughe at the matter, for doubtles I smel
ye;

She passeth Juno, Ceres, and Pallas,
More beautifull then euer dame Venus was,
Other in sapience she doth excede,
And Diana in dignitie, of whome we doe reade;
What should faire Helene once named be,
She excelleth all these, maister Luste, beleue me.

Luste. Howe say you, is not this an eloquent lad?

Treas. That you have suche a servaunt truly I am glad.

Inc. Ha, ha, now indeede I can you not blame, For women of all degrees are glad of the same; They that flatter and speake them fayre Shal be their sonnes, and peradventure their ayre.

Luste. You tolde me of a brother you had, lady Treasure.

Treas. Yea, syr, that I haue; his name is called Pleasure;

And seeing you enjoye me now at your will, Right sone, I am sure, he will come you untill.

Luste. Truly of him I would faine haue a sight,
For because that in pleasure I haue marueilous delight.

Inc. Then honestie and profite you may bidde good night.

Luste. What saiest thou?

Inc. I saie he will shortly appeare in sight; I knowe by his singing the same is he,
The misbegotten Orpheus I think that he be.

Enter Pleasure, singing this Song.

O, happy daies, and pleasaunt playes,
Wherein I doe delight, a;
I doe pretende, till my liues ende,
To liue still in such plighte, a.

Inc. Maister Pleasure, I perceive you be of good chere.

Pleas. What, Inclination, old lad, art thou here?

Inc. Yea, syr, and lady Treasure, your sister, also. Plea. Body of me, then unto her I will go.

What, syster, I am glad to mete with you here.

Trea. Welcome unto me, mine owne brother dere. Maister Luste, this is my brother, of whome I tolde; He is pleasaunt and lusty, as you may beholde.

Luste. Gentlemā (I pray you) is your name master Pleasure?

Plea. Yea, syr, and I am brother to lady Treasure. Luste. And are you contented to accompanie me?

Plea. Whereas she is resident, I must nedes be;

Treasure doth Pleasure commonly preceade.

But the one is with the other, they have both so decreed.

Inc. Mary, nowe you are well indeede, maister Luste; This is better, I trowe, than the life of the juste:

They be compelled to possesse contentation,

Having no treasure but trust of saluation.

But my lady your mistris, my mistris I would saye, She worketh, you may see, to keepe you from decaie.

Luste. O, madame! in you is all my delight,

And in your brother, Pleasure, bothe daye and nighte.

The Triall of Treasure, this is indeede,

I perceive that she is a true frende at neede;

For I haue proued her, according as Thales doth saye,

And I perceive that her bewtie cannot decaye.

Trea. Alwayes with you I will be resident, So that your life shall be most excellent.

Plea. Yea, syr, and mc, Pleasure, also you shall have,So that none other thinge there nedeth to craue;I will replenishe your harte with delighte,

And I will be alwayes with Treasure in sighte.
But if you desire to enjoy me at your will,
My sister you must haue in reputation still;
And then, as her treasure is certaine and excellent,
My pleasure shal be both perfect and permanent.
Credite not those, syr, that talke that and this,
Saying, that in us twoo consisteth no bliss.
But let experience your mynde euer moue,
And see if all men us twoo doe not loue.

Inc. Loue, yes, they loue you indeede without doubte,

Which shutteth some of them God's kingdome without. They loue you so well that their God they do hate, As time hath declared to us even of late.

But he that on such thinges his study doth caste,
Shal be sure to be deceived at the last.

Luste. What doest thou saie?

Inc. Of Treasure, forsoth, ye must euer holde fast, For if you should chance to lose lady Treasure, Then farewell in post this gentleman, Pleasure.

Luste. My loue to them both cannot be exprest, And especially my lady, you I loue best.

Treas. If you love me as you doe professe,

Be ye sure you shall wante no kinde of welthiness.

Pleas. And if you have welthiness at your own wyll, Then will I, Pleasure, remayne with you still.

Inc. You are both as constant as snowe in the sun,
Which from snow to water through melting doth run;
But worldly wyse men cannot conceave that,
To honte for suche myse they learne of the cat.

Luste. My lady is amorous, and full of favour.

Inc. I may say, to you she hath an ill-fauoured sayour.

Luste. What saiest thou?

Inc. I saye she is loving, and of gentle behauiour.

Treas. And so I will continue still, be you sure.

Pleas. And I in like case whyle your life doth endure.

Luste. Ah, truste Treasure; ah, pleasaunt Pleasure;

All wealth I possesse nowe without measure;

And seing that the same shall firmely remayne,

To helpe me sing a songe will you take the paine.

Treas. Euen with all my harte, begin whan ye will. Inclin. To it, and I will either helpe or stand still.

[Singe this Songe.

Am I not in blissed case,

Treasure and Pleasure to possesse;
I would not wishe no better place,

If I may still haue welthiness:

And to enjoye in perfect peace,

My lady, lady.

My pleasaunt pleasure shall encrease, My deare lady.

Helene may not compared be,
Nor Creseda that was so bright;
These cannot staine the shine of thee,
Nor yet Minerua of great might.
Thou passest Venus farre away,
Lady, lady;

Loue thee I will, both night and day,

My dere lady.

My mouse, my nobs, and cony sweete,

My hope, and ioye, my whole delight;

Dame nature may fall at thy feete,

And may yeelde to thee her crowne of righte.

I will thy body now embrace,

Lady, lady;

And kisse thy swete and pleasaunt face,

My dere lady.

Enter God's Visitation.

Visit. I am Gods minister, called Visitation,
Which divers and many waies you may understande;
Sometime I bring sicknes; sometime perturbation;
Sometime trouble and misery throughout the lande;
Sometime I signifie God's wrath to be at hande;
Sometime a foreronner of distruction immenent,
But an executer of paine I am at this present.
Thou insipient foole, that hast followed thy luste,
Disdaining the doctrine declared by Sapience,
In Treasure and Pleasure hath bene thy truste,
Which thou thoughtest should remaine cuer in thy presence:

Thou neuer remembrest Thales his sentence,
Who willeth men in all thinges to kepe a measure,
Especially in loue to incertaintie of treasure;
Even nowe I am come from visiting the Just,
Because God beginneth first with his elect;
But he is so associated and comforted with Truste,
That no kinde of impacience his soule can infecte.
Contentation in suche sort his race doth directe,

That he is contented with God's operation,
Comfortably embracing me his visitation;
But nowe I am come to vexe thee with paine,
Whiche makest Treasure thy castell and rocke,
Thou shalt knowe that both she and Pleasure is vaine,
And that the Almighty thou canst not mocke.
Anguishe and griefe into thee I doe caste,
With paine in thy members continually.
Now thou hast paine thy pleasure can not laste,
But I will expelle him incontinently.

Luste. O cockes harte! what a pestilence is this!

Departe from me, I saye, hence, Gods Visitation!

Helpe, helpe, lady Treasure, thou goddes of blis!

At thy handes let me haue some consolation.

Treas. I will remaine with you, be out of doubte.

Inc. Will ye be packing, you il favoured lowte?

Visi. Presently, in dede from him thou shalt not go,
And why? because Gods will hath not determined so;
But in tyme thou, Treasure, shalt be turned to ruste,
And as for Pleasure he shall nowe attende on the Just.

Luste. Gogs woundes! these panges encrease euer more.

Inc. And my littell finger is spitefully sore; You will not beleue how my hele doth ake.

Treas (To Visitation) Nay, let me alone, your part I will take.

(To Lust) Be of good comforte, whyle I here remaine; For pleasure and he shall be parted in twaine.

Visit. It is not mete that he should be participate with Luste,

But rather vertuous, godly and juste.

Luste. Remaine with me still, maister Pleasure, I say.

Pleas. Nay, there is no remedy; I must away; For where God doth punition and paine, I Pleasure in no case can not remaine,

Visit. I could in like case separate thy treasure,
But God doth admonishe thee by losing thy pleasure.

[Go out VISITATION and PLEASURE.

Inc. Fare well in the deuils name olde lousy loute,
That my maister will die I stand in great doubte.

Ho, ho, ho, howe is it with you, maister Luste?

Luste, By the flesh of Goliah yet Treasure is

Luste. By the flesh of Goliah, yet Treasure is my truste,

Though Pleasure be gone, and I live in paine,

I doubte not but Treasure will fetche him againe.

Treas. Yea, that I will; feare not, and with you to remayne.

Inc. The propertie of riche men undoubtedly he . hath,

Whiche thinks with monie to pacific God's wrath, And health at their pleasure to bye and to sell.

Howe is maister Lust, are you anything well?

Luste. Against this Visitation my harte doth rebell. Gogs woundes! shall I still in these panges remaine?

Treas. Feare you not, maister Lust, I will helpe you again,

Treasure in phisicke exceadeth Gallenus:

Tushe! there is no phisition but we must have with

To the ease of your body they will you bringe,
And therefore I praie you despaire in nothing;
Put your trust alwayes in me, lady Treasure,
And I will restore you againe unto pleasure,
For I am the goddes that therein hath power,
Which shall remain perfect unto the last houre.

Inc. Yea, yea, maister Luste, be as mery as you may; Let Treasure be your truste, who so euer say naye.

Enter TYME.

Time. The auncient Grekes have called me Chronos, Whiche in our vulgar tongue signifieth Time; I am entred in presently for a certainly purpose, Euen to turne Treasure to ruste and to slime; And Luste whiche hath long disdained the Juste, Ensuing his filthy and vyle inclination, Shall immediatly be turned into duste, To the example of all the whole congregation; For time bringeth both these matters to passe, As experience hath taught in every age, And you shall beholde the same in this glasse, As a document both profitable and sage. Both Lust and Treasure, come foorth with spede Into the shop of the most mighty God, There shall you be beaten to pouder in dede, And for your abusion fele his scourge and rod. Inc. By Saint Mary! then they have made a wise

I pretende therefore to leape ouer the hatche;
Nay, let me departe, syrs; stop me not, I saye,
For I must remayne, though both these decaye. [Go out.

matche.

Luste. Luste from the beginning frequented hath bene,

And shall I now turne to nothing for thee?

Treas. Treasure in all ages hath bene beloued,

And shall she from the earth by thee be remoued?

Time. You know that all suche thinges are subject to time;

Therefore, me to withstande is no reason nor ryme; For like as all thinges in time their beginning had, So must all thinges in time vanishe and fade.

Luste. Gog's woundes, let Treasure remaine still with me.

Treas. Yea, let me continue still in my dignitie.

Time. Nay, I must cary you into Vulcan's fire,
Where you shall be tried unto the uttermost.
Seing Lust against Lust did daily conspier,
To dust he shall turne for all his great boaste:
Both of you shall haue one rigorous hoaste;
Come therefore with spede, Time cannot tary,
To the ende of your felicitie I will you carie.

Treas. If there be no remedie, then there is no shifte.

Luste. He must nedes go, that is driven by the deuil's drifte;

A! cocke's precious sydes, what fortune is this?

Whether go I nowe, to misery, or blis?

[Go out.

Enter Juste, leading Inclination in his bridle shakled.

Inc. We, he, he, he, he! ware the horse heles, I saye; I would the raine ware lose, that I might run away.

Juste. Nay, sithe thou wilt not spare against me to rebel,

I will not spare, by God's grace, thee to brydell;
All men may see how vile Inclination
Spareth not to put the just to vexation;
Euen so may all men learne of me againe,
Thy beastly desiers to bridle and restraine.

Inc. Mary, syr, I am bridled indeede, as you say,
And shakled, I thinke, for running away;
This snafle is sharp indeed for the nones,
And these shakkels doe chafe my legs to the bones;
And yet will I prouoke, spurne, and pricke,
Rebell, repugne, lashe out and kicke.
We, he! in the jade's name are ye so freshe?
This gere I suppose will plucke downe your fleshe.

Juste. Nay, softe, thou shalt have a little more paine, For somewhat shorter nowe I will tye thy rayne.

Enter TRUST and CONSOLATION.

Truste. Most blissed and happie, I say, are the juste, Euen because they restraine their owne inclination; Thou, therefore, that hast made thy treasure of trust, Beholde, I have brought thee here Consolation.

Juste. Nowe blyssed be God of his mercy and grace, With all my harte and soule I doe you embrace.

Con. Consolation is my name, euen as Truste hath saide.

Which is joye, or comfort, in this life transitorie; He that possesseth me is of nothing afraide,
But hathe a most quiet and peaciable memorie.
For I, through Trust, doth shewe thee the glorie
That God hath prepared for them beforehand,

Wherein at the last they shall perfectly stande. Truste. Receive this crowne of felicitie now at this space,

Which shall be made richer at the celestiall place. Inc. Byr lady, I woulde I had suche a gay croune. Juste. Nowe praysed be God for this riches of renoune;

Felicitie, in this worlde, the juste doth enjoye, Namely, when the deuill can them not anove; The Lorde's worke this is, who be praysed for ever, Who graunte us in his lawes still to persever.

Con. Amen, amen. God gyve us delight In his holy couenant bothe day and night.

Trust. Our matter is almost brought to an ende, Sauing that Inclination in prison must be shut. Juste, carie him forth, that useth to contende, And see that surely enoughe he be put.

Juste. That shall be done shortely, by God's grace. Inc. What, softe, I say, me thinke ye go a shamfull pace;

Was ther ever poore colte thus handled before? Fie upon it, my legs be onreasonably sore; Well, yet I will rebell, yea, and rebell againe, And though a thousand times you shouldest me restraine. [Leade him out.

Enter Time, with a similitude of dust, and rust.

Time. Beholde here, howe Luste is converted to duste:

This is his image, his wealth and prosperitie;

And Treasure in like case is turned to ruste,
Whereof this example sheweth the veritie.
The Triall of Treasure, this is, no doubte,
Let all men take hede that truste in the same,
Considering what thinges, I, Tyme, bringe aboute,
And quenche out the ungodly, their memory and fame.

Enter Juste.

Juste. Why, and is Lust and Treasure converted to this?

Time. Yea, forsothe.

Juste. What foolishe man in them would put truste, If this be the finall end of their blisse?

Muche better I commend the life of the juste.

Con. So it is, no doubte, for they have consolation,
Possessing felicitie even in this place;
I meane through trust and hope of saluation,
Which setteth out to us God's mercy and grace.

Juste. Let all men consider this good erudition, And not to put confidence in Luste nor Treasure; By these two examples receive admonition, And also of the sodaine banishment of Pleasure.

Time. Remember that Time turneth all things about;
Time is the touchstone the juste for to try.
But whereas Lust, and Treasure in time is come to

But whereas Lust and Treasure in time is come to nought,

Just, possessing Trust, remayneth constantly. So that as I, Time, hath reuealed their infamic, So haue I shewed the consolation and gaine That the juste shall receive that justly do raigne.

Con. We will now no longer trouble this audience, Sythe somewhat tedious to you we have bene; Beseching you to beare all thinges with pacience, And remember the examples that you have seene. God graunte them to florishe lively and grene, That some of us the better therefore may be, Amen, amen! I beseche the blyssed Trinitie.

Praie for all estates.

Take hede in tyme, and note this well, Be ruled alwaies by councell.

Learne of the just to leade thy life Being free from envie, wrath, and strife, Presumption, pride, and covetousnesse, With all other ungodlinesse.

Learne of them alwayes to obey
The Lordes preceptes, from daye to daye,
That thou maiest walke as he doth wyll,
And labour thy fonde affectes to kill.

Alwayes subdue thy beastly luste, And in the Lorde put hope and truste; Bridle thine inclination By godly conversation. The counsell of the wyse embrace,
The fooles advise doe then deface.
Whiche fast and praie with good delight,
That Adam may be killed quite.

That joy in us may still encrease,
That God, the Lorde, may give us peace,
That we may be content with Truste
To have our crowne among the just.

Imprinted at London, in Paules Churcheyarde, at the signe of the Lucrece, by Thomas Purfoote.

REPORT OF THE COUNCIL

TO THE

TENTH ANNUAL MEETING OF THE MEMBERS,

May 1st, 1850.

THE Council of the PERCY SOCIETY, in submitting the present Annual Report to the Members, feel satisfaction in congratulating them on the continued prosperity of the Society; for, although the limited funds at their disposal have not permitted them to carry out the objects for which the Society was founded as efficiently as they might desire, it is something that amidst the general depression under which nearly all the publication societies have suffered, the PERCY SOCIETY possesses its number of members undiminished, while its works continue to retain their value in the market.

The Council have much pleasure in informing the Members that the third and concluding volume of Mr. Wright's valuable edition of Chaucer will be ready for delivery in the course of the present month, and will be considered as the issue for May 1st.

The Council have had under their consideration a proposal for printing the complete works of some of the best early English poets and dramatists whose writings have not yet appeared in a collective form, or been but imperfectly edited. They hope to present the members, before long, with the works of William Browne, author of the Britannia's Pastorals, including a third book of that celebrated work, from a manuscript that has not been seen by any of his editors.

The publications during the past year have been,

- A Poem on the times of Edward II. From a manuscript preserved in the Library of St. Peter's College, Cambridge. Edited by the Rev. C. Hardwick.
- Fugitive Tracts and Chap Books. Edited by J. O. Halliwell, Esq., F.R.S.
- 3. The Man in the Moone. From the Unique Copy, printed in 1609, preserved in the Bodleian Library. Edited by the same.
- The Poems of William de Shoreham, vicar of Chart-Sutton, in Kent, in the Reign of Edward II. Edited by Thomas Wright, Esq., M.A., F.S.A., etc.
- The Triall of Treasure. Reprinted from the black letter edition, by Thomas Purfoote, 1567. Edited by J. O. Halliwell, Esq., F.R.S.
- The use of Dice Play. A Manifest Detection of the most vyle and detestable use of Dice Play. Edited by the same.

The following works are preparing for publication, or have been suggested to the Council for that purpose.

- The Works of William Browne, including a third book of the Britannia's Pastorals, from a manuscript hitherto inedited.
- A Selection from the Roxburghe Ballads now in the British Museum. Edited by J. H. Dixon, Esq.
- The Semi-Saxon Poem on St. George, from a manuscript at Cambridge. Edited, with a translation, by the Rev. C. Hardwick, of St. Catharine's Hall.
- 4. A Collection of Poems on the Assassination of the Duke of Buckingham. Edited by F. W. Fairholt, Esq., F.S.A.
- The Minor Poems of Drayton. To be edited by Bolton Corney, Esq.
- The early poem of "John the Gardener," a metrical treatise on Domestic Gardening, in the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Centuries.
- A Collection of Old Ballads, relating to the Processions of the Irish Trades.
- 8. A new edition of Lord Cork's "True Remembrances," with Notes by T. Crofton Croker, Esq.
- The Poems of Hoccleve. To be edited by W. H. Black, Esq.
- 10. An Edition of Heywood's "Dialogue, contayning in effect the number of al the Proverbes in the English Tongue compact in a matter concerning two marriages."
- A Collection of Ballads, in old French and English, relating to Cocaygue. To be edited by T. Wright, Esq.
- A Collection of Jacobite Ballads and Fragments, many of them hitherto unpublished. To be edited by William Jerdan, Esq., M.R.S.L.
- A Collection of Charms, illustrative of English superstitions in former days. From early manuscripts.

- 14. "Rede me and be nott wrothe." A Satire on Cardinal Wolsey, by William Roy.
- 15. History of the Office of Poet Laureate in England, with Notices of the existence of similar offices in Italy and Germany. By James J. Scott, Esq.
- 16. Historical Ballads, in the Scottish Dialect, relating to events in the years 1570, 1571, and 1572; from the copies preserved in the Library of the Society of Antiquaries, London. To be edited by David Laing, Esq., F.S.A. Sc.
- A Continuation of the Collection of Ballads, by J. Payne Collier, Esq., F.S.A.

The Council may be allowed to repeat the invitation made in its former Reports to Members of the Society and others, to suggest new works for consideration. The Society is obliged to all gentlemen who may contribute rare tracts or ballads from private collections; as well as to the different Editors, by whose zeal and gratuitous labours they may be ushered into the world.

T. CROFTON CROKER, Chairman.

J. O. HALLIWELL, Secretary.

REPORT OF THE AUDITORS FOR 1850.

I, ONE of the Auditors appointed by the Percy Society to Examine the Accounts of the Treasurer, from the 30th of April, 1849, to the 30th of April, 1850, certify that the Treasurer has exhibited his Accounts to me, and that I have thoroughly examined the same, together with his Receipts and other Vouchers, and that I find them to be perfectly correct and satisfactory. And I further report that the following is a correct abstract of the Receipts and Expenditure of the Society, during the period to which I have referred:

And I also certify that the Treasurer has reported to me, that there remain unreceived Subscriptions for the past year and Arrears to a considerable amount, the whole of which there is every reason to believe will be received, and it is hoped within a short period. The Auditor urges upon the Members the necessity of paying their Subscriptions as early as convenient in the year, in order that the Council may be able to judge of the funds at its disposal,
