Acorrespondent of the Artist rates us for noticing the first, in this sity, of one of the prominent statesmen of redundry or rather takes us to this for speaking, in the setion of services which gives him claims to publi regard, of his manly opposition to Mr. Clay's agrarian laws. Whence this boly indignation of the correspondent? . Because exciting questions, forecosts; should not be agitated whose the country has just marged from a struggle of pecuer acertaty; and is now tapped-protound peace. We had no direct intention of texing or suscitating the subject, but if we were not to be convenced on account of the peace of the country, then we are free to declare that the corres pondent is not very selleitous in his reasons; for there are stions dis usning even noing in other states, which envalve undre distraction and misshief than the land billwhat though those questions have born decided by large majorius in both branches of congress. What objection can B. have to our selection of this particular bobby? We are not evitish; he is welcome to a ride.

Banking Regulations. In running over our files, for matter, we perceive that the banks of Massachusetts are authorized to discount for twice the amount o their capital respectively. Their emission of notes is restrained by penalty of 34 porcent as longus delayed, for the amount penalty of 34 persent as long as delayed, for the amount of the bill not added with specie on person to not not bill not added with specie on person to not not purpose. Directors are itable is their private capacities, for all discounts over twice the amount of the capital of the bank under their charge, to which they consent; and the amount continued to the private property, for an our construers and engineers are liable in their private property, for an our construers and engineers are liable in their private property, for an our construers and engineers of engineers. stockholders are liable in their private property, for an a nount equal to their stock, for all bills reduces of at the Conclusion of their charter

The New-York banks are allowed to issue notes to twiccand a half the amount of their capitals. In all thenets incorporation, lately passed in New-York, a provision has been inserted, by which they may be aftered, modified, or repealed at the pleasure of the legislature; but this power, we suppose, exists as a check, and will not be exercised either arouterrily or injudiciously.

FROCLAMATION OF OTHO I. TO THE GREEKS.

Called among you by the confidence of the high mediating powers, to whose protection you are indebted for the glorious teamination of a long and destructive war; called, slop, by your free suffers; it, I ascend the throne of Greece as stall the engagements I contracted, on accepting the crewn whom it was edired to me. You dearest interests; acquired a political existence and independence, the fundamental basis of the happiness and prosperity of initious.

Lou have shown yourselves, by your courage, the worthy descendants of our ancestors, whose glory has outlived conturies without less in duties, but till now you have less in the first of your nobic efforts. rescendants of our ancestors, water, but till now you have metrics without locial and maker, but till now you have not provided to the fruit of your nobic efforts. Your fields are uncollevated, your industry scarcely nascult, your comperce, formerly so flourishing, entirely partiyed. It was in vain that the arts and sciences expected stysed. It was m van that the arts and sciences expected to find again their former country at the moment when peace was concluded. Deepotism, which prevailed among you, was followed by anarchy, which inflicts upon you its horrid scenge. What the love of your country, by a noble effort has acquired for you, has been taken from you by discurd and the most soruid egotism.

To put an end to your calamities, to a civil war, which waster your brightness faculties to no purpose; to direct your efforts henceforward to one aim, namely, that of the prosporty, happiness, and glory of your country, which has become more also; to effice, by degrees, under the influence of peace and order, numerous restiges of calamities which lave afflicted your fine commer, endowed by nature with so much profusion; to take into consideration merifices made much profusion; to take into consideration macrifices made and services rendered to the country; to protect by the signs of the laws your persons and property against a histrary rule and ficesofessness; to procure for you, by means of me titutions well matured, solid, and adapted to the state and visings of the nation, the blessings of true liberty, which can substitute the empire of the laws, to accomplish that r. generation of Greece, such is the pleasing but glorious task I have imposed upon invself.

I satisfice to her a delightful and happy existence in the bottom of the beloved country of my ancests s, and impressed with the same sentiments which animented my august father when first among the sovereigns he strotched forth to you his succouring hand during your herors entruggle for your liberty, it is with confidence I address you, and call upon you to combine with fraterial concord your efforts.

Let not your name, to which so many noble deeds have insured immertality, he stained by the errors of base passions, whatever may be the efforts which that great task may require of us. Our success will be an ample reward. may require of us. Our success with that great task may require of us. Our success with be an ample reward for ascession to our religion—to maintain the laws with indesity—to administer impartie! justice to all—and to preserve in fact, by the assistance of God, your independence, your liberies, and your rights. My first cires have been directed to the re-establishment and consolidation of tranquility and order, that every one may enjoy in peace, and without fear, entire security, forgetting the political errors of the gier. I expect with full confidence that every one will be section tulming to the laws, and to those who are charged to execute them. Let every one return to his home. I shall thereby be delivered from the painful necessity of burming, with all the right of the laws, the disturbers of the public peace and reincle. May Divino Providence bless cut suited efforts, and give new fusion to this noble country, the soil of which covers the ashes of the greatest men recorded in history, and the inhabitants of which have recently proved to their cetempories, that the heroism and noble sentiments of their immedial ancestors are not extinguished in their hearts. grinhed in their bearts.

Captain Back, and his associates, arrived at Montreal on Gaptain Back, and his associates, arrived at Montreal on Tuesday last, where he intends to remain until the lakes are sufficiently open to admit of a passage, and in the meantime he will make agrangements for engaging thirteen Canadiana, equal to the important task this expedition requiress. In a note to the editor of the Herald, in reference to the attentions paid him in this city, and the notice we took of his departure hence, he says—"Nothing would be more agreeable to me than to acquiesce with your wishes, and endeavor to express the duen sense of cratification.

and endeavor to express the deep sense of gratification which I shall always feel for the warm and enthusiastic reception that awaited the arrival of my little party in New York. Many were the letters also directed to me from different parts of the union, expressive of the interest which the writers took in the fate of the expedition; nor can I for bear mentioning the very spirited and handsome conduct on the part of the directors of the Hudson river steam boat association, who tendered the Ohio for our conveyance to Albany."

The Horald adds "we have reldom been so ou countrymen and enlightened Europe; they have received those of the United States, wasting them on to their destined object; and shall not we unite, who are almost at the last stage of civilization where they repose, in aiding and encountrying them in their noble pursuit?"
