It is written, My house is the house of prayer] Here we may learne the right vse of Gods house, namely, that it is appointed for prayer and preaching. For prayer, we haue Gods owne precept, It is written, My house is the house of prayer. For preaching, Christs owne practise; daily teaching in the Temple. Those things which Almighty God hath ioyned together, let no man put asunder. Preaching may not thrust out of the Church common prayer, for it is an oratorie: neither may prayer shuffle preaching out of the Church, for it is an auditory. See Church hom. concerning the right vse of the Church, part. 1. Hospinian. de origine templorum, lib. 1. cap. 1. Culman. Marlorat. Zepper. in loc.

The Epistle. 1 COR. 15. 1.

Brethren, as pertaining to the Gospell which I preached vnto, &c.

Saint Paul in this Epistle, doth

Extol his preaching in Extenuate his person,

General, for that it was a Gospell, and such a Gospell, as he receiued of the Lord.
Particular, shewing how Christ died for our sinnes, and rose againe the third day.
As being the last Apostle, borne out of due time.
As being the least Apostle, not worthise to be called an Apostle. o The least in respect of his former sinne, for he persecuted the congregation of God: but the greatest in respect of his present grace, for Gods grace was in him, and with him in such sort, that hee laboured more abundantly then they all.

Brethren, as pertaining to the Gospell] d In the former chapters, he corrected the Corinthians e Anselm Ardens, Aquin.

d Gorran.

Corinthians error, concerning the gifts of grace : but in this present, he doth rectifie their iudgement touching the gifts of glory : prouing at large the resurrection of the dead : which one point of doctrine he calls a Gospell, as containing glad tidings of great ioy; without which, <sup>c</sup> of all men Christians should be most miserable. Or a Gospell, as being a <sup>f</sup> maine pillar of the Gospell, and holy beleeve, & lest they should doubt of this truth, as of a matter indifferent not appertaining necessarily to their saluation. I haue preached, and ye haue receiued this article, so that you shall shew your selues <sup>b</sup> inconstant, and <sup>i</sup> apostates in denying it. <sup>k</sup> Here we may note the degrees of faith, and steps vnto saluation. The first, is preaching of the Gospell; the second, hearing of that which is preached; the third, receiuing of that which is heard; the fourth, continuing in that which is receiued : and then lastly comes saluation, <sup>l</sup> if thou be faithfull vnto death, I will giue thee a crowne of life.

I doe you to wit, after what manner I preached] I deliuer not a new doctrine; <sup>m</sup> but onely repeat that old, which I preached, and your selues accepted and keepe still, except ye beleened in vaine. For I am not a <sup>n</sup> reede shaken with the winde, neither would I haue you <sup>o</sup> carried about with euerie blast of doctrine. <sup>p</sup> That which I taught you by word being present, I now commend vnto you by writing, being absent. <sup>q</sup> Hence then obserue, that we may not loath in any case, but rather embrace the same principles of holy religion often repeated againe and againe by the same Pastor, in the same place.

For first of all] <sup>r</sup> That is, at the first, and chiefly, because Christs * dying for our sinnes, and rising againe for our iustification, are the two great fundamentall arches of faith, on which all other articles are built. <sup>s</sup> If Christ be not raised againe from the dead, your faith is vaine, and you are yet in your sinnes. And therefore these points are to be taught in primis: that is, <sup>t</sup> inter prima credenda & maxima. For this cause, Paul presseth here Christs resurrection by sundrie demonstrations, affirming, that after his death and buriall, he was seene of Cephas, then of the twelue, after that of moe then five hundred brethren at once, to Iames, and all the Apostles, <sup>u</sup> that is, both Apostles and Disciples, and last of all, he was seene of me.

I deliuered vnto you] The word both in Latine and Greeke doth import tradition; and therefore the Rhemists obserue, that the blessed Apostles planted the Church in all truth by tradition, afore they wrote any thing. <sup>x</sup> Answer is made, that Paul deliuered the doctrine of Christs death and resurrection, according to the Scripture, which is not an vnwritten, but a written veritie.

Which I receiued] As in this Epistle before, chap. II. 23. I haue receiued of the Lord, that which I haue deliuered vnto you: So Galat. I. 12. Neither received I it of man, neither was I taught it, but by the Reuelation of Iesus Christ; inspired and called to his Apostleship by the Holy Ghost: Acts 13. 2. <sup>y</sup> His Gospell was not mans doctrine, nor after man: but he preached, how Christ died for our sinnes, agreeing to the Scriptures, and that he was buried, and that he rose againe the third day, according to the Scriptures. Hereby teaching all teachers to <sup>z</sup> speake the words of God. The chiefe places foretelling Christs death, are Exodus 12. 7. Psalme 22. 17. Dan. 9. 26. Zachar. 13. 7. Esay 53. 5. Concerning his resurrection, Ionas 1. 17. & 2. 10. For so Christ himselfe, Matth. 12. 40. and Hosea 6. 2. for so S. Hierome, Rupert, Ribera construe that place, concurring herein with <sup>a</sup> Origene, <sup>b</sup> Ruffin, <sup>c</sup> Augustine, <sup>d</sup> Bernard, Aquin. ad Ephes. cap. 2. lect. 2. & Anselm. in hunc ipsam locum Pauli.

He was seene of me, as of one that was borne out of due time, tanquam abortiuo] A <sup>o</sup> childe may be said abortiuo three waies: as first, being borne out of due time: secondly, if extracted out of his mothers wombe violently: thirdly, if he want his due bigness. In all these respects, our Apostle makes himselfe abortiuo; for he was not new borne <sup>f</sup> so soone as Peter and John, and other of the twelue. Secondly, S. Paul was <sup>g</sup> pulled out of the Iewish synagoge, that he might be made the sonne of Christs Church, as it were, by violence: for in the midt of his <sup>h</sup> breathing out threatnings, and slaughter against the Disciples of the Lord, he

<sup>c</sup> 1 Cor. 15. 9.
<sup>e</sup> Theophylact.
<sup>g</sup> Calvin.
<sup>h</sup> Marlorat.
<sup>i</sup> Ardens.
<sup>k</sup> Sarcerius & Martyr.
<sup>l</sup> Apoc. 2. 10.
<sup>m</sup> Occumen.
<sup>n</sup> Matth. 11. 7.
<sup>o</sup> Ephes. 4. 14.
<sup>p</sup> Ardens.
<sup>q</sup> Sarcerius Martyr.
<sup>r</sup> Theophylact. Gorran. Anselm.
<sup>s</sup> Rom. 4. 25.
<sup>t</sup> 1 Cor. 15. 17.
<sup>u</sup> Aquin.
<sup>v</sup> Caietan.
<sup>x</sup> Dr. Fulke in loc.
<sup>y</sup> Galat. 1. 10.
<sup>z</sup> 1 Pet. 4. 11.
<sup>a</sup> Hom. 5. in Exod.
<sup>b</sup> Exposit. symbol.
<sup>c</sup> Ser 90. de temp.
<sup>d</sup> Ser. 1. de resurrectione. dom.
<sup>e</sup> Gorran. & Aquin.
<sup>f</sup> Extra tempus dominice predicationis, vti Primasius in loc.
<sup>g</sup> Ardens, Anselm. Caietan.
<sup>h</sup> Act. 9. 1.

1 Tim. 1. 13.
2 Rom. 1. 1.

1 Thess. 4.

1 John 1. 8.

2 Ser. 88. de
tempore.

o Caietan.

p Gorran.

q Cap. 11.

r Anselm.

c Martyr.

c John 1. 27.

o Matth. 3. 7.

x Against the reformed
Cath. tit.
Free will.

7 De ciuili lib.
18. cap. 43.

2 Lib. 2. contra Iouinian. in
tom. 2. fol. 86 &
in apolog. ad
Pammac ut citat
Primasius in loc.

4 In loc. omnia transcribit gra-tia Dei, principi-um, medium, finem. Ferus ser. 2.
dom. 22. post
Pentecost. b Apolog. de
arbit. liber.

was received to mercy, <sup>k</sup> put apart to preach the Gospell, as a chosen vessel, to beare Christs name before the Gentiles, and Kings, and the children of Israel, Acts 9. 15. Thirdly, S. Paul thought himselfe abortiue, for that he saith, I am the least Apostle, not worthe to be called an Apostle, because I persecuted the Church of God. He did this ignorantly through vnbeleefe, 1 Tim. 1. 13. Yet he did acknowledge it for a great fault, euen so great, that he deemed himselfe vnworthe to be numbred among the Apostles. How much more then ought we to lament our sinnes after the knowledge of the truth, after we haue received how we ought to walke and please God? <sup>m</sup> If we say, that we haue no sinne, we deceiue our selues, and truth is not in vs. If we acknowledge our sinnes, he is faithfull and iust to forgie vs our sinnes. Agnosce tu, saith <sup>n</sup> Augustine, & Dominus ignoscit: nam quo pacto Deus dignetur ignoscere, quod in se homo dedignatur agnoscere?

But by the grace of God, I am that I am] He doth, as it were, <sup>o</sup> part himselfe, into two: considering his sinnes, he reputes himselfe the least Apostle; yet considering Gods grace which is in him, he saith, I laboured more abundantly then they all. <sup>p</sup> Intensiuè; for he was in iourning often, in perils of waters, in perils of robbers, in sea, in citie, wildernesse. Extensiuè, combred with the care of all the Churches, as he tels them in the next <sup>q</sup> Epistle. So that as <sup>r</sup> one doth glosse the text, Paul was Apostolorum minimus tempore, non dignitate; minimus humilitate, non operatione; minimus in se, magnus in Domino. <sup>t</sup> By this example Pastors are taught so to confesse their owne vnworthinesse, as that they bring not their calling into contempt hereby. John the Baptist acknowledged himselfe, <sup>u</sup> not worthy to vnloose the latchet of his masters shooe: yet he did execute his office stoutly, telling the Pharisees and the Sadduces vnto their face, that they were a <sup>v</sup> generation of Vipers.

Yet not I, but the grace of God which is with me] Doctor <sup>x</sup> Bishop cauil at the Reformed Catholike, for translating this clause, the grace of God in me. Because forsooth, according to true construction, it should be, the grace of God which is with me. S. Hierome (who was in <sup>y</sup> Augustines account, homo doctissimus, & omnium trium linguarum peritus) hath read it both waies; <sup>z</sup> one where, the grace of God which is in me: another where, the grace of God which is with me: lib. 2. aduersus Pelagianos. in tom. 2. fol. 284. So the Church of England may well admit both, as betweene which in effect, there is no difference. But to tell the truth, and so shame the deuill, as well our Bibles as Communion booke translate as he would haue it, The grace of God which is with me. Surely Mast. Bishop should haue deliuered an vtruth in saying, he: but in auowing they corrupt the text, he telleth a ranke lie. For I pray what shall he gaine, or we lose by this interpretation, in the question of free will? albeit Gods grace was working with him, he did not of himselfe worke with Gods grace. For he said afore; by the grace of God I am that I am: Ergo, it was of grace that he did worke with grace. As if he should haue said, I haue laboured more abundantly then they all, yet I can attribute nothing to my selfe herein, but all to grace, because it is the worke of grace in me, whatsoever I haue done in working with grace. Feareing lest the worke should be ascribed to himselfe, saith, <sup>2</sup> Oecumenius, he referreth it to the grace of God. To the same purpose the same Apostle, Rom. 15. 17, 18. I haue whereof I may reioyce in Christ Iesus in those things that pertaine to God: for I dare not speake of any thing which Christ hath not wrought by me. To conclude with <sup>b</sup> Orosius: Headlesse presumptuous man, what doest thou looke at that he saith, with me? marke well that he hath first said, not I. Betwixt not I, and with me, commeth in the iniddest, the grace of God, whose indeed it is both to will, and to worke for the making of a good will, albeit the will be the will of man. Wherefore he was bold to say with me, because he had said, not I. So then the grace of Gods power worketh in the will of man, which hath giuen to it to will the same. Whereupon the conscience of man professeth and saith, not I, but Gods grace giueth him, that he may say with me. The Gospell and Epistle meet here: for the Pharisee trusting in himselfe, did attribute too much vnto his owne merit, saying, I am not as other men are. But the Publican ascribing all to Gods grace, would not lift vp his eyes to heauen, but smote his breast and said, God be mercifull to me a sinner. See Ferus ser. 2. & 4. Dom. 12. post Pentecost.

The Gospell. L V K E 18. 9.

Christ told this parable vnto certaine who trusted in themselues, &c.

IN this Gospell 3. points are chiefly considerab: namely, the parabes Occasion, Christ told this parable to certaine who trusted in themselues, &c.

 Proposition, Two men went vp into the Temple to pray, &c.
 Application, I tell you this man departed home to his house iustified more then the other.

There be 4. kinds of proud men: 1. Arrogant, attributing euery good thing in the mselues vnto themselues, and not vnto God. 2. Presumptuous, acknowledging that God is the giuer of their grace, but vpon their owne merit. 3. Boasters of eminencie, which indeed they haue not. 4. Despisers of other, as affecting to be singular in that they haue. To all these generally, but to the last three more principally Christ told this parable. Bad lines occasion good lawes, he that extracted <sup>d</sup> hony out of a stone, and oyle out of an hard rocke, seeing certaine trusting in themselues, as if they were perfect, and despised others: <sup>e</sup> hereby gained a good hint to commend humilitie. The which is such an excellent vertue, <sup>f</sup> that all other gifts of grace contend for it, as all the Cities of Greece did strue for Homer. Temperance challengeth it for her owne, & because there is arduum and bonum in euery vertue; the one doth require magnanimitie, the other humilitie. <sup>h</sup> Fortitude challengeth it for her owne, for that humilitie doth ouercome prosperitie which assaulteth vs at the right, and aduersitie fighting against vs on the left hand. Iustice challengeth it for her owne, for that humilitie giuerh vnto God, our selues and our neighbour that which is due. Whereupon Christ termed humilitie iustice, Matth. 3. 15. Thus it behoueth vs to fulfill all righteousnesse. <sup>i</sup> That is, humilitie.

Two men went vp into the Temple to pray <sup>k</sup> That they went together was commendable, for where two or three are gathered together in my name, saith <sup>l</sup> Christ, I am in the midst of them. It was also commendable that they went vp into the Temple to pray, for <sup>m</sup> Gods house is the house of prayer. If any come to prate, to plot, or practise villarie, we may speake to them as the King Abasueros once to Haman, <sup>n</sup> Will he force the Queene also before me in mine house? So, will ye lust after a woman, or thirst after any mischief before God in his owne house? Commendable likewise (as <sup>o</sup> some Diuines obserue) that they prayed apud se, not howling and crying as the <sup>p</sup> priests of Baal, but secretly within their heart. In all these respects our text makes the Publican and the Pharisee to be like. So that in the iudgement of the Church it could not well be discerned which of the two was more iustified. But almightie God who foresaw two men in the field, whereof the one should be receiued and the other refused; and two women grinding at the mill, whereof one should be saued, and the other condemned: vnderstood also that two should goe together into the Temple to pray, whereof one was a Pharisee, the other a Publican: one reiected as wholly trusting in himselfe; the other iustified as altogether relying vpon Gods mercy. Both appeared in their intention to be like, but they were found in their deuotion most vnlike. For the Pharisee stood and prayed thus with himselfe: God I thanke thee, that I am not as other men are, extortioners, vnjust, adulterers, or as this Publican: I fast twice in the weeke, I giue tithes of all that I possesse. But the Publican standing as farre off, would not lift vp his eyes to heauen, but smote his breast, saying, God be mercifull to me a sinner.

<sup>e</sup> Gregor. moral. li. 23. cap. 7. idem. Beda, Br. stand, aduers in loc.

<sup>d</sup> Deut. 32. 13.
<sup>o</sup> Pontan.

<sup>f</sup> Dier con 1. i. loc.
<sup>g</sup> Thom. 2. 2. e. quest. 163. art. 1.
<sup>h</sup> Maximus de magistris. lib. de Fortitud.

<sup>i</sup> Glossa ibidem.

<sup>k</sup> Ferus serm. 5. in loc.
<sup>l</sup> Matth. 18. 20
<sup>m</sup> Luke 19. 46.

<sup>n</sup> Ester 7. 8.

<sup>o</sup> Zepher. con. 1. in loc.
<sup>p</sup> 1 King. 18. 27

<sup>q</sup> Matth 24. 40, 41.

<sup>c</sup> Theophylact.
Lyra Carthusian.
<sup>f</sup> Beza maior.
annot. in loc.

The manner of the Pharisees prayer is } Long, in respect of battologie and tautologie.
} Lewd, in respect of his gesture } First, Standing for <sup>r</sup> part.
} } Secondly, standing <sup>f</sup> a part.

The matter is } Commending himselfe } Priuatiuely, shewing what he was } } } not, not an extortioner, &c.
} } } Positiuely, declaring what he was,
} } } I fast twice in the weeke, &c.
} } } } Generally, not as other men.
} } } } More particularly, not as a Publican
} } } } can not as this Publican.

The Pharisees orison was tedious, as containing moe lines then the Publicans prayer had words. First, vsing battologie: for he might haue professed all his perfections in that one word iust; as well as the Publican confessed all his imperfections in this one word sinner. Secondly, trifling in tautologie: for if he were iust, it followed he was not an extortioner; if not an extortioner, then without all question he paid his tithes. Againe, if he fasted often, it argued his continence; and if he were more righteous then all men, it must be granted necessarily that he was more iust then the Publican. But this vaine babler did bumbast his stile with idle repetitions, and filled his periods with vnnecessarie termes, exhibiting his petition not vnto God (as <sup>c</sup> Basil notes) but vnto his owne sweet selfe, <sup>u</sup> to heare himselfe, and to please himselfe; which the text insinuates also, saying, Phariseus stans orans apud se: The Pharisee stood and prayed to himselfe.

<sup>e</sup> Apud Aquin
cat. in loc.
<sup>u</sup> Hugo Card.

<sup>a</sup> Doctor White-gift, answer to the admon.
pag. 63.
<sup>y</sup> October 9.
an 1550, vpon
the Gospell 23.
Sunday after Trinitie.
<sup>z</sup> Martin. sen.
• M<sup>r</sup>. Foxe in the martyrdome of D<sup>r</sup>. Taylor of Hadley.

<sup>b</sup> Tho. Mor. Epigram.

<sup>c</sup> Quom multa & magna my-steria breuiter colleat, sed spiritualiter copiosa. Cyr. serm. de orat. Dominic.
<sup>d</sup> Esay 49. 23.

• Iansen. concord cap. 99.

Some moderne hypocrites herein resemble that old Pharisee, being ouerlong in their prayers, and exceeding tedious in their exercises, euen Narcissus-like much enamoured with their own shadowes, alway curtalling, and often omitting our common seruice to prolong their priuate meditation. <sup>x</sup> Enemies to reading, because they loue so well to heare themselues talking. Vnlike that reuerend Prelate B. Latimer, who preaching at Stamford in the afternoone, <sup>y</sup> when the dayes were short, promised in the beginning of his sermon, that he would be very brieft, because (saith he) the seruice must be done. In Latimers age then our Seruice-booke was not reputed a <sup>z</sup> Sterue-vs booke: but so full of sweet consolation and deuotion, as that the blessed Martyr of Christ, <sup>a</sup> D<sup>r</sup>. Rowland Taylor, commended it vnto his deare wife, as the last token of his loue. Then the Collects and other parts of our seruice were receiued in the Church, before the distempered and ill digested ex tempore phantasies of Anabaptistickall spirits. I know prayers at one time may be more long then at another, and, as occasion is offered, they may well and fitly be conceiued vpon the sudden also: but yet when we come to the Temple to pray, our meditations should be well composed, that our minde may be the better disposed, and it is fit our speech should be little, that our deuotion may be great: for that which Epicurus said of griefe, may be verified of prayer:

<sup>b</sup> Si longa est, lenis est; si grauis est, breuis est.

This lesson our Master Christ taught, Matth. 6. forbidding in our prayers all battologie of the Gentiles, and polologie of the Scribes, inioyning vs to begge <sup>c</sup> many things in a few words; otherwise we shall not pray to God, but prate to our selues, as the Pharisee did here.

The Pharisee stood and prayed thus with himselfe: ] The Publican prayed also standing, but a farre off, not daring to lift up his eyes to heauen: whereas the proud Pharisee not anser is said to stand, without kneeling, or other kinde of humbling himselfe before God. Contrary to that of the <sup>d</sup> Prophet, They shall worship thee with their faces toward the earth, and licke up the dust of thy feet. So that this pert carriage vpon his tiptoes <sup>e</sup> argued his arrogant and irreuerent behaviour in prayer. Againe, learned Beza from the words orans apud se, notes his affected singularitie, sequestering himselfe from the Publican, and standing apart like an I perse I; very well expressed in the French translation, se tenant a part soy. Both of them, as it is in the Text, went together into the Temple; but when they came there, the Pharisee like himselfe tooke the chiefe roome, leauing the poore Publican à longè, in the lowest seat farre behinde him, as it were in the belfrie.

<sup>f</sup> Matth. 23.6.

Our moderne hypocrites also retaine these pharisaicall gestures as their owne proper inheritance; for some will neuer kneele in the Temple, but at the Creed when as they should stand: and other either stand or sit at the Communion when as they should kneele. To bend our knees at the Lords table, saith one, is artolatria, worshipping of the bread; but I feare that intolent cariage of such spirits when they should be most humble, is rather autolatria, worshipping of themselves. Againe, some stand apart in the Temple, like this Pharisee, professing themselves Separatists. As the Brownists refuse to communicate with vs Publicans, and other Nouelists haue consulted in their Conuenticles, whether it be fit for them to frequent the sermons of conformable Preachers. And all their reason is, because such are Publicans as it were, that is, Cæsars officers, Parliament-diuins, time-serverers, or Protestants of state: contradicting herin & Christs owne canon, inioyning vs not only to heare, but also to doe whatsoeuer wicked Preachers shall deliuer out of Gods booke sitting in Moses chaire. So that if any Diuine be so bad as thou doest conceiue; yet <sup>h</sup> tolle quod tuum est & uade, take that which is thine owne and goe thy way. Si malè uiuat suum est, si bene dicat tuum est.

<sup>g</sup> Matth. 23.3.

<sup>b</sup> Matth. 20.14

God I thanke thee] A good Priest begins his deuotion with a confession of finnes, and ends with a thanksgiuing for grace. But this Pharisee quite contrary begins his prayer with ago gratias, and in stead of accusing himselfe condemneth his neighbours, I am not as other men are, extortioners, vniust, &c.

<sup>i</sup> Syluester apud Magna in loc.

<sup>k</sup> Here then obserue the Pharisees pride, in respect of }	God: I thanke thee. His neighbour: I am not as other men are. Himselfe: I fast twice in the weeke, I giue tythe of all that I possesse.

---	--

<sup>k</sup> Pagninol. part. 1. l. i. in loc.

Hee did pretend deuotion in comming vp into the Temple, but when hee was come thither, he neither prayed for himselfe, nor yet for other. If for himselfe, then he would either haue cried mercy for some fault, or else craued it for some fauour. For the poore begger sheweth his rags, and the sick patient his wounds, and the humble petitioner his grieuances, and all neede Christ: Qui seipsum excipit, seipsum decipit. But this proud begger (as you see) shewes not vulnera, but munera: not his ragges, but his robes; not his wounds, but his worth; not his misery, but his brauery; reputing himselfe so iust, that (as <sup>l</sup> Augustine obserues) he neither said, Forgiue vs our trespasses, as hauing no sinne: nor, Thy Kingdome come, as abounding already with all grace. Neither did he pray for others, in that he censurcth all other absent, and condemnes the Publican present: making himselfe rather a Iudge then an aduocate. Non est ista supplicatio (saith <sup>m</sup> one sweetly) sed superlatio: Thanking God more, for that other were bad, then for that himselfe was good. God I thanke thee that I am not as other men are, extortioners, &c.

<sup>l</sup> Hm. 36. de uerbis Dom secundum Luc.

<sup>m</sup> Simonde Cassia in loc.

The moderne hypocrites oft vse the same phrase, God I thanke thee, Signifying hereby, that they beleeeue there is a God against Atheists, and but one God against the Gentiles, and that this one God onely must be worshipped against the Papiests, adoring creatures in stead of the Creator; and against the carnall Gospeller, who doth aseribe thanks vnto men, which are proper and due to God alone. If you shall at any time conferre vpon them a benefit, they will be so religious in thanking God, as that they will vually forget to be gratefull vnto you. They will say, that it was Gods pleasure, your compassion should not be shut vp from them, it was his good will, not your free will; for you cannot of your selues thinke so much as a good thought, much lesse performe so good a deed. And therefore though haply thou shouldest suffer them vnder a <sup>n</sup> colour of long praying, to deuoure thy whole estate, yet they would neuer thanke you, but thanke God that that they be not as you; not as this Publican. For they sowre all all their speeces, and most of their prayers ordinarily with this leaven of the Pharisees, insinuating alway Satan-like the faults of the brethren, as that they be carnall Gospellers, men of the world, children of darknesse, sonnes of the deuill. In particular, aggrauating to the common people, the faults of the Clergie; terming them ° enemies of the truth, atheists, haters of good men, soule-murtherers, antichristian chapmen, halting neutrals, hogs, dogs, wolues, foxes, proffers of Antichrist: but euermore concluding their owne worth and praise, fling themselues the seruants and deere children of God, holy brethren, the sanctified people, Christians and good men, ut ierosol., such as deliuer only the sinceritie of the Gospell, and pure milke of the word. In euerie point conformable to this patterne, God I thanke thee, that I am not as other men are, &c.

<sup>n</sup> Luk. 20.47.

Extortioners, vniust, adulterers] It is apparant by his owne euidence that he was all these. First, he was an extortioner, in relying vpon his owne merits, and robbing God of his glory, which he P will not giue to another. Secondly, most vniust, in despising other, and condemning the Publican rashly without any prooffe, witnesse, or forme of law: contrary to right and reason, playing two parts, Accuser and Iudge. Thirdly, what was he but an adulterer, in being so wedded vnto the world, and enamoured with popular applaude? So ¶ S. Iames teacheth, O yee adulterers, and adulteresses, know yee not that the amitie of the world is the enmitie of God? And therefore this Pharisee did verbis proferre virtutem, & factis destruere veritatem. Euen as a mill that doth clacke much, and grinde little.

Iesuits and other hypocrites are great mountbankes of their owne vertue, thanking God that they be not as other are, but men of a better conuersation, and more pure note; saying nothing but truth, and doing nothing but right; that as Augustine writes of Faustus the Manichee: Si hoc esset iustum esse, iustificare seipsum: if this were to be iust to iustifie themselves, assuredly this generation of Vipers had long since flowne vp into heauen; but examine their actions, and you shall finde that they trauell with mischief, conceiue sorrow, and bring forth vngodlinesse. Their throat is an open sepulchre, they flatter with their tongue, there is no faithfulness in their mouth, their inward parts are very wickednesse, as Dauid in Psal. 5. The Iesuits especially suppose that the u see simple of all mens acts, words, thoughts, are in their gift to raise and let the price of all at their deuotion. All their u entia be transcendentia; sance peeres, in all things u absolute superlatiues, euen their z sots are Salomons, their black-birds are swannes, and their silents are politicks: in a word, the a offall of this old Pharisee, who was his owne trumpeter and crier, I am not as other men are, &c.

I fast twice in the weeke, I giue tithes of all that I possesse] b Aquin hath obserued truly, that howsoeuer all sinne may be said to be in the deuill, secundum reatum; yet only pride and enue is in him secundum affectum. He is guiltie of other sins, as tempting men to euery sin: but pride is his own proper fault, his darling, his Rimmon, and (as Bernard speakes) his charactier. It was the first sin that euer was in the world, and it shall be the last; for as other infirmities in vs decrease, secret pride doth increase. That the Pharisee went vp into the Temple to pray, that he was not an extortioner, vniust, adulterer, that he fasted and paid his tithes duly, were things exceeding commendable: but his pride like a Coloquintida, spoiled the whole pot of pottage. c Mille virtutibus affluens propter arrogantiam felicitatem amisit. As God resembling a Bee gathered honie out of ranke weeds, extracting from the sinnes of the Publican humilitie, which is a mother vertue: so the deuill as a spider gathering poison out of sweet flowers, euen of the Pharisees vertue, begat insolent pride, which is a monopol of mischief. f As an hen doth cackle, when she laicth an egge, by which it is instantly taken away from her: in like manner, as soone as the proud man performes any good deed, he will presently boast of it; I fast twice in the weeke, I giue tithes of all that I possesse: being (as s one said wittily) proditor virtutis: A traytor to himselfe. This Pharisee brought forth a great many of egges (as it should secue) but he could o See dangerous positions and proceedings, vnder pretence of reformation. lib. 2. cap. 11, 12, 13.

P Esay 29 8.

¶ Cap 4 4.

r Cyprian ser. de mortalitate.

f Contra Faust. de a. lib. 5. cap. 7

¶ Psal 7 15.

a ¶ w. for quodlibet. 1. art. 5.

b Ibidem art. 6.

¶ Quodlibet 3. art. 7.

z Idem in his Sparing Discourse.

a Quodlibet 5. art. 1.

b Part 1. quest. 63. art. 2.

c Tract. de passione Dom. cap. 19.

d 2 Kings 4. 39

e Chrysost. in Mat Hom. 65.

f Bonauent. diet salut. cap. 2.

g Pet. Rauennas.

not carrie them vnto a good market, becaufe of his cackling: Vna superbia destruit omnia. <sup>h</sup> Fœlix infelens infœlix.

The Publican standing a farre off would not lift vp his eies to heauen, but smote his breast, saying, God be mercifull to me a sinner ] <sup>i</sup> Simon the Sorcerer hold, that himselfe was some great man: <sup>k</sup> Iulian the blasphemous Apostata conceiued strongly, that himselfe was Alexander the great; and in our age, there was a schismaticke, who said, himselfe was Elias the Prophct: euen so many which are in a damnable state, professe themselues exceeding iust, in comparison of other. On the contrary, the fairest Saints haue thought themselues the foulest sinners, as S. Paul, that he was not worthie to be called an Apostle: S. Augustine, that he was not worthie to be called a Bishop: the prodigall childe, that he was not worthie to be called a sonne: the woman of Canaan, that she was not worthie to be reputed a childe: the blessed martyrs in their confessions euermore, that they were not worthy to be seruants vnto God, and witnesses of his truth: and the Publican here, though he were most deare to God, yet he durst not come neere to God, he stood a farre off, and would not lift vp his eies to heauen, <sup>l</sup> that is, to God in heauen, as Luke 15. 18. Father, I haue sinned against heauen and before thee, &c.

The Publicans hand, like the bellowes, did blow the fire of contrition to his heart; his heart like a limbecke, distilled the soueraigne water of repentance into his eies; his eies as a full cesterne being vnable to looke vpward, returne the streame backe againe to the heart; that ouercharged, driues the floud of his affection to his tongue; his tongue like Aarons Censer conuaies the sweet perfume of this pretious distillation into the presence of God himselfe, saying, O God be mercifull to me, &c. The which heauie song or melancholike dittie consists of three parts: a Treble, which is exceeding high, O God; a Meane, be mercifull; a Basse, to me a sinner. <sup>m</sup> Oravit paucis, sed affectu multo: Couching much deuotion in a little roome. For all the vertues of a true penitent, (as namely, <sup>n</sup> confession, contrition, faith, amendment) are found in this one paterne. For confession and contrition: his hand smote his breast, and his heart moued his tongue to sing the basse, to me a sinner. In which action, these three did concurre, the heart, hand, sound: the heart signifying he had thought amisse: the hand signifying he had done amisse: the sound signifying he had said something amisse. Concerning faith, he relied <sup>o</sup> altogether vpon grace, first, inploring, O God be mercifull: then applying the mercies of God in Christ, to me a sinner. And as for amendment of life; the text saith, he went home iustified more then his fellow. Now then as Christ to the Lawyer, Luke 10. 37. so I to you, goe and doe thou likewise. Thou art but a man; and therefore call vpon God: a sinfull man; and therefore pray to thy mercifull God. It is no shame to be sorrowfull, crie, O God. It is no discredit to beg grace, pray him to be mercifull. It is no reproach at all to confesse thy fault, tell him thou art a sinner. If thy sinne past vtterly displease thee, thy present sinne shall neuer hurt thee, saith <sup>p</sup> Augustine. Foure words of this Publican, yea, 9 three syllables of Dauid, <sup>r</sup> peccauit, proceeding from a liuely faith, and a contrite soule, obtained pardon for all his offences: in so much, as <sup>s</sup> Hierome writes excellently: Qui prius me docuerit virtutibus suis quo modo stans non caderem, docuit per penitentiam quo modo cadens resurgerem. Our heauenly Father is so pitifull toward his <sup>t</sup> lost childe returning home, <sup>u</sup> that he will not haue patience to stay till his sonne doth open the parlour doore, but he will runne and meet him vpon the way, falling on his necke, and kissing him. Albeit thou be so great a sinner as a Publican, yet if thou smite thy breast, and crie, God be mercifull to me a sinner; if thou shalt heartily repent, and vnfaignedly belecue, the Lord will put all thy wickednesse out of his remembrance, and thou shalt go home to the house of thy conscience iustified.

I tell you this man departed home to his house iustified more then the other ] You haue heard the Pharisees pride and the Publicans humilitie: now you shall heare Christs iudgement of both. He did condemne the Pharisee who iustified himself, but <sup>h</sup> Reusner, in Symbol.

<sup>i</sup> Acts 8. 9.

<sup>k</sup> Pet. Martinius prefat in misopog Iuliani.

<sup>l</sup> Maldonat, in loc. Idem. Martorat in Luc. 15. 18.

<sup>m</sup> Bucer.

<sup>n</sup> Church hom. of repent. part. 2. & 7 yeads prolog. in Barth.

<sup>o</sup> Sarceius, Calvin, Culman in loc.

<sup>p</sup> Zoares tract. 6. in Matth.

<sup>q</sup> Ambros. exhort. ad penit. agenda.

<sup>r</sup> 2 Sam 12. 23

<sup>s</sup> Epitaph. Fabul a lOccurum.

<sup>t</sup> Luke 15.

<sup>u</sup> Hierou poem. ccc. in Abdiam.

* Augustin.

† Euthym. in loc.

* *Melanibon.
Culman.
Heming.
Zepper.*

* *Serm. 36. de
verbis Dom.
secundum Lnc.*

but iustifie the Publican who condemned himselfe. The Pharisee did exalt himselfe in respect of his vertue, but the Publican humbled himselfe for his sinne. * Videte fratres, magis placuit humilitas in malis factis, quam superbia in bonis factis. Of the two, the Publican renouncing his owne merits, and laying hold on Gods mercie, was iustified more then the other. † That is, and not the other.

Here then our <sup>2</sup> moderne Diuines obserue that the Pharisee trusting in himselfe that he was perfect, is a type of all Iustitaries, hoping to be faued by the righteousness, of the Law: and that the Publican confessing his finnes and vnworthinesse, is a type of all true Christians, holding iustification only by faith in Christ, apprehending his merits, and making his righteousness our righteousness. For application then of Christs application, I say with * Augustine; Audisti sententiam, caue superbiaris. And pray with the Church:

O God, which declarest thy Almighty power, most chiefly in shewing mercy and pitie, giue vnto vs abundantly thy grace, that we running to thy promises, may be made partakers of thy heauenly treasure, through Iesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

F I N I S.

Walafridus Strabo lib. de rebus Ecclesiasticis.

Si quid in hoc (lector) placet, assignare memento id Domino: quicquid displicet, hocce mihi.

THE TWELFTH SUNDAY AFTER TRINITY.

The Epistle. 2. COR. 3. 4.

Such trust haue we through Christ to God-ward; not that we are sufficient of our selues, &c.

ALL holy Scripiture ioyntly considered is called not vnfitly Gods <sup>a</sup> Testament: as being his reuealed <sup>b</sup> will, and as it were <sup>c</sup> written Indenture, containing his covenants and conueyance concerning our <sup>d</sup> eternall inheritance which is aboue. But the Gospell apart considered, is termed in this Text, a new Testament: as neuer waxing old, <sup>e</sup> but alway continuing new, though it were from the beginning: Iesus Christ yesterday, and to day, the same also for euer, Heb. 13 8.

And now, for that it is imprinted after a new manner otherwise than the letter of the Law: written not with inke, but with the Spirit of the liuing God; not in tables of stone, but in the fleshy tables of the heart. And new, for that it maketh vs new creatures in Christ, 2. Cor. 5. 17. According to that of Augustine; Dicitur nouum propter nouitatem spiritus, qua hominem nouum sanat a vicio vetustatis: It is new, for that it teacheth vs how to cast off the old man, and to put on the new man, Ephes. 4. 22. 24. S. Paul therefore commends here the worthie function of such as are made able to minister the new Testament two wayes:

1. Positiuely, Such trust haue we through Christ to God-ward, &c.

2. Comparatiuely, preferring the preaching of the Gospell before the ministerie of the Law, in respect of Grace: For the letter killeth, but the spirit giueth life; the Law being the ministrator of condemnation, but the Gospell the ministrator of righteousness.

Glorie: If the ministrator of death through the letters figured in stones was glorious, &c. how shall not the ministrator of the spirit be much more glorious?

Such trust] Our Apostle did esteeme the Corinthians his <sup>g</sup> glorie, the <sup>h</sup> seale of his Apostleship, and as it were the verie letters testimoniall of his sinceritie. For thus he speaks in this present Chapter at the second verse, Ye are our epistle.

<sup>i</sup> Such as are false teachers, need epistles of recommendation vnto you, and letters of recommendation from you: but I, <sup>k</sup> Siluanus and Timothie desire not the like, for that the Church of Corinth is our certificate, your selues are our walking passport:

<sup>a</sup> Optatus lib. 5. aduers. Parmenian.
<sup>b</sup> Idem August. in Psal. 21. expo.
<sup>c</sup> Matth. 6. 10.
<sup>d</sup> Auctens in loc.
<sup>e</sup> Heb. 9. 15.
<sup>f</sup> Deering Lect. 1. Heber.

<sup>g</sup> De spirit. & lit. Cap 20.
<sup>h</sup> Idem contra duas epist. Pelagian. lib. 3. cap. 4. & in Psal. 88. Vide rationes alias apud Arcinum. Prolegom. in Maub.

<sup>i</sup> 2. Cor. 1. 14.
<sup>j</sup> 1. Cor. 9. 2.
<sup>k</sup> Eras. Paraph. a.
<sup>l</sup> Caluin.
<sup>m</sup> Hieron. piff. ad Furiam.

<sup>1</sup> Hieron. epist. ad Furiam.
<sup>2</sup> Occumen in
loc
<sup>3</sup> Theophylact.
Anselm.
Aquín.
<sup>4</sup> Hieron. &
Primasius.
<sup>5</sup> Caietan.

<sup>6</sup> Cap 2. ver. 2.
<sup>7</sup> English.
Gloss.
<sup>8</sup> Aquín.
<sup>9</sup> Matth. 23. 8.
<sup>10</sup> 1. Cor. 9. 1.
<sup>11</sup> 1. Cor. 4. 1.
<sup>12</sup> Heb. 8. 10.
<sup>13</sup> 1. Cor. 3. 3.
<sup>14</sup> Ephel. 4. 30.
<sup>15</sup> Exod. 31. 18.
<sup>16</sup> Cap 36. 26.

<sup>17</sup> Theophylact.

<sup>18</sup> Marlorat.
<sup>19</sup> Anselm.

<sup>20</sup> Ephel. 6. 12.
<sup>21</sup> Psal. 146. 2.

<sup>22</sup> See Tertara Torti pag 361.
<sup>23</sup> 2. Cor. 11. 4.
Matth. 24. 24.

<sup>24</sup> B. of Lin. answer to a name
lesse Cath. pag.
vlt.
<sup>25</sup> Rom. 1. 16.

<sup>26</sup> 2. Cor. 1. 21.

passport: Detrimentum pecoris ignominia pastoris: It is the Pastors infamie when the people grow worse, but his<sup>m</sup> honour when they be rich in the graces of Christ, and in all kinde of knowledge, 1. Cor. 1. 5. Whereas therefore your faith and holy conuersion is renewed in all the world, ye be to vs<sup>n</sup> in stead of an Epistle: yea better then any letters commendatorie; for they runne in and out of our eyes and eares, here and there: but ye are written in our heart, that is, in our<sup>o</sup> consciences, hauing this testimonie, not as other about vs only, but in vs also, residing euer in our bosomes. And whereas<sup>p</sup> other Epistles in Hebrew, Greeke, Latine, are read of none but such as vnderstand their seuerall Idiome; this Epistle is vnderstood and read of all men. It is so plaine, that (as the Prophet <sup>9</sup> Abacuk speakes) he may runne that readeth it: in that ye are manifest to be the Epistle of Christ ministred by vs, <sup>r</sup> as Gods pen, and written not with inke, but with the Spirit of the liuing God, not in tables of stone, but in the fleshy tables of the heart. Ye are Christs Epistle primarily, <sup>r</sup> principaliter & authoritatiue, for<sup>c</sup> one is our Doctor, and that Doctor is Christ: but our Epistle, and<sup>u</sup> worke secondarily, being instructed by vs<sup>x</sup> as the Ministers of Christ, and disposers of the secrets of God. He<sup>y</sup> writes in you, but it is through our<sup>z</sup> ministerie, not as the false Apostles imperfectly with inke, but with the Spirit of the liuing God, whereby you that are his Epistle are<sup>a</sup> sealed vnto the day of redemption. He writes his grace, not as the Law was written in tables of<sup>b</sup> stone: but in fleshy tables of the heart. According to his word vttered by the mouth of<sup>c</sup> Ezechiel: I will take away the stonie heart out of your bodis, and I will giue you an heart of flesh. That is, (as Anselmus vpon this place notes) a good vnderstanding to know, and a ready will to keepe my Comandements. <sup>d</sup> As farre then as Gods Spirit doth excell inke, and mans heart a stone; so farre the Gospell excels the Law.

Now lest our Apostle should seeme to commend his ministerie too much, he<sup>e</sup> corrects himselfe thus in my Text: such trust haue we through Christ to Godward, &c. <sup>f</sup> As if he should lay, we speake confidently that ye are Christs Epistle, and our Epistle, not arrogating this excellencie to our selues, as if we were sufficient of our selues: but ascribing all the glorie to God, from whom as the fountaine, through Christ, as the conduit pipe, commeth euerie good and perfect gift. If we be able vnto any thing, the same commeth of God, which hath made vs able to minister the new Testament. And therefore we trust not in the<sup>g</sup> princes of darknesse, <sup>h</sup> nor in any chiide of man: but our hope, yea helpe standeth in the name of the Lord, which hath made heauen and earth, Psal. 121. 2. all our trust is in God through Christ.

The Papists attribute too much vnto the Priests office; carnall Gospellers and worldly Politicians ascribe too little. The Pope forsooth is esteemed of his Parasites a<sup>i</sup> Vice-god, <sup>k</sup> another Christ, assuredly they might say better an Antichrist. Nay the Papists hold their vnderling masse-priest such an omnipotent creature, that whereas in the sacrament of Order (as they call it) Almighty God makes the Priest: in the sacrament of their Altar horresco referens, the Priest (say they) makes Almighty God, as it were by magicall Art translating Cælum in cœnam, pulling heauen out of heauen, and imprisoning Christs bodie with all his dimenstions in a little box.

Statifying worldlings on the contrarie thinke that Preachers of the word are nothing else but as a post, on which Iniunctions of the King, and mandates of the Court-Christian are fixed: Ornaments and Ministers of State, not instruments and messengers of God; and so<sup>l</sup> Religion turned into Statisme proves Atheisme. We must therefore goe betweene both, Atheists on the left hand, and Papists on the right, medium tenere beati. We must acknowledge the Gospels ministerie to be<sup>m</sup> the power of God vnto saluation. He could otherwise regenerate men, as being able out of stones to raise vp children vnto himselfe, Mat. 3. 19. but it pleaseth him (as our Apostle teacheth<sup>n</sup> elsew here) by the foolishnesse of preaching to saue them that beleene. God hath reconciled vs vnto himselfe by Iesus Christ, and hath committed vnto his Apostles, and their successours his faithfull Pastours, Pastors, the word and ministerie of reconciliation, and they being appointed Ambassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech you through them, intreat you in Christs stead that you be reconciled to God, 2. Cor. 5. 18, 19, 20.

If this one lesson onely were well vnderstood and learned in England, namely, that the ° tongue of the preachers is the pen of a readie writer, whereby men are made Christs Epistle, written not with inke, but with the spirit of the liuing God, and so sealed vp vnto the day of redemption; we should not need to giue thanks at our meales, as that odde Priest in old time:

* *Deo gratias,
quod nos satias
bonis rusticorum
contra voluntatem eorum, Amen.*

For all sutes of vnkindnesse against our persons, and all quarrels about tithes and other duties incident to our place, would instantly surcease. Then the fect of such as bring glad tiding of peace would be reputed beautifull, and all good people in vnfained zeale turne ¶ Galathians, if it were possible, willing to pull out their eyes, and to giue them for their Pastors good.

This also may teach all Cleargie men to be faithfull and painefull in their calling, that they likewise may finde such confidence towards God, as Paul had, even letters testimoniall of their indefatigable diligence written in their owne consciences. It is an easie matter in a corrupt age to be well beneficed, aut errore hominis, aut cre Simonis; as one wittily: but to play the part of a good Pastor, (as ¶ Gregorie the Great said) is ars artium, & scientia scientiarum. A Prelate therefore must not lay a Bishopricke vnder his feet, making one dignitie a step vnto another: but he must lay it vpon his shoulders, and remember that as Bishops enioy honour by their place, so they sustaine a burthen in their office.

Not that we are sufficient of our selues to thinke any thing as of our selues: but if we be able to doe any thing, the same cometh of God. ] A pregnant Text against the ¶ Pelagians, affirming that our good actions and cogitations proceed onely from free-will, and not from Gods speciall grace. Secondly, this maketh against the Semipelagians, I meane the Papiſts, holding that man hath a power of free-will in his owne nature, which being stirred and helped, can and doth of it selfe co-operate with grace. So writes* Andradius plainly: The motion of free-will, and applying of it selfe to righteousnesse, doth no more depend vpon the graces of God, then the fires burning of the wood doth depend vpon the power of God: Intimating that our will adioyneth it selfe vnto Gods grace, not by grace, but as carried thercto by the force of nature. we teach on the contrary, that freedome of the will to turne to God, and to worke with him, is no power of nature, but the worke of grace. For our selues are not sufficient as of our selues to thinke ¶ much lesse to speake, least of all to doe that which is good. ¶ Indeed we will, but it is God that worketh in vs the will; we worke, but it is God that worketh in vs to worke, according to his good pleasure. Thus it behoueth vs to beleue, thus also to speake, that God in our humble confession and submission may haue the whole. ¶ For we liue in more safetie if we giue all vnto God, rather then if we commit our selues partly to our selues, and partly to God. Our selues are not sufficient to thinke any good, ¶ either in part or in whole. We cannot say that it is ¶ ours in part, and Gods in part, seeing of him, and through him, and for him are all things: ¶ Et magna & media & minima. See S. Augustine de bono perseuerant. cap. 13. & contra duas epist. Pelagian. lib. 4. cap. 6. epist. 46. & 47. de gratia & libero arbitrio ad Valentin. & ad eundem de corrept. & gratia, cap. 1. 2. 3. 8. 14. Calvin. Instit lib. 2. cap. 3. 4. 5. B. Jewel Defens. Apolog. part. 1. c. 2. diuis. 3. Dr. Morton appeale. l. 1. c. 2. §. 10. Perkins reformed Cath. iii. Free-will: & Dr. Abbat ibidem pag. 100. 101.

Thirdly, this may serue to confute the ¶ Nouelists inueighing against our Communion Booke, for that in the Collect appointed to be read this day wee pray thus: Almightie and cuerlasting God, which art wont to giue more then wee desire,

° Psal. 45. 2.

* Casparus. Fenckius, Orat. Paneg. 2. pag. 19.

¶ Rom. 10. 15.

¶ Galat. 4. 15.

¶ Pastoral. part. 1. cap. 2.

¶ Aquin. Anselm. Rhem. in loc. ¶ Aug. Heres. 88. & retract. lib. 1. cap. 9. ¶ Pelican. apud Marlorat. D. Fulk. Kilius in loc. ¶ Orthodox. explicat. lib. 4. ¶ Primatius. ¶ Aug. de bono perse. §. 13.

¶ Idem ubi sup. cap. 6. ¶ Ardens in loc. ¶ Chrysoſt. in 2. Cor. Hom. 6. ¶ Aug. retract. lib. 1. cap. 9.

° T. C. lib. 1. pag. 136.

desire, or deserue: powre downe vpon vs the abundance of thy mercie, forging vs those things whereof our conscience is afraid, and giuing vnto vs that, that our prayer dare not presume to aske, through Iesus Christ our Lord. And in another Collect after the Offertorie: Those things which for our vnworthinesse we dare not aske, vouchsafe to giue vs for the worthinesse of thy Sonne Iesus Christ our Lord. These passages (as they say, who dare say any thing) carrie with them a note of the Popish seruile feare and sauour not of that confidence and reuerent familiaritie, that the children of God haue through Christ with their heauenly Father. <sup>f</sup> Answer is made, that acknowledging of our vnworthinesse is the ground of humilitie, and that humilitie is a principall ornament of Prayer, and in a suiter such a commendable vertue, <sup>g</sup> that the testification thereof argueth a sound apprehension of his supereminent glorie before whom we stand, and putteth also into his hands a kinde of bond or pledge for the securitie against our vnthankfulnessse: the verie naturall root whereof is alwayes either ignorance; dissimulation, or pride. Ignorance, when we know not the Author from whom our good comes: dissimulation, when our hands are more open then our eyes vpon that we receiue: pride, when we thinke our selues worthy of that, which vnderferued fauour and meere grace bestoweth. And therefore to abate such vaine imaginations in our prayer, with the true conceit of vnworthinesse, is rather to preuent, then commit a fault; and it fauoureth not of any basenesse or seruile feare; but rather of great trust in Gods mercie: for those things which we for our vnworthinesse dare not aske, we desire that God for the worthinesse of his Sonne, would notwithstanding vouchsafe to grant, The knowledge of our vnworthinesse is not without faith in the merits of Christ; with that true feare caused by the one, there is coupled true boldnesse and encouragement arising from the other. Euen our verie silence, which our vnworthinesse putteth vs vnto, doth it selfe make request for vs, and that in great confidence: for albeit looking inward we are stricken dumbe, yet looking vpward we speake and preuaile. So the <sup>h</sup> publican praying in the Temple, would not come nigh, nor lift up his eyes; and yet you know what Christ pronounced of him, and what a generall rule he grounded vpon that particular example, to wit, Euery man that exalteth himselfe shall be brought low, and he that humbleth himselfe shall be exalted. So the <sup>i</sup> prodigall childe said to his owne father, and that after he was receiued into fauour, euen after his father had embraced and kissed him, I am no more worthy to be called thy sonne. So <sup>j</sup> S. Paul writes here, We are not sufficient of our selues to thinke any thing as of our selues: and yet he faith our trust is in God through Christ.

For the Letter killeth, but the Spirit giueth life] <sup>k</sup> As a man; so the Scripture consists of a bodie and a soule. The <sup>l</sup> superficiall found of the Letter is the bodie, but the true sense is the soule. The Letter then of the Bible not vnderstood, often killeth <sup>m</sup> Heretickes and Iewes, and carnall Gospellers: it is the Spirit onely that giues light and life to such as sit in darkenesse and in the shadow of death. It is a notable saying of <sup>n</sup> Hierome: Non in verbis est Euangelium, sed in sensu; non in superficie, sed in medulla; non in verborum folijs, sed in radice rationis. And therefore we must in reading holy writ apply our selues ad sensum rei, more then ad sonum vocabuli, saith <sup>o</sup> Tertullian. According to this exposition <sup>p</sup> ignorant Clergie men are most vnable to minister the new Testament, vnderstanding neither the Spirit, nor yet so much as the Letter. As <sup>q</sup> one sharply taxed an illiterate Bishop in his age.

*Magne pater clamas, occidit litera; in ore
Hoc vnum, occidit litera semper habes.
Cauisti bene tu, ne te vlla occidere possit
Littera, non vlla est littera nota tibi, Nec frustra metuis ne occidat litera, scis non Vniuicet qui te spiritus esse tibi.*

But <sup>r</sup> S. Augustine and <sup>s</sup> other Interpreters haue more fitly construed this according to <sup>t</sup> Pauls intent of the Gospell and the Law, shewing that the Law is the Letter

<sup>f</sup> Dr. White defen. of his answer to the admonit. pag 493.
<sup>g</sup> Hooker. Ecclesi.
politi. l. 5 §. 47.

<sup>h</sup> Luke 18. 13.

<sup>i</sup> Luke 15. 21.

<sup>k</sup> Origen. periarchon. lib. 4.
cap. 2.

<sup>l</sup> August. Ser.
70. de temp.

<sup>m</sup> Idem Ser.
100 de temp.

<sup>n</sup> Exposit. prius.
in epist. Gal. c. 1.

<sup>o</sup> Lib. contra Prax. cap. 3.

<sup>p</sup> Ardens in loc.

<sup>q</sup> Thomas Morus epigram.

<sup>r</sup> Lib. de Spirit.
& Lit. cap. 5. 6.

<sup>s</sup> sequent.

Ambros.

Hieron.

Anselm.

Letter as being figured in stones, and written with inke by the minitlerie of Moses; and that the Gospell is the Spirit, as being first published vnto the world by the comming downe of the Holy Ghost, and imprinted in our hearts by the Spirit of the living God.

There is a spirit in the Law; for the commandement is holy, iust, and good: and there is a letter in the Gospell, and that a killing letter, euen the fauour of death vnto death in all rebobate: but in this text we must exactly consider the Law and the Gospell as they stand in opposition each one with other, and so the proper office of the law is to threaten, accuse, terrifie, condemne, kill. As Luther peremptorily lex non damnans est ficta & picta lex. On the contrarie, the proper office of the Gospell, is to preach glad tidings vnto the poore, to comfort all that mourne, to binde vp the broken hearted: In a word to conuert soules, and to giue life. So S. Iohn in his Gospell expressly, the law was giuen by Moses, but grace came by Iesus Christ. And thus accurately to distinguish betweene the Law and the Gospell is sapientiarum sapientia, the wisdom of all wisdom, quoth Martine Luther. It is obserued pretily, that the ceremonies of the Law were first in their prime mortales; after in Christs age, mortuae; last of all in our time, mortiferae. But it may be said as truly that euery letter of the morall Law, yea ioc or tittle thereof, is able to kill all mankinde; for it is, saith the Apostle, the ministration of death.

And that in foure respects, as

1. Reuealing our sinne, Rom. 3.20.
2. Encreasing our sinne, Rom. 7.8.
3. Accusing vs of sinne, Ioh. 3.45.
4. Condemning vs for sinne, Rom. 6.23.

But the Gospell is the ministration of righteousnesse, like Iohn the Baptist, pointing out the Lambe of God, who taketh away the sinnes of the world; assuring our conscience that there is no condemnation to them that are in Christ. As Augustine most diuinely: Quod lex operum minando imperat, hoc fidei lex credendo imperat. § When the Law calleth vpon thee for thy debt; crying, pay that thou dost owe: the Gospell acquits thy bonds and saith vnto thy soule, Thy sinnes are forgiven thee. For the Law of the spirit of life which is in Christ Iesus, hath freed thee from the law of sinne and death: Rom. 8.2. See Epistle Sunday following.

Countenance: For it is more honourable to bee the Minister of Mercie, then an executioner of Iudgement. A deaths-man is accounted base, but the very feet of such as bring glad tidings are beautifull.

If the ministration of death ] As the Gospell is more gracious then the Law; so likewise more glorious, and that in respect of Continuance: For Moses glory is abolished and done away, but the Gospels ministerie remaineth. All Moses glory was but a type of Christs glorie: now the substance being come, the shadow vanisheth. All the Prophets and the Law prophesied vnto Iohn: but truth and grace came by Iesus Christ, Iohn 1. 17. Looke then how farre the Sunne doth obscure the lesser lights; euen so farre the Gospell exceeds in glorie the Law. For when that which is perfect is come, that which is imperfect is abolished, 1. Cor. 13.10.

The Gospell. MARKE 7.31.

Iesus departed from the Coasts of Tyre & Sydon, and came vnto the sea of Galilee, through the middest of the ten Cities, and they brought vnto him one that was deafe, &c.

A Mong many, there be two maine demonstrations of Christs diuinitie: the words of his Prophets, and the workes of himselfe. Both are met together

1 Rom. 7.12.
2 2. Cor. 2.16.
3 Caluin.

4 See Luther loc. com. iii. de legis vsu theologico & spiritali.
5 Esay 61.1.
6 Cap. 1. uer. 17.

7 Loc. com. iii. de necessitate discrim. inter Legem & Euangel.

8 Aquin.
9 Caietan Nilimur in uerisim

10 Rom. 8.1.
11 De Spirit. & lit. cap 13.
12 Luther loc. com. iii. de discrim. Inst. legal. & Euangel.

13 Aquin.

14 Ambros. Anselm. Marlorat. in loc.
15 Matth. 11.13.
16 Theodoret apud Occumen & Primasius in loc.

17 Scotus prolog. 1 sent.

⁊ Vega in loc.
 ⁊ Ferus ser. 5.
 in loc.
 ⁊ Verbulo minimo: Coster
 in loc.
 ⁊ Cor. 3. 5. v. 5.
 ⁊ Iohn. 1. 39.

together in this place; for it is shewed here by S. Marke, that he wrought at one time, with one accord, and that a little word, two great wonders; and that according to the prediction of his Prophet Esay, Then shall the eyes of the blinde be lightned, and the eares of the deafe be opened. If any then want evidence to proue that Christ is God, let me say to him, as it was once said vnto Peter and Andrew, Come and see.

The whole may be diuided into three principall parts, answerable to three principall parties expressed in the text, namely, the party

Cured: One that was deafe, and had an impediment in his speech.
 Curing: Christ, And when he had taken him aside, &c.
 Procuring: Who brought the patient vnto Christ, and prayed to put his hands vpon him.

Iesus departed from the Coasts of Tyre and Sidon, and came vnto the sea of Galile.
 Christ was not a perpetuall resident in one benefice; but hee went about from Coast to Coast, doing good, and healing all that were oppressed of the denish, By which example we may learne to be diligent and industrious in our seuerall callings, and that we should not expect vntill other vpspeeke vs, but that we should seeke, yea serue them in loue, doing good vnto all men, especially to them which are of the household of faith, Gal. 6. 10.

And they brought vnto him. In these neighbours of the deafe man, ⁊ interpreters haue noted a liuely patterne both of faith and of loue. First of faith, in that hearing of Christ they beleueed, and in beleueing they came to him, entreating fauour, not for themselues onely, but for their sicke friend also: being assured that the worlds Saviour could with a touch easily cure him. Here then are foure degrees of a iustifying faith, according to that, Rom. 10. 13. *Who soeuer shall call vpon the name of the Lord shall be saued: but how shall they call on him, in whom they haue not beleueed? And how shall they beleue in him, of whom they haue not heard? and how shall they heare without a Preacher? and how shall they preach except they be sent? The first step is to heare Christs word; the second, so to heare, that we beleue; the third, so to beleue, that we dare goe boldly to the throne of grace; calling on him in whom we beleue: the fourth is, so to call and aske, that our request may be granted, and our selues saued. Againe, their action was full of loue; first, in that they brought him vnto Christ. Secondly, for that they deferred not this good worke, but instantly brought him, as soone as Christ was in the midst of their Coasts. Thirdly, for that they were not cold suiters in his behalfe, but earnest petitioners vnto Christ, that he would put his hands vpon him. Hereby teaching vs how to demeane our selues toward our sicke neighbours, and distressed friends: insinuating that it is not enough to wish well, or speake well, except we doe well vnto them:
 and that we must not only labour to helpe them our selues, but also when need shall require to procure other of greater skill and abilitie to giue them further contentment and ease. There be many motiues vnto this good office; but especially two; namely, Gods precept, and promise. Precept. Be ye mercifull, as your Father is mercifull. Promise, Blessed is he that considereth the poore and needy, the Lord shall deliuer him in the time of trouble. See Gospell Sund. 4. and Epist.
 Sund. 2. after Trinitie.*

One that was deafe and had an impediment in his speech, As dumbe he could not aske, as deafe he could not heare counsell and comfort for his good. In which respect he was in a more miserable case then either the blinde, or the Leper, or the lame: for they made their griefe knowne to Christ in crying, O Iesu the sonne of Dauid haue mercy vpon me; and heard also what he said vnto them;
O sonne, be of good cheere, thy sinnes are forgiven thee. Whether we construe this of spirituall or bodily deafeness, it was occasioned by Satan, and bred by sinne. The deuill as a murdering theefe, comming to steale from vs our soule, the most precious iewell in all our house, laboureth especially to stop our eares, lest

⁊ Acts 10. 38.

⁊ Kilian in loc.

⁊ Ardens.

⁊ Gal. 5. 13.

⁊ Luther. Heming, Culman.

⁊ Sarceius.

⁊ Heb. 4. 16.

⁊ Ferus serm. 3.
 in loc.

⁊ Zepper. com. 2.
 in loc.

⁊ Luke 6. 36.

⁊ Psal. 41. 1.

⁊ Ardens. Coster.

⁊ Theophylact.

lest we should heare that which is for our good, and to close our mouthes, lest we should call for that which is for our good. In which regard Satan is termed in <sup>h</sup> another text a dumbe and a deafe deuill. Not <sup>i</sup> formaliter (as the Schoole doth speake) for he is a roaring Lion: but <sup>k</sup> causaliter, as making other dumbe. See Gospell 3. Sunday in Lent.

Satan then is impellens causa, but Adam our first parent <sup>l</sup> contrabens. He was deafe when he did not obey Gods expresse commandement; and dumbe, when he did not reprehend his seduced and seducing wife. Deafe, when he did not heare the voice of God, Adam, where art thou? Dumbe, when he did not vpon that summons ingenuously confesse his sinne. Now the <sup>m</sup> Scripture telleth vs plainly, that in Adam all men haue sinned, and therefore all of vs are by nature <sup>n</sup> borne deafe, and dumbe, not able to heare, much lesse to speake what we should, as we should, vntill Christ open our dull eares, and vnloose our stammering tongue with his Ephata from aboue.

Some Postillers obserue Saint Markes order and method; first mentioning a lesser euill, one that was deafe: then a greater, and had an impediment in his speech: according to that of the <sup>p</sup> Wiseman; he that contemneeth small things, shall fall by little and little. The <sup>q</sup> Preachers of the word are they who bring this deafe and dumbe man vnto Christ; he therefore that hath eares to heare, let him heare. For <sup>r</sup> that man is deafe who stops his eares at the Gospell; and mute, who will not open his lips that his mouth may shew forth God praise. Concerning their estate which are corporally deafe and dumbe: men ought to iudge charitably knowing that the <sup>s</sup> wayes of God are past finding out; who being infinitely rich in mercie, doth exact but little where he gives a little. The <sup>t</sup> spirit of the Lord haply speakes vnto them, and <sup>u</sup> cryeth in them Abba father; <sup>x</sup> helping their infirmitie, and <sup>y</sup> witnessing with their spirit that they be the sonnes of God. See Hierom. exposit. prior in Galat. cap. 3. Concil. Carthag. 4. Can. 76. Zepper. con. 3. in loc.

They prayed him] A <sup>z</sup> patterne of the precept, <sup>a</sup> pray one for another. It is <sup>b</sup> necessitie makes a man pray for himselfe; but it is charitie moues a man to pray for another. <sup>c</sup> Now that deuotion is most acceptable, which is not forged by dissimulation, nor forced by constraint; but ariseth out of pure zeale to God, and meere loue to men. It is our dutie therefore to pray, not for our selues only, but for others also, for <sup>d</sup> all men, euen our <sup>e</sup> enemies, earnestly beseeching Christ to put his blessed hands vpon them, albeit they desire to lay their violent cursed hands vpon vs.

To put his hands vpon him] There is a twofold impositio manuum mentioned in holy Scripture; <sup>f</sup> confirmatoria, & curatoria: the first vsed in ordaining Presbyters, as 1. Tim. 4. 14. and 1. Tim. 5. 22. The second in blessing and healing the people, Matth. 9. 18. and 19. 1 3. Now the friends of this patient intreated Christ to put his hand vpon him; <sup>g</sup> either knowing that he cured other impositio manuum, as the blinde man, Marke 8. 23, 25. and the crooked woman, Luke 13. 13. or else for that the Prophets and holy men of God vsed in helping and healing the sicke, to lay their hands vpon them. A ceremonie not vnknowne vnto the Gentiles, as it is apparent by the speech of <sup>h</sup> Naaman the Syrian; I thought with my selfe, the Propher will surely come out, and stand, and call on the name of Lord his God, and put his hand on the place, and heale the leprosse.

And when he had taken him aside from the people] sundrie Diuines haue sundry deuices in expounding this clause. Litterally, <sup>i</sup> some thinke that he carried him aside from the prease, <sup>l</sup> that he might the better attend the businesse out of the throne. <sup>k</sup> Other, for that among so many, some would be regardlesse and irreuerent spectators. <sup>l</sup> Other, that he might pray more deuoutly, while he did the cure. <sup>m</sup> Most are of opinion, that he did so to shun all ostentation and vaine-glory. <sup>n</sup> Mystically, none are cured by Christ, but such as he puts apart, drawing them out of Babylon, Apocalyp. 18. 4. out of Sodome, Gen. 19. 6. from out of the broad way, Matth. 7. 1 3. to his little flocke, Luk. 1 2. 32. that they may be men in the world, not of the world, Ioh. 15. 19. and 17. 16.

<sup>b</sup> Luke 11, 14.
<sup>i</sup> Ludal de vit. Christ. part. 1. cap. 73.
<sup>k</sup> Caietan. in Luc. 11.
<sup>l</sup> Vide Hieron. & Parigol. in loc.
<sup>m</sup> Rom 5. 12. & 1 Cor 15. 22.
<sup>n</sup> Melanct & Kilius in loc.

<sup>o</sup> Postan. Dic. 7.
<sup>p</sup> Eccle. 19. 1.
<sup>q</sup> Euseb. Emif. Hom. in loc.
<sup>r</sup> Arboreus in loc.

<sup>s</sup> Rom. 11. 33.
<sup>t</sup> 1. Iohn 2. 2. 7.
Apocalyp 2 7.
<sup>u</sup> Galat. 4. 6.
<sup>x</sup> Rom 8. 26.
<sup>y</sup> Ibidem. vers. 16.
<sup>z</sup> Kilius in loc.
<sup>a</sup> Iames 5. 16.
<sup>b</sup> Chrysof. Homil. 14. ex Matt. cap. 6.
<sup>c</sup> Thom. 22. quest. 82. art. 7.
<sup>d</sup> 1. Tim. 2. 1.
<sup>e</sup> Matth. 5. 44.

<sup>f</sup> B Barlow sermon at Hampton Court: Sept. 21. 1605. in Act. 20 28.
<sup>g</sup> Maldonat.

<sup>h</sup> 2. King 5. 11.

<sup>i</sup> Sarcenius.
<sup>k</sup> Euthymius.
<sup>l</sup> Calvin. apud Marlorat.
<sup>m</sup> Chrysof. apud Thom. Theophylact.
Ardens.
Iarsen.
<sup>n</sup> Hieron.
Euseb. Emif.
Gulman. Vega.

He put his fingers into his eares, and did spit, and touched his tongue ] Christ could haue cured this man, as he did many, with his bare word; according to that of the ° Centurion, speake the word onely, and my seruant shall be healed: but he did vse feet, finger, spettell, tongue; ¶ to shew that all the parts of his humane nature being vnited vnto the diuine, were saluferous, euen the true meane whereby men are holpen in all their sicknesse. He ¶ carried all our sorrowes, and cured all our sores. Or haply Christ vsed these things, at this time, ¶ lest we should tempt God in neglecting ordinarie meanes. Or to ¶ shew that it was the finger of God, as Luke 11.20. If I by the finger of God cast out deuils. And so this man was healed euen by the same hand that made him. Or insinuating that he wrought this cure by his ¶ power and wisdom: the first signified by his finger, the second by spetle. Mystically, the finger of God is the spirit of God: for whereas S. Luke saith, If I by the finger of God cast out deuils, * S. Matthew hath, If I cast out deuils by the spirit of God. Our blessed Sauour therefore did put his fingers into the deafe mans eare, ¶ to signifie that the preaching of the word to mens outward eares only, without the secret operation of the spirit, speaking inwardly to their hearts, is not auailable to saluation. Albeit Paul plant, and Apollos water, only God giueth encrease, 1. Cor. 3.6. Here some Friers are so conceited, as to tell all the fingers on Christs hand, and euery ioynt of the same: but I cannot finger this lesson, I referre you therefore to Iacob de Vorag. ser. 1. in loc. Pontan. Bibliothec. Concion. tom. 4. fol. 199.

And looked vp to heauen ] ¶ To shew that he was our mediatur and aduocate with God our Father in heauen. Or ¶ intimating that euery good and perfect gift is from aboue, comming downe from the Father of lights: and therefore we must in all our sicknesse expect health and ease from heauen, saying with Dauid, I will lift vp mine eyes vnto the hills, from whence commeth my helpe: my helpe commeth euen from the Lord, which hath made heauen and earth. Or he looked vp to heauen: ¶ hereby teaching vs to set our affections on things which are aboue, Coloss. 3.2. In this ¶ vale of miserie we are subiect to deafenesse, and dumbnesse, and infinite other infirmities of minde and body: but in Hierusalem aboue, there ¶ is no more dying, nor crying, but all teares shall be wiped away from our eyes, and sorrow from our hearts. And therefore let our conuersation be in heauen, as hauing in it our best friend, our best treasure, best helpe, best home.

Haply some will obiect, that lifting vp of the eyes, and sighing, are gestures of one that prayeth, and makes a suit: but Christ could haue wrought this miracle without prayer; or helpe from other. It is true, Christ could, and often did cure without prayer: yet in some cases, and at some times he did vse to pray for two reasons especially. First, that all the world might know that he was sent from God, euen from the bosome of his Father in heauen. And this reason is rendred by himselfe, Ioh. 11. 41, 42. Iesus lift vp his eyes, and said, Father, I thanke thee, because thou hast heard me. I know that thou hearest me alwaies; but because of the people that stand by, I said it, that they may beleue that thou hast sent me. Secondly, for our ¶ example, teaching vs how we should desire God to loose our stammering tongues, and open our dull eares: ¶ instructing Physitians also to pray while patients are vnder their cure, that the God of heauen would blesse their handie worke.

And sighed ] He did not this as doubting of his cure, but to shew first, that he was very ¶ man, subiect to weeping and passion as we are, yet without sinne: Hebr. 4. vers. 15. Secondly, to manifest his ¶ compassion and pittie towards distressed men; he that said, Blessed are the pitifull, is such an high Priest as is touched with the feeling of our infirmities. And by this example teaching ¶ vs also to weepe for the weaknesse and wickednesse of our brethren. Thirdly, to demonstrate the ¶ greatnesse and grieuousnesse of sinne, which is not cured but by the sighing and suffering of the Sonne of God. In more particular, ¶ some note that Christ did not sigh vntill he touched the patients tongue, which is an ¶ vn-ruly euill, an ¶ open sepulchre, ¶ full of deadly poyson, a world of wickednesse.

And

° Matth. 8.8.
 ¶ Theophylast.
 Euthym.
 Arborius.
 ¶ Esay 53. 4.5.
 ¶ Sarcenius.
 ¶ Vega.

¶ Ponigaval.
 ° Cap. 11.10.
 ¶ Cap. 12.25.

¶ Ferus ser 4.
 Zepper. ser. 1. in
 loc.

¶ Euseb. Emis.
 & Vega. in loc.
 ¶ Beda.
 Ianfen.
 Pontan.
 ¶ Psal. 121.1.

¶ Ludolphus,
 Iacob de Vorag.
 Psal. 84. 6.
 ° Apocal. 21.4.

¶ Beda.
 Theophylast. in
 loc.
 Idem Greg.
 Hom. 10. in Ezechiel.
 ¶ Euthym in loc.
 ¶ Beda: Quasi
 Deu curauit. quasi homo in-genuit.

¶ Ferus, ser. 4.
 in loc.

Idem Bez.

¶ Matth 5.7.

1 Heb. 4.15.

¶ Ludolphus,

Iansen.

¶ Iacob de Vo-

rag serm. 1.

° Vega.

¶ Psal. 14.5.

¶ Iam. 3.8.6.

And said vnto him, Ephata, that is to say, be opened ] He did sigh as a man, but command as God: vsing neither the iubiunctiue, nor optatiue, but imperatiue moode: Be opened. The word Ephata, was vulgar in that countrey; by which it doth appeare, that he did not vse it as a charme, placing extraordinary power or confidence therein: but that it was his owne will, and proper vertue that wrought the miracle. This (as <sup>u</sup> Maldonate the Iesuite censureth) is a mad glosse. Yet his old friend <sup>x</sup> Iansenius is so well in his wits as to receiue it, and so would he too, but that it maketh against their superstitious vsing of the word Ephata in their popish exorcisme before Baptisme. The Papists, as being masters of ceremonies, or rather indeed slaues, obserue 22. ceremonies in their administration of holy Baptisme: namely, twelue going before Baptisme, five in the action, and other five following after, as Bellarmino doth marshall them in his booke De Baptismo, cap. 23, 26, 27. Now the ninth ceremonie before Baptisme, is applying to spittle to the nostrils and eares of the Infant, and saying, Ephata, be opened. And for the lawfulness of this ceremonie, they cite Christs example, and S. Ambroses authoritie. To the first our men answer, that it is an apish trick, rather in scorne, than imitation of Christ. And therefore the noble mother of our gracious Soueraigne K. James, enioyned the popish Archbishop at his Baptisme, to forbear this idle ceremonie; laying, that <sup>2</sup> shee would not haue a pockie Priest to spit in her childs mouth. Our blessed Saviour here did not administer the Sacrament of Baptisme; why then, I pray you, should they not anoint the eyes of the baptized infant with clay, so well as his nostrils with spittle? for Christ in the <sup>a</sup> Gospell opened the eyes of a blinde man with clay; the which is so significant, and haply more sweet than vnsauourie slauer of an vnwholsome shaueling. Againe, suppose this action of Christ were sacramentall (a thing which neither they can aske modestly, nor we grant iudiciously) yet herein <sup>b</sup> they do not imitate Christ; for he did apply spittle to the mouth of this patient, but they doe this vnto the nostrils of the childe to be baptized. As for S. Ambroses authoritie, there be two places in his workes vrged in this argument. The first is cited by <sup>c</sup> Bellarmino, and that is in Tom. 4. Ambros. lib. De ijs qui mysterijs initiantur, cap. 1. Where by way of preface only the learned Father <sup>d</sup> exhorteth his auditors that they would open their eares vnto his speech, as the deafe man had his eares opened in the Gospell. The second is quoted by the Rhemists in their Annotations vpon this text, and that is lib. 1. de Sacramentis, cap. 1. Where S. Ambrose mentioneth indeed a needlesse ceremonie vsed in his age, namely, that the Priest touched the nostrils and eares of him that was baptized, and the truth is <sup>e</sup> euen at that time, there were many superfluous and burthenous rites in the Church; of which Augustine complained in his 118. and 119. Epistle to Ianuarins. But S. Ambrose speaks not in that Chapter of exorcismes vsed in the ministration of Baptisme, nor of spittle, nor of the word Ephata: which as <sup>f</sup> one speaks, are nuge palam in Baptismi probum offraui licentia inuectæ.

And straight way his eares were opened, and the string of his tongue was loosed, and he speake plaine ] <sup>g</sup> Two things illustrate Christs omnipotent power in acting this miracle: Celeritie, for that he did it so suddenly, Perfection, for that he did it so soundly. For the first, it is said in the Text, straight-way. Otherwise it might haue bene thought that his disease went away of it selfe, or that it was cured by some other. And for demonstration of the second, his thicke eares were opened, and the strings of his stammering tongue loosed in such sort, that he did not onely speake, but speake plainely, that is, rightly and readily. For he that said in the beginning: Let there be lights in the firmament, and it was so: let the waters be gathered together, and it was so: let the earth bud, and it was so: said here, Be opened, and immediatly the deafe did heare, and the dumbe speake.

<sup>h</sup> Mystically, men are loosed from the shackles of Iatan and sinne by the commandement of Christ, and preaching of his word. And therefore Christ in healing this patient, first opened his eares, and then vntied the string of his tongue: because we must heare well, before we can speake well. He that will open his lips that

<sup>e</sup> Postil cum Glossis & figuris Id. n. Bedæ, Ferrus, & alij.
<sup>f</sup> Zunglius.
Iansen.
<sup>g</sup> Maldonat.
<sup>h</sup> Bullinger apud Maldonat.
<sup>i</sup> Com in loc.
<sup>k</sup> Concord.
cuang cap. 62.

<sup>l</sup> Bellarmino de baptismo, cap. 23. & Rhem. in loc.

<sup>m</sup> Thus his Mattheic reports: premonition, pag. 33.

<sup>n</sup> Iohn 9.

<sup>o</sup> Epist. Eli. resp. ad Caic. Bellarm. Apol pag. 354.

<sup>p</sup> Lib de Baptismo, cap. 25.

<sup>q</sup> Exhortatio auctororum. ut aures aperiant: vult in argumenti eiusdem capituli.

<sup>r</sup> Dr. Fulke in Marke 7. 34

<sup>s</sup> Caluin. Instit. lib. 4. cap. 15. § 19.

<sup>t</sup> Maldonat in loc.

<sup>u</sup> Heming.

<sup>v</sup> Pontan.

that his mouth may shew forth Gods praise, must be swift to heare, slow to speake, James 1.19.

And he commanded them that they should tell no man ] Hereby shewing the difference betweene the giuer of a benefit, and the receiuer. He that doth a good turne must instantly forget it: he that receiueth, alway remember it. According to that of <sup>k</sup> Seneca: Beneficium qui dedit taceat, narret qui accepit, <sup>1</sup> Hac scilicet inter duos beneficij lex est, alter statim obliuisci debet dati, alter accepti nunquam. Againe, there is a time for all things, a time wherein Christ would haue his miracles knowne, and a time wherein he would haue them vnknowne.

But the more he forbade them, so much the more a great deale they published ] The particular publishing of this miracle, contrary to Christs expresse commandement, was rather immoderate<sup>m</sup> zeale, than an imitable vertue. See Gospell, 3. Sunday after Epiph. But their generall praising of God, in saying he hath done all things well, is very commendable.

For God is good } In himselfe: Matth. 19.17. None good but God.
} Toward other, in his<sup>n</sup> workes of } Creation.
} Prefeuation.
} Redemption.
} Glorification.

In his Creation all well, making of nothing all things, and those good, yea <sup>o</sup> very good. In consideration whereof <sup>p</sup> Augustine said sweetly; Cum opera Dei considero, moueor ineffabiliter laude Creatoris illorum, qui prorsus ita magnus est in operibus magnis, ut minor non sit in minimis. In his prefeuation all well, <sup>q</sup> ordering all things comely, disposing not onely that which is good, but also that which is euill, yea the very deuil, vnto good ends. <sup>r</sup> Etiam spiritibus malis bene uitur Dominus, ad vindictam malorum, vel ad bonorum probationem. In his redemption all things well, and farre better than in his creation. <sup>s</sup> Illic sua nobis dedit hic uero seipsum contulit, non tam in dominum, quam in pretium & sacrificium. All things well, yea best of all in his glorification, giuing vs a<sup>t</sup> great reward, yea so great as <sup>u</sup> mans eye neuer saw, neither eare heard, neither heart conceived.

The Gospell and Epistle well agree: The spirit giueth life saith Paul: the deafe man had his eares opened by the finger of Christ, saith Luke. By the Gospels ministratione men are made Gods Epistle, saith Paul: by the word of Christ the deafe did heare and the dumbe speake, saith Luke. If we be able vnto any thing, the same cometh of God, saith Paul. He hath done all things well, saith Luke. Let vs therefore pray with the Church.

Almightie and euerlasting God, which art alwayes more readie to heare, than we to pray, and art wont to giue more than either we desire or deserue: powre downe vpon vs the abundance of thy mercie, forgiuing vs those things whereof our conscience is afraid, and giuing vnto vs that, that our prayer dare not presume to aske, through Iesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

The Epistle. GALAT. 3.16.

To Abraham and his seed were the promises made, &c.

This Epistle consists } Proposition, To Abraham and his seed were made the of three parts: a } promises, &c.
} Exposition, This I say, &c.
} Opposition, wherefore then serueth the Law, &c.

The maine drift of all this Epistle to the Galathians, is, to shew * that a man is not iustified by the workes of the Law, but by faith in Iesus Christ. Which our Apostle proues accurately: 1. by reasons of <sup>x</sup> experience: 2. from <sup>y</sup> Abrahams example: 3. by manifest text of <sup>z</sup> holy writ: lastly, by manifold apt similitudes and testimonies humane; <sup>a</sup> Brethren, I speake as men doe. The first whereof is the comparison

<sup>k</sup> De ben. lib. 2. cap. 11.
<sup>1</sup> Eiusdem lib. cap. 10.

<sup>m</sup> Caluin. Heming. Zepper.

<sup>n</sup> Pontan.

<sup>o</sup> Gen. 1.31.
<sup>p</sup> Contra Faust. Man. lib. 21. c. 5.
<sup>q</sup> Wisdom. 8.1.

<sup>r</sup> August. ad Simplic. lib. 2. quest. 1.
<sup>s</sup> Granat. in euangel. Dom. 1. Advent.
<sup>t</sup> Matth. 5.12.
<sup>u</sup> 1. Cor. 2.9.

* Cap. 2. v. 16.
<sup>x</sup> Ibid. ver. 20.
<sup>y</sup> Cap. 3. 6.
<sup>z</sup> Ibid. vers. 11.
12.
<sup>a</sup> Vers. 15.

comparifon of a mans will; and his argument is from the <sup>b</sup> leffer vnto the greater (as Logicians fpeake.) The teftament of a man after it is confirmed, may not be broken or abrogated; Ergo, much leffe the teftament of God. He doth argue therefore thus:

The Teftament of God confirmed, cannot be difanulled.

The promifes made to Abraham and his feed, which is Chrift, are his Teftament confirmed: Ergo, they cannot be difanulled.

¶ Hence we may learne, that it is lawfull to fpeake in Sermons as men doe; citing teftimonies of humanitie for illuftration of points in Diuinitie, reafoning from things earthly, to things heauenly. So Chrift in the <sup>d</sup> Gofpell, If ye which are euill can giue to your children good gifts, how much more fhall your Father which is in heauen giue good things to them that afke him? So Peter, Acts 5.29. We muft obey men; Ergo, much more God. So the Prophet <sup>e</sup> Ieremie, fpeaking in the Lords name, The Recabites obeyed their father; how much more ought ye to haue obeyed me? <sup>f</sup> Philofophers are the Patriarkes of Heretickes, enemies of the Gofpell, as is not vnderftanding the things of the Spirit of God: and therefore to conuince their confcience by naturall reafon, is to cut off Goliaths head with his owne fword, faith Saint <sup>h</sup> Hierome. When thou fhalt goe to warre againft thine enemies, and the Lord thy God fhall deliuer them into thine hands, and thou fhalt take them captiues, and fhalt fee among the captiues a beautifull woman, and haft a defire to take her for thy wife, then fhalt thou bring her home to thine houfe, and ſhe fhall ſhau her head, and pare her nailes. Humane learning is the Grecian Helena, full of admirable beautie; <sup>k</sup> Cuius facies ſi videri poſſit, pulchrior eſt quam lucifer aut heſperus. And therefore we may not admit her into the Diuinitie ſchools <sup>l</sup> vntill her haire be ſhaued, and her nailes pared; vntill her ſuperfluous idle conceits, and vnprofitable trickes of ornament are taken away. <sup>m</sup> But when of a Coabite thou haft made her an Israelite, accompanie with her and ſay; <sup>n</sup> her left hand is vnder my head, and her right hand doth embrace mee. Let vs aſcribe to Philoſophie, ſumma ſed ſua. For the wiſdome of man, to ſpeake the beſt of it, is but a learned kinde of ignorance, which yet being bridled and guided by the Spirit of God, may be wrought (as<sup>o</sup> one well obſerued) to ſpeake like Baalams Aſſe to good purpoſe. To quote then in the Pulpit authorities of Poets, and Philoſophers; or as here Saint Paul, the poſitions of Lawyers and politicians, is not ſo common as commendable, when it is done reuerently without oſtentation, and iudiciously for the better vnderſtanding of the text, <sup>p</sup> and more cleere declaration of the truth.

To Abraham and his feed ] We reade of <sup>q</sup> three teſtaments in holy Bible; to wit, Abrahamicall, Gen. 12. Moſaicall, Exod. 24. and the new Teſtament, Ier. 31. Hebr. 8. Now the firſt and laſt howſoever they differ in<sup>r</sup> circumſtance, yet they be the ſame for ſubſtance. So Zacharias in his hymne, Bleſſed be the Lord God of Iſrael, for he hath viſited and redeemed his people, as he ſpake by the mouth of his holy Prophets euer ſince the world began; to performe the mercie promiſed to our forefathers, and to remember his holy couenant, to performe the oath which he ſware to our forefather Abraham, &c. And the bleſſed Virgine in her Magnificat; He remembering his mercie hath holpen his ſervant Iſrael, as he promiſed to our forefathers, Abraham and his ſeed for euer. Chriſt is the Paſchall Lambe, 1. Cor. 5.7. ſlaine from the beginning of the world, Apocalyp, 13.8. And ſo the Patriarkes and old Fathers were ſaued by faith, <sup>s</sup> in Chriſtum promiſſum: as we now by faith in Chriſtum miſſum.

Were the promiſes made ] Saint Paul ſpeakes plurally, <sup>t</sup> because they were made ſometime to Abraham, and ſometime to his ſeed, and ſometime to both: or because they were <sup>u</sup> repeated often to Abraham, as Gen. 12.4. Gen. 15.5. Gen. 22. 18. And therefore called promiſes in the plural, although in ſubſtance they were but one promiſe.

He ſaith not in his ſeed, as many; but in thy ſeed, as of one, which is Chriſt ] The Iewes except againſt this interpretation of Paul, and ſay, that the ſingular number <sup>b</sup> Sarceuius.

Caluin Auetius.

<sup>c</sup> Luther &
Perkins in loc.

<sup>d</sup> Marth. 7. 11.

<sup>e</sup> Cap. 35.

<sup>f</sup> Tertull aduerſ.
Hermogen.

<sup>g</sup> 1. Cor. 2. 14.

<sup>h</sup> Epiſt ad Magnum orat.

Roman.
Deut. 21. verſe
11, 12, &c.

<sup>k</sup> Aeneas Siluius Epiſt.

<sup>l</sup> Sigismund.

Duc. Auſtrie.

<sup>m</sup> Hieron ubi.

ſup & Aquin.

leſt 6. in Gal. 3.

<sup>n</sup> Hieron; conſo-

lat. ad Pam ſom.

1. fol. 165.

<sup>o</sup> Cant. 2. 6.

<sup>p</sup> Edes ſer. Du-tie of a King.

<sup>q</sup> M. Deering

leſt. 20 Heb.

<sup>r</sup> Illyric, Clau.

ſcript. verb.

teſtament.

<sup>s</sup> Temporis diſtantia, patefa-

clionis perſpicui-tate, promiſſi benedictiſeminis

exhibitione.

Illyric. ubi ſup.

<sup>t</sup> Kilius in loc.

<sup>u</sup> Perkins in loc.

<sup>v</sup> Anſelm. &

Aquin. in loc.

* Exposit. prior. in Epist. ad Gal. cap. 3.

† Notat. in loc.

‡ Luther in loc.

§ Caictan. in loc.

¶ Illyric. ubi supra in verb. semen.

‡ Gen. 31. 10 & Galat. 4. 30.

§ Aretius in loc.

¶ Oleian de substantia sed. part. 1. art. 1.

1. Erasm paraphra. in loc. Seminis enim nomine non Christus per se, sed cum suo corpore coniunctus est intelligendus. Beza.

† Voi 9. & 29.

§ Gal 3 6.

¶ Luther in loc.

† Voi sup.

¶ Gal. 2. 20.

1. Cor. 1. 30.

ber is here put for the plurall, one for many. So Saint * Hierome doth auow, that he could neuer finde this word in the plurall number; and therefore Paul in this argument may seeme to speake more subtilly then foundly. Yea, that which is worse, the Iesuite † Em. Sa thinks him (as he speakes of himselfe, 2. Cor 11. 6.) rude in speaking. ‡ Answer is made, that our Apostle wrote Apostolically, construing the Scripture by the § same spirit by which it was originally penned. And whereas it is objected that the word seed is a Nounne collectiue, signifying all Abrahams posteritic; ¶ Diuines answer, that it is vsed often onely for one, so well as for all, or many. For Eue said of Seth, God hath giuen mee another seed, Gen. 4. 25. that is, another sonne. Secondly, the † Scripture reports expressly, that Ismael, Abrahams sonne, was cast out, and not made heire with the blessed seed. See Galatin. de arcan. cat. verit. lib. 5. cap. 13. & Marlorat in loc. Or as § other acutely, there is semen redimendum, and that is collectiuum; and semen redimens, and that is unicum.

We receiue therefore this exposition of Paul, acknowledging Christ to be this one particular seed and sonne of Abraham, in whom, and by whom the nations of the world are blessed: eternall inheritance being first granted vnto him, and so conuained vnto such as † belecue in him. As our Apostle concludes in this † Chapter, If ye be Christs, then are ye Abrahams seed and heires by promise. See Benedictus.

This I say ] Paul in the former verses hath laid downe two propositions; one, that testaments of men confirmed may not be broken: another, that the promises were made to Abraham and his seed, which is Christ. Now what of all this, may some say? He doth expound himselfe therefore, this I say; that is, the drift and intent of all my speech is to shew that the couenant or testament ratified by God cannot be frustrated. And secondly, though it might so be, yet that the Law could not abrogate the same: which he proues by two reasons especially.

First, from the circumstance of time: the Law which began foure hundred and thirtie yeares after doth not disanul, &c.

Secondly, from the nature of a testament, donation or legacie: for if inheritance come of the Law, it commeth not of promise; but God gaue it to Abraham by promise.

The Law which began afterward ] The Iewes object and say, that God mistrusting his owne promises as insufficient to iustifie, further added a better thing; that is to say, the Law, whereby men may be made righteous. Our Apostle doth answer by demonstration. Abraham obtained not righteousness before God through the Law, because there was no Law when he liued; and if no Law, then assuredly no merit. What then? Nothing else but the meere promise, which Abrahams † beleueed, and it was imputed to him for righteousness. † if a rich man not constrained thereunto, but of his owne good will, should adopt one to be his sonne, whom he knoweth not, and to whom he doth owe nothing, and should appoint him heire of all his lands and goods, and then after certaine yeares should lay vpon him a Law to doe this or that; he cannot now say that he deserued this benefit through his owne workes, seeing he receiued it of meere fauour many yeares afore: so God could not respect our deserts going before righteousness, for as much as the promise was made 430 yeares afore the Law. Wherefore saith † Luther, if thou wilt rightly deuide the word of truth, accustom thy selfe to separate the promises and the Law so farre asunder as heauen and earth, as the beginning of the world and the latter end; that when the Law commeth and accuseth thy conscience, thou maist answer; Lady law, thou comest not in season, for thou comest too soone; tarry yet untill 430. yeares be full expired, and when they are past, then come and spare not. But if thou come then, it will be too late, for then hath the promise presented the 430. yeares; to which I assent, and sweetly repose my selfe in the same. Therefore I haue nothing to doe with thee, for I liue now with the beleeuing Abraham; or rather since Christ his seed is reucaled and giuen vnto me, I k liue in him, who is my † righteousness, sanctification and redemption. Inheritance commeth on Gods part by promise, not on our part by performance.

It is objected against this accurate computation of time, Gen. 15. 12. Know for a suretie that thy seed shall be a stranger in a land that is not theirs foure hundred yceres, and shall serue them. Answer is made by <sup>m</sup> S. Augstine, and <sup>n</sup> other, that Moses in that Text speakes of the time that was from the beginning of Abrahams seed, or birth of Isaac, to the beginning of the Law: but Paul in this Text, of all the time that was betweene the giuing of the promise, and the giuing of the Law. Now the promise was made to Abraham, when he was seuentie and five yeares old, Genes. 12. 4. And Isaac was borne when Abraham was an hundred yeares old, Gen. 21. 5. that is, twentie five yeares after the first promise. And from the birth of Isaac, vntill the children of Israel were deliuered out of Egypt, at which time the Law was giuen (as Oecumenius, Aquinas, Arelius, exactly reckon according to Gods owne records) w. re foure hundred and five yeares, in all foure hundred and thirtie, as Moses, Exod. 12. 40.

For if the inheritance come of the Law, it commeth not now of promise, but God gaue it, &c. ] This argument is plaine: for naturall reason, although it be neuer so blinde, compelleth vs to confesse, that it is one thing to promise, and another thing to require; and one thing to giue, another thing to take. The <sup>o</sup> Law requireth and exacteth in vs our workes; on the contrary, the promise doth offer vnto vs the spirituall and euerlasting benefits of God, offert et adfert, and that freely for Christis sake. Therefore we cannot obtaine inheritance by the Law <sup>p</sup> for as many as are of the workes of the Law, are under the curse: but by the promise; for it saith, <sup>q</sup> in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed. <sup>r</sup> If they which are of the Law be heires, our faith is made vaine and the promise void, and God a lier. Eternall life is the gift of God, conueyed by testament as a <sup>t</sup> legacie, which is not an exaction, but a donation. Heires looke not for lawes or any burthens to be laid vpon them by their fathers will, but for an inheritance confirmed thereby. Now that we may receive this legacie, we must bring vnto God nothing but hunger and thirst after it, making suit for it by asking, seeking, knocking. For albeit in our selues all of vs are most vnworthy: yet shall it suffice for the hauing of this blessing, if our names be found in the testament of God.

God gaue it to Abraham by promise ] That is, as afore, to Abraham and his seed, For this gift is not priuate, but a publike donation, and Abraham here must be considered as a publike person, and that which was giuen vnto him, was in him giuen to all that should beleue as he did. If then thou beest indued with faith <sup>u</sup> as much as is a graine of mustard seed, thou art <sup>x</sup> blessed with faithfull Abraham. Inheritance of eternall happinesse is as surely thine, as it was his when he beleued: and if thou continue faithfull vnto the end, thou shalt <sup>y</sup> sit downe with Abraham, Isaac and Iacob in the kingdome of heauen, and after this life rest in the <sup>z</sup> bosome of Abraham euermore. For whatsoeuer was done to him as the <sup>a</sup> Father of the faithfull, is done to them also that walke in the steps of his faith.

Wherefore then serueth the Law? ] You haue heard of the proposition, and exposition of our Apostle. Now there followeth an <sup>b</sup> opposition against his doctrine, containing a twofold obiection. The first in the 19. verse: Wherefore then serueth the Law? The second, verse 12. Is the Law then against the promise of God? To the first, answer is made, that the Law was added because of transgressions. <sup>c</sup> Not for iustification, but for transgression, namely to suppress, and expresse sinne. The ciuill vse of the Law is to punish transgression, and to restraine villanie. Good men are a <sup>d</sup> Law to themselves, and so, the Law is not giuen vnto the <sup>e</sup> righteous man. But Almighty God hath ordained Magistrates, Parents, Ministers, Lawes, bonds, to bridle the wicked, at the least to binde Sathan that he rage not in his bond-slaves after his owne lust. And therefore Politicians and Stats-men haue much esteemed and honoured the very senselesse instruments of iustice. Baldwin the great Lawyer, called the Gibbet lignum benedictum; and the the good Emperour <sup>f</sup> Maximilian whensoeuer he passed by the Gallowes, vntually putting off his hat saluted it thus: All haile holy iustice.

The spirituall vse of the Law is to reueale sinne, that a man as in a glasse may behold

<sup>m</sup> Decimit Dei
lib. 16. cap. 24.
<sup>n</sup> Oecumen.
Aquin. Caietan.
in loc.

<sup>o</sup> Luther.

<sup>p</sup> Gal. 3. 10.

<sup>q</sup> Gen. 22. 18.

<sup>r</sup> Rom. 4. 14.

<sup>s</sup> Rom. 6. 23.

<sup>t</sup> Perkins.

<sup>u</sup> Luke 17. 6.

<sup>x</sup> Gal. 3. 9.

<sup>y</sup> Math. 18. 15.

<sup>z</sup> Luke 16. 22.

<sup>a</sup> Rom. 4. 11, 12.

<sup>b</sup> Aquin.

Arelius.

Klins.

<sup>c</sup> Primasius in
loc.

<sup>d</sup> Rom. 2. 14.

<sup>e</sup> 1. Tim. 1. 9.

<sup>f</sup> Max I.
Salut sancta
lustitia.

<sup>e</sup> Tyndal prol.
in Exod.
<sup>h</sup> Kilius.

<sup>i</sup> Jer. 23. 29.
<sup>k</sup> 1. King 19.
ver. 12, 13.

<sup>l</sup> Luther.

<sup>m</sup> Occumen.
Aquiu.
Ardens.
<sup>n</sup> Perkins.

<sup>o</sup> Coloss. 2. 14.

<sup>p</sup> Mattha. 11. 12.

<sup>q</sup> Kilius.
<sup>r</sup> Ephes. 3. 17.
<sup>s</sup> Luther.
<sup>t</sup> Psal. 42. 9.
& 69. 2.
<sup>u</sup> Psal. 6. 1.

<sup>v</sup> Esay 61. 1, 2, 4

behold his ignorance, misery, blindnesse, infirmitie, iudgement, death, hell: As as<sup>a</sup> a corosic laid vnto an old sore, not to heale it, but to stirre it vp, and make the disease aline, that a man may feele in what perill he stands, and how nigh to deaths doore. <sup>h</sup> For our natures are so corrupt, that we could not know them to be corrupt without the Law. Rom. 7. 7. I knew not sinne (saith our Apostle) but by the Law; for I had not knowne lust, except the Law had said, Thou shalt not lust.

<sup>i</sup> Is not my word euen as fire, saith the Lord, and like a hammer breaking stones? It is that <sup>k</sup> mightie strong winde, and that terrible earth-quake, renting the Mountaines, and cleauing the Rockes asunder, that is, the proud and obstinate hypocrites. Eliab as being not able to abide these terrours of the Law, which by these things are signified, couered his face with a mantle. Thus as you see, the Law was added because of transgressions, that is, to restraine them ciuilly, <sup>l</sup> but especially to reueale them spiritually, that men might vnderstand the greatnesse of their sinnes, and the iust wrath of God for the same.

Vntill the seed came to whom the promise was made] If the dayes of the Law should not be shortned, no man should be faued: and therefore certaine bounds are limited to this Tyrant, beyond the which he cannot raigne, namely, The Law was added because of transgressions, vntill the seed came: <sup>m</sup> That is, vntill the time of grace, till Christ in the fulnesse of time was borne. This may be construed literally; for albeit the Law serues to reueale sinne till the worlds end; <sup>n</sup> yet in respect of the Mosaiicall manner of reuealing transgressions, it is added but vntill Christ. For the Law before Christ did conuince men of sinne not onely by precepts and threatnings, but also by Rites and Ceremonies, as by washings and sacrifices; and all which assuredly were reall confessions of sinne, and as <sup>o</sup> Paul speaks, an hand-writing against vs, vntill Christ tooke them away, and fastned them vpon his crosse. <sup>p</sup> The Prophets and the Law did endure till John, and from the time of John the Baptist vntill this day, the kingdome of heauen suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force. Spiritually the blessed seed is <sup>q</sup> come when once Christ <sup>r</sup> dwelleth in our hearts by faith. Here we must begin to say, <sup>s</sup> Now leaue off Law, thou hast terrified and tormented our consciences enough: <sup>t</sup> All thy waues and stormes are gone ouer vs. Lord turne not away thy face from thy seruant. <sup>u</sup> Rebuke me not I beseech thee in thine anger, neither chasten me in thy displeasure. When these terrours and troubles come, let the Law then be packing out of the conscience, which indeed is added to discouer and increase sinne, yet no longer but vntill the seed come to which the promise was made. Now must he deliner vp his kingdome to another, euen to Christ, whose lips are gracious, speaking of farre better things then doth the Law, <sup>v</sup> bringing glad tidings of salvation vnto the poore, binding vp the broken hearted, preaching libertie to the captiue, comforting all that mourne giuing beautie for ashes, and the garment of gladnesse for the spirit of heauinesse.

Is the Law then against the promise of God? ] If the Law conuince men of sin, then it serues not to giue life, but to kill: and so by consequent is against the promise giuing life.

Detestation, God forbid.

To this obiection our Apostle doth answer ne-gariuely: with

Attestation, producing out of Gods owne booke sufficient witness against their cauillers. If there had beene a Law giuen which could haue giuen life, then no doubt righteousnesse should haue come by the Law, but the Scripture concludeth all vnder sinne, &c.

God forbid] In that Paul auoids an hereticall and blasphemous obiection with an abst, (which is <sup>v</sup> abominantis oratio) we may learne to <sup>z</sup> reiect things said or done to the dishonour of God, with loathing and detestation. <sup>a</sup> Caiaphas supposing that Christ had blasphemed, rent his garments: and Iob suspecting his children had done the like fault, sanctified them, Iob 1. 5. <sup>b</sup> What reason is it to spare great ones, iniuring Christ the greatest one? For as wise men we must discover,

<sup>y</sup> Arelus in
Rom. 6. 2.

<sup>z</sup> Perkins.

<sup>a</sup> Matth 26 65

<sup>b</sup> Magdeburg.
epist. prefix
cent. 7.

discouer, and as learned men leane, but as good men abhorre such as are hereticall. And therefore we must hate the detestable dreames of Iewes affirming that the Messias is not yet come, because our sinnes hinder his comming. As if God should become vnrightheous, because of our vnrightheousnesse; or made a lier, because men are liers. It is said here that God is one, <sup>d</sup> that is, euer the same, being alway iust and true. God forbid then a man should thinke that the Law should be against his promise; for he doth not slacke his promise because of our sinnes, or hatten the same for our rightheousnesse and merits, he regardeth in it neither the one nor the other.

For if there had beene a Law giuen which could haue giuen life, then no doubt rightheousnesse should haue come by the Law. ] <sup>e</sup> If the Law were contrarie to the promise then it should execute the promises office: but that it cannot doe, for it is the promises office to giue life, but the Lawes office to kill. And therefore the Law is not against the promise, but rather a <sup>f</sup> preparation to receiue the promise. This argument is an hammer to beat downe the Popish opinion of merit: That which doth giue rightheousnesse, doth first giue life; the workes of the Law cannot giue life: Ergo, they cannot giue rightheousnesse, or iustifie. See Luther & Perkins in loc.

But the Scripture concludeth all things vnder sinne, that the promise by the faith of Iesus Christ should be giuen to them that beleene ] Things subordinate, whereof one serues for another, are not one against another: but the Law is subordinate to the promise, concluding all vnder sinne, that we might haue recourse to Christ the <sup>g</sup> propitiation for our sins. <sup>h</sup> Ideo enim datur preceptum vt precipientis quaratur auxilium. It humbleth a man, and in humbling him it maketh him to sigh, and to seeke the helping hand of the Mediator, <sup>i</sup> sweetning his mercies, and making his grace gracious and inestimable. The prouerbe is true, that hunger is the best Cooke. <sup>k</sup> Like then as the drie ground doth couet raine: euen so the Law makes troubled and afflicted soules to thirst after Christ, and in this respect it is our school-master to bring vs to Christ. <sup>l</sup> A schoole-master hath two speciall offices; one to correct, another to direct. It correcteth in shutting vs up in the prison of sinne; and it <sup>m</sup> directeth also, for that it occasioneth vs hereby to hunger and thirst after the rightheousnesse of Christ.

The Scripture ] <sup>n</sup> ὕπαρῃ That Scripture, <sup>n</sup> namely the Scripture mentioned afore, meaning <sup>o</sup> especially the written Law of Moses, including all vnder sinne: Deut. 27. 26. Cursed is euery man that continueth not in all things which are written in the booke of the Law to doe them. Euery man is bound to keepe the whole Law: P Claudit ergo sub peccato subditos sibi, precipiendo siquidem, & non adinuando. But this may be construed of <sup>q</sup> Euangelicall Scripture so well as of the Law; for if all men had not beene subiect vnto the course by sin, for what end should the blessing by Christ haue beene promised, because <sup>r</sup> the whole need not a Physition? And so both Gospell and Law shut vp all vnder sin, <sup>s</sup> that God might haue mercie on all.

Concludeth ] Ergo the Scripture must be Iudge for the determining of controversies in Religion. For (as <sup>t</sup> Optatus and <sup>u</sup> Augustine note) God hath dealt with vs as an earthly father is wont with his children, who fearing lest they should fall out after his decease, doth set downe his will in writing vnder witnesses, and if there arise debate among the brethren, instantly they goe to the testament. All of vs are brethren, and <sup>x</sup> therefore wee should not contend: but if any question be made concerning our Fathers inheritance, wee must examine the words of his testament, and <sup>y</sup> testimonie, for that as a Iudge concludeth all things.

All things ] <sup>z</sup> as if he should say, not all men only, but all things also, which all men can doe toward their saluation, euen <sup>a</sup> all the world culpable before God vnder sinne.

That the promise by the faith of Iesus Christ should be giuen to them that beleene ] There is <sup>b</sup> neuer a word in this clause but is a sufficient argument against our merit: promise, faith, Iesus Christ, giuen, beleene. Sauiug faith is called here the

<sup>c</sup> Luther.

<sup>d</sup> Maylorat.

<sup>e</sup> Aretius.

<sup>f</sup> Caietan.

<sup>g</sup> Iohn 2. 2.

<sup>h</sup> Leo serm. 111. de quadagesima.

<sup>i</sup> Psal 109. 20. Sweet is thy mercie.

<sup>k</sup> Luther.

<sup>l</sup> Aretius in Galat. 3. 24.

<sup>m</sup> Photius apud Occumen. in loc

<sup>n</sup> Perkins.

<sup>o</sup> Caluin. apud Marlorat. in loc.

<sup>p</sup> Caietan.

<sup>q</sup> Luther.

<sup>r</sup> Matth. 9. 12.

<sup>s</sup> Rom. 11. 32.

<sup>t</sup> Lib. 5. contra Parmenian.

<sup>u</sup> In Psal. 21. expost. 2.

<sup>x</sup> Gen. 13. 8.

<sup>y</sup> Esay. 8. 20.

<sup>z</sup> Marlorat.

<sup>a</sup> Rom. 3. 19.

<sup>b</sup> Beza in loc.

faith of Iesus Christ, because Christ is both author and object thereof. Euerie man therefore shall not be faued in his owne faith and religion, but only such as are of the faith of Christ.

Almightie and mercifull God, of whose only gift it commeth that thy faithfull people doe vnto thee true and laudable seruice: grant we beseech thee, that we may so run to thy heauenly promises, that we faile not finally to attain the same through Iesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

The Gospell. LUKE IO. 23.

Happie are the eyes which see the things that ye see, &c.

This Text hath two parts:

}	One concerning the Gospell: containing a	} Proposition: Happie are the eyes, &amp;c. Reason: For I tell you, &amp;c.
	Another touching the Law: wherein foure points are remarkable:

Happie are the eyes which see the things that ye see] Christ in the words immediately going a fore deliuered this doctrine: No man knoweth who the Sonne is, but the Father, neither who the Father is, saue the Sonne, and hee to whom the Sonne will reueale him. And then turning about to his Disciples, he said secretly, Blessed are the eyes which see the things, that is, these things<sup>d</sup> bidden from the wise and learned, but opened vnto you: for this is<sup>e</sup> eternall life, to know God, and whom he hath sent Iesus Christ. <sup>f</sup> Some did see Christ only with corporall eyes of the flesh, as Iudas and the Iewes who Persecuted him. Other only with spirituall eyes of faith, as the Patriarkes in old time: Iohn 8. 56. Abraham reioyced to see my day, &c. and all true beleeuers in our time, faith being an euidence of things not seene, Heb. 11. 1. But the Disciples here saw Christ with both, and therefore blessed were their eyes, &c. Such as beheld Christ only with their carnall eye, were not happie therefore, but the worfe: for, faith our Sauour in the <sup>h</sup> Gospell, If I had not come and spoken vnto them, they should not haue had sinne, but now haue they no cloake for their sinne. Such as see Christ only with the spirituall eye, be more happie; for <sup>i</sup> Blessed are they that haue not seene, and yet haue beleeued. Such as looked vpon Christ spirituallly and corporally too were most happie, The first sort saw Christ, but they did not beleeu: <sup>k</sup> they considered him as a meere man, but they did not conceiue that he was the onely begotten Sonne of God, Iohn. 1. 14. they reputed Christ on the Crosse to be <sup>l</sup> rem not Deus, a sinner, not a Sauour. The second sort beleeu, but not see: they beleeu that which was from the beginning, but they cannot say with <sup>m</sup> Saint Iohn, which we haue heard, which we haue seene with our eyes which we haue looked vpon, and our hands haue handled of the Word of life. The third sort did see more then the first, and beleeued so much at the least as the second: and therefore Christ might say well, Happie are the eyes, &c.

For I tell you, that many Prophets and Kings haue desired to see those things which ye see] That ought to be respected highly, which great men and good men affect: but I tell you, that many Princes and Prophets haue desired to see those things

<sup>d</sup> Theophylact.
Idem Cyril. apud:
Veg in loc.
<sup>e</sup> Iohn 17. 3.
<sup>f</sup> Arden.
Gransen.
Zepper.

<sup>g</sup> Heming.
<sup>h</sup> Iohn 15. 22.

<sup>i</sup> Iohn 20. 29.

<sup>k</sup> Aretius in loc.

<sup>l</sup> Ambrosius in 45.

<sup>m</sup> Epistol. 1. 1.

things which ye see, and haue not seene them; and to heare those things which ye heare, and haue not heard them. For the Messias is called in holy Scripture, The desire of all Nations: Haggai 2.8. Of whom the Prophets enquired, searching when or what time the spirit which was in them should declare the sufferings that should come to Christ, and the glorie that should follow: 1. Pet. 1. 10. 11. When Balaam had prophesied of Christ There shall come a Starre of Iacob, and a Scepter shall arise of Israel, &c. he brake forth into this passion; Alas who shall line when God doth this? As if he should haue said; Happie men are they, who shall see that glorious Starre and Sunne of righteousness, comming out of his chamber as a Bridegrome, giuing light to such as sit in darkenesse, and in the shadow of death. Oh that thou wouldest breake the heauens and come downe, said the Prophet Esay. Good old Simoon waited for the consolation of Israel. Augustine wished he might haue seene three things especially, Rome in her glorie, Paul in the pulpit, and Christ in the flesh, If the Queene of Sheba reputed the seruants of Salomon happy, for that attending about his throne they heard his wisdome, discoursing of trees from the Ceder that is in Lebanon, euen vnto the Hyssop that springeth out of the wall: how blessed and happie were the disciples in hearing a greater than Salomon, and in seeing him who was fairer than the sonnes of men, in whom are hid all treasures of wisdome and knowledge? Coloss. 2. 3.

Here the Gospell and Epistle meet: Happie are the eyes which see those things which ye see; for Christ is the promised seed of Abraham, in whom all the nations of the world are blessed. And for application it fits our text and time, to say, Blessed are our eyes, and blessed our eares in this great light of the Gospell. For we now see Christ in his Sacraments, and heare Christ in his word. He liueth at this houre, non solum inter nos, sed etiam intra nos: not among vs onely, but in vs also, dwelling in our hearts by faith, Ephes. 3. 17. Galat. 2. 20. The Scriptures are as a prospectiue glasse, where in he that hath eyes of beleeffe is able to behold Christ crying in his cradle, dying on his crosse, buried in his graue, railed from the dead, transfigured on the mount, ascended farre about all heauens, and there sitting as our Aduocate with God the Father. O that men would therefore declare the goodnesse of God, in shewing vs the light of his countenance, revealing the great mysteries of godlinesse, which in other ages was not opened vnto the sonnes of men after such a manner as it is now. For I tell you many good Clerkes, and great Kings of England haue desired in old time to see those things which ye see, and haue not seene them: and to heare those things which ye heare, and haue not heard them. And at this day there be many learned men among the Iewes, and mightie men among the Turkes, and goodly men among the barbarous and superstitious nations of the world, which vnderstand not as yet those things which appertaine to their peace.

And behold a certaine Lawyer stood vp and tempted him saying: Master what shall I doe to inherit eternall life? A wittie Rabbine was wont to say, that he learned much of his master, more of his fellowes, but most of his schollers. And so surely this ambitious Doctor might haue got somewhat by questioning, albeit he tooke Christ haply for his inferiour. But his intent was not to be taught, but to tempt, ἐπιπειλάειν αὐτὸν vsing all possible meanes, and all plausible cunning to snare Christ in his conference. For as Herod the fox asked the Priests and enquired of the Magi diligently when and where Christ was borne; not to worship, but to worrie that innocent lambe: so many men heare the word, and in reading the Bible moue many doubts vpon the text, not to consult, but insult. As one notes vpon this place, non ut sciant, sed ut sciatur. The Lawyers preamble was courteous, Master, and his quere not idle, like the contentions of many Lawyers in our time, De lana caprina, touching the rithing of mint and rue; but concerning our eternall inheritance, what shall I doe to inherit euerlasting life? but his spirit was proud, and his heart false, standing vp to tempt, hauing Master

<sup>n</sup> Vide Riber. in Hag. 2. num. 19. Gal. de arcans lib. 4. cap. 9. Lorin in 1. Pet. 1. 10. 11. <sup>o</sup> Num. 24. 17.

<sup>p</sup> Cap. 64. 16 <sup>q</sup> Luke 2. 25. <sup>r</sup> Pontian. in Euan. Dom. 13. post Tris. <sup>s</sup> 1. King. 10. 8. <sup>t</sup> 1. King 4. 33. <sup>u</sup> Matth. 12. 42. <sup>x</sup> Psal. 45. 3.

<sup>v</sup> Vide Chysof. Homil. 24 in 1. Cor. <sup>z</sup> Coffer in loc.

<sup>a</sup> Psal. 67. 1. <sup>b</sup> 1. Tim. 3. 16. <sup>c</sup> Ephes. 3. 7.

<sup>d</sup> P. Fagius capitul. pat. pag. 1.

<sup>e</sup> Aretius. <sup>f</sup> Matth. 2. 4. 7.

<sup>g</sup> Pontian.

in his mouth, hatching mischiefe in his minde. I will therefore turne that old ryme vpon him:

*Mel in ore, verba lactis.
Fel in corde, frans in factis.*

<sup>h</sup> Con. in Euan-gel. Dom. 12. post Pentecost.

What is written in the Law? how readeſt thou? ] <sup>h</sup> Didacus de la Vega, who was a Spanish Frier of Toledo, notes here that the Bible teacheth all things exactly, which are necessarie to saluation, in his owne Text: Sacra pagina docet nos perfectissime que sunt ad salutem necessaria. The Iesuit Costerus in his sermon preached vpon the Gospell, affords also the Scripture this praise, that it is speculum & regula vite. Christ therefore sent the Lawyer vnto the Law for the resolution of his doubt; What is written? how readeſt thou? So Luke 16.29. They haue Moses and the Prophets, let them heare them. And Esay 8.20. To the Law, to the testimony. De rebus fidei persuadere debemus ex literis fidei, saith <sup>i</sup> Tertullian. It is an old prouerbe, that the letters of Princes are to be read thrice, but the Scripture ( which is <sup>k</sup> Gods Epistle ) must we read <sup>l</sup> siuen times thrice; yea seuentie times seuen times. Infinities, as Luther speaks in the words of a <sup>m</sup> Poet, Nocturna versate manu, versate diurna. That delighting in the Law of the Lord, we may meditate thereon day and night, Psal. 1.2. For it is not sufficient to reade cursorily <sup>n</sup> sine delectu & intellectu: we must <sup>o</sup> examine the Text, and <sup>p</sup> search the Scriptures, And therefore Christ here said not only, what is written in the Law? but, how readeſt thou? That is, how dost thou vnderstand and construe Gods holy word.

<sup>i</sup> Lib. de praescript. aduers. heret.
<sup>k</sup> Gregor. epist. lib. 4. Epist. 34.
<sup>l</sup> Luther loc. com. in de sac script.
<sup>m</sup> Horat.
<sup>n</sup> Coster in loc.
<sup>o</sup> Act. 17. 11.
<sup>p</sup> Iohn 5. 39.

Loue the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soule; and with all thy strength, and with all thy minde ] This commandement is the <sup>q</sup> first and the greatest of all the Law:

<sup>q</sup> Matth. 22. 38.

Wherin 2. points are regar dable:	} The cause why God is to be loued, and that is <sup>r</sup> because	} Dominus Deus , the Lord.
} Heart.
} Soule.
} Strength } Minde.

<sup>r</sup> Heming.
<sup>s</sup> Tract. de diligendo Deo in prin.
<sup>t</sup> 1. Iohn 4. 19.
<sup>u</sup> Bernard ubi supra.
<sup>v</sup> Vega.
<sup>w</sup> 1. King. 18. 21.

The saying of <sup>x</sup> Bernard is true: Causa diligendi Deum Deus est: as being most louing, and louely: Louing, in that he loued <sup>y</sup> vs first, euen in our election and creation, when we could not; in our redemption, when we would not loue him. <sup>z</sup> Ipse dilexit nos & tantum & tantum & gratis tantillos & tales. Louely, being indeed the <sup>a</sup> center of all our loue; for we most loue nothing but good, and every good is from aboute comming downe from the Father of lights. As when <sup>y</sup> Eliab said, If the Lord be God, follow him: in like manner if the Lord be God; loue him. Againe, thou must loue the Lord, because thy God: for euery man loueth his owne; his owne children, his owne friends, his owne goods, his owne conceit, Non quia vera, (saith <sup>z</sup> Augustine) sed quia sua: Now nothing is so properly thine owne as God, being <sup>a</sup> thy portion for ener. It is obserued by <sup>b</sup> Picus Mirandula subtilly, that in the creation of the world, God gaue the Water vnto the Fish, Earth vnto the Beast, Ayre vnto the Fowles, Heauen vnto the glorious Angels: and then after all these goodly feats were bestowed, Almighty God made man according to his owne likenesse and image, that he might say with the Prophet, Psalme 73. 24. Whom haue I in keauen but thee? and there is none vpon earth that I desire in comparison of thee. Thou Lord art my lot and inheritance, the strength of my heart, and saluation of my soule. <sup>c</sup> Si esuris, parvis tibi est; si sitis, aqua tibi est; si in tenebris es, lumen tibi est, &c.

<sup>z</sup> Confess. lib. 12. cap. 25.
<sup>a</sup> Psal. 73. 25.
<sup>b</sup> Pi Diez con. 2. Dom. 12. post Pentecost.
<sup>c</sup> Aug. tract. 13 in Ioan.
<sup>d</sup> De doctrina Christi. lib. 1. cap. 21. & de spirit. & anima cap. 35. Idem Lombard. 3. sent. dist. 27.
<sup>e</sup> Michael. de Hung. Ser. 9.

The manner how to loue God, with all thy heart, with all thy soule, with all thy minde. That is, as <sup>d</sup> Augustine, with all thy vnderstanding, <sup>e</sup> neuer speaking or thinking of him erroneously: with all thy will, neuer contradicting him obstinately: with all thy memorie, neuer forgetting him obliuiously: louing him <sup>f</sup> perfectly, perfectly, purely, perpetually. Or as <sup>g</sup> Bernard, with all thy heart wisely, resisting the subtil suggestions of the deuill: withall thy soule sweetly, mortifying all carnall lusts of the flesh: with all thy minde constantly, ouercomming all crosses and troubles of the world. Or as <sup>h</sup> Gregorie Nyssen, with all the faculties of thy soule, vegetatiue, sensitiue, ratiocinatiue, for in him we liue, and moue, and haue our being, Acts 17.28. He gaue all, and therefore good reason he should haue all. Or as <sup>i</sup> Dauid ioyntly, with all that is within thee. <sup>k</sup> For the multiplying of so many termes, heart, soule, strength, minde, is only to shew that we must perfectly loue God aboue all, euen with all the <sup>l</sup> strength of all our heart, soule, minde. Modo sine modo, saith Bernard, tract. de diligendo Deo.

Haply some will obiekt, if we must loue God with all our heart, soule, minde, might, it is not lawfull to loue any thing else besides him. Answer is made that we may loue something prater Deum, sed omnia propter Deum: <sup>m</sup> Other things beside God, if we loue them in God and for God. As the words following intimate, Thou shalt loue thy neighbour as thy selfe.

In which obserue <sup>n</sup> the }	Causes,	}	of our loue toward our neighbour.

	Measure, Order,

The causes are two:

}	Commandement in Scripture: John 13.34. and 15.12.
	This is my Commandement, that you loue one another.
	Band of nature; because man is neighbour to man, in respect of creation and conuersation.

Angels fight not against Angels, but against the fell <sup>o</sup> Dragon. Birds of a feather flie together. One beast is not cruell vnto another of the same kinde. for Cocks (as many coniecture) fight not out of malice, but magnanimitie, rather out of ieaousie then antipathy. Most vnnaturall then is it for one man to wrong another of his owne kinde, yea kinne. For whereas Almighty God made not all Angels of one Angell, nor all beasts of the great Elephant, nor all fish of the huge Whale, nor all birds of the maiesticall Eagle; he made all mankinde of one Adam, <sup>p</sup> hereby teaching vs to loue as brethren, and to be all as one, because we did proceed all from one.

For the measure of thy loue, the text saith here, Thou shalt loue thy neighbour as thy selfe. Now the <sup>q</sup> schoole Diuines obserue, that as is a note of similitude, not equalitie. The Law doth require that thou loue thy neighbour as thy selfe, for the manner of thy loue: <sup>r</sup> but not as much as thy selfe, for the measure of thy loue: because charitie begins with it selfe, making a man to loue first himselfe, then his neighbour as himselfe, that is, <sup>s</sup> In quo seipsum & ad quod seipsum, in that, and for that he loues himselfe, namely louing him in God, and wishing him all good. Other <sup>t</sup> Interpreters haue gone further, affirming, that according to the rigour of law thou must loue thy neighbour as thy selfe, not onely with the same loue, but also with the same degrees of loue. Now then how thou louest thy selfe, thou doest know best thy selfe. But howsoeuer some learned Authors haue denied degrees of intention, all acknowledge that there be degrees of extention in our charitie. For, as God is the God of loue; so likewise the God of order: And therefore whereas all men in the world cannot be partakers of our temporall goods and spirituall graces alike, <sup>u</sup> such as are neereſt ought to be dearest vnto vs. I say neereſt, <sup>x</sup> in spirituall or carnall alliance: For the first, it is said exprefly, <sup>y</sup> doe good to all, especially to those which are of the household of faith, of Gods owne family the <sup>z</sup> Church, among whom the Ministers of the word are the <sup>a</sup> chiefest. According to this rule, Christ in the Gospell honoured his spirituall allies afore his naturall brethren and kindred; for when one told him, Behold thy mother and thy brethren stand without, desiring to speake with thee, Christ stretched forth his hand towards his Disciples and said, <sup>b</sup> Behold my mother and my brethren: for whosoever shall doe my Fathers will which is in heauen, the same is my brother, and sister, and mother. <sup>c</sup> Est enim sanctior copula cordium, quam corporum, Yet <sup>d</sup> (all other things being alike ( we must affect and respect our owne wife before

<sup>f</sup> Heming.
<sup>g</sup> Ser. de diligendo Deo. Idem Ludol. de vita Christi, part. 2. cap. 36.

<sup>h</sup> Lib. de hominis epif. cap. 8.

<sup>i</sup> Psal. 103. 1.

<sup>k</sup> Theoplytaſt.

Greger.

Arcinius.

<sup>l</sup> Bernardinus de bustis Roſar. part. 2. ser. 5.

<sup>m</sup> Lumber post.

maior in loc.

Idem Thom. 22.

quest. 44. art. 4.

<sup>n</sup> Bonaventura

in 3 sent. dist. 27.

<sup>o</sup> Heming.

<sup>p</sup> Heming.

<sup>q</sup> Apoc. 12. 7.

<sup>r</sup> Aug de bono

Coniugal. cap. 1.

<sup>s</sup> Lombard 2.

sent. dist. 18.

<sup>t</sup> Thom. ab Ar-gentin. & Ric.

de media villa in

3. sent. dist. 29.

Idem Tho. 22.

quest. 6. art. 4.

<sup>u</sup> Iansen. con.

cap. 81.

<sup>v</sup> Iacob de Verag.

serm. 2. in loc.

Idem Lombard 3

sent. dist. 27.

<sup>w</sup> Caluin. apud

Niarlorat. in

Matth. 22. 39.

<sup>x</sup> Aug de doc.

Christi. l. 1. c. 28.

<sup>y</sup> Heming.

<sup>z</sup> Gal. 10. 6.

<sup>a</sup> Caietan.

<sup>b</sup> Luk.

<sup>c</sup> Matth. 12. 49.

<sup>d</sup> Lombard 3.

sent. dist. 29.

<sup>e</sup> Aliffiodor.

aur. sum. sol.

141. ex Amb.

<sup>c</sup> 1. Tim. 5. 8.

<sup>f</sup> Gen. 43. 44.

<sup>g</sup> Gen. 45. 22.

<sup>h</sup> Iohn 19. 16.
20. 3. 21. 7. 20.

<sup>i</sup> Vbi sup.

<sup>k</sup> D. Falks, & Sarcer. in loc.

<sup>l</sup> Heming.

<sup>m</sup> Iohn 14. 6.

<sup>n</sup> Matth. 11. 28.

<sup>o</sup> Melanct.
Sarcerius,
Z'pper.
<sup>p</sup> Luther.
<sup>q</sup> Arctius

<sup>r</sup> Rhem. &
Pontan. in loc.
Non quid cre- dendo, sed quid faciendo.

<sup>s</sup> Matth. 5. 43.

<sup>t</sup> Ioh. 4. 9. vide Ioseph. antiquit.
lib. 11. ca. 7. & 8.

<sup>u</sup> Ambros. Euthym. Luther.
Melanct. Ar-
ctius, & alij.
<sup>v</sup> Ephes. 4. 24.

<sup>w</sup> 2. Cor. 3. 7.

before our owne children, our children before kinsmen, our kinsmen before such neighbours as are not of our bloud, our neighbours before strangers, and strangers of our owne Countrey before forrainers of another Nation. Of this order in our loue we finde a precept in <sup>c</sup> Paul, He that provideth not for his owne, namely, for them of his household, is worse then an Infidell: An example in Ioseph, who preferred Benjamin his owne brother by father and mother too before the rest of his vnkinde brethren: in his feast, Beniamins messe was <sup>f</sup> five times as much as any of theirs: at his farewell, other had change of raiment and money, but vnto Benjamin <sup>g</sup> he gaue three hundred peeces of siluer and five suits of apparell. Our blessed Sauour himselfe being the true Ioseph, euen the truth and the way, loued his owne Disciples more then other men, and S. Iohn more then other of his Disciples, termed in the <sup>h</sup> Gospels Historie, The Disciple whom Iesus loued. I conclude in the words of <sup>i</sup> Lombard, Omnes homines diligendi sunt pari affectu, sed non pari affectu. See Tom. 2. 2a. quast. 26 art. 6. 7. 8. Caietan, & Dominic. Ban. ibidem. Altissiodor. Thom. ab Argentina. Ric. de media villa, reliquosq. sententiariorum in 3. sent. dist. 29

Thou hast answered right, doe this and thou shalt liue.] For the better vnderstanding of this clause [doe this and thou shalt liue] consider I pray, to what, and to whom Christ made this reply. First, to what. <sup>k</sup> It is not demanded here by what meanes a man might obtaine life euerlasting, but by what doing, or by what kinde of workes; and therefore Christ answered accordingly; what is written in the Law? doe this, and thou shalt liue. Secondly, to whom, he did now deale with a Doctor of the Law, with a Pharisee, with one who was willing to iustifie himselfe: he did therefore send him to the Law, not vnto the promise. <sup>l</sup> But speaking of eternall life to penitent sinners, he saith, <sup>m</sup> I am the way: promising in generall, <sup>n</sup> Come to me all ye that are wearie and laden, and I will ease you: performing his word in particular; O woman, thy faith hath saued thee, Luk. 7. 50, Christ then in saying, Doe this and thou shalt liue, shewes the Lawyers <sup>o</sup> hypocrisie, who thought he could doe this; and not a possibilitie to doe this: as if he should say, thou didst neuer in all thy life fulfill the whole Law, nor yet one letter thereof as thou shouldest perfectly: thou must therefore thinke of <sup>q</sup> another way to the kingdome of heauen. Here the Gospell and Epistle meet againe. The Law cannot giue life (saith Paul) The Leuite and Priest of the Law, did not helpe the wounded man halfe dead (saith Christ) The Scripture concludeth all things vnder sinne, that the promise by the faith of Iesus Christ, shall be giuen to them that beleue, saith our Epistle. Christ sends a Iusticiarie to the Law, that seeing his owne wretchednesse and wickednesse in it, he might come to Christ the loning Samaritane, to binde vp his wounds, and to poure wine and oyle into them, as it is in our Gospell. If Papiests in old time were not impudent in conioyning these two Scriptures as parallel, assuredly the <sup>r</sup> Papiests in our time as somewhat impudent in making the doctrine of these two so contrarie: that which God and the Church hath coupled together, let no man part asunder.

A certaine man] The Doctors of the Law construed the Commandement, loue thy neighbour, thus: <sup>s</sup> loue thy friend and hate thine enemy. Christ therefore shewes by this parable that euery man is our neighbour, of what condition or country soeuer, euen our greatest enemy: For the <sup>t</sup> Iew did hate the Samaritane, accounting him as a dogge, and yet the Samaritane performed all neighbourly duties vnto the Iew, for that he did not commit any worke of crueltie, nor omit the worke of mercie toward him.

In an <sup>u</sup> allegorie, this man is euery man, who sinning in Adam, descended from Ierusalem to Iericho: that is from Gods Citie to the dominions of Satan. And fell among theeues: into manifold tentations and noysome lusts. Which robbed him of his rayment: of his <sup>v</sup> righteousnesse, and holinesse, wherewith Almighty God in his creation adorned him. And they wounded him and departed. For sinne wounding the conscience leaues a man in a desperate case. The Priest and the Leuite looking on him passed by. For the Law being the ministracion of <sup>w</sup> death, is rather a corasie then an healing medicine, procuring rather sorrow then solace to the the distressed soule. But a certaine Samaritan tooke compassion, &c. Christ touched with the feeling of our infirmitie, bound vp his wounds, and poured in oyle and wine: preaching repentance, which as wine doth search; and grace, which as oyle doth supple our sores. Hee set him on his owne beast: hee tooke on him our owne nature; bearing our owne finnes, in his body, suffering for vs in the flesh. And brought him to a common Inne. That is, the Church, as a common Inne receiuing all sorts of men, being travellers and Pilgrims on earth; albeit their Burgeship be in heauen. And made promise for him. As long as he liued among vs, he did good, and healed all that were oppressed of the deuill. On the morrow when he departed: leauing the world and ascending vp on high, he committed the wounded man vnto the Host; namely, to the Preachers of his word, appointing Apostles, Prophets, and Euangelists, and Pastors and Teachers. Vnto which he gaue two pence, that is, the two Testaments, as Euthymus; or as other, the two Sacraments: or as other, the two great Commandements: or as other, wholesome doctrine and holy conuersation: or iurisdiction and order; or the word and the Sacraments: all which are Gods ordinary meanes vnto saluation. And said, take care of him. He doth not inioyne the Minister to cure, but only to take care for the wounded man. As Bernard excellently, Petitur a te cura, non curatio. For if the wounded man, as Babylon, will not be cured, he shall die for his iniquitie, but thou hast deliuered thy soule. Thou hast done thy part, and thou shalt assuredly receiue thy reward. As Christ himselfe promised here, When I come againe I will recompence thee; Then he will say to the good Steward, It is well done trustie seruant, thou hast bene faithfull in little; I will make thee Ruler ouer much, enter into thy masters ioy.

Goe and doe likewise ] For if thou know this, and doe not this accordingly, thou doest not loue thy neighbour as thy selfe, and he that loues not his neighbour as himselfe, cannot loue God with all his heart, with all his soule, &c. Let vs therefore be followers of Christ as deare children, louing his as he loued vs: opening our bowels of compassion towards all such as mourne in Sion, binding vp the wounds of his distressed members vnder the Crosse, seeking not our owne, but one anothers good, that when he comes to iudgement we may heare and haue that happy doome: Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit ye the kingdome prepared for you: For I was an hungred, and ye gaue me meat; I thirsted, and ye gaue me drink; I was a stranger, and ye lodged me; I was naked, and ye cloathed me, &c. For in as much as ye haue done it vnto one of the least of these my brethren, ye haue done it vnto me.

The Epistle. GALAT. 5. 16.

I say, walke in the spirit, and fulfill not the lusts of the flesh, &c.

This Epistle may be diuided into two parts: a General exhortation, to walke in the spirit; and that in respect of a double benefit: namely, because the spirit deliuereth vs from the Lusts of the flesh, ver. 16. Walke in the spirit and ye shall not fulfill the lusts of the flesh. And ver. 24. They that are Christs, haue crucified the flesh, &c. Lists of the Law, ver. 18. If ye be led of the spirit, then are ye not vnder the Law.

Particular enumeration of the workes of the flesh, and fruits of the spirit.

In

- <sup>a</sup> Heb 4 15.
- <sup>b</sup> Flay 61 1.
- Ezech. 34 16.
- <sup>b</sup> Phil 2.7.
- <sup>c</sup> 1. Pet. 2.24.
- <sup>d</sup> 1. Pet. 2.11.
- <sup>c</sup> Phil 3.20.
- <sup>f</sup> Acts 10 38.
- <sup>e</sup> Ephes. 4.11.
- <sup>b</sup> In loc. Idem
- Amyof. Theophrast Emif.
- <sup>i</sup> 4. et vs.
- <sup>k</sup> August. apud Thom in loc.
- <sup>i</sup> Pangearol.
- ham. in Euang Dom. 12 post
- Pe 2. part. 2.
- <sup>m</sup> idem ibid.
- <sup>n</sup> Idem ibid
- <sup>o</sup> Lib. 4. de considerat.
- Pe 1er 5. 9.
- <sup>q</sup> Ezech 33. 9.
- <sup>r</sup> Matth 25. 23
- <sup>r</sup> Euthym.
- <sup>r</sup> Ephes 5. 1.
- <sup>r</sup> 1. Cor. 10. 24

Condition: The deeds of the flesh are manifest.

In the bed-roll of vices obserue their Kinds: as being against

Faith }
Idolatrie.
Witchcraft.
Heresie.

Good manners, especially

Chastitie:

Adulterie,
Fornication, Uncleannesse, Wantonnesse, as the daughters of luxury.
Gluttony.
Drunkennesse, as the mother.

Charitie:

Harred.
Variance.
Zeale: or wicked emulation.
Wrath.
Strife.
Seditions.
Enuying.
Murder.

Punishment: They which commit such things, shall not be inheritors of the kingdome of God.

Propertie: Fruites of the spirit

In the catalogue of vertues ob-serue likewise their

Kindes: quantum ad

intra: for the } Doing of good: loue, ioy, peace.
                          } Ending of euill: long suffering, gentlenesse.
extra: respecting } God, faith
                          } Our neighbours, goodnes.
                          } Our selues, temperance.

Benefit: Against such there is no Law.

Concerning our Apostles exhortation; I haue shewed <sup>x</sup> else-where what it is to fulfill the lusts of the flesh, as also what it is to walke in the Spirit: and <sup>y</sup> that all such as are led of the Spirit, are not under the Law. Pardon mee then in passing sicco calamo, from the first vnto the second part.

The deeds of the flesh are manifest ] As being knowne to God: unto whom all things are <sup>z</sup> naked, euen the secrets of our <sup>a</sup> hearts and reines. And notorious in the sight of men: harred appearing in open court; gluttonie sitting in open Hall; drunkennesse reeling in open street; murther swaggering in open high-way; seditions in open field; emulation in open Schoole; worshipping of Images in open Temple; seels in open Pulpit. Adulterie, fornication, and other secret finnes of the chamber, albeit the night be neuer so darke; the curtaine neuer so close, the doore neuer so fast, are notwithstanding vsually brought to light also. Whereupon the Poets in old time painted Venus the mother of wontonnesse, naked; <sup>b</sup> insinuating that this iniquitie cannot be long couered. And manifest <sup>c</sup> as being committed against conscience: for as an <sup>d</sup> hereticke; so the drunkard, witch, adulterer is damned of his owne selfe: Yea the very Gentiles hauing not the Law, were notwithstanding in this respect a <sup>e</sup> Law to them selues. <sup>f</sup> Hence we may learne not to conceale, but freely to confesse our finnes before God and before men also when need shall require. Whether a man acknowledge them or no, they be manifest, and the ingenuous vnconcealing of them is the way to couer them. Agnosce tu, faith <sup>g</sup> Augustine, & Deus ignosce: I said I will confesse my wickednesse

<sup>x</sup> Epist. Sund. 8. after Trin.
<sup>y</sup> Epist. Sund. after Christmas and Epist. 4. Sun. in Lent.
<sup>z</sup> Heb 4. 13.
<sup>a</sup> Psal. 7. 10.

<sup>b</sup> Fulgentius mytholog. l. 2. in fabula Veneris.
<sup>c</sup> Aretius in loc.
<sup>d</sup> Tit. 3. 11.
<sup>e</sup> Rom 2. 14.
<sup>f</sup> Perkins in loc.
<sup>g</sup> Serm. 88. de Temp.

wickednesse vnto the Lord, and so thou forgauest the punishment of my sinne, Psalme 32.6.

Adulterie, fornication, vncleannesse, wantonnesse.] These finnes are named first, <sup>b</sup> because the flesh is most prone to commit them. Old <sup>i</sup> Lot did burne with flames of lust, whom all the fire that consumed Sodome could not once touch. <sup>k</sup> Ambrose said of Sampson: Qui leonem etiam suis manibus strangulauit, amorem suum suffocare non potuit, &c. And a <sup>l</sup> moderne Poet of Hercules

Lenam non potuit, potuit superare leenam:

Quem fera non valuit vincere, vicit hera.

Adulterie, when both or one of the parties delinquent are married, as the notation of the word intimates, <sup>m</sup> adulterium, quasi ad alterius torum. Fornication, is betweene such as are single, so called <sup>n</sup> fornicibus, of the place wherein common harlots vsed to prostitute their bodies. Vncleannesse, is incontinencie against <sup>o</sup> nature: <sup>p</sup> where these finnes were knowne, there they were named particularly by Paul: as among the Romans, Rom. 1.27. and to the Corinthians, 1. Cor. 6.9. but in Galatia where they were not knowne, they be mentioned in generall only, lest by naming of them he should after a sort teach them. Wantonnesse in <sup>q</sup> lasciuious attire, vnchaste talke, petulant behaviour, is an <sup>r</sup> instrument, and as it were the bellowes to blow the coales of lust in all.

Idolatrie, witchcraft.] It is plaine that Paul calleth here flesh whatsoever is in all the powers of an vnregenerate mans soule. The workes of the will that lustreth, are adulterie, fornication, vncleannesse, and such like: the workes of the will enclined to wrath, are hatred, vniuersities, seditions, enuying, &c. The workes of vnderstanding or reason, are Idolatrie, witchcraft, heresie. The which are distinguished <sup>s</sup> thus: Heresie, when we serue the true God with a false worship. Idolatrie, when we worship false gods, supposing them to be true. Witchcraft, when we adore false Gods, knowing them to be wicked and false. For the ground of that blacke Art is either an open or secret<sup>u</sup> league with Satan the prince of darkenesse, and so witchcraft (as our iudicious<sup>x</sup> Soueraigne well obserued) is the height of Idolatrie.

Adulterie, fornication, vncleannesse, gluttonie, drunkennesse, are manifestly knowne to be workes of the flesh, <sup>y</sup> euen to such as commit them: but Idolatrie doth appeare so spirituall, <sup>z</sup> as that it is manifest vnto the faithfull onely to be a deed of the flesh. A Turke beleeueth nothing lesse then that his Alcoran, his washings and other ceremonies are workes of the flesh. A Popish Monke when he leades a single life, saith Masse, prayeth on his beads, is so farre from holding himselfe an Idolater, or that he fulfilth any worke of the flesh; as that he calls himselfe a spirituall man, and is assuredly perswaded that these things are spirituall meanes of his saluation. He talketh of the Spirit, and thinketh he walketh in the Spirit. Nay the sinne of Idolatrie, though it be more reprehended in Gods word, and more punished in his workes, then other vices: yet it cleaueth so fast vnto flesh, <sup>a</sup> as that the best men in the world easily fall into it, and hauing once delighted therein, are most hardly drawne from it. Idols are called by the Prophet<sup>b</sup> Esay, <sup>c</sup> delectable skings. Ezechiel in the 23. Chapter of his Prophecie compareth Idolaters vnto a woman inflamed with loue toward some goodly young man, on whom she hath cast her eyes, and fixt her affection, and forgetting all modestie sendeth messengers for him, and bringeth him into the bed of loue. Saint John in his <sup>d</sup> Apocalypse accurately describes the superstitious and Idolatrous Church of Antichrist by a whore, whose doctrines, as the wine of her fornication, hath intoxicated the Kings and inhabitants of the earth; her cup is of gold, her selfe is araid with purple and scarlet, and gilded with gold, and precious stones and pearles. Hereby counterfetting the glorious ornaments of Christs owne spouse, the true Church: whose <sup>e</sup> shining is like to gold, and stones most cleare and precious, her lips like<sup>f</sup> scarlet, and her loue much better then wine.

Let vs then aboue all other workes of carnalitie, take heed of Idolatrie, which is so secret a vice, that it is discovered of none but such as haue crucified the flesh, <sup>b</sup> Marlowal.

<sup>i</sup> Albinus quast.
in Gen.
<sup>k</sup> Apolog. David.
cap. 4.
<sup>l</sup> Owin Epigram.

<sup>m</sup> Isidor.
Etym. lib. 5. cap.
26 Idem Allenstaig. & alij.
<sup>n</sup> Isidor.
Etym. lib. 10 & Aufeim. in
loc.
<sup>o</sup> Aquin.
Cuietax.
<sup>p</sup> Peckius.
<sup>q</sup> Arcinus.
<sup>r</sup> Caluin.
<sup>s</sup> Luther.

<sup>t</sup> Aduanc. of learning. lib. 2
pag penult.

<sup>u</sup> Aug de doct.
Christi. lib. 2.
cap 20.
Vide Allenstaig.
ex verb. at mag ca.
<sup>v</sup> Demonolog.
lib. 3. cap 6.
<sup>w</sup> Hieron. in loc.
<sup>x</sup> Luther.

<sup>y</sup> See Arroy against Idolatry, cap 2.
<sup>z</sup> Cap 44 9.
<sup>a</sup> Que maxime
amant idolatre.
Vatablus ibid.
<sup>b</sup> C. p. 17.

<sup>c</sup> Reuelat 21.
11. 18.
<sup>d</sup> Cant. 4. 3. 10.

and

and are led of the spirit. And for this cause let vs haue the commandment alwaies in our eye, thou shalt haue none other gods but me. Forbidding foure things especially: first, the hauing of strange gods, and not the true: as had the <sup>r</sup> Gentiles. Secondly, the hauing of strange gods with the true: as the <sup>h</sup> Samaritans had. Thirdly, the hauing of no gods at all, as the <sup>i</sup> foolish Atheists. Fourthly, the not hauing of the true God a right, according to his owne word and will, as the congregations of Heretickes and Antichrists.

Hatred, variance ] In this enumeration of sinnes against charitie, the first is hatred, and the last, murder. <sup>k</sup> Quia ab hoc peruenitur ad illud. If we stop not hatred in the beginning, it will breake forth into contentious words; and brawling speeches, haply misled by distempered zeale, will grow to seditions and schismaticall actions, and these breed enuying, and enuie begets murder; according to that of <sup>l</sup> Cyprian, Inuidia fons cladum, after <sup>o</sup> diuers: there follow <sup>q</sup> diuers. For this one fault, is <sup>m</sup> toxicum charitatis, & ostium iniquitatis; as it were the death of amitie, and doore of enmitie, the very <sup>n</sup> matter of all mischiefe, and <sup>o</sup> hell of the soule. Concerning gluttonie, see before Epist. i. Sunday in Aduent: and of drunkennesse, hereafter Epist. 20. Sunday after Trinitie.

And such like ] Paul added this clause, <sup>p</sup> lest any should imagine that there be no more deeds of the flesh: as if he should say, by <sup>q</sup> these yee may conceiue what the rest are, for it is <sup>r</sup> vnpossible to reckon vp all. If Paul numbring the sinnes of his time, was constrained to breake off his catalogue with an & cetera, how shall the Preachers at this day deliuer vp a true inuentorie? For, as now and then all humours of the whole bodie fall downe into the legs, and there make an issue: so the corruption of all ages past, haue slid downe into the present, to the choking and annoyance of all that is good. The worlds end doth afford the same faults and the like to them in the beginning, yea doubtlesse many monsters of sinne, which our forefathers of old could neuer paralell.

<sup>s</sup> Of the which I tell you before, as I haue told you in times past ] Hence Ministers are taught often to forwarne the people of the future iudgements of God for their sinnes: <sup>t</sup> if present, by word: if absent, by writing: Esay 58. 1. Mich. 3. 8. When a man otherwise cannot hit the marke, he must draw the bow to the eare and shoot home: little chiding and once rebuking will doe no good with such as haue stonie hearts and brazen faces, it is our dutie therefore to threaten, yea thunder againe, and againe, saying with Paul, as I told you before, so kill I forewarne you <sup>u</sup> while ye may take heed, repent and returne from your wicked course, That they which commit such things, shall not be inheritors of the kingdome of God. Not all they which haue such impure motions arising in their minde: but they which commit such actions in their life, τοιαυτα εργαοντες, such as doe. Not all such as haue done those things once, twice, thrice: for <sup>x</sup> in many things we sinne all, and euery age, euen in the <sup>y</sup> faithfull, hath his peculiar fault and follie. Lust assaults a man most in his youth, ambition in his middle age, and couetousnesse in his old age. <sup>z</sup> Such then as haue done these things, and after haue heartily repented, are not excluded from the kingdome of God: but only such as doe, <sup>a</sup> noting a present and a continued act of doing amisse. The <sup>b</sup> godly men often falls into the workes of the flesh, and being admonished thereof recouers himselfe, he dath not stand in the way of sinners, although he sometimes enter into it. On the contrarie, sinners irrepented and obstinate, when they fall, lie still in the filthinesse of the flesh, hating reformation, and heaping to themselves wrath against the day of wrath, Rom. 2. 5. All they which doe this, and die thus without a liuely faith and vnfained repentance, shall not be inheritors of the kingdome of God.

The fruit of the spirit is ] <sup>d</sup> Interpreters obserue generally Pauls altering of his phrase; whereas he called acts of sinne workes of the flesh, he termes vertue the fruit of the Spirit. He speaks of the one plurally, The workes of the flesh are: but of the other singularly, The fruit of the spirit is. <sup>e</sup> Ad significandum quod malum contingit ex singularibus defectibus, bonum autem ex integra causa. To signifie

<sup>s</sup> Acts 14. 11.

12. 15.

<sup>h</sup> 1. King. 17. 33.

<sup>i</sup> Psal. 14. 1.

<sup>k</sup> Aquin.

<sup>l</sup> Ser. de liuore & zib.

<sup>m</sup> Holcot.

<sup>n</sup> Materia cul-parum, ubi Cyp.

vi sup.

<sup>o</sup> Alanus.

<sup>p</sup> Caietan.

<sup>q</sup> Primafius.

<sup>r</sup> Lutber.

<sup>s</sup> Caluin.

<sup>t</sup> Pelican. apud Marlorat.

<sup>u</sup> Anselm.

<sup>x</sup> James 3. 2.

<sup>y</sup> Lutber.

<sup>z</sup> Bullinger.

<sup>a</sup> Perkins.

<sup>b</sup> Marlorat.

<sup>c</sup> Psal. 1. 1.

<sup>d</sup> Occumen.

Anselm.

Aquin.

Arctius.

<sup>e</sup> Caietan.

that good is the effect of an entire cause, whereas euill comes of defects in many particulars. Or haply to shew that our vices exceed in number our vertues.

Christian vertues are fruits, <sup>f</sup> as bringing with them excellent commodities, enriching such as haue them, and alluring other also by their example to receiue the Gospell and Faith of Christ. And fruits of the Spirit, as begun, continued, ended according to the motions and admonitions of the Spirit: begun in faith, acted in obedience, ending in Gods honour. A good man is like a Tree planted by the waters side, that will bring forth his fruit in due time. The Church is the <sup>h</sup> Garden of God, Preachers are the planters, <sup>1</sup> Cor. 3. 6. 9. beleeuers are <sup>i</sup> Trees of righteousnesse, the spirit of God is the sap and <sup>k</sup> life of them, and good workes are the fruits which they beare. From <sup>l</sup> hence we may learne to distinguish aptly betweene Christian vertues in the professors of the Gospell, and ciuill vertues in heathen men. Ioseph is chaste, and so was Xenocrates. In Ioseph it was an especial fruit of the regenerating spirit, but in Xenocrates it was a work proceeding only from Gods generall prouidence. For there is a gift of regeneration able to mortifie corruption: and a gift of restraint which serues only to keepe in corruption.

Loue, ioy, peace, &c.] It had beene sufficient to haue named onely loue and no more: for as it is shewed, Epist. Quinquages. Sund. charity doth extend it selfe vnto all the fruits of the spirit, <sup>m</sup> notwithstanding our Apostle sets it here by it selfe among other vertues, and in the first place, to signifie that it is the very <sup>n</sup> fountaine from which all the rest are deriued. And therefore that Christians ought before other things affectionately tender the good of their brethren, <sup>o</sup> Giving honour one to another, euery man esteeming better of another then of himselfe, and so seruing one another in loue. The world in this age wants exceedingly this one vertue: for among the roaring Gentlemen it is but a word and a wound; among ciuill men, it is but a word and a writ. Ye that which is worst of all, among such as seeme Saints of the greatest puritie, there be so many sects and schismes euen about matters of Gods holy seruice; that if our Apostle were now liuing, he would censure them as he did the Corinthians in his time, <sup>q</sup> when one saith I am Pauls: and another, I am Apollos, are yee not carnall?

Against such there is no law.] Against such vertues, and against persons indued with such vertues, there is no law: that is, no law to <sup>r</sup> condemne, no law to <sup>s</sup> compell them. As if he should say, Such as are led by the spirit are a free people, seruing the Lord without constraint. If there were no punishment in this life, nor hell in the next for adultery, drunkennesse, murther, gluttonie, yet they would abstaine from these works of the flesh out of meere loue to God and goodnesse. For they that are Christs, haue crucified the flesh. In this crucifying foure points are to be considered:

1. Attachment.
2. Arraignment.
3. Iudgement.
4. Execution.

First, we must attach and bring our selues into Gods presence, saying with the <sup>t</sup> prodigall sonne, I will goe to my father. Secondly, we must indite our selues of our sinnes at the barre of Gods iudgement: I haue sinned against heauen, and before thee. Thirdly, we must <sup>u</sup> iudge our selues, that we be not iudged of the Lord: I am no more worthie to be called thy sonne. Fourthly, we proceed to the lawfull execution of the flesh, vsing the meanes for the crucifying of it, and they be principally <sup>x</sup> three: The first is applying of Christ crucified, and that is to beleeue not only that Christ was crucified for vs; but that we likewise were crucified with him.

The second is to beat downe the flesh by the sword of the spirit, propounding in our daily repentance the seuerall Commandements and threatnings of God against our seuerall affections and lusts. As it were slaying murther with

<sup>f</sup> Luther.
Ardens.

<sup>g</sup> Psal. 1 3.

<sup>h</sup> Cant. 4. 13.

<sup>i</sup> Esay 61. 3.

<sup>k</sup> Galat. 2. 20.

<sup>l</sup> Perkins.

<sup>m</sup> Luther.

<sup>n</sup> Ardens.

Anselm.

Arcetius.

<sup>o</sup> Rom. 12. 10.

<sup>p</sup> Gal. 5. 13.

<sup>q</sup> 1 Cor. 3. 4.

<sup>r</sup> Rom. 8. 1.

<sup>s</sup> 1 Tim. 1. 9.

Vide Melanct.

ibid.

<sup>t</sup> Luke 15. 18.

<sup>u</sup> 1 Cor. 11. 31.

<sup>x</sup> Perkins.

commandement, Thou shalt not kill: and robbing the theefe with another arrow taken out of Gods quiver, Thou shalt not steale.

<sup>v</sup> In loc.

The third is to cut off the first beginnings of euill, and to fly the present occasions of euery sin. With these spirituall nailes (as <sup>v</sup> Luther speaks) a Christian may fasten all carnall desire vnto the Crosse; so that although the flesh be yet aliue. yet can it not performe that which it would doe, for as much as it is bound hand and foot, and made subiect to the spirit.

Almighty and euerlasting God, giue vnto vs increase of faith, hope, and charitie: and that we may obtaine that which thou dost promise, make vs to loue that which thou doest command, through Iesus Christ our Lord.

The Gospell. L V K E 17. 11.

And it chanced as Iesus went to Hierusalem, that he passed thorow Samaria and Galile: and as he entred into a certaine towne, there met him ten men that were Lepers, &c.

Concerning Christs diligence, going about to doe good: obedience, sending the Lepers vnto the Priests of the Law: power and pitie, curing such an incurable disease. Concerning also the faith and fact of the Lepers in confessing and adoring Christ, I haue spoken enough in mine exposition of the Gospell, allotted for the third Sunday after Epiphany. There remaineth in all this history, but one point only to be further examined, and that is the gratitude, rather ingratitude of these Lepers:

Number of the thankgiuers: one among ten, and that one not a Jew, but a Samaritane.

In which obserue the Nature of the thankgiuing: adorned with many commendable vertues, as Obedience.

Desire to be with Christ.
Praising of God.
Humilitie.
Loue.
Faith.

<sup>x</sup> Culman.
Saceruius.
Aretius.

<sup>a</sup> Luk. 12. 32.

<sup>b</sup> Matth. 13.

<sup>c</sup> Diex.

Coster.

<sup>d</sup> Dan. 2.

One of them when he saw that he was cleansed <sup>z</sup> Hence we may learne, that the number of true beleeuers is but a <sup>a</sup> small flocke, and that among much <sup>b</sup> stony, more thorney, there is but a little good ground. Many men in the world <sup>c</sup> resemble <sup>d</sup> Nebuchadnezzars Image, whose head was of fine gold, his breast and his armes of siluer, his thighes of brasse, his legs of iron, and his feet part of iron, and part of clay: the beginning of all these Lepers was golden, and their proceedings as purified siluer; all beleued, all prayed, all obeyed Christ: but their end was dirtie, forsaking the word, and embracing the world. Hypocrites are like the Plaice, which hath a blacke side so well as a white: when once their turnes be serued by the white, they can and will instantly shew the blacke. While these men had their grieuous disease, they came to Christ, and cried to Christ, Iesus Master, haue mercie on vs: but feeling themselues healed, they forget him, and that which is worse, they side with the Priests against him. Among ten, one man only was thankfull, and continued faithfull vnto the end. And this one was a stranger and a Samaritane. Wherein our Euangelist doth taxe their ingratitude, by <sup>e</sup> comparing one with nine, and a Samaritane with a Jew. <sup>f</sup> Teaching vs also not to boast of our progeny, though neuer so godly, nor to despaire though neuer so wicked. In the businesse of our saluation oft it comes to passe, <sup>g</sup> that the first are the last, and the last are the first. In <sup>h</sup> Christ there is neither Jew nor Grecian, but in <sup>i</sup> euery Nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousnesse, is accepted with him.

<sup>e</sup> Caluin.
Iansen.

<sup>f</sup> Theophylast.

<sup>g</sup> Luk. 13. 30.

<sup>h</sup> Gal. 3. 28.

<sup>i</sup> Act. 10. 34.

The thankfulness of the Samaritane is accompanied with many notable vertues, as first obedience; for although he knew that he was, as he went cleansed of his leprosie: yet according to Christs expresse commandement he shewed himselfe to the Priests. And when he was with them, he was not seduced of them as the rest of his company. For whereas the Priest (as<sup>k</sup> it is thought) had corrupted and perswaded those other nine, that they were cured by the Lawes obseruation, and not by Christs either might or mercie: the Samaritane beleeued vnfaignedly that Christ was a Priest for ener after the order of<sup>l</sup> Melchisedec, euen an high Priest which is touched with the feeling of our infirmitie, Heb. 4. 15. and therefore leauing the legall Priests, he was desirous to be with Iesus his Sauiour. Euery man goeth astray, but the good man is <sup>m</sup> regrediens, returning againe to Christ which is the way. Being now come to Christ, he performes his dutie to God, and man. To God, in praising him with a laud voice, which argueth his <sup>n</sup> denotiation, and in falling on his face at Christs feet, which argueth his <sup>o</sup> humilitie. To man, for whereas Christ said vnto him. Are there not ten cleansed? but where are those nine? he made no reply; but held his peace; <sup>p</sup> signifying hereby that he came backe againe to remember his owne thanks, and not to tell tales of others ingratitude. These good things arising from a liuely faith, are well pleasing to God: and therefore Christ dismissed him accordingly, Goe thy way, thy faith hath made thee whole.

Let vs imitate the Samaritane in his <sup>a</sup> perseuerance, being neuer weary of<sup>r</sup> well-doing. The which one point (as <sup>t</sup> Cyprian and <sup>b</sup> Augustine haue noted) is almost all the contents of our Lords prayer. For in saying, hallowed be thy name, thy kingdome come, thy will be done, &c. what doe we desire, but that Gods name may be sanctified of vs alwayes, his kingdome propagated alwayes, his will fulfilled alwayes. If at any time we fall into sinne, we must returne againe by faith and repentance to Christ, humbling our selues at his feet, and seruing him in holinesse and righteousnesse all the dayes of our life.

The Gospell and Epistle parallel, for sinne is a spirituall leprosie, the spots whereof are adulterie, fornication, uncleannesse, idolatry, &c. Christ is the Physitian of our soule, who came into the world to saue sinners, 1 Tim. 1. 15. I, euen I, (saith the Lord) am he that putteth away thine iniquities, Esa. 42. 25. The Preachers of his word are his mouth, as it were, to <sup>x</sup> pronounce, that all such as truly repent, and vnfaignedly beleue his holy Gospell, are cured of their leprosie: but himselfe alone cleanseth vs from all sinne. Giuing vs his sanctifying Spirit also, whereby we put off the old man, and walke in newnesse of life. For as leprous <sup>z</sup> Naaman after he washed in Iordan, had new cleane flesh in stead of his old rotten flesh; euen so such as are Christs, and are led of his spirit, in stead of their ancient vices, hatred, variance, sedition, enuying, murther, &c. haue contrary vertues, as loue, ioy, peace, long-suffering, gentlenesse, &c. If Iob blessed God for a wound giuen; what thanks owe we to God for our wounds healed, and our sinne forgiuen? <sup>a</sup> O ineffabilis mysterij dispositio! peccat iniquus, & punitur iustus; delinquit reus, & vapulat innocens; offendit impius, & damnatur pius; quod meretur malus patitur bonus, quod committit homo sustinet Deus.

Pro seruis Dominus moritur, pro fontibus insons.

Pro aegroto medicus, pro grege pastor obit.

Pro populo rex maclatur, pro milite ductor;

Pro opere ipse opifex, pro homine ipse Deus.

Quid seruus, sons, aegrotus, quid grex populusque,

Quid miles, quid opas, quid homo soluet? amet.

<sup>k</sup> Lyra.
Culnan.
Aretius.

<sup>l</sup> Heb. 7. 17.

<sup>m</sup> Bertrandus
in loc.

<sup>n</sup> Ludolph.

<sup>o</sup> Panigarol.

<sup>p</sup> Iansen.
Coster.
Pontan.

<sup>q</sup> Melancthon.
Gal 6 9.

<sup>r</sup> Ser. de Orat.
Dom.

<sup>s</sup> De bono perseuerantie, cap. 2.

<sup>a</sup> See postil. cum
gl. ssis: & Fatus ser 5. Dom 15.
post. Pentecost.

<sup>x</sup> Zepper. con. 1.
in loc.

<sup>y</sup> 1 Ioh. 1. 7.

<sup>z</sup> 2 King. 5. 14.

<sup>a</sup> August. medit.
cap 7.

The Epistle. GALAT. 6. II.

Ye see how large a letter I haue written vnto you with mine owne hand, &c.

Saluters: Paul and the brethren, &c Preface: setting downe the } Saluted: The Churches of Galatia.
 } Salutation: Grace be with you, &c.

Doctrines of holy faith: from verse 6. of the first chapter, vnto vers. 13. of the fifth Chapter.

Treatise: concerning } Rules of good life: from vers. 13. of the fifth Chapter, vnto verse 11. of the sixth.

Insinuation: You see how large a letter I haue written, &c.
 Conclusion: in the Text read, wherein three points are to be considered: a } Recapitulation: As many as desire, &c.
 } Valediction: The grace of our Lord, &c.

This Epistle to the Galathians hath three principall parts: a Ye see how large] Saint Paul insinuates himselfe into the mindes of the Galathians by a two-fold argument. First, from the largenesse of his Epistle. Secondly, for that he wrote it with his owne hand. Interpreters haue construed the word large diuersly; <sup>b</sup> some referring it to the greatnesse of the character. Hyperius to the depth of his matter. <sup>c</sup> Hilarie to the loftinesse of his stile. <sup>d</sup> Theophylact to the badnesse of his hand. <sup>e</sup> Anselmus on the contrary, to the fairenesse of his writing. But the word signifieth <sup>f</sup> quantitie so well as qualitie: Heb. 7.4. James 3.5. Whereupon Beza translates here, videtis quam longis literis and Vatablus, Quanta vobis epistola scripserim. Our English Bibles accordingly, so large, that is, as Erasmus in his paraphrase, so prolix. The plaine meaning then is, that he neuer wrote so long an Epistle with his owne hand vnto any Church as vnto them. He writ indeed to Philemon with his <sup>h</sup> owne hand, but that Epistle was exceedingly short in comparison of this: and he writ larger Epistles vnto the Church of Corinth and Rome; but by his Scribes, and not with his owne hand. Wherefore, seeing this letter is the most long and large that euer himselfe penned, it ought to be more regarded and better accepted; <sup>i</sup> as his paines were greater in writing, our diligence should be greater in reading and obseruing the same.

With mine owne hand] Haimo saith, it is the Doctors opinion, that Paul wrote not all this Epistle with his owne hand, but only from hence to the end; which assertion is contrary to the Text, and truth. It is euidently confuted in the Text, for that our Apostle speaks of the whole letter in the time past, I haue written. Or if of any part more then of another, it is of the former part rather then of the latter. Againe, the most ancient Doctors affirme, that himselfe penned it from the very beginning to the end with his owne hand. <sup>k</sup> Saint Ambrose saith, Ubi holographa manus est, &c. Where the whole writing is his owne hand, there can be no falshood. <sup>l</sup> Primasius vseth the word perscripsi. <sup>m</sup> Theophylact brings in Paul speaking thus; I am enforced even with mine owne hand to write this Epistle to you. <sup>n</sup> Occumenius calt it ἰδιόγραφον ἐπιτολῶν, <sup>o</sup> Anselme, non notarij manu sed mea. This then is <sup>p</sup> a testification of his exceeding great loue and care toward them, and it is a president for Pastors how they should be diligent in their ministerie both absent and present; if resident vpon their charge, they must be faithfull in winning Gods people to the Gospell: if non-resident vpon lawfull occasions (as Paul here) fearefull lest their mindes should be carried from the truth vnto contrary doctrine, that being absent in body, yet they may

<sup>b</sup> Apud Hieron. exposit. prior. in loc.

<sup>c</sup> In Psal. 118.

<sup>d</sup> In loc. Idem

Occumen.

<sup>e</sup> Bene formatis literis.

<sup>f</sup> Erasmus. An. in loc.

<sup>g</sup> Luther in loc.

<sup>h</sup> Philemon,

vers 19.

<sup>i</sup> Calvin.

<sup>k</sup> In loc.

<sup>l</sup> In loc.

<sup>m</sup> In loc.

<sup>n</sup> In loc.

<sup>o</sup> In loc.

<sup>p</sup> Theophylact.

Anselm.

Aretin.

<sup>q</sup> In loc.

<sup>r</sup> In loc.

<sup>s</sup> In loc.

<sup>t</sup> In loc.

<sup>u</sup> In loc.

<sup>v</sup> In loc.

<sup>w</sup> In loc.

<sup>x</sup> In loc.

<sup>y</sup> In loc.

<sup>z</sup> In loc.

<sup>aa</sup> In loc.

<sup>ab</sup> In loc.

<sup>ac</sup> In loc.

<sup>ad</sup> In loc.

<sup>ae</sup> In loc.

<sup>af</sup> In loc.

<sup>ag</sup> In loc.

<sup>ah</sup> In loc.

<sup>ai</sup> In loc.

<sup>aj</sup> In loc.

<sup>ak</sup> In loc.

may be present in spirit, and present by letters, hauing a greater care of the flocke then of the fleece.

As many as desire with outward appearance ] Here begins the recapitulation, in which our Apostle like a good Orator artificially repeats all those things he would haue especially remembred in the whole discourse; now the maine proposition of all this large letter vnto the Galathians is, that a man is not iustified by circumcision, or any works of the Law; but by the faith of Iesus Christ. The which is all one with his assertion here, that Christ crucified is the sole means of our saluation, and only ground of our spiritual reioycing. Neither Circumcision, nor vncircumcision auail. th any thing at all, but a creature renued, that is, endued with faith working through loue. He doth accuse therefore such as obtrude another Gospell, an opposite doctrine, but blesse Gods Israel, euon as many as walk according vnto this rule.

The false teachers are described by five properties, as first, They desire with outward appearance to please carnally. Secondly, they constraime men to the strict obseruing of their owne deuised religion. Thirdly, the marke they shoot at is to shun stormes and persecution for the Crosse of Christ. Fourthly, they compell men to keepe that law which they will not obserue themselves. Fifthly, they pretend Gods honour, but intend only their owne vaine glorie, that they might reioyce in your flesh. x Other reduce these five to foure: Flatterie, Cowardise, Dissimulation, Boasting. y Other to three: first, shunning of the crosse: secondly, seeking of their owne glorie: thirdly, teaching of that themselves vnderstand not. All haply may be referred vnto their hypocrisie; for notwithstanding their faire shewes and outward appearance, they seeke not herein their brethrens good, and Gods glory; but their owne honour and ease, that they might haue Cum dignitate otium, a Lordly liuing and a lazie life. Sike Church-men are like the Church pinnacle pointing vpward, poising downward.

In this description of false Docters, if thy sight be quicke, thou maist apprehend the liuely picture both of a Schismaticke and Hereticke, who though outwardly they seeme neuer so great, yet are they the least in the Church of God. According to that of Christ, who soeuer shall breake one of the least Commandements and teach men so, shall be called the least in the kingdomes of Heauen. As Augustine paraphrastically, Qui soluerit & docuerit, id est, docuerit verbis quod soluerit factis, minimus erit.

If any shall demand how the false brethren in vrging Circumcision had the world at will, and were made free from persecution; b Answer is made, that the Roman Emperours, Caius, Octavian, Tiberius, had giuen libertie to the Iewes to liue according to their owne law, without molestation or disturbance thorowout all the Roman Empire. So that if a Iew turned Christian, he had the priuiledges of a Iew so long as he kept the ceremoniall rites of Moses: whereas they who taught that ceremonies were abrogated, and that men were iustified only by faith in Christ, wanted those priuiledges, and so were persecuted of the Iewes, and of the Gentiles too, c Christ crucified being a stumbling blocke vnto the Iewes, and vnto the Grecians foolishnesse. Now the d pseudo-Apostles here, lest they should suffer affliction for the crosse of Christ, inuented a new gospell, and made an horch-potch of religion. For as the Christians in the countries of e Prester Iohn and in Augustines age the f Symmachiani receiued both Circumcision and Baptisme: so they conioyned in the matter of saluation Messias and Moses, iustification by faith, and iustification by workes, hereby seeking carnally to please both the Christian and the Iew: the Christian in preaching Christs crosse: the Iew by pressing circumcision of the Law. Desiring to serue two contrary masters at one time, God and Mammon, as it is in the Gospell appointed to be read this day. The Papist then in being a g single mangler, is branded with this infallible character of a corrupt teacher, and so is the muagrill in religion according fire and water, Antichristians and Christians in the chiefe Oracles and Articles of holy faith, and so are carnall Gospellers who desire to haue Christ, but they will none of his Crosse: They would be with him vpon Mount Tabor, but not vpon Mount Caluarie.

1 1 Cor. 5. 3.

c Cap. 2. v. 16.

f Cap. 5. 6.

c Cap. 1. 6.

u See supplement of Mr. Perkins Com. Galat. in loc.

x Aretius in loc.

y Luther in loc.

z Marth. 5. 19

a Contra lit. Peil lib. 2. cap. 61.

b Hieron. P. i. masius, 24. quin. in loc.

c 1 Cor. 1. 23.

d Ansel in loc.

e Math. Dressu. in. vii lo. *o*uy descript of Africa pag 400.

f Augustin. contra Cres. lib. 1. cap. 32.

g B. Latimer.

God forbid that I should reioyce but in the [Crosse of our Lord Iesus Christ] The sufferings of the faithfull for Christ, are termed often the sufferings of Christ: 2 Cor. 1. 5. as the sufferings of Christ abound in vs, &c. And Colossians 1. 24. I fulfill the rest of the afflictions of Christ in my flesh for his bodies sake, which is the Church. And so Christ himselfe witnesseth in saying, <sup>h</sup> Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? Saul did no violence to Christ, it was all done to his Church: but he that toucheth it, toucheth the <sup>i</sup> apple of his eye. There is a more liuely feeling in the head then in other members of the body; for the little toe being hurt, instantly the head sheweth it selfe by the countenance to grieue thereat: so Christ our head is touched with the feeling of our infirmities, euer suffering, while we suffer which are his body. <sup>k</sup> Some Diuines therefore by the Crosse of Christ, vnderstand Pauls affliction for preaching Christ crucified. As if he should say, let other boast as they list in auoiding persecution for the Gospell, herein I will reioyce, that I am esteemed <sup>l</sup> worthy to suffer rebuke for the name of Christ, <sup>m</sup> I take delight in reproches, in necessities, in tribulations, in anguiss for Christs sake. But because the words (ei ubi) are both exceptiue, making the sense thus, I will glorie in nothing but in the crosse of Christ: and exclusiue, onely in the crosse of Christ, and in nothing else: I subscribe to <sup>n</sup> Augustine, <sup>o</sup> Chrysostome, <sup>p</sup> Hierome, and <sup>q</sup> other who confirme this of Christs all-sufficient Sacrifice for our sinnes on the crosse, whereby the world is crucified to vs, and we to the world, Christ himselfe being our <sup>r</sup> redemption, wisdom, righteousnesse: that as it is <sup>s</sup> written, he that glorieth should glorie in the Lord, and make boast of him all the day long, as it is Psal. 35. 28.

As their exposition is most agreeable to the letter, so, most answerable to Pauls intent: as if he should haue written thus, Although other make their reioycing in circumcision, I will reioyce in nothing else but in the crosse of Christ, which <sup>t</sup> abrogates circumcision. And well might he speake so, for that in Christ crucified are hid not only the treasures of wisdom and knowledge, Coloss. 2. 3. but of fulnesse and grace, Iohn 1. 16. and of euery spirituall blessing, Ephes. 1. 3. In a word, all <sup>u</sup> things of which vsually men boast, are in Christs crosse. Doth any man glorie in wisdom? <sup>x</sup> Paul desired to know nothing but Christ crucified, as being assured, That this knowledge is eternall life, Iohn 17. 3. Doth any boast of riches and honour? by Christ all true beleeuers are made Kings and Priests, Apocal. 1. 6. Doth any reioyce in libertie? by Christ we are deliuered from the bonds and hands of our enemies, Luke 1. 74. Doth any delight in the Princes fauour? behold the King of Kings <sup>y</sup> accepteth of vs in Christ. All men desire comfort and content, and therefore let vs (as Paul here) reioyce in Christ crucified, in whom only we are <sup>z</sup> compleat, and by whom also we haue right to those things which eye hath not seene, care hath not heard, neither can the heart of man conceiue.

Gods Israel walking according to this rule, though they beare the markes of affliction in their bodie: yet haue they peace of conscience in their soule. For being new creatures in Christ, the world cannot crucifie them any way more then they crucifie the world. As the world accounts them the <sup>a</sup> filth and off scouring of all things: euen so they repute all things of the world as <sup>b</sup> dung, to winne Christ, and to glory in his Crosse.

Brethren, the grace of our Lord Iesus Christ be with your spirit] In this adieu our Apostle concludes his Epistle with a great Emphasis, euery word being a strong reason to confound his aduersaries, opposing first our Lord Iesus Christ the master of the house, to Moses who was but a <sup>c</sup> seruant in the house. Secondly, the grace of Christ to the merit of inherent righteousnesse, <sup>d</sup> insinuating that we are saued by grace, freeing vs from circumcision and other workes of the Law. Thirdly, the <sup>e</sup> spirit, which is the object of grace, to the flesh, in which the enemies of Christs crosse gloried so much. And lastly, noting in the word brethren, his lowly, but their lordly carriage toward the Churches of Galatia. The brieft of all is, <sup>f</sup> I haue taught you Christ purely, deliuering vnto you wholsome doctrine touching faith and good manners, I haue entreated you, chidden you, threatned you,

<sup>h</sup> Acts 9. 4.<sup>i</sup> Zach 2. 3.<sup>k</sup> Luther.
Arctina.<sup>l</sup> Acts 5. 41.<sup>m</sup> 2 Cor. 12. 10.<sup>n</sup> Tract. 43. in Ioan.<sup>o</sup> In loc.<sup>p</sup> Com. posterior.
in loc.<sup>q</sup> See B. Bilson tract vpon this text in the beginning of his conclusion to the Reader.<sup>r</sup> 1 Cor 3. 31.<sup>s</sup> Jeremy 9. 24.<sup>t</sup> Theophylact.
in loc.<sup>u</sup> Aquin. in loc.<sup>x</sup> 1 Cor. 2. 2.<sup>y</sup> Ephes. 1. 6.<sup>z</sup> Coloss. 2. 10.<sup>a</sup> 1 Cor. 4. 13.<sup>b</sup> Philip. 3. 8.<sup>c</sup> Heb. 3. 5.<sup>d</sup> Theophylact.
Arctina.<sup>e</sup> Caietan.<sup>f</sup> Primasius.<sup>g</sup> Luther.

you, letting passe nothing which I thought profitable for you. I can say no more, but that I heartily pray, that our Lord Iesus Christ would blesse my labours, and governe you with his holy Spirit for euer. See the peace of God in the Liturgie.

The Gospell. MATTH. 6. 24.

No man can serue two masters.

Generall rule: No man can serue two masters.

Particular instance: Yee cannot serue God and mammon.

THIS Gospell is parted into a } Whereupon is inferred that we may not be carefull what we shall eat or drinke, but that we should rather seeke first the kingdome of God, and the righteousnesse thereof, and then all these things shall be ministred vnto vs.

No man can serue two masters] There is no rule so generall but hath exceptions, and so this common prouerbe is confined within his lists and limits, as Interpreters obserue. For one man may serue two well agreeing masters enioying the same thing, as the men of Tyrus<sup>h</sup> hewing Cedar trees out of Lebanon for the Temple, serued both Hiram and Salomon. Againe, this axiome must be contrued in sensu composito, not diuiso: for otherwise we may serue diuers masters at diuers times, as<sup>k</sup> Zachew at the first serued the world, yet afterward he followed Christ. The meaning of this adage then is, that no man at one time, can serue two masters enioying<sup>l</sup> contrary duties. As for example, God and the flesh are two such masters, I see (saith<sup>m</sup> Paul) another Law in my members rebelling against the Law of my minde: for the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh, and these two are contrarie one to the other: Galat. 5. 17. We cannot serue these two, but we must love the one and hate the other, or else lean to the one and despise the other: we must be seruants vnto God, and not vassals vnto lust.

Concupiscence is like to a fire, and our body like to a seething pot. Now the pot is cooled foure wayes especially: first, by raking away some of the fuell vnder the pot: enen so the lesse we drinke or eat, the lesser is the heat of our lust. It is fasting spertle that kills this serpent, incrementum gastrimargie initium luxurie: howsoeuer delectatio venereorum be the end, yet gulping is the matter and beginning of incontinence. The Poets fained Venerem natans ex exestis Saturni virilibus, to<sup>p</sup> signifie that saturitie is the father of wantonnesse, and vncleannesse the daughter of surfetting. Sine Cerere & Baccho friget Venus: Lady Venus dwels at the signe of the Iuie bush: where there is cleannesse of teeth, vsually there is no filthinesse of body: but if we stufte our corps like cloake-bags, making our mouthes as tunnels, our throats as wine-pipes, our bellies as barrels; if we fill them full of strong drinke and new wine, there must follow some vent, according to that of<sup>q</sup> Hierome: Ventrem distentum cibo & vini potionibus irrigatum voluptas genitalium sequitur, nam pro ordine membrorum et do vitorum.

Secondly, the pot is cooled by stirring of it; so the furious heat of lust is much abated by the stirring of our bodies, and exercising of our mindes. Vnchaste tollie for the most part is begot of an idle braine, hatched in a lazie bodie.

Queritur Agistus quare sit factus adulter?
In promptu causa est, desidiosus erat.

The Crab fish when as the Oyster doth open, flings into her a little stone, so that she cannot shut her seife againe, and so the Crab deuoueth the Oyster: <sup>u</sup> Our aduersarie the deuill is like the Crab, and we like the Oyster, if he finde vs idle and gaping, he takes his opportunitie to confound vs, Otia puluinar Satana, Cupid shoots in a slugge, and hits none but the sluggish. Albeit Rome was so well occupied as to make Idlenesse a diuine soueraigntie: yet there was neuer a Temple within the Citie dedicated quieti & otio, sed extra Collinam portam illi ignaui numini templum dedicarunt. To signifie thus much (as our reuerend

<sup>5</sup> Euthym & Rupert, in loc. Idem Ianfen. con. cap. 42.

<sup>6</sup> 1 King 5. & 2 Chron 2.

<sup>7</sup> Pontan, in loc.

<sup>8</sup> Luke 19.

<sup>1</sup> Theophylact.

Euthym.

Anselm.

<sup>m</sup> Rom. 7. 23.

<sup>n</sup> Cossianus, Collat. 5.

<sup>o</sup> See Thom. 2. 2.

quæst. 153. art. 4.

& Caiet, in ibid.

<sup>p</sup> Fulgent.

Mytholog lib. 2.

fab. de Venere.

<sup>q</sup> Greg. Moral.

lib. 21. cap. 31.

<sup>r</sup> Terent. in Eurucbe.

<sup>s</sup> Epist. Amendo,

tom. 3. fol. 135.

<sup>t</sup> Ouid.

<sup>u</sup> Hierome.

<sup>a</sup> Dr. Humfred. in vita Iuelli.
 pag. 47.
<sup>y</sup> Beza in vila Caluini.
<sup>z</sup> Reusner. in symbolis.
<sup>a</sup> Gen. 27.
<sup>b</sup> Ambros. de Cair & Abel.
lib. 1. cap. 4.
<sup>c</sup> 1 Sam 30.

* Iewel obserues) that no man borne in Rome, or Gentleman well brought vp, should vouchsafe Idleness any honour. y Caluin was wont to say, that a lazic life was of all other most tedious vnto him. And euery generous spirit resolues as <sup>z</sup> Maximinus: Quo maior sum, eo magis laboro, & quo magis laboro, eo maior sum. In holy <sup>a</sup> Bible we reade that Jacob vnder the name of Esau, which signifieth <sup>b</sup> working, obtained his fathers blessing, and that none shall receiue reward at the last day, but such as haue bene labourers in the Lords Vineyard: Matth. 20. 8.

Thirdly, we may coole the pot by casting cold water into it: in like manner abundance of teares is a good meanes to quench outragious flames of this vnurly fire. The Amalakites, as we finde in <sup>c</sup> sacred Historie, burned Ziklag, and tooke their wiues and children prisoners: then Dauid and the people lift vp their voices, and wept vntill they could weepe no more. After that Dauid asked counsell of God, and followed after them, and smote them (as it is in the Text) euen from the twilight vnto the euening of the next morrow, so there escaped not a man of them saue foure hundred young men which rode vpon camels and fied. Lust is an Amalekite, it burnes our Ziklag, and sets on fire this little Citie, captiuating our senses, and making them prisoners vnto it: but if we with Dauid shall weepe, so that we can weepe no more; if we cast cold water into the pot, if our eyes be a fountaine of teares, if we lament day and night the slaine of the daughter: assuredly we shall pursue the brutish Amalakites, and ouercome our vntamed affections, we shall smite them from the twilight of our youth, vntill the euening of our old age. Some young men may escape, that is, some vaine words and vncleane thoughts as yet may remaine in vs: but as for the old Amalekites, I meane grosse faults and soule transgressions, God will grant vs power and grace to kill all them, and so we shall recouer all that the Amalekites had taken, we shall rescue our wiues and daughters; our affections most deare to vs, heretofore captiuated vnto lust, shall now doe good seruice to God, acknowledging this infallible rule, that no man can serue two masters, God and the lust of the flesh.

Fourthly, the pot is cooled by taking it altogether from the fire; so we may the sooner coole this hot lust which so boyleth in vs, if we shun opportunities and occasions of sinne. Saint Paul willeth vs to resist and fight against other vices, <sup>d</sup> but as for fornication he saith, flee fornication, 1 Corinth. 6. 18. Cupid is a boy, therefore his shoot cannot be good; and blinde, therefore his aime must needs be bad: he can hit none but such as stand right afore him, and make themselves a Butt for his arrowes. It is a strange, yet a true rule:

Tu fugiendo fuga, nam fuga sola fuga est.

And as good counsell,

Ne sedcas, sed eas: ne pereas, per eas.

<sup>e</sup> It was as great a miracle that Ioseph in his Mistresse armes should not burne with lust, as it was for the three children to walke in the fire fornaice without any scorching. Young men of a little flame make a great fire; whereas the fault is not so much in our yeeres as in our selues. For Daniel a young man reproved the lasciuious Elders; Ioseph a young man resisted the temptations of his owne Mistresse; Iohn the blessed Euangelist a young man, <sup>f</sup> admodum adulescens & pene puer, and yet as the <sup>g</sup> Scripture witnesseth, he was the best beloued Disciple. But young men in our time runne and ride to the Wood for fuell to make the fire greater, vsing strange cates and delicates, meats and medicines, rather poisons to encrease the flames of concupiscence, bragging of much villanie done, yea boasting of more then was done. Such a Gailant <sup>h</sup> Augustine was in his vnurly youth, vntill Almighty God effectually called him home by a voice from heaven, crying, <sup>i</sup> Tolle & lege, tolle & lege: Take the booke and read: and taking vp the Bible, the first Text he lighted on was that of Paul, Rom. 13. 13. Walke honestly as in the day, not in gluttonie & drunkenesse, neither in chambering & wantonnesse: but put ye on the Lord Iesus Christ, and take no thought for the flesh to fulfill the lust of it. After this Augustine was no more seruile to sin, but a true

<sup>d</sup> Io. Sares. poli-erat. lib. 8. cap. 6.
Idem Aquin.
Aufelm.
Caietan. in
1 Cor. 6.

<sup>e</sup> Lutber. tom.
 4. in Gen.

<sup>f</sup> Heron. aduers.
Iouin. lib. 1.
<sup>g</sup> Iohn 19. 26.
 20. 2.

<sup>h</sup> See confess.
 lib. 2. cap. 3.

<sup>i</sup> Confess. lib. 8.
 cap. 12.

seruant vnto Christ: he now well vnderstood my text, that he could not serue two masters, God, and the lust of his flesh.

I know S. Augustine had after ward his infirmities, as himselfe confesseth ingenuously: but he was not<sup>k</sup> giuen ouer vnto wantonnesse, to worke all vncl. amisse even with greedynesse. It is true, that concupiscence so long as we are clothed and clogged with flesh, is not extinguished thoroughly. <sup>l</sup> The children of Iuda could not cast out the Iebusites, but they dwelled at Hierusalem vntill this day. Lust is a very Iebusite, it will dwell with vs so long as we dwell in houses of clay: the best man liuing may confesse with <sup>m</sup> Paul, I doe not the good things, which I would, but the euill which I would not, that doe I. Which I would not I doe, because <sup>n</sup> whosoever is borne of God sinneth not, absolutely with plenarie consent: his will in sinning is not voluntas, but velicitas, as the <sup>o</sup> Schoole distinguisheth. A Mariner in a tempest doth cast his goods into the water; a true man assaulted on the high-way giues his purse to the theefe, yet not with full consent: euen so the children of God in the sinne of incontinencie transgress wittingly, yet with reluctation afore, and repentance after: whereas other men in a reprobate sense, both approue their filthinesse afore, and boast of it after. Lucretia, the faire Ladie of Rome, was assaulted violently by Tarquinius: <sup>p</sup> Augustine writing of this rape, saith excellently, Duo fuerunt, & vnus adulterium admisit. There were two actors, but one adulterer, there was a con iunction of bodies, but a distraction of mindes. A regenerate mans cause is like that of Lucretia, sinne is rather done de illo quam ab illo.

I speake not this to incourage any in their vncleannesse, God forbid. Let euery man, in the feare of God, vse the meanes afore prescribed for the cooling of intemperate lust boyling in his flesh, and then if he cannot expell this Iebusite, he cannot cast out this deuill by fasting and prayer, if he cannot extinguish this outrageous fire with watrie teares; let this be his comfort, that God requires only, that lust be not our master, that it raigne not in our mortall bodies, Rom. 6. 12. The <sup>q</sup> Greeke Fathers obserue well vpon that place, that Paul laid not, let not sinne tyrannize, but let not sinne raigne. Be not sinnes voluntarie souldiers, in <sup>r</sup> gising your members as weapons of vnrightheousnesse vnto sinne: but if ye be sinnes prest souldiers against your will, it is not you that offend, <sup>s</sup> but the sinne that dwelleth in you. Lust may command as a tyrant, and yet we may performe good seruice to God: but if we submit our selues vnto it as our king, if we suffer it to raigne, making our members seruants to vncleannesse and iniquitie, then assuredly lust is our lord and loue: for my Text must be true, No man can serue two masters.

As God and the flesh, <sup>t</sup> so God and the deuill are two contrarie masters: for the one is truth it selfe, I am the way, and the truth, Iohn 14. 6. the other is a liar, and the father thereof, Iohn 8. 44. so that all such as speake the truth from their heart dwell in Gods tabernacle, Psal. 15. but such as delight in lying, are fit for the deuils seruice. Now there is <sup>u</sup> materiale mendacium, and formale: the which distinction is more plainly deliuered by the Grammarians, who make a difference betweene the reporting of an vntruth, and the forging of a lie. For, as Nigidius in <sup>x</sup> A. Gellius, he that doth lie deceiueth other; he that reports an vntruth is deceiued himselfe: and as <sup>y</sup> Lombard, a man may be true that relates a thing vntrue: for as Philosophers and Diuines haue determined, mentiri est contra mentem, <sup>z</sup> to speake that with our mouth, which we thinke not in our minde. Enunciatio falsa cum <sup>a</sup> intentione fallendi. The seruant of God often vtters that which is false, and yet he is verax, for that he thought it had bene true; and the deuils seruants sometime speakes the truth, and yet he is mendax, for that he thought it to be false, as Augustine and Lombard haue well obserued.

Thou maist easily discern by this cognizance, to what master the seruant of seruants and his retinue belong, namely, to Don Beel-zebub, the mint-master of equiuocation and forgerie. Not to meddle with their old Legend, and new Calender of Saints, in which are more lies than leaues. To passe by their Pasquils and

<sup>k</sup> Ephes. 4. 19.

<sup>l</sup> Ios. 15. 63.

<sup>m</sup> Rom. 7. 19.

<sup>n</sup> I Ioh. 3. 9.

<sup>o</sup> Thom. part. 3. questi 22. art. 4.

<sup>p</sup> De Ciuit. Dei, lib. 1. cap. 19.

<sup>q</sup> Theodoret. apud Occumen. Theophylact. & alij.

<sup>r</sup> Rom. 6. 13.

<sup>s</sup> Rom 7. 20.

<sup>t</sup> August. lib. 2. de ser. Dom. in mont. Idem. serm. scilicet Rego. Culman. in loc.

<sup>u</sup> Thom. 2. 2. questi. 110. art. 1.

<sup>x</sup> Nect. 1. lib. 2. 1. cap. 15.

<sup>y</sup> Ser. lib. 3. dist. 38.

<sup>z</sup> August. en- chirid cap. 22.

<sup>a</sup> August. contra mendacis ad Con- sec. cap. 12.

<sup>b</sup> Petr. Ric. Ver- flegan. Antuerp.

<sup>c</sup> D<sup>r</sup>. Suslif.

<sup>d</sup> Vitarinus epist.

<sup>e</sup> Ciron. ad ann.
854.

<sup>f</sup> Supputat. ad
ann 855.

<sup>g</sup> Col. 657. Lug- dun.

<sup>h</sup> En. 9. lib. 1.

<sup>i</sup> Polychron.

<sup>j</sup> lib 5 cap. 22.

<sup>k</sup> Lib. de claris
scen.

<sup>l</sup> In vita Ioan. 8.

<sup>m</sup> See D. Mor- ton apolog. cat.

<sup>n</sup> lib. 1 cap. 19. &

<sup>o</sup> Alex. Cocke,

<sup>p</sup> Pope Ioane. p. 3

<sup>q</sup> Nam Papa

<sup>r</sup> pater patrie pe-

<sup>s</sup> peris paruulum

<sup>t</sup> puerulum.

<sup>u</sup> Iam. 4. 4.

<sup>v</sup> A dens in loc.

<sup>w</sup> Psal. 207. 26.

<sup>x</sup> Chrysof.

<sup>y</sup> Hieron.

<sup>z</sup> Aret. in loc.

<sup>a</sup> Anton. de

<sup>b</sup> Rampen. in fig.

<sup>c</sup> Biblicis.

<sup>d</sup> Inuenal.

<sup>e</sup> Lib. 2. cap. 7.

<sup>f</sup> Aret. in loc.

<sup>g</sup> Tertul. cont.

<sup>h</sup> Hermogen.

<sup>i</sup> Idem Vega in

<sup>j</sup> loc.

<sup>k</sup> Gen. 2.

<sup>l</sup> Ephes. 4. 5.

<sup>m</sup> Aug. de ser.

<sup>n</sup> Dom. in monte

<sup>o</sup> lib. 2. Idem Eu-

<sup>p</sup> thym. Anselm.

<sup>q</sup> Marlorat. in loc.

<sup>r</sup> Caietan. in loc.

<sup>s</sup> d. Gloss. & Ian.

<sup>t</sup> sen. Con. cap. 42.

and inuectiue libels, as their <sup>b</sup> Theatrum credulitatum, the relations of Caietan, annexed to Genebrards Chronologie, Stapletons trees Thoma, Mer. Gallobel. mundus furiosus, Giffords Caluino turcismus, together with the seditious pamphlets of Allen, Sanders, Campian, Bristo, Rob. Parsons; all which are not only hyperbolici, but as <sup>c</sup> one wittily, hyperdiabolici. Not to mention here their vn-sufferable correcting, yea corrupting of all Authors, onely giue me leaue to remember how the Iesuits impudently deliuered in pulpit and <sup>d</sup> print, that old Beza was dead, and that forsooth he died a Roman-Catholike; and how they play the iuglers in the businesse of Pope Ioane. Marianus Scotus, lib. 3. Chron. ad ann. 854. <sup>e</sup> Sigesbertus Gemblacensis, <sup>f</sup> Martianus Polonus, the penner of the Chronicle called Fasciculus temporum in fol. 65. Volateran, Com. 8 lib. 22. Iacobus Bergomensis de Claris mulieribus, cap. 147. <sup>h</sup> Sabellicus, Ioannes Lucidus de emendatione temporum, lib. 8. <sup>i</sup> Ranulphus, <sup>k</sup> Boccace, <sup>l</sup> Platina, Nauclerus, and <sup>m</sup> other arrant Romanists affirme directly, that there was a Pope Ioane: who being an <sup>n</sup> harlot, well became the feat of the Babylonian whore. Yet Auentius annal. Boior. lib. 4. Onuphrius annot. in Platn. Genebrard. in Chron. ad ann. 854. Bellarmino de Rom. Pont. lib. 3 cap. 24. and all our moderne Iesuited Papists obstinately contradict this historie, seeking against their owne knowledge, to perswade the world, that it is a meere fable. By which it is apparant, that they gaine more by this one illiterall Art of lying, than they doe by the seuen liberall Sciences.

As God and the flesh, and God and the deuill, so to giue Christs instance, God and the world are two <sup>o</sup> contrary masters. And therefore whereas <sup>p</sup> some desire to serue God only, some the world only, some both: in their deuotion as it were <sup>q</sup> carried vp to the heauen, in their auarice downe againe to the deepe: our blessed Sauiour saith peremptorily, Yee cannot serue God and mammon. <sup>r</sup> He doth not say, yee cannot haue God and mammon; for Marie and Mariba may dwell together, righteoufnesse and riches may stand together: but yee cannot serue God and mammon; for he that is the seruant of God must be the master of his money.

The children of Israel, as it is recorded Exod. 14. walked vpon dry ground thorow the red Sea, because, saith the text, the waters were deuised: but the cruell Ægyptians pursuing after Gods people were drowned, because the Sea returned againe to his course <sup>s</sup> Mystically, such as diuide their worldly substance, distributing to the poore, lending to the needie, passe through the maine streame of the worlds current safely, their riches and honour being vnto them, as the waters vnto the children of Israel, a wall on the right hand, and a wall on the left: but hold-fast Ægyptians, auarous oppressors, being more cunning in subtraction than in diuision, are drowned in the puddle. When S. Peter casteth his net ouer them, alas they runne themselves so deepe in the mudde, as that it cannot get vnder them to drag them out.

Mammon is a Lord in opinion only, <sup>t</sup> Nos facimus te fortuna deam, &c. and as <sup>u</sup> Plinie speaks, Omnibus locis, omnibus horis, omnium uocibus fortuna sola inuocatur, &c. <sup>x</sup> But Almighty God is by right and indeed a Lord of all things, of all men especially. For as <sup>y</sup> Diuines obserue) God is not called Lord in the Scripture till he created man. In the beginning God created the heauen and the earth, and God said, Let there be light, &c. Againe, God said, Let there be a firmament, &c. but after man once was made, the <sup>z</sup> text often calleth him Lord: The Lord God made the man of the dust of the ground, & the Lord God planted a garden eastward, and the Lord tooke the man and put him in the garden of Eden, commanding him, and saying, Thou shalt eat freely, &c. We must therefore serue none but this <sup>a</sup> one Lord, first seeking his kingdome, making him our master, and Mammon our seruant: for if we serue God most, and seeke his kingdome first, <sup>b</sup> respecting his glory and honour afore all other things, about all other things: then all other things, as Christ promiseth here, which are necessarie for vs, shall be ministred vnto vs. See Epist. 3. Sunday after Trinitie.

Thus I haue shewed how no man can serue two masters, as two, but <sup>c</sup> as one. For <sup>d</sup> euery man is either a willing or vnwilling seruant: if willing, he shall hate
the

the one, and love the other: if unwilling, he will endure the one, and despise the other. And yet, as I said in the beginning, one man may serue diuers masters at diuers times, albeit they require diuers, yea contrary seruice. Matthew sometime an instrument of Sathan, afterward Christs Apostle. Salomon sometime seruing God, sometime seruing his lults. The blessed theefe, seruant to the world in his life, was the childe of God at his death. All sinne is either a thought, a word, or a deed, against the diuine Law. Who did euer offend in thought more than Paul? breaching out threatenings against the Disciples of the Lord. Who did euer offend in word more than Peter? for swearing his owne matter. Who did euer offend more in deed than Dauid? who bound two great sinnes together, adulterie and murder: And yet the God of compassion and father of mercy, retained all these sinners againe in his seruice. The which examples are recorded in holy Bible, partly for instruction of such as stand, and partly for the consolation of such as haue fallen. Instruunt Patriarcha non solum docentes sed etiam errantes. If Noe was drowned himselfe with wine, who foretold the drowning of the world with water; if Sampson the strongest was ouercome by the weaker vessell; if Salomon the most wise committed follie, let him that thinketh he standeth, take heed lest he fall. Againe, these things are registred in Scripture for the comfort of such as haue fallen already. Did God forgie Loss incest, Pauls butchering of the Saints, Aarons idolatrie? then a weake conscience from these promises, and vpon Gods gracious promises may conclude, my sinnes are no greater, and Gods mercy can be no lesse.

When Theodosius excused a foule fact, because Dauid hath done the like: * S. Ambrose made this answer: Qui secutus es errantem sequere penitentem. Hath thy mouth blasphemed with Peter? let thine eyes then weepe with Peter. <sup>m</sup> Either thou must be a Sodomite, or a Niniuite; a Sodomite suffering for sinne, or a Niniuite repenting for sinne. Yet fortie dayes and Ninieue shall bee destroyed, Ionas 3.4. Ninieue was ouerthrowne, and yet not ouerthrowne, as <sup>n</sup> S. Hierome sweetly, Quae peccatis perit, steribus stetit. It was ouerthrowne by sinne, but builded vp againe by repentance. Euersa est Ninieue qua mala erat, & edificata bona qua non erat, saith <sup>o</sup> Augustine. Let vs not looke to Sodom, but set our eyes on Ninieue; for if we will resist our spirituall enemy, we must arme our selues with sackcloth, and put on head-peeces of ashes: if we meane to serue but one master only, let vs renouncing all other seruices, instantly with all haste, and with all our heart turne to the Lord our God. <sup>p</sup> It is sufficient that we haue spent the time past after the lust of the Gentiles, in wantonnesse, gluttonie, drunkennesse, &c. Let vs now spend as much time as remaineth in the flesh, after the will of God. It is a monstrous absurditie, that seruing but two masters all our life, we should sacrifice the best of our dayes vnto the worst, and then offer vp the worst of our dayes vnto the best. Againe, let vs, I beseech you, repent with all our heart thoroughly, powre out thy soule like water before the face of our Lord. If thou powre out milke, the colour remaineth in the pan: if wine, the sent remaineth in the vessell: if honie, some taste remaineth in the pot. He therefore that will not <sup>r</sup> ipsius penitentia penitere, <sup>s</sup> must not powre out his heart like milke, lest he be knowne still by his colour: nor like wine, lest he smell of wicked imaginations: nor like honie, lest he keepe a smacke of his old tricks: but like cleane water, that no taste, or smell, or colour may remaine. If Mammon be thy master, obserue him; if God be thy Lord, follow him: <sup>t</sup> halt not betweene two opinions, sit not vpon two stooles, lie not downe betweene <sup>u</sup> two burthens, serue not two masters, either you must hate the one, and love the other, or else leane to the one, and despise the other.

Preached at Pauls Crosse, Febr. 8. Ann. 1600. the very same houre, that Robert, Earle of Essex, entring the Citie with his vnfortunate troupe, found by wofull experience the words of my Text true, that no man can serue two masters.

<sup>o</sup> Pattetiv. tit. Augusti sultine- bu: uti vulgar.

<sup>f</sup> Augustine.

<sup>g</sup> Acts 9.1.

<sup>h</sup> Mat. 26 72.74

<sup>i</sup> 2 Sam. 11.

<sup>k</sup> Ambros. de Abraham. lib. 1. cap. 6.

<sup>l</sup> 1 Cor. 10. 13

* Theoderic. hist. lib. 5. cap. 17 & Bellorm. de gemitis colum. lib. 1 cap. 11.

<sup>m</sup> Aug. de Ciu. lib. 21 cap 24.

<sup>n</sup> Epist. ad Damasum tom. 2. fol. 133.

<sup>o</sup> Plu supra.

<sup>p</sup> 1 Pet. 4 3.

<sup>q</sup> Lament. 2 19

<sup>r</sup> Saluan lib. 5. de gubernat. Dei
<sup>s</sup> Bonauent. Diet. cap 11.

<sup>t</sup> 1 Kin. 18. 21.

<sup>u</sup> Gen 49. 14.

The Epistle. EPHES. 3. 13.

I desire that yee faint not, because of my tribulations, &c.

THis Epistle containeth a double request of Paul :

One to men: I desire that yee faint not, because of my tribulations: And that in respect of the	Cause: for that I suffer for your sakes. Consequent: for that it is your praise.

I desire] The <sup>x</sup> Syriac hath it thus: I desire that my spirit faint not in my tribulations. And the bare words of the Greeke in <sup>y</sup> Hieromes opinion, afford the same sense. But if we shall examine the precedent part of this Chapter, I Paul am the prisoner of Iesus Christ for you Gentiles, &c. and the subsequent, I bow my knees unto the Father of our Lord Iesus Christ, &c. That yee may be strengthened with might by his spirit in the inner man; it will appeare most evidently, that this Text ought to be construed as our English translation here readeth, I desire you that yee faint not; it being one, yea the only <sup>z</sup> maine point of all this Epistle, which is nothing else but an exhortation vnto perseverance.

That I suffer for your sakes] An argument from the cause of his affliction: as if he should say, Yee men and brethren of Ephesus are <sup>a</sup> both efficient and finall cause that I suffer, and therefore no reason that yee should faint because of my tribulation Efficient, being a prisoner in Rome for the <sup>b</sup> Gospell, euen for that doctrine which I taught you. Finall, enduring this imprisonment for your <sup>c</sup> good, and <sup>d</sup> example, that yee likewise may continue constant in the sincere profession of Christianitie. Paul then suffered not for his owne fault, nor yet for their faction: it was only for defending the truth, euen for preaching <sup>e</sup> Christ crucified, vnto the Iewes a stumbling blocke, and vnto the Grecians foolishnesse. And therefore such as subscribe to the Confession of our Church, acknowledging all our Articles of Religion orthodoxall and pure; cannot in suffering a little crosse for certaine questions about matters of indifferencie, gaine to themselves or their followers any true glory. For they know that <sup>f</sup> B. Ridley went to the stake cheerfully, wearing a Tippet of veluet, and a corner cap: and yet, as that good old man Father Latymer prophesied, at his burning there was such a candle lighted in England, as shall neuer be put out. John Philpot was an Archdeacon, and Doctor <sup>g</sup> Rowland Taylor vsed the Seruice-book to his comfort all the time of his imprisonment, and commended it at his death, as the last token of his loue, to his deare wife: yet these men (let enuie be Iudge) were the Diamonds of the Churches ring in that age. Whereas if the daily martyred B. Farrar, or that vigilant Pastor B. Hooper had sacrificed their liues in the quarrell against Clericall habits, and other comely ceremonies inioyned by their religious Soueraigne King Edward the sixt: iudicious Fox would neuer haue numbred them among the glorious Martyrs of Christ. I say then vnto such as boast of their persecution in this kinde, not for the bodie, but only for the swadling clouts of holy religion, as <sup>h</sup> Paul once to the Corinthians in another case, your reioycing is not good. See Epist. 2. Sunday after Easter.

Which is your praise] This clause may be referred (as <sup>i</sup> Interpreters obserue) both to Pauls affliction, and their persequerance. To Pauls affliction, it is your glory that yee haue such a Pastor as is <sup>k</sup> the prisoner of Iesus Christ, in bonds not for any scandalous crime, but for <sup>l</sup> conscience towards God, euen for preaching among the Gentiles the vnsearchable riches of Christ, as it is vers. 8. of this present Chapter. If yee rightly consider my tribulation, it is to make you <sup>m</sup> glorious, and it cannot dismay, <sup>n</sup> but rather encourage you, knowing that God will <sup>o</sup> reward our

<sup>x</sup> Vide Zanchiū in loc.
<sup>y</sup> Exposit prior in loc.

<sup>z</sup> Aretius in loc. Idem Aquin. & Marlorat. argument. huius epist. <sup>a</sup> Zanchius.

<sup>b</sup> Caietan.

<sup>c</sup> Aquin.

Kilius.

<sup>d</sup> Asaelm.

Sarcovius.

<sup>e</sup> 1 Cor. 1. 23.

<sup>f</sup> Master Fox in the martyr-dome of Bishop Ridley and Latymer. <sup>g</sup> Master Fox in the martyr-dome of Doctor Rowland Taylor of Hadley.

<sup>h</sup> 1 Cor. 5. 6.

<sup>i</sup> Caietan.

Zanchius.

<sup>k</sup> Ephes. 3. 1.

<sup>l</sup> 1 Pet. 2. 19.

<sup>m</sup> Sarcovius.

<sup>n</sup> Aretius.

<sup>o</sup> Primasius.

light affliction which is but for a moment, with a farre more excellent and eternall weight of glorie: 2 Cor. 4. 17. And if my trouble for the truth, occasion vnto you such praise; & how much more glory shall your owne constancie procure betere God and men, if ye faint not vnder the Crosse, but continue faithfull vnto the end? The Church is like Abrahams Ram tied in a bush of thornes, Gen. 22. 13. Tribulations for the Gospell are the markes of the Lord Iesus, in which our Apottle took great pleasure, being more proud of his iren fetters, then a bragging Courtier of his golden chaine. If they be blessed who die in the Lord, how blessed are they who die for the Lord? Their deaths are not mortes, but immortalitates. As Julian honoured all those who were slaine in his warre: so Christ and his Church honour such as are martyred in the Lords batteil, Celebri potius laude quam lucre: right deare in the sight of the Lord is the death of his Saints, vndergoing in Christs cause Christs crosse.

For this cause I bow my knees vnto the Father of our Lord Iesus Christ.] As if he should say, * Because you cannot doe this of your selues, I pray for it, and that not coldly but earnestly, bowing my knees of the body with Stephen, and of the heart with Manasses, not vnto any Saints in heauen, much lesse to their senselesse Images on earth, having mouthes and speake not, eyes and see not, eares and heare not: but vnto him only that is able to doe exceeding abundantly above all that we can aske or think, to the Father of mercies, and God of all grace, from whom cometh every good and perfitt gift. Infirmittatis nostra est desicere, sed Dei reficere: To God then I bow my knees, and yet not to God simply, but to God, as the Father of our Lord Iesus Christ, in whom he is well pleased. To him I make my request, able, because God; willing, because the Father of Christ, to heare me and helpe you.

Which is father of all that is called father in heauen and in earth] According to the present Text of our Communion booke, the meaning of Paul is, that God is the Father of all fathers in earth. As of the Prince which is our ciuill Father, because by him Kings raigne: of the Pa. tor which is our Ecclesiasticall Father, because Preachers and Teachers are his ordinance: of the Parent which is our naturall Father, because children are the gift of the Lord. And Father of all our fathers and progenitors in heauen, Abraham, Isaac, Iacob, &c. and Father of the glorious Angels also, which are fathers, as is supposed one to another, and all of them vnto vs in respect of their tuition and illumination, as being the ministers of God for our bodily preferuation and spirituall erudition. And so God being omnipotens, omnipotens, omnipotens, may be termed, and that not vnfitly, the Father of all that is called father in heauen and in earth, hac ratione est omnium pater, & ab eo patres ceteri nominantur. Our translation here then is not so senselesse, as they who did except against it.

Our latter English Bibles I confesse read better, of whom is named the whole family that is in heauen and in earth. And of whom (as Interpreters obserue) may be referred vnto God the Father, and vnto Christ his Sonne. To the Father, who did adopt the whole family, that is, all the Church in Christ. To Christ because our Lord: & for the Catholike Church as well triumphant in heauen, as militant on earth, consisting of all nations, peoples, tribes, hath her name from him. As all of Cesars family were called Casarians, and all of the tribe of Israel, Israelites: euen so such as are of Gods house professing Christ, are named Christians. In Christ all men and Angels are contribules of one kindred, there is neither Iew nor Grecian, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female; for ye are all one in Christ Iesus. Here then is another argument enforcing our Apostles exhortation. If all of vs haue receiued this honourable stile to be called Christians of Christ, in that we professe Christianitie; let vs not be faint but feruent, not wavering but constant in our faith vnto the end, and in the end. For if we professe Christ in words, and deny him in our workes, assuredly we shall haue nothing but a name, nomen inane crimen inmane: but if any turne Turke or Iew, defying Iesus, he shall not haue so much as a name.

Theophylact.

Galat. 6. 17.
2 Cor. 12. 10.

Clerus Rom. apud Cyp. epist.
21.

Ammon.
Marcel. hist. lib.
20.

Psal. 135. 13.

Asclm.

Sacer.

Theophylact.

Act. 7. 60.

In his prayer

Psal. 115. 5.

2 Cor. 1. 3.

1 Pet. 5. 10.

Iam. 1. 17.

Royard. in loc.
Zambius.
March 3. 17.

Prou 8. 15.

1 Cor. 4. 15.

Ephes. 4. 5. 1.

Psal. 137. 4.

Zambius.

Sedulius.

Aquin.

Anselm.

Royard.

Psal. 91. 11.

Galat. 5. 19.

Theophylact.

Primasius.

Saceruus.

Deferf (or not subscrib part 1. cap 16.

Marlorat.

Zambius.

Beq. 1.

Culm.

Caictan.

Galat. 3. 28.

aretius.

Tit. 1. 36.

1 Cor. 12. 3.

<sup>a</sup> Theophylact.
Occurra.

<sup>f</sup> Zanchius.

<sup>g</sup> Marlorat.

<sup>h</sup> Sarcerius.
Aretius.

<sup>i</sup> Royard. in loc.

<sup>k</sup> Iam 1.5.
<sup>l</sup> Rom. 8.32.

<sup>m</sup> Bez a maior
annot. in loc.

<sup>n</sup> Ephes. 2.14.
<sup>o</sup> Ibid.

<sup>p</sup> 2 Cor. 12.9.

<sup>q</sup> Rom. 5.20.

<sup>r</sup> Serm. 61. in Cant.

<sup>s</sup> Calvin.

Marlorat.

<sup>t</sup> 1 Theff. 4.1.

<sup>u</sup> Esay 17.2.

<sup>x</sup> Arselm.

Caluin.

Zanchius.

<sup>y</sup> 2 Cor 4.16.

<sup>z</sup> Caietan.

<sup>a</sup> Psal. 45.14.

<sup>b</sup> Heb. 3.6.

<sup>c</sup> Apocal. 3.20

<sup>d</sup> Iohn 14.23.

<sup>e</sup> Bez a maior
annot. in loc.

<sup>f</sup> in Matth.

2.23.

<sup>g</sup> Caietan.

<sup>h</sup> Matth. 7.24.

<sup>i</sup> Matth. 13.21

That he would grant you according to the riches of his glory.] The <sup>e</sup> Greeke fathers conioyne this and the subsequent verse, making both one request: I desire the Father of our Lord Iesus Christ, that he would grant you according to the riches of his glory, that ye may be so strengthened with might by his spirit in the inner man, as that Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith. <sup>f</sup> Other haue distinguished these petitions, in the first whereof obserue these siue circumstances especially:

1. Who doth giue? The Father of our Lord Iesus Christ.
2. What? That ye may be strengthened with might.
3. Out of what coffer? Out of the riches of his glory.
4. By what instrument? By his spirit.
5. In what part? In the inner man.

The word grants or giue doth exclude <sup>s</sup> humane merit, and shew that our perseverance proceeds only from the riches of Gods glory, which our Apottle calleth in the second chapter of this epistle, verse 7. exceeding riches of his grace. But he tearmeth it here glory, <sup>h</sup> because the constant resolution of the faithfull is Gods glory, for as much as his power is made perfect through their weaknesse, 2 Cor. 12.9. Or it may be <sup>i</sup> thus expounded according to the precise letter; It is not for a great man of an opulent fortune to giue sparingly, wherefore God out of the riches of his glory giueth vnto all men <sup>k</sup> liberally, <sup>l</sup> for if he spared not his owne sonne, but gaue him for vs all to death, how shall he not with him giue vs all things also? The King of glory cannot <sup>m</sup> ex opulencia gloriae giue but exceeding abundantly, aboue all that we aske or thinke. Pauls addition is more remarkable, the riches of his glory: For as he sheweth elsewhere, the goodnesse of God toward vs, it is not a bare but a <sup>n</sup> rich mercy: not a little, but a <sup>o</sup> great loue: not a naked or a single, but a <sup>p</sup> sufficient, yea <sup>q</sup> superabundant grace. So long then as God is rich in mercy, faith <sup>r</sup> Bernard, I cannot be poore in merit.

That ye may be strengthened.] <sup>r</sup> Here we may learne that the Church of God militant on earth is not in her full strength, it is alway growing and <sup>t</sup> increasing more and more, we may profit, but we cannot be perfect till this corruption hath put on incorruption; the most resolute Souldier in the spirituall war, hath every day need to be strengthened, and that with might; because we fight not against weaklings, but against powers and spirituall potentates in high places, Ephes. 6.12. Our aduersaries are so mighty that we cannot ouercome them, except the Spirit of God which is <sup>u</sup> the spirit of fortitude, strengthen vs in the inner man, that is, in the <sup>x</sup> soule, <sup>y</sup> that albeit our body which is our outward man, perish: yet our spirit which is the inward man may be renewed daily. He doth not pray for the wealth of the world; or health of the body which affoord comfort outwardly: <sup>z</sup> but he desireth vpon his bowed knees, the Father of our Lord Iesus Christ, that his Ephesians may haue sound inner parts, as it is in the <sup>a</sup> Psalme, all glorious within: it is then an idle conceit to thinke that a Pastor benefits his people more by a little skill in Physicke and law, then by a great deale of Diuinity: for hauing charge of their soules, and not of their bodies or goods, he must especially labour that the inner man may be strengthened with might against our Aduersary the Deuill.

That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith, that ye being rooted and grounded in loue.] These three Metaphors of our Apottle, dwell, rooted, grounded: are most emphaticall, and pertinent to his purpose; the faithfull are <sup>b</sup> Gods house, Christ therefore doth not only <sup>c</sup> sup with them as a guest, but <sup>d</sup> dwell with them as head of the family, <sup>e</sup> not only παριστῆναι, but κατιστῆναι, <sup>f</sup> non hospitari modo sed habitare.

An <sup>s</sup> house surely founded is able to withstand the winds blowing, and waues bellowing. A tree deeply rooted is not ouerthrowne with a tempest: euen so, such as are grounded in faith, and rooted in loue, continue stedfast in their profession in the middest of all afflictions and persecutions for the word; but such as haue <sup>h</sup> no root, beleeue but for a season, and so Christ is in their hearts only for a season. If for the Gospell any stormes arise, they be suddenly cast downe, yea carried away, with euery blast of contrary doctrine. The <sup>i</sup> Galathians had begun in the spirit, and yet afterward they were bewitched and <sup>k</sup> removed away to another Gospell. In <sup>l</sup> Salomon the Spirit was quenched, and iniquitie for a time got the vpper hand: and Bishop <sup>m</sup> Latymer is bold to terme such new spirits, who say that we cannot lose the Spirit: and therefore let vs vpon bowed knees humbly beseech Almighty God out of the riches of his mercy, to strengthen our inner man by his Spirit. Christ dwelleth in our heart by faith; <sup>n</sup> as long then as faith is alieue, Christ <sup>o</sup> liueth in vs, and we in him: if our faith once be dead, then Christ which is our <sup>p</sup> life departs out of our heart. Now faith without good workes is <sup>q</sup> dead, it must therefore <sup>r</sup> workethrough loue, we must be grounded and rooted in charitie.

Might be able to comprehend with all Saints, what is the bredth, length, depth and height. <sup>s</sup> Some by bredth, vnderstand the broad way, Matth. 7. 13. by length, eternall life; by depth, hell; and by height, heauen: as if he should haue said, If ye be grounded in faith, and rooted in charitie, then ye may soone know which of these to loue or leaue. But it is better expounded <sup>t</sup> either of our loue toward other, or of Gods loue in Christ toward vs. Of our loue, <sup>u</sup> which hath a bredth, in louing all men, euen our enemies. A length, in that loue neuer fals away, 1 Cor. 13. 8. An height, in louing our superiours. A depth, in louing our inferiours: or an height in louing God above all, and a depth in reuerencing the deepnesse of his riches, Rom. 11. 33. The loue of God towards vs <sup>v</sup> hath a length, in respect of his eternitie, Psal. 102. 12. A bredth, in respect of his infinite goodnesse shewed vpon all his workes, Ecclesiasticus 1. 10. An height, in respect of his excellent nature, being high aboue all people, Psal. 99. 2. A depth, in respect of his vnsearchable wisdome, which is a profound deepnesse, Ecclesiastes 7. 26 herein alluding as it may seeme to that of <sup>y</sup> Iob, Canst thou by searching finde out God? Canst thou finde out the Almightye to his perfection? The heauens are high, what canst thou doe? It is deeper then hell: how canst thou know it? Or as <sup>z</sup> other, Christs loue toward vs hath a length, in that his mercie doth endure for euer and euer, euen from euerlasting predestination, vnto euerlasting glorification. A bredth, in that he would <sup>a</sup> all men should be saued; Iewes, Gentiles, Grecians, Barbarians, afore the Law, vnder the Law, after the Law, from the beginning vnto the worlds end. A depth, in that he descended into hell, openly triumphing ouer Satan in his owne kingdome. An height, in that he did ascend <sup>b</sup> farre aboue all heauens, and there sitteth at the right hand of God as our Mediator and Aduocate. <sup>c</sup> Other haue discoursed of the foure woods, and dimensions in the materiall Crosse of Christ more subtilly then soundly. For the plaine meaning of these words is, that our redemption is a <sup>d</sup> great mysterie. To know Christ crucified is <sup>e</sup> the bredth, length, height, depth of all our knowledge, in comparison whereof all other things are to be reputed as <sup>f</sup> dung and droffe. Some trouble themselues and other about round and square, long and short, blacke and white, spending the strength of their wits in examining the lawfulnessse or vnlawfulnessse of certaine ceremonies vsed in the Church of England: whereas if they were grounded in faith and rooted in loue, they would endeouour rather to comprehend with all Saints, what is the bredth, length, depth, height of Christs loue toward vs, and in fine to be fulfilled with all fulnesse which commeth of God.

<sup>g</sup> Some thinke that the Church is this fulnesse, increasing daily till the number of Gods Elect is accomplished. <sup>h</sup> Other construe this of the blessed Trinitie: but because <sup>i</sup> the fulnesse of the Godhead dwels in Christ, and the Saints are compleat in him: I take the clause (that ye may be fulfilled with all fulnesse of God) to be nothing else but an <sup>k</sup> explanation of the former words, as if he should say, this I meane by bredth, length, depth and height; that he which hath Christ, hath all things absolutely compleat to perfection: I pray therefore <sup>l</sup> not that ye may be fully God, but that ye may be full of God, full of his <sup>m</sup> grace with all the liuing Saints in <sup>n</sup> this world, and full of his glory with all the Saints departed in the world to come, that ye may so faithfully serue God here, as that ye may fully see God hereafter, euen face to face.

<sup>1</sup> Gal. 3.3.<sup>2</sup> Gal. 1.6.<sup>3</sup> Deerin. lect.<sup>4</sup> Heb.<sup>5</sup> Serm. 7 before King Edw.<sup>6</sup> Bernard. ser. 2 de resur. Dom.<sup>7</sup> Galat. 2. 20.<sup>8</sup> Col 3. 4.<sup>9</sup> Iam 2. 17.<sup>10</sup> Gal. 5. 6.<sup>11</sup> Apud Primaf. & Hie. or. expofit post. in loc.<sup>12</sup> Zacchias.<sup>13</sup> Aquin.Royard.<sup>14</sup> caietan.Aquin.<sup>15</sup> Iob 11. 7, 8.<sup>16</sup> Photius apud Oecum. & Hieron. tom. prior in loc.<sup>17</sup> 1 Tim 2. 4.<sup>18</sup> Ephes. 4. 10.<sup>19</sup> Anselm.Aquin.<sup>20</sup> 1 Tim. 2. 16.<sup>21</sup> Marlorat.<sup>22</sup> Phillip. 3. 8.<sup>23</sup> Arctius.<sup>24</sup> Apud Theophylact in loc.<sup>25</sup> Coloff. 3. 9, 10<sup>26</sup> Caluin.<sup>27</sup> Anselm.<sup>28</sup> Eng. Glosse. Hieron. Saecur.<sup>29</sup> Aquin.

o Aretina.

o Motiue: Gods abundant liberalitie, being able and willing to giue moe things, and more plentifully then either we doe aske, or thinke.

p Aquin.

p Matter: Be praise, or glory: mans body within the elements is closed, the blood within the body, the spirits within the blood, the soule within the spirits, the minde within the seale, and God resteth in the minde: so that this world was made for man, man for the soule, soule for the minde, and the minde for God: that as of him, and through him, and for him are all things: euen so to him might be praise for euermore.

Vnto him that is able] In this thanksgiuing of our Apostle three points are considerable, namely, the a Sarcerius.

Place: In the congregation, a as being Gods Tabernacle dedicated to prayer and praise, r knowing and participating Gods vnsearchable riches in Christ. Other assemblies haue their beginning and end, but the Church is the s pillar of truth, against which t hell gates are not able to preuaile. u The Church then enduring for euer and euer, only can and will honour God euer and euer.

c Zanchius.

Manner in respect of Person: by whom our thanks are conueyed vnto God, by Iesus Christ, as being the Mediator betweene God and man, by whom alone the graces of God descend downe to vs, and our prayers ascend vp vnto God.

f 1 Tim. 3. 15.
t Matth. 16. 18
u Theophylast.

Time: Throughout all generations, &c.

x Primasius.

For as the mercies of God toward vs are for euer and euer: in like manner our praises to him ought to be for euer and euer: * Immensa beneficia laudibus immensis celebranda. See the conclusion of the Pater Noster in the Liturgie.

The Gospell. L V K E 7. 11.

And it fortuned that Iesus went into a citie called Naim, &c.

y Heming.

y Miseries of man: In this afflicted woman accompanying her childe, and that a sonne, and that her only sonne to his graue, dying in the Spring of his youth, euen at that age when he was most able to comfort her. Winter of her widowhood, when she did most want him.

THis Gospell is an Embleme of the z Mercies of God: In Christ, who did pitie the distressed a in Thought, εὐσπλαγχνισμῶν, Hee had compassion on her.

Word, Weepe not.
Deed, He raised the dead, and deliuered him to his mother.

z Melanct. Culman.

a Iansen. Cor. cor. cap 46.

b See Ferusfer. 3. in Euangel. Dom. 17. post. Penc.

The b mourning troupe in Naim is a liuely representation of our estate by nature, subiect to sicknesse, infirmitie, death, damnation, horror, hell: our whole life being as it were nothing else but a widow weeping, and a sonne dying.

c One

<sup>c</sup> One doth cry, Let the day perish wherein I was borne, and the night when it was said, there is a man-child conceived; why died I not in the birth? and why did I sucke the breasts? for so should I now haue lien and beene quiet, I should haue slept then and beene at rest. <sup>d</sup> Another doth crie, Woe be to me that I am constrained to dwell with Mesch, and to haue mine habitation among the tents of Kedar. <sup>e</sup> A third crieth, O wretched man that I am, who shall deliuer me from the body of this death. All, as it were with one voice crie, <sup>f</sup> Man that is borne of a woman is of short continuance and full of trouble. But Christ and his followers on the contrary resemble our estate by grace, wherein is ioy, peace, life, health, happinesse, heauen. In this troupe <sup>h</sup> one saith, O death where is thy sting? O graue where is thy victorie? the sting of death is sinne, and the strength of sinne is the Law, but thanks be vnto God, which hath giuen vs victorie through our Lord Iesus Christ. <sup>i</sup> Another doth say, Blessed be God, euen the father of our Lord Iesus Christ, which according to his abundant mercy hath begotten vs againe to a liuely hope, by the resurrection of Iesus Christ from the dead, to an inheritance immortall and undefiled, and that fadeeth not away, reserved in heauen. A <sup>k</sup> third doth say, We know that we are translated from death vnto life. All sing and say with Zacharie, Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, for he hath visited and redeemed his people.

Behold there was a dead man carried out] The word <sup>l</sup> behold in the Scriptures is like an hand in the margin of a booke, pointing out alway some remarkable thing, and it is here like that hand <sup>m</sup> Balthazar saw writing vpon the wails of his Palace, for as that forewarned him of his vtter ruine; so this admonisheth vs of our last end. Behold a dead man carried out. This dead man was a young man, as it is expressed in the text, I say to thee young man arise, and a rich or honourable man, as <sup>n</sup> some gather out of the text, in that much people were with his moth r. And it is worth our obseruing, that Christ in the Gospell is said to raise none from the dead, but only such as were rich and young, as the daughter of <sup>o</sup> Iairus a Ruler of the Synagogue, being about twelue yeeres of age: <sup>p</sup> Lazarus a man honoured in his Nation, and as <sup>q</sup> Epiphanius reports about the yeeres of 30. and in my text, a young sonne of a widow well affected in the place where shee dwelt. Hereby teaching vs, that such often die who least expect death, and are most embraced of the world. Poore men and old men haue their passport, as they begin to leaue the world, so the world is content to part with them. At their carrying out to be buried vsually there is lesse weeping, because their friends are comforted, in that departing in peace they be now deliuered from the burden of the flesh, and infinite miseries of this life. But death is <sup>r</sup> the way of all flesh, and <sup>s</sup> all flesh is grasse, and all the grace thereof as the flower of the field. Per natiuitatem viuet in carne, per iuuentutem candescit in flore, per mortem ardet in puluere. By birth a man is greene in his flesh, by youth he is white in his blossome, by death he is withered in the dust. For death as a fisherman incloseth all kinde of fish in his net, great, small, good, bad, old, young: which the Poets insinuate in the fable of Death and Cupid, who lodging at a time both in one Inne, interchanged each others arrowes: and so from that day to this, it comes to passe that sometimes old men dote, and young men die:

<sup>u</sup> Sic moritur iuuenis, sic moribundus amat.

Which was the onely sonne of his mother, and shee was a widow] Children are walking images of their parents, euen flesh of their flesh, and bone of their bone, the wealth of the poore man, and honour of the rich. It was then one step vnto weeping Crosse, that this woman had lost a childe, for nature by grace is not abolished but perfected, not murdered but manured, her impressions are not quite razed, but suted to the colours of faith and vertue, Dauid a man according to Gods owne heart did weepe for his <sup>x</sup> sicke childe, cry out for his dead sonne, O Absolon my sonne, my sonne Absolon: would to God I had died for thee, O Absolon, my sonne, my sonne. <sup>y</sup> S. Ambrose reports a tragicall accident, how that in his time there was a poore man in extreme necessitie constrained to sell one of his sonnes into perpetuall bondage, that he might hereby saue the rest from

<sup>c</sup> Iob 3.3.

<sup>d</sup> Psal 120.4.

<sup>e</sup> Rom. 7.24.

<sup>f</sup> Iob 14.1.

<sup>h</sup> I Cor. 15.55.

<sup>i</sup> I Pet. 1.3.

<sup>k</sup> I Iohn 3.14.

<sup>l</sup> Vegetior.

<sup>m</sup> Dan.

<sup>n</sup> Maldonat, Caster.

<sup>o</sup> Luke 8.41.

<sup>p</sup> Iohn 11.

<sup>q</sup> Heret 66.c. contra Manichei dogmat.

<sup>r</sup> Ios 23.14.

<sup>s</sup> Esay 40.6.

<sup>t</sup> Greg. in Psal 5 pasient.

<sup>u</sup> Inchims Esleius.

<sup>x</sup> 2 Sam 12.

<sup>y</sup> 2 Sam 18.31.

<sup>z</sup> Lib. de Nabuth 5 cap. 5.

a present famine. Who calling all his deare children vnto him, and beholding them as olive branches round about his table, could not resolue which he might best spare. His eldest sonne was the strength of his youth, euen he that called him first father, and therefore not willing to part with him. His youngest boy was the next chicke, the dearely beloued of his mother, and therefore not willing to part with him. A third most resembled his progenitors, hauing his fathers bill, and his mothers eye, therefore not willing to part with him. One was more louing, another more diligent then the rest, and so the good father in conclusion among so many could not afford to part with any.

<sup>a</sup> Pentecost in loc.

It was another step vnto griefe in this widow, that her dead childe was <sup>a</sup> a sonne. For daughters in respect of their sex being weaker vessels, are not so fit for businesse and imploiment: whereas a good sonne, albeit in obedience a childe, yet in counsell often prenes a father, and is in stead of an husband to his widow mother. But it was an higher step vnto griefe, that this one sonne was her only sonne, <sup>ueroque</sup>, first begotten, and <sup>b</sup> only begotten, and her selfe not a young wife, but an old widow without hope of issue. Now what kinde of sorrow this was, is expressed in holy Scripture: <sup>c</sup> Make lamentation and bitter mourning as for thy only sonne. And Zachar. 12. 10. They shall lament for him as one mourneth for his only sonne, and be sorry for him as one is sorry for his first borne. Syrophanes hauing buried his only sonne, caused his statua to be set in his house, <sup>d</sup> Sed dum tristitia remedium querit, seminarium potius doloris inuenit.

<sup>b</sup> Iansen.

<sup>c</sup> Ierem. 6. 25.

<sup>d</sup> Fulgenc. mytholog lib. 1.

This in brieffe was the widowes misery: now ye shall heare of Christs mercy. When she was haplesse and hopelesse, he had compassion on her, and did exceeding abundantly aboue all that she did aske or could thinke, as it is in the select Epistle for this Sunday. <sup>e</sup> Before she did call, he did answer, granting her desire before she moued her sute. <sup>f</sup> Teaching vs hereby that euery good gift is from aboue, not puiled downe of merit, but powred downe by preuenting grace.

<sup>e</sup> Esay 65. 24.

<sup>f</sup> Cumman.

<sup>g</sup> Psal. 68. 5. &

146. 9

<sup>h</sup> 1 Kings 17.

God is a father of the fatherlesse, and defendeth the causes of <sup>g</sup> widowes: Eliab in a great famine by Gods appointment releued the widow of <sup>h</sup> Zarephath, and Elizens euen by the same diuine goodnesse, increased another distressed widowes oyle, <sup>2 Kings 4.</sup> Peter, <sup>Acts 9</sup> comforted a whole congregation of weeping widowes, in raising Dorcas againe from the dead: and Christ here tooke pitie on the deepe sighing of a widow. <sup>i</sup> By which all men may learne, Magistrates especially, <sup>to</sup> <sup>k</sup> indge the fatherlesse, and defend the widow; not only when the widow doth importunatly call and crie, Doc me iustice, <sup>Luk. 18. 3.</sup> but euen while she doth hold her peace, <sup>1</sup> magis enim petit qui petere non audet, & plus dat qui dat non rogatus.

<sup>i</sup> Ferus serm. 1. in loc.

<sup>k</sup> Esay 1. 17.

<sup>l</sup> Maldonat. in loc.

<sup>m</sup> Gen. 23. 2.

<sup>n</sup> Gen 30.

<sup>o</sup> Deut 34. 8.

<sup>p</sup> Iohn 11 35.

<sup>q</sup> 1 Theff. 4. 13

Weepe not! <sup>m</sup> Abraham the father of the faithfull bewailed his dead wife Sara, Ioseph an holy man of God mourned many daies for his father Iacob, all the people for <sup>o</sup> Moses, and Christ himselfe for <sup>p</sup> Lazarus. His ne fletu then, is not a prohibition forbidding at funerals all weeping: but an inhibition only forbidding too much weeping, that she should not be sorry for the dead, <sup>q</sup> as they which haue no hope. As if he should haue said vnto her, as he did in the like case to Martha, <sup>Iohn 11. 25.</sup> I am the resurrection and the life, whosoener beleeueth in me though he were dead, yet shall he liue. <sup>r</sup> I wound and make whole, <sup>s</sup> bring downe to the graue and raise up agine. And his workes are correspondent to his words, he came nigh and touched the coffin, and said, Young man, I say vnto thee, arise, and he that was dead sate up, and began to speake, and he deliuered him vnto his mother. In which he shewed himselfe to be very God and man; in walking with his Disciples, in talking with this widow, comming nigh to the gate of the citie, touching the coffin, a very man in raising the dead, and making him to sit vp, and speake, <sup>t</sup> (not as the Prophets and Apostles in anothers name; but by his owne power in a commanding fashion, I say to thee young man <sup>u</sup> arise) to be God, euen the Lord of life, <sup>Acts 3. 15.</sup>

<sup>r</sup> Deut 32. 39.

<sup>s</sup> 1 Sam. 2. 6.

<sup>t</sup> Entym.

Erent. us.

Caetan.

<sup>u</sup> E lectulo mor-

tu. in quo mol-

lius ille dormi, qui durus in vita se gesserit,

Ambr serm. 28.

<sup>v</sup> Zepher. con. 2.

14 loc.

About the fall of the lease men ordinarily be more subiect to sicknesse and mortalitie then at other times of the yeere; wherefore the <sup>x</sup> Church hath allotted fity

sitly this Scripture for this season, as a sicke mans salve to comfort vs against diseases and death. Intimating that Christ is the only health of all the living, and everlasting life of all such as die in him.

And there came feare on them all, and they gave the glory to God. Our Euangelist here describes a double fruit of the miracle: the one befalling such as were present, the other extended vnto many men absent, in that the rumour of it went forth throughout all Iury, and throughout all the regions which lier round about. The miracle wrought in the present beholders a two-fold effect, Intus timor, foris glorificatio: Reuerence within, and glorifying of God without, for they conceived hereby faith in the Messias, and so feared God, glorifying him with true worship, and acknowledging his mercies in visiting his people. Here the Gospell and Epistle meet againe, Paul would haue them ascribe praise to God in the congregation from time to time: these spectators accordingly, beholding the riches of Christs grace who did exceeding abundantly aboue all that the poore widow did aske or thinke, gave the glory to God, saying, A great Prophet is risen vp among vs, and God hath visited his people.

Hitherto concerning the letter of this Historie: Now let vs (as the <sup>a</sup> Fathers and <sup>b</sup> other Interpreters) examine the mysticall exposition or allegorie, considering these five points in order:

1. Who is dead, and carried out to be buried.
2. What is the Coffin and Tombe wherein he is enclosed.
3. What they be that carry him to the graue.
4. What is that gate out of which he was carried.
5. What is that widow lamenting his death.

He that is dead and carried out to be buried is an obstinate sinner, for the wages of sinne is death, and euery man irrepentant without faith and feeling of his finnes is dead (as the <sup>d</sup> Scripture) descended into Hell (as <sup>e</sup> Ambrose speakes) euen while he liueth:

In <sup>f</sup> three things especially resembling a Corse being }	Cold.

}	Heaueie.
}	Stinking.

Cold, as being infected with the venome of the <sup>g</sup> Serpent, and wanting the powerfull heat of Gods holy Spirit which is <sup>h</sup> quenched in them. Heaueie, because sinne is a burthen some load, Matth. 11. 28. pressing downe, Heb. 12. 1. hindering our ascending and seeking the things aboue, Col. 3. 1. For howsoeuer it be true, that if all the mountaines in the world should fall together vpon one inli man, he would notwithstanding be stedfast and keepe his ground: according to that of the <sup>i</sup> Poet,

Si fractus illabatur orbis, Impavidum serient ruina.

Yet sinne is so heaueie, that it cast downe Dathan from earth, and Lucifer out of heauen into the bottomlesse pit of hell. Stinking, because the slanderer hath an vnfaourie breath, his <sup>k</sup> throat being an open sepulcher. The wickednesse of adulterers is <sup>l</sup> filthinesse. The goods of the couetous hoorded vp, and not laid out, are a very <sup>m</sup> dunghill, and euery sinne is an <sup>n</sup> uncleannesse, stinking in the nostrils of the Lord.

Now for the Coffin and Tombe wherein this cold, heaueie, stinking Corse lieth: as there be three kinds of death, one of the body, which is the naturall death, another of soule, which is spirituall death, a third both of body and soule, which is eternall death: euen so there be three kinds of Tombes accordingly: the Tombe of the body is the Graue, the Tombe of the soule is the body, <sup>o</sup> sepulchra quasi vna, or as <sup>p</sup> Ambrose, tumulus iste mores mali, the Tombe both of body and soule dying in sinne is Hell, Luk. 16. 22. The rich man died and was buried in Hell. And the sinner is borne to Hell by <sup>q</sup> four Porters especially, detaining him in irrepentance; namely,

1. Hope of longer life.

2. Locking

<sup>v</sup> Heming.

<sup>a</sup> Caietan.

<sup>a</sup> August. tract. 49 in ioh. & c. verbis dom. ser. 44. Amb. Beda in loc. <sup>b</sup> Luther. Arbores. Heming.

<sup>c</sup> Rom. 6. 23.

<sup>d</sup> 1 Tim. 5. 6.

<sup>e</sup> De bono mortis, cap 12.

<sup>f</sup> See iacob. de Vorag serm. 1. in loc.

<sup>g</sup> Apocal. 12. 9

<sup>h</sup> 1 Thess 5. 19.

<sup>i</sup> Horat. Car. lib. 3. od 3.

<sup>k</sup> Psal. 14. 5.

<sup>l</sup> Ephes. 5. 4 &

Gal 5. 19.

<sup>m</sup> Bonauent.

diu. salu. ca. 6.

<sup>n</sup> 1 Thess 4. 7.

<sup>o</sup> Theophylact.

in loc. Idem

Platon Crat.

<sup>p</sup> in locum.

<sup>q</sup> Heming.

2. Looking vpon the faults of other men.
3. Presumption vpon Gods mercy.
4. Flatterie of lewd company.

<sup>c</sup> August. ser. 31 ad fratres in eremo.

<sup>f</sup> In locum.

<sup>c</sup> Ambros. Beda Panigarol.

<sup>u</sup> *Ser. 44. de
verbis Dom.*

<sup>x</sup> Pfal. 7. 15.

<sup>y</sup> Esay 5. 18.

<sup>z</sup> Rom. 3. 5.

<sup>a</sup> Pfal. 1. 1.

<sup>b</sup> Guenua epist.

<sup>c</sup> *Iacob de Vorag. serm. 1. in
loc.*

<sup>d</sup> Ephes 5. 14.

These foure carrieth the sinner out of the gate toward hell: as for example, when he doth lust with his eye, the dead man is carried out by the <sup>r</sup> gate of his sight, per oculorum beneficium infert animæ veneficium. If he delight in back-biting and slander, the dead man is carried out by the gate of his mouth. If he take pleasure in hearing tales and ill reports of his neighbour, the dead man is carried out by the gate of his eares. And the widow lamenting his death (as <sup>t</sup> Theophylact thinkes) is the soule, but as <sup>c</sup> other generally the Church of God, for as there is ioy in heauen for one sinner that conuerteth: euen so grieue to such as haue their conuersation in heauen, when a sinner will not returne from his wicked way, but is ginen ouer in a reprobate sense, to worke all vncleannesse euen with greedinesse, Ephes. 4. 19. The three sorts of dead raised by Christ aptly resemble, saith <sup>u</sup> Augustine, three sorts of sinners. A sinner is dead in the house like Lairus daughter, when he doth imagine mischief in his minde: carried out of the gate like this yong man here, when he <sup>x</sup> brings forth vngodlinesse in word or deed: stinking in the graue like Lazarus, if he sinne habitually without any remorse, <sup>y</sup> drawing iniquitie with cords of vanitie, speaking good of euill and euill of good, z heaping vp wrath against the day of wrath, and of the declaration of the iust iudgement of God. Now then as there was weeping for the dead Damosell in the house, more weeping for this man carried out of the gate, but most weeping at Lazarus graue, Martha wept, and Mary wept, and the Iewes wept, and Christ himselfe wept and groaned in the Spirit: so we must be sorry for the beginnings of sinne, more sorry for the proceeding and increase, most sorry when a man <sup>a</sup> stands in the waies of the wicked, and sits in the seat of the scornfull. It may be well applied vnto Christs Academy, which <sup>b</sup> Demosthenes once said of Athens, in our Diuinitie schoole we weepe more for the lewd liues of the bad, then for the deaths of the good.

As the Church of God hath three kindes of Planctus ouer the dead: so the denill and his companie three kindes of <sup>c</sup> Plausus. Our aduersarie reioyceth a little when we sinne in the house, conceiuing an euill thought: but more glad if that a man be carried out of the house, breaking out into scandalous actions; and yet most merrie when a sinner continueth in his filthinesse, as Lazare stinking in his graue. Let vs then <sup>d</sup> awake from sleepe, and stand vp from the dead; Christ in his word, in his Sacraments, in his iudgements, in his Preachers instantly calls vnto you daily, Young man arise, Damosell arise, Lazarus arise. Wherefore let vs I beseech you sit vp, and speake; that we may comfort the Church our afflicted mother on earth, and be well accepted of God our Father in heauen. Amen.

The Epistle. EPHES 4. I.

I (which am a prisoner of the Lord) exhort you, that ye walke worthie of the vocation wherewith ye are called, &c.

After sundry dogmaticall conclusions touching matters of hoily faith in the three former chapters: our Apostle comes now to patheticall <sup>e</sup> exhortations concerning good manners in this present, beseeching his Ephesians in general to walke worthie of the vocation wherunto they were called; in more particular to support one another through loue, keeping the vniety of the spirit in the bond of peace. Pressing this one point with seuen arguments in our text:

1. There is but one bodie.
2. But one spirit.
3. But one hope.

<sup>e</sup> *Sartor.
Caietan.
Arct.*

4. But one Lord.

5. But one faith.

6. But one baptisme.

7. But one God, and father of all, which is aboue all, and through all, and in you all.

As if he should argue thus: If the Church your Mother be but one, God your Father but one, Christ your Lord but one, the holy Spirit your Comforter but one, if your hope but one, faith one, baptisme one: I see no cause why you should not liue together and loue together all as one, endeououring to keepe the vnitie of the spirit through the bond of peace.

First, there is but one bodie: that is, one Church: for albeit there be threescore Quenes, and fourescore Concubines, and the number of Damotels be without number, yet as <sup>f</sup> Salomon speaks in the person of Christ, my loue, my doue is alone. As then in the naturall bodie there is a perpetuall sympathie betweene all the parts: ¶ If one member suffer, all suffer with it: if one member be had in honour, all reioyce with it: cuen so in Christs mysticall bodie, The eye must not say to the hand, I haue no need of thee: nor the head againe to the feet, I haue no need of you: for if the Magistrates should bend themselues against the Ministers, and the Ministers against the Magistrates, and the Commons against both: assuredly God would be against all. And therefore we must alway remember our Apostles saying, 1 Cor. 12. 20. that there is but one bodie, though there be many members. One, not as tied vnto any one place, much lesse to any one person. The Donatists in the daies of <sup>h</sup> Augustine, would haue tied the Church to Cartenna in Africa. The Papists in our time tie the Church to Rome in Italie. Contradicting herein the Creed, in which the Church is stiled Catholique: that is, vniuersall, extended (as Chrysostome notes vpon my Text) to all places, and all times, and as <sup>i</sup> Bellarmino more fully, to all faithfull persons, not onely those which are now liuing, but also those which haue bene from the beginning, and shall be to the worlds end. And to the popish Antichristian crue, which haue nothing so much in their mouthes, as the Church, the Church, in fringe the liberties of the Church exceedingly. For all of them haue made the Catholique Church to be nothing else but the Roman Church, and some of them haue made the Roman Church to be nothing else but the Pope. Papa virtualiter est tota ecclesia, saith <sup>k</sup> Harneus, As Anabaptists imagined a Church like a Spider, or <sup>l</sup> Plinius acephali, all bodie and no head: so Papists haue framed a Church like the Toad-stoole, all head and no bodie. To borrow a phrase from Charmides in <sup>m</sup> Plautus: Hic quidem fungino genere est, capite se totum regit. If Cardinals and Iesuits be reputed monlters, as being men of <sup>n</sup> all professions, order, degree, offices, benefices; then what a monlters of monlters is the Pope, which is all of these, and none of these, both head and bodie too?

One spirit] S. Paul saith, 1 Cor. 12. that there are diuersities of gifts but one spirit: to one is giuen by the spirit the word of wisdom: to another the word of knowledge by the same spirit: to another is giuen faith by the same spirit: to another the gift of healing by the same spirit: to another propheticie, to another discerning of spirits, to another interpretation of tongues: all these worketh one and the same spirit, diuiding to euery man as he will severally. Now the Spirit which is the <sup>o</sup> Comforter of the Church in her widow-hood euer since Christs ascension, and as it were tutor to leade her into <sup>p</sup> all truth, on Whitsunday descended in visible shapes vpon the blessed Apostles assembled, as the <sup>q</sup> Text speaks, ἐπισυνάχθη ἅρι τὸ αὐτῶν, all together in one place with one accord. Where there is vnitie of spirit, there doth rest the spirit of vnitie: but where there is babling, there followeth instantly Babel, vpon Diuision alway Confusion.

One hope] As the Decalogue teacheth how to loue, and the Creed how to beleeue: so the Pater Noster how to pray. Shewing vs exactly what we must hope and desire namely, first Gods glory, then our owne good. Gods glory, for that is Alpha and Omega, the first thing we must aske, Hallowed be thy name: and the last

<sup>f</sup> Cant 6. 8.

<sup>g</sup> 1 Cor. 12. 26.

<sup>h</sup> Epist. 48.

<sup>i</sup> Catec. cap 3. in expusit. Credo ecclis. Cat.

<sup>k</sup> De potest. Pape
cap. 23.

<sup>l</sup> Nat. hist. lib. 7.
cap. 2.

<sup>m</sup> Trinum act.
4. scenar.

<sup>n</sup> Vignier, answer to Baron.

<sup>o</sup> Ioh. 15. 26.

<sup>p</sup> Ioh. 16. 13.

<sup>q</sup> Acts 2. 1.

laſt thing we muſt performe, for thine is the kingdome, the power, and the glory. Now concerning our owne good: we deſire and hope for eſpecially the kingdome of heauen, Thy kingdome come. On which all other petitions depend, for we pray thy will be done, for this end onely, that we may be ſubiects in his kingdome of grace, and Saints in his kingdome of glory. And his will is done by depending on his might and mercy, for things temporall and ſpiritual; in regard of the one, we pray, giue vs this day our daily bread; and for the other, forgiue vs our treſpaſſes, leade vs not into temptation, deliuer vs from euill. And by conſequence, Gods kingdome is the center of all our wiſhes, and totall ſumme of all our hopes. And becauſe the wiſe man euer begins at the end, our great Doctor hath incyned in things concerning our ſelues to beg this firſt of all, which is indeed the end of all. Seeing then all of vs walke in one way, all of vs haue one guide in the way, all of vs when we come to our iourneyes end expect one and the ſame reward: it is very meet all of vs ſhould endeuour to keepe the vnitie of the ſpirit in the bond of peace.

<sup>c</sup> In vita Caligule.

One Lord] It is reported by <sup>r</sup> Suetonius, that the Emperour Caligula tooke off the head of his great god Iupiter, and ſet on another of his owne. The Papills in their interpretations and glosſes, haue ſmitten off Chriſt Ieſus the onely head of the Church, and haue ſet on the Pope. Suppoſe (for thought is free, and im- poſſibilities may be ſuppoſed) I ſay ſuppoſe, S. Peter was Pope, and the other cleuen Apoſtles his Cardinals, as <sup>s</sup> Ioannes de Turrecremata doth auow. Suppoſe he was at Rome, ſuppoſe he was Biſhop of Rome, ſuppoſe the Pope ſucceeds him more lawfully than the Patriarch of Antioch, (all which a Proteſtant will not grant, and they cannot proue) yet I would faine learne of a Schoole Papiſt, who was this one Lord, and one head of the Church after the death of S. Peter immediately. Whether Linus, or Cletus, or Anacletus, or Clemens: theſe are foure good men and true, let them chuſe whom they will.

<sup>f</sup> Sum lib. 1. cap. 80.

<sup>l</sup> Lib. 7. cap. 47.

Clemens Romanus an old new Father, whom the learned conceiue to be the Popes own childe, writes in his <sup>c</sup> Apoſtolicall conſtitutions euidently, that Linus was the firſt Biſhop of Rome made by S. Paul, and that Clemens after the death of Linus was the ſecond, ordained by Peter: if this relation be true, the Pope ſits not in the chaire of Peter, but in the ſeat of Paul, for he created the firſt Pope. Franciſcus Turrianus in his <sup>u</sup> apolegeticall annotations vpon the text of Clemens, anſwereth that Linus was not Biſhop of Rome, but only Lord Suffragan or Vicar-generall, executing Epiſcopall iuriſdiction in S. Peters non- reſidence. The like is recorded of Cletus by <sup>x</sup> Marianus Scotus in the life of Peter. But by their good leaue, the Roman Martyrologie makes both Linus and Cletus Biſhops of Rome: and Cardinal Baronius in his annotations vpon theſe ſeueral martyrdomes, and in his Eccleſiaſticall Annals, <sup>v</sup> tome 1. maintaines againſt all comers, that Linus was the firſt, Cletus the ſecond, and Clemens the third Biſhop of Rome after S. Peter: Caſar Baronius in the ſame place thinks that Cletus and Anacletus were all one, but Cardinal <sup>z</sup> Bellarmino contradicts him, and ſhewes by diuers reaſons accurately, that they were two. And indeed this Roman Kalendar alloteth Anacletus a feſtiuall vpon the 13. of Iulie, and Cletus another vpon the 26. of Aprill. Whereupon <sup>a</sup> Tritenhemius and the Popiſh Hiſtoriographers hold, that Clemens was the fourth Pope after S. Peter. So then as you ſee ſome write that he was the firſt, other that he was the ſecond, other that he was the third, other that he was the fourth.

<sup>u</sup> Antwerp. ann. 1578.

<sup>x</sup> Ex epiſt. Decretal. Leon. 2.

<sup>v</sup> Ad ann. 69. Ita numerat Optatus, in lib. 2. contra Parmenian, Linus, Clemens, Anacletus.

<sup>a</sup> De Rom. Pont. lib. 2 cap. 5.

<sup>z</sup> In vita Clementis.

<sup>b</sup> Contra lit. Pet. cil. lib. 3. cap. 50.

<sup>c</sup> Vbi ſupra, §. caterum Pet. mortuo & ſequenti.

<sup>d</sup> Apud Bellar. ibidem § neque multum in mo- nel.

Bellarmino who ſhuffled the cards laſt, and is the beſt gameſter at the Popes primero, takes vpon him to compoſe the difference. But as <sup>b</sup> Auguſtine ſaid of Petilian, vbi respondere conatus est, magis ostendit quod non poterit respondere: indeed, ſaith <sup>e</sup> he, Clemens by right was the firſt Pope, but he ſuffered out of his humilitie Linus and Cletus to execute his office, ſo long as they liued. But <sup>d</sup> Damaſus, and Sophronius, and Simon Metaphraſtes, affirme that Linus died before Peter. Here Bellarmino anſwers not a word, but contemnes theſe writers which he magnifieth elſe-where, placing them among learned and Catholike Authors in his

his second<sup>e</sup> Tome. But for avoiding of tediousnesse, let it be granted that Clemens being an honest man than Popelings in our time, poisoned not his Predecessors, but suffered them to live and die in peace: yet if there were three Popes alive at once, who was this one head, and one Lord? then there were three Lords, not one Lord, the Lord Cletus, the Lord Linus, the Lord Clemens; and haply this may be one reason why the Pope hath three Crownes, one for Cletus, one for Linus, and the third for Clemens.

Thus (as<sup>f</sup> one said) the Papists in the points of their religion are vntrustied, and lie open to the whip. They boast of their succession of Bishops, and they cannot agree among themselves and tell their owne tale who was the first, second, third, or fourth Pope of Rome. Here the words of the Lord are verified, Esay 19. 2. Concurrere faciam Aegyptios aduersus Aegyptios, I will set Egyptians against Egyptians, euery one shall fight against his neighbour, Citie against Citie, and Kingdome against Kingdome, popish Councils against Councils, Vniuersities against Vniuersities, Schoolemen against Schoolemen, the Iesuits against the Priests, and the Priests against the Iesuits, Baronius against Bellarmino, and Bellarmino against Baronius, one against another, God and the truth against all.

It is wittily noted by S. Augustine, Petrus erat oculus in corpore, Peter was not head of the Church, but an eye in the head. God grant the Pope so much grace as to become an eye, or to stand in stead of an hand, yea of a finger, to further the building of Gods house. Head he is not, head he was not, so much as in opinion, for the space of 500. yeeres after Christ; head he cannot be, for there is but one Lord, one head, one sheepfold, one shepheard, Ioh. 10. 16.

Let vs examine therefore what this one Lord is: our Apostle saith helpe-where, that there be many Gods and many Lords. Many gods in title, many gods in opinion: in title, either authoritative or usurpative: by right, and so Kings are stiled gods in the<sup>i</sup> Psalme; by vlturpation, and so the Pope is called god, <sup>k</sup> Dominus Deus noster Papa, as the Canonists impiously blasphemc. Many gods in opinion, and so the Scripture tells vs, that gold is the<sup>l</sup> couetous mans god, and the<sup>m</sup> belly the gluttons god, and so there be many gods in heauen, and in earth, and in hell too. For it is written that the people of Calicut worship the deuil. The Gentiles were so vaine in their<sup>n</sup> imaginations, <sup>o</sup> amentes mentes, hauing their vnderstanding so blinded, that as P. Prudentius writes vnto Symachus, euery thing that was good was esteemed a god: in so much that modicum was idolum, they had so many gods, as that indeed they had no God. Thus you see there bee many gods, and many lords, yet vnto vs but one Lord. Vnto vs who know the truth (as it is here said) there is but only one Lord in truth. Other lords are domini titularcs: our Lord is Dominus tutelarius, a Lord protector indeed. Other by men are made gods: but our Lord is the God who made all men, an absolute Lord of himselfe, and in himselfe <sup>q</sup> Dominus dominantium, the Lord of all other lords, and God of all other gods. And in this acceptation Lord is vsed in the holy Bible sometimes essentially, signifying the whole Deitie: as in the first Commandement, I am the Lord thy God; and Psal. 50. 1. The Lord euen the most mighty God: & sometime personally, for Christ the second person in the blessed Trinitie, Luk. 17. 5 The Apostles said to the Lord: and 2 Cor. 13. 13. The grace of our Lord Iesus Christ: and so I take it to be taken here, there is one Lord, that is, one Christ, master of vs all, and head of his whole Church.

Now Christ is one in himselfe, and one to vs: in himselfe one, for albeit he be God and man; yet he is not two but one Christ. <sup>r</sup> Non alter ex patre, alter ex matre: sed aliter ex patre, aliter ex matre. One (as Orthodoxall Athanasius in his Creed) not by conuersion of the Godhead into flesh: but by taking of the manhood into God: one not by confusion of substance, but by vnitie of person: for as the reasonable soule and flesh is one man, so God and man one Christ. Again, Christ is one to vs, as being <sup>s</sup> yesterday, and to day, and the same for euer.

<sup>c</sup> In Card'g. Theolog annex tom. 2. can. 70.

<sup>f</sup> Mr Philpot. et Fox in his Martyr.

<sup>g</sup> Trist. 13. in Ioan.

<sup>h</sup> 1 Cor. 8. 5.

<sup>i</sup> Psal. 82. 2.

<sup>k</sup> Extravagant Grat. Ioh. 22.

<sup>l</sup> Coloss. 3. 5.

<sup>m</sup> Philip. 3. 19.

<sup>n</sup> Rom. 1. 27.

<sup>o</sup> De ciuit Dei lib. 1. cap. 32.

<sup>p</sup> Lib. 1. aduer. Syn.

<sup>q</sup> 1 Tim. 6. 15.

<sup>r</sup> Emerson. hanc. 2. de nat. Dom.

<sup>s</sup> Heb. 13. 8.

Idem, } Obiectiue, } Subiectiue, } Effeetiue.

<sup>c</sup> Super Exod. queß. 73.

<sup>d</sup> Matth. 1. 21.

<sup>e</sup> See Perkins
Reformed
Catholike tit.
supremacie.

Obiectiue, the same in his word, for he that yesterday was shadowed in the Law, is to day shewed in the Gospell: as <sup>c</sup> Augustine said, the new Testament is clasped in the old, and the old is opened in the new. One Christ crucified being the center of all the Bibles circumference. Idem subiectiue, the same in his attributes, in his power, in his authoritie, being alway the Lord of his people, the shepheard of his flocke, the head of his Church. Idem effeetiue, the same in his goodnesse and grace, for he who was yesterday the God of Abrabam, Isaac, Iacob, is to day and shall be for euer Iesus, <sup>u</sup> that is, a Saviour of his people: he is as well now the light of the Gentiles, as he was before the glory of his people Israel: he that was present and president among the blessed Apostles, hath promised also to come vnto vs, to comfort vs, to be in the middest of vs, as ouer all, and through all; so likewise in vs all, as followeth in the text.

If then this one Lord be present with vs in his word, present in his Spirit, present in his power, in all the same yesterday and to day, and for euer: I see no cause why he should need another Lord, deputy Lieutenant, or Vicar generall to execute his office: for Christ may be considered of vs as a Lord <sup>x</sup> two wayes:

1. As God.
2. As God and man.

As God by right of creation, he is an absolute Lord ouer all men, and all things in heauen and earth. As God and man, or as the redeemer of man, he is foueraigne Lord of the whole Church in more speciall manner.

Now then, as Christ is God with the Father and Holy Ghost, he hath his Deputies on earth to gouerne the world; namely, Kings and Printes, therefore called Gods: but as he is a Mediator and Lord of his redeemed ones, he hath neither fellow, nor Deputie. No fellow, for then he should haue beene an imperfect Mediator: no Deputie, because no creature is capable of this office: the performance whereof ariseth of the effects of two natures concurring in one action, namely the Godhead, and the Manhood. And therefore howsoeuer Preachers are his actiue instruments, his messengers, his Ministers, (if you will) his vnder Vfhers to teach his schollers in this great Vniuersitie: yet none can properly be called his Vicars, or Deputies to doe that in his stead which personally belongs to him. In this sense there is but one Lord, and this one Lord is the Lord, euen the Lord of Lords, Christ Iesus God and man.

Wherefore seeing all of vs march vnder the colours of one Captaine, all follow one Master, all serue one Lord, whose title is <sup>y</sup> loue, whose <sup>z</sup> liuery is loue, whose chiefe commandement is loue, whose doctrine is the doctrine of <sup>a</sup> peace, whose Ministers are the <sup>b</sup> messengers of peace, whose followers are the <sup>c</sup> children of peace: it behoueth vs (if it be possible) to haue peace with all men, endeouering to keepe the vnitie of the spirit in the bond of peace.

One faith] The Turke hath his faith, the Iew his faith, the Gentile his faith, Heretikes haue their faith, and Schismatikes their faith. In some countries (as it is reported) there are almost as many Creeds as heads, at the least as many sects as Cities. It is <sup>d</sup> written of Poland, that if any man haue lost his religion he shall be sure to finde it there, or else he may giue it gone for euer. How then is it true that there is but one faith?

Answer is made, that to speake properly these are not faiths, but factions; all of them being either vnbeleefes, or misbeleefes. And therefore when the Disciples asked the Lord to <sup>e</sup> increase their faith, it must be construed of increase in measure, that we may grow from vertue to vertue, from knowledge to knowledge, from faith to faith, vntill we be of full growth in Christ Iesus: not increase in number, for in regard of the manifold rents and diuisions in the Church, it is our duty contrariwise to pray the Lord, that he will decrease not increate our faith in number, which is and must be but one.

<sup>y</sup> 1 Iohn 4. 8.

<sup>z</sup> Iohn 13. 35.

<sup>a</sup> Ephes 2. 17.

<sup>b</sup> Rom. 10. 15.

<sup>c</sup> Luke 10. 6.

<sup>d</sup> Relation of religion in the West parts of the world,
scilicet 43.

<sup>e</sup> Luke 17. 5.

For the further handling whereof, obserue with Augustine and Lombard that among manifold acceptions of faith in holy Scripture, it is taken especially vel pro eo quod creditur, vel pro eo quo creditur: either for the doctrine of faith, or else for the grace whereby we beleue this doctrine. For the doctrine of faith, as Tit. 1. 13. Rebuke them sharply that they may be found in the faith; And Galat. 1. 22. He that persecuted in time past, now preacheth the faith, that is, the Gospell. And in this sense there is but one onely true Catholike and Apostolike faith: if any man on earth, or Angell from heauen, shall goe about to deliuer another Gospell, let him be accursed, Galath. 1. 8.

Secondly, faith significth the gift and grace whereby we beleue and apply this doctrine, fitly termed by Diuines Glossa Enangely. For as loue is the best exposition of the Law: so faith is the best interpreter of the Gospell: not glossa ordinaria, but as it were catena aurea, containing all that must and may be beleued. In which respect, it is truly called sauing and iustifying faith. And this (as the s Schoole distinguisheth) is diuersa, ratione subiecti: sed vna, ratione obiecti. Faith is, and must be diuers in regard of diuers beleeuers, for euery man must liue by his<sup>h</sup> owne faith. Paul cannot be saued by the faith of Peter, nor Peter iustified by the faith of Iohn. As euery one must haue<sup>i</sup> oyle of his owne in his owne lampe: so euery one must haue faith of his owne in his owne heart. Yet faith in regard of her obiect, is but one, for there is but one only diuine truth, which is the generall obiect of faith, and but one only Christ Iesus crucified, who is the speciall obiect of iustifying and sauing faith. One only faith, because one onely Lord, her owne only obiect. Albeit faith be diuers in diuers men, and hath diuers degrees in one man: yet it is but of one kinde in all. And here we may learne how faith is said to iustifie, non ut mediator, sed ut medium; not as a meritorious or efficient cause, for that were to make our faith our Christ: but as an instrumentall or spirituall hand apprehending Christ who doth iustifie. For as our<sup>k</sup> Church aptly, faith is like John the Baptist, it points out Christ and faith vnto vs. Behold the Lambe of God that taketh away the sinnes of the world. Nay, faith is like S. Thomas, first handling, and then applying the wounds of Christ in particular, Thou art my Lord and my God. This in number is but one vertue, yet in a Christians account vpon the point, it is the only vertue: for lose faith and lose all, hold faith and hold Christ who is all in all.

The Papists haue martyred the text in magnifying the wooden Crucifix; but a man by faith may behold Christ crucified almost in all the workes of God, either in vs or vpon vs.. Doest thou reade the Bible? there is a Crucifix, and as it were a speaking picture of Christ. So himsele said in the<sup>l</sup> Gospell, Search the Scriptures, for they witnesse of me. Doest thou behold a brother in distresse? there is another Crucifix, in him Christ is naked, hungrie, sicke, harbourlesse. Doest thou come to the Lordstable? there is another Crucifix, the consecrated bread and wine are dumbe sermons of Christs passion. Art thou tempted and afflicted? then thou maist behold Christ crucified as thy partner and thy patterne. Thy partner, who pittiet thy cause, and hath<sup>m</sup> compassion on thee. As thy patterne, 1. Pet. 2. 21. Christ suffered for vs, leaving vs an example, that we should follow his steps, who when he was reuiled, reuiled not againe: when he suffered, threated not; but committed the vengeance to him that iudgeth righteously. So that it may be said of faith as well as of originall sinne, vna est essentia, sed multiplex efficientia: In essence but one, but in efficiencie, loue, patience, hope, and many vertues: euen<sup>n</sup> the victorie that ouercommeth the world, the shield whereby we may quench all the fierie darts of the deuill, Ephes. 6. 16. the very speare which killeth our last enemy, for a true beleener in his deaths-bed is readie to sing with old Simeon, Lord now lettest thou thy seruant depart in peace, for mine eyes haue seene thy saluation: and to say with<sup>o</sup> Paul, O death where is thy sting? O hell where is thy victory? the sting of death is sinne, and the strength of sinne is the law, but thanks be giuen to God, which hath giuen vs victorie through Iesus Christ our Lord.

<sup>p</sup> Salomon because he was a King, desired wisdom aboue all things; <sup>q</sup> David being

<sup>f</sup> Sent. lib. 3. dist. 23.

<sup>g</sup> Thom. 2. 2. e. quest. 4. art. 6.

<sup>h</sup> Habacuc. 2. 4.
<sup>i</sup> Matth. 25. 9.

<sup>k</sup> Part hom. of saluation.

<sup>l</sup> 1. Ioh. 5. 39.

<sup>m</sup> Heb. 4. 15.

<sup>n</sup> 1. Ioh. 5. 4.

<sup>o</sup> 1. Cor. 15. 55.

<sup>p</sup> 1. King 3. 9.
<sup>q</sup> Psal. 27. 4.

being a little restrained from the Temple, desire about all things to behold the beautie of the Lords house; Mydas about all things desired gold; Alexander about all things desired honour; Epicurus about all things desired pleasure: but if we will make but one wish vnto God, let vs begge and pray for a liuely faith, O Lord increase our faith. He that hath this one gift is learned enough, religious enough, rich enough, honourable enough, eased enough, pleased enough, against which no euill on earth, no deuill in hell shall finally preuaile.

<sup>c</sup> Thucydides.

For as <sup>r</sup> one called Athens Greece of Greece: so faith is the grace of all grace; without which (as our Apostle teacheth) euen our good workes are finnes, Rom. 14.23. Whatsoever is not of faith is sinne.

Wherefor to conclude this point, seeing a liuely faith is the key of heaven, and as it were the spirituall hand to take out of the coffers of God all his rich treasure, without which one vertue, all other are no vertues; without the which the Gospell is no Gospell, God is no God, Christ is no Christ vnto vs: it behoueth euery man about all things in this life, to labour for increase of this one gift, without which all other are rather curses then blessings vnto vs. And because there is but one doctrine of faith, and one kinde of iustifying faith it is the duetie of all such as professe the one and haue comfort by the other, to keepe the vnitie of the Spirit in the bond of peace.

<sup>c</sup> In Epitaphia Nepotian.

One Baptisme ] Here with accurate <sup>c</sup> Hierome praising Nepotian, I must intreat you to behold in a little map, that world of matter which might haue bene shewed at large.

Baptisme then is either } Proper: as bare cleansing and washing, Heb. 9. 10.
 } Metaphoricall, as affliction, Matt. 10. 22.
 } Allegorical, as repentant teares, Lu. 7. 38.
 } Synecdochicall, and so it is put for the } whole doctrine of Iohn, Matth. 21. 25.
 } Catechumen; and so it is taken for that we } call vsually Christening, and this as the } Schoole teacheth is of three sorts:

<sup>c</sup> Tom part. 3. queest. 66. art. 9.

Baptisma } Fluminis.
 } Fluminis.
 } Sanguinis.

But of all these there is but one only Sacrament of Baptisme, the which is one in three regards.

Unum quia } Ad unum.
 } In unum.
 } Per unum.

First, unum ad unum, one in one man, once truly receiued, neuer to be <sup>a</sup> reiterate; as we teach against the <sup>x</sup> Valentinians in old time, And Anabaptists in our age. Here might I shew that Bishopping is not a new Baptisme, but as the word imports, a confirmation only, wherein a Christian in his owne person doth performe that which heretofore by other he did promise.

Secondly, unum in unum, one Baptisme, <sup>v</sup> for that all of vs are baptized into one faith of one Lord, for Iohns and Christs Baptisme differ not in substance, but in circumstance: Iohn baptized <sup>z</sup> in Christum passurum. Christs Apostles in Christum passurum.

Thirdly, unum quia per unum, one <sup>a</sup> in regard of the water and words wherewith we baptize, we may not vse any other element but water, nor any other words, but I baptize thee in the name of the Father, of the Sonne, and of the Holy Ghost. <sup>b</sup> one matter, one forme essentiall in holy Baptisme.

One God, and Father of all, which is above all, and through all, and in you all. ] The map whereof in briefe is, God as Father of <sup>c</sup> Christ by nature, of Christians by <sup>d</sup> adoption, of all men and all things by <sup>e</sup> creation: ouer all, and through all, and in you all, may be <sup>f</sup> construed either with appropriation to the seuerall Persons in the blessed Trinitie; and so God the Father is the Person ouer all, God

the

<sup>a</sup> Aquin.
<sup>c</sup> Caietan.
<sup>z</sup> Hieron expo. si. prior in loc.
<sup>v</sup> Marlorat. in Aquin.
<sup>z</sup> Melancton. in Mat. 3.
Idem Caluin.
Cheuenius, & ceteri protestant.
apud Bellarm. de sac. bap. lib. 1. cap. 20.
<sup>a</sup> Vide Lombard sent. 4. dist. 3.
<sup>b</sup> Dionysius Causus.
Caietan.
<sup>c</sup> Iohn 3. 16.
<sup>d</sup> Rom. 8. 15.
<sup>e</sup> Deut. 32. 6.
<sup>f</sup> Gorran. in loc.

the Sonne the Person through all, God the Holy Ghost the Person in vs all. Or else of the whole Dietie without appropriation, and so God is ouer all excellentia dignitatis, through all presentia maiestatis, in all gracia inhabitationis.

For small conclusion of this and all the rest: seeing all of vs haue beene borne, and now liue in one and the same Church, all of vs haue beene comforted often by one and the same Spirit, all of vs expect one and the same crowne, all of vs acknowledge one and the same Lord, all of vs hold one and the same faith, all of vs are sanctified with one and the same baptisme, all of vs adore one and the same God, who is the Father of all, ouer all, through all, in vs all. I beseech you men, brethren, and fathers, let me speake to you in the words of Paul, Marke them diligently which cause diuision and offences, contrary to the doctrine which ye haue learned, and auoid them. For they that are such, serue not the Lord Iesus Christ, but their owne bellies, and with faire speech and flattering deceiue the hearts of the simple.

<sup>2</sup> Rom. 16. 17.

As Christ, so the<sup>h</sup> Church is crucified betweene two malefactors: on the right hand Schismatikes, on the left Papists: the one doe disrumpere charitatis vincula, vntie the bonds of peace; the other doe corrumpere fidei dogmata, vndoe the vnitie of the Spirit. The first are different in things indifferent, the second almost indifferent in matters different, concerning the publike exercises of our Religion, and yet each of them spurne at the poore Church, as at a common foot-ball, being herein<sup>k</sup> like Sampsons foxes, seuered in their head, but tied together by the taile with fire-brands betweene them, able to set the whole Land in combustion and vproare. The Schismatikes vnderstand that the bonds of peace are not one policy, one discipline, one ceremony: but as it is here said, one Lord, one Faith, one Baptisme. Wherefore seeing both of vs agree in the maine matters, it is a verie fruitlesse contention to quatrell about by-points.

<sup>h</sup> Tertullian.
<sup>i</sup> August. apud Caluin. Institut.
lib. 4. cap. 2. §. 5.

<sup>k</sup> Oxford Anf. to the Puritans Petition.

<sup>l</sup> Iudg 15. 4.

Again, the Papists acknowledged heretofore that our Bible, and booke of Diuine Service, doe containe doctrine sufficiently necessarie to saluation, and so much (as i haue<sup>m</sup> read) Pope Pius Quintus (who could not erre) signified in a letter to our late Soueraigne of famous memory Queene Elizabeth. Vpon what credit I speake this, I suppose most know. If any mistrust that great reporter, I can easily shew him a parallel in Bristoles<sup>n</sup> motiues. The Protestants are Apes of the Papists, the very Communion booke is made altogether out of the Masse booke, and so are other Church-bookes also taken out of ours, as it is well knowne to all who know both. If this be true, then his Collection is not false, who censured their not communicating with vs, to be a point not of deuotion, but of state, namely, to maintaine the Popes supremacie. To speake plainly, which I thinke sincerely, the people of the Puritans, and the Priests of the Papists, are the true lect why both endeour not to keepe the vnitie of the spirit in the bond of peace. For the first, Schismatikes are like the vaine Philosophers in old time, Popularis aura incipit vniuersali, certaine creatures bred of the peoples breath; hoc ipso placere cupiunt quod placere contemnunt, they reake not to be condemned of the learned for ignorant; so they may be commended of the ignorant for learned. And therefore when Plato saw the people pittying Diogenes, for ducking himselfe in cold water on a frosty morning, he said vnto them, If you depart to your lodgings and leaue gazing on him, he will I warrant you presently come out of the riuer and keepe himselfe warme. Yea, but how shall we carrie away the people from looking on Diogenes? as Socrates did Alcibiades, make them pitchers and so carrie them away by the eares, instruct them in season, out of season. Because some of their Pastors haue put out their owne light, I beseech you let vs that are conformable, supply their silence by our diligence. For albeit some of that humour be malicious, and incorrigible, yet other (as Saluianus writes) errant, sed bono animo errant: impij sunt, sed hoc putant veram esse pietatem. And as Euthymius, quidam Pharisei semimali. So that if we cast our net on the right side of the ship dexterously, we may peradventure catch them, and draw them to fruitfull knowledge and dutifull obedience.

<sup>m</sup> Iudge Cocke charge at Norwich, an 1605.

<sup>n</sup> Mar 34.
p 28. 144.

<sup>o</sup> Hierom. Epist.
ad Iannae.
<sup>p</sup> Hierom Epist.
ad Euseb.

<sup>q</sup> Plutarch. in vita Alcibiadis.

<sup>r</sup> De guber.
Dei lib. 5.
<sup>s</sup> In Luc 14.

<sup>c</sup> Arch-bishop Whitgift.
▪ Eccles. 49. 1.

▪ Eccles. polit
§. 81. pag. 262.

<sup>7</sup> Macanell. in
Rom. 12. Tom 3.
fol. 1025.

<sup>2</sup> Relat. of Religion in th:
West part of
the world, § 36
<sup>a</sup> The sparing Discourse,
pag. 41.
<sup>b</sup> Ibid. pag. 7.
<sup>c</sup> Important con-
pag. 3.
<sup>d</sup> Quodlibet. 3.
art. 3.
<sup>e</sup> Iesuit. Cat. lib.
1. cap. 1.
<sup>f</sup> Quodlibet. 1.
art. 2.

It was an excellent speech of our late<sup>c</sup> Diocesan (whose memorie I assure my selfe is so sweet as<sup>u</sup> hony in your mouthes, and musicke in your eares) He is not worthy to hold two Benefices, who doth not preach one sermon at the least every Sunday, As there be many wholesome inunctions touching Cap and Cope: so likewise many good orders for the reuerent administering of the Sacraments, and diligent preaching of the word. God forbid, the one should be Canons, and the other made Pot-guns onely. I confesse that Diuines which are Counsellours, or Prelates, or attendants in Court, or Students in Vniuersities, or necessarie Residentiaries in Cathedrall Churches, or employed in writing, or ambassages, may profitably spend their time otherwise: but the Country Pastors occupation is to feed his flocke, by preaching to Christs sheepe, and carechizing his lambes. If it be said of him who will, but cannot preach, that he is a dumbe dogge: I thinke it may be said of him who can and will not, that he is a dumbe deuill. It is a beaustiall rudenesse, saith reuerend<sup>x</sup> Hooker, alluding to the first of Iob, vers. 4. that Oxen onely should labour, and Asses feed: that good schollers should preach, and dunces be preferred. But it is a greater inconuenience for the Church, that Oxen should onely feed, and Asses take all the paine: who though haply they be resident at their Cure, yet for the most part non-resident from their Text, or if they come neere it (as Luther was wont to say) they make a martyr of it.

Will you haue the factious Nouclists cut off with little grieffe to the Prelates, and no hurt to the people? then let vs that are conformable liue in our studies, and die in the pulpit: that when our great Lord shall come to reckon with vs for our stewardship, he may not take vs (as Aristophanes said of Cleon) with one foot in the Court, and another in the Citie, none in our Cure: but (as those two great Diuines Iewel and Caluin were wont to wish) he may finde vs in his owne house, doing his owne businesse.

Concerning the Papists: I hold the Priests among them most inexcusable. The people are like the sea, and the Priests are like the winde, the sea of it selfe would be calme, if the winde did not set it in agitation: but so long as Priests and Arch-Priests, Iesuits and Seminaries raigne ouer this our goodly Forrest, seeking for their prey: well may the Courtiers haue their goods, and the Countrie their persons, but I feare the Pope will haue their hearts, and the deuill in conclusion their soules. It is great pittie that many piercing wits of England can see nothing but thorow the spectacles of Statizing Iesuits, and so hauing but two paire of eyes, one of their Confessours which is nequam; and another of their owne, which is nequicquam; the wilfull blinde leading the wofull blinde, they fall both into the ditch. If they could put on eyes either of Religion or reason, they should easily see that their Priests doctrine is preiudiciall to Christ, and their liues hatefull to all Christendome. For this saying is ingrossed in their owne bookes, That of all Christians, Italians are the worst: of all Italians, the Romans: of all Romans, the Priests: of all Priests, the Cardinals: and commonly the most lewd Cardinal is elected Pope. Nay, some maintaine this opinion, a Hominem non Christianum posse esse Romanum Pontificem. That a man which is not a member of Christ, may notwithstanding be head of the Church. As for our home-bred, but farre taught Gunpowder men, aske the Secular Priests what the Iesuits are, and they will, and that in<sup>b</sup> print, tell you, that they be Statists; <sup>c</sup> Machiuanillians, <sup>d</sup> Atheists, <sup>e</sup> so many Iesuits, so many Iudasses. Aske the Iesuites what the Secular Priests are, and they will tell you, that they are Drunkards, Dunces, Fooles, the very<sup>f</sup> refuse of the Church. If these things be true, then they be both monsters of men: if false, most malicious deuils.

God of his infinite goodnesse grant, that we and they and all may seriously labour for a perfect vnion, not only of law, but of loue, for an vnirie of the spirit, knit with the bond of peace: that all of vs following the truth in loue, we may maintaine one and the same faith, and hereafter attaine one and the same kingdome of glory.

Preached at Ashford in Kent, at the Lord Arch-bishops Metropolitall visitation, Ann 1607. Septem. 11

The Gospell. LUKE 7. 11.

It chanced that Iesus went into the house of one of the chiefe Pharises, &c.

In this Gospell obserue the

Mercy of Christ, } toward the } Master of the feast, in comming to his house, for his good, albeit a Pharisee, yea, a chiefe Pharisee.
Guests, } Impotent, in healing a man which had the dropsie.
Impudent, instructing such as contended for place, verse 7. 8, &c.
Malice of the Pharises, intolded in one word, They watched him, against all rules of entertainment and hospitalitie, making their table a snare to catch him.

It chanced] S. Basil is of opinion, that chance and fortune are words of Heathens, and not of Christians. Ignoratio causarum nomen fortune confinxit. Ignorance made fortune a Goddess. The Gentiles as<sup>h</sup> blinded in their vnderstanding admit and admire this vncertaine Ladie, huic omnia expensa, huic omnia feruntur accepta, & in tota ratione mortalium sola utramque paginam facit: but such as are taught in Christs Vniuersitie, know that all things come to passe by diuine prouidence, without our heavenly Father a sparrow doth not fall from an house nor an haire from our head, Matth. 10. 29. and therefore Saint Augustine was exceedingly displeas'd with himselfe for often vsing in his writings the word fortuna, and haply some will except against our translating, issem, it chanced, and in the Gospell appointed for the laist Sunday, Luke 7. 11. it fortun'd; as also caull at those words in the Collect, among all the changes and chances of this mortall life. For answer then vnto this obiection, and for clearing of our text: you must vnderstand, that albeit nothing be casuall in respect of Gods knowledge: <sup>k</sup> yet many things are casuall in respect of our ignorance. Which<sup>l</sup> Aquine doth exemplifie thus: A master sendeth about one errand two seruants, one being ignorant of the others iourney: this concourse of the two seruants in respect of themselues is casuall, and the one may wonder to see the other employ'd about his businesse in the same place: but yet in regard of the master who did preordaine this, it is not casuall. Almighty God seeth and fore-seeth all things, uno actu, yea, uno actu, semel & simul: and therefore to him as being all eye, nothing is old, nothing is new: but vnto men it may be said truly, that there be so many chances as there be changes inuoluntarie. Herein wee doe not ascribe any thing to blinde Fortune, but all vnto Gods all-seeing prouidence; yet so, that the diuine prouidence take not away free will and contingence: for this good a fit of Christ as it happened not by fortune; so likewise it came not to passe by fate, not, I say, by<sup>m</sup> fatall destinie, for God according to the common axiome of the Schoole, non necessitat sed faciliat, he doth induce the good to doe good with alacritie, not inforce them against their will. Quoniam probitate coadla gloria nulla venit. As then in regard of God, issem is well translated, it came to passe: so in regard of vs, as well, it chanced. As it was prouidence in God, it come to passe, as contingence in Christ being man, it chanced. For he might have visited a Publican so well as a Pharisee, but it fell out so, that Iesus went into the house of one of the chiefe Pharises.

Christ conuersed with men of all sorts, and all sexes, sometime blessing o little children, sometime conferring with lilly<sup>p</sup> women, sometimes eating with the<sup>q</sup> Publicans, esteemed the greatest sinners, and here dining with the Pharises accounted the greatest Saints; he despised none, who came to saue all. He<sup>r</sup> cried in the streets among the prease, powring out his minde and saying, Come to me all ye that are wearie and laden and I will ease you. And at his death his hands on the Crosse were stretched out, his head bowed downe, his breast

<sup>s</sup> Apud Cal.
Instit. lib. 1.
16 §. 8.
<sup>h</sup> Ephes 4. 14.
<sup>i</sup> Plin. hist. lib. 2.
cap. 7.

<sup>k</sup> Caluin. ubi
sup § 9.
1<sup>a</sup> art. 1. quest.
116. art. 1.

<sup>m</sup> Si quis Dei voluntatis ap-pellat nomine sali, sententiam terrest linguam conizat. Aug.
de Ciu. lib. 5.
cap. 1.

<sup>n</sup> Prudent. in
Ham. exegema.
<sup>p</sup> Marke 10. 16.
<sup>q</sup> Iohn 4.
<sup>r</sup> Matth. 9. 10.
Luke 19. 9.

<sup>r</sup> Prou. 1. 21.
<sup>s</sup> Matth. 11. 28.

<sup>c</sup> Fulgent. serm. de duplici nat. Ch. 17.

open, as readie to redeeme and receiue such as would belecue in him. <sup>c</sup> Homo Deum contemnens à Deo discessit, Deus hominem diligens ad homines venit, dilexit impium ut faceret iustum, dilexit infirmum ut faceret sanum, dilexit mortuum ut faceret viuum.

<sup>m</sup> Cyril. apud Aquin in loc.

<sup>r</sup> Marlorat.
<sup>s</sup> Ardens.

<sup>r</sup> Aug. bo. 7. 15.

One of the chiefe Pharisees ] It is apparet in the Gospels historie, that the Pharisees were the greatest enemies vnto Christ, and therefore this being a chiefe Pharisee, was haply one of Christs chiefe enemies. And <sup>b</sup> yet Christ being invited, as it should seeme, to his house formally, comes friendly, without any further examination of his intent, and being come, benefits him and his in vntering a parable and acting a miracle, seeking to <sup>r</sup> winne them all vnto the truth. <sup>v</sup> Hereby teaching to blesse such as hate vs, embracing all occasions of loue whereby we may be reconciled vnto our mortall enemies. In malice there is nothing else but miserie, whereas a common vnion begets a communion of all good things. <sup>r</sup> Habet proximus aliquam gratiam? ama illum et tua est: habes tu aliam? amet te et sua est. Hath thy neighbour any rare grace? loue him and it is thine: hast thou any notable gift? if he loue thee, then it is his. And therefore Christ, albeit he did hate the pride, yet louing the person of this pharisee, said and did alto good to him and all his companie.

<sup>a</sup> Luke 19. 2.

<sup>b</sup> Ioh 12. 42.

<sup>c</sup> Matth. 23. 4.

<sup>d</sup> Iohn 12. 31.

<sup>e</sup> Matth. 12. 24.

<sup>f</sup> Cant. 4. 12.

<sup>g</sup> Cant. 6. 9.

<sup>h</sup> 1. Tim. 3. 15.

<sup>i</sup> Loxquet. ad ann. 1534.

<sup>k</sup> Ludolphus de vita Christi. part. 1. cap 37.

<sup>l</sup> Verse 26. 27.

<sup>m</sup> 2. 34.

<sup>n</sup> Cyril. apud Panig. in loc.

<sup>o</sup> Nomine panis intelligitur omne necessarium ad alimentum Aquin & Carthusian ibid.

<sup>p</sup> Caluina.

Arct.

Vega.

Againe, in that this Pharisee was a Chiefe, we note that there was among them, as in euery settled Societie, distinction of offices and orders. In the great booke of Nature we finde that the Bees haue their Master, Cranes their Captaine, Sheepe their Belwether. In holy write also we reade of <sup>a</sup> chiefe Publicans, chiefe <sup>b</sup> Rulers, chiefe <sup>c</sup> Priests. Hell it selfe, though it be the kingdome of confusion, admits of some degrees and order, otherwise Belzebub could not be <sup>d</sup> prince of the wicked, and <sup>e</sup> chiefe of the deuils, And therefore tumultuous Anabaptists, and all such as would haue no differences and degrees among men in Church and Common-weale, seeme to haue lesse reason than beasts, and lesse Religion than either the most wicked men, or the most wretched deuils. Order is the beautie of nature, ornament of Art, harmonie of the world. Now, shall euery thing be in order, and the Church of God only without order? It is <sup>a</sup> a garden inclosed, and a garden must be kept in order. It is <sup>g</sup> an armie with banners, and an armie must be marshalled in order. It is <sup>h</sup> the house of God, and Gods house must be governed in order. A popular equalitie was so burthensome to the feditious Anabaptists in their rebellion, as that contrary to their owne doctrine they did admit <sup>i</sup> John Matthew for their Captaine, and <sup>j</sup> John Aleyd for their King. And so there was a kinde of order in their hurlyburly disorder: as there were some chiefe Pharisees, euen so some chiefe Anabaptists.

To eate bread ] <sup>k</sup> Three sorts of bread are mentioned in the Bible: Sacramentall, 1. Cor. 11. 28. Let a man examine himselfe, and so let him eat of this bread, &c. Doctrinall, Ioh. 6. <sup>l</sup> Labour not, faith our Sauour, for the loaves and for the meat which perish, but for the meat and bread that endure to life etierlasting. Corporall, Matth. 4. 4. Man shall not liue by bread only, but by euery word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God. Now the bread here spoken of, is neither mentall nor sacramentall, but corporall. And this kinde in a strict acception is the loafe made of wheat; or some like graine; Gen. 14. 18. Melchisedec King of Salem brought forth bread and wine. But in a more generall and large signification, it is vsed in holy Scripture <sup>m</sup> pro omni comestibili, for all kinde of food. As Genesis 3. 19. In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat <sup>n</sup> bread: and in the Lords prayer, Giue vs this day our daily bread: where panis, is pan, euery thing necessarie for this our life. See 1. Sam. 14. 24. 2. Sam 9. 10. Prou. 31. 14. Jerem. 11. 19. It is then a weake conceit of Ardens, and the counterfet Eusebius Emiffenus, to note from hence the moderate diet of Christ on the Sabbath day, whereas <sup>o</sup> eating of bread is as much as feasting or dining with the Pharisee. For if there had bene nothing but drie bread on the boord, haply there would haue bene lesse contending for place.

On the Sabbath day ] The Pharisees in inuiring, and our Sauours comming on this this day, to this dinner, evidently demonstrate that it is not vnlawfull to feast on the Lords day. For if the Iewes might entertaine neighbours and friends on their Sabbath: how much more Christians on our Sunday, being assured, that God is worshipped euen on this day <sup>p</sup> rather with workes of hospitalitie and charitie, then by fond macerating of our bodies. I write not this against godly fasting, nor yet for vngodly feasting. Moderation is the best dish at the table, for immoderate fasts exceedingly dull vs: and on the contrarie, sanctified feasts in good companie, make vs more fit for deuotion and ether duties on the Sabbath, especially when Christ is in presence, when a good man is moderatour at the boord, whose speech is <sup>q</sup> powdred with salt <sup>r</sup> that it may minister grace to the hearers, edifying his host and all his house. Christ herein shewed himselfe thankfull and faithfull, he did not bite his host in present, nor backbite him absent, but in requirall of his good cheere gaue good words, and better aduice. Christ was faithfull also, for whereas it is the fashion of parasites and trencher-Chaplines to flatter, or at the least humour great men at their table: he did not deuoure the faults of the chiefe Pharisee with his fowles, and his sinne with his sance, but correct him and his, <sup>s</sup> instructing their soules while they fed his bodie. This ought to be the center of all our couersation and conference, to make those which are bad, good; and those which are good, better. So did Noe conuerse with them of the old world; so Lot with them of Sodome; so Iob with them of the land of Vz; and so <sup>t</sup> Paul with all men, vsing all meanes to saue some.

The Pharisees had <sup>u</sup> two faults especially, misconstruing of the Scripture, and pride. Christ here doth rectifie their error in both, in healing a sicke man on the Sabbath, he doth instruct them in the true meaning of the fourth Commandement, according to the present occasion offered; and in his parable to the guests, he deliuereth an excellent document concerning their ambition. He could haue cured this man, as he did many, with his bare word onely; <sup>x</sup> but to shew that all handy workes, as these of charitie, and other of necessitie, as to pull a beast out of a ditch, are not vnlawfull for the Sabbath, he touched him, and by touching healed him.

Two circumstances amplifie Christs exceeding rich mercies in acting this miracle: first, for that he did it vnasked freely: secondly, for that he did it with hazard of his credit stoutly. He did helpe the <sup>y</sup> Centurions seruant, but vpon entreatie: the <sup>z</sup> womans daughter of Cana, but after a long and earnest suit: the blinde <sup>a</sup> Bartimeus, but after much crying, O sonne of David haue mercie vpon me: the <sup>b</sup> lunatike, but his father vpon bowed knees asked this boone, Master haue pitie on my sonne: Whereas this man is cured instantly, without any request of his friends, or prayer of himselfe. Againe, Christ vndertooke this cure with hazard of his honor, whereas other miracles vsually wrought his glorie. When he raised from dead the widowes son in Naim, all that were present praised God and said, <sup>c</sup> A great prophet is risen up among vs, and God hath visited his people: when he cured two blinde men, Matth. 9. They spread abroad his fame throughout all that land: when he fed about five thousand with five barley loaves and two fishes, all that saw the miracle, said, <sup>d</sup> This of a truth is the same Prophet that should come into the world: when he made the deafe to heare, and the dumbe to speake, such as were spectators euen with open mouth as it were cried, <sup>e</sup> He hath done all things well: but in helping this man after this manner on the Sabbath, he knew that the Pharisees on the contrarie would obiect that he had done ill: and yet he first acted the miracle, then makes an Apologie for it, answering their secret malice, which of you shall haue an oxe or an asse, &c. <sup>f</sup> Teaching vs hereby that we should not cease to proceed in well doing, though an infinit number of potent enemies on euery side combine themselues against vs.

<sup>g</sup> Some for the further amplifying of Christs abundant goodnesse, imagine here that the sicke man was a parasite to the Pharisees, and that he came to this feast of his owne accord as a bait to catch Christ, and not with an intent to be cured

<sup>p</sup> Calman in loc.<sup>q</sup> Coloff 4.6.<sup>r</sup> Ephes 4.29.<sup>s</sup> Iansen in loc.<sup>t</sup> 1. Cor. 9.22.<sup>u</sup> Pant. in.<sup>x</sup> Arden. Iansen.<sup>y</sup> Luk 7.<sup>z</sup> Matth. 15.<sup>a</sup> Mar. 10.<sup>b</sup> Matth. 17.<sup>c</sup> Luke 7. 16.<sup>d</sup> Iohn 6. 14.<sup>e</sup> Mar. 7. 37.<sup>f</sup> Manning.<sup>g</sup> Panigaval. part 1. booke. 37 locusts.

<sup>h</sup> Maldonat.
<sup>i</sup> Cyril.

<sup>k</sup> Psal. 39. 2.

<sup>l</sup> Beda. Gregor.
<sup>m</sup> Heming.

<sup>n</sup> Perkins Government of the tongue, chap. 7.
<sup>o</sup> Odis memorem compoierem: & citat & probat Marlorat in loc P Gellius lib. 13. cap 11.
<sup>p</sup> Iudg 14. 12.
<sup>q</sup> Deut. 32. 33.
<sup>r</sup> Habuc. 2. 15.

<sup>s</sup> Aretius, Martyr. Piscat. & alij.

<sup>t</sup> Aquin.
<sup>u</sup> Caluin.

<sup>v</sup> Gualter.

<sup>w</sup> Sarcerius.

<sup>x</sup> Heming.

<sup>y</sup> Rom 12 15.

<sup>z</sup> 2. Cor. 11. 29.

<sup>aa</sup> Hofius lib. 3. contra Brent. protegmen.
<sup>ab</sup> Manculus, Heming.

cured of his Sauour. <sup>b</sup> Other hold this improbable, conceiuing that he made no suit but held his peace, rather out of <sup>i</sup> feare, then out of loue to the Pharisies: he did haply beleue in heart, but least the Pharisies should excommunicate him, he durst not openly confesse with his mouth that Iesus is the Lord. As <sup>k</sup> David in another case, I held my tongue, and spake nothing, I kept silence, yea euen from good words, but it was paine and grieffe to me. Howsoeuer it was, here we may behold the riches of our Sauours exceeding great loue, curing the dropsie-mans body, <sup>l</sup> together with the Pharisies soule. <sup>m</sup> Doubtlesse the diseased of the dropsie fell into it by disordered sursetting and drunkennesse. Hence then obserue, that Christs despiseth not those which haue cast themselues into sicknes through their owne fault, if they follow this mans example: to wit, if they come where Christ is, and suffer themselues to be touched and healed of him, if they come to the Church, heare the word, fall to repentance, confessing their sinnes, and heartily crauing pardon for the same.

The second chiefe part of this Gospell is the Pharisies malice, consisting of three degrees. It was in the Pharise great iniustice to returne euill for good, but greater to doe this vnder the pretence of loue, yet greatest of all vnder colour of loue at a feast. For <sup>n</sup> the time of mirth is at meales, at the table men haue licence to talke <sup>o</sup> freely, not onely by the rules of humanity, because P bellaria maximè mellita quæ non sunt mellita: but also by the grounds of Diuinity; for <sup>p</sup> Sampson at his marriage feast propounded a riddle to his friends, and the faithfull at Hierusalem did eat their meat together with gladnesse, Acts 2. 46. Such then as obserue the merrie gestures, and catch at the pleasant words of their guests at table, make their wine like the poison of Dragons and the cruel gall of Aspes, beating their neighbours and making them drunken, <sup>q</sup> that they might see their priuitie.

The Epistle. I. C O R I. 4.

I thanke my God on your behalfe. &c.

THIS text is a cunning <sup>t</sup> insinuation of our Apostle, for intending to chide the Corinthians, he begins his Epistle with a commemoration of their vertues, that afterward he might more freely without any suspition of malice reprehend their vices.

It consists<sup>u</sup> in { Commending them } <sup>x</sup> Generally, For the grace of God which is for the present: { giuen you, &c.
Particularly, rich in all vtterance and in all knowledge.
Comforting them against the time to come, which also shall strengthen you to the end, &c.

An example worthy to be followed of euery Preacher, least by concealing the commendable gifts of his auditors, and inculcating only their faults and follies, he breed hate to himselfe and despaire to them.

I thanke] By this all men, in more particular all <sup>z</sup> Ministers are taught not to repine, but to reioyce for the good things in other, especially for the successe of the <sup>a</sup> Gospell, out of a fellow-feeling not only to weepe with such as weepe, but also to be <sup>b</sup> glad with such as are glad. The Sectaries of our dayes herein are verie defectiue, for whereas our <sup>c</sup> Apostle said, Who is weake and I am not weake? they like busie flies are buzzing alwayes on the sores and gaulds of the Church: and as for the manifold gifts of God, by which our Pastors are made rich in all vtterance and in all knowledge, what doe their inuectiue Libels against our Clergy, but vnworthily disgrace these graces, in stead of giuing thanks vnto God alwayes in our behalfe. For as some <sup>d</sup> Papiests affirme, that Scripture cited by vs is no Scripture: so some Schismatikes haue giuen out, that our preaching is no preaching, that our learning is not sanctified, and our vtterance doth not edifie.

My God] <sup>e</sup> Hereby not denying that he was God to them and all other, for for <sup>f</sup> he that is Lord over a<sup>l</sup>, is rich vnto all that call on him & but out of a singular faith in God, and vnfained loue to them, esteeming that his owne good which hapned well vnto the Church: I thanke my God on your behalfe: as the God of all is my God, so the good of all is my good; and I thanke the giuer of all grace for it, and that not coldly, but with such an earnest deuotion <sup>h</sup> as if he were my God only; not selome, but alwayes. A little loue will be mindful at sometime, but mine affection is so great vnto you, that I thanke God alwayes on your behalfe. Paul surely did somewhat else then praise God for his Corinthians: alwayes therefore must not be construed <sup>i</sup> absolutely, but restrained and referred vnto the present occasion of his speech, as if he should haue said, as often as I thinke of you, I thanke God for you. alwayes in all my prayers, as it is Philip 1.4.

For the grace of God which is giuen you ] <sup>k</sup> Lest he might here seeme to flatter them in his commendation of their gifts, he puts them in minde who gaue them, and for what end. God is the giuer of euery grace; <sup>l</sup> why then doe you boast of your gifts, as if you receiued them not? 1. Cor. 4.7. And he gaue them vnto you, not to make <sup>m</sup> dissention in the Church and Schisme, that some may <sup>n</sup> side with Paul and other with Apollos: but for <sup>o</sup> this end, that the testimonie of Iesus Christ may be confirmed in you.

By Iesus Christ] or as other translate according to the Greeke, in Iesu Christ: hereby signifying <sup>p</sup> that the graces of God are giuen in Christ, and for Christ only, such as are Christis are made rich by him in all things according to that of our Apostle, 1. Cor. 3. 22. All are yours, and ye Christis, and Christis Gods. <sup>q</sup> Interpreters obserue that Paul speaking here metonymically, doth vnderstand by this one word grace, not onely the gifts of utterance and knowledge mentioned in this Scripture, but all the benefits of Christ reuealed in the whole Gospell. And therefore <sup>r</sup> Saint Ambrose and <sup>s</sup> Anselme excellently glosse the Text, Hoc constitutum est à Deo, ut qui credit in Christum, saluus sit sine opera, sola fide gratis accipiens remissionem peccatorum: It is ordained by God himselfe, that whosoever beleueth in Christ, should be saued not by any worke, but by faith alone, receiuing freely pardon of all his finnes.

In all utterance and in all knowledge] <sup>t</sup> That is, in all doctrine, and in all vnderstanding, whereby men are able to discern betweene sound and false doctrine, <sup>u</sup> the one concerning teachers, and the other hearers. Or by speech is meant the gift of <sup>x</sup> tongues, or the gift of <sup>y</sup> elocution, or the gift of preaching in <sup>z</sup> euery kinde, giuing <sup>a</sup> milke to babes, and strong meat to them of age; and by knowledge, a right exposition of the Scripture. Now these two must goe <sup>b</sup> together, in as much as neither utterance without knowledge, nor knowledge without utterance can edifie: for he that aboundeth in his study with vnderstanding, but wants <sup>c</sup> a doore of utterance to vent it, is like the man that had the rheume and could not spet: on the contrary he that hath a world of words void of matter (as <sup>d</sup> Tully speakes, Nulla subiecta sententia & scientia) is like the child who bloweth in a litle shell a great bubble, which is so vaine that it is marred as soone as made.

The gifts of speech and vnderstanding are named only, <sup>e</sup> because the Corinthians abused them in their dissentions especially, prophaning the graces of God giuen (as our Apostle speakes <sup>f</sup> else-where) to edifie mishall, vnto the destruction and vtter vndoing of the Church. If any shall object that all the faithfull in Corinth had not these gifts: Answer is made that there was among them, as among vs, and euer shall be such a Communion of Saints; as that the praise which is indeed proper to some particular men and members, is ascribed to the whole body of the Church in generall. And therefore <sup>h</sup> Caietan notes accurately, that as ἐν παντί may be construed adiiectiuely, ye are made rich in all things: so likewise substantiuely, ye are made rich in all. Applying Gods grace rather to the whole congregation in grosse, then to singular persons in seuerall.

By the which things the testimony of Iesu Christ was confirmed in you ] <sup>i</sup> The witnessse of Christ is nothing else but the witnessse of the blessed Apostles concerning Christ,

<sup>1</sup> Rom 20. 12.
<sup>8</sup> 1 theop. yadl.
Marizy.

<sup>h</sup> Aretius in l. c.

<sup>i</sup> Idem.
Ibidem.

<sup>k</sup> Caluin.
Guclter.
<sup>l</sup> Occumen.
Pomeran.
Aret.
<sup>m</sup> 1. Cor. 3. 10.
<sup>n</sup> 1 Cor 3. 4.
<sup>o</sup> Piscator.

<sup>p</sup> Sarcerius.

<sup>q</sup> Caluin Mar- lorat. Aret.

<sup>r</sup> Com. in loc.
<sup>s</sup> Enarrat. in loc.

<sup>t</sup> Sarcerius.

<sup>u</sup> Aretius.
<sup>x</sup> Aquil.
<sup>y</sup> E 74
<sup>z</sup> Anselme.
<sup>a</sup> Hebr. 5.
<sup>b</sup> Aquil.

<sup>c</sup> Celoss. 4. 3.

<sup>d</sup> Lib. 1. de Orat.
<sup>e</sup> Martyr.

<sup>f</sup> 1. Cor. 12. 7.

<sup>g</sup> Marlorat.

Com. in loc.

<sup>h</sup>

<sup>i</sup> Piscator.

Christ, Acts 1. 8. euen the <sup>k</sup> preaching of the Gospell, the summe whereof is to reueale Christ, in whom are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge, Col. 2. 3. So that the meaning of Paul is plaine, by these manifold graces as <sup>l</sup> effects and fruits of the Spirit, you may know that you haue received the true Gospell: or by these two gifts, utterance and knowledge, as instrumentall causes, the testimonie of Christ is confirmed in you. Learne from hence to reuerence those men which are endued with these meanes of thy saluation, euermore thanke thy God in the behalfe of Christian Schooles and Vniuersities, as the common nurseries of all utterance and knowledge. <sup>m</sup> It is said of reuerend Hooker, truly, that he was borne for the good of many; but few borne for the good of him. In this vnthankfull age, some rich in the graces of God are neglected, and other rich in the gifts of the world are preferred. But <sup>n</sup> fret not thy selfe because of the vngodly, for learned men forgotten in States and not liuing in eminent places, are <sup>o</sup> like the images of Cassius and Brutus in the funerall of Iunia: of which not being represented as other were, Tacitus saith, co ipso profulgabant quod non visebantur. If thou well employ Gods talent of vtterance and knowledge, that the testimonie of Christ may be confirmed in other, assuredly (noble yoke fellow) thy credit is honour enough, and thy worke it selfe a sufficient reward vnto thy selfe. Remember that the profitable seruant said not in the <sup>p</sup> Gospell, Ecce mihi lucrifeci: sed ecce tibi lucrifeci Domine.

So that yee are behinde in no gift ] <sup>q</sup> That is, in no necessarie gift whereby yee might attaine sauing knowledge, wanting no grace competent vnto such as <sup>r</sup> are in via, <sup>s</sup> strangers and pilgrims on earth. Or as Paul expoundeth himselfe, behinde in no gift incident to such as wait for the appearing of our Lord Iesus Christ. It is true that now we know but in <sup>t</sup> part, and prophecie but in part: our greatest perfections haue their imperfections, our gifts are given by measure, though haply <sup>u</sup> shaken together and pressed downe, yet not running ouer as long as we wait for Christ: but when he shall appeare, when that which is perfect is come, then that which is imperfect shall be abolished,

Appearing of our Lord Iesus Christ ] The second comming of Christ is called a reuelation, or an appearing in respect of vs, and in respect of himselfe. In respect of vs, for at his comming <sup>x</sup> he will lighten things that are hid in darknesse, and make the counsels of our hearts manifest. At that time it shall be knowne who be Gods ciect, and who reprobate; then our Lord shall vnfold the <sup>y</sup> bookes of conscience, which all the time of this life were shut vp closely, that all the world may read what is written in the consciences of all men, and according to the contents of these records iudgement shall be made. Many puissant Princes and sage Philosophers haue their honourable memorie magnified in the world, whose soules in hell are terribly tortured: in which respect one said of Aristotle; Woe be to thee Aristotle, that art praised where thou art not, and art tormented where thou art. On the contrary, blessed art thou Queene Elizabeth, O thrice happie, for albeit treacherous Papists, enemies of Gods grace, dishonour thee where thou art not, assuredly thou art comforted where thou art. <sup>z</sup> Now are we the sonnes of God, but yet it doth not appeare what we shall be: for <sup>a</sup> when soeuer Christ (which is our life) shall shew himselfe, we shall appeare with him in glorie.

Secondly, the comming of Christ is a reuelation in respect of himselfe: for whereas he came first in humilitie, being <sup>b</sup> in the world, but not knowne of the world, he shall now come with clouds in such a maiestie, <sup>c</sup> that euery eye shall see him. <sup>d</sup> As the lightning commeth out of the East, and shineth into the West: so shall also the comming of the Sonne of man be, that he may not only discouer himselfe in heauen to the good; but also that on earth, where his ignominie was most apparent, he may manifest himselfe to the wicked. And for this cause, the place of iudgement (as <sup>e</sup> some coniecture) shall be the valley of Iosephat, neere to Ierusalem and the Mount of Oliues, that in the very same place where he was iudged, condemned, crucified; all may see him with great honour to be the Iudge both of the quicke and of the dead, Acts 10. 42. and that he who did ascend to heauen in the sight of

<sup>k</sup> Museus.
Caluin.
Gualter.
<sup>l</sup> Martyr.

<sup>m</sup> Dr. Conel
pres before des.
of M. Hooker.
<sup>n</sup> Psal. 37. 1.
<sup>o</sup> Aduancement of learning, lib. 1.
pag. 13.

<sup>p</sup> Matth 25.
<sup>q</sup> Caluin.
Heming.
Gualter.
<sup>r</sup> Ardens.
<sup>s</sup> 1. Pet. 2. 13.

<sup>t</sup> 1. Cor. 13. 9.
<sup>u</sup> Luke 6. 3. 8.

<sup>x</sup> 1. Cor. 4. 5.

<sup>y</sup> Dan. 7. 10.
Apoc 20. 12.
Cunctiq; consiliorum consilium arcanum patebunt.

<sup>z</sup> 1. Ioh. 3. 2.
<sup>a</sup> Col. 3. 4.

<sup>b</sup> Ioh. 1. 10.
<sup>c</sup> Apoc. 1. 7.
<sup>d</sup> Matth. 24. 27.

<sup>e</sup> Vide River. in Icel. ca. 3. num. 2. Lorin. in Act. 1. 11. Lombard. 4. sent. distinct. 4. 8. Aquin. & Allisiodor. ibid.

a few Disciples, shall descend (as it is foretold by the glorious <sup>f</sup> Angels) in the sight of the whole world to iudge them all in righteousnesse. All which is exceeding necessarie for the credit of his government in this life, that all may see that he was both wise and holy in all whatsoeuer he permitted or ordained, and that neither the <sup>g</sup> good may complaine any more that vertue was oppressed, nor the <sup>h</sup> wicked glorie that vice was exalted. He shall in that day separate the <sup>i</sup> wheate from the cockle, the graine from the chaffe, the <sup>k</sup> good fish from the bad, and the <sup>l</sup> sheepe from the goats: and the good he shall place at the right hand, taken vp (as <sup>m</sup> Paul saith) into the aire, that all the world may know them, and honour them as Saints: and the wicked he shall place at his left hand, leauing them vpon the earth, that all may behold and despise them as sinners.

Which also shall strengthen you to the end ]<sup>n</sup> We are not so perfect, but that we may be more perfect vntill Christ appeare. Ye must aske therefore this confirmation of God, that yee may be strengthened euery day more and more to the end. <sup>o</sup> He that hath begun his good worke in you, will performe it vntill the day of Iesus Christ. <sup>p</sup> He will sanctifie you throughout in soule and bodie, <sup>q</sup> working in you both the will and the deed, euen of his owne good pleasure. <sup>r</sup> God is faithfull, euer dealing with his seruants according to his word. As then he <sup>t</sup> promised, euen so will he be with vs vntill the worlds end, that we may be blamelesse at the day of his comming; not absolutely without sinne; for <sup>u</sup> if we say we haue no sinne, we deceiue our selues, and truth is not in vs: but he shall so preuent vs in all our doings with his holy grace, that we may liue <sup>v</sup> sine criminali crimine, <sup>x</sup> that we fall not into such hainous sinnes as may shut vs out of his fauor; <sup>y</sup> or if at any time we fall into those sinnes, he shall so <sup>z</sup> strengthen vs with power by his spirit in the inner man, as that we shall againe recouer our selues, and so be blamelesse at the day of his comming: or <sup>a</sup> blamelesse, because there is no condemnation vnto such as are in Christ, Rom 8.1. He is our righteousnesse, and sanctification, 1. Cor. 1.33. euen the propitiation for our sinnes, 1. John 2.2. couering our iniquities and forgiuing our vnrightheousnesse, Psal. 32. 1. and therefore we shall be blamelesse in the day of the Lord, because nothing shall be laid vnto the charge of Gods elect, Rom. 8.33. In that houre we shall heare this happy doome deliuered by Christ our Saniour, Come ye blessed of my father, &c. He saith not, Come ye blessed of Abraham, Isaac, and Iacob; nor ye blessed of Moses, or of the Patriarchs and Prophets, or ye blessed of God; but ye blessed of my Father: insinuating that all these blessings proceeded onely from the fatherly loue that God beareth vs in respect of his Sonne. Come ye blessed therefore, possesse you the kingdome prepared for you from the foundation of the world: as for the wicked, earth shall open vnder their feet, and the deuill laying hold on them they shall all together goe downe <sup>b</sup> quicke into hell, and there being couered with huge mountaines of earth, shall be bolted vp with eternall bolts, and bound hand and foot with chains of perpetuall damnation. O Father of mercy, which hast placed vs in this world as in the middle betweene heauen and hell, <sup>c</sup> euen as Nouices are in a houte of probation; assist and strengthen vs with thy Spirit to the end, that we may be found blamelesse in the end. Lord make vs here thy subiects in the kingdome of grace, that hereafter we may be thy Saints in the kingdome of glory. Amen.

<sup>f</sup> Act. 1.11.

<sup>g</sup> Psal. 83.

Jerem. 12.3.

<sup>h</sup> Habac. 1.6.

<sup>i</sup> Matth. 3.32.

& 13.30.

<sup>k</sup> Matth. 13.48.

<sup>l</sup> Matth. 25.32.

<sup>m</sup> 1. Theff. 4.17

<sup>n</sup> Homing.

<sup>o</sup> Philip. 1.6.

<sup>p</sup> 1. Theff. 5.23.

<sup>q</sup> Philip. 2.13.

<sup>r</sup> 1. Cor. 1.9.

<sup>t</sup> Matth. 28.20.

<sup>u</sup> 1. John 1.8.

<sup>v</sup> Anselm.

<sup>x</sup> Ardens.

<sup>y</sup> Casetan.

<sup>z</sup> Ephes. 3.16.

<sup>a</sup> Eng. Gloss.

<sup>b</sup> Maritz

<sup>c</sup> Alarorat.

<sup>b</sup> Psal. 55.16.

<sup>c</sup> Bernard. ser.

31. ex p. us.

The Gospell. MATTH. 23.34.

When the Pharisies had heard that Iesus had put the Sadduces to silence, &c.

THis text is an <sup>d</sup> a bridgement of the whole Scripture, to wit, of all the doctrine contained in the Gospell and in the Law: for the pith of all the Gospell is to beleue that Christ is God and man, as it is said here, the Lord of David, and the sonne of David: and the <sup>e</sup> end of all the Law is to loue God with all thine heart, and thy neighbour as thy selfe: for on these two Commandements (as our Text telleth) hang all the Law and the Prophets, <sup>f</sup> interpreters of the Law,

<sup>d</sup> Homing. Fevus. Postan. in locum

<sup>e</sup> 1. Tim. 1.5.

<sup>f</sup> Pise. 207.

When

8 Ioseph antiqu.
lib. 18 cap. 2.

9 Luke 23. 12.

10 Matth 10. 24.

11 Ephes. 4. 3.

12 Latimer.

13 Psal. 22. 16.

14 Psal 7. 15.

15 See Doctor
Fulke in Tit. 2.

16 Jesuits Cat. lib.
2. cap. 1.

17 Caluin.

18 Ardens.

19 Deut 6. 5.

20 Pontan.

21 Ioh. 4. 24.

22 Prou. 23. 26.

23 Anselme.

Ardens.

Aretius.

24 Granat. Cen. 1.
in loc.

25 Heming.

26 Psal 111. 10.

Eccle 25. 13.

27 Marlorat. Idem

Rabanus apud

Aquin. in loc.

28 Caictan.

When the Pharisies had heard that Iesus had put the Sadduces to silence] The Sadduces, Herodians, and Pharisies were Sectaries of diuers and badners factions, all differing one from another, and yet ( as we read in this present Chapter ) all these ioyne together in confuting Christ: yea <sup>h</sup> Pilat and Herod mortall enemies are made friends, and agree together in confounding Christ: according to that of the Prophet in the second Psalme, The Kings of the earth stand up, and the Rulers take counsell together against the Lord and against his annointed. And therefore when as we shall see Turke against Iew, Iew against Turke, Pope against both, and all of them against Gods Israel: or when we behold the Seminarie Priest against the Iesuit, and the Iesuit against the Seminarie Priest, and both against the Protestant: or when as haply we feele the brethren of diuision against the brethren of separation, and the brethren of separation against the brethren of diuision, and both against Englands conformable Clergie; let vs remember our Sauours lot here, and lesson <sup>1</sup> else-where, The Disciple is not aboue the Master, nor the seruant aboue his Lord, It is enough for the Disciple to be as his Master is, and the seruant as his Lord is. If they haue called the Master of the house Beelzebub, how much more them of the household? And let all true Christians <sup>k</sup> endeavour to keepe the vnitie of the Spirit in the bond of peace. That as there is a combination of Pharisies, a societie of Iesuits, a congregation of Separatists, a brotherhood of Schismatikes; euen so to confront all these, let there be a communion of Saints, and a perpetuall holy league in truth of Orthodoxall Catholics.

They came together] It is a true saying, <sup>1</sup> bonum est Concilium, sed bonorum, a Counsell is good, if it consists of such men as are good: otherwise the counsell of the wicked <sup>m</sup> lay siege against the godly; when Pharisies are met in a conuocation they <sup>n</sup> trauell with mischiefe, and bring forth vngodlinesse. Truth, and many good men for the truth, hath beene condemned in Councils, as <sup>o</sup> Chrysofome in a Council holden at Chalcedon, Athanasius in a Council holden at Antioch, Iohn Huse in a Council holden at Constance. The Councils of Ariminium and Nicomedia decreed for the Arrians against Christs diuinitie: the second Council of Ephesus for Eutyches and Dioscorus, against the truth of Christs humanitie; The Council of Trent, against many soune doctrines of Gods holy word, in so much as the Papists of France protested against it in the daies of Francis the first, openly deliuering in print, <sup>p</sup> that it is to be refused touching discipline as well Ecclesiasticall as Ciuill.

And one of them] <sup>q</sup> Elected of the rest as the mouth of the companie, being of a more ready wit and accurate iudgement, asked him a question, tempting him: <sup>r</sup> not as God tempted Abraham for his triall, or as a Schoolemaster doth his scholar for instruction, but as Sathan a Christian to delude him. Our blessed Sauour therefore being Wisdome it selfe, doth answer the Doctor of the Law, out of the <sup>s</sup> Bookes and bowels of the Law, Thou shalt loue the Lord thy God with all thine heart, &c. As if he should say, though other Gods are contented with <sup>t</sup> outward and eye-seruice; the Lord thy God is a <sup>u</sup> Spirit, and they that worship him must worship him in spirit; <sup>x</sup> Sonne giue me thine heart; not a Peece nor a part, but all thine heart, all thy soule, all thy minde. See the further exposition of this and that other Commandement, touching loue toward our neighbours, Gospell on the 13. Sunday after Trinitie.

This is the first, and the greatest Commandement] <sup>y</sup> First in order, and greatest in honour, First in respect of the <sup>z</sup> Law-giuers intention, who wrote all Scriptures and made all creatures especially for this end, that he might be loued aboue all things. And first in the Law-writers pen, as being <sup>a</sup> first set downe: and first in it owne nature, for as much as the true feare and loue of God is the <sup>b</sup> beginning of all wisdome, without which it is impossible to loue what we should, as we should, for we cannot loue our neighbours as our selues, except we loue God more then our selues. And the first as <sup>c</sup> comprehending in it all the Commandements of the first Table, <sup>d</sup> virtualiter continens reliqua, for he that loues God with all his heart, soule,

soule, minde: will neither commit idolatrie, nor blasphemie his name, nor prophane his Sabbath.

And this Commandement is greatest, as hauing the greatest <sup>e</sup> obiect: for <sup>f</sup> God is higher then the highest, a great King & above all gods: and greatest, as requiring the greatest <sup>h</sup> perfection of loue, to wit, all our heart, all our soule, all our minde: and greatest, in that <sup>i</sup> all other great Commandements are subordinate to it: and greatest, as <sup>k</sup> enduring the greatest time, for though that prophesying be abolished, or knowledge vanish, or the tongue cease, yet loue neuer falleth away. To conclude with Arctius in one line, Maximum est obiecto, iure, dignitate, difficultate, perpetuitate, sine. From hence we may know which are our greatest iniquities, Idolatrie, Witchcraft, Heresie, prophaning of the Sabbath, outragious swearing, in a word; eury trespass against the first Table, being committed in the same measure of malice, is a greater sinne then any transgression of the second Table: because to loue God with all our heart, soule, minde, is the first and greatest Commandement, and so by consequence, optimi corruptio pessima, the breach of the greatest ordinance is the greatest offence.

And the second is like vnto it ] <sup>m</sup> Not like in obiect, but in subiect, <sup>n</sup> as being both precepts of loue: or like in respect of their <sup>o</sup> bond, as tying all a like: or like <sup>p</sup> because these two mutually depend each on other, for he that loues God with all his heart, will also loue his neighbour as himselfe; and whosoever loueth his neighbour as himselfe, loueth him assuredly for Gods sake, amicum in Domino, inimicum propter Dominum. Or like, because <sup>r</sup> we must both loue God and our neighbour vnfainedly, not in word, and in tongue only, but in truth and in deed. Ordinarily men vse their louers as <sup>c</sup> ladders, only to climbe by, the ladder is laid on our shoulders, and embraced with both hands in our bosome so long as we stand in any need of it, but afterward it is cast into some corner, or hanged vp by the wals: euen so, when neighbours haue serued once the turnes of ambitious and conetous wretches, either for their profit or preferment, instantly they be forgotten: for it is an infailible position (as <sup>u</sup> Cominius obserueth) among Statesmen in eminent place, to loue those least, vnto whom heretofore they were bound most. Or like, <sup>x</sup> for that as the first is the fountaine of all dutie required in the first Table: so this second Commandement of all offices enioyned in the second Table; for he that loueth another hath fulfilled the Law, Ro. m. 13.8.

On these two Commandements hang all the Law and the Prophets ] As being their principal argument and aime, <sup>y</sup> for whosoever is recorded in Moses, or in the Prophets, or in the Psalmes, or in any Scripture else, may be reduced to them: and it is written especially for this end, that we may loue God about all things, and our neighbour as our selues. And therefore let not poore men obiect that they cannot purchase Gods booke, nor ignorant people complain that they cannot vnderstand and remember the contents of holy Scripture: for behold, Christ hath here provided a little Bible for thee, which thou maist easily get, and euer keepe in memory; Loue the Lord thy God with al thine heart, and thy neighbour as thy self.

While the Pharisies were gathered together Iesus asked them ] One Pharisee did assault Christ, that if he were conquered his shame might seme the lesse; if Conquerer, his victorie might appeare the greater: but Christ opposeth a whole Counsell of Pharisies, and so confoundeth them all in asking one question onely, that no man afterward durst aske him any moe questions. Why this question was asked, and how it may be well answered: see Galatin. de Arcanis lib. 8. cap. 24. Iansen. con. cap. 159. Maldonat. Calvin. Genebrard, in Psal. Dixit Dominus Domino. Marlorat, Arctius, I emgarol, in loc. I conclude with <sup>z</sup> Augustines glosse, Quomodo nos dicemus, nisi a te disceremus? nunc ergo quia didicimus, dicimus. In principio eras verbum, & verbum eras apud Deum, & Deus eras verbum omnia per te facta sunt, ecce Dominus Dauid. sed nos propter infirmitatem nostram, quia caro desperata iacebamus, verbum caro factus es, ut habitares in nobis, ecce filius Dauid. Certé tu in forma Dei cum esses, non rapinam arbitratus es esse equalis Deo: Ideo Dominus Dauid. Sed teipsum exinanisti formam serui accipiens,

<sup>e</sup> Heming.
<sup>f</sup> Eccl. 5.7.
<sup>g</sup> Psal. 95.3.
<sup>h</sup> Arctius.
<sup>i</sup> Granat.
<sup>k</sup> Collet.
<sup>l</sup> 1. Cor. 13.8.

<sup>m</sup> Heming.
<sup>n</sup> Iansen. Con. cap. 118.
<sup>o</sup> Collet.
<sup>p</sup> Euthym.
<sup>q</sup> August. confess. lib. 4. cap. 9.
<sup>r</sup> Arctius.
<sup>s</sup> Heming.
<sup>t</sup> 1. Ioh. 3. 18.
<sup>u</sup> Diet. Con. 2. in loc.

<sup>v</sup> See Cominius
b. lib. 2. ca. 12
<sup>w</sup> Marlorat.

<sup>y</sup> Euthym. in Matth. 7.
Iansen. Pontat.
Collet in loc.

<sup>z</sup> In Psal. 109.

inde filius David. Deniq; & in ipsa interrogatione tua dicens, quomodo filius eius est, non te filium eius negasti, sed modum in quo id fieret inquisisti.

The Epistle. EPHES. 4. 17.

This I say, and testifie through the Lord, that ye henceforth walke not as other Gentiles walke, &c.

<sup>a</sup> Habet vim obtestationis & asseuerationis magne. <sup>b</sup> Arelins in loc. <sup>c</sup> Primasius. <sup>d</sup> Lombard. <sup>e</sup> Anselme. <sup>f</sup> 2. Tim. 4. 1. <sup>g</sup> Oecumen. <sup>h</sup> 2. Cor. 5. 20. <sup>i</sup> Marlorat. <sup>j</sup> Heb. 13. 22

Soule, giuing not onely light, but also <sup>a</sup> a life to the present exhortation of Paul: I say this, and testifie through the Lord <sup>b</sup> that is, I doe not onely desire, but (as he speaks elsewhere) <sup>c</sup> I charge you before God, and before the Lord Iesus Christ, who shall iudge the quicke and the dead. I call God to <sup>d</sup> witnesse that I haue taught you the truth, I testifie this as Christs <sup>e</sup> Ambassadour, <sup>f</sup> it is not my word, but his will. And therefore <sup>g</sup> suffer the words of exhortation, because whosoever heareth his, heareth him, Luk. 10. 16. and he that despiseth, despiseth not man, but God: 1. Thess. 4. 8.

This Text consists of a

<sup>b</sup> Aquin.

<sup>i</sup> Ardens.

<sup>k</sup> Caietan. <sup>l</sup> Aquin.

<sup>m</sup> Arelins. <sup>n</sup> Lombard. <sup>o</sup> Anselm. <sup>p</sup> Marlorat.

<sup>q</sup> Phil. 3. 19.

}	Not as Gentiles in their	Will, obstinate and alienated farre from a godly life <sup>h</sup> sinning.	Understanding, blinde and ignorant.	Wilfully, giuing themselves ouer unto wantonnesse.
			Actually, to worke all manner of uncleannesse.	Insatiably, with greedinesse
}	Bodie, that we should walke	Putting off the old man, that is their old conuersation in time past, as being corrupt <sup>i</sup> in	Thought, vnaduised anger, with all bitterness of spirit.	Word, lying and filthy communication.
			Deed, vniust dealing and stealing.
}	But as Christians in	Putting on the new man according to Gods <sup>i</sup> image renewed <sup>k</sup> in all the powers of the minde	Thought, vnaduised anger, with all bitterness of spirit.	Word, lying and filthy communication.
			Rationall, in putting away lying, and speaking the truth.	Deed, vniust dealing and stealing.
}			Irascible, in being angry without sinne.	Concupiscible, in stealing no more, but labouring, &c.

That ye henceforth walke not as other Gentiles walke] The most obseruable point in all this exhortation is Pauls Antithesis, or checker-worke, as it were the blacke of the Gentiles, and white of the Christians. The Gentiles are blinded in their vnderstanding and ignorant: but Christians haue learned him in whom are all the treasures of wisdome and knowledge, Coloss. 2. 3. bearing him in his <sup>l</sup> word, and taught of him also by his <sup>m</sup> spirit, leading them into all truth, Iohn 16. 13. The Gentiles by the meanes of their blindnesse and ignorance walke in vanitie of their minde, farre from a godly life, committing sinne, not out of passion and infirmitie, but out of election and iniquitie, giuing themselves ouer unto wantonnesse, and that not in thought only, but in act also, working and that all manner of uncleannesse, and that euen with greedinesse insatiably, <sup>n</sup> glorying in their shame, and as some Divines aptly construe the word ἰν πλεονεξία, contending for the victorie in villanie. But Christians having learned Christ, whose doctrine forbids all vngodlinesse, ought to put on the new man, that is, new manners, all the dayes of their life teruing God in righteousness and true holinesse. The Gentiles vnregenerate are giuing to lying and forgerie, but euery Christian regenerate will speake the truth vnto his neighbour, as being members one of another. Vnregenerate men in their anger offend God, and giue place to the deuill: but men regenerate, will not let the Sunne goe downe vpon their wrath: in a literal exposition, ira furor breuis est, all their vnaduised anger is not a day long: or in a mysticall sense, they be so moderate as that neither reason, the light of the minde, nor Christ the Sunne of righteousness, shall at any time forsake them in their fury. Men vnregenerate make gain their godlinesse, robbing openly, stealing secretly: but a regenerate man is content to laboure with his hands the thing that is good, that he may giue to him that needeth. He labourereth, as knowing that the end of lazinesse is the beginning of lewdnesse, ⁊ finis otij resurgere ad prauum negotium. And he labourereth not as a theefe to doe mischief, but the thing which is good; exercising himselfe in some vocation or trade that is good, and that for good, that he may rather giue then take from other; acknowledging that axiome to be true, Magis delinquit diues non largiendo superflua, quam pauper rapiendo necessaria. Vnregenerate men haue filthy communication, and vsauourie: but the speech of a regenerate man is so powdred with salt, that as oft as need is, it may minister grace to the hearers. In a word, vnregenerate men are full of bitternesse, and fiercenesse, and wrath, and roaring, and cursed speaking, and all maliciousnesse: but regenerate men are courteous one to another, mercifull, forgiuing one another, euen as God for Christ's sake forgauē them. These particulars haue bene discussed often elsewhere, but in the whole you may note two maine parts of repentance: namely, contrition or mortification in putting off the old man: renouation or viuification in putting on the new man. And this newnesse of life must be both outward, and inward: outward, in righteousnesse toward men, and holinesse toward God, opening our lips to speake that which is good, and labouring with our hands to doe that which is good. If idolatrous Gentiles and superstitious Papist in old time did more then they knew: what a shame lieth vpon vs if we know more then we doe? This renouation also must be spirituall and inward, as it is in the Text, renued in the spirit of your minde, ⁰ that is, in the spirit which is the minde, ⁱ or the spirit and minde. In the supreme part of the minde, as well as in the will and affection: or in the minde made spirituall after God in righteousness and true holinesse. He who first made this Image, restorēth it againe being lost, ipse qui fecit reficit: albeit this newnesse be found in vs, it is not of vs, it proceeds only from the Lord who saith, Ecce noua facio omnia; Behold, I make all things new. We are his workmanship created in Christ Iesus vnto good workes, Ephes. 2. 10. and therefore we must pray with Dauid, O God renew a right spirit within me, Psal. 51. 10. and embrace the Gospell of Christ, as the power of God vnto saluation, instructing vs how to liue soberly, righteously, and holily, Titus 2. 12.

Whosoever is a scorner and despiser of this soule-sauing grace, griues the spirit of God, and giues place to the deuill. It is true that the Spirit cannot properly griue, because the mercies of God are not passive, but active, succouring, not suffering in our misery. Yet a man that is giuen ouer vnto wickednesse, doth occasion other in whom the Spirit dwels, exceedingly to lament and griue for his faults and follies: or he may be said to griue the Spirit, because filthy communication is displeasing to the Spirit: or for that as much as in him is, he doth extinguish the Spirit, and driue him out of his mansion, and so giues place to Satan, entering in at two doores especially, faith⁹ Augustine, Per ostium cupiditatis ⁊ timoris; aut cupis aliquid terrenum ⁊ hęc intrat, aut times aliquid terrenum ⁊ hęc intrat.

On the contrary, whosoever is renued in the spirit of his minde openeth a doore to Christ, Apoc. 3. 20. and Christ dwellerh in him, Ephes. 3. 17. and he liueth ⁰ Calvin.

Arctian.
ⁱ Tit. 2. 12.

⁹ Ardens.
Cassian.
Marlorat.
ⁱ Horaz.
ⁱ Hierome.
ⁱ Aquin.
ⁱ Eccles. 12. 2.
ⁱ Lombard.
ⁱ Anselm.
ⁱ 1. Tim. 6. 5.
ⁱ Laurent.
ⁱ Pifamus christiangeise. paracox.
ⁱ Oceanus.
ⁱ Ardens.
Arctian.
Marlorat.
ⁱ Laurent.
ⁱ Pifcan. ubi
supra.
ⁱ Celos. 4. 6.

ⁱ Sarcerius ⁊ Piscator in loc.

ⁱ Anselm.
ⁱ Hieron.
Ardens.
ⁱ Calvin.
Cassian.
ⁱ Lombard.
Aquin.
ⁱ Ardens.
ⁱ Apoc 21. 5.

ⁱ Rom. 7. 16.

ⁱ Tom. part 1.
quest. 21. art. 3.
ⁱ Primasius.
Lombard.
ⁱ Anselm.
ⁱ Augustin.
epist. 23.
ⁱ In Psal. 14.
idem Lombard.
in loc.

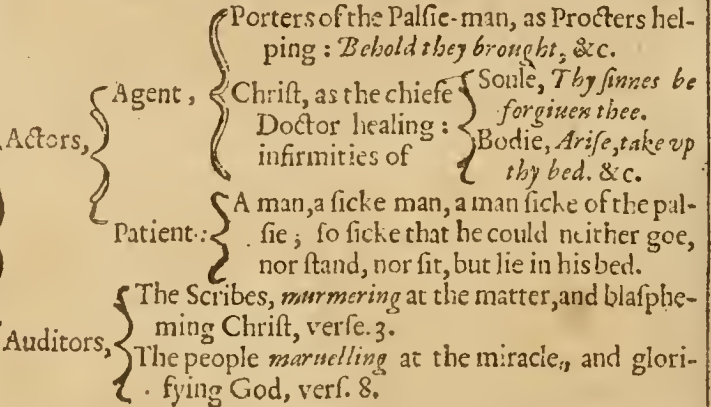

Rom. 13. 14.
 Casaubon. not.
 in Epist. Mys. ad Enstat.
 Com. post. in Galath.
 D Fulke in loc.
 Lib. de Nat. &
 Grat. cap. ult.
 Idem epist. 29.

in Christ Galath. 2. 20. may the good man puts on Christ, and is as it were a walking picture of Christ, so the text expressely, Galat. 4. 19. my little children, of whom I traue in birth againe, untill Christ be formed in you: which Hierome glosseth aptly thus, In illo verè Christus formatur, qui virtutem fidei eius intelligit, & in quo omnis conuersatio eius exprimitur atq; depingitur. In this life this re-uation is only begun, and not perfect vntill this mortall put on immortalitie.
 * S. Augustine notably to this purpose, Charitie begun, is righteousnesse begun; charitie increased, is righteousnesse increased; great charitie is great righteous-nesse; perfect charitie, perfect righteousnesse. Charitas in alijs maior, in alijs minor, in alijs nulla: There be many degrees of charitie, some haue lesse, other haue more: sed plenissima, qua iam non possit augeri, quamdiu homo hic viuit, est in nemine: but full and perfect charitie cannot be found in any man so long as he liueth here. To conclude this argument in three words onely, iustifying righte-ousnesse is perfect, but not inherent; sanctifying righteousnesse is inherent, but not perfect; glorifying righteousnesse is both inherent and perfect.

The Gospell. Matth 9.1

Jesus entred into a ship, and passed ouer, and came into his owne Citie, &c.

This history commends vnto your consideration

Jesus entred into a ship, and passed ouer] It is writtē of Hierome, that he spent foure yeares in a Desert of Syria so studiously, that he did allow himselfe but a little time for sleepe, lesse for meat, none for idleness. But our blessed Sauiour neither immured in a wall, nor cloystered in an Abbey, nor hidden in a Wildernesse, went about doing good from coast to coast, and from countrey to countrey, from the Gadarens vnto Galile: whose diligence you must according to your seuerall occupations vnto occasions imitate so fast as you can, and so farre as you may; knowing that it is impossible not to finde ill in idle: Hominem otiosum non esse malum impossibile, quia nihil agendo discit male agere. From hence likewise we may note Christs vspeakable goodnesse, who came to the Gergefens afore they desired him, and stayed in their country till they reiected him, as being prior in amore, posterior in odio: louing vs first afore, we loued him, and neuer forsaking vs vntill we forsake him: as he speaks by the mouth of his holy Prophet, O Israel, hurt is from thy selfe, but helpe is from me.

Into his owne Citie] The man sicke of the palsie was cured in Capernaum, as Saint Marke reports in his second Chapter, at the first verse: but Christ as we finde in the Gospell of Saint Matthew, was borne at Bethelē, and brought vp at Nazaret; how then accord you these places? Augustine doth answer, that Capernaum was the chiefe, and as it were Metropolitan Citie of all the Galileans, and therefore in what place fouer of Galile Christ was, he might be said to be in Capernaum, as the whole Romane Empire spread farre and wide was termed

Erasmus in eius vita praefix.
 tom. 1. Hieron.
 Acts 10. 38.
 Hem 72.
 Laurent. Pifanus Euan gel paradox.
 Ferus Cor. 1.
 in loc.
 Iohn. 4. 19.
 Hosea 13. 9.
 Matth. 2. 1.
 Matth. 2. 23.
 De consensu.
 Euangel. lib. 2.
 cap. 25. Idem.
 Anselm. in loc.

termed Rome, and all the parts of Huntingdonshire, Cambridgeshire, Bedfordshire, take their denomination from Huntingdon, Cambridge, Bedford, the principall head townes of those countries. And this exposition is received by the<sup>k</sup> Penner of the ordinary glosse, Beda, Hugo, Strabius, and other, apud Maldor. in loc. But <sup>1</sup> Chrysofome giues a more probable satisfaction vnto the present obiection, affirming that Christ was borne in Bethlehem, and bred in Nazaret; but afterward dwelt in Capernum especially, shewing his greatest miracles (as<sup>m</sup> himselfe witnesseth) in that Citie; Thou Capernaum, which art lifted vp vnto heauen, shalt be brought downe to hell: for if the great workes, which haue beene done in thee, had beene done among them of Sodome, they had remained to this day. So that Capernaum is called here Christis owne Citie, because <sup>n</sup> leauing Nazareth, he went and dwelt in Capernaum. <sup>o</sup> Hence we may learne that euery towne which is adorned with the Gospell is Christis owne Citie, there Iesus is present in his Sermons; in his Sacraments, in his gifts, in his grace. <sup>p</sup> So long as the children of Israel obeyed God, and walked in his wayes according to his word, so long they were called his people. Come saith the <sup>q</sup> Lord to Moses, I will fend thee to Pharoah, that thou maist bring my people the children of Israel out of Egypt: but when once they were <sup>r</sup> stained with their owne works, and went a whoring with their owne inuentions, in so much as they <sup>t</sup> turned their glory into the similitude of a Calfe that eateth hay: the Lord speaking vnto Moses his seruant, calls them, not as before, my people but <sup>u</sup> the people, or according to the vulgar, Thy people. So Hierusalem once <sup>v</sup> Gods Citie, was after ward by <sup>x</sup> killing the Prophets, and reiecting the Lord of the Prophets, a denne of theeues, Matth. 21. 13. So Rome was in Pauls age the <sup>y</sup> beloued Church of Christ, but since her erroneous doctrine, as the wine of her fornication hath intoxicated the Kings and inhabitants of the earth, Apocalyps 17. 2. what is she but the <sup>z</sup> mother of abominations, a Synagogue of Satan, a seat of Antichrist?

It may further be objected here, that the <sup>a</sup> Sonne of man had not so much as an hole wherein to rest his head, and therefore no Citie of his owne. To which, answer may be, <sup>b</sup> that the holy Ghost (in these two contrarie texts, as they seeme) doth insinuate that lesson secretly, which Paul elsew here deliuereth openly, to wit, that we should <sup>c</sup> use the world, as if we used it not, <sup>d</sup> as hauing nothing and yet possessing all things.

They brought to him a mansicke of the palse lying in a bed ] In these Porters and Procters, obserue with <sup>e</sup> Hemingius and <sup>f</sup> other, vnfaigned loue to their friend, and a liuely faith in Christ; in being <sup>g</sup> feet to the lame, great loue: but in bringing him to Christ, and that after such a strange manner, as <sup>h</sup> Saint Marke reports it, uncovering the roofe of the house where Christ was, and letting downe their sick neighbour in a bed, and when he was so brought vnto Christ holding it sufficient to present <sup>i</sup> miserum ante misericordiam, an object of miserie to the Father of mercy, greater faith. Other haply would haue povred out a long prayer vnto Christ in word, or haue giuen vp a large petition in the behalfe of their friend in writing: but they were well assured, as <sup>k</sup> Erasmus elegantly, that the distressed in his couch, eo magis loquebatur misericordie medico, quia loqui non poterat. And therefore the text saith in the next clause, that Iesus saw the faith of them. <sup>l</sup> As God, he saw their faith, as he saw the thoughts of the Scribes: and as man, he saw their faith by their workes. He saw the faith of the Porters in bringing, and of the palse man in suffering himselfe to be brought in such a manner: and therefore Christ, the <sup>m</sup> consolation of Israel, affoords him instantly comfort both in word and deed. In word, Sonne be of good cheere, whosoever beleueth in Christ, <sup>n</sup> hath power to be the sonne of God: and if thou be Gods sonne, thou maist be very well of good cheere; for your <sup>o</sup> Father in heauen knoweth your wants, and provideth all things necessarie for you. In deed, healing first his sinnes, and then his fores.

Thy sinnes are forgiven thee ] Where first obserue, that Christ is so good as his word, yea better then his promise: for whereas he saith, Aske and you shall haue,

<sup>k</sup> In loc.

<sup>1</sup> Idem Theophylact. Euthym. Beza in loc.
<sup>m</sup> Matth. 11. 23

<sup>n</sup> Matth 4. 13.
<sup>o</sup> Ktlus in loc.

<sup>p</sup> Dicit Cor. 1. in loc.

<sup>q</sup> Exod. 3. 10.

<sup>r</sup> Psal. 106 38.
<sup>t</sup> Ibid. ver. 20.

<sup>u</sup> Exod 33. 1.

<sup>v</sup> Psal. 87. 2.
<sup>x</sup> Matth. 23. 37.

<sup>y</sup> Rom. 1. 7.

<sup>z</sup> Apocal. 17. 5.

<sup>a</sup> Matth 8. 20.

<sup>b</sup> Musculus in loc.

<sup>c</sup> 1. Cor. 7 31.

<sup>d</sup> 3. Cor. 9. 10

<sup>e</sup> Possil in loc.

<sup>f</sup> Socraticus Culman.

<sup>g</sup> Job 29. 1 5.

<sup>h</sup> Cap. 2. 4.

<sup>i</sup> Beauxamis in loc.

<sup>k</sup> Paresin.

<sup>l</sup> Luk.

<sup>m</sup> Zepper. cor. 1. in loc.

<sup>n</sup> Luk 2. 25.

<sup>o</sup> Job. 1 12.

<sup>p</sup> Matth 6. 8. 33.

<sup>q</sup> Matth 7 7.

<sup>a</sup> Musculus in loc.
<sup>f</sup> Psal. 10. 19.
<sup>f</sup> 1. Sam. 1. 13.
<sup>c</sup> Hilarius apud Kiliam in loc.
 Soc God vnto Moses, Exodus 14. 15.
<sup>m</sup> 1. Kings 3.

<sup>x</sup> 1. Sam 9.
<sup>y</sup> August. confess lib. 9.
 cap. 10.
<sup>z</sup> Iudg. 5.
<sup>a</sup> 2. King. 5. 23.

<sup>b</sup> Ferus & Maldonat. in loc.
<sup>c</sup> Mat. 6. 33.

<sup>d</sup> Sir William Cornwalis Esay 12.

<sup>e</sup> Serm. 145. de tempore.

<sup>f</sup> Hierome. Theophylact. Eulhym.
<sup>g</sup> 1. Cor. 11. 30.
 Iohn 5. 14.
<sup>b</sup> Tom. 3. part. quest. 14. art. 4.
<sup>c</sup> Suarz in 3. Thom disputat. 32. & Senten. in 3. sent. dist. 15.
<sup>i</sup> 1. Epist. 2. 24.
<sup>k</sup> Chap. 8. 17.
<sup>l</sup> See B. Bilfen serm. of Christs suffering, pag. 261.

<sup>m</sup> Perkins treat. of dying well & Cofer. com. in euang. Dom 18. post Pentecost.
<sup>n</sup> Heming.
<sup>o</sup> Luk. 23. 43 33.

he granted here to the Palsie-man afore he did aske, and more than he did aske. ¶ We reade not that the Patient himselfe, or his agents exhibited any petition vnto Christ in his behalfe, yet the Lord heard the desire of the poore, yea the very groanes of his seruants not expressed, oratio licet tacens est Deo clamor. His Palsie was prayer enough, and his faith a sufficient friend for his way to the God of all comfort. Againe, this patient came to Christ especially, if not onely, to be cured of his corporall infirmitie: but behold, his spirituall iniquities are healed also. Sonne be of good cheere, thy sinnes are forgiven thee. ¶ King Salomon desired of God onely, that he would giue him an vnderstanding heart to iudge his people; but the Lord granted him not onely wisdom in such a plentifull manner, as that none were like him in vnderstanding, either afore or after his time: but also bestowed on him other blessings of riches, honour, and prosperitie which he did not aske, Saul seeking for Assies onely, found a kingdome. ¶ Monica begged of God that her sonne Augustine might one day turne Christian and Catholike: but he proued also the most illuminate Doctor of all the Fathers. As when Sifera asked water, Iael gaue him milke: and as when Gebezi begged of Naaman one talent, he presently said vnto him, Yea take two talents, and he compelled him, and bound two talents of siluer in two bags: euen to God dealeth exceeding abundantly with vs above all that we aske, or thinke, Ephes. 3. 30.

Secondly, in that Christ here said to the patient, Thy sinnes are forgiven thee, before he said, Arise, take vp thy bed, and walke; <sup>b</sup> he doth insinuate that first he should haue craued pardon for his sinnes, and then afterward haue desired helpe for his sickness; that <sup>c</sup> first he should haue sought the kingdome of God, and then all other things should haue bene cast vpon him. Ordinarily men are too carefull for their bodies, and too negligent in doing right to their soules; in so much as <sup>d</sup> one said, Our bodies are made gentlemen, but our mindes are vsed as slaues. Every man in his right wits affects a good seruant, a good sonne, a good friend, a good field. Nay every man is desirous his house, his horse, his hofe should be good, he will haue every thing good about him, onely not caring if his soule be bad in him. O wretched wight, saith <sup>e</sup> Augustine, quid de te tu ipse male meruisti? inter bona tua non vis esse malum nisi teipsum: How didst thou deserue so much ill of thy selfe, as that among all thy goods only thy selfe art bad?

I obserue that Christ like a good Physitian did first purge his patient, and take away the matter of the disease, that he might the better worke his cure. ¶ Sinne is the cause of all diseases, and therefore Christ who was without sinne, was also without sickness, he tooke vpon him (as the <sup>h</sup> Schoolemen in this very wel) infirmities speciei, sed non individui; common infirmities vnto the whole nature of mankinde, as to be weary, to thirst, hunger, mourne: but not the particular infirmities of every singular person, as the blindness of Barthelemi, the fever of the Rulers sonne, the palsie of this patient lying in his bed. Indeed it is said, Esay 53. 4. that he tooke our infirmities, and bare our sicknesses. But S. Peter interprets it of our Sauours passion, his owne selfe bare our sinnes in his body on the tree. <sup>k</sup> S. Matthew construeth it of his healing all kinde of diseases. ¶ Others expound it thus, he tooke vpon him our paine, that is, whatsoeuer infirmitie was in him, it was only for our sake, not for his owne sinne: for so the Prophet explaines himselfe in the words immediately following, he was wounded for our transgressions, and broken for our iniquities, and with his stripes we are healed. If any then be sicke, let them humbly confesse their sinnes, and heartily craue forgiveness of the same, <sup>m</sup> first consulting with a Physitian for the soule, then entertaining a Physitian for the body.

4. Hence learne <sup>n</sup> that Christ hath not an eye so much to the greatnesse of our sinnes, as to our faith. If he see thy faith, he will winke at thy fault. When the blessed theefe had confessed him on the crosse, <sup>o</sup> O Lord remember me when thou comest into thy kingdome: Christ instantly forgetting all his former sinnes, especially respects his present confession, answering him exceeding graciously, to day shalt thou be with me in Paradise. When P. Bartimeus had cried, Iesus thou sonne of David haue mercy on me; Christ answered forthwith vnto the comfort of his soule, Goe thy way, thy faith hath saued thee. This palls-man had sinnes in the plurall number: originall, as being vniuersall: and actuell, as being the speciall causes of his disease; which not vnlikely was occasioned either by some disquiet of minde, or else by some disdiet of bodie: yet (as you see) so soone as Christ perceiued the faith of himselfe and his friends, he said (as not respecting their other vertues, or his other vices) O sonne be of good cheere, thy sinnes are forgiven thee.

5. In that Christ said here, thy sinnes are forgiven thee, notwithstanding he knew the Seribes would murmur and mutter against his speech: he teacheth vs to be faithfull in our calling, and diligent in doing our dutie, mauger the beard of all captious and cauelling aduersaries. As Bernard said of another text, Luke 2.8. Hac mea sunt, mihi apponuntur, mihi proponuntur inuitanda. This was spoken by Christ, and written by Matthew for our instruction. Hath then Almighty God giuen such power vnto men, as to pronounce the pardon of sinne to the sicke man in his bed? is the doctrine of confession and absolution agreeable to the Scriptures, and practise of the Church as well present as primitive? then albeit some scribling Scribe, pen an inuectiue pamphlet against a discreet Pastor executing this office, or some selfe-conceited Pharisee tell the people, this man blasphemeth: he may notwithstanding (vpon good information of<sup>c</sup> faith and repentance, as Christ in this place) say to the sicke sinner in his bed, thy sinnes are forgiven thee, and by Christs authoritic committed vnto him, I absolve thee. That absolution as well priuate as publike belongs principally, yea properly tantumquam ex officio to the Minister as Christs Ambassador in his ecclesiasticall function: I referre you to the Postiles of Melancthon, Culman, Zepperus vpon this place, to Martin Bucer in<sup>u</sup> articulis concordia: Melancthon in Matth. 18. vers. 18. & in Iohan. 20. verse 23. & in tract. de penitentia tit. Confessio, tom. 2. fol. 191. Olsuiian de substantia foderis, part. 2 pag. 273. 279. & sequent, Luther, Musculus, Cruciger apud Melancton<sup>x</sup> in Concilijs Theologicis: Doctor Field, lib. 3. of the Church, chap. 25. Master White, Way to the true Church, pag. 230.. 231. For my owne part, I with vnfaignedly that all popish abuses of Confession and Absolution vtterly abolished, they might one day be more fully restored in our Protestant Churches vnto their primitive sinceritie,

6. Christ in saying, thy sinnes are forgiven thee, doth instruct vs more fully concerning his owne person and office, for which he was sent into the world: namely, to seeke and saue that which was lost: Vnlinke the phrase, and you shall finde a Gospell in euery word. Sonne: if we be sonnes, how can our Father in heauen denie vs any good thing? Matth 7.11. Be of good cheere. <sup>a</sup> If God be with vs, who can be against vs? if he will haue vs merry, what shall make vs sorry? Thy, in particular, sinnes in the plurall, many sinnes, all sinnes, are forgiven, freely, yet fully, through my grace, not vpon thy merit. For he saith not (as <sup>b</sup> Interpreters obserue) thou shalt satisfie for thy sinne: but ecce remittuntur tibi, behold they be forgiven. Againe, it is very remarkable that Christ saw their faith: but said thy sinnes. I grant with Euthymius and <sup>c</sup> other ancient Fathers, that vndoubtedly this sicke man had some faith, otherwise he would neuer haue sought after Christ so greedily, neither would Christ haue receiued him into fauour so graciously: yet Saint Matthew, Marke, Chap. 2. verse 5. Luke Chap. 5. verse 10. attribute most vnto the faith of the Porters, all of them relating the story thus: And when Iesus saw, not his, but their faith. And so many doctors vnderstand this Text, as <sup>d</sup> Ambrose, <sup>e</sup> Cyrillus, Hierosolymitanus, <sup>f</sup> Hierome and <sup>g</sup> other. If Christ then be so willing to grant our requests vpon the prayer and inuocation of other; <sup>h</sup> how ready will he be to heare when our selues out of our owne faith are futers for our selues? Vndoubtedly this saying, thy sinnes are forgiven, is as a * standing sentence, spoken not only to the palls man here: but as a generall proclamation vnto euery one that beleueth.

P Mar. 10. 52.

¶ Culman.

¶ Heming.

¶ Serm 3 in natal. Dom.

¶ Calvin. Instit. lib. 3 cap. 4. § 21. 22.

¶ Inter scripta Anglicana. pag. 688.

¶ Pag. 256.

¶ Heming.

¶ Luk. 19. 10.

¶ Rom 8. 31.

¶ Musculus. Heming.

¶ Chrysostom. Theophylact. in loc.

¶ Com in Luc. 5.

¶ Catech. 5.

¶ Com in loc.

¶ Aulism.

¶ Heming.

¶ Them. in loc.

¶ B. Lat. serm.

¶ Gosp. 20. Sun. after Trinitie.

And i Ludolph. de vita Christi.

part. 1. c. 47.
Bonavent. in
Luc. 5.
Vcaxamis.
Panigoral. in loc.

k 1. King. 8. 39.
l Justin. Mart.
de monarch. Dei.
Totus oculus est et qui minime fallitur quia minime claudu-
tur. Bernard. lib
5. de consid.
m Rupert in loc.
n Theophylact.
o Hierome.
p Chryssostom.
q Non hoc ante diceret quam sactis comprobaret.
Rupert. in loc.
r Muscalus.

s Maldonat.
Chryssost.
t Hieron. Epist.
ad Rufic.
u Chryssost.
v Theophylact.
Eathym.
x Matth. 16. 24.

y Matth. 7. 14
z Matth. 10. 10
a Kilius in loc.

b Psal. 51. 2, 7.
c Chap. 31. 18.
d Apud Veg.
in loc.

e Rupert. in loc.

And behold certaine of the Scribes said within themselues, this man blasphemeth] A man may blaspheme <sup>1</sup> three wayes especially: first, ascribing to God that which is vnbefitting his excellent maiestie: secondly, by denying to God his proper attributes: thirdly, by giuing that vnto himselfe which is only due to God. And in this third kinde the Scribes imagined Christ to blaspheme, because none can forgie sinnes except God. Esay 43. 25. I am he that putteth away thine iniquitie for mine owne sake. Christ therefore proues himselfe to be God, first by knowing their thoughts, and secondly by doing this miracle. Iesus saw their thoughts; ergo, God. For <sup>k</sup> God only knowes the hearts of all the children of men, according to that of <sup>l</sup> Philemon an old Poet:

*Qualis Deus mihi dicite, censendus est,
Qui cuncta cernit, ipse sed non cernitur.*

Whether is it easier to say thy sinnes be forgiven the? or to say arise and walke?] <sup>m</sup> With God it is all one to say and to do; but with men it is more casie to say this, then to shew this. And therefore that ye may know that the sonne of man hath power to forgie sinnes on earth: <sup>n</sup> I will by curing the palse mans bodie, proue that I can also saue his soule. Carnall men belecue their sence more then their Sauour, <sup>o</sup> fit ergo carnale signum vt probetur spirituale, <sup>p</sup> facit minus, quod est manifestius, vt demonstret maius et non manifestum. And it is worth obseruing that Christ neuer openly forgau the sinnes of any, <sup>q</sup> till by working of miracles he shewed euidently that he had power to grant pardons. Ambassadors are not beleued in another Nation, vntill they deliuer their letters of credence. Christ therefore shewed his commission, and <sup>r</sup> letters testimoniall, or rather a plaine Patent: That ye may know that the Sonne of man hath authoritie to forgie sinnes on earth, I say to the sicke of the palse, arise, take up thy bed, &c.

Arise, take up thy bed, and goe to thy house.] So many words are set downe for the greater <sup>t</sup> manifestation of the miracle, as if he should say, Thou that couldest not sit, now stand: thou that couldest not goe, now walke: thou that wert carried in thy bed, <sup>u</sup> now carry thy bed: and <sup>v</sup> so demonstrate that thy former agilitie, strength, and health, is truly restored againe. Goe to thine house, that thy friends and acquaintance who knew thee to be sicke, may confesse my power in making thee whole. If Christ would haue had this palse man to follow him, he would not haue said, take up thy bed: but <sup>x</sup> take up thy crosse. For to be Christs follower is not opus puluinaris, sed pulueris, a fether bed is vsfit for our swift race in the <sup>y</sup> narrow way, where <sup>z</sup> two coats are troublesome.

<sup>a</sup> Mystically, this palse man is euery man vnto regenerate lying sicke in the bed of his sinne, not able to stirre hand or foot of himselfe for the good of himselfe. He must therefore be renued in the spirit of his minde after God in righteousness and true holinesse. Now the power to forgie sinnes and to worke this cure is giuen to Christ only. So <sup>b</sup> Dauid, Wash me thoroughly from my wickednesse, and I shall be whiter then the snow. So <sup>c</sup> Ieremy, Conuert me Lord, and I shall be conuerted. And it is as our Church speakes, a great maruell, nay, saith <sup>d</sup> Augustine, it is a more strange miracle to conuert a sinner and to make him a new man, then it was in the beginning to make the new world. For there was nothing to hinder God in creating the great world; but in renuing this our little world, besides our owne naturall corruption, all euils on earth, all deuils in hell are ready to withstand him. In more particular, he that will not worke for his liuing hath the palse in his <sup>e</sup> hands, he must therefore so learne Christ, as that he steale no more, but rather labour with his hands the things which is good. And so the Gospell and Epistle meet together in their argument and aime, both insinuating that Iesus Christ is the Sauour of soule and body. Wherefore let vs as the beholders of this miracle, glorifie God, and pray with our Church:

O God, for as much as without thee we are not able to please thee: grant that the working of thy mercie may in all things direct and rule our hearts through Iesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

<sup>c</sup> 22. quæst. 150. art. 2. & sequent.

<sup>c</sup> in Aurea summa fol. 157.

<sup>u</sup> In Thomam ubi supra.

<sup>x</sup> Ardens in loc.

<sup>y</sup> Ebric: as sancta. y Psal. 3. 68.

<sup>z</sup> Luther.

B 23.

Piscator.

<sup>a</sup> 1. Iohn 4. 18.

<sup>b</sup> James 2. 19.

<sup>c</sup> Rom. 13. 10.

<sup>d</sup> Rom. 6. 16.

<sup>e</sup> Phil. 3. 19.

<sup>f</sup> Hieron. com. in Tit.

<sup>g</sup> Vide Ambros. lib. de Elia. 6. 17.

<sup>h</sup> Matth. 8. 31.

<sup>i</sup> Matth. 12. 43.

<sup>k</sup> Bonavent. dict. salut. cap. 29.

For the resolution whereof, I referre you to <sup>f</sup> Thomas, <sup>g</sup> Altissiodorensis, <sup>u</sup> Caictan; holding it sufficient at this time to treat of voluntarie, wicked, inordinate drunkennesse implied in our text. First, voluntarie, be not: insinuating that it is in our owne power. Secondly, wicked, drunken with wine. For as <sup>x</sup> Diuines are bold to speake, there is an holy drunkennesse, as that of the blessed Apostles on Whitunday; and that of Martyrs and Saints in enery age, who taking the cup of saluation into their hands are so filled with the spirit, that they are euen sicke with loue, Cant. 2. 5. and inebriated as it were with the <sup>y</sup> plenteousnesse of Gods house. Thirdly, inordinate, wherein is excessse, making men absolute <sup>z</sup> dissolute, ready to commit all vncleannesse euen with greedinesse. All these being put together, make drunkennesse a gramdame in Babylon, and a very monopolie of mischiefe, transgressing euery precept of the whole Law.

The first Commandement is, Thou shalt haue none other Gods but me. The meaning whereof as Christ expounds it, Matth. 22. 37. is, Thou shalt loue the Lord thy God with all thine heart, with all thy soule, with all thy minde. He saith not (as Chrysostome notes vpon the place) fear the Lord: for the most impudent Atheists haue trembled often, in whom there is no perfect loue, <sup>a</sup> which expelleth feare. Neither saith he, know the Lord: for heathen men haue some knowledge of God by nature: Psal. 19. 1. The heauens declare the glorie of God, and the firmament sheweth his handie worke. Neither saith he, beleue the Lord thy God: for the <sup>b</sup> deuils also beleue: but he saith expressly that which is the <sup>c</sup> fulfilling of the Law: loue the Lord thy God. As then our <sup>d</sup> Apostle said, he is our master, to whom we submit our selues as seruants to obey: so that is our God assuredly, which we like best and loue most. And therefore for as much as the glutton and drunkard is totus venter, (as Erasmus said of a Frier, all belly, and all for the belly: without all doubt his belly is his <sup>e</sup> God, and his glory his shame.

The second Commandement is, Thou shalt not make to thy selfe any grauen image, &c. thou shalt not bow downe to them, and worship them. Albeit drunkards cannot endure to kneele one halfe quarter of an 'houre in the Temple; yet they can be content to kneele and that on both knees, and those bare, pressing and answering healths in the Tauernes, either to their good Captaine, who many times is but a swaggerer; or else to their faire Mistresse, who sometimes is little better than a strumpet; or else forsooth vnto their Soueraigne, vsing the deuils logicke, he that will not be drunken for Cesar, is no friend to Cesar. <sup>f</sup> Accusationis occasio est, adiuratum per Cesarem frequentius non bibisse. This vngodly & deuotion and idolatrous adoration of He-saints, and She-saints, as they protest vn-fainedly from the bottome of their heart, to the bottome of the cup, is so full of scandall and scorne, that there can be but little difference betweene a drunkard, in vpholding his wine-worship, and a Papist in obseruing his will-worship.

As for the third Commandement; a drunkard alway blasphemeth God in his workes, often in his words. It is an old prouerbe, Shew me a lier, and I will shew thee a theefe: so shew me a swaggerer, and I will instantly shew thee a swearer. For when once he begins to seeme to himselfe, valde disertus, a very fine man, secundi calices cum iam secere disertum: he will talke of God most, although he thinke of him least. It is recorded in the <sup>h</sup> Gospels historie, that the dispossessed deuils intreated Christ that he would suffer them to goe into swine; because the chiefe place of the deuils residence, is the soule of the swilling drunkard. <sup>i</sup> In dry places he finds no rest, <sup>k</sup> that is, in a sober minde he gets no footing; he dwels in low countries and in wet ground, in such as are filled with wine. Now when the Spirit of God is gone, which should direct their speech and guide their thoughts, and Satan is entred in and taken possession of their house; then vndoubtedly the doore of their lips is shut vp from Gods praise, but open as hell mouth alway to sweare vainly, to forswear villanously.

Touching the sanctifying of the Sabbath inioyned in the fourth Commandement; an Alehouse in a Parish is ordinarily the deuils chappell; while Gods congregation is chaunting in the Church, boon companions are chatting in the Tauerne, Tauerne, hauing their Letanie, Gospels and Epistles, in derision of our common Prayers, and the welch Sermon in scorne of our preaching: <sup>1</sup> so that they more dishonour God, and serue better the deuill on Sunday, than all the dayes of the weeke beside.

The fifth commandment requires honour to fathers

}	Oeconomically	}	Parents.
			Husbands.
			Masters.
}	Politically	}	Betters in office.
			Elders in yeares.
}	Ecclesiastically	}	Tutors.
			Pastors.
			Prelates.

Now the drunkard in this habit of sinne dishonoureth all at once, disobeying the counsell of his Parent, commandment of his Master, statutes of his Prince, direction of his Elder, lesson of this Tutor, exhortation of his Preacher, discipline of his Prelate. Scandalizing also by these lewd courses his mother the Colledge, his mother the Vniuersitie, his mother the Church.

Against the sixth Commandment a drunkard offends more principally two wayes: First, in <sup>m</sup> ruinating the state of his owne bodie by disorder and intemperance.

Una salus sanis nullam potare salutem, Non est in pota vera salute salus.

Secondly, being apt in this humour to stab other, according to that of Virgil: Bacchus ad arma vocat. And as another ancient <sup>o</sup> Poet, In praelia trudit inermem. <sup>p</sup> Alexander the Great being drunken; killed his deare friend Clitus, for whose life when he was sober, he would haue giuen halfe his Empire. The records of our Courts afford innumerable presidents in this kinde, in so much as the common epithet to quarrelling is drunken, as a drunken fight, or a drunken fray, neque enim faceret hoc sobrius unquam, for no man in his right wits admitteth of any such desperate courses.

The drunkard is occasioned to breake the seventh Commandment by his large commons, and lewd companions. For the first, <sup>q</sup> after drunkenesse ensueth chambering, after chambering wantonnesse, <sup>r</sup> pro membrorum ordine ordo vitiorum est: and as <sup>t</sup> Luther excellently, gula soror est, immo irritamentum & porcus, & minister luxuria. For semetum, <sup>u</sup> some conceit, is so called, eo quod tentet, and <sup>v</sup> vinum ab implendo venas: examples hereof in Scriptures are the Sodomites, Herod, Lot, Dauid, and in our <sup>x</sup> Chronicle Vortigerius.

Secondly, the drunkard is incited to the sinne of incontinence by lewd companie: for although an Inne was called in old time propina, and of late corruptly popina, <sup>y</sup> the Greeke πην, signifying hunger, because Tauerne-houes were first erected only for the necessarie refection of trauellers and strangers, and not for idle meetings of neighbours: yet afterward they became places of notorious riot and excesse; in so much, that the <sup>z</sup> Wiseman said expressly, Two things are hard and perilous, a Marchant cannot lightly keepe him from wrong, and a Virtualler is not without sinne. And it is well obserued out of the second Chapter of Iosua vers. 1. that the word in Hebrew vsed for an Hostesse, signifieth an Harlot also, the messengers of Iosua went into an harlots house, that is, saith our English glosse, into a Tauerne-house, and in Latine stabulum is an Inne, and prostitutum a whore. Now the filthy communication and vncomely gestures vsuall in such places, and among such persons, are so great motiues vnto sinne, that as Martin Luther was wont to say, It is as strange a miracle for a man to conuerse with such and not to burne with lust, as it was for the three children to be in the fierie furnace and not to be scorched. <sup>a</sup> For can a man take fire in his bosome, and his clothes not be burnt? or can a man goe vpon coles, and his feet not hurt? <sup>b</sup> Pascitur libido conuiujs, nutritur delicijs, vino accenditur, ebrietate flammatur. In these two respects I may pronounce with <sup>c</sup> Hierome, Nunquam ego ebrium putabo castu.

Adulterers

<sup>1</sup> Church hom. concerning the time and place of prayer.

<sup>m</sup> Vide Ambros. lib. de Elias. c. 16.
<sup>n</sup> Owin Epigram. Vi Venus encruat vires, sic copia Bacchi Virg.
<sup>o</sup> Horat.
<sup>p</sup> Church hom. against drunkenesse.

<sup>q</sup> Rom. 13. 13.
<sup>r</sup> Hieron. epist. Amando.
<sup>s</sup> Loc. com. tit. de libidinisibus.
<sup>t</sup> Perottus in Cornueop.
<sup>u</sup> Isidor. etym. lib. 20. cap. 32.
<sup>v</sup> Polydor. Anglican. hist. lib. 3. pag. 56.
<sup>w</sup> Isidor. etym. lib. 15. cap. 1.
<sup>x</sup> Eccle. 26. 30.

<sup>a</sup> Prou. 6. 27. 28
<sup>b</sup> Ambros. de pascitur lib. 1. cap. 14.
<sup>c</sup> Com in Tit. 1.

<sup>d</sup> Heliodor. Aethiop. hist. lib. 13.

Adulterers and drunkards are of such affinitie, <sup>d</sup> that in ebrietatem amans, & in amorem ebrinus proclivus admodum, a wonton will easily turne drunkard, and a drunkard as soone become wanton.

<sup>e</sup> Bonavent. dict salut. cap. 8.
<sup>f</sup> Church hom. against drunkennesse.

As for the eighth Commandement: he that is drunken with wine, first is a tcefe to himselfe in his excessiue riot, and then being in need is occasioned to steale from others also. Drunkenesse is <sup>e</sup> regius morbus, a costly sinne, for he that draweth his patrimonie through his<sup>f</sup> throat, eating and drinking more in an houre then he is able to earne in a whole weeke, must in fine come to beggerie: Prouer. 23. 21. The drunkard and the glutton shall be poore, and the sleeper shall be clothed with ragges. He doth cast his house so long out of the window, that as <sup>s</sup> Diogenes said, at the last his house doth cast him out of the doore, hauing left nothing rich except a rich nose. The prodigall childe wastfull in the beginning of his iourney, was in the end so needie, that he was desirous to be fellow commoner with <sup>h</sup> swine. Diogenes derided a young riotous gallant, who spent so much at dinuer that he had nothing but a Raddish root for his supper. In a word, the most ordinary progresse of a meane man giuen oucr to tipling is nothing else but this, from luxury to <sup>i</sup> beggery, from beggery to theeuery, from Holborne to Tyburne from the alehouse to the gallowes.

<sup>g</sup> Lucianus in salibus & iocis.

<sup>h</sup> Luke 15. 16.

<sup>i</sup> Exortio: quia perditus & nihil sibi & suis seruans Zanch. in loc.

As for the ninth Commandement: <sup>k</sup> Augustine makes eight kinde of lies, which <sup>l</sup> other haue reduced vnto three, mendacium officiosum, iocosum, maliciosum.

<sup>k</sup> lib. de mendac. ad consent. cap. 14.
<sup>l</sup> Lombard sen. l. 3. dist. 38. & glossin Psal. 5.
<sup>m</sup> Luke 2. 1.

And these may be contracted into two, to wit, a <sup>n</sup> merrie } lie.
<sup>o</sup> very }

<sup>n</sup> Fulgenius mytholog lib. 2. fab. de Diorysio.
<sup>o</sup> Plutarch. lib. de garrulitate.

All which a drunkard hath at his fingers ends: for the merry lie, cogging and iesting are the chiefe props of his tottering estate. And as for malicious lies, if he be on his Ale-bench, and sit downe in the seat of the scornfull, he will, as <sup>m</sup> Augustine Caesar once, tax the whole world, pratling of Priest and Clarke, yea Prince and people, censureth all he knoweth, often more then he knoweth. He will not spare his other selfe, his best selfe, his owne selfe. Bacchus is painted by the Poets vsually naked: <sup>n</sup> hereby signifying that a drunkard reueales all the secrets of his heart, <sup>o</sup> quicquid est in corde sobrii, est in lingua ebrii. The which is a most odious fault in ciuilitie: for who will familiarly conuerse with such a dolt as can neither keepe his owne nor his friends counsell? In vino veritas helps him not a whit; for seeing all truths are not to be told at all times, he may beare false witnesse when he makes a true report, because the meaning of the commandement is, that we should not moue any tales either false or true, whereby the credit of our neighbour is lost or lessened: but that on the contrarie we should endeaour by all meanes possible to maintaine his honest reputation among vs. And therefore the gabbling drunkard in mouing many false pratles, and so making many foule quarrels, offendeth against the ninth Commandement especially.

<sup>p</sup> Rom. 6. 13.

The naming of the last Commandement is enough, he that is guiltie of the fact, of necessitie must be accessarie to the motion. And therefore to conclude this cidence, euen as a Generall that besiegeth a Cittie, laboureth especially to gaine the Tower or the Castle, knowing that if he possesse it, he shall instantly command the whole Towne: so likewise the deuill, who daily doth assault our little Citie, plots how he may be possessed of our Capitoll and Sconce, being assured that if our head be tipling, our eyes will be wonton, our tongue blasphemous, our throat an open sepulchre, our hands ready to stab, our feet swift to shed blood: in briefe, all our members at his seruice to become <sup>p</sup> weapons of vnrighteousnesse, to commit all manner of sinne euen with gredinesse. And so the drunkard is like mare mortuum; as no fish can liue in the one, so no vertue in the other, <sup>q</sup> abominatur a Deo, despicitur ab Angelis, deridetur ab hominibus, desinitur virtutibus, confunditur a demonibus, conculcatur ab omnibus.

<sup>q</sup> Augustin.

But the foulnesse of this vnhappy sinne } will appeare yet to be greater, if we consider } Ciuill men.
it according to our seuerall estates, as we are } Christian men.
} Collegiate men.
} Clergie men.

If we consider our selues as men, we shall easily see that drunkennesse maketh vs no men. <sup>r</sup> Demens ebrietas, it is a voluntary mannesse, whereby men deprived of their vse of reason are like horse and mule without vnderstanding. Hanc qui habet, seipsum non habet, he that hath this sinne hath lost himselfe, and is become rather a beast than a man, nay <sup>e</sup> worse then a beast, for we cannot enforce a beast to drinke more then he need: <sup>u</sup> est voluntarius demon, a drunkard as it is in our English prouerbe will play the deuill.

<sup>x</sup> Quæris quis sit homo ebriosus? atque Nullus est homo Maucole ebriosus.

Secondly, if we consider our selues as ciuill men, this one sinne ouerthroweth all the foure cardinall and chiefe vertues. As Iustice, for how shall any man doe right vnto other, who cannot doe reason vnto himselfe? Prudence, which is often drowned in this sincke, and especially maintained by moderate diet, as the  $\gamma$  Philosopher intimates in the word  $\sigma\omega\pi\epsilon\sigma\tau\iota\sigma\mu$  to be quasi σωφροσύνη φρονου. Temperance, for foulness of body followeth ordinarily <sup>z</sup> fulnesse of bread. Fortitude, for as <sup>a</sup> S. Ambrose notably, Quos manè insignes armis spectaueras, vultu minaces, eosdem vesperi cernas etiam à puerulis rideri, sine ferro vulneratos, sine pugna interfectos, sine hoste turbatos, sine senectute tremulos. <sup>b</sup> Holofernes hauing lost his wit in wine, lost his head also by the hand of a sillie woman. And that of a moderne Poet is memorable, de duce Dipostino.

Pons superauit aquas, superarunt pocula pontem, Febre tremens perijt, qui tremor orbis erat.

Thirdly, if we consider our selues as Christian men, <sup>c</sup> he that liueth in pleasure is dead while he liueth: ergo, faith <sup>d</sup> Hierome, a drunkard is not onely dead, but buried in his sinne also. There be many <sup>e</sup> woes denounced against him in this, and moe woes executed on him in the next life. For I tell you (saith the Apostle) that they who doe such things shall neuer inherit the kingdome of God, Gal. 5. 21, συνεχθη, & quòd non possit seruari.

Fourthly, if we consider our selues as schollers, our honourable founders in great wisdome foreseeing the manifold inconueniences of tipling in Students, ordained that we should haue but a spare diet in the Colledge; and forbade all excessive riot and inordinate commessatiation in the towne. A Gentleman hearing that his souner at Vniuersity was giuen to dicing, answered, that want of money would occasion him haply to leaue that fault. Afterward vnderstanding that he was giuen to whoring, said, that either marriage or old age would one day cure that folly. But when he was informed of his <sup>s</sup> wine bibbing, out vpon the villaine (said the father) I will surely disinherit him, for that fault will increase with his yeeres. A gamester will continue so long as his purse lasts, an adulterer so long as his loynes last, but a drunkard so long as his lungs and life last.

Fifthly, if we consider our selues as Clergie-men, he that is giuen to <sup>h</sup> wine should not be made Bishop, and if any Prelate or Priest after consecration become a wine-bibber, ebrietatibus vacans, aut cesset aut deponatur, as it is in the 42. Canon of the Apostles, according to the computation of Theodorus Balsamon. And by the seventh iniunction of Queene Elizabeth, Ecclesiasticall persons are forbidden haunting of Alehouses and Tauernes. I know Paul may meet his acquaintance at the market of Appius, and at the three Tauernes, Acts 28. 15. but this ought to bee for his honest necessities, as the former Iniunction intimates, and not to keepe ranke riot at vnlawfull houres. He that is irregular in this kinde, after admonition and warning, is worthy to be suspended <sup>i</sup> ab officio & beneficio. A great gallant hauing provided a great feast for his neighbours, desired the parish Priest to wash first and to sit downe last: hereby signifying (saith mine <sup>k</sup> Author) that Clergie-men ought to be primo mundi, sed postremo ebrj. Thus as you see, by surfetting and excessse <sup>l</sup> vina are made venena, that is, in the word of holy <sup>m</sup> Scripture, the wine of drunkards is so bitter as the poison of Dragons, and the cruell gall of Aspes. In some respect worse, saith <sup>n</sup> Ambrose,

<sup>r</sup> Vergil. Epigram. de Venere & vino.

<sup>l</sup> Chrysost. in Act. hom. 27.
<sup>c</sup> Dadrus loc. com. in ebrietate.
<sup>u</sup> Chrysost. ad pop. Antioch. hom. 1.
<sup>z</sup> Beza Epigram.

<sup>v</sup> Arist. ethic. lib. 6.

<sup>e</sup> Ezech. 16. 49

<sup>a</sup> Lib. de Elia,

cap. 13.

<sup>b</sup> Iudith 13. 2. 3

<sup>c</sup> 1 Tim 5. 6.

<sup>d</sup> Epist. Oceano

tom. 2. fol. 324.

<sup>e</sup> Esay 5. 1.

Ioel 1. 5.

Prou 23. 29.

<sup>f</sup> Phauorinus apud Zambr. in loc.

<sup>g</sup> Morall vpon Arist. Orlando furioso, lib 35.

<sup>h</sup> 1 Tim. 3. 3.

<sup>i</sup> Vide Balsam. in Apost. can. 42

& Phorium.

Tit. 2. cap. 27.

& 35.

<sup>k</sup> Alensa philo- sophica fab. de

mitica.

<sup>l</sup> Ambros de

Elia. cap. 14.

<sup>m</sup> Deut 32. 33.

<sup>n</sup> Vbi supra.

then any venome; for the most deadly poison hath holpen many, whereas the drunkards potion heals none, but hurts all, a root of much euill, a rot of every vertue.

Preached at S. Maries in Cambridge on Whitsunday, Anno 1602. The remnant of this Text concerning 'Psalmes, and Hymnes, and spirituall Songs; is expounded Epist. Sund. 5. after Epiphany.

The Gospell. MATTH. 22. 1.

Iesus said vnto his Disciples, the kingdome of heauen is like vnto a man that was a King, which made a great marriage for his sonne, &c.

THis Gospell in effect is all one with that appointed to be read on the second Sunday after Trinitie: P both teach one point, and tend to one purpose. Wherefore, lest I seeme double diligent, I refer you to my large notes vpon that other Text; and intreat you to be content with a short paraphrase for the present.

The kingdome of heauen] The Church militant on earth, is this kingdome of heauen, I say militant, and that for a two reasons especially: first, because this mariage feast is called a dinner, verſ. 4. and after dinner there followeth another banquet, namely the supper of the lambe, Apocal. 19. 9. This dinner then is a feast of grace, that supper a feast of glory. Secondly, because none can be thrust out of the Church in heauen triumphant: many croud vnto Gods dinner in the militant without any wedding garment or bridelace: but at the last day when he shall come to view his guests, he will cast them out of the wedding chamber, into vtter darknesse, as it is in the 13. verſe. The Church vnder the Crosse then is this kingdome, gathered together by preaching of the Gospell, a chosen generation, a royall priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people. Not kingdomes in the plurall, but in the singular a kingdome, as being gouerned by one and the same Lord, vnder one and the same law. And it is a kingdome of heauen, as being the way to the kingdome of heauen, because, saith Augustine, per portam ecclesie intramus in portam paradisi. And a kingdome of heauen, for that her conuerſation is in heauen, and her affections set on things aboue. The synagogues of Satan are a kingdome of darknesse, the Church a kingdome of light. For as in heauen some bodies giue light and receiue none, as the Sunne: other receiue light and giue none, as the firmament: other both receiue and giue, as the Starres and Moone: so Christ in the Church, is the father of light, and the sunne of righteousnesse, Malac 4. 2. giuing light vnto all, and receiuing light from none. The lay people resemble the firmament, called to receiue light in the publike preaching of the word, and not to giue light except it be candle-light in their owne priuate families. Indeed there be many blazing Starres and prodigious Comets in this our heauen, but such are not properly lights, but fires; as the Philosopher, ignes fatui. The Preachers of the word are starres in the firmament, first receiuing light from Christ, and then communicating it to other, as the words of their Patent import, Mat. 5. 14. Ye are the light of the world.

This King is God the father, a King of Kings, and Lord of Lords, able to doe whatsoeuer he will in heauen, in earth, and in hell. As one doth glosse my text, Regens in caelo per gloriam, in mundo per gratiam, in inferno per iustitiam. His Sonne the Bridegroom is Christ, and his Bride the Church, and God made this marriage by Christs incarnation. For as the best way to reconcile two disagreeing families or enemy-kingdomes, is to make some mariage betweene them: euen so the Word became flesh and dwelt among vs in the world, that he might hereby make our peace, reconciling God to man, and man to God. At this great mariage dinner the Bridegroom himselſe is the best dish, euen the body

* Merlorat.
Panizanol, in loc.
P B. Latymer
serm vpon this Gospell.
† Iacob. de Vo-
rag ser. 1. in loc.

* 1 Pet. 2. 9.

† Serm. 136. de
temp.

* Philip. 3. 20.

* Coloff. 3. 2.

* Iacob. de Vo-
rag ubi supra.

† James 1. 17.

† Iohn 1. 9.

* Euthym.
Anselm.

† Psal. 135. 6.

* Ephes. 5. 32.

† Greg. hom. 38.

* Ardens.

† Iohn 1. 14.

* Ephes. 2. 14. 16

† B. Latymer.

body and blood of Christ preached in his word, and presented in his Sacraments. And albeit this feast especially concerne the Jew, yet appertaineth it vnto all, as begunne in the <sup>k</sup> beginning of the world, and enduing to the end of the same. The Patriarkes and Prophets in old time, the Preachers and Pastors in our time, call and inuite men euery day to this marriage. The latter course at this feast, or the <sup>l</sup> sweet meats, are remission of sinnes, euerlasting life; such ioy as no tongue can expresse, or heart conceiue. The time when the King commeth in to see his guests, is either the particular houre of our <sup>m</sup> death, or else the generall day of <sup>n</sup> iudgement, when he shall separate the reprobate from his Elect, Matth. 13. 40. and 25. 32. God is euery where, <sup>o</sup> seeing all things alway; yet that hereby Iudges may learne not to condemne any, but vpon good informtion; Almighty God said of Sodom, I will goe downe now, and see whether they haue done altogether according to that cry which is come vnto me, Gen. 18. 21. and of Babel, Come, let vs goe downe, Gen. 11. 17. and here the King is said to come in among his guests, and to <sup>p</sup> see the man which had not on a wedding garment, afore he commanded him to be bound hand and foot, and to be cast into vtter darknesse.

The wedding garment, as <sup>p</sup> some thinke, is Christ: or as <sup>q</sup> other, the new man: or as other, <sup>r</sup> obseruing of the Commandements of Christ: or as other, a <sup>s</sup> pure conuersation: or as other, an vpright heart, comming to the marriage <sup>t</sup> rather out of dutie, then for a dinner: or as other, <sup>u</sup> charitie: or as other, <sup>x</sup> grace: or as other, <sup>y</sup> faith: or as other, <sup>z</sup> regeneration, consisting in faith and repentance. All which vpon the point are the very <sup>a</sup> same: so that (as <sup>b</sup> our Diuines obserue) the question is idle whether faith or godly life be this garment, because good workes alway proceed from faith, and faith alway sheweth it selfe by good workes. Hypocrites are they who want the wedding garment, <sup>c</sup> professing that they know God, but in their workes denying him.

But it is a more darke Probleme, how the King when he came to see the guests, found but one without a wedding garment, and how that one may be called his friend. <sup>d</sup> Answer may be, that all reprobate sinners are called one, because they will be of one kinde, namely faithlesse: or one, because the root of all sinne did proceed from <sup>e</sup> one: or one, because <sup>f</sup> he that faileth in one point is guiltie of all: or one, to shew the quicke sight of God, who can, if there be but one hypocrite among many, soone spie him: or one, <sup>g</sup> because many such hypocrites are lesse esteemed then one righteous man: Ecclesiasticus 16. 3. One that is iust, is better then a thousand vngodly children: or one, to shew that at Christs own Table there was one Judas among the blessed Apostles, as <sup>h</sup> some contriue it. And this one whosoener he be, may be called a friend, <sup>i</sup> for that he did seeme by profession a friend: or a friend, ex parte Dei, calling him vnto the marriage, <sup>k</sup> willing that all men should be saued, and come to the knowledge of the truth. He was <sup>l</sup> vsed by the King as his friend, but in comming without a wedding garment he was <sup>m</sup> foe to himselfe: or friend in derision; as if he should say, You are a kinde friend indeed to come in hither without your wedding apparell, and bride-lace: for the Scriptures admit of Ironies, Gen. 3. 9. Adam, where art thou? or a friend, for that he was <sup>n</sup> once a friend, as Simon is tearmed the <sup>o</sup> Leper, for that he was a Leper: and Matthew the P Publican, for that he was a Publican: and Hierusalem a sinke of sinne, the holy Citie, for that it was once holy, Matth. 27. 35. In reporting these different opinions I will imitate the sage Iudges of our Law, who sometime determine to heare, not heare to determine.

The Epistle. EPHES. 6. 10.

My brethren be strong through the Lord, &c.

THE life of man is a <sup>q</sup> warfare on earth, and euery Christian is a professed souldier, hauing <sup>r</sup> fightings without, and terrors within. He must therefore learne

<sup>v</sup> Melancthon.
<sup>k</sup> Gen. 3. 15.
The seed of the woman, &c
<sup>l</sup> B Latimer.
<sup>m</sup> Panigarol.
<sup>n</sup> Hieron.
Musculus.
<sup>o</sup> Thomas in Gen. 13. Idem Panigarol. & Coster. in loc.

<sup>p</sup> Origen.
<sup>q</sup> Euseb.
Emiff.
<sup>r</sup> Hieron.
<sup>s</sup> Euthym.
<sup>t</sup> Aretius.
<sup>u</sup> Ardens.
<sup>x</sup> Gregor.
<sup>y</sup> Kilius.
<sup>z</sup> Melanct.
<sup>a</sup> Panigarol.
<sup>b</sup> Caluin.
Fuike.
Zepper.
<sup>c</sup> Tit. 1. 16.
<sup>d</sup> See Panigarol. part. 1.
hom in loc.
<sup>e</sup> Rom 5. 19.
<sup>f</sup> James 2. 10.
<sup>g</sup> Coster. in loc.

<sup>h</sup> Theophilus, Alexan. apud Panigarol. ubi supra.
<sup>i</sup> Euthym.
<sup>k</sup> 1 Tim. 2. 4.
<sup>l</sup> Hieron.
<sup>m</sup> Coster.

<sup>n</sup> Panigarol.
<sup>o</sup> Matth. 26. 6.
<sup>p</sup> Matth. 10. 3.

<sup>q</sup> Job 7. 11
<sup>r</sup> 2 Cor. 5. 7.

Zanchius.

learne two things especially : first, how to chuse his armes : and secondly, how to vse them. Our Apostle doth instruct him here concerning both. As for the choice, the <sup>t</sup> defensue weapons are the girdle of veritie, breast-plate of righteousness, shoes of preparation, shield of faith, helmet of salvation. Offensue, the sword of the spirit, which is the word of God. As for their vse, Paul aduisech vs also to put them on, and to put them all on, and so to put on the whole armour, as that we may stand in all good, and withstand all euill. All which is implied in the 7 I. ver. containing a proclamation ad arma, put on all the armour of God. And a reason, that ye may stand, &c.

In the proclamation foure points are remarkable :

1. Euery Christian is charged with armour.
2. This armour must be Gods armour.
3. Panoplia, compleat armour, all the whole armour of God.
4. This compleat armour must not only be shewed abroad, or hung vp at home : but vsed and imployed daily, put on.

The reason hereof is manifest and manifold : first, that we may be able to stand in battell. Secondly, that we may so stand, as that we may withstand. Thirdly, that we may so withstand, as that we may foile our enemies assaulting as well as retiring. Fourthly, that we may repell not only some few, but all assaults. Fifthly, all assaults not only of the flesh and the world, but of the deuill also, which is the Prince of darknesse, and generall Commanders of all forces against vs in these spirituall skirmishes, <sup>a</sup> Olofernes being slaine, his souldiers instantly fled. <sup>x</sup> If we conquer the rulers and gouernours of the darknesse of this world, we shall easily discomfit their followers and instruments. If we cast the <sup>r</sup> rider, his horse will instantly be taken and tamed. Euery Christian ought to put on the resolution of Captaine <sup>z</sup> Ferras, alway bearing armes against the greatest Emperour of the world, wrestling not against bloud and flesh only, but against principalities, against powers, against spirituall craftinesse in heauenly things.

For the first point : armour is necessary, whether we consider our owne weaknesse, or our enemies strength. Our weaknesse, as being vnapt and vnable by nature to <sup>a</sup> thinke so much as a good thought, and therefore we must be strong through the Lord, <sup>b</sup> who giueth his souldiers power and might; <sup>c</sup> teaching our hands to warre, and our fingers to fight. It is reported of <sup>d</sup> Traian, that he would cut in peeces his owne garments; rather then his souldiers should want a ragge to binde vp their wounds : but our Captaine Christ hath giuen vnto such as march vnder his banner his owne flesh, and his owne selfe, willing vs not onely to put on his armour, but also to <sup>e</sup> put on himselfe, that we may be strong through the power of his might, who can doe whatsoeuer he will, and will doe whatsoeuer is best for all his followers. Againe, we need armes in respect of our enemies, as being many, mightie, cunning in plotting, cruell in executing.

1. Many, <sup>f</sup> for these gouernours and Princes haue many souldiers and subiects vnder them, <sup>g</sup> improbos spiritus, & homines pessimos, an <sup>h</sup> infinite number, against a little flocke and an handfull of people.

2. Mightie, for we wrestle not against flesh and bloud, <sup>i</sup> that is, not simply with flesh and bloud; or <sup>k</sup> only, for then <sup>l</sup> one sword should be so long as another, and one man so strong as another : but we fight men against deuils, euen weaklings against powers and principalities, as it were silly Lambes against roaring Lions.

3. Cunning in plotting, as being spirituall and inuisible, fighting so craftily, <sup>m</sup> that we know not on which side they will assault. Satan in the beginning was a <sup>n</sup> Serpent for his subtiltie, but now being indued with almost six thousand yeeres experience, is become a Dragon and an old Serpent, Apocal. 20.2. Cui nomina mille, mille nocendi artes, quoth <sup>o</sup> Hierome. Such a P circumuening enemy, that being a Prince of darknesse, he can <sup>q</sup> transforme himselfe into an Angell of light. Auarice is a worke of darknesse, pccu'shnesse a worke of darknesse, inordinate drinking a worke of darknesse. But he doth couer and cloake these with armour of light, insinuating that couetousnesse is commendable thrift, obstinacie noble

* For so long as a man standeth in battell he is well; if he fall downe, then in icopardie.

<sup>B.</sup> Laiymer vpon this epist.
<sup>a</sup> Iudith 15. 1.
<sup>x</sup> Lombard, in loc.

<sup>7.</sup> Anselm.
<sup>z</sup> Pareneticall Treatise to the Princes of Europe, pag. 26.

<sup>a</sup> 2 Cor. 3. 5.
<sup>b</sup> Lombard.
<sup>c</sup> Psal 144. 1.
<sup>d</sup> Xiphilin, in vita Traiani.

<sup>e</sup> Rom. 13. 14.

<sup>f</sup> Rilius.
<sup>g</sup> Aretina.
<sup>h</sup> Eccles. 1. 15.

<sup>i</sup> Zanchius.
<sup>k</sup> Lombard.
<sup>l</sup> Aquin.
<sup>m</sup> Marlorat.

<sup>n</sup> Anselm.
<sup>o</sup> Gen. 3. 1.

<sup>q</sup> Ad Heliodor. de vita Eremitica.

<sup>p</sup> 2 Cor. 2. 11.
<sup>q</sup> 2 Cor. 11. 14.

noble resolution, and drunkennesse a point of good fellowship. Grosse wickednesse is easily seene, and prevented soone: but our chiefe aduertaries abound with spirituall wickednesse and invisible craftinesse, and their ordinarie souldiers are in their generation <sup>r</sup> wiser then the children of light.

4. Cruell in executing and prosecuting; Sathan is an <sup>r</sup> accuser of his brethren, and a <sup>r</sup> murderer from the beginning, called in holy Scripture a Lion for his might, and a roaring Lion for his malice, seeking daily whom he may deuoure, 1 Peter 5.8. Now these descriptions are set downe not that we should faint, <sup>u</sup> ut rather encouraging vs to fight. For seeing our enemies are <sup>x</sup> superbia tumidi, insipientia leuidi, fallacia calidi, à insilitia penitus alieni, so many, so mightie, so malicious, so craftie, so willing and able to hurt vs, it beleeueth euery man to be well appointed and armed, that he may be able to resist in the euill day.

The second point obserued in the Proclamation, is, that our armour must be Gods armour, not armour of the flesh, for Y cursed is the man that maketh flesh his arme. Not armour of the world, for our enemies are worldly gouernours, and the chiefe of them is <sup>z</sup> the Prince of the world. <sup>a</sup> Some put their trust in Chariots, and other in horses, but we will remember the name of the Lord our God. Not armour of the deuill, for then we shall haue nothing but his leauings. His armour is Popish exorcisme, superstitious crossing, holy water, and the like: which he little feareth, as being framed in his owne shop, and giuen vs at his appointment. The weapons of our warfare are not <sup>b</sup> carnall, but mightie through God to cast downe holds. Against spirituall harmes we must vse <sup>c</sup> spirituall armes; against the works of darkness we must <sup>d</sup> put on armour of light, <sup>e</sup> that is, vertues against vices, as being vestimenta put on, munimenta armour, ornamenta of light. Let vs then if the deuill at any time tempt to cruelty, pride, impatience; put on <sup>f</sup> tender mercy, kindnesse, humblenesse of minde, meeknesse, long-suffering, &c. as it is in the present Epistle, we must arme our selues with the breast-plate of righteousnesse against iniquitie, with the girdle of truth against heresie, with the helmet of saluation against despaire, with the shield of faith against infidelitie. The deuill is mystically that huge Leuiathan, esteeming you as straw, and brasse as rotten wood; when the sword doth touch him he will not rise up, and he laugheth at the shaking of the speare, in the earth there is none like him, he feares not our fleshly weapons, or worldly weapons, and therefore that we may stand against his force, we must put on the armour of God, and dwell vnder the <sup>h</sup> defence of the most high.

The third thing considered in the proclamation, is that we put on <sup>i</sup> all Gods armour, or the whole armour of God, as it is verse 13. If we should arme our head only, the deuill haply would strike at the foot: if the foot only, then he might hurt our head: if both, and leaue our breast vnarmed, he might wound vs at the heart. Wherefore that we may repell all assaults of the deuill, we must <sup>k</sup> tanquam milites cataphracti, put on all the armour of God. I cannot examine euery particular weapon in this Armorie, learne only three points of warre in the whole.

First, that Paul here makes no mention of a backe Curate for the Christian souldier. There is an helmet for the head, a corslet for the breast; in a word, a shield for all the fore-parts, only no guard, no regard of the hinder. It is a compleat armour, and yet without any defence for the backe: signifying hereby that euery Christian ought to keepe his <sup>l</sup> station in Gods army, neuer forsaking the banner of Christ, vntill death his <sup>m</sup> last enemy be destroyed. It is <sup>n</sup> written of Bias falling into the hands of his enemies, and his souldiers crying, what shall we doe? that he did answer, Report ye to the liuing that I die fighting, and I will report to the dead that ye did escape flying. When <sup>o</sup> William the Conquerour had landed at Pensley neere to Hastings in Sussex, he caused all his ships to be sunke, that all hope of flying backe might be taken away. The Numantine would rather die then flie; so the Christian warrior must continue <sup>p</sup> faithfull vnto the end, like <sup>q</sup> Samson killing enemies at his death, as well as in his life.

<sup>r</sup> Mars dubius, victorq; cadit, victusq; resurgit.
Qui fugit, huic merito nulla corona datur.

<sup>r</sup> Luke 16.8.

<sup>r</sup> Apoc 12.10.

<sup>r</sup> Iohn 8.44

<sup>r</sup> Caluin, Bullinger, Kilius.

<sup>r</sup> Augustin. de Ciuit. d. c. 22.

<sup>r</sup> Ierem. 17.5.

<sup>z</sup> Iohn 12.31.

<sup>a</sup> Psal. 20.

<sup>b</sup> 2 Cor. 10.4.

<sup>c</sup> Primasius.

<sup>d</sup> Rom. 13.12.

<sup>e</sup> Aquin.

<sup>f</sup> Coloss 3.12.

<sup>g</sup> Iob 41:

<sup>h</sup> Psal 19.1.

<sup>i</sup> Saverius.

<sup>i</sup> Loymer.

<sup>i</sup> Marturat.

<sup>k</sup> Arcius.

Zirchius.

<sup>m</sup> 1 Cor. 15.26

<sup>n</sup> Gueuaria.

<sup>o</sup> Restitution of decayed intelligence, pag 176

<sup>p</sup> Apocal 2.1c

<sup>q</sup> Iudges 16.30

<sup>r</sup> Resner in symbols.

The second remarkable point of warre is, that we must aboue all other weapons of defence take the shield of faith. And the reason hereof is plaine, because the helmet couers only the head, the corselet the breast, and the sandall the foot: but a shield couers all the body. Let vs then aboue all, or as other read in all, vse faith. In <sup>u</sup> all tentations and combats, <sup>z</sup> or in putting on all the weapons aforesaid, haue a liuely faith and assured confidence, without which all the rest haue no force. The sword of the Spirit without faith, is no Scripture to thee, the girdle of veritie without faith, is no truth vnto thee, all thy righteousnesse without faith, is vnrighteousnesse. Seeing then it is impossible without faith either to please God, or resist the deuill, in all, and aboue all vse the shield of faith, where-with ye may <sup>y</sup> not only reiect or auoid, but also quench all the tentations of the wicked, albeit they be <sup>z</sup> darts in respect of their sharpnesse, and fiery for their destroying, one sinne <sup>a</sup> kindling another, as drunkennesse kindleth adulterie, and adulterie murther. All the world, saith Saint <sup>b</sup> Iohn, lieth in wickednesse, positus in maligno, <sup>c</sup> that is, in malo igne, set on fire by the deuill, here called the wicked, <sup>d</sup> as being author of all euill, and master of all the fierie workes in the world, Matth. 6. 13. and 13. 38. But be of good cheere, faith ouercommeth the world, 1 Iohn 5. 4. One shield of faith is able to beare, yea to beat off all the fierie darts of the wicked world, flesh, and deuill.

The third point of warre is, that the Christian souldier is armed with a sword so well as with a buckler: and this sword is the word of God, being <sup>e</sup> powerfull in operation and sharper then any two edged sword. <sup>f</sup> Sharpe in a literall, and sharpe in a mysticall exposition: or sharpe in discoursing of things temporall, and sharpe in teaching things eternal: or <sup>h</sup> acute in mouing vs to vertue, and acute in remouing vs from vice. Doth the flesh intice thee to wantonnesse? strike with the sword of the Spirit, Thou shalt not commit adulterie. Doth the world tempt thee to vanitie? strike with the sword of the Spirit, <sup>i</sup> loue not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man loue the world, the loue of the Father is not in him. Doth Satan assault thy faith, and tempt thee to superstition and idolatrie? strike with the sword of the Spirit, <sup>k</sup> Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serue. Doth Death in the last houre of thy spirituall combat affright thee? strike with the sword of the Spirit, <sup>l</sup> Death is swallowed vp in victorie, the sting of death is sinne, and the strength of sinne is the Law: but thanks be vnto God which hath giuen vs victorie through our Lord Iesus Christ. <sup>m</sup> By the buckler of faith a Christian souldier is able to defend himselfe, by the sword of the Spirit able to confound his enimie. So that our aduersarie going about daily seeking whom he may deuoure, reioyceth exceedingly when either <sup>n</sup> Papists hinder the reading, or Atheists hurt the preaching of the word. As the <sup>o</sup> Philistians would not suffer a Smith in Israel, lest the Hebrewes should make them swords or speares: <sup>p</sup> so the deuill cannot endure that wee should heare Sermons, and read holy Scripture, lest out of this shop we get armour to repell his assaults in the euill day.

The last obseruable thing in the proclamation is, that a Christian ought not only to know Gods armour, but also <sup>q</sup> put it on. For as it is not enough for the seruice of our Common-weale, that we keepe good weapons at home, or that we shew them at musters abroad, except we haue skill and will (as occasions of the State require) personally to serue with them: euen so, to haue the sword of the Spirit rust at home, or sometime to flourish a little with it abroad, is not sufficient for the souldier of Christ, except he can and will vse Gods armour, and stand in battell against all assaults of the deuill. As in Physicke the best prescript can doe no good except it be taken: so the most compleat armour is no defence when as it is not worne. We must in aduersitie put on patience, in prosperitie put on humblenesse of minde, at all times <sup>r</sup> aboue all these put on loue, giuing euery man his owne. If we will ouercome the princes of darknesse, we must put on the armour of light.

But obserue here that we must vse the weapons of God in the warres of God, against <sup>f</sup> Zanchius.

<sup>g</sup> Vulgar Latin.
<sup>h</sup> Anselm.
<sup>i</sup> Royard. hom.
<sup>j</sup> in loc.

<sup>k</sup> Caietan.

<sup>l</sup> Calvin.

<sup>m</sup> Lombard.
 Zanchius.

<sup>n</sup> 1 Epist. 3. 19.

<sup>o</sup> Royard. ubi
 supra.

<sup>p</sup> Sarcinius.

<sup>q</sup> Heb. 4. 12.

<sup>r</sup> Vines in August. lib. 14. de Ciuit. cap. 12.

<sup>s</sup> Anselm in Heb. 4.

<sup>t</sup> Aquin. lect.

<sup>u</sup> 2. Heb. 4.

<sup>v</sup> 1 Iohn 2. 15.

<sup>w</sup> Matth. 4. 10.

<sup>x</sup> 1 Cor. 15. 54.

<sup>y</sup> Calvin.

<sup>z</sup> B. Latymer serm. vpon this Epistle.

<sup>aa</sup> 1 Sam. 13. 19

<sup>ab</sup> Sanchez in euangel. dom. 1.

<sup>ac</sup> quardra. Con. 5.

<sup>ad</sup> Zanchius.

<sup>ae</sup> Coloss. 3. 4.

against enemies of God onely, that we may stand against all assaults, and quench all the fierie darts of the deuill. Many men hit the souldiers of Christ, and hurt the friends of God with armour of God. As Heretikes fraudulently cite Scriptures against Scriptures, and Fathers against Fathers, and so make God as it were fight against himselfe. <sup>c</sup> Silla said, ante frangendus hostis quam ulciscendus civis, our force must not be spent in priuate grudges against our brethren, but in the publike quarrell of the Gospell against the common enemy. The Scorpions in <sup>c</sup> Caria when they sting, kill home-bred people, but hurt not any stranger. On the contrary, there be certaine little Snakes in Babylon which onely bite forreiners, and not inhabitants. It is a fooles fray to strike him that is neerest; <sup>u</sup> vndiscrēt Schismaticks vsing lies and libels, the weapons of the deuill in good causes, offend the Church as much as open Heretikes, imploying Gods armour in bad causes

In this our spirituall warfare we haue many great encouragements to fight valiantly: first, our weapons are good, a compleat armour: secondly, our Captaine is good, euen the Lord of hosts, hauing all power and might: thirdly, our cause good. Now <sup>x</sup> Causa inbet melior superos sperare secundos.

<sup>y</sup> Frangit & attollit vires in milite causa.

Againe, the continuance of fight is little, but our reward great. In Rome the militarie age was from <sup>z</sup> seuteene to fortie and six, or in dangerous times vnrill fiftie. <sup>a</sup> The dayes of our age are threescore yeeres and ten, and in all this time there is no time for peace; we are legionum filij, borne in the field, and sworne souldiers in our swadling clouts, alway bearing armes against the common enemy from our holy baptisme to buriall. All which is called in the 13. verse, the euill day: in regard of the sharpnesse <sup>b</sup> euill, in regard of the shortnesse <sup>c</sup> a day. Now the souldiers resolution is, aut fors, aut mors, either victorie, the beginning of ioy, or else death, the end of miserie. So the Christian in this holy warre may comfort himselfe:

<sup>d</sup> Aut cito mors veniet, aut victoria lata.

Either God will end our danger, or our dayes: and then we shall be no longer souldiers in armour, but gowne-men in <sup>e</sup> long white robes, hauing palmes in our hands, and <sup>f</sup> Crownes on our heads as conquerors, according to that of <sup>g</sup> Paul; I haue sought a good fight, and haue finished my course, from henceforth is laid up for me the crowne of righteousnesse, which the Lord the righteous Iudge shall giue me at that day, and not to me only, but vnto all them also that loue his appearing.

The Gospell. I O H N 4. 46.

There was a certaine Ruler, whose sonne was sicke at Capernaum, &c.

THis Gospell <sup>h</sup> teacheth vs, whither we should flee for succour in all the troubles of this life: namely, to the fountaine of all welfare Iesus Christ. According to that of <sup>i</sup> Esay; Yee shall draw water out of the wells of the Saviour. To this Well a Christian ought to come, not with feet, but with faith, and then <sup>k</sup> euery one that calleth vpon the name of the Lord shall be saued.

In the whole storie you may behold foure principle persons:
 { 1. A louing father.
 { 2. A sicke sonne.
 { 3. A pitifull Saviour.
 { 4. Dutifull seruants.

In the father obserue two things: his { Great fortune, being Regulus, a little King, a Ruler.
 { Great faith, hauing three <sup>l</sup> degrees, a { Beginning, in desiring Christ to come downe and heale his sonne.
 { Increase, in beleeuing the word that Iesus had spoken.
 { Full growth, in that himselfe simply beleued and all his household.

As

<sup>c</sup> Velleius hist. lib. 1.

<sup>c</sup> Apollonius in hist. mirabilibus.

<sup>o</sup> Mr Greenham in a Sermon at S. Maries in Cambridge vpon the coming out of Maria Marpelate.

<sup>x</sup> Lusan.

<sup>y</sup> Propercius.

<sup>z</sup> Aulus Gellius lib. 10 cap. 28.

<sup>a</sup> Plal 90. 10.

<sup>b</sup> Aquin. Anselmus.

<sup>c</sup> Zanchius.

<sup>c</sup> Oecuman.

<sup>d</sup> Herat.

<sup>e</sup> Apocal. 7. 9.

<sup>f</sup> Apocal. 4. 4.

<sup>g</sup> 2 Tim. 4. 7.

<sup>h</sup> Heming.

<sup>i</sup> Chap. 12. 3.

<sup>k</sup> Ioel 2. 32.

<sup>l</sup> Beda.

Ludolphus.

Panigarol.

<sup>m</sup> Joan. Thom.
in loc.

<sup>n</sup> In Esaiæ cap.

65. circa prin.

<sup>o</sup> De vita Christi

lib. part. 1. ca. 63

<sup>p</sup> See Musculus

& Macdonat. in

loc.

<sup>q</sup> Theophylact.

Euthym.

Erasmus.

<sup>r</sup> Origen apud

Thom. in loc.

<sup>s</sup> Arctur.

Autorat.

Zepherus.

<sup>t</sup> De Const.

ii. 4.

<sup>u</sup> Lib. 5. de ass.

<sup>v</sup> In mirabilibus

narrat.

<sup>y</sup> Magdebur.

epi's præfix.

Cent. 7.

<sup>z</sup> Seneca Per mille indigni-

tates in confam-

mation. in dig- nitatis.

<sup>2</sup> Uppolitus à

Collinus, in Au-

lico politico.

<sup>3</sup> Sar. lib. in

polit. ar.

<sup>c</sup> Iob. 1. 14.

<sup>e</sup> Beza in epi- taph Secret.

Reg. Gall.

<sup>f</sup> Cyffost hom.

34. in Ioan.

idem Hugo

Card. & alij.

<sup>g</sup> Musculus.

Fontan.

<sup>h</sup> P. n. arct.

<sup>i</sup> Prentiss apud

Minorat. in loc.

<sup>k</sup> See Panigar.

part. 1. bon. in

loc.

<sup>l</sup> August. in ast.

36. in Ioan. Iacm.

L. onius apud

Macdonat. in loc.

<sup>m</sup> Cyrollus.

<sup>n</sup> See Zepher.

Com. 1. & Ferus

Com. 2. in loc.

As for the greatnesse of his honour: <sup>m</sup> Origen thinks he was of Cæsars familie. <sup>n</sup> Hierome, that he was a Palatine, haply controller of Herods house. <sup>o</sup> Ludolphus and Lyræ, that he was Deputie Lieutenant of Galile, for Galile belonged vnto the iurisdiction of Herod, Luk. 23. 7. <sup>p</sup> Other, that he was a ruler in Caper-naum, where his sonne was sicke. What he was it is vncertaine now, for one generation passeth, and another generation succeedeth, Ecclesiastes 1. 4. and the fashion of this world goeth away, 1 Cor 7 31. But it is certaine that he whilome was <sup>q</sup> either noble by descent, or degree; fauoured in the Court, honoured in the Countrie, a man of worth and qualitie. Which our Euangelist insinuates in his stile, calling him a ruler, as also <sup>r</sup> for that he was attended well, his seruants met him, verse 51. <sup>s</sup> Where note by the way, that it is not impossible for a great man to be a good man, or for Cæsars fauourite to be Christis follower. Almighty God hath elect children among all sorts of people, Magdalen among harlots, Zachæus among oppressors, Matthew among Publicans, and here this ruler in Herods Court. Indeed <sup>t</sup> Bernard was wont to complaine that the Court is wont to receiue such as are good, but to make them bad. Bonus facilius recipere quàm facere, nam plures in aula defecisse bonos quàm profecisse malos probauimus. And <sup>u</sup> Budans saith all Courtiers must be like Camelions, accommodating themselues vnto all companies, ut assentioni & assentioni scitè afferuiatur, resembling an herbe called Tripolium, which (as <sup>x</sup> Antigonus reports) euery day changeth colour thrice, being sometime white, sometime violet, sometime carnation. Apparent parasites, Y vno ore calidum & frigidum pro suis commodis efflare periti: creeping vp to honour through a <sup>z</sup> thousand dishonours.

<sup>a</sup> In aula Regis non est multum legis,

Si qui sunt boni coguntur esse onoi,

Si qui sunt mali sunt in gratia regali.

And <sup>b</sup> another to the same purpose: Quo quis corruptior moribus, & corrupentior numeribus, eo beator. The Court is all for money, making <sup>c</sup> oxen to labour, and asses to feed. A mint of fashions, an exchange of complements, a shame to shamefastnesse, <sup>e</sup> omni sceleris mater nutrix, q. nefandi. Yet notwithstanding Ioseph was a good man in the Court of Pharao, Daniel a good man in the Court of Darius, Mordecai a good man in the Court of Ahasuerus, and this Ruler a good man in the Court of Herod.

The faith of this Ruler in the beginning was very weake: first, in <sup>f</sup> that he did not seeke vnto Christ vntill he was almost at his owne doore, as the context euidently, Iesus came againe into Cana a towne of Galile, where he had made of water wine, and there was a certaine Ruler, &c. Secondly, <sup>g</sup> for that he did not entreat Christ to cure the sinne so well as the sicknesse of his sonne. Thirdly, for that he came not to Christ in the <sup>h</sup> beginning of his sonnes infirmitie, but as we may gather, at such a time when all other Physicians had forsaken him, euen at the point of death. Fourthly, all Interpreters obserue, that he was <sup>i</sup> rudissima facti & infantis, in beseeching Christ to come downe and heale his sonne, as if Christ being God could not as well haue holpen him absent as present. Againe, when hee beleued Christis saying, Goe thy way, thy sonne liueth: his faith as yet was <sup>k</sup> infirme and full of wauering. <sup>l</sup> Otherwise he could neuer haue made such a doubt, and asked such a question of his attendants, at what houre beg. n he to amend? But when he knew certainly that his sonne was healed miraculously by Christ, and not by casuall or any naturall meanes, himselfe and his whole family beleued absolutely. When he first heard of Christ, his faith was a very sparke; when he beleued Christ, it did kindle; but when he beleued in Christ, it was a great flame, giuing light to his household. So that our blessed Sauiour in vtering one word, healed <sup>m</sup> two, namely the fathers soule and the sonnes body. Thus I haue shewed vnto you the faith of this old father, and the fruits thereof: first, in being so carefull for his childe. Secondly, <sup>n</sup> for that in his affliction he went not for helpe to witches, as Saul, 1 Sam. 28. nor to deuils, as Ahazias, 2 King. 1. 2. nor only to Physicians, as King Asa, 2 Chron. 16. 12. but to Christ, and that in his owne person, although although a Ruler, and a man of eminent qualitie. Thirdly, in that he was such an earnest suter againe and againe, desiring Christ to visit his sicke sonne. Fourthly, in that he cast off his doubting and infidelitie. Lastly, yet chiefly, for that all his house was instructed in the faith of Christ, and feare of God. So ° Iosua, so P Lydia, so Crispus the chiefe Ruler of the Synagogue, Acts 18.8. and so must every master of a familie bring vp his household in instruction and information of the Lord. Euery man is a King and a Prophet in his owne private house, so that he can want no meanes, except he want a minde, to performe this holy businesse.

° Iosua 24. 15.
 P Acts 16. 15.
 9 Melanct.
 Musculus.
 Bullinger.

In the sicke sonne you may note }
 1. His sicknesse, expressed in the text, sicke of a feuer
 2. The causes of his sicknesse, sursetting and riot, implied (as may be inspected) that he was the sonne of a Ruler, and in Capernaum, a dissolute Citie.

° Pontan. in loc.
 Ludolphus de uita Christi, part. 1. cap. 63.
 Prou 31. 30.
 Eccles. 1. 10.

Fauour is deceitfull, and youth is vanitie, riches auaille not in the day of wrath; Prou. 11. 4. nay the scepter cannot keepe vs from the sepulchre. Young men as well as old men, and Gentlemen as well as poore men, are sicke, and weake, and die. The children of Rulers ordinarily be most vnruely, giuen ouer to chambering and wantonnesse, and so by consequent they be more subiect to sicknesse than other, in being more subiect to sinne than other. A drowfinesse of spirit is their quartan, incontinence their tertian, pride and gluttonie their quotidian ague. How sinne resembleth a feuer in condition, kinde, and cure; see Ludolphus ubi sup. in margin. Iacob. de Voragin. serm. 2. Ferus serm. 4. in loc. Bonauentura diet. salut. cap. 1. Pontan. Bibliothec. Con. Tom. 4. fol. 313.

° Zepher. Con. 1. in loc.

In Christ, the third, yet the most obseruable person in all this historie, two things are to be considered especially :
 1. His rebuking
 2. His relecting } the Ruler.

The Ruler was at the first, in sine tepidus, aut frigidus, as Augustine notes, and therefore Christ chides him, except yee see signes and wonders, yee will not beleue. Verba arrogantis audimus, cor dissidentis non videmus: sed ille pronuncianit, qui & verba audiuit, & cor inspexit. This reprehension is not Iudge-like, but father like, concerning the whole Nation of the Iewes in generall, as much as this Ruler in particular, In token whereof (as Interpreters obserue) Christ vseth not the singular, except thou; but the plurall number, except yee. As if he should haue said, I must in regard of your incredulitie shew signes and wonders, otherwise yee will not beleue. I will heale thy sonne therefore, not so much vpon thy petition, as for the confirmation of others faith. I will not goe downe to thine house, yet I will worke such a wonder in thine house, that not onely thy selfe, but all thine shall beleue. Goe thy way, thy sonne liueth.

7 Tract. 16. in Ioan.

° Heming.
 a Marlorat.
 b Musculus.
 Aclius.
 c Maldonat. in loc.

The petition of the Ruler consists of two branches: one, that Iesus would condescend; another, that he would heale his sonne. Now Christ reiected the first as being vnfit, but he granted the second wherein he prayed well, helping his childe not by going downe, but by speaking one word, Thy sonne liueth.

d Ardens.

In the seruants here mentioned two vertues are commendable: first, loue to their master in obeying his commands, and reioycing at his good. Secondly, faith in Christ: The Ruler did beleue the word of Iesus, and they the report of the Ruler and so both hereby became happy. Let euery master in like sort teach his household, and euery seruant heare the good instruction of his master, so that there may be so many Churches as there be Families, and so many Chapels as there be chambers in euery house; that being armed with the compleat harnessse of God, we may quench all the fierie darts of the wicked, and withstand all his assaults in the euill day.

° Zepher.

f Arcius.

8 Heming.

Grant we beseech thee, mercifull Lord, to thy faithfull people, pardon and peace, that they may be cleansed from all their sinnes, and serue thee with a quiet minde, through Iesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

The

The Epistle. PHILIP. I. 3.

I thanke my God with all remembrance of you alwayes in all my prayers, &c.

<sup>h</sup> Zanchius.

<sup>i</sup> Lombard.
<sup>h</sup> Anselm.
<sup>h</sup> Aquin.
<sup>h</sup> Aretius.
<sup>h</sup> Zanchius.
<sup>h</sup> Primafius.

THis Epistle to the Philippians hath three parts : a

<sup>c</sup>Subscription, Paul and Timotheus. Paul, <sup>h</sup> as author inditing, Timotheus as approuer, or haply penner, writing this Epistle: both the seruants of Iesu Christ, and dearly beloued of the Philippians.

Inscription, to all the Saints in Christ Iesu which are at Philippi: that is, all such as are <sup>i</sup> baptized, and haue giuen vp their names vnto Christ in <sup>h</sup> professing the Gospell, all in Philippi, but vnbeleuing <sup>l</sup> Pagans.

Past, a good beginning: Because ye are come into the fellowship of the Gospell.

Present, an happy proceeding: From the first day vntill now.

Future, a blessed end: Surely certified that he which hath begun a good worke in you, will performe it, &c.

Matter
Praise to God, and in it obserue
Manner in respect of

Description of their persecution, together with an exhortation vnto the same, <sup>m</sup> which is the maine scope of all this excellent letter. Part whereof is our present Text, containing

Time, alway in all my prayers.
Extension of Persons, for you all.

Intension, hauing you in my remembrance, and praying for you with gladnesse, as louing you from the very heart root in Iesus Christ.

Prayer to God, that their love may increase more and more in knowledge and iudgement, being so filled with the fruit of righteousnesse, vnto the glory of God, as that they may be pure <sup>a</sup> before God in their <sup>o</sup> conscience, and without offence before men in their credit.

<sup>m</sup> Bzgs.

<sup>o</sup> Oecumen.
<sup>o</sup> Marlorat.
<sup>o</sup> Lombard.
<sup>o</sup> Anselm.
<sup>o</sup> Sarcer.
<sup>o</sup> Zanchius.
<sup>o</sup> Kilius.
<sup>o</sup> 2 Cor. 1. 14.
<sup>o</sup> Philip 4. 1.
<sup>o</sup> Exod. 28. 29.

The <sup>p</sup> summe of all is in brieft, that the Pastor ought to blesse God alway for the present graces of the Church, as also most heartily to pray for the further and future good of the same. And the people likewise must on their part bring forth in their life such excellent fruit of righteousnesse, as that they may be both <sup>a</sup> reioycing and <sup>a</sup> crowne to their Pastor. As the legall High Priest had the names of the children of Israel grauen in his <sup>h</sup> brest-plate: so the Preacher of the Gospell ought to haue his Cure stamped in his brest, alwayes in all his prayers hauing them in perfeet memorie. 2. Mary said, Calice was imprinted in her heart: so Paul here to the Philipp. I haue you in my heart. And to the Corinthians <sup>t</sup> elsewhere, Ye are our Epistle written in our hearts. See Epist. Dom. 12. & 18. post Trin.

Because

<sup>o</sup> 2 Cor. 3. 23

Because yee are come into the fellowship of the Gospell] The chiefe subiect of his thanks and gladnesse is<sup>a</sup> not the goodnesse of their soyle, nor yet the greatnesse of their Cite (though it were the<sup>x</sup> chiefe in the parts of Macedonia) but their fellowship of the Gospell<sup>y</sup> in word and deed, beleeuing the word preached, and relieuing their Pastor persecuted: being companions of Paul in bonds, as they were partners of Paul in grace: <sup>2</sup> Commoners in respect of the<sup>a</sup> common faith, and commoners of<sup>b</sup> communicating to his affliction. Hence we may learne, that although euery subiect ought in dutie to thanke God for crowning our Nation with a world of outward blessings, as honour, plentie, peace; yet above all, in all our deuotions alway to praise God for the fellowship of the Gospell. And therefore the 17. of Nouember, in which it was happily restored, and the 5. of Nouember, in which it was miraculously preserued, ought to be had in perpetuall remembrance.

From the first day vntill now] The first day of their conuersion is mentioned Acts 16. and this now was his<sup>c</sup> first imprisonment at Rome, recorded Acts 28. or as other, his second apprehension at Rome, by computation about<sup>d</sup> ten yeeres after the first. All which time the Philippians continued constant in the sincere profession of Christianitie, <sup>e</sup> neither reduced to their old Gentilisme, nor seduced by false teachers vnto new heresie. Vngratefull Schismaticke<sup>f</sup> affirme, that the Church of England is like the Church of Laodicea, neither hot nor cold; proud, but yet poore, blinde, naked, miserable: but it is our dutie to thanke God alwaies in all our prayers, for that our Church hath against a world of popish and peeuish oppositions, in the midst of a crooked generation, euen from the first of Queene Elizabeth, vnto the eleuenth of King Iames, vncessantly continued in the fellowship of the Gospell. And it becommeth vs to iudge that he which hath begun a good worke in this Kingdome, will performe it vntill the day of Iesus Christ.

He that hath begun a good worke in you will performe it] <sup>8</sup> Three things are requisite in an absolute agent, power, skill, and will. Power is attributed especially to God the Father, wisdom to God the Sonne, willingnesse and loue to God the Holy Ghost. He therefore that begins a good worke, can and will accomplish it vnto his glory. This sentence confutes abundantly the<sup>b</sup> Pelagians; holding that the beginning of euery good worke is only from Gods grace, but the consummation of the same from our owne vertue. Whereas the Apostle giueth<sup>i</sup> all to God, <sup>k</sup> the first, and second, and third grace. The first is, operans gratia, whereby God beginneth a good worke in vs, without vs, in giuing a<sup>l</sup> will to do well. The second is cooperans gratia, whereby God performeth it, giuing to our will abilitie, working in vs and for vs, according to that of<sup>m</sup> Paul; I laboured more abundantly then they all, yet not I, but the grace of God which is in me. So the most accurate<sup>n</sup> Doctor excellently, Qui fecit te sine te, non iustificabit te sine te? The third is, saluans gratia, whereby God crowneth our will and worke in the day of Iesus Christ, <sup>o</sup> not by the merits of righteousnesse which we haue done, but according to his mercy sauing vs. In the words of<sup>p</sup> Gregorie; Primo Deus agit in nobis sine nobis, vt postea nobiscum agat: & per immensam misericordiam remuneret in nobis illud, ac si solum processisset ex nobis. And so this saying of our Apostle maketh against the Papists also, that are<sup>q</sup> cater-cousins to the Pelagians in the question of free-will and humane merit. For seeing God is<sup>r</sup> all in all, and<sup>s</sup> worketh all in all, end, middle, beginning; it must assuredly proceed from grace, that any man works with grace. God in euery good work makes a beginning, 2 Cor. 3. 5. helpeth in the middle, 1 Cor. 15. 10. confirmeth vnto the end, 1 Cor. 1. 8. And there Radulphus Ardens, a<sup>t</sup> learned man in his age, <sup>u</sup> flourishing from the yeere 1040. to 1100. faith, (in an Homilie preached vpon the Epistle, Sunday 18. after Trinitie) seeing by one grace we come to another grace, they be called merits improperly, for all our owne works are losse, that Christ might be the true gaine and aduantage, Philip. 2. 8.

And this I pray that your loue may increase yet more and more] <sup>x</sup> Christ hath foretold, that the loue of many should be cold in the latter ages of the world, Paul therefore

<sup>a</sup> Brentius apud Maylorat. in loc.

<sup>x</sup> Act. 16. 12.

<sup>y</sup> Lombard

Aquin.

Anselm.

<sup>z</sup> Aretius.

<sup>a</sup> Epi Iude v. 3.

<sup>b</sup> Philip. 4. 14.

<sup>c</sup> Zanchius.

<sup>d</sup> Rhem. Argument. epist.

Philip.

<sup>e</sup> Caietan.

<sup>f</sup> Brightman.

Apocalyp. Apoca.

lyp. pag. 105.

106 &c.

<sup>8</sup> Royerd. in loc.

<sup>b</sup> Aquin.

Zanchius.

<sup>i</sup> Oecumen.

<sup>k</sup> Ardens.

<sup>l</sup> Philip. 2. 13.

<sup>m</sup> 1 Cor. 15. 10

<sup>n</sup> August. ser. 25

de vitijs Apost.

<sup>o</sup> Tit. 3. 5.

<sup>p</sup> Apud Ardens

in loc.

<sup>q</sup> De Fulke answer in Rhem.

preface §. 52.

<sup>r</sup> 1 Cor. 15. 28.

<sup>s</sup> 1 Cor. 12. 6.

<sup>t</sup> Perkins treat.

Christ the true

gaine.

<sup>u</sup> Vt habetur in eius vita prefix.

lom edit. Colon.

<sup>x</sup> Matth. 24. 12

7 Zanchius.

8 Primafius.

Lombard.

Anselm.

Caietan.

Marlorat.

9 Aretius.

10 1 Cor. 13. 7.

11 Theophylast.

Oecumen.

12 1 Thess 5. 21

13 Zanchius.

14 Anselm.

15 Psalm. 69. 9.

16 See dangerous positions of reform. lib. 2

c. 4. 9. 11. 12. 13

17 k Casaubon E-

pist. ad Front.

pag. 8. 1. 82. &

sequenti.

18 l Aretius.

Sarcerius.

Beza.

19 m In loc.

20 n Efav 61. 3.

21 o Psal. 1. 3.

22 p Theophylast.

Aretius.

23 q Matth. 6. 2.

24 r Luke 15. 10.

25 s Caietan enim

& Zanchius

referunt gloriam ad Angelos in celo. lau-dem ad homines

in terra.

26 c Lombard.

in loc.

therefore begs of God earnestly that the Church of Philippi might abound with the gift of charitie: not only that they might haue loue, y but that it might increase, yea that it might increase yet, and that more and more. The word αγαπη doth import that our loue must not be contained within the lists of our priuate persons, or particular acquaintance: but that it should ouerflow like a fountaine, to the benefit of the whole Church: and that not for a time, but untill the day of Christ: that is, untill either he call vs to him in <sup>2</sup> our particular deaths, or he come to vs in <sup>2</sup> his generall Iudgement. This our loue must haue two <sup>b</sup> companions especially, Knowledge and understanding. Seeing loue <sup>c</sup> beleueth all things, it is exceeding necessary, that our loue should abound in knowledge, <sup>d</sup> whereby we may discern betweene good and bad, betweene Heretike and Catholike, and in understanding, which is a spirituall experience gained by much exercise, <sup>e</sup> trying all things, and then accepting the most excellent. (ειρηνωσις) is <sup>f</sup> Theoricall, and consists in generall notions of the Bible, whereas (ωιδνωσις) is practi- call in Christian experiments, and particular actions. A true iudgement whereby men are able not onely to marke, and make difference betweene good and bad, s but also betweene good and better, and so in fine chuse the best. Our aduer- saries as well the popish, as the peeuish, abound (as they pretend) with a very great loue to God and his people. But because their zeale is not ioyned with all understanding and knowledge, the fruit thereof is not the fruit of righteousness, a pure life before God, and without offence, before men; but the bitter root of all schisme in our Church, and sedition in our Commion-weale. So that whereas <sup>b</sup> Dauid said, The zeale of thine house hath euen eaten me: we may contrariwise say, Their zeale hath euen eaten vp thine house. The <sup>i</sup> Puritane zeale calleth it in word, the <sup>k</sup> Romish zeale endeouours to make it indeed, a denne of theeues, a seat of Antichrist, a shamelesse Babylon, a mother of abomination and desola- tion.

Tantum religio potuit suadere malorum.

Filled with the fruit of righteousness.] If we construe this of Iustification, it is apparant that good workes are not the cause, but the <sup>l</sup> consequent of our righteoufnesse, as the fruit makes not the tree to be good, but onely shewes it to be good. If we take righteoufnesse here for sanctification, obserue with <sup>m</sup> Zanchie the foure causes of good workes:

1. Efficient, } Primarie, Christ: Which commeth by Iesus Christ, working in vs the will and the deed, Philip 2. 13.
2. Materiall, fruit. Internall in thought, externall in word and deed. For a good tree beares fruit on euery bough, and on euery branch.
3. Formall, righteousnesse. A conformitie to the diuine Law, Christs imputatiue righteoufnesse is perfect, our inherent righteoufnesse is imperfect.
4. Finall, } Benefit of our brethren, for trees beare fruit for the good of other. Glory and praise of God.

And <sup>p</sup> here we may learne the difference betweene the good workes of Chri- stians and other. A Gentile doth a good worke, but not in Christ: an hypocrite doth a good worke, not unto Gods glorie, but for <sup>q</sup> mens praise. Whereas the true Christian is filled with the fruit of righteousness, especially for this end, that <sup>r</sup> Angels in heauen may <sup>t</sup> glorifie God, and men on earth also praise God in his Saints. And as the iust man is a <sup>u</sup> glory and praise to God: so God one day will praise the iust, in saying, Come ye blessed, &c. and glorifie him also both in body and soule by Iesus Christ in the kingdome of glory.

The Gospell. MATTH. 18.21.

Peter said unto Iesus, Lord, how oft shall I forgine my brother if he sinne against me, &c.

This Gospell is a large Comment vpon the fifth petition of the Pater Noster, and it may be parted into

Peters question: How oft shall I forgine my brother if he sinne against me, till seuen times?

Christs answer:
 deliuered

{ First, simply by way of proposition: I sayd not unto thee vntill seuen times: but seuentie times seuen times.

{ Then amply by way of <sup>x</sup> exposition in the parable following, therefore is the kingdome of heauen likened, &c.

<sup>a</sup> Zepper. con. 2.
 in loc.

<sup>x</sup> Hieron.
 Ludolphus.
 Caietan.

<sup>v</sup> 1 Tim. 5.17.

<sup>z</sup> 1 Thess. 5.20.

<sup>a</sup> Heb. 13.17.

<sup>b</sup> Euthym.

<sup>c</sup> Caietan.

<sup>d</sup> Aretius.

Peter said unto Iesus] In this question of Peter obserue first his reuerence, then his diligence. Reuerence toward Christ his Teacher, in calling him Lord, or Master, or Sir. An <sup>v</sup> Elder that rules well and laboureth in the word is worthy of double honour: <sup>z</sup> despise not prophesying; but <sup>a</sup> obey such as haue the ouersight of you. Giue thy learned and discreet Pastor the Sir, and not the firra. Secondly, we may note Peters <sup>b</sup> diligence, questioning and arguing with his Master <sup>c</sup> about that he taught a little before, vers. 15. And it is a <sup>d</sup> commendable practise, for as reading maketh a full man, so conference a ready man. A duty much omitted in our time, because some men haue too bad a conceit of themselves and dare not, other too good an opinion of themselves and will not aske their Teachers any question. See Gosp. on Sexages. Sunday.

Iesus said unto him] In this answer two points are remarkable: what hee said, and to whom. I say not vntill seuen times, but seuentie times seuen times: that is, 390. times, and then (as <sup>c</sup> *Origen*s interpreter is of opinion) a man is not bound to forgine his brother any more. But most expositors affirme that Christ here names a certaine number for an vncertaine, a definite for an <sup>f</sup> infinite. An vsuall trope euen in our common speech, I haue heard it a thousand times. I would not doe this, or suffer that for an hundred pounds. Almighty God the father of mercy forgineth vs more then seuentie times seuen times, for <sup>g</sup> the iust man falleth seuen times a day; so that if we liue but seuentie daies, our sinne will stand in neede of pardon seuentie times seuen times. But if we continue long, and become the sonnes of many yeeres, assuredly we shall be the fathers of many sinnes, and need forgiuenesse seuentie thousand times seuen times. O Lord <sup>h</sup> who can tell how oft he offendeth? O cleanse thou me from my secret faults. Now we must be mercifull <sup>i</sup> as our Father in heauen is mercifull, extending our compassion toward our brother offending vs not onely seuen times, as Peter said, or seuentie times seuen times, as Christ in the bare letter of the text: but according to the true meaning of the same, <sup>k</sup> vicibus innumerabiliter innumerabilibus, <sup>l</sup> euen so many seuen times as he trespasseth against vs.

<sup>o</sup> Apud Erasmi
 annot. in loc.

<sup>f</sup> Euthym.

<sup>g</sup> Pontan.

<sup>h</sup> Iansen.

<sup>e</sup> Prou 24.16.

<sup>h</sup> Psal 19. 12.

<sup>i</sup> Luk 6.36.

<sup>k</sup> Maldonat.

in loc.

<sup>l</sup> Toties quoties August.

serm. 15. de verbu Dom.

<sup>m</sup> Petrus hic

gerit personam

<sup>n</sup> celestis. anselm in loc.

<sup>o</sup> Melanct. pos-

sib. & Com in

loc.

<sup>p</sup> Hieron lib. 2.

aduersus Iouin.

<sup>q</sup> Alphonsus de

Castro Tit. pan-

100 heres 3

<sup>r</sup> August. heres.

48. & Epiphan.

heres. 68.

The next point to be considered, is the party to whom our blessed Saviour spake this, and that is Peter, Iesus said unto him, I say unto thee, &c. <sup>m</sup> To Peter as to a publike Preacher, & to Peter as to a priuate person. In the words a little before, Christ spake of Ecclesiasticall censures, If thy brother heare thee not, tell it to the Church, verse 17. and in the 18. I say unto you, whatsoeuer ye binde on earth, shall be bound in heauen: and <sup>n</sup> so this text (as the coherence sheweth) ought to be construed of the Ministers absolution, as well as of other mens forgiuenesse. Here then all Pastors are taught, not to discomfort and despise the poore penitent soule: but rather to pronounce Gods pardon and absolution, as often as he truly repents, and vnfainedly beleueus his holy Gospell. It was an heresie defended by <sup>o</sup> Montanus, <sup>p</sup> Nouatus, and <sup>q</sup> Meletius, that such as after baptisme and solemne repentance, fell into relapse, and committed any grieuous crime, as

<sup>a</sup> Apud Melanct. Cor. in loc.
<sup>b</sup> Enarrat. in loc.

<sup>c</sup> Confess. Ang-glican. art. 16.

<sup>a</sup> Heb. 10. 3. D.
<sup>b</sup> Phil. 2. 3.

<sup>c</sup> Matth. 6. 14.

<sup>a</sup> Serm. 15. de verbis Domini.
<sup>b</sup> Melanct.
postil. in loc.

<sup>b</sup> 1 Pet. 2. 24.

<sup>c</sup> Serm. 22. de
verbis apost.
<sup>d</sup> Ludolphus de vita Christi,
part. 2. cap. 8.

<sup>c</sup> Rom. 13. 4.

<sup>c</sup> August. cont.
litteras Petilian.
lib. 3. cap. 4.

<sup>b</sup> Gen. 14.

<sup>b</sup> 1 King. 22.

<sup>c</sup> Acts 25. 11.

<sup>a</sup> adulterie, sacriledge, murder, and the like, ought not to be receiued againe into the bosome of the Church. But <sup>a</sup> Peter Bishop of Alexandria, and <sup>b</sup> Anselme Bishop of Canterburie, confute them out of this text, Thou shalt forgive thy brother seven times seven times. If thy brother will not heare thee, tell the Church: if he will not heare the Church, hold him as an Heathen or a Publican: but if he repent and heare thee, thou hast wonne thy brother vnto God, and thou <sup>c</sup> must againe receiue him into the Church.

As this may be construed of the Churches absolution, so most expound it of mutuall forgiuenesse in priuate betweene brother and brother. A lesson oft vrged by Christ as exceeding necessarie, whether we consider God, our neighbours, or our selues. In not forgiuing we wrong God, to whom <sup>a</sup> vengeance belongeth: our neighbours, in that our priuate <sup>x</sup> quarrels often hinder the publique peace of the Church: our selues, hereby neglecting other businesse of importance, yea the greatest of all, our owne soules eternall estate, for <sup>y</sup> except we forgiue other, God will not forgiue vs, as Christ sheweth in the conclusion of his ensuing parable.

Yea, but is it vnlawfull to defend our selues, against the violent hands and virulent tongues of such as iniurie vs in our goods and good name? No. When a brother offendeth in this kinde, Corripiamus verbis & si opus est verberibus, quoth <sup>a</sup> Augustine. As euery Christian must be tender of his conscience in regard of himselfe, so <sup>a</sup> ieaious of his credit in regard of other. We must therefore sue the slanderer euen for the Gospels glorie, lest good men be scandalized, and God himselfe blasphemed vpon any false report spread abroad of vs. Indeede the seditious Anabaptists and Iulian that scoffing Apostata say, that this and all other like places of Scripture difanull the Magistrates authoritie. For if we must all, alway forgiue, none may punish the faults of his brother. Here we must aptly distinguish betweene priuate reuenge, and publique iustice. A priuate person ought only to admonish his brother; a publique Magistrate, being Gods Lieutenant, to whom vengeance belongs, may punish him also. For <sup>b</sup> Gouernours are sent of God, for the punishment of euill doers, and for the praise of them that doe well. If then a Minister of estate forgiue the bad, he doth iniurie the good. It is a true saying of <sup>c</sup> Augustine: Sic vigilet tolerantia vt non dormiat disciplina. Christ in this present Chapter intimates <sup>d</sup> three sorts of correction. The first is of loue, If thy brother trespasse against thee, goe and tell him his fault betweene thee and him alone: if he heare thee not, take yet with thee one or two, &c. The second is of feare, If he will not vouchsafe to heare them and thee, tell it to the Church. The third is of shame, If he refuse to heare the Church also, let him be vnto thee as a heathen man and a publican. So likewise the temporall Magistrate <sup>e</sup> beareth a sword not in vaine, for he is the minister of God, to take vengeance on him that doth euill. And if he strike with the sword of Iustice, it is not ferrum inimici vulnerantis, sed medici secantis. According to the tenor of this doctrine, <sup>b</sup> Abraham deliuered his nephew Lot from the hand of his enemies. And so <sup>b</sup> Micaiah the Prophet defended himselfe against the wrongs of Zidkiah. And so <sup>c</sup> Paul appealed vnto Cesar: and Christ accurately confuted all the forged imputation of his aduerfaries, Iohn 8. 49. See Epist. 3. Sund. after Epiphan. August. de verbis Dom. serm. 15. postil. Melanct. & Zepper in loc.

1. Who is the Creditor.
2. Who is the debtor.
3. What is the debt.
4. The time when our Creditor calls for a reckoning.
5. What is to be done when our account is called vpon.

In the parable following note the Matter or narration, The kingdome of heauen is likened vnto a certaine man, &c. and in it these fiue circumstances:

Morall application, so likewise shall my heavenly father, &c.

The Creditor is God, as Christ expoundeth himselfe, verse 35. who leaueth vs every good and perfect gift, <sup>k</sup> as well naturall as supernaturall. He created vs according to his owne image, redeemed vs with his owne blood, and sanctified vs with his owne spirit: making vs <sup>l</sup> Lords of the world, <sup>m</sup> sonnes of the Church, <sup>n</sup> heires of heauen. The riches of his mercy toward vs are so precious for their nature, so great for their number, as that they farre exceed ten thousand talents. See Epist: 4 Sunday after Easter.

As for the second circumstance, <sup>o</sup> some thinke the deuill is this debtor. <sup>p</sup> Origen and Thomas vnderstand this of Clergie-men. <sup>q</sup> Other expound it of the Jewes onely. But Augustine, Ardens, and other ordinarily coutrue this of all men, as being seruants and debtors vnto the heauenly King. <sup>r</sup> Seruants, not as other creatures in respect of their creation onely, but in respect of our redemption also. Debtors, <sup>s</sup> for in many things we sinne all. And sinnes are debts; as Christ teacheth in his praier, forgiue vs our debts. And our manifold sinnes arise to the summe of ten thousand talents, euen <sup>t</sup> three tunne of gold, an <sup>u</sup> infinite masse of money.

Our debt is great in magnitude and multitude. We sinne against God in <sup>x</sup> whose hand our breath is, <sup>y</sup> in whom we liue, and moue, and haue our being; against such a God as <sup>z</sup> ordereth all things in measure, number and weight, before whom all the world is as a drop of the morning dew, that falleth downe vpon the earth; against such a God at whose looke the <sup>a</sup> earth trembles, and the pillars of <sup>b</sup> heauen quake; against such a God as hath the <sup>c</sup> keyes of death and heli, <sup>d</sup> able to kill the body and to destroy the soule. And as our sinnes are infinite in respect of their infinite object: euen so infinite in respect of their infinite number, as being <sup>e</sup> more then the haire of our head. Almighty God created Adam according to his owne likeness, and bestowed many notable gifts vpon him belonging to his posteritie, the which being lost in his fall, God <sup>f</sup> exacteth them of vs in our account. This debt is old, which of our selues we can no way discharge, and beside this original debt, we runne in arrerages every day. The particulars of thy debt will amount quickly to the summe of ten thousand talents, if thou shalt examine thy seuerall transgressions of the feuerall Commandements in the Decalogue. Tell me, beloued, or for that it is impossible to tell, I pray thinke, how often hast thou blasphemed the name of God, how often prophaned his Sabbath, how often dishonoured thy father and mother, how often committed adulterie, how often abused thy neighbour in false witness, how often coueted his house, wife, seruant, &c. and thou shalt in conclusion finde that thou doest owe to God for the breach of every one of the Commandements, about ten thousand talents. Or if thou wilt a little consider onely but how much time thou spendest vnprofitably, <sup>g</sup> vel nihil agendo, vel aliud agendo, vel male agendo: thou wilt easily feele thy debt to be so great, as that thou canst not make satisfaction for it, although thou sell euen thy selfe, thy wife, thy children, and all that thou hast. <sup>h</sup> He that is vniust, let him be vniust still: and he that is filthy, let him be filthy still. O <sup>i</sup> young man, reioyce in thy youth and walke in the waies of thine heart, and in the sight of thine eyes: but know, that God for all these things will bring thee to iudgement. As it is in the Text here, the King taketh account of his seruants.

He takes account of <sup>k</sup> foure things especially: De bonis commissis, as he sheweth in the parable of the Steward, Luke 16. De bonis omisissis, as in the parable of the Talents, Matthew 25. De malis admissis, as in the parable of the two debtors, Luke 7. De malis seu peccatis dimissis, as in this present. This one mentioned in the text is every one, for Gods all-seeing eye beholds all our thoughts, and words, and deeds, as if all men in the world were but one. He sends forth his summons in this life by the preaching of the <sup>l</sup> law, by the clamour of the <sup>m</sup> conscience, by <sup>n</sup> crosses and losses, or other signes of Gods wrath in heauen and in earth, as it were citing vs to his vniuersall audit. <sup>o</sup> But in the particular death of every man, and in the generall iudgement of all men he finisheth his account.

<sup>k</sup> See Pontan.
in loc.

<sup>l</sup> Psal. 8.6.

<sup>m</sup> Prouer. 1.8.

<sup>n</sup> Heb. 1.14.

Matth. 25.34.

<sup>o</sup> Apud Hiero.
in loc.

<sup>p</sup> Apud P. gem
in loc.

<sup>q</sup> Rabanus apud Thom. & An-
selm. in loc.

<sup>r</sup> Granat. in loc.

<sup>s</sup> James 3.2.

<sup>t</sup> Melanct.

<sup>u</sup> Culmar.

<sup>x</sup> Dan. 5.23.

<sup>y</sup> Acts 17.23.

<sup>z</sup> Wildome 1.1.

17.19

<sup>a</sup> i sal 104.32.

<sup>b</sup> Job 26.11.

<sup>c</sup> Apocal. 1.18

<sup>d</sup> Luk. 12.5.

<sup>e</sup> Psal. 40.15.

<sup>f</sup> Heming.

<sup>g</sup> Severca.

<sup>h</sup> Apoca. 22.11

<sup>i</sup> Ecclesiastes

11.9.

<sup>k</sup> Ludely bus de
vita Christi,
part. 2. cap 9
Idem Pontan.
in loc.

<sup>l</sup> Zepher.

<sup>m</sup> Anselm.

<sup>n</sup> Heming.

<sup>o</sup> Granaten.

Vega.

<sup>p</sup> Heb. 9. 29.

<sup>q</sup> 2 Cor. 5. 10.

<sup>r</sup> James 2. 13.

<sup>f</sup> Matth. 5. 26.

<sup>c</sup> In loc.

<sup>u</sup> Calman.
Heming.

<sup>x</sup> Rom. 4. 25.

<sup>y</sup> Matth. 11. 28

<sup>z</sup> Galat. 5. 5.

<sup>a</sup> Ephes. 4. 32.

<sup>b</sup> Eullinger. apud Marlorat.

<sup>c</sup> Hieron.

Culman.

Iansen.

<sup>d</sup> Augustin. 15.
de verbis Domini.

<sup>e</sup> Heming.

<sup>f</sup> Matth. 16. 18

<sup>g</sup> Ephes. 4. 9.

<sup>h</sup> Matth. 12. 29.

<sup>i</sup> Col. 2. 8.

<sup>k</sup> Iohn Frith Epistle to the Reader before his answer to Rastals Dialog.

P For it is appointed unto men that they shall once die, and after that cometh the iudgement: in which euery man shall haue his doome, & according to that he hath done, whether it be good or euill. In that day there shall be iudgement & mercilesse to him that sheweth no mercy, the cruell and vngenerous seruant who tooke no compassion on his fellow, shall be deliuered to the Taylors, and kept in prison vntill he pay the utmost farthing For, as <sup>r</sup> Ardens acutely, Quorum vitamortua est in culpa, eorum mors viuet in pena: Their death is euery liuing in sorrow, whose life was euery dead in sinne.

What then is to be done that our debt may be forgiven? According to the tenor of this Scripture, <sup>u</sup> we must humbly fall downe before God our Creditor, ingeniously confessing our inability to make payment, and heartily craving releasement for the merits and satisfaction of his Sonne Christ Iesus, who <sup>x</sup> died for our finnes, and is risen againe for our iustification, and now sitteth at the right hand of God as our Mediator and Aduocate, promising in his <sup>y</sup> holy word to refresh all such as groane vnder the burthen of their debt. And because faith is working by <sup>z</sup> loue, we must in our conuersion bring forth the fruit of righteousness, <sup>a</sup> forgiving one another euen as God for Christs sake forgineth vs. Here the Gospell and Epistle meet: Paul saith, I pray that your loue may increase yet more and more, &c. And Christ saith in his application, (which is the very <sup>b</sup> key that openeth all the secrets of the whole Parable) So likewise shall my heauenly Father doe also vnto you, if ye from your heart forgieue not euery one his brother their trespasses. This one point is pressed here by sundry reasons: as first from Christs owne Commandement, I say forgieue thy brother off-nding thee seuentie times seuentimes: Secondly, from Gods example: Thirdly, from the proportion of our debt; our heauenly King forgieue vs ten thousand talents, and therefore let vs not strine with our fellow for an hundred pence: Fourthly, from the dangerous euent, because the pittilesse man is cast into prison of hell. As then we desire to doe the will of Christ, and to be followers of God as deare children, and to flie from the vengeance to come: let vs be courteous one to another, and tender hearted, forgieuing our brethren seuentie times seuen times: and that <sup>c</sup> not only from the teeth outward, but as Christ in the text expressly, from our hearts, in truth and in deed. <sup>d</sup> Si dicis dimitto, dimitte: melius est cum clamas ore, & dimittis in corde, quam blandus ore, crudelis in corde. Whosoever takes this course with his creditor shall be loosed of his bonds, and released of his debt: the which one word <sup>e</sup> release doth ouerthrow the Monkish doctrine of satisfaction, and quench also the fire of Purgatory: for releasement and payment, forgienesse and punishment are quite contrary. The debt is forgiven: ergo, not satisfied: the debtor is forgiven: ergo, not imprisoned in Purgatorie. Shall not the gates of <sup>f</sup> hell preuaile against vs? and shall the muddy walls of Purgatory hedge vs in? Hath our Saniours soule gone downe to the <sup>g</sup> nethermost hell, and yet made no passage thorow the suburbs of hell, as they reckon it? Hath he bound the <sup>h</sup> strong man that he should not hurt vs? and will he now torment vs himselfe, or set other we know not whom to doe it? <sup>i</sup> Beware lest any spoile you by vaine reason and Philosophie, whereas the Bible doth admit of no Purgatory, but Christ and the Crosse, <sup>k</sup> the word of faith, Acts 15. 9. Iohn 15. 2. and the rod of affliction, Hebr. 12. 6. See Gospell 5. Sunday after Epiphany.

The Epistle. PHILIP. 3.17.

Brethren, be followers together of me, and looke on them which walke, euen so as ye haue vs for an ensample, &c.

Follow him and other Apostles of the like cariage, because their conuersation is in heauen.

Saint Paul in this Text exhorts the Church of Philippi to Flee false teachers, and such as walke wickedly, because their Courses are damnable, being

End is damnation, and glorie their shame.

Erroneous in doctrine, enemies of the Crosse of Christ. Corrupt in manners, whose bellie is their god.

Be followers of me.] This argueth his confidence, not arrogance. For hauing instructed the Philippians euery way that is commendable, by word, by writing, by working: and knowing nothing by himselfe wherein he was wanting in his Apostleship: he speaks thus as their watchman, and not as his owne trumpeter, out of vnfaigned zeale sincerely to keepe them from error, not out of selfe-loue vainly to found his owne praise. Hence Pastors are taught to be paternes vnto their stocke in word, in conuersation in loue, in spirit, in faith, in purenesse; that it may be said of euery Prelate truly, which a Poet of a Pope flatteringlly.

Hic viuens lux urbis erat, defunctus eclipsis, Vrbs stetit Urbano stante, ruente ruit.

And looke on them] He ioyneth other with himselfe to decline enuy. There be many false Teachers among you, but I would not haue you to follow them. Other there be though a few, that walke as I doe. Marke them accurately, for we may not imitate euery one, but onely such as Paul; and Paul not in euery thing, but (as himselfe else-where doth expound himselfe) Be ye followers of me euen as I am of Christ. If these words, as I am of Christ, be brought hither vnto the clause, be followers of me, then all is well: otherwise Christians (as B. Latymer here notes) are not bound in conscience to be Saints apes. Imitate David in that wherein he was a man according to Gods owne heart, but abhorre his murder and adultery. Follow Judas Maccabeus in his hearty deuotion and hardy valour in the Lords warre, but imitate him not in bestowing moncy to make a sacrifice for the dead. Imitate Peter in his confessing, but not in his denying Christ. So Paul and his followers are to be followed, but with a quatenus, in that they were perfect, proceeding by one rule, and minding one thing, as the words afore: and for that their conuersation was in heauen, as the words after intimate.

Many walke] Not after the spirit, as I, but after the flesh, all for the belly, which Aretius obserues out of the two Greeke words (σπλαγχνισμῶν) in this, and (σολημῶν) in the verse going afore. Good Pastours and good people walke in their vocation orderly, but the wicked are dissolute in their courses, and march out of route. If many such walkers in Pauls age, there must of necessitie be more now. For Sathan bound in the Primatiue times, is in this latter end of the world loosed againe out of his prison, and his wrath is great, knowing that he hath but a short time. There is now such horrible rebellion, inhumane cruelty, monstrous heresie, barbarous drunkennesse, euen among such as professe the Gospell, that a man would thinke the whole world were turned deuill: and therefore seeing the wicked walkers are not a few, but many, the more heed ought to be taken of them. As Paul in this present chapter at the second verse, Beware of dogs, beware of euill workers, beware of the concision.

Of whom I haue told you often, and now tell you weeping] That he warned them

<sup>1</sup> Ardens in loc.
<sup>2</sup> B. Latymer.
serm in loc.
<sup>3</sup> Royard.
<sup>4</sup> 1 Cor 4.4.
<sup>5</sup> Saracrus.
Piscator.
<sup>6</sup> Kilius.
<sup>7</sup> 1 Pet. 5.3.
<sup>8</sup> 1 Tim 4.12

<sup>9</sup> Arctius.

<sup>10</sup> Lombard,
Zanchius.

<sup>11</sup> 1 Cor. 11.1.

<sup>12</sup> B. Latymer.

<sup>13</sup> Acts 13.22.

<sup>14</sup> 2 Mac. 12.45.

<sup>15</sup> Matth. 16.16

<sup>16</sup> Matth 26.72

<sup>17</sup> Aretius.

<sup>18</sup> Anselm.

<sup>19</sup> Carleton.

<sup>20</sup> Zanchius.

<sup>21</sup> Erasmus.

<sup>22</sup> P. Latymer.

<sup>23</sup> Apoc. 20.7.

<sup>24</sup> Apoc 12. 12.

<sup>25</sup> Aretius.

<sup>26</sup> Zanchius.

<sup>1</sup> Sarcenius.
<sup>2</sup> Caluin.
<sup>3</sup> Lombard.
 Anselm.
<sup>4</sup> 2 Epist. 12. 21
<sup>5</sup> Cap. 9. 1.

<sup>6</sup> August. Confess. lib 3 c. 12.
<sup>7</sup> 1 Cor. 1. 23.

<sup>8</sup> B. Latymer.

<sup>9</sup> Heb. 9. 28.

<sup>10</sup> Ardens.
 Marlorat.
 Zanchius.

<sup>11</sup> Gal. 6. 12.

<sup>12</sup> Lombard.
 Aquin.
 Anselme.
<sup>13</sup> Matt. 15. 14.
<sup>14</sup> Sarcenius.
 Arelus.
<sup>15</sup> Iohn 15. 14.

<sup>16</sup> Photius.
 Ardens.
 Lombard.

<sup>17</sup> B. Latymer.

<sup>18</sup> Lib. de Ieiunio aduersus Psychicos sub fin.

<sup>19</sup> Primasius.
 Anselm.
 Zanchius.
<sup>20</sup> Occumen.
<sup>21</sup> B. Latymer.
<sup>22</sup> Caluin.
 Pomeran.
<sup>23</sup> apud Marlorat.

often, argueth his <sup>1</sup> diligence; that he did it now weeping, his <sup>2</sup> zeale and piety. Weeping for that the <sup>3</sup> simple seduced were damnified, and the subtill seducing (if they did not repent) hereby damned. So Samuel mourned for Saul, 1 Sam. 15. 35. and so Paul bewailed his <sup>4</sup> Corinthians, and the Prophet Pleremy; Oh that mine head were full of water, and mine eies a fountaine of teares, that I might weepe day and night for the slaine of the daughter of my people. There be many learned and industrious Preachers in England which often admonish you of such as walke wickedly, but I feare we want weeping Pastors and weeping Prelates, earnest men in Gods cause. For if they weepe ouer their spirituall children, as Monica did ouer Augustine her naturall sonne; I may boldly tell them, as that reuerend <sup>5</sup> Bishop did her, Fieri non potest vs filius istarum lachrymarum percat.

Enemies of the Crosse of Christ] All such as derogate from the merit of Christs passion, are enemies to Christs Crosse. As the <sup>6</sup> Iewes vnto whom Christ crucified is a stumbling block, and the Gentiles vnto whom his Crosse seemed foolishnesse, and the <sup>7</sup> Papists as they be merit-mongers and masse-mongers: it is a great contempt of Christs Crosse to thinke that any can merit heauen for himselfe, but it is a greater scorne to sell his good workes for a little siluer, and so bring other to heauen by deeds of supererogation. Againe, the Papists are enemies to the Crosse of Christ in their Masse, making it a daily sacrifice for the quicke and the dead; whereas Christ was <sup>8</sup> once, not often, offered to take away the sinnes of the world. See Epist. 5. Sunday in Lent.

In a word, all such are enemies of Christs Crosse, <sup>9</sup> qui crucem Christi vel non credunt vel non portant, which either beleue not, or heare not his Crosse. As the false Apostles in Pauls age, who taught that a man is iustified by circumcision and workes of the Law, which is so derogatory to the sufferings of Christ, as that it is said expressly, Galat. 2. 21. If righteousnesse be by the law, then Christ died in vaine. And in maintaining this assertion, they did <sup>10</sup> seeke carnally to please, lest they should suffer persecution for the Crosse of Christ, as hath at large been shewed Epist. 15. Sunday after Trinitie.

Whose end is damnation] <sup>11</sup> That is, eternall destruction in hell: and therefore take heed how ye follow them in the labyrinth of errour, lest the blinde leading the blinde, <sup>12</sup> both fall into the ditch. Here <sup>13</sup> Diuines obserue Pauls antibests, betweene the good and the bad Apostles. The good are the <sup>14</sup> friends of Christ, but the bad, enemies of his Crosse. The good haue their conuersation in heauen, but the bad, minde earthly things. The good shall haue their vile body fashioned like to Christs glorious body, so that their shame shall be turned into glory: but the wicked on the contrary, shall haue their glory turned into shame. They flourish haply for a time, but their end is damnation.

Whose belly is their God.] <sup>15</sup> That is our God which we like best and loue most. And therefore the false Doctors in Pauls age, who to serue their owne turne ioynd together Circumcision and Christ in the businesse of our saluation: and such in our daies, as thrust themselves into the Clergie, that they may <sup>16</sup> buckle the Gospel and the world together, and set God and the demill at one table, preaching pleasant things in the Princes eare, that they may get riches and goe gay: what I pray doe they but make their belly their God? And, as <sup>17</sup> Tertulian addes, their lungs his temple, their paunch his altar, the Cooke the Priest, the fatty summe of their meat their holy Ghost, their sawces their spirituall gifts, their belching their prophecy: their loue boyleth in their kettle, their faith warmeth in their kitchen, their hope lieth in their meat; he that feasteth most, and of delicate fare is provided best, is holiest among them.

And glory their shame.] That is, they boast <sup>18</sup> in circumcisione membri pudendi. Or as <sup>19</sup> other, they glory in sinne, whereof they should be ashamed. <sup>20</sup> Or their short glory shall be turned into long shame, their earthly pompe to confusion eternall, at the last day.

Our conuersation is in heauen.] First, in respect of our <sup>21</sup> vnion with Christ, in whom heauen and earth are met: <sup>22</sup> in so much as Gods elect are called often in holy holy Scripture, the kingdom of heauen. For albeit they be <sup>m</sup> pilgrims on earth, and dwell in houses of <sup>n</sup> clay: yet they liue not according to the <sup>o</sup> fashions of the world, but after the Lawes of that Citie which is <sup>p</sup> aboue, praying alway that the kingdom of God may come, and that his will may be done. See Epit. Easter day.

Secondly, the conuerſation of godly men is in heauen, in reſpect of their aſſections, as minding <sup>r</sup> heauenly things, and not earthly things. <sup>r</sup> In the world, if a man make purchaſe of a Lordſhip, his heart is alway there; there he pulſ downe, and builds againe, there he makes himſelfe Orchards and Gardens; there he meanes to liue, there he meanes to die. Chriſt Ieſus hath bought the kingdom of heauen for vs (the moſt bleſſed purchaſe that euer was) and hath paid for it the deareſt price that euer was paid, euen his owne precious blond: and in this Citie he hath prepared a <sup>t</sup> manſion for vs, and made vs free Denizens of it: all our ioy therefore ſhould be there, <sup>o</sup> Corpore ambulantes in terra, ſed corde habitantes in celo. From whence we looke for the Lord Ieſus Chriſt, <sup>x</sup> vnto the wicked a Iudge, but vnto ſuch as loue his coming, a Sauionr, who ſhall change our vile body, &c. Where ſoure points are conſiderable.

1. Who? Ieſus Chriſt, as being the reſurrection and the life: Iohn 11. 2. and 5. 25.

2. What? our vile body, for as he reuenerſ our minde by grace, making it conformable to his minde: ſo likewiſe will he change our vile body, that it may be like his glorious body.

3. By what meanes? according to the working, whereby he is able to ſubdue all things vnto himſelfe.

4. After what manner? he ſhall change, not the ſubſtance nor the lineaments of our body: but the y quality, making this <sup>z</sup> corruptible to put on incorruption, and this mortall, immortalitie, changing our vile body that it may be ſaſhioned like vnto his glorious body.

<sup>a</sup> Noſco meum in Chriſto corpus conſurgere, quid me Deſperare iubet? veniam quibus ille reuenit Calcata de morte vix, quod credimus hoc eſt. Et totus veniam, nec enim minor, aut alius quam Nunc ſum, reſtituar: vultus, vigor & color idem Qui modo viuit, erit: nec me dente vel ungue Fraudatum reuomet patefacti ſoſſa ſepulchri.

The Goſpell. MATTH. 22. 15.

Then the Pharifſies went out, and tooke counſell how they might entangle him in his words, &c.

Chriſt in this Goſpell answereth a captious queſtion of his aduerſaries after ſuch a ſort, that he <sup>b</sup> caught the wiſe in their craftineſſe, and as the <sup>c</sup> Pſalmiſt, in the ſame net which they hid priuily, themſelues are taken.

Time when: So ſoone as Chriſt had deliuered his Parable concerning the marriage dinner of the Kings ſonne, then the Pharifſies went out.

End why: to tangle him in his words.

Manner how: tooke counſell how.

Queſtioniſts, } Pharifſies, as chiefe authors.
 } Their diſciples with Herods ſeruants, as actors } or ſubordinate inſtruments.

Proeme: Maſter we know that thou art true, &c.

Probleme: Is it lawfull that tribute be giuen to Caſar, or no?

In the queſtion theſe <sup>d</sup> ſix circumſtances are to be diſcuſſed eſpecially, the

<sup>m</sup> 1 Pet. 2. 11.
<sup>n</sup> Iob 4. 19.
<sup>o</sup> Rom 12. 2.
<sup>p</sup> Gal. 4. 26.
<sup>q</sup> Aquin.
<sup>r</sup> Col. 3. 2.
<sup>s</sup> Perkins expoſi Creed. art. aſcenſ.

<sup>t</sup> Iohn 14. 2.

<sup>u</sup> Anſelm.
<sup>x</sup> Zancbinus.

<sup>y</sup> Transformabas quoad qualitatē, non quoad quantitatem. Theodoret.
<sup>z</sup> 1 Cor. 15. 53.
<sup>a</sup> Prudentius apoth. de reſurrect. carnis humane.

<sup>b</sup> Iob 5. 13.
<sup>c</sup> Pſal. 9. 15.

<sup>d</sup> Arclinus.

In Christs answer } two points are re- } markable, to wit, his } Conflict in } Conquest, when they heard these words, they marvelled, and left him, and went their way.

Confounding his aduerfaries, Iesus per-ceiuing their wickednesse.
 Confuting, shew me the tribute money.
 Concluding, giue therefore to Caesar,
&c.

<sup>c</sup> Kilius.

<sup>f</sup> Chrysof.

<sup>g</sup> Ier. 5. 3.

<sup>h</sup> Psal. 1. 1.

<sup>i</sup> Heming.

<sup>k</sup> Ardens.

Then the Pharises.] <sup>c</sup> Euen at that time when Christ in his doctrine sought their eternall saluation, they conspire to worke his vtter destruction. At that instant <sup>f</sup> when they should haue beleueed in him ( & having faces harder then a stone) they went out from him. And I pray whither ? into the <sup>h</sup> counsell of the vngodly, <sup>i</sup> for counsell is the foundation to worke vpon. Wherefore ? to entangle him. And for that heretofore they could not intrap him in his <sup>k</sup> morals, or in his miracles : here they take counsell how to catch him in his words. A fit and (as they thought) a fecible plot. It was exceeding fit, in that Christ had often intangled them in their words : and therefore, seeing they could not at any time finde an hole in his coat, they went about to discouer a botch in his doctrine, that, as it was the by-word, they might <sup>l</sup> cry quit. Againe, they conceiued it to be very fecible, for that the tongue is glib, according to that of <sup>m</sup> S. James. If any man offend not in word, he is a perfect man, and able to bridle all the body.

<sup>l</sup> Pontan.

<sup>n</sup> Chap. 3. v. 2.

<sup>o</sup> Caluin.

Ludolphus ex

Chrysof.

<sup>p</sup> Anselm.

<sup>q</sup> In loc.

<sup>r</sup> In Matt. 12.

<sup>s</sup> Hieron. &

Chrysof.

<sup>t</sup> Iansen. Con.

cord. eap. 116.

<sup>u</sup> Maldonat.

in loc.

<sup>v</sup> Ioseph anti-quit lib. 18. c. 2.

<sup>x</sup> Thom &
Pontan. in loc.

<sup>y</sup> Ardens.

Caluin.

Vega.

<sup>z</sup> 1 Tim. 3. 2.

<sup>aa</sup> Rom. 2. 19.

<sup>bb</sup> In loc.

<sup>cc</sup> Kilius.

<sup>dd</sup> Ier. 23. 16.

<sup>ee</sup> 1 Pet. 4. 11.

<sup>ff</sup> Heming.

<sup>gg</sup> Esay 58. 1.

<sup>hh</sup> Euthym.

<sup>ii</sup> Psal. 55. 22.

Their disciples with Herods seruants.] Executing their malice by deputies, as being <sup>n</sup> lesse knowne, and so lesse suspected of treachery. But these Disciples as apt schollers, were <sup>o</sup> peeres in mischief, though vnderlings in age to their masters. And with these were ioyned the Herodians also, that is (as <sup>p</sup> Theophylact and <sup>q</sup> Euthymius) such as thought Herod to be Christ. <sup>r</sup> Other affirme, that they were souldiers of Herod, or as our translation here, seruants of Herod, <sup>s</sup> not of Herod the Tetrach, but of Herod the King. <sup>t</sup> Factors in his Court for the Romane tribute ; for Herod sauoured the taxes of Caesar, and they flattered Herod. A sect altogether opposite to the Pharises in the question about <sup>u</sup> tribute : for whereas the Pharises alway pretended the good of Gods Temple, the Herodians on the contrary contended for the benefit of Caesars Exchequer ; and yet both agreed and tooke counsell together against the Lord and against his annointed, Psal. 2. 2. See Gospell Sunday 18. after Trinitie.

Master, we know that thou art true.] <sup>x</sup> That a man may speake freely the truth, he must haue knowledge, zeale, boldnesse. All which our Sauours aduerfaries ascribeto him here. Knowledge of the truth, in that he was a master and taught the way of God. Zeale and loue to the truth, in that he was true, teaching truly. Boldnesse, in that he respected not the person of any. Where by the way <sup>y</sup> Diuines obserue the commendable parts of a good Pastor : First, he must be for his learning a master, able to teach, <sup>z</sup> apt to teach, a <sup>aa</sup> guide to the blinde, a light to them that are in darknesse. Secondly, he must be true : which <sup>bb</sup> Ardens applieth to purenesse of life ; but <sup>cc</sup> Marlorat is of opinion that the words, and teachest truly the way of God, expound the clause, thou art true. Thirdly, <sup>cc</sup> he must not vtter his owne dreame, or the <sup>dd</sup> vision of his owne heart, but teach the way to God. <sup>ee</sup> If any man speake, let him talke as the words of God. Fourthly, he must haue <sup>ff</sup> certainty of doctrine, teaching the truth aright, or truly. For so saith the Lord, He that hath my word let him speake my word faithfully, Ierem. 23. 28. And Rom. 12. 6. If any man haue the gift of prophecie, let him haue it according to the proportion of faith. Fifthly, he must be stout in deliuering Gods ambassage, not caring for any man, &c. Ezech. 2. 6. Sonne of man, feare them not, & cry aloud, spare not, lift vp thy voice like a trumpet, and shew my people their transgression, and to the house of Iacob their sinnes.

Now the Pharises vttered all this proem out of <sup>hh</sup> impudent flatterie : <sup>ii</sup> Their words were softer then butter, hauing warre in their hearts, and smoother then oyle, yet were they very swords ; calling Christ master, and yet scorning to be his schollers : John 9. 28. Be thou his disciple (say they to the blinde) we be

Moses

Moses disciples. Affirming here that he was true, but <sup>k</sup> else, where that he deceiveth the people; saying vpon this occasion that he taught the way of God: but at another time quite contrary, <sup>l</sup> this man is not of God. Highly commending his vndaunted spirit, that they might hereby prouoke him either to speake treasonable words against Cesar, or insupportable words against the people.

Is it lawfull that tribute be giuen vnto Cesar, or no?] God ordained in his <sup>m</sup> law, that euery man of twentie yeeres old and aboute, should yeerely giue halfe a shekle, as an offering to the Lord, towards the reparation of his house and other pious vses. And this collection, as <sup>n</sup> Melancthon coniecturally, did amount euery yeere to three tunne of gold. Now when the Romanes had conquered the Iewes, and made them, as we reade Luke 2. tributary; this mony giuen vnto the Temple, was payed into <sup>o</sup> Cesars Exchequer. Hereupon there did arise first a great disputation among the chiefe Priests and Pharisees, whether it was lawfull to pay this tribute vnto Cesar, or no. Then afterward ensued open rebellion among the people, Iudas of Galile being their Captaine, as Saint Luke mentioneth, Acts 5. 37. For this <sup>p</sup> Iudas Galileus conspiring with one Sadducrus a Pharisee, drew away much people with him, openly maintaining against the faction of Herod, that this exaction of the Romane Emperor was intolerable, contrary to the lawes of God and immunities of the Iewes his free people. By which it doth appeare, that the quere concerning Cesars tribute was exceeding captious, and a meere Dilemma. <sup>r</sup> For if Christ had answered, it is lawfull, the Pharisees had accused him vnto the chiefe Priests, as being all for the Temple: but if he should haue said, it is vnlawfull, the seruants of Herod would haue <sup>t</sup> deliuered him vnto the secular power of the Governour, as a seditious fellow, perverting the people, and forbidding to pay tribute to Cesar, Luke 23. 2. <sup>u</sup> If he should haue disputed against the tribute, he had offended Cesar: if for the tribute, displeas'd the people, who did beare this burden against their wils. And so the Pharisees might haue had a gap opened to destroy him, if the people did abandon him. It both appeared eminent danger, if not death. Hitherto concerning the Pharisees question, hearken now to Christs answer.

But Iesus perceining their wickednesse.] Or as <sup>v</sup> S. Marke, their hypocrisie: or as <sup>w</sup> S. Luke, their craftinesse. For, <sup>x</sup> There is no wisdome, neither vnderstanding, nor counsell against the Lord. Wherefore Christ <sup>y</sup> as God seeing their hypocritical humour, and vnderstanding their trecherous intent, accommodates his answer, <sup>z</sup> non ad eorum verba blanda. sed ad eorum corda praua, to the foule malice of their minde, and not to the faire words of their mouth. Obiecting against them <sup>a</sup> foure faults especially: First, folly, noted in the word why? For if I am (as you say) true, then I am God, because <sup>b</sup> euery man is a liar, and only God true, yea truth it selfe, Iohn 14. 6. and if I be the Sonne of God, I can easily make your wisdome <sup>c</sup> foolishnesse. Secondly, treachery, why tempt ye? Thirdly, ingratitude, why tempt ye me, who teach vnto you the way of God truly, <sup>d</sup> desiring often to gather your children together, euen as the Hen gathereth her Chickens vnder her wings, and ye would not. Fourthly, Dissimulation, ye hypocrites. Hauing thus in a trice confounded them, he proceeds in the next clause to confute them, euen by their <sup>e</sup> owne words and deeds, as the souldiers of <sup>f</sup> Tymotheus were wounded with the points of their owne swords. For, saith he, shew me the tribute money: and they tooke him a penny, and he said vnto them, whose is this Image and superscription? They said vnto him, Cesars. Then he said vnto them, Giue therefore to Cesar, &c. <sup>g</sup> As if he should say, your selues haue let in the Romanes, acknowledging <sup>h</sup> no King but Cesar. And in token of your homage, you say that the currant coine among you beares his image and superscription, and therefore seeing Cesar by conquest hath made himselfe Lord ouer you, giue to Cesar the things which are Cesars, and vnto God the things which are Gods.

In which one sentence we may note many profitable lessons, as first, <sup>i</sup> that it is our duty to giue euery one his owne: <sup>k</sup> tribute, to whom tribute: custome, to whom custome: feare, to whom feare: honour, to whom honour. } Deo religionem, <sup>k</sup> Iohn 12. 7.<sup>l</sup> Iohn 9. 16.<sup>m</sup> Exod. 30. 13.

14. &amp;c.

<sup>n</sup> Commen. 17

Matth. 22.

<sup>o</sup> Melancthon ubi sup & Zupper. cum. s. in loc.<sup>p</sup> Ioseph. Antiquit. lib. 13. c. 2.<sup>q</sup> Ardens.<sup>r</sup> Luk. 23. 20.<sup>s</sup> Luther. Homing.<sup>t</sup> Cap. 12. 15.<sup>u</sup> Cap. 20. 23.<sup>v</sup> Prou. 21. 30.<sup>w</sup> Aretius.<sup>x</sup> Iacob. de Po- 143.<sup>y</sup> Pontan.<sup>z</sup> Rom. 9. 4.<sup>a</sup> Iob 5. 13.<sup>b</sup> Matth. 23 37<sup>c</sup> Musculus.Aretius.<sup>d</sup> 2 Mac. 12. 22.<sup>e</sup> Luther.Culman.<sup>f</sup> Iohn 19. 15.Caluin.<sup>g</sup> Musculus.<sup>h</sup> Rom. 13. 7.<sup>i</sup> Ardens.

<sup>m</sup> Euthym. in loc.

<sup>n</sup> Heming. Culman.

<sup>o</sup> Barclaius de auctoritate

Pape, cap. 2.

<sup>p</sup> Anglican. Confess. art. 37.

explained in the conclusion of Queene Elizabeth's Injunctions.

Idem Dr. Fulke in loc.

<sup>q</sup> Zepper. Arelins.

Aquila. 2. 2. quest. 10. 4. art. 6.

<sup>r</sup> Elinensis ad apolog. Bellar. respon. cap. 2. pag. 71.

<sup>s</sup> Catalog. glor. mundi, part. 5. considerat. 28.

<sup>t</sup> Euthym. lanscn.

<sup>u</sup> Enllinger. Bez. 2.

<sup>v</sup> Esay 49. 23.

<sup>w</sup> Serm. at Stamford.

<sup>x</sup> Fernus serm. 2. in loc.

<sup>y</sup> Melanct. Com. in loc.

Idem Zepper. & Culman.

<sup>z</sup> Rom. 13. 4.

<sup>a</sup> 2 Sam. 14. 17.

<sup>b</sup> Num. 27. 17.

<sup>c</sup> Psal. 47. 9.

<sup>d</sup> Ezech 31. 3. 5.

<sup>e</sup> Melanct. Com. in loc.

Idem Erasmus in para.

<sup>f</sup> Lubbr. Zepper.

Melanct. possil. in loc.

<sup>g</sup> 2 King. 13. 5.

<sup>h</sup> August. de ciuit. l. 4. c. 4.

<sup>i</sup> Serm. 7.

<sup>k</sup> Basil. Dor. l. 2. pag. 99.

religionem, sibi munditiam, parentibus honorem, familiaribus prouidentiam, filijs correctionem, fratribus amorem, Dominis subiectionem, subiectis benignitatem, omnibus equitatem. Vnto God the things of God, vnto men the things appertaining to men, and vnto the <sup>m</sup> deuill himselfe that which is his due, charging him with all our sinne and iniquitie. Secondly, from hence we learne, that the spiritual kingdome of the Church, and the ciuill kingdome of Cæsar, are <sup>n</sup> distinct and separate, that (albeit they be both of God) <sup>o</sup> each of them being included in his bond, may not enter vpon the borders of the other. A <sup>p</sup> Prince may not minister the Sacrament, nor a Priest manage the scepter. Thirdly, <sup>q</sup> this Scripture sheweth evidently that the kingdome of Christ abrogates not the kingdome of Cæsar, but that the Gospell is a good friend vnto Common-weales, in teaching Princes how to gouerne, and the people how to be subiect vnto the higher powers. It is not Christ and his word, but Antichrist and the Pope, who deny to Cæsar, the thing, which are Cæsars, absolving the subiect from his allegiance to his Soueraigne, <sup>r</sup> Cæsari sublata non reddit, & (quod caput est iniurie) defendit non reddenda, tollere ea potuisse se, posse etiam iam, cum uolet, quoties uolet, atq; apud se detinere, ad se enim non ad Cæsarem pertinere. This intrusion vpon the things of Cæsar, is thought vniust and vncouth, euen by the Sorbon and Parliament of Paris in France, by the Common-wealth of Venice, by the Seminary Priests in England; in a word, distasted of all Popelings in the world, except the serpentine-brood hatched of the Spanishe egge Ignatius Loyala. Read the bookes of Watson, especially Quodlibet 8. art. 7. 8. Barclai of the authoritie of the Pope: Roger. Widdrington Apolog. pro iure Principum: Sheldons generall reasons prouing the lawfulness of the Oath of Allegiance. The ready pens of our accurately learned Cæsar and his iudicious Diuines haue so foiled in this argument the Popes Bull-begger Cardinall Bellarmine, that it may be said of him aptly, which once <sup>i</sup> Cassianus of the whole Romane Empire, nihil in principio fortius, nihil in fine debilius.

Giue therefore to Cæsar the things which are Cæsars <sup>j</sup> He saith not date: but reddite, because tribute is due debt vnto Cæsar. And if we must pay tribute to Cæsar a Paynim Emperour: <sup>k</sup> much more to Christian Kings and Queenes <sup>x</sup> which are nursing fathers, and nursing mothers vnto the Church. If we deny this dutie we are no better (if father <sup>y</sup> Latimer be Iudge) then theeues. Alway prouided, that we referre to God such things as are Gods, and giue to Cæsar only such things as are Cæsars: for <sup>z</sup> it is not said here, reddite Cæsari que petit: sed que sunt illius. Now the things of Cæsar are principally <sup>a</sup> three: Honour, obedience, tribute. We must honour them as the <sup>b</sup> Ministers and <sup>c</sup> Angels of God, as the <sup>d</sup> shepherds and <sup>e</sup> shields of his people, vnder whose <sup>f</sup> shadowing boughes our nests are built, and our young brought forth. And in this respect also we must obey Cæsar in such things as are Cæsars: but if Cæsar intrude vpon the things of God, and coyne a new Creed, or broch another Gospell, it is better to obey God then man, Act. 4. 19. The Lawes <sup>g</sup> order requiring that first we giue to God the things which are Gods, and then vnto men the things of men. See Epist 4 Sunday after Epiphanie.

As for the tributes of Cæsar, if they be iust and resonable, we must pay them as his wages: if vniust and vnreasonable, we must <sup>h</sup> beare them as our punishment. We may refell his arguments in Parliament, and repell his oppression according to courfes of Law: but we may not in any case rebell with the sword. And yet (as Melancthon and other vpon this Text) Cæsar himselfe is bound to keepe the Commandement, Thou shalt not steale, remembering alway that Almighty God hath made him a shepherd, and not a wolfe; a nursing father, and not a cursing tyrant; a <sup>i</sup> deliuerer, and not a deuourer of his people. <sup>k</sup> Remota iustitia quid sunt regna nisi magna latrocinia? quoniam & ipsa latrocinia quid sunt nisi parua regna? <sup>l</sup> Saint Ambrose notably to the same purpose, Quod Cæsar præcipit ferendum est, quod imperator indicit tolerandum est: sed fit intolerabile dum illud præda exactionis accumulatur. The gracious Apothegme of <sup>m</sup> our noble Soueraigne to his dearest sonne Henry the Prince is worthy to be written in letters of gold,

Inrich

Inrich not your selfe with exactions vpon your subiects: but thinke the riches of your people, your best treasure.

Unto God those things which are Gods] <sup>o</sup> As if he should say: Ye Pharisies are carefull for the money of the Temple, but in the meane while ye neglect the diuine worship and word of God. <sup>o</sup> Ye giue to Cæsar the penny that hath his inscription and image: why then, I pray, consecrate ye not to God your soule, wherein is imprinted Gods image and superscription? How Christians are Gods pœny, hauing his image by creation, and inscription in holy baptisme, whereby Christ <sup>p</sup> writeth his name in their foreheads, and so markes them as it were for the children of God, and inheritors of the kingdome of heauen: See Ludolphus de vita Christi part. 2. cap. 35 Ardens, Musculus, Pontan, Form in loc.

If we now conforme our selues according to Christs Image, he shall hereafter (as it is in this daies Epistle) transforme our vile body, that it may be like his glorious body, <sup>q</sup> for as we haue borne the image of the earthly, so shall we beare the image of the heavenly. Take heed therefore that Sathan imprint not his stampe in you, because Christ at the <sup>r</sup> last day will lay to thy soule, as he did to the Pharisies here: whose is this image and inscription? If thou be branded with the <sup>s</sup> marks of Sathan and Antichrist, hell is thy portion; if <sup>t</sup> sealed by the holy spirit of God vnto the day of redemption, heauen is thine inheritance. Giue then vnto Cæsar the things which are Cæsars, <sup>u</sup> leaue to the world the things of the world, that thou maist the better giue to God the things of God. <sup>x</sup> Or giue to thy body such things as are necessary tribute, and to thy soule such things as are conuenient and profitable for thy soule. Or giue to thy Pastor such things as are the Pastors, and vnto the Prince such things as appertaine to thy Prince, <sup>y</sup> that thou maist leade a quiet and a peaceable life in all godlinesse and honestie. Remember the proverbe, He that eats the Kings Goose, shall haue the feathers sticke in his throat seven yeeres after: and obserue the Commandement, Honour thy father and thy mother, that thy daies may be long in the land which the Lord thy God giueth thee.

When they heard these words, they marvelled, and left him, and went their way] This happy conquest of Christ is full of <sup>z</sup> consolation, in that his spirit <sup>a</sup> dwelleth in vs, and <sup>b</sup> speaketh in vs, helping our infirmities, and inabling vs in our disputations afore Kings and Councils to plead the Gospels cause so powerfully, that he <sup>c</sup> who dwelleth in heauen shall laugh his enemies to scorne, yea the Lord shall haue them in derision. When the <sup>d</sup> Libertines and Cyrenians disputed with Saint Stephen, they were not able to resist the wisdom and the spirit by which he spake. So the godly learned and truly stout Martyr of Iesus Christ, Master John Philpot, at a <sup>e</sup> conference holden in Bishop Boners house, told Doctor Morgan plainly, Thou art not able to answer that spirit of truth which speakes in me, for the defence of Christs true religion. I am able by the might thereof to drine thee round about this Gallerie before me. So silly women and young boyes endued and strengthened by the spirit, in the quarrell of Christ argued so peremptorily, so profoundly, that Boner as being too wicked to dismisse them, and too weake to conuince them, ordinarily forsaking all his Logicke and Rhetoricke, <sup>f</sup> knocks them downe with the butcherly axe of his sentence. So we read in <sup>g</sup> Eusebius, of a subtile Philosopher, and being an extreme aduersary to Christ and his doctrine, could by no kinde of learning be conuerted vnto the faith: but was able to withstand all arguments that could be brought against him, euen with little or no labour. At length there started vp a poore simple man of small wit, and lesse knowledge, one that was reputed among the learned as an idiot: and hee on Gods name would needs take in hand to dispute with this proud Philosopher. The Bishops and other Diuines standing by, were much abashed at the matter, as fearing that they should be brought to shame by his doings, he notwithstanding goeth on, and beginning in the name of the Lord Iesus, brought the Philosopher to such a point in the end, that he could not chuse but acknowledge the power of God in his words, and to giue place to the truth.

- <sup>o</sup> Melanct. Zepper.
- <sup>o</sup> Erasmus annot. in loc.
- <sup>p</sup> Apoc. 22. 4.
- <sup>q</sup> 1 Cor. 15. 49.
- <sup>r</sup> Ludolphus.
- <sup>s</sup> Apocal. 13.
- <sup>s</sup> Ephes. 4. 30.
- <sup>u</sup> Ambros. in Luc. cap. 20.
- <sup>x</sup> Origen apud Thom. in loc.
- <sup>y</sup> 1 Tim. 2. 2.
- <sup>z</sup> Luther. Zepper.
- <sup>a</sup> Rom. 8. 9.
- <sup>b</sup> Mat. 10. 20.
- <sup>c</sup> Psal. 2. 4.
- <sup>d</sup> Act. 6. 9. 10.
- <sup>e</sup> Examination 11 as M. Fox in his martyrdom.
- <sup>f</sup> M. Fox in the martyrdom of Iac. e. Hornes. s. H. 15. 70. cap. 3. cited in part. 1. Church hom for Whitsunday.

The Epistle. COLOSS. 1. 3.

We giue thanks to God the Father of our Lord Iesus Christ, &c.

This proem of Pauls Epistle to the Colossians is in effect ball one with that to the Corinthians, expounded Sunday 18. after Trinitie : and to the Philipians, expounded Sunday 22. after Trinitie. Wherefore lest I seeme tedious in tautologies, I will onely part it, and so depart hence to the Gospell ensuing.

Who: verse 1. Paul an Apostle, not of k men, but of Iesus Christ. Not through his owne l intrusion, or for his owne m merit: but by the will of God. And Timotheus his brother: in respect of their n common faith on earth, and common Father in heauen.

When: Alwayes praying: or as our translation, alwayes in our prayers. As p often in our deuotion, as we thinke of you, we thanke God for you, since the day we first heard of your faith, vers. 4. 9.

To whom: vnto God and the Father of our Lord, &c. that is, as we read, to God euen the Father. Or to God q as the Father of our Lord Iesus Christ, in r whom only God is well pleased. As if he should say, seeing euery t gift is from God, and bestowed on vs for Christ: it is our bounden dutie to thanke God the Father of our Lord Iesus Christ, alwayes in all our prayers; t able to heare, because God, for that is a stile of u maiestie; willing to helpe, because the Father of Iesus, for that is a stile of mercie.

For whom: For you, because x loue doth not enuy, but reioyce for others good. For you Saints at Colosse, vers. 2. that is, Saints by y calling, all such as are consecrated to God in holy z baptisme, a sanctified by the sanctifying Spirit. In a word, b all the faithfull in Colosse.

Faith, and that a true faith, hauing Christ Iesus for the c proper object, and wholly relying vpon his d merits.

Loue, and that according to e knowledge, louing especially the Saints, and those not few, but without f exception of person, in respect of g bloud, affinitie, fashion, or faction, all.

For what: Hope, and that an assured hope, expecting an inheritance, that is h laid vp in store; and that in a sure i and secure place (where k neither the moth nor canker corrupteth, and where theeues neither digge thorow nor steale) in heauen. As l S. Peter interprets Paul, an inheritance immortall and vndefiled, and that fadeth not away, referued in heauen. All which is conueyed vnto them by the preaching of the Gospell, here commended a m veritate, dilatatione, Contents, as being the word of profectu. That is truth, verse 5. in two words, in Extents, as being come to all the respect of it world, and fruitfull in all good workes, vers. 6.

Compreccation, for their further increase and future proficience n in Plentifull wisdome and spirituall vnderstanding, whereby to know the will of God, vers. 9. Fruitfull obedience, whereby to doe the will of God, walking worthy of the Lord, vers. 10. that is, as becommeth his o Gospell, and his glory, pleasing him in all things, &c. Cheerefull patience, whereby to suffer according to the will of God, and that with ioyfulnesse, verse 11.

It consists of i two parts, a Congratulation, for their gifts in present possession, and in it

b Sarcarius. Aretius. i Melanct. Zanchius. k Gal. 1. 1.
l Sarcarius.
m Primasius.
n Zanchius.

o Caietan. Aretius. Marlorat. q Caluin. Beza.
r Matth. 13. 17.
s James 1. 17.

t Lombard.
u Bullinger apud Marlorat.
x 1 Cor. 13. 4.
y 1 Cor. 1. 12.
z Theophylact.
a Aretius.
b Piscator.

c Caluin.
d Bullinger.
e Philip 1. 9.
f Primasius.
g Caietan.

h Herein alluding to careful parents hoording vp treasure for their babes: vii Zanchius in loc.
i Lombard. Anselm.
k Matth. 6. 20
l 1 Pet. 1. 4.
m Aquin.

n Zanchius.
o Philip 1. 27.
p Lombard. Anselm.

The difference between patience & long suffering may be, that the first is circum graviora pericula; the second, circum leniora.<sup>1</sup> The one teacheth vs to forbear when we can reuenge; the other, to beare when we cannot reuenge. Or patience leuelleth as it were the minde in our present affliction; which is but for a moment; long suffering exalteth in it expectation of our future<sup>2</sup> farre most excellent and eternall weight of glorie, when as we shall be made partakers of the inheritance of the Saints in light, verse 12. Spirituall vnderstanding is most vsfull in our contemplatiue life, obedience in our actiue, patience needfull in both. And therefore let vs pray with Paul here to the father of our Lord Iesus Christ, that we may be strengthened with all might, through his glorious power, vnto all patience and long suffering with ioyfulnesse, &c.

<sup>1</sup> Aretius.

<sup>2</sup> Theophilact.

<sup>1</sup> Caietan.

<sup>2</sup> 2 Cor. 4. 17.

The Gospell. MATTH. 9. 18.

While Iesus spake vnto the people, behold, there came a certaine ruler, and worshipped him, saying, my daughter is euen now deceased, &c.

Two points are to be considered in this Gospell especially, the Goodnesse of Christ, in releuing all sexes and all sorts of men, hearing a ruler who was rich and a Jew, healing a woman who was poore and a Gentile. Comforting a distressed father, recovering a diseased woman, raising a deceased damosell.

Lewdnesse of the people, ver. 24. laughing Christ to scorne.

In the first miracle wrought vpon the woman which had an issue of blood, note circumstance of Time: ver. 22. the woman was made whole euen the same time.
Place: ver. 19. 20 in the way to Iairus house.
Person, } To whom.
          } Before whom.
          } By whom this worke was done.

In the second miracle three persons are remarkable: the Physitian, Christ.
Patient, a deceased Damosell.
Mediator betweene both, A certaine Ruler.

In that Christ healed the sicke woman instantly, so soone as she beleued in him, and he saw her: he teacheth vs<sup>u</sup> hereby not to deferre any work of charity but to do good turnes in a good time.<sup>x</sup> Say not vnto thy neighbour, go and come againe, & to morrow will I giue thee, if thou haue it now, for hope that is deferred, is the fainting of the heart: but when the desire commeth it is a Tree of life, Prou. 13: 12. And in that our blessed Sauour cured this woman, in the way to Iairus house: he giueth vs an<sup>v</sup> example, to spend all our houres profitably, <sup>z</sup> neuer intermitting any fit oportunitie to do good, redeeming the time because the daies are euill, Ephe. 5. 16.

<sup>u</sup> Ferus.

Diez in loc.

<sup>x</sup> Prou. 3 28.

In the party to whom, obserue first her grieve, then his grace. She was a<sup>2</sup> fearefull and silly woman, vexed with an vncleane and vncomfortable disease twelue yeeres, in such sort that (as S. Marke reports in his fifth Chapter, ver. 26.) she suffered many things of many Physitians: some torturing her with one medicine, some with another, and yet none did her any good, but rather much hurt. For as<sup>b</sup> other Euangelists haue recorded this historie more fully, she spent all that she had, and it auailed her nothing, but she became much worse. Whereby she was made his misera (saith<sup>c</sup> Erasmus) or as<sup>d</sup> Hemingius, many waies vnhappy. For her sicknesse brought her to weaknesse, her weaknesse to physicke, physicke to beggerie, beggerie to contempt. And haply remorse of conscience made these worldly grieuances more bitter: for whereas the<sup>e</sup> Wife-man affirms, He that sinneth before his Maker, shall fall into the hands of the Physitian: she might peradventure conceiue that God had cast her away. This (as you see) was her hard case, vexed in minde, troubled in body, beggered in her estate, despised in her place.

<sup>v</sup> Ludolphus ex Chrysof.

<sup>2</sup> B. Latymer. Serm. vpon this Gospell.

<sup>a</sup> Luk. 8. 47.

<sup>b</sup> Mark. 5 26.

Luk. 8. 43.

<sup>c</sup> Paraph. in loc.

<sup>d</sup> Paul in loc.

<sup>e</sup> Eccles. 38. 15.

<sup>f</sup> Lib de Solomone cap. 5. Idem alij sentiunt apud Ludolphum de vita Christi, para. 1. cap. 49.

<sup>g</sup> Beauxamis Har. 7. om. 1. fol. 160.

From hence we may note, first, against Ambrose,<sup>f</sup> that this afflicted woman was not Martha the sister of Mary,<sup>g</sup> because Martha was rich, as we finde in <sup>a</sup> Iohn cap. 11.

& 12.

<sup>i</sup> Kilius in loc.

<sup>k</sup> In loc.

<sup>l</sup> Hist. l. 7. c. 14.

<sup>m</sup> Sozomen & Nicephorus apud Vegam, & Zep-perum in loc.

<sup>n</sup> Iohn 13. 15.

<sup>o</sup> Gen. 32. 26.

<sup>p</sup> Tobit c. 14. 2.

<sup>q</sup> Luk. 13. 11,
12.

<sup>r</sup> Cap. 6. v. 59.

<sup>s</sup> Cassan. Aurea
in loc.

<sup>t</sup> Prou. 1. 21.

<sup>u</sup> Matth. 11. 28

<sup>v</sup> Heming.

<sup>w</sup> Ephes. 6. 16.

<sup>x</sup> Iohn 20. 2.

<sup>y</sup> Iohn 20. 29.

<sup>z</sup> Matth. 28. 20

<sup>aa</sup> Psal. 46. 1.

<sup>ab</sup> James 4. 8.

<sup>ac</sup> Rom. 8. 16.

<sup>ad</sup> Matth. 15 23.

<sup>ae</sup> Mark. 10. 48.

<sup>af</sup> B' Lalymer.

<sup>ag</sup> i Euthym. in 8.
Luc & Theo-phylact. in loc.

the <sup>h</sup> Gospels historie, whereas this Hamorrhousa had wasted all her wealth vpon Physicians.

Secondly, by this example you see, <sup>i</sup> what an inestimable ieuell health is, in that this Hamorrhousa willingly became a begger in her estate to be better at ease. Vita non est viuere, sed valere; it is more comfortable to die quickly, than to liue sickly. <sup>k</sup> Theophylact, <sup>l</sup> Eusebius, and <sup>m</sup> other report, that this woman healed of her bloudie flux, and returned home to Casarea Philippi, did erect against her owne doores a brazen image of Christ, in perpetuall remembrance of this great benefit. It is our dutie likewise to blesse God alway for his blessings in this kinde.

Thirdly, in that our father in heaven, after long sicknesse, sendeth at the last, happy deliuerance to his children: it may teach vs in all our distresse, neuer to distrust his mercy, but to say with <sup>n</sup> Iob, though he slay me, yet will I trust in him. And with, <sup>o</sup> Iacob, I will not let thee goe, except thou blesse me. <sup>p</sup> Tobie was blinde eight yeeres, and then the Lord restored his sight againe. <sup>q</sup> Luke reports in his <sup>q</sup> Gospel, how a crooked woman, after she was bowed together eighteene yeeres, in such fort that she could not lift vp her selfe in any wile, was made strait and loosed from her infirmitie. Kilius in his explication of this text, saith he was acquainted with a man who lay twenty yeeres bedred, and of those twenty foure- teene vpon one side, who notwithstanding afterward married, and begat children, and liued in perfect health a long time. <sup>r</sup> S. Iohn mentioneth a certaine man made whole, which had bene diseated eight and thirty yeeres. And Acts 3. we read of a Creeple from his mothers wombe, whose feet and ancle-bones received strength in so great measure, that he could stand, and walke and leape. Here this woman had a bloudy flux twelue yeeres, and yet Christ as soone as shee touched his vesture, saith, Daughter, be of good comfort, thy faith hath made thee whole, &c.

Hitherto concerning her grieuances: I come now to her graces, and they be principally three: Faith, Inuocation, Humilitie. Which <sup>s</sup> Asquin notes out of three words in the Text, Credidit, dixit, tetigit: quia his tribus, fide, verbo, & opere omnis salus acquiritur. Her faith was so great, that she certainly perswaded her selfe, if she might but touch only the hem of Christs garment, she should attaine her former health. Our blessed Sauour cried often in the <sup>t</sup> streets among the people, <sup>u</sup> Come to me all that are laden, and I will ease you. Now <sup>x</sup> surely this woman heard this gracious promise, beleeuing it to be true in generall, and applying it to her selfe, in particular. He calleth all men, & promiseth he will refresh all such as are combed; I am one of that all, ore of those which are heauy laden, I therefore verily beliene that he will heare me & heale me. Let vs in like fort stir vp our faith in all aduersitie, when any trouble without, or terror within assaulteth vs, and it alone shall <sup>y</sup> quench all the fiery darts of the wicked. Haply some will obiect, This woman had Christ in her eye, present at her fingers end, but I poore soule, may complaine with <sup>z</sup> Mary Magdalene, They haue taken away the Lord, and he is now gone farre from vs. Against this temptation of the flesh, oppose the word of Christ vnto <sup>aa</sup> Thomas his Apostle, Blessed are they which haue not seene & haue beleened, and his promise to all his followers, <sup>ab</sup> I am with you alway vntill the end of the world, with vs in his Sacraments, in his word, by his power, and Spirit, and grace: being <sup>ac</sup> a very present helpe in all affliction vnto such as call vpon him, I say, such as call vpon him faithfully. Wherefore <sup>ad</sup> draw neere to him, and he will draw neere to thee; come to him, and call vpon him (as this woman here) with a stedfast hope, no way doubting of his might and mercies, and his Spirit shall <sup>ae</sup> assure thy spirit, that thou art his childe, and that thy faith hath made thee safe.

The second vertue noted in this woman, is her inuocation or manner of praying. The Ruler in my Text worshipped Christ, and said, my daughter is now euen deceased, &c. The <sup>af</sup> Canaanite called after him, Haue mercie vpon me, O Lord, the sonne of David. And blinde <sup>ag</sup> Bartimeus also cryed vnto him, O sonne of David, and being rebuked, he cryed much more, Sonne of David haue mercy on me. But this is <sup>ah</sup> a shamefast woman, as blushing to publish her vncleannesse afore the whole multitude, and fearing haply that she should haue bene thrust out of the company company for impunitie, speakes not a word to Christ openly, but prayeth only to her selfe in secret: If I may but touch enen his garment I shall be whole. Wishes are her words, and tobs her sacrifices, and yet Christ heares her groanes, and grants her hearts desire, saying, Daughter be of good comfort, &c. Insinuating<sup>k</sup> hereby, that the praier which pierceth the clouds, is not a wagging of the lips, nor a babbling of the tongue: but rather an humble<sup>l</sup> lifting vp of thy soule to God. Offer then vnto Christ, a<sup>m</sup> rent and a<sup>n</sup> broken heart, in seeking thy Sauiour heartily, praying heartily, repenting heartily; that he may turne to thee, and turne his iudgements away from thee, saying to thy soule, o I am thy saluation.

The third vertue commended in this woman, is her discreet<sup>p</sup> humilitie, who knowing her owne vnworthinesse, and considering her loathsome sicknesse, did not presume to come before, but behinde Christ. as it were<sup>q</sup> stealing her health. And this her relique is worth our obseruing also: for as pride is the first stop; so lowlinesse the first step vnto blessednesse. It is an eminent grace for a man speaking with the tongues of Angels, to transport his audience with the winde of words, and fouds of eloquence whither he list: and yet if learning be not seasoned with humilitie, it rather<sup>r</sup> bloweth vp then buildeth vp, and as the<sup>s</sup> Philosopher said, is no better then a sword in a mad mans hand. Prophecyng is an excellent gift, but if any preach themselves, and goe before Christ<sup>t</sup> auouching the vision of their owne hearts, and not following after Christ in deliuering out of his mouth his errand faithfully: what are they but as a<sup>u</sup> sounding brasie or as a tinkling cymball? In running after delight, riches, honour: come behinde Christ, euermore treading his waies, and touching the hemme of his vesture.

The persons before whom, are the Ruler, vers. 18. the Disciples, vers. 19. and a great multitude, Marke 5. 24. Christ acted this miracle before lairus,<sup>x</sup> for the strengthening of his weake faith; encouraging him herby to beleue, that he could recouer his daughter, as well as cure this woman. Afore the Disciples and the multitude, for the confirmation of his doctrine, shewing herby that he knew the secrets of all hearts, as also<sup>z</sup> that the liuely faith of this Hamorrhousa might not be concealed, but openly commended as an example for all men. And therefore Iesus enquired immediately, who hath touched my clothes? and he looked round about, to see her, and when the woman saw that she was not hid, she came trembling, and fell downe before him, and told him afore all the people, for what cause she had touched him, and how she was healed instantly. The brieft whereof is recorded hereby Saint Mattheu. When he saw her, he said, Daughter be of good comfort, thy faith hath made thee whole. Propounding her as a<sup>b</sup> Schoole-mistresse to all the world, to learne by her how to trust in God, and to come to Christ in all manner of afflictions.

The person by whom, is Christ, and in him obserue what he said, and what he did. His words<sup>c</sup> containe consolation, Daughter be of good comfort: and commendation, thy faith hath made thee safe. The word Daughter, is<sup>d</sup> magna familiaritatis: be of good comfort, magna securitatis: Thy faith hath made thee safe, magna iocunditatis. Here then are set downe three notable effects of a liuely faith; it maketh vs the children of God, Daughter: it brings comfort, be of good cheere: it procures saluation of body and soule, thy faith hath made thee whole.

Christ said in the<sup>e</sup> Gospell, I ascend to my father, and vnto your father. Vnto my father by<sup>f</sup> nature, but vnto your father by grace: non ait, ascendo ad patrem nostrum: aliter ergo meum, taliter vestrum: naturâ meum, gratiâ vestrum. And this adoption of the Father electing, of the Sonne redeeming, of the Holy Ghost asfuring vs that we are the children of the most high, is on our part, by faith only. For<sup>h</sup> vnto such as receiued him, he gaue power to be the sonnes of God, euen to such as beleue in his name. Ideo filii, quia fides tua te saluam fecit, as S. Hierome vpon my Text. This woman is Christs daughter in that her faith made her whole. Here then obserue that a Christian is most honourable, being a sonne to a King, a brother to a King, a heire to a King, yea to the King of<sup>i</sup> glorie, to the King of all Kings<sup>m</sup> higher then the highest. He were a foolish poore man that were ashamed of the kindred which the King did challenge of him: <sup>n</sup> he is more

<sup>k</sup> Heming.<sup>l</sup> Psal 25. 1.<sup>m</sup> Ioel 2. 15.<sup>n</sup> Psal 51. 17.<sup>o</sup> Psal 35. 3.<sup>p</sup> Culman.

Ludolphus.

Arctius.

<sup>q</sup> B. Latimer.<sup>r</sup> 1 Cor 8. 1.<sup>s</sup> Aristotle.<sup>t</sup> Ier. 23. 16.<sup>u</sup> 1 Cor. 13. 1.<sup>x</sup> Theophylact.
in loc. & Euthym in Luc. 8<sup>y</sup> Ludolphus.<sup>z</sup> Chrysost.

Theophylact.

Euthym.

<sup>a</sup> Marke 5. 20.

Luke 8. 45.

<sup>b</sup> B. Lolymer.<sup>c</sup> Zepper.<sup>e</sup> Ion. 1. in loc.<sup>d</sup> Iacob. de Vorag. ser. 2. in loc.<sup>e</sup> Iohn 20. 17.<sup>f</sup> Theophylact.

Euthym.

Caietan in

Ioan. 20.

<sup>g</sup> August. tract.

121. in Ioan.

<sup>h</sup> Iohn 1. 12.<sup>i</sup> Heb. 2. 11.<sup>k</sup> Rom 8. 17.<sup>l</sup> Psal 24. 7.<sup>m</sup> Eccles. 5. 7.<sup>n</sup> Deering. lect.

10. Heb.

foolish though he were a King himselfe, that is ashamed of the Sonne of God, when he doth offer himselfe vnto him. For Christ is the ° consolation of Israel, as it followeth in the next clause to be considered, he brings comfort to his children, Daughter be of good cheere. The reprobate account the children of God vnhappy wretches, euen P mad men, hauing them in derision as the 9 filth of the world. But as <sup>r</sup> Saluianus truly; nemo miser alicno sensu, sed suo; Men are not miserable for that other thinke so, vnlesse themselues feele it so. The children of God then hauing the <sup>r</sup> promises of this life and that which is to come, cheered in conscience while they liue, filled with eternall ioy when they be dead, haue both hereafter and here such comfort as <sup>r</sup> passeth all vnderstanding.

The last effect of a liuely faith is saluation of bodie and soule, Thy faith hath made thee safe. For whereas it is said here, The woman was made whole euen the same time: we must expound it (as <sup>u</sup> Anselme and <sup>x</sup> other intimate) not that she was healed at that houre when Iesus turned about to her, and spake, but in the same moment of time, wherein shee touched his vesture. Non enim dixit fides tuate saluam factura est, sed saluam te fecit: in eo enim quod credidisti, iam salua facta es. It was then her trust and not her touch, her faith and not her finger, which haled vnto her this health and helpe. For the multitude thrust Christ, and trode on him (as S. Luke reports) and yet only this woman is said to touch him. And <sup>z</sup> so when we come to Diuine Seruice, Sermon, or Sacrament without liuely faith, hearty deuotion, holy reuerence; we touch, his outward element, but take not his inward grace to the comfort of our soule. We do tangere panem Domini, touch his hemme, but not contingere panem Dominum, touch him. And the reason hereof is plaine, for that our faith and our fingers goe not together. And therefore, when they tread the Courts of the Lord, hearing his word, and receiuing his Sacraments: I say, when any come to the Churche, and yet feele no vertue to come from Christ; it is assuredly, for that <sup>a</sup> their lips are neere vnto him, as it were, pressing among the multitude; but their hearts farre from him, not attending, much lesse attaining his sauing grace.

From <sup>b</sup> hence we may learne (against Arboreus, Maldonate, Beauxamie, and other Popish Authors in their Commentaries vpon this place), not to put any trust in the reliques of Saints, or impute any sauing vertue to the vestiments of our Saviour. For the vertue which healed her went not out of any coat, but out of Christ immediatly: he said not, there is vertue proceeded from my vesture, but I perceiue that vertue is gone out of me, Luk. 8.46. There was no great or extraordinarie vertue in his garments after his death, when the souldiers had parted them among them; nor in his life when he wore them, for the people that thronged him, receiued no benefit by them, but onely shee and they that touched him by faith. And therefore, <sup>c</sup> some by Christs garment vnderstand the Scriptures, in which our Saviour is wrapped: but if a man vsfold them, he shall behold the best Crucifix that euer he saw: for Christ crucified is the end of all the Law, scope of all the Prophets, and as it were, hemme of all the Bible.

<sup>d</sup> Rabans and <sup>e</sup> other affirme, that this garment was Christs humane nature, for he <sup>f</sup> tooke on him the shape of a seruant, and put on our ragges, that hee might clothe vs with his robes. Now the hemme of his humane nature was his passion, and his passion was a sacrifice for our sinne: so that to touch the hemme of his garment, is nothing else, but to beleeuue with <sup>h</sup> Paul, that Christ Iesus came into the world to saue sinners, of whom I am chiefe. Yea but haply some will obiect, it was neither the womans finger nor faith that made her whole, but Christs owne vertue, Luke 6.19. The whole multitude sought to touch him, for there went vertue out of him, that healed them all. He might haue said, then it was my vertue, not thy faith? It is true, that Christs owne vertue and grace doth only cure the sins of our soule, and fores of our body: but his vertue is not apprehended, but by the finger of faith. And therefore Christ (as we read in <sup>i</sup> S. Marke) could doe no great worke in his owne country, because of their vnbeleefe, because they wanted an hand to touch his vesture. <sup>k</sup> Quantum enim vas fidei capacis afferimus, <sup>i</sup> Cap. 6. v. 5, 6.

<sup>k</sup> Cyprian apud Granat. Con. 1. in
 loc.

tantum gratie inundantis haurimus. Hence you may know both how Gods grace, and our faith is said to iustific. Ye are saved by grace through faith, Ephes. 2. 8. by grace effectiue, by faith apprehensiue: See Epistle 17. Sunday after Trinitie.

Now faith in respect of it object, is called in <sup>1</sup>Scripture the faith of Iesus Christ: but in respect of the subiect in which it is <sup>m</sup>inherent, my faith and thy faith. As our Text here, thy faith hath made thee whole. By this which Christ said, is shewed also what he did, he spake the word and it was done, he commanded and it was effected, even the same time the woman was made whole. In generall, to confirme his Gospell; in particular, intimating that all physicke is in vaine, <sup>n</sup>except the great Physician of the world (who visiteth and redeemeth his people) blesse it. So much of the parts and persons of the first miracle. Let vs now come to the second, and in it (according to the Texts order) inquire first of Iairus.

In whom obserue, {
 First, his fashion, } Ruler, as our Euangelist:
 in that he was a } Ruler of a Synagogue, as Marke and Luke.
 } Ruler of a Synagogue in Capernaum, as may be } collected out of them all.
 Then his faith, } 1. His fatherly loue toward his daughter, in desi-and the fruits } ring helpe for her at Christs hand.
 thereof. } 2. Invocation, and worshipped him.
 } 3. Hope, Come, and lay thine hand vpon her, &c.

A certaine Ruler I haue shewed<sup>o</sup> often, how many great men haue beene good men, and that the Pharisies obiection is false, <sup>p</sup>Doth any of the Rulers beleene in Christ? For he that keepeth Israel, hath in euery <sup>q</sup>age stirred vp as well Ecclesiasticall, as Ciuill Governours, to fauour his children, and further the businesse of the Gospell. I will vpon this occasion adde one thing onely, to the perpetuall honour of England, namely, that Constantine the Great, our Countrey. man, was the first Christian Emperour; Lucius, our Countrey. man, the first Christened King; Henry 8. our Country. man, the first Catholike Prince, that vterly shaked off the Popes vnlimited iurisdiction in his Dominions; and our King Iames of blessed memory, the first of his ranke, who did oppose that Antichrist of Rome with his owne pen in the quarrell of Religion,

This Iairus was a Ruler of a Synagogue. Now that ye may the better vnderstand what office this was, I must informe you, that there was in all Iewry but one Temple, <sup>r</sup>where the people were commanded to celebrate their solemne feasts, and offer vp their sacrifices vnto God. And there was onely but one, for the preseruation of <sup>s</sup>vnitie in pietie, that there might be but one only religion, of one onely God, in one only Temple. Where by the way note, that vniformitie in discipline is an hedge to vnitie and doctrine. Where Canons and Iniuinctions of order are despised, and euery man left vnto himselfe; there many times are so many Sects as Cities, and almost as many Gospels as gossips. On the contrary, when all things in the Church are done <sup>t</sup>orderly, when the Christian Magistrate enioynes in outward ceremonies one kinde of discipline for the publique worship of God: there, for the most part, an vnion in law breeds an vnion in loue, a conformitie in fashion an vniformitie in faith, <sup>u</sup>endeuouring to keepe the vnitie of the Spirit in the bond of peace, following the truth in loue. This I take to be the true reason, why Gods Israel had but one Tabernacle and one Temple.

But there were Synagogues in <sup>x</sup>euery towne, where diuine prayers and Gods holy word was read and expounded euery Sabbath, as Saint Luke recordeth, Acts 15. 21. And for this purpose there was a <sup>y</sup>Conuent, or Colledge of Students, and sonnes of the Prophets, among which our Iairus here was a Ruler: as <sup>z</sup>Bishop Lanimer imagineth, a Church-warden: or as other, <sup>a</sup>Decanus facultatis: or as other, an <sup>b</sup>Expounder of the Law and the Prophets, as it were publique Professour in Diuinitie, the <sup>c</sup>Prior of the place, the <sup>d</sup>Rector of the Schooles. Here then obserue both antiquitie and vtilitie of Colledges and Vniuersities, as being in <sup>e</sup>all ages the Nurseries of Gods vine-yard, out of which Impes of hope haue beene translated into the Church and Common-weale. So then if thou wish

<sup>1</sup> Gal. 3. 22.
<sup>m</sup> Aretius in loc.

<sup>n</sup> B. Latymer. Kilias.
 Zepper.

<sup>o</sup> Gospell 3. Sund. after Epiphany. Trinit Sund. and 21 after Trinit.
<sup>p</sup> Iohn 7. 48.
<sup>q</sup> See Beauxamun. Har 10m 1. fol. 160.

<sup>r</sup> Deut. 16.

<sup>s</sup> Melanct post in loc. idem Hispanias de origine templorum, cap. 4.

<sup>t</sup> 1 Cor. 14. 40.

<sup>u</sup> Ephes 4. 3 15.

<sup>x</sup> Vide Sigon. de republ. Heb. lib. 2. cap 8. & Hispaniar. ubi sup

<sup>y</sup> Melanct. post. in loc.

<sup>z</sup> Serm. vpon this Gospell.

<sup>a</sup> Aluonati. in loc.

<sup>b</sup> Melanct.

<sup>c</sup> Dicor. con. 1. in loc.

<sup>d</sup> Kilias.

<sup>e</sup> Vide Hassiman. de origine scholaram cap. 4. 5.

well vnto thy Countrey, speake well, and (as occasion is offered) doe well vnto the Schooles of the Prophets, in that they be Seminaries of learning, and fountaines of holy religion. If thy sonne be fit, and thy selfe be fitted aito for meanes and money, send him vnto Iairus the Ruler of the Synagogue. If he be fit, I say, for when a man is out of his proper calling in any Societie, it is as much as if a ioynt were dislocated in the bodie. To make thy sonne a trades man, if he be most apt for learning; or to send him to the Court, when he is fitter for the Cart: is as much as if a man should apply his toes to feeling, and not his fingers, and to walke on his hands and not on his feet. It was a memorable fact of that famous Bishop of Lincolne, Robert Grosthead,<sup>f</sup> who being vpon a time sollicitod to prefer his poore kinsman, and thereupon inquiring w<sup>t</sup> at condition of life he followed, and vnderstanding that he was an husbandman: Why then (answered he) if his plough be broken, I will reparaire it, or rather then faile bestow a new vpon him, whereby he may goe on his course: but so to dignifie him, as to make him forsake his calling and trade wherein he was brought up, I meane not to doe.

Now that a father may the better accommodate his childe with a fit calling: he & must obserue both his inclination and naturall gifts: Euery childe euen in his infancie, doth affect some one particular occupation or condition of life more than other: and therefore the iudicious<sup>h</sup> Athenians afore they placed their children in any calling, vsed to bring them into a publike place where tooles and instruments of all sorts were laid; and then accurately to marke with what kinde of instrument they tooke delight, applying them afterward to the like Art with good successe. And it is not amisse for Christians to follow Heathens in this, or any like commendable practise.

Secondly, Parents must obserue the naturall endowments of their children, applying such as excell in eminent gifts of the minde vnto courses of learning: and other which excell in gifts of the bodie, to trades and mechanicall occupations. <sup>i</sup> Origen that great Clerke, when he was a childe, vsed to question with his father Leonides about the sense of the Scripture, whereupon he was made a scholler. Athanasius also was first put to learning (as <sup>k</sup> Ruffinus and Sozomene report) for that he was found by the Sea side doing the part of a Bishop among a company of little children like himselfe, examining and baptizing them according to the solemne order vsed in the congregation. Archbishop Whitgift, the<sup>l</sup> peerelesse Prelate in our age for learning and pietie, <sup>m</sup> consecrating his whole life to God, and his painfull labours vnto the Churches happy peace, was applied first vnto the Schoole, for<sup>n</sup> that his Vncle Robert Whitgift, Abbot of the Monastery of Wellow, found an extraordinary towardlines in him. And because many parents are ignorant, and most parents exceeding partiall in iudging of their own childrens inclination & ingenuitie: the best way for them is to be directed herein by some iudicious friends, & then out of mature iudgement to giue vnto Cæsar, the things appertaining to Cæsar, accommodating such vnto secular courses as are most apt for the common-wealth: & vnto God the things which belong to God, committing them vnto Iairus, and consecrating them to the sacred function of the Ministry.

That Iairus was a Ruler of the Synagogue in Capernaum, is insinuated, Luke 8.41. & in the first verse of this present chapter of our Euangelist, as I haue copiously proued in the beginning of mine Exposition, Gospell Sunday 19. of Trinitie. Capernaum then had a good<sup>o</sup> Pastor, and as we read, Matth. 8.5. a good Capitaine, and Christ the best of all often resided in that Citie: yet notwithstanding (as truth it selfe<sup>p</sup> witnesseth) it was a very wicked and dissolute place, deseruing greater damnation in the day of iudgement than the land of Sodome & Gomorrah. Let not then any vigilant Minister, or diligent Magistrate be discouraged in his place, for that his people bring not forth any fruits of righteousnesse answerable to the meanes of their instruction: for <sup>q</sup> if thou warne the wicked, and he turne not from his wickednesse, nor from his wicked way, he shall die in his iniquitie: but thou hast deliuered thy soule.

Having thus examined the fashion of the Ruler, it remains I should treat of

<sup>f</sup> Sir George Paul in the life of Archbishop Whitgift, p. 85.

<sup>g</sup> See Perkins treatise of Callings.

<sup>h</sup> Nazian. epist. ad Eudoxium.

<sup>i</sup> Magdeburg. Cent. 1. col. 250.

<sup>k</sup> Apud Magd. Cent. 4. col. 1027

<sup>l</sup> Camden. Britan. in Comit. Lincoln.

<sup>m</sup> Idem Camd. in Comit. Cant.

<sup>n</sup> Sir George Paul ubi supra, pag. 2.

<sup>o</sup> Melanct. com. in loc.

<sup>p</sup> Matth. 11. 23

<sup>q</sup> Ezech. 3. 19.

of his faith, and fruit thereof also. But for as much as I haue spoken of these vertues in the woman afflicted with the bloody flux, and other like petitioners vnto Christ, often elsewhere: I thinke that I haue a Suspense out of the Chancerie to meddle no more with him at this time, and a Capias corpus as it were, for his deceased daughter. Concerning whom I note with Aretius the pregnant circumstances of her death, and the true demonstration of her rising againe from the dead. S. Marke reports indeed the petition of the Ruler otherwise, My little daughter lieth at the point of death, &c. And S. Luke, she lay a dying: not as our Euangelist here, my daughter is euen now deceased. And yet all agree, for Iairus haply said his daughter was dead coniecturally, <sup>u</sup> because he left her at home so desperatly sicke. And <sup>x</sup> so Marke and Luke set downe what Iairus said, but Matthew what Iairus thought. Or as <sup>y</sup> Anselm, it may be that the Ruler said both, and made two requests: one that he would lay his hands on her, and heale her malady, for that she was dying: another (being informed certainly that she was euen now deceased) that he would come, and lay his hand vpon her, and restore her to life. So that the first euidence to proue her dead, is her fathers owne confession. A second is Christs assent, instantly following Iairus. A third, the relation of certaine comming from the Rulers house, meeting Christ and him vpon the way, Mark. 5. 35. Thy daughter is dead, why diseasest thou the master any further? A fourth argument is the derision of the tumult in Iairus house, when Iesus said, the damosell is not dead, &c. they laughed him to scorne, knowing that she was dead. A fifth inuisible prooffe was the preparation of her funerall, as the multitude weeping, and the minstrels playing ouer the dead; a fashion in <sup>z</sup> old time crept in among Gods people from the Gentiles, according to that of the <sup>a</sup> Poet:

Cantabat mœstis tibia funeribus.

The demonstrations of her rising againe from the dead, are Surgit, Ambulat, Edit. The damosell arose, faith our Matthew, and walked, as S. Marke reports, and eat, as Saint Luke. The witnesses hereof are Peter, and James, and John, and the father and the mother of the maid. For Iesus thrust out of the doores (at <sup>b</sup> least out of the chamber where the damosell lay) the minstrels and all the rude company making noise, because they were not worthy to see mysterium resurgentis qui resuscitantem indignis contumelys deridebant. Or haply to <sup>d</sup> shunne vaine ostentation and popular applause. Or for <sup>e</sup> that he would not as yet haue this great miracle knowne, as Marke and Luke intimate.

In the Physitian Iesu, note first his facultie, who would instantly come, vers. 15. then his facultie, who could instantly cure the deceased Damosell, according to the request of her owne father, verse 25. For whereas Iairus said; Come, and lay thy hand vpon her and she shall liue: Christ arose, followed him, and tooke the damosell by the hand, and raised her againe from the dead. Mystically, f Christus venit per gratiam prauentem, manum imposit per gratiam concomitantem, & tunc anima viuit per gratiam cooperantem.

And they laughed him to scorne. ] <sup>g</sup> The world is blinde, and cannot iudge aright of Christs doctrine and doing, the wisdom of the flesh is at enmitie with God. And therefore, lest vn haply we turne scorers with the world, let vs beleene the Gospell, especially that article (which is our chiefe comfort) the resurrection of the dead. And by <sup>h</sup> Christs example we may learne to be content when we be despised in this world, that we may be glorified with him in yonder world, as also to <sup>i</sup> proceed in doing any good office, notwithstanding the scoffe of malicious and ignorant people. Nam <sup>k</sup> ut ignis paleam exurit, aurum nitidius reddit: sic ista calumnie vanum aut vacuum aliquem absument, vera virtute grauem illustrant. On the contrary, to be praised of naughtie folkes, is almost as great a shame as to be praised for naughtinesse. Remember the sweet aduice of <sup>m</sup> Augustine: Si homines inter quos visis, te recte viucentem non laudauerint, illi sunt in errore; si autem laudauerint, tu in periculo.

So much of the literall exposition of these two miracles. In a mysticall, <sup>n</sup> euery sinner is like the woman infected with an issue of blood. Osea 4. 2.

<sup>r</sup> Com in loc.

<sup>s</sup> Cap. 5. v. 23.

<sup>t</sup> Cap. 8. v. 42.

<sup>u</sup> Theophylact. Eulhym.

Beauxamis.

<sup>x</sup> Augustin. de consensu Euangelist. l. 2. c. 28.

<sup>y</sup> Enarrat. in loc.

<sup>x</sup> Ambros. in Luc. 8.

<sup>z</sup> Ouid. 4. fast.

<sup>b</sup> Musculus.

<sup>c</sup> Hieron.

Chrysost.

Hilarius.

<sup>d</sup> Aretius.

<sup>e</sup> Maldonat.

<sup>f</sup> Ludolphus.

<sup>g</sup> Musculus. Heming.

<sup>h</sup> B. Latimer.

<sup>i</sup> Ludolphus.

<sup>k</sup> Lipsius reueliuncula Sanionis cuiusdam ad finem l. de Diua Sichemienfi.

<sup>m</sup> De ser. Dom. in monte, lib. 2. in princ.

<sup>n</sup> Iacob. de Vorag. ser. 1. in loc.

By swearing, and lying, and killing, and stealing, and whoring, they breake out, and blood toucheth blood. Where <sup>o</sup> Diuines vnderstand by blood, sinne. P As if he should say, the wicked heape sinne vpon sinne, adding new sinnes vnto their old. For when a man runnes from one foule fault vnto another, blood toucheth blood. As when a wicked thought issueth into some wicked act, and act to custome, custome to necessitie, necessitie to desperation. And then as a man desperate in sickness, cares not what meat he doth eat: so the man rechelesse in sinning, is giuen ouer to commit all vncleannesse euen with greedinesse, careth not what villanies he deuoureth, vntill Christ the Physitian of his soule stop his bloody flux, directing him with his word which is holy, and sanctifying him also with his spirit which is holy. Nay the deuout people liuing in blinde poperie, <sup>r</sup> could neuer haue their conscience truly quieted (although they spent almost all their wealth vpon Monkish Doctors, healing by the doctrine of satisfaction and merit) till they did vnderstand that iustification is only by faith, & that it alone maketh a man whole. <sup>f</sup> Melancthon deliuereth another allegorie: This woman (saith he) doth aptly resemble the Iewish Synagogue, vexed a long time with many mischiefes and miseries, especially tortured with vnconscionable Princes, and vnskillfull Priests or Physitians of the soule, the Pharisies and Sadduces, on whom she wasted all her strength and goods, and yet she was not a whit the better, but rather much worse, till the blessed Lord of Israell, her Sauiour in his own person came to visit and redeme her. And so Jairus is a <sup>r</sup> type of all the Patriarkes and holy Prophets <sup>u</sup> expecting Christ, and earnestly desiring that he would <sup>x</sup> breake the heauens and come downe, and lay his hand vpon the Synagogue being at the point of death, and heale her. Saint <sup>y</sup> Ambrose, <sup>z</sup> Hierome, <sup>a</sup> Rupert, <sup>b</sup> Anselme, and <sup>c</sup> other affirme, that this woman and this wench are plaine figures of the Gentiles and Iewes. The woman a Gentile had her disease twelue yeeres, and the rulers daughter a Iew raised here was twelue yeere old. The woman fell sicke when the wench was borne: so the Gentiles went their own waies into superstition and idolatrie, when the Iewes in Abraham beleueed. Againe, as Christ here went to raise the wench, and by the way the woman was first healed, and then the wench reuiued; so Christ came to the Iewes, as being sent to the <sup>d</sup> lost sheepe of Israel especially, but the Gentiles beleueed first, and were saued, and in the end the Iewes also shall beleue.

Christ <sup>e</sup> in the three yeeres of his preaching raised three sorts of dead. The first yeere the Widowes sonne in Naim, Luk. 7. the second yeere Jairus daughter, mentioned in this Scripture: the third yeere Lazarus, Ioh. 11. Now <sup>f</sup> Jairus daughter raised in her fathers house resembleth the Iewes; the Widowes sonne carried out of the Towne-gate resembleth the Gentiles, <sup>g</sup> aliants from the common-wealth of Israel, and strangers from the couenants of promise vntill Christs coming, as it were shut out of the Citie of God. Lazarus who laie in his graue foure dayes, is a figure of the Iewish remnant which afore the worlds end shall be railed out of the pit of ignorance and incredulity, wherein they haue lien dead many hundred yeeres, and at the length acknowledge Christ Iesus (whom their fathers crucified) to be their Messias and Sauiour Esay 10 21. The remnant shall returne, euen the remnant of Iacob, vnto the mighty God. For though thy people, O Israel, be as the sand of the sea, yet shall the remnant of them returne. And <sup>b</sup> S. Paul saith, I would not that yee should be ignorant of this secret (lest ye should be arrogant in your selues) that partly obstinacie is come to Israel, vntill the fulnesse of the Gentiles be come in, & then all Israel shall be saued, as it is written, the deliuerer shall come out of Sion, and shall turne away the vngodlinesse from Iacob. When the woman is fully cured which was diseased, the damosell shall be raised which was deceafed. When the fulnesse of the Gentiles is past, Almighty God remembering his old mercy, shall graft the Iewes in againe, and conuert them vnto the Christian faith.

It is wel observed, that beside the Iewes naturall and inrooted obstinacie, there be three great impediments which hinder their conuersion: First, the scandals of vs Christians, as the most vnbrotherly dissention among Protestants, and most abominable

<sup>r</sup> Rupert & Calan. in Hosee cap. 4 Idem Greg mag in multis locis, vti R. bernum 3. in 10<sup>o</sup> & 4. <sup>p</sup> Hieron. in loc. Hosee. <sup>q</sup> Ephes. 4. 19.

<sup>r</sup> Lusher. postil. maior in loc.

<sup>f</sup> Postil. in loc.

<sup>e</sup> Beauxamis ex Emiffino.

<sup>u</sup> 1 Pet. 1. 10.

11.

<sup>z</sup> Esay 64. 1.

<sup>y</sup> In Luc. 8.

<sup>z</sup> Com. in loc.

<sup>a</sup> in loc.

<sup>b</sup> In loc.

<sup>c</sup> Ferus ser. 3. Dom. 25. post Pent.

<sup>d</sup> Matth. 15. 24

<sup>e</sup> Melanct. in Matth. 9.

<sup>f</sup> Soares tract. 3. in Matth. 9.

<sup>g</sup> Ephes. 2. 12.

<sup>b</sup> Rom. 11. 25.

<sup>i</sup> Relation of religion vsed in the West parts of the world, sect. 53.

abominable superstition and grosse worshipping of Images among the Papists. Secondly, want of meanes to teach and instruct them, because the Papists among whom they liue, will not suffer the new Testament in the vulgar tongue. Thirdly, losse, which the Papists by their conversion shall incurre, and (it should seeme by their toleration of Iudaisme) they had rather haue the crownes, then saue the soules of the Jewes: it was necessarie that the Sonne of man should suffer, as it is written of him, and yet <sup>k</sup> woe be to that man by whom the Sonne of man is betrayed: it had beene good for that man if he had neuer beene borne. So it is necessary that the Jewes should persist in their vnbeleefe for a time: but woe be to them whose scandalls are hindrances to their conuersion. For the houre shall come, when Iairus daughter shall be raised againe, she is not dead, but sleepeth. Albeit the Jewes are in a dead sleepe, the Lord in his due time will rouse, yea raise them vp againe from their incredulitie.

For conclusion of the whole, by the goodnesse of Christ, in restoring the sicke woman vnto health in the way, raising the dead wench vnto life in her fathers house; we may learne <sup>l</sup> what to looke for at his hand: namely grace, while we be pilgrimes in this our short, yet troublesome race; but glory, when as we shall rest in heauen, our euerlasting home. According to that of Dauid, <sup>m</sup> The Lord will giue grace and glory, and no good thing will he withhold from such as walke uprightly.

The Epistle IEREM. 23.5.

Behold, the time commeth, saith the Lord, that I will raise vp the righteous branch of Dauid, &c.

THE Church ends, as she began, with her onely Lord and Sauour: which <sup>n</sup> occasioned one to call his postil annulus Christianus, as it were the Christians round, or ring. <sup>o</sup> For all the Gospells are fraught with excellent doctrines of holy faith in Christ, and ordinarily the Epistles are nothing else but earnest exhortations vnto the fruit of faith, a godly life; that we may <sup>p</sup> walke worthy of the Lord and please him in all things. As then on the first Sunday, the Gospell intimating that Christ is come [behold thy King commeth, &c.] and the Epistle teaching that we must imitate our King being come, [put on the Lord Iesus, &c.] are in stead of a Preface: so this Epistle and Gospell on the last Sunday (the one prophecying that the Lord of our righteousnesse shall shortly come, Behold, the time commeth, &c. and the other preaching that hee is already come, this of a truth is the same Prophet that should come into the world) may serue for a <sup>q</sup> conclusion or Epilogue to all the rest of the whole yeere.

The Gospell is expounded Sunday 7. after Trinitie. The Epistle containeth an abridgement of all the chiefe doctrine deliuered in the Church, euen from the first in Aduent, vnto this present day; shewing that Christ is God, and man, and so participating of both natures in one person, is the sole Mediator betweene God and man. Our <sup>r</sup> Euangelicall Prophet, as another Matthew, proues here Christ to be man, in that he was a branch of Dauid. And yet not a meere man, in that the righteous, in whom is <sup>s</sup> no guile: whereas the Scripture witnesseth of other men that they were <sup>t</sup> conceined in sinne, and borne in iniquitie, that <sup>u</sup> all are gone out of the waies of the Lord, and that none doth good, no not one. Christs high stile, the Lord our righteousnesse, is an evident demonstration of his Godhead, as Interpreters haue noted against Arians and Jewes out of this place. Vide Calvin. Instit. lib. 1. cap. 13. §. 9. Galatin. de arcanis, lib. 8. cap. 3. Melanct. propofit. de eccles. propof. 25. Tom. 2. fol. 320. Bekarm. de Christo lib. 1. cap. 7. Indeed there be <sup>x</sup> many Lords, and yet but <sup>y</sup> one Lord, which is the Lord: and many righteous comparatiuely, but none <sup>z</sup> simply good, or righteousnesse it selfe, but onely <sup>a</sup> God the most holy,

<sup>k</sup> Matth. 26. 24

<sup>l</sup> Ferus Con. 1. in loc. Sanitas in via, vita in patria.
<sup>m</sup> P<sup>s</sup>al. 84. 12.

<sup>n</sup> Petrus Machado ord F. pradicat provincial.
<sup>o</sup> Sarcinius in epist. Dom. 22. post Trinit.
<sup>p</sup> Col. 1. 10.

<sup>q</sup> Ferus ser. 3. in euangel. Dom. 26. post Pentecost.

<sup>r</sup> H'er. proam. in lib. 1. Com. Ierem.
<sup>s</sup> Esay 53. 9.
<sup>t</sup> P<sup>s</sup>al. 51. 5.
<sup>u</sup> P<sup>s</sup>al. 14. 4.

<sup>x</sup> 1 Cor. 8. 5.
<sup>y</sup> E phel. 4. 5.
<sup>z</sup> Aug. ep. 54.
<sup>a</sup> Mark. 10. 18.

Now Christ as God-man, or Man-god, is the King of his re-<sup>Wisdome,</sup> deemed ones, in whom obserue three royall vertues especially, <sup>Iustice,</sup> <sup>ve. 5</sup> Mercy, <sup>sauing</sup> Iuda, vers. 6. and deliuering Israel, vers. 7, 8. <sup>b</sup> Not as by Moses out of Egypt only: but out of the hands of <sup>c</sup> all their enemies, and calling them out of all countries and corners of the world, to <sup>d</sup> sit downe with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdome of heauen, being our righteoufnesse <sup>e</sup> efficienter, as author of euery good and perfect gift in vs: and sufficienter, in giuing himselfe a ransome for all men, 1 Tim. 2. 9. and obtaining eternall redemption for vs, Heb. 9. 12. a Iesus immediatly sauing vs himselfe, not by giuing vs power to become our owne Sauiours. And so the righteoufnesse whereby we are saued, is not the righteoufnesse which we by him act for our selues, but that which he in his owne person hath wrought for vs; an imputatiue, not an inherent iustice, <sup>f</sup> consisting not in the perfection of vertue, but in the free pardoning of our sinnes. According to that of David, Blessed is he, whose vnrighteousnesse is forgiven, and whose sinne is covered.

The words of this text, as Hierome notes, are well interpreted by Paul, 1 Cor. 1. 30. Christ is made to vs wisdome, and righteoufnesse, and sanctification, and redemption, that according as it is written, he that reioyceth, let him reioyce in the Lord. As if he should haue said, <sup>h</sup> if these graces are our owne, we may vaunt in our owne. But for as much as Christ is made to vs from God, not onely the beginning of holinesse, wisdome, righteoufnesse, &c. but the perfection of all these: let not flesh boast it selfe in his presence, but he that doth glorie, let him glorie in the Lord. As Christ was made <sup>i</sup> sinne for vs, euen so are we made the righteoufnesse of God in Christ. He was sinne through imputation only, <sup>k</sup> for he did no sinne, neither was there guile found in his mouth. And so we are made righteoufnesse, in that our vnrighteoufnesse is not imputed vnto vs, Rom. 4. 8. As <sup>l</sup> Martin Luther is bold to speake, Christiana sanctitas non est adliua, sed passiuua sanctitas, extra nos est iustitia, non in nobis. It is a righteoufnesse in God, whereby we stand righteous afore God. It is true that we worke righteoufnesse according to the proportion of grace bestowed vpon vs in this life: but for as much as we <sup>m</sup> thirst after the full righteoufnesse in another world. and haue received only the <sup>n</sup> first fruits of the spirit here; to say that we are now thoroughly cleane <sup>o</sup> without spot or wrinkle, or any such thing, is to iustle Christ out of his iustice, and to take from him his due title of honour, which is giuen him in our text, the Lord our righteoufnesse. See Gregor. apud Magdeburg. Cent. 6. col. 681. Luther. ubi supra in margine. Melancthon in Cat. & loc. Com. & exam. tit. de Iustificatioue & bonis operibus. Caluin. Instit. lib. 3. cap. 11. § 11. Dr. Morton Apolog. lib. 1. cap. 2. § 11. & 1 7. 2. & lib 2. cap. 11. Dr. Abbots answer to Bishops Epistle to the King, pag. 138. 139. &c.

Wherefore learne to sing with <sup>p</sup> David: O God which art my righteoufnesse: and to say with <sup>q</sup> Luther, Tu es Domine Iesu, iustitia mea, ego autem sum peccatum tuum: tu assumpsisti meum, & dedisti mihi tuum: assumpsisti quod non eras, & dedisti mihi quod non eram, &c. I conclude with a meditation of <sup>r</sup> Bernard: Thy righteoufnesse, O my deare Sauiour, is not a short cloake that cannot couer two, but being a long robe, and a large righteoufnesse, it will wholly couer thee and me: (a multitude of sinnes in me, but in thee what shall it couer, O Lord, but the treasures of thy goodnesse? To thee, (sweet Iesu) the beginning and ending, which hast out of the riches of thy superabundant grace blessed my studies hitherto, guiding, as I hope, my pen with thy finger, euen from the first lesson vnto this last line: be giuen all honour, power and praise, now and for euer,

Amen.

Glorie be to God on high, and peace to men in earth.

<sup>b</sup> Hieron. in loc.
<sup>c</sup> Luke 1. 7.
<sup>d</sup> Mat 8. 11.
<sup>e</sup> Theopylact.
Aquin.
P. lator in 1
Cor. 1. 30.
Idem Bellarm.
d. Iustificat.
lib 2. cap. 10.
<sup>f</sup> August. de ci-uit. Dei lib 19.
p. 27.
<sup>g</sup> Psal 32. 1.

<sup>h</sup> D. Fulke in loc. ad Cor. ex Christoll. Occumen. Beda.

<sup>i</sup> 2 Cor. 5. 21.
<sup>k</sup> 1 Pet. 2. 22.

<sup>l</sup> Loc. com. tit.
de Iustitia brilliana & remissione pecccatorum.

<sup>m</sup> Matth. 5. 6.

<sup>n</sup> Rom 8. 23.

<sup>o</sup> Ephes. 5. 27.

<sup>p</sup> Psal 4. 1.

<sup>q</sup> Vbi sup.

<sup>r</sup> Serm. 61. in Cant.

<sup>s</sup> Apocal. 7. 9.

AN EXPOSITION
OF THE FESTIVALL
EPISTLES AND GOSPELS,
vsed in our English Liturgie.

TOGETHER VVITH
A REASON WHY THE
Church did chuse the same.

By I O H N B O Y S, Doctor in Diuinitie, and Deane of Canterburie.

PSALM. 105. I.

Laudate Dominum in Sanctis eius.

L O N D O N

Printed by George Miller for William Aspley at the signe of the Parot in Pauls Churchyard. 1630.

T O
T H E M O S T
R E V E R E N D F A T H E R
 I N G O D ; G E O R G E , B Y T H E
 d i u i n e p r o u i d e n c e , L o r d A r c h b i s h o p o f
Canterburie , P r i m a t e o f a l l E n g l a n d , a n d
 M e t r o p o l i t a n e , & c .

M Y V E R Y G O O D L O R D .

Finde three sundry readings of the first words in the last Psalm ; Praise God in his<sup>a</sup> Saints, praise God in his<sup>b</sup> sanctitie, praise God in his<sup>c</sup> Sanctuarie. God is to be praised in his Saints, as hauing out of the riches of his mercy bestowed on them eminent gifts of grace, the which as their bequeathed<sup>d</sup> legacies and only true reliques are to be remembred often in Gods Church vnto Gods people, that ( as<sup>e</sup> B. Latymer speakes ) we may worship the Saints in following their good examples And so these three lines meeting in one center, intimate that the most holy ( being donor of euery good and perfect

<sup>a</sup> Hieron. Augustin. Eubym.
<sup>b</sup> Anonymus, and our old English translation.
<sup>c</sup> Vatablus, Calvin. Engl. sh. Geneva Bib. & Genbrardus ex Chaldaeo.
<sup>d</sup> Euseb. Emisen. hom. de S. Maximo.
<sup>e</sup> Sermon on Christmas day preached at Bexterley.

The Epistle Dedicatorie.

† Philip. 2. 15.

‡ Dan. 12. 3.

fect gift) ought to be magnified in his Sanctuarie for his sanctitie conferred vpon his Saints, whereby they shined as lights in this heauen on earth, and now shine like starres in heauen of heauen. For this end I haue begun, and hope to finish an exposition of the Festiuall Epistles and Gospels vsed in our English Liturgie. The which (howsoever herein I may seeme bold) yet am I bound to dedicate vnto your Grace for many respectiue considerations, especially for this one, because your honourable disposition in the midst of a crooked nation is euermore to be both a patron and a patterne of vnfained sanctitis. Thus humbly beseeching the Lord to blesse, and your Grace to fauour these my labours;

I rest.

Your Graces seruant in all dutie,

JOHN BOYS.

St. ANDREWES DAY.

The Epistle. ROM. 10. 9.

If thou knowledg with thy mouth that Iesus is the Lord, and beleene in thy heart that God raised him up from death, thou shalt be safe, &c.

THE Gospell and Epistle chosen for this Festiuall, intimate the true reason of our Church, in celebrating the memories of the blessed Apostles and Euangelists vnto Gods honour, namely, because they were fishers of men, ambassadors of peace, preachers of good tidings, euen the <sup>a</sup> disposers of the riches of God in Christ indifferently to men of all sexes and sorts, in that their sound went out into all lands, and their words into the ends of the world; and so by consequent principall instruments of God in the worke of our saluation and eternall happinesse. Which our Apostle sheweth here by this <sup>b</sup> Sorites or gradation :

*Whosoener calleth vpon the name of the Lord shall be saved.
Inuocation is by faith,
Faith is by hearing of the Word,
Hearing is by the Preachers,*

And Preachers are sent of God &c. Ergo, such as haue learned Christ, in their minde beleeuing vndoubtedly, with their mouth acknowledging him vndauntedly for their Iesus : ought to praise God in his Apostles, as being after Christ immediatly the first, and vnder Christ absolutely the chiefe Trumpetors of the Gospell, which is the <sup>c</sup> power of God vnto saluation.

Proposition : If thou knowledg, &c. verse 9.

Causa causati,
the meanes
of our iustification, and herein a

- Proofs:
- 1. From a sufficient enumeration of the principall heads of <sup>d</sup> Christianitie :
  - 2. From the testimony of the Prophets:

Faith; for to beleene with the heart iustifieth.
Good works; to knowledg with the mouth, &c. verse 10
<sup>e</sup> Esay : Whosoener beleueth on him, &c. verse 11.
<sup>f</sup> Ioel : Whosoener doth call, &c. verse 13.

In the whole text 2. points are remarkable :

Causa causa, the <sup>g</sup> meane for these meanes, and that is the preaching of the Gospell, in this respect aptly termed the word of faith, verse 8.

<sup>a</sup> 1 Cor. 4. 1.

<sup>b</sup> Martyr. Sacerdus. Calvin.

<sup>c</sup> Rom. 1. 16.

<sup>d</sup> Actius.

<sup>e</sup> Cap. 38. 16.

<sup>f</sup> Cap. 2. 32.

<sup>g</sup> Melancthon. Pareus.

If thou knowledg<sup>e</sup>] S. Paul hauing in the Chapter afore, sufficiently discourf'd of the reiection of the Iewes à priori, from Gods absolute decree (showing<sup>h</sup> mercie on whom he will, and whom he will hardening) he commeth in this present, to demonstrate the same point à <sup>i</sup> posteriore, from their obstinate incredulitie, <sup>k</sup> stablishing their own righteousnesse, and not submitting themselves vnto the righteousnesse of God in Christ, apprehended and applied by faith onely, declaring it selfe in a twofold act; one which is <sup>l</sup> outward, to confesse with the mouth: another which is inward, to beleue with the heart. <sup>m</sup> Some confesse but beleue not, as hypocrites: other beleue but confesse not, as timorous and Peter-like professors in the dayes of persecution: other doe neither confesse nor beleue on Christ, as Atheists: other both confesse and beleue, and they be true Christians. A <sup>n</sup> bare confessing with the mouth is not enough, except thou beleue with thine heart, Esay 29 13. This people come neere to me with their mouth, & honour me with their lips, but haue remoued their heart farre from me, &c. Neither is it sufficient vnto saluation onely to beleue with the heart, vnlesse thou confesse with the mouth; according to that vnauidable sentence, Matth. 10. 33. Whosoever shall deny me before men, him also will I deny before my father which is in heauen.

Now though in nature beleueing with the heart, precede confessing with the tongue: yet Paul mentioneth acknowledging in the first place, <sup>o</sup> for that we doe not know the faith of such as beleue, but by their confession; according to that of P. S. James, I will shew thee my faith by my workes. Here then obserue, that to confesse the Lord Iesus is necessary <sup>q</sup> both in respect of other, and our selues. In respect of other, <sup>r</sup> as being herewith armed in the times of persecution, and instructed in the dayes of peace. Christ is the fountaine of the waters of life; faith in the heart is as the pipes and cesterne that receiue in, and hold the water; and confession with the mouth, as the cocke of the Conduit, that lets out the water vnto euery commer. And therefore <sup>s</sup> let your light so shine before men, as that they may see your good workes, and glorifie your Father which is in heauen. Againe, to confesse, <sup>t</sup> that is, to praise Christ in thy words, and to doe whatsoeuer appertaineth vnto his worship, is needfull in regard of our selues, <sup>u</sup> in that a true faith is neuer idle, but alway working by loue, Galat. 5. 6. For although it iustifieth alone, yet it is no more alone, <sup>x</sup> then the heat of the Sunne which alone warmes the earth is seuered from light: or then Christ is disioyned from his Spirit: Caluin apud Bellarmin. de Iustificat. lib. 1. cap. 15. s. Caluinus: or then a hand when it alone doth apprehend any thing is separated from the body: Luther apud Sanderum de Iustificat. lib. 4. cap. 4.

This doctrine makes against the <sup>y</sup> Priscilianists in old time, defending this axiome, Iura, per iura, secretum prodere noli. And the <sup>z</sup> Libertines in our age, who following the Carpocratian Heretiks, hold it lawfull to dissemble their faith afore the Magistrate. As also the Nicodemites ashamed of Christ, and equiuocating Iesuites forswearing their Priesthood, and the Pope their holy father, vpon euery pretended occasion of danger. In a word, all weather-wise professors, aduenturing no more for the glorious Gospell, than one lately did for his horrible blasphemie. who being bound to the stake, suffered onely the singeing of his beard. This open acknowledging of Christ is necessarie, not only casu mortis, at the point of death, as Liranus: or in the dayes of persecution, as Lombard: but at all times, and in euery place, when occasion is offered iustly, faith <sup>a</sup> Aguine. For seeing it is an affirmatiue precept, obligat semper, et si non ad semper. As Christ in his <sup>b</sup> Gospell expressly, Whosoever shall be ashamed of me, and of my words, among this adulterous and sinfull generation, of him shall the Sonne of man be ashamed also, when he commeth in the glory of his Father with the holy Angels,

Whereas <sup>c</sup> Bellarmine inferreth out of this text, fidem non sufficere ad salutem, that faith is not sufficient vnto saluation, vnlesse confession of the mouth and other good workes as efficient causes concurre with it in the businesse: our answer may be taken out of his old Schooleman Aguine, and Cardinall Tolet. <sup>d</sup> Aguine doth affirme, that confession is an act of faith, according to that

<sup>b</sup> Rom. 9. 18.<sup>i</sup> Aretius.<sup>k</sup> Verbe 3.<sup>l</sup> Thomas 2. 2. e. quest. 3. art. 1.<sup>m</sup> D. Willet in loc.

Idem Gorran in loc.

<sup>n</sup> Ardens. Theophylact.<sup>o</sup> Martyr.

Heming.

Aretius.

<sup>p</sup> Cap. 2. 18.<sup>q</sup> Saceruus.<sup>r</sup> Occumen.<sup>s</sup> Matth. 5. 16.<sup>t</sup> Paris.<sup>u</sup> Church

Hom of faith.

&amp; Confess. Ang.

glican art. 2.

See Rogers ibid.

&amp; Caluin. Instit.

lib. 3. cap. 16.

<sup>x</sup> Caluin. apud

Bellarm. de

Iustificat. lib. 1.

cap. 14.

<sup>y</sup> S. Iohannes.<sup>z</sup> August. heres.

70.

<sup>a</sup> Martyr in loc.<sup>b</sup> In loc. & 2. 2. e.

quest. 3. art. 2.

<sup>c</sup> Mark. 8. 38.<sup>d</sup> De Iustificat.

lib. 4. cap. 7.

<sup>e</sup> S. Ostaunum.<sup>f</sup> 2. 2. e. quest. 3.

art. 1.

of the Psalmist, I beleueed, and therefore haue I spoken. And in his second Lecture vpon this Chapter, he that is once iustified by faith ought to be filled with the fruit of righteousnesse. Postquam homo per fidem est iustificatus, oportet quod eius fides per dilectionem operetur ad consequendam salutem. And Cardinall B Tolet in plaine termes: Oris confessio nos non iustificat à peccato, &c. sed iustificati tenemur eam palam profiteri, &c. Confession of the mouth doth not iustifie vs; but being iustified, we are bound publicly to professe it afore we can attaine to saluation. Herein agreeing with our Protestant Interpreters, affirming that good workes are consequents and effects of a true faith, as if Paul should haue said here, we are iustified by faith onely, but yet this faith is operative, bringing forth liuely fruits, as the confession of the mouth, and the profession of the life; for they be necessarie to saluation, albeit faith alone be sufficient in the act of iustification, as you may see further Epist. Quinquages. and Sunday 2. in Lent.

In the words (and beleuee in thine heart that God hath raised him vp from the dead) three points are considerable, namely, Faiths

Act, Object, Subiect.

Faiths act is to beleuee, and to beleuee hath these degrees (as the Schoole teacheth out of Augustine) Credere Deo, credere Deum, & credere in Deum. A wicked man and a wretched deuill, may so farre proceed in faith, as to beleuee there is a God, and in grosse to beleuee God: but a true Christian endued with a sauing faith ascends higher, and beleueeth in God also. That is, he knowes, God as he hath reuealed himselfe in his word, acknowledging him onely for his God, and thereupon puts his whole trust in him, applying to himselfe Gods mercifull promise made to father Abraham and his seed, with the heart vnto iustification, and confessing the same with the mouth vnto saluation. He disclaimes not his part in Christ as the deuils, Ab, what haue we to doe with thee thou Iesus of Nazareth? art thou come to torment vs before the time? but he challengeth his portion in the bloud of his Sauour, saying with the Church in her loue-song, My welbeloued is mine: and with Paul, Christ is become to vs wisdom, righteousnesse, sanctification, and redemption. His bodie is in heauen, there shall I finde it mine: his diuinitie is on earth, and here doe I feele it mine: his word is in mine eare, to beget him mine: his Sacrament is in mine eye, to confirme him mine: his Spirit is in mine heart, to assure him mine: Angels are mine, to fight for me: Prince mine, to rule for me: Church mine, to pray for me: Vniuersitie mine, to studie for me: Pastor mine, to preach for me: all mine, whether it be Paul, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, whether they be things present, or things to come, euen all are mine, I am Christs, and Christ is Gods.

Faiths object is all holy Scripture, the summe whereof is the Creed, and this one point, how God raised vp Iesus from the dead, is nexus articulorum omnium, as it were the bond or tying knot, on which all other linkes of our beleefe depend. For if it were not true, that Christ is risen againe: then were it neither true, that he did ascend vp to heauen, nor that he sitteth at the right hand of his Father in heauen, nor that he sent downe the holy Spirit from heauen, nor that he shall come from thence to iudge the quicke and the dead. In a word, the matter of the whole Creed concerneth either God, or the Church his Spouse. Now the raising of Christ from the dead is the worke of God the Father, Acts 2. 32. of himselfe being God the Sonne, Iohn 10. 18. of God the Holy Ghost also, Rom. 1. 4. Christ as God, onely raiseth and is not raised: as man, he is onely raised and raiseth not: as the Sonne of God, or second Person in the blessed Trinitie, both the Father raiseth him, and he raiseth himselfe. The Father raiseth the Sonne by the Sonne, and the Sonne raiseth himselfe by the Spirit of holinesse, by which he was declared to be the Sonne of God. As for the Church: our Apostle sheweth else-where, that Christ died for her sinnes, and rose againe for her iustification; and that ascending vpon high, he bestowed on her gifts, as to be Catholike, holy, knit in a communion: and prerogatiues in her soule, namely, remission of sinnes: in the bodie, resurrection of the flesh: in both,

<sup>c</sup> Psal. 116. 10.
& 2 Cor 4. 13
<sup>f</sup> Philip. 1. 11.

<sup>b</sup> In loc.

<sup>b</sup> Melancthon.
Caluin.
Heming.
Piscator.
Chytraeus.
Tiemans.

<sup>i</sup> Lombard 3.
sent. dist. 25 &
Aquin. 2. 2a. q. 2
art. 2.

<sup>k</sup> Tract 29. in Ioan & Ier. 181.
de Temp.

<sup>l</sup> Perkins expo-sit Creed, art. 1.

<sup>m</sup> See Church
Hom. of saluation, part 3.

<sup>n</sup> Mark. 2. 24.
<sup>o</sup> Matth. 8. 19.

<sup>p</sup> Cant. 6. 2.

<sup>q</sup> 1 Cor. 1. 30.

<sup>r</sup> 1 Cor. 3. 22,
23.

<sup>f</sup> Church Hom
of faith, part 1.

<sup>c</sup> Augustin. ser.
115 de Temp.
& Ambros. ser.
38

<sup>u</sup> Martyr. in loc.

<sup>x</sup> Church hom.
of Christs resurrection.

<sup>y</sup> Thom. 3. part.
q. 53 art. 4.

<sup>z</sup> Parvus.

<sup>a</sup> Rom. 1. 4.

<sup>b</sup> Rom. 4. 25.

<sup>c</sup> Ephes 4. 8.

<sup>d</sup> Pifcator.

<sup>c</sup> Gorran.

<sup>f</sup> Anselm. Idem Augustin. apud Martyr. in loc.

<sup>g</sup> Caluin.

<sup>h</sup> Melancthon.

<sup>i</sup> 1 Pet. 1. 10.

<sup>k</sup> Haggai. 2. 8.

<sup>l</sup> Acts 2. 36.

<sup>m</sup> Ephes. 5. 2.

<sup>n</sup> Heb. 9. 14. 28

<sup>o</sup> Coloff. 2. 14.

<sup>p</sup> Ephes. 4. 3.

<sup>q</sup> In presenti iustitiam, in fu-turo salutem.

Anselm. in loc.

<sup>r</sup> Melancthon

<sup>s</sup> 1 beophylact.

Caietan.

<sup>t</sup> Lombard.

Martyr.

Caluin.

<sup>u</sup> Acts 10. 34.

<sup>x</sup> Ardens.

<sup>y</sup> Hyperius apud

Marlorat.

<sup>z</sup> Luk. 7. 5.

<sup>a</sup> Matth. 17. 54.

<sup>b</sup> Luk. 23. 42.

<sup>c</sup> Caluin.

Paræus.

Dr. Willet in loc.

<sup>d</sup> Heming.

<sup>e</sup> Perkins expo-siti. Creed. art. 1.

Dr. Fulke in

2 Cor. 13. 1.

disallowes not this assertion in the Rhem.

Vide Thom. 2. 2. e

quest. 4. art. 2.

et Bellarmin. de

Instit. lib. 1. c. 6.

<sup>f</sup> Sarcerius.

Bezæ.

<sup>g</sup> Perkins ubi

supra.

<sup>h</sup> In Galat. 5. 5.

everlasting life. Wherefore Paul here mentioneth only the resurrection of Christ from the dead, not exclusively, but <sup>d</sup> synecdochically, because this one article <sup>e</sup> presupposeth all the rest, and takes them as granted; as if he rose from the graue, then he died, and his death is a consequent of his birth. Or because this article was, and is most <sup>f</sup> doubted in the world, for the Iewes and Gentiles acknowledge the death of Iesus; whereas the Christians only confesse his resurrection. Or because the <sup>g</sup> rest (vnlesse Christ had risen againe) would haue profited vs little, for he triumphed in his resurrection ouer death, hell, damnation, opening the kingdome of heauen to all beleeuers.

And so the meaning of our Text is plaine, If thou confesse with thy mouth that Iesus is the Lord: <sup>h</sup> that is, that Lord, <sup>i</sup> of whom all the Prophets inquired, as being the <sup>k</sup> desire of all Nations, euen the light of the Gentiles, and consolation of Israel. And if thou beleene in thine heart, that this Iesus (whom Almighty God hath made <sup>l</sup> both Lord and Christ) offered <sup>m</sup> himselfe a sacrifice to <sup>n</sup> purge thy conscience from dead workes, and take away thy sinnes, <sup>o</sup> putting out and fasting vpon the Crosse the Lawes obligation against vs, and that hauing overcome death, and the deuill, he rose againe, <sup>p</sup> leading captiuitie captiue, that he might hereby deliuer thee from the bands and bands of all thine enemies; I may tell thee from Paul, and Paul here from God, vnto the comfort of thy soule, that thou art now <sup>q</sup> presently iustified, and shalt be hereafter eternally saned. For the Scripture saith, whosoener beleeneth in him, shall not be confounded. <sup>r</sup> That is, whosoener hath a sure trust in God that he will euen for his Christs sake pardon all his sinnes, and blot out all his offences: and out of this assurance calleth on the name of the Lord, he shall be safe. For the two testimonies of the two Prophets <sup>s</sup> answer the two clausēs of Paul, Esay speaking of the beleeuing in the heart, and Isa. of acknowledging with the mouth.

And in these Texts of the Prophets, obserue their <sup>t</sup> vniuersall note, whosoener, for God is <sup>u</sup> no respecter of persons, he puts no difference betweene the Iew and the Gentile, but being Lord ouer all is rich vnto all that call vpon him. <sup>x</sup> Other Lords cannot reward all their followers, as being poore; many will not, as being illiberrall and fordide: but our God is <sup>y</sup> able, because Lord of all; and willing, because rich vnto all of whatsoener condition or countrey. Poore Bartimeus begging, rich Zacheus climbing, old Simeon in the Temple, young John in the wombe, couetous Matthew grinding his neighbour at the receipt of Custome, the louing Centurion <sup>z</sup> building his Nation a Synagogue, the people <sup>a</sup> watching vnder the Crosse, the <sup>b</sup> theefe hanging on the Crosse, confessing the Lord Iesus, and walking in the sunne-shine of his Gospell; indifferently finde refreshing in the conscience, rest in the soule. For whosoener beleeneth on him shall not be confounded, and whosoener calleth on his name shall be saned.

As for the subiect or seat of faith: it is said here, with the heart man beleeneth: Ergo, faith (as many <sup>c</sup> Protestant authors haue noted) is not placed in the minde, or vnderstanding only; but in the will and affections also. <sup>d</sup> For faith, as it is notitia, resides in the minde: but as fiducia, seated in the will. <sup>e</sup> Other Interpreters (etiam nota purioris, and no way branded with the markes of Antichrist) hold it not greatly to stand with reason, that one particular and single grace should be placed in diuers parts and faculties of the soule. It is true, that faith is not a meere prattle of the tongue, nor a floting <sup>f</sup> opinion of the braine: but a certaine perswasion of the heart. Yet notwithstanding this perswasion, or particular knowledge, whereby a man is resoluēd that the promises of saluation appertaine to him, is wrought in the minde by the Holy Ghost, 1 Cor. 2. 12. A sure trust and a stedfast hope of all good things to be receiued at Gods hand, is <sup>g</sup> not haply faith, (if we speake properly) but rather a fruit of faith, in that no man hath affiance in God, vntill he be first of all perswaded of his mercy toward him in Christ Iesu.

For mine owne part, I confesse with <sup>h</sup> Luther ingenuously, that it is exceeding hard to distinguish exactly betweene faith and hope, there is so great affinitie betweene betweene them, one hauing respect to the other, as the two Cherubins on the Mercy-seat, Exod. 25. 20. Faith engendreth hope, and from hope proceeds assurance, which is nothing else but hope strengthened. For whereas an hypocrites confidence shall be like the house of a spider: <sup>k</sup> he that putteth his trust in the Lord, shall be euen as the mount Sion, which may not be remoued, but standeth fast for euer.

<sup>i</sup> Job 8. 14.
<sup>k</sup> Psal. 125. 1.

And for as much as the word heart in my Text (as is agreed on all sides) is put for the whole soule, without limitation to any part: all that I will obserue from hence shall be, that as wee must loue God; euen so beleue in God with all our heart, and soule, and minde. <sup>l</sup> For hypocrites haue forged faith, and deuils haue forced faith, acknowledging against their will out of horror vnto their condemnation, and not out of loue from their heart to their iustification, that Iesus is the Lord. A Recufant may be brought vnto the Church against his will, and compelled in despite of his teeth also to receiue the Sacramentall Bread and Wine: <sup>m</sup> but none can beleue that Iesus is their Iesus, but with the heart onely. See Gospell Sund. 8. and Epistle Sund 10. after Trinitie.

<sup>l</sup> Caietan.

<sup>m</sup> Lombard.

How shall they call on him on whom they haue not beleueed? A plaine Text against the Gentiles Idolatrie, praying vnto gods vnknowne. As Hecuba in Emipides; O Iupiter quicquides, sine hoc caelum, sine mens in caelo, quanquam diu iam ignauos opitulatores inuoco. And it is a pregnant euidence to confute the Papists in their inuocation of Saints also; for if they trust in S. Martin or Mary, S. Catherine or Clare they rob the Creator to clothe his creatures, and a cursed be man that puts his confidence in man, and makes flesh his arme. If they trust not, how doe they call on him in whom they beleueed not? Our heavenly Father saith in his word, Call vpon me: Christ our Aduocate with the Father in like sort, Come vnto me, for I am the way, the truth, and the life, John 14. 6. Non est qua eas nisi per me, non est quod eas nisi ad me: No way to God but by me, no light but from me, no life but in me. Christ is a mutuall helpe: to the Father one; to vs another. An hand to the Father, by which he reacheth vs: an hand to vs, by which we reach him. The Fathers mouth, by which he speaketh vnto vs: our mouth to the Father, by which we speake to him. Our eye to see by, footway to goe by, the pillar of fire by night, and cloud by day guiding his Israel in the wilderness of this world. Wherefore let vs call on him in whom alone we beleue, which is our strength and refuge in the time of trouble, promising in his Gospell, Aske, and ye shall haue: seeke, and ye shall finde: knocke, and it shall be opened vnto you. See Gospell on the 5. Sund. after Easter.

<sup>n</sup> Melancthon.
<sup>o</sup> Acts 17. 23.
<sup>p</sup> Dr. Fulke.
Kilius.
Paraus in loc.
Idem Melanct.
Apol. August.
Confess. art. 2. 1.
et Perkins reform. Cat. in 14.
<sup>q</sup> Ieremy 17. 5
<sup>r</sup> Psal. 50. 15.
<sup>s</sup> Matth. 11. 28.
<sup>t</sup> August. vult. 22. in Ioan.

<sup>u</sup> Exod. 13. 21.
<sup>x</sup> Ierem. 16. 19
<sup>y</sup> Matth. 7. 7.

Commission, as being sent of God.

God and man.
Man and man.

<sup>a</sup> Dignitie, Errand, as being in respect of their <sup>b</sup> ambassadors of good things, euen such as bring tidings of peace<sup>a</sup> between

Man and himselfe. Wherefore <sup>b</sup> desire the Lord to send forth <sup>c</sup> labourers into his haruest, honouring such Elders as rule well, and labour in the word, euen with double honour, 1 Tim. 5. 17. receiuing them as Angels, yea as Christ himselfe, Gal. 4. 14.

<sup>z</sup> Melancthon.
Martyr.
Tilman.
<sup>a</sup> Aquin.
<sup>b</sup> Kilius.
<sup>c</sup> Match 9. 38.

How shall they heare without a Preacher? Here you may behold the Ministers Dutie; for if faith come by hearing, and hearing by preaching, so that the word of God vnto faith is as <sup>d</sup> oyle to the lampe:

such as will haue their feet kissed, ought to bring tidings of good things. If they will haue the <sup>e</sup> worthy, good reason they should do the worke. For assuredly such as croud into the Clergy without performance of their office, either through ignorance, that they cannot; or secular imployment, that they may not; or negligence, that they will not; or feare of trouble, that they dare not preach the word of God; are <sup>f</sup> aduersaries vnto the doctrine of the Church of England, and enemies of the Crosse of Christ, Philip. 3. 19. See further in the Gospell ensuing.

<sup>d</sup> Chrysost.
<sup>e</sup> 1 Tim. 3. 1.

<sup>f</sup> Rogers in Anglican. Confess. art. 23 proposi. 2

The Gospell. MATTH. 4.18.

As Iesus walked by the sea of Galile, he saw two brethren, Simon which was called Peter, and Andrew his brother, casting a net into the sea (for they were fishers) &c.

In this Gospell is set downe the  $\left. \begin{array}{l} \text{Calling} \\ \text{Comming} \end{array} \right\}$  of foure Apostles.

Who? Iesus.

Where? By the sea of Galile.

When? At the beginning of his preaching.

In their calling these circumstances are considerable:

Whom, in  $\left. \begin{array}{l} \text{Name,} \\ \text{Number,} \\ \text{Nature,} \end{array} \right\}$

$\left. \begin{array}{l} \text{Peter.} \\ \text{Andrew.} \\ \text{Iames.} \\ \text{Iohn.} \end{array} \right\}$ two and two.

$\left. \begin{array}{l} \text{Brethren.} \\ \text{Fishers.} \end{array} \right\}$

Why? That they might become fishers of men.

How? He saw them, and said vnto them, follow me and I will make you, &c.

<sup>5</sup> Exposit. prior. in Galat. cap. 1.

<sup>6</sup> Postil. in loc.

<sup>7</sup> 2 Pet. 1. 21.

<sup>8</sup> Ioh. 20. 21.

<sup>9</sup> Ioh. 1. 6.

<sup>10</sup> Matth. 10. 5.

<sup>11</sup> Vet. poemata de corrupto stat. ecclesie per illyricum.

<sup>12</sup> Ieremy 23. 21.

<sup>13</sup> Philip 3. 2. 18.

<sup>14</sup> Iohn 10. 1.

<sup>15</sup> Matth. 7. 15.

<sup>16</sup> Luther & Latimer. in loc.

<sup>17</sup> Heb. 5. 4.

<sup>18</sup> Anglican. Confess. art. 23.

<sup>19</sup> Rogers ibidem.

<sup>20</sup> Luther & Kilian in loc.

As Iesus walked.] There be foure sorts of Apostles (as <sup>5</sup> Hierome and <sup>6</sup> Luther obserue) some be sent only from God, and not by men: immediatly from God the Father, as the <sup>7</sup> Prophets vnder the Law; <sup>8</sup> Iesus Christ, and <sup>9</sup> Iohn Baptist in the beginning of the Gospell: immediatly from God the Sonne, in his state mortall, as the <sup>10</sup> twelue Apostles: in his state glorious or immortal, as S. Paul, Acts 9. 15. Other are sent by men, and not by God: as they who being vnworthy both in respect of their bad learning, and worse liuing, croud notwithstanding into the Ministerie, through alliance, fauour, or symonie. Which occasioned one to say that horses are more miserable then asses, in that horses did post ordinarily to Rome to get asses preferment.

<sup>11</sup> Cum Iesu Iudas, cum Simone sur Ananias,

In templo Christi semper sunt quatuor isti.

Other are neither chosen of God, nor called by men, as the false prophets, of whom it is said in holy Scripture, that they <sup>12</sup> run without a warrant; <sup>13</sup> euill workers, enemies of Christs Crosse, <sup>14</sup> theues climbing into the Church at the window, not entring in at the doore, <sup>15</sup> rauening wolues in sheepes clothing. See Gospell on the 2. Sunday after Easter, and 8. after Trinitie.

Other are both elected of God, and ordained by men, as the Bishops of Ephesus, Acts 20. 28. and other Elders in the Primitiue Church, Acts 14. 23. and all orthodoxe Preachers of the word in our age. For as the Gospell and Epistle well accord, how shall they preach vntesse they be sent? No man (although hee were more wise then either Salomon or Daniel) ought to take this honour vnto himselfe, <sup>16</sup> except he be called of God. I say called of God either immediatly by himselfe, so Christ here called his Apostles; or else mediately by <sup>17</sup> such as haue publike authoritie giuen vnto them in the congregation, to call and send Ministers into the Lords vineyard, and so Christ at this houre calleth Apostles in our Church, in that the conformable Ministers of England are chosen according to his word, as we teach against the Brownists and Barronists; as also canonically consecrated, as we proue to the proud pontifician aduersarie. See Doctor Fulke & Willet in Rom. 10. Perkins Treatise of Callings: Rogers in Anglican. Confess. art. 23. proposition 1. & 5. Sheldons motiues, obseruation of pontifician spirits, pag. 17. And surely God hath as it were set his hand and seale to the full approbation of our callings, in that he blesteth our labours in the Ministerie for the conuersion conuerſion of many ſoules in England. For euery learned and induſtrious Paſtor may tell his people which he begets vnto God in Chriſt, as <sup>x</sup> Paul once told the Corinthians: If I be not an Apoſtle to other, yet doubtleſſe I am vnto you, for ye are the ſeale of mine Apoſtleſhip in the Lord.

By the ſea of Galile.] This (as <sup>y</sup> Interpreters obſerue) was not the maine ſea, but a little creeke only, The lake Genezareth, as we reade Luke 5. 1. but it is called a ſea, for that the <sup>z</sup> Scripture termeth all gathering together of waters, ſeas: and the ſea of Galile, for that it bounded vpon the borders of the <sup>a</sup> two Galilces. Conſulte Plin hiſt. lib. 5. cap. 15. Iofeph. de bello Iudaico, lib. 3. cap. 18. Strab. Geogra. lib. 15. pag. 504.

In this lake Peter and Andrew were fiſhing, James and Iohn mending their nets. Here I note with Arius and <sup>b</sup> other vnto your comfort, that Almighty God is wont to bleſſe men eſpecially, when they be buſied in their proper element, and well imployed in their owne vocations. An Angell being a meſſenger of gladneſſe, appeared vnto Zacharius, <sup>c</sup> as he executed the Priests office beſore God, as his courſe came in order. An Angell alſo deliuered the firſt ioyous tidings of Chriſts birth vnto <sup>d</sup> ſhepherds attending their ſlocke by night in the field. While Saul according to his fathers expreſſe commandement fought for aſſes, he found a kingdom, 1 Sam. 9. ſo Chriſt here ſeeing Peter and Andrew not idle, but caſting a net into the ſea; nor yet ouer-buſie, meddling in other mens trade; but only labouring in their owne calling, (for they were fiſhers) he ſaith vnto them inſtantly, follow me, and I will make you to become fiſhers of men. A laſie perſon is vnfit for the Clergy, for none but <sup>e</sup> labourers are ſent into the Lords haruelt. On the contrary, the <sup>f</sup> curious and ouer-actiue ſpirit is vnprofitable, for he will haue one foot in the Church, another in the Court, and if God had made him a Tripod, he would haue had a third in the Campe. Miles equis, piſcator aquis, &c. an hammer is for the Smith, an Homer for the Schoole. Let the ſhoemaker attend his boot, and the fiſher his boat. <sup>g</sup> He that comes to the corne heape, the more he openeth his hand to receiue, the leſſe he doth hold: ſo he that enlargeth himſelfe to beare the moſt offices in a State, the fewer ſhall he ſufficiently diſcharge. The worme <sup>h</sup> miltipeda or multipoda, though it haue many feet, is of a very ſlow paſe. So Luther ſaid of Erasmus: Quia vult in omnibus ſapere, ſeipſum decipit. And <sup>k</sup> Melancthon of Vbiq̄uitaries in Arts, in omnibus aliquid, in toto nihil ſcirt. The witty <sup>l</sup> Poet trimly, Omnia cum facias, miraris cur facias nil?

(Poſtume) rem ſolam qui facit, ille facit.

Againe, Chriſt called his Apoſtles in the miſt of their fiſhing, <sup>m</sup> that wee might hereby learne to preferre the following of him before the buſineſſe of the world: or Ieſus haply walked by the ſea, for that he did intend to chuſe fiſhers. <sup>n</sup> Hereby teaching vs not to ſhun, but rather to ſeek thoſe places where we may doe good. As the poore cottage, that we may releue the needie: the houſe of mourning, that we may binde vp the broken hearted, and remoue the ſpirit of heauineſſe: the dungeon of Iofeph and Daniel, preaching liberty to the captiues, and opening of the priſon vnto them that are bound. <sup>o</sup> Flecte quod eſt rigidum, ſoue quod eſt frigidum, rege quod eſt durum.

The next circumſtance to be conſidered, is the time when and that (as our Euangelift in the 17. verſe) was ſo ſoone as Ieſus began to preach. For <sup>p</sup> as a King who reſolues to make warre againſt an enemy Prince, chuſeth his Captaines, and muſters his ſouldiers, and in euery point fits himſelfe for the preſent action: euen ſo Chriſt Ieſus the King of the Church, intending to <sup>q</sup> caſt out of his hold Satan the prince of this world, calleth his followers, and out of them electeth his Apoſtles, as chiefe Commanders and Coronels in the very beginning of his preaching, that being trained vp in his ſchoole, ſeeing his wonders, and hearing his wiſdome, they might be made fit for that excellent and eminent calling. <sup>r</sup> They were firſt (as <sup>s</sup> S. Iohn reports) acquainted with Chriſt, <sup>t</sup> afterward made Diſciples, and laſt of all Apoſtles. And <sup>u</sup> therefore Chriſt here ſaith, I will make you to become fiſhers of men. Hee ſaith not, I doe now make: but hauing inſtructed

<sup>a</sup> 1 Cor. 9. 2.

<sup>y</sup> Rabanus apud Thomam. Ariens. lanſen. in loc.

<sup>z</sup> Gen. 1. 10.
<sup>a</sup> Maldonat.

<sup>b</sup> Ariens in loc.

<sup>c</sup> Luk. 1. 8.

<sup>d</sup> Luke 2. 8.

<sup>e</sup> Matth 9. 38

<sup>f</sup> Ariens in loc.

<sup>g</sup> Perkins treat of Callings.

<sup>h</sup> Plin. hiſt. lib. 29. cap. 6.

<sup>i</sup> Colloq. tom. 1. pa. 203.

<sup>k</sup> Bucan. preſat. loc. Com.

<sup>l</sup> Marullus epi-gram lib. 3.

<sup>m</sup> Chryſoſt. apud Thomam in loc.

<sup>n</sup> Ariens. Beauuamis.

<sup>o</sup> Kilins.

<sup>p</sup> Chryſoſt. apud Beauuamis. in loc.

<sup>q</sup> Iohn 12. 21.

<sup>r</sup> Latymers Ser vpon this Goſpell

<sup>s</sup> Cap 1 39.

<sup>t</sup> For this was a ſecond calling, as Ruſhworth

<sup>u</sup> Anſelm. in loc.

<sup>a</sup> Biuſcul. in loc.

them all his life, and breathing on them the Holy Ghost after his resurrection, he speaks in the present, <sup>x</sup> As my father sent me, so send I you, y goe teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and the Sonne, and the Holy Ghost. And that they might be powerfull and profitable teachers of other, he <sup>z</sup> filled them also with the gifts of the Spirit after such a manner, and in so great a measure, that they <sup>a</sup> could not but speake the things which they had heard and seene of Christ. And that not in one corner, or in a few countries only, but (as it is in the select Epistle for this day) their sound went out into all lands, and their words into the ends of the world. In the beginning they were rude, <sup>b</sup> first Disciples, afterward Doctors, a great while learners afore they were leaders. Hence fathers of the Church are taught not to haue <sup>χειρας ευχρηστας</sup>, <sup>c</sup> hastie hands and ouer-easie for admittance into sacred orders without triall and testimonie, 1 Tim. 3. and the children of the Prophets also may learne to be <sup>d</sup> swift to heare, slow to speake, neuer affecting, much lesse ascending Moses chaire, before God makes them apt and able to teach as well by their holy conuersation, as wholesome doctrine. For as the weights and measures of the <sup>e</sup> Sanctuarie, to wit the sicle, talent and cubite, were of a <sup>f</sup> double bignesse to those for common vse: so should the vertues in the Ministers of the Sanctuarie be of a futable size. The which as some Diuines imagine is implied in the sacrifice for their sinnes, appointed Leuit 4. where the Priests offering is commanded to be as much as all the congregations, a young bullocke without any blemish for the Priest alone, verse 3. and no more for all the people, verse 14. See Benedictus in the Liturgie, Gospell on Trinitie Sunday, and 8. after Trinitie.

The names of the Disciples here called, are Simon, Andrew, James, and John. <sup>g</sup> Insinuating that a Preacher of the word must be Simon, that is, obedient to the will of God. Andreas, a stout man in executing his office. Jacobus, a supplanter of vices in his auditorie. Last of all a John, ascribing all these good gifts in him vnto the Father of mercies and God of all grace, <sup>h</sup> vite merito magnus, humilitate infimus. <sup>i</sup> Other affirme that the foure cardinal vertues are designed by these foure chiefe Apostles, referring Prudence to Peter, Iustice to Andrew, Fortitude to James, and Temperance to John.

For their number, it is said here, that Iesus called them two and two: first be saw two, then other two: <sup>k</sup> signifying that as the binarie number is the least; enen so the Church of little beginnings increaseth vntill her number be <sup>l</sup> without number; <sup>m</sup> as a graine of mustard seed when it is sowne in the least of all seeds, but when it is growne, it is the greatest among herbs, and it is a tree, so that the birds of heauen build in the branches thereof. Or two and two, because they were Christs instruments in ioyning together two people, the Iewes and the Gentiles, and so <sup>n</sup> making of both one. Or Christ haply would neither elect nor send his Apostles one by one, because woe to him that is alone, Ecclesiast. 4. 10, but by two and two, and those brethren: <sup>o</sup> hereby teaching that Preachers of the word must accord as brethren, of one heart and one soule, Acts 4. 32. hauing one minde in many bodies, intra multa corpora non multa corda. Sic viuentes in vnum, vt vnum hominem faciant as Augustine sweetly. For a <sup>p</sup> brother helping a brother is a very strong castle, and they that hold together are like the barre of a palace.

For their condition: our blessed Sauour (in <sup>r</sup> whom are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge) did <sup>s</sup> not chuse the disputants of the world whose wit was great, nor the nobles whose petigree was great, nor the Pharisies whose credit was great, nor the Priests whose authoritie was great: but he called ignorant and ignoble fishers, of little worth and lesse learning, to be the trumpeters of his Gospell, and bell-weatheres of his flocke; that the <sup>t</sup> foulis things of the world might confound the wise things, and the weake things overthrow the mightie things, and things that are not, bring to nought the things that are. <sup>u</sup> Sampson in slaying a thousand Philistines with the iaw-bone of an asse, was a type hereof (as <sup>x</sup> Prosper obserues) insinuating that Christ by the <sup>y</sup> foolisnesse of preaching should confound his enemies, and saue such as beleue. Nay Christ chose some notorious sinners for

- <sup>a</sup> Iohn 20. 21.
<sup>y</sup> Matth 28. 19.
<sup>z</sup> Acts 2. 4.
<sup>a</sup> Acts 4. 20.
<sup>b</sup> Aretius. de sculius.
<sup>c</sup> 1 Tim. 5. 22.
<sup>d</sup> Iames 1. 19.
<sup>e</sup> Exo 1 30. 13.
<sup>f</sup> Statulus not. ad loc.
Exod. ex Iosepho.
<sup>g</sup> Anselm in loc.
Idem Rabanus
apud Thomam <sup>h</sup> Herom. epist. ad Celant.
<sup>i</sup> Remigius
apud Thom.
<sup>k</sup> Aretius.
<sup>l</sup> Apocal. 7. 9.
<sup>m</sup> Matth. 13. 31
<sup>n</sup> Epes 2. 14.
<sup>o</sup> Bauxamis.
Pontan.
Kilius. Idem Hentenius (cho- ly) in Euthym.
in loc.
<sup>p</sup> Augustin. in Psalm 132.
<sup>q</sup> Prou. 18. 19.
as the translat.
Hen 8
<sup>r</sup> Colof. 2. 3.
<sup>s</sup> Statulus.
Beauxamis. onian.
<sup>t</sup> 1 Cor. 2. 27 28
<sup>u</sup> Iudg. 15. 16.
<sup>x</sup> Apud Beuxam Har.
tom. 1. fol. 140.
<sup>y</sup> 1 Cor 2. 21.

for his Apostles, as bloody Saul, and covetous Matthew; that his abundant grace might be manifested in their persons, as well as in their preaching; demonstrating that in themselves, which is the summe of all their terms, namely, that Iesus Christ <sup>2</sup> came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance. This is a true saying, and by all means worthy to be received, that Christ Iesus came into the world to save sinners, of whom I am chiefe, 1 Tim. 1. 15. The greatest Apostle <sup>a</sup> bilome was the greatest oppressor of the Church, a blasphemer, a persecutor, <sup>a</sup> breathing out threatenings and slaughter against the Disciples of the Lord: and therefore his auditors might well cedere & credere, grant and belcve that Iesus is a Saviour of his people. <sup>b</sup> But this extraordinary calling, and singular action of Christ is <sup>b</sup> no patterne for Prelats (as phantasticall spirits imagine) to send into the Ministrie lewd and ignorant persons, as if the more fanatic were the more fit, and the more silly the more sufficient: for the same Christ by the pen of his Apostle Paul in that excellent Epistle to Timothy (which <sup>c</sup> Hierome calls speculum Sacerdotij, as the whole Scripture is <sup>d</sup> speculum Christianismi) sets downe these directions for the choyce of a Pastor, he must be well reported of, even of them which are without, unreprouable, watching sober, modest, harborous, apt to teach. And albeit at their first comming (as I have shewed a little before) these Fisher-men were rude, yet afterward they were so furnished with all parts of knowledge and varietie of language, that their hearers exceedingly <sup>e</sup> wondred at their wisdom, and <sup>f</sup> knew that they had beene with Iesus.

<sup>g</sup> Other have rendred other reasons, why Christ in the beginning of his preaching chose fisher men for his Apostles. As namely, to shew that God is no respecter of persons: as also for that he knew the poore would follow him immediately, whereas <sup>h</sup> it is easier for a camell to goe thorow the eye of a needle, then for a rich man: to enter into the kingdome of God. For being invited to the great Supper he saith; <sup>i</sup> I have bought a farme, and I must needs goe to see it; or I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I goe to proue them, &c.

Let vs examine now why Iesus called them, and that is, that they might be made fishers of men: not hunters, but fishers. In old time the Prophets and Apostles were fishers, <sup>k</sup> in our time more like hunters, <sup>l</sup> according to that of the Prophet Jeremy, 16. 16. Behold, saith the Lord, I will send out many fishers, and they shall fish them, and after I will send out many hunters, and they shall hunt them, &c. Hertofore the Preachers, as fishers, inclosed many fish in their net at one draught; but in our age we resemble hunters, after a great noise, long and loud crying, we catch either nothing, or else very little. Jonas was but one man, and he preached vnto Niniue but one Sermon, and that a short Sermon, as touching the number of words; and yet he turned all the whole Citie, rich and poore; Prince and people. <sup>m</sup> We (God be praised) are many Preachers, and we preach many Sermons, and such as have a full bite, nipping inuectiues against sinne; yet England repents not in sack cloth and ashes. Iohn Baptists Sermon was short, Behold the Lambe of God, which taketh away the sinnes of the world. <sup>n</sup> S. Andrewes Sermon shorter, We haue found the Messias: and yet (as we read in the first Chapter of Saint Iohns Gospell) Andrew was caught by the one, and Peter by the other. The Sermon of S. Peter, Acts 2. was exceeding briefe, yet it caught about three thousand soules: in our time scarcely one soule taken in many Sermons. And the fault is partly the fishers, and partly the fishes, as I have shewed at large, Gospell 5. Sund. after Tritie.

I will make you fishers of men] <sup>o</sup> Not of money, as if the sharing of the sheepe and fish were the white they should aime at. Antichrist of Rome was not in a pulpit these ¶ nine hundred yeeres, and so by consequence succeeds not Peter in fishing with his net; but onely in fishing with his hooke, Matth. 17. where it is said, that Peter cast an angle into the sea, and tooke a fish in whose mouth he found a peece of twentie pence. Such a kinde of fishing the Romane Peters vse; for Pope Leo the tenth exacted so much of the Lay-men, and wasted so much of the Churches treasure, that whereas other were Popes no longer then they liued, he was

<sup>q</sup> said

<sup>2</sup> Matth 9 13.

<sup>2</sup> Acts 9. 1.

<sup>b</sup> Calvin. Musculus.

<sup>c</sup> Epist. ad Octavianum, tom. 2. fol 323.

<sup>d</sup> James 1. 23.

<sup>e</sup> Acts 2. 6.

<sup>f</sup> Acts 4 13.

<sup>g</sup> Luther. post. in loc.

<sup>b</sup> Matth. 19. 24

<sup>i</sup> Luke 14. 18.

<sup>k</sup> Iacob. de Vorag. ser. 3 dom 5. post Tritie.

<sup>l</sup> Remigius apud Thom. in loc.

<sup>m</sup> B. Latimer ultim. vale.

<sup>n</sup> Vide Forum & Pontan. in loc.

<sup>o</sup> Musculus in loc.

<sup>p</sup> Triall of truth.

<sup>9</sup> Guicciardus hist. lib. 14.
<sup>r</sup> Affius
epigram. lib. 3.

<sup>c</sup> Codrus Vroceus and Sullif, lib.
1. de Cat. Eccles.
cap. 4.

<sup>c</sup> Relat. of religion in the west parts of the world, § 37.

<sup>o</sup> See <sup>Dr.</sup> Sullif. and Relat. of religion, ubi
sup. & Tax Apost. Cam ex-cus. Lutetia 1520. cum priuilegio Parlia-menti.

<sup>x</sup> Plutarch.

<sup>y</sup> Tydal. pro-log before the booke of Numbers

<sup>z</sup> Walson Quod.
1. art. 10.

<sup>a</sup> Sheldom motione concerning the Pontifician spirits,
pag. 5.

<sup>b</sup> Walsingham
Eaw. 3. an. 1362

<sup>c</sup> Matth. 25. 21

<sup>d</sup> 1 Pet. 5. 7.

<sup>c</sup> Com. in loc.

<sup>f</sup> 2 Tim. 3. 6.

<sup>g</sup> Tom. 2. fol.
253.

<sup>h</sup> Iesuites Cat.
lib 1 cap. 10.

<sup>i</sup> Quod. 3.
art. 10.

<sup>9</sup> said to bee Pope many yeeres after he was dead. Which occasioned a learned <sup>r</sup> Poet to write thus of him :

Sacra sub extrema si forte requiritis, hora Cur Leo non potuit sumere? vendiderat.

John 22. left behinde him (as Petrarcha reports) two hundred and fiftie tun of gold, in so much that an <sup>f</sup> odde fellow made this iest of him, Erat Pontifex maximus, si non virtute, pecunia tamen maximus. Pope Sixtus Quintus (called of Englishmen in a by-word, for selling our kingdome to Philip of Spaine, Six Cinque) through his intolerable couetousnesse, <sup>r</sup> left in his exchequer fwe millions; his successor Gregorie the 14. wasted foure of them in ten moneths and lesse, beside his ordinary reuenues, in riot and pompe. The Pontificians exceedingly condemne the Protestant Preachers; because being married and hauing children, they take care to prouide for their family: but their <sup>u</sup> owne Popes and Prelates are more greedy to scrape for their bastards and minions, then our men haue beene to prouide for their honest wiues and legitimate issue. Haply some men of corrupt mindes among vs, as most among them, enter into the Ministe-rie, as <sup>x</sup> Stratocles and Dromocidas into the Magistrate, tanquam ad auream mes-sem, and so they be fishers of money, not of men; or if they fish after men, it is to finger their meanes. As the Friers in old time professed wilfull pouertie so long, <sup>y</sup> vntill they robbed the whole world, and became Lords of all. And at this houre the Iesuites are so couetous, that they maligne all other orders, except the Capuchin. And the reason hereof is plaine, <sup>z</sup> because the Capuchin saith, hee would haue nothing, and the Iesuite would haue all. <sup>a</sup> A wittie libeller in Spaine described the Capuchin Friers shooting from the purse, the Franciscanes aiming wide of it, and the Iesuites hitting it in the very middest. I haue read of <sup>b</sup> Vrbane the fifth, how that when he was a poore Chaplaine in the Court of Rome, hee should vpon a time say to a familiar friend, If all the Churches in the world should fall at once, none of them I thinke verily would light on my head. After being elected Pope, his old acquaintance told him at his inthronization, Once (holy father) you complained that you were Parson of no Church, and now behold, God hath out of the riches of his wisdom and mercie so disposed, as that all the Churches in the world are committed only to your charge. Let vs be <sup>c</sup> faithfull in a litle, <sup>d</sup> casting our care on God, who careth for vs. If any forsake with these Disciples his nets and ship, & suos & sua, to follow Christ, he shall receiue an hundred fold at this present; houses, and brethren, and sisters, and mothers, and children, and lands with persecutions, and in the world to come eternall life, Mark. 10. 30. Auarice is a sinne in any man, heresie in a Clergy man.

Fishers of men, in generall (as <sup>e</sup> Musculus obserues) not of great men and learned men only: for that is Peters fault to neglect his Cure that he may follow the Court, as if the soules of poore men in the Countrey were not worthy to bee fished for. Not of good men and brethren only; for that is schismaticall tricke, such I trow be caught already, we should therefore rather cast how to cast our net for other. A scabbie sheepe is of the stocke so well as the bell-weather, and because scabbie, wants our helping hand more then the whole.

Fishers of men, not of women only; for that is an hereticall tricke <sup>f</sup> to leade cap-tine simple women laden with sins, and led with diuers lusts. As Simon Magus the first heretike broched his dangerous opinions by the helpe of the strumpet Helena; Nicolas the founder of the filthy Familists had troupes of women euer accompanying him; Apelles had Philomene for his mate; Montanus had Prisca and Maximilla, women of great birth and opulent estate; Donatus had Lucilla for his mistresse; Arrius the Princes owne daughter for his Patronesse, as <sup>g</sup> S. Hierome notes in his Epistle to Ctesiphon against the Pelagians. <sup>h</sup> Postellus the Iesuite had an old beldame called mother Iane, and the rest of that ranke (as the <sup>i</sup> Quodlibeticall discourse auoweth) haue deluded many young Gentlewomen, and deuoured many widowes houses. And this kinde of fishing they learned from Satan himselfe, who did first attempt the woman, and then tempt the man, vsing

vſing the wife as a trap to catch her husband. And the reason why the deuill and his agents are fiſhers of women rather then of men, is becauſe they be leſſe able to reſiſt, and more willing to report a new fangled opinion. In one word, for that their wits are ſhorter, and their tongues longer.

Fiſhers of men, not of children, as Seruius abſurdly cauilleth: Ergo; ſaith hee, Preachers may not baptize little infants. Anſwer is made by <sup>k</sup> Caluin and other, that men here ſignifieth all mankind, of whatſoever age or ſexe. Chriffs commandement is expreſſe, <sup>l</sup> teach all nations, baptizing them, &c. and Mark. 10. 14. ſuffer the little children to come vnto me. There be young <sup>m</sup> Lambes in his fold ſo well as old ſheepe, <sup>n</sup> it is not his Fathers wil that one of theſe little ones ſhould periſh, for <sup>o</sup> of ſuch is the kingdome of heauen. See Melancthon loc. com. tit. baptif. infant. Caluin ubi ſup. in margin. Maſter Iohn Philpots letter concerning this argument apud Fox in his martyrdom. Bucan loc. com. tit. baptif. queſt. 35.

Little children muſt be caught and brought vnto Chriſt, and after theſe minimes are baptized in the ſacred font, they muſt be catechized and further inſtructed in the principles of holy religion, that they may know what a ſolemn vow they haue made by their God-fathers and God-mothers. And for as much as euery man is a Prieſt and a Prince in his owne houſe; you muſt bring vp your children in <sup>p</sup> inſtruction and information of the Lord, drawing them vnto God while they be young, leſt afterward being paſt correction, they ſay with the wicked in the ſecond Plaline: Let vs breake their bonds aſunder, and caſt away their cords from vs.

¶ Nifi fundamenta ſtirpis iacta ſint probè, Miſeros neceſſe eſt eſſe deinceps poſteros.

The <sup>r</sup> draw-net of the Church incloeth all kinde of fiſh, and therefore the Preachers are fiſhers of all ſorts of men. None is too good, or too bad, or too rich, or too poore, or too young, or too old, to be brought vnto God. I will make you fiſhers of men indefinitely; not of this or that man in particular. Andrew muſt fiſh for all, eſpecially for ſuch as are committed vnto his peculiar charge. Acts 20. 28. Take heed to your ſelues, and to all the ſtocke, whereof the Holy Ghoſt hath made you ouerſeers. Our principall care muſt be to reduce ſuch as are vnder our proper Cure, from the ſinke and ſeas of their ſin, to righteouſneſſe and holineſſe, <sup>t</sup> by preaching of the word to draw them out of the ſhadow of death, out of the pit of ignorance to the marvellous light & ſunne ſhine of the Goſpell. And that we may performe this, it is required on our part that wee be painfull, either caſting our nets into the ſea, or elſe mending them in our ſhip: and ſkilfull, alſo, that we may know to caſt our nets on the <sup>u</sup> right ſide of the ſhip. ¶ Omnis ignorantia mala, ſacerdotis autem peſſima. The blinde leading the blinde drawes him not out of the puddle, but rather hurleth him into the ditch, Matth. 15. 14.

Now the fiſhers of men for the catching of ſoules, ought to preach and preſſe two points eſpecially, <sup>x</sup> repentance and faith. Almighty God himſelfe the firſt fiſher of men, in his very <sup>y</sup> firſt draught (when the worlds ſea was not ſo tempeſtuous as it is now) ſtood vpon theſe two principally. Firſt, he rebuked Adam for his ſinne, that he might repent: and then he ſhewed how Chriſt is the propitiation for his ſinne, the ſeed of the woman ſhall breake the ſerpents head, that he might beleue. The Patriarks and Prophets vrged theſe points vnto the men of their age. Iohn Baptiſt the laſt of the Prophets, and firſt of Apoſtles, a midling as it were betweene both, inculcated often theſe two, <sup>z</sup> repent, and <sup>a</sup> behold the Lambe of God. All the ſermons of Chriſt (as our euangelist reports in the verſe before my Text) conſiſted of theſe two likewiſe, from that time Ieſus began to preach and ſay, Amend your liues, for the kingdome of heauen is at hand. If any then deſire to know whether the fiſhers of men haue caught him or no, let him examine his owne heart, whether he be repentant and faithfull. If he feele ſorrow for his ſinne, and comfort in his Sauour: if he confeſſe his fault as the <sup>b</sup> Publican, O God be mercifull to me a ſinner: and confeſſe his faith as <sup>c</sup> Andrew; We haue found the Meſſias: if crying with teares he can vnfaignedly ſay, Lord I beleue,
helpe

<sup>k</sup> Inſtit. lib 4. cap. 10. §. 31.
<sup>l</sup> Matth 28. 19
<sup>m</sup> Iohn 21. 15.
<sup>n</sup> Matth 18. 14
<sup>o</sup> Matth 15. 14

<sup>p</sup> Ephel. 5. 4.

<sup>q</sup> Eripides apud Flutar. h. Com. de lib educandis.
<sup>r</sup> Matth. 13. 47

<sup>t</sup> Luther. A. eius. ad uſculus.

<sup>u</sup> Iohn 21. 6.
<sup>v</sup> Leu. ent. Pisan. Euangel paradox.

<sup>x</sup> Melanct. Com. in lo.
<sup>y</sup> Gen 3.

<sup>z</sup> Matth 3. 2.
Marke 1. 4.
<sup>a</sup> Ioh 1. 29 36.

<sup>b</sup> Luke 18. 13.
<sup>c</sup> Iohn 1. 41.

helpe mine vnbefeeze: it is a manifest argument that the fishers of men haue drawne him out of the dead sea in to the land of the liuing, out of the darke waters into the glorious light of the Sunne of righteoufnesse.

Here the Gospell and Epistle meet againe; Preachers are fishers of men, because men are iustified by faith, and faith commeth by hearing of the word, and the word is brought vnto you by the mouth of the Preachers. And therefore you must honour their holy function, as Gods ordinance for the <sup>d</sup> gathering together of the Saints, and edifying of the body of Christ. Abhorre the positions of <sup>e</sup> Stenckfeldius, <sup>f</sup> Anabaptists, Familists, holding that the word is not taught by the sermons of Peter and Andrew, &c. but onely by the reuelation of the Spirit. As also the practises of vncharitable Martinists, Barrowists, Brownists, openly breathing out slander; secretly threatning slaughter against the Disciples of the Lord, making it their greatest vertue to meddle with the Preachers vice; so that whereas Andrew should catch them, it is appaerent that they labour principally to catch Andrew. But the best is, in the meane while they lose themselues among themselues, hauing almost as many factions, as there be fractions in their seue: all inuectiues. <sup>g</sup> In ista Babylonia secta dissecta, their sects are now so diuers and aduerse, that as <sup>h</sup> one said, Litigando res non dirimitur, sed perimitur.

The last of all the remarkable circumstances in our Text is, how Iesus called his Disciples, and that is, he saw them, and saith vnto them, follow me, and I will make you &c. that is, as <sup>i</sup> Ardens in a short glosse pithily, Vidit, per electionem: vocauit, per fidem: iussit se sequi, per obedientiam: primum promisit, per obedientiam remunerationem. <sup>k</sup> According to that of Paul, whom he did predestinate, them he called: and whom he called, them also he iustified: and whom he iustified, he also glorified. For faith is a consequent of election, obedience of faith, and remuneration of obedience. He called his Apostles here by word onely, follow me.

<sup>l</sup> Goe not before me, nor beside me: but come after me, for I am the way, the truth and the life. Where note the <sup>m</sup> power of his word, hee spake and it was done, he called and they came immediatly. But wee read in the 5. of Luke that he called these by working a wonder also: for whereas they laboured all night and caught nothing, he commanded them to let downe their net, and they tooke such a multitude of fish, that they filled two ships vntill they did sinke. Where Diuines obserue, that Christ accommodates himselfe euermore to his present auditors, as he called the <sup>n</sup> Wisemen of the East, addicted vnto the studies of Astrologie, by a starre: and conferring with a woman of <sup>o</sup> Samaria, who came to draw water at Jacobs Well, hee tooke occasion to speake of the water of life, saying, Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall giue him, shall neuer bee more a thirst: and in the 6. Chapter of S. Johns Gospell, he did instruct the Capernaits, who followed him onely for loaves, by a similitude taken from bread and meat, willing them to labour for the true bread of heauen, and for the meat that endureth vnto euerlasting life. By whose example fishers of men are taught, to become Peas weake to the weake, that they may winne the weake: being all things to all men, that by all meanes they may saue some.

Hitherto concerning the calling of Simon, Andrew, James and John: let vs now come to their comming. Simon and Andrew straight-way left their nets, James and John immediatly left their ship, and their father, and followed him. They came straight-way without <sup>q</sup> inquisition or <sup>r</sup> delay, considering onely who called, and not disputing why he called. And they came willingly without any grudging or griefe, leaving nets, and ship, and father, and <sup>s</sup> all things of the world, to follow Iesus, whose kingdome was not of <sup>t</sup> this world, whose pouertie was so great, that he was borne in <sup>u</sup> another mans house, and buried in another mans <sup>v</sup> tombe, as not hauing <sup>w</sup> wherein to rest his head. <sup>z</sup> They forooke all that little they had, and all the great things they desired to haue. They did not <sup>a</sup> abandon vterly their estate (for S. Peter afterward vsed his nets and followed his trade, Iohn 21.3) but they so subdued their will vnto Gods will, as that they counted all things <sup>b</sup> losse to winne Christ. Apostoli (quoth <sup>c</sup> Hierome) quantum ad diuitias nihil, in Rom 10.

<sup>d</sup> Ephes. 4. 12.

<sup>e</sup> Melancthon.

<sup>f</sup> See Rogers in Anglican Confess. art. 23.

<sup>g</sup> Sedulius epist. lect. prefix. apologet. S. Francisci.

<sup>h</sup> Io. Serranus apparat pag. 14.

<sup>i</sup> Hom. in luc.

<sup>k</sup> Rom. 8. 30.

<sup>l</sup> Pontan.

<sup>m</sup> Marlorat.

<sup>n</sup> Matth. 2.

<sup>o</sup> Iohn 4.

<sup>p</sup> 1 Cor. 9. 22.

<sup>q</sup> Aretius.

<sup>r</sup> Musculus.

<sup>s</sup> Matth. 19. 27

<sup>t</sup> Ioh 18. 36.

<sup>u</sup> Luk. 2. 7.

<sup>v</sup> Matth. 27. 60

<sup>w</sup> Matth. 8. 20.

<sup>x</sup> August. epist.

89.

<sup>y</sup> Caietan.

Musculus.

Aretius in luc.

<sup>z</sup> Philip 3. 8.

<sup>a</sup> Epist. ad

Pammac. tom. 1.

fol. 166.

nihil, quantum ad voluntatem, totum mundum pariter reliquerunt. Iesus euery day calleth vs vnto him, either by the good motions of his Spirit, or by his word in the mouth of his Preachers, or elste by strange iudgements, or extraordinarie mercies. And therefore let vs, I beseech you, forsake the vaine pompe of the world, the carnall desires of the flesh, and all other nets and lets whatsoeuer hindring our comming, that we may follow him immediately. For if the Disciples here followed him in his humiliation and pouertie; what a sinne, yea what a shame will it be, not to follow him now, sitting at the right hand of God in the heauen of heauens, a Lord of Lords, higher than the highest, a King of glory, <sup>d</sup> rich vnto all that call vpon him, <sup>e</sup> able to do for his followers exceeding abundantly aboue all that they can aske or thinke.

Bodye, being <sup>g</sup> conuersant with him, and witnesses of all he did and said.

Minde, for nothing could <sup>h</sup> separate them from the loue of Christ.

Life, learning of him to be meeke, and mercifull as he was mercifull, exhorting their auditors to be <sup>i</sup> followers of them as they were followers of Christ.

Death, for as he suffered on the Crosse to make their peace: so Peter & Andrew were crucified, and James slaine with the sword in his quarrell, and John (as we finde in Ecclesiasticall historie) was by the commandement of the tyrant Domitian cast in feruentis olei <sup>k</sup> dolium, or as other <sup>l</sup> solium, into a vessell or bath of hot boyling oyle, from which he was notwithstanding by Gods hand deliuered miraculously without any hurt. Though haply neuer occasion shall be giuen vs to die for the Lord, yet let vs so follow him in our lines and in our loues, as that we may die in the Lord. Let vs <sup>m</sup> mortifie our earthly members: our feet, that we <sup>n</sup> stand not in the way of sinners; our eyes, that wee may not delight in vanities, or wantonly <sup>o</sup> behold a woman; our hands, that we may <sup>p</sup> labour and worke the thing which is good; our mouth, that it be not full of <sup>q</sup> cursing and bitternesse; our hearts, that they bee not exercised with <sup>r</sup> auarice: that forsaking our selues to follow him onely, which is our saluation; as we <sup>s</sup> suffer with him, euen so we may be glorified together with him. Amen.

These followed him <sup>f</sup> in

Almighty God, which didst giue such grace vnto thy holy Apostle S. Andrew, that he readily obeyed the calling of thy Sonne Iesus Christ, and followed him without delay: grant vnto vs all, that wee being called by thy holy word, may forthwith giue ouer our selues obediently to follow thy holy commandements, through the same Iesus Christ our Lord.

The Epistle E P H E S. 2. 19.

Now are yee not strangers, nor forreiners, but citizens with the Saints, and of the household of God, &c.

This Epistle sets downe the most happy condition of all such as truly belecue:

1. Priuatiuely; shewing what they are not in the 19. verse. Now yee are not strangers, nor forreiners.
2. Positiuely, describing in the rest of the Text what they are, namely, Gods } Citie.

} House.
} Temple.

<sup>d</sup> Rom. 10. 12.
<sup>e</sup> Ephes. 3. 20.
<sup>f</sup> Ardens.
<sup>g</sup> Acts 1. 21.

<sup>h</sup> Rom. 8. 35.

<sup>i</sup> 1 Cor. 11. 1.

<sup>k</sup> Hieron. in Matth. 20. & Mat. West. ad ann. 95.

<sup>l</sup> Baronius annual. tom. 1. ad ann. 92.

<sup>m</sup> Coloss. 3. 5.

<sup>n</sup> Psalm. 1. 1.

<sup>o</sup> Iob 31. 1.

Matth 5. 28.

<sup>p</sup> Ephes. 4. 28.

<sup>q</sup> Psalm 14. 6.

<sup>r</sup> 2 Pet. 2. 14.

<sup>s</sup> Rom. 8. 17.

1 Pet 2.5.

Of which heavenly building the Materials, are lively stones, all Gods elect, built together to be an habitation of God.

Foundation, is Iesus Christ himselfe.

Builders, Apostles and Prophets.

Properties, are to be built together, &amp;c. answering the three properties of the Church in the Creed, Holy, a temple of the Lord, an habitation of God.

Catholique, all the building, &amp;c. knit in a communion, coupled together and built together.

1 In Psalm. 1.

2 Cor. 6.1.

7 Rom 8.1.

2 Rom. 6.14.

a Zanchius.

b Galat 4.26.

c Arcius.

d Zanchius.

e Com. in cap.

28. Ezechiel.

f Ephes. 2.9.

g Galat. 2.20.

h Vide Lorin. in

1 Pet 2.5.

i Galat. 6.2.

k Hom. 13. in Ezechiel.

1 Ser. 22. de verbis Apostoli.

m Luber. in

Gal. 6.2.

n Lib de vitis Patrum.

o 1 Cor. 12.21.

p Coloff 3.12.

Now are ye not strangers] As <sup>a</sup> Augustine said, it is one thing to walke in the Law, another thing to liue vnder the Law: so likewise there is difference betweene being in grace, and vnder grace. Many men in our time who receiue the Gospell of God in <sup>2</sup> vaine, liue vnder grace, but not in grace: many Prophets and holy Fathers in old time liued in grace, but not vnder grace. For (propely) to liue vnder grace is opposed vnto the state of the law, to liue in grace is opposed vnto the state of sinne. The men of Ephesus, and other Gentiles in time past vnbeleuing, were neither in grace, nor vnder grace: not in grace, for in walking according to the course of this world, and in fulfilling the lusts of the flesh, and wil of the minds, they became dead in sinnes: not vnder grace, for they were without Christ, aliens from the common-wealth of Israel, & strangers from the covenants of promise, hauing no hope, and without God in the world, as our Apostle disputes in the former part of this Chapter. But now (saith he) God which is rich in mercy, through his great loue, wherewith he loued vs, euen when we were dead in trespasses, hath so quickned vs in Christ Iesu, that we be both vnder grace, released from the <sup>3</sup> condemnation of the Law; and in grace, deliuered from the <sup>2</sup> dominion of sin. We which once were farre off, are made neere to God and his people, not any longer strangers or forreiners, but fellow citizens with the Saints, of Gods household, yea Gods house.

<sup>a</sup> Wherein our Apostle doth allude to the goodly buildings of the terrestriall Hierusalem, in which all the whole Citie was faire, the Kings house fairer, the Temple fairest of all. And so by these three, whereof one doth excell another, he describes the blessed estate of Hierusalem which is <sup>b</sup> above.

The materials of this high and holy building are Gods <sup>c</sup> elect, <sup>d</sup> as well his seruants on earth, as Saints in heaven. His elect in the militant Church are called by S. Peter, lively stones, or (as <sup>e</sup> Hierome reads) liuing itones. A materiall house consists of blocks, and stocks, and other senselesse stufte: but all the parts of the mysticall house, built vpon the foundation of the Prophets and Apostles, are mouing & free stones, in that they be <sup>f</sup> quickned by God, and <sup>g</sup> liue by faith in his sonne. And this their faith is not dead, but liuely, working by loue, Galat. 5.6. <sup>h</sup> For as in other buildings one stone lieth vpon another, and all vpon the foundation: euen so in the spirituall house, Christians <sup>i</sup> beare one anothers burden, and Christ as the chiefe stone beares all. Vnusquisque & portat alterum, & portatur ab altero, quoth <sup>k</sup> Gregorie. The whole building is so compact, as that euery one beares another, and is borne of another. As for example, the rich and the poore man are thrust and piled together in Gods house, the poores burthen is his beggerie, the burthen of the rich is his ouer-growne estate. Wherefore the poore lieth on the rich, and the rich is content to sustaine the poore; the rich hath his burthen lessened by giuing, and the poore his burthen lessened by taking, and so faith <sup>l</sup> Augustine they beare one anothers burthen. A Christian must haue <sup>m</sup> strong shoulders, and mightie bones; that he may beare flesh, that is, the weaknesse of his brethren. It was excellently said of <sup>n</sup> one, when it was told him how his brother had committed a foule fault: He fell yesterday (quoth he) and I may fall to day. The peble may not enuie the marble, nor the marble despise the peble: the pinne in the Temple serues for vse so well as the pinnacle: <sup>o</sup> the eye cannot say to the hand, I haue no need of thee: nor the head to the feet, I haue no need of you. So that euery liuing stone must <sup>p</sup> pus on tender mercie, kindnesse, humilitie, meekenesse, long-long suffering, forbearing one another, and forgiving one another, of one heart, and of one soule, of one accord, and of one iudgement. Thus all such as are truly faithful a tempore, fidei, from the beginning of their faith and first embracing of the Gospell are translated out of Babylon, and made citizens of Hierusalem, euen walking and working stones in the building of Gods house.

The next point to be discussed, is the foundation of the Church, and that is not Peter alone, nor yet all the Prophets and Apostles ioyntly: but Christ Iesus himselfe. Not the Christ of Arrius, or the Christ of Marcion, or the Christ of Legate, or any false Christ, albeit there be many such in the world: but onely the true Christ of the Prophets and Apostles, I say that Christ only which is reuelatus in veteri testamento, & euclatus in nouo, promised by the mouth of all the Prophets in the old Testament, and preached of all the blessed Apostles in the new. So the Doctors expound my Text, built vpon the foundation of the Prophets and Apostles, that is, vpon Christ, as being the foundation of the Prophets and Apostles, vpon the foundation which is laid by their doctrine, as S. Ambrose plainly, super nouum & vetus testamentum, vpon the contents of the two Testaments, the summe whereof is nothing else but Christ crucified, as being the head corner stone, lapis summus & iunus, euen the first & the last stone, the beginning and ending, Apocal. 1. 8. by whom the Church is founded and finished. In other buildings the foundation is lowest in the ground: but the foundation of Hierusalem above, Gal. 4. 26. descending downe from God out of heauen, Apoc. 21. 2. is higher then the highest, Ecclesiast. 5. 7. As Aristotle said, a man is arbor transfersa: so we, that the Church is domus transfersa, an house turned vpside downe; for that Christ is both a rocke on which his Church is founded, and a chief or head corner stone, in whom all the whole building is coupled together and groweth, &c. & other foundation can no man lay, than that which is laid, which is Iesus Christ, a tried stone, a precious stone, a sure stone.

This doctrine confutes the Papists, holding that Peter is the rocke on which the Church is built, for that vpon the confession of Peter (thou art Christ the Sonne of the liuing God) our blessed Sauour said, thou art Peter, and vpon this rocke will I build my Church. Answer is made, that Peter in making this confession, thou art Christ; either spake pro ceteris, or pro ceteris, as prolocutor or mouth of the rest. And therefore whatsoever in that place was promised vnto Peter, appertained to the whole Colledge of Apostles, as Origen hom. 1. in Mat. the words spoken to Peter are common to all. If we confesse with Peter, & nobis dicitur tu es Petrus, petra enim quisque Christi discipulus est. And S. Hierom. Petra Christus est, qui donauit omnibus Apostolis ut ipsi quoque petra vocentur, enitere ergo tu (saith Ambrose) ut sis petra: for euerie confessor is a Peter, and euerie Peter a liuing stone in the building of Gods house. Touching the words (vpon this rocke will I build my Church) Augustine the most accurate Doctor expounds him thus: Super hanc petram quam confessus es, super hanc petram quam cognouisti, dicens, tu es Christus filius Dei vini, edificabo Ecclesiam meam, id est, super me ipsum edificabo Ecclesiam meam: super me edificabo te, non me super te. So the Papists own writers, vpon this rocke, that is, I will build my Church vpon my selfe the Sonne of the liuing God. See Gospell on S. Peters day.

Againe, this sentence (Christ is the foundation of the Prophets and Apostles) ouerthroweth (as Interpreters obserue) Marcion and other heretikes, affirming that two sundry disagreeing Gods are Authors of the two Testaments. As if one God were preached in the Gospell, and another in the Law: whereas one and the same Christ is the very center of both, at which all the Prophets and Apostles aime principally.

The builders of Gods house, are the Prophets and Apostles, and all their lawfull Successours, the Ministers and Preachers of the word. Behold, saith the Lord to Jeremy the Prophet, I haue put my words in thy mouth, I haue set thee ouer the nations, and ouer the kingdomes, to plucke vp, and to root out, and to destroy and throw downe, to build, and to plant. That is, to root out vice, to plant vertue, to destroy

9 Acts 4. 32.
7 Philip. 2. 2.
1 Anselm.
5 Lombard.

• Zanchius.
2 Matth. 24. 5.
7 Augustin de Ciuit. lib 5. cap. 18.
2 Acts 3. 15.

2 Lombard.
A. s. m.
C. s. 1. 1. in loc.
b Calvin.
B 21.
P. s. ator.
c In Luc. l. 1. em.
A. q. n. & post.
maior in loc.
d Anselm.
Aretius.
Zanchius.
c Hieron. exposit.
2. in loc.
f Aquin.
8 1 Cor. 3. 11.
b Esay 28. 16.

i Matth. 16. 16
k Ambros. lib 6.
in Luc cap de interrogacione Iesu.
l Augustin. ser.
13. de verb.
Dom secundum
Matth Idem
Lynia in Mat. 16
m Chrysost hom.
55. in Mat.
n Com. in Amos 6.
o Vbi supra.
p Vbi supra.

9 Anselm.
Hugo.
Dion. Caribu.
Ferus Soarez. in Matth 16.
r Hieron.
Caluin.
Aretius.

f Ierem 1. 9.
c Lyrain 1.
Ierem.

<sup>a</sup> Zanchius in
loc.
<sup>v</sup> 1 Cor. 3.

<sup>r</sup> Bellarmin in
1 Cor. 3. 12.

<sup>c</sup> Matth. 16. 18

<sup>a</sup> Matth. 28. 19

<sup>b</sup> Rom. 12 6.

<sup>c</sup> Zanchius.
<sup>d</sup> De verbo Dei,
lib. 1. cap. 9.

<sup>e</sup> De benefice.
lib. 4. cap. 37. ex
sententia Philip.
Macedon.

<sup>f</sup> Aretius.
<sup>g</sup> Caluin.

<sup>h</sup> Zanchius.

<sup>i</sup> Dum enim
crescit templum Dei fiti: Occumen. in loc.

<sup>k</sup> Caluin.
Marlorat,

<sup>l</sup> 2 Cor. 6. 16.

<sup>m</sup> 1 Cor. 6. 19.

<sup>n</sup> Primasius in
loc.

<sup>o</sup> Psal. 32. 1.
<sup>p</sup> 1 Cor. 1. 30.

the dens of Satan, and build vp Gods Temple, to throw downe the kingdome of Antichrist, and to set vp the kingdome of Christ. And to<sup>x</sup> Paul calls himselfe a skilfull Architect, or a cunning Master-builder, laying the foundation, and he saith of other Preachers of the word, that they build vpon his foundation gold, silver, precious stones, &c. y that is, doctrines and exhortations answerable to the foundation, and worthy of Christ: In a word, that the Pastors are Gods labourers, and the people Gods building, 1 Cor. 3. 9. It is true that Christ himselfe is the chiefe builder, as he saith in the 2 Gospell (vpon this rocke will I build my Church) he builds (as it is in our Text) through his holy Spirit. ver. 22. yet he doth vse Prophets, and Apostles, and Euangelists, and Pastors, and Teachers, as vnder-workmen for the gathering together of his Saints, and edification of his Church, Eph. 4. 11, 12.

The tooies or instruments which Apostles and Preachers vse toward this worke, are the word & the Sacraments especially. For so the Lord of these labourers hath appointed, Go teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and the Sonne, and the Holy Ghost. His word is his power to bring his elect to the foundation, and to build them vpon the foundation. His Sacraments are (fastnings as it were) to strengthen and confirme them after they be laid in the building, that they fall not away, but grow to an holy Temple of the Lord. Our doctrine must be according to the <sup>b</sup> analogie of faith, our exhortation according to the rules of good life: the Bible (which is our lanterne and our guide) furnisheth vs with both, and therefore we must euer build vpon the foundation of the Prophets and Apostles.

Beside these tooles, a Minister ought to further Gods building with heartie <sup>e</sup> prayers and good example. <sup>d</sup> Bellarmine said of Erasmus faislly, that he was but halfe a Christian: but it may be said of a lewd Pastor truly, that he is but halfe a Preacher: he may peradventure pull downe more building in one weeke with his bad life, then he can set vp againe in a whole yeere with his great learning. <sup>c</sup> Seneca thought it impossible that any body should at one time be both a good man and a good Captaine: but a Clergie man is not a good Pastor, vnlesse he be a good patterne. God defend me and mine from a mangie Physitian, a ragged Alchymist, and a dissolute Diuine. If thou be a president of godlinesse to thy people, pray to the God of all grace, that you may so remaine: if you sometime were, and are now fallen, returne: if you neuer were, repent: if you neuer will be, perish. Nam a Deo separabitur, qui a diabolo superabitur. Concerning the properties of the Church; it is built together in such a <sup>f</sup> due proportion and concinnesse symmetric, that euery part is content to keepe his ranke, and performe his function without any faction. It is a body fitly ioyned together, and compacted by that which euery ioyn supplieth, &c. Ephel. 4. 16. See Epistle 2. Sunday after Epiphanie. It is built together, in respect of her <sup>h</sup> vnion with Christ the head corner stone: and compled together, in respect of her communion with the members. See Communion of Saints in the Creed. And being thus inserted and built on Christ, it liueth and groweth from grace to grace, <sup>i</sup> till it become an holy Temple to the Lord. The which <sup>k</sup> Interpreters vnderstand of euery singula part, so well as of the whole body: for euery Christian is an habitation of God. If thou be then a consecrated Chappell vnto the Lord, how darest thou commit idolatry, which is against the first Table, <sup>l</sup> what agreement hath the Temple of God with Idols? Or how darest thou commit adultery, which is against the second Table, <sup>m</sup> Know ye not that your body is the Temple of the Holy Ghost, and that God is to be glorified in your spirit, and in your body? will you then take the members of Christ, and make them the members of an harlot? God forbid. Euery liuing stone that is built vpon the foundation of the Prophets and Apostles is holy, <sup>n</sup> lapides in templo sancto non possunt esse non sanctificati. The Temples of God are holy, both in regard of their righteoufnesse imputed, in that their vnrighteoufnesse is <sup>o</sup> forgiuen, and <sup>p</sup> Christ himselfe made their holinesse: and in regard of sanctification and righteoufnesse inherent, for that being deliuered out of the hands of all their enemies, they serue God in holinesse and righteoufnesse all the dayes of their life.

The Gospell. I O H N 20. 24.

Thomas one of the twelue, which is called Didymus, was not with them when Iesus came, &c.

This Scripture Dialogue, Thomas one of the twelue, &c. consists of a } Epilogue, Many other signes truly did Iesus, &c.

The Dialogue is betweene a weake sinner, and a meeke Sauour. And according to these two principall persons, it hath also two principall parts : one concerning Thomas, and another touching Christ.

In Thomas obserue his } Faults, which are two : } 1. His absence from the meeting of the other Apostles.
 Faith, My Lord and my God. } 2. His incredulitie, not beleeuing the resurrection of Christ, occasioned by that absence.

That other part concerning Christ, is a relation of his second appearing vnto the blessed Apostles after his rising againe from the dead.

And herein is set downe } 1. What he did : After eight daies he came againe, &c.
 } 2. What he said, } 1. To the whole company : Peace be to you.
 } 2. To Thomas in particular : Bring thy finger hither, &c.
 } 3. In conclusion, to him, and them, and vs, and all ; Blessed are they that haue not seene, and yet haue beleued.

In that our Euangelist hath set downe the fall of Peter, and fault of Thomas: we may learne that euen the most holy men are but imperfectly perfect in this life. The Pontificians are true Donatists, and as it were the very spawne of the Cathari. For is any man so great a Puritan as the Papist, highly conceiting that he can obserue all the Commandements of God, and more then euer hee commanded, as the precepts of the Church, and Euangelicall Councils, and so do workes of supererogation? or is any so great a Puritan as the Pope, who maketh himselfe a God in greatnesse, and a God in goodnesse? a God in greatnesse, in that his vnlimited authoritie doth dispense with the lawes of God in this world, and alter his iudgements in another, hauing power terrestriall, in vsurping the whole world for his Diocesse: supernall, extended to heauen in canonizing Saints: infernall, extended to hell in freeing soules out of Purgatory: a God in goodnesse, for he cannot as Pope quatenus Papa, erre in doctrine, and he may not be told of his errorrs in manners: his holinesse is holy si non sanctitate propria, sanctus tamen sanctitate officij: y Whether the Pope be Indus, or Peter, or Paul, thereof God neuer bade vs be carefull: only this, that he sitteth in Peters Chaire, shall be sufficient for vs. 2 If we say wee haue no sinne, we deceiue our selues, and truth is not in vs. Euen the iust falleth often, and the godly Fathers euermore complained of the corruptions in their age. Terullian said, O nos miseros, qui Christiani dicimur hoc tempore, gentes agimus sub nomine Christi. Gregory Nazianzene speaketh thus of the pitifull estate of his owne time, We that are Christians, are hated of the Heathen for our owne vices sake, we are now become a wonder not only to men and Angels, but euen to all the wicked and vngodly. More lately Gueuara: The Philosophers beleued as Pagans, but liued as Christians: whereas we (quoth he) beleue like Christians, but liue like Pagans. Honoured Whitaker, examining the dissolutenesse of all degrees in England, cried out in exceeding great passion, aut hoc non est Euangelium, aut nos non sumus Euangelici.

9 Cap 13 vers 25, 27.

7 Vide Augustin. heref. 38. & Epishan. heref 59.

8 Bellarmin. de Iustificat. lib. 4. cap 13 & Aluimlaig lex. verb. opus supererogat.

9 Harding confut. of tw. l Apolog. part. 2. cap. 3.

10 Bellarmin. de Rom. Pont. lib. 4. cap. 3.

11 Jacob Gresser. respon. ad Theof. Huc. pag. 147.

12 Hobus apud Iewel prof. defens. apolog.

13 1 Ioh 1. 8.

14 Prou. 24. 16.

15 Apud Iewel in apolog. Idem. Hieron. epist. ad Celant. Tom. 1. fol. 109.

16 Apud Iewel Apolog. part. 3. cap 7.

17 con. ad cler. Cantab. ig.

<sup>c</sup> Doflor Eedes Ser. difference betweene good & euil.

<sup>e</sup> Pontan.

<sup>g</sup> Pfal. 67. 2.

<sup>h</sup> Pfal. 51. 4.

<sup>i</sup> Rom 5. 20.

<sup>k</sup> Melancthon.
Culman.

<sup>l</sup> Petrarcha de
remedijs lib. 1. di. 1. 8.

<sup>m</sup> Mat. 20. 17.
Mark 10 32.
Luke 18. 31.

<sup>n</sup> Mat. 26. 32.

<sup>o</sup> Maldonat.

<sup>p</sup> Culman.

Kittus.

<sup>q</sup> Mat. 18. 20.

<sup>r</sup> Exod. 16. 27.

<sup>s</sup> De ascens. ser 6

<sup>t</sup> Exod 3. 5.

<sup>u</sup> Luk. 2. 46.

<sup>x</sup> Pontan.

<sup>y</sup> Apud Maldo- nat. in loc.

The reuerend<sup>e</sup> Deane of Worcester, as yet more fully, The fatall misery of these latter dayes, hath made nothing good but in shew, nothing true but in opinion; when for Iustice betweene kingdome and kingdome, the longer sword hath eaten vp the law of nations; and for iustice betweene subiects vnder the same government, lawes are lost in the cases of the law; and for the preseruer of all both truth and iustice, religion it selfe is in a manner lost in the questions of religion. Of all men Christians are the best, of all Christians vndoubtedly the primitiue Professors, of all the primitiue Professors Christs owne Disciples, of all the Disciples his chosen Apostles, and yet these men were but men, subiect to manifold sinnes, albeit they were Saints, and their infirmities are recorded in holy Bible, partly for the glory of God, and partly for our good. For <sup>f</sup> Gods honour, that his <sup>s</sup> sauing health might be knowne vpon earth, and the riches of his mercie shewed in pardoning offences: according to that of <sup>h</sup> Dauid, against thee (my God) haue I sinned and done this euill in thy sight, that thou mightest bee iustified in thy saying. In what saying I pray, but in this, and the like, <sup>i</sup> where sinne abounded, there grace superabounded. Againe, the sinnes of the blessed Apostles are registred in the Gospels history for our good, <sup>k</sup> that we might neither presume, nor yet despaire: not presume, for we may feare fals, if these had their slips: not despaire, because Christ forgot and forgauē Peters blasphemie, the proud ambition of the sonnes of Zebedeus, and here Thomas his incredulitie, speaking so mildly, working so mercifully with him, as that his fore was made his salue, his vnbeleuing at the first occasioning greater faith in him afterward.

<sup>l</sup> Memento peccati, vt doleas :

Memento mortis, vt desinas :

Memento diuina Iustitia, vt timeas :

Memento misericordia, ne desperes.

Hitherto concerning the sinnes of godly men in generall. I come now to Thomas his faults in particular, and they be principally two. First, his absence from the meeting of the Disciples, according to the tenour of our Text, Thomas one of the twelue was not with them when Iesus came. Christ had <sup>m</sup> often foretold his Apostles that he should be put to death, and that he should rise againe the third day from the dead: and therefore a little before his passion he made promise to them, <sup>n</sup> after I am risen againe, I will goe before you into Galile. Now then according to this word (as we read in the former part of this chapter) euen the same day wherein he rose againe, he came, when the doores were shut, into the place where the Disciples were gathered together, and stood in the midst, and said to them, Peace be vnto you: But Thomas, either vpon supine negligence, or <sup>o</sup> cowardly feare, being absent from their assembly, lost the sight of his Sauour. Wherefore let vs (I beseech you) be diligent in frequenting the <sup>p</sup> Congregation of the faithfull, especially on the Lords day, <sup>q</sup> for where two or three are gathered together in Christs name, there Christ is in the midst of them, and saith as here, Peace be vnto you. <sup>r</sup> They who gathered Manna alone, lost their labour, and found nothing. Falleris sancte Thoma, falleris, si videre Dominum speras ab Apostolorum Collegio separatus, non amat veritas angulos, sed stat in medio, &c. saith <sup>s</sup> Bernard. Thou art deceiued Thomas, exceedingly deceiued, if thou thinke to see Christ out of the Church and Colledge of the Apostles. He lurkes not in the dens of the wicked, but stands in the midst of the godly, appearing in <sup>t</sup> holy ground, found in the <sup>u</sup> Temple, seene among the Disciples.

The second fault of Thomas, arising from the <sup>x</sup> former, is incredulitie, for his absence from the Disciples assembly, was the cause he saw not Christ, his not seeing of Christ occasioned vnbeleefe, and then his vnbeleeuing heart breakes forth into malapert words, except I see in his hands the print of the nailes, &c. I find that some Writers haue much excused this fact of Didimus, as <sup>y</sup> Cyrril, who thought he spake not thus out of incredulitie, but out of a sudden passion, as being extremely grieued for that he lost the sight of his Sauour, and almost out of hope that that he should euer see him againe, because Christ had said, <sup>2</sup> a little while and ye shall not see me, for I go to my Father. And <sup>a</sup> S. Augustine saith also, that these words of Thomas argue not a denying but a doubting only, vox inquerentis est non negantis, dū hoc dicit, doceri voluit, confirmari desideravit. And <sup>b</sup> S. Ambrose most expressly, that Thomas doubted not of Christs resurrection, but of the manner of his resurrection only, Non de resurrectione Domini, sed de resurrectionis qualitate videtur dubitasse. This I confesse is a charitable construction of those holy Fathers extenuating rather then aggravating the sins of others, especially the godly. But Christ himselfe, being truth it selfe, reprehends in our Text Thomas incredulitie, be not faithlesse, but faithfull and therefore <sup>c</sup> that which is crooked can none make straight. This fact then of Thomas is a fault, & it is amplified here by 3. circumstances especially.

1. That he was one of the twelve; not to beleene the resurrection of Christ, is a sinne in an ordinarie Christian, in a Disciple yet greater, but in an Apostle <sup>d</sup> to well instructed, and so well beloued, it was greatest of all.

2. For that he gaue no credit to the report of his fellow Disciples, although his Master had often said, he that despiseth you, despiseth me. Moreouer, they were the <sup>e</sup> greater part of the companie, ten against one, and each of those ten had received afore the Holy Ghost, ver. 22. and concerning the present businessse, had heard and seene more then he, verse 20. 21.

3. For that hee did vent his incredulous thought in such a bold and peremptorie stile; except I see in his hands the print of his nailes, nay that is not enough, except I feele the print, except I put my finger into the print of his nailes, euery one being so big as my finger: except I thrust mine hand into his side, and search his wound so great as mine hand: except with hand and finger I measure both, and finde by due proportion that they are the same, I cannot beleue; nay the truth is, I will not beleue. From hence then obserue, that the <sup>f</sup> naturall man (if Christ once leaue him) is not able to discern the things of God, especially that hard article concerning the resurrection: it seemeth as a <sup>g</sup> fained thing, to such as with their senses onely seeke their Sauiour.

Thus much of the fault: I proceed now to the faith of Thomas. And here the Doctors haue moued a double doubt.

1. Whether Thomas did touch the wounds of Christ or no.

2. Whether his speech, my Lord and my God, were an exclamation, or an acclamation.

For the first, it is thought by <sup>k</sup> some that hee did not touch the wounds of Christ, and that for these two reasons especially: First, because Christ saith in the 29. verse, Thomas, because thou hast seene me, thou hast beleened: and not because thou hast touched me. Secondly, for that it is probable that Thomas hearing his Masters voice, and seeing his countenance, was abundantly satisfied without any further enquirie. But these obiections in the iudgement of the most <sup>l</sup> ancient and best learned expositors are very weake because Christ in the 27. verse saith expressly, put thy finger hither, and see mine hands, &c. What (as Augustine disputes in 121. tract in Ioan.) had Thomas his eies in his fingers? if not, then seeing in that text is nothing else but touching, put thy finger and see. For seeing is attributed to all the senses: Aude & vide quā bene sonet: Heare and see how triuely the bells ring: Olfac & vide quā bene oleat: Smell and see how sweet the flower is: Gusta & vide quā bene sapiat: Taste & see the pleasantnesse of the fruit: And so range & vide, touch and see, reach hither thine hand, and thrust it into my side.

For, the second argument, albeit haply Thomas at the very sight of his master instantly became satisfied in himselfe: yet that euery scruple might be remoued out of his and our minds, our blessed Saniour suffered his glorious bodie to be touched, as S. Iohn in his <sup>m</sup> first Epistle, that which was from the beginning, which we haue heard, which we haue seene with our eyes, which we haue looked upon, and our hands haue handled of the Word of life.

Yea but Christ said in this Chapter at the 17. verse to Mary Magdalene, Touch me: not, for I am not yet ascended to my Father: it is likely that Thomas obtained

<sup>2</sup> Iohn 16. 16.

<sup>a</sup> Ser. 156 de temp.

<sup>b</sup> Lib 10. in Luc. Cap. 24.

<sup>c</sup> Ecclesiastes 1. 15.

<sup>d</sup> Pontan.

<sup>e</sup> Luke 10. 16.

<sup>f</sup> Iansen.

<sup>g</sup> Maldonat.

<sup>h</sup> 1 Cor. 2. 14.

<sup>i</sup> Luke 24. 11.

<sup>k</sup> Euthym.

Euseb Emisen. la. sen. in loc.

<sup>l</sup> Augustin ser. 146 155. 161. de temp.

<sup>m</sup> Ambros. in Luc. lib. 10. cap. 4. Gregor. in eua. gel hom. 26.

Bernard hom. 2. de beata virg. idem Cyrillus. Gaudentius. Leontius apud Maldonat. in loc.

<sup>n</sup> Cap. 1. ver. 1.

The Disciples vsually termed him Lord in his life; to signifie therefore that it was the same Christ, he first according to his accustomed manner calleth him Lord, and then after he proceeds further then hee was wont, and calleth him also God. In the word <sup>a</sup> Lord acknowledging his humanitie, in the word God his diuinitie. Faiths object is the reuealed will and Word of God, and the summe of his word is the new Testament, and the summe of the new Testament is Iesus Christ God and man. In that therefore Thomas confessed his Lord to bee crucified, dead, and buried, as a man; and that hee did againe raise himselfe and loose the bonds of death as God, he did vtter that in two words, which is the contents of the two Testaments, and summe of all summes of faith and holy beleefe.

Now for application, he saith my Lord, and my God. <sup>b</sup> Not only God in general, but my God in particular; mine by promise, mine by stipulation, mine by oath, mine by free gift, mine by purchase, mine by participation of grace; my Emmanuel, my Shilo, my Iesus. Of this particular faith <sup>c</sup> Isaiah the Prophet spake, when he said, Secretum meum mihi, secretum meum mihi: My secret to my selfe, my secret to my selfe. The Papiests indeed terme this personall and particular assurance presumption: but the children of God in all ages haue thus applied the medicine to the maladie, saying with <sup>d</sup> Dauid, O God, thou art my God: and with Mary, my Sauour. For as their owne <sup>e</sup> Friar notes vpon my Text, it is not sufficient to beleene that he is the Lord, except thou beleene likewise that he is thy Lord; as Didymus here not only once, but twice, my Lord, my God: doubling as it were his faith, as he had before doubled his fall. O the deepnesse of the riches of Gods mercie! who would haue thought that Thomas who beleeued least, and last of all his fellowes, vpon so short a conference, should thus equall, if not excell them all in his abrupt yet absolute confession? And therefore let not any man either discomfote himselfe, or <sup>f</sup> condemne his brother <sup>g</sup> afore the time: for no man hath so weake a faith, or so wicked a life, but that one day, Christ out of his infinite goodnesse may call him, and heaie him, as he did S. Thomas, making him who did not beleene so soone as the rest, to become notwithstanding in his beleefe so found as the rest, apprehending and applying the merits of his Sauour to his soule, my Lord, my God.

After eight daies againe his Disciples were within, and Thomas with them, then came Iesus. He came <sup>h</sup> before he was sought, and that to seeke <sup>i</sup> one lost sheepe onely. Teaching vs hereby to <sup>k</sup> recall such as are in errors, and to <sup>l</sup> beare the infirmities of the weake. But he deferred his comming a whole weeke, that Thomas in the meane while might be better <sup>m</sup> instructed, and induced to beleene the resurrection. Or haply for the greater manifestation of his goodnesse, in tolerating such incredulitie so long. Or as <sup>n</sup> other, to trie the faith of the rest, and to shew that humane reason is not able to perswade this article.

The translation of Gods holy day from the Saturday to the Sunday, is not by patent in the Bible, but onely by paterne, because the blessed Apostles vsually met together <sup>o</sup> on this day. The which assuredly they did by the direction of Gods holy spirit, and as it may seeme here by Christs <sup>p</sup> approbation at the least, if not <sup>q</sup> institution, againe and againe manifesting himselfe to bee risen on the eighth day. So that albeit haply some will grant that the Church assembled in a generall Councell, hath authoritie to constitute another day for the Sabbath, as the second or third of the weeke; yet I am sure we can neuer haue so good a paterne, nor yet so great a reason for altering this our day, as was here for the changing of that other day. The paterne is Christ and his Apostles, and the reason is the resurrection of Christ, euen that exceeding wonderfull worke of our redemption. Againe, Christs appearing on the eighth day is not without a <sup>r</sup> mystery, wee labour six daies in this life, the seuenth is the Sabbath of our death, in which we <sup>s</sup> rest from our labours, and then being raised from the dead on the eighth day, Christ in his own body, the very same body that was crucified, dead, and buried, shall reward euery man <sup>t</sup> according to his worke.

When

<sup>a</sup> Theophylact. in loc.

<sup>b</sup> Bullinger.

<sup>c</sup> Cap. 24. 16. Consule Variabulum in loc.

<sup>d</sup> Psal. 63. 1. Tolle meum & tolle Deum.
<sup>e</sup> Ferus ubi sup.

<sup>f</sup> Matth 7. 1.
<sup>g</sup> 1 Cor 4. 5.

<sup>h</sup> Caietan.
<sup>i</sup> Chrysost. apud Thom.

<sup>k</sup> Kilius.

<sup>l</sup> Rom. 15. 1.

<sup>m</sup> Iansen. Con.

cord. cap 147.

Idem Theoph.

& Enthyim. in

loc.

<sup>n</sup> Aretius.

<sup>o</sup> Acts 20. 7.

<sup>p</sup> 1 Cor 16. 2.

Apocal. 1. 10.

<sup>q</sup> Maldonat. in

loc.

<sup>r</sup> See Dod. exposit. Com. 4.

<sup>s</sup> Aretius.

<sup>t</sup> Apoc. 14. 13.

<sup>u</sup> Apoc. 20. 13.

<sup>a</sup> Rhem. in loc.

When the doores were shut ] <sup>u</sup> Papists vrge this place to proue the carnall and grosse presence of Christ in the Sacrament, extremely condemning our incredulitie, who will not beleue that Christs body and bloud is vnder the formes of bread and wine; seeing his whole body here perfect in all his lineaments, length, bredth, and thicknesse, distinct and diuers from the substance and corpulence of the wood, was in the same proper place the wood was in, and passed thorow the same. To this obiection our Diuines answer diuersly, <sup>x</sup> some, that the doore opened of it selfe to let him in: <sup>y</sup> other, that the doore was vnbarred by some of the house within vnknowne to the Disciples: <sup>z</sup> other, that to come in the doores being shut, is no more but that he came in late in the euening, at what time men vse to shut their doores: but most acknowledge that he came in miraculously, not thorow the wood and iron of the doores, as the Papists absurdly conceiue: but through his <sup>a</sup> omnipotent and all commanding power the doores were opened to him, as they were to Peter, Acts 12.9. and to some other Apostles, Acts 5.19. Creatura cessit creatori, Hieron. epist. ad Pammac. tom. 2. fol. 178. <sup>b</sup> or as Malchus eare was so soone healed, that an incredulous Iew would not beleue that Peters sword euer went betweene it and his head: to the place thorow which his bodie passed, might be shut and whole before and after he passed, but not in the instant of his passing, because that is contrarie to the nature of a true bodie, such as his was. I know God can doe whatsoeuer he will, but his word is his reuealed will, and that telleth vs expressly, that Christs bodie was like our bodie in <sup>c</sup> all things, onely <sup>d</sup> sinne excepted. And if it be like our body, then it cannot be without distance of space and place: for (saith <sup>e</sup> Augustine) That is no body which is no where. Lastly, the plaine text is against them, for it doth not say that Christ came thorow the boords and barres of the doore, but onely that he came and stood in the midst, after, or when the doore was shut; not determining the manner how he came, but onely reporting the matter that he came, and the time when he came. So that hauing so many and those so manifest euasions otherwise, we need not say that Christ came in at the window, that is a popish forgerie crept into the Rhemists annotations through the wicket of our aduersaries owne mouth.

<sup>x</sup> Beza.

<sup>y</sup> Apud Marlorat. in loc.

<sup>z</sup> Arctius.

<sup>a</sup> Cyrill.

Euthym.

Marlorat. in loc.

Idem Caluin.

Instit. lib. 4. cap.

17 §. 29.

<sup>b</sup> Dr. Euthym. loc.

<sup>c</sup> Heb. 2. 17.

<sup>d</sup> Heb. 4. 15.

<sup>e</sup> Epist. 57.

<sup>f</sup> Anglican.

Confess. art. 28.

& Com. Cai. iii.

Sacrament.

<sup>g</sup> Act. 3. 21.

<sup>h</sup> Church hom. of the Sacrament, part. 1.

<sup>i</sup> Luke 2. 46.

<sup>k</sup> Luke 23. 33.

<sup>l</sup> Matth. 25. 33.

<sup>m</sup> Arctius.

<sup>n</sup> Psal. 106. 23.

<sup>o</sup> Euthym.

<sup>p</sup> Vide postil.

Pontian & Vcg.

Dom. 1. post

Pasch.

<sup>q</sup> Musculus.

Maldonat.

<sup>r</sup> 1 Tim 5. 20

<sup>s</sup> Arctius.

For the concusion it selfe: <sup>f</sup> we teach, as the Scriptures and holy Fathers, that the sacramentall bread and wine are signes and seales of Christs body and bloud, and we receiue them in thankfull remembrance he died for vs. As for his crucified body, it is now in heauen a glorified body, & where it shall remaine till he come in the last day to iudge and end this, and all other controuersies. In the meane while, we must as <sup>h</sup> Eagles flie to the place where the dead body lieth, ascending vpon the wings of faith vnto it, and not expecting that it should locally descend vnto vs. See Sursum corda in their Liturgie.

And stood in the midst] We reade in the Gospels historie, that Christ was often in the midst. In the midst of the <sup>i</sup> Doctors, in the midst of his Apostles, in the midst on the Crosse betweene two <sup>k</sup> theues, and shall at the last day be likewise in the midst <sup>l</sup> betweene the sheepe and the goats. In his natiuitie, life, death, resurrection, and comming to iudgement, in the midst. <sup>m</sup> Hereby signifying that he is our Messias and medius, like <sup>n</sup> Moses standing in the gap betweene God and vs. He stood in the midst here, that <sup>o</sup> all might the better heare him and see him, as the <sup>p</sup> Sunne in the midst of the firmament, and the heart in the midst of the members, affording his comfort indifferently to the whole companie: for hee came not onely for the benefit of Thomas, but for the common good of other. And this may teach all pastors and parents, to seeke the good of all that are committed vnto their charge.

Christ standing in the midst of his Apostles openly rebuked Thomas for two causes especially: first, <sup>q</sup> that as Thomas had offended afore them, hee might also be reprehended afore them all. A private fault is to be censured priuately, but a publike scandall openly, <sup>r</sup> them that sinne rebuke publicly, that the rest also may feare. Secondly, <sup>s</sup> that Thomas his vnbeleefe might strengthen others faith, and and that his doubt might put all other out of doubt. So infinite is God in greatnesse and goodnesse, that he can bring light out of darknesse, and vse the weaknesse, yea the wickednesse of other for our good, and his glory. Unius interrogatio, vniuersitatis instructio, faith<sup>r</sup> Augustine. Ones ignorance was all others instruction: for except Thomas had doubted so much, other should neuer haue knowne so much, and seene so many demonstrations of Christ his resurrection, as the Church in the Collect: Almightie God, which for the more confirmation of the faith, didst suffer the holy Apostle Thomas to be doubtfull in thy Sonnes resurrection, &c.

Peace be vnto you] This salutation was vsuall among the Jewes, and at this instant of all other vndoubtedly most<sup>n</sup> fit. For<sup>x</sup> hereby Christ did insinuate, that howsoeuer in the world they had trouble; yet he had made their y peace with God. As also that they need in their troubled estate to pray for peace of Church, O<sup>z</sup> pray for the peace of Hierusalem: and peace of conscience, for that is a<sup>a</sup> continuall feast. Or haply, <sup>b</sup> that they might the better know him after his resurrection, he speaks vnto them as a little before his death, <sup>c</sup> I leaue peace with you, my peace I giue vnto you, let not your hearts be troubled, nor feare: Christ is our peace, preaching peace in his life, making peace in his death, assuring peace in his resurrection, and consummating our peace in his comming againe to iudge the quicke and the dead, when hee shall say to the sonnes of peace, <sup>d</sup> Well done good seruants, and faithfull, enter into your masters ioy. Now the Lord of<sup>e</sup> peace giue you peace alwayes by all meanes.

Bring thy finger hither] After Christ had saluted the whole Colledge of Apostles in generall, he turnes himselfe to Thomas in particular, repeating euery word Thomas had vttered in his absence. Teaching<sup>f</sup> him hereby, that hee was risen againe through his omnipotencie, for the dead haue no sense, much lesse reason, and least of all vnderstanding the secrets of anothers heart. And teaching<sup>g</sup> vs hereby, not to commit any sinne, though it may be done neuer so closely, for hee seeth all our workes, heareth all our words, and knoweth all our thoughts, <sup>h</sup> & aperta & operta. Remember the speech of God vnto Dauid, <sup>i</sup> Thou didst it secretly; but I will doe this thing before all Israel, and before the Sunne.

Our Saviour did neither reiect Thomas finally, nor yet correct him fiercely for his incredulitie: but<sup>k</sup> accommodating himselfe to Thomas infirmitic, seekes to winne him, and to bring him home to his sheepefold. O Thomas, thou hast thy faith at thy fingers end, seeing that thou wilt belecue no more than thou seelest, I pray thee therefore bring thy finger hither, and see my hands, &c. Herethen is a patterne, whereby<sup>l</sup> Paul might giue his precept, We that are strong ought to beare the infirmities of the weakke, that we may make them, as Christ did Thomas, of faithlesse faithfull.

And this supporting is<sup>m</sup> by

- Patience, <sup>n</sup> forbearing them.
- Pitic, <sup>o</sup> weeping with them that weepe.
- Pietie, releuing them as well with our counsell if they want wit, as with our almes if they want wealth.

Thomas, because thou hast seene me, thou hast beleued] Faith is an<sup>p</sup> euidence of things not seene; how then did he beleue that which he saw? can you touch God, as the wicked Arrians obiect, and feele him with a finger? Answer is made by the<sup>q</sup> Fathers, that Thomas touched one thing, and beleued another Videbat hominem, confitebatur Deum, as<sup>r</sup> Augustine vpon my Text. He touched Christ as man, but beleued in him as God; saying, my Lord and my God: acknowledging the diuinitie which he did not see, by the wounds he did see. So that Christ here commends the faith of Thomas, in saying, thou hast beleued; and reprehends only his<sup>s</sup> slacknesse of faith, in adding, because thou hast seene me. First handling the wounds of Christ, afore he would credit the words of his Apostles. <sup>t</sup> Quid enim est fides, nisi credere quod non vides? <sup>u</sup> coplus habet meriti, quo minus argumenti. Thomas in beleuing after he saw Christ, is a type of the<sup>x</sup> Jewes: and the rest of <sup>c</sup> Serm. 156. de Temp.

<sup>n</sup> Maldonat.
<sup>x</sup> Ferus. ser. 1. in loc.
<sup>y</sup> Ephes. 2. 14, 15
<sup>z</sup> Psal. 122. 6.
<sup>a</sup> Prou. 15. 15.
<sup>b</sup> Theophylact. Euthym. Bullinger.
<sup>e</sup> Iohn 14. 27.

<sup>d</sup> Matth. 25. 21.
<sup>c</sup> 2 Thess. 3. 16.

<sup>f</sup> Arctius.

<sup>g</sup> Kilius.

<sup>h</sup> Lijsius de Const. lib. 2. cap. 16.
<sup>i</sup> 2 Sam. 12. 12.

<sup>k</sup> Culman. Con. 1. in loc. & Perkins expof. Creed, art. resurrect. of Christ.
<sup>l</sup> Rom. 15. 1.

<sup>m</sup> Caietan. in Rom. 14.
<sup>n</sup> Coloff. 3. 13.
<sup>o</sup> Rom. 12. 15.

<sup>p</sup> Heb. 11. 1.
<sup>q</sup> Gregor. hom. 26. in euangel. Beda. Maxentius apud Maldonat. in loc.
<sup>r</sup> Tract. 121. in Iohn.

<sup>s</sup> Arctius. Marlorat. Augustin. tract. 40. in Iohn.
<sup>t</sup> Maldonat. Rupert. in loc.

the Disciples in beleeuing afore they saw Christ, a figure of the Gentiles. Augustin. tract. 121. in Ioan. circa fin.

Blessed are they that haue not seene, and yet haue beleued ] y Hee denieth not Thomas to be blessed in this sentence, but onely preferreth other Apostles, and 2 all other Christians afore him, in that they haue not seene, and yet haue beleued.
 For <sup>a</sup> if thou knowledg with thy mouth, that Iesus is the Lord, and beleue in thine heart, that God hath raised him vp from the dead; O <sup>b</sup> well is thee, and happy shalt thou be. So blessed as John, whose head lay neere his masters heart: so blessed as Ioseph of Arimathea, who buried his bodie: so blessed as old Simeon, who lulled his Sauour in his armes: yea, so blessed as the Virgin her selfe, that bare him in her wombe: for she was more blessed in being the daughter, than in being the mother of Christ. Here the Gospell and Epistle meet, all they that haue not seene, and yet haue beleued, are fellow-citizens with the Saints, and of Gods house, built vpon the foundation of the Prophets and Apostles, Iesus Christ himselve being the head corner stone, in whom they grow to be an holy temple of God, c hauing the promises of the life present, and of that which is to come. See Gospell, Sunday 13. after Trinitie.

By this it doth appeare, that the resurrection of Christ is the chiefe obiect of a blessed faith, as also the maine subiect of all this our present Gospell. And it is exceeding profitable for confutation, and instruction. As first it doth ouerthrow the wicked error of <sup>d</sup> Cerinthus, who taught, Christ should not rise againe till the generall resurrection; of whom Epiphanius worthily, Stolidus est, & stolidorum magister. Secondly, <sup>e</sup> Apelles heresie, who said Christ rose againe, but not in his owne flesh, or (as <sup>f</sup> Augustine reports his opinion) without any flesh. Thirdly, that of <sup>g</sup> Cerdon, and the Passionists, affirming that Christ ascended into heauen in soule only. Fourthly, that assertion of <sup>h</sup> Eutybian heretikes, holding that Christs humane nature was deified after his resurrection, and made not glorious onely but meere diuine also.

Againe, the doctrine of Christs rising againe from the dead, serues for instruction in matters of holy faith and good manners. In articles of beleefe concerning Christ and our selues. First touching Christ: whereas he did abide among the dead at <sup>i</sup> least thirtie three, or thirtie foure houres; as he continued among the liuing thirtie three, or thirtie foure yeeres: I say, whereas Christ being starke dead, raised himselfe to life by his owne power; it is a manifest demonstration of his God-head, as Paul disputes, Rom. 1.4. and God said in the second Psalme, Thou art my Sonne, this day haue I begotten thee. The which text ought to be construed not so much of Christs eternall generation afore all worlds, as of the manifestation thereof in time. This day, <sup>k</sup> that is, at the time of thine incarnation: but at the day of thy resurrection especially, haue I begotten thee: that is, I haue made knowne vnto the world, that thou art my Sonne, as Paul expounds it, Acts 13.33. for none euer raised another from the dead but by God: none euer raised himselfe from the dead but God.

Secondly, this doctrine <sup>l</sup> proues euidently, that Christ was a perfect Priest, and that his passion was an omnissufficient sacrifice for the finnes of the whole world. For if he had not fully satisfied for them all, if there had remained one little sinne onely, for which he had made no satisfaction, he could not haue risen againe: for death and the graue which came into the world by sinne, and are daily strengthened by sinne, would haue held him in bondage. To this purpose <sup>m</sup> Paul saith, If Christ be not risen againe, your faith is vaine, and you are yet in your finnes. That is, Christ had not answered fully for your finnes, or at least you could not possibly know that he had made satisfaction for any of them, if hee had not risen againe.

As for points of faith appertaining to thy selfe more neerely, the resurrection of Christ is a demonstration of our resurrection, according to that of Paul, If it be preached that Christ is risen againe from the dead, how say some among you, that there is no resurrection of the dead? 1 Cor. 15.12. Behold, saith the <sup>n</sup> Lord, I kill,

<sup>y</sup> Theophylact.

Misculus.

Culman.

<sup>z</sup> Arctius.

Ferus.

Maldonat.

<sup>a</sup> Rom. 10.9.

<sup>b</sup> Psal. 128.2.

<sup>c</sup> 1 Tim 4.8.

<sup>d</sup> Epiphanius heres. 28.

<sup>e</sup> Idem Epiphanius heres. 44.

<sup>f</sup> Heres. 23.

<sup>g</sup> Idem Alphonf. de Castro, tit. de Christ. heres. 12.

<sup>h</sup> Idem Alphonf. eod. tit. heres. 2.

<sup>i</sup> Bucan. loc. com. tit. de resurrect. Chr:st. quest. 23.

<sup>j</sup> Bellarm. car. exposi. art. 5. of the Creed.

<sup>k</sup> Calvin, in Psal. 2. & Suarez. 10.

<sup>l</sup> in 3. Thom. disput. 45. sect. 1.

<sup>m</sup> Perkins on the Creed, art. Christs resurrection.

<sup>n</sup> 1 Cor. 15.17.

<sup>o</sup> Deut. 32.39.

and giue life: I wound, and I make whole: that is, as <sup>o</sup> Tertulian aptly, killing by death, and giuing life by resurrection. If a man be cast into the sea, though all his bodie sinke vnder the water, yet there is hope of recouerie so long as his head is aboue the waues: in like manner, if wee beleue that Christ our head is the first fruits of those that sleepe, let vs not doubt, but vnfainedly beleue, that we which are his members, in our due time, shall be raised out of the dust also. Moreouer, the resurrection of Christ is a proofof our iustification before God, He was deliuered for our offences, and raised againe for our iustification. As in his death he stood in our place, and wounded for our transgressions, and broken for our iniquities, and bearing our finnes in his bodie on the tree: so likewise in his resurrection, he is not to be considered as a priuate, but as a publike person, representing the whole Church, making his righteousnesse a cloake to couer all our vnrighteousnesse. If death could not keepe Christ fettered in his prison, it is euident that his pover was overcome. Now then if death be conquered, it followeth necessarily, that sinne the wages of death is also destroyed. If death and sinne bee vanquished, then the tyrannous kingdome of Satan is subdued, who had the power of death, and was author of sinne, and ruler of hell. So that euery true Christian may reioyce with Paul; O death, where is thy sting? O graue, where is thy victorie? the sting of death is sinne, and the strength of sinne is the Law; but thanks be to God, which hath giuen vs victorie through our Lord Iesus Christ. And lastly, concerning matters of honest and holy conuersation; this doctrine teacheth vs to seeke those things which are aboue, where Christ sitteth at the right hand of God, and to rise from dead workes vnto newnesse of life. See Epistle on Easter day, and Epistle Sunday 6. after Trinitie. Touching our Euangelists epilogue; see Gospell on S. Johns days.

<sup>o</sup> Lib. de carnis resurrectione.

<sup>p</sup> Rom. 4. 25.
<sup>q</sup> Esay 53. 5.
<sup>r</sup> 1 Pet. 2. 24.

<sup>r</sup> Rom. 6. 23.

<sup>r</sup> Coloss. 3. 1.
<sup>s</sup> Rom. 6. 4.

The Epistle. HEB. I. I.

God in times past diuersly and many waies, spake vnto the Fathers by Prophets: but in these last dayes he hath spoken to vs by his owne Sonne, &c.

The whole world in old time was distinguished by three principall languages (as it appeares in Pilats inscription or title * written on Christs Crosse) Latine, Greeke, Hebrew. The Latine tongue was famous in regard of the Romaue Empire, which ouer-spread and ouer-topt all other Kingdomes on earth; according to that of <sup>2</sup> Virgil: Romanos rerum Dominos, &c. or as <sup>a</sup> another Poet wittily:

Roma tibi quondam suberant domini dominorum, Sernorum serui nunc tibi sunt domini.

The Greeke tongue was especially regarded, because Greece was the worlds Vniuersitie, the seat of Wisdome, the mint of Arts, and as it were the common Nurserie of all humane learning. In which respect <sup>b</sup> one commending Paris in France called it Græcalibris, and

Attica philosophis, rosa mundi, Balsamus orbis:

The Hebrew most honoured, in that it is Gods owne language, wherein his own Law was written, and wherewith it was expounded vnto his own people. Now Paul preached Sermons, and penned Epistles in all these languages, as being a <sup>c</sup> chosen vessell of the Lord, to beare his name before the Gentiles, and Kings, and children of Israel. He preached and wrote to the Romanes, and so he did beare Christs name before Kings, for they were Lords of the world. He preached and wrote to the Grecians, as to the Church of Corinth, Ephesus, Philippi, Thessalonica, &c. and so he did beare the name of Christ before the Gentiles. He preached and wrote to the faithfull Hebrewes, as <sup>d</sup> S. Peter telleth vs, and so he did beare the name of Christ before the children of Israel. I say, Paul wrote to the Iewes, holding with the most and best <sup>e</sup> Expositors, that he was author of this excellent Epistle.

<sup>x</sup> Iohn 19. 20.
<sup>y</sup> Gorran proem. 2 in epist. Pauli.
<sup>z</sup> Æneid lib 1.
<sup>a</sup> Apud Illyricum poem de corrupt. statu ecclesie.

<sup>b</sup> Archibitermius apud Strabo lib. 7. cap. 10.

<sup>c</sup> Acts 9. 15.

<sup>d</sup> Epist. 3. cap. vers 15.
<sup>e</sup> Vide Prolog. Act. & Piscat. in epist. ad Heb. W. in ak. & disput. de sac script. quest. 1. cap. vlt.

Now

Now thereasons are <sup>f</sup> manifold, why Paul did not here set downe his name : First, because he was not an Apostle of the Iewes, but of the Gentiles, as he saith himselfe, Gal. 2. 7. The Gospell ouer the vncircumcision was committed vnto me, as the Gospell ouer the circumcision was vnto Peter. Secondly, for that his name was odious vnto the Iewes (as we reade in the 21. and 22. Chapter of the Acts; often crying out against him, away with such a fellow from the earth, for it is not meet he should liue. Thirdly, Paul was an Hebrew, 2 Corinth. 11. 22. They are Hebrewes, so am I. He therefore concealed his name, because a Prophet is not honoured in his <sup>g</sup> own countrey. But whether <sup>h</sup> Barnabas, or Clemens, or Luke wrote it, as many thinke; or Paul, as most affirme, <sup>i</sup> the matter is not great : for if the name had beene here, what had it shewed, -but that God vsed the ministerie of such a man? and now the name is not knowne, it teacheth vs expressly the doctrine is of God. And for this cause to the bookes of holy Scripture names are sometime prefixed, and sometime not, that we might <sup>k</sup> not haue the faith of our glorious Lord Iesus Christ in respect of persons. Whether it be Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, all are <sup>l</sup> yours: haply Paul first planted it in Hebrew, then Luke watered and <sup>m</sup> translated it into Greeke, but God gaue the grace to both. And therefore we must not attend who but what. For <sup>n</sup> whatsoener is written afore time, is written for our learning: especially this Epistle, penned of purpose to maintaine the chiefe point of holy beleefe, namely, that forgiuenesse of sinnes is by Christ onely. These Hebrewes had ioyned the ceremonies of the Law with the Gospel of Christ, as the Christians in the kingdomes of <sup>o</sup> Prester John at this houre retaine Circumcision and Baptisme. For albeit <sup>p</sup> many thousands of the Iewes beleeued, yet were they still zealous of the Law, not enduring to heare of the abrogation of it, in so much that they made this a point of faith, and it is the <sup>q</sup> ninth article of their Creed, at this day, God gaue his Law to Moses his faithfull seruant, and he will neuer change nor alter it for another.

Now true Christianitie reads a contrary lecture, namely, that the ceremonies of the Law were primò mortales, postea mortua, postremò mortifera. So that to leaue Christ for them, or to ioyne Christ with them, is the plaine way to destruction. <sup>r</sup> Augustine excellently, Legalia fuerunt ante passionem Domini vna, statim post passionem mortua, hodie sepulta. That is, the Iewish ceremonies afore Christ came were alieue, when hee suffered on the Crosse they were dead, and now they be buried. And so by consequent they may not rise vp againe to be put in the ballance with his glory : for the gold, siluer, precious stones, and all other ornaments of the magnificent Temple compared with his rich mercies, are but beggerly rudiments, as our Apostle speakes, Galat. 4. 9. Nothing in earth, or vnder earth, or in heauen, or in the heauen of heauens is so glorious as he, <sup>t</sup> no name else that is named, in which, or by which, we can be saued, but only the name of Iesus Christ.

<sup>f</sup> Apud Primas. Aquin. Anelm. Prefat in epist. ad Heb & Belarm lib. 1. de verbo Dei, c. 17. <sup>g</sup> Sixt. Senens. Bib san. lib. 7. hares. 8. <sup>h</sup> Matth. 13. 57. <sup>i</sup> Apud Primas. & Aquin. ubi sup. Idem Caicetan. & Marlorat argument. epist. ad Heb. <sup>j</sup> Deering lect. 1. Heb. <sup>k</sup> Iam. 2. 1. <sup>l</sup> 1 Cor 3. 22. <sup>m</sup> Primasius. Lombard. Aquin. <sup>n</sup> Rom. 15. 4.

<sup>o</sup> Mat. Dreffe-
<sup>r</sup> <sup>q</sup> Acts 21. 20.
<sup>r</sup> Deering. lect. 1. Heb.

<sup>t</sup> Apud Io. Com. Compend. Theolog. lib. 6. cap. 8.

<sup>u</sup> Acts 4. 12.

<sup>v</sup> Aquin. lect. 1. in Heb. 1. Idem Deering & alij. <sup>w</sup> Aretius. Beza. Piscator.

The law was ordained by glorious Angels, written by Moses, obtained by the Priests, expounded by the Prophets. In the first and second chapter, Paul compares our Saviour with Angels and Prophets. In the third with Moses. In the 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10. with the Priests and their ceremonies; intimating in all, that the Law is deficient, and that Christ in the worke of our saluation is only sufficient and efficient. Our only Prophet, in whose word we must rest: our onely Priest, in whose sacrifice we must rest: our onely King, vnder whose protection we must rest: who with his blessed Spirit leadeth vs in wayes of eternall life, working in vs all in all. Quemadmodum enim membrum ipsius corporis recipit ab epate humores, à corde vitam, à capite sensum & motum: sic homo recipit ab homine carnem, à Deo animam, à Christo bonitatem & Deo sensum & motum, id est totum bene esse & gratiam: & sicut membrum habet duos motus, unum de natura sua cadere deorsum, & alium à capite, scilicet motum sursum, & iste motus est supra naturam membri: conformiter homo quoad animam habet duos motus, unum de natura sua, & iste motus est cadere deorsum ad nihil, ad non esse, ad propriam voluntatem, & elongari à Deo; & alium habet à Christo, scilicet moueri sursum ad Deum, &c.

In this Text appointed fitly for this time, Christ is first y conferred, and then preferred before the Prophets and Angels. In the comparison betweene Christ and the Prophets, obserue the 2 consent and dissent betweene the old Testament and the new. The consent and agreement is, in that one God spake in both, in the one by his seruants; in the other by his Sonne. The same God is author of both, and the same Christ is subiect of both, in so much that each Testament is in other; in the Law there is an hidden Gospell, and in the Gospell a reuealed Law. So like as the two <sup>a</sup> Cherubins on the mercie seat, whose faces looked one to another. And like the Seraphims, Esay 6 3. one crying to another, holy, holy, holy, both hauing one voice, saith <sup>b</sup> Augustine. Or resembling each other, as Iesus and Iames: who were so like, that that they were on anothers <sup>c</sup> giasse. God in times past, and God in these last dayes hath spoken to vs. And whofoener he be, to whom this ministry shall be committed, if he will be numbred with Patriarkes, and Prophets, Apostles and Pastors, and with our Saviour Christ himselfe: whatsoener he spake, let him speake <sup>d</sup> as the Word of God. For this couenant hath God made with his seruants, Esay 59. 21. My spirit that is upon thee, and my words which I haue put in thy mouth, shall not depart out of thy mouth, nor out of the mouth of thy seed, nor out of the mouth of the seed of thy seed from henceforth euen for euer. And indeed whose word else should discern the <sup>e</sup> thoughts of the soule, but his only who is the <sup>f</sup> searcher of the heart? and whose word should kill our carnall affections, but his only who giues the sword of the Spirit?

God spake] The word God here may be taken either essentially for the whole & Trinitie; because God the Sonne (being a <sup>b</sup> crier in the wildernesse) spake by the Prophets as well as God the Father, and God the Holy Ghost as well as either of them, according to that of <sup>i</sup> S. Peter, Prophecie came not in old time by the will of man, but holy men of God spake as they were moued by the Holy Ghost. Or it may be construed in respect of Christs office personally. God, <sup>k</sup> that is, God the Father, spake to the Fathers by Prophets, and by his owne Sonne to vs.

The dissent and difference between the two Testaments is in regard of the Manner for	}	Time, sundry times.

		Fashion, many wayes.
Men	}	Vnto whom, vnto the Fathers in times past, but in these last dayes vnto vs.
		In whom, or by whom, God spake by the Prophets in the one, by his own Sonne in the other.

The first dissent is in respect of time, the times of the Fathers are old and past: but the time of Christs preaching passeth not, it is for euer, alway continuing new; <sup>m</sup> Iesus Christ yesterday, and to day, and the same also for euer. The doctrine taught by the Prophets in old time was reuealed multis vicibus, as Beza translates, at sundry times, as our English Bible. But that which Christ himselfe deliuered, <sup>x</sup> Vide Reynundum de Sabunde Theolog. natural. Tr. 277.

<sup>y</sup> Lombard. Gorran.

<sup>z</sup> Arctius.

<sup>a</sup> Excd. 25 20.

<sup>b</sup> In Psal. 49.

<sup>c</sup> Ignatius epist. ad Ioh. an. seniorum.

<sup>d</sup> 1 Pet. 4. 11.

<sup>e</sup> Heb. 4. 12.

<sup>f</sup> Psal. 7. 10.

<sup>g</sup> Kilius.

<sup>h</sup> Esay 40. 3.

<sup>i</sup> 2 Epist. 1. cap. vers 21 & Acts 1. 16.

<sup>k</sup> Primitius. Anselm. Piscator.

<sup>l</sup> Arctius Deering.

<sup>m</sup> Heb. 13. 8.

is revealed but once. The which is insinuated here, but expressed elsewhere by this author, as in chap. 9. verse 26. But now in the end of the world hath Christ bene once revealed. And in chapter 12. verse 26. Yet once will I strike, not the earth only, but also heauen. And this it is which <sup>a</sup> Iude saith of the Christian faith, that it was once giuen vnto the Saints. Once, <sup>o</sup> that is, perfectly, so that we need not another Gospell. Almighty God hath spoken last in his Sonne; that is, in the <sup>p</sup> fulnesse of time so fully, <sup>q</sup> that we may not expect he should vent in time to come any new doctrine. For albeit the Spirit was giuen after Christs ascension: yet the same spirit taught that only, which Christ had taught afore. See Gospell 4. Sunday after Easter.

From hence we may learne boldly to refuse whatsoeuer is inuestigabile, that is, an after, or another doctrine sprung vp since. As the new gospell of Anabaptists, and idolatries of Mahomet, and the reuelations of S. Briget, and all superstitions positions and expositions of Papists. In a word, <sup>t</sup> whatsoeuer bastard religion is contrary to Christs once preaching vpon earth, which because it was once, confutes all after it, and abrogates all afore it which had diuersitie of time, as our Apostle gathereth in the 12. chapter of this Epistle, verse 27.

The second difference betweene the two Testaments is, that God in the one spake many wayes and diuersly, either by Angels, or by the Cloud, or betweene the Cherubins, or by visions, or by dreames, after sundry kindes of speech, and diuers kindes of actions: but the doctrine of the other is taught after one sort, euen by preaching of the Gospell; <sup>u</sup> which is the power of God vnto saluation to euery one that beleueth, and it worketh more mightily than all those kindes of reuelations, and pierceth into the heart of man more deeply than any manner of perswasion; yea though one should rise from the dead and speake to vs.

The third dissent is, that God in old time spake onely to the fathers, Abrahams, Isaac, Iacob, vnto some few men, and one nation. <sup>v</sup> He shewed his word vnto Iacob, his statutes and ordinances vnto Israel, he dealt not so with any people, neither had the Heathen knowledge of his lawes. But in these last dayes, hee hath spoken vnto vs indefinitely, to Iew, to Gentile, to bond, to free, to male, to female, being <sup>x</sup> all one in Christ Iesu, hauing all through faith, one entrance vnto the throne of grace, Heb. 4. 16. So that I need not say now, Lord remember Dauid, or the couenant made with Abraham: but in time of need I may goe boldly to the throne of grace, saying, <sup>y</sup> Lord remember me, <sup>z</sup> O God be mercifull to me, <sup>a</sup> Iesus haue pittie on me. For vnto those that are nigh, and vnto those that are farre off, there is but one couenant in Iesus Christ, Ephes. 2. 13 17.

The fourth difference betweene the two Testaments is, that God in the one spake by Prophets his seruants: in the other, by Christ his owne Sonne, by meece men in times past vnto the fathers: but vnto vs he hath spoken by that eternall word which is God, whom he hath made heire of all things, by whom also he hath made the world, &c. <sup>b</sup> The maine proposition of all this chapter is, that Christ who revealed the Gospell is the Sonne of God, yea God himselte. Now the first part, namely, that Christ is he who brought into the world the Gospell, is concessum & confessum. The faithlesse Hebrew complained of it, and the faithfull Hebrew beleued it. And therefore taking this as granted, he doth insift in the latter part only, prouing at large that Christ is God.

Glory of his name, being Gods owne Sonne, and heire of all things.
Worthinesse of his person, as being the brightnesse of the glory of God, and the very image of his person.

And that in respect of the Greatnesse of his power, upholding all things by his mightie word.

Benefit purchased for vs, hauing by himselte purged our sinnes.
Dignitie procured to himselte, in that he sitteth at the right hand of the Maieslie on high.

In all which he doth excell Angels, as first hauing obtained a more excellent name

<sup>a</sup> Epist. of Iude, verse 3.

<sup>o</sup> Aquin.

Caetan.

Aretius in epist. Iude.

<sup>p</sup> Galat 4.4.

<sup>q</sup> Sarcenius.

Lombard.

Marlorat.

<sup>r</sup> 1 Tim. 1.3.

<sup>t</sup> Deering. lect.

1 Heb.

<sup>u</sup> Rom. 1.16.

<sup>v</sup> Psal. 147.19.

<sup>x</sup> Gal. 3.28.

<sup>y</sup> Luke 23.42.

<sup>z</sup> Luke 18.13.

<sup>a</sup> Mark. 10.47.

<sup>b</sup> Aretius.

name than they. For albeit Angels are called sonnes of God in respect of their creation, and Israel the <sup>c</sup> first borne of God, and all Ele<sup>d</sup>ct the children of God, in respect of adoption and grace: yet no man or Angell is the sonne of God by nature, but Christ alone begotten of the substance of the Father, as being the brightnesse of his glory, and expresse image of his person. Of whom the Father said in the second Psalm, Thou art my sonne, this day have I begotten thee. And in another <sup>e</sup> Text, I will be his father, and he shall be my sonne. And when he bringeth in the first begotten sonne into the world, he saith, and let all Angels worship him. Insinuating that Christ is not only greater than Angels: but also God, to be honoured of all Angels. Againe, whereas Christ is an eternall King, whose scepter is a right scepter, and whose throne is for ever and ever: Angels are but subiects and seruants, according to that of the <sup>h</sup> Psalmist, He maketh his Angels spirits, and his Ministers a flame of fire.

Moreouer, Christ in the beginning laid the foundation of the earth, and the hea- uens are the workes of his hands, and <sup>i</sup> all that in them is, <sup>k</sup> things visible and inni- sible, whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers, all were created by him and for him; and therefore seeing Christ is Creator, and Angels his creatures: he doth excell them, as farre as things infinite can exceed things finite. Lastly, Christ sitteth at the right hand of the Maiessty on high: Here- by signifying that God hath giuen him all power in <sup>l</sup> heauen and in earth, and ta- ken him into the fellowship of his glory, for all things that the Father hath are mine, saith <sup>m</sup> our Sauour: whereas Angels, howfoeuer they <sup>n</sup> behold the face of our heavenly Father, and enioy his presence: yet are they but messengers and mi- nisters attending about his throne, for the good of such as are heires of saluation, as the <sup>o</sup> Nightringale of France sweetly:

*The sacred tutors of the Saints, the guard Of Gods Ele<sup>d</sup>ct, the pursuiuants prepar'd
To execute the counsels of the highest,
Gods glorious Heralds, heauen swift Harbingers, Twixt heauen and earth the true interpreters.*

And here let vs according to the present occasion of Text and time, magnifie the Father of mercie, for that the Sonne of God on this day for our sake became the Sonne of man, yea seruant vnto men, in that he came into the world not to be serued, but to serue, Matth. 20. 28. For that the brightnesse of Gods glory, tooke vp- on him the vilenesse of our nature, being made <sup>p</sup> a worme and no man, a very scorne of men, and outcast of the people. For that he who was more excellent than Angels, at this time became lesse than Angels, that he might make vs so great as Angels. <sup>q</sup> Vt nos aquaret Angelis, minoratus est ab Angelis: for that he who laid the founda- tion of the earth, and made the world, was himselve now made. <sup>r</sup> Factor terre, factus in terra, Creator caeli, creatus sub caelo. <sup>s</sup> Being the childe of Mary, who was the father of Mary. <sup>t</sup> Sine quo pater nunquam fuit, sine quo mater nunquam fuis- set: so that whereas Dauid, Psalm. 118. 24. This is the day which the Lord hath made: <sup>u</sup> we may say, This is the day wherein the Lord was made, we will reioyce and be glad in it. For that he who sits on the right hand of the Maiessty on high, and <sup>x</sup> measureth the waters in his fist, and heauen with his span, was now lodged in a sta- ble, crouded in a cratch, and swadled in a few raggs. O beloued, if we were not in this great light of the Gospell, almost so blinde as the Bat; we would wish our selues all eye, to behold the babe Iesus in the manger. If we were nor as deafe as the stubborne Adder; we would wish our selues all eare, to heare the tidings of great ioy to all people; namely, <sup>y</sup> that vnto vs is borne this day in the citie of Dauid a Sa- uour, which is Christ the Lord. If we were not in some sort possessed with a dumbe spirit: we would wish our selues all tongue, to chaunt that heavenly car- roll of the glorious Angels, <sup>z</sup> Glory be to God on high, and in earth peace, good will toward men.

It is the fashion of many men, at this festiuall especially, to boast of their rich attire, great attendance, good fire, large cheere: yet (seeing Christ is heire of

<sup>c</sup> Exod. 4. 22.
<sup>d</sup> Rom. 8. 14.

<sup>e</sup> 2 Sam. 7. 14.
& 1 Chro. 22. 10.
<sup>f</sup> Psal. 97. 7.
<sup>g</sup> Psal. 45. 7.
<sup>h</sup> Psal. 104. 4.

<sup>i</sup> Exod. 20. 11.
<sup>k</sup> Coloss. 1. 16

<sup>l</sup> Matth. 28. 18

<sup>m</sup> Iohn 16. 15.
<sup>n</sup> Matth. 18. 10

<sup>o</sup> Du Bartas,
1 day, 1 week,
pag. 29.

<sup>p</sup> Psal. 22. 6.

<sup>q</sup> Anselm. Spec.
Euang. cap. 1.
<sup>r</sup> Augustinus ser.
27. de temp.
<sup>s</sup> Leo ser. 6. de
nat. Dom.
<sup>t</sup> August. ser. 16.
de temp.
<sup>u</sup> Euseb. Emif.
hom. 2. de nat.
Dom.
<sup>x</sup> Esa. 40. 12.

<sup>y</sup> Luk. 2. 11.

<sup>z</sup> Luke 2. 14.

all things in the world) they cannot in their owne right enioy so much as a Christmas log, or a Christmas pye, till they be first ingrafted in him. I may haue from man, my warrant on earth here, that my land is mine, my benefice mine, my coat mine, house, horse, hofe mine: and he is a very theeft that taketh away these from me: But all the men in the world cannot giue me my possession before the liuing God, but his Sonne Christ onely, who is heire of all; and therefore that our land may be our owne, our apparell our owne, our meat our owne, our men and money our owne; let vs be Christs, that in him we may haue the good assurance of all our substance: that I may pronounce that vnto you, which our <sup>a</sup> Apostle to the Corinthians: All are yours, and ye Christs, and Christ Gods.

<sup>a</sup> 1 Cor 3.22.

The Gospell. IOHN I. I.

In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God, &c.

Saint Peter was an Apostle, but not an Euangelist: S. Luke an Euangelist, but not an Apostle: S. Matthew was both an Euangelist and an Apostle, but not a Prophet: <sup>b</sup> but our S. Iohn was all these; in his Epistles an Apostle, in his Apocalyps a Prophet, in compiling his Gospell an Euangelist. In which (as Interpreters haue with one consent obserued) he mounts as an Eagle, <sup>c</sup> for whereas his fellow Euangelists especially treat of the conception, birth, education, and other points of Christs incarnation in the world: Saint Iohn flying higher than these, beginneth his history with Christs eternall generation before the worlds, in the beginning was the Word, &c as <sup>d</sup> Augustine vpon my Text, transcenderat omnia cacumina montium terrarum, transcenderat omnes campos aeris, transcenderat omnes altitudines syderum, transcenderat omnes choros & legiones Angelorum, nisi enim transcenderet ista omnia qua creata sunt, non perueniret ad eum per quem facta sunt omnia For as an <sup>e</sup> Eagle, <sup>f</sup> so Iohn, remaineth vpon the top of the rocke and tower, from thence he spieth his meat, and his eyes behold a farre off. He was aply called the sonne of thunder, <sup>g</sup> for in saying in the beginning was the Word, & the Word was with God, and the Word was God: he seemes to speake not words, but wonders, yea thunders, as <sup>h</sup> Ardens excellently, filius tonitruui est qui loquitur, & tonitruum est quod loquitur, a preamble so strange and stately, that some Christians in old time (which had haply zeale but not according to knowledge) <sup>k</sup> hung it about their necke as an amulet, or as <sup>l</sup> other, as a Symbole to distinguish them from Arrians. And a certaine Platonist (as Angustine reports in lib. 10. De Ciuitate Dei, cap. 29.) reading this one line, said it was worthy to be written in letters of gold, and to be represented in the most eminent places of all Churches in the world.

<sup>b</sup> Hieron. lib. 1. aduers. Iouin.

<sup>c</sup> Chrysost. Theophylact. Beauxam.

<sup>d</sup> Tract. 1. in Iohan.

<sup>e</sup> Iob 39 30.

<sup>f</sup> Rupert. prolog. in Euangel. Iohan.

<sup>g</sup> Mark. 3. 17.

<sup>h</sup> Alcuinus apud Beauxam. bar. Tom. 1. fol. 3.

<sup>i</sup> Hom. ult. in natal. Dom.

<sup>k</sup> Hieron. in Matth. 23.

<sup>l</sup> Maldonat. in loc.

God, In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God, &c { 1. What Christ is in himselfe, } Man, the same word became flesh, and dwelt among vs, &c.

In the Text allotted for this day, two points are remarkable:

2. What Christ is vnto vs, openly reuealed by the witnesse of Iohn the Baptist, and his owne dwelling among vs in the world, to be
- 1. Our Creator ad esse, for all things were made by him.
  - 2. Our <sup>m</sup> Preseruer in esse, for he is our life, <sup>n</sup> vpholding all things in their being.
  - 3. Our Redeemer in bene esse, for he gaue power to them that beleeue in his name, to be the sonnes of God.

<sup>m</sup> Aretius. Maylorat.

<sup>n</sup> Heb. 1. 3.

In the beginning] The word ἀρχὴ, is potestatiuum as well as ordinatiuum, in which acception higher powers, especially Princes, are called ἀρχοντες, and so <sup>o</sup> some take this in principio to be nothing else but in principatu, because Christ the Word hath vpon his garment, and vpon his thigh a name written, The King of Kings, and Lord of Lords, Apoc. 19. 16. P Origen, Cyril, Augustine, Gregorie Nyssen, and many more construe it thus, in the beginning, that is, in the Father, according to that of the r schoole, Pater est principium sine principio, filius est principium de principio. The Father is of none, the Sonne is of the Father alone, not made, nor created, but begotten. Belceue me (saith our blessed Sauiour) that I am in the Father, and the Father in me, Iohn 14. 11. I am in the Father, as the riuer in the fountaine: The Father in me, as in his ingraued image, Heb. 1. 3. God the Sonne then is de principio principium, as lumen de lumine, light of light, and very God of very God. * Other expound in the beginning of eternitie, for the Word being the true Melchisedec, is ἄρχων: having neither beginning of daies, nor end of life, Heb. 7. 3. The Lord, saith he, hath possessed me in the beginning of his way, I was before his workes of old, when there were no depths I was begotten, when he prepared the heauens I was there, when he gaue his decree to the sea, that the water should not passe his commandement, then was I with him, &c. Insinuating that he was in the beginning without any beginning, in a time when there was no measured time.

<sup>o</sup> Apud Beauxam. bar. Tom. 1. fol. 5.

a Principio rutili cum nondum lumina coli, Et nondum gravidis extarent limina terris, Iam tum patris erat sanctum & venerabile verbum.

b Other vnderstand by beginning, the beginning of the world: as if our Euangelist had said, in the beginning when all things were made, the Word was, and therefore not made, but all things on the contrarie were made by it, and without it was made nothing that was made. The creatures are from the beginning, but Christ (who made the world) was in the beginning, before there was a beginning. This exposition is agreeable to the plaine words, as also most answerable to S. Iohns intent. For if he penned his Gospell (as the c Fathers haue noted) against Ebion and Cerinthus: he confounds them in one word, and that the very first, in principio: for that had no beginning which was in the beginning, Ergo, Christ had not his first being from his mother Mary, nam quod ante omnia erat, semper erat, quoth d Augustine, he was alwaies, who was before all workes.

W. M.] It is probable that Saint Iohn in this exordium c alludes f per antithesin vnto Moses preface, Gen 1. In the beginning God created heauen, &c. & hereby shewing the difference betweene the Creator and the creature. For whereas Moses wrote, in the beginning God made heauen and earth, and all that in them is: our Euangelist on the contrary saith, in the beginning was the Word, not in the beginning God made the Word. b Insinuating that the Word had his being already, when other creatures (of what sort soeuer) had but their beginning. And here i Diuines haue distinguished acutely betweene fuit and erat, affirming that fuit imports a thing that once was, and is not now: so Scaliger in his Motto, fuitimus Troes; whereas erat implieth eternitic; which was, & which is, and which is to come, Apocal. 4. 8. 1 S. Ambrose notes excellently, that this one verbe erat, is repeated here foure times, in the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and that Word was God, the same was in the beginning, &c. Erat, erat, erat, erat vbi impius inuenit, quod non erat?

The Word] He saith not in the beginning was the Sonne, m lest his reader should dreame of a carnall generation: but in the beginning was the Word. Holy Scriptures or speeches of the Prophets and Apostles vttered by Gods appointment for the reuealing of his diuine will towards man, are called Gods word: but to n distinguish God the Sonne from these words, hee is termed after a more eminent sort ὁ λόγος, the Word, or that excellent Word, o from whom euery diuine truth issueth, and in whom are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge, Coloss. 2. 3. Christ is not a vocall word, p verbum eò quod verberato aere plectroque lingua formetur: for he was in the beginning before there was any sound or aire. But Christ is the mentall, and substantiall Word of his Father,

p Apud Maldonat. in loc. q Beda.
Ardens.
Ludolphus.
Arborcus. r Thom. 1. part.
quest. 33. art. 4. s Albanus in Symb. t Arctius in
Iohn. 14
u Symb Nicen. x Chrysost.
Euthym.
Marlorat. y Nonnus para-
phras in euang.
Ioan. z Pro. 8. ver. 22.
24. & sequent.
vide Bellam lib.
1 de christo cap.
8. § igitur aser-
nitas.
2 Palladius lib.
1. de unione per- sonal azarum in christo nativ. b Arctius.
Maldonat.
Beza. Idem
August. tract 1
in Iohn. & quest.
Mixtim. quest.
122. c Iren. lib. 3. cap. 11. Epiphan. heres 51. Hieron in vita Iohn.
Fuangelist. d Vbi supra.
e Beauxam in
loc.
f Maldonat. g Chrysost.
1 theophylact.
Arborcus. h Rhem. in loc. i Basil.
Cyrl.
Beda
Alcuinus apud
Maldonat. Idem Iansen. Con. cap. k Virgil.
Ænead 2. l Lib. 1. de fide ad Gratianum
cap 5. m Theophylact.
Euthym. n Beza. o Erasmus.
Iansen.
Beauxam. p Donatus
apud Rupert.
in loc.

⁹ August epist.
112. cap. 12.
Consule Maldona-
nat.

Beauxam.

Arbor.

Ludolph in loc.

ⁱ Palladius ubi

supra utrum

rectius verbum

quam sermo, vide

Iansen Concord.

cap. 1. & Erasim.

annot. in loc.

ⁱ A. Denis.

Melanct.

Beza.

ⁱ Augustin. retract. lib. 1. cap. 4

ⁱ Augustin. de ciuit. Dei. lib. 11.

cap. 10 & Lombard. sect. 1 distinct. 2.

ⁱ Fulgentius ser-de diu. ut.

Christ.

ⁱ Leonius apud

Maldonat. &

Beilarm. de

Christ. lib. 1.

Cap. 6 §. quantum a seculum.

ⁱ Ambros lib.

de incar. Dom.

sacrament. c. 3.

ⁱ Aquin.

ⁱ Melanct.

ⁱ Theophylact.

Ludo. phis.

ⁱ Augustin.

ⁱ Hieron. 44.

ⁱ Iansen. concord cap. 1.

ⁱ Ardens.

ⁱ Coloss. 1. 16.

ⁱ Augustin.

Solilo. cap. 3.

ⁱ De Ciuit. Dei,

lib. 11. cap. 9.

ⁱ Apud Casab.

not. in epist.

Nyssen. ad

Euliat.

ⁱ Ardens hom.

4. Natal. dom.

ⁱ Athanasius in symbol. vide

Bellarum. de in-car. Christ.

cap. 4.

ⁱ Augustin.

epist. 130. cap. 36

ⁱ Augustin.

epist. 3

ⁱ Melanc. Com.

in Ioan.

ⁱ Luk. 3. 10. 11

ⁱ verbum non sonus auribus strepens, sed imago manibus innotescens. As our Epistle for this day doth vnfold the Gospell, The brightnesse of his glorie, and expresse image of his person.

ⁱ λογος, ipse paterni pectoris effigies, lumenque à lumine vero.

And the word was with God] Concerning the diuers significations of the proposition apud: I referre you to Thomas Beauxamis, and Maldonat, in their commentaries vpon this text. It imports here not a locall, but a personall distinction. I and my Father (saith Christ) are one, Ioh. 10. 30. unum of one substance, not vnus one person; and therefore he saith not in the singular, I and my Father am one, but in the plurall, are one. The Sonne is alius then the Father, not aliud, another person, albeit not another essence, non alius in natura sed alter in persona: for it is written here the word was so with God, as that it was God first said to be with God, and then to be God, ⁱ signifying that the Word was the same God with whom it was in the beginning. ⁱ Semper cum patre, semper, in patre, semper apud patrem, & semper quod pater. Here then obserue concerning the word ⁱ three points especially.

1. When it was, in the beginning.

2. Where it was, with God.

3. What it was, and the Word was God.

The pith of ⁱ all is, that God the Sonne is a distinct person from God the Father, and yet of the same substance with the Father, equall in glory, coeternall in Maiestie. This one verse then ouerthroweth many blasphemous heretikes: [in the beginning] confuteth Ebionites and Cerinthians. The clause [was with God] ⁱ Sabellians and other denying a Trinitie in Vnitie, that is a distinction of persons in the Deitie: [was God] confoundeth Arrians, and all such as with ⁱ Paulus Samosatencus affirme that Christ was a meere man: [in the beginning with God] all ⁱ Eunomians and ⁱ such as hold Christ to be but a temporall God by grace, and not an eternall God by nature.

All things were made by it, and without it was made nothing that was made] as the Epistle doth expound the Gospell, he laid the foundation of the earth, and the heauens are the workes of his hands, ⁱ all things as well inuisible as visible, were created by him and for him, he made whatsoeuer was made, and it was exceeding good, Genes. 1. 31. But Satan as he is a deuill, and sinne which came into the world by the suggestion of the deuill, and death also which is brought vpon man is a curse by sinne, are not his works. And the reason is plaine, because that which is euill is a nothing, mali nulla natura est, sed amissio boni (quoth ⁱ Augustine) mali nomen accepit. And ⁱ Greg. Nyssen, mali essentia in eo posita quod essentiam non habet, euery good and perfect gift is from aboue, comming downe from the Father of lights, and with him is no variableness neither shadow of turning, ⁱ ita confert bona quod non infert mala. See S. Augustine, tract. 1. in Ioan, Bibliothec. Sixt. Senen. lib. 6. annot. 174. Melanct. postil. & Eras. annot. in loc.

The clause more proper to this festiuall, and most profitable for vs to be further examined, is, that the Word became flesh; and dwelt among vs, &c. And this was ⁱ not by conuersion of the Godhead into flesh; but by taking the Manhood into God. ⁱ Naturam suscipiendo nostram, non mutando suam, ⁱ homo quippe Deo accessit, non Deus à se recessit. For in the word made flesh all the fullnesse of the Godhead dwelleth (as the Scripture speakes) bodily, Col. 2. 9. that is, ⁱ personally. For albeit he be God and man, yet is he not two, but one Christ: one not by confusion of substance, but by vnitie of person. For as the reasonable soule and flesh is one man: so God and man one Christ. See Epist. Sund. next before Easter.

The first newes of Christs actual natiuitie was broached and brought into the world (as we reade in the second lesson appointed for this morning praiser) by the tongues of Angels, and that with an ecce; P behold, I bring you tidings of great ioy, that shall be to all the people: that is, that vnto you is borne this day in the Ciuitie of David, a Saviour which is Christ the Lord. Reioyce grandfather Adam, for on this day according to the word of thy gracious Creator, the seed of thy wife Eua hath bruised the serpents head: reioyce father Abraham, for on this day in thy seed all the nations of the earth are blessed, Gen. 22. 18 Reioyce king David, for on this day God hath of the fruit of thy body set a king vpon thy throne. Reioyce ye Prophets of the Lord, for all your propheties on this day were fulfilled. Reioyce ye that are sicke, for on this day the Physitian of the world was borne. Reioyce ye virgins, for a Virgin on this day brought forth a sonne. Reioyce ye children, for on this day the great God became a little babe. Let all people reioyce, for that he who was in the beginning, and (as it is in the former lesson appointed for this morning prayer) an everlasting father: in the fullnesse of time was made of a woman, and wrapped in swadling clothes. For that he who was the Word, became an infant not able to speake one syllable. For that he who was with God, did vouchsafe to dwell among vs, appearing in the shape of a man, Phillip. 2. 7. For that he who was God, and therefore most mighty, became flesh, and so most weake, for all flesh is grasse, and the grace thereof as the flower of the field, Esay 40. 6.

this

Saint Bernard preaching on this day, said the shortnesse of the time constrained him to shorten his Sermon, and let none (quoth he) wonder if my words be short; seeing on this day God the Father hath abbreviated his owne Word: For whereas his Word was so long, as that it filled heauen and earth: it was on this day so short, that it was laid in a manger. I wish vnfaignedly with the same deuout Bernard, that as the Word was made flesh: so my stonie heart might be made flesh also, that it might alway meditate on this heavenly Gospell, vnto you is borne this day in the Citie of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord. For all our sound comfort stands in happinesse, and all our happinesse is in fellowship with God, and all our fellowship with God, is by Christ. For God the Father (if we consider him in his iustice) heares not sinners, Iohn 9. 31. He therefore remembering his mercy, got as it were new eares, and set them on our head Iesus Christ, who being flesh of our flesh, is such an high Priest, as is touched with the feeling of our infirmities, openly professing that hee came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance, Come to me all ye that are laden, and I will ease you, Matth. 11. 28. Whatsoeuer ye shall aske the Father in my name he will giue it you, Iohn 16. 23.

If thou wert invited to some great wedding, thou wouldest I am sure be very careful what apparell to put on; but if thou wert to be married thy selfe, thou wouldest be very curious in thine attire: behold (saith Augustine) all of vs are bidden on this day to a marriage, for Christ came out of the Virgins wombe as a bridegroom out of his chamber: the Godhead was ioyned vnto the flesh, and the flesh vnto the Godhead, and these two were coupled together, and after an ineffable manner in an ineffable marriage made one. Beleene this, and thou shalt haue power to be Gods owne sonne, as it is in our Text. My beloved, if thou put on this wedding garment, thy soule shall be Christs owne spouse, so neere, so deare to him, as that he will say to it, I am thy saluation: and it also may tell him, I am my welbeloueds, and my welbeloued is mine. For if Pilate by wearing Christs coat without a seame did appease the wrath of angry Cesar: how much more shall euery true beleeuer please God our heauenly King, if he put on Christ himselfe. O the blessed crying of a blessed babe, by which euery faithfull seruant and sonne of God escapeth eternall howling in hell. O glorious manger, in which our soules Manna lay; the bread of life that came dovyne from heauen, on which if a man feed he shall not hunger againe. O how rich are the rags, which haue made plaisters for our sores, for our sinnes. I conclude with an hymne of Prudentius.

*Mortale corpus sumpsit immortalis,
Vt dum caducum portat eternus Deus,
Transire nostrum posset ad caelestia.*

<sup>a</sup> Gen. 3. 15.

<sup>r</sup> Psal. 132. 11.

<sup>f</sup> Acts 3. 24.

Luke 1. 70.

<sup>r</sup> Esay 6. 9.

<sup>a</sup> Galat 4. 4.

<sup>x</sup> Luke 2. 7.

<sup>v</sup> Ser. 1. in natal. Dom.

<sup>z</sup> Ierem. 23. 24.

<sup>a</sup> Ser. 3. in natal. Dom.

<sup>b</sup> Heb. 4. 15.

<sup>c</sup> Matth. 9. 13.

<sup>d</sup> Ser 2. de temp.

<sup>e</sup> Psal. 35. 3.

<sup>f</sup> Cant. 6. 2.

<sup>g</sup> Flores hist.

ad an. 38.

<sup>b</sup> Rom. 13. 14.

<sup>i</sup> Augustin. ser.

de temp.

<sup>k</sup> Iohn 6. 35.

<sup>l</sup> Perisep.

hym. 10.

The Epistle. ACTS 7. 55.

And Stephen being full of the Holy Ghost, looked up stedfastly with his eyes into heauen, &c.

Yesterday you heard how Christ was borne, to day you shall vnderstand how Stephen died: In Christs natiuitie who was borne in a little village, and in an Inne of that village, and in a stable of that Inne, and laid in a cratch of that stable; we may learne humilitie, not to boast of our great birth. In S. Stephens martyrdom we may behold an excellent patterne how to behaue our selues at our death, hauing faith in God, and loue toward our neighbours, the which assuredly will breed such a Christian resolution in vs, as that we shall depart this life cheerefully, lying downe in our graues as in a bed to sleepe; for so the text here, when he had thus spoken, he fell asleepe. The Church then in ioyning these two Festiuals, is desirous that we should learne to liue well as Christ; and die well as Stephen. In the words of m Augustine, Celebrauimus hesternadie natalem quorex martyrur natus est in mundo, hodie celebramus natalem quo primicerius martyrur migravit ex mundo. Oportebat enim vt primum immortalis pro mortalibus susciperet carnem, & sic mortalis pro immortalis contemneret mortem. Et ideo natus est Dominus vt moreretur pro seruo, ne seruus timeret mori pro Domino. Natus est Christus in terris, vt Stephanus nasceretur in caelis, &c. And I pray with the same Father heartily, donec mihi Dominus pauca dicere salubriter, qui donauit Stephano tanta dicere fortiter.

m Ser. 1. de S. Stephano.

o Ser. 3. de S. Stephano.

Bloudie behaiour of the Iewes in martyring Stephen.

Generall, he stedfastly looked up into heauen, and called upon God.
Particular, Lord Iesus receiue my spirit.

In the whole text two points are to bee considered especially, the Godly behaiour of Stephen in his martyrdom, toward Men, heartily praying for his enemies on his knees, with a loud voice, Lord, lay not this sinne to their charge. Himselfe, vndergoing his martyrdom so comfortably, that giuing vp the ghost he laid down his head vpon the hard stones as vpon a soft pillow to sleepe.

The Iewes in their blinde zeale were so furious and mercilesse, that they put Stephen to death, who sought to bring them to eternall life; stoning him as a blasphemmer against God and his law, who was a man full of faith and power, and the Holy Ghost. An harsh and an hard fact of a stonie people, saith P Augustine, ad lapides currebant, duri ad duos, & petris lapidabatur, qui pro Petra, qui Christus est, moriebatur.

q Lapidis Iudaea rebellis

In Stephanum lymphata rapis, qua crimine duro Saxeae semper eris.

But of their crueltie toward Stephen, and other Prophets of God; in the Gospel appointed for this day more copiously. The most observable point in our present Text is the godly behaiour of Stephen in his martyrdom, first to God, he looked up stedfastly with his eyes into heauen, &c. As to the place where his treasure was, his conuersation was, his helpe was. Hereby teaching vs whither we should flie for succour in aduersitie, not vnto men here below, but vnto God in heauen aboue. So Dauid, When I was in trouble, I called vpon the Lord, and he heard me, y my helpe commeth euen from the Lord. So Iob, My witnesse is in heauen, and my record is on high. And so S. Iames, Every good gift is from above.

Calling

o Act. 6. 11. 13
p Apud Lorin. in loc.
q Avator. lib. 1. carm. in act.
r Paratus ser. de S. Stephano.
s Matth 6 20.
t Philip. 3. 20.
u Arctius.
v Psal. 102. 1.
w Psal. 121. 2.
According to which our most illustrious Queene Anne gaue for her word in the lotterie 1617. La mia Grandezza dal cielo.

Calling vpon God, and saying Lord] Thomas Becket a renowned<sup>a</sup> Martyr and Saint among the Papists, at his death earnestly<sup>b</sup> commended himselfe and his cause to the protection of S. Marie; but our Protomartyr here (knowing that there was<sup>c</sup> neque magistra neque ministra, neither mistresse of his soule, nor yet a ministring spirit to his soule) forgetting our Ladie, calleth vpon our Lord only, saying, Lord Iesu receiue my spirit, the which is not an inuocation of God the Father (as<sup>d</sup> Fran. David impiouly taught, making Iesu the Genitiue case, and the meaning thus, O Father in heauen which art the Lord of thy Sonne Iesu) but (as<sup>e</sup> Ambrose notes) a prayer vnto God the Sonne, for besides infinite places of holy Scripture (where Christ is called Lord, and called vpon as the Lord) S. Iohn Apocalyps 22. 20. vseth as Stephen here Iesu in the Vocatiue Case, etiam veni Domine Iesu, euen so come Lord Iesus Where (Domine Iesu) cannot be contrued the Lord of Iesus, but the Lord Iesus. See Lorin. in loc. & Bellarm. de Christo, lib. 1. cap. 8.

If the Lord be considered without Iesus, howsoeuer in regard of his power he is able, yet in regard of his iustice not willing: the good Angels and blessed Saints in heauen are willing but not able: wretched vncharitable men on earth are neither able nor willing: onely Christ the mediator betweene God and man is both able and willing to heare vs, and helpe vs: able, because Lord; willing, because Iesus. And therefore Stephen here doth not inuocate the Lord, but in the name of Iesus, neither doth he call vpon any Iesus but the Lord Iesus: he lookes not for any succour either from men on earth, or blessed spirits in heauen: onely he powreth out his soule to the redeemer of his soule, Lord Iesu receiue my spirit.

Receiue] He knew that his life was<sup>f</sup> hid with Christ in God, and therefore commendeth his soule to him alone who created it, and redeemed it, and justified it, and sanctified it, and will in his good time glorifie it. O Lord Iesu, take thine owne into thine owne custodie, seeing I am now to leaue this life, receiue my spirit. Here then against the Sadduces in Christs age, and Atheists in our time, we may note the soules immortalitie; & for God is not the God of the dead, but of the liuing. Againe, that all soules departed are in certaine receptacles vntill the generall iudgement; they doe not obambulate and wander vp and downe, but remaine in places and states of happinesse or unhappinesse, either in the hands of God, or in the deuils prison, and therefore all the dayes of our life, but especially at the houre of our death, it behoueth vs to say and pray with S. Stephen, O Lord Iesu receiue my spirit.

My] Charitie begins with it selfe, malice with another, in our idle busie time men are very sollicitous lest God lay this or that sinne in their enemies charge, but we may tell them as Christ did other in another cause; weepe not for me, but for your selues. If your deuotion be so great, and your prayers so good, pray first for your selues, for you peraduenture haue more need; and then wish well and doe well vnto your enemies, as Stephen here, first, Lord Iesu receiue my spirit; and then, Lord Iesu forgie their sinne.

Spirit] Most men are all for the bodie, nothing for their soule: but S. Stephen is all (as it should sceme) for the soule, and nothing for the bodie. For what is a man profited if he should gaine the whole world, and lose his owne soule, saith<sup>i</sup> our blessed Saniour: by which Apothegme it doth appeare, that euery soule in it selfe is of greater price than a whole world, but thy soule vnto thy selfe ought to bee of greater account than a million of worlds, if (as Empedocles and<sup>k</sup> Democritus imagined) there were so many; saue this and saue all, lose this and lose all, and therefore let thy whole life be nothing else but a meditation of death, and that thou maist die well as Stephen, endenour to liue well as Stephen. Howsoeuer it goe with thy goods, or good name, be sure to looke well vnto thy soule: that whether thou die for the Lord, or in the Lord, thou maist cheerfully deliuer it vp vnto the Lord, as Stephen, here, Lord Iesu receiue my spirit.

Vnto faith in God he doth adioyne loue to men, without which all his praying, and kneeling, and crying, yea dying had bene but as a<sup>l</sup> sounding brasse and

<sup>a</sup> Vide Baron. Mart Rom an- n 1 in Decemb. 29. & Stapleton in vita Thom. Cantuar.

<sup>b</sup> Rog Houenden. annal part. poster pag. 298

<sup>c</sup> Brentius apud Marlora. in loc.

<sup>d</sup> Disputat. al bona 3

<sup>e</sup> Lib. 3. de fide ad Grat. cap. ult.

<sup>f</sup> Cceloff. 3. 3.

<sup>g</sup> Matth. 22. 31.

<sup>h</sup> Luke 23. 28.

<sup>i</sup> Matth 16. 16

<sup>k</sup> Laetius in vita Democrit.

<sup>l</sup> 1 Cor. 13 1 3

a tinkling Cymbal. Of loue there be two principall offices, one to giue, another to forgiue: S. Stephen is an excellent patterne of both, of the latter especially; praying for his hatefull enemies <sup>m</sup> euen at that houre when hee could scarce gaine time to thinke on his friends. It is said 1 Pet. 2. 21 that Christ suffered for vs leaning vs an example. Now Christ on the Crosse prayed for his persecutors earnestly, <sup>n</sup> Father forgiue them, for they know not what they doe. Pendebat, & rament petebat, as <sup>o</sup> Augustine sweetly. S. Stephen followed his Masters example, Lord, lay not this sinne to their charge. The which prayer is clothed with two circumstances, he kneeled downe, shewing his reuerence to God: and cried with a loud voice, manifesting his vnfaigned affection toward them. Vnto the top of which exceeding great charitie there are three degrees.

1. He prayed for enemies.

2. For mortall enemies, who stoned him.

3. In hot blood, at that time when they did wrong him most, as being more sorry for their rior, than for his owne ruine. For P eternal death is the wages of such a sinne, but euerlasting life the crowne of such a suffering.

He kneeled downe] God is the Lord of the bodie, so well as of the soule, and therefore challengeth as well reuerent gesture, as inward deuotion: in praying then either stand as a seruant before thy master, or kneele as a subiect to thy Prince. <sup>q</sup> Daniel prayed kneeling, <sup>r</sup> Peter prayed kneeling, <sup>s</sup> Paul prayed kneeling, <sup>t</sup> Christ himselfe kneeling, and the <sup>u</sup> Magdeburgenses acknowledge this gesture to be most ancient, and most vsuall among the children of God in all ages, and therefore not to kneele in the congregation, argueth either ignorance, or arrogancie. For seeing all of vs are Gods adopted sonnes, and not borne to the good we possesse: it behoueth vs when we come before our father, especially to craue his blessing, to be dutifull and humble in our carriage.

Concerning kneeling at the Lords Supper: if the Church haue power and authoritie to change the time, commanding vs to receiue the Communion in the morning, whereas Christ administred it in the <sup>x</sup> night: to change the place, for whereas Christ ordained his Supper in a <sup>y</sup> priuate house, we communicate in a Temple: to change the number and qualities of the persons, deliivering the Sacrament vnto more than twelue, and to women as well as men: I see no reason but it hath authoritie likewise to change the gesture. The time was altered, because for this sacrifice the morning is the most fit time: the place was altered, because the Church is the most fit place: the gesture was altered also (being a matter not of the Sacraments essence, but of outward order onely) because kneeling is the most fit gesture, for Protestants especially, who denie the grosse reall presence, and hold the Lords Supper an Eucharist, or thanksgiuing vnto God for the redemption of the world by the death of his Sonne: giuing of thanks is a part of prayer, and in prayer no gesture so fit as kneeling. Deuout <sup>z</sup> Asella did vse geniculation in prayer so much, as that her knees were made brawnie like the knees of a Camell. See Step. Durant. de ritibus Eccles. lib. 3. cap. 14.

It is very remarkable, that Stephen here stood when he prayed for himself, but kneeled when he prayed for his enemies: hereby shewing the greatnesse of their <sup>a</sup> impietie, which easily could not be forgiuen; as also the greatnesse of his <sup>b</sup> pietie, <sup>c</sup> Qui plus illorum dolebat peccata quam sua vuluera. For this end he cried also with a loud voice, magnus clamor magnus amor: Or as <sup>d</sup> Caietan, he cried with a loud voice, for others instruction and example, that we might be followers of him as he was a follower of Christ.

Lay not this sinne to their charge] The <sup>e</sup> Scribes in their glosses on the Law said expressly, Thou shalt loue thy neighbour, and hate thine enemy. <sup>f</sup> Some Papists also thinke, that the words of our Sauour (resist not euill, and loue your enemies) are not absolute precepts, but onely counsels. According to this doctrine, the Castilians (as I haue <sup>g</sup> read) since the battell of Aljubarro, would not suffer any to preach vpon the Friday in the first weeke of Lent, because the Church on that day sings, inimicos diligite, loue your enemies. And <sup>h</sup> Iustinian being restored againe

<sup>m</sup> Augustin. ser. 5. de S. Stephano.

<sup>o</sup> Luk 23. 34.
<sup>o</sup> Serm 4 de S. Stephano.

<sup>p</sup> Illorum impietatem mors sequabatur eterna, huius autem mortem vita perpetua. Aug. ser. 5. de Stephano.

<sup>q</sup> Dan. 6. 10.

<sup>r</sup> Acts 9. 40.

<sup>s</sup> Acts 20. 36.

<sup>t</sup> Luke 22. 41.

<sup>u</sup> Cent. 2. Col. 1. 17

<sup>x</sup> 1 Cor. 11. 23.
<sup>y</sup> Matth 26. 18

<sup>z</sup> Hieron. epist. ad Marcell. de laudibus Asella.

<sup>a</sup> Augustin. ser. 2 de S. Stephano.

<sup>b</sup> Caietan. in loc.

<sup>c</sup> August. ser. 5. de S. Stephano.

<sup>d</sup> In loc.

<sup>e</sup> Matth. 5. 43.

<sup>f</sup> Lombard. 3. sent. dist. 30.

<sup>g</sup> Thomas 2. 2e. quaest. 25. art. 9.

<sup>h</sup> glossin Matth. 5. Sixt. Sen. Bibliothec. lib 6. annot. 27.

<sup>i</sup> Exhortation to the Princes of Europe by a pilgrim Spaniard, pag 25.

<sup>k</sup> Lanquet. ad ann. Dom. 706.

to his Empire, shewed extreme crueltie toward his aduersaries and their allies; for as often as he moued his hand to wipe the filth from his nose, which was cut off, he commanded one of his enemies to be put to death. Wherefore seeing to loue our enemies, in the iudgement of some men, is against Godslaw, and of other beside the law; seeing many men in their precepts, and most men in their practise manifestly shew that it is an hard saying; S. Stephens charitie doth appeare to be great in blessing such as cursed him, and in praying for such as did hurt him.

Iob renoued in holy Scripture for his patience, said, <sup>i</sup> If mine aduersarie should write a booke against me, would I not take it upon my shoulder, & binde it as a crowne vnto me? But Stephen surpassing Iob (as <sup>k</sup> Gregorie Nyssen obserues) esteemed the very ring of his persecutors, wherewith he was inclosed on euery side, his crowne, and euery stone flung at his head a pretious diamond, <sup>l</sup> so that it might haue bene said of him, as it was of Dauid: <sup>m</sup> The Lord presented him with the blessings of goodnesse, and set a crowne of <sup>n</sup> precious stones upon his head. Our goods are sweet vnto vs; and therefore we can hardly forgie the theefe: our good name sweeter; and therefore we doe more hardly forgie the slanderer: but our life most sweet, (<sup>o</sup> Skin for skin, and all that euer a man hath will he giue for it) and therefore most hardly doe we forgie murtherers and martyrs, in hot blood especially while they wring vs and wrong vs: and yet Stephen full of the Holy Ghost, and therefore full of loue, <sup>p</sup> in persecutione positus pro persecutoribus orabat, in the middest of his persecution heartily prayed for his persecutors, O Lord Iesus, lay not this sinne to their charge. Our sinnes not forgiven are a fet before vs, and as enemies in <sup>r</sup> battell fighting against vs, a pillar of infamie to disgrace the wicked in this, and the next life: the which (as <sup>t</sup> Basil thinks) is more grieuous to their soule than hell fire. So that the <sup>v</sup> meaning of S. Stephen is in saying (lay not this sinne to their charge) that God would giue them a better minde, and not impute this offence, but rather to burie this and all other their sinnes in his death and grane, that they neuer rise vp againe to worke desperation in this world, or destruction in the world to come. <sup>u</sup> S. Augustine brings in Stephen speaking thus vnto God; Ego patior, ego lapidor, in me saniant, & in me fremunt, sed ne statuas illis hoc peccatum, quia ut dicam tibi a te primo audiui Ego seruus tuus patior, sed multum interest inter me & te; tu dominus, ego seruus; tu verbum, ego auditor verbi; tu magister, ego discipulus; tu Creator, ego creatus; tu Deus, ego homo; multum interest inter peccatum istorum qui lapidam me, & illorum qui crucifixerunt te: quando ergo dixisti, pater ignosce illis, quia nesciunt quid faciunt, pro magno peccato petisti, & me pro minimo petere docuisti: Domine ne statuas illis hoc peccatum; ego patior in carne, isti non pereant in mente. Now the Lord heard his prayer, and granted his request, <sup>x</sup> in that Saul had not this sinne laid to his charge, as <sup>y</sup> himselfe witnesseth: I was a blasphemer, and a persecutor, and an oppressor; but I was received to mercy, for I did it ignorantly through vnbeleefe. So that <sup>z</sup> Augustine is bold to say, Si Stephanus non sic orasset, ecclesia Paulum non haberet. And <sup>a</sup> Fulgentius, Quo processit Stephanus trucidatus lapidibus Pauli, illuc sequutus est Paulus adiutus orationibus Stephani.

When he had thus spoken] Uttering such excellent words, and with such a resolute spirit, and in such a reuerent fashion: after hee had thus spoken for the matter, and thus for the manner; giuing vnto God the life of his soule, forgiuing his persecutors the death of his bodie; he sweetly slept in the Lord. Christus pro nobis hominem induit, Stephanus pro Christo hominem exiit, as <sup>b</sup> Gregorie Nyssen elegantly. Christ became man for Stephen, and Stephen became no man for Christ, hominem exiit, he so willingly put off his flesh, as a man would put off his clothes at night, and so death as welcome to him as sleepe to the wearie, when he had thus spoken he fell asleepe.

To <sup>c</sup> mitigate deaths horror, it is called often in holy Scripture sleepe. So the Text faith of <sup>d</sup> Dauid, and of <sup>e</sup> Salomon, and of other Kings of Israel and Iuda, that they slepe with their fathers. In the new Testament also such as are dead in the

<sup>i</sup> Iob. 31. 35.

<sup>k</sup> Orat. de S. Stephano.

<sup>l</sup> Lirin in loc. <sup>m</sup> Psal. 21. 3.

<sup>n</sup> De lapide pretioso, vulg. Lat. Consule Acoltav, Con. de S. Stephano.

<sup>o</sup> Iob 2. 4.

<sup>p</sup> Augustin ser. 5 de S. Stephano.

<sup>q</sup> Psalm. 50. 21

<sup>r</sup> Lirin in loc.

<sup>t</sup> In Psalm. 33.

<sup>v</sup> Aretius in loc.

<sup>u</sup> Ser. 1. de Stephano.

<sup>x</sup> Calvin in loc.

<sup>y</sup> 1 Tim. 1. 15.

<sup>z</sup> 1<sup>o</sup> bis sup.

<sup>a</sup> Ser. de S. Stephano.

<sup>b</sup> Orat. de S. Stephano.

<sup>c</sup> Aretius in loc.

<sup>d</sup> 1 King. 2. 10

<sup>e</sup> 1 King. 1. 43

1 Cor. 15. 18
 1 Thesl 4. 13
 a lib 2 de art.
 1. 1. 1.
 1. E. a. ad. 6.
 1. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1.
 Aug epist. 1. 20.
 cap 33.
 Hier. foren. c. 6.
 4 in Chora. 1. dem
 Homer & Or-
 pheus.
 1 Caietan in loc.
 m Apoc. 14. 13.
 n Psal. 127 3.
 o Ambros. ser. 28
 p Vide Lorin. in
 loc.
 q Tal. lib. 2. de
 legibus.
 Cambri item vo-cat sepulchrum Bed
 r Guichardin.
 ac Jacob. Trivul.
 milite.
 s Caluin.
 Arcuus. t Luke 12. 20
 u Luke 16. 23.
 x Luke 23. 43.
 y Amoros. de omo mortis,
 cap 8.
 z Martial. Epigram lib 6. Epigram. 18.
 a Psal. 79 2.
 b Psal 116 13.
 c Lib. de cura pro mortuis,
 cap. 2.
 d Apoc 20. 13. e Math. 24. 31
 f 1 Cor. 15. 53.
 g 1 Thesl 4 16
 h Philip. 3. 21.
 i Iohn 11. 25.
 k Job 19 25.
 l Possidonius in vita Aug. cap. 27
 m Perkins tract of dying well
 Idem refert Simon Grineus de eius vita &
 obitu.
 n Baron annal.
 Tam. 1. ad ann.
 253. & martyro-
 log Rom. Januarij 24. o Magdeburg.
 cent. 2. col. 305.
 p Psal. 116. 7.
 q Pet. Damian.
 ser de S. Steph.

the Lord are said to <sup>f</sup> sleepe in Christ. I would not haue you (saith <sup>s</sup> Paul) ignorant concerning them which are asleepe, &c. For this cause many are weake and sicke among you, and many sleepe, 1 Cor. 11. 30. For man in his graue sleepeth, and waketh not againe till the heauen be no more, Job 14. 12. The Gentiles acknowledged so great a resemblance betweene dying and sleeping, that Ouid calls sleepe <sup>h</sup> mortis imago, deaths image. <sup>1</sup> Virgil, consanguineus lethi, the kinsman of death. <sup>k</sup> Seneca, the brother of death; and Hesiod, the sister of death.

Among infinite comparisōns I finde that death is } Rest principally likened vnto sleepe in <sup>1</sup> respect of the } Resurre- } of the dead.
 } tion }

Concerning the first: it is said by the <sup>m</sup> Spirit, blessed are the dead in the Lord, for they rest from their labours, and so God <sup>n</sup> giueth his beloued sleepe:
 The coffin is a couch, <sup>o</sup> in quo mollius ille dormit, quisquis durus in vita se gesserit.
 I finde in the records of antiquitie, that a Sepulchre is called <sup>p</sup> requietorium, a bed of <sup>q</sup> sacred rest and securitie, which Valerius Probus expressed in these letters, H. R. I. P. Hic requiescit in pace: and Pet. Diaconus in other, D. M. S. Dormiunt mortui securi.

<sup>x</sup> Hic mortuus requiescit semel, Qui uiuus requieuit nunquam.

But here we must obserue, <sup>f</sup> that our soule sleeps not in the dust as our bodie till our last come. For the soules of the reprobate at their death are <sup>r</sup> fetched away from them and carried into <sup>u</sup> hell: but the soules of such as die in the Lord, instantly liue with the Lord, conueyed by the glorious Angels into Abrahams bosome, Luk. 16. 22. So Christ <sup>x</sup> expresly to the theepe on the Crosse, Verily I say to thee, this day shalt thou be with me in Paradise. <sup>y</sup> Anima absoluitur, corpus resoluitur: quæ absoluitur gaudet, quod resoluitur in terram suam nihil sentit.
 And so the Saints departed are dead in their worst part onely, but liuing in their best: euen in that wherein they desire to liue most, as an Heathen <sup>z</sup> Poet diuinely, Sed lugere nefas, nam qui te (Prisce) reliquit, Viuit, quæ uoluit uinere parte magis.

And therefore though the <sup>a</sup> dead bodies of Gods seruants haue beene giuen as meat to the fowles of the aire, and their flesh vnto the beasts of the land: yet <sup>b</sup> right deare in the sight of the Lord is the death of his Saints. And these things (as <sup>c</sup> Angu line notes) are spoken in the Psalme, not to shew the Martyrs infelicite; but in amplification of the murtherers inhumanitie. For the <sup>d</sup> Sea shall giue vp the dead in it, and the glorious Angels in the last day shall <sup>e</sup> gather together all Gods elect from the foure windes, and from the one end of the heauen to the other, and then this <sup>f</sup> corruptible shall put on incorruption, and this mortall im-mortalitie; then our bodie which hath a long time slept in the graue, shall be rouzed vp againe by the sound of the trumpet, and raised vp againe by the power of our blessed Sauiour, who died for our sinnes, and rose againe for our iustifi-cation. And then he shall change our <sup>h</sup> vile bodie, that it may be fashioned like vnto his glorious bodie. Then he which is the <sup>i</sup> resurrection and the life, shall giue vs our perfect consummation in bodie and soule in his eternall glory. <sup>k</sup> Job in his greatest extremitie said, I am sure that my redeemer liueth, and though after my skin wormes destroy this bodie, yet shall I see God in my flesh. <sup>1</sup> Ambrose being ready to depart out of this world, told his acquaintance, non sic vixi ut me pudeat inter vos uinere: sed nec mori timeo, quia bonum dominum habemus. I haue not to liued among you, that I am ashamed to liue: neither doe I feare to die, because we serue a good Lord. <sup>m</sup> Oecolampadius to his friend visiting him at the point of death, What shall I say to you, neuer, I shall be shortly with Christ my Lord. The renowned Martyr Babilas (when <sup>n</sup> Decius the cruell Emperour had commanded his head to be chopped off) <sup>o</sup> vsed the words of the <sup>p</sup> Psalmist, O, my soule returne to thy rest. And Stephen here stoned to death, is said terminis terminantibus, to sleepe in the Lord. <sup>q</sup> Felix somnus cum requie, requies cum voluptate, voluptas cum aternitate.

The Gospell. MATTH. 23.34.

I send vnto you Prophets and Wisemen, and Scribes, &c.

IT is a good obseruation in the Churches historie, that these three commonly succeed each other: Ingentia beneficia, ingentia peccata, ingentes pœna. The present Gospell is an example hereof, in which all the same points are very remarkable.

1. Ingentia beneficia, Christs exceeding great mercie toward the Iewes, in seeking their conuersion as well by himselfe, as his messengers. And those Prophets, and Wisemen, and Scribes; and that not once, but often: how often would I haue gathered? and that not cursorily, but earnestly; Ierusalem, Ierusalem, not coldly, but affectionately, like as the hen gathereth her chickens under her wings.

Meanes, ye would not.

2. Ingentia peccata, the Iewes exceeding great malice toward Christ abusing his

Of all sorts } Prophets.
                  } Wisemen } Scribes.
With all kinde } Killing. of iniury,      } Crucifying.
                  } Stoning.
                  } Scourging.
                  } Persecuting.

Ministers } In al places, not sparing so much as the Sanctuarie, whom ye slew between the Temple and the Altar.

At all times for it is not heere, thou that hast killed in time past, or thou that wilt kill in time to come: but in the present, that killest and stonest. Intimating their continuall habit in killing the Prophets, and stoning such as were sent vnto them. As if he should haue said, quæ occidisti, & occides, & occisura es.

3. Ingentes pœna, both in respect of the Guilt, that upon you may come all the righteous blood, &c.

Punishment, behold your house is left vnto you desolate.
Temporall, your house is left vnto you desolate.
Spiritual, ye shall not see me henceforth.
Eternall, that upon you may come all the righteous blood.

Or, as <sup>x</sup> other, their punishment is threefold,

Wherefore behold ] This Ideo renders not the reason why Christ did send Prophets vnto this people; but imports the true cause why they persecuted such as were sent: namely, because they were serpents, and a generation of vipers, as it is in the words immediately going before. Vipers are conceived by biting off the males head, and borne by rending the females belly: so they killed their spirituall fathers the Prophets, and rent in sunder the compassionate bowels of their deare mother the Church.

I send ]<sup>b</sup> How shall they preach except they be sent? No man ought to take that honour vnto himselfe, but he that is called of God, Heb. 5. 4. Here then obserue, that Christ is very God, taking vpon him as the master of the <sup>d</sup>vineyard, and Lord of the <sup>e</sup>haruest, to thrust forth labourers into the Church. It is a token of his mercy to send Prophets, and Wisemen, and Scribes vnto any nation, and an infallible demonstration of his seuerer iudgement not to send: according to that of the Prophet Amos in his 8. chapter at the 11. verse: Behold, the dayes come, saith

<sup>r</sup> Magdeburg. Epist. prefix. cent. 5.

<sup>s</sup> Theophylact. Euthym. Aquin.

<sup>t</sup> Christ. Caietan.

<sup>u</sup> Marlovat.

<sup>x</sup> Ferrus ser. 3. in los.

<sup>y</sup> Maldonat.

<sup>z</sup> Plin. nat. hist. lib. 10. cap. 62.

<sup>a</sup> Theophylact. Euthym.

Anselm. in Matth. 3. 7.

<sup>b</sup> Rom. 10. 15.

<sup>c</sup> Theophylact. Euthym. in loc.

<sup>d</sup> Matth. 20. 8.

<sup>e</sup> Matth. 9. 38.

<sup>f</sup> Luther.

the Lord, that I will send a famine in the land, not a famine of bread, nor of thirst for water; but of hearing the word of the Lord.

Prophets, and Wisemen, and Scribes.] Howsoever all these may be & confounded, and meet in one: yet I thinke with <sup>n</sup> Hierome, and <sup>i</sup> other Expositors; that Christ vsed so many termes, to shew the riches and <sup>k</sup> diuersities of his graces, ordaining some to bee Apostles, and some Pastors and Teachers, Ephel. 4. 11. As if he should haue said; I will omit no meanes for your conuersion, I will send vnto you messengers indued with all varietie of gifts, administrations, and operations. Some distinguish Prophets, and Wisemen, and Scribes, after this sort: <sup>l</sup> Prophetae sunt qui futura praeuunciant; sapientes, qui recte praesentibus uiuantur; scribae, qui praeterita nobis in memoriam reuocant.

God hath dealt with England as with Iewry, speaking vnto vs <sup>m</sup> early and late, by his Wickliffes and Whitgifts, Bilneys, and Bradfords: giuing vs his Latimers and Ridleys, and other Iewels of all sorts: vsing all kinds of messengers, adorned with all kindes of gifts; sending zealous Preachers endowed with the spirit of prophecie, politicke Prelats endued with the spirit of *wisedom*e, iudicious and accurate writers endued with the spirit of knowledge, who like learned Scribes <sup>n</sup> taught vnto the kingdome of heauen, are able to bring forth out of their treasure, things both new and old. Ierusalem had many Prophets, and great is the number of our Preachers: England affords an Eli for an Eliab, and a Matthew for a Matthew, &c. In the first obseruable point of our text concerning Ingentia beneficia, Gods owne people, the Iewes, and we parallel.

And some of them shall ye kill and crucifie] Some they killed, as <sup>o</sup> James the brother of John, with the sword. Some they crucified, as Peter, and Christ himselfe the Lord of life, Actes 3. 15. Some they scourged, as Paul, for thus he writes of himselfe, of the Iewes sine times receiued I fortie stripes saue one, I was twice beaten with rods. Some they persecuted from citie to citie, as Barnabas, Actes 13. 50. Some they vexed with all these kindes of cruelties, as S. Steuen on this day, They gnashed at him with their teeth. Actes 7. 54. and scourged him with their tongues, suborning men which said, we haue heard him speake blasphemous words against Moses & God. Act. 6. 11. They brought him to the <sup>q</sup> Councell, and <sup>r</sup> cast him out of the citie. They persecuted him in words, disputing against him: and in deedes, despiting him, vntill in fine they stoned this holy Prophet sent vnto them. In a word they made such <sup>f</sup> hauocke of the Church, as that the messengers of God complained out of the bitternesse of their spirit: For thy sake are we killed all the day long, and are counted as sheepe appointed to be slaine,

Sanguine fundata est Ecclesia, sanguine crenit, Sanguine decreuit, sanguine finis erit.

Yet for all this let no Preacher or Professor discourage himselfe, for S. Stephen in the midst of his afflictions (as it is recorded in this dayes Epistle) saw the heauens open, and Iesus standing at the right hand of God. It is said in the Creed, that Christ sitteth on the right hand of God: but when his faithfull seruant Stephen was martyred, he was standing. Now then if Christ stand with vs, who can withstand vs? haply we may weep for a time, but <sup>u</sup> all teares shal be wiped away from our eyes; the Father of mercies, and God of all comfort, shall assist vs in our tribulation so graciously, that as the sufferings of Christ abound in vs, euen so our consolation shall abound through Christ, 2. Cor. 3. 5.

<sup>x</sup> Mysticaly, Hereticks scourge Catholicks with their venomous tongues, and by labouring to thrust them out of their holds <sup>y</sup> built vpon the foundation of the Prophets and Apostles, into new found habitations, raised vpon the <sup>z</sup> sands of humane <sup>a</sup> philosophie; what doe they but persecute them (as it were) from citie to citie? The Pagans first, and the Papists afterward did actually kill, and crucifie, and scourge, and persecute the Saints of God in this Iland, as well Abel as Zacharie, <sup>b</sup> that is, the Lay-men and the Clergie, the lowest of the people, so well as the highest of the Priests. And albeit in our time we need not haply feare their murthering, yet we still feele their murmuring against vs. And with them are

ioyned

<sup>g</sup> Acoſta in loc.

ex Hilarij & Chryſoſt.

<sup>h</sup> Com. in loc.

<sup>i</sup> Soarez.

Musculus.

Marlor. in loc.

<sup>k</sup> 1 Cor. 12. 4.

<sup>l</sup> Ferus ser. 3. de

S. Stephano.

<sup>m</sup> Ieremy 7. 13

<sup>n</sup> Mat. 13. 52.

<sup>o</sup> Acts 12. 2.

<sup>q</sup> Acts 6. 12.

<sup>r</sup> Acts 7. 58.

<sup>s</sup> Acts 8. 3.

<sup>t</sup> Psal. 44. 22.

Rom 8. 36.

<sup>u</sup> Apoc. 21.

<sup>x</sup> Origin. apud Thom. in loc.

<sup>y</sup> Ephel. 2. 20.

<sup>z</sup> Matth. 7. 26.

<sup>a</sup> Coloff. 2. 8.

<sup>b</sup> A. dens.

Anselm.

Caesarian. in loc.

ioyned another generation of Vipers, I meane the schisminaticall brood, whipping vs in their words, and scourging vs in their writings, according to their will and wit, hourly killing the Prophets, and stoning such as are sent vnto them. For whereas there betwo kinde of death, one naturall, another ciuill: If any discredit the good life, or discountenance the sound doctrine of his Pastor, by raising false tales, and suborning false witnessses against him, as the Iewes against Stephen; what doth he but ciuilly, or rather indeed vnciuilly like a Jew* murder his Preacher? And such a Minister as patiently beares these wrongs, and suffers these dilapidations in his credit, is a very Stephen, a meere Martyr. For (as Gregory notes) there be three kindes of martyrdom without any shedding of blood. 1. To be patient in our owne miserie; 2. To be compassionate in anothers aduersitie. 3. To loue our enemies heartely. Thus in the second part of our text also touching ingentia peccata, the Iewes and English are parallels.

That vpon you may come all the righteous blood, which hath been shed vpon earth, fro the blood of the righteous Abel vnto the blood of Zacharius.] Here two questions are moued: First, who was this Zacharius. Secondly, how all the righteous blood shed vpon earth is required of this generation. Concerning the first; it is thought by <sup>d</sup> some that this Zacharius is that Zachary numbred among the twelue lesser Prophets, in that his <sup>e</sup> fathers name well-agrees with this history. But that opinion is censured as improbable, because the Scripture saith not any where that this Prophet was slaine between the Temple and the Altar. <sup>f</sup> Other affirme that this Zacharius is the father of Iohn the Baptist, mentioned. Luk. 15. of whom it is reported by tradition, that the Iewes slew him betweene the Temple and the Altar, for that as he was a Priest, he did ranke Mary the mother of Christ after she had conceiued and brought forth her Sonne, with vnsotted virgins in the Temple. But saith <sup>g</sup> Hierome, Hoc quia de Scripturis non habet auctoritatem, eadem facilitate contemnitur qua probatur. <sup>h</sup> Other hold that this Zacharius is that zealous Zacharias the sonne of Iehoiada, who (for that he did openly rebuke the Iewes for their abominable Idolatrie) was stoned by them in the Court of the house of the Lord, 2. Chron. 24. 21. Neither is there any contradiction betweene the sonne of Barachias. & the sonne of Iehoiada: seeing Iehoiada might haue two names, or else called Barachias (in the Hebrew signifying, blessed of the Lord) because Iehoiada the Priest <sup>i</sup> had done good in Israel, and toward God and his house. For mine owne part, I coniecture that this Zacharius is he, who was martyred at the beginning of the siege of Ierusalem in the dayes of Vespasian the Romaine Emperour. For the <sup>k</sup> story saith expressly, that he was the sonne of Baruch or Barachias, & that he was slaine by the Iewes in the midst of the Temple. The clause (whom ye slew) serues to crosse this exposition in a little, but it is auoided easily, <sup>l</sup> because Christ here speaking prophetically, reports that to be done, which was yet to come. This interpretation of all the rest amplifieth most, as well the sinne, as the punishment of the Iewes; in that all the righteous blood from the first martyr among them vnto the last, euen from Abell vnto Zacharius while their Citie was besieged, is laid vnto their charge.

Touching the second doubt: we read in holy Bible that there be two generations; one good, another bad: a <sup>m</sup> blessed generation of the faithfull, euen of such as <sup>n</sup> feare God; and a generation of Vipers, as Christ in this present chapter. As then the generation of such as <sup>o</sup> obey their ouerseers, and kisse the <sup>p</sup> feet of such as bring glad tidings of peace, shall receiue the <sup>q</sup> rewarde of a Prophet: euen so the generation of such as kill the Prophets, and stone such as are sent vnto them, if they fulfill the <sup>r</sup> measure of their fathers sinne, they shall haue their portion and proportion in their fathers punishment also. For albeit, <sup>s</sup> the sonne shall not beare the iniquitie of the father, neither shall the father beare the iniquitie of the sonne: <sup>t</sup> yer if the sonnes are partners with their parents, in imitation the <sup>u</sup> children of such as murdered the Prophets; as the Iewes were the sonnes of Cain, in slaying the righteous Abels: If Cain and all the bloody Iewes as well after as vnder the Law, make the same generation, vnited in fact and in faction,

<sup>a</sup> Non illibus
saxer, sed maledictionibus du-ris, August. contra auerf. Legis & Prophet. lib. 2
cap 4.
<sup>c</sup> Apud discipulum ser. 13. de
S. Stephano.

<sup>d</sup> Apud Hieron.
& Euthym.
in loc.
<sup>e</sup> Zach. 1. 1.
<sup>f</sup> Nyss. orat. de natusi. Dom.
Theophylac.
Euthym.
Melanct. in l. 5.

<sup>g</sup> In loc.
<sup>h</sup> Hieron. &
Marlorat. in loc.

<sup>i</sup> 2. Chro. 24. 16

<sup>k</sup> Iosephus de Bello Iud lib 5.
cap. 1.
<sup>l</sup> Actosa se. 5.
Steph.

<sup>m</sup> Psal. 112. 2.
<sup>n</sup> Psal. 24. 6.
Heb. 13. 17.
<sup>o</sup> Rom. 10. 15.
<sup>p</sup> Mat. 10. 41.
<sup>q</sup> Mat. 23. 32.
<sup>r</sup> Ezech. 18. 20.

Hieron.
Caiuin.
Musculus in loc.
<sup>s</sup> Mat. 23. 31.

<sup>x</sup> Luk. 11. 50.
<sup>y</sup> Euthym. in loc.

<sup>z</sup> Luk. 19. 44.

<sup>a</sup> Rom 15. 4.

<sup>b</sup> 1. Cor. 18. 11.

<sup>c</sup> Orygin.
Bullinger.
Piscator.
<sup>d</sup> Consule Aug.
quest. Euangl.
lib. 1. cap. 36. &
Marlorat. in loc.

<sup>e</sup> Hof. 13. 9.

<sup>f</sup> Psal 135. 5.

<sup>g</sup> Acts 7. 51.

it is in God very good iustice, that all the righteous blood shed from the foundation of the world, should be required of this generation. For he who readeth often, and seeth almost daily the seuerer iudgements of God vpon sinners, and yet himselfe continueth in the same sinne, deserues worthily to bee punished with as many stripes as he neglected examples. He that knowes how Cain was a runnagate on earth, and how the clamour of his brother Abels blood entred into the eares of God in heauen, and how this cry was a voyce; vox sanguinum, a voyce of bloods in the plurall, namely, the voice of the blood shed, and of all the blood which might haue come of that blood, if it had not bene shed: Againe, he that heares of the lamentable destruction of Ierusalem, how her magnificent Temple was made desolate, and the glorious Towers of her Citie were laid even with the ground; and all this for that she killed the Prophets, and stoned such as were sent vnto her: He that reads and beleeueth these things, and yet is an obstinate despiser of prophecie, killing, crucifying, scourging, persecuting the messengers of the Lord from Citie to Citie: shall receiue greater damnation then either Cain or Ierusalem, as hauing neglected greater meanes of saluation. For all things are written for our learning, but these things (I meane Gods extraordinarie iudgements vpon notorious sinners) are written more principally for our examples vpon whom the ends of the world are come. See Epist. 3. Sund. after Trinitie.

How often would I haue gathered thy children] How often by the mouth of my Prophets, how often by mine Apostles, how often by mine owne selfe? As the louing Hen is alway caring for her chickens, alway clucking and calling them if they wander out of her sight neuer so little; that she may gather them vnder her wings, and so guard them from the mischief of the Kite: euen so Ierusalem, I would haue gathered thy children vnder the wings of my protection, I would haue kept thee and thine from the iawes of thy rauinous enemy Satan, and from the hands of al such as hate you, but ye would not. O Israel, thou hast destroyed thy self but in me is thine helpe; now this ought to be construed either of Christ humane will as he was man, or else of his conditionall and reuealed will as hee was God; otherwise Gods absolute will is effected alway, both in heauen, and earth, and hell: it was the conditionall will of God the Iewes resisted, according to that of Saint Stephen in the second lesson allotted for Euen-song this day: Ye stiffe-necked and of vncircumcised hearts and eares, ye haue alway resisted the Holy Ghost, as your fathers did so do you. This (I would) of Christ is voluntas signi, not voluntas beneplaciti. See Melanct. Caictan, Piscator, Marlorat. in loc. Iansen. Concord cap. 41. & 90. didac. Alvarez de auxilijs diuine gratie lib. 5. disputat. 33. 34.

O Father of mercies, increase our faith, and grant vnto vs in this thy day of our visitation, vnfaigned repentance: that how soeuer England hath equalled Ierusalem in being dissolute, yet she may not parallel Ierusalem in being desolate.

The Epistle. I. I O H. I. I.

That which was from the beginning, which we haue heard, which we haue seene with our eyes, &c.

Saint Iohn euer like himselfe, <sup>h</sup> that his Gospell and generall Epistle might be iustifiable, <sup>i</sup> confirming each other in the maine scope: makes (in the beginning was the Word) the beginning of his words vnto both: omitting here an ordinarie saluation, that he might at the very first entrance treat of <sup>k</sup> more necessarie points of saluation: and yet this exordium à re ipsa, preamble raised from the matter it selfe, is agreeable to the rules of Art, <sup>l</sup> wherewith he makes his Readers attentiu, docile, benecolous: attentiu, for that he writes not of a trifle, but of Christ Iesus, the Word of life who cleanseth vs from all sin: docile, for that the

<sup>h</sup> Aquin in loc.
<sup>i</sup> An. ust. irall.
1. in hac Epist.
<sup>k</sup> Vide Lorin.
cap. 5. prolog in
1. Epist. Iohn.
<sup>l</sup> Arctius.
Zanchinus.
in loc.

subject

subiect of his doctrine is neither new, nor vncertaine; not new, for we shew vnto you that which was from the beginning; not vncertaine, for we preach vnto you that which we haue heard, which we haue seene with our eyes, which we haue looked upon, and our hands haue handled. Benencolus, for that he penned this Epistle for th. ir good, nainely, that they might haue fellowship with the Saints, and that their ioy might be full. I find the whole tract divided into three parts, answerable to the three chiefe christian vertues, Faith, Hope, Charitie: but for as much as our Apottle writes of these promiscuously without distinction and order, Marlor. in loc.

Pet. Aueolus apud Lorin. ubi sup. cap. 6. Piscator.

I rather admit of Aquines plaine partition, into a

- Commendation of the Gospell, Chap. 1.
- Exhortation to the fruitfull and faithfull obseruing of the same, Chap. 2. 3.
- Diffwasion from the contrarie Doctrine, Chap. 4. 5.

One of Christ, in respect of his

- Natures
  - As God, that which was from the beginning.
  - As man, which we haue heard & seene, &c.
- Office, being our light and life, cleansing vs from all sinne.

In the present text there be two descriptions,

Another of a Christian, hauing fellowship with God, his Saints, and his Sonne, in whom are two remarkable properties:

1. A studiousnes to do good, Ergo, not a carnall Epicure. For if we say wee haue fellowship with God who is light, and walke in darknesse, we lie, and do not the truth.
2. A sorrowfulnesse when he doth ill, Ergo, not a spirituall Puritan, For if we say we haue no sinne, we deceiue our selues, and the truth is not in vs.

I haue spoken enough of the first description in my notes vpon the Gospell on Christmas day, the pith of it is, that Christ Iesus eternally God, in the fulnesse of time made man, is our onely Mediator and Aduocate with God the Father; insomuch as our fellowship with God in this world, and fulnesse of ioy in the next, is attained by faith alone, first apprehending, and after applying his merits. Here then our Apottle commends the doctrine of the Gospell, in three respects especially.

First, in regard of the subiect, as being most ancient and excellent. euen that which was from the beginning, Gods owne Sonne, the word of life, yea that eternall life which was with the Father afore all worlds.

Secondly, in regard of the certaintie, that which we haue heard, which we haue seene with our eyes, which we haue looked upon, and our hands haue handled, declare we vnto you. For Christ who was in the beginning that eternall word with the Father, in these last dayes appeared vnto vs. And as S. Paul expounds S. Iohn, he was manifested in the flesh: Or as S. Iohn in his Gospell expounds himselfe, he became flesh, and dwelt among vs. And so we haue seene and heard him immediatly speaking in the world, as well as mediately speaking in his word. For he spake to the Fathers by the mouth of all his Prophets euer since the beginning: but in our dayes he hath spoken with his owne mouth vnto vs: our eares haue heard him in his Sermons, our eyes haue seene him in acting of his miracles, our hands haue touched his precious body both afore his death, and after his resurrection; and so that which we so many wayes assuredly know to be true, declare we vnto you. For albeit the Word of life being very God of very God, is neither visible nor palpable: yet in respect of the personall vnion of the two natures in him, it may be safely said againe and againe, that which we haue seene and heard. And we saw the glory of it as the glory of the onely begotten Sonne of the Father full of grace and truth, Iohn 1. 14; And in P Heb 1. 2. 91. Tim. 3. 16. Cap 1. ver. 14. Actius. Aquin.

Erasmus.

Marlorat. Piscator.

7 Acts 3. 15.
1. Cor. 1. 8.

this sense the Word of life, yea the Lord of life is said<sup>v</sup> elsew here to be killed and crucified.

Thirdly, in regard of the profit, because Christ is the Word of life, not onely formaliter, in respect of himselfe: but in respect of vs effectiue, being author of our naturall life, for in him we liue and moue, and haue our being, Acts 17. 28. Of our spirituall life, Thus I liue, yet not I now, but Christ liueth in me saith Paul, Galath. 2. 20. Of our eternall life, for he is the way, the truth, and the life, Iohn 14. 6. the resurrection and the life, Iohn 11. 25. yea that eternall life, as it is in our present text. So that if we will embrace the Gospell, and receiue these glad tidings of peace. we shall haue fellowship with the blessed Apostles, and in conclusion it will bring vs vnto fulnesse of ioy.<sup>2</sup> The which is not in this life, for here many sorrowes are mixed with a few ioyes. He was a blessed man who sayd, O a wretched man that I am, who shall deliuer me from the body of this death? Our reioycing in part, as our<sup>b</sup> knowing is in part, and our prophesying in part. Here God giueth his children sometimes a good measure of ioy, shaken together and pressed downe: but hereafter in his kingdome of glory, when all teares shall be wiped from our eyes, and all cares from our heart: then onely our ioy shall be full, (and as<sup>c</sup> Christs speaks elsew here) running ouer. Let all Doctors of Diuinitie learne by this Diuine, to shun new dubious, vnprofitable quirks of learning; and to deliuer vnto Gods people that which was from the beginning, a true Gospell and a certaine, procuring an happy communion with God and a fulnesse of ioy.

God is light Almighty God is compared vnto light in many respects. As first, for that<sup>d</sup> all things are naked and open vnto his eyes as to the light. Secondly, as we cannot see things earthly without light: so we cannot discern<sup>e</sup> things heauenly, vnlesse the Father of<sup>f</sup> lights illuminate our minde, and giue vs an<sup>g</sup> vnderstanding heart. Thirdly, for that as the light of the Sunne dasheth our eyes if they gaze too much vpon it: euen so the diuine Maieitie<sup>h</sup> dwelling in the light which no man can approach vnto, confoundeth all such as curiously pry too much into it; according to that of<sup>i</sup> Salomon in the vulgar Latine, qui scrutator est maiestatis opprimetur a gloria. But God is called<sup>k</sup> here light, as expelling all darknesse of sinne and ignorancē, being in himselfe pure, sincere, <sup>l</sup> righteous in all his wayes, and holy in all his workes. Our Apostle then argueth against hypocrites and tale-gospellers. often and openly boasting of their communion with God, a natura Dei, from the properties of God after this sort. God is light, ergo, none can haue fellowship with him except they walke in the light. If we say we haue communion with him, and walke in darknesse we lie, and doe not the truth. Our wilfull ignorance and sinnes vnrepented are called in<sup>m</sup> holy Scripture darknesse as hauing their beginning from Satan the Prince of darknesse, and their end in hell which is the pit of darknesse, and therefore though hypocrites (outmouth as it were) true Christians in bragging of their familiarity with God and his Sonne: yet the truth is, as long as they walk in darknesse, it is impossible they should bee children of God, for in him is no darknes, nor so much as a shadow, Iames 1. 19.<sup>n</sup> What Communion hath light with darknesse, or what concord hath Christ with Belial, or what fellowship hath righteousness with vn-righteousnesse? God is<sup>o</sup> without wickednes himselfe, and hateth all manner of wickednesse in other, according to that of the Prophet in the fifth Psalm, Thou art the God that hath no pleasure in wickednes, neither shall any euil dwell with thee, such as be foolish shall not stand in thy sight, for thou hatest all the that worke vanity. Thou shalt destroy them that speake leasing; the Lord will abhorre both the bloud-thirstie and deceitfull man. I conclude this point in the words of our<sup>p</sup> Apostle, Little children, let no man deceiue you, he that doeth righteousness is righteous It is not sufficient to say that he is righteous, for if we say we haue fellowship with God, and walke in darknesse we lie, and doe not the truth: <sup>q</sup> that is, we lie to our selues and doe not the truth vnto other, because they be misled through our example, mentimur commissione, veritatem non facimus omissione.

<sup>z</sup> Caietan.
Zanchius.
<sup>a</sup> Rom 7. 29,
<sup>b</sup> 1. Cor 13. 9

<sup>c</sup> Luke 6. 38.

<sup>d</sup> Heb 4. 13.
Prou 15. 3.
<sup>e</sup> 1. Cor. 2. 14
<sup>i</sup> 1am 1. 17.
<sup>g</sup> 1. Kings 3. 9.
<sup>h</sup> 1 Tim 6. 16.

<sup>i</sup> Prou. 25. 27.
<sup>k</sup> Caluin.
Aretius.
Zanchius.
<sup>l</sup> Psal. 145. 17.

<sup>m</sup> Rom. 13. 12.
Ephes. 11.

<sup>n</sup> 2. Cor. 6. 14.

<sup>o</sup> Deut. 32. 4.

<sup>p</sup> 1 Epist. cap. 3.
vers. 7.

<sup>q</sup> Lorin.

If we walke in the light ] An argument from the effect to the cause, for our staidiounesse to walke in the light, and to do good in our callings, is not the cause of our fellowship with God, and of the remission of our sin by the blood of Iesus Christ his Sonne: but an effect or consequent. It is a signe that we are the sons of God, if we be followers of God as deare children, if we walke in the light euen as he is light. It is a seale to my soule that the blood of Christ hath purged me from all sinne, if I doe but hunger and thirst after righteousnesse, if I feele but an vnfained desire to put off the works of darknesse, and to put on Gods armour of light: I know that I shall sinne still as long as I carry this flesh about me, for if we say we haue no sin, we deceiue our selues, and the truth is not in vs: but I am sure so long as I walke in the light, that I shall not commit any sin which is impar-donable: so long as I haue communion with God, I cannot commit the sinne against the Holy Ghost; as long as I am in Christ, his blood cleanseth me from all sinne: from <sup>u</sup>all sinne, originall and actuall, à culpa & pœna, from the fault, and from the paine due to the same. From all sinne, <sup>x</sup>not only committed before bap-tisme, but also from all sinne committed of frailtie, since baptisme. For as Cardinall <sup>y</sup> Caietan notes, impium est dimidiam à Deo sperare veniam; and therefore <sup>z</sup> Popish satisfactions either by works done, or paines suffered in this life, or in Purgatory after this life, to purge men of their sinnes, haue no firme ground in Gods holy word, they be works of supererogation, or if you will, haply works of superarrogation. It is not said here, the blood of Christ hath cleansed in time past, or will cleanse in time to come: but in the present, it cleanseth. <sup>a</sup> Hereby signifying that it daily purgeth all the sinnes of all such as truly beleue, who walk in the light, and haue fellowship with God.

If we say we haue no sinne ] Some say let vs <sup>b</sup> continue still in sin that grace may abound, seeing the blood of Christ cleanseth vs from all sinne, let vs walke in dark-nesse, <sup>c</sup> working all vncleannesse euen with greedinesse. Other on the contrary side say, we haue no sin, whose puritan pride S. Iohn opposeth here, shewing plainly that the <sup>d</sup> Cathari both iniurie God, and deceiue themselues, in affirming that they be without any sin, they wrong God, because (so much as in them is) they make God a liar, and his truth a lie. For his word expressly concludeth all vnder sinne, Rom. 3. 9. Galath. 3. 22. reporting that all men haue gone astray like lost sheepe, Esay 53. 6. And that there is none that doth good, no not one, Psal. 14. 2.
<sup>e</sup> In many things all offend, and who can say mine heart is cleane, Prou. 20. 9. It is true that our Apostle saith in the third Chapter of this Epistle, vers. 9. Who soeuer is borne of God sinneth not: that is, the regenerate man as he is regenerate, sinnes not obstinately with a plenarie consent, he suffers not sinne to <sup>f</sup>raigne in him, as it is in our text, he walkes not in darknesse: <sup>g</sup> yet he may stumble, yea sometime fall through infirmitie while he walketh in the light; and therefore such as auow that they haue no sinne, giue the lie to God, and the truth is not in them: <sup>h</sup> that is, God who is <sup>i</sup> truth is not in them: and the reason hereof is euident, because God resisteth the proud, Iam. 4. 6. and so neither God, nor his word is in them as Aquine pithily, neither Christ his eternall Word, nor the Scripture his created word dwelleth in them.

Againe, Puritans who say we haue no sinne, deceiue themselues; according to that of <sup>k</sup> Paul, if any man seeme to himselfe that he is somewhat, when he is nothing, he deceiueth himselfe in his imagination; or they deceiue themselues, because Christ <sup>l</sup> easeth only such as feele their heauie load, and gaoane vnder the burthen of their sinnes; and therefore the true Christian as our Apostle teacheth here, first makes a confession, and then he seekes for an absolution.

In confession obserue these circumstances:

1. Who, we.
2. What, sinnes, and our sinnes.
3. To whom, to God, If we acknowledge our sinnes, hee is faithfull, &c.
4. How, acknowledge and say.

<sup>r</sup> Zanchius.

<sup>r</sup> Ephes. 5. 1.

<sup>r</sup> Matth. 5. 6.

<sup>u</sup> Balinghem.
<sup>v</sup> Loria.
<sup>x</sup> Beda.
<sup>y</sup> In loc.
<sup>z</sup> D. Fulke in loc.

<sup>a</sup> Zanchius.
 Marlorat.

<sup>b</sup> Rom. 6. 1.

<sup>c</sup> Ephes. 4. 19.

<sup>d</sup> August heref.
 38 & Epiphani heref. 29.

<sup>e</sup> Iam 3. 2.

<sup>f</sup> Rom. 6. 12. & 7. 19.
<sup>g</sup> Zanchius.

<sup>h</sup> Hugo.
 Aquin Gloss. interlia.
<sup>i</sup> Iohn 14. 6.

<sup>k</sup> Galath. 6. 3.

<sup>l</sup> Matth. 11. 28.

- In absolution: {
1. Of whom an absolution is to be got, of God for his Christs sake, whose blood cleanseth vs from all sinne.
  2. Why? because God is faithfull & iust to forgive vs our sins.
  3. What? a plenary, not a partiall absolution, a pardon for all vnrightheousnesse.
  4. When? in this present life, while we walke in the light.

Our selues must acknowledge for our selues, and not another: we must indeed confesse <sup>m</sup> one to another, but not one for another: we must also confesse <sup>n</sup> sins, and not vertues, as the proud Pharisee, Luke 18. I fast twice in the weeke, I pay tribes of all that euer I possesse, And our owne sinnes, not our neighbours offences, as the same Pharisee, who did accuse the Publican, and in comparison of his faults excuse himselfe. This confession is to be made to God, as being the searcher of our hearts, vnderstanding all our secret sinne so well, yea better then our selues. O Lord, <sup>o</sup> who can tell how oft he offendeth? O cleanse me from my secret faults, and to God, as being very willing, and most able to purge vs from all vnrightheousnesse. It is true, that we must acknowledge our faults one to another, as hauing trespassed one another; and in some cases it is expedient also that we resort to deuout, learned, discreet Pastors, for the reliefe of our distressed conscience; yet by <sup>p</sup> Bellarmines leaue, this our text is not a pregnant Scripture for popish auricular confession vsed in the Church of Rome. For the Ministers of the Word may both openly pronounce absolution vnto true penitents; and in secret also when occasion is offered iustly: though annuall and auricular confession of euery singular and single sinne were thrust out of the Church, as it was for twelue hundred yeeres after Christ. See Gospell 3. Sund. after Epiphany.

We must acknowledge, <sup>q</sup> that is, say with our mouth, and acknowledge in our heart, that wee haue sinned in Adam, and doe sinne for the present, and may sinne hereafter as long as we liue. For saith <sup>r</sup> Augustine, Id erat peccatum insanabile, quo me peccatorem esse non arbitrabar, it is our dutie to feele sinne, to feare sinne, to flie sinne so farre as we can, in one word, soundly and seriously to repent vs of all vnrightheousnesse. <sup>s</sup> Non sit satis quod doleamus, sed ex fide doleamus, & non semper doluisse doleamus, & de dolore gaudeamus: We must heartily grieue for our offences, and grieue for that wee grieue no more, and ioy for that wee grieue so much.

After such a confession, a penitent ought to seeke for an absolution of God, as being faithfull and iust to forgive vs our sinnes. Haply some will obiekt, God (if we consider him as iust) is more ready to punish than to pardon, for <sup>t</sup> the wages of sinne is death, and the Church hath taught vs euery day to pray with the <sup>u</sup> Psalmist, enter not into iudgement with thy seruants O Lord, for no flesh is righteous in thy sight. For answer to this obiection, I finde the word iust, expounded diuersly. <sup>v</sup> Some say God is iust, as being able to iustifie sinners. <sup>w</sup> Other think that God is called iust in forgiving our sinne, because Christ hath paid a iust and a sufficient price for the sinnes of the whole world. <sup>x</sup> Other construe iust, here to be nothing else but a comely thing, or a propertie besitting the goodnesse of God; according to that of <sup>a</sup> Anselme, Iustum est o Deus, vt parcas malis. And so <sup>b</sup> some reade, God is faithfull and facile, readie to forgive. But I follow <sup>c</sup> their Glosse, who thinke that faithfull and iust in this place signifie the same. God is faithfull in his promise, iust in his word to forgive. Now God saith in his word, <sup>d</sup> though their sinnes were as crimson, they shall be made white as snow: though they be red like scarlet, they shall be as wooll. <sup>e</sup> I am not come to call the righteous, but the sinners to repentance: wherefore come to me all ye that labour and are laden, and I will ease you: yea that which is more then his word (if any thing can be greater) his oath is, <sup>f</sup> As I liue saith the Lord God, I desire not the death of the wicked, but that the wicked turne from his way and liue. Now God euer dealeth with his seruants according to his word, and hauing bound his word with an oath it is due debt, and then it is iustice to pay debts: he is faithfull, and therefore can no more deny his promise than himselfe, who saith, At what time soeuer a sinner doth repent him of his sinne from the botome of his heart, I will put all his wickednesse out of my remembrance. Wherefore let vs <sup>h</sup> boldly come to the throne of grace, let vs <sup>i</sup> agree with our aduerfarie quickly while we are in the way, while we walke in the light, while it is called <sup>k</sup> to day, for after this life there is no purgatorie for sinne in another. And let vs aske not onely some parcell of a pardon, but an absolute absolution, and a plenarie discharge from all vnrightheadnesse.

<sup>m</sup> Iam. 5. 16.<sup>n</sup> Aquin.<sup>o</sup> Psal. 12, 12.<sup>p</sup> Lib. 1. de penit cap. 13 §. habemus de iud. & lib. 3 cap. 4. §. quantus locus, & sequent. ad fin cap.<sup>q</sup> Zanchius.<sup>r</sup> Confess lib. 5. cap. 10.<sup>s</sup> Augustin. de vera & falsa penitenti. cap. 13<sup>t</sup> Rom. 6. 23.<sup>u</sup> Psal 143 2.<sup>v</sup> Em. Sa.<sup>w</sup> Caician.<sup>x</sup> Lorin.<sup>a</sup> In prolog. cap. 9. ubi suauissime hac de re multa.<sup>b</sup> Arsin.<sup>c</sup> Caluin.<sup>d</sup> Beza.<sup>e</sup> Zanchius.<sup>f</sup> Esay 1. 18.<sup>g</sup> Matth. 9. 13.<sup>h</sup> Ezech. 33. 11.<sup>i</sup> Lorin.

<sup>h</sup> Heb. 4.16.

<sup>i</sup> Mat. 5.25.

<sup>k</sup> Heb. 3.13.

Larga Dei pietas veniam non dimidiabit, Aut nihil, aut totum (te lachrymante) dabit.

The Gospell. I O H N 21.19.

Jesus said vnto Peter, follow thou me, &c.

Peters curiositie, What is that to thee? Follow thou me.

Correction of } The Disciples error touching the death of Iohn, Yet Iesus said vnto him, he shall not die, &c.

Commendation of Iohn } Grace with Christ, The Disciple whom Iesus loved, which also leaned on his breast at supper, &c.
in respect of his. } Place in the Church, as being an Apostle, that testified of these things, and an Euangelist, who wrote these things.

Conclusion of the Gospell, intimating, that so much is written as is necessarie to saluation, and other things omitted, and those many: for that if they should be written euery one, the world could not containe the books that should be written.

This Scripture containeth a

Our blessed Sauour in the words immediatly going afore, shewed Peter in what vocation he should liue, feed my sheepe: as also by what death hee should die, when thou shalt be old, thou shalt stretch forth thine hands, and another shall gird thee, and lead thee whither thou wouldest not: And when he had spoken thus; alluding to <sup>l</sup> both, especially to the <sup>m</sup> latter, he said vnto Peter, follow me; that is, be thou such a Pastor in feeding my sheepe, and such a Pastor in suffering for my sheepe, as I haue giuen example. Christ said vnto Peter in the 13. chapter of this Gospell, at the 36. verse, whither I goe thou canst not follow me now: but thou shalt follow me afterwards. Vnto whom Peter answered, Lord, why can I not follow thee now? I will lay downe my life for thy sake. Iesus replied, wilt thou lay downe thy life for my sake? Verily, verily, I say vnto thee, the Cocks shall not crow till thou haue denied me thrice.

<sup>l</sup> Theophylact.
Mascuitus.
Aetius.
<sup>m</sup> Augustin.
Euthym.
Caluin.

Now Iesus remembering this conflict and conference with his Disciple, said vnto him in the words a litle before our text, When thou wast young, thou girdest thy selfe, and walkedst whither thou wouldest. <sup>n</sup> That is, when thou wast a yongling in faith, and diddest gird thy selfe with thine owne strength, it was thy folly to thinke that thou couldest follow me whither I went: and therefore by denying me thrice, thou diddest proue my words to be true, whither I goe thou canst not follow me now: but when thou shalt be old, thou shalt stretch forth thine hands, and another shall gird thee, &c. that is, when thou shalt feele thine owne weaknesse, and grow strong in the Lord, my other saying also shall be found true; Thou shalt follow me afterwards. I therefore now command thee Peter againe and againe, to follow me whither I goe.

<sup>n</sup> Rupert. & Maldonat in
loc.

But

But Peter (as it should seeme) neglecting this charge concerning himself, out of a curious humour inquires after the doing, and dying of other, saying vnto Iesus, Lord what shall he here doe? To whom his Master answered, If I will haue him to tarry while I come, what is that to thee, follow thou me. Teaching vs hereby to follow him in the same calling, and in the same way that he doth appoint. ¶ It is not sayd, examine others employment: but see your owne calling. & let every man abide in the same calling wherein he was called walking in his vocatio worthily, studying to be quiet, and to meddle with his owne businesse. 1. Theff. 4. 11. The which Apostolicall Apothegme, beeing a parallel vnto the wordes of Christ here, (what is that to thee, follow thou me) may serue to direct vs in all matters of this life.

Whether they bee	} Theological,	} Concerning	} God.
				} Ecclesiasticall,	} The Church.
						} Politicall,	} Common-weale.
								} Morall,	} Our neighbors & friends.
} Monasticall,	} Our single selues.

In matters appertaining to God, it teacheth vs not to bee curious inquisitors after the secrets of his will vnknowne for what is that to thee? but to keepe the words of his Law, doing his wil which is knowne, for of this only Christ speaks here, follow thou me. The <sup>u</sup> secret things belong to the Lord our God; but the things reuealed belong to vs and to our children for euer.

In affayres of the Church, it sheweth, how the good shepherd should spend his life for the benefit of the flocke committed vnto his charge, Peter follow me, forbidding Vzzab to put his hand to the Arke of God, recalling the Laicke not only from encroaching vpon the Clergie mans Benefice; but also from intruding into the Clergie mans office; for what is that to thee?

In businesse of the Common-wealth, it correcteth ouer-curious Euedroppers of State, for what is that to thee? Teaching vs to giue the things of <sup>z</sup> Cesar vnto Cesar, <sup>a</sup> honour, to whom honour; custome, to whom custome: tribute, to whom tribute: though (as Christ. Matth. 17. 27.) we fish for money: for in performing this office likewise Iesus sayd vnto Peter, follow thou me. The foole (saith <sup>b</sup> Salomon) will euer be meddling, but he that is wise will not walke <sup>c</sup> in magnis & mirabilibus, in great attayres, and such as are too high and huge for him: he plots not how to dispose of the Scepter, but possessing his soule in patience, desires the Scepter should rightly dispose of him, as being assured that Princes are the <sup>d</sup> Ministers of God, euen fingers of that great hand that gouernes all the world.

In morall offices or duties of charitie betweene neighbour and neighbour, it inhibits thee to be a busi-bodie, or (as Peter speaks) a busie Bishop in another mans diocesse, for what is that to thee? advising on the contrary, to <sup>e</sup> doe good vnto all, vnto such as are of the household of faith especially. For in this respect Christ Iesus our great patron and patterne speaks vnto all, as to Peter here, follow mee. ¶ Learne of me to be humble and meeke, <sup>h</sup> walking in lone euen as I haue loued you, giuing my selfe for you to be an offering, and a sacrifice of a sweet smelling fauour to God: in all other businesse appertaining either to the priuate house, or single selfe, the counsell is wholesome, res tuas age, plow in thine owne ground, fish in thine owne boat, looke to thy selfe, ouer-looke not other; vnlesse they bee such as are committed vnto thy proper charge. For in this exempt case Christ expects not of Peters attendance to the former clause, what is that to thee? but obedience to the latter only, follow thou me.

Then went this saying among the brethren, that that Disciple should not die. ¶ Hence we may learne to take good heed how wee read and heare holy Scripture. For by misconstruing the words of our Saviour, many false rumours are spread among the brethren. <sup>k</sup> If the Disciples easily were deceiued, how much more we? Let vs embrace therefore those things which are cleare, and such things

<sup>o</sup> Luther. possil. in loc.

<sup>p</sup> Aretius.

<sup>q</sup> 1. Cor. 1. 26.

<sup>r</sup> 1. Cor. 7. 20.

<sup>s</sup> Ephes. 4. 1.

* Deut. 29. 29.

† Iohn 10. 11.

‡ Sam 6 7.

<sup>z</sup> Matth. 23. 21.

<sup>a</sup> Rom. 13. 7.

<sup>b</sup> Prou. 20. 3.

<sup>c</sup> Psal. 131. 2.

<sup>d</sup> Rom. 13. 4.

<sup>e</sup> 1 Pet. 4. 15

<sup>f</sup> Galath. 6. 10.

<sup>g</sup> Mat. 11. 29

<sup>h</sup> Ephes 5. 2.

<sup>i</sup> Heming.

<sup>k</sup> Aretius.

Pontan.

things are spoken darkely, let vs conferre with plainer places, alway calling vpon God to giue vs the key of true knowledge, that we may discern the things of his Spirit. The Disciples here made that an absolute affirmatiue, Which indeed is but a<sup>1</sup> conditionall proposition. If I will haue him to tarry &c. not I will haue him to tarry. For we may not read (as the vulgar Latine <sup>m</sup> corruptly) sc eum volo manere: but si eum volo manere. Againe, Iesus said not, he shall not die: but if I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee? In this correction of the Disciples error, obserue, first S. Iohn <sup>n</sup> ingenuitie, who would not suffer a false report to be spread among the brethren, though it were for his honour Secondly, that it is not alway safe to follow the most in all things; one Iohn here. is opposite to the rest of his company; one Lot opposite to the rest of his Citie; one Luther opposite to the rest of his countrey; one Noah opposite to the whole world. Thirdly, we may learne by this example to bee diligent and patient in reuoking all such things as haue been mistaken either in our words or writings. Augustine hath his retractations, Bellarmino his recognitions, <sup>o</sup> Baronius his Emendanda, the Disciples here their Errata sic corrige. This saying went among the brethren, &c. yet Iesus said not, he shall not die, &c.

The Disciple whom Iesus loued ] The Word <sup>p</sup> by whom all things were made, <sup>q</sup> loues all that he made. <sup>r</sup> Yet men more then vnreasonable creatures, and his Saints more then other men, and his chosen Apostles more then other Saints, and Iohn more then other of his Apostles. He loued all his Disciples, as the Father hath loued me, so haue I loued you: continue in my loue, Iohn 15. 9. But his loue to Iohn (as the<sup>t</sup> Schoole speakes) was greater extensiuè, though not intensiuè; shewing more signes of familiaritie to Iohn than to the rest of his company. For whereas<sup>u</sup> Iohn the Baptist held himself not worthy to beare the shoes of Christ, and<sup>v</sup> Marie thought her selfe blessed in anointing the feet of Christ, and<sup>w</sup> Thomas only desired to touch the side of Christ; our Apostle Iohn is said here to haue leaned on his breast at supper, as being best acquainted with the secrets of his Saviour. For when <sup>y</sup> Peter and all other his fellowes were silent, only he durst aske, Lord, which is he that betrayeth thee? When the Eagle broods (as<sup>z</sup> Plutarch reports) the chicke that comes of the egge lying nearest her heart is best beloued of her: and so S. Iohn leaning on that breast (in which are<sup>a</sup> hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge) is the beloued Disciple, so much honoured that Christ his Saviour, which had not in the world<sup>b</sup> whereon to rest his head, did notwithstanding, <sup>c</sup> dwell in his heart by faith, and leane (faith<sup>d</sup> Ambrose) in his bosome. Sinus in quo Christus requiescit, erat triplex; in Euangelista Ioanne fides, in Patre diuinitas, in Maria matre uirginitas.

It is sayd, Ephes. 4. 11. that Christ ascending vp on high, gave some to be Apostles, and some Prophets, and some Euangelists, and some Pastors and Doctors, <sup>e</sup> according to his will distributing to euery man a severall gift. <sup>f</sup> Peter was an Apostle, but not an Euangelist: Marke an Euangelist, but not an Apostle: Matthew both an Euangelist and Apostle, yet not a Prophet Augustine a Doctor, but not a Martyr; Laurence a Martyr, but not a Doctor. But behold the beloued Disciple was <sup>g</sup> all these; In his Epistles an Apostle, in his Apocalyps a Prophet, in his Gospell an Euangelist, in his faith a Confessor, in his preaching a Doctor, in his chastitie a Virgin, in his readinesse to suffer for the truth a very Martyr, yea the<sup>h</sup> Protomartyr, suffering for Christ vnder the Crosse, when he saw Christ suffer on the Crosse; amans quippe plus in amato quam in seipso patitur: all which are so many reasons why we should praise God in this holy Saint, but especially because the same Disciple is he that testifieth of these things, and wrote these things. I say, for that he penned this heauenly Gospell, <sup>i</sup> that we might beleue that Iesus Christ is the Sonne of God, and that in beleeuing, we might haue life through his name. For as<sup>k</sup> Aristotle sayd, if Timotheus had not beene, we had not had so much sweete musicke: but if Phrynis (Timotheus his master) had not beene, we had not had Timotheus. Euen so (beloued) if S. Iohn had not beene, we might haue wanted haply such an Euangelicall harmonie; but if Iesus the

- <sup>1</sup> Arboreus.
- <sup>m</sup> Iansen. Concord. cap. 148
- <sup>n</sup> Idem Erasmus & Maldonat. in loc. quippe nullius similitudo inseri uerac
- <sup>o</sup> Arc. ius.
- <sup>p</sup> Par impar.
- <sup>q</sup> Annal. Tom. 9 fol. 86. 3.
- <sup>r</sup> Tom 10. fol 939 Tom. 11 fol. 723.
- <sup>s</sup> Iohn. 1. 3.
- <sup>t</sup> Wisd. 11. 21.
- <sup>u</sup> August. troit. 110 in loc. 27.
- <sup>v</sup> Thom. part. 1. quest 20 art 3.
- <sup>w</sup> Marth. 3. 11.
- <sup>x</sup> Iohn 12. 3.
- <sup>y</sup> Iohn 20 25.
- <sup>z</sup> Iohn 13. 24. Vide Pet. de Palud. ser in loc.
- <sup>a</sup> Apud Ioan Oforium. & Illesons. qiron. in loc
- <sup>b</sup> Coloss. 2. 3.
- <sup>c</sup> Matth. 8. 20.
- <sup>d</sup> Ephes. 3. 17.
- <sup>e</sup> Scr. 18.
- <sup>f</sup> 1 Cor. 12. 11.
- <sup>g</sup> Dir. Con. 2. in fest. Ioan. Euang.
- <sup>h</sup> Paran. & Pet de palude ubi supra.
- <sup>i</sup> Ioan. Oforius. in loc.
- <sup>j</sup> Iohn. 20. 31.
- <sup>k</sup> Meta. lib. 2. cap. 1.

master

master of Iohn had not bene gracious vnto the Church, it should not haue had such a Iohn.

It is an argument of S. Iohns <sup>1</sup>humilitie, that he termeth himselfe not a Master in Israel or a Doctour, but a Disciple, and that fve times in this one Gospell, as cap. 13. 23. cap. 19. 26. cap. 20. 2. cap. 21. 7. & 20. <sup>m</sup> yet it winnes honour to his hystorie, for that the beloved Disciple penned it, euen he who leaned on his masters bosome, testifieth of these things. <sup>n</sup> Among all his honourable titles, he mentioneth in the first place that he was beloued of Iesus, acknowledging it onely to bee the fountaine from which all other his graces originally were deriued, For he was not beloued of Iesus, for that he leaned on his breast, or for that he durst aske him any question, or for that he was the penman of this historie: but on the contrary, he therefore leaned on his masters bosome, and was acquainted with his secrets, and testifieth of these things, for that he was the disciple whom Iesus loued. It is Christs grace, by which alone we are whatsoeuer we are, 1. Cor. 15. 10.

There be many other things which Iesus did ] Eney thing that Iesus did is not recorded in the Gospells hystorie, but onely so much as is necessarie for vs to know; namely, that we might beleue that Iesus Christ is the Sonne of God, and that (in beleeuing) we might haue life through his Name: for so S. Iohn expounds himselfe, chap. 20. at the last verse. The Scripture then is written principally for this end, that we might vnderstand the misterie of our saluation, consiting in <sup>o</sup> two points especially. First, in beleuing that Iesus is the Christ, that is, the Messias promised vnto the Farthers euer since the world began. Secondly, that this Messias, albeit he were the seed of Dauid, is not a meere Terence Iesus, but the Sonne of God: and so being both God and man, he is our onely Mediator, through whose name we must be saued. The Gospell hath aboundantly both affirmed and confirmed these points, and therefore we need not any <sup>p</sup> further reuelations of the Spirit in the businesse of our saluation. Men talke much of the Philosophers stone, that it turneth copper into gold; of Coruus-copia, that it had all things necessarie for food in it; of Panaces the herbe that it was good for all diseases; of Catholicon the drug; that it is in stead of all purges; of Vulcans armor that it was an armour of prooffe against all thrusts and blowes. &c. <sup>q</sup> Well, that which they did attribute vainely to these things for bodily good, we may with full measure ascribe iustly to the Scripture for spirituall. It is not an armour only, but an whole armorie of weapons, as well offensiuie, as defensiuie, whereby we may saue our selues, and put the enemy to flight: It is not an herbe but a tree, or rather a compleat paradise of trees of life, which bring forth fruit <sup>r</sup> evey moneth, and the fruit thereof is for meat, and the leaues for medicine. In a word, it is a panarie of wholsome food, against fenowed traditions; a Phisitians shop of preseruatiues, against poisoned heresies; a pandect of profitable lawes against rebellious spirits; a treasure of most costly Iewels, against beggerly rudiments. Eney thing indeed that Iesus did is not set downe, yet so much is written as is sufficient for our learning, so much as may serue for a <sup>1</sup> lanterne to our feet, and a light vnto our paths, able to teach, improve, correct, instruct in righteousnesse, that the man of God may be perfect, & thoroughly furnished vnto all good workes. 2. Tim. 3. 16 I will end this obseruation in the words of <sup>t</sup> Agustine, Tanta facta sunt, quanta tunc fieri debuerunt: tanta scripta sunt, quanta nunc legi debuerunt. <sup>u</sup> His salubriter, & parua corriguntur, & parua nuriuntur, & magna oblectantur ingenia. Nay (saith he) the Scriptures are to fit and full, It in eis quotidie proficerem, si eas solas ab ineunte pueritia, usque ad decrepitam senectutem maximo otio summo studio, meliorem ingenio conarer addiscere.

The which if they should be written evey one, I suppose that the world could not containe the bookes that should be written ] I find three diuers constructions of this one verse: The first is metaphoricall, the second hyperbolicall, and the third literall. <sup>x</sup> Agustine, <sup>y</sup> Theophylact, Beda, Rupert metaphoricallly, or metonymically; vnderstanding by the world, men of the world: Mundus non capit id est, non intelligit, the world cannot comprehend, that is, apprehend the bookes that should

<sup>1</sup> Marlorat.

<sup>m</sup> Cyril.
Rupert.
Maldonat.
<sup>n</sup> Hieron.
supra.

<sup>q</sup> Vide Caietan.
Marlorat.
Aret. in Ioan.
20. 31.

<sup>p</sup> Piscator.

<sup>q</sup> See Preface to the Reader before the translation of our new English Bible.

<sup>r</sup> Apocal. 22. 2.

<sup>s</sup> Psal. 119. 105.

<sup>t</sup> Ser. 139. de Temp.

<sup>u</sup> Augustin.
epist. 3. ibid.

<sup>x</sup> Tract. 12. 4. in Ioan.
<sup>y</sup> In loc.

should be written. A very lanke conceit, for the world in this sense cannot vnderstand so much as one line of the Gospell; according to that of <sup>r</sup> Paul, The naturall man perceiueth not the things of the spirit of God.

<sup>a</sup> Other take these words as spoken hyperbolically, for the Spirit of God (accommodating it selfe to the rudenesse of men) vseth elsewhere this kinde of figure. Deut. 1. 28. The Cities of the Canaanites are said to haue bene walled vp to heauen, Exod. 3. 17. The land of the same Canaanites is termed a soile flowing with milke and honey, Psal. 107. The men who goe downe to the sea in ships, and occupie their businesse in great waters, are so tossed in the deepe by the stormie windes and waues, as that Dauid saith in the 26. ver. They mount vp to the heauen, and are carried downe againe to the depths. And so S. Iohn in auowing the world could not containe, &c. doth intimate, that if all the things which Iesus did, should be written euery one, the number of the bookes in folio would be without number. As high wals and huge waues are said to reach heauen: euen so these bookes hyperbolically to be greater than all the world.

<sup>b</sup> Other construe this verse literally, Iesus is that eternall Word in the beginning, by whom all things were made, Iohn 1. 3. and by whose mightie word all things are sustained, Heb. 1. 3. working from the foundation of the world hitherto, Iohn 5. 17. So that if euery thing which Iesus did as God, both afore the world, and in the world, should be registred: all this huge vniuerse (though it be Gods faire Librarie) could not containe the bookes that should be written. And thus (as you see) the conclusion of this Gospell is answerable to the beginning, both intimating Christs incomprehensible Diuinitie. He made the whole world at the first, and he gouernes all things in the world euer sithence; and therefore most impossible that all his words, and workes; and wonders should be recorded in bookes: albeit euery plant were a pen, euery drop of water inke, euery foot of land paper, and euery liuing creature a ready writer. The Disciple then who wrote these things (as Horace said of Homer) hath so fitly disposed of his whole storie,

Primo ne medium, medio ne discrepet inum.

<sup>r</sup> 1 Cor. 2. 14.

<sup>a</sup> Euthym.
Caluin.
Arct.
Piscator.

<sup>b</sup> Istoder. p. clus. lib. 2. epist. 99.
Dionys. Alex. epist. 1. priori aduersus Hares.
Samosaten. Baron. Annal. Tom. 1. ad an. 34 fol. 214.

The Epistle. APOCAL. 14. 1.

I looked, and loe a Lambe stood on the mount Sion, &c.

Christ, a Lambe standing on mount Sion.

Quantitie, an hundred fortie and foure thousand.

Open, hauing his name and his Fathers name written in their foreheads, and a voice like the sound of many waters, and great thunder.

Faith, in that her confessions

Harmonicall, singing a new song of diuers parts, and yet all agreeing as the voice of harpers harping with their harps.

Good workes, in that her children are not defiled with women, and in their mouths is no guile, for they follow the Lambe withersoener he goeth; and the reason of all is, because they were redeemed from the earth and from men, that they might be the first fruits vnto God and to the Lambe.

This Text is nothing else but a description of

The Church, in Qualitie, for c Iohn 1. 29.

d Rupert.
Bullinger.
Aretius.
e Ardens.

f A. 8. 32.

g Ioh. 6. 54. 55

h Apoc. 7. 9.

i 2 Cor. 5. 21.

k Ardens.
Bullinger.
Aretius.

l Apoc. 13. 1.

m Napier.

n Mat. 16. 18.

o Galat. 4. 26.

p Esay 2. 2.

q Marlorat.

r Aretius.

s Apud Ioan.
Raulin. ser. 2.
in festo Ioan.
Euangelist.

t In Apoc. con. 6.

u Bullinger.

x Matth. 8. 11.

y Ardens.

Rupert.

Marlorat.

z Aretius.

a Luk. 2. 20.

Apocal 3. 5.

b Luk. 12. 32.

c Matth. 7. 14.

d Druſius & Brightman in
loc.

e Ardens.

f Marlorat.

g 2 Cor. 4. 13.

h Bullinger.

i Rom. 10. 9.

k Apoc. 13. 6.

l Apoc. 7. 2.

A Lambe stood on the mount Sion] Christ the Sonne of God is the <sup>c</sup> Lambe of God, euen the Lambe <sup>d</sup> here mentioned, as it is apparant by his correlatiue, father. For so the text, having his name and his fathers: a <sup>e</sup> Lambe in figure, and a Lambe in fact. In figure, for Christ Iesus is our Paschall Lambe, 1 Cor. 5. 7 flaine from the beginning of the world, Apocal. 13. 8. Prefigured in the sacrifices of the Law, so well as now presented in the Sacraments of the Gospell. As one pithily, Prius profuit quam fuit: A Lambe indeed, so mecke as a Lambe, <sup>f</sup> like a Lambe dumbe before his shearer. A Lambe, for that he feedeth all his with <sup>g</sup> flesh, and clotheth all his with his <sup>h</sup> white robe of <sup>i</sup> righteoufnesse, whereby we stand (as it is in our text) without spot before the throne of God. And this Lambe sits not idle, nor lieth asleepe: but standeth, alwaies in a <sup>k</sup> readinesse to protect his followers, He that keepeth Israel, shall neither slumber nor sleepe, Psal. 121. 4. He standeth not as the beast in fickle sand or <sup>l</sup> sea: but on mount Sion, which cannot be remoued, Psal. 125. 1. in the midst of his inheritance the <sup>m</sup> Church, against which <sup>n</sup> hell gates shall not preuaile: For Sion is a type of Christs kingdome, called often in <sup>o</sup> holy Scripture, Ierusalem aboue, <sup>p</sup> prepared in the top of the mountaines, and exalted above the hills. He stands on a mount, <sup>q</sup> higher than either earth or sea, from whence the two beasts his opposites arise. So that he is willing to defend his followers, as standing; and able, for that he stands on a mount; and lest any should doubt of this, our Apostle saith, I looked, and loe. Two words of <sup>r</sup> attention, assuring vs hereby that the woman persecuted in the wilder nesse, that is, the Church afflicted in the world shall at the last haue the vi<sup>r</sup>ory, though all the red Dragons on earth, and all the blacke deuils in hell furiously rage together against the Lord, and against his Anointed. And here giue me leaue to remember an <sup>s</sup> obseruable note touching the writings of S. Iohn, how that in his Gospell, he teacheth especially faith: in his Epistles, especially loue: in his Apocalyps, especially hope. This booke being (as reuerend <sup>t</sup> Bullinger censureth) Euangelicissimus liber, of all holy Scripture the fullest of consolation.

And with him an hundred fortie and foure thousand] This affords <sup>u</sup> comfort, that the Lambe stands not alone, but hath on his side <sup>x</sup> many from East and West, as well Gentiles as Iewes, having his fathers name written in their foreheads. It is thought by <sup>y</sup> some that this number is mystical, insinuating the perfection of Gods Elect, because both the duodenarie number and millenarie are numbers of perfection. It is a <sup>z</sup> certaine number, because the Lord knoweth who are his, 2 Tim. 2. 19. as hauing their <sup>a</sup> names written in his booke: yet a definite for an infinite (as almost all haue noted) in that the number of such as are with the Lambe is a multitude which no man is able to number, Apoc. 7. 9. it is in it selfe a very great number, but in comparison of the company fauouring lies and following Antichrist, it is a <sup>b</sup> little flocke, a <sup>c</sup> few people which are redeemed from the earth, selected out of those innumerable troopes of small and great, rich & poore, bond & free, whose names are not written in the booke of life of the Lambe, Apoc. 13. 8. 16.

Having his name and his fathers name written in their foreheads] The vulgar Latine, Aretas, Ardens, and <sup>d</sup> other reade (as the translation of Henry 8. and our Communion booke) His name, and his fathers name: the which is more significant than that in other copies, hauing only his fathers name. And the <sup>e</sup> meaning is, that they professe themselues openly to be Christians, acknowledging aperto fronte that God is their father in his Sonne Iesus, in their <sup>f</sup> deeds and doctrine appearing outwardly to the world, what they are inwardly to themselues, according to that of <sup>g</sup> Paul, We beleue, and therefore speake. <sup>h</sup> Faith in the soule breaking forth into <sup>i</sup> confession with the mouth, is the note whereby the friends of Christ are distinguished from the followers of Antichrist. He that dependeth vpon Saints as much as vpon his Sauour, and trusteth in the pardon of the Pope more than in the merits of Christ: hath in his forehead the <sup>k</sup> marke of the beast, and not the <sup>l</sup> seale of God. If Christ once dwell in our hearts by faith, his name will instantly be written in our forehead.

And I heard a voice from heauen] The militant Church on earth is called often in in holy writ <sup>m</sup> heauen, as being the way to the kingdome of heauen, and as hauing her <sup>n</sup> conuerſation in heauen, and her affectiones ſet on things <sup>o</sup> aboute. This heauen hath a voice; <sup>p</sup> for the Church is not mute but vocall, openly profeſſing her faith, and prauiſing God before the ſeat, and the foure beaſts, and the elders. Hauing a voice like the ſound of many waters, and of great thunder, and of harpers harping with their harpes. <sup>q</sup> Some by theſe three kindes of voices, vnderſtand three degrees of the Churches progreſſe perfecuted by the Dragon in the wilderneſſe. Firſt, in the dayes of Athanaſius, Baſil, Chriſoſtome, Ambroſe, Hierome, Auguſtine, &c. Her voice (ſay they, but how truly iudge ye) was indifſinct and confuſed. For albeit the learned writings of theſe moſt accurate Doctours in their age, made a great noiſe in the world, like the ſound of many waters: yet many points of doctrine were not ſo well explicated vnto the common people then, aſafterwards they were. Secondly, in the dayes of Wickliffe and Huſſe, and other Bonarges, her voice reſembled the voice of great thunder. But now ſince her deliuerance from the wilderneſſe, and her comming out of Babylon; her voice in the harmony of confeſſions is like the conſent of harpers harping with their harps.

<sup>r</sup> Other ſay, that the Scriptures voice ſpeaking by the Church, is like to waters, in that it refreſheth all ſuch as hunger and <sup>s</sup> thirſt after righteouſneſſe, and like to great thunder, in being <sup>t</sup> terrible to the wicked: and like to the muſicke of harpers, in being delectable to the godly. The Preachers of the word are vnto God the ſweet ſauour of Chriſt, in them that are ſaued, and in them that periſh: to the one the ſauour of death vnto death, and to the other the ſauour of life vnto life, 2 Cor. 2. 15, 16.

<sup>u</sup> Other thinke, that many waters are many nations, as in the 17. Chapter of this booke, verſe 15. The waters which thou ſaweſt are people and multitudes, and nations, and tongues. And the great thunder is nothing elſe, but the thundring voices of zealous and holy Preachers; and the harpers harmony doth intimate ſpirituall reioycing together in the Lord. The Church then hath a voice which is much, as being of many: yet muſicall, in that thoſe many concord in the maine, like harpers harping with their harps. It is <sup>x</sup> Multa vox ex psallentium multitudine, ſed delectabilis ex conſonantie ſuauitate.

And they ſung as it were a new ſong] In regard of the matter a new ſong, <sup>y</sup> it was Adams old ſong before his fall to prauiſe God for his creation in holineſſe and righteouſneſſe: but we ſing a new ſong to the Lord for our redemption and regeneration, whereby Gods image loſt by ſinne is reſtored in vs againe: or in regard of the manner, a new ſong, <sup>z</sup> for whereas the Iewes in the old Teſtament <sup>a</sup> expecting the conſolation of Iſrael, ſung prauiſes vnto God for that their Meſſias and Sauour ſhould come: Chriſtians in the new Teſtament magnifie the Lord for that Chriſt is come, Bleſſed be the Lord God of Iſrael, for he hath viſited and redeemed his people; for that their <sup>b</sup> eyes haue ſeene his ſaluation, and their <sup>c</sup> hands haue handled the Word of life. Or in regard of the men, a new ſong, <sup>d</sup> being ſung by ſuch as haue put off the old man, and are new creatures in Chriſt, 2 Cor. 5. 17. a new ſong <sup>e</sup> for that it makes the partie who ſings it a new man. Or a new ſong, <sup>f</sup> in that it ſeemeth vnto the world new; for Chriſt crucified the chiefe ſubiect of their new ſong, ſeemeth vnto the worldly wiſe meere <sup>g</sup> fooliſhneſſe, as it followeth in our text. No man could learne the ſong, but the hundred ſortie foure thouſand which were redeemed from the earth. As our Popiſh aduerſaries hauing the <sup>h</sup> beaſts marke both in their forehead, and in their right hand, impudently call our moſt ancient and Apoſtolike faith a new Goſpell, and our Diuines, <sup>i</sup> Euangelij quinti profeſſores. But as learned <sup>k</sup> Scaliger answered them acutely, Nos nouatores non ſumus, ſed vos eſtis veteratores: A Monke deuoted to his ſuperſtitious order, and truſting in his owne merits, is neuer able to learne how faith onely iuſtifieth. A carnall man addicted only to naturall reaſon, is not able to diſcerne the things of God. A Iew relying altogether vpon his Circumciſion, is not able to ſing another note. No maruell then if the ſong of Sion ſeeme new to them all.

Theſe are they which were not defiled with women] <sup>l</sup> This clauiſe makes not any thing

<sup>m</sup> Matth 22 2.
See Goſpell 20
Sund. after Trinit.
<sup>n</sup> Phil. 3. 20.
<sup>o</sup> Coloff 3 2.
<sup>p</sup> Bullinger <sup>q</sup> Erighman
in loc.

<sup>r</sup> Rupert. in loc.

<sup>s</sup> Eſay 55. 1.
Matth 5 6.
<sup>t</sup> Bullinger.
Aretius.
Marlowat.

<sup>u</sup> Napier.

<sup>x</sup> Ardens.

<sup>y</sup> Erighman.

<sup>z</sup> Ruſert.
Napier.

<sup>a</sup> Haggai 2. 8.
Luke 2. 25.

<sup>i</sup> Pet 1. 10.

<sup>b</sup> Luke 2 30.

<sup>c</sup> 1 Iohn 1 1.

<sup>d</sup> Aretius apud Bullinger. con 28.

<sup>e</sup> Apocal.

<sup>f</sup> Ardens.

<sup>g</sup> Ardens.

<sup>h</sup> Bullinger in loc.

<sup>i</sup> 1 Cor 1. 23.

<sup>k</sup> Apoc 13. 16.

<sup>l</sup> Iurgenius.

<sup>m</sup> Reſpon. ad
Scrac.

<sup>n</sup> Aretius.

<sup>m</sup> Hist. Tripart.
lib. 2 cap. 14.

<sup>n</sup> Hom de inuent. crucis.

<sup>o</sup> Dr. Fulk.
in loc.

<sup>p</sup> 1 Cor 7. 2.

<sup>q</sup> In 2 Cor. 11.

<sup>r</sup> Balens in vita
Nic. 1.

<sup>s</sup> Idem in vita
Greg 7.

<sup>t</sup> Apud Baleum in vita Innocent. 3.

<sup>u</sup> Saluianus lib.
5 de providentia Dei.

<sup>x</sup> Hieron.

<sup>y</sup> Napier.

<sup>z</sup> 1 Theff. 4. 4.

<sup>a</sup> 2 Cor. 11. 2.

<sup>b</sup> Psal. 106. 39.

<sup>c</sup> Ezech 16. 36.

<sup>d</sup> Napier.

Bullinger.

Marlorat.

<sup>e</sup> 1 John 5. 21.

<sup>f</sup> Ardens.

<sup>g</sup> 2 Cor. 4. 2.

adulterantes

verbum uti vulgar. Latin.

<sup>h</sup> Marlorat.

<sup>i</sup> Eccles 21. 26.

<sup>k</sup> Psal 116. 10.

thing against honourable marriage, for how can that bee truly called a defiling, when as the bed is vndefiled, Heb. 13. 4. and therefore <sup>m</sup> Paphnutius openly pronounced in the Councell of Nice, Castitatem esse cum uxore propria concubium: And <sup>n</sup> Chrysostome (though a great admiror of virginitie) saith also, primus gradus castitatis, est sincera virginitas: secundus, fidele coniugium. And <sup>o</sup> so married couples are virgins as well as single persons, and ordinarily more chaste in hauing Gods appointed remedy for <sup>p</sup> auoiding fornication. Before the Law, the Patriarkes had wiues: vnder the Law, the Priests had wiues: after the Law, to wit, in the dayes of the Gospell (as <sup>q</sup> Ambrose peremptorily writes) all the twelue Apostles, except Saint Iohn, had wiues. And it was euer thought commendable for the Preachers of the word to marry at their owne discretien, as they did iudge the same to serue better vnto godlinesse, vntill Pope <sup>r</sup> Nicholas the first, <sup>s</sup> Hildebrand, alias Helt-brand, and Innocentius the third, forbade Priests marriage. Whereupon a <sup>t</sup> wittie fellow made this odde old rime:

*Prisciani regula penitus cassatur,
Sacerdos per hic & hac olim declinatur:
Sed per hic solummodo nunc articulatur;
Cum per nostrum praesulem hac amoueat.
Non est Innocentius, imò nocens verè,
Qui quod factò docuit, verbo vult delere:
Et quod olim iuuenis voluit habere, Modò vetus Pontifex studet prohibere.*

What kinde of virgins Popes and Popish Priests haue beene, you may reade enough, Epistle I. Sunday in Lent. Haply more then enough in Balens his Treatise concerning English Votaries. A profession of virginitie without true chastitie is no better than an apple growing in the Lake of Sodome. <sup>u</sup> Nosum est prorsus religionis genus, licitè non faciunt, & illicitè committunt, temperant à concubitu (quamuis nec hoc faciunt nisi à licito, & non temperant à rapina. If the notation (Papa quasi popa) be good: and the rule true, <sup>v</sup> Venter rorans macrofacile desummat in libidinem: I would not wish many Popes to boast of their puritie.

Paphia dicta Venus, Veneris proles quoque Papa est.

Well, <sup>y</sup> such as follow the Lambe, are neither defiled carnally with women (for they possesse their vessels in <sup>z</sup> holinesse and honour) nor yet spiritually with idols. In which respect the Church is called a <sup>a</sup> pure virgin, for that she runs not a <sup>b</sup> whoring with her owne inuentions, committing <sup>c</sup> fornication with other louers: but is prepared for one husband only which is Christ. <sup>d</sup> In this sense to worship idols, and to serue strange gods, is to be defiled with women, as our Apostle doth insinuate in the 17. Chapter of this booke, verse 4. And therefore the Papists (albeit vnmarried) depending vpon many Saints, are not so good virgins as married Protestants wholly trusting in one Saviour, and following him whithersoener he goeth, obeying his will, and in their best endeouours euer ready to keepe the words of his Law, neuer forsaking him or his in want, in prison, in sicknesse, in death. And this he will acknowledge at the last day; saying to them openly, Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit ye the kingdome prepared for you, for ye haue followed me whithersoever I went. I was an hungred, and ye gaue me meat: I thirsted, and ye gaue me drinke: I was a stranger, and ye lodged me: I was naked, and ye clothed me: sicke, and ye visited me: in prison, and ye came vnto me: whithersoever I went, I had your company.

In their mouths was found no guile] As they were chaste in mind, <sup>e</sup> keeping themselves from idols: and chaste in body, not defiled with women: so likewise chaste in <sup>f</sup> tongue; for they did not <sup>g</sup> adulterate the word, or professe the faith in <sup>h</sup> hypocrisie; but hauing their <sup>i</sup> mouth in their heart, they <sup>k</sup> spake because they beleueed, embracing the Gospell in simplicitie, being also studious of truth in their carriage toward men, Louing without dissimulation, Rom. 12. 9. Casting off lying, Ephes. 4. 25. and all guile, 1 Pet. 2. 1. Iust in their promise, not disappointing a neighbour though it were to their owne hinderance, Psal 15. 5. Before men in respect of any scandalous scandalous offences or open crimes <sup>l</sup> vnblameable, saying with the Lambe whom they follow, <sup>m</sup> which of you can rebuke me of sinne? indeed their secret faults only knowne to God are many, while they be clogged with flesh and bloud, who can tell how oft he offendeth? and yet in the world to come they shall appeare without spot before the throne of God, as hauing all their spots couered with long white robes of the Lambe: yea, <sup>n</sup> cleanfed and made no spots by the bloud of the Lambe, redeemed from earth and from men, to be the first fruits vnto God.

The blessed Innocents on this day murdered by cruell Herod, were witnesses to the Lambe, non loquendo sed moriendo (saith <sup>o</sup> Augustine) not by speaking but by suffering for Christ, and so both his name and his fathers name were written in their foreheads, and their voice was like the sound of many waters, and as the voice of great thunder, as it is in the Gospell allotted for this festiuall, In Rama was there a voice heard, lamentation, weeping, and great mourning: and their crying was a song, a dolefull dittie to their parents care, Rachel weeping for her children, and would not be comforted, &c. yet <sup>p</sup> pretious in Gods eye, so sweet as the voice of harpers harping with their harpes. And this their sighing was a new singing, because they were <sup>q</sup> primitia martyrum, euen the first fruits of martyrs vnto God. And they followed the Lambe whither soeuer he went, the Lambe was white and ruddie, Cant. 5. 10. That is (as Rupertus vpon the place) Candidus sanctitate, rubicundus passione. So they were white in their innocencie being virgins in their chasticite, without any guile in their mouth, or guilt in their life; but in respect of their bloud shed for the Lambe, ruddie. So that (as Dauid sings in the <sup>r</sup> Psalme) out of the mouthes of very babes and sucklings he hath made perfect his praise. Christ assuredly got great praise by that hymne which Angels sung, glory be to God on high, and great praise by S. Stephen his protomartyr, and by S. Iohn the disciple whom he loued, as you haue heard in their seuerall holy daies: but his praise was made perfect by the mouthes of babes and Innocents, of whom he saith in the Gospell, <sup>s</sup> Suffer the little children and forbid them not to come to me, for of such is the kingdome of heauen. O blessed babes, <sup>t</sup> who came to the wished haueu without any tempest, <sup>u</sup> enjoying the comforts of another life, before ye knew the miseries of this life. <sup>v</sup> Qui prius in capisibus coronas quam capillos accepistis, hauing your heads crowned with happines, before they were couered with haire. Herod could neuer haue pleased you so much in his kindnesse, as he did in his crueltie; for where his impietie did abound, there Christs pitie did superabound, translating you from your earthly mothers armes in this valley of teares, vnto your heauenly fathers bosome in his kingdome of glory.

*Saluete flores martyrum,
Quos lucis ipso in limine
Christi infecutor sustulit, Sicut turbo nascentes rosas.
Vos prima Christi victima,
Grex immolatorum tener,
Aram ante cuius simplices Palma & coronis ludistis.*

The Gospell. MATTH. 2. 13.

The Angell of the Lord appeared to Ioseph in a sleepe, saying, Arise, and take the childe and his mother, and flee into Egypt, &c.

THe Priests in the Law were commanded that the <sup>b</sup> fire should euer burne vpon the Altar, and neuer goe out. And <sup>c</sup> so that the fire of our deuotion (at this holy time) kindled vpon the altar of our heart might not be quenched by the water (which vsually the cold serpent casteth out of his mouth, Apocal. 12. 15.) the Church adioyneth, vnto the celebration of Christs birth, other three

<sup>l</sup> Luke 1. 6.
<sup>m</sup> Iohn 8. 46.
See Gospell 5.
Sund. in Lent

<sup>n</sup> Iohn 17.

<sup>o</sup> Ser. 11. de sanctis.

<sup>p</sup> Psal. 116. 13.

<sup>q</sup> Augustin, ubi supra.

<sup>r</sup> Illephon. Giron con. 1. in festi S. Innocent. Psal 8. 2. Matth. 21. 16.

<sup>s</sup> Matth. 19. 14

<sup>t</sup> Oserius con. in festi Innocent.

<sup>u</sup> Vide Didac. de Tenguas. com. de Iuga Christi.

<sup>v</sup> Giron. ubi sup.

<sup>w</sup> Psal. 84. 6.

<sup>x</sup> Prudentius Hym. in Epiph.

<sup>b</sup> Leuit. 6. 13.

<sup>c</sup> Ferus Ser. 1. de S. Ioan. Evangel.

Festivals in one weeke. Wherein her meaning is not to withdraw our loue from the Creator to the creature (for all the twelue daies are called Christmas, dedicated only to Christs honour) but that we might hereby praise this our Iesus vn-cessantly both in him selfe and in his Saints. And the reason (as <sup>d</sup> some coniecture) why S. Stephen, and S. Iohn, and the blessed Innocents are named about the rest, is haply to shew that Christ came into the world to saue all sorts of men, of what-foeuer degree. The Chiualdric represented by S. Stephen a resolute Knight and warrour in the Lords battell: the Clergie represented by S. Iohn, stiled the Discipule: the Comminaltie or Infantrie represented by the silly children Herod slew; or intimating that Christ was borne for men of euery seuerall age, for men of perfect strength, as Stephen: for old men on their crouches, as <sup>e</sup> S. Iohn: for Infants in their cradles, as the blessed Innocents. Or it may be that these Saints are mentioned at <sup>f</sup> Christmas rather than other, because Christ saith in the Gospell, If any man will follow me, let him forsake himselfe, and take up his crosse, Mat. 16. 24. The seruant is not greater then his master, if they haue persecutid me; they will persecute you also, Iohn 15. 20. Now there be <sup>k</sup> three kinds of suffering or martyrdom in Christs cause. The first, Voluntatis & operis, in will and in act, as that of S. Stephen. The second, Voluntatis sed non operis, in will but not in act, as that of S. Iohn. The third, Operis sed non voluntatis, in act but not in will, as on this day the death of the Bethlemiq; Innocents. And for as much as S. Stephens martyrdom comes nearest vnto the sufferings of Christ, his Festiuall is next to Christs in the first place, S. Iohns in the second, the blessed Innocents in the third. And so Christ (as it is Cant. 5. 10.) is white and ruddie, the chiefest among ten thousand. Candidus in Ioanne, rubicundus in Stephano, electus ex millibus in Innocetibus.

1. Christs humanitie, for that hee was a childe, and did <sup>m</sup> flee.

In the Gospell allotted for this day, two points are more principally remarkable:

2. Herods inhumanitie, murdering

Τὸς ναιδας, καὶ τὸν σὺνδὸν, &c. <sup>n</sup> Innocent babes who neither would nor could hurt him.
<sup>natus</sup> All the children that were in Bethlehem, and in all the coastes thereof, from two yeeres old and vnder, according to the time which he had diligently knowne of the Wisemen. All in euery place neere the place where Christ was borne, not sparing his owne <sup>o</sup> childe, flesh of his flesh, and bone of his bone; which occasioned <sup>p</sup> Augustus Caesar tauntingly to say, Melius est esse Herodis porcum quam puerum, It is better to be Herods sow than his sonne.

The Angell of the Lord appeared vnto Ioseph in a sleepe] <sup>q</sup> Hence we may learne what a tender care God hath ouer his children in their greatest affliction, <sup>r</sup> his Angell tarrieth round about them that feare him, and deliuers them; and therefore let vs <sup>s</sup> cast all our care vpon him, for he careth for vs: <sup>t</sup> as a father pitieth his owne children; enen so the Lord is mercifull to them who feare him. It may be said of our heauenly Father, as the <sup>u</sup> Poet of an earthly parent, Omnis in Ascanio chari stat cura parentis.

Take the childe and his mother] He who was in the beginning that eternall Word and <sup>x</sup> cuerlasting Father, about this time for our sake came downe from heauen, and became an infant and a childe. Nobis puer natus, Esay 9. 6. Vnto vs a childe is borne, and vnto vs a sonne is giuen: a childe not in meeknesse onely (for so

<sup>d</sup> Ioan. Raulin. ser. 2. de beatis Innocent.

<sup>e</sup> Who liued after Christs passion 68. yeeres, as Hierom. in eius vita, being at his his death 106. yeeres old. Baron. annal. ad an. 99.

<sup>f</sup> Pet. de palude ser. de Innocent. Idem Ferus

<sup>k</sup> Bernard. ser. de Innocent. Idem Girou. Iansen. & alij in loc.

<sup>l</sup> Ludolphus de vita Christi. part. 1. cap. 13.

<sup>m</sup> Ardens. Anselm. in loc. n Piscator.

<sup>o</sup> Ex Philone Baronius annal. Tom. 1. ad an. 1. fol. 60.

<sup>p</sup> Macrobius (saturnal. lib. 2. cap. 4.

<sup>q</sup> Luther. Culman. Beauxamis.

<sup>r</sup> Psal. 34. 7.

<sup>s</sup> 1 Pet. 5. 7.

Psal. 55. 23.

<sup>t</sup> Psal. 103. 13.

<sup>u</sup> Virgil.

<sup>x</sup> Esay 9. 6.

fo the greateft man ought to be as a little childe, 1 Cor. 14. 20. Concerning malitiousneffe be children, and except ye becoms as little children, ye ſhall not enter into the kingdome of heauen) but a childe in weakneffe alfo, <sup>z</sup> wrapped in ſwadling clothes, and laied in a cratch. It is not ſaid, take thy childe and thy wife; but the childe and his mother: <sup>a</sup> hereby ſignifying, that Ioseph was not the naturall, but only the nurſing father of Ieſus. It is true that this Angell appearing to Ioseph at another time before Mary was deliuered of her childe, ſaid vnto him expreſly (for auoiding ſuſpition of incontinencie) <sup>b</sup> feare not to take Mary for thy wife; but after the birth of Chriſt (as the <sup>c</sup> Doctors obſerue) to ſhew that he was borne of a Virgin, Maries ſtile is the mother of Ieſus, not the wife of Ioseph. Againe, it is not, take the mother and her childe, but the childe and his mother: <sup>d</sup> inſinuating that his greateſt care ſhould be to prouide for the babe, both in reſpect of danger (for Herod fought to deſtroy him) and in reſpect of dutie, becauſe the childe is greater than his mother, as being her <sup>e</sup> Sauour ſo well as her ſonne.

And ſce into Egypt] Chriſts hard entertainment at his firſt coming into the world, ſhewes that his kingdome was not of <sup>f</sup> this world: he had (as <sup>g</sup> Bernard ſweetly) while he liued paſſiuam actionem, and when he died actionem paſſionem. It is obſerued by S. Luke, Acts 1. 1. that Chriſt at way firſt did and then taught, he that would haue vs to <sup>h</sup> flee from Citie to Citie, fleeth himſelfe from Countrie to Countrie: before he grants the patent, he gives the <sup>i</sup> paterne, fleeing, and that in the night <sup>k</sup> warily; or he did flee now for that his houre was not yet come; he had not as yet done <sup>l</sup> the worke, and the will of his Father, for which he came into the world, <sup>m</sup> Chriſtus enim totam cauſam noſtre ſalutis occiderat, ſi ſe paruulum permiſiſſet occidi, But whether doth he flee? into Egypt: as being out of Herods <sup>n</sup> iuriſdiction; or into Egypt, to <sup>o</sup> ſignifie that Gods kingdome ſhould be tranſiated from the Iewes vnto the Gentiles: and ſo Ioseph in carrying Ieſus and his mother into Egypt, <sup>p</sup> represents liuely the bleſſed Apoſtles and Preachers, in conueying the Goſpell vnto nations in time paſt, <sup>q</sup> aliens from the Common wealth of Iſrael, and ſtrangers from the covenants of promiſe, without Chriſt, et ſo without God in the world. O the deepneſſe of the riches of Gods mercy! Babylon and Egypt whilome were <sup>r</sup> malorum officina, the very ſhops of all villanie: but now behold the Wiſemen come from the one, and Chriſt here fleeth into the other. Vt populus qui ante fuerat perſecutor populi primogeniti fieret cuſtos filij vnigeniti: but what need we ſuch a quare, ſeeing heauens meſſenger in the text hath vttered a quare, namely, that it might be fulfilled which was ſpoken of the Lord by the Prophet, ſaying, out of Egypt haue I called my Sonne. How that word, Numb. 23. 22. or Hoſea 11. 1. originally ſpoken of Iſrael his <sup>t</sup> adopted ſonne; is well applied vpon this occaſion vnto Chriſt his naturall ſonne; See Rupert, Ribera, Caluin in Hoſea 11. 1. Ianſen. Concord. cap. 11. Beauxamis harmon. Tom. 1. fol. 73. Caietan, Arboreus, Maldonat. in loc.

<sup>v</sup> Miſtically: God calleth his children out of the worlds Egypt, deliuering vs from the power of <sup>x</sup> darkneſſe, and calling vs into maruellous light, 1. Pet. 2. 9. <sup>y</sup> or out of Egypt, for that his children grow beſt in grace when they be taught in the ſchoole of affliction: or (as Rupert obſerues) it may be that Hieruſalem is called here, as it is <sup>z</sup> elſewhere Egypt ſpiritually, for that her prince and people were ſo cruell as Egypt, in ſeeking to deſtroy the childe Ieſus.

Then Herod when he ſaw that he was mocked of the Wiſemen] It is vſuall with God to <sup>a</sup> take the wily in their owne craftineſſe; and therefore ſeeing Herod mocked the Wiſemen, it pleaſed the Lord too direct the Wiſemen in ſuch a courſe, that they likewiſe mocked Herod. The craftie Fox deluded the Wiſemen in telling them he would (if after their diligent ſearch hee ſhould vnderſtand where he was) <sup>b</sup> adore the babe, for his intent was <sup>c</sup> ſauire non ſeruire, to vooie, not to worſhip, that innocent lambe. And the Wiſemen deluded Herod in returning to their Countrie not by Hieruſalem as they went, but another way. Then Herod ſeeing he was mocked of the Wiſemen, was exceedingly wroth, and ſent forth men of warre, &c. <sup>d</sup> for when once tyrants cannot preuaile with craft, they y Marth. 18. 3.

z Luke 2. 7.

z Hieron. in lee
See Goſpell,
Dom 1 poſt.

Epiphani.

b Marth 1. 20.

c Hilarius, Theophylact, Ianſen.

d Chryſoſt.

e Luke 1. 47.

f Iohn 18. 36.

g Ser. in ſer.

4. hebda.

h Marth. 10. 23

i Ardens.

Anſelm.

k Muſculus.

l Iohn 17. 4.

m Beauxamis.

n Arctius, Muſculus, Maldonat.

o Ianſen.

p Anſelm.

q Ephes. 2. 22.

r Theophylact
in loc.

s Chryſoſt.

t Exod. 4. 22.

u Rupert.

x Coloff. 1. 13.

y Maldonat.

z Apoc. 11. 8.

a Iob 5. 13.

b Marth 2. 8.

c Raulin, ſer. 3
de B. innocenti.

d Cu'man.

come to cruelty; when Politicians rhetoricke failes, Carters logicke must doe the feat.

Great bodies are discerned easily with a little light, but small things are not found in the darke without a great light: God the Father in the creation of the world is so glorious and so great, that the little light of nature sheweth his handie worke, Psalm. 19. 1. but God the Sonne in our redemption is so little, that wee need a great starre to direct vs vnto the babe Iesus lying in a manger, a large measure of faith and grace to finde the great God made a little childe. No maruell then if Herod could not finde, seeing he did seeke not in faith, as hoping to be saued by Christ: but in furie, meaning to destroy Christ. And the reason hereof is rendered in this present Chapter at the 3. verse, When Herod heard of Christs birth at Bethlehem, he was troubled, and all Hserusalem with him, as fearing that this babe being lineally descended from the seed of King David, should in time, challenging the Scepter of Iudea, thrust him out of his kngdome.

*Successor instat, pellimur.
Satelles i, ferrum rape,
Perfunde Cunas sanguine.
Mas omni infans occidat.
Scrutare nutricum sinus,
Interq, materna vbera Ensem cruentet pugio.*

O foolish Herod, wilt thou not suffer the King of heauen and earth, and the whole world, to raigne in Iurie? wilt thou be so barbarous, as fearing thy successour, to kill thy Saviour? Well maiest thou seeke, but thou shalt not see the destruction of his Kingdome, for his scepter is a right scepter, and his throne is for euer and euer. Well maiest thou destroy the bodies of poore children, but their liues are hid with the babe Iesus in God: and so thy mischief shall turne to mercie, quos rex impius eximit mundo, Christus inserit caelo: for they died for him who was to die for them, and so death had no conquest ouer them: Moriuntur propter Christum, qui sua morte facit ut ipsi nulla morte teneri possint.

Herod represents the deuill, who stands before the woman in the wildernesse great with childe, readie to deuoure her babe. Hee knew that the seed which should breake his head, was to be borne of the Iewes; and therefore caused Pharao to murder all the Hebrew males, Exod. 1. and stirred vp Haman to destroy the whole Nation of the Iewes, Ester 3. and Athalia to kill all the sonnes of Dauid, 2 Kings 11. and here so soone as the noise was of Christs birth, hee did cut the throats of all the children in Bethlehem, and in all the coasts thereof from two yeeres old and vnder. Mystically, Satan as soone as he seeth in a man any good motion, he stands (as Herod here) readie to kill it, although it be neuer so little a babe.

In Rama was there a voice heard] That is, in excelsio, for the voice of bloud is loud, and crieth euen from earth vnto heauen: euery murder is sacriledge, for that our bodies are the temples of the Holy Ghost, 1 Cor. 6. 19. Herod then at once committed many foule sacriledges, in slaying so many both in towne and countrey, who were so great innocents, in being so little children, that as Prudentius excellently,

*Locum minutis artibus Vix inseremptor inuenit
Quo plaga descendat patens, Inguloque maior pugio est.*

This barbarous outrage caused lamentation, weeping, and mourning: that is, lamentation of the mothers, weeping of the children, and such a mourning on all sides, as that the crie penetrating the clouds, and knocking at heauens gate, did enter into the eares of the Lord of Hosts.

Horrendis grauiser Caelum pulsasse querelis.

¶ Deus enim non reuertere sed reuertere que-rendus Euseb. ant hom. 1. de epiphania.

¶ *Prudentius
hym. in Epiphania.*

¶ Musculus.

¶ H. b. 1. 3.

¶ Celoss 3. 3.

¶ Leo ser. 1. in Epiphania.

¶ *Luther postil
in loc.*

¶ Raulis, Osvi-us, Giron. in loc.

¶ Leo ser. 2. de epiphania.

¶ Apocal. 12. 4.

¶ Gen. 3. 15.

¶ Hieron. Musculus, Ianfen.

¶ Gen 4. 10.

¶ Hym. in Epiphania.

¶ Chrysof.

¶ James 5. 4.

¶ Lumenca.

The Epistle. Ro m. 4 8.

Blessed is the man to whom the Lord will not impute sinne, &c.

Our Apostle y confirms in this Chapter that doctrine which he deliuered in the former, namely, that a man is not iustified by the workes of the Law, but freely by grace through faith: and this hee proues in our Text by two reasons especially:

1. From <sup>z</sup> Dauids testimonie, Blessed is the man, &c.
2. From Abrahams example, We say that faith was imputed vnto Abraham for righteousnesse, &c.

Now Paul mentioneth Abraham and Dauid in this controuersie, <sup>a</sup> because their workes were most glorious among the Iewes, in so much as they called Abraham <sup>b</sup> father, and Dauid is stiled a man <sup>c</sup> according to Gods owne heart. The patterne then of Abraham accounted righteous before God by faith, and the precept of Dauid, affirming that our blessednesse consists in the remission of our sinnes, and not in the perfection of our vertues; are both exceeding fit, and well accommodated vnto the present purpose.

Blessed is the man] By blessed in the Psalme, Paul vnderstands here iustified: <sup>d</sup> for iustification is blessednesse begun, glorification blessednesse perfited. In this life blessednesse is but begun; and therefore Dauid saith in the cited Psalme, For this shall every one that is godly make his prayer vnto thee in a time when thou maiest be found: and Christ inioyneth vs daily to pray, forgiue vs our trespasses: In the world to come blessednesse is consummated, for when we shall haue no more sinne, then we shall haue no more sorrow.

Whose vnrightheousnesse is forgiven] Some <sup>e</sup> distinguish thus; iniquities are forgiven in Baptisme, covered in repentance, not imputed in martyrdom. <sup>f</sup> Other thus, <sup>g</sup> delicta, are transgressions against the word written, according to that, 1 Ioh. 3.4. and so the Iewes hauing Gods law did offend: <sup>h</sup> delicta, are trespasses against the rules of nature, not ingrauen in stone, nor written with inke, but imprinted in the conscience: and so the <sup>i</sup> Gentiles hauing not the Law were sinners. <sup>j</sup> Other thus, originall iniquities are forgiven in Baptisme quoad culpam, and actuall transgressions are covered in loue, quoad pœnam: or iniquitates, are faults of infidelitie, called in holy Scripture sinne catexochen, Iohn 16. 8. He will reprove the world of sinne, that is, as Christ expounds himselfe, of vnbeleefe: peccata, are faults in manners. <sup>k</sup> As other, our sinnes are forgiven, in respect of the wrong done to God, and covered in respect of the shame due to vs; <sup>l</sup> ut sic uelentur, ne in iudicio reuelentur. For in sinne three things are to be considered especially:

1. An iniurie done to God, and that is forgiuen.
2. An inordinate act, the which once being done cannot be vndone, but is a blot or staine whereby the soule is defiled, and that is said here to be covered, and else-where to be <sup>m</sup> washed away.
3. The guilt of eternall death, and that is not imputed.

Whofoeuer then is in Christ hath all his sinne and euery thing in all his sinne forgiven, covered, not imputed: for these three signifie the <sup>n</sup> same, because that which is covered, is not seene; and that which is not seene, is not imputed: and that which is not imputed, is forgiven. All his sinne is put out of Gods <sup>o</sup> remembrance, cast as it were behinde his <sup>p</sup> backe, so covered with *Christ*s grace, so buried in *Christ*s graue, that not so much as the print of one little fault appeares: in the words of <sup>q</sup> Augustine, Si tetit peccata Deus, noluit aduertere: si noluit aduertere, noluit animaduertere: si noluit animaduertere, noluit punire, noluit agnoscere, maluit ignoscere, so that the saying of the Prophet (Blessed is the man whose vnrightheousnesse is forgiven, and whose sinne is covered) containeth a <sup>r</sup> definition of iustification. It is Gods free pardon in remitting our iniquities; <sup>s</sup> for the Publican

<sup>y</sup> Melanct.
Tilman.
Piscator in loc.

<sup>z</sup> Psal 32. 1.

<sup>a</sup> Pareus, Pellican, Gryneus apud Doctor Willet in loc.

<sup>b</sup> Iohn 8. 53.

<sup>c</sup> Acts 13. 22.

<sup>d</sup> Martyr. in loc.

<sup>e</sup> Apud Primof.
& Occumen. in
loc. Idem Hieron & Genebrardus
recitant in Psal.
31.

<sup>f</sup> Anselm. in loc.

<sup>g</sup> Rom. 2. 14.

<sup>h</sup> Gorrao. in loc.

<sup>i</sup> Caietan in loc.

<sup>k</sup> Hieron in
Psal. 31.

<sup>l</sup> Aquin. in loc.

<sup>m</sup> 1 Ioh. 1. 17.

<sup>n</sup> Ambros. &
Lombard. in loc.

<sup>o</sup> Ier 31. 34.

<sup>p</sup> Esay 38. 17.

<sup>q</sup> In Psal 31.

Melanct.

<sup>r</sup> Marlorat. &
<sup>s</sup> Piscator in loc.

is said expressly to be justified, in that God was mercifull to him a sinner, Luke 18. 13, 14.

<sup>c</sup> This makes against Osianders deified righteoufnesse, as also the Popish inherent iustice; for God is our <sup>u</sup>righteoufnesse, and Christ our holinesse, 1 Cor. 1. 30. Being justified <sup>x</sup> freely by grace, through <sup>y</sup> faith in him who iustifieth the vngodly. <sup>z</sup> Imputat Deus homini iustitiam ut compatiens, ut dispensans, ut benivolens: Dimissio etenim ad compassionem, oblectio ad dispensationem, non imputare ad benivolentiam pertinet. See Epistle 25. Sunday after Trinitie.

Whereas it is objected, that the blessed man is justified by workes in part, because in his spirit there is no guile, as the text runnes in David, how soeuer omitted here by Paul: <sup>a</sup> Augustine answereth aptly, that the blessed man hath in his heart no guile, for that he doth not dissemble his sinne, but humbly confesse his faults. I said I will acknowledge my sinnes vnto the Lord, and so thou forgauest the wickednesse of my sinnes. Every Christian may say with our <sup>b</sup> Apostle, When I am weake, then am I strong. And God also saith vnto such as feele their infirmities, as he did vnto Paul, My grace is sufficient for thee, for my power is made perfect through weaknesse, 2 Cor. 12. 9. And therefore the true Penitent brags not of his vertues as the Pharisee, but of his infirmities as Paul, acknowledging ingenuously that his happinesse consists in the remission of his sinnes. <sup>c</sup> Hec omnisibus sola perfectio, si se nouerint imperfectos. And whereas some further object, how David saith else-where, <sup>d</sup> Blessed is the man that hath not walked in the counsell of the vngodly, &c. And blessed is he that considereth the poore, &c. And blessed are they that are vndeiled, &c. <sup>e</sup> Our Diuines answer, that those places and the like, presuppose faith alwaies, according to that Apostolicall axiome, <sup>h</sup> Whatsoeuer is not of faith is sinne. Faith is the <sup>i</sup> nest of good workes, albeit our birds be neuer so faire, yet they will be lost, except they be brought forth in true beleefe. The Sparrow hath found her an house, and the Swallow a nest where she may lay her young, euen thine Altar, O Lord, &c. Psalm. 84. 3. Such as are faithfull, hauing their vnrightheousnesse forgiven, and their sinne covered, are blessed men, and all their workes as being laid vpon Christs Altar, are most acceptable to God. But faith <sup>k</sup> Augustine, Heretikes and Infidels in doing glorious acts and honourable deeds, haue not where to lay their young; and therefore they must of necessitie come to nought, as the fathers of our common Law speake, Moritur actio cum persona, their actions are damnable with their persons. See Gospell on All Saints day.

Came this blessednesse then vpon the circumcision? It is fit in vrging Abrahams example, to reconcile S. James, affirming in his Epistle, chap. 2. ver. 21. that Abraham was iustified through workes: and S. Paul auowing here, that faith was reckoned to Abraham for righteousnesse. <sup>l</sup> Our Diuines answer, that S. Paul speakes of the causes of his iustifying before God: but S. James of the signes of his iustifying before men. S. Paul of Abrahams iustification, ex priori: S. James of Abrahams iustification, ex posteriori. S. Paul of the iustifying of Abrahams <sup>m</sup> person: S. James of the iustifying of a particular act in offering Isaac his sonne.

Now Paul prones Abraham to be iustified by faith, <sup>n</sup> ex ordine causarum, in the 9, 10, 11, 12. verses. And then ex causa promissionis, in the 13, 14. The cause precedes, or at the least is alway conioyned with his effect, but Abraham was iustified when he was yet vncircumcised, Ergo, Circumcision was not the meritorious cause of his iustification. Abrahams (as Melancthon obserues out of the Scriptures euidence) was called out of Haran, and iustified when he was seuentie five yeeres old, Genes. 12. 4. but circumcised in the ninetie ninth yeere of his age, Genes. 17. 24. Abraham then was iustified 24. yeere before Circumcision was instituted, and (as our Apostle <sup>p</sup> sheweth else-where) foure hundred and thirtie yeeres afore the Law was giuen: Ergo, father Abraham had the pardon of his sinne not by Circumcision, or any other worke of the Law: but onely by faith, apprehending and applying Gods holy promise concerning the blessed seed. See Epistle 13. Sunday after Trinitie.

Wherefore

<sup>a</sup> Tilman &
Melanct. in loc.
<sup>b</sup> Psal. 4. 1.
<sup>c</sup> Rom 3. 24.
<sup>d</sup> Rom 4. 5.
<sup>e</sup> Occumen in loc.

<sup>a</sup> Fr. bi supra.
Idem Martyr.
in loc.

<sup>b</sup> 2 Cor. 12. 10

<sup>c</sup> Hieron epist.
ad Ctesiphon.
<sup>d</sup> Psal. 1. 1.
<sup>e</sup> Psal. 41. 1.
<sup>f</sup> Psal. 119. 1.
<sup>g</sup> Melanct.
Caluin.
Martyr.

<sup>h</sup> Rom. 14. 23.
<sup>i</sup> Hom. of good work, part. 1.

<sup>k</sup> In Psal. 83 &
Lomb u. d. 2. sen. distinct. 41.

<sup>l</sup> Caluin.
Bez.
Martyr in 2. Jacob.
<sup>m</sup> Arcetius in
2. Jacob.
<sup>n</sup> Grynens apud Dr. Willet in
loc.
<sup>o</sup> Melanct.
Martyr.
Arcet.

<sup>p</sup> Galath. 3. 17

Wherefore then serued Circumcision? It was vnto him a signe and a seale of the righteousnesse of faith, verse 11.

Memoratiuum, a signe of commemoration of the Couenant betweene God and Abraham, and of the promise which he receiued: to wit, 1. Of the multiplying of his seed. 2. Of inheriting the land of Canaan. 3. Of the Messias which should be borne of his seed. And for this cause the signe was placed in the generatiue part.

9 Signum Representatiuum, a signe representing Abrahams excellent faith, as it is afterward called a seale of the righteousnesse of faith.

Distinctionium, a signe whereby the Iewes were distinguished from all other other people.

Demonstratiuum, a signe shewing the naturall disease of man, euen originall sinne, and the cure thereof by Christ.

Præfiguratiuum, a signe prefiguring Baptisme, and the spirituall circumcision of the heart.

For that it is an ē witness of faith receiued.

As being an ē expresse signe of the thing signified, Abraham beleeued his seed should be multiplied, & ideo congruenter accepit signum in membro generationis.

A Seale: As sealing vp secretly this mysterie, that the Sauour of the world should be borne of the seed of Abraham.

Because it was a × confirmation of Gods promise to father Abraham, as the Letters Patent of Kings are sealed for better assurance. Vt obsignaret iustitiam fidei, to seale the righteousnesse of faith in his heart.

And where we may learne the true doctrine of the Sacraments against Anabaptists, ascribing too little to them, and Papists attributing too much. Anabaptists affirme that Sacraments are bare badges of Christianitie, distinguishing a Christian from an Infidell, as a gowne did a Romane from a Gracian. But we teach out of our Apostle, that the Sacraments are not onely signa, but also signacula, certaine sure witnesses and seales of grace, whereby God inuisibly worketh in vs, and doth not only quicken, but also strengthen our faith in him. And against our aduersaries of Rome we conclude from hence, that the Sacraments iustifie not, ex opere operato; ; for if they be the seales of the righteousnesse of faith, how can they faue by the bare worke done without faith? a Ista non tribuunt quod per ista tribuitur, in the words of reuerend b Hooker, they be not physicall instruments of our saluation, as hauing in themselues any vitall efficacie: but onely morall instruments of Gods grace, the vse whereof is in our hands, the effect in his: according to that of c Augustine, Multi nobiscum manducant & bibunt temporaliter sacramenta, qui habebunt in fine aterna tormenta. Touching Circumcision see further in the Gospell ensuing, and concerning the second argument vsed here, taken from Gods promise made to father Abraham, Epist. 13. Sunday after Trinitie.

9 Pererius Idem fere Lombard, in loc. & Heming. ser. de Circum. Dom. Thomas part. 3. quest. 70. art. 3

Chrysost. Theophylact. Aquin.

Gorran, Lombard, Aquin. Calvin, Beza Piscator.

Melanct. in loc.

Anglican. Confess. art. 25. Signa non mere significatiua, sed exhibitiva. Musculus in Matth. 26.

Hugo cited by Hooker, Eccles. pol. lib. 5. §. 60. Vbi supra §. 57. Tract 27. in Ioan.

The Gospell. LUKE 2. 15.

And it fortun'd, as soone as the Angels were gone away from the shepherds into heauen, &c.

Albeit this text commend vnto your consideration a great many of remarkable vertues of the glorious Angels in preaching Christ, of the good shepherds in seeking Christ, of blessed Marie the Virgin in keeping Christ, as his mother in her louing armes, as his handmaid in her lowly heart; yet the more proper proper and proportionable parts, accommodated vnto the present Feast, are principally two :

1. The Circumcision of Christ.

2. The imposition of his name Iesus.

Of these first I purpose to speake iointly, then seuerally. These two were ioyned together, <sup>d</sup> to shew that Christ our Mediator betweene God and man, was both a man in being circumcised, and God in being Iesus, <sup>e</sup> that is, a Sauour of his people from their sinnes : <sup>f</sup> or Christ haply was called Iesus, and circumcised at the same time, to signifie that there is no remission of sinne without shedding of blood, Heb. 9.22. He could not therefore become Iesus, vntill he had giuen vs a taste of his blood ; for we haue redemption through his blood, euen the for-giuenesse of sinnes according to his rich grace, Ephel. 1.7. or the dolorous Cir- cumcision and sauing Iesus are coupled together, insinuating that there should bee persecution and bloudshed in the world for the preaching of this name. So Christ in the <sup>g</sup> Gospell assured his Apostles expressly, Yee shall be hated of all men for my name. And <sup>h</sup> Paul saith of himselfe while hee was an oppressor of the Church, I verily thought in my selfe that I ought to do many contrary things against the name of Iesus : or these two were conioyned, to put vs in minde how God doth exalt the humble and meeke. Christ humbled <sup>i</sup> himselfe (quoth Paul) and became obedient, Wherefore God hath also highly exalted him, and giuen him a name aboue euery name, that at the name of Iesus euery knee should bow, both of things in heauen, and things in earth, and things under earth. Or it may be that these were both at once, to witnesse that Christ is the true <sup>k</sup> Physitian of the world.
For when all mankinde was exceeding sicke in head, and heauy in heart, when from the sole of the foot vnto the head, there was nothing whole, but wounds, and swellings, and fores full of corruption, as it is in the <sup>l</sup> Prophet ; then our blessed Sauour came to <sup>m</sup> visit his people, <sup>n</sup> binding vp their wounds on this day, Pellicula carnis, and powring in oyle and wine, washing them euen with the wine of his blood, and mollifying them also with the sweet oyle of his sauing name Iesus. For <sup>o</sup> some deriue Ἰησους, of the Greeke Ἰησοῦς Ἰατροῦ : or (as almost all Interpreters obserue) these two went together, <sup>p</sup> for that it was vsuall among Gods people the Iewes to giue names vnto children in their Circumcision, -as it is among vs in Baptisme. So we reade in the first lesson appointed to be read this morning prayer, that God altered Abrams name when he did institute Circumcision: Thy name shall not any more be called Abram, but Abraham: for a father of many nations haue I made thee. Now the reason hereof is plaine, <sup>q</sup> that as often as we heare our selues named, we might instantly call to minde the Couenant be-twene God and vs in holy Baptisme : to wit, how God on his part promised to be our God, and we vowed on our part by Godfathers and Godmothers that we would forsake the deuill and all his workes, the vaine pompe of the world, the carnall desires of the flesh, and continue Christs faithfull souldiers and seruants vntill our liues end. Hitherto concerning Circumcision, and the name Iesus iointly : let vs now treat of these parts apart.

And first of Circumcision,  $\left. \begin{array}{l} \text{Carnall, vnder the Law.} \\ \text{Spirituall, vnder grace.} \\ \text{Celestiall, in the kingdome of glory.} \end{array} \right\}$ which is <sup>r</sup> threefold,

The first is, Sacramentum sacra rei: the second, sacra res & sacramentum:
the third, res sacramenti. The first in it due time was good : the second, at all times is better : the third, in eternitie best of all. The first is <sup>s</sup> nascentium, euery man childe of eight dayes old among you shall be circumcised, Gen. 17.12. The second is renascentium, a circumcison of the heart in the spirit, Rom. 2.29. When as the regenerate by the sword of the Spirit (which is sharper than the <sup>t</sup> sharpe knives vsed in circumcison, yea sharper than any <sup>u</sup> two-edged sword, as being a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart) doe not onely circumcise the foreskin, but <sup>x</sup> all the powers of the soule, and all the parts of the bodie.
Circumcising their eyes lest they looke vpon a <sup>y</sup> damsell, or behold vanitie.

Circumcising

<sup>d</sup> Ihesus. Gi. ron Cor. 1. in Circum. Dom.
<sup>e</sup> Matth. 1. 21.
<sup>f</sup> Didac. de Ynguas. Cor. 1.
de Circum. Christ

<sup>g</sup> Matth 10. 22
<sup>h</sup> Acts 26. 9.

<sup>i</sup> Philip. 2. 8, 9

<sup>k</sup> Luke 5. 31.

<sup>l</sup> Esay 1. 5, 6.

<sup>m</sup> Luke 1. 68.

<sup>n</sup> Luke 10. 34.

<sup>o</sup> Vide Casaubon. not. in Epist.
§. Nissen. ad
Eustat.
<sup>p</sup> Euthym.
Calvin.

<sup>q</sup> Aret. in loc.

<sup>r</sup> Heming post.
in loc.

<sup>s</sup> Ardens hom.
de Circum. Dom.

<sup>t</sup> Raulin ser. 1.
in Circum. Dom.

<sup>u</sup> Ioshua 5. 20.

<sup>v</sup> Heb 4. 12.

<sup>x</sup> Pet. de palud.
ser de Circum.
Dom.

<sup>y</sup> Iob 31. 1.

Circumcising their eares and their lips, hedging their possessions with thornes, and making doores and barres for their month, Ecclesiast. 28. 24. Hedging their eares against heresie, backbiting, flatterie: barring their mouth against <sup>a</sup> lying, <sup>a</sup> blasphemie, <sup>b</sup> foolish talking. Circumcising their hands, that they steale no more, but worke the thing that is good, Ephes. 4. 28. Circumcising their feet, that they be not <sup>c</sup> swift to shed blood. Circumcising their very thoughts, Esay 1. 16. Wash you, make you cleane, put away your euill intents out of my sight, as our old English translation according to the vulgar Latine. In a word, cutting off all <sup>d</sup> superfluous lusts of the flesh, and all superfluous cares of the world, casting off all the old man which is corrupt, and putting on the new man which after God is created in righteousnesse and true holinesse, Ephes. 4. 22. The third kinde of Circumcision is resurgentium, in the world to come, when all superfluitie shall be cut off vtterly, when as we shall appeare before Gods throne without any <sup>e</sup> spot in our soule, or <sup>f</sup> corruption in our bodie.

Now the Circumcision of Christ here mentioned is that of the flesh: <sup>g</sup> for Almighty God before mans fall, and after his fall; before the Law, vnder the Law, and after the Law, certified his will vnto man especially by two things, an vnderstanding minde, and a perceiuing sense. When God had created Adam, he put him in Paradise, giuing him his <sup>h</sup> word as a witness of his will, and vnto the word he did adde a twofolde outward signe, namely, the tree of life, and the tree of knowledge of good and euill. After Adams fall, he gaue him a promise touching the blessed seed, Genes. 3. 15. and added thereunto sacrifices as outward signes of his word. When the flood was ouer-past, he made a promise neuer to destroy the world againe with water, and he made the <sup>i</sup> Rainbow a signe of the same. He promised deliuerance from the bondage of Egypt, which he performed also: but he sealed the promise with the Paschall Lambe, Exod. 12. To father Abraham he gaue his promise, that his seed should be multiplied, and in perpetuall remembrance thereof he did institute Circumcision, Gen. 17. At the length in the fulnesse of time he giueth his owne Sonne, and by him he promiseth <sup>k</sup> euerlasting life to such as beleue, the which he confirms with two Sacraments, as seales of his grace, Baptisme, and the Lords Supper. Thus the father of mercies in all ages euermore provided for our weaknesse, that we might (as it is in the <sup>m</sup> Psalme) Taste and see how gracious the Lord is: and therefore such as are so spirituall, as that they cannot endure significant ceremonies and outward rites in the Church, haue runne a violent course quite contrary to the goodnesse of God and meeknesse of his holy Spirit, who doth instruct the conceiuing minde by the perceiuing sense. For the Sacraments (as <sup>n</sup> Augustine speaks) are visible words, and Circumcision (in the iudgement of <sup>o</sup> Chrysostome) was a preacher of the righteousnesse of faith. I confesse, that the Iewish ceremonies are now no more necessarie, <sup>p</sup> than a token left in remembrance of a bargaine is necessarie when the bargaine is fulfilled: but Christian rites ordained by lawfull authoritie for outward comlineesse in the Church ought to be retained, as hauing <sup>q</sup> more in weight than in sight.

In the Circumcision of Christ obserue these three points:

1. The time when, the eighth day.
2. The part where, implied here, for that Christ was circumcised as another childe: but expressed in the first Lesson allotted for this morning Prayer, Genes. 17. 11. to be the foreskin of the flesh.
3. The cause why, should be, that is, (as in the words following) after the Law.

When the eighth day was come] Children were circumcised on the eighth day, <sup>r</sup> for that in this tender age they could more easily beare the grieffe of Circumcision; or circumcised on the eighth day, <sup>s</sup> because that is the day wherein our blessed Sauiour arose from the dead. Seuen dayes signifie the time of this present world, and the eighth day the resurrection, when all corruption of the flesh shall be cut off; according to that of Paul, 1 Cor. 15. 33. This corruptible must put

<sup>a</sup> Ephes. 4. 25.
<sup>b</sup> Exod. 20. 7.
<sup>c</sup> Ephes. 5. 4.

<sup>d</sup> Psal. 14. 6.

<sup>e</sup> Ardens.

<sup>f</sup> Apoc. 14. 5.
<sup>g</sup> 1 Cor. 15. 53.
<sup>h</sup> Heming. post. in loc.

<sup>i</sup> Genes. 2.

<sup>j</sup> Genes. 9. 13.

<sup>k</sup> Ioh. 3. 16.

<sup>l</sup> Aug. Heming & Turcorum exponunt illud de sacramento corporis Christi.

<sup>m</sup> Psal. 34. 8.

<sup>n</sup> Apud Martyrem in Rom. 4.

<sup>o</sup> In Rom. 4. Tindal. prolog in Leuit.

<sup>p</sup> Hosher Eccles. post. lib. 5 §. 65.

<sup>q</sup> Chrysost. & Martyr. in Rom. 4. Huiusmodi quid obseruax ex Hebrais.

<sup>r</sup> Lombard. in Rom. 4. August. epist. 89. Arbanasius apud Aret. in Luk. 2.

<sup>a</sup> Lombard.
sent. lib. 4. dist. 2.
Idem August.
in Ioh. 30.
<sup>b</sup> 1 Cor. 10. 4.
<sup>c</sup> Ephes. 2. 20.
<sup>d</sup> Thomas part.
3. quest. 70.
art. 3.
<sup>e</sup> August. in Ioh.
30. in Ioh.
<sup>f</sup> Mar. y in
Rom. 4.

<sup>b</sup> See the sermons of Melancthon, Culman, Kilius, Zepper, Mallerius, upon the Circumcision of Christ.
<sup>c</sup> Epiphanius. heres. 30.

<sup>d</sup> Culman con. 1. de circum. Dom.

<sup>e</sup> Galath. 4. 4.

<sup>f</sup> Kilius con. de Circum Christ.
<sup>g</sup> Galath. 5. 2.

on incorruption, and this mortall immortality. For this end the circumcision knife was made of stone, Exod. 4. 25. Iosua 5. 2. to signifie that the celestiaall Circumcision is by Christ the <sup>u</sup> rocke and <sup>x</sup> head corner stone.

Circumcision was placed in the generatiue part for <sup>y</sup> three reasons especially. First, for that it was a seale of Gods promise, that Christ should be borne of Abrahams seed. Secondly, <sup>z</sup> because the propagation of originall sinne is traduced per actum generationis: Thirdly, Quoniam ordinabatur ad diminutionem carnalis concupiscentie, que propter abundantiam delectationis uenerorum in illis membris precipue viget. Or as <sup>a</sup> other, for that it was a signe of Gods promise both to the parent and his posterity. Gen. 17. 7. I will establish my couenant betweene me and thee, and thy seed after thee in their generations for an euerlasting couenant to be God vnto thee, and to thy seed for euer.

The reasons why Christ (albeit conceived and borne without any sinne) would be circumcised, are <sup>b</sup> manifold:

1. To shew that he was of the seed of Abraham, Heb. 2. 16.
2. To declare himsef a member of the Iewish Church, in which euery man-child was circumcised.
3. To <sup>c</sup> demonstrate that he had true flesh, against Manicheus: and such a flesh as was not of the same substance with his Deity, Coesentiale deitati corpus, against Apollinaris: or fetched from heauen, as Valentinus imagined; he, was I say circumcised, to shew that he was made of the seed of man according to the flesh, Rom. 1. 2.
4. For that he was the truth, of which Circumcision was a type, Ut figuram ipse veritas finiret.

But the principall reason is insinuated in the Text, for that the Law required that euery man-child should be circumcised. He therfore was circumcised to shew his obedience to the Law; <sup>e</sup> When the fulnesse of time was come, God sent forth his sonne made of a woman, made vnder the Law, that he might radeeme them that were vnder the law. As then he was borne for vs, Esay 9. 6. Puer natus est nobis; And Luke 2. 11. Vnto you is borne, that is, vnto you men, as an Angell expounds the Prophet: euen so was he circumcised for vs, <sup>f</sup> hereby giuing a publike testimony that he would fulfill all the whole Law for vs, for euery man that is circumcised is bound to keepe the whole Law.

How the consolatory name Iesus, inuented by God, imposed by the Angell, inuocated by men, is proper to Christ alone; see Gospell on the Sunday next after Christmas. And how his name is aboue all names, Epistle Sunday next before Easter. I will end here with a diuine sonnet of an ancient friend and accurat Poet.

*Iesu thy loue within me is so maine,
And my poore heart so narrow of content,
That with thy loue my heart well nigh is rent:
And yet I loue to beare such louing paine.
O take thy crosse, and nailes, and therewith straine
My hearts desire to his full extent,
That thy deare loue therein may not be pent:
But thoughts may haue free scope thy loue to explaine.
Ah now my heart more paineth then before,
Because it can receiue and hath no more.
O fill this emptinesse, or else I die:
Now stretch my heart againe, and now supply.
Now I want space, now grace to end all smart, Since my heart holds not thee. hold thou my heart.*

Almighty God, which madest thy blessed Sonne to be circumcised and obedient to the law for man: grant vs the true circumcision of the spirit, that our hearts and all our members, being mortified from all worldly and carnall lusts, may in all things obey thy blessed will through the same thy Sonne Iesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

The Epistle. EPHES. 3. 1.

For this cause I Paul am a prisoner of Iesus Christ for you heathen, &c.

The maine drift of all this exceeding<sup>h</sup> profound Epistle written vnto the Saints of the Church of Ephesus, is to<sup>i</sup> confirme them in the<sup>k</sup> word of truth, euen the Gospell of their saluation and faith in the Lord Iesus. And this our Apostle doth in the present Text by two reasons especially;

- |   |   |   |
|---|---|---|
| 1. From his owne ministry, in<sup>l</sup> respect of the                       | } | Bonds or disgrace he suffered of men, I Paul am a prisoner, &amp;c.Boone or grace he receiued of God, If yee haue heard of the ministracion of the grace of God which is giuen me to you-ward.Himselfe, Vnto me the least of all Saints is this grace giuen. |
| 2. From the Gospels mystery, which he shewes to be most excellent in regard of | } | God, Vnsearchable riches of Christ hid in God, &amp;c.Angels, Vnto rulers and powers in heauenly things, &amp;c.Other;Men, To make all men see what the fellowship of the mystery is, and that by Christ we might haue boldnesse, &amp;c.               |

The summe of all which is, seeing I haue receiued so much good, and endured so much euill for your sake: seeing the great mysterie concerning the common saluation (as S. Iude speaks in his Epistle) was not in times past opened vnto the sons of men on earth, or to the blessed Angels in heauen as it is now declared by the spirit: seeing I say, yee may see what is the fellowship of the mysterie which euen from the beginning had bene hid in God: I desire you not to faint in your course, but to continue stedfast in the profession of this holy faith vnto your liues end.

For this cause] <sup>m</sup> Some Diuines haue troubled themselues and other in examining the context here, but it is among words as among men, affinity which is needest ought to be dearest: and therefore seeing the first words of this Chapter agree very well with the last of the former; I take the coherence to be <sup>n</sup> this: I Paul haue preached that you Gentiles in times past aliens from the common wealth of Israel, and strangers from the coucnants of promise: are now citizens with the Saints, built together in Christ the chiefe corner stone, to be the habitation of God by the spirit. And for this cause, namely, for that I haue taught that you Gentiles are fellow-heires with the Iewes, of the same body, & partakers of the same couenant: I was hated of my countymen, accused in their Synagogues, imitted in their counsels, iniured by their officers, and when I did appeale to Caesar, I was sent to Rome, where I am a prisoner, as you may reade at large in the last eight Chapters of the Acts of the Apostles.

A prisoner of Iesus Christ] He was the prisoner of Caesar, but Caesar had his authoritie from<sup>o</sup> aboue, for there is <sup>p</sup> no power but of God. Whosoever then is in prison is vinculus Iesu Christi, though otherwise libertus Iesu Christi, suffering by Gods <sup>q</sup> power and permittance, who can when he will, and will as shall make most for his glory, <sup>r</sup> proclaime liberty to the captiues, and opening of the prison vnto them that are bound. Or he was the prisoner of Christ, as enduring his bonds for Christs faith and seruice, <sup>s</sup> Vinculus non à Christo, sed pro Christo. Namely, for preaching among the Gentiles the vnsearchable riches of Christ, as it is in the 8. ver. So that whereas <sup>t</sup> two things especially commenda Martyr, faith in Christ, and loue to the Church: both are met in the Apostle. He suffered for the true faith, a prisoner of Iesus Christ: and out of vnfaigned loue to Gods people, for you Gentiles, as it is in the thirteenth verse, for your sakes, euen for your <sup>u</sup> good and <sup>x</sup> example, that yee likewise may continue constant in the sincere profession of

<sup>a</sup> Consul proœm. Hieron. in epist. ad Ephes.
<sup>i</sup> Aquin. Arctius, Marlorat. argum. epist. ad Ephes.
<sup>k</sup> Ephes. 1. 13.
<sup>l</sup> Quantum ad tribulationes quas perulit, & dona que Deus sibi conuulit, Aquin. in loc.

<sup>m</sup> Auid Hieron. & Zach. in loc.

<sup>n</sup> Primasius. Lombard. Anselm.

<sup>o</sup> Iohn 19. 11.
<sup>p</sup> Rom. 13. 1.

<sup>q</sup> Anselm. in loc. Hier. 6. 1.

<sup>r</sup> Goran, Bez. Drusus.

<sup>s</sup> Aquin. in loc.

<sup>u</sup> Anselm.
<sup>x</sup> Sarcinius.

Christianitie. Faist not, I pray, for my tribulation, for it is your glory, that ye haue such an instructor as is the prisoner of Iesus Christ, in bonds, not for any faction of yours, or fault of his owne; but for y conscience toward God, euen for the ministracion of the grace which is giuen me to you ward. See Epistle Sunday 16. after Trinitie.

Hitherto concerning the griefe which our Apostle suffered in Christs cause for the Gentiles, I come now to treat of the grace which he receiued, Certaine, By reuelation shewed he the mysterie to me.

Full, euen so perfectly reuealed, that in a few words you may reade and vnderstand, my knowledge in the mystery of Christ.

Excellent, which in other ages was not made knowne vnto the sonnes of men, as it is now declared, &c.

Praefise, whereof I am made a minister according to the gift of the grace of God which is giuen vnto me, &c.

In respect of his

If ye haue heard of the ministracion of the grace] The calling of Paul to be the Doctōr of the Gentiles, as it was knowne vnto himseife by reuelation: so to them by report. If ye haue heard, &c. <sup>a</sup> As if he should haue said, if ye doubt not of my calling, ye may be well assured of my doctrine. But ye cannot doubt of my calling, as hauing often heard how <sup>b</sup> Christ in a vision appeared to me, saying, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? And when I had answered, Lord, what wilt thou haue me to doe? Iesus told Ananias in another vision, He is a chosen vessell vnto me, to beare my name before the Gentiles, and Kings, and the children of Israel. And so God <sup>c</sup> separated me from my mothers wombe, and called me by his grace to reueale his Sonne among the Gentiles: <sup>d</sup> as the Gospell ouer the Circumcision was committed to Peter, so the Gospell ouer the vncircumcision was committed vnto me being an Apostle, (nor of men, or by man, Galat. 1.1. or after man, Galat. 1.11.) but the ministracion of Gods grace was giuen vnto me by the reuelacion of Iesus Christ.

The word ministracion, or dispensacion, may be construed either passiuely, being a grace giuen, and <sup>e</sup> dispensed to Paul: or <sup>f</sup> actively, for that Paul was a dispenser of it vnto other, 1 Cor. 4.1. Let a man so thinke of us, as of the ministers of Christ and disposers of the secrets of God. His office then is called a dispensacion, <sup>g</sup> for that it consisteth in the dispensing of Christs vnsearchable riches. And the Gospell is called here <sup>h</sup> Gods grace, for that it is faithfully deliuered and fruitfully received, not by mans merit, but onely through Gods free grace. <sup>i</sup> Preaching in the teacher, and <sup>k</sup> beleueing in the hearer, are both the faire gifts of God. Or the Gospell is called Gods grace, <sup>l</sup> because the summe thereof is nothing else but the preaching of Gods exceeding rich mercies in Christ, intimating that our iustification is not by the workes of the Law, but <sup>m</sup> freely by grace through faith.

As I wrote afore in few words] I finde that <sup>n</sup> some construe this of that which is written in other Epistles, vnto other men, as to Philemon: and other Churches, as to that of Colossus and Philipps. Marlorat is of opinion, that our Apostle wrote another Epistle (though it be not extant) vnto the Church of Ephesus. <sup>o</sup> Other referre this clause to that which is deliuered in this present Epistle; to wit, vnto that which is said in the <sup>p</sup> two former chapters, <sup>q</sup> or to that in chap. 1. verse 9. <sup>r</sup> or chap. 2. verse 14. He is our peace, which hath made of both one, and hath broken the stop of the partition wall. In this little brieffe is contained all that great mysterie which in times past was not opened vnto the sonnes of men, as it is now declared by the Spirit, that the Gentiles should be fellow heires, and of the same body, and partakers of the same promise in Christ by the Gospell.

Which mysterie in times past was not opened vnto the sons of men] This verse cannot easily be digested (as <sup>s</sup> one said) without a graine of salt; for if we shall vnderstand this of the whole mysterie of Christ manifested in the flesh, it is certaine that

<sup>1</sup> 1 Pet. 2. 19.

<sup>2</sup> Aquin. in loc.

<sup>3</sup> Aretius.

<sup>4</sup> Acts 9.

<sup>5</sup> Gal. 1. 15.

<sup>6</sup> Gal. 2. 7.

<sup>7</sup> Oecumen.

Anselm. Arct.

<sup>8</sup> Zanchius.

<sup>9</sup> Marlorat.

in loc.

<sup>10</sup> Gasper. Megander apud

Marlorat.

<sup>11</sup> 1 Cor. 15. 10.

<sup>12</sup> Ephes. 2. 8.

<sup>13</sup> Marth. 13. 11.

<sup>14</sup> Zanchius.

<sup>15</sup> Rom. 3. 24.

<sup>16</sup> Apud Mar-

lorat. in loc.

<sup>17</sup> Caietan.

<sup>18</sup> Zanchius.

<sup>19</sup> Aretius.

<sup>20</sup> Anselm.

Lombard.

Gortaa.

<sup>21</sup> Caietan.

<sup>22</sup> 1 Tim. 3. 16.

that Abraham with faiths eye <sup>u</sup> saw Christ and was glad, and the Prophets <sup>x</sup> enquired and searched when or what time the spirit which was in them should declare the sufferings that should come to Christ, and the glory that should follow. Nay the very common people did expect the consolation of Israel, as it is apparent by that of the Samaritan woman, I know well that Messias shall come which is called Christ. Or if we construe this of that part of the mystery which onely concernes the vocation of the Gentiles, it is as plaine that Abraham beleueed <sup>z</sup> all the families of the earth should be blessed in his seed. And the Prophet <sup>a</sup> Haggai calls the Messias expressly the desire of all nations. And in the first lesson allotted for evening praiser on this day, Thus saith the Lord, <sup>b</sup> Behold, I will lift up mine hands to the Gentiles, and set up my standard to the people, &c. Kings shall be their nursing fathers, and Queenes their nursing mothers, &c.

<sup>c</sup> Answer then is made that this mystery was opened in times past vnto the sonnes of God, but not (as it is in the Text here) to the sonnes of men. It was knowne vnto the spirituall Iew, but not vnto the carnall. For the Prophets spake not <sup>d</sup> as the sonnes of men but as they were moued by the spirit of God, <sup>1</sup> Pet. 2. 21.

<sup>e</sup> Other thinke this mysterie was opened vnto the Iewes, as hauing the Law and the Prophets testifying of Christ: and that it was hidden only to the Gentiles, as wanting the light of Gods word to direct them in their night of ignorance. Other say that the Prophets in old time knew that the Gentiles should be partakers of Gods promise concerning the blessed seed, <sup>f</sup> but they did not vnderstand how this could be without circumcision, because <sup>g</sup> God said Euery person which is not circumcised should be cut off from his people. Yea the knowledge in this mysterie was hidden vnto the chiefe Apostle till it was in a vision reuealed vnto him, as we read, <sup>Act. 10.</sup>

<sup>h</sup> Other finde a direct answer couched in the words of Paul here, which mystery was not in times past opened vnto the sons of men, as it is now declared vnto his holy Apostles & Prophets by the spirit. It was opened before, but not as now: not so fully manifested vnto the Patriarks & Prophets in the old Testament; as in the light of the Gospel vnto blessed Apostles and Preachers: in which respect John the Baptist is said to be <sup>i</sup> greater then a Prophet. For whercas they shadowed out Christ in figures obscurely, he shewed out Christ with his finger openly, <sup>k</sup> Behold, the Lambe of God which taketh away the sinne of the world. So Christ himselfe to his Disciples, <sup>l</sup> Blessed are the eyes which see that ye see, for I tell you that many Prophets & Kings haue desired to see those things which ye see, & haue not seene them: and to heare those things which ye heare, and haue not heard them. The blessed Apostles are called in the fifth verse Prophets, <sup>m</sup> as prophecying in their Creed of things to come, to wit, of the resurrection of the flesh, and euerlasting life: or Prophets, as being <sup>n</sup> expounders of the Prophets, as the word is vsed else-where, Rom. 12. 6. Eph. 4. 11. 1 Cor. 14. 1. See Epistle, second Sunday after the Epiphanie.

That the Gentiles should be fellow-heires, and of the same body, and partakers of the same promise ] The Gentiles are said to be fellow-heires in respect of future glory, <sup>o</sup> respectu boni futuri, because they shall be <sup>p</sup> heires of saluation, and inheritors of the kingdome of heauen so well as the Iewes, euen heires of God and ioynt heires with Christ Rom. 8. 17 Of the same body, in respect of present grace, respectu boni presentis, as being built together in Christ, and made one Church and habitation of God, Ephes. 2. 14 22. Partakers of the same promise, in respect of mercy past already, Respectu boni prateriti: for as much as Gods couenant made to father Abraham, apparantly concerned all the nations of the world, Gen. 12. 3. 18. 18. 22. 18. Here the Gospell and Epistle meet, and both are well accommodated vnto Christis Epiphanie, for the Wisemen shewed that in deed which our Apostle here saith in word.

Vnto the rulers and powers in heavenly things ] Whether this ought to be construed of damned deuils, or blessed Angels, I referre you to <sup>q</sup> S. Ambrose, <sup>r</sup> Erasmus, <sup>s</sup> Marlorat. Or if spoken of the good Angels only, whether it concernes all at all times, or in times past only such as were not employed in the publishing

<sup>a</sup> Iohn 8. 56.

<sup>x</sup> 1 Pet. 1. 10.

<sup>y</sup> Iohn 4. 25.

<sup>z</sup> Gen 12. 3 & 22. 18.

<sup>a</sup> Cap. 2. vers. 8

<sup>b</sup> Esa 49. 22.

<sup>c</sup> Hieron. exposit. 1. in loc.

<sup>d</sup> Primasius in loc.

<sup>e</sup> Oscumen.

<sup>f</sup> Ambros.

Zanchius.

<sup>g</sup> Gen. 17. 14.

<sup>h</sup> Hieron. Theophrast. Anselm.

<sup>i</sup> Luke 7. 26.

<sup>k</sup> Iohn 1. 29.

<sup>l</sup> Luke 10. 23

<sup>m</sup> Caietan.

<sup>n</sup> Aquin. lect. 2.

in 12. ad Rom.

Idem Ambros.

Gorran: Piseator. in loc.

<sup>o</sup> Gorran in loc.

<sup>p</sup> Heb. 1. 14.

<sup>q</sup> Com. in loc.

<sup>r</sup> Paraphras. in loc

<sup>s</sup> Exposit. in loc.

of Christs Incarnation: I desire you to reade the Commentaries of Hierome, and Haymo vpon this text, Lombard. sent. lib. 2. distinct. 11. Altissiodorensis. Aur. sum. lib. 2. tract. 5. quæst. 3. & 6. Sixtus Senensis bibliothec. lib. 5. annot. 165. 182. 299. And whether this knowledge be reuealed, or experimentall only, Thomas part. 1. quæst. 117. art. 2. Lexicon Theolog. Altenstaig. verb. Angelus. Perkins exposit. Creed art. 1. Tit. Creation of Angels, Aretius, Marlorat, Zanch. in loc. For mine owne part, where I see not my selfe, I loue not to leade other. If these cited Authors affoord your vnderstanding good payment, I shall be so well pleased as when I borrow ready coyne of one friend to lend it vnto another. If not, I say with <sup>c</sup> Hierome, Non parum est scire quid nescias. And with <sup>d</sup> Augustine, Non videtur mihi quisquam errare cum aliquid nescire se scit, sed cum putat scire quod nescit.

<sup>e</sup> Epist. aduers. Vigilant. Tom. 2. fol. 313.
<sup>f</sup> Epist. 80.

The Gospell. MATTH. 2. I.

When Iesus was borne in Bethlehems a Citie of Iurie, in the time of Herod the King, behold, there came Wisemen from the East to Ierusalem, saying, who is he that is borne King of the Iewes, &c.

After the celebration of Christs birth and circumcision, it seemed good vnto the Church to constitute a feast in honour of his Epiphanie, * that his glory might be manifested in the flesh, so well as his infirmitie. Now this feast is called by three sundry y names according to the <sup>z</sup> three principall appearings of our Lord in this kinde on this day. 1. Epiphania, because Christ as this day did appeare to the Wisemen that sought him by the leading of a starre. 2. Theophania, for that as vpon this day 29. yeeres after his birth, his glory appeared in his <sup>a</sup> baptisme by the witnesse of the Father speaking from heaven, This is my beloued Sonne, in whom I am well pleased, and by the descending of the Holy Ghost vpon him in a visible shape like a doue. 3. Bethphania, for that on the same day twelue moneth after his baptisme, his glory appeared at the marriage in Cana by turning water into wine, Iohn 2. 11.

We must according to the present text onely treat of his appearing to the Wisemen, in whom I note these seuen circumstances:

1. At what time they came to seeke Christ, in the time of Herod the King.
2. From what part of the world, from the East.
3. To what Citie, to Ierusalem.
4. By what guide, by the leading of a starre.
5. For what end, to worship him.
6. What gifts they presented vnto him, gold, frankincense, myrrhe.
7. What way they returned home, after they were warned of God in a sleepe, that they should not goe againe to Herod, they returned into their owne countrie another way.

In the time of Herod the King] The Patriarke Iacob prophecied of the Messiah, <sup>b</sup> that the kingdome should not depart from Iuda, nor a law giner from his feet, vntill Shilo come. Now Herod was not a branch of the Kings of Iuda, but an alien from their Common-wealth, a stranger and a tyrant, crept in by the fauour of the Roman Emperour: and therefore the Wisemen enquiring after the birth of Christ in the daies of Herod the King, obserued their right <sup>c</sup> quando; because now the scepter had departed from Iuda. <sup>d</sup> The which as it confutes the Iewes, expecting as yet that Christ should come: so it confirms the faith of Christians, assuring vs vndoubtedly that this same whom the Wisemen sought, is the very Saniour of the world: and as the Wisemen in seeking, euen <sup>e</sup> so Christ in comming kept his right quando. For when Herod was King, and sinne most abounded, Iesus was borne * August. Ser. 30 de temp. Euseb. Emisen. hom. 1. de Epiphania. Heming post in loc.

<sup>y</sup> Ludolph. de vita Christi. part. 1. cap. 11. & Pet. de Paul. Enar. 1. de Epiphania.
<sup>z</sup> Diez con. 1. Giron. con. 3. Ferus con. 6. de Epiphania. Idem Augustin. & Emisen ubi sup. & Baron. Rom. Mart. not. in Ian. 6.
<sup>a</sup> Mat. 3. 16. 17

<sup>b</sup> Gen. 49. 10.

<sup>c</sup> Lea ser. 3. de Epiphania. Theophylact. Euthym. Anselm. in loc. & Euseb. hist. lib. 1. cap. 7.
<sup>d</sup> Heming.
<sup>e</sup> Diez con. 1. de Epiphania.

borne in Bethlehem a Citie of Iurie; when his Israell fate in darknesse and in the shadow of death, then he visited and redeemed his people, Luk. 1. 68 79. according to that of David, Thou shalt arise, and haue mercie vpon Sion, for it is time that thou haue mercie vpon her, yea the time is come, and why? Thy seruants thinke vpon her stones, and it pitieth them to see her in the dust.

Some think these Wisemen came to Ierusalem about two yeeres after Christis birth, and the ground of this assertion is in the 16. verse of this present Chapter, Herod seeing that he was mocked of the Wisemen, was exceeding wroth, and sent, forth, and slew all the male children that were in Bethlehem, & in all the coasts thereof, from two yeeres old and vnder, according to the time which he had diligently searched out of the Magi. But the Wisemen had proued themselves none of the wisest men, if they should at that time haue sought for Christ in Iurie, when he was in Egypt. For so the text plainly, Ioseph according to the direction of an Angell appearing to him in a dreame, tooke the babe Iesus and his mother by night, and departed into Egypt, and was there vnto the death of Herod, and that was in Niniephorus account 3. yeeres, as Iansenius 5. yeeres, as Sabellicus 7. yeeres. I think therefore that the Wisemen came to Ierusalem according to the Churches institution of this feast vpon the twelfth day after the birth of Christ. If any desire to be satisfied how they could performe in so short a time so great a journey, let them at their leisure peruse the Commentaries of Maldonat vpon this Text, and Cardinall Baron, annal. Tom. 1. ad an. fol. 53. 54.

From the East] The first sinne committed by man in the world was eastward: for Adam and Eua did eat of the forbidden fruit in Paradise planted Eastward, Gen. 2. 8. Cain who slew his brother Abel was an inhabitant of the East, Gen. 4. 16. The builders of the tower of Babel also came from the East, Gen. 11. 2. And therefore Christ (who did appeare for this purpose that he might destroy the workes of the deuill, and take away the sinne of the world) called at his first appearing Wisemen from the East: and he was crucified looking toward the West, as hauing put all our sinnes behinde his backe, Esay 38. 17. And for this cause haply concurring with other, whereas the *Moore*s pray toward the South, and sectaries to the West: Orthodox Christians (and that from the very time of the 12 Apostles) vse to pray toward the East. And it was an ancient custome that such as were to be baptized should in their renuntiation of the deuill and all his workes, euer turne their face toward the West; and on the contrary, when they made their confession of the faith of Christ, vnto the East, as Dionysius Arcopag. and Cyrius apud Baron. annal. Tom. 1. ad an. fol. 58. fol. 64.

Our Sauiour said, Mat. 8. 11. that many shall come from East, and West, and shall sit downe with Abraham, Isaac and Iacob in the kingdome of heauen. These Magi came from the East, and Pilate from the West, and both acknowledged Christ to be King of the Iewes. Magi ab oriente, Pilatus ab occidente venerat, vnde illi orienti, hos est nascenti, ille autem occidenti, hoc est morienti, attestabatur regi Iudeorum. That these Magi came from Persia, most accord; but whether they were Kings, or Philosophers, or both, it is vncertaine. It was a receiued opinion among the Popish Friers heretofore, that these Magi were Kings, and that Mathew in terming them Wisemen, gaue them a title more honourable than that of Kings. Auriculas asini Midas habet, A scepter may be put into the hands of a foole. The name then of Magus in that age when Philosophers did raigne, was of greater account than that of Magnus. Other Papists of better note for their learning confesse that they were not reges, but reguli, not puissant Princes of a whole country, but petite lords of some little towne, as Gen. 14. Bera King of Sodom. Birsha King of Gomorrhah, Shinab King of Admah. But that these were crowned Kings, and but three, whose names are Melchior, Gasper, Balthasar: Constat ex pictura, sed non ex scriptura, is a tale painted on a wall, not written in the word. That I say these were but three, whereof one was an old man, another a young man; and the third of middle age; whose dead bodies haue bene translated, first from India to Constantinople: Secondly, from Constantinople to

Millane :

<sup>f</sup> P<sup>s</sup>al. 102. 13.

<sup>8</sup> Euseb. in Chron. & Epiphani. heres. 30. & 51.

<sup>h</sup> Mat. 2. 14-15.

<sup>i</sup> Lib. 1 cap. 14.

<sup>k</sup> Concord. cap. 11.

<sup>l</sup> Apud Musculum in Maith. 2. 15.

<sup>m</sup> Gen. 3. 6.

<sup>n</sup> Damascen. de fide Orthodox. lib. 4.

<sup>o</sup> Baron. annal. ad an. 58 fol. 564.

<sup>p</sup> Giron. con. 1.

<sup>q</sup> Rablin. con. 3.

<sup>r</sup> de Epiphani.

<sup>s</sup> Vnde Augustinus de ser. Dom. in cont. lib. 2.

<sup>t</sup> Tom. 4 fol. 813.

<sup>u</sup> Terul. in apol.

<sup>v</sup> Basil. & Athanasius apud Magdeburg cent. 4.

<sup>w</sup> col. 432.

<sup>x</sup> Magdeburg. cent. 2 col. 117.

<sup>y</sup> Augustin. ser. 3.

<sup>z</sup> in Epiph. Dom.

<sup>aa</sup> Beauxamis har. Tom. 1.

<sup>ab</sup> fol. 59.

<sup>ac</sup> Ludolphus de vita Christi:

<sup>ad</sup> part. 1. cap. 11.

<sup>ae</sup> Maldonat. in loc. & Mansuan.

<sup>af</sup> in factis, & ceteris.

<sup>ag</sup> & ceteris ut opinor erant

<sup>ah</sup> Baron. annal.

<sup>ai</sup> Tom. 1. ad an. 1.

<sup>aj</sup> fol. 53.

<sup>ak</sup> Beda in coll. c.

<sup>al</sup> Giron. con. 1.

<sup>am</sup> in Epiphani.

<sup>an</sup> Raulin. str. 1.

<sup>ao</sup> in Epi. bar.

<sup>ap</sup> Beda & Giron. ubi sup.

<sup>aq</sup> Pet. de Palud.

<sup>ar</sup> can. 1. Epiphani.

<sup>as</sup> Dom.

Millane: Thirdly, from Millane to Colon, and thereupon commonly called the three Kings of Colon; is thought by Protestant Diuines a ridiculous fable, better fitting the signe of a Tauerne than the wall or window of a Temple.

That they were Wifemen is said in this text and proued also; for in seeking the Lord, when and where he was to be found; they<sup>d</sup> shewed themfelues wifemen indeed, according to that of the<sup>e</sup> Prophet, Let not the wifeman glorie in his wifdome, but let him that glorieth, glory in this, that he vnderstandeth and knoweth me, that I am the Lord which exercise louing kindnesse, iudgement and righteousnesse in the earth: for in these things I delight saith the Lord. It is likewite consonant to the Text, that these Magi were aliens from the Common-wealth of Israel: as the shepherds were the first fruits of the Iewes, so these Wise-men the<sup>f</sup> first fruits of the Gentiles. They were neere, these came from farre, both met in Christ the chiefe corner stone, who made of both<sup>g</sup> one: that is, of two walls one house; for the Iewes and Gentiles are all one in Christ, Galath. 3. 28. A mysterie which in times past (as you haue heard in this dayes Epistle) was not opened vnto the sonnes of men, as it is now declared by the Spirit. Reade Ser. 2. 4. 6. 7. of Augustine de Epiphania Dom. And herein appears the goodnesse and vnsearchable riches of Christ, in that he manifested himselfe to the shepherds albeit ignorant, and to the Wise-men albeit impious. <sup>h</sup> In rusticitate Pastorum imperitia praualet, in sacrilegys Magorum impietas, and yet he who<sup>i</sup> chose the foolish things of the world to confound the wise, and came not to call the righteous, <sup>k</sup> but sinners to repentance, appeared vpon Christmas day to shepherds, and on this day to wise, but wicked Astrologers. Vi nullus magnus superbiret, nullus infirmus desperaret, as<sup>l</sup> Augustine and<sup>m</sup> Aquine sweetly.

To Ierusalem]<sup>n</sup> As to the Citie of God acquainted with the diuine oracles, hauing Moses and the Prophets, which<sup>o</sup> witnesse of the Meffias. And here they did learne that Christ should be borne at Bethlehem in Iurie, for thus it is written by the Prophet, And thou Bethlehem in the land of Iurie art not the least among the Princes of Iuda; for out of thee shall come vnto me the Captaine that shall gouerne my people Israel. And so hauing the light of Gods holy word added to the starre, they went on their iourney with cheerfulness, vntill they came to the place where the childe was.

Or to the Scribes and Pharises at Ierusalem, to condemne their sluggishnesse and carnalitie, who standing hard by, saw not so much as they who came from farre. <sup>q</sup> Veritas illuminat magos infidelitas obæcat magistros. Carnalis Israel non intelligit, quod legit: non videt, quod ostendit: vititur paginis, quarum non credit eloquijs. In which respect<sup>r</sup> Augustine compared the Iewish Doctors vnto stones erected in common passages, that teach other how to walke in the right way, but themfelues stand still. And here let vs vpon bowed knees intreat the father of mercies, and God of all grace, so to lighten our darke vnderstanding with his heauenly starre, that we may search and spiritually discern the things of the Scripture; lest the Lord (as<sup>s</sup> Augustine prophecied a great while since) for our carelesnesse and carnalitie take his word from vs Christians, as he did his kingdom from the Iewes, and giue it to such as we thinke to bee most alien from God and his Gospell. Examine the cited passages and passions of that holy Father againe and againe, Decies repetita placebunt: and then in thy serious meditations apply them vnto the present Romish Synagogue, and thou shalt easily finde, that the Protestants estate in respect of the Papists, is very like to this of the Wise-men in respect of the Iewes. For as the Iewes euer boasted of the Temple, so the Papists of the Church: as the Iewes and only the Iewes in times past had Gods law, so the Papists in latter ages, (and if you will beleue themfelues) only the Papists embrace the Catholike faith: as the Iewes were magnificent in their ceremonies, euen so the Papists exceeding glorious in their ornaments, orders, outsidies of the Church. And yet such as are Wise-men, and haue wit to count the number of the Beast, know that Antichrists seat is the Romane Sea.

He

<sup>d</sup> Diez Con. 1.
in Epiphan.
<sup>e</sup> Ierem. 9. 23.

<sup>f</sup> Fulgentius Ser. de Epiphan. Idem Leo, Luther, Ru-
perti. in loc.
<sup>g</sup> Ephes. 2. 14.

<sup>h</sup> Augusti Ser. 2. de Epiphan.
<sup>i</sup> 1 Cor. 1. 27.

<sup>k</sup> Matth. 9. 13.

<sup>l</sup> Vbi supra,
<sup>m</sup> Caten. in loc.

<sup>n</sup> See Heming.
& Aret. in loc.
<sup>o</sup> Iohn 5. 39.

<sup>p</sup> Didac. de Tan- guas, Con. 2. de Epiphan.
<sup>q</sup> Leo Ser. 3. de
Epiphan. cap. 3.
<sup>r</sup> Ser. 6. de Epi- phan.

<sup>s</sup> In verba Psal.
7. propter hanc in altum regre- dere.

<sup>t</sup> Apoc. 12. 18.

He whose pencill is not inferiour to many, standing in so fit a place as any to take Romes picture, portrayeth her thus :

Roma, in { Hebrew, } { Height. }
 { Greeke, } { Strength. } { Latine, } { Loue, if it be read backward. } { English, } { Roome, or place. }

Foure tongues like trumpets Rome doth sound thy name,
 In Hebrew thou art Height, in Greeke a power,
 And Loue in Latine speech, and place in our,
 Four squares of hundred yeeres doe fit the same.

The first in Height exalted Christ his name,
 The next in Strength augmented worldly power.
 The third Gods Loue cast backward on thy flowre,
 The fourth in emptie place hath shewed thy shame.

And now foure wayes thou woulst thy fall conceale,
 With Scriptures upper Height and Strength of Schooles;
 And forme of Zeale, and Rome the head of fooles :
 The Height wants ground, to reason truth, to zeale
 Science, and Roome containeth now no grace, Thy height of strength is backward loue of place.

We haue seene his starre] Cardinal <sup>a</sup> Aliacus and * Albertus haue written that these Wise-men endowed with extraordinarie skill in Astrologie, might foreknow the time when our blessed Saviour should bee borne by the position of Starres and constitution of the Planets. But this assertion is vtterly condemned by <sup>y</sup> S. Augustine, and other holy Fathers of the Church, as you may finde in Beauxamis Har. Tom. 1. fol. 60, 61. Sixt. Senen. bibliothec. lib. 6. annot. 10.

Place, for it could not haue shewed the direct way to such as trauelled by it, vlesse it had beene in the lowest region of the aire.

It is apparent that this starre was not ordinarie, but in <sup>a</sup> many properties, especially <sup>a</sup> three, differing from all other in the skie, to wit, in

Mouing, for it moued not circle-wise, but went right forward as a guide of the way, none otherwise than the cloud and pillar of fire went before the people of Israel at their going out of Ægypt.
 Brightnesse, for whereas other starres appeare to shine by night only, this gaue light euen in the broad day.

<sup>b</sup> Hac stella qua solis rotam vincit decore ac lumine.

<sup>c</sup> Gregory Nyssen and <sup>d</sup> Aquin thinke that it was a new star created only for this purpose. <sup>e</sup> Theophylact and <sup>f</sup> Euthymius, that it was an Angell or some other heavenly power, appearing not in the nature, but in the figure of a starre. <sup>g</sup> S. Augustine saith, it was magnifica lingua cæli, the stately tongue of heauen. <sup>h</sup> Other coniecture that it was the Holy Ghost, appearing in the likenesse of a Starre at Christs birth, as in the likenesse of a Doue at Christs Baptisme. For (as <sup>i</sup> Baronius out of the great opinion of his owne reading is bold to write) all the Fathers agree, that these Magi were led to Christ here by an inward light of the Spirit, so well as with an outward light in the skie. <sup>k</sup> Agente hoc sine dubio in eorum cordibus,

■ In Gen. quest. 30.

* Lib cui Tit. Speculum.

<sup>y</sup> Contra Faustū lib. 2. cap. 5. & de Ciuit Dei, lib. 5. cap. 1, 2, 3.

<sup>a</sup> Thomas part. quest. 36. art. 7. Chryso st.

Euthym. Ludolphus in los.

<sup>a</sup> Herming post. in loc.

<sup>b</sup> Prudentius hym. de Epiph.

<sup>c</sup> Oras de sancta Christi nar.

<sup>d</sup> Vbi sup.

<sup>e</sup> In loc.

<sup>f</sup> In loc.

<sup>g</sup> Ser. 3. in Epiph.

<sup>h</sup> Autor de mirabilibus script. lib 3. cap. 4. inter Augustin opera Tom. 3. fol. 536. idem Beauxamis in loc.

<sup>i</sup> Annal. Tom. 1. ad ann. 1. fol. 55.

<sup>k</sup> Leo ser. 3 de Epiph. cap. 2.

cordibus inspiratione diuina, ut eos tanta visionis mysterium non lateret, & quod oculis ostendebatur insolitum, animis non esset obscurum. And therefore when they found the babe Iesus in a sillie cottage, they were not any whit discouraged at his contemptible pouertie, but instantly they saw (<sup>1</sup> non terra portante, sed celo narrante) magnum aliquid paruo latere, that this little childe was a great King, yea a great God, and a great King aboue all gods. And hereupon, as it followeth in our text, They fell downe flat, and worshipped him, and opened their treasures, and offered vnto him gises, gold, frankincense, myrrhe. That is, (as <sup>m</sup> Augustine glosseth) Adorant corporibus, honorant muneribus, venerantur officijs, oculis hominem vident, & Deum obsequijs confitentur.

Christ (as being the Word in the beginning by whom all things were made) bestowed on these Wise-men euery good and perfect gift, corporall, spirituall, temporall. And therefore they did honour him (as <sup>n</sup> Interpreters obserue) with all these kindes of goods. In falling downe flat, they did honour him with the goods of the bodie: in adoring him, with the goods of the minde: in offering to him gold, frankincense, myrrhe, with the goods of the world. They did offer <sup>o</sup> gold to releue Maries necessitie: frankincense, to sweeten the stable: myrrhe, to comfort the swadled babe. ¶ In offering frankincense, they confounded Arrius, holding that sacrifices are only due to God the Father: in offering myrrhe, they confounded Manicheus, who denied that Christ truly died for our sinnes: in offering gold, they confounded them both, as denying that Christ is our King. In offering all these, they confounded Nestorius, diuiding Christ into two persons, one diuine, another humane; for the Magi gaue not here some gifts vnto God, and other vnto man: but all vnto one Christ Ergo non diuidatur in personis qui non inuenitur diuisus in donis, as Fulgentius excellently.

Or as <sup>q</sup> other, they did offer gold to Christ, as being a King: frankincense, as being God: myrrhe, as being man: according to that of the Christian <sup>r</sup> Poet,

Aurum, Thus, Myrrham, regique deo, hominiquē Donaserunt.

It is an idle conceit, that one did offer gold, another myrrhe, and the third frankincense: for seeing each of them acknowledged Christ to be a King, and God, and a passible man; it is more probable, that all of them offered all these gifts, euery one three, <sup>l</sup> singula tria.

They returned into their own countrey another way] <sup>1</sup> The grace of God appearing teacheth vs that we should denie vngedlinesse, and worldly lusts, and that we should liue soberly, and righteously, and godly in this present world. <sup>u</sup> Wherefore the Wise-men hauing found Christ, and being taught of God not to returne againe to Herod, that is, any longer to serue the deuill; they renounce their owne wills and their old wayes, and walke according to Gods will in new wayes. Immutatio vie emendatio vite, quoth <sup>x</sup> Euseb. Emisen. Heretofore they walked in errour, but now they walke in truth: heretofore they went a whoring after their owne inuentions, but now they follow the word and warning of God.

The summe then of <sup>y</sup> all this Gospell is, that we must seeke Christ by the guiding of a starre, that is, by the light of his word: and when wee haue found Christ, it is our dutie to <sup>z</sup> manifest our faith by good works, in presenting vnto Christ our King gold, that is, a pure confession of a true beleefe: frankincense, that is, humble prayer and inuocation: myrrhe, that is, a chaste and a mortified life. We must also giue to Marie, that is, to the Church, vnto the Preachers of the word, and all other members of Christ in want, a part of our temporall estate. And all this ought to be done cheerfully, for the Wise-men opened their treasures, and our heart is our treasure, Matth. 12. 35. <sup>a</sup> So that we must euen with exceeding gladnesse, from our heart offer gold, frankincense, myrrhe <sup>b</sup> that is, almes, prayer, fasting: Prayer respects God, almes our neighbour, fasting our selues. And <sup>c</sup> thus hauing changed the whole course of our inordinate conuersation in time past, and walking in another way which is the path of Paradise; we shall in fine

<sup>1</sup> Auguſt. ſer. 7. de Epiphān.

<sup>m</sup> Ser. 1. in Epiphān.

<sup>n</sup> Ludolphus & Iansen. in loc.

<sup>o</sup> Bernard. ſer. 3. Pirauis & R. 4. lin. ſer. 2. de Epiphān.

<sup>p</sup> Fulgentius ſer. de Epiphān. Idem Beauxamis

<sup>q</sup> Euthym. Anselm. Caietan. in loc.

<sup>r</sup> Iuuenius. Idem Chryſoſt. ex varijs in 22. tit. locis hom. 1.

<sup>s</sup> Remegius, Leo.

Anselm.

<sup>t</sup> Tit. 11

<sup>u</sup> Leo ſer. 3. de Epiphān.

<sup>x</sup> Hom. 1. de Epiphān.

<sup>y</sup> Heming. poſt. in loc.

<sup>z</sup> Luther, Culman in loc. Idem Leo ſer. 7. de Epiphān.

<sup>a</sup> Rupert in loc. & Didac. de Yanguas, Con 3. de Epiphān.

<sup>b</sup> Iansen. Con. cap. 9.

<sup>c</sup> Fulgentius ſer. de Epiphān. in fine.

fine returne to our owne countrey, which is heauen in heauen, and there we shall enjoy Christ our King, God and man in eternall happinesse euermore.

There be many points in this text as yet vntouched, and I might as <sup>d</sup> Ruth, haply gleane after such as haue reaped before me : but I am so deuoted to breuitie, that I rather chuse to wonder a little with another, than to write any more my selfe vpon this Gospell.

<sup>d</sup> Ruth 2.3.

*O strangest thing that God doth now begin,
In being which, he hath no Godheads grace :
O strangest Roome, this subiect takes his place
In want of Roome, for none was in his Inne.*

*O strangest colour to be viewed in,
For humane darknesse veiled hath his face.
O strangest middle of respectiue space, iWhere as a starre more than the sunne could win.*

*O strangest starre that must reucale this sight,
That by disorder from the rest giues light.*

*O strangest eyes that saw him by this starre,
Who when by-standers saw not, saw so farre.*

*And since such wonders were in seeing him,
No wonder if my wondring thought grow diu.*

O God, which by the leading of a starre, didest manifest thine onely begotten Sonne to the Gentiles : mercifully grant, that we which know thee now by faith, may after this life haue the fruition of thy glorious Godhead, through Christ our Lord.

THE PURIFICATION OF SAINT MARIE
THE VIRGIN.

The Epistle being the same which is appointed for the Sunday, is expounded among the Dominicals in due place.

The Gospell is written, L V K E 2. 22.

When the time of their purification after the law of Moses was come, &c.

It is the saying of S. Bartholmew, reported by <sup>a</sup> Dionysius Areopagita, that the Gospell is little, yet large: If we consider only the syllables, it is a very small booke; but if we examine the profound sense, <sup>b</sup> mundus non capit, it is so great, that (as S. Iohn speakes) the world cannot containe it. Example hereof is found in this present Chapter, abounding with as many wonders almost as words. Here you may reade that Marie was at once both a mother and a maid, at once both a wife and a midwife, bringing forth a sonne who was her father, by whom all things were made, swadling him in clouts, and laying him in a cratch, who <sup>c</sup> filled heaven and earth. Here you may reade how the Word in the beginning infinite and incomprehensible, was not onely circumscribed, but also circumcised. Here you may reade, <sup>d</sup> that the pure was purified, God offered, and the Redeemer redeemed. Here you may reade, that a glorious Angell attended sillic shepherds, and that a childe of twelne yeere old confounded the Doctors in his disputations, and that a dying man vttered songs in stead of sobs.

In the words allotted for our text three points are to be considered especially, the Purification

Presentation
Commendation

of *Marie: When the time of her purification was come.
Christ: They brought him to Hierusalem to present him to the Lord, &c.
Simeon: Behold there was a man in Hierusalem whose name was Simeon, and the same was iust & godly, &c*

H h h

And

<sup>a</sup> Myſt. Theolog
cap 3. Idem
Cajanus cata- log. glorie mund- part. 3. cor. ſac- rat. 29.

<sup>b</sup> Iohn 21. 25.

<sup>c</sup> Ierem. 23. 24.

<sup>d</sup> Anders hom. in Euangel.
Purific.

And this Feast hath accordingly three names, as the <sup>c</sup> Masters of ceremonies obserue: 1. The Purification of Marie. 2. The presentation and induction of Christ into the Temple. 3. Saint Simons holy day.

When the time of their purification] <sup>f</sup> Some reade, antē, his purification; our latter English Bibles and old Latine, ante her purification; Origen, Theophylact, Euthymius, and many more, ante, as the text of our Communion booke here, their purification. And the reason hereof is plaine, <sup>h</sup> because Christ is presented in the Temple, so well as Marie purified, both vndergo the Law, though in equitie neither of them are bound to the rites of the Law concerning purification.

After the law of Moses] The Law, saith <sup>i</sup> Luther, is not adiutorium sed monitorium; it takes not away sinne, but only bringeth vs to the knowledge of sinne, and to the remedie for sinne; vnto the knowledge and true feeling of sinne, Rom. 3. 20. Galarh. 3. 19. <sup>k</sup> because God wrote the Law, not so much to forbid offences to come, as to make vs acknowledge our sinnes already past, and now present; that considering our owne miterie we might flie to his mercy. By the Law we know sinne, by sinne we learne to know our selues, and in knowing our selues, we renounce our selues, and come vnto Christ the salve for sinne, being <sup>l</sup> the Lambe of God, who taketh away the sinnes of the world, refreshing all such as groane under the burden of their offences, Matth. 11. 28. and thus (as <sup>m</sup> Paul speaks) the Law is our schoolemaster vnto Christ, and Christ is the <sup>n</sup> end of the Law: Finis perficiens non interficiens, quoth <sup>o</sup> Augustine, not the destruction of the Law, but the consummation, as being the very marke, at which all the ceremonies of Moses aimed: as in this Rite concerning the purifying of women, Almighty God insinuated to the Iewes his people their original corruption, how they were <sup>q</sup> conceived in sinne, and borne in iniquitie, prius damnati quam nati, being the sonnes of <sup>r</sup> wrath afore they were scene in the world, vncleane in their conception, vncleane in their birth, vncleane in their life, and so consequently that they need the blood of Christ, prefigured in their daily sacrifice, to cleane them from all sinne both originall and actuall, 1 Ioh. 1. 7.

The children of Israel had continued among the superstitious Egyptians a long time without any Law of God written, and therefore being now deliuered from them, and yet inclined to their idolatrie, God out of his admirable wisdom (as most Interpreters auow) did so charge them with a multitude of sacrifices and ceremonies in his written word, <sup>s</sup> as that they should neither haue leisure to make new of their owne, nor yet lust to follow the fashions of other. And in this almost infinite number of Judicials and Ceremonials, euery one (though in appearance neuer so little) <sup>t</sup> hath a morall: as, Thou shalt not take the Dam with the young, Deut. 22. 6. Thou shalt not secthe a kid in his mothers milke, Exo. 23. 19 moueth vs to compassion and pitie. Thou shalt not muzzle the mouth of the Ox that treadeth out the corne, Deut. 25. 4. teacheth in <sup>u</sup> Pauls exposition this lesson, that the labourer is worthy of his wages, especially the Preachers of the Word, for that law was not written out of Gods care for oxen, but altogether for <sup>v</sup> our sakes, insinuating, That he which eareth should eare in hope, & that he who threseth in hope, should be partaker of his hope: if we haue somme vnto you spirituall things, is it a great thing if we reape your carnall things? So likewise in the ceremonie touching purification, Leuit. 12. there is some thing morall, as namely, that the <sup>x</sup> weaknesse of women after their child-birth might be releued, and the lust of intemperate husbands a while restrained. Now that which is ceremoniall is abrogated vtterly, but the morall is perpetuall, and ought to continue still in the Church vntil the worlds end: and therefore howsoeuer women in our age be not tied either by the law Common or <sup>y</sup> Canon, (much lesse by the Gospell it selfe) to the precise number of dayes, and particular oblations of the Iewes: yet it is meet (I might say, more necessarie (that they should keepe in a conuenient time, for the recouering of their strength, and when they come to the Church, in stead of the Iewish offering, to present vnto the Lord christian sacrifices of prayer and praise, for <sup>z</sup> preserving them in the great danger of child-birth, <sup>z</sup> as also for their deliuerance by

Christ

<sup>o</sup> Baronius notation. in Rem. Martij. Febr. 2.

<sup>f</sup> Apud Eras & Maldonat. in loc.

<sup>g</sup> Translat. H. n. 8 Castalio.

<sup>h</sup> Ro. Stephan. Marlorat.

<sup>i</sup> Calvin. Aret. in loc.

<sup>j</sup> Loc. com. tit. de usu spirituall. legis. See Epist.

13. Sunday after Trin.

<sup>k</sup> Luther. tom. 1. fol. 1.

<sup>l</sup> Iohn 1. 29.

<sup>m</sup> Galat. 3. 24.

<sup>n</sup> Rom 10. 4.

<sup>o</sup> Contra aduers. legis & prophet. lib. 2. cap. 7.

<sup>p</sup> Melancthon. Mart. Mollerus postil. in loc.

<sup>q</sup> Psal. 51. 5.

<sup>r</sup> Ephes 2. 3.

<sup>s</sup> Tindal. prolog. in Exod. D. Witzgiff. def. of his answer to the admo. fol 305.

<sup>t</sup> 1 Tim. 5. 18.

<sup>u</sup> 1 Cor. 9. 10.

<sup>x</sup> Dr. Witzgiff ubi sup. fol. 53. 5. Kilius & Bollerus in loc.

<sup>y</sup> Dist. 5. cap. Hæc quæ.

<sup>z</sup> Dr. Witzgiff ubi supra.

Christ from that sinne, whereof<sup>a</sup> that infirmitie is an cuerlasting testimonie: and assuredly, whosoever shall out of insolent contempt neglect this dutie, sinneth against the rules of nature, yea the God of grace. For it is a conclusion orthodoxall in Diuinitie, that the politicall and ceremoniall lawes of the Iewes are abrogated in the particular onely, not in the generall; in the circumstance, not in the substance; <sup>b</sup> quoad speciem, non quoad genus: as in obseruing the Sabbath, in paying of Tithes in purifying of women, and the like. Or as <sup>c</sup> other, abolished as concerning the letter, but in force concerning the spirit.

Whereas it is <sup>d</sup> objected, If there should be soleimne and expresse giuing of thanks in the Congregation for euery benefit either equall or greater than this which any singular person in the Church doth receive, we should not only haue no preaching of the word, nor ministring of the Sacraments, but we should not haue so much leisure as to doe any corporall or bodily worke, but should be like the Messalian heretikes, who did nothing else but pray. Answer is made, that these schismaticall opposers are to themselues opposite: elswhere they mislike the booke of Common Praier for want of thanksgiuing for benefits receiued, and here they condemne it for appointing thanks to be giuen for deliuerance from sinne, from manifold perils and dangers, and for the increafe of Gods people; the which are publike blessings, though a priuate person more particularly giue the thanks. Againe, it would trouble their heads exceedingly to finde out so many benefits greater or equiuent to the goodnesse of God toward women in child-bed; for as <sup>e</sup> Melancthon is bold to write, child bearing is magnum miraculum, a miracle so great, that the <sup>f</sup> Prophet saith in consideration hereof, I will giue thanks vnto thee, for I am fearfully and wonderfully made. But howsoever it be, this one thing is certaine, that it is better to be like such heretikes as doe nothing elie but pray, than to be such schismatikes as doe nothing else but prate.

Concerning the wearing of the vaile, we say <sup>g</sup> that it is not an ecclesiasticall Canon, but a ciuill custome: not an iniunction of the Church, but the fashion of our countrie, as wearing of new gloues at marriages, and blacks at funerals: an attire for such a time not only decent and graue, but also most viefull and conuenient. As for the name of offering, applied to the Curates accustomed dutie; we say, that as the life of the Clergie is spent in the seruice of God, so it is sustained with his reuennue. <sup>h</sup> Nothing therefore more proper than to giue the name of obligations vnto such payments, in token that we offer vnto God whatsoeuer his Ministers receiue. In a word, the thanksgiuing of women after child-birth, according to the doctrine and discipline of the Church of England, performed not out of custome, but out of conscience; not to make the act of honourable marriage vncleane, but to blesse God for deliuerance from so manifold perils; is not a Iewish ceremonie, but a Christian dutie: the which (I thinke) distasteth onely such as haue either an ouerflowing of their gall, or an ouerweening of their wit.

The Law saith in the 12. of Leuiticus, If a woman by the seed of man shall conceiue and beare a childe, she shall be reputed vncleane, si suscepto semine pepererit, &c. but the power of the most High <sup>i</sup> onershadowed Marie, Christ was conceiued in her wombe not by the polluted seed of man, but by the vertue of the Holy Ghost, and so by consequence <sup>k</sup> not tied vnto the law: for (as the Lawyers say) where the reason of a statute doth cease, there the statute hath his end. But the reason of the law concerning purification had no place in Marie, being a pure Virgin, both in her conception, and in her child-birth also. See S. Ambros. epi 7. 31. Augustin. contra Iulian. lib. 1. cap. 2. de ciuit. lib. 22. cap. 8. Thomas part. 2. quest. 28. art. 2. Erasmus annot. in loc. Bellarm. de sacram. Eucharist. lib. 3. cap. 6. That Christ might appeare to be man, he was borne of a woman; and yet that he might appeare to be God, he was borne of a <sup>l</sup> Virgin. <sup>m</sup> Qui venit triste letificare seculum, ventris non contristavit hospitium: qui enim disrupta corporum membra in alijs poterat integrare tangendo, quanto magis in sua matre quod inuenit integrum posuit non violare nascendo? See Creed, borne of the Virgin, and Epistle allotted for the Annunciation.

<sup>a</sup> Gen 3 10.<sup>b</sup> Melanct. in cat. pueri. de 3. precept. & Tom. 2. fol 362.<sup>c</sup> See the refer. med Poltike written by Iohn Freyuel of Gram.<sup>d</sup> 1. C. apud D. Wintgisi ubi supra, fol. 536. & Hooker eccl. pol. lib. 2. § 74.<sup>e</sup> P. sil. in loc.<sup>f</sup> Psal. 139 13.<sup>g</sup> Dr. Wintgisi ubi supra, fol. 537<sup>h</sup> Hooker ubi supra.<sup>i</sup> Luk 1. 31.<sup>k</sup> Theophylact. Eubym. Cantan. in loc. Bernard ser. 3. de pu. specul. Thom part 3. quest. 37 art. 4. Sicut Semen bio. lib. 6. annot. 137<sup>l</sup> Maria mater esse potest, mater esse non potest secundum integritatem s. corruptionis. Aug. tract. 10. 17. tom. 3. Fulgentius sy de lundibus Marie.

<sup>a</sup> Ser. 7. in par.
sermon.

<sup>o</sup> Luther,
Melanct.
Calman. possil in loc.

<sup>p</sup> Arboreus in
loc.

<sup>q</sup> 1 Sam. 15. 22

<sup>r</sup> King. 2. 5.

<sup>s</sup> Næ hist. lib. 8.
cap. 50.

<sup>t</sup> De bello Ge-thorum, lib. 2.
circa prim.

<sup>u</sup> Exod. 12. 29.

<sup>x</sup> Thom. part 3.
q. 2. 37. art. 3.
Arctius & Mar-
lorat in loc.
<sup>y</sup> Henning. post.
in loc.

<sup>z</sup> Iohn 3. 16.

<sup>a</sup> Matth. 1. 25.

<sup>b</sup> Ephes. 5. 2.

Heb. 5. 7. 9.

<sup>c</sup> 1 Cor. 15. 20.

<sup>d</sup> 1 Pet. 1. 3.

<sup>e</sup> 2 Cor. 5. 17.

<sup>f</sup> Origen. apud
Thom. in loc.

Idem Dormise-care, ser. in Pavise.

<sup>g</sup> Giron ser. 7.
in Pur. Marie

<sup>h</sup> Eccles. hist.
lib. 3. cap. 1.

Idem Agapetus
admonit. ad lusinian.

<sup>i</sup> Paradinus in Symbol Heroic.

<sup>j</sup> Aelius syz.

Epigram. lib. 1.

Marie then obserued the rites of purification (as <sup>n</sup> Bernard excellently) not for her selfe, but for our example. Christ was circumcised for vs, and Marie purified for vs; he needed no Circumcision, who was the end of Circumcision; and she needed no purification, as hauing conceiued by the Holy Ghost: yet he did vndergoe the one, and shee performe the other. <sup>o</sup> Hereby teaching vs to submit our selues vnto the present government of the Church vnder which we liue; teaching vs I say so farre to seeke the peace of Ierusalem, as that we should be content to depart euen from our owne priuate right, rather than in any sort scandalously preiudice the common good of the Church, enduring rather a mischief in our selues, than an inconuenience in the state.

Marie (knowing <sup>q</sup> obedience to be better than sacrifice) performed the rites of purifying, albeit shee was not bound to the same. But Schimatikes in our dayes inioyned to keepe the ceremonies of the Church, euen by that law which faith expressly, Let every soule be subiect vnto superiour authoritie; hold dissolute-nesse a resolutenesse, and breaking of Ecclesiasticall orders a point of deuotion and Pietie, shedding (as it is said of <sup>r</sup> Iob) the bloud of warre in peace. But if their zeale were such vnto the Gospell, as Maries was to the Law; they would rather wring themselves in the particular, than wrong the Church in the generall. I reade in <sup>s</sup> Plinie, how two Goats meeting on a narrow bridge, non vniuersam viam fecere, they did not make away each other, but make way one for the other, as <sup>t</sup> Mutianus an eye-witnesse tells the tale, the one lying downe on his belly suffered the other to passe ouer his backe, and so both escaped the danger of the ditch. In the time of the <sup>u</sup> Gothish warres I finde also, that a <sup>v</sup> Romane souldier and a <sup>w</sup> Barbarian casually falling into the same pit as they marched along the countrey, were so farre from contending one with another, as that they both agreed mutually to releue each other, and to necessitie making them friends (as <sup>x</sup> Procopius reports) they were drawne out of that hell, and safely deliuered againe into their Captaines and Companies. I would to God the Separatist in this case had so much good wit as the Goat, or else so much good will as the <sup>y</sup> Goth.

They brought him to Ierusalem to present him vnto the Lord, as it is written in the Law of the Lord, every man-child that first openeth the matrix shall be called holy to the Lord] Almighty God in deliuering his Israel out of Ægypt's bondage <sup>z</sup> smote all the first-borne in the land Ægypt, from the first-borne of Pharaoh that sat on his throne, vnto the first-borne of the captiue that was in prison. And therefore <sup>a</sup> that his people might alway remember this benefit, he commanded in his Law, that they should consecrate all their first-borne to him, Exod. 13. 2. For this reason is rendred by God himselfe: Numb. 8. 17. All the first-borne of the children of Israel are mine, both of man and of beasts: since the day I smote every first-borne in the land of Ægypt, I sanctified them for my selfe. Now Christ is the first-borne in <sup>b</sup> many respects: First, in his Diuinitie, being Gods <sup>c</sup> only begotten Sonne. Secondly, in his humanitie, being Maries <sup>d</sup> first-borne sonne, for shee bare none before him or after him. Thirdly, the first-borne in grace, for he was the first man borne, which being <sup>e</sup> offered vnto God was accepted of himselfe. Fourthly, in power, being the first-borne of the <sup>f</sup> dead. Fifthly, the first borne, for that all of vs are <sup>g</sup> new borne through him. And therefore though he were not tied vnto the rites of the Law, yet he suffered himselfe to be presented in the Temple for these reasons especially.

First, to shew that the <sup>h</sup> same God is author both of the Gospell and of the Law.

Secondly, in that the Law-giuer himselfe obeyed the Law, he <sup>i</sup> teacheth all Princes to giue good example in obseruing their owne statutes. For an Emperor, saith <sup>j</sup> Euagrius, is not to be counted thereafter as he gouerneth ether, but as he ruleth and guideth himselfe, making his life a light for his subiects to follow. For <sup>k</sup> this cause the chiefe Magistrates among the Romans had burning lamps carried before them.

<sup>i</sup> Publica nimirum res tum sibi constat & aquum Imperium, cum Rex quod iubet, ipse facit.

Thirdly.

Thirdly, he submitted himselfe vnto the Law; that he might<sup>k</sup> redeeme those that were vnder the Law. God became man, that men hereby might be made Gods. He who was free, became seruant vnto all to make all free.

Fourthly, because the first borne presented in the Temple, was a<sup>l</sup> figure of Christ, the first borne among many brethren, Rom. 8. 29.

Fifthly, that he might<sup>m</sup> auoid occasion of scandall among the Iewes, and exhibit a patterne of meeknesse vnto all.

Sixthly, that being presented in the publike Temple, many good people might beare witnessse to him, as here you see imeon and Anna did.

Seuenthly, that the world might be put in<sup>n</sup> possession and seisin of the Saviour. He was offered twice: first, in the Temple, which is called his morning sacrifice: then on the Crosse, which is termed his euening sacrifice. In the one he was redeemed, in the other he did redeeme giving himselfe for vs an offering and a sacrifice of a sweet smelling saour to God, Ephes. 5. 2.

By this precept of Moses, and practise of Marie, Parents ought to learne that they beget children vnto God, and not to themselves or Satan; and therefore they must be forward in bringing their children to holy Baptisme, as Ioseph and Marie were in presenting Christ, consecrating them in their infancie to God, that afterward they may serue him in holinesse and righteousnesse all the dayes of their life; that the ground may bring forth fruit in due time, you must haue both a good seeds man, and good seed: in education of children a good instructor is the seeds-man, and good discipline the seed. For as base sluggishnesse corrupts the best nature, so liberall instruction is able to correct the worst.

*Inuidus, iracundus, iners, vinosus, amator,
Nemo adeo ferus est, vt non mitescere possit,
Si modo culatra patientem commodet aurem.*

It is reported of Stilpho Meganeus, a great Philosopher in his age, that he was exceedingly giuen by nature to women and wine; but he so tamed his vnbridled affections by good discipline, vt nemo vnquam vinolentum illum, nemo in eo libidinis vestigium viderit. Now for as much as children are taught more by<sup>r</sup> patterne than by precept, by that they see men doe, rather than by that they heare men say; Parents ought in their priuate families especially, to be lights and ensamples in all holinesse and honestie. For (as it is in the proverbe) If both Horse and Mare trai, the Colt will not amble. You desire that your children may haue strength and beautie, yet both are suddenly consumed, either through ache or age. You purchase titles of honour for your posteritie, yet<sup>u</sup> bloud corrupted by treason or felonie, cannot be restored againe by the Kings bare grant, without authoritie of Parliament. You rise vp early and goe to bed late, that you may leaue wealth enough vnto your babes, and yet one sparke of fire may deuoure all their houses, and one quirke of law carry from them all their lands at a trice. Manners onely makes a man; if thou shalt afford thy sonne religious and ingenuous education, it will euer sticke by him among all the changes and chances of this mortall life; no sicknesse can blast this beautie, no malice blot out this honour, no fire consume this tement, no law wrest this inheritance from him. It will be his comfort vntill he die, that you brought him vp<sup>x</sup> in instruction and information of the Lord.

A paire of Turtle doves, or two young Pigeons] The blessed Virgin obserued euery due circumstance of the Law. <sup>y</sup> The due time, when the dayes of her purification were come. The due place, they brought him to Ierusalem, and presented him vnto God in the Temple. The due oblation, a paire of Turtle doves, &c. As shee spared no paines in coming to the Temple, so no pence in offering. <sup>z</sup> S. Basil complained of the couerous rich in his age, because they performed only that kinde of deuotion which is without cost, as to pray for fashion, and to fast out of miserie; but they would not afford one halfpenny to the poore. So many men in our daies are

<sup>k</sup> Galat. 4. 5.

<sup>l</sup> Thom part. 3
quæst. 27. art. 3.

<sup>m</sup> Idem ibidem,
m. 4.

<sup>n</sup> Raulin ser. 1.
in Purific.

<sup>o</sup> Heming.

<sup>p</sup> Molleus in declar. euang.
Purific.

<sup>q</sup> Plutarch. com.
de liberis edu-candis.

<sup>r</sup> Horat. epist.
l. b. 1.

<sup>s</sup> Cic. lib. de fato.

<sup>t</sup> Consule Hieron epist. ad Lautam de insul.
sua.

<sup>u</sup> Termes of the Law, in Corruption of bloud.

<sup>x</sup> Ephes 6. 4.
*Litæ sibona fide tuum intrauerunt animum,
nunquam am-plius intrabit dolor. Senec. con.
ad Heluim
y Bonauent.
Beaus amis in
loc.
z Ser. 2 in di-
uit. auaros.*

miserable.

<sup>a</sup> Bonauent diet.
salut. cap. 20.

<sup>b</sup> Leuit 12. 8.

<sup>c</sup> Pet. de palud Diet.
Dormifecure.
Raulin.
Didac de Ym-guas, Giron. &
aly.

<sup>d</sup> Com. in loc.

<sup>e</sup> Heming.

<sup>f</sup> 2 Cor. 8. 9.

<sup>g</sup> Esay 5 8.

<sup>h</sup> Pfa. 49. 11.

<sup>i</sup> Ecclesiast. 1. 4.

<sup>k</sup> Luke 1. 52.

<sup>l</sup> Pfa. 113. 6.

<sup>m</sup> Mark. 12. 42.

<sup>n</sup> Didac. de Ym-guas Con. 3. de oblat. Christ.
<sup>o</sup> Simon de Cassia.

<sup>p</sup> Cant 2. 12.

<sup>q</sup> Angul. medit.
cap. 13.

<sup>r</sup> Dormifecure.
ser. de Purific.
Marie.

<sup>s</sup> Aretius:

<sup>t</sup> Heming.

<sup>u</sup> Caluin.

Beza.

content to heare Gods holy word read and preached with their ei bowes on a cushion, and hats on their heads, and if need be they will also make bitter inuectiues against Atheisme and Poperie: but if the Parish impose but an ordinarie charge toward the repairing of the Church, or the Pastor require but accustomed offerings for his necessarie maintenance; you shall haue them as the <sup>a</sup> bulrush in a wet place, so dry, that an oblation is as hardly got from them, as a sword from a souldier, or a new coat from a childe. Marie did offer according to her estate; for whereas the <sup>b</sup> Law requireth of the rich a Lambe, but of the poore two Turtles, or two young Pigeons: it is said here that shee brought the poores offering. And therefore the Papists vsually painting her in exceeding rich attire, and in making her a great Ladie of stately port, feed the peoples eyes with bables, and their eares with fables: for (to make themselues in this case Iudges of themselues) it is not our obseruation onely, but also their <sup>c</sup> owne collection in their Postils and Sermons vpon this Scripture. Nay their famous Iesuite <sup>d</sup> Maldonate doth affirme, that all Expositors haue this glosse, further adding out of his owne coniecture, that Marie did not offer two Turtles, but two young Pigeons, & quia facilius reperiri, & quia minore pretio emi potuerunt; because young Pigeons are prouided more easily both in respect of paines and price. Here then is matter of comfort for the <sup>e</sup> poore, of feare for the rich, of instruction for all. Of comfort against pouertie, because the Lord of Lords, hauing all things at his command, vouchsafed to be borne of a poore Virgin, according to that of <sup>f</sup> Paul, He being rich for our sakes became poore, that we through his pouertie might be made rich. Of feare for the wealthy, because Marie descending of a noble line, yea from princely loynes, is said here to be so beggerly, that shee was not able to buy a Lambe for her offering. It is the fashion of great men (as the <sup>g</sup> Prophet complained in his time) to lay field to field, and to ioyne house to house, <sup>h</sup> calling their lands after their owne names, entailing their estate to childrens children, and making it (as the Lawyers speake) a perpetuities. But <sup>i</sup> one generation passeth, and another generation succeedeth; he that is higher than the highest, often <sup>k</sup> puls downe the mightie from his seat, and exalteth the poore man out of the <sup>l</sup> mire, that he may set him euen with the Princes of his people For in one age you may behold the Gentlemans heire serue his owne Farmers issue. Lastly, this affords instruction for all, intimating that we must offer vnto God the sacrifice due to God. If we cannot giue much, he will accept of a little, of the Virgins two pigeons, of the Widowes one <sup>m</sup> farthing. We may not spend all in our house, much lesse in the tap-house; something is to be laid out vpon Gods house, for his seruice, for his honour, if not a Lambe, yet a paire of Turtle doves, or two young Pigeons.

<sup>n</sup> Mystically, the blessed Virgin did offer a Lambe, but it was her owne sonne the Lambe of God, <sup>o</sup> Agnus qui praefiguratus est ab origine mundi, oblatu s est in fine mundi: and shee did offer a young Pigeon, but it was her owne soune conceived of the Holy Ghost, appearing in the likenesse of of a Doue, Matth. 3. 16. and shee did offer a Turtle, but it was her owne sonne, of whom it is said, <sup>p</sup> The voice of the Turtle is heard in our land. Our blessed Sauiour being <sup>q</sup> sacerdos & sacrificium, & victor & victima, the sacrificer and the sacrifice for the sinnes of the whole world, <sup>r</sup> was offered, first by God his Father: secondly, by the Virgin his mother: thirdly, by his owne selfe. God sent him into the world, the Virgin present, and the Legall Sacrifice represent him in the Temple, but himselfe did offer himselfe actually for our sinnes on [the Crosse.

And behold, there was a man in Ierusalem whose name was Simeon] Two things are requisite in a sufficient witness, vnderstanding to know the truth, and honesty to speake what he knoweth. Old Simeon in testifying of Christ had both, a good vnderstanding, as hauing a reuelation giuen him of the holy Ghost, that he should not see death vntill he first saw the Lord Christ: and a great honesty, being iust and godly, or deuout, <sup>t</sup> outwardly to the world iust, inwardly to himselfe godly. <sup>u</sup> For his workes, he was iust in his dealing with men: for his faith, he was deuout in the seruice of God. These <sup>v</sup> two deuotion and iustice, comprehend all the whole whole law: denotion all the duties of the first table; iuslice all the duties of the second. Denotion is the mother, Iustice the daughter, *because the true feare of God bringeth forth alwaies vpright cariage toward men. It is not reported here that he was so righteous as that he needed not another righteoufnesse, for he looked for the consolation of Israel, acknowledging in his song, Christ for his Sauour; y but that he liued (as it is said of Zacharias and Elizabeth in the former chapter) unblameable before men. The word ἰσχυρός, is translated <sup>a</sup> pious, <sup>2</sup> religiosus, <sup>b</sup> timoratus, one who <sup>c</sup> feared God: and this feare was not seruaile, but filiaill. He did not feare God as a bad seruaunt, fearing the stripes of his great master: but as a louing sonne, fearing to displeas his good father. <sup>d</sup> Et timebat cum dilectione, & diligebat cum timore. He was in his course so carefull to do the will of our heavenly father, as that he feared with a pious loue, and loued with a reuerent feare. <sup>e</sup> Sollicitè pius & omnia timens ne non satis pius sit, <sup>f</sup> in doing good a iust man, in eschewing euill one that feared God.

And looked for the consolation of Israel] He was a iust man in deed, giuing euery one his right; vnto God, as being denout: vnto himselfe, as expecting the consolation of Israel: vnto other, in preaching Christ openly to be both a light to the Gentiles, and a glory to the Iewes. All the chiefe Christian vertues appeared in him eminently: Faith, hope, loue: faith, as fearing God: hope, as looking for the Messias of the world: loue, as being Iust, communicating his gifts of 8 prophecie to the benefit of the Church in singing his nunc dimittis, and in saying, mine eyes haue seene thy saluation. My corporall eies thy manhood, my spirituall eies thy Godhead; the <sup>h</sup> coniuunction of which is Salutare tuum, thy saluation, as giuing it; and Salutare nostrum, our saluation, as receiuing it. And this Salutare is not singulare, but as Saint Iude termeth it, a Common saluation, and as old Simcon in his Hymne, prepared before the face of all people.

* Culman.

† Heming.

‡ Erasmus.

§ Castalio.

¶ Vulgar Latin.

⌘ Geneua bib.

⌘ Ardens.

⌘ Aretius.

⌘ Pet. de palud.

⌘ r. de Enrisc.

⌘ Caluis.

⌘ Ardens.

The Epistle. ACTS I. 15.

In those daies Peter stood up in the midst of the Disciples and said, &c.

THIS Epistle containeth a short yet a sweet narration, how Matthias a Disciple was elected vnto the traitor Iudas Apottleship and Bishoprick. Wherein three things are more principally remarkable.

- |  |   |  |
|--|---|--|
| 1. His Conge de leire , delivered in an eloquent speech, in which obserue the | } | Time, In whose daies.   |
|  |   | Orator, Peter stood up.   |
| }  | } | Auditorie, Disciples and brethren about an hundred and twentie.           |
|  |   | Hortatorie, perswading that one must be chosen, verse 16, 17, 18, 19, 20. |
|  |   | Doctrinall, intimating what an one must be chosen, ver. 21. 22.           |
| 2. His election , and in it the   | } | Nomination, ver. 23.  |
|  |   | Processe by } Prayer, ver. 24. 25.  |
|  |   | } Lots, ver. 26.  |
| 3. His Installation , he was counted with the eleuen Apostles.                | } | Sucesse, the lot fell on Matthias.  |

In those daies] To wit, in the space betwene Christs ascension and his sending of the Holy Ghost, at that time the Disciples being gathered together at Hierusalem in an vpper parlour, They continued with one accord, not in supplication only, but in consultation also for the Gospels advancement. <sup>i</sup> Hereby teaching all men, especiall Preachers of the word, to spend their houres profitably for the benefit of the Church, in supplanting her foes, and in supplying the number of her friends.

⌘ Aretius in loc.

<sup>k</sup> Bellarm. de Rom. Pont. lib. 1. cap. 22. in prin. Ecksus loc. com. 111. de primat. Sed Apost. Lorinus Rhem. & aly in loc.

<sup>l</sup> Chrysoſt. Dr. Folke. Marlorat. <sup>m</sup> Dr. Humphred. aduerſ. Campian & Duræum rat. 4. <sup>n</sup> Prefat. in 1. part. exam. con. Trident. <sup>o</sup> Beza. <sup>p</sup> Caluin. <sup>q</sup> Bullinger. apud Marlorat. <sup>r</sup> Areliaus.

<sup>s</sup> Erasmus annot. in loc. <sup>t</sup> Caietan. in loc.

<sup>u</sup> Apocal. 3. 4.

<sup>v</sup> Aretas. Meyer.

Marlorat.

<sup>y</sup> Lorin. in loc.

<sup>z</sup> Bullinger in Apocal. con. 16.

<sup>1</sup> Matth 13. 31

<sup>a</sup> Acts 2. 47.

<sup>b</sup> Hilarius.

<sup>c</sup> Matth. 27.

<sup>d</sup> Caluin. Beza.

Peter stood up in the midst of the Disciples and said] Here the<sup>k</sup> Papills obserue Peters supreme power ouer the rest of the Disciples and Apottles, and so by consequence though inconsequent the Popes absolute command ouer all other Bishops in the whole world. But if we will exactly consider and examine his behaviour in this assembly, we shall vnderstand that he carried himselfe not as a Pope, but as a Peere toward them. 1. In calling them brethren, and frater is fere alter, as Lorinus vpon the place. 2. For that he standeth up in the midst of the Disciples, equally referring all things vnto their<sup>l</sup> common consent and free choice, terming himselfe a fellow pastor, 1 Pet. 5. 1. Whereas euery Bishop assembled in the Tridentine Conuenticle tooke a corporall<sup>m</sup> oath that he would not dispute any point to preiudice the Roman sea, nay there was nothing determined in that irregular meeting, except it was first handled and hammered at Rome by the Pope, for then it was ordinarily said in a by-word, that the Holy Ghost in a bull, or Popes breue was sene from Rome to Trent, as <sup>n</sup> Chemnitius plainly told Andradius, In illo concilio idem actor, reus, & iudex. Our Diuines therefore say that Peter was elected prolocutor of this conuocation either by <sup>o</sup> secret reuelation of the Holy Ghost, or else by expresse iudgement of the Congregation: or for that he was vsually more feruent then the rest in such a businesse, <sup>q</sup> & ardentior & rebus agendis aprior reliquis exiiterat. <sup>r</sup> For it became h<sup>m</sup> of all the Colledge best, as hauing denied Christ heretofore most. He stood up and spake, as the mouth of the company, but he plaied not the Pope, but onely the perswader, exercising not a supremacy of authority, but a primacy of order, as Chrysoſtome and other note. See Gospell 1. Sund. after Easter.

The number of names that were together were about an hundred & twentie.] The vulgar Latine reading turba hominum, answers not the Greeke so well as our text, turba nominum, the number of names. <sup>t</sup> For in exquisite numbring vsually men are mustred by their seuerall names, in<sup>c</sup> Councils especially the names of such as giue voices, are first inrolled in a bill or registers table. But by names, our Euangelist vnderstands men, as the Holy Ghost<sup>u</sup> else-where, Thou hast a few names yet in Sardi which had not defiled their garments. A few names, that is (as Bullinger and <sup>x</sup> other vpon the place) a few persons. And <sup>y</sup> it may be that the sacred spirit in vsing this phrase doth insinuate that they were men of eminent note, as Gen. 6. 4. The Giants are called men of renowne, that is (as Munster translates according to the Hebrew) virii nominati, men of name. Well, howsoeuer their names were great, their number was but small, being about an hundred and twentie. By which it doth appeare, that the kingdome of heauen is like vnto a <sup>z</sup> graine of mustard seed, the which in sowing is indeede the least of all seeds, but in growing it is the greatest among herbes, euen a tree, so that the birds of heauen come and build in the branches thereof. Vnto these 120. <sup>a</sup> The Lord added daily such as should be samed: at one Sermon of S. Peter, Act. 2. the number of brethren was increased about 3000 soules. A <sup>b</sup> ship doth aptly resemble the Church of Christ; for as a ship is small in the foredecke, broad in the middle, little in the sterne: so the Church in her beginning (as you see) was exceeding little, in her middle age flourishing, but in her old age her company will be so small, and her beleefe so weake, that when the Sonne of God shall come to iudge the sonnes of men, he shall scarce finde any faith on earth.

This Scripture must needs haue beene fulfilled] S Peter in his oration here, first sheweth how Iudas Apostleship became void Secondly, that it is needfull another should be chosen into his place Iudas Bishopricke was lost by treason, as being guide to them who tooke Iesus. Whereupon (as we read in the<sup>c</sup> Gospell) he did first accuse himselfe, I haue sinned in betraying innocent blood: secondly, arraigne himselfe, he repented and brought againe the thirtie plates of siluer to the chiefe Priest, and cast them downe in the Temple: thirdly, execute himselfe, he departed, and went, and hanged himselfe. Now to take away the<sup>d</sup> scandall of this horrible fact, our Euangelist intimates that nothing in Iudas trechery came to passe casually, but it was foreseene of God, and foretold in his word, This Scripture must needs have been fulfilled. And <sup>c</sup> yet the fall of Iudas is not excused hereby, no more than the fault of Herod and Pilate, who did whatsoever Gods owne hand and counsell had determined before to be done, Act. 4. 28. For Iudas committed not this outrageous crime by the compulsion of propheticie, but through his owne motion and malice. <sup>f</sup> His delight was in cursing, and it did happen unto him he loved not blessing, therefore was it farre from him. It is true that Peter saith, hee was numbred with vs, and had obtained fellowship in this ministracion: but he received the grace of God in <sup>g</sup> vaine, abusing it to couetousnesse and worldly lusts, he did open a doore to <sup>h</sup> Satan, and gaue him as it were possession of his heart.

This necessitie then is not necessitas absoluta, sed consequentis & suppositiua, a necessitie hypothetical and by consequent, not an absolute or a simple necessitie. So the Holy Ghost elsewhere, <sup>1</sup> There must be heresies, it must needs be that offences shall come, ye shall heare of warres, and of rumours of warres, for all these things must come to passe. That is, supposing the malice of Satan and wickednesse of man, it is impossible but that there should be warres and offences, and heresies in the world. <sup>o</sup> An Astrologer expert in his Art, foretelleth an eclipse of the Sunne, yet his prediction is not any cause why the Sunne is eclipsed: euen so God foretelleth all the workes of darknesse, and eclipses (as it were) in the reprobate, but his prescience compels not any to commit any sinne. It is the prince of darknesse who <sup>p</sup> worketh in the children of disobedience, taking them in his snares at his will, <sup>2</sup> Tim. 2. 26. All our waies are knowne vnto the Lord, our going out, and our comming in, Esay 37. 28. being of euery good pace bonus auctor, but of euery bad passage iusus ultor. I will end this argument in the words of <sup>1</sup> Augustine, Visit (O Domine Deus) apud se semper bonum nostrum, & quia inde auersi sumus peruersi sumus. For saith <sup>r</sup> he, ligatus eram non ferro alieno, sed mea ferrea voluntate, velle meum tenebat inimicus, & inde mihi catenam fecerat & conserinxerat me, quippe ex voluntate peruersa facta est libido, & dum seruitur libidini facta est consuetudo, & dum consuetudini non resistitur, facta est necessitas. How the fall of traitorous Iscariot may serue to terrifie the Pastor, and teach also the people: See Gospell 6. Sund. in Lent.

Wherefore of those men which haue companied with vs] Christ in his life chose <sup>c</sup> twelue Apostles, one therefore must be ordained and elected into Iudas roome, to fill vp the number againe, <sup>r</sup> answerable to the twelue tribes of Israel, of which <sup>u</sup> as our Saviour <sup>u</sup> promised they shall be Iudges, and to the twelue gates of heauenly Hierusalem, of which also the twelue Apostles were builders, according to that of Paul, Ephes. 2. 20. built vpon the foundation of the Apostles and Prophets, Iesus Christ himselfe, being the chiefe corner stone. See Epistle on S. Thom. s day. There be many more resemblances of the twelue Apostles, as you may read in my first sermon vpon the Gospell, Sund. 6. in Lent; and in Cassianus Catalog. part. 3. considerat. 29.

One must be chosen, and one of these men, ergo, not a Pope Ioane, for a woman must be <sup>y</sup> silent and not a <sup>z</sup> teacher in the Temple; one of these uac. ergo, not a boy Bishop, not a <sup>a</sup> yonker in yeres, or <sup>b</sup> schollership, for Pastors are called elders, and Christ himselfe preached not vntill he was thirtie yeeres old: one of these which haue companied with vs, ergo, <sup>c</sup> not a stranger, but a domesticall, one that is knowne, a man of note lining among vs all the time that the Lord Iesus was conuersant among vs, <sup>d</sup> ergo, not a lewd or ignorant person, but a proficient in Christs owne schoole, brought vp euen from his <sup>e</sup> youth in <sup>f</sup> instruction and information of the Lord. See Gospell on S. Andrew, and 8. Sund. after Trinitie.

But why should one being such an one be chosen into Iudas roome to witnesse with vs of the resurrection of Christ. A Prelate then <sup>g</sup> ought to be predicant, not an Idle or an Idoll Apostle, like the dumbe Doctors, and Abbey-lubbers, and lazie lay Bishops vnder the government of the Pope. Right prelatung (as old Father <sup>h</sup> Latimer said) is labouring, and not lording or loyering, it is <sup>i</sup> horreur rather than honour, for an Apostle to leaue the text, and only to follow the tith. A witnesse he must be, <sup>k</sup> yet not a witnesse alone, broaching insolent nouelties and other

<sup>c</sup> Arctius.
Kilias.

<sup>f</sup> Psal. 109. 16

<sup>g</sup> 2 Cor 6. 1.

<sup>h</sup> Luk 22. 3.

<sup>i</sup> Arctius.

<sup>k</sup> Lavin in loc.

<sup>l</sup> in c. 7. 12.

dem Thom. serm. 1. quast. 19.

cl. 3.

<sup>1</sup> Cor 11. 19

<sup>m</sup> Matth. 18. 7.

<sup>n</sup> Matth 24. 6.

<sup>o</sup> Kilias collect.

in loc.

<sup>p</sup> Ephes. 2. 2.

<sup>q</sup> Corf. ff lib 5.
cap 16.

<sup>r</sup> Confess lib. 3.
cap. 5.

<sup>f</sup> Matth. 10. 2

Marke 3. 24.

<sup>e</sup> Arctius.

<sup>u</sup> Mat. 19. 28

<sup>x</sup> Apoc. 21. 12.

<sup>y</sup> 1 Cor 14. 24.

<sup>z</sup> 1 Tim. 2. 12

<sup>a</sup> Arctius.

<sup>b</sup> 1 Tim. 3. 6.

<sup>c</sup> Serarius.

Arctius

<sup>d</sup> Arctius

<sup>e</sup> 1 Tim. 3. 15.

<sup>f</sup> Ephes. 6. 3.

<sup>g</sup> Colin.

Arctius.

<sup>h</sup> Sermon of the plough.

<sup>i</sup> Latimer. serm. 2.

before K. Ed.

<sup>k</sup> Arctius.

1 Tim 1. 3.
 Acts 4. 32.
 Philip 2. 2.
 Ephel. 4. 3.

P Tract. 1. in Joan.

9 Arden.

r Philip. 3. 20.

f Calvin.

c Arctius.

a Goyaz. in
 Rom 10.

x Nexus articu-
 .orum omnia um.
 v. Martyr. in
 Rom 10.

7 Dionys. Arco-
 pag. apud Baron.
 ad an. 34. idem
 Calvin in lib.

lib 4. cap 3 §. 13
 & Ferus ser. 1 in fest. Matib.

Bellarmin. lib. de clericis cap. 5. &
 Arct. in loc.

z Dorotheus doct. 6.

a Rhen. in loc.

b Dionys. Halicar. Rom. hist.
 lib. 2.

c Cap. E. sclef.
 ext. ad scrip-turgys.

e Iustus Iozas
 in loc.

Ambros. in 1.
 Luc.

n. Uarm ubi sup.

f See Kilius
 Collect. in loc.

Sixt. Senen. bib.
 sancti lib. 5.
 annot. 166.

8 Epist. 7.

b Exod. 26.

i Gr. gor. Moral.
 lib 25 cap. 12.

k Didac. de Yanguas con. 1.
 in fest. Mat.

Other doctrines of his owne braine : but a witnessse with vs, of one <sup>m</sup> heart and of one <sup>n</sup> minde with vs, <sup>o</sup> endeuouring to keepe the vnitie of the Spirit in the bond of peace. For he who seeke in the troublesome sea of this world to schismaticall Apostles affecting singularitie ; Non portum sed planctum inueniet, as P Augustine pithily.

Well, the new chosen ought to record and accord, to witnessse and to witnessse with vs, agreeing with the rest of his Colledge and company. But whereof is he to be a witnessse? of the resurrection of Christ, <sup>a</sup> in all his words, & in all his works: in his preaching and in his life so behauing himselfe, as one that beleeueth the resurrection of Christ, and hopeth also for his owne redemption, euer <sup>i</sup> looking for his Saviour, euē the Lord Iesus, who shall change our vile body, that it may be like to his glorious body. Or a witnessse of the resurrection of Christ, because this one point is, primarium Euangely caput, as it were <sup>t</sup> the predominant article, <sup>u</sup> pre supposing all the rest, as being the <sup>x</sup> tying knot, on which all other linkes of holy beleefe depend, as I haue shewed often elsē here; but especially Gosp. on S. Thomas, and Epist. on S. Andremes day.

And they appointed two ] They nominated more than one, <sup>y</sup> that the Lord who knew the hearts of all men, might chuse the partie that should take the roome of the ministracion and Apostleship, from which Iudas by transgression fell: and that Matthias might acknowledge that he receiued it (as Paul speaks) not of man, but by the reuelacion of Iesus Christ, Gal. 1. 12. <sup>z</sup> The world is a circle, God is as it were the center of this circle, the wayes of men are lines deduced from this center. <sup>a</sup> If then euent of the Lotterie be not expected of deuils, nor of the stars, nor of any force of fortune, but looked and prayed for to be directed by God, it is lawfull to vse lots in temporall things; as in diuision of lands and inheritance, Prou. 18. 18 The lot causeth contentions to cease, and maketh a partition among the mightie. And in spirituall affaires also; for it is reported of Zacharias the Priest, that his lot was to burne incense, Luk. 1. 9. And though ordinary chusing of Prelates and Preachers ought not to be by lot, as both <sup>b</sup> Heathens and <sup>c</sup> Christians in this agree: yet in some cases extraordinary (to wit, if two or three shall happen to stand in election, of such equall holinesse and other sufficiencie, that humane wisdome cannot any waies discernē, and so decide which is most fit) it is <sup>e</sup> lawfull according to the president in our Text, to cast lots, and so commit the disposition of the choice to God. In the lawfull vsing of a Lotterie then obserue these remarkable <sup>f</sup> caueats.

1. We must expect the lots euent from God onely: Prou. 16. 33. The lot is cast into the lap, but the whole disposition thereof is of the Lord.

2. We may not vse lots in affaires ordinarie, but in cases of necessity, when as the businesse cannot otherwise be transacted.

3. We must abandon all vncharitable conceits, and all dishonourable deceits: Psalm. 5. 6. The Lord will abhorre the deceitfull man, and destroy such as speake leasing.

4. We must before we cast lots (as the blessed Apostle here) call vpon God in hearty praier for a blessing on our endeouours.

I could adde easily more, but I remember <sup>3</sup> Augustines rule, Secundas habeat partes modestia, que primas non potuit habere sapientia. If any know lesse than I, they may be bold to peruse this, and such as vnderstand more than I, may reade Augustin. epist. 180. & de doct. Christ. lib. 1. cap. 28. & con. 2. in Psalm. 30. Thomas 2 2a. quest. 95. art. 8. Bellarmin. lib. de clericis cap. 5. Sixt. Senens ubi supra in marg. Arctius, Marlorat, Kilius in loc.

And the lot fell on Matthias. ] In the Tabernacle the <sup>b</sup> curtaines of fine twined linnen, and blew like and purple, were couered with curtaines of Goats haire. Some men are great ornaments in the Church, and yet vnfit to gouerne the Church. <sup>i</sup> Ornent Ecclesiam qui solis rebus spiritualibus vacant, regant ecclesiam quos & labor rerum corporalium non grauatur, &c. <sup>k</sup> It may be Ioseph as being iust was a fine curtaine in Gods Tabernacle, but Matthias a couering; as being apt and and a stie for government. Alia ratio boni civis & boni viri, quoth <sup>1</sup> Aristotle, eue-ry good man is not a good magistrate. <sup>m</sup> Are all Apostles, are all Prophets, are all teachers? There be diuersities of gifts, and diuersities of administrations, and diuersities of operations. Hapily Ioseph excelled in one kinde, and Matthias in another. He who knew to iudge best of the best for this ministation, in his secret wisdome cast the lot on Matthias. Or in electing Matthias, he did insinuate that his <sup>n</sup> waies are not as our waies, and that he iudgeth according to the hearts of all men, and not <sup>o</sup> after the flesh, or titles, or outside. Ioseph is called P Barsabas, that is, the sonne of rest and innocency, surnamed also for his singular honetty Iustus. And yet Matthias is chosen of God, howfoeuer not adorned with such commendations before men. ¶ Here the Gospell and Epistle meet. I thanke thee Father Lord of heauen and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast shewed them vnto babes, euen so was it thy good pleasure. The lot falleth on the sonne of labour, afflicted with the lead of sinne, not on the iust, or on the sonne of rest, on Matthias, and not on Barsabas.

<sup>1</sup> Æthic. lib. 5. cap. 2.
<sup>m</sup> 1 Cor. 12. 29

<sup>n</sup> Esay 55. 8.
<sup>o</sup> Ioh. 8. 15.
<sup>p</sup> Caluin in loc.

<sup>q</sup> Fernus ser 1. de S. Matt.

The Gospell. MATTH. II. 25.

In that time Iesus answered and said, I thanke thee (O Father) Lord of heauen and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast shewed them vnto babes, &c.

Christs exceeding rich mercy toward vs is manifested in this Scripture by two things especially: to wit, his inuocation of God, I thanke thee O Father, &c. And his inuitation of men, Come vnto me all ye that labour, &c.

In both ioyned together, he that hath an eye to see may behold the chiefe causes of our effectuall vocation Efficient, the good pleasure of God the Father, Lord of heauen and earth, &c.

Materiall, babes, and all such as labour and are heavy laden.
Instrumentall, Iesus, vnto whom all things are giuen.
Finall, refreshing and rest in soule.

<sup>r</sup> Aretius in loc.

I thanke thee ] <sup>1</sup> Prayer and thanksgiving vnto God for benefits obtained in prayer, ought alwayes to concurre. Christ had often heretofore prayed for the gathering together of the Church, as it was prophesied of him in the second Psalme; Desire of me, and I will giue thee the Heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession. And now his prayer being heard, he rendreth vnto God his praise, Father, I thanke thee Lord of heauen and earth. In which one line <sup>2</sup> three wicked errors are confuted: first, the words (I thanke thee) confound the Iewes, affirming that Christ was a <sup>u</sup> blasphemers. Secondly, Father, ouerthroweth Arians, and all such as deny Christ to be Gods eternall Sonne. Thirdly, heauen crosseth the Manicheans opinion, holding God to be Creator of visible things only, but not of inuisible.

<sup>1</sup> Melanct. in loc.

<sup>v</sup> Pet. de palud. in loc.
<sup>u</sup> Matth. 26.

Because thou hast hid these things from the wise ] He did not absolutely thanke his Father for hiding the mysteries of his sauing grace from the wise: * but for that he revealed them vnto babes. You may reade the like phrase, Rom. 6. 17. God be thanked that ye haue bene the seruants of sin, but ye haue obtained from the heart vnto the forme of the doctrine which was deliuered vnto you. ¶ The blessed Apostle did not giue thanks vnto God, for that the Romans had made their members as weapons of iniquitie: but because they who sometime were the seruants of sin, through his grace were now the seruants of righteousnes, as Primasius vpon the place, Gratus Deo quia fuistis, sed ipso liberatore iam non estis. Euen so Christ here thanks his Father primarily, not for hiding these things from the wise (that is, wise in their <sup>z</sup> owne eyes, or wise men after the <sup>a</sup> flesh, endued with a wisdome which

<sup>x</sup> Illephors. Giron. fragment. in praesens euang. idem. Pet. de palud. ex Christoff. y Caluin & Caictan in Rom. 6

<sup>z</sup> Prou. 3. 7.
<sup>a</sup> 1 Cor. 1. 26.

<sup>b</sup> 2 Cor. 4. 4.

<sup>c</sup> 1 Cor. 3. 18.

<sup>d</sup> Luk. 10. 21.

<sup>e</sup> *Mari. Mollisus ser. in fest.
Mat.*

<sup>f</sup> Psal. 103. 2.

which is earthly, sensuall, and deuillish, James 3. 15.) but because though he suffer the prince of darknesse to <sup>b</sup> blinde the mindes of the worldly wise: yet he doth openly shew the glorious light of the Gospell vnto babes: that is, vnto such as became <sup>c</sup> fooles that they may be wise, wholly renouncing their owne wit, and solely submitting themselues vnto Gods will. If Iesus <sup>d</sup> reioyced in the Spirit, and magnified the Lord of heauen and earth for vs; <sup>e</sup> O what thanks ought our selues to present vnto God for our selues. Praise the Lord, O my soule, and all that is within me praise his holy name. For mine eyes haue seene thy saluation, and mine heart hath often endited a good matter, and my pen sometimes is the pen of a ready writer. O Father of mercie, whereas these things are yet hid from the Iewes, and from the Turkes, and from the superstitious Heathen, and from carnall Christians; I haue, to the great refreshing of my soule, through thy grace (Iweet Iesu) both heard by the Gospell, and embraced the Gospell, and preached the Gospell, and in some measure practised also the Gospell. <sup>f</sup> O my soule praise the Lord, and forget not all his benefits. I will sing vnto the Lord as long as I liue, I will praise my God while I haue any being, Psal. 104. 33.

The sweetest of hony lieth in the bottome; I passe therefore from Christs inuocation, to the latter part of this Gospell his inuitation.

{ Mouer, Iesus,

{ Moued, all that labour and are laden.

In which obserue the { Motion, Come, take my yoke vpon you, learne of me.

{ Motiues, I will ease you, ye shall finde rest vnto your soules, for my yoke is easie, and my burthen light.

<sup>g</sup> *Vide respon.
Eliensis ad apo-log. Bellar. cap. 8.*

<sup>b</sup> Ioh. 14. 6.

<sup>i</sup> *Musculus
in loc.*

<sup>k</sup> Matth. 7. 7.

<sup>l</sup> Ioh. 16. 23.

The person inuiting is Iesus, he saith here come, not to mine, & but to me: not to my Saints, or Angels, or Martyrs, or Mother: but to my selfe. Send not other, it is my pleasure that ye come: seeke not for helpe from other, I will ease you. Come vnto me, <sup>b</sup> for I am the way, the truth, and the life. The way by which, and the truth in which, and the life for which all of you come. None can come but by me, none finde ease but in me, none rest in ease but with me. Come therefore, for I am the way: learne of me, for I am the truth: and ye shall finde rest vnto your soules, for I am the life. Come to me, <sup>i</sup> for I am (as you see) willing, in saying come, and able to releue you; for that all things are giuen vnto me. So that <sup>k</sup> aske, and ye shall haue: seeke, and ye shall finde: knocke, and it shall be opened vnto you. <sup>l</sup> Whatsoeuer ye shall aske the Father in my name, he will giue it you.

None can come to the Father except it be by the Sonne; for no man knoweth the Father saue the Sonne, and he to whomsoeuer the Sonne will open him. In saying saue the Sonne, he doth not exclude the holy Spirit being the third person in Trinitie, for it is a good conclusion in Diuinitie, <sup>m</sup> diuersio exclusiua sine exceptiua addita termino personali in essentialibus non excludit ab altera persona diuina. God the Father, and God the Holy Ghost, as being all one with the Son, are in the words (nisi filius) included, and only the creatures excluded. For none know the Father by <sup>n</sup> nature, but by the reuelation of the Sonne. We speake the wisdom of God in a mysterie (saith <sup>o</sup> Paul) which none of the Princes of this world knew, hunc magnus Plato nesciuit, eloquens Demosthenes ignorauit. It is true that we may know by the light of humane discourse that there is a God, for the <sup>p</sup> Godhead is seene by the creation of the world: The heauens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth his handie worke, Psal. 19. 1. Yet none know the Father, <sup>q</sup> that is, a distinction of the persons in sacred Trinitie, but by the spirit of him in whom are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge, Coloss. 2. 3. And this our reuealed knowledge is but <sup>r</sup> imperfect in this life. They who saw most of God obtained onely the sight of his hinder parts. And in the kingdome of glory, when as we shall enjoy the beholding of his fore-parts also, seeing him euert face to face; our knowledge shall not be <sup>s</sup> comprehensionis cognitio, sed apprehensionis, an apprehending rather than a comprehending of his infinite Maiesty. We shall not euen in that day know so much of the Father, as the Father knoweth of himselfe, <sup>m</sup> *Caietan.

Ludolphus.
Beauxmans
in loc.*

<sup>n</sup> Hieron. in loc.

<sup>o</sup> 1 Cor. 2. 7.

<sup>p</sup> Rom. 1. 20.

<sup>q</sup> Caietan.

<sup>r</sup> 1 Cor. 13. 2.

<sup>s</sup> *Pet. palud.
in loc. ex August.
idem Thom.
part. 1. quest. 12.
art. 8. & Caietan
in ibidem.*

<sup>c</sup> Sol. i quippe trinitas in unitatis diuinitate seipsam nouit. In this life wee shall attaine by Christs grace to such vnderstanding of God as is fit, and in the world to come we shall haue so much as is full, euen so much as any created vessell is able to containe; yet none shall euer totally comprehend that incomprehensible Trinitie, none can as it selfe know it selfe. &c.

Hitherto concerning the partie calling; I am now to speake of the persons inuited. All ye that labour and are heauy laden. He doth except<sup>n</sup> none, who came to bring<sup>x</sup> all vnto the knowledge of the trueth, y if all that labour, then all that liue. For man borne of a woman is full of trouble, Job. 14. 1. Come therefore all yee that labour in your<sup>a</sup> actions, and are laden in your passions. All yee<sup>a</sup> Iewes who labour vnder the yoke of the law, and all ye Gentiles oppressed with the burthen of your sinnes. All yee that labour wherefoeuer, and whenfoeuer, and how soeuer afflicted or affected with miserie. For these two, labour, and laden are (as<sup>b</sup> some conceiue) simply in the same, signifying all kinde of grieffe, for es, and sorrow whafoeuer. As in the 6. and 63, Psalmes, I am weary of my groaning, I am weary of my crying, &c.

To speake more distinctly, there is a<sup>c</sup> threefold burden, namely, the burthen of Affliction.

The Law.
Sinne.

Christ easeth all such as come to him of all these. Concerning the first, Great trauell (saith the sonne of<sup>d</sup> Sirach) is created for all men, and a heauy yoke vpon the sonnes of Adam, euen vpon the day that that they goe out of the mothers wombe, till the day that they returne to the mother of all things. But Christ, a<sup>e</sup> refuge in due time of trouble, yea, a<sup>f</sup> present helpe, doth either take away this burthen from our shoulders, or else giueth vnto such as come to him abundant strength and patience to beare it. Art thou crossed in thy goods? It is the Lord who giueth, and the Lord who taketh away.<sup>g</sup> Cast all your care vpon him, and he will so care for you, that this burthen shall bee made light, and this yoke easie. Art thou wronged in thy good name? Say with<sup>i</sup> Dauid, it may be the Lord will looke vpon mine affliction, and doe me good, for Shemi his cursing me this day. Come to Christ, and hee will bring it to passe, that thy greatest enimie shall (if hee haue any sparke of grace) confesse ingenuously to thee (as<sup>k</sup> Saul once to Dauid) Thou art more righteous then I, for thou hast rendred me good, and I haue rendred thee euill. He shall make thy righteousness as cleare as the light, and thy iust dealing as the noone day. Psal. 27. 6. Art thou much afflicted with sicknesse? I (saith the Lord) am he, who kill, and giue life, wound, and make whole, m bring downe to the graue, and raise vp againe. I am the resurrection and the life, he that beleueth in me, though hee were dead, yet shall he liue. John 11. 25.

The second burden is that of the Law, a yoke which neither our fathers nor wee were able to beare, saith S. Peter. Act. 15. 10. a yoke of<sup>n</sup> bondage, a<sup>o</sup> heauy burthen, and grieuous to be borne. Now Christ easeth vs of this burthen also, being<sup>p</sup> made vnder the Law, to redeeme them vnder the law. He<sup>q</sup> blotted out the hand-writting of ordinances that was against vs, which was contrary to vs, and tooke it out of the way, nayling it to the Crosse. So that if Satan, that informer and common accuser of vs all, obiect the Lawes obligation against vs, our answere may be, that the debt is payed, and the bond cancelled. If his euidence be good, let him if he can shew it in the court. Christ is the end of the Law, Rom. 10. 4. For the Law was added because of the transgression, vntill the blessed seed came, to the which, the promise was made, Galath. 3. 19. The Prophets and the Law did endure till Iohn, but since<sup>r</sup> the kingdome of heauen suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force, The blessed seed is come, when once Christ<sup>s</sup> dwelleth in our hearts by faith, and then it is time for the Law to be packing out of the conscience, then her kingdome is at an end. Come therefore to Christ all yee that labour vnder the yoke of the Law written, and all ye which

<sup>c</sup> *Marialis E-pisc. Lemouic. n.
ad Burdegal.
epist. 10.*

<sup>d</sup> *Luther.
Milanul, Bullenger.
x 1. Tim. 2. 4.
y Ferus ser, 2.
in Fest. Matth.
z Caetan.
a Theophylact.*

<sup>b</sup> *Iansen. Con.
cap. 47.*

<sup>e</sup> *Pontanus ser.
in fest Matth.
Idem Iansen.
ubi sup*

<sup>d</sup> Eccles 40. 1.

<sup>e</sup> *Psal 9. 9.
f Psal 46. 1*

<sup>g</sup> *Job 1. 21.
h 1. Pet. 5. 7.*

<sup>i</sup> 2. Sam. 16. 12.

<sup>k</sup> 1. Sam. 24. 18

<sup>l</sup> *Deut. 33. 39.
m 2. Sam 2. 6.*

<sup>n</sup> *Galath 5. 1.
o Mat. h 22. 4.
p Galath. 4. 4.
q Coloss 2. 14.*

<sup>r</sup> Matth. 11. 12.

<sup>s</sup> Eph 3. 17.

are laden with the burden of pharisaicall traditions vnwritten, and yee shall finde rest vnto your soules.

The third burthen is of sinne, the which is so weightie, that <sup>c</sup> Zacharius calls it a talent of lead, and <sup>u</sup> Dauid who felt the load himselfe saith of it expressly, There is no health in my flesh because of thy displeasure, neither is there any rest in bones by reason of my sinne, for my wickednesses are gone ouer my head, and are like a sore burthen too beauiy for me to beare. And here let vs obserue with <sup>x</sup> Euthymius, That sinne is first a labour in accomplishing, and then a load when it is accomplished. The couetous, incontinent, ambitious, exceedingly labour to compass their vnlawfull desires, and yet when all is done, they remaine still as men vndone. For no man is more begger-like, then a couetous wretch in an opulent fortune, nor more base, then a proud man in the midst of his honour. There is a labour in getting these things, and when once they be got, a load. <sup>v</sup> All is but vanitie and vexation of spirit. They who truly repent them of their sinne, feele this burthen in this world, and they who being irrepentant, lare in a <sup>z</sup> reprobate sence, shall at the last day notwithstanding confesse to their endlesse shame. <sup>a</sup> We haue wearied our selues in the wayes of Wickednesse and destruction. Now Christ saith vnto such as grieue and groane vnder the burden of their finnes, <sup>b</sup> I am not come to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance <sup>c</sup> The spirit of the Lord is vpon me that I should preach the Gospell vnto the poore, hee hath sent me that I should heale the broken hearted, that I should preach deliuerance to the captiues, and recovering of sight to the blinde.

He calleth all that labour, <sup>d</sup> sive secundum naturam in qua nascimur; sive secundum culpam qua transgredimur; sive secundum penam in qua morimur. All men, as you haue heard insufficiently, <sup>e</sup> yet only such as labour and are laden with the burden of their finnes efficiently. The carnall and carelesse haue <sup>f</sup> eyes and see not, eares and heare not, hearts and vnderstand not. <sup>g</sup> How often would I (saith he who calleth all) haue gathered you together, as the heu gathereth her chickens vnder her wings, and yee would not? And in this present chapter at the seuenteenth verse, Wee haue piped vnto you, and yee haue not danced, we haue mourned vnto you and ye haue not lamented. That is, as (<sup>h</sup> Ambrose construethe it) we haue preached vnto you the sweet comforts of the Gospel, and ye haue not reioyced in spirit: we haue denounced vnto you the terrible iudgements of God contained in the Law, and ye haue not trembled at our words. O thinke on this all yee that forget God, all yee that stop your eares and harden your hearts at his voyce; repent and exhort one another <sup>i</sup> while it is to day, seeke the Lord while he may be found, and call vpon him, and come vnto him while he is neere, Esay 55.6.

Yea, but where shall we finde thee, sweet Iesus? I am (saith he) found in my works, and in my words, and in my Sacraments. In my works: <sup>k</sup> for they beare witnesse of me, they shew that by me the blinde receiue sight, and halt goe and the leapers are cleansed, and the dead are raised vp Matth. 17.5. In my word, for <sup>l</sup> the Scriptures are they which testifie of me. There you shall reade, how God soloued the world, that he gaue his only begotten Sonne, that whosoever beleueth in him should not perish but haue euerlasting life. John 3.16. In my Sacraments, <sup>m</sup> He that eateth my flesh and drinketh my bloud dwelleth in me, and I in him; if yee come to my table, yee shall be refreshed with my flesh and my bloud, <sup>n</sup> reficietis si accesseris, deficietis si recesseris.

I come now to the comming or motion, and that is by <sup>o</sup> faith and not by feet, moribus non pedibus, by loue not by legs: come to me then in faith, and take my yoke vpon you in hope, and learne of me meekenesse and lowlinesse in loue; <sup>p</sup> he that comes to God must beleue that God is, and that hee is a rewarder of such as seeke him: hee must in hope beare Christs yoke, the which in respect of the present labour is beauiy; but in respect of the <sup>q</sup> future retribution hoped for, easie: to saith he must adioyne loue, whereof there be two principall obiects, and two principall offices: the principall obiects of our loue are God and our neighbours,

<sup>c</sup> Zachar. 5.7.
<sup>u</sup> 1. sal. 38.3.

<sup>x</sup> in loc.

<sup>v</sup> Ecclesia. 1. 14

<sup>z</sup> Rom. 1.28.

<sup>a</sup> Wis. 5.7.

<sup>b</sup> Matth 9.13.
<sup>c</sup> Luke 4.18.

<sup>d</sup> Ludolph de
vna Christ. part.
1 cap. 58.
<sup>e</sup> Musculus.
Caluin.

<sup>f</sup> Giran
<sup>g</sup> Matth 13.14
<sup>h</sup> Matth. 23.37

<sup>i</sup> Ser. 80.

<sup>j</sup> Hebr 3.13.

<sup>k</sup> Iohn 10. 25.

<sup>l</sup> Iohn 5.39.

<sup>m</sup> Iohn 6.56.
<sup>n</sup> August. tract.
11 in Ioan.

<sup>o</sup> Remigius apud
Thors. in loc.
Idem Ludolph.
ubi supra.
<sup>p</sup> Heb. 11.6.

<sup>q</sup> Theophylact.
in loc.

neighbours, <sup>r</sup> lowlinesse in heart disposeth aright of our loue toward God, and meekenesse sheweth how we should demean our selues in our carriage toward our neighbours: the two principall offices of our loue are to giue and to forgive; lowlinesse is ready to giue euery man his due, meekenesse to forgine euery man his debt: or we must be <sup>t</sup> mites moribus & humiles mentibus, in our outward behaiour towards other mecke; in our inward conceit of our selues humble: lowly, not in complement or habit only, but in heart: for as the <sup>t</sup> Wise man telleth vs, there be some that being about wicked purposes, doe bow downe themselves and are sad, whose inward parts burne altogether with deceit: he looketh downe with his face, and faineth himselfe deafe: yet before thou percaine he will bee vpon thee to hurt thee.

<sup>u</sup> Christ would not haue vs imitate him in his miracles, as in walking vpon the waters, in raising the dead, in making a new world: but in his moralls, in his meekenesse and lowlines especially, for these vertues are the lessons he teacheth, in whom are hid all the treasures of Wisdome and knowledge: it is so great a thing in our owne eyes to be little, that no man is able to learne it of any, but of him onely, who being in the <sup>x</sup> forme of God, tooke vpon him the forme of a seruant, and became man, yea a <sup>y</sup> worme and no man, a very scorne of men, and out cast of the people: termed Apocalyp. 1. 8. the first and the last; in maiestie the first, in <sup>z</sup> meeknesse as the last; his whole life being nothing else but an open booke, or rather an open shop of humilitie: descend then, if thou wilt ascend, if thou desire to build high, and to seeke the things aboue, lay thy foundation low; humblenesse of mind is <sup>a</sup> schola and scala cali, the schoole teaching, and the scale reaching heauen.

<sup>b</sup> Quo minor est quisquis maximus est Hominum.

I will ease you ] <sup>c</sup> The world cryeth, ego deficiam I will leaue you: the flesh cryeth ego inficiam, I will corrupt you: the deuill cryeth, ego interficiam, I will destroy you: but he (which is <sup>d</sup> verax, verus, veritas, euer speaking the truth, as euer being the truth) opposeth himselfe against all these mortall enemies, and faith, ego reficiam, I will ease you. This one clause then, is the very close, yea the very <sup>e</sup> summe of the whole Gospell, in as much as all our learning and labouring is for this end, that we may finde refreshing and rest vnto our soules in the end: The Latine reficiam hath <sup>f</sup> three significations.

1. Reficere, is to reparaire or renew. Matth. 4, 21. reficientes retia James and John were mending their nets, &c. and so Christ as being the brightnesse of Gods glory and his expresse character of his person, restoreth againe Gods image defaced in vs through Adams fall, ut recreatio creationi responderet, faith <sup>h</sup> Aguine, that the redemption of the world might answer the creation; he who first made, now mendeth vs, all of vs being <sup>i</sup> the workmanship of God in Christ as creatures and as new creatures: as creatures, for in the beginning was the Word, all things were made by it, and without it was made: nothing that was made: as <sup>k</sup> new ceatures, for Christ Iesus is the new man we must put on, of whom we must learne meeknesse and lowlinesse, that we may walke in newnesse of life. Rom. 6. 4.

2. Reficere, doth signifie to strengthen with meat, in which accption a common hall in a Colledge where the societie meet and eat together, is called a refectorie; now Christ hath a two-fold refectorie for all such as come vnto him, one in his kingdome of grace, when he <sup>m</sup> prepareth a table for vs in despite of our foe, refreshing vs with the food of his word, of his supper of his examples vntill we are made fat, Prou. 28. 25. euen so full and faire, that the Church in admiration hereof asketh her best beloued, <sup>n</sup> shew me where thou feedest? another refectorie Christ hath in his kingdome of glory, Luke 22. 30. Yee shall eat and drinke at my table in my kingdome, there God hath prepared for those that loue him a banquet of such delicacies as eye hath not seene, neither care hath heard, neither heart of man able to concieue. 1. Cor. 2. 9. <sup>o</sup> Sentiri potest, dici non potest. Come then vnto me all ye <sup>p</sup> that hunger and thirst after righteounesse, and I will feed you, feast you, fill you, feed you with the <sup>q</sup> sincere milke of my doctrine, feast

<sup>r</sup> Beauuamis Har. Tom. 2. fol. 259.

<sup>t</sup> Rabanus apud Thom
<sup>u</sup> Ecclef. 19. 25.

<sup>v</sup> August de verb. Apost. ser. 21 & lib. de Virgin. cap 35.

<sup>x</sup> Philip. 2. 6.
<sup>y</sup> Psal. 22. 6.

<sup>z</sup> Gloss.

<sup>a</sup> Bonauent. dist. salut. cap. 36.

<sup>b</sup> Hilbert. in epitaph Bern. gary apud Mal. mes in vita Will. 1.

<sup>c</sup> Bernard.
<sup>d</sup> August. de verb. Apost. ser. 21.

<sup>e</sup> Culman in loc.
<sup>f</sup> Vide Chron. Con. 2 in fist. Matth. 8 Heb. 1. 3.

<sup>h</sup> Part. 1. quest. 3. art. 8.

<sup>i</sup> Ephes. 2. 10.

<sup>k</sup> 2. Cor. 5. 17.

<sup>l</sup> Rom. 12. 14.

<sup>m</sup> Psal. 23. 5.

<sup>n</sup> Can. 1. 6.

<sup>o</sup> Rupert. in Matth. 11. 6. P. Matth. 5. 6. q. 1. Pet. 2. 2.

<sup>c</sup> Prov. 15. 15.

you with a cheerfulness of conscience which is a continuall feast, fill you with an overflowing cup in the state of glory: come to me, nay if you will open the wicket of your heart when I knocke and desire to come to you, I will sup with you, and you shall also sup with me, Apocalyp. 3. 20.

<sup>f</sup> Iansenius.

Marlorat,

<sup>e</sup> Suaue contra laborem, leue contra onus. Cate: an. in loc.

<sup>u</sup> Psal. 128. 2.

<sup>x</sup> Augustin. in Psal. 127.

<sup>71</sup> Cor. 10. 13.

<sup>2</sup> Musculus in loc.

<sup>a</sup> Esay 16. 1.

<sup>b</sup> Pet. de Palud.

<sup>c</sup> Luther loc. con tit. de furijs male Conscien.
<sup>d</sup> Rom. 5. 3.

<sup>e</sup> Bonavent. e. iet. salu. cap. 49.

<sup>f</sup> Apocal. 21. 4.

<sup>3</sup> Musculus.

<sup>h</sup> Theophylast. Euthym.

<sup>1</sup> Confess. lib. 8. cap 6

<sup>k</sup> See resolved Gentleman, pag. 14.

<sup>l</sup> Gueuara epist.

3. Reficere, signifieth as our text runneth here, to refresh and to ease such as labour and are laden, and this <sup>f</sup> exprisseth the word uicaciosa best; and is most agreeable to the clause going afore, labour and are laden & the words following after, rest, ease, light: as if he should haue sayd, <sup>r</sup> I will ease such as labour, and giue rest vnto such as are laden, I will make their heauy burden light, and their hard yoke ease, so that they shall count it exceeding ioy to fall into diuers temptations, James 1. 2. as sorrowing, and yet alway reioycing, 2. Cor. 6. 10. <sup>u</sup> blessed in eating the labours of their hands. As men of the world are <sup>x</sup> infelicititer felices, vnhappy in being so much happy: so the children of God are felicititer infelices, happy in feeling their load, and vnderstanding their vnhappinesse, for <sup>71</sup> God is faithfull, and will not suffer his children to be tempted about their abilitie, but will euen with the temptation make a way to escape, that they may be able to beare it. This ease Paul found vnto the rest of his soule, 2. Cor. 4. 8. We are troubled on euery side yet are mee not in distresse: perplexed but not in despaire: persecuted, but not forsaken, cast downe but yet not cast away. A <sup>2</sup> Physitian (albeit he bee nener so skiffull in his Art) cannot absolutely promise that he will ease you: his comforts are, I will endeavour to giue you rest, if I can I will helpe you, neither inuention of wit, or intention of will, I assure you shall be wanting: but Christ here saith, I will, I can, as hauing all things giuen vnto me of my Father; and I will, as being <sup>a</sup> sent into the world to comfort such as mourne in Sion.

Yee shall finde rest vnto your soules] <sup>b</sup> Some finde rest in their bodie, but not in their soule, as the Glotton, mentioned Luke 16. his bodie was richly clothed, and deliciously pampered euery day, but his soule (so full of fores as Lazarus at his gate) found no rest: <sup>c</sup> one drop of a bad conscience did drinke vp as it were the whole sea of his worldly delights; some finde rest in their soule, but not in their body; so the seruants of God are said to <sup>d</sup> reioyce in tribulations, as the blessed Apostles, Act. 5. afflicted in body, reioyced in spirit, because they were counted worthy to suffer for Christis Name: some neither in bodie nor soule, as the damned in hell, hauing <sup>e</sup> panarum & dinerstatem & vniuersitatem, a fire to torment the bodie, a worme to torture the soule. Esay 66. 24. some both in bodie and in soule, as Gods elect in heaven, who rest from their labour, Apocalyp. 14. 13. and from their griefe, for <sup>f</sup> God shall wipe away all teares from their eyes, and there shall be no more dying, or crying: and from their feare, Job 11. 19. When thou takest thy rest, none shall affright thee: come then vnto me all ye that labour and are laden, and ye shall finde rest here begun, hereafter accomplished fully: ye shall finde, & not by your owne industrie, but through my grace, first I will ease you, then ye shall finde rest vnto your soules: vnlesse I giue you means to seeke, ye cannot finde, if you will hane it, I pray come to me for it.

For my yoke is ease, and my burden light] <sup>h</sup> Some construe this of Christis humilitie, because meeke and lowly persons hane more rest and ease than the proud and ambitious, cuer labouring for higher place; per quot pericula perueniunt ad grandius periculum? as <sup>i</sup> Augustine sweetly. The Courtier is indeed restie, yet restless: <sup>k</sup> if he turne gallant, he shall bee condemned as vaine: if otherwise, disgraced with the titles of basenesse: if he follow his studies, he shall be thought dangerous; if not, argued of ignorance: if hee haue travelled, his seruice will be questioned: if not, hee shall bee reputed vncapable of employment. So miserable is his estate, that his imperfections are hated, his vertues suspected, and either of them both alike able to barre him from preferment. <sup>l</sup> Hee must euer studie not so much to haue friends, as to beware of his enemies. In a word, there is lesse seruice in seruing of God then the King: for the King hath onely some few houres of audience, whereas God, saith, At what time soeuer a sinner doth repent of his sinne from the bottome of his heart, I will put all his wickednesse out of my remembrance.

But<sup>m</sup> most Interpreters vnderstand this of Christs Gospell and doctrine, <sup>n</sup> for his burthen is light vnto such as he refresheth and easeth from the burthen of sinne, his commandements are not heauie to them whose faith ouercommerh the world, 1. Iohn 5. 3. A<sup>o</sup> yoke when it is greene is heauie, but when it is somewhat worne, ease. Now Christ himselfe did first weare this yoke, that it might be seasoned and made light for vs. If he commanded other to fast, he himselfe fasted: if he commanded other to pray, himselfe prayed: if he commanded other to forgiue, himselfe pardoned: if he commanded other to die, himselfe also died, &c. And therefore saith he, learne of me. <sup>p</sup> For this yoke will appeare to be sweet, if once you be well acquainted with it as I am. It<sup>q</sup> is my yoke, not yours. I put my shoulder vnto the burthen, and beare more than you, factus est principatus super humerum eius, Esay 9. 6. Christ doth as <sup>r</sup> Paul saith, Who is weake, and I am not weake? who is offended, and I burne not? I beare the yoke when ye suffer, Act. 9. 4. Saul; Saul, why persecutest thou me? To this purpose <sup>t</sup> Paulinus excellently, Christus & patiens & triumphans in sanctis suis: in Abel, occisus a fratre: in Noe, irrisus a filio: in Abraham perigrinatus, in Isaac oblatatus, in Ioseph venditus, in Mose fugatus, in Prophetis lapidatus, in Apostolis terra marique iactatus. When as then ye labour and are laden heauily, learne of me, yealcane on me: Psalme 55. 23. Cast thy burthen vpon the Lord, and he shall nourish thee, Come to me and I will ease you. So<sup>t</sup> S. Augustine doth expound this clause, Christs burthen in it selfe (saith he) is exceeding troublesome, for<sup>u</sup> all that will liue godly in Christ Iesus shall suffer persecution: but his spirit<sup>x</sup> helpeth our infirmities, and sweeteneth affliction for vs; he maketh vs willing, and so by consequent able to beare his burthen, and vndergo his yoke. For<sup>y</sup> vbi amor est, non est labor sed sapor, vnto the willing all things are welcome. The way to heauen is<sup>z</sup> angusta paucis eligentibus, facilis tamen omnibus diligentibus. O come then vnto Christ, and take vp his yoke. <sup>a</sup> Feare it not as being a yoke, but beare it as being ease. Respect not the present paine, but expect the future pleasure For our light affliction which is but for a moment, causeth vnto vs a farre more excellent and eternall weight of glorie, 2. Cor. 4. 17.

It is very remarkable, that Christ saith in the<sup>b</sup> singular, yoke, for he doth not command vs to plough with many yokes. The diuell enticeth vs to many vices which are contrarie, the world hath many troubles which are contrarie, the flesh also many desires which are contrarie: but God hath vpon the point but one commandement, namely, that<sup>c</sup> we beleene in his Sonne Iesus Christ, and expresse this faith in louing one another. All that Christ on our part requireth is, that we come to him, and learne of him. <sup>d</sup> If thou shalt acknowledge with thy mouth the Lord Iesus, and shalt beleene in thine heart that God hath raised him up from the dead, thou shalt be saued. The Gospell is called a burthen and a yoke, <sup>e</sup> lest we presume: yet light and ease, lest we despaire. <sup>f</sup> By this one sentence, two sorts of men are confuted especially: the carnall Gospellers on the right hand, who because iustification is by faith onely, hold themselues free from all burthens: and the superstitious Monkes and merit-mongers on the left hand, loading the consciences of men with too many burthens. O sweet Iesu, so guide me with thy holy Spirit, that I may walke betweene these two rocks in thy mid-way. Thou, (to whom all things are giuen) giue me thy grace, that I may come to thee, learne of thee, rest in thee: That I may so beare thy crosse on earth, as that I may weare thy crowne in heauen. Amen.

<sup>m</sup> Augustin.
Hieron Iansen Musculus, Ma-donat &c.
<sup>n</sup> Dr. Fulke in
loc.
<sup>o</sup> Guevara epist.

<sup>p</sup> Calvin.
<sup>q</sup> Didac. Yan-guas Con. 2. de
S Math.
<sup>r</sup> 2. Cor. 11. 29.

<sup>t</sup> Epist. lib. 4.
epist. 1.

<sup>u</sup> De verbis
Dom secund.
Math. ser. 9.
<sup>v</sup> 2. Tim. 3. 12.
<sup>w</sup> Rom. 8. 26.
<sup>x</sup> Bernard ser.
85. in Cant.
<sup>y</sup> August. vbi
supra.
<sup>z</sup> Ambros. de Elia cap. 22.

<sup>b</sup> Guevara epist.

<sup>c</sup> 1 Ioh 3. 23.

<sup>d</sup> Rom. 10. 9.
Si credis iustus
es. Luther.

<sup>e</sup> Euthym.
<sup>f</sup> Marlorat.

The Epistle. ESAY 7.10.

God spake once againe to Abaz, saying, require a token of the Lord thy God, &c.

IN this Scripture two things are more chiefly considerable; namely, the Goodnes of God	}	Particularly towards Abaz King of Iuda, God spake againe to Abaz saying, aske a signe, &c.

		Generally towards all the house of Dauid , euen the whole Church, A Virgin shall conceive , &c.
Wickednes of Abaz	}	Open & vnthankfulnesse and insolent impietie, Then said Abaz, I will aske none.
		Secret hypocrisie, couering his contempt and Atheisme with a cloake of deuotion and dutie, neither will I tempt the Lord.

<sup>e</sup> Calvin in loc.
<sup>h</sup> Hieron in loc.
<sup>i</sup> Hyperius.
<sup>l</sup> Vatablus.
<sup>k</sup> Musculus.
<sup>m</sup> Hen. Molerus.

<sup>1</sup> Psa. 46. 1.

<sup>n</sup> Calvin.

<sup>o</sup> Kilius in epist.
 annum idem
<sup>p</sup> Musculus in loc.
<sup>q</sup> 2. King. 16. &
<sup>r</sup> 2. Chron. 28.
<sup>s</sup> Ezech. 33. 1. 1.

<sup>t</sup> Psa. 125. 4.

<sup>u</sup> 2. Pet 3. 9.

<sup>v</sup> Act. 8. 23.
<sup>w</sup> 1. Kin 21. 25.
<sup>x</sup> Ephes 4. 19.
<sup>y</sup> Rom. 2. 3.

<sup>z</sup> Calvin.

God spake againe to Abaz] In the dayes of Abaz the sonne of Iotham, the sonne of Vzziah King of Iudah (as we read in the beginning of this present Chapter) Rezin the King of Aram, and Pekath the sonne of Remaliah King of Israel came vp and fought against Hierusalem. Now God (as being a present helpe in trouble) sent his Prophet Esay to comfort King Abaz in this extremitie, saying verse 4. Fear not, neither be faint hearted for the two tailes of these smoaking fi ebrands, for the furious wrath of Rezin, and of Remaliahs sonne. For albeit they determine to depose thee, and to dispose of thy kingdome, purposing to set vp in thy throne the sonne of Tabeal, vers. 6. yet thus saith the Lord God, their counsell shall not stand, neither shall it be: for the head of Aram is Damascus, and the head of Damascus is Rezin, and within threescore and sine yeeres Ephraim shall be broken from being a people. <sup>m</sup> As if he should say, these two kingdomes shall haue their limits, and their two Kings must be content with their owne greatnesse, they both aspire to the Crowne, but I haue set them their bounds which they shall not passe. Beleeue my words and it shall go well with you; but if ye will not beleue, surely ye shall not be established, vers. 9. And therefore that Abaz and his people might giue credit to this promise, the Lord (saith our text) spake once more to Abaz.

<sup>n</sup> Where note Gods long suffering and patience towards an Idolatrous and a wicked King, <sup>o</sup> who did not vprightly in the sight of the Lord his God, like Dauid his father: but made his son goe thorow the fire after the abominations of the Heathen, whom the Lord had cast out before the children of Israel, and offered, and burnt incense in the high places, and on the hills, and vnder euery greene tree. The Lord <sup>p</sup> desired not the death of a sinner, but that he may turne from his euill wayes and liue; speaking to him, as here to Abaz, againe and againe; Turne you, turne you for why will ye die O ye house of Israel? He doth inuite to mercie, not only such as are godly men, according to the prayer of <sup>q</sup> Dauid, Doe well O Lord vnto those that bee good and true of heart: but he maketh his Sunne to rise on the euill, and fendeth his raine on the iust and on the vniust, Matth. 5. 45. He is not slacke saith <sup>r</sup> Peter in comming to iudgement (as some men count slacknesse) but is patient toward vs, and would haue no man to perish, but would all men to come to repentance. Wherefore thou, whosoever thou be which art in the gall of bitternesse, <sup>s</sup> selling thy selfe to worke wickednesse, nay <sup>t</sup> giuing thy selfe to wantonnesse, to commit all vncleannesse, euen with greedinesse: <sup>u</sup> how dost thou thinke thou shalt escape the iudgement of God? or <sup>v</sup> dispiseest thou the riches of his bountifullnesse, and patience, and long sufferance, not knowing that the goodnesse of God leadeth thee to repentance? The Lord spake to Abaz againe, yet not onely for his sake, nor for the wicked alone: <sup>w</sup> but rather to prouide for the weake which had some seeds of godlinesse. For albeit they did offend the Lord very much in their distrust and Idolatrie: yet

God

God as being the Father of <sup>a</sup> mercies, in wrath remembers mercie, Habac. 3. 2. Compassion and forgiveness is in the Lord our God, albeit we haue rebelled against him, Dan. 9. 9.

<sup>a</sup> 2. Cor. 1 3.

Require a token of the Lord thy God] <sup>a</sup> As if Esay should haue said, I perceiue you giue little credit to my report, entertaining my speech as the words of a meere man and not as the word of God. Wherefore to demonstrate that I come not in mine owne name, but from the Lord of Hosts, Aske a signe, <sup>b</sup> not of Idols, or of strange gods vnable to helpe thee: but of thy God. Aske a signe, not of me, but of the Lord, <sup>c</sup> which only doth wondrous things. Aske of him, Abaz, and thou shalt vnderstand, that it is the Lord who speaks vnto thee. God for the confirmation of our faith <sup>d</sup> addeth vnto his promises, as props of our infirmitie, signes and tokens, which <sup>e</sup> Augustine calls aptly, visible words. And these signes are of two sorts, extraordinarie, whereof the Prophet in our present text, and that which was giuen to Hezekiah in the 38. Chapter of this Prophecie. verse 7. ordinarie, in daily vse as Baptisme, and the Lords Supper, the which are signes and seales of Gods holy couenant with vs. And we must so ioyne faith vnto the word, that we despise not the Sacraments, which Almighty God offereth as helps for the strengthening of our faith. <sup>e</sup> It is a true saying that Iesus Christ came into the world to saue sinners: and this saying ought by all meanes to be receiued; and one chiefe meane is the ministracion of the Sacraments: and therefore the franticke spirits in our time, who make no reckoning of Baptisme, nor of the blessed Eucharist, but esteeme them abces only for little children, are worthily censured by reuerend <sup>f</sup> Caluin, to separate those things which God hath ioyned together.

<sup>a</sup> Musculus.

<sup>b</sup> Hierome.

<sup>c</sup> Psal. 72. 18.

<sup>d</sup> Mollerus. Caluin. Tract. 18. in Ioan.

<sup>e</sup> 1. Tim. 1. 15.

<sup>f</sup> In loc.

Whether it be toward the depth beneath, or toward the height above] The Prophet preferibes not what token Abaz should aske, sleast haply the truth of the miracle might be suspected; but he leaueth it to the Kings owne free choise, whether he will haue it toward the depth or height, <sup>h</sup> that is, in earth or heauen. Or it may be the word depth is of some deeper signification; <sup>i</sup> as if Esay should say, God will openly shew thee that his dominion is farre aboue all the world; yea that it reacheth euen from the heauen of heauens, to the very depth of depths, infomuch as he can at his good pleasure fetch Angels out of heauen, and also raise the verie dead out of their graue. <sup>k</sup> Here then obserue Gods omnipotencie, who can doe whatsoeuer he will in heauen, and in earth, and in the sea, and in all deepe places, Psal. 135. 6. <sup>l</sup> O God the great and mightie, great in councell, and mightie in worke, Behold thou hast made the heauen, and the earth, by thy great power and stretched out arme, and there is nothing hard vnto thee. This doctrine is comfortable to the godly, who <sup>m</sup> dwell vnder the defence of the most high, and abide vnder the shadow of his wings, hauing his spirit for their guide, and his Angels for their guard, But it is verie terrible to the wicked, in that all the creatures in heauen, in earth, and vnder earth attend the Lord of Hosts, euermore readie to fight against such as fight against him.

<sup>g</sup> Musculus.

<sup>h</sup> Vatablus.

<sup>i</sup> Hi. ron. Caluin.

<sup>k</sup> Kilius.

<sup>l</sup> Ier 32. 17.

I will require none] This argueth his <sup>n</sup> pride, rather than humbleness. Or as <sup>o</sup> other, his trust in the strength of the King of <sup>p</sup> Ashur, rather than his affiance in the King of Kings. And yet he colours his foule contempt <sup>q</sup> hypocritically with a faire pretence, saying, I will not tempt the Lord; alluding doubtlesse to the text, Deut. 6. 16. Ye shall not tempt the Lord your God. He forgot the words in the same Chapter a little before, Ye shall not walke after other gods, &c. and only wrested that clause which he thought would fit his turne: wret I say, for to require a signe when God inuitheth and inioyneth vs, is not to tempt the Lord, but to trust and obey, which is <sup>r</sup> better than sacrifice. Gedeon is commended for asking signes of the Lord, Iudg. 6. the Pharises on the contrarie, condemned euen by <sup>s</sup> Christ himselfe, The wicked generation and adulterous seeketh a signe. Now the reason hereof is exceeding plaine, their actions differed in their <sup>t</sup> ends: for whereas Gedeon asketh a signe to be confirmed in Gods promise; the Pharises required miracles of Christ out of curiositie to betray, rather then to be taught

<sup>m</sup> Psal. 91. 1.

<sup>n</sup> Hierom.

<sup>o</sup> Hyperius.

<sup>p</sup> 2. King. 16.

<sup>q</sup> Musculus.

Caluin.

Mollerus.

<sup>r</sup> 1. Sam. 15. 22.

<sup>s</sup> Matth. 16. 4.

<sup>t</sup> Mollerus.

Musculus.

taught of him : in this acceptable time of grace we need not aske for new miracles, it is sufficient to beleue those which are recorded in holy Bible. The blessed Sacraments are Gods ordinarie signes appointed in his word for the strengthening of our faith, he that refuseth them as a superfluous help, commits the sinne of Abaz, he that vseth them according to Christs ordinance, spiritually receiues Christ himself, as <sup>a</sup> Ducandus pithily, verbum audimus, motum sentimus, modum ne scimus, presentiam credimus.

Heare ye now, o house of Dauid ] Forasmuch as it was an intolerable wickednesse, to shut the gates against the might and mercies of God, vnder colour of honestie and modestie; the Prophet is iustly displeas'd, and sharply rebukes these painted * sepulchres, and saith, heare ye now o house of Dauid, &c. For albeit it was an honour for them to be held the race of Dauid (if they had walked in the steps of Dauid) yet not notwithstanding he now calls them house of Dauid, rather by way of reproach than otherwise. And in very deed the contempt and vnthankfulnesse in refusing a signe was so much the more hainous, because this fauour was reiected by that house, out of which the saluation of the whole world should come. Note then here the Prophets order and exquisite method in teaching: first he begins with doctrine, take heed, be still, and feare not, &c. then he proceeds to the confirmation of his doctrine, require a token of the Lord thy God, &c. Lastly, when he saw that both his offered signes and sayings vnto King Abaz were fruitles, he comes to reproof, grieuously chiding this obstinate man; and not him alone, but also all the royal house defiled with this impiety; we must in our ministry take the like course: first beginning with doctrine, then proceeding to confirmation, and when these two faile, we must (as our Prophet speaks elsewhere) lift up our voice like a trumpet; shewing Gods people their transgressions and to the house of Iacob their sinnes, after proofs we must (as Esay here) come to reproofe: auditorum lachryma laudes tuas sunt, as <sup>a</sup> Hierome doth aduise negotians, for saith he, melius est ex duobus imperfectis rusticitatem sanctam habere, quam eloquentiam peccatricem: and <sup>b</sup> Martin Luther that sonne of thunder was wont to say, Cortex meus esse potest durior, sed nucleus mollis & dulcis est.

It is not enough for you that ye be grieuous vnto men, but ye must grieue my God also ] He doth vse comparisons betweene God and men, not as if the Prophets could in deed be separated from God, for they be nothing else but his instruments, hauing one common cause with him as long as they discharge their duties, according to that of Christ, Luke 10. 16. He that heareth you, heareth me: and he that despiseth you, despiseth me: the Prophet then shapeth his speech according to the wicked opinion of Abaz, and his followers, imagining that they had to doe with men only, as if he should say, though I am a mortall man as you conceiue, yet in reiecting the signe which is offered vnto you, ye grieue God himselfe, forasmuch as the Lord speaks in me: this (saith <sup>d</sup> Luther) is our comfort and credit, that in deliuering Gods errand, our tongue is Gods tongue, and our voice is Gods voice, <sup>e</sup> he therefore that despiseth our preaching, despiseth not men, but God; as the Lord said to <sup>f</sup> Samuel, they haue not reiected thee, but they haue reiected me, that I should not raigne ouer them: and this ought to moue the Prophets and Preachers of the word, <sup>g</sup> that a wrong done to them in executing their holy function is an iniurie done to God himselfe, and they must grieue not so much in respect of their owne dishonour, as for that God is grieued, according to that of <sup>h</sup> Dauid, mine eyes gush out with water, because men keepe not thy law: it is well obserued, that whereas Esay said before whilest Abaz rebellion and ingratitude was hidden, aske a signe of the Lord thy God: he now takes this honour to himselfe, saying, my God, not thy God, insinuating that God is on his side, and not with these wicked hypocrites; and so testifies with what a confidence and conscience he promised deliuerance to the king; as if he should haue said, I came not of my selfe, but I was sent of the Lord, and haue told thee nothing but out of the mouth of my God; all Preachers of the word should haue the same boldnesse, not in appearance only: but effectually rooted in their hearts: as <sup>i</sup> Luther excellently, Sumus a

<sup>a</sup> Apud Elien. resp. ad apolo. B. Armin. pag. 11.

<sup>z</sup> Matth. 23. 27

<sup>y</sup> Caluin.

<sup>z</sup> Esay 58. 1 :

<sup>a</sup> Epist. ad Nepot. Tom. 1. fol. 14.

<sup>b</sup> Loc. com. tit. de offic. ministr. in taxan. vitis.
<sup>c</sup> Caluin.

<sup>d</sup> Vbi sup. tit. de ministr. verb.

<sup>e</sup> 1. Thef. 4. 8.

<sup>f</sup> 1 Sam. 8. 7.

<sup>g</sup> Masculus.

<sup>h</sup> Psal. 119. 136

<sup>i</sup> Vbi supra.

summarum hec est inestimabilis gloria conscientie nostrae contra omnem contemptum in mundo, quod Christus nos praeciores plane deos creat, dicendo qui vos recipit, me patrem q̄, meum recipit.

Therefore the Lord shall give you a signe, behold a Virgin] All orthodoxall Interpreters, as well ancient as moderne, construe this of Christs admirable natiuitie, herein being taught by the spirit of trueth, in the 1. Chapter of Saint Matthews Gospel at the 22. verse, all this was done that it might bee fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the Prophet, saying, Behold, a virgin shall conceive, &c. I know the Iewes haue many cauils against this exposition, he that desires to know them, also the Christians answer to them; at his opportune leisure may read the Commentaries of Hierome and Caluin vpon this text, of Arctius, Martorat, Maldonat, in Matth. 1. 22. Pet. Galatinus de arcanis est verit. lib. 3. cap. 18 & lib. 7. cap. 1. Suarez. in 3. Thoma disput. 5. sect. 7.

That which here troubleth Interpreters most, is how this token is a confirmation of Gods promise to king Ahaz; examine the circumstances of the place, say the Iewes, Hierusalem is besieged, and the Prophet is to giue him a signe of their deliuerance; to what end then is the Messias of the world promised now who should be borne five hundred yeeres after? Answer is made by<sup>k</sup> some, that the coherence may be thus, O Ahaz thou art exceedingly deceiued, in thinking that God is not able to deliuer thee from the furious wrath of Rezin, and of Remaliabs sonne; for he will in time to come shew greater arguments of his power vnto thy succeeding posteritie, for behold a virgin shall conceive and beare a sonne, who shall deliuer his people from more dangerous enemies than the two tailles of these smoking firebrands; hee will in the fulnesse of time send a Saviour to deliuer vs<sup>l</sup> from all that hate vs, euen our spirituall enemies, as sin, death, and the deuill: he shall be called Emmanuel,<sup>m</sup> which is by interpretation, God with vs, not God against vs, but with vs and for vs, as Musculus vpon the words of S. Matthew. Non sine nobis, non contra nos, sed nobiscum & pro nobis.

<sup>n</sup> Other obserue, that it is the custome of the Prophets in confirming the particular promises of God, euermore to lay this foundation, that hee will send his Sonne the Redeemer. By this generall prop, the Lord euery where ratifies that which he specially promiseth vnto his children, according to that of<sup>o</sup> Paul, In Christ all the promises of God are, yea and amen: that is, P categoricall & true, & complete and implete; and assuredly whosoever expects helpe and succour from God, must also be perswaded of his fatherly loue: but how should he be fauourable without Christ, in<sup>r</sup> whom he hath adopted vs his sonnes, and<sup>t</sup> heires before the foundation of the world? so louing vs that he hath giuen his only begotten Son to<sup>v</sup> dwell among vs, and to be God with vs, and when his houre was come to<sup>u</sup> die for our sinnes, and to rise againe for our iustification: so that vpon these premises we need not at any time doubt of Gods holy promises, but infallibly conclude with the blessed Apostle, Rom. 8. 32. If God spared not his own Son, but gave him for vs all to death, how shall he not with him giue vs all things also?

<sup>x</sup> Other hold this signe most agreeable to the present occasion of Iudahs promised deliuerance, because the Patriarke<sup>y</sup> Iacob had prophesied, that the scepter should not depart fro Iudah, nor a Law-giuer fro between his feet, vntill Shilo come: as if Esay should thus argue with Ahaz, the Messias of the world is to be borne of the tribe of Iudah, and of the lineage of Dauid, it is impossible therefore that either Rezin or Pekah, or any other prince whatsoever, should rent thy kingdom from the successors of Dauid, vntill a virgin conceive and beare a sonne, who shall be called Emmanuel. It is reported in Matth. 2. that the wise men inquired after the birth of Christ, in the dayes of Herod the king, wherein they shewed themselves to be wise men indeed, obseruing their right<sup>z</sup> quando, because now the scepter had departed from Iudah, and was in the hands of Herod, an Alien and a Tyrant, crept in by the Romane Emperour: this then is a fit and a full signe to confirme Gods promise touching Iudahs deliuerance from the furious wrath of Rezin and Remaliabs sonne. For there be two kindes of signes, unum prognosticum, alterum remoratum, <sup>k</sup> Vatablus in loc.

<sup>l</sup> Luke 1. 71.
<sup>m</sup> Matth. 1. 23

<sup>n</sup> Mollerus. Caluin.

<sup>o</sup> 2. Cor. 1. 20.
<sup>p</sup> Arctius.
<sup>q</sup> Lombard.
Anselm. Caictan.
<sup>r</sup> Ephes. 1. 4.
<sup>t</sup> Rom. 8. 17.
<sup>v</sup> Iohn. 1. 14.
<sup>u</sup> Rom. 4. 25.

<sup>x</sup> Hyerims in loc.
<sup>y</sup> Gen. 49. 10.

<sup>z</sup> Zoo ser. 3. de Epiphon. Tero. phylact. Eulym. Anselm. in Matth. 2.

<sup>a</sup> de arcans
cat. verit. lib. 7.
cap. 15.
<sup>b</sup> Iudges 6 37.

<sup>c</sup> Psal. 48. 7.

<sup>d</sup> Irenæus lib. 3.
cap. 27. Amb.
in Psal. 118.
ser. 8. Epiphan.
heres. 30. Basil.
in loc. idem.
Theodoret. &
Eusebius apud Vegam, Dom. 1
post. Pentecost.
<sup>e</sup> Erasmus Maldona 1. in
Matth. 1. 23.
Halmah & 2p.
Siv. &
<sup>f</sup> Epiphan.
heres. 78.

<sup>g</sup> See Creed. art.
Borne of the Virgin.

<sup>h</sup> Arcius in
Luc. 1. 27.

<sup>i</sup> Psal. 132. 11.

<sup>k</sup> August. in Psal. 31. &
Irenæus lib. 3.
cap. 27.

<sup>l</sup> Suarez tom. 2.
in 3. Thom. disp.
5 sect. 2. idem
Ardens in Euan-gel. annunt.
<sup>m</sup> Bernard.
hom. 3. super missus est Ange-lus.

<sup>n</sup> Neque Virginit. ad partum prohibuit, neque partus virginitatem soluit.

<sup>o</sup> Hieron. aduers. Heluid &
August. heres. 84
<sup>p</sup> Epiphan.
heres. 78.

<sup>q</sup> Isa Munsterus, tu mater.
<sup>r</sup> In loc.

remoratum, as Petrus Galatinus in his examination of this text aptly distinguisheth: one which is a prognostication of an euent to come, to<sup>b</sup> Gedeons fleece was a signe to him of future victorie; another which is a memoriall of a thing past, so the Lord sayd vnto Moses, Exodus 3. 12. This shall be a token vnto thee, that I haue sent thee, after thou hast brought the people out of Egypt, ye shall serue God vpon this mountaine: now the signe mentioned here was a rememoratine, not a prognosticke. Abaz saw not this token, but his posteritie might say with<sup>c</sup> Da-uid, as we haue heard so haue we seene in the citie of the Lord of Hosts in the citie of our God: God vpholdeth it for ever. And here the Fathers<sup>d</sup> obserue that Christs admirable natiuitie was a signe both in the depth beneath, and in the height aboue.
For in being a man, eating butter and hony, nourished after the same manner that other children are, he was a signe on earth: and in being Emmanuel, conceived of a Virgin without the seed of man, he was a signe from heauen. Thus as you see this token is accommodum, aptly fitted to the present occasion of the Prophet. I proceed now to shew that it is also commodum, as profitable for vs as it is pertinent for Hierusalem.

A Virgin shall conceive ] That is, <sup>e</sup> the Virgin or that Virgin, for the Hebrew particle <sup>n</sup> added in the text originall, and the Greeke article <sup>h</sup> prefixed by the Septuagint Interpreters are both emphaticall, and import so much as that excellent Virgin. So the Fathers vse to speake, <sup>f</sup> Quis vnquam, aut quo seculo ausus est proferre nomen S. Mariae, & interrogatus non statim intulit virginis vocem? In what age did any man name the blessed Mary without adding her surname Virgin. Nay the blessed Apostles in their Creed haue taught vs so to beleuee, borne of the Virgin Marie. For she was a <sup>g</sup> perpetuall Virgin: <sup>h</sup> ante partum, in partu, post partum. All which is concluded, at the least included in our present text. A Virgin before she conceived, and when she conceived her Sonne our Saniour, as we defend against vnbeleueing Iewes and Gentiles; and against misbeleueing heretikes also; namely, the Cerinthians, Ebionites, Carpocratians, holding that Christ was the naturall son of Ioseph, & verus & merus homo, contrary to the words of our Prophet here, Behold, a Virgin shall conceive. <sup>i</sup> The Lord hath made a faithfull oath vnto Dauid, and he shall not shrink from it, Of the fruit of thy belly shall I set vpon thy seat. Where the<sup>k</sup> Doctors note, that he saith according to the Hebrew de fructu ventris, and not de fructu femoris, aut renum, because the promised seed is the seed of the woman. Gen. 3. 15. made of a woman, Gal. 4. 4. hauing the materials of his body from Mary, but his formale principium, of the holy Ghost agent in his admirable conception, as it is in the Gospell allotted for this day. The Holy Ghost shall come vpon thee, and the power of the most High shall overshadow thee. See Gospell on the Sunday after Christmas.

2. We say, that Mary was a Virgin in her childbirth, against Ioninian, and Durandus, according to the tenor of our Text, A Virgin shall conceive and beare a sonne. The which is not to be construed, in <sup>l</sup> sensu diuiso, sed in sensu composito to wit, a Virgin shall conceive, and continuing a Virgin shall bring forth her childe, <sup>m</sup> grauida sed non grauata. So runnes our Creed, borne of the Virgin. For otherwise what wonder had it been, that one who sometime was a virgin, should afterward knowing a man, haue a sonne? *Consule S. Irene. lib. 3, cap. 18, 21. 24.
Epiphan. heres. 30. circa finem. n Greg. Nyssen. orat. de sanct. Christi natiuitat. Basil.
& Hierom. in loc.*

Partus & integritas discordes tempore longo, Virginis in gremio fœdera paces habent.

3. Marie was a Virgin after the birth of Christ, as the Church hath cuer taught, against <sup>o</sup> Heluidians, and <sup>p</sup> Antidicomarianites And some probable reason hereof also may be gathered out of this Scripture, thou shalt call his name, &c.
that is, (as our Communion booke) thou his q mother; or as our new translation hath it, A Virgin shall conceive and beare a sonne, and shall call his name, &c. For (as<sup>r</sup> Caluin notes, the verbe is of the feminine gender among the Hebrewes which occasioned haply the translators of Geneua to read, she shall call his name.

Now

Now the naming of children is an office properly belonging to fathers and not to mothers: In that therefore this charge was wholly referred and transferred to Marie; we may note, that Christ was so conceived of his mother, as that he had no father on earth; as also, that Ioseph affianced to Marie, was rather an helpe then an absolute head, a wedded, but not a bedded husband: I say, nor a bedded husband after the birth of Christ, as Hierome notably prones in a tract of this argument against Helvidius. And for the strengthening of this reuerent opinion, I finde a tradition entertained by the most ancient Doctors, <sup>1</sup> Origen, <sup>2</sup> Basile, <sup>3</sup> Theophylact, and <sup>4</sup> other, that whereas the married women had one seuerall place in the Temple for their deuotions and the Virgins another: Mary not only before, but after the birth of her sonne also did vually troupe with the maidens, and not with the married, <sup>5</sup> living and dying a Virgin. This Epistle then is all one with the Gospel, Esay & Gabriel are messengers of the same arrand; for that which Esay speakes of Mary, Gabriel speakes vnto Mary; Thou shalt conceive in thy wombe, and beare a sonne, and shalt call his name Iesus. And they both are so fit for the present feast, that he who runs & reads, may see the reason why the Church allotted them for this day.

<sup>1</sup> Tract. 26 in Matth.
<sup>2</sup> Hom. de human. Christi generatione.
<sup>3</sup> In Matth. 23.
<sup>4</sup> Greg. Niss. de sancta Christi natiuit.
<sup>5</sup> Perkins reform. cat. tit. tract.

The Gospell. L V K E 1.26.

And in the sixth Moneth, the Angel Gabriel was sent from God, vnto a Citie of Galilee, named Nazareth, to a Virgin, &c.

Almightie God in the twelfth chapter of Exodus, enioyned his people to eat the Paschall lambes head and feet and purtoiance. Christ is our Paschall lambe, 1. Cor. 5.7. Wherefore we must as Mary did, anoint Christs <sup>2</sup> head and <sup>3</sup> feet, that is, meditate on his birth and death; on his ingresse into the world, and egress out of the world. This Scripture principally speakes of his birth, and of the purtoiance thereof, an euangelicall and angelicall annunciation of his admirable conception.

<sup>2</sup> Matth. 26.7.
<sup>3</sup> Ioh. 12.3.

In which obserue these 4. circumstances especially:
 { When, In the sixth moneth.
 { Where, In a Citie of Galilee, named Nazareth.
 { Who, { Saluting, Gabriel an angel sent from God.
 { Saluted, A Virgin espoused, &c.
 { What, Hail! full of grace.

In the sixth moneth ] That is (as Gabriel expounds himselfe, verf. 36.) in the sixth moneth, from the conception of Elizabeth. And it is an <sup>a</sup> argument to perfwade Marie that she may haue a sonne, for that her coulin Elizabeth had conceived a childe in her olde age, by her old husband. Iohn the Baptist <sup>d</sup> (as it is thought) was conceived about the latter end of September, and Christ according to the Churches account about the latter end of March. In the very same moneth (as <sup>e</sup> some coniecture) the world was created, and so the second Adam was conceived about the time the first Adam was deceiued. For (as in Adam all die: euen so in Christ shall all be made aliue. The <sup>g</sup> Poet saith of the Spring which alwayes beginneth in this moneth, <sup>b</sup> Theophylact. Euthym. in loc.

<sup>c</sup> Luther. Melanct. pest. in loc.
<sup>d</sup> Arrius
<sup>e</sup> Vide Io. Thom. Frieziens lib. de cosmopais
<sup>f</sup> 1. Cor. 15.32.
<sup>g</sup> Ouid lib. 1. fisti.
<sup>h</sup> Esay 65.17.

Omnia tunc florent, tunc est noua temporis aetas.

Et noua de granido palmite gemma tumet.

And so Christ incarnate making a <sup>h</sup> new heaven and a new earth, ecce ego facio noua. Behold saith the Lord, I make new things, Esay 43.19. See Thom. Caten. & Mollor. in loc. Ludolph. de vita Christi part. 1. cap. 5. Giron. ser. 1. Raulin. ser. Ferus ser. 5. in annun.

The <sup>i</sup> Iewes for religious vses, and festiuall times, counted Nisan the first moneth, ( <sup>k</sup> which for the most part answereth our March) and so forward; but for ciuill they counted the seuenth the first. It is worth obseruing therefore that the Annunciation vnto Zacharie was in the beginning of the ciuill, and this Annunciation vnto Mary in the beginning of the religious or ecclesiasticall yeere. Teaching vs hereby that our whole life is only ciuill, and not truly religious, vntill Christ be conceiued and <sup>1</sup> formed in vs, vntill he <sup>m</sup> dwels in our heart who <sup>n</sup> reneweth a right spirit within vs.

<sup>i</sup> Tremellius in Exod. 12.
<sup>b</sup> Atabulus in Exod. 12.

The Angel Gabriel was sent from God ] Gabriel in Hebrew signifies the power of God, a fit ambassadour for such an arrand, because the conception of Christ, & through it the redemption of the world is called expressly the strength of Gods arme, Luke 1.51. ° Eucry Preacher of the Gospell ought to follow this example, for his commission, he must be sent from God: and execution of it, he must be Gabriel that is, a man of good courage, powerfull in doctrine and exhortation. An Angell was sent about this businesse, and not a man for sundry reasons, especially three.

1. P That our humane nature might be repaired after the manner it was ruined: as a serpent was sent by the deuill vnto Eua to worke our woe; so Gabriel an Angel was sent from God vnto Mary, to bring glad tidings of her weale. ¶ Ad Eua angelus malus accessit vt per eam homo separaretur a Deo, ad Mariam angelus bonus venit vt in ea Deus vniretur homini.

2. An Angell sent vnto a Virgin, ° because Virgins are as angels, according to that of <sup>f</sup> Isidore, Cœlibatus quasi celo beatus. And ° Christ also saith, in the resurrection when there shall be no more marrying, that we shall be then as the Angels of God in heauen.

3. To shew that Angels are ministring spirits sent forth to minister for their sakes who shall be heires of saluation, Heb. 1.14. and therefore seeing we haue such a guard attending vs one eucry side, we <sup>x</sup> should doe whatsoeuer we doe, in a reuerent and seemly fashon, alway remembreing that we are made a spectacle to men and Angels 1. Cor. 4.9.

Vnto a citie of Galilee, named Nazaret. ] The Iewes held this countrey and city so contemptible, that the <sup>z</sup> Pharisies said of the one, out of Galilee ariseth no Prophet. And <sup>a</sup> Nathaniel of the other, Can there any good thing come out of Nazaret? Here then obserue that euen Pharisies and learned men may be deceiued, as also that God is not tyed vnto any place, but his spirit <sup>b</sup> bloweth where it listeth. And therefore we may not iudge of men either by their countrey or countie: Ioseph and Mary liued in Nazaret a citie of Galilee: good people though they dwell in bad parishes and places, are the same. Mystically, Nazaret is by interpretation a flower; it was fit there that he (which is <sup>d</sup> the lily of the vallies, and the rose of the field) should be conceiued in floure. i. in Nazaret: de flore, i. de beata Virgine: cum floribus, i. tempore florũ, in the spring or flower time. Galilee was the marches of the Iewes, abutting and adioyning neere to the countrey of the Gentiles, and so ° Christs conception in Galilee doth insinuate that in him all the nations of the world shall be blessed, Gen. 22.18. And that he should breake downe the stop of the partition wall, and so make the Iewes and the Gentiles both one, Ephes. 2.14 or Galilee signifieth an end or confine: so Christ a Galilean is the end of the law, Rom. 10.4. See this and many moe like this, apud Pont. in fest. annũ.

To a virgin espoused to a man whose name was Ioseph. ] Mary, though a Virgin was affianced to Ioseph of the house of Dauid for sundry causes: 1. lest her selfe should be iudged an <sup>f</sup> adulteresse, and so stoned to death according to Moses law.

2. Lest her sonne should be reputed a <sup>s</sup> bastard, and so consequently not admitted for the Messias. He who came into the world not to <sup>h</sup> destroy the law, but to fulfill all righteousness, Matth. 3.15. would not himselfe be borne vnlawfully.

3. <sup>i</sup> That Christ heereby might honour both estates, of maidenhead, and marriage; of maydenhead, in that she was a Virgin; of marriage, because shee was espoused,

4. That Ioseph might be to her selfe and her sonne a <sup>k</sup> curator and a guardian in the time of trouble; for so we read in the second chapter of S. Matthew, that the Angell of the Lord appeared to Ioseph in a dreame, saying; Arise and take she <sup>1</sup> Galath. 4.29.

<sup>m</sup> Ephes. 3.17.
<sup>n</sup> Psal. 51.10.

° Luther post. in loc.

¶ Thom. part. 3. quest. 3. art. 2.

¶ Fulgentius de dop. nat. (Christ).

° Hieron. opud Thom ubi sup.
<sup>f</sup> Origen. lib. 10.
<sup>g</sup> Matth. 22.30.

° Giron. con. 1. in annum.
<sup>z</sup> Perkins exposit. Creed, tit creation of Angels.

¶ Arelus.
<sup>z</sup> Iohn 7.52.
<sup>a</sup> Iohn 1.46.
<sup>b</sup> Iohn 3.8.

° Ludolphus de vita Christi. part. 1 cap 5. & Beauxamis bar. fol. 22.
<sup>d</sup> Cant. 2.1.
<sup>e</sup> Bonauent. Beauxamis.

<sup>f</sup> Hieron. aduers. Helud. & Aet. in loc.

<sup>g</sup> Ambros. lib. 2. in Luc. cap. 1.
<sup>h</sup> Matth. 5.17.
<sup>i</sup> Basi. bom. de human. Christi generat.

<sup>k</sup> Theophylast. Euthym.

the babe and his mother, and flee into Egypt, &c. Againe, Arise, and take the babe and his mother, and goe into the land of Israel, &c.

5. That her husband might <sup>l</sup> witness her virginity. <sup>m</sup> Sicut Thomas dubitando, palpando, constantissimus factus est Dominica confessor resurrectionis: Ita & Ioseph Mariam sibi desponsando eiusq; conversationem in tempore custodia studiosius comprobando, factus est predicatissimus fidelissimus testis. Pulchra viri usq; rei convenientia, & dubitatio Thomae, & desponsatio Mariae. See Bernard ubi in marg. Beauxam. bar. Tom. 1. fol. 22. Maldonat in Matth. 1. Sixt. Senen. Bib. lib. 6. annot. 4.

Of the house of David] S. Luke sets downe the names of so many places and persons exactly, that we might attend his relation more diligently. <sup>n</sup> Noluit nos negligenter audire, quod tam diligenter studuit enarrare. Because Christ is the promised seed and Sonne of David, Marie was espoused to Ioseph of the house of David.

<sup>o</sup> Hereby shewing her own pedigree by her husbands genealogie; for the Jewes according to <sup>p</sup> Gods Law, were to take wiues out of their owne Tribes. David is stiled a man according to Gods owne heart, Acts 13. 22. And so Ioseph, a man of Davids house, was a man according to Gods owne heart, to whom he did reueale <sup>q</sup> secretissimum atque sacratissimum sui cordis arcanum, a mysterie which <sup>r</sup> none of the Princes of this world vnderstood. And Marie being thus affianced to Ioseph, she proued a good housewife, being in this respect like the Snail which is dormiport. She was not of the Tribe of Gad, a <sup>s</sup> busie gossip gadding about from houte to houte, prating and speaking things which are not comely: but (as almost all Interpreters haue noted vpon the words of our Text, ingressus ad eam Angelus) she was within, either at her holy deuotion, or at her daily worke.

I come now to the saluation it selfe. Haile Marie, &c. the which (as Luther said of the Pater noster) is made by the Papists a very great Martyr. I purpose therefore to demonstrate these two points especially: First, their foule abuse: secondly, the true vse of Aue Maria.

The Papists inturie this  $\int$  Grosse, by misconstruing the whole sentence ioyntly. Angelicall saluation in  $\int$  Parcell, abusing euery particular word seuerally.

For the first, they patch it vp together, by fetching in other stiches out of other places, as <sup>t</sup> blest is the fruit of thy wombe, and adding the name, Maria, Iesus, amen. And all this that it may be repeated often vpon their beades, as a maine point of holy deuotion, and why so? <sup>u</sup> because forsooth it was vsed by the Greeke Church in their Masse daily, for so they finde it recorded in the Liturgies of S. Iames, and Chrysofome. <sup>x</sup> Our answer is, that those Liturgies are counterfeit, the one being a sufficient confutation of the other. For if the Greeke Church had a Liturgie written by S. Iames the blessed Apostle, who would imagine that Chrysofome would haue made a new? and if Chrysofome had penned a Liturgie, he would not haue made a prayer for Pope Nicholas, who liued almost five hundred yeeres after him, and for the Emperour Alexius, who liued seuen hundred yeeres after him. It were very much (as <sup>y</sup> B. Iewell objected against D. Harding) to say Chrysofome prayed for men by name so many hundred yeeres before they were borne.

But to trace the Papists a little neerer, euen from step to step, if Aue Mariabe a prayer, it must either be a prayer for Marie, or to Marie. It cannot be a prayer for Marie, whether we consider the words as vttered by Gabriel while she liued; or as babled by them now she is dead. If in her life she was full of grace, and <sup>z</sup> free from all sinne, as they teach impiouly; then assuredly she did not need any prayer of man or Angell, as abounding with all mercie, and abandoning all miserie, much lesse now being a Saint in heauen, and (as they would haue vs to beleue) a Queene of heauen, ouerruling and commanding Christ himselfe to shew mercie on such as she will haue mercie:

As Aue Maria could not be a prayer for Marie, so it should not be a prayer to Marie, because praying to Saints hath in Gods holy Bible <sup>a</sup> neither precept, nor promise, nor patterne. Not to dispute this point, Eckius a rancke Papist

K k k

acknowledgeth

<sup>1</sup> Basil ubi sup.
<sup>2</sup> Bernard.
hom 2. super missus est Angelus.

<sup>3</sup> Bernard hom.
<sup>1</sup> super missus
est Angelus.

<sup>4</sup> Hieron. ubi sup.
& Aret. in loc.
<sup>5</sup> Numb. 36.

<sup>6</sup> Bernard. hom.
<sup>2.</sup> super missus
est Angelus.
<sup>7</sup> 1 Cor. 2 7.

<sup>8</sup> 1 Tim. 5. 13.

<sup>9</sup> Luke 1. 42.

<sup>10</sup> Rhem. in loc.

<sup>11</sup> D<sup>r</sup>. Fulke in loc. & Morneus
de sac. Eucharist.
lib. 1. cap. 2.

<sup>12</sup> Art priuate
Masse diuis.

<sup>13</sup> Bellarm. de amiss. grat. &
stat. pec. lib. 4.
cap. 15. 16. &
Suarez in 3.
Thom. disp 4.

<sup>14</sup> Chemnitius
exam. Con. Tri. den. part 3 Tit.
de Sanc. inuocat.
pag. 184.

<sup>b</sup> Tit. de venerat. sancti. in fine.

<sup>c</sup> Chemnitius ubi sup. pag. 190.
<sup>d</sup> Apolog. confess. August. Tom. 1. fol 10..

<sup>e</sup> Matth. 6. 8.

<sup>f</sup> Melanct. & Chemnitius ubi sup.

<sup>g</sup> 1 Tim. 2. 5.

<sup>h</sup> 1 Joh. 2. 1.

<sup>i</sup> Heb. 7. 25.

<sup>k</sup> 1 Tim. 2. 1.

<sup>l</sup> Luther post. in loc.

<sup>m</sup> Bellarm. cat. exposit. Aue Maria.

<sup>n</sup> Lcd. (ma. cat. cap. 7.

<sup>o</sup> Epist. ad Ctesiphon aduersus Pelagianos.

<sup>p</sup> Dr. Fuchsia Math. 1.

<sup>q</sup> Ephes. 4. 5.

<sup>r</sup> Augustin de Iconissa. scr. 4. de Aue Maria.

acknowledgeeth in his<sup>b</sup> Enchiridion, that inuocation of Saints is not inioyned in the Scriptures expressly: not in the old Testament, because the Patriarkes and the Prophets afore the coming of Christ (as the Church of Rome beleeues) were not in Heauen, but in Limbo. Not in the new Testament, lest haply the Gentiles lately conuerted vnto the faith of one God, should instantly returne to the worshipping of many Gods; as the men of Lycaonia would haue sacrificed vnto Paul and Barnabas, Acts 14. <sup>c</sup>Petrus Afoto likewise, and other Romanists of most eminent note for learning confesse, that praying vnto Saints is not taught in Gods booke plainly, but insinuated only. So that (as <sup>d</sup> Meclancthon obserues) the Papists are faine to ride post vnto the Court for an example. We cannot come to the Princes presence, but by the mediation of some fauourite: in like sort (say they) we must exhibit our petitions vnto Peter, or Paul, especially to Marie, that she may commend them vnto Christ her Sonne: God himselfe hath answered this idle conceit for vs, Osea 11. 9. I am God and not man, the holy one in the mids of thee: and Esay 55. 8. My wayes are not as your wayes, &c. Earthly Princes out of necessitie must employ many mediators and officers about them, as tongues, and eares, and eyes vnto them: but the King of heauen is all eye, and all eare, seeing, hearing, vnderstanding all things, euen the very secrets of our hearts afore we speake: your heauenly father (saith our <sup>e</sup> Sauour) knoweth whereof ye haue need, before ye aske of him. Again, <sup>f</sup> if a King appoint a Malter of requests, he will not ordinarily receiue petitions from other: and therefore seeing the King of Kings is pleased to make Christ our only <sup>g</sup> Mediator and <sup>h</sup> Aduocate, the sole Master of the requests in heauen, <sup>i</sup> euer liuing to make intercession for vs; it cannot be but dishonourable to Gods choice, and Christs office, to substitute any other halfe mediators either of redemption or intercession, as Saint Ambrose, Com. in Rom. 1. Misera vtantur excusatione, dicentes per istos posse ire ad Deum, sicut per comites peruenitur ad regem. Yea but although Aue Maria be not a supplication, it may be taken as a thanksgiuing, and that is a kinde of prayer, according to that of <sup>k</sup> Paul, I exhort that supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giuing of thanks be made for all men, &c. Answer is made, that it is not a thanksgiuing, and if it were, yet should it not be babled vnto Marie, but vttered vnto God, as <sup>l</sup> containing his praise to whom all honour is due, kingdome, power, and glorie. Well, Aue Maria notwithstanding all this, may be vsed as a salutation: our answer is no, for that a salutation is ciuill, whereas the Papists appoint this to be said as a religious office. 2. Salutations are to persons present, but the Virgin is absent, and therefore the Papists may not, nay the Papists indeed cannot vse these words in the same sence they were deliuered by Gabriel and Elizabeth: that there should be ten Auemaries to one Pater noster, and that 150. Auemaries with fiftene *Pater noster*s make a Ladies Psalter, and that after the Pater noster which Christ himselfe taught vs by his owne mouth, <sup>m</sup> Aue Maria is the most excellent prayer, and that in <sup>n</sup> it we speake with the mother of God as the Queene of heauen & our Aduocate; is now knowne in the world to be such intolerable foppery, that (as <sup>o</sup> Hierom said of the Pelagian heresies) a repetition of it is a sufficient refutation.

I know that reuerend Fox in his Calender of Saints annexed to his Martyrologie, calls the blessed Virgin our Ladie, and the Church of England also termeth vsually this present feast our Ladies day: but herein we doe not (as the Papists) ascribe to the Virgin <sup>p</sup> any diuine honour, making her our Ladie, as God is our Lord. It is a ciuill vse, not a religious office, for in a holy sence to speake properly, there is but one Lord, and neuer a Ladie, <sup>q</sup> one Lord, one faith, one baptisme: or the Virgin is stiled our Ladie, because she was (as Elizabeth calls her) the mother of our Lord, Luke 1. 43.

Hitherto concerning the wrong done by the Papists in grosse to the haile Marie, let vs examine now their iniurie of euery word in particular, the first is χαίρει, which they translate Aue, turning vpside downe the letters of Eua: the woman who did occasion the worlds woe, was named Eua, therefore it was fit that Mary who bare Christ, the worlds ioy, should be saluted with Aue; being opposite in name name so well as in nature, this playing vpon the word is prettie, but not pitthie, because Aue is Latine, whereas Eua is Hebrew, and  $\chi\alpha\upsilon\sigma$  Greek, so that the Friers wit hath outrunne the Holy Spirits wisdom in this exposition and transposition of Eua and Aue. The great Predicant <sup>f</sup> Illephonso Giron, obserues in the three letters of Aue, the three persons in holy Trinitie: A, altitudo Patris: V, veritas Filij: E, eternitas Spiritus Sancti. <sup>v</sup> Some Friers haue profoundly deriued Aue of (A) priuatiely taken, and ua, quasi sine ua, that is without woe: now there is a threefold woe denounced, Apocalyps 8. 13. Va, va, ue incolu terre, woe, woe, woe to the inhabitants of the earth, and this woe is for sinne in the world, as the <sup>u</sup> lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and pride of life. Woe to the couetous, woe to the luxurious, woe to the proud: all which Esay sets downe in his fifth chapter expressly: Woe to them that ioyne house to house, and field to field, till there be no more place for other in the mids of the land, &c. that is a woe to the couetous: Woe to them that rise vp early to follow drunkenesse, &c. that is a woe to the luxurious: woe to them that are wise in their owne eyes, &c. that is a woe to the proud: \* now the Virgin as being poore, chaste, and humble, was exempted from all these woes; and therefore worthily saluted by Gabriel with an Aue: or as y other Popish Expositors, inhabitants of the earth haue deserued a woe for their originall sinne, and that is the woe which is in Limbus: a woe for their veniall sinne, and that is the woe which is in Purgatory: a woe for their mortall sinne, and that is the woe which is in hell: but Marie the Virgin (say they) was free from all these kinds of sinne, and so consequently free from all these kindes of woe; the which assertion is contradictory to the text of holy Scripture, concluding all vnder sin, Rom. 3. 9. Gal. 3. 22. Yea but say <sup>z</sup> Suarez and <sup>a</sup> Belarmine, Marie was exempted ex speciali Dei privilegio: let them if they can shew her patent, and we will instantly beleeue it, otherwise, Gods word is a lanterne to our feet, and a guide to our paths: if either man or Angell preach a new Gospell, let him be <sup>b</sup> accursed. That Marie was a blessed Virgin, and the mother of the worlds Saniour; we beleeue, because we reade so: but that she was impeccabilis, conceived without sin, borne without sinne, living without sinne, dying without sinne, we doe not beleeue, because we do not reade it in the Bible, nay we reade the contrary, for Marie saith in her hymne, my spirit reioyceth in God my Saniour &c. If shee needed a Saniour, vndoubtedly she was a sinner, for the whole need not a Physitian, Mat. 9. 12. and therefore the Popish annotation of Aue thus applied vnto the Virgin, is both vnlearned and vntrue.

The next word is Marie, the which is so magnified and extolled by the Romanists, as that King <sup>c</sup> Alphonso the sixth would not haue his wife called by that high and venerable name. <sup>d</sup> Petrus de Palude (whose wit as it should seeme dwelt in a fen) hath this muddie conceit, the five letters of Marie, designe the five singular priuiledges Almighty God granted vnto the Virgin, (M) Mater omnium Sanctorum, (A) Aduocata omnium peccatorum, (R) Regula omnium morum & virtutum, (I) Interfetrrix omnium vitiorum. (A) Harmonia Spiritus Sancti denorum, The Portugall Frier and flower Philip Diaz, approued by Didacus Caro, Dominicus Bannes, & other great Clerks of Spaine for an exquisite Preacher, <sup>e</sup> affirms that Marie is compounded of the first letters in the names of five most illustrious and holy women in all the Scripture, Michol, Abigail, Rachel, Indith, Abishag. Hauiug all their eminent qualities in her nature, and all their prime letters in her name, taking (M) from Michol, (A) from Abigail, (R) from Rachel, (I) from Indith, (A) from Abishag. I must here quit Philip Diaz with an old rime, which vndoeth his name with a great deale more wit.

Phi nota factoris, Lippus malus omnibus horis,

Phi malus & Lippus, totus malus ergo Philippus.

<sup>f</sup> Saint Ambrose saith of the denill, that he is nox. and <sup>g</sup> Bernard of bad Dinines, that they be tenebra mundi. I am vnwilling to lay the nox vpon Diaz, but his obscure fopperie deserues I thinke verily Bernards tenebrae.

Well, as the Friers haue taught vs how to spell Marie, so let them informe likewise

<sup>f</sup> Con. 2. in f. lo
annua locuu vide & rae.

<sup>g</sup> Dix Pis. de Palud
Augustin de 2. c.
missa, & aly.

<sup>u</sup> 1 Ioh. 2. 16.

* Raulin. ser. 1
in annua. Dom

<sup>v</sup> Augustin. de Leonissa, ser. 2
de Aue Maria.

<sup>z</sup> Tom. 2 in 3.
Thom. d. sp. 2.
f. 4.

<sup>a</sup> De amiff. groi.
& stat. per. lib. 4.
cap. 15.

<sup>b</sup> Galat. 1. 8.

<sup>c</sup> Dix. con. 1.
in incarnat.

<sup>d</sup> Dom. ser. de annua. B. Marie

<sup>e</sup> vbi supra.

<sup>f</sup> Ser. 28.

<sup>g</sup> Ser. 66. in Cani.

<sup>b</sup> Ser. 5. de Aue Maria.

<sup>i</sup> Gen. 1. 30.
<sup>k</sup> Ecclesiastes 1. 7.

<sup>l</sup> Bellarmin. de beat. sancti cop. 17. & Offic. Marie pag. 33.

<sup>m</sup> Hom. tom. 4. con. de deuot. Marie virg. S. assimilatur.
<sup>n</sup> Allenstaic. lex. Theolog. in verb. Maria.

<sup>o</sup> Apud Dr. Morton. Apolog. cat. par. 1. pag 3 1.

<sup>p</sup> Augustin de Leonissa ser. 8. de Aue Maria.

<sup>q</sup> Apud Chemnit. part 3. exam. Tit. de sancti. inuocat. pag. 147.

<sup>r</sup> Casian. Iansen. Giron.

<sup>s</sup> Beza gratia dilecta.

<sup>t</sup> Munster. Caluin.

<sup>u</sup> Arctius.
<sup>v</sup> Culman. con. 1. in fest. annun. y Theophylact.

<sup>z</sup> Ita legit Ambros. in loc. & Augustin ex. chrid. cap. 36. & ser. 13. 14. 15. de tempore.
<sup>a</sup> Acts 8. 6.
<sup>b</sup> Maldonat. in loc. Idem Iansen. con. cap. 3.

likewise what it signifieth, <sup>h</sup> Augustin. de Leonissa saith acutely, Maria quasi Maria: for as in the sea there is a <sup>l</sup> gathering together of all waters; euen so in the Virgin a congregation of all vertues. Againe, as <sup>k</sup> all riuers come from the seas, and returne to the seas againe: so likewise all grace is deriued from Mary, and ought to be returned againe to Mary, for she forsooth (if you will belicue the Church of Rome in her publique deuotions) is <sup>l</sup> mater gratia & misericordia, the mother of mercies, and goddesse of all grace; Christ is the head, but Mary (saith <sup>m</sup> Ozorius the Iesuit) is the neck. Now whatsoeuer descendeth into the whole body from the head is conueied by the necke; so whatsoeuer blessing or fauour is conferred vpon other is conueied thorow the hands of the Virgin. <sup>n</sup> Vt si quid gratia, si quid spei, si quid salutis in alios redundauerit, non nisi per manus Mariae transferit, &c. And therefore most of their schollers vsually begin their sermons and writings with an Aue Maria, and end them with laus Virgini. Their voluminous Historiographer Card. Baronius, concludeth his 1. Tom. of Annales imprinted at Antwerp, ann. 1597. Santissima Virgini Mariae ut haec omnia accepta fecimus, ita pariter & offerimus: That is, as I haue received all from the most holy Virgin Mary, so likewise I returne all to her againe. Cardinall Bellarmino also doth annex this postscript vnto the 1. Tom. of his Controuersies imprinted Lugdun. ann. 1587. and vnto Tom. 2. Ingolstadt. 1591. Laus Deo virginique matri Mariae. And other setting the cart before the horse, Laus beatae Virgini & Iesu Christo. It is well if Christ haue the second place, if any place, when his mother Mary commeth in place. These are their positions, in some respects as blasphemous as the worst in the Turkes Alcoran. And these their practises, as idolatrous as any we finde in the Pagans schoole.

The third word is, ικαροταπην, which they translate gratia plena, full of grace. And hence <sup>p</sup> they collect a threefold plenitude of grace in Mary,

To wit, a fulnesse in regard of }

- Multitude, abounding with all kinds of grace.
- Magnitude, as hauing the greatest in the greatest measure.
- Latitude, exercising them in earth, heauen, hell.

All which is to shew, that whereas other holy Saints and seruants of God had grace by measure; Marie like to Christ was endued with grace beyond measure, being medium & causa gratia, as <sup>q</sup> Antoninus and Albertus impiously teach.

Yet some <sup>r</sup> popish Interpreters as well as Protestants obserue, that ικαροταπην, signifieth gratificata, <sup>t</sup> freely beloued, as the Geneua translation. Or as our new, highly fauoured, or much graced, one which hath <sup>u</sup> obtained, and is <sup>v</sup> adorned with grace. <sup>x</sup> Not one that giues grace, but receiues; y as Gabriel in the 30. verse construeth himselfe, thou hast found fauour with God. And so Saint Paul expounds this word, Ephes. 1. 6. God hath predestinated vs to bee adopted through Iesus Christ vnto himselfe, according to the good pleasure of his will, to the praise of the glory of his grace, ει η ικαροταπηνος η τοι αγαπημενος, where-with he hath made vs accepted in his beloued. And gratiosus in Latine doth import a fauourite, which is graced out of his friends abundant loue; rather than one who merits fauour out of his owne worth, as Caluin and Erasmus in their annotations vpon this accurately.

But suppose the translation be good, and that we may reade as indeed our <sup>z</sup> Communion booke doth here, full of grace: yet the popish annotation is false; for it is recorded in this present chapter, that Iohn the Baptist, Elizabeth and Zacharie were full of the Holy Ghost, and <sup>a</sup> elsewhere that S. Stephen was full of faith and of power, and the seuen Deacons full of wisdome, Acts 6. 3. and that the blessed Apostles were filled with the Holy Ghost, Act. 2. 4. All these were full of grace, yet they received it by measure. So that as their own <sup>b</sup> Iesuite obserues truly, Maria fuit gratia plena in se, non a se; Mary was full of grace in her selfe, but not of her selfe. Fountaines are full of water, and riuers are full of water, and brookes are full of water: Christ is full of grace as the fountaine, but Mary full of of grace as a riuer issuing from the fountaine of grace. Shee was a vertuous woman, yet a woman; a sinner, not a sauiour; one that was endued with excellent grace, not by her owne merit, but by Gods speciall mercie. <sup>c</sup> Therefore full of grace, because the Lord is with thee.

The <sup>d</sup> Papiits abuse likewise Dominus tecum, in making it an extraordinary salutation vnheard in the world before. Whereas Boaz vsed the same to the reapers, the Lord be with you, Ruth. 2.4. And a glorious Angell to Gedeon, Judg. 6.12. The Lord is with thee thou valiant man. And the Psalmeographer infinuates the common use of this phrased among Gods people, Psal. 129.8. They which goe by, say not so much as the Lord prosper you. But why should I fish any longer in the Popish puddle? you may see by that which I haue deliuered already, that the Friens and Iesuites haue made <sup>e</sup> merchandize of Aue Maria, both in parcell, and in groce. Let vs now come out of Babel into Gods Citie, from their foule abusing of this Scripture to the true construction of the same. Note then in Gabriels saluting of Mary, two things especially:

To wit, his } Formes, Haile, the Lord with thee.
 } Titles, full of grace, blessed among women.

And because both are double, we may learne that these Christian complements are not to be neglected or committed. A glorious Angell saluted a poore Virgin: superiours ought to salute inferiours, and inferiours to reuerence superiours, and all out of loue to respect one another. See Gospell Sunday 6. after Trinitie.

2. This Angelicall Aue teacheth vs to vse good formes in saluting, not such as are idle, prophane, vsauourie. Not a pox, in stead of haile: nor the deuill take you, for the Lord be with you; not a curse, but a blessing; Haile, full of grace, blessed art thou among women.

3. We must vse salutation as sent from God, and not according to the worlds fashion only. For some <sup>f</sup> speak friendly to their neighbours, but imagine mischief in their hearts. <sup>g</sup> Iudas had an haile master, as well as Gabriel an haile Mary. Christians in their complements ought to be heartie, not hollow. See Gospell Sund. 4. after Trinitie.

Haile] The Greeke, χαίρειν, signifieth (as <sup>h</sup> Erasmus obserues) gaudere, saluere, valere. If we take it in the first acception, it is Gabriels giuing of the ioy to Mary. Teaching vs to wish much ioy to the good, and to labour for true ioyes in our selues, alway reioycing in the Lord, Philip. 4.4. If in the two latter, health is a good blessing of the Lord, to be desired in our owne selues, and for our other selues in this world, without which all our whole life is but a lingring death. O Lord grant thy seruant health and heauen. It was good for <sup>i</sup> Dauid that he was in trouble: so likewise it is good for the health of our soule, that our body be sometime sicke. <sup>k</sup> Affliction is the true purgatorie of the flesh; <sup>l</sup> infirmis carnis vigorem mentis exaccuit. Vpon this ground <sup>m</sup> Plato seated his Academie at Athens in an vnhealthy place. We must especially wish haile to the soule, praying alwaies, Ut sit mens sana in corpore sano.

The Lord with thee] <sup>n</sup> Some construe this clause by way of enunciation affirmatiuely, the Lord is with thee. <sup>o</sup> Other imprecatorie, by way of a good wish or salutation, the Lord be with thee. They who take this affirmatiuely, make it a reason of Maries haile, reioyce Mary, because full of grace, because the Lord is with thee, because blessed among women. God is <sup>p</sup> in beatis per gloriam, in electis per gratiam, in assumpta carne per unionem, in omnibus per prouidentiam: sed in virgine per super eminentem quandam operationem. As if Gabriel should haue said, I am sent from God, and so the Lord is with me: but he is with thee much more. The Lord is in me, because he made me: but with thee, because within thee, because he shall be borne by thee. <sup>q</sup> Ita Dominus est tecum ut sit in corde tuo, sit in utero tuo, adimpleat mentem tuam, adimpleat carnem tuam. God the Sonne is with thee, for thou shalt conceive him in thy wombe, God the Holy Ghost is with thee, for the Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the most high shall ouershadou thee.

<sup>c</sup> Marlorat in loc. Culman.
<sup>con</sup> 2. in fest. annun.
<sup>d</sup> Beauxamis.
Giron.
Augustin de Leonissa.

<sup>e</sup> 2 Cor 2.17.

<sup>f</sup> Psal 28.3.

<sup>g</sup> Matth. 26.49

<sup>h</sup> Annot. in loc.

<sup>i</sup> Psal 119.71.

<sup>k</sup> Tyndal prolog. vpon Genesis,
<sup>l</sup> Saluianus de gubernat. Dei, lib. 1.

<sup>m</sup> Psal de legendis lib. gentium.

<sup>n</sup> Maldonat.

<sup>o</sup> Iansen.

<sup>p</sup> Coctan.

Aretius.

<sup>q</sup> Beauxamis

in loc.

<sup>q</sup> Augustin, ser. 18 de tempore

<sup>c</sup> Bernard. hom.
3. super missus
est Angelus.

God the Father is with thee, making his Sonne thy sonne.  Dominus Filius tecum, quem carnem tua induis: Dominus Spiritus Sanctus, de quo concipis: & Dominus Pater, qui genuit quem concipis. But I follow their iudgement which vnderstand this imprecorie, because the blessed Virgin her selfe tooke it so, verl. 26. She cast in her minde what manner of salutation that should be, ergo, all the words spoken by Gabriel vnto her hitherto were saluatorie.

<sup>c</sup> Caietan.
<sup>r</sup> Arcimus.

Blessed art thou among women] In comparifon, or <sup>r</sup> aboue other wemen happye. The like phrase is vsed, Iudg. 5. 24. Iael the wife of Heber the Kexite shall be blessed aboue other women. It doth insinuate that Marie was highly fauoured of God, as also that she shall be praised of men throughout all generations. Elizabeth expounds Gabriel in this present chapter, at the 42. verse, Blessed art thou among women, because the fruit of thy wombe is blessed: and <sup>u</sup> Bernard expounds Elizabeth, Non quia tu benedicta, ideo benedictus fructus ventris tui: sed quia ille te prauenit in benedictionibus dulcedinis, ideo tu benedicta. Mary was blessed of God, in that she was chosen to be the mother of God. Other women haue benee and are the daughters of God; but Mary was both a daughter and a mother. The one is a speciall fauour, the other a singular honour, and Mary was blessed in respect of both. Albeit we doe not beare Christ bodily, yet if we spiritually beare him in our heart by faith, it is a great mercie, which we must acknowledge both in our selues and others. <sup>x</sup> For he that doth the will of God is a brother, and a sister, and a mother vnto Christ. As Mary was highly graced of God, so she was, and is, and shall be magnified of men. And from hence we may learne, that there is a time to commend, so well as to condemne, namely, 1. When the partie praised needeth encouragement. 2. When his gifts extolled are most excellent and eminent, as in Mary fulnesse of grace. 3. When he that is commended hath the grace to giue the glory to God, acknowledging himselfe to be freely beloned, and therefore blessed. 4. When the partie praising doth it as Gabriel here, not to flatter men, but to magnifie God.

<sup>q</sup> Vbi supra.

<sup>r</sup> Matth. 12. 50.

I haue spoken of three remarkable persons in this Gospell, of the partie sending, God: of the partie sent, Gabriel an Angel: of the partie to whom he was sent, A Virgin whose name was Mary, full of grace, blessed among women. It remaineth I should now treat of the partie for whom all this annunciation was, and that is man. For all this was said, and all that followeth in our text was done for vs men and our saluation. I will here briefly glosse this Gospell in the words of <sup>y</sup> Bernard, Felix est qui mittitur, felix à quo mittitur, felix ad quam mittitur, vt homo fiat felix pro quo mittitur.

<sup>r</sup> Apud Dormifec. ser. de annun. B. Marie.

We beseech thee Lord, powre thy grace into our hearts, that as we haue knowne Christ thy Sonnes incarnation by the message of an Angel; so by his Crosse and Passion we may be brought vnto the glory of his resurrection through the same Christ our Lord. Amen.

The Epistle. Act s 10. 34.

Peter opened his mouth, and said, of a truth I perceiue that there is no respect of persons with God, &c.

<sup>r</sup> Arcimus.

THe <sup>z</sup> summarie pith in this accurate speech of Saint Peter vnto Cornelius is, that all men indifferently, whether they be Iewes or Gentiles, haue remission of their sinnes by faith in Christ, which is Lord ouer all things, and ordained of God to be the Iudge of all men quicke and dead. The whole Sermon is diuided into three parts.

Proeme, vers. 34, 35.
wherein oberue

What is said for the matter, there is no respect of persons with God, &c.
How it is said for the manner, Peter opened his mouth, and said, of a truth I perceine.

Narration, ye know the preaching, &c.
Wherein S. Peter catechizeth his auditor Cornelius in the chiefe points of holy beleefe concerning the Doctrine, vers. 36, 37.

Miracles, vers. 38.
Life, vers. 39.
Death, ibid.
Resurrection, vers. 40, 41.
Comming to iudgement, vers. 42.

of Iesus Christ.

<sup>a</sup> Tertul de Corona militis, cap. 11.

Confirmation, by production of witnesses,

New, the blessed Apostles, vers. 39 We are witnesses of all things which he did, &c. and such witnesses as were chosen before of God, vers. 41.
Old, the holy Prophets, vers. 43. to him give all the Prophets witness.

Peter opened his mouth] This phrate doth intimate a <sup>b</sup> weightie seriousnesse in the speech, and a <sup>c</sup> free libertie in the speaker. In the speech, a weight and grauity; so Christ (in whom are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge) when he made that excellent Sermon vpon the mount, is said to haue <sup>d</sup> opened his mouth. And <sup>e</sup> Dauid in the person of Christ, I will open my mouth in parables, I will declare hard sentences of old. In the speaker, a libertie to deliuer his minde freely; so the Lord promised Ezechiel, <sup>f</sup> I will give thee an open mouth in the middest of them. And <sup>g</sup> Paul saith, O Corinthians, our mouth is open vnto you. So that to speake ore rotundo, with an open mouth, is nothing else, but after silence to speake out of mature deliberation and freedome of spirit ponderously, fully, cheerefully. So S. Peter hauing seene a vision, and heard a voice from heauen instructing and assuring him in the truth of the doctrine he was now to preach: opened his mouth, and said of a truth I perceine. That euery successor of Peter may doe the like, he must often pray with <sup>h</sup> Dauid, O Lord open thou my lips: and entreat his people likewise to pray for him, as <sup>i</sup> Paul did his Ephesians, that utterance may be giuen vnto him, and that he may open his mouth boldly to publish the secret of the Gospell.

Of a truth I perceine] Peter assuredly knew before, that there is no respect of persons with God; but by this experiment he did vnderstand it better, <sup>k</sup> Id nunc sciri dicitur quod scitur magis. As Almighty God knew that Abraham was a good man before he would haue sacrificed his sonne, yet vpon that occasion he did expresse it more, saying, <sup>l</sup> Now I know that thou fearest God, seeing thou hast not withheld thy sonne, thine onely sonne from me. Truth is more clearly perceiued in a particular experience, than in a generall notion, in which respect the New Testament is called truth, in comparison of the Old; John 1. 17. The Law was giuen by Moses, but grace and truth came by Iesus Christ. The Law prefiguring Christ was a truth conceiued, but the Gospell exhibiting Christ, a truth perceiued. The Law was truth in the theorie, but the Gospell a truth in experience, veritas facta, saith the beloued Disciple, because Christ only shadowed in the Law, was actually shewed in the Gospell. And so Peters (of a truth I perceine that there is no respect of persons with God) is like to that of <sup>m</sup> Paul, In Christ Iesu there is neither Jew nor Grecian, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female, neither circumcision auaileth any thing, neither vncircumcision, but saith which worketh by loue. Or we may take the clause (of a truth I perceine) for an earnest assueration, answerable to that of <sup>n</sup> Christ, I tell you the truth, and to that of <sup>o</sup> Paul, I speake the truth in Christ, and lie not. As if S. Peter should haue said, I deliuer nothing vnto you, but that which I certainly know to be true, by manifold reasons, and infallible signes, as hauing read it in the Prophets, vers. 43. and seene it in a vision, vers. 11, 12. and heard by voice from heauen, vers. 13, 15. By this example, Preachers of the Word are taught, first exactly to know the truth, and then

<sup>b</sup> Caluin, in loc.
<sup>c</sup> Vide Lorin, in act. cap. 8. vers. 35.
<sup>d</sup> Matth. 5. 2.
<sup>e</sup> Psalm 78. 2.

<sup>f</sup> Ezech. 29. 21
<sup>g</sup> 2. Cor. 6. 11

<sup>h</sup> Psalm. 51. 15.
<sup>i</sup> Ephes. 6. 19.

<sup>k</sup> Lorin, in loc.

<sup>l</sup> Gen. 22. 13.

<sup>m</sup> Galat. 3. 28. & 5. 6.

<sup>n</sup> Ioh. 16. 7.
<sup>o</sup> 1 Tim. 2. 7.

P Nahum 1. 1.
 q Prova. 17
Nabum.

f Tit. 1. 10.

f Laurent. Pi- fan in Euang. paradox.

c Arctius,
Caluin. Iustus
Ionas in loc.

q Jerem 17. 10.

x Thomas 2 2e. que 1. 63. art. 1.
 & Lessius de iust.
 & iure lib 2. cap
 32. dubit. 1.

y Matth 20. 15

z Ephes. 2. 8.

a Iob 34. 19.

b Psalms 32. 6.

c Ephes. 5. 1.

d Luke 6. 36.

e Leuit. 11. 44.

f Reusner. in symbol.

g Exod. 23. 8.

h Laertius in vita Diog. cynic.

i Iob 29. 14.

then earnestly to deliuer it vnto Gods people. The Sermons of the Prophet Nabum are termed P the booke of the visions of Nabum, because saith q Hierome, he well vnderstood and saw whatsoeuer he said. A Pastor in like sort must see with Nabum, and say with Peter, of a truth I perceine. For it is a shame that any should be Doctors of the Law (but a greater offence that any should be Preachers of the Gospell) and vnderstand not what they speake, neither whereof they affirme, 1 Tim. 1. 7. Imitate this patterne of Peter, and eschew vaine talkers, teaching otherwise for filthy lucre sake. It may be said better of a Minister than of a Monke; f Verus ecclesiastes non videt nisi aliena bona, & sua mala; illa vt amuletur, hac vt emendet.

There is no respect of persons with God] That we may well vnderstand and learne this lesson once, the Spirit repeats it often: as Deut. 10. 17. 2 Chro. 19. 7. Iob 34. 19. Rom. 2. 11. Ephes 6. 9. Coloss. 3. 25. 1 Pet. 1. 17. f By person is meant not the substance but the qualitie, to wit, whatsoeuer is about or without a man; as his birth, education, honour, wealth, and the like; God respects not any, because they be Iewes or Gentiles, high or low, rich or poore; but in every nation he who soeuer he be, that feareth him and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him. Hee that is the u searcher of the heart, iudgeth not after outward appearance. Whereas Pelagius obiected, that God is a respecter of persons, in giuing grace to some, and denying it vnto other: Answer is made, that this comes to passe, non ex dignitate humana, sed ex dignatione diuina, it is x donation of bountie, not a dotation according to the rules of iustice. Now God saith in the y Gospell, Is it not lawfull for me to doe as I will with mine owne? Mans merit workes not this mercy, z by grace yee are saved through faith, and that not of your selues, it is the gift of God. And so God in giuing fauours, and forgiuing faults vnto this man, and not vnto that, is not an acceptor of persons: for herein he a regardeth not the rich more than the poore, nor the Iew more than the Gentile, nor a man of peace more than a man of warre; as here you see Cornelius a Captaine, Cornelius a man of Cæsarea, Cornelius an alien from the common-wealth of Israel, is accepted with him as well as Peter borne among Gods owne people, and brought vp in Christs owne schoole. See S. Augustin. contra duas epistolas Pelagianorum, lib. 2. cap. 7. Thom. ubi sup. in margin. & part. 1. quest. 23. art. 5 ad 3. Pet. Martyr. & Pareus in Rom. 2. 11. Zanchius in Ephes. 6. 9. Caluin. & Lorin. in loc.

Princes and Magistrates are stiled b Gods, as being the deputie lieutenants of God on earth, and (as it were) the fingers of that hand which rules all the world: and therefore they must be c followers of God as deare children, d mercifull as our Father in heauen is mercifull, e holy for that he is holy, no respecter of persons, as there is no respect of persons with him: as they stand in Gods place, so they should walke in Gods path: yee shall heare the small as well as the great, Deut. 1. 17. wrest not the law, nor respect any person, neither take reward, Deut. 16. 9. thou shalt not fauour the person of the poore, nor honour the person of the mightie, but thou shalt iudge thy neighbour uprightly. Leuit. 19. 15. for it is not good to haue respect of any person in iudgement, Prou. 24. 23. The f Thebans hercupon vsually pourtraied their Prince blinde, with eares, and the Iudges assisting him in iustice without hands. Blinde, lest he should haue respect of persons: with eares, that he might heare both parties indifferently: the Iudges without hands, lest otherwise they might be corrupted with bribes, g for the gift h blindeth the wise, and peruerteth the words of the righteous: and for this end our forefathers ordained wisely, that euery Iudge should ride his Circuit in a Countrey farre distant from his owne home, whereby he might administer iustice freely without any fauour or feare. It was an old complaint of h Diogenes, that the greater the eues of the State did ordinarily punish the lesser: and another after him, that secret pillers of the Common-weale sit on the bench to condemne open robbers, standing at the barre. Magistrates in our dayes haue their houses seated so neere to Saint Bribes, as that few can say with i Iob, I put on iustice, and it couered me, my iudgement was a robe and a crowne, I was eyes to the blinde, and feet to the lame: fewer with

Samuel,

<sup>k</sup> Samuel, whose Ox have I taken? or whose Ass have I taken? or to whom have I done wrong? or whom have I hurt? or of whose hand have I receiued any bribe to blinde mine eyes therewith? and I will restore it you. None I feare with Norna, who was so good a Prince, that he did auow boldly, se nihil fecisse, quo minus possit imperio deposito priuatus tuto viuere. Some Magistrates vse the lawes as cob-webs, only to catch little flies: other as fox-nets, only to take great ones in a trap: and so the statutes of our kingdome (as a<sup>m</sup> reuerend Father of our Church once said) haue a good prologue, but bad epilogue: their inuention is wise, their intention honourable, but we faile in execution; and a<sup>n</sup> law without execution is as a bell without a clapper. A Iudge must haue two kindes of salt in him, as Baldus truly, the salt of science to know the law, and the salt of conscience to determine according to the same; neither respecting the person, uot expecting the gifts of any.

He that feareth him and worketh righteousnesse is accepted with him] To feare God and to keepe his commandements is the whole dutie of man, Ecclesiast. 12. 13. and therefore these two, the fearing of God, and working of righteousnes, comprehend our whole dutie. The first, all religious offices of pietie toward God: the second, all righteous offices of charitie toward our neighbour. Cornelius feare was not seruile, but filiall: he feared God as an obedient childe feareth a kinde father, and God is not our father after this sort but in Christ, in whom he is well pleased, and in whom he doth<sup>r</sup> adopt vs his children, giuing vs his Spirit<sup>i</sup> whereby we cry Abba father: in a word, Cornelius feare was<sup>r</sup> faith, and by this faith he was accepted with God, and this faith openly shewed it selfe in working righteousnesse toward men. And therefore such as build vpon this example, free-will and iustification by works, are<sup>n</sup> deceiued exceedingly, <sup>2</sup> for Cornelius is said here, first to feare God, and then afterward to worke righteousnesse. He had heard among the Iewes of Gods holy promise concerning the sending of his Sonne our Sauour, the which he beleued as the Patriarkes and Prophets, and other of Gods people who liued before Christs comming into the world; and this faith (as Paul speakes) wrought by loue, Galat. 5.6.

It is worth obseruing, that this commendation of Cornelius, is remembered often in holy Scriptures, as a speciall infallible marke of Gods children. <sup>y</sup> Iob a iust man, and one that feared God, <sup>2</sup> Simeon was a iust man and feared God; but euermore, the fearing of God, as being the<sup>2</sup> beginning of wildome, is mentioned as the chiefe note: father Abraham, a man who feared God, Gen. 22. 12. Ioseph, a man who feared God, Gen. 42. 18. the Midwiues in Aegypt feared God, Exod. 1. 17. If the fearing of God once goe before, working of righteoutnesse will instantly follow after, according to that of the Wiseman, <sup>b</sup> He that feareth the Lord will doe good. If thou seest a man in a desperate course, selling himselfe (as it is said of <sup>c</sup> Ahab) to worke wickednesse, <sup>d</sup> rising vp early to follow drunkennesse, and continuing at the tauerne till it be night, drawing in iniquity with cords of vanitie, and sinne as it were with cart-ropes; it is a sure signe that the true feare of God is not rooted in his soule, for whosocuer hath a care to liue religiously toward God, will also (so farre as humane frailtie will suffer) liue soberly toward himselfe, and righteously toward his neighbour.

Ye know the preaching] The narration and confirmation ensuing, are a little creed, containing the chiefe articles of holy belcese, but the point vrged by the blessed Apostle most, is the resurrection of Christ, expressly setting downe, 1. The author of his resurrection, him God raised vp. 2. The time when, the third day. 3. Before what witnesses, openly shewing him vnto vs witnesses chosen before of God. 4. What he did after he rose from death, he did eat and drinke with vs. 5. What he said, he commanded vs to preach vnto the people, and to testifie that it is he which was ordained of God to be the iudge of the quicke and the dead. In this argument of Christs resurrection, the Gospell and Epistle meet, and both are full and fit for the present feast of Easter. In that S. Peter maketh Apostles and Prophets ioynt witnesses of all these things, he doth insinuate that Christ is

<sup>k</sup> 1 Sam. 12. 3.

<sup>l</sup> Ziphilius in vita Nerue.

<sup>m</sup> B Vaughan Ser. at Pouts Crollé, November 22. 1601.

<sup>n</sup> Henningus apud Bucholzgr. in Chron. ad ann 1521.

<sup>o</sup> Apud Cassanum. catalog. part. 4. confide. tit. 6. <sup>p</sup> Caluir.

<sup>q</sup> Math 3. 17.

<sup>r</sup> Ephes 1. 5.

<sup>s</sup> Rom 8. 15.

<sup>t</sup> Actus.

<sup>u</sup> Bez2.

<sup>x</sup> Iustus Ionas.

<sup>y</sup> Iob 1. 1.

<sup>z</sup> Luke 2. 25

<sup>2</sup> Prou. 1. 7.

<sup>b</sup> Ecclesiasticus 15. 1.

<sup>c</sup> 1 King 21. 25

<sup>d</sup> Esay 5. 11. 18

<sup>c</sup> Paulinus epist. lib. 4. Epist. 1.

the beginning and end of the whole Scripture, <sup>e</sup> qui in lege uclatur & in euange-lio reuelatur. See Gospell 1. Sunday in Aduent.

The Gospell. L V K E 24. 13.

Behold, two of the Disciples went that same day to a towne called Emmaus, &c

<sup>f</sup> Calman, con. 1. in loc.

THis Scripture containeth a sweet conference betweene Christ and two Disciples, as they iourneyed in the way from Hierusalem to a towne called Emmaus. The <sup>f</sup> summe whereof is, that Christ Iesus is truly risen againe from the dead, as hauing fulfilled all things which Moses and the Prophets haue spoken of him. The whole may be diuided into three parts :

- Prologue, which occasioned the conference, ver. 13, 14. wherein these circumstances are considerable :
  - Who, two of the Disciples.
  - When, that same day.
  - Where, in the way betweene Hierusalem and Emmaus.
  - What, they talked together of all the things that had hapned.
- Dialogue, or the conference it selfe, wherein Christ sheweth his tender care toward his Disciples, in
  - Drawing neere to them, ver. 15.
  - Walking and talking with them, ver. 17-19.
  - Correcting them for their error, ver. 25.
  - Directing them in the truth, and that by
    - Words, arguing from reason, v. 26.
    - Deeds, he sate at table with them, he tooke bread, &c. ver. 30.
- Epilogue, declaring what ensued vpon the conference, to wit, an
  - Ingenuous confession of the faith in the two Disciples, Did not our hearts burne within vs, &c.
  - Earnest desire to confirme the same truth in other, And they rose vp the same houre, and returned to Hierusalem, and found the eleuen gathered together, and them that were with them, and they told, &c. ver. 33, 34, 35.

<sup>g</sup> Ardens.

A {

<sup>h</sup> Ecclesiast. 4. 9
<sup>i</sup> Bernard hom. de duobus Disc. euntibus in Emmaus.
<sup>k</sup> Matt. 27. 5.
<sup>l</sup> Luk. 10. 1.
<sup>m</sup> Maldonat. in loc.
<sup>n</sup> in Epitaph. Paulæ ad Eustoc
 Other, apud Maldonat, in loc. coniecture, that he was brother to Ioseph husband to Marie.
<sup>o</sup> Præfat. in lib. 1ob.
<sup>p</sup> In loc.
<sup>q</sup> Nicephorus lib. 1. cap. 34.
<sup>r</sup> Heres. 23.
<sup>s</sup> Init. com. in Ioan.
<sup>t</sup> In Luc. lib. 10. cap. ult.
<sup>u</sup> Bullinger, apud Marlorat. in loc.

Behold two of the Disciples went the same day] <sup>h</sup> Two are better than one, for if they fall, the one will lift vp his fellow. And therefore the Disciples here went not alone, but in companie, two, that they might by their mutuall helpe and conference mitigate one anothers griefe. And for this end they went to Emmaus, which is <sup>i</sup> interpreted, a thirsting after good aduice ; signifying hereby, that their afflicted soule desired earnestly to be releued with healthfull and heavenly counsell in this extremitie. Two they were, and two of the Disciples : not of the twelue, (for <sup>k</sup> Iudas had hanged himselfe before this ; and it is said in our present Text, at the 33. verse, that these two found the other eleuen gathered together) but of the <sup>l</sup> seuentie Disciples, as almost all Interpreters obserue. Yet (as <sup>m</sup> one notes) it may be that these were Disciples of Christ in secret, as Ioseph of Arimathea was. Ioh. 19. 38. One of the two Disciples is named here Cleophas, and he was (as <sup>n</sup> Hierome writes) a citizen of Emmaus, in whose house Christ was entertained at table, and so knowne by breaking of bread. That other Disciple not named is thought by <sup>o</sup> Gregorie the Great, <sup>p</sup> Theophylact, and <sup>q</sup> other, to be S. Luke, concealing his owne name out of modestie. But it is apparent in the proeme of this euangelicall historie, that S. Luke received his relations from other, and therefore not probable that he was one of these two. See Iansen concord. cap. 145. & Maldonat. in Luc. 1. 1.

<sup>r</sup> Epiphanius saith expressly, that this Disciple was Nathaniel, <sup>t</sup> Origen coniectures it was one Simeon, <sup>u</sup> Ambrose calleth him Amaon. <sup>v</sup> In this disention of opinions, opinions, obserue two things especially: 1. That it is fruitlesse to search after this name curiously, seeing the Spirit of truth and wisdom concealeth it. 2. That traditions are vncertaine though ancient, and therefore we must build our faith vpon the word written, and not vpon tales vnwritten. These two Disciples went the same day Christ arose from the dead out of their Colledge, but they went not out in Apostasie, like to them of whom S. Iohn, 1 Epist. 2. cap. vers. 19. They went out from vs, but they were not of vs: for if they had becne of vs, they would haue continued with vs. Neither went they forth in curiositie, like to x Dina, who went out to see the daughters of the land; but they went out from the rest of their companie like y Bees out of their hieue, that they might returne home laden with honie: for their communication is answerable to the present doctrine and griefe of their Colledge, they gather sweet from the flowers of Christs speech, hearing him expounding the Law and the Prophets attentiuely, compelling him importunately to stay with them, and neuer leaving him vntill in breaking of bread they knew him. And then as being filled with heauenly food (which is z sweeter than honie and the honie combe) they returned home to the blessed Apostles and other Disciples at Hierusalem, and told what things were done in the way.

To a towne called Emmaus] a Plinie reckoneth Emmaus among the Toparchies of Iudæa, called after ward b Nicopolis, vpon the c victorie which Augustus Cesar got againit Antonius and Cleopatra. This Citie was exceeding famous, as I finde in the records of antiquitie; but our Euangelist nameth it here, not for the celebritie of the towne, e but for the certaintie of the truth.

And they talked together of all the things that had hapned] f Of the death of Christ, and of the Iewes inhumane crueltie who put him to death, of the womens going to his Sepulchre, and of their report vnto the brethren: their heart was fixed on Christ, and out of their hearts abundance their mouth spake.

Quicquid agit Cleophas, nihil est Cleopha nisi Christus, Si gaudet, si flet, si tacet, hunc loquitur.

The newes at Hierusalem how Christ was crucified, dead, buried, and risen againe, are called things that hapned and chanced, g in respect of the Disciples ignorance, not in respect of Gods knowledge: for as concerning the passion of Christ, it is said expressly by S. Peter, Act. 3. 23. that he was deliuered, and crucified, and slaine by the determinate counsell and fore-knowledge of God, and so nothing hapned casually, seeing euery thing was aforetime h written of him in the law of Moses, and in the Prophets, and in the Psalmes. And as for the i resurrection of Christ, himselfe saith in this present chapter at the 25. verse, O fooles, and slow of heart to beleene all that the Prophets haue spoken, ought not Christ to haue suffered these things, and to enter into his glory? And he began at Moses and all the Prophets, and interpreted vnto them in all Scriptures which were written of him. k Mystically, these two Disciples are prayer and meditation, the which are two so ierely coupled together, as that they talke together often. In prayer our meditation is illuminated, and by meditation our deuotion in praying inflamed. Meditatio ruminat lixores vulnerum, fixuras clauorum, lanceam & acetum, persecutorum scitiam, Apostolorum fugam, mortem turpissimam, & corporis sepulchram: oratio fundit suspiria, pia deuotionis stillat aromata, tota resoluitur in lamenta.

And it chanced while they communed together and reasoned, Iesus himselfe drew neere] l The Lord is nigh to such as are of a contrite heart, and in the m mids of such as are gathered together to praise him. In the tap-house, where the communication is idle, prophane, scandalous, and in euery respect vnfaourie, there the deuill is in the drunkards heart, and eares, and tongue: n but in Gods house when we meet together to magnifie his name, nay in our owne house, when as we meditate on Christs precious death and brriall, and other mysteries of holy beleefe, Iesus himselfe o standeth behind our wall, looking forth of the windowes, shewing himselfe thorow the grates, and p putting in his hand at the hole of the doore to helpe vs, he drawes neere to vs, and walketh along with vs, as he did with the x Gen. 34. 1.y Ardens.z Psal. 119. 10.a Hist. lib. 5.cap. 14.b Hieron. in Dan. 8.c idem exposit.1. epist ad Tit.d Vide Baron.annal. Tom. 1.ad ain 34. fol.203. 204e Marlorat. inloc.f Augustin ser.144. de temp.g Arcius.h Luke 24. 44.i Euang. Tom. 2.in 3. 7. tom. d. sp.45. sect. 1.k Bernard. hom.de duobus disci-pulis enarratis inEmmaus.l Psal. 34. 17.m Matth 18. 20n Beato Bernard.Calmon.o Cant. 2. 9.p Cant. 5. 4.

<sup>q</sup> August ser.
 140. de temp.
<sup>e</sup> Pfal. 25. 3.
<sup>f</sup> Pfal. 23. 2.
<sup>c</sup> Caluin.
 Ludolphus.
<sup>u</sup> Augustin. ser.
 144. de temp.
<sup>z</sup> Arcius.

<sup>y</sup> Caietan.

<sup>e</sup> Matth. 5. 22.

<sup>a</sup> Marlorat.

<sup>b</sup> Galat. 2. 1.

<sup>c</sup> 2 Tim. 4. 2.

<sup>d</sup> 1 Cor. 4. 1.

<sup>c</sup> 1 Pet. 4. 11.

<sup>f</sup> Arcius.

<sup>g</sup> Caluin.
<sup>h</sup> In loc. idem laaſen & Aly.

<sup>i</sup> Ardens.
<sup>k</sup> Euthym.
 Ludolphus.
 Arca.

<sup>l</sup> Caietan.

<sup>m</sup> Culman. con.
 4. in loc.

<sup>n</sup> Marlorat.

two Disciples here, neuer leauing vs vntill he perceine that we be thorowly confirmed and comforted in the truth. <sup>q</sup> Ambulat cum illis in via & non dum illi ambulabant in via, inuenit enim eos exorbitasse de via: he which is the way, seeing his Disciples out of the way, shewes them his <sup>r</sup> pathes, and <sup>s</sup> leads them forth beside the waters of comfort: and for this end he doth aske, what manner of communications are these? <sup>t</sup> not as doubting himselfe, but only to put them out of doubt: <sup>u</sup> quarit ab eis quid inter se loquerentur, ut quod ipse sciebat illi faterentur. He doth aske them and vrge them againe and againe, <sup>x</sup> that he might haue fit occasion and ample matter of discourse: and when he found them vpon conference to be dullards in his schoole, he chides them, O fooles, and slow of heart, &c. fooles in vnderstanding, slow in affecting the truth. <sup>y</sup> Arguit eos amentie in parte cognoscitina, & tarditatis in parte affectiua. But yet in calling them fooles he brake not his owne law, (<sup>z</sup> whosoener shall say foole to his brother is worthy to be punished with hell fire) because this rebuke proceeds out of a <sup>a</sup> spirituall zeale for their good, and not out of any carnall hatred for their hurt. And such a reproofe is not a reproch, it is officium, and not conuictum, a work of charitie, and not a mark of inalice. So <sup>b</sup> Paul called his Galathians foolish, and he gaue this precept vnto <sup>c</sup> Timothie, improie, rebuke, but with all long-suffering and doctrine, for Christ here did not only correct his Disciples error, but also direct them in the truth, and that by words and deeds. By words, vrging the truth of his death and resurrection: 1. By reason, ought not Christ to haue suffered these things, and to enter into his glory? 2. From authoritie, he began at Moses and all the Prophets, and interpreted vnto them in all Scriptures which were written of him. Here first note the sweet harmonie betweene the two Testaments, in that both agree together, and meet together in Christ, as being alpha and omega, the beginning of the Gospell, and the end of the Law. Secondly, that the grounds of all our Sermons are to be taken out of holy writ; the <sup>d</sup> Ministers and messengers of God ought to deliuer the <sup>e</sup> words of God. Thirdly, that in our preaching we should vse such Scriptures as are most apt and fit for our present occasion, as Christ here cited not all the Scriptures in all the Law, but only such as were written of him, euen those which evidently proued his death and resurrection. He did interpret vnto them in all Scriptures, and yet named none, <sup>f</sup> that he might incite vs hereby to the diligent searching and examination of them.

Secondly, Christ instructed his Disciples in this present controuersie with his actions; for as it is said at the 19. verse, he was a Prophet mightie in deed and word: <sup>g</sup> that is, in soundnesse of doctrine, and sanctitie of life. First (as <sup>h</sup> Theophylact obserues) powerfull in deed, and then powerfull in word. For he perswadeth vnto vertue most, who liueth best. As in this place Christ himselfe was knowne by breaking of bread, <sup>i</sup> sooner than by preaching of the word. Or as <sup>k</sup> other, powerfull in his miracles, and powerfull in his teaching. His actions here mentioned concerning the bread, are foure; He tooke it, and blessed it, and brake it, and gaue to them. Among all which, he was only knowne in breaking of bread, <sup>l</sup> for that he did miraculously breake bread with his hands, as other cut it with a knife. The which he did often in his life, and so by this easily knowne after his rising from death.

<sup>m</sup> By this dialogue you may see, that Christ is especially knowne in the Scriptures, and yet not in the Scriptures, except he first open our eyes, and breake and giue to each one the bread of life. And in the conclusion or epilogue following, you may see likewise the fruit of interpreting Scriptures, how the <sup>n</sup> ministerie of the word maketh the fire of Gods Spirit to burne, first in our selues, and then afterwards to shine towards other. As the two Disciples here, so soone as their eyes were opened to see Christ, instantly the same houre they rose up, and returned to Hierusalem, and found the cleuen gathered together, and they told what things were done in the way, and how they knew him in breaking of bread; the circumstance of the time, and distance of the place, manifestly shew their zealous affection in relating these newes vnto the brethren. Emmanuel (as our Euangelist in the 13. verse) was about about threescore furlongs from Hierusalem, ° eight furlongs make an ordinary mile, and so threescore furlongs are about seuen miles and an halfe. Some Diuines affirme that it was a iourney of P three or 9 foure houres on foot. If then it were towards night when Christ vpon their importunitie sate at table with them, as we reade at the 29. verse; then it was (as we may coniecture probably) mid-night before they could come to Hierusalem; and yet (saith our text) they went the same houre, neither deferring the time, nor preferring their priuate businessse before the publike good. Howsoeuer they were (doubtlesse) after trauell weary, & after meat in the night sleepey: yet they would not suffer their eyes to sleepe, nor their eye-lids to slumber, nor the temples of his head to take any rest, vntill they had published vnto the brethren how Christ was risen againe from the dead, and how they knew him in breaking of bread. That we may performe the like diligence towards Gods people, as occasion is offered in our seuerall estates and callings, let vs pray with our mother the Church:

° Vide Malloni in loc.
¶ Caluin apud
Marlorat.
¶ Arctius

¶ Psal. 132. 4.

Almightie God which through thy onely begotten Sonne Iesus Christ hast ouercome death, and opened vnto vs the gate of euerlasting life: we humbly beseech thee that as by thy speciall grace preuenting vs thou doest put in our mindes good desires: so by thy continuall helpe we may bring the same to good effect, through Iesus Christ our Lord. &c.

The Epistle. ACTS 13 26..

Ye men and brethren, children of the generation of Abraham, &c.

THIS text is part of that excellent sermon made by the blessed Apostle S. Paul at Antioch, a Citie of Pisidia to the Iewes assembled together in their Synagogue, on the Sabbath day. The maine scope whereof is, that Iesus Christ is the Sauiour of Israel, and Messias of the world, promised vnto the Fathers, and exhibited in the fulnesse of time to their children, euen vnto vs, as being by faith a generation of Abraham, and that through him all that feare God and beleue, receive forgiveness of their sinnes, and are iustified from all things, from which they could not be iustified by the law of Moses.

Explication, from the 16. verse to the 26. intimating that Iesus Christ is the blessed seed promised in old time by the Prophets, and preached in these last dayes by Iohn the Baptist, who was more than a Prophet.

The whole Sermon hath especially two parts:

Application, in the words allotted for our present text, where in three points are principally regardable, to wit, an Insinuation, ye men and brethren, &c.

Preoccupation, for the inhabitants of Hierusalem, &c.
Commination, beware therefore lest that fall vpon you, &c.

¶ Matth. 11. 9

The Gospell of Christ is a proclamation in writing common to all, and the Preacher is the voice of a cryer, euen the mouth of God to giue notice to the people, that the contents of the proclamation concerne them and euery one of them. As ACTS 2. 39. The Promise is made to you, and to your children, and to all that are a farre off, euen as many as the Lord our God shall call And ACTES 3. 25. Vnto you hath God raised vp his Sonne Iesus, and him hee hath sent to blesse you, in turning euery one of you from your iniquities. And here, Ye men and brethren, children of the generation of Abraham, and who soeuer among you feareth God, to you is the word of this saluation sent. And verse 38. Be it knowne vnto you that through the man Iesus is preached vnto you the forgiveness of sinnes.

¶ Iohn 1. 23.

<sup>a</sup> As a larat.
<sup>b</sup> Lorinus.
<sup>c</sup> 1. Cor. 1. 23.
<sup>d</sup> Esay 2. 3.
<sup>e</sup> Caluin.
<sup>f</sup> Actes 3. 15.
<sup>g</sup> Luke 19. 42.
<sup>h</sup> Matth. 23. 37.
<sup>i</sup> 1. Cor. 2. 8.
<sup>j</sup> Psa. 118. 27.
<sup>k</sup> Ephes. 4. 8.

Now that our Apostle might the better insinuate himself into the mindes of his hearers, and thereby more powerfully perswade the truth of his doctrine, he calls them brethren, children of the generation of Abraham, and such as feare God. The first title was among the Jewes held gracious; the second and third glorious, esteeming it ever the greatest honour to be the seruants of God and sonnes of Abraham. And whereas Christ crucified is vnto the Jewes a stumbling block, (for what Iew wil out of his own iudgement admit him for the Saviour of Gods people, who was condemned by the chiefe Priests: and rulers, and inhabitors of Gods owne Citie Ierusalem; of which it is sayd, The Law shall goe forth of Sion, and the word of the Lord from Hierusalem) our Apostle remoues the scandall of Christs Crosse, retorting and answering this obiection in his ensuing discourse. First, he retorteth it, and maketh it aduantage in his present businesse. As if hee should say, ye men of Antioch, children of the generation of Abraham, especially such as feare God among you; I say ye should the rather embrace the word of saluation sent vnto you, because the men of Hierusalem and their rulers killed the Lord of life, condemning him in whom they found no cause of death. Hierusalem vnderstood not the things appertaining to her peace, but murdered the Prophets, and stoned such as were sent to her. Take heed therefore ye men of Antioch, that ye commit not the like sinne and ingratitude; lest that fall on you which is spoken of in the Prophets; behold ye despisers, and wonder, and perish.

Secondly, S. Paul here giueth answer to this obiection. It is true that the men of Hierusalem and their rulers haue crucified the Lord of glory; but it was out of their ignorāce, because they knew him not, nor yet the voices of the Prophets which are read euery Sabbath day. They killed, him indeed, but herein they fulfilled all the Scriptures that are written of him, especially that Scripture, The same stone which the builders refused is become the head stone of the corner. And lastly, though it be granted vnto you that the Saviour Iesus (through whom is preached vnto you forgiveness of sinnes) had a death full of ignominie, for that he was hanged on a tree: yet his rising againe from the dead the third day was exceeding glorious. in that he lead captiuitie captiue, triumphing ouer death, hell, and the graue.

Now that Christ is risen againe from death he proues by the witnessse of Apostles, { Himselfe, we declare, &c. For Christ after his resurrection was scene of Paul, 1. Cor. 15. 8.

 Other, who went with him from Galilee to Hierusalem, of whom he was scene many dayes, as being witness chosen of God for the same purpose, Act. 10. 41.
 Prophets, { Esay, chap. 55. 3.
Dauid, Psal. 2. 7. & 16. 11,

The first testimonie cited by Paul is in the second Psalme, Thou art my son, &c. <sup>b</sup> the which I finde expounded of Dauid and of Christ.

If we take this spoken of Dauid, hee may be called the sonne of God, as a King, for Princes haue their power from God, and so stiled the children of the most High. Psalme 82. 6.

 Man, for we are the generation of God, it is he who made vs, and not our selues. Psal. 100. 2. and is not he thy father that made thee, Deut. 32. 6, Regenerate man, for euery one that is new borne is borne of God, adopted his son, and made his heire, Rom. 8. 15. 17.

Thus it may be said by God vnto Dauid in a type, this day haue I begotten thee but only to Christ in truth. And therefore <sup>m</sup> Rabbi Solomon. and other Doctors among the Jewes, vnderstand this of the Messias, and assuredly Paul in his Epistle

<sup>b</sup> Caluin in Psal. 2.
<sup>i</sup> Iohn 19. 11.
<sup>rom</sup> Rom. 13. 1.
<sup>k</sup> Actes 17. 28.
<sup>l</sup> 1. Iohn 3. 9.
<sup>m</sup> Galat. de arcanis lib. 3. cap. 7

to the Hebrews, chap 1. vers. 5. did he rather cite this text to prooue that Christ is God, for that he knew their Rabbines vsually construed it of Israels Sauour. The maine proposition of the second Psalm is, that the Messias is the King of Kings, and Lord of Lords, euen Gods onely begotten Sonne, very God of very God. The which is concluded in this argument. He that is to be worshipped and kissed of all Princes, on earth, is doubtlesse the King of Kings: but the Messias ought to be worshipped of all other Kings and Rulers and Iudges of the earth, ergo, the Messias seated upon Gods holy hill of Sion, is the King of Kings, euen the Lord who dwelleth in heauen. If the Princes of the world stand vp and take counsell together against the Lord, and against his anointed, it is but in vaine. For if his wrath be kindled (yea but a little) they shall instantly perish, he shall bruse them with a rod of iron, and breake them in pieces like a potters vessell. On the contrary, blessed are they who kisse the Sonne, and put their trust in him; happy men, and wise Kings are they, who serue the Lord in feare and reioyce before him in reuerence. God onely killeth and maketh aliuie; bringeth downe to the graue, and rayseth vp. Ergo the Messias hauing this absolute power of life and death, is vndoubtedly Gods onely begotten Sonne, whom he hath made heire of all things, and iudge of all men. And therefore Diuines interpret the cited words as properly spoken of Christ.

And that in respect of his } Generation, } Temporall.
 } Resurrection. } Eternall.

Some construe this of his temporarie birth, in saying Thou art my Sonne, God sheweth his diuine generation: and in saying this day haue I begotten thee, his humane natiuitie. For hodie, signifieth in holy Scripture the present life, Heb. 3. 7, Psalm. 95. 8. to day if ye will heare his voyce. So that I haue begotten thee this day; as if he should haue sayd, I haue brought my first begotten sonne into the world, I haue caused thee to become flesh, and in the fulnesse of time to be borne of a woman.

Other vnderstand this of Christs eternall generation. As if God should haue sayd, other are my sonnes improperly, but thou art my Son properly. filius meus naturalis, singularis substantialis: A sonne not by creation, as the whole world, nor through adoption, as the whole Church: but a sonne by nature, my begotten, and only begotten sonne. Iohn 3, 16, The very brightnesse, and expresse character of my Person, Heb. 1. 3. Whereas Arrians and other object against this interpretation the word hodie; Saint Augustine answereth appositly that with God (vnto whom all things are present) there is neither yesterday, nor to morrow, but onely to day. Apud Deum nunquam crastinus, nunquam hesternus dies est, sed semper hodie. And in h. s. Enchiridion cap. 49, Vbi dies nec hesterni sine inchoatur, nec initio crastini terminatur, hodiernus est.

Hilary, Eusebius, Ambrose, with other expound this of Christs resurrection, as Paul here. We declare to you how the promise made to the fathers, God hath fulfilled vnto their children, euen vnto vs, in that he raised vp Iesus againe, euen as it is written in the second Psalm, thou art my Sonne, this day haue I begotten thee. For to raise vp againe from death vnto life euerlasting is a new begetting; and in this sence Christ is called elsewhere the first begotten, and the first borne of the dead. Againe the circumstances of the place, leade the Reader to this construction, why doe the heathen so furiously rage together, and why doe the people imagine a vaine thing? that is, as Peter and Iohn haue well applied it, Acts 4. 27. Herod and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles, and people of Israel, gathered themselues together against the Lord and against his Christ, euen his holy Sonne Iesus: and when they had filled all things that were written of him (as Paul in our text) they tooke him downe from the tree, and put him in a sepulchre, rolling a great stone to the doore thereof, and sealed it, and making it sure with the watch. In all which (as the Prophet speakes) their imaginations and actions were vaine; for he that dwelleth in heauen did laugh them to

<sup>a</sup> Vide Bellarm. de Christ. lib. 1. cap. 5. in principio.

<sup>o</sup> 1. Sam. 2. 6.

<sup>p</sup> Heb. 1. 2.

<sup>q</sup> Acts 10. 42.

<sup>r</sup> Eul. hym. Genebrard in Psal. 2. Christof. Cyrill. Alex. Greg. Nyssen. apud Suarez Tom. 2. disp. 45. sect. 1.

<sup>s</sup> Heb. 1. 6.

<sup>t</sup> Ioh. 1. 14.

<sup>u</sup> Galath. 4. 4.

<sup>x</sup> August. in Psal. 2. & Enchirid. cap. 49. Athanas. ser. 3. contra. Arianos. Rufinus apud Lorin. in loc. y Suarez. Tom. 1. disp. 2. sect. 3.

<sup>z</sup> Ioan. de Turrecremat. in Psalm. 2.

<sup>a</sup> Orat. de quinque heres. cap. 4. habetur Tom. 6. fol. 76.

<sup>b</sup> In Psal. 2.

<sup>c</sup> Demonst. euang. lib. 6.

cap. 2.

<sup>d</sup> Lib. 3. de sacram. cap. 1.

<sup>e</sup> Apud Lorin. in loc.

<sup>f</sup> Apocal. 1. 5.

<sup>g</sup> Coloss. 1. 18.

<sup>h</sup> Mat. 27. 60.

66.

<sup>i</sup> Hierom:
August.

Genebrardus
in Psalm. 2.

<sup>k</sup> Vide Calvin.
in Psalm. 2. &
Suarez Tom. 2.

in 3 Tom. disp.
45 sect. 1.

<sup>l</sup> Apud Sixt. Se-nen bib sanct.
lib. 7. h. 2. 8.
obiect. 11.

<sup>m</sup> Lib. 3. de sacram. cap. 1.

<sup>n</sup> Arelina.

<sup>o</sup> Lorin.

<sup>p</sup> Rom. 4. 25.

<sup>q</sup> Actes 2. 29.

<sup>r</sup> 1. King. 2. 10.

<sup>s</sup> Colof. 2. 15.

<sup>t</sup> Hosea 13. 14.

<sup>u</sup> Culman in loc.

<sup>x</sup> Ribera in Habacuc. 1.

Num. 5.

<sup>y</sup> Calvin. in Habacuc. 1.

<sup>z</sup> Ribera ubi
sup. Num. 7.

scorne, the Lord had them in derision: he raised his Christ againe the third day, making him a King over his holy hill of Sion, that is, absolute head of his Church giuing him all the heathen for his inheritance, & the uttermost parts of the earth for his possession. And so God in raising Christ vp againe from the dead, evidently shewed that he was his only begotten Sonne. As if hee should haue said, thou wert euer my Sonne before to day, before there was any day; <sup>k</sup> but yet in this day of thy resurrection, I haue most especially manifested vnto the world, that thou art my Sonne whom I haue begotten. It is then an <sup>i</sup> idle conceit, to thinke that Paul is not Author of that Epistle written to the Hebrewes, because the words of Dauid vrged here to proue Christs resurrection, are cited here, chap. 1. verse 5. to shew Christs eternall generation. For (as Paul in his Epistle to the Romanes, chap. 1. verse 4.) Christ is declared mightily to be the Sonne of God by rising againe from the dead His resurrection is an infallible demonstration of his diuinitie, seeing none euer raised another from the dead but by God: none euer raised himselfe from the dead but God. I conclude this obseruation in the words of <sup>m</sup> Ambrose, Pulchre pater dicit ad filium, ego hodie genui te, hoc est, quando redemisti populum quando ad caeli regnum vocasti, quando implesti voluntatem meam, probasti meum te esse filium.

The next Scripture quoted here by Paul is, Esay 55. 3. The promises of God made to Dauid concerning the sending of Israels Sauour, are sure mercies, and faithfull words: he must of necessitie therefore fulfill them in euery respect, <sup>n</sup> the which he could not haue done, but in raising vp Iesus againe; for the resurrection of Christ is the <sup>o</sup> complement, and (as it were) Amen of all his promises, according to that of <sup>p</sup> Paul, he died for our sinnes, and is risen againe for our iustification, See conclusion of the Gospell on S. Thomas day.

The last authoritie cited in this place, to proue Christs resurrection. is taken out of the 16. Psalme, verse 11. Thou shalt not suffer thine holy one to see corruption: The Iewes vnderstood this of Dauid, but (saith our Apostle) Dauid albeit hee was a King, and a Prophet, and a <sup>q</sup> Patriarke, a man according to Gods owne heart, as it is recorded of him in this present chapter, at the 22. verse; yet (after he had in his time fulfilled the will of God he fell on sleepe, and was layd vnto his fathers and saw corruption. Earth he was, and to earth he returned againe. But Christ Iesus, although he was hanged on a tree, and put in a sepulchre; yet he saw no corruption. He rose againe the third day, triumphing ouer all his enemies <sup>r</sup> openly saying, <sup>s</sup> O Death I will be thy death O graue I will be thy destruction. And therefore this Iesus is hee through whom is preached vnto you forgiveness of sinnes & by whom all that beleue are iustified frō all things, from which yee could not be iustified by the law of Moses.

*Mors mortis morti mortem nisi morte dedisset,
A nobis vita ianua clausa foret.*

Beware therefore, lest that fall on you which is spoken of in the Prophets] This text is taken out of the first of Habakuck, vers. 5. <sup>u</sup> but for as much as all the Prophecies were collected together into one volume, he saith in the Prophets. <sup>x</sup> Or according to the Hebrew phrase, in the Prophets, is as if he should haue sayd, in one of the Prophets; as Genes. 23. 6. In the chiefest of our sepulchres burie thy dead; that is in one of the chiefe. He doth alter the words of the Prophet according to the sound but not according to the sense. Habakuk saith, behold among the heathen; Paul here, behold ye despisers. In which our Apostle doth expound and not confound the Prophet: for whereas the Iewes despised the word of God, he sent them to be taught by the Caldeans: <sup>y</sup> as if Habakuk had sayd, ye wil not obey Gods voyce, yee will not learne any thing in his Schoole; wherefore ye shall ere it be long be made to know his iudgements among the heathen: Loe (saith the Lord) I wil raise vp the Caldeans, that bitter and hasty nation, which shal march thorow the breadth of the land to possesse the dwelling places which are not theirs. And <sup>z</sup> this their ouerthrow as a type of their future reprobation and spirituall vastity for the contempt of the Gospell.

These things are <sup>a</sup> ensamples, and are written to admonish vs vpon whom the ends of the world are come. Let vs therefore beware, that these heauie iudgements fall not vpon vs, as they did vpon the Iewes, Videte & aspiciite, admiramini, admiramini, take heed, and againe I say take heed, <sup>b</sup> quench not the Spirit, despise not prophesying, receiue not the grace of God in vaine <sup>c</sup> Nemo malus nisi stultus, he that is <sup>a</sup> a despiser of the sauing word is an arrant foole; for if hee were wiser he would kisse the Sonne, and beware lest that fall on his head which is spoken of in the Prophets, Behold ye despisers, and wonder, and perish.

<sup>a</sup> 1. Cor. 6. 11.

<sup>b</sup> 1. Thes. 5. 19.

<sup>c</sup> Saluianus lib. 5. de gubernat. Dei.

The Gospell. L V K E 24. 36.

Iesus stood in the midst of his Disciples, &c.

CONCERNING the chiefe parts and passages of this Scripture; See Gospel 1. Sunday after Easter, and Gospel on S. Thomas day. Here pauze and pray.

Almightie Father, which hast giuen thine onely Sonne to die for our finnes, and to rise againe for our iustification: grant vs so to put away the leauen of malice and wickednesse, that wee may alway serue thee in purenesse of liuing and trueth, through Iesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

The Epistle. E P H E S. 4. 7.

Vnto euery one of vs is giuen grace, according to the measure of the gift of Christ. &c.

Saint Paul doth especially <sup>d</sup> two things in all his Epistles: 1. treat. 2. intreat. Shaving sufficiently treated in the former chapters of doctrinals, he cometh in this present to morals; intreating his Ephesians in generall, to walke worthy of the vocation wherunto they were called: in more particular, to support one another through loue, keeping the vnitie of the spirit in the bond of peace: pressing this one point with arguments of <sup>e</sup> two sorts.

<sup>d</sup> Chrysostom Rom. 6.

The first (of which Epistle 17. Sunday after Trinitie) is taken from such things as are common vnto the whole Church, as being in all the faithfull one and the same, there is one bodie, and one spirit and one hope, one Lord, one faith, one baptisme, one God and father of all, which is aboue all, and through all, and in you all. As if he should argue thus, if the Church your mother be but one, God your father but one, Christ your Lord but one, the holy Spirit, your Comforter but one, if yee haue but one hope, one faith, one baptisme; I see no cause why yee should not liue together and loue together as all one, labouring to keepe the vnitie of the spirit in the bond of peace.

<sup>e</sup> Aquina zacharius.

The second (contained in our present text) is taken from such graces as are in euery one diuers. <sup>f</sup> shewing that this inequalitye of gifts is not an hindrance, but rather a furtherance to vnitie: for as much as all of them are giuen by the same author for the same end. Vnto euery one of vs is giuen some gift, vnto none, all, he that hath most hath but a measure. As then in the naturall bodie, the eye cannot say to the hand I haue no need of thee: nor the hand againe to the feet, I haue no need of you; but euery part seeketh anothers and not his owne good: Euen so in the Church (which is Christs mysticall bodie) God made not all Apostles, or all Prophets, or Euangelists, &c. But some Apostles, some Prophets, some Euangelists, &c. There be diuersities of gifts, and diuersities of administrations, and diuersities of operations, 1. Cor. 12. euery one standeth in neede of anothers gift, and thereupon is occasioned to support one another in loue, preserving the vnitie of the spirit in the bond of peace. See Epistle 2. Sunday after Epiphanie, and 10. after Trinitie.

<sup>f</sup> Aretius. Manlorat.

<sup>g</sup> 1. Cor. 12. 21. 25.

In the whole foure points are to be considered especially.

1. Who, Christ, and that is Proued out of the 68. Psalm verse 18. he led captiuitie captiuitie, and gaue gifts vnto men.
2. When, When he ascended vp on high, euen aboue all heauens to fulfill all things.
3. What, he made some Apostles, some Prophets, some Euangelists, &c.
4. Why, for the persifing of the Saints, for the worke of the ministerie, for the edifying of the body of Christ.

Concerning the first: in that our Apostle doth auow here that the diuersitie of grace bestowed on the Church is the gift of Christ, whereas he saith elsewhere, that God the Father ordained Apostles, and Prophets, and Teachers, and that the Spirit maketh all these things, vnto euery one severally distributing as hee will; we may learne two conclusions in Diuinitie. <sup>h</sup> 1. That all the workes of the sacred Trinitie, quoad extra, without it selfe, are common and communicable to euery person of the three, 2. That God the Sonne is <sup>i</sup> equal in might and mercie to God the Father, he being ascended before all heauens is the giner of gifts vnto me. And here we must accord to the Prophet and our Apostle: The one saith, he receiued gifts for men; the other, hee gaue gifts vnto men: and these two seeme to contradict each other. <sup>k</sup> Answer is made, that Dauid speaks of this donation in time to come, but Paul of this donation already past and accomplished Dauid of the promise, Paul of the performance. <sup>l</sup> Or Christ as hee was God gaue gifts in heauen, and as man, he receiued gifts on earth: or hee receiued, <sup>m</sup> in that his members receiued; according to his owne saying, Mat. 25. 40. in as much as ye haue done it vnto one of the least of these my brethren, yee haue done it vnto me: or he receiued <sup>n</sup> to giue, as Exod. 25. 2. Speake to the children of Israel that they receiue an offering for me, that is, (according to the translation of our <sup>o</sup> present Church Bible) that they bring: where receiuing (as <sup>p</sup> Aben Ezra notes) is giuing, and so Paul alluding rather to the sense than to the words of Dauid, saith, hee gaue gifts vnto men.

Touching the second point: it is demanded how Christ is said here to haue made some Apostles, and some Prophets, &c. when he went vp on high, and led captiuitie captiue, seeing wee reade in the Gospels historie, that he chose his <sup>r</sup> Apostles and <sup>s</sup> Disciples, and gaue them a commission to preach in his life time; and that after his resurrection he confirmed them in his office, by <sup>t</sup> breathing on them, and giuing them the Holy Ghost, and saying, as my Father sent me, euen so send I you, <sup>u</sup> Goe teach all nations, baptizing them in the Name of the Father, and the Sonne, and the holy Ghost. Answer may be, that Christ is reported in this Scripture to haue giuen Apostles vnto the Church after he went vp on high, in respect of their gifts extension, and ostension.

Extension, as hauing after *Christ*s ascension receiued the gifts of the Holy Ghost after a more glorious manner, and in a farre greater measure. So the <sup>v</sup> text, The holy Ghost was not yet giuen, because that Iesus was not yet glorified; and <sup>y</sup> If I goe not away, the Comforter will not come to you: but if I depart, I will send him vnto you. And Christ at his ascension also charged them to wait for this promised power of the holy Ghost. See Gospel, Sunday after Ascension day.

Ostension, and that 1. in respect of the <sup>z</sup> solemne inauguration into their Apostleship, on the feast of <sup>a</sup> Pentecost in the sight of Gods people gathered together at Hierusalem out of euery nation vnder heauen. It is reported of Dauid, that he was first anointed King of Israel in the midst of his brethren. 1. Sam. 1. 16. and after ward in Hebron. 2. Sam. 2. But he was not called King, vntill he was anointed solemnly before the Tribes of Israel. 2. Sam. 5. Euen so, though it be granted that the Apostles were nominated and elected to their office before *Christ*s death, and confirmed in their calling after *Christ*s resurrection; yet they were not apparantly known vnto Gods people to be so, till he went vp on high and gaue

the

<sup>b</sup> Occūmen. in loc.

<sup>l</sup> Primasius in loc.

<sup>k</sup> Hieron. expos. in loc.

<sup>l</sup> Aquin. in loc.
<sup>m</sup> August. in Psal. 67.

<sup>n</sup> Hieron. in Psal. 67.
<sup>o</sup> Idem Castalio. & Bib. Hebr. 8.

<sup>r</sup> Apud Genebrard. in Psal. 67

<sup>s</sup> Zanchius. Marlorat. in loc.

<sup>t</sup> Matth. 10. 1.

<sup>u</sup> Luke 10. 1.

<sup>v</sup> Iohn 20. 21.

<sup>w</sup> Mat. 28. 19.

<sup>x</sup> Iohn 7. 39.

<sup>y</sup> Iohn 16. 7.

<sup>z</sup> Zanchius.

<sup>a</sup> Act. 2.

the gifts of the holy Ghost vnto them in the visible formes of clouen and fierie tongues, Actes 2, 3. See Epistle on Whitfunday.

2. Ostention in regard of Execution of their office, for albeit they had a commission before to preach first vnto the <sup>b</sup> lost sheepe of Israel, and then vnto all nations in the world. Matth, 28. 19, yet they did not execute this commission in gathering together a Church out of both vnto God, <sup>c</sup> vntill Christ had ascended farre above all heauens to fulfill all things: and the reason hereof is rendred in our text, because Dauid had so prophesied of him in the 68. Psalme, when he went up on high and led captivity captiue, and gaue gifts vnto men. And indeed it was at this time most fit for him, and best also for his, to giue gifts; it was exceeding fit for himselfe, because glorious Conquerours in their solemne triumphs vsually leade their chiefe enemies fettered either in iron chaines, as <sup>d</sup> Paulus Amilius triumphed ouer Perseus: or in iron cages, as <sup>e</sup> Tamberlane the Great vsed proud Baiaxet King of the Turkes, And so leading captiuitie captiue, they deuided the spoile to their friends and followers, as it is in the <sup>f</sup> Psalme. Christ ascending on high led captiuitie captiue, & that is, the deuill and all his complices, hell, death, and the graue, triumphing ouer them openly. Giuing all gifts vnto the Church, as Apostles, and Prophets, and Euangelists, and Pastors and Teachers, who might <sup>h</sup> loose such as Satan <sup>i</sup> bindes: and it was at this time best for his followers, as not depending any longer vpon his bodily presence. See Gospel. 4. Sunday after Easter.

The third remarkable point in this Scripture is what he gaue to men, vnto euery one is giuen grace, according to the measure of the gift of Christ, &c. He doth vnderstand by grace not sauing grace, for that (as he shewed in the former part of this chapter) is in all the members of the Church one and the same: one faith, one hope, one baptisme, &c. <sup>k</sup> But ii χάρεις, is taken here for τα χαρίσματα, namely, for the diuers gifts of the holy Ghost, as interpretation of tongues, and discerning of spirits, and the gifts of healing, prophesie, and the word of knowledge, and the like, of which he disputeth that large, 1. Cor. 12. and so Paul expoundeth himselfe in our present text at the 11. verse, the same made some Apostles, some Prophets, some Euangelists, &c.

Apostles were such as he called himselfe (either in his state mortall, as the 12. Disciples: or in his state glorious, as Paul, Actes 9. 15. and Matthias, Actes 1. 26.) to preach his Gospel, and to plant his Church in euery nation of the world. Prophets were such as <sup>m</sup> interpret the Scriptures of the Prophets, 1. Cor. 14. 4. He that prophesieth, edifieth the Church, and Mat. 23. 34. Behold, I send vnto you Prophets, that is, Preachers. <sup>n</sup> Or Prophets were such as had maruellous wisdom, and could foretell things to come, as Agabus, Actes 11. 28. signified by the Spirit, that there should be great famine thorowout all the world: which also came to passe vnder Claudius Cesar. Euangelists are so called, either of preaching the Gospel, and so <sup>p</sup> Paul exhorted Timothy to do the worke of an Euangelist: or else of <sup>q</sup> writing the Gospel, and so there be but foure Euangelists onely, Matthew, Marke, Luke, Iohn. And here we may note the reason why the Church appointed this Scripture to be read at this time, namely, because Saint Marke was an Euangelist. Pastors are such as are placed ouer a <sup>r</sup> certaine Cure, whereas Apostles had the whole Church for their charge. So <sup>s</sup> Paul speakes vnto the Elders of the Church at Ephesus, take heed to your selues, and to all the stocke whereof the Holy Ghost hath made you ouerseers. And so <sup>t</sup> Bishops in their Diocesse, and <sup>u</sup> Priests in their Parishes are Pastors. Or as <sup>v</sup> Theophylact, Pastors and Doctors are Presbyters and Deacons. Or (as some <sup>y</sup> late Diuines obserue) Pastors are Rectors of the whole Congregation, Doctors are Catechists, and Teachers of the youth and other new-comes into Christs schoole. Pastors are such as <sup>z</sup> feed Christs sheepe, and Doctors are such as feed Christs Lambs: or (as <sup>a</sup> Beza) Pastors are they who gouerne the Church. and Doctors are they who gouerne the schooles. But I rather embrace their opinion <sup>b</sup> who thinke Pastors and Doctors are diuers names of one office, <sup>c</sup> euen as feeding and teaching are all one: for otherwise Paul (as Hierome, Lombard, Anselme haue noted vpon the place) would haue distinguished

<sup>b</sup> Matth. 10. 6.

<sup>c</sup> Mark. 16. 20.

<sup>d</sup> Liuius Decad.
5. lib. 5.

<sup>e</sup> Knoles in the life of Baiaxet.
<sup>f</sup> Psal. 68. 12.

<sup>g</sup> Hierom.

Primasius.

Aquine.

<sup>h</sup> Mat. 16 19.

<sup>i</sup> Luke 13. 16.

<sup>k</sup> Aretius &
Zanchius ex
Græc. schol.

<sup>l</sup> Marlorat.

<sup>m</sup> Lombard.

Aquin.

<sup>n</sup> Anselm.

Eccl.

Zambius.

<sup>o</sup> 2. Tim. 4. 5.

<sup>p</sup> Occumen.

Theophylact.

<sup>q</sup> Caluin.

Zanchius.

<sup>r</sup> Actes 20. 21.

<sup>s</sup> Occumen.

Lombard.

<sup>t</sup> Anselm.

<sup>u</sup> In loc.

<sup>v</sup> Aretius.

Zanchius.

<sup>w</sup> Anselm.

<sup>x</sup> Annot. in loc.

<sup>y</sup> Augustin.

Chrysostom.

Masculus.

<sup>z</sup> Whitgift

defense of his answer of the admonition,

fol. 234

Idem Bullinger

& Piscator in

loc.

<sup>a</sup> See Suruey of pretended holyd discipline,

cap. 9.

distinguished them as he did the rest, and haue said, He gaue some Pastors some Teachers: as well as some Apostles, some Prophets, some Euangelists, &c. but hee ioyneth them together Pastors and Teachers, <sup>d</sup> Insinuating that Pastors should teach, and that as (our Church speakes) both by their preaching and liuing, ensamples in word, in conuersation, in loue, in spirit, in faith, and purenesse, 1.Tim.4.12.

<sup>d</sup> Anselm.
Lombard.

<sup>o</sup> Bez.
Zanchius.

<sup>f</sup> Defense of his answer to the admonition. fol. 229.

<sup>e</sup> Arelmus.
B. 74.

<sup>c</sup> Some Diuines obserue, that these functions are partly temporall and extraordinary, as Apostles, Prophets, Euangelists: and partly continuall and ordinary, as Pastors and Teachers: but herein I tread in the steps of that holy Father, my most honoured and honourable master Archbishop Whitgift, who <sup>f</sup> writing against the Schismatickes of his age saith, and proueth out of this our present text also, that all these degrees of Ministers, remaine stil in some sort vntill the worlds end. For first (as Nonelists acknowledge) Paul in this place maketh a perfit plat-forme of a Church, & a full rehearfall of all offices therein contained, and he saith expressly, that Christ ascending vp on high, gaue them for the gathering together of the Saints, and for the worke of the Ministry, &c. Till we all come to the vnitie of the faith, and knowledge of the Sonne of God, vnto a perfect man, vnto the measure of the full age of Christ. That is, as Caluin, Zanchius, and <sup>g</sup> other, vntill we meet in that other world to come.

I know there were certaine things in the blessed Apostles, which were proper vnto themselves, as their immediate calling from God, the power of working miracles, and their commission to goe into the whole world, &c. but to preach the Gospel of Christ in places where neede requireth (although it be not peculiarly committed to them) or to gouerne the Churches already planted; I see no cause why it should not be perpetuall among the Ministers of the word.

Likewise the function of an Euangelist, if it be taken for the writing of the Gospel, it was temporall and hath his end. But if it be taken for preaching to the people plainly and simply, as <sup>h</sup> Bullinger thinketh: or generally, for preaching the Gospel: as <sup>i</sup> Musculus supposeth, in which sense Paul said vnto Timothie, doe the worke of an Euangelist: or for preaching more zealously than other, <sup>k</sup> Bucer imagineth; I make no doubt but that it still remaineth in the Church.

Moreouer, Prophets if they bee taken for such as our Apostle meaneth in his <sup>l</sup> Epistles often, I say for such as haue an especiall gift in interpreting the Scripture, whether in vnfolding the deepe mysteries thereof vnto the learned, or in expounding the plaine sence thereof vnto the people then it must of necessitie be granted that they be perpetuall officers in the Church, as Pastors and Doctors.

<sup>m</sup> Saint Ambrose therefore construeth our text thus, Apostles are Bishops, Prophets are Interpreters of the Scriptures, Euangelists are Deacons. And <sup>n</sup> Hyperius saith, that God will alwayes haue these degrees in the Church, and Peter Martyr in his Commentaries vpon the 12. to the Romanes is of opinion, that our Apostle describeth in that place such gifts as are necessarie for the Church at all times, among which he mentioneth (as a chiefe one) propheying. To be short, Bullinger vpon this text obserues, that the words Apostle, Prophet, Euangelist, are confounded; and the Pastors of Zurich, in the latter confelssion of <sup>o</sup> Heluetia, chap. 18. write thus, The Ministers of the new Testament are termed by diuers names, for they be called Apostles, Prophets, Euangelists, Bishops, Elders, Pastors, and Doctors.

And heere Protestant Diuines haue well obserued against the Church of Rome, that Paul among all these degrees of the Ministrie, names not the Popes office, the which he would not haue forgotten, if it had been so necessarie for the deciding of controuersies, and preseruation of vnitie in trueth, as our aduersaries pretend. And whereas the Rhemists reply that Bishops, Elders, and Deacons are not mentioned in this catalogue: <sup>q</sup> Answer is made, that the functions of Bishops and Priests (as they respect the externall gouernment and policie of the Church) are named elsewhere generally and particularly: but in respect of teaching (Which is intended here more principally) they are contained vnder Pastors and Doctors. If the Pope will bee reputed an Apostle, then (as Cardinall <sup>r</sup> Caetane

<sup>h</sup> In loc.

<sup>i</sup> Loc. com. tit.
de verbi ministri-stris.

<sup>k</sup> In loc.

<sup>l</sup> Rom. 12.6.

1. Cor. 11.4. &

1 Cor. 14.1.

<sup>m</sup> Com. in loc.

<sup>n</sup> In verb. Pauli
2. Cor. 3. 2. inter
opuscula Hyperij.
pag. 671.

<sup>o</sup> See Harmon.
confess. sect. 11.
pag. 339.

<sup>p</sup> Zanchius.
Matorat.

<sup>q</sup> D. Fulk in loc.

<sup>r</sup> In loc.

notes) he must be both a Prophet: and an Euangelist, and a Pastor, and a Teacher, for (as he saith) an Apostleship eminently comprehendeth all these graces: it may be granted (as I conceiue, which Anselme collecteth here) that Archbishops and Primates haue the roomes of Apostles in the Church, but yet I see not how the Pope can be crowded into the text: for if this absolute supremacie were necessary then assuredly Paul would not haue sayd Christ made some Apostles, some Prophets, some Euangelists, &c. but rather Christ gaue to the Church * one Apostle, some Prophets, and many Teachers.

The fourth and last obseruable point in our text is, for what end Christ ascending vp on high gaue gifts vnto men, and that is threefold.

Namely, the  $\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{Perfecting of the Saints.} \\ \text{Worke of the Ministerie.} \\ \text{Edifying of the body of Christ.} \end{array} \right.$

¶ The first concernes such as are called already, Saints] The second, such as are to call, exercising the worke of the Ministry, to wit. Apostles, Prophets, Euangelists, &c. The third, such as are yet to be called, and to bee built vpon the foundation of the Prophets and Apostles. ¶ Or the first concernes the people, the second the Pastor, and the third both.

For the edifying of the Saints] I finde diuers readings of this clause. ¶ Some reade ad <sup>u</sup> constitutionem, or ad <sup>x</sup> condendos Sanctos, agreeable to the present text of our Communion booke here. The Saints are of Gods household; and the Church is Gods house, Hebr. 3. 6. The chiefe builders whereof vnder Christ are Apostles, Prophets, Pastors, and Teachers, as I haue shewed Epistle on Saint Thomas day.

¶ Other reade ad instauracionem, for the repairing of such as are decayed in Gods building. ¶ The iust man falleth seuentimes, <sup>b</sup> in many things we sinne all, <sup>c</sup> eum dicimus optimum qui peccat minimum And therefore that we may not fall from grace finally, we need dayly to be <sup>d</sup> repaired and vnderpropt in Gods house by the powerfull exhortations of Pastors and Teachers.

Our new translation ( herein agreeing with the Syriac and vulgar Latine ) reads, for the perfecting of the Saints. And it may be so construed in two respects, first in regard of their daily growing from <sup>e</sup> strength to strength, vntill they bee perfect men in Christ: for the word is <sup>f</sup> profitable to teach, improve, correct, and to instruct in righteousnesse, that the man of God may be perfected, and throughly furnished vnto all good workes. 2. ¶ for that their number is fully perfected and accomplished by the preaching of Apostles, Prophets, Euangelists, Pastors, Teachers. According to this exposition the Geneua Bible hath it, for the gathering together of the Saints. All of vs are by nature like <sup>h</sup> sheepe which haue gone astray; wherefore Christ, as being the <sup>i</sup> chiefe shepherd, gaue some Apostles, some Prophets, some Euangelists, to gather as together from <sup>k</sup> East and West, & to bring vs vnto his flocke, that there may be but <sup>l</sup> one sheepfold and one Shepherd. His sheepe heare his voyce, Pastors and Teachers vnter his words, are his <sup>m</sup> voice; he made therefore for the gathering together of his Elect, some Apostles, some Prophets, some Euangelists, &c.

¶ Other reade ad coagmentacionem Sanctorum, for the ioyning and ioynting of the Saints. He speaketh of the Church as of a body consisting of Gods Elect, as of many members, a body coupled and knit together by euery ioynt, verse 16. And therefore whereas the Saints, through Adams originall transgression, and their owne actuall offences, are many times out of ioynt, disunited from their head Christ, and diuided also from his members; it pleased the Lord, out of his infinite wisdom and goodnesse to giue some Apostles, and Prophets, and Euangelists, &c. As Chirurgians and Physitians of the soule, who might by the preaching of faith vnite them againe to their head, and by the preaching of good workes knit them together among them selues in the bonds of peace. And here you may note the true cause why the worst men and members of a parish, euermore regard a good Pastor least. It is because they be feet, and legs, and thighs, and

* One at one time, which as vniuersall Bishop of the Church, should haue the whole world for his Diocese.

† Cicero.

‡ Zacharius.

§ Caluin.

¶ Castalion.

‡ Ephes. 2. 19.

‡ Exodus.

Marlorat.

Vatablus.

‡ Prou. 24. 16

‡ Iam. 3. 2.

‡ August. Epist

54.

‡ Cicero.

‡ Psal. 84. 7.

‡ 2. Tim. 3. 16.

‡ Vi eorum numerus impletur.

Hierom.

Vatablus.

‡ Esay 53. 6.

‡ 1. Pet. 5. 4

‡ Matth. 8. 11.

‡ 1. Ioh. 10. 16.

‡ Iohn 1. 32.

See Gosp. Sun.

4. in Aduent.

‡ Aretius.

Beza.

Zacharius.

and handes out of ioynt, and so cannot endure the touch of the Chirurgians hand, whose chiefe care is to worke their cure, He that is sicke of a lethargie, desires to sleepe although he die for it; and hee that is lulled asleepe in sinne, cannot away with the ° watchman of God. If a Minister shall either our of weaknesse suffer his drowzie people to snort still in their vncleannes, or out of wickednesse sleepe with them a little himselfe; then hee may peradventure for a while bee reputed a good shepherd among those scabbie sheepe: but if he shall once rouze them, and raise them out of their securitie, saying with Paul, awake thou that sleepest and stand vp from the dead; then instantly the wit-foundred drunkard crieth out, away with such a fellow from the earth, it is not meet he should liue, for he subuerteth the state of the world, and troubleth our Citie. Then the couctous oppressor is ready to tell the Prophet, as Abab did Eliab, Hast thou found me, o mineemie? Then the whole rabble furiously raging together against the Lord, and against his anointed, conclude peremptorily, that a peece of a pulpit is enough, and halfe a benefice too much for such an vnquiet spirit. S. Augustine sweetly, Qui phraneticum ligat, & lethargicum excitat, ambobus molestus, ambos amat.

For the worke of the ministrie] The gifts of Christ here mentioned are not theoricall, but practicall, giuen vnto Pastors for the worke of the ministrie, the word worke forbids loytering, and the word ministry lording. I pray misconstrue not this glosse, seeing I meane as Paul, and speake as B. Latimer did almost in euery Sermon. Domabis lupos, sed non dominaberis ouibus, as Bernard told Eugenius.

For the edifying of the body of Christ] The gift of the Spirit is giuen to euery man to edifie withall; hee therefore that is a non edificant, is vnworthy to bee called an Apostle, or Prophet, or Euangelist. Positi estis dispensatores, sed in edificationem, non in destructionem: aliter non fidelis dispensatio, sed crudelis dissipatio. The Doctors office is to teach, and the Pastors calling to feed. Our great Lord repeated this inunction vnto Peter thrice; feed my lambs, feed my sheepe, feed my flocke, that is, as Bernard excellently, pasce mente, pasce ore, pasce opere: pasce animi oratione, verbi exhortatione, exempli exhibitione. And here the people likewise may learne to reuerence their Pastors and teachers, as the Ministers of Christ sent from aboue, to watch for their soules. If they must honorare bonum dominum etiam in malo seruo, respect euery Prophet, and Euangelist, and Pastor for his workes sake, 1. Thesal. 5, 13, then vnto such as rule well, and labour in the word and doctrine, they must (as our Apostle speakes) giue double honour.

The Gospell. I O H N 15. 1.

I am the true vine, and my Father is an Husbandman. &c.

AS a kinde friend loth to depart with his familiars, in giuing a farewell often breakes off his speech and begins a new discourse: so Christ here being now to leaue the world, after he had ended one sermon vnto his Disciples in the chapter going before, falleth into another of the like argument in this present, wherein he doth especially two things, exhort and comfort.

° Ezech. 3. 17.

° Ephes. 5. 14.

° Acts 22. 22.

° Acts 17. 6.

° Acts 16. 20.

° 1 King. 21. 20.

° Epist. 48.

° Aretius.

° Zanchius.

° 2 Cor. 1. 24.

° De Considerat. lib. 2.

° 1. Cor. 12. 7.

° Bernard lib. 3. de considerat.

° Iohn 21.

° Ser. 2. de re. fur. Dom.

° Heb. 13. 17.

° Paulinus epist. lib. 1. epist. 1.

° Tim. 5. 17.

° Iansen. con. cord. Cap. 135.

He doth exhort all his followers.

1. To continue stedfast in the faith, and that vnder the Parable of the Vine, intimating that as the branch cannot beare fruit of it selfe, except it abide in the vine; so they can doe nothing, vnllesse they abide in him. Vrging this one point by diuers reasons; all which may be reduced vnto the Punishment of such as abide not, } Pœna damni, they beare no fruit, v. 4 Pœna sensus, they be taken away. v. 2 withered, gathered, cast in. o the fire, burnt, ver. 6.

Blessednes of such as abide being } Purged by God the Father, ver. 2.
Cleaned by God the Sonne, v. 3.
Cōtorted by God the holy Ghost, abide in me, and I will abide in you by my<sup>k</sup> Spirit, ver. 4.
Relieued in what soeuer they shal aske, ver. 7.

<sup>k</sup> Caluin.

2. To make demonstration hereof in workes of piety, glorifying God, and loving one another.

He comforts them against the worlds hatred : } 1. From his owne example, verse 18. 20.
2. From the cause of this hatred, vers. 19.
3. From the cause of the cause, vers. 21. 22. 24.
4. For that God and Christ suffer with them, ver. 23
5. From the prediction of holy Scripture, vers. 25.
6. By promising to send the Comforter, ver. 26.

I am the true vine] Christ is called here a Vine, as elsewhere a<sup>l</sup> Lion, a<sup>m</sup> Sheepe, a<sup>n</sup> Lambe, a<sup>o</sup> Corner stone, a<sup>p</sup> Doore. A true vine by a way of difference from the wilde vine; or ( as Rupertus vpon the place ) to distinguish it from the Vines of Sodome and Gomorrah, whose grapes ( as<sup>t</sup> Moses speaketh in his song ) are grapes of gall, and their clusters are bitter, their wine is the poison of dragons, and the cruell gall of Aspes. A true Vine not simply, but in a simile: not truely a Vine, but like a true Vine Vera (saith<sup>s</sup> Augustine ) per similitudinem, non per proprietatem: a true vine, as in the first chapter of this Gospell, at the ninth verse, the true light. Now the resemblances betweene Christ and a true Vine are<sup>m</sup> manifest.

1. A Vine is not sowne in the ground, but planted a yong slip of an old tree: so Christ is a naturall branch of God the Father, euen very God of very God; but for vs men and our saluation, hse was translated from heauen, and planted on earth, that is, borne of the Virgin Marie; of whom it is said, Isay 45. 8. Let the earth open, and let saluation and iustice grow foorth, let it bring them forth together, I the Lord haue created him. A blessed earth, in whose<sup>x</sup> blessed fruit y all the nations of the world are blessed.

2. The Vine that it may beare, the more fruit, is cut and pruned: and so Christ, although hee were conceiued of the Holy Ghost, and borne without all sinne: yet for our sakes he was circumcised on the eight day, <sup>z</sup> wounded for our transgressions, and broken for our iniquities. Againe, Christ albeit he were a Lord ouer all things and<sup>b</sup> heire of the whole world: yet for our saluation he suffered his glory to bee pruned with the knife of ignominie; for whereas he was the<sup>o</sup> King of glory, hee made himselfe of no reputation, Philip. 2. 7. Hee tooke on him the forme of a seruant, & was made man (as Dauid speakes of him, a worme and no man, a very scorne of men, and outcast of the people, Psal. 22. 6. His wealth was pruned by the knife of pouertie, <sup>d</sup> Pauper in natiuitate, pauperior in vita, pauperrimus

<sup>l</sup> Apoc 5. 5.
<sup>m</sup> Acts 8. 32.
<sup>o</sup> Ioh. 1. 2.
<sup>p</sup> Ephef. 2. 20.
<sup>r</sup> Ioh. : 0. 9.
<sup>s</sup> Caietan.
<sup>t</sup> A. etia.
<sup>u</sup> Deut. 32. 32.
<sup>v</sup> Tracl 80.
<sup>w</sup> Ioan.
<sup>x</sup> Maldonal.
<sup>y</sup> in loc.
<sup>z</sup> See Bernard
<sup>aa</sup> Tracl. de passion.
<sup>ab</sup> Dom cap. 1. 2, 3.
<sup>ac</sup> Paralus
<sup>ad</sup> ser. de S. Marco.
<sup>ae</sup> Luke 1. 42
<sup>af</sup> Gen. 92 13.

<sup>ag</sup> Esay 53. 4.
<sup>ah</sup> Acts 0. 36.
<sup>ai</sup> Heb. 1. 2.

<sup>aj</sup> Psal. 24. 7.

<sup>ak</sup> Bernard. tracl.
de passion. Dom.
cap. 2.

<sup>c</sup> Matth. 8. 20.

<sup>f</sup> In loc. Esaiæ.
<sup>g</sup> Vbi supra.

<sup>b</sup> Paratus;
<sup>i</sup> Matth. 27. 30.

<sup>k</sup> Matth. 22. 17

<sup>l</sup> Ioh. 8. 3.

<sup>m</sup> Matth. 9. 13.
<sup>n</sup> Matth. 11. 29

<sup>o</sup> Ioh. 19. 34.
<sup>p</sup> Foderunt manus, Psal. 22. 17.
<sup>q</sup> lib. 1. cap. 13.
See S. Ambros. orat. de mort. Theodo. in fine.
<sup>r</sup> Baron. tom. 3. fol. 303.
<sup>s</sup> Matth. 27. 2
<sup>t</sup> Cap. 1. 12.
<sup>u</sup> Bernard. de passione Dom. cap. 4.

<sup>v</sup> Matth. 8. 11.
<sup>w</sup> Psal. 2. 8.
<sup>x</sup> Psal. 80. 11.

<sup>y</sup> Caluin.
Beza.

<sup>z</sup> Giron. con. in secl. B. Marci.

<sup>aa</sup> Apud Ambros. de fide lib. 4. cap. 7.

<sup>ab</sup> Theophylact. Euthym.

pauperrimus in cruce: So poore in his birth, that he was borne in another mans stable; so poore in his life, that hee sayd of himselfe, the Foxes haue holes, and the birds of the heauen haue nestes: but the Sonne of man hath not whercon to rest his head. So poore when he was dead, that he was buried in another mans tombe, Matth. 27. 60. His pleasure was pruned by the knife of sorrow, Lament. 1. 14, Behold, and see, if there be any sorrow like vnto my sorrow. His familiar acquaintance was also cut away from him, by the knife of feare; Iudas betrayed him, Peter denied him, other forsooke him, all were disperfed. He did tread the wine-presse alone, and of all people there was none to helpe him, as <sup>f</sup> Hierome and <sup>g</sup> Bernard apply that of the Prophet Esay, chap. 63. 3.

3. The Vine is dinged and digged, as we reade in the fifth chapter of Esay. So Christ was <sup>h</sup> dinged when the foule-mouthed <sup>i</sup> Jewes spit vpon him, and he was digged on euery side, when as his aduersaries by propounding captious questions, had cast a trench round about him; as in asking, <sup>k</sup> Is it lawfull that tribute be given to Cesar or no? If he should haue disputed against the tribute, he had offended the Prince: if for the tribute, displeas'd the people who did beare this heauy burthen against their wils. See Gospell, Sunday 23, after Trinitie. Againe, they digged a pit round about him, in bringing the <sup>l</sup> woman taken in aduiterie before him, and demaunding What sayest thou? for if he should haue condemned her, he might seeme to contradict his owne sayings, <sup>m</sup> I will haue mercie not sacrifice, <sup>n</sup> learne of me for I am humble and meeke. If acquit her, he should contrary Moses Law, Leuit. 20. 10. The adulterer and adulteresse shall die the death. See Bernard de passione Domin. cap. 3. Moreouer Christ on the crosse was digged, his side with a <sup>o</sup> speare, his <sup>p</sup> hands and feet with nailes and those so b g, that ( as <sup>q</sup> Socrates reporteth in his Ecclesiasticall hystory) Constantine made thereof an helmet and a bridle for his owne vse in warre.

4. The Vine is bound vnto the wood, and fastened vnto the wall on which it groweth: euen so Christ was led away <sup>r</sup> bound vnto Pontius Pilate, and nailed vnto the wood of the Crosse, so fettered and fastned with bonds, as that the Church saith of him in the <sup>s</sup> Canticles, my beloved is as a bundle of myrrhe vnto me. Myrrhe being bitter and sharpe, doth insinuate the greivousnesse of his passion, and a bundle the multitude of his sorrowes. And <sup>t</sup> so Christ is vnto the Church a bundle of myrrhe, when as she meditateth on his death and passion; how hee was bound, that shee might be made free: how he was beaten that shee might escape punishment: how he was broken, that she might bee healed with his stripes, Esay. 53. 5.

5. The Vine being thus planted, pruned, cut, bound, digged, dinged, spreads her branches farre and wide. So Christ ( as calling his followers from <sup>u</sup> East and West, hauing the <sup>v</sup> Heathen for his inheritance, and the vtermost parts of the earth for his possession) extends and <sup>w</sup> stretcheth out his branches vnto the sea, and his boughs vnto the riuier: Christ is the Vine, and all Christians are his branches. <sup>x</sup> All of vs are by nature dry, and <sup>y</sup> fit for nothing but the fire: therefore that we may be fruitfull and liue, we must first bee grafted into Christ as into a Vine by the Fathers hand: without his grace we can doe nothing, and through his helpe able to doe all things, Philip. 4. 13. now the diuine vnion is <sup>z</sup> threefold. Essentiall; and so God the Father is all one with God the Sonne; and God the Holy Ghost: personall, and so God the Sonne being made flesh, is vnited to the humane nature: spirituall, and so such as abide in Christ, and are ioyned in <sup>aa</sup> spirit to the Lord, are one with Christ the Lord. 1. Cor. 6. 17.

My Father is an husbandman] The blasphemous <sup>ab</sup> Arrians obiekt here, that Christ and God, as the vine and husbandman, are of diuers natures, and that Christ as the vine, must of necessitie be subiect and inferiour to God, which is an husbandman. Answere is made, that a similitude runs not on feure feet, but that it standeth vpon one legge principally; now the maine drift of this comparison is not to shew what care this husbandman hath ouer the root of the vine, but what he doth vnto the branches. Every branch that beareth not fruit he will take away.
and

and every branch that beareth fruit will be purge, &c. Christ vttered this parable<sup>d</sup> as our Mediator and Head of the Church, and he could not haue beene the Churches Head, <sup>e</sup> except he had beene God and man. Christ then <sup>f</sup> as touching his manhood was inferiour to the Father: Iohn 14.28. My Father is greater than I: yet equall as touching his Godhead: Ioh. 10.30. I and my Father are one, coequall in might and mercy. So the text here, God the Father as an husbandman purgeth every branch that beareth fruit, verse 2. and God the Sonne likewise doth the same, verse 3. Now are yee cleane through the words which I haue spoken vnto you. & So that Christ as God is an husbandman so well as his Father, he purgeth and pruneth the boughs of the Vine so well as he,<sup>h</sup> vna enim operatio patris & filij, Ioh. 5.19. What soeuer the Father doth, the same things doth the Sonne also.

Every branch that beareth not fruit in me he taketh away] Christ exhorting his followers to continue stedfast in the faith, argueth a poena & premio, from the punishment of such as abide not in him, and from the reward of such as abide.

1. They beare no fruit.
2. Bearing no fruit, they be cut away from the Vine.
3. Being cut away from the Vine, they be cast out of the Vineyard.
4. Being cast out of the Vineyard, they wither.
5. Being withered, men gather and fagot them.
6. Being made fagots, they be cast into the fire.
7. Being cast into the fire, they burne in that vnquenchable flame, <sup>i</sup> where the worrne dieth not, and the fire neuer goeth out.

The punishments of hypocrites and false Christians which abide not in him are seuen :

First, they beare no fruit, for faith our Sauour, as the branch cannot beare fruit of it selfe, except it abide in the vine: no more can yee except yee abide in me, for without me can you doe nothing. The Pelagian heretikes affirmed, <sup>k</sup> a Deo habemus quod homines sumus, a nobis ipsis autem quod iusti sumus; that we are men, we receiue from God; that we are good men, commeth from our selues: but Truth it selfe here contradicit & dicit, a branch cannot beare fruit of it selfe, &c. This one clause (saith <sup>l</sup> Augustine) corda instruit humilium, ora obstruit superbiorum, it comforts a poore Publican, but it confounds a proud Pelagian. And that other sentence, (without me can yee doe nothing) confuteth also the semipelagian, I meane the Papist, auowing that a man hath a power of free will in his owne nature, which once being stirred, and helped, can and doth of it owne selfe cooperate with grace. The word nothing makes very much against this opinion, as Augustine noteth vpon the place. For Christ said not sine me parum potestis facere, sed sine me nihil. Now that we may the better vnderstand this controuersie, man is to be considered in a fourefold estate, to wit,

In statu {
 Confessionis, as he was created.
 Infectionis, as he was corrupted.
 Resurrectionis, as he was renewed.
 Perfectionis, as he shall be glorified.

In the first estate we giue to the will of man a libertie of nature, Adamus enim <sup>m</sup> acceperat posse si vellet, sed non habuit velle quod posset. In the third we grant a libertie of grace, for if the Sonne make you free, yee shall be free in deed, Iohn 8.36. The spirit of Christ which is free, Psalm 51. 12. giueth libertie to the captiues, and openeth the prison to them that are bound, Esay 61.1. and deliuereth vs from the power of darknesse, Coloss. 1.13. In the fourth estate we confesse a libertie of glorie. All the doubt betweene vs and the Papists, is of the second estate, how man corrupted is renewed, how he commeth vnto regeneration after degeneration. And yet herein we consent that the will of man, in turning vnto God and in doing good, is not a <sup>n</sup> stocke or a stone, in <sup>o</sup> all and every respect passiue, for euery man is willingly conuerted, and by Gods grace at the

<sup>d</sup> August. tract. 80. in Ioan.
<sup>e</sup> Maldonat. in loc.
<sup>f</sup> Athanasius in symbol.

<sup>g</sup> Ambros. & Augustin. vbi supra.
<sup>h</sup> Chrysostom. Theophylact. Euthym.

<sup>i</sup> Marke 9.48.

<sup>k</sup> August. tract. 81. in Ioan.

<sup>l</sup> Vbi supra.

<sup>m</sup> August. de correptione & grat. cap. 11.

<sup>n</sup> Melanct. in loc.
<sup>o</sup> Perkins reformed Cat Tit. Frewill, & Dr. Abbot ibidem.

¶ 2 Cor. 6.1.

¶ Ser. 15. de verbis Apostoli.

¶ Ezech. 36. 27

¶ Lib. de bono.
perseuerant.
cap. 13.

¶ August. cont.
duas epist. Pelagian. lib. 4. cap. 6.

¶ August. de verbis Apost.
ser. 15.

¶ Act. 17. 28.

¶ 2 Cor. 3. 15.

¶ Matth. 25. 41

¶ Dion. Carthus. de 4. nouiss. part.
3. art. 11.

¶ Jerem. 2. 13.

¶ Thom. 1. 2e.

¶ quæst. 8. art. 4.
Io. de Comhis
compend theo-
log. lib. 7. cap. 22

very time of his conuersion he willeth his owne conuersion, and so the will of man is in some sort a co-worker with grace. For this end ¶ Paul exhorteth vs not to receiue the grace of God in vaine, but to worke out our saluation in feare and trembling, Philip. 2. 12. To this purpose the saying of Augustine is very remarkable, ¶ Qui fecit te sine te, non iustificabit te sine te, Fecit nescientem, iustificat uolentem. He who made thee without thee, will not iustifie thee without thee. What then is the maine difference betweene the Papists and vs in this question? It is in one word this: They write that our will is a co-worker with grace by the force of nature: we say that it workes with grace by grace. They teach, that grace doth enable the will of it selfe to doe good workes if it please: but we further adde, that grace worketh in the will of man to please, to doe such offices as God requireth at our hands He doth not hang his worke vpon the suspended if, of our will, but he worketh in vs to will, and ¶ causeth vs to doe the things that he commandeth vs to doe. We will indeed (saith ¶ Augustine) but God worketh in vs to will: we worke, but God worketh in vs to worke: ¶ we walke, but he causeth vs to walke: wee keepe his commandements, but hee worketh in vs to keepe his commandements. In the words of ¶ Paul, it is God that worketh in you, both the will, and the worke, euen of his good pleasure, Philip. 2. 13.

If God onely made thee a man, and thou thy selfe hast made thy selfe a good man, thy worke of necessitie must be greater than Gods worke. ¶ Melius est enim iustum esse, quam te hominem esse, our bare being is not so good as our better being: wherefore to stop thy presumptuous mouth, and to bear the lie downe thy throate, Christ here saith expressly, ye can beare no fruit except ye abide in me, without me can ye doe nothing. In naturall and humane actions it is true that your will is free, yet so that your wil is alway subordinate to my will, ¶ in whom ye liue, and moue, and haue your being: but in spirituall things appertaining to the kingdome of heauen, your selues are not sufficient as of your selues to y thinke, much lesse to speake, least of all to doe that which is good

Qui uiret in folijs uenit à radicibus humor.

The iuyce which is in the branch, commeth originally from the root, and so qui uiret in filijs, &c. The graces eminent in the sonnes of God are from aboue, proceeding from the Father of mercies and fountaine of all grace; qui à seipso se fructum existimat ferre, in uite non est: qui in uite non est, in Christo non est: qui in Christo non est, Christianus non est. August. tract. 81. in Euang. Iohan, See Epist. Sund. 11. and 12. after Trinitie.

The rest of the punishments here mentioned are very grievous, as to be cut away from the Vine, to be cast out of the vineyard, to wither, &c. but the last of all is the greatest of all, I meane the burning of fruitlesse branches in hell fire, which is vnquenchable. This of all terribles in the Scriptures is most terrible, whether we consider in it the paine of the losse, or the paine of sense: the reprobate which abide not in Christ haue paine of losse, for the Vine saith vnto such branches at the last day, ¶ depart from me, from me that am your first beginning and last end, from me that am your Redeemer, from me that made my selfe man for your sakes and receiued these wounds for your remedy, from me that inuited you with pardon, and ye would not accept it. Wherefore depart for euer from my friendship, from my protection, from my kingdome, from my Paradise, from my sight. And because whatsoeuer is separated from Christ, is also separated from those who goe with Christ; in saying, depart from me, he saith likewise depart from mine, from the Quires of my glorious Angels, from the sweet company of my blessed mother, and from all my most happy martyrs, Apostles, Prophets, Confessors, in a word, from all the holy Saints and host of heauen, into euerlasting fire prepared for the deuill and his angels. For as in sin there is an auersion from the Creator, and a conuersion vnto the creatures, according to that of the ¶ Prophet, they haue forsaken me the fountaine of liuing waters, and haue digged pits, euen broken pits that hold no water; so in the punishment of sinners (as ¶ Diuines obserue) there is not onely pœna damni, which is answerable to their auersion from the Creator, but also pœna sensus, which is answerable to their conuersion vnto the creatures, and therefore such branches as beare no fruit, are not onely cast out of the sight of the Vine, and the whole vineyard: but also gathered together, and made the fagots and fewell of hell fire: the which in many respects is exceeding dreadfull, especially because the torments of this Ætna neuer dying, euer frying, are both vniuersall and eternall. Hell paine is vniuersall, afflicting euery power of the soule, euery part of the bodie. Concerning the soule, the imaginatiue facultie shall be tortured with horrid imaginations, more terrible than those which a deepe melancholie man suffers in his dreames, or than those the cruell Ægyptians saw, which (as the <sup>d</sup> Wiseman speakes) were fearfull visions, and sorrowfull sights, affrighting visages of wilde beasts, and hissing of Serpents, &c. The will, as hauing in nothing it owne will, is an hell of it selfe to it selfe. The memorie shall be continually troubled with a fixed recordation of things passed, that it once possessed, and of the present which it now suffereth, and of those which are to come in eternitie. So that it cannot thinke vpon any thing, which in any sort should administer comfort: for if it calls to minde the pleasures it had in the world, it is for its greater torment; <sup>e</sup> Materia tristitia, non delectationis causa, saith Aquine. The understanding shall be so darkned, as that it shall be full of errors and illusions, euen as a tumultuous sea, with innumerable waues of imaginations, more bitter than gall, some going, other comming, all restless.

Creator,

As for the bodie, the damned are to be <sup>f</sup> bound hand and foot, crouded together in the prison of vtter darknesse, like bricks in a fierie furnace, that they shall not be able to wrinch, hauing not so much as a chinke where any winde may enter to refresh them in this lake of fire burning with brimstone. Their sight is affrighted with vgly deuils and darknesse; their hearing with odious and hideous ourcries; their smelling with noisome stinks, and insupportable stink reaking from the filthy bodies vnder torture; their taste with a raging <sup>h</sup> thirst, and a rauening hunger, tasting such things as are more bitter than <sup>i</sup> gall or wormwood; the feeling afflicted in euery part with intollerable flames, in comparison whereof our earthly fire is no more than as if it were but painted. The least of these torments named, and infinite moe not named, is more grieuous than the greatest, either sicknesse or sorrow they suffered on earth; and yet all these shall eternally continue, without either case or end. See Gospell 1. Sunday after Trinitie. Lombard. sent. lib. 4. dist. ult. & Sententiariorum ibidem. Aquin. in additionibus ad tertiam suæ summe partem quest. 97. 98. 99. Io. de combis compend. Theolog. lib. 7. cap. 21. 22. Dion. Carthusian. de quatuor nouissimis part. 3. the meditations of Luys de la puente Iesuite, translated out of Spanish into English, by Ric. Gibbons, of the same Societie, meditat. 15. 16.

Every branch that beareth fruit will be purge] We collect here, first that our Purgatorie is in this life, while we go from strength to strength, and grow from fruit to fruit in the vineyard, that is, in the Church planted in this world. Secondly, that the <sup>k</sup> word and affliction are this our Purgatorie. The word, vers. 3. Ye are cleane through the word which I haue spoken vnto you. Cleane, not by the water in Baptisme, but by the word. For saith <sup>l</sup> Augustine, Detrahe verbum & quid est aqua nisi aqua? sed accedat verbum ad elementum & fit sacramentum. Cleane by the word, non quia dicitur, sed quia creditur. The Pharises and other hypocrites heard the word of Christ, but they were not hereby purged, because they did not beleue the word of Christ. Our fruit then ariseth from faith; it is faith (as <sup>m</sup> S. Peter telleth vs expresly) that purifieth our hearts. And so <sup>n</sup> Rupertus expounds the words of Christ here, you are cleane, because you beleene that which I haue said vnto you concerning my death and resurrection, how I must die for your sinnes, and rise againe for your iustification, and goe away to provide a place for you. But because the flesh is so fraile, that we cannot do that <sup>o</sup> good we would, but the euill we would not; Almighty God hath appointed for vs another <sup>p</sup> Purgatorie; to wit, affliction, and the crosse, the which is Gods rod where-with he <sup>q</sup> scourgeth euery sonne he receiueth, and purgeth every branch that beareth

<sup>d</sup> Wild 17. 4.

<sup>e</sup> In addit. ad 3. part. sum. quest. 98. art. 7.

<sup>f</sup> Matth. 22. 13.

<sup>g</sup> Apoc. 16. 20.

<sup>h</sup> Luke 16. 24.

<sup>i</sup> Jerem. 23. 15.

<sup>k</sup> Io. Frith preface before his answer to Rastall dialogue. <sup>l</sup> Tract. 80. in Ioan.

<sup>m</sup> Acts 15. 9.

<sup>n</sup> In loc.

<sup>o</sup> Rom 7. 19.

<sup>p</sup> Tyndal prolog. vpon Gen.

<sup>q</sup> Heb. 12. 6.

<sup>a</sup> Aretius in loc.

<sup>f</sup> Rom. 5. 3.

<sup>c</sup> Paulin. epist.
lib. 2. epist. 2.

<sup>u</sup> Tract. 80. in Ioan.

<sup>x</sup> 1 Theff 4. 1.

reth fruit, that it may bring forth more fruit. <sup>1</sup> The branch of the Vine that is cut vntill it bleed and weepe, beares the greater grapes, and so the good man is best vnder the crosse; <sup>2</sup> tribulation bringeth forth patience, and patience experience, and experience hope, &c. <sup>3</sup> Tanta summi patris est pietas, ut etiam iracundus ex misericordia sit: Our heauenly Father is so good to vs his children, that euen his anger is out of mercy, destroying the flesh to saue the spirit, 1 Cor. 5. 5.

3. We note from hence, that no man in this world is throughly perfect, euen the best of the Saints haue need to be purged, that they may bring forth more fruit. They be, saith <sup>u</sup> Augustine, Mundi & mundandi, not so pure, but that they must <sup>x</sup> increase more and more: Mundat itaque mundos, hoc est. fructuosos, ut tanto sint fructuosiores quanto fuerint mundiores. See Epist. 2. Sund. in Lent.

The Epistle. I A M E S I. I.

James the seruant of God, and of the Lord Iesus Christ, &c.

THis Epistle consists of three parts; a } Subscription, James the seruant of God, and of the Lord Iesus Christ.
Inscription, To the twelue tribes that are scattered abroad, greeting.
Prescription, My brethren, count it exceeding ioy when ye fall into diuers tentations.

James] Here two questions are moued ordinarily. The first concerning this Epistles authoritie. The second concerning this Epistles author. As for the first, I referre you to S. Hierom. Catalog. script. eccles. in vita Iacobi Iusti. Sixt. Senen. bibliothec. lib. 1. pag. 25. Bellarm. de verbo Dei, lib. 1. cap. 18. Dr. Whitaker, respon. ad Campian. rat. 1. Tyndal Prologue vpon S. James. Doctor Hammer obseruations vpon Euseb. Eccles. hist. in English, lib. 2. cap. 23. Rogers explanat. of the confession of England, art. 6. Aretius, Calvin, Marlorat. argumens. & prolegom. in epist. Iacob.

As for the second quare, there were two blessed Apostles of this name, <sup>1</sup> James the sonne of Zebedeus, and James the sonne of Alpheus. Now this Epistle was not penned (as herein the <sup>2</sup> most and best Diuines accord) by James the sonne of Zebedeus, for he was slaine by cruell Herod, about the beginning of the preaching of the Gospell, Act. 12. but by James the sonne of Alpheus, called elsewhere James the <sup>a</sup> lesser, and James the <sup>b</sup> Lords brother: this James was the <sup>c</sup> first Bishop of Hierusalem, of such vpright carriage toward men, as that he was surnamed <sup>d</sup> Iustus, and of such indefatigable deuotion in his prayers vnto God, that (as <sup>e</sup> Hegesippus reports) his knees were like <sup>a</sup> Cammels knee, benumbed and made hard by reason of his continuall kneeling. And <sup>f</sup> S. Chrysostome further addeth, that his forehead also became brawnie, through his daly prostrating himselfe vpon the pauement in the Temple. The which I note, to condemne the proud and irreuerent behauiour of many, who comming into the Temple to pray, neither cast downe themselues as the Publican, nor yet stand vp as the Pharisee; but they sit on their cushions (I feare in the seat of the scornfull) as if they were to blesse God, and not God to blesse them.

Seruant of God] He that serueth himselfe, serueth a foole; he that serueth the <sup>g</sup> deuill, serueth his enemy; he that serues the world, serues his seruant: the perfect and only true freedome is to serue the Lord. Wherefore this stile is no way base, but exceeding honourable, desired euen of the best, ambitiously. Samuel was Gods seruant, Speake Lord, saith he, <sup>h</sup> for thy seruant heareth thee. Iob the <sup>i</sup> greatest of all the men of the East was Gods seruant, hast thou not considered my seruant Iob? said the Lord to Satan, Iob 1. 8. Dauid stiled in holy Scripture for his excellencie <sup>k</sup> the King, boasted notwithstanding of this title: Behold, O Lord, how that I am thy seruant, I am thy seruant, and the sonne of thine handmaid, Pla'm. 116. 14. All the Patriarkes, and Prophets, and Apostles haue gloried in this

<sup>1</sup> Matth. 10.

Marke 3.

<sup>2</sup> Authores ubi sup in text.

<sup>a</sup> Mark. 15. 40.

<sup>b</sup> Galat. 1. 19.

<sup>c</sup> See Baron.

Tom. 1. ad an. 63

<sup>d</sup> Euseb. hist. lib.

2 cap. 23.

Hierom. in eius vita.

Aquin. in loc.

<sup>e</sup> Apud Euseb.

ubi sup.

<sup>f</sup> Hom. 5. in

Matth.

<sup>g</sup> See the song of Simon.

<sup>h</sup> 1 Sam. 3. 10.

<sup>i</sup> Iob 1. 3.

<sup>k</sup> Matth. 1. 6.

this seruice. For if it bereputed honourable to serue the King, it is assuredly greater preferment to serue the King of Kings, and Lord of Lords. It is more credit to be a<sup>1</sup> doore-keeper in the house of God, than to command in the Courts of other Princes. Now God (as earthly Kings) hath seme seruants in ordinarie, and other extraordinary. All Christians are his sworne seruants extraordinary, for they vowed in holy Baptisme to fight under Christs banner, against the world, the flesh, and the deuill, and to continue his faithfull souldiers and seruants untill their lines end. The true profession of the true faith is Christs liuerie, and loue is the cognizance of his liuerie; for<sup>m</sup> faith working by loue, is the<sup>n</sup> wedding garment with Christs badge; by this (faith<sup>o</sup> he) shall all men know that yee are my disciples, if yee loue one another.

Princes and Prophets are the seruants of God in ordinarie, so neere to God in office, that they are called Gods. A Magistrate is a finger (as it were) of Gods owne hand; a Preacher is a<sup>p</sup> steward in Gods owne house. So S. James (as being an Apostle) was in this sense the seruant of Iesus Christ; and<sup>r</sup> therefore such are deceiued greatly, who thinke that this author was not an Apostle, because he calls not himselfe an Apostle: for first Iude being an Apostle, doth vse the same subscription in his Epistle, Iude is the seruant of Iesus Christ. Secondly, seruant in this acceptation is nothing else but an Apostle; wherefore many Greece copies, and the Siriack, and the vulgar Latine make this title to this Epistle, The generall Epistle of S. James the Apostle. Here then obserue, that to be called a Minister of Iesus Christ is not (as the Papists object against our reformed Churches) any contemptible stile, seeing S. James here doth afford vs a patterne, and S. Paul 1. Cor. 4. 1. a patent, sc nos aestimet homo ut ministros Christi; so the Romish translation in Latine, and the Remish in English, let a man esteeme vs as the Ministers of Christ.

Of God, and of the Lord Iesus Christ] These words are to be construed copulatiuely, James a seruant of Iesus Christ, which is God and Lord, as Tit. 2. 13 looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God, and our Saviour Iesus Christ. For the<sup>t</sup> Mediator betweene God and man, is perfect God, and perfect man, and yet not two, but one Christ; one not by confusion of substance, but by vnitie of person, as Athanasius in his Creed.

To the twelue tribes which are scattered abroad] The Iewes were led captiue to Babylon, and other countries, out of which it is apparent, that some neuer returned into Iurie: for Paul (as we read in the storie of the<sup>n</sup> Acts) found almost euerie where both in Europe and in Asia, Synagogues of the Iewes. Now this dispersion of Gods owne people for their ingratitude towards him, is a manifested argument of his wrathfull indignation against sinne, and it is written for our* instruction, vpon whom the ends of the world are come; for if God spared not his naturall branches, his peculiar inclosed y plant; take heed lest he also spare not thee, which art but a wilde Oline by nature. Remember the words of Azariah vnto King Asa,<sup>a</sup> The Lord is with you, while ye are with him: and if yee seeke him, he will be found of you: but if yee forsake him, he will forsake you. Yet God in his wrath<sup>b</sup> remembers inercy; for among these scattered people some were gathered to the Church, and truly conuerted vnto Christ, vnto whom our Apostle wrote this excellent letter,<sup>c</sup> Ut qui disperferant corpore, congregarentur mente. S. James, I say, sent not this instruction vnto Iewes vnconuerted,<sup>d</sup> for then he would haue proued that Iesus was the sonne of Marie, the Messias of the world, promised to the fathers. If he had written vnto the Iewes in generall, he would (as S. Matthew did) haue penned a booke of the generation of Iesus Christ the sonne of Dauid, the sonne of Abrakam, &c. but his greeting is vnto such Iewes as were turned Christians, exhorting them to make demonstration of their faith out of their workes, leading a life answerable to their profession; for the light of the Gospell appearing, teacheth vs that we should deny vngodlines & worldly lusts, and that we should line soberly, righteously, add godly in this present world. To conuert Iewes he wrote principally, but that which is said vnto them, is said vnto vs, and all;

<sup>1</sup> Psal 84. 17.

<sup>m</sup> Galat. 5. 6.
<sup>n</sup> Match 22. 12
<sup>o</sup> Iohn 13. 35.

<sup>p</sup> 1 Cor 4. 1.
<sup>r</sup> Heb 3. 5.
<sup>t</sup> Act. in loc.

<sup>u</sup> Aret et Marlorat. n. loc.
Deus quoad diuinitatem, Dominus quoad humanitatem Aquin in loc.

<sup>v</sup> 1 Tim 2 5

<sup>w</sup> Cap. 12. 14.
<sup>x</sup> 8. 4. 19. 8
<sup>x</sup> 1 Cor 10. 11

<sup>y</sup> Esay 5. 7.
<sup>z</sup> Rom 11. 21.

<sup>a</sup> 2 Chron. 15. 2

<sup>b</sup> Habakuk 3. 2

<sup>c</sup> Aquin. n. loc.
<sup>d</sup> Actus.

<sup>e</sup> Tit 2. 12.

<sup>f</sup> Occumen.
Aretius.

<sup>g</sup> Caietan. in loc.

<sup>a</sup> Epist. ad
Dionys.

<sup>i</sup> Bellarm. de verb. Dei. lib. 1.
cap. 18.

<sup>k</sup> Marlorat.

<sup>l</sup> Salutem in
venit, gratie.
in futuris, glorie.
Aquino. in loc.

<sup>m</sup> Aretius in
Rom. 14. 17.

<sup>n</sup> Aquino. in loc.

<sup>o</sup> Aretius.

<sup>p</sup> Beza.

<sup>q</sup> 1 Pet. 4. 15.

<sup>r</sup> Apud Baros.
Rem. Mart.

Maj 1.

<sup>t</sup> Hezeppus
apud Euseb.
hist. lib. 2. cap. 23.

<sup>u</sup> Hieron in Jasicius & alij.

<sup>v</sup> Aretius.

Beza.

Piscator.

<sup>w</sup> Epist. 146.

<sup>x</sup> See Drusus
annot. in loc.

<sup>y</sup> Aquino.
Aretius.
Caluin.

<sup>F</sup> in which respect this letter is entituled, The Generall or Catholike Epistle of S. James.

Greeting] This kinde of salutation hath occasioned some to doubt of this Epistles authority; Saint Peter and S. Paul, in their inscriptions haue grace and peace, S. Iude, Mercy, and peace, and loue be multiplied vnto you. But this (as they thinke) is prophane, taken rather out of Platoes Academic, than out of Christis schoole. For<sup>h</sup> Plato reports that in Greece the Physitians salutation is, υγιαειν, the Philosopher ευ αειρειν, and the vulgars χαρειν. <sup>i</sup> Answer is made, that this forme of saluting, although it were common among the Heathens, is not withstanding apostolicall, and that a patterne hereof is found, Act. 15. 23. The Apostles and the Elders, and the brethren, vnto the brethren of the Gentiles in Antiochia, and in Syria, and in Cicilia, χαρειν, greeting. 2. Saint James being a<sup>k</sup> spirituall Physitian wisheth here perfect health of the<sup>l</sup> soule so well as the body. 3. χαρειν, signifying to reioyce (considering he wrote to people disperfed, and distressed vnder the Crosse) is both as fit, and as full as the salutation of peace; for there is no true ioy in the spirit, without peace of conscience, Rom. 14. 7. The kingdome of God is not meat nor drinke, but righteousnesse and peace, and ioy in the Holy Ghost, and vpright life breeds in the iustified peace of conscience, and peace of conscience makes a ioyfull heart.

My brethren, count it exceeding ioy, when ye fall into diuers temptations] Wee reade Acts 8. that there was a great persecution against the Church at Hierusalem, and that all the conuerted Iewes were scattered abroad thorow the regions of Iudca and of Samaria. Now for the comfort of these distressed professors (as<sup>u</sup> some coniecture) S. James wrote this instruction: and because their condition vnder the crosse was vnto flesh and blood exceeding grieuous, he beginneth<sup>o</sup> α re ipsa, with this exhortation <sup>p</sup> aptly, count it all ioy when ye fall into diuers temptations. He that suffers as a<sup>q</sup> murtherer, or as a theefe, or as an euill doer, hath hereby grieffe of heart, but blessed is the man that endureth temptation in Christs cause. To cast our selues into temptation affords matter of sorrow, but if we for righteousnesse sake by Gods appointment fall into sundry temptations, our sorrow shall be turned into ioy, Iohn 16. 20. Here the Gospell and Epistle meet, our Apostles (count it for exceeding ioy when ye fall into diuers temptations) is answerable to Christs (let not your hearts be troubled) and both are fitly read on this day, which is solemnized to the praise of God in commemoration of the ioyous Martyrdome of two blessed Apostles, Saint Philip, who for the constant profession of the Christian faith (as<sup>t</sup> Hypolinus reports) was vnder Domitian the cruell Emperour crucified with his head downward, and<sup>f</sup> S. James euen for the same cause being Bishop of Hierusalem was cast downe headlong by the Scribes and Pharisees from the pinnacle of the temple, and afterward stoned, and finally brained with a Fullers club.

This exhortation to constant cheerfulness vnder the crosse for the Gospell is pressed here by diuers and fundrie reasons (as<sup>v</sup> Expositors haue well obserued) all which in brieft may be reduced either to the fruit, or else to the root of this Christian vertue. The fruit in this world, knowing this that the trying of your faith gendereth patience, and let patience haue her perfect worke, &c. There is a twofold temptation (as<sup>w</sup> Angustine told Consentius) vna deceptionis, altera probationis: a temptation to deceiue, which is from the deuill and our owne concupiscence, verse 13, 14. of this present Chapter. Againe, there is a temptation to proue and improue, the<sup>x</sup> which is from God, and so suffering for the Gospell is termed here temptation, and a triall of our faith. The fruit in the world to come is eternall happiness, verse 12. Blessed is the man that endureth temptation, for when he is tried he shall receiue the crowne of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that loue him. See Gospell appointed for this day.

As for the root, if any lacke wisdom, y that is, true iudgement how to beare the crosse, let him aske it of God: he is a gining God, from him is every good and perfect gift, verse 17 Ergo, he giueth also this: he giueth vnto all indifferently without any respect of person: exclude not thy selfe from an vniuersall number, he liberally

lib'rally giueth, and vpbraideth not after he hath giuen, he giues for the measure fully, for the manner cheerefully. Wherefore come to him, and aske of him in faith, and it shall be giuen vnto you. See Gospell Sun. 5. after Easter.

The Gospell. IOHN 14. I.

Iesus said to his Disciples, let not your hearts be troubled, &c.

THe Prophet <sup>a</sup>David saith, a troubled spirit is an acceptable sacrifice to God, and <sup>b</sup>it was good for me that I was in trouble. How then is it true which is here said by the sonne of David, let not your hearts be troubled? Answer is made, that the passions of the minde, as anger, feare, delight, and the like, are in their owne nature <sup>b</sup> neither simply commendable, nor yet absolutely vituperable, but either good or bad, as their objects and ends are good and bad. To be troubled for sinne is a <sup>c</sup> godly sorrow, causing repentance to saluation, not to be repented of, and therefore grieue for offending God, and <sup>d</sup>griewing his spirit, yea grieue much because thou canst grieue no more. <sup>e</sup> But an inordinate trouble for the things of this world, arising either out of enuie, sluggishnesse, or impatience, is forbidden in this sentence, let not your hearts be troubled. The Disciples as yet ambitiously sought after worldly honour, conceiuing that Christ ere it were long would <sup>f</sup> restore the kingdome of Israel, and so preferre them in his kingdome on earth <sup>g</sup> at his right hand and at his left; as yet they did expect a crowne, not a crosse. Wherefore Christ vnderstanding that they were dismayed at his words, in the former Chapter at thee 33. verse (little children yet a little while am I with you, ye shall seeke me, but whither I goe can ye not follow me now) he commeth in this present vnto that which is <sup>h</sup> Euangely caput & summa, the chiefe part in the whole body of his Gospell, namely, to <sup>i</sup>binde vp the broken hearted, and to comfort such as mourne in Sion. Isaac the signe of Christ is interpreted laughter, <sup>k</sup> insinuating that Christ should be the consolation of Israel, and great ioy to all his people, Luke 2. 10. 25. feare not (as <sup>l</sup> one notes) is the first word in the first annunciation of his <sup>m</sup> conception, and the first word in the first annunciation of his <sup>n</sup> birth, and the first word, in the first annunciation of his <sup>o</sup> resurrection, and almost the last words in his last exhortation a little before his death, are let not your hearts be troubled, and <sup>p</sup> be of good comfort, strengthening his followers, and sweetning his crosse by diuers forcible reasons, in our text by two more principally.

The <sup>1</sup> Is taken from the buckler of faith, ye beleue in God, beleue also in me.
<sup>2</sup> From the hold of hope, in my Fathers house are many mansions, &c.
Yee beleue in God, beleue also in me Concerning the fourefold reading of these words, examine Iansen. concord. cap. 134. Erasmus annot. & Maldonat. com. in loc. I take them as I finde them here, ye beleue in God, &c. The Saints in old time <sup>q</sup> through faith haue subdued kingdomes, wrought righteousnesse, obtained the promises, stopped the mouths of Lions, quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, of weak were made strong, waxed valiant in battell, and turned to flight the armies of Alians. In a word, faith is a shield, wherewith yee may quench all the fierie darts of the deuill, Ephel. 6. 16. If yee beleue then in God, and cast all your care on him, he that is <sup>r</sup> the father of mercies, and God of all comfort, will assuredly so <sup>s</sup> care for you, that ye shall not any longer be troubled in your hearts, a little faith, euen so small as a graine of mustard seed, is able to remoue mountaines of distrust out of your soule. Faith is a buckler, and a buckler guardeth especially the head and the heart; <sup>t</sup> that is, the vnderstanding and the will, <sup>u</sup> ut non turbetur intellectus, non formidet affectus. Here humane weaknesse doth obiekt, (as Philip at the 8. verse) Lord, shew vs the Father, and it sufficeth vs. It is true, that we beleue God, and beleue in God also, but yet our hearts are troubled, thirsting after his sight and sensible knowledge, we would faine see that we beleue; so Moses in the 33. chapter of Exodus, I beseech thee shew

<sup>2</sup> Psalm. 51. 17.
<sup>2</sup> Psal. 119 71.

<sup>b</sup> Arist. ethic. lib. 1. cap. 5.
<sup>c</sup> 2 Cor. 7. 10
<sup>d</sup> Ephel. 4. 30
<sup>e</sup> Paratus & Paludensis: ser. de S. Philip. & Iacob.
<sup>f</sup> Acts 1. 6.

<sup>g</sup> Matth. 20. 21

<sup>h</sup> Ferus com. ix. loc.
<sup>i</sup> Elay 61. 1.
<sup>k</sup> Ambros de Abraham lib 1. cap. 5.
<sup>l</sup> Martin.
<sup>m</sup> Mollerus in Euangel. S. Philip & Iacob.
<sup>n</sup> Luke 1. 30.
<sup>o</sup> Luke 2. 10.
<sup>p</sup> Matth 28. 5.
<sup>p</sup> Iohn 16. 33.

<sup>q</sup> Heb 11. 33.

<sup>r</sup> 2 Cor. 1. 3.
<sup>s</sup> 1 Pet. 5. 7.

<sup>t</sup> Dietz com. 1. in s. s. Philip. & Iacob.

<sup>u</sup> Ferus com. ix. loc.

shew me thy glory: to whom answer was made by the Lord, thou canst not see my face, for there shall no man see my face and live: yet behold, there is a place by me, and thou shalt stand upon the rocke, and while my glory passeth by, I will put thee in a cleft of the rocke, and will cover thee with mine hand whiles I passe by, then I will take away mine hand, and thou shalt see my backe parts, but my face shall not be seene.

* This rocke is Christ, as Paul in another case, 1 Cor. 10. 4. and the Church is a dove in the holes of the rocke, Cant. 2. 14. Whosoever then is placed in Christs Church, and hath faiths eye, may see God in his vnder parts as in the world he passeth by, that is, in his workes of creation, and redemption, and preservation of his people: though he may not read Gods priora, yet he may know Gods posteriora, beholding, him in his wonders, in his words, in his sacraments, in his Sonne principally, being the brightnesse of his glory, and expresse character of his person: as Christ in our text, he that hath seene me, hath seene also my father, I am in the father, and the father in me. <sup>a</sup> Hereby prouing himselfe to be God: 1. For that we must only beleue in the Creator, and not in any creature. 2.<sup>b</sup> Because God only knowes the secret perturbation of the heart, and <sup>c</sup> if we beleue that I am God, ye must also confesse that I am a <sup>d</sup> present helpe in trouble, willing and able to releue you, for if <sup>e</sup> God be with you, who can stand against you? Why then are your hearts troubled? As if he should haue said; <sup>f</sup> albeit I am to suffer death as man, yet I will on the third day raise my selfe againe from the dead as God: it is expedient for you that I die for your sinnes, and rise againe for your iustification, and so prepare a place for you in my Fathers house, that where I am there you may be also.

In my Fathers house are many mansions] Saint Paul hauing at large disputed of the resurrection in his first Epistle to the Corinthians 15. chapter, prouing that the dead shall rise againe by manifest and manifold arguments taken out of the bookes as well of nature as of Scripture; concludeth in fine, therefore my beloved brethren, be ye stedfast, unmovable, abundant alwayes, in the worke of the Lord, for as much as ye know that your labour is not in vaine. So Christ in the Gospell vnto his followers, In the world ye shall haue affliction, and all the wicked of the world shall hate you for my names sake, they shall scourge you in their Synagogues, & persecute you from citie to citie, not affording so much as an hole wherein to rest your head in peace, yet let not your hearts be troubled as long as in my Fathers house there be mansions, and I goe to prepare a place for you. The Church militant on earth is often called in holy <sup>k</sup> Scripture Gods house, <sup>l</sup> wherein he hath a great many mansions, as <sup>m</sup> dwelling in our hearts by faith, and we likewise haue many places of preferment, some being Apostles, and some Prophets, and some Euangelists, and some Pastors, and Teachers, Ephes. 4. 11. It is true, that God and we too dwell here, but it is (saith <sup>n</sup> Job) in houses of clay, whose foundation is in the dust, or (as Paul speakes) in earthly tabernacles set vp to day and pulled downe to morrow: <sup>o</sup> non habemus hic manentem ciuitatem. in this world we haue no continuing citie. For our kingdome which cannot be shaken, Heb. 12. 28. Our habitation which is euerlasting, Luke 16. 9. Our inheritance that fades not away, 1 Pet. 4. Our dwelling place mentioned in our text by Christ is not made with hands, but eternal in the heauens, 2 Cor. 5. Our best houses on earth, albeit neuer so gorgeous, and neuer so glorious, hauing (if it be possible) wals of gold, and windowes of Saphyre, are notwithstanding no better than Innes for strangers and pilgrims, 1 Pet. 2. 11. Our <sup>p</sup> mansions and places of abode for euer, are in Hiernsalem aboue, which is without either death or danger, Apocal. 21. 4. Wherefore seeing we beleue in God, and <sup>q</sup> looke for the blessed hope and glorious appearing of our Sauour Christ (who when he commeth againe shall receiue vs vnto himselfe, that where he is in his Fathers house, there we may be also) let vs say with <sup>r</sup> David, Why art thou so heauie, o my soule? & why art thou so disquieted within me? O put thy trust in God, and he shall one day <sup>s</sup> satisfie thee with the plenteousnesse of his house <sup>t</sup> for there is not only roome for Christ in Gods house, but also place for all his followers: the mansions of heauen are many, the least of all his souldiers, * Melanct. post. con. de S. Philip. & Iacob.

† Ex postico tergo, non ex antica facie. Ram. de relig. lib. 1. cap. 9.

‡ Heb. 1. 3.

§ Illephos. Giron & Pisco. tor in loc.

¶ Theophylact.

⌘ Marlorat.

⌘ Psal. 46.

⌘ Rom. 8. 31.

⌘ Chrysost. & August. tract. 67 in Ioan.

⌘ Iohn 16. 35.

⌘ Matth. 10. 22.

⌘ Matth. 3. 20.

⌘ 1 Tim. 3. 15.

⌘ Heb. 3. 2.

⌘ Paludensis.

⌘ Ephes. 3. 17.

⌘ Iob. 4. 19.

⌘ Heb. 13. 14.

⌘ Vide Maldonat. in loc.

⌘ Tit. 2. 3.

⌘ Psal. 43. 5.

⌘ Psal. 36. 8.

⌘ Erasmus. Marlorat. Ianfer.

if he <sup>a</sup> fight a good fight, and continue <sup>x</sup> faithfull vnto death, is rewarded with an <sup>y</sup> incorruptible crowne of glory, hauing for his inheritance, no lesse than a whole kingdome. Againe, these mansions are many, <sup>z</sup> because the Saints in heauen haue diuers degrees of glory. So Paul, 1 Cor. 15. 41. There is another glory of the Sunne, and another glory of the Moone, and another glory of the Starres, for one Starre differeth from another in glory; <sup>a</sup> so likewise in the resurrection of the dead. A <sup>b</sup> great vessell and a little, dipped in the same Well, hold notwithstanding diuers measures, according to their capacitie: so in Gods house, eury chosen vessell of honour is filled vp to the brim with the water of life, but the better man hath vndoubtedly the bigger mansion, he that held more charitie here, shall haue more charitie hereafter. Yet (as Augustine notes vpon our text) Non erit aliqua inuidia imparis claritatis, quoniam regnabit in omnibus unitas charitatis.

[I goe to prepare a place for you] It is said, Matth. 25. 34. That the mansions in Gods house were prepared before the foundation of the world; how then is it true, that Christ at this time goeth to prepare a place? <sup>c</sup> Answer is made, that the mansions indeed are prepared from all eternitie, but the men who shall inhabit them, as yet were vnprepared. It was expedient therefore, that the Redeemer of the world should die for their sins, and rise againe for their iustification, and ascend into heauen to take possession of this kingdome, and to set open the doores of these prepared mansions vnto his followers, as also to send vnto them a comforter, and a conductor, euen the Spirit of truth, who might leade them in the right way to this place. So <sup>d</sup> S. Augustine acutely, Parat quodammodo mansiones, mansionibus parando mansores. He prepareth a place, by making men fit for the place. <sup>e</sup> For election is in Christ, and through Christ, and so consequently, none come to the Father but by the Sonne, we passe by the kingdome of grace, to the kingdome of glory, for without <sup>f</sup> holinesse it is impossible to see God. Touching other readings, I referre you to Iansen. concord. cap. 134. and Erasmus annot. in loc.

Lord, we know not whither thou goest] S. Thomas and S. Philip were so good proficients in Christs schoole, that their master in the former Chapter at the 10. verse, said of them and of the rest of their tellowes (excepting Judas the traytor) ye are cleane: and S. Peter, as the <sup>h</sup> mouth of the company professed openly, To whom shall we goe? thou hast the words of eternall life, and we beleue and know that thou art the Christ, the Sonne of the liuing God: And yet their faith in the houre of tentation (as you see) was so weake, that S. Thomas said, Lord, we know not whither thou goest. And S. Philip, Lord, shew vs the Father, and it sufficeth vs. Now these things are written for our <sup>i</sup> comfort; for if these great pillars of the Church had such a shake, let vs not despaire though haply sometime many mountaines of distrust arise in our troubled hearts. Assure thy selfe thou hast a good measure of faith, if thou feele want of faith. <sup>k</sup> As a woman that feeleth the mouing of the childe in her body, though very weake, assureth her selfe that she hath conceived, and goeth with childe: so if we haue these good affections, and vnfained desires of faith in our soule; if hungriug and thirsting after righteousnesse wee say with the man in the <sup>l</sup> Gospell, I beleene, Lord helpe mine unbeliefe: let vs not in any case doubt, but that we haue the Holy Spirit (who is the giuer of these godly motions) dwelling in vs, and so consequently that we haue true faith. It is said, Psal. 10. 19. that the Lord heareth the desire of the poore, yea that he fulfilleth the desires of all such as feare him, Psal. 145. 19. It is sufficient then (in the midst of any grieuous tentation) if thou truly desire to repent and beleue. For God (<sup>m</sup> accepting the will for the deed) <sup>n</sup> taketh a heart desirous to repent and beleue, for a penitent and beleueing heart indeed. It is recorded in the 20. Chapter of S. Johns Gospell, that Mary Magdalen seeking Christ at his sepulchre, found afore she felt him. He talked with her, and stood nigh her, and comforted her; and yet the text saith at the 14. verse, she knew not that it was Iesus. In like sort the spirit of Christ is sometime present with vs, and within vs, <sup>o</sup> helping our infirmities, albeit we haue little sight or sense thereof; he is a secret friend, and doth vs often most good when we least perceiue it. S. Thomas here said, we know not the way,

<sup>a</sup> 2 Tim. 4. 7.
<sup>x</sup> Apoc. 2. 10.
<sup>y</sup> 1 Pet. 3. 4.
<sup>z</sup> Augustine.
Arelus.
Ataldonas.
<sup>a</sup> See Luther.
Anselme.
Lombard. in loc.
Pauli.
<sup>b</sup> Paludensis.

<sup>c</sup> Luther.
Rupert.

<sup>d</sup> Tract. 68. in loc.

<sup>e</sup> See Marlorat. in loc.

<sup>f</sup> Heb. 12. 14.

<sup>g</sup> Ioh. 6. 68.
<sup>h</sup> Balinger in loc. citat.

<sup>i</sup> Luther. post. in loc.

<sup>k</sup> Tassin, Marks of Gods children.

<sup>l</sup> Mark 9 24.

<sup>m</sup> 2 Cor. 8. 13
<sup>n</sup> Bradford Epist. to Careless.

<sup>o</sup> Rom 8. 26.

way, nor whither thou goest, and yet Truth it selfe auowed the contrary, Whither I goe ye know, and the way ye know. They knew the way, but they did not know that they knew, saith P Augustine, Sciebant isti sed se scire nesciebant. See the song of S. Simeon, and The grace of our Lord, &c. in the Liturgie.

I am the way, the truth and the life] That (as 9 Ferus) Exordium salutis, ergo via: medium salutis, ergo veritas: finis salutis, ergo vita. The beginning of heauenly happinesse, and therefore the way: the meane, and therefore the truth: the end, and therefore the life. Via incipientium, veritas proficientium, vita perfectorum. Or as 1 Euthymius, if I am the way, then I am able to bring you to the mansions in my Fathers house: if the truth, I lie not in saying, I goe to prepare a place for you: if the life, then neither Angels, nor principalities, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor death it selfe, shall separate you from me; but I will receiue you to my selfe, that where I am, there ye may be also. Or as 1 Leo the great, Via conuersationis sancta, veritas doctrinae diuina, vita beatitudinis sempiterna. The which is expressed by \ S. Bernard*, in these words elegantly, Via in exemplo, veritas in promisso, vita in premio: The way, in my workes, and the truth, in my words, and the life in my rewards. Via ducens, veritas lucens, vita pascens. 2 Vnto such as wander in a by-way, I am the high way: to such as are doubting in the way, I am the truth: vnto such as are wearied vnder their heauie burthen in their courses, I am the life. Or as Cyryl vpon the place, for as much as we shall ascend to the mansions in Gods house by faith, hope, charitie, (of all which only Christ is the donor) he may be termed the way, for giuing vs an a example that we should loue one another, as he hath loued vs: the truth, in deliuering such infallible rules of faith: and the life, by comforting vs with an assured hope that we shall one day raigne with him in his Fathers house for euermore. Thus Christ is b via, in qua per charitatem ambulare: veritas, cui per fidem adherere: vita, ad quam per spem attolli debemus: c or as Augustine, Christ is the truth, and the way, qua itur; and the life, quo itur. And in d another place, Per me, venitur ad me, prouenitur in me, permanetur in me.

e Other taking this phrase for an hebraisme, construe it thus, I am the true way leading to life which is euerlasting. Or, I am the way to truth and life, making truth and life but Epitheta to way. Or I am the way, and the true light going before you in the way to life, as he doth f expound himselfe in the words immediatly following, No man commeth to the Father but by me, called g elsewhere the light, as well as here the life; which occasioned h Bernard to say, Nos populus tuus, & oves pascue tuae sequamur te, per te, ad te. I will end this obseruation with a meditation of i S. Ambrose, Ingrediamur hanc viam, teneamus veritatem, vitam sequamur. Via est qua perducit, veritas est qua confirmat, vita qua per se redditur. Suscipe nos Domine quasi via, confirma quasi veritas, viuifica quasi vita, nam in te sumus, viuimus, mouemur; mouemur quasi in via, sumus quasi in veritate, viuimus quasi in vita aeterna.

This one sentence doth afford many comforts vnto troubled hearts; if Christ be the way to life, there is k none other name whereby we must be saued, 1 Aliter qui vadit, cadit. If the truth, all other religions opposite to the Christian faith are either ignorant fantasies, or else arrogant heresies. If the life, let vs not despaire in death, cur m Redeemer liueth, he which is the n resurrection and the life, shall at the last day raise our vile body, making it like o his glorious body, recoining vs to himselfe, that where he is in his fathers house, there we may be also.

P Tract. 69. in 102n.

9 Com. in loc. Idem fere Caluini & Marlorat.

c Ferus ubi sup.

f In loc. idem. Chrysost. & Theophylact.

c Rom. 8. 38.

a Ser. 2. de resurrectione. Dom.

x Ser. 2. de ascensione. Dom.

y Ferus ubi sup.

z Bernard. tract. de gradibus humilitatis. in prin.

1 Ioh. 13. 15. 34.

b Vide Iansen. concord. cap. 134. & Stapleton de vita Thomae Apost. pag. 5. 6.

c Tract. 69. in 102n.

d De doct. Christi. lib. 1. cap. 34.

e Maldonat. in loc.

f Aretius. Caluin.

g Ioh. 1. 4. 5.

h Ser. 2. de ascensione. Dom.

i Lib. de bono mori. cap. 12.

k Act. 4. 12.

1 Bernard. ser. 2. in ascensione. Dom.

m Ioh. 19. 25.

n Ioh. 11. 25.

o Philip. 3. 21.

<sup>i</sup> 2 Epist. 1. 21.

<sup>k</sup> Gregor. cap. 10. prefat. in Iob.

<sup>l</sup> Epiphani. heres. 51.

<sup>m</sup> Annal. tom. ad an. 58.

<sup>n</sup> Matth. 13. 46.

<sup>o</sup> Matt. 7. 6.

<sup>p</sup> Explanat. proem. Euang. Luc.

<sup>q</sup> 1 Tim. 6. 20.

<sup>r</sup> Matth. 6. 30.

<sup>s</sup> Ambros. ubi sup.

<sup>t</sup> Maldonat. in Luc. 1.

<sup>u</sup> Theophylact. in Luc. 1.

<sup>v</sup> Lyranus & Nicephorus lib. 3. cap. 5. 7 Theophylact. argument. in Luc.

<sup>w</sup> Oecumen. in Act. 1. Baronius ubi sup. fol. 534.

<sup>x</sup> 1 Cor. 1. 26.

<sup>y</sup> Mark 15. 42.

<sup>z</sup> Act. 8. 27.

<sup>aa</sup> Act. 17. 11.

<sup>ab</sup> Matth. 10. 16.

<sup>ac</sup> 1 John 5. 19.

<sup>ad</sup> Inuenal.

God-spell, or the Ghosts-spell, euen the word of the Spirit, as <sup>i</sup> S. Peter teacheth vs: holy men of God in old time spake not according to the will of men, but as they were moued by the Holy Ghost, <sup>k</sup> ipse hac scripsit, qui hac scribendu dictauit.

The partie to whom our Euangelist inscribed his Gospell is Theophilus, and here the <sup>l</sup> Doctors doubt whether this name be common or proper. <sup>m</sup> Cardinall Baronius hath vndergone some paines in discussing this point, but (like himselfe) leaues it as he found it, vncertaine. If we take it for a common appellatine, then vnderstand that the Gospell is written vnto such as are Theophili, that is, louers of God. The word is a peerelesse <sup>n</sup> pearle, and may not be cast vnto <sup>o</sup> swine who despise it, but opened vnto the louers of God, which are ready to sell all that they haue to buy it: euery true Christian is a Theophilus, and euery Theophilus hath a Gospell dedicated to him, as <sup>p</sup> Saint Ambrose sweetly, Si Deum diligit, ad te scriptum est: si ad te scriptum est, suscipe munus Euangelista, pignus amici, in penetrabilibus animi diligenter asserua. Seeing this inestimable iewell is sent vnto thee, <sup>q</sup> keepe that which is committed to thy care, lay it vp in the treasure house of your heart, <sup>r</sup> where neither the moath and canker corrupt, and where theeues neither digge thorow nor steale. <sup>s</sup> Consumit tinea si quod bene legeris, male credas. Arrius is a moath, and Phorinus a moath, euery hereticke is a moath, as it were fretting the garment of our blessed Sauiour. But two reasons induce me to thinke that Theophilus is a proper name. 1. Saint Luke saith, It seemed good to me, to write vnto thee from point to point, that thou mightest acknowledge the certaintie of those things wherof thou hast beene instructed. By which he doth <sup>t</sup> insinuate, that he wrote to some one particular person whom he had heretofore catechized by <sup>u</sup> word of mouth. 2. The title guen vnto Theophilus, Luke 1. 3. maketh Interpreters conceiue, that he was a certaine man of eminent qualitie: <sup>x</sup> some therefore say that he was a Bishop of Antiochia, but <sup>y</sup> other, that he was some chiefe Governour in his Common-wealth, because the word καταπρος, vsed by S. Luke, (which we translate most excellent, or most noble) is the same which is ascribed elsewhere to men of great command: So Paul to Festus, Act. 26. 25. I am not mad, O noble Festus, <sup>z</sup> καταπρος καταπρος καταπρος So Tertullus an Orator, and a great master of words, vnto Felix, Act. 24. 3. We acknowledge it wholly and in all places, (καταπρος καταπρος, most noble Felix) with all thanks. So Claudius in his subscription to the same Felix, Act. 23. 26. Claudius Lyfius, <sup>aa</sup> καταπρος καταπρος, to the most noble Governour Felix greeting: and the title optimus of all other, was most acceptable to Traian the great Emperour, as Xiphilinus out of Dio reports in his life.

Hence then obserue, 1. That rich men and great men are not excluded from Gods kingdome, <sup>z</sup> S. Paul saith indeed, not many mightie, not many noble are called; yet some mightie, some noble, as the noble <sup>a</sup> Ioseph of Arimatea, the noble Chamberlaine and Treasurer of <sup>b</sup> Candaces Queene of Ethiopia, the noble men of <sup>c</sup> Berea, and here noble Theophilus of Antiochia.

2. Note by this example, that Christians ought to speake and write courteously, giuing titles of due respect vnto men of worth and worship, seare to whom seare, honour to whom honour belongeth, Rom. 13. 7.

3. Learne from hence, that goddly men ought to be religiously politick, so wise (saith our <sup>d</sup> Sauiour) as serpents, in inlarging Gods kingdome. It is likely S. Luke dedicated this present and that former history to noble Theophilus, not so much out of any priuate consideration, as for the publike good of the whole Church: for if a great man in authoritie receiue the word, other instantly will embrace the same. This vndoubtedly was our Euangelists policie, and till it be our practise, the wals of Iericho will neuer be thoroughly pulled downe; for so long as the Chaplaines are of the closet, flattering and foltering Nobles in their sinne, no maruell if the <sup>e</sup> whole world lieth in wickednesse: <sup>f</sup> Citharado Principe, mimus est nobilis, when Princes are fidlers, the people turne dancers.

The third person is of whom, and that is Iesus: in the former treatise we haue spoken of all that Iesus began to doe and teach, &c. Of all; how then is it true which is deliuered by S. Iohn in the conclusion of his Gospell? there are many other things which Iesus did, the which if they should be written every one, I suppose the world could not containe the bookes that should be written. Againe, Saint Luke himselfe, after hee had reported the birth of Christ, and the purtenances thereof, adds no more of him vntill he was twelue yeere old, disputing with the Doctors in the Temple, and then he relates not of any thing what he did for the space of eighteene yeere, from twelue yeere to thirtie. By which it doth appeare, that all which Iesus did and taught, neither is, nor can be written. Answer is made by Chrysofome and S other, that Saint Luke said not, I haue written all, but of all: insinuating that he wrote all that Iesus did and taught, as necessary to the worke of our redemption. He did not in his former treatise mention euery thing Iesus did and said, but only so much, or the chiefe heads of so much as was expedient to be said and done, for the full accomplishment of our saluation, all is to be referred ad genera singulorum, and not ad singula generum. Here then is a pregnant text against the Papists, holding that beside the word written, there be certaine traditions vnwritten, which ought to be beleeued as necessaris to saluation. See Gospell 1. Sund. in Lent.

It is not said of all that Iesus did, but of all that Iesus began to doe and teach: by which our Euangelist intimates, that his Gospell is a story not of such acts as Christ did in the beginning as God, but of that only which he did after he was in the fulnesse of time made man, and dwelt among vs, and became our Iesus. And this history Saint Luke diuides into the doings and doctrines of Christ, and by doings he doth vnderstand not his morals onely, but his miracles also, yea whatsoever Iesus either did or suffered for vs men and our saluation, recording his death as well as his life, his passions as well as his actions, and indeed they must goe together, because Christs righteousnesse consists in both, in doing and in suffering, for in suffering he obeyed, and in obeying he suffered, and the very shedding of his bloud (to which our redemption is ascribed more particularly) must not onely be considered as it is passiue, that is a suffering: but also as it is actiue, that is an obedience, in which he shewed his exceeding loue both to God and vs, in fulfilling the Law for vs. In this sense then all the sufferings of Christ are comprehended vnder the word doing, his resurrection also from the dead, and whatsoever else he wrought for our sake.

This was Christs honour, that he was a Prophet, mightie in deed and in word, before God and all the people. First, he began to doe, then to teach, saying to his followers, I haue giuen an example to you, learne of me. Every Doctor in like sort, must adorne the soundnesse of his learning with holinesse, of life. The present inscription of this booke doth admonish vs of a tion, that a good Apostles dutie consists in doing, as much as in teaching. I will here confesse ingenuously with Ardens, In hoc mea, & mei similitum confunditur praesumptio, qui multa vobis praedico, que tamen non facio. Sed utinam (fratres) per vestras orationes, ipsa confusio generet in me pudorem, pudor correptionem, correptione emendationem, ut quod prius non feci, postquam predicauerim incipiam.

In the text following, two points are chiefly considerable, namely, Christs } Holy conuersation with his Apostles after his resurrection, for the space of fortie dayes, verse 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8. }
 } Glorious ascension ensuing that his conuersation, } } vers. 9, 10, 11. }

I haue spoken of the former often elsewhere, the latter is onely proper to this our present feast:

In which obserue three circumstances especially, the } } Place } of Christs ascension.
 } Time } } Manner }

The place from whence Christ ascended (as we may collect out of this Chapter at the 12. verse) was the mount of Olines neere Bethanie, containing a Sabbath dayes journey from Ierusalem. He did ascend from a mount, an open, high, eminent place, that he might assure the certaine truth of his ascension. If hee

E Erasmus.
Caluin.
Aretius in loc.

Ardens in loc.
Matorat. in loc.
Bellar de verb. Dei, lib. 4. cap. 3.
Melchior. C. in loc. com. lib. 3. cap. 3.
Peresius de tradit. assert. 2.
Caetan. in loc.
Aretius.

Luke 24. 19.

Iob 13. 15.
Math. 11. 29
Aretius.
Caluin.
Lorin cap. 1. praefat. in Abt.
Hom in epist. ascen.

Luke 14. 50.

Caluin.

should haue withdrawne himselfe in secret, haply the Disciples would haue doubted of his ascension, as they did a while of his resurrection: but now beholding him openly, publikely mounting from a mount, they could not but affirme it themselves, and confirme it vnto other.

2. Christ ascended from a mount rather than from a valley, from an high place rather than from a low, for that it was one step vnto his iournies end: * hereby teaching vs not to looke for extraordinary miracles, so long as ordinary meanes will serue: he went so farre to heauen as he could on earth, and then being on a mount, and so not able by naturall helpe to goe higher, a cloud receiued him out of their sight.

3. It may be Christ ascended from a mount, for that he desired to stay so long, and to spend so many houres as he conueniently could, in instructing his followers before he departed. Hereby demonstrating his exceeding great loue to the Disciples in particular, as also to the whole Church in generall, as you shall heare further in the discussing of the circumstances of time when Christ ascended.

The mount from whence he did ascend was the mount of Oliues, and it was the same place from whence he went to be crucified. One place serued to be a passage both to his crosse and to his crowne, <sup>2</sup> signifying hereby, that the way to heauen is by the gates of hell, as Paul and Barnabus preach, Acts 14.22. through many tribulations we must enter into the kingdome of God. A wicked man in prosperitie walketh as in the day, the Sunne is before, but the shadow behinde him: a good man on the contrary walketh as in the night, his shadow goes before, but great light and ioy commeth afterward. Dives and Lazarus exemplifie this in the 16. of Saint Luke, Dives in his life was furnished with rich apparell, and filled euery day with delicate fare, there was his Sunne-shine: but he died and was buried, and was exceedingly tormented in hell, there was his shadow, nay that which is called in the <sup>a</sup> Scriptures utter darknesse. Lazarus on the contrary was an obscure base creature, full of sorrowes in his soule, and sores in his body, there was his shadow: but when he died, he was conueyed by glorious Angels into the bosome of blessed Abraham, there was his light and glory. It is an hard and almost impossible thing (saith <sup>b</sup> Hierome) that any should passe from great pleasures in this world, to the greatest pleasures in the next, vt quis hic ventrem, & ibi mentem impleat, vt de delicijs transeat ad delicias. And as the same <sup>m</sup> Father told Heliodore, Delicatus es si & hic vis gaudere cum seculo, & postea regnare cum Christo. Here then is comfort for the discontentate, many through lingring diseases, as the dead palsie, the gout, and the like <sup>b</sup> bed-rid, and as it were buried long before their death, in so much as their beds which heretofore were places of rest and ease to them, are now couches of sorres and misery, Yet these men hence haue great comfort, if they make good vse of Gods visitation, for their bed in their sicknesse on which they suffer so much heauinesse, shall on their dying day be to them a Bethanie, from which they shall ascend to the kingdome of eternall happinesse.

Or <sup>n</sup> Bethanie signifies the house of obedience, wherefore seeing Christ was obedient vnto God his Father in all things, vnto the death, euen the death of the Crosse; therefore God hath exalted him highly, Philip.2.8. Through disobedience we were cast out of Paradise, and through obedience we shall enter in againe, o sola obedientia accepit palmam, & inobedientia penam.

I passe from the circumstances of place, to the circumstances of time. When he had spoken these things, &c. that is, as you may reade, verse 3. all those things which appertaine to the kingdome of God. After he had <sup>p</sup> blessed them, and (as it is in the Gospell allotted for this day) giuen them a large commission to preach, adorned with many singular priuiledges and promises, assuring them and their posteritie, that he would be present in Spirit with them alway <sup>q</sup> till the end of the world; when he had spoken all these things, he was taken vp on high, &c. This sheweth euidently, that he is a most industrious and vigilant Pastor of his Church, affecting and effecting also the good thereof. As the <sup>r</sup> government is on his shoulder, so * Maldonas.

Lerin.

<sup>y</sup> Luke 22.39.
<sup>z</sup> Perkins expof.
Creed, art.
Ascen.

<sup>a</sup> Matth. 8. 12.
& 23. 13.

<sup>b</sup> Consolat. ad
Iulian. tom. 1.
fol. 208.
<sup>m</sup> Epist. ad He- liod. de vita Eremetica.

<sup>n</sup> Paluden. ser.
de ascen. Dom.
See Ferus ser. 3.
in ascen. Dom.
<sup>o</sup> August. apud
Palud. ubi sup.

<sup>p</sup> Luke 24.50.

<sup>q</sup> Matth. 28. 28

<sup>r</sup> Esay 9.6.

was he more faithfull in Gods house than Moses was, Heb. 3. 5, 6. He did not ascend and (as it were) breake vp schoole, till he had instructed his Disciples in all points appertaining to their calling and his kingdome. Now looke what care Christ at his ascension had ouer his Church, the same must every Master haue ouer his household, and euery Minister ouer his Cure, when it shall please God to take them out of this world. A Prophet is sent to <sup>1</sup> King Hezechia, to bid him put his house in order, for he must die: signifying hereby, that it is the dutie of a good Master of a family, to haue care not only for the gouernment of his house whilest he is aliue, but also that it may be well ordered when he is dead. The same care must in like sort be practised of Ministers, according to the patterne of <sup>2</sup> S. Paul, I haue kept nothing backe, but haue shewed all the counsell of God vnto you; take heed therefore, &c. for I know this, that after my departing, shall grieuous wolues enter in among you, not sparing the flocke. So likewise <sup>3</sup> S. Peter, I know that the time is at hand that I must lay downe this my tabernacle, I will endenour therefore alwayes, that ye may be able to haue remembrance of these things after my departure. If it be part of thy fidelitie that Gods people, committed vnto thy particular charge, may be well instructed after thy death; O how carefull oughtest thou to be for their good in thy life? Rapite (faith <sup>4</sup> Augustine) quos potestis hortando, portando, rogando, disputando, &c. that is, in the words of <sup>5</sup> Paul, Preach the word, be instant in season and out of season. improve, rebuke, exhort, with all long suffering and doctrine.

The second circumstance of time is while his Apostles beheld, &c. If any demand, why he would not haue the whole nation of the Iewes see him ascend, that so they might assuredly know that he was risen againe from the dead, and so belecue in him: <sup>6</sup> Answer is made, that it is Gods good pleasure that the mysteries of holy beleefe, whereof Christs ascension is one, should rather be learned by <sup>7</sup> a hearing than by seeing, according to that of <sup>8</sup> Clemens Alexandrinus, faith is the soules eare. Christs owne Disciples indeed were taught his ascension by sight, that they might the better teach other, who did not see, they were witnesses of these things chosen before of God for the same purpose, Acts 10. 39 41. Whereas therefore <sup>9</sup> Paul had no witness of his being taken vp into the third heauen: and <sup>10</sup> Eliab one spectator only, who saw him as he went vp in a chariot of fierie horses and a whirle-winde into heauen; Christ had many beholders of his ascension, he was taken vp on high, videntibus illis, in the sight of all his Apostles assembled together. He did ascend, paulatim (as <sup>11</sup> Augustine speakes) he was neither suddenly snatched away, nor yet secretly stolne away: but while they beheld, he was taken vp on high, as it followeth in the manner of his ascending to be considered, A cloud receined him out of their sight.

Now whereas he caused a cloud to come betweene himselfe and their sight, it <sup>12</sup> signified vnto them that hereafter they must be content with that which they had seene, and not curiously to seeke to know further what became of him. And the same thing is taught vs also, we must content our selues with that Almighty God hath in his holy word reuealed, and inquire no further in things appertaining to God. His word is a sufficient lanterne to our feet, and a guide to our paths; a perfect glosse, yea <sup>13</sup> glasse of his knowne will, in which euery true beleeuer may see so much as he need to search in this life. For the like end in giuing the Law on mount Sinai, God appeared in a <sup>14</sup> thicke cloud; and when he did manifest his glory in Salomons Temple, a darke cloud <sup>15</sup> filled the same.

Haply some will obiect, how Christ elsewhere promised he would neuer leaue his Church, I am alway with you till the end of the world, Matth. 28. 20. Answer is made, that these words are to be construed of the presence of his God-head, or Spirit, not of the presence of his manhood: and therefore two glorious Angels at the 11. verse, chide the Disciples hanging on his bodily presence, Why stand ye gazing into heauen? It is true that Christ is to be found in heauen, <sup>16</sup> yet not with the gazing eyes of flesh, but only with the spirituall eyes of faith. It may be further alledged, if the God-head be present on earth, then the manhood must of necessitie be present there, because both are vnited together. Our <sup>17</sup> Diuines

<sup>1</sup> Esay. 38. 1.<sup>2</sup> Acts 20. 27.<sup>3</sup> 2 Pet. 1. 14.<sup>4</sup> In Psal 33. 2.<sup>5</sup> 1 Tim. 4. 2.<sup>6</sup> Perkins exposition of the Creed, art. Ascen.<sup>7</sup> Rom 10. 17.<sup>8</sup> Stromat 5.<sup>9</sup> 2 Cor. 12. 2.<sup>10</sup> 2 King 11.<sup>11</sup> Ser. 178 de temp.<sup>12</sup> Calvin in loc.<sup>13</sup> 1am 2. 23.<sup>14</sup> Exod. 19. 9.<sup>15</sup> 1 King. 8. 10.<sup>16</sup> Marlorat in Matth 28. 20.<sup>17</sup> See Perkins ubi sup & B Bilso. against the Iesuites, fol. 786. 787. &c

° Contra gentes,
lib. 4. cap. 49.

° Acts 3. 31.
P In Psal. 46.

answer that this argument followes not, Christs manhood subsists in that person which is euery where, ergo, his manhood is euery where. The reason is plaine, saith ° Aquine, because the Sonne of God doth not only subsist in his diuine nature, but also by his diuine nature: whereas he doth not subsist at all by the manhood, but in the manhood only; for the Word was in the beginning, when the manhood was not; God of the substance of his Father, begotten before the worlds, man of the substance of his mother borne in the world, as Athanasius in his Creed. And therefore Christ alway was, is, and euer will be with vs in his spirit, though absent in his body; for a cloud on this day tooke him vp on high out of our sight, ° whom the heauens must containe till the time that all things be restored, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy Prophets since the world began. I conclude this argument in P Saint Augustines glosse, Videte, ascendentem, credite in absentem, sperate venientem, sed tamen per misericordiam occultam etiam sentite presentem.

The Gospell. MARKE 16. 14.

Iesus appeared vnto the eleuen as they sate at meat, &c.

¶ Confessio Hel-
uic. post. cap. 24.

† Vide August.
epist. 118. cap. 1.
& lib. cont.
Adimant. cap. 16

° De ciuit. Dei,
lib. 10. cap. 4.

° Psal. 111. 4.

° Ser. 2 in ascen.
Dom.

° Raulin. ser.
2. in ascens.
Dom.

¶ Psal. 19. 6.

° Lib. 2. contra
lit. Petilian.
cap. 32.

° Didac. de
Tanguas. con. 1.
de ascens. Dom.

° Malac. 4. 2.

¶ Albeit religion be not tied vnto time, yet can it not be planted or exercised, without a due diuiding and allotting out of time for it. Euery Church therefore chuseth vnto it selfe a certaine time for publike prayers, and for the preaching of the Gospell, and for the celebration of the Sacraments. And for as much as it is kindly to consider euery great blessing of God in the day wherein it was wrought: it is well ordered by the true Churches, as well † ancient, as moderne, to solemnize the memoriall of Christs natiuitie, circumcision, passion, resurrection, ascension, and sending of the Holy Ghost on certaine set holy dayes euery yeere, ne volumine temporum ingrata subrepat obliuio, saith † Augustine, lest haply the maruellous workes of our gracious Lord, should be forgotten in a while, which ought to be had in a perpetuall † remembrance.

Now Christs ascension is the consummation of all that which hee did, and taught, whilest he dwelt among vs, aptly termed by ° Bernard, Felix clausula totius Itinerary filij Dei, the very * Sabbath of all his labour in the working of our redemption. He laboured six daies, and then he rested on the seuenth. His natiuitie was the first; his circumcision was the second; his presentation in the Temple the third; his baptism the fourth; his passion the fifth; his resurrection the sixth; and then followed his ascension, in which he was receiued into heauen, and now sitteth at the right hand of God, as hauing finished the whole worke for which he came into the world. † David saith of the naturall Sunne, it reioyceth as a Giant to runne his course, it goeth forth from the uttermost parts of the heauen, and runneth about vnto the end of it againe, and there is nothing hid from the heat thereof. The which (as † Augustine and † other haue noted) may be well applied vnto the supernaturall Sunne Iesus Christ the Sonne of † righteousness. As a Giant he did runne his course, there you haue his incarnation, and peregrination in the flesh: his circuit was from the uttermost part of heauen vnto the end of it againe, there you haue his resurrection and ascension: nothing is hid from his heat, there you haue his sending of the Holy Ghost in the forme of fierie tongues, Acts 2. 3. As a Giant he ran his race, for he first descended into the lowest parts of the earth, and then ascended farre aboue all heauens, that he might fulfill all things, Ephes. 4. 9. 10. Wherefore seeing Christs ascension is the complement of all his doings, and of all his doctrines, our Church is worthie to be honoured, in making this festiuall one of the chiefe holidayes in the whole yeere.

In the Gospell allotted for this holy Thursday two points are most observable: namely,

Christ's goodnesse toward his Apostles, in his Apparition, Iesus appeared vnto the eleuen.

 Correction, and cast in their teeth, &c.
 Commission, Goe ye into all the world, &c.
 Consolation, These tokens shall follow. &c.
 Ascension, So when the Lord had spoken vnto them, he was receiued into heauen, &c.

The Apostles obedience toward Christ, and they went forth and preached euery where, &c.

Iesus appeared vnto the eleuen] He had often appeared vnto his followers after his resurrection, and now he manifested himselfe to the eleuen Apostles as they sat at meat. Wherein he did appeare like himselfe, full of meeknesse and mercie, giuing vs assurance that he will be present with vs, <sup>c</sup> orationi incumbens, at our meetings in the Temple, Quando nec recumbentibus quidem dedignatur adesse, seeing he vouchsafed his company to his Apostles in their meales at the table. It is reported, Luke 24.43. that he did eat with them also; now this comelition (as the <sup>d</sup> Schoolemen out of the Fathers haue disputed) was not egestatis, but potestatis. He did eat to feed our soules, and not to fill his owne body, being after his resurrection immortall and impassible. That which he did eat, was not (as Durandus imagined) turned into the substance of his body, for as <sup>e</sup> Gregorie the Great disputes out of S. Paul, Rom. 6.9. Christ being raised from the dead, dieth no more, death hath no dominion ouer him, his glorified body needed no sustenance to preserue life. Neither was this eating (as <sup>f</sup> other thinke) a seeming only to take bread, and fish, and honie: but it was a true comelition, albeit assuredly there followed no digestion, or ordinary eiection. And so by consequence he did not eat to nourish his owne flesh, <sup>g</sup> but only to cherish our faith, in that great article concerning the truth of his resurrection. <sup>h</sup> Or he did in this appearing eat with his Apostles at the table familiarly, that he might hereby the better imprint in their hearts a memoriall of his sweet loue toward them. Or he did appeare to his Apostles at meat, <sup>i</sup> to signifie that he giueth our food in due season, and that he filleth all things liuing with his plenteousnesse, Psal. 145. 15.

And cast in their teeth their vnbeleefe] The Patriarks, and Prophets, and Apostles instruct vs, not only by their vertues, but also by their infirmities. As there the Disciples vnbeleefe turned in fine to the confirmation of our Creed. <sup>k</sup> Dubitatum est ab illis, no dubitaretur a nobis, vndoubtedly some did doubt (the diuine providence sweetly so disposing) that all other might be put out of doubt. And therefore <sup>l</sup> Thomas in beleeuing Christs resurrection so slackly, did vs hereby more good than Mary Magdalen in beleeuing so quickly, because Christs correction of his fault occasioned further direction for our faith, <sup>m</sup> Infidelitas bona, qua seculorum fidei militauit. See Gospell on S. Thomas day.

The world doth exalt first, and then humble, Prou. 14. 13. The end of the worlds mirth is heauinesse. <sup>n</sup> But God on the contrary first humilieth, and then exalteth. As Christ here first humbled his Apostles, in rebuking their vnbeleefe, and hardnesse of heart, and then he doth exalt them, in making the whole world their Diocesse, Euntes in mundum vniuersum predicate, &c. He being the true <sup>o</sup> Samaritane, powred into their wounds oyle and wine; first <sup>p</sup> vinum tribulationis, and then oleum consolationis, he chasteneth all such as he loueth, and he scourgeth euery sonne that he receiuet.

<sup>c</sup> Bernard ser. 3. in ascen. Dom.

<sup>d</sup> Vide Suarez in 3. Thom. disput. 47. sect. 5.

<sup>e</sup> Moral. lib. 14. cap. 31.

<sup>f</sup> Apud Suarez ubi sup.

<sup>g</sup> Gregor. in Euang. hom. 29.

<sup>h</sup> Avidens bon. in l. c.

<sup>i</sup> Raplin ser. 4. in ascen. Dom.

<sup>k</sup> Leo ser. 1 de ascen. Dom.

<sup>l</sup> Gregor. ubi sup.

<sup>m</sup> August. ser. 156. de temp.

<sup>n</sup> Diez con. 1. in ascen. Dom.

<sup>o</sup> Luke 10. 34.

<sup>p</sup> Rulz. ubi sup.

<sup>q</sup> Heb. 12. 6.

<sup>r</sup> Rom. 10. 15.

In Christs commission or grant to his Apostles ob-serue two things especially,

1. Their warrant, goe and preach; for how shall they preach except they be sent? he that runneth of his owne accord, without a calling, is a false Prophet, Ier. 23. 21. See Gospell 1. Sund. after Easter, and 8. after Trinitie.

2. Their work, in respect of their

Dioces where they must preach, in the whole world to euery creature.
Doctrine what they must preach, and that is said expressly, to be the Gospell.

<sup>r</sup> Gregor.
Beda, Ardens.

Concerning their Dioces, <sup>r</sup> it is not the meaning of our blessed Saviour that his Apostles should preach vnto liuelesse stones, or senselesse plants, or witlesse beasts; but he doth vnderstand by (all creatures) only men, as being an abridgement of all the creatures. Stones haue a being, but not a life; plants haue both a being and a life, but not sense: beasts haue being, life, sense, but they want vnderstanding: Angels haue being, life, sense, vnderstanding. Now man as being a little world, and as it were the compendious Index of Gods great book in folio, participates a being with stones; life, with plants; sense, with beasts; vnderstanding with Angels: and therefore fitly called euery creature, as hauing the chiefe perfections of euery creature. <sup>r</sup> Or man may be called all creatures, as being that excellent creature for whom all other creatures were made, Psalm. 8. 6. Thou makest him to haue dominion ouer the workes of thine hands, and thou hast put all things in subiection vnder his feet. Or preach the Gospell vnto all creatures, vnderstanding onely such as are capable to receiue the Gospell. So Christ <sup>u</sup> elsewhere said, all things that I haue heard of my Father haue I made knowne vnto you, that is, all things which are necessary for your saluation, and are fit for you to know. And Ioh. 12. 17. If I were lift up from the earth, I will draw all men vnto me, that is, all which are to be drawne. So <sup>x</sup> Paul, Loue suffereth all things, beleeueth all things, hopeth all things; that is, all which are to be suffered and beleueed, and hoped. <sup>y</sup> Or preach the Gospell vnto all creatures, that is, all nations, for so Saint Marke may be well expounded by S. Matthew, who relating this commission saith, Euntes ergo docete omnes gentes, goe and teach all Nations. Hereby repealing a former edict, Matth. 10. 5. Goe not into the way of the Gentiles, and into the Cities of the Samaritans enter ye not. That commission is determined; now therefore goe into all the world, and preach the Gospell vnto all creatures, to men of all countries and conditions whatsoeuer. This vniuersal extraordinary commission is expired and hath his end; for now the successors of the Apostles, as Bishops and Pastors, haue their peculiar prouinces, and proper Parishes assigned for their cure; <sup>z</sup> yet so, that they may preach the Gospell of Christ in other places also where need requireth, albeit the same be not particularly committed vnto them. And therefore the Church of England <sup>a</sup> enioyneth euery learned Pastor sometime to preach in Chapels and Churches adioyning neere to his benefice.

<sup>c</sup> Ardens.
Raulin.

<sup>b</sup> Iohn 15. 15.

<sup>x</sup> 1 Cor. 2. 3. 7.

<sup>y</sup> Ianser.
Piscator.
Mastorat.

<sup>z</sup> Dr. Whitgift defense of his answer to the admonit. fol.
229.

<sup>a</sup> Can. 45.

<sup>b</sup> Ardens.

<sup>c</sup> 1 Pet. 4. 11.

<sup>d</sup> 1 Tim. 6. 5.

<sup>e</sup> Esay 9. 6.

<sup>f</sup> Ioh. 3. 16.

As for their worke, <sup>b</sup> they must employ their time neither in secular actions of the world, nor yet in idle speculations of the Schoole: but apply themselues vnto preaching, goe yee into the world and preach. And they must preach not their owne wisdom, but the Gospell; if any man speake, let him deliuer <sup>e</sup> oracles of God, <sup>d</sup> consenting to the wholesome words of our Lord Iesus Christ, and to the doctrine which is according to godlinesse. And for as much as the Law, the Psalmes, and the Prophets, are nothing else but as it were a preface to the booke of the generation of Iesus Christ; I say for as much as Christ is <sup>r</sup> the supplement of the Prophets, and end of the Law: they must especially preach vnto the world the glad tidings of saluation, making this sentence the period of all their Sermons, <sup>e</sup> vnto vs a childe is borne, vnto vs a Sonne is giuen: or that of Christ himselfe <sup>f</sup> So God loued the world, that he gaue his onely begotten Sonne, that whosoever beleueth in him should not perish, but haue euerlasting life. To the preaching of the Gospell, administration of the Sacraments is adioyned, and enioyned also, Marth. 29. 19. Goe to teach all Nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and the Sonne, and the Holy Ghost. The which our Euangelist implicth here, when he saith, he that beleueth and is baptized shall be saved, but he that beleueth not shall be damned. Concerning Baptimes necessitie, see Gospell on Trinity Sunday.

And these tokens shall follow them that beleue] These words are to be digested with a little salt, to be construed with a great deale of caution, otherwise the simple soule will object, how shall I know that I beleue, seeing I worke no miracles? If we take them (as many learned and ancient & Diuines haue done) mystically, then every true beleuer in Christs name casteth out of his heart deuils, that is, euils: for every soule sinne is a foule fiend to man; and then his soule being sound, his mouth <sup>h</sup> ex abundantia cordis, out of the hearts abundance, speaks with new tongues. His communication heretofore was impious toward God, and vcharitable toward his neighbour, his <sup>i</sup> throat an open sepulchre, his tongue deceiuing, his lips <sup>k</sup> flatterring, his mouth full of cursing and bitterness. But now hauing put on the new man, he speaks in a new language words of truth and sobernesse, Acts 26. 25. words of meekenesse and courtesie, Titus 3. 2. words agreeable to the wholesome words of our Lord Iesus Christ, and to the doctrine which is according to godlinesse, 1 Tim. 6. 3. After this compunction in his heart, and confession of his mouth, if any venomous temptation be suggested, he shall haue power to drive away serpents, and if he drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt him, although he taste of it a little, yet he shall not in any case swallow it downe to his vtter destruction. And lastly, he shall impose his hands upon the sicke, and they shall recover, that is, he shall out of his loue beare the <sup>l</sup> infirmities of his weake brethren, and <sup>m</sup> hide a multitude of their finnes, his exhortation and doctrine (the Lord working with them, as it is in the last words of our text) shall heale the sicke, yea raise the very dead in sinne to newnesse of liue.

If we take Christs promise (these signes shall follow them that beleue) literally, then it must of necessitie be construed with a few limitations and exceptions. As first, in respect of the time, <sup>n</sup> miracles are not necessarie for a Church alreadye planted, but onely for a Church in planting. So Paul, 1 Cor. 14. 22. Strange tongues are for a signe not to them that beleue, but to them that beleue not: a young plant, must often be watered at the first setting; but after it is once thoroughly rooted in the ground, it will easily sprout and spring without irrigation; euen so the Church primitiue was a while watered by signes and tokens in those who did beleue: but being now perfectly grounded in Christ, it may not say, thy wonders, O Lord, but thy word, O Lord, is a lanterne vnto my feet, and a guide to my paths.

The second limitation is in respect of the persons, <sup>p</sup> all beleuers in the primitiue time were not workers of wonders, but only some few, whereof every one had a generall gift, as S. Paul teacheth expressly, 1 Cor. 12. 30. Are all doers of miracles? haue all the gift of healing? doe all speake with tongues? it is said indefinitely (them that beleue) because these tokens were wrought at the first preaching of the Gospell vnto every creature for the common good of such as beleue; but every true beleuer was not endued with a gift actually to worke these signes himselfe. Iohn the Baptist, albeit he was <sup>q</sup> more than a Prophet, yet he did no miracle, Ioh. 10. 41. He had as <sup>r</sup> one distinguisheth vpon this text, potestatem faciendi miracula, sed non actum, a power to haue done many wonders, if need had bene, but he did act none. The meaning then of these comfortable words vttered by Christ vnto his Apostles is plaine; though I goe now to my Father, and so leaue you, yet in executing your ministerie, ye shall haue power to worke signes and tokens, your preaching of my Gospell vnto the world shall every where be confirmed with miracles. I haue done many strange things among you, yet <sup>s</sup> I say vnto you, verily, verily, he that beleueth in me, the workes that I doe he shall doe also, yea greater than these shall he doe. And he did performe so much as he did promise,

<sup>g</sup> Gregor hem.
29 in Euangel.
Bernardus ser 1.
in Ascen. Dom.
Ardens hom.
in loc.
Lancelm. concord.
cap 140.
<sup>h</sup> Marth. 12. 34
<sup>i</sup> Psal. 145. 5.
<sup>k</sup> Psal. 12. 2.

<sup>l</sup> Rom. 14. 1.
<sup>m</sup> James 5. 20.

<sup>n</sup> Gregor.
Ardens
Iansenus bisop.
Ioh. August. de utilitate credendi. cont. 282
nicholas cap. 16.

<sup>o</sup> Psal. 119. 105

<sup>p</sup> Ardens in loc.
S. Marlor. in
Matth. 23. 19.

<sup>q</sup> Marth 11. 9.

<sup>r</sup> Aristotel.

<sup>s</sup> Ioh. 14. 12.

promise, for we reade that his Apostles in his name did cast out deuills, Acts 16. 18. and spake with new tongues, Acts 2. 4. and drine away serpents, as Paul, Act. 28. 5. shooke off a viper from his hand into the fire and felt no haime: and beale the sicke, as Peter, Acts 9. 34. There was a certaine man at Lydda, named Aeneas, which had kept his bed eight yeeres, and was sicke of the palse, to whom Peter said, Aeneas, Iesus Christ maketh thee whole; arise, and make vp thy bed, and he arose immediatly. Yea they did greater signes in Christs name than Christ himselfe, greater in <sup>t</sup> number, for whereas Christ wrought all his workes either about the borders, or else within the bounds of Iudea; his Apostles preached vnto all the world, and had the word confirmed euery where with miracles. <sup>u</sup> Other thinke that they did greater works in nature, maius est enim vt sancti umbra, quam simbria, saith <sup>x</sup> Augustine; it was a greater miracle, that the very shadow of Saint Peter as he walked in the street should heale many sicke, Acts 5. 15. than that the hemme of Christs vesture should heale one woman, who had an issue of bloud, Matth. 9. 22. But here you must obserue, <sup>y</sup> that Christ said not, he that beleueth in me shall doe greater workes than I can, or than I will doe; but only greater than these which I haue done. Hereby signifying, that they should not doe greater workes out of their owne power, but only through his helpe. Hoc (saith Euthymius) est demonstratio potentia eius qui signa dedit, non eius qui signa edit. And Augustin. tract. 71. in Ioan. Maiora quam ipse fecit dicit eos esse facturos, sed in eis, vel per eos se faciente, non ipsis tanquam ex seipsis. He saith <sup>z</sup> else where, without me can yee do nothing, but in my name they shall cast out deuils, and speake with new tongues, &c. <sup>a</sup> The seruant is not greater than his Lord, nor the Disciple greater than his Master, nor man greater than his Maker. In the beginning he made <sup>b</sup> the world without them, and he made <sup>c</sup> them also without them, and in vouchsafing to be man he made himselfe without them, <sup>d</sup> ipse sine ipsis fecit hunc mundum, ipse sine ipsis fecit eos, ipse sine ipsis fecit & seipsum: but alas what haue they without him, excepting sinne. Christ then in saying (he that beleueth in me shall doe greater workes than I doe) <sup>e</sup> meaneth vndoubtedly this, if your heart be so troubled, that yee cannot now beleue that I am in the Father, and the Father in me: yet when I am gone to the Father, and shall in his kingdome sit at his right hand, yee shall evidently see that I am God, and that <sup>f</sup> I and my Father are one; for I will in my corporall absence from you, doe greater workes in you, and by you, than euer I did hitherto before you. So himselfe doth interpret himselfe in the words immediatly following, what soeuer yee aske in my name, that will I doe, that the Father may be glorified in the Sonne: and againe, if ye shall aske any thing in my name, I will doe it. The which is agreeable to the tenour of our Text, verse 17. In my name they shall cast out deuils, &c. and verse 20. The Lord wrought with them, and confirmed the word with miracles following.

He was receiued into heauen] <sup>g</sup> S. Augustine, <sup>h</sup> Gregorie the Great, and <sup>i</sup> other Diuines obserue, that the foure beasts mentioned Ezechiel 1. and Apocalyps 4. mystically represent the foure chiefe actions of Christ in his working of our redemption. The first beast had a face like a Man, the second like a Bullocke, the third like a Lion, the fourth like a flying Eagle. So Christ in his incarnation was found as a Man, in his passion as a sacrificed Bullocke, in his resurrection like a Lion, in his ascension as a flying <sup>k</sup> Eagle, mounting about the clouds, and sitting at the right hand of God in the highest heauens. And therefore S. Marke relating here the glorious ascension of Christ, adds to the name Iesus, the title Dominus: so when the Lord had spoken vnto them, he was receiued into heauen, <sup>l</sup> hereby shewing that he was Lord of all things, able to command the clouds in heauen, as well as the clods on earth. He manifested himselfe to be Lord of the seas, in <sup>m</sup> walking on the water without a ship, and in <sup>n</sup> calming the stormie waves when he was in a ship. He manifested himselfe to be Lord of the land, in commanding the graue to giue forth her prisoner <sup>o</sup> Lazarus, which had bene dead foure dayes. He manifested himselfe to be commander of hell, in casting out <sup>p</sup> deuils, and when hee did ouercome Sathan in his temptations, and <sup>q</sup> take from him all his armour wherein <sup>r</sup> Aretius. Arboreus in Ioan. 14.

<sup>u</sup> Augustin. Beda, Rupert. in Ioan. 14.

<sup>x</sup> Tract. 71. & 72. in Ioan.

<sup>y</sup> Theophylact. Euthym. Malanot. in Ioan. 14.

<sup>z</sup> John 15. 1.

<sup>a</sup> Matth. 10. 24.

<sup>b</sup> John 1. 3.

<sup>c</sup> Heb. 1.

<sup>d</sup> Psal 100. 3.

<sup>e</sup> Augustin. tract. 72. in Ioan.

<sup>f</sup> Vide Marlorat. & Maldonat in Ioan. 14.

<sup>g</sup> Ich. 10. 30.

<sup>h</sup> Ser. 157. de temp.

<sup>i</sup> Hom. 4. in Ezechiel.

<sup>j</sup> Rupert.

<sup>k</sup> Aretius. My r. in Apocalyp. 4.

<sup>l</sup> Vide Didac. de Tanguas con. 2. in Ascen. Dom.

<sup>m</sup> Perus ser 2 in Ascen. Dom. & Aretius in Act. 1.

<sup>n</sup> Matth. 14. 25.

<sup>o</sup> Matth. 8. 26.

<sup>p</sup> Ioh. 11. 44.

<sup>q</sup> Matth. 8. 32.

<sup>r</sup> Luke 11. 22.

wherein he trusted, and diuided his spoiles, openly triumphing ouer him and his, on the Crosse, Coloss. 2. 15. And now to shew that he was Lord of heauen, and <sup>r</sup> equall with God, he did ascend <sup>r</sup> farre above all heauens, and is (saith our text) on the right hand of God. To sit (as Ardens vpon the place pithily) quiescentis, regnantis, & iudicantis est, ergo bene Redemptor noster post passionem ascensionemq. suam sedere describitur; quia post laborem requiescit, post praelium regnat, & postquam iudicatus est iudicat.

Is Christ ascended on high? Then let vs <sup>t</sup> seeke those things which are aboue, where Christ sitteth at the right hand of God. Albeit our bodies betied with the fetters of flesh on earth, yet let our soules ascend with the wings of faith into heauen, euen to the place from whence commeth all our helpe and hope. Saluator noster ascendit in caelum, non ergo turbemur in terra: ibi sit mens, & hic erit requies, as <sup>u</sup> Augustine sweetly. The way to make a ladder vp to heauen (as the same Father teacheth in his third Sermon preached on this day) is to trample sinne vnder our feet, de vitijs nostris scalam nobis facimus, si vitia calcamus; tread pride vnder thy feet, and thou shalt instantly passe one step, <sup>x</sup> he that humbleth himselfe shall be exalted; tread conetousnesse vnder thy feet, and it will proue another step, <sup>y</sup> how hard is it for them who trust in riches to enter into the kingdome of God? tread malicioufnesse vnder thy feet, and thou shalt approach as yet neerer vnto heauen, <sup>z</sup> God is loue, and he that dwelleth in loue dwelleth in God, and God in him.

<sup>r</sup> Philip 2. 6.
<sup>r</sup> Ephes 4. 10.

<sup>r</sup> Coloss 3. 1.
See August. ser.
174 de temp. &
Greg hom. 29. in Euang.

<sup>u</sup> Ser. 175. de temp.

<sup>x</sup> Luke 18. 14.

<sup>y</sup> Matth. 1 c. 24

<sup>z</sup> 1 Ioh 4. 6.

Grant we beseech thee, Almighty God, that like as we doe beleue thine onely begotten Sonne our Lord to haue ascended into the heauen: so we may also in heart and minde thither ascend, and with him continually dwell. Amen.

The Epistle. A C T S 10. 34.

Then Peter opened his mouth, &c.

THe former part of this text is expounded on Easter Munday, the contents of the latter on Whitsunday.

The Gospell. I O H N 3. 16.

So God loued the world, that he gaue his onely begotten Sonne, that whosoever beleueth in him should not perish but haue euerlasting life, &c.

IT is reported of a noble Lantgraue, <sup>a</sup> Fredericke by name, that the very ginging of his spurre was a terrour to his foes. And so the very repeating of this sweet text, is able to make Satan our greatest enemy to quake, for it is (as <sup>b</sup> one calleth it) a common armoris for the Christian, as it were the Tower of <sup>c</sup> Dauid, a thousand shields hang therein, and all the targets of the strong men. Apply this one sentence to thy soule, and thou shalt in thy most grievous agonie, <sup>d</sup> quench all the fierie darts of the deuill.

<sup>a</sup> Manlius loc.
con. iii. de
calamitat.

<sup>b</sup> Martin. Mol.
locus in loc.

<sup>c</sup> Cant. 4. 4.

<sup>d</sup> Ephes 6. 16.

It brancheth it selfe into three considerations especially; } Who, God loued.
What, the world.
How, so that he gaue his onely begotten Sonne, &c.

Ambitious men in the Court, lose their time, libertie, their estate, yea sometime with Iscariot they sell vnder hand their owne soule, their owne Saniour, to gaine the Princes respect, or else some fauour of his chiefe Favourite. But behold a greater than Salomon in all his royaltie, higher than the highest, immortal, almighty, without beginning or end, loued vs, and <sup>e</sup> his loue must of necessitie be greater than others loue, for that himselfe is the greatest of all.

<sup>e</sup> Dierz Cont. 1.
in loc.

f Heb. 1. 7.
 e Psalm. 103. 20, 21.
 h Psal. 143. 8.
 i Aretius. Culman.
 Mollerus in loc.
 k 1 Ioh. 5. 19.
 l 1 Cor. 6. 7.
 m De ciuit. Dei, lib. 1. cap. 17.
 n Matth. 10. 2
 o 1 Iohn 4. 19.
 p Iansen. concord. cap. 10 & Kilius in loc.
 q Gen. 18. 27.
 r Psalm. 51. 5.
 s Psalm. 14. 2.

God loued, and herein he neither expected nor yet respected any correspondence of loue, for (saith our text) he loued the world. That he should loue the glorious Angels is not strange, because they be his <sup>f</sup> messengers and ministers, executing his & pleasure. That he should loue good men is not strange, because they loue him, O thou whom my soule loueth, Cant. 1. 6. That he should loue both his witleffe and his senselesse creatures is not strange, because <sup>h</sup> fire and haile, snow and vapours, winde and storme fulfill his word. <sup>i</sup> But herein appears the greatness of his loue, that he loued the world, mundum immundum, the worthlesse world <sup>k</sup> lying in wickednesse, casting out its malice (saith the <sup>l</sup> Prophet) as the fountaine casteth out her waters. A world (as <sup>m</sup> Augustine describeth) impuris voluptatibus illecebrosus, nefandis crudelitatibus furiosus, erroribus & terroribus inimicus. A bad world, a mad world, a deceiuing world, a blinde world that knew him not, Ioh. 1. 10. A bloody world, that <sup>n</sup> hated him and all his. Herein God setteth out his loue toward vs for that he reconciled vs to himselfe, euen while we were his enemies, Rom. 5. 10. he loued o vs first, euen before we would, yea before we could loue him. <sup>p</sup> He that is most high and most holy, debtor vnto no man, and wanting nothing, loued vs which are but <sup>q</sup> dust and ashes, <sup>r</sup> conceiued in sinne, and brought forth in iniquitie, <sup>s</sup> corrupt in our conuersation, and abominable, doing no good, and infected with euery kinde of euill, euen from the sole of the foot vnto the head, there was in vs nothing whole, but wounds and swelling, and sores full of putrifaction, Esay 1. 6.

But how did he loue? so loued, that is, so fatherly, so freely, so fully, that hee gaue. He did not sell, or let, or lend: but giue. <sup>t</sup> Not an Angell, or a Prophet, or any seruant: but a sonne. And that not anothers, but his: and his sonne not adoptiue, but naturall, his begotten sonne: and further, not one among many, but his onely begotten sonne. If a man had <sup>u</sup> 2. sonnes as <sup>v</sup> Babo, or seuentie sonnes as Gideon, Iudg. 8. 30, Or 80. sonnes as Scilurnus, or if a man had as many sonnes as a woman in Paris, called <sup>x</sup> Yolond Baillie, from whose body while she liued (as we read) issued 295. children; yet he would hardly part with any to his friend, much lesse to his foe. When the Patriarke Jacob had conceiued that Ioseph his sonne was deuoured of some wilde beast, <sup>y</sup> he rent his clothes, and put sack loth about his loines, and sorrowed for him a long season. And when his other sonnes and his daughters rose vpto comfort him, he would not be comforted, but said, I will surely go downe into the graue vnto my sonne mourning. How bitterly did Dauid lament the death of a rebellious sonne, <sup>z</sup> O my sonne Absalon, my sonne, my sonne Absalon: would God I had died for thee, O Absalon, my sonne, my sonne! How did an harlot pitie the fruit of her wombe before king Salomon, 1 Kings 3. O my Lord, giue her the liuing childe, and slay him not. Almighty God then manifested the riches of his mercy toward vs, in gining his onely sonne, not only to be borne, but also to die for vs, and that vpon the Crosse most ignominiously. So Christ in the words immediatly going before this our present text, as Moses lift vp the Serpent in the wilderness, so must the sonne of man be lift vp, probatio dilectionis exhibitio operis, his exceeding great gift is a demonstration of his exceeding great loue. Thus in brieft you see the fact, let vs examine now the fruit, for what end God gaue his onely begotten sonne.

That whosoever beleeueth in him } In which obserue <sup>a</sup> two things especially:
 } A deliuerance from damnation, he shall not perissh.
 } A possession of saluation, he shall haue life euerlasting.

The { Felicitie gained by this gift, { Facilitie how to get it, whosoever beleueth, Almighty God requires not at thy hands an exact obseruation of his law, but only that thou beleue in his sonne whom he gaue to die for thy sinnes, and to rise againe for thy iustification. He did abundantly satisfie the law for thee, making thy sinnes his sinnes; and on the contrary, making his righteoufnesse, thy righteoufnesse, <sup>b</sup> couering all thine iniquities, and <sup>c</sup> healing all thine infirmities.

<sup>a</sup> Aretius, Iansen.
<sup>b</sup> 1 Ioh. 2. 2.
<sup>c</sup> Psalm. 103. 3.

This one sentence doth afford many profitable lessons appertaining to doctrine and exhortation. 1. It sheweth our dignitie, though a man be durt and dung, fading like grasse, sickle like glasse, like a thing of nought, Psalm. 144. 4. yet God so much honoured him, as that he gaue his only begotten Sonne, to bee lift vp, as Moses lift vp the Serpent in the wildernesse; that is, to be crucified for him. <sup>d</sup> O Lord, what is man that thou hast such respect vnto him; or the sonne of man that thou so regardest him?

2. It doth administer comfort in temptation; if the deuill obiekt against thy sinne Gods seuerer iustice, thou maist answer that God is also <sup>e</sup> rich in mercy, <sup>f</sup> louing vs in <sup>g</sup> his best beloued, and that with an euerlasting loue, Ierem. 31. 3. If thy cunning aduersary make reply, that these sweet texts only concerne the iust and godly, thou hast here Christ on thy side, saying, God loued the world, reconciling sinners his enemies vnto himselfe by the death of his Sonne, Rom. 5. 10.

3. It proues evidently that Christ is very God of very God, against <sup>h</sup> Arrius, as being not only Gods Sonne, but his only begotten, for a sonne begotten, is a naturall and a true sonne.

4. It confutes the <sup>i</sup> Novatian heresie, denying repentance to such as after Baptisme fall into grieuous sinnes. If we must be so mercifull as our Father in heauen is mercifull, how shall we denie repentance to those whom God so loued as that he gaue his only begotten Sonne, that whosoever beleeueth in him, should not perish, but haue euerlasting life.

5. This confoundeth all <sup>k</sup> merit-mongers ascribing iustification and saluation vnto their owne good workes. He that beleues shall not perish, but haue euerlasting life. We are saued by grace <sup>l</sup> through faith, apprehending and applying the mercies of God the Father, and the merits of Christ his Sonne. He that beleueth in him shall not be condemned, but he that beleueth not is already condemned, as it followeth in our text. <sup>m</sup> Quare saluator dictus est mundi, nisi ut saluet mundum, non ut iudicet mundum, saluari non vis ab ipso, ex te ipso iudicaberis.

As for exhortation, <sup>n</sup> if God so loued vs, let vs also loue one another: if he <sup>o</sup> spared not his owne and only Sonne, but gaue him for vs: <sup>p</sup> it is meet that we should expend our substance for the good of his Church and children in need. It is an old prouerbe, loue me, loue my friend. Let vs then manifest our loue to Christ in louing his members, and in cherishing such as mourne in Sion. His first comming (as it followeth in our text) was not to condemne, but saue the world. He came to call <sup>q</sup> sinners vnto repentance, to seeke the <sup>r</sup> lost sheepe, to binde vp the <sup>s</sup> broken hearted, to <sup>t</sup> refresh the weary, to giue rest vnto the laden soule. His second comming shall be to iudge the world, and then there shall be <sup>u</sup> iudgement mercilesse to him that shewed no mercy, but vnto those which haue bene mercifull, as his Father in heauen is mercifull, he shall say, come ye blessed, inherit ye the kingdome prepared for you from the foundations of the world, for I was hungrie, and ye gaue me meat: I thirsted, and ye gaue me drinke, &c.

If any shall aske why this text is allotted for a Whitsun holiday, which is a memoriall of the Gospell, and of Christs sending downe the Holy Ghost; <sup>x</sup> answer may be that the spirite of truth teacheth vs <sup>y</sup> all things according to Christs owne doctrine preached in the world, the summe whereof is this one little line, so God loued the world, &c.

<sup>d</sup> Psalm. 84.
& 144. 3.

<sup>e</sup> Ephes. 2. 4.
<sup>f</sup> Iohn 16. 27.
<sup>g</sup> Ephes. 1. 5.

<sup>h</sup> Cyriillus.
Theophylact.

<sup>i</sup> Ambros de
pauit lib. 1.
cap. 10.

<sup>k</sup> Melanct.
Culman.
Marlorat.
<sup>l</sup> Ephes. 2. 8.

<sup>m</sup> August. trakt.
12. in Ioh. 2.

<sup>n</sup> <sup>o</sup> Ioh. 4. 11.
<sup>p</sup> Rom 8. 32.
<sup>q</sup> Euthym. in
loc.

<sup>r</sup> Matth. 9. 13.
<sup>s</sup> Luke 15. 6.
<sup>t</sup> Esay 61. 1.
<sup>u</sup> Matth 11. 22
<sup>v</sup> James 2. 13.

<sup>x</sup> Martin.
Moferus in loc
<sup>y</sup> I Iohn 2. 27.

The Epistle. ACTS 8. 14.

When the Apostles which were at Hierusalem, had heard say that Samaria had receiued the word of God, they sent vnto them Peter and Iohn, &c.

THE blessed Apostles inioyned by Christ at his last appearing to <sup>z</sup> goe into the whole world, and to teach <sup>a</sup> all nations, hearing now that Samaria had received receiued the Word of God, they sent vnto them Peter and Iohn, to build vp the Churches of Samaria, whose foundation had bene laid afore by Philip.

<sup>z</sup> Mark. 16. 15.
<sup>a</sup> Matth 28. 19

In this embassage two points are more chiefly regatdable, namely, the vigilant care of the whole Colledge in sending, vers. 14. Diligent faithfulness of Peter and Iohn, that were sent, executing their charge by Prayer, verse 15. Imposition of hands, verse 17.

When the Apostles of Hierusalem heard] They shew their solicitous care for the Churches in <sup>b</sup> hearkning after their good, and in <sup>c</sup> affording their helping hand of their own accord readily when any fit occasion was offered. For we read nor here that the brethren of Samaria wrote to the Colledge to send them an Apostle, yet they did send two, and those two which of all their companie were of the most <sup>d</sup> eminent note, Peter and Iohn. Euery Bishop (as more properly succeeding Apostles in office) is taught from hence to be <sup>e</sup> non tam celer ad cubedram, quam vigil ad curam, If any congregation in his Diocesse need confirmation, he must either send those Suffragans which are fit like to Peter and Iohn, or else come himselfe to pray for them, and to lay his hands on them.

Protestant Diuines vrge this example, to proue that S. Peter was not head of the Apostles, or absolute soueraigne, because the text is plaine, Ioh. 13. 16. the messenger is not greater than he that sent him. I know the foure great Cardinals of Rome, & Turrecremata, <sup>h</sup> Caetan, <sup>i</sup> Baronius, <sup>k</sup> Bellarmine, (which vpon the point, are the foure chiefe supporters of S. Peters chaire of estate) haue found out many shifts how to decline the heauy blow of this weightie reason, and <sup>b</sup> they who gather sticks vnder these Cardinals hedge, report and repeat their distinctions as vnanswerable. But examine them, and you shall instantly see, that they be like Hercules tragicall club, in shew massie, but in substance nothing else but shreds and straw (as the Poet speakes) an affrighting vanitie.

To their first example, God the Sonne is sent into the world by God the Father, and yet in the Trinitie none is greater or lesse than another: <sup>n</sup> Answer is made, that Christ was sent into the world as he was in the forme of a seruant, according to that of Paul, Galat. 4. 4. God sent forth his Sonne made of a woman; and Christ as man acknowledgeth himselfe to be lesse than his Father, Iohn 14. 18. my Father is greater than I: but Christ (if you consider him in the forme of <sup>n</sup> God) filled heauen and earth, and so he may be said to send himselfe, as <sup>p</sup> elsewhere, to giue himselfe for vs. See S. Augustin. ubi sup. in margin. Lombard. sent. lib. 1. dist. 15. Thomas part. 1. quast. 43. art. 8.

Touching that eternall sending of the Holy Spirit from the Father and the Sonne: <sup>q</sup> we say, that the mysteries of the sacred Trinitie being ineffable, the words are almost all borrowed that are vsed to shew the distinct operations of the same. <sup>r</sup> S. Augustine speaking of the generation of the Sonne, and proceeding of the Holy Ghost, ir genuously confessed his want of wit and words, Inter illam generationem, & hanc processionem distinguere nescio, non valeo, non sufficio: quia & illa & ista est ineffabilis. But here the Apostles in proper phrase of speaking, sent Peter and Iohn, ergo they were subiect to their authoritie.

Thirdly, whereas they say, that there is a twofold sending, one which is amoris, and another which is imperij: for an equall or an inferiour, may perswade his friend to doe his business for him, a bodie politicke may send their head to the Parliament, and a Common-weale their Prince to the warres: Our answer is ready, that an inferiour intreating his friend, cannot truly say that he sent his peere, much lesse his superiour, neither can a corporation that is vnder a soueraigne head (such as the Church of Rome would haue Peter to be) choose him to be their foot to goe for them, he may peraduenture goe by his owne consent or desire, but he cannot be sent; neither can a Common-weale thrust their absolute King into the danger of warre, <sup>s</sup> Sponte hoc ille faciendum iudicat, sed ab illis ad bellum gerendum extrudi non potest. Lastly, <sup>t</sup> we say that Peter here was sent

<sup>b</sup> Aretius.
<sup>c</sup> Caluin.

<sup>d</sup> Galat. 2. 6. 9.
<sup>e</sup> Bernard.

<sup>f</sup> B. Iewel answer to Harding art. suprem. diu. 20 Caluin. 1. 1. tit. lib. 4. cap. 6 §. 7. Dr. Sutlif. de Rō. Pont. lib. 2. cap. 1 Aretius.

<sup>g</sup> Boza Martorat. in loc. & Lib. 2. sum. cap. 14.

<sup>h</sup> In loc.
<sup>i</sup> Annal. tom. 1. ad ann. 35. fol. 253.

<sup>k</sup> De Rom. Pont. lib. 1. cap. 16 §. ad illud autem

<sup>l</sup> Rhemist & Lorin. in loc.
<sup>m</sup> Augustin. de Trinit. lib. 2. cap. 5.

<sup>n</sup> Philip. 2. 8.
<sup>o</sup> Ier. 23. 24.
<sup>p</sup> Ephes. 5. 2.
<sup>q</sup> Dr. Fulk. in loc.

<sup>r</sup> Contra Maximinum, lib. 3. cap. 14.

<sup>s</sup> Dr. Sutlif. ubi sup.
<sup>t</sup> Aretius, Caluin.

not as a Prince, but as a peere, for Iohn was ioyned with him in the mission and commission, as a copartner in his office: so the text, they sent Peter and Iohn. And Peter being sent into Samaria by his brethren <sup>a</sup> repined not as holding himselfe their gouernour, but went his way as their messenger; and y<sup>e</sup> elsewhere being questioned by the Apostles for going to Cornelius, and eating with vncircumcised heathens, he forthwith excused himselfe and came to his answer.

Fourthly, whereas they be driuen here to confesse, that the Colledge of Apostles comprising Peter, was greater than Peter their head alone: <sup>2</sup> We say (this being granted) that Peters Popedome was not the soueraigne power of Christ, neither was Peter head of the Apostles as Christs Vicar, for the whole Church comprising Christ the head thereof is not of greater authoritie than Christ himselfe. Again, it is a receiued opinion among moderne Iesuited Papists, <sup>a</sup> that the Church is nothing else but the Pope; so that the successor of Peter, is now farre greater than Peter himselfe, for he will be tied neither to Councell, nor Canon, nor custome, more than himselfe liketh.

Who when they were come downe, prayed for them, that they might receiue the Holy Ghost ] It is probable, that Peter and Iohn did preach as well as pray, <sup>b</sup> but S. Luke reporteth only, what new thing hapned to Samaria by their comming, namely, the receiuing of the Holy Ghost, through imposition of hands and prayer. Here S. Augustine, <sup>c</sup> Lombard, and <sup>d</sup> other obserue, that Christ is God in giuing the Holy Spirit, quantus Deus est qui dat Deum. His Apostles did not giue the Holy Ghost at Samaria, they prayed for them that they might receiue the Holy Ghost, and they laid their hands on them: and they receiued the Holy Ghost. Euery good gift is from aboue; Samaria then had extraordinarie gifts of the Spirit, by Peter and Iohn, not from Peter and Iohn; and Simon Magus insinuates so much in his offer of money to them, at the 19. verse, giue me this power, that on whomsoeuer I lay the hands, he may receiue the Holy Ghost. He did not say, that I might giue; but only that he may receiue. Haply some will object, that Paul gaue the Spirit to the Galathians, as it may seeme when he saith, <sup>e</sup> he that ministreth vnto you the Spirit, and worketh miracles among you, doth he it through the workes of the Law, or by the beariung of faith preached? Our answer may be gathered out of the text, <sup>f</sup> that he gaue not the Spirit by his proper power, but only that they receiued the Spirit through his preaching and ministry.

They were baptized only in the Name of Christ Iesus ] You must here referre the word <sup>h</sup> only to baptized, and not to the clause following, in the name of Christ Iesus. It is not the meaning of Saint Luke, that they were baptized in the name of God the Sonne only: for it is Christs owne Canon, Matth. 28. 29. that all the three persons of the blessed Trinitie must expressly be named in Baptisme, Go teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and the Sonne, and the Holy Ghost. See Bellarmin. de Baptismo. lib. 1. cap. 3. Suarez in Thom 3. part. tom. 2. disput 21. Caluin & Lorin. in Act. . 38. So that to be baptized in the name of Iesus Christ, in this and other like places of this booke, <sup>i</sup> is to be baptized in the faith of Iesus Christ, or in the power of Iesus Christ, or according to the prescript of Iesus Christ. Here then a question is moued, how the faithfull in Samaria were baptized, and yet the holy Ghost was come on none of them. He that is baptized, must acknowledge that Christ is the Lord, and no man (as <sup>k</sup> Paul telleth vs) can say that Iesus is the Lord but by the Holy Ghost. All that are <sup>l</sup> Baptized into Christ haue put on Christ, and are <sup>m</sup> buried with him in his death, that like as Christ was raised vp from the dead by the glory of the Father, so they likewise should walke in newnesse of life. <sup>n</sup> Answer is made, that the Samaritans had already receiued inuisible graces of the sanctifying Spirit, which are common vnto all such as truly beleene: but as yet Samaria had not any singular and extraordinarie miraculous gifts, as in Christs name to cast out deuils, and to speake with new tongues, and to heale the sicke, &c. the which in the Primitiue time was conferred vpon certaine persons, according to the will of the Spirit, for the confirmation of the Gospell. It is apparant, that the Apostles had the sanctifying and illuminating Spirit for their

<sup>a</sup> Nihil factum, ut dicitur lib. 1. Canon in Act. B leuel ubi sup. Act. 11 3.

<sup>2</sup> Dr. Fulke in loc.

<sup>a</sup> See B. Ilson against the Iesuits, part 3. fol. 367.

<sup>b</sup> Caluin. in loc.

<sup>c</sup> De Trinit. lib. 15. cap. 6

<sup>d</sup> Lib. 1 sent. dist 34. cap hic queritur.

<sup>e</sup> Lorin.

<sup>f</sup> Galat. 3. 5.

<sup>g</sup> Lombard. ubi sup. cap. sed huic videtur. Idem August. Ambr. Aquin. in Gal. 3.

<sup>h</sup> Lyran & Lorin. in loc.

<sup>i</sup> Bellarmin. de b. p. s. uo. lib. 1. cap. 2.

<sup>k</sup> 1. Cor. 12 3.

<sup>l</sup> Gal. 3. 27.

<sup>m</sup> Rom. 6. 4.

<sup>n</sup> Caluin. instit. lib. 4. cap. 19. §. 8. Idem Arctine. Iustus Ionas. Marlorat. Lorin. in loc.

° Mark. 16. 17.

P Gloss inter lin.
& ordinar.
Beda.
Hugo.
Caistax. in loc.
Hooker Eccles.
polit li 5 § 66.
and Dr Fulke disallowing it not in Act 8. and his testi-monie is cited sum. conference, pag. 32.

guide from the very beginning of their preaching, Matth. 10. 20. It is not ye that speake, but the spirit of your Father which speaketh in you. Yet we reade, Iohn 7. 8. that the Holy Ghost was not yet given, because Iesus was not yet glorified For they received not those miraculous gifts of healing, and speaking with strange tongues, according to the comfortable promises of Christ at his ° farwell, vntill the Holy Ghost on the feast of Pentecost, came downe to them, appearing in clouen and fiery tongues, Acts 2.

P Other thinke that the Churches of Samaria by these prayers and imposition of hands, received a greater measure of sanctification, and so they cite this text, to proue confirmation after baptisme. As also that Bishops only must administer this confirmation; and hereupon we call it in our Country, Bishopping. Philip, as a Deacon, did his part in baptizing and in preaching the word, but imposition of hands appertaining not to his order and office. See Chrysof. in loc. Cyprian. Epist. 73. ad Iubaian. August. de Trinit. lib. 15. cap. 26. Ambros. & Haymo. in Hebr. 6. 2. Thom. 3 part. quest. 72. art. 11. Hooker ubi sup. in marg. Dr. Hakewill tract. of confirmation, cap. 3

The Gospell. IOHN 10. I.

Verily, verily, I say vnto you, he that entretb not in by the doore into the sheep-fold, but climbeth vp some other way, the same is a theefe and a murthrer, &c.

THE text following in this Chapter (I am the good shepherd) appointed for the Gospell, 2. Sund. after Easter, is both an explication, and an application of this our present parable. Thither I send the courteous Reader, and so my loue be with him in the Lord; to whom only wise, be glory through Iesus Christ euermore. Amen.

¶ Aretius.
Bullinger.
Piscator in Ioan. 10.
Idem Pentan.
con. ser. 3.
Pentecost.
See S. August.
tract. 45. 46. 47.
in Ioan.

SAINT

SAINT IOHN BAPTISTS DAY.

The Epistle. E S A Y 40. 1.

Be of good cheere, my people; O yee Prophets, comfort my people, saith your God, &c.

THE Sermons of Isaiah are for the greater part so Gos-pell-like, that (as <sup>a</sup> Hierome notes) he seemes to be rather an Euangelist, or Apostle, than a Prophet: for he speakes of Christs <sup>b</sup> conception, as if he had bene taught by the glorious Angell, who brought the first annunciation of it vnto the blessed Virgin his mother:
of Christs <sup>c</sup> birth, as if with old Simeon he had lulled him in his armes: of Christs death <sup>d</sup> and passion, as if with the beloued Disciple Iohn he had stood by the Crosse when he was crucified: of Christs <sup>e</sup> resurre-rection, as if with all the faithfull Apostles he had bene Present vpon mount O-liuet, where the Lord vsed a cloud, as his heauenly Chariot, to conuey him out of the world to his Father.

The text now read is a prophesie concerning the comming of Christ in the <sup>f</sup> flesh, and the comming of Christ in the flesh is the <sup>g</sup> consolation of Israel, and comfort of Hierusalem; and this comfort, the <sup>h</sup> God of all comfort, will haue proclaimed vnto Hierusalem heart, by the mouth of all his Preachers, as namely, his Prophets, his Apostles, his Prodromus or Harbinger, Iohn the Baptist a <sup>i</sup> midling betwene the Prophets and Apostles.

1. By the Prophets, Comfort my people, O ye Prophets, comfort my people, &c.
verse 1, 2,

2. By Iohn the Baptist, A voyce cried in the wildernesse, prepare the way of the Lord, &c. vers. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8.

3. By the Apostles, Goe vp into the high hill (O Sion) thou that bringest good tidings, &c. vers. 9, 10, 11.

Comfort my people ] In this commission obserue first Gods bountie, then his Prophets dutie. You may behold the riches of Gods mercy toward his afflicted people, 1. In raising vp Prophets vnto them in their captiuitie, when as otherwise they might haue complained with the Psalmist, <sup>k</sup> *O God, wherefore art thou absent from vs so long, and why is thy wrath so kindled against the sheepe of thy pasture?
we see not our tokens, there is not one Prophet more, no not one is there among vs that understandeth any more.*

2. <sup>l</sup> For that he sent not one or two, but many: the number is plurall, comfort ye, speake ye, <sup>m</sup> the Lord giuing his word, great was the number of the Preachers.

3. For that he called not all his Prophets at once, but at sundry times, according <sup>a</sup> *Prox. com in Esa. & epist. Pau-

lin. tom 3 fol. 9.
Non. prophetiam
videtur texere,
sed Euangelium.
b Cap 7. 14.
c Cap 9. 6.
d Cap. 55. vers. 3.
4. 5 6.
e Cap. 53. vers. 8.*

<sup>f</sup> *Musculus.
Hyperius.
Caluin. in loc.
g Luke 2. 25.
h 2. Cor 1 3.
i Tertullian.
cont Marcian.
lib. 4. cap. 33.
Cyril. Cat. 3 Au-guß de lo. Baptist. scr. 10*

<sup>k</sup> Psal 74. 1.

<sup>l</sup> *Caluin.
m Psal. 68. 11.*

<sup>a</sup> Musculus.
Caluin.
<sup>o</sup> Geneva Gloss.

<sup>p</sup> 1. Pet. 5. 4.
<sup>q</sup> Rom. 4. 18.

<sup>r</sup> Hyperius.
Musculus.

<sup>f</sup> Ecclesiast 3. 1.
<sup>g</sup> Esay. 58. 1.

<sup>e</sup> Esay 5.

<sup>x</sup> Amos 6. 1.
<sup>y</sup> Philip. 3. 19.

<sup>z</sup> Ezechi. 33. 11.

<sup>a</sup> Luke 3. 9.

<sup>b</sup> Ionas 3.

<sup>c</sup> Psal 42. 9.
<sup>d</sup> Esay 61.

<sup>e</sup> Caluin.

<sup>f</sup> Musculus.

ding to the Churches exigence. Wherefore<sup>n</sup> some reade not as our translation here, saith your God, in the present; but in the future, will your God say: ° Signifying hereby, that God will in all ages to come so provide for his Church, as that it shall neuer be destitute of Prophets; and so we finde in holy Bible, that he stirred vp Daniel, Haggai, Malachi, Zachariah, Ezra, Nehemiah, and other (vntill the comming of Christ himselfe the<sup>r</sup> chiefe Shepherd) who did alwayes exhort his people to be of good comfort; and to <sup>q</sup> hope against hope; so Zacharias in his hymne, Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, for he hath visited and redeemed his people, raising vp the horne of saluation vnto vs, as he spake by the mouth of all his Prophets which haue beene since the world began. So S. Peter in his Sermon ad populum, Acts 3. 24. All the Prophets from Samuel, and thenceforth, as many as haue spoken, haue likewise foretold of these dayes; and to Cornelius, Act. 10. 43. To him all the Prophets giue witnesse, that through his name all that beleene in him shall receiue remission of sinnes.

4. The<sup>r</sup> doubling and tripling of this charge to the Prophets (comfort ye, comfort yee, speake yee comfortably) expressieth as it were the very bowels of compassion in God, as if he could not endure that his people should suffer any more miserie, giuing them also further assurance, that he will euer be their God, euen in their greatest aduersitie, when as they seeme to be swallowed vp of death and desperation, and that they shall be still his Hierusalem and his people, your God will say, comfort my people.

Concerning the Prophets office, God in this charge requireth on their part, that they speake comfortably to his Hierusalems heart: Yet here you must obserue with<sup>f</sup> Ecclesiastes, that there is a time for all things; a time for admonition, a time for reprehension, a time for consolation; a time<sup>e</sup> to shew Gods people their transgression, and to the house of Iacob their sinnes; as well as a time to tell Hierusalem in distresse, that her trauell is ended, and her iniquitie pardoned; a time, saith our Prophet<sup>u</sup> elsewhere, to denounce woe to such as iustifie the wicked for a reward; a time to denounce woe to such as speake good of euill and euill of good; a time to denounce woe to such as follow drunkennesse, and are strong to poure in strong drinke. And assuredly (beloued) the Prophets haue iust occasion in this age to cry out against such<sup>x</sup> as are at ease in Sion, making (as<sup>y</sup> Paul speakes) their belly their God, and their gullet their glory. For swinish, idle, base drunkennesse, heretofore scorned as the beggars fault, is now reputed (among mee then a good many) not only the Seruingmans complement, but also the Gentlemans grace. God as hauing<sup>z</sup> no pleasure in the death of a sinner, but a longing desire to haue the coles of his wrath quenched with the teares of our repentance, commandeth his Prophets in the dayes of securitie, to sound out the threats of his seneritie, denouncing a woe before woe, that is, a woe of instruction, before there come the woe of destruction. For albeit the<sup>a</sup> axe be laid vnto the root of the tree, yet shall it not be hewen downe, so long as there is any hope of the fruits of amendment. Though there be<sup>b</sup> yet but fortie dayes, and Ninemie shall be destroyed, yet if Nineme proclaim a fast, and put on sackcloth from the greatest vnto the least, the Lord will repent of the euill he said he would doe vnto them, and turne away from his fierce wrath. As soone then as Hierusalem hath receiued at the Lords hand sufficient correction for all her sinnes, it is time to tell her that her trauell is at an end, and that her offence is pardoned. After once the law hath humbled and terrified distressed consciences; after all her<sup>c</sup> waues and stormes haue rent asunder trebled spirits, it is time to bring<sup>d</sup> glad tidings of saluation vnto the poore, to bind vp the broken hearted, to preach libertie to the captiue, to comfort all that mourne in Sion, to giue beauty for ashes, and the garment of gladnesse for the spirit of heauinesse; among many, this one doubtlesse is the maine part in the Prophets office, to comfort Hierusalem at the heart.

This ought to be performed plainely, painfully, powerfully: <sup>e</sup> Plainly, cry to her, and lift vp thy voyce, for if the Prophet whisper only, this consolation haply might seeme doubtfull or weake, but all doubting is taken away, seeing it is to be deliuered freely with a loud voyce: <sup>f</sup> Painefully, comforting Hierusalem againe and againe, comfort ye, comfort ye, &c. & Powerfully, for the Prophet ought to speake not only to Hierusalems care, but also fully to her heart, that he may like a good Orator relinquere aculeos in auditorum animis:<sup>h</sup> the words of the wise are like goads, and like nailes fastned by the masters of the assemblies, and the best way to fasten a naile is to strike home. Gods word is an <sup>i</sup> hammer, and our exhortations are like nailes, and therefore we must often and earnestly strike home, that we may pricke the hearts of the hearers, as S. Peter did, Acts 2 37.

Or as<sup>k</sup> other expound this clause, to speake to the heart of Hierusalem, is in Scripture phraze nothing else but to speake that which is pleasing and acceptable. So Sychem the sonne of Hamor is said to speake to the heart of Dinab, Gen. 34. 3. Now the glad message to be preached vnto Hierusalem, is, that her tranell is at an end, and her offence pardoned: for as Physitians in healing bodily diseases, ordinarily remoue first the cause from whence they spring; euen to the Lord dealeth with vs in curing our spirituall infirmities. The rods wherewith he beateth vs, proceed from our sinnes, he must of necessitie therefore pardon them, ere his strokes can cease, so that remission of our sinnes is the ground of our comfort, that man and only that man is blessed, <sup>l</sup> whose vnrighteousnes is forguien, and whose sinne is couered, he that trauels with mischiefe, conceiues sorrow, Psalm. 7. 15. <sup>m</sup> There is no peace to the wicked, saith our God; a <sup>n</sup> heathen Phylosopher could say, that the best way to shun sadnesse is to liue well. Idolatrie, stinking drunkennesse, and other sinnes are called by the Prophet <sup>o</sup> Hosea shame, because they bring with them alway confusion and shame: Hierusalems warfare was neuer at an end, till her sinnes on her part were repented, and on Gods part pardoned,

But how was her offence forguien? because she had receiued at the Lords hand double for all her sinnes: <sup>p</sup> that is, double grace for her double griefe. As Hierusalem had a double punishment; one in her soule, another in her bodie: so now she shall haue by Christ a double blessing, to wit, in the world collation of grace, and in the world to come possession of glorie: or a double fauour, 1. in that her tranell is ended: 2. for that her sinne is pardoned; or double, <sup>q</sup> that is, many benefits, a certaine number for an vncertaine, the sufferings of Christ are a sufficient propitiation for all her sinnes, and for the sinnes of the wole world, 1. Iohn 2. 2. yea where sinne abounded there grace superabounded, Rom. 5. 20.

<sup>r</sup> Other haue construed it as our Church here translateth it, she hath receiued double, that is, sufficient correction of all her sinnes, insinuating that the Lord will afflict his people no more so long, nor so sharply, because his louing kindnesse hath ouercome his heauy displeasure, <sup>s</sup> So the word double ought to be taken for enough or full, as it is vsed, Chap. 61. 7. Here then a question is moued, if Hierusalem iniquitie were forguien, how did she receiue sufficient correction at the Lords hand for all her sinnes? If she were pardoned freely, what place could there be for satisfaction or satisf-passion? <sup>t</sup> Answer is made, that this punishment was inflicted on Gods people, not as a satisfaction for their offence, but as an exercise rather for their humiliation, and when Almighty God had exercised them enough in the schoole of affliction, he commanded his Prophets againe and againe to comfort them at the very heart. And whereas it is objected further, that their sinne deserued eternal punishment, ergo, this temporarie could not be sufficient correction: It is answered in a word, that howsoeuer it was not in it selfe sufficient, yet vnto God being pleased it was enough; albeit it deserued to be beaten with a great many moe stripes, yet those few blowes sufficed the Lord, as <sup>u</sup> smiting in measure, moderating his strokes, as a <sup>x</sup> father that pitieth his children, in his very <sup>y</sup> wrath remembering mercy: so the Prophet <sup>z</sup> Jeremie desires the Lord to correct him in iudgement, <sup>a</sup> that is, in measure, that so the blowes might be proportionable to his infirmitie, nor answerable to his iniquitie: God, saith <sup>b</sup> Paul, is faithfull, and will not suffer vs to be temped aboue that we are able to beare, <sup>c</sup> for he knoweth whereof we are made, he remembereth that we are but dust, and therefore chasticing vs for our good, he doth accept a little punishment for a sufficient correction.

<sup>e</sup> Hieronius.
Dan. Arcularius.
<sup>h</sup> Eccle. 12. 71.
<sup>i</sup> 1. Cor. 23. 29.

<sup>k</sup> Hieron. Establis, Caluin.

<sup>l</sup> Psalm 32. 1.

<sup>m</sup> Esay 57. 21.
<sup>n</sup> Socrates.

<sup>o</sup> Cap. 4. ver. 18
See Ribera in loc.

<sup>p</sup> Musculus.

<sup>q</sup> Establis, Arcularius,

<sup>r</sup> Hieron. Hyporius. Collation.

<sup>s</sup> Caluin.

<sup>t</sup> Musculus in loc. Item caluin Instit lib. 3. cap. 4. §. 33.

<sup>u</sup> Esay 27. 8.

<sup>v</sup> 1. Sal 103. 13.

<sup>w</sup> Abacuc 3. 2.

<sup>x</sup> Cap. 10. ver. 24.

<sup>y</sup> Caluin in Esai 27. 8.

<sup>z</sup> 1. Cor. 10. 13.

<sup>a</sup> Psalm. 103. 14.

<sup>d</sup> Matth. 3. 3.
 Maik. 1. 3.
 Luke 3. 4.
 Ioh. 1. 23.
<sup>e</sup> Melanct. in Ioan. 1. See
 Dr. Abbots sermon at the fu-nerall of Thomas Earle of Dorset, pag. 2.
<sup>f</sup> Psal. 146. 2.

<sup>g</sup> 1. Epistle. 1. 24.

<sup>h</sup> Caluin.

<sup>i</sup> Arcularius in
 loc.

<sup>k</sup> Matth. 6. 29.

<sup>l</sup> Plin. nat. hist.
 lib. 7. cap. 7.

<sup>m</sup> Idem.

<sup>n</sup> Ibid. Matth.
 Paris in R. 6.

<sup>o</sup> Sir Ric. Barck-ley, discourse of felicitie, lib. 5.
 pag. 450.

<sup>p</sup> Philip. Commi.
 hist. li. 8. cap. 18.

<sup>q</sup> Fox Mart. fol.
 1732.

<sup>r</sup> Walsingham in
 Hen. 5. pa. 444.
 Idem Paradisus
 in symbol pag.
 126.

<sup>s</sup> in Psalm. 5.
 penultim. vers. 4.

<sup>t</sup> Caluin.

<sup>u</sup> 1. Pet. 1. 23.

<sup>v</sup> Arcularius.

<sup>w</sup> Heb. 10. 37.

<sup>x</sup> 1. Tim. 6. 16.

A voyce cryed in the wildernesse ] All the <sup>d</sup> foure Euangelists expound this of Iohn the Baptist, how fitly, see Gospell on the fourth Sunday in Aduent. The summary pith of the proclamation, verse 6, 7, 8. is in brieue <sup>e</sup> this our selues are mortall, it is good therefore that we should haue something else to rest our soules vpon: we consist of flesh, and that is like vnto the grasse, and if we should imagine other men to be better than our selues, and so put our trust in <sup>f</sup> Princes, yet are they but as we are: for all flesh is grasse, and all the grace thereof is as the flower of the field. Wherefore let vs embrace the mercy which is offered by the Sonne of God, the Saviour of the world, the Redeemer of mankind, the great Shepheard of our soules, he shall gather the lambes together with his arme, and carry them in his bosome, &c.

All flesh is grasse, and the grace, that is, the best of all flesh (as <sup>ass</sup> Peter expounds it) all the glory of man, as wisdom, valour, industry, iudgement, all is like grasse: <sup>h</sup> for the drift of the text sheweth evidently, that Esay speaks not of the outward man only, but also comprehends the gifts of the minde, whereby men are beautified aboue other, intelligit totum hominem, & quicquid in rebus humanis illustre: all men are corruptible like grasse, and the most gracefull among all men are like the flower of the field, the which haply whilest it flourisheth is more glorious <sup>k</sup> than Salomon in all his royaltie, but the flower of the field being deuoured at a trice by the beast of the field, becommeth in a few houres a stinking excrement. I could here compasse you about with a very great cloud of witnesses: the witty Poet <sup>l</sup> Anacreon was in a moment choaked with the kernell of a rayson, and <sup>m</sup> Fabius a graue Senator in drinking milke was strangled with a haire: the famous Emperour <sup>n</sup> Fredericke Barbarossa going for Palestina to recouer the holy land out of the hands of the Saracens (a seruice which he thought acceptable <sup>o</sup> Christ, and for effecting whereof he left his friends and country) was by the way as he passed suddenly drowned in the riuer Sapheth. When <sup>o</sup> Harrald King of Denmarke made warre vpon Harquinus, and was ready to ioyne battell, a dart was seene in the ayre flying this way and that way, as though it fought vpon whom to rest, and when all men stood wondering what would become of this strange matter, euery man fearing himselfe; at the last the dart fell vpon Harquinus head and slew him. The French King <sup>p</sup> Charles the 8. as he was beholding tennis players, among other talke he said, that he hoped to doe nothing hereafter that should offend God; which words were no sooner out of his mouth but he fell downe speechlesse, and languishing a few houres, he died in the same place. A popish priest called <sup>q</sup> Nightingall in the dayes of Queene Marie, Parson of Crondall in Kent, as he was boasting in the pulpit of the Popes absolution, and by reason of it of his owne purenesse, most fearfully fell downe and died instantly. The Pope (though he doth exalt himselfe aboue all that is called God) perisheth notwithstanding as a moth, and hereupon at his inauguration, the <sup>r</sup> master of the Ceremonies vsed to burne an handfull of flax before him, as in solemne proces- sion he passed by, saying with a loud voyce ecce pater sancte, sic transit gloria mundi. I conclude this argument in <sup>s</sup> Gregories glosse, man is like to grasse, quia per natiuitatem viuet in carne, per inuentutem candescit flore, per mortem aret in puluere, by his birth he is greene in his flesh, by his youth he is white in his blos- some, by his death he is withered in the dust.

Whether the grasse wither, or that the flower, fade away. yet the word of God endureth for euer. ] <sup>t</sup> This repetition is added once more to bring all the glory of prond flesh vnto nothing: it also containeth an excellent comfort, namely, that the Lord hauing humbled his seruants in aduersitie, forthwith affords them mat- ter of ioy, the grasse withers but the word of the Lord (which is the ground of our consolation) endures for euer; it is (as <sup>u</sup> Saint Peter termeth it) an incorruptible seed, a lining, yea euerliving word. And that in <sup>x</sup> two respects especially: 1. in respect of the giuer, as being the word of the <sup>y</sup> lining God, which <sup>z</sup> onely hath immortalitie: 2. in respect of the receiuers, in that it bringeth all true beleeuers vnto life which endures for euer, according to that of Peter vnto

Christ,

Christ <sup>a</sup> thou hast the words of eternal life. <sup>b</sup> Here then in a few words is comprehended the whole summe of the Gospell; it consists in acknowledging our owne miserie, weakenesse and vanitie, that being humbled enough in the consideration of our faults and frailtie, we might haue recourse to Christ our only Saviour, by whose grace we shall be wholly restored. Againe, from hence we may learne to seeke true consolation and contentment no where but in eternitie, the which is only to be found in God: all flesh is grasse, and the grace thereof as the flower of the field, the grasse withereth, and the flower fadeth away, there can be no stabilitie in earth and earthly things, and therefore let vs not set our affections on things below, but alway <sup>c</sup> seeke those things which are aboue, let our conuersation be in heauen, and from thence let vs looke for saluation, Philip. 3. 20.

Goe vp vnto the high hill, O Sion] This commission (as <sup>d</sup> some thinke) concernes especially the Apostles: in which obserue, 1. How they must preach. 2. What they must preach. How they must get vp into the high hill, <sup>e</sup> euen so high, that their exalted voice may well be heard, and accordingly we finde, that <sup>f</sup> their sound went into all the earth, and their words vnto the ends of the world. <sup>g</sup> Here you may see that the dumbe Idols in the Papacie boast of the name of the Church absurdly, for the Church (as being the <sup>h</sup> pillar of truth and mother of all the faithfull) is not taught of God that she should keepe her knowledge to her selfe, but that she should proclaime that vnto other which shee hath learned, and that earnestly with a free spirit, O thou preacher Hierusalem lift vp thy voyce without feare. Now the tenour of the doctrine to be published by the Apostles and their successors in the Church for euer is briefly this, that Christ Iesus is our God and Saviour, behold your God, both able and willing to redeeme his people, able, for that he shall come with power, & a strong arme, who can measure out the waters in his fist, & mete heauen with his span, and comprehend the dust of the earth in a measure, and weigh the mountains in scales, and the hills in a ballance: willing for that he shall feed his flocke like an hearde man, he shall gather the lambes together with his arme: and carry them in his bosome, and shall intreat kindly those that beare yong.

<sup>a</sup> Iohn 6 68.
<sup>b</sup> Calvin,

<sup>c</sup> Coloff 3. 2.

<sup>d</sup> The translators of our Church Bible in the contents of this chapter.
<sup>e</sup> Arcularius in loc.

<sup>f</sup> Misculus.
<sup>g</sup> Rom. 10. 18.
<sup>h</sup> Calvin.
<sup>i</sup> 1. Tim 3. 15.
<sup>j</sup> Esa. 66. 17, 12, 13.

The Gospell. L V K B I. 57.

Elizabeths time came that she should be deliuered, and she brought forth a sonne, &c.

Saint <sup>k</sup> Ambrose preaching on this day was a great deale troubled, where he should either begin or end the praises of Iohn the Baptist: for whatsoeuer was eminent almost in all other, is found in this one Saint, as being an <sup>m</sup> Angell, an <sup>n</sup> Prophet, an <sup>o</sup> Apostle, an <sup>p</sup> Euangelist, a Confessor constantly teaching the truth, and patiently suffering for the same, his ingresse into the world, progresse in the world, egressse out of the world, were not (as our text speakes) without a maruellous noise throughout all the countries of Iurie, and the coast about Iordan; he was in his death a Martyr, in his life a miracle, yet his natiuitie surmounted both; and therefore whereas the Church ordinarily celebrates the lues and deaths of other Saints, it doth especially solemnize the birth of Iohn the Baptist; allotting for this feast a Gospell accordingly, that sets downe the chiefe parts and purtenance thereof, as namely,

1. Elizabeths safe deliuerance, when her time was come, vers. 57.
2. The congregation of neighbours and cousins for this great mercy shewed vpon her, vers. 58.
3. The circumcision of Iohn, vers. 59.
4. The contention about his name, vers 60, 61, 62, 63.
5. The maruelling of such as were present vpon the sight of these things, and of such as were absent vpon the report noised abroad, vers. 63, 65, 66.

The Benedictus of Zacharie, Blessed be the Lord God of Israel. &c.

Elizabeths

<sup>k</sup> Serm 63.
<sup>l</sup> See Ferris ser.
<sup>m</sup> de Io Baptist.
<sup>n</sup> Malac 3. 1.
<sup>o</sup> Angelus officio.
<sup>p</sup> Luk. 1. 76.
<sup>q</sup> Iohn. 1. 6.
<sup>r</sup> Mar. 1. 7.
<sup>s</sup> Iohn 1. 29.
<sup>t</sup> Matt. 3. 5.

Elizabeths time was come] The word of the Lord is true, Psalme. 33. 4. The Lord haue spoken it, and I will performe it, Ezech 37. 14. Whereas therefore God promised old Zacharie by the mouth of his Angell at the 13. verse, that Elizabeth his wife should beare him a sonne; he now deales with his seruant according to his word, for albeit Zacharie was a forspent man, and Elizabeth in respect both of yeeres and sicknesse a barren woman; yet when her time came that she should be deliuered, she brought forth a sonne. The most almightie Truth, and most true Almightyesse effected whatsoeuer he determined. <sup>f</sup> Plinie, <sup>g</sup> Gelius, and <sup>h</sup> other secretaries of nature, report that some children are borne in the 7. moneth after their conception, other in the 8. other in the 10. but ordinarily children are borne in the 9. moneth: and <sup>i</sup> so Iohn was brought into the world, when his mother Elizabeths time came that she should be deliuered, according to the most vsuall course of nature.

¶ Hereupon we may build a generall rule, namely that nothing is able to dis-appoint Gods holy determinations and purposes, and therefore whereas he hath <sup>k</sup> appointed that all men shall once die, and after death come to iudgement, whereas he saith expressly that they who <sup>l</sup> sleepe in the dust of the graue, shall awake some to perpetuall contempt, and other to an <sup>m</sup> incorruptible crowne of glory; ( for the <sup>n</sup> sea and the sepulchre shall deliuer vp the dead which are in them at the last day: ) let vs looke for the <sup>o</sup> blessed hope and glorious appearing of Christ our Saviour, who shall <sup>p</sup> change our vile body that it may be like his glorious body; though haply the resurrection of the dead seeme most impossible to nature, yet let vs which are <sup>q</sup> borne not of bloud, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God, comfort our selues in these things, as being assured that our <sup>r</sup> Redeemer lieth, and that he which is the <sup>s</sup> resurrection and the life, shall himselfe <sup>t</sup> descend from heauen with a shout, and with the voyce of the Arch-angell, and with the trumpet of God, and the dead in Christ shall arise first, and then the lining that remaine shall also be caught vp with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the ayre, and so we shall be with him cuermore.

Shee brought forth a sonne] It is probable that Zacharie being at his deuotion in the temple, prayed not for any priuate blessing, but for the publike good of the whole congregation; and namely, that God would ( according to his gracious promises ) giue his Sonne, and so forgiue the sinne of his people: the coherence then of Gabriels speech vnto him at the 13. verse ( fear not Zacharie, for thy prayer is heard, and thy wife Elizabeth shall beare thee a sonne ) may be <sup>u</sup> this, thy prayer is heard for the Messias of the world, in that thy wife shall beare a sonne, who shall be great in the sight of the Lord, and shall goe before him in the spirit and power of Elias, as a Prophet to prepare his wayes, and to make readie a people for him. He which is the <sup>v</sup> light of the world, and <sup>w</sup> delight of his people, shall ere it be long be borne of a Virgin, and Elizabeth thy wife shall haue a sonne, who shall as his beadle goe before his face, the sonne of a barren shall preach vnto the world the sonne of the Virgin, <sup>x</sup> Et pulchre de seno & sterili nascitur, qui nasciturum de virgine predicare veniebat, vt mirabiliter natus mirabilis nasciturum demonstraret.

Or as other <sup>y</sup> obserue, thy prayer is heard for the sinnes of the people, because thy wife Elizabeth shall beare thee a sonne, who shall openly proclaime the Messias, and say, Behold the Lambe of God which taketh away the sinne of the world, <sup>z</sup> Dum ille sollicitus pro salute populi supplicat, promissus est per quem populus saluaretur.

Or as Saint <sup>aa</sup> Ambrose, God according to his <sup>ab</sup> rich grace <sup>ac</sup> giuing to all men liberally, did not only heare the prayer of Zachary for the common good, but also for his owne comfort in particular: and therefore <sup>ad</sup> some construe the claute (thy prayer is heard) of his priuate suit for a sonne, commenced either at this instant in Gods house (for being high Priest as <sup>ae</sup> many coniecture, his office was to <sup>af</sup> make an atonement for himselfe, and his household, and for all the congregation of Israel) or else often <sup>ag</sup> heretofore in his owne house praying with Elizabeth his wife.

<sup>a</sup> Luk. 1. 7.

<sup>b</sup> Nat. hist. lib. 7. cap. 5.

<sup>c</sup> Atlic. noc. lib. 3. cap. 16.

<sup>d</sup> Arist de nat. animal. lib. 7. cap 3. 4.

<sup>e</sup> Aetius.

<sup>f</sup> Maldonat.

<sup>g</sup> Heming post.

<sup>h</sup> in scil. 10. Baptist.

<sup>i</sup> Heb. 9 27.

<sup>j</sup> Dan. 12. 2.

<sup>k</sup> 1. Pet 5. 4.

<sup>l</sup> Apocal. 20. 13.

<sup>m</sup> Tit. 2. 13.

<sup>n</sup> Philip 3 21.

<sup>o</sup> Iohn 1. 13.

<sup>p</sup> Job 19. 25.

<sup>q</sup> Iohn 1. 1. 25.

<sup>r</sup> 1. Thess. 4. 16.

<sup>s</sup> Augustin.

<sup>t</sup> 9. scil. Euang. lib. 2 cap 1.

<sup>u</sup> Iohn 1. 9.

<sup>v</sup> Cant. 1. 3.

<sup>w</sup> Haggai 2. 8.

<sup>x</sup> Ardeus bon. in loc.

<sup>y</sup> Theophylact.

<sup>z</sup> Euthym.

<sup>aa</sup> lausen.

<sup>ab</sup> Euseb Emisen.

<sup>ac</sup> h. m. 2. de. S. 10.

<sup>ad</sup> B. p.

<sup>ae</sup> Com. in Luc. 1. verse 13.

<sup>af</sup> Ephes. 1. 7.

<sup>ag</sup> Iames 1. 5.

<sup>ah</sup> Arboreus.

<sup>ai</sup> Caluin.

<sup>aj</sup> Apud Maldonat.

<sup>ak</sup> nat. in loc.

<sup>al</sup> Leuit. 16. 17.

<sup>am</sup> Heming.

<sup>an</sup> Caluin.

<sup>ao</sup> Maldonat.

<sup>c</sup> Pſal. 127.

<sup>o</sup> Gen. 4. 1.

<sup>x</sup> Gen. 3. 29.

<sup>y</sup> Gen. 21. 6.

<sup>z</sup> Eren. Syluius
epiſt. progeniti ſuo.

<sup>a</sup> Paludenſis.

<sup>b</sup> Matth. 11. 11.

<sup>c</sup> Prou. 10. 1.

<sup>d</sup> Euseb. Emiſen
hom. 2. de 10.

Bip. Idem
Beaux. & alij.

<sup>e</sup> Eccl. 54. 1.
Galat. 4. 27.

<sup>f</sup> Luke 1. 6.

<sup>g</sup> Coloff. 12. 12.

<sup>h</sup> Caluin
Bacuxamis.

<sup>i</sup> Heming poſt. in Euangel.
Circum Chriſti.
<sup>k</sup> Thophylab. lauſen.

Beauxam. in loc.

<sup>l</sup> Pſal. 69. 29.

See Sixt. Senen.
Bibliothec. inſt. lib. 2. fol. 126.

<sup>m</sup> Anglicar. confeſſ. art. 27.

<sup>n</sup> Maldonat.

ſhewed great mercie vpon her, and they reioyced with her; it was mercie that ſhe brought forth a ſonne; great mercie, that ſhe bare ſuch a ſonne. The Thracians vſed to laugh at the death, and to weepe at the birth of men; but the Scripture teacheth vs to reioyce when a ſonne is borne: <sup>c</sup> children and the fruit of the wombe are a gift that cometh of the Lord, and therefore when Enah conceived and bare Cain, ſhe ſaid, <sup>u</sup> I haue gotten a man from the Lord: and <sup>x</sup> Lamech having gotten a ſonne, called his name Noah, ſaying, this ſame ſhall comfort vs concerning our worke and ſorrow of our hands &c. When Iſaac was borne, Sarah his mother ſaid, <sup>y</sup> God hath made me to laugh: a woman (as Chriſt ſpeakes Iohn 16. 21.) when ſhe is in trauell hath ſorrow, becauſe her houre is come, but as ſoone as ſhe is deliuered of the childe, ſhe remembers no more the paine, for ioy that a man is borne into the world: <sup>z</sup> quid dulcius in humanis quam gignere ſibi ſimilem, aut beatius in terris quam natos videre natorum? Elizabeth then had good cauſe to praiſe God in the gift of a ſonne; but her ſelfe and her friends had greater cauſe to reioyce, becauſe ſhe bare ſuch a ſonne, <sup>a</sup> tantum & talem filium, a ſonne ſo great in the ſight of the Lord, filled with the Holy Ghoſt, and ſtrong in ſpirit, euen from his mothers wombe; ſuch a ſon, of whom as yet in ſwadling clouts, his father moued by the Spirit ſaid, he ſhould be the Prophet of the moſt high; of whom alſo (when he was growen vp and executed his office) <sup>b</sup> Chriſt himſelfe gaue this teſtimony, that among thoſe which are borne of women, there hath not riſen a greater then Iohn the Baptiſt. If a <sup>c</sup> wife ſonne make a glad father, and a fooliſh ſonne bring beautie to his mother; Elizabeth had great mercie ſhewed vpon her, in that ſhe brought forth a Iohn into the world.

<sup>d</sup> Mystically, gracious Iohn borne of barren Elizabeth, liuely repreſents the fullneſſe and fruitiulneſſe of the Gentiles, ariſing from the barrenneſſe of the Iewes, and therefore the <sup>e</sup> Prophet exhorts the Church, Reioyce thou barren that beareſt not, breake forth into ſinging thou that trauelleſt not, for the deſolate hath many more children than ſhe which hath an husband.

In the eighth day they came to circumciſe the childe } Zacharias and Elizabeth walking in all the Commandements and Ordinances of the Lord without blame, cauſed their new borne babe to be circumciſed according to the preſcript of the Law. Concerning the time when, part where, cauſe why; ſee Goſpell on the Circumciſion of Chriſt.

Now baptiſme ſucceeds circumciſion, and ſo conſequently parents are taught by this example to bring their children in due time to holy baptiſme; wherein they be made the members of Chriſt, the children of God, and inheritours of the kingdom of heauen. Againe, parents may learne by this <sup>h</sup> preſident (except ſome great neceſſitie compell them otherwiſe) to baptize their infants in the face of the congregation, and not in the corner or a chamber or chimney: there was a great meeting of neighbours and couſins at the circumciſion of Iohn in his fathers houſe, and the Iewes at this day circumciſe their children in their publike Synagogues: and laſtly, from hence we may further obſerue three things, eſpecially concerning impoſition of names among Gods children in old time:

1. That names were giuen in circumciſion, as among vs in baptiſme, they came to circumciſe the childe, and called his name Zachary: the reaſon hereof is plaine, <sup>i</sup> that as often as we heare our ſelues named, we might inſtantly call to minde the ſolemne couenant betwene God and vs in holy baptiſme: or (as <sup>k</sup> other obſerue) becauſe circumciſion and baptiſme are ſeales of Gods grace, whereby men are firſt admitted into the Church, and as it were <sup>l</sup> written in the booke of the liuing: it is fit that none ſhould be named or regiſtred as the ſeruants and ſouldiers of Chriſt afore they haue receiued his Sacrament, which is the <sup>m</sup> badge of their profeſſion, and ſigne of their new birth.

2. From hence we may note, <sup>n</sup> that Gods people did vſually name their children after the names of their anceſtours, except God in ſome ſingular caſe, by reuelation, inioyned the contrary: for the neighbours and couſins of Elizabeth (as not knowing the Lords expreſſe pleaſure concerning the naming of her childe)

childe ) began to call his name Zachary, after the name of his father ; and when Elizabeth answered and said, Not so, but his name shall be called Iohn ; they replied, there is none of thy kindred that is named with this name. This example condemnes the nicenesse of some, who thinke it vnlawfull to giue their children ° vsuall names of their nation and families, as Edward, George, Robert, and the like : as also the prophanesse of other, who giue names of P flowers, or stones, or heathen names vnto Christians : if we name not our children after the names of our ancestors, it is fit that we should take the names of 9 Saints that may put vs in minde of their vertues, as Iohn, Peter, Stephen, &c. and not the names of Idols, as Venus, Mercurie, Bacchus, or the strange names of Saxon and Romane Infidels: and therefore the Popes and Cardinals are worthily censured by reuerend Fulke, for that hauing most antichristianly renounced their names giuen in baptisme, by which they were first dedicated vnto Christ : they chuse many times vnto themselves prophane names, as Sergius, Leo, Iulius, Caesar, Sixtus, &c.

2. We may learne from hence, that imposition of names is a dutie belonging properly to parents, especially to the father, and therefore Gabriel said vnto Zachary, thou shalt call his name Iohn. And in our present text, the determination of the question about the childs name was wholly referred vnto the father, they made signes to his father how he would haue him called, and he asked for writing tables, and wrote, saying, his name is Iohn.

Not so, but his name shall be called Iohn ] It may be ( Zachary being now dumbe and not able to speake ) that the neighbours asked Elizabeth his wife how the childe should be named, or haply hearing their consultation about this businesse, she might ( as knowing the Lords pleasure herein ) answer them vnasked, his name shall be called Iohn. Here then a question is moued, by what meanes Elizabeth vnderstood Gods expresse commandment in appointing his name, seeing her husband ( to whom only Gabriel had made this knowne ) was mute : to this obiection answer is made, that she knew the name by reuelation as a Prophetesse, per prophetiam didicit, quod non didicerat à marito, saith Ambrose : or ( as * other asloyle the boubt ) it may be Zachary signified so much vnto her in writing heretofore, as now to his neighbours and kinsmen, for he asked for writing tables, and wrote, saying, his name is Iohn. Here then obserue, that the parents of Iohn obey the commandment of God before the counsell of their friends and kinsmen, albeit they were neuer so deare to them. 7 Agamus quæ Christus iussit, ut adipiscamur quæ Christus spondit, veritas illius nobis adsit, illi fides nostra non desit. &c. If the Lord say follow me, then instantly we must forsake all, and leaue the dead to bury the dead, Matth. 8 22.

His name is Iohn ] a As if Zachary should haue said, I gaue not this name, but God himselfe hath appointed it. The words of his Angell ( thou shalt call his name Iohn ) are b non solum prædictio, sed c etiam præceptio nominis imponendi Now the word signifies fauoured of God, or the grace of God, a name fit for the Baptist in many respects, as first, e for that he was the fore-runner and first preacher of Christ, d of whose fulnesse we receiue grace vpon grace, for the Law was giuen by Moses, but grace and truth came by Iesus Christ. e The bunch of grapes that the spies of the children of Israel caried from the land of promise, was borne by two strong men vpon a staffe or pole, he that went before could not see the grape, but he that was behind might both see and eat of it : So the Fathers of the old Testament did not in like manner see the bunch of grapes, that was the Sonne of God made man, as they that went behinde vnder the new Testament saw and tasted it, after Iohn had openly shewed this grape, behold the Lambe of God that taketh away the sinne of the world.

2. The Baptist is so called, f as being filled with the Holy Ghost, abounding with a great many g prerogatiues of grace both in his conception, birth, and conuersation.

3. So called, as being borne not by natures ordinarie power, h but bestowed vpon his parents by Gods extraordinarie grace.

° Arcius.

v Euseb, hist of the Gospell, pag. 125.
9 Rober. in loc.

r Annet. in loc.

r Maldonat.

° Theophylact.
Euthym
Caecian.
a Com. in loc.
z Dio Carthus.
Arcius.
v Ercuxam.
Culman.
z Paulinus epist. lib. 1. epist. 1

a Ambros.
Iansen.
b Maldonat.

c Arden.
Luther.
Culman.
d Iohn 1. 16.
e Num. 13. 23.

f Arcius Paludensis.
g See Raulin.
ser. de nat. 10.
Baptist.
h Bonavent.
Beauxamis.

<sup>i</sup> Paratus ser. 2. de Io Baptil. <sup>k</sup> Matth. 3. 5. Mark. 1. 5.

<sup>l</sup> Luke 1. 13.

<sup>m</sup> Matth. 1. 1.

4. So called, as being <sup>i</sup>gracious among men, for many reioyced at his birth, and moe at his doctrine, <sup>k</sup>Hierusalem and all Indea went out vnto him in the wilder nesse, and were baptized of him in the riuer Iordan.

Father, as being vpon the point his God-father, <sup>l</sup>imposing his name by the mouth of his Angell.

Sonne, for <sup>m</sup>Christ highly commended him in respect of his calling and carriage.

Holy Ghost, as being strong in spirit, and going before Christ in the power of Elias, Luk. 1. 17.

To compendiat all these notes in a few words, Iohn was gracious in the sight of God the Kindred,

Men,

Strangers,

The blessed Virgin Marie visited his mother afore his birth, Luk. 1. 40.

Other Cousins reioyced at his birth, acknowledging it for a great mercy.

Good, who were both <sup>n</sup>aduised by him, and baptized of him: he speake comfortably to Hierusalems heart, and therefore gracious in the eyes of all good people.

Bad, for they thought his life too strict, Matth. 11. 18. and his greatest enimie cruell Herod, <sup>o</sup>who bound him, and put him in prison; and in fine beheaded him also, for Herodias sake his brother Philips wife, did notwithstanding <sup>p</sup>reuerence him, and in many things heard him gladly, knowing that he was a iust man, and an holy.

<sup>n</sup> Luke 3.

<sup>o</sup> Matth. 14.

<sup>p</sup> Mark. 6. 20.

<sup>q</sup> Psal 48. 9.

<sup>r</sup> Ezech. 13. 18.

<sup>s</sup> Mark. 6. 18.

<sup>t</sup> Matth. 3. 7.

We may pronounce then in some sort of Iohn, as the <sup>q</sup> Psalmist of God, according to thy name, so is thy praise vnto the worlds end: Iohn is thy name and gracious was thy person. O blessed Saint, if thou wert now lining, thou wouldest goe to the Courts of Princes, and tell Herod to his face ( whilest other Prophers haply sowe <sup>r</sup>pellowes vnder his elbows) that it is not lawfull for him to haue his brothers wife: if he were now lining, he would call our Pharisies a <sup>v</sup>generation of vipers: if he were now lining, he would not stand vpon by-questions and idle disputations, which are fruitlesse, but the summe of all his Sermons should be, repent, for the kingdome of heauen is at hand: if he were now lining and preaching in the wilder nesse, he would teach vs all to be more modest in our apparell, and moderate in our diet.

This gracious Saint hath a <sup>u</sup> surname added to his name, called Matth. 3. 1. Iohn the Baptilist, either <sup>x</sup>for that he baptized Christ, or else for that he was the <sup>y</sup>first minister of holy baptisme.

And his mouth was opened immediatly ] The dumbnesse of Zacharie ( saith <sup>z</sup> Eusebius Emisenus ) & fidem rei presentis expressit, & mysterium figurauit: it was a seale of Gods present promise, for when old Zacharie doubted, and said vnto Gabriel at the 18. verse, whereby shall I know that I shall haue a sonne? the Lords Angell answered, behold thou shalt be dumbe, and not able to speake vntill the day that these things be done, because thou beleuest not my words which shall be fulfilled in their season. His punishment is <sup>a</sup> answerable to his fault, he was stricken

<sup>u</sup> Caietan. in Math. 3.

<sup>v</sup> Maldonat.

<sup>w</sup> Aretius.

Marlorai.

Piscator.

<sup>z</sup> Hem. 2. de S. 10. Cap.

<sup>a</sup> Theophylact. Calvin.

stricken deafe, for that he would not hearken vnto the word of God; and dumbe, for that he contradicted it: he was made mute through vnbeleefe, but as soone as he beleued, his mouth was opened, <sup>b</sup> quam vincerat incredulitas, fides soluit: so that Zacharie might apply that of the <sup>c</sup> Psalmist vnto himselfe, I beleued, and therefore haue I spoken. At the birth of Iohn (which, as I haue shewed, signifies the grace of God) he who was dumbe began to speake and to praise the Lord. <sup>d</sup> Sinne closed his mouth, and on the contrary grace loosed his tongue. The guilt of grieuous sinne confoundeth a man, and maketh him mute, not daring to <sup>e</sup> open his mouth any more because of his shame. Ignorance maketh a man mute; Ecclesiast. 20.6. Some man holdeth his tongue, because he hath not to answer. Esay 56.10. Their watchmen are all blinde, they haue no knowledge, they are all dumbe dogs and cannot barke. The forgetting of Gods aboundant mercy maketh a man mute; Psal. 1:7.6. If I doe not remember thee, let my tongue cleaue to the rooffe of my mouth. Now Gods grace remoueth all these stops and impediments, it is he that <sup>f</sup> teacheth man knowledge, it is he that out of the mouth of <sup>g</sup> infants hath obtained strength, it is he that openeth a <sup>h</sup> doore of vtterance. Wherefore let vs pray with Dauid, O Lord open thou my lips, and my mouth shall shew thy praise.

2. The dumbenesse of Zacharie the Priest vpon the conception of Iohn the Baptist is <sup>i</sup> mysticall insinuating that now the Priests and Prophets also should hold their peace. So Christ himselfe teacheth in the <sup>k</sup> Gospell, all the Prophets and the Law prophesied vnto Iohn, but after once Iohn had not only painted out in his preaching, but also pointed out with his finger the Messias of the world, saying, behold the lambe of God, &c. After once the center of the Prophets, and end of the Law was come, it was time for Priest and Prophet to be silent, he shall cause the sacrifice and oblation to cease. Dan. 9.27. Then as <sup>l</sup> Hierome doth apply the words of Iob, The Princes stayed talke, and laid their hand on their lips, and their tongue cleaued vnto the rooffe of their mouth, Iob 29.9. In this houre the time drew nigh, wherein there should be <sup>m</sup> neither Prince, nor Prophet, nor burnt offering, nor sacrifice, nor oblation, nor incense. Iohn is the voyce of him that cryeth in the wilderness, it was therefore fit that his father Zacharie should vpon his conception become mute, as <sup>n</sup> Augustine acutely, Tacet Zacharias generaturus vocem. Hence we may learne to confound the stubborne Iewes as yet continuing in vnbeleefe, <sup>o</sup> Aut Christum venisse consentiant, aut si rennuunt, dent prophetas qui annuncient esse venturum, either they must acknowledge that the Messias is come, or else shew the Priests and Prophets in holy Bible which as yet foretell his comming.

The hand of the Lord was with him ] Almighty God is said in sacred Writ to haue feet, and hands, and eyes, <sup>p</sup> not properly, but metaphorically, not simply, but in a simile, Nihil enim in Deo nisi Deus, nihil habet in se, nisi se, non partibus constat vt corpus, non affectibus distat vt anima, non formis substat vt omne quod factum est, vnus est, sed non vnitus, as <sup>q</sup> Bernard excellently.

Now the word hand, in a borrowed sense signifies sometime counsell, as in the words of Dauid vnto the woman of Tekoah, <sup>r</sup> Is not the hand of Iob with thee in all this? Sometimes hand is vsed for power, as Psal. 102.25. The heauens are the workes of thy hands, and Ier. 18.6. Behold, saith the Lord, as the clay is in the potters hand, so are ye in mine hand. And <sup>s</sup> Dauid reports, how God brought his Israel out of Aegypt, with a mightie hand and stretched out arme. Sometime the giuing of the hand is a token of amitie, so <sup>t</sup> Iehu to Ionadab, Giue me thine hand. So <sup>u</sup> James and Cephas and Iohn gaue to Paul and Barnabas the right hand of fellowship. In all these respects, the hand of the Lord was with Iohn, his counsell, and power, and loue was with him. 1. Iohn being filled with the Holy Ghost had the Spirit of <sup>x</sup> counsell, he was the fore-runner of the <sup>y</sup> counsellor, and so consequently well acquainted with that hidden <sup>z</sup> mystorie of Christ in other ages vnknowne vnto the sons of men. 2. The power of the Lord was apparently with him in his conception and birth, in so much that all marvelled at these things, and said in their heart, what manner of child shall this be? 3. Gods grace and loue was with him euen from

<sup>b</sup> Ambros. com. in loc.

<sup>c</sup> Psal. 116.10

<sup>d</sup> Hugo Card. Beauxamis.

<sup>e</sup> Ezech. 16.63.

<sup>f</sup> Psal. 94.10.

<sup>g</sup> Psal 8.2.

<sup>h</sup> Colof 4.3.

<sup>i</sup> Hieron. com.

in Iob, cap 29.

Origen. hom. 5.

in Luc.

August. hom. 41.

<sup>k</sup> Matth. 11.13.

<sup>l</sup> Ibi sup.

<sup>m</sup> Song of the three children, ver. 38.

<sup>n</sup> Hom 44.

<sup>o</sup> Emisen. hom. 2. de Iob. Baptist.

<sup>p</sup> August. de gen. aalib. lib. 6. cap.

12 Et oflogia.

quest. 52 quest.

Thomas part 1.

quest 3. art. 1.

<sup>q</sup> Lib. 5. ds confid ad Eugen.

<sup>r</sup> 2. Sam. 14.19.

<sup>s</sup> Psal. 136. 12.

<sup>t</sup> 2 King. 10.15.

<sup>u</sup> Galat 2. 9.

<sup>x</sup> Esay 11.2.

<sup>y</sup> Esay 9. 6.

<sup>z</sup> Ephes. 3.4.

his mothers wombe, both in his conuerſation and doctrine. See Illephons. Giron. con. 3. in feſto Io. Baptiſt.

A mans writing is called his <sup>a</sup> hand, ſo the Client hath his Lawyers hand to his bill, and the Merchant his debrors hand to his booke; the cunning Artificer alſo calleth his painting his hand; and his caruing his hand; and ſo the pillar of Abſolon is termed manus Abſolom in the vulgar tranſlation, 2. Sam. 18. 18. After this manner the Lords hand was with John, he was ſo powrefull in his preaching, ſo ſanctified in his life, that euery one might ſay with <sup>b</sup> Dauid, how that this is thine hand, and that thou Lord haſt done it. <sup>c</sup> A Bird taken in the neſt is ſoone made gentle; whereas a flying bird caught in a net is hardly tamed: our bleſſed Sauour enclosed his Apoſtles within the net of his mercy when they were growne ancient; and therefore they forſooke their old nature with a great deale of difficultie; but he tooke John the Baptiſt in the neſt as it were, ſanctifying him euen in his mothers wombe, ſo that he was from his childhood <sup>d</sup> a burning and a ſhining light, that is, as <sup>e</sup> Aquine gloſſeth, Ardens per exemplum, lucens per uerbum.

God hath two hands, a right hand of mercy, and a left hand of iuſtice. So we reade in the <sup>f</sup> Goſpell, how Chriſt at the laſt day ſhall ſet the ſheepe on the right hand, and the goats on his left. His right hand is full of mercies, able to guard, open to giue: Able to guard his people; for he ſaith of it, <sup>g</sup> none ſhall plucke my ſheepe out of my hand: Open to giue, for he doth <sup>h</sup> open his hand, and filleth all things liuing with plenteouſneſſe. In theſe two reſpects, his hands are termed by the Church, as <sup>i</sup> gold rings ſet with the berill, that is, exceeding rich vnto ſuch as call vpon him. Rom. 10. 12. the cup of wrath is in his left hand, Eſay 51. 17. The <sup>k</sup> fingers of his hand wrote vpon the plaſter of the wall of Balſazzars palace; Mene, mene, Tekel, vpharſin. Of this hand Iob ſaid, withdraw thine hand from me, Iob, 13. 21. And <sup>l</sup> Paul, It is a fearefull thing to fall into the hands of the liuing God.

Now both hands of God are right hands vnto the iuſt and godly <sup>m</sup> though he fall he ſhall not be caſt away, for the Lord vpholdeth him with his hand; <sup>n</sup> all things, euen woe ſo well as weale, worke together for the beſt vnto him, he findes and feeles each hand of the Lord gentle, for <sup>o</sup> in his right hand is length of dayes, and in his left hand riches and glory. Both hands of the Lord were ſo with John the Baptiſt, as that it was no wonder if all men wondred at him. The firſt part of Zacharies hymne concerning Chriſt and his kingdome, is expounded in the Liturgie, tit. the Benedictus. The latter touching John the Baptiſt and his office, Goſp. Sund. 3. and 4. in Aduent.

The Epistle. ACTS 12. 1.

At the ſame time Herod the King ſtretched forth his hands to vex certaine of the Congregation, &c.

This Chapter containeth a relation of Herods } Bloudy life, in { Killing Iames the brother of Iohn with the ſword.
Terrible death, } Imprisoning Peter.
An Angell of the Lord ſmote him in the middeſt of his pride, becauſe he gaue not glorie vnto God, ſo that he was eaten up of wormes and gaue vp the Ghoſt.

I am to treat of Saint Iames martyrdome vpon his proper holy day; that which eſpecially concernes our preſent feſtiuall, is S. Peters imprisonment. Wherein (according to the record of S. Luke) two things are more chiefly remarkable;

Apprehending and taking } Cause why, for that him aggravated by cir- } it pleased the Iewes, cumstances of the } Time when, in the } } days of sweet bread.

Durance by He-rods cruelty in Holding and keeping him fast:

1. He put him in prison.
2. He deliuered him to foure quaternions of souldiers to be kept.
3. He caused him to be bound with two chaines.
4. He set keepers and a double watch ouer him.

To wit, his

Deliuernance by Gods mercie, wh. rein also note the Motiuēs, prayer without ceasing of the congregation.

 Meane an Angell of the Lord.
 Manner, a light shined, &c.

Because he saw it pleased the Iewes ] Herod persecuted the Saints of God p not out of any hatred to Christs Gospell, or any loue to Moses law, but onely to serue his owne turne, namely, to please the people. So Pilate to content the Iewes ( as it is apparent in the 9 Gospels hiltorie ) quit Barrabas a notable prisoner, Matth. 27. 16. a notorious murtherer, Marke 15. 7. but scourged Iesus, and deliuered him into their hands to be crucified, albeit he did openly confesse that he was a iust man, in whom he could finde no fault at all, Iohn 19. 4. So Felix willing to get fauour of the Iewes, left Paul bound, Acts 24. 28. It is a base sinne in a subiect to be made his Princes instrument in any wicked designe, as Ioab was king Dauids agent in murthering Uriah the Hittite, and the nobles of Iezreel Ahabs and Iezabels instruments in killing Naboth for his Vineyard. But it is a most vnworthy thing for a Prince to flatter and to follow his subiects in their giddie courses, for ordinarily the people walke not in the best but in the barren way, non qua eundum est, sed qua iur. It is a good obseruation that popular and military dependence in noble men to make them great, are like Icarus two wings, which were ioyned on with wax, they will haply for a while mount them aloft, and then faile them at the height. It is therefore better to stand vpon two feet than to flie vpon two wings, the two feet are the two kinds of Iustice, Communitiue and Distributiue, for great men shall grow greater if they will aduance merit, and releeue wrongs.

The Scriptures are plentiful in this argument, * If sinners entice thee, consent not; y thou shalt not follow a multitude to doe euill: 2 Blessed is the man that hath not walked in the counsell of the vngodly, nor stood in the way of sinners, &c. If (said Paul) I should yet please men, I were not the seruant of Christ: and therefore let Princes and Prelates also take heed that they be not too popular in their courses, alway remembering the wards of Peter and Iohn, Acts 4. 19. Whether it be right in the sight of God to hearken vnto you more than vnto God, iudge ye.

2. From hence we may learne, that the wicked accord in doing mischief, though otherwise they be most opposite. The Sadduces, Herodians and Pharisees, were Sectaries of diuers and aduersē factions, all differing one from another, and yet all these ioyned together against Christ, Matth. 22. The Libertines, and Cyreneans, and Alexandrians, and Cilicians, and Asians, disputed against S. Stephen, Acts 6. The Macedonians, Arrians, and Eunomians had confused language like the Giants in old time, who built the tower of Babell; and yet in malice they were linked against the true Catholikes. Herod neither loued the Iewes, nor the Iewes Herod, yet both agree to vex the Church, according to that in the second Psalme, The kings of the earth stand vp, and the rulers take counsell together against the Lord, and against his anointed: and therefore that Wisdome may be iustified of all her children, let vs which are true Christians endeavour to keepe the vntie of the spirit in the bond of peace, being of one heart, and of one soule, of one accord,

P Caluin & Pe-largus in loc.

P Matth 27.
 Marke 15.
 Luke 23.
 Iohn 19.

2 Sam 11.
 1 King 21.

Seneca.
 Sir. Fran. Bac
 con. apolog.
 pag. 170.

* Prou. 1. 10.
 y Exod 23 2.
 * Pfilm. 1. 1.
 * Galat. 1. 10.

b Iosephus anti-quit. lib. 1 8. ca. 2.

c Socrates hist.
 lib. 3 cap 10.
 d Gen, 11.

e Luke 7. 35.
 f Ephes. 4. 3.
 * A Cls. 32.
 h Philip. 2. 2.

and of one iudgement, that as there is a Societie of Jeſuites, a family of Anabaptiſts, a brotherhood of Schiſmatickes; euen to to confront all theſe, let there be ſtill a Communion of Saints, and a perpetuall holy league in truth, againſt all ſuch as trouble Gods Iſrael. See Goſpell Sund. i 8. and 23. after Trinitie.

Then were the dayes of ſweet bread ] The feaſt of vnleavened bread was inſtituted by <sup>i</sup> Mofes according to Gods owne direction, and afterward repeated by Duke <sup>k</sup> Iofua, and from his time, celebrated by Gods people ſolemly till this day. <sup>l</sup> This circumſtance then aggrauates the bloudie finne of Herod, who did not abſtaine from his michicuous enterpriſes on a feaſt ſo high and holy. The Jewes obſerued their Eaſter in abſtaining from leavened bread, the myſterie whereof and morall (as <sup>m</sup> Paul teacheth) is, that we ſhould purge the old leauen of finne, <sup>n</sup> that corrupteth and ſowreth all the ſweetneſſe of our life before God, and become a new lump; void of the leauen of maliciousneſſe and wickedneſſe: but Herod here contrariwiſe ſowred the whole dough with his leauen of miſchiefe and malice.

Againe from hence we further obſerue Herods <sup>o</sup> hypocriſie, who ſeemed to reuerence the feaſt in ſuch ſort that he would not ſlay Peter in the dayes of ſweet bread, and yet he caught him, and put him in priſon, and deliuered him to foure quaternions of ſouldiers to be kept, intending after Eaſter to bring him forth to the people: ſo the chiefe Priests who gaue Iudas Iſcariot thirtie peeces of ſiluer to betray Chriſt, afterward ſaid, <sup>p</sup> it was the priſe of bloud, and therefore not lawfull for vs to put them into the treaſurie: ſo the Pharifies <sup>q</sup> ſtrained out a gnat, and ſwallowed up a camell: ſo the <sup>r</sup> Popiſh Monks hold it an honeſter thing for a Prieſt to be intangled with many concubines in ſecret, than openly to be ioyned in marriage with one wiſe.

He put him in priſon. ] <sup>f</sup> Four things increaſe the miſeries of a man in cuſtodie, the priſon, ſouldiers, chaines, and keepers, all which Herod vſed in the perfeccion of S. Peter at this time. 1. He put Peter in priſon. 2. <sup>t</sup> Doubting that the priſon was not ſtrong enough, he deliuered him vnto foure quaternions, <sup>u</sup> that is, ſixteene ſouldiers: for <sup>x</sup> quaternion is not as centurion, a word of office, but of number. Now theſe ſixteene, by foure and foure, did euer <sup>y</sup> ſix houres throughout the whole night and day watch Peter, or elſe euer <sup>z</sup> three houres in the night only: <sup>a</sup> or it may be, that all the ſixteene did watch all the night, two within the priſon, and the reſt in a guard without. 3. Herod fearing that his priſoner, notwithstanding all this, might eſcape, cauſed him to be bound with two chaines. 4. Left haply chaines and all ſhould faile, the keepers before the doore kept the priſon, his intent was to make all ſure, that he might after Eaſter bring him forth, and expoſe him vnto the peoples malice. Poore Peter was bound, not only with one, but with two chaines and he ſlept betweene two ſouldiers, and he was guarded by two watches, the firſt and the ſecond. So <sup>b</sup> Nebuchadnezzar full of indignation and rage, commanded that the fierie furnace, into the miſt whereof Shadrach, Meſſech, and Abednego were to be caſt, ſhould at once be made hot ſeuene times more than it was wont. So the perſecutors of <sup>c</sup> Daniel, after he was throwne by them into the Lions den, laid a ſtone vpon the mouth of the den, leaſt otherwiſe he might eſcape their violent iawes and pawes. So the Priests and Pharifies intreated Pilate when Chriſt was dead, that he would giue <sup>d</sup> command for the making of his Sepulchre ſure, leaſt his Diſciples ſhould come by night and ſteale him away. Now the Lord who dwelleth in heauen, and is a preſent helpe to his ſeruants in trouble, <sup>e</sup> laughs them to ſcorne, for when the three children were now ready to be caſt into the flames of the ſcorching furnace, they told Nebuchadnezzar vnto his face, we are not carefull to anſwer thee in this matter. And Daniel in the Lions den had an Angell of God for his guard, who ſtopped the mouthes of the beaſts, and ſo no manner of hurt was found vpon him: and ſo S. Peter here, though he were caſt into priſon, and bound with two chaines, yet (hauing a good cauſe and a good conſcience) ſecurely ſlept betweene two ſouldiers, euen the night before cruell Herod would haue brought him out vnto the people. The prophane <sup>f</sup> Poet ſpake diuinely, ſat fautorum habet ſemper qui rectè facit; and therefore Peter in his indurance caſt his burden

<sup>i</sup> Exod. 12.

<sup>k</sup> Iofua 5. 10.

<sup>l</sup> Arctius.
Salmeron.

<sup>m</sup> 1. Cor. 5. 7. 8.

<sup>n</sup> Church hom.
of the reſurre-ction of Chriſt

<sup>o</sup> Caluin.

Kilius.
Arcularius.

<sup>p</sup> Matth. 27. 6.

<sup>q</sup> Matth. 23. 24.

<sup>r</sup> See Epistle
Sun. 1. in Lent.

<sup>f</sup> Laurinus &
gloſſa in loc.

<sup>u</sup> Arcius.

<sup>t</sup> Oecumen.

verſit ſyruſ ſex- decem. militibus.

<sup>x</sup> Lorinus.

<sup>y</sup> Arius Montan.

<sup>z</sup> Oecumen.

<sup>a</sup> Arctius.

<sup>b</sup> Dan. 3. 19.

<sup>c</sup> Dan 6. 17.

<sup>d</sup> Matth. 27. 64.

<sup>e</sup> Pſal. 2. 4.

<sup>f</sup> Plaut. prolog.
Amphit.

is burthen vpon the Lord, and said happily with <sup>b</sup> David, I will lay me downe in peace, and take my rest, for it is thou Lord only that makes me dwell in safetie. God either deliuereth his seruants out of persecution, as he did Peter; or else if he crowne them with martyrdom as he did S. James, he will in his kingdome of glory giue them in stead of this bitter a better inheritance. <sup>i</sup> Pro veritate morientes, cum veritate viuentes.

Prayer was made without ceasing of the Congregation] Prayers and teares are the Churches armour, and therefore when Peter was imprisoned by cruell Herod, the Congregation commeth vnto prayer, and not vnto powder for his deliuerance, they did not assault the prison, nor kill the souldiers, nor breake the chaines, only prayer and patience were their weapons, <sup>k</sup> arma Christianorum in aduersis alia esse non debent quam patientia & precatio: prayer (quoth <sup>l</sup> Augustine) is the key of heauen, and as it were that fierie chariot of <sup>m</sup> Eliab, whereby we mount vp, and haue our conuersation with God on high, it is the hand of a Christian which is able to reach from earth to heauen, and to take forth euerie manner of good gift out of the Lords treasure; so the Scripture speaks in expresse termes, <sup>n</sup> aske & ye shal haue, &c. The prayer of a righteous man availeth much if it be seruent, James 5.16. Aske in o faith, and then all things are possible to him that beleueth, Marke 9.23. Many times our prayers are sent out like to incense, made happily according to the Lords direction, but not kindled with fire from his altar; that is, petitions lawfull enough, and agreeable to Gods holy word, but not poured out in seruencie. We fall into them often without preparation, and vtter a number of words without deuotion, and therefore no maruell if we misse, when as we thus aske amisse. But if our prayer be, like the Churches here, made without ceasing, if it be faithfull and seruent, the God of all grace will out of the riches of his mercy giue vs either that we desired, as P Eliab prayed for raine, and the heauen gaue raine: or else that which is better, as God tooke <sup>q</sup> Moses into the spirituall Canaan, because he did not enioy that earthly Canaan: or at the least that which is sufficient, as he told Paul, 2. Cor. 12.9. My grace is sufficient for thee. See Gosp. Sun. 5. after Ester.

There is nothing in the word <sup>r</sup> more strong than a man who giueth himselfe to seruent prayer, his deuotion is so powerfull as that it <sup>t</sup> commandeth all things in heauen, earth, and hell; it commandeth all the foure Elements, ayre, fire, water, earth: Ayre, James 5.17. Elias prayed earnestly that it might not raine, and it rained not on the earth for three yeares and six monethes, he <sup>u</sup> shut vp heauen as the <sup>v</sup> Wiseman reports of him, he said, <sup>w</sup> as the Lord God of Israel liueth before whom I stand, there shall be neither dew nor raine these yeeres, but according to my word: againe he prayed for raine, and the raine fell, and the earth brought forth her fruit. Fire, the same Prophet Elias by his prayers <sup>x</sup> three times brought fire from heauen, Ecclesiasticus 48.3. Water, at the <sup>y</sup> crying of Moses vnto the Lord, the red sea runne backe and was made drie land, so that Gods Israel walked vpon firme ground in the midst of the sea: but when their enemies pursued them, all the diuided waters returned, and ouerwhelmed them in the deepe; and at the prayer of the same Moses, bitter waters were made sweet, Exod. 15.25. Earth, vpon the complaint of Moses vnto God, the <sup>z</sup> earth opened her mouth, and swallowed vp Korath, Dathan and Abiram, and all their families, and all their goods: in so much that they together with all theirs went downe quicke into the pit, and the ground closed vpon them, and they perished in the sight of Gods people. Nay the prayer of one deuout man is able to conquer an hoast of enemies in battell, for in the fight betweene Israel and Amalek, <sup>a</sup> when Moses held vp his hand, Israel preuailed, but when he let his hand downe, Amalek preuailed. In this present text the prayer of the congregation without ceasing, fetched an Angell out of heauen, and brought a shining light into the darke dungeon, and loosed the fetters from Saint Peters feet, and the chaines from his hands, it brake thorow the first and second watch, and opened an iron gate, and so deliuered the seruant of God from the waiting of the Iewes.

<sup>s</sup> Psal. 55 23.

<sup>b</sup> Psal. 49.

<sup>i</sup> August. de Ciuit. Dei, lib. 9. cap 30.

<sup>k</sup> Salmeyon tract 35. in Act.

<sup>l</sup> Church hom. concerning Prayer, part. 2.

<sup>m</sup> 2. King 2. 11.

<sup>n</sup> Matth. 7. 7.

<sup>o</sup> James 1. 6.

<sup>p</sup> James 5. 18.

<sup>q</sup> Deut. 34.

<sup>r</sup> Chrysostom.

<sup>t</sup> Est quedam omnipotentia precum, Aristotelius system. Theolog lib. 4. cap. 2

<sup>u</sup> Eccles 48 3.

<sup>v</sup> 1. King. 17. 1.

<sup>w</sup> 1. Kin. 18. 38.

<sup>x</sup> Kin 1. 10. 12

<sup>y</sup> Exod. 14.

<sup>z</sup> Numb. 16.

<sup>a</sup> Exod. 17. 11.

b 1. Kin 17. 21.
c Gen. 19. 22.
d Matth. 17. 21.
e Gen. 32. 16.

f Matth 15.
g Marke 10.
Luce 18.

h Pſal. 206. 23.

i Exod. 3. 2. 10.

k Eſay 40. 12.

l Pſal. 135. 6.

m Pſal. 103. 13.

n Eſay 66. 13.

o Pſal. 145. 19.

p Matth. 3. 17.

q Rom. 8. 26.

r Bernard. in feſto Penit. ſer. 1.

s Matth. 11. 28.

t Pſal. 50. 17.

u Judges. 16.

v Epheſ. 6. 18.

w Theſſ. 5. 17.

x Zanchinus in lec ad Epheſ. ſec

Thomas 2. 2e.

queſt. 83 art. 14.

y Nilus in ſencentijs.

z Pſal. 37. 23.

What ſhould I ſay more? prayer is ſo potent, that it raiſeth the<sup>b</sup> dead; it ouercommeth <sup>c</sup> Angels, it caſteth our<sup>d</sup> devils, and that which is yet more wonderfull, it maſtereth euen God himſelfe: for when <sup>e</sup> Jacob wreſtled with God, he ſaid, I will not let thee goe, except thou bleſſe me: when the Lord ſaid, let me goe, becommeth it Jacob to ſay, I will not let thee goe? yea (beloned) there be ſome things wherein the Lord is very well content that his ſeruants ſtrive with him as namely, when they haue his word for their warrant, it is a commendable ſtrife to take no reſuſall at his hand, and in effect it is nothing elſe but a conſtant affirmation that his truth is inuiolable. So the woman of <sup>f</sup> Canaan ſtrone with Chriſt, ſhe would take no deniall of that which he had promiſed: and blinde <sup>g</sup> Bartimemus made Chriſt as he paſſed in his way to ſtand ſtill, he could not for the multitude lay hands on him, and yet his prayers reached vnto him, and held him faſt vntill he receiued a comfortable answer, receiue thy ſight, thy faith hath ſaued thee: So when Almighty God would haue deſtroyed his people becauſe they worſhipped the golden Calfe, ſaying, theſe be thy Gods O Iſrael, which haue brought thee out of the land of Egypt: Moſes fell downe on his face before the Lord, and prayed vnto his God, he ſtood ( ſaith the <sup>h</sup> Psalmiſt ) in the gap as a mediator betweene God and his people, to turne away his wrathfull indignation, and this prayer was ſo powerfull, as that it conſtrained the Lord in the middlt of his anger to ſay vnto Moſes <sup>i</sup> let me alone, that my wrath may waxe hot againſt them: all the powers of heauen, and the crying of all men on earth, are not able to hold the Lord from doing any worke he is about to doe, for he can<sup>k</sup> meaſure the waters in his fiſt; and mete heauen with his ſpan; and weigh the mountaines in ſcales; and the hills in a balance; <sup>l</sup> whatſoener pleaſeth him he doth in heauen, and in earth, and in the ſea: yet the prayers of his children are able to binde him hand and foot, and to compell him ( as it were ) to powre downe an vnderſerued bleſſing, and to turne away a iuſt deſerued puniſhment: the very crying of an infant that vtters no diſtinct voyce, moues a mother vnto compaſſion, and ſo the Lord pittying vs as a <sup>m</sup> father, and comforting vs as a <sup>n</sup> mother, heareth our very groanes, and ſo <sup>o</sup> fulfillerth our deſires, if we call vpon him in faith and feare.

Now the reaſon why the prayers of the faithfull are ſo powrefull, is, becauſe they be not ours, but the interceſſion of Gods owne ſpirit in vs, powred out in the name of Chriſt his owne Sonne, in whom he is euer<sup>p</sup> well pleaſed. For as for vs, <sup>q</sup> we know not what to pray as we ought, but the ſpirit it ſelfe makes requeſt for vs with ſighes which cannot be expreſſed; it is the ſpirit whereby we cry abba father; <sup>r</sup> as in vs the ſpirit makes requeſt for vs, ſo with the Father he grants our ſuits, and forgives our finnes, that for which we pray, euen he giueth vnto vs who giueth vs this grace to pray: God inuiterth vs to <sup>s</sup> come vnto him, and to <sup>t</sup> call vpon him in all our troubles; and his holy ſpirit when as we preſent our ſelues before the throne of grace, helpeth our infirmities, and maketh interceſſion for vs: and therefore no maruell if the Lord be bound by deuout men with his owne promiſes, as <sup>u</sup> Sampſon was by Dalila with his owne haire. Let theſe godly meditations ſtrengthen our feeble hearts and weake hands, that they faint not in deuotion, but according to the patterne of the Saints here, and the precept of Paul <sup>x</sup> elſewhere, we may without ceaſing alwayes pray, <sup>y</sup> that is, vpon all occaſions offered as well for our ſelues as other: Omne quod agis oratione obſignato, id verò maxime de quo mentem vides dubitantem.

Behold the Angell of the Lord was there preſent ] I am occaſioned here to treat of two queſtions eſpecially: The firſt concerning Angelicall protection in generall, as namely, whether Angels helpe and keepe men from euill or no? The ſecond, whether beſide the generall protection of many or all Angels in common, euery man hath one peculiar Angell as his peculiar guard and guide? The doctrine concerning Angelicall protection in generall at the firſt apparance may ſeeme ſtrange becauſe the Scripture teacheth vs expreſly, that <sup>z</sup> the pathes of man are directed by the Lord, and Pſalm. 14. 18. Great are the troubles of the righteous, but the Lord deliuereth him out of all: and for this ſo particuar care and providence, God is often compared vnto a <sup>b</sup>Father, <sup>c</sup>Mother, <sup>d</sup>Pastor, <sup>e</sup>Bridegroom, <sup>f</sup>Buckler, <sup>g</sup>Eagle, &c. to shew that he only is to vs <sup>h</sup>all in all: Efay 63.16. Doubtlesse thou art our Father, though Abraham be ignorant of vs, and Israel know vs not: yet thou, O Lord, art our Father, and our Redeemer. As who would say, those that are fathers according to the flesh, are not worthy of that name, if they be compared with thee: Can a woman forget her childe? and not haue compassion on the sonne of her wombe? though she should forget (saith the Lord, Efay 49.15.) yet I will not forget thee: behold I haue grauen thee upon the palme of my hands, and thy walls are euer in my sight. <sup>i</sup>If thou beest burdened with vnrighteousnesse, Christ is thy righteousnesse: if thou need helpe, he is thy strength: if thou feare death, he is life: if thou desire heauen, he is the way: if thou hate darkenesse, he is light: if thou seeke for meat, he is food: for although he be but one in himselfe, yet he is all things vnto vs for the releuing of our necessities, which are without number: and therefore if the rule be true, non sunt multiplicanda entia sine necessitate, what need any man expect other aid from other powers, though Angelicall and neuer lo great, seeing Almighty God himselfe is <sup>k</sup>the keeper of Israel, our immediate Protector, <sup>l</sup>strength, hope, and helpe in trouble?

God

<sup>m</sup>Answer is made, that Angelicall custodie doth not extenuate, but rather extoll the greatnesse and goodnesse of God toward mankinde, for as much as it is an execution of his high and holy prouidence. For as by the <sup>n</sup>wisdomme of an excellent Emperour all the Towers, all the Cities, all the Castles, are fortified with men and munition against the common enemies assault, least by barbarous inuasion they should be destroyed: euen so, because the deuils are in euery corner raging & ranging for our ouerthrow, God hath ordained for our guard that an host of Angels should <sup>o</sup>pitch their tents about vs, and <sup>p</sup>keepe vs in all our wayes. Indeed God is able to defend vs himselfe by himselfe, through his immediate concourse which he hath in all things, but to manifest his abundant loue to men, which are <sup>q</sup>wormes, and rottennesse, and meere <sup>r</sup>vanitie, he doth inioyne the pages of his honour, and princes of his court, euen his glorious Angels, to become messengers and ministers for their sakes, who shall be heires of saluation, and that all the time of this life, in the houre of death, and in the day of iudgement.

The good which Angels procure to the Saints in this life, concerneth either the body or the soule: as for the body, these ministring spirits attend vs euen from the beginning of our dayes vnto the end, most carefully performing all manner of offices appertaining necessarily to the preseruacion of our temporall life. When <sup>s</sup>Agar cast out of Abrahams family wandred in the wilderness, an Angell appeared vnto her, and aduised her to re:urne to her mistresse, and to humble her selfe vnder her hands: the reuenging Angels caught and carried <sup>t</sup>Lot out of Sodome and Gomorrah, before they did burne those Citties with fire and brimstone. <sup>u</sup>Abraham as being assured of the protection of Gods Angels in all his wayes, said vnto his seruant, the Lord God of heauen who tooke me from my fathers house, &c. will send his Angell before thee: when <sup>x</sup>Jacob feared his brother Esau, he met Angels coming vnto him, & thereupon he did acknowledge, that they should be his guard in his iourney, saying, this is Gods host: an Angell appeared vnto Duke <sup>y</sup>Iosua, when he was about to sacke Jericho, with a drawne sword in his hand, as a Captaine to fight for Israel: an Angell comforted and fed <sup>z</sup>Elias when he fled from Jezabel: an Angell deliuered the three children out of the ferie furnace, Dan. 3. an Angell assisted Daniel in the Lions den, and kept him also from all manner of hurt, Dan. 6. an Angell directed <sup>a</sup>Ioseph to flie into Egypt: an Angell ministred vnto <sup>b</sup>Christ in his heauinesse, and in our present text, The Lords Angell brought Peter out of prison, and deliuered him out of the hands of Herod, and from all the waiting of the people of the Iewes.

Angels procure good vnto the soules of the faithfull, illuminando & confortando, saith <sup>c</sup>Aqui. because they be maintainers & furtherers of the true worship of God and of all good meanes whereby saluation is attained. The <sup>d</sup>Law was deliuered in Mount Sina by the hands of Angels: an Angell expounded vnto <sup>e</sup>Daniel the 70.

weekes

<sup>b</sup> Deut 32.6.
<sup>c</sup> Efay 49.15.
<sup>d</sup> P sal. 23.1.
<sup>e</sup> Cant 5.
<sup>f</sup> P sal. 18.1.
<sup>g</sup> Exod 19.4.
<sup>h</sup> 1. Cor. 13.28.

<sup>i</sup> Ambrose.

<sup>k</sup> P sal. 121.4.
<sup>l</sup> P sal. 46.1.
<sup>m</sup> Tbor. part. 1.
<sup>n</sup> quæst. 113. a. 1.
<sup>o</sup> 2.
<sup>p</sup> Chrysost. ser. de Ascens. Dom.

<sup>q</sup> P sal. 34.7.
<sup>r</sup> P sal. 91.11.

<sup>s</sup> Tob 15.6.
<sup>t</sup> P sal. 39.6.

<sup>u</sup> Gen. 16.7.

<sup>v</sup> Gen 19.16.
<sup>w</sup> Gen. 24.7.

<sup>x</sup> Gen. 32.1.

<sup>y</sup> Iosua 5.13.

<sup>z</sup> 1. King. 19.

<sup>a</sup> Math. 2.13.
<sup>b</sup> Math. 4.11.
<sup>c</sup> Luk. 22.43.

<sup>d</sup> Part. 1. quæst. 11. art. 1.
<sup>e</sup> Galat. 3.19.
<sup>f</sup> Act 7.38.
<sup>g</sup> Dan. 9.21.

<sup>f</sup> Apoc. 19. 10.

<sup>g</sup> Gen. 22. 12.

<sup>h</sup> Luke 1. 31.

weekes: an Angell forbids <sup>f</sup> Iohn to worship him, and inioyned him to worship God the Creator of heauen and earth: an Angell declared the will of God vnto father <sup>g</sup> Abraham, that he should not kill his sonne Isaac: an Angell reuealed the myserie of Christs <sup>h</sup> conception, vnto the Virgin his mother: of Christs birth, vnto certaine shepherds in the field attending their flocks by night, Luk. 2. 10. of Christs resurrection, vnto Marie Magdalen, and other deuout women, Mat. 28. 5. In a word, Angels are pursuants, haibengers, and heralds betwixt heauen and earth, alwayes in a readinesse to make knowne the will of God vnto men.

In the houre of death Angels conuey the soules of the faithfull, as they did the soule of <sup>i</sup> Lazarus into blessed Abrahams bosome. And in the day of iudgement they shall <sup>k</sup> gather together all Gods elect from the foure windes, and from the one end of heauen vnto the other, that they may come before Christ, and enter into the fruition of eternall glory both in body and soule.

The vse of this doctrine is manifold. 1. It serues to terrifie the wicked who despise Gods children, for so Christ himselfe reasoneth, Mat. 18. 10. Despise not one of these little ones, because I say vnto you, that in heaue their Angels alway behold the face of my Father. It behoues reuiling scoffers therefore to take heed whom they mocke, for though haply good men (called little ones in respect of their innocencie and humilitie) for their parts are content to put vp abuses and iniuries; yet their Angels may take iust reuenge by smiting them (as they did Herod in this chapter) with heauy punishments for their offences.

2. This may teach vs humilitie; for if Angels high and holy serue vs, let vs not thinke it any bad or base dutie to <sup>l</sup> serue one another in loue.

3. We may learne from hence to behaue our selues in open and in secret places after a reuerent & seemly manner, as being spectacles vnto glorious Angels, which are <sup>m</sup> witnesses and obseruers of all our words and deeds, to this purpose <sup>n</sup> Paul saith, that the woman ought to haue power on her head, because of the Angels. <sup>o</sup> That is, not only the Ministers of the Church, but Gods heauenly Angels, which daily wait vpon his children, and guard them in all their wayes.

4. This ought to stirre vs vp vnto the Lords praise, saying with <sup>p</sup> Dauid, Lord, what is man, that thou hast such respect vnto him, or the sonne of man that thou shouldest so regard and guard him? Alas all flesh is grasse, and man is like a thing of nought; yet behold, if he truly loue God, all things are for his good, for God is his father, the Church his mother, Christ his brother, the Holy Ghost his comforter, Angels his attendants, all other creatures his <sup>t</sup> subjects, the whole world his <sup>u</sup> Inne, and heauen his <sup>v</sup> home. I will end this obseruation with a meditation of Saint <sup>w</sup> Augustine.

O Lord, thou makest thy spirits messengers for my sake, to whom thou hast giuen charge ouer me to keep me in all my waies, that I hurt not my foot against a stone. For these are the watchmen ouer the <sup>x</sup> walls of the new Ierusalem, & of the mountaines about the same, which attend and keep watch ouer the flock, lest he as a lion make a pray of our soules, while there is none to deliner; he, I meane that old <sup>y</sup> serpent, our aduersary the deuill, who walketh about as a <sup>z</sup> roaring lion, seeking whom he may deuoure. These citizens of Ierusalem about walke with vs in all our waies, they go in and out with vs, diligently considering how godly & how honestly we do walk in the <sup>a</sup> midst of a naughty & crooked generation, how earnestly we seeke the <sup>b</sup> kingdome of God and the righteousnes thereof; with what <sup>c</sup> feare and trembling we do serue thee, and how our hearts <sup>d</sup> reioyce in thee, O Lord: those which labour they strengthen, those which rest they protect, such as fight they encourage they crowne such as ouercome, they reioyce with such as <sup>e</sup> reioyce, such I meane, as reioyce in thee; and they suffer with such as suffer, I say, with such as suffer <sup>f</sup> for thy names sake: great is the care which they haue of vs, & great is the affectio of their loue towards vs, & all this for the honor of thine inestimable good will, wherewith thou hast loued vs: for they loue those, whom thou doest loue: they keepe those, whom thou doest keepe: they forsake those, whom thou doest forsake: neither can they abide such as worke iniquitie, because thou also <sup>g</sup> hatest all them that worke iniquitie.

<sup>i</sup> Luke 16. 22.

<sup>k</sup> Mat. 24. 31.

<sup>l</sup> Galat. 5. 13.

<sup>m</sup> Bucan. loc. com. tit. Angel. quæst. 34.

<sup>n</sup> 1. Cor. 11. 10.

<sup>o</sup> Perkins expof. Creed. tit. Creation of Angels.

<sup>p</sup> Psal. 144. 3.

<sup>q</sup> Rom 8. 18.

<sup>r</sup> Psal. 8. 6.

<sup>s</sup> 1. Pet. 3. 11.

<sup>t</sup> Iohn 14. 3.

<sup>u</sup> Soliloqu. cap. 27.

<sup>v</sup> Esay 62. 2.

<sup>w</sup> Reuel. 12. 9.

<sup>x</sup> 1. Pet. 5. 8.

<sup>y</sup> Philip. 2. 15.

<sup>z</sup> Mat. 6. 33.

<sup>a</sup> Psal. 2. 11.

<sup>b</sup> Zachar. 10. 7.

<sup>c</sup> Rom 12. 15.

<sup>d</sup> 1. Pet. 4. 14.

<sup>e</sup> Psal. 5. 5.

<sup>f</sup> Psal. 5. 5.

<sup>g</sup> Psal. 5. 5.

iniquitie. When we doe well the Angels reioyce, but the devils are sad: when we doe ill the devils reioyce, but the Angels are sad: grant therefore, good Lord, that they may alwaies reioyce ouer vs, that both thou alwaies maist be glorified in vs, and we may be brought with them into thy fold, that together we may praise thy name, O Creator of men and Angels.

To the second quære, whether besides the generall protection of all Angels in common, euery particular man hath one peculiar Angell for his guard; I finde that many learned and ancient Doctours hold the affirmatiue part. So<sup>h</sup> S. Basil categorically, to euery one that beleeueth in Christ an assistant Angell is appointed, vntlesse we driue him away from vs by our wicked actions: for as smoke driueth away bees, and stinch doones; so filthy sin the Angell the keeper of our life. The which assertion he confirms<sup>1</sup> elswhere more at large by diuers testimonies of holy writ: so<sup>k</sup> S. Hierome, that euery one of vs hath his Angell, many places of Scripture teach, as namely that of Christ, Mat. 18. 10. See that ye despise not one of these little ones, for I say vnto you, that in heauen their Angels alway behold the face of my Father, &c. as also that which is recorded, Acts 12. 7. it is Peters Angell. So<sup>1</sup> Chrysostome, Euery faithfull one hath his Angell; indeed at the first holy Angels were according to the number of the nations, but now not so, but according to the number of the faithfull. So<sup>m</sup> Theophylact, All men, especiall the faithfull, haue their Angels. So<sup>n</sup> Gregorie Nyssen speaking of this argument, insinuates that it was ordinarily, holden of the Fathers: A true speech hath descended vnto vs, by which we beleeue that our nature since our fall into sinne is not altogether forlorne of the diuine clemencie, neither left without his succour, but that then also there is giuen to euery man one of the Angels as an helper and protector. So<sup>o</sup> Primasius, Vnto euery man (as the Doctours say) there is generally giuen an Angell for his custodie, and this either from his birth, or rather from his baptisme. Vnto these Fathers I might adde P Origen, & Iustine Martyre, & Clemens Alexandrinus, & Augustine, & Eusebius, &c. as also most of the Schoolemen, and * many Protestant Diuines.

Yet for mine owne part I say (saluo semper meliore iudicio) with Caluin. Institut. lib. 1. cap. 14. §. 7. An singulis fidelibus singuli Angeli sint ad eorum defensionem attributi pro certo asserere non ausim: and my reason is, for that I see not any cleare ground in holy Bible for such an assertion. The two chiefe places, in the iudgement of Diuines as well ancient as moderne, are, Matth. 18. 10. and Act. 12. 15. The first whereof (as<sup>v</sup> Caietan and<sup>z</sup> other popish expositors obserue) proues not evidently, that euery little one hath one peculiar Angell for his guardian in particular, but only that all are appointed ouer all in generall, as the Scripture constructh it selfe Luk. 15. 10. saying of euery one of those little ones which turne from their sinnes, that all Gods holy Angels reioyce at it: and as for the words of the Disciples astonished at the sudden newes of Peters comming, it is not he, but his Angell: & answer is made, that this allegation is a very slender prooffe; because the Disciples in Marias house being amazed, vpon the strange report of Rhode, spake they knew not what: so we might proue that the Saints departed may dwell in tabernacles, because<sup>b</sup> Peter said, Lord, let vs make tabernacles, one for Moses, another for Elias. And whereas it is further obiected, that they spake after the common opinion of men in that age; we reply, that in those dayes it was a receiued opinion, that dead men did walke, as it appears by<sup>c</sup> Herod, who thought our Sauour was Iohn Baptist risen againe from the dead. Vox populi is not alway vox Dei, common errors are noe certaine rules of truth: and what if that place were so manifest as they could wish it, why might it not be construed thus, it is his Angell,<sup>d</sup> that is, some Angell which Almighty God hath sent for his deliuerance, this being according to the Scripture more than that, to haue it his particular Angell; so the present text here, behold the Angell of the Lord was there present, and a light shined in the prison, and he smote Peter on the side, and stirred him vp, saying arise vp quickly, and his chaines fell from his hands, &c.

<sup>h</sup> In Psal. 33. & 48.

<sup>1</sup> Lib. 3. contra Eunomium, cir. prin.

<sup>k</sup> Com. in Esai. 66.

<sup>1</sup> Hom. 3. in 1. Coloss.

<sup>m</sup> in Matth. 18.

<sup>n</sup> In vita Moscos.

<sup>o</sup> In Heb. 1. 14.

<sup>p</sup> Rom. 8. in Gen.

<sup>q</sup> Quæst. 30.

<sup>r</sup> Strom. 6.

<sup>s</sup> Sollog. cap. 27.

<sup>t</sup> De preparat. Euang. lib. 13.

cap. 7.

<sup>u</sup> In 2. sent.

dist. 11.

<sup>v</sup> Saikeld treat of Angels, cap.

44.

<sup>w</sup> Com. in. loc.

<sup>z</sup> Ambros.

Comp. e. Epist. apud S. Senen.

Bibliothec. lib. 6.

annot. 77.

<sup>a</sup> Decring lect.

6. in Hebr.

<sup>b</sup> Matth. 17. 4.

Marck. 9. 5.

<sup>c</sup> Matth. 14. 2.

<sup>d</sup> Caluin. Institut.

lib. 1. cap. 14.

§. 7. & com. in

loc.

The Gospell. MATTH. 16. 13.

When Iesus came into the coasts, of the city which is called Cæsarea Philippi, &c.

THIS Scripture being a dialogue betweene Christ and his Apostles, of it owne accord falleth into two questions, and two answers vnto those questions:

1. Quest. Whom doe men say t hat I the Sonne of man am? answer, some say thou art Iohn Baptist, &c.

2. Quest. Whom say ye that I am? answer, thou art the Christ the Son of the living God: the which answer is Commended, bleſſed art thou Simon, &c.

Rewarded, upon this rocke I will, &c.

Cæsarea Philippi ] There were two Cæsarees, one called <sup>e</sup> Stratonis vpon the Mediterrane sea, which Herod sumptuously built in the honour of Augustus Cæsar; another called Cæsarea Philippi, <sup>f</sup> founded by Philip ( <sup>g</sup> brother of Herod the Tetrarch who beheaded Iohn the Baptist ) in honour of Tiberius Cæsar, at the foot of Libanon. Philip built, <sup>h</sup> or rather repaired and enlarged this towne out of his seruiceable loue to Cæsar, but yet for his owne glory he did adde a Philippi to Cæsarea. The Papists in mingling the bloud of their Saints with the precious bloud of our Sauiour, and in making themselves also ( by relying too much vpon their owne merits ) halfe mediators, and ioynt purchasers of saluation with Christ, haue set vp in the Synagogue of Antichrist, as it were a Cæsarea Philippi. The Ieluited Papists especially swearing to the Kings Supremacie, with a Romish equiuocation, or Spanish reſeruation, adde a Philippi to Cæsarea. This as <sup>i</sup> some thinke, was the citie where the Kings in old time received their tribute, and therefore the King of heauen aptly required of his Disciples in the very same place tributum confessionis; <sup>k</sup> or it may be, that Christ exacted this confession of faith in the coasts of Cæsarea Philippi, to signifie, that his Apostles should not only preach the Gospell among the Iewes, but also that <sup>l</sup> their sound should goe thorow all the earth, and their words vnto the ends of the world; or he made this demand farre from Hierusalem out of the Scribes and Pharisees hearing, <sup>m</sup> that they might the more fully and freely confesse what they thought of him.

Whom doe men say ] He did not aske his question, as being <sup>n</sup> ignorant hereof himselfe; but to teach other, especially his Apostles, and such as hold the like place, nor to be <sup>o</sup> negligent in examining what opinion the world conceiveth of them, that if they heare ill, they may labour to cut off all iust occasions of so bad a report: if well, endeouour to deserue and preserue the fame to Gods and the Gospels honour: Per he began with this quare, Whom doe men say? that he might hereby come the better vnto that other, whom doe ye say? he did not inquire what the <sup>q</sup> Pharisees or Priests say, for they reputed him a <sup>r</sup> deceiuer, a <sup>s</sup> Samaritan, a <sup>t</sup> glutton, and drinker of wine; but he doth aske what the people say, for so <sup>u</sup> S. Luke doth expound S. Matthew, whom say the people that I am?

The Sonne of man ] He did ordinarily vse this stile speaking of himselfe for <sup>x</sup> three causes especially: 1. To put vs in minde how much he did abate himselfe for our sake who being in the forme of God, made himselfe of no reputation, and tooke on him the forme of a seruant, and was found in shape as a man. 2. To confute the <sup>y</sup> Manichees and other Heretickes denying his humanitie. 3. By his example teaching vs, how we should thinke and speake of our selues with humilitie.

Some say that thou art Iohn Baptist, some Elias, some Ieremias ] <sup>a</sup> They who conceived he was Iohn Baptist, agreed with <sup>b</sup> Herod the Tetrarch, for when he heard of the fame of Iesus, he said vnto his seruants, This is Iohn Baptist, he is risen againe from the dead, and therefore great workes are wrought by him: other thought him

Elias,

<sup>o</sup> Ioseph. antiq. lib. 15. cap. 13. & de bello Iudaico lib. 1. cap. 16.

<sup>f</sup> Ioseph antiq. lib. 18. cap. 3. <sup>g</sup> Hieron. Anselm.

<sup>h</sup> Aretius. Marlorat. Iansenius.

<sup>i</sup> Ardens.

<sup>k</sup> Di. 7. cor. 1. in fest. Pet. & Pauli.

<sup>l</sup> Rom. 10. 18.

<sup>m</sup> Theophylact. Iansen.

<sup>n</sup> Euthym. Rabanus.

<sup>o</sup> Caietan. Ardens. Iansen. ex Origine. <sup>p</sup> Aretius.

<sup>q</sup> Theophylact. Euthym.

<sup>r</sup> Matth. 27. 63.

<sup>s</sup> Iohn 8. 48.

<sup>t</sup> Matth 11. 19.

<sup>u</sup> Luke 9. 18.

<sup>x</sup> Ardens.

<sup>y</sup> Philip. 2. 6.

<sup>z</sup> August. heres. 46.

<sup>a</sup> Theophylact.

<sup>b</sup> Matth 14. 1.

Elius, for that he did so sharply rebuke all degrees of men in his preaching: other said that he was Jeremy, for that he was endued with excellent knowledge, which he learned of no man, and that as Jeremy from his childhood.

Hence we may learne, that the rumors of the vulgar sort are most vsually false, Bugs (as one said) to feare children and fooles. Againe, we note here that there were sundrie discrepant opinions of Christ among those who were not of his schoole, some said he was Iohn Baptist, other Elius, other Jeremias,

Scinditur incertum studia in contraria vulgus;

But his owne Disciples agreed all together in one truth, one speaking it, and all according in it.

Now the reason why men erre so much, and haue so many Creeds almost as heads, is, because they be men; for all men are liers, and being left vnto themselves, are not able to thinke any thing which is good. The Philosophers ingenie was great, and industrie greater, yet because they were not guided by Gods spirit, their imaginations were so vaine, that (as Augustine notes) alij atque alij, aliud atque aliud opinati, Schollers of the same schoole differed among themselves, diffenserunt à magistris discipuli, & inter se condiscipuli, neuer agreeing in any thing but in the vanitie of vanitie. The taletell Astrologers and Chronologers are so constant in their vnconstancie, that it is truly said of them, inter horologia magis conuenit quàm inter exactos temporum calculatores. Erasmus hath obserued the like of the Rabbins, and all Heretickes are in the same predicament, for being once run out of Christs schoole, they be diuided among themselves, hauing confused language like to the builders of Babel, and contrary tales like to the wicked accusers of Susanna. Suane mari magno, &c. quoth a Poet, It is a view of delight, to stand on the shore and to see ships tossed with a tempest on the sea: or in a fortified tower to behold two battels ioyne vpon a plaine: but it is a greater pleasure for the minde of man, to be firmly setled in the certaintie of truth, and from thence to descrye the manifold perturbations, errors, wauerings and wanderings vp and downe of other in the world. Blessed is Peter and blessed are all such, as endeavour to keepe the vnitie of the Spirit in the bond of peace, confessing one Lord, one Faith, one Baptisme.

Whom say ye that I am? As who would say, men haue diuers, yea peruerse iudgements of me, because they be meere men: but what say ye which are more than men, as being directed by the Spirit of God? For S. Hierom, Ardens, Anselme, Druthmarus, vpon the place haue noted an Antibesis here, prudens lector attende, quod ex consequentibus textuq; sermonis, Apostoli nequaquam homines sed diij appellantur. The sonnes of men, as being lighter than vanitie it selfe, haue many fond imaginations of me, but I would know of you which are the sonnes of God, of you which haue seene my wonders, and heard my words, of you which haue long conuersed with me, whom say ye that I am? Simon Peter, as the mouth of the rest, and head man of the quest, answered for all the company saying, thou art that Christ, the Sonne of the liuing God: a short, but a sweet confession, comprehending in one sentence the whole Gospell of Christ, as well concerning his natures, as his offices: he confesseth his natures, in affirming thou which art the Sonne of man, art also the Sonne of the Liuing God: his offices, in auowing, thou art that Christ.

It is a wittie saying of a Bernard, Fides linceos habet oculos, and therefore Simon Bar-Iona, though he beheld Christ with his corporall eyes, in the forme of a seruant, as the sonne of man, yet with his spirituall eyes of faith he perceiued that he was also the Sonne of the liuing God. The Lord is termed a liuing God, to distinguish him from Idols, which are dead gods, having mouthes and speake not, eyes and see not, eares and heare not, neither is there any breath in their mouthes. And for as much as Angels and Kings are stiled Gods in holy Scripture, to distinguish him also from these liuing Gods, he is called the liuing God, in whom all other Gods line, and moue, and haue their being. And because Saints are called often sonnes of God, he is termed the Sonne, insinuating, that Christ is

<sup>c</sup> Matth. 3.
<sup>d</sup> Luke 3.
<sup>d</sup> Ierem 1.5.
<sup>e</sup> Ardens.
<sup>f</sup> Socrates.
<sup>g</sup> Steph Gard Serm, before King Edw 6.
 ann. 1550.
 Idem. lansen.
 con. cap. 56.

<sup>h</sup> Psal. 116. 10.
<sup>i</sup> 2. Cor. 3. 5.
<sup>k</sup> Rom 1. 21.
<sup>l</sup> Lib. 8. de Ciuit.
 Dei, cap. 3.
<sup>m</sup> Idem lib. 18.
 De Ciuit. Dei,
 cap 41.
<sup>n</sup> Theodor.
 Bibliander de
 rat. temp. pag 1.
<sup>o</sup> Annot. in Aiaz. 21.
<sup>p</sup> Gen. 11. 19.
<sup>q</sup> Lucres.

<sup>r</sup> Ephes 4. 3.

<sup>s</sup> Ai. 70n. in loc.

<sup>t</sup> Psal 62 9.

<sup>u</sup> Ma'donal. ex Angustin &
 Chrysost. in loc.
 Idem lansen.
 ton, cap 66.
<sup>v</sup> Steph. Gar-diner 2 bis. p.
 y Anselm.
<sup>w</sup> Melanct.
 Marlorat.
 B. 71.
<sup>x</sup> Selm. 1. in Epiphon.
<sup>y</sup> Psal 135. 16.

<sup>z</sup> Acts 17. 28.

<sup>a</sup> Theophylact.
 Caietan.

not

<sup>c</sup> Iohn 3.16.
<sup>f</sup> Aretius.
Erasmus.

<sup>g</sup> Heb. 1.9.

<sup>h</sup> Leuit. 8.12.

<sup>i</sup> 1. Kin. 19.16.

<sup>k</sup> 1. Sam. 10.1.

<sup>l</sup> Luke 9.20.

<sup>m</sup> Mark. 8.29.

<sup>n</sup> Steph. Gardiner ubi sup.

<sup>o</sup> 1. Pet. 2.25.

<sup>p</sup> Rom 4.25.

<sup>q</sup> Heb. 9.24.

<sup>r</sup> Ioh. 2.1.

<sup>s</sup> Chrysost.

Theophylact.

Iansen.

<sup>t</sup> Sic. Gardiner.

<sup>u</sup> James 4.6.

<sup>v</sup> Rom. 1.22.

<sup>w</sup> Erasmus.

<sup>x</sup> Com. in loc.

<sup>y</sup> Anselm.

Iansen.

<sup>z</sup> Hilarius.

<sup>aa</sup> Anselm.

<sup>ab</sup> Ardens.

<sup>ac</sup> Eutbym.

<sup>ad</sup> Ser. 2. in nat.

Pet & Paul.

<sup>ae</sup> Iohn. 6.29.

<sup>af</sup> Matth. 11.27.

<sup>ag</sup> 1. Tim. 4.3.

<sup>ah</sup> Iohn. 17.3.

<sup>ai</sup> Deut. 28.

nor a sonne of God by grace, but the Sonne of God by nature, that <sup>e</sup> only begotten Sonne of God, <sup>i</sup> μονογενής. As for his offices, it is laid <sup>f</sup> Emphatically, <sup>g</sup> at Iesus is <sup>i</sup> Χριστός, not a Christ only, but also the Christ, or that Christ, euen the promised Messias of the world, for so that word is expounded, Iohn 1.41. We haue found the Messias, which is by interpretation the Christ. Iesus then is that annointed of God, annointed with oyle of gladnesse <sup>g</sup> about his fellowes, our annointed King to gouerne vs, our annointed Prophet to teach vs, our annointed Priest, who did suffer and offer vp himselfe for our sinnes, and for the sinnes of the whole world. <sup>h</sup> Aaron the Priest was annointed, <sup>i</sup> Elisa the Prophet annointed, <sup>k</sup> Saul the King annointed. In the Sauour which is Christ, all these meet, that he might be a perfect Sauour of all, he was all. A Priest after the order of Melchisedech, Psal. 110.4. A Prophet, to be heard when Moses should hold his peace. Deut 18.18. A King to saue his people, whose name should be the Lord our righteousnesse, Ier. 23.6. Dauids Priest, Moses Prophet, Jeremies King, and these formerly had met double, two of them in some other; Melchisedech, King and Priest; Samuel, Priest and Prophet; David, prophet and King, neuer all three, but in him alone, and so no perfect Christ but he: but he all, and so perfect. Thus in S. Peters confession, euery particle and article hath his force, thou which art the Sonne of man, as being borne of Mary the Virgin, art the Christ the Sonne of the liuing God. S. Luke <sup>l</sup> reports that Peter answered the Christ of God, and <sup>m</sup> S. Marke saith only, thou art Christ, whereas our Euangelist, here, thou art the Christ the Sonne of the liuing God, <sup>n</sup> but all in effect is one, seeing Christ alone is the whole: for he that confesseth thorowly Christ, is thorowly a Christian, and doth hereby confesse him to be the Sonne of God, and Sauour of men, euen that annointed <sup>o</sup> Bishop of our soules, who <sup>p</sup> died for our sinnes, and is <sup>q</sup> raised againe for our iustification, and <sup>r</sup> appeareth in the sight of God <sup>s</sup> for vs as our agent and <sup>t</sup> aduocate.

Blessed art thou Simon Bar-Iona] Vpon Peters answer, thou art the Christ, the Sonne of the liuing God, Iesus replied after this sort, <sup>u</sup> as if he should haue said, I am the naturall Sonne of God, as thou art the sonne of Iona. Mystically Simon signifieth obedience, and Iona a done: to <sup>v</sup> signifie that euery Scholler in Christs schoole must haue these two properties, obedience and simplicitie. Curious pride is a great let in Christianitie, <sup>w</sup> God resisteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble. The Philosophers in <sup>x</sup> professing themselues to be wise, became fooles, and were so farre from acknowledging Iesus for the Sonne of God, as that the preaching of Christ crucified, seemed foolishnesse vnto them, 1. Cor. 1.23. <sup>y</sup> or Simon is called the sonne of a doue, becaule flesh and blood reuealed not this mysterie, but the Holy Spirit which appeared in the likenesse of a doue, Matth. 3.16. or as <sup>z</sup> Hierome, Bar-Ionas is put for Bar-Iohanna, the sonne of Iohn, as Christ in the 21. Chapter of S. Iohns Gospell at the 15. verse. Now Iohanna signifies the grace of God, insinuating (as the same Father and <sup>aa</sup> other Doctores obserue) that Peter in vnderstanding this hidden mysterie was the sonne of grace, so Christ in the words immediately following, flesh and blood hath not opened that vnto thee, <sup>ab</sup> not my flesh and blood, for if thou looke vpon me with a corporall eye, thou seest a man and nothing else: not thy flesh and blood, <sup>ac</sup> non consanguinei, <sup>ad</sup> thy father and thy mother taught it not, <sup>ae</sup> this knowledge comes not from other men, or from thy selfe, no flesh and blood, <sup>af</sup> that is, the will and wit of man (as Paul Galath. 1.16. I communicated not with flesh and blood) I say, the wisdom of man hath not opened this vnto thee, but my Father which is in heauen, as <sup>ag</sup> Leo the Great glosseth it, non opinio te terrena fefellit, sed inspiratio celestis instruxit. Faith is the <sup>ah</sup> worke of God, and <sup>ai</sup> no man knowes the Sonne but the Father, and no man commeth vnto me, except my Father draw him, Iohn 6.44. Blessed art thou therefore Simon Bar-Iona, because my Father which is in heauen hath inspired this confession into thee: blessed art thou here, yet more blessed hereafter, as hauing hereby the <sup>aj</sup> promises of the life present, and of that which is to come. So Truth it selfe telleth vs exprefly, <sup>ak</sup> this is eternall life to know God, and whom he hath sent, Iesus Christ. He that is a true beleeuer is <sup>al</sup> blessed in the citie, blessed in the field, blessed in his going going forth, and blessed in his coming home, blessed in the<sup>m</sup> labours of his hands, in the fruit of his ground, in the flocks of his sheepe, blessed in his wealth, and blessed in his<sup>n</sup> woe, blessed in his health, and blessed in his sicknesse also, for the Lord will comfort him when he lieth sicke vpon his bed, and make his bed in his sicknesse, Psal. 41. 3. blessed in all his life, blessed in his houre of ° death, and most blessed in the day of Iudgement, when he shall haue perfect consummation of blisse both in body and soule, Come ye blessed, inheris ye the kingdome, &c.

Vpon this rocke will I build my Church.] Stephen Gardiner preaching vpon this text before King Edward the 6. said, It is a maruellous thing, that vpon these words the Bishop of Rome should found his supremacie, for whether it be super Petram, or Petrum, all is one matter, it makes nothing at all for that his purpose: This place (quoth he) serues only for Christ, and nothing for the Pope: but afterward in the dayes of Queene P Marie, reading this Scripture with the Popes owne spectacles, he maintained that the Bishop of Rome was the supreme head of the Catholike Church, and he bloudily persecuted all those which held the contrary doctrine. And after him in our age ¶ Bellarmine, ¶ Baronius, and other Papiests of most eminent note for learning, cite this text as a pregnant testimonie, to proue S. Peters Lordship ouer the rest of the Apostles; and so (though inconsequently) the Popes unlimited iurisdiction ouer all the Bishops in the world, wherein (as our Diuines haue shewed) they contradict, 1. The Scriptures, 2. The Fathers, 3. Their owne writers, 4. Their owne selues.

The Scriptures asirme plainly, that the Church is <sup>f</sup> built vpon the foundation of the Prophets and Apostles, Iesus Christ himselfe being the chiefe corner stone, to wit, a<sup>r</sup> tried stone, a pretious stone, a sure foundation, and<sup>u</sup> other foundation can no man lay than that which is laid, which is Iesus Christ.

The Fathers anow likewise, that Christ is the rocke vpon which his Church is built, so<sup>x</sup> S. Augustine in many places of his works, Petrus à Petra, non Petra à Petro, quomodo non à Christiano Christus, sed à Christo Christianus vocatur: vpon this rocke then I will build my Church, is nothing else but vpon my selfe the Sonne of the liuing God I will build my Church, edificabote super me, non me super te, and whereas he did once construe this of Peter, he y retracted his opinion, and expounds it of Christ; ¶ Hierome, ¶ Gregorie the Great, ¶ Primasius, ¶ Anselme, accord in the same iudgement.

Other of the most ancient Fathers interpret it thus, vpon this rocke, that is, vpon this faith as being a firme rocke, vpon this confession (thou art the Sonne of the liuing God) I will build my Church, and hell gates shall not preuaile against it. So<sup>d</sup> S. Ambrose, fundamentum ecclesie fides est: so<sup>e</sup> Chrysofome, vpon this faith and confession I will build my Church, fortitudo fidei i petra est, propter quam Simon dictus est Petrus: so<sup>s</sup> Theophylact, this confession is the foundation of all such as belceue: so<sup>h</sup> Gregory Nyssen, delect. testimon. ex vet. testament. de sanct. trinit. contra Iudeos, vpon this rocke, that is, vpon this confession of me to be the Sonne of the liuing God: so<sup>i</sup> S. Augustine, vpon that which thou hast acknowledged and said, I will build my Church: so Cyril and Hilarius, and other Doctors apud Maldonat. in loc. In one word, Ionus sometime Bishop of Orleance writes pe-remptorily<sup>k</sup> lib. 3. de cultu imaginum, that many, yea most expound (vpon this rocke) to be nothing else but vpon this confession of faith in saying thou art the Christ, the Sonne of the liuing God: so that I am occasioned here iustly<sup>l</sup> to returne Campians flourish vpon the papist, patres admiserit, captus est: exclusit, nullus est.

Their owne writers in their commentaries vpon this text accord with vs and the Fathers about this exposition, as namely, Hugo Cardinal, ord. gloss. Dio. Carthusia; Soarez Epif. Conimbricensis; Iohan. Arboreus; Iohan. Ferus; Alphons. Tostatus, and many moe. I conclude this obseruation with<sup>m</sup> S. Ambrose, Christ denied not to his disciple, the grace of this name that he should be called Peter, because he had soliditie of constancie, and stedfastnesse of faith of the rocke, endeavour therefore that thou maist also be a rocke, seeke the rocke not without thee, but within thee, thine act is thy rocke, thy mind is thy rocke, let thine house

<sup>a</sup> Psal. 118.
<sup>n</sup> Psal 119. 71.
<sup>o</sup> Apoc. 14. 13.

P Fox Martyr. examination of Iohn Rogers Martyr. ¶ De Rom. Pont. lib. 1 cap 10 r Tom 1 ad an 34 fol. 207.

<sup>f</sup> Ephes 2. 20.
<sup>e</sup> Elyz 27. 16.
<sup>u</sup> 1 Cor. 3. 11.
<sup>x</sup> Tract 124. in Ioan. & ser. 13. de verbis Dom. secundum Mett. y Revell. lib. 1. cap. 21
<sup>z</sup> Cor in Amos 6.
<sup>a</sup> Moral lib. 31. cap 34.
<sup>b</sup> In Ephes. 2. c In loc.
<sup>d</sup> Lib 6. in Luc. cap de inter. Iesu.
<sup>o</sup> Rom. 5. 3. in Matth.
<sup>f</sup> Idem operis imperfecti. hum. 7
<sup>g</sup> In loc.
<sup>h</sup> Inter opera Nyssen. Latin. Basile fol 255.
<sup>i</sup> Expositi in Epist. Ioan. tract. 10
<sup>k</sup> Halem in monument. bartram. fol 1578.
See B Tomist. Ser before K. Hē 8 on Palm-Sun and letter to Card Puole, asua Fox Martyr.
<sup>l</sup> Rat. 5.
<sup>m</sup> Lib 6. in Luc. cap de interog. Iesu.

be built vpon this rocke, that it may not be beaten with any stormes of spirituall wickednesse: faith is thy rocke, faith is the foundation of the Church, if thou be a rocke, thou shalt be in the Church, because the Church is vpon a rocke, &c.

▪ Bellarmino being compassed about with such a cloud of witnesses, answereth by distinction, affirming that faith as it is considered in it selfe, is not the foundation of Gods house, but as it hath a relation vnto the person of Peter: in which assertion he contradicteth himselfe ° elsewhere both alledging often and approving also the saying of Augustine, Domus Dei credendo fundatur, sperando erigitur, diligendo perficitur. As to make an house (saith he cap. 1. Catechif.) it is needfull first to place the foundation, then to raise the wals, and last of all to couer it with the rooffe, and to doe these things there be some instruments necessarie: so to make in our selues the building of saluation, we need the foundation of faith, the wals of hope, the rooffe of charitie, and the instruments are the most holy Sacraments. It is Bellarmines opinion then in that place, that faith in abstracto considered without any mention of any relation vnto Peter, is the foundation of our iustification and eternall saluation. Now the vniuersall Church, and every particular temple of the Holy Ghost (as Theophylact obserues) haue one and the same foundation, and that is faith, and that faith is not the personall and particular faith of Peter alone, for hell gates (as Abulensis noteth) haue preuailed against it, and Lyra telleth vs, that many Popes haue bene Apostataes, and Io. Arboreus confesseth honestly, that Romanus Pontifex potest esse schismaticus & hereticus. It is a silly shift of Alanus Copus, to say that Peter denied not the faith of Christ; but, his faith faued, he denied no more than Christ: for as reuerend Iewell acutely replies, by this prettie trick a man may haue both Christ without faith, and also faith without Christ. The Fathers then in making faith the foundation of Gods house, meane the common faith (of which a confession is made here by Peter as the mouth of his fellowes, and type of the whole Church) it is the x Creed of the Apostles, and not the singular belcefe of Peter only. Saint Paul told his Ephesians, that they were built vpon the foundation of the Prophets and Apostles, Iesus Christ himselfe being the chiefe corner stone; y that is, vpon Christ as being the foundation of the Prophets and Apostles, vpon that z faith and doctrine which the Prophets and Apostles taught in the a Old and New Testament; the summe whereof is briefly this, that Iesus is that Christ the Son of the liuing God. The same Paul in the same letter affirms, that there is but one Lord, and but one faith: Vna (quoth b Aquine) ratione obiecti sed diuersa ratione subiecti, faith in regard of her especiall object is but one, because there is but one Lord the Sonne of the liuing God; but it is diuers in respect of diuers beleeuers, all which are Peters, & lining stones in the building of Gods house, 1 Pet. 2. 5. If Bellarmino then vnderstand by the faith of Peter, that generall faith that was in all the Apostles, who did all by Peters mouth confesse the same: c then are they all by Christs answer made foundation-stones of the Church as well as Peter. It is certaine that Christ had his Church from the beginning of the world built vpon the foundation of the Prophets, himselfe being the corner stone, set vp in the most conspicuous place thereof, and a head stone in the very top and higest part of all, and therefore he speaks in this text of the continuance and enlarging of his Church among the Gentiles by the ministration of his Apostles.

Among other contradictions of the Papists, it is an axiome receiued in their owne d schoole, symbolica theologia non est argumentaria, that is, we may not fetch an argument in diuinitie from allegories and metaphors, valesse we can elswhere shew that the same thing is taught in a literall sense; but the Papists are not able to produce so much as one Scripture where Peter is expressly called the foundation of the Church, ergo, to raise his absolute Monarchie vpon the bare metaphor of a rocke, is not to build on a firme rocke, but vpon the fickle sand: how they further oppose the Fathers, and e Egyptian like fight one against another in their expositions of this place, see Doctor Fulke in loc. D. Sutlis. de Rom. pon. lib. 2. cap. 2. 3. 4. D. Morton. Apolog. cat. part. 2. lib. 5. cap. 21. 22. M. Mason tract ▪ De Rom. Pont.

lib. 2. cap. 10.
§. respond. si dem.

° Lib. & cap. ubi
sup. presat. Torr.
1. & cat. cap. 1.

¶ Cor. in Mat.
16.

¶ In loc.

¶ In loc.

¶ In loc.

¶ Dialog. 1.

¶ Defens. of Apolog. part. 6
cap. 5. diuis. 2.

▪ D. Mortons
Apolog. part. 2
cap. 21. ob-
iect. 5.
Nos uni dicta dicimus, sed uni unitatem Ecce-siae representant.
Eliensis resp. ad
Apolog. Bellarm.
pag. 214.

¶ Lombard.
Aristem.

Caietan in
Ephes. 2.

z Salmeron in 2.

ad Ephes. d. sp. 6.

a Ambros. in 2.

ad Ephes.

b 2. c. Quest.

4. art. 6.

c D. Fulke in loc.

d Thom. 1. part.
quest. 1. art. 10.
& Caietan. ibid.

° Esay 19. 2.

of Consecration, lib. 4. cap. 2. but especially Casaubon, Exercit. ad Annal. Eccles. Baron. where you shall finde every word of this our text examined most exactly.

The Epistle. ACTS 11.27.

In those dayes came Prophets from the citie of Hierusalem vnto Antioch, &c.

The contents of this text are dearth and death; the dearth is generall, a great dearth thorowout all the world: the death is particular, of one person only, to wit, of James the brother of Iohn, whose memorie we celebrate this day.

In the dearth obserue

1. Gods iustice in punishing the wicked, with a dearth, and that a great dearth, and that thorowout the world.
2. Gods mercie in preferring the godly, foretelling it by his Prophet Agabus, and so consequently preventing the rage of it by the provident care and charitable contributions of Disciples and brethren.

In the death obserue the - Murder, Herod the King.

- Martyr, James the brother of Iohn.
- Matter, or cause why, for that he was of the Church.
- Manner, with the sword.

Dearth is one of Gods foure sore iudgements, Ezech. 14. 21. Barrennesse of the ground is a maine string of his whip against sinne, when (saith he) the land sinneth against me by committing a trespassse, then I will stretch out mine hand upon it, and will breake the staffe of the bread thereof, and will send famine upon it. If ye will not obey me, nor hearken vnto my Commandements, & I will make your heauen as iron, and your earth as brasse, your strength shall be spent in vaine, neither shall your land giue her increase, neither shall the trees of the land giue their fruit. Famine then is brought vpon a kingdome by Gods appointment, and that for the finnes of the land: and surely S. Luke points at the causes of this vniuersall dearth, in saying it came to passe in the dayes of Claudius Caesar. For by the worlds Emperour we may iudge much of the worlds estate, the vices of Princes first infect the Nobles, and then afterward the Nobles infect the Gentlemen, and the Gentlemen in fine corrupt the Commons, qualis rex, talis grex, such Prince, such people. It is reported of this Claudius, that he did indulgere conuinijs & concubinijs offuscitate, growing, through his intemperance, so dull and vnfit for any good seruice, that his mother vted to say, he was a monster of men, a worke of nature begun, but not finished: he got his Empire by corrupting the souldiers, and during his reigne he serued his belly, committing all vncleannesse euen with greedinesse; no maruell then if the Lord sent a dearth in the dayes of Claudius, no wonder if he denied the fruits of the ground vnto such a drunken and dissolute generation: in our age moe than one Claudius reignes, there be many Kings of good fellowes in the world; drunkennesse domineeres in every place (the countrey village not excepted) abusing the manifold blessings of God in wantonnesse and idlenesse: a id therefore we may feare iustly, that the Lord ere it be long will send some great dearth among vs, as he did in the dayes of our forefathers: he hath already whet his sword, and bent his bow, and prepared his arrow to shoor at vs, he hath in these latter yeares turned our Winters into Summers, & our Summers into Winters, so that whereas Christ said, the harvest is great, and the labourers are few: we contrariwise, the labourers are many, but the harvest is little; he hath in the Spring nipped the fruits of our trees, & in Autumne taken away the flocks of our sheepe, he hath also cursed our basket and our dough, in so much as the poore haue long felt a dearth, and the rich also begin to feare a famine, the which is the most grievous of all the foure sore iudgements of God, for the noisome beasts and the sword kill in a moment, but there be many lingring deaths in a dearth, as the Prophet in his Lamentations, They that be slaine with the sword are better than they that be killed with hunger; and to the same purpose Vegetius, ferro sauior fames: And as for the pestilence, there was alwaies in nature so well as in name

<sup>f</sup> Ezech. 14. 13.

<sup>g</sup> Leuit 26. 19
Deut 28. 23.

<sup>h</sup> Amos 3. 6.
<sup>i</sup> Gather in loc.

<sup>k</sup> Trojan symb.
vbi Resuer in symb.
<sup>l</sup> Xpilian in vita Claudij.
<sup>m</sup> Sueton. in Claudio.
<sup>n</sup> Ephes 4. 19.

<sup>o</sup> 1 sal. 7. 13.

<sup>p</sup> Luke 10. 2.

<sup>q</sup> Deut 28. 17

<sup>r</sup> See Lamin. in loc. & in Act. 7. 11.

<sup>s</sup> Ierem Lament cap 4. 9.
<sup>t</sup> De re milit. lib. 3. cap. 3.

<sup>a</sup> *Golden. apud
Lorin. in loc.*

<sup>z</sup> Sev. 3. contra diuites auaros.

<sup>7</sup> Gualter.

<sup>z</sup> 1 Cor. 11. 32.

<sup>a</sup> Iob 2. 10.

<sup>b</sup> Habacuc. 3. 2

<sup>c</sup> Amos 3. 7.

<sup>d</sup> Gen. 5.

<sup>e</sup> Gen. 18.

<sup>f</sup> Gen. 19. 13.

<sup>B</sup> *Caluin.
Salmeson.
Arcularius.*

<sup>h</sup> Musculus.

*Arctius in Matth. 11.
See Lorin. in
Acts 2. 17.*

<sup>i</sup> Rom. 10. 4.

<sup>k</sup> Lombard.

*Aquin. in Ephes. 4.
1 Anselm.*

<sup>BEZ</sup> Zanchius.

<sup>m</sup> Lorin. in loc.

<sup>n</sup> 1 Cor. 1. 23.

so great affinitie betweene λιμοσ and λοιμοσ, that (as <sup>a</sup> Physicians and experience daily reach) after a great dearth ordinarily there followeth a great plague, because men in a scarcitie of victuals, are constrained out of necessitie to feed on vnwholsome and vnsauoury meats: in holy Bible we finde example, that extreme hunger made mothers murderers, and so turned the sanctuary of life into the shambles of death, Lament. 4. 10. The hands of pitifull women haue sodden their owne children, which were their meat in the destruction of the daughter of my people. Famine then, as <sup>x</sup> S. Basil termeth it, is the top of all humane calamities, for whereas the noisome beasts, and the sword, and the pestilence, make quicke dispatch out of miserie: fames diutius malum, ocyus torquet, lentius tabefacit, sensim occidit.

In this great dearth it is certaine, that the godly suffered among the wicked, the good among the bad, the beleeuing Christians among vnbeleeuing Gentiles: the Church of Antioch (as we read in the former part of this present chapter) endued with many notable graces, and adorned with this eminent honour, that the Disciples were first called Christians in Antioch, is afflicted now with a grieuous dearth, I say now <sup>y</sup> when her goods were partly taken away by the rage of persecution, and partly giuen away to releue the poore brethren: all the world was infested with this dearth, and the Church (in these respects) more than all other of the world.

Now the reasons are manifold, why God suffers his own people to be crossed: 1. To bridle the lust of our flesh, that we should not be <sup>z</sup> condemned with the world: 2. To teach vs patience, saying with holy <sup>a</sup> Iob, shall we receiue good at the hand of God, and shall we not receiue euill? 3. To shew that he is as well able to deliuer vs in aduersitie, as to keepe vs in prosperitie, Psal. 37 19. The godly shall not be confounded in the perillous time, and in the dayes of dearth they shall haue enough. So we finde here, that God in his <sup>b</sup> anger remembering mercie, comforted his Church in this vniuersall hunger-rot ouer all the world: first in foretelling it, and afterward by stirring vp the charitable mindes of good people to prevent the furiousnesse of it, as well in themselves as in other. He foretold this famine, for surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he reuealeth his secret vnto his seruants the Prophets. He foretold the flood, vnto <sup>d</sup> Noc; the destruction of Sodom, to father <sup>e</sup> Abraham and righteous <sup>f</sup> Lot; the dearth in Egypt, vnto Joseph; Gen. 41. And here the Prophet Agabus is not by starre-gazing, or figure-flinging, or coniuring, or any curious Art, but by the Spirit signified, that there should be great dearth thorowout all the world, which also came to passe in the dayes of Claudius the Emperour.

It is objected here, which is said, Matth. 11. 13. All the Prophets and the Law prophesied vnto Iohn, how then could there be Prophets in this age? To this objection answer is made, that the <sup>h</sup> meaning of those words is, that Christ is the i end of the Law and the Prophets, and so consequently their office, who prophesied he should come, was at an end when Iohn the Baptist had openly preached that he was come: but there continued still in the Church other Prophets of another kinde, for Christ ascending vp on high gaue gifts vnto men, and ordained some to be Apostles, and some Prophets, Ephes. 4. 11. Now these Prophets are such as <sup>k</sup> interpret the words of the Prophets, as <sup>1</sup> Cor. 14. 4. He that prophesieth edifieth the Church, and Matth. 23. 34. Behold (saith our blessed Sauour) I send vnto you Prophets, that is, Preachers. Or else Prophets are such <sup>l</sup> as by the powerfull instinct of the Spirit foretold things to come, as the foure daughters of Philip, Acts 21. 9. and Agabus in this historie. See further Epist. on S. Markes day.

Then came Prophets from Hierusalem vnto Antioch <sup>m</sup> Haply to get some releefe for the poore brethren in Iurie: or else to confirme the new planted Church in Antiochia, for as the <sup>n</sup> Iewes required a signe, so the Grecians sought after wisdom. And therefore the Prophets in speaking with diuers tongues, and in foretelling things to come, manifested exquisite wisdom among those Conuerts, and thereby strengthened them in the faith: it is said here, that many Prophets came from Hierusalem, and yet Agabus onely stood vp, and signified by the Spirit, that there should should be great dearth in all the world, hereby shewing that every Prophet had his particular gift, and that in a certaine proportion according to the will of the Spirit diuiding to every man a severall grace, 1 Cor. 12. See Epist. 2. Sund. after the Epiphany and 10. Sund. after Trinitie.

Then the Disciples, every man according to his abilitie, purposed to send succour] There be two principall heads of Christianitie, faith and good workes. The Disciples of Antiochia were so thorowly converted vnto the faith of Christ, as that they receiued this honour, to be the first of all the world that were called Christians. And now they shew their faith by their good workes, in sending succour vnto the brethren in Iurie. Faith is operative, made full, and fat, and faire by deeds of charitie; for so Luther and Chemnitius write, Fides est radix charitatis, & charitas est fructus fidei, fides efficit filios Dei, charitas probat. And it hath often bene objected against the professors in our age, that our forefathers in the daies of ignorance did more than they knew; but we living in the great light of the Gospell, know more than we doe: many purpose much in their minde, and promise much also with their mouth, who faile notwithstanding in performance. The witleffe vnthrif hath a purpose sometime to follow the works of his calling diligently, yet either all the day bowling or bowzing hold him as a prisoner in his idlenesse: a factious Schismaticke promiseth vnder his hand conformitie, yet sometime to please the people, he runneth a course contrarie to the proceedings of the Church; euen the best men haue their fallings and failings in this kinde, for after we purpose to visit the sicke, and to send succour vnto the poore brethren, either our pleasures abroad, or else profit at home, keepe vs (often I feare) from so good a worke: but it is said of the Disciples here, that they did not only purpose to releue the distressed members of Christ among the Iewes; but also that they performed it indeed: so the text, which thing also they did, and sent it to the Elders, by the hands of Barnabus and Saul. One said, that hell is like to be full of good wishes, but heauen full of good workes. If a good motion then arise in our minde, let vs instantly cherish it, and if it breake forth into promise, let vs according to our abilitie performe it.

Worldly minded Cormorants in a deare yeere desire to make the famine greater, quanto astu, quanto astu, how doe they tweat in braine and body, to hoord vp corne to their neighbours hinderance? if these Merchants had the spirit of prophesie but one yeere, they would afterward turne Gentlemen all the dayes of their life. But the Christians of Antiochia contrariwise being admonished by the Prophet Agabus of a great dearth in all the world, consult presently how to lessen and mitigate the furiousnesse of it, as well in other as in themselves: and this prouision and preuention is not against our Saviours precept, be not carefull for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drinke, care not for the morrow, because Christ in so saying, only forbids extraordinarie diffidence, not ordinarie prouidence; immoderate carking, not a moderate care: for every man must labour in his vocation, and provide for his owne, namely for them of his household, otherwise he denieth the faith, and is worse than an Infidell. If it be not lawfull to care prouidently for to morrow, wherefore should the Scripture magnifie the wisdom of Ioseph, in laying vp corne for seuen yeeres to come? Wherefore did Salomon commend the good house-wife, Prou. 31. 13. and send the fluggard vnto the pisinire, Prou. 6. 6. Wherefore did Paul aduise fathers to lay vp for their children? wherefore had Benjamin a sacke, David a scrip, Christ himselfe a bag? See Epist. 3. Sunday after Trinitie.

Aristotle requires in true liberalitie these foure circumstances especially,

}	Quid , what.
	Quibus , to whom.
	Quando , when.
	Quomodo , how.

The Disciples of Antioch obserued in their almes all these: first for quid, they gaue neither too little, which had bene miserablenesse; nor yet too much, which on the contrarie had bene prodigalitie; but every man sent succour according o Iustus, Ionas, Guahier.

p Chemnit. loc. com. iii. de bonis operibus quest. 4.

q Alsted. Syntem. Theolog. lib. 3. loc. 17.

r Camden. epist. before his Britan.

s Guenara epist.

t Brennius in loc.

u Mat. 6. 25-34

x Ephes. 4. 28.
y 1 Tim. 5. 8.

z Gen. 41. 39. 48

a 2 Cor. 12. 14.

b Gen. 44. 13.

c 1 Sam. 17. 40.

d Iohn. 13. 29.

e Ethic. lib. 4. cap. 1.

f Matth. 5. 42.
s Lib. 1. de ser.
dom. in monte.

b 2 Cor. 9. 6.

i De benefic.
lib. 1. cap. 2.

k Heb. 10. 34.

l Brentius, Caluin, Arcularius.

m Galat. 6. 10.

n 1 Cor. 4. 15.

o Rom. 15. 27.

p 1 Cor. 9. 11.

q Matth. 6. 25.

r Mat. 16. 26.

s Mat. 10. 41.

t Hieron. epist.
ad Nepot. de vita Cleric.

u Idem epist. ad
Ruffic. de viuen.
di forma.

x Psalms. 1. 3.

y Prou. 13. 12.

z De benefic.
lib. 2. cap. 5.

a Avelinus, Brentius, Caluin.

to his ability. We must indeed giue (said Christ) omni petenti, but as Augustine glosseth it sweetly, non omnia petenti, we may not exhaust the fountaine of bounty, but so giue to day that we may likewise giue to morrow, and that not niggardly, for he that soweth sparingly, shall reape also sparingly, and he that soweth liberally, shall reape also liberally.

2. The Disciples here gaue quibus, vnto such as they should, in sending succour vnto the brethren who dwelt in Iewry. Seneca said, Beneficia sine ullo delectu proficimus magis quam damus: as therefore they did not giue profuse, but according to their ability, so likewise not confuse, but addressed their almes vnto those who wanted most, and had deserued best of them. The brethren in Iewry had more need than Infidels, in Antiochia, because they were<sup>k</sup> spoiled of their goods, as Paul witnesseth in an Epist. to them. And these conuerts of Antiochia were debtors vnto the Iewes, <sup>l</sup> as hauing received the sweet comforts of the Gospell from them. It is our dutie to <sup>m</sup> do good vnto all men, especially to those which are of the household of faith, and among the household of faith, about the rest, vnto such as haue bene our spirituall fathers in <sup>n</sup> begetting vs vnto Christ. <sup>o</sup> If the Gentiles be made partakers of the Iewes spirituall things, their dutie is to minister vnto them in carnall things, as Paul told his Corinthians, if we haue soken vnto you spirituall things, is it a great matter if we reape your temporall things? This patterne condemnes exceedingly the practise of some professors in our age, whose chiefe policie, yea pietie, consists in contriuing how to lessen the Clergie-mans estate. The Merchants trade concernes our daintie diet and brauerie, the Lawyers occupation our goods, the Physitians Art our bodie; but the Pastor hath a cure of our soules: now faith Christ in the Gospell, <sup>q</sup> Is not the life more worth than meat, and the body than rayment? and the soule more precious than all? and yet the carnall Gospellers enuie not the prodigious wealth of Merchants, of Lawyers, of Players, al is well if the Priest be poore; this vpon the point is their only Diana, both in publike parlie, and in private conference; they labour to decrease the Ministers wages, and yet increate his worke: the which is like Pharaohs oppressing Gods people, mentioned Exod. 5. Get you straw where yee can finde it, yet shall nothing of your labour be diminished. I know worldlings entertaine some Prophets kindly, but it is not as <sup>r</sup> Christ said, in the name of a Prophet, it is haply for that the Prophet is a kinsman, or a Gentleman, or a merty man, a good neighbour, a good fellow, a man of their owne humour; but a Prophet is not embraced of them in the name of a Prophet. The disciples of Antiochia, because they received the Gospell of some Iewes, acknowledged themselues debtors vnto all Iewes: but vncharitable factious hypocrites in our time, because they haue received a litle hard vsage from some one Preacher, hate the whole reuerend order of the Clergie for the same, <sup>s</sup> Neminem hic specialiter meus sermo pulsauit, generatim de viris disputatio est, qui mihi irascuntur suam iudicant conscientiam, & multo peius de se, quam de me iudicant.

3. For quando, they prouided a medicine so soone as they heard of the maladie, when Agabus had signified by the spirit, that there should be great dearth in all the world, then the disciples, every man according to his ability, purposed to send succour, &c. A good man is <sup>x</sup> like a good tree, that will bring forth fruit in due season. <sup>y</sup> Hope deferred is the fainting of the heart; one bird in the hand is worth two in the bush; in giuing of almes, his dat qui cito dat, is a better rule than sero sed sero: a late largesse contentes not a distressed soule so much, as little giuen opportunely, non bona tam pensat quam benefacta Deus. <sup>z</sup> Seneca who spent many houres in discussing of this argument, giues this aduice, fac si quid facis, tarde velle nolentis est, an non intelligis tantum te gratie demere, quantum more adycis, est proprium libenter facientis cito facere. Lend to thy neighbour in time of his need, Ecclesiast. 29. 2. it is not a good turne, ynlesse it be done in a good time.

4. For quomodo, the disciples of Antiochia bestowed their almes cheerfully and carefully. <sup>a</sup> Cheerefully, for that every man according to his ability purposed to send succour, it was an act not enforced by law, but onely proceeding out of their loue, the which exceedingly comended their bounty, for a benefit consists in the minde more

more than in the mine, <sup>o</sup> manu non tangitur, animo cernitur, & multo gratius venit quod facili, quam quod plena manu datur: and it is said in holy Scripture, that God loveth a cheerfull giver, 2 Cor. 9. 7. <sup>c</sup> He that beleeueth in me (quoth our blessed Saviour) shall have riuers of liuing waters flowing out of his belly; <sup>d</sup> that is, all good works, and all gifts of grace spring out of him, euen by their owne accord, thou needest not to wrest any good deeds out of him, as a man would wring verince out of crabs, because they flow naturally out of him as springs out of rocks. A-gaine, the Disciples here gaue their almes carefully, vying trusty messengers and ministers in this businesse: they sent not their succour vnto the people promiscuously, but to the governours and elders of the Church, that it might be distributed with discretions and distinction, according to the severall necessities of the Saints; and that it might be safely conueied vnto the brethren, it was deliuered into the hands of Barnabus and Saul, men of <sup>e</sup> approued credit.

Hitherto concerning death: it remaines I should now speake of death, to wit, of S. Iames martyrdome, and in it first of the murderer Herod the king, not Herod the great, who butchered the Bethlehemitish innocent infants, Matth. 2. nor Herod the Tetrarch, who beheaded Iohn the Baptist, Matth. 14. but <sup>f</sup> Herod Agrippa, grand-child to Herod the great, the which I finde thus distinguished in <sup>g</sup> verie:

Ascalonitane cat pueros, Antipa Ioannem, Agrippa Iacobum, claudens in carcere Petrum.

This Herod stretched out his hands, and Kings haue <sup>h</sup> long hands, not to cherish, but to vex: for Tyrants delight most in destructive power: <sup>i</sup> not to vex ruffians, or ribalds, or robbers, but certaine of the Church: <sup>k</sup> for the deuill and all his instruments are disquieted at the light of the Gospell. Herod therefore stretched out his hands against the Church, and vexed certaine, <sup>l</sup> that is, some who were strong souldiers in fighting the Lords battell, for God will not suffer the weake to be tempted about their abilitie, 1 Cor. 10. 13. First, Herod killed Iames the brother of Iohn with the sword, and afterward he proceeded further, and tooke Peter also. Iames first dranke of Christs cup, and <sup>m</sup> so consequently was the first of all the twelue Apostles in Christs kingdome, according to the request of his mother in the Gospell allotted for this day: now the reason why God suffers bloudie tyrants to vex his Church is <sup>n</sup> threefold. 1. For the triall and exercise of the godly, quod enim fornax ardo, quod lima ferro, quod aqua panno, hoc confert tribulatio iusto. 2. For the confusion and illusion of the wicked, because sanguis martyrum is semen ecclesie. 3. For the manifestation of his infinite power and wisdom, who can bring light out of darknesse, and vse wicked instruments vnto good purposes.

<sup>b</sup> Genes. 1. 1. 1.
Asic. lib. 1.
cap. 5.
<sup>c</sup> Ioh 7. 38
<sup>d</sup> 7 yndzi pro-
log. vpon Exod.

<sup>e</sup> Concerning Pauls care, see
Rom 15. 1 Cor.
16. & 2 Cor. 8.

<sup>f</sup> Salmeun, Arculari 10.

<sup>g</sup> Guido ex Ly-ran & Aretius ex Paruoldo in
loc. See D. Harmer notes vpon
Euseb. hist. lib. 2.
cap. 10.

<sup>h</sup> Non vbi lon-gas regibus esse manus: Ouid.

<sup>i</sup> Aretius.

<sup>k</sup> Mal. 1. 11.

<sup>l</sup> Salmeun.

<sup>m</sup> Pelagius.

<sup>n</sup> Ardens hom.
in Epist. in festo Petri.

The Gospell. MATTH. 20. 20.

Then came to him the mother of Zebedeus children with her sonnes, &c.

Here bee two parts of this Scripture:

- |  |   |   |
|--|---|---|
| 1. An indiscreet pe-tition, in whichobserue the    | } | Mouer of the suit, a woman and a mother.  |
|  |   | Manner of suing, she came worshipping him and saying, &c.   |
| 2. A discret an-swer to thesame, contain-ing a | } | Suit it selfe, grant that these my two sons, &c   |
|  |   | Correction in particular, addressed especially to the mother and her sons, ye wot not what ye aske, &c.               |
|  |   | Direction in generall, vnto the rest of his Disciples, and in them vnto all Christians, ye know that the princes, &c. |

Then came to him the mother of Zebedeus children] This woman (as it is apparant by comparing Matth. 27. 56. with Marke 15. 40.) was Solome, the sister (as some

<sup>o</sup> Arcelius in loc. vide Thom. Aquin. in Galat. 1. lect. 5.

<sup>p</sup> Matth. 10. 2.

<sup>q</sup> Aquin. ubi sup.

<sup>r</sup> Mark. 1. 3. 40.

<sup>s</sup> Raulin. ser. 2. de Iacob. maio.

<sup>t</sup> Mat. 1. 7. 1.

<sup>u</sup> Luk. 8. 51.

<sup>x</sup> Didac. de

Yanguas con. de S. Iacob.

<sup>y</sup> John 21. 20.

<sup>z</sup> Augustin.

Ardens.

Anselm.

<sup>a</sup> Hieron. in loc.

<sup>b</sup> Cap 10. 37.

<sup>c</sup> Paludensis ser. de S. Iacobo.

<sup>d</sup> In loc.

<sup>e</sup> Melancthon.

Murloras.

Mollerus.

<sup>f</sup> Rom. 1. 5. 4.

<sup>g</sup> Galat. 6. 1.

<sup>h</sup> Hieron.

Anselm.

Caietan.

<sup>i</sup> Act. 1. 6.

<sup>k</sup> Eccles. 29. 5.

<sup>l</sup> Chrysoz. Theophylact. Euthym.

<sup>m</sup> Mat. 26. 39.

<sup>n</sup> 2 Cor. 3. 5.

<sup>o</sup> Philip. 4. 13.

<sup>p</sup> 1 Cor. 13. 7.

<sup>o</sup> some thinke) of Ioseph, husband vnto the blessed Virgin mother of Christ. Her sonnes were P Iames and Iohn, Iames the greater, so called, <sup>q</sup> for that he was elected an Apostle before Iames the sonne of Alpheu, otherwise stiled Iames the lesse. <sup>r</sup> Or Iames the greater, because he was more familiar and great with his master Christ than that other Iames, for (as we read in the Gospels history) Iesus suffered none of his Apostles to see his <sup>t</sup> transfiguration, or the raising of <sup>u</sup> Iairus daughter from the dead, sane Peter, and Iames, and Iohn: or Iames the greater, <sup>x</sup> for that he was endued with great courage to drinke first of Christs cup, and to become the first Martyr of all the 12. Apostles: his brother Iohn was <sup>y</sup> the Disciple whom Iesus loved, who leaned on his masters breast at supper, vnto whose care Iesus on the crosse commended his mother, Iohn 19. 27. These two moue their mother, to moue their master for their advancement, it was she who came worshipping Christ and desiring, &c. but it was by the <sup>z</sup> suggestion and instigation of her ambitious children. And <sup>a</sup> therefore Christ in his answer said not, thou knowest not what thou doest aske, but, ye know not, addressing his speech vnto the sonnes, so well as to the mother: and indeed Saint <sup>b</sup> Marke reports expressly that they came to Christ in their owne name to make this suit, they did vse the mediation of their mother haply, <sup>c</sup> that if Christ in any sort misliked the request, it might be thought a fond womans error; if approued, then it might be granted easily to a mother earnestly suing for her sonnes. Now (saith our text) when the ten heard this, they disdained at the two brethren: all the twelue were faulty, two sinned in ambition, and ten in enuie. Isti (quoth <sup>d</sup> Anselme) ambitiosi, illi inuidiosi, utriq; tamen nobis profuerunt. Iames and Iohn were carnall in their pride, the rest as carnall in their malice: yet we may reape benefit by them all. For here we may see that euen the best men haue their infirmities, and they be recorded in holy Bible for our <sup>e</sup> learning, that we might neither presume, because the chiefe Saints haue had their slips: nor yet despair, because Christ himselfe forgives them, and inioyneth other also to strengthen them. <sup>g</sup> If a man be ouertaken in a fault, ye which are spirituall restore such an one in the spirit of meeke nesse, considering thy selfe lest thou also be tempted.

In the manner of Solomes suing, obserue the time when, and how shee sued: then came the mother of Zebedeus children, &c. <sup>h</sup> That is, after Iesus had tooke his Disciples apart in the way to Hierusalem, and had said vnto them (as you may reade in the words a little before this text) Behold we go vp to Hierusalem, and the sonne of man shall be deliuered vnto the chiefe Priests, and vnto the Scribes, and they shall condemne him to death, and shall deliuer him vnto the Gentiles to mocke, and to scourge, and to crucifie, but the third day he shall rise againe. When the sonnes of Zebedeus heard this, instantly they conceiued, that Christ after his resurrection would <sup>i</sup> restore the kingdome of Israel, and to reigne as a Monarch in this present world. Wherefore they thought it a fit time now to make some motion for their promotion in his kingdome, namely, that one might sit at his right hand, and the other on his left in glory. For the better effecting whereof, their mother Solome commeth vnto Christ, and worshippeth him, and desireth, &c. Ambitious wretches (as S. Iude speaketh in his Epistle) haue the persons of men in admiration for aduantage, k till they receiue, they kisse their hands, and humble their voicc. So long as they be mendicant, they be Friers obseruant, what will they not say, what will they not doe, to serue their owne turnes? the mother here comes worshipping and fawning, and her sonnes flattering and lying, for in the iudgement of <sup>l</sup> many learned Doctors, they did answer rashly, we are able. Christ himselfe was afraid to drinke of this cup, <sup>m</sup> O my father, if it be possible, let this cup passe from me: neuerthelessse not as I will, but as thou wilt. It is enough for the Disciple to be as his Master is, and the seruant as his Lord, Matth. 10. 25. If Iames and Iohn had aduisedly considered of the businesse, they would not haue giuen a peremptorie possumus, but haue rather answered in the words of <sup>n</sup> Paul, of our selues we are not sufficient, all our sufficiencie is of God, o able to doe all things through the helpe of Christ who strengthneth vs. Ambition is charities ape, for as <sup>p</sup> loue for veritie, so ambition for for vanitie, suffereth all things, belceaseth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things. An ingenious man assuredly makes a parenthesis of his good nature, whilst he runneth ambitious courfes, he seldom or neuer returnes to himselfe and true sense, till his suits end. For he must (if he will vnderstand his trade) turne ¶ Gnatho, pleasing euery mans humour, as a reed shaken with euery winde, blowing hot and cold out of the same mouth, holding dissimulation and impudence commendable vertues: in a word, making preferment his God, and Mammon his mediator.

Grant that these my two sonnes] Solome <sup>f</sup> seemes here to beg of Christ for her children especially three things: Ease, riches, honour: Ease, that they may sit: Riches, in thy kingdome: Honour, one on thy right hand, and the other on thy left hand, † that is, next vnto thy selfe, and before the rest of their fellowes, on <sup>u</sup> each hand first. It is ordinarily seene, that mothers are more fond in their loue, and more sollicitous in their care for their children than fathers are, <sup>x</sup> Can a woman forget her child, and not haue compassion on the sonne of her wombe? The reason hereof (as <sup>y</sup> Aristotle teacheth vs) is twofold: 1. Because mothers are well assured that their children are their owne: 2. Because mothers endure more paines than fathers in breeding, in bearing, and in bringing vp of their babes; Honour thy father that begat thee, (said <sup>z</sup> Salomon) and thy mother that bare thee: that bare thee nine moneths in her wombe, twelue moneths in her armes; many yeares in her heart. <sup>a</sup> Ille te diu portauit in utero, diu aluit, & difficiliore infantie mores blanda pietate sustinuit, lauit pannorum sordes, & immundo saepe foedata est stercore, &c. Wherefore though a father in respect of his dignitie (being <sup>b</sup> principium generationis nostrae per modum agentis) is to be loued more than our mother, as being rather principium per modum patientis & materiae; yet our mother (as <sup>c</sup> Phalaris aduisech) is to be reuerenced so much, if not more than our fire, for her affectionate tender care. <sup>d</sup> S. Augustine writes of his mother Monica, Maiori solitudine me parturiebat spiritu quam carne: and in <sup>e</sup> another place, Ita pro nobis omnibus curam gessit, quasi omnes genuisset; ita seruauit, quasi ab omnibus genita fuisset.

Yee wot not what yee aske] For either yee erre very much in the matter, or else in the manner: in the <sup>f</sup> matter, if yee thinke that my kingdome is of <sup>g</sup> this world; in the manner, if yee desire to sit in my kingdome, before yee haue drunken of my cup: I must (as yee shall one day further vnderstand) first <sup>h</sup> suffer, and then enter into glory. <sup>i</sup> If any man will be my Disciple, let him forsake himselfe, and take vp his crosse, and follow me; you must enter into my kingdome through many tribulations, Acts 14. 22. They that sowe in teares shall reape in ioy, Plal. 126. 6. He that will haue wages at night, must labour first about the Lords vineyard in the day, Matth. 20. 8. None receiue the prize before they runne, 1 Cor. 9. 24. And if any man also strue for a materie, yet is he not crowned except he strue as he ought to doe, 2 Tlm. 2. 5. Well then (I tell you the truth) if yee seeke to sit on my right hand and on my left in my kingdome, ye must first drinke of the cup that I shall drinke of, and be baptized with the baptisme that I am baptized with: <sup>k</sup> that is, yee must of necessitie beare the crosse, before yee can weare the crowne.

<sup>l</sup> To him that ouercommeth will I grant to sit with me in my throne, euen as I ouercame, and sit with my Father in his throne. When holy Moses, Exod 33. said vnto the Lord, I beseech thee shew me thy glory; the Lord answered, thou canst not see my face, but thou shalt see my backe parts. <sup>m</sup> Insinuating hereby, that we cannot enter into Christs glory, vlesse we follow him, and see his hinder parts in this world. Why Christ called his sufferers a cup, and baptisme; see Iansen. concord. cap. 104. Theophylact, Aretius, Marlorat, Maldonat, in loc.

Yee shall drinke indeed of my cup] <sup>n</sup> He said not yee can, as being able by their owne vertue: but yee shall, as being made able by grace: but how did they drinke both of Christs cup, seeing John is said in Ecclesiasticall historie to haue died in his bed peaceably? <sup>o</sup> Remigius answereth in one word, Bibit Iacobus in passione, Ioannes in persecutione, Iames dranke of Christs cup in his martyrdome, being

<sup>1</sup> Magdeburg. epist. p. affix. cont. 7.
<sup>2</sup> Budeus lib. 5. de affe.
<sup>3</sup> Paludensis.

<sup>4</sup> Iansenius, Didac. de Tanguas. caetera.
<sup>5</sup> Esay. 49. 15.
<sup>6</sup> Ysaie lib. 9. cap. 7.

<sup>7</sup> Prou. 23. 22.

<sup>8</sup> Hieron. epist. de suspecto conuulso.

<sup>9</sup> Iheron. 2. 2. quest. 25. art. 10.

<sup>10</sup> Epist. 19.

<sup>11</sup> Co. sess. lib. 5. cap. 9.

<sup>12</sup> Confess. lib. 9. cap. 9.

<sup>13</sup> Marlor. 2.

Moberus.

Kilian.

<sup>14</sup> Iohn 8. 36.

<sup>15</sup> Luke 24. 26.

<sup>16</sup> Matth. 16. 27.

<sup>17</sup> Theophyl. 1. 1.

Euzym.

Aretius.

<sup>18</sup> Apocal. 3. 21.

<sup>19</sup> Didac. de Tanguas. cons. de S. Iacob.

<sup>20</sup> Origen apud Aquin. calen. in loc.

<sup>21</sup> Apud Paludens. in loc.

<sup>p</sup> Apocal. 1.9.
<sup>q</sup> Hieron.

<sup>r</sup> Missus in feruentis olei dolium sine solum, illasus exyt. Pa: 03 ad avn. 99.

<sup>t</sup> Io. Orosius in Euang fest. 10.

<sup>u</sup> Euang Lib. 1 de Trinit. cap. 12.
<sup>v</sup> Epist. 141 ad Cesarianos.

<sup>w</sup> Apud Paludeos. in loc.

<sup>x</sup> Ambros. lib. 5. de side. cap. 3.

<sup>y</sup> Hom. in loc.

<sup>z</sup> Musculus. Ianfenius.

<sup>a</sup> Ardens. Didac. de Yanguas.

<sup>b</sup> Epiph. heres. 69. Idem Hieron Chrysol. Maldonat. in loc & Augustin. in Psal 136.

<sup>c</sup> Vbi sup.

<sup>d</sup> Iohn 10 30.

<sup>e</sup> Aretius. Musculus.

<sup>f</sup> Matth. 25. 34

<sup>g</sup> Rom. 8. 30.

being slaine with the sword by cruel Herod, as our Epistle this day witnesseth, and Iohn tasted of Christs cup, as being banished <sup>p</sup> into the Iste Pathmos for the word of God, and for the witness of Iesus Christ. Iohn dranke of the cup of <sup>q</sup> confession, as the three children in the fierie furnace, though he were not actually martyred; actually, I say, for in <sup>r</sup>readines to suffer, he was a very Martyr, yea the <sup>t</sup> Proto-martyr, suffering for Christ vnder the Crosse, when he saw Christ suffer on the Crosse.

But to sit on my right hand, or on my left, is not mine to giue ] Christ saith in his Gospell, chap. 11. vers. 27. All things are giuen vnto me of my Father; and chap. 28. 18. All power is giuen vnto me both in heauen and in earth; and Ioh. 14. 2. In my Fathers house are many mansions, and I goe to prepare a place for you; and Luk. 22. 29. I appoint vnto you a kingdome, &c. How then is it true, to sit on my right hand, and on my left, is not mine to giue? <sup>u</sup> S. Augustine, <sup>v</sup> Basil, <sup>x</sup> Remigius, and <sup>y</sup> other answer thus; It is not mine to giue as I am a man, and allied vnto you; but as I am God, equall to my Father, and heire of all things. Or as <sup>z</sup> Ardens, It is not mine to giue you now, namely, before ye haue drunke of my cup. <sup>a</sup> Or it is not in my power to giue as you conceiue, to wit, in respect of kindred & alliance. <sup>b</sup> By which example, Bishops may learne, not to prefer their nephewes on their right hand and on their left hand in their Diocesse, except they be men of merit. For God saith expressly, Non ascendes per gradus ad Altare meum, Exo. 20. 26. & Melchisedek the first Priest is said, Heb. 7. 3. to haue been without father, without mother, without kindred, hereby signifying, that we must ascend to dignities in the Church of God not by degrees of consanguinitie, but by steps of vertue: or it is not mine to giue to such as you are now, namely, to proud and ambitious men, according to that in 101. Psalme, ver. 7. Who so hath a proud looke, and high stomacke, I will not suffer him in mine house, so that (as <sup>d</sup> Ambrose notes) Asserit non sibi potestatem deesse, sed meritum creaturis; or as Christ here construeth himselfe, it is not mine to giue, but it shall be giuen vnto those for whom it is prepared of my Father. <sup>e</sup> I and my Father are one, and therefore most <sup>f</sup> vnfit either for you to request, or for me to grant any thing contrary to the determination of my Father. His kingdome is an inheritance <sup>g</sup> prepared before the foundations of the world. <sup>h</sup> Whom he did predestinate, them he also called; and whom he called, them he also iustified; and whom he iustified, them he also glorified. Concerning Christs direction here following addressed vnto all his Apostles, and in them vnto all Christians; see Gospell on S. Bartholomewes day.

The Epistle. ACTS 5. 12.

By the hands of the Apostles were many signes and wonders shewed among the people, &c.

Some thing in this Epistle concernes more specially the Pastors, by the hands of the Apostles were many signes & wonders shewed; some thing more specially the people, the people magnified them, and the number of them that beleued in the Lord both of men and women grew more and more; some thing generally both Pastors and people, they were all together with one accord in Salomons porch, insinuating that it was their ordinarie custome to meet in that holy place, not only to preach & pray; but also to consult about the proceedings of the Gospell & busines of the Church. From which assembly no Conuert absented himselfe, either vpon any proud opinion of his own priuate conceits, or vnder pretence <sup>k</sup> that the Temple was now superstitiously prophæd, or for feare of the cõmon enemy the Pharises especially: but al, <sup>l</sup> ὁμοθυμαδον, according, concording, ioyned together for the good of the public weale. Wherin obserue not only their vnanimity, but also their magnanimity, not only their louing cariage one toward another, but also their resolution & zeale for the Gospell, exposing themselves vnto very much danger in a place of such fort and resort. The chiefe point is the working of miracles by the hands of the Apostles, & that is nothing else but an execution of Christs promise, Mark. 16. 17, 18. In my name

<sup>i</sup> Caluin. in loc.

<sup>k</sup> Aretius. Iustina Ionas in loc.

name they shall cast out devils, and they shall lay their hands on the sicke, and they shall recover, &c. of which I haue sufficiently spoken in my notes vpon the Gospell on Ascension day.

The Gospell. L V K E 22. 24.

There was a strife among them; which of them should seeme to be the greatest, &c

CHRIST in this Scripture teacheth his Apostles ambitiously contending for rule, } 1. By precept, The kings of the nations, &c. but ye shall not so be, &c
 2. By patterne, I am among you as one that ministrith, &c.

But ye shall not so be] Or as <sup>m</sup> S. Matthew, it shall not be so among you. Now this kinde of speech is vsed in holy Scriptures, and in our English tongue two manner of waies, either forbidding a thing to be done, or else foretelling a thing not to be done: as a master in saying to his seruant, this shall not be done to day, forbids a thing to be done: but when an Astronomer saith of the weather, it shall not be cold, or hot, vpon such a moneth or day, he doth not forbid, but only foretell a thing that shall not be: so the words, in i. saq., are vsed Apocalyp. 10. 6. and 22. 5. According to this twofold acception, I finde a twofold construction of this clause (but ye not so) first, by way of prophecie; secondly, by way of proposition or prohibition: if it be taken prophetically, then it is a prophecie concerning the Disciples estate either in this, or in the world to come. If in this life, the meaning is briefly this, the kings of the Gentiles do raigne, and they that are in authoritie are called benefactors; but ye not so; that is, I doe foreshew vnto you that ye shall not be so; as if he should say, they in their government are called benefactors, but you exercising authoritie shall be called malefactors: they ruling ill are called good men, ye ruling well shall be reputed euill men: <sup>n</sup> in the world ye shall haue affliction, and ye must of necessitie drinke of my cup, and be baptized with the baptisme that I am baptized with, and so Christ is made to speake that in this place which he saith <sup>o</sup> elsewhere, The disciple is not above his master, nor the seruant above his Lord: If they haue called the master of the house Beelzebub, how much more them of his household? If they haue persecuted me, they will also persecute you: me, who came to minister vnto them, and to giue my life for them; euen so you, which in your authoritie shall intend the good of all, and spend your liues in seruing them all. This sence doubtlesse is true, for by wofull experience we finde it to be so, when as <sup>p</sup> among vs some for their superioritie are called Antichrists; other for their authoritie, tyrants; other for restraining the licentiousnesse of certaine factious people, persecutors.

If we take (but ye not so) for a prophecie touching the life to come, the meaning is, the kings of the Gentiles haue lordship ouer them, &c. but ye not so: that is, in my kingdome (which you falsely conceiue to be vpon earth) I doe foretell vnto you, that it shall not be so. For though I appoint vnto you a kingdome, and ye shall eat and drinke at my table in my kingdome, and sit on seats iudging the twelue tribes of Israel in my kingdome: yet my kingdome is not of <sup>q</sup> this world, ye shall not (I assure you) tyrannize in heauen, as the kings of the nations vpon earth. This sence likewise is good, and fitting other places of Scripture, but it doth not fit our present text: for it wil appeare by comparing one Euangelist with another, that Christs <sup>r</sup> in i. saq., it shall not be, is nothing else but <sup>s</sup> let it not be: for whereas Saint Marke saith, chapter 10. 43. shall be your seruant; and verse 44. shall be seruant of all: S. Matthew chap. 20. 26. hath it in termes imperatiue, let him be your seruant; and S. Luke here, he that is greatest among you, let him be as the least, and he that is chiefe, as he that doth serue. These termes of command insinuate that our blessed Sauour spake (vos autem non sic) imperatiuely, forbid-

<sup>m</sup> Mat. 20. 26.

<sup>n</sup> Iohn 16. 33.

<sup>o</sup> Mat. 10. 20.
Iohn 15. 20.

<sup>p</sup> See dangerous positions vnder pretence of reformatiō, lb. 2. cap. 5. 7, 8, 10, 11, 12, 13.

<sup>q</sup> Iohn 18. 36.

<sup>r</sup> Piscator schol. in Mat. 20. 26.

ding a thing to be done. Wherefore let vs examine two points especially; first, what is said; secondly, whom it concernes.

Some referre so to the word benefactors, here translated gracious Lords, making the sense to be, they that are in authority, are called gracious Lords, but ye not so; that is, ye shall not be called gracious Lords. Other referre so to the verbes, reigne and rule, making the sense thus, the kings reigne, and great men rule, but you not so; that is, ye shall not rule: other attribute so to the same verbes, yet make the construction other wise, the kings of the Gentiles aoe rule, but ye not so; that is, ye shall not so rule, to wit, as the kings of the nations rule. So that either titles of honour are forbidden as gracious Lords, or ruling, or else so ruling. The Novellists in the first exposition haue condemned the titles of our Archbishops; in the second, the iurisdiction of our Bishops; our * Diuines therefore like best of the third, affirming that Christ here prohibited neither titles of honour, nor ruling, but only so ruling.

Not titles of honour, as Lord, ruler, benefactor: for as Christ in saying y elsewhere, be not ye called Rabbi, for one is your master: and call no man father upon earth, for one is your father which is in heauen; and be not called Doctors, &c. 2 forbids not simply the names of Rabbi, father, and Doctor; for a childe may call his parent father, and a scholler may call his teacher Doctor, and a seruant may call him vnder whose government he liues master; and so Paul called himselfe the Doctor of the Gentiles, and the Corinthians father. As I say Christ there forbids not absolutely the names of father and master, much lesse the functions; but only the pharisaicall affection, and arrogant affectation of superioritie: so Christ here likewise forbids not his Apostles to be called Lords, or rulers, or benefactors: but condemnes onely the carnall ambition of these titles, and insolent vsing of the same. For we reade in holy Scripture, that these titles were giuen to Christ and his Disciples, as *Iohn 13. 13. Ye call me master, and Lord (saith he) and ye say well, for so am I. Yea his Apostles are stiled by that title which is rendred elsewhere Lords, Acts 16. 30. Lords, what must I doe to be saued, said the Iaylor to Paul and Sil us? and yet they reprehended not this title, which they would haue done had it beene vnlawfull; as * Paul and Barnabas rebuked the men of Lystra when they would haue sacrificed vnto them as vnto Gods, O men, why do ye these things? so likewise Preachers of the word are stiled rulers, Heb. 13. 7. Remember those which haue the rule ouer you, who haue preached vnto you the word of God: and verse 17. of the same Chapter, obey those which haue the rule ouer you, and submit your selues, for they watch for your soules. Hence the parsonages in England were termed anciently Rectories, and the Parsons Rectors: as for the stile gracious Lord, vrged so much by the Novellists against our reuerend and honourable Primats: answer is made that there is not one syllable in the word imperator that signifieth a Lord. It is true that our learned English Interpreters in old time sought by (the periphrasis) gracious Lords, to set downe the meaning of Christ, vsing Lord for a title of honour, and gracions for a title of doing good. But our new translation expresseth it better in reading benefactors: the Kings of the Gentiles exercise Lordships ouer them, and they that exercise authority vpon them are called benefactors: so Beza, benefici vocantur: so the vulgar Latine, Erasmus, Ro. Stephanus, and other as well ancient as moderne Interpreters: so that the clause vos autem non sic, is referred by the two other Euangelists, and almost all learned expositors vnto the fond ambition and tyrannicall oppression of the Gentile Kings, and not vnto their titles or names. Indeed we finde that the Kings of Egypt and of other 8 nations vain-gloriously desired to be called imperatorum significans benefactors, when as they deserued rather the names of tyrants and oppressors: as the Popes of Rome haue called themselues (I verily thinke contrary to Christs but you not so) Clement, Pius, Boniface: when they were most vnmmercifull and impious malefactors. All that may be gathered hence then is, that the Kings of the Gentiles assumed flattering titles vnto themselues, being indeed nothing lesse than that which their stiles imported; and it may bee a good admonition*

c T.C Reply to D. Whigfist answer to the admonit pag. 11. sect 1. 2.

c T.C. ubi sup. pag 10. Marlorat. & Piscator. in Mat. 20. 25, 26.

▪ Theophylact. Enthym. Bucor. Musculus, in Matth. 20.

* D Whigfist defence of his answer to the admonit cap 1. diuision 1. following the Doctors about cited.

γ Matth 23. 8.

z D. Whigfist ubi sup. cap. 2.

a 1 Tim. 2. 7.

b 1 Cor. 4. 15.

* Acts 14. 15.

c Loquitur hoc de pastoribus ecclesie sicut D. Fulke, Marlorat. Piscator in loc. d T.C. ubi sup.

e D Whigfist ubi sup.

f Caluin apud Marlorat in loc. Matth 20 25. See prolog. of Ecclesiasticus & Strabo Geograph. lib. 17. & Plutarch in vita Ceriali.

g Clemens K. of Sparta so called.

admonition for all men, especially for Clergy men, to frame their liues answerable to their names and titles of honour giuen vnto them. An ambitious desire to be called benefactor is prohibited here, but the name it selfe is commendable, for Saint Peter applieth it vnto Christ, Act. 10. 28. Iesus of Nazareth went about doing good, and <sup>h</sup> S. Paul exhorteth vs to doe good vnto all men, especially to them of the household of faith.

As for ruling, we say that it is against all sense, that where the titles of rulers are giuen, there ruling should be denied: nay Christ in the word immediatly following (he that is greatest among you, let him be as the least, &c.) insinuates that there must be some great among them. He saith not (as <sup>i</sup> Musculus obserues) no man ought to be chiefe among you, which he would haue said, if it had not bene lawfull in the kingdome of God for some to be great and chiefe, or if it had bene necessary that all should haue bene in all things equall, The celestially spirits are not equall, the starres are not equall, the Disciples themselues were not in all things equall. It is not therefore Christs meaning to haue none great or chiefe among Christians, seeing our state requires necessarily that some be superiour, and other inferiour. So <sup>k</sup> Martin Bucer, the fond Anabaptists collect here that no man may be together a Christian, and a magistrate, because Christ said to his Disciples, it shall not be so among you, not considering that those which according to the will of the Lord beare rule godly, nihil minus quam dominari, immo maxime seruire, & tanto pluribus quanto pluribus praeferunt, doe nothing lesse than domineere, yea verily doe most of all serue, and euen so many doe they serue, ouer how many fouer they beare rule. So Chrysostome, Theophylact, Euthymius, and it is the <sup>l</sup> common opinion of other writers, that these words of Christ doe not condemne superioritie, Lordship, or any such like authoritie: but onely the ambitious desire of the same, and the tyrannicall vsage thereof. If Christ here would haue forbidden ciuill government in all men, he would haue said, the Kings of Israel haue rule, but ye not so: or if his intent had bene to forbid it in Ministers only, then he would haue said, the Priests of Israel rule, but ye not so; but in saying, the Kings of the Gentiles beare rule, but ye not so: he doth evidently shew that he mislikes onely such an insolent kinde of ruling as the Gentiles vsed. He condemnes neither temporall authoritie, nor Ecclesiasticall: not temporall authority, whether it be supreme or subordinate; not supreme, for <sup>m</sup> Paul appealed to Caesar as supreme gouernour, aduising euery soule to be <sup>n</sup> subiect vnto superiour powers; not subordinate, for <sup>o</sup> S. Peter gaue this rule concerning Rulers, Submit your selues to euery ordinance of man for the Lords sake, whether it be to the King as to the chiefe head, or vnto Governours, as vnto them that are sent of him, for the punishment of euill doers, and for the laud of them that doe dwell.

Not Ecclesiasticall authoritie, for S. Peter notwithstanding this (but you not so) iudicially late vpon Saphira: and Paul exercising this authoritie, deliuered Hemineus and the incestuous <sup>r</sup> Corinthian vnto Satan. And the same Paul exhorts Timothie the Bishop of Ephesus, <sup>s</sup> against an Elder receiue none accusation vnder two or three witnesses. He grants vnto Timothie, to receiue bills of complaint, and so iudicially to proceed against Elders in citing them, and examining them, and if need be, deposing them.

Well then, if Christ here forbade neither titles of Rulers, nor yet ruling it selfe, whether it be ciuill or Ecclesiasticall: it remaines, that he prohibited only foruling, that is, such a tyrannicall kinde of government as the Gentile Kings vsed, and that ambitious desiring of the same which ruled in them. And indeed Christ often in the Gospell vseth to call backe those that are his, from errors and corrupt affections, by the behauiour of the Gentiles, Matth. 6. 7. The Gentiles doe thinke, that by their much babling they shall be heard, be not ye therefore like vnto them: and in the same chapter vers. 31, 32. Take no thought, saying what shall we eat or what shall we drinke, or wherewith shall we be clothed, (for after all these things seeke the Gentiles) but seeke ye first the kingdome of God, &c. And that this is Christs meaning, I proue by these three reasons collected out of the context it selfe,

<sup>h</sup> Galat. 5. 10.

<sup>i</sup> Com. in Mat. 20. 26.

<sup>k</sup> In Mat. 20. 26
Idem Lusher
posit maior.
in seculo Bartho.

<sup>l</sup> D. Whigfif ub: sup.

<sup>m</sup> Acts 25. 11.

<sup>n</sup> Rom 13. 1.

<sup>o</sup> 1 Pet 2. 13.

<sup>p</sup> Acts 5.

<sup>q</sup> 1 Tim. 1. 20.

<sup>r</sup> 1 Cor 5. 5.

<sup>s</sup> 1 Tim. 5. 19.

1. He saith Matth. 20. 25. and Marke 10. 42. Ye know that the Kings of the Gentiles, speaking of those Rulers they knew, and they were Tyrants and oppressors, as Pontius Pilate who condemned Christ an innocent, in whom he found no fault; and Herod Antipas, who beheaded John the Baptist (a iust and holy man, whom hereuerenced and heard in many things) at the request of his minion; and Herod the Great, who butchered all the male children in  $\beta$  Bethelcm, and vnder presence to worship, eagerly sought to worrie Christ in his cradle: ye know that these Kings now reigne, but ye not so, that is, I would not haue you so to reigne.

2. Κατακυβησεις, vsed in Matthew and Marke, is to tyrannize; so learned Erasmus in his  $\gamma$  Paraphrase, Qui principatum gerunt inter gentes, dominatum ac tyrannidem exercent in illos quibus imperant, and in his annotations, dominantur in eas, siue aduersus eas. So Musculus in his comment vpon these words in S. Matthew, non regunt populum, sed premunt suisq; afflictibus seruire cogunt: so Benedict. Aretius, κατακυβησεις, est dominari cum aliena  $\alpha$  tyrannide, & κατακυβησεις, in potestate violenter tenere: so κατακυβησεις is taken in other places of the new Testament, as namely,  $\tau$  Pet. 5. 3. and Acts 19. 16. Whereas it is objected, that in our present text the simple verbe is vsed, and therefore not tyrannic but iurisdiction is forbidden: answer is made that this of S. Luke must be construed by the places of Matthew and Marke, seeing all three meane one and the same thing by the content of all Harmonies.

3. Christ expounds himselfe thus in the words immediately following, I  $\tau$  the greatest among you be as the least, and the chiefe as he that serueth.  $\beta$  As if he should say, the Kings of the nations are Tyrants in their gouernment, making mischief their minister, and lust their law: but I would haue you to beare rule so moderately, that euen the Soueraigne may behaue himselfe as a seruant, and the Master as a Minister. I would haue Princes among you to be  $\epsilon$  nursing fathers vnto the Church, and Prelates among you to be  $\delta$  Pastors of my people. So  $\epsilon$  S. Paul exercising authoritie, said, we preach not our selues, but Christ Iesus to be the Lord, and our selues your seruants for Iesus sake, and in  $\epsilon$  another place, I made my selfe a seruant vnto all men. A Minister must (as it is in our English phrase) serue his cure, a magistrate must also minister vnto those which are vnder him, euen the King himselfe is a great seruant of the common weale: he must (as  $\xi$  Iob speakes) become eyes to the blinde, and feet to the lame, he must with  $\eta$  Epaminondus watch, that other may the more securely sleepe; and labour, that other may the more freely play. Magna seruitus magna fortuna, quoth  $\iota$  Seneca, nam ipsi Casari cui omnia licent, propter hoc ipsum multa non licent: omnium domos illius vigilia defendit, omnium motum illius labor, omnium delicias illius industria, omnium vacationem illius occupatio. As those Princes are most vnprofitable, qui nihil in imperio nisi imperium cogitant, which in their Empire thinke of nothing so much as of imperiousnesse: so they doubtlesse are most happy to the state, who being greatest are as the least, and being chiefe as they that serue. I conclude this obseruation in  $\kappa$  Bernards aduice to Pope Eugenius, prasis vt provideas, vt consulas, vt procures, vt serues, prasis vt profis, &c. O blessed is that faithfull and wise seruant, whom his master when he commeth shall finde so ruling ouer his house.

Thus haue I shewed what is said, let vs see now whom it concernes; it is certaine that Christ spake this vnto his Apostles onely, but in them vnto some other representatiuely; the question is then here whether he spake representatiuely to the whole Church, that is all Christians; or else representatiuely to the Ministers of the Church only. We say with Aretius, Bucer, Musculus, in their Commentaries vpon Matth. 20. that he doth vnderstand all Christians, as well Lay-men as Clergy-men, and this also we proue by these reasons ensuing.

1. Christ in this chapter immediately before, and also presently after, vsing this word you, and speaking vnto his Disciples and none but them (as in this place) speaketh vnto them as representing the whole Church, and not onely the Ministers, as vers. 19 This is my body, which is giuen for you; and vers. 20. This cup is the new testament in my bloud, which is shed for you, by you, though it be spoken only to $\epsilon$  Ioh 19. 4. 16.

$\mu$  Mar. 6. 20. 27.

$\alpha$  Matth. 2. 15.

$\gamma$  In Matth. 20.

$\zeta$  Com. in Matt. 20. 25.

$\alpha$  Sum acerbitate quadam, as the compiler of the lesser & latter annotations vnder *Bezæ*s name, in Mat. 20. 25.

$\beta$  Ardens. Musculus. Bucer.

$\epsilon$  Esay 43. 29.

$\delta$  Ephes 4. 11.

$\epsilon$  2 Cor. 4. 5.

$\epsilon$  1 Cor 9. 19.

$\xi$  Iob 29. 15.

$\eta$  Plut. arch com. ad prin. in- doctum.

$\iota$  Consolat. ad

Polybium.

$\kappa$  Lib. 3. de considerat.

$\iota$  Matth. 24. 46

the Disciples, is not vnderstood the ministers only, for if Christs body were giuen, and his blood shed only for them, it would follow that none should be sanctified but Ministers, and that is contrary to the text <sup>m</sup> elsewhere, Christ died for all; againe vers. 29 I appoint vnto you, as my Father hath appointed vnto me, a kingdome. Where by you, he meanes all true Christians of whatsoeuer estate, qualitie, degree: for as <sup>n</sup> many as received him and beleued in his name, to them he gaue power to be the sonnes of God, and if they be sonnes and children of God, then heires also, Rom. 8. 17. So that if thou wilt haue any part in Christ and his kingdome, then thou must also take some part of this text, thou must become as one of vs, and be numbred among these you, but ye not so.

2. The opposition here which is betwene Gentiles and you, doth euidently proue that it is spoken vnto the whole Church; as for example, the Kings of the Gentiles doe tyrannize ouer them, that is, ouer the people: among them are Kings tyrannizing, and people tyrannized: but you not so, that is, I doe command that among you there should be neither Kings tyrannizing, nor people tyrannized. It is thus with them, it shall not be so with you Ministers, is no good opposition; it is thus with the Gentiles, it shall not be thus with you Christians, is a fill and a fit antithesis, the like whereof is found, Matth. 6. 7, 8. 31. 32. Luke 12. 29, 30. 1 Theff 4. 4, 5.

3. This place compared with that of Matth. chap. 23. vers. 8, 9 shewes plainly that it is spoken vnto the whole Church, for Christ in that place speaking of the same mater, vseth a like forme of words, as for example, the Scribes and the Pharisees are called Rabbi, &c. but be not ye so called. Now that he deliuered this exhortation as well to the people as to the pastors, is apparent in the very first verse of the Chapter, then spake Iesus to the multitude, and to his Disciples. I will end this exposition with an <sup>o</sup> Epitaph which I thinke may serue for a glosse to the whole Gospell.

*Hic humilis diues (res mira) potens pius, vltor Compatiens, mitis cum pateretur erat.
Noluit esse suis Dominus, studuit pater esse, Semper in aduersis murus & arma suis.*

<sup>m</sup> 2 Cor. 5. 15.

<sup>n</sup> John 1 12.

<sup>o</sup> Epitaph Roberti Lincol. episc. apud Huminton hist. lib. 7. pag 218.

The Epistle. 2 COR. 4. 1.

Seeing that we haue such an office, &c.

THis text is part of S. Pauls apologie iustifying his doctrine as wel for the matter as the manner against all the slanders of his aduersaries the false Apostles:

Hee remembers here more particularly three vertues in his preaching, {
Sedulitie, seeing we haue such an office, euen as God hath had mercie on vs, we goe not out of kinde, or wee faint not.
Sinceritie, but haue cast from vs the cloakes of vn honesty.
Humilitie, for we preach not our selues, but Christ Iesus to be the Lord, and our selues your seruants for Iesus sake.

Seeing that we haue such an office ] P Two things especially caused Paul to be diligent in his office. 1. The worthinesse of his ministry, seeing that we haue such an office. 2. The goodnesse of God in calling him to such an high calling, euen as God hath had mercie on vs. The ministracion of the Gospell (as bee shewed in the Chapter before) doth excell <sup>n</sup> in grace and glory the ministracion of the law: In grace, for the letter killeth, but the spirit giueth life, the law being the ministracion of condemnation, but the Gospell the ministracion of righteousnesse; In glory, both in respect of countenance, for it is more honourable to be the minister of mercy, than executioner of iudgement: and in respect of continuance, for Moses glory is done away, but the Gospels ministerie remaineth: all Moses glory

<sup>P</sup> Aretine, Discip. caior.

<sup>n</sup> See Epist. 1 2. Sun. after Trinitie.

<sup>e</sup> Matth. 11. 13
<sup>f</sup> Iohn 1. 17.
<sup>c</sup> 1 Cor. 13. 10.

<sup>a</sup> Gal. 1. 1.
<sup>x</sup> Rom. 1. 1.
 Acts 13. 2.
<sup>y</sup> 2 Cor. 1. 1.

<sup>z</sup> Theophylact.
 Aquin.
 Anselm.
<sup>a</sup> Hieron.
 Primasius.
 Lombard.
<sup>b</sup> Maiorati.

<sup>c</sup> 2 Tim. 4. 7.

<sup>d</sup> 2 Cor. 6. 4.

<sup>e</sup> B. Latymer.
 ser. at Pauls.
<sup>f</sup> 1 Pet. 5. 8.
<sup>g</sup> Matth. 23. 15

<sup>b</sup> Aretius.
<sup>i</sup> Lombard.
 Aquin.
<sup>k</sup> Theophylact.

<sup>l</sup> Anselm.
<sup>m</sup> Matth. 7. 15.
<sup>n</sup> Aretius.
 Marlorat.
 Bezæ.
<sup>o</sup> Cap. 2. ver. 17.
<sup>p</sup> Aquin.
 Lombard.
 Anselm.
<sup>q</sup> Primasius.
<sup>r</sup> Bullinger.
<sup>s</sup> Apoc. 22. 18.
<sup>t</sup> Theophylact.
<sup>u</sup> 2 Cor. 11. 31
<sup>x</sup> Aquin.
 Aretius.
 Bezæ.

was but a type of Christs glory, now the substance being come, the shadow vaniseth; <sup>r</sup> all the Prophets and the law prophecied vnto Iohn, but <sup>t</sup> truth and grace came by Iesus Christ. As farre then as the Sunne doth obscure the lesser lights; euen so farre the Gospell exceeds in glory the Law, <sup>v</sup> for when that which is perfect is come, then that which is imperfect is abolished.

The second thing that made Paul constantly diligent in his function, is Gods mercy shewed on him in his office, being an Apostle, <sup>a</sup> not of men, neither by man, but by Iesus Christ, <sup>x</sup> put apart to preach the Gospell by <sup>y</sup> the will of God. I was (saith he 1 Tim. 1.) both a blasphemour, and a persecutor, and an oppressor, but Christ receiuing me to mercy, put me in his seruice, by whose grace I am whatsoeuer I am, 1 Cor. 15. 10. wherefore seeing we haue such an excellent office, so gracious, so glorious; and seeing God hath (out of the riches of his mercie, <sup>z</sup> not out of any worth of our owne merit) called vs vnto such an office, we faint not in this our ministerie for any tribulation or trouble whatsoeuer. <sup>b</sup> So Paul expounds himselfe in this present Chapter, we are troubled on euery side, yet not distressed: in pouertie, but not in despaire: persecuted, but not forsaken: cast downe, but not cast away: therefore we faint not, for though our outward man perissh, yet the inward man is renued daily, for our light affliction which is but for a moment, causeth vnto vs a farre most excellent and an eternall weight of glory, while we looke not on the things which are seene, but on the things which are not seene, for the things which are seene are temporall, but the things which are not seene eternall. As if he should say, seeing our worke is excellent, and our reward (when we haue <sup>c</sup> fought our fight and ended our course) most excellent: we slacke not our dutie for any crosse or care, but <sup>d</sup> approue our selues as the ministers of God in all things, in afflictions, in necessities, in anguishes, in stripes, in stripes, in labours, &c. by honour & dishonour, by bad report and good report; as sorrowing, and yet alway reioicing; as poore, yet making many rich; as hauing nothing, and yet possessing all things.

We haue cast from vs the cloakes of vn honestie ] For as much as the <sup>e</sup> deuill is the most diligent preacher in the whole world, <sup>f</sup> walking about as a roaring lion seeking whom hee may deuoure, and his agents <sup>g</sup> compasse sea and land to make men of their profession: our Apostle to his industrie further addeth in his preaching sinceritie, we cast from vs the cloakes of vn honestie, &c. that is, we haue renounced (<sup>h</sup> as a father vtterly forsakes a disobedient sonne) <sup>i</sup> not only notorious and open crimes, but also those which are hidden, and as it were cloathed with cloakes and colours of excuse: for so Paul <sup>k</sup> construeth himselfe in the clause following, we walke not in craftinesse, &c. that is, we deale not as the false Apostles in <sup>l</sup> hypocrisie, <sup>m</sup> comming vnto you in sheepes cloathing, but inwardly are rauening wolues; neither handle we the word deceitfully, that is, <sup>n</sup> as he said in this <sup>o</sup> Epistle before, we doe not as many, make merchandise of the word. <sup>p</sup> We preach not for gaine or glory, for such are hirelings, Iohn 10. 12. neither doe we sophisticate the word, as they who mingle heauen and earth, and ioyne the ceremonies of Moses law with the Gospell of Iesus Christ as necessarie to saluation, for such are wolues. We preach neither <sup>q</sup> flatteringly, nor falsly, but open the truth, and commend our selues to euery mans conscience in the sight of God, <sup>r</sup> that is, we haue deliuered the word so plainly, so purely, neither <sup>s</sup> adding any thing to it, nor diminishing any thing of it, <sup>t</sup> as that our deeds speaking for our doctrine, we appeale to the consciences of all such as haue heard vs, and to God himselfe who seeth all things, and vnderstandeth euery secret of our heart so well as euery word of our mouth, euen he that knoweth all things <sup>u</sup> knoweth that I lie not.

If our Gospell be yet hid, it is hid among them that are lost. ] <sup>x</sup> Here Paul preuenteth an obiection, If you faint not in opening the truth vnto the consciences of all men, how commeth it to passe that many beleue not your Gospell? He doth answer directly, that the fault is not in the Gospell it selfe, for that is a shining light to such as are in darknesse: but in vnbeleeuers, whose mindes are blinded by the god of this world, lest the light of the Gospell of the glory of Christ (which is the image of God) should shine vnto them.

That is every mans god in this world which he likes best, and loues most, as y gold is a couetous mans god, and z belly cheere a voluptuous mans god, and preferment an ambitious mans god. And a these gods blinde the minde of vnbeleeuers, that they should not in this world see the light of grace, nor in the world to come the light of glory. So we reade Luke 14. when a certaine man had ordained a great supper, and inuited many, saying, come, for all things are ready: the first said, I haue bought a farme, and I must needs goe to see it, Honour was the god that blinded his eyes. Another said, I haue bought five yoke of oxen, and I goe to proue them, Riches was the god that blinded his eyes. A third said, I haue married a wife, and therefore I cannot come, Pleasure was the god that blinded his eyes. See Gospell 2. Sun. after Trinitie.

b Other vnderstand this of the true God, which is the God of this world, for that he made it, according to that of c Dauid, The earth is the Lords, and all that therein is, the compasse of the world, and they that dwell therein. And God is said to blinde the mindes of vnbeleeuers, d Non inducendo malitiam, sed merito potius demerito, precedentium peccatorum subtrahendo gratiam. It is Gods mercie, that the light of the word shines in the hearts of his elect, and it is Gods iustice, that it is hidden among those which are lost. I am come (said e Christ) vnto iudgement in this world, that they which see not might see, and that they which see might be made blinde. And Rom. 11. 8, God hath giuen them the spirit of slumber, eyes that they should not see, and eares that they should not heare: that the Gospell in it selfe a shining light, and the f power of God vnto saluation, should be hidden among the lost, and so become the g fauour of death vnto death; is an heauie, yet an holy iudgement: For, h as they regard not to know God, euen so God deliuers them vp vnto a reprobate sense, i suffering their eyes to be blinded, lest the light of the Gospell should shine vnto them. k As by the bright beames of the Sunne wax is softned, and yet dirt is hardned: euen so by the preaching of the word, the hearts of such as shall be saued are mollified, but the hearts of such as are lost are further hardned. To day then, euen while it is called to day, suffer the words of exhortation, if thou haue an eare to heare, harden not thine heart, but harken vnto Gods voice, speaking in the bookes of his Scriptures, and by the mouthes of his Prophets vnto thee.

l Other vnderstand this of Satan, here called the god, as elsewhere, m the prince of this world, that is, seculariter viuendum, of the wicked of the world, in n whom he ruleth and worketh, as yeelding to his suggestions. It is not Satans power that makes him a god, and a prince, but onely the weaknesse of the wicked, admitting him as a lord of mis-rule; for, he (saith o Paul) is our master to whom we submit our selues as seruants. Christ is the Lord of heauen and earth by a threefold right, p iure creationis, merito redemptionis, dono patris: but the deuill is god of this world onely (quoth Aquine) imitatione, because the wicked of this world are his followers, as hauing their q vnderstanding darkned, and their mindes blinded, and hearts hardned through his enticing temptations. And so Paul in this present Epistle chap. 11. verse 3. I feare lest as the serpent beguiled Eue through his subtiltie; so your mindes should be corrupted from the simplicitie that is in Christ. The Gospell is a glasse where in we may behold Christ; and Christ is an r expresse character and image of God, as him selfe said, s he that hath seene me, hath seene my father, and this is eternall life to know God, and whom he hath sent Iesus Christ, Iohn 17. 3. If then thou heare the word often, and yet continue still in vnbeleefe, the fault is not in God or his Gospell, but in thy selfe and Satan, who blindes the mindes of such as are lost, &c.

We preach not our selues] t Lest he should be thought arrogant in commending his fedulous and sincere preaching, he confesseth humbly that himselfe and his fellowes were not principall agents in their conuersion, but instrumentall onely; Christ is the Lord, and we your seruants for his sake, for it is God that commands the light to shine out of darknesse, which hath shined in our hearts, for to giue the light y Ephes 5. 5.

Iob 31 24.
z Philip. 3. 19.
a Aquin.
Caetan.

b Theophylact.
Primasus.
Anselm.
c Psal. 24. 1.
d Aquin.

e Iohn 9 39.

f Rom. 1. 16.

g 2 Cor. 2. 16.

h Rom 1. 28.

i Theophylact.
Occumen.

k Aristote.

l Lombard.

Aquin.

Caluin.

m Iohn 12. 31.

n Ephes. 2. 2.

o Rom. 6. 16.

p Bernard lib. 3
de considerat.

q Ephes 4. 18.

r Heb. 1. 3.

s Iohn 14. 9.

t Caluin.

Marlorat.

Piscator.

of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Iesus Christ. And we haue this treasure in earthen vessels, that the excellencie of that power might be of God, and not of vs. See Epist. 3. Sun. in Aduent, and 1. in Lent.

1 Tim. 3. 2.

1 Pet. 5. 3.

This Scripture may be termed aptly manipulus Curatorum; 1. Instructing all such as haue cure of soules to be diligent in their ministerie, considering the worthinesse of their function, and the goodnesse of God in making them apt to teach; and in calling them vnto such an high office. 2. To be rather solide than subtle, preaching plainly to the conscience. 3. To be humble, not as though they were lords ouer Gods heritage, but in meeknesse of spirit, behauing themselves as seruants for Iesus sake.

The Gospell. MATTH. 9. 9.

As Iesus passed forth from thence he saw a man named Matthew, &c.

IN this text two points are more chiefly regardable, namely, the Calling of Matthew, wherein obserue the	}	Bountifulnesse of Christ in calling, he saw a man named Matthew, &c.

		Dutifulnesse of Matthew in comming, he arose, and followed him.
Cauilling of the Pharisees, and in it	}	Their accusation, Why eateth your master with Publicans and sinners?
		Christes excusation, answering for himselfe by grounds of Religion, go ye rather and learne, &c.

Reason, they that bee strong need not the Physician.

Acts 10. 38.

As Iesus passed forth from thence] We may not slightly passe ouer the passing of Iesus here from place to place doing good, and acting works of mercy and miracle. Craftie Politicians thrust themselves into the center of the world, as if all times should meet in their ends, neuer caring in any tempest what becommeth of the ship of estate, so they may be safe in the coc-boat of their owne fortune. But Christ here neglecting his priuate boat, was al for the publike ship of the Church, being not only painful in his own person all his life, but also careful in calling Apostles who might as cūning masters & pilots guide the churches ship after his death

<sup>z</sup> Musculus in loc.

<sup>a</sup> Esay 49. 23.

<sup>z</sup>By this example, Princes (which ought to be nursing fathers vnto the Church) are taught, not only to see that matters be well ordered for the present; but also to foresee such things as may be for the good of the Church in time to come. They must especially maintaine the schooles of the Prophets, as the seminaries & nurseries of the Clergy, that there may be from time to time Peters & Matthewes, apt & able<sup>b</sup> labourers in the Lords haruest. As for you which are men of meane qualitie, though it be true that yee cannot found Colledges, or endue the Church with any large reuenues; yet ye can<sup>c</sup> pray for the peace of Hierusalem, & wish heartily that plenteousnes may be within her palaces: And therfore when any suit concerning the Clergy shall be tried by your verditte, <sup>d</sup>for sake not the Leuise as long as thou liuest vpon earth. Let no malignant humour cause thee to rob God of his due, the Minister of his dutie, that the Gospell may not only flourish in our daies, but that there may be still a succession of learned men in all ages to come, who may<sup>e</sup> comfort Hierusalem at the heart, and withstand all her<sup>f</sup> enemies in the gate.

<sup>b</sup> Luke 10. 1.

<sup>c</sup> Psalm. 122. 6.

<sup>d</sup> Deut. 12. 19.

<sup>e</sup> Esay 40. 2.

<sup>f</sup> Psalm. 127. 6.

He saw a man named Matthew sitting at the receipt of custome] He saw Matthew not (as then he saw many moe) with his corporall eyes only, sbut also with his all-seeing eyes of prescience, knowing that he was a<sup>h</sup> pearle in a dunghill, a chosen vessell vnto the Lord from all eternitie. And with his pitifull eyes of mercie, euen with the verie same eyes he saw the grieuous troubles of his children in<sup>i</sup> Egypt, and with the same eyes he saw Peter weeping, and with the same eyes he saw<sup>k</sup> Nathaniel vnder the fig-tree. Now the greatnesse of his exceeding rich mercies

<sup>g</sup> Ardens.

Rupert.

<sup>h</sup> Chrysost. apud Pamigarol. hom. in loc.

<sup>i</sup> Exod. 3. 7.

<sup>k</sup> Iohn 1. 4. 8.

mercies is amplified here by circumstances of the person, and of the place, and of the time. By circumstance of person, he saw and called Matthew, a rich man, a covetous rich man, a covetous rich man in a corrupt office, Matthew the Publican.

<sup>1</sup> Other Evangelists in relating this historie, call him Lepi, <sup>m</sup> but he calls himselfe by that name he was best knowne, he confessed his fault, and acknowledged his folly, stiling himselfe Matthew the Publican. And this he did vnto Gods glorie, for the greater was his miserie, the greater was his Saviours mercie. The children of Israel payed no custome before their captiuitie, wherefore toll-gatherers, as being subiect to many foule extortions & oppressions, were most odious officers among the Iewes; in so much as Publicans and notorious malefactors are coupled vsually together in the Gospell: as <sup>u</sup> if he refuse to heare the Church also, let him be to thee as an heathen man and a Publican, and Matth 21. 31. Verily I say vnto you, that the Publicans and the harlots shall goe before you into the kingdome of God, and Luke 15. 1. Then resorted vnto him all the Publicans and sinners; and in our present text, why eateth your Master with Publicans and sinners? So that Publicans are ioynd sometime with heathens, sometime with harlots, alway with sinners.

But the goodnesse of Christ is amplified more by circumstances of place and time, for that he called Matthew sitting at the receit of custome; he called <sup>o</sup> Peter and Andrew while they were fishing; James and John while they were mending their nets; he called other, while they were doing some good; but (ò the deepnesse of the riches of Christs vnspeakable mercies) he called Matthew when he was doing hurt, executing his hatefull office, sitting at the receit of custome. <sup>p</sup> There be three degrees in sinne, mentioned Psal. 1. 1. The first is, walking in the counsell of the vngodly: the second is, standing in the way of sinners: the third is, sitting in the seat of the scornfull: now Matthew the Publican had proceeded Doctor in his facultie, he was seated in the chaire, sitting at the receit of custome, the which is worse than either walking in the counsell of the vngodly, or standing in the way of sinners.

Hence we may learne not to despaire of other, much lesse of our selues: not of other, albeit they be neuer so covetous misers and great oppressors. Indeed <sup>q</sup> Christ said, It is easier for a Camell (or as <sup>r</sup> other read) for a cable to goe thorow the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdome of God, but he doth adde withall and say, with man this is impossible, but with God all things are possible. He can vntwine a cable rope in euery cord and thred, and so draw it thorow the eye of a needle: he can vndoe the cords of vanitie and cart-ropes of iniquitie, which hold covetous men from him, and so make them (as he did here Matthew) to follow him. He did vntwine Zachens when he said, <sup>t</sup> Behold Lord halfe of my goods I giue to the poore, and if I haue taken from any man by forged cauillation, I restore him foure-fold: and so Zachus notwithstanding his Camels backe, that is, in former time his prodigious wealth, entred into the strait gate of heauen.

And let no man euer despaire of himselfe, seeing Christ called Matthew when he was doing of euill, and the theefe on the Crosse, Luk. 23. when he was suffering for euill. <sup>v</sup> According to his name so is his praise, <sup>u</sup> Iesus is his name, and he is a Saviour of his people; comming into this world (as he protesteth and proueth in this Scripture) not to call the righteous but sinners to repentance.

In Matthewes obedience to Christs call, obserue with <sup>x</sup> Ardens, a threefold abrenunciation:

1. Of his wickednesse, he arose, namely from his old vnconscionable course vnto newnesse of life.
2. Of his wealth, he left all, Luk. 5. 28.
3. Of his will, he followed him, and that as <sup>y</sup> one writes, { Celeriter.

Latanter.
Conuenienter.
Persueranter.

1. He followed Christ immediatly without delay, for as soone as Christ had said, follow me; forthwith he arose and followed him.

2. He

<sup>1</sup> Mark 2. 14.
 Luke 5. 27.
<sup>m</sup> Hieron.
Iansen.
Maldonat.

<sup>u</sup> Matth. 18. 17

<sup>o</sup> Matth. 4. 18.

<sup>p</sup> Euthym.
Caluin.
Genebrard. in
Psalm. 1.

<sup>q</sup> Matth. 19. 24
<sup>r</sup> Theophylact.
Erasmus.
Drusius in loc.
Matth.

<sup>t</sup> Luke 19. 8.

<sup>v</sup> Psal. 48. 9.
<sup>u</sup> Matth. 1. 21.

<sup>x</sup> Hom. in loc.

<sup>y</sup> Paratus ser. de S. Math.

2 Act 13.

2 Matheus.

b 2 Cor. 4. 18.

c Rupert. in loc.

d Luke 5. 29.

e Hieron.
Caietan.

f Iohn 6. 44.

g Gen 17. 1.

h Heb 11. 6.

i Apostoli quantum ad voluntatem totum mundum reliquerunt. Hieron.
Epist. ad
Pammac.k Augustin. de Civitate Dei, lib.
1. cap. 10.

l Matth. 10. 3.

m Euseb. hist.
lib. 3 cap. 21.n Idem Magde-burg. cent. 1.
lib. 2. col. 576.o Socrates hist.
lib. 1. cap. 15.p Cassianus catalog. part 3.
considerat. 29.q Panigarol.
hom in loc.

part. 1.

r August. de consensu Euangel.
lib. 1. cap. 2.s See Panigarol
ubi sup. & Sixt.
Bibliothec. lib. 1.
pag. 17.t Vide not. Baron. in Rom.
Martyr. Sep-temb. 21.

u Heb. 1. 1.

v Ecclesiast. 5. 7

x Heb 3. 13.

y Psal 84. 7.

z Apocal. 2. 10.

a Iohn 20. 2.

2. He followed Christ cheerefully <sup>z</sup> without any murmuring or disputing who should execute his office, or looke to his account. <sup>a</sup> It was in the worlds eye a great folly to leaue such a gainfull occupation, a greater folly to forsake that which he had already got, and the greatest of all to follow him who was so poore, that he wanted a nest and an hole where to rest his head, Matth. 8. 20. Yet Matthew beholding his Sauour with eyes of faith, and <sup>b</sup> looking not on the things which are seene, but on the things which are not seene, simply and cheerefully followed him, and in <sup>c</sup> token hereof (as <sup>d</sup> S. Luke reports) he made him a great feast in his owne house.

3. Matthew followed Christ conueniently, because he left all and followed him: all his worldly businesse, all his vnconscionable gaines, all his corrupt affections; and w<sup>h</sup>at focuer hindred him in the way to God. And <sup>e</sup> herein he dealt not (as prophane Porphirius and Iulian object) vnadvisedly to forsake all things, and to follow one which had nothing, for Matthew doubtlesse had before seene many miracles of Christ, and at this present he was also drawne by the Holy Spirit, according to that of our Sauour, <sup>f</sup> no man can come to me, except the Father which hath sent me draw him. And this Spirit assured his spirit that Christ as God is <sup>g</sup> all-sufficient, and a<sup>h</sup> rewarder of such as seeke him and come vnto him. Here the Gospell and Epistle meet, Paul preached not the word for worldly gain, Matth then left all and followed Christ. He did not abandon all his estate, for he feasted Christ in his owne house: but he was <sup>i</sup> willing to leaue the whole world to gaine that good which he could neither <sup>k</sup> prodere nor perdere.

4. Matthew followed Christ constantly, being first a Disciple, then an Apostle, afterward an Euangelist, and last of all a Martyr: as a Disciple he heard the Gospell of Christ, as an Apostle he preached the Gospell of Christ, as an Euangelist he wrote the Gospell of Christ, as a Martyr he suffered for the Gospell of Christ. He was not onely a Disciple, but an Apostle, numbred among the twelue, preaching the Gospell in <sup>m</sup> Iudea and <sup>n</sup> Ethiopia, for I remember <sup>o</sup> one faith of him, Ethiopiā nigram doctrinā fidei fecit candidam. And that he might preach vnto the whole world after his death, he penned the booke of the generation of Iesus Christ, &c. In which (as Euseb. Emisen. obserueth) he makes a great feast vnto Christ, and that in <sup>p</sup> sundry respects, as, 1. His Gospell is great, as being written in Hebrew, the most ancient and most holy tongue. 2. Great, as being the <sup>q</sup> first of all the Gospels. 3. Great, as being the most large, <sup>r</sup> diuided by the moderne Latines into 28. Chapters, but according to the partition of Hilarius in former ages into 33. or as Druthmarus into 67. Canons. Among the Grecians, Euthymius parteth it into 68. chapters, Eusebius, Ammonius, Suidas, into 355. And lastly great, as intending principally to shew that the man Christ is the Messias and Sauour of the world, promised by the Prophets, and prefigured in the sacrifices of the Law. S. Matthew hauing cheerefully followed Christ in hearing his Gospell, in preaching his Gospell, in writing his Gospell, <sup>t</sup> on this day suffered martyrdom constantly for his Gospell.

Christ euery day calleth vs, and saith vnto vs as here to Matthew, Follow me, though he doe not this immediately by himselfe, yet he speaketh vnto vs by the tongues of his Preachers, as he spake in <sup>u</sup> old time to our fathers by the mouths of the Prophets. It is our dutie therefore to come when he calleth (as his seruant Matthew) quickly, conueniently, constantly, cheerefully, Quickly without delay, <sup>v</sup> make no tarrying to turne vnto the Lord, but to day, <sup>x</sup> while it is called to day, let vs heare his voice: conueniently, forsaking our selues, & casting away euery thing that presseth downe, and hindreth vs in our way to Christ, Heb. 12. 1. constantly, <sup>y</sup> going from strength to strength, and continuing<sup>z</sup> faithfull vnto the death: cheerefully, making Christ a great feast in our owne house.

Haply thou wilt object, if I had liued in that golden age, when Christ my Sauour blessed the world with his bodily presence, then I would haue worshipped him, and followed him, and feasted him: but alas, I haue good cause to complaine with Marie Magdalen, <sup>a</sup> they haue taken away the Lord, and where should I finde finde him, if I would now feast him? O beloved, albeit Christ<sup>b</sup> is in heauen, and thou art on earth, yet thou mayest (and that in thine owne house) make to him a<sup>c</sup> double feast; a spirituall feast, and a corporall: a spirituall, for his meat is to doe the will of God, Iohn 4.34. And the will of God is to beleue in him whom he hath sent, Iohn 6.29. So that whosocuer beleueth in Christ, and openeth the doore to his knocke, maketh him a feast in the parlour of his heart. So<sup>d</sup> himselfe saith, I stand at the doore and knocke, if any man heare my voice, and open the doore, I will come in vnto him, and will sup with him, and he with me. The Poets fained that their God Iupiter fed on Nectar and Ambrosia,<sup>e</sup> Iupiter Ambrosia satur est, & Nectare plenus. But the God of heauen is refreshed with the<sup>f</sup> fruits of the Spirit, loue, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentlenesse, goodnesse, faith, meeknesse, temperance, these dishes are his dainties.

Thou mayest also feast him corporally; for whosocuer is done to his followers, he taketh as done to himselfe, because they be<sup>g</sup> members of his body, of his flesh, and of his bone: this he will openly protest at the last day, Matth. 25.35. I was an hungred, and ye gaue me meat: I thirsted, and ye gaue me drinke: for in as much as ye haue done it vnto one of the least of these my brethren, ye haue done it vnto me.

And when the Pharisies saw it ] In the Pharisies accusation obserue these two circumstances especially: To whom; and of whom it was made; to whom, they said vnto his Disciples: of whom, of Christ and the rest of the guests in Matthewes house, why eateth your master with Publicans and sinners, &c. In making this objection vnto the Disciples, and not vnto Christ himselfe, they shew themselves to be craftie calumniators. It was<sup>h</sup> craft to set vpon the weake Disciples being a little before confounded by their master: and it was a<sup>i</sup> calunnie to mutter that behinde his backe, which they dare not vtter vnto his face. But this was their ordinarie guile to vent their gall, when they conceited that the Disciples did amisse, they cauilled with Christ,<sup>k</sup> why doe thy Disciples transgresse the traditions of the fathers, for they wash not their hands when they eat bread. And when they thought Christ offended, they told his Disciples, why eateth your Master with Publicans and sinners? In the fact of the Disciples, they cauilled with Christ: in the fact of Christ, they cauilled with the Disciples; in both, their malicious intent was to dishonour the Gospell, and estrange the Disciples from Christ, and Christ from his Disciples. In our age there be many such enuious Sycophants, who being once got betweene the pot and the wall, chat in secret against that which Christ and his Ministers haue chaunted in publike.

The Pharisies accusing Christ and his company, Publicans and sinners, offended in vncharitablenesse and pride: in vncharitablenesse toward Christ,<sup>l</sup> ac si consentiens in culpa, qui consentiens in culpa, as if he had communicated with them in mischief, as he did common with them at meat: whereas Christ conuersed with Publicans and sinners, as the Physitian with the sicke; <sup>m</sup> they made not him worse, but he made them better; he had no fellowship with<sup>n</sup> vnfruitfull works of darknesse, but only with the workers, he did loue their persons, but leaue their vices: see Gospell on the 3. Sund. after Trinitie. Again, the Pharisies were very cruell and vncharitable toward the Publicans, in that they despised them, and had no feeling of their miseries, or care for their conuersion: and lastly, they shew their pride by iustifying themselves impudently, whereas they should rather haue confessed ingenuously with the<sup>o</sup> Psalmist, enter not into iudgement with thy seruants, for no flesh is righteous in thy sight: and with<sup>p</sup> Iob, if the stars are vncleane in his sight, how much more man a worme, euen the sonne of man which is but a worme? and with<sup>q</sup> Esay, we haue all been an vncleane thing, and all our righteousness is as filthy clouts.

When Christ heard that, he said vnto them ] He replied vnto the Pharisies: not as hoping to mend them by his answer, but lest his Disciples otherwise might be scandalized, hereby giuing vs an example to meet with opprobrious cauilis and calumnies against the Gospell, and that not to satisfie so much our aduersaries, as to strengthen our auditors.

They

<sup>b</sup> Ecclesiast. 5. 1

<sup>c</sup> Ardens.
Musculus in loc.

<sup>d</sup> Apocal. 3. 20

<sup>e</sup> Persius.
<sup>f</sup> Galat. 5. 22.

<sup>g</sup> Ephes 3. 30.

<sup>h</sup> Arctius.
Marlorat.
<sup>i</sup> Bullinger.

<sup>k</sup> Matth. 15. 2.

<sup>l</sup> Ardens.

<sup>m</sup> Arctius.
<sup>n</sup> Ephes 5. 11.

<sup>o</sup> Psal 143. 2.
<sup>p</sup> Iob 35. 5.

<sup>q</sup> Esay 64. 6.
Musculus.
Culman.

c Theophylact.
 e Calvin.
 d Hilarius.
 Panigarol.
 Marlorat.
 x Luke 4 18.
 y Matth. 11. 28
 z Musculus.
 Calvin.
 a Epist. lib. 1.
 Epist. 4.
 b 1 Iohn 1. 9.

They that be strong need not the Physitian] This sentence may be considered as a scomma to the Pharisies, who where so righteous and strong in their own conceit, as that they did not in any case need a Physitian; but as a Lemma for others, in which (as in the rest of his Apologie) Christ insinuates, that he came into the world, not to constraine, but to call; not the righteous <sup>u</sup> who iustifie themselves, but sinners, euen such as feele their wickednesse and weaknesse, such as are <sup>x</sup> broken hearted, such as are laden and <sup>y</sup> wearie with the burden of their iniquitie: <sup>z</sup> not to licentiousnesse in their sinne, or to punishment for their sinne, or to satisfaction for their sinne, but to repentance for their sinne, that they being deliuered out of the hands of all their enemies, might serue God in holinesse and righteousnesse all the dayes of their life. <sup>a</sup> Paulinus saith excellently, that a sinner irrepentant is like Samson in the mill, grinding corne for his enemies: but if he <sup>b</sup> confesse his sinnes, and be sorrie for the same, Christ is faithfull and iust to forgiue him his sinnes, and to cleanse him from all vnrighteousnesse.

Almighty God, which by thy blessed Sonne diddest call Matthew from the receipt of custome, to be an Apostle and Euangelist: grant vs grace to forsake all couetous desires and inordinate loue of riches, and to follow thy said Son Iesus Christ, who liueth and reigneth with thee and the Holy Ghost, &c.

The Epistle. APOCAL. 12. 7.

There was a great battell in heauen, &c.

IN this Scripture three points are to be considered, & they bee points of warre, to wit, a

For the better vnderstanding of the whole text, I purpose to treat first of the commanders and souldiers in this warfare, Michael and his Angels fought, and the Dragon & his Angels fought. Cardinal<sup>c</sup> Bellarmine affirms that Michael euer since the fall of Lucifer is head of the glorious Angels, & the Rhemists obserue the reason here why S. Michael is ordinarily painted fighting with a Dragon: but I thinke neither the foolish painter, nor yet learned Bellarmino can tell vs how Michael came to be chosen into Lucifers room. For all the wicked Angels (as S. Iude teacheth in his Epistle) who left their habitation, are reserved in euertlasting chaines vnder darknesse, and such as fell not are not preferred vnto higher place, but continue still in their first estate and dignitie: we grant that there be certaine distinctions & degrees of heauen, as reading in holy Scriptures of <sup>d</sup> principalities, and powers, and thrones, and dominions, and <sup>e</sup> Seraphims, and <sup>f</sup> Che- <sup>g</sup> rubims; but we finde not in the Bible that Michael is the chiefe commander of all. Indeed S. Iude calleth him an Archangel, and <sup>h</sup> Daniel, unum de principibus, that is, one of the principall Angels, as Varabius vpon the place; but he neuer was or shall be monarch and head of all Angels, and that I proue (by these reasons ensuing) vnto the Papists.

1. According to the doctrine of their<sup>h</sup> owne schoole, Michael being employed as a messenger betweene God and man, is not of the first Hierarchie, but of an<sup>i</sup> vnderling order, and so consequently not supremus Angelorum, as their owne Doctor<sup>k</sup> Georg. Bartholdus Pontanus acknowledgeth.

2. Because the greatest Angell is vsed in the greatest embassage, but Gabriel was sent for the contracting of that sacred match betweene the blessed Virgin and the God of heauen, ergo, Gabriel is rather supreme both in naturall and supernaturall graces and prerogatiues. So <sup>l</sup> Gregorie the Great, sometime Bishop of Rome, notes, Ad hoc mysterium summum Angelum venire dignum fuerat, qui summum omnium nunciabat: It was conuenient (saith he) that to this supreme mysterie of mysteries, the supreme of all Angels should be destinated, who should annunciate the conception of the supreme Lord of all.

3. Because Christ is the Michael here mentioned, as the Commentarie vnder<sup>m</sup> Augustines name, Michael intellige Christum, by Michael vnderstand thou Christ. <sup>n</sup> For the blessed Angels cannot be said to be any other Michaels Angels, but only the Angels of God and Christ: in the vision haply Michael and an host of Angels appeared vnto Iohn, but they represented<sup>o</sup> Christ and his members. The name Michael signifies quis vt Deus, who is as God, a name best agreeing vnto Christ, as being very God of very God, euen the brightnesse of his glory and ingraued forme of his person, Heb. 1.3. Michael (as we finde in the 10. and 12. chapter of Daniel) was the patron of the Iewes, and the defender of Gods people. But hercing he was a type of Christ and a figure, for Iesus alone is this Sauiour, as <sup>p</sup> Esay foretold, and Zacharias in his Euangelicall hymne chaunted plainly, the light of the Gentiles, and the glory of his people Israel.

So that the meaning of our text is briefly<sup>q</sup> this, Christ & his members fight against the deuill & his complices: & indeed it is against the principles of holy beleefe to ascribe this victory to Michael or any other Angell whatsoeuer, seeing the Scripture saith expressly, <sup>r</sup> The seed of the woman shall break the Serpents head, & <sup>s</sup> the God of peace shall tread downe Satan vnder our feet, and a loud voice from heauen proclaimes in this chap. at the 11. v. they ouercame the Dragon by the blood of the Lamb.

Our blessed Sauiour did fight a single combat with the Dragon in the wilderness, and ouercame him, Matth. 4. A point full of instruction and comfort, as I haue shewed in my notes vpon the Gospell 1. Sunday in Lent. Againe, Christ fought with the deuill and all his complices on the Crosse, where, saith<sup>t</sup> Paul, he spoiled principalities & powers, and made a shew of them openly. For as a mighty<sup>u</sup> Samson he did beare away the gates of his enemies vpon his own shoulders, killing at his death more than he had slaine in his life: by death he destroyed death; and by his going downe to the graue he did open the graue, and gaue life to the dead, in the house of death, and kingdome of hell; he triumphed ouer Satan, & spoiled him of <sup>c</sup> De Rom. Pont. lib. 1. cap. 9 §. post casum verò.

<sup>d</sup> Ephes. 1. 21.

Coloss. 1. 16.

<sup>e</sup> Esay 5. 2.

<sup>f</sup> Gen. 3. 24.

<sup>g</sup> Dan. 10. 13.

& 12. 1.

<sup>h</sup> Thom. part. 1.

quest. 142 art. 2

¶ 4.

<sup>i</sup> Puerius in

Dan. 10.

<sup>k</sup> Prefat. in ser.

de S. Michael.

<sup>l</sup> Hom. 34. in Euangel.

<sup>m</sup> Hom. 9 in Apocalyp.

<sup>n</sup> D. Fulk in

loc.

<sup>o</sup> Bullinger,

Arctius, Mart-

lorat.

<sup>p</sup> Cap 7. 14.

<sup>q</sup> August. ubi

sup.

<sup>r</sup> Gen. 3. 15.

<sup>s</sup> Rom. 16. 20.

<sup>t</sup> Coloss. 2. 15.

<sup>u</sup> Iudges 16. 30

<sup>z</sup> Ser. de quidduplici debito.

<sup>y</sup> Aretius.

<sup>z</sup> Ardens, Rupert.

<sup>a</sup> Psal 34 7.

<sup>b</sup> Marlorat.

<sup>c</sup> Bullinger.

<sup>d</sup> Ardens.

<sup>e</sup> 2 Cor 4 4.

<sup>f</sup> Ardens.

<sup>g</sup> Marlorat.

<sup>h</sup> Psalm. 2. 2.

<sup>i</sup> Rupert.

<sup>k</sup> Marlorat.

<sup>l</sup> Gen. 3 15.

<sup>m</sup> Cap. 1. 29.

<sup>n</sup> Restitution of decayed intelligence,
pag. 176.

<sup>o</sup> 1 Cor. 15. 26.

all his strength and power, as<sup>x</sup> Bernard sweetly, Diaboli fortitudo per Redemptoris vulnera traducta & deducta ad nihilum.

As Michael did fight, so likewise his Angels, Christus est ecclesia sua promachus, Angeli eius symachi. <sup>z</sup> Some construe this of the glorious Angels, as being ministering spirits for the good of such as shall be heires of saluation, Heb. 1. 14. These souldiers being more than twelue legions, Mat. 26. 53. thousand thousands and ten thousand thousands, Dan. 10. 7. a number without number, Heb. 12. 22. <sup>a</sup> pitch their tents about vs, and fight against such as fight against vs. Here the Gospell & Epistle meet: Michael and his Angels (saith our Epistle) fight against the Dragon & his Angels: and the Gospell insinuates as much, in saying, take heed that ye d. spise not one of these little ones, for I say vnto you that in heauen their Angels do alway behold the face of my Father, &c. And here you may note the reason also why both are appointed by the Church to be read on this Festiuall of Angels.

<sup>b</sup> Other expound this of the Ministers of Christ, often stiled in respect of their honourable function & mission, Angels. These beare the Captaines colours, preaching the true faith whereby the souldiers of Christ are distinguished from all other. Or as<sup>c</sup> other, by the word Angels is meant all the members of Christ in heauen, and on earth, as well Magistrates as Ministers; as well people as Pastors; all his Apostles, Confessors, Martyrs, and whosoever else fighteth vnder his banner.

The Deuill is the Generall on the contrary side, called here for his<sup>d</sup> open mischief, a great Dragon; for his cunning and secret malice, an old Serpent; for his false cauils, an accuser of his brethren and a Deuill; for his obstinate contradiction and opposition of God & godlinesse, Satan. And the Dragon is not only chiefe of Deuils, but also<sup>e</sup> god of this world, that is, of al wicked men in the world: Deceiuing (saith our text) all the world, that is, endeououring to deceiue all in the world, but actually deceiuing al such as are of the world, stirring them vp alway to fight against Michael & his Angels,<sup>h</sup> against the Lord, & against his anointed. Entising the Magistrate to tyrannie, the people to securitie, the learned to curious impietie, the simple to brutish Epicurisme, all to disorder & dissolutenes. Quo enim vel unde seducit vel abducit orbem terrarum, nisi à cultu Dei debito ad cultum suimet indebitum?

Now we know the Captaines and the souldiers: let vs see when the battell is fought, and where; when, there was a battell, indefinitely; for there was, is, and euer will be warre betweene Michael and the Dragon vntill the worlds end. And therefore this battell is called in our & some other translations praelium magnum, as being great. not only in regard of the great number of those who fight, or in regard of our enemies great might, great malice, great experiëce, great cunning, al which are very great:<sup>k</sup> but also great in regard of the great time this warre shall continue; for God said vnto the Serpent in the beginning of the world, I wil put enmitie betweene thee and the woman, and betweene thy seed and her seed, he shall breake thine head, and thou shalt bruise his heele. And S. Paul liuing in the latter ends of the world, saith in his Epistle to the<sup>m</sup> Galatians, as then he that was borne after the flesh, persecuted him that was borne after the spirit: euen so it is now; so that as long as there is a world, & a prince of the world, so long the children of God must put on the armour of light, and fight against the works and princes of darknesse. Every Christian is a professed souldier, not only for a time to see the fashion of the wars, as yong Gentlemen vse in our time; but (as he hath in holy baptisime vowed) manfully to fight vnder Christs banner against sinne, the world, and the deuill, and to continue his faithfull souldier and seruant vnto his liues end. When <sup>n</sup> William the Conquerour had landed his men in Sussex, he caused all his ships to be sunke, that all hope of flying backe might be taken away: Beloued, seeing we are landed on this valley of teares, as it were the Battell of the world, let vs neither faint nor flie, but fight it out valiantly, till death our<sup>o</sup> last enimie be destroyed.

3. This battell is described by the place, there was a great battell in heauen: this cannot fitly be cōstrued of heauen in heauen, for the deuill in the beginning was cast out of that heauen, and there is no war-fare, but all well-fare, no iarre but loue, yea such a peace as passeth all vnderstanding. But by heauen is meant the Church of God on earth, as P Interpreters obserue generally, called in holy Scriptures, Heauen and Hierusalem above, for that her chiefe treasure is in heauen, Mat. 6. 20. her affections in heauen, Coloss. 3. 2. her conuersation in heauen, Philip. 3. 20. and for that the Lord of heauen dwels in her heart by faith, Ephes. 3. 17. All this battell then is fought in heauen vpon earth, according to that of 9 Iob, The life of man is a warfare vpon earth: Here is the field where we must <sup>r</sup> so runne, that we may obtaine; to fight, that we may ouercome; no part of the battell is fought in Heil or Purgatorie, but all vpon earth. Or this battell is said to be fought in heauen, as being a spirituall warfare, Ephes. 6. 12. We wrestle not against flesh and bloud, but against spirituall wickednesses, which are in high places. Grosse wickednesse is easily seene, and preuented soone, but our aduersaries abound with inuincible wickednesse, being our greatest enemies while they seeme our best friends: and therefore seeing we lye in a besieged Citie, which is assaulted on euery side by cruell and cunning opposers (as the <sup>r</sup> Wiseman speaks) in the midst of snares, it behoueth vs, as Paul exhorts, to put on the whole armour of God, that we may stand against all the assaults of the deuill. Let vs feare nothing in this holy warre, for our Captaine is good, our Michael is the Lord of Hosts, Nil desperandum Christo dace, & auspice Christo, our cause good, for we fight for the word of truth against the father and fauourers of lies; against the Dragon and his angels, our compaignie good, all the glorious Angels in heauen, and all the good men on earth are on our side; our reward good when our fight is finished, palmes in our hands, and crownes on our heads. See Epistle 21. Sunday after Trinitie.

And preuailed not] Albeit the deuill as a great dragon, and an old serpent, and a roaring lion, seeke daily whom he may deuoure; yet the gates of hell are not able to conquer the Church: albeit Satan rage and raue neuer so much, he shall haue no preuailling power against Gods elect, he shall not pluck any of Christs sheepe out of Christs hand, Ioh. 10. 28. The prince of this world is <sup>x</sup> cast out, and hath nought in me, saith our blessed Saniour, Iohn 14. 30. no part in me, no part in mine, which are <sup>y</sup> flesh of my flesh, and bones of my bones. I know the Dragon and his angels assault Michael and his Angels euery houre, but all the hurt they can do is to bruise the heele, Gen. 3. 15.

Neither was their place any more found in heauen] <sup>z</sup> That is, in the hearts of the godly, whose conuersation is in heauen. Albeit the deuill and his associates besiege Gods elect euery day, yet they finde in them no resting place, their dwelling is among the reprobate wicked according to that of S. Matthew, When the vnclane spirit is gone out of a man, he walketh thorowout drie places, seeking rest, & finds none, then he saith, I will returne into mine house, from whence I came; and when he is come, he findeth it emptie, swept, and garnished, then he goeth, and taketh vnto him seuen other spirits worse than himselfe, and they enter in and dwell there; and the end of this man is worse than the beginning. The deuill is cast out of heauen into the earth, as in the text following, <sup>b</sup> that is, into men of earthly munes, who <sup>c</sup> go vpon their bellies, and eat dust all the daies of their life. The deuill is cast out of the Temple into the court, <sup>d</sup> which is without the Temple, <sup>e</sup> that is, out of the bounds of the Church, among the Gentiles, and such as know not God, or else knowing God, glorifie him not as God, Rom. 1. 21. professing that they know God, but denie him in their works, Tit. 1. 16. In these who <sup>f</sup> minde earthly things, Satan ruleth and <sup>g</sup> worketh as their God and Prince.

I heard a loud voice, saying, in heauen is now made saluation] Here begins the Saints triumph, or victoriall hymne; for the loud voice from heauen is nothing else <sup>h</sup> but the publick consent of the fithfull in magnifying the mercies of God toward them in their fight against the Dragon and his angels. And this conquest is termed in respect of men, saluation: in respect of God, the strength of his kingdom, and the power of his Christ. Where Satan and sinne reigne, there destruction is at hand, for the wages of sinne is death, Rom. 6. 23. but when once Satan is cast out, and the Word of God, which is the <sup>i</sup> liuing Gospell, and the word of <sup>k</sup> life <sup>l</sup> dwelleth in vs pientiously, then (as <sup>m</sup> Christ laid vnto Zachew)

P Augustin.
Ardeus.
Rupert.
Bullinger.

9 Iob 7. 1.
1 Cor. 9. 24.

Rupert.
Erf.
Sarcenius.

Ecclesiasticus
5. 15.

Matth. 16. 18

Iohn 12 31.

Ephes 5. 50.

Augustin.
Bullinger.
Marlorat.

Cap. 12. 43.

Rupert. idem
Primafius apud
Marlorat.

Gen. 3 14.

Apoc 1: 2.

Apoc. 7. 7. Asocathyl

Philip. 3. 19.

Ephes. 2. 2.

Rupert.
Bullinger.
Marlorat.

Ephes. 1. 13.

Philip. 2. 15.

Coloss. 3. 15.

Luke 19. 9.

<sup>a</sup> Ardens.
<sup>o</sup> Philip. 4. 13.
<sup>p</sup> Rom. 8. 33.
<sup>q</sup> Rupert.
<sup>r</sup> Ardens.
<sup>s</sup> James 3. 2.
<sup>t</sup> 1 John 1. 7.
<sup>u</sup> Rom. 8. 1.
<sup>v</sup> Galat. 2. 20.

saluation is come to our house. It is termed the power of Christ, and strength of Gods kingdom, because this evidently sheweth his might and maiestie. So the text following, They overcame the Dragon by the blood of the Lambe. Christ fighteth in vs, and for vs, and through his <sup>o</sup> helpe we are able to doe all things, euen to cast out Satan, and to cast downe holds, and whatsoener is exalted againtt the knowledge of God, 2 Cor. 10. 4. So that we may triumph and say with <sup>p</sup> Paul, Who shall lay any thing to the charge of Gods elect? it is God that iustifieth, who shall condemne? it is Christ which is dead, yea rather that is risen againe, who is at the right hand of God, and maketh intercession for vs: and 1 Cor. 15. 55. O death where is thy sting? O graue where is thy victorie? the sting of death is sinne; and the strength of sinne is the Law: but thanks be vnto God which hath giuen vs victorie through our Lord Iesus Christ.

And by the word of their testimonie] The blood of the Lambe, that is, the death of Christ our Paschall Lambe, is the chiefe cause of this one victorie, but <sup>q</sup> faith is the hand and instrument applying the merits of Christ, and opposing them againstt all the dangerous assaults of the Dragon. For when that common informer and accuser of his brethren shall accuse thee before God for breaking his lawes (as in <sup>r</sup> many things all of vs offend) then thou maist answer, The blood of Iesus Christ cleanseth vs from all sinne; and there is no condemnation vnto those which are in Christ; he so <sup>u</sup> loued me, that he died for my sinnes, and rose againe for my iustification. All that is borne of God ouercommeth the world, and this is the victorie that ouercommeth the world, and the prince of this world, euen our faith, 1 John 5. 4. See Epistle Sunday 1. after Easter. And therefore Paul aduise the Christian souldier aboue all other weapons in the spirituall warfare, to put on faith, Aboue all take the shield of faith, wherewith yee may quench all the fierie dart's of the deuill, Ephes. 6. 16. See Epistle Sunday 21. after Trinitie.

<sup>x</sup> Rom. 10. 9.
<sup>y</sup> Ardens.
<sup>z</sup> James 2. 18.
<sup>a</sup> John 12. 25.
<sup>b</sup> Mark. 8. 35.

Now for as much as it is not sufficient vnto saluation to beleue with thine heart, vnlesse thou likewise <sup>x</sup> confesse with thy mouth: It is said here that the souldiers of Christ overcame the Dragon by faith in the Lambs blood, and by the word of their testimonie. And <sup>y</sup> for as much as a true faith is neuer idle, but alway <sup>z</sup> manifesting it selfe by good works; it is added in the next clause, they loued not their liues vnto the death; as who would say, they were willing to sacrifice their loues and their liues in the quarrell of Christ againstt the Dragon and his Angels; they remembered the words of their Generall, <sup>a</sup> he that loveth his life shall lose it, and he that giueth his life in this world, shall keepe it to life eternall; and <sup>b</sup> who soeuer shall lose his life for my sake and the Gospell, he shall saue it.

The Gospell. MATTH. 18. 1.

At the same time came the Disciples vnto Iesus, saying, who is the greatest in the kingdome of heauen?

Here be two parts of this text, }
 1. A question, vers. 1. wherein obserue, }
 1. When it was asked, at the same time.
 2. By whom, the Disciples.
 3. Of whom, they came vnto Iesus
 4. What, who is the greatest in the kingdome, &c.
 2. An answer to the same, vers. 2. 3. &c.

<sup>c</sup> Heming possil.
<sup>d</sup> in loc.
<sup>e</sup> Ardens.
<sup>f</sup> Maldonat.

The summe whereof is briefly this, <sup>c</sup> he that in Christs Church is most seruant is the greatest, and he that is most lordly the least: <sup>d</sup> or he that is least in his owne conceit, is the greatest in Gods eye; the least in <sup>e</sup> this kingdome of heauen which is present, shall be the greatest in that kingdome of heauen which is to come. The which one point is pressed by the great Doctor of humilitie with a great deale of earnestnesse: for 1. (as <sup>f</sup> S. Marke reports) he saue downe. 2. He called the twelue. 3. When they were called together, he taught them by spectacle to their their eye, so well as by precept to their care, he set a childe in the midst of them, and said. 4. He vsed a vehement asseueration, verily I say vnto you. 5. A comination, except yee turne, and become as children, yee shall not enter into the kingdome of heauen.

<sup>f</sup> Mark. 9. 35.

At the same time ] The occasion of this question among the Disciples (as <sup>e</sup> Hierome and <sup>h</sup> other learned Doctors write) was vpon emulation toward Peter, whom alone they saw preferred before the rest in the payment of the tribute, by these words of Christ in the former chapter at the last verse, that take and pay to them for me and thee. But S. Marke relates chap. 9. vers. 34. that this contention began in the way, before they came into the house where Christ appointed Peter to pay tribute for them both, and <sup>i</sup> therefore the question here for maioritie was not vpon that occasion, it was haply <sup>k</sup> cherished by it, but ingendred in their mindes long before, for that Christ had admitted none of his Apostles to the sight of his <sup>l</sup> transfiguration, and the raising of <sup>m</sup> Iayrus daughter from the dead, saue Peter, and Iames, and Iohn. Or it may be this emulation arose, for that Christ had said vnto Peter, Mat. 16. 19. I will giue vnto thee the keyes of the kingdome of heauen, &c. But what need we so curiously to seeke for the reason of this querre, <sup>n</sup> seeing these two things are certaine: 1. A desire to be like Gods on earth is an in-bred sinne deriued from the transgression of our first parents Adam and Eue: 2. The Deuill is euer most busie to nourish this ambitious humor in the ministers of the word, as it is apparent in the <sup>o</sup> Gospell and <sup>p</sup> Churches historie. What a deale of time was vsually spent in the Councels about precedence of Bishops? And in our age the question of the Popes primacie is termed by Cardinall <sup>q</sup> Belarmine, Summari Christiana.

Came the Disciples vnto Iesus ] In whom are hid <sup>r</sup> all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge: and this fact of theirs is <sup>s</sup> imitable, for when any doubt ariseth in our mindes concerning the kingdome of heauen, it is our best way to come vnto Iesus, who <sup>t</sup> lighteth euery man that cometh into the world. If any lacke wisdom (saith S. Iames in his Epistle cap 1. verse 5.) let him aske of God, for God is only wise, Rom 16. 27. Come therefore to his <sup>a</sup> law, to his testimonie, <sup>x</sup> search his Scriptures which are able to teach, and instruct, and to make the man of God absolute, 2 Tim, 3. 16. 17. And for the better vnderstanding of the dead letter come to his liuing Oracles and walking Bibles, I meane the true Prophets and learned Preachers of his word, for he calls them expressly the light of the world, and their <sup>z</sup> lips should preserue knowledge, <sup>z</sup> prauisunt & monstrantes semitam in scripturis. Come to Iesus, come to the word of Iesus, come to the Preachers of the word of Iesus, lest haply the Lord say to you as he did once to the Iewes, ye haue not asked at my mouth, Esay 30. 2.

Who is the greatest in the kingdome of heauen ] It is certaine that there arose a disputation among <sup>b</sup> them, which of them should be greatest, and yet to cloake their ambitious pride, they do not aske who shall be greatest among vs, but indefinitely, who is the greatest in the kingdome of heauen, <sup>d</sup> vnderstanding by the kingdome of heauen, the kingdome of Christ in this world, for they carnally conceiued that Christ after his resurrection would <sup>e</sup> restore the kingdome of Israel, and so reigne as a Monarch vpon earth, and therefore they make suit to <sup>f</sup> sit next to him at his right hand and on his left in his kingdome. I know <sup>g</sup> Chrysofome construet h it of the kingdome of heauen in that other world, condemning the men of his age, because they did not attaine to the defects of the Disciples, all our question is (saith he) who shall be greatest in the kingdoms vpon earth, and not who shall be greatest in the kingdome of heauen. But by Chrysofomes leaue, to contend who shall be greatest in heauen is charity, not vanitie. Luke 13. 24. Striue to enter in at the strait gate. As in the Arke there were three <sup>h</sup> lofts one above another: euen so there be many mansions in Gods house, Ioh. 14. 2. There be degrees among the Saints in heauen, as there be degrees among Angels: there is a Prophets reward, and a Disciples reward, Mat. 10. 41. 42. We should therefore striue to be greatest in heauen, out-stripping one another in goodnesse, as they who run in a race, 1 Cor. 9. 24.

<sup>s</sup> In loc.
<sup>h</sup> Chrysof. Theophylact, Druthmazus.

<sup>i</sup> D Fulk. Musculus, Marlorat.
<sup>k</sup> Maldonat.

<sup>l</sup> Mat. 17. 1.
<sup>m</sup> Luke 8. 51.

<sup>n</sup> Musculus,

<sup>o</sup> Mat. 20. 21.
Mark 10. 37.
Luke 22. 24.
<sup>p</sup> Legantur
epist. ecclesiastes & gesta conciliorum.

<sup>q</sup> Praefat. in libris de Rom. pont.

<sup>r</sup> Coloss 2. 3.

<sup>s</sup> Origen. apud Thom. in loc.

<sup>t</sup> Iohn 1. 9.

<sup>u</sup> Esay 8. 20.

<sup>v</sup> Iohn 5. 39.

<sup>w</sup> Mat. 5. 14.

<sup>x</sup> Malac. 2. 7.

<sup>y</sup> He om epist. ad Paulin.

<sup>b</sup> Luke 9. 46.
<sup>c</sup> Caetan.

<sup>d</sup> Melanct.
Musculus.
Marlorat.

<sup>e</sup> Acts 1. 16.

<sup>f</sup> Mat. 20. 21

<sup>g</sup> Apud Thom. in loc.

<sup>h</sup> Gen. 6. 16.

Againe, it is apparant by Christs answer, both in our present text, and also Matth. 20. and Luke 22. that his Disciples expected a kingdome after the fashion of this world, <sup>i</sup> dreaming that he should reigne as a Soueraigne, and themselves domineere like Dukes and Lords vnder him. They call it indeed the kingdome of heauen, in <sup>k</sup> imitation of their Master, often terming his kingdome the kingdome of heauen; <sup>l</sup> or for that they thought his kingdome (though vpon earth) should notwithstanding be diuine and heauenly. See Gospell on S. James, and on S. Bartholomewes day.

Iesus called a childe vnto him] Iesus seeing the thoughts of his Disciples, and vnderstanding the causes of their errour, <sup>m</sup> heales the desire of glory with the contention of humilitie, in reading of his lecture. S. Marke reports that he satte downe: now we finde in the Gospells historie, that the Doctors among the Iewes in their teaching vsed sometime to stand, and sometime to sit; <sup>n</sup> Peter in Hierusalem, and <sup>o</sup> Paul at Antiochia preached standing, but the Scribes and the Pharisees are said to sit in Moses chaire, Matth. 23. 2. So Christ himselfe sometime taught standing, as Luke 6. 17. And sometime sitting both in the <sup>p</sup> mount and in the <sup>q</sup> Temple. It may be therefore that it was the Iewes custome partly to stand and partly to sit, for Christ (as it is apparant in the <sup>r</sup> fourth chapter of S. Luke) preaching at Nazareth in the Synagogue, stood vp when he read his text, and satte downe when he did expound it. Whatsoeuer the Iewes order was, at this instant there was no fitter gesture for Christ then sitting, for this (as <sup>t</sup> Augustine notes) shewed that he taught as one which had authoritie. When he was satte downe, he called all the twelue: doubtlesse he knew who they were which ambitiously contended to be greatest in his kingdome, <sup>u</sup> yet he called all his Apostles, as being assured that his lesson of humilitie was exceeding necessarie for them all. It is reported in the 20. chapter of this Gospell, how James and John only desired to sit on his right hand and on his left in his kingdome: yet Christ admonished them all, and said, Ye know that the Princes of the nations haue dominion over them, and they that are great, exercise authoritie vpon them: it shall not be so with you, but whoeuer will be chiefe among you, let him be your seruant. Now the reason why Christ, and after him his Church, vse generall admonitions in rebuking of particular malefactors which are worse then the rest, is two-fold. First, That the delinquents may the better admit that checking which is common, and not particular or personall. 2. That such as haue not offended in that kinde, may learne to be more carefull in their waies, and to hate the garment spotted by the flesh, as S. Iude speaks. Often hauing in minde the saying of Augustine, Aut sumus, aut fuimus, aut possumus esse quod hic est.

When Christ had called his Apostles vnto him, he set a childe in the midst of them, as it followeth in our present text. He set him by him, according to the record of <sup>x</sup> S. Luke; and tooke him in his armes, as <sup>y</sup> S. Marke; yet all agree, for it may be (saith <sup>z</sup> Euthymius) that Iesus first set him in the midst of them, as S. Matthew; then afterward set him beside him, as S. Luke; and last of all embraced him in his armes, as S. Marke. <sup>a</sup> Some thinke that this childe was one Martialis, afterward a famous Bishop in France; but this idle tradition is beside the text, and therefore not of the necessitie of faith. <sup>b</sup> Other imagine that Christ himselfe might be this little one being among his Disciples as a seruant, Luke 22. 27. but this opinion is against the text. Iesus called a childe, and set him by him, and tooke him in his armes; it saith, he set a childe in the midst of them, but what childe it doth not say, not a great boy, but a little childe, puerulus, which Erasmus translates puellum; Beza, puerulum; the vulgar Latine, parvulum; as Musculus vpon our text, Oportet imitari puellos anniculos; & foris bimulos. And so <sup>c</sup> S. Peter exhortheth vs to be like new borne babes: and surely <sup>d</sup> parents are commonly so negligent in instructing their children, as that Christ hardly could finde any yongling about three or foure yeeres old of such innocent behauiour, of whom he might say, Whoeuer humbleth himselfe as this childe, and except ye turne and become as children.

<sup>i</sup> Melanct.
Heming.
<sup>k</sup> Aretius.
<sup>l</sup> Iansen. concord cap. 70.

<sup>m</sup> Hieron.

<sup>n</sup> Act. 1. 15. &
2. 14.

<sup>o</sup> Act. 13. 16.

<sup>p</sup> Matth. 5. 1.

<sup>q</sup> Iohn 8. 2.

<sup>r</sup> See Paugarol. hom. in fest. om. sanctissimi &
Lovin. in Act.
1. 15.

<sup>t</sup> Verf. 16. 20.

<sup>u</sup> Lib. 1. de ser.
dom. in monte.

<sup>v</sup> Musculus
in loc.

<sup>x</sup> Luke 9. 47.

<sup>y</sup> Marke 9. 56.

<sup>z</sup> Com. in loc.

<sup>a</sup> Anselm.

Iansen post. ma-
iores cum glossis
& figuris in loc.
<sup>b</sup> Hieron. in loc.

<sup>c</sup> Epist. 2. 2.

<sup>d</sup> Dier. con. 1. festo Michael.

Let vs examine therefore wherein we must belike to children, and wherein vnlike. First, we may not be like to children in <sup>c</sup> ignorance, so Paul 1 Cor. 14. 20. In malice be ye children, but in vnderstanding men. 2. Not like to children in vnconstancie, <sup>f</sup> wanering and carried about with euery winde of doctrine. 3. Not weak in faith as children, which are not able to discern spirituall things for want of yeeres of discretion. 4. Not like to children in <sup>e</sup> seeking after vntoward things, because their senses are not yet settled, our <sup>h</sup> affections are to be set on things which are aboue, hauing our conuersation in <sup>i</sup> Heauen, and therefore we may not imitate children in eating dirt, and in padling in the mire. The childe plaies with the light of the candle till his finger be burnt, and <sup>k</sup> so the reprobate-wicked plaies with hell fire, reputing it a fable, till at the last he comes to be tormented in that vnquenchable flame. The childe doth esteeme an apple more than his fathers inheritance; so the witleffe worldling prefers things temporall in this life before the things eternall in the kingdome of Heauen. In these childish humors and the like, we may not be like to children.

But we must be like children, 1. As being <sup>l</sup> mundi corpore, sancti animo, chaste in body, pure in minde. 2. Like to children in <sup>m</sup> obedience, for good children stand not reasoning what manner of thing it is that their father commands, but instantly they follow his will and word as their rule to worke by. So faithfull Abraham at Gods commandment was ready to sacrifice his only begotten sonne Isaac, he stood not arguing the case, the death of my childe can doe no good vnto God, and it will procure much euill vnto me, but rather he thought that it is my father in Heauen who commands, and I will obey.

<sup>n</sup> *He's loath (alas) his tender sonne to kill,
But much more loath to breake his fathers will.*

3. Like to children in respect of merit, for as children cannot boast of their owne deseruings against their parents: euen so the followers of Christ may not brag of their merits before God, but acknowledge themselues to be babes, able to doe nothing without his fatherly fauour.

4. As little children commit themselues altogether vnto the tuition of their parents and guardians: euen so Christians ought to <sup>o</sup> cast all their care on Christ, as looking for euery good gift at his hand.

5. Like to children as concerning <sup>p</sup> malice, both <sup>q</sup> innocentia & ignoscentia: for as little children being iniured take not any reuenge, but onely make complaint either to their father or mother: euen so, when any wrong vs, we may not <sup>r</sup> auenge our selues in recompensing euill for euill, or <sup>s</sup> rebuke for rebuke, but only complaine to God our Father in heauen, or to the Church our mother on earth. It is written that vengeance belongs vnto God, and therefore we must humbly call vpon him in our persecutions, as the <sup>t</sup> Prophets did, O Lord, plead thou my cause with them that strue with me, and fight against them that fight against me. <sup>u</sup> Giue sentence with me, O God, defend my cause against vngodly people. And Psalme 80. 1. Hear thou shepherd of Israel, thou that leadeest Ioseph like a sheepe, shew thy selfe thou that sitest vpon the Cherubims. And Psalme 83. 1. Hold not thy tongue O God, keepe not still silence, refraine not thy selfe, for thou Lord hast bene our <sup>x</sup> refuge from one generation to another.

I haue <sup>v</sup> read of a reuerend and religious Archbishop of Mentz, who (being a long time depraued, and in fine deprived of his dignities and office by two corrupt Cardinals his Iudges, and a false harted Aduocate his familiar friend) out of the bitternesse of his spirit made this appeale from them vnto the Lord of Heauen. God knoweth (vnto whom all things are naked) that I am vniustly condemned, yet I will not appeale here from your sentence, for that I know yee shall sooner be beleued in your lying, than I am in speaking the truth; and therefore I receive this heauie censure for the rebellions of my youth and other sinnes; Nenerthelссе I appeale from your iudgement to the Iudge eternall, and onely wise, which is Christ Iesus, before whom I summon you. The Cardinals fell into a laughing, and said, That if he would goe before, they would follow. It hapned that the poore Bishop having in seño Michael.

<sup>c</sup> Theophylact.

<sup>f</sup> Ephes. 4. 14.

<sup>g</sup> Heming post.

<sup>h</sup> Coloss 3. 2.

<sup>i</sup> Philip. 3. 20.

<sup>k</sup> Diet con. 2 in seño Michael.

<sup>l</sup> Clemens.

<sup>m</sup> Strom. 4.

<sup>n</sup> Heming.

<sup>o</sup> Du Bartas
bist. of Abraham.

<sup>p</sup> 1 Pet. 3. 7.

<sup>q</sup> 1 Cor. 14 20.

<sup>r</sup> Culman.

<sup>s</sup> Rom. 12. 19.

<sup>t</sup> 1 Pet. 3. 9.

<sup>u</sup> Psal 35. 1.

<sup>v</sup> Psal. 43. 1.

<sup>x</sup> Psal 90. 1.

<sup>y</sup> Sir Ris. Barkley tract of felicitie, lib. 5 pag.
451.

withdrawne himselfe into a Monasterie, died within a yeere and halfe after, and the Cardinals, hearing thereof, in a scoffing manner said one to another, that they must go seeke the Archbishop. Now within a few dayes after, one of them was bloudily flaine, and the other grinding his teeth, eat up his owne hands and died mad. And lastly, the Iudas who betrayed him (I meane his false friend placed in his roome) was so mortally hated of all men for his sedition and crueltie, that being assaulted in a Monasterie, he was there butchered, and his carcase cast into the towne ditch, where lying three daies, all sorts of people, both men and women, used all manner of despite upon it. An example very remarkable, teaching vs not to despise one of these little ones, because in heauen their Angels alway behold the face of our Father which is in heauen.

Againe, wemay complaine to the Church our Mother, as in this present chapter at the 17. verse, If thy brother trespassing against thee, will not vouchsafe to heare thy selfe alone, nor yet thy witnesses and arbitrators, tell it to the Church. He that commits his cause to the Magistrate ciuill or ecclesiasticall, giues place to diuine iudgement, for as much as all higher powers are Gods ordinance, substituted Iudges and Deputies in his place. See Epistle 3. Sunday after Epiphanie.

Lastly, like to children (as Christ expounds himselfe) in humbleness and harmlesnesse. In humbleness, vers. 4. Whosoener humbleth himselfe as this childe, &c. In harmlesnesse, vers. 6. Whosoener offendeth one of these little ones, &c. So <sup>a</sup> S. Ambrose, <sup>b</sup> Theophylast, <sup>c</sup> Euthymius, and other as well ancient as moderne writers. As <sup>d</sup> if Christ should haue said, Except yee turne from your ambition and indignation, and become like to children, little ones in your mindes, as they be little ones in their bodies; vnlesse yee become that by grace, which children are by nature, yee shall not enter into the kingdome of heauen. I say, by grace, for euery good gift is from aboue, descending from the Father of lights, and therefore Christ here said not (as <sup>e</sup> one notes) Nisi efficiatis vos sicut paruulos, sed nisi efficiamini. To become like to little children in humbleness is not in our power, it is the worke of Gods hand and helpe: <sup>f</sup> yet to shew that we must (as we may worke with his preuenient grace, Christ addeth in the next clause, Whosoener humbleth himselfe: according to the saying of Gregorie, The good which a man doth, is both the worke of God, and the worke of man; of God, as being author in giuing grace; of man as being an actor in vsing grace, yet so that he co-operate with grace by grace. See Epistle Sunday 11. and 14. after Trinitie, and Gospell on S. Markes day.

Whosoener humbleth himselfe <sup>g</sup> That is, humbleth his heart, for as Plato said, euery mans soule is himselfe: it is not sufficient that our words are humble, our gestures humble, our habits humble (though I see that be more than many professors in our age will afford) vnlesse our soules and our selues are humble. Lord (said <sup>h</sup> David) I am not puffed in minde, I do not exercise my selfe in great matters which are too high for me, but I refraine my soule and keepe it low, like as a child that is weined from his mother, yea my soule is euen as a weined child. Men of great wits are commonly state-criticks, ouer-curious eauen-droppers of the Councell table, prying in the secrets of Court and Prince so long, vntill in fine they complaine with Aethon, Cur aliquid vidi? for when our hearts are sowed with the leauen of our pride, there ariseth oftentimes a bitternesse out of the stomack into the mouth, so that we cannot forbear to speake <sup>i</sup> ill of such as are in authoritie, yea prophanely of the Kings sacred Maiestie. The spirit of wisdom giueth another rule, <sup>k</sup> studie to be quiet, and to meddle with your owne businesse: a priuate person hath a commonwealth of his owne, let him intend the government thereof, in <sup>l</sup> prouiding for his household, in <sup>m</sup> laying vp for his children, in <sup>n</sup> reioicing with the wife of his youth, abounding with all workes of pietie toward God, and pitie toward his neighbour. He that thus humbleth himselfe as a little childe, the same doubtlesse is a good subiect vnto the King, and shall hereafter proue the greatest in the kingdome of heauen.

All they which are drunken, are not drunken with wine, saith <sup>o</sup> Esay, for there

<sup>c</sup> Rom. 13. 1.

<sup>a</sup> Ser. 10.

<sup>b</sup> In loc.

<sup>c</sup> In loc.

<sup>d</sup> Iansen.

Druthmarus.

<sup>e</sup> Dietz.

<sup>f</sup> Postan. ser. in festo Michael.

<sup>g</sup> Iansen.

<sup>h</sup> Psalm. 131.

<sup>i</sup> 2 Pet. 2. 10.

<sup>k</sup> 1 Theff. 4. 11

<sup>l</sup> 1 Tim. 5. 8.

<sup>m</sup> 1 Cor. 13. 14

<sup>n</sup> Ecclesiast. 9. 9

Prou. 5. 18.

<sup>o</sup> Cap. 29. 9.

is a drie drunkennesse so well as a mer; ambition is a drie drunkennesse, making such as are given over to humours of vaine glory, to stagger often in the way, and sometime reele out of the way. This kinde of drunkennesse made Lucifer reele out of heauen, Adam out of paradise, Saul out of his kingdome. Nabuchadonozor out of mens societie to conuerse with beasts. It is impossible that great ones (I meane such as are drunken with their owne greatnesse) should either walke in the narrow path, or enter in at the strait gate, only little ones are great ones in Gods kingdome. So the text here, whosoever humbleth himselfe as a little childe, the same is greatest in the kingdome of heauen: so the text else-where, blessed are the poore in spirit, for theirs is the kingdome of heauen; theirs is the kingdome of grace, which is heauen on earth; and theirs is the kingdome of glory, which is heauen in heauen. See Gospell on all Saints day.

P Matth 7. 14

The Epistle. 2 T I M. 4. 5.

Watch thou in all things, suffer afflictions, &c.

This Epistle was written by Paul at Rome in his last apprehension and imprisonment there, for so we may gather out of these words, cap. 1. verse 16. Onesiphorus was not ashamed of my chaine, but when he came to Rome carefully sought me, and found me, &c. It is an admonition vnto Timothie to stirre vp the gift of God in him by the putting on of hands, and that is done by preaching sound doctrine painfully, and by suffering for the same patiently. This our text then is a short abridgement of the chiefe points in the whole letter, for Paul exhorts Timothie to diligent preaching of the truth, in saying, watch thou in all things, doe the worke of an Euangelist; and to martyrdom for the truth, in saying, suffer afflictions: and to both, in saying, fulfill thine office vnto the vttermost: all which exhortations are hedged in as it were with a forcible reason at each side.

¶ Euseb. hist. lib. 2. cap. 32. Idem Primasius, Anselm Lombard. ¶ Cap. 1. 6. ¶ Arcelius in dispute one baines epist. ¶ Bullinger apud Barlorat. in loc.

1. Timothieus ought to be vigilant in executing his office thorowly, because the time will come when as men shall not endure wholesome doctrine, &c.

2. Because Paul cannot any longer continue to helpe him, I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departing is at hand, &c.

Watch thou in all things] The time will come when as men will not endure sound doctrine, but hauing their eares itching, shall after their owne lusts get them in heape of teachers, and shall turne away their cares from the truth, and shall be gisen vnto fables. And therefore while thou hast time, before this dangerous time come, that grieuous wolues enter in among you, be watchfull over the flocke committed vnto thy charge: such as haue itching eares are like to proue scabbie sheepe, and therefore prevent that mangie disease, by possessing their eares with a forme of sound words. Before they turne away from the truth, and giue themselves vnto fables, instruct them in meeknesse, preach the word in season, and out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort, be watchfull, in discipline and doctrine, yea vigilant in all things, that is, in all things which are profitable for thine hearers: or in all the workes of an Euangelist and offices of thy calling vse watchfulness: or in in nōis, may be construed of all men, as if he should haue said, the time will euen shortly come, when as many shall not endure wholesome doctrine; but endeuour thou to conuert all sorts of men vnto the truth, according to that, Matth. 28. 19. Goe teach all nations, and Marke 16. 15. Preach the Gospell vnto euerie creature, teach all men, and that by all meanes, doe the worke of an Euangelist thorowly, that is, as he speaks elsewhere, be to them an ensample, both in word and in conuersation, in loue, in spirit, in faith, in purenesse. Many which are called lights of the world, are sumantes magis quàm flammantes, affording more smoke than flame; but let your light shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorifie your Father which is in heauen; instruct thy flocke by good deeds as well as holy doctrine. Thorowly to doe the worke of an Euangelist, ¶ Lombard. ¶ Theophylact. ¶ Act. 20. 29. ¶ Occumen. ¶ 2 Tim. 1. 13. ¶ Anselm. ¶ 2 Tim. 2. 25. ¶ 2 Tim. 4. 2. ¶ Lombard. ¶ Primasius, Claudius, Esperencus. ¶ Arcelius. ¶ Aquin Lombard. Esperencus. ¶ 1 Tim. 4. 12. ¶ Arcens boni. in Euangel. in fello S. Luc.

<sup>1</sup> Prinasius.
Anselm.
Caecian.

<sup>1</sup> is to preach well and to liue well, he that doth both, executes his office vnto the uttermost.

The perillous times instant in the dayes of Paul, are become extant in our age. This prophesie (beloued) is fulfilled among vs in the Church of England; for albeit I confesse to Gods glory, that there may be found a righteous Abraham in Caldea, a iust Lot in Sodome, a godly Daniel in Babylon, a patient Iob in the land of Vz, a deuout Tobias in Nineuee, a zealous Ananias in Damasco: Though (I say) there be found wheat among tares, and corne among chaffe, and a pearle in a dunghill, and a lillie among thornes: Albeit there be many good professors and true Christians among vs, <sup>m</sup> abundant alwayes in the worke of the Lord; yet I feare that there be moe, which either reuolt to Poperie, turning away their care from the truth vnto fables, attending the spirits of <sup>n</sup>errour, and doctrines of deuils: or else start aside to schisme, hauing itching cares, and getting vnto themselues after their owne lusts an heape of such irregular and hypocriticall instructors, as shall doe nothing else but increase their itch by clawing: or else falling into foule Epicurisme, will not endure the wholesome words of our Lord Iesus Christ, and the doctrine which is according to godlinesse, 1 Tim. 6. 3.

Our Bishops and Pastors therefore need to be watchfull in all things, doing thoroughly the works of Euangelists, and executing their office to the full. The Patriarke <sup>o</sup> Jacob, commending his pastorall care to Laban, said, I was in the day consumed with heat, and with frost in the night, and my sleepe departed from mine eyes. In which obserue with <sup>p</sup> Aquin, three remarkable vertues in a good Pastor, Affiduitie, Patience, Solicitousnesse: Affiduitie, looking to his flocke night and day without intermission. He that is a watchman ought continually to stand vpon his watch-tower in the day time, and to set in his watch euery night, Esay 21. 8. feeding his sheepe in the day, praying for his sheepe in the night: Patience, both enduring the heat of present persecution, and the frost of future feare: Solicitousnesse, in that his sleepe departed from his eyes.

Now seeing our calling is so good, and our charge so great, it behoneth all people to <sup>1</sup> remember and obey those which haue the oversight of them, and submit themselues, because they watch for their soules, as they that must giue account, that they may giue it with ioy, and not with grieffe.

Suffer afflictions] All that will according to the rules of Christianitie liue godly, shall suffer <sup>1</sup> persecution, especially the Preachers of righteousness, to whom it belongeth ex officio, to reprove, to rebuke, to exhort with all long suffering and doctrine, 2 Tim. 4. 2. to plucke vp, and to root out, and to throw downe, Ierem. 1. 10 in a word, to lift vp their voice like a trumpet, shewing Gods people their transgressions, and to the house of Iacob their sinnes, Esay 58. 1. When our blessed Lord sent forth his Apostles to preach, he said, <sup>1</sup> Behold, I send you forth as sheepe in the midst of wolues; and when he sent his Disciples to preach (as it is in the Gospell appointed to be read this day) he said, Goe your wayes, I send you forth as lambes among wolues. Bishops succeeding the Apostles, are like sheepe among wolues, inferiour Ministers succeeding the Disciples, are like lambes among wolues; not as wolues among wolues, or shepherds among wolues, or sheepe about wolues; but as sheepe among wolues, harmlesse and innocent lambs in the midst of hurtfull and hungry wolues. And Matth. 23. 24. Behold, I send vnto you Prophets, and Wisemen, and Scribes, and of them yee shall kill, and crucifie, and of them yee shall scourge in your Synagogues, and persecute from Cisie to Cisie. So that (as <sup>1</sup> Chyostome said) a man should not enter into this high and holy calling, except he be willing to suffer a thousand deaths, as Paul 1 Cor. 15. 31. I die daily. <sup>u</sup> John Baptist came neither eating nor drinking, and yet the people said, he had a deuill. Christ himselfe came both eating and drinking, and they said, he was a glutton and a wine-bibber. <sup>x</sup> The seruant is not greater than his master, neither is an Embassador greater than he that sent him. <sup>y</sup> If they haue called the master of the house Beelzebub, how much more them of the household? That Timothee therefore may fulfill his office, doing throughly the worke of an Euangelist,

<sup>m</sup> 1 Cor. 15. 58

<sup>n</sup> 1 Tim. 4. 1.

<sup>o</sup> Gen 31. 40.

<sup>p</sup> Prolog. in 2. epist. ad Tim.

<sup>1</sup> Heb. 13. 7. 17.

<sup>2</sup> Tim. 3. 12.

<sup>1</sup> Matth. 10. 16

<sup>1</sup> Hom. 6. de laudibus Pauli.

<sup>u</sup> Matth. 11.

<sup>x</sup> Iohn 13. 16.

<sup>y</sup> Matth 10. 25

ghost, he must suffer afflictions as a good souldier of Christ, euer ready to beare bloudie blowes of open enemies, and drie hobs of false friends. The resolute Doctor Martin Luther, opposing the denill and the Pope, who doth exalt himselfe against all that is called God, in the midst of his trouble for the Gospell, vsed merily this by-word, ⁱ Mitte mundum vadere sicut vadit, nam vult vadere sicut vadit. Art thou called to preach, execute the worke of an Euangelist vnto the full, and leaue the successe to God. If the world doe not beleeue, What is that to thee, said ⁱ Christ vnto Peter in the like cause, follow thou me, ⁱ Tu me, me, me sequere, non tuas questiones aut cogitationes. And a reuerend Bishop in our age, who hath had his part in afflictions, often repeats this distichon :

Spernere mundum, spernere nullum, spernere sese, Spernere se sperni, quatuor ista beant.

ⁱ Oeconomical labour is great, Politicall greater, Ecclesiasticall greatest of all, as Luther speaks, to preach the Gospell as we should, is to stirre vp all the furies of hell against vs. And yet let not any Timothie be discouraged in his office, seeing after his fight is ended, and his course finished, a crowne of righteousnesse is laid vp for him, and shall be giuen vnto him at the comming of our Lord Iesus vnto iudgement.

Fulfill thine office vnto the vttermost] ⁱ As if he should haue said, thou canst not execute thine office to the full, vnlesse thou be watchfull, and suffer afflictions. Or by these things thou shalt make sproufe of thy ministerie to the whole world, when as they shall see thy doings and sufferings answerable to thy doctrine and sayings. Painfully to preach, and patiently to perseuere, doing the works of an Euangelist, and suffering affliction for the Gospell, are true ⁱ notes of a true Pastor.

I am ready to be offered, and the time of my departing is at hand] Every true Christian offers vp himselfe an holy ⁱ sacrifice to the Lord, ⁱ the which is begun in our baptisme, continued in our life, finished at our death. And surely (beloued) if all be blessed who die ⁱ in the Lord, much more they who die for the Lord, ⁱ right deare in the sight of the Lord is the death of such Saints. The glorious Martyr Polycarpus, like a notable Ram picked out of a great flocke, fit for an acceptable burnt sacrifice to God, vsed ⁱ this prayer when he was offered vp : O Father of thy well-beloued and blessed Sonne Iesus Christ, through whom we haue knowne thee; O God of the Angels, and powers, & of all sorts of iust men that liue in thy presence ; I thanke thee that thou hast graciously vouchsafed this day and this houre to allot me a portion among the number of Martyrs, among the people of Christ, vnto the resurrection of euerlasting life both of bodie and soule in the incorruption of the Holy Ghost, among whom I shall be receiued in thy sight this day as a fruitfull and a well pleasing sacrifice, &c. How death is called a departing, see Nunc dimittis in the Liturgie : how our life is a fight, Epistle 1. Sunday after Easter, and Epistle 21. Sunday after Trinitie : how a course or race, Epistle on Septuagesima Sunday.

There is laid vp for me a crowne of righteousness] Almighty God rendreth heauen as a iust Iudge, ⁱ not to the worthinesse of our works, but to the merits of Christ, and as due to vs by his promise freely made in Christ ; in respect of vs it is a garland of fauour only, but in respect of Christ who meritoriously purchased it for vs, it is a crowne of iustice. So ⁱ P. S. Augustine construethe our text, Cui redderet coronam iustus iudex, si non donasset gratiam misericors pater ? & quomodo esset ista corona iusticia, nisi precessisset gratia que iustificat impium ? quomodo ista debita redderetur, nisi prius illa gratuita donaretur ? How should he repay as a iust Iudge, vnlesse he had first giuen as a mercifull Father ? and how shou'd this be a crowne of iustice, if grace had not gone before, which iustified the vngodly man ? ⁱ Dona sua coronat Deus, non merita tua ; si ergo Dei dona sunt bona merita tua, non Deus coronat merita tua tanquam merita tua, sed tanquam dona sua. See Gospell on Septuagesima Sunday.

ⁱ 2 Thess. 2. 4.
ⁱ 1. Cor. 15. 1.
ⁱ Ant. sta contra cuius in qualibet uocatione
ⁱ Iohn 21. 22.
ⁱ Luther ubi
sup.

ⁱ Luther. loc.
com. in de mi-
nistrio vcti.
ⁱ vbi sup.

ⁱ Marlorat.

ⁱ Erasmus.

ⁱ Caluin.

ⁱ Rom 12. 1.

ⁱ Act in loc.

ⁱ Apocal. 14. 13

ⁱ Psal. 116. 13.

ⁱ Euseb. hist.
lib. 2. cap. 15.
Diuers other holy Martyrs vsed the like forme of praier
apud Fox Mart.
tyrol.

ⁱ D. Palke.
Marlorat.
Piscator.

ⁱ Lib. de grat. & libero arbitrio,
cap 5 & 7 ioh.
7 fol. 290.

The Gospell. L V K E 10.1.

The Lord appointed other seuentie, &c.

IN this Scripture two points are to be considered especially, Vox Domini, Christs word and ordination of his Disciples, the Lord appointed other seuentie, &c. To whom he said, goe your wayes, behold, I send you forth, &c. Via Discipuli, the Disciples worke and condition, as labourers in an harvest, as lambe among wolues.

Of all which I haue treated often elsewhere, but of the most obseruable notes hereof especially, Gosp. 1. Sunday after Easter, and Gosp. on S. Andrewes and Ascension day. The reason why the Church allotted this Epistle for this festiuall, is because S. Luke was (as some thinke) one of the seuentie Disciples, and the reason in appointing our Gospell is for that S. Luke was an Euangelist.

Epiphany, be-
ref. 15.

The Epistle: I V D E I.

Iudas the seruant of Iesus Christ, &c.

This Epistle may be divided in two parts, a

Salutation, in which obserue the	Saluted, commended by three graces,	} Called. } Sanctified. } Preserued.
Salute, consistung of an	} Exhortation, to continue stedfast in the faith once giuen vnto the Saints, &c. } Reason, because certaine vngodly men are craftily crept in, &c.

Saluter, described by his } Name, Iudas.
} Office, seruant of Iesus Christ.
} Kindred, brother of Iames.

Iudas] Iudas signifieth a Confessour, of which name there was another Apostle called Iudas Iscariot who betrayed Christ: in these two *Iuda*esses is shadowed this mysterie, that in the visible Church there will alway be some bad as well as good professors; Iudas a Deuill as well as Iudas a Saint. See Gospell Sunday next before Easter.

The seruant of Iesus Christ] Among all his titles he reputed this most honourable, for it is an excellent freedome to serue the Lord, 1 Cor. 7.22. Paul and Peter name themselues first seruants of Iesus Christ, and then Apostles: and S. Iames which is called the Lords brother, Gal. 1.19. leauing that name, stileth himselfe the seruant of Iesus Christ, Iames 1.1. If it were such a noble priuiledge to be subiect vnto Caesar, how much more to be seruant vnto Christ which is the King of all Kings? And that in regard of his protection and prouision: as for his protection, he saith, I the Lord thy God will be with thee whithersoener thou goest, I will not faile thee, nor forsake thee; and then if God be for vs, who can be against vs, Rom. 8.31. As for prouision, all his seruants in this world haue bread enough, Luke 15.17. and in the world to come they shall be no lesse than Kings, sitting vpon thrones, hauing palmes in their hands, and on their heads crownes of gold, Apoc. 4.4. See Nunc dimittis, and Epist. on S. Iames day.

The brother of Iames] He remembreth his kindred and alliance partly to distinguish himselfe from Iudas the Traytor, and partly to gaine credit to his writing.

Isidor Origen. lib 7. cap. 7

Math. 10.4.

Iohn 6. 70.

Rom. 1.1.

2 Pct. 1.1.

Act. 22. 25. 28

Iofua 1.9.

Hcb. 13.5.

Math. 19. 28

Apocal. 7.9.

Aguin. Arcina.

writing. <sup>e</sup> For albeit the word of God depend not vpon the worth of men, yet it is certainly true that his doctrine is best accepted, whose person is most honoured. If a Preacher then be borne of Nobles, or allied to men of great name and qualitie, let him not in any sort neglect this outward blessing of God, but vse it (as S. Iude here) to the furtherance of the Gospell, and setting forth of Gods glorie: Iames and Iude were brethren in blood, and brethren in good; (as Aquin and the glosse) fratres natura, fide, doctrina, vita. How Iudas is distinguished from Simon, and why both are ioyned together in one festiuall, I referre thee to Baronius <sup>f</sup> Annal. Eccles. & notat. in Rom. Martyrolog. O Elab. 28.

To them which are called and sanctified] To be called into the Church, and vnto the hearing of Christs Gospell, is <sup>g</sup> vocation externall; to be sanctified is vocation internall, to be preserued in Christ is vocation <sup>h</sup> eternall. Here then are set three parts of our insition and incorporation into Iesus Christ, vocation by God the Father, sanctification by the Holy Ghost, preseruacion by Christ. Vocation is an <sup>i</sup> effect of election, and so haply S. Iude calls them called, whom God hath clected, as Rom. 1. 7. Beloued of God, called to be Saints: <sup>k</sup> he doth insinuate that we come not vnto God except he call vs; if we loue him, it is because he loued vs first, 1 Iohn 4. 19. As he speaks by the mouth of his holy <sup>l</sup> Prophets, I haue beene sought of them that asked not, I was found of them that sought me not, he calleth vs before we call on him.

The 2. grace is sanctification, and sanctified; such as are called, are by nature the children of <sup>m</sup> wrath, as well as other; it is in vaine therefore to be called, that is, stirred and moued to receiue the faith, vnlesse we be sanctified: Iames 2. 14. What auaileth it (my brethren) though a man saith he hath faith, when he hath no works? <sup>n</sup> Herod seemed to be called, and somewhat inwardly touched, but he would not forsake his secret sinne of incest, in keeping his brothers wife. <sup>o</sup> Simon Magnus was baptized, and so called, but he was not sanctified to leaue his gainfull sinne of couetousnesse. Iudas as being an Apostle was called, and yet he was a deuill: and many deceiue themselves, who thinke hearing of the word to be sufficient without doing, Iames 1. 22. A sheepe resembleth a true Christian, euerie thing in a sheepe is good and vsfull, his fleece is good, his fell is good, his flesh is good, his entrailles, yea his excrements are good: and so the sanctified Christian is a seruant vnto all the seruants of God, euerie good gift in him is profitable, to some he lendeth his fleece, cloathing the naked: to some his bread, in feeding the huagrie: to some he lendeth his eyes, and so becommeth a guide to the blinde: to some he lendeth his strength, and so becommeth feet to the lame: to some he lendeth his vnderstanding, and so becommeth an instructor of the simple: he becommeth (as <sup>p</sup> Paul speaks) all things vnto all men, that he may win some vnto Christ. In this point of doctrine the Papists haue slandered vs exceedingly, saying, that our Diuines in preaching of faith, haue destroyed good works; whereas we professe that our calling is fruitlesse without holinesse of life. See Epistle 2. Sund. in Lent.

Preserued in Iesus Christ] As it is in vaine to be called first, vnlesse we be sanctified: so likewise to be sanctified, vnlesse we may be kept and preserued in Iesus Christ, not to lose our sanctification. Our life is a continuall warfare vpon earth, and therefore though we be called outwardly, and sanctified in some part inwardly; yet <sup>q</sup> the Dragon and his Angels fight against vs daily, that we may fall from faith and hope receiued, that we may <sup>r</sup> turne the grace of God into wantonnesse, like the dogge returned to his owne vomit, and the sow that was washed to the wallowing in the mire, and so end in the flesh, howsoeuer we began in the Spirit. <sup>s</sup> Demas fell away from the Gospell, embracing the present world; many are called, but few chosen, Matth. 20. 16. It behoueth vs therefore continually to pray that Christ Iesus the great Shepheard of our soules, may hold vs in his hands from the griping pawes and grinding iawes of the roaring Lion, who goeth about daily seeking whom he may deuoure. And surely such as are giuen vnto Christ, effectually called, and truly sanctified; shall be preserued to the end. <sup>t</sup> Zerubbabel

<sup>e</sup> Caluin.

<sup>f</sup> Tom 3. ad ann.
68. fol. 645.

<sup>g</sup> Piscator.
<sup>h</sup> D. W. det in loc.

<sup>i</sup> Pullinger.

<sup>k</sup> Marlorat.

<sup>l</sup> Esay 65. 1.

<sup>m</sup> Ephes. 2. 3.

<sup>n</sup> Mark. 6. 20.

<sup>o</sup> Acts 8. 13.

<sup>p</sup> 1 Cor. 9. 22.

<sup>q</sup> Apoc. 12 7.

<sup>r</sup> Epist. Iude
vers 7.

<sup>s</sup> 2 Pet. 2. 22.

<sup>t</sup> Gal. 3. 9.

<sup>u</sup> 2 Tim. 4. 10.

<sup>v</sup> 1 Pet. 2. 25.

<sup>w</sup> Zach. 4 9:

did did both lay the foundation of the temple, and finish it : to God will establish and make perfect his worke begun in vs, Psalm. 68 28 He that hath begun this worke of our saluation, will also performe it, Philip. 1 6. I know Gods elect may for a time lose some good meanes, and some great measure of grace too : Dauid, and Aaron, and Peter, and other haue fallen foully, yea tully, but none finally : God is more watchfull in helping vs, than Satan is or can be wrathfull in hurting vs. He which is the Father of mercies giueth vs preuenient grace, subseque[n]t grace, co-operant grace, grace before grace, and grace after grace, keeping vs by his power through faith, and preserving vs to his heauenly kingdome. It is not of our selues that we perseuere thus vnto the end and in the end, it is the power of God, who giueth (as our Apostle sheweth here) grace first to be called, secondly, to be sanctified, thirdly, to be reserued or preserved in Iesu Christ.

<sup>a</sup> 1 Pet. 1. 5.

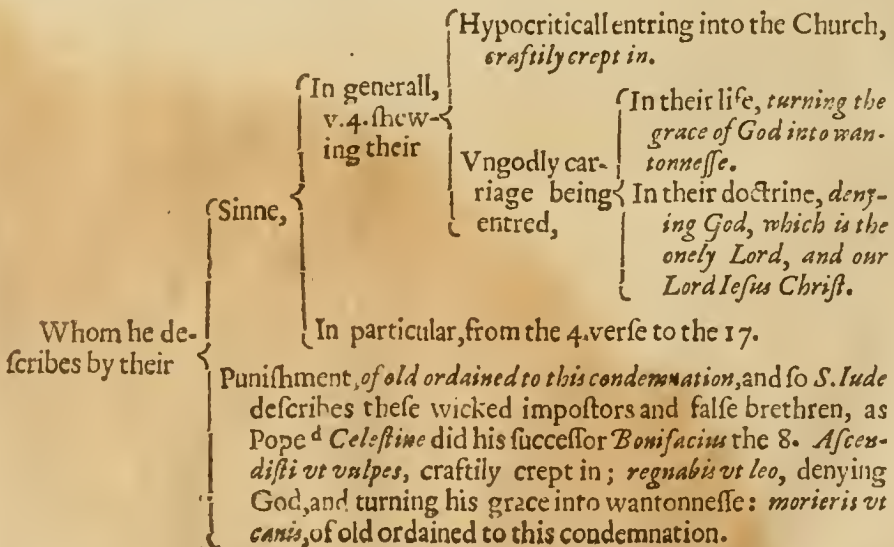

<sup>a</sup> Aretius.

<sup>b</sup> Marlorat.

<sup>c</sup> Aquin.

Mercy vnto you, and peace, and loue be multiplied ] <sup>a</sup> Mercy from God the Father, in the forgiueneffe of your sinns : Peace in Christ, in feeling this forgiueneffe : Loue in the holy Ghost, in being assured of Gods grace toward vs euery day more and more : Mercie from God the Father of mercie : Peace, from God the Sonne, the Prince of peace : Loue, from God the Holy Ghost, the loue of the Father and the Sonne. Mercie, in pardoning your sinnes ; Peace, in quieting your conscience ; Loue, ioyning you to God, and one to another : <sup>b</sup> or he wisheth increase of Gods mercie toward them, and a multiplication of their peace and loue toward one another. <sup>c</sup> That their sinnes may be forgiuen, he praises for Gods mercie : that they may forgiue other men their trespasses, he praises for peace : that both these may be multiplied in them, he praises for loue. First, he begins with Gods mercy, which is the fountaine of euery good and perfect gift, if we taste of his mercy, we shall soone be filled with his other graces, he that hath enough mercie, can want nothing. For as Samsons chiefe strength was in his haire, so Gods chiefe vertue in his mercie. Mercie (good Lord) is the totall summe, in the humble suit of a sinner ; O Lord haue mercie vpon vs miserable sinners, is the first petition ; and the grace of our Lord Iesus Christ, is the last in our Liturgie.

When I gaue all diligence ] Here S. Iude begins to prescribe his salue, which is an exhortation to contend earnestly for the faith, and the causes mouing him to write this vnto the Saints are two : 1. His dutie, when I gaue all diligence to write vnto you of the common saluation, &c. 2. Their danger, because they nourished certaine seducers as serpents in their owne breasts, <sup>d</sup> Walsingham in Ed. 1. pag. 26.

The Gospell. I O H N 15.17.

This command I you, that ye loue together, &c.

CHRIST in this Gospell is said to do three things especially: 1. He doth exhort his followers vnto mutuall loue: 2. He comforts them against the worlds hatred: 3. He promises to send vnto them the Holy Ghost, who being the Comforter and the Spirit of loue, may both instruct them how to loue together, and how to suffer affliction in the world. Of the first I haue spoken Epist. Sund. 1. after Trinit. Of the second, Epist. 2. Sund. after Trinit. Of the third, Gosp. on the Sund. after Ascension.

The Epistle: A P O C A L. 7. 2.

Behold, I Iohn saw another Angell, &c.

IN this Scripture concerning the sealing of the Saints and seruants of our God, obserue the Minister sealing, An Angell ascending from the rising of the Sonne, &c.

Men sealed, I heard the number of them who were sealed, &c.

Behold, I Iohn saw another Angell] In the words immediately going before, S. Iohn said, he saw foure Angels stand on the foure corners of the earth, holding the foure windes of the earth, that the winde should not blow in the earth, neither on the sea, neither on any tree. These foure Angels are foure agents of Satan, <sup>c</sup> Hypocrites with their impollures, Antichrists with their pestilent decrees and traditions, Tyrannous Princes with their bloudie Lawes, Vngodly Magistrates with their ignorant blindness. These foure reigne in the foure quarters of the world, with lies in hypocrisie, with errors in superstition, with tyrannie in power, and with crueltie in executing humane Lawes. Or these foure Angels imployed by the Prince of darknesse, are foure works of darknesse, Contention, Ambition, Heresie, Warre, <sup>f</sup> Contention arising from the East; Ambition arising from the West; Heresie from the South; Warre from the North. Or as <sup>g</sup> Ardens, These foure Angels are the spirit of Luxurie, the spirit of Pride, the spirit of Gastrimargie, the spirit of Auarice. For as the <sup>h</sup> Prophet speaks, That which is left of the palmer worme hath the grasshopper eaten, & the residue of the grasshopper hath the canker worme eaten, & the residue of the canker worme hath the caterpillar eaten. Luxurie consuming the flesh in which it is bred, resembles the palmer worme; Lustie pride with her low fall, the skipping grasshopper; Rauenous gluttonie the canker worme; Cut-throat auarice the caterpillar. Now Luxurie doth hurt many trees in the garden of God and that which luxurie hath left, hath pride deuoured; and that which is left of pride, gluttonie hath eaten; & that which is left of al these vices, is often ouercome by couetousnesse. <sup>i</sup> Or haply these foure Angels, are foure great powers in the world, the Turke, the Romane Emperour, the Pope, the King of Spaine, combined in a bloudie league with other Popish Princes, as <sup>k</sup> brethren in euill. All these furiously raging together against the Lord, & against his anointed, withhold the foure windes of the earth, that the winde should not blow, <sup>l</sup> that is, They persecute the Preachers of the word, and hinder the doctrine of the Spirit called oiten in <sup>m</sup> holy Bible winde; lest it should blow upon the earth, which is the <sup>n</sup> garden of God, driuing from thence all filth and corruption: Or on the sea, <sup>o</sup> that is, a wauering conscience, bringing men to a quiet hauen and hold in the Lord: Or upon any tree that is growing here, which are men <sup>p</sup> planted by God on earth, to bring forth fruit in Christ vnto the comfort of other. All these wicked Angels exercise both head and hand, how

T t r

<sup>o</sup> Baleus.
Matth. 23. 35.

<sup>c</sup> Apocalyp.
Apocalypcos.
<sup>g</sup> Hon. in loc.

<sup>h</sup> Ioel 1. 4.

<sup>i</sup> Arcana.

<sup>k</sup> Gen. 49. 5.

<sup>l</sup> Bullinger.

<sup>m</sup> Iohn 3. 8.

Acts 2. 2.

<sup>o</sup> Cant. 4. 16.

<sup>o</sup> Baleus.

<sup>p</sup> Psal. 1. 3.

9 Apocal. 17. 2.

<sup>r</sup> Arcetius.

<sup>r</sup> English
Glosse.

<sup>c</sup> Bullinger.
Marlorat.

<sup>u</sup> 1 Cor. 12. 4.

<sup>x</sup> 2 Tim. 2. 19.

<sup>y</sup> Iohn 10. 28.

<sup>z</sup> 1 Cor. 10. 13

<sup>a</sup> Brightman in
loc.

<sup>b</sup> Ardens.
Arcetius.
Meyer.

<sup>c</sup> Balanus.

<sup>b</sup> Esay 49 23.

<sup>c</sup> Ezech. 31. 6.

<sup>d</sup> See Apocalyp.

Apocalyp.

<sup>e</sup> Socrates hist.

lib. 1 cap. 8.

<sup>f</sup> Eusebius hist.

lib. 10. cap. 3, 6, 7

<sup>g</sup> de vita Con-stantin. lib. 2.

cap. 42, 44, 45.

<sup>h</sup> H<sup>l</sup> lib. 10.

cap. 1.

<sup>i</sup> P<sup>l</sup>. 37. 36.

<sup>j</sup> Malac. 3. 1.

<sup>k</sup> Malac. 4. 2.

how to croffe the proceedings of the Gospel, & to driue this heauenly blast away. The Turke doth infest Christendome with his war; the Roman Emperour with his Edicts; the Pope with his excommunications and Bulls; the Papish Princes (which haue committed abomination with the great whore of Babel, and are drunken with the wine of her fornication) hold the winds of the earth by their inquisition, fire, faggot, trecherie, rebellion. And for this end they found and feed Monasteries of Friars, and Colledges of Iesuits, as the Seminaries of sedition and conspiracie.

Or foure, being a <sup>r</sup> compleat number, it doth insinuate that all execrable ministers of Satan in the whole world, croffe (so much as may be possible) the blowing of the Spirit, both in the bookes of holy Scriptures, and in the mouthes of godly Preachers. In nature there is but one winde, yet said to be diuers, in respect of the diuers corners of the earth out of which it bloweth, East, West, North, and South; and so called foure winds, in regard of the foure quarters of the world. In like sort the Spirit is but one, Ephes. 4. 4. but it is termed here foure winds, in respect of the <sup>r</sup> foure Euangelists, who wrote the Gospell. It is diuers<sup>t</sup> for that it bloweth on diuers men diuersly, giuing to one the word of wisdom; to another the word of knowledge, to another faith, to another the gifts of healing, to another prophesie, to another discerning of spirits, to another diuersitie of tongues; all these things worketh euen the selfe same Spirit, distributing severally to euery man as he will, 1 Cor. 12. 11. These manifold blasts of the Spirit, or (as <sup>u</sup> S. Paul speakes) these diuersities of gifts, and diuersities of administrations, and diuersities of operations, are withstood by reprobate men and Angels in euery corner of the world; by the Papists especially, inhibiting the people to read the Gospell in the mother tongue, and prohibiting the Pastors to preach the Gospell in any tongue.

Now while these cursed Angels were stopping the winde, or letting the Gospels free passage, Behold, another Angell ascending from the rising of the Sunne, which had the seale of the living God, and he cried with a loud voice to the foure Angels (to whom power was giuen to hurt the earth and the sea) saying, hurt not the earth, neither the sea, neither the trees, till we haue sealed the seruants of our God in their forehead. Albeit the Dragon and his Angels rage neuer so much against the Church, yet the <sup>x</sup> foundation of God remaineth sure; and hath this seale, the Lord knoweth who are his; and <sup>y</sup> they shall neuer perish, neither shall any plucke them out of his hand. Indeede the foure foule Angels haue power to hurt the land and the sea, but it is limited, a power giuen of God, and God is <sup>z</sup> faithfull, who will not suffer his Elect to be tempted aboue their abilitie, but sends one good Angell to suppress the foure bad, crying to them, and that with a loud voice, hurt not the earth, neither the sea, nor the trees.

Some thinke this Angell arising from the East, was <sup>a</sup> Constantine the Great; <sup>b</sup> other expound this of Christ; other of the <sup>c</sup> Ministers of Christ; it is certaine, that Constantine succeeding immediatly Dioclesian and other persecuting Emperours, was a notable <sup>b</sup> nourishing father vnto the Church, vnder whose <sup>c</sup> shadow the Christians dwelt and prospered a long time. He did according to the tenour of our text) ascend from the <sup>d</sup> East, and he had the seale of the living God, that is, the true faith of Christ, openly professing it, and <sup>e</sup> establishing it also by the consent of three hundred eigheteene reuerend Bishops in the Council of Nice, summoned by him against Arrius, and other impious Angels, holding the foure windes of the earth. This Emperour cried with a loud voice to the wicked instruments of Satan, hurt not the earth, &c. He made many <sup>f</sup> proclamations and edicts in fauour of the Christians, in so much as the whole rabbie of the hatefull enemies of God (as <sup>g</sup> Eusebius reports) seemed to be wiped away from the sight of men, according to that of the <sup>h</sup> Psalmist, I saw the wicked exalted as the Cedars of Libanus, and flourishing like a greene Bay tree: but I went by, and loe he was gone, I sought his place, but it could no where be found.

Other construe this rather of Christ, as being <sup>i</sup> Angelus testamenti, the messenger and Angell of the conenant, the <sup>k</sup> Sun of righteousness, manifesting himselfe in the great darknesse of Anti-christianisme. He hath indeede the seale of the living God, as being being the <sup>1</sup> character of his person, and brightnesse of his glorie, <sup>m</sup> declared mightily to be the Sonne of God. He cries with a loud voice to the foure soule Angels, <sup>n</sup> that is, he fights against such as fight against his elect seruants, and deliuereth vs out of the hands of all our enemies. In the <sup>o</sup> darknesse of blinde superstition, he doth illuminate his, and seale them in their forehead, making them <sup>p</sup> openly to confesse his faith vnto saluation <sup>q</sup> among an adulterous and sinfull generation. <sup>r</sup> This sealing in the forehead is not an allusion to the signe of the crosse, for many reprobates haue receiued that in baptisme; the true mark whereby Gods Elect are discerned from all other, is a liuely faith in the heart, breaking forth into confession with the mouth, according to that of <sup>s</sup> Paul, with the heart man beleeneth vnto righteousness, and with the mouth he confesseth to saluation.

Now for as much as faith is by bearing, and hearing is not without a Preacher, and how shall any preach except they be sent, Rom. 10. 14, 15? therefore some Diuines haue conceiued, that the true Prophets and Preachers are this Angell ascending from the rising of the Sunne. <sup>t</sup> They haue power to marke the faithfull vnto life everlasting, their tongues are the <sup>u</sup> writing pens of the Holy Ghost, by whom the word of God is registred in the hearts of them that beleue. This Angell had the seale of God in his hand, and the Prophets haue the powerfull and effectuall word of truth in their mouth; and they cry with a loud voice to the wicked instruments of Satan, hurt not the earth, neither the sea, nor the trees. As if they should say, though some hearts are worldly, some consciences wauering, some mindes vnfuitfull and barren; yet they may repent and come to goodnesse. When the seed is sown, some falleth vpon <sup>x</sup> good ground, and brings forth fruit in abundance, cease therefore from withholding the sweet blast of the Scriptures, till we haue sealed vp the chosen seruants of our God in their forehead, and imprinted a true beleefe in their hearts by his Spirit. Saint <sup>y</sup> Paul hath said all this in a few words, After that yee heard the word of truth, euen the Gospell of your saluation, and therein beleened, yee were sealed with the holy Spirit of promise.

<sup>z</sup> Some think this Angell is Elias the Prophet, imagining that he shall in the latter end of the world come againe to fight against Antichrist, and to seale Gods Elect in their forehead. But our renowned Soueraigne King James in his <sup>a</sup> premonition, hath excellently discovered the vanitie of this idle Iewish fable; besides, our text faith in the plurall number, till we haue sealed, &c. <sup>b</sup> Insinuating that by this Angell is not meant one Preacher only, but many, yea so many as be both instant and constant in criying with a loud voice to the lewd Angels, hurt not the earth, neither the sea, nor the trees. If this one point were well vnderstood and learned, it would make you more diligent in comming to the Temple, which is the house of God; in reading the Scriptures, which is the book of God; in hearing the true Prophets, which are the Ministers of God, appointed for this end to separate you from the wicked of the world, and to seale you with his marke for his kingdome. Hitherto concerning the Ministers sealing, I am now to treat of the men sealed, all agreeing in one confession, howsoeuer differing in condition and countrey.

There were sealed one hundred and fortie and foure thousand of all the tribes of the children of Israel] The Iewes are sealed first, as being Gods <sup>c</sup> eldest sonnes, a peculiar and precious people chosen to himselfe <sup>d</sup> aboute all other in the world. After them in course follow the Gentiles, as the yonger sons of God, for there was sealed an infinite number of other nations, as well as a great number of the Iewes. And among both Iawes and Gentiles all sorts of men were sealed, the people so well as the Priest, euen twelue thousand of euery tribe, so well as twelue thousand of the tribe of Levi. And among the people, men of all occupations and trades, for <sup>e</sup> by the land, he meanes such as till the ground; and by the sea, Mariners & Merchants occupying their businesse in great waters; and by trees, such as are noble, rich, & potent in a flourishing estate. So that men in <sup>f</sup> euery nation, of euery fashion, if they feare God & work righteousness, are sealed with his seale for his chosen seruants: <sup>g</sup> Ezechiel reports that none are sealed, but such as mourne and cry for all the abominations that are done here, none but such as grieue to see the Gospell of Christ despised,

<sup>1</sup> Heb. 1. 3.
<sup>m</sup> Rem. 1. 4.
<sup>n</sup> Arcelius.

<sup>o</sup> Bullinger.
<sup>p</sup> English Gloffe.
<sup>q</sup> Marke 8. 38.
<sup>r</sup> D. Fulke in loc.

<sup>s</sup> Rom. 10. 10.

<sup>t</sup> Balæus.
<sup>u</sup> Psal. 45. 2.

<sup>v</sup> Matth. 13. 8.

<sup>y</sup> Ephes. 1. 13.
Vide Zanckium ibidem.

<sup>z</sup> Vistorinus com. in loc.

<sup>a</sup> From the 62. page to the 80

<sup>b</sup> Balæus.

<sup>c</sup> Exod. 4. 22.
<sup>d</sup> Deut. 7. 6.

<sup>e</sup> Arcelius.
<sup>f</sup> Psal. 107. 23.

<sup>g</sup> Acts 10. 35.

<sup>h</sup> Cap. 9. 4.

<sup>1</sup> Apocal. 13. 16

<sup>k</sup> Lib. 1. de Trinitate cap. 3.

<sup>1</sup> August. proom. in lib 3. de Trinitate.

despised, and his Church despighted. On the contrary, such as are common blasphemers of his name, contemners of his word, and persecutors of his Prophets, haue not the seale of the liuing God, but the <sup>i</sup> mark of the dying beast. In that it is said, one hundred and fortie foure thousand were sealed of the children of Israel, Arctas obserues, that euey one of the twelue Apostles multiplied his talent twelue times, a curious and a conscionable conceit too, but how consonant to the text, I leaue to the iudicious examination of the learned and godly, remembering the resolution of <sup>k</sup> S. Augustine in a case not much vnlike, Quisquis hac legit, ubi pariter certus est, pergat mecum: ubi pariter hesitat, querat mecum: ubi errorem suum cognoscit, redeat ad me; ubi meum, reuocet me. Nam in his, ut in omnibus meis scriptis, non modo pium lectorem, sed etiam liberum correctorem desidero.

The Gospell. MATTH. 5. 1.

Iesus seeing the people, went up into a mountaine, and when he was set, his Disciples came to him, and after that he had opened his mouth, he taught them, saying, Blessed are the poore in spirit, for theirs is the kingdome of heauen, &c.

<sup>m</sup> Arist. ethic. lib. 1. cap. 1. & 2.

<sup>n</sup> Luke 2. 10.
<sup>o</sup> Arctius.

<sup>p</sup> Matth. 28. 20.

<sup>q</sup> Marke 3. 17.
<sup>r</sup> Matth. 11. 17.

<sup>s</sup> Ser. 83.

<sup>t</sup> 1 Cor. 4. 1.

<sup>u</sup> Rom. 10. 14.

<sup>v</sup> 5.

<sup>w</sup> Galat. 6. 1.

THe first word of the first lesson in Christs first Sermon is Blessed, a point of conning and of comfort; of conning and good Art, wooing vs in the very first entrance to marke well his whole discourse, because <sup>m</sup> neuer any was, is, or shal be, but he desires (according to his own sence) to be blessed. It is the deuils oratorie to deterre men from pietie with an opinion of vn happiness & trouble which accompanie the godly, but the Rhetoricke of Gods holy Spirit allureth vs contrariwise by sweet premises and gracious promises, Blessed are the poore, blessed are they that mourne, blessed are the meek, &c. And it affords comfort, for hereby we know that the Gospell is a good-spell, euen <sup>n</sup> tidings of great ioy to all people; when as we reade that the first apothegme of Christs first Homilie reported <sup>o</sup> at large, was, blessed are the poore in spirit, for theirs is the kingdome of heauen; and the last period in his last Homilie, <sup>p</sup> Behold, I am with you alwaies untill the end of the world.

Now (beloued) all his actions are our instructions, it therefore behoueth vs in winning our children, our friends, our auditors vnto God and godlinesse, to learne and vse this gentle craft, being the sonnes of consolation, as well as the <sup>q</sup> Boanarges the sons of thunder. As sometime we must <sup>r</sup> mourne, that the people may lament; so likewise sometime pipe, that the people may dance. There was in the Arke of the Testament, Heb. 9. 4. the golden pot of Manna, so well as the rod of Aaron; and a Preacher (as Bernard wittily) should resemble a good mother, which hath ubera, so well as verbera; like a Bee, saith <sup>t</sup> Ambrose, which hath honie so well as a sting. As it is our part to be <sup>u</sup> disposers of the Gospell, and messengers of peace: <sup>v</sup> so let it be our Art to call home such as are out of the way, and to restore such as fall in the way with the spirit of <sup>w</sup> meeknesse, for blessed are the poore in spirit, &c.

Of this Apothegme there be two parts, a } Proposition, blessed are the poore in spirit.
Exposition, for theirs is the kingdome of heauen.

In the proposition obserue the } Subject, poore in spirit.
Predicate, blessed; for so we may conuert it aptly, the poore in spirit are blessed.

Concerning the subject, I finde } 1. The worlds poore.
three sorts of poore, namely } 2. The deuils poore.
3. Gods poore.

The worlds poore are either impotent, or impudent poore: impotent by birth, or casualtie; by birth, as the fatherlesse orphans, and beggers children, especially such as are creeples, or borne blinde; by casualtie, as the decayed householder, the maimed souldier, the visited with any gricuous plague or sicknes: all these kindes of poore wretches are to be releued, as wel with our almes as aduice. To binde vp their broken hearts, and to beare part of their burden, is a great euidence that thou art Gods heire, <sup>2</sup>mercifull as our Father in heauen is mercifull; Blessed in this world, for so Dauid in the 41. Psalm, Blessed is he that considereth the poore and needie, the Lord comforteth him in his affliction, and makes all his bed in his sicknesse. Blessed in the world to come, for so the Sonne of Dauid, euen Christ himselve, Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit ye the kingdome prepared for you, for I was an hungred, and ye gaue me meat: I thirsted, and ye gaue me drinke: I was a stranger, and ye lodged me: I was naked, and ye clothed me: I was sicke, and ye visited me. It is therefore my humble suit to those (which are by statute made ouerseers of our ouerseers for the poore) that hereafter in euery village, the distressed members of Christ, euen <sup>b</sup> flesh of his flesh, and bone of his bone, may be more charitably provided for, according to the true meaning of godly lawes established in this case.

<sup>1</sup> Efav 6.1.1.
<sup>2</sup> Galat. 6.2.
<sup>a</sup> Luke 6.36.

<sup>b</sup> Ephes 5.30.

Among impudent poore, some be little beggers, and some be great beggers; among little beggers I marshall the riotous spend-all, and the lazie get-nothing. The drunkard and the glutton shall be poore, saith <sup>c</sup> Salomon, and no maruell, seeing in a little while they draw their whole patrimonie, woods, house, land, thorow the narrow passage of their throat, &c. It is therefore my humble suit to the reuerend and graue Iudges of the land, that they would in their circuits, vpon all occasions offered, endenour to suppress and ditgrace these brutish, incorrigible, ding-thrifty dearth-makers. It is said of the Surgeon, that he must haue a Ladies hand and a Lions heart: But it is to be wished, that a Iudge in this corrupt age, should haue contrariwise, the heart of a Lady, for, Blessed are the poore in spirit, yet in punishing offenders, the hand of a Lion. It is an old saying, Qui non corrumpit, corrumpit; and all honest men, howsoeuer otherwise poore in spirit, haue notwithstanding euermore complained of a cruell pitie, which is the mother of licentiousnesse, and licentiousnesse is the mother of contempt, and contempt is the mother of sedition, and sedition is the mother of rebellion, and in fine rebellion is the mother of desolation.

<sup>c</sup> Prou. 23.21.

Of Rogues, I meane vagabond idle persons, out of couenant, out of course, there be two sorts, as namely, wilde rogues so bred, a great part whereof is an vncircumcised generation, vnbaptized, out of the Church, & so consequently <sup>d</sup> without God in the world. Other being better bred, for want of good discipline turne rogues, & become tame ruffians, & these drones haue swarmed so much in some parts of our Countie, that they driue many good Bees out of their hiues, in plaine english, many Gentlemen & Iustices too, during all the hard winter, out of the Countrey into the Citie, where they lie non-resident from their benefice, their mansion house where their lining is; and non-resident also from their charge, where they should execute his Highnesse Commission for the peace. I do not thinke with <sup>e</sup> Innocentius, Iustitia non datur nisi vendatur, that Iustice is dearely bought in any corner of our Keynsh soile (God forbid) & yet in the behalfe of my poore neighbours, I must say, that it is pitie Iustice should (considering the number of Iustices) be so far fetched in the midst of winter. Vngodly Politicians, who make the works of Lucia their old Testament, and Machiauels Prince their new: thrust themselues into the center of the world, as if all times should meet in them & their ends, neuer caring in any storme what becōmeth of the ship of estate, so they may be safe in the cockpit of their own fortune. But nature tels thee, that no man is borne for himselfe; and <sup>f</sup> Scripture tels thee, that we must in loue serue one another. Our Christiā estate necessarily requires, that some should be great, and other little; that some should be subiect, and other soueraigne; that some should command, and other obey: but faith our blessed Sauour (speaking to his Disciples, as representing the whole

<sup>d</sup> Ephes. 2.12.

<sup>e</sup> De utilitate condit human.
lib. 2. cap. 5.

<sup>f</sup> Galat. 5.13.

<sup>g</sup> Luke 22. 26.
<sup>h</sup> Lib. 3. de consifid ad Euang.
<sup>i</sup> In Mat. 20. 27

Church) He that is greatest among you, let him be as the least, and he that is chiefe, as he that doth serue. Præsis, vt proxis, as <sup>h</sup> Bernard told Eugenius, and as <sup>i</sup> Martin Bucer noteth out of these words of Christ against Anabaptists, He which according to the wil of the Lord beares rule godly, doth nothing lesse than domineere, yea, most of all serue. The Iustice, the Iudge, yea, the King himselfe (as States-men are bold to call him) is a great seruant of the Common-wealth. It is therefore my humble sute to the worthy Knights, and other Iustices (hauing receiued large money for the building and maintaining of Bridewels in our Countie) to performe better offices in banishing all vprofitable vagabonds out of our coasts.

<sup>k</sup> Roderic Mors complaint to the Parliamēt of England, cap 10. printed at Genua by Michael Boys.

I am now to speake of small beggars; of such as beg in the courts and houses of Kings; of such as come to something, when other come to nothing; of whom in old time <sup>k</sup> complaint was made to the Parliament of England, That they did by cob-web subtleties of the law, first rob the subiect, & the afterward rob the king. I hope there be none such in our dayes, vnder the government of our most illustrious, wise, learned, meek, religious, & pious Prince K. James (whom I beseech God of his infinite goodnes to prosper long among vs in health, & wealth, & al happinesse, as well concerning this, as the world to come) But if a Iudge hereafter in another age should unhappily meet with such a sturdie beggar, I wish heartily that he may follow Iustice <sup>l</sup> Iobs example, who saith of himself, I put on righteousness, & it clothed me; my iudgment was a robe & a crowne. I was eyes, to the blinde, & feet I was to the lame. I was a father vnto the poore, & the cause which I knew not, I searched out diligently. I brake also the iames of the wicked, & pluckt the prey out of his teeth. If he proue too great a fish to be caught in thy net, enuie not his prosperitie, for he buildeth his house as the <sup>m</sup> moth; & it thou possesse thy soule in patience but a little while, <sup>n</sup> thou shalt look after his place and he shall not be found. As he was a beggars brat, so he shal die the first gentlemā, & the last knight of his name

<sup>l</sup> Iob 29. 14.

<sup>m</sup> Iob 27. 18.

<sup>n</sup> Psal. 37. 10.

There be three rankes of the Devils poore } Couctous. }
 Vain-glorious. } Superstitious. }

The Couctous, who want euen that they haue, being as they are termed aptly the greatest Misers in the world, like the market horse laden with daintie cates, and yet feeds on thistles.

The Vain-glorious, who to get a name, forget often their estate, as certaine Philosophers in old time (whom I will not name, because they did it for a name) cast al their goods into the Sea, lest they should hinder their courses in the studies of Philosophie. Notebant censu abundare terreno, vt magis sensu abundarent suo, saith a <sup>o</sup> learned expositor vpon this text. And certaine Schismatickes in latter ages, haue for the crasie credit of a desperate cause forsaken their own Countreies, and their owne free-holds which were certaine, to depend vpon the breath and bread of other men which is vncertaine.

<sup>o</sup> Iansen. con- cord. cap 39.

The Superstitious, as the popish Monkes and Friars, who transported with a blinde deuotion, abandoned all worldly possessions, and yet abounded in all riot and excesse; Regulares gulares, they were more than men at their meat, lesse than women at their worke, saith <sup>p</sup> Erasmus. <sup>q</sup> Albertus Duke of Saxonie was wont to say, that he had three wonders in one Citie, namely three Monasteries, For the Friars of the first had children, and yet no wines: The Friars of the second had a great deale of corne, and yet no land: the Friars of the third abounded with monies, and yet had no rent.

<sup>p</sup> In colloquio
Franciscan
<sup>q</sup> Manlius in loc com.

<sup>r</sup> Hic dolus est magnus, lupus est qui creditur agnus.

<sup>c</sup> Pocm. de cor-
rupto statu Ec- clesiæ per Illiri- cum.

So then (as you see) the Devils poore differ very much one from another: for the Couctous haue the possession, but not the free vse: the Superstitious haue the vse, but not the free possession: the Vain-glorious vpon the point haue neither free vse, nor free possession of such worldly wealth as they desire, being all in their severall kinds exceeding poore.

The third sort of poore are Gods poore, which abound with inward wants, and and want also many times outward abundance. Whereof some vndergoe patiently losse of their goods, as Iob; other forgoe cheerfully the vse of their goods, as the blessed Apostles. These are the poore in spirit, or (as S. Basil conuicteth it) the poore for the spirit, wholly submitting themselves to be ruled by Gods holy Spirit, the humble and the meeke, truly feeling their inward, and patiently bearing their outward pouertie. Christ then here doth not vnderstand such as are mecerely the worlds poore; for albeit they be humbled, yet are they not humble; nor the deuils poore, for they are neither actually humbled, nor humble; but onely Gods poore, which are both humbled and humble, humbled in their pouertie, humble in their spirit, blessed are the poore in spirit.

So S. Hierome,<sup>u</sup> Augustine,<sup>x</sup> Ambrose,<sup>y</sup> Gregorie Nysses,<sup>z</sup> Theophylact,<sup>a</sup> Euthymiu, and other Doctors expound it. And this appeares to be Christs meaning, in that the word spirit signifieth elsewhere will, as Matth. 26. 41. The spirit indeed is ready, but the flesh is weakke, and 1 Cor. 7. 34. The virgin cares for the things of the Lord, that she may be holy both in body and in spirit, that is, in thought & minde. So that to be poore in spirit, is nothing else, but willingly to <sup>b</sup> fortake our felices, and to follow Christ, euermore being ready for his sake to beare the losse of our wealth, when as we are made poore; and to forbear the vse of our wealth, when as we are rich, <sup>c</sup> vsing the world as though we vsed it not. For this blessing belongs as well to the rich, as to the poore. As the bad poore are proud in spirit; so the good rich are poore in spirit. <sup>d</sup> As some be poore in substance and not in spirit; so some rich in substance, yet poore in spirit. A cable vntwined in euerie cord and thred, may goe thorow the <sup>e</sup> needles eye: so the rich man, if once he be well vntwined, diuiding his goods according to the will of the giuer, may notwithstanding all his greatnesse, walke in the narrow path, and enter into the strait gate of Heauen.

The worlds poore are miserable, because deiefted in their pouertie: The deuils poore cursed, because proud in their pouertie: Gods poore only blessed, as hauing nothing, and yet possessing all things, 2 Cor. 6. 10.

Here then obserue what an excellent vertue contentation and lowlinesse of minde is. As the first vice the deuill thrust vpon Adam was discontentment and pride: so the first vertue Christ commends vnto his followers, is an humble contentment. The eight beatitudes. (saith Cromatius) are like Iacobs ladder, reaching from earth vnto heauen; and the very first step of the ladder, as the 8 foundation of the rest, is lowlinesse of minde. For as God is said to <sup>h</sup> hang the earth vpon nothing, that it might wholly depend vpon him: euen so doth he found the world of his Christian Common-wealth vpon nothing; and this nothing is an humble dis-prising and forsaking of all our own abilities, and an only relying vpon his almightie power and goodnesse. As pride is the beginning and originall of sinne, Ecclesiasticus 10. 14. because iniquitie is nothing else but inequality, and pride is most vniust, attributing vnto it selfe too much, vnto all other too little: so contrariwise, contented humblenesse is the Primer, and as it were A.B.C. of our Christian Ethicks; it is as Ambrose & Bernard write, the mother vertue, yea Custos sigilli magni, the keeper of all Gods great seales and graces, without which his other gifts are rather curses than blessings to vs. It is an eminent grace for a man, to speake with the tongues of <sup>i</sup> Angels, and so to transport other with the winde of words and fouds of eloquence whither he list; and yet if learning be not seasoned with humilitie, knowledge, saith <sup>k</sup> Paul, puffeth vp, and as Aristotle speakes, it is armata iniustitia, like a sword in a mad mans hand. Fasting that tames the body, without humilitie, makes proud the minde, I fast twice in the weeke, quoth the Pharisee, Luk. 18. 12. Almes are a <sup>l</sup> sacrifice pleasing to God, for he that <sup>m</sup> giueth vnto the poore, lenderth vnto the Lord: yet if a trumpet be blowne, and we giue mecerely to be seene of men; if we beare not our poore brethren in our bowels and bowome, we shall haue no reward of our Father which is in heauen, Matth. 6. 1. And therefore Christ inculcates often this one lesson, as well by patterne as precept, Learn of me, for I am humble and meeke.

In

<sup>c</sup> In regalis con-tractationibus quæ 205.
Idem Beza in loco.

<sup>e</sup> In loco

<sup>a</sup> Lib. 1. de ser.
Dov. in mun. e

<sup>x</sup> Lib. 3. de Luc
cap. de beatitud

<sup>y</sup> Lib. de searitud.

<sup>z</sup> in loc.

<sup>a</sup> In loc.

<sup>b</sup> Matth. 26. 41.

<sup>c</sup> 1 Cor. 7. 34.

<sup>d</sup> Ardens hom.
in loc.

<sup>e</sup> Mark. 10. 25.

<sup>f</sup> Ser. de 8. Bea-titud

<sup>g</sup> Theophylact.
in loc.

<sup>h</sup> Job 26. 7.

<sup>i</sup> 1 Cor. 13. 1.

<sup>k</sup> 1 Cor. 8. 1.

<sup>l</sup> Heb. 13. 16.

<sup>m</sup> Plou. 19. 17.

<sup>n</sup> John 16.33.
<sup>o</sup> Mattha 16.24
<sup>p</sup> Maik. 10.29.

▪ In the world yee shall haue affliction, he that will follow me, must of necessitie forsake himself, and yet be of good cheere, for there is no man that hath forsaken house, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my sake and the Gospels, but he shall receiue an hundred fold, now at this present, houses, and brethren, and sisters, and mothers, and children, and lands, with persecutions, and in the world to come eternall life. I tell you that in the beginning, which you shall finde most true in the end, Blessed are the poore in spirit.

For, Blessed is the predicat of the proposition. And there is a twofold blessednes, beatitudo viae, and beatitudo patrie, blessednesse in this world, and blessednesse in the next. The poore in spirit haue the promises of both, 1 Tim. 4.8. The present happinesse is either outward and worldly, or else inward and ghostly: Outward, as Psalm. 132. 16. I will blesse her victuals with increase, and I will satisfie her poore with bread. And Psalm. 144. 15. Happy are the people that be in such a case. And Deut. 28. Blessed shalt thou be in the field, and blessed in the Citie, blessed shalt be the fruit of thy ground, and the fruit of thy cattell, the increase of thy kinge, and the flocks of thy sheepe. These temporall and worldly blessings often accompanie the meeke more than the proud, because fortune, as <sup>a</sup> Charles the fift told his sonne, is like a woman, if shee be too much wooed shee will be the farther off. How soeuer it be, <sup>r</sup> godlinesse is great gaine, and the poore in spirit want nothing, as being content with any thing. But the blessednesse promised by Christ here, surpassing al worldly treasures and pleasures, is inward and ghostly, consisting in the riches of the minde, & in a sweet contentation of the conscience, which is a <sup>f</sup> continuall feast, and a daily Christmas, wherby the poore in spirit are made lords, and as it were tyrants ouer the whole world, domineering ouer Iustices & Iaylor, ouer Iudge & Iurie. Treasons, and murders, & felonies, & other routs & riots inquired after at Sessions & Assises, are bred of discontentment and pride: but though all the deuils in hell, and all their agents in earth & aire, combine themselues against one little one, yet Qui vadit planè, vadit sanè, he that walks vprightly, walks confidently: The <sup>e</sup> text will alway be found true, They that put their trust in the Lord, shall be euen as the mount Sion, which may not be removed, but standeth fast for euer.

But here we must obserue with incomparably learned * Melancthon, and yother Proteftat Diuines, that in this, & al other like places of holy Scripture, where good works are commanded, or commended in any, that Christ is the sole cause of our happinesse; Without me (saith <sup>r</sup> he) you can do nothing, and without faith in him, it is impossible to please God, Heb. 11. 6. Our persons must be first reconciled vnto God, hauing for Christs sake pardon of our sins, and imputation of righteousnes, and then our works shall be blessed and acceptable; Psalm. 32. 1. Blessed is the man whose vnrightheousnesse is forgiuen, and whose sin is couered. blessed, <sup>a</sup> that is, justified, for iustification is blessednesse begun, glorification blessednesse perfited. It is a sweet saying of our <sup>b</sup> Church, Faith is the nest of good works; albeit our birds be neuer so faire, yet they will be lost, except they be brought forth in true belecte. The sparrow hath found her an house, and the swallow a nest, where shee may lay her young, euen thine Altars, O Lord, Psalm 84. 3. Such as are true belectuers, hauing their vnrightheousnesse forgiuen, and their sin couered, are blessed men; and all their works as being laid vpon Christs Altar, are a sweet smelling sacrifice to God. But (saith <sup>c</sup> Augustine) Heretikes and Infidels in doing glorious acts and honourable deeds, haue no where to lay their young, and therefore they must of necessitie come to nought; as the fathers of our commo Law speake, Moritur actio cum persona, their actions are damnable with their persons. He which is poore in spirit is blessed, he which is merciful is blessed, he which is a peacemaker is blessed. But as our diuines haue iudiciously noted against the papists, in al these beatitudes a liuely faith is presupposed, according to that <sup>d</sup> Apostolicall axiome, Whatsoeuer is not of faith is sinne. The faines of God are sealed inwardly with faith, as it is in our Epist. but outwardly with goodworks, as in our Gospel. To be poore in spirit, to mourne, to be merciful, are not causes, but effects of our iustificatiõ, as we comonly speake out of Bernard, Vsa regni, non causa regnandi: <sup>e</sup> for the followers of Christ are blessed, not because they

<sup>q</sup> Aduancement of Learning, lib. 2. pag. 105.
<sup>r</sup> 1 Tim. 6. 6.

<sup>f</sup> Prou. 15. 15.

<sup>e</sup> Prou. 10. 9.
<sup>a</sup> Psal. 125. 1.

* Com. in loc. & apolog. con. fest. Augustin. in. de Dilect. & implet. legis.

† Calvin. instit. lib. 3. cap. 17.

<sup>z</sup> John 15. 5.

<sup>a</sup> Mat. 17. in Rom 4. 8.

<sup>b</sup> Hom. of good works, part. 1.

<sup>c</sup> in Psal 83.

<sup>d</sup> Rom. 14. 23

* Muscu. us. Marlorat.

they be poore in spirit, but because theirs is the kingdome of heauen. That is the right exposition of the proposition, Blessed are the poore in spirit.

Now the kingdome of heauen in holy Scripture, signifie: heither the kingdome of grace, which is heauen on earth; or else the kingdome of glory, which is heauen in heauen: and both these belong vnto the poore in spirit: <sup>h</sup> Some confue this of the kingdome of grace, because Christ saith expressly, Luk. 4. 18. The spirit of the Lord hath anointed me, that I should preach the Gospell vnto the poore; he hath sent me that I should heale the broken hearted; that I should preach deliuerance to the captiues, and recovering of sight to the blinde; that I should set at libertie them, that are bruised. And, I am not come to call the righteous, but the sinners to repentance. And, I giue thee thanks, O Father, Lord of heauen and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and men of vnderstanding, and hast opened them vnto babes. The carnall wife, Credentes oculo magis quam oraculo, relie more vpon their five senses, than the foure Euangelists; and therefore, <sup>k</sup> because they cannot finde a reason of naturall things, they make to themselues false gods; and because they cannot finde a reason of supernaturall things, they denie the true God. The curious while they desire to know what they should not, are not able to conceiue what they should; by diuing too much into the subtleties of reason, they forget often the principles of Religion. As wholsome lawes are lost many times in the Cafes of the Law; so Religion it selfe is lost among Sophisters in the questions of Religion. It was the Serpent that first opened Adams eyes, and inticed him to prie into the secrets of God. Our care therefore (said <sup>l</sup> Luther) must be to shut vp our eyes againe, that we seeke not ambitiously to see more than Almighty God would haue vs to know. Christ would haue vs to bring faith & humilitie to his schoole, leauing our arguments at home, Non vult nos esse christus & quaristus. <sup>m</sup> He resisteth the proud, and giues grace to the humble. The <sup>n</sup> poore receiue the Gospell, as it is in our text, Theirs is the kingdome of heauen.

But <sup>o</sup> other Expositors vnderstand this of that incorruptible crowne of glory: as this world seemes to be made for the presumptuous and proud; so that other only for the humble and meeke. It is Theirs, and that in present Is, and it is a kingdome, and that a kingdome of heauen. According to the termes of our common Law, <sup>p</sup> there be two sorts of Freeholds; A Freehold in deed, when a man hath entred into lands or tenements, and is seised thereof actually and really; A Freehold in law, when a man hath right to lands or tenements, but hath not yet made his actuall entrie. Now the kingdome of heauen is our Freehold in law, though as yet while we liue, we cannot actually be seised thereof. It is ours, as being <sup>q</sup> prepared for vs by God the Father. It is ours, as being purchased in our behalfe by God the <sup>r</sup> Son. It is ours, as being assured to our spirit by God the Holy Ghost, Rom. 8. 16. 17. We haue now right to this inheritance, Habemus ius ad rem (as <sup>s</sup> Melancthon acutely) nondum in re. Or as Augustine, and other of the Fathers vsually, the kingdome of heauen is ours already, Non in re, sed in spe. The Scripture saith as much in plaine termes; We are <sup>t</sup> faued by <sup>u</sup> blessed hope, which is <sup>x</sup> immouable, without <sup>y</sup> wauering. <sup>z</sup> Fides intuetur verbum rei, spes verò rem verbi, Rom. 5. 2. Through our Lord Iesus Christ we haue accessè by faith vnto this grace, wlierein we stand and reioyce vnder the hope of the glory of God.

And we may well vnder hope reioyce, seeing our reward (when our <sup>a</sup> fight is finished) is no lesse than a kingdome. The citizes of Tyrus are described by the Prophet <sup>b</sup> Esay, to haue beene companions vnto Nobles and Princes: but in that heauenly Hierusalem, every burgeesse by his <sup>c</sup> second birth, is the <sup>d</sup> brother of a King, the <sup>e</sup> sonne of a King, and himself a King: hauing in token hereof a triumphant <sup>f</sup> palme in his hand, and a <sup>g</sup> golden crowne on his head. And this kingdome is not a <sup>h</sup> fading inheritance, but a kingdome of heauen, an immortal and euerlasting life. Men on earth haue life, but it is <sup>i</sup> full of trouble, & of small continuance, not euerlasting. The damned in hell haue an eternall being, but because they cannot moue, but are perpetually tied vnto their torments, it is not a life, but a death. Only the <sup>k</sup> rich in grace, the poore in spirit shall haue, whē this world hath his end, an euerlasting life without

<sup>f</sup> Matth. 3. 2.
 Luke 18. 17.
<sup>g</sup> Matth. 7. 21.
 Actis 14. 22.
<sup>h</sup> Hieron.
 Musenius.
 Auetius.

<sup>i</sup> Matth. 9. 13

<sup>k</sup> Dr. Ed. Ser Physick for the plague.

<sup>l</sup> Loc. com. tit. de pugna siles & rationis humane
<sup>m</sup> 1 Pet. 5. 9.
<sup>n</sup> Matth. 11. 5.

<sup>o</sup> Euthym.
 Rasert.
 Caictan.

<sup>p</sup> Termes of the Law, pag.
 103.

<sup>q</sup> Matth. 25. 34.
<sup>r</sup> 1 Pet. 14. 19.
<sup>s</sup> In Rom. 8. 24.
 Idem Caictan. in
 loc.
<sup>t</sup> Rom. 8. 24.
<sup>u</sup> Tit. 2. 13.
<sup>v</sup> Coloff. 1. 33.
<sup>y</sup> Heb. 10. 23.
<sup>z</sup> Altedius Sy stem. theolog.
 lib. 3. loc. 17.

<sup>a</sup> Tim. 4. 7.
<sup>b</sup> Cap. 23. 8.
<sup>c</sup> Ioh. 1. 3.
<sup>d</sup> Heb. 2. 17.
<sup>e</sup> Rom. 8. 14.
<sup>f</sup> Apocal. 7. 9.
<sup>g</sup> Apocal. 4. 4.
<sup>h</sup> 1 Pet. 1. 4.
<sup>i</sup> Iob. 14. 1.
<sup>k</sup> Non dicie
 paupes spiritus sed spiritus. Ca-ictan. in loc.

1 Cor. 3. 9.

without end. Tell, O man, what thou most earnestly desirest? Is there any thing thou louest beter than life? Is there any life better than a blessed life? Is there any blessed life without hope here, and hold hereafter of euerlasting life? Yet all these things, and more than I can vtter, or you conceiue, are<sup>1</sup> prepared and reserued for such as are poore in spirit, for theirs is the kingdome of heauen.

Preached at Maydston Assises, Iulie 28. 1614. vpon the request of my much honoured and worthily beloued friend and kinsman, Sir Anthonie Aucher Knight, high Sheriffe of Kent.

Almightie God, which hast knit together thy elect in one communion and fellowship in the mysticall bodie of thy Sonne Christ our Lord; Grant vs grace so to follow thine holy Saints in all vertuous and godly liuing, that we may come to those vnspeakable ioyes, which thou hast prepared for them that vnfainedly loue thee, through Iesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

G V N - P O W D E R

T R E A S O N D A Y .

PSALME 150.

O praise God in his holinesse, &c.

All the Psalmes of David, are comprised in two words, <sup>a</sup>Halleluiab, and Hofanna, that is, blessed be God, and God blesse; as being for the greater part either prayers vnto God for receiuing mercies, or else praises vnto God for escaping miseries. This our present Hymne placed as a <sup>b</sup> conclusion of the whole booke, yea, the beginning, middle, end, to which al the rest (as <sup>c</sup> Musculus obserueth) are to be referred, inuith vs in prescript and postscript, in title, in text, in euery verse, and in euery clause of euery verse, to praise the Lord. Teaching these two points especially :

1. For what } God is be magnified.
2. With what }

For what, vers. 1, 2. O praise God in his holinisse, praise him in the firmament of his power, praise him in his noble acts, praise him according to his excellent greatnesse.

Without vs, vers. 3, 4, 5. Praise him in the sound of the trumpet, &c.
Within vs, ver. 6. Omni spiritus, &c. Let euery spirit praise the Lord, praise yee the Lord

This in brieft is the whole texts Epitomie, I come now to the words Anatomie, cutting vp euery part and particle seuerally, beginning first at the first, O praise God in his holinesse. Of which one sentence the Doctors haue many (though not aduerse yet diuerse) readings, especially three: Praise God in his Saints, praise God in his sanctitie, praise God in his Sanctuarie. S. Hierome, Augustine, Prosper, and <sup>d</sup> other, as well ancient Interpreters as moderne, translate here, praise God in his Saints. For if he must be praised in all his creatures, how much more in his new creatures? if in the witlesse wormes and senselesse vapours, Plal. 148. much more doubtlesse (as Theodoris here collect) in men, in holy men, in Saints, vpon whom he hath out of his vnsearchable riches of mercy, bestowed the blessings of the <sup>e</sup> life present, and of that which is to come.

First, Almighty God is to be blessed, for giuing his Saints such eminent gifts of grace for the good of his Church, and for the setting forth of his glory. So Chrysostome, Basil, Euthymius, Prosper, Placidus, Parmensis expound it. & Euery good and perfit gift is from aboue, descēding from the Father of lights; a good thought in a Saint is gratia infusa, a good word in a Saint is gratia effusa, a good deed in a Saint is gratia di fusa, through his grace, which is the God of <sup>h</sup>al grace, saints are what-focuer they are. Wherefore praise the Lord in his Saints, often remember their vertues,

<sup>a</sup> Guenara.

<sup>b</sup> Lyra in loc.

<sup>c</sup> In loc.

<sup>d</sup> Chrysost.

Basil.

Euthym.

Arabs apud

Muscul.

Lyra.

Hugo Card.

Turrecremat.

Asorimus.

<sup>e</sup> Ephes. 3. 8. 16

<sup>f</sup> 1 Tim. 4. 8.

<sup>g</sup> James 1. 17.

<sup>h</sup> 1 Pet. 5. 10.

<sup>i</sup> 1 Cor. 1. 5. 10

<sup>k</sup> Euseb. Emisen. Hom. de S. Maximo.

<sup>l</sup> See Harmon Confess. sect. 16. pag. 486.

<sup>m</sup> Major presat. in Psal. 22.

<sup>o</sup> Owin's epigram. lib. 3.

<sup>p</sup> Sermon on Christmas day preached at Bexterly, and Sermon on S. Stephens day at Grimstorp.

<sup>q</sup> Apocal. 6. 10

<sup>r</sup> Psal. 84. 6.

<sup>s</sup> Apocal. 7. 9.

<sup>t</sup> Apocal. 4. 4.

<sup>u</sup> De Ciuit. lib. 2. cap. 27.

<sup>v</sup> Tom. 2. fol. 118

<sup>x</sup> Philip. Morneus de Missa, lib. 3. cap. 11 See Melancthon's resp ad Bauar. art. 25.

<sup>y</sup> Tie de sanct. inuocat.

<sup>z</sup> See Dr. Fulke in 1 Tim. 2. 5.

<sup>a</sup> Bellar. de sanct. b. 2. 17.

<sup>b</sup> Apud Magdeburg Cent. 10. col. 27 5.

<sup>c</sup> See Gospell Annunciat.

<sup>d</sup> Chemnit. ex. am Com. Trident part. 3. pag. 151.

vertues, as their true reliques, & as it were bequeathed <sup>k</sup> legacies vnto Gods people. So the wise man, Ecclesiasticus 44. Let vs now commend the famous men in old time. by whom the Lord hath gotten great glory, let the people speake of their wisdom, and the congregation of their praise. So the Confession of Bohemia, chap. 17. We teach that the Saints are worshipped truly, when the people on certaine dayes at a time appointed, doe come together to the seruice of God, and doe call to minde and meditate vpon his benefits bestowed vpon holy men, & through them vpon his Church, &c. And for as much as it is kindly to consider, opus dici in die suo, the work of the day <sup>m</sup> in the same day it was wrought; it is well ordered by the Church of England, that the most illustrious and remarkable qualities of the Saints are celebrated vpon their proper Festiuals, that on S. Stephens day we may learne by S. Stephens example, to loue our enemies: on S. Matthews day, to forsake the world, and to follow Christ: on S. Iohn the Baptist his day, to speake the truth constantly, and to suffer for the same patiently. Thus in stedfastnesse of faith and godlinesse of life (non legere modò sed degere sanctorum vitam, as <sup>n</sup> one wittily) to be followers of them as they were followers of Christ; is (as <sup>o</sup> blessed Latymer was wont to say) the right worshipping of Saints, and of God in his Saints.

Againe, for as much as there is a cõmunion of Saints, as we confesse in the Creed, a knot of fellowship betweene the dead Saints and the liuing; it is our dutie to praise God for their good in particular, as they <sup>p</sup> pray to God for our good in generall. It is required on our part, I say, to giue God most humble thanks for translating them out of this <sup>q</sup> valley of teares into Hierusalem aboue, where they be <sup>r</sup> clothed with long white robes, hauing palmes in their hands, and <sup>s</sup> crownes of gold on their heads, euer liuing in that happy kingdome without either dying or crying, Apocal. 21. 4. and this also (in the iudgement of Augustine, Hierome, Hugo, Raynerius, and other) is to praise God in his Saints.

These reasons are the grounds of certaine holy dayes established in England by law, namely, to blesse God for his Saints eminent grace while they were liuing, & exceeding glory now they be dead. Wherein our Church ascribes not any diuine worship to the Saints, but all due praise to the sanctifier: in celebrating their memorie (saith Augustine) we neither adore their honour, nor implore their helpe: but (according to the tenour of our text) we praise him alone, <sup>t</sup> who made them both men and martyrs. In the words of <sup>u</sup> Hierome to Riparius: Honoramus reliquias martyrum, ut eum cuius sunt martyres adoremus: honoramus seruos, ut honor seruorũ redundet ad Dominum: If thou desire to do right vnto the Saints, esteeme them as patternes, and not as patrons of thy life; honour them only so farre, <sup>x</sup> that thou maist alway praise God in them, and praise them in God.

The gunpowder men erre very much in this one kinde of honouring God, for either they worship his Saints as himselfe, or else their own faintlings, and not his saints. In praying to the dead, in mingling the bloud of their Martyrs with the precious bloud of their Maker, in applying their merits, & relying vpon their mercies; it is plaine, that they make the Saints (as Melancthon tells them in his <sup>y</sup> Apologie for the Confessiõ of Auspurge) quarter masters with God, & halfe mediators with Christ, I say, joint mediators not of intercessiõ only, but of <sup>z</sup> redemption also. Nay they make the blessed Virgin vpon the point their only mediatrix & aduocate, so they sing, and so they say. They sing in their publike seruice, <sup>a</sup> Maria mater gratie mater misericordie, &c. the which is Gods own stile, 1 Pet. 1. 10 & 2 Cor. 1. 3. so they likewise say, Maria consolatio infirmorum, redemptio captiuorum, liberatio damnatorũ, salus vniuersorum. <sup>b</sup> Gisilbertus in lib. altercationis Synagoga & Ecclesie, cap. 20. Maria quasi maria, saith Augustinus de Leonissa, sermon 5. vpon Aue Maria, for as all riuers come from the seas, & returne to the seas againe, Ecclesiastes 1. 7. so forsooth (if you will vndertake to beleue him) all grace is deriued from Marie, and ought to be returned againe to Marie. We finde so much in <sup>d</sup> Rosario Maria, Rep. ratrix & salnatrice desperantis anime, &c. That which is worse, their own Pope (who cannot, as they teach, erre in a point of doctrine as Pope) calleth her expressly Deã. Pet. Bembus in his Epistles writtẽ in Pope Leo the 10. name, li. 8 epist. 17. printed at Strasburg an. 1609 that which is worst of all, in their most approved Bible, they translate Gen. 3. 15. ipsa conteret caput tuum, she shall breake thine head, although (as their owne Iesuit Ribera confesseth honestly) the Hebrew text, the Chaldee paraphrase, the translation of the Septuagint, & all good Latine copies, reade ipse conteret, he shall bruise the Serpents head, applying it to Christ, according to that of Paul, The God of peace shall tread downe Satan vnder your feet, Rom. 16. 20. By this euidence you may see, that the gunpowder crue praise not God in the Saints, nor the Saints in God: but on the contrary, the Saints as God.

Againe, these S. Peter men (and as I haue warrant to terme them on this day, Salt Peter men) erre from the true meaning of our text, because they do not praise God in sanctis eius, in his saints; but dishonour God in sanctis eorum, in saints of their own making, vsually praying vnto some who were no men, and to many who were not holy men. It is doubted by the two great lights in their glorious firmament, Bellarmino and Baronius, whether there were euer any such man as S. George, or such a woman as S. Catharine. Cardinall Bellarmino, lib. de beatitudine sancti. ca. vlt. s. Respondeo sanctorum, doth acknowledge that they worship certaine Saints, whose stories are vncertaine, reputing the legend of S. George apocryphall, according to the censure of Pope Gelasius; and Cardinall Baronius, ecclesiast. annal. tom. 2. ad an. 290. according to the impression at Rome, fol. 650. as also de Martyrologio Romano cap. 2. confesseth as much of Quiriacus and Iulitta, declaring plainly that their acts are written either by fooles or heretikes, and in his annotations vpon the Romane Martyrologie 23. Aprill, he taketh vp Iacobus de Voragine for his leaden Legend of our English S. George, concluding in fine, that the picture of S. George fighting with a Dragon is symbolicall, and not historicall. If the Scripture be true, what soeuer is not of faith is sinne; then assuredly these men (as Paul speaks) are damned of their owne selues in their owne conscience, who (notwithstanding all their doubts) pray still in their publik seruice, Deus, qui nos beati Georgij martyris tui meritis & intercessione laetificas, Concede propitius, &c. An Idoll, as Paul affirms, 1. Cor. 8. 4. is nothing, Ergo, the Papists in worshipping S. George which is nothing, commit (euen themselves being Iudges) abominable Idolatrie.

As they worship some who were no men, so many who were not holy men, as a reuerend<sup>d</sup> Doctor of our Church, acutely, Non martyres Domini, sed mancipis diaboli: the souldier who pierced Christs holy side was a Pagan, neither doth any story, which is authentical, speake of his conuersion, and yet they worship him vnder the name of S. Longinus or Longesse, March 15. Papias (as Eusebius & Hierome report) held the heresie of the *Millenariā*s, & yet he is honoured as a Saint in the Romane Calender vpon the 22. of Februa. Becket was a bad subiect in his life, and no good Christian at his death, in that he commended himselfe and the cause of his Church vnto S. Denis, & our Ladie: yet S. Thomas of Canterbury was honoured at Canterbury in the daies of popish ignorance, more than either the worlds Sauour or the blessed Virgin his mother: in which relatiō I appeale to the records of that Church, as also to the very stones vnder his shrine, worne with the knees & hands of such as came thither to worship him. Boccace reporteth, how one Sir Chappalet, a notorious Italiā viceroy & coufener, came to be honoured as a saint in France. Sanders among them is a saint, albeit he liued in plotting, and died in acting rebellion against his gracious Soueraigne Q. Elizabeth of famous and blessed memory. Nay Dauus is Diuus. Saul is amongst the Prophets, Pater Personatus, Father Parsons all the daies of his life was a perpetuall Martyr, as his fellow 9 Ribadeneira termeth him: and yet one (who sometime was his inner man, and knew him as I presume, better than euer did Ribadeneira) transposing the letters of Robertus Parsonius Iesuita, found this Anagram, Personatus versus i or is abi: the wit-founded drunkard Henry Garnet (who did not according to the counsell of Paul vsē vinomodico; but as Paulinus pretily, modio) that lecherous treacherous arch-priest, arch-traitor, arch-deuill in concealing, if not in cōtriuing; in patronizing, if not in plotting the powder intended massacre, is returned a Saint from beyond the seas, with Sancte Henrice intercede pro nobis: his action is iustified, his life commended, his

<sup>c</sup> In Habacuc. cap. 1. num. 32.

<sup>f</sup> Can. sanct. Roman. dist. 15.

<sup>g</sup> Rom. 14. 23.
<sup>h</sup> Tit. 3. 11.

<sup>i</sup> Missal. Roman. ex Con. Trident. decret. relit. in festo Georgij.

<sup>k</sup> Dr. Sateclif<sup>s</sup> examin. of Rom. cap. 7.

<sup>l</sup> Dr. Abbot An. tiog. pag. 3.

<sup>m</sup> Sateclif ubi sup.

<sup>n</sup> Hist. lib. 3. cap. vlt.

<sup>o</sup> Catalog. scrip. in vita pap.

<sup>p</sup> Heuenden annual. part. poste. pag. 298.

<sup>q</sup> Catalog. scrip. Iesuit. in vita Parsony.

<sup>r</sup> 1. Tim. 5. 23.

<sup>s</sup> Epist. lib. 3.

epist. 6.

<sup>t</sup> Sheldon preface before his motiues.

<sup>a</sup> Epist. ad Bellar.
<sup>b</sup> De An. reb.
<sup>c</sup> Idem.

<sup>a</sup> Esay 49. 16.
<sup>b</sup> Deut. 32. 10.
<sup>c</sup> Psal. 124.

<sup>a</sup> Iudith. 13. 4.
<sup>b</sup> Iudges 5. 31.
<sup>c</sup> Psal. 126. 2.

<sup>d</sup> Lib. de legend. libris Gentilium.
<sup>e</sup> De Civit. Dei,
lib. 6. cap. 6.
<sup>f</sup> August. contra Faul. Man. lib. 12. cap. 40.
<sup>g</sup> Esay 1. 4. & 10. 20.
<sup>h</sup> Luke 1. 49.
<sup>i</sup> Psal. 119. 7.
<sup>k</sup> Marke 12. 36.

<sup>l</sup> 1. Pet. 3. 2.
<sup>m</sup> Idem Genebrard. & alij.
<sup>n</sup> Esay 57. 15.

<sup>o</sup> In loc.
<sup>p</sup> BeLatwin. in loc.

his death honoured, his miracles and memorie celebrated by that Ignatian spirit, (<sup>a</sup>portentum nomin. porten. ñ hominu., having a great deale of name, though a very litle modesty) Andreas Exdemon Ioannes Cydoniu: but notwithstanding his Apologie, the saintship of Henry Garnet is so buffered by the replies and antilogies of our accuratly learned Divines, as that his straw face will hereafter hardly be worth a straw. Catesbie, Winter, Rookwood, and the rest of the coie-saints, and hole-saints, (who laboured in the devils mine by the Popes mint) are numbred among the holy ones also: Babylon and Ægypt praise God in them, and for them. I have heard much of roaring Gentlemen in London and Canterburie, but if the Lord himselfe had not watched ouer his Church, if the Lord himselfe had not written England in the <sup>x</sup>palmes of his hands, if the Lord himselfe had not kept King James as the <sup>v</sup>apple of his eye, <sup>z</sup> if the Lord himselfe had not beene on our side (now may Gods Israel in England say) if the Lord himselfe had not been on our side, when they rose vp against vs, if the Lord himselfe had not (out of his vnspcakable goodnesse toward vs and our posteritie) broken the snares, and deliuered our soules out of that horrible gunpowder pit; these bellowing buls of Bafan, and Canon-mouthed hell-hounds, would haue made on this day such a roare, that all Christendome should haue felt it, and the whole world haue feared it. <sup>o</sup> Lord God of all power, blessed be thy name, which hast this day brought to nought the enemies of thy people, <sup>b</sup> so let all thine enemies perish, <sup>c</sup> O Lord, that our <sup>c</sup> mouthes may be filled with laughter and our tongue with ioy. Sint diui modo non viui, let England hang such, although afterward Rome hallow such: he that hath an eye to see without the spectacles of a Iesuit, will afford as good credit to the register at Tiburne, as to the calender of Tyber: for if these be Martyrs, I wonder who are Murtherers? If these be Saints, I pray you who are Scythians? If these be Catholikes, who are Canibals?

I passe to the second exposition of these words, O praise God in his sanctitie, so Munster, Pagninus, Beza, Tremelius, and our old translation here, Praise God in his holinesse: now God is holy formaliter & effectiue, holy in himselfe, and making other holy; the Lord is glorious in holinesse, Exod. 15. 11. whereas other gods are famous for their vnholinesse, Venus was a wonton, Mercurius a theefe, Iupiter a monstrous adu terer; an ingenious man (as <sup>d</sup> Basil writs) would blush to report that of beasts, which the Gentiles haue recorded of their gods. If such imputations are true, saith <sup>c</sup> Augustine, quam mali, how wicked are these gods: If false, quam male, how wretched and foolish are these men, adoring the same things in the Temple, which they scoffe at in the Theater? in turpitudine <sup>f</sup> nimum liberi, in superstitione nimum serui: so that their gods are not as our God, euen our enemies being Iudges, Deut. 32. 31. there is none holy as the Lord, 1. Sam. 2. 2. called <sup>g</sup> often in holy Scripture the holy one, yea thrice holy, holy, holy, holy is the Lord of hosts, Esay 6. 2. his <sup>h</sup> name is holy, his <sup>i</sup> law is holy, his <sup>k</sup> spirit is holy, his will holy, his word holy, righteous in all his wayes, and holy in all his workes, Psal. 145. 17. making vs also which are his seruants, an holy people, Deut. 7. 6. an holy priesthood, 1. Pet. 2. 5. his holy temple, 1. Cor. 6. 19. our bodies, our soules, our selues, our whole <sup>l</sup> seruice holy, wherefore praise God in his holinesse.

<sup>m</sup> Luther, Calvin, Vatablus, your English Geneua Bibles, and our new translation haue, praise God in his Sanctuary, the which in holy Scripture signifieth, either heauen, or the temple: heauen is often called in sacred writ, Gods sanctuary, for<sup>n</sup> thus saith he that is high and excellent, he that inhabireth eternity, whose name is the holy one, I dwel in the high & holy place. Christ in coming to vs is said to break the heauens, Esa. 64. 1. and when he went from vs vnto his Father, a cloud tooke him vp into heauen, Act. 1. & from heauen he shall come againe to iudge the quicke and the dead, 1. Thes. 4. 16. That his sanctuary, may be taken here for heauen, is gathered out of the very next clause (praise him in the firmament of his power) the which (as <sup>o</sup> Caivin & other Expositors haue well obserued) is exegetically, and expounds the former, as if Dauid should haue said, praise the Lord in his sanctuary, that is, in the firmament of his power, for the heauens declare the glory of God, & the firmament sheweth his handy work, Pf. 19. 1. let al people praise God our father in heauen, especially such such as dwell with him <sup>9</sup> in heauen, O praise the Lord all yee blessed Angels and Saints, inhabiting his Sanctuarie, which is highest and holiest.

<sup>1</sup>Other apply the word Sanctuary to the Temple, so termed for two respects especially. 1. Because God manifesteth his holines toward vs in that holy place more principally, calling it expressly his house. 2. A Sanctuarie, in regard of our holy seruice toward God, for albeit euery day be to the good man a Sabbath, & euery place a Temple; yet the God of order hath appointed certaine times, and certaine places also, wherein he will be worshipped publicly, saying, Leuiticus 19.30. Ye shall obserue my Sabbaths, and reuerence my Sanctuarie, For our holinesse toward God concerneth vs <sup>o</sup>ne way in that we are men, & another way in that we are ioyned as parts to that visible mystical body which is his Church as men; we are at our own choise both for time, and place, and forme, according to the exigence of our owne occasions in priuate, but the seruice which is to be done of vs as the members of a publique body, must of necessitie be publique, and so consequently to be performed on holy dayes in holy places. And for this doctrine the Scriptures afford both patent and patterne: the patent is reported by the Prophet Esay, chap. 56. vers. 7. and repeated by Christ in <sup>u</sup> three seuerall Euangelists; my house shall be called an house of prayer for all people. The patternes are manifold, I will enter into thine house in the multitude of thy mercies, and in thy feare will I worship toward thine holy Temple, saith our Prophet, Psal. 5.7. The Publican and the Pharisee went into the Temple to pray, Luk. 18. Peter and Iohn went vp together into the Temple at the ninth houre of prayer, Act. 3. Anna fasted and prayed in the Temple, Luk. 2. This one word Sanctuary, teacheth vs how we should behaue our selues in the Church as in Gods presence: Doest thou come to that holy place to receiue the blessed Supper of our Lord? remember that the Temple is sanctuarium, non promptuarium, a sanctuarie, not a buttrie; *Hauie ye not houses to eat and drinke in, despise ye the Church of God? Doest thou come to pray? ?take heed to thy foot when thou entrest into Gods house, compose thy knees, and eyes, and hands, and heart, after such a deuout manner, as that thou maist not only praise God vpon the loud cymbals, but (as it is vers. 5.) praise him vpon the well tuned cymbals also. Doest thou come to heare the Sermon? remember that the preaching of the Gospell is <sup>2</sup>not the word of a mortal man, but the <sup>2</sup>power of the immortall God vnto saluation: and albeit the Preacher be neuer so simple, neuer so sinfull; yet the word is holy, the action holy, the time holy, the place holy, ordained by the most holy to make thee holy. Vpon what soeuer occasion thou comest into the temple, remember alwayes that the ground is holy whereon thou standest, it is a Sanctuarie, the habitation of God, and place of his holinesse; and therefore not to be <sup>b</sup>prophaned with ordinarie, though lawfull worldly businesse, much lesse with vnlawfull pastimes and enterludes; it is a place for praise, not for playes, O praise God in his Sanctuarie.

Or (as <sup>c</sup>Martin Luther interprets it) praise God in his Sanctuarie, that is, for his Sanctuarie, for <sup>d</sup>shewing his word vnto Iacob, his statutes and ordinances vnto Israel, for his adoption, and his conenants, and his promise, and his seruice, Rom. 9.4. O praise the Lord for his <sup>e</sup>true Church established for the present among the Iewes, & hereafter in the fulnes of time to be constituted among Christians vntill the worlds end. For this cause may be construed of the mystical heauen & temple, so well as of the materiall heauen and temple. The good man (I meane the true Christian) is not only Gods <sup>f</sup>house, but also Gods <sup>g</sup>temple, yea, Gods heauen, as <sup>h</sup>Augustine expounds the words of Christ, Our Father which art in heauen, that is, in holy men of heavenly conuersation, in whose sanctified hearts he dwelleth as in his sanctuary. Archimedes in his conference with Hiero said, Giue me a place where I may stand out of the world, and I will moue the whole earth: In like manner, he that will be reputed a Saint, and so take vpon him to remoue men earthly minded from their worldlines, must himself at the least haue one foot out of the world, seeking (as the blessed <sup>k</sup>Apostle speaks) the things aboue, that <sup>l</sup>other may see his good works, & glorifie God which is in heauen, that is, (according to the true soule of our text) praise God in his Saints, which are his sacrarie, his sanctuarie, his house, his heauen.

<sup>9</sup> Genebrard, Agellius Acer- nensis epist. in loc.
<sup>c</sup> Luther Vata- blus Chald. apud
Genebrard.
English Com. dedicated to M<sup>r</sup>. Hertkinden
<sup>f</sup> Esay 56.7.
<sup>g</sup> Hooker eccles- pol. lib. 3. §. 24.

<sup>m</sup> Mark. 11.7.
Luke 19.46.
Matth. 21.13.

<sup>x</sup> 1. Cor. 11.22.
<sup>y</sup> Eccles. 4.17.

<sup>1</sup> 1. Theff. 2.13.
<sup>a</sup> Rom. 1.6.

<sup>b</sup> Canon. 88.

<sup>c</sup> In loc.
<sup>d</sup> Psal. 147.19.

<sup>e</sup> Christ. Corn.
in loc.

<sup>f</sup> Hebr. 3.6.
<sup>g</sup> 1. Cor. 3.16.
<sup>h</sup> Lib. 2. de ser.
Dom. in mont.
<sup>i</sup> Bellarm. &
Corn. in loc. vel
hoc dicit de po- pulo, vel de vita
sancta Chrysost.
Basil. in loc.
<sup>k</sup> Coloss. 3.1.
<sup>l</sup> Matth. 5.6.

Here then all the three diuers lines (praise God in his Saints, praise God in his sanctitie, praise God in his Sanctuarie) meet in one center; namely, God is to be praised in his sanctuarie, for his sanctitie conferred vpon his Saints; whereby they shined as <sup>m</sup> lights in this heauen on earth, and now shine like <sup>n</sup> stars in that heauen of heauen. If I were not (according to the text and the time) forward to prosecute Gunpowder men, as the more dangerous enemies of God and his Gospell, I might vpon this ground take vp the bucklers against idle  Nouelists, vtterly condemning the Festivals of holy Saints established in our Church by good order of law. Their principall obiection is taken out of Pauls Epistle to the Galathians, Chap. 4. vers. 10. Ye obserue dayes and moneths and times and yeeres, I am afraid of you, lest I haue bestowed vpon you labour in vaine.

To which answer is made, that there is a <sup>o</sup> fourefold obseruation of dayes, } Naturall.
Politicall.
Ecclesiasticall.
Superstitious.

Of all which, only the superstitious is condemned, as Aretius and Illiricus, and other Protestants Diuines vpon the place. Now the superstitious obseruation is either Iudaicall or Idolatricall; it is apparant, that Paul meant the first hereof especially, because the Galathians after they were conuerted vnto Christ, were seduced by false teachers vnto the ceremonies of the Iewes, as concerning the Sabbaths & the new Moones, and the like, the which were figures of Christ, and had their end in him. Are ye so foolish, that hauing begun in the spirit, ye would now be made perfit by the flesh? As for Idolatricall obseruing of times, it is granted easily, that the Pagans (in dedicating feasts vnto false gods, and in making differences of dayes dismall & fortunate, either by curious Arts, or by particular fancies, or popular obseruations) are worthily reputed superstitious. And the Papists also (solemnizing holy dayes of the Sancts in their Churches with idolatrous worshipping of the creatures, and their images; and out of their Churches with Epicure-like bellycheere, reuelling and idienesse) turne againe to the beggerly rudiments and fashions of the world: But the festiualls of England (celebrated according to the doctrine and iniunctions of our Church) are very farre from these and all other kinds of superstition, For then is God truly worshipped in the publike congregation, I say, the true God is truly praised in the true Saints; on our holy dayes the Sacraments are rightly ministred, the Scriptures are fruitfully read, the word is faithfully preached; all which are maine meanes to withdraw men not only from superstition and idolatrie, but also from all sorts of error and impietie whatsoever.

Yea, but the words of the Commandement are six daies shalt thou labour: Ergo there should be no holy day besides the Lords day. *Protestant Diuines answer, that the clause (six daies shalt thou labour) is a permission, or a remission of Gods right, who might challenge to himselfe all our time for his worke, and not a restraint for any man from seruing of God on any day. For the Iewes besides the Sabbath had diuers other feasts; as Easter, the feast of vneleuened bread, the feast of first fruits, Whisuntide, the feast of blowing Trumpets, the feast of Tabernacles; all which (as we reade Leuiticus 23.) they kept by Gods appointment holy, notwithstanding these words of the Law, six daies shalt thou labour. And so the Christian Church in all ages, hath vpon iust occasions separated some weeke dayes vnto the praising of the Lord, and rest from labour. Ioel 2. 15. Blow the trumpet in Sion, sanctifie a fast, call a solemne assembly. Daies of publike fasting for some great iudgement, daies of publike reioycing for some great benefit, are not vnlawful, but exceeding commendable, yea necessarie. Whosoever doubts of the Churches libertie herein, or of the practise of this liberty, may peruse the ninth chapter of Easter, in which it will appeare, that Gods people by the comandement of Mordecai did euery yeere solemnize & keep holy the fourteenth and fifteenth day of the moneth Adar, in remembrance of their great deliury from the treason of Haman. Vpon these grounds, the last euer renoued Parliament enacted, That we should for euer spend the prime part of this present fifth of Nouember in praying and praising the Lord, for his vnspcakable

<sup>m</sup> Philip. 2. 15.
<sup>a</sup> Dan. 12. 3.

<sup>o</sup> Illiric. in Galat. 4.

<sup>p</sup> See Sir Christopher Heydens answer to Mr. Chambers, p. 368 and how the Fathers answer this. Bellarmin de sanct. calen. cap 10.

<sup>q</sup> English gloss Galat. 3. 3.

<sup>r</sup> See Ambrose in Galat. 4. & August. epist. 119 cap. 7.

<sup>s</sup> Dr. Fulke in Galat. 4. 10.

<sup>t</sup> See D<sup>r</sup>. Whitgifts defence of his answer to the admonit. fol. 538. 539.

<sup>x</sup> B Babington in 4. Com.

Caluins Cat.

Dr. Whigge vbi supra, fol. 542. & 553.

Six dayes thou maist labour.

<sup>v</sup> Perkins aur. cat. cap. 23.

unspeakable goodnesse in deliuering our King, Queene, Prince, and States of this Realme from that hellish, horrible, bloudie, barbarous intended massacre by Gunpowder. Now that I may for my part execute the will of the Parliament, (sparing the Novelists, and referring such as desire to be further satisfied in this argument of holy dayes, vnto the iudicious writings of my most honoured and honourable matter, Archbishop Whitgift, in the<sup>2</sup> defence of his answer to the Admonition) I proceed in the text, praise him in his noble acts, praise him according to his excellent greatnesse.

<sup>a</sup> Some read, Laudate eum in virtutibus eius, praise him in his powers: <sup>c</sup> other, ob fortitudinem eius, praise him in his power. And according to these two diuers translations, I finde two different expositions; one construing it of Gods glorious <sup>d</sup> Angels, and the other applying it to Gods glorious acts. For the first, it is euident in holy writ, that there be certaine distinctions and degrees of Angels in the Quire of heauen, there be Seraphines, Esay 6. 2. Cherubins, Gen. 3. 24. Thrones, Dominions, Principalities, and Powers, Coloss 1. 16. in all which and for all which God is to be praised, as being his <sup>e</sup> ministring spirits for the good of such as shall be heires of saluation; as long as we serue God, all these serue vs, euen the Cherubins, and Seraphins, Angels and Archangels: I say, so long as we serue the Lord, these pages of his honour and parts of his courts attend vs, and pitch their tents about vs. A doctrine very profitable, very comfortable, yet for as much as I hold it lesse pertinent to the present occasion, I thus ouerpasse it, and haste to that other exposition, interpreting these words (as our Church readeth) of Gods noble acts.

Now the works of God are of two sorts, ad intra & ad extra: some be confined within himselfe, other extended towards vs: works of the sacred Trinitie within it selfe, (as that the Father begets, and the Sonne is begotten, and the Holy Ghost proceeds from both) are wonderfull acts of such an high nature, that it is our dutie rather simply to adore, than subtilly to explore them: all his acts extended toward vs, are summarily reduced vnto two, namely the works of creation and redemption. <sup>f</sup> The worke of creation is attributed in the masse of the matter to God the Father, in the disposition of the forme to God the Sonne, in the preservation of both to God the Holy Ghost. So likewise that of redemption, in election vnto God the Father, in the consummation vnto God the Sonne, in the application vnto the Holy Ghost, all which are very noble acts, and God is to be praised in them according to his excellent greatnesse. The worke of creation is so mightie, that none could bring it to passe but the Father Almighty: that God should haue nothing but nothing, whereof, wherewith, whereby to build this high, huge, goodly, faire frame; is a principle which Nature cannot teach, and Philosophie will not beleue. The worke of redemption is of farre greater might and mercy: for the making of the world was (if I may so speake) only lip-labour vnto God, he speake the word and it was done, he commanded and it stood fast, Psalm. 33. 9. but Christ in redeeming the world said many words, and did many wonders, and suffered also many wounds. It is true that the least ake of his least finger is infiniti meriti, sed non definiti meriti, that is, of an infinit merit, yet not that determined ransome for the sinnes of the whole world. It cost him more to redeeme soules, & he died for our sinnes, and rose againe for our iustification; he suffered for vs, and that death, and that a violent death, and of all violent deaths the most accursed death on the Crosse.

The worke of sanctification is a noble act also, for euery man (if you rightly consider his making) is a wonder; I am (saith our <sup>h</sup> Prophet) fearfully and wonderfully made: but a good man (if you consider his new making) is a wonderfull wonder, as <sup>i</sup> Paul speakes, a spectacle to men and Angels, as the vulgar Latine runs in the 68. Psalme, at the last verse, mirabilis Deus in sanctis, O God wonderfull art thou in thy Saints.

But David <sup>k</sup> here meaneth especially the valiant acts of God in governing and guarding his people from their enemies, <sup>l</sup> O come hither and behold the works

<sup>a</sup> From pa. 538. to 555.

<sup>a</sup> Vulgar Latine Castatio.

<sup>b</sup> Pagnin. In fortitudinibus

<sup>c</sup> Vatablus.

Munster.

<sup>d</sup> Turreremat.

& Ruynerius

in loc.

<sup>e</sup> Heb. 1. 14.

<sup>f</sup> Aduancemēt of learning, lib. 2. pag. 116.

<sup>g</sup> Rom. 4. 25.

<sup>h</sup> Psal. 139. 13.

<sup>i</sup> 1 Cor. 4. 9.

<sup>k</sup> Placid. Parmen. and the English Com. dedicated to M. Herlokinden.

<sup>l</sup> Psal. 66. 4.

Exod. 14. 29.

Iofua 10.

See M. Fox
Martyr. in fine.

2. Sam. 22. 41.

Psal. 118.

of God, how wonderfull he is in his doing toward the children of men; he turned the sea into drie land, so that his people went on foot thorow the middest of the sea, the <sup>m</sup> waters were a wall vnto them on the right hand and on their left; but the waues of the sea returned and covered the chariots and horsemen, euen all the hoast of Pharaoh that pursued them. Almighty God rained hailestones out of heauen vpon the curled Amorites at Bethoran, and they were more ( <sup>n</sup> saith the text ) that died with the haile, then they whom the children of Israel slew with the sword. And when Duke Iofua praied, Sunne stay thou in Gibeon, and thou Moone in the valley of Aialon; the Sunne abode and the Moone stood still, vntill the people auenged themselves vpon their enemies. When Zenacherib and his innumerable hoast came to fight against Hezekiah King of Iuda, Gods Angell in one night slew an hundred eighty and five thousand Assyrians, 2. Kings 19.

And vndoubtedly ( beloued ) there is no nation vnder the cope of heauen hath had greater occasion to praise God in this kinde than England. The preseruacion of the most illustrious Princesse the Ladie Elizabeth, vnder the fiery triall of her vnkinde sister Queene Mary, was a noble act, and the seminary of much happinesse vnto this kingdome for many yeeres after, and so much the more noble, because Philip King of Spaine hath often confessed that he spared her life ( when wildy Winchester and bloody Bonner had brought her into the snare ) not out of any pietie or pittie, but only out of policie. Her exaltation to the Crowne was another noble act, so noble that some <sup>o</sup> Popish Prelates in their enuie burst asunder and died for very grieue of heart. Well might that good Lady sing and say with the blessed Virgin, He that is mightie hath magnified me, and holy is his name, he hath put downe the mightie from their scat, and hath exalted the humble and meeke. Her flourishing in health, wealth, and godlinesse, more then 44. yeeres ( in despight of all her foes abroad, at home, schismaticall, hereticall, open, intestine ) was another noble act: for after once the Bull of Pope Pius Quintus had roared, and his fat Calues had begun to bellow in this Island, there passed neuer a yeere, neuer a moneth, neuer a weeke, ( I thinke I might say ) neuer a day, neuer an houre, but some mischiefe was intended either against her person or her people. The resisting of the rebellion in the Northerne parts of England, was a noble act: the discovering, and so consequently the defeating of Campions treason, a noble act: of Parrus treason, a noble act: of the Lupus Lopus his treason, a noble act: of Squires treason, a noble act. Her glorious victories against her fell and insolent enemies the Spaniards in Ireland, in Flanders, in France, in their owne dominions of Portugal, Indies, and Spaine, were noble acts. It was a wonder of wonders, that a Maiden Queene should at one time be both a staffe to Flanders, and a stay to France, a terror to Pope, a mirror to Turke, feared abroad, loued at home, Mistresse of the Sea, wonder of the World. She might truly be called a Princesse of Peace, for she was crowned in peace, she liued in peace, she died in peace, she was buried in peace: and when she had slept with her fathers, it was another noble act of the Lord, to send vs in the midst of all our feare, so learned, so meeke, so pius a Prince as King IAMES, in such exceeding sweet peace, that neuer a sword was drawne, happily neuer a word spoken against him. All these were noble acts, and ought to be had in a Perpetuall remembrance. But of all other noble preseruacions, our deliuerance from that intended mercilesse and matchlesse massacre both in fact and fiction, the fifth of Nouember, in the yeere 1605. is most nobly noble. King IAMES on this day might haue said with King Dauid, O Lord which art my rocke and my fortresse, thou hast giuen me the necks of mine enemies, that I might destroy them that hate me, that I might breake them as small as the dust of the earth, and tread them flat as the clay of the street. O giue thanks vnto the Lord, for he is gracious, and his mercy endureth for euer. Let Israel now confesse that he is gracious, and that his mercy endureth for euer, Let the house of Aaron now confesse that his mercy endureth for euer. Yea let all such as feare the Lord now confesse that his mercy endureth for euer. All the Congregation of the Saints in the whole world, haue haue good cause to thanke God our strength and deliuerer. Scotland hath good cause, for if England had beene but a Tuesday breakefast, assuredly Scotland should haue beene but a Fridayes drinking, one morfell as it were for the greedie deuourer. The Churches in France releued often by vs, haue good cause to reioyce with vs. Our neighbours of Holland haue good cause to triumph as they doe, for if our house had beene set on fire, their house (being the next) would haue beene quickly pulled downe. The Churches in Germanie, Denmarke, Hungarie, Genena, likewise haue good cause to praise God in this noble act according to his excellent greatnesse.

More principally the Common-weale of England, and in it all men of all factions, and all fashions whatsoever. Atheists (if they thinke there be a God) haue good cause to thanke God, acknowledging his mercy toward them in sparing vs, and so sauing the bad for the righteous sake. Carnall Gospellers haue good cause to thanke God, confessing that so long as Lot is in Sodome, it cannot be destroyed; and so long as Moses standeth in the gap, and praieeth for his people, Gods wrathfull indignation cannot deuoure vs. Yea, let the Gunpowder men themselues (if they haue any sparke of grace) confesse that God is to be praised in this noble act; for suppose (God be thanked, we may suppose and dispose thus of these matters vnto our comfort) I say, suppose their deuillish plot had beene acted, I assure my selfe our cause had beene farre better, and our number farre greater than theirs; and as for our sinnes (which are indeed our greatest enemies) they would haue brought into the field so many as we: so that hauing so much armour of light, and more armour of prooffe than they, * Causa iubet melior superos sperare secundos.

But suppose the least and the worst part had ouercome the bigger and the better; yet (if they be not hewen out of hard rocks) if these Romanists haue not sucked the milke of wolues (as it is reported of the first founder of Rome) they would haue relented to see their natiue Countrey made nothing else but a very shambles of Italian and Ignatian butchers. When Alexander saw the dead corps of Darius; and Iulius Caesar, the head of Pompey; and Marcus Marcellus, Syracusas a burne; and Scipio Numantia spoiled; and Titus, Hierusalem made y euen with the ground, they could not abstaine from weeping, albeit they were mortall enemies. But aboue all other in this kingdome, the truly zealous, and zealously true-hearted Protestants haue greatest occasion of reioicing; for if the Lord had not according to his excellent greatnesse, and according to his excellent goodnesse too) deliuered vs out of this gun-powder gulfe, our bodies haply might haue beene made food for the fowles, or else fewell for the fire; and that which would haue grieued our posteritie more, superstition and idolatric might in short time haue beene replanted in this Land; I meane that vpstart Antichristian Religion of Rome, wherein many things, especially foure (as iudicious Fox well obserued) are most abominable.

1. Vnlimited iurisdiction, derogatorie to all Kings and Emperors.
2. Insolent titles, preiudiciall to all Bishops and Prelates,
3. Corrupt doctrine, iniurious to all Christians.
4. Filthy life, detestable to all men.

The greater was our danger, the greater was our deliuerance; the greater our deliuerance, the greater our thanks should be; for as it followeth in my text, God is to be praised according to his excellent greatnesse. It is true that our most and best praises are few for the number, and little for the measure; whereas God is infinit for his goodnesse, and in his greatnesse incomprehensible. So that the meaning of David is, that we should praise him according to our capacitie, and not according to his immensitie; according to the grace bestowed vpon vs, and not according to the glory which is in him. Ecclesiasticus 43.30. Praise the Lord, and magnifie him as much as ye can, yet he doth farre exceed. Exalt him with all your power, and be not wearie, yet can ye not attaine vnto it.

Now where the Lord giueth a greater meane, there he requireth a greater measure;

<sup>1</sup> Gen. 18.26.

<sup>2</sup> Gen. 19.22.

<sup>3</sup> Psal. 106.23.

<sup>4</sup> Exod. 32.11

* Lucan:

<sup>1</sup> Luk. 19.44.

<sup>2</sup> Martyr. pag. 1

<sup>3</sup> Basil. Muscul. Placid Parmen in loc.

sure; where he bestoweth a greater portion of gifts; he doth expect a greater proportion of glorie. Wherefore seeing the Lord hath out of his abundant mercy conferred vpon this kingdome inestimable blessings, in the preaching of his word for the space of more than fiftie yeeres; it is questionlesse he lookes for no little thanks or small praise, but for great thanks and great praise, according to his excellent greatnesse manifested in this our deliuerance. I come therefore to the second part of this Psalm, shewing with what God is to be praised, In the sound of the trumpets, &c.

<sup>b</sup> In Psalm. 147.

God is to be praised (saith <sup>b</sup> Augustine) totis votis de totis vobis, with all your soules, and with all your selues. That therefore we may manifest our inward affections by such outward actions as are commendable, where there be trumpets, let them sound: where there be lutes and harpes, let them strike vp: where there be loud Cymbals and well tuned cymbals, let them ring, let them sing the praises of God for this our most happy deliuerance; let trumpet and tongue, viol and voice, lute and life, witnesse our hearty reioicing in the Lord. If our true zeale were more fierie within, it would doubtlesse breake forth into moe publike works than it doth, against that bloody brood of the Gunpowder crue. There haue beene many collections in euery Dioces for the reedifying of the Churches of Saint Albones and Arthuret, the which I assure my selfe were good works: there haue beene in this latter age many gorgeous, I might say glorious buildings erected about and in this honorable Citie, the great ornament of our Countie, the which I thinke you may number among your good works: there haue beene Lotteries to further Virginean enterprises, and these (for any thing I know) were good works also: there haue beene many new Play-houses, and one faire Burse lately built, Paris-garden in a flourishing estate makes a great noise still, and as I heare Charing Crosse shall haue a new coat too: but in the meane time while so many monuments are raised, either to the honour of the dead, or else for the profit and pleasure of the liuing: Dic mihi Musa virum, I pray mite and shew mee the man, who ioynes with that euer zealous, reuerend, learned Deane, in founding a Colledge for a Societie of writers against the superstitious Idolatries of the Roman Synagogue, the which happily might be like the Tower of David, where the strong men of Israel might haue shields and targets to fight the Lords battell: Is it time for your selues to dwell in your seled houses, and this house lie waste?

<sup>c</sup> Cant. 4. 4.

<sup>d</sup> Haggai 1. 4.

<sup>e</sup> 2. Chron. 15. 2.

Remember, I beseech you, the words of <sup>e</sup> Azariah vnto King Asa and the men of Iuda, The Lord is with you while you are with him, and if ye seeke him, he will be found of you; but if yee forsake him, he will forsake you. Be not cold in a good cause, flie not out of the field, play not the cowards in the Lords holy warres; for albeit haply your selues are like for your time to do well enough, in despite of the deuil, and the Pope his darling; yet your posteritie will assuredly rue it, and haue iust cause to curse their dastardly spiritlesse, and worthlesse progenitors. I say no more concerning this point, only I pray with our forefathers in the first English Letanie, set out in the dayes of King Henric the 8. From all sedition and prinie conspiracie, from the tyrannie of the Bishop of Rome, and all his detestable enormities, from all false doctrine and herefie, from hardnesse of heart, and contempt of thy word and commandement,

Good Lord deliuer vs.

Where note by the way, that the Popes abominable tyrannie is hedged in (as it were) on the one side with sedition & prinie conspiracie, and on the other side with false doctrine and herefie. I haue another prayer, and for as much as it is in Latine, I must intreat all such (if any such here be present, who loue Bonauentures psalter and the Romish seruice) to ioyne with vs in this orison Papa noster qui es Roma, maledicitur nomen tuum, intereat regnum tuum, impediatur voluntas tua, sicut in caelo, sic & in terra. Potum nostrum in caena dominica da nobis bodie, & remitte nummos nostros quos tibi dedimus ob indulgentias, sicut & nos remittimus tibi indulgentias, & ne nos inducas in haresin, sed libera nos a miseria, quoniam tuum est infernum, pix & sulphur, in secula seculorum.

The word of God is a two edged sword, sharpe in a literall, and sharpe in an allegoricall exposition. Hitherto you haue heard the historic, now there remaineth a mysterie, nihil enim hic ludicrum aut lubricum, saith Augustine, and therefore <sup>h</sup> Diuines vnderstand here by the founding of the trumpet, the preaching of the Gospell, whose sound went out thorow all the earth vnto the ends of the world: at the seuenfold founding of the trumpet, the wals of <sup>k</sup> Iericho fall, that is all the pompes and powers of this world are conquered and brought to nought, this trumpet is mightie through God, to cast downe holds, and imaginations, and euery high thing that is exalted against the knowledge of God, 2. Cor. 10. 4.

<sup>l</sup> Other say, that the Saints are these trumpets, and harps, and cymbals, and that their <sup>m</sup> members make this musicke to the Lord: our eyes praise the Lord, while they be <sup>n</sup> lifted vp vnto their maker in heauen, and wait vpon his mercie: our tongues praise the Lord in singing <sup>o</sup> Psalmes, and hymnes and spirituall songs vnto the Lord: our eares praise the Lord, while they <sup>p</sup> heare the word of God with attention: our hands praise the Lord, while they be <sup>q</sup> stretched out vnto the poore, and while they <sup>r</sup> worke the thing that is good: our feet praise the Lord, when they be not <sup>s</sup> swift to shed blood, but <sup>t</sup> stand in the gates of Gods house, readie to <sup>u</sup> run the wayes of his Commandements. In tympano sicca & percussa pellis resonat, in choro autem voces sociata concordant, saith <sup>x</sup> Gregorie the Great: wherefore <sup>y</sup> such as mortifie the lusts of the flesh, praise God in tympano, and they who keepe the <sup>v</sup> unity of the spirit in the bond of peace: praise God in choro: the Brownist, in separating himself from the Church, though he seeme to praise God in tympano, yet he do: h not praise God in choro: and the carnall gospeller, albeit he ioyne with the Church in choro, yet he praifeth not God in tympano; they praise God in well tuned cymbals, who tune their soules before they preach or pray; whose euer desires to be a sweet singer in Israel, must be learned in the schoole, before he be loud in the temple: the heart likewise must be prepared for praying, as the harpe for playing; if our instruments of praise be not in tune, then our whole denotion is like the <sup>a</sup> sounding brasse, or as the tinckling cymbal: in Gods Quire there is first tune well, and then sound well: if once we can say with <sup>b</sup> David. O God mine heart is ready, my heart is ready, then our Lute and Harpe will awake right earely: let thy soule praise the Lord, and then all that is either without or about thee will instantly do the same.

Let euery thing that hath breath praise the Lord ] That is, <sup>c</sup> omne spirans, <sup>d</sup> omnis spiritualis, <sup>e</sup> omnis spiritus, let euery creature praise the Lord for his estate of confession, euery Christian praise the Lord for his estate of refection, euery blessed spirit loosed out of the worlds misery praise the Lord for his estate of perfection, let euery creature, man aboue all the creatures, and the soule of man aboue all that is in man, praise the Lord. Omnis spiritus, i. <sup>f</sup> totus spiritus, & all the heart, all the soule, all the minde, as the Psalmist <sup>h</sup> elsewhere, I will thanke thee, O Lord my God, with all mine heart, euen with my <sup>i</sup> whole heart; or omnis spiritus. the spirit of euery man in euery place, for this saying is <sup>k</sup> propheticall, insinuating that God in time to come, shall not only be worshipped of the Iewes at Ierusalem with outward ceremonies, in the sound of the trumpet, and vpon the lute and harpe; but in all places, of all persons, in spirit and truth, as Christ expounds David in the 4. of S. Iohns Gospell, at the 23. verse; whereas vnbeleeuing Iewes are the sonnes of Abraham according to the flesh, only beleeuing Gentiles are the <sup>l</sup> seed of Abraham according to the spirit, and heires by promise, more Israel, saith <sup>m</sup> Augustine, than Israel it selfe. The sonnes of Abraham (as Christ tels vs in the <sup>n</sup> Gospell) are they who do the works of Abraham, and Abrahams chiefe worke was faith, Abraham beleened (saith the <sup>o</sup> text) and it was imputed to him for righteousnesse: Ergo, the true beleeuer is a right Israelite, blessed with faithfull Abraham, Galath. 3. 9. <sup>p</sup> Some stretch this further, applying it not onely to the spirits of men in the Church militant, but also to the blessed Angels and Saints in the triumphant: for this Psalme consists of a three-fold Apostrophe.

1. David inuiceth all the Citizens of heauen, O praise God in his Sanctuarie, praise him in the firmament of his power.

2. All

<sup>q</sup> Heb. 4. 12.

<sup>r</sup> In loc.

<sup>s</sup> Prosper.

Zuther.

Hugo Card.

<sup>t</sup> Rom 10. 18.

<sup>u</sup> Iosua 6.

<sup>v</sup> Stricker est tuba

<sup>w</sup> ex parte bucci-

<sup>x</sup> nantis quam ex-

<sup>y</sup> altera, quam pre-

<sup>z</sup> dicatv stricinus

<sup>aa</sup> se debet exami-

<sup>ab</sup> nare. Hugo

<sup>ac</sup> Card. in loc.

<sup>ad</sup> Augustin. in

<sup>ae</sup> loc

<sup>af</sup> Chrysost.

<sup>ag</sup> Euthym in loc.

<sup>ah</sup> Psal. 123.

<sup>ai</sup> Coloss. 3. 16.

<sup>aj</sup> March 14. 9.

<sup>ak</sup> Eccles 7. 32.

<sup>al</sup> Ephes. 2. 4.

<sup>am</sup> 1. sal 14. 6.

<sup>an</sup> 1. sal 122. 2.

<sup>ao</sup> 1. sal 119. 32.

<sup>ap</sup> 1. Esdras. 3. 10.

<sup>aq</sup> 3. admonit. 23.

<sup>ar</sup> August.

<sup>as</sup> Cassiod.

<sup>at</sup> Hugo Card. in

<sup>au</sup> loc.

<sup>av</sup> Ephes 4. 3.

<sup>aw</sup> 1. Cor 13. 1.

<sup>ax</sup> Psal. 108. 1.

<sup>ay</sup> Agellius Va-

<sup>az</sup> tablus.

<sup>ba</sup> Hieron.

<sup>bb</sup> August.

<sup>bc</sup> Genebrard. &

<sup>bd</sup> aly plerique.

<sup>be</sup> Hugo.

<sup>bf</sup> Junius.

<sup>bg</sup> Luke 10. 27.

<sup>bh</sup> Psal 26. 12.

<sup>bi</sup> Psal. 111. 1.

<sup>bj</sup> Caluin.

<sup>bk</sup> Genebrard in

<sup>bl</sup> loc.

<sup>bm</sup> Galat. 3. 29.

<sup>bn</sup> Psal 148.

<sup>bo</sup> John 8. 39.

<sup>bp</sup> Gen. 15. 6.

<sup>bq</sup> Rom. 4. 3.

<sup>br</sup> Genebrard.

2. All the dwellers vpon earth, praise him in the sound of the trumpet, praise him upon the lute and harpe, &c.

3. Both and all, let euerie thing that hath breath, euery thing which hath either the life of nature or of grace, or of glorie, let euery spirit whether it be terrestriall or celestially, of what soeuer condition, age, sex, praise the Lord.

It is a Rabinicall conceit, that this hymne consists of 13. Halleluiahs, answering 13. properties of God mentioned, Exod, 34.6, 7. verses, and in that our Prophet after a dozen Halleluiahs hath not done, but addeth a thirteenth, he doth insinuate that when all our deuotion is finished, it is our dutie to begin againe with Gods praise, for as of himselfe, and through him, and for him are all things, euen so to him is due all glorie for enermore: as his mercies are from euerlasting to euerlasting, from euerlasting election, to euerlasting glorification: so likewise his praises are to be sung for euer and euer. In this life we begin this hymne singing (as Musicians speake) in briefs and semibriefs, a staffe or two, but in the world to come standing before the throne of the Lambe, clothed in long white robes, accompanied with all the sweet voices of heauens incomparable melodious Quire; we shall eternally sing, "Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty which was, and which is, and which is to come," praise, and glory, and wisdom, and power, and might, be vnto our God for enermore. Amen.

¶ Placidus Per-manfis & Bellarmin. in loc.
c. Genebrard.

¶ Rom. II. 36.

¶ Apocal 4. 8.

¶ Apocal. 7. 12.

Felix qui quod amat defendere fortiter audet.

Glorie beto God on high, and peace to men on earth.

CHRISTMAS

AN EXPOSITION
OF THE FESTIVALL
EPISTLES AND GOSPELS,
vsed in our English Liturgie.

TOGETHER WITH A REASON WHY THE
Church did chuse the same.

By I O H N B O Y S, Doctor in Diuinitie, and Deane of Canterburie.

PSALM. 105. 1.

Laudate Dominum in Sanctis eius.

L O N D O N

Printed by George Miller for William Aspley at the signe of the Parot in Pauls Churchyard. 1630.

TO
 THE MOST REVEREND FATHER
 IN GOD, GEORGE, BY THE
 diuine prouidence, Lord Archbishop of Canterburie, Primate of all England, and Metropolitane, &c.

MY VERY GOOD LORD.

Finde three sundry readings of the first words in the last Psalm; Praise God in his <sup>a</sup> Saints, praise God in his <sup>b</sup> sanctitie, praise God in his <sup>c</sup> Sanctuarie. God is to be praised in his Saints, as hauing out of the riches of his mercy bestowed on them eminent gifts of grace, the which as their bequeathed <sup>a</sup> legacies and only true reliques are to be remembred often in Gods Church vnto Gods people, that (as <sup>c</sup> B. Latymer speakes) we may worship the Saints in following their good examples And so these three lines meeting in one center, intimate that the most holy (being donor of euery good and perfect

<sup>a</sup> Hieron.
 Augustin.
 Euthym.
<sup>b</sup> Anonymus, and our old English translat.
<sup>c</sup> Vatablus, Coluis.
 Engl<sup>sh</sup> Geneva Bib. & Genebrardus ex Chal-deo.
<sup>d</sup> Euseb. Emisen.
 hori. de S. Maxi-mo <sup>e</sup> Sermon on Christmas day preached at Bextersley.

The Epistle Dedicatorie.

† Philip. 2. 15.

§ Dan. 12. 3.

fect gift) ought to be magnified in his Sanctuarie for his sanctitie conferred vpon his Saints, whereby they shined as lights in this heauen on earth, and now shine like starres in heauen of heauen. For this end I haue begun, and hope to finish an exposition of the Festiuall Epistles and Gospels vsed in our English Liturgie. The which (howsoever herein I may seeme bold) yet am I bound to dedicate vnto your Grace for many respectiue considerations, especially for this one, because your honourable disposition in the midst of a crooked nation is euermore to be both a patron and a patterne of vnfained sanctitie. Thus humbly beseeching the Lord to blesse, and your Grace to fauour these my labours;

I rest.

Your Graces seruant in all dutie,

JOHN BOYS.

CHRISTMAS DAY

MORNING PRAYER.

PSALME 19.

The heauens declare the glorie of God, &c.

THE world resembleth a Diuinitie-schoole, (saith<sup>a</sup> Plutarch) and Christ (as the<sup>b</sup> Scripture telleth) is our Doctor, instructing vs by his works, and by his words. For as<sup>c</sup> Aristotle had two sorts of writings, one called Exotericall for his common auditors, another Acroamaticall for his priuate schollers and familiar acquaintance: so God hath two sorts of bookes, as Dauid intimates in this Psalme.

<sup>a</sup> Com. de tranquill. animi.
<sup>b</sup> Matth. 23. 8.
<sup>c</sup> Tull. lib. 5. de finibus.

Namely, the } Booke of his Creatures, as a common-place booke for all men in the world, The heauens declare the glorie of God. vers. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6.
 } Booke of his Scriptures, as a statute booke for his domesticall auditorie the Church, The Law of the Lord is an undefiled Law, vers. 7, 8.

The great book of the creatures<sup>d</sup> in folio, may be termed aptly the Shepherds Kalender, and the Plough-mans Alphabet, in which euen the most ignorant may runne (as the<sup>e</sup> Prophet speakes) and reade. It is a Letter Patent, or open Epistle for all, as Dauid in our text, Their sound is gone out into all lands, and their words into the ends of the world: there is neither speech nor language but haue heard of their preaching. For albeir heauen, and the Sunne in heauen, and the light in the Sunne are mute; yet their<sup>f</sup> voices are well vnderstood, scatechizing plainly the first elements of religion, as namely<sup>h</sup> that there is a God, and that this God is but one God, & that this one God excelleth all other things infinitely both in might and maiestie. Vniuersus mundus (as one pithily) nihil aliud est quam Deus explicatus: The whole world is nothing else but God exprest. So Saint Paul, Rom. 1. 20. Gods inuisible things, as his eternall power and Godhead are cleerly seene by the creation of the world being vnderstood by the things that are made. The heauens declare this, & the firmament sheweth this, & the day telleth this, & the night certifieth this. the sound of the thunder proclaimeth (as it were) this in all lands, & the words of the whistling winde vnto the ends of the world. More principally the Sunne, which as a Bridegroomme commeth out of his chamber, and reioyceth as a Gyant to run his course, The<sup>k</sup> bodie thereof (as Mathematicians haue confidently deliuered) is 16 times bigger than the whole earth, and yet it is euery day carried by the finger of God to great a iourney, so long a course, that if it were to be taken on the land, it should runne enery feuerall houre of the day 225. Germane miles. It is true that God is incapable

<sup>d</sup> Du Baitas
 1 day, 1. wecke
<sup>e</sup> Abacuc 2. 2.
<sup>f</sup> Non loquuntur quidem ut homines, tan. ea uelut loquentes à nouis intelliguntur.
Tyemel in loc
<sup>g</sup> Athenagoras
orat pro Christianis.
<sup>h</sup> Thom. part. 1. quest. 12. art. 12.
<sup>i</sup> Caetan ibidem.
<sup>j</sup> Cardinal Cusanus.
<sup>k</sup> P. Florinus Strigel in loc.
vide Bell. r. de ascensione mens in Di. um per scalas i. real. grad. 7. cap. 2.

<sup>1</sup> Dñ Bartua ubi
sup. fol. 6.

<sup>m</sup> Placidus
Parmensis.
Genebardus in
loc.

<sup>n</sup> Bellar. in loc.

<sup>o</sup> Pfal. 149. 19.

<sup>p</sup> Bueer.
Tilman.
Caluin. in loc.

<sup>q</sup> August. expo- siti. 2. in. loc. &
Bellar. de Sa- cramentis in genere. lib. 1.
cap. 25.

<sup>r</sup> August. ex- positi. 1. in. loc.

<sup>s</sup> Hieron.
Melanct.
Strigelius.

<sup>t</sup> Philip. 2. 15.
<sup>u</sup> Occumen. apud
Bellar. ubi sup.

<sup>x</sup> Caluin. epist. de dit. Harmon.

<sup>y</sup> Rom 3. 24.

<sup>z</sup> Ephes 3. 16.

<sup>a</sup> Luke 2. 14.
<sup>b</sup> Pfal. 115. 1.
<sup>c</sup> Turrecremas.

incapable to sense, yet he makes himselfe ( as it were ) visible in his works; as the diuine <sup>1</sup> Poet sweetly :

Therein our fingers feele, our nostrils smell,
Our palats taste his vertues that excell,
He shewes him to our eyes, talks to our eares,
In the ordered motions of the spangled spheares.

So the heauens declare<sup>m</sup> that is, they make men declare the glory of God by their admirable structure, motions, and influence. Now the preaching of the heauens is wonderfull in <sup>n</sup> three respects.

1. As preaching all the night and all the day without intermission: vers. 2. One day telleth another, and one night certifieth another.

2. As preaching in euery kinde of language : vers. 3. There is neither speech, nor language, but their voices are heard among them.

3. As preaching in euery part of the world, and in euery parish of euery part, and in euery place of euery parish : vers. 4. Their sound is gone into all lands, and their words into the ends of the world.

They be diligent Pastors, as preaching at all times: and learned Pastors, as preaching in all tongues: and Catholike Pastors, as preaching in all townes. Let vs not then in this Vniuersitie (where the voices of so many great Doctores are heard) be like to trewants in other schooles, who gaze so much vpon the babies, and guilded couer, and painted margent of their booke, that they neglect the text and lesson it selfe. This booke is Gods Primer (as it were) for all sorts of people: but he hath another booke proper only for his domesticall auditorie the Church, <sup>o</sup> He sheweth his word vnto Iacob, his statutes and ordinances vnto Irael, he hath not dealt so with any nation, neither haue the Heathen knowledge of his Lawes. Heathen men reade in his Primer, but Christian men are well acquainted with his Bible. The Primer is a good booke, but it is imperfect, for after a man hath learned it, he must learne more: but the Law of the Lord, <sup>p</sup> that is, the bodie of the holy Scriptures, is a most absolute Canon of all doctrines appertaining either to faith or good manners; it is a perfit Law, conuerting the soule, giuing wisdom to the simple, sure, pure, righteous, and reioycing the heart, &c.

But before we treat of that part, let vs examine the mysticall exposition of this part of the Psalme, being guided herunto by the Spirit of God, Rom 10. 18. and by the direction of our Church accomodating this text to this time.

Allegorically then is meant by heauens generally the <sup>q</sup> Saints, especially the blessed <sup>r</sup> Euangelists and <sup>s</sup> Apostles. A good man and a true Christian is not only Gods house, Heb. 3. 16. but also Gods heauen, as S. Augustine expounds the words of Christ, Our Father which art in heauen, that is, dwelling not in the material heauen only, but in the mysticall heauen also: to wit, in holy men of heauenly conuersation, hauing their affections set on things which are aboue, Coloss. 3. 2. These kinde of heauens declare the glory of God in their workes, as much and more than in their words, euer shining as lights in the world, <sup>t</sup> their whole life being nothing else but a perpetuall sermon (as it were) to their neighbours, and so they declare Gods glorie, for that other seeing their good deeds, are thereby moued to glorifie our Father which is in heauen.

More particularly the blessed Euangelists and Apostles annunciate Gods glory, the Gospell is Gods throne, <sup>x</sup> wherein his Maiestie rideth as in a chariot, and the foure wheeles of this chariot are the foure Euangelists, & therefore this firmament sheweth Christs handy-work, because the written Gospel is a tract of all that Iesus did & taught, Act. 1. 1. and the blessed Apostles in preaching the Gospell, haue likewise declared Gods glorie: for in teaching that men are <sup>y</sup> freely iustified by grace, what doe they but annunciate the <sup>z</sup> riches of his glory? The Gospell is the power of God vnto saluation; and if thou beest hereby saued, it is not thine but Gods glorie. Wherefore sing with heauens host on this day, <sup>a</sup> Glorie be to God on high; and with holy <sup>b</sup> Dauid, Not vnto vs, o Lord, not vnto vs, but vnto thy name giue the glorie, for thy mercies and truthes sake. <sup>c</sup> Or the Apostles declare Christs glorie, glory, in preaching that he was and is equal with God, as being the character of his person and brightnesse of his glory, Heb. 1. 2. and they shew Christs handie worke, in relating all he said, and did, and suffered for vs men and our saluation, from his cradle to his crosse, and afterward from his crosse to his crowne. These were the Trumpeters of his Gospell, and as it were the<sup>d</sup> Bell-weatheres of his flocke, whose sound is gone out into all lands, and their words into the ends of the world, as S. Paul interprets our text, Rom. 10. 18. There is neither speech nor language, but their voices are heard among them. <sup>e</sup> Andrew preached in Scythia, Thomas in Parthia, Iohn in Asia, <sup>f</sup> Peter to the dispersed Iewes thorowout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, Buhynia; <sup>g</sup> Bartholmew in India; Matthew in Aethiopia: for (as <sup>h</sup> Cassanerus reports) Aethiopian nigram doctrina fidei fecit candidam. In England (as by tradition we haue receiued) <sup>i</sup> Simon Zelotes first preached the Gospell, and <sup>k</sup> Ioseph of Arimathea built a religious house for professors in Glasfenbury. S. Paul howsoeuer he was not one of the twelue, yet he laboured more abundantly than they all. 1. Cor. 15. 10. he declared the glory of God in <sup>l</sup> Arabia, Syria, Cilicia, <sup>m</sup> Antiochia, Seleucia, Cyprus, <sup>n</sup> Lycaonia, Lysira, <sup>o</sup> Athens, <sup>p</sup> Corinth, Troas. In a word, he made the Gospell of Christ abound in euery place from Hierusalem vnto Illyricum, as himselfe witnesseth of himselfe, Rom. 15. 19. he was a choten vessell of the Lord to beare his name before the Gentiles, and Kings, and the children of Israel, Acts 9. 15. Thus all the Saints in generall, the foure Euangelists, and twelue Apostles, and euery sound Preacher of the Gospell in particular, annunciate the glory of God.

But what is the meaning of the next words, one day telleth another, and one night certifieth another? Literally, dies diem dicit, is nothing else but dies diem docet. One day telleth another, is one day teacheth another. <sup>q</sup> The day past is instructed by the day present; euery new day doth afford new doctrine. The <sup>r</sup> day is a most apt time to learne by reading and conference; the night a most apt time for inuention & meditation: now that which thou canst not vnderstand this day, thou maist haply learne the next; and that which is not found out in one night, may be gotten in another. Mystically (saith <sup>s</sup> Hierome) Christ is this day, who saith of himselfe, I am the light of the world. And his twelue Apottle are the twelue houres of this day; for Christs spirit reuealed by the mouthes of his Apottle the mysteries of our saluation, in <sup>t</sup> other ages not so fully known vnto the sons of men. One day telleth another, that is, the spirituall vtter this vnto the spirituall; and one night certifieth another, that is Iudas insinuates as much vnto the Iewes in the night of ignorance saying, Whomsoeuer I shall kisse, that is he, lay hold on him. Or the<sup>2</sup> old Testament only shadowing Christ, is the night: & the new Testamēt plainly shewing Christ, is the day.

In them hath he set a tabernacle for the Sun] That is, as <sup>u</sup> other by way of <sup>v</sup> Hypallage, He hath his tabernacle in the Sun: meaning that God the Father dwelleth in Christ his Sun<sup>e</sup> bodily, which is the Sun of righteousnesse, Malac. 4. 2. by whom he doth <sup>w</sup> inlighthen and reconcile the world to himselfe, 2. Cor. 5. 18. The<sup>c</sup> Manichees, abusing the text, adore the Sun, conceiuing that Christ at his ascending set his tabernacle, that is, left his flesh in the Sun. <sup>f</sup> But this idle paradox contradicts the Scriptures, affirming that Christ ascended farre aboue all the heauens, Ephes. 4. 10. and that he there sitteth at the right hand of God, as our Agent and Aduocate, till he come again to iudge the quick and the dead. Ergo, his flesh is not in the Sun, but in the highest places, Heb. 1. 3. euen in the heauen of heauens, Act. 7. 56. The sense then of [he set his tabernacle in the Sun] in <sup>g</sup> Origenes iudgement is briefly this: Almighty God plac<sup>d</sup> his Church in the Sun of righteoufnesse, according to that of Paul, Ephes. 2. 20. The Church is built vpon the foundation of the Prophets and Apostles, Iesus Christ himselfe being the chiefe corner stone. Or as <sup>h</sup> other, He set his tabernacle in the Sun, that is, his Church in open view, that it may be so cleerly seene as the Sun; like a citie that is set on a hill and cannot be hid, Matth. 5. 14. So the word Sun is vsed. 1. Sam. 12. 12. Thou diddest it secretly, but I will do this thing before all Israel, and before the Sun. Or because the Scripture calleth our flesh a tabernacle, 2. Cor. 5. 1. We know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle be destroyed, we haue a building giuen of God, not made with hands, but eternall in the heauens. And

<sup>d</sup> August. ep 89.

<sup>e</sup> Fused. hist. lib. 3 cap. 1.

<sup>f</sup> 1. Pet. 1.

<sup>g</sup> Socrates hist. lib. 1. Cap. 15.

<sup>h</sup> Catalog. gloria mundi, part 3.

<sup>i</sup> considerat. 29.

<sup>j</sup> Niceph. lib. 2. cap. 40.

<sup>k</sup> Copgrane in Catalog. sanct.

<sup>l</sup> Angl. & Magdeburg. epist. prefix. Cent. 4.

<sup>m</sup> Galat. 1.

<sup>n</sup> Acts 13.

<sup>o</sup> Acts 14.

<sup>p</sup> Acts 17.

<sup>q</sup> Acts 20.

<sup>r</sup> Vatablus in loc.

<sup>s</sup> Placidus Parmen in loc.

<sup>t</sup> In loc.

<sup>u</sup> Iohn. 8. 12.

<sup>v</sup> Ephes 3. 5.

<sup>w</sup> August.

<sup>x</sup> Hieron.

<sup>y</sup> Tarecremat.

<sup>z</sup> Matth 26. 4. 8.

<sup>aa</sup> D. Incognitus.

<sup>ab</sup> Vulgar Latin.

<sup>ac</sup> August.

<sup>ad</sup> Genebrard.

<sup>ae</sup> Coloff. 2. 9.

<sup>af</sup> Iohn. 1. 9.

<sup>ag</sup> Senensis

<sup>ah</sup> Bibliothec. lib. 5. annot. 1 60.

<sup>ai</sup> See S. August. contra Faust. in

<sup>aj</sup> Manich. lib. 20.

<sup>ak</sup> apud Senen.

<sup>al</sup> ubi sup.

<sup>am</sup> August. in loc.

<sup>an</sup> & tract. 2 in ep.

<sup>ao</sup> Ioan. & lib. 3.

<sup>ap</sup> cont. lit. Petilian cap. 32.

<sup>i</sup> In cognitus,
in recremat.
<sup>k</sup> Iohn 1. 14.
<sup>l</sup> Philip 2. 7.

2. Pet. 1. 13. As long as I am in this Tabernacle. Therefore S. Augusine and <sup>i</sup> other expound it thus: He set his tabernacle in the Sunne: that is<sup>k</sup> the Word became flesh, and appeared in the<sup>l</sup> shape of a seruant, to manifestly, that as S. Iohn<sup>l</sup> speaks in his 1. Epistle, Chap 1. ver. 1. he was heard, and scene, and felt, that which was from the beginning, which we haue heard, which we haue seene with our eyes, which we haue looked upon, & our hands haue handled of the word of life. If Christ had not on earth a true body, then he was not borne of the Virgin Marie, nor wrapped in swadling clothes, nor laid in a cratch, nor circumcized on the eighth day, nor presented in the Temp. e. If his body was fantastical (as Valentius imagined) how did he thirst, and hunger, and weepe, and in conclusion, how did he die for our sinnes, and rise againe for our iustification? His natiuitie, life, death, evidently demonstrate that he was made flesh, and that he dwelt among vs, Ioh. 1. 14,

Which commeth forth as a Bridegroom out of his chamber] The Sun of righteousness appeared in three signes especially, Leo, Virgo, Libra: 1. In Leo, roaring as a Lion in the Law, so that the people could not<sup>m</sup> endure his voice: 2. In Virgo, borne of a pure Virgin in the Gospel: 3. In Libra, weighing our works, in his<sup>n</sup> ballance at the day of iudgement. Or, <sup>o</sup>as Bernard distinguisheth his three-fold coming aptly, Venit ad homines, venit in homines, venit contra homines: In the time past, he came vnto men as vpon this day; in the time present, he comes by the Spirit into men every day; in the time future, he shall come against men at the last day. The coming here mentioned is his coming in the flesh; for so the <sup>p</sup> Fathers vsually glosse the text, he came forth of the Virgins wombe, as a Bridegroom out of his chamber. As a Bridegroom, for the King of heauen at this holy time made a great wedding for his Sonne, Matth. 22. 1. Christ is the Bridegroom, mans nature the Bride, the<sup>q</sup> coninjection and blessed vnion of both in one person is his marriage. The best way to reconcile two disagreeing families, is to make some marriage between them: euen so the Word became flesh, and dwelt among vs in the world, that he might hereby make our<sup>r</sup> peace, reconciling God to man, and man to God. By this happy match the Son of God is become the son of man, euen flesh of our flesh, and bone of our bones: and the sons of men are made the sons of God, of the flesh, and of his bones, as Paul saith, Eph. 5. 30. So that now the Church being Christs owne Spouse, saith, I am my welbeloueds, and my welbeloued is mine, Cant. 6. 2. My sin is his sin, and his righteousness is my righteousness; he who knew<sup>u</sup> no sin, for my sake was made sin; and I contrariwise hauing no<sup>x</sup> good thing, am made the righteousness of God in him. I which am browne by persecution, and blacke by nature, Cant. 1. 4. so foule as the Sow that walloweth in the mire, 2. Pet. 2. 2. through his fauour am comely without spot or wrinkle, so <sup>y</sup> white as the snow, <sup>z</sup> like a Lilly among thornes, euen the fairest among women, Cant. 1. 7. This happie marriage is not a marre age, but it makes a merrie age, being<sup>a</sup> the consolation of Israel, & comfort of Ierusalem heart. Indeed Christ our husband doth absent himselfe from vs in his body for a time, but when he did ascend into heauen, he tooke with him our pawne, namely his flesh: and he gaue vs his pawne, namely his Spirit, assuring vs that we shall one day, when the world is ended, enter with him into the<sup>c</sup> wedding chamber, and there feast with him, and enjoy his blessed company for euermore.

And reioycest as a Giant to runne his course] As the naturall Sunne in his course goeth forth from the uttermost part of the heauen, and runneth about vnto the end of it againe: <sup>d</sup> so the supernaturall Sunne, Christ Iesus arising in our Horizon, <sup>e</sup> descended into the lowest parts of the earth, and there continued vntill he had finished the worke, for which he came into the world, and afterward ascended farre above all heauens, that he might fulfill all things.

As a Giant he did runne his course] There ye haue his incarnation, and peregrination in the flesh: his circuit was from the uttermost part of the heauen vnto the end of it againe, there you haue his resurrection and ascension: and there is nothing hid from his heat; there you haue his sending of the Holy Ghost in the forme of fierie tongues, Acts 2. 3. The resemblance, betweene Christ and the Sunne are<sup>f</sup> manifold. 1. As the Sunne is the worlds eye: so Christ is the light of the world. 2. As the

<sup>m</sup> Exod. 20. 17.

<sup>n</sup> Dan 9. 27.

<sup>o</sup> Serm. 3 de aduent. Dom.

<sup>p</sup> Hieron. Auguß.

<sup>q</sup> Greg. hom. 38.

<sup>r</sup> Eph. 2. 14. 16.

<sup>s</sup> Matth. 16. 13.

<sup>t</sup> Iohn 1. 12.

<sup>u</sup> 2. Cor. 5. 21.

<sup>x</sup> Rom 7. 18.

<sup>y</sup> Esay 1. 18.

<sup>z</sup> Cant. 2. 2.

<sup>a</sup> Luk 2. 25.

<sup>b</sup> Esay 4. 2.

<sup>c</sup> Matth. 25. 10.

<sup>d</sup> Sec S Auguß. contra literas Petilian. lib. 2. cap. 32. & Di. dac. de Tanguas Con. 1. de as. en. Dom the Sunne arising obscures the starres lustre: so the righteousnesse of Christ imputed to sinners, darkneth all the merit and worth of our workes. 3. As the Sunne in the greatest height causeth the greatest heat: so the crosse followeth euer the most incorrupt and pure profession of the Gospell. 4. As the Sunne in winter is neerest vs: so Christ in our afflictions, in our persecutions, especially for his truth, is neerest vs, as holy <sup>s</sup> Brudford diuinely said, if there be any way to heauen on horsebacke, surely this is the way, to suffer for Christ.

<sup>e</sup> Eph. 4. 9.

<sup>f</sup> Strigilius in loc.

Now (beloued) as the Prophet <sup>h</sup> Elisha together with his seruant Gebezi said vnto the Shunamite, Behold, thou hast had all this care for vs, what shall we do for thee? So let vs say to the Sun of righteousnes, O sweet Iesu, thou hast as a Giant run all this course for vs, whether shall we go, or what shall we doe for thee? Christ answers our question in the 14. of S. Iohn: If ye loue me, keepe my commandements. His chiefe commandement is, that we beleue in him; and the next is, that we loue one another. Ioh. 13. 24. Our faith in him, is confirmed and increased at this time by coming to his Table; our loue toward him, in inuiting his members vnto our table. We may be fed at his table (spiritually, he may be fed at our table corporally; for he that feeds the hungry, puts meat into Christs owne mouth; he that giues to the needy, puts money into Christs owne hand; he that cloaths the naked, puts a coat on Christs owne backe. So himself protesteth, & that with a great deale of earnestnes; Verily I say vnto you, in as much as ye haue done it vnto one of the least of these my brethren, ye haue done it vnto me. A noble Ladie being readie to die, sent vnto her absent husband two rings for a token; wherof one was her mariage ring, & the other a ring with deaths head on it, heartily desiring him after her departure to be good vnto her poore children: Our blessed Sauiour on this day for pure loue came down from heauen, and was maried after an ineffable manner vnto the flesh, and on good Friday he laid downe his life for our sakes; he therefore doth intreat vs by his incarnation, and passion, that we would in his absence remeber the poore, his children. If <sup>k</sup> Pericles an Heathen reioyced on his death-bed, for that no citizen of Athens had euer worne a mourning gowne through his occasion; how shall a Christian (as knowing that his Redeemer and his<sup>m</sup> rewarder liueth) be comforted in his dying houre? when as he cannot only say with <sup>n</sup> Samuel, Whose oxen haue I taken, or whom haue I done wrong to? but also with <sup>o</sup> Iob; I was eyes to the blinde, and feet was I to the lame, I was a father to the poore, and I caused the widdomes heart to reioyce.

The Law of the Lord is a perfit Law] In this part of the Psalme Dauid commends the Scripture: 1. From the Author, it is the Law of the Lord: 2. From the sufficiencie thereof, it is perfit: 3. From the vtilitie, conuerting the soule, giuing wisdom to the simple, &c. 4. From the infallibilitie, the testimony of the Lord is sure, the feare of the Lord endureth for euer. 5. From the sweetnesse, it reioyceth the heart, and is sweeter than the honey or the honey combe.

First, it is the Law of the Lord, against the <sup>q</sup> Manichees, affirming, that two disagreeing Gods were authors of the two Testaments, one of the old, another of the new: but S. Paul telleth vs expressly, that there is one Spirit, and one Lord, Ephes. 4. 4, 5. and <sup>r</sup> S. Peter assureth vs, that holy men of God in old time spake as they were moued by this one Spirit of one Lord.

Now the Scripture (being in euery part the law of the Lord) is undefiled & perfit, so perfit, that we may neither add thereto, or take therefro. So Moses Deu. 4. 2. and 12. 32. Ye shall put nothing vnto the word I command you, neither shall ye take ought therefrom. Here then is a pregnant testimony to confute the<sup>t</sup> Papists, accusing the word of God of insufficiency, making it like a sicke mans broken and imperfit will, halfe written and halfe paroll; adding to the written truth, v<sup>n</sup>written traditions as necessary to saluation. Dauid, a man according to Gods owne heart, and in penning the Psalter, a finger of Gods own hand, saith it is a perfit law: but the Pope, which is a member of Satan, and (as many great Diuines conceine) that man of sin, proclaimeth on the contrarie that it is an vnperfit Law. * S. Paul anowes that the Scriptures are profitable to teach, to improve, to correct, and instruct in righteousnesse. That is, to teach all necessarie truths, & confute all errors in doctrine, to correct ali

<sup>s</sup> Fox Maveyr. fol. 1493.

<sup>b</sup> 2 King 4. 13.

<sup>i</sup> Ioh. 3. 16. 24.
& Ioh. 6. 29.

<sup>k</sup> Plutarch in vita Periclis.

<sup>l</sup> Ioh. 9. 25.

<sup>m</sup> Heb 11. 6.

<sup>n</sup> 1. Sam 12. 3.

<sup>o</sup> Iob. 29. 15.

<sup>p</sup> Turrecromat.

<sup>q</sup> August. heres.

46. & Tertull.

cont. Marcian.

lib. 4.

<sup>r</sup> 2. Pet. 1. 21.

<sup>t</sup> Prout. 30. 6.

Reuel. 22. 18.

<sup>u</sup> Bellarm. de verbo Dei, lib 4. cap. 3.

See Dr. Mor-

toni appeale.

lib. 2. cap 25.

<sup>v</sup> 2. Thesl. 1. 3.

<sup>w</sup> 2. Tim. 3. 16.

¶ See Perkins Reformed Cat.
tit. traditions,
& Dr. Abbos.
ibidem.

² Beliar. ubi sup.
cap. 10.

³ Deut 31. 24.

⁴ Iofua 1. 8.

⁵ Beliar. ubi sup.

⁶ 1<sup>a</sup> P<sup>sa</sup>. 49.

⁷ Matth. 17. 4.

⁸ Epist. 5. Mar- cellin & 49.
Deo grat. ad
quæst. 3.

⁹ 1. Tim 4. 1.

¹⁰ Lib. 3. cap. 1.

¹¹ Hom. 25. in
Matth.

¹² Hexam. lib. 3.

cap. 3 & de uocat. gent. lib. 7.

cap 3.

¹³ Cont. lit. Petil.
lib. 2. cap. 6.

¹⁴ Apud Dr.
Morton Ap-
peale, lib. 2. cap

25 §. 11.

faults in manners, and instruct all men in all duties; and so by consequent able to make the man of God absolutely furnished with all good works. But the Romanists hold, that the written word is only milke for babes in Christ, and infants in Diuinitie, which are the simple sort of people; but vnwritten traditions are strong meat for the learned. Their answer to the cited text out of Deuteronomie, Ye shall adde nothing, &c. is manifold.

First, that it may be so well vnderstood of the word vnwritten as written, because Moses saith, Hearken vnto the Lawes which I teach and command, and not vnto the words I write. But this euasion is idle, seeing it is apparēt, that these very words are as a preface to a long exposition of the law written, ergo to be construed of the written word only. Againe, we say that euery word of the law was written in the book of the law: for so the text plainly, When Moses had made an end of writing the words of this Law in a booke, till he had finished them, then he commanded the Levites, which bare the Arke of the Couenant of the Lord, saying, take the booke of this Law, & put it in the side of the Arke, &c. and therefore that which is set downe by Moses, Deut 27. 26 Cursed be he that continueth not in all the words of this Law to doe them; is thus related by Paul, Gal. 3. 10. Cursed is euery one that continueth not in all things, that are written in the booke of the Law, to doe them. Hereby, shewing that all the words of the law were written in the book of the law, and nothing left vnwritten, that was any part or parcel therof. And the Lord giuing directions vnto Iosua, that he should obserue the whole law, which his seruant Moses had commanded, addeth in fine, Let not this booke of the Law depart out of thy mouth, but meditate therein day and night, that thou maist obserue and do according to all that is written therein.

Their second shift is, God himselve did adde to his Law, ergo we may likewise add to the Scriptures. After Moses had vttered the words, ye shall neither add to, nor take fro, &c. The Prophets were added to the Law, and the Gospell vnto both. Our answer to this obiection is threefold: 1. Moses did not say, God shall not adde, but ye shall not adde. The Lord of the Law is about the Law, but all of vs are vnder the Law: the Soueraigne may dispense with his law, but the seruant must obey his law. 2. The books added by God agreed with the law; for the Chronicles, and Psalmes, and Prophets add no point of doctrine thereto, but are rather expositions & commentaries vpon the Law, shewing the meaning and practise therof. And touching the new Testament, as the Law was a hidden Gospell; euen so the Gospell is a reuealed law. Concinunt noua veteribus, vetera nouis, saith Augustine: The two Testaments are like the Seraphims, Esay 6. 3. crying each to other; one and the same thing; and therefore Peter was vnwise to make three tabernacles in Mount Tabor; one for Moses another for Elias, and a third for Christ; because the Law and the Prophets, and the Gospell accord all in one, differing only in circumstance, but not in substance. If a man (quoth Augustine) vse one kinde of prayer in the morning, and another at night, he neither changeth his God, nor his religion: if one bid thee good morrow before dinner, and good night after supper, he doth not alter his good will or wish, but only his forme of saluting: so the Sacraments of the Gospell, and the sacrifices of the Law, point out one and same Sauiour, which is Christ the Lord. Thus all added by God vnto his Law, was nothing else but an explanation of his Law; but Popish traditions and additions are contrary to the word, not expositions, but oppositions; rather destructions, than constructions of it; as their inuocation of Saints, creeping vnto crosses, auricular Confession, Indulgences, Purgatorie, prayers for the dead, denying marriage to Priests, and the like; the which are so dissonant to Gods holy Law, that they be doctrines of deuils.

3. Though Almighty God added vnto the Law, yet that part of Scripture was omni-sufficient for his seruants at that time; and therefore seeing now the whole is written, it ought to be received as an absolute Canon for all times, a common treasure-house of all instructions, appertaining either to the reforming of our manners or informing of our faith. So reuerend Irenæus, Oregin, Ambrose, Augustine, and other of the most ancient Fathers account it. And so many learned Papists acknowledge, when as we treat of God, nothing may be said (as Aquine doth aduise.

aduise, part. 1. quest. 36. art. 2.) but what is found in the Scriptures. If we seeke to confute blasphemous Hereticks, there is no other way (saith<sup>n</sup> Stella) than by Scriptures. If we will examine the differences of Churches; and so discern the true from the false, the only meanes (as their Iesuite <sup>o</sup> Salmeron telleth vs) is by the Scriptures. In brieft, what can any Protestant say more for the Scriptures prerogative, than to professe that which their Bishop <sup>p</sup> Rossensis hath openly confessed, that the holy Scripture is Conclauē quoddam omnium veritatum, quae Christianis scitu necessariae sunt, a Conclauē of all necessarie Christian truth.

As the word of God in it selfe is a perfect and undefiled Law: so likewise making other perfect; It conuerteth the soule; and giueth wisdom to the simple. The Secretaries of Nature tell vs, that in the life naturall, our heart is the first in liuing, and last in dying: euen so in the life spirituall, our heart is conuerted first, and then all other members haue their proportionable perfection. And therefore <sup>o</sup> David praieeth, O Lord creat in me a new heart. Almighty God requires, that we <sup>r</sup> belecte with our heart, and <sup>f</sup>loue with our heart, and performe euery good deed with our heart: Son; giue me thine heart, Pro. 23. 26. If we can once truly professe with the <sup>r</sup> Psalmist, O God, my heart is ready, my heart is ready; <sup>u</sup> praise the Lord, o my soule, &c. then all that is either without vs, or about vs, instantly will do the same. Then our feet will be ready to run in his wayes; our eyes ready to wait vpon his will; our eares ready to heare his word; our hands ready to do his worke. It is reported of <sup>k</sup> Archbishop Cranmer, that his heart (after his flesh and bones were consumed in the mercilesse flames of fire) was found vnscorched and whole: so let vs in the midst of all tentations in this world, which is <sup>y</sup> in maligno, that is, in malo igne positus, keep our heart found and whole for the Lord, that we may professe with <sup>r</sup> Paul, I do not the good things which I would, but the euill which I would not, that do I: now then, if I do that I would not, it is no more I that do it, but the sinne that dwelleth in me.

If any shall aske, wherewith shall a man cleanse his heart: <sup>a</sup> David doth answer, by ruling himselfe after Gods word, that is a perfect Law, conuerting the soule: that is the <sup>b</sup> power of God vnto saluation, an <sup>c</sup> immortall seed, and the word of life, whereby men are borne againe to the kingdome of God. All of vs are by nature the <sup>d</sup> children of wrath; our soules are <sup>e</sup> like the porches of Bethesda, Ioh 5. in which are lodged a great many sicke folke, blinde, halt, withered. And the Scriptures are like the poole of Bethesda, into which whosoeuer entreth, after Gods holy Spirit hath a little stirred the water, is made whole, of what soeuer disease, he had. He that hath angers phrensie, being so furious as a Lion by stepping into this poole, shall in good time become so gentle as a Lambe: he that hath the blindness of intemperance, by washing in this poole, shall easily see his folly: he that hath enuies rust, auarices leprosie, luxuries palse; shall haue meanes and medicines here for the curing of his maladies: the word of God is like the drug Catholicon, that is in stead of all purges; and like the herbe Panaces, that is good for all diseases. Is any man heauie? the statutes of the Lord reioyce the heart: Is any man in want? the iudgements of the Lord are more to be desired than gold, yea than much fine gold, and by keeping of them there is great reward: is any man ignorant? the testimonies of the Lord giue wisdom to the simple: <sup>f</sup> that is, to little ones, both in standing, and vnderstanding. In standing, as vnto little <sup>g</sup> Daniel, little <sup>h</sup> John the Euangelist, little <sup>i</sup> Timothy: to little ones in vnderstanding; for the great Philosphers, who were the Wizards of the world, because they were not acquainted with Gods law, became fooles, while they professed themselves wise, Rom. 1. 22. but our Prophet saith, <sup>k</sup> I haue more vnderstanding than my teachers, because thy testimonies are my meditation & study. To conclude, whatsoeuer we are by corruption of nature, Gods law conuerteth vs, & maketh vs to speak with <sup>l</sup> new tongues, and to sing new <sup>m</sup> songs vnto the Lord, and to become new men and new creatures in Christ, 2. Cor. 5. 17. The law of the Lord giueth euery man a new-yeeres gift, if he haue faiths hand to receiue it. Vnto the couetous it giueth a new-yeeres gift, in telling him plainly, that such as trust in vncertaine riches, and not in the liuing God, fall into tentations, and snares, and into many foolish and noisome lusts, which drowne men in perdition and destruction, 1. Tim. 6. 9. It

<sup>n</sup> In Luc. 1. prefat.

<sup>o</sup> Com in Rom in praem. part. 3. disp 3.
<sup>p</sup> Art. 37. aduersus Lutherum, fol. 222.

<sup>q</sup> Psal. 51. 10.
<sup>r</sup> Rom 10. 10.
<sup>s</sup> Luke 10. 37.
<sup>t</sup> Psal. 109. 1.
<sup>u</sup> Psal. 103. 1.

<sup>v</sup> Author Latin Chron. de Cantuariens. Archiep. in vita Cranmeri, pag. 423.

<sup>y</sup> 1. Ioh 5. 19.
<sup>z</sup> Rom. 7. 15.

<sup>a</sup> Psal. 119. 9.

<sup>b</sup> Rom 1. 16.
<sup>c</sup> 1. Pet. 1. 23.
<sup>d</sup> Ephes 2. 3.
<sup>e</sup> Paulinus epist. lib. 2. epist. 4. in fine.

<sup>f</sup> Euthym.
<sup>g</sup> Historie of Susanna, ver. 45.
<sup>h</sup> Discipulum minimum Iesus amabat plurimum, Hieron. epist. ad Heliodor.
<sup>i</sup> 2. Tim 3. 15.
<sup>k</sup> Psal 119. 99
<sup>l</sup> Mark 16. 17.
<sup>m</sup> Psal. 98. 1.

- James 1. 6.
 1 Pet. 5. 5.
 Prou 3. 34.
 Ecclef. 12. 1.
 Luke 2. 11.
 Ioh. 3. 16.

Fox Martyrol.
 fol. 263.
 Fol. 752, 753.
 Fol. 761, 762.
 Letter to the Vniuersitie and towne of Cambridge.

Matth 23. 13.

D. B. Assheton in a pub. oration before the Bishops assembled in Aunior, vsi Fox Marty-rolog. fol. 362.

Epist. lib. 1.
 cap. 1.
 2 Cor. 2. 17.
 1 Tim. 1. 7.

De inuent.
 rorum, lib. 4.
 cap. 9.

Coloff. 3. 16.

gives the voluptuous & incontinent man a new-yeeres gift, aduising him, 1. Theff. 4. 4. to possesse his vessell in holines and honour. It giues the proud man a new-yeeres gift, in saying, God resisteth the proud and giueth grace to the humble. It giues the lustie gallant a new-yeeres gift, in remembering him to remember his Creator in the dayes of his youth. It giues euery man a new-yeeres gift, in bringing this newes into the world, that vnto vs is borne this day a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord, and that whosoever beleueth in him, shall not perish, but haue euerlasting life.

The Pope then in denying the lawes of God, vnto the people of God, in a tongue which is knowne, in persecuting those who translated them, as Wickliffe and Tyndal; and other who sold them, as a godly Stationer was burnt in Aunior, with two Bibles about his necke; and other for reading and hauing them; and other for repeating only certaine sentences out out of them, evidently sheweth himselfe a great Antichrist, and aduersarie to the Gospell. For (as holy Bradford said) how can he with his Prelates meane honestly, who make so much of the wife, and so little of the husband? The Church they magnifie, but Christ they contemne. The truth is, if their Church were an honest woman (that is, Christs own spouse) vnlesse they would make much of her husband (Christ and his word) she would not be made much of them. If the Law of the Lord be perfect, conuerting the soule, giuing wisdom to the simple, reioycing the heart, cleane, sure, pure, more to be desired than gold, yea than much fine gold; sweeter also than honey, and the honey combe: what impudent Pharisies are they, who (professing that the keyes are in their hands only) shut up the kingdome of heauen before Gods people, they neither goe in themselves, nor suffer such as would enter, to come in.

It was said of them in old time, by some of their owne side, that it was so great a wonder to heare a Bishop preach, as to see an Ass flye. Now they preach (I confesse) more than heretofore, but their doctrine fauours of policie, more than of pietie, tending rather to King-killing than soule-sauing. Whosocuer is vnto in their booke, is able to giue this verdict, that their Diuinitie tracts are worse than their humane learning; and that their Sermons are the worst of all their Diuinitie, being framed in affaires of state, not according to the word of Christ, but according to the will of Antichrist: and in matters of deuotion, according to the fopperies of their owne Legend, and not according to the wisdom of Gods Law.

Seneca said pithily, Magna vite pars elabitur male agentibus, maxima nihil agentibus, tota aliud agentibus. The Iesuites in their preaching are male agentes, as making a merchandite of Gods holy word. The Friers in their preaching are nihil agentes, vnderstanding neither what they speake neither whereof they affirme. For the most part, all Papists in their preaching are aliud agentes, either beyond the text, or behind the text, or beside the text. The too little learning of their Friers, & too much of their Iesuites, haue so wrested the Scriptures, to serue their owne turne, that (as Polydore Virgil said of Lawyers) they haue stretched Gods booke, as shooe-makers extend a boot. See Gospell 1. Sund. in Aduent.

To leaue them, and to come neerer our selues; seeing the booke of Scripture is the word and will of God, and that a perfect law, so perfect, that nothing may be taken therefrom, or put thereto; not only perfect in it selfe, but also making others perfect, conuerting the soule, and giuing wisdom to the simple: let it (as the blessed Apostle doth exhort) dwell in you plenteously with all wisdom. It is Gods best friend, and the Kings best friend, and the Courts best friend, and the Cities best friend, and the Countreies best friend, and all our best friend; and therefor let vs not entertaine it as a stranger, but as a familiar and a domestick, let it dwell in vs. And for as much as it brings with it exceeding profit and pleasure: profit, more to be desired than gold, yea than much fine gold; pleasure, reioycing the heart, sweeter also than honey, and the honey combe, let it dwell in vs plenteously. Yet in all wisdom, let vs heare it in all wisdom, reade it in all wisdom, meditate on it in all wisdom, speak of it in all wisdom, preach it in all wisdom; not only in some, but in all wisdom, that the words of our mouthes, and the meditations of our hearts may be most acceptable in thy sight, O Lord our strength and our Redemer. Amen.

Psalme 45. is expounded on Whitsunday. The next allotted for this our present Festiuall is

PSALME 85.

Lord, thou art become gracious vnto thy land, &c.

Prayer, whereof there be two grounds,

This Psalme may be diuided into two parts: a Precept, consisting of two branches:

- 1. The Churches experience of Gods former mercies, vers. 1, 2, 3.
- 2. The due consideration of Gods nature, slow to conceiue wrath, and ready to forgieue, v. 4, 5, 6, 7. The summary pith is briefly this; Lord thou hast bin heretofore fauourable to thy land, and therefore we hope thou wilt be so now, that thy people may reioyce in thee.

Tremellius.

- 1. Aduising vs in all our afflictions and misery, to haue recourse vnto the comfortable promises of God I will heare what the Lord will say.
- 2. That we should lead a godly life, lest our folly stop the free passage of these promises, as well touching things spirituall, vers. 9. 10. 11. as temporall, vers. 12.

Mystically, the whole Psalme, in the iudgement of Hierome, Augustine, Basil, and other ancient Fathers, is nothing else but a prophesie concerning the redemption of mankind, from the tyrannie of Satan and sinne, by the comming of Christ into the world, prefigured by the deliuerances of Gods people from their bondage, both in Ægypt and Babylon.

- 1. In the Preterperfect tense, Lord thou hast bene gracious, thou hast turned away, thou hast forgien, &c. Shewing three notable fruits of his comming:

- 1. Benediction, in taking away the curse from his land, and captiuitie from his people, vers. 1.
- 2. Iustification, in forgiuing their offences, and conerring all their sins, vers. 2.
- 3. Reconciliation, turning away Gods wrathfull indignation and displeasure, vers. 3.

D. Incognitus in loc.

Now the Prophet treating of Christs aduent, speaks

- 2. In the future tense, praying that he may come, turne vs then, o God, our Saviour, &c.

Prediction, of our deliuerance from the hands of all our spirituall enemies, vers. 1, 2, 3. for the Psalmist (as prophesying by the Spirit of the Lord) speaks in time past, of that which as yet was to come.

Petition, for executing of the prediction in the rest, an heartie prayer, that the fact might answer the figure.

Or it may be parted into a

Bucer. Ecllarmin.

Lord

<sup>a</sup> Iohn 3. 16.

Lord thou art become gracious ] The Translators of the vulgar Latine render, benignus benedixisti: but Atanasius, and other Greeke Interpreters, benignus Tremellius, benivolus fueras: Munster, benignus factus es: Castalio, sanxit: Vatablus, propitius. And our English Bibles accordingly, thou hast benee gracious, favourable, mercifull vnto thy land. Here then obserue, that the good will and fauour of God is the fountaine of all goodnesse, and blessing to his people; <sup>b</sup> God so loued the world, that he gave his only begotten Sonne, &c. It was his owne loue which induced him to send his Sonne, and Ephes. 1. 3. Blessed be God, euen the Father of our Lord Iesus Christ, which hath blessed vs with all spirituall blessings in heauenly things in Christ, as he hath chosen vs in him, before the foundations of the world, that we should be holy, and without blame before him in loue: who hath predestinated vs to be adopted through Iesus Christ vnto himselfe, according to the good pleasure of his will, &c.

<sup>i</sup> Gen. 3. 17.

<sup>k</sup> Hieron.

Euthym.

Turrecremat.

<sup>l</sup> Gen 22. 16. 18.

<sup>m</sup> Wis. 11 21.

Unto thy land ] God cursed the land for the first Adams disobedience, saying, <sup>i</sup> Cursed is the earth for thy sake, in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the dayes of thy life. <sup>k</sup> But he blessed the land for the second Adams obedience, <sup>l</sup> swearing by himselfe, that in him all the nations of the earth shall be blessed. The land, O Lord, is thy land, though of it selfe it can bring forth nothing but thistles and thornes; it is thy creature, wherefore <sup>m</sup> thou which hatest nothing that thou didst make, hast, out of the riches of thy mercy, become gracious vnto it.

<sup>n</sup> Psal 95. 5.

<sup>o</sup> Psal 24 1.

<sup>p</sup> T Wilcox ex-post. in loc.

<sup>q</sup> Esay 5. 7.

As the <sup>n</sup> sea is his, for that he made it: euen so the <sup>o</sup> earth is the Lords, and all that therein is, the compasse of the world, and they that dwell therein, for he hath founded it, &c. <sup>p</sup> Other thinke, that the land of Canaan is called here, thy land, because God had chosen it, and hedged it in (as it were) from the commons of the whole world for his peculiar people the Iewes, according to that of the <sup>q</sup> Prophet, Surely the vineyard of the Lord of hosts is the house of Israel, and the men of Iudah are his pleasant plant, inclosed vnto himselfe aboue all places vpon earth.

<sup>r</sup> Deut. 7. 6.

Exod. 19. 5.

<sup>s</sup> Hieron.

Euthym.

<sup>t</sup> Augustin.

<sup>u</sup> Bucer.

Thou hast turned away the captiuitie of Iacob ] <sup>r</sup> All true beleeuers are the sonnes of Iacob, and seed of Abraham, <sup>s</sup> as well the beleeuing Gentiles, which are the sons of Iacob according to the spirit, as the beleeuing Iewes the sons of Iacob according to the flesh; and the <sup>t</sup> Church of these true Iacobines and Israelites, are the land of the Lord, and the captiuitie here mentioned, is bondage vnder sin, so Paul, Rom. 7. 23. I see another law in my members, rebelling against the law of my minde, and leading me captiue vnto the law of sinne, which is in my members. O wretched man that I am, who shall deliuer me from the bodie of this death? In this captiuitie, Satan is the Iaylor, the flesh is our prison, vngodly lusts are the manicles, a bad conscience the tormenter, all of them against vs; only Christ is Emmanuel, God with vs; he turneth away the captiuitie of Iacob, in forgiuing all his offences, and in couering all his sinnes. For the blessed order of our redemption is <sup>u</sup> briefly this: God our of his mere loue to the world qui bene voluit terra, gaue his Sonne; the Sonne by his death appeased the wrath of his Father, and abundantly satisfied the diuine iustice, for the sinnes of the whole world; God pleased in his Son Iesu, forgiueth all our offences, and couereth all our sinnes, and remission of sinne releaseth our captiuitie. Whosoener then is a true beleuer in Christ, is the Lords free-man, <sup>v</sup> in this life so set at libertie, that sin shall not raigne in his mortall members, Rom, 6. 12. but in the world to come fully free from all corruption and concupiscence, when as his vile bodie shall be made like to Christs glorious bodie, Philip, 3. 21. the which is called by Paul, the glorious libertie of the sonnes of God, Rom. 8. 11.

<sup>w</sup> Bellarmin.

<sup>x</sup> 1. Cor. 7. 23.

<sup>y</sup> See Aquin.

lib 4. Rom. 7.

<sup>z</sup> Bucer.

Bellarmin.

Genbrardus

Turne vs then O God our Sauour ] Here begins the <sup>a</sup> petition, or <sup>b</sup> application of the former prophecie, wherein the Church heartily desires the father of mercies, that he would execute his holy promise concerning our deliuerance, by sending his only Sonne and our only Sauour Christ Iesus into the world. Whereas it is said in the prophecie, Thou hast turned away the captiuitie of Iacob; it is said in the praier, Turne vs then O God our Sauour. In the prophecie, Thou hast taken away all thy displeasure, and turned thy selfe from thy wrathfull indignation: in the praier, Let thine anger cease from vs: wilt thou be displeas'd at vs for euer, and wilt thou stretch out of thy wrath from one generation to another? In the prophetic, Thou hast been favourable to thy land, thou hast forgiven the offences of thy people, and covered all their sinnes: in the praier, Quicken vs O Lord, that thy people may reioyce in thee, shew vs thy mercy, and grant vs thy saluation: c that is, thy Sonne Iesus, <sup>d</sup> by whom onely thou sauest.

<sup>e</sup> Eubym.
<sup>d</sup> Acts 4. 12.

The whole Prayer hath (as <sup>e</sup> one notes) two parts :

- |  |   |
|--|---|
| { 1. The Churches request vnto God, that the Messias of the world may come, and that for foure causes especially : | 1. For our reconciliation vnto God, vers. 4. 5. |
|  | 2. For our iustification, vers. 6. 7.           |
| }  | 3. For our illumination, vers. 8.               |
|  | 4. For our glorification, vers. 9.              |
2. Gods grant to the request of his Church in the fulnesse of time, Mercy and truth are met together, & c.

<sup>e</sup> D. Incognitus.

I will hearken what the Lord will say ] The word of God is a lanterne vnto our feet, and a light vnto our paths, a trusty <sup>f</sup> counsellor in all our affaires, in our afflictions especially. The Lord speaks peace vnto his people, both in the bookes of his holy Scriptures, and by the mouths of his godly <sup>g</sup> Preachers. And therefore such as <sup>h</sup> despise prophesying, and for some by-respects of tithes, and other worldly toys, hate their learned and vigilant Pastors, <sup>i</sup> vnderstand not these things which belong vnto their peace. It was euer held commendable policie both among Christians and Heathens, that a good thing for the Commonweale, should be broached by the gracious lip of some man highly honoured in his country, because his precept is vsually dis-respected, whose person is despised. And this among other is one cause, why some men in Gods house, during the time of praying and preaching prattle so much vnto their mates; or (if their pew-fellow be more deuour) prate by nods and fleares, and other secret signes, vnto their lewd companions further off. It is hard for any (said Plutarch) to change himselfe so much, but that a man (at one time or other) may catch his heart at the tip of his tongue: and so surely no hypocrite can so deeply dissemble, but a man (euer and anon) may see his heart at his fingers end: his wandering lookes, and other irreuerent behauiour in the Temple, bewray that his soule doth not magnifie the Lord, nor his spirit reioyce in God his Sauour. When thou comest into the Sanctuary, thou must either in thy deuotions speake vnto God, or else heare what God by his mynistry speaketh vnto thee.

<sup>f</sup> Psal. 119. 24.

<sup>g</sup> Tileman in loc.

<sup>h</sup> 1. Thess 5. 20.

<sup>i</sup> Luke 19. 42.

It is the fashion of worldlings to sue their neighbours for every trifling trespass: but a true Christian is resolu'd here with our Prophet, I will heare what the Lord God will say concerning me. Now he saith, <sup>k</sup> Is it so, that there is not a wise man among you? no not one, that can iudge betwene his brethren? but a brother goeth to law with a brother, and that vnder such aduocates and Iudges, qui hac lege defendunt miseros, vt miseros faciant defendendo, like the thorny bush fleecing the poore sheepe, which in a storme cometh vnto it for shelter.

<sup>k</sup> 1. Cor. 6. 5.

<sup>l</sup> Saluianus li. 5. de gubernat. Dei.

It is the fashion of worldlings, if they lose goods out of their closet, or cattle out of their close, presently to rake hell for helpe, consulting with abominable witches, and other wicked agents of the deuill: but a good Christian on the contrary saith, I will heare what the Lord will say. He saith in his law, <sup>m</sup> Thou shalt not suffer a witch to liue. Shall I then forsake God, who <sup>n</sup> rideth vpon the heauens, for my helpe? & the Magistrate, Gods deputy, <sup>o</sup> to take vengeance on him that doth euill, and seeke comfort at the hands of a Coniurer, by black Arts & works of darknes? No Satan, if thou wouldest in consideration of my little losse, giue me my house full of siluer and gold, or couldest (as once thou diddest impudently best vnto my blessed Sauour) bestow on me all the kingdomes of the world, <sup>q</sup> I cannot goe beyond the word of the Lord my God to doe lesse or more.

<sup>m</sup> Exod. 22. 18.

<sup>n</sup> Deut. 32. 26.

<sup>o</sup> Rom. 13. 4.

<sup>p</sup> Matth 4. 9.

<sup>q</sup> Num 22. 18.

It is the fashion of wordlings, when their consciences afflict them at any time for sinne, to see merry plaies, or read merry bookes, or heare merry tales, or talke merry merry

<sup>c</sup> Psal. 50. 15.

<sup>f</sup> Psal 31. 27.

<sup>c</sup> Habacuc 2. 3.

<sup>a</sup> See D<sup>r</sup>. Bell ser. of the blessed In-mate.

<sup>a</sup> Deut 32. 39.

<sup>v</sup> In lere. h<sup>o</sup>m. 1.

<sup>a</sup> Jerem. 1. 10.

<sup>a</sup> Ester 4. 2.

<sup>b</sup> 2. Pet. 2. 22.

<sup>c</sup> John 5. 14.

<sup>d</sup> Fileman.

Bucer.

Vatablus:

<sup>e</sup> Genebrard.

Tremel.

Wilcox.

<sup>f</sup> Agellius.

Bell<sup>o</sup>m. in

Psal. 24.

<sup>g</sup> Rom. 15. 8.

<sup>h</sup> Rom 9. 4.

<sup>i</sup> Galat. 4. 4.

<sup>k</sup> Luke 2. 32.

<sup>l</sup> Hieron.

Augustine.

Turrecremat.

<sup>m</sup> Ephes. 3. 14.

<sup>n</sup> John 10. 16.

merry cups and so they make the remedy worse comm only than the disease. But a good man and a true Christian heares what the Lord saith vnto him in his word and ministry, Call vpon me in the time of trouble, so will I heare thee, and thou shalt praise me. Be strong, and he shall stablish your heart, all ye, that put your trust in the Lord. Come to me all ye th at labour and are laden, and I will ease you. Though hope seeme to tarrie, yet wait, for it shall surely come and not stay. <sup>u</sup> God is like the bridegroom, Ioh. 2. who kept his best wine for his last seruice. First he propounds and propines vnto his followers the cup of his Crosse, ye shall drinke indeed of my cup, Matth. 20. 23. but in conclusion, he turnes his Crosse into a Crowne, Reuel. 2. 10. Be thou faithfull vnto death, and I will giue thee the crowne of life. First he doth humble, then exalt: first he <sup>x</sup> killeth, and then he cureth. A tristibus semper sed necessarijs inchoat Deus, deinde progreditur ad hilariora, saith <sup>y</sup> Origine: God ener begins at necessarie discontentments, and so proceedeth vnto things more pleasing. He saith, I wound, and I make whole: I kill, and giue life. He saith not, I will first make alieue, and then I will destroy: but first he <sup>z</sup> plucketh vp, and then hee planteth: first he doth ouerthrow, then he buildeth: first he mortificth our earthly members of sinne, then he quickneth our inward man to grace. Ioseph after he had worne the Taylors iron chaine, Gen. 40. 3. was adorned with the golden chaine of Pharao the King, Gen. 41. 42. Mordecai first among pages at the Court <sup>a</sup> gate, was afterward honoured with the Kings ring and raiment, and mounted on the Kings horse, and it was openly proclaimed before him euen through the streets of the Citie, Thus shall be done to the man whom the King will honour, Ester 6. 11. All which examples are commentaries vpon our text, and shew, that howsoeuer Almighty God pnnisheth his people for a time, yet if they will heare what he saith, he will in fine speake peace vnto them.

But the Psalmist addeth here by way of caueat, Let them not returne againe to their follie. Sinners are fooles, & their faults are their follies, as the Scriptures euery where speake, in the Prouerbs especially. Couetousnesse is a folly. Drunkennesse a folly, Whoredome a folly, Atheisfine folly, Idolatry folly. God in his Son speaketh vnto his people peace, but let them take heed that they returne not againe to their folly, like the <sup>b</sup> sowe to the, wollowing in mire, and the dogge to his owne vomite, <sup>c</sup> Behold, thou art now made whole, sinne no more, lest a worse thing come vnto thee. Thou dost euery day beg of our heauenly Father that his kingdome may come: looke then vnto the next clause, that his will may be done in earth, as it is in beauen.

Mercy and truth are met together <sup>d</sup> When as Gods people heare what he saith vnto them in his holy word, then all things are full of mercy, truth, righteousness and peace; then the land shall giue her increase, that is, the Church abound with these good fruits of faith. <sup>e</sup> Some say, that these vertues meet together and kisse, but in diuers subiects. As for example, mercy from God, and truth from men: as if he should say, God will turne his owne iustice towards his people into mercy, and their hypocriticall hearts and foule hands into sound and sincere dealing, and so righteousnesse and peace kisse. The righteousness of God in executing his promises faithfully breeds in his people peace of conscience to their endlesse comfort. Other affirme, that these vertues meet together in one subiect,

And that in  $\left. \begin{array}{l} \text{God.} \\ \text{Man.} \\ \text{Christ, God and man.} \end{array} \right\}$

They meet together in God: for all the pathes of the Lord are mercy and truth, Psal. 25. 9. <sup>f</sup> mercy in making, and truth in keeping his promise to his people. <sup>g</sup> S. Paul saith, Iesus Christ was a minister of the Circumcision for the truth of God, to confirme the promises made vnto the Fathers; & that the Gentiles might glorifie God for his mercy. God promised his Sonne vnto the <sup>h</sup> Iewes, and he gaue him in the <sup>i</sup> fulnesse of time to be both a <sup>k</sup> light to the Gentiles, and glory of his people Israel. <sup>l</sup> Herein shewing his mercy more principally to the Gentiles, his truth vnto the Iewes, and so his mercy and truth embraced each other, in that he made <sup>m</sup> both people but one, to wit, one, focke, in <sup>n</sup> one shepfold, vnder one shepheard.

If we take truth and righteousnesse for Gods iustice in punishing, mercy and peace for his graciousnesse in pardoning; yet they meet together in all his waies, vnto such as keepe his covenant and his testimonies. For as the mercies of the wicked are full of cruelty: so the very iudgements of God vpon his seruants are full of mercy. In his wrath he remembers pitie; punishing a little, that he may pardon a great deale; destroying the flesh only, to saue the spirit, 1. Cor. 5. 5. Misericordiae est aliquando subtrahere misericordiam: It was good for Ioseph that he was a captiue, good for Naaman that he was a leaper, good for Bartholomew that he was blinde, good for Dauid that he was in trouble. <sup>r</sup>Bradford thanked God more of his prison, then of any parlour or pleasure: <sup>f</sup>All things are to the best vnto the faithfull. And so Gods mercy and truth are met together, righteousnesse and peace haue kissed each other, his mercy being iust, and his iustice being mercifull. But God in giuing his only Sonne vnto the world, more abundantly shewed his mercy and iustice kissing one another. His iustice requires <sup>t</sup> that euery soule that sinnes should die; but his mercy desires not the death of a sinner, Ezech. 33. 11, He therefore gaue his Sonne to die for our sinnes, and to rise againe for our iustification, and so both his iustice is satisfied, and sinners are saued. In Christs aduent, mercy and truth are met together, righteousnesse and peace haue kissed each other. <sup>u</sup> Bernard hath a pretti dialogue to this purpose, betweene righteousnesse and truth on the one side, mercy and peace on the other part, contending about the redemption of mankinde. Christ our blessed Meffias and Mediator ended the quarrell at his comming, and made them all exceeding kinde kissing friends: for in giuing himselfe a <sup>x</sup> ranfome for all men, he did at once pay both vnto Iustice her debt, and grant vnto Mercy her desire.

2. Righteousnesse and peace meet together in man: for <sup>s</sup> S. Augustine expounds it; an vnust man is full of quarrels, like Ishmael, <sup>z</sup> euery mans hand is against him, and his hand against euery man: but he which is righteous, and giueth euery man his due, shall haue peace, so much as is <sup>a</sup> possible with all men, especially with his owne selfe and soule. Righteousnesse and peace are so neere, so dcere, that thou canst not haue the one without the other. Unam vis & alteram non facis, haply thou wouldest enioy peace, but thou wilt do no iustice. The <sup>b</sup>Poet could say, -- Pacem te poscimus omnes. Interroga (saith <sup>c</sup> Augustine) omnes homines, vultis pacem, vno ore responderet totum genus hominum, opto, cupio, volo, amo. Well then, if thou desire peace, doe iustice; for peace saith, I am a friend only to such as loue my friend. <sup>d</sup> What man is he that lusteth to liue, and would faine see good dayes? keepe thy tongue from euill, and thy lips that they speake no guile; eschew euill, and do good; seeke peace and ensue it. Nay thou neede not seeke it, for it will of it selfe come to kisse her sister Righteousnesse. <sup>e</sup> If men haue truth and righteousnesse, God will afford mercy and peace. So the Prophet expressly, Keepe innocencie, and take heed vnto the thing that is right, and that shall bring a man peace at the last, Psal. 37. 28. At the first haply thou maist haue warre with the vngodly men of this world, (for <sup>f</sup> do well, and heare ill, is written on heauens doore) but hereafter, at the last assuredly thou shalt haue peace to thy soule, <sup>g</sup> Or righteousnesse and peace meet in euery true beleeuer, because being iustified by faith, we haue peace toward God, through Iesus Christ our Lord, Rom. 5. 1.

3. Righteousnesse and peace meet in Christ, God and man: for by these two, <sup>h</sup> some Diuines vnderstand the Old Testament and the New. The Law doth exact iustice, requiring of a malefactor <sup>i</sup> eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot: but the Gospell is full of mercy and peace, saying vnto the sinner, who truly repenteth him of his sins, and vntainedly beleeueth the word of promise, <sup>k</sup> Son, be of good comfort, thy sinnes are forgiven thee. Daughter, be of good cheere, thy faith hath made thee whole. <sup>l</sup> Goe thy way, thy beleefe hath saued thee. <sup>m</sup> Behold, thou art now made whole, sinne no more. These two Testaments meet together in Christ, as in their proper center, they kissed each other on this day, because the Gospell performed what the Law promised.

<sup>n</sup> Or he shewed truth in his words, and mercy in his workes. <sup>o</sup> He deliuered the will of God vnto men, and his word is truth. He made the <sup>p</sup> blind to see, the lame

<sup>a</sup> Pro 12. 10.

<sup>p</sup> Habacuc 2. 2.
<sup>q</sup> Bernard. serm. col. vltimum in-grat.

<sup>r</sup> Fox Martyr, fol 1476.

<sup>s</sup> Rom. 8. 28.

<sup>t</sup> Ezech 18. 20.

<sup>u</sup> Ser. 7. de annus. Dom.

<sup>x</sup> 1. Tim 2. 6.

<sup>y</sup> In loc.
<sup>z</sup> Gen 16. 12.

<sup>a</sup> Rom 12. 18.

<sup>b</sup> Virgil.
<sup>c</sup> Vbi sup.

<sup>d</sup> Psal 34. 12.

<sup>e</sup> Basilus.
Agellius.
<sup>f</sup> Bradford apud
Fox Martyr. fol.
1491.

<sup>g</sup> Tileman.

<sup>h</sup> Tremellius.

<sup>i</sup> D. Incognitus
in loc.

<sup>k</sup> Excd. 21. 24.

<sup>l</sup> Mat 9. 22.

<sup>m</sup> Marke 10. 52.

<sup>n</sup> Iohn 5. 14.

<sup>o</sup> Euthym.

<sup>p</sup> Ioh. 17. 6. 17.

<sup>q</sup> Matth. 11. 5.

lame to goe, the deafe to heare, he cleansed the leapers, he cured the sicke, he raised vp the dead: and these without question are workes of mercie.

Or by these two vertues vnderstand 9 Christs two natures, his diuine nature by mercie, hauing <sup>r</sup> power to forgiue sinnes, and to heale <sup>s</sup> all manner of sicknesse: by truth his humane nature, 1. For that he had true flesh, and not (as Heretikes imagined) a phantasticall bodie. 2. For that he was a man after Gods owne image, <sup>r</sup> created in righteousnesse and true holinesse, he was blamelesse and vndefiled, Heb. 7. 26. he knew no sinne, 1. Cor. 5. 21. he did no wickednesse, neither was any deceit in his mouth, Esay 53. 9. and so truth and mercie met together in the personall vnion of his two natures. And this exposition is more probable by the next verse: Truth shall flourish out of the earth, and righteousnesse hath looked downe from heauen. Christ is truth, as he <sup>u</sup> saith of himselfe, I am the way, the truth, &c. and Christ is our righteousnesse, 1. Cor. 1. 30. <sup>x</sup> Now Christ as man, and borne of the Virgin Mary, budded out of the earth: and as God, he looked downe from heauen. That men might be iustified by grace from heauen, it pleased him on this day to bud out of the earth, in the words of <sup>v</sup> S. Augustine, Vt iustitia proficeret de cælo, id est, vt iustificarentur homines diuina gratiâ, veritas nata est de Maria Virgine, vt possit pro illis iustificandis offerri sacrificium passionis, sacrificium crucis: & vnde offerret sacrificium pro peccatis nostris nisi moreretur? quomodo autem moreretur, nisi carnem indueret? & quomodo, carnem indueret, nisi veritas de terra crearetur?

<sup>z</sup> Otherwise, when righteousnesse, that is, Gods grace lookes downe from heauen, then truth among men flourisheth vpon earth. <sup>a</sup> Or before Christ, coming the whole world was full of vntruths, all the Gentiles adored false gods; and many Iewes worshipped the true God falsly. But the Sunne of righteousnesse appearing in our Horizon, <sup>b</sup> called vs out of darkenesse into marvellous light, teaching that onely <sup>c</sup> the Lord is God, and that an <sup>d</sup> Idoll is nothing, and so truth flourisheth out of the earth, and righteousnesse hath looked downe from heauen.

<sup>c</sup> Or, truth springs out of the earth, and righteousnesse lookes downe from heauen; when a sinner humbly confesseth his faults vnto God: according to that of <sup>f</sup> S. Iohn, If we say that we haue no sinne, we deceiue our selues, and truth is not in vs: if we acknowledge our sinnes, he is faithfull and iust to forgiue vs our sinnes, and to cleanse vs from all vnrighteousnesse.

<sup>g</sup> Or, the diuine iuslice manifested it selfe from heauen, in Christs springing out of the earth. For hereby we know the <sup>h</sup> wrath of God is revealed from heauen against all vngodlinesse and vnrighteousnes, because nothing could expiate the sins of men, but the death of Gods owne and only Sonne, he budded out of the earth, and was buffeted vpon the earth, and buried vnder the earth; and all this, and more than this he did suffer and doe for our redemption and rancome. <sup>i</sup> Quid illi pro malis meis quæ pertulit, quid pro bonis suis quæ contulit, referam? quid pro suscepta carne, quid pro alapis? quid pro flagellis? pro cruce, obitu, sepultura, rependans? esto, reddamus crucem pro cruce, funus pro funere, numquid poterimus reddere, quod ex ipso, & per ipsum, & in ipso habens omnia, &c. reddamus ergo amorem pro debito, charitatem pro munere, animam & affectum Domino impendamus, & colimus.

<sup>q</sup> Euthym.

<sup>r</sup> March 9. 6.

<sup>s</sup> March 8. 16.

<sup>t</sup> Ephes. 4. 24.

<sup>u</sup> Iohn 14. 6.

<sup>x</sup> Hieron.

Arnobius.

Agellius.

<sup>v</sup> In loc.

<sup>z</sup> Gerebrard.

<sup>a</sup> Placidus Parmen.

<sup>b</sup> 1. Pet. 2. 9.

<sup>c</sup> 1. Kin. 18. 39.

<sup>d</sup> 1. Cor. 8. 4.

<sup>e</sup> Augustine.

Tileman.

<sup>f</sup> 1. Epist. 18. 9.

<sup>g</sup> Bellarmine.

<sup>h</sup> Rom. 1. 18.

<sup>i</sup> Paulinus epist.

lib. 1. epist. 4.

PSALM. 89.

My song shall be alway of the louing kindnesse of the Lord, &c.

THis one short verse contains the summarie pith and <sup>k</sup> argument of the whole long Psalme; wherein obserue the Songs dittie, the louing kindnes and truth of the Lord, manifested vnto the whole world generally, to Dauids house (that is, the Church) especially. Singers dutie, magnifying the mercies of God alwaies, euen from one generation to another. And by all meanes; with his mouth, for that is expressed in this verse; with his minde, for that is implied in the next, I haue said, &c. <sup>l</sup> that is, beleueed it in my heart, and therefore spake it with my tongue, Psalm 116. 10. For out of the hearts abundance the mouth speaketh, Matth. 12. 34.

My song shall be alwayes of the louing kindnesse.] Or as other translations, I will sing the mercies of the Lord, his <sup>m</sup> manifold and sundry mercies: as if he should say, we haue tasted of more than of one, yea we haue felt all his mercies; I will therefore praise the same for euer. I will sing his mercy for creating this vniuerse, which is <sup>n</sup> Macrocosmus, a great world; and for making man, which is Microcosmus, a little world. 1. My song shall set forth his kindnesse, for that he gaue me being. 2. For adding to my being, life, which he denieth vnto stones. 3. To life, sense, which he denieth vnto plants. 4. To sense, speech, and vnderstanding, which he denieth vnto bruit beasts. I haue great cause to praise the Lord, for that I am a man; and yet greater, for that I am a sound man, hauing a due portion of wit, and a true proportion of limbs and lineaments, maimed neither in the powers of my soule, nor in the parts of my bodie. Some men are like the carued images of Pagans, and Papists, <sup>o</sup> hauing mouthes and speake not, eyes and see not, eares and heare not, feet and walke not, hands and handle not. I will therefore sing of thy mercies, O Lord, for giuing vnto me perfect limbes, and perfect vse thereof; eyes to see, tongue to speake, eares to heare, feet to walke. I doe not want so much as the left hand, or the little finger of that hand, or the least ioynt of that finger. Againe, some men are maimed in their mindes, as being either borne starke fooles (<sup>p</sup> heauy punishment!) or else for abusing their good wits in bad workes, are (by Gods secret and seuerer judgement) bereft of their intellectuals. Some, which haue heretofore worshipped Christ at Bethlem, and haue preached also Christ vnto the King and his Court, in Bethel, are now lunaticke, bound hand and foot in Bedlem. <sup>p</sup> In nature, the middle participates euer with his extremes, as the Spring, which is the middle betweene Winter and Summer, hath (as you know) part of the Winters cold, and part of the Summers heat; and the morning, which is the middle betweene night and day, hath a little darknesse of the night, and a little light of the day: so man is created by God, tanquam medius inter Angelum & brutum, a midling betweene an Angell and a brute; being a good deale better than a beast, and a little <sup>q</sup> lower than an Angell: hauing in respect of his bodie, some thing of a bruit, being sensuall and mortall; and in respect of his soule, some thing of an Angell, as being intellectuall and immortall. Now then, if the Spring haue not any heat of Summer, it is so cold as Winter; and if the morning haue no light of the Sunne, it is so darke as night: so man, if he want angelicall abilities of the soule, is little better than a beast, as <sup>r</sup> horse and mule without vnderstanding: for as <sup>s</sup> Synesius said, A wise man excels a foole, more than a foole doth excell a beast.

As God is principium effectuum in creatione: so refectiuum in redemptione. I am exceeding much bound vnto God for creating me when I was not; and for preferring me vnder his wings, euer since I was: yet I am more bound to his mercy for redeeming me, for blessing me with all spirituall blessings in heauenly things in Christ his Sonne, Ephes. 1. 3. for his electing of me, for his calling of me, for his iustifying of me, for his sanctifying of me. These graces are the <sup>t</sup> riches of his goodnesse and

<sup>k</sup> Bellarmin.

<sup>l</sup> Geneus gloss. Wilcox.

<sup>m</sup> Vatablus.

<sup>n</sup> Io. de Combis compend. thecol. 2. cap. 2.

<sup>o</sup> Psal. 135. 16.

<sup>p</sup> Fatus de mortificatione, cap. 2.

<sup>q</sup> Psalm. 8. 5.

<sup>r</sup> Psal. 32. 10.

<sup>s</sup> Oras de Diono.

<sup>t</sup> Ephes. 2. 4. & 3. 16.

<sup>a</sup> Bellarmin.
<sup>b</sup> Bernard ser. 2.
in specu. Dom.

<sup>v</sup> Hieron.
Turneremat.
<sup>c</sup> Augustin.

<sup>a</sup> Esay 55. 3.
<sup>b</sup> Acts 13. 34.

<sup>c</sup> August. de Ciuit. Dei, lib. 17
cap. 9. Idem
Euthym. et Tilman in loc.

<sup>d</sup> Rom 1. 3.
<sup>e</sup> Math. 1. 1.

<sup>f</sup> Psal 45. 7.
Heb 1. 8.

<sup>g</sup> Hoc admonet
vox intellectus in studio posita, Bellar. arcum.
huius Psalini.

<sup>b</sup> Bellarm. de Chry. 30. lib. 2.
cap. 2.

<sup>i</sup> Epiphani. her.
ref. 77.

<sup>k</sup> August. her.
ref. 13.

<sup>l</sup> Alphons. de heres. lib. 4.
fol. 70.

<sup>m</sup> Idem ibid.
fol. 73.

<sup>n</sup> Euthym.
Tilman
<sup>o</sup> Augustin.
Hieron.

<sup>p</sup> Alphons. de heresibus; lib. 1.
fol. 25.

<sup>q</sup> Parabola.
Caluin.

glorie, <sup>a</sup> misericordie in eternum, euerlasting mercies, as reaching from <sup>x</sup> euerlasting predestination, to euerlasting glorification. O Lord, I will alway sing thy mercies in promising, and euer shew thy truth in performing thy promise made to Dauid, thy chosen seruant, concerning thy Sonne, my Sauour, saying, thy seed will I establish for euer. So the <sup>v</sup> Fathers expound our text, I will euer sing thy mercies, in vouchsafing to send thy Sonne to visit thy seruants, sicke to death in sinne, First, I will euer sing of thy mercifulnesse: and then I will euer be shewing thy faithfulnessse. <sup>a</sup> Neque enim exhiberetur veritas in impletione promissorum, nisi pracederet misericordia in remissione peccatorum. And what is Gods mercie set up for euer, and his truth established in the heauens? but that which <sup>a</sup> Esay termes the sure mercies of Dauid: that is, as <sup>b</sup> Paul construeth Esay, the holy promises made to Dauid: and the promise made to Dauid, is briefly this, thy seed will I establish for euer, and set up thy throne from generation to generation. For the Prophet Ethan here doth <sup>c</sup> allude to the Prophet Nathan, 2 Sam. 7. I will (saith he from the Lord vnto Dauid) set up thy seed after thee, and I will establish the throne of his kingdome for euer. Now this holy promise was not fulfilled in the temporall kingdome of Dauid, as Gods people complaine in this Psalme from the 37. to the 45. verse. It is therefore to be construed of Christ, and his spirituall kingdome. Christ, according to the flesh, is the <sup>d</sup> seed of Dauid, and the <sup>e</sup> founte of Dauid: of him it is true which is said here by the Lord, My couenant will I not breake, nor alter the thing that is gone out of my lips; I haue sworne once by my holinesse, that I will not faile Dauid. His seed shall endure for euer, and his seat is like as the Sunne before me. He shall stand fast for euer more as the Moone, and as the faithfull witnesse in heauen. Of him it is true, <sup>f</sup> thy throne is for euer and euer. Of him it is true, heauen and earth shall perish, and wax old as doth a garment, and as a vesture thou shalt fold them vp, and they shall be changed: but thou art the same, and thy yeeres shall not faile, Psal. 102. 27. Heb. 1. 12. Thou sweet Iesus art a Priest for euer, and a Prince for euer. And surely God would haue Dauids earthly kingdome to determine in Iehoiachim and Zedechia, that his people might <sup>g</sup> vnderstand the holy couenant made with Dauid of Christ, and that they might pray, Lord, where are thy old loving kindnesse, which thou swarest vnto Dauid in thy truth? See S. August. de ciuit. Dei, lib. 17. cap. 9, 10, 11, 12, 13.

Now the Prophet, in processe of his hymne, describes the natures and vertues of Christ, as well inherent in his owne person, as infused into his people.

His Humane nature, because the seed of Dauid, a perfect man in soule and bodie, against <sup>h</sup> Eutycheans, <sup>i</sup> Apollinarists, <sup>k</sup> Valentiniens, <sup>l</sup> Nestorians, <sup>m</sup> Monothelites, &c.

His Diuine nature: First, for that the Church inuocates him as God, vers. 5. O Lord, the very heauens shall praise thy wondrous workes, and thy truth in the congregation of the Saints. By heauen, is meant the <sup>n</sup> Church, and the <sup>o</sup> Preachers of Christ in the Church.

Secondly, Ethan proues Christ to be God by comparison, in the 6, 7, 8, 9 verses, Who is he among the clouds that shall be compared vnto the Lord; or what is he among the gods, that shall be like vnto him? as if he should say, there is neither Monarch on earth, nor Angell in heauen his peere.

Thirdly, from the preferuation of all things, vers. 10, 11. Thou rulest the raging of the sea, thou rulest the waues thereof when they arise, &c.

Fourthly, for that he created the world, vers. 12, 13, 14. The heauens are thine, the earth also is thine, thou hast laid the foundation of the round world &c.

Having thus expressed his natures, & shewed him to be verus homo, verusq; Deus, tamen vnus vterq;. He begins in the 15. verse, to sing of his vertues, as well in his own person, as people. For himself, righteousnes & equity is the habitation of thy fear, mercy & truth shall goe before thy face. For his people, blessed are they that can reioyce in thee, they shall walke in the light of thy countenance, their delight shall be daily in thy name, &c. These things afford manifold instructions, according to the prefixed title, a Psalme for instruction of Ethan the Ezrariite. But the point aimed at most, is vndoubtedly, that in al our tentations, and tempests of conscience, we should flie to the sure mercies mercies, and holy promises of God in Christ. If once we stay our soules on this anchor-hold, we shall escape shipwracke of faith. Ethan, who was either penner, or singer of this hymne, is by <sup>r</sup> interpretation robustus, one which is strong: now no man is strong in this world, but he who relieth vpon the sure promises of God. The consideration of our owne merits, is able to make vs faint and feeble: but our trust in the Lords euermlasting mercies, maketh vs like mount Sion, which cannot be remoued, but abideth fast and firme for euer, Psal. 125. 1. And therefore <sup>f</sup> some Diuines haue construed this Scripture, by that Ierem 9. 23. Thus saith the Lord, let not the wise man glory in his wisdom, nor the strong man glory in his strength, neither the rich man glory in his riches: but let him that glorieth, glory in this, that he understands and knowes me to be the Lord, which shew mercy, iudgement, and righteousnesse.

And as the Fathers vnder and before the law, comforted themselves in all afflictions and misery, with the consideration of Christs first comming: so let vs in the middest of our tentations and troubles, be stedfast and immouable, because we look for his second comming. He deferred his first comming a great while, yet in the <sup>t</sup> fullnesse of time he dealt with his seruants <sup>u</sup> according to his word. So the Saints expecting his second comming, cry with a loud voice, <sup>* How long Lord, holy and true, dost thou iudge and auenge our blood on them that dwell on earth?</sup> And mockers in the last dayes also say, <sup>y</sup> Where is the promise of his comming? for since the Fathers died, all things continue as they were from the beginning of the Creation. And yet the Lord (saith S. Peter) is not slacke concerning his promise, (as some men count slacknesse) but is patient toward vs, and would haue all men come to repentance. <sup>z</sup> Yet a very little while, and he that shall come, will come, and will not tarry. Behold (saith he who neuer vttered vnto truth) <sup>a</sup> I come shortly, and my reward is with me, to giue euery man according as his workes are. The life present is so full of diseases and disasters, that our happinesse is <sup>b</sup> hid with Christ in God; but when he which is our life shall appeare, then we shall also appeare with him in glory, for he shall <sup>c</sup> change our vile bodie, that it may be like his glorious bodie: <sup>d</sup> Non euacuabitur veritas corporis, sed non erit pondus & fragilitas corruptionis. Wherefore let vs alway be rich in the worke of the Lord, for as much as we know, that our labour is not in vaine in the Lord, 1 Cor. 15. 58.

Hitherto concerning the dittie of the song: I come now to the dutie of the singer: I will alway sing thy mercies with my mouth, I will euer be shewing thy truth from one generation to another. I know <sup>e</sup> some toyne in eternum to the nounce miseri cordias, and not to the verbe cantabo, making the sense to be this: I will alway sing thy mercies which endure for euer. But alwayes is referred as well, if not better, vnto the verbe, I will sing: as who would say, Lord, thy mercies are so manifest, and so manifold, so great in their number, and so good in their nature, that I will alway, <sup>f</sup> long as I haue any being, sing praises vnto thee. Haply some will obiect, All flesh is grasse, and the grace thereof as the flower of the field: the grasse withereth, and the flower fadeth away. David being persecuted by Saul, said, <sup>g</sup> there is but a step betweene death and me. Nay, David, thy life is shorter than a stride, but a span long, as thy selfe witnesseth, Psalm. 39. 6. How can he then that begs his bread but for a day, promise to spend his breath in magnifying the Lord for euer? Answer is made, that the Prophet will not onely commend the mercies of the Lord in word, but also commit them vnto writing.

<sup>h</sup> Vt sciat haec etas, posteritasq; legat.

As the tongue of the Prophet is termed <sup>i</sup> elsewhere, the pen of a ready writer: so the writing of the Prophet is here termed his mouth, as Euthymius vpon the place, Liber Psalmorum <sup>o</sup> os David. <sup>k</sup> He doth intend to note the mercies of God, and to set forth his truth in a book, the which he will leaue behinde him (as an instrument) to conuey the same from generation to generation, from the generation of <sup>l</sup> Iewes to the generation of Christians. <sup>m</sup> Or from the old Testament to the new: for the blessed Apostles in their Sermons vsually cite sentences out of the Psalmes. <sup>n</sup> S. Peter telleth vs, that the Gospel was preached vnto the dead; so may we say, that the Gospel is preached by the dead. For the most ancient Fathers, and other iudicious authers,

<sup>c</sup> Augustin.

<sup>f</sup> Galat de arcan. lib. 6. cap. 12.

<sup>e</sup> Galat. 4. 4.

<sup>u</sup> Luke 2. 29.

<sup>z</sup> Apoc. 6. 10.

<sup>y</sup> 2 Pet. 3. 4.

<sup>z</sup> Heb. 10. 37.

<sup>a</sup> Apoc. 22. 12.

<sup>b</sup> Coloss. 3. 4.

<sup>c</sup> Philip. 3. 21.

<sup>d</sup> Martialis ad Eurdegal. epist. 8.

<sup>e</sup> Bellarmino.

<sup>f</sup> Psal. 146. 1.

<sup>g</sup> 1 Sam. 20. 3.

<sup>b</sup> Eobanus

<sup>u</sup> Psal.

<sup>i</sup> Psal. 45. 2.

* Acts. 4. 25.

<sup>k</sup> Wlcox.

<sup>l</sup> Euthym.

In cognit.

Turrover. at.

<sup>m</sup> Hieron.

<sup>n</sup> 2 Pet. 4. 6.

which haue spent their dayes in writing learned expositions and godly meditations vpon the holy Scriptures, although they be dead, and sleepe in the bed of their graue, yet they sing alway the mercies of the Lord, and shew the truth of his word from one generation vnto another. It is reported in our <sup>o</sup> Chronicles of Athelstan: Parum etati vixit, multum glorie. So many zealous and industrious Doctors haue liued (in respect of their age) but a little, yet in respect of their acts, a great while, shining still in their works and writings, as lights of the world.

Or the Prophet may be said, to sing euer intentionally, though not actually. <sup>p</sup> For as the wicked, if he could liue alway, would sinne alway: so the good man (if God should suffer him alway to breathe on earth) would sing alway the mercies of the Lord. He will in <sup>q</sup> all things giue thanks vnto God, <sup>r</sup> carely telling of his louing kindnesse in the morning, and of his truth in the right season. In the morning, <sup>t</sup> that is, in a prosperous estate, when as the Sunne shineth vpon him, he will acknowledge that euery good gift in him is from aboue, conning downe from the Father of lights and Father of mercies. And in the darke night of aduersitie he telleth of Gods iustice, confessing ingenuously, <sup>v</sup> We receiue things worthise of that we haue done. He giueth thanks vnto the Lord in both, in the one highly magnifying Gods fauour; in the other humbly vilifying his own fault.

<sup>u</sup> Or because God hath inspired into man, not only the breath of <sup>x</sup> this present life, but of <sup>y</sup> that also which is to come; the Saints are said to continue their song of Gods praise in the kingdome of glory, which here they beginne in the kingdome of grace. For so the Spirit, Apocal. 19. 1. I heard a great voice of a great multitude in heauen, singing Halleluiah, saluation, and glorie, and honour, and peace be to the Lord our God.

It is obiected, if the Saints in heauen alway sing the mercies of the Lord, then they remember their miseries on earth; and if they remember their sin and sorrow here, how can they be perfectly blessed there? for the Lord saith, <sup>z</sup> I will create new beaueus, and a new earth, and the former shall not be remembered, nor come into mind. <sup>a</sup> Answer is made, that as men in perfect health often remember their terrible fits of their former sicknesse, with exceeding ioy: yea the more they call into miude their danger past, the greater is their delight present: euen so the Saints, in the kingdome of glory, remember haply their misdeeds and mishaps in this valley of teares, but it is without any pollution of sin, or touch of sorrow. So <sup>b</sup> Gregorie the Great, Erit in illa beatitudine culpa memoria, non qua mentem poluat, sed qua nos arctius leticia astringat; vt dum doloris sui animus sine dolore reminiscitur, & debitorem se medico versus intelligat, & eò magis acceptam salutem diligit, quò molestie meminit quam euasit.

<sup>c</sup> Heauenly happinesse consisteth in two things, in the necessarie possessing of euery thing which is good, and in the necessarie remouing of euery thing which is euill. Miserie then is not remembered of the Saints, as a matter of griefe, but as a motiue to ioy, because they be now <sup>d</sup> deliuered from this body of death, and enjoy the Crowne of euerlasting life; where God is to them <sup>e</sup> all in all, a glasse to their sight, honey to their taste, musicke to their hearing, Balsome to their smelling: where <sup>f</sup> Salomons wisdome seemes folly; <sup>g</sup> Ahasels agilitie, slownesse; Samsons strength, weaknesse; <sup>h</sup> Absaloms comelinesse, deformitie; Cesars Empire, beggerie; Methusalems long life, shortnesse of dayes, or a speedie death. Thus I haue shewed how the Prophet may be said to sing alwayes the mercies of the Lord, in this life vnto the worlds end, in the next for euer and euer world without end.

As for all meanes: he praises the Lord with his mouth, and all that is without him; as also with his miude, and all that is within him. His <sup>i</sup> heart indites a good matter, and his tongue is the pen of a readie writer. All his members are for the seruice of his Maker, as <sup>k</sup> S. Augustine glosseth our text, Obsequantur membra (inquit) mea, Domino meo loquor, sed tua loquor, annunciaro veritatem tuam in ore meo. Si non obsequor. seruus non sum: si à me loquor, mendax sum. Ergo vt abs te dicam, & ego dicam, duo quedam sunt, vnum tuum, vnum meum: veritas tua, os meum.

Now let vs according to this copie, draw the lines of our liues, vsing all meanes to set forth the the louing kindnesse and truth of the Lord. <sup>l</sup> O giue thanks vnto the Lord, o Malmesbur. de gestis Reg. Anglorum, lib. 2. cap. 6.

p Io. de Combis comp. Theolog. lib. 7. cap. 21.

q 1 Thess. 5. 28

r Psal. 2. 2.

s D<sup>s</sup>. Incognit.

Turcremat. Glossa.

t Luk. 23. 41.

u Placidus.

Incognitus.

x Gen. 2. 7.

y Iohn. 3. 16.

z Apoc. 2. 10.

a Esay 65. 17.

b Gregor. Moral. lib. 4. cap. 42.

c Ps sup. Idem Augustini. lib. 22. de Ciuit. Dei, cap. ult.

d August. apud Io. de Combis comp. Theolog. lib. 7. cap. ult.

e Rom. 7. 24.

f 1 Cor. 15. 28.

g 1 King. 3. 12.

h 2 Sam. 2. 18.

i 3 Sam. 14. 25.

j Psal. 45. 1.

k In loc.

l Psal. 105. 1.

Lord, and call upon his name, tell the people what things he hath done. O let your songs be of him, and praise him, and let your talking be of his wondrous works: O my soule praise the Lord, and all that is within me praise his holy name; praise the Lord, o my soule, and forget not all his benefits, who forgiveth all thy finnes, and healeth all thine infirmities; who saveth thy life from destruction, and crowneth thee with loving kindnesse, Psal. 103. A good Christian is a tymbrell of the Holy Ghost, his whole life being nothing else but a well-tuned song of Zion, alway magnifying the mercies of God in his owne person, and inuited other to do the same. But the <sup>m</sup> mouth of the wicked is full of cursing and bitterness, their throat is an open sepulchre, destruction and unhappinesse is in their wayes. A man of a foule mouth is a beast in the forme of a man, his tongue is the tongue of a <sup>n</sup> Serpent, Adders poyson is vnder his lips; nay worse than a Serpent, for it hurts not a man except he be present to see him, or to bite him, or to strike him with his taile: but he which hath a blasphemous and a bitter tongue, hurteth all, as well absent as present; neither sea nor land, neither scepter nor sepulchre, neither heauen nor hell hindereth him; he blasphemeth God, wrongs his neighbour, he raileth on the dead, and rageth against the living, his tongue is the tongue of a Fiend, of a Furie. For as the holy Prophets of God, when they preached, had their tongues (as it were) touched with a <sup>o</sup> coale from the altar of God; and as godly men haue their tongues inflamed with the <sup>p</sup> fire of Gods Spirit, when as they speake graciously: so contrariwise, when a man speaketh euill, his tongue (saith <sup>9</sup> S. Iames) is kindled by the fire of hell, and Satan comes from thence with a coale to touch his lips, and to set them on fire to all manner of mischief. When as good men speake good things, their tongue is <sup>r</sup> Christs tongue; but all manner of cursed and vngodly speaking, is no better than the Devils language. Thinke on this all ye that forget God, whose mouthes are so farre from singing his mercies alway, that ye can hardly come in your communication to any full period, without interlacing an oath or two. It is no wonder, that in Italy (which is a parcell of Antichrists kingdome) blasphemies should be darted out against God and his Christ ordinarily, openly, being made <sup>s</sup> phrases of gallantrie to the brauer, and verie interiections of speech vnto the vulgar. But in England (where the scepter of Christs kingdome hath a long time flourished) it cannot but wound the hearts of such as mourne for the finnes of the land, to consider how commonly, not only the ruffian at the tauerne, and the rascall on the stage: but also the Labourer at his worke, and the Gentleman at his recreation, and the very boyes, yea babes in the street curse their Maker, and renile their Redeemer. Other finnes are clothed (in some sort) with excuse before men, in respect either of profit, or pleasure, content, or credit: but in swearing there is neither good, nor gaine, nor glorie. I beseech you therefore (my deare bowels in the Lord) instruct your children and seruants, how to serue God in a liuely faith, and a reuerend feare, let your whole life be to them a walking Catechisme, that they may sing alway the mercies of the Lord, and shew forth his truth from generation to generation.

<sup>m</sup> Psal. 14. 6.

<sup>n</sup> Psal. 140. 3.

<sup>o</sup> Esay 6. 6.

<sup>p</sup> Matth. 3. 11.

Acts 2. 3.

<sup>9</sup> Chap. 3. 6.

<sup>r</sup> Chrysof. hom. 99. in Matth.

<sup>s</sup> Relation of Religion, sect. 53.

PSALME 110.

The Lord said vnto my Lord, sit thou on my right hand, untill I make thine enemies thy footstoele.

THis Psalme (saith <sup>r</sup> Augustine) is in the number of words short, but in the weight of matter ample, containing so many deepe mysteries, and opposing so many dangerous heresies; that (as <sup>n</sup> Chrysofome notes) we need many eyes for the right reading and exact vnderstanding of it.

If we literally referre this vnto David, he bringeth in a subiect or a fauourite speaking thus of himselfe, The Lord said vnto my Lord the King. David as a King is a Lord, because the Lieutenant, and (as it were) Vice-gerent of the Lord. In this sense Paul telleth vs, that there be many Gods and many Lords, 1 Cor. 8. 5. many Gods in title and type, but in deed and truth one God only. Princes are Gods in name: for (saith the Lord) * I haue said, yee are Gods: but not in nature, for yee shall die like men. All higher powers hold their Scepters from the 1 highest power, 2 he putteth downe one, and setteth vp another, according to the stile, Iames by the grace of God, &c. 2 More principally Dauid, who was called to his kingdome by Gods especiall grace, and vsed his kingdome to Gods especiall glory. For he was a man according to Gods b own heart, turning from nothing the Lord commanded him all the daies of his life, saue only in the matter of Vriah the Hittite, 1 King. 15. 5.

<sup>c</sup> In loc.

Breuis numero verborum, sed magis ponere sententiarum.

<sup>n</sup> In loc.

And surely (Beloued) if we will in sensu similitudinario, consider earnestly the wonderfull vnion of these two kingdomes, England and Scotland, and the flourishing estate of the Gospell, vnder the government of our dread Soueraigne: we shall haue good cause to take vp this song, The Lord said vnto King Iames our Lord, sit in thy throne, for I haue both appointed and anointed thee King our Great Britannie.

c Or haply Dauid might speake this of himselfe, The Lord said vnto me, concerning my Lord Saul persecuting me, sit thee downe by the power of my right hand, and be well assured of my protection, vntill I haue made all thine enemies thy footstool: that is, all such as hindred thee from thy kingdome, obedient subiects vnto thee, saying, d Behold, we are thy bones and thy flesh. So the Lord spake by the Prophet Nathan, 2 Sam. 12. 7. I anointed thee King ouer Israel, and deliuered thee out of the hand of Saul, and gaue thee thy Lords house, and thy Lords wiues into thy bosome, and gaue thee the house of Israel and Iudah, and would moreover (if that had beene too little) haue giuen thee such and such things, &c.

But because S. Peter, Acts 2. 34. and S. Paul, Heb. 1. 13. expound this text of Christ, and Christ himselfe applieth it vnto himselfe, Matth. 22. 44. Mark. 12. 36. Luk. 20. 42. I forbear to treat any longer of shadowes, and come to the substance, taking this Psalm for a prophesie concerning Christ in fact, and Dauid only but in figure.

c Genebrard.
Christ then is described here, } 1. c As a King, vers. 1, 2, 3.
2. As a Priest, vers. 4, 5.
3. As a Iudge, vers. 6, 7.

His kingdome is great in respect of } Countenance, The Lord said vnto my Lord, sit thou on my right hand.
Continuance, Vntill I make thine enemies thy footstool, &c.

f Tremellius.
Or, f three points are remarkable concerning his kingdome; } 1. His calling to this kingdome by God the Father, vers. 1.
2. His administration of this kingdome by the scepter of his word, vers. 2.
3. His subiects obedience to this administration, vers. 3.

g Some Doctors among the Iewes haue construed this of Dauids Angell, appointed by the Lord for his peculiar guard and guide. But I say to them out of h S. Paul, Vnto which of the Angels said the Lord at any time, sit at my right hand, vntill I make thine enemies thy footstool? i Other Rabbins expound this of Abraham, as making it a thanksgiuing vnto the Lord, for the victorie which he got against the foure Kings, Gen. 14. Other vnderstand this of k Ezechiah: other of Zorobabel. But all these holy Fathers are dead, and haue slept long in the dust of their graue: whereas the Lord (here mentioned) is a Priest for ever, and hath a kingdome m without end. And so consequently, this Psalm cannot aptly be construed either of man, or Angell, or of any other meere creature; but of Christ alone the Messias and Mediator, being the sonne of Dauid as man, and the Lord of Dauid as God. Non dixit Dauid, Dominus Domini mei; sed Dominus Domino meo. Chrysostr. ser. de Trinitate.

The Iewes vnderstood not this, and therefore they could not answer Christs question, Matth. 22. 45. If Dauid call him Lord, how is he then his sonne? neither should we haue learned this, except Christ and his Apostles had taught it vs. Nunc ergo,

faith

* Psal. 72. 6.
7 Prou. 8. 15.
2 Psal. 75. 8.
a Calvin. in loc.

b Acts 13. 22.

c Dr. Incognit. in loc.

d 2. Sam. 5. 1.

c Genebrard.

f Tremellius.

g Apud Pet. Galatin. de arcanis lib. 8. cap. 24.

h Heb. 1. 13.

i Apud Hieron.

in Matth. 22. &

D. Incognit. &

Agellium in loc.

k Iustin Martyr.

in dialog. contra

Triphonum, &

Tertullian. lib. 5.

contra Marcian.

l Vii Chrysostr.

in loc.

m Heb. 1. 8.

saith <sup>a</sup> Augustine, quia didicimus, dicimus; as we haue read, so we beleue, that Christ, as being <sup>o</sup> equall to God, is the Lord of Dauid: and as found in the forme of a seruant, the sonne of Dauid. As <sup>p</sup> in the beginning, the Lord of Dauid: as made flesh, the sonne of Dauid; as <sup>q</sup> conceived and borne of a Virgin, the sonne of Dauid: as Emmanuel, the Lord of Dauid. See Hierom. in Matth. 22. Pet. Galatin. de arcanis lib. 3. cap. 17. & lib. 8. cap. 24. Chrysoſtom. D. Incognit. August, Steuchius, Caluin, Tileman, Agellius, Bellarmine, & alios in loc.

The Lord said then vnto my Lord, is (as <sup>r</sup> if he should haue said) God the Father said vnto God the Son. And therefor <sup>t</sup> Rabbi Ionathas translateth it in the Chaldee, dixit dominus verbo suo, the Lord said to his Word. Here then obserue <sup>u</sup> the distinction of persons in the Godhead against <sup>v</sup> Artemon, Sabellius, and Seruetus. The Father said vnto the Sonne, ergo, the Father is distinguished from the Sonne, <sup>x</sup> alius, howsoeuer not aliud, another person, albeit not another substance: for as the Father is Lord, so the Sonne Lord, and the holy Ghost Lord; and yet not three Lords, but one Lord, as Athanasius in his Creed.

The Lord said] But how, when, and where? the words of our mouthes are first (as the <sup>y</sup> Philosopher truly) notions of our minde. So God hath a twofold word, <sup>z</sup> ad intra, conceived within himselfe, and ad extra, reuealed vnto men. According to both he said this, <sup>o</sup> Immensa sapientia decretum fecit, & id generi humano patefecit. First, according to his intrinfecall word, he said it before the worlds; as it is in the second Psalme, verse 7. The Lord said vnto me, thou art my sonne, this day haue I begotten thee. Secondly, according to his extrinfecal and reuealed word, he said it in the world; <sup>b</sup> to wit, in the beginning, Gen. 3. 15. the seed of the woman, &c. I (said the Lord vnto the serpent) will put enmitie betweene thee and the woman, and betweene thy seed, and her seed: he shall breake thine head, and thou shalt bruise his heele. Christ is that promised seed of the woman, as being <sup>c</sup> made of the seed of Dauid, according to the flesh; he shall breake the Serpents head, is all one with our text, fit thou on my right hand, vntill I haue made all thine enemies thy footstoole.

My] Not onely, because to be borne of my seed and posteritie; <sup>d</sup> but mine, in regard of mine affection, and particular application. As his mother Mary called him, my Sauiour; and his Apostle Thomas, my God; and Paul, Galath. 2. 20. Christ loued me, and gaue himselfe for me.

Lord] Saint <sup>e</sup> Hierome, and <sup>f</sup> other learned (in the Hebrew) note, that in the first place, the word translated here Lord, is proper only to God; but in the second, communicable to men. And so Christ according to his manhood, began to sit at the right hand of God after his ascension into heauen, and not before. Christ (as the Sonne of God) was euer at Gods right hand, equall in might and maiestie: for in the Trinitie none is afore or after other, none is greater or lesse than another, but all the three persons are coeternall, and coequall. As the Sonne is said in this verse, to fit at the right hand of the Father: so the Father on the Sonnes right hand, verse 5. The Lord upon thy right hand shall wound euen Kings in the day of his wrath. But Christ as man, was not exalted vnto this honour before his glorious ascension, as Saint Peter expoundeth our text, Acts 2. 34. Dauid is not ascended vp into heauen. but the Lord said vnto my Lord, fit thou at my right hand, vntill I make thine enemies thy footstoole. Therefore let all the house of Israel know for a surety, that God hath made him both Lord and Christ; this Iesus (I meane) whom ye haue crucified. And Paul, Philip. 2. 8. He humbled himselfe, and became obedient vnto the death, euen the death of the Crosse; wherefore God hath highly exalted him. And in <sup>g</sup> another place, God raised him from the dead, and set him at his right hand in heauenly places.

Yet the Lord said not this vnto Christ, as vnto a meere man, <sup>h</sup> I am the Lord (quoth he) this is my name, and my glory will I not giue to another: but to Christ God and man, our Messias and Mediator, one person in two natures. As Christ is our Iesus and Emmanuel, he hath <sup>i</sup> all power in heauen, and on earth. <sup>k</sup> At the name of Iesus, euery knee shall bow, both of things in heauen, and things in earth, and things under the earth. <sup>l</sup> Angels and Saints in heauen; men on earth, and the deuils of hell

<sup>a</sup> In loc.
<sup>o</sup> Philip. 2. 6, 7.
<sup>p</sup> Ioh. 1. 1. 14.
<sup>q</sup> Esay 7. 14.

<sup>r</sup> Turrecremat. Tremellius. Genebrardus.
<sup>t</sup> Galatin. de arcanis lib. 8. cap. 24 & Steuchius in loc.
<sup>u</sup> Placid. Parmen.

<sup>v</sup> Tileman.
<sup>x</sup> August. de ciuit. Dei, lib. 11. cap. 10 & Lombard 1 sent. distict. 2.

<sup>y</sup> Aristotle. Perthermin. cap. 1.
<sup>z</sup> D. Incognit.
<sup>a</sup> Melanct. in loc.
<sup>b</sup> Tileman.

<sup>c</sup> Rom. 1. 3.

<sup>d</sup> Agellius.

<sup>e</sup> In loc.
<sup>f</sup> Apud Genebrard. in loc. Adonai. Adoni.

<sup>g</sup> Ephes. 1. 20.

<sup>h</sup> Esay 42. 8.
<sup>i</sup> Mat. 28. 18
<sup>k</sup> Philip 2. 10.
<sup>l</sup> Chrysoſt. Theophylact. Gorran in loc. Pauli.

under

<sup>m</sup> D<sup>r</sup>. Incognit.

<sup>n</sup> Euthym Placid. Parmen. in loc. Idem Aquin. in Philip. 2. lect. 3.

<sup>o</sup> August. in loc.

<sup>p</sup> Esay 45. 23.

<sup>q</sup> Gregor moral. lib. 8. cap 40. Chrysost. Incognit. Agustinus in loc.

<sup>r</sup> Hieron. Chrysost. Theophyl. Euthym.

<sup>s</sup> Marlorat. in 1 Cor. 15. 24. Mat. 11. 27. Iohn 3. 35. See Luther, Anselme, Lombard in 1 Cor 15 24. Philip. 3. 21

<sup>t</sup> Iohn 5. 19.

<sup>z</sup> Euthym.

<sup>a</sup> Bellarmin. in loc.

<sup>b</sup> Tileman. Cant. 6. 3.

<sup>d</sup> Loc. com. tit. de persecut. vtræ Eccles.

<sup>e</sup> Mat. 26. 47.

<sup>f</sup> Tileman.

under earth. Christ hath all power in heauen, <sup>m</sup> as hauing the godly subiect to him out of their deuotion: and all power on earth, as hauing the wicked made subiect to his footstoole, will they, nill they. For there is a <sup>n</sup> twofold subiection; one voluntary, another extorted. All glorious Angels, all blessed spirits, all good men of their owne accord yeeld obedience to Iesus fully, cheerefully: but the wicked men on earth, and the damned fiends in hell, in despite of their teeth, are blockes at his footstoole.

<sup>o</sup> Quære ergo, quem locum habeas sub pedibus Domini Dei tui, nam necesse est ut habeas, aut gratiæ, aut pœne: for as euery knee should bow, so euery knee shall bow, (saith <sup>p</sup> Esay) that knee, that will not out of faith, shall out of feare: so Dauid here, the Lord said vnto my Lord, sit at my right hand, vntill I make thine enemies thy footstoole.

Vntill] This word <sup>q</sup> notes here, not a peece of time, but a perpetuities. For Christ (after all his enemies are made his footstoole) shall euer sit at the right hand of God; his throne is for euer and euer, Heb. 1. 8. And power is vnto him that sitteth vpon the Throne for euermore, Apocal. 5. 13. So donec is vsed, Deut. 7. 23. The Lord thy God shall destroy them with a mightie destruction, vntill they be brought to nought: hereby meauing that they shall vterly be consumed, because they cannot any more resist, after once they be brought to nothing. And Psalm. 112. vers. 8. The good mans heart is established, and will not shrink, vntill he see his desire vpon his enemies. If his heart were not afraid for any euill tidings, when his enemies stood vp against him; how shall he shrink when he sees their necks giuen vnto him? And Mat. 1. 25. He knew her not, vntill she had brought forth her first borne sonne, &c. Vntill, in that place doth not import (as the <sup>r</sup> Doctors haue well obserued against Heluidius) that Ioseph afterward carnal'y knew Marie; for shee was a perpetuall Virgin, as well after, as before the birth of her sonne Iesus. See 2 Sam. 6. 23. Mat. 5. 18. and 28. 20.

It is objected against this interpretation out of S. Paul, 1 Cor. 15. 24. that Christ, after he hath put downe all things vnder his feet, shall in fine, deliuer vp the kingdome to God. Answer is made by Chrysostome, vpon our text out of Iohn 16. 15. All things that the Father hath, are mine. And Ioh. 17. 10. All mine are thine, and thine are mine. <sup>s</sup> As then God the Father was not without his kingdome, when as God the Sonne said, <sup>t</sup> all things are giuen vnto me of my Father: no more shall God the Sonne be dethroned, when he shall deliuer vp his kingdome to his Father. <sup>u</sup> He now raignes in secret, but when all his enemies once shall be made his footstoole, then he shall openly rule, much more, sitting at his Fathers right hand for euermore.

I make] Christ is <sup>x</sup> able to subdue all things vnto himselfe, and according to his power he shall also put all things vnder his feet, 1 Cor. 15. 27. How then is it true that God the Father saith, vntill I make thine enemies thy footstoole? Answer is made, that <sup>y</sup> whatsoeuer things the Father doth, the same things also doth the Sonne: <sup>z</sup> for this action is common to the Sonne with the Father, I say, common to the Sonne, <sup>a</sup> in respect of his eternall generation, as God, and in respect of the hypostaticall vnion as man. Yet this worke is ascribed especially to the Father, as being a work of might; according to that Orthodoxall axiome, Works of power are ascribed to the Father; of wisdom, to the Sonne; of loue, to the Holy Ghost.

Thine enemies] <sup>b</sup> Here note, that the Church is not a kingdome liuing alwayes in pompe, and peace; but (as <sup>c</sup> Salomon speakes) as an armie with banners, exposed to great danger, as being opposed by cruell and cunning enemies. If any man will take the Churches portraiture, let him (saith <sup>d</sup> Luther) paint a sillie poore maid sitting in a forlorne wood, or wilder nesse, compassed about on euery side with hungry Lions, Wolues, Boares, Beares; in one word, with all hatefull and hurtfull beasts, and in the middest of a great many furious men, assaulting her euery minute (as they did here Christ) with <sup>e</sup> swords and staues; and that which is more terrible, threatening fire and water; fire, to consume her flesh and bones into ashes; water, to consume her ashes into nothing, if it were possible.

To speake more distinctly, Christ and his Church haue <sup>f</sup> two sorts of enemies; secular, and spirituall. Secular, as idolatrous Gentiles, blasphemous Turkes, and other other barbarous Infidels out of the Church : as also violent Tyrants, virulent Heretikes, fraudulent Antichrists in the bosome of the Church. For (as <sup>s</sup> Luther notes out of Augustine) the Church hath had a threefold oppression. The first violent, by persecuting Emperors : the second fraudulent, by subtle heretikes : the third both violent, and fraudulent, by pestilent Antichrists in the kingdome of Poperie ; where the temporall power, and spirituall are ioyned together, against all that is called God.

Now Christ is a ruler in the midst of all these : <sup>b</sup> the Lord is King, be the people neuer to impatient ; he sits betweene the Cherubims, be the earth neuer so vnquiet. How soeuer the <sup>i</sup> Gentiles furiously rage together, and vngodly Princes take counsell together, against his anointed : he that dwelleth in heauen shall laugh them to scorne, he shall haue them in derision ; he shall bruise them with a rod of iron, and breake them in peeces like a potters vessell. Albeit <sup>k</sup> foure wicked Angels stand on the foure corners of the earth, holding the foure windes, that the winde should not blow on the earth, neither on the sea, neither on any tree : yet <sup>l</sup> Christ hauing the seale of the liuing God, cries with a loud voice to the foure Angels, to whom power was giuen to hurt the earth and the sea : Hurt yee not the earth, neither the sea, neither the trees ; vntill we haue sealed the seruants of our God in their foreheads. He sits at Gods right hand, till his enemies are made his footstoole : <sup>m</sup> that is, vntill he say to Tyrants, and Hypocrites, and Heretikes, and Antichrists, and to the whole rabble of the reprobate, depart from me yee cursed into euertlasting fire, which is prepared for the deuill and his angels.

The spirituall enemies of Christ and his Church, are Satan and all his complices, sinne, torment of conscience, malediction of the law, death, hell ; ouer all which our blessed Saviour <sup>n</sup> triumphed openly. For in dying, he did ouercome death ; and in rising againe from the dead, he made the graue his footstoole, saying, O death, I will be thy death ; O graue, I will be thy destruction. Now (beloued) his conquest is our victorie ; for he did ouercome the world for vs, and the deuill for vs, and death for vs. He was wounded for our <sup>p</sup> transgressions, and broken for our iniquities ; his name is <sup>q</sup> the Lord our righteousnesse ; he therefore died for our sins, and rose againe for our iustification. He deliuered vs out of the hands of all our enemies, that we might serue him all the dayes of our life without feare. As for our sinnes, he saith, Esa. 43. 25, I, euen I am he, that putteth away thine iniquities for mine owne sake, and will not remember thy faults. <sup>r</sup> Albeit they were like crimson, they shall be made white as snow : though they were red as scarlet, they shall be like wooll : the blood of Iesus Christ cleanseth vs from all sinne, <sup>1</sup> Ioh. 1. 7. He redeemed vs from the curse of the Law, when he was made a curse for vs, Galath. 3. 13. He put out that hand-writing of ordinances against vs ; he cancelled that obligation, and tooke it out of the way, fastning it vpon his Crosse, Colost. 2. 14. Concerning torment of conscience, being iustified by faith, we haue peace toward God, through Iesus Christ our Lord, Rom. 5. 1.

Lattly, touching death and hell ; he <sup>s</sup> destroyes death for euer, and wipes away the teares from the faces of all his people, that they may triumph in the words of <sup>t</sup> Paul, O death where is thy sting ? O graue where is thy victorie ? the sting of death is sinne, and the strength of sinne is the Law : but thanks be to God, that hath giuen vs victorie through our Lord Iesus Christ. He that beleueth in the Lord Iesus, hath <sup>u</sup> eternall life ; neither shall he taste of the <sup>x</sup> second death. If God then be with vs, who can be against vs ? If the Lord haue said vnto my Lord, sit on my right hand, vntill I haue made thine enemies thy footstoole ; what need I feare what either man, or Angell, or deuill is able to doe against me ? My Iesus is a <sup>y</sup> refuge against the tempest, and a shadow against the heat, a <sup>z</sup> present helpe in my tribulation and trouble. <sup>a</sup> Who shall lay any thing to my charge, seeing it is God that iustifieth ? and who shall condemne, seeing Christ which is dead, yea rather which is risen againe, sitteth at the right hand of God, and maketh intercession for vs daily ? <sup>b</sup> He saith, I am with you till the end, and then he will say vnto vs in the end, Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit ye the kingdome prepared for you from the foundation of the world.

<sup>s</sup> Vbi sup.

<sup>b</sup> Psal 99. 1.

<sup>i</sup> Psal. 2.

<sup>k</sup> Apoc. 7. 1.

<sup>l</sup> See Epist. on All Saints day

<sup>m</sup> Vatablus in loc.

<sup>n</sup> Coloff. 2. 15.

<sup>o</sup> Hof. 13. 14.

<sup>p</sup> Esay 53. 5.

<sup>q</sup> Ierem. 23. 6.

<sup>r</sup> Esay 1. 18.

<sup>s</sup> Esay 35. 8.

<sup>t</sup> 1 Cor. 15. 55.

<sup>u</sup> Iohn 17. 3.

<sup>x</sup> Apocal. 20. 6.

<sup>y</sup> Esay 25. 4.

<sup>z</sup> Pfilm 46. 1.

<sup>a</sup> Rom. 8. 33.

<sup>b</sup> Mat. 28. 20.

<sup>c</sup> Plutarch in the life of Cesar.

<sup>d</sup> Caluina Turcis.
lib. 1 cap. 4.
<sup>e</sup> Vbertas Foli-eta. tract. de cau-sis magnitud. im-perij Turcorum <sup>f</sup> Augerius. Busbequius legat.
Turcic. epist. 1.
<sup>g</sup> Melancthon.
Tileman.
Vatablus.
Agellius.

<sup>h</sup> Cap. 2. vers. 3.
Cap. 4. vers. 2.

<sup>k</sup> Rom. 10. 18.

<sup>l</sup> Mark. 16. 15.

<sup>m</sup> 1 Theff. 2. 13

<sup>n</sup> 1 Cor. 2. 7.

<sup>o</sup> Ephes. 6. 17.

<sup>p</sup> Tileman in loc.

<sup>q</sup> Luk. 19. 44.

<sup>r</sup> Lament. 1. 1.

<sup>s</sup> Apocal. 20. 8.

<sup>t</sup> Matth. 11. 3.

<sup>u</sup> Agellius.
Bellarmin.

<sup>x</sup> Chrysoft.
Euthym.

<sup>y</sup> Lib. 1. cap. 2.
☉ 3.

The Lord shall send the rod of thy power out of Sion.] A <sup>c</sup> Captaine sent from Cesar, vnto the Senatours of Rome, to tuc for the prolonging of his government abroad; vnderstanding (as he stood at the Counsell chamber doore) that they would not condescend to his desire, clapping his hand vpon the pummell of his sword; Well (said he) seeing you will not grant it him, this shall giue it him. So when the Citizens of Messana, despising Pompeies iurisdiction, alleaged ancient orders, and priuileges of the Romans in old time granted vnto their Towne: Pompey did answer them in choller, (as Plutarch relates in his life) What doe you prattle to vs of your law, that haue our swords by our sides? So <sup>d</sup> Mahumet dissolucth all arguments by the sword; in <sup>e</sup> his kingdome no man is aduanced vnto places of any great worth or worship, but the Souldier; and the <sup>f</sup> left hand among the Turks is accounted most honourable, because the sword hangs on that side. So Tyrants and Potentates of the world, end all their quarrels, and make their enemies their footstoolle, by the sword. But the scepter of Christs kingdome is not a sword of steele, but a sword of the Spirit; heruleth in the midst of his enemies, and subdueth a people to himselfe, not by the sword, but by the <sup>g</sup> word: for the Gospell is the power of his arme to saluation, Rom. 1. 16. casting downe holds, and imaginations, and every high thing that is exalted against the knowledge of God, and bringing into captiuitie euery thought vnto the obedience of Christ, 2 Cor. 10. 5.

And the Lord is said here to send the rod of his power out of Sion, according to the prophecies of <sup>h</sup> Isaiab, and <sup>i</sup> Micah; the law shall goe forth of Sion, and the word of the Lord from Hierusalem. The blessed Apostles (as we read, Acts 2.) received the gifts of the holy Ghost at Hierusalem, and exercited also these gifts of vterance first in Hierusalem. It is true that their <sup>k</sup> sound went out thorow all the earth, and their words vnto the ends of the world; and that they did execute their commission in preaching vnto <sup>l</sup> euery creature: but yet according to their masters iniunction, Luke 24. 47. they began at Hierusalem. So Paul and Barnabas told the Jewes, Act. 13. 46. It was necessary that the word of God should first haue bene spoken vnto you: but seeing yee put it from you, and iudge your selues unworthy of cuerlasting life; lo we turne to the Gentiles. Here then is a pregnant text, to proue that the Gospell is not the word of <sup>m</sup> man, but the wisdom of <sup>n</sup> God, and <sup>o</sup> sword of his spirit; for that it is agreeable to the predictions of all his holy Prophets, cuer since the world began. Againe, <sup>p</sup> this cuidence confutes the Iewes, obstinately denying that the promised Meffias is come. His word commeth out of Sion, he must (according to this prophetic) begin his spirituall kingdome in Hierusalem, euen while the Iewes Commonwealth and religion is standing: for the scepter shall not depart from Iuda, nor a lawgiuer betweene his sect, vntill Shilo come, and the people shall be gathered vnto him, Genes. 49. 10. But alas, Hierusalem hath a long time bene made leuell with the <sup>q</sup> ground: <sup>r</sup> she that was great among the Nations, and Princesse among the Prouinces, is now made tributary. Barbarus has segetes-the Lord hath so darkned the daughter of Sion in his wrath, and cast downe from heauen vnto the earth Israels glory, Lam. 2. 1. that the barbarous <sup>s</sup> Gog and Magog are now lords of that (sometime) holy land; Hierusalem in old time the City of God, is now (being possessed by the Turkes) nothing else but a den of theenes. Ergo, Christ is that promised Meffias: it is he that should come, neither need we looke for another.

Be thou ruler in the midst among thine enemies] By <sup>u</sup> rod, is meant Christs scepter; because strong rods are for the scepters of them that beare rule, Ezech. 19. 11. and Ier. 48. 17. How is the strong staffe broken, and th beautifull rod? And by his scepter is meant his power; and the word is that his power, by which he rules in the midst of all his enemies: conuerting such enemies as appertaine to Gods election; and confounding such enemies as are the sonnes of perdition: his Gospell is vnto the one, the fauour of life vnto life; and to the other, the fauour of death vnto death, 2 Corinth. 2. 16.

The blessed Apostles preached the Gospell in the midst of their enemies, <sup>x</sup> as being sheepe in the midst of woolues, Mat. 10. 16. And <sup>y</sup> Irenaus, who lived in the next age, witnesseth also that the Church increased in Egypt, Lybia, France, Spaine, Germanie, Germanie, comparing the light of the Gospell vnto the Sunne, illuminating all men excepting such as are lost, hauing their mindes blinded by the Prince of this world, 2 Corinth. 4. 4.

In all after times vnto this present day Christ ruled, & his kingdome flourished in despite of al his enemies, in the midst of Atheists, in the midst of Infidels, in the midst of Heretiks, in the midst of Hypocrites, in the midst of Tyrants, in the midst of Turkes, in the midst of Anti-christs. At the worlds end (when our blessed Sauour sitting at his Fathers right hand shall vterly <sup>a</sup> put downe all things vnder his feet) the good shall be separated from the bad, as a shepheard separates the sheepe from the goats, Mat. 25. 32. But so long as the world (that <sup>a</sup> lieth in wickednesse) continueth, the <sup>b</sup> wheat groweth among tares, and the Church is euer as a lillie among <sup>c</sup> thornes, assaulted on the one side by vnbeleeuers, and on the other side by mis-beleeuers. On the left hand by the blasphemous propositions of Heretikes, on the right hand by the contentious oppositions of Schismatikes: openly wronged by cut-throat tyrants, and secretly wringed by bac-biting hypocrites. <sup>d</sup> Varro writes, that the Romanes in old time did ouercome their enemies sedendo: but the Romanists in our time thinke to make their enemies (as it were) their foottoole cadendo, by dagge and dagger, by powder-plots, and powder-shots, by fire, force, furie. Yet notwithstanding Christ is a Ruler, and his subiects are <sup>e</sup> more than Conquerours in the very midst of Anti christianisme. For the beheading of Martyrs is like the <sup>f</sup> cutting of vines, the more they be cut, the more they prosper and fructifie. The <sup>g</sup> Church saith, as Paul, 2 Cor. 12. 10. When I am weake, then am I strong. <sup>h</sup> Martin Luther (assisted doubtlesse by Gods owne spirit) so little regarded the bloudie Papists in the quarrell of Christs Gospell, as that he said peremptorily, Contempus est à me Romanus furor & feruor. And therefore being aduised by some good friends, that he would not aduenture himselfe to be present at the meeting of the Germane Princes at Wormes; he did answer them in this wise: For as much as I am sent for, I am resolu'd and certainly determin'd to enter Wormes, in the name of our Lord Iesus Christ, although I knew there were so many deuils to resist me, as there are tyles to cower all the houses in Wormes: Fox Martyr. fol. 776. And <sup>i</sup> B. Latymer being brought to the stake, was so well assured, that Christ euen by his weaknesse should rule in the midst of his enemies, as that vpon the kindling of the first fagot, he said to his fellow Martyr, Bishop Ridley: Courage brother Ridley, we shall (by Gods grace) this day light such a candle in England, as I hope shall neuer be put out againe.

In the day of thy power, shall the people offer thee free-will offerings.] Christ (by the preaching of his word) subdueth vnto himselfe a good and a great people. Good, They shall offer thee free-will offerings with an holy worship. Great, The dew of thy birth is of the wombe of the morning. In the dayes of thy power, <sup>k</sup> that is, in the dayes of thy solemne assemblies, in the dayes of thy <sup>l</sup> Gospell, vntill thou shalt ouercome thine enemies with the <sup>m</sup> spirit of thy mouth, and abolish them with the brightnesse of thy comming: thy people shall offer free-will offerings vnto thee, <sup>n</sup> not enforced by law, but comming out of loue; not out of fashion or faction, but in pure deuotion and cheerefull obedience. They shall appeare before thee with an holy worship, or as our new translation, in the beauties of holinesse: that is, in thy <sup>o</sup> Temple, which is a glorious Sanctuarie, Psalm. 29. 2. <sup>p</sup> Or in a holinesse equalling the holinesse of thy Sanctuarie; for good Christians are the temples of God, 1 Cor. 3. 16, Or by beauties of holinesse, he meaneth haply the <sup>q</sup> Priests garment, insinuating, that Christs elect people should be named <sup>r</sup> the Priests of the Lord, a chosen generation, a royall Priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people, shewing forth the vertues of him that hath called them out of darknesse into marvellous light, 1 Pet. 2. 9. The summe of all is, that the subiects of his kingdome shall appeare before him in <sup>s</sup> all kinde of sanctitie, <sup>t</sup> resplendent in holinesse, and shining in good workes as lights in the world, Philip 2. 15.

If all Christs people then offer him free-will offerings with an holy worship, he will not abide such as are Hypocrites, who serue the truth onely to serue their turne, <sup>u</sup> making his couenant in their mouth, and yet hate to be reformed. <sup>x</sup> To the petition

(let

<sup>a</sup> 1 Cor. 15. 19.

<sup>a</sup> 1 Iohn. 5. 19.

<sup>b</sup> Mat 13. 30.

<sup>c</sup> Cant. 2. 2.

<sup>d</sup> Lib. de re rustica.

<sup>e</sup> Rom 8. 37.

<sup>f</sup> In: In Mart. in dialog. cum Tryphon.

<sup>g</sup> Baronius præfat. tom. 8. annual

<sup>h</sup> Loc. com. sit. de Luthero.

<sup>i</sup> Mr Fox in his martyrdome.

<sup>k</sup> Caluin.

<sup>l</sup> Tremellius.

<sup>m</sup> 2 Thess 2. 8.

<sup>n</sup> Melanct.

Mollerus.

Tileman.

<sup>o</sup> Tremel.

H'icox.

<sup>p</sup> Agellius.

<sup>q</sup> Tileman.

Melanct.

Mollerus.

<sup>r</sup> Esay 61. 6.

<sup>s</sup> Genebrard.

<sup>t</sup> Bellarm.

<sup>u</sup> Psal. 50. 16.

<sup>x</sup> Bradford in a letter to the City of London.

7 Apoc. 3. 16.
 1 King. 18. 21
 a Hofca 10. 2. b Aul. Gellius
Noct. attic. lib.
 16. cap. 15. c Bradford in a letter to Dr.
Hill Physician.
 d Fox Mart.
fol. 1911.

e Chrysoſt.
Hieron.
Augustine.
Eutym. in loc.
Idem Ambroſe
de fide, lib. 1. cap. 6. & Euseb. hiſt. lib. 1. cap. 4.
 f See Tertull. lib. 5. cont. Mar.
& Iuſtin. dialog. cum Tryphon.
Galat. de arca- nus. lib. 3. cap. 17.
Melanct. in loc.
 g See Steuchus & Mollerus in
loc.
 h Bucer.
Caluin.
Mollerus.
Tileman.
Geneua gloſſ.
Strigellius.
Tremellius.
 i Deut. 32. 2.
 k 1 Pet. 1. 23.
 l John 1. 12.
 m Buchanan's Pa-
raphraſ. in loc.

(let thy kingdome come) we muſt adioyne thy will be done, done on earth, as it is in heauen. He will (as S. Iohn telleth vs) ſpue ſuch out of his mouth as are neither hot nor cold, mungriſin in religion, 2 halting betweene God and Baal, hauing (as the <sup>a</sup>Prophet ſpeakes) a diuided heart, an heart and an heart, like the <sup>b</sup>Hares in Bifaltia, or the Partridges in Paphlagonia. <sup>c</sup> The way of Chriſt is ſo ſtrait, that it will ſuffer no reeling to this ſide, or that ſide: if any halt in it, he is like to fall off the bridge into the pit of eternall perdition. The Lord (for our example) hath inflicted heauie iudgement in all ages, vpon ſuch as haue not vprightly walked, but halted before him: I will only remember one, which hapned vpon <sup>d</sup> Caſtellanus, who (hauing firſt enriched himſelfe by the Goſpell, and afterward forſaking the pure doctrine thereof, and turning againe to his popiſh vomit, ſo that he perſecuted the Chriſtians in Orleance) by the hand of God was ſtricken in his bodie with a grieuous ſickeſſe, vnkowne to the Phyſitians, the one halfe of his body burning as hot as fire, and the other being ſo cold as ice, and ſo miſerably crying and lamenting, ended his life.

The dew of thy birth is as the wombe of the morning] A very difficult place, diuerſly conſtrued, either of Chriſt himſelfe, or of his gifts, or of his people. Firſt of Chriſt himſelfe, and that in reſpect of his Godhead, and of his Manhood. Of his <sup>e</sup> Godhead, that the Father ſaith vnto him, of the wombe (that is, of mine owne eſſence (before the early morning (that is, before the world was) thou haſt the dew of thy youth, or birth; noting his eternall generation before all worlds, as is ſhewed Prou. 8. 22, 23, 24, 25. And according to this ſenſe, the Septuagint Interpreters haue translated, of the wombe before the morning ſtarre begat I thee. If it be meant of his Manhood, it may be <sup>f</sup> thus expounded, of the wombe of the darke morning, or Virgin, thou haſt the dew of thy birth. If we will vnderſtand of his <sup>g</sup> gifts and grace, the plentifull and abundant dew of thy gifts and gladneſſe aboue thy fellowes, was in thee from the very wombe. But becauſe Dauid in this verſe ſpeakes neither of the perſon, nor of the gifts of the Meſſias, but of his ſubiects, I ſide with <sup>h</sup> our Diuines, who reade and interpret it after this ſort, thy youth, or new-borne people, ſhall be to thee as the morning dew. By the preaching of thy word, thou ſhalt bring forth a people not onely good, but alſo great, whoſe increaſe ſhall be ſo plentifull and wonderfull as the drops of the morning dew. For as the dew, that ſecretly falls from heauen abundantly, coouereth and reſreſheth all the earth: ſo thy word, by the ſecret operation of the Holy Spirit, <sup>i</sup> ſtilling as the dew, and as the ſhowre vpon the herbes, is that <sup>k</sup> immortal feed, by which an incredible number of children are begotten vnto God, ouer-ſpreading the face of the whole world, according to that of <sup>l</sup> S. Iohn, To them he gaue power to be the ſonnes of God, euen to them that beleue in his name, which are borne not of blond, nor of the will of the fleſh, nor of the will of man, but of God. This expoſition I take to be moſt agreeable to the drift of our text, and to the words of our translation.

<sup>m</sup> Non roris imber ante lucem argenteis
tot veſtit arua gemmulis, Quam multa cunctis gentium de finibus
ad te propago conſuet.

The Lord ſware and will nor repent] Men (as Paul teacheth, Hcb. 6.) ſweare by him that is greater than themſelues: but Almighty God, as hauing none greater to ſweare by, ſwore by himſelfe to father Abraham, Genef. 22. 16. By my ſelfe haue I ſworne (ſaith the Lord) becauſe thou haſt done this thing, and haſt not ſpared thine onely Sonne, therefore will I ſurely bleſſe thee, and will greatly multiply thy ſeed as the ſtarres of the heauen, and as the ſand which is vpon the ſea ſhore, and thy ſeed ſhall poſſeſſe the gate of his enemies, and in thy ſeed all the nations of the earth ſhall be bleſſed. This oath is repeated and renewed againe vnto Iſaac, Genef. 26. 3. The Lord appeared vnto him, and ſaid, I will performe the oath which I ſwore vnto Abraham thy father. And the ſeruants and Saints of God euer highly reuerenced and eſteemed this oath. He (ſaith our <sup>n</sup> Prophet) is the Lord our God, he hath alway bene windfull of his covenant and promiſe, that he made to a thouſand generations, euen the covenant that he made with Abraham, and the oath that he ſwore to Iſaac. And Ierem. 11. 4. Thus ſaith the Lord, ye ſhall be my people, and I will be your God; that I may confirme the

o Pſal. 105. 8.

the oath, which I haue sworne vnto your fathers. And Zacharias in his hymne, Bl. f. sed be the Lord God of Israel, for he hath visited and redeemed his people, &c. As he spake by the mouth of his holy Prophets euer since the world began, &c. performing that oath, which he swaue to our forefather Abraham.

It was in the Lord great mercie to giue his word, that he would in the fulnesse of time send his Sonne for the redemption of the world, saying, The seed of the woman shall breake the Serpents head: but it was assuredly greater mercie to sweare by his holinesse, that he would performe this promise. God is truth, and we haue good cause to beleue him vpon his word, who made vs and all things else by his word: but yet for our better assurance, being desirous more abundantly to shew vnto the heires of promise the stablesse of his counsell, bound himselfe with an oath, that by two immutable things, in which it was impossible for him to lie, we might haue strong consolation, Heb. 6. 18.

These two things are his word and oath His word is true, Psal. 33. 4. I (quoth the Lord) I haue spoken it, and I will performe it. God is not as man, that he should lie; neither as the sonne of man, that he should repent: hath he said, and shall he not doe it? and hath he spoken, and shall he not accomplish it? Heauen and earth shall passe away, but not one iot of his word shall passe away till all things be fulfilled. And if his bare word be thus immutable, then his oath much more, which among men is an end of all strife, Heb. 6. 16. Behold then here the goodnesse of the Father of mercies, and God of comfort, who for our sake did not only say, but also sweare, that Christ is our Priest for euer. Happie men are they who beleue this promise, for that is eternall life: but accursed are such as neglect so great saluation. He that beleues not God, maketh him a lier (saith * S. Iohn:) Nay, seeing God hath bound his word with an oath, he that beleues not his record concerning his Sonne, doth accuse God of periurie. This ought to comfort vs in all our tentations, at the houre of death, and in the day of iudgement. For albeit we haue sinned against heauen, and against earth; against God in heauen, against our brethren on earth: although our sins are great for their number, and grieuous for their nature; yet let vs goe boldly to the throne of grace, that we may receiue mercie. For as much as we haue such an high Priest, as is touched with a feeling of our infirmities, and saith, I am not come to call the righteous to repentance, but sinners, and sweareth, as I liue, I desire not the death of a sinner; let not any despaire, though he haue denied Christ, as Peter; and betrayed Christ, as Iudas; and crucified Christ, as Pilate.

And will not repent ] The passions of men are ascribed to God, secundum effectum, (as <sup>c</sup> Aquine speakes) but not secundum affectum. And so the Scripture speaking <sup>d</sup> grossly to mans vnderstanding, saith, that the Spirit is <sup>e</sup> grieved, and that the Lord <sup>f</sup> repented he had made man, and <sup>g</sup> Saul King; and <sup>h</sup> Ionah 3. 10. God repented of the euill that he had said that he would doe to Nineueh. The Lord in his secret counsell, is yesterday, and to day, and the same also for euer, Heb. 13. 8. But vnto vs men (in his reuealed word) he seemes to put on affections of anger and grieffe, <sup>h</sup> behauing himselfe as one who repents and grieues. Againe, God speakes in his reuealed word, sometimes conditionally, sometimes absolutely. His sentence concerning the destruction of Nineueh was only conditionall, if they did not repent; according to that of the <sup>i</sup> Psalmist, If a man will not turne, then he will whet his sword. And therefore when the Lord saw the works of the men of Nineueh; that they turned from their euill wayes, he turned away his wrath from them. Et sic Deus (as one pithily) non verititur, sed auertitur orationibus nostris. But when Almighty God speakes absolutely, thou art my Sonne, and as in our text categorically, thou art a Priest for euer, &c. he will not repent, nor <sup>k</sup> alter the thing which is gone out of his mouth. See S. Augustine de diuersis quest. ad Simplicium lib. 2. quest. 2. Rupert. Caluin. in caput 3. Ione, Augustin. D. Incognit. Bellarmin. & alios in loc.

Thou art a Priest for euer ] The Lord teacheth vs how we should sweare, by precept, and patterne. By precept, Ier. 4. 2. Thou shalt sweare in truth, in iudgement, & in righteousness. Where <sup>l</sup> Diuines obserue, that these three vertues ought to be the companions of all our oathes. Iudgement forbids all rash and idle swearing; truth,

<sup>o</sup> Psal. 29. 34.
<sup>p</sup> Psal. 33. 9.

<sup>q</sup> Ezech. 37. 14
<sup>r</sup> Numb. 23. 19
<sup>s</sup> Luk. 21. 33.
<sup>t</sup> Matth. 5. 18.
<sup>* Quodams.</sup>

<sup>f</sup> Ioh. 17 3.
<sup>u</sup> Heb. 2. 3.
<sup>v</sup> 1 Epist. 5. 10.

<sup>w</sup> Heb. 4. 16.

<sup>x</sup> Matth. 9. 13.
<sup>y</sup> Ezech. 33. 11.
<sup>z</sup> Ferus postil. ser. 5. in Dom. Septuages.
<sup>aa</sup> 1. Part. quest. 21. art. 3.
<sup>ab</sup> Rom. 6. 19.
<sup>ac</sup> Ephes. 4. 30.
<sup>ad</sup> Gen. 6. 6.
<sup>ae</sup> 1 Sam. 15. 11
<sup>af</sup> Placid. Parmen.

<sup>ag</sup> Psal. 7. 13.

<sup>ah</sup> Psal. 89. 34.

<sup>ai</sup> Hieron. in loc.
<sup>aj</sup> & Thomas 2 2<sup>ae</sup> quest. 89. art. 3.

all lying and false swearing; rightconnesse, all blasphemous and vngodly swearing by the creatures. God (according to this precept) sweareth himselfe here; he sweares in rightconnesse, as swearing by himselfe, being both omnipotent, and omniscient: in truth, for that he will not repent: in iudgement, saying to his Son, thou art a Priest for ever. <sup>m</sup> When he spake before of Christs kingdome, he said only, sit thou at my right hand: but now treating of Christs Priesthood, he sweares: <sup>n</sup> insinuating that the Priesthood of Christ is of exceeding great consequence; for the Lord (instructing vs how we may sweare by his own example) sweares not in any trifling case, but for the confirmation of a serious and ueccinarie truth of a most high nature.

Let vs examine therefore how Christ is a Priest for ever. An high Priest (as the <sup>o</sup> Scripture defineth) is a person called of God from among men, that he may offer both gifts and sacrifices vnto God for the sins of men. Such an high Priest is Christ, immediately called of God, in that he said, thou art a Priest, and he gaue himself for vs, to be both an <sup>p</sup> offering, and a sacrifice of a sweet smelling saour to God, Ephes. 5. 2. <sup>q</sup> He is the reconciliation for our finnes, and as an Advocate with the Father in the court of heauen, euer pleading the merit of his oblation & obedience, the sole Mediator betweene God and man, <sup>r</sup> Tim. 2. 5. and he is a Priest for ever, because with one offering he consecrated for euer, them that are sanctified, Heb. 10. 14. The powerfull operation of his passion endureth for euer, being the <sup>s</sup> Lambe slaine from the beginning of the world, and bleeding (as it were) to the worlds end. <sup>S.</sup> Paul in his Epistle to the Hebrewes, hath vnfolded this part of our text so fully, that (as Hierome speakes) it is superfluous to bring an after (or other) interpretatiō.

I will here rest only in his Commentarie, consisting of two points especially; the

1. Shewing the difference betweene the Priesthood of Aaron, & Christ.
2. Describing the resemblance betweene the Priesthood of Christ, and Melchisedech.

1. The Priesthood of Aaron, withal the sacrifices & ceremonies belonging therunto, was nothing else but a type of things to come: the <sup>t</sup> tabernacles and holy places, were figures of the true Sanctuarie; the diuers washings, & other carnall rites, were similitudes of heauenly things. In a word, the whole Law had the shadow of good things to come, but not the very substance of the things, Heb. 10. 1. But Christ is the <sup>a</sup> bodie of the shadow, and his Priesthood the truth of Aarons type. Ioh. 1. 17. The Law was giuen by Moses, but grace and truth came by Iesus Christ, as being our only Priest appeasing the wrath of God, and taking away the sins of the world; for * among men there is giuen no other name vnder heauen, whereby we must be saued. And therefore the holy Fathers in their killing of beasts, & sprinkling of blood, had euer an eye to the shedding of Christs blood on the Crosse, beleeuing that his blood should <sup>y</sup> cleanse them from all their sins, and <sup>z</sup> not the blood of Goats, and Calues, and Bulls. And the Prophets in their Sermons vsually taxe their hypocrisie, who neglecting spirituall deuotions, & faith in Christ, only rested and trusted in outward oblations. <sup>a</sup> What haue I to doe with the multitude of your sacrifices (saith the Lord) I am full of the burnt offerings of Lambes, and the fat of fed beasts, I desire not the blood of Bullocks, nor of Lambes, nor of Goats, Incense is an abomination vnto me, my soule hateth your new Moones, and your appointed Feasts, all of them are a burthen vnto me, and I am weary to beare them. And Mich. 6. 7. Will the Lord be pleased with thousands of Rams, or with ten thousand riuers of oyle? nay, the sacrifice best accepted of God, is a troubled spirit a broken and contrite heart, O God, shalt thou not despise, Psal. 51. 17.

2. The Priesthood of Aaron, and the kingdome of Israel, were distinct offices and incompetent; the Priest vnder the Law might not inroach vpon the royalties of the King, nor the King execute the Priests office: for when <sup>b</sup> Vzziah the King went into the Temple of the Lord to burne incense; the Priests of the Lord withstood him, and said vnto him, It appertaineth not vnto thee (Vzziah) to burne incense vnto the Lord, but to the Priests, the sonnes of Aaron, consecrated to this office. Go forth

<sup>m</sup> Agellius in loc.

<sup>n</sup> Caluin. in loc.

<sup>o</sup> Heb. 5. 1.

<sup>p</sup> See Epist 3. Sund. in Lent.
<sup>q</sup> 1 Iohn 2. 2.

<sup>r</sup> Apocal. 13. 3.

<sup>s</sup> In loc.

<sup>t</sup> Heb 9.

<sup>a</sup> Coloss. 2. 17.

* Acts 4. 12.

<sup>y</sup> 1 Iohn. 1. 7.

<sup>z</sup> Heb 9. 12. 13.

<sup>a</sup> Esay 1. 11.

<sup>b</sup> 2 Chro. 26. 16

forth of the Sanctuarie, for thou hast transgressed: and Vzziah the King was a leper vnto the day of his death. But Christ is both a Priest, and a Prince, the Scepter and the Miter meet together in him.

3. Aaron, Eleazar, and e every high Priest vnder the Law, did enter into the holy place by the blood of goats and calves, which he did offer for himselfe, and for the finnes of the people. But Christ our Priest, entred into the most holy place by his owne blood, and obtained eternall redemption for vs, Heb. 5. 12. He d gaue himselfe for our sins, that he might deliuer vs from this present euill world. It was impossible, that the blood of buls and goats should take away finnes, Heb. 10. 4. He therefore did e offer his owne body, redeeming his Church euen with his owne f precious blood.

4. Aaron was anointed with an e oyle made of pleasant spices and balsame: but God hath anointed Christ with oyle of gladnesse, Psal. 45. 8. The spirit of the Lord (quoth b he) hath anointed me, that I should preach the Gospell vnto the poore, and hath sent me, that I should heale the broken hearted, &c.

5. Aaron, and e every high Priest of the Iewes, offered vp sacrifice, i first for his owne finnes, and then for the people. But Christ as being holy, blamelesse, vndefiled, Heb. 7. 26. who knew no sinne, 2 Cor. 5. 21. who did k no wickednesse, neither was any deceit in his mouth, offered vp himselfe only for our finnes; he was wounded for our transgressions, he was broken for our iniquities, he carried our sorrows, and with his stripes are we healed.

6. Aaron and his successors were Priests of the Iewes, & tied only to the Temple of l Hierusalem: but Christ is for all persons, and all places, at all times, a Priest for euer, an vniuersall Bishop of our soules, as he told the woman of m Samaria, the hour cometh, & is now, when ye shall neither in this mountaine, nor at Hierusalem worship the Father; but the true worshippers shall e every where worship him in spirit and truth.

7. Aaron, and other Priests vnder the Law, were made without swearing of an oath; but Christ is made by an oath, by him that said vnto him, the Lord hath sworne, and will not repent, thou art a Priest for euer, after the order of Melchisedech, Heb. 7. 20, 21.

8. Aarons Priesthood was temporarie, but the Priesthood of Christ is for euer. Eleazer succeeded Aaron, and Phineas Eleazer, and so downward: for among the n Iewes many were made Priests, because they could not endure by reason of death: but Christ, because he endureth for euer, hath an euertlasting Priesthood. The Iewes haue now o neither Prince, nor Prophet, nor burnt offering, nor sacrifice, nor oblation, nor incense, for the Lord repented, p that is, changed Aarons Priesthood: but Christ (as our text hath it) is consecrated by God the Father a Priest for euer. None can succeed him, he will not giue his glory to another, Esay 42. 8. and therefore the blasphemous opinion of the q Papists is detestable, who make the Pope successor vnto Peter, and Peter the successor vnto Christ, in his Priesthood. So they prate, print, and paint in their r Catalogues of the Romane Bishops.

I will not dispute this point after Paul, Heb. 7. 25. concluding peremptorily that Christ, and only Christ is able perfectly to saue them that come vnto God by him, seeing he liueth euer to make intercession for them, s as that learned man and martyr, John Lamberte, in his greatest agonie, none but Christ, none but Christ. All the Peters, and Peeres, and Popes in the world, which euer haue bene, are, and shall be, cannot sacrifice so much as may satisfie God for the sins of one poore soule. Christ alone is our Priest for euer, at whose right hand, God the Father standeth assistant, to t performe whatsoeuer he hath either said or sworne to him, euen to the confusion of Kings, and all other great enemies in the day of his wrath.

And surely this clause, for euer, (as that holy Martyr of God, u John Bradford obserued) euidently shewes that the Popish Masse is a most iniurious enemy to Christ, in respect of his Priesthood and sacrifice. The Priesthood of Christ is an euertlasting Priesthood, and such a function as cannot goe to another: but the Masse doth vtterly put him out of place, as though he were dead for euer, and so God were a lier, who said he should liue for euer. Again, it is a pernicious enemy to e Leuit. 16.

d Galat. 1. 4.

e Ephes 5. 2.

f 1 Pet 1 19.

g Leuit 8 12.

h Psal 133. 2.

i Luk 4. 18. 21.

j Leuit. 16. 6.

k Heb 7. 27.

l Esay 53. 9.

m Deut. 12. 17.

n Iohn 4. 20

o Ioh 4. 21.

a Heb 7. 23.

o Song of the three Children,
vsf. 38.

p Bellarmin. de cultu sancti. cap.
10 §. secundo respondet

q See Til. man.

H. s. s. in loc.

r in fire Chron

s Marian. Scot &

Mar. Polan.

t Fox Martyr.

fol 1027.

u Genebrard.
in loc.

v Fox Mart.
pag. 1271.

his sacrifice, for, to reiterate a thing once done for the full accomplishing of the end, wherefore it was begun, declareth imperfection of the same thing before; but the Masse-Priests reiterate the sacrifice of Christ once done, for the end wherefore it was begun, (that is, for propitiation and remission, à pœna & culpa) ergo, the Masse-Priests make Christs oblation imperfect, and denie that the vertue thereof endures for euer. See Epistle Sunday 5. in Lent.

I come now to the parallel of Dauid shewing the resemblance between Melchisedech & Christ. This Melchisedech, as Paul (Heb. 7.) reports out of Moses, Gē. 14 was King of Salem, & the Priest of the most high God. So Christ is described in this present Psalme, to be both a King & a Priest, the King of Salem, that is, of Hierusalem aboue, Gods owne Citie, which is the mother of vs all: and the Priest of the most high God, in giuing himselfe for vs both an offering and a sacrifice of a sweet smelling fauour to God. In old time before the Law, the Kingdome & Priesthood appertained by birth-right vnto the eldest son: for so Diuines haue gathered out of the words of Iacob vnto Reuben, Gen. 49 3. Reuben, thou art my first-borne, my might, and the beginning of my strength, the excellencie of dignitie, and excellencie of power, that is, primus in regno, & primus in sacerdotio. But these two functions were seuered vnder the Law, the Kingdome being conferred vpon Iuda, the Priesthood vpon Leui. So that Christ our Priest and Prince conioyning both againe in his owne person, abrogated the forme and frame of Moses Common-weale.

2. Melchisedech is by interpretation King of righteousness; so Christ is not only righteous in himselfe, iudging his folke righteously, Psal. 67. 4. righteous in all his wayes, and holy in all his workes, Psal. 145. 17. but also making vs iust and holy before God, The Lord our righteousness, made vnto vs wisdom, and righteousness and sanctification and redemption.

3. Melchisedech is King of Salem, that is, King of peace: so Christ is the Prince of peace, reconciling vs vnto God, and God vnto vs, preaching peace to the Gentiles, who were strangers a farre off; and vnto the Iewes, who were citizens in the Common-wealth of Israel, and so breaking downe the stop of the partition wall, hath made of both, one. For it pleased the Father, that in him all fulnesse should dwell, and by him to reconcile all things vnto himselfe; and to set at peace, through the bloud of his Crosse, both the things in earth, and the things in heauen, Coloss. 1. 19, 20. And here note, that Christ is first a King of righteousness, and then a King of peace; for he giueth vs first righteousness, and then peace. So Paul expressly, Rom. 5. 1. Being iustified by faith, we haue peace toward God, through our Lord Iesus Christ.

4. Melchisedech is said to be without father, and without mother; not that he was indeed so, but for that the Scripture concealeth his genealogie: so Christ as man was without father, & as God without mother. Nay Christ as God was without kindred, hauing neither beginning of his dayes, neither end of life, being Alpha and Omega, the first & the last, Apoc. 1. 11. No God before him, or after him, Esay 43. 10

5. Melchisedech blessed Abraham, and received tithes of him, and so consequently was greater than Abraham, because without all contradiction the lesser is blessed of the better. And so Christ is greater than Abraham, as blessing him that had the promises. Abraham reioyced to see my day (saith our Sauour) and he saw it, and was glad.

6. Melchisedech refreshed Abraham and his armie, returning from the slaughter of the Kings, with bread and wine: so Christ feedeth and cherisheth his souldiers, fighting vnder his banner against the world, the flesh, and the deuill, euen with his own flesh and bloud, represented in his holy Supper by bread and wine. Melchisedech gaue bread & wine to Abraham, he did not offer it vp vnto God, as the Latine Fathers vsually read, protulit non obtulit. And therefore the Papiests abuse this place, when in the Masse they offer vp the bread vnto God, which is to be communicated vnto men. Christs Supper was ordained to be receiued of vs, in the memoriall of his death, for the confirmation of our faith, that his body was broken for vs, and his bloud shed for our sins; but in the Masse there is no receiuing, because the * Galat. 4. 26.

v Hieron. quest. sex tradit. Hebraic. in Gen. tom. 3 fol. 226. Dio Carthus. Em. Sa. 7. 1. 1. blus in Gen. 49. & Tilman in loc.

* Jerem. 23. 6.

* 1 Cor. 1. 30.

b Esay 9. 6.

c Ephes. 2. 16.

d Lombard. Aquin. Anselm. in Heb 7.

e Theophylact. Primasius in Heb 7 & Chrysost. in loc.

f Hieron. Agellius in loc.

g Ioh 8. 56.

h Gen 14. 18.

i Iohn 6 55.

k Matth. 26. 26

l Apud Chemnit. exam. Con. Trident. part. 2. pag 171.

m Calvin. in loc.

n Bradfords letter to his mother, apud Fox, Mart. fol. 1476.

the Priest keepeth all to himselfe alone. Christ saith, Take eat: but the Priest gape, peepe. The Masse-priests are grosse lurchers at the Lords table; for first they take away the wine from the Laity, which is contrary to Christs owne voice, Drinke ye all of this. And as for the bread, they giue it not in euery Masse to the people, but only at certaine times in the yeere, and then also not so great an host or cake as themselves eat, and that without either breaking on their part, or touching of the people. So their Masses vpon the point are Massacres of Christ, a new killing and sacrificing of him againe, so much as lieth in their power.

He shall iudge among the Heathen, he shall fill the places with the dead bodies ] Some construe this of Christs iudgement on the last day; for we beleeue that he shall come againe to iudge the quicke and the dead, he shall in that day of his wrath fill the pits of hell with the bodies of the reprobate, and smite in sunder the heads of all such as haue lifted vp their heads against him. Other haue better expounded this of his present iudgement in protecting his followers, and in punishing his foes: for Christ is described here by the Prophet as a valiant conquerour ouer his enemies. He shall rule not among the Jewes onely, but among the Heathen also, iudging the world with righteousnesse, and the people with his truth. He shall fill all places with the bodies of his aduersaries being dead, and smite in sunder, with his power and might, the heads, euen Kings, and other chiefe gouernours of his enemies. Augustine doth interpret this in the better part, glossing it thus: Implere ruinas, est adificare quod cecidit: & conuassare capita, humiliare superbos ad salutem per contritionem.

He shall drinke of the brooke in the way ] This may haue a double construction. Either thus, he, that is, the Messias, shall drink of the brook which shal be made of the blood of his foes: as if he should haue said, There shall be so much blood shed, that the conquerour may drink (as it were) of a riuer of blood, in the way as he pursueth his enemies. The like phrase we finde, Numb. 23. 24. Or else it is a similitude taken from puissant and mightie Captaines, who eagerly pursuing their enemies, stay not vpon dainties or pleasures, but content themselves with flouds and brookes which they finde in their passages as they follow the chase. And therefore he shall lift vp his head, as hauing a full victorie to his aduancement and exceeding glorie: for so this manner of speech is vsed, Genes. 40. 13. 20. Marcus Antonius de Dominis lib. 1. cap. 1. de Republica Ecclesiastica, doth expound it mystically thus, Exaltatus est Christus ut caput Ecclesie, postquam de torrente passionis bibit.

<sup>a</sup> A Monument hereof in the Church at Stelft, a Burg in Germanie, about 20 miles from Trsprucke.
<sup>p</sup> Theodoret.
Euthym.
Turcremat.
<sup>q</sup> Barmine.
<sup>r</sup> Caluin.
Tilman.
Tremellius.

<sup>f</sup> Psal 96. 13.

<sup>c</sup> In loc.

<sup>u</sup> Bucer.
Mollerus.
Vatablus.
<sup>x</sup> Caluin.
Tremel.

PSALME 132.

Lord remember David, and all his troubles, &c.

THIS Hymne consists of two parts: a Prayer, for the Prince, Priests, and people, with a commemoration of their zeale to Gods holy worship and seruice, from the 1. to the 11. verse. Promise, made by God particularly to David and his seed, as also generally to the whole Church, as the ground of the praier, from v. 11. to the Psalmes end.

The penner of this Psalm prays for the King first as the chiefe, Lord remember David. And then afterward for his state, both Ecclesiasticall & Ciuill, the Church and Common-weale. The Church, Arise, o Lord, into thy resting place, that is, thy Temple, let thy Priests be cloathed with righteousnes. The Common-weale, Let thy Saints sing with ioyfulness, &c. The which is answerable to the suffrages in our Liturgie, Induce thy Ministers with righteousnes, and make thy chosen people ioyfull. And haply the Church of England aimed at this prayers order, in the composition of the Letanie; where praying more particularly, we beseech God in the first place to blesse our most gracious King & Governour. In the next, to blesse the whole Clergy, <sup>y</sup> Bucer.

Wilcox.
<sup>z</sup> Luther.
Mollerus.
Strigellius.
<sup>a</sup> Tilman.

Bishops, Pastors, and Ministers: and then all degrees of the Laitie, superiours, as the Counsell, Nobilitie, Magistrates: and inferiours, all the people.

<sup>b</sup> Iohn 8.44.

<sup>c</sup> Luther. in loc.

<sup>d</sup> 2 Tim 2.2.

<sup>e</sup> 1 Tim. 4.16.

<sup>f</sup> Calvin.

Ribera.

Vatablus in Obad.

<sup>g</sup> Luther.

Mollerus.

Caluin.

Tileman.

Strigelius.

<sup>h</sup> Psal. 143.2.

<sup>i</sup> Dan. 9.18.

<sup>k</sup> Exod. 32. 13.

Deut 9.27.

<sup>l</sup> Luk. 18.12.

<sup>m</sup> Rom. 10.14.

<sup>n</sup> Exod 20.5.

<sup>o</sup> Iohn 3.16.

<sup>p</sup> Matth 3.17.

<sup>q</sup> Rom. 8.32.

<sup>r</sup> Luther. in loc.

Satan is called by <sup>b</sup> Christ, a lier, and a murderer from the beginning, euer busily labouring to destroy both our soule with vntruths, and our bodies with murders. <sup>c</sup> Against these two policies and kingdomes of the deuil, Almighty God hath erected o her two kingdomes, the politike State to fight against murders: and the Priesthood to fight against false doctrine and heresies. So that Dauid, and all other Kings in gouerning the Commonwealth, ought to performe their best endeouours, that their subiects may leade <sup>d</sup> quiet and a goaly life. Quiet, as being free from mutinies and murders: godly, as being free from heresies & lies. And these two kingdomes, although they be farre vnlike, are so ioyned together, that the one cannot stand without the other. For where politike peace is wanting, their pietie cannot be maintained without great danger: & where the word of God is wanting, there can be no sound and secure peace. Policie serueth the Church, and the Church preserueth policie. The Priests and Preachers are laid in the 17. vers. of this Psalme, to be decke with saluation, that is, the ministration of the word, whereby they <sup>e</sup> saue themselves, and those that heare them. And in this respect called <sup>f</sup> sauours, Obadi-ah 21, as being helpers and labourers together with God, who saueth, 1 Cor. 3.9.

But that part of this Hymne concerning the promise, concerneth our present Feast especially. The Lord hath made a faithfull oath vnto Dauid, &c. The Papiſts (in the first verse, Lord remember Dauid with all his afflictions; and in the tenth verse, for thy seruant Dauids sake, turne not away the presence of thine anointed) dreame that Salomon and the people did pray to God, that he would heare them at Dauids intercession, and for his merits; and thereupon establish inuocation of Saints, and praying to the dead. But our <sup>g</sup> Diuines answer, that Dauid is not here to be taken absolutely for his person only; but as hauing the couenant, and clothed (as it were) with the promises of God. For Dauid neuer intreated God to be heard for his own merits, but on the contrary crieth, <sup>h</sup> Enter not into iudgement with thy seruant, for in thy sight shall no man lining be iustified. Neither did the Church here desire to be heard for Dauids sake, but for the promise made to Dauid. And their meaning is briefly this, O Lord God, we pray vnto thee for the kingdome, not counting our selues in any sort worthy that we should be heard: but (as <sup>i</sup> Daniel speakes) we present our supplications before thee, trusting in thy great and tender mercies, and in that thou hast promised to Dauid, to wit; that our kingdome shall endure for euer. So Moses praied, <sup>k</sup> Remember Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, thy seruants, to whom thou swarest by thine owne selfe. He doth not inuocate Abraham, Isaac, and Iacob, as the Papiſts imagine fondly: but he doth alledge Gods holy couenant made to them, as touching their seed and posteritie. For how could God be put in minde of these promises better, than by receiuing those persons to whom God hath made them? Here then is a notable president for vs, that when we pray, we should appeare before the seat of God as wretched and miserable sinners, not trusting vpon our own merit, but cloathed (as you would say) with his mercie; not as he who bragged, <sup>l</sup> I fast twice in the weeke, I giue tithes of all that euer I possesse: but as he who said, Lord remember thy promises; for the promises of God are nothing else, but mercies and compassions offered fitly vnto vs in Christ.

Faith is necessarily required in praier, (<sup>m</sup> for how shall any call on him, in whom they haue not beleened?) and faith is grounded euer vpon the sure promises of God, who faith, <sup>n</sup> I am the Lord thy God, and so loued the world, that he gaue his <sup>o</sup> only begotten Sonne, in <sup>p</sup> whom he is well pleased. If then he giueth himselfe to be our own, and his Sonne to be our own, how shall he not with himselfe and his Sonne <sup>q</sup> giue vs all things also? Verily, verily (saith our blessed Sauiour; that euer spake veritie) whatsoeuer ye shall aske the Father in my name, he will giue it you, Ioh. 16.23. These things ought to be taught diligently, because Gods holy promises are <sup>r</sup> the chiefe part of the Scripture, the true bosome and wombe wherein the Church is carried, and all her children the faithfull,

Now the promise mentioned here touching the seed of Dauid, is categoricall & absolute, absolute, so farre forth as it concernes Christ, of the fruit of thy body will I set upon thy seat for euermore. But as it concernes other of Dauids house, <sup>c</sup>hypotheticall and conditionall, if thy children will keepe my covenant, &c.

In that which is promised and prophesied touching Christ, obserue the Manner of the promise, The Lord hath made a faithfull oath vnto Dauid, and he shall not shrinke from it, verse 11.

Matter of the promise, } 1. That the Messias is to be borne of Dauids seed, of the fruit of thy body.
 } 2. That the Messias is to sit on Dauids seat, shall I set upon thy seat.

The Lord hath made a faithfull oath] Men vse to sweare by him that is greater than themselves, Heb. 6. 16. that is, by God; and that for <sup>a</sup> three causes especially. 1. Because God is greater than themselves in credit. 2. Greater than themselves in knowledge. 3. Greater than themselves in power. Men by sin haue lost their credit, and therefore doe they pawne the credit of God, which is truth it selfe; and in cases of necessitie, for want of other sufficient prooffe, God is content to pledge his truth for honest men, who meane well. All men are by nature <sup>a</sup> liers, and <sup>x</sup> only God is good and true, wherefore men vse to sweare by him, as being greater in <sup>y</sup> credit.

2. An oath is for the manifestation of a secret truth or intention of the heart: for to sweare in things apparant, is to take the name of God in vaine. But God alone is the searcher of the <sup>z</sup> heart and <sup>a</sup> reines; and therefore men vse to sweare by him, as greater in <sup>b</sup> knowledge.

3. If a man violate his oath and forswear himselfe, the wrong is done directly vnto God, his truth is falsified, his witnesse abused, his name blasphemed, and therefore men sweare by him, as being greater in power, <sup>c</sup> that he may take vengeance on such wretches as dare, wrong his sacred Maiesty.

But God as hauing none greater to sweare by, sware by himselfe to father <sup>d</sup> Abraham, In thy seed al the nations of the earth shall be blessed. This oath is renewed againe to Isaac, Gen. 26. 3. and repeated often vnto Dauid, 2 Sam. 7. 12, 13. and 1 Chron. 17. 12. and 2 Chron. 6. 16. and remembred also by the Prophetss, Esay 55. 3. Psal. 89. 34. It was in him exceeding rich mercy, to giue his bare word, that he would in the fulnesse of time, giue his onely begotten Sonne for the redemption of the world, saying, the seed of the woman shall breake the serpents head: but it was vndoubtedly greater mercy, for his seruants better assurance, to binde his promise with a faithfull oath, swearing by his holinesse that he will not shrinke from it. See my notes vpon Psalme 110. ver. 4.

Of the fruit of thy body] S. Peter expounds this of Christ, Act. 2. 30. for according to the flesh he was the seed and sonne of Dauid. <sup>e</sup> Irenaeus, and <sup>f</sup> Augustine, and 3 other Doctores note, that it is according to the Hebrew de fructu ventris, of the fruit of thy belly: not de fructu femoris aut renum. Because thy promised seed is the seed of the woman, Gen. 3. 15. made of a woman, Gal. 4. 4. heuing the materials of his body from his mother Marie, but his formale principium, from God the Holy Ghost, agent in his admirable conception. And yet for as much as Marie was of Dauids house, it may be said, that her Sonne was the fruit of Dauids bodie. For prooffe whereof, it is said, that <sup>h</sup> Ioseph put his hand vnder Iacobs thigh, and the seruant of <sup>i</sup> Abraham vnder the thigh of his Master, because (saith <sup>k</sup> Ambrose) Christ our blessed Saviour was to proceed out of the loynes of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. For as Christians taking an oath in our time, lay their hands vpon some part of that sacred booke wherein Christ is reuealed: so the Fathers in old time put their hands vnder the thighs of those Patriarks, of whom Christ was then to come. Moreouer, sonnes are called the fruit of their fathers ventris, as well as of the mothers; according to that of Dauid, 2 Sam. 16. 11. Behold my sonne which came out of mine owne bowels, seeketh my life.

Shall I set upon thy seat] You haue heard, how Christ is the seed of Dauid; now let vs examine, how he fits on the seat of Dauid. We reade in the Gospels historie, that <sup>c</sup> Placidus.

Luther.
Mollerus.
Genebrard.

<sup>a</sup> Caluin. & Marlorat. in
Heb. 6. 16.

<sup>a</sup> Psal. 116. 10.
 & Psal. 62. 9.

<sup>z</sup> Mark. 10. 18.

<sup>y</sup> Primasius,
Lombard. in
Heb. 6.

<sup>z</sup> 2 Chro. 6. 3c.

<sup>a</sup> Psal. 7. 10.

<sup>b</sup> See Thomas

2 2a quæst. 89.

art. 1.

<sup>c</sup> 2 King. 2. 23.

2 Ccr. 1. 23.

<sup>d</sup> Gen. 22. 16.

18.

<sup>a</sup> Lib. 3. cap. 27.

<sup>e</sup> In loc.

<sup>b</sup> Hugo in lo.

<sup>h</sup> Gen. 47. 29.

<sup>i</sup> Gen. 24. 2.

<sup>k</sup> De Abra.

Patriar. lib. 1.

cap. 9.

1 Iohn 6. 15.
 2 Ioh. 18. 36.
 3 D. Incognitus.
 4 Gal. 4. 26.
 5 Apoc. 21. 2.

6 Augustin. & Theophylact in Ioh. 2. 18 Sec Recognit. Bel-larmin. à pag. 26 ad pag. 46.
 7 Psal 110. 1. 2.
 8 2 Cor. 2. 16.
 9 See August. in tract. 11 5. in Ioh.

10 Rom 8. 14.
 11 Ioh 2. 27.
 12 Psal 24. 7.

13 Matth. 28. 18

14 Apoc. 1. 16.
 15 Mat. 10. 23.

16 Apoc. 1. 6.
 17 Rom. 8. 17.
 18 Atotheus.

19 Caluin.

20 1 Chro. 28 9

that he hid himselfe in a mountaine, when as the people would haue made him a King, and that he professed openly before Pilate, my kingdome is not of this world. Answer is made, that by Dauids seat, is meant Hierusalem <sup>o</sup> aboue, not Hierusalem here below; mytticall Hierusalem, and <sup>p</sup> heauenly; not materiall and earthly. So the Lord, Psal. 2. 6. I haue set my King vpon mine holy hill of Sion, that is, I haue made my begotten Sonne ruler and head ouer the whole Church, of which Hierusalem is a figure. Sion, and the seat of Dauid, are to be construed here typically, not topically. For Christs high and holy kingdome is internall and spirituall, not externall and temporall. It is hic, not hinc; in the world, but not of the world. By the preaching of his word, which is the scepter of his kingdome, he rules in the midst of his enemies, and makes them all his foot-stoole, conuerting such enemies as appertaine to Gods election, and confounding such enemies, as are the sonnes of perdition; his Gospell is vnto the one, the <sup>f</sup> fauour of life vnto life; and to the other, the fauour of death vnto death. See my notes vpon the 110. Psalme, second and third verses.

As his kingdome is not of the world; so the faithfull his voluntary subiects are not of the world, Iohn 17. 16. you were of the world (saith our Sauiour to his followers) but I haue chosen you out of the world, Iohn 15. 19. As his kingdome is spirituall, euen so they be <sup>l</sup> led by the spirit in <sup>a</sup> all things. And therefore when you come into Gods house, to be made partakers of his holy word and Sacraments, open the doores of your eares, and gates of your hearts, that the <sup>v</sup> King of glory may come in, and so dwell in you, and reigne in you for euermore. Behold, he standeth at the doore and knocketh, Apoc. 3. 20. Open and obey, that he may set vp his kingdome in the parlour of thine heart. It is our daily prayer, thy kingdome come: the meaning whereof is briefly this, O heauenly father, let not Satan and sin reigne in our soules, but rule thou by thy word and spirit, and so build in vs the kingdome of grace, and hasten the kingdome of glory.

The difference betwene our heauenly King, & earthly Princes is great. 1. Their dominions are limited, and the borders of their kingdomes bounded, their people numbred, and the time of their reigne prescribed. But Christ hath <sup>a</sup> all power in heauen and earth, he shall sit vpon the Throne of Dauid for euer, and of his kingdome there is no end, Luk. 1. 33.

2. Other Kings haue power only ouer our bodies and goods: but Christs authoritie reacheth vnto the soule. Their sword is materiall, able onely to kill the bodie: but his sword is spirituall, proceeding out of his <sup>a</sup> mouth, able to destroy <sup>b</sup> both soule and body in hell, entring thorow euen vnto the diuiding asunder of the spirit, and of the ioynts, and the marrow, a discerner of the thoughts, and intents of the heart, Heb. 4. 12.

3. Other Kings deriue their authoritie from him, Prouerb. 8. 15. By me Kings reigne, by me Princes rule; and stand accountable to him, he standeth in the congregation of Princes, and iudgeth among gods, Psal. 82. 1, 2. But who shall say to the Lord of Lords, Why dost thou do so?

4. Other Kings reward their fauourites and followers, only with a few titles of honour, and with a few parcels of land, which are holden of them in fee-farme, frank-almoigne, Knight-service, &c. They make not their vassals heires apparent to their kingdomes: but Christ our Lord maketh all his faithfull seruants no lesse than <sup>c</sup> Kings, and <sup>d</sup> heires of God, euen heires annexed with himselfe.

If thy children will keepe my covenant ] Literally this may be construed of Dauids owne children according to the flesh, <sup>e</sup> who succeeded him in his Throne, 1072. yeeres, vntill the Messias (borne of his posteritie) constituted an euerlasting kingdome without end. <sup>f</sup> According to this sense, the Lord saith, Ezech. 21. 26. I will take away the Diadem, and take off the Crowne, this shall be no more the same, I will ouerturne, ouerturne, ouerturne it, and it shall be no more vntill he come, whose right it is, and I will giue it him. His promise here concerning Christ, is absolute, but his promise touching other of Dauids house, conditionall: If thy children keepe my covenant, and my testimonies, that I shall learne them. ¶ If thou seeke the Lord (saith Dauid to his sonne Salomon) he will be found of thee; but if thou forsake him, he will cast thee off for ever. And therefore because Dauids posteritie did not obserue his law, but follow their own inuentions; he made them (as we reade in the Bibles historie) captiues of Captaines, and gaue their kingdome to another people: first vnto the bloudie Romans, and now to the barbarous Turks; and so Hierusalem heretofore <sup>b</sup> great among the Nations, and Princeesse among the Prouinces, is made tributarie; she dwelleth among the Heathen, and findeth no rest, among all her louers she hath none to comfort her, all her friends haue dealt vnfaithfully with her, and are made her enemies.

Dauid

Mystically the <sup>i</sup> Doctors applie this vnto the children of Christ according to the spirit. I will set upon thy seat, that is, ordaine Pastors and Teachers, who shall sit in thy chaire, <sup>k</sup> that is, preach thy word and doctrine, for the <sup>l</sup> gathering together of the Saints, and edification of the Church euermore. This was verified in the blessed Apollles, as being made Princes in all lands, Psalm. 45. 17.

In one word, <sup>m</sup> all true beleeuers in Christ are the sonnes of God, and babes in Christ, and he hath (as <sup>n</sup> Paul speakes) raised vs vp together, and made vs sit together in heavenly places. His Charter is faire, Mat. 19. 28. Verily I say vnto you, that when the son of man shall sit in the Throne of his Maiesty, ye which haue followed me in the regeneration, shall also sit upon twelue Thrones, and iudge the twelue tribes of Israel. And Apocal. 3. 21. To him that ouercommeth will I grant to sit with me in my Throne, euen as I ouercome, and sit with my Father in his Throne.

The wicked abuse the promises of God, applying them vnto themselves, which only belong to the true Church, the seed of Dauid, according to the spirit. So the Papiests abuse Christs promise, for establishing of the Popes tyrannie, <sup>p</sup> the gates of hell shall not ouercome it, and <sup>q</sup> I will be with you alway to the worlds end. Whence they conclude, that Peters boat (though it may be sometimes in danger) shall neuer be drowned, and that the Pope (being the Churches head) cannot erre. <sup>r</sup> Whereas these promises concerne only that Church which is built upon the Rocke Christ, and continueth in S. Peters faith, obseruing all things our blessed Sauiour commanded, as it is in our text, If thy children will keepe my covenant and testimonies that I shall learne them. But if the Bishop and Church of Rome dispense with Gods holy word, and despise his truth and testimony, teaching in stead of his infallible law, <sup>s</sup> precepts of men, and doctrines of <sup>t</sup> devils: how shall this, or any like promise belong to them?

So the wicked in a reprobate sense, who make their belly their god, and commit all vncleanesse euen with greedinesse, abuse these sweet texts, at what time soeuer a sinner, &c. and, Come to me all yee that are weary and laden, and I will ease you, &c. For this promise concernes only such as are laden, and feele the burthen of their iniquitie, hauing both a sight and a sense thereof, acknowledging that sin is <sup>u</sup> labour in accomplishing, and a load when it is accomplished. It appertaineth only to such as repent, and that of all their sinne, and that from the heart, and bottome of the heart.

So the carnall Gospellers, in comming irreuerently to the Lords Table, without any deuotion, or due respect to that holy Sacrament, abuse the words of our blessed Sauiour, This is my body. For (as the godly Martyr <sup>x</sup> Iohn Bradford well obserued) the clause, take, eat, is a precept; and the clause, this is my body, a promise, the bread and wine then are not vnto any the body and blood of Christ, except they first eat and take, and none can take and eat, but by <sup>y</sup> faith. A worthy receiuer therefore beggeth of God both a pardon of his faults, and an increase of his faith. To conclude this point, in the law the condition is, do this and liue: in the Gospell, beleeue this and thou shalt be saued. He that neglects the precept, and yet will challenge the promise, deceiueth himselfe, he shall not rest on Gods holy hill, and sit on his happie seat for euermore.

<sup>b</sup> Lament. 1. 1.

<sup>i</sup> Arriobius.

Cassiodorus.

Hugo.

<sup>k</sup> So that kinde of speech is vsed Mat. 23. 2

<sup>l</sup> Ephes 4. 11.

<sup>m</sup> Hieron

<sup>n</sup> Ephes. 2. 6.

<sup>o</sup> Luther in loc.

<sup>p</sup> Matth. 16. 18

<sup>q</sup> Matth. 28. 20

<sup>r</sup> Dr Fulke in
Matth. 16. 18.

<sup>s</sup> Matth. 15. 9.

<sup>t</sup> 1 Tim. 4. 1.

<sup>u</sup> Euthym in
Matth. 11.

<sup>x</sup> In his last exam. apud Fox,
fol. 1463.

<sup>y</sup> Confess. Aug.
lican. ar. 28.

PSALME 2.

Why doe the Heathen so furiously rage together, &c.

THis Ode may be diuided into two parts; the

1. Describes the wickednesse, and weaknesse of such as bandie themselves against the Lord, and against his anointed. } Wickednesse, furiously raging, standing up and taking counsell together.
 Weaknesse, } Implied in the word Why?
 Expressed in the clause, Imagine a vaine thing.

2. Sets downe Gods } Might, for their destruction, if they wil not amend their manners, & assuage their malice, vers. 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9.
 Mercy, for their instruction, if they wil once be so wise, as to learne his Law, and to loue his Sonne, vers. 10, 11, 12.

Why doe the Heathen] By Heathen, are meant the Gentiles; by people, the Iewes; by Kings, the chiefe Monarks vpon earth; and by Rulers, their priuie Counsellors of Estate. The Gentiles, as not hauing Gods Law, furiously rage together, like a bruit beasts without vnderstanding. The Greek word vsed by S. Luke, Act. 4. 25. doth import fiercenesse and pride, as of horses that neigh, and rush into the battell. The Iewes, albeit they had Gods holy word, imagined a vaine thing,<sup>b</sup> because they were cunning rather in the sound, than in the sense thereof. The Kings as men of might, stand up, and the rulers, as men of wit and policie, take counsell together. And so men of all countries, as well the Iewes, as the Gentiles, and of all conditions, as well Princes as people, bandie themselves against the Lord, and against his anointed.

Now this may be construed<sup>c</sup> either of Dauid, or of the Messias: of the Lords Christ, or of the Lord Christ. Dauid is the Lords Christ, as his anointed King ouer Israel, anointed thrife. First, in the middest of his brethren, 1 Sam. 1. 16. afterward in Hebron, 2 Sam. 2. lastly, before all the tribes of Israel, 2 Sam. 5. And he may be called the sonne of God, Man, for all of vs are the<sup>d</sup> generation of God, it is he who made vs, and not our selues, Psa. 100. 2.

As a } Great man, or King, for Princes are stiled the<sup>e</sup> children of the most high.
 } Good man, or regenerate, for euerie one that is new borne, is borne of<sup>f</sup> God, and adopted his sonne, and made his heire, Rom. 8. 15. 17.

How the Heathen, that is, the Philistims, and other strange nations, furiously raged together against him: how the people, that is, the Iewes of Sauls house, imagined vainly to dethrone him: how the Captaines stood up, and States-men tooke counsell together, that they might breake his bonds asunder, and cast away his cords from them: how the Lord that dwelleth in heauen laughed all his enemies to scorn, saying, yet haue I set my King vpon my holy hill of Sion: you may read in the second booke of Samuel, from the second to the tenth Chapter.

But the blessed Apostles haue construed this of Christ, Acts 4. 24. O Lord, thou art the God, which hast made the heauen and the earth, and the sea, and all things that are in them. Which by the mouth of thy seruant Dauid hast said, why did the Gentiles rage, and the people imagine vaine things? The Kings of the earth assembled, and the rulers came together against the Lord, and against his Christ. For doubtlesse against thine holy Sonne Iesus, whom thou hast anointed, both Herod, and Pontus Pilate, with the Gentiles and people of Israel, gathered themselues together, to do whatsoener thy hand and thy counsell had determin'd before to be done. § First the Princes did plot, and afterward the people did act this insurrection. Herod the * Bucer.

King

 Ro. Stephanus.
 Wilcox.
 a Cassiodorus.
 Placidus.
 Tileman.
 b Euthym.

c D. Incognit.
 Caluin.
 Tremel.

d Acts 17. 28.

e Psa. 82. 6.
 f 1 Iohn 3. 9.

§ Bellar. in loc.

King sought to destroy Christ in his swadling clouts, he was troubled at the birth of Iesus, and all Hierusalem with him, Matth. 2. 3. And the Rulers opposed Christ in the whole course of his life: so the text plainly, <sup>b</sup> Doth any of the Rulers, or of the Pharisees beleene in him? At his death all the Rulers Ecclesiasticall and Ciuill accorded in one. The Gentiles, <sup>i</sup> that is, the Romane souldiers, by Tilass instigation, furiously raged together: and the people, that is, the Jewes, by the counsell of the chiefe Priests and Elders, imagined a vaine thing. Yea, but how can it be said plurally, that Kings assembled against Christ? Answer is made by <sup>k</sup> some, that the plurall is vsed here for the singular. Or by Kings is meant Herod and Pilate, for Herod is stiled <sup>l</sup> King, and Pontius Pilate was a <sup>m</sup> Gouernour vnder the Romane Emperor, and these Viceroyes had many petite <sup>n</sup> Rulers also subiect to their command. Or by Kings is meant Herod senior, who stood vp against Christ at his birth, Matth. 2. and Herod Iunior, who despised and mocked Christ at his death, Luk. 23. 11.

Or, as <sup>o</sup> Chrysofeme, with Herod were ioyned the Deuill, and Death, and Sinne. All which are Kings of the earth. The Deuill is a King, <sup>p</sup> ruling in the ayre, the <sup>q</sup> Prince of this world, Luk. 11. 18. If Satan be diuided against himselfe, how shall his kingdome stand? And Death is a King, Rom. 5. 14. Death reigned from Adam to Moses, &c. And Sinne is a King too, Rom. 6. 12. Let not sinne reigne in your mortall bodies, lest ye should obey the lust of it. All these Kings assembled and tooke counsell together against the Lord, and against his Christ. For as Christ considered of humane flesh and a reasonable soule: so likewise he had two sorts of enemies, one visible which assaulted his body, another inuisible which assaulted his soule; spirituall wickednesse, Ephes. 6. 12. Here we may behold and bewaile the blindness of the Jewes in our time, who (notwithstanding their most ancient <sup>r</sup> Rabbins applie this our text to the true Messias) expect him as yet to come.

Lastly, for as much as Christ suffers in his <sup>s</sup> members, and <sup>t</sup> all that will liue godly, that they may be made <sup>u</sup> like to his Image, must of necessitie suffer persecution; it may be construed of <sup>x</sup> Christians as well as of Christ, against whom all the wicked angels, <sup>y</sup> standing on the foure corners of the earth, are combined in a bloudie league. The Gentiles at this day furiously rage together, and the Jewes at this day still imagine vaine things; at this day The Kings of the earth stand vp, as the Turke, the Pope, the Spaniard, and all their cruell agents. In a word, all Atheists, all Anti-christs, all Hypocrites, all Worldlings, hurtle together against the Lord and his anointed people. The true Church is a <sup>z</sup> lillie among thornes, a few harmelesse <sup>a</sup> lambes in the midst of many rauens wolues, on enery side compassed about with such as say, Let vs breake their bonds asunder, and cast away their cords from vs.

1. We may learne from hence, <sup>b</sup> not to depend vpon the multitude for their number, because the people mutinously rage together, and imagine vaine things in their conuenticles: nor vpon the mightie for their countenance, because many kings of the earth stand vp, and Rulers take counsell together against the Lord & his Christ.

2. We may know from hence, <sup>c</sup> whether we are the Lords anointed, or no. The <sup>d</sup> world loueth his owne; if then it hate Christ in vs, it is an infallible signe, that we are good <sup>e</sup> souldiers of the Lord, and not seruants of the world. <sup>f</sup> The way to heauen is to saile by hell; if you wil embrace Christ in his robes, you must not think scorne of him in his rags; if you will sit at his table in his kingdome, you must first abide with him in his tentations; if you wil drink of his cup of glorie, forsake not his cup of ignominie. Can the head corner stone be reiected, & the other more base stones in Gods building be set by? You are one of Gods liuely stones, and therefore be content to be hewen and snagged, that you may be made more meet to be ioyned to your fellowes, suffering the snatches of Satan, and wounds of the world.

3. From hence we may be well assured, that the sincere profession of the Gospell in reformed Churches, is the most incorrupt and pure religion, as being most opposite to the children of this world. The Masse (said holy <sup>g</sup> Bradford) doth not bite them, <sup>b</sup> Iohn 7. 48.<sup>i</sup> Euthym.<sup>k</sup> Placidus.

Iacognius.
Agellius.<sup>l</sup> Matth 2. 1.<sup>m</sup> Matth. 27. 2.<sup>n</sup> Ioh 4. 46.

Matth 9. 18.

<sup>o</sup> In loc. idem.

Euthym.

<sup>p</sup> Ephes. 2. 2.<sup>q</sup> Ioh. 12. 31.<sup>r</sup> See Galatin. de Attanis, lib. 3.
cap. 7. & Bellar.
in loc.<sup>s</sup> Acts 9. 4.<sup>t</sup> 2 Tim. 3. 12.<sup>u</sup> Rom. 8. 29.<sup>x</sup> Placidus.

Bucer.

Swiggellius.

<sup>y</sup> Apocal. 7. 1.<sup>z</sup> Cant. 2. 2.<sup>a</sup> Luk. 10. 3.<sup>b</sup> In loc.<sup>c</sup> Bucer.<sup>d</sup> Iohn 15. 19.<sup>e</sup> 2 Tim 2. 2.<sup>f</sup> Bradford apud Fox Mart fol.

1490.

<sup>g</sup> In a letter to his mother.

<sup>1</sup> Apocal. 17. 2.

<sup>1</sup> Relation of religion, § 13.

<sup>k</sup> Martyr fol. 860.

<sup>1</sup> Steucus

Genebrard.

<sup>m</sup> Agellius.

<sup>n</sup> Chrysoſt.

Placidus.

<sup>o</sup> Acts 4. 24.

<sup>p</sup> Eſay 40. 7.

<sup>q</sup> Heb. 12. 29.

<sup>r</sup> Pſal. 144. 4.

<sup>c</sup> Rom. 11. 20.

<sup>e</sup> Virgil. Aeneid. lib. 10.

<sup>u</sup> Epod. 7.

<sup>x</sup> Caluin.

<sup>y</sup> 1 Pet. 2. 11.

<sup>z</sup> 2 Cor. 5. 1.

<sup>a</sup> Job 4. 19.

<sup>b</sup> Pſal. 39. 7.

<sup>c</sup> Bucor.

<sup>d</sup> Job 41. 18.

<sup>e</sup> Caluin.

<sup>f</sup> 2 King. 19. 28

Eſay 37. 39.

<sup>g</sup> Pſal. 131. 4.

them, or make them to blush, as preaching. And therefore the <sup>b</sup> Kings of the earth are drunken with the wine of the Babylonish Whore's abominable fornication. In <sup>i</sup> Rome the humour of every worldling is fitted, and each appetite may finde what to feed on. The mother of whordomes is content to tolerate Jewes, and other vngodlie wretches of diuers and aduerſe faiths in her Country, but she will not endure Lutherans. All things are lawfull in great Babylon, excepting this onely, to professe the Gospell after the manner of Protestants. It is reported by reuerend <sup>k</sup> Fox, that certaine Lawyers and Aduocates in Prouince, maintained openly, that in a case of Lutheraniſme, the Iudges are not bound to obserue either right or reason, order or ordinance, for they cannot erre, whatſoever iudgement they do giue, ſo that it tend to the ruine and extirpation of ſuch as are ſuſpected Lutherans.

Hitherto concerning the wickedneſſe of ſuch as oppoſe themſelues againſt the Lord, and his anointed. I am now to ſpeake of their weakneſſe, implied in the word why? <sup>1</sup> for by this interrogation he doth admire their folly: non enim tam interrogantis, quam deridentis, as a learned <sup>m</sup> expoſitor vpon the place. <sup>n</sup> If they be derided as vnwiſe, who ſhoot arrowes at the Sunne, and barke at the Moone; what errant fooles are they who fight againſt God, dwelling in the heauen of heauens, about Sonne and Moone, <sup>o</sup> who made the heauen, and earth, and ſea, and all things that are therein? Alas, all fleſh is as the <sup>p</sup> graſſe that withereth, and God is a <sup>q</sup> conſuming fire ready to burne this ſtubble. <sup>r</sup> Man is like a thing of nought, but God is almighty, meaſuring the waters in his fiſt, and meating heauen with his ſpanne, and weighing the mountaines in ſkales, and the hills in a ballance, Eſay 40. 12. Man is in the hands of God his maker, as the clay in the hands of the potter, Jer. 18. 6. Now ſhall the thing formed (ſaith <sup>s</sup> S. Paul) diſpute with him who formed it? or man imagine ſo vaine a thing, as to ſtand vp, and take counſell againſt his Creator? So that the Prophet here ſpeakes as the <sup>t</sup> Poet,

Quò moriture ruis, maiorq; viribus audes?

Quid tantum inſano innat indulgere labori?

Or as <sup>u</sup> Horace begins an Epod:

Quò quò ſceleſti ruitis, aut cur dexteris

aptantur enſes conditi?

He that dwelleth in heauen ſhall laugh them to ſcorne] Note here the great odds and difference betweene God and his enemies: 1. He dwelleth in heauen, <sup>x</sup> but his greateſt opposites are Kings vpon earth, vnſetled pilgrimes in <sup>y</sup> earthly tabernacles and houſes of <sup>z</sup> clay. 2. Whereas <sup>b</sup> man diſquieteth himſelfe in vaine, raging, running, ſtanding vp againſt the Lord and his anointed: Almighty God is ſaid here to ſit in heauen at <sup>c</sup> reſt and eaſe. 3. Whereas men imagine vainly to breake his bonds, and caſt away his cords: God in a moment is able to bruise them with a rod of iron, and breake them in peeces like a potters veſſell, Albeit they fret and fume neuer ſo much, he ſhall laugh them to ſcorne, and haue them in deriſion. As it is ſaid of the monſter <sup>d</sup> Leuiathan, He eſteemeth iron as ſtraw, and braſſe as rotten wood; the archer cannot make him flee, the ſtones of the ſling are turned to ſtubble before him, and he laugheth at the ſhaking of the ſpeare. Now theſe things are ſaid groſſely for our capacity, becauſe the Lord indeed can neither laugh nor crie: yet the Scripture ſpeaking after the manner of men, affirμες plainly that God is grieued at our faults, and that he laugheth at our follies, non ſecundũ affectum, (as the Schoole diſtinguiſheth aptly) ſed ſecundum effectum, in that he carrieth himſelfe toward his enemies as one that hath them in deriſion. And this he doth in <sup>e</sup> two reſpects eſpecially.

1. For that he can at any time when he will, as it were ſportingly pull downe ſuch as ſtand vp againſt him, he doth eaſily deſcrie their folly, ſuppreſſe their fury.

2. For that he ſuffereth his enemies in their rebelling and reuelling againſt his anointed, only to play with his bait he hath (as he told <sup>f</sup> Senacherib) an hooke in their noſtrils, and a bridle in their mouthes, he can, & he will (at his good pleaſure) bring them back againe the ſame way they came. <sup>g</sup> He that keepeth Iſrael (howſoener he ſeeme for a while to neglect his Church, and kingdome of his Sonne) ſhall neither ſlumber nor ſleepe. He will (in his due time) ſpeake with all ſuch as combine themselves against his anointed; he will talke with them indeed, <sup>h</sup> non verbis, sed verberibus, as it is in the text, he shall speake to them in his wrath, and vex them in his sore displeasure: he shall bruise them with a rod of iron, and breake them in peeces like a porters vessell, and so shall he make them a scorne to men and Angels; he derides them, in that he sheweth all their plots and practises to be worthy derision.

themſelues

For first, if we construe this of David, he laughed all his enemies to scorne, saying, <sup>k</sup> I anointed thee King over Israel, and deliuered thee out of the hand of Saul, and gaue thee thy Lords house, and his viues into thy bosome, &c. and would mercouer (if that had bene too little) giue thee such and such things, &c. The which is in effect all one with our text at the fifth verse, I haue set my King upon mine holy hill of Sion.

If we construe this of the Church, he laughed all her enemies to scorne, saying, <sup>l</sup> I haue grauen thee in the palmes of mine hands, and thy walls are euer in my sight. <sup>m</sup> Fear thou not, for I am with thee, be not afraid thou worne Iacob, for I the Lord thy God will strengthen thee, and helpe thee, and sustaine thee with the right hand of my iustice. Behold, all they that prouoke thee, shall be confounded and ashamed, they shall be as nothing, and they that strine with thee shall perish, for <sup>n</sup> hell gates shall not ouercome thee.

If we construe this of Christ, he that dwelleth in heauen had all his enemies in derision, he did vse these bad instruments for the effecting of his good ends: so the text, Act. 13. 27. in putting to death the Lord of life, they fulfilled all things that were written of him in the Prophets: and Acts 4. 28. they did whatsoever Gods holy hand and counsell had determined before to be done. All his enemies, as well spirituall as temporall, imagined vainely. The deuill, and death, and sinne furiously raged against him on the Crosse: but he did <sup>o</sup> openly triumph ouer them in the same Crosse. By death he did ouercome death, and open vnto vs the gate of life: for if death could not on this day keepe him fettered in the graue his prison, it is euident that his power is vanquished; and if death be conquered, it followes necessarily, that sinne, which is the sting of death, is also destroyed. If death and sinne be discornfited, then assuredly the kingdome of Satau is subdued, who had the power of death, and is author of sinne, and ruler of hell.

As for his temporall enemies, the Gentiles madly raged against him, and the Iewes imagined a vaine thing, in <sup>p</sup> rolling a great stone to the doore of the sepulchre, sealing it and making it sure with a watch. For it was <sup>q</sup> impossible, that the Lord of life should be holden of death, his soule could not be left in graue, nor his flesh see corruption, and therefore the stone being rolled away by an Herald of heauen, Matth. 28. 2. God raised him againe from the dead, and made him a King ouer his holy hill of Sion, <sup>r</sup> that is, head of his Church, giving him all the heathen for his inheritance, and the vttermost parts of the earth for his possession. And the Rulers held an idle counsell against him, in commanding the souldiers, who guarded his tombe, to say, <sup>s</sup> that his Disciples came by night, and stole him away while they slept: for (as <sup>t</sup> Augustine and <sup>u</sup> other of the most ancient Doctors haue well obserued) it is a very senselesse lie, because the souldiers either were asleepe, or awake: if asleepe, how did they know that his Disciples had taken him away by night? if awake, why did they not guard the tombe, lapidem vt lapides seruabant, as Chrysostome vpon this Psalm. See Gospell on Easter day.

Thus, he that dwelleth in heauen, raising his anointed on this day from the dead, had all his enemies in derision. He said to Christ on Easter day, Thou art my Sonne, this day haue I begotten thee. As if he should haue said, Thou wert euer my Sonne before to day, before there was any day: <sup>x</sup> but yet in this day of thy resurrection, I haue most especially manifested vnto the world, that thou art my Sonne, whom I haue begotten. See this expounded more fully, Epistle on Tuesday in Easter weeke.

<sup>b</sup> Bellarmine.<sup>i</sup> Hieron.<sup>k</sup> 2 Sam. 12. 7.<sup>l</sup> Esay 49. 16.<sup>m</sup> Esay 41. 10.<sup>n</sup> Matth. 16 18<sup>o</sup> Coloff. 2. 15.<sup>p</sup> Matth 27. 60.<sup>q</sup> Act. 2. 24. 31.<sup>r</sup> Hieron.
Augustine.<sup>s</sup> Matth. 28. 13.<sup>t</sup> Rom 3 6.<sup>u</sup> Greg Nyssen orat. 2. de resurrect. Christi.Idem annotat.
in: et neotericos.
Caictan. in Matth. 28.<sup>x</sup> Caluin. & Reb.
Stephanus in loc.
See Suarez tom.
2. in 3. Thom.
disput. 4. s. sect. 1.

7 Basil.
Bellarmine.

Be wise therefore O yee Kings ] In this admonition obserue foure points especially.

2 Tremelius.

1. Who, Kings and Iudges.

2. When, Now.

3. What, { 1. To know their dutie, Be wise, be learned.
2. To doe their dutie, Serue the Lord, kisse the Sonne.

4. Why: because
2 hereby Gods

Heauy wrath is escaped, implied in the word therefore, hauing reference to the iudgements of God, ver. 5. 9. and expressed ver. 12. lest he be angry, and so yee perish from the right way.

Happy blessing is obtained, Blessed are they that put their trust in him.

2 Calvin.

3 Steuchus.

4 Herodianus
lib. 1.

He doth exhort Kings especially, <sup>a</sup>because their greatnesse vsually makes them insolent and rebellious against God. <sup>b</sup> Or, lest haply the subiect should be punished for the Soueraignes follie, Quicquid delirant Reges, plebuntur Achini. Or, because like Prince, like people. Ieroboam made Israel to sinne: <sup>c</sup> for the most part every man emulates the manners of his Prince.

5 Clavianus.
6 Tilenan.

<sup>d</sup> Mobile mutatur semper cum principe vulgus.

Or, he speaks to Kings and Iudges more particularly, <sup>e</sup> for that it belongs vnto their office, to se the people well instructed, it appertaines to their charge ( being Custodes vrinusq; tabule) that every subiect line toward himselfe soberly, toward his neighbour righteously, toward God religiously. For although a King may not administer the Sacraments, or preach the word, or execute the Ministers office de facto: yet (as our Diuines haue determined) it belongs to the Kings cure de iure, to see that all things, concerning Gods holy seruice, should be done in the Church orderly. The Prophet therefore calleth vpon Kings and Iudges earnestly to serue the Lord as the chiefe, knowing that the great wheele mouing in deuotion, is able to carry with it all the lesser wheelles.

7 Confess. Anglican. art. 37. and in the admonition to simple men annexed to Queene Elizabeths In-iunctions

8 1. King. 10. 39
9 Pecius à te non curatus sed cura. Bernard.
10 1. Cor 3. 6.
11 Fox Mart.
fol. 1003.

Here then obserue, what a great charge Princes and Prelates haue, for God saith vnto them, of euery one that is vnder their iurisdiction and cure, keepe this man, if he be lost and want, thy life shall goe for his life. <sup>h</sup> The conuerting of the wicked, howsoeuer it be Gods cure, yet it is thy care, the Lord only giueth increase, yet Paul is to plant, and Apollos to water; and therefore <sup>k</sup> Iohn Longland Bishop of Lincolne, preaching before King Henry the 8. wondred at the Popes blinde folly, who makes, the whole world his Diocese; for if a man at the dreadfull day of iudgement shall hardly answer for himselfe, how shall the Man of Sinne answer for all the world?

12 Ephes. 6. 4.

Now for as much as euery priuate familie is a modell of a kingdome; and every man in his owne house, is both a Priest, and a Prince; be wise ye masters, and learned ye parents, that ye may bring vp your seruants and children in <sup>l</sup> instruction and information of the Lord, serue God in feare, and reioyce in him with reuerence, gine good examples of pietie toward God, of pittie toward your neighboures, of sobrietie toward your selues. As <sup>m</sup> Seneca diuinely, sic viuere cum hominibus, quasi Deus videat: sic loquere cum Deo, quasi homines audiant: So conuerse with men, as if God did see you; so conferre with God, as if men did heare you.

13 Epist. lib. 1.
epist. 10.

Lastly, this exhortation to repentance concerneth all men, as well the lowest, as the highest; if the words ministry reach vnto the Soueraign, how shal it come short of the <sup>n</sup> subiect? If <sup>o</sup> Elias may tell Ahab, It is thou and thy fathers house which haue troubled Israel, in that ye haue forsaken the commandments of the Lord, and haue followed Baalam: If <sup>p</sup> Iohn the Baptist may tell Herod to his beard, It is not lawfull for thee to haue thy brothers wife: If <sup>q</sup> Nathan may tell Dauid the King of his murder and adulterie: then assuredly the Prophets of Almighty God may well admonish inferiours, and tell them of their vaine imaginations, raging against the Lord and his anointed. Saint Peter told Simon Magus, Thou art in the gall of bitterness. <sup>r</sup> S. Paul called his Galathians fooles, because they began in the spirit, and ended in the flesh.

14 Enthym.
Caluin.

15 1. Kin. 18 18
16 Matth 14. 14.
17 2 Sam. 12.

18 Act. 8. 23.
19 Gal. 3. 3.

flesh. <sup>a</sup> S. James cried vnto the couctous worldings, your gold and silver is cankered, and the rust of them is a witnesse against you. The Parson may tell his parishioners of their idleneffe, oppression, hypocrisie, drunkenneffe, &c. exhorting them to learne Christ better, and to be more wise. Such as continue still irrepentant in their finnes, are fooles, and the longer they continue, the greater fooles; if once they turne to the Lord and repent, they begin to be wise, for <sup>u</sup> the feare of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. And therefore the next point is to be pressed, intelligite nunc, be wise now. Now while ye are in the <sup>x</sup> way, now while it is called <sup>y</sup> to day, now while it is time, <sup>z</sup> before Gods heauie iudgements ouertake you, mentioned in the fifth and ninth verse.

Sinne is first (as it were) a Palmer-worme, hurting onely the leaues of the tree; then a Caterpillar, destroying the fruit; last of all (if it be not in due time prevented) a Canker that deuoures the bodie. Christ often compares his Spouse the Church, vnto a Doue, whose call is nunc, nunc, now, now, and the voice of the Turtle is heard in Gods holy land, Cant. 2. 12. but the Crow crying <sup>a</sup> cras, cras, to morrow, to morrow, seemes to be Curate to the deuill, and Vicar of hell. An irrepentant sinner in his securitie sleepe betweene death and the deuill, as Peter did betweene two souldiers, bound with two chaines, Act. 12. 6. He that will not vnderstand and be wise now, may perish in his follie before to morrow. Boast not thy selfe of to morrow, for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth, Prou. 27. 1. O foole, this night may they fetch away thy soule from thee, Luke 12. 20. Be wise therefore now, learne now to know your dutie, and to doe the dutie to the Lord, lest in his anger he bruiſe you with a rod of iron, and breake you in peeces as a potters vessell.

Our vnderstanding must be first informed, and then our affections reformed, according to Gods holy Lawes. <sup>b</sup> Sapientia precedit, religio sequitur, sapience goeth before, Religion followeth. It is our dutie, first to know God, and then to worship him; according to termes of our <sup>c</sup> Common Law, there must be first a scire facias, and then a feri facias. We cannot doe the will of our heavenly Father, except we know it, and it is not sufficient to know it (as <sup>d</sup> Christ teacheth vs) except we do it. The feare of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom, a good vnderstanding (saith our Prophet) haue they that <sup>e</sup> do thereafter, Psal. 111. 10. He that will commence Doctor in Israel, and be learned in Christs schoole, must agere penitentiam, as the Latine translation runs, Matth. 3. 2. It is not enough <sup>f</sup> cogitare, to thinke of amendment, as they who deferre repentance from day to day, ye must euen now be wise: neither is it enough dicere to speak of repentance, like hypocrites, who disfigure their faces, and looke fowre, Mat. 6. 16. Neither is it enough docere, to teach other repentance, like Iudas, who was an instrument for the sauing of other, and yet hanged him selfe. He that will not burne with the deuill, must of necessitie turne to God, and this turning is a whole, not halfe a turne. <sup>g</sup> Turne ye to me, saith the Lord, with all your heart, &c. We haue heretofore plaid the fooles in abusing our soules, and bodies, and goods, vnto the dishonour of God, iniuring of our neighbours, hurt of our selues. It is now time to be wise, and to learne how to be deuout in powring out our soules vnto God; continent, in governing our bodie toward our selues; iust, in disposing of our goods toward other.

Now the best way to be learned, and to know our dutie, is, to be versed in Gods booke, whereof there be two parts, his old Testament, and his new. The ground of the former is the Law, which sheweth our sinne, and containeth iustice: the ground of the latter is the Gospell, which sheweth our Saviour, and containeth grace. The summe of the Law is the Decalogue, more largely dilated in the bookes of Moses interpreted and applied in the Sermons of the Prophets, and illustrated by manifold examples of good and euill, in the stories of Chronicles, and Kings. But because no man is able perfectly to keepe the whole Law, or any part thereof; it pleased God of his infinit goodnesse and wisdom, to incarnate his only Sonne in our nature, who (for the satisfaction of his iustice) might fulfill the course, and suffer the curse of the Law for vs; that since we could not be saned by doing, we might at least be saned by beleeuing. The Gospels of our foure Euangelists, historically relate the birth, life, death, resurrection, and ascension of Christ. The larger interpretation thereof is deliuered in the Apostles Canonick Epistles; and the practise of the Primatiue Church, in their Acts; and the Reuelation of Saint Iohn, is a propheticie concerning the Church vniuersal vnto the worlds end. In the foure Euangelists, he that hath eyes to see, may reade the text of the Gospell, intimating what Christ is in himselfe: in the Acts, Epistles, Apocalyps, as it were the Gospels golden glosse, vnfolding more fully what Christ is in his members. If any then haue a desire to kisse the Sonne, and to learne how to be subiect vnto the bonds and cords of his kingdome: let him exactly search the Scriptures, for they witness of him. In the ceremonies and sacrifices of the Law, you may finde him obscurely shadowed; in the Sermons and Sacraments of the Gospell, openly declared to be the begotten Sonne of God, and anointed King, set ouer his holy hill of Sion.

<sup>a</sup> James 5. 2.<sup>a</sup> Prou. 1. 7.<sup>a</sup> Matth. 5. 25.<sup>y</sup> Heb 3. 13.<sup>a</sup> Calvin.

Genebrard.

<sup>a</sup> Augustin de verbis Dom. in Euang. secund. Matth. ser. 16.<sup>b</sup> Iacstantius institut. lib. 4. cap. 4.<sup>c</sup> Termes of Law. Tit. Scire facias.<sup>d</sup> Luke 12. 47.<sup>e</sup> See notes vp. on the 111. Psalme.<sup>f</sup> Michael de Hungaria, ser. 5. & Stella in Luke. 15. 7.<sup>g</sup> 1 Icel. 2. 12.<sup>b</sup> See Basilicn Decon pag. 7. 8.

Ioh. 5. 39.

Strigellius.

Hieron. Euthym.

Caluin.

1. Cor. 10. 12.
Philip 2. 12.

Marke 7. 6.
Placidus.

Psal. 81. 1. & 100. 1.
Lorin.
Turrescram.
Bellarmine.

Azellius.

* Deut. 4. 24.
† Iacodus.
‡ Dan. 4. 24.
§ Mat. 11. 30.
¶ See Hieron. Steubus. Bucer. Ag. Illius in loc. & Bellarm. de verbo Dei, lib. 2 cap. 13.

Feare, serue the Lord in serue the Lord ] Concerning the doing of our dutie, } feare.
 k two things are required here more especially, } Faith, reioyce vnto him, and } put your trust in him.

Faith is opposite to desperation, and feare to securitie. That we may not presume, we must serue God in feare: that we may not despaire, reioyce vnto him in faith and hope. Feare may not be without ioy, nor ioy without feare. Marke how cautionatly the Spirit speakes here, serue the Lord, but in feare: reioyce vnto the Lord, but in trembling: lest haply we should assume too much vnto our selues, and so presumptuously sinne, he doth admonish vs of one thing m twice. That we may not be discouraged in seruing of God, he would haue vs to reioyce, yet so that our ioy be with reuerence. The deuout woman who came to visit Christs sepulchre, were filled with feare and great ioy, Mat. 28. 8. And n S. Paul aduisech eucry man, who thinks he stands, to take heed lest he fall: and to o worke out their saluation with feare and trembling. God abhorreth hypocrites, a people that honoureth him with their lips, but their heart is farre from him: q his perfit seruice requireth outward obeisance of the bodie, ioyned with inward obedience of the minde, as Hierome glosseth our text, the seruants of God ought to come into his courts, cum tremore corporis, & timore anima, with awfull hearts, and trembling hands, so r singing to the Lord in gladnesse, that they may reioyce in the Lord with reuerence. This feare may not be teruile, but filiall: as a father he loueth vs, and s herefore we must as deare children honour him, obeying with a reuerent awe, whatsoeuer he would haue vs either to suffer or doe. t Mire miscuit amorem cum timore, ac si diceret, timete eum amore, & amate cum timore.

The last obseruable point is why, because hereby yee shall escape Gods heauie curse, that falleth vpon such as resist his Christ; and obtaine that happy blessing, which is promised vnto such as put their trust in him. u Vnderstand then, O yee Kings, and be no longer obstinate, ye haue heretofore stood up against the Lord, and his anointed Sonne: but now serue the Lord and kisse his Sonne. O ye Kings and Iudges of the earth, acknowledge that Christ is the King of Kings, euen the Lord of all things, and Iudge of all men, able to make you his footstoole, as hauing the heathen for his inheritance, and the whole world for his possession; and holding a rod of iron in his hand, to dash into peeces all such as take counsell together against him. He is also ready to destroy you, for his wrath is kindled, and x God is a consuming fire. y The more fewell, the greater flame. Your offences make you the very fewell of his anger: and therefore z breake off your sins by righteoufnesse, embrace the bonds of his authoritie, which you meant to breake, for his a yoke is easie: Cast not his cords away, for his burthen is light. Euen now, while you are in the way, kicke not against the Sonne, but kisse the Sonne, b that is, admit of his doctrine, and submit your selues to his discipline. Christ is the truth, and the way; that therefore ye may not periss from the right way, kisse him, and keepe his Commandements, as Hierome paraphraseth it pithily.

Deuotion : for Idolaters are said to kisse their Idols, Hosca. 13. 2. but Gods people refused to kisse the mouth of Baal. From hence worshipping is in Latin called Adoratio.

Kissing in old time was vsed in token of Obedience : so Samuel kissed Saul, 1. Sam. 10. 1. and Aaron kissed Moses, Exod. 4. 27. and it is the manner of subiects at this day, to kisse the hands of their Kings.

Loue : so Joseph kissed his brethren : so Naoimi kissed her two daughters in Law : so the good old father kissed his dissolute sonne, Luk. 15. 20.

All these kindes of kisses are due to Christ : in our deuotion it is our dutie to fall downe before him, and with Marie Magdalen to kisse his feet, yea the feet of such as bring the glad tidings of his Gospell. And in our whole conuersation, it is our dutie to giue vnto him (our King and Lord) the kisses of honour and homage, seruing him in feare, reioycing vnto him with reuerence. We must heartily kisse him in faith, and not hypocritically, like Iudas, in fashion only. Wherefore some translations haue it thus, adore pure, worship him in truth and puritie, cleaue to him, and embrace his word with as louing an affection, as they doe that kisse one another :

m Atque vni totos ipsi vos dedite, tota Mente, animoque velut Dominum amplexamini, eiq; Figite amicitiae purissima basia sancta.

The Sonne came into the world to reconcile vs vnto God his Father : he came not to kill vs, he came to kisse vs, and that (as the Church speaks in her loue-song) with the kisses of his mouth. His saying, Come vnto me all ye that are wearie and laden, and I will ease you, is a sweet kisse of his mouth. His saying, I am not come to call the righteous vnto repentance, but sinners, is another sweet kisse of his mouth. His saying, God soloued the world, that he gaue his only begotten Sonne, that whosoever beleueth in him, should not perish, but haue euerlasting life, is another sweet kisse of his mouth. It is verè suauiolum, as being sweeter than honey, Psal. 19. 10. better than wine, Cant. 1. 1. As concord is the coniunction of two soules; euen so kissing, which is a token of concord, is the coniunction of two bodies. Our blessed Sauiour daily proffers and offers to kisse vs: if we then vnmanly despise the riches of his goodnesse, and obstinately perish from the right way; he shall one day speak to vs in his wrath, and if his wrath be kindled, yea but a little, what a fearefull thing will it be, to fall into the hands of the liuing God, which is a consuming fire?

If any shall aske, how shall I, which am a poore pilgrim on earth, ascend and kisse my Sauiour who dwelleth in heauen? Answer is made by Dauid in the very next clause, Blessed are all they that put their trust in him: as if he should haue said, To beleue in him, and to put our whole trust in him, is to kisse him.

In this proposition, as in all other, three points are to be considered especially, the

}	Subiect , all that trust in him.
	Pradicate , blessed.
	Copula , are.

*Not they who trust in themselves, and their owne merits, or in Princes and their meanes, or in Saints and their mediations, or in Angels, or in any thing else, beside Christ: onely such are free from the tyrannous oppression of Satan and sin, who put their trust in him. He saith not, all they that beleue him, and assent barely to his promise: but omnes qui confidunt, all they who confidently place their affiance in his mercies, and beleue in him, according to that of S. Iohn the Baptist, He that beleueth in him shall not be condemned: but he that beleueth not, is condemned already, because he beleueth not in the name of the only begotten Sonne of God. I finde that some Doctours among the Iewes, by him, vnderstand God the Father: but Christian Interpreters vsually referre this vnto God the Sonne, making the coherence thus: O kisse the Sonne, for blessed are all they that put their trust in him. Here then is a pregnant place to proue that iustification is by faith in Christ. See Melancthon, Bucer, Tileman in loc.

<sup>e</sup> King. 19. 18.
See Hieron in Iob 31. 27. & in Hosca 13. 2.

<sup>d</sup> Gen 45. 15.
<sup>e</sup> Ruth 1. 9.

<sup>f</sup> Psal 95. 6.
<sup>g</sup> Matth. 28. 9.
<sup>h</sup> Rom. 10. 15.

<sup>i</sup> Placidus.
<sup>k</sup> Steuchus.
<sup>l</sup> Agellius.
<sup>m</sup> Bellarmine.
<sup>n</sup> Io. Grancius.
<sup>o</sup> Parasimus Theologus in loc.
<sup>p</sup> Ephes 2. 16.
<sup>q</sup> Cant. 1. 1.

<sup>r</sup> Melanct. in loc.
<sup>s</sup> Strigellius in loc.
<sup>t</sup> Concordia duorum cordium, ofculum duorum corporum coniunctio. Io. à Ies. Maria in Cant. 1.
<sup>u</sup> Rom. 2. 4.
<sup>v</sup> Heb. 10. 31.

<sup>w</sup> Strigellius.
Tileman.

<sup>x</sup> Hieron.
<sup>y</sup> Act. 4. 12.
<sup>z</sup> See Placidus.
Melancthon.
Bucer in loc.
<sup>aa</sup> Ioh 3. 18.
<sup>bb</sup> D Kimebi.
apud Bucerus in loc.
<sup>cc</sup> Placidus.
Caluin.
Genebrard.
Io Grancius
in loc. Idem. Ecllarm. de verbo Dei, lib. 2. cap. 11.

There be three kinds of blessing : { Externall, as the gifts of the world.
Internall, as the gifts of grace.
Eternall, as the gifts of glory.

<sup>d</sup> In loc. Now, bonorum omnium cumulus & summa, saith <sup>d</sup> Augustinae, belongeth vnto such as put their trust in the Lord. They haue the promises of the life present, and of that which is to come, 1. Tim 4. 8. Mercy doth embrace them on euery side, Psal. 32. 11. Blessed in euery kinde of blessing, as reuerend Beza paraphrastically:

— omnibus o modis beatos illos, qui Domino Deoq, fidunt.

<sup>e</sup> Deut. 28. 3. 1. They be blessed in things of this world, blessed in <sup>e</sup> their field, and blessed in their fold, blessed in the fruit of their cattell, and increase of corne, blessed in their comming home: loe thus shall they be blessed who feare the Lord, Psal. 128. 5. Or if God denie these blessings vnto them, it is for their <sup>f</sup> good, and so they be blessed in their crosse, hauing (as Paul said) nothing, and yet possessing all things, 2. Cor. 6. 10.

<sup>e</sup> Ephes. 1. 3. 2. Blessed in the gifts of grace, both illuminating and sauing, blessed with <sup>r</sup> all spirituall blessing in heauenly things in Christ, blessed in respect of

<sup>b</sup> Matth 13. 15. <sup>c</sup> Luke 10. 23. Vocation: <sup>h</sup> Blessed are the eyes which see the things that you see, and the eares which heare the things that you heare. Blessed are they which are called to the Lambes Supper, Apocal. 19. 9.

<sup>i</sup> Psal 32. 1. <sup>j</sup> Rom 4. 7. <sup>k</sup> Psal 1. 7. <sup>l</sup> Matth. 24. 46. Their Justification: Blessed are they, whose wickednesse is forgiven, and whose sinnes are covered.

Sanctification: <sup>k</sup> Blessed is the man that hath not walked in the counsell of the vngodly, &c. Blessed is the seruant, whom his master when he commeth shall finde doing his dutie. Blessed are the poore in spirit, blessed are the meeke, blessed are the mercifull, Matth. 5.

<sup>m</sup> Matth. 25. 34. <sup>n</sup> Matth. 5. 3. 2. Blessed in the gifts of glory, <sup>m</sup> Come ye blessed, inherit ye the kingdome, &c. theirs is the kingdome of heauen. It is now theirs in hope, hereafter it shall be theirs in hold. See notes vpon the Gospell on All-Saints day.

PSALME 57.

Be mercifull vnto me, O God, be mercifull vnto me, &c.

<sup>e</sup> Melanct. <sup>f</sup> Caluin. <sup>g</sup> Tileman. DAuid in this hymne prayeth, and praiseth the Lord. First, he prayeth vnto God, from the 1. verse to the 8. for deliuerance from his enemies tyrannie. Then, as conceiuing vndoubted hope thereof he prepares himselfe to praise God in the rest, O God my heart is fixed, my heart is fixed, I will sing and giue praise.

Dutie, for my soule trusteth in thee, &c.

Petition, Be mercifull, &c. inforced by his Cruell enemies, my soule is among Lions, verse 4, 5.

Danger, as being persecuted by Cunning enemies, they haue laid a net for my feet, ver. 7.

In his prayer two points are remarkable, to wit, a Repetition, in the 6. & 12. verses, as the burthen of the song, Set up thy selfe, O God, about the heauens, and thy glory above all the earth.

<sup>h</sup> Tremelius.

Be mercifull vnto me, O God. The title sheweth vs that Dauid made this Psalme, when he fled from Saul into the Cauce. The story whereof is reported at large, 1. Sam. 24. and it is in brieffe this: Saul persecuting Dauid, sought him in the wildernesse of Engedi, vpon the rocks, among the wilde goats: and being there in a Cauce to couer his feet, Dauid hauing him at his mercie, would not kill the Lords anointed, but only cut off the lap of his coat, to shew, that he could haue touched his skinne so well as his skirt, skirt, and that he could haue made him (as it is in the prouerbe) shorter by the head, so well as curtall his robe. Which when Saul after perceiued, his heart relented for Dauids great kindnesse, and he wept, acknowledging his fault, and taking an oath of Dauid, that he should not destroy his seed: he ceased his persecuting for a time. Dauid in this distresse composed this hymne, the which is grounded vpon his faith, and his faith is grounded vpon Gods mercy and might. Gods mercy, Be mercifull vnto me; O God be mercifull, as being so willing to defend thy children, as the hen is her chickens under the shadow of her wings. Gods might, I will call vnto the most high God; euen vnto the God, that shall performe the cause I haue in hand, who shall send from heauen, to wit, his hand, as Psalm 144. 7. or his Angell, as Dan. 3. 28. or, as it here followeth, his mercy and truth, able to saue me from the reproofe of him that would eat me vp and deuoure my soule. By supernaturall and extraordinarie miracles, so well as ordinary meanes, able to deliuer his seruants as well with few as with many. So Manasses in his praier, builded all his comfort vpon Gods almighty power, and vnsearchable mercifull promise. So Christ in his absolute patterne of praying, aduiseeth vs to call vpon God as our Father in heauen, insinuating hereby, that God is willing to grant our requests, as being our Father; and able, because in heauen. And according to these presidents, our holy Mother the Church of England begins her publike deuotion vnto God, Almightie and most mercifull Father. Able to heare, because almightie: willing to helpe, mercifull.

For my soule thirsteth in thee] He desires to be heard in respect of his assured assistance in Gods almightie power and holy promise, The Lord is nigh vnto all them that call vpon him, euen all such as call vpon him faithfully: Call vpon me in the time of trouble, so will I heare thee, &c. * Blessed are all they that put their trust in him. And therefore Dauid here challengeth (as it were) God vpon his word, saying, Be mercifull vnto me, for my soule trusteth in thee. The repetition of miserere, sheweth his earnest affection and intention in praying, and the word soule, that his hope for helpe was no flying conceit of his braine, but a full assurance setled in his heart. Lord I trust in a nothing else but in thee alone, for under the shadow of thy wings shall be my refuge, vntill this tyrannie be ouerpast. Some put their trust in b vncertaine riches, and say to the wedge of gold, c thou art my confidence. But d riches auaille not in the day of wrath: e horders vp of siluer and gold are come to naught, and gone downe to hell: O foole! this night will they fetch away thy soule from thee, Luke 12. 20.

Other trust in their owne worth and holinesse, as the Pharisee (Luke 18) stood and prayed thus with himselfe, O God I thanke thee that I am not as other are, extortioners, vniust, adulterers: I fast wise in the weeke, I giue iithe of all that euer I possesse. But f blessed is the man that feareth alway, for he that trusteth in his owne heart, is a foole.

Other trust in their publike counsell, as Achitophel, of whom it was said in those daies, that his counsell was reputed g as an oracle of God: but the Lord h catcheth the wise in their owne craftinesse, and the counsell of the wicked is made foolish.

Other boast of their strength, and put their trust (as Goliath did) in their sword and shield: but k curst is the man that maketh flesh his arme, withdrawing his heart from the Lord.

Other put their trust in Princes, and make the Kings Minion their mediator. But, saith our l Prophet, O put not your trust in Princes, nor in any childe of man; for his breath goeth forth, and he turneth againe to his earth, and then all his thoughts perish.

Other put their trust in m Chariots, and other in horses: but we will remember the name of the Lord our God; only blessed is he, that hath the God of Iacob for his helpe, and whose hope is in the Lord his God, Psalm 146. 4. and therefore be mercifull vnto me, O God, be mercifull vnto me, for in thee haue I put all my confidence. Mine other friends and forces besides thee, what are they but miserable comforters (as n Iob speaks) if they be compared with thee? o Like as the chickens seeke to the henne for defence; so runne I to the shadow of thy wings for my refuge. Lord my soule trusteth q The like phrase Psalm 138 and Philip. 1. 6.

r Mollerus, Tileman, Caluist, opposing heauen to terrene meanes.

s 1. Sam. 14. 6. & 2. Chr. 24. 11

t Psalm 145. 18.

u Psalm 50. 15.

x Psalm 2. 12.

y Euthymus Agellius, Genebrard,

z Caluin.

a D. Incognit. b Et c. c Bachanus,

d 1. Tim. 6. 17.

e Iob 31. 24.

f Prou. 11. 4. g Baruc. 3. 17. 19

h Prou. 28. 1. 16

i 2. Sam. 16. 23.

j Iob 5. 13.

k 1. Cor. 2. 9.

l 1. Sam. 17. 45.

m Ierem. 17. 5. n Psalm 146. 2.

o Psalm 20. 7. p Iob 16. 2.

q Tileman,

r Bellarmino.

trusteth in thee now, so shall it euer, untill this euill be passed ouer. For by the word untill, he meanes not, that when the storme was appealed, he would then cease to trust in God; but that he would both then and for euer depend vpon him, as long as he hath any being, Psal. 146. 1. So the word untill is vsed; 2. Sam. 6. 23. Michol the daughter of Saul had no childe untill the day of her death. And Psalme 110. vers. 1. The Lord said vnto my Lord, sit thou on my right hand, untill I make thine enemies thy footstool. Where the word untill (as I haue shewed vpon the place) notes not a peece of time, but a perpetuities. For Christ (after all his enemies are made his footstool) shall euer sit at the right hand of God, as hauing a throne which endureth euer, and a kingdom without end.

Under the shadow of thy wings, shall be my refuge ] By this he doth vnderstand Gods safegard, protection, and prouidence. The Metaphor is borrowed from the Hen, whose wings in three things especially, resemble Gods high and holy hand ouer vs: 1. The wings of the Hen nourish and brood her chickens: euen so the Lord said vnto Hierusalem, How often would I haue gathered thy children together, as the hen gathereth her chickens vnder her wings, and ye would not? 2. The wings of the Hen serue to defend her chickens from a tempest and storme: so God is a refuge against the tempest, a shadow against the heat. 3. The wings of the Hen serue to protect her chickens from the Kite that houereth ouer them, and would faine deuoure them: euen so God deliuereth his children from the snare of the hunter, that is, from the subtle tentations of the deuill, who walketh about seeking whom he may deuoure, 1. Pet. 5. 8. The Lord hideth all his vnder the shadow of his wings, and so capape, they shall be safe vnder his feathers; his faithfulness shall be their shield, and his truth their buckler, Psal. 91. 4.

Untill this tyrannie be ouer-past ] He compareth his affliction and calamitie to a storme that commeth and goeth: as it is not alway faire weather with vs in this life, so not alway foule; Heauiness may continue for a night, but ioy commeth in the morning. God is faithfull, who will not suffer his children to be tempted aboue their abilitie, but will euen giue the issue with the tentation. Arthanasius said of Iulian, furiously raging against the Lords anointed, nubecula est, cito transibit. Man is borne to labour and dolour, to trauell and trouble. To labour in his actions, to dolour in his passions. and so great are the troubles of the righteous, but the Lord deliuereth him out of all. If we put our trust in him, and cast all our care vpon him, he will in his good time bring it to passe, that all our afflictions shall ouerpasse: he will either take them from vs, or vs from them, and then we shall assuredly know that the troubles of this life present are not worthy of the glory, which in the life to come shall be shewed vnto vs. For as the globe of the earth, which improperly for his shew of bignesse, we terme the world, and is, after the Mathematicians account, many thousand miles in compasse, yet being compared vnto the greatnesse of the starrie skies circumference, is but a center or little pricke: so the tranell and affliction in this life temporall, in respect of the ioyes eternall in the world to come, beare not any proportion, but are to be reputed (in comparifon) a very nothing, as a darke cloud that commeth and goeth in a moment.

This (as Melancthon here notably) requires rather an application, than an explication or large commentarie. Blessed is that man, who can in all his affliction and trouble say with our Prophet, O God be mercifull vnto me, for my soule trusteth in thee, and vnder the shadow of thy wings shall be my refuge, till this tyrannie be ouer-past. Happy man is he, who can in the middest of his crosses and losses affirme truly with holy Iob. The Lord giueth, and the Lord taketh away, blessed be the name of the Lord; though he slay me, yet will I trust in him; as he maketh the wound, so will he binde it vp, he smiteth, and his hands make whole. Happy man is he, who can in the houre of tentation, hide himselfe with the Church in the holes of the rocke, that is, in the wounds of Christ, our rocke and refuge in the time of trouble.

Yea, but where dwelleth our blessed Sauiour, how shall we find him? Vnto this question himselfe answered, Ioh. 1. 39. Come and see. The Church is his house, there he dwelleth, and there you may find him alwayes at home, not in his mothers armes,

D. In cognita,
Wilcox.

¶ Heb. 1. 18.
¶ Luk. 1. 33.
¶ Euthym.
¶ Bellarmine.
¶ Bonavent.
¶ Molierus.
¶ Matth. 23. 37.

¶ Esay 2. 1.

¶ Psal. 91. 3.
¶ Augustine.
¶ Hieron.
¶ Anobius.

¶ Geneva gloss.
¶ Wilcox.
¶ Caluin.
¶ Psal. 30. 5.
¶ 1. Cor. 10. 13.
¶ Apud Talemant
in loc.
¶ Iob 5. 7.
¶ Iob 14. 1.
¶ Bernard.
¶ Psal. 34. 18.

¶ Rom. 8. 12.

¶ Idem Strigel-lius in loc.

¶ Iob 1. 21.
¶ Iob 13. 15.
¶ Iob 5. 18.
¶ Cant. 2. 14.
¶ Heb. 3. 6.
¶ See Cyril. & Aristodotus. in Ioan. 1. 39.
¶ Psal. 135. 21.

armes or on a wooden Crucifix; but in his holy word and Sacraments Natus est Christus de virgine, numquid semper nascitur? saith Augustine: He was once borne of the Virgin, shall he be borne still of her? He did once sucke her breasts, is he still an infant and a sucking babe? Once he did hang on the Crosse, doth he still hang on it? Hæc transferunt, these things are past and gone. But seeke him in his word, for that witnesseth of him; and in his Sacraments, for they represent lively both his bloud and body. His word is an audible Sacrament, and his Sacraments are visible words. So long as the Church had golden Teachers, she needed no wooden Images: but when once golden Priests degenerated into wooden, then both wooden and golden Images crept in, If the Queene of Sheba condemned the men of Christs age, much more the men of our time, living in the Church of England. She was a Queene, we subjects: she left her kingdome and country, we (God be praised) sit vnder His owne vines in our owne soyle: she came from the furthest part of the world, we haue Christ among vs: she was moued only with his fame, we both heare Christ in his word, and see him in his Sacraments: she comming to Salomon brought presents, we comming to Christ may receiue rewards: she came to behold Salomon a meere man, we may behold Christ God and man, a greater than Salomon: greater in wisdom, for neuer any man spake as he did: greater in might and mercy, for neuer any man did as he did, he did all things well, & he made the deafe to heare, the dumbe to speake, the binde to see, the lame to goe, he cured the sicke, and raised the dead, and that is more than euer King Salomon did. Greater in maiestie, for Salomon in all his royaltie was nothing else but a type of this our King of glory. So that if we doe not come to him in our rentations and troubles, inuiting vs freely, fully, Come all ye that labour and are laden, and I will ease you: the Queene of the South assuredly shall arise in iudgement against vs, and by her example condemne vs.

When Toxaris saw his countriman Anacharsis in Athens, he said vnto him, I will at once shew thee all the wonders of Greece: Viso Solone, vidisti omnia, in seeing Solon thou seest all, euen Athens it selfe, and the whole glory of the Greekes. In like manner I may tell a Christian: Hast thou faith, and assured trust in the Lord? then thou hast more than the wonders of Greece; vpon the point, all the wonderfull gifts of grace: for faith is a mother vertue from which all other spring, and without which our best actions are no better than sinne, Rom. 14. 23. Wherefore let vs alway labour for faith, as for life, because the iust man liueth by his faith; his soule trusteth in the Lord, and vnder the shadow of his wings shall be his refuge, till all the tyrannie (both of Satan and sinne, death and hell) is ouerpast.

My soule] That is, my life, body, person, as the word soule is oft vsed elswhere, namely, Genes. 14. 21, Numb. 31. 40. Ioh. 10. 32. 1. Sam. 22. 22

Among lions] An vnregenerate man hauing Gods image defaced in him, is but a little better than a very vermine. Auaritia seruet alienarum opum violentus creptor? similem lupo dixeris: serox atque inquietus linguam litigij exerceat? Cani comparabilis. Insidiator occultus surripuisse fraudibus gaudet? vulpeculis exequetur. Ira intemperans fremit? leonis animum gestare credatur. Pavidus ac fugax non metuenda formidat? ceruis similis habeatur. Segnis ac stupidus torpet? asinum viuunt. Lenis ac inconstans studia permutat? nil ab anibus differt. Fædis immundisque libidinibus immergitur? sordide suis voluptate detinetur. Ita sit, ut qui probitate deserta homo esse deserit, cum in diuinam conditionem transire non possit, vertatur in belluam. To this purpose, Carolus Bouillus excellently, Humana sub cute plurime latent ferae. The Scripture saith as much in calling a subtill dissembler fox, Goe tell that fox, said Christ of Herod, Luke 13. 32. in calling a soule-murthering false Prophet, a rauening wolfe: in calling a vaine man, a wilde asse colt: in calling a voluptuous man, giuing ouer to worke all vncleanness euen with greedinesse, a swallowing in the mire: in calling a proud man in honour, that vnderstands not how to vse the good things he hath, a brute that perieth, as horse and mule without vnderstanding. So Dauid here termes the children of men, which are set on fire to doe mischief, whelps of lions: My soule is among lions. O God be mercifull vnto me, for my soule is persecuted by such enemies as abound with a great deale of might and malice. Might, as being

<sup>c</sup> Matth. 12. 42.

<sup>d</sup> 1. Kings 10. 1.

<sup>u</sup> Iohn 7. 46.
<sup>z</sup> Mark 7. 37.
<sup>y</sup> Matth. 11. 5.

<sup>z</sup> Lucianus in Scytha.

<sup>a</sup> Habacuc. 2. 4.

<sup>b</sup> Boetius de consolat. Philo- sophie, lib. 4. prosa. 3.

<sup>c</sup> Dialog. de immortalit. anime.

<sup>d</sup> Matth. 7. 15.

<sup>e</sup> Iob 11. 12.

<sup>f</sup> 2. Pet. 2. 22.

<sup>g</sup> Psal 49. 10.

<sup>h</sup> Psal 32. 10.

lions,

lions, that is, hardy and haughty, Lebaim of leb, that is, heart, conrage. So lions are mentioned in holy Scripture for stoutnesse: 2. Sam. 17. 10. He that is valiant, whose heart is as the heart of a lion: and for boldnesse, Prou. 28. 1. The righteous are bold as a lion. And my foes haue great fury so well as force, being set on fire, raging themselves, and inflaming other also with anger and enuie, meere bouteseus.<sup>k</sup> So that if I should scape the iauces of lions, which hurt at hand; yet I may fall into their blacke mouthes, whose teeth and tongue like lannces and arrowes bit and wound a farre off. By<sup>l</sup> these fierie fellowes he doth vnderstand backbiting slanderers and sycophants in the Court of Saul, accusing him of treason and disloyalty. For so himselfe complaineth, 1 Sam. 24. 10. Wherefore giuest thou an eare to mens words, who say, Behold, Dauid seeketh euill against thee?

<sup>m</sup> Salomon saith, A man that beares false witnesse against his neighbour, is like an hammer and a sword, and a sharpe arrow. Nay, the detracting tongue hurts a great deale more than either sword or arrow. For a sword that makes a big wound cannot hurt farre off, and an arrow that hurteth farre off, vsually makes no big wound: but the lewd tongue cuts deeper than any sharpe sword, and flieth faster and further than any swift arrow. The dagger at one blow, the dart at one shoot kills not many: but a slanderer in telling one tale, may murder at one time three, to wit, himselfe, the party to whom, and the party of whom he telleth it. Vnus est qui loquitur, & unum tantum verbum profert, & tamen illud unum verbum, vno momento multitudinis audientium dum aures inficit, animas interficit. The wicked (saith our<sup>o</sup> Prophet) haue sharpned their tongues like a serpent, and the tongue of a serpent (as<sup>p</sup> Plinie telleth vs) is trifurca, three edged.

They haue laid a net for my feet] As the foes of Dauid were cruell, a<sup>q</sup> generation whose teeth are swords, and iauces are knives to deuoure Gods afflicted people; so likewise craftie, laying snares for his feet, thinking to catch him in a pit-fall, as a bird, or as a beast in a ginne. The<sup>t</sup> wicked bend their bow, and make ready their arrowes vpon the string, that they may secretly shoot at them which are vpright in heart; that which they cannot effect by power, they will attempt by policie. But the<sup>u</sup> snare is broken, the<sup>k</sup> net, which they laid priuily, caught themselves, and they who digged the pit, are fallen into the midst of it themselves. And here we may behold Gods infinite iustice, who neuer leaues the deedes of charity, nor the debts of cruelty vsatisfied. As<sup>v</sup> Gideon slew seuentie Elders of Succoth with vnumerable torments: euen so were his owne seuentie sonnes, all but one murdered by his bastard Abimelec. So the wicked<sup>z</sup> Egyptians (hauing caused some male-children of the Hebrewes to be slaine, and other of them to be cast into the water and drowned) were rewarded by God in the like measure, destroying their owne<sup>a</sup> first borne by his Angell, and drowning their King and his host in the red sea, Exod. 14. So<sup>b</sup> Haman was hanged vpon the same gallows he set vp for Mordecai. <sup>c</sup> Baiazet the first, who purposed in the pride of his heart, if he should conquer Tamberlaine, to carry him in an iron cage thorow his kingdome; was himselfe serued in the same kinde by victorious Tamberkine. The Tyrant<sup>d</sup> Maxentius was ouerthrowne in the same bridge, which he craftily built as a snare for the destruction of Constantine; and so his<sup>e</sup> mischiefe fell vpon his owne head, and his wickednesse vpon his owne pate. <sup>f</sup> Alexander the sixt was poisoned at supper with the very same wine, which he had prepared as a deadly draught for his familiar friend Cardinall Adrianus: It is said in the storie, that it happened by his seruants improuidence, who mistooke the bottles; and yet doubtesse by Gods all-seeing prouidence, who casteth his enemies into the same pit they digged for other.

Mystically this Hymne may be construed of<sup>g</sup> Christ, who was<sup>h</sup> in the dayes of his flesh assaulted by the tyranny both of temporall and spirituall enemies. His temporall enemies, <sup>i</sup> Herod and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles and people of Israel, furiously raged, and tooke counsell together against him. The chiefe Priests and Princes were (saith<sup>k</sup> Hierome) like lions, and the people like the whelps of lions, all of them in a readinesse to deuoure his soule. The Rulers laid a net for his feet in their<sup>l</sup> captious interrogatories, asking, Matth. 22. 17. Is it lawfull that tribute be giuen

vnto

<sup>l</sup> Ardeliones
aulici Tremel.
<sup>k</sup> See Bellar. &
Agell. in loc.
<sup>l</sup> Bucer.
Tileman.
Rob. Stephanus.

<sup>m</sup> Prou. 25. 18.

<sup>o</sup> Bernard. serm.
24. in Cant.

<sup>p</sup> Psal. 140. 3.

<sup>p</sup> Nat. hist. lib.

<sup>q</sup> cap. 37.

<sup>q</sup> Prou. 30. 14.

<sup>r</sup> Euthym.

Caluin.

<sup>s</sup> Bellarmino.

Agellus.

<sup>t</sup> Psal. 11. 2.

<sup>u</sup> Psal. 124. 6.

<sup>v</sup> Psal. 35. 8.

<sup>v</sup> Judges 8.

<sup>z</sup> Exod. 1.

<sup>a</sup> Exod. 12.

<sup>b</sup> Ester 7. 10.

<sup>c</sup> Knolles in his life.

<sup>d</sup> Euseb. hist. lib.
o. cap. 9.

<sup>e</sup> Psal. 7. 17.

<sup>f</sup> Pet. Bemtus hist Venet. lib. 6.

Idem Pontanus

de prudent. lib. 4.

cap. 16.

<sup>g</sup> Hieron.

Augustine.

D. Incongnius.

Lorinus.

<sup>h</sup> Heb. 5. 7.

<sup>i</sup> Act. 4. 27.

<sup>k</sup> In loc.

<sup>l</sup> Turrecremat.

Lorinus in loc.

unto Caesar, or no? And Ioh. 8.5. whether the woman taken in the very act of adulterie, should be stoned to death or no? The people were set on fire, when as they raged against him, and their teeth and tongues were speares and swords, in crying, Crucifixe him, crucifixe him. His spirituall enemies also sought how to swallow him vp, his soule was among lions all the dayes of his life, at the houre of his death especially. The deuill in tempting and troubling him, had laid a snare for his feet; and death, in digging a pit for him, had thought to deuoure him. As David was in the caue, so Christ the soune of David was in the graue. But it was impossible that the Lord of life should be holden of death, or that his flesh should see corruption; he therefore rose againe from the dead on this day, setting himselfe above the heauens, and his glorie above all the earth. In his anguish and agonie he did offer vp prayers and supplications, with strong crying and teares vnto him that was able to saue him from death, saying: PO my Father, if it be possible, let this cup passe from me: neuer thelesse not as I will, but as thou wilt. And so Christ here called vpon his Father, O God be mercifull vnto me, &c. But he speaks as man, and in the person of men, ¶ Unus homo dicit, sed vnus pro multis. And ¶ S. Augustine sweetly, Qui cum patre miseretur tui, in te clamat miserere mi. Christ, according to his ¶ Thelesis and naturall will, abhorred and feared death, and therefore said, O God be mercifull vnto me: but according to his ¶ Boulesis and ratioll will, he yeilded himselfe voluntarily to his persecutors, and said, Under the shadow of thy wings shall be my refuge, till this euill be ouerpast. And ¶ Psalm. 16.9. (as ¶ S. Peter applieth it, Acts 2.25.) I beheld God alway before me, for he is at my right hand, that I shall not fall. Wherefore such as affirme that he suffered the pangs of desperation, and the very paines of the damned in hell, erre fouly, not vnderstanding the Scriptures. He saith here ¶ ver. 5. according to the vulgar Latine, Dormiui conturbatus, he was indeed grieuouly troubled in his soule; yet so that he slept, ¶ tam placatus erat iste turbatus, ut quando vellet dormiret. He feared his enemies tyrannie, ¶ secundum propassionem, (as ¶ Lombard acutely) non secundum passionem. Or, to speake in the words of ¶ Bernard, he was turbatus, moued, but not per-turbatus, remoued from his trust in God, and resolution to worke our good. And therefore he said in another ¶ Psalme, I will lay me downe in peace, and take my rest, as hauing power to lay downe my life, and power to take it vp againe. For as he died when he would, euen so when he would he did arise from the dead, setting himselfe above the heauens, and his glorie above all the earth.

According to this exposition, our Church allotted this Hymne to be read on this holiday: for in Christs resurrection all his enemies tyrannie was ouer-past; in his resurrection his ¶ glorie (which heretofore was obscure) did appeare above all the earth; in his resurrection he did awake right early, to the text, in the morning early when it is darke; in his resurrection, his lute and harpe did awake, that is, his flesh arose from the bed of his graue. ¶ The strings of an Harpe are touched, and sound vpward especially, but the strings of a Lute from below: Christs humane nature then in working diuine miracles, which are from above, was like the Harpe; but in suffering our infirmities here below, like a Lute. The Harpe did sound, when he made the blinde to see, the deafe to heare, the lame to goe, &c. but the Lute did sound, when he was a thirst, hungrie, naked, whipped, when he cried, when he died, when he was buffeted, and when he was buried. After his resurrection, all the miracles he did out of his power, and all the miseries he suffered out of his infirmite, were by the blessed Appostles, instruments of his glorie, preached first among the people, then among all nations, euery where linging, that the greatnesse of his mercie reacheth vnto the heauens, and his truth vnto the clouds.

This also may be construed of the ¶ Church, and that both in respect of her spirituall enemies and temporall. As for her ghostly foes, the deuill is a roaring lion; ¶ 1. Pet. 5.8. and our sinnes are the ¶ whelps of lions, ready to deuoure vs. And concerning outward enemies, the Church in this world is like ¶ Daniel in the lions den, or as the sucking childe playing vpon the hole of the Aspe, ¶ Esay 11.8. she hath here no visible power or outward helpe to flie to for succour, all her trust is in the Lord, under the shadow of his wings is her refuge, till this euill is ouer-past. In old time Gods

*¶ Augustine.¶ Act. 2.24.¶ Heb 5.7.¶ Matth. 26.32.¶ Hieron.¶ In loc.¶ See notes vp-on Gospell 10.
Sund. after Trinit.*

X

*¶ August in loc.
Consule Lorin. in loc.¶ Sent. lib. 3.
dist. 35.¶ Epist. 25.¶ Hieron in loc.¶ Ioh. 10. 18.¶ Turcremata.¶ Luke 24. 1.¶ Ioh. 20. 7.¶ Augustin.¶ Hieron.¶ Lorinus.¶ Nicetas.¶ Strigelius.¶ Nyssen. apud¶ Lorin in loc.*

people were <sup>s</sup> tried by mockings and scourgings, by bonds and prisonment, they were stoned, hewen asunder, they were tempted, they were slaine with the sword, they wandred vp and downe in wildernesse, and mountaines, and caues of the earth, cloathed in sheepe-skins, and in goats-skins, being destitute, afflicted, and tormented, of whom the world was not worthy. Since Christ, it is well obserued by <sup>h</sup> Bernard of the Churches affliction, Amara prius in nece martyrum, amarior post in consilio hereticorum, amarissima nunc in moribus domesticorum: Hos non fugare non fugere potest, in a inualuerunt & multiplicati sunt super numerum. Her oppression in the beginning was great by the persecution of tyrants, afterward greater by the conflict of heretikes, but now greatest of all by the dangerous positions and practises of Antichrists in the kingdome of Poperie, whose very Masses are sometime for massacres, and their sacred sacrifices offerings of bloud. And surely (beloued) if the Church had not any other enemies, but only these monstrous Antichrists of Rome, yet she might truly complaine with our Prophet here, my soule is among lions. Eieuen Popes had that name, wherof all (excepting two or three) were roaring lions in their Bulls, and rauening lions in seeking after their prey. Leo the 10. so pillied and polled the goodly nations of Germanie with imparadonable Pardons and merciflesse Indulgences, as that his insupportable cruelty gaue the first occasion of the reformation of Religion in that countrey. The foes of Dauid are said here, to lay a net for his sect, and to digge a pit before him: and what are the Papists intricate distinctions of Schooles, and Machiavelisme: of State, but snares and nets to catch our bodies and soules, and so greedily to swallow vs vp, as Saul here would haue done to Dauid. The Scribes and Pharisies haue so great a swallow, that they deuoure not some few widdowes houses, as the <sup>i</sup> Pharisies among the Iewes in old time; but also whole villages and townes, as <sup>k</sup> Morindoll and Cabriers in the County of Prouince, yea whole shires and countreies in Netherland. yea their intent was Anno 1588. to deuoure this whole kingdome of England with an inuincible (fondly so called) Armado. The foes of Dauid had teeth as speares, and tongues as swords: and are not the tongues of Papists answerable, who terme the sincere profession of the Gospell Heresie, Turcisme, Paganisme, Diabolistme, <sup>l</sup> farte exceeding the setting vp of Beel, Baal, and Belzebub, and all the Deuils in hell; <sup>m</sup> affirming in their letters and libels, that our Church hath no faith, but fancie: no hope, but presumption: no charitie, but lust: no God, but an Idoll. The foes of Dauid were set on fire: and who greater incendiaries than the Papists? The chiefe Logicke in their conference was a sagot for the hereticke, delighting so much in fire worke, that they burned Gods people by the dozen, as at <sup>o</sup> Stratford the Bow neere Lendon, and bound them in chaines by the score, as at <sup>p</sup> Colechester in the bloody daies of Queene Mary. Nay, their intent was on the 5. of Nouemb. in the yeere 1605. to burne, and that at one fire, by the hundreds, and those not the meanest of the people, but the very principals of our Church & Common-wealth, euen the most meek king himself, together with his noble consort, and all their royall issue. This Powder. plot was so transcendent in villanie, that I may well vse the words of <sup>q</sup> Moses: Aske of the dayes of old, that haue bene before you, since the day that God created man on earth, and inquire from the one end of heauen to the other, if there came to passe such a thing as this, or whether any such like thing hath bin heard? And answer may be giuen out of the 19. chap. of Iudges, at the 30. verse, There was no such thing done or scene, since the time that the children of Israel came vp from the land of Egypt vnto this day. The like was neuer done, nor heard of in Israel, nor throughout the world, since the beginning. To speak with <sup>r</sup> Habacuc: Behold a worke wrought in your daies, you will not beleuee it, when it shall be told you. Shall I call it a worke done? no beloued (asa reuerend father of our Church) it was the work of the Lord, that it was not done. The snare was broken, & we deliuered & they fell into the pit who digged it for vs. A work of so great might & mercy, that it ought to be done in perpetual remembrance. <sup>s</sup> Son of man, write thee the name of the day, euen of the same day; for the King of Babel set himselfe against Hierusalem this same day. The 5. of Nou. is the day, wherein we were deliuered from the Babylonish & Romish tyranny, let vs be glad & reioyce therein, & sing as Dauid in the second part of this Hymne, O God my heart is fixed, my heard is fixed, I will sing & giue praise, &c.

<sup>s</sup> Heb. 11. 36.<sup>h</sup> Ser. 33. super Cant.<sup>i</sup> Matth 23. 14.<sup>k</sup> Fox Martyr. fol. 859 See the persecutions of Angrouge, apud eundem fol. 871.<sup>l</sup> Sir Tho. Moore preface to his confutation of T. ndats answer among the workes of Moore, fol 360. <sup>m</sup> D. Carier let. to the King,

fol 47.

<sup>o</sup> Fox Mart.

fol 173, 8.

<sup>p</sup> Id: ibid.

fol 1389.

<sup>q</sup> Deut. 4 32.<sup>r</sup> Habacuc 1. 5.<sup>s</sup> Ezech 24. 2.

PSALME III.

I will giue thanks vnto the Lord with my whole heart, secretly among the faithfull, and in the Congregation.

- 1. A Protestation of King Dauid in the first verse, that he will in his owne person (hereby giuing all his subiects a good example) praise the Lord, I will giue thanks; and that not hypocritically with his mouth and lips only, but with my heart and that not with a<sup>x</sup> deuided heart, or a peece, but with my whole heart; and that both in the secret assemblies of the faithfull, and in the publique congregation. ¶ Or I will giue thanks secretly for the satisfaction of mine owne conscience, and in the congregation openly, for the further edification of my brethren.
- 2. An Enumeration of Gods admirable blessings, conferred vpon the whole world in generall: vpon his Church in more particular, as the<sup>z</sup> ground and matter of his praise, from the second verse to the tenth, The works of the Lord are great, his works of creation, and works of redemption are worthy to be praised and had in honour. His works of creation, as the making of all things of nothing, and the preseruing of the same from the beginning in a more excellent beautie. His works of redemption, as Christs incarnation, passion, resurrection, ascension; all which our mercifull and gracious Lord hath so done, that they ought to be had in remembrance. Here then obserue the reason, why the Church allotted this Hymne to be read on Easter day: the redemption of Israel out of Egypt, is a plaine<sup>b</sup> figure of our deliuerance by Christ, out of the hands of all our spirituall enemies; and their<sup>c</sup> Pass-over and<sup>d</sup> Manna (which is implied here verse 5.) is a tipe of our spirituall eating and drinking at the Lords table, which is enjoyed vs at Easter, about all other times in the yeere.

This Hymne may be parted into three portions.

- 3. A conclusion at the 10 verse, concerning a

}	Propounded, The feare of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. Rule <sup>e</sup> Expounded, A good vnderstanding haue all they that doe thereafter. Reason <sup>f</sup> , The praise of it endureth for euer.

Concerning the two former parts, I haue written heretofore much, and I shall haue iust occasion hereafter also to say more. My purpose for the present is to begin at the Psalmes end, The feare of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom, &c. The which Epiphonema concludes the Prophets whole discourse, touching the prairie of God: as if he should haue said, seeing the works of the Lord are so great, so worthy to be praised and had in honour, so meruellous and memorable, that they deserue the seeking out, seeing his name is so reuerend and holy; doubtlesse, the feare of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom, and the praise of it endureth for euer.

To feare God is to beleue him, to loue him, to put our trust in him, to giue him thanks, and in all our actions and passions to be ruled according to his holy Lawes. In a word, to feare God (as the<sup>1</sup> Wiseman teacheth) is our whole dutie, concerning offices of pietie toward God, and pitie toward our neighbours. For the word beginning, signifieth here not only principium, but also<sup>m</sup> precipuum: not only primum, but also primarium: not only the first in time, but also the first in honour and dignitie. For as Dauid here calleth it the beginning of wisdom: so Salomon, Ecclesiastes 12. 12. the end of all. The feare of the Lord is in deed the first Alphabet of wisdom, the beginning, as it were the<sup>n</sup> begetting, or (as<sup>o</sup> Iesus the sonne of Sirach termeth it) the root of wisdom. ¶ But that is not all, it is not only an introduction to wisdom, but wisdom it selfe, Iob. 28. 28. The feare of the Lord is wisdom,

<sup>r</sup> M. Rerut.
<sup>u</sup> Guernan.
 Calvin
 Agellius
<sup>x</sup> Holca 10.2.
<sup>y</sup> Bellarmin.
<sup>z</sup> Calvin.
<sup>a</sup> Strigellius.
 Turicemat.
<sup>b</sup> Bucer.
<sup>c</sup> 1. Cor. 5.7.
<sup>d</sup> 1. Cor. 10.3.
<sup>e</sup> Agellius.
 Bellarmin.
<sup>f</sup> Wilcox.
<sup>g</sup> See notes on 49 Psalme, and sermon on Gunpowder
 treason day.
<sup>h</sup> In Psal. }
 113
 118 145
<sup>i</sup> Arnobius.
 Bollerus.
<sup>k</sup> Melancthon.
<sup>l</sup> Eccles: 2. 13.
<sup>m</sup> Agellius.
 Idem tamin &
 Genrbard.
<sup>n</sup> Eccles 1. 24.
<sup>p</sup> Melancthon.
 Calvin.
 Bellarmin.

and to depart from euill is vnderstanding. It is decepe wisdome (saith our English Paraphrast in meeeter) yea the perfection and fulnesse of wisdome. Ecclesiasticus 1. 20. 9 As then in the vulgar Latine, Ecclesiasticus 1. 3. honic, which is the chiefe of sweet things, is called initium dulcoris, the beginning of sweetnesse: euen so Gods feare (which vpon this point is summa summarum, as it were the summe totall of all holy knowledge) is termed initium sapientia, the beginning of wisdome.

This assertion, in worldly mens vnderstanding, is a grand paradox: for they repute the preaching of Christianitie foolishnesse, and the professors of the same, fooles: 1. Cor. 4. 10. We are fooles for Christs sake. Loe, say the wicked of the godly, Wisdome 5. 5 We thought their life madnesse, accounting them rather mad men, then sad men. But the Spirit of truth here proclaimeth on the contrary, that all worldlings are blindlings, and that none wicked are wise. To such as haue not the feare of God before their eyes, it is expressly said by <sup>f</sup> Wisdome it selfe, O ye foolish, how long will ye loue foolishnesse, & hate knowledge?

It is objected out of S Luke, Chap. 16. vers. 8. that the children of this world are wiser than the children of light. Answer is made by the<sup>t</sup> Doctors vpon the place, that Christ accounts them not wiser absolutely, but only secundum quid: they be wiser in their generation, that is, in things appertaining to this life present, but not in the businesse of regeneration, in things belonging to that other life which is to come. For (as <sup>x</sup>one said of Sir Thomas Moore) that he was either a foolish wise man, or a wise foolishman: euen so the children of this world are wise men in foolish things, and foolish men in wise things. They be not in genere wise, but in genere suo, wise to do euill (as the <sup>y</sup> Prophet speaks) but to doe well they haue no knowledge.

Atheists, acknowledging no God, are very fooles: P<sup>sal</sup>. 14. The foole said in his heart, there is no God. If this Ignoramus had so much braine as brow, the<sup>z</sup> bookes of the Creatures, and Conscience, would informe his vnderstanding, that the great world without him, and the little world within him, are nothing else (as it were) but God expressed.

The Gentiles, adoring many gods, are very fooles, before Christ (the Sonne of righteousnes) calls them out of <sup>a</sup>darknesse into marvellous light, a blinde and a foolish nation, Deut. 32. 21. Euen the seuen wise men of Greece (saith <sup>b</sup> Lactantius) had no good vnderstanding, because none but fooles account them wise. Nay, <sup>c</sup> S. Paul giues this iudgement of all heathen Philosophers, that they were vaine in their imaginations, and that while they professed themselues to be wise, they became fooles. In this respect <sup>d</sup> Cicero had iust cause to complaine, O me nunquam sapientiam!

The superstitious Idolaters, and mingle manglers in Religion, who worship the true God falsely, not according to his word, but according to their own will, are very fooles. So Paul called his Galathians, who ioyned the ceremonies of Moses vnto the Gospell of Christ, as necessarie to saluation: O foolish Galathians, who hath bewitched you, that ye should not obey the truth? are ye so foolish, that after ye haue begun in the Spirit, you will end in the flesh?

Carnall Gospellers and hypocrites, who professe they know God in their words, and yet denie him in their <sup>f</sup> works, are very fooles. Their prayers are sacrifices of fooles, Ecclesiastes 4. 17. Their disputations about Religion, are foolish questions, Tit. 3. 9. all their generation are fooles and blinde, Matth. 23. 17. As for example, the flow-backe neglecting the workes of his vocation, and hauing in idleneffe, (though he heares neuer so many sermons vpon the working dayes) in the iudgement of the wisest is a very foole: Ecclesiastes 4. 5. The foolishfildeth his hands, and eateth up his owne flesh. So whofoeuer is vngratefull vnto the Lord (which is the Father of mercies, and God of all grace) for his manifold blessings, is a very foole: <sup>g</sup> Doe ye so reuerd the Lord, o ye foole and vnwise people? the ox knoweth his owner, and the asse his masters crib: but Israel hath not knowne, my people hath not vnderstood. Esay. 1. 3.

So the couetous wretch (who though he boast of his faith and hope, <sup>h</sup> sacrificeth vnto his net, and faith in his heart to the wedge of gold, <sup>i</sup> thou art my confidence, is a very foole. <sup>k</sup> Nabal is his name, and follic is with him, a blinde foole, like <sup>l</sup> Samson in the mill, he grindes for other, but eats not of the fruits of his labour himselfe,

¶ Genebrard.

¶ 1. Cor. 1. 18.

¶ Prou. 1. 22.

¶ Origen.

¶ Iansenius.

¶ Maldonit.

¶ Theophylact.

¶ Arlorat.

¶ Hall in this Chron.

¶ Idem Fox Martyr fol 976.

¶ Ierem 4. 2.

¶ Vide Bellarm. de ascensione mentis in Deum per scalas creat. grad 1. 2. 8.

¶ 1. Pet. 2. 9.

¶ De vera sapientia, cap. 1.

¶ Rom. 1. 21.

¶ Epist. ad Orlanum.

¶ Galat. 3. 1. 3.

¶ Tit 1. 16.

¶ Deut. 32. 6.

¶ Habacuc 1. 16.

¶ Iob 31. 24.

¶ 2 Sam. 25. 25.

¶ Iudg. 16. 21.

himselfe, the which is termed by Salomon, an euill sicknesse, and a vanitie, Ecclesiastes 6.2.

So the proud man, as well in his ambition, as in his honour, is a very foole. <sup>m</sup> Like horse and mule without vnderstanding: like the famous foole <sup>n</sup> Lobelinus, who being in a new coat, knew not himselfe. <sup>o</sup> For if in fauour, he knowes no man; if out of fauour, none know him.

So the drunkard is a very sot, <sup>p</sup> mancipium corporis, a slave to his owne seruant, a foole with a witness, his fault is written in his forehead and in his face, he reeles in open street, and hath in his drunken fit a little lesse wit than a beast, and but a little more sence than a blocke.

So the wanton is destitute of vnderstanding, Prou. 6.32. led by the foolish woman as a foole to the stocks, Prou. 7.22. For though he may peradventure blinde the Bishop, and cope the Commisarie; yet Gods <sup>r</sup> all-seeing eye (when the night is darke, the doore fast, and the curtaine close) findeth out his foule follie.

To conclude this point, euery kinde of wickednesse is a weakenesse, and euery fault a follie. But on the contrarie, euery point of Religion is a part of wisdom, as conducting to blessednesse (the end of wisdom.) To true the Lord in feare, and to cast all our care vpon him, is wisdom: for, Blessed is the man that feareth the Lord, blessed are they that put their trust in him. To loue thy neighbour as thy selfe, is a part of wisdom: for, Blessed is the man that considereth the poore and needie, blessed are the mecke, blessed are the mercifull, &c. To liue soberly toward thy selfe, is a part of wisdom: for, blessed are the poore in spirit, Matth. 5.3. Blessed is he that watcheth and keepeth his garments, lest he walke naked, and men see his filthinesse, Apoc. 6.15.

The blindings of the world cannot in this life see this, and therefore they will not say this: but one day, to wit, at the last day, they change their minds, and sighing, acknowledge within themselves, This is he, whom we sometime had in derision, and in a parable of reproch, we fooles thought his life madnesse, and his end without honour, how is hee counted among the children of God? and his portion is among the Saints: therefore we haue erred from the way of truth, and the light of righteousnesse hath not shined vnto vs, and the Sunne of vnderstanding rose not vpon vs.

A good vnderstanding haue all they that doe thereafter. ] In Philosophie wisdom is defined by knowing, but in Diuinitie wisdom is prized by doing. They be wise men in deed, Non qui faciendū dicunt, sed qui decenda faciunt; heretickes reade so much, and hypocrites vually cite so much, and the deuill himselfe knoweth so much of the Gospell as any: yet all these notwithstanding haue bad vnderstanding, <sup>z</sup> only such haue good vnderstanding in Gods feare that doe thereafter, <sup>a</sup> that is, in all their actions and passions altogether relie vpon his sure promises, euer readie to be ruled according to his word and will: so Dauid expounds himselfe in the <sup>b</sup> Psalme 119. I haue more vnderstanding than my teachers, for thy testimonies are my studie. I am wiser than the aged, because I keepe thy Commandements. Here then is condemned as folly the <sup>c</sup> will-worship, or voluntarie religion of all hypocrites, especially <sup>d</sup> Papists, honouring God not according to his feare, but according to their owne fancie.

<sup>e</sup> Purgatorie being a figment of idle Poets, and not the iudgement of holy Prophets, is a parcell of foolerie; wherein the Pope sheweth himselfe most vcharitable, for that hauing power to fetch all foules out of this hell, and to purge whole Purgatorie, suffers notwithstanding this fire to burne still, only because it warmeth his owne kitchen.

Praying to the dead, is another parcell of foolerie, the which in the Booke of Gods feare hath neither precept, nor patterne, nor promise; for our calling vpon God, we finde <sup>e</sup> precept vpon precept, and promise vpon promise. Call vpon me (saith the <sup>h</sup> Lord) in the time of trouble, so will I heare thee, &c. whom haue I in heauen but thee, Psal 73.25. So Christ openly, Come vnto me all ye that are wearie and heauie laden, and I will ease you. Come vnto me, that is a precept; I will ease you, that is a promise. Come <sup>i</sup> not to miide, but to me; not to my Saints, or Angels, or Martyrs, or

<sup>m</sup> Psal. 72.10.
<sup>n</sup> Mensa philosophica fab. de fatua.
<sup>o</sup> Sir R. Barclay felicite, lib. 5.
<sup>p</sup> Seneca Epist. 65.

<sup>q</sup> Vision of Pierce Plewman pass 3.
<sup>r</sup> Qui minime fallitur, quis minime clauditur, Bernard. lib. 5 de considerat.
<sup>s</sup> Psal. 112.1.
<sup>t</sup> Psal. 2.12.
<sup>u</sup> 1 Sal. 41.1.

<sup>v</sup> Wisd. 5.3.

<sup>w</sup> Aeneas Syluius comment. in Parnormit. lib. 3.
<sup>x</sup> Chrysost. in loc.
<sup>y</sup> Melanct.
Mollerus.
<sup>b</sup> Verse 99. So Moses Deut. 4.6. Ierem. 2.9. Coloss. 2.23.
<sup>d</sup> Mollerus.

<sup>e</sup> See Respon. Elicz. ad Apol. Bellar. pag. 207, 208. & Mort. Appeal lib. 1. cap. 2 §. 13.
<sup>f</sup> Bulla Clemens. 6. & apud Anto. Florent. part. 3. tit. 22 cap. 6.
<sup>g</sup> Esay 28.16.
<sup>h</sup> Psal. 50.15.
<sup>i</sup> See Gospell on S. Mattheus day.

mother, but to my selfe: send not other, it is my pleasure that you come: seeke not for helpe from other, I will ease you. There be likewise so many patternes of this deuotion, as there be godly prayers recorded in holy Bible; but on the contrarie neuer a leafe, neuer a line, neuer a letter in the Booke of Wisdome, that fauoreth inuocation of Saints, and therefore we may well apply that vnto the Church of Rome, which <sup>k</sup> Eliz said vnto the messengers of Abaziah, It is not because there is no God in Israel, that ye goe to enquire of Baalzebub the God of Ekron? Is it not because there is no liuing God in heauen, that ye pray to stocks on earth, and seeke to <sup>l</sup> such sauitours, as are worthily thought to reside with Belzebub in hell? Is it not an idle thing to sue to the man, if the Master alwayes be present, and euer ready to grant thy request? and is it not a greater folly to call vpon Saints in our trouble? when our blessed Sauour hath openly not only said, but also sworne, <sup>m</sup> Verily, verily, I say vnto you, whatsoever you aske the Father in my name, he will giue it you, &c.

Their prophaning of the blessed Sacraments is another parcell of foolerie, for is not (I pray you) their christening of <sup>n</sup> bels an impudent mocking of holy Baptisme; and the denying of the Cup vnto Lay-men, a notorious lurching at the Lords Table, contrarie to Christs <sup>o</sup> expresse word, Drinke ye all of this; in giuing the bread he said only, Take eat, indefinitely: <sup>p</sup> but when he tooke the Cnp (as foreseeing this innouation of Papiſts) he did adde an vniuersall note, bibite omnes, drinke ye, drinke all ye: so they make mariage a Sacrament, and yet affirme, then holy Priest-hood is prophaned by this holy ordinance that it is <sup>q</sup> sacriledge forsooth, and not a Sacrament. And <sup>r</sup> so they honour it as the Iewes honoured Christ, in clothing him with a purple robe. What should I speake of their Masse, which is a notorious enemy to Christ, in respect of his oblation and office, the Lord hath sworne and will not repent, that Christ is a Priest for euer, Psal. 110. 4. offering himselfe once for all, Heb. 9. 26. 28. Are the Masse-Priests then any better than idle fooles, <sup>t</sup> in offering him often vnto God the Father, under the formes of bread and wine really and properly, for the finnes of the quicke and the dead? It is reported of the zealous and learned Martyr <sup>u</sup> Ioannes Mollins, that he neuer spake of the name of Iesu, but instantly teares dropt from his eyes. And surely, the due consideration of Christs all-sufficient oblation and sacrifice for all our finnes on the crosse, should make vs abhorre those masse-mongers; and to say with our <sup>x</sup> Prophet, Doe not I hate them (o Lord) that hate thee, and am not I grieued with those that rise vp against thee? yea Lord, I hate them right sore, euen as though they were mine enemies.

But the maine point of their foolish wisdome, is the prohibiting of the Scriptures in a vulgar and knowne tongue. Christ saith expresse, Search the Scriptures. Antichrist on the contrarie, <sup>z</sup> the reading of holy Scriptures is against the determination of the Church. As long as Lay-men are kept from the light of the Gospell, and lantern of the Law, they cannot spiritually discern their Priests erroneous doctrines and doings. Herein the Popish Clergie doth vse the foppish Laitie, like as the <sup>a</sup> Philistines handled Samson, first they put out their eyes, and then being blinde-fold, they make pastime with all degrees of them, euen with Emperours and Kings, and <sup>b</sup> all that is called God. I haue heard often, and read <sup>c</sup> also, that Cardinall Caietan comming into Paris, and seeing the blinde people verie desirous of his blessing, and therein vndoubtedly the Popes: he turned to them and said, Quandoquidem hic populus decipi vult, decipiatur in nomine diaboli: that is, seeing this people will needs be deceived, let them be deceived in the name of the deuill, and so gaue them the Popes blessing.

In these points and many moe the Papiſts (albeit neuer so learned) haue bad vnderstanding, and the reason hereof is plaine, because they haue changed the rule of faith, <sup>d</sup> adding to the Scriptures vnwritten traditions, and honouring them with equall affection of deuotion and reuerence, and so consequently worshipping God after their owne inuentions, and not according to the prescript of his holy faith and feare.

The praise of it endures for euer.] Or as other translations, his praise, referring it <sup>e</sup> either to God, or else to the man who feares God. <sup>f</sup> Some Diuines ascribe this praise

<sup>k</sup> 2. King. 1. 3.

<sup>l</sup> See Sermon on Gunpowder treason day.

<sup>m</sup> Ioh. 16 23.

<sup>n</sup> Duran. de ritibus Eccles. li. 1. cap. 22 num 6. See Respon.

<sup>o</sup> Eliz ad apolo. Bellarm.

<sup>p</sup> Fox Martyr. fol. 786. & Pet. Moulins defence of our faith against Cossina. a 1. 16.

<sup>q</sup> Matth. 26 27.

<sup>r</sup> Calv. & Mart. lorat in loc. Mat.

<sup>s</sup> Bellar orat. in schol. habit. rom. 3. controuer. in sine.

<sup>t</sup> Dr. Fulk in Heb. 13. 4.

<sup>u</sup> See Chemnit. exam. par. 2. pag 170, 171.

<sup>v</sup> Con. Trident. & Bellar lib. 1. de missa per totum serē librum.

<sup>w</sup> Fox Mart. fol. 855.

<sup>x</sup> Psal 139. 21.

<sup>y</sup> Iohn 5. 39.

<sup>z</sup> Ex registro Io. Longland. Episc. Linc. fol. 85. apud Fox Mart fol. 763.

<sup>a</sup> Indg. 16. 25.

<sup>b</sup> 2. Theſt. 2. 3.

<sup>c</sup> Dr. carleton, direction to know the true Church, pag. 40

<sup>d</sup> Concil. Trident.

<sup>e</sup> idem Bell. lib. de verbo Dei non scripto, cap 3. §. contra. & cap. 4. §. munc ut. & 12. §. dico secundo <sup>f</sup> Bucer.

<sup>g</sup> Agellius.

<sup>h</sup> Chrysost.

<sup>i</sup> Euthym.

praise to God alone, & because Tebilla properly signifieth only that kinde of praise which is due to God: and so they make this clause to containe both a<sup>h</sup> precept, and a promise. Precept, exhorting vs to praise God with all our heart, both in the secret assemblies of the faithfull, and in the publike Congregation. And so this Hymnes end doth answer the beginning, and the Text in euery point, the title. Now lett any man in executing this office should be discouraged, the Prophet addeth a promise, Gods praise doth endure for euer; as if he should hane said, The Lord is King, be the people neuer so impatient, the Lord is God, albeit the Gentiles furiously rage together, and the Lewes imagine a vaine thing, The Kings of the earth stand vp, and the Rulers combine themselves against him. He that dwelleth in heauen hath all his enemies in derision, and makes them all his foot-stoole; his power is for euer, and so consequently his praise shall endure for euer; in the militant Church, vnto the worlds end; in the triumphant, world without end.

Most Interpreters haue referred this vnto the good man who feares the Lord, yet diuersly. <sup>m</sup> S. Augustine expoundeth it thus, his praise, that is, his praising of the Lord shall endure for euermore, becaue he shall be one of them, of whom it is said, Psal. 84. 4. Blessed are they that dwell in thy house, they will be alwayes praising thee. <sup>n</sup> Other vnderstand by <sup>n</sup> his praise the commendation of the good man, both in the life present, and in that which is to come, for his righteousnesse shall be had in an euerlasting remembrance, Psal. 112. 6. Concerning the present, howsoeuer the name of the wicked rot either in obliuion, or in ignominie: yet the memoriall of the iust is blessed, it is like the composition of the perfume made by the skill of the Apothecarie, sweet as honey in all mouthes, and as musicke at a banquet of wine.

<sup>r</sup> *Hunc ventura nepotum semper dicent secla
Beatum. Oras Beza, Hic sapit, hic demum mansura laude fruetur,
—— parere qui Deo studet.*

In the world to come, the Lord will say to such as louing his feare, haue liued thereafter; <sup>r</sup> It is well done, good seruant and faithfull, enter into thy Masters ioy: to become the peoples Saint, and to be commended of the most, is not alwayes honourable, Non minus periculum ex magna fama (said Tacitus) quam ex mala. That commendation is only true glorie, which (as <sup>u</sup> Cicero speakes) is Consentions laus bonorum, & incorrupta vox bene Iudicantium. And therefore to be praised by the most worthy of all honour and praile, the Lord most high and most holy, surpasseth all the wickedsglozing, all the worlds glorie.

Now then I demand of the worldling, what is the most high and deepe point of wisdome? is it to get an opulent fortune, to be so wise as fiftie thousand pounds? behold, godlinesse is great gaine, saith <sup>x</sup> Paul, and the Christian only rich, quoth the renowned Catechist of Alexandria. Is it to liue ioyfully, or (to vse the Gallants praise) iouially? behold, <sup>z</sup> there is ioyfull gladnesse for such as are true-hearted. A wicked man in his mad-merrie humour for a while may be Pomponius Latus, but a good man only is Hilarius; only he which is faithfull in <sup>a</sup> heart, is ioyfull in heart. Is it to get honour? the praise of Gods feare (saith our Text) endures for euer. Many Worthies of the world are most unhappie, because they be commended where they be not, and tormented where they be, hell rings of their paines, earth of the praise; but <sup>b</sup> blest is the man that feareth the Lord, for his commendation is both here lasting, and hereafter euerlasting; in this world renowned amongst men, in the next rewarded amongst Saints and Angels in the kingdome of glory.

<sup>6</sup> *Genebr. in loc.
& in Psal. 148. 13
b Melanct.
Mollerus.*

<sup>1</sup> *Psal. 99. 1.
k King. 8. 31,
l Psal. 2. 1.*

<sup>m</sup> In loc.

<sup>n</sup> *Arnobius.
Dr. Incognitus.
Bellarmin.
R. Stephanus.
Tilenan.
o Hu, that is,
their praise who feare the Lord and doe thereafter, the singular sort e plural. Euer.
p Prou. 10. 7.
q Eccles. 49. 1.
r Buchanan.
s Matth. 25. 21.*

<sup>t</sup> *In vita Agric.
u Iusc. quest.
lib. 3.*

<sup>x</sup> *1. Tim. 6. 6.
y Clem. pedag.
lib. 3.
z Psal. 97. 11.
a Psal. 64. 10.
Prou. 15. 9.*

<sup>b</sup> Psal. 112. 1.

PSALME II3.

Praise the Lord (ye seruants) o praise the name of the Lord.

THis Hymne (as both text and title tell vs in the verie beginning) is an exhortation to praise the Lord: wherein three points are chiefly regardable;

Quis, Who? ye seruants.

Quomodo, How?

Quapropter, Why? for his

{ With all praise, vers. 1. Praise the Lord, o praise the name of the Lord.
At all times, vers. 2. from this time forth for euer more.
In all places, vers. 3. from the rising up of the Sunne, to the going downe of the same.

{ Infinite power, vers. 4.

{ Heauen

{ Admirable prouidence, both in { Earth, and that in { Publike weales, v. 6, 7.

Priuete families, vers. 8.

The Prophet exhorts all people to praise the Lord, Young men and maidens, old men and children, praise, the name of the Lord, Psalm. 148. 12. More specially, Gods people which haue railed of his goodnesse more than other, as hauing his <sup>d</sup> statutes, and ordinances, and couenants, and promises, and seruice, Rom. 9. 4. <sup>c</sup> Most chiefly the Leuites and Priests, as being appointed by the Lord for leaders and guides vnto the rest, his seruants after a more speciall manner, as it were in ordinary. All men owe this dutie to God, as being the <sup>f</sup> workmanship of his hands; Christians aboue other men, as being the <sup>e</sup> sheepe of his pasture, Preachers of the word aboue other Christians, as being <sup>h</sup> pastors of his sheepe, and so consequently patternes in word in conuersation, in loue, in spirit, in faith, in purenesse, 1. Tim. 4. 12.

Yea, but how must Almighty God be praised? for as not euery one that faith vnto the worlds Saniour, <sup>i</sup> *Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdome of heauen: <sup>k</sup> so not euery one that hath in his mouth a bare (the Lord be praised) is a praiser of the Lord, but he which is cuer ready to suffer and doe the will of his Master and Maker. God is to be praised in thought, and word, and deed, 1. Cor. 6. 20. Glorifie God in your bodie, and in your spirit. The Lord as being high aboue all heathens, and glorious aboue all heauens, is blessed euer in himselfe; but that he may be blessed of other, let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good workes, and glorifie your father which is in heauen, Matth. 5. 16. A lewd life doth occasion enemies of piety to reuile the Gospell, and to blaspheme God, Rom. 2. 24. but honest behauiour (on the contrary) to praise God in the day of visitation, 1. Pet. 2. 12. In one word, <sup>l</sup> *he doth praise God most, who liueth best.

The Greeke, παιδες and the Latine pueri, may be taken for children as well as seruants. And therefore the translation of the Psalmes in meeter aptly, Ye children which doe serue the Lord. There is betweene little children and seruants so great affinitie, that (in Greeke and Latine) seruants are called children, and children seruants, according to that of <sup>m</sup> Paul, The heire, as long as he is a childe, differeth nothing from a seruant. And so the translators in vsing the word pueri (though aued in Hebrew properly signifieth a seruant) <sup>n</sup> insinuate, that we should be like to little children in seruing of the Lord, that is, simple, meeke pure.

Praise the Lord, O praise the name of the Lord! ] The doubling and tripling of this exhortation, is to whet our dulnesse and coldnesse, in executing this office, <sup>p</sup> to shew that God is to be praised with an earnest affection and zeale. For albeit Gods praise

<sup>c</sup> Caluin.

<sup>d</sup> Psal 147. 29.
<sup>e</sup> Wilcox.

<sup>f</sup> Psal 95. 6.
<sup>g</sup> Psal 100. 2.
<sup>h</sup> Ephes. 4. 11.

<sup>i</sup> Matt. 7. 21.
<sup>k</sup> Basil.
Chrysoz.
Euthym.

<sup>l</sup> Tilentz.

<sup>m</sup> Galat. 4. 1.

<sup>n</sup> Placidus.
Bellarmine.
Dr. Inocentius.

<sup>p</sup> Caluin.
<sup>q</sup> Placidus.

praise be the Christians Alpha and Omega, the first and the last thing required at our hands, as well in death as life: yet such is our negligence, that we need <sup>9</sup> precept upon precept, and line unto line, to put vs in minde of our dutie.

Or this exhortation is doubled, <sup>1</sup> to shew that God alone is worthy all praise; the kingdome is his, and therefore the glory; from him is all power, and therefore to him is due all praise. And that not only for a little while, but from this time forth for evermore: for the seruants of the Lord are to sing his praises in this life to the worlds end; and in the next life, world without end. See before Psal. 69.

And as the Lord is to be praised at all times, so likewise in all places, from the rising of the Sunne, vnto the going downe of the same, <sup>1</sup> that is, in and thorow all the world, <sup>2</sup> for he puts the two chiefe parts of the world, for the whole world, because these two quarters (of East and West) are most inhabited.

Many Christian Interpreters, and some Doctors of the <sup>u</sup> Jewes, vnderstand this of our Lord Christ, whose kingdome is without either limits or end. Without limits, as hauing <sup>x</sup> the heathen for his inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the world for his possession; his y name is great among the Gentiles, and incense shall be offered vnto him in euery place. The which is all one with our text, The Lords name be praised from the rising of the Sunne, to the going downe of the same. Without end, for God the Father said vnto God the Sonne, <sup>z</sup> sit thou on my right hand, vntill I make thine enemies thy footstole. <sup>a</sup> His seat is like as the Sunne, he shall stand fast for evermore, like the faithfull witness in heauen. Yea though heauen be <sup>b</sup> no more, but perish and waxe old as doth a garment, yet he is <sup>c</sup> euer the same, and his yeares doe not faile. The which is answerable to the words of our Prophet here, Blessed be the name of the Lord, from this time forth for evermore.

The Lord is high above all heathen] The most high deserues to be most honoured; but the Lord is high above all heathen, and his glory above the heauen: Ergo, worthy to be praised more than all, either Princes or people. The greatest of all creatures in heauen is an Angell, and the greatest of all men on earth is an Emperour: but the Lord is greater than both, as being their maker, <sup>d</sup> in whom they liue, and moue, and haue their being. Higher than all Heathen, infinitely greater than Alexander the Great, Pompey the Great, Mahomet the Great. Higher than all Heavens airie, where feathered fowles are, for he <sup>e</sup> sieth upon the wings of the winde, and f rideth upon the clouds as upon an horse. Higher than Heavens glorious, where blessed soules are; for the heauen of heavens is but his seat where he reigneth, as great King above all gods. Who then is like to the Lord our God, either among the clods on earth, or clouds in heauen? <sup>h</sup> He measures the waters in his fist, and meeteth out heauen with his span, and comprehends the dust of the earth in a measure. The which <sup>i</sup> Hierome out of Aquila doth interpret after this sort; he measures the waters with his little finger; the earth greater than the waters, with three fingers; the heauen greater than both, with his hand and span. He filleth all things, and nothing is able to comprehend him; according to that of <sup>k</sup> Salomon, Heavens, and heauens of heauens are not able to containe thee. Nay the whole world, in respect of his greatnesse, is but as a drop of the morning dew, Wisdom. 11. 19.

This may teach vs, in what soeuer estate, to <sup>l</sup> possesse our soules in patience, to be <sup>m</sup> strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might; albeit our enemies come about vs like <sup>n</sup> Bees, he which is higher than the highest, and greater than all men, and all deuils, is our protector, stonie rocke, tower of defence, buckler, saluation and refuge, Psal. 18. 1. And as God is most able to helpe vs in trouble, so likewise most apt and readie; for, as it followeth in the next clause, though he dwell on high, yet he doth humble himselfe to behold the things that are in heauen and earth.

<sup>o</sup> Some Philosophers thought it too great labour for God to gouerne the whole world, and other on the contrary too base. But <sup>p</sup> Diuines answer both of them in one word, Deus neque laborat in maximis, neque fastidit in minimis. Indeed the Poet said, Non vacat exiguis rebus adesse Ioui: but the <sup>q</sup> Scripture telleth vs otherwise, that the very haire of our head are numbred, & that not so much as a sparrow, which is sold for a farthing, can fall on the ground, without our heavenly Fathers prouidence.

<sup>9</sup> Esay 28. 10.

<sup>1</sup> Wilcox.

<sup>6</sup> Bonavent.
<sup>7</sup> Mollerus.
<sup>1</sup> Wilcox.

<sup>o</sup> Kimchi apud Genebrard. in
loc.

<sup>x</sup> Psal 2. 8.

<sup>y</sup> Malac. 1. 11.

<sup>z</sup> Psal 110. 1.

<sup>a</sup> Psal 89. 35.

<sup>b</sup> Tob 14. 2.

<sup>c</sup> Hebr. 1. 12.

<sup>d</sup> Acts 17. 28.

<sup>e</sup> Psal 18. 10.

<sup>f</sup> Psal 68. 4.

<sup>g</sup> Psal 95. 3.

<sup>h</sup> Esay 40. 12.

<sup>i</sup> in loc. Esai.
See Bellarm. de ascensione mentis
in Deum per scal.
creat. Grad. 2.
cap. 1:

<sup>k</sup> 2. Chro. 6. 18

<sup>l</sup> Luk 7. 19.

<sup>m</sup> Ephes 6. 10.

<sup>n</sup> Psal 118. 12.

<sup>o</sup> Apud Ambros.
de officijs lib. 1.

cap. 13.

<sup>p</sup> Ambros. in Hexam lib. 5.

cap. 2.

<sup>q</sup> Matth. 10. 30.

<sup>c</sup> Caluin. Instit.
lib. 1. cap. 16.
Vide Thom. 1.
part. quest. 22.
art. 2. & Calu.
tan. ibid.

<sup>f</sup> Ioh. 9. 3.
<sup>i</sup> Epist. de Cor.
flac. lib. 1.
cap. 14.

<sup>a</sup> Psal. 12. 4.
<sup>x</sup> Esay. 49. 16.
* Psal. 28. 9.
<sup>i</sup> Iudges. 2. 18.
<sup>y</sup> Psal. 41. 3.
<sup>z</sup> Confess. lib. 3.
cap. 11.

<sup>a</sup> See Mollerus & Strigel. in loc.
<sup>b</sup> Rom. 10. 12.
<sup>c</sup> Act. 1. 9.

<sup>d</sup> Rom. 1. 4.

<sup>e</sup> Morburat. in Luc. 1. See Mag. nificat. & Epist.
3. Sund. after Trinit.

<sup>f</sup> Elian. hist.
lib. 2.
<sup>g</sup> Kroll. Turk.
hist. p. 34.
<sup>h</sup> And Kroll.
in the life of Baiazet. 1. fol.
212.
<sup>i</sup> Kroll. ubi
sup. fol. 203.
<sup>k</sup> Abraham Bu-cholcer. Ind.
Cbros.

providence. Disponit membra culicis & pulicis, as Augustine in Psa. 148. For besides his generall prouidence, which is seene in the government of the whole vniuerse, he hath a particular also, moderating enery singular action and accident. He dwelling on high, beholdeth vs as Emmots vpon the mole-hill of this earth, in him we liue, and moue, and haue our being. He supporteth all things by his mightie word, Heb. 1. 3. He reacheth from one end to another, and ordereth all things sweetly, Wisdom. 8. 1. We reade, Matth. 9. that there was a woman diseased with an issue of blood twelue yeeres: and Ioh. 5. that a certaine man had bene sicke eight and thirtie yeeres: and Ioh. 9. that one was blinde from his birth. All which hapned not by humane chance, but by diuine choise, that the workes of God might be shewed on them. Omnia non permittit solum a Deo, sed etiam immittit: The Lord doth not only suffer and see what is done here below, but also disposeth of euery particular euent, to the glory of his name, and good of his children. He beheld Dauid in his trouble, Daniel in his dungeon, Peter in his prison, and ordered their short affliction to their endlesse consolation. And this may comfort vs in all our wants and wrongs, He that dwelleth on high, humbleth himselfe to behold the things below, he that keepeth Israell, neither slumbers nor sleeps. I<sup>x</sup> haue grauen thee (saith the Lord) upon the palmes of my hands, and thy walles are euer in my sight. He heares the very groanes of his seruants in their closets, and maketh all their beds in sicknesse as S. Augustine sweetly, he cares for all his children, as if all were but one; and for euery particular Christian, as if one were all.

<sup>a</sup> Some Diuines applie this vnto Christ: He which is <sup>b</sup> Lord ouer all, is high aboue all heathen; all lands are his inheritance, all people his possession, Psal. 2. 8. He triumpheth ouer death and hell in his resurrection, and his glorie shined aboue the heauens in his ascension: A <sup>c</sup> cloud tooke him vp out of this world, and he did ascend farre aboue all heauens, Ephes. 4. 10. Here then obserue the reason why the Church allotted this hymne for this day, because Christ in his <sup>d</sup> resurrection from the dead, is declared mightily to be the Sonne of God, high aboue all heathens, and heauens. That which is here said, he humbleth himselfe to behold the things that are in heauen and earth, is all one with that, Esay 61. 1. and Luk. 4. 18. The Spirit of the Lord hath anointed me to preach good tidings vnto the poore, to binde vp the broken hearted, and to comfort such as mourne in Sion. <sup>e</sup> Almighty God cannot looke aboue himselfe, as hauing no superiours; nor about himselfe, as hauing no equals; he beholds such as are below him: and therefore the lower a man is, the neerer vnto God; he resists the proud, and giues grace to the humble, 1. Pet. 5. 5. He puld downe the mightie from their seat, and exalteth them of low degree: the most high hath a speciall eye to such as are most humble. For, as it followeth in our text, he taketh vp the simple out of the dust, and lifteth the poore out of the dirt.

The Poet said, Haud facile emergunt, quorum virtutibus obstat res angusta domi; that it is an hard thing for a man of low birth and small meanes, to be preferred vnto high places of honour. But our Prophet here, to demonstrate Gods admirable power and prouidence, sheweth how the Lord raiseth the poore man out of the mire, that he may set him with the Princes, euen with the Princes of his people.

<sup>f</sup> Darius was borne of a seruant, Archelaus King of Macedonia base begotten; Antigonus, Themistocles, Phocion, Epaminondas, and other noble worthies issued from ignoble parents. Tangrolipix of an ordinarie Captaine became Sultan of Persia, and first erecter of the high and huge Turkish Empire, Tamberlaine (as <sup>h</sup> some thinke the sonne of a Shepherd) was in his time the scourge of the great Turke, treading vnder his foot insolent Baiazet the first, of his violent and fierce nature surnamed <sup>i</sup> Gilderun or lightning. <sup>k</sup> Willegis Archbishop of Mentz was the sonne of a Wheele-wright, and therefore that he might alway remember how the Lord had exalted him out of the dirt, to set him with Princes, he caused the walls of his priuie chamber to be hung with instruments of Carpentry, to which he ioyned this Motto Willegis, Willegis, recole unde veneris: and from hence the Bishops of that Sea giue two wheelles in their armes, In England also many Prelates haue bene lifted out of the mire to the Miter, it is the Lords doing that hath his dwelling on high, & yet humbleth bleth himselfe to behold the things in heauen and earth. Renowned<sup>1</sup> Sir Francis Drake, the sonne of a poore Vicar in Kent, was in our age both a terrour to proud Spaine, and the mirrour of England in the most vnknowne and vttermost parts of the world.

The Scriptures afford manifold examples in this kinde; Moses a<sup>m</sup> cast-away childe, was after ward a leader, and a God (as it were) to the children of Israel, Exo. 4. So Daniel of a poore captiue, Dan. 1. 6. became a chiefe ruler, Dan. 2. 48. So<sup>n</sup> Ioseph sold for a bond-servant (whose feet were burt in the stocks, and the iron entred into his soule) was after ward (Gods high and holy prouidence to disposing) set free by Pharaoh the King: he made him also Lord of his house, and ruler of all his substance, that he might informe his Princes after his will, and teach his Senators wisdom. So the Lord<sup>o</sup> choie Dauid his seruant, and tooke him away from the sheepfold, as he was following the Ewes great with young-ones, that he might feed Jacob his people, and Israel his inheritance: the Lord did not only lift him out of the mire, but also prefer him, he set him with Princes, and those not Princes of other nations, as Ioseph was exalted in Egypt, and Daniel in Babel; but euen with the Princes of his owne people, to wit, of his owne countrey, where men of eminent parts are most neglected. Or, this may be referred vnto God, as if the Prophet should haue said, he taketh vp the poore man out of the mire, that he may set him in authoritic, not among the heathen only, but ouer the Church his owne people; the which is the greatest honour of all, according to that of Dauid,<sup>1</sup> I would chuse rather to sit at the threshold in the house of my God, than to dwell in the tents of vngodlinefle: and the good Emperour Theodosius (to the same purpose) desired rather to be membrum Ecclesie, quam caput Imperij; that is, a member of the Church, than head ouer all vnbeleeuers. Now Dauid was aduanced according to both interpretations, in that he ruled his owne people, who were Gods people: so the text, 2. Sam. 12. Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, I anointed thee King ouer Israel, and deliuered thee out of the hand of Saul, and gaue thee thy Lords house, and thy Lords wiues into thy bosome, and gaue thee the house of Israel and Iuda, &c.

As God (in his holy prouidence) taketh vp some poore men out of the mire, to set them with Princes, euen with Princes of his people: so many times he puts downe the mightie from their seat, and brings them vnto the very dunghill, he rulleth as a Iudge, he puts downe one, and sets vp another. Examples hereof in holy Scripture:<sup>u</sup> Haman a man exalted aboue all the Princes in Affuerus court, was (vpon the ludden) hanged on the tree that he had prepared for his enemy, Ester 7. 10. Nabuchadnezzar a proud King, was driuen from mens societie to conuerse with beasts, <sup>x</sup> He did eat grasse as the Oxen, and his bodie was wet with the dew of heauen, till his haires were growne as Eagles feathers, and his nailes like birds claws, and all for this end that he might know that the most high ruleth ouer the kingdome of men, and gineth it vnto whomsoeuer he will. <sup>v</sup> Herod in the middest of his glory, (when the people hearing his oration in the seat of Iustice, gaue a shout saying, The voyce of God and not of man) was immediatly smitten by the Lords Angell, so that he was eaten vp of wormes, and gaue vp the ghost.

In prophane historie we finde, that<sup>2</sup> Darius plaid the part of the greatest Emperour, and the part of a most miserable begger, a begger begging water of an enemy to quench the great drought of death. <sup>a</sup> Baiazet the first, in the morning was the Grand Seigneur of the Turkes, and in the same day the footstoole of Tamberlane. <sup>b</sup> Bellisarius a most victorious Captaine (by whose valour and policie the Persians were vanquished, the Vandals subdued, and Africa recouered to the Empire) became before his death a distressed blinde begger in exile, begging his bread from doore to doore, crauing and crying, a pennie for poore Bellisarius.

In our owne Chronicles we reade, that<sup>c</sup> Trisilian chiefe Iustice of England in the dayes of King Richard the second, was pulled from the bench aboue, to the barre below: nay, he which had often iudged other to death, in fine was damned himselfe to the gallowes. <sup>d</sup> Shores wife, the merry minion of Edward the fourth, in her flourishing estate was sued vnto more than all the Pecres in the land, but after ward so depoyled

<sup>1</sup> Camden in Elizabetha 1. 3. c. 1.

<sup>m</sup> Exod. 2.

<sup>o</sup> Psal. 105. 17.

<sup>e</sup> Psal. 78. 71.

<sup>p</sup> Genebrard.

<sup>q</sup> Ioh 4. 44.
<sup>r</sup> Molierus.

<sup>1</sup> Psal. 84. 11.

<sup>u</sup> Psal. 75. 3.

<sup>v</sup> Est. 3. 1.

<sup>x</sup> Dan 4. 30.

<sup>y</sup> Act 12. 27.

<sup>z</sup> See Sir Walter Raleigh preface to the worlds Hist.

<sup>a</sup> Kroll's in his life.

<sup>b</sup> Procopius de bello Goth. lib. 1.

<sup>c</sup> & 3 Idem Simon Scharidius in vita Petri de vineis esist. eiusdem prefix. ubi multa huiusmodi reperias.

<sup>d</sup> Holirshed in the life of Rich. the 2.

<sup>e</sup> Holirshed in the life of Edw. the 5.

dispoyled of all her goods, and so despighted by her mercilesse foe, then vsurper of the Crowne, that none durst giue her so much as a crust of bread, or a drop of drinke. She who whilome had stretched her selfe on beds of downe, and was frolike with Princes in iuorie Palaces, ended her dayes in open street, euen in a dirtie ditch, & nomina fecit aquis, as some thinke Shorditch is so called as it were Shores-ditch. The Seas of examples in this kinde haue no bottome, and therefore we should make no other account of this ridiculous world, e than to resolute, that the change of fortune on the great Theater, is but as the change of garments on the lesse: for when on the one and the other, euery man weares but his owne skinne, the players are all one. God which is on high, and humbleth himselfe to behold the things in heauen and in earth, appoints euery man his part and apparell on the worlds stage, lifting vp and pulling downe whom he list. He therefore that complaines of wants or wrongs, is either a foole, or vngratefull to God, or both; that doth not acknowledge, how meane soeuer his estate be, that the same is yet farre greater than that which God oweth him: or doth not acknowledge, how sharpe soeuer his afflictions be, that the same are yet far lesse than those which are due vnto him: how soeuer it be with him, it is the Lords doing, he giueth and taketh away, blessed be his name for euermore.

This also may be so well applied vnto Christ as the rest of the Psalm, for in taking our vile nature vpon him, he raised the poore out of the dust, and the begger out of the dunghill. He said to Adam, Dust thou art and to dust thou shalt returne; but Christ in his resurrection and ascension hath raised vs vp together, and made vs sit together in the heauenly places, euen with the Princes of his people, that is, Angels, and Apostles, and other his holy Saints reigning in his kingdome of glorie.

He listeth our soules out of the dust and dirt in this life, when our affections are by his grace set on things aboue, and not on things which are on earth. Our flesh is an house of clay, but our spirit reioyceth in God, and hath her conneration in heauen. A man is where his minde is; if then we minde heauenly things, our soules are raised out of the mire: so Christ in calling Matthew (from the receipt of custome) to make him an Apostle, lifted him out of the dunghill; and in calling the rest of his Apostles, from their dirtie courses in the world, to the preaching of his word, he raised them out of the dust, and made them (as it is in the 45. Psalm, vers. 17) Princes in all lands: and in raising Marie Magdalen from her old vomit and filthinesse of sinne, what did he but lift her out of the dunghill? To be briefe, pman is like the traueller, who went from Hierusalem, to Iericho, Luk. 10 he falleth among theeues, in manifold tentations and noylome lusts; and they rob him of his rayment, of his righteousnesse and holinesse, wherewith Almighty God adorned him in his Creation; and they wounded him and departed, for sinne wounding the conscience, leaueth a man in a desperate case. But Christ is the true Samaritan, who takes compassion on man, He bindeth vp his wounds, and poureth in oyle and wine; he puts him on his owne beast, and makes prouision for him at an Inne: thus he taketh vp the distressed out of the dust, and the begger out of the dung.

At our death he listeth our soules out of the mire, when his glorious Angels attend to conuey them out of this earthly tabernacle to his heauenly kingdome, which is immortall and cannot be shaken.

At the last day he will also lift our bodies out of the dirt and mire. Man that is borne of a woman is full of troubles, and of short continuance, such a sacke of dung, that the Prophet calleth him thrice, earth, at one breath, O earth, earth, earth, heare the word of the Lord, &c. After man hath in this world wearied himselfe, he goeth to bed, and sleepeth in the dust of the graue, neither shall he be raised or awake from his sleepe till heauen be no more, saith Iob. But in the end, when as the heuens shall passe away with a noise, and the elements shall melt with heat, and the earth with the workes that are therein shall be burnt; then our blessed Saniour shall rouse vs out of the dust, and raise vs out of the mire, changing this our vile bodie, that it may be like his glorious bodie; then this corruptible shall put on incorruption, and this mortall immortalie; then both our soules and bodies shall haue their perfit consummation in his kingdome of glory.

o Sir Walter Rauleigh, ubi supa.

f Chrysolom.
Ambrosius, Iacob
de Valent.
Bellarmin.
g Gen 3. 19.
h Ephes. 2. 6.

i Coloff. 3. 2.

k Iob 4. 19.
l Luke 1. 47.
m Philip 3. 20.
n Dr. Incognit.
o Iacobus de Valent.

p See Gospell Dom 13. after Trinit.

q Luk. 16. 22.

r Ierem. 22. 29.
s Wisdom. 5. 7.

t Iob 14. 12.
u 2. Pet 3. 10.

x Philip 3. 21.

He maketh the barren women to keepe house. ] Y As barrenesse in men, so barrenesse in women is accounted a great unhappinesse. But as God listeth vp the begger out of the mire, to set him with princes: euen so doth he make the barren woman a ioyfull mother of children. He gouernes all things in the priuate family, so well as in publik weale. Children and the fruit of the wombe are a gift and heritage, that cometh of the Lord, Psalm. 127. 4. and therefore the Y Papists in praying to S. Anne for children, and the Gentiles in calling vpon Diana, Iuno, Latona, are both in error. It is God only who makes the barren woman a mother, and that a ioyfull mother. Euery mother is ioyfull at the first, according to that of 2 Christ, A woman when she trauelleth hath sorrow, because her houre is come: but as soone as she is deliuered of the childe, she remembreth no more the anguish, for ioy that a man is borne into the world. But when babes are growne vp and come to their proofe, 3 Salomon saith, A foolish sonne is an heauinesse to his mother. And our Salomon in his kingly gift, I protest before that great God, I had rather be no Father and childlesse, than a Father of wicked Children. Now God makes the barren wife not only fruitfull, but also ioyfull.

b Et nuper steriles repente matres longa beat propagine.

He made barren old c Sara fruitfull in bearing of a sonne, and ioyfull in that her sonne was Isaac, in whose seed all the nations of the world are blessed. He made d Manoahs wife both a mother, and a ioyfull mother, in that she bare Samson the strong, who saued Israel out of the hands of the Philistines. He made e Hannah both a mother and a ioyfull mother, in that she bare faithfull Samuel the Lords Prophet. He made Anne both a mother and a ioyfull mother, in bearing blessed Marie the f mother of our Lord. He made Elizabeth a mother and a ioyfull mother, in bearing Iohn the Baptist, a Prophet, yea more then a Prophet, for among them which are borne of women, arose there not a greater than Iohn Baptist, Matth. 11. 11.

3 Diuines applie this also mystically to Christ, affirming that he made the Church of the Gentiles, heretofore barren, a ioyfull mother of many children, according to that of the h Prophet, Reioyce (O barren) that diddest not beare, breake forth into ioy, and reioyce thou that diddest not trauell with childe: for the desolate hath more children than the married wife, saith the Lord. See Epistle 4. Sunday in Lent.

Or it may be construed of true Christians; all of vs are by nature barren of goodnesse, conceiued and borne in sinne, not able to thinke a good thought, 2. Cor. 3. 5. but the Father of lights and mercies makes vs fruitfull and abundant alwayes in the worke of the Lord, 1. Cor. 15. 58. he giueth vs grace to be fathers and mothers of many good deeds, which are our children, and best heires, eternizing our name for euer.

PSALME, 114.

When Israel came out of Ægypt, and the house of Iacob from among the strange people, &c.

Here be two chiefe parts of this, Psalme, the

1. A description of Israels admirable deliuerance out of Ægypt, in the foure former verses.
2. A dialogue betweene the Prophet and the creatures about the same deliuerance, in the foure latter verses

Y Tieman.

2 Ioh 16. 21.

3 Prou. 10. 11.

b Bc 73 Paraphras.

c Gen 17.

d Iudges 13.

e 1. Sam. 1.

f Luk. 1. 43.

3 Cbrysto. Hieron.

Arrobis

b Esay 54. 1.

1 Ambros. de interpell. libr. 2. cap. 4. Idem Dr. Incognitus in loc. & in Psal. 102. 17.

In the deliue-rance, note

- 1. The parties deliuered, Israel, and the house of Jacob, being Gods } Sanctuarie.
 } Seigniorie.
- 2. The perill, out of which they were deliuered, and<sup>k</sup> that was }
  - 1. Bondage.
  - 2. Bondage among strangers in Egypt.
  - 3. Bondage among such strangers as were cruell, a barbarous people.
- 3. The manner how they were deliuered, not by meanes ordinarie, but miracles extraordinarie, wrought on the }
  - Water, vers. 3. The sea saw that and fled, Iordan was driuen backe.
  - Land, vers. 4. The Mountaines skipped like Rams, &c.

<sup>k</sup> Chrysol.
Molierus.

In the dialogue two points are to be considered:

- 1. A question, What ayleth thee, O thou Sea, &c. vers. 5, 6.
- 2. An<sup>l</sup> answer, Tremble thou earth, &c. Or as <sup>m</sup> other translations, The earth trembled at the presence of the Lord, &c.

<sup>l</sup> Vatablus.
<sup>m</sup> Tremellius.
<sup>n</sup> Barmin.
<sup>o</sup> Vulgar Latin.
<sup>p</sup> English-Geneva.
<sup>q</sup> Bellarmine.

<sup>r</sup> In loc.
<sup>s</sup> Matth. 5. 8
<sup>t</sup> Gen 25. 22.
<sup>u</sup> Galat 5. 17.

<sup>v</sup> Euhym.
Genebrard.

<sup>w</sup> Geneva gloss.
<sup>x</sup> Melanct. in loc.

<sup>y</sup> Genebrardus.
<sup>z</sup> In ob is de Valentia.

<sup>aa</sup> Calvin, in loc
<sup>ab</sup> Ezech. 3 8. 23.

<sup>ac</sup> Buc.
<sup>ad</sup> Ag. linc.
<sup>ae</sup> Rob. Stephanus.
<sup>af</sup> Deut 7. 6.
<sup>ag</sup> Exod. 19 4
<sup>ah</sup> Bellarmine.

<sup>ai</sup> Chrysol.
<sup>aj</sup> Euhym.
<sup>ak</sup> Buc.
<sup>al</sup> 1. Sam. 8. 7.

When Israel ] The<sup>n</sup> latter clause doth expound the former, Israel that is, the house of Jacob: for this holy Patriarke had two names, first Jacob that signifieth a supplanter, Gen. 25. 26. and then Israel, that is, one which hath power with God, Gen. 32. 28. teaching vs hereby, saith<sup>o</sup> Hierome (as we haue receiued grace) to supplant vice, that we may preuaile with God and see him; according to that of Christ, Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God. As <sup>q</sup> Jacob and Esau, stroue together in their mother Rebeccaes wombe: so the<sup>r</sup> flesh in man lusteth against the spirit, and the spirit against the flesh. If we play Jacobs part in supplanting sinne, which is a red and a rough Esau, we shall assuredly gaine the blessing of our heauenly Father.

By Jacobs house then is meant his posteritie the children of Israel, of whom it is reported by Moses, Deut. 10. 22. Thy fathers went downe into Egypt with seuentie persons, and now the Lord thy God hath made thee as the starres of heauen in multitude. These people were Gods sanctification and dominion,<sup>r</sup> that is, witnesses of his holy Maiestie in adopting them, and of his mightie power in deliuering them; <sup>u</sup> or his sanctification, as hauing his holy Priests to g<sup>u</sup>erne them in the points of pietie; and dominion, as hauing godly Magistrates ordained from aboue to rule them in matters of policie: or his sanctuarie,<sup>x</sup> both actiuely, because sanctifying him: and passiuely, because sanctified of him. It is true, that God, as being euer the most holie so well as the most high, cannot be magnified and hallowed in respect of himselfe, but in respect of <sup>y</sup> other only. For God is sanctified of his seruants, as wisdome is said to be iustified of her children, Luk. 7. 35. that is, acknowledged and declared to be iust, according to that of the Lord by the mouth of his holy <sup>z</sup> Prophet, Thus will I be magnified and sanctified, and knowne in the eyes of many nations, and they shall know that I am the Lord. Wherefore let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorifie your Father which is in heauen. Againe, Iuda was his Sanctuarie,<sup>aa</sup> because sanctified of him, adopted his holy heritage, chosen a peculiar and a precious people to himselfe, <sup>b</sup> aboue all nations in the world. I haue carried you (saith the<sup>c</sup> Lord) upon Eagles wings, and haue brought you vnto me, that yee might be my chiefe treasure aboue all people, though all the earth be mine, consecrated and hallowed to my worship, as holy Temples and Sanctuaries in whom I may rule; for so the latter clause may well <sup>d</sup> explaine the former, Iuda was his Sanctuarie, because his Dominion, in whom he<sup>e</sup> reigned as a King by his lawes and spirit. And therefore when Israel asked a King of the Lord to iudge them, he said to <sup>f</sup> Samuel, they haue not reiected thee, but they haue reiected me, that I should not reigne ouer them them. According to this exposition, Israel is termed (Exod. 19. 6.) a kingdome of Priests: or (as S. Peter hath it) a royall Priesthood; royall, as being his Seignorie; Priesthood, as being his Sanctuarie. For the better vnderstanding of this phrase, remember I pray, that there betwixt kindes of kingdomes in holy Scripture, the kingdome of darkenesse, <sup>b</sup> which is the kingdome of the deuill; and the kingdome of heauen, which is the kingdome of God. When all had sinned in Adam, it pleased the Lord out of his vnsearchable iustice, to lay this heauie punishment on all his posteritie; that seeing they could not be content to be subiect to their Creator, they should become vassals vnder Satans tyrannie: so that all men are now (by nature) the children of <sup>i</sup> wrath, and <sup>k</sup> the prince of darkenesse ruleth in their hearts, vntill Christ the strong man commeth, and bindeth him, and <sup>m</sup> casteth him out, and so bringeth all his elect out of darkenesse into marvellous light, 1. Pet. 2. 9.

Blinde ignorant people cannot abide this doctrine, they spit at the very naming of the deuill, and say that they defie him and all his, euen with all their heart, and soule, and minde. Yet whereas they liue still in ignorance and impietic, which are the two maine pillars of Satans kingdome, they make plaine prooffe, that they be children of the <sup>n</sup> world, children of <sup>o</sup> disobedience, children of <sup>p</sup> iniquitie, children of <sup>q</sup> death, children of the <sup>r</sup> deuill, children of <sup>t</sup> perdition, children of <sup>v</sup> hell. Israel is Gods dominion, and Iuda Gods sanctuarie: but Egypt and Babylon, and other parts and persons of the world, liuing in sinne without repentance, what are they but the suburbs of hell, and (as it were) the deuils Empire, where he holdeth vp his Scepter, and ruleth as a Prince, Ephes. 2. 2.

Gods kingdome is taken in the Bible two wayes especially.

Generally, for that government which is termed <sup>u</sup> Regnum patientia, by which he ruleth all men, and disposeth of all men, euen of the deuils themselues, according to his good will and pleasure.

Specially, for his administration of the Church, and that is twofold, <sup>w</sup> Regnum gratia, the kingdome of gracc.

<sup>x</sup> Regnum gloria, the kingdome of glory.

Of that kingdome which is potentie Regnum, it is said by <sup>y</sup> Dauid, Thine is the kingdome, O Lord, and thou excellest as head ouer all. Of that kingdome <sup>z</sup> Daniel speaketh, His kingdome is from generation to generation, and his dominion cuerlasting. Of that kingdome of Christ in the conclusion of his prayer, Thine is the kingdome, power, and glory. For albeit peruerse men doe mischief, and obserue not the Lawes of God, yet he reigneth ouer them as an absolute Lord: for that (when it pleaseth him) he hindereth their designement; and when he permits them sometime to haue their desires, he doth afterward punish them according to their owne misdeeds, and so <sup>a</sup> whatsoeuer the Lord pleaseth, he doth in heauen, and in earth, and in the Sea, and in all deepe places.

By his kingdome of grace he gouernes the soules and hearts of good Christians, giuing them his Spirit and grace to serue him in holinesse and righteousness all the dayes of their life. Christ is the King of this kingdome, vpon whom the Father hath conferred <sup>b</sup> all authoritie both in heauen and earth. The subiects of this kingdome are such as <sup>c</sup> offer vnto him free-will offerings with an holy worshippe, euer ready to giue cheerefull obedience to the rod of his power. The lawes of this kingdome are the Scriptures and word of God, in this respect called <sup>d</sup> the kingdome of heauen, the <sup>e</sup> Gospell, and <sup>f</sup> word of the kingdome; the <sup>g</sup> rod of Christs mouth, and <sup>h</sup> power of his arme to saluation. And so consequently, the kingdome of grace is a preparation and entrance to the kingdome of glory, which is the blessed estate of all Gods elect in that other life, where God is to them all in all. And in this respect, the kingdome of grace many times is termed in the Gospels historie, the kingdome of heauen, as being the way to the kingdome of glory, which is in the heauen of heauens.

This one verse then expounds and exemplifies two prime petitions in the Lords prayer.

<sup>B</sup> 1 Pet. 2. 9.

<sup>b</sup> Coloff. 1. 13.

<sup>i</sup> Ephes. 2. 3.

<sup>k</sup> Ephes. 6. 12.

<sup>l</sup> Luke 11. 22.

<sup>m</sup> Iohn 12. 31.

<sup>n</sup> Luke 16. 9.

<sup>o</sup> Coloff. 3. 6.

<sup>p</sup> Hosea 10. 9.

<sup>q</sup> 1. Sam. 26. 16

<sup>r</sup> Iohn 8. 44.

<sup>t</sup> Iohn 17. 2.

<sup>v</sup> Matth. 23. 15.

<sup>u</sup> See Ro Steph.
Concord in diuilione regnum, &
Bellam. Cat. 4.
cap. 4.

<sup>y</sup> 1. Chro. 29. 11

<sup>z</sup> Dan. 4. 31.

<sup>a</sup> Dan. 6. 26.

<sup>a</sup> Psal. 135. 6.

<sup>b</sup> Matth. 28. 18.

<sup>c</sup> Psal. 110. 3.

<sup>d</sup> Matth. 13. 11.

<sup>e</sup> Marke 1. 14.

<sup>f</sup> Matth. 13. 19.

<sup>g</sup> Esay 1. 14.

<sup>h</sup> Rom 1. 16.

prayer, hallowed be thy name, thy kingdome come: for Iuda was Gods sanctuarie, because hallowing his name; and israel, his dominion, as desiring his kingdome to come. Let euery man examine himselfe by this patterne, whether he be truly the seruant of Iesus his Sauour, or the vassall of Sathan the destroyer. If any submit himselfe willingly to the domineering of the deuill, and suffer sinne to 'reigne in his mortall members, obeying the lusts thereof, and<sup>k</sup> working all vncleannesse euen with greedinesse; assuredly, that man is yet a chapell of Sathan and a slaue to sinne. On the contrary, whoeuer vnfaignedly desires that Gods kingdome may come, being euer ready to be ruled according to his holy word, acknowledging it a lanterne to his feet, and a guide to his path's; admitting obediently his lawes, and submitting himselfe alway to the same; what is he, but a citizen of heauen, a subiect of God, a Saint, a Sanctuarie.

Two questions are moued here; the first is, what antecedent answers the reatiue his: and the second, what is meant by Iuda. The reatiue eius hath an antecedent implied, howsoever not expressed, <sup>as</sup> Psalm. 87. 1. Fundamenta eius her foundations are vpon the holy hills: and God is that antecedent, as I haue partly said, and it may likewise be fully shewed both out of the text and title. The "circumstances of the text lead vs to this antecedent, the Lord is the God of Iacob, vers. 7. Ergo the house of Iacob is Gods sanctuarie, the children of Israel Gods dominion. Again, the ° title points at this antecedent, Alleluia, praise the Lord; as if the Prophet should haue said, ye haue good and great cause to praise the Lord, because when Israel went out of Egypt, and the house of Iacob from among the strange people, then Iuda was his Sanctuarie, &c. Lastly, though it should be granted, that neither title nor text here can afford vs an antecedent, yet we need not runne (with P Agellius out of this Hymne) to fetch one from the last words of the next going before, He maketh the barren woman to keepe house, &c. Because his in this verse may be construed of God, catexochen, as being hic ille, the most high, He, who turned the hard rocke into a standing water, and the flint stone into a springing Well: at whose presence the mountaines skip like rammes, and the little hills like young sheepe; yea, the Sea fleeth, and the earth trembleth at the presence of the Lord, at the presence of the God of Iacob.

By Iuda ¶ some vnderstand Indea, for <sup>r</sup> God is knowne in Iurie, his name is great in Israel, at Salem is his tabernacle, and his dwelling in Sion. ¶ Other haue construed this only of the Tribe of Iuda, for that God in Iuda would chuse a Prince, 1 Chron. 23. 4. or because the Messias of the world, which is the Lord of Lords, and King of Kings, was to be borne of <sup>r</sup> that Tribe. Or, because the <sup>u</sup> Jewes haue a tradition, that Iuda was the first Tribe that aduentured after Moses and Aaron, and entred into the red sea with vndaunted courage. So we finde in the numbring of Israels host, that the standerd of Iuda was in the first place, Numb. 10. 14. and Nahshon the sonne of Aminadab was their Captaine. Numb. 2. 3. Hence it is said, Cant. 6. 11. My soule made me like the chariots of Aminadab, or my willing people.

But <sup>r</sup> most Interpreters vnderstand by Iuda, not only that Tribe; but also the rest of the children of Israel. It is nothing but a Synecdoche, pars pro toto, the chiefe Tribe, for the whole bodie of Gods people, that went out of Egypt into the land of promise, called often in holy Scriptures Israel, of the fathers name, and Iuda of the chiefe sonnes name.

Bondage was the perill, out of which Israel and Iuda were deliuered, and that in the ¶ Poets iudgement is worse than any danger or death, omni malo & omni exitio preor. <sup>r</sup> A woman of a manly spirit said as much, Honestius est mortem occumbere, quam capita tributaria circumferre. The younger <sup>a</sup> Iustin vsed this apophthegme for his Motto, Libertas res inestimabilis: and <sup>b</sup> Seneca to the same purpose, For a man to be his owne man, is an inualluable treasure. The resolution of our countrymen to William the Conqueror is renowned in English Historie, Kentish men must haue libertie, Kentish men will haue libertie. <sup>c</sup> There was neuer any bondmen or villaines in Kent. The <sup>d</sup> prouerbia list vttered reason as well as ryme:

Dico tibi verum, libertas optima rerum, Nunquam seruili sub nexu iuniso (fili.)

But

Rom 6. 12.
Ephc. 4. 19.

1 Molerus.
2 Genebrard.

3 Eulhym.

4 Bellarmine.

5 In loc.

6 Placidus
Turcomat.
Genebrard.

7 Psal 76. 1.
8 Or Incognit.
Agellus.

9 Gen 49. 10.
10 See Placidus.

11 Euser.
Genebrard.
12 Or Incognit. in
loc.

13 Caluin.
Rom. Stephanus.

14 Tremelius.
Strigellius.
Bellarmine.

15 Plautus in Amphib.

16 Brunica fam.
Britannica apud
Zephilin in vita Neronis.

17 Roufarius in Symbol.

18 Epist 76.

19 Lamheri perambulation of Kent, pag. 14

20 Apud Holmstedt Hist. of Scotland, pag.
204.

But Bondage is more grievous and insupportable when it is in a forraine land, as this of Jacobs house was in Egypt. The stranger is sad in heart, though at libertie, wherefore God enioyned his own people not to grieue the stranger, considering they themselves were sometime strangers in the land of Egypt. The condition of the stranger is to be pittied, as that of the fatherlesse and widow. Ier. m 7.6. Oppresse not the stranger, the fatherlesse, and the widow. Zach. 7.10. Oppresse not the widow, nor the fatherlesse, nor the stranger, nor the poore. And when vncharitable men vnconscionably vex them, Almighty God takes their cause into his owne hands: Pfal. 146.9. The Lord careth for the strangers he defendeth the fatherlesse and widow, he will maintaine their cause, and spoile the soule of those that spoile them, Prou. 22. 23. A man at home being in durance hath among his owne, some mediators, or meanes for his deliuerance; but an aliant in thraldome, for the most part is helpelesse, if not hopelesse. <sup>f</sup> By the waters of Babylon (say Gods people) we sat downe and wept, when we remembered Sion: as for our merrie harps, we hanged them up upon the trees, for how should we sing the Lords song in a strange land?

We must ascend yet one step higher: Israel was oppressed not by strangers only, but also by such strangers as were cruell, as <sup>b</sup> other translations, a barbarous people, barbarous both in their vsage and language. Concerning their tyrannous behaviour towards Gods Israel, it is reported by Moses, Exod. 1.14. that they made them wearie of their lines, by sore labour in mortar and bricke, and in all worke in the field, with all manner of bondage which they laid upon them most cruelly. Moreouer, the King of Egypt commanded the Mid-wiues of the Hebrew women, to kill euerie man-child in the verie birth. And because the Mid-wiues fearing the Lord, which is the Father of mercie, would not execute that bloudie designe; Pharoah charged his owne people, saying, euerie male-child that is borne, cast into the riuer. Yea, but how was Egypt a barbarous nation in language, being highly renowned in historie for knowledge? and S. Stephen, Acts 7.22. recorded it as a remarkable commendation in Moses, that he was learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians. Answer is made by <sup>i</sup> some, that they were called barbarous, as <sup>k</sup> perking another tongue, or a strange language which Israel vnderstood not; according to that of Paul, 1. Cor. 14.11. Except I know the meaning of the voyce, I shall be to him that speaketh a Barbarian, and he likewise that speaketh a Barbarian vnto me. But <sup>l</sup> other (in my iudgement better) affirme, that they were barbarous, as being a most idolatrous people, notwithstanding all their humane learning, ignorant in the knowledge concerning the worship of the true God, adoring the creatures in stead of the Creator. Barbarous, as not speaking the <sup>m</sup> language of Canaan, as not vnderstanding the <sup>n</sup> mysteries of godlinesse. So profound Plato, learned Aristotle, wittie Plutarch, eloquent Demosthenes, were Barbarians vnto the house of Iacob, as being vnacquainted with Gods feare, which is the beginning of wisdom.

This of the perill out of which Israel was deliuered: it followeth in the next place, that I shew the manner of their deliuerance, brought to passe by Gods <sup>o</sup> mightie hand, and outstretched arme, working a world of wonders in Egypt, and in the wildernesse, for their safe conduct into the land of promise. All which are registred at large by Moses in the second booke of his historie, called in <sup>p</sup> this respect by the Grecians, Exodus, as principally treating of Israels wonderfull egress from out of Egypt, and progresse in the wildernesse. Two sorts of miracles are remembered in this Hymne: the first vpon the waters, The Sea saw that and fled, &c. The second vpon the land, The muontaines skipped like rams, &c.

The sea saw that and fled <sup>q</sup> That is, the red sea seeing Gods people comming toward it, and desirous to passe thorow it, at the presence of the Lord runned backe all the night, and was diuided, so that the children of Israel went thorow the midst of the sea, vpon the drie land; <sup>r</sup> the great deepe became a greene field, and the waters were a wall vnto them on their right hand, and on their left hand. Some scoffing Atheists haue giuen out, that the sea fled not by miracle, but by a course meere naturall, affirming that Gods people watched their opportunitie, when the sea was at an ebbe, and so passed thorow the midst of it on drie foot. This impudent assertion is notably <sup>e</sup> Exod 22.21.

Leuit. 19.33.

<sup>f</sup> Pfal. 137.

<sup>g</sup> Placidus.
Genebrard.
Beza Paraphras.
<sup>a</sup> Caldea.
Septuagint.
Hieron.
Munster.
Castalio.
Geneua.

<sup>1</sup> Agellius.
Bellarmino.
Genebrard.
<sup>k</sup> Aquila apud Agellium.
<sup>l</sup> Tileman.

<sup>m</sup> Esay 19.18:
<sup>n</sup> 1. Tim. 3.16

<sup>o</sup> Deut. 5.15.

<sup>p</sup> Dio. Carthuf.
Vatablus.
Sa.

<sup>q</sup> Exod 14.21.

<sup>r</sup> Wis 15.7.

<sup>f</sup> Exercitat. 52.

<sup>c</sup> Heres 64.

<sup>u</sup> Apud Genebrard & Iacob. de Valent. in loc. Idem D. In cog. nit. in P<sup>sa</sup>l 105.

confuted by iudicious <sup>f</sup> Scaliger, prouing it an egregious paradox, contradicting not only the principles of Diuinitie, but also the rules of reason and grounds of Philosophie. The text saith expressly, that the sea was diuided: but <sup>c</sup> Epiphanius, and the <sup>u</sup> Rabbinis auow further, that it was parted into twelue paths, according to the number of the twelue tribes of Israel, euery troope hauing a feuerall (as it were) to march in. But when their enemies followed them into the middest of the sea, the waters returned, and covered the chariots and horsemen, euen all the hoast of Pharao, that entred after them into the sea, there remaining not one of them; and so the Lord saued Israel out of the hand of the Egyptians, and Israel saw the Egyptians dead upon the sea banke, Exod. 14 28. 30.

When Israel vpon the sight of Pharaohs innumerable host were sore afraid, and cried vnto the Lrd, and said vnto Moses, Hast thou brought vs to die in the wilderness, because there were no graues in Egypt? Moses answered the people, Feare ye not, stand still, and behold the saluation of the Lord, which he will shew to you this day, for the Egyptians whom yee haue scene this day, yee shall neuer see them againe. How then are the two seeming contrarie places in one Chapter accorded? Israel shall neuer see the Egyptians againe, yet afterward, Israel saw the Egyptians. Answer is made by <sup>x</sup> S. Augustine, ye shall neuer see them againe liuing as to day, but ye shall see them dead. Ye shall neuer see them againe fighting against you, but ye shall see them at your feet drowned in the waters, and cast vp at the sea banke. Ye shall see them againe to your comfort, but ye shall neuer see them againe to your terror.

How Jordan was drinen backe, you may reade in the third and fourth Chapter of Iosua. How the mountaines skipped like rammes, and the little hills like young sheepe, Exod. 19. 18. Habacuc 3. 6 10. How the hard rocke was turned into standing water, and the flint stone to a springing well, Exod. 17. 6. Numb. 20. 11. P<sup>sa</sup>l 78. 16. and P<sup>sa</sup>l. 105. 40. The summe whereof is in brieffe, that all the creatures, at the commandement of the Creator, are <sup>y</sup> turned vpside downe; ready to doe, or not to doe, to shew forth, or keepe in their ordinarie courses, according to his good will and pleasure. The sea flowing forward, at the word of God turned backward: the mountaines to called à non mouendo, because they doe not moue, skip like rammes, and the little hills like young sheepe; the hard rocke, the flint stone, both exceeding drie, made standing waters, and springing wells. It is the nature of <sup>z</sup> ramping and roaring Lions to be <sup>g</sup> greedy of their prey; yet the Lord <sup>b</sup> shut the Lions mouthes, that they could not hurt Daniel in their denne. It is the nature of water to drowne and deuoure men in the deepe, for the wicked Egyptians sank to the bottome (saith <sup>e</sup> Moses) as a stone; yet <sup>a</sup> Jonas, by Gods appointment, being throwne into the middest of the sea, and swallowed vp in a Whales belly three daies and three nights, was afterward cast out againe vpon the dry land, safe and sound, Jonas 2. 10. It is the nature of fire to burne and consume; yet Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, put into a fierie furnace made seuen times more hot than ordinarie, walked in the middest of the flame without any danger. <sup>e</sup> The fire had no power of their bodies, not one haire of their head scorched, neither were their coats changed, nor any smck of fire came vpon them. The blessed man and Martyr of God Saint Bilney (for so Father <sup>f</sup> Latymer is bold to call him) often <sup>g</sup> comforted himselfe and his acquaintance, with the words of our Lord, Esay 43. 1. Feare not Israel, for I haue redeemed thee, I haue called thee by thy name, thou art mine; when thou passest thorow the waters, I will be with thee, and thorow the floods, that they doe not ouerflow thee; when thou walkest thorow the very fire, thou shalt not be burnt: neither shall the flame kindle vpon thee. So <sup>h</sup> James Baynham another holy Martyr (being at the stake in the middest of furious and outragious flames) cried out, Behold ye Papists, ye looke for miracles, and here now ye may see a miracle, for in this fire I feele no more paine, than if I were in a bed of downe: yea it is to me like a bed of roses. So <sup>i</sup> Hierome of Prage, when the deaths-man at his burning would haue kindled the fire behind at his back, (lest it might otherwise seeme too terrible) presently called vnto him, and said, Come hither, and les me see the fire before me; for if I had feared the fire, I needed not to haue come hither In all things behold then, how good and ioyfull a thing it is to serue the Lord, to be subiect to his kingdome,

to

<sup>x</sup> Quæst. 51. sup. Exod.

<sup>y</sup> See Wisd. 19. 18.

<sup>z</sup> P<sup>sa</sup>l. 22. 13.

<sup>a</sup> P<sup>sa</sup>l. 17. 12.

<sup>b</sup> Dan 6 22.

<sup>c</sup> Exod. 15 5.

<sup>d</sup> Ionas 1 17.

<sup>e</sup> Dan. 3. 27.

<sup>f</sup> Serm 7. before

King. Ed. 6.

<sup>g</sup> Fox Martyr.

fol. 923.

<sup>h</sup> Fox ubi sup.

fol. 932.

<sup>i</sup> Io. Crispin in Catalog martyr.
ex epist. Pogij Florentini que est ad Leonardum Aretin-
num.

k Hebr. 12. 12.

l Deut. 34. 1.

m Rom. 8. 18.

n Galat. 5. 1.

o Matth. 23. 4.

p Tho. Patmore apud Fox Martyr fol 953.
Idem ferè Prim-
us. Aquino, Lombard. in
Gal. 3.

q Matth. 3. 15.

r Anselm.

s Mica 7. 15.

t Augustin. in loc.

u Psal. 32. 7.

v Galat. 6. 10.

w Apoc. 12. 4.

x Acts 4. 12.

a Aug. s. s. s.

b John 6. 60.

c Matth. 5. 6.

d Exod. 17. 6.

e Numb. 20. 11.

f Sirizellius in
loc. & Molleus
in Psal. 105.
v. 41.

k looke vnto Iesus the founder and finisher of our faith, he will euen in this world afford vs, as he did <sup>l</sup> Moses vpon the top of Pisgah, a little sight of the promised Land, making it ours in hope, though as yet not in hold, bringing vs to the resolution of <sup>m</sup> S. Paul, I count that the afflictions of this life present, are not worthy of the glory which shall be shewed vnto vs hereafter.

As for the burthen of the Law, which is a yoke of <sup>n</sup> bondage, grieuous and heauie to be borne, Christ easeth vs of it also, being made vnder the Law, to redeeme them vnder the Law, Galath. 4. 4. He blotted out the hand-writing of ordinances that was against vs, and tooke it out of the way, nailing it to the Crosse, Coloss. 2. 14. We cannot indeed exactly keepe any part of the Law, much lesse the whole; but (as the blessed Apostle speaks) it was in the hand, <sup>p</sup> that is, in the power of a Mediator, Galat. 3. 19. and he did abundantly <sup>q</sup> fulfill, all righteoufnesse in our person and place: <sup>r</sup> or in the hand of a Mediator, as hauing authoritic to cancell it, and to take the burthen away from our shoulders.

Lastly, touching sinne, He who knew no sinne, made himselfe to be sinne for vs, that we should be made the righteoufnesse of God in him; 1. Cor. 5. 21. The <sup>s</sup> Lord saith, According to the dayes of thy coming out of the Land of Egypt, will I stee maruellous things. Now, when Israel went out of Egypt, and the house of Iacob from among the strange people, he did ouerturne the chariots and horsemen, and destroyed all the hoast of their enemies in the midst of the red Sea: <sup>t</sup> so likewise will he subdue our iniquities, which are our greatest enemies, and cast all of them into the bottoome of the Sea, Mica 7. 19. that they may neuer appeare before vs againe, to confound our consciences in this world, or condemne our soules in the next. If the man be blessed <sup>u</sup> whose vnrigheteoufnesse is forgiven, and whose sinne is couered; O well is it vnto thee, happy shalt thou be which art of the <sup>v</sup> household of faith! as hauing all thy foule faults and foes destroyed by Christs death, and buried in his graue.

The King of Egypt commanded the Midwives of the Hebrew women, to kill euery male- childe in the very birth, Exod. 1. 15. And semblably the <sup>w</sup> red Dragon standing before the woman in the wildernes, is ready to deuour her childe so soone as she brings it forth; that is, the deuill is alwayes at hand to quell euery vertuous motion arising in our minde; but the spirit of Christ (as a cunning midwife) brings forth our good intentions into good actions, working in vs both the will and the deed, Phil 2. 13.

Concerning the meanes of our deliuerance, Christ is our Moses and Iosua, who brought vs out of Egypt into the land of promise, for <sup>x</sup> among men is given none other name whereby we must be saued. All other (in holy Scripture) stiled Iesus, are but types of our Lord Iesus. Iesus Nane, renowned for his valour, is the type of Christ as he was a King. Iesus Sidrach, renowned for his knowledg, the type of Christ as he was a Prophet. Iesus Iosadach, renowned for his pietie, the type of Christ as he was a Priest. Our Iesus is the hard rocke, mentioned at the latter end of this hymne. That Christ is a rocke, we reade, Mat. 16. 18 and 1. Pet. 2. 8 that Christ is an hard rocke; we finde also Matth. 21. 44. Whosoever falleth on this stone shall be broken, and on whomsoeuer it shall fall, it will grinde him to powder. That Christ is that hard rocke, turned into a standing water, <sup>y</sup> S. Paul telleth vs, 1. Cor. 10. I would not that ye should be ignorant (quoth he) that all our Fathers were vnder the cloud, and all passed thorow the Sea, and did all eat the same spirituall meat, and all drinke the same spirituall drinke, for they dranke of the spirituall rocke that followed them, and the rocke was Christ.

He seemed at the first an hard rocke, <sup>a</sup> when his Disciples said, <sup>b</sup> This is an hard saying, who can heare it? but afterward pleasant waters did flow from him, vnto such as <sup>c</sup> hunger and thirst after righteoufnesse. <sup>d</sup> Moses smote the rocke in the wildernes, and water came forth of it in such abundance, that all the congregation of Israel dranke thereof and were refreshed. <sup>e</sup> So Moses rod, that is, the Law, smote Christ on the Crosse for our sinnes; he was made a curse for vs, Galat. 3. 14. he was wounded for our transgressions, and broken for our iniquities, Esay 53. 5. and out of this hard rocke thus smitten by Moses rod, a Well of water sprang forth into euerlasting life, John 4. 14.

The Sea saw that and fled ] The world is called a Sea, Reuel. 4. 6. The world then <sup>f</sup> persecuting Christ and his Apostles, is a red sea; this red sea fled at the preaching of the Gospell and gaue place. Christ rebuked the winds, and the waters, and so there was a great calme, Matth 8. 26. Jordan was drinen backe. <sup>g</sup> Christ himselfe was baptized in Jordan, and such as are <sup>h</sup> baptized into Christ, and beleue, tend not (as other <sup>i</sup> riuers vsually) their streames into the sea, that is, they fashion not themselves according to this world, but are renewed in their mindes, Rom. 12. 2. they repent and turne backe from their old courses, and walke in newnesse of life, Rom 6. 4.

The mountaines skipped like rammes ] By mountaines <sup>k</sup> Arnobius doth vnderstand the Prophets, qui locuti sunt altitudines Dei, they reioyced at the fulfilling of their Prophecies, and skipped as rammes, in seeing that shephard borne, <sup>l</sup> who would lay downe his life for his sheepe. <sup>m</sup> S. Augustine makes the blessed Apostles and other Preachers of the Gospell, old sheepe, and their auditors as it were lambes and young sheepe, begotten in Christ vnto God by the disposers of the secrets of God, according to that of <sup>n</sup> Paul vnto his Corinthians, In Christ Iesus I haue begotten you through the Gospell.

Israels Exodus out of Egypts bondage was so great, that God himselfe in perpetuam rei memoriam, instituted the <sup>o</sup> Passouer to be kept of his people for euer, and further inserted a short remembrance thereof in the prologue to his Law, I am the Lord thy God, which haue brought thee out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage. This deliuerance was temporall and particular, only concerning Israel and the house of Iacob: but the redemption by Christ is spirituall and generall, appertaining to men of all conditions and countries, of all tribes, and at all times, euen from the beginning vnto the worlds end. For so God loved the world, that he gaue his only begotten Sonne, that whosoever beleueth in him, should not perish, but haue euerlasting life, Iohn 3. 16. and therefore the Church (vpon good grounds) ordained the feasts of Christs Incarnation, Passion, Resurrection, Ascension. And for as much as Christ is our Passouer, the Church of England appointed this hymne fitly to be read on Easter day.

The Church of Rome <sup>r</sup> drunken with the blood of Saints, and with the blood of the martyrs of Iesus Christ, is spirituall Babylon and Egypt. And the Papists, her followers, a generation of barbarous people, barbarous in their doings, and barbarous in their doctrines. Concerning their barbarous vsage, their bloodie butchering of Gods Israel in Angrogone, their massacre in France, gunpowder treason in England, are clouds of witnesss against them vnto the worlds end.

As for their sayings; Is it not barbarous language to call that man of sinne, most holy father? and, as if that were not enough, holinesse it selfe, <sup>s</sup> sanctus vestra, <sup>t</sup> beatitudo vestra? Is it not barbarous language, to set Anti christ in the seat of Christ, and to terme him expressly <sup>u</sup> the husband of the Church? Is it not barbarous language to magnifie the Romish Pharaoh aboue all that is called God, making him a Demi-god, yea Semi-god, neither absolutely God, nor simply man, but a midling <sup>b</sup> betweene both? Is it not barbarous language to say, that none may presume to reil him of his faults; though he should through his ill example, draw millions of men into hell? as their <sup>v</sup> owne text runneth, Innumerabiles populos caternatim secum ducit primo mancipio gehenne, cum ipso plagis multis in aeternum vapulaturus, huius culpas istis red. trahere presumit mortalium nullus.

Is it not barbarous language to say, that no minorite Frier, obseruing <sup>z</sup> S. Francis order and rule, can be damned? and that a certaine Frier vpon a time being carried into hell, and surueying in it enery corner, found not so much as one Franciscane Frier. That a Frier should goe to hell, is thought no great maruell, but that he should returne from thence to tell vs this tale, seemeth incredible, considering the Pope himselfe determineth, ex inferno nulla redemptio.

Is it not barbarous language to say, <sup>a</sup> that to be buried in a gray Friers frocke, in S. Francis cowle, should remit foure parts of penance, three parts of our sinnes.

<sup>b</sup> Qui sit ut moriamur in cucullo, Cum nemo bene viuat in cucullo.

<sup>f</sup> Dr Incognitus.

<sup>g</sup> Matth 3. 26.

<sup>h</sup> Rom 2. 6. 3.

<sup>i</sup> Ecclesiast 1. 7.

<sup>k</sup> In loc.

<sup>l</sup> Ioh 10. 11.

<sup>m</sup> In loc.

<sup>n</sup> 1. Cor. 4. 15.

<sup>o</sup> Exod. 12.

<sup>p</sup> 1. Cor. 5. 7.

<sup>q</sup> Melan. Theol.

<sup>r</sup> In loc. affirms, that it was v

suallly sung a mong the Iewes at their celebration of Easter.

<sup>s</sup> Apoc. 17. 6.

<sup>t</sup> Beilam epist.

<sup>u</sup> dedic Tom 1.

<sup>v</sup> controvers.

<sup>w</sup> Idem epist. de

<sup>x</sup> dit. Tom 2. Ba

<sup>y</sup> ronius epist. de

<sup>z</sup> dic. Tom. 2. an

<sup>a</sup> nab. & reliqui

<sup>b</sup> Papista commu

<sup>c</sup> niter.

<sup>d</sup> Cip quociam

<sup>e</sup> de immunitate

<sup>f</sup> in c. & Turc

<sup>g</sup> cremat. sum. lib.

<sup>h</sup> 2. cap. 17. per to

<sup>i</sup> lum

<sup>j</sup> 2. Theil 2. 4

<sup>k</sup> In Decretis

<sup>l</sup> cap. si Papa, dist

<sup>m</sup> 40

<sup>n</sup> Hen Sedulius

<sup>o</sup> apolog. lib. 2. c. 9

<sup>p</sup> Fox Martyr.

<sup>q</sup> fol. 912. & 1011

<sup>r</sup> Euchana fra

<sup>s</sup> tres fraternimi.

Is it not barbarous language to say, that it is an <sup>c</sup> honestier thing for a Priest to be intangled with many concubines in secret, than openly to be ioyned in mariage with one wife? For he may not keepe one benefice with one wife, <sup>d</sup>but he may haue two benefices and three whores.

Is it not barbarous language to say, that for repeating ouer the fiftene Ooes, euerie day once through a whole yeere, we shall apertly see our Ladie to helpe vs after our death? or, that we should haue the like benefit, for saying of her Psalter vpon the ten beads, that come from the crossed Friers; or vpon the fivie beads hallowed at the Charter-house; or for fasting the Ladies fast, as they call it, yea for fasting on the Wednesday?

Is it not barbarous language to say, that our <sup>f</sup> owne inherent righteousnesse is the formall cause of absolute iustification, and not the righteousnesse of Christ imputed vnto vs? This opinion is so barbarous, that S. Paul saith of it, Galath. 5. 4. Ye are abolished from Christ, and fallen from grace, who soeuer are iustified by the Law.

Is it not barbarous language to say, that the Crucifix is to be reuerenced and adored with the selfe-same kinde of worship that is due to Christ, eadem reuerentia imaginis Christi exhibenda & ipsi Christo.

In respect of these barbarisimes, and many moe, the blessed Martyr <sup>h</sup> Aymondus, being condemned by the Papists of Bourdeaux and Angeou to die, sung this hymne as he went to the stake When Israel went out of Egypt, &c. insinuating that the kingdom of Poperie was like Egypt, an house of bondage, where the man of sinne domineering in the conscience, doth impose grieuous burthens vpon Gods Idols, worse than any fore labour in mortar and bricke. If Adam in his innocencie did not exactly keepe one precept of God; how shall Adams posteritie, compassed about with infirmitie, doe workes of supererogation? obseruing not only the commandements of God, but also the Councils of the Church, and ordinances of men, almost infinite for their number, altogether insupportable for their nature.

Almightie God hath, out of the riches of his glory, deliuered vs alone from these barbarians; and that we now continue yet free from them, is not our owne warinesse, or worthinesse, but his worke only that doth all wonders. The planting of the Gospell among vs in the dayes of King Henry the eight, was a great wonder; the watering of it in the daies of King Edward the sixt, another great wonder; the flourishing of it in the dayes of our renowned Queene Elizabeth; and our gracious Soueraigne King James, another great wonder. Our deliuerance from the Northerne Conspiracie, from the Spanish Armado, from the Gunpowder plot, are great arguments of Gods might and mercy, manifested to his Engli<sup>h</sup> Israel. In regard of all which, and many moe fresh in our memorie, we may well (as <sup>k</sup> other translations haue done before vs) adioyne the next hymne to this, and say, Not vnto vs, O Lord, not vnto vs, but vnto thy name giue the praise, for thy louing mercy, and for thy truths sake.

The dialogue betweene the Prophet and the creatures, instructeth vs how we should stand in awe of God, seeing the very dumbe creatures and insensible feare before him. Doth an <sup>l</sup> oxe know his owner, and an asse his masters cribbe? and shall not Israel vnderstand? Shall vnreasonable beasts of the field, and feathered fowles in the aire, praise the Lord in their kinde; and shall not man sanctius his animal, mentisq; capacius alta, <sup>m</sup> sing alwayes the louing kindnes of God, and with his mouth euer shew forth his mercie from generation to generacions. Shall <sup>n</sup> haile, snow, winde, water, and weather fulfill his word? Shall the sea flee, the earth tremble, the mountaines and hills skip at the presence of the God of Iacob? and shall not Iacob himselfe <sup>o</sup> serue the Lord in feare, and refoyce vnto him in trembling? Shall the hard rocke be turned into a standing water, and the flint-stone into a springing well? and shall not our hard and flintie hearts, in consideration of our owne miseries, and Gods vn<sup>l</sup> speakable mercies in deliuering vs from euill, (if not gush forth into <sup>p</sup> fountaines of teares) expresse so much as a little standing water in our eyes? It is an hard heart indeed, <sup>q</sup> quod nec compunctione scinditur, nec pietate mollitur, nec mouetur precibus, minis non cedit, flagellis duratur, &c. O Lord, touch thou the <sup>r</sup> mountaines and they shall smoake, touch our lips with a <sup>s</sup> cole

from

<sup>c</sup> Card. Campegius, Albertus Pighius apud Iewel defence of his Apolog. part. 4. cap. 1. diuif. 1.

<sup>d</sup> Cornelius Agrippa de vanitate scient. cap. 64.

<sup>e</sup> Io. Lambert. apud Fox Martyr fol. 1018.

<sup>f</sup> Bellarm. de iustif. lib. 2. cap. 2. & cap. 10.

<sup>g</sup> Thom. part. 3. quest. 25. art. 3.

<sup>h</sup> Fox Martyr fol. 821.

<sup>i</sup> Psal. 136. 4.

<sup>k</sup> Septuagint. Vulgar Latin. Augustine. Hieron.

<sup>l</sup> Esay 1. 5.

<sup>m</sup> Psal. 89. 1.

<sup>n</sup> Psal. 148. 8.

<sup>o</sup> Psal. 2. 11.

<sup>p</sup> Terem 9. 1.

<sup>q</sup> Bernard lib. 1. de considerat.

<sup>r</sup> Psal. 144. 5.

<sup>s</sup> Esay 6. 6.

from thine Altar, and our 'mouth shall shew forth thy praise. Smite Lord our stonie hearts, as hard as the <sup>u</sup> nether milstone, with the hammer of thy word, and mollifie them also with the drops of thy mercies, and dew of thy Spirit, make them <sup>m</sup> humble & fleshie, <sup>z</sup> flexible, <sup>a</sup> circumcised, <sup>b</sup> soft, <sup>c</sup> obedient, <sup>d</sup> new, <sup>e</sup> cleane, broken, and then a broken and contrite heart ( O God ) shalt thou not despise, Psal. 51. 17. <sup>f</sup> Domine Deus meus, da cordi meo te desiderare, desiderando querere, querendo inuenire, inueniendo amare, amando mala mea non iterare. O Lord my God, giue me grace from the very bottome of mine heart to desire thee, in desiring to seeke thee, in seeking to finde, in finding to loue thee, in louing vtterly to loath my former wickednesse; that liuing in thy feare, and dying in thy fauour, when I haue passed thorow this Egypt and wildernesse of this world, I may possess that heauenly Canaan, and happy land of promise, prepared for all such as loue thy comming, euen for euery Christian one, which is thy dominion and sanctuarie.

<sup>c</sup> Psal 51. 15.
<sup>a</sup> Iob 41. 15.
<sup>m</sup> Matth 11. 29.
<sup>y</sup> Ezech. 11. 29.
<sup>z</sup> Iosua 24. 23.
<sup>a</sup> Deut 30. 6.
<sup>b</sup> Iob 23. 16.
<sup>c</sup> Pro 23. 12. 26
<sup>d</sup> Ezech. 36. 26.
<sup>e</sup> Matth. 5. 8
<sup>f</sup> August. medit. cap. 1.

PSALME, 118.

O giue thanks vnto the Lord, for he is gracious, and his mercy endureth for euer.

THis Hymne seemes to be made by Dauid, after some great trouble in the dayes of Saul, before he was King; or <sup>h</sup> else for some notable victorie gained againt his enemies, after he was established in his throne, to wit, after he had ouercome the Philistins, 2 Sam 6. or haply when he triumphed ouer the children of Ammon, 2. Sam 12,

<sup>h</sup> Wilcox:
<sup>h</sup> Mollerus.
 Caluin.
 Tremel. -

It consists of three parts especially:
 { 1. An exhortation to praise God, in the foure first verses.
 { 2. A reason of this exhortation, from the 5. to 21.
 { 3. A conclusion or application of both, from the 21. to the Psalmes end.

Time when, now.
 In the former } obserue the } Parties who, { Exhorting, Dauid the King.
 { Exhorted, { Generally, all people, vers. 1.
 { Singularly, Gods Israel about other people, vers. 2.
 { Singularly, the house of Aaron, about the rest of Israel, vers. 3.

Concerning the time, now, that is, instantly without any delay; as God helpeth vs in time, so we must also praise him in season. Or now, that is, vpon this occasion: indeed we must praise God euer, because his mercie doth endure for euer; yet for especiall mercies, we must inuent speciall songs, and yeeld new thanks for new things: and therefore Dauid here being wonderfully deliuered from a great many troubles ( hauing now taken his enemies <sup>i</sup> crowne from his head, which weighed a talent of gold with precious stones, and set it vpon his owne ) calleth vpon his Priests and people to conferre now, that the Lord is gracious. All other men ought at all other times to performe this duty: but his subjects at this time principally, let Israel now, let the house of Aaron now. Or now, that is, at the solemne <sup>k</sup> feast appointed for the same purpose, for albeit we must alway laud the Lord, Yet ought we most chiefly so to doe, when we meet and assemble together, to render thanks for the great benefits that we haue receiued at his hands, and to set forth his most worthy praise.

<sup>i</sup> 2. Sam. 12. 30.

<sup>k</sup> Bucar.
 Mollerus.
 Genebrard.

The person exhorting is Dauid the King: Princes actions are the peoples instructions; a Courtier is a strange creature, who loseth himselfe in following other, he liueth a great deale by the bread of other, a good deale by the breath of other; oftentimes his clothes are not his owne, his haire not his owne, his complexion and very skinne not his owne; nay that which is worst of all, his soule ( which as Plato said is most himselfe ) is not his owne, while he liueth at the deuotion of other.

Nemo

<sup>1</sup> Nemo suus (hæc est anle natura potentis)
Sed Domini mores Cesarianus habet.

Courtiers (as <sup>m</sup> one said) rise late, come late to the temple, dine late, sup late, goe to bed late, and repent last of all, if at all: and the reason hereof is plaine, because they want such examples and patternes as Dauid, to goe before them in giuing thanks vnto the Lord.

The peoples welfare doth especially consist in the Princes safety, Dauid therefore being deliuered from his enemies (who compassed him about, and kept him in on euery side, swarming in multitude like Bees) is not content to giue thanks vnto God priuately himselfe, by himselfe; but openly proclaimeth his thankfulness, exhorting all his people to doe the same: saying, O giue thanks vnto the Lord, let Israel, and the house of Aaron, and all that feare the Lord, confesse that his mercies endure for euer: the which is answerable to that which he hath <sup>n</sup> elsewhere, O praise the Lord with me, and let vs magnifie his name together.

The very name of peace is sweet, but the very sound of warre is terrible, for πολεμος in Greeke signifies much blood, and the Latine bellum is so called <sup>o</sup> quasi minimè bellum, or as Pothen à belluis, in respect of their beastly rage shewed in warres. As when Tamberlane had conquered Princes, he did vse them as coach horses to draw him vp and downe in triumph: and <sup>q</sup> Adonibezek, made seventy Kings gather crummes of bread vnder his table. When the <sup>r</sup> Switzers in the yeere 1443. vanquished the Thuricenses in batteil, they made great banquets in the place where they wonne the victory, vsing the dead corps of their aduerfaries in stead of stools, and tables, and moreover opening their bodies dranke their blood, and tare their hearts. The <sup>t</sup> Nu-mantines assaulted by the Romans, made solemne vowes among themselues, no day to breake their fast but with the flesh of a Romane, nor to drinke before they had tasted the blood of anemie: And when ! Scipio tooke their towne, they killed all their old men, women, and children; and heaped vp all their riches in the market place, giuing fire to euery part of the City, leauing the conqueror neither goods to spoile, nor persons ouer whom he might insolently triumph. What need I seeke so farre? the cruell outrages betwene the Spaniard and the Hollander haue bene such, as all eyes of pittie and pietie had iust cause to lament them.

These are the fortunes of forraine warres: now concerning ciuill, or rather vni- uill dissentions among our selues. It is a conclusion agreed vpon at weeping crosse, that nothing in the world ruinaeth a Common-weale more than it: example hereof Hierusalem, example Rome, both which by priuate factions, made themselues a prey to the commonemie. Example hereof infortunate France, in whose late ciuill warres (as <sup>u</sup> some account) there were slaine twelue hundred thousand French borne, beside other of their allies. Example hereof England in old time, before the houses of Yorke and Lancaster were vnted, in which unhappie quarrell (as <sup>x</sup> Cominans reports) besides an infinite number of the Commonalty, there were cruelly butchered fourescore Princes of the blood royall. In bellis ciuilibus omnia sunt misera (quoth Tullie) sed nihil est miserius, quàm ipsa victoria. The <sup>z</sup> Chronicle saith of Edward the second, ouercomming and killing his owne Barons, Tunc verè victus, quando tot vicit prudentes milites. In homebred and intestine garboiles, if the worst obtaine victory, then instantly the State becommeth a very shambels, or a sinke of sinne. If the good men conquer, albeit they be by their disposition and ingenuous education harmelesse and humane, yet necessity will often make them exceeding furious and bloody: so that as the Poet said, Vna salus victis, nullam sperare salutem. In this extremity we must either fight, and so looke for sudden death; or else flie, and so leade a tedious life, hauing a continuall sound of feare in our eares, either the piteous outcries of fatherlesse children, of comfortlesse widowes, of hopelesse and haplesse kintmen; or else terrible roaring of Canons, and dreadfull alarums of mercilesse enemies.

<sup>a</sup> Omega nostrorum Mors est, Mars alpha malorum.

On the contrary, peace procureth all good and ioyfull things vnto the Common-wealth. In peace the Merchant tradeth abroad, and bringeth home <sup>b</sup> wine to glad the

<sup>1</sup> Martial Epi-gram. li. 9. ep. 81.
<sup>m</sup> Gueuara.
de vita priuata.

<sup>u</sup> Pfal. 34. 3.

<sup>o</sup> Seruius.
<sup>p</sup> Festus, idem Godefcallus præ- fat in Veget. de re militari.
<sup>q</sup> Iudges 1. 7.
<sup>r</sup> Lanquet.
Chron. pag. 261.

<sup>t</sup> Gueuara epist.

! Plutarch

<sup>u</sup> Brutus sul-mon pag. 144.
<sup>x</sup> Hot. lib. 1. c. 7.

<sup>y</sup> Epist. lib. 4.
epist. 51.
<sup>z</sup> Walsingham in Ed. 2 pag. 95.

<sup>a</sup> Owin Epigr.

<sup>b</sup> Pfal. 104. 15.

the heart of man, and oyle to make his countenance cheerefull: in peace the Church and Vniuersitie flourish, and the messengers of peace preach vnto you the sweet tidings of the Gospell. In peace the Plough-man sowes in hope, and reapes with ioy. In peace widowes are comforted, and maidens are giuen to marriage; no leading into captiuitie, no complaining in our streets. In peace we reioyce with the wife of our youth, and she is like the fruitfull vine, and our children as oliue branches round about the table. Our sonnes grow vp as the young plants, and our daughters as the polished corners of the Temple. In peace our valleyes stand so thicke with corne, that they laugh and sing; our garners are full and plenteous with all manner of store; our oxen are strong to labour, and our sheepe bring forth thousands and ten thousands in our streets. In one word, all honest occupations and honourable professions thrive, while brethren dwell together in vnitie. Wherefore David expending on the one side the rents of the kingdome vnder Saul, and pondering on the other side the manifold blessings of a flourishing peace, being overcharged (as it were) with ioy, breaks forth into these words, Ecce quam benenum, O behold, how good and ioyfull a thing it is, for brethren (that is, subjects of the same kingdome) to dwell together in vnitie! Many things are good, which are not ioyfull. Againe, many things are ioyfull, which are not good: but amitie betweene brethren, is both a good and a ioyfull thing. If it were good and not ioyfull, it would be tedious: if ioyfull and not good, it might be vicious: but good and ioyfull together, is excellent good; omne tulit punctum, it is a double sweet, when as profit and pleasure meet: it is good, there is the profit; it is ioyfull, there is the pleasure. It is like the precious ointment of Aaron, there is the sweet of pleasure; it is like the dew of Hermon, there is the sweet of profit. As sweet perfumes are pleasant not only to such as vse them, but also to the whole companie: so concord is not only profitable to good men, which are the peace-makers; but euen vnto all other in the same Common-wealth, of what soeuer function or faction. And therefore David being now quietly seated in his kingdome, free from warres abroad, and iarres at home, calleth vpon all his people, to confesse that the Lord is gracious, and that his mercie endureth for euer.

But in more particular he calleth vpon the house of Aaron, that is, the Priests and Leuites, and that for two reasons especially. First, because such as trouble Israel, hate most of all the Priests and Preachers of the word. Secondly, because the Priests are the Pronosts of the people, Heb. 13.7. the salt of the earth to season other, Matth. 5.13. and therefore seeing they be Presentors in Gods Quire, it is their office to sing first, that other may sing after. In respect of danger and dutie, the house of Aaron haue good cause to praise God more than other, and to confesse that his mercies endure for euer.

Now, for as much as all are not Iewes, which are Iewes outward, and all are not Israel, which are of Israel: I say, for as much as there be many hypocrites as well among Priests as people; therefore David in the fourth verse (chiefly) calleth vpon such as truly feare the Lord, Yea let them now that feare the Lord confesse, that his mercie endureth for euer. For hereby such enjoy not only a ciuill and outward peace, which is common to the whole State: but further, a religious and inward peace of conscience, which is preper to themselves. For when there is peace within the walls of Hierusalem, and plenteoufnesse within her palaces, euery one may goe into the house of the Lord, and stand in the gates of the beautifull Temple. Then all the Tribes ascend to giue thanks vnto the name of the Lord, to worship, and fall downe, and kneele before the Lord our maker, entring into his courts with praise. Then, as it is in this Psalme, they binde the sacrifice with cords, euen vnto the hornes of the altar, exercising all acts of Religion, and powing out their whole soule before the God of heauen. On the contrarie, in time of warre, the Gentiles, and other who know not God, enter into the inheritance of God, and defile his holy Temple; they doe not only crie, Downe with it, downe with it, vnto the ground, as it is in the 137. Psalme, but as we finde in the 79. Psalme, they pull it downe in deed, and make Hierusalem an heape of stones, giving the bodies of Gods deare seruants to be meat vnto the fowles of the aire, and the flesh of his Saints vnto the beasts of the field. Ye therefore that

<sup>a</sup> Prou 5.18.
<sup>d</sup> Psal. 128.3.

<sup>c</sup> Psal. 65.14.

<sup>f</sup> Psal. 133.

<sup>g</sup> Calvin.
<sup>h</sup> Mollerus.
<sup>i</sup> Placidus.
<sup>k</sup> Harmine.
<sup>l</sup> Agellius.

<sup>i</sup> Numb. 18.

<sup>m</sup> De Incogit.
<sup>n</sup> Mollerus.
<sup>o</sup> Calvin.

<sup>m</sup> Rom 2.28.

<sup>n</sup> Rom. 9.6.

<sup>o</sup> Mollerus.
<sup>p</sup> Calvin.

<sup>p</sup> Psal. 122.

<sup>q</sup> Psal. 95.6.

<sup>r</sup> Psal. 100.3.

that do truly professe, haue greatest occasion duly to confesse Gods exceeding mercy, for enioying the sweet benefit of peace. For if once yee should a little while want the comfort yee reape by publike prayers, and preaching in Gods house, yee would complaine grieuouly, Lord how amiable are thy dwellings! my soule hath a longing desire to enter into thy courts. How blessed are the sparrow and swallow, who may come to thy altars, and sit upon thy Temple! For one day in thy courts is better than a thousand: I had rather be a doore-keeper in the house of my God, then to command in the tents of vngodlinesse.

<sup>o</sup> Psal. 84.

Who make their nests in houses and trees nere thy Tabernacle, Gen Metterus in loc. Or mystically, whether I lead an actiue life lik the sparrow, or a contemplatiue, lik the Turtle, thy altars are the best nests to rest in. Bellarmino.

<sup>o</sup> Psal. 145. 9.

The reasons of this exhortation are manifold, expressed by Dauid here particularly from the 5. verse to the 21. but they be generally these two:

Gods mercies toward his children.

In generall, He is gracious, and his mercy endureth for euer. In particular to Dauid; I called upon the Lord in trouble, and he heard me at large, &c.

Gods iudgements vpon his enemies, in whose name alone they be destroyed, and become extinct as fire among the thornes, &c.

The mercies of the Lord are so rich and abundant, that our Prophet <sup>o</sup> elsewhere saith, his mercie is ouer all his workes. And it is seene in two things chiefly: 1. In giuing euery thing which is good. 2. In taking away whatsoeuer is euill. Now we may the better vnderstand the greatnesse of his goodnesse in both, if we will examine the breadth, and length, and depth, and height thereof, as S. Paul intimates, Ephes. 3. 18.

First, for the breadth of his mercie, whatsoeuer is good is originally from God, <sup>o</sup> euery good and perfit gift is from aboue, descending from the Father of lights, euen the very minnows and minutes are mercies, holding as it were by Frank-almoigne. And as he bestoweth on his euery thing which is good: so likewise he takes from them euery kinde of euill. Bread taketh away hunger, and drinke taketh away thirst, and apparell taketh away nakednesse, and fire taketh away coldnes, and other things deliuer vs from other miseries in this world. But all these creatures are the Lords, and they cannot helpe vs except he blesse them. Againe, there be many miseries vnkowne vnto the creatures, as the subtile tentations of the deuill, and the manifold blindnesse of our vnderstanding and erronious conscience, from which only God is able to deliuer vs, as being the Physitian of our soule, so well as the protector of our body. Moreouer, as the creatures take not away all miseries, but a few, so they take them away not from all, but from a few. God alone is able to deliuer all men from all miseries, and though he doe not this vnto all, yet there be none but haue tasted of some, yea of many of his mercies; which occasioned our Prophet to say, the earth is full of the goodnes of the Lord; and our Church to pray, O God whose nature & property is euer to haue mercy and to forgive. But ye will obiect, if the Lord can deliuer from all euill, why doth he not, as being the <sup>o</sup> Father of mercies? Answer is made, that God our Father in Heauen knowes what is best for vs, his children on earth; he therefore doth afflict vs, and scourge vs for our benefit. Saint <sup>o</sup> Paul desired thrice to be deliuered from the buffeting of the flesh, and not heard; that Gods power might be made perfit through weakenesse. And so the Lord tooke not from Lazarus his sicknesse and pouertie, that he might crowne him with a greater mercy, commanding his <sup>b</sup> Angels to carry him into the bosome of Abraham. And so he suffers his seruants to be tempted and tried with imprisonment, and losses, and crosses for their good: in this respect he is termed the God of all consolation, 2. Cor. 1. 3. of all, as knowing how to comfort vs in all our tribulation, a present helpe in euery kinde of trouble. Nothing in the world can doe this, and therefore <sup>c</sup> Iob said to his acquaintance, who could not vnderstand his grieffe aright, miserable comforters are yee all. Againe, God is the God of all comfort, in that he comforts his children so fully, that it is a ioyfull thing for them to be sometimes in affliction. For as the sufferings of Christ abound in them, euen so their consolation aboundeth through Christ, 2. Cor. 1. 5.

<sup>o</sup> Iames 1. 17.

<sup>o</sup> Psal. 33. 5.

<sup>o</sup> 2. Cor. 1. 3.

<sup>o</sup> 2. Cor. 12. 8.

<sup>b</sup> Luke 16. 22.

<sup>c</sup> Iob 16. 2.

Touching the length of his mercy, Dauid saith, it endureth for ever: as his mercy compasseth vs about<sup>d</sup> on euery side; so likewise at euery season, it continueth vnto our end, and in the end; yea further, in that other life which is without end: his mercies are from euerlasting to euerlasting, that is, from euerlasting predestination to euerlasting glorification. His mercies in forgiuing our offences, and in conering all our sins, are exceeding long: the Lord, saith our Prophet, is full of compassion & mercy, long suffering, and of great goodnesse. For though impenitent sinners prouoke him euery day, walking in their own wayes, and committing all vncleannesse euen with greedinesse: yet he neuertheless affords his good things, in <sup>f</sup> giuing them raine and fruitfull seasons, and filling their hearts with food and gladnesse; his mercy doth exceed their malice, being patient toward them, & desiring that none should perish, but that all should come to repentance, 2 Pet. 3.9. He maketh as though he saw not the sins of men, because they should amend, Wisd. 11.20. Christ aduiseeth vs (Mat. 18.22) to forgiue one another, not only seven times, but also seuentie times seuen times: and Luk. 6.36. to be mercifull, as our Father in heauen is mercifull, insinuating hereby that God is infinitely mercifull, vnto sinners, euen to great sinners which owe his iustice ten thousand talents.

Concerning the depth of his mercy, loue is seene in our Sayings.

Doings.

Sufferings.

Loue superficiall is in word only; that which is operative, manifesting it selfe in deeds, is deepe, but the profoundest of all is in suffering for another. Now the Lord hath abundantly shewed his mercies in all these. First, in his word written & preached: written, For we haue the holy Books in our hands for comfort; and whatsoeuer things are written afore time, were written for our learning, that we through patience & comfort of the Scriptures might haue hope, Rom. 15.4. By his word preached, for the Ministers of the Gospell (as <sup>h</sup> Ambassadors) intreat you to be reconciled vnto him; vnto them is committed the word of reconciliation and peace, they be the <sup>i</sup> disposers of his mysteries, and messengers of his mercies, it is their dutie to binde vp the broken hearted. And therefore Dauid saith in the 85. Psalme, ver. 8. I will hearken what the Lord will say concerning me, for he shall speake peace to his people.

Secondly, God sheweth his mercy toward vs in his doings, in <sup>k</sup> sauing our life from destruction, and in crowning vs with his louing kindnesse. But as loue is seene in deeds more than in words, so more in suffering than in doing; and of all suffering, death is most terrible; and of all deaths, a violent; and of all violent deaths, hanging vpon the Crosse is most hatefull and shamefull; yet God so loued the world, that he gaue his only begotten Son to die for our sins on the Crosse. Doubtlesse one will scarce die for a righteous man, but yet for a good man it may be (saith <sup>l</sup> Paul) that one dare die; but he setteth out his loue toward vs, seeing that while we were yet sinners, and his enemies, Christ died for vs.

Lastly, for the height of his mercy; the depth appeareth in its effect, but the height by the cause mouing to mercy, which is exalted aboue the heauens, according to that of Dauid, <sup>m</sup> In celo misericordia tua Domine. Men vse to pitie their seruants in respect of their own commoditie, the which is the lowest degree of mercy, for euery man (if he be not a foole) pitieeth his very <sup>n</sup> beatt. Other pitie men in regard of friendship and alliance, which is an higher degree of mercy. Some shew pitie to men in that they be men, not only flesh of our flesh, and bone of our bone, but also created according to Gods own likenesse and similitude, which is among vs the highest degree of mercy. Now God takes pitie on all things as being his creatures, on men especially, being created after his own Image, but on true Christians principally, being the sonnes and heires of his kingdome. If any shall aske, what cause moued him to make the world, to create man after his own likenes, to iustifie sinners, and adopt vs for his children? it is nothing else but his meere mercy, that endureth for ever. He loued vs when we would not, yea, when we could not loue him; and he continueth his goodnesse not in respect of his own benefit, for he needs not our helpe, but only for our good. The Lord is gracious, because gracious.

<sup>d</sup> Psal. 32.11.

<sup>e</sup> Psal 103.8.

<sup>f</sup> Acts 14.17.

<sup>g</sup> Macab. 12.9.

<sup>h</sup> 2 Cor 5.20.

<sup>i</sup> 1 Cor. 4.1.

<sup>k</sup> Psal. 103.4.

<sup>l</sup> Rom. 5.7.

<sup>m</sup> Psal. 36.5.

<sup>n</sup> Prou 12.10.

o Luk. 2. 14.

And therefore the blessed Angels aptly diuided their Christmas Caroll into two part, o Glorie to God on high, and on earth p-ace. God hath indeed all the glorie, but we reape the good of his gratioufnesse and mercie that endureth for euer.

p Augustin.
Mollerus.
q Calvin.
Placidus.
Tilman.
Agellus.

Called vpon the Lord. ] Hitherto King Dauid, concerning the gracioufnesse of God in generall. He comes now to treat of his mercie toward h imelte in particular, the which is applied by Diuines vnto the p Church; and q Christ himselfe, who was in his passion heard at Lurge, and in his resurrection he saw his desire vpon his enemies. The pith of all which is summarily comprised in the 24. verbe, This is the day which the Lord hath made, let vs reioyce and be glad in it. In which obserue,

1. What day is meant by this day.
2. How the Lord is said to haue made this day, more than other dayes.
3. Why we should in this day so made, reioyce and be glad.

r Bucer.
Caluin.
Mollerus.

For the first, r literally this ought to be referred vnto the solemne day, wherein Israel and Saron, as well Priests as people, being assembled together, gaue publicke thanks vnto the Lord, for that their good King Dauid was now fully deliued from all his enemies, and quietly settled in his princely throne. So this text is a verie fit theame for the Coronation dayes of our late blessed Queene, and present gracious King: as also for the Commemoration of our happie deliuerance from the Spanish Inuasion, anno 88. and from the bloudie Gunpowder plot, on the fifth of Nouember 1605.

s Augustin.
Arnobius.
Melancthon.
t Mullerus.
D. Incognitus.

But mystically this day is the time of grace, behold now is the accepted time, now the day of saluation, 2 Cor. 6. 2. and this day is termed here Catechochen, The day; because the whole time wherein a man liues without Christ, is called in holy Scripture, The night and darknesse, as being full of terrors and errors, of blindness and ignorance. So S. Paul, Rom. 13. 12. The night is past, and the day is come. And Ephes. 5. 8. Once ye were darknesse, but now light in the Lord; your selues, o Children of light, and your works, * armour of light.

u Ioh. 12. 36.
x Rom 13. 12.
y Eccl. 12. 1.
in loc.
z Ioh. 1. 9.
a Mal 4. 2. b Luk. 1. 78.
c Tileman.

v Dominus est Dies, Christ is the day, or rather indeed the light of the world, and a Sunne of the day b springing on high, to giue light to such as sit in darknes, and in the shadow of death. This day did appeare to the world in some measure c from the beginning. For the manifestation of Christ Iesus, the supernaturall Sunne of righteousness, arising with health vnder his wings, to them that feare the Lord, resembling a great deale, the rising of the naturall Sunne in our Horizon. First, the Sunne being readie to rise, sendeth forth a little glimpse of his brightnesse, whereunto we may compare the mysterie of that Aphorisme: The seed of the woman shall breake the serpens head, Gen. 3. 15. Then it doth enlarge the same brightnesse with more splendour, to which haply Noahs prophesie may be likened, Blessed be the Lord God of Sem, Gen. 9. 26. Afterward ascending higher, and approaching neerer vnto vs, it putteth forth his glittering beames of clearer light, whereto we may resemble the plainer promises concerning Christ, communicated to the latter ages of Abraham, Gen. 12. 2. of Isaac, Gen. 26. 3, 4. of Iacob, Gen. 28. 14. of Dauid, 2 Sam. 7. 12. At length it discovereth it selfe and appeareth openly, whereunto Christs incarnation and liuing in the world answereth, I Ioh. 1. That which was from the beginning, which we haue heard, which we haue seene with our eyes, which we haue looked vpon, and our hands h. ue handled, &c. Last of all, it gloriously mounteth vp aboute the earth, and d nothing is hid from the heat thereof: and to this accordeth our Sauiours resurrection and ascension, whereby himselfe was glorified, and he drew other men vnto him, Ioh. 12. 32. and gaue them power, beleeuing in his name, to be the sonnes of God, Ioh. 1. 12. Wherefore, seeing the Messias of the world is now dead for our sins, and risen againe for our iustification, and sitteth at the right hand of God in heauen, euer making intercession for vs; and seeing the o sound of his Gospell is gone thorow all the earth, and the words of his Apostles vnto the ends of the world, we haue good cause to sing and say, this is the most acceptable time, the day of saluation and grace, f which in other ages was not opened to the sons of men, as it is now reuealed, and therefore let vs reioyce and be glad in it.

d Psal. 19. 6.

e Rom. 10. 13.

f Ephes. 3. 5.

g Mollerus.

Now, for as much as the resurrection of Christ is the s complement of all the promises promises concerning the Messias, and as it were, the h<sup>l</sup>ock and key of faith, on which all other Articles depend; the Church of England, and other Diuines ancient and orthodox, haue made this Hymne proper on Easter day: for on this day Christ arising from the dead, was heard at large; on this day, he saw his desire upon his enemies; on this day, he did openly triumph over the deuill, and death, and hell, albeit they compassed him round about, and kept him in on euery side; yet in the name of the Lord he destroyed them: on this day, he did not die, but liue to declare the workes of the Lord: on this day, the same stone which the builders refused, is become the head stone of the corner; it is the Lords doing, and it is maruellous in our eyes; and therefore let vs heartily sing, This is the day which the Lord hath made, we will be glad and reioyce therein.

God made the morning and euening, the light and the darknesse are his. How then is he said here, to make this day more than other dayes? The Doctors vpon the place answer, that albeit all dayes are good in respect of themselves and God; yet some be ioyfull, and other dolefull, in respect of the good and euill that lapneth in them vnto vs. For <sup>m</sup> the day wherein Adam fell, and in him all his posteritie, was an euill and a blacke day, made so (doubtlesse) by the deuill, and not by the Lord: but this day, wherein the second Adam arose from the dead, and in him <sup>n</sup> all men are made aliuie, is a good day, wherein the faithfull are ioyfull. It is the Lords doing, and therefore the Lords day. The Lords doing, that the same stone which the builders refused, is now become the head and corner stone in the building; that he who was a despicable man, a worme rather than a man, Psal. 22. 6. should now triumphing over the deuill and death, hell and the graue, become the <sup>o</sup> king of glory; that <sup>p</sup> at the name of Iesus euery knee should bow, both of things in heauen, and things in earth, and things vnder the earth. Now the Lord is said to make this day more than other, as <sup>q</sup> honouring it aboue other, exalting it and making it <sup>r</sup> memorable to posteritie. So the word making sometime signifieth, as 1 Sam. 12. 6. It is the Lord that made Moses and Aaron, that is, exalted Moses and Aaron; and so we say, that a man aduanced in honour or riches, is a made man; in this sense, the making of a day, is the sanctifying and obseruing of a day, Deut. 5. 15 Exod. 34. 22. How then is Easter day more magnified and hallowed, than other dayes in the yeere? To this obiection, answer may be, that all Christians (herein imitating the patterne of the blessed <sup>s</sup> Apostle) in honour of Christs resurrection, obserue their Sabbath vpon the eighth day, which is the first day of the weeke; whereas the Iewes hallowed their Sabbath vpon the seuenth day, which is the last day of the weeke. So that Easter day is the Sabbath of Sabbaths, an high and holy day, from which euery other Sunday hath his name, being so called, because the Sunne of righteousnesse arose from the dead vpon this day. This day is the Lords day, the day which himself made so good a day, that all his true seruantes euer since haue reioyced in it, and sanctified their Sabboth on it.

<sup>u</sup> Hec est illa dies toti celebrabilis orbis, Quem facit, & proprio signat honore Deus.

The reasons why we should this day reioice so much, are } A motiō from euil.
manifest; but they may be reduced al vnto 2. principall heads, } Promotiō in good.

Christ on this day rising from the dead, ouercame the deuill, which is the author of death; and the graue, which is the prison of death; and sinne, which is the sting of death; and the Law, which is the strength of the sting of death; and all this he did for vs men and our saluation. The deuill, which is the prince of darkness, had no part in the Sunne of righteousnesse: Christ therefore being <sup>z</sup> stronger than he, came vpon him, and ouercame him; he tooke from him all his armour wherein he trusted, and diuided his spoiles, and cast him out of his hold, that he might haue no part in vs, or power ouer vs. As <sup>a</sup> Bernard sweetly, Fortitudo diaboli per redemptionis vulnera traducta & deducta ad nihilum, in the words of S. Paul, The God of peace shall tread downe Satan vnder your feet, Rom. 16. 20.

So he who was aboue the law, was made <sup>b</sup> vnder the law, that he might redeeme those

<sup>n</sup> Church
Hom for Easter day.
<sup>i</sup> Chrysost.
Eubym.
Melanct.
Bucer.

<sup>k</sup> Gen. 1. 5.
<sup>l</sup> Chrysost.
Eu hym.
Placidus.

<sup>m</sup> Melancthon
Mollerus.

<sup>n</sup> 1 Cor. 15. 22

<sup>o</sup> Psal. 24. 7.
<sup>p</sup> Philip 2. 10.

<sup>q</sup> Agellius.
<sup>r</sup> Calvin.

<sup>s</sup> Vatablus.

<sup>t</sup> Acts 20. 7.
<sup>u</sup> 1 Cor. 16. 2.
Apoc. 1. 10.

<sup>v</sup> Euban. Hessus.

<sup>x</sup> 1 Cor. 15. 56

<sup>y</sup> Ephes 6. 12.

<sup>z</sup> Luke 11. 22.

<sup>a</sup> Ser. de qua-druplici debito.

<sup>b</sup> Galat. 4. 4.

those which are vnder the law, that he might put out the hand-writing of ordināces that was against vs, and fasten it vpon his crosse, Coloss. 2. 14. So he who knew no sin, made himselfe to be sin for vs, that we should be made the righteousnesse of God in him, 2 Cor. 5. 21. He was wounded for our transgressions, and broken for our iniquities, Esay 53. 5. If the tormentors of Christ should aske now, as they did once, Luk. 22. 64. Who is he that smote thee? we may quickly become Prophets, and answer for him, our sinnes smote him; euery one of vs might ingenuously confesse with <sup>c</sup> Jonas, for my sake this great tempest is vpon thee (twice Iesus.) He triumphed over hell, and the graue for vs also: for as for himselfe, it was impossible that the Lord of <sup>d</sup> life should be holden of death, Acts 2. 24. Wherefore let vs say with <sup>e</sup> Paul, O death where is thy sting? O graue where is thy victorie? the sting of death is sin, and the strength of sin is the Law: but thanks be to God, which hath giuen vs victorie through our Lord Iesus Christ. And let vs heartily sing with our Prophet, Easter is the day which the Lord hath made, we will be ioyfull and glad in it.

<sup>f</sup> Some Diuines affirme, that the yeere wherein our blessed Sauour arose from the dead, should (according to the Law) haue bene the yeere of Iubile, wherein liberty was proclaimed in the land to all the inhabitants thereof; euery man returned to his possession and family, debts were released, and oppressions abated. And surely the Iubilees in old time, were <sup>h</sup> figures of the ioyes in this acceptable time; for by the resurrection of Christ, euerie true beleuer is set free from the hands of all his enemies, his trespasses are forgiven, and he is restored againe to his interest in that heavenly possession and immortall inheritance, which he lost in the transgression of his great grandfather Adam. The redemption of Christ is a yeere of Iubile, the resurrection of Christ is the chiefe day in the yeere. Let vs therefore reioyce for it, and be glad in it. David saith <sup>i</sup> elsew here, By this (O Lord) I know thou fauourest me, that mine enemy doth not triumph against me. Thou hast giuen vnto mee the necks of my foes, that I might breake them as small as the dust of the earth, and tread them flat as the clay in the street. That which he speaketh of his temporall enemies, opposing him in obtaining of an earthly kingdome, we may well apply to the spirituall, hindering vs in our way to the kingdome of heauen. O Lord, our strength and redeemer, thou hast on this day <sup>l</sup> broken the serpents head, and vtterly confounded all such as hate vs. On this day thou diddest laugh them to scorne, and haue them in derision, Psal. 2. 4. and therefore we will in memoriall of this one day, sing thy mercies all the dayes of our life; founding forth vnto the worlds end, This is the day, this is thy day, which thou (Lord) hast made, we will reioyce and be glad in it.

Concerning our promotion in good, the resurrection of Christ is a prooffe of our iustification, a meanes of our sanctification, a demonstration of our resurrection. First, it proueth our iustification, according to that of Paul, Rom. 4. 25. He was giuen to death for our sinnes, and is risen againe from the dead for our iustification. See the Gospell on S. Thomas day.

Secondly, the resurrection of Christ is a notable meanes to work inward sanctification, as Saint Peter teacheth in 1 Epistle chap. 1. vers. 3. God hath begotten vs againe vnto a liuely hope, by the resurrection of Iesus Christ from the dead. And Saint Paul, As Christ was raised vp from the dead, by the glorie of his Father; so we should also walke in newnesse of life; for if we be grafed with him to the similitude of his death, euen so shall we be to the similitude of his resurrection. Which words import, <sup>n</sup> that as the graft groweth in the stocke, and is become one bodie with it: euen so the faithfull haue their liuing, and spirituall being in Christ. As he by the power of his owne Godhead, freed his manhood from death, and from the guilt of our sin; so doth he likewise free those that are knit vnto him by the bond of one Spirit, from the corruptiō of their natures in which they are dead, that they may liue vnto God. <sup>o</sup> In the naturall body, the head is the fountaine of all motion and sense; for the hands & the feet moue by that power, which is by sundry nerues deriued from the head, & dispersed among the members. And so it is in (Christ's mysticall body) the Church; he is the head and fountaine of life spirituall, and <sup>p</sup> that very power of his his Godhead, whereby he raised vp himselfe when he was dead, he conueyeth from himselfe to his members, and thereby raiseth them vp from the death of sin, to newnesse of life. For the better vnderstanding of this point, let vs examine the meanes, and the measure of the spirituall life.

<sup>c</sup> Ionas 1. 12.<sup>d</sup> Acts 3. 15.<sup>e</sup> 1 Cor. 15. 55.<sup>f</sup> Bonauent. in loc.<sup>g</sup> Leuit. 25. 10.<sup>h</sup> Dr. Incognit.<sup>i</sup> Psal. 41. 11.<sup>k</sup> 2 Sam. 22. 41.<sup>l</sup> Gen. 3. 15.<sup>m</sup> Rom. 6. 4. 5.<sup>n</sup> Aquin. Arelins. Marlorat.<sup>o</sup> Raymund. de Sabunde Theolog. natural. tit. 277.<sup>p</sup> Perkins exposit Creed, art. Christ resur.

For the meanes, if we will haue common water, we may goe to the common Well; and if we desire water of life, we must haue recourse vnto Christ, who saith, if any man thirst, let him come vnto me and drinke, and he shall haue a well of water springing vp into everlasting life. Now this Well (as the woman of Samaria saide of Jacobs Well) is very deepe, and we haue nothing to draw with. And therefore we must haue pipes and conduits to conuey the same vnto vs; and these pipes are the sincere preaching of the word, and the right administration of the Sacraments. As for the preaching of Gods holy word, Christ openly proclaimeth in the fifth of S. Johns Gospell, at the 25. vers. The dead shall heare the voice of the Sonne of God, and they that heare it shall liue.<sup>f</sup> Where, by dead is meant, not the dead in the graue, but the dead in sin. For to the Scripture speaketh elsewhere, Let the dead burie the dead: and Ephes. 5. 14. Awake thou that sleepest, and stand vp from the dead: and 1 Tim. 5. 6. A widow liuing in pleasure, is dead while she liueth. He that heareth the word, and abideth in vbelceffe, continueth among the dead: but (saith our Saniour) Verily, verily, I say vnto you, he that heareth my word, and beleeueth in him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation, but hath passed from death vnto life, because the words that I speake vnto you are spirit and life Ioh. 6. 63. that is, conueying vnto your dead hearts, spirit and life.

As Christ, when he raised vp dead men, only spake the word and they reuiued: and at the last day, when the trumpet of God shall blow, the dead shall rise againe: so it is in the first resurrection, they which are dead in their old sins, are raised againe to newnesse of life by his powerfull voice, vttered in the Gospels ministerie. We reade of three that Christ raised from death, 1 Iairus daughter newly dead; the 2 widowes sonne dead, and wound vp, and lying on the hearse; and 3 Lazarus dead, and buried, and stinking in the graue. Now these three sorts of Coarces (as <sup>b</sup> Augustine notes) are three sorts of sinners. Iairus daughter lying dead in her fathers house, resembleth those that sin by inward consent: the widowes sonne being carried out of the gate of the Citie, those that sin by outward act: Lazarus hauing bene dead and buried foure dayes, those that sinne by continuall habit. The first day (saith Augustine) he was dead by conceiuing sinne: the second, by consenting to sin: the third, by committing sin: the fourth, by continuing in sin. The young maiden lay in a bed: the young man in a coffin: Lazarus, in a graue. The first was dead but an houre, the second but a day, the third foure dayes. After their raising vp, Iairus daughter instantly walked; because for her that had slept aside but by consenting to sin, it was easie to recouer, and to walke forthwith in the wayes of Gods holy commandements. The widowes sonne sate vp, began to speake, was deliuered to his mother; because for him, which had a small transgressed, it was a matter of greater difficultie to recouer, and therefore by little and little he came to it, as <sup>c</sup> Erasmus obserueth excellently. First, sitting vp, by raising vp himselfe to a purpose of amendment: then beginning to speake, by confessing his own merie, and acknowledging Gods mercy: lastly, being deliuered to his mother, by returning to the bosome of the holy Church, and enjoying the remission of his finnes. Lazarus came forth of his graue bound hand and foot with bands, because for him that had a <sup>d</sup> stone laid vpon him, and had made his heart as hard as a graue-stone, or as a <sup>e</sup> nether millstone, by making a custome, and (as it were) a trade of sin; it was in the iudgement of man impossible to recouer. And yet Christs omnipotent voice brought him forth bound hand and foot, and brake these bands asunder, and restored him againe to the libertie of the sonnes of God.

The <sup>f</sup> Sacraments are conduit-pipes also, whereby God inuisibly conueyeth his vitall or sauing graces into the heart, if they be rightly vsed; that is, if they be receiued in vnfaigned repentance for al our sins, & with a liuely faith in Christ for the

<sup>g</sup> Iohn 7. 37.
<sup>h</sup> Iohn 4. 14.

<sup>i</sup> August. tract. 22 in Ioan. idem Calum & alij in loc
<sup>k</sup> Matth. 8. 22.
<sup>l</sup> Iohn 5. 24.

<sup>m</sup> 1 Thess. 4. 16

<sup>n</sup> Matth. 9. 25.
<sup>o</sup> Luk. 7. 15.
<sup>p</sup> Iohn 11. 44.
<sup>q</sup> Sermon 44. de vrbis Dom. & de hac allegorica vide eundem tract. 49. in Ioan

<sup>r</sup> Cor. de misericord. Domini.
<sup>s</sup> Mores imposta sepulchro ipsa est: vis diua confusio: in diuis August. ser. 44. de vrbis Dom.
<sup>t</sup> Iob. 41. 15.

<sup>u</sup> Confess. Angli- can. art. 25.

pardon of the same sins. And in this respect aptly compared vnto 8 flagons of wine, which reuiue the Church being sicke, and fallen into a twound.

As for the measure of spirituall life, deriued from our head Christ, it is but small in this world, and giuen by little and little; the which is figured in the <sup>h</sup> vision of water that ranne out of the Temple. First, a man must wade to the ancles, then after to the knees, and so to the loines: and last of all the waters grow to a ruer, that cannot be passed ouer; euen so the Lord conueyeth his gifts and graces by little and little, till his children at the last attaine a large measure thereof, and haue full growth in Christ. The same we may likewise see liuely described in the vision of drie bones, Ezech. 37. The Prophet in a vision is carried into the middest of a field, full of dead bones, and the Lord commanded him to prophesie ouer them, and to say to them, O ye drie bones, heare the word of the Lord. At the first there was a shaking, and the bones came together bone to bone, vers. 7. then the sinewes and flesh grew vpon them, and vpon the flesh a skin conered them, vers. 8. then he prophesied vnto the winde, and they liued, and stood vpon their feet; for the breath came vpon them, and they were an exceeding great armie of men, vers. 10.

<sup>i</sup> Hereby doubtlesse is signified not only the state of the Jewes after their captiuitie, but in them the state of the whole Church, in whose heart God Almighty worketh his graces of regeneration by little and little. First, he giueth his children flesh, and then a skin to couer the flesh, and after ward he powreth vpon them further gifts of his spirit to quicken them, and to make them aliuie vnto God.

3. The resurrection of Christ is a <sup>k</sup> demonstration of our resurrection, according to that of S. Paul, 1 Cor. 15. 12. If it be preached that Christ is risen againe from the dead, how say some among you, that there is no resurrection of the dead? Yea but ye will object, what promotion is that vnto the godly, seeing all men at the last day must of necessitie rise againe? Answer is made, that the wicked are raised by the power of Christ as a Iudge to condemne them: on the contrarie, the faithfull are raised by the power of Christ as a Iesus to saue them. Almighty God said vnto Adam, At what time he should eat of the forbidden fruit, he should <sup>l</sup> die the death. Hereby <sup>m</sup> meaning a double death, as the Scripture speakes <sup>n</sup> elsewhere, the first and second death. Naturall death is the dissolution of the bodie, spirituall death is the destruction of the soule, eternal death is both of bodie and soule. Prima constat ex duabus, secunda ex omnibus tota, saith Augustine. Now Christ as a Iudge raiseth againe the reprobate from the first death, that he may inflict vpon them all the punishments of the second death, as a reward of sin: but he raiseth his elect, as their head and Redeemer, that they may be partakers of the benefit of his death, enioying both in bodie and soule the kingdome of glory, which he hath so dearely bought for them.

Wherefore seeing on this day we haue bene deliuered from so much euill, and promoted vnto so much good; let vs <sup>o</sup> spiritually reioyce, being P glad inwardly, ioyfull outwardly, and singing vnto the Lord with a grace in our hearts, This is the day which the Lord hath made.

<sup>s</sup> Cant 2.5.

<sup>h</sup> Ezech. 47 3, 4.5.

<sup>i</sup> These bones are the whole house of Israel, ver. 11 but the faithfull are Gods Israel.

<sup>k</sup> Non modo per seipsum probauit resurrectionem Sadanaeus, sed in seipso omnium. Tertull. lib. de carnis resur.

<sup>l</sup> Gen. 2. 17.

<sup>m</sup> August de Ciuit. Dei lib. 23. cap. 12. Aquin. Dion. Carthus. in Gen 2.

<sup>n</sup> Apoc. 20.6

<sup>o</sup> Chrysost.

Eubym.

Placidus.

<sup>p</sup> Dr. Incongrit.

<sup>q</sup> Coloss 3. 16.

ASCENSION DAY

MORNING PRAYER.

PSALME 8.

O Lord our Governour, how excellent is thy name in all the world, &c.

His Hymne (beloued) is a meditation of Gods excellent goodnesse and glory shining in all his creatures, in man especially, whom he mindeth, and visiteth, and crowneth as Lord and King ouer the rest, putting all things in subiection vnder his feet, as all the beasts of the field, all the fowles of the aire, all the fishes of the Sea, and whatsoeuer walketh through the paths of the Seas.

Gods excellencie manifesteth it selfe so much in this vniuerse, that there be so many wonders, as there be works of his hands.

Magnitude.
Multitude.
Varietie.
Vertue.
Beautie.

I will insit in fve things only, to wit, in the creatures

Concerning the first, I say with the <sup>a</sup> Wiseman, Who can measure the bredth of the earth, and the depth? it is so long and so large, that all the corners of it are not yet knowne vnto the most exquisite Cosmographers, and aduenturous Navigators. A <sup>b</sup> very learned and indultrious Antiquarie, hath in three feuerall Volumes accurately discourted of Voyages, Traffiques, and Discoveries of our English Nation made by Land and Sea, to the remote quarters of the earth, at any time since the birth of Christ vnto the yeere 1600. and yet we still heare newes of new found lands. Now the whole superficiēs of the earth as well as vncouth as discovered, is but a little point (as Astrologers affirme) in comparison of heauens ample circumference, being a great deale lesse than the least starre among many thousands in the firmament. Consider then (O my soule) how great God is, how excellent his name. The water is great, but earth haply greater than the water, and heauen doubtlesse a great deale greater than both, and yet God is infinitely greater than them all, his glory (saith our text) shineth aboue the heauens: he (quoth <sup>c</sup> Isaiah) according to the translation of <sup>d</sup> Aquila, measures the water with his little finger, and the earth with his three fingers, and the heauens with his span: nay the whole world before him is but as a drop of the morning dew that falleth vpon the ground, Wisd. 11. 19.

I will ascend yet a little higher: If there should be many worlds (as <sup>e</sup> some Philosophers imagined absurdly) yet God would fill them all, and be comprehended of none. The thrice great <sup>f</sup> Mercurie to this purpose saith excellently, Deus est circulus cuius centrum est ubiq̄, circumferentia verò nusquam. AS God is good without qualitie, so great without quantitie <sup>g</sup> Altior est caelo, profundior inferno, lasior terra, mari diffusior, nusquam est, & ubique est.

<sup>a</sup> Ecclesiasticus 13.

<sup>b</sup> Mr Richard Haklitt.

<sup>c</sup> Cap. 40 v. 12.

<sup>d</sup> Apud Hieron. in loc.

<sup>e</sup> Democritus. Empedocles

<sup>f</sup> Apud Conradii Gumpelium in explanatione questionis an & quatenus de Deo notiones logicæ, seu usurpandæ, pag. 17.

<sup>g</sup> Bernard. ser. de triplici coherentia circulorum & quadratorum.

*Virgo Dei generix, quem totus non capit orbis,
In tua se clausit viscera factus homo.*

What then is man, or the sonne of man, that he should dare presumptuously to define the greatnesse, and limit the quantum of his Creator? O Lord the<sup>b</sup> heauen of heauens cannot containe thee, how then is any barren braine able to search out thy fulnes? As S. Augustine sweetly, quo intellectu Deum capit homo, qui ipsum int. licet sumus quo cum vult capere nondum capit? Vaine worne leaue to write and learne here without Prophēt to wonder, O Lord our Governour, how excellent is thy name in all the world, thou that hast set thy glory above the heauens!

2. Concerning the Creatures multitude, God himselfe diuided the whole world into heauen and earth, Gen. 1. 1. and the hosts of his creatures in both, are beyond all number. To marshall them in order, and to beginne à notioribus, even with things here below, who can number the creatures vnder the earth; on the earth, about the earth? The metals and other things vnder earth, as gold, silver, precious stones, lead, brasse, coale, tin, &c. are diuers in name, diuers in nature, but all put together infinite in number. Vpon earth it is impossible for the diligent secretaries of Nature to tell exactly the very kindes of all herbes, of all flowers, of all plants, of all trees, of all beasts, perfect and imperfect, walking, crawling, creeping vpon a thousand hills, and a million of mountaines: and if the genera be thus infinite, then individa much more: for it would passe the skill of ail the cunning Arithmeticians in the world to count the particular blades of grasse that grow but in one field about the earth. I demand as Iesus the sonne of Sirach, Eccles. 1. 2. who can number the sand of the Sea? nay, what man is able to number the fish of the Sea, the which are so many, that the Patriarch Iacob prayed his children might increase like the fish. Beasts of the field, and birds of the ayre bring forth but one or two young ones if they be big, or if they be little some three or foure, other five or sixe, a few ten, none vsually about twenty, but fish as experience teacheth, every day bring forth hundreds at one time: in the great and wide Sea (saith our<sup>m</sup> Prophēt) there be things creeping innumerable, both small and great beasts.

Let vs ascend, and consider the heauens, and there we shall finde that the starres are for number infinite: <sup>n</sup> Looke vp into heauen (said the Lord to father Abraham) and tell the starres if thou canst. And Gen. 22. 17. I will multiply thy seed as the starres of heauen, that is, exceedingly, greatly, infinitely: so the number of starres is often vsed in holy Bible for a boundlesse number, as <sup>o</sup> the Lord thy God hath made thee as the starres of heauen in multitude, and Nehemiah 9. 22. thou didst multiply their children like the starres of heauen, and Nahum 3. 16. thou hast increased thy marchants about the starres of heauen, and whatsoeuer Astrologers affirme to the contrary, the Text is plaine, that the starres of heauen cannot be numbered, nor the sand of the sea measured, Ierem. 33. 22.

So the glorious Angels about the heauens are numberlesse: we read Mat. 26. 53. of more than twelue legions of Angels, and Dan. 7. 10. that thousand thousands minister vnto God, and that <sup>p</sup> ten thousand thousands stand before him: and <sup>q</sup> Aquinas avoweth out of Dionysius, that the number of Angels exceedeth all the materiall things created in the world: his reason I confesse seemeth vnreasonable, the things which are more perfect, must (in the manner they may) exceed the more imperfect, to wit, either in magnitude or multitude: but this to wit (as one<sup>r</sup> notes) is without wit, for that as Durandus objects, there should consequently be many Gods, which is against faith: and many Sunnes, which is against Philosophie: yea, more precious stones than other, against experience. Yet I think with <sup>s</sup> Hierome, that <sup>t</sup> Daniel, and <sup>u</sup> S. Iohn, when they define some determinate number of Angels, accommodate themselues to that ordinary phrase of one certaine number for some very great vnknowne number: and therefore <sup>x</sup> Iob saith, Is there any number in his armies? as who would say, they be innumerable, to wit, vnto vs men, not vnto God or in themselues, as <sup>y</sup> Gregory the great acutely, Supernorum cunium numerus infinitus & definitus exprimitur: ut qui<sup>z</sup> Deo est numerabilis, esse hominibus innumerabilis demonstratur. If then a Kings dignity consist in the<sup>a</sup> multitude of his subiects, & a fathers honour in the

<sup>b</sup> 2 Chro. 6. 18.

<sup>i</sup> De Trinit. lib. 5. cap. 1.

<sup>k</sup> Psal. 50. 10.

<sup>l</sup> Gen. 48 16.

<sup>m</sup> Psal. 104 25.

<sup>n</sup> Gen. 15. 5.

<sup>o</sup> Deut. 10 22.

<sup>p</sup> See Benedictus Peruius in loc.

<sup>q</sup> Part. 1. quest. 50 art. 3.

<sup>r</sup> Salkeld tract of Angels c. 4.

<sup>s</sup> In Dan. 7.

<sup>t</sup> Vbi sup.

<sup>u</sup> Apoc. 7. 1.

<sup>v</sup> Iob 25. 3.

<sup>w</sup> Moral. lib. 17 cap. 7. 11

<sup>x</sup> In Iob vbi supra.

<sup>y</sup> For he that can tell the number of the stars, and call them all by their names, Psal 147 4. is able likewise to tell the number and names of his Angels.

<sup>a</sup> Prou. 14. 28

the multitude of his children, how wonderfull and excellent is Gods name in all the world, as hauing so many seruants and sonnes as there be beasts of the field, fowles of the aire, fish in the sea, hosts of his creatures in heauen and earth: these multitudes of creatures euidently shew the most infinite perfections of the Creator, for seeing he would be knowne of man by the works of his hands, and no one kinde of mettall or mould, plant or trec, beast or bird could aptly represent his incomprehensible greatnesse and goodnesse, it was necessary that he should multiply the creatures, imparting something of his excellency to euery thing, that as we may know the true value of a double ducket, or of some other great peece of gold, by diuers little peeces of siluer and brasie coyne: so we might see (saith <sup>b</sup> Paul) his eternall power & Godhead in the creation of the world, being considered in his workes.

<sup>b</sup> Rom. 1. 20.

Consider then o my soule the heauens, euen the worke of his fingers, the Moone and the starres which he hath ordained. Consider what man is, and the sonne of man, how the Lord is mindfull of him, and visiteth him, and crowneth him with glory and worship. Consider all sleepe and oxen, and the beasts of the field, fowles and fishes, and whatsoeuer walketh thorow the paths of the seas. Every day (but on the Sabbath especially, being primarily hallowed for the same purpose) consider how excellent God is in the creation of the world: and whereas the creatures are <sup>d</sup> stumbling blockes vnto the soules of fooles, & a snare to the feet of vnwise, make them a ladder whereby thou maist ascend to the Creator, and haue thy conuersation in heauen. If thou seeest a bag of siluer, or a wedge of gold, thinke on Christs holy blond, of <sup>c</sup> greater value than either gold, or siluer, or any precious stone, shed for thy sake, for thy sin, if thou forsake these things of the world & follow him. If walking abroad in thy ground thou blesse God for blessing thee with a faire lot and goodly possessions here, remember that inheritance which is <sup>f</sup> immortall, and <sup>g</sup> cannot be shaken. If thou think on the kindomes of this world, remember, if thou truly beleue, that thine is the kingdome of heauen, as being prepared for thee by God the Father, & purchased for thee by God the Sonne, and assured to thee by God the holy Ghost.

<sup>c</sup> Gen 2. 3.

Exod. 20. 11.

<sup>d</sup> Wisd. 14. 10

<sup>e</sup> 1 Pet. 1. 18. 19

<sup>f</sup> 1 Pet. 1. 4.

<sup>g</sup> Heb. 12. 28.

3. The variety of the creatures is yet more wonderfull and excellent, for it is not hard with one and the same seale to make diuers like formes and impressions, or with one and the same stampe to print diuers like letters, but with one and the same mold infinitely to vary the figures impressed (as Almighty God did in the creation of all things) is a worke most absolutely diuine and admirable. For as there be diuers kinds of creatures, euen so the creatures of the same kinde are diuers, differing in fashon and outward forme so much, as that among so many thousand of pebbles vpon the sea banke it is impossible to finde two stones in all things alike, or among many heards of cattell, two goats, or two horses, or two hogges in all like, or in a whole market (though ouum ouo non est similis runne for a proverbe) two egges in all alike, or among an innumerable host of men two so like, but that you may know them each from other, if not by complexion and stature, yet by voice, gate, gesture, look, yea by writing of one short line.

Concerning the glorious lights of heauen, <sup>h</sup> Paul saith expressly, that there is another glory of the Sunne, and another glory of the Moone, and another glory of the starres, and that one starre differeth from another in glory. So the blessed Angels, albeit they be moe than twelue Legions, an Army which is beyond number, yet <sup>i</sup> Aquinas affirms that all of them are differing one from another non solum in diuiduali numero, sed etiam specifica forma: for (saith he) there be diuers orders of Angels, and diuers degrees of the same order, primi, medij, ultimi.

<sup>h</sup> 1 Cor. 15. 41.

<sup>i</sup> Part. 1. quest. 50. art. 4.

Consider then, o my soule, Gods excellency, shining in his infinite variety throughout the whole world, say with <sup>k</sup> Paul, O the deepnesse of the riches of the wisdome and knowledge of God, 1 in whom are hid all the treasures of wisdome and knowledge: and sing with our Prophet, O Lord our Governour, how wonderfull is thy name in all the earth? and then how sweet and amiable in heauen, where thou art to thy Saints all in all things, 1 Cor. 15. 28.

<sup>k</sup> Rom. 11. 33.

<sup>l</sup> Coloss. 2. 3.

4. Touching the creatures vertue, when Almighty God had viewed all the works of his hands, he gaue this censure, that they were good, yea very good, Gen. 1

at

at the last verse : The Lord is wonderfull in the greatest, and no lesse wonderfull euen in the least of all his creatures, <sup>m</sup> Ita magnus in operibus magnis, ut minor non sit in minimis. To beginne with the sea, nature (quoth <sup>m</sup> Plinie) which is wonderfull in all things, is most wonderfully wonderfull in the Sea: they that goe downe to the sea in ships, and occupy their businesse in great waters, behold (saith our <sup>o</sup> Prophet) the workes of the Lord, and his wonders in the deepe, For at his word the stormy winde ariseth, and listeth up the waues thereof, they be caried up to heauen, and downe againe to the deepe, they reele to an fro staggering as a drunken man, and are at their wits end: for the flowing and ebbing of some part of the sea so farre surpasseth all humane reason and vnderstanding, that it made that great Philosopher <sup>p</sup> Aristotle to drowne himselfe in the waues, saying, Quoni. m ego non possum capere te, tu capies me. The sea called <sup>q</sup> Mare Herbidum is exceeding strange; for if the stalkes of those weeds grow, they must be of an infinite length; if they doe not grow, how then haue they continued in one place so many hundred yeres? Euery sea-fish hath his vertue, the Sword-fish is a Souldier: the <sup>r</sup> Polypus a Politician, the little <sup>f</sup> Vrchin an Astrologer in foretelling tempests, & the Crab a very Conny-catcher in gaining her prey. All of them, as <sup>s</sup> S. Ambrose telleth vs, are Thalassometra more strange then Geometra, measuring out their peculiar habitations in the paths of the seas, and containing themselues alway within the same.

But among all the wonders of the deepe, giue me leaue to recommend vnto your consideration especially two, namely the great Leuiathan, and the little Remora: the Leuiathan is described by Job in his 41. chap. The maiestie of his scales is like strong shields, and are sure sealed, one is set to another that no winde can come betweene them, his neezings make the light to shine, and his eyes are like the eye-lids of the morning, out of his mouth go lamps, and sparkes of fire leape out, smoke commeth out of his nostrils as out of a boyling pot or caldron, &c. And in conclusion he saith, in earth there is no creature like him, he beholdeth all high things, and is a King ouer all the children of pride. Now for the Remora which is but halfe a foot long <sup>u</sup> Plinie reports, and produceth hercof examples also, that it is able to stay the greatest ship vnder saile, when as the windes are roaring, and the waues raging, hec tantilla (saith he) satis est contra tot impetus ut vetet ire nauigia. Let vs land, and we shall finde on earth euen the worst of all the creatures to be very good for some purposes according to their kindes, as <sup>x</sup> S. Ambrose pithily, alia esui, alia aly nascuntur vsui: the ground neither breeds nor beares any thing, but it is good for meat or medicine to man or beast, or both. <sup>y</sup> Aeneas Silnius vsed to say, that there is no booke so weakly written, but that it containeth one thing or other which is profitable. The whole world is a great booke in folio, and all the creatures are characters, and out of the least of these letters it is easie to spell, as it were, Gods excellent name. Whole volumes are written of the vertues of the Load-stone, <sup>z</sup> How great a matter a little fire kindleth? <sup>a</sup> The winde bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it commeth, and whither it goeth. It is so boisterous and violent, that it roots vp tall trees, and throwes downe strong towers, and (as I haue read in <sup>b</sup> books, and heard of <sup>c</sup> trauellers) able to remoue mountaines: for in the territories of Bierne, a village called Hiborne, by reason of an earth-quake about the yeere 1583. was overwhelmed and covered with earth so deepe, that at this day, the ground vnder which it lieth hidden, is tilled and sowne with corne, Seges est ubi Troia fuit, and this earth came from an high mountaine distant from the said village aboue an English mile, rowling ouer a valley of that breadth, and neuer stayed till it met with this obstacle, where it wrought so strange an effect.

The vertues of hearbes and flowers are so soueraigne, that the herball affords a medicine for euery kinde of malady that infesteth our bodies, euery plant and tree hath his seuerrall excellency: <sup>d</sup> The Oliue-tree hath his fatnesse, the Fig-tree his sweetnesse, the Cedar his talnesse, the Oake his firmnesse, and the Vine his fruitfulnessse. If I would speake of beasts & birds, I need not tell you that the least of them, and most imperfect, is excellent. The flies soule (saith <sup>e</sup> Augustine) doth excell the glorious Sunnes body, the teeth of the moth are so wonderfull as the tuskes of the

Boare,

<sup>m</sup> Aug. contra Fauit. Man. lib.
21. cap. 5.
<sup>o</sup> Proem. lib.
32. nat. hist.
<sup>o</sup> Psal. 107. 23.

<sup>p</sup> Iustin Martyr.
orat. ad Gentes.
Naz. orat. 47.
Celsus Rhod.
lib. 29. cap. 8.
<sup>q</sup> Pet. Martyr. de orbe nouo
deca. 3. cap. 5.
<sup>r</sup> Ambros.
Hexam. l. 5. c. 8.
<sup>f</sup> Ambros. ubi
sup. cap. 9.
<sup>v</sup> Vbi sup. cap.
10.

<sup>u</sup> Nat. hist. lib.
32. cap. 1.

<sup>x</sup> Hexam. lib. 3.
cap. 9.

<sup>y</sup> Lib. de mundo vniuerso.

<sup>z</sup> Iam. 3. 5.

<sup>a</sup> Ioh. 3. 8.

<sup>b</sup> Bellar de ascensione men-tis ad Deum per scalas creat.
grad. 2. cap. 4.
<sup>c</sup> Ex ore Isaaci Causaboni.

<sup>d</sup> Iudg. 9. 9.

<sup>e</sup> Lib. de duabus animabus contra Manich.
cap. 4.

Boare, the thighs of the slender Gnat not inferiour in their frame to the thighs of the huge Elephant, the wings of the Butter-flie may compare, for exquisite forme, with the wings of the Griffion or Eagle. Salomon telleth vs that foure small things in earth are full of wisdom, The Pismires a people not strong, yet prepare they their meat in summer: the Coneyes a people not mighty, yet make they their houses in the rocke: the Grasshopper hath no King, yet go they forth all by bands: the Spider taketh hold with her hands, and is in Kings palaces. And so the diligent and witty Bee proues himselfe a great Architect in building his chambers high and low so cunningly: The<sup>b</sup> Flea seemeth a kinde of Physitian vnto other, by letting blood in the spring, the<sup>i</sup> Goats in eating ditany, the Deere in eating iuic, Physicians vnto themselves: so the Mouse in forsaking a ruinous house ready to fall, seemeth a kinde of Wizard or Prophet: so the Hound in following the Hare seemeth a kinde of Logician, for when he commeth vnto a way that is parted into three paths, he doth as it were Syllogistically thus argue with himself (saith<sup>k</sup> Ambrose) either the game is gone this way, or that way, or else in the middle way: but neither this way, nor that, ergo doubtlesse in the middle path. <sup>1</sup> S. Basil to conuince the boasting of Eunomius the Heretike, who vaunted that he knew God and his Diuinitie, bids him, if he can, answer these demaunds concerning the poore Emmet, a contemptible beast, as being little in bodie, base in substance.

1. Whether it breatheth or no? 2. If those little corps be vpheld with bones? 3. If those small members be linked with sinewes, or chained with strings? 4. If those sinewes be fortified with muscles? 5. Whether downe the backe nature extendeth a chaine pliable to turning or bending? 6. Whether thorow the chaine passeth a white marrow? 7. Whether the sinowie membranes impell the rest of the bodie? 8. Whether it hath a liuer or no? 9. Whether in the liuer a receptacle of choller? 10. Whether an heart? 11. Whether kidneies? 12. Whether arteries? 13. Whether veines? 14. Whether skins? 15. Whether a trauerse or midriffe? 16. Whether is it bare or hairie? 17. Whether single or clouen footed? 18. How long liueth it? 19. After what manner is it begotten? 20. How long dwelleth it in the wombe? 21. Why do not all creepe, but some flie and some creepe? These questions are moued by Basil touching the small Emmets bodie, but ten times more (saith<sup>m</sup> one) might be demaunded about the sensitiue soule. O Lord our Governour, how superexcellēt is thy glory aboue the heauens, if thy name be thus excellent in the meanest of thy creatures creeping vpon earth?

Who can admire sufficiently the Sympathies & Antipathies of the creatures, as the mortall hatred betweene the Horse and the Beare, the Swan & Eagle, the lesser birds and Owle, Mullet and Pike, Conger and Lamprey. Who can any way diuine why there should be such irreconciliable warres among the senselesse creatures? as betweene the Oake and Oliue, Vine and Coleworth: againe, betweene the Coleworth and wilde Margeram; as also betweene Hemlocke and Wine, for Hemlocke is said to be poyson vnto men, and Wine poyson vnto Hemlocke: or what reason can be rendred of the mutuall agreement inter Lillium & Allium, betweene Lillies and Garlick? or why some trees are so coupled in a kinde of marriage, that if the male be not planted in a neere place, the female will euer be barren? <sup>o</sup> O Lord, how manifold are thy workes, in wisdom hast thou made them all, the earth is full of thy riches.

I haue said nothing yet of man, by whose wit and industrie the most excellent Arts and noble Sciences haue bene inuented, as well Theoricall as Practicall. Arts Theoricall, are either reall or ratiōall: among the reals, how wonderfull are the Mathematickes? as Astronomie, Arithmetike, Geometrie: Musicke is the meanest, and yet six notes curiously varied, make an hundred kindes of heauenly sounds that rauish hardest mindes.

P *And with diuision of a choice denice,
The bearers soule out of his eares entice.*

We reade in holy Bible, that Saul afflicted with an euill spirit, was exceedingly comforted by Dauids playing on his harpe: for so the text, When the malignans spirit came vpon Saul, David tooke an harpe, and played with his hand, and Saul was refreshed

<sup>1</sup> Erou. 30. 24.

<sup>2</sup> Lactantius de falsa sapient.

cap 10.

<sup>3</sup> Celsus Calconius in Encomio Pulicis.

<sup>4</sup> Ætion. de uariab. lib. 1.

<sup>5</sup> Hexam. lib. 6.

cap 4.

<sup>6</sup> Epist 168, quæ est ad Eunomium tom. 2. fol. 121.

<sup>m</sup> Wight passions of the minde, lib. 6.

pag. 341.

<sup>n</sup> Vide Fra. Caslorium & Freijgium lib. de sympath. & antipat.

<sup>o</sup> Pfal. 104. 24.

<sup>p</sup> Deu. Bartas

a. day 1. weeke.

<sup>1</sup> 1 Sam. 16. 23.

<sup>c</sup> Basil. hom. de legendis lib. gentiliū.

<sup>c</sup> Vbi sup.

<sup>c</sup> Wright passions of the minde, lib 3. pag 167.

<sup>u</sup> Genial. dierum lib 2. cap 17.

* In the kingdom of Naples in Italy.

<sup>y</sup> Confess. lib. 10. cap. 33.

<sup>2</sup> 2 Sam. 15. 6.

<sup>a</sup> Plutarch. in vita Alcibiad.

<sup>b</sup> See Plin. nat. hist lib. 35. cap. 9. 10 11.

<sup>c</sup> Bellar. de ascen. mentis ad Deum. grad. 8. cap. 5.

<sup>d</sup> Exod. 15. 11.

<sup>e</sup> Psal. 136. 4.

<sup>f</sup> Psal. 114. 4. 8.

refreshed and eased, for the euill spirit departed from him. <sup>r</sup> Pythagoras once chanced to fall into drunkards companie, where a Musician ruled their iaciuious banquet; he presently commanded him to change his harmony, & to sing a Dorian or graue song, and so with this manner of melody brought them againe to sobriety. Same <sup>r</sup> Basil reports of Timotheus, that with one kinde of harmony he made Alexander to rise from his friends in the middest of a feast, and to call in a fury for armes, and instantly changing his note, with another kinde of melody he did appease him, and restore him againe quiet vnto his guests: musicke is so powerfull in mouing passion and compassion, that the beggers in <sup>r</sup> Germany demand their almes with a song, according to the prouerbe in Italy:

This goe a begging,
The Spaniards cursing,
The French weeping,
The Germanes singing.

And in some places of England passionate women (hereby thinking to stirre vp in the passengers a great deal of pity) vse to sing at the prisons iron grates and gates. It seemeth incredible that the biting of the venomous Tarantula should easily be cured by musicke, yet <sup>u</sup> Alexander ab Alexandro doth affirme, that as he and others of his company travelled through <sup>x</sup> Apulia in the heat of Summer, and heard Musicians playing vpon diuers instruments in euery village, they enquired the reason, and vnderstood that they were such as cured the Tarantule; whereupon he and the rest being desirous to see this experiment, dismounted from their horses, and went into an house where one was to be cured, whom they found not only speecchlesse, but also senselesse in appearance; and yet neuertheless after that the fivcet instruments had sounded a while, he began first to moue his hands, and then his legges, in measure, according to the stroake of the musicke, and at length rose vp and danced with a good grace, and when the Musicians ceased to play (as of purpose they did, to shew vnto the beholders the strange nature of that disease) the sicke man fell downe againe as though he had bene dead, and when they returned to their instruments and played againe, he forthwith arose and danced, as before, vntill at length all the poyson wherewith he was infected, was dissipated and dissolued, and he returned to his senses, and recovered perfect health: and the said Author further testifies, that if there be any bitten or venomed and not fully cured, he can neuer forbear to dance whensoever he heareth any musicke. To conclude this point, there is such a proportionate sympathy betweene the minde and musicke, such a secret familiarity (saith <sup>y</sup> Augustine) that all our affections are diuersly moued according to the diuers kinds of harmony.

Among the ratiouall Arts, are not Logicke and Rhetoricke admirably powerfull, as being able to make quidlibet ex quolibet, euery thing of any thing, stealing away the hearts of men, as <sup>z</sup> Abalon did in Israel, and carrying them vp and downe the Countrey like pitchers by the eares, as <sup>a</sup> Socrates did Alcibiades. Among the practical Arts, actiue doubtlesse are the best, as accurate skill in Ethickes, Oeconomicks, and the Politickes: yet the factiue sciences haue their excellencies, specially painting and navigation, in which, Art seemeth a good deal to contend with Nature: for the curious <sup>b</sup> Painter putteth a kinde of life into the dead and senselesse creatures, and the cunning Mariner maketh a very blocke, a wooden horse to walke with oares as vpon feet, and to flie with sailes, as vpon wings, <sup>c</sup> Non solum remis quasi pedibus currere, sed etiam velis quasi alis volare docuit.

Consider then O my soule how powerfull and wonderfull Almighty God is euery where: <sup>d</sup> who (Lord) among the gods is like to thee, so glorious in holinesse, so feareful in praise, so puissant in doing wonders, qui solus facit mirabilia magna, saith our <sup>e</sup> Prophet, which only doth great wonders, as being absolute Lord of all things at all times, in all places; for whatsoeuer vertue the creatures haue, cometh all from aboue, descending from the Father of lights, of whom is euery good and perfect gift, and the creatures hold those vertues at the wil of the Creator only, who can at his bare word turne them al vpside down, making <sup>f</sup> the mountaines to skip like rams, and the little hills like young sheepe, conuerting the hard rocke into a standing water, and the flint stone into a springing well. Let vs then first and principally seeke the kingdom of God, let vs <sup>b</sup> hunger and thirst after his righteousnesse, like as the Hart desires the water-brookes, euen so let our soule long after him. All of vs are desirous of good things, affecting a good house, good horse, good cattle, good land, good corne. Let vs then earnestly <sup>k</sup> seeke the Lord while he may be found, in whom is all good, as being to such as loue his coming all in all things.
and

I am in the 5. place to treat of the creatures beauty, concerning which our Prophet saith in the 91. Psalme, verse 4. Thou Lord hast made me glad through thy workes, and I will reioyce in giuing praise for the operations of thy hands. And surely if euery good thing be beautifull, euery creature being good hath his beauty. <sup>1</sup> Three things are comely saith Salomon in their going, a Lion which is strong among beasts a lusty greyhound, and a goat. The beautie of a well dressed garden, of a greene meadow, pleasant wood, calme Sea, serene aire, cleare fountaines, are wonderfull. The beauties of trees adorned in the Spring with blossomes, in Autume laden with fruits, are wonderfull. The beauties of the Sunne, and Moone, and Starres, are wonderfull. The beauties of men and women are wonderfull: the sonnes of God saw that the daughters of men were faire, Gen. 6. 2. so faire, that <sup>m</sup> many have perished by the beautie of women, as Dauid, Salomon, Sampson, and infinite other.

Consider then, O my soule, how wonderfull and excellent Almighty God, is in beautie, from whom all these beauties are deriued. Vaine men, ignorant of God, imagined the fire, or the winde, or the swift aire, or the course of the starres, or the raging water, or the lights of heauen, to be gouernours of the world and gods: but saith the <sup>u</sup> Wiseman, Though they had such pleasure in their beautie that they thought them gods, yet should they haue knowne how much more excellent he is that made them; for the first author of beautie created them all. If his name be thus excellent in the world, where we see him only but in a <sup>o</sup> glasse, to wit, the glasse of his creatures, and in the glasse of his Scriptures: then how superexcellent will his beautie seeme, when as we shall enioy his presence face to face, beholding him in his Angels, in his Saints; in his Sonne, in himselfe? When we shall in his kingdom sit with him at his table, we shall abundantly be <sup>p</sup> satisfied with the fulnesse of his house, and filled with the riuers of his pleasures. How beautifull and amiable shall our dwelling be vpon Gods holy mountaine, where the firmament we now behold adorned with Sunne, and Moone, and Starres, shining more gloriously than all the precious stones in the world, shall be nothing else but the nether side of the pavement of our palace.

Out of the mouth of very babes and sucklings ] These words, as some thinke, containe an obiection; If Gods excellent name fill the whole world, and if his glory be set aboute the heauens, how commeth it to passe that all men acknowledge it not? Answer is made, that the Lord wil not be praised by the proud, who presume too much vpon their owne strength and vertue, but by the mouth of very babes and sucklings, euen such as are become little children, and as it were fooles for Christs sake, the humble and meeke, according to that of Christ, Matth. 11. 25. I giue thee thanks, O Father, Lord of heauen and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise, and men of vnderstanding, and hast opened them vnto babes. And Mat. 21. 16. Haue ye neuer read, out of the mouths of babes and sucklings thou hast perfited praise? Where <sup>c</sup> Diuines obserue, that by babes is meant such as in the worlds eie seeme base, such humble confessors as the worldly wise repute children and fooles: for by the preaching of silly Fishermen, Almighty God did still the enimie and auenger, <sup>u</sup> that is, <sup>x</sup> he confounded the wisdom of the profound Philosophers and great disputers of the world, he set them all at a non plus, so that their vnderstanding was hid, Esay 29. 14. and while they professed themselves to be wise they became fooles, Rom. 1. 22. so simple <sup>y</sup> women, and vnlearned <sup>z</sup> striplings in the dayes of Q. Marie, did still the persecuting enimie, that is, stop his mouth in such fort. that he had nothing many times to say, but away with the heretike, a fagot for the heretike, knocking them downe with axes of condemnatorie sentences. <sup>a</sup> Eusebius telleth a strange storie, how an idiot, that is, a man of small wit, and lesse knowledge, disputing with a subtile Philosopher,

<sup>b</sup> Matth. 6. 33.
<sup>b</sup> Matth. 5. 6.
<sup>1</sup> Psal 12. 1.

<sup>k</sup> Esay 55. 6.

<sup>1</sup> Prou. 30. 9.

<sup>m</sup> Eccle. 9. 3.

<sup>u</sup> Wisd. 13. 3.

<sup>o</sup> 1. Cor. 13. 12.

<sup>p</sup> Psal. 36. 8.

<sup>q</sup> Bellarm.

<sup>r</sup> Matth 18. 3.
<sup>s</sup> 1. Cor. 14. 10.

<sup>t</sup> Hieronius.
Arctius. 2 dem
Mollerus.

Strigelius
Tilenian in loc.

<sup>u</sup> Bellarm.
<sup>v</sup> 1 Cor. 1. 19.

<sup>y</sup> Fox Martyr.
fol. 17. 4. 2858.
1859.

<sup>z</sup> Fol. 1474.
1735.

<sup>a</sup> Church hom.
for Whitfund.
part. 1.

an egregious enemy to Christ and his faith, in fine brought him to such a point, that he could not chule, but acknowledge the power of God in his words, and to giue place to truth: a great many iudicious Bishops affected this victorie before, but none could effect it, vntill it pleased the Lord out of the mouth of a very babe to perfect his praise.

<sup>b</sup> Other Doctors expound the words of Christ, vrged out of this text, of babes in yeeres, and so Christ <sup>c</sup> elsewhere saith in the like sense, I tell you, that if these should hold their peace, the stones would crie: for when ordinarie meanes are wanting, he can by miracles extraordinary perfect his praise. So some Diuines vnderstand this verse,

<sup>d</sup> *Infantium, res mira, tuum sermonibus hostera
Conteris, & lingua simplicis arte necas.*

Oras Theodore Beza,

— *qui matrum ex vbre pendens,
Elingues pueri (dictu mirabile) vires
Immensas, numenq; tuum muto ore fatentur.*

<sup>e</sup> As if the Prophet should haue said, the Lord needs not eloquent tongues of exquisite Rhetoricians to set forth his power and prouidence in governing the world, because the mouthes of very babes and sucklings are sufficient to make perfect his praise. For the <sup>f</sup> sucking of babes, & and speaking of infants, are both euident demonstrations of his strength and excellent name. For who taught the babe to sucke, or the dumbe to speak, but he which is the Lord our Governour? Beside these two pregnant instances, <sup>h</sup> all things in government of children are full of wonder, especially their bad parents indulgent care to nourish them, and affectionate loue to humour them; for albeit their crying are troublesome in the night, and their vncleanliness loathsome in the day, yet parents are content to suffer all that, and with a kinde of pleasure to serue them in the lowest office. The which occasioned our blessed Sauiour to say, Matth. 7. 11. If ye which are euill, afford your children good gifts, how much more shall your father in heauen giue good things to them that aske him?

The translation of Abenezra, initium fecisti, cannot be so good as that of Christ, Matth. 21. 16. perfecisti: for (as <sup>i</sup> Martin Bucer well obserues) Almighty God begins his power and prouidence towards infants in their mothers wombe, before they be striplings or sucklings in the world: He (saith our <sup>b</sup> Prophet elsewhere) beholds their substance yet being imperfect, and all their members are written in his booke, which day by day were fashioned, when as yet there was none of them. O Lord, my reins are thine, my bones are not hid from thee, thou hast covered me in my mothers wombe, though I be made secretly, yet fearefully, and wonderfully; marvellous are thy workes, ô Lord our Governour, in the curious framing of children vnborne, but when once they be brought forth into the world, and beginne to sucke and speake, thou doest <sup>l</sup> establish and confirme thy strong praise by their mouth, vnto the confusion of the enemy and auenger.

The deuill, in the iudgement of <sup>m</sup> S. Hierome, is this emie and auenger: emie, enticing men to sinne; and then auenger, in playing the hangman and executioner in the punishing of sinne. <sup>n</sup> Other haply better expound this of Atheists, impudently denying Gods high and holy prouidence, who say that Gods excellent name gouernes not the whole world, and that the heauens are not the works of his fingers. These wretches are called enemies to God, as fighting against his power and praise, like the Giants in old time.

*Qui manibus magnis rescindere caelum
Aggressi, superisq; Iouem destrudere regnis.*

And they be called auengers, <sup>o</sup> in that they persecute the friends of God, according to that of our <sup>p</sup> Prophet, thou makest vs to be a by-word among the heathen, and that the people shake their heads, my confusion is daily before me, and the shame of my face hath covered me, for the voice of the slanderer and blasphemer, for the emie and auenger. Or termed auengers, <sup>q</sup> as reuenging their owne quarrell, and not leauing vengeance to the Lord, to whom alone it belongeth, Rom. 12. 19. he that

<sup>b</sup> Chrysost.
Eulhym.
Maldonat. in
Matth. 21. 16.
<sup>c</sup> Luke 19. 40.
<sup>d</sup> Eobanus
H. flus

<sup>e</sup> Calvin.

<sup>f</sup> Kimshi.

<sup>g</sup> Abenezra.

<sup>h</sup> Bucer.

<sup>i</sup> In loc.
<sup>k</sup> Psal 139 15.
<sup>l</sup> Vulgar. Latin.
perfecisti.

Bucer. confirmasti

Mufter, fundatid est, stabilem deklarasti.
Rob Stephan &
Agellius.

<sup>m</sup> In loc. Idem Athanasius &
Hesychius apud
Agellium in loc.
& Iacob. de Va-lentia in loc.

<sup>n</sup> Bucer.
Steuclus.

<sup>o</sup> R. Stephan.
Agellius in loc.
<sup>p</sup> Psal. 44. 15.

<sup>q</sup> Bucer.
<sup>r</sup> R. Stephan.
p. 100.

that will out of reuengefull humour recompence to his neighbour euill for euill, and not giue place to wrath, is an enemy to God, as breaking into Gods office, who faith in his word, vengeance is mine, and I will repay saith the Lord. Atheists and Heathens acknowledging no God, or else conceiuing if there be a God, that he cares not for the things of this world, reuenge their owne cause; but Christians (who sing, O Lord our Governour, how excellent is thy name in all the world) must ouercome euill with goodnesse, and so much as in them is, haue peace with all men. See Epist. 3. Sund after Epiphanie.

Babes and Sucklings abundantly confound auengers, by their humblenesse and harmlesnesse: for they being iniured, take not any reuenge, but only make complaint either to their father or mother: hereby teaching other of greater yeeres not to render euill for euill, or rebuke for rebuke; but that we should only make our cause known vnto God our Father in heauen, and the Church our mother on earth: according to this sense S. Paul exhorteth vs to be like children, not in vnderstanding, but as concerning malicioufnesse like to little children, innocentia & ignoscentia, being neither enemies in doing other wrong, nor auengers in requiting wrong done to themselves. See Gospell on Michaelmas day.

For I will consider the heauens ] Or as other translations, according to the Hebrew, thy heauens, as hauing his seat, and as manifesting himselfe to blessed soules and Angels in heauen, and to vs men in glorie from heauen, especially, Psal. 19 1. 1. Theff. 4. 16. a or the heauens are his, as being the workes of his fingers, created and ordered by him, and in calling them his workes, and the works of his fingers, he doth insinuate b that they be noble, curious, and exactly wrought, and therefore c when I consider the heauens in order so wonderfull, in time so beautifull, in time so durable: d then o Lord I am constrained to say, what is base, forrie, fraile man, that thou art mindfull of him, or the sonne of man, that thou visitest him? e it had bene sufficient for thee to shew thy glorious excellencie shining in the heauens, euen in the Moone and starrs which thou hast ordamed; thou needest not to come so low as man, or his posteritie, which is dust and ashes.

f Here then obserue two points especially: } 1. The basenesse of man, in the clause, what is man?
2. The dignitie of man, in that the Lord is mindfull of him, and visiteth him, making him only lower than Angels, and Lord ouer all the rest of his creatures.

Concerning the former, in this sense the word Man is often vsed elsewhere, for so S. Paul, Rom. 9 0. But, o man, what art thou, who pleadest against God? As if he should haue said (as Cyprian once to Demetrian) ut Deum cognoscere possis, te ipsum ante cognosce, consider how base thy selfe art in respect of God, as clay in the hand of the potter; and then I thinke thou wilt not enter into dispute with thy Creator: so when the men of Licaonia would haue worshipped the blessed Apostles for gods, & Paul and Barnabas answered and said; why doe you these things? we are euen men, subiect to the like passions that ye be: So S. Peter in the like case to Cornelius, Acts 10. 26. I my selfe am a man. So Dauid in the very next Psalme at the last vertic, Put them, O Lord, in feare, that the heathen may know themselves to be but men. The word as here, so there, is Enosh, h signifying a sorie and sillie man. According to this acceptiō of the word Man, it is reported that Philip King of Macedon commanded his Page to put him in minde euery morning that he was a man, that is, (as Epicletus the Philosopher told Hadrian the Emperour) infelicitatis tabula, calamitatis fabula, the map of miseries, and as it were the tale of Troy. That any man is miserable, let it suffice (quoth Menander) that he is a man. And k Seneca to the same purpose, Quemcunq; miserum videris, hominem scis: and therefore the l first voice that is vttered by the new borne infant is crying, hereby prophecying that he is come into a world full of care and calamities. m Homo dolens quod homo sit, erubescens quod natus sit, plorans quod natus sit, murmurans quod sit corpore fragili, mente sterili: Zoroastes only laughed at his birth, and yet he found matter enough of sorrow both at his death, and in his whole life. To speake more distinctly, man is called f Deut 32 35.

Hebr. 10. 30.

f Rom. 12. 22.

f 1. Pet. 3. 9.

a 1 Cor 14. 20.

z Munter.

Vatablius.

Vulgar: Latine,

and our latter translation in

y Psal. 11. 4.

z Matth 18. 10.

a B. Harmm.

Wilcox.

b Placidus dig-niora que pro

prijs manibus ar-tifex operatur &

subtiliora, que

digitorum distin-ctiōe.

c The aduerbe ki may be taken for quando so well as quoniam,

Steucrius in loc.

So our latter translation, &

the Geneua,

when I consider d Bucer.

zollerus.

Caluin.

e Geneua

glosse.

f Cassiodorus.

g Acts 14. 15.

h Vide Lorin.

in Act 10.

Bucer.

Musculus.

Caluin in loc.

i Altercat. Hadriani & Epi- scii.

k In Her surant.

l Cyprian. ser.

de bono patien-

ti. Idem Plato

in Anioco, &

August. ser. 31.

ad fratres in eremo.

m Bernard. de

considerat. lib. 2.

cap. 9.

n Promptuarij

on. part. 1.

pag. 12.

earth in one verse thrice, Ierem. 22, 29. O earth, earth, earth, heare the word of the Lord; that is, as <sup>o</sup> Bernard, and other haue construed it, earth by } Procreation.

                   } Sustaination.
                   } Corruption.

Earth by procreation, for the first man is called Adam, <sup>p</sup> that is, red earth, of the dust of the ground made he man, Gen. 2. 7. and the Patriarch Abraham acknowledging the basenesse of his beginning, said vnto the Lord, I am but dust and ashes, Gen. 18. 27. Now God made this earth of which he made man of nothing, according to the text, In the beginning God created the heauen, and the earth, he made not this heauen and earth of another heauen and earth, but he created both, as hauing nothing but nothing, wherewith, and wherby to build this goodly frame: and so consequently proud man in respect of his materials is brought vnto nothing, as our Prophet in <sup>r</sup> another place, Man is like a thing of naught. And S. Paul Galat. 6. 3. If any man seeme to himselfe that he is something, when he is nothing, he deceiueth himselfe in his imagination.

Adam begat Cain and Abel, Gen. 4. Cain signifieth possession, Abel <sup>f</sup> mourning, or <sup>r</sup> vanitie, to teach vs, <sup>u</sup> that the possessions of men are vexation and vanitie, yea vanitie of vanities, and extreme vanitie, Eccles. 1. 2. and as Adam begat sonnes like to himselfe, so his sonnes also tonnes like to themselues, of <sup>a</sup> loathsome excrement, carried in those members of the bodie which are <sup>y</sup> lesse honourable, <sup>z</sup> couered and made fearefully, brought forth into the world with intolerable paine, so vile, so foule, <sup>a</sup> Ut puer natus occiso magis quam nato similis videatur. I spare to speake what I haue read, and etery wife, especially midwife, knoweth; only giue me leaue to cry out with our Prophet, What is man?

2. Man is earth, in respect of sustaination, and that ratione victus & vestitus, in regard of aliment and indument, meat and apparell. It is truly said by the Philosophers, ex quibus constamus, ex istdem nutrimur, elementa sunt alimenta, ubi incipimus accipimus. All meats for our bodies in health, all medicines for the same being sicke, are earth and earthly. We feed on the things of earth, and walke on earth, and sleepe on earth. As for apparrell and ornament, we borrow wooll of the sheepe, haire of the Cammell, silke of the worme, muske of the mountaine Cat, fures of the beasts, and feathers of the fowles, like vnto Aesops Crow, hauing some plume from euery bird, something from euery creature: flowers are richly decked, plants with an infinite varietie of coloured leaues adorned, beasts with houes, and hornes, and other goodly weapons are well armed: fishes with handsome scales are comely <sup>b</sup> couered: <sup>c</sup> only man, vnhappy base man is borne to nothing but beggerie and rascalitie, so that we may still exclaime with our Prophet, What is man?

3. As man in respect of his beginning and proceeding is earth, euen so dust and earth in his end; for the Lord himselfe denounced, <sup>d</sup> out of it wast thou taken, thou art dust, and so dust againe thou shalt returne. And then he shall be terra à terendo, because euery one shall tread on him, <sup>a</sup> a living Dog is better than a dead Lion, euery Thersites will insult ouer Hector, and euery scrub runne vpon Achilles, euery childe is ready to mangle the strong Oake when it is fallen, and he that durst not looke Cassius in the face, is now bold to pull him by the beard. Our bodies are not only houses of clay, Job 4. 19. but as they be earthly, so tabernacles, 2. Cor. 5. 1. set vp this day, and haply taken downe the next. And therefore <sup>f</sup> Diuines obserue, that the yeeres of man are termed in holy Scripture, dayes, as the dayes of Noe, the dayes of Lot, the dayes of Elias, because they liued but a few dayes; as the Patriarke <sup>g</sup> Iacob few and euill haue bene the dayes of my pilgrimage. And the Chronicles are termed by some Translators, verba dierum, as concerning diaries of men, who liued not many yeeres but a few dayes, for after all their glorious acts, (occubuit cum patribus, he slept with his Fathers, and was buried in their Sepulchre, is the conclusion in the storie) the end of some noble King is the end of euery Chapter almost in the Kings.

Albeit time may be diuided into past, present, and future: yet <sup>h</sup> Plato the best Diuine among the Philosophers, and <sup>i</sup> Augustine the best Philosopher among the Diuine s

<sup>o</sup> Cap. 3. meditat.

<sup>r</sup> Iosephus antiquit. lib. 1. c. 2.

<sup>q</sup> See Bellar de ascensione mentis ad Deum, 22. 1. cap. 3.

<sup>r</sup> Psal. 144. 4.

<sup>r</sup> Iosephus ubi sup. cap. 3.

<sup>r</sup> Caluin. in Gen. 4.

<sup>r</sup> Isidorus Hispalensis.

<sup>r</sup> Leuit. 15. 24.

<sup>r</sup> Esay 64. 6.

<sup>r</sup> 1. Cor. 12. 23.

<sup>r</sup> Psal 139. 12.

<sup>r</sup> 13. <sup>r</sup> Plutarcb. com. de amore proli.

<sup>b</sup> Their heufes are so surely seeled, and as it weretiled with scales, that no wind can come between them. Job 41. 7.

<sup>c</sup> Plutarcb. com. de fortuna.

<sup>d</sup> Gen 3. 19.

<sup>e</sup> Eccles. 9. 4.

<sup>f</sup> Theodor. Eiblander, lib. de ratione temporis.

<sup>g</sup> See Psal. 90. 14.

<sup>h</sup> Gen. 1. vers 5.

<sup>i</sup> 8. 11.

<sup>j</sup> Job 42. 17.

<sup>k</sup> Gen. 47. 9.

<sup>h</sup> In Times.

<sup>i</sup> Confess. lib. 1. 1. cap. 14. 15.

Diuines, are both of opinion, that there is no time belonging essentially to our life, but ipsum nunc, euen the very now, because the time past is certainly gone, and the future time vncertainly to come. And therefore Christ inioyned vs to pray, give vs this day our daily bread, not this age, or moneth, or weeke, but only this day, because we may not care for to morrow, Matth. 6. 34. <sup>k</sup>Boast not thy selfe of to morrow, for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth. All flesh is grasse, (saith <sup>l</sup>Esay) that is, aut gramen, aut stramen, grasse withered, or greene: O foole, this night thy soule may be fetched from thee, and so thou shalt haue no need of daily bread to morrow. Iosia was a vertuous Governour, 2. King. 23. and yet he had but his time, in temporibus Iosia Amonis filij, Jerem. 1. 2. Noe was an vpright man in his time, Genl. 6. 9. and yet he had but his time, in the dayes of Noe, 1. Pet. 3. 20. Herod was a mightie man, and yet he had but his time, in the time of Herod King of Iudaea, Luk. 7. 5. And albeit <sup>m</sup>Daniel prophesied of one which should haue a time and a rime, and haue a time; yet as it appeareth in the <sup>n</sup>Reuelation of S. Iohn, all is but a time, and that a short time too, for although Antichrist exalt himselfe aboue <sup>o</sup>all that is called God, yet he shall one day perish as a man, he came from earth, and notwithstanding his double honour, and triple Crowne, he must againe returne to dust, and see corruption in the grave.

O earth, earth earth, heare the word of the Lord, remember what thou wast, and what thou art, and what thou shalt be: thou wast in thy beginning <sup>q</sup>sperma foetidum, a wretch, a worme conceiued and borne in sinne: thou art now saccus stercoreum, a sacke full of durt, and thou shalt be cibus vermium, a bait and a banquet for the wormes. In thy beginning thou wast nothing, and now nothing worth, and if thou repent not of thy sinnes hereafter, in hazard to be worse than nothing. Conceiued in originall sinne, now full of actvall sinne, and if thou continue still in thy wickednesse, thou maist one day feele the eternall smart of sinne, <sup>r</sup>Genitus in immunditia, viuens in miseria, moriturus in angustia, begot in vncleannesse, living in unhappinesse, dying in anguish and vncomfortablenesse. Remember O man, and the sonne of man, <sup>t</sup>whence thou camest, and blush; where thou art, and lament; whither thou must, and tremble. Brag not of thy birth, or worth, of any thing thou hast beene, art, or may be; for in respect of thy base, weake, fraile flesh, thou wast a clod of earth, art a clog of earth, and in fine shall become nothing but a coffin of earth vnder the ground. <sup>v</sup>The graue shall be thy house, and thou shalt make thy bed in the darke; thou shalt say to corruption, thou art my father, and to the worme, thou art my mother and sister. <sup>w</sup>Caro resoluatur in putredinem, putredo in vermem, vermis in puluerem, our flesh resoluethe into filthinesse, and filthinesse into wormes, and wormes into dust.

Sic redit in nihilum quod fuit ante nihil.

Let vs oppose now mans dignitie to his basenesse as an antidote, for albeit man in respect of his beginning may be reduced to nothing, yet he was made by the Lord who created all things, and that after a more noble manner than other things: for 1. When Almighty God made light, he said only, Let there be light, and there was light; and when he made herbes, he said only, Let the ground bring forth the bud of the herbe, and the ground instantly brought forth the bud of the herbe, he spake the word and it was done, he commanded and it was created, Psal. 33. 9. but when he made man, he breathed as it were himselfe, as <sup>x</sup>Albinus notes, and as <sup>y</sup>Clemens Alexandrinus, and other Doctors generally, he held a councill in his heauenly Palace, saying to God the Sonne, and God the Holy Ghost, Let vs make man.

<sup>z</sup>Cumq; omnia verbo

Conderet, hunc manibus quo plus genitoris haberet

Dignatur formare suis.

2. The dignitie of mans creation is much amplified by the circumstance of time wherein he was created, and that was after all other things were made: now <sup>a</sup>serum concilium, is serium, and vsually the last workes of a cunning Artificer are most absolute, and therefore <sup>b</sup>Saint Ambrose doth abserue, that God hauing framed man according to his likenesse, rested himselfe and made holiday: he made birds flying in the aire, fish swimming in the sea, wormes creeping on the ground, and

<sup>k</sup> Prou. 27. 1.

<sup>l</sup> Cap 40 ver 6

<sup>m</sup> Dan. 7. 27.

<sup>n</sup> Sc 12. 7.

<sup>o</sup> Cap 10 v 6.

<sup>p</sup> 2. Thess 2 4.

<sup>q</sup> Psal. 82. 7.

<sup>r</sup> Bernard. medit. cap. 2.

<sup>s</sup> August. soliloq. cap. 2.

<sup>t</sup> Bernard.

<sup>v</sup> Job 17. 13. 14

<sup>w</sup> Claudius Flex. morinus instit. de penitenti. part. 2. cap. 2.

<sup>x</sup> Quest. in Gen.

<sup>y</sup> Padogez. lib.

cap 3. Idem.

Ambros. de dinitat. cordis. b-man cap 1.

<sup>z</sup> Presper. lib. de provident. Dei.

citen. Niede-

burg cent 5. col-

244. Hoc homiis beate deus.

<sup>a</sup> Apulcius. Stridorum lib. 2 in curfu velacior, in consil. otarior

vinii. Cal Calcagninus in di-msral.

<sup>b</sup> H. xam. lib. 6.

cap. vlt.

Yet he did not rest: he made flowers of the field, which are more beautifull in the spring than Salomon in all his royalty, but yet he did not rest; he made the glorious lights of heaven, as the Sunne, and Moone, and Starres, and yet he did not rest: but as soone as he had made man, he rested and hallowed a Sabbath, as hauing made him for whom all other things are made, parauit in primis domum & deinde Dominum: or he rested as hauing now framed one creature, wherein are contained all the perfections of the rest, in this respect aptly termed a little world, an abridgement of the creatures, and an Index as it were to Gods great booke in folio.

3. Whereas the likenesse of God in other creatures (as the <sup>d</sup> Schoole speakes) is found only per modum vestigij, the likenesse of God is in man per modum Imaginis. The which (haply lest we should doubt of it) is repeated in one verse twice, thus God created the man in his Image, In the Image of God created he him. The Heauens are called in this hymne, the workes of his fingers, and other creatures the workes of his hands: but only Christ is properly his Image, and only the <sup>f</sup> resonable creature fashioned according to his Image.

So likewise though man in respect of his substance may be termed earth, yet hath he dominion over the things upon earth, all of them are put in subiection under his feet, and he may vse them as well for his delight as necessity: his Hound may first hunt the Bucke, and his Hawke kill the Bird for his <sup>e</sup> recreation, and then he may feed on both for his sustentation. He may put on <sup>h</sup> apparell not only for necessity, but also for comeliness, according to his qualitie: as he may sow his fields for prouision of ordinary bread, so may he plant Orchards of great delight, and eat the fruit of them, he may vse wine to glad his heart, and oyle to make him a cheerefull countenance, Psal. 104. 15.

Lastly, though man in respect of his mortality be called earth and ashes, yet his blessed Saniour shall at the last day raise his <sup>i</sup> vile body out of the dust, and make it like his glorious body: though in this world a little while lower than Angels, at the resurrection of the dead, he shall be <sup>k</sup> as the Angels of heaven: Almighty God is mindfull of him, and so mindfull as that he visited him, and that not only by his Prophets and Preachers as it were his Proxies, but in his owne person he became <sup>l</sup> flesh and dwelt among vs, he so visited man extremely sicke to death, as that he <sup>m</sup> redeemed him, and deliuering him out of the hands of all his enemies, he crowned him with honour and glory.

And here let vs obserue why the Church allotted this Hymne for this high and holy Feast, God our Governour by Christs <sup>n</sup> ascending vp an high and leading captiuitie captiue, set his glory about the heauens, for Christ is the character of his person and brightnesse of his glory, Hebr. 1. 3. Christ also doing extraordinarie workes of might and mercy, had his praise perfited by the mouth of babes and sucklings, Mat. 21. 16. and albeit in the dayes of his flesh, he <sup>o</sup> humbled himselfe, and <sup>p</sup> as hauing a mortall and passible body, was a little deale (at least at his <sup>q</sup> passion a little while) lower than Angels; yet God was alway mindfull of him, and visited him, and crowned him with honour and glory. For when he had triumphed ouer death, hell, and the graue, God gaue him <sup>t</sup> all power in heauen and earth, he made him Lord over the workes of his hands, and put all things in subiection under his feet, as Saint Paul expounds this Hymne, Heb. 2. 6. 7. 8. and 1. Cor. 15. 27. what is anagogically meant by sheepe and oxen, beasts of the field, fish in the sea, See S. Augustine, Euthym, D. Incognit, Bellarmin, Iacob, de Valen. Genebrard. in loc.

Adam in his integrity was made Lord over the beasts of the field, fowles of the aire, fish in the sea, by right of his creation; and the sonnes of Adam haue no true Title to the things of this world, but in right of their recreation. As Christ is <sup>v</sup> heire of all things, euen so they which are engrafted in him are before God owners of all things. He that hauing lost Gods Image <sup>w</sup> puts on the new man (which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness) hath in Christ, and for Christ all things in subiection under his feet, all sheepe and oxen, all beasts and birds, and whatsoeuer walketh throw the paths of the seas, euen all are his, and he Christs, and Christ Gods, as the blessed Apostle, sweetly, 1. Cor. 3. 22, 23.

PSALME 15.

Lord who shall dwell in thy Tabernacle, or who shall rest upon thy holy hill?

This Psalme is ἡ δὲ δόξα καὶ ἡ δόξα a Psalme of doctrine, wherein our Prophet sets downe the true character of a sound Christian or Catholique, seeking God in the Church on earth, and seeing God in the kingdome of heauen :

ἡ Τρεμελλίνα.

1. What is asked, } Who shall dwell in thy Tabernacle?
                               } Who shall rest upon thy holy hill?

Dauids 2 question in the first verse, wherein obserue } 2. Of whom it is asked, and that is not any man, but God himselfe, Lord who shall, &c.

2 Eubym. Fra. Taleman.

It is deliuered in forme of a Dialogue betweene the Prophet and the Lord and so consequently consisting of two parts:

Gods answer in the rest of the Psalme, shewing by what remarkable notes a liuely member of the Church is discerned in Generall, vers. 3. } I upright in thought.

                              } Just in deed.
                              } True in word.

Eschewing euill } In himselfe, as being no

- Deceiuer.*
- Slanderer.*
- Truce-breaker.*
- Vsurer.*
- Briber, or worker of other euill against his neighbour.*

More particular,

Hindering it so far as he can in other, entertaining no false report against his neighbour.

Doing good, being } Lowly in his owne eyes.
                               } Louing toward all other in Gods house, making much of them that feare the Lord.

<sup>a</sup> Or more briefly, the second verse contains all duties of the first table concerning pietie toward God, and the rest all duties of the second table touching charitie toward our neighbours.

Lord who shall] The disguising and counterfetting of <sup>b</sup>hypocrites in all ages, occasioned haply this quare: for as <sup>c</sup>S. Paul speaks, all are not Israel which are of Israel, a great many liuing in the Church are not of the Church, according to that of the Doctors vpon this place, <sup>d</sup>multi sunt corpore qui non sunt fide, <sup>e</sup>multi nomine qui non sunt nomine. Wherefore Dauid here perceiuing that sundry people were shuffled into Gods tabernacle like goats among the sheepe, and tares among the corne, being Iewes outwardly but not inwardly, deceiuing other often, and sometime themselves also with a bare profession of Religion and false opinion of true pietie; commeth vnto God (as to the searcher and trier of the hearts of men, acquainted with all secrets, and best vnderstanding & who are his owne) saying vnto him, O Lord, for so much as there is so much vnfoundnesse and hypocristie reigning among those that dwell a Melancthon. Strigelius. Taleman.

b Ca'uin. c Rom. 9. 6. d Hieron. e Turrecremat.

f Rom 2. 28.

g 2. Tim. 2. 19.

dwell in thy Tabernacle, professing thy word, and frequenting the places of thy worship: I beseech thee most humbly to declare to thy people some tokens and cognizances by which a true subject of thy kingdome may be discerned from the children of this<sup>h</sup> world.

Here then obserue that an externall profession of the faith, and outward communion with the Church of God is not sufficient vnto saluation, vnlesse we leade an vn-corrupt life correspondent to the same, doing the thing which is right, and speaking the truth in our heart. And therefore the silly Papist is exceedingly deceiued in relying so much vpon the Churches out-side, to wit, vpon the succession of Romane Bishops, vpon the multitudes of Romane Catholiques, vpon the power and pompe of the Romane Synagogue, crying as the Iewes in old time, <sup>k</sup> The Temple of the Lord, the Temple of the Lord, our Church is the Temple of the Lord. The carnall and carelesse Gospeller is deceiued also, placing all his religion in the formall obseruation of outward seruice, for a meere verball Christian is a reall Atheist, according to that of S. Paul, Tit. 1. 16. In word they professe that they know God, but in their workes they denie him, and so many who seeme to sojurne in Gods Tabernacle for a time, shall neuer rest vpon his holy hill: and this assertion is expressly confirmed by <sup>l</sup> Christ himselfe, Not every one (saith he) that saith vnto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdome of heauen, but he that doth the will of my Father which is in heauen. Many shall say vnto me in that day, Lord, Lord, haue we not prophesied in thy name, and cast out deuils in thy name, and done great wonders in thy name? and then will I professe vnto them, saying, I know you not, depart from me you workers of iniquitie. Consider this all ye which are Christians<sup>m</sup> in lip only, but not in life, making a<sup>n</sup> maske of Religion, or rather a very vizard with eyes, and mouth, and nose fairely painted and proportioned to all pretences and purposes. O thinke on this all yee that forget God, he that dwelleth on high, and beholds the things here below, suffers none to rest vpon the mountaine of his holinesse, but such as wake uprightly, doing that which is iust, and speaking that which is true.

Concerning the parts of this question, I finde that some<sup>o</sup> Diuines expound both members of the Church militant, and that<sup>p</sup> other interpret both of the Church triumphant: but I subscribe to<sup>q</sup> their iudgement who construe the first part of the militant, and the second of the triumphant: for the Prophet alludeth vnto the materiall Tabernacle called in holy Scripture, the Tabernacle of the<sup>r</sup> Congregation, and to the mount Moriah where the Temple was placed, 2. Chron. 3. 1. the one whereof as being a portable and mouable house, was a type of the Church militant vpon earth, and the other as being an immouable seat, was a figure of the Church triumphant in heauen. I say then (and yet not I, but Augustine, Chrysostome, Mollerus, and other learned Expositors, as well ancient as moderne) that by sojournning in the Tabernacle, is meant the short and transitorie pilgrimage of Christians vpon earth, as in a strange land: and by dwelling in the mountaine of God, is vnderstood their perpetuall and eternall rest in heauen, as in their owne Countrey. Of these two first I purpose to treat severally, then afterward ioyntly.

<sup>s</sup> Basil, and <sup>t</sup> Euthymius by tabernacle vnderstand our flesh, called by Paul, 2. Cor. 5. 1. the earthly house of our tabernacle, for our bodies are not only<sup>u</sup> tabernacles, but also<sup>x</sup> temples of God. as if our Prophet should haue said, Lord, who is he, which hauing sojourned as a stranger in this flesh of ours, shall in fine rest with thee in thine heauenly kingdome? This exposition is godly, teaching vs that those who shall enioy rest euerlasting vpon Gods holy mountaine, doe liue like pilgrims in his house of y clay, mortyfyng their<sup>z</sup> earthly members, and<sup>v</sup> using the world as if they vsed it not. <sup>b</sup> Arnobius doth apply this vnto Christ, he dwelt among vs in this earthly tabernacle, casting out of it, all such as vsed in it vnlawfull merchandize, conuerting that which our vile nature had made<sup>c</sup> a den of theeues, into an house of prayer: he purged it of all abuses, and fulfilled in it<sup>d</sup> all righteousnesse: he led an incorrupt life, <sup>e</sup> which of you (said he to his greatest enemies) can rebuke me of sinne? he did the thing that is right, many good works (as he told the Iewes) I haue shewed you, for which of these doe ye stone me? he spake: he trush from his heart, vsing no deceit in his

<sup>h</sup> Luke 16. 8.
<sup>i</sup> Caluin.

<sup>k</sup> Ierem. 7. 4.

<sup>l</sup> Mat. 7. 21. 22.

<sup>m</sup> Bradford letter to the towne of Walden.
<sup>n</sup> Relation of Religion, Sect.
43.

<sup>o</sup> Placidus.
Parmen.
Tileman.
<sup>p</sup> Steuchus.
Genebrard.
Bellarmin.
<sup>q</sup> Augustin.
Chrysost.
Euthym.
Mollerus.
Tremellius.
<sup>r</sup> Exod. 39. 32.

<sup>s</sup> In loc.
<sup>t</sup> In loc.
<sup>u</sup> 2. Pet. 1. 13.
14.
<sup>v</sup> 2. Cor. 6. 19.

<sup>w</sup> Job 4. 19.
<sup>x</sup> Coloss. 3. 5.
<sup>y</sup> 1. Cor. 7. 31.
<sup>z</sup> In loc.
<sup>a</sup> Mat. 21. 13.
<sup>b</sup> Marth. 3. 15.
<sup>c</sup> Ioh 8. 46.

tongue: for as the <sup>f</sup> Prophet and <sup>e</sup> Apostle too witness of him, he did no wickedness, neither was there guile found in his mouth: he put not out his money to biting usurse, but employed his talent to the best use, raising the dead, and curing the diseased without any fee, giving his Disciples power to performe the lik, with this caueat <sup>h</sup> freely ye haue receiued, freely giue. Wherefore God exalted him highly, saith <sup>i</sup> Paul, after he had sojourned in this earthly Tabernacle more than thirtie yeeres, a <sup>k</sup> cloud vpon this day, tooke him vp into Gods holy hill, euen the highest heauens, and there he reigneth and resteth at the right hand of his Father, vntill the time come that all things be restored, Acts 3, 21.

Thus our flesh is a Tabernacle because sitting, this day set vp, and haply to morrow pulled downe: and it is Gods Tabernacle, <sup>l</sup> because God himselfe built it, <sup>m</sup> let vs make man: and because God himselfe sometime dwelt in it, In the beginning was the Word, and the Word in the <sup>n</sup> fulnesse of time was made flesh, and dwelt among vs, and we behold the glory thereof, as the glory of the only begotten of the Father full of grace and truth, Ioh. 1. 14.

Other Interpreters (as I haue said) vnderstand by Tabernacle heauen, elsewhere so called and not vnsitly, seeing the Lord stretcht out the heauens as a curtaine, and spreads them out as a tent to dwell in, Psal. 104. 2. Esay 4. 22. but as <sup>o</sup> Augustine notes, howsoeuer the word Tabernacle be sometimes vsed figuratiuely for heauen; yet it more properly signifieth a military mansion or tent in warre. Secondly, the word peregrinabitur (as the same father obserues acutely) doth apparently crosse his exposition and sense, for heauen is not a transitory tent to sojourn in a little while, but as the Scripture speakes, P an euerlasting habitation, q a kingdome that cannot be shaken <sup>r</sup> an eternall rest, an inheritance which is immortal and neuer fadeth away, 1. Pet. 2. 4. Tabernacle then imports this part of the Church which is militant vpon earth, and holy mountaine that other part which is triumphant in heauen.

Now whereas the spirit termes the Church of God on earth a Tabernacle, we learne first that the life of a Christian (as <sup>s</sup> Iob speakes) is a warfare, and that he must as he vowed in holy Baptisme, fight vnder Christs banner against the <sup>t</sup> world, the flesh & the deuill. It is reported of <sup>u</sup> Ehud, that he slew King Eglon with a two edged dagger: euen so we must encounter such as <sup>v</sup> fight against our soule with a two edged weapon, holy faith, and heartie repentance. For seeing the deuill our aduerfarie goeth about as a roaring Lion, seeking whom he may deuoure, 1. Pet. 5. 8. seeing the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, Gal. 5. 17. seeing the world, partly by vaine desires thereof, and partly by lewd example, carrieth vs away to serue <sup>w</sup> Mammon, and to <sup>x</sup> minde earthly things: seeing we haue <sup>y</sup> fightings without and terrors within: it behoueth vs to be strong in the Lord, to put on his compleat <sup>z</sup> armour, and to stand vpon our guard, that during the battell we may quit our selues like men, and when the fight is ended, triumph as Paul, 2. Tim. 4. 7. I haue fought a good fight, I haue finished my course, from henceforth is laid vp for me the crowne of righteousnesse, as if he should haue said in the words of our Prophet, I haue bene troubled and tossed in Gods tabernacle, but I am now sure that I shall euer rest vpon his holy hill.

Secondly, in that the Church of Christ vpon earth is a tabernacle, we may note <sup>d</sup> that neither the Church it selfe, nor the members of it, haue any fixed or firme seat of habitation in this world: Arise, depart, for this is not your rest, Mica 2. 10. Here we haue no continued citie, but we seeke one to come, Heb. 13. 14. Gods Tabernacle being a moueable Temple, wandred vp and downe, sometimes in the desert, sometimes in Shilo, sometimes among the Philistims, sometimes in Kiriathiarim, and neuer found any settled place, till it was translated into the <sup>e</sup> mountaine of God: euen so the Church of God wandereth as a stragler and a stranger in the wilderness of this world, <sup>f</sup> being destitute, tormented and afflicted on euerie side, & persecuted from this citie to that, and neuer enjoying any constant habitation of sound and sure rest, vntill it be translated into Gods holy hill. The verbe Gur (as the <sup>g</sup> learned in Hebrew note) signifying to dwell as a stranger, or a sojourner, imports that a Citizen of heauen is first a Pilgrim on earth. So the Patriarch <sup>i</sup> Iacob professerh that the dayes of his pilgrimage (meaning his life) were few and euill. And <sup>k</sup> S. Peter termeth all

<sup>l</sup> Esay 53. 9.
<sup>m</sup> 1. Pet. 2. 22.

<sup>n</sup> Matth. 10. 8.
<sup>o</sup> Philip. 2. 9.
<sup>p</sup> Acts 1. 9.

<sup>q</sup> Euthym.
<sup>r</sup> Gen. 1. 26.
<sup>s</sup> Gal 4. 4.

<sup>t</sup> In loc.

<sup>u</sup> Luke 16. 9
<sup>v</sup> Heb. 12. 28.
<sup>w</sup> Apoc. 14. 13.

<sup>x</sup> Molerus.
<sup>y</sup> Iob. 7. 1.
<sup>z</sup> See Epist. 1.
Sund after Easter.
<sup>aa</sup> Iudg 3. 16.
<sup>ab</sup> 1. Pet. 2. 11.

<sup>ac</sup> Matth 6. 24.
<sup>ad</sup> Philip 3. 19.
<sup>ae</sup> 2. Cor. 7. 5.
<sup>af</sup> See Epist. 2. 1.
Sund. after Trinitie.

<sup>ag</sup> Chrysost.
<sup>ah</sup> Molerus.
<sup>ai</sup> Tileman.

<sup>aj</sup> 2. Chron. 5. 3.
<sup>ak</sup> Heb. 11. 37.
<sup>al</sup> Matth. 10. 33.
<sup>am</sup> Molerus.
<sup>an</sup> Tremell.
<sup>ao</sup> Bellar. Idem
<sup>ap</sup> Augustin.
<sup>aq</sup> Basil.
<sup>ar</sup> Euthym.
<sup>as</sup> Gen 47. 9.
<sup>at</sup> 1. Pet. 1. 17.

¶ Psal 39.14.

¶ Esay 40.22.
 ¶ Ardens in Epist. Dom. 3. post. Pasc.

¶ Molleus.

¶ 1. Tim. 3. 15.
 ¶ Exod. 25. 8.
 ¶ Leuit. 26. 11.

¶ Psal. 9. 11.
 ¶ Apoc. 2. 1.

¶ Gen 4. 16.
 ¶ Psal. 27. 4.
 See Psalm. 42.
 & 84.

¶ 1. Cor. 11. 10.

¶ Deut. 6. 15.
 Heb. 12. 29.

¶ D: Dawn name
 Lect vpon this Psalme,
 pag. 3.

¶ Wilcox.

¶ Chrysoſt.
 Molleus.

all the time of our life, the time of our pilgrimage. So <sup>1</sup> David, I am a stranger before thee, and a sojourner as all my fathers were. So the rest of the faithfull acknowledged that they were strangers and pilgrims on earth, Hebr. 11. 13. Man is often in holy Scripture called earth, as being taken from earth, and returning to dust againe, for flesh is turned to rottenesse, and rottenesse into wormes, and wormes into dust: in this only man and earth a little differ, earth is fixed and immoueable, but man (as <sup>m</sup> Esay termeth him) is a Grasshopper, earth walking vpon earth, a skipping creature, hauing here no settled abode: now pilgrims haue <sup>n</sup> foure remarkable qualities. 1. They chuse the best way to their home. 2. They goe forward euery day. 3. They be very sparing in their expences, often forbearing things necessarie. 4. They will not be detained in their iourney with any vaine delights or allurements. How theie may be well applied vnto sojourners in this life, See Epistle 3. Sunday after Easter.

3. In that the Church is a Tabernacle, we may see <sup>o</sup> that it is not a fort compassed about with any strong wals, armed with any humane forces, and yet such as keepe within her are defended from heat of Sunne, and hurt of stormes. Her strength is not here, but from aboue, for Christ her head is in all her troubles a present helpe, a refuge against the tempest, a shadow against the heat, Esay 25. 4.

The Church on earth is indeed a Tabernacle, but it is Gods Tabernacle, wherein he dwelleth as in his <sup>p</sup> house, Lord who shall abide in thy Tabernacle? for to this end the Lord commanded the Tabernacle to be made, that <sup>q</sup> he might dwell among them, and againe, whereas he promised by Moses, to set his tabernacle among them, the blessed Apostle construeth it of his dwelling among them, 2 Cor. 6. 16 You are (saith he) the Temple of the liuing God, as God hath said, I will dwell among them, and walke there. To the same purpose God is said elswhere to <sup>r</sup> dwell in Sion, and to walke in the <sup>r</sup> middst of the seuen golden candlestickes, that is in the midst of the seuen Churches, in the midst of his City, Psalme 46. 5. in the midst of his people, Esay 12. 6.

But albeit the Lord be present in his Church after a speciall manner euery where, yet more, yea most especially in the congregation of his people met together in his name, Mat. 18. 20. When two or three are gathered together in my Name, there (saith Christ) I am in the midst of them. The consideration of this one point may teach vs a twofold duty. 1. An hearty desire to frequent Gods Tabernacle diligently. 2. A reuerent behauiour in the congregation of the Saints, as in Gods presence. For the first, in old time such as were banished from the publique assemblies of the faithfull, held themselues excluded from the <sup>u</sup> face of God, and therefore <sup>x</sup> David being exiled, or otherwise hindered from comming vnto the Tabernacle, saith, One thing haue I desired of the Lord, that will I require, euen that I may dwell in the house of the Lord all the dayes of my life, to behold the beauty of the Lord, and to visite his Temple. For the second, if <sup>y</sup> S. Paul aduise th women to couer their heads, and to carry themselves in Gods house comely, because of the Angels; how much more should women and men also behaue themselves after an humble, deuout, reuerent manner in respect of God, who walketh in the mids of Israel <sup>z</sup> as a consuming fire.

Who shall rest vpon thy holy hill? ] As the former clause concerns the subiects of God in his kingdome of grace: so this latter appertaines to the Saints of God in his kingdome of glory: for (as <sup>a</sup> it is well obserued) the variety of phrase doth argue diuersity of matter; sojourning in Gods Tabernacle, being a great deale different from resting vpon his holy hill. Again, the conclusion in the last words of the Psalme, which vndoubtedly doth answer the true meaning of the question fully, belongs both to this life present, and to that which is to come, he that doth these things shall neuer be remoued, that <sup>b</sup> is, he shall neuer finally fall away from the grace of God in this world, nor be thrust out of his glorious presence in the world to come. Let vs then examine why heauen is called a hill, and why Gods holy hill, as also what is meant by the Saints dwelling or resting vpon this holy hill.

The kingdome of heauen is called a Mountaine, a non mouendo, <sup>c</sup> for that is a mansion, a kingdome that cannot be shaken, Heb. 12. 28. a settled seat like mount Sion that cannot be remoued, Psal. 125. 1. a safe place free from all hazard of death and danger.

Or a mountaine in respect of height and eminency, being eleuated so farre from earth, that if we would ascend vnto the holy mountaine but in thought, as once <sup>d</sup> Scipio did in his dreame, we should easily contemne this world as appearing from the highest heauen but as a mote in the Sun, and the inhabitants thereof as Grasshoppers, Esay 40. 22. but if withall it were possible to feele the most vspeakable ioyes of heauen, and from thence to cast downe our eyes vnto this valley of teares, and here to behold the vanitie of vanities, and nothing but vanities in vexation of spirit, as <sup>e</sup> Salomon speakes; it could not be told with the tongues of men and Angels, how feruently we should desire to rest vpon Gods holy hill: as <sup>f</sup> Rehoboam said, my little finger shall be bigger than my fathers loynes: Euen so the least Saint of God in the triumphant Church is a great deale greater than the greatest seruant of God in the militant Church, according to that of Christ in the <sup>h</sup> Gospell, (as some Diuines expound it) among those which are begotten of women arose there not a greater than John Baptist; notwithstanding he which is least in the kingdome of heauen, is greater then he.

Heauen is not a mountaine only, but also the holy hill of God, or the mountaine of his holinesse, Himselfe, as being most holy.

And that in respect of His Saints, as being more holy than other who dwell in the tents of vngodlinesse.

That is <sup>k</sup> an holy place where the Lord doth openly manifest his presence: but in the highest heauen he doth especially manifest himselfe, and reueale his glory, ergo heauen is the hill of his holinesse. If mount Thabor after the transfiguration of Christ, and presence of God there manifested, is for that cause called by <sup>l</sup> S. Peter the holy mountaine, how much more doth the heauen of heauens, (where Christ sitteth at the right hand of his Father in maiesty) deserue to be called the mountaine of Gods holinesse?

2. Heauen is an holy hill in respect of those which abide there, for <sup>m</sup> Except a man be borne of water and of the spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdome of God. <sup>n</sup> Without holinesse no man can see God, nothing which is vncleane shall haue possession in the holy City, Reuel. 21. 27. This hill as Diuine <sup>o</sup> Plato termed it, is Campus veritatis, wherein is no deceit, or conceit of doing euill. If any desire to rest vpon this high and holy mountaine, he must as it followeth in our text, lead an vcorrupt life, doing the thing that is right, and speaking the truth from his heart.

The word dwelling imports rest and eternity: rest, all men in this Tabernacle are borne to trauell and trouble, but when once they dwell vpon that holy mountaine, they rest from their labours, Apoc. 14. 13. And for that cause the kingdome of heauen is often termed by Paul in his excellent <sup>p</sup> Epistle to the Hebrews, the rest of God. And our Prophet in <sup>q</sup> this sense saith in the <sup>r</sup> 16 Psalme, ver. 7. Turne vnto thy rest O my soule, and the glorious Angels are said to conuey the soules of such as die in the Lord into the <sup>s</sup> bosome of Abraham, insinuating hereby, that they rest vpon Gods holy hill, as in the bosome and armes of a most indulgent Father. And this rest is a continuall Sabbath, as we confesse in our Creed an everlasting life, where God giueth all his an <sup>t</sup> eternall weight, and an <sup>u</sup> incorruptible crowne of glory, where saith our <sup>v</sup> Prophet, there are pleasures and fulnesse of ioy for euermore.

Here then obserue the great difference betweene the Church militant on earth, and the Church triumphant in heauen. This a tent of warre, that a mount of peace: this a valley of teares and trouble, that a kingdome of happinesse and glory: this our way, that our Countrey. In this we soiourne as Pilgrims, absent from God; in that, being remoued from this earthly Tabernacle we dwell with God. Here is the combat, there the crowne: here the vexation of spirit, there rest vnto our soules.

Hitherto concerning the two members of the question seuerally: now let vs in a word treat of them also ioyntly, for both parts are to be construed of the same party. He who shal one day become a dweller vpon the holy hill, is first a soiourner in Gods Tabernacle, and he which is a soiourner in Gods Tabernacle, shall also dwell vpon the holy hill. Touching the first, all men desire with <sup>w</sup> Balaam, to die the death of the righteous,

<sup>d</sup> Cic. in form. Scipion.

<sup>e</sup> Eccl. 1. 2. 14.
<sup>f</sup> 1. King. 12. 10.
<sup>g</sup> Bonauent.

<sup>h</sup> Matth. 11. 11.

<sup>k</sup> Psal. 84. 11.
<sup>l</sup> Exod. 3. 5.

<sup>m</sup> 2. Pet. 1. 18.

<sup>n</sup> Iohn 3. 5.
<sup>o</sup> Heb. 12. 14.

<sup>p</sup> Apud Steucham in loc.

<sup>q</sup> Cap. 4. vers.
1. 3. 5. 8. 9. 10. 11
<sup>r</sup> Passil, Eulhym.
Placidus in loc.
<sup>s</sup> Luke 16. 22.

<sup>t</sup> 2. Cor. 4. 17.
<sup>u</sup> 1. Pet. 5. 4.
<sup>v</sup> Psal. 16. 12.

<sup>w</sup> 2. Cor. 5. 6.

<sup>x</sup> Num. 23. 10.

righteous, but few doe care to lead the life of the righteous. All men would haue glorie, but few hunger and thirst after grace. All men, with the sonnes of Zebedens, would be glad to be preferred into Christs kingdome, but few men are content to drinke of his cup. All men expect rest vpon the holy hill of God, but alas few behaue them selues as pilgrimes in his tabernacle.

Now the Scripture telleth vs plainly, that we cannot enter into Gods kingdome, vnlesse we contend and<sup>a</sup> striue for entrance, the kingdome of heauen suffereth violence and the violent take it by force, Matth. 11. 12. it is called a<sup>b</sup> treasure hid in the field, but we cannot obtaine this treasure, vnlesse we sell all that we haue to buy that field, It is called his<sup>c</sup> day penny, but none shall haue this hire, but such as haue bene laborers in this vineyard. It is called his<sup>d</sup> great supper, but none shall eat of his meat, or sit at his table, which embrace the present world. It is called his<sup>e</sup> ioy, but none shall enter into that ioy, but such as haue well employed his talents committed to their charge. It is called his<sup>f</sup> price, but none shall attaine to it, but such as runne to the races end for it. It is called a<sup>g</sup> Crowne, but none shall enioy that crowne, but such as fight and continue faithfull vnto the death, Apoc. 2. 10. <sup>h</sup>It is a true saying, if we be dead with Christ, we shall also liue with him. If we suffer, we shall also raigne with him: otherwise no combat, no crowne; no striuing, no masterie; no wandering in Gods Tabernacle, no resting vpon his holy hill.

Concerning the second point, the way to heauen is by the gates of the Church, he<sup>i</sup> therefore which is a sound member of the Church militant, shall in due time become a member of the Church triumphant. I know there be many hypocrites in the world, who for a time croud into Gods Tabernacle, and dwell<sup>i</sup> Inmates among the godly: but because they doe not facere, but ingere Iustitiam, as Melancthon vpon the place, seruing Gods truth only to serue their owne turne, their<sup>k</sup> end is damnation, and their glorie is their shame: for as vpright men of an vncorrupt life vse the world, that they may the better enioy God: euen so hypocrites on the contrarie vse God that they may more freely enioy the world: and so consequently no wonder if such idle straglers in Gods Tabernacle (which harden their hearts, and hearken not to his voice) be deprived of entring into his rest. Here then a distinction is necessarie, some men are shuffing Inmates, other during their liues settled tenants in Gods house, <sup>l</sup>wandering stars in Gods firmament, wauering hypocrites in Gods Tabernacle, carried about with<sup>m</sup> euery winde of doctrine, quench the Spirit and turne the grace of God into wantonnesse, and so the blacknesse of darknesse for euer is reserued vnto them, as S. Iude speaks in his Epistle, vers. 13. but such as are faithfull and obedient subiects in the kingdome of grace to the end, shall in the end be made Saints and Inheritors in the kingdome of glorie.

The meditation of this doctrine may teach, 1. To contemne the momentarie vanities of this present world, accounting it more than extreme madnesse, if for the temporarie<sup>n</sup> pleasures of sinne we should lose the<sup>o</sup> fulnesse of ioy that endures for euermore. 2. To<sup>p</sup> runne with inuincible patience the race that is set before vs, as being assured that the light<sup>q</sup> afflictions of this life are not worthie the eternall weight of glorie that shall be reuealed.

The preaching and pressing of this one point is so necessarie, that Christ our heauenly Doctor began his first sermons (as<sup>r</sup> S. Matthew reports) with amend your liues, for the kingdome of heauen is at hand. And in the progresse of his teaching, most of his<sup>s</sup> Parables were composed of the kingdome of heauen. And in those fortie dayes after his resurrection, he spake to his Disciples of those things which appertaine to the kingdome of God, as S. Luke recordeth, Acts 1. 3. by which it doth appeare, that this argument was the beginning, middle, and end of all his preaching so long as he sojourned in Gods Tabernacle. Now the happinesse of heauen is set forth in the holy Scripture by foure names especially.

1. Paradise, so<sup>u</sup> Paul said he was taken up into Paradise, so<sup>x</sup> Christ on the crosse to the penitent theefe, to day thou shalt be with me in Paradise. So S. Iohn, Apoc. 2. 7. the tree of life is in the midst of the Paradise of God.

2, House, Iohn 14. 2. In my Fathers house are many mansions.

3. Citie,

<sup>a</sup> Mark. 10. 37.

<sup>b</sup> Luke 13. 24.

<sup>c</sup> Matth. 13. 44.

<sup>d</sup> Matth. 20. 2.

<sup>e</sup> Luk. 14. 16.

<sup>f</sup> Matth. 25. 21.

<sup>g</sup> 1. Cor. 9. 24.

<sup>h</sup> 2. Tim. 4. 8.

<sup>i</sup> 2. Tim. 2. 11.

<sup>j</sup> Caluini
Mollerus:

<sup>k</sup> Philip. 3. 19.

<sup>l</sup> Iude vers. 13.

<sup>m</sup> Ephes. 4. 13.

<sup>n</sup> Heb. 11. 24.

<sup>o</sup> Psal. 16. 12.

<sup>p</sup> Heb. 12. 1.

<sup>q</sup> Rom. 8. 18.

<sup>r</sup> 2. Cor. 4. 17.

<sup>s</sup> Matth. 4. 17.

<sup>t</sup> Mat. 13. vers.

18, 20, 21, 22,

25.

<sup>u</sup> 2. Cor. 12. 4.

<sup>x</sup> Luke 23. 43.

3. Citie, Heb. 12. 22. Ye are come to the Citie of the living God, the celestial Hierusalem.

4. Kingdome, Mat. 5. 3. Blessed are the poore in Spirit, for theirs is the kingdome of heauen.

It is called a Paradise, as abounding with vnspcakable delights, an Eden or Garden of pleasure: but least haply we should imagine that a Garden is not of sufficient capacity, the Scripture doth adde vnto it an house; where beside the Garden spot, there be chambers, and halls, and parlors, and closets, and diuers other roomes. And yet for as much as an house though exceeding spacious, is not able to receiue multitudes of inhabitants, the Scripture further addes the name of a Citie, containing many palaces and places. And because <sup>v</sup> S. Iohn affirms that the number of such as rest vpon Gods holy hill is a great multitude which no man is able to number; it pleased the spirit to call heauen a kingdome, consisting of many Cities. The house standeth in the Garden, and the Garden in the Citie, and the Citie in the kingdome, the Garden is vsually greater than the house, the Citie greater than the Garden, and the kingdome greater than the Citie: wherefore heauen is commonly termed a kingdome, <sup>2</sup> not only because the government thereof is truly Monarchicall, or in respect of the dominions amplitude, and the subiects multitude: but for that euery Citizen of the celestial Hierusalem is an absolute King and a Prince, hauing in token hereof a triumphant Palme in his hand, Apoc. 7. 9. and a golden Crowne on his head, Apoc. 4. 4. So Paul, <sup>2</sup> Tim. 2. 11. If we suffer with him, we shall reigne with him. So <sup>2</sup> S. Iohn, I Iohn your companion in tribulation and in the kingdome. So <sup>b</sup> S. James, hath not God chosen the poore of this world that they should be rich in faith, and heires of the kingdome. We haue right and title to this immortall inheritance by the words of our heauenly Father in his last will and testament, <sup>c</sup> Blessed are the poore in spirit, for theirs is the kingdome of heauen, there is our Saviours faire donation or grant, <sup>d</sup> Come yee blessed of my Father, inherit yee the kingdome prepared for you: There is possession after his grant. <sup>e</sup> To him that ouer commeth will I grant to sit with me in my Throne, there is session after possession. As the blessed <sup>f</sup> Apostle calleth euery Christian in the Church militant enduring the crosse patiently more than a conqueror: euen so we may call euery Saint in the Church triumphant more than an Emperor: For the good things in earthly kingdomes are temporall and momentarie, but the happinesse of heauen is eternal, and neuer fading away. Moreouer Kings and Emperors enjoy power intermingled with infirmity, honour intermingled with infamy, wealth intermingled with want, pleasures intermingled with anguish and vexation of spirit. A King is of so great authority, that if he bid his <sup>g</sup> subiects kill, they kill, if he say spare, they spare: If he bid smite, they smite: If he bid them make desolate, they make desolate: they breake downe mountaines, and walls, and towers. <sup>h</sup> He saith vnto one goe, and he goeth, and vnto another, come, and he commeth; and vnto a third, doe this, and he doth it. Haue not I power to crucifie thee (said Pilate vnto Christ) and power to loose thee, Iohn 19. 10. but this power is intermingled with infirmity, and this honour with ignominy. For many times in rebellion (I speake de facto, not de iure) it comes to passe that the people <sup>i</sup> bind their Kings in Chaines, <sup>k</sup> breaking their bonds asunder, and casting away the cords of imperiall authority from them. In a mutinie the Souldiers often command their commanders, and make captiue their Captaines. In a common vpror, the greatest Emperors haue bene disgraced, and degraded, yea deprived of life by their Vassals. Examples hereof, Iulius Cesar, Nero, Galba, Vitellius, Domitian, Heliogabalus, and infinite moe, both Heathen and Christian, and many so well of the best Emperors as the worst.

So likewise Kings vpon earth haue riches in such abundance, that they count their yeerely reuenues, not as yeomen by the scores, or as Gentlemen by the hundreds, or as Lords by the thousands, but by the millions. Yet their traines are so long, that their wings are short, the priuate Cofers of their followers are so full, that their common Exchekers are many times empty. Now that man is not so poore that hath a little, as he that desires much, and wants a great deale. Besides it is an argument of pouerty that the most high and mighty Princes haue part of v Apocal 7.9.

<sup>2</sup> Vide Bellar. de felicit. Etern. lib. 1. cap. 1. 2. 3. 5.<sup>a</sup> Apoc. 1. 9.<sup>b</sup> James 2. 5.<sup>c</sup> Matth 5. 3.<sup>d</sup> Matth. 25. 34<sup>e</sup> Apoc. 3. 21.<sup>f</sup> Rom. 8. 37.<sup>g</sup> 1 Esdras 4. 7.<sup>h</sup> Matth. 2. 9.<sup>i</sup> Psal. 149. 8.<sup>k</sup> Psalms. 3.

<sup>1</sup> Rom. 13. 5.

their maintenance from the meanest of the people. This I confesse to be their due by the lawes of nature, and rules of grace: for that is to be supported by the common purse which concernes the common good. Be subiect (saith <sup>1</sup> Paul) not because of wrath only, but also for conscience sake: for this cause ye pay tribute to higher powers, as being Gods Ministers, attending alwayes upon this verie thing. Render therefore to all their due, tribute to whom tribute is due, custome to whom custome, honour to whom honour, &c. and yet this evidently shewes that magnificent Emperours haue their wants in the midst of all their wealth.

<sup>m</sup> Chrysaſt. hom. 66. ad populum Antioch.

<sup>n</sup> Xpbilin in vita Augusti è Dignis lib. 55.

So the pleasures of Princes are mingled with afflictions, as well inward as outward, sicknesse of bodie, vexation of spirit, torment of conscience. <sup>m</sup> Non ita corona caput circumdat sicut animam sollicitudo, their crowne fits not closer to their heads than care to their hearts. <sup>n</sup> Augustus Caesar told his wife Liuius, that he feared both solitude and multitude, Metuendum est esse sine custodia, sed multo magis custodes metuendi: inimici certè molesti sunt, sed amici multo magis. It is a fearefull thing for a Prince to be without his guard, and yet a guard is often a great deale more fearefull, enemies are troublesome if they get opportunitie, yet friends are more troublesome with their importunitie.

<sup>o</sup> Paulinus apud August. epist. 36.

<sup>o</sup> Blandus nomen bonos, mala seruitus, exitus ager, Quem nunc velle iuuat, mox voluisse piget.

<sup>p</sup> 1 Cor. 15. 28.
<sup>q</sup> Wild. 5. 3. 16.

But such as rest vpon Gods holy hill, enioy good things which are purely good, honor without ignominie, riches without any want, and pleasure without any woe: for albeit the wicked repute them in this earthly tabernacle the Pvery scumme of the world, yet at the last day, seeing them ascend the holy mountaine, they shall <sup>q</sup> change their miudes and say, We fooles had them in derision, esteeming their life madnesse, and their end without honour: but now they receiue a glorious kingdome, and a beautifull crowne at the Lords hand. Abundance without need, for how can they want any thing when as God is vnto them all things, euen <sup>r</sup> all in all. Pleasure without any crosse, for God shall wipe <sup>r</sup> all teares from their eyes, no euill shall happen vnto them, or plague come nigh their dwelling, Psalm. 91. 10. When <sup>s</sup> Anne Bolen that vertuous and blessed Ladie had received a message from her Soueraigne Lord King Henrie the 8. that she must according to iudgement giuen, instantly prepare her selfe for death: answered mildly, that she gaue him humble thanks for all his gracious fauours bestowed vpon her, as for making her of a meane woman a Marquesse, and of a Marquesse his Queene, but especially (seeing he could not on earth aduance her vnto any greater dignitie) that he would now send her to rest and reigne vpon Gods high and holy throne.

<sup>r</sup> 1 Cor. 4. 13.
<sup>t</sup> Apoc. 2. 14.

<sup>t</sup> Camden. ap. parat. annal. p. 6.

Thus much as concerning the parts of this high and weighty question. It followeth in the next place that I speake of the party to whom it is propounded, Lord who shall dwell? <sup>a</sup> he that will vndertake to teach other should haue first a good tutor himselfe, wherefore the Prophet conlts here not with <sup>x</sup> flesh and bloud, but with Almighty God the Collector of his Church, and the giuer of all holinesse and happinesse. Now two reasons may be rendred why Dauid in this question appealeth vnto the Lord:

<sup>u</sup> Placidus.
<sup>v</sup> Galat. 1. 16.

1. That he may not be <sup>y</sup> deceiued himselfe.
2. That his doctrine may be <sup>z</sup> receiued of other.

<sup>y</sup> Tilman.
<sup>z</sup> Zellerus.
Tremel.

The iudgement of men whether they deliuer their opinion concerning themselves or other is very deceitfull and vncertaine. Touching themselves, how many hypocrites among the Papists especially boast of the name of the Church, and in comparison of themselves hold all other heretickes or schismatickes: when as in very deed they be limbes of Antichrist, and nothing lesse than the true members of the Catholique Church of Christ. Their Priests assume so much authority, that as <sup>a</sup> S. Hierome speaks in the like case, seu dextra doceant, seu sinistra, nolunt discipulos ratione discutere, sed se precessores sequi. The people likewise being blindfolded are content to beleue as the Church beleueeth, albeit they know not what the Church beleueeth: the faith of Rome was in the daies of the Primitiue Church

<sup>a</sup> Com in Esaie cap. 3 c. 10. 5. fol. 128.

Church exceedingly renowned<sup>b</sup> thorowout the whole world: but new Rome is so farre vnlike old Rome, that we may well exclaime with<sup>c</sup> Ouid.

Hec quantum hac Niobe, Niobe distabat ab illa.

<sup>d</sup> Now is the faithfull Citie become an harlot, yea the<sup>e</sup> mother of whoredomes and abominations vpon earth, an habitation of<sup>f</sup> Devils, an hold of foule spirits, a cage of euerie vncleane and hatefull bird. It was full of iudgement and iustice lodged therein, but now they be murtherers, her Princes rebellious and companions of theeuers, her siluer is become drosse, and her wine mixt with water.

Haply some will obiect, albeit hypocrites often deceiue themselves as well as other, yet the godly dwelling in Gods Tabernacle, know that they be the sonnes of the most high, and that they shall one day rest vpon his holy hill, according to that of<sup>g</sup> Paul, Examine your selues whether you are in the faith or no, know ye not your owne selues, how that Iesus Christ is in you, except ye be reprobates? Answer is made, that the spirit of man is not able to make this true certificate without the spirit of God, as the<sup>h</sup> same Apostle teacheth elsewhere, the Spirit certifieth, or witnesseth with our spirit, that we are the sonnes of God.

The heart of man is alwayes<sup>i</sup> euill, and often<sup>k</sup> deceitfull, and therefore boast not of thy good conscience without the witnesse of the Spirit: for Paul before his conuersion had vnfaigned zeale of a false religion, Gal. 1. 14. and the Laodiceans had a counterfet zeale of a true religion, Apoc. 3. 15. if thou be the sonne of God, thou art led by the Spirit of God: if led by the Spirit, then thou liuest after the Spirit: if thou liuest after the Spirit, then thou bringest forth the<sup>l</sup> fruits of the Spirit, Loue, Ioy, Peace, Long-suffering, &c. for the Spirit is holy, the Spirit of sanctitie, first he makes thee, then assures thee to be the sonne of God. If we lead an uncorrupt life, doing that which is right, and speaking that which is true from our heart, the Spirit certifieth our spirit, that we now soiourne in Gods Tabernacle, and that we shall in fine rest vpon his holy mountaine. For by these characters of a sound Christian, our<sup>m</sup> calling and election is made sure: but on the contrarie, such as are malicious, hauing a tongue ready to report, and an eare open to receiue slanders against a neighbour: such as are couetous, giving out their monies to vsurie, and taking rewards against the innocent: such as make no conscience to lie, to breake oath and word, swearing to their brethren, and yet disappointing them: albeit they dreame of the Spirit, yet (while they liue thus after the flesh) he neuer lodged within their heart. The fond opinion of their iustification and election ariseth only from their owne conceit, and Satans deceit. See Epist. Sund. 8. after Trinitie.

The wicked then are deceiued, in thinking that they shall one day rest vpon Gods holy hill, and the godly cannot be sure but by the witnesse of Gods owne Spirit, so that in this question we must euer haue recourse to God, and say with our Prophet, Lord, who shall rest, &c. As the iudgement of men is deceiuable touching themselves: so most erroneous concerning other. For wicked men out of their malice censure corruptly, and godly men out of their charitie iudge vncertainly: the wicked hold the true members of the Church to be the scumme of the world, and off-scouring of all things, <sup>n</sup> excommunicating them, and persecuting them from citie to citie, thinking that they doe God acceptable seruice when as they martyr them. In a word, they count their life madnesse, and their end without honour, Wisd. 5. 4. <sup>o</sup> hating them euen with a perfect hatred, as being in the world, not of the world; pilgrims in this earthly tabernacle, rather than inhabitants or settled dwellers, accola non habitatores terra (quoth P Ambrose.) Father Abraham at Gods appointment forgat his owne kindred, and departed out of his own countrey to the promised land, Gen. 12. 4. so the sonnes of Abraham, I meane the faithfull, Galat. 3. 7. albeit they soiourne vpon earth, haue their conuersation in heauen, Philip. 3. 20. the Church is Christs daughter and darling, <sup>r</sup> loue and <sup>s</sup> doue, standing at his right hand in a vesture of godd wrought about with diuers colours. Now that the King her husband may haue pleasure in her beautie, she forsaketh her owne people, and fathers house, Psalm. 45. 11. cleauing only to Christ, as being one with him, euen flesh of his flesh, and bone of his bone, Ephes. 5. 30. and therefore no wonder if

<sup>b</sup> Rom. 1. 8.

<sup>c</sup> Meiam. lib. 6.

<sup>d</sup> Esay 1. 21.

<sup>e</sup> Apoc 17 5.

<sup>f</sup> Apoc. 18. 2.

<sup>g</sup> 2 Cor. 13. 5.

<sup>h</sup> Rom. 8. 16.

<sup>i</sup> Gen 6. 5.

<sup>k</sup> Ecclef. 1. 35.

<sup>l</sup> Gal. 5. 22.

<sup>m</sup> 2 Pct. 1. 10.

<sup>a</sup> Iohi 16 2.

<sup>o</sup> Ioh. 17. 14.

<sup>p</sup> De Abraham lib. 2 cap. 7.

<sup>q</sup> Psal 45. 14.

<sup>r</sup> Cant. 4 1.

<sup>s</sup> Cant. 6. 8.

Cain murder Abel, if Esau persecute Jacob, if the seed of the serpent maligne the seed of the woman, if the children of the deuill hate the sonnes of God, as being Antipodes one to the other, opposite both in condition and countrey. For what concord hath Christ with Belial, and what communion hath light with darknesse, and what fellowship hath righteousnesse with unrighteousnesse, and what agreement betweene the temple of God, and the tents of ungodlinesse. As wicked men out of hatred censure good men corruptly, so good men out of charitie sentence wicked men erroneously: for the godly iudge euery baptized infant to be regenerate (as our common Catechisme teacheth vs) a member of Christ, a childe of God, and an inheritor of the kingdome of heauen. In the iudgement of charitie, they hold euery professed member of the visible Church, a member of the Church inuisible, elected, called, justified, sanctified. In generall, they know that many be called, but few chosen, and that many which are professors among vs, are not of vs; and yet in particular they doe not, yea, they dare not iudge, much lesse condemne this or that partie before the time. The false hypocrite in doing that which is right, and in speaking that which is true, may seeme iust in our eyes, and yet be most abominable before God: for he may speake the truth, and yet not from his heart; and he may do that which is right, and yet not for righteousnesse sake; being as the Poet pithily, facto pius & sceleratus eodem. We behold the man, but not his minde; his worke, not his will; his fact, not his faith; his action, not his end. So that the iudgement of charitie belongs properly to men, but the iudgement of certaintie to God only, to whom all hearts are open and no secrets hid. See Gospell 4. Sunday after Trinitie. Wherefore beloued seeing we are to stand to the iudgement of God, and not of men; let vs vncessantly labour to approue our selues, not so much vnto men, as to the Lord, who trieth our hearts, 1 Thess. 4. 4.

Secondly, the Prophet in this question appealeth vnto Gods oracle, that his answer might be received without exception for God is not as man that he should lie, neither as the sonne of man that he should repent: he best knoweth his own, writing their names in his book from the beginning, and separating the sheepe from the goats in the worlds end. From hence we may learne that the best answers in questions of religion, are from Gods holy word, which is a lanthorne to our feet, and a guide to our paths, a perfect law, profitable to teach, improve, correct, instruct, that the man of God may be furnished absolutely vnto all good workes. The Prophets vnder the Law stood vpon this prooffe principally, Thus saith the Lord: and Christ in the Gospell, It is written; Haue yee not read? Yee haue heard. And the Fathers in old time, i Audi, non dicit, Donatus, aut Rogatus, aut Vincentius, aut Hilarius, aut Augustinus, sed dicit Dominus. So the most religious Emperour Constantine admonished the most reuerend fathers of the first Nicene Councell, to consult in all their questions only with those heavenly inspired Scriptures, as instructing vs fully what to beleue in diuine things. So S. Hilarie pronounceth him an Antichrist and Anathema, who will not haue his faith to be tried and examined by the Scriptures only. So Chrysostome, the sacred hooke is a most exact ballance, square, rule of diuine Lawes. So some learned men among the Papists, and by name Gerson and Picus Mirandula, confesse that an Idiot, a woman, a childe, are better to be beleued alledging the Scripture, than a whole Councell and the Pope himseife determining without Scripture. So should euery good Christian appeale from vnwritten traditions vnto the written truth, in all controuersies of religion and cases of conscience hauing recourse to the Law, to the Testimonie, saying with our Prophet, I will hearken what the Lord will say concerning me, Lord who shall sojourne? Lord who shall dwell?

He that leadeth an incorrupt life ] Here two questions are moued. 1. Why David describes a sound member of the Church, and inheritor of heauen, by works rather than by faith, seeing the kingdome of heauen is promised vnto faith, and the profession thereof also maketh one a member of the visible Church. 2. Why among all the fruits of faith almost innumerable, he makes choyce of those duties especially which concerne our neighbours.

2 Cor. 6. 15.

Psal. 84. 11.

Matth. 23. 14

1 Iohn 2. 19.

Luke 6. 37.

Matth. 7. 1.

1 Cor. 4. 5.

Ouid. Metam.
lib. 3.

Num. 23. 19.

2 Tim. 2. 19.

Excd. 32. 32.

Matth. 25. 32

Psal. 19. 7.

2 Tim. 3. 16.

August. ep. 48

Theodores.

hist. lib. 1. cap. 7.

Lib. ad Cor-
stanti. August.
quem ipse Con-stantio tradidit circa medium.

Hem. 13. in

2 Corinth.

See D. Mor-

sons appeale,

lib 2 cap. 25.

sect 11.

Apud Mor-

naeus, prefat.

lib de missa.

P Esay 8. 20.

Psal. 85. 8.

To the first answer may be, that in this and in all other places of holy Scripture, where good workes are commanded or commended in any, <sup>1</sup>faith is euer presupposed, according to that Apostolicall axiome, <sup>2</sup>whatsoever is not of faith is sinne, without me (faith our blessed Saviour) ye can doe nothing, Ioh. 15.5. and without faith in him it is impossible to please God, Heb. 11.6. fides est operum fomes, as <sup>3</sup>Paulinus wittily, Faith (as <sup>4</sup>our Church speakes) is the nest of good workes, albeit our birds be neuer so faire, though haply we doe that which is right, and speake that which is true; yet all these will be lost, except it be brought forth in a true beleefe. <sup>5</sup>Aristides was so iust in his gouernment, that he would not tread awry for any respect to friend or despite to foe. <sup>6</sup>Pomponius is said to be so true, that he neuer made lie himselfe, nor suffered alie in other. <sup>7</sup>Curtius at Rome, Menaceus at Thebes, Codrus at Athens, exposed themselves vnto voluntarie death, for the good of their neighbours and Countrey: yet <sup>8</sup>because they wanted the rest of true faith in the worlds Saviour, where to lay their young, we cannot (if we speake with our Prophet here from Gods Oracle) say that they shall euer rest vpon his holy hill.

<sup>9</sup>Another answer may be, that faith is an inward and hidden grace, and many deceiue themselves and other with a fained profession thereof, and therefore the holy Spirit will haue euerie mans faith to be tried and knowne by their fruits, and <sup>10</sup>howsoever eternal life be promised to faith, and eternal damnation be threatned against infidelitie; yet the <sup>11</sup>sentence of saluation and condemnation shall be pronounced according to works, as the clearest euidence of both. It is truly said out of Bernard, that although our good workes are not causa regnandi yet they be via regni, the causeway wherein, albeit not the cause wherefore we must ascend Gods holy hill.

To the second demand, why the duties immediatly belonging to God, are not mentioned here, but only such as concerne our brother: <sup>12</sup>Answer is made, that this question is propounded of such as liuing in the visible Church openly professe the faith, and would seeme to be deuout, bearing the word of God, and calling vpon his name: for of such as are prophane Atheists, and doe not so much as make a semblance of holinesse, there is no question to be made, for without all doubt there can be no resting place for such in the kingdome of heaven. Now that we may discern aright which of those that professe religion are sound, and which vnfound; the marks are not to be taken from an outward hearing of the word, or receiuing of the Sacraments, and much lesse from a formall obseruation of humane traditions in Gods tabernacle (for all these things hypocrites vsually performe) but from the duties of righteounesse giuing euery man his due, because the touch-stone of pietie toward God is charitie toward our brother. Herein (faith <sup>13</sup>S. Iohn) are the children of God knowne, and the children of the deuil, whosoever doth not righteousnesse is not of God, neither he that loueth not his brother. Faith is operative working by loue, Gal. 5.6 without which it is dead, Iam. 2.26. the true loue of God manifesteth it selfe in the loue of our neighbour, <sup>14</sup>for if a man shall say, that he loueth God, and hateth his brother, he is a lier. Hereby (faith <sup>15</sup>our Saviour) shall all men know you to be my disciples, if you loue one another. If you loue, for all the commandements of the Law concerning our neighbours, are summarily <sup>16</sup>comprehended in this one saying, Loue thy neighbour as thy selfe. He that loueth his neighbour will euer doe him right, in thought, speaking the truth from his heart; in word, neither deceiuing with his tongue, nor disappointing any with his oath: in deed, performing good offices of pitie, without either vsurie or bribe. And so the like questions in other places of holy Scripture receiue the like answers, as Psal. 24.3,4. and Esay 33.14,15.

But in my iudgement both obiections are best answered by iudicious <sup>17</sup>Melan. Ethon, affirming that the second verse containes all duties of the first table, concerning pietie toward God, and the rest all duties of the second table, concerning pitie toward our neighbours, and so consequently that the Spirit here describes a sound Christian by faith and good workes. By faith, in saying, he walketh vprightly, and speakes the truth in his heart. By good workes, in that hee flandereth not with his tongue, nor doth euill to his neighbour, &c. as if he should haue said in brieft, that man is a lively member of the Church, and neuer falleth away, who calleth vpon

<sup>1</sup> Melanct. Apolog. confess. August. in de dilect. & imple. legis. idem. Caluin. in sit. lib. 3. cap. 17. <sup>2</sup> Rom 14.23. <sup>3</sup> Epist. lib 3. <sup>4</sup> Epist 4. <sup>5</sup> Hom. of good works, part. 1. <sup>6</sup> Plutarck. in vita Arist. <sup>7</sup> Luther in Gal. 2. 16. <sup>8</sup> Lactan. in sit. lib. 3. cap. 12. <sup>9</sup> August. in Psal. 83. <sup>10</sup> Caluin in loc. <sup>11</sup> Dr. Dow name in loc. <sup>12</sup> Matth. 25.34 Rom 2.6. Reuel. 27.12.

<sup>13</sup> Caluin, D. Dow name.

<sup>14</sup> 1 Epist 3.10.

<sup>15</sup> 1. Ioh 4.20. <sup>16</sup> Iob 13.35.

<sup>17</sup> Rom. 13.9.

<sup>18</sup> In loc. id. m annotan. Molle-ru: Strigellius, Tileman.

God in true faith, and manifesteth evidently this faith in workes of charitie toward his brother. This exposition is agreeable to the words here, & to the tenour of the Scriptures elsewhere. For he that truly beleeueth in God, according to his reuealed will and word, walketh uprightly before him, as our Prophet in another place, Blessed are they that are upright in the way, and walke in the Law of the Lord: that is, not defiled with abominations of Idols, and false opinions of the true God, but in their walking obserue the commandments of the Lord, the chiefe whereof is to know God and his Sonne Iesus Christ. This, as Paul speaks, is to make a streight steps, ἵπποκρίσει to walke with a right foot in the wayes of God, neither couertly treading awry with Peter, Galat. 2. nor openly halting with the Israelites, 1. King. 18.

So to speake the truth in the heart, is to confesse with the mouth, and to beleue in the heart: and to doe the thing which is right vnto God, is to reiect all doctrines of deuils, and all voluntarie religions of men, and to serue him according to the pre-script of his holy faith, and not after the conceits of our owne vaine fancie.

Thus a true Christian is described often elsewhere, to wit, one that is iust and feares God, outwardly to the world iust, inwardly to himselfe godly. For his workes, iust in his dealing with men: for his faith, deuout in seruing of God. Or in plainer termes, a good member of the Church, is one that holds the true faith, and keepes a good conscience. To these two heads all the marks mentioned in this Psalme may be referred: for walking uprightly before God, and speaking the truth in the heart, are the workes of true faith: and abstaining from all euill in generall, and in more particular from deceit, slander, breach of oath, vsurie, bribes, are the fruits of a good conscience. So likewise when our blessed Sauour told his followers, that they might know false prophets by their fruits, his meaning was vndoubtedly that they might discern them as well by the fruits of their learning, as by the fruits of their life: by their doctrines, as preaching fables, 1. Tim. 4. 4. teaching things which they ought not, for filthy lucre's sake; Tit. 1. 11. by their doings, as being louers of their owne selues, conetous, boasters, proud, cursed speakers, disobedient to parents, vnthankesfull, unholy, without naturall affection, truce-breakers, false accusers, intemperate, fierce, despisers of them which are good, traitors, headie, high-minded, louers of pleasure more than louers of God, hauing a shew of godlinesse, but haue denied the power thereof in their lewd life,

The descriptions of Paul answer the characters of David in euerie point: an hypocrite faith, Paul, turneth his itching eares from the truth, and is giuen ouer vnto fables: but a Christian, faith David, walketh uprightly, speaking the truth in his heart: an hypocrite, faith Paul, is proud, a boaster, headie high-minded: and a loue of himselfe: but a true Christian, faith David, sets not by himselfe, but is lowly in his owne eyes: an hypocrite, faith Paul, is conetous: but a true Christian, faith David, giues not his money vpon vsurie, nor takes a reward against the innocent: an hypocrite, faith Paul, is a Truce-breaker; but a true Christian faith David, is master of his oath and word, he sweareth vnto his neighbour, and disappointeth him not, although it be to his owne hindrance: an hypocrite, faith Paul, is a cursed speaker, a false accuser, intemperate, fierce; but a true Christian, faith David, will neither vent a slander himselfe, nor entertaine a reproach from another against his neighbour: an hypocrite, faith Paul, is a despiser of those which are good; but a true Christian, faith David, maketh much of them that feare the Lord: an hypocrite, faith Paul, is a traitor, vnthankesfull, unholy, louing pleasure more than God; but a true Christian, faith David, doth the thing which is right, giuing euerie one his due, God, his neighbour, and himselfe: so farre neglecting pleasure, that he liues soberly toward himselfe; so farre abhorring vngodlinesse, that he liues religiously toward God; so farre abstaining from vnthankesfulness and trecherie, that he liues righteously toward his neighbour. To conclude, an hypocrite, faith Paul, hath a shew of godlinesse without the vertue; but a true Christian, faith David, doth all these things, and neuer falleth away.

In this Catalogue the speciall vertues answer the generall as branches of the same, for he which is upright, is not partiall, but behaueth himselfe toward men, as they behaue themselues towards God, making much of those that feare the Lord, and despising

1. Esai. 119. 1.

1. Ioh. 17. 3.

1. Heb. 12. 13.

1. Gal. 2. 24.

1. Rom. 10. 9.

1. 1. Tim. 4. 1.

1. Col. 2. 23.

1. Iob 1. 1.

Luke 2. 25.

1. 1. Tim. 1. 19.

1. Matth 7. 16.

1. Melanct.

posit. Dom 8.

posit. Trinit

Idem Iansen.

Concord cap. 43.

1. 2. Tim. 3.

1. Tit 2. 12.

despising those that contemne the Lord. He that is iuſt is not iniurious to his neighbour in uſuries and briberie: he that ſpeaketh the truth in his heart, will obſerue both oath and promiſe, though it be to his owne hinderance, deteſting alſo ſlander in himſelfe and other.

I doe not intend to treat of euery marke mentioned here ſeuerally, the two chiefe vertues here required in a Chriſtian are vprightneſſe of heart, and abſtaining from couetouſneſſe. The Hebrew Thamim is vſually translated perfit, <sup>a</sup> not that it ſignifieth ſuch a one as is altogether free from ſinne, or is endued with a compleat righteouſneſſe of his owne, ſo this marke could agree to no man liuing, for it is ſaid in the Pſalme going before, that all men are gone out of the way, being altogether abhominable, and that there is none that doth good, no not one. <sup>b</sup> Who can ſay his heart is cleane? <sup>c</sup> in many things all offend. <sup>d</sup> If we ſay we haue no ſinne, we deceiue our ſelues, and the truth is not in vs. But it doth import one which in the deſires and purpoſes of his heart is free from hypocriſie, diſſimulation and guile, whom our other translations aptly call one that walketh vprightly. So we read of King Aſa, 2. Chron. 15. 17. that he had a perfit heart all his dayes, and yet in the very next Chapter foure faults of his are recorded together: 1. that he reſted vpon Benhadad King of Aram, and not in the Lord: 2. that he committed the Lords Prophet to priſon: 3. that he oppreſſed certaine of the people: 4. that in his ſickeſſe he truſted in the Phyſicians more than in God. So Noah is ſaid, Gen. 6. 9. to haue bene iuſt and perfect among the men of his age, <sup>e</sup> that is, vpright, entire, ſincere, no diſſimble or hypocrite, <sup>f</sup> beneuolous and ſolicitous to doe the thing that is right. Yet we finde, Gen. 9. 21. that Noah once was drunken with wine. So Iob, Dauid, Ezechias, are Chronicled for perfect, that is, vpright men, who notwithstanding had their ſeueral faults and falls. The perfection ſignified in this word is not ſo much to be meaſured by the goodneſſe of the deed or outward work, as by the vnſained will and vpright endeauour aſpiring toward perfection, becauſe the Lord (ſaccepting the deſire for the deed) <sup>h</sup> eſteemeth of the ſincere will in his children for perfect obedience, <sup>i</sup> inſomuch that vprightneſſe euery where in the old teſtament goeth vnder the name of perfection, and thoſe things are ſaid to be done with our whole heart and with a perfect heart, which are done with an vpright and entire heart. In a word, forwardneſſe of heart, and frowardneſſe of heart, as <sup>k</sup> Salomon teacheth, are oppoſite, they that are of a froward heart are abomination to the Lord, but they that are forward and vpright in their waies are his delight. He then is ſaid to walke vprightly before God, whoſe heart is <sup>l</sup> right in the ſight of God. Hypocrites are <sup>m</sup> double minded men, as <sup>n</sup> S. Iames aptly termes them, hauing as our <sup>o</sup> Prophet ſpeakes, an heart, and an heart, going ſaith the <sup>p</sup> Wiſeman two manner of wayes: but a true Chriſtian hath a ſingle and a ſincere heart, <sup>q</sup> he plants not his vineyard of diuers ſorts of ſeed, he ſowes not his field with diuers kinds of corne, he ploies not with an Oxe and an Aſſe together, he weares no garments of <sup>r</sup> Liniſie-woolſie, but hath vprightneſſe and <sup>s</sup> truth in his inward parts. So Noah, Abraham, Iſaac, and other are ſaid to walke before God, in that <sup>t</sup> day carried themſelues as in the ſight of God, admitting him as a witneſſe and a Iudge of all their actions and paſſions. And in the ſong of Zacharie we are ſaid to be redeemed from the hand of all our ſpirituall enemies to this end that we ſhould ſerue the Lord in holineſſe and righteouſneſſe before him, that is, not as in the ſight of men who ſee but our outside, but as in Gods preſence, who ſeeth and reſpects our heart. He that <sup>u</sup> hungreth and <sup>v</sup> thirſteth after righteouſneſſe is accepted before God for righteous; he that vnſainedly deſires to beleue fully, ſaying, <sup>w</sup> I beleue, Lord helpe my vnbeleefe, hath a true faith, and effectually to ſaluation. For euen as a Paliſie man is able to ſtretch out his hand to receiue the gift of a King as well as another which is more ſound: ſo weak faith, if it proceed from an vpright heart, as it were with a ſhaking hand apprehends the ſure mercies and promiſes of God for the pardon of ſinne as truly (though not as ſtrongly) as great faith.

In like manner he walketh vprightly before men, whoſe conuerſation is not <sup>x</sup> in fleſhly wiſdome, but in <sup>y</sup> ſingleneſſe of heart, <sup>z</sup> wiſe vnto that which is good, but ſimple vnto that which is euill. If any man among you (quoth <sup>aa</sup> Paul) ſeeme to be wife

<sup>a</sup> Melanch.
Mollerwa.

<sup>b</sup> Pro. 20. 9.
<sup>c</sup> Iames 3. 2.
<sup>d</sup> 1. Ioh. 1. 8.

<sup>e</sup> Caluin. in
Gen. 6.
<sup>f</sup> Aquin. poſt.
in loc.

<sup>g</sup> 2. Cor. 8. 12.
<sup>h</sup> Caluin. ubi
ſup
<sup>i</sup> Dr Dorrname
in loc.

<sup>k</sup> Prou. 11. 20.

<sup>l</sup> Acts 8. 21.
<sup>m</sup> Iames 1. 8.
<sup>n</sup> Pſal 1. 2.
<sup>o</sup> Eccleſ. 2. 13.
<sup>p</sup> Deut. 22. 9.

<sup>q</sup> Leuit. 19. 19.
<sup>r</sup> Pſal. 51. 6.

<sup>s</sup> Matth 5. 6.

<sup>t</sup> Marke 9. 24.

<sup>u</sup> 2. Cer. 7. 11.
<sup>v</sup> Act 2. 46.
<sup>w</sup> Coloſſ 3. 22.
<sup>x</sup> Rom 16. 19.
<sup>y</sup> 1. Cor 3. 18.

wife in this world, let him be a foole that he may be wise, for the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God; he would not have simple men to be fooles, but that wise men ought to be simple, for true wisdom is pure, without hypocrisie, tempered with the simplicities of Doves. On the contrarie, the worlds wisdom consisting of dissembling and deceit, is by the iudgement of <sup>b</sup> S. James, earthly, carnall, and denillish. In respect of this simplicitie, Christ is often termed in holy Scriptures a lambe, and his followers not wolues or foxes, but sheepe: for the most infallible character of a true Israelite is to be simplex quasi sine plica, without any doubling in his dealing, as Christ of <sup>c</sup> Nathaniel, A man in whom is no guile.

He walketh also vprightly toward himselfe, who suffers not sinne to <sup>d</sup> reigne in his mortall bodie, giuing his members as weapons of vnrightheousnesse, obeying fleshy lusts that fight against the soule; but in sinning is rather a <sup>e</sup> patient than an agent, a pressed souldier of sinne, than a voluntarie, saying with Paul, Rom. 7. 19. I do not the good things which I would, but the euill which I would not, that doe I. See Gospell 15. Sunday after Trinitie.

Well then, if thou walke before God in truth and sinceritie without hypocrisie, toward thy selfe and other in simplicitie without dissembling and guile: blessed art thou, for albeit thy faith be weake, and thy life full of infirmitie, yet the pure in heart shall see God, Matth. 5. 8. as now thou dost sojourn in Gods tabernacle, so thou shalt one day dwell vpon his holy hill. On the contrarie, dost thou walke hypocritically toward God, dissemblingly toward thy neighbour, deceitfully toward thine owne selfe: then vnlesse thou repent, most fearefull is thy case, for thou hast no part in the doctrine of saluation, or in the communion of Saints, but thy portion is assigned with hypocrites, where is weeping and gnashing of teeth, Matth. 24. 51.

As vprightnesse is the prime vertue commended here, so conuouesneesse the chiefe vice condemned, <sup>f</sup> either for that it was and is the most vsuall and familiar sinne among the lewes, or else for that as <sup>g</sup> S. Paul teacheth, it is the root of all euill.

Now the Prophet giueth instances against couetousnesse in Bargaines, Lawfull, He that sweareth vnto his neighbour and disappointeth him not.

 Bribes, Vnlawfull, He that hath not giuen his money vpon vsurie.
He that hath not taken reward against the innocent.

The man of God ought to flee these things, 1. Tim. 6. 11. as a <sup>h</sup> man, but a man of God especially, whose <sup>i</sup> treasure, <sup>k</sup> minde, <sup>l</sup> conuersation is in heauen. He that desires to dwell on high, and to rest vpon Gods holy mountaine, must in singleness of heart despise the gaine of oppression, and shake his hands from holding of bribes, Esay 33. 15.

Who so doth these things ] In this Epiphonema concluding the whole discourse, two points are to be considered.

1. The partie to whom this priuiledge belongeth, he that doth these things.

2. What this priuiledge is, he shall neuer fall or be removed.

The Prophet doth not say, <sup>m</sup> he that heares these things, or he that knowes these things, or he who can discourse of these things; but he that doth these things: <sup>n</sup> for as we iudge of the corporall health of the heart, not by the words of the mouth, or colour of the countenance, but by the pulse of the arme: so iudgement is made of the spirituall soundnesse and vprightnesse of the heart, not so much by words, or looks, as by the fruits of the hands. He (saith our Saviour) shall enter into the kingdome of heauen, that doth the will of my Father which is in heauen, Matth. 7. 21. <sup>o</sup> Blessed are they that heare the word of God and keepe it. <sup>p</sup> If yee know these things, happy are yee if yee doe them. If a man had as great skill in Diuinitie, as Varro had in Philosophie, <sup>q</sup> who read so much, as it was admired how he could write any thing; againe wrote so much as another could hardly read: <sup>r</sup> though he could speake with the tongues of men and Angels, and had not loue, he were but as sounding brasse, or a tinkling cymball, a very nothing in comparifon of those things here required in a true member of the Church and inheritor of heauen.

But

<sup>a</sup> Matth. 10. 16.

<sup>b</sup> James 3. 15.

<sup>c</sup> Ioh. 1. 47.

<sup>d</sup> Rom 6. 12.

<sup>e</sup> 1 Iohn 3. 9.

Non facit peccatum quia patitur passus. Bernard. de nat. & dignit. diuin. amoru, cap. 6.

<sup>f</sup> Bellar in loc.

<sup>g</sup> 1. Tim 6. 10.

<sup>h</sup> See Epist.

3. Sund in Lent.

<sup>i</sup> Matth 6. 20.

<sup>k</sup> Coloss. 3. 2.

<sup>l</sup> Philip 3. 20.

<sup>m</sup> Calvin.

Mollenus.

<sup>n</sup> Dr. Dowling.

<sup>o</sup> Luke 11. 28.

<sup>p</sup> Iohn 13. 17.

<sup>q</sup> August. de

Ciuit. Dei. lib. 6.

cap. 2.

<sup>r</sup> 1. Cor. 13. 1.

But here we must obserue, that these things are not the meritorious causes of our iustification and eternall happines, but rather signes and effectes of the same, following such as shall one day rest vpon Gods holy hill: for as Doctor <sup>s</sup> Seton preached in the daies of King Henrie the eight, If good works bring one iot or tittle toward thy iustifying, then Christ is not a sole Saviour, and a full iustifier: which he proued by a familiar example; put the case (saith he) that I haue two seruants, one called Iohn, and the other Robert, and I promise to send you on a day twenty pounds by Iohn my seruant, & at the day appointed I send you by Iohn nineteene pounds nineteene shillings eleuen pence halfe penny farthing, and there lacketh one farthing onely which Robert doth bring thee, and so thou haue the twenty pound euery farthing, yet will I aske if I be true of my promise or no, and you may answer no, because I promised to send thee that whole twenty by Iohn, and did not, for there lacked a farthing which Robert brought. In like manner if thy works do merit, or bring one little iot or tittle toward thy iustification, if they bring but one farthing, then is God false of his promise, who said, <sup>c</sup> in thy seed shall all people be blessed: he said not in thy <sup>d</sup> seed, nor in the workes of thy seeds, but in thy seed, hereby meaning only Christ our <sup>e</sup> onely mediator, <sup>f</sup> righteousnesse, sanctification, and redemption. <sup>g</sup> That wherewith a man fulfillet the Law declareth him iustified, but that which giues him wherewith to fulfill the Law iustifieth him.

Moreouer, it is plaine that this conclusion includes the whole description, the which as I haue shewed, consisteth of faith as well as good workes, as if our Prophet should haue said, he which is grounded in Faith, and rooted in Charity, belecuing thus, and louing thus, (as I haue declared) shall neuer be removed.

The priuiledge it self is, he shall neuer be removed: the which is repeated often in the Scriptures, as Psal. 55. 23. the Lord shall not suffer the righteous to fall for euer. And Psalm. 112. 6. the good man shall neuer be removed, Prouerbs 10. 30 The righteous shall neuer be removed, Prouerbs 12. 3. A man cannot be established by wickednesse, but the root of the righteous shall not be moued. This priuiledge so properly belongs to the sound Christian, as that to the holy Ghost in this hymne it is all one to be a sound Christian, and to be such a one who shall neuer be removed: For when Dauid had asked God, who shall sojourne in thy Tabernacle, and who shall rest vpon thy holy mountaine, that is, by what tokens is a true subiect of thy kingdome discerned from the children of this world; the Lord maketh answer, be that walketh vprightly, doing that which is right, &c. and when he concludes, in stead of those words (he is a sojourner in my Tabernacle, and one that shall rest vpon my holy hill) he doth vse these to the same sense, he shall neuer be removed: insinuating hereby that euery sound and vpright Christian is such an one as shall neuer be removed: for the conclusion is <sup>a</sup> answerable to the beginning, the question in the beginning is who shall sojourne, who shall rest, &c. and the conclusion of Gods answer to the question is, be that doth these things shall euer rest in my kingdome, and neuer be removed.

The priuiledge then of a good Christian here mentioned is <sup>b</sup> like to that of Paul, 1 Tim. 4. 8. Godliness hath the promise of the life present, and of that which is to come: for the Lord said in the <sup>c</sup> old testament to Father Abraham, I will be thy God and the God of thy seed after thee, that is, thy protector, buckler and exceeding great reward, Gen. 15. 1. So Christ in the new Testament, I will not leaue you <sup>d</sup> comfortlesse, <sup>e</sup> who soeuer forsaketh house, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands for my sake and the Gospels; he shall receiue an hundred fold now at this present with persecutions, and in the world to come euerlasting life. <sup>f</sup> First seeke the kingdome of God and the righteousnesse thereof, and all things appertaining to this life shall be ministred vnto you. That which our Prophet speaks of the whole Church in the 46. Psalme, <sup>g</sup> may be well applied vnto euery particular man and member of the same, God is his strength, a very present helpe in trouble, therefore will he not feare though the earth be moued, and though the hills be carried into the midst of the Sea, though the waters rage and swell, and though the mountaines shake at the tempests of the same, the Lord of hosts is with him, and the God of Iacob is his refuge, whatsoeuer he doth or suffereth in this life. <sup>h</sup> His heart is established, and will not shrink, as being assured that

<sup>i</sup> Fox Martyr.
fol. 1100.

<sup>c</sup> Gen 22. 18.
<sup>d</sup> Gal 3. 16,
<sup>e</sup> 1 Tim. 2. 5.
<sup>f</sup> 1 Cor. 1. 30.
<sup>g</sup> Tyndale obedience of a Christian, pag. 116.

<sup>a</sup> Euthym Steuchus Genebrard.

<sup>b</sup> Tileman Strigelius.

<sup>c</sup> Gen. 17. 7.

<sup>d</sup> Iohn 14. 8.

<sup>e</sup> Mark. 10. 29.

<sup>f</sup> Matth. 6. 33.

<sup>g</sup> Calvin in loc.

<sup>h</sup> Psal. 112. 8.

Euthym.

that all things worke together for the best vnto those that loue God, Rom. 8. 28. and if he shall not be removed in this earthly Tabernacle, much lesse in that immortall inheritance which is an euerlasting habitation and can not be shaken, a place free from all change and chance, where shall be no more death, neither sorrow, neither crying, neither paine, Apoc. 21. 4.

In the 13. chapter of S. Matthew, we read that hypocrites receiue the seed of the word into stony ground where it hath no root, and dureth but a season, for as soone as tribulation or persecution commeth because of the word, such as walke not vprightly before God and men are by and by removed and offended. <sup>k</sup> It is reported of certaine people in India called Pandora, that they haue white hoare heads in their youth as old men, and in their elder age black haire like young men. And Antiochus said of Hermogenes, that he was in his childhood an old man, and in his old age a child. So hypocrites forget the soleme vow they made to the Lord in holy Baptisme, as also those principles of piety wherein they seemed expert vnder their Catechizers, and as they grow vpward in age, they grow downward in grace, verifying the by-word, young Saints, old Devils. Like the shee Woofe which hath a yere-ly defect in procreation, for at the first time she beareth five young ones, the second time but four, the third time but three, the fourth time but two, the fift time but one, and then afterward remaineth barren. A little while they seeme very zealous, doing that which is right, and speaking that which is true, but afterward, when any trouble doth arise for the Gospell, they will with <sup>l</sup> Demus embrace this present world, and with Himeneus and Alexander make shipwracke of a good conscience, <sup>m</sup> 1 Tim 1. 19. 20. the sound Christian on the contrary goeth from <sup>n</sup> strength to strength, and groweth from grace to grace, bringing forth more fruit in his age, Pf. 92. 13. like <sup>n</sup> Caleb strong in his old age for government and war, like Ruth shewing more goodnes in the latter end than at the beginning, Ruth 3. 10. he may peradventure <sup>o</sup> depart from grace giuen, and fall into sin, but by Gods assistance he doth rise againe, though he sometime fall foule, yet neuer finally. The <sup>p</sup> seed of God remaineth in him, and howsoeuer it lieth hid for a while, yet shall it afterward breake forth, and bring forth fruit an hundred fold, or sixty fold, or thirty fold.

Let vs then I beseech you labour to make our calling and election sure, by doing that which is right, and speaking that which is true from our heart, &c. for if we doe these things we shall neuer fall.

PSALME 16.

Preserue me, o God, for in thee haue I put my trust, &c.

THis Hymne fitly followes the two former in nature so well as in number, for whereas our Prophet had said in the fourteenth, that all men are gone out of the way, none doing good; and in the fifteenth, that Almighty God requireth vprightnesse of heart, and a perfect obedience to his lawes, of such as shall one day rest vpon his holy hill, he commeth in this sixteenth to set downe the meanes by which our sins are forgiven, and a compleat righteousnesse is giuen vnto vs, and that is Christ our blessed Sauiour, who <sup>q</sup> died for our sinnes, and is risen againe for our iustification: for of his glorious resurrection and ascension, Saint Peter Acts 2. <sup>r</sup> and Saint Paul Acts 13. expound the chiefe parts and passages of this excellent Psalme.

<sup>q</sup> Rom. 4. 25.<sup>r</sup> From verse

25 to 33.

§ Verse 35.

<sup>c</sup> Tremellius:

<sup>u</sup> Mollerus.
Wilcox.

<sup>x</sup> Answerable to that of Paul,
Rom. 14. 17.

The laſt verſe then is the firſt in our Churches intent, and that which vpon this day concerneth vs moſt, as treating of Christs happy path and paſſage from his Croſſe to his Crowne, from his grane to his glory, from his grieuous paines in this earthly tabernacle, to his ioyous pleaſures at Gods right hand vpon that holy mountaine for cuer more.

Wherein obſerue, {

1. The giuer, thou ſhalt ſhow me the path of life.
2. The gift commended, in that it is a life, and that not as this, full of trouble, but of ioy, and that ioy not one onely, but many, & pleaſures in the plurall, and thoſe not faint, intermingled with aduerſitie, but full and free from all vnhappyneſſe, a fulneſſe of ioy, and that not only for a little while, but for euer more.

<sup>y</sup> For ſo moſt of our tranſla-tions & other alſo read.

The paines of hell (as a <sup>z</sup> right reuerend father of our Church obſerued acutely) make a fourefold impreſſion in the ſoule of men. 1. A carefull feare that declineth them. 2. A doubtfull feare that conflicteth with them. 3. A desperate feare that ſhrinketh vnder them. 4. A damned feare that ſuffereth them: of all which our bleſſed Sauour had only the firſt kinde, to wit, a feare mouing him in his purpoſe, not remouing him from his purpoſe. For, ſaith our Prophet here, his heart was glad, his glory reioyced, his fleſh alſo reſted in hope, becauſe God was alway before him at his right hand, ſhowing him in his greateſt agonie, the path of life. God is the <sup>a</sup> Lord of life, giuing vs the life of nature, for <sup>b</sup> in him we liue, and moue, and haue our being; giuing vs the life of grace, for <sup>c</sup> he liueth and <sup>d</sup> dwelleth in our hearts by faith; giuing vs the life of glory, for in his preſence is fulneſſe of ioy, and at his right hand pleaſures for euer more. The Lord giueth his children grace and glory, Pf. 84. 12. Grace, which is the path of life: Glory, which is the poſſeſſion of eternall life. The wages of ſin is death, but euerlaſting life the gift of God through Ieſus Chriſt our Lord, Rom. 6. 23. whereas the bleſſed Apoſtle ſaid, the wages of ſinne is death; if our good works had any merit, the ſequell of his ſpeech (as <sup>e</sup> S. Auguſtine notes) ſhould haue beene, the wages of righteouſneſſe is eternall life: but left iuſtice ſhould liſt vp it ſelfe of mans good merit, as mans ill merit is not doubted to be ſinne, he ſaith not to, but eternall life is the gift of God; and left it ſhould be ſought any other way than by the Mediator, he doth adde further, through Ieſus Chriſt our Lord. God did not only ſhew Chriſt, <sup>f</sup> how he might verbally diſpute of life, but he did actually raiſe him from the dead, he did not leane his ſoule in hell, nor ſuffer his holy One to ſee corruption.

<sup>z</sup> B Biſhon ſer.
of Christs ſuf-fering.

<sup>a</sup> Acts 3. 15.
<sup>b</sup> Acts 17. 28.
<sup>c</sup> Gal. 2. 20.
<sup>d</sup> Ephes. 3. 17.

<sup>o</sup> Epiſt. 105.

<sup>f</sup> Mollerus.

And as God raiſed Chriſt, euen ſo Chriſt in his good time ſhall raiſe vs: he which is riſen from the dead, and made the <sup>g</sup> firſt fruits of thoſe that ſleepe, hath opened vnto vs the gate of life: for as in Adam all die, ſo in Chriſt all ſhall be made alieue, 1 Cor. 15. 22. he ſhall change our vile bodie, that it may be faſhioned like his glorious body, according to the working, whereby he is able to ſubdue all things vnto himſelfe. Eternall life then is the gift of God, through Chriſt, God ſhewed Chriſt, and Chriſt ſheweth vs the path of life.

<sup>g</sup> 1 Cor. 15. 20.

The gift is answerable to the giuer, as the Lord is great, so great his reward in heauen. It is called here first a life, and what is more sweet than life, <sup>b</sup> skinne for skin, and all that a man hath will he giue for his life. The damned in hell endure that which is euerlasting, but because vita non est viuere, sed valere, for as much as they be perpetually tied to torments, enforced euer to suffer that they would not, and neuer able to doe any thing they would; their being is termed in holy Scripture not a life, but a death: and as the <sup>i</sup> second death is infinitely worse than the first, euen so the life of glory doth excell infinitely the life of nature. For the life present is <sup>k</sup> ambrosius, & boni sterilis, of <sup>l</sup> short continuance and full of trouble: but the life which is led in Gods presence is a ioy, where pleasures are for euermore. Call you this (quoth <sup>m</sup> Ambrose) a life, where there is the shadow of death, Luk. 1. 79. the gates of death, Psa. 9. 13, the body of death, Rom. 7. 24 is it a good life which is so full of labour in our actions, and of dolour in our passions, that euen in <sup>n</sup> laughing the heart is sorrowfull, and the end of mirth is heauincesse? No, no, Beloued, this world is rather the <sup>o</sup> region of the dead, than the land of the <sup>p</sup> liuing, where men faint as hauing no free ioy without vexation of spirit: but in that other life there shall be no more crying or dying, but a fulnesse of ioy in all things, and at all times: a fulnesse of ioy in all the faculties and powers of the soule, and in all the senses and parts of the body.

Concerning the soule, there shall be fulnesse of ioy to the vnderstanding, fulnesse of ioy to the will, and fulnesse of ioy to the memorie: eternall happinesse is called in the schoole vision, because the blessed Saints with eies of their minde see God (as <sup>q</sup> Paul speaks) euen face to face, beholding him (saith S. Iohn) as he is, 1 Ioh. 3. 2. the which is so full of ioy, that the <sup>r</sup> Prophet and <sup>s</sup> Apostle tell vs expressly, mans eie hath not seene, mans ear hath not heard, mans heart not sufficiently conceived it. The which is not an hyperbolicall amplification, but a simple truth, because mans eie, ear, heart, comprehend now those things only which are finite, but the vision of God is the fruition of <sup>t</sup> inaccessible light, and infinite good, for to behold the face of God, and to behold all that which is good, is all one, Exod. 33. 18. 19.

Yea, but you will obiekt haply, shall euery Saint enioy Gods presence so fully, that he shall vnderstand and know so much as God knoweth of himselfe? answer is made, that the most incomprehensible Diuine essence shall appeare to the Saints vnderstanding <sup>u</sup> totafed non totaliter: in this life we shall attaine to such a knowledg of God as is fit, and in the life to come we shall haue that which is full, euen so much as any created vessell is able to containe, yet none shall euer totally comprehend that incomprehensible Trinity, <sup>x</sup> none can, as it selfe, know it selfe: in his light shall we see light, saith our <sup>y</sup> Prophet: as then we cannot see the Sunne, but by the light of the Sunne: so we cannot see God, but as he doth enlighten vs, and <sup>z</sup> as some see more of the Sunne than other, according to the disposition of their eies: euen so the Saints enioying Gods presence see some more, some lesse, according to the gift of glory correspondent to their capacity, yet all so much as that they shall be satisfied with the plenteousnesse of his house, drinking of his pleasures as out of a riner, Psa. 36. 8.

He that brings a little pitcher to the riuier may fill it, and he that brings a greater can haue no more water than his vessell is able to hold, he cannot exhaust the riuier and carry away with him all the water: euen so the least in the kingdome of heauen hath a full sight of God, and he which is greatest in glory can haue but a fulnesse of ioy: his <sup>a</sup> cup can doe no more than ouerflow, he cannot as it were drie the riuier of God; his knowledge, being at the fullest, is rather an apprehending than a <sup>b</sup> comprehending of the most infinite maiestie.

In this world our eie sees the glorious lights of heauen, and many wonderfull creatures vpon earth, and in the deepe: but our vnderstandings eie seeth a very little or nothing, it knowes but in <sup>c</sup> part, it knowes not the soueraigne vertues of all hearbes, it knowes not the powerfull operations of all stars, it knowes not the flowing and ebbing of all Seas, it knowes not so much as it owne selfe, for our soule cannot exactly define what a soule is. Consider then I beseech you, what a fulnesse of ioy will it be when as we shall see God in all things, and all things in God, when as our minde seeing him who seeth all in heauen, and earth, and hell, above and below, shall vnderstand

<sup>b</sup> Iob 2. 4.<sup>i</sup> Apoc. 21. 3.<sup>k</sup> Paulinus

Epist. lib. 1.

Epist. 3.

<sup>l</sup> Iob 14. 1.<sup>m</sup> Lib. de bono mortis, cap. 12.<sup>n</sup> Prou. 14 13.<sup>o</sup> Ierem. 31. 40.<sup>p</sup> Psal. 37. 15.<sup>q</sup> 1 Cor. 13. 12.<sup>r</sup> Esay 64 4.<sup>s</sup> 1 Cor. 2. 9.<sup>t</sup> 1 Tim. 6. 16.<sup>u</sup> Io. de Combis Comp. Theolog. lib. 7 cap. 26.<sup>v</sup> See Martialis ad Burdegal. Epist. 10. & Thom. part. 1. quest. 2. art. 8.<sup>w</sup> Psal. 36. 9.<sup>x</sup> See Io. de Comb. ubi. sup.<sup>y</sup> & Claudius P. ex montis institut de penitencia part 6. cap. 8.<sup>z</sup> Psal. 23. 5.<sup>a</sup> Pet. de palude enar. Euang in die S. Matthe.<sup>b</sup> 1 Cor. 13. 12.<sup>c</sup> 1 Cor. 13. 12.

vnderstand all the mysteries of faith, and all the secrets of nature, so far forth as may giue contentment to the soule, or adde any thing to the pleasure which endures for euermore: yea, the very torments of damned wretches in hell fire shall administer occasion of ioy to the Saints in heauen, according to that of the <sup>d</sup> Prophet, the righteous shall reioyce when he sees the vengeance, he shall wash his footsteps in the blood of the vngodly: the righteous reioyce not as insulting ouer their miserie, but as exalting Gods iustice, because they shall at the last day wash their feet in the blood of the vngodly, <sup>e</sup> that is, whereas Gods elect out of an vnfaigned zeale desired but (as it were) one drop of vengeance vpon their persecutors in this world, that they might feare the Lord, and <sup>f</sup> know themselues to be but men: In the time of their deliuerance they shall see such abundance of their enemies blood, that they may bathe (as it were) themselues in it; <sup>g</sup> or their good workes shall appeare more cleane being compared in that day with the foule and filthy finnes of the reprobate.

Concerning the will of the Saints enioying Gods presence, two things especially beget in it a fulnesse of ioy: the first is a most ardent loue of God and their neighbour: the second an incomparable contentation, and satietie.

Touching loue, Saint <sup>h</sup> Paul affirms, that it is the greatest of the three Theologicall vertues: Now (saith he) abideth Faith, Hope, and Charitie, but the greatest of these is Charitie: <sup>i</sup> not the greatest in euery respect absolutely, but only greatest in latitude of vse, and continuance, for when once we shall enioy Gods presence, Faith is at an end, which apprehended Gods promise concerning eternall saluation, and Hope is at an end which expected it with inuincible patience, but Charitie shall alway continue betweene God and vs an euerlasting bond: Now Loue is like sawce to make pleasant the things loued, for he which is in loue doth esteeme the things he loues at an extraordinarie rate, ioying in their sight, and grieuing to be deprived of their vse. So Parents out of their abundant loue thinke their owne children (albeit neuer so deformed in their members, and lamed in their mindes) the wisest and the fairest among ten thousand. So many men are so bewitched (as it were) with the conuersation of their companions (albeit worthlesse and idle) that they cannot endure to liue without them, or to be long from them. A fond loue is ready to take vp this note concerning his matchlesse mate,

<sup>k</sup> *Sine ad felices vadam post funera campos,
Sen ferar ardentes rapidi phlegetontis ad undas,
Nec sine te felix ero, nec tecum miser unquam.*

In this world our <sup>l</sup> soule longeth after God, and our delight is vpon the <sup>m</sup> Saints, and vpon such as excell in vertue, what a fulnesse of ioy then will it be to conuerte with Almighty God vpon his holy mountaine, whom in this earthly tabernacle we loued aboue all things; and with the godly whom we loued as our selues, and that with assurance neuer to be pulled away from their sweet and euer-blessed companie: without question it is one great torment to the damned in hell fire, that they must of necessitie conuerse with Abaddon, euen the deuill himselfe, the destroyer of their soules and bodies, I say, with the deuill the first author of all their mischiefe, and with hatefull impious wretches his agents in procuring all their miseries. On the contrarie, what an vnspeakable pleasure will it be, when at Gods right hand we shall enioy the long wished for companie, not only of some speciall friends and acquaintance, whom in this life we best affected, and of all the Patriarkes, and Prophets, and Apostles, and Martyrs, and Confessors, whom we most honoured; but also the most happy presence of Christ himselfe, of God himselfe, of the whole sacred Trinitie, whom we desired euer to lone with all our heart, with all our soule, with all our minde, yea with all the strength of all our heart, with all the strength of all our soule, with all the strength of all our minde.

The second thing that begets infinite ioy to the will of the Saints, is an incomparable contentation and satietie without any labouring or loathing. In this valley of teares no man is content with his owne fortune, though his lot be faire, yet not full,

<sup>d</sup> Psal. 58. 9.
*112 Melancthon,
Mollerus,
Strigellius exponunt de vita futura.*

<sup>e</sup> Luther.

<sup>f</sup> Psal. 9. 20.

<sup>g</sup> *Beilarm. in Psal. 57. & de salsis, atern.
lib. 4. cap. 2.*

<sup>h</sup> 1 Cor. 13. 13.

<sup>i</sup> See Epistle Quinquages-sima Sunday.

<sup>k</sup> Mantuan.

<sup>l</sup> Psal. 42. 1.

<sup>m</sup> Psal. 16. 3.

albeit euery man hath a good deale more than he deserues, yet none so much as he desires. <sup>a</sup> Horace doth aske the question,

*Quo fit, Mecenas, ut nemo quam sibi for tcm
Sen ratio dederit, sen fors obsecerit, illa Contentus uiuat ?*

And <sup>o</sup> Salomon answereth it, that in this world the eye cannot be satisfied with seeing, nor the eare filled with hearing, nor the heart contented absolutely with understanding the multitude of wisdom. <sup>p</sup> All things haue an emptinesse and extreme vanitie, purchasing vnto the possessors nothing but anguish and vexation of spirit, but in heauen euery Saint is filled with the <sup>q</sup> plenteousnesse of Gods house, when I awake (saith our Prophet) after thy likenesse I shall be satisfied with it, Psal. 17. 16. in Gods Paradise the will enioyes euery thing that it wil, vpon his holy hill is rest, at his right hand such vnspeakable pleasure for euermore, that Absaloms beautie seemes there deformitie; Salomons wisdom, follie; Cresus opulent estate, beggerie; the deepe skill of Aristotle, but a dull ignorance; the strength of Sampson, but a broken staffe; the laughing humour of Democritus, but a dolefull dorian: in Gods presence there is such a fulnesse of ioyes in euery thing, as the world cannot afford in any thing.

Now for the Saints memorie, the recordation of things as well concerning themselves as other, occasioneth infinite matter of contentation and ioy. <sup>r</sup> The remembrance of Gods vnutterable mercies, as well priuatiue as positiuie, from euerlasting to euerlasting, cannot but breed a fulnesse of ioy, when as the righteous at Gods right hand, call to minde how the Lord hath euer preuented them, in benedictionibus dulcedinis, with the riches of his glory, and blessings of his goodnesse, spirituall, corporall, naturall, supernaturall, temporall, eternall. If the Saints in Gods presence remember not these things, how saith our Prophet elsewhere, I will sing the mercies of the Lord for ever? The which hymne is so fit, that nothing, saith <sup>s</sup> Augustine, is more pleasant to the Citie of God; as magnifying the merits of Christs grace, by whose blood only the Saints are laued.

Againe, the recordation of all other changes and chances in this world, how Gods high and holy prouidence <sup>u</sup> reacheth from one end to another, and ordereth all things sweetly, cannot but administer exceeding ioy to the memory. This in the conceit of <sup>v</sup> some Diuines is that violent flood of the riuer, making glad the Citie of God, Psal. 46. 4. For what is the course of things in this world violently passing away without intermission euery day, but as the speedie streames of <sup>w</sup> riuers running into the Sea. While the water floweth, and time passeth, a great many men haue strange disputes of Gods inimitable prouidence, yea the deare Saints of God while they so iourne in this house of clay haue bene troubled sometimes at the raging and swelling of this stream. My feet (quoth our <sup>x</sup> Prophet) were almost gone, my treadings had well nigh slipt, and my heart was grieved to behold the wicked in such prosperitie, they come in no misfortune like other folke, neither are they plagued like other men. And this is the cause that they be so holden with pride, and overwhelmed with cruelty, their eyes swell with fatnesse, and they doe what they lust. Loe these are the vngodly, these prosper in the world, and these haue riches in possession, and I said, then haue I cleansed my heart in vaine, and washed my hands in innocency. So the Prophet <sup>a</sup> Jeremie, O Lord if I dispute with thee thou art righteous: yet let me talke with thee of thy iudgements: Wherefore doth the way of the wicked prosper? Why are they in wealth that rebelliously transgresse? So the Prophet <sup>b</sup> Abakuk, O Lord how long shall I cry, and thou wilt not heare, euen cry out vnto thee for violence, and thou wilt not helpe? Wherefore dost thou looke vpon the transgressors, and holdest thy tongne, when the wicked deuoureth the man that is more righteous then he? But when once there shal be no<sup>c</sup> time more, when as the riuer is run into the Sea, what a fulnesse of ioy wil it be to the memory to recall at Gods right hand all things past, & to read cleerly the reasons of them all in the booke of his holy prouidence: there we shall easily read why God permitted the first Man & the first Angel to fall, & why he restored not againe Lucifer so wel as Adam: there we shall easily read why God had chosen Abrahams posterity for his <sup>d</sup> peculiar people, whom he foresaw would proue <sup>e</sup> stiffe necked, of vncircumcised

<sup>a</sup> Ser. lib. 1. Sc. 139c 1.

<sup>o</sup> Eccl. 1. 8. 18.

<sup>p</sup> See Gospell 1. Sun after Epiph. <sup>q</sup> Psal. 36. 8.

<sup>r</sup> Psal. 21. 4.

<sup>s</sup> Psal. 89. 11
See notes vpon this in the former part, pag. 38. 39. 40.
<sup>t</sup> De Ciuit Dei, lib. 22. cap. vii.
<sup>u</sup> Wisd. 8. 1.

<sup>v</sup> Bellar. de felicit. eterna, lib. 4. cap. 4.
<sup>w</sup> Eccle. 1. 7.

<sup>x</sup> Psal. 73.

<sup>a</sup> Ier. 12. 1.

<sup>b</sup> Abak. 1. 2. 13

<sup>c</sup> Apcc. 10. 6.

<sup>d</sup> Deut. 7. 6.
Exod. 19. 4.
<sup>e</sup> Acts 7. 5. 1.

vncircumcised hearts and eares : there we shall easily read why the wicked are in so great prosperitie (though it be now hard to vnderstand) namely, that God sets them in slipperie places, and that their end is sudden and fearefull, Psalm. 73. 17. there we shall easily reade why the iust endured so much affliction in this world, namely, that they might reigne with Christ as they did suffer with him, and that euery Saint in Gods presence might sing with our Prophet, Psal. 94. 19. In the multitude of the sorowes that I had in mine heart, thy comforts haue refreshed my soule.

Hitherto concerning the fulnesse of ioyes in the powers of the soule. I come now to treat of the pleasures in the senses of the bodie, beginning with seeing as the quickest and noblest. Our eyes then in Gods presence shall haue ioy, 1. In beholding our owne vile bodie made like to Christs glorious bodie, Philip. 3. 21. whose glorified bodie passeth euen the brightnesse of the Sunne, Acts 26. 13. Mat. 17. 2. and the iust in the kingdome of heauen shall shine as the Sunne in the firmament, so that they shall not any more need the light of any torch or candle, for the glory of God is the light of Gods Citie, Reuel. 21. 23.

2. Our eyes in Gods presence shall haue ioyes in seeing the blessed bodies of all the Saints, of the <sup>b</sup> Martyrs especially, whose scars appeare like stars, whose wounds are not signes of any defect, but ensignes of victorie : so that we shall happily see S. Stephen adorned with as many precious stones, as he received blowes of ordinarie stones on his bodie. See Bellarmin de felicitate aeterna, lib. 4. cap. 5.

3. Our eyes shall haue ioyes in seeing our Sauours precious bodie, for <sup>i</sup> he said to his followers of his bodily presence, when he was in a mortall estate, happy are the eyes that haue seene what you see, for I say vnto you, many Propbets and Kings haue desired to see those things which you see, and could not see them. And the beloved Disciple (who drunke wisdom out of the bosome of our Lord) begins that his excellent Epistle (which is vpon the point wholly precepts of loue) with a mention of seeing Christ, and he repeats the same word againe and againe, <sup>k</sup> that which we haue seene with our eyes, which we haue looked vpon, and our hands haue handled of the word of life, for the life appeared, and we haue seene it, I say, that which we haue seene and heard declare we vnto you. This sight is so full of ioy, that the <sup>l</sup> Wisemen of the East came from farre to worship him in his swadling clouts; and <sup>m</sup> Nathaniel (in whom was no guile, hearing of Iesus, earnestly desired to see him; and <sup>n</sup> Zacheus climed vp on a tree to looke downe vpon him who was higher than heauens; and it was the chiefest of S. Augustines three wishes, that he might haue seene Christ in the flesh, and our * deuout and reuerend ancestors haue resorted from all climates of the Christian world to the holy Citie, that although they could not see their Iesus, yet they might behold and worship where his beautifull and blessed feet had trod, where he sweate, and bled, and cried, and died, where borne, and where buried. <sup>o</sup> It would be doubtlesse a sight of great delight, to behold a young man so comely faire as Abisalom, or so generally wise as Salomon, or so strong as Sampson, or so victorious as Iudas Machabeus, or such a wonder-worker as S. Peter, whose very shadow was soueraigne and healed the sicke, Acts 5. 15. but if one man endued with all these rare vertues and excellencies haply should arriue in this our Countrey, what flocking of all people from all parts of the world would there be to see his most admirable beautie, wisdom, valour, strength, workes of wonder? And yet behold the Saints enjoying Christs presence, behold a greater than all these together, in whom are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge, the first author of beauty, the King of glory, the Lord of Hosts, strong in battell, which only doth all great wonders, Psal. 136. 4.

4. Our eyes shall haue ioyes in beholding the glorious and goodly building of Gods Citie, the which is described by <sup>r</sup> S. Iohn, for want of other words, to haue a wall of pure gold, and the foundations of the wall to be garnished with all manner of precious stones, and the twelue gates to be twelue pearles, and that the streets are pure gold as shining glasse. Or as <sup>s</sup> Tobit in his booke, The streets of Hierusalem aboute shall be paved with Berall, and Carbuncle, and precious stones of Ophir. It is reported of <sup>t</sup> Fulgensius in his life, that seeing the pompous splendor of the Roman Senate, he should cap. 20.<sup>i</sup> Luk 10. 23.<sup>k</sup> 1 Iohn 1. 1.<sup>l</sup> Matth. 2.<sup>m</sup> Iohn 1. 47.<sup>n</sup> Luk. 19. 4.* Many doubtlesse out of deuotion, albeit other out of a superstitious ignorance.<sup>o</sup> See Dionysius Caribus de quatuor nouis part. 4. 21. 3.<sup>p</sup> Coloss. 2. 3.<sup>q</sup> Wild. 13. 3.<sup>r</sup> Psal. 24. 8.<sup>s</sup> Apoc. 21.<sup>t</sup> Cap. 13. v 17<sup>u</sup> Apud Surtium, tom. 1.

<sup>i</sup> 2 Tim. 2. 11.<sup>b</sup> Dan 12. 3.
Matth. 13. 44.<sup>b</sup> See August. de Ciuil Deib, lib. 22.

cry out, O how beautifull is the celestially Hierusalem, if terrestriall Rome be so glittering and glorious! Consider then,  $\delta$  my soule, what a fulnesse of ioy wil it be to behold with immortall eyes all these glories at once, namely, the  $\gamma$  King of glory, the  $\zeta$  vessels of glory, the  $\alpha$  crownes of glory, the  $\beta$  thrones of glory, the  $\epsilon$  weight of glory, the whole  $\delta$  kingdome of glory.

Concerning the Saints bearing, there shall be ioy first at their entrance, then afterward in the plenarie possession of Gods presence: at our entrance we shall have ioyes in hearing the sweet call of our blessed Sauour, and in hearing the glad-foine welcome of our soules vnto our bodies in that day: the ioyfull and blissefull sentence to be pronounced by Christ is, Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit ye the kingdome prepared for you from the foundation of the world. The first word is come, to put them in minde of his first calling, Come you to me that labour and are burdned, and I will ease you: and  $\xi$  if any man will come after me, let him denie himselfe, and take vp his crosse and follow me. Now because they harkned to this vocation, he calleth them againe with such another like word, as if he should say, seeing ye came to me to beare my crosse, now come to me to weare my crowne. Seeing you were content to drinke of my cup, it is my pleasure that you sit on my throne. Come now from sojourning in my tabernacle, to dwell and rest vpon mine holy mountaine. Come from the  $\eta$  Lebanon of my Church, wherin ye were baptized with vnfained teares of repentance, come from the dens of the Lions, and inhabitations of Tygers, in whose company ye haue suffered many persecutions, come from the  $\iota$  great tribulation wherein ye haue liued, washing your robes and making them cleane in my precious bloud: the world held you cursed, esteeming your life  $\kappa$  madnesse, and your end without honour: but ye are blessed, euen blessed of my father,  $\lambda$  who hath blessed you with euery kinde of heauenly blessing, heretofore communicating vnto you the gifts of his grace, and now bestowing on you the gifts of his glory. Come therefore to receiue your rewarde, which is no lesse than a kingdome, not purchased by your owne merit, but prepared by the rich mercies of my Father from all eternitie, who loued you  $\mu$  first, euen before ye were borne,  $\nu$  when as ye could doe neither good nor euill; I say, prepared for you, not principally prepared for the glorious Angels, and for want of them for you, that ye might enter into the places of those who lost their estates and seats in this kingdome; but it is equally prepared for all the iust, as well men as Angels, euen for you, for your soules, and for your bodies: indeed my first venite, when I called you to weare my yoke, seemed bitter; but this my second venite to weare my crowne, foundeth in your eares a great deale better, come then and take possession of your immortall inheritance, where you shall haue fulnesse of ioyes and pleasure for euermore.

2. In the day of our deliuerance there will be great ioy to heare the ioyous welcomes betwene the soule and the bodie. To the damned soule that commeth vp from hell, a soule, stinking, horrid bodie shall be giuen, partly immortall, and partly passible, that it may euer suffer, and  $\omicron$  neuer die. When therefore the wretched soule sees this her eternall prison, and as it were new hell,  $\delta$  what maledictions will the one belch out against another in that first entrance: Cursed be thou bodie (will the soule say) for to pamper and please thee, haue I suffered a great while so many grienous torments, & now I shall eternally suffer them in the bottomlesse pit with thee. Cursed be thou soule (will the bodie say) for because thou diddest not subdue me to the morions of Gods holy Spirit, I haue seene corruption in the graue, which is the first death, and I am now to suffer with thee horrible tortures in the  $\rho$  lake burning with fire and brimstone, which is the second death. In this sort these two miserable companions, that in this life ioyned together to seeke their delights,  $\gamma$  drawing iniquitie with cords of vanitie, and sinne as it were with cartropes, shall in that day be ioyned and knit together like  $\tau$  thornes to pricke one another, and to become their owne tormentors and executioners. On the contrarie, to the blessed soule resting in Abrahams bosome, there shall be giuen an immortall, impassible, resplendent, perfect, and glorious bodie. O what an happy meeting will this be, what a sweet greeting betwene the soule and the bodie, the neereft and $\gamma$  Psal 24.7.

 $\alpha$  Rom 9.23.
 $\beta$  Apoc 4.7.
 $\delta$  Matth. 19.28.
 $\epsilon$  2 Cor 4.17.
 $\zeta$  1 Theff. 2.12.

$\eta$  Matth. 25.34.
 $\theta$  Matth. 11.28.
 $\iota$  Matth. 16.24.

$\kappa$  Cant. 4.8.
 $\lambda$  Apoc 7.14.

$\mu$  Wisd. 5.4.
 $\nu$  1 Ephes 1.3.

$\xi$  1 Iohn 4.19.
 $\zeta$  Rom. 9.11.

$\theta$  Apoc 9.6.

$\iota$  Apoc. 21.7.

$\kappa$  Esay 5.28.
 $\lambda$  Nahum 1.10.

and dearest acquaintance that ever were. What a welcome will that soule giue to her beloved bodie; blessed be thou (will she say) for thou hast aided me to the glory I haue enioyed since I parted with thee, blessed art thou that sufferedst thy selfe to be mortified, & giuing thy members as weapons of right confesse vnto God. Cheere vp thy selfe, for now the time of labour is past, and the time of rest is come: Thou wast sowne and buried in the dust of the earth with ignominie, but now raised in glory: sowne in weaknesse, but raised in power: sowne a naturall bodie, but raised a spirituall bodie: sowne in corruption, but raised in incorruption. O my deare companion and familiar, we tooke sweet<sup>u</sup> counsell together, we two haue walked together as friends in Gods house, for when I prayed inwardly, thou diddest attend my deuotions with bowed knees and lifted vp hands outwardly. We two haue bene fellow-labourers in the workes of the Lord, we two haue suffered together, and now we two shall euer reigne together, I will enter againe into thee, and to both of vs together will enter into our masters ioy, where we shall haue pleasures at his right hand for euermore.

The Saints entred as it were into the chamber of Gods presence shall haue ioy to their eares in hearing their owne commendation and praise, walked one good seruant and faithfull, Matth. 25. 21. and in hearing the diuine language of heauenly Canaan, for our bodies shall be vera & vna, perfect like Christs glorious body, who did both heare other, & speake himself after his resurrection, as it is apparent in the *Gospels historie: now then if the words of the wise spoken in due place be like apples of gold with pictures of siluer, Prou. 25. 11. If the mellifluous speech of Origen, the siluer trumpet of Hilarie, the golden mouth of Chrysostome, bewitched as it were their auditorie with exceeding great delight: If the gratiuous eloquence of heathen Orators (whose tongues were neuer touched with a cole y from Gods Altar) could steale away the hearts of their hearers, and carrie them vp and downe whither they would: What a fulnesse of ioy will it be to heare not only the sanctified, but also the glorified tongues of Saints and Angels in the kingdome of glory?

What should I speake of the melodious harmonie which is in Gods presence? S. Iohn in his<sup>2</sup> Apocalyps doth affirme, that Halleluiab is chaunted againe and againe by the whole Quire of heauen, I heard (saith he) a great voice of a great multitude, saying, Halleluiab, saluation, and glory, and honour, and power be to the Lord our God: And againe they said, Halleluiab, and the 24. Elders, and the foure beasts fell downe and worshipped God that sat on the throne, saying, Amen, Halleluiab.

<sup>a</sup> Bonaenture fondly reports at all aduenture, that S. Francis hearing an Angell a little while playing on an harpe, was so moued with extraordinarie delight, that he thought himselfe in another world. O what a fulnesse of ioy then will it be to heare more than twelue legions of Angels, accompanied with a number of happy Saints, which no man is able to number, all at once sing together, Halleluiab, <sup>b</sup> holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, which was, and which is, and which is to come, c praise, and honour, and glory, and power be vnto him that sitteth vpon the throne, and vnto the Lambe for euermore: if the voices of mortall men, and the sound of <sup>d</sup> cornet, trumpet, harpe, sackbut, psalterie, dulcimer, and other well tuned instruments of musicke, passing through our dull eares in this world be so powerfull, that <sup>e</sup> all our affections are diuersly transported according to the diuers kinds of harmonie; then how shall we be rauished in Gods presence, when as we shall heare heauenly aires with heauenly eares!

Concerning fulnesse of ioy to the rest of the senses, I finde a very litle or nothing in holy Scriptures, and therefore seeing Gods spirit will not haue a pen to write, I may not haue a tongue to speake. Diuines in generall affirme, that the smelling, and taste, and feeling shall haue ioy proportionable to their blessed estate. For this <sup>f</sup> corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortall immortalitie, the bodie which is sowne in weaknesse, is to be raised in power, it is sowne a naturall bodie, but it is raised a spirituall bodie, buried in dishonour, raised in glory: that is, easily capable of good, and (as being impassible) no way subiect to suffer euill, inso much that it cannot be hurt, if it should be cast into <sup>g</sup> hell fire, no more than Shadrach, Mesech, and Abednego were

f Rom 8. 13.

i Cor. 15. 43.

Psal. 55. 15.

* Matth. 28 9
Luk 24. 17.
Iohn 20. 15.
Acts 1. 3.

y Esay 6. 6.

z Cap 19.

a In vita Fran
cap. 5.b Apoc. 4. 8
c Apoc. 5. 13.

d Dan 3. 5.

e August. conf. 8.
lib. 10. cap. 33.

f i Cor. 15. 53.

g Claud. Vixm.
instit. de penit.
part. 6. cap. vlt.

hurt in the burning oven, Dan. 3. In one word, God is not only to the soules, but also to the bodies of the Saints all in all things; a glasse to their sight, honie to their taste, musicke to their hearing, balme to their smelling. See 10. de Comb. compend. Theolog. lib. 7. cap. 27. 28. Claudius Vixmontius instit. de penit. part. 6. cap. 8. in fine. Dionysius Carthus in 4. sent. dist. 44. art. 4. Dom. à Soto in 4. sent. dist. 49. quest. 4. art. 5. Bellarmin. de felicitate aeterna lib. 4. cap. 7. 8.

As heauen affordeth a fulnesse of ioy in all things; euen so likewise a fulnesse of ioyes at all times, for the pleasures at Gods right hand endure not only for a day, or a weeke, or a moneth, or a yeere, or an age; but for euermore. Now saith our Prophet, one day spent in the courts of the Lord is better than a thousand in the tents of ungodlinesse: it may be said of worldly pleasure, so well as of worldly paine, si longus est, lenis est, si grauis est, breuis est, if long, it is but little; if great, but short; like lightning, simul oritur & moritur: but the pleasures at Gods right hand are more, continuing also for euermore. <sup>i</sup> It is reported fabulously, that the ghost of S. Hierome appeared once to S. Augustine, when he was writing a Treatise concerning the fulnesse of ioy which is in Gods presence, saying, ô Augustine, Augustine, what doe you meane, can you <sup>k</sup>measure the waters in your fist, and mete out heauen with your span, or weigh the mountaines in scales, and the hills in a ballance? Remember the text, mans eye hath not seene, mans eare not heard, mans heart not thoughtly conceived those things which Almighty God hath prepared for such as loue him. I pray continue your good courses of life, be stedfast and abundant alwayes in the work of the Lord, that you may hereafter vpon Gods holy hill enjoy that to the full, which in this earthly tabernacle now you can know but in part. Hauing therefore spoken enough of this argument by way of explication, I come to the doctrines application.

1. This doctrine should stirre vs vp to repentance; for, as the blessed <sup>l</sup> Apostle doth exhort, seeing we haue these promises, let vs cleanse our selues from all filthinesse of the flesh and spirit, and grow vp vnto full holinesse in the feare of God: without holinesse it is impossible to please God, Heb. 12. 14. for without shall be dogs, and enchanters, and whoremongers, and murderers, and Idolaters, and wholoouer loueth or maketh lies, Apoc. 22. 15. the works <sup>m</sup> of the flesh are manifest; adulterie, fornication, vncleannesse, wantonneffe, idolatrie, witchcraft, enmie, murder, drunkennesse, and such like, and they that doe such things shall not inherit the kingdome of God; not all that haue done these things once, twice, thrice, for in <sup>n</sup> many things al of vs offend, and euery age euen in the <sup>o</sup> faithfull hath his peculiar fault and follie; but only such as doe, <sup>p</sup> noting a present and a continuall act of doing amisse, as if the spirit should haue said, all they that doe this, and die thus in their sinne without repentance, shall not be inheritors of the kingdome of God. As the <sup>q</sup> Eagle then casteth off her beake, and so renueth her youth, and the <sup>r</sup> Snake strippeth off all her old skin, and so maketh her selfe smooth: euen so he that will enter into the ioyes of God, and rest vpon his holy mountaine, must (as the <sup>s</sup> Scripture speakes) put off the old man, and put on the new, which after God is created in righteousnesse and true holinesse, repenting truly, speedily, stedily.

Fourre things are required in true repentance, } Contrition.
Confession.
Satisfaction or amendment of life Faith.

For the first, such as eat the bread of wickednesse, and drink the wine of violence, Prou. 4. 17. must haue their diet changed into that of the Prophet <sup>u</sup> David, I haue eaten ashes as it were bread, and mingled my drinke with weeping, and then a broken and a contrite heart is an acceptable sacrifice to God, Psa. 51. 17.

2. We must acknowledge our sinnes to God, and man; vnto God, as being the partie most offended, against thee only (saith our Prophet) haue I sinned, and done this euill in thy sight, and therefore haue mercy vpon me, ô God, after thy great goodnesse, and according to the multitude of thy mercies, put away mine offences. And the confession of the Publican (ô God be mercifull vnto me a sinner) is highly commended by Christ, Luk. 18. 14. The Fathers vnto the same purpose say, <sup>b</sup> Psa. 84. 10.

<sup>i</sup> Dionys. Carthus de quatuor nouiss part 4. tit 10. in fine.
<sup>k</sup> Esay 40. 12.

<sup>l</sup> 2 Cor. 7. 1.

<sup>m</sup> Galat. 5. 19.

<sup>n</sup> James 3. 2.
<sup>o</sup> Luther. in Galat.
<sup>p</sup> Perkins in Galat.
<sup>q</sup> Psa. 103. 9.
<sup>r</sup> Plin. hist. lib 8. cap 27.

<sup>s</sup> Eph. 4. 22. 24.

<sup>t</sup> Church hom. of repentance, part 2. Idem Tindall prolog. in Mat. h.
<sup>u</sup> Psa. 102. 9.

<sup>a</sup> Tu agnosce, & Dominus ignosce, if we confesse our finnes, God is faithfull and iust of his promise to forgine vs our finnes, 1 Ioh. 1. 9. ¶ initium salutis est sui ipsius accusatio, the first degree (saith <sup>2</sup> Cyprian) of happinesse is not to sinne, and the second to confesse our sinne.

We must acknowledge our faults also to men, as S. James teacheth in his Epistle chap. 5. verse 16. confesse your faults one to another, his intent is not to iustifie popish auricular confession vnto the Priests only, for (as <sup>a</sup> one well obserueth vpon the place) the word one to another, ad alterum imports plainly that the Priests are bound to confesse themselues vnto the Lay-men, as the Lay-men are bound to confesse themselves vnto the Priests; his meaning is that all men ought acknowledge their faults one to another out of charity, when as they haue trespassed one against another, and vnto some learned and discreet Pastor for comfort and aduice when as they feele their consciences afflicted with any grieuous temptation and trouble, that is the <sup>b</sup> reuel of our Church, agreeable to the confessions of other reformed Churches, as to the confession of Helueria, cap. 14. of Bohemiah, cap. 5. of Affurg, art. 11. of Saxony art. 16. as you may read Harm. confess. sect. 3.

3. To confession of sinne, and contrition for sinne, we must adioyne newnesse of life, making restitution in cases of oppression, and giuing our members as <sup>d</sup> weapons of righteousness to God: otherwise Saint <sup>c</sup> Augustine telleth vs, non agitur. sed fingitur pœnitentia.

4. To these three commonly set downe by the Schoolmen, our <sup>f</sup> Church addeth a liuely faith in the worlds Saviour for the full and free pardon of all our finnes, without which all the rest is Iudas-like repentance, for Iudas had contrition for his sinne, in that <sup>g</sup> he repented himselfe when he saw Iesus condemned: and he confessed his sinne in saying, I haue sinned in betraying his innocent blond: and he made satisfaction and restitution so farre as he could in bringing againe the thirty peeces of silver to the chiefe Priests and Elders. but hee wanted faith

As it is required in repentance that it be true, so likewise speedy, for pœnitentia serararo vera, repentance deferred to the last houre many time is more forced and fained than sound and safe, for the Hypocrite who deceiueth other in his life, may deceiue himselfe in his death. That Carrier is a foole who being to goe a farre and a foule iourney, will lay the heauiest burthen vpon the weakest horse; and that Christian is vnwise who doth intend to lay the great load of repentance vpon his faint and feeble dotage, whereas in the chiefe strength of his youth he cannot lift it easily, but is ready to stagger vnder it. Almighty God euer required in his seruice the first <sup>b</sup> fruits, and the first <sup>i</sup> borne, the <sup>k</sup> firstlings are his darlings, the fattest lambes are the fittest for his sacrifice. If the <sup>l</sup> King of Babel would haue young men, well fauoured, without blemish, and such as had great ability to stand in his palace: shall the God of Israel, euen the King of glory, haue none to stand in his Courts but the blinde and the lame, such as the soule of Dauid, hated, 2 Sam. 5. 8. ye shall not see my face (said <sup>m</sup> Ioseph to his brethren) except you bring your younger brother with you. And how shall we behold the face of our Iesus, if we doe not <sup>n</sup> remember him in the daies of our youth, if we dedicate to the deuill our louely younger yeeres, and offer vnto him nothing else but our loathed old age.

Speedy repentance must also be steady, for what a shame will it be to <sup>o</sup> begin in the spirit and end in the flesh? what a shame will it be to play <sup>p</sup> Demas part, who first hearkned vnto the Gospell, and afterward embraced the present world, like to <sup>q</sup> Caitiline, qui bonis inijs malis exitus habuit. What a shame will it be after thou hast fed on Angels bread to lust againe for the <sup>r</sup> Carlecke and Onions of Egypt, after thou hast escaped the filthinesse of the world, tasted of the good word of God, and of the ioyes to come, to reuolt from the holy commandement, and with the <sup>t</sup> dog to returne to his vomit, and with the swine to his wallowing in the mire, like the starres which at the first moue swiftly, but anon become retrograde, and moue twise so fast backward. <sup>u</sup> Bernard truly, that it is worse recidere quam incidere, but he that continues faithfull vnto death is sure to receiue the crowne of life, Reuel. 2. 10.

Secondly, the consideration of the full ioyes in that other world should teach vs

not

<sup>1</sup> Au. lib. form.
88. de temp.
<sup>2</sup> Nilus in sent.
sacris.
<sup>3</sup> Epist lib. 1.
epist 3.

<sup>a</sup> Doctor Fulke.

<sup>b</sup> Church hom.
ubi sup. and in the com book
Tu Visitation of the sicke.

<sup>c</sup> See Epist. 1.
Sun. in Aduent

<sup>d</sup> Rom. 6. 13.

<sup>e</sup> Epist 54.

<sup>f</sup> Vbi sup.

<sup>g</sup> Matth. 27. 3

<sup>b</sup> Exod. 3. 19.

<sup>i</sup> Exod. 13. 2.

<sup>k</sup> Gen 4. 4.

<sup>l</sup> Dan. 1. 4.

<sup>m</sup> Gen 43. 3.

<sup>n</sup> Ecclesiastes
12. 1.

<sup>o</sup> Galat 3. 3.

<sup>p</sup> 2 Tim. 4. 10

<sup>q</sup> Salustius.

<sup>r</sup> Num. 11. 5.

<sup>t</sup> Heb 6. 5.

<sup>u</sup> 2 Pet. 2. 23.

<sup>v</sup> Ser. 54. sup.
Carli.

<sup>a</sup> Philip. 3. 8.

not to loue the momentanie pleasures of sinne, and empty vanities of this world, but esteeme them all lesse to, <sup>a</sup> winne Christ. Heauen is large, long, high, and deepe: large, for that it containeth all the goodnesse that we can imagine, yea more than we can imagine, a fulnesse of ioy. Long, because the pleasures thereof are for euermore. High, as being the blessing of Gods right hand. Deepe, because these beatitudes are pure good in Gods presence without any mixture of euill. On the contrarie, the commodities of this life haue none of these conditions, for they be few, little, short, and mixed alway with anguish and vexation of spirit; and likewise the euils of this world in comparison are few, little, short, and tempered alway with some consolation. Whereupon we may conclude that all those haue truly lost their wits, who for loue of the commodities of this life, or for feare of present tribulations, lose the happinesse, or fall into the miseries of the world to come.

<sup>y</sup> 2 Chro 15. 7.

<sup>z</sup> 1 Cor. 15. 58

<sup>a</sup> 1 Cor. 9. 24.

<sup>b</sup> Psal 119. 32.

3. The consideration of this heauenly doctrine should encourage vs to contend earnestly for so great a glory, for such a fulnesse of ioy, be <sup>y</sup> strong then, and let not your heart be weake, for your worke shall haue a reward: be <sup>z</sup> stedfast and alwaies abundant in the businesse of the Lord, for as much as you know that your labour is not in vaine in the Lord. <sup>a</sup> Know you not that they which runne in a race, runne all, and yet but one receiues the prize? but we may so runne the <sup>b</sup> way of Gods holy commandements, as that all of vs may win the prize, which is not a corruptible crowne, but an incorruptible, pleasures at his right hand for euermore.

<sup>c</sup> Heb. 12. 1.

<sup>d</sup> Rom. 8. 18.

<sup>e</sup> Mat. 5. 11.

4. This may teach vs to runne with <sup>e</sup> patience the race that is set before vs, as being assured that the <sup>d</sup> present afflictions are nothing in comparison of the glory which shall be shewed vnto vs: blessed are yee (saith our blessed <sup>e</sup> Saviour) when men reuile you, and persecute you, saying all manner of euill against you for my sake falsely, reioyce and be glad, for great is your reward in Heauen.

<sup>f</sup> Arctius in

1 Cor 15: 28.

<sup>g</sup> Luther in

loc. ad Corinth.

ubi sup.

5. This doctrine should enflame our loue to God, who gaue for vs his owne Sonne, in his kingdome of grace, that he might giue his owne selfe vnto vs in his kingdome of glory, promising that he will be to his Saints all in all, his presence being so <sup>f</sup> preferuatiue, that they shall haue need of none other helpe to keepe them from all euill: and his right hand so full of ioy, <sup>g</sup> that they can neither want nor wish any further good. S. Paul in expectation of this vnspeakable ioy, desired to be loosed, and to be with Christ, Phil. 1. 22. and our Prophet said, as the Hart desireth the water brookes, euen so longeth mine heart after thee, o God, Psalm. 42. 1. and the whole Church prayeth, Apoc. 22. 20. Come Lord Iesus, euen so come quickly sweet Iesu, that we may possesse the fulnesse of thy ioyes, and the pleasures at thy right hand for euermore.

Almighty Lord, which art the Father of mercies, and God of all comfort, grant vnto thy people, that they may loue the thing which thou commandest, and desire that which thou doest promise, that among the manifold changes of the world, our hearts may surely there be fixed, where full and true ioyes are to be found, through Iesus Christ our Lord, Amen.

PSALM. 24.

The earth is the Lords, and all that therein is, the compasse of the world, and they that dwell therein, &c.

THe kingdome of Christ is described in this hymne two manner of waies;

1. In respect of his subiects, from the first verse to the seuenth.

2. In respect of his entrance into his kingdome, from the seuenth to the Psalmes end.

One by nature, for the whole world is the Lords, and all that there in is, verſe 1, 2.
 His ſubiectſ } are of 2. ſortſ : } Another by grace, which aſcend into the hill of the Lord, and riſe vp in his holy place, the generation of ſuch as ſecke him in a liuely faith, apprehending his ſure promiſe made to Iacob.

{ Cleaſneſſe of hands.
 { Pureneſſe of heart.
 { Trueneſſe of tongue, neither blaſpheming God, nor deceiuing their neighbour.

The earth is the Lords<sup>h</sup> that is, Chriffs, which is the Lord of Lords, Apoc. 19. 16. for the whole world, and all the things therein are his by a two-fold title.

Fiſt by donation of God his Father, hauing<sup>i</sup> all power giuen vnto him in heauen and in earth, euen whatſoener things the father hath are his, Ioh. 16. 15. and ſo conſequently, made heire of all things, Heb. 1. 2.

Secondly, the earth is Chriffs, and all that therein is, by right of<sup>k</sup> creation, for he founded it, ſaith our Prophet, and that after a wonderfull manner, vpon the ſeas and floods. The waters which as philoſophie teacheth vs, are higher than the earth, and as the<sup>l</sup> Scripture telleth vs alſo, naturally would ſtand vpon the mountaines, are by the word of God gathered together, and thruſt vnder the ground, that the drie land might appeare, and ſo be made habitable, Gen. 1. 9. Exod. 20. 4. and theſe which haply ſeeme a moſt inept and weake foundation, are ſirme baſes, Pſalm. 104. 5. and mighty foundations, Micha 6. 2. to magnifie Gods power and prouidence, who as he<sup>m</sup> brought light out of darkneſſe, ſo fetlerh he the ſolid earth on the liquid waters, yea, he kangeh the earth vpon nothing, Iob 26. 7. this founding the land vpon the ſeas, and preparing it vpon the floods, is ſo wonderfully wonderfull, that Almighty God asked his ſeruant Iob, wherevpon are the foundations thereofſet, and who laid the corner ſtone ihercof, Iob 38. 6.

<sup>n</sup> Xerxes commanded his ſouldiers to fetter the waters of Hellespontus : and ſo God bindeth, as it were, the floods in fetters, as<sup>o</sup> S. Baſil plainly, Ligatum eſt mare precepto Creatoris quaſi compedibus, he ſaith vnto the ſea, Hitherto ſhalt thou come, but no further, and here ſhall it ſtay thy proud waues. He gathereth the 9 waters of the ſea together, as it were vpon an heape, and liueh vp the deepe in his treaſure houſe, ſo that without his leaue, not ſo much as one drop can ouerflow the land.

All things then are Chriffs, in reſpect of creation, <sup>r</sup> by whom all things were made : in reſpect of ſuſtentation, as <sup>s</sup> vpholding all things by his mighty word : in reſpect of adminiſtration, as <sup>t</sup> reaching from one end to another, and ordering all things ſweetly : in one word, of him, and through him, and for him are all things, Rom. 11. 36.

I. From hence we may learne, that Chriſt is the King of glory, Lord of hoſts, euen Almighty God. For he that made all, is<sup>u</sup> Lord ouer all, he that is the Creator of heauen and earth is Almighty (ſaith our Creed) able to doe whatſoener he will, and<sup>x</sup> more than he will too : more by his abſolute power, than he will by his actual, able to<sup>y</sup> raiſe vp children vnto Abraham out of the very ſtones in the ſtreet, though he doe not actually produce ſuch a generation : his Almightineſſe, evidently proues him to be God, and his founding of the world his Almightineſſe, for the gods that haue not made the heauen and earth, ſhall periſh from the earth and from vnder heauen, Ierem. 10. 11.

2. Seeing the compaſſe of the world and all they that dwell therein are the Lords, it is plaine<sup>z</sup> that the Church is not confined within the limits of one region, or glued (as it were) to one ſeat only. The<sup>a</sup> Donatiſts in old time would tie the Church only to Cartenna in Africa, the Papiſts in our time to Rome in Italy : but the Scriptures affirme plainly that the<sup>b</sup> golden candle-ſtickes are remoued from one place to another, and that the<sup>c</sup> kingdome of God is taken away from one nation, and giuen vnto another country, that brings forth the fruit thereof, in euery region he that feareth God, and worketh righteouſneſſe, is accepted of him, Acts 10. 35.

<sup>b</sup> Turcicrenat. in loc.

<sup>i</sup> Mat. 28. 18.

<sup>k</sup> Meliorus. Calvin. Strigelius.

<sup>l</sup> Pſal. 104. 6.

<sup>m</sup> Gen. 1. 3. 4.

<sup>n</sup> Herodotus in Polymnia.

<sup>o</sup> In Hexamer. lib. 4.

<sup>p</sup> Iob 38. 11.

<sup>q</sup> Pſal. 37. 7.

<sup>r</sup> Iohn 1. 3.

<sup>s</sup> Heb 1. 3.

<sup>t</sup> Wiſd. 8. 1.

<sup>u</sup> Rom. 10. 12.

<sup>x</sup> Thom. part. 1. queſt. 15. art. 5.

<sup>y</sup> Matth 3. 9.

<sup>z</sup> Tileman.

<sup>a</sup> Auguſt.

Epif. 48.

<sup>b</sup> Apoc. 2. 1.

<sup>c</sup> Matth. 21. 43

3. S. Paul, 1 Cor. 10. 26. from hence doth argue, that all the creatures in the world may be vsed by Christians either for food or otherwise, seeing all is the Lords, and in Christ ours, 1 Cor. 3. 22. not as Anabaptists imagine fondly that all things ought to be common, and that the private possession of goods and lands is contrary to the rules of Christianity, for as <sup>d</sup> Diuines aptly distinguish, we haue in adrem, non in re: right to the thing, but not in the thing, vntill either by gift or guilt, by donation or emption it be made ours: as S. Paul insinuates in the cited place, whatsoeuer is sold in the shambles eat yee, making no question for conscience sake, for the earth is the Lords, and all that therein is. If meat be sold in the shambles, it is not thine till it be bought, or otherwise lawfully brought vnto thy table, thy right to these things in the Lord, is not contrary to the commandement of the Lord, saying expressly, Thou shalt not steale.

4. Mighty Monarchs and puissant Potentates <sup>e</sup> hence may learne that they be not absolute masters of the world, but only the <sup>f</sup> Ministers of God. Superior Magistrates are his Lieutenants, and inferiour Magistrates, as it were, his Deputy-Lieutenants, vnto whom as vnto the Lord of all things, and Iudge of all men, euery Prince must one day <sup>g</sup> render an account of his stewardship, be <sup>h</sup> wise therefore yee Kings, be learned yee that are Iudges of the earth, serue the Lord in feare, reioyce before him in trembling.

5. This may comfort poore <sup>i</sup> pilgrims in exile, thrust out of their houses and home, persecuted from City to City for the profession of Christs holy Gospell. If the whole world be Christs, how can they which are his, want any thing? he can, and (as it shall make most for his honour) he will also prouide for the banished, new houses, and new lands, and new goods, and new friends, and so restore to them (as he <sup>k</sup> promised) an hundred fold, blessing their <sup>l</sup> last daies more than their first: it is pithily said, bono cuiq; patria vbiq;, he that hath his conuersation in heauen, hath euery where land enough vpon earth.

Who shall ascend] All men are the subiects of Christ at large, subiect to the kingdome of his power, but all men are not the true subiects of Christ in his kingdome of grace. For all ascend not into the hill of the Lord, and among such as ascend, all stand not in his holy place, <sup>m</sup> that is, all men adioine not themselves vnto the Church, and a great many which are in the Church, are not of the Church. Infidels are not so much as in the Church, hypocrites howsoeuer in the Church, are no true members of the Church; according to that of <sup>n</sup> Paul, all are not Israel which are of Israel: all such as come to the hill of the Lord, stand not in his holy place, for some beleeue but a <sup>o</sup> season, and few continue <sup>p</sup> faithfull vnto death: now the most infallible note and characters of such as both ascend and stand in Gods holy hill, are three; Cleannesse of hands; Purenesse of heart, and Truth of tongue, the which are reduced by Diuines vsually to these two; true <sup>q</sup> faith, and a good conscience. For that is a pure heart which is purified by faith, Act. 15. 9. and a lively faith is made knowne to the world by good workes, and by good words, as our Prophet here, by cleannesse of hands and trunesse of speech, as the Scripture teacheth vs, out of our hearts abundance the hand worketh, and the tongue speaketh, Matth. 12. 34.

Faith in the very act of our iustification is like <sup>r</sup> Iudeth, it cuts of Holofernes head alone, she commandeth all her attendants, as well great as little, to stand without her tent, and to goe forth of her presence: but when once the deed is done, when the <sup>s</sup> serpents head is broken, and <sup>t</sup> trod vnder feet, her whole troope runs to her, and stands about her: albeit faith apprehending Gods sure mercy for the full and free pardon of all our sinnes is in our iustification Sola, yet in our conuersation it is not Solitaria, but accompanied euer with a cleannesse of hands, which is ready to do that which is right, and with a graciousnesse of tongue, which is ready to speake that which is true, neither deceiuing our neighbour, nor blaspheming God, by lifting up his soule vnto vanity, that is, taking his name in vaine, for so <sup>u</sup> some Diuines expound it.

Such as haue cleane hands and a pure heart, receive the blessing from the Lord, and righteousnesse from the God of their salvation, hauing the promise both of the life present

<sup>d</sup> Mollerus in loc.

<sup>e</sup> Tileman.

Mollerus.

<sup>f</sup> Rom. 13. 4.

<sup>g</sup> Luk 26. 2.

<sup>h</sup> Psa. 2. 10.

<sup>i</sup> Mollerus.

Tileman.

<sup>k</sup> Marke 10.

30.

<sup>l</sup> Job 42. 13.

<sup>m</sup> Mollerus.

<sup>n</sup> Rom 9. 6.

<sup>o</sup> Mat. 13. 21.

<sup>p</sup> Apoc. 2. 10.

<sup>q</sup> 1 Tim 1. 16.

<sup>r</sup> Iudeth 13.

3. 4.

<sup>s</sup> Gen. 3. 15.

<sup>t</sup> Rom. 16. 20.

<sup>u</sup> See Bucer.

Mollerus.

Caluin.

Steuchus.

Bellarmin.

Genebrard.

Agellius in loc.

present and of that which is to come, 1 Tim. 4. 8. they are the generation of those that seeke him, euen of those that seeke thy face, O Iacob,<sup>a</sup> that is, these are Iacob, euen y true Israelites whom the Lord will acknowledge for his owne: they seeke God in this life, but they shall see him in the next<sup>z</sup> face to face: for as<sup>a</sup> Iacob when he wrestled with an Angell, saw God, and called the place Peniel, that is, Gods face or presence: so they who seeke the Lord with innocent hands and a pure heart, shall enjoy his presence and pleasures at his right hand for euermore: <sup>b</sup>or these men are the generation that seeke God, and embrace his promise concerning the redemption of the world made to the Patriarch Iacob: or as<sup>c</sup> other, they shall seeke thy face, O Iacob, that is, O God of Iacob, or the face of the<sup>d</sup> God of Iacob, or they seeke the face of Iacob,<sup>e</sup> that is, Gods Elect in the celestiaall Ierusalem: the which is all one with the former interpretation, because none shall euer behold the face of Iacob in Hierusalem above, but such as behold the face of the God of Iacob, the contemplation whereof is the sole blessednesse and fulnesse of ioy to Iacob.

Now let vs examine whether these characters of the true Church agree to the Papists, insolently boasting of the Churches notes and name more than all other Christians in the world: haue they cleane hands, which are<sup>f</sup> drunken with the bloud of Saints, and with the bloud of the Martyrs of Iesus Christ? haue they cleane hands, whose thasies are thasiacres, in crucifying Christ againe for the sinnes of the quicke and dead, contrary to the Text once for all? haue they cleane hands, whose pens openly maintaine the doctrine of King-killing? haue they cleane hands,<sup>h</sup> whose most holy fathers haue committed all vncleannesse, euen with greedinesse? are their hearts pure, not lifted up to vanity, when as they be<sup>i</sup> Pompifices rather than Pontifices, in brauery<sup>k</sup> succeeding rather Constantine a puissant Emperour, than Peter a poore Fisher? are not their hearts lift up vnto vanity, who pray to Saints as to Sauours, adoring Idols and creeeping to crosses? are not their hearts lift up vnto vanitie, who contradict<sup>l</sup> verity, making the traditions of men equall to the commandements of God? and is not their tongue deceiuing, who terme the true faith a faction, and the Gospell heresie? and is not their tongue deceiuing, who make lying equiuocation a liberall Art? is not their tongue deceiuing, who speake<sup>m</sup> friendly to their neighbours, and imagine mischief in their hearts; openly pretending instruction, and yet seerely procuring, so much as they may, destruction of our Church and country? <sup>n</sup>Bernard in these respects and in many moe, had iust cause to cry out, O miserandam sponsam talibus creditam paranympis.

Lift up your heads, o ye gates] Most of the Jewish<sup>a</sup> Rabbins in old time, and many<sup>o</sup> Christian Doctors in our time, haue construed this, as spoken in a propopais to the gates of the holy temple to be builded by Salamon, into which Gods Ark should enter: and the Prophet calls them eueralsting doores, in comparison of the tabernacle that was a moueable house sitting and vsitied, for Gods Arke was tossed vp and downe, from the wilderness to Gilgal, and from Gilgal to Shiloh, and from Shiloh to the land of the Philistims, and from thence to Bethschemech, and to Kiriatihiarim, it neuer had any sure footing vntill Almighty God had<sup>p</sup> chosen Mount Sion to be an habitation for himselfe, saying, this shall be my rest for euer, here will I dwell, and my people shall v more no more. These doores then are termed eueralsting, not that they could or should continue for euer, but for a long season, euen vntill the<sup>r</sup> fulnesse of time was come, when our blessed Sauour Christ Iesus, as being the truth of these types, entred into the Holiest of Holies, and obtained eternall redemption for vs, Heb. 9. 12.

Melancthon, Hen. Mollerus, and<sup>s</sup> many moe by these gates vnderstand Kings and Princes vpon earth, because Magistrates in these Easterne countreyes vsed to giue iudgement in the gates of the city, according to that of<sup>t</sup> Amos, establish iudgement in the gates:<sup>u</sup> or because the care of opening the gates of heauen is committed vnto them, as being the Lord-keepers of both the tables of the Law, that their subiects and people may lead vnder them a peaceable life in all godlinesse and honesty, 1 Tim. 2. 2. our Prophet therefore doth exhort all higher Powers and Potentates to giue free passage to the Gospell of Christ, as it were, to set open the gates of their city, that

<sup>a</sup> Mollerus. Bucer.

<sup>b</sup> R. Stephanus. <sup>z</sup> Ioh 1. 47.

<sup>c</sup> 1 Cor 13. 12

<sup>d</sup> Gen 32.

<sup>e</sup> Tileman.

<sup>c</sup> New translation in English margin.

<sup>l</sup> Idem annotat. Moller & alij.

<sup>d</sup> Septuagint.

<sup>h</sup> Placidus.

<sup>i</sup> Agellius.

<sup>k</sup> Bellarmia.

<sup>l</sup> Apoc 17. 6.

<sup>h</sup> Heb 9. 26.

<sup>h</sup> See Bellarm. profat. lib. 1. de Rom. Pont & 10. de Turrecre. sum. de Ecclesia lib. 2. cap. 103.

<sup>l</sup> Berengarius apud Coserum prof. de moribus heretic.

<sup>k</sup> Bernard. de considerat. lib.

<sup>l</sup> 4. cap 3.

<sup>l</sup> Psal. 28. 3.

<sup>m</sup> De consider. lib. 3. cap. 5.

<sup>n</sup> Apud Agellium & Genebrard in loc.

<sup>o</sup> Bucer.

<sup>o</sup> Caluin.

<sup>o</sup> Wileox.

<sup>p</sup> Psal. 132. 14.

<sup>q</sup> 2 Sam. 7. 10.

<sup>r</sup> Gal 4. 4.

<sup>s</sup> Strigellius.

<sup>s</sup> Tileman.

<sup>s</sup> Genebrard.

<sup>t</sup> Amos 5. 15.

<sup>t</sup> Deut. 21. 19.

<sup>t</sup> 2 Sam. 19. 8.

<sup>u</sup> Placidus

<sup>u</sup> in loc.

<sup>x</sup> Cel. 3. 16.
<sup>y</sup> Mollerus.

<sup>z</sup> Rom 1. 16.
<sup>a</sup> 2 Tim 3. 17.

<sup>b</sup> Tremell.
Wilcox.

<sup>c</sup> Luk 7. 44.
<sup>d</sup> Matth. 8. 8.

<sup>e</sup> Ioh. 11. 11. 15
<sup>f</sup> Luk. 10. 38.
<sup>g</sup> Ephes 3. 17.
<sup>h</sup> 1 Cor. 6. 19.

<sup>i</sup> Auguß. in loc.

<sup>k</sup> Arnob. in loc.

<sup>l</sup> Mark. 1. 24.

<sup>m</sup> Iob 21. 14.

<sup>n</sup> See Dr. Huls
Ser. Mans heart
Christs home.
<sup>o</sup> Ruth. 1. 16.

<sup>p</sup> Philip 1. 23.
<sup>q</sup> 2 Sam. 15. 21

<sup>r</sup> Psal. 18. 47.

<sup>s</sup> Psal. 25. 1.

<sup>t</sup> Esay 55. 6.

<sup>u</sup> In Dialog.
cum Triphon.

<sup>x</sup> In loc.

<sup>y</sup> Basil.
Stenchus.
Agellius.
Bellarmin.
omnes patres
vni Genebrard.
in loc.

<sup>z</sup> 2 Cor. 15. 20.

that the King of glory may come in, and that his word may dwell <sup>x</sup> among them plentifully. <sup>y</sup> So this part of the Psalme doth answer the former aptly, for seeing the earth is the Lords, and all that is therein; it is fit that all higher powers should be subiect vnto the highest power, and that they should lay downe their crownes and scepters at his feet, which is the King of Kings, and Lord of hosts. Againe, seeing none can ascend the hill of the Lord, and stand in his holy place, but such as haue cleane hands and a pure heart: it is necessary that Princes should entertaine Christs Gospell, which is the <sup>z</sup> power of God vnto saluation, <sup>a</sup> able to make the man of God absolutely furnished vnto all good workes. If they will not perish from the right way, they must of necessity kisse the Sonne, Psalm. 2. 12. if they will enter into the gates of the Citie of God, they must open the gates of their owne Citie to God.

<sup>b</sup> Other interpret this of the doores of our heart, according to that Apoc. 3. 20. Behold, I stand at the doore and knocke, if any man heare my voice, and open the doore, I will come in vnto him, &c. In the Gospels history we finde that Christ had a fourfold entertainment among men. Some receiued him into house, not into heart, as <sup>c</sup> Simon the Pharisee, who gaue him no kisse, nor water to his feet: some into heart, but not into house, as the faithfull <sup>d</sup> Centurion, esteeming himselfe unworthy that Christ should come vnder his roofesome neither into house nor heart, as the gracelesse Gergesites, Matth. 8. 34. some both into house and heart, as <sup>e</sup> Lazarus, <sup>f</sup> Mary, <sup>g</sup> Martha. Now that Christ may <sup>g</sup> dwell in our hearts by faith, and that our bodies may be <sup>h</sup> temples of his holy Spirit; we must as our Prophet exhorts here, lift vp our soules, that is, in the words of S. Paul, Col. 3. 2. our affections must be set on things which are aboue, and not on things which are on earth, if we desire to lift vp our heart vnto Christs verity, we may not lift it vp vnto the worlds vanity, <sup>i</sup> that is, we must not fasten our loue too much vpon the things of this life, but on those pleasures at Gods right hand, which are euermore, that <sup>k</sup> as we haue borne the image of the first Adam, who was earthly, so we should beare the image of the second Adam, which is heavenly, 1 Cor. 15. 49. the prophane worldling sings a Nunc dimittis vnto Christ, and saith as the Devils, <sup>l</sup> Ab what haue we to do with thee, thou Iesus of Nazareth, and as <sup>m</sup> Iob reports his words, depari from vs, for we desire not the knowledge of thy waies. On the contrary, the religious soule enjoying the possession of her Sauiour, chanteth a merry <sup>n</sup> Magnificat, and a pleasant Te Deum: she saith vnto Christ, as <sup>o</sup> Ruth vnto Naomi, Intreat me not to leaue thee, nor to depart from thee, for whither thou goest, I desire to go, the Lord doe so to me, and more also, if ought but death diuide me from thee. Nay, death it selfe shall not part vs, for when I am loosed out of my bodies prison, I hope to be <sup>p</sup> with my Christ; as <sup>q</sup> Itai then vnto Dauid, I say to my Iesus, As the Lord liueth, and as my Lord the King liueth, in what place my Lord is, there shall thy seruant be whether it be in life or death.

O Lord, which art the God of my <sup>r</sup> saluation, I <sup>s</sup> lift my heart to thee, desirous to seeke thee, both in the right vbi, where thou maist be found, and in the right quando, <sup>t</sup> while thou maist be found: open my dull eares, and hard heart, that thy Sonne my Sauiour may come in and dwell with me: grant me grace that I may still heare while he calleth, open while he knocketh, and hold him also when I haue him, that I may both ascend thine hill, and stand in thine holy place, that I may not only sojourne in thy tabernacle, but also rest and dwell vpon the mountaine of thine holinesse.

<sup>u</sup> Iustin Martyr, <sup>x</sup> Euthymius, and <sup>y</sup> other, as well ancient as moderne Interpreters, expound this of Christs ascending into the heauen of heauens, whose gates were shut, vntill he which is the <sup>z</sup> first fruits of the dead opened them vnto true beleeuers: to say that the soules of the holy Fathers dying before Christ, enioyed not Gods presence, but that they were locked vp in Limbo patrum, a corner of hell, is a popish error contrary to the word of God, Ecclesiastes 12. 7. Matth. 8. 11. Luk. 16. 23. Luk. 23. 43. affirming that they returned vnto God who gaue them, and that they rested in the kingdome of heauen, in Abrahams bosome, in Paradise, where they could not suffer any paines either offense or losse, they were doubtlesse in heauen, (generally so taken) that is, in a blessed estate, because they died in the Lord: yet to say that they went not immediatly to heauen (properly so called) vntill our blessed Sauour, the King of glory, did ascend and open those gates and euerlasting doores, is an opinion<sup>a</sup> haply that seemeth agreeable to the Scriptures, Heb. 9.8. & 10.20. & 11.39.40. Ioh. 3.13.14.3. and to the Fathers, Chrysol. in Luc. 16. de diuine, & in Epist. ad Heb. cap. 9. ver. 9. & cap. 10. vers. 20. & operis imperfecti in cap. 3. Matth. Basil. in Psal. 48. Epiph. heres. 46. contra Tatianos. Iustin. in Dialog. cum Tryphone. Augustin. epist. 57. ad Dardanum, & 99 ad Euodium, & de Genes. ad lit. lib. 8. cap. 5. Hierom. in epist. Nepotian. ad Heliod. tom. 1. pag. 21. Ambros. de fide lib. 4. cap. 1. Trimasius in epist. ad Heb. cap. 8. vers. 9. & cap. 10. vers. 20.

So that the Prophet here bringeth in a great many glorious Angels attending Christ in his ascension, and saying to the rest of the celestiall Hierarchy, Lift vp your heads, o ye gates, and be ye lift vp you euerlasting doores, and the King of glory shall come in. Heauen gates are called euerlasting, because they shall endure for euer, or because they be the doores into the life which is euerlasting.

Who is the King of glory? ] Christ in two respects is the King of glory. 1. For that all honour and glory belongs properly to him,<sup>b</sup> his is the kingdome, the power, and the glory, called in this regard the Lord of glory, 1 Cor. 2.8.

Secondly, for that Christ maketh vs partakers of his glory, termed in this respect our glorious Lord Iesus, Iam. 2.1. If the Lord of hosts, strong and mighty in battell, be the King of glory, then Christ (hauing conquered all his enemies, and made them his foot-stoole, triumphing ouer death, and the deuill which is the founder of death, and sinne which is the sting of death, and the graue which is the prison of death, and hell it selfe which is the proper dominion of the deuill and death) is doubtlesse in himselfe the king of glory: and for as much as he died for our sinnes, and is risen againe for our iustification, and is ascended on high to giue gifts vnto men, in this life<sup>c</sup> grace, in the next<sup>d</sup> glory, what is he lesse than a King of glory toward vs, of whom, and through whom alone we that fight his battels are deliuered from the hands of all that hate vs, and so made victors, 1 Cor. 15.57. yea more than conquestours, Rom. 8.37.

<sup>a</sup> Melius est dubitare de occultis quam litigare de incertis August de Gen ad lit. lib 8. cap. 5.

<sup>b</sup> Matth 6. 13.

<sup>c</sup> Eph 4. 8. 11.

<sup>d</sup> Iohn 14. 2.

PSALME 68.

Let God arise, and let his enemies be scattered, &c.

The Prophet in this Hymne respecting rather matter than method, doth vtter diuers things a little confusedly: yet his generall intent is to declare Gods almightie power and prouidence manifested in comforting his, and confounding their enemies; for which<sup>e</sup> mercy toward the one, and<sup>f</sup> iudgement towards the other, he callerh vpon all people, the faithfull especially, to sing praise and ascribe power vnto him. In the two former verses two persons are chiefly remarkable.

- |  |  |                    |   |   |
|--|--|--------------------|---|---|
| 1. God as agentdestroying, inwhom obserue,     | 1. His might, easily destroying such as hate him, he doth onely arise. | 2. His mercy,      | Patiendo, in his patience toward the wicked, he seemeth as it were to sleepe for a time, implied in the word exargat. | Faciendo, in his actions toward the godly, standing vp in his good time, reputing all their enemies, his enemies. |
|  |  |                    |   |   |
| 2. The wicked aspatient destroyed, inwhom note | 1. Their condition, enemies and haters of God.                         | 2. Their iudgment, | Great, <sup>h</sup> a foure-fold scourge,   | i Sudden, as the smoke driuen away with the winde, and like wax melting at the fire.                              |
|  |  |                    |   |   |

<sup>e</sup> Vers 3, 5, 6, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 19, 20, 22, 27.
<sup>f</sup> 1, 2, 6, 12, 21, 23, 30.
<sup>g</sup> Vers. 4, 19, 26, 32, 34.

<sup>h</sup> Placidus.
<sup>i</sup> Genebrard.
Willox.
Præcept & præsens interitus.
Tremell. in loc.

<sup>k</sup> Calvin.
Mollerus.

First, as concerning the mighty power of God,<sup>k</sup> he need not arme himselfe with any weapons, either offensive or defensue, it is enough if he doe but arise; sufficient if he moue but his little finger (as it were) yea, the very least of all the workes of his fingers: he which is the Lord of Hosts hath a great many royall armies to fight his battell, his chariots are twentie thousand, euen thousands of Angels, as it is in the 17. verse of this Psalme, he saith vnto this creature come, and it commeth; and to that goe, and it goeth; and to a third, do this, and it doth it. If he raise but an host of <sup>l</sup>frogs, or a swarme of flies, his enemies are scattered instantly, for it is <sup>m</sup>nothing with him to helpe with a great many men, or with no meanes. If he but <sup>n</sup>speake the word it is done, for as by his word he made the whole world, so by his word he can marre whatsoeuer is in the world: his power is called actuall, in doing whatsoeuer he will; and absolute, for that he can doe more than he will. His actuall power and reuealed will especially concerne vs in all the chances of this our life; so the Leper insinuates, Matth. 8. 2. Lord, if thou wilt thou canst make me cleane, not if thou canst thou wilt: he can (as the Papiests imagine) transubstantiate his flesh in the Sacrament, but we read not that he will: he can saue such as <sup>o</sup>despise the riches of his mercies, and abuse his grace to wantonnesse, at the last houre without any repentance, but we read not that he will: it is our comfort that he will (at what time soeuer a sinner repenteth him of his sinne from the bottome of his heart) put all his wickednesse out of his remembrance: it is our comfort that he will <sup>p</sup>heare vs, if we call vpon him in the time of trouble, gining vs <sup>q</sup>whatsoeuer we shall aske in his name: it is our comfort that God can arise, because he will arise; for seeing our father in heauen is able and willing, that is, able because willing to <sup>r</sup>lay hand vpon the shield and buckler, and to stand vpon for our helpe: why should we feare what eirther the malicious man, which in Scriptures is called a <sup>s</sup>deuill, or the deuill himselfe, which is termed a <sup>t</sup>malicious man, is able to wish or worke against vs. If God arise, then all his enemies, that is, our enemies <sup>u</sup>for his sake, shall instantly vanish as smoke before the winde, and as wax before the fire.

<sup>l</sup> Exod. 8.

<sup>m</sup> 2 Chron. 14.

<sup>n</sup> 11.

<sup>o</sup> Psal. 33. 9.

<sup>o</sup> Rom. 2. 4.

<sup>p</sup> Psal. 50. 15.

<sup>q</sup> Iohn 16. 23.

<sup>r</sup> Psal. 33. 2.

<sup>s</sup> Iohn. 6. 70.

<sup>t</sup> Matth. 13. 28

<sup>u</sup> Matth. 5. 11.

<sup>x</sup> Lorin in loc.

<sup>y</sup> Psal. 44. 23.

<sup>z</sup> 2 Pet. 3. 9.

<sup>a</sup> Iericho.

Iosua 6. 4.

<sup>b</sup> Psal. 103. 8.

The mercifulnes of God is seene first in his patience toward the wicked, <sup>x</sup>implied in the word arise, for he seemeth as it were to <sup>y</sup>sleepe, and not to marke what is done amisse. The Lord is <sup>z</sup>patient, and would haue none to perish, but would all men to come to repentance. He was longer in destroying <sup>a</sup>one Citie, than in building the whole world, slow to wrath, and ready to forgine, desiring not the death of a sinner, but rather he should amend. He doth not arise to particular punishments, much lesse to the generall iudgement, but after <sup>b</sup>long suffering and great goodnesse. O Hierusalem, Hierusalem, how often would I (quoth our Lord) haue gathered thy children together as the hen gathereth her chickens vnder her wings, and ye would not, Matth. 23. 37.

<sup>c</sup> Psal. 78. 66.

As the mercies of God are manifested in his patience toward the wicked, so likewise in his actions toward the godly: for as it is said in the 21. verte, he shall wound the head of his enemies, and the hairie scalpe of such an one as goeth on still in his wickednesse. If obstinate haters of God and godlinesse will not desist, but continue raging and raving against the Lords anointed, at length he will <sup>c</sup>awake as one out of sleepe, and as a Giant refreshed with wine, he will in his furie smite his enemies in the hinder parts, and put them to a perpetuall shame: their crying finnes make such an alarum in his eares, as that he will awake and arise too, for the protection of such as are <sup>d</sup>vpright in heart. We reade Mat. 8. that the ship of the Church is rossed with the waues of affliction, & with the boisterous windes of contrary doctrines in the troublesome sea of this world, and in the meane while Christ our great master seemes to sleepe; yet when we call and cry, Master, saue vs, or else we perish, he doth awake, and rebuke the windes, and the waues, and there followeth a great calme: <sup>e</sup>he that keepeth Israel doth neither slumber nor sleepe; I sleepe (saith our blessed <sup>f</sup>Sauour) but mine heart awaketh: our watchmen should wake in vaines, if the Lord did sleepe; the truth is, he doth arise while we rest. If the Lord himselfe had not beene on <sup>g</sup>our side, when our enemies rose vp against vs; had not he beene waking while we were sleeping, the furious and fierie gunpowder faction had swallowed vs vp quicke,

<sup>d</sup> Psal. 111. 2.

<sup>e</sup> Psal. 121. 4.

<sup>f</sup> Cant. 5. 2.

<sup>g</sup> Psal. 134.

quicke, when they were so wrathfully displeas'd at vs: and therefore let vs sing with our Prophet in the 19 verse of this Hymne, Praised be the Lord daily, euen the God, that helpeth vs, and powreth his benefits vpon vs.

<sup>b</sup> Interpreters obserue generally, that these words are borrowed from Moses, Numb. 10. 35. Arise Lord, and let thine enemies be scattered, and let them that hate thee fly before thee. This vndoubtedly was a very good praier in Moses,<sup>i</sup> but Dauid here by common experience proues that to be most true, which Moses heartily desired, namely, that the Lord ariseth and fighteth against all such as are enemies to his arke, haters of his Church, and despisers of his holy couenants. And therefore whereas some make these words<sup>ke</sup> either a prayer that Gods hatefull enemies may be destroyed, or a prophesie that they shall be destroyed; other make them a plaine proposition, and read them <sup>l</sup> Indicatiuely, God doth arise, Deus exurgit, or urgente Deo: The sense vpon the point is all one, for they who pray that God would arise, and they who confesse that he doth arise to scatter his enemies, ascribe both of them a commanding power to God ouer Israel: and therefore the Kings and Queenes of England vsed to stampe this sweet sentence vpon their coyne, Exurgat Deus, & dissipentur inimici: it is reported of the deuout<sup>m</sup> Antonius also, that he did coniure the Deuill in singing these word: and beloued, when our aduerfary doth assault vs at any time, let vs haue recourse to Gods buckler and book. If he tempt thee to commit Idolatry, heare what God saith vnto thee,<sup>n</sup> thou shalt worship me Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serue. If he tempt thee to couetousnesse, put on Gods armour and say, <sup>o</sup> Couetousnesse is the root of all euill, and they that will be rich fall into snares and into many foolish and noysome lusts, which drowne men in perdition and destruction. If he tempt thee to priuate reuenge, let God arise, who saith expressly, <sup>p</sup> vengeance is mine. If he tempt thee to the sin of incontinence, let God arise, who commands in his Law, Thou shalt not commit aulterrie, <sup>q</sup> know you not that your bodies are the temples of the Holy Ghost, and the members of Christ, shall I then take the members of Christ, and make them the members of an harlot? no, no, Let God arise, and so these raging lusts, and all other our enemies shall be disperfed.

In the wicked I haue noted first their condition, and then their punishment. Their condition is, that they be both enemies and haters of God. Enemies to God, <sup>r</sup> as being enemies to the children of God, for he that <sup>s</sup> hurteth his Prophets, and toucheth his anointed, is said to touch the <sup>t</sup> apple of his eye: this our blessed Sauiour did promise and praise: promise, <sup>u</sup> He that receiveth you, receiveth me, and he that <sup>x</sup> despiseth you, despiseth me: this he did also practise, for when <sup>y</sup> Saul breathed out threatnings and slaughter against the Disciples of the Lord, Christ appearing to him expressly said, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? because that which is done to the least of my brethren, I take it as done to my selfe, Matth. 25. 40.

Yea, but how can any wicked wretch hate God which is goodnesse it selfe? all the world calls for truth, <sup>1</sup> Esd. 4. 36. and God is truth, Ioh. 14. 6. <sup>2</sup> Answer is made, that Almighty God is considered two waies; in himselfe, and in his effects: as God is considered in himselfe and in his essence, none can hate him, as being goodnesse it selfe, for the Saints enjoying his presence, seeing him, <sup>a</sup> as he is <sup>b</sup> face to face, sing kalleluiah, saluation, and glory, and honour, be to the Lord our God, Apoc. 19. 1. but in this world God is considered <sup>c</sup> in his workes, and scene in his effects only. Whereof some be pleasing to the wicked, as breath and life, Act. 17. 25. suffering his sunne to arise, and his raine to fall on them, Matth. 5. 45. opening his hand and filling all things with his plenteousnesse, Psal. 145. 16. other effects of his are distastfull to mans inordinate will and corrupt affections, as the prohibition and punishment of sinne: and in these respects euery reprobate is an hater of God, and fighteth vnder the banner of his mortall enemy the deuill. Almighty God <sup>d</sup> hates nothing which he made, for all his creatures are good, yea very good, Gen. 1. 31. he hates onely sin in the reprobate which is a nothing, and considered as a thing that is not the worke of God, but of the deuill and darknesse. So the Lord is said to hate <sup>e</sup> feet that be swift in running to mischief. haughty eyes, a lying tongne, hands that shed innocent blood, an heart that imagines wicked enterprises, in a word, <sup>f</sup> he loneth righteousness,

<sup>b</sup> Bucer. Möllerus, Gaebrard. Lorin. Calvin.

<sup>k</sup> Rabbi Dauid. apud Eugubinum in loc. Idem annotat. Vasablu. Bucer. Vasablu. Tremellius.

<sup>m</sup> Athan. apud Bellar. in loc.

<sup>n</sup> Matth. 4. 10.

<sup>o</sup> 1 Tim. 6. 9 10

<sup>p</sup> Rom. 12. 19.

<sup>q</sup> 1 Cor. 6. 15.

<sup>r</sup> Möllerus. Calvin.

<sup>s</sup> Psal. 105. 15.

<sup>t</sup> Deut. 32. 10.

Zach. 2. 8.

<sup>u</sup> Matth. 10. 14.

<sup>x</sup> Luk. 10. 16.

<sup>y</sup> Act. 9. 1.

<sup>z</sup> Thomas 2 2a

quest. 34. art. 1.

& Lorin in loc.

<sup>a</sup> 1 Iohn 3. 2.

<sup>b</sup> 1 Cor. 13. 12.

<sup>c</sup> Rom. 1. 20.

<sup>d</sup> Wisd. 11. 21.

<sup>e</sup> Prou. 6. 16.

<sup>f</sup> Heb. 1. 9.

teousnesse, and hateth iniquitie, he hath no pleasure in wickednesse, he doth abhorre bloud-thirstie men, and all such as worke vanitie, Psal. 5. 4. God then hates the reprobate for their sinne, and the reprobate hate God as prohibiting and punishing their sinne, saying, Depart from vs, for we desire not the knowledge of thy wayes. If our soules abhorre the<sup>h</sup> works of the Nicolaitans, if we despise the wicked only because they be giuing ouer to commit all iniquitie with vsatiabie greedinesse; <sup>i</sup> assuredly we follow God as deere children, and we may well apply the words of our Prophet, Psal. 139. 21. Doe not I hate them, o Lord, that hate thee? yea Lord, I hate them right sore, euen as though they were mine enemies: and if the wicked despight and despise vs only for righteousnesse sake, reuiling vs, and persecuting vs, and speaking all manner of euill against vs in Gods cause falsely, let vs be glad and reioyce, for great is our reward in heauen, Mat. 5. 11, 12.

Now touching the punishments of such as hate God, the first is scattering, and woe to him that is alone, quoth<sup>k</sup> Salomon, a good man often wants comfort, when he wants companie, much more the wicked afflicted with outward dangers, and affrighted with inward terrors of an hellish conscience. There is a great griefe when old friends part, greater when a man and his wife part, greatest of all when the soule and the bodie part, because these haue liued long, and tooke sweet counsell together. And so doubtlesse it is an intolerable discomfort to the wicked, to be scattered one from another, who did<sup>l</sup> furiously rage together, and runne together against the Lord and against his annointed.

The second punishment of the wicked is flying, as being afraid to looke God in the face. Souldiers after a retreat sometimes returne to fight, and foyle their foes: but it is not so with vngodly men in Gods holy warre, for when the Lord<sup>m</sup> smites his enemies in the hinder parts, he puts them to a perpetuall shame. Yea, but how can they flie from him? as our Prophet<sup>n</sup> elsewhere, Whether shall I goe from thy Spirit, and whether shall I goe from thy presence? if I climbe vp into heauen, thou art there; if I goe downe in hell, thou art there also, &c. Answer is made by<sup>o</sup> S. Augustine, Fugitum animo non corpore, timendo scilicet non latendo, nec ab ea facie quam non vident, sed ab ea quam videre coguntur. They flie not from that face which they doe not see, for they shall see the sonne of man comming in the clouds of heauen, with power and great glory, Matth. 24. 30. but from his face they would not see, calling to the mountaines in that day, Pfall vpon vs, and hide vs from the presence of him that sitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lambe. The summe of all is briefly this, being scattered they flie, flying they vanish, and vanishing they perish at the presence of God.

As God destroyeth his enemies soundly, so suddenly, like as the smoke vanisbeth, so shall thou driue them away, &c. The higher the smoke, the sooner dispersed by the winde, wax the neerer to the fire the sooner melted. Our God is a<sup>q</sup> consuming fire, and he rideth vpon the wings of the winde, and therefore so soone as he doth arise, his enemies vanish as smoke, and melt as wax before his presence. While their rage and courage scemes most impetuous, suddenly their<sup>r</sup> hard hearts are looted and lost, as fire melts the wax, so feare their wrath: at Gods presence while they thinke to vanquish other, they vanish themselues: all their furie is but a fume, <sup>s</sup> pride goeth before destruction, and an high minde before the fall.

Concerning the generalitie of this doctrine, we finde that the wicked<sup>u</sup> spend their dyes in mirth, and then in a moment goe suddenly downe to hell. Yet a little while (saith our<sup>x</sup> Prophet) and the vngodly shall be cleane gone, thou shalt looke after his place, but he shall not be found: oh how doe they consume and perish, and come to a fearefull end, euen as a dreame when one awaketh, so shalt thou make their image to vanish out of the citie, Psal. 73. 18, 19. their destruction shall come speedily, Prou. 6. 15. as a swelling in an high wall, whose breaking commeth in a moment suddenly, Esa. 30. 13.

To speake more particularly, <sup>y</sup> Babel is suddenly fallen and destroyed, and the<sup>z</sup> King of Babel as he was carowling in the golden vessels of the Temple, saw the fingers of a mans hand writing a fearefull sentence against him vpon the walls of his Palace, whereupon at the same houre while he was feasting, his countenance was changed, and his thoughts so troubled, that the ioyns of his loynes were loosed, and s Job 21. 14.

h Apoc. 2. 6.

i Ephes. 5. 1

k Eccles. 4. 10.

l Psal. 2. 1.

m Psal. 77. 27.

n Psal. 139. 6.

o In loc.

p Apoc. 6. 16.

q Esay. 10.

r Hosea 10. 8.

s Heb. 12. 29.

t Psal. 118. 10.

u Azellius.

v Prou. 16. 18.

w Job 21. 13.

x Psal. 37. 10.

y Jer. 51. 8.

z Dan. 5. 5.

his knees smote one against another. The judgement of God vpon Corath, Dathan, and Abiram, was also sudden, for as they disputed against Moses and Aaron, impudently iustifying their conspiracie, <sup>a</sup> the earth opened her mouth and swallowed them vp all aliue, so that in the sight of all Gods people they went downe quicke into hell. <sup>b</sup> Herod in the midst of all his brauery was immediately smitten by the Angell of the Lord, so that he was eaten of wormes, and gaue vp the ghost. <sup>c</sup> Arrius the blasphemous heretike was vpon the sudden in the midst of his pompe and pontificality, taken away with a stinking death. <sup>d</sup> Pope Iohn the 12. in the very act of adultery was suddenly smitten by the deuill, and so he died in his filthinesse. Pope Siluester the second (who being a coniuring Frier, gaue himselfe vnto the deuill vpon condition he might be Pope) as he was on a time singing masse at Rome, heard a great noise of deuils that came to fetch him away: whereat being terrified and tormented, and seeing no way to escape, he desired his people to rend his body in peeces after his death, and lay it vpon a chariot, and so let horses draw him whither they would. <sup>e</sup> In the yeere 1530. there was at Noremburg a certaine Priest who studied Art-Magicke, and being very conetous of money, the deuill (whom he serued) shewed him through a chrysell, a good deale of treasure hidden in the Citty; whereupon he went presently to that part of the Towne where he supposed it to haue lien buried, and being arriued at the place with a companion whom he brought to this pretty pastime, fell a searching and digging vp an hollow pit, vntill he perceiued a coffe in the bottome of the hole, with a great dog lying by it; whither he was no sooner entred, but the ground fell vpon him, and so smothered and crushed him in a moment to death. Concerning this argument, see Fox Martyrolog. from pag. 1902. to pag. 1916. Bellarmin de notis Ecclesie, cap. 17. and Hansenmullerus hist. Iesuit. ordinis cap. 11.

The late iudgements of God vpon incorrigible sinners in our own country within our owne memorie haue bene very fearefull, as vpon Anne Aueries a Flax-woman of London, who forswearing her ielfe for a little money that she should haue paid at a shop in Woodstreet for six pound of tow, forthwith (as being surprized by Gods arising to scatter his enemies) fell downe speechlesse, and so died a loathsome death, to the terrour of all periured and forsworne wretches. And vpon <sup>h</sup> C. M. a notorious Atheist, openly mocking at God and godlinesse, not in word only, but (as it is credibly reported) in writing also: this impious wretch, as he was stabbing another in an Alhouse, was euen with his owne dagger in his owne hand stabbed into his own head, in such sort, that notwithstanding all the meanes of Surgery, he shortly died, blaspheming and swearing to the last gaspe: wherein Gods iustice did appeare notably for our instruction, in that he compelled his own hand which had written those blasphemies, to be the instrument of his punishment, and that in his braine, which had impudently deuised the same. Who can ouerpasse here, how some chiefe plotters of the most execrable Gunpowder Treason being together in a chamber, were so scorched by their own powder as it was in drying, that they were driuen to confesse the heauy iudgement of God vpon them. Euery yeere we heare that some notorious drunkards are drowned euen in their drunkenesse, when as they haue neither wit nor will to say so much, as Lord haue mercie vpon vs: a punishment so proportionable to that hoggish sin, that all the world may know, God doth arise to scatter his enemies.

This I take to be literally the true meaning of this Hymne, but S. Paul hath a myfical interpretation hereof, Ephes. 4. 8. and so most of the <sup>i</sup> Fathers apply this to Christs exaltation and his enemies confusion.

Now Christ hath a } k fourefold exaltation: }
 1. In mount Thabor, his transfiguration, Matth. 17.
 2. In Hierusalem, his resurrection, Matth. 28.
 3. In mount Oliuet, his ascension, Acts 1.
 4. In the clouds, his comming to iudgement, Apoc. 1. 7.

<sup>l</sup> Some Diuines haue construed this of his arising to iudgement, according to that Apoc. 6. 10. The soules of them that were killed for the word, cry with a loud voice, saying, how long Lord holy and true, dost thou not iudge and reuenge our blood on them that dwell on the earth? as if they should haue spoken in the words of our Prophet,

<sup>a</sup> Num. 16. 32.
<sup>b</sup> Acts 12. 23.
<sup>c</sup> Socrat. hist. lib. 1. cap. 25.
<sup>d</sup> 10. ds Turrecremat sum de Ecclesia, lib. 2. cap. 103.
<sup>e</sup> Naucerus. Platina.
<sup>f</sup> Hierus.
 See Theater of Gods iudgements, written by Thom. Beard, lib. 1. cap. 21.

<sup>g</sup> Stow Chron.

<sup>h</sup> See Thomas Beard vbi sup. cap. 23.

<sup>i</sup> Hilarius. Augustin. Hieron. Arnobius. Eulhym.
<sup>k</sup> Bonauent. in loc.
<sup>l</sup> Cyprian. apud Lorin. in loc. laem Bonauentura.

*Arise Lord, and make thine enemies thy footstool, for all things in that day shall be put vnder Christs feet, 1 Cor. 15. 27. then his enemies here and there scattered shall be<sup>m</sup> gathered together, and albeit they flie before him, inuocating the rockes and mountaines to fall vpon them, and to hide them from his presence, Apoc. 6. 16. yet they must all appeare before his throne, to receiue their heauy damnation and doome. <sup>a</sup> Hunc nulla vob humana elidet, aut acumen elidet, no humane force can preuent, or cunning circunuent this high and holy Iudge, that day shall be to the wicked <sup>o</sup> a day of anger, a day of trouble and beauiresse, a day of destruction and desolation, a day of darknesse and blacknesse, wherein their <sup>p</sup> hearts shall faile them for feare, seeking death and shall not finde it: for all our weale and woe consisteth in those two words of Christ, Ite, Venite, Goe yee cursed, Come yee blessed. If he say Come, they which enioy his presence shall haue fulnesse of ioyes and pleasures at his right hand for euermore, Psal. 16. 12. they shall drinke of his pleasures as out of the riuer, Psal. 36. 8. before him as it is said here, verse 3. they shall be glad, merry, ioyfull. If he say Depart, most accursed are they which are deprived of his presence: this one word is worse than all the rest in the reprobates sentence, for as<sup>d</sup> Diuines obserue, pœna damni, pœnalius est quàm pœna sensus, the paine of losse is more grieuous than the paine of sence, for the torments of hell are termed in the Fathers and in the Scriptures also damnation, in respect of the losse of an<sup>f</sup> infinite good which is God. If <sup>e</sup> Esau seeing his younger brother Jacob to haue got the blessing, irruyt clamore magno, roared out with a great cry and bitter, out of measure, saying vnto his father, hast thou not referued a blessing also for me? how loud will the reprobate roare figured in Esau, when as they shall behold the Saints figured in Jacob, to haue got the benediction of their heauenly Father, and that no more blessing remaineth for them. O with what vnspeakable rage will they confirme their own malediction, cursing the <sup>u</sup> day wherein they were borne, and the night wherein it was said, a childe is conceiued, cursing the <sup>x</sup> wombe that bare them, and the paps that gaue them sucke, desiring rather neuer to haue bene borne, than to heare such an affrighting sentence, Goe yee cursed: this infinite losse doubtlesse is the very hell of hells, as<sup>y</sup> Chrysostome said, a thousand hells are nothing in comparison of it. O sweet Iesu who diddest ascend the crosse, to take vpon thee the curse of the Law, to deliuer vs from the curse of sin, saue vs with thy mercy, that vpon vs may not fall so terrible misery.*

<sup>z</sup> Other vnderstand this of Christs incarnation, as if our Prophet should pray, Blessed Lord, deferre not thy comming any longer, arise to visit and redeeme thy people, remember thy promise, saying, <sup>a</sup> I will vp, and I will helpe every one from him that swelleth against him, and I will set them at rest. Arise Lord from the seat of thy Maiesty to succour vs in our misery: thou which art <sup>b</sup> the consolation of Israel, and the desire of all nations, arise to <sup>d</sup> cast out the Prince of darknesse, and to deliuer vs from our enemies and from the hands of all that hate vs.

But because Christ in his mortall estate was oppressed of his enemies, <sup>c</sup> in the daies of his flesh, offering vp prayers and supplications with strong crying and teares vnto him that was able to saue him from death, vpon the crosse complaining, f haue ye no regard all ye that passe by this way, behold and see, if there be any sorrow like to my sorrow, &c. I say, because Christ in his estate of humiliation appeared not as the Lord of hostis & King of glory, but as a worme trodden vnder the feet of such as hated him; I find that most Interpreters, as well <sup>g</sup> ancient, as <sup>h</sup> moderne, take this him as a prophetic concerning his glorious resurrection and triumphant ascension: in arising from the dead he scattered all his enemies, and in his ascension (as our Prophet here, verse 18.) he led captivity captiue, giuing gifts vnto men, among other euen to his enemies, that the Lord God might dwell in them: as the next hymne describes Christ in his suffering, so this in his triumphing.

His enemies are } Principally and properly the <sup>i</sup> deuils.
 } Secondarily, the Iewes.

By descending into hell and arising from the dead, he triumphed over the deuils in their owne dung-hils and dungeon, he brake the Serpents head, and trod Sathan vnder

<sup>a</sup> Mat. 25. 32.

<sup>a</sup> Lipsius de Constant. lib. 1. cap.

17.

<sup>o</sup> Zophon 1. 15

<sup>p</sup> Luke 21. 26.

<sup>q</sup> Apocal. 9. 6.

<sup>r</sup> *Chrysostom.
Prosper apud
Dion. Caribus. de quatuor no-
uiss. part. 2. art.*

11.

<sup>f</sup> Thom. 1. 26.

quæst. 87. art. 4.

<sup>e</sup> Gen. 27. 34.

<sup>u</sup> Job 3. 3.

<sup>x</sup> Luke 11. 27.

<sup>y</sup> Ps. sup.

<sup>z</sup> Lorin.

<sup>a</sup> Psal. 12. 6.

<sup>b</sup> Luke 2. 25.

<sup>c</sup> Hag. 2. 7.

<sup>d</sup> Ioh. 12. 31.

<sup>e</sup> Heb. 5. 7.

<sup>f</sup> Iam. 1. 10.

<sup>g</sup> Athanasius apud Lorin.

Augustin.

Hilarius.

Hieron. in loc.

<sup>h</sup> Mollerus.

Strigelius.

Steubus.

Belarmin.

<sup>i</sup> Hilarius.

Hieron.

Euthym.

vnder his feet, and by his ascending vp on high he gaue gifts, euen the manifold graces of his holy Spirit, whereby the deuill is drinen out of his strong holds, out of the hearts of men, and so their soules and bodies are houles of God and temples of the Holy Ghost.

The Iewes are reputed enemies to Christ in denying him for their King, in reuiling him all his life, in bringing him to his death, in blaspheming him, and persecuting all his, euer since to this present day. Wherefore so soone as Christ arose, they were scattered in their thoughts, as hauing<sup>k</sup> imagined a vaine thing in<sup>l</sup> roling a great stone to the doore of the Sepulchre, tealing it & making it sure with a watch. For it was<sup>m</sup> impossible that the Lord of life should be holden of death, his soule could not be lost in the graue, nor his flesh see corruption, and therefore the stone being rolled away by an Harold of heauen, Mat. 28. 2. he raised himselfe from the dead, to the confusion of such as hated him. Againe, the Iewes were scattered in their estate, <sup>n</sup> They that did feed delicately perished in thy streets, and they that were brought vp in scarlet embraced the dung. And lastly, scattered in their habitation, as the stones of their Sanctuarie were scattered in the corners of euery street: so themselves, heretofore Gods<sup>o</sup> Sanctuarie, continue scattered in euery quarter of the world. <sup>p</sup> S. James in his Epistle salutes them after this sort, To the twelue Tribes which are scattered abroad, and so they liue dispersed and despised vnto this our present age, being<sup>q</sup> lesse than any Nation, and basely kept vnder in euery place. They who sold their Sauiour doe now buy their repentance deare, for they cannot see so much as the seat of their Temple or Citie, vnlesse they pay for this sight vnto the Garrisons of the Turkes, now Lord of the sometime holy land, <sup>r</sup> who repute the Iewes a great deale more vile than Christians, insomuch that if a Iew will turne Turke, he must first turne Christian before he may be Turke. Wherein we may behold Gods vnsearchable<sup>s</sup> bountifulnesse and ferentic: towards them in making his peculiar people no people, ferentic: but toward vs bountifulnesse in adoptiing vs his people, being aliantes from his common-wealth, and strangers from the couenants of his promise, Ephes. 2. 12. <sup>t</sup> yet let vs not boast of our selues, or insult ouer their miserie, for as S. Paul admonisheth, If God spared not the naturall branches, take heed lest he spare not thee, which art but a wilde Oliue tree grafted in for them, Rom. 11. 17. 18. 21.

<sup>k</sup> Psal. 2. 1.
<sup>l</sup> Marth 27. 60
<sup>m</sup> Acts 2. 24. 31

<sup>n</sup> Lam 4. 5.

<sup>o</sup> Psal. 114. 2.
<sup>p</sup> Cap. 1. vers. 1
<sup>q</sup> Song of the three children, vers. 37.

<sup>r</sup> Trauels of Englishmen into far countries, pag. 37.
<sup>s</sup> Rom. 11. 22.

<sup>t</sup> August orat. contra Iudaos, cap. 10.

PSALME 108.

O God mine heart is ready, &c.

Interpreters agree generally, that this Hymne is composed of two Psalmes going before, to wit, of Psalm. 57. from the eighth verse to the last, and of Psalm. 60. from the sixt verse to the end. The former part then especially concerning our present occasion, is expounded in my notes vpon the 57. Psalm, appointed to be read at Morning prayer vpon Easter day.

How the latter part is to be constued of Dauid and his kingdome literally, see Caluin. Agellius, Ro. Stephanus, Wilcox in loc. And our<sup>u</sup> Churches Homilie concerning An information for them which take offence at certaine places of the holy Scripture, how to be mystically well applied vnto Christ and his victorie, Hierome, Arnobius, Bucer, Mollerus, Iacob de Valentia, Strigellius, Genebrard, and<sup>x</sup> other in loc. D. Incoquit. & Bellarmius in Psal. 59. the summe whereof is in one word, that not only the Iewes, but also the Gentiles are subdued vnto the scepter of Christ, and that they beare seuerall offices according to the seuerall orders of the Church, some seruing in an high, and others in a low place, some commanding as Lam. gissers, and other obeying as washpots, vntill they be brought into the strong Citie, where they shall haue fulnesse of ioyes and pleasures at Gods right hand for euermore.

<sup>u</sup> Part. 1.

<sup>x</sup> Eusebius. Didymus. Hefycbius apud Agellium in loc.

PSALME 45.

My heart is enditing a good matter, &c.

THis Hymne is a spirituall Epithalamium, or Bridall-song composed of Christ and his beloved Spouse the Church, of which (y as it is thought) Salomons Song of song is a full and a fit interpretation: It is an oade de rege & grege, de saluatore (saith <sup>2</sup> Augustine) & saluandis. I know <sup>2</sup> some construe this of Assuerus and Ester, of Salomon and Pharaobs daughter, of Dauid and Bathsheba; but that which is said vers. 7. and 12. thy seat O God, endureth for euer, &c. he is the Lord thy God, and worship thou him, is not appliable to them and their kingdome, it appertaineth only to Christ, as S. Paul expoundeth, Heb. 1. 8. Vnto the sonne he saith, O God thy throne is for euer, the scepter of thy kingdome is a scepter of righteousnesse, thou hast loued righteousnesse, and hated iniquitie, wherefore God euen thy God hath anointed thee with oyle of gladnesse aboue thy fellowes.

<sup>1</sup> Tileman in loc.
<sup>2</sup> In loc.
<sup>3</sup> Apud D. In-cognit. in loc.

<sup>b</sup> Hiero. epi. ad principium. Idem Euthym. Placidus. Sieuch. in loc.

The whole may be diuided into three parts: a

<sup>b</sup> Preface, My heart is enditing a good matter, vers. 1, 2.

Bride-groome, from the third to the tenth verse, and for this reason appointed to be read on Christmas day.

Bride, from the tenth to the eighteenth, and for this reason appointed to be read on Whit-Sunday.

Corps of the Psalme, containing a description of the <sup>c</sup> Conclusion, I will remember thy name, &c. vers. vlt.

My heart is enditing ] <sup>d</sup> Some take these words as spoken by God the Father, of God the Sonne, as being both his Word and good: the Word in the beginning by whom all things were made, Ioh. 1. 1. and good, as being very God of very God, for there is none good except God, Matth. 19. 17. but as <sup>e</sup> S. Basil notes, how can the next clause be well applied vnto God, I speake of the things which I haue made vnto the King, my tongue is the pen of a ready writer, and vers. 8. it is not said, unxi te ego Deus, but unxi te Deus: and therefore most Interpreters haue referred this poeme to the Prophet, my heart is enditing, or as other translations, boyleth or bubbles up; a similitude taken either from the bubbling of <sup>f</sup> riuers and ponds, as Exod. 8. 2. Ebulliet flumius ranas: g or else from the meat offering in the Law, which was dressed in a frying pan, Leuit. 7. 9. and there boyled in oyle, being made of fine flowre vnleauened mingled with oyle, and afterward presented to the Lord by the Priest, Leuit. 2. 5. 8. the matter of this Hymne then is boyled with the oyle, that is, with the grace of the Spirit. and so prepared in the Prophets heart. <sup>h</sup> Repleatur itaq; sinus cordislectionibus sacris, meditationibus studiosis, actionibus pietatis, eaq; omnia percoquat charitas, custodiat fidelis memoria, iugis cogitatio verset, tunc flagrantissimi existent affectus, atq; os ex abundantia cordis loquetur, eritque sacrificium pingue & holocaustum medullarum.

<sup>c</sup> Tremellius. Bellarmus. <sup>d</sup> Augustin. Hieron. <sup>e</sup> In loc.

<sup>f</sup> Agellius. <sup>g</sup> Mollerus. idem in uult. Calumnus in loc. & alij.

<sup>h</sup> Claud. Aquauina medus. in loc.

<sup>i</sup> Euthym. Placidus. <sup>d</sup> Incognit. in loc. <sup>k</sup> Agellius.

<sup>l</sup> Eucer.

<sup>m</sup> Eusebius apud Agellium. <sup>n</sup> Basil.

The Latines read eructauit cor, and eructation alway proceeds from a fulnesse of stomacke, <sup>i</sup> insinuating hereby that he spake not of himselfe, but ex plenitudine spiritus, as he was moued by the Holy Ghost, according to that in his last words, 2 Sam. 23. 2. The spirit of the Lord spake by me, and his word was in my tongue.

This may serue to confute the <sup>k</sup> Montanists affirming that the Prophets vttered they knew not what. Dauid here by the Spirit first endited a good matter, and afterward his tongue was the pen of a ready writer: his mouth and his minde ioyne together, <sup>l</sup> hereby shewing his vnfaigned desire to sing the praises of Christ: if his heart had beene forward, and his tongue backward, this hymne would haue proued an heauy, not an heauenly poeme: but as his heart was enditing, so his tongue the pen of a ready Scribe: <sup>m</sup> not the finger or hand, but the pen: it is the Holy Ghost which is the hand mouing the quill, <sup>n</sup> it is he which is the ready writer, he writes not with inke, ink e, nor in tables of stone, but in fleshy tables of the heart, making vs (as<sup>o</sup> S. Paul speaks) his Epistle. See Epistle 12. Sunday after Trinitie: he writes, and that readily, pfor as he doth illuminate the minde soundly, so suddenly: the text saith it, Acts 2. 2. speaking of the descending of the Holy Ghost vpon this day, suddenly there came a sound from heauen, &c. Ezra was a ready Scribe, for writing and interpreting the Law, but he was made thus apt and prompt by the Spirit: his word runnes swiftly, being tied neither to time nor tide, vbi Deus est magister quam cito discitur quod docetur. See Gospell appointed to be read on this day.

The<sup>r</sup> resemblance betweene the pen and the tongue is very great, for as writing is a kinde of speaking vnto the eye: so speaking is a kinde of writing to the care. Now Dauid hauing his heart enlightened and his tongue enlarged by the Spirit, saith he will sing a ditty, which shall as a thing written with a pen endure long, & not instantly vanish into aire like a tale that is told: I speake of the things which I haue made to the king The writing of the learned are called their works, opera Hieronymi; the workes of Hierome, Augustine, Gregorie: yea the very plaies of a moderne Poet; are called in print his workes. The Grecians especially terme Treatises in verse, ποιήματα; so Symmachus and Agellius ποιήματων poemata mea, which answereth our English here, things made: by workes then he meanes the contents of this hymne, which he calleth a good matter, or a good word, for * a good man out of the good treasure of his heart brings forth good things.

It is a good argument } 1. In respect of the person of whom it treateth.
in two respects: } 2. In respect of the people whom it teacheth.

Good in respect of the party whom it treateth of, as singing the praises of Christ our King, which is fairer than the sonnes of men, only good of himselfe, and the fountaine of goodnesse in other. v Verbum bonum, quia de Dei filio qui maxime bonus. <sup>2</sup> Let others as they please make Panegyrickes of other Kings; I, so long as I haue any being, dedicate my poemes vnto that King only, who created in me both an heart to endite, and a tongue to sing his praises.

And good in respect of the Reader, as reporting the mysticall vnion and happy loue betwee Christ and his Church, a ditty so pleasant, that an Angell calleth it on Christmas day a tidings of great ioy to all people. The whole proeme of this poeme may be thus in brieffe paraphrased, My heart so boyleth within me, that I must needs burst forth that which it hath conceiued, euen a sweet song, acceptable to the King of whom, and profitable to his people for whom it was made: and that with such earnestnesse and seruency, that no pen of an exact writer is able to surpasse the readinesse of my tongue. Dauid telleth vs in the fourth Psalm, that there be many that say, who will shew vs any good? and so doubtlesse in our time many which hunger and thirst after righteousnesse, are very desirous (vpon such high Holy dayes, especially) to heare some good song, or some good sermon. <sup>b</sup> He therefore that hath an eare to heare let him heare what the spirit saith in this Hymne, for it is a good matter, I say what the spirit saith, as being inuented by him, albeit vented by Dauid as his penne and tongue.

Thou art fairer than the children of men ] Here begins the Corps of the Psalm, concerning Christ and his Church: our Bride-groome Christ is described,

1. By his beauty, fairer than the children of men.
2. By his eloquence, full of grace are thy lips, &c.
3. By his might, gird thee with thy sword, &c.
4. By his maiestie, thy seat O God indureth for euer, &c.
5. By his iustice, thou hast loued righteousnesse, &c.
6. By his fulnesse of gifts, annointed with oyle of gladnesse aboue his fellowes.
7. By his magnificence, both of apparell and house, thy garments smell of mirrhe, aloes and cassia, out of the inuoy palaces, &c.

The Prophet begins here with beauty, because comelinesse of person is much if not most esteemed in a bridegroome: or haply for that it proceeds from the lesser gift to the greater: beautifulnesse of body giues place to graciousnesse of speech, eloquence to vertue, vertue to diuinitie. But how can he who was a worme (quoth our Prophet

<sup>o</sup> 2. Cor 3.3.
<sup>P D.</sup> Incognit.
<sup>9</sup> Ezra. 7.6.
<sup>r</sup> Psal. 147. 15.
<sup>l</sup> Leo ser. 1. de Pentecost.
<sup>r</sup> Agellius.

<sup>B</sup> Bellarmin.

<sup>2</sup> Matth. 12. 35.

<sup>r</sup> Placid in loc.
<sup>r</sup> Claud. Aquinas medit. in loc.

<sup>B</sup> Luke 2. 10.

<sup>B</sup> Apoc. 2. 29.

Bellarmin.

Prophet<sup>d</sup> elsewhere, rather than a worthy, despised and reieled of men, as hauing neither forme nor beauty, saith<sup>e</sup> Esay) be termed fairer than the sonnes of men? Answer is made by <sup>f</sup> S. Hierome, that the Prophets vttered that of Christ, as he was abased and abused vpon his crosse, for then he suffered of all kinds of men, and in all kinds of things: of all men, as Iewes, Gentiles, Prince, Priest, people, strangers, acquaintance, men, women: in all things, as suffering in his friends who forooke him: in his honour, when his aduersaries mocked him: in his goods, when they stripped him and cast lots vpon his garment: in his soule, when he prayed, O my father, if it be possible, let this cup passe from me, Matth. 26. 39. and when he cried, My God, my God why hast thou forsaken me? Matth. 27. 46. in his body, to wit, in euery part and in euery sense: for his head was crowned with thornes, his hands and feet pierced, his side boared with a speare, his face bemired with spettle, his eares loaden with buffets, his bones out of ioynt, and his flesh so rent with rods, as that his heart in the middest of his body, was euen like melting wax, Psal. 22. 14. in euery sense likewise, in his taste, for his enemies when he was thirsty, gaue him <sup>b</sup> vinegar to drinke mingled with <sup>i</sup> gall: in his hearing, when he was inforced to heare their railing taunts and outragious blasphemies: in his feeling, for that his whole body was tortured: in his seeing, when he saw his <sup>k</sup> mother and the disciple whom he loued, standing by the Crosse weeping: in his smelling, in that he was crucified in Golgotha, <sup>l</sup> which is by interpretation, the place of dead mens skulls. If we thus consider Christ as a <sup>m</sup> man of sorrowes on the Crosse, wounded for our transgressions, and broken for our iniquities, he seemeth in the worlds eye without all comeliness or beauty, for <sup>n</sup> Christ crucified is vnto the Iewes a stumbling block, and vnto the Grecians foolishnesse: but vnto true beleeuers he seemes faire, not only glorified in heauen, but also vilified on earth, euen in his cratch, in his crosse, in his grieffe, in his graue. Lo <sup>o</sup> S. Ang. Nobis creditibus ubique sponsus pulcher occurrit, pulcher in celo, pulcher in terra, pulcher in utero, pulcher in manibus parentum, pulcher in miraculis, pulcher in flagellis, pulcher in ligno, pulcher in sepulchro, &c.

Christ is fairer than the sonnes of men, as God, and as man. ¶ As God, for <sup>q</sup> what is he among the clouds, and therefore much lesse among the clouds, that may be compared vnto the Lord: he made not onely the lillies of the field more glorious in beauty than <sup>r</sup> Salomon in all his royaltie, but also the most admirable faire frame of the whole world, the which euen for the concinne beautifulesse thereof is tearmed (as <sup>s</sup> Plinius and <sup>t</sup> other obserue) by the Grecians κόσμος, and by the Latines mundus. He must vndoubtedly be fairer than the sonnes of men, as creating all these faire things for the sonnes of men.

Againe, Christ as man is the fairest of all men, and that <sup>u</sup> both in respect of the beautifull ornaments of his minde, and comely lineaments of his body. Concerning the graces of his minde, his intellectuals are such, as that in him are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge, Coloff. 2. 3. and his morals also such, as that he did no sinne, 1 Pet. 2. 22. yea knew no sinne, 2 Cor. 5. 21. he was <sup>x</sup> full of grace and truth, and of his fulnesse all of vs haue receiued, euen grace for grace. The sonnes of men haue foule soules (as the <sup>y</sup> Prophet speakes) the whole head is sicke, and the whole heart is heavy, from the sole of the foot, to the crowne of the head, there is nothing whole, but wounds, and swelling, and sores full of corruption. But the sonne of God hath a faire soule, free from all blemishes originall and actual, he neither sinned himselfe, nor caused other to sinne. Of this spirituall inward beauty <sup>z</sup> Diuines vsually vnderstand our Text, and of it his spouse said, My Beloued is white and ruddy, the chiefest among ten thousand, his head is as fine gold, his lockes curled, his eyes are like Doves vpon the risers of waters, which are washed with milke, his checkes are as a bed of spices, and as sweet flowers, and his lips like lillies dropping downe pure mirrhe, his mouth as sweet things, and himselfe wholly delectable.

Lastly, Christ is fairer than the sonnes of men in regard of his body, whether you consider it as it was in a mortall, or as it is in an immortall state. When he liued in this world his body was of absolute lineaments & feature, perfect in euery proportion and part, as <sup>b</sup> Leontulus and other haue described him in their histories, and this opinion

- 1 Psal. 21. 0.
 2 Esay 53. 2.
 3 Epist. ad princip. tom. 3. fol. 106.
 4 Idem Euthym. in loc.
 5 Thom. part. 3. quest. 46. art. 5.
 6 Psal. 69. 23.
 7 Matth. 27. 34.
 8 Iohn 19. 26.
 9 Marke 15. 22.
 10 Esay 53. 3.
 11 1 Cor. 1. 23.
 12 In loc.
 13 Hieron. Basil.
 14 Bellarmin.
 15 Psal 89. 6.
 16 Matth 6. 29.
 17 Nat. hist. lib. 2. cap. 4.
 18 Cic. de fruib. lib. 3. 1. 3. 1. 3.
 19 Orig. lib. 13. cap. 1.
 20 Turrecremat. Genebrard. Agellius.
 21 Ioh. 1. 14. 16.
 22 Esay 1. 5. 1.
 23 Euthym. Tileman.
 24 D. Incognit. Bellarmin.
 25 Cant. 5. 10.
 26 See Claud. A. quaniua mcd. in loc.
 27 Epist. ad Senat. Roman. habetur apud Cassianum in catalog. part. 4. considerat. 6.

opinion is agreeable to reason and religion, as <sup>c</sup> expositors haue well obserued: for all deformities of the body proceed originally from enormities of the soule, weaknesse is from wickednesse, ergo Christas being conceived of the Holy Ghost, and borne of the Virgin Mary, had a body fairer than the sonnes of men <sup>d</sup> conceived in sinne and borne in iniquitie.

<sup>c</sup> Nemo è semine crectus

Audeat eximia contendere munere forma.

And if his body were so beautifull in his humiliation, it is now much more, sitting at Gods right hand in heauen a <sup>f</sup> glorious body surpassing in brightnesse the <sup>g</sup> Sunne. The children of men haue vile bodies, earthly tabernacles and houses of clay, but Christs body being raised from the dead, and ascended on high, is fairer than the blessed Angels: our text indeed saith only that the Messias is fairer than men, <sup>h</sup> for that he tooke vpon him the nature not of Angels, but of men, <sup>i</sup> Ait præfity hominum quoniam è filys hominum: but the Scripture sheweth <sup>k</sup> elsewhere, that Christ is better and fairer than Angels, as a <sup>l</sup> Christian Poet here paraphrastically.

O praelate alyx, ô formosissime rerum.

Full of grace are thy lips] Full of grace <sup>m</sup> for the matter, and full of grace for the manner. For the matter, he deliuered acceptable doctrine, Iohn 1. 17. the Law was giuen by Moses, but grace came by Iesus Christ: Moses had harsh and hard words in his Law, <sup>n</sup> Cursed is he that continueth not in all things which are written in the booke of the Law to doe them: but Christ on the contrary speaks <sup>o</sup> better things, the first word in his first sermon are, <sup>p</sup> Blessed are the poore in spirit, the kingdome of heauen is at hand, Matth 4. 17. he commeth vnto his people, cum verbo gratia, cum osculo gratia, saith <sup>q</sup> Augustine: his lips are full of grace, that is, powring out gracious words abundantly, <sup>r</sup> Come vnto me all ye which are laden, and I will ease you. <sup>s</sup> God so loued the world that he gaue his only begotten Sonne, that whosoever belieueth in him should not perish, but haue euerslasting life. <sup>t</sup> The Spirit of the Lord is vpon me, that I should heale the broken hearted, &c. his lips are like lillies dropping downe mirrhe, Cant. 5. 13. all that heard him wondered at the gracious words which proceeded out of his mouth, Luk. 4. 22.

For the manner, <sup>u</sup> he taught not as the Scribes, he spake so sweetly, that the very catch-poll officers astonied at his words, gaue this testimony, <sup>x</sup> nenerany mā spake like this man: he spake so graciously that his Apostles <sup>y</sup> forsooke all things and followed him: at his call <sup>z</sup> Andrew left his nets straightway, Iames and Iohn their father and the ship without tarying, Matthew from the receipt of custome, Matth 9. 9. <sup>a</sup> Zachens from the like worldly course, came hastily to receiue him ioyfully. Nay beloued, he was so powerfull an Orator, that the very windes and waues obeyed his word, Mark. 4. 39. It is reported in <sup>b</sup> holy writ, that all Princes and people were desirous to heare Salomons eloquence, the Queene of Sheba wondering at the same cried out, Happy are thy seruants which euer stand before thee and heare thy wisdom, 1 King. 10. 8. Salomon is the type here, but Christ is the truth: and <sup>c</sup> this sheweth euidently that Christ is not a tyrant, but a milde Prince, perswading obedience plausibly, not compelling his people violently, his sayings are his scepter, his word his sword, his piercing exhortations are his (as it were) sharpe arrowes, by which his followers are subdued vnto him.

To conclude this argument, his faire words (as the <sup>d</sup> Scripture speaks) are as an bony combe, sweetnesse to the soule, and health to the bones: an hony combe, and what more toothsome <sup>e</sup> sweetnesse to the soule, and health to the bones, and what I pray more wholesome? <sup>f</sup> anima iusti sponsa verbi, the good mans soule is Christs owne spouse, to which he speaks a great many waies graciously: sometime correcting, and what stronger argument of loue, for whom he loueth he chasteneth, Heb. 12. 6 sometime instructing, and his Gospell is able to make the man of God absolute, being hereby furnished thorowly vnto all good workes, 2 Tim. 3. 17. sometime wooing in amorous termes, as in his Loue-song euery where, My welbeloued, my sister, my spouse, the fairest among women, my loue, my done, &c. sometime promising, and that <sup>g</sup> both the blessings of this life present, <sup>h</sup> Feare not, for I am with thee, be not afraid, for

<sup>c</sup> Turræciomat. Agellius. Genebrard.

<sup>d</sup> Psal. 51. 5.

<sup>e</sup> Euchanan.

<sup>f</sup> Philip. 3. 21.

<sup>g</sup> Acts 26. 13.

<sup>h</sup> D. Incognit.

Bellarmin.

<sup>i</sup> Augustin.

<sup>k</sup> Heb. 1.

<sup>l</sup> Eobannus.

Hefsus.

<sup>m</sup> Placidus.

Tileman.

D. Incognit.

<sup>n</sup> Deut. 27. 26.

Galat. 3. 10.

<sup>o</sup> Heb. 12. 24.

<sup>p</sup> Matth 5. 3.

<sup>q</sup> In loc.

<sup>r</sup> Mat. 11. 28.

<sup>s</sup> Iohn 3. 16.

<sup>t</sup> Luke 4. 18.

Esay 61. 1.

<sup>u</sup> Matth. 7. 29.

<sup>x</sup> Iohn 7. 46.

<sup>y</sup> Mat. 10. 28.

<sup>z</sup> Matth. 4. 20.

22.

<sup>a</sup> Luk. 19. 6.

<sup>b</sup> 1 Kin. 4. 34.

<sup>c</sup> C. Lain.

<sup>d</sup> Prou. 16. 24.

<sup>e</sup> Ambr. ser. 6.

in Psal. 118.

22.

<sup>f</sup> 1 Tim 4. 8.

<sup>g</sup> Esay 41. 10.

for I am thy God and thy Redeemer, they that prouoke thee shall be threshed to powder, and made nothing, &c. and of that life which is to come, <sup>h</sup> Father, I will that they which thou hast giuen me, be with me, euen where I am, and that they may behold my glory, being one in vs, as I am in thee, and thou in me.

But Christs intercession euery day to God the Father, <sup>i</sup> appearing in the court of heauen, and as an <sup>k</sup> aduocate pleading for vs, is yet fuller of grace. For if <sup>l</sup> Calab easily granted his daughters request, and bestowed on her the springs above, and the springs beneath: how shall Almighty God (whose <sup>m</sup> mercies are aboue all his works) denie the suits of such a sonne, in <sup>n</sup> whom he is well pleased? Assuredly, beloued, <sup>o</sup> whatsoeuer we shall aske the Father in his name, which is our only Mediator, shall be giuen vnto vs, euen the springs beneath, and the springs above, that is, all things expedient for vs in this world, and in the world to come life euerlasting.

<sup>q</sup> Some by his lips vnderstand his Apostles who preached graciously to the whole world, in teaching, that saluation is not by the works of the Law, but by <sup>r</sup> grace through faith in Christ who died for our sinnes, and is risen againe for our iustification. It may be further extended to Christians of all sorts; for the people so well as the Priests in opening their lips ought to minister grace vnto the hearers, Ephes. 4. 29. and whatsoeuer grace remaineth in vs which are members, it is deriued from Christ our head: when we thinke any thing well, it is gratia infusa; when we speake any thing well, it is gratia effusa; when we doe any thing well, it is gratia diffusa.

Because God hath blessed thee for euer.] <sup>s</sup> Some make Gods blessing an effect, as if the Prophet should haue said, Because thou art fairer than the sonnes of men, and thy lips are full of grace, therefore hath God blessed thee for euer. The like speech is Ioh. 10. 17. therefore doth my Father loue me, because I lay downe my life, and Philip. 2. 8. He humbled himselfe, wherefore God hath exalted him highly: but <sup>t</sup> other make Gods blessing here the cause why the Messias of the world is fairer than the sonnes of men, and his lips full of grace: for he was not blessed of God, because he was fairer than the sonnes of men, or for that he powred out gracious words abundantly: but on the contrary, he was therefore both eloquent and faire, because blessed of God. So vers. 8. he loued righteousnesse, and hated iniquitie, because God had anointed him with oile of gladnesse aboue his fellowes: but not anointed because he loued righteousnesse. This benediction of God is the hypostaticall vnion, and that is the very fountaine from which all graces are deriued vnto Christs humanitie. So the Messias is not only blessed in himselfe, <sup>u</sup> but in him according to Gods holy <sup>x</sup> promise made to father Abraham, all the nations of the world are blessed. Christ is figured by Ioseph, who had the <sup>y</sup> blessings aboue, and the blessings of the deepe that is beneath, and the blessings of the breasts, and of the wombe. For Christ is blessed with the blessings in heauen aboue, there the Saints and Angels alway sing his mercy, saying, <sup>z</sup> Worthy is the Lambe that was killed, to receiue power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honour, and glory, and praise: Blessed with the blessings of the deepe, for that he triumphed ouer the deuill and death in the depth of hell and the graue: blessed with the blessings of the breasts and of the wombe, for in him <sup>a</sup> all the kindreds of the earth are blessed: God (as Paul speakes) hath blessed vs in Christ with all spirituall blessings in heavenly things, Ephes. 1. 3.

Gird thee with thy sword vpon thy thigh] The Prophet here puts the <sup>b</sup> signe of authority for power and authority it selfe, as S. Paul, Rom. 13. 4. higher powers beare not the sword for nought. And when he saith vpon thy thigh, he doth allude to the fashion that was common among the Iewes then, and is among the Turks at this day, who hang their swords so that it lieth vpon the thigh, and hangs not as our swords on the side. Now the weapons of Christ are not carnall, and therefore this ought to be construed of the sword of the <sup>c</sup> spirit, the <sup>d</sup> rod of his mouth, and breath of his lips, euen his word which is <sup>e</sup> powerfull in operation, and sharper than any two-edged sword, entring thorow to the diuiding asunder of the soule and the spirit, and of the ioynts, and the marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the hearts: this weapon is mighty through God, to <sup>f</sup> cast downe holds, and vaine imaginations, and enery high thing which is exalted against the knowledge of God.

<sup>b</sup> Ioh. 17. 21. 24.

<sup>i</sup> Heb. 9. 24.

<sup>k</sup> 1 Iohn 2. 1.

<sup>l</sup> Iudg. 1. 15.

<sup>m</sup> Psal. 145. 9.

<sup>n</sup> Matth. 3. 17.

<sup>o</sup> Iohn 16. 23.

<sup>p</sup> 1 Tim. 2. 5.

<sup>q</sup> Euthym.

<sup>r</sup> Ephes. 2. 8.

<sup>s</sup> Chrysostom.

Easil.

Euthym.

<sup>t</sup> Calvin.

Azellius.

Bellarmin.

<sup>u</sup> Melanct.

in loc.

<sup>v</sup> Gen 22. 18.

<sup>w</sup> Gen 49. 25.

<sup>x</sup> Apoc. 5. 12.

<sup>y</sup> Acts 3. 25.

<sup>z</sup> Wilcox.

<sup>a</sup> Molerus.

Tremellius.

<sup>b</sup> Esay 11. 4.

<sup>c</sup> Heb. 4. 12.

<sup>d</sup> 2 Cor. 10. 4.

God. This sword hath a double edge, one in the Law, accusing and condemning men of sinne: another in the Gospell, offering remission of sinnes and euerslasting life to such as beleue.

8 Or his sword may be construed of his diuinitie, thigh of his humanitie: for Christ ouercame his enemies, and made his subjects no lesse than Kings after a very strange manner, <sup>h</sup> morte, non Marte, not by fighting, but by suffering, not by killing other, but by dying himselfe. The deuill as seeing his thigh only but not his sword, rushed vpon him in his cratch, in his crosse, in the wilderness, in the garden, in the graue, to his owne hurt, yea the breaking of his own head, as <sup>i</sup> Leo sweetly, Malitia nocendi avidus dum irruit, ruit; dum capis, captus est; dum persequitur mortalem, incidit in Saluatorem. I purpose not vpon this text to say more concerning the vertues of the Bridegroome, as intending to be very large in vnfolding the commendation of the Bride described,

1. By her attendance, Kings daughters and honourable women.
2. By her stile, the Queene.
3. By her place, upon the right hand.
4. By her gesture, did stand.
5. By her vesture, in raiment of gold, &c.
6. By her obedient conformitie to the will of her husband, Hearken o daughter, &c.
7. By her purenesse of conscience, all glorious within, &c.
8. By her fruitfulnessse of wombe, instead of thy fathers thou shalt haue children, &c.

The Virgins attending the holy Catholike Church are <sup>k</sup> Christian Vniuersities, and particular congregations of the faithfull, here & there dispersed ouer the whole world. These women of the Queene are noble by birth, as being Kings daughters: and honourable by seruice, for so the text here, women of honour, and vers. 15. and 16. floures and companions of the Queene in euery place, yea euen in the Kings palace.

In their birth and bloud, obserue what an high and holy calling Christians haue, for whereas other men are

- Children of the world, Luk. 16. 9.
- Children of disobedience, Coloss. 3. 6.
- Children of iniquitie, Hosea 10. 9.
- Children of wrath, Ephes. 2. 3.
- Children of death, 1 Sam. 26. 16.
- Children of the deuill, Ioh. 8. 44.
- Children of perdition, Ioh. 17. 2.
- Children of hell, Matth. 23. 15.

All true members of the Church are by the second birth on the contrary,

- Children of light, Ioh. 12. 36.
- Children of the Prophets, Acts 3. 25.
- Children of the promise, Rem. 9. 8.
- Children of the wedding chamber, Mark. 2. 19.

Children of the kingdome, Matth. 8. 12. descended of the bloud royall, 1 Pet. 2. 9. sonnes and daughters of the King of Kings, borne of God, and hauing his seed remaining in them, 1 Ioh. 3. 9. God is our father, Christ is our brother, Angels our guard, all creatures our seruants, the Scriptures our euidences, the Sacraments our seales, and the Holy Ghost our assurer, that all things are ours, and we Christs, and Christ Gods, 1 Cor. 3. 22. 23.

This may comfort vs in all our wants and wrongs: he that feeds the <sup>l</sup> fowles of heauen, and clothes the lillies of the field, shall he not much more prouide food and raiment for his own children? he pittieeth vs as a <sup>m</sup> father, and comforteth vs as a <sup>n</sup> mother, yea, <sup>o</sup> though a mother forget her childe, and haue not compassion on the sonne of her wombe, yet will I not forget thee, saith the Lord. Behold I haue grauen thee vpon the palmes of mine hands, and shall not the father of mercy reade that which he hath there written? and why shouldest thou feare mortall man in whom is no

<sup>8</sup> *Aquinas
medit. in lec.*

<sup>h</sup> Augustin

<sup>l</sup> Ser. 9. de passio-ne Dom.

<sup>k</sup> Tillemans in loc.

<sup>l</sup> Matth. 6. 26.

<sup>m</sup> Psal. 103. 13.

<sup>n</sup> Esay 66. 13.

<sup>o</sup> Esay 49. 15.

p Matth. 8. 32.

q Esay 43. 1.

r Num. 23. 10.

s 2 Sm. 16.

t Acts 12.

u 3 Iohn 9.

x Matth 26. 3.

y 1 Kings 21.

z Exod 5.

a 1 Pet 5. 8.

b Luke 11. 14.

c Epist lib. 4.
epist. 1.d Epist. dedic.
examen. Con.
Trident.

e Num 35.

f See Hoffmann.
de origin scholarum, pag. 92.g Camerarius in vita Melanct.
pag. 164.h Trades increase, pag. 20.i Martial epig.
lib. 1. epig. 63.k In carmine, Salus festa dies.

l Psal. 50. 20.

m Chytraeus in deliis Iteneum

n Hen. 1. Reg.

o Angl.

p Hen. 4. Impe-rat German

q Hen. 2. Reg.

r Anglia.

strength, if the deuill himselfe could not innade so much as a p Gergefites hogge, without a speciall licence from the court of heauen, how shall his vnderling agents hurt a sheepe of Christ, a sonne of God? I (saith the Lord) am he that created thee, I haue redeemed thee, I haue called thee by thy name, thou art mine, when thou passest thorow the waters I will be with thee, when thou walkest thorow the fire thou shalt not be burnt, neither shall the flame kindle vpon thee; thy life is deere, thy death is precious in the sight of the Lord, there is neuer a Balaamitish Curre that barks against thee, but would with all his heart, that his latter end might be like thine, and that after this life he might (I speake it with reuerence) goe with thee but as thy page, yea but as thy spaniel into the kingdome of glory.

This also may strike a terrour into the hearts of such as persecute the godly, whether with virulent tongue, as <sup>e</sup> Schemi: or with violent hands, as <sup>c</sup> Herod: or with both, as Julian surnamed Apostata: whether by themselves, as <sup>n</sup> Diotrophes: or by other, as the <sup>x</sup> Scribes, and Pharisees: whether closely, like <sup>y</sup> Iezab. 1; or openly, like <sup>z</sup> Pharao: as the wicked (imitating their father the deuill) according to their occasions are sometime <sup>a</sup> roaring lions, and sometime <sup>b</sup> dumbe spirits: howsoeuer it be done, that which once was spoken vnto railing Rabsakeb out-brauing Hezechia, may be well applied vnto them, Against whom hast thou blasphemed? against whom hast thou exalted thy voice, and lifted vp thine eyes on high? euen against the holy one of Israel, Esay 37. 23. These honourable women attending the Church his Queene, are his daughters and his darling, he that toucheth them, is said to touch the apple of his eye, Deut 32. 10. the wrong done to them he reputes as done to himselfe, Acts 9. 4. as <sup>c</sup> Paulinus excellently, Christus & patiens & triumphans in sanctis suis, in Abel occisus à fratre, in Noah irrisus à filio, in Ioseph venditus, in Mose fugatus, in Tropheis lapidatus, in Apostolus terra mariq; iactatus.

Concerning the seruice done to the Queene by these Maidens of honour, the particular Churches of the faithfull, especially Christian Vniuersities, are the Seminaries of religion, and as <sup>d</sup> Chemnitius aptly tearmed them, Ecclesie plantaria, where some men are ripe for the Ministerie, some drawing to their maturitie, some in their flower, and some in the bud of hope. The Iewes had <sup>e</sup> Schooles of the Prophets, and Christians, euen in the purest age, had <sup>f</sup> Vniuersities of learned men at Alexandria, Antiochia, Cesarea, the Queene had alway some waiting women at hand, who were both an honour to her husband, and an helpe to her selfe. Our ships for East Indies (as <sup>g</sup> one notes) are carried forth with Christians, and brought home with Heathens: and the <sup>h</sup> Poet saith of a woman going into a publique bache among lasciuious companie, Penelope venit, abii Helene: but a well ordered and a vertuous Vniuersitie contrariwise sendeth home many good which it receiued bad, herein resembling the sacred font, where the partie christned goeth into the water of holy baptism foule, but he commeth out cleane, atque vetus vitium purgat in aq; nouo, quoth <sup>i</sup> Lactantius.

To speake then against our two famous Academies in England, is to cast dirt in our owne eyes, and (according to the tenour of our text) it is scandalum magnatum, in that they be stiled honourable women: and for my particular, I know not how any Clergie-man or Gentleman once matriculated and sworn to maintaine the honour of his Vniuersitie, both asked and vnasked, may without touch of periurie, <sup>k</sup> speake against his brother, and slander his owne mothers sonne.

Hitherto concerning the Brides traine, let vs now come to her title, the Queene. It is written of Matilda the Empresse, that she was the daughter of a King, the mother of a King, and the wife of a King.

<sup>l</sup> Ortu magna, viro maior, sed maxima prole,

Hic iacet Henrici m filia, n nupta, o parens.

So David intimates in this Hymne, that the Church is the daughter of a King, at the 14. verse, The Kings daughter is all glorious within; and the mother of a King, at the 17. verse, In stead of thy fathers thou shalt haue children, whom thou maist make Princes in all lands; and the wife of a King, in this verse, upon the right hand did stand the Queene; the Queene, as being (I speake in the language of Canaan) spirittually the wedded flu

wedded and bedded wife to the King of glory. The wedded, I will marrie thee for ever vnto me, saith the Lord, Hosea 2. 19. The King of heauen prepared a wedding for his sonne, Mat. 22. 4. he made this mariage by Christs incarnation, for as the best way to reconcile two disagreeing families, or enemie-kingdomes, is to make some mariage betweene them; euen so the word became flesh, and dwelt among vs in the world, that he might hereby make our peace, reconciling God to man, and man to God. The bedded wife, so Martin Luther alluding to the text, Esa. 28. 20. say the Scripture telleth vs plainly, that Christ and his Church haue kissed each other, and that they be both one flesh, as it were man and wife. Christ is said to kisse his Loue the Church, Cant. 1. 1. Let him kisse me with the kisses of his mouth: his saying, Come to me all ye which are wearied and laden, and I will ease you, is a sweet kisse of his mouth, as renowned Melancton obserues in his explanation of the second Psalme: his saying, I am not come to call the righteous; but sinners to repentance, Matth. 9. 13. is another sweet kisse of his mouth: his saying, God so loued the world, that he gaue his only begotten Sonne, that whosoever beleueneth in him should not perish, but haue everlasting life, John 3. 16. is another sweet kisse of his mouth. It is verò suauissimum, as being sweeter than honie, Psal. 19. 10. better than wine, Cant. 1. 1. Our blessed Sauiour offers daily kisses and kindnesse, and there fore we must not vnmanerly despise the riches of his goodnesse, but answer him againe (y whom our soule loueth) euen with a kisse. For so Dauid expressly, Psal. 2. 12. kisse the Sonne. Oh but how shall I which am a poore pilgrim on earth ascend and kisse my sweet Sauiour who dwelleth in the heauen of heauen? Answer is made by Dauid in the very same verse, Blessed are all they that put their trust in him, as if he should haue said, to beleue in him, and to put our whole trust in him, is to kisse him. If preaching of grace be kissing on his part, then assuredly receiuing of grace, by beleueing his sure mercies and holy promises is kissing on our part.

And yet behold a greater mysterie, Christ and his Church, as S. Paul teacheth, Ephes. 5. are but one flesh, and as it were but one person in law. For Christ in taking our nature vpon him, is flesh of our flesh, and bone of our bone substantially, and we likewise are flesh of his flesh, and bone of his bone spiritually: Plato said, Amator mortuus est in proprio corpore, viuus in alieno: So Paul speaking of Christ and a Christian, Gal. 2. 19. I through the Law am dead to the Law, and that I might liue vnto God, I am crucified with Christ, thus I liue, yet not I now, but Christ liueth in me. Faith (as Luther vpon the place) doth couple Christ and me more neere than the husband is coupled to his wife, I am become one with him, I am my welbeloueds, and my welbeloued is mine; my sinnes are his sinnes, and his righteousnesse is my righteousnesse, O God which art my righteousnesse.

This doctrine is as flagons of wine to comfort a distressed soule, for as the Philosophers say, that euery part of earth is earth, and euery peece of a bone broken is a bone: so Diuines affirme, that euery particular congregation, and euery singular true beleuer of euery congregation is Christs owne spouse so well as the whole Church. If then our common enemie the deuill at any time summon vs to answer for our debts, in that the wife being a woman couert is no sueable person in the law, but the husband; we may well bid him enter his action against our husband Christ, and he will make him a sufficient answer. In many things we sinne all, and sinnes are debts, as Christ teacheth in his prayer, forgiue vs our debts, and our manifold sinnes arise to the summe of ten thousand talents, Matth. 18. 24. infinite in magnitude, as being committed against God an infinite object; and infinite in multitude, as being more than the haire of our head, Psal. 40. 15. but Christ our husband dying for our sinnes, and rising againe for our iustification, hath abundantly satisfied all our debts, and fastned the Lawes obligation vnto his Crosse, Coloss. 2.

14.

Or haply the Church is called a Queene, because (saith Euthymius) the militant part here below by grace subdueth her affection vnto the spirit, and the triumphant part aboue reignes with her Christ. The Queene, for that her ioynture and dowry is no lesse than a kingdome, Luk. 12. 32. and such a kingdome as is an p Greg. hom 38.

q Arians in Euangel. Dom.
20 post. Trinit.
r John 1. 14.
s Ephes 2 14.
t Com. in Galat.
4. 3.

u Strigelius in
Psal. 2.

x Rom 2 4.
y Cant. 1. 6.

z Titelman Strigelius in
Psal. 2.

a Cant 6. 2.

b Psal. 4 1.

c Termes of Law, tit. Couerture.

d Bradford apud
Fox in Act. fol.
1503.

e James 3. 2.

f In loc See
Mollerus in loc.

8 1 Pet. 1. 4.
 b Bellarmin.
 i Gen. 43. 34. k Melancton.
 Prou. 3.
 l Placidus.
 B. I. 1.
 D. Incognit.
 m 1 Tim. 4. 8.

8 immortall inheritance that cannot be shaken, Hebr. 12. 28. as it followeth in the next clause to be considered, the Church is at the right hand of her Christ, upon thy right hand, &c. <sup>b</sup> that is, neereſt vnto thy ſelfe, and in the chiefe place of honour, for as <sup>i</sup> Bemamins meſſe was ſiue times as much as his brethrens; euen ſo the bleſſings of the Church exceed infinitely the bleſſings of worldlings; Length of dayes is in the right hand of <sup>k</sup> Chriſt; and in his left hand riches and glory, Prou. 3. 16. the Church is enriched eſpecially with the bleſſings of his right hand, <sup>l</sup> ſpirituall graces tending to that life which is euerlaſting: but worldlings are endued eſpecially with the bleſſings of his left hand, temporall goods in this tranſitorie life. Good men abound not alway with outward wealth and glory, yet (hauing the <sup>m</sup> promiſe both of the life preſent, and of that which is to come) they be bleſſed euen in their croſſe; though haply ſome be poore in purſe, yet rich in patience: for our heavenly Father giueth his children either meanes according to their mindes, or elſe mindes according to their meanes, all things working together for the beſt vnto them, Rom. 8. 28.

a Prou. 12. 10.

o Dan 5. 25.

p Heb. 10. 31.

q John 10. 28.

r Pſal. 145. 16.

s Hieron.
 Auguſtin.
 Baſil.

t In loc.

u Ephel. 2. 6.

v Apoc. 3. 21.

w Agellius.
 Bellarmin.
 Idem annotat.
 Chryſoſt.

x 1 Tim. 3. 15.

y See Theſaur.
 Reb. Stepha.
 verb. Sto.

z James 1. 8.

aa Ephel. 4. 14.

Or the left hand of Chriſt is his iuſtice, the right hand his mercy, both are right hands vnto the godly: for as the mercies of the <sup>a</sup> wicked are full of crueltie; ſo the very iudgements of God vpon his children are full of mercy: it was good for Ioseph that he was a captiue, good for Dauid that he was in trouble, good for Bartimeus that he was blinde, good for Naaman that he was full of leproſie, good for the woman of Canaan, that her deere daughter was miſerably vexed with a deuill, in theſe and all other like theſe, Gods mercy and iuſtice meet together, righteousneſſe and peace haue kiſſed each other, Pſal. 85. 10. The cup of wrath is in his left hand, Eſay 51. 17. The <sup>o</sup> fingers of this hand wrote vpon the wall of Balthazzers palace, Mene, mene, tekel, vpharſin: of this hand Iob ſaid, withdraw thine hand from me, Iob 13. 21. and P. S. Paul, It is a fearefull thing to fall into the hands of the liuing God: but his right hand is full of mercies, able to guard, open to giue: able to guard, for he ſaith of it, none ſhall plucke my ſheepe out of my hand: open to giue, for he doth open his hand, and filleth all things liuing with plenteouſneſſe.

Now the Queene is ſaid here to ſtand at his right hand, <sup>s</sup> for that he ſhall at the laſt day place the ſheepe, which are Gods elect, at his right hand; but the goats, which are the damned, at his left hand. It is a queſtion of late, whether euery ſworne woman of our gracious Queene, may preceede all other gentlewomen of worth and worſhip: but this Queene and her traine without all queſtion haue the moſt eminent place, being at the right hand of Chriſt here in his kingdome of grace, hereafter in his kingdome of glory, upon thy right hand did ſtand the Queene, &c. ſtand, for that is her geſture.

<sup>t</sup> Chryſoſtome and Euthymius obſerue, that Chriſt as being equall in dignitie to God, is ſaid to ſit at the right hand; but the Church, as being inferior, to ſtand; a wittie, but not a weightie note, for <sup>u</sup> Paul ſaith in expreſſe termes, that God hath raiſed vs vp together, and made vs ſit together in heavenly places; and <sup>v</sup> Chriſt himſelfe, by the pen of his beloued Diſciple, to him that ouercomes will I grant to ſit with me in my throne, euen as I overcame, and ſit with my Father in his throne. <sup>w</sup> Other therefore thinke that the word ſtand, notes a <sup>2</sup> ſtable firmeneſſe in the Church, as if he ſhould haue ſaid, the Queene is ſo conſtantly ioyned in her affection and loue to the King her husband, that the gates of hell are not able to make any diuorce betweene them, Pſalm. 125. 1. They that put their truſt in the Lord ſhall be like Mount Sion, which may not be removed, but ſtandeth faſt for euer. This kinde of ſpeech is vſed often in English, and in <sup>a</sup> Latine too, for what is more common in Tullie, than ſtare for non fugere. So Plautus, Ouid, Terence, ſtat ſententia. Schoole-boyes as well as Schoole-men vnderſtand this phraſe: ſuch then as will attend the Queene, bearing her companie with ioy and gladneſſe into the Kings palace, muſt (according to the rites of our Diuine Seruice Booke) ſtand to the Creed, and become Goſpellers in life ſo well as in lip; a <sup>b</sup> wauering minded man is vnconſtant in all his wayes, transported with euery <sup>c</sup> winde of doctrine, carried vp to the heauen, and downe againe to the deepe, ſtaggering and reeling to and fro like a drunken man, as our Prophet of the the weather-beaten Mariner, Psal. 107. 26. but a good man is an old stander in Christs Colledge, he knowes the way to heauen is so straight, that if he walke not vpright but halt in it, or reele from it, he may fall ouer the bridge into the pit of euerlasting perdition.

I am come now to the Churches vesture, the which is for the stufte, cloth of gold, for the trimming, embroydered with needle worke of diuers colours: the matter of the Churches apparell is gold, and that (according to the <sup>d</sup> Hebrew) gold of Ophir, the which is the <sup>e</sup> most glittering, precious, and pure gold: now the word of God is compared by the Holy Spirit to <sup>f</sup> fine gold, and to <sup>g</sup> some thinke the clothing of the Church is the doctrine of the Prophets and Apostles in the two Testaments, and the center of all their doctrine is Christ, and Christ (as Paul Rom. 13. 14.) is to be put on: his <sup>h</sup> righteousnesse then imputed vnto the Church is her garment of gold, appearing <sup>i</sup> glorious in the sight of God, elsewhere termed <sup>k</sup> a long robe, <sup>l</sup> covering all her iniquities, all her blacknesse and blemishes. <sup>m</sup> This exposition is agreeable to that of S. Iohn, Apoc. 19. 8. The Lambes wife was arrayed with pure fine linnen and shining, and this fine linnen (as himselfe expoundeth himselfe) is the iustification of Saints.

The Church is by nature <sup>n</sup> naked, poore, miserable, but Christ doth apparell her richly, saying in the 16. chapter of Ezechiel, I clothed thee with broydered worke, and shod thee with badgers skin, and I girded thee about with fine linnen, and I covered thee with silke, I decked thee also with ornaments, and I put bracelets vpon thine hands, and a chaine on thy necke, and a frontlet vpon thy face, and eare-rings in thine eares, and a beautifull crowne vpon thine head.

The hand that puts on this goodly garment is faith, and the Sacraments confirming our faith in Christ, are the buttons, as it were, clasping the cloke close to the soule. For whereas the word doth only promise Christ as in grosse generally and indefinitely, whosoever beleueth, all that labour, &c. the Sacraments apply Christ to thy selfe particularly, when the man of God in holy baptism saith, I baptize thee in the name of the Father, &c. and in the ministrarion of the Lords Supper, The bodie of our Lord Iesus Christ which was giuen for thee, and the bloud of our Lord Iesus Christ which was shed for thee, preserve thy bodie and soule into euerlasting life.

But as touching the trimming of the Churches garment, it is said here, wrought about with diuers colours. Concerning the reading and adding of which words vnto the text originall, I referre the criticall and curious to <sup>o</sup> S. Hierome in his Epistle to Principia, Steuchus, Bellarmino, Agellius, in their Commentaries vpon the place. I take them as I finde them in our ordinarie Psalter, and that for foure reasons especially.

1. The Septuagint reade so, whose translation is often vsed by Christ and his Apostles in the new Testament.

2. S. Augustine, Basil, Chrysostome, Arnobius, and other ancient Fathers for the most part interpret them so.

3. The clause (wrought about with diuers colours) is nothing else but a periphrasis of the Hebrew Cetbem, as Augustinus, Steuchus, Genebrard, Agellius, Acernensis, and other learned Doctors in the tongues obserue.

4. Dauid expoundeth himselfe thus at the fourteenth and fifteenth verses, where speaking of the same Queene, and of the same garment, he saith, her clothing is wrought about, and that with needle worke, the which is various and of diuers colours. So that we may speake to the Church of England, as the Samaritans did vnto the woman in the fourth of S. Iohn, Now we beleue not because of thy saying, but for that we haue heard him our selues.

<sup>p</sup> S. Augustine by these needle workes of diuers colours, doth vnderstand the diuersities of ceremonies vsed in the Church of God: as the same cloth is dressed and decked diuersly with sundry laces and embroyderies; euen so there is in the Church one faith, and varietie of ceremonies, an vnitie for doctrine throughout the whole world, but not alwayes in rites an vniformity. So the <sup>q</sup> Church of England determines, It is not necessarie that traditions and ceremonies be in all places, one or vterly like, for in all ages they haue bene diuers, & may be changed according to the diuersitie

<sup>d</sup> See Steuchus, Bellarmin.

Tremell. in loc.

<sup>e</sup> Iob 28. 16.

<sup>f</sup> Psal. 9. 10.

<sup>g</sup> Placidus.

Turrecremat.

<sup>h</sup> Chrysoz.

Hieron.

Brentius.

Tileman.

<sup>i</sup> Ephes. 5. 25.

<sup>k</sup> Apoc 7. 1.

<sup>l</sup> Psal. 32. 1.

<sup>m</sup> Bellarmin.

<sup>n</sup> Apoc 3. 17.

<sup>o</sup> Tom. 3. fol. 110

<sup>p</sup> Epist. 86.

<sup>q</sup> Hom. of fasting, part 1. and confession art. 34.

of countries, times, and manners of men, so that nothing be ordained against Gods Word. Now these diuers colours in the same garment may not beget a contentious opposition in the members of one bodie, we may not diuide Christs coat without leame, but so to worke together, as that we may keepe the vnitie of the spirit in the bond of peace. <sup>a</sup> S. Augustine sweetly, In ista veste varietas sit, scissura non sit. The needle worke here mentioned is no blacke worke, or browne worke, or (as Seamsters vse to speake) no cut. worke. There may be no rents or patches in this vesture, no schisme, nor scissure, the scissers of diuision, and sheeres of separation are both accursed.

<sup>x</sup> Other expound diuers colours to be diuers vertues, according to that of Paul, Coloss. 3. 12. Put on tender mercy, kindnesse, humblenesse of minde, meeknesse, long-suffering, and aboue all things put on loue, which is the bond of perfectnesse, as it were the hemme, y end, and edge of the wedding garment.

<sup>z</sup> S. Basil, and <sup>o</sup> other take diuers colours in this vesture, to be diuers kindes of precepts in the Scripture. Some Morall, other Naturall, some Theoricall, other Practicall, some Legall, other Euangelicall. It is pithily said by Paulinus epist. lib. 2. epist. 4. that our soules are by nature like the porches of Bethesda, mentioned Ioh. 5. in which are lodged a great many sicke folkes, blinde, halt, withered, &c. and that the Scriptures are like the poole of Bethesda, into which whosoever entreth after Gods holy Spirit hath a little stirred the water, is made whole of whatsoeuer diseale he hath.

<sup>b</sup> Other interpret diuers colours in the Churches vesture, to be contemplation and action.

<sup>c</sup> Other vnderstand it of diuers degrees and dignities of men in the Church, against the tumultuous Anabaptist, and malapert Mar-prelate. If these turbulent spirits (as some beare in hand) are cast out of the Church, or coniuered downe; Let such of them as are lining rust in their grieffe, and such of them as are dead rest in their graue: for Gods sake, my brethren, let vs not raise this kinde of deuill againe.

But most Interpreters haue construed this of graces and embroyderies of the Spirit, mentioned 1 Cor. 12. There be diuersities of gifts, but the same spirit: diuersities of administrations, but the same Lord: diuersities of operations, but God is the same who worketh all in all. Vnto one is giuen by the spirit the word of wisdom, to another the word of knowledge by the same spirit, to another is giuen faith by the same spirit, to another the gift of healing by the same spirit, to another discerning of spirits, to another diuersitie of tongues, and to another interpretation of tongues, all these things worketh euen the selfe-same spirit, distributing to euery man severally as he will. And here we may learne the reason why the Church of England hath appointed this Hymne to be read on this holiday, because Christ vpon this day sent downe the various gift of the Holy Ghost vpon his Disciples, as we finde Acts 2. <sup>d</sup> for these clouen tongues and millefold graces of the Spirit, are the broydered border in the Churches vesture.

The blessed Apostles had diuers colours in the Churches infancie; some were the sonnes of consolation, as <sup>e</sup> Barnabas; other the sonnes of thunder, as <sup>f</sup> James and Iohn: <sup>g</sup> Paul was good at planting, Apollos at watering. The holy Fathers in succeeding ages had diuers colours: <sup>h</sup> Origen construed the Scriptures allegorically, Hierome historically, Gregorie the Great morally, Chrysostome pathetically, Augustine dogmatically.

Since the reformation of religion our Doctores haue likewise flourished in diuers colours, as <sup>i</sup> Martin Luther once wrote vpon the wals of this chamber with chalke, Res & verba Philippus, res sine verbis Lutherus, verba sine re Erasmus, &c. Some men excell in explication, other in application of holy Scriptures; one surpasseth in expounding the words, another is eloquent in deliuering the matter, a third profound in determining Schoole-doubts, a fourth happy for cases of conscience, some iudicious in informing the vnderstanding, other powerfull in reforming the will and affection.

And (God be blessed) our Church of England is a Queene in a vesture of gold wrought about with diuers colours. B. Latymer a good old man and happy martyr, vsed in prison earnestly to pray that God once againe would restore the Gospell vnto this kingdome, repeating often (as reuerend <sup>k</sup> Fox reports in his life) these words,

Once

John 19. 33.
2 Cor. 6. 1.
Ephes 4. 3.
In loc.

<sup>c</sup> Erasmus.
Bellarmine.
Iacob. de Valent.
<sup>y</sup> 1 Tim. 1. 5.
<sup>z</sup> In loc.
<sup>a</sup> Ric. de Sancto Vik. apud D.
Incognit. in loc.

<sup>b</sup> Beaumont.

<sup>c</sup> Placidus.
D. Incognit.
Iacob. de Valent.

<sup>d</sup> Augustin.
Euthym.
Tileman.

<sup>e</sup> Acts 4. 36.
<sup>f</sup> Mark. 3. 17.
<sup>g</sup> 1 Cor. 3. 6.
<sup>h</sup> Sixt. Senen.
Bibliothec. lib. 3.
pag 187.

<sup>i</sup> In colloquio de Erasm.

<sup>k</sup> In Martyr.
fol. 1579.

Once againe, once againe good Lord. The God of comfort, out of the riches of his mercy heard his prayer, and that for a long time once againe bestowed on vs his word, sending vnto vs as he did vnto the Iewes his owne people, <sup>1</sup> Tropbets, and Wise-men, and Scribes, that is, zealous Preachers endued with the spirit of propheſie, which haue thundered in their doctrine and lightened in their conuerſation, as <sup>m</sup> Nazianzen wrote of Baſil, politike Prelates endued with the spirit of wiſdome, which haue bene the <sup>n</sup> chariot and horſe-men of Gods Iſrael among vs: accurate writers endued with the spirit of knowledge, whose books are like <sup>o</sup> the tower of Dauid, where the young men & ſtrong men haue ſwords and ſhields to fight the Lords battell. The truth is, England wants no gift ſo much as true thankfulneſſe to the Father of lights for all her gifts. Ingratefull England, what could Almighty God haue done more for thee, that he hath not done, ſending labourers into his vineyard here, both early and late, ſome plowing vp the fallow grounds, other binding vp the broken hearted, ſome powring oyle into thy wounds, other wine, ſome piping, other mourning: yet the beſt of thy Prophets are worſt entreated of thee, for diſſolute Diuines haue corrupt officers and roaring Gentlemen for their Patrons, factious Teachers haue ſwarms of followers and abettors, if any reele to Popery, he ſhall vndoubtedly finde friends in a corner, if not in the court: but the true Proteſtant Paſtor, a burning and a ſhining light, <sup>r</sup> ardens per verbum, lucens per exemplum, in ſingle benefice deſeruing double honor, is ground into powder, as it were betweene two contrary factions as the corne is betweene two mill-ſtones. It is therefore my humble ſute to ſuch as are placed in authority, to receiue none accusation againſt ſuch Elders, in points of doctrine eſpecially, <sup>1</sup> but vnder two or three witneſſes, and thoſe neither <sup>t</sup> whiſperers, nor aduerſaries, nor ignorant, the firſt dare not, the ſecond will not, and the third cannot giue good information: and it is my ſute to the people, that they would euer reuerence ſuch Elders, as their <sup>u</sup> Fathers in God, and as their Mothers <sup>x</sup> travelling in birth vntill Chriſt be formed in them; after teachers haue ſcattered in deed tares and cockle, but Proteſtant Doctors haue firſt of all and beſt of all, ſowen wheat in the Lords field, euen that immortall ſeed, by which all of vs are new borne babes vnto God in Chriſt. And it is my ſute to you my fellow-labourers in the Miniſtery, that you would continue <sup>y</sup> by honour and diſhonour, by euill report and good report, <sup>z</sup> ſtedfaſt and immouable, <sup>a</sup> ſhining as lights in the mids of a crooked generation, alwaies abundant in the worke of the Lord, neuer wearied in <sup>b</sup> doing good, good I ſay, to ſuch as hate you, to ſuch as hurt you, yea, to ſuch as deſpiſe your perſon and place: for beleue it beloued, If there be any way to heauen on horſe-backe, this is the way, to ſuffer for righteousneſſes ſake. So the king of glory ſhall haue pleaſure ſtill in our Churches beauty, being all glorious within, and ſhe ſhall haue many children, and they ſhall beare her company with ioy & gladnes into the Kings palace, decked in this world with embroyderies of grace, and couered in the next with an enerlaſting robe of glory.

Theſe notes concerning the deſcription of the Bride, were preached at Chriſts Church in Canterbury, at the Lord Arch-Biſhops viſitation, holden Anno 1615. Auguſt 10.

P S A L M E 47.

O clap your hands together all ye people, O ſing vnto God with the voice of melody, &c.

THE chiefe matter of this Hymne (in the <sup>e</sup> Fathers opinion) is Chriſts Aſcenſion, and ſo conſequently the victorious ſubduing of all his and our enemies: it conſiſteth of two parts eſpecially:

<sup>1</sup> Math. 23. 34<sup>m</sup> Orat ſuneb. in laudem Baſil.<sup>n</sup> 2 Kin. 2. 12.<sup>o</sup> Cant. 4. 4.<sup>p</sup> Eſay 5. 4.<sup>r</sup> Iohn 5. 35:<sup>t</sup> Aquin.<sup>u</sup> 1 Tim. 5. 29.<sup>x</sup> Latimer apud Fox in Mart.

fol. 1585.

<sup>y</sup> Philen. 10.<sup>z</sup> Galat. 4. 19.<sup>a</sup> 2 Cor. 6. 8.<sup>b</sup> 1 Cor. 15. 58<sup>c</sup> Philip. 2. 15.<sup>d</sup> Galat. 6. 9.<sup>e</sup> Hieron. Auguſtin. Chryſoſt. Euthym.

<sup>d</sup> Bucer.
Tileman.
Bellarmin.

<sup>e</sup> Melancthon.

<sup>f</sup> Placidus.
Caluin.
<sup>g</sup> Augustin. } Concordent manus & linguas
illa consistatur,
illa operentur.
<sup>h</sup> D. Incognit.
<sup>i</sup> Eccles. 7. 8.

<sup>k</sup> Mollerus.

<sup>l</sup> Strigelius.
<sup>m</sup> Placidus.
Bellarmin.
<sup>n</sup> Wilcox.
R. Stephan.

<sup>o</sup> Job 16. 23.

<sup>p</sup> Strigelius.
Mollerus.
<sup>q</sup> Luk. 11. 22.
<sup>r</sup> Ioh. 12. 31.

<sup>s</sup> James 2. 19.
<sup>t</sup> Tileman.

<sup>u</sup> D. Incognit.

<sup>v</sup> Pfal. 95. 4.

<sup>w</sup> Bellarmin.

Fully both in re- } Praisers, all ye people. <sup>d</sup> Not the Iewes onspect of the } ly, but the Gentiles also.
Praises, O sing praises, sing praises, &c. Often and all kinde of praise.

Faithfully, with vnderstanding <sup>e</sup> according to the prescript of his holy will. Other seruice done contrary to his word is not an honour, but a dishonour vnto him.

1. An inuitation to sing praises vnto Christ, and that

Cheerfully, Clap your hands and sing with the voice of melodie. For <sup>f</sup> clapping of hands is an outward <sup>g</sup> signe of an inward ioy, Nahum 3 19. or as other, praise God in your workes and words: for Clapping of hands together is the <sup>h</sup> ioyning of one good deed vnto another: as the wicked <sup>i</sup> bind sinnes together; so the godly clap good works together, ioyning vertue with faith, and with vertue knowledge, and with knowledge temperance, &c. 2 Pet. 1. 5.

2. A reason of this inuitation <sup>k</sup> in respect of our Sauours

Greatnesse, vers. 2. } <sup>Higb.</sup> Terrible. }
King ouer all the earth.
Collecting his Church, vers. 3. 4.
Goodnesse, in } Increasing his Church, vers. 5. 7. 8.
Preseruing his Church, vers. 9.

I haue treated often of the most remarkable points in the former part. I purpose therefore now to speake concerning the second only, being the ground of our Prophets exhortation.

The first inciting motiue to praise Christ is his greatnesse, being high, terrible,
King ouer all the earth, high <sup>l</sup> two waies,

1. Absolutely in respect of his owne selfe and owne <sup>m</sup> nature, sitting at the right hand of his Father in the highest heauens, and hauing also the highest <sup>n</sup> authority.

2. Relatiuely, in respect of our acknowledgement and inuocation, in that we his people who know that euery good and perfect gift is from aboue, beg all things of our heauenly father in <sup>o</sup> his name.

Christ is terrible, that is, fearefull, or meet to be feared, not of his children only for their good, but of the wicked also for their punishments: terrible to the <sup>p</sup> Deuill, as being <sup>q</sup> stronger than he, <sup>r</sup> casting out the Prince of darknesse by the finger of God. And therefore so soone as an vnclene spirit saw Iesus, he cried out, Ah, what haue we to doe with thee, O Iesus of Nazareth, art thou come to destroy vs, Mark. 1. 24. or as other Deuils, Mat. 8. 29. Art thou come to torment vs before the time? for the Deuils in beleeuing <sup>s</sup> tremble. Terrible to <sup>t</sup> Hypocrite and other impious agents of the Deuill, as hauing his Fanne in his hand to make cleane his floore, and to gather his wheat into his garner, but he will burne vp the chaffe with vnquencheable fire, Matth. 3. 12. <sup>u</sup> or Christ is Excelsus in potentia, terribilis in iustitia, high in power, and fearefull in iustice: high in exalting the good, and terrible in humbling the bad.

And Christ is king ouer all the earth, as hauing all power giuen him in heauen and earth, Mat. 28. 18. other Princes haue but one or two countries vnder their dominion and Empire, but <sup>v</sup> in his hands are all the corners of the earth, and the strength of the hils is his also, that is, of puissant Potentates, in comparison of whom all other ap-peare but low vallies, I say the strength and height of all hils are from him and for him, according to his good will and pleasure. To shut vp all in one brieffe glosse, <sup>w</sup> Christus est excelsus ratione diuinitatis, terribilis ratione potentia, Rex magnus ra-tione gubnationis & prouidentia. Christ is high in respect of his deity, being the Sonne of the most high, Luke 1. 32. to be feared in respect of his omnipotency, which nothing is able to resist, 2 Chro. 20. 6. a great King ouer all the earth in respect of his gouernment and prouidence, reaching from one end to another, and ordering all things sweetly, Wisd. 8. 1.

He ſhall ſubdue the people vnder vs.] Here the Iewes dreame of a temporall kingdome, conceiuing that the Meſſias at his comming ſhall as an earthly Prince poſſeſſe the kingdomes of the world, and bring them vnder his followers feet, And therefore the <sup>2</sup> mother of Zebedeus children earneſtly deſired Chriſt that her two ſonnes James and John might ſit the one at his right hand, and the other at his left in his kingdome. But our <sup>2</sup> Diuines anſwer, that the word tranſlated here, ſubdue, doth import a ſubduing, not with armes and force, but with arguments and Oratorie, not any compulſion by piercing of the ſword, but a voluntarie ſubmiſſion by the preaching of the word.

Againe, the <sup>b</sup> coherence ſhewes plainly that our Prophet meanes not any ſeruil ſubiection or bondage, but a ſpirituall obedience which is a perfect freedome. Vaſſals vnder tyrannie vſe not in ſigne of ioy to clap their hands, and to ſing with the voyce of melody; but in ſigne of ſorrow to wring their hands, and to complaine with outcries and lamentations. When the Lord turned againe the captivity of Sion, our mouth was filled with laughter, and our tongue with ioy, ſaith our Prophet Pſal. 126. 1. but by the waters of Babylon we ſate downe and wept, when as we remembered Sion, as for our harpes, we hanged them vpon the trees, as being vniſt in our heavineſſe to ſing any ſong of melody, Pſal. 137. 1. 2. 3. If all people then ought to ſing praifes, and to reioyce for their ſubiection, it muſt vndoubtedly be continued of ſuch a kinde of ſubduing as is full of <sup>c</sup> ioy, tearmed by <sup>d</sup> S. Paul, a caſting downe of our imagination exalted againſt the knowledge of God, and a bringing into captivity euery thought to the obedience of Chriſt.

Yea, but what is meant here by vs and our feet? If we take this as ſpoken of the bleſſed Apoſtles, it is plain, ſaith <sup>e</sup> Auſtine, for <sup>f</sup> their ſound went out through all the earth, and their words vnto the end of the world, they ſubdued by their preaching all Nations vnto the Scepter of Chriſts kingdome, in ſo much as their very feet were reputed beautifull, Rom. 10. 15. and we reade Acts 4. that the multitude which beleeued being poſſeſſors of lands or houſes ſold them, and brought the price of the things that were ſold, and laid it downe at the Apoſtles feet, according to the tenour of our text, he hath ſubdued the people vnder vs, and the nations vnder our feet.

If more largely we will vnderſtand this of all ſorts of Iewes conuerted vnto the Goſpell of Chriſt, it is agreeable to that, Eſay 2. 2. The Law ſhall goe forth of Sion, and the word of the Lord from Hieruſalem. And Pſal. 110. 2. The Lord ſhall ſend the rod of thy power out of Sion. The Iewes are the naturall branches, and the Gentiles as a wilde Oliue-tree grafted in them, Rom. 11. 17. The Goſpell of the kingdome was <sup>h</sup> firſt preached vnto the Iewes, and from the Iewes, as the <sup>i</sup> root, it was conueyed to the Gentiles as the branches. Our Prophet then in ſaying (he ſhall ſubdue the nations vnder our feet) doth inſinuate, <sup>k</sup> that the Gentiles ſhould be ſchollers, and the Iewes as it were ſchoolemaſters vnto them: ſo to ſit vnder the feet, or at the feet is vſed in holy Scripture for being a ſcholler, or learning: as Acts 22. 3. Paul ſaith of himſelfe, that he was brought vp at the feet of Gamaliel. And Luke 10. 29. Mary ſat at Ieſus feet, and heard his preaching. And <sup>l</sup> S. Ambroſe reports that the ſenior Doctors in the Synagogues of the Iewes vſed to ſit in high ſeats or Chaires, the younger vpon benches vnder them, and the laſt of all, vpon mats, loweſt of all.

But I take this as ſpoken by Dauid in the <sup>m</sup> perſon of the whole Church, conſiſting of Iewes and Gentiles, as if the <sup>n</sup> pillar of truth, and <sup>o</sup> mother of vs all had ſaid, the high and terrible, the great King ouer all the earth, by his holy word and ſpirit ſubdues the people, <sup>p</sup> that is, the Iewes, as at one Sermon about three thouſand, Act. 2. 41. & the nations, that is, the Gentiles, vnder vs, that is, vnder the diſcipline of his religion and ſeruiſe which we profeſſe, <sup>q</sup> putting the perſon here poſſeſſing for the thing poſſeſſed: and <sup>r</sup> ſo the Iewes and the Gentiles are made but one ſheepfold vnder one ſhepherd, John 10. 16. the ſtop of the partition wall is broken, and he hath made of both one, Ephes. 2. 14. according to Noahs prophesie, Gen. 9. 27.

He ſhall chuſe out an heritage for vs] <sup>s</sup> Some reade, he hath choſen vs an heritage to himſelfe, for the Church is Chriſts houſe, Hebr. 3. 6. and heritage, Deut. 9. 26. Eſay 19. 25. Iere. 10. 16. the people which as a <sup>t</sup> vineyard he hath encloued to himſelfe selfe from the Commons of the world, and chosen for his peculiar inheritance, Psal. 33. 12. Men esteeme very much of their inheritance, but Almighty God of his possession a great deale more, for that he created his people when they were not, and hath also preferred them euer since they were, redeeming them from the hands of all their enemies, and defending them as it were with a shield.

<sup>a</sup> Mat. 20. 20<sup>b</sup> Mollerus.<sup>c</sup> Caluis.
<sup>d</sup> Strigelus.<sup>e</sup> Rom 14. 17.<sup>f</sup> 2 Cor. 10. 5.<sup>g</sup> in loc.<sup>h</sup> Rom. 10. 18.<sup>i</sup> Mollerus.<sup>j</sup> Acts 13. 46.<sup>k</sup> Rom 11. 18.<sup>l</sup> Wilcox.<sup>m</sup> 1 Cor. in epiſt.<sup>n</sup> 1. ad Corin. cap.<sup>o</sup> 14. 2. eſ. 31.<sup>p</sup> Idem Pſal. apud<sup>q</sup> Loriz. in Acts<sup>r</sup> 22. 3.<sup>s</sup> Placidus<sup>t</sup> D. Incognit.<sup>u</sup> Caluis.<sup>v</sup> 1 Tim. 3. 15.<sup>w</sup> Gal. 4. 26.<sup>x</sup> Euthym.<sup>y</sup> Placidus.<sup>z</sup> Wilcox.<sup>aa</sup> Tremell.<sup>ab</sup> Vide Gene-<sup>ac</sup> brard. & Bel-<sup>ad</sup> larmin. in loc.<sup>ae</sup> Eſay 5. 2.

But <sup>u</sup> other according to the Hebrew read as our Church, he shall choose out an heritage for vs. hereby meaning that he who knowes what is better for vs than our selues, hath chosen, that is, appointed, and that of his owne good will and mercy toward vs our inheritance, not only things meet for this life, as lands, and houses, and possessions, &c. but euen all other things concerning the hope of a better life, to wit, a <sup>7</sup> kingdome that cannot be shaken, an <sup>2</sup> euerlasting habitation, an inheritance which is immortall and vndefiled, and fadeth not away, reserved for vs in heauen, 1 Pet. 1. 4. euen the worship of his beloued Iacob, or his glorie, for <sup>a</sup> which the true Iacob had good cause to glory, meaning the Kingdome, Temple, Priesthood, whereby Iacobs posterity did excell, Ezechiel 24. 21. Amos 6. 8. Nahum. 2. 2. and all heavenly promises giuen to the Church in Christ, for which all the seed of Iacob, according to the Spirit (I meane the faithfull) ought to be glad and glory.

God is gone vp with a merry noise ] Gods Arke was a true token of his presence, wherefore Diuines according to the history construe this of Gods Arke when it went vp from Kiriathearim to Hierusalem, <sup>b</sup> with shouting, and sound of cornet, and with trumpets, and with cymbals, making a sound with viols and with harps; or when it was carried by Salomon into the Temple, 2 Chron. 5. but most Interpreters according to the mysterie, take this as spoken of Christ, ascending with triumph into heauen, Luk. 24. 51. he went vp with a merry noise, when as Legions of Angels attended him and sang, <sup>c</sup> Lift up your heads, o ye gates, and be lift vp ye euerlasting doores, and the King of glory shall come in. The Disciples haply heard not this merry noise, <sup>d</sup> that they might the better intend the mysterie, considering their owne flesh, vnto which it was said in the beginning, (<sup>e</sup> Dust thou art, and to dust thou shalt retorne againe) to be now clothed with incorruption, and carried into the heauen of heauens. <sup>f</sup> It is not said here that he was assumed or carried vp, as 8 Elias into heauen by the power of another: but as God he did ascend by his owne proper power, and that in victory, <sup>h</sup> Leading captivity captiue, i spoiling principalities, and powers, openly triumphing over the Dcuill and Death, ouer hell and the graue, ouer sinne and the law: he brake thorow all their fetters and forces, as thorow a cobweb, saith Chrysoftome, and in despite of them all ascended vp on high with a merry noise.

Yea but how can it be truly said, that he went vp with the sound of the trumpet? Answer is made by two messengers of heauen, Acts 1. 11. this Iesus which is taken vp from you into heauen shall so come, as ye haue seene him goe into heauen. Now Christ, as <sup>k</sup> S. Paul telleth vs expressly, shall descend from heauen with a shout, and with the voice of the Arch-angell, and with the trumpet of God. And therefore <sup>l</sup> S. Hierome that the two glorious Angels appearing to the Disciples in white clothing sounded as it were a trumpet, in saying as Christ ascended, To men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing into heauen, &c.

Or as <sup>m</sup> other, he went vp with the sound of the trumpe, that is, at his ascension he gaue his Apostles power and faculty, to <sup>n</sup> reach all nations, and in their preaching, they listed vp their voice like a trumpe, Esay 58. 1. and the sound of this trumpe ringeth as yet in the world. And therefore let vs sing praises vnto Christ, as <sup>o</sup> our God, and againe sing praises vnto him, as being our King, and thirdly sing praises vnto him, as being the King of all the earth.

Or let vs sing praises vnto him in our praier, and that foure waies answerable to the foure kindes of praier, 1 Tim. 2. 1. as <sup>p</sup> if he should haue said, O sing praises vnto him in your supplications, O sing praises vnto him in your observations, O sing praises vnto him in your intercessions, O sing praises vnto him in your giuing of thanks.

And as we must often and frequently praise him, euen so prudently with under- standing.

<sup>a</sup> Vatablus.
Munster.
Caluin.
<sup>r</sup> Tromell.
Welcox.

<sup>7</sup> Heb. 12. 18.
<sup>2</sup> Luk 16. 9.
<sup>8</sup> Vatablus.

<sup>b</sup> 2 Sam 6. 15.
<sup>1</sup> Chron. 13. 8.
& 15. 25.

<sup>c</sup> Psal. 24. 7.

<sup>d</sup> Bellarmin.

<sup>e</sup> Gen. 3. 19.

<sup>f</sup> Chrysoft.

<sup>8</sup> 2 King. 2. 12.

<sup>h</sup> Psal. 68. 18.

<sup>l</sup> Coloss. 2. 15.

<sup>k</sup> 1 Theff 4. 15

<sup>l</sup> In loc. Idem
August. & alij.

<sup>m</sup> Tilman.

<sup>n</sup> Mat. 28. 19.

<sup>o</sup> Bellarmin.

<sup>p</sup> D. Incognit.
in loc.
Bernard.

standing, <sup>a</sup> that is, not only with our lips, and other outward instruments of praise, but also with our hearts and attention, euen with all accurate <sup>r</sup> skill and <sup>f</sup> industry. The <sup>c</sup> Gentiles in adoring gods made with hands, sing not understandingly. The <sup>u</sup> Iewes in dreaming of an earthly kingdome, sing not praises vnto their Meſſias understandingly. The <sup>x</sup> Papiſts in preaching iuſtification by workes of the Law, sing not the prailes of Chriſt understandingly. <sup>y</sup> Hereticks expounding the text corruptly, sing not praises vnto Chriſt understandingly. Wherefore <sup>z</sup> S. Paul exhorteſt vs that the Word of God may dwell in vs plenteouſly with all wiſdome. See Epist. Sunday 5 after Epiph.

God reigneth ouer the heathen] Chriſt aſcending vp on high appointed <sup>a</sup> ſome to be Apoſtles, and ſome Prophets, and ſome Euangelists, and ſome Paſtors and Teachers, for the gathering together of the Saints, for the worke of the ministry, and for the edifying of his body the Church. And for this end he furniſhed his Apoſtles on this day with extraordinary gifts of eloquence & zeale, the Holy Ghoſt appearing vnto them, and ſitting on each of them in the ſhapes of <sup>b</sup> clouen and fiery tongues. <sup>c</sup> The Diſciples had inuſion of the ſpirit, haply diſuſion heretofore when Chriſt breathed on them and ſaid, <sup>d</sup> receiue the Holy Ghoſt: but now they had (as <sup>e</sup> one calleth it) eſuſion of the ſpirit ſurpaſſing the former in manner and meaſure. Now their cup did ouerflow, they were ſo filled with heavenly gifts and graces, as that they <sup>f</sup> could not but ſpeake the things which they had heard and ſcene of Chriſt, euen <sup>g</sup> the wonderfull workes of God, eloquently with other tongues, and earneſtly with all boldneſſe. Now the bleſſed Apoſtles able to ſpeake euery kinde of language, taught euery nation vnder heauen, and ſo Chriſt our great King by the powerfull operation of his Goſpell in the mouthes of his Preachers, and hearts of his people, reigneth ouer the heathen, and ſitteth vpon his holy ſeat.

Two things (as <sup>b</sup> Ariſtotele taught) concurre to the making of an abſolute king. On the Soueraignes part authority, on the ſubiects part obedience. Chriſt in reſpect of his authority reigned ouer the heathen heretofore, for <sup>i</sup> the earth is the Lords and all that therein is, the compaſſe of the world, and they that dwell therein: but now he reigneth ouer them in reſpect of their obedience: they were ſubiects alway to the kingdome of his power, but now they be ſubiects vnto his kingdome of grace, they now bring vnto him <sup>k</sup> a free-will offering with an holy worſhip, and ſo he ſitteth vpon his holy ſeat, as it followeth in our Text.

By ſeat he meaneth either heauen or the tabernacle, for both of theſe many times are called in Scripture, Gods holy throne, becauſe he that had the fulneſſe of holineſſe in himſelfe, gaue manifeſtation of himſelfe from <sup>m</sup> theſe two places eſpecially. Now for as much as the tabernacle was a figure of the Church, it may be conſtrued of his <sup>n</sup> reigning in the hearts of the faithfull vpon earth, as well as of his ſitting at the right hand of God in heauen: <sup>o</sup> howſoever it is to be taken, the Prophets purpoſe is no doubt to deſcribe Chriſt as a Iudge ready to yeeld iuſtice both to good and bad, according to their deeds.

The Princes of the people] Concerning the diuers readings of theſe words, I refer you to Mollerus, Genebrard, Agellius, Bellarmin. in loc. I will expound them as I finde them in our preſent tranſlation, and I note from hence,

I. That it is not impoſſible for great men to be good men, for the heads of a Country to be members of Chriſt, and for Princes as well as the people, to ſerue the God of Abraham: it is ſaid by the <sup>p</sup> Prophet, upon my peace came great bitterneſſe, a thouſand fall on the left hand, but <sup>q</sup> ten thouſand at the right hand, ten periſh in their proſperity for one that falleth in aduerſity. <sup>r</sup> Homo victus in Paradiso victor in ſtercore, <sup>s</sup> Adam in the garden of pleaſure was overcome by the ſubtil ſerpent, whereas <sup>t</sup> Iob vpon the dunghill of miſery was more than a conquerour. Woodmen ſay that Deere are moſt circumspect in fat paſture: ſo the godly feare moſt in a rich eſtate, nihil timendum video (ſaith <sup>u</sup> one) timeo tamen; it is a ſweet praier of our Church in the Letany, Good Lord deliuer vs in all time of our wealth, inſinuating that our mindes are not ſo wanton in want as in abundance: yet (as you ſee) ſuch is Chriſts vnſpeakable goodneſſe toward all ſorts of men, in <sup>x</sup> preventing them euen <sup>a</sup> Euthym.

Genebrard.

<sup>c</sup> Bucer.
Mollerus.
Caluin.

<sup>f</sup> Bellarm. vide
Bernard. ſc. 7.

<sup>g</sup> 47. ſup.
Cantica

<sup>h</sup> Auguſtin.

<sup>i</sup> Mollerus.

<sup>j</sup> Melanct.

<sup>k</sup> Tilmont.

<sup>l</sup> Coloff. 3. 16.

<sup>m</sup> Ephel. 4. 11.

<sup>b</sup> Ad. 2. 3.

<sup>c</sup> See Epistle on this day.

<sup>d</sup> Ioh. 20. 23.

<sup>e</sup> Re. 2. 5.
Vid. ſc. de miſſi
one ſpiritus.

<sup>f</sup> Act. 4. 20.

<sup>g</sup> Act. 2. 11.

<sup>b</sup> And D. In-cognit. in loc.

<sup>i</sup> Pſal. 24. 1.

<sup>h</sup> Pſal. 110. 3.

<sup>l</sup> Caluin.

Mollerus.

<sup>m</sup> Matt. 5. 34.

Mar. 23. 21. 22

<sup>n</sup> Mollerus.

<sup>o</sup> Wil. ex.

<sup>p</sup> Eſa. 38. 17.

<sup>q</sup> Pſal. 91. 7.

<sup>r</sup> Auguſt. in Pſal. 34. con. 1.

<sup>s</sup> Gen. 2.

<sup>t</sup> Iob. 2.

<sup>u</sup> Seneca Trag.

<sup>x</sup> Pſal. 21. 3.

with

with the riches of his mercy, that not only the meane people, but also the mighty Princes among the heathen, are ioyned vnto the Church of the God of Abraham.

2. From hence we may learne <sup>y</sup> that the calling of Princes is lawfull and vsfull, in that Almighty God hath ordained higher powers to be Protectors of his people, by which he defendeth his Church on earth, as it were with a shield. Fabius Maximus is called by <sup>z</sup> Plutarch, Scutum Romanorum, the target of the Romans: so good Princes are Scuta Christianorum, the bucklers of Gods people: <sup>a</sup> the same word is vsed, Hosea 4. 18. Her shields loue to say with shame, giue ye, that is, her Rulers loue bribes.

Constantine the great was a shield to the Church, Arcadius a shield to the Church, Theodosius a shield to the Church, John Frederick Duke of Saxonie was a shield to the Church: among pious Princes, I may not forget our late Queene Elizabeth of blessed memory. The <sup>b</sup> Poets affirme that Ajax had a seuen-fold shield, <sup>c</sup> the which as a tower barred his bolome: the right side was all brasse, & seuen Oxe hides within it quilted hard, framed by Tychems the best Currier that euer dwelt in Hyla. So that happy Prince was a seuen-fold shield to protect the people of the God of Abraham, according to the <sup>d</sup> seuen-fold gift of the spirit manifestly shewen in her government. She was a shield not only to this our Church in England, but a shield moreouer to the Church in Scotland, a shield to the Church in Holland, a shield to the Church in France, a shield to the Church in Germany, a shield to the Church in Denmarke, a shield to the Church in Geneva. She was a true Defender of the faith, and a sure Target to the faithfull, of whatsoeuer condition or country. If Plutarch were now liuing to write liues by parallels, he would be troubled exceedingly to find a parallel for her in respect of her morall endowments among women, and in respect of her Princely vertues among men, who liued with her, and are now at rest with her.

<sup>e</sup> This doctrine doth instruct Princes not to pill and poll the common-weale, but to become nursing <sup>f</sup> fathers and nursing mothers vnto the Church: a Tyrant is Butcher to his people, but a good King is a Buckler to such as are vnder him, a Protector of his Realme, defending the bodies and goods of his subiects, as it were with a shield & Alphonsus King of Naples vsed this Embleme, a Pelican feeding her young with her own bloud, the Motto, Pro rege, & pro rege. So renowned Achilles said in <sup>h</sup> Homer that he loued his Countrymen, as the carefull Dam-bird her vnfeathered brood, who bestowes meat on them vntill her selfe haue nothing left to eat. Cicero reports that Cesar forgat nothing but iniuries only, which (as <sup>i</sup> Augustine notes) he did vter vel magnus laudator, vel magnus adulator, either as a true commender, or as a lying flatterer; if as a commender, he knew Cesar was so: if as a flatterer, he shewed that a great Prince should be so. <sup>k</sup> For though a King be neuer so puissant of power, yet breach of oath and promise solemnely made to the common-wealth, is an euill upholder of quietnesse, feare is worse, but crueltie the worst of all. A Ruler ought not to be a ruiner, but a shelter and a shield to such as are committed to his charge.

This also should teach <sup>l</sup> every soule to be subiect vnto higher powers, as being the Ministers of God for our well-fare. <sup>m</sup> Curse not the King, no not in thy thought, much lesse in thy word, least of all in any deed: for he that rebelleth against his Soueraigne, hacketh & heweth as it were his own buckler of defence. When one comforted a poore widow which had lately lost her husband, for that he was an vnthrif & vnkinde, she replied, although he were but a bad husband, yet he was an husband, & such an one is better than none. The commodities of government are so great, that a very bad husband to the common-wealth is better than none, for whereas in a corrupt Monarchie there is one Tyrant, in an Oligarchie some few Tyrants, in a Democracy many Tyrants, in an Anarchy all are Tyrants. In <sup>n</sup> holy Bible we read that Danid would not suffer his enimie Saul, though a wicked King, to be slaine when he was in his hands, for that he was the Lords anointed, he had sanctitatem vntionis, albeit not sanctitatem visa, that is, an holy calling, though not an holy carriage. Wherefore Danid said, who can lay hands on, the Lords anointed and be guilt lesse? and if <sup>o</sup> Heathen Emperors in the primitiue times, and vngodly Kings in all ages ought

<sup>r</sup> Melancthon.
M. Kerus.
Suzigellus.

<sup>z</sup> In vita Mar-telli.

<sup>a</sup> Bucer.
Bellarmus.

<sup>b</sup> Ouid. Metamorph. lib. 13.

<sup>c</sup> Homer Iliad. lib 7.

<sup>d</sup> Esay 11.2.

<sup>e</sup> Melanct.
Bucer.
Mollerus.
<sup>f</sup> Esay 49. 23.

<sup>g</sup> Apud Suzigel.
in loc.

<sup>h</sup> Iliad. lib 9.

<sup>i</sup> Epist. 5.

<sup>k</sup> Fox Martyr.
fol. 1273.

<sup>l</sup> Rom. 13. 1.
<sup>m</sup> Eccles. 10. 20

<sup>n</sup> 1 Sam 26.

<sup>o</sup> Cesar Rayon.
epist. praefix.
annual tem. 11.
A position contrary to Popish practise.

ought to be thus obeyed, how much more then a Christian and a vertuous Prince, such as Almighty God hath at this day placed ouer vs in this Island.

This exposition is common and commendable, fitting the context fully, yet I rather follow their iudgement; who make God himselfe this our shield, for the Lord which is very high exalted, euen the King of all the earth, is our strength, stonie rocke, defence, sauiour, refuge, buckler: a except hee build the house; their labour is but lost that build it, except hee keepe the Citie, the watchman wakes but in vaine. Princes and Prelates are but his ministers, as it were petite shelds vnder his high and holy shelter: and the Prophet calleth his protection in the plurall shields, * insinuating that God vseth innumerable meanes in preseruing his Church; able to saue with a few so well as with many, yea by miracles extraordinarie, so well as by meanes ordinarie. The busie brood of Spanish Ignatians are called Iesuites, but they may more fitly be called Iehusites. Iesus was so meeke as a lambe, but Iehus was a man of bloud, and so be they; their eyes, as one said, are lifted vp into heauen, but their hands are on earth, and their hearts in hell, euer contriuing some mischiefe or massacre: yet the Lord high and terrible defendeth his Church against all their plots and practises, and so reigneth euen in the midst of all his enemies.

Let vs therefore ioyne both ends of this Hymne together, and say with our Prophet, O clap your hands, all ye people, which are Gods people, sing with the voice of melodie, sing praises, sing praises vnto our God, O sing praises, sing praises vnto our King: for hee hath openly shewed himselfe to bee both great and good in collecting his Church, in increasing his Church, in protecting his Church, as it were with a shield.

P S A L M E. 104.

Praise the Lord, O my soule, &c.

1. Concerning Gods power, from verse 1. to verse 10.

2. Concerning his prouidence, from verse 10. to verse 24.

3. Concerning both his power and prouidence together, from verse 24. to the Psalmes end.

THis Hymne consists of three parts especially, the Now for as much as these theames are the common arguments of other Hymnes expounded before, and vpon the point the very same which are to bee discussed in the next following; I must here craue both a pardon and a passe of course to goe from this to that in peace.

P S A L M E. 145.

I will magnifie thee, O God my King, and I will praise thy name for euer and euer, &c.

THis Hymne contayneth excellent matter, and is penned after a most exquisite manner. The chiefe matter is Gods holy praise, the which is the very center of all our deuotions, enjoyned by Christ both in the beginning and ending of his absolute prayer; in the beginning, hallowed be thy name, in the ending, thine is kingdome, power and glory: teaching vs hereby, that it is in religion Alpha and Omega, the first thing we should aske, and the last thing also that we should act. For Almighty God out of the riches of his mercie bestoweth vpon vs all things, and requireth of vs only this one thing, to praise his name for euer and euer.

For the manner, it is written in the order of the crosse row, euer y verse (excepting one) beginning with the letters as they be placed in the Hebrew Alphabet. Now the Holy Ghost enameleth and fretteth as it were this and some other places of Scripture with these characters for two reasons especially.

p Psal. 18. 1.
q Psal. 127. 1.

r Rom. 13. 4.
* Calvin.
Mollerus.

f 2. Kings 9.

t Psal. 110. 2.

u Master Eſtey expoſit. of 119. Pſalme.
 x Eucer in Pſal. 119. & Tremel. in Pſal. 11.
 y Mollerus. Caluin. in Pſal. 119.
 z Pſal. 103. 14.
 a Rom. 6. 19.
 b 1. Cor. 14. 40.

1. To ſhew the Writers<sup>u</sup> diligence, or haply rather the writings<sup>x</sup> dignitie.
 2. To helpe the readers<sup>y</sup> memorie, for hee conſidereth of<sup>z</sup> what mould wee are made, not of iron but of duſt; impreſſions of iron or braſſe continue long, but in duſt and aſhes they be ſoone either blowne away, or waſhed away. The ſpirit therefore for the dulneſſe of our vnderſtanding, ſpeakes ſome things groſſely, quoth<sup>a</sup> Paul; and againe, for the weakneſſe of our memorie, ſets downe many things, as here, by figures and places artificially. And as the writers of ſacred Scripture, who were the pens, euen ſo the Preachers of the bleſſed word, which are the tongues of the Holy Ghoſt, ought to teach other with order and accurate method; for God is the God of order, and as he will haue all things in the Church<sup>b</sup> done, ſo likewiſe all things in the Church<sup>ſaid</sup> orderly.

The Whole may be diuided into a } Proteſtation to praiſe God, in the two former verſes.
 } Propoſition of arguments why God is to be praiſed, in the reſt.

Person } Praiſing, King David, I will praiſe.
 } Praiſed, the Lord, ſtilled here God, King;

c Pſal. 111. 1.

In the proteſtation obſerue the Practiſe, praiſing of God, and that with Intention, implied in theſe words, I will, O God, and expreſſed<sup>e</sup> elſewhere, I will giue thanks to the Lord with my whole heart, praiſe the Lord, O my ſoule, and all that is within me, praiſe his holy name, Pſal. 103. 1.

Extension, in regard of the } Thing, I will magnifie thee, praiſe thy name, giue thanks, talke of thy worſhip, tell of thy greatneſſe, &c.
 } Time, for euer and euer d Epiſt. 50.

Concerning the partie praiſing God, I haue ſpoken in my notes vpon the 118. Pſalme, and vpon Pſalme 95. in the beginning of our Liturgie David herein is a mirrour to Magiſtrates, and patterne to priuate people: for a King, ſaith<sup>d</sup> Auguſtine, ſerues God one way as a man, another way as a Magiſtrate; as a man, hee muſt haue care to liue deuotly toward God, and ſoberly toward himſelfe; but as a Magiſtrate he muſt alſo become a great example both of holy religion and vnſpotted honeſtie toward other. As<sup>e</sup> Aurelius Claudius in his Motto, Rex vna lex. For as the law is a dead rule; ſo the ruler ought to carrie himſelfe to his ſubiects as a liuing law.

e Reuſner. in Symbol.
 f Du Bartas 2. day, 1. weeke.

For<sup>f</sup> as Cameliſons varie with their obiect,
 So Princes manners doe transforme the ſubiect.

g 1. Sam. 13. 1.
 h See Vatablus in loc.

Princes are then only greater than themſelues when as they forget their owne greatneſſe to magnifie Gods name, whoſe greatneſſe is without end. It is ſaid of<sup>g</sup> Saul, that he had bene King one yeere, and that he reigned two yeares ouer Iſrael: <sup>h</sup> one yeere he reigned well, and afterward there was no account of his reigne. <sup>i</sup> Seneca ſaid of an old man, who ſaw many good dayes, but did but a few good deeds, diu ſuit, non diu vixit, according to that of the<sup>k</sup> Wiſeman, The honourable age is not that which is of long time, neither that which is measured by the number of yeares, but an ended life is the old age. The wicked liue not out halfe their dayes, Pſal. 55. 25. and ſo Chriſtians vſe to number their dayes not a generatione, but a regeneratione, that is, from their baptiſme, not from their birth.

k Wiſd. 4. 8.

l Mollerus Caluin
 m Bellarmine.

The partie praiſed is the Lord, called by David here, my King, either<sup>l</sup> for that he did acknowledge himſelfe to be King vnder God, which is the King of Kings, <sup>m</sup> or elſe for that he was to magnifie thoſe vertues in God, which eſpecially concerne him as King and<sup>n</sup> Lord of all, hauing<sup>o</sup> all power in heauen and earth. Moſt men among the very worſt, acknowledge that there is a God, <sup>p</sup> but they doe not admit him as King and gouernour of the whole world, <sup>q</sup> reaching from one end to another, and ordering all things ſweetly.

n Rom 10. 17.
 o Mat. 28. 18. p Placidus.
 q Wiſd. 8. 1.

David therefore calleth here<sup>r</sup> Christ a King, of whom it is said by God the Father, Psal. 2. 6. I haue set my King vpon my holy hill of Sion: and <sup>r</sup> Psal. 45. 7. Thy seat, O. God is for euer and euer, the scepter of thy kingdome is a right scepter. And in particular application he termeth him also my King, for it is not enough to confesse, that Christ is a Priest, a Prophet, and a King to others; vnlesse we belecue that Christ is our Priest, our Prophet, our King, our righteousnesse, saying as <sup>u</sup> Paul, he loued me and gaue himselfe for me, sweet Iesu thou art my God, and I will thanke thee, for I am thy seruant, my King, and I will magnifie thee; for I am thy subiect.

Concerning Dauids practise, he saith vnto God, I will magnifie thee, giue thanks vnto thee, talke of thy worship, speake of the might of thy marvellous acts, and tell of thy greatnes: hereby shewing his readines to giue God all power and praise, not onely for a day, but for euery day, yea, for euer and euer. And how that is to be construed; I haue noted vpon the 89. Psalme at large. The wicked may be said to dishonour Gods name for euer and euer two wayes.

1. In respect of their desires, for if they should liue for euer and euer, they would sinne for euer and euer.

2. In respect of their deserts and euill example, for as long as any man liuing is hurt by their scandall, or misled by their lewd doing, or saying, or writing, or reading, so long they dishonour God vpon earth, and accordingly their torments are made more grieuous vnto them in hell. And therefore<sup>z</sup> some Diuines thinke that the rich Epicure frying in hell fire, became solicitor for his brethren at home, that they should confert and repent not out of any compassion or loue, but onely for that his conscience told him he had giuen them ill example while he liued among them, and that if they were damned, his torture should be further increased for it.

On the contrary, good men honour God and praise his name for euer and euer, in respect of their affections, as being desirous to <sup>a</sup> sing alway the louing kindnesse of the Lord, &c. and in respect of their example, for that other<sup>b</sup> seeing their good works are moued to tell of his greatnes, and talke of his glory from one generation to another. It is reported Heb. 11. 4. that Abel being dead many thousand yeeres, yet speaketh, and as the bloud of Abel, euen so the good deeds of the Saints in heauen; as yet doe speake to vs on earth, Abrahams obedience, Iosephs continence, Iobs patience, Simeons pietie, Cornelius his pitie, preach still vnto vs. And Chrysostome doth affirme, that the rewards of S. Paul shall so long rise more and more, how long there shall any remaine, which either by his doctrine or life shall euery day be brought vnto God, Essence, verse 3. Great is the Lord, yea no end of his greatnesse.

The reasons why God is to bee prayed, are drawne from his Touching Gods essence, David saith, it is great without end, as <sup>c</sup> Iob speaks, higher than heauen, as being higher then the highest; deeper than hell, as passing all the decepe vnderstanding of men and Angels; broader then the sea, as <sup>d</sup> measuring the waters in his fist; longer than earth, as being immortall onely: for whereas the decrees of God, called eternall, haue an end but not a beginning; and the soules of men, called immortall, haue a beginning without an end: God alone is Alpha and Omega, without either beginning or end, being the beginning and end of all things.

<sup>e</sup> Or haply David speaks thus of the greaunesse of God, as a King, hauing a kingdome r Tileman.

f So Paul
Heb. 1. 8.
t Strigellius.

u Gal. 2. 20.
x Psal. 118. 28.
y Psal. 116. 14.

z Gregorius & Beda apud Mal.
donat in Luc 14.
27. and D. Fenton serm. at Mercers Chappell.
a Psal 89. 1.
b Matth. 5. 16.

c Iob. 11. 8, 9.

d Esay 40. 11.

e Bellarmine.

kingdome great in respect of bredth, for all things are at his cōmmand; from the silly worne that is vnder our feet to the glorious Angels in the highest heaucens: great in respect of length, for his Kingdome is an euerlasting Kingdome, verse 15. of this hymne; great in respect of depth, as ruling not only the bodies, but also the mindes of men, yea the vory <sup>f</sup> hearts of other Kings are in his hand: great in respect of height, as being a great & King above all other Gods, ruling by his own power, whereas all other haue receiued the sword from him, wherefore saith <sup>h</sup> Augustine, seeing his greatnesse in eucry respect is without end; let our magnifying of his name continue for euer and euer world without end. To conclude with <sup>i</sup> Hilarius, Virtus eius opinione non clauditur, locis non continetur, nominibus non enunciat, temporibus non subditur, arcus ad id sensus noster est, ingenium hebes est, sermo mutus est.

Concerning the workes and effects of God, they bee generally so maruellous, that one man is not able to declare their power, and to tell of their greatnesse, and <sup>k</sup> therefore Dauid saith, one generation shall praise them vnto another: eucry seuerall age is an eye-witnesse of seuerall acts of wonder, and one day telleth another, and one night certifieth another, Psal. 19.2. <sup>l</sup> one generation passeth, and another commeth, and as one succeedeth another in dayes, euen so likewise in duty, speaking of the might of Gods admirable workes, and talking of his greatnesse.

More particularly, some workes of God are maruellous, as being full of beautie, vers. 5. for <sup>m</sup> the heauens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth his handi worke. The Sunne, Moone, starres, fire, winde, swift ayre, raging water, are so full of beautie, that ignorant vaine men imagined them to be gods and gouernours of the world, Wisd. 13.3.

Other workes of God are maruellous, as being full of terror and iustice, verse 6. which he doth execute sometime vpon certaine persons, as the fearefull opening of the ground vpon <sup>n</sup> Corath, Dathan and Abiram. Sometimes vpon whole cities, as the destruction of <sup>o</sup> Sodome and Gomorra, by raining downe fire and brimstone from heauen: sometimes vpon a whole nation, as the sending of his <sup>p</sup> plagues vpon Egypt thorowout all the Land: and once vpon the whole world as the generall <sup>q</sup> Deluge that swept away from earth eucry thing in whose nostrils the spirit of life did breathe, only Noah remained and they that were with him in the Arke.

Other workes of God are maruellous, as being full of his abundant kindnesse, for saith our Prophet, his mercies are ouer all his workes: the which I finde construed two wayes.

1. His mercies are ouer all his workes, that is, greater than all other his workes.

2. His mercies are ouer all, that is, shewed in all, and toward all his workes.

Faith in man is a greater vertue then mercie, because faith vniteth vs vnto God which is higher than vs, whereas mercie supplies the defects of such as are vnder vs: <sup>r</sup> but in God which is the greatest, hauing all things inferiour to himselfe, and no superiour, mercie may be said to be the greatest of all his vertues, according to that of <sup>s</sup> S. Iames, mercy glorieth and triumpheth against iudgement. I say the greatest in effect, but not in propriety, for all the vertues and attributes of God are equall in effect and extent, for whereas Gods indignation is but vpon the <sup>t</sup> fourth generation of those that hate him: his mercies are vpon thousand generations of such as loue him and keepe his commandements: and among the thirteene properties of God, Exod. 34.6.7. almost all of them appertaine to his mercie: whereas but one concernes his might, and only two his iustice.

It is true that wisdome, iustice, power, are in God equall, as being his essentiall attributes: and <sup>x</sup> yet all these were chiefly manifested in our redemption by his mercie: for it is a greater act to redeeme the world, than in the beginning to create the world, in making it hee did onely speake the word and it was done: but in redeeming it, he spake many words, and did many wonders, yea hee did suffer many wrongs, as well as doe many workes, and loue is scene in doing more then in saying, and in suffering more than in doing: in the cretion of the world God made man like himselfe; but in the redemption of the world he became flesh, and was made man; yea, <sup>y</sup> the scorne of men and outcast of the people: which occasioned the

blesed

f Pro. 31.1.
g Psal. 95.3.
h In loc.

i In loc.

k Bellarmin.

l Eccles. 1.4.

m Psal. 19.1.

n Num. 16.

o Gen. 19.
p Exod. cap. 8:
q. 10.
q Gen. 7.

r Misericordia non est maxima nisi ille qui ha-bet sit maximus.
Thoma. 2. 2e.
quest. 30. Art. 4.
vide Caietan.
ibid.
s Iames 2. 13.
t Genebrard in
loc.
u Exod. 20. 5, 6.
x Iacob. de Valent. in loc.

Psal. 22. 6.

bleſſed * Apoſtle, to terme the mercies of God in Chriſt, exceeding riches of his grace: power and wiſedome haply concerne Gods owne ſelfe and glory more, but his mercy concernes our good moſt, and is vnto vs in this reſpect ouer all his workes, according to that of Hilarius vpon our text, Quod potens eſt, natura ſua virtus eſt: quod autem miſericors eſt, ſalutis noſtra profectus eſt.

But <sup>a</sup> moſt Interpreters approve the ſecond expoſition beſt, his mercies are ouer all, that is, ſhewed in all, and toward all his workes: <sup>b</sup> for this latter claufe (his mercies are aboue all his workes) is nothing elſe but a repetition of the former, the Lord is good vnto all: his goodneſſe is the ſame with his mercy, and all is all his workes. God then is good to the whole vniuerſe generally, more ſpecially to the reaſonable creatures, and among theſe principally to ſuch as loue him, and feare him, and call vpon him faithfully, ſaith our Prophet, verſ. 18. 19. 20. of this Hymne.

<sup>c</sup> There is no creature ſo baſe, but ſheweth vnto another, and findeth in it ſelfe, very large teſtimonies of Gods mercy. 1. It is a worke of his mercy that they <sup>d</sup> be, for in him alone they liue, and moue, and haue their being, Acts 17. 28. to ſtones he giueth a bare being only, to plants and trees he doth adde life to being, in beaſts he doth adde to life motion and ſenſe. 2. The preſeruation of all things in their being, is a worke of Gods mercie; for the eyes of all things looke vpon him, and hee giues them their meat in due ſeaſon, he openeth his hand and filleth all things liuing with plenteouſneſſe, verſe 15. 16. of this hymne: he hath appointed the <sup>e</sup> paths of the Sea for the fiſh, and the water is the fiſhes proper element, wherein as in a ſporting place they take their <sup>f</sup> paſſtime: he hath allotted the <sup>g</sup> field for the beaſts, and there they feede vpon a thouſand hills: he hath ordained the lower <sup>h</sup> heauen or ayre for the birds, and there theſe chatter and chaunt the praiſes of their Creator. He feeds the yong Rauens, and prouides euery day meat for the reſt of the birds, and after they haue gathered it, and are filled with his goodneſſe; Pſal. 104. 28. they ſing, ſaith <sup>i</sup> Ambroſe, hymnes to the Lord in their kinde after a ſolemne and deuout manner euery morning and euening.

But the mercies of God in men and Angels are yet far greater, as endued not only with <sup>a</sup> being common to ſtones, or with a life common to plants, or with actiue motion and ſenſe common to beaſts; but adorned alſo with vnderſtanding, created according to Gods owne likeneſſe and image, beautified with reaſon and religion.

Yea, but how are the mercies of God ouer all men and Angels, when as a great many men eternally periſh, and a great many collapsed <sup>k</sup> Angels hauing loſt their firſt habitation in heauen, are reſerued in euerlaſting chaines vnder darkneſſe vnto the iudgement of the great day. Concerning reprobate men, anſwer is made, that the mercies of God are ouer them.

1. In temporall things, for he <sup>l</sup> ſuffereth his raine to fall, and his ſunne to ſhine vpon the iuſt and vniuſt: he giues them not only <sup>m</sup> breath, which is the ſpirit of life, but alſo bread which is the <sup>n</sup> ſtaffe, & <sup>o</sup> ſtay of life, <sup>p</sup> filling their bellies with hid treaſure ſo plenteouſly, that our Prophet in the 37. and 73. Pſalmes, ce complaineth of their proſperity, ſaying, my feet were almoſt gone, my treadings had well nigh ſlpt, and why, becauſe the wicked proſper in the land, hauing riches in poſſeſſion, and doing what they liſt. Euery man in right of his creation is a Lord <sup>q</sup> ouer all the fiſh in the ſeas, ouer all the fowles of heauen, ouer all the beaſts of the field, ouer euery thing that creepeth and moueth vpon earth: and this vnto ſuch as vnderſtand and conſider it, is ſo great a mercy, that for it alone God is worthy to be praiſed for euer and euer.

2. The mercies of God are ouer reprobate men in ſpirituall things, for the Lord is gracious, long-ſuffering, of great goodnes, verſ. 8. of this Hymne. <sup>r</sup> Full of compaſſion and mercy, ſlow to wrath, and patient, <sup>s</sup> deſiring that all men ſhould be ſaued, and that <sup>t</sup> none ſhould periſh. He crieth in the <sup>u</sup> high ſtreet among the preaſe of people, ſaying, O ye fooliſh, how long will ye loue fooliſhneſſe, turne at my correctiſon, and I will utter my words, and powre out my minde vnto you, and make you vnderſtand my will. Come to me all ye which are laden with your ſins, and I wil eaſe you. <sup>x</sup> Why will ye die, for I deſire not the death of a ſinner. If thou be damned, I haue told thee by the mouth of my <sup>y</sup> Prophet, that thou haſt deſtroyed thy ſelfe. And when Almighty God comes

Ephes. 2. 7.

<sup>a</sup> Cryſoſt.
<sup>Augustin.</sup> <sup>Euthym.</sup> <sup>Placidus.</sup>
<sup>b</sup> Agellinus.

<sup>c</sup> Molletus <sup>Wilcox.</sup>

<sup>d</sup> Quod omnibus secundum se desideratissimum.

<sup>D.</sup> Incognit. in loc.

<sup>c</sup> Pſal. 8. 3.

<sup>f</sup> Pſal. 104. 26.

<sup>g</sup> Pſal. 50. 11.

<sup>h</sup> Gen. 1. 20.

<sup>i</sup> Hexam. lib. 5. cap. 10.

<sup>k</sup> 7. Pet. 2. 4. Inde 6.

<sup>l</sup> Math. 5. 45.

<sup>m</sup> Gen. 2. 7.

<sup>n</sup> Lewis. 26. 26.

<sup>o</sup> Eſay 3. 1.

<sup>p</sup> Pſal. 17. 14.

<sup>q</sup> Gen. 1. 26.

<sup>Pſal.</sup> 8. 6.

<sup>r</sup> Pſal. 103. 8.

<sup>f</sup> 1. Tim. 2. 4.

<sup>t</sup> 2. Pet. 3. 9.

<sup>u</sup> Prou. 1. 21.

<sup>x</sup> Ezech. 18. 31, 32.

<sup>y</sup> Hoſea 14. 9.

to iudgement, his mercies are still ouer all his workes, for damnation is only for sinne, and sinne is not his worke, but the worke of the Deuill and the damned, a falling away from the Creator to the creatures, ab eo qui fecit a dea quae fecit. And therefore <sup>a</sup> S. Augustine tels the reprobate, that God executeth his iudgements vpon thy works, not vpon his works, in opera tua non in opera sua. For saith he, Si tollas opera tua, & non in te remaneat nisi opus eius non te demittet eius miseratio. That is, if thou forsake thy workes, and doe nothing but the businesse of the Lord, his mercy will neuer forsake thee, but be still ouer all his workes.

3. God is mercifull vnto reprobates in things eternall, <sup>b</sup> for albeit their torments in hell are greiuous, yet not so great as their vnthankfullnesse and vngraciousnesse deserued in abusing so louing a God, whose mercies are ouer all his workes: and so the Lord, not in respect of any termination of paine, but in respect of some mitigation, is said to be mercifull vnto the tortured in that vnquenchable fire.

The like may be said of the Deuills in respect of their first estate, and in respect of their worst estate. Concerning the former, the mercies of God are ouer them in their very being, vpon whom alone they depend and by whom in the beginning they were created. In the dayes of S. Augustine, there were certaiine heretikes, called <sup>c</sup> Angelici, which adored Angels as Gods, and consequently thought them without any beginning or dependance from other. And one <sup>d</sup> Hermanus Rijnich an Hollander, for this and other like monstrous opinions, about the existence of things by themselves without any creation or production of a superiour cause, was burned at Rome, ann. 1512. and it was one of the most horrible blasphemies of Simon Magus, (as <sup>e</sup> Irenaeus reports) that he said he was the father of Angels and Arch-angels, and that he begat them of Selene his concubiue: but it is apparent in the very first line of all the Bible, that Angels are the creatures of God, In the beginning God created heauen and earth, that is (as <sup>f</sup> Moses expoundeth himselfe) heauen and earth, and all that is therein, that is; (as <sup>g</sup> Paul doth explaine Moses) things visible and inuisible, whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers, all things were created by him, and for him; and that in the beginning, to wit, in the beginning of time, not in the beginning of eternity, as <sup>h</sup> Ambrose, <sup>i</sup> Basil, <sup>k</sup> Augustine, and other Fathers interpret it generally. See Lombard sext. lib. 2. dist. 2. Bibliothec. S. Senensis lib. 5. annot. 5. Magdeburg. cent. 5. col. 218. 219.

The deuils then are beholding to Gods mercy for their being, especially for creating them in the beginning after his owne likenesse; and communicating vnto them, without any merit of theirs, excellent gifts of nature and grace, by reason whereof, as it was said of one, we may well affirme of all, that they were beautified with nine very precious stones, that is, nine excellencies, which Lucifer and the rest receiued in their creation. 1. God made them spirits without mixture of bodie. 2. Immortall, without feare of corruption. 3. Intellectuall, with exceeding delicacie of wit. 4. Free, that nothing could force their will. 5. Wise, with fulnesse of naturall sciences. 6. Powerfull, aboue all inferiour creatures. 7. Holy, decked with admirable vertues. 8. Inhabitants of Paradise, which is the Emphyriall heauen. 9. Capable of seeing God clearely, with promise of this glory, if they perseuered in his seruice.

Yea but the deuils are now deprivied of their first habitation and happinesse; how then is the Lod good to them in their woist estate? Answer may be, that the mercies of God are ouer them two wayes.

1. In respect of their misery, because their hainous offence deserued not one hell onely, but a thousand hels, as being both <sup>m</sup> authors and actors in their owne fall, whereas other seduced Adam and Eue: to sinne. Their paine (had it not beene for Gods mercy) might haue beene greater, although it cannot be longer.

2. In respect of their ministerie, because the chiefe mirth of deuils is to doe mischief, being spiritus nocendi cupidissimi, à iustitia penitus alieni, superbia tumidi; inuidentia luuidi, fallacià callidi, saith <sup>n</sup> Augustine, and so consequently most eased and well pleased, when the Almighty God doth vse them either to try the good man, or to destroy the wicked man: or if his mercy doe not extend to them in this employment, yet it is vndoubtedly shewed in them, as bringing light out of darknes, in vsing such

<sup>z</sup> Aug. in loc. a Vbi sup. Idem D. Incognit.

<sup>b</sup> Genebrard. in loc.

<sup>c</sup> August. heres. 31. Epiph. heres. 60.

<sup>d</sup> Bernardus Luxemburg. cat. heret. Idem Salkeld Tract. of Angels, c. 2. e Aduersus heres. lib. 1. ca. 20.

<sup>f</sup> Exod. 20. 11. g Coloss. 1. 16.

<sup>h</sup> Hexam. lib. 1. cap. 4.

<sup>i</sup> Hexam. bo. 1. k De Ciuit. Dei. lib. 3. cap. 32.

<sup>l</sup> Ezech. 18. 13.

<sup>m</sup> Albinus quest. in Genes.

<sup>n</sup> De Ciuit. Dei. lib. 3. cap. 12.

such impious and bad agents for effecting of his good ends. So wee read that the Lord suffered <sup>o</sup> Satan to destroy the goods, and afflict the person of his seruant Iob a good man, and that he sent an euill spirit to vexe Saul a wicked King. It is said in the text, that the euill spirit of the Lord came upon Saul, the spirit of God is the good spirit, but that euill spirit is called a spirit of God, <sup>q</sup> as being suffered and sent by God, <sup>r</sup> immissus, seu permissus à Domino, <sup>t</sup> there was in the Deuill a will indeed to hurt, but not any power, for all power is of God, Rom. 13. 1. and therefore Satan desired the Lord to stretch out his hand, that is, to giue him power ouer Iob in his goods and body. To conclude this obseruation, Almighty God is louing to reprobate men and deuils, as they be his workes, for <sup>v</sup> he loueth all the things that are, but that any man is euill, or Angell a diuell, is not his worke, but their owne worke, and so mercy still is from the Lord, but mischiefe and misery from their owne selues.

But the mercies of God are principally seene towards his elect people who loue him, and feare him, and call vpon him faithfully, for his mercies compasse them about on all sides, and at all seasons. On euery <sup>u</sup> side, for he maketh an hedge about them, and about their houses, and about all that they haue, Iob the 1. and the 10. they be his enclosed Vineyard, of whom he saith, Esay the 5. and the 4. What could I haue done any more to my Vineyard that I haue not done vnto it? he giueth vs the <sup>x</sup> promises of the life present, and of that which is to come, preuenticg vs in all our doings, with the <sup>y</sup> blessings of his goodnesse, yet, with the <sup>z</sup> multitudes of his mercies, especially blessing vs with all spirituall blessings in heauenly things in Christ, Ephes. 1. 3.

And as the mercies of God are ouer vs on all sides, euen so likewise at all seasons, as the blessed Virgin in her Magnificat, <sup>a</sup> From generation to generation, as our Prophet; Psal. 103. 17. The mercifull goodnes of the Lord vpon those that feare him endureth for euer and euer, <sup>b</sup> that is, for euer in this world, and for euer in the next, <sup>c</sup> or from euerlasting to euerlasting, that is, from euerlasting predestination, to euerlasting glorification, being mercifull in electing vs, mercifull in preseruing vs, mercifull in gouerning vs, mercifull in redeeming vs, mercifull in calling vs to his grace, mercifull in iustifying vs, mercifull in sanctifying vs, mercifull in glorifying vs, making vs to drinke of his pleasures, as out of a riuer, and to possesse fulnesse of ioyes at his right hand for euermore.

To speake more distinctly, the mercies of God toward vs are seene in two things especially, donando & condonando, that is, in giuing vs whatsoever is good for vs, and in forgiuing whatsoever is euill in vs. For the first, euery good and perfect gift is from aboue, descending downe from the father of lights: in eternall life we cannot haue so much as the keeping of a <sup>d</sup> doore; in the spirituall life, not so much as the <sup>e</sup> thinking of a good thought; in the naturall life, not so much as a morsell of bread, but all is from aboue, from him alone, who doth open his hand, and fill all things liuing with plenteousnesse. All our benefices are Donatiues, all our dignities are Prebendaries, all our messuages are mercies, holden as it were by Frænckalmoigne from our great Lord which is good vnto all.

And as the mercies of God are ouer all his workes, in filling vs with his goodnesse: so likewise ouer all our workes, in forgiuing all our sinnes, and pardoning all our offences against himselfe, against our other selfe, and against our owne selfe, great in number, and grieuous in nature: our hidden sinnes are so many, that no man is able to tell how <sup>f</sup> oft he doth offend, hidden I say, not vnto God who seeth all things, and is to iudge them, and vs for them: but hidden vnto vs, as hauing either forgotten them, or for that they were subtill sinnes and spirituall wickednesse, as interiour prides, rash iudgements, sinister intentions, negligences, omiffions: or for that we committed them with error and ignorance by the deuils illusion, thinking that we did <sup>g</sup> good seruice: but our knowne sinnes are a great many moe than our hidden, as we may perceiue by running thorow all our ages, and all our acts, euen euery passage in euery place where we haue liued: and if wee ioyne them all together, they will amount to such an innumerable multitude, that wee may pronounce with our <sup>h</sup> Prophet, they be moe then the hayres of our head, and (as King <sup>k</sup> Manasses) moe then the sand

o Iob 1. & 2. p 1. Sam. 16. 14.
23.
q Aug. lib. 2.
ad Simplician.
quest. 1.
r Em. Sa. not.
in loc.
s Lombard sent.
lib. 2. dist. 44.
t Wisd. 11. 21.

u Psal. 32. 11.

x 1. Tims. 4. 8.
y Psal. 21. 4.
z Psal. 51. 1.

a Luke 1. 50.

b Euthym.
c Beharmin.

d Psal. 84. 11.
e 2. Cor. 3. 5.

f Psal. 19. 12.

g Ephes. 6. 12.

h Iohn 16. 2.

i Psal. 40. 15.
k In his praier.

sand of the sea: the deuill and his Angels were thrown out of heauen for one sinne, and that not acted, but only plotted: and our first parents Adam and Eue were cast out of Paradise for consenting but once to the suggestion of the subtil Serpent: but wee haue beene deluded by him often, our flesh as Eue hath inticed vs. to sinne, and our spirit effeminated as Adam to please it, hath a thousand thousand times displeas'd God by breaking his commandements. How good and gracious then is the Lord towards vs in forgiuing all our vnrightheousnesse, and in couering all our offences, infinite for their multitude, and no lesse infinite for their magnitude, as may well appeare,

By considering these five points in sinne,

1. The basenesse of the person offending.
2. The highnesse of the person offended.
3. The weakenesse of the motiues.
4. The grieuousnesse of the punishment.
5. The greatnesse of the remedy.

The person offending is man, and man is like a thing of nought: our bodies originall is dirt, and our end dust, our flesh is like a flower, and our whole life but a vapour that soone passeth away, James 4. 14. as for our soule, it was created of nothing, of it selfe it is nothing, it can doe nothing, it merits nothing, it is worth nothing, and through sinne it may come to be lesse then nothing. For it is a lesser euill not to be than to sinne, and had it bene better for the rep obate not to haue beene, than to be damned, Matt. 26. 24. Consider then I pray thee with thy selfe, If this be that which I am, much worse is that which I may be through my great weaknes and inclination to sinne: for by the thred I may draw out the bottome, and by the secret motions I feele in my minde to sinne in euery kinde, I may collect and gather that I am subiect to these finnes, and that I should fall into them, if God should take from me his holy hand and helpe, according to that of S. Augustine, Nullum peccatum est quod unquam fecerit homo, quod non possit facere alter homo, si Creator desit à quo factus est homo.

Now what greater madnesse can there be than for a worthlesse worme so needy, so miserable, to dare to offend his only Maker and Mediator, before whom all Nations are nothing, yea the whole world but as a drop of the morning dew that falleth vpon the ground, and can hardly be seene. What further dotage than for vile man which is nothing of his owne, to displease God which is being it selfe? O how good is the Lord in regarding that which he created of nothing, drawing it from this nothing which is sin, and ioyning it to himselfe, that by him, and through him it may haue heere the life of grace, heereafter the blessed being of glory.

The partie most iniuried by sinne is God, for albeit in liuing vnhollyly we sinne against our neighbours; and in liuing riotously we sinne against our selues; yet God in both is offended chiefly, commanding vs in this present world to liue not onely toward God religiously, but also righteously toward our neighbours, and soberly toward our selues. And therefore when King Dauid had abused Barbsheba, tempting her to commit adultery with him, and for the couering of this act had murthred his faithfull seruant Uriah, and for the compassing of this murther, had endangered a great part of his royall army, and by binding so many soule finnes together, had exceedingly scandalized all his people, yet in the confession of his fault to God, he saith, against thee, against thee only haue I sinned, and done this euill in thy sight, because in all these things he had transgressed the lawes of God, which is the Lord of all things, and the Iudge of all men, and so the Prophet Nathan told him vnto his beard, Wherefore hast thou despised the commandement of the Lord in killing Uriah with the sword, and in taking his wife for thy wife? If good workes of the Law done to men are regarded and rewarded as done to God, for hee that giueth vnto the poore lendeth vnto the Lord, and he that clobeth the naked, and visiteth the sick, doth this vnto Christ, Math. 25. 40. then on the contrary, transgressions of the Law concerning men, are wrongs and iniuries to God which is Author of the Law.

Now God (according to the tenor of this Hymne) is infinite in greatnesse, and infinite in goodnesse, for which all other creatures highly loue him, and if another infinite

l Psal 144. 4.
m Gen 2. 7.
n Gen 3. 19.
o Esay 40. 6.

p Soliloq. c. 15.

q Esay 40. 17.
r Wisd. 11. 19.

s Tit. 2. 12.

t Psal. 15. 4.
u Bucer in
Psal. 51.

x 2. Sam. 12. 9.

y Prou. 19. 17.

infinite loue were possible doubtlesse it were due to him, and so consequently sinne being committed against one which is infinite both in maicesty and mercy, may bee termed as it were, faith <sup>z</sup> Aquinas, an infinite iniury. Ioseph crucified by his owne Mistresse to commit folly, said he would not iniure his Lord so much of whom he had receiued so many fauours, <sup>a</sup> he hath committed all that he hath vnto my hands, neither hath he kept any thing in his house from me, how then shall I doe this great wickednes? and Saul though he were a cruell persecuter of Dauid, yet he grew meeke when he heard <sup>b</sup> Jonathan tell of the great seruices he had done him, and when he saw that Dauid spared his life when he could haue killed him, hee had compunctiō and said, <sup>c</sup> thou art iustier then I, for thou hast done me good turnes, and I haue rendred thee euill. Our louing God hath done more for thee and me then Potiphar could doe for Ioseph, or Dauid for Saul. Hee hath (as you know) kept nothing from vs in his great house of the world, but hath (as our Prophet speaks <sup>d</sup> elsewhere) put all things in subiection vnder our feet, of him alone we haue receiued all the good we haue, shall we then vnworthily render euill for good? the very beasts and birds (as wee read in humane history) haue becue gratefull vnto men for extraordinary kindneses, and shall any reasonable creature, yea Christian, endued with heauenly sparkes of diuinity, proue more beastly than the beasts, in despising the riches of grace, which the father of mercies offereth dayly? O my soule, say to the God of the saluation, how much more iust art thou than I, for thou ceasest not to doe me merעים; and I cease not to doe thee mischiefes, thou hauing power to take away my life; sparest it: and I hauing nopower to take away thine, yet as much as in me lieth, attempt to kill and <sup>e</sup> crucifie thee againe sweet Iesus.

Let vs in the third place consider the weaknesse of the motions alluring vs to sinne, for doubtlesse it doth aggrauate the greatnesse of a wrong when it is done vpon a very slight occasion or light cause: the cunning gamester will not venture his mony for a trifle, the crafty theefe will not hazard his necke for a little prey, the merchant aduenturer will not engage his person and his purse for any small prize, Sviolandum est inuisurandum, regni causa uiolandum, if a man will play the villaine, forgetting his oath and honesty, let it be for a Kingdome, quoth Cesar. <sup>f</sup> Pope Siluester the 2. gaue his sole to the deuill, but it was for a Popedome: but we beloued offend God for a small interest of wealth, for a little wantonnesse of the flesh; for a punctillo of honour, for very vile things that vanish as smoke, and are as if they were not in comparison of God. Wherein (as <sup>g</sup> one said) we seeme to bee worse than Iudas himselfe, for he sold Christ but once, and that for <sup>h</sup> thirty peeces of siluer: but we sinne against him thirtie times, as it were, for one peece, for euery trifle swearing by his precious wounds, and abusing his gracious words, and so we become <sup>i</sup> like Pilate, crucifying our blessed Sauour Christ Iesus, to giue life vnto Barrabas a murtherer, that is, vnto sinne that slaicth our soule. <sup>k</sup> The Lord said that heauen should stand affrighted, and that the gates of heauen should breake with amazement, for two euils which his people had committed, and yet we wretched sinners haue committed them infinite times, leaving God which is the fountain of liuing water, to dig in pits, euen in broken pits that can hold no water: in our workes (as <sup>l</sup> S. Paule said) whatsoever wee professe in our words, wee haue denied the liuing God and made to our selues a great many base creatures, an Idoll, and a false God, esteeming them in the weaknesse of our sinne more then the true God: as <sup>m</sup> Esau sold his birthright for a small dish of pottage; so we sell our birthright of heauen, for a worthlesse interest of earth, he sold it to redeeme his life, but we selling it incurre death.

The Scriptures are our euidences, and the Sacraments our seales, and the spirit our assurer that all things are ours, and we Christs, and Christ Gods, 1 Cor. 3. 22. yet many so contemne the reading of the Bible wherein are the words of life, that euen vpon the Lords day, so soone as they be gone out of the Lords house, they forsake the fountaine of liuing water to dig for knowledge in broken pits, in idle pamphlets which afford nothing but puddle, deseruing to bee burnt so well as any witches for vnchast and vnfauoury lines of wanton loue bewitch, as it were the senses of readers, and giue them <sup>n</sup> Circes cup to drinke off, and to turne men into beasts.

<sup>z</sup> Part. 3. quest.
<sup>1.</sup> art. 2. ad 2.
<sup>a</sup> Gen. 39. 8. 9.

<sup>b</sup> 1. Sam. 19. 6.

<sup>c</sup> 1. Sam. 24. 18.

<sup>d</sup> Psal. 8. 6.

<sup>e</sup> Heb. 6. 6.

<sup>f</sup> Platina in cuius vita.

<sup>g</sup> Speculum peccatoris &
iusti, pag. 26.
<sup>h</sup> Mat. 26. 15.

<sup>i</sup> Mat. 27. 26.
<sup>k</sup> 1er. 2. 12, 13.

<sup>l</sup> Tit. 1. 16.

<sup>m</sup> Gen. 25. 34.

<sup>n</sup> Poore mans Library prelect. 2.

As for the Sacraments, a great many men, and those not of the worse note, runne out of the congregation at the baptizing of other mens children, and dangerously deferre the christening of their owne infants, vpon the procuring of some great Gossip, or some dainty dish only, tying as it were Gods ordinance to their ordinary: that other Sacrament is a little more regarded, and yet the guests invited to the great supper, inuent strange excuses for their not comming: and so consequently neglecting the holy word and Sacraments, as much as in them is, they quench the spirit; and with vnhappy P Lysimachus for a cup of cold water as it were, deliuer vp the keyes of their citie to their mortall enimie the Deuill.

Let vs examine now the grieuousnesse of the paine due to sinne, both in the life present, and in that which is to come. Concerning this life, sinne procureth a great many punishments of losse and sence: for losse, first sinne destroyeth opulent citates, God depriviing wicked men of them, because they much abuse them, as he spoyled the 9 Egyptians of their Jewels, and the Iebusites and Canaanites of their Countreies.

2. Sinne destroyeth honour, for who soeuer taketh (as much as lieth in him) the honour from God and his neighbour, deserues to lose his owne honour. So the high Priest Heli and his vnruly sonnes lost the Priest-hood together with life, the Lord saying vnto them, I will honour those that honour me, but they that despise me shall be despised. So the kingdome was taken from Nabuchodonosor, who was banished out of mens society, because, by sinne himselfe was like to beasts, according to that of Bernard, Ipsis bestiis quodammodo bestialior est homo ratione vivens, & ratione non viuens.

3. Sinne taketh away contentment of spirit and alacrity, causing a deadly sadnesse that drieth vp the bones, and giueth a life worse then death it selfe, making a sinner like to the citie that said God hath filled me with bitterness, and made me drunke with wormewood: or as the miserable king Antiochus, to what tribulation, and to what waues of sorrowes am I come now, who sometime lined in prosperity, being belovied in my Kingdome.

4. Sinne destroyeth health, and so bringeth vpon the sinner paines of sence, God chastizing him with infirmities and sores from y head to foot. For he deserues not health of bodie, who neglects the health of his soule. Now these diseases in sine procure death, for death entreteth into the world by sinne, and being entred endeth our dayes a thousand wayes, as by famine, by warre, by pestilence, by tempests at sea, by deluges on the land, by fire, lightning, earth-quakes, haile, stormes, and infinite moe like chastizements: for as sinne is an iniury to the Creator of all, euen so all the creatures are instruments of his vengeance.

All these temporall euils are but a beginning, and as it were a preamble to the paines eternall in hell fire, kindled by the breath of the Lord, a like a riuer of brimstone: for these punishments are finite, but those tortures are termed in two respects infinite, to wit,

1. Lasting, as being in their continuance without end.

In respect of } Losse, as depriviing vs of an infinite benefit, which is the sight of God, for euer.

b Anselme sometime Arch-bishop of Canterburie, considering these monstrous enormities, and vgly deformities of sinne, said, that if he should behold all the paines of hell denoid of sinne on the one side, and on the other side the horror of one deadly sinne deuoid of punishment, and that I must of necessitie chuse one of these two, I (quoth he) would chuse rather to throw my selfe into hell, then to commit one foule fault only. So the renowned e Eleazer answered those that menaced him with exquisite torments, if he would not breake one commandement of Gods Law, that he would rather suffer himselfe first to besent into hell and the grave, that is, that he would rather bee killed, and cut in pieces, and to sinke a thousand degrees vnder ground with infinite dolours and agonies, than to commit such a sinne.

Considering these manifold mischiefes and miseries brought vpon man-kinde for sinne, it is now time to tell of the greatnesse of the remedy. d Behold then, I bring you tidings of great ioy, that is, that vnto you is borne a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

o 1. Thess. 5. 19.
p Pluta. ch. com.
de seya numinis vindicte.

q Exod. 12. 35.

r 1. Sam. 2. 30.
s Dan. 4. 28.

t Sc. 35. super Cant.

u Lam. 3. 15.

x 1. Mac. 6. 11.

y Esay 1. 6.

z Rom. 5. 10.

a Esay 30. 33.

b In similitudinibus
cap. 190.
inter opusc.
Anselm. fol. 82.

c 2. Mac. 6. 23.

d Luke 2. 10.

Lord, Iesus the Sonne Nane, Iesus the Sonne of Syrach, and Iesus Iosedech were Saviours in figure, but Christ Iesus a Saviour in fact. ° They were Saviours in respect of some particular, and that temporall deliuerance: but Christ is an vniuersall and spirituall Saviour, euen he that saueth his people from their sinne, Math. 1. 21. it was impossible that the <sup>f</sup> bloud of Bulls and Goats should take away sinne, it was impossible that the mediation of Angels in heauen being creatures and finite, should appease the wrath of God conceiued against sinne which is infinite, & Behold he found not stedfastnesse in his Angels, and the heauens are not cleane in his sight. It was impossible that any merits of any man on earth, whose <sup>h</sup> righteousness at the very best is but as filthy clowt, shall offer a sufficient sacrifice for the sinne of his soule. When as therefore nothing else could take away the sinne of the world, our good God, whose mercies are ouer all his works, <sup>i</sup> so loued the world, that he gaue his onely begotten Sonne, that whosoever beleueth in him should not perish, but haue euermlasting life: he gaue him a son and a child, to vs a sonne is borne, to vs a sonne is giuen, Esay 9. 6. that is, (as Eusebius Emisenus aptly) datus ex diuinitate, natus ex virgine: giuen as the Sonne of God, borne as the sonne of man. It was necessary that the Messias and Mediator betweene God and man, should participate both natures, that as God he might satisfie, that as man he might suffer, and that as God and man in one person he might saue. Christ therefore God-man was borne for vs, and he died for vs, he so loued vs, that he gaue himselfe for vs an offering and a sacrifice of a sweet smelling sauour to God. In the Law there weretwo sorts of sacrifices vnto God, one gratulatory for the donation of gifts, another expiatory for the condonation of finnes, a peace-offering, and a sinne-offering, S. Pauls <sup>l</sup> oblatio signifies the first kinde, and victima the second. Christ in his life was gratulatory to God, in it he <sup>m</sup> fulfilled all righteousness, and so did for vs all that we should haue done: and in his death he gaue himselfe an expiatory sacrifice for vs, and so suffered all that wee should haue suffered. <sup>n</sup> Hee was wounded for our transgressions, and broken for our iniquities, and the chastisement of our peace was vpon him, and with his stripes we are healed, his head was crowned with thornes; his face spit vpon, his tongue distasted, his armes disoynted, his shoulder: and backe rent with whips, his side boared with a lance, his hands and feete pierced with nayles. All which hee suffered not for himselfe, but for our sakes and our finnes. Our heads haue beene full of <sup>o</sup> thorny questions, and curious <sup>p</sup> inuentions to contradict right and reason: his head therefore was platted with a crowne of thornes, a strange deuice, thornes to torment him, a crowne to delude him, & compungentes coronant, & illudentes adorant, saith <sup>q</sup> Ambrose: our eyes open to behold vanity, haue been full of adultery, <sup>2</sup> Peter 2. 14. his eies therefore were blind-folded, Luke 22. 64. and then his aduerfaries buffeting him asked, Prophecie who smote thee; Mathew the 26. and the 68. It is reported of renowned <sup>r</sup> Iudeth, that her beauty tooke Holofernes minde prisoner: and so the wanton looks of men and women haue <sup>1</sup> kindled a fire, which is an <sup>2</sup> entrance to the flames of hell: his face therefore was spit vpon and smitten; Mathew the 26; and the 67. our taste hath offended, in eating the forbidden fruit, Genesis the 3. and the 6. his taste therefore was afflicted in eating gall, and in drinking vineger, Psalme the 69. and the 22. our heart had imagined wicked enterprizes, our hands haue beene ready to shed innocent bloud, our feete haue beene swift in running to doe mischief, Prouerbs the 6. and the 18. his heart therefore was wounded with a speare, his hands and feet boared with huge nayles, so bigge they were that (as Socrates reporteth in his <sup>u</sup> Ecclesiasticall history) Constantine the great made of them a bridle and an helmet for his owne vse. To conclude this point, we prodigall and vile wretches haue surferted in sinne all the dayes of our life, Christ therefore taking vpon him our person, and standing in our place to cure this extraordinary surfet (according to the rules of physicke) <sup>x</sup> fasted extraordinarily, then he <sup>y</sup> sweat extraordinarily, last of all he bled extraordinarily. Besides the punishments inflicted vpon his body, he was afflicted in his minde, he wrestled with the powers of hell, and endured in some sense the very <sup>z</sup> paines of hell, <sup>a</sup> that is, great and intolerable sorrowes in his soule, he who did no sinne, yea who knew no sinne, c Them. part 3. quest. 3. art. 2.

f Heb. 10. 4.

g Iob. 15. 15.

h Isa. 64. 6.

i Iohn 3. 16.

k Ephes. 5. 2.

l Zacchias in Ephes. 5. 2.

m Mat. 3. 15.

n Esay 53. 5.

o Spine diffendi. Cic. lib. 4. de senibus. Eccles. 7. 29. q Lib. 10. in Luc. cap. 23.

r Iudeth 16. 9.

s Eccles. 9. 8.
t Poore mans Library, prelect. 2.

u Lib. 1 cap. 13. after the Greeke ca. 17.
x Mat. 4. 2:
y Luke 22. 44.
z B. Bilson. ser. of Christs suffering.
a Great pains are colled hellish paines.

finne, made him selfe to be sinne for vs, dying for our finnes, and rising againe for our iustification, that we should be made the righteousnesse of God in him; 2. Corinth the 5. and the 21.

These mercies are so great that Christ him selfe instituted the Sacrament of his Supper; as a commemoration and euertlasting remembrance hereof, I say Christ him selfe ordained this Sacrament by word and deed: by word, saying, I am the bread of life, he that commeth vnto me shall not hunger, and that belieueth in me shall neuer thirst, Iohn the 6. and the 35. By his deed, for in the night that he was betrayed, he tooke bread, and when he had giuen thanks he brake it and said; take, eat, this is my body which is broken for you, doe this in remembrance of me: after the same manner also he tooke the cup after he had supped, saying; this cup is the new Testament in my blood; this doe as oft as ye drinke it in remembrance of me: for as often as ye shall eat this bread, and drinke this cup, ye shew the Lords death vntill he come.

Now what reward shall I giue to the Lord, for all the benefits hee hath done vnto me? David doth answer, I will receiue the cup of saluation, and offer to the Lord the sacrifices of thanksgiving: and Christ the sonne of David aduisech vs to be mercifull as our Father in heauen is mercifull, Our whole dutie then is to be thankfull vnto God; and mercifull vnto men. Wherefore let vs in Gods holy faith and feare take vp the Magnificat of the blessed Virgin, My soule doth magnifie the Lord, and my spirit reioycech in God my Saviour, for his mercies are ouer them that feare him thorowout all generations. Let vs take vp the song of Zacharie, Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, for he hath visited and redeemed his people. Let vs take vp the caroll of the blessed Angels on Christmas day, Glory be to God on high, and in earth peace, good will towards men. Let vs take vp the words of our Prophet in this Hymne, I will magnifie thee O God my King, and I will praise thy name for ever and ever, euery day will I giue thanks vnto thee, and praise thy name for ever and ever,

And for as much as our gracious God hath evidently shewed his mercy toward vs, not in sayings only, but in doings and sufferings also; let vs demonstrate the greatnesse of our faith in God, by workes of charitie toward our brethren, being mercifull as the father of mercies is mercifull: mercifull in giuing, mercifull in forgiuing: mercifull in giuing omni petenti, quoth the 2 Text, but not omnia petenti, faith Augustine, to all that aske, though not all they aske: to such as haue hungry bodies the bread of the butterie, to such as haue hungry soules thirsting after righteousness, the bread of the sanctuary, that is ghostly and godly counsell. Mercifull in forgiuing one another our trespasses, Det illi veniam facile cui venia est opus: If we consider that the Lord hath our of his exceeding rich mercy forgiuen vs k tenne thousand talents, we may well forget and forgiue the debt to our neighbours, which is but an hundred pence: God loued l vs first, euen when we could not loue him, and when we would not loue him, and therefore that we may be the children of our father in heauen, let vs also loue our enemies, blessing those that curse vs, and doing good to those that hate vs, and praying for those that hurt vs, Matth. the 5. and the 44. and 45. as his mercies are ouer all our workes, so let all our workes expresse his mercies, euery day giuing thanks vnto him, and praising his name for ever and ever.

Thus at length I haue finished this my long worke, by his grace whose mercies are ouer all his workes. I conclude therefore with m Augustine, Videor mihi debitum ingens huius operis adiuvante Domino reddidisse: quibus parum vel quibus nimium est, ignoscant mihi; quibus autem satis est, non mihi, sed Domino mecum gratias congratulantes agant.

Glorie be to God on high, and peace to men on earth.

FINIS.

a. 1. 1. 1. 1.
b. Berga in vita Calu. lib. 1. 1. 1.
c. 1. Cor. 11. 23.
d. 1. 1. 1. 1.
e. 1. 1. 1. 1.
f. 2. Cor. 1. 3.
g. Matth. 5. 42.
h. Lib. 1. de ser.
Vom. in monte.
i. Sententia in Agamem.
k. Matth. 18.
24. 18.
l. 1. Iohn 4. 19.
m. De Civit. Dei
lib. 1. cap. 11.

Mutuall Support.

GALAT. 6. 2.

Bearc yee one anothers burdens.

CHARITIE, which is so strictly commaunded in the Law, and so highly magnified in the Gospell, is scene in doing more than in saying, and in suffering more than in doing: for our whole Christian life properly consists in bearing, and that not onely burdens of our owne, which is said in this Chapter at the fift Verse, every man shall beare his owne burden, but also burdens of other, as our present text, beare one anothers burden.

Wherein three points are remarkable,

- 1. Who for the
- 2. When, in the present, portate, beare now.
- 3. What, a burden, beare ye one anothers burden.

I purpose to treat first and most of the last, as being the burden of our Sermon, and the maine, touchng onely the rest as occasion is offered vpon the bye.

Now there be two kindes of burdens (as <sup>b</sup> Diuines, haue well obserued vpon the place)

- Namely, the } Burden of sinne, needing a support.
- } Burden of pouertie, needing a supply.

Concerning our support two things are required especially,

- 1. A preuention or bearing vp of our brethren in the wayes of the Lord that they may not fall.
- 2. A subuention or bearing with our brethren after they be fallen.

Christians are <sup>c</sup> strangers and pilgrims in the wildernesse of this world, traueiling to their home, which is the <sup>d</sup> holy land, and the <sup>e</sup> heauenly Ierusalem aboue. <sup>f</sup> Looke then as traueellers vsf by the way to cheere vp one another, and to beare part of one anothers burden, as occasion is offered: euen so Christians ought to support one another, holding vp such as are ready to fall, and raising vp such as are already fallen. It is our dutie not to lay scandales and blockes in the passage, but on the contrarie, to strengthen all such as iourney with vs in the path of Paradise, by wholsome counsell and good examples. Our words must administer <sup>g</sup> grace to them, and our <sup>h</sup> light so shine before them, as that seeing our good workes, and <sup>i</sup> walking after our patterne, they may <sup>k</sup> finish their course with happinesse, and rest in euerlasting habitations.

A Pastor ought to be (quoth <sup>l</sup> Paul) a patterne; but euery master in his priuate family is both a King, a Prophet and a Priest: a King to gouerne his household, a Prophet to teach his household, a Priest to pray for his household, it is his burden to beare their burdens as he who shall one day giue vp an account for them all. <sup>m</sup> Gregorie the a Aretius.

b Hierom. ex-
st. i. in loc.
Idem. Aquin.

c 1. Pet. 2. 11.
d Psalm. 115. 1.
e Apoc. 21. 10.
f Aretius.

g Ephes. 4. 29.
h Math. 5. 16.
i Philip. 3. 17.
k 1. Tim. 4. 7.
l 1. Tim. 4. 12.

m Apud Mal-
donat. in Luc.
16. 27.

n Bedi. o Bellarm. de gemit. Columb.
lib. 2. cap. 1. &
Pinellus de altera vita, lib. 1.
cap. 23.

p August. 12
Psal. 41.
Plin. lib. 8.
cap. 32.

q Psal. 36.9.

r Zech. 5. 7.
s Psalm. 38. 4.
Omni plumbo ponderosus.
Chrystom 32.
ad pop. Ant.

t Primasus.
Anselm. in loc.

u In loc.

x Rensuer. in symb.

y In loc.
z Luther. loc.
com. tit. dozelo.
a See Mart.
loc. com. part. 1.
cap. 17.

Great, and other both<sup>n</sup> ancient and<sup>o</sup> moderne Diuines, haue thought that the rich Epicure frying in hell fire, became solicitor for his brethren at home, that they should conuert and repent, not out of any compassion and loue, but only for that his conscience told him he had giuen ill example while he liued among them, and that if they were damned, his torture should be further increased for it. On the contrary, such as by their good example turne many to righteousness, bearing vp the weake that they fall not foully, that they fall not finally, shall one day shine as the starrs for euer and euer, Dan. 12. 3. ¶ It is reported of Harts, being to trauell farre by heards on the Lind, or elie to passe ouer some great water, that they goe behind one another, and lay their burdensome heads one vpon another, and when the formost is weary, then he resteth his heauy head vpon the hindmost, and so mutually bearing one anothers burden, they come happily to the place where they would arriue. The soules of holy men, as Dauid telleth vs in the 42. Psalme, long and thirst after God, with whom is the well of life, like as the Harts desire the water brooks. And therefore let vs as Deere support the sicke head and heauy heart of one another, among so many serpents as there be sinners in this vncomfortable valley of teares, vntill wee rest vpon Gods holy mountaine, where we shall be satisfied with the pleasures of his house, drinking of his pleasures as out of a riuer, Psalm. 36.8.

As it is our dutie to beare vp a brother which is falling; so likewise to reare vp a brother which is fallen. Sinne is so weightie, that <sup>r</sup> Zecharias termeth it a talent of lead; and <sup>d</sup> Dauid, who felt the load himselfe, cryeth out, my wickednesse are gone ouer my head, and are like a sore burden too heauie for me to beare. Wholoecer therefore groaneth vnder the burden of sinne, needeth a Simon to helpe beare his crosse.

The which is done two wayes: }
1. By tolerating the weaknesse of one another with our patience.
2. In restoring one another againe with the spirit of meekenesse.

For the first, <sup>r</sup> if a brother in his vnadvised anger vse thee roughly, rudely, beare with him, and thou bearest his burden. If thou be too silent in thy conuersation, and thy brother on the contrary, too full of prattle, beare thou with his loquacitie, that he may beare thy pertinacit, so shall ye beare one anothers burden. A lame man and a blinde meeting vpon the way, the lame man said, if thou wilt be feet vnto me, then I will be eyes vnto thee: so the blinde man carrying the lame, and the lame guiding the blinde, both arriued at their iourneyes end in a good houre. Christians (as <sup>n</sup> Luther obserues) must haue strong shoulders and mightie bones, that they may beare flesh enough, that is, the weakeresse of their brethren. A Magistrate in his Common-wealth, and a Master in his priuate house, must haue patience to see many things and not to see. <sup>x</sup> Frederic the first his motto, Qui nescit dissimulare nescit imperare, may be digested easily with a little salt, for when small faults are dissimled in time and place wisely, Soueraigne and subiect, master and man, according to the tenet of our text, beare one anothers burden.

But here we must (as <sup>y</sup> Luther notes) put a difference betweene faults in manners, and errors in doctrine. The principles of faith are like a <sup>z</sup> Mathematicall point which admits neither ademption nor addition. It is obserued by <sup>a</sup> Bernard, Pet. Mart. and other Diuines, that Almighty God hath in old time dispensed with some precepts of the second Table concerning our dutie to men, as in bidding Abraham to kill his sonne Isaac contrary to the sixt commandement, and in suffering the fathers to haue many concubines, contrary to the seuenth commandement, and in aduising the children of Israel to rob the wicked Egyptians of their Iewels, contrary to the eight commandement: but he (who cannot denie himselfe, as our Apostle speaks, 1. Tim. 2. 13.) neuer dispensed with any precept of the first Table concerning his owne true worship and holines. If an Angell from heauen preach another Gospell, it is an insupportable burden, hold him an anathema, saith our Apostle, Galat. 1. 8. Cursed is that patience that beares in such a case: to be patient in suffering a priuate wrong onely concerning our owne persons is commendable, yea, noble; but when once the quarrell is made Gods and the Churches, iniurias Dei dissimulare nimis est impium; it is too great impiety, saith <sup>b</sup> Chrysofome, for any to beare: in such a case the Prophet Elia called for fire from heauen vpon his enemies, 2. King. 1. in such a case Paul in the sight of the whole Church of Antiochia withstood Peter to his face, Galat. 2. 11. in such a case ( God assisting me, quoth <sup>c</sup> Luther ) I am and euer will be stout and sterne, my forehead shall bee more hard then all mens foreheads, herein I take vpon me this title, Cedo nulli, I giue place to none. Renowned <sup>d</sup> Jewel sweetly to the same purpose, I deny my learning, I deny my Bishopricke, I deny my selfe, onely the faith of Christ and truth of God I cannot deny; with this faith, or for this faith, I trust I shall end. The reuerend Fathers, and other zealous Doctors in all ages, haue risen vp in the * gaps of the Church, and haue made vp the hedge for Gods Israel, euer opposing those who did oppose the truth, according to that obseruation in ecclesiasticall historie, <sup>e</sup> Heresies occasioned true doctrines to be more diligently discussed.

Againe, we must here <sup>f</sup> distinguish betweene sinnes of malice, and sinnes of infirmitie, betweene being <sup>g</sup> ouertaken in a fault, and <sup>h</sup> giving ouer of our selues vnto wickednesse to follow sinne euen with a greedinesse. It is said in the beginning of this chapter, If a man bee ouertaken in any fault, &c. <sup>i</sup> that is, beguiled of the deuill and of the flesh, and the terme man helpeth also to diminish and qualifie the matter, as if he should say, what is so proper vnto man, as to fall and be deceiued, <sup>k</sup> humanum est errare, labi falli: so Moses Leuit. 6. 3. they are wont to sinne like men.

<sup>l</sup> Hierome noteth vpon the words of the Prophet Ezekiel, (the fathers haue eaten sowre grapes, and the childrens teeth are set on edge) that there bee foure generations in sinne: 1. a rash onset or first motion to sinne. 2. deliberation, when one hath determined to be naught. 3. action, performing this determination. 4. boasting in wickednesse. Now we must be mercifull, <sup>m</sup> as our father in heauen is mercifull, but God is more mercifull vnto the first and second generation in sinne, than to the third and fourth. For (as <sup>n</sup> Hierome construeth allegorically the words of the Law) God doth visit the third and fourth generation of sinne, as the wilfull committing of it, and gracelesse glorying in it.

The Lord said to the Prophet <sup>o</sup> Ezekiel, Sonne of man digge now into the wall, and he digged in the wall, and behold a doore; then said he to the Prophet, goe in, and behold the wicked abominations of Israel, and he entred in, and saw creeping things, and abominable beasts, and all the Idols of the house of Israel painted vpon the wall round about, &c. <sup>p</sup> By the Prophet Ezekiel is figured the person of a Preacher, by the wall a sinners hard heart, by digging a diligent inquisition after sinne, by creeping things, and beasts, and Idols, diuers kinds of abominations, and therefore when the man of God in his watch-tower beholds such abominable things; especially women mourning for Thamar, and men turning their backs toward the Temple of the Lord; he must (as <sup>q</sup> Esay speakes) cry aloud and spare not, lifting vp his voyce like a trumpeter, shewing Gods people their transgression, and to the house of Iacob their sinnes. <sup>r</sup> Erasmus obserued truly, that if we had such Bishops as Ambrose, wee should haue such Emperors as Theodosius; where there be such Prophets as Nathan, there be such Kings as Danid; where there be such Pastors as Paul, it is likely there will be such Parishioners as the Thessalonians, highly renowned not onely for their effectuall faith in Christ, but also for their diligent loue toward the Saints.

Haply some will object, Are great abominations onely to be taxed, and lesser offences in our brethren to be dissembled, and not so much as touched? Answer is made by the <sup>s</sup> Poet, Parcius ista quidem, tamen obicienda memento.

Aaron had a breast-plate of iudgement vpon his heart, Exod. 28. 29. to <sup>t</sup> signifye, that a Priest should doe all things discreetly with a good iudgement. All sinnes and all men in the same sinnes are not to be rebuked alike, <sup>u</sup> that herbe which heales one beast, hurteth another; a little hissing stilleth an horse, stirreth a dogge; <sup>v</sup> milke is for babes, and meat for men of age; such as obstinately continue still in their wickednesse, are to be taxed sharply, but such as groane vnder the burden of their weaknes, are to be raised vp againe by the spirit of meekenesse, saith our Apostle.

b Hom 5. in oper. imperfect. See Tho. 2. 2. quest. 108. art. 3. c in Galat. 2. 6.

d Answer to Mr. Hardings preface.

* Ezech. 13. 5.

e Pet. Mart.

f Loc. com part. 3. cap. 1. Arcetius.

g Galat. 6. 1

h Eph. 4. 19.

i Luther.

brontius.

k Terent.

Cuiusvis est hominum errare, nullius nisi insipientis in errore perseverare. Cic.

11. Philip.

l Jdem refert Martyr. loc. com. part. 2. c. 5.

m Luke 6. 36.

n Ubi sup.

o Ezech. 8. 8.

p Greg. pastor. part. 2. cap. 10.

q Ezech. 3. 17.

r Esay 58. 1.

s Ep. 10. Alasco prefix. oper. Ambros.

t 1. Thef. 1. 3.

u Virgil.

x Greg. Past. part. 2. cap. 2.

y Greg. prolog. part. 3. past.

z 1. Cor. 3. 2.

Heb. 5. 12. 13.

a Deut. 19. 5.

b Luther in loc.

c Iob. 19. 28.

d Psal. 69. 21.

e Esay 61. 1.

f Brentius.
Aretius.g Epist. to Philemon. vers. 1c.h Hauing vbera so well as verbera.

i Psalm. 8. 4.

k Soliloq. ca. 15.

l Lombard. in
loc. cx August.
m Ex lib. de vi-
tis Patrum, vti
Lutherus in loc.

n 1. Pet. 2. 5.

o Hom. 13. in Exek.

It is written in the <sup>a</sup> Law, that if a man goeth vnto the wood with his neighbour to hew wood, and his hand striketh with the axe to cut downe the tree, if the head slip from the helue, and hit his neighbour that he die, the same shall flie to one of the Cities appointed for refuge and liue. Such as reprehend their auditors ouertaken in any fault too curstly (saith Gregorie the Great, Pastoral. part 2. cap. 10.) make the head of the axe to flie from the helue, and so they kill vnadvisedly their brethren. And <sup>b</sup> these ghostly fathers vse Christians as the Iewes vsed Christ hanging on the Crosse; when his <sup>c</sup> thirstie soule called for some comfortable potion, they gaue him <sup>d</sup> gall and vineger to drinke. A troubled spirit is an acceptable sacrifice to God, Psal. 51. 17. It is the spiritual mans office therefore to <sup>e</sup> bind vp the broken hearted, and to comfort such as mourne in Sion, admonishing them in the spirit of meeknesse, and not in the zeale of seuer iustice. The word καταρζετε vsed by <sup>f</sup> S. Paul, signifies properly to put in ioynt a member which is dislocated. Now the Surgeon (as you know) must haue a Lions heart and a Ladies hand: so the Physitian of our soule must haue a Lions heart in rebuking stoutly such as are ouertaken in any fault, but yet a Ladies hand in restoring them againe gently to their place, lest otherwise they should be swallowed vp with ouer-much sorrow. Pastors are not only fathers in <sup>g</sup> begetting, but also mothers in bearing children vnto the Lord: so S. Paul expressly, Galat. 4. 19. My little children, of whom I trauell in birth againe vntill Christ be formed in you. As then a mother is <sup>h</sup> content to beare with innumerable weakneses of her childe: so the Minister ought to beare with a great many follies of his new borne babes vnto God in Christ.

<sup>i</sup> S. Paul exhorteth vs here to this vertue by diuers reasons in the verse going before: 1. From the bond of alliance, brethren: all of vs are brethren, and one brother ought to loue another. 2. From the condition of the person offending, if a man, and <sup>i</sup> what is man, euen like a thing of nought, Psalm. 144. 4. according to that which is said in this chapter at the 3. verse, If any man seeme to himselfe to be somewhat, when he is nothing, hee deceiueth himselfe in his imagination. 3. From the manner of offending (as I haue before shewed) ouertaken, for there is great difference betweene voluntary running after sinne of our owne accord, and to bee drawne occasionally to sinne by the lewd example of other. 4. From the qualitie of the sinne; a fault, lapsus, not scelus, a rash infirmitie, not a setled iniquity. 5. From the vertues of those which are to rebuke, ye which are spirituall, endued with a great many gifts of the Spirit, which is the spirit of meeknesse and mercy, not of rigour and enuy. 6. From the like danger of falling in our selues, consider thy selfe, lest also thou be tempted. For there is no sin, saith <sup>k</sup> Augustine, which any man hath done, but another (if God denie grace) may doe the same. We stand on slippery ground, and if we waxe proud and stand not in feare, nothing is so easie vnto vs as to fall. If any man thinke himselfe any thing, saith our Apostle, <sup>l</sup> that is, any thing of himselfe without the gift of God, or any great thing in comparison of other sinners, hee deceiueth himselfe in his imagination. It was therefore well said of an <sup>m</sup> holy Father, when it was told him that one of his brethren was fallen into whoredome, He felt yesterday (quoth he) and I may fall to day.

Now let vs if you please put all these weightie considerations together in one balance: the burden here to be borne, is the burden of a man, and of such a man as is our brother, and of such a brother as is rather ouertaken then hunting after wickednesse, and ouertaken in such a fault, which is rather an unhappy slip than a foule fault, and we which are to support professe our selues spirituall, able to beare with infirmities of the weak: againe we know that our selues are fraile creatures, alway subiect to the like temptations, and so consequently that we need mutuall the helping hand one of another, and therefore let vs beare one anothers burden. The metaphor, as Chrysostome vpon the place thinkes, is taken from architecture for as in a materiall house one stone lieth vpon another, and all vpon the foundation: euen so in the Church, which is the spirituall house, Christians, aptly termed by <sup>n</sup> S. Peter, Isaely stones, beate vp one another, and Christ as the chiefe stone beares all. Unusquisq; & portat alterum, & portatur ab altero. quoth <sup>o</sup> Gregorie, the whole building is so compact, as that euey one beares another, and is borne of another, and and so ioyned together as it followeth here, they fulfill the law of Christ. The will of Christ is, that p all men should be saued, he therefore (saith <sup>9</sup> Ambrose) that restorerh a brother ouertaken in a fault, and labours to raise him vp againe, fulfill the will of Christ, or Christis law, that is, Christs example, who carried our sorrowes, Esay 53.4. and bare our sinnes in his body on the crosse, 1. Pet. 2. 24 for the law of Christ is the law of charitie, John 13. 34. a new commandement I giue vnto you that you loue one another, as I haue loued you, for they that loue one another, beare the burden one of another. A point so necessarie, that the beloued Disciple S. Iohn in his old age being caried to the Church in the armes of his schollers, and there lift vp into the pulpit, and vnable to speake many words, vttered onely this sweet sentence, filii diligite alterutrum, little babes loue one another.

The second kinde of burden is pouerty needing a supply, so S. Augustine doth expound these words in <sup>u</sup> ser. 22. de verbis Apostoli, saying that a prodigious wealth is a burden vnto the rich, and extreme want a burden vnto the poore, so that if the rich out of his abundance communicate to the necessaries of the poore, they beare one anothers burden. Want of necessary things is so grieuous a burden that many poore soules haue despaired vnder it, I beseech you therefore which are pressed with this heauy load, that you would cast all your * burden vpon the Lord, and he shall nourish you; that you would cast all your care vpon him, for he careth for you, 1. Pet. 5.7. he that feedes the y fowles of the heauen, and cloathes the lillies of the field, shall he not much more prouide food and rayment for his owne children? the hearts of men are in the hands of the Lord as riuers of water, and he turnes them whithersoever it pleaseth him, Prou. 21. 1. he turned the heart of <sup>2</sup> Potiphar toward Ioseph, he turned the heart of <sup>a</sup> Pharaohs daughter toward Moses, hee turned the heart of <sup>b</sup> Nabuchadonosor toward Shadrach, Mesech, and Abednego, he caused Rauens to feed his Prophet Elia, 1. Kings 17. 6. and he doth enlarge the hearts of rauencous cormorants in a famine to take compassion and to doe good vnto the household of faith, he can at his good pleasure c turne the hard rocke into a standing water, and the flint stone into a springing well, able to mollifie the stony hearts of hard and harsh churles, and to make them open-handed, and full of pittie toward his Saints and seruants, in the dayes of need. Albeit thy <sup>d</sup> father and thy mother forsake thee, yet the Lord will sustaine thee; though haply the magistrates and all other who should be nursing fathers and nursing mothers vnto thee, leaue thee comfortlesse in thy distresse, yet the Lord who pittieeth vs as a father, Psalme 103. 13. and comforteth vs as a mother, Esay 66. 13. shall according to the riches of his mercy binde vp the broken hearted, and giue beauty for ashes, and the garment of gladnesse for the spirit of heauinesse.

Consider I pray despised Lazarus at Dines gate, how found hee was in his swones, rich in his pouerty, blessed in his misery, Fuit (as <sup>e</sup> Fulgentius sweetly) sine Domo, sed non sine Domino: sine veste, sed non sine fide: sine cibo, sed non sine Christo: he wanted an house, but the Lord himselfe was the f portion of his inheritance, possessing the s whole world and all that therein is: he needed a few rags, but by faith he had <sup>h</sup> put on Christ a rich and a long robe of righteousness to couer all the sinnes of his soule: hee could not haue so much as the crums of bread falling from Dines table, but he did eat of that true bread which came from heauen, euen of the bread of life that nourisheth euerlastingly: hee was a companion of stinking dogs, and yet attended by glorious Angels. If then hard hearted men refuse to beare thy burden, cast it vpon the Lord who saith expressly, Come to me ye that are heauy laden, and I will ease you. <sup>i</sup> The Lord vpholdeth all such as fall, and lifteth vp those that be downe, the Lord is nigh vnto all those that call vpon him faithfully, he will fulfill the desires of those that feare him, he will heare their cryes and helpe them.

So likewise riches (howsoeuer in themselves a blessing) are vnto such as set their <sup>k</sup> hearts on them and put their <sup>l</sup> trust in them a burden, they be good seruants (as Seneca said of afflictions) but bad masters; if we serue them, it is a labour to get them, and a load to keepe them: as it is the burden of pouerty, saith <sup>m</sup> Augustine, non habere, to haue too little: so the burden of opulencie plus quam opus est habere, to haue too much Example hereof in the 12. chapter of S. Luke, where the couetous p 1. Tim. 2.4.

q In loc.

r Brennius.
Marelot.
s Primasius.
Occumen.
Luther.
t Hierom. lib. 3.
com. in Galat. 1.
Tom. 9. fol. 200.

u Tom. 10. fol.
252.

x Psal. 55. 23.

y Mat. 6. 26.

z Gen. 39.

a Exod. 2.

b Dan. 3.

c Psal. 114. 8.

d Psalm. 27. 10.

e Epist. 2. ad
Gallam de statu viduali.

f Psal. 16. 6.

g Psal. 24. 1.

h Rom. 13. 14.

i Psal. 145. 14.
18.

k Psal. 62. 10.

l 1. Tim. 6. 17.

m Ser. 22. de
verb. Apost.

miser cryeth out as well as the necessitous begger, what shall I doe? Schollers in Colledges complaine because they want meat for their stomacke, Friers in Monasteries heretofore, sometime complained also that they did want a stomacke for their meat, poore men are discontented because they haue not enough corne for their barnes, and rich men are discontented in plenty, because they haue not enough barne for their corne, What shall I doe? this will I doe, I will pull downe my barnes and build greater.

n Matt. 10. 25.

o 1. Tim. 6. 18.

p Luke 12.

q Isidor. Orig. lib. 10.

r Actis 8. 20.

f 1. Cor 7. 31.

t Onera, id est molestias. Em. Sa. in loc.

u Caictan in loc.

x Matt. 10. 42.

y Apoc. 12.

z Ambros. Brentius.

a Primasius

b Aquine.

c Hierom.

d Lombard.

e Aquine.

f See Luther & Marlor. in loc.

g Mat. 5. 9.

Thus an ouergrowne estate many times is a burden, so heauy that <sup>n</sup> Christ saith, it is easier for a camel (or as other read) for a cable to goe through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdome of God: a cable being vndone thread by thread, may goe thorow a needles eye, so (beloued) if the couetous rich man vntwine his wretched thoughts, and become <sup>o</sup> rich in good workes, he may possesse the kingdome of heauen. If thou reason as that auarous Epicure did in the P Gospell, saying vnto thy soule, thou art Diuus, and therefore Diuus, thou hast much goods for many yceres: Or thou art Diuus, and therefore be <sup>q</sup> Diu uescens, eat, drinke take thy pastime, <sup>r</sup> let thy money perish with thee, for thou hast no part nor fellowship in the kingdome of God, as continuing yet in the gall of bitteresse, and in the boud of iniquity; but if in arguing with thy selfe thou concludest (as Logicians speake) in dabitur, and not in celarent: If thou lay not vp thy goods onely for thy selfe, but lay them out in doing good vnto all men, especially to those of the household offaith: If thou deriue Diuus à diuido, which is Christs owne notation in the 10. of S. Marke at the 21. verse, diuide pauperibus, giue to the poore: If thou doest <sup>s</sup> vse the things of the world as if thou didest not vse them, if thou helpe to bear the burden of thy brethren in distresse, and so fulfil the law of Christ, assuredly thou shalt enter into the kingdome of Christ.

Beside the burden of pouertie, there be <sup>t</sup> burdens of sicknesse, and seruitude, there be many terrors and troubles in the world wherewith our brethren are laden, and we must also help to beare part thereof, according to that of S. Paul, Heb. 13. 3. Remember them that are in bonds, as though yee were bound with them; and them that are in affliction, as if ye were also afflicted in body. This office is performed <sup>u</sup> affectu compassionis, effectu subuentionis, suffragio orationis, in affect by compassion, in effect by subuention, in our prayers vnto God by supplication. If we cannot actually communicate to the necessities of the Saints in another countrey, yet let vs affectionately commiserate their distressed estate, let vs heartily send vp our good wishes vnto God in their behalfe; though we cannot fight for them abroad, yet let vs sigh for them at home. For if the Lord reward a cup of <sup>x</sup> cold water giuen to his poore members, how much more will he reward a cup of warme water, that is, a few teares shed for Iosephs affliction, I meane for the persecution of his Church vnder the <sup>y</sup> red Dragon in the wilderness. S. Paul would haue the whole Church weepe for one mans fornication, and shall not one weepe for the sinne of a whole Church, crying as Ieremie, Oh that my head were a well of water, and mine eyes a fountaine of teares, that I might weepe day and night for the slaine of Gods people, Ierem. 9. 1.

These duties are to be done by vs in the present, <sup>z</sup> portate, now beare: the which is answerable to that in this chapter at the 10. verse, While we haue time let let vs doe good, &c. that is, while we haue <sup>a</sup> light, and while we haue <sup>b</sup> life, for the Saints in this world beare the crosse, but in the next they wear the crowne. From hence wee may learne two lessons.

1. That <sup>b</sup> howsoeuer heere wee may beare vp our brethren before they fall, and reare vp our brethren after they be fallen, howsoeuer heere we may vphold one another with our prayers and purse, with our meeknes and mercy, with our affectionate compassion, and actuall subuention; yet hereafter at the last day before the iudgement fear of Almighty God, every man shall beare his owne burden, he shall neither be condemned for the sinne, nor yet absouled for the vertues of another. The Saints haue not enough <sup>c</sup> oyle for themselues and other too, workes of supererogation, are workes of superarrogation, every man shall liue by his owne faith, and every man shall be iudged according to his owne facts, whether they be good or euill, as our

Apostle,

Apostle, 2. Cor. 5. 10. while we are pilgrims vpon the way, we may support one another in our stewardship, but at our iourneyes end, when our account is to be giuen vp, euery man is to beare his owne burden.

2. That howsoeuer the dead Sainrs are<sup>d</sup> sollicitous for the good of the liuing in generally, yet they doe not vnderstand the wants, and so consequently not beare the burden of this and that man in particular. And therefore we must according to Gods owne precept and promise, call vpon him in the time of trouble, and he will heare vs. <sup>e</sup> Doubtles thou Lord art our father, though Abraham be ignorant of vs, and Israel knoweth vs not, O Lord, thou art our father, and our redeemer, thy name is for euer. Howsoeuer men on earth and Sainrs in heauen are not able to support our weaknesse, and supply our wants, yet if we cast our load vpon the Lord, he will <sup>g</sup> ease our shoul- der from the burden, and <sup>h</sup> deliuer our soule from the nethermost hell.

Christ is the good shepheard mentioned Luk. 15. who sought the lost sheepe in the wildernesse, and when he found it, laid it on his shoulders, and brought it home with ioy. <sup>i</sup> In his life he sought the lost sinner vntill he found him, in his death he laid him on his shoulders, in his resurrection he reioyced for him, in his ascension he did open the doores of heauen, and bring him to his owne fathers house and home. The braces of the Crosse (quoth <sup>k</sup> Ambrose) are the shoulders of Christ, O then let vs lay all the burden of our faults vpon them, able to beare the finnes of the whole world, <sup>l</sup> I will lay me downe in peace, and take my rest in thy Crosse, for it is thou Lord onely that makest me to dwell in safetie. Thus haue I for this time dis- burdened my selfe, and burdened you; God of his infi- nite rich mercy grant that we may beare one anothers burden.

<sup>d</sup> Doctor Rey- nold de Idolat. lib 1. cap. 1.

<sup>e</sup> Psal. 50. 15.

<sup>f</sup> Esay 63. 16.

<sup>g</sup> Psal. 81. 6.

<sup>h</sup> Psal. 86. 13.

<sup>i</sup> Panygarol. hom. in euang. Dom. 3. post Pentecost.

<sup>k</sup> In Luc. 15.

<sup>l</sup> Psal. 4. 9.

The

The paines of Hell.

PSALME 86. verses 12, 13.

I will thanke thee, O Lord my God, with all my heart, and will praise thee for euermore. For great is thy mercy toward me, and thou hast deliuered my soule from the nethermost hell.

LECTURE I.

HE Prophet professeth in this Scripture, that he will praise God vnfaignedly with his whole heart, and vncessantly for euermore. The ground, whereof is Gods exceeding great mercy, manifested in deliuering his soule from the greatest of all mischiefes, which is the nethermost hell.

Here then I am to begin at the Texts end; treating,

- 1. Of hell.
- 2. Of our deliuerance by Gods vnspcakable mercy from this hell.
- 3. Of our thankes and praise due to God for this deliuerance.

There is an hell }
 On earth, which is twofold, }
 vnder earth, which is twofold, }
 1. Temporall hell of affliction.
 2. Spirituall hell of conscience.
 1. The pit of the dead, or the graue, which is vpper hell.
 2. The pit of the damned, which is the nethermost hell.

I finde this our text construed by Diuines of all these kinds of hell. Concerning the first, <sup>a</sup> Ionas, and other holy men, that were deliuered from extreme perils, and deepe dangers, are <sup>b</sup> said to be deliuered from hell, as Psalm. 118. 4. The pangs of hell came about me. Psalm 116. 3. Thou hast brought my soule out of hell. Psalm 116. 3. The snares of death compassed me round about, and the paines of hel gat hold upon me: so here, thou hast deliuered my soule, that is, my life, my person, as it were, from the nethermost hell. For when Dauid was persecuted by Saul, there was but a step betwene Dauid and death, 1. Sam. 20. 3. As they which are buried seeme in the iudgement of man past all hope of life, yet God notwithstanding will one day raise them vp againe; <sup>c</sup> so when <sup>d</sup> Dauid seemed by reason of his distresse to bee past all recoerie, the Lord admirably deliuered him from death.

Dauid also was deliuered from the hell of conscience, for his crying crimes of murder, and whoredome. For after <sup>e</sup> Nathan had said vnto him, the Lord hath put away thy sinne, after God had giuen him <sup>f</sup> a cleane heart, and a right spirit, he was restored againe to his former peace of conscience, and ioy in the Ho'y Ghost. He calleth a Ionas 2. 2. b Basl. Bucer. Agellius. Genebrard. Tremellius. c Caluin. Wilcox. Euthymius. Accipit infernum pro mortui cui proximus fuit Ezechias.

 e 2. Sam. 12. 13.
 f Psal. 51. 10. g Rom. 14. 17.

leth his griefe for sinne the lowest hell, <sup>h</sup> as being a great deale deeper than any kinde of outward danger or death. He therefore thanked God with all his heart for deliue- ring his soule from this hell of conscience, <sup>i</sup> confounding those foule fiends and vncleane spirits, which in his murder and adulterie had risen vp against him, and sought after his soule to destroy it.

Thirdly, if we take this as spoken in the person of Christ, it may bee construed of the <sup>k</sup> graue, for God raised Christ againe from the dead, not leaving his soule in hell, nor suffering his holy one to see corruption, Psal. 16. 11. Actis 2. 27.

But the <sup>l</sup> Fathers expound this of hell in hell, aptly termed the nethermost hell, as being not only lower than any graue, but also deeper than any wound in the body, or griefe in the minde.

Troubles in this world (quoth Austin) are an v<sup>p</sup>ward hell, but the tortures of the damned in the next, are the lowest hell: and Hierome, sinne is a superiour hell, but the place where sinners are punished eternally, the nethermost hell.

If we will vnderstand this as vttered by the Prophet, of Christ, he descended into the nethermost hell, <sup>m</sup> non vt debitor, sed vt victor, not as a debtor to suffer any punishment, but as a conqueror to triumph ouer death and the diuell in their owne kingdomes: or he may sing with our Prophet, thou hast declinere my soule, <sup>n</sup> that is, the soule of my people beleeuing in my name from the nethermost hell, for it is thy <sup>o</sup> will, that whoso euer beleene in me should not perish, but haue cuerlasting life, Iohn 3. 16.

Or it may be thus interpreted of Dauid literally, thou Lord hast deliuered my soule from hell in pardoning all my sinnes worthily deseruing hell. For <sup>q</sup> as <sup>a</sup> man is said to deliuer his brother from death, not because he raised him v<sup>p</sup> againe from the dead, but onely for that he was a meanes to preferue him aliuie: so God is said to deliuer vs from the nethermost hell, in preuenting and preferuing vs by his grace, from descending into the nethermost hell.

Now that we may the better amplifie the greatnesse of Gods mercy, let vs examine the greatnesse of helms misery.

The which is twofold, <sup>1</sup> Pæna sensus, paines of sense.

<sup>2</sup> Pæna damni, paines of losse.

For <sup>r</sup> as in sinne there is an auersion from the Creator, and a conuersion to the crea- tures, according to that of the <sup>s</sup> Prophet, They haue forsaken me the fountaine of li- uing waters, and haue digged themselues pits, euen broken pits that can hold no water: so in the punishment of sinners (as <sup>t</sup> Diuines obserue) there is not only paine of losse, which is answerable to their auersion from their Creator; but also paine of sense, which is answerable to their conuersion vnto the creature. And therefore wee reade Ioh. 15. 6. that such v<sup>p</sup>profitable branches as beare no fruit, are not only cast out of the vine, and the whole vineyard; but also gathered together, and are made faggots and fuell of hell fire. To begin with the lesser of these two,

1. Darkenesse.
2. Fire.
3. The worne neuer dying.
4. Bonds.
5. Conuersing with deuils.
6. Weeping.
7. Gnashing of teeth.

The paines of sense to be suffered of the damned in hell, according to the Scriptures account, are principally seuen,

The first is darkenesse, according to that of Christ, Math. 8. 12. The children of the kingdome shall bee cast out into v<sup>t</sup>ter darkenesse. And Math. 22. 13. speaking of him who had not on a wedding garment, cast him into v<sup>t</sup>ter darknesse. And Math. 25. 30. cast that v<sup>p</sup>profitable seruant into v<sup>t</sup>ter darkenesse. So <sup>u</sup> Iob calleth hell the land of darkenesse, and the reason thereof is plaine, because the nethermost hell is a <sup>v</sup> bottom- lesse pit in the heart of the earth, farre remote from the light of Sunne, and Moone, and Starres. Haply some will object, if there be fire, there is assuredly light. Answer is made by <sup>w</sup> S. Basil, that hell fire hath onely power to burne, but not to shine; or if it afford a little sulphureous or obscure light, it shall not be for their comfort, but on the contrary, <sup>h</sup> Mollerus.

<sup>i</sup> Arnobius:

<sup>k</sup> Iacobus de Valentia.

<sup>l</sup> Hierom. Augustin. in loc. Bernard. ser. 2. de assumptione. Idem Placidus Parmensis & alii.

<sup>m</sup> Genebrayd.

<sup>n</sup> Turrecremat. in loc.

<sup>o</sup> Iohn 6. 40.

<sup>q</sup> D. Incognitus in loc.

<sup>r</sup> Dio. car. de quatuor nouissimis, part. 3. art. 11.

<sup>s</sup> Ierem. 2. 13.

<sup>t</sup> Thomas 1. 2. e. quest. 87. art. 4. Jo. de Combis compend. Theolog. li. 7. cap. 22.

<sup>u</sup> Iob 10. 21.

<sup>x</sup> Apocal 9. 1.

<sup>y</sup> Math. 12. 40.

<sup>z</sup> In Psal. 33.

contrary to the farther confusion of the damned, that thereby they may discern their brethren, or children, or friends in the same punishment with them, or else that they may behold the most vgly faces of terrible fiends alway tormenting them.

And the darkenesse of hell is called vtter darkenesse, to distinguish it from that inward darkenesse wherewith vngodly men are compassed about in this life. Worldlings haue their corporall eyes open in seeing vanities, and in seeking pleasures of the flesh, but they be blinde concerning internall, and eternall happinesse, as S. Paul speaketh, Their<sup>a</sup> heart is full of darkenesse, and there<sup>b</sup> cogitations obscured through ignorance that is in them. Here reprobate men haue light without, and darkenesse within, but hereafter they shall haue vtter darkenesse, and inward light. I say light inwardly not to see God or any thing that is good to their refreshing, but onely so much inward light as may serue to discouer their errors, and to make them vnderstand their own misery, saying, We haue erred from the way of truth, & the light of righteousness hath not shined vnto vs, and the sun of vnderstanding rose not vpon vs. Now what a terrible torture this wil be to such especially as haue greedily followed the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life, let old blinde Tobie witnesse, who when the Lords Angell saluted him on this sort (Ioy to thee for euermore) replied, what ioy can I haue who sit here in the darke, and see not the light of heauen? How tedious is the night vnto the sicke body, who cannot sleepe though he stretch himselfe vpon a bed of yuorie, how carefully doth hee tell the clocke, numbring houres and minutes of houres exactly, how eagerly doth he desire the morning light, although his grieffe happily reside but in one part, as in his teeth, or head, or in one ioynt of a member as the gowt in a toe, the felon in a finger. O then how fearefull, and vncomfortable will that eternall darkenesse be to the damned vniuersally tormented in all the parts of their bodies, and in all the powers of their soules, and that without all hope to see more light, and to returne againe to life: Thinke on this all yet that forget God, in whose minde the Prince of darkenesse worketh vnprofitable workes of darkenesse, Ephes. 5. 11. lest in a moment ye be taken from your inner darkenesse, and cast into hels vtter darkenesse. And let all such as once were darkenesse, but now light in the Lord, that is, all the faithfull and godly beleeuing that Christ died for their sinnes, and rose againe from the dead for their iustification; say with the Prophet, I will thanke thee O Lord my God with all my heart, and will praise thy name for euermore. For great is thy mercy toward me, and thou hast deliuered my soule from the nethermost hell.

The second punishment in hell is fire, so the text speaketh of the h tares, that is, vnregenerate sinners they shall bee bound together, and cast into a furnace of fire. And euery tree that brings not forth good fruit, shall bee hewen downe, and cast into the fire, And Apocal. 20. 15. whosoever was not found written in the booke of life, was cast into the lake of fire, the which is materiall, and not as some conceiue metaphoricall only; not a false, but a furious fire not a phantasticall, but a corporall fire. So Gregorie the great, so the Scoole, so S. Austine. Yea, but you will obiect, if hell fire be corporeall, how commeth it to passe that it consumes not the bodies of the damned? Augustine de Ciuit. Dei lib. 21. cap. 10. doth answer in one word, that this is done miris sed veris modis, admirably yet actually, whereof if any doubt, let him remember only, that he who created it is omnipotent, and he who revealed it is truth,

Again, there be so strange things as it euen in this present world: for in a natural historie; we reade of a certaine salt in Sicilia, the which if it be put into the fire, swimes as in water, and being put into water, crackles as in a fire. Among the Garamantes, a people dwell in the middle of Libia, wee read of a fountaine, the which in a cold night is so hot, that none can indure touch it, and in the hot day so cold that none can drinke it. And we read of a stone in Arcadia called Abeston, the which being once made hot can neuer be cooled. And why then I pray, quoth Augustine, may not the bodies of the damned in that vnquenchable lake be like salt in Sicilia, which in the fire swimes like water; or like the stone Abeston, which once being hot cannot be cooled; or like the Well in Libia, which is hot in cold weather, and cold in hot a Rom. 1. 21.

b Ephes. 4. 18.

c Wisd. 5. 6.

d Tobit 5. 12.

e Amos. 6. 4.

f Ephes. 6. 12.

g Ephes 5. 8.

h Math. 13. 30.
42.

i Luke 3. 9.

k Dialog. lib. 4.
cap. 29.

l Lombard sent.
lib. 4. dist. 43.

m Lib. 21. de Ciuit. Dei. cap. 3.
& 10 Idem

10. de Combis compend. Theolog. li. 21. ca. 22.
n See August. de Ciuit. lib. 21. cap. 5.

o Vbi supra.

weather? Doeſt thou ſecke a reaſon of Gods high and heauie iudgements, ſaith P Auguſtine? I for my part will feare and tremble thereat; diſpute thou, but I will beleue: I ſee the pit, but I cannot finde the depth; & ſeeing the 9 Apoſtle ſaith, that the wayes of God cannot be found, thinkelt thou to finde them out? To ſearch out things inſcrutable is as impoſſible as to ſee things inuiſible, and to ſpeake things ineffable.

Now (beloued) among all the mercileſſe puniſhments inuented by the wit of man, it is granted that burning is the moſt horrible. Such as are put to death by men or beaſts endure leſſe crueltie than they which are put to death by ſenſleſſe creatures. And among all things inſenſible, water and fire are moſt vniuerſal; and of theſe two, fire is moſt raging. And therefore the barbarous Papiſts euer delighted in fire-works. A Pope firſt enacted the law de heretico comburendo; a Frier firſt inuented the ſhooting of fire: And were not I pray you Papiſts the parties who plotted the helliſh gun-powder-treaſon. They be reputed worthily the moſt exquisite torturers, and their moſt execrable torments are by fire.

Hence ſome Diuines imagine that the puniſhments of hell is termed fire metaphorically, becauſe the moſt bitter paine knowne to man, is that of fire. But earthly fire though it be neuer ſo terrible for a time, yet it ſoone deuoureth the body, that is caſt into it, and ſo the flame decreaſeth as the ſewell waſteth: whereas hell fire cannot be quenched, Mark. 9.43. It is an euerlaſting fire, Matth. 25.41. where damned wretches are euer frying, and yet neuer dying.

And therefore let vs often in our meditations remember the words of Eſay, who among vs ſhal dwell with the deuouring fire? who among vs ſhal dwell with euerlaſting burning? as if he had ſaid to graceleſſe, hard hearted obſtinate ſinners, take not a burden vpon you which is too hard for you to beare; trie firſt if you can abide to dwell with a deuouring fire before yee goe downe quicke into hell. It is reported of the godly martyr Thomas Bilney, that he did uſe before his burning to put his finger into the candle to feele how hot the fire was: and Tertullian writeth of Quintus Mutius Scaſola, that he did conſtantly burne his owne hand for ſtriking amiſſe. So let the deſperate ſinner that imagineth lewdneſſe vpon his bed, and when the morning is light taketh paine to commit it, a compaſſing land and ſea to corrupt others, and to worke all vncleanneſſe, euen with a greedineſſe, burne but his hand, or his finger in the fire for a few minutes, and then conſider how he ſhall endure to dwell in that vnquenched lake with euerlaſting burnings.

I will not any farther examine the condition of hell fire, ſeeing it is our dutie not to be curious in ſearching after it, but on the contrary ſtudious that wee may neuer come to know what it is. In this life which is the day of our ſaluation, and acceptable time, we may through faith in Chriſt our bleſſed Sauour, who triumphed over the powers of hell, viterly quench all the fiery darts of the deuill; here by true repentance we may ſtop theſe flames, and by deuout teares put them out, that they neuer ſhall come neere vs; but hereafter it will be too late when the breath of the Lord ſhall as a riuer of brimſtone kindle it, and command it to burne without either end, or caſe.

The third puniſhment of hell is, the worme neuer dying, mentioned by the Prophet Eſay, who ſpeaking of the wicked in his laſt Chapter, at the laſt verſe, ſaith expreſſly, Their worme ſhall not die, neither ſhall their fire bee quenched: the which is repeated thrice by Chriſt in one Chapter, namely, Marke 9. verſe 44. 46. 48. S. Baſil takes this for a material worme which is carniuorous and venomous, but Auguſtine, and others affirme that this worme neuer dying, is the ſting of conſcience diſquieting the damned after ſuch an horrible manner, as if a worme full of poyſon ſhould bee gnawing at the heart of a man. It is very probable that the fire neuer to be quenched, is to be referred to the body, and the worme neuer dying to the ſoule. So that of the Wiſeman is interpreted, Eccleſiaſticus 7. 17. The vengeance of the wicked is fire and wormes, fire to torment his body; wormes of conſcience to torture his ſoule. Now this Erinnis conſcientie, this helliſh hagge (as Melanethon calleth it) affrights the wicked in this world ſo terribly, that they runne as mad men out of the field into the citie, out of the citie into their houſes, out of the common roomes in their houſes into their verbis Apoſtoli.

P Ser. 20. de
q Rom. 11. 33.

r See Bulling.
de conſiliis lib. 2.
cap 12.

f See Marlo.
rat. in Matth.
25. 41. & Caluin.
in Iſaie cap.
30. 33. & 66.
24.

t Eſa. 33. 14.

u Fox martyr.
fol. 922.

x Lib. ad martyres.

y Mica. 2. 1.

z Jerem. 9. 5.

a Math. 23. 15.

b Ephes. 4. 19.

c 1. Cor. 6. 2.

d Eph. 6. 12. 16.

e Eſay 30. 33.

f In Pſal. 33.

g De Ciuit. Dei

lib. 21. cap. 9.

h Caluin. in

Eſay 66.

Io. de combis

compend. theo.

log. li. 17. ca. 22.

i See Auguſtin.

ubi ſupra.

k Com. in 1. Cor.

11.

their chambers, out of their chambers into their studies, out of their studies into the secret closets of their owne hearts, and there (saith Augustine) they find themselves greatest enemies vnto themselves. Examples hereof K. Ric. the 3. Franciscus Spira, Cardinall Crescentius, and many more despairing in sinne.

But this hell in this world is mitigated sometime by sleeping, sometime by reading, sometime by the meriments of idle company, sometime by the good counsell of honest and discreet friends: whereas in the nethermost hell, there can be no sleeping vnto the damned, although it be nothing else but an euermore night; there can bee no reading, but in that blacke booke onely, which euermore presents in great characters vnto their view, both their innumerable sinnes, and Christs seuerer sentence for the same; no commercing either with any mirthfull or faithfull acquaintance, but onely with the deuill and his angels (miserable comforters) in the same condemnation.

The fourth punishment in hell is bonds, so S. Iude writes in his Epistle, that the cursed Angels, which kept not their first estate, but left their habitations, are referred in euermore chains: and <sup>1</sup> Christ saith of him, who had not on a wedding garment, bind him hand and foot, and cast him into utter darkenes. This binding doth insinuate, that the damned in hell fire cannot moue from place to place, which haply might afford them a little ease, but that they be tyed to their torments, as a Martyr, or rather as a malefactor to be burnt is bound to the stake. Now (beloued) if a man enjoying quietnesse of minde, and perfect health of body; should bee chained vpon a downe-bed a moneth or two, he would thinke it a great punishment; but if he should be sicke of a burning feuer, and be constrained but a few houres to lie still, and not so much as to moue hand or foot, he would finde it a great torture: how wretched then are the deuils and damned in euermore chains, tormented with a worme that neuer dieth, and with a fire that neuer goeth out. Hee which is sicke at the sea may runne out of the ship into the boat, and out of the boat againe into the ship; and he which is sicke in his bed, may tumble from one side to the other: but the damned in the nethermost hell, are able to moue no more than the dead in the vppermost hell. And in this respect hell is termed euermore death, for as the blessed in heauen are said to haue euermore life, because they worke all that they will with all their inward and outward powres, and that without our impediment: so the damned in hell are said to haue eternall death, because they be perpetually tied to their torments, inforced euer to suffer that they would not, and vnable to doe that they would. It was a cruell inuention of the Gentiles, to binde the blessed Martyr <sup>m</sup> Marcus Aretusius starke naked against the Sunne, and then anointing his body with honie, that it might be exposed to the biting of flies, and stinging of wasps and bees. But the blessed man of God had vndoubtedly that of <sup>p</sup> Paul in his minde, our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for vs a farre most excellent and an eternall weight of glory: whereas those miserable wretches in that vnquenchable lake bound hand and foot for their sinne, cannot expect so much as ease, much lesse an end.

Men in this world are in the middle betwene heauen and hell, as nonices in a probation-house; wherefore such as <sup>o</sup> hate reformation and knowledge, such as haue <sup>p</sup> giuen their members as weapons of vnrighteousnesse vnto sinne, such as studie to be naught, and take <sup>q</sup> paines to doe villany, proceeding from euill to worse, Ier. 9. 3. heaping vnto themselves wrath against the day of wrath, Rom. 2. 5. haue good cause to tremble at this hard saying. But on the contrary, such as <sup>r</sup> seeke the kingdome of God, and <sup>s</sup> hunger and thirst after the righteounesse thereof, whose soules long after God, with whom is the <sup>t</sup> well of life, like as the Harts desire the water brooks, Psal. 42. 1. such as in their words administer <sup>u</sup> grace to the hearers, and in their workes are <sup>x</sup> a light in the midst of a crooked generation, such as according to grace giuen are <sup>y</sup> rich in good deeds, and <sup>z</sup> abundant alwayes, in the works of the Lord, ought to sing with our Prophet, We will thanke thee, O Lord our God, and praise thy name for euermore; for great is thy mercy toward vs, and thou hast deliuered our soules from the nethermost hell.

1 Matth. 22. 23.

m Greg. Nazianzen. orat. 1. in Julian.

n 2. Cor. 4. 17.

o Prov. 1. 29.

p Rom. 6. 16.

q Ierem. 9. 5.

r Matth. 6. 33.

s Matth. 5. 6.

t Psal. 36. 9.

u Ephes. 4. 29.

x Philip. 3. 15.

y I. Tim. 5. 18.

z I. Cor. 15. 58.

LECTURE II.

THE Fifth punishment in hell is the companie of the deuill and his Angels: according to that of <sup>a</sup> Christ, depart from me ye cursed into euerlasting fire, which is prepared for the deuill and his Angels: and Apocal. 20. 10. the deuill that deceiued them was cast into a lake of fire and brimstone, where the beast and the false Prophet shall be tormented euen day and night for evermore. Now what a discontentment it is to conuerse with our mortall enemies, opposing God and godlinesse in this life, let Dauid witness, Psalm. 120. 4. Woe is me that I am constrained to dwell with Meslech, and to haue my habitation among the tents of Kedar: and <sup>b</sup> Iob, I was a brother to the Dragons, and a companion to the Ostridges. As in heauen it will be doubtlesse an vnspeakable pleasure to enioy the long-wished for company, not onely of some speciall friends and acquaintance, whom in this life we best affected, and of the Patriarkes, and Prophets, and Apottles, and Martyrs, and Confessors, whom we most honoured: but also the most happy presence of Christ himselfe, of God himselfe, of the whole sacred Trinitie, whom we desired euer to loue with all our heart, with all our soule, with all our minde: So the damned in hell account it a great torment, that they must of necessity conuerse with Abaddon, euen the deuill himselfe, the destroyer of their soules and bodies, I say, with the deuill, the first author of all their mischiefes, and with impious wretches, his agents, in procuring all their miseries: and therefore no wonder if reprobate men in hell fire weepe and gnash with their teeth, according to that of Christ, Math. 25. 30. Cast that unprofitable seruant into utter darkenesse, there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth; the which is often repeated in the <sup>c</sup> Gospel, as the summe and epilogue of all hellish tortures, for weeping shewes the dolour, and gnashing of teeth the horrour arising from all the paines of losse or sense, as vncomfortable darkenesse, euerlasting chaines, worme neuer dying, fire neuer quenched, company both of the deuill and all his Angels.

God said he would shew such a iudgement vpon the house of <sup>d</sup> Elie, that whosoener heares thereof his eares should tingle. So these iudgements are so terrible, that whosoener heares of them, his heart cannot but tremble. For as the <sup>e</sup> Schoole teacheth, Euerie punishment of the damned is greater then any torment of any man on earth. And as <sup>f</sup> Diuines obserue, pœna damni pœnaliore est quàm pœna sensus, the paines of losse are more grieuous than all the paines of sense, and therefore the first word in Christs sentence of condemnation is depart, as if he should say, depart from me which am your God; your first beginning and last end: depart from me which offered you pardon, but you would not accept of it; depart for euer from my friendship, from my kingdome, from my paradise, from my cleare sight, and the copious riuer of my pleasures: and for that whatsoener is seperated from Christ, is also separated from those that follow Christ, In saying, depart from me, he saith likewise, depart from the quire of my glorious Angels, and from the communion of my blessed Saints, Apottles, Martyrs, Confessors, and from all the sweet company resting vpon my holy hill, I say, depart from me, from all mine, to perish in euerlasting fire with the deuill and his angels. In respect of the losse of this infinite good, hell is termed in the Fathers, and in the Scriptures also, damnation. If <sup>g</sup> Esau seeing his younger brother Jacob to haue got the blessing, eruguit clamore magno, roared out with a great crie, and bitter without measure, saying vnto his father, hast thou not reserved a blessing also a Math. 25. 41.

b Iob 30. 25.

c Math. 8. 12.
Luke 13. 28.
Math. 13. 42.
Math. 22. 13.
Math. 24. 51.

d 1. Sam. 3. 11.

e Thom. part. 3.
quest. 46. art. 6.f Chrysost.
Prosper apud
i. io. Carhus.
de quatuor no-
uissimis, part. 2.
art. 11.

g Gen 27. 34.

h Rom. 9. 13.

i Job 3. 3.

k Dan. 5. 6.

l 1. Pet. 1. 4.

m Apud Dio.
Caribuzian. ubi supra.n Varro apud Gell. in lib. 13.
cap. 11.o Sermo ad Cleru, to the Conuocation house.p Bellarm. de gemitu Colum-be, lib. 2. cap. 2.q De spiritu, & anima, cap. 56.r Church hom. concerning adulterie,
part. 3.s Psal. 55. 16.
t Genuana epistle.

u Psal. 95. 8.

x Heb. 3. 13.

y Heb. 13. 21.

for me? How loud will the reprobate roare, figured in <sup>h</sup> Esau, when as they shall behold the Saints figured in <sup>i</sup> Jacob, to haue got the benediction of their heavenly Father, and that no more blessing remaineth for them! O with what vnspcakable rage will they confirme their owne malediction, cursing the <sup>i</sup> day wherein they were borne, and the night wherein it was said, a childe is conceiued, cursing the wombe that bare them, and the paps that gaue them sucke, desiring rather neuer to haue bene, than to heare such an affrighting sentence, goe ye cursed. If King Balsazzar at the sight of an hand-writing against him, which onely concerned the losing of his earthly kingdome, was so <sup>k</sup> changed in his lookes, and troubled in his thoughts, that the ioynts of his bones were loosed, and his knees smote one against another: how shall the reprobate be perplexed in their wits, and crossed in their wils, when as they shall heare that vncomfortable word, depart, separating them vterly from an heaucnly kingdome, which is <sup>l</sup> immortall and fades not away? This infinite losse, doubtlesse, is the very hell of hell, as <sup>m</sup> Chrysofome saith; a thousand helcs are nothing in comparison of it.

Some things especially perfect a good feast, <sup>n</sup> Homines belli collecti, locus electus, tempus lectum, apparatus non neglectus: Good companie, good cheere, good place, good time. But all those good things are wanting at the blacke banquet of the deuill in the nethermost hell. As for good companie, damnation is a perpetuall banishment from heauen, and a deprivation of God and all good companie for euer. At other feasts (as it is the prouerbe) the more the merrier, but at this sorie supper the more people the greater misery, fathers howling for their children, husbands for their wiues, masters for their seruants, euery friend and fellow lamenting each other.

A for cheere, the first dish is weeping, and the second is gnashing of teeth, and can there be, quoth Father <sup>o</sup> Laymer, any mirth, where these two courses last all the feast.

As for the place, nethermost hell is not a lightsome, or in any respect a delightsome roome, but on the contrary, a land of darkenesse, and that which is more feare full, a pit of hotter darkenesse.

Now for the time, feasts appointed at vnseasonable houres, and continued longer than an ordinary time, seeme tedious to the guests, and therefore the lazie Friar sweating at his fat commonns and large dinner, cryed out, heu quantum patimur, alas how much doe we suffer which are Friars! O then I beseech you consider, what the damned suffer at the deuils supper, where time without end is the very <sup>p</sup> psauce of euery dish at the table: for their darkenesse is an euerlasting night; their bonds, euerlasting chaines; their fire, euerlasting burning; their worme, neuer dying; their woe, neuer ending; their paines diversity is great, their paines vniuersitie greater, but their paines eternitie greatest of all. It is as it were the gall and vineger that bit-tereth euery thing at the blacke banquet; as <sup>q</sup> Augustine said Mors semper uiuet, & finis semper incipiet, & defectus deficere nesciet: and Prosper to the same purpose, Pœna gehennales torquent, non extorquent, puniunt non finiunt. <sup>r</sup> If at the naming of these things we tremble, what shall they doe that one day shall feele them and suffer them, and euer shall suffer them without end.

<sup>s</sup> Daniã wished that his enemies might goe downe quicke into hell: in another sense, wee may make the <sup>t</sup> same prayer, and that in charity for our selues, and our friends. For it is an holy thing, to descend into hell often by contemplation while we liue, that we may neuer goe thither by condemnation when as we are dead. Once euery yeere the Iewes did vse to visit their holy Temple, from foure yeeres to foure the Greeks did feast at their Olympiads, from ten yeeres to ten the Romanes sent presents vnto the Oracle of Apollo: but a Christian ought euery moneth, euery weeke, euery day, yea euery moment in his soule to goe downe into hell, that of the perpetuall miserie there may be a perpetuall memorie. Yea, but you will obiect, my sinnes are so great in their number, and so grieuous in their nature, that it would proue a kinde of hell once to thinke of the nethermost hell. O beloued in the Lord, <sup>u</sup> harden not your heart, but euen now while it is called <sup>x</sup> to day, <sup>y</sup> suffer the words of doctrine and and exhortation, heare what the Lord saith in the first of Esey for your comfort, calling his owne chosen Israel, a sinfull nation, a people laden with iniquitie, whose head is sicke, and heart is heauie, having nothing whole from the sole of the foot to the crowne of the head, but wounds and swelling, and sores full of corruption: and terming them in the 10. verse, Princes of Sodom, and people of Gomorrah, <sup>z</sup> as hauing committed so soule finnes, as the men of Sodom, and Gomorrah. Now though hee <sup>a</sup> turned the Cities of Sodom and Gomorrah into ashes, and ouerthrew them, and made them an example to those that after should liue vngodly; yet he said that he would spare his Israel, if they would repent and obey his voyce. Wash you, make you cleane, cease to doe euill, learne to do well, seeke iudgement, deliuer the oppressed, iudge the fatherlesse, defend the widow, and then albeit your finnes were as crimson, they shall be made white as snow: though they were red as scarlet, they shall bee as wooll. <sup>b</sup> Hast thou sinned against Almighty God? O then acknowledge thy fault, and repent: hast thou sinned a thousand times? a thousand times repent: hast thou repented a thousand times? as yet repent more; great repentance bring's great peace to thy soule, little repentance little peace, no repentance no peace.

Let vs agree with our aduersary quickly while we are in the way, Mat. 5. 25. God which is our friend and father, is made by sin our aduersary. Let vs then and that speedily while we are <sup>c</sup> strangers and pilgrims in this earthly tabernacle, make our peace, lest he deliuer vs to the Iudge, and the Iudge deliuer vs to the Iaylout, and the Iaylour cast vs into prison, euen the nethermost hell, and so we shall euerlastingly perish, and neuer rest vpon his holy mountaine. Yea, but you will obiect that vnto me, which <sup>d</sup> Eli did to his sonnes, If one man sinne against another, the Iudge shall iudge it, but if a man sinne against God, who shall intreat for him? Answer is made by S. Iohn in his first epistle, cap. 2. vers. 2. If any man sinne, we haue an Aduocate with the Father, Iesus Christ the righteous, and he is the reconciliation for our finnes, and not for ours onely, but also for the finnes of the whole world. Answer is made by Saint Paul, Ephes. 2. 14. Christ is our peace reconciling God and vs. Answer is made by the glorious Angell in the first of S. Mathew, vers. 21. 23. Iesus is hee that shall saue his people from their finnes. Emanuel is his name, that is, God with vs, not God against vs. If we will haue pure gold, we must goe to Ophir; if good balme, to Gilead; if glad tidings, to the booke of God, which is <sup>e</sup> writen for our instruction, that we might haue comfort, the centre whereof is this, that <sup>f</sup> Iesus Christ came into the world to saue sinners. It is our best and most conuenient course therefore, to behold our vgly finnes, not in the glasse of the Law, but in the glasse of the Gospell, euen in Christ our blessed Sauour, who died for our finnes, and is risen againe for our iustification, and so we may sing in triumph as <sup>g</sup> Paul, O death where is thy sting; O hell where is thy victory, the sting of death is sinne, and the strength of sinne is the law, but thanks be to God which hath giuen vs victory through our Lord Iesus Christ. If there were no law, there would be no sinne, for sinne is <sup>h</sup> auoid the transgression of the Law: but Christ was made <sup>i</sup> vnder the Law, that he might redeeme those that were vnder the Law; he put out the hand-writing of ordinances that was against vs, and fastened it vpon his Crosse, Col. 2. 14. The sting of death is sinne, but Christ is the Lambe of God, that taketh away the finnes of the world: the prison of death is hell vppermost and nethermost, but Christ in descending into hell, and ascending into the heauen of heauens (as the <sup>k</sup> Scripture speaketh) led captiuiety captiue, triumphing ouer the deuill and death in their owne dungeons: uita illius instruxit nostram, mors illius destruxit nostram, as <sup>l</sup> Bernard pitchily; his life was our liues instruction, his death our deaths destruction. For as it is in our text, his soule going downe into hell deliuered our soule from hell. The wicked audaciously scorning all the threatenings and plagues of God, are said to haue made <sup>m</sup> a conuenant with death, and with hell an agreement. On the contrary the godly knowing that there can bee no <sup>n</sup> communion betweene light and darknesse, and no concord betweene Christ and Belial, haue not any compact with hell and the graue, but a plaine conquest ouer both, as the blessed <sup>o</sup> Apottle sweetly, The God of peace tread Satan vnder our feet. If the prince then of darknesse haue no part in vs, or power ouer vs; assuredly the pit of

<sup>z</sup> Caluin. in Efa. 1.
<sup>a</sup> 2. Pet. 2. 6.

<sup>b</sup> Chrysostom.

<sup>c</sup> 1. Pet. 2. 11.

<sup>d</sup> 1. Sam. 1. 25.

<sup>e</sup> Rom. 15. 4.

<sup>f</sup> 1. Tim. 1. 15.

<sup>g</sup> 1. Cor. 15. 55.

<sup>h</sup> 1. Iohn 3. 4.

<sup>i</sup> Gal. 4. 4.

<sup>k</sup> Psal. 68. 18.
Ephes. 4. 8.

<sup>l</sup> Lib. de sententijs.

<sup>m</sup> Esay 28. 15.

<sup>n</sup> 2. Cor. 6. 14.

<sup>o</sup> Rom. 16. 20.

p Rom. 8.1.15.

darkenesse shall neuer ouer-whelme vs. P There is no condemnation to those that are in Christ Iesus, which walke not after the flesh, but after the spirit; for we haue not the spirit of bondage to feare any more, but the spirit of adoption whereby, we cry Abba Father, and the same spirit certifieth our spirit that we are sonnes of God, and if sonnes then heires, euen heires annexed with Christ, if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be glorified also together with him.

So then if in thinking of hell, wee thinke of our sinnes: and in thinking of our sinnes, we thinke of Christ: and in thinking of Christ, we thinke of his merits: and in thinking of his merits, we thinke of our deliuerance; we shall haue cause to take vp here Dauids note, We will thanke thee, O Lord our God, with all our heart, and will praise thy name for euermore. For great is thy mercy towards vs, and thou hast deliuered our soules from the nethermost hell.

The

The Iudges Charge.

PSALME 82. 5.

They know not, neither will they vnderstand, they walke on still in darkenesse, all the foundations of the earth are out of course.

The writings of S. Paul to Timothens are termed <sup>a</sup> A glasse for the Ministers: so this excellent Ode may be called A Mirror for Magistrates.

a Hierom. epist. ad Oceanum, tom. 2. fol. 323.

In which are liuely described } 1. The dutie of Iudges.
} 2. The dangers if they neglect their duties.

Every Iudge must haue in him (as <sup>b</sup> Baldus acutely said) two kindes of salt: the first is sal scientie, that hee may know his dutie; the second is sal conscientie, that hee may doe his dutie. Such as faile in the first, are censured here with a nescierunt, and non intellexerunt; such as fall in the second, are branded here with an ambulant in tenebris.

b Cassianus Catalog. glor. mundi part. 4. con. 6.

The dangers vpon the neglect of these duties are two: the one concerning the whole Common-wealth, all the foundations of the earth are out of course; the other especially touching the priuate persons of Iudges, at the 7. verse, ye shall die like men, and fall like one of the Princes, and <sup>d</sup> after death comes iudgement, vers. 8. Arise O God, and iudge thou the earth. Almighty God standeth in the congregation of Princes, and is a Iudge among gods, he sits in euery Session and Assise Chiefe Iustice, to marke what matters passe, and how they passe, ready to iudge those <sup>e</sup> righteously, who iudge other vniustly, giuing wrong iudgement, and accepting the persons of the wicked.

c Tremelius.

d Heb. 9. 27.

e Psal. 67. 4.

Thus I haue made the way plaine before you, God infinitely rich in mercy grant, that both I in speaking, and you in hearing, may walke therein (as the blessed <sup>f</sup> Apostle phraseth it) with a right foot.

f Galat. 2. 14.

They know not, neither will they vnderstand.] That is, they neither know <sup>g</sup> God, who made them gods; nor yet <sup>h</sup> vnderstand his law, which is a <sup>i</sup> lanterne to their feet, and a light to their paths.

g Tileman. Genebrard.

h Basil.

i Euthym.

j Psal. 119. 105.

k Rom. 13. 4.

Or as Placidus Parmensis vpon the place, they neither expend how they be called gods, that as commissioners and <sup>k</sup> ministers of God, ought to iudge other; nor yet remember how they shall be iudged themselves at the last day, when all the foundations of the world shall be moued, and God himselfe shall arise to iudge the earth.

l Agellius in loc.

Or they be so corrupt and abominable, that they will neither <sup>l</sup> learne what is their office from other, nor yet vnderstand it by themselves. Or briefly, to giue that glosse (which fits best I thinke the text, I am sure the time) <sup>m</sup> Nescierunt quid facti, non intellexerunt quid iuris; they were both ignorant in the matter of fact, as not <sup>n</sup> searching out the cause; and ignorant in the matter of law sitting (as <sup>o</sup> Paul said of Ananias) to giue iudgement according to the law, and yet commanding that which is m BeBar. in loc.

n Iob 29. 16.

o Acts 23. 3.

contrarie to the law. The first concernes a good deale the Iurie, the second a great deale the Iudges; in both are condemned, as the nurfes of all confusions in a Common-wealth, Pignorantia simplex, and affectedata; simple ignorance, when as they be so shallow that they cannot; affected ignorance, when as they bee so deepe, that they will not vnderstand what is right and reason. It is a great fault to bee Iustice Shallow. Mica. 3. 1. O heads of Iacob, and yee princes of the house of Israel, should yee not know iudgement? Psalme 2. 10. Be wise, O ye Kings, be learned ye that are Iudges of the land: and S. Paul accounted himselfe happy, for that he was to plead his cause before King Agrippa, who was an expert man in all the customes and questions among the Iewes. But it is a greater sinne, when Iudges are so deepe, that they bleare their owne iudgement, and put out their owne light, only wise to doe misciefe, but to doe doe well having no knowdge, Ierem. 4. 22.

It may be minores dij, some few petie Iustices and inferiour officers in the Countrie are simply ignorant, as he who presented his Pastor for preaching that Christ was a Iew: but they bee greater ones which are taxed here chiefly for their malicious ignorance, who directing the Court, may, but will not learne quid facti; cati, but will not vnderstand quid iuris: like the Lion, which sleepes with his eyes open; or rather like the Foxe, which hunting after his prey, wakes with his eyes shut; they see not and yet see: they bee so wilfully blinde, that though all the foundations of the earth should be moued and out of course, yet would they walke on still in darkenesse.

*Lumina cecitas, Errorq; mentes obsidet, ut neq;
Compaginem rerum solutam Iustitia perennite cernant.*

Now five things especially bleare the sight of such as are called gods,

- 1. Pride.
- 2. Partialitic.
- 3. Petitions.
- 4. Wrath.
- 5. Bribes.

These five make Iudges ignorant in that they know, and nescient in that they well vnderstand.

For the first, it is Caluins obseruation vpon our text, Cacutient in suo fulgore, their eyes are dazeled in looking vpon their owne lustre. They doe not remember their beginning, how God raised them out of the mire to set them with the Princes of his people; nor yet their end, how they shall die like men; but onely dote vpon their present greatnesse; as one said, in imperio nil nisi imperium cogitant. Like Peacocks, alway beholding their feathers, but neuer their feet: and so being in honour, haue no vnderstanding, but are compared to brute beasts, horse and mule, Psal. 3. 10. yea worse than both (if Esay be Iudge) for an Oxe knoweth his Owner, and an Assc his masters crib; but Princes in their pompe many times forget God their master, yea maker, by whom they reigne, by whom they liue, by whom they haue their being.

To try whether a man be wise (saith Anthony de Gueuara) there is no other need than to put a paire of spurres on his heeles, or a pen in his hand; but in my iudgement, Bias, and Pittachus aduised better, that the way certainly to know, whether a man be sufficient, is to put him into some office. For many an one which is accounted a good man in a priuate life, proues not a good Magistrate, when he comes into publique government. As oppression, saith Ecclesiastes, so contrariwise sometimes, exaltation, makes a wise man mad. Honours change manners, as Tacitus excellently censured Galba, who seemed more then a priuate man while he liued priuate, Capax imperij nisi imperasset.

The second thing that bleares the sight of Iudges is affection and partialitic, when in examining of causes either they turne to the left hand of hatred, or to the right hand of loue; belecuing probable reasons for a friend, before concluding arguments for an enemy; & hearing the witnesses and counsell of the rich at large, but vntimely curbing p Lombard. sen.

2. dist. 22.
q Thom. de Ar-gentin. in Lombard. ubi sup.

r Ails 26. 2. 3.

s Wilcox in loc.

t Buchanan.
par. 2. in loc.

u Psal. 113. 6.

x Psal. 49. 10.

y Esay 1. 3.

z Prou 8 15.

a Ails 17. 28.

b In his Epistles.

c Arist. Ethic.
lib. 5. cap. 1.

d Laertius in eius vita.

e Cap. 7 vcrs. 9.

f Hist. lib. 1.

cap. 7.

g Lessius de Iu-stit. & Iure li. 2.
cap. 3. 2. dubit. 1.

cutting the Lawyers, and hastily curtailing the poore mans euidence; dispatching in allie, but despighting a stranger, by spinning out his cause from Terme to Terme to his vtter vndoing. <sup>h</sup> God is no respecter of persons, and therefore Magistrates againe and againe stiled in this Ode gods, as being the deputy lieutenants of God on earth, and as it were fingers of that hand which ruleth all the world, must haue no respect of persons in iudgement; as they stand in Gods place, so they should walke in Gods path, being followers of him as deare children, Ephel. 5. 1. mercifull as our Father in heauen is mercifull, and<sup>k</sup> holy for that he is holy: Deut. 1. 17. Ye shall heare the small as well as the great. Leuit. 19. 15. Thou shalt not fauour the prson of the poore, nor honour the person of the mighty, but thou shalt iudge thy neighbour vprightly, for it is not good to haue respect of any person in iudgement, Pro. 24. 23. As in Iesus all men are <sup>l</sup> all one, so (beloued) it is in iustice, there is neither Iew nor Gentile, neither bond nor free, neither male nor female; so soone as the iudge putteth on his robes, he presently loseth all his kindred and acquaintance, the defendant is a stranger at the barre, the plaintife no cousin at the barre; nay the pleader himselse may not be respected and heard as a kinsman at the barre; for that of all other is a most incurable blindness, when a Iudge sees nothing in any cause, but through the spectacles of a fauourite.

Thirdly, petitions and letters of great men vsually blinde the tender eyes of Iudges. Agessilaus (as Plutarch reports) wrote these lines in fauour of Nicias vnto some Iustice or officer of State, Nicias si insons est dimitte, si sons, me a causa dimitte, vt cuiq; omnino dimitte; that is, if Nicias be not guiltie, dismisse him; if guiltie, yet for my sake dismisse him; howsoeuer it be dismisse him. I doe not now remember what successe Agessilaus had in his suit, but I haue heard that Sir Roger Manwood, a very renowned Iudge; well knowne and much honoured in this Countie, hauing receiued letters from the Lords in the behalfe of a notorious bankrupt, answered vnder his hand stoutly; non soluentes fugiant ad potentes, viuat Rex, currat lex. The saying of the famous Emperor <sup>m</sup> Traian is very remarkable, who deliuering a sword to his principall officer, said, Hinc tibi trado gladium, vt pro me utaris cum iusta facio, contra me, vero utaris, si iniusta facio. The Kings of England when they put the sword of Iustice into the Iudges hand, speake the same words in effect; and the Iudges also solemnly protest and sweare, that they will vse the same sword indifferently, betweene the King and the subiect: and they haue Gods expresse warrant for the same, Deut. 1. 17. Feare not the face of man, for the iudgement is Gods.

A Magistrate is the Minister of God, Rom. 13. 4 He therefore that giues iudgement in fauour of great men (as Moses plainly speakes in <sup>n</sup> Iosephus) makes them greater than God himselfe. In the Gospels history, we reade, that Pilate condemned Christ in whom he could finde <sup>o</sup> no fault at all, only to please the Priests, and to content the <sup>p</sup> people, who cryed, If thou deliuer him then art thou not Cæsars friend, Iohn 19. 12. but the Iewes in this, deceiued Pilate, and Pilate deceiued himselfe, because whosoever doth administer iustice, giues the King measure, quoth <sup>q</sup> Agessilaus; and herein he shewes himselfe a friend to God, a friend to the King, a friend to the subiect, a friend to his friend; a friend to his foes, a friend to his owne selfe, a friend of all.

Fourthly, wrath blindeth a Iudges eye, for as <sup>r</sup> S. Basil speakes, it is a short madness and phrensic of the soule, by which a man is made for the time no man. <sup>s</sup> Ira, say Donatus, and other Grammmarians, is deriued of ire, quod à se eat qui irascitur & furit, & qui iram deponit ad se redire dicitur. If a mad man steale goods, or act a murther, he is not a felon in the lawes eye, for that he did these things vniwittingly; but immoderate raging anger is a voluntary madness, a deuill as it were coniuered vp by thy selfe; and it is a true maxime in our Common Law, that no man in his owne plea may disable himselfe. It is then an insufficient excuse for a Iudge to plead, I did iniustice, but it was in my choler: if a furious man in his bed may not by the law dispose of his owne estate, why should Iudge Wrath on the bench by the law dispose of other mens inheritance?

A Iudge may, yea must (as iust occasion is offered) be angry; for as anger is a whetstone to fortitude, saith <sup>t</sup> Aristotle, so likewise a whetstone to <sup>u</sup> Iustice. But here <sup>v</sup> S. Pauls

<sup>h</sup> Acts 10. 34.
Rom. 2. 11.

<sup>i</sup> Luke 6. 36.
<sup>k</sup> Leuit. 11. 44.

<sup>l</sup> Galat. 3. 28.

<sup>m</sup> Refert. Me-Lincian Pro. 24.

<sup>n</sup> Ioseph. antiq.
lib 4. cap. 8.

<sup>o</sup> Iohn 19. 4.

<sup>p</sup> Mark. 15. 15.

<sup>q</sup> Plutarch. in Agess.

<sup>r</sup> Hom. de ira.
<sup>s</sup> See Step. The.
in verb. ira.

<sup>t</sup> Ethic. lib. 3.
cap. 8.

<sup>u</sup> Alienus ab
ira. Alienus à iustitia. Valent. viti Rensner. in lymb.

x Ephes. 4. 26.

y Calvin.
Arctius in loc.
z Theop. in loc.

a Lomb. in loc.

b Arctius in loc.

c Iohn 8. 12.

d Primas. in loc.

e Refract. in symbolis.f Lanquet.
Chroz. fol. 57.

g Iob. 29. 14.

h 1. Sam. 12. 3.

i Ziphilin. in vita Ner.

* Lipsius.

k Mr. Martin in his speech to the King.l Serm. called Vlt. vale to the Court, before
King Ed. 6.

m Valer. Max.

n 1. Tim. 6. 9.

o Esays 5. 20.
p Lib. 4. de Con-
sid. ad Eug.
q 1. Kin. 21. 25.
r Mica. 6. 10.

* S. Pauls caueat ought to be remembered, be angry but sinne not; or if it so fall out that you sinne, doe not continue your sinne, let not the Sunne goe downe vpon your wrath: that is y<sup>r</sup> literally, let your anger be so short, that it leaue your minde before the Sunne forsake the earth; if this <sup>r</sup> fire be raked vp in the embers at night, it will haply breake out to doe much harme in the morning.

Or mystically, let not the Sun, <sup>a</sup> that is, the light of reason and vnderstanding be darkened in your rage, the spirit of man is the Lords candle, Prou. 20. 27. O then take heed that the light which is in you be not put out, and so you lose your selues in your wrath. Or let not the Sunne: that is, <sup>b</sup> Christ the sunne of righteousnesse, euen the <sup>c</sup> light of the world, hide his face from you by reason of your inordinate furie, let not your wrath eclipse his light, or the light of <sup>d</sup> faith in him; if you doe, how great will that darkenesse be, when as ye shall in walking be destitute both of the left eye of reason, and the right eye of religion?

Last of all and most of all, bribes make Iudges blinde; so the text plainly; Deut. 16. 19. Exod. 23. 8. Thou shalt take no gift or reward, for the reward blindes the eyes of the wise, and peruersts the words of the righteous. The <sup>e</sup> Thebans vsually portraied their Prince blinde, with eares, and the Iudges assisting him in Iustice without hands: blinde, lest he should haue respect of persons: with eares, that he might heare both parties indifferently; the Iudges without hands, lest otherwise they might be corrupt with bribes. <sup>f</sup> Epaminondas refused great presents sent vnto him, albeit he was poore, saying, If the thing were good, he would doe it without any bribe, because good; If not honest, he would not doe it for all the goods in the world.

But Magistrates in our corrupt age haue their houses seated so neere to S. Bribes, that few can say with <sup>g</sup> Iob, I put on Iustice, and it covered me, my Iudgement was a robe and a crowne: fewer with <sup>h</sup> Samuel, whose Oxe haue I taken, or whose Assse haue I taken, or of whose hand haue I receiued a bribe to blinde mine eyes therewith, and I will restore it you. None I feare with <sup>i</sup> Nerua, who was so good a prince, that he did auow boldly, se nihil fecisse quo minus possit imperio deposito primatus tuto viuere.

* Quemadmodum lances in eam partem vergunt in qua plus ponderis, ita magistratus in eam in qua plus aris. A <sup>k</sup> Lawyer of eminent note, told the Kings Highnesse at his first entring into London, adulterate gold can gild a rotten post, make Balam a Bishop, and Issachar as worthy of a Iudiciall chaire as Salomon, where he may wickedly sell that iustice which he corruptly bought. Couetousnesse is the root of all euill, 1. Tim. 6. 10. Let Preachers therefore said Father <sup>l</sup> Laymer, strike at the root, let them not stand ticking and toying at the branches, nor at the boughes, for there will new branches spring againe; but put the axe to the root, and then all will downe. When there was a great canuasse in the Romane Senate, whether a very poore man, or an exceeding rich man should be sent Consull into Spaine; <sup>m</sup> Scipio gaue this sentence, Neuter placet, quod alter nihil habet, alteri nihil satis. Desire of money is for the most part the root of all euill, which either a man doth, or suffereth in himselfe and his posterity: for <sup>n</sup> they that will be rich fall into temptations and snares, and into many foolish and noysome lusts, which drowne men in perdition and destruction.

I who neuer had (I thanke my good God and my kinde neighbors) any quarrell in the Law before Iudge Ciuill or Ecclesiasticall, am most vsit to taxe the faults of mercenarie wits, who <sup>o</sup> speake good of euill, and euill of good; who make leges (as <sup>p</sup> Bernard said) lites, who <sup>q</sup> sell themselves to worke mischief, who haue the <sup>r</sup> ballances of deceit in their hands, and the treasures of wickednesse in their houses: and the truth is I neuer heard so much as any murmuring against the reuerend Iudges and other ministers of Iustice which vsually ride this Circuit; but that which I haue spoken out of booke Cafes, euidently shewes in these, that If Magistrates will not vnderstand and learne they walke on still in darkenesse, till all the foundations of the earth are out of course.

If Constables in their place see sturdie Vagabonds, telluris inutile pondus, the most vnworthy burden that mother earth beares, and yet will not see them: If the Wardens and other officers of the Church, hauing taken a corporall oath to the contrary, see many scandalous abuses in their Parishes, and yet will not see them: If the Iurates of an incorporation harbour schismatickes, a generation of vipers, and yet will not vnderstand them. If Iustices in their limits heare bloody Papists arguing for the trumperies of Antichrist against the Gospel of Christ, and yet will haue neither care to marke them, nor tongue to rebuke them, if they smell the very gun-powder, and yet will stop their noses and take no notice thereof. If Iudges in their circuits who come to reforme such as abuse their authoritie, heare, know, see these things, and yet wilfully remaine nescients and non intelligents: it is plaine, they walke on still in darkenesse, and proceed (as <sup>r</sup> Jeremy speakes) from euill to worse:

I need not tell you that sinne is termed often in the Scriptures a worke of darkenes in diuers respects, as being committed through the <sup>r</sup> darkenesse of our vnderstanding, and that against God which is <sup>u</sup> light, and because done for the most part in the darke, they that sleepe, sleepe in the night, and they that are drunken, are drunken in the night, 1. Thes. 5. 7. but it is called especially darkenesse, as beginning from the deuill which is the * prince of darkenesse, and ending in hell which is the <sup>x</sup> pit of darkenesse. To giue wrong iudgement, is a worke of darkenesse; accepting of persons in iudgement, is a worke of darkenesse: If you doe not defend the fatherlesse, it is a worke of darkenesse: If ye doe not see that such as are in need haue right, it is a worke of darkenesse, to forsake the poore which are out-cast, and not to saue them out of the hand of vngodly men, is a worke of darkenesse; but how great darkenesse is that in a Protestant Iustice to support Poperie, which is the kingdome of darkenesse, as being most opposite to the Gospell, which is the kingdome of light; how great darkenesse is it I say, to countenance Popery begun in darkenesse, continued in darkenesse, ending in darkenesse?

That the blinde religion of Papists is begun in darkenesse is proued not onely by Protestants out of the Scripture, but acknowledged also by themselues in their owne writings. Wee demonstrate that the kingdome of Popery was erected first ex fumo & fumo ignorantia, by the 9. Chapter of the Reuelation, I saw a starr which was fallen from heauen vnto the earth, and to him was given the key of the bottomlesse pit, and he opened the bottomlesse pit, and there arose the smoake of the pit as the smoake of a great furnace, and the Sunne and Ayre were darkened by the smoake of the pit. <sup>2</sup> Wee say that the Pope falling from heauenly doctrine to carnall and earthly wisdom, is that starre, who being Antichrist is that angel of abaddon and appollyon, a destroyer as Christ is a Saviour, and as Christ hath in his hand the key to shut vp the bottomlesse pit, Apoc. 20. 1. so the Roman Antichrist hath in his authoritie the key to open the bottomlesse pit. Now when Boniface the third, and other succeeding Popes had opened the pit, a smoke did arise like the smoke of a great furnace, and the Sunne was darkened by that smoake: by this smoake Diuines vnderstand false Doctrines, and superstitious errors crept into the Church, and so by consequent obscuring the light of the Gospell, and this Antichrist hath especially done by the darke termes, intricate phrales, idle distinctions, and vprofitable questions of his <sup>a</sup> schoole Doctors: for the Canonists, Summists, Quodlibetaries, and Sententiaries, are the foure wheelcs of the Popes Chariot, who while they thinke (as a great <sup>b</sup> Iudge said once) by the wings of their light feathered wits to mount aboue the clouds, and the leuell of the vulgar conceit, desperately fall into a sea of grosse fooleries. <sup>c</sup> That which aloes is to the lips, gall to the taste, a Cocatrice to the eyes, Carion to the nose, a naked dagger to the heart: that comfort is it to be conuersent in the base barbarismes and bald dunceries of Popish Schoolemen. I meane not to trouble your iudicious cares with unpertinent curiosities, I will insist in one point only; the Masse doubtles is the chiefe point of their deuotion, and the Canon of the Masse, is the chiefe point of the whole Masse; and the words of Consecration, hoc est Corpus meum, are the chiefe point of the Canon, he which are tumbled and tossed by their schoole so long till they bring all that Christ did and said at his last Supper vnto nothing: for so wee reade in their <sup>d</sup> glosse, that hoc doth signifie nothing; hoc is materially taken, and signifies and shewes not any thing when it is pronounced in the Consecration: <sup>e</sup> for if by this word hoc bee shew'd the bread, the speech according to their opinion is false, because the bread is not changed into the body, till all the words of the Consecration are vttered: If the

<sup>r</sup> Jerem. 9. 3.

<sup>r</sup> Ephes. 4. 18.

<sup>u</sup> 1. Iohn 1. 5.

* Ephes. 6. 12.

<sup>x</sup> Apoc. 9. 1.

<sup>y</sup> Math. 25. 30.

<sup>z</sup> See Fulke, Marlorat, Brightman in loc. & Balens in vita 10. 12.

<sup>a</sup> Aretius in Apoc. 19.

<sup>b</sup> Iudge Cooke at the arraignment of the gun-powder Traitors.

<sup>c</sup> Tho. Deant. ser. at the Spittle, An. 1570.

<sup>d</sup> Consecrat. dist. 2. § timorem. Glossa ibid.
<sup>e</sup> Ani. de Adamo anat. of the Masse, part. 2. pag. 40.

body be shewed, it would follow that the body should be there before the words are spoken, and the consecration made: their smoake doth obscure the light of Christs institution so fouly, that they make that a sacrifice which is a Sacrament, and that not without foure miracles, as some Scoolemen account, and as other, not without nine miracles.

But why labour I to proue that which themselves acknowledge? for doe they not affirme that ignorance is the mother of deuotion? a paradox, contrary to the Scriptures, and contrary to the Fathers, and contrary to common experience; contrary to the Scriptures, inciting all kinds of people to knowledge. <sup>f</sup>S. Peter calleth all Christians a royall Priesthood, and Priests ought to be learned, <sup>g</sup>S. Iohn saith out of the holy Prophet, that Christians are dociles Dei; the schollers of God. <sup>h</sup>S. Paul aduisech vs also not to be children in vnderstanding. Contrary to the Fathers; <sup>i</sup>Origen said, Demonibus est super omnia genera tormentorum, it is a torment to the deuils about the rest of their torments to see any delight in the law of the Lord, for they possesse their foules who liue in ignorance: the <sup>k</sup>same Father alway wished that he could powre all his knowledge into all kind of men. Augustine in his 105. Epistle writeth, Ignorance in those who will not vnderstand, is without all question a sinne, and in those who cannot vnderstand, a punishment of sinne. Gregory the Great protesteth as much in his Pastoral part. 1. cap. 1. Quia quae sunt Domini nesciunt, à Domino nesciuntur: and to proue this assertion, he doth alledge the words of <sup>l</sup>S. Paul, he that is ignorant, let him be ignorant stil, <sup>m</sup> that is, let him who doth affect ignorance, perish in his ignorance.

Lastly, this opinion is demonstrated in the Papiests owne persons and example to be false; for if ignorance be the mother of deuotion, how cometh it to passe that they be no more deuout, being so great ignorants? haply knowledge may hinder deuotion in their Cardinals, and Prelates, and Iesuits: as <sup>n</sup>Festus said, much learning had made Paul madde; so peradventure much learning may make them bad: and therefore let that by-word run for currant, Of all the Catholikes the Priests are the worst, and the lewdest Priests are preferred to bee Cardinals, and the baddest among the Cardinals is chosen Pope: but the common people for any light of life that they see, may become so deuout as the Friars of <sup>o</sup>S. Ignorance; yet they which haue seene the manners of Italie, complaine that the whole Countrey doth ouerflow with impudent wickednesse, and outrageous blasphemie, not to be named among Christians.

And as the kingdome of Popery begins in darkenesse, so likewise is it continued and maintained by darkenesse, for the Pope takes from the common peoples vse the Bible which is the way to Christ, and so consequently. Christ himselfe which is the way to heauen: and because the Fathers haue bene great lights of the Church, they corrupt their writings, and make them (as a iudicious <sup>q</sup>Prelate said) their owne children, may they geld the tracts of their owne Schoolemen, Historiographers, and Poets, in euery place, where any glimpse of the Gospell appeared; and which is most odious and base, they will not (as I haue heard and <sup>r</sup>read) suffer the bookes of their greatest Clerkes, Bellarmino and Gregorius de Valentia, to be sold in any shop ordinarily thorow Italy, because the positions and allegations of Protestant are set downe by them: a strange cowardlinesse not daring to see their enemies sword drawne; all their iugling is vnder the boord, he that doth enill hateth the lights, neither cometh he to the light, lest his deeds should be reprobued, Iohn 3. 20.

Lastly, the kingdome of Poperie doth end in darkenesse, for how can a Papiest, if he so die, see the way to life, who beleueth he knowes not what, and prayeth hee knowes not what, & feares he knowes not what, & worshippeth he knowes not what, whose whole religion is in the hands of feoffers; for is not this (I pray) the pith of all Popery, the people must beleue as the Priest, and the Priest as the Pope, and the Pope as he list; although he for his morals be so wicked, as Pope <sup>s</sup>Silvester the second, who for the Popedome gaue himselfe to the deuill; and for his intellectualls, such an arrant dunce, as Pope <sup>t</sup>Paul the second, who pronounced them heretikes, which once should mention either in earnest or in iest the word Academia. The Lay-man among the Papiests is Ignoramus iunior, and the Clergie-man is Ignoramus senior, and

f 1. Pet. 2. 5.

g Iohn 6. 45.

h 1. Cor. 14. 20.

i Hom. 27. in Num.

k Apud Drant ubi sup.

l 1. Cor. 14. 38.

m Arctius.

Marlorat.

n Act. 26. 24.

o Relat. of Religion. sect. 36.

p Luther in Col. de Monac.

q B. Jewel.

r Relat. of Religion. § 35.

s Palatina in eius vita.

t Plat. &amp; Baleus in eius vita and so the wilfully blinde leading the wofully blinde, both if they walke on still in darknesse fall iuro the ditch.

<sup>u</sup> Procopius reports, that nere to the pole, where the night endure many moneths long, the inhabitants in the end of such a night, when the Sunne vseth to render himselfe to their view, get vp their highest mountaines, struing to haue the first sight of that most desired creature, and so no sooner doe they espie it; but they decke themselves in their best apparell, and with mutuall embraces and loy congratulate, saying, Behold the Sunne, the Sunne appeareth. And <sup>x</sup> Pimenta writes that the Barbarians of Ciand-gri in the East Indies, seeing the Sunne eclipsed anno 1600. did fast and weepe all the day, crying out, O nis miseris quoniam Draco deuorauit solem. My deare brethren and bowels in the Lord, The Sunne of righteousnesse hath appeared in our English horizon a great while; (his blessed name be praised therefore) we haue long enjoyed the glorious light of his Gospell, it is the day which the Lord hath made, let vs in despite of spirituall Egypt and Babel reioyce and be glad in it. But there be certaine Prognosticators in the world, who talke much of strange coniunctions in heauen among the higher powers and planets, and vpon these coniunctions of a dangerous eclipse, as if the <sup>z</sup> red Dragon had already deuoured our Sunne. Wherein I verily beleue, they shew themselves as great wixards, as the country lad, who watering his Ass when the Moore was going vnder a cloud, presently conceiued that his beast had drunken vp the Moone. Whatsoeuer England feares, or Rome hopes, let euery good subiect and true Christian in his place, while it is <sup>a</sup> day, follow the light, and in loyall obedience to soueraigne authoritie, so much as he can, oppose the workes of darknesse, vnderstanding and seeking the things appertaining to his peace, lest otherwise that follow which here followeth in our text to be considered, all the foundations of the earth are out of course.

By this clause some <sup>b</sup> Diuines vnderstand the dissolution and end of all things at the last day, when as the powers of <sup>c</sup> heauen shall be shaken, and the elements shall melt with heat, and the earth with the workes that are therein shall be burnt vp, as S. Peter 2 Epist. cap. 3. vers. 10.

<sup>d</sup> Other haue construed this of earth-quakes, inundations, raging fires, and of warre, famine, pestilence, which afflict the dwellers vpon earth for iniustice. For if all punishment be for sinne, and if all sinne be rise because Gods lawes are not executed, it is plaine, that where Iudges will not vnderstand, but walke on still in darknes, there all the foundations of the Common-wealth are out of course.

<sup>e</sup> Other by foundations vnderstand the Princes and Iudges themselves, as bearing vp, Atlas-like, the whole frame of the kingdome, according to that in the 6 of Mica. vers. 2. Heare O ye mountaines the Lords quarrell, and ye mightie foundations of the earth: <sup>f</sup> that is, ye Rulers, vpon whose iudgement and wisdome the people build their estates, and relie themselves as vpon a sure foundation. So Ioseph a man of <sup>g</sup> vnderstanding and wisdome, being made <sup>h</sup> Lord of Pharaohs house, and ruler of all his substance, was a pillar to support the kingdome of Egypt: so <sup>i</sup> Naaman, a mightie man and valiant, was a pillar to support the kingdome of Syria: so Fabius maximus, aptly stiled by <sup>k</sup> Plutarch, the buckler of his countrey, was a pillar to support the Romane Empire. The meaning then is plaine, <sup>l</sup> they who should establish other are themselves vsfeted.

<sup>m</sup> Other expound it thus: I will ouerthrow those wicked Iudges, who will not vnderstand, because they place their foundation not as they should in heauen but on earth, they build their house vpon <sup>n</sup> sand, and not vpon Christ, which is the <sup>o</sup> rocke.

But <sup>p</sup> most Interpreters accord in this exposition: All fundamentall lawes, all laudable customes, all good orders (vpon which humane societies are built, as vpon certaine bases) are violated, disturbed, and come to ruine by corrupt iudgement and iniustice. Nay through vnrighteous dealing and wrongs, and riches gotten by deceit, the kingdome is translated from one people to another, Eccles. 19. 8.

Iudges then are right <sup>q</sup> Athenians: Siboni, optimi; si mali, pessimi: like to <sup>r</sup> Jeremies figs, the good figs very good, and the naughty figs exceeding naughty. Where they u Arch. of Spal. lat. ser. on Rom. 22. 13. 24. 13.

x Ep. ad Claud. Aqua-viuam de statu rei. Christ. apud Indos Orientales.

y Psal. 118. 14.

z Apoc. 12. 3.

a Iohn 9. 4.

b Placidus Parmen. in loc. c Luke 21. 26.

d Agel. in loc.

e Tileman in loc. Idem refert Genebrardus.

f Rupert. Riber. Franc. 2 Mes. Jan.

g Gen. 41. 39.

h Psal. 105. 21.

i 1 King. 5. 1.

k In vita Marcelli.

l Em. Sa. in loc.

m Hierom.

n Math 7. 26.

o 1 Cor 10. 4.

p Basil.

buccr.

Genebrard. in loc.

loc.

q Plutarch.

r Jerem. 24. 3.

f Psal. 125. 1.

t 1. Tim. 2. 2.

u Rom. 13. 4.

x Rom. 1. 16.

y Psal. 9. 10.

z Tremel. in loc.

they be good, all the foundations of the State stand so fast, as the Mount Sion: where they be corrupt, all things come to nought and vtter ruine. Let vs pray then, I beseech you, for Kings, and for all that are in authoritie, that we may lead vnder them a quiet and a peaceable life in all godlinesse and honestie. Magistrates are the ministers of God for our good, namely, for our temporall good, and for our spirituall good, and so by consequent for our eternall good: Our temporall good consists in a quiet and a peaceable life, our spirituall good in godlinesse and honestie. Magistrates are called to be Iustices of the peace for our temporall good, and defenders of the faith for our spirituall good, and so they be ministers and instruments of God for our eternall good. For the Gospell is the power of God vnto saluation, in the holy writ termed often the kingdome of heauen, as being the way to the kingdome of heauen.

Arise then, O God, and let vngodly Iudges know that they be but men, and that they must one day die like men, and that not after an ordinarie manner, but fall like one of the Princes, as Nebuchadnezar fell, Esay 14. but arise Lord to stand in the congregation of good Princes, assisting them alway with thy might and mercy, that after we haue led vnder them here the ciuill life of peace. and the spirituall life of grace, we may liue with thee which art the King of Kings, in that eternall life of glory, where in thy presence is fulnesse of ioyes, and pleasures at thy right hand for euermore. Amen.

Preached at Maydstone Assises, July 16. 1618.

The

The royall Priesthood.

I. PETER. 2. 5.

Yee are an holy Priesthood to offer vp Spirituall sacrifices acceptable to God by Iesus Christ.

IN this excellent Scripture, two points are to bee discussed especially.

1. Who be Priests, Yee, that is, all yee that are new-borne babes in Christ, and desire the sincere milke of the word to grow thereby, verse 2.

2. How they bee Priests, and that is in offering spirituall sacrifice acceptable to God by Iesus Christ.

Concerning the first, all true Christians, hauing laid aside maliciousnesse, guile, dissimulation, enuy, euill-speaking, and as new-borne babes, employing themselues wholly to serue God, offering vp all their actions as an acceptable sacrifice to him, are Priests, and all are Priests alike, because now there is none other sacrificing Priesthood left, but the eternall Priesthood of Christ, and the spirituall Priesthood of all his Saints. This honour of Christians is foretold by the Prophe<sup>b</sup> Esay, Yee shall be named the Priests of the Lord, and men shall say to you, ministers of our God. And in <sup>c</sup>another place, I will take of them for Priests and Levites, saith the Lord. <sup>d</sup>As if hee should say, whereas vnder the law none were Gods people but the <sup>e</sup>Jewes, and no Jewes Priests vnto God, but onely the sonnes of <sup>f</sup>Aaron, vnder Christ all men are receiued indifferently; the Gentiles heretofore reiected as vncléane, & not admitted once to enter into the Temple, are now not onely brought into that holy place, but also made Priests of the most high God. So S. Iohn in his <sup>h</sup>Reuelation expressly, Kings and Priests vnto God: not onely spirituall houses of God, or liuely stones of his temple, but a Priesthood also, and that an holy Priesthood.

1. This abundantly confutes the <sup>i</sup>Popes Clergie, who terme themselues onely the holy Priesthood, and all the rest of Gods people the prophane Laitie. These Popelings are not the successors of Saint Peter in his doctrine, nor yet in his doings. For as he taught here the contrary, so likewise Acts 10. hee wrought the contrarie, saying vnto Cornelius, God shewed me, that I should not call any man common or vncléane.

2. This doctrine crosseth a base conceit the world hath of the word Priest. Our blessed Sauiour himselfe was a <sup>k</sup>Priest, and a Priest for euer; and all that will be saued mult also turne Priests, and become brethren of the Spiritualitie, for the whole number of Gods elect is nothing else but a kindome of Priests.

Nnnn

3. This a Dr. Fulke in Apoc. 1. 6.

b Esay 61. 6.

c Esay 66. 21.

d Caluin, in loc.

e Deut. 7. 6.

f Exod. 28. 1.

g Acts 21. 28.

h Cap. 1. 6. & 5. 10.

i Marlorat. in loc.

k Psal. 110. 4.

3. This epithite holy ioyned to Priesthood, teacheth all men in holy orders to be studious of good workes, that their holy cariage may be correspondent to their holy calling. If all Christians ought to be pious, how much more Preachers of the word, which as Pastors, ought to be patternes in purenesse, 1. Tim. 4. 12. About the skirts of Aarons robe there were set, and that by Gods appointment, <sup>l</sup> a bell and a pomegranet, <sup>m</sup> hereby signifying mystically, that the pious deeds of a Diuine, should alwayes answer to his pure doctrine; by the bell of gold, vnderstanding the sound of his sweet preaching; by the pomegranet, the foundnesse, and fruit of his good liuing. If gold rust, what will iron doe? If the shepherd be foule, no wonder if the sheepe bee scabbie. Let vs therefore continue that prayer in our Liturgie, Lord endue thy Ministers with righteousnesse, and so make thy chosen people ioyfull.

4. This ouerthrowes a wicked opinion in the world, that holinesse onely belongs to the Clergie. Marshall Biron said, that he would not die like a Priest: and so the gallants of our age say, that they will not liue like Priests. <sup>n</sup> O yee sonnes of men, how long will yee blaspheme Gods honour; taking such pleasure in vanities, and seeking after leasings? Is not your calling holy? called to bee Saints, Rom. 1. 7. and ought not your conuersation also to be holy? seeing this is the will of God, euen your sanctification, 1. Thes. 4. 3. Is not one day spent in the courts of the Lord, better than a thousand in the tents of vngodlinesse? better in respect of profit, because <sup>p</sup> godlinesse is great gain, hauing the promise both of the life present, and of the life to come: better in respect of pleasure, because the ioyes of worldlings are bitter sweets, <sup>r</sup> euen in laughing the heart is sorrowfull, and the end of such mirth is heavinesse. But the ioyes of good men are sound and sure ioyes of the soule; ioyes in the Holy Ghost, a continuall feast, a comfort that none can take away: better in respect of honour, for whereas earthly Princes can make their chiefe favorite but a Duke, Christ our Lord, which is the Lord of glory, maketh his seruants Kings and Priests vnto God, which are the two most eminent and honourable callings vpon earth.

But how Christians are Priests, is now to bee discussed in the second place, because some Schismatickes haue factiously gathered from hence, that all Gods people may preach the word, administer the Sacraments, and pel-mel execute the Ministers office without any controll. A very scandalous and erroneous obseruation.

For first (as the Geneua margine directes) our text is taken out of Exod. 19. 6. where Moses doth ascribe that vnto the Iewes, which S. Peter here to Christians: but among Gods people the Iewes, all were not Priests, but onely the Tribe of Leui, and so consequently not all men among Christians are Preachers; but onely such as are lawfully called vnto that holy function.

2. Christians are Priests as they are Kings, for Saint Peter, and Saint Iohn ioyne both these together. But all Christians are not Kings to gouerne the ciuill affaires of the State, no more are they Priests to performe ecclesiasticall offices of the Church. <sup>u</sup> Brightman (though exceeding factious in many glosses) obserued this one thing worthily, that the Spirit, Reuel. 1. 6. calleth vs caurelously Kings, and Priests vnto God; he said not Kings and Priests vnto the world, but vnto God only, lest other wise we might abuse this honour, to disturbe ciuill offices, and confound ecclesiasticall orders. A good Christian is a King, because God reigneth in him, and because by Gods especiall grace, he suffers not sinne to y reigne in his members. In like manner, a good Christian is a Priest, as offering vp all his actions, and all his passions, an acceptable sacrifice to God. <sup>v</sup> But the spirituall kingdome, and priesthood of Gods children, take away neither earthly kingdomes of the world, nor ecclesiasticall eldership of the Church.

We must therefore distinguish here necessarily: there be <sup>w</sup> sacrificing Priests; and there be preaching Priests. All Christians are sacrificing Priests, but all Christians are not preaching Priests. For 1. the word vsed by S. Peter, and S. Iohn is ispeis, and not apocúnesi. Now the word <sup>b</sup> ispeis, that is, sacrificers, is neuer applyed in the New Testament vnto any Clericall Order, and Ecclesiasticall Function of men.

They

1 Exod. 39. 26.

n Psal. 4. 2.

o Psal. 84. 10.

p 1. Tim. 6. 6.

q 1. Tim. 4. 8.

r Prou. 14. 13.

s 1. Cor. 2. 8.

t See Bellar. li. de sacramentis in genere, cap. 24.

u In Apoc. 1. 6. x See respon. Elien. ad apolog. Bellarm. cap. 9. pag. 221.

y Rom. 6. 12. z Dr. Fulke in Apocyp. 1. 6. Ita Pet. Mart. loc. com. part. 4. cap. 1. sec. 17.

a Dr. Fulke in loc. b Dr. Fulke in Apoc. 1. 6. Idem Pet. Mart. loc. com. part. 4. cap. 12. sect. 15.

They be called <sup>c</sup> Episcopi, <sup>d</sup> Ministri, <sup>e</sup> Præpositi, <sup>f</sup> Pastores, Doctores, that is, Ouer-seers, Ministers, Governours, Teachers, and most commonly Presbyters, that is, Elders; and a Preacher of the Gospell is termed in English a Priest; not of the word sacrisculus, or sacerdos, but (as our & Diuines haue well obserued) of the word Presbyter; for a <sup>h</sup> Presbyter; according to the proper meaning of the New Testament, is hee to whom our Sauiour Christ hath communicated the power of spirituall procreation. For what are they that embrace the Gospell but sonnes of God? And what are Churches but his families? ergo, what better title could there be giuen to the Preachers of the word (by whose ministerie men are made the children of God, and members of his Church) than the reuerend name of Presbyters, or fatherly guides?

2. S. Peter in this text thus expoundeth himselfe, Ye are an holy Priesthood, not in administering the Sacraments, or in uttering spirituall doctrine, but in offering spirituall sacrifices.

3. We say, that to bee Christians is a generall calling, but to bee set apart for the preaching of the Gospell, is a particular calling: and as S. Paul said of the Iewish priesthood, No man ought to take this honour vnto himselfe, but he that is called of God, Hebr. 5. 4. that is, ordained according to Gods appointment. It is not lawfull (as <sup>k</sup> our Church determineth) for any man to take vpon him the office of publike preaching, or ministring the Sacraments in the congregation, vlesse he be lawfully called or sent to execute the same. False Prophets (as <sup>l</sup> our Sauiour said) come vnto you, <sup>m</sup> that is, being neither sent of God, and orderly called of men: but they runne of their owne heads alway without commission from heauen, and sometime without ordination on earth. I haue not sent these Prophets, saith the Lord, yet they runne: I haue not spoken vnto them, and yet they prophesied, Ierem. 23. 21.

Haply some will obiect, God in old time called his Prophets and Apostles immediately, furnishing them also with gifts extraordinarie. But how shall a man in our time know whether hee be called of God or no? To this obiection answer may be, that Christians Vniuersities, and Schooles of learning are the nurseries of the Church, <sup>n</sup> they bee the honourable women attending the Queene, mentioned in Psalm. 45. verie. 10. Whosoever then is bred in the Schooles of the Prophets, and brought vp in the nurseries of the Apostles, vntill his <sup>o</sup> lips preserue knowledge, and his tongue be well able to <sup>p</sup> minister a word in due season; albeit hee haue no calling from God extraordinarily, yet he may perswade his conscience that he is διδάκτικός, apt to teach, 1. Tim. 3. 2.

Yea, but many learned men instantly turne Priests, and prophesie without any farther warrant: No; sufficiencie of good learning is one, but not the onely note of our inward calling: for the man of God, as he must be for his doctrine a Pastor; so for his conuersion an example. May then euery sufficient scholler of a commendable life; climb the Pulpit and preach the word? No, for as there is an inward calling from God, so likewise an outward calling by men, as Timothie was ordered by laying on of hands; 1. Tim. 4. 14. and Saint Paul bid <sup>r</sup> Titus ordaine Bishops in euery Citie; and the blessed Apostles ordered Elders in euery Church, Acts 14. 23. And those wee may iudge <sup>s</sup> lawfully called and sent, which are chosen to this worke by such as haue publike authoritie giuen vnto them in the congregation, to call and send labourers into the Lords vineyard; as the Bishops of Ephesus ordered by men, are said expressly to bee placed in that high calling by the blessed Spirit. Acts 20. 28. Take heed to your selues, and to the whole flocke, whereof the Holy Ghost hath made you ouer-seers, As my Father sent mee, so send I you, (saith our blessed Sauiour to his Apostles) John 20. 21. <sup>t</sup> That is to say, as the Father hath giuen mee power to send you; so I giue you power to send othee, and to giue them likewise the same missiue power which I giue vnto you, and my Father hath giuen to me. Whosoever then intrudes himselfe into the Ministers office, without a calling according to Gods ordinance; commits <sup>u</sup> Uzzaes fault, and that which is worse, runnes into Cores faction, obiecting to Moses and Aaron, <sup>x</sup> Ye take to much vpon you, seeing all the congregation is holy, and the Lord is in them, wherefore

c Acts 2. 28.
d 1. Cor. 4. 1.
e Heb. 12. 7.
f Ephes. 4. 11.
g See Dr. whigste defence of his answer to the admonition, pag. 721.
h Hooker eccles. polit. lib. 5. sect. 78.

i See Perkins Treatise of Callings.

k Confess. art. 23.

l Math. 7. 15.
m Musculus in loc.

n Tileman. in Psalm. 45.

o Malac. 2. 7.

p Esay 50. 4.

q 1. Tim. 4. 12.

r Tit. 1. 5.

s Confess. Anglican. art. 23.

t Marcus Antonius de Doro. treatise of rocks of Christian shipwrecke, pag. 18.

u 2. Sam. 6. 6.

x Num. 16. 3.

then extoll ye yourselues above the multitude. Let the sacrilegious schismatikes take heed, God is not mocked, every true Christian is a sacrificing Priett, but no Christian ought to make himselfe a preaching Priett, vnlesse he be lawfully called to that high, and holy function.

Now concerning such as are sacrificing Priests, it is plaine that there bee 7 two kinde of sacrifices, to wit, a propitiatorie sacrifice, and a gratulatorie sacrifice. There be two kinde of propitiatorie sacrifices, one typicall, as all the sacrifices of the Aaronicall Priesthood: another reall, as that of Christ vpon the Crosse. The sacrifices of Aaron vnder the Law were shadowes of good things to come, Heb 10.1. and therefore now they bee ceased; and Christs offering vp of himselfe once for all is so perfect, that it needes not to bee repeated againe. For the Masse (which is either a continuation, or a reiteration of Christs oblation) is a most inurious enemie to the Priesthood of Christ, as if he were not a Priett for<sup>r</sup> euer, and his sacrifice not meriting<sup>r</sup> eternall redemption for vs. If then Aarons sacrifices in figure haue had long since their end, and Christ offering once for all in fact vpon the altar of his Crosse, continue for euer without end, it cannot bee said properly that Christians offer any sacrifice propitiatorie to God, either for themselves or for other, but on the contrarie, that they receiue this sacrifice by faith, as the blessed Apostle direct'y, Wee are freely iustified and reconciled vnto God by faith in Christs blood, Rom. 3.25

It remaines therefore, that Christians are sacrificers as offering gratulatory sacrifices onely; so they be Priests

In respect of their } Vnction and ordination, made an holy priesthoode by Iesus Christ.
Function and ministracion, offering vp spirituall sacrifices vnto God.

It is Christ that appointeth, and anointeth vs Priests vnto God: so S. Iohn, Apoc. 1. 5. Christ Iesus who loued vs and washed vs from our sinnes, hath made vs Kings and Priests. And so S. Peter in our present text, for the clause, by Iesus Christ, hath a reference to<sup>b</sup> euery title which is here giuen vnto Christians, as, ye are liuely stones by Iesus Christ, a spirituall house by Iesus Christ, an holy Priesthoode by Iesus Christ.

It was<sup>c</sup> Aerius heresie, that a Bishop is not greater than a Priett; and it is a schismaticall opinion, in the iudgement of our Church, to say, that one Priett may consecrate another. <sup>d</sup> Ordination of Ministers is a dutie properly belonging to Bishops, as being superiour to Presbyters in iurisdiction and order: and therefore that Christians might orderly be made Priests, it pleased Christ Iesus himselfe, which is<sup>e</sup> high Priett, and chiefe<sup>f</sup> Bishop of our Soules, to consecrate vs vnto Gods holy seruice. We make not one another, but he maketh vs all an holy Priesthoode. If any question our orders and authoritie, we can here produce the great Lord Archbishops letters and licence recorded in his owne register.

Now (beloued) as<sup>g</sup> S. Paul exhorts, let euery man continue in the same calling wherein he was called, <sup>h</sup> let him that is called to teach, attend his teaching, and he that exhorteth attend his exhortation, and he that is called to the ministerie, wait on his ministerie, and so let him which is a Priett alway serue God at his Altar. In Priesthoode (as the Schoole teacheth vs) there remaineth an indeleble character: and (as<sup>i</sup> other Diuines well obserue) they which haue receiued this power, may not thinke to put it off and on like a cloake, as the weather serueth, and so to take, reiect, and resume it as often as they list, but let them know which put their hands to this plow, that once consecrated to God, they are made his peculiar inheritance for euer, once Priests and for euer Priests. As<sup>k</sup> Oecumenius said, Our whole life should be nothing else but a continuall Sermon. And as<sup>l</sup> Melancthon, A perpetuall eucharist, and gratulatorie sacrifice. For that is our ministerie, to present, and offer vnto God spirituall sacrifice.

Wherein obserue three points especially.

1. What we must offer, spirituall sacrifice.

y See Melanct.
tom. 2. pag. 95.
& tom. 4. pag.
514. & in Psal.
116.

z Psal 110. 4.

a Heb. 9. 12.

b See Aquin.
& Marlowat. in
loc.

c Augustin. lib.
de heres. cap. 53.
& Epiphanius
heres. 75.

d See Whitgift defence of his answer to the admonition,
pag. 196. 358. &
Bellarm. lib. de Clericis, cap. 14.

e Hebr. 5. 10.

f 1. Pet. 2. 25.

g 1. Cor. 7. 20.

h Rom. 12. 7.

i Hooker eccles.
polit. lib. 5. sect.
77.

k Apud Bellar. de sacramentis
in genere, lib. 1.
cap. 25.
l In Psal. 116.

2. To whom, to God.

3. Through whom, by Iesus Christ.

Concerning the first, there be three kinds of gratulatorie sacrifices, according to the three sorts of goods; wherewith Almighty God hath endued vs,

To wit, of the } World.
 Minde.
 Bodie.

1. Wee must honour God with our riches, in maintaining his Ministers, of whom he saith he that receiveth you receiveth me, Math. 10. 40. and in doing good to the rest of his members, of whom hee saith, Insomuch as yee haue done this to the least of my brethren, ye haue done it vnto me, Math. 25. 40. Our blessed Lord confesseth openly, that hee will haue mercy not sacrifice, delighting in the one more than in the other; more for the dutie, more for the durance, more both in respect of the thing, and in respect of the time. For whereas legall sacrifices haue now their end; spirituall sacrifices of Christians are to continue to the worlds end. Wee shall alway haue the poore with vs, and so consequently wee shall haue iust occasion of exercising our Almes, and with such sacrifices God is pleased, Hebr. 13. 16.

m Pror. 3. 9.

n Matth. 9. 13.

o Ioh. 12. 8.

2. We must offer vnto God the goods of our minde by deuotion, and contrition: Psalm. 51. 17. The sacrifice of God is a troubled spirit, a broken and a contrite heart, O God, shalt thou not despise. The Prophet said in the words immediately going before, thou desirest no sacrifice: wherupon P Augustine, God will haue no sacrifice, yet he will haue sacrifice: Non vult sacrificium trucidati pecoris, sed vult sacrificium contriti pectoris; He cares not for the dead flesh of vnreasonable beasts, but he requires the quicke and liuing sacrifice of reasonable men.

p De Ciuit. Dei,
lib. 10. cap. 5.

3. We must offer vnto God the goods of our bodie, which is done two wayes:

1. Patiendo, by suffering for him.

2. Faciendo, by doing that which is acceptable to him. I beseech you (quoth P Paul) by the mercies of God, that yee giue your bodies, a liuing sacrifice, holy, pleasing vnto God, making your members not as weapons of vnrighteousnesse vnto sinne, but as the weapons of righteousness vnto God, Rom. 6. 13. Our bodies are the temples of God, consecrated to his honour, and therefore wee may not abuse them and prophane them, in making them either dens of theeuces, or habitations of deuils; or cages of vnclane birds, or holds of foule spirits: as Christ gaue himselfe for vs, so wee must offer vp vnto him our selues, and soules, and bodies, all that is within vs, and without vs, and that perpetually, that we may liue to him who died for vs.

q Rom. 12. 1.

r Matth. 21. 13.
f Apoc. 18. 2.

The word spirituall is emphaticall in our text, for whereas the Iewish offerings were carnall, our sacrifices of prayer and thankesgiuing are spirituall, and that respectu termini à quo, as proceeding from Gods Spirit; and respectu termini ad quem, as edifying and comforting our spirits. Or Christian oblations are called spirituall, as being the workes of the spirituall and inner man: for (as one well obserued) the soule of obedience which is the obedience of the soule, takes place of that body of obedience, which is performed by the bodie. We must offer sacrifice, but spirituall; and that (as now followes to be considered) vnto God.

t Aquin. in loc.
u Purchas in his pilgrimage
pag. 18.

He that giues an almes to the poore must offer it vnto God, as one pithily, tantumquam homo non tantumquam homini, because the poore mans boxe is Christs hand. So he that offers the sacrifice of prayer and praise, must offer not vnto the world to be commended of men, but vnto God, who seeing in secret will openly reward him; and he that offers the sacrifice of righteousness, must offer vnto God, and not vnto himselfe, that hee may glorifie his Father in heauen, and renounce his owne proper inherent righteousness. And he that giues his body to be burnt, must offer vnto God, and not to vaine-glory: for it is not the crosse but the cause that maketh a Martyr. In a word, whatsoever a man either doth, or saith, or suffereth, hee must offer it vnto God, that he whogiueeth all may be glorified in all.

x Gellius lib. 9.
cap. 2.

y Matth. 6. 6.

z Psal. 45.

Away then with oblations vnto the pictures of Christ, away with offerings vnto the shrines of Saints, away with all idolatrous adoration of images, the which as being the workes of our owne hands, and inuentions of our owne heads, are the sacri- fices of afooles, and in no sort become those which as new borne babes in Christ desire the sincere milke of the word to grow thereby. The seruices of the royall Priesthood are spirituall sacrifices offered only to God, not by the meanes of any Saint, but by the sole mediation of Christ Iesus, who saith in his <sup>b</sup> Gospell, and after a sort sweareth (as <sup>c</sup> Augustine is bold to speake) verily, verily, whatsoeuer yee shall aske the Father in my name hee will giue it you. With <sup>d</sup> faith in him our best actions are no better than <sup>d</sup> sinne: but if our workes be dyed in his blood, and our sacrifices laid vpon his Altar, then as S. Peter teacheth here, they will be pleasing and acceptable vnto God.

by Iesus X<sup>t</sup>.

SALVE

SALVE FOR A SICKE SOVLE.

I. TIM. I. 15.

This is a true saying, and by all meanes worthy to be received, that Christ Iesus came into the world to saue sinners, of which I am chiefe.

LECTURE I.

ALL our happinesse consisteth in the knowledge of God, and God maketh himselfe especially knowne in his word, and the summarie pith of all his word is the Gospell, and the very centre of all the Gospell is this one sweet sentence, Christ Iesus came into the world to saue sinners. The which our Apostle doth here first amplifie, calling it a true saying and a worthy: then apply, of whom I am chiefe. So that in the whole text three points are principally remarkable.

1. A preface, This is a true saying, and by all meanes worthy to be received.
2. A proposition, Christ Iesus came into the world to saue sinners.
3. An assumption, or application, of whom I am chiefe.

The preface is double, commending vnto our consideration and care, first the soundnesse of this saying, it is true: secondly, the sweetnesse of this saying, it is worthy to be reueled by all meanes, or (as our new translation readeth) it is worthy of all acceptation. Nothing is deliuered more truly, nothing embraced more comfortably, in it selfe it is faithfull, vnto vs it is fruitfull, <sup>a</sup> Euery true saying is not acceptable, to <sup>b</sup> S. Paul insinuates vnto the Galatians, Am I therefore become your enemy, because I tell you the truth? but these words are not only faithfull and true, as <sup>c</sup> S. Iohn auowed of his Apocalips: but also good words and comfortable words, as <sup>d</sup> Zechariah speakes of his prophecie: pleasing to the vnderstanding, as being a true saying; and pleasing to the will, as being an acceptable saying.

For the first, it is assuredly true, becaule Truth it selfe said it, Mat. 9. 13. Mark. 2. 17. I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance. This often was his word, and this alway was his worke. For as <sup>e</sup> Ambrose pithily, Pro me, & in me doluit, qui pro se nihil habuit quod doleret. He cryed in the cradle, not for himselfe, but for vs: he wept a great many times in his life, not for himselfe, but for vs: hee did endure many bitter words, and more bitter wounds at his death, not for himselfe, but for vs. In a word, all that he did, all that he said, all that he suffered, all his obedience both actiue and passiue, tended only s to seeke and to saue that which was lost: he was wounded

<sup>a</sup> Aquin. in loc.

<sup>b</sup> Galat. 4. 16.

<sup>c</sup> Apoc. 22. 6.

<sup>d</sup> Zech. 1. 13.

<sup>e</sup> Caiet. in loc.

<sup>f</sup> De fide ad
Grat. li. 2. ca. 3.

<sup>g</sup> Luke 19. 10.

wounded for our transgressions, and broken for our iniquities, and by his stripes are we healed, Esay 53.5. If the sacrifices of the Law be true, if the Sacraments of the Gospell be true, if the predictions of the holy Prophets be true, if the preachings of the blessed Apollles be true, if Christ himselfe, yea God himselfe, bee true; then vndoubtedly this saying is true, that Iesus Christ came into the world to saue sinners.

As it is a sure saying in it selfe, so worthy to be receiued of vs, and that in respect of it owne selfe as<sup>h</sup> being truth; and in respect of our selues, as concerning that which about all other things concerneth vs most, euen the sauing of our soules. It is a conclusion of antiquitie, that the death of Christ is in it selfe sufficient to redeeme the finnes of the whole world, yea of as many worlds as there be men in the world: but it is not efficient vnto any, but only to such as by faith apprehend it, Hee that beleeueth in him (as the<sup>i</sup> text telleth vs expressly) shall not perish, he that<sup>k</sup> commeth vnto him, in his agony groaning vnder the burden of his sin, shall be refreshed. It is true that Gods mercie is the salve of our misery, but a medicine neither heales nor helpes, vntill it be well applyed. Albeit Iesus be the God of our<sup>l</sup> saluation, our<sup>m</sup> righteousnesse, our sanctification and redemption, 1. Cor. 1.30. yet Iesus is no Iesus vnto vs, except faiths hand<sup>n</sup> put on Christ and his<sup>o</sup> garment of holinesse to p<sup>r</sup>couer all your vnrighteousnesse. This saying then ought to be receiued, and that as Paul here, by all means.

Now the meanes are principally two, namely, the sacred Word, and the blessed Sacraments. For the Scriptures are our euidences, and the Sacraments are the seales of this assurance. Search the word diligently, for that witnesseth of him; and come to his boord frequently, for there we may taste and see what he did for vs, and that he died for vs. The powring out of the wine liuely representing the shedding of his precious blood, and the breaking of the bread liuely representing the renting of his bodie for our sake, for our sinne.

This preface then (as<sup>r</sup> Caluin obserues) is like the sounding of a trumpet before the publication of some notable thing, to stirre vp the better audience, that wee may not onely here, but heed also what is said. Well, the trumpet hath sounded, hearken attentiuely now to that which is here proclaimed by the Spirit of God: It is a generall pardon, Christ Iesus came into the world to saue sinners: and a particular application of this pardon, of whom I am chiefe.

Concerning the generall pardon and proposition, it is a demonstration of Gods vnspokeable loue towards man-kinde. So the text, Ioh. 3. 16. God so loued the world. How much his<sup>so</sup> was, albeit I could speake with the tongues of men and Angels; I were not able to report. But there be three degrees of loue in Gods sending, and in Christs coming into the world.

1. It was great loue that made him come into the world, great loue that made him breake the heauens, and so come from the bosome of his Father into the wombe of his mother, great loue that made him who thundred in the clouds and had heauen for his throne, to be swaddled in clouts, and to be crowded in a cratch.

2. Greater loue that he came into the world not onely to see, but also to saue, to visit and redeeme, as Zecharse sings in his hymne.

3. Greatest and highest loue that he came to saue, not the righteous, but sinners, and towards notorious and chiefe sinners, euen such as the Publicans; and the woman taken in adulterie. Doubtlesse one will scarce die for a righteous man: but yet for a good man it may be (saith our<sup>u</sup> Apostle) that one dare die: but God setteth out his loue toward vs, seeing that while we were yet sinners and enemies, Christ died for vs. He was<sup>x</sup> borne for vs, he<sup>y</sup> liued for vs, hee<sup>z</sup> gaue himselfe to death for vs, hee did<sup>a</sup> arise from the dead againe for vs, he did<sup>b</sup> ascend for vs, and now sitting at the right hand of God the Father in the heauen of heauens, hee pleads as an<sup>c</sup> Intercessor and Aduocate for vs. Except Christ forget his name, Iesus, Emmanuel; except he forget his nature, being flesh of our flesh, and so consequently<sup>d</sup> touched with the feeling of our infirmities: except he forget his office, being our annointed King to gouerne vs, our annointed Prophet to teach vs, our annointed Priest who did suffer and offer vp himselfe for our finnes: except he forget his owne selfe, and his owne ends for which he came into the world, he cannot but saue sinners, euen those which acknowledge themselves h *Arctius.*i Iob. 3. 16.

k *Math. 11. 28.*l Psal. 25. 4.
m *Ierem. 23. 6.*n Rom. 13. 14.
o Psal. 45. 10.
p *Psal. 32. 1.*q *Ioh. 5. 39.*r *In loc.*s *Esay 64. 1.*t *Arctius in loc.*u *Rom. 5. 7. 8.*x Esay. 9. 6.
y Math. 11. 29.
z Ephes. 5. 2.
a Rom. 4. 25.
b Ephes. 4. 8.
c 1. Ioh. 2. 1.
d Heb. 4. 15.

themselves the first and the worst of all sinners. This one point is the consolation of Israel, and the comfort of Hierusalem at the verie heart, The materiall crosse of Christ, in fashion and figure, resembleth a key, and the Gospell of Christs crosse, like the key of David mentioned Esay 22. 22. openeth and no man shutteth, and againe shutteth and no man openeth, it locketh vp the mouth of hell from vs, and openeth heauens cuerlasting gates vnto vs. Doubt not of this Doctrine, for it is true: reiect it not, for it is worthy to be receined.

In S. Pauls assumption, or particular application of this generall pardon, obserue two points especially:

The } G } icuousnesse of his fault.
Greatnesse of his faith.

Whereas our Apostle saith of himselfe (quorum ego primus) If read of certaine heretickes, who fondly conceited that the soule of the first transgressour Adam was in Pauls bodie. But this absurd opinion is contrary to the text, affirming plainly that every man hath a soule of his owne, the which in his dying houre returns to God who gaue it, as the body returns to dust, Ecclesiastes 12. 7. Expositors therefore by primus, vnderstand not the first in order, but the worst in disorder, primus non temporis ordine, sed iniquitatis magnitudine, the first, that is, the greatest, or as our translation expresseth it aptly, the chiefe. This open confession of Paul is very modest, and yet very true. Modest, acknowledging not onely that he was a sinner, as the Publican: or a great sinner, as all true penitents are ready to confesse: but yet further the prime sinner of all those which are to be saued. Speaking of his worth, he saith elsewhere, that he was the least of all the Apostles, 1. Cor. 15. 9. yea the least of all the Saints, Ephes. 3. 8. but here speaking of his wants, he puts himselfe among the chiefe malefactors, as if he should haue said, I am among Saints a minime, but among sinners a monster, primus peccatorum, ultimus Apostolorum.

This example may teach vs not to bee too conceited of our owne merits and excellencie, but for as much as we know more follies of our selues then of other, wee should thinke worse of our selues then of other, in giuing 'honour, going one before another.

And assuredly whosoever is humbled truly for all his offences committed against God and man, in thought, in word, in deed, shall vpon a diligent inquirie finde himselfe the chiefe sinner of all the creatures in heauen, in earth, in hell. The poore Publican examining his owne conscience, would not lift vp his eyes to heauen: if we will and dare, we shall in the lower heauen or airie, see haile, snow, raine, thunder, lightning, winde and storme, fulfilling the word of God, and so consequently that they be farre better in their kinde than our selues.

If we looke into the starrie heauen, it will appeare that the Sun reioyceth as a giant to run his course, Psal. 16. 5. and that the Moone is Gods faithfull witness in heauen, Psal. 89. 36. the Sunne according to Gods ordinance rules the day, the Moone the night, Gen. 1. 16. and the lesser starres as they receiue light and vertue from their superiours, so they communicate the same to their inferiours. Almighty God made the starres, Arcturus, Orion, and Pleyades, all of them are the workes of his fingers, Psal. 8. 3. and who can restrain the sweet influences of the Pleyades, or loose the hands of Orion, Iob 38. 31. this heauen declares the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth his handie worke. For albeit they want vnderstanding and are dumbe, yet they trumpet forth his worthy praises in such ample sort, that there is neither speech nor language, but their voice is heard among them. And as they speake for God as schollers, so they fight for God as souldiers, for the starres in their course fought against Sisera, Iosua 5. 20. and when Duke Iosua did encounter the wicked Amorites, he said in the fight of Israel, Sunne, stay thou in Gibeon, and thou Moone in the valley of Aialon, and the Sunne abode, and the Moone stood still, vntill the people of God auenged themselves vpon their enemies. If the Lord command the Sunne, It riseth not, he closeth vp the starres as vnder a signet, he turnes the shadow of death into the morning, and he makes the day darke as night. And therefore, when wee consider the goodly lights of heauen, cuer readie to doe the will of their Creator, we shall haue iust occasion as e See in di nus's symbol berwick, pag. 14.

David

f Apud Aquin.
& Marlorat. in
loc.

g Mark. 8. 36.

h Lombard.

Aquin.

Anslm.

Aretius. Idem

Augustin. Con. 1.

de part. 1.

Psal. 70.

i Rom. 11. 10.

k Luke 18. 13.

l Psal. 148. 8.

m Iob 9. 9.

n Psal. 149. 1.

o Iosua. 10. 12.

p Iob 9. 7.

q Amos 5. 8.

r Psal. 8. 4.

David had to say, What is man that thou art mindfull of him, or the sonne of man that thou visitest him?

r King. 8. 27.

If we will ascend yet higher; and contemplate the glorious heauen, termed in holy Scripture; the heauen of heauens: we shall vnderstand that the blessed Angels are ministering Spirits vnto God, alwayes attending his presence to performe his pleasure, being instruments of his mercie toward the good, executioners of his iudgements vpon the bad. And that the holy Saints, as being now so free from sinne, as they be free from sorrow, cease neither day nor night to sing, * Halleluiahs, saluation, and glorie, and honor, and power be to the Lord our God. In this heauen the Martyrs vndaunted constancie confounds our weaknesse and inconstancie, they were not wearied in suffering euill, and yet wee faint in doing good. The Confessours austeritie confounds our delicacie, for they did vse the world only for this end, that they might the better inioy God: but we many times haue vsed God, that we might the better enioy the world. The virgins puritie confounds our vncleanesse, for they follow the <sup>2</sup> Lambe whither soeuer hee goeth, but we runne <sup>a</sup> whoring with our owne inuentions, and haue committed <sup>b</sup> fornication with other louers. If wee looke vpon the Patriarkes, or Prophets, or Apostles, or vpon the rest of the Saints at rest vpon Gods holy mountaine, wee must acknowledge our selues to be chiefe sinners in comparison of them all. How then is any man able to behold the sacred Trinitie, God the Father who created vs, hauing by sinne lost his <sup>c</sup> superscription and image: God the sonne, who redeemed vs, hauing by sinne trampled his precious blood <sup>d</sup> vnder our feet: God the Holy Ghost, who sanctified vs, hauing by sinne <sup>e</sup> resisted often his sweet motions, and so much as lieth in vs vtterly quenched his purifying fire kindled in our hearts. Euerie thing then in heauen is able to confound vs, only this one thing comforteth vs, that Christ Iesus came into the world to saue sinners, euen such as feele their heauie burden, and confesse that they be chiefe sinners. For in our Christian obedience two things are required especially:

r Heb. 1. 14.

u Apoc. 4. 8.

x Apoc. 19. 1.

y Galat. 6. 9.

z Apoc. 14. 4.

a Psal. 106. 38.

b Exech. 16. 36.

c See Ludolphus de vita Christi, part. 2. cap. 35. Ardens.

Pontan.

Ferus in Euang.

Dom. 23. post.

Trin.

d Heb. 10. 19.

e Acts 7. 51.

f Math. 5. 6.

g Psal. 4. 1.

h Rom. 7. 19.

k 2. Cor. 8. 12.

l Bernard. epist.

77.

m Heb. 6. 7.

n Esay 5. 7.

o Math. 27. 51.

p Aristotle.

q Coloss. 3. 2.

r Psal. 148. 10.

To wit } Aspiratio
          } Suspiratio

1. Anaspiring to doe the will of God in earth, as it is done by the creatures in heauen, an <sup>a</sup> hungry and a thirsting for righteousnesse, a sincere soule <sup>b</sup> longing after God, and vnfaignedly louing that which is <sup>c</sup> good.

2. Wee must haue suspiration, a grieuing and a groaning in our Spirit, when as we feele in our members another law rebelling against the law of our minde, and leading vs captiue vnto sinne. When as wee finde that our dayly practises answer not our dayly prayers, it is our dutie to sigh, and to say with our Apostle, Rom. 7. 24. O wretched man that I am, who shall deliuer me from the bodie of this death? If we haue such an aspiring, and such a suspiring, that is, such a <sup>d</sup> willing minde to doe good, and to shunne euill, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that a man hath not. <sup>e</sup> Illud pro facto reputat Deus, quod homo quidem vere voluit, sed non valuit adimplere.

We now descend from the things aboue to the creatures here below. The ground being tilled <sup>a</sup> brings forth herbs and fruit meet for them by whom it is dressed: but we being the Lords enclosed <sup>b</sup> vineyard and pleasant plant, bring forth in stead of sweet grapes wilde grapes, bee looked for iudgement, but behold oppression: for righteousnesse, but behold a crying. The liuellesse stones at the death of the Lord of life were clouen asunder, and the vail of the Temple was rent in twaine from the top to the bottom: solus autem homo non compatitur, pro quo solo Dominus patitur, only man had no compassion, for whom alone Christ endured all his passion. The senselesse plants and trees aspire to grow vpward, the deeper their root <sup>c</sup> the higher their branch; but man (as the <sup>d</sup> Philosopher said) being planta transuersa, that is, a tree turned vpside downe, though his heart by nature be framed broad aboue, narrow beneath, open at the top, close below: yet by sinne hath the greater part of his affections vsually groueling downward, seeking earthly things, and the lesser part growing vpward <sup>e</sup> set on heavenly things. The witlesse beasts and birds, <sup>f</sup> all cattle and feathered fowles, yea the fierce dragons and silly wormes in their kinde praise the Lord.

The <sup>1</sup> Storke in the aire knoweth her appointed season, and the Crane, and the Turtle, and the Swallow obserue the times of their comming: but my people knowes not the iudgement of the Lord. Euen the dull <sup>2</sup> Oxe knoweth his owner, and the foolish Ass his matters crib, but Israel hath not knowne, my people (saith the Lord) hath not vnderstood.

As for men, either they be superiours, or equals, or inferiours, and all administer sufficient matter to confound vs in our sinne. Superiours are the <sup>3</sup> Ministers of God to take vengeance on those that commit euill. <sup>4</sup> If they make warre, we must arme to fight against their enemies: if they bid kill, we kill: if they say spare, wee spare: if they bid build, we build: if they bid make desolate, we make desolate, breaking downe mountaines, and wals, and towers. We must <sup>5</sup> either suffer the Rulers will, or their power, their will to order vs, and their power to punish vs. And why then, I Pray, do we not <sup>6</sup> render vnto God the things appertaining to God, as well as giue to Caesar the things of Caesar? Faciemus iubente imperatore, & non faciemus iubente Creatore, saith Augustine: shall we do the commands of higher Powers, and disobey the commandements of the highest power, of God himselte, which is the Lord of Lords, and a great King ouer all Gods?

If we consider our equals, how many Peeres in bloud are superiours in good, equal in title, but excelling in reputation among men, and in grace before God? For whereas we may ghesse at some few follies in them, alas! we certainly know many faults in our selues.

As for inferiours, it is our desire that <sup>7</sup> children should honour their parents, and that seruants should obey their masters in singleness of heart, and that euery soule should be <sup>8</sup> subiect vnto the higher powers. Are we not then ashamed, when as our children are dutifull <sup>9</sup> in all things, and when if we say to one seruant <sup>10</sup> goe, and he goeth: and to another comie, and he commeth: and to a third doe this, and he doth it: and yet we daily neglect to doe the will of our <sup>11</sup> Father, and <sup>12</sup> Master in heauen, in so much that he complaineth of vs, 3. A some honoureth his father, and a seruant his master: if then I be a Father where is my honour, and if I be a master, where is my feare, saith the Lord of hosts?

Let vs in our meditation looke downe to hell, and that both <sup>13</sup> inner and viter, and the way to shun hell after death vnto condemnation, is to see hell often in our life by contemplation. Many poore sinners vndoubtedly which haue not offen led God so much as we, cary still about them an inward hell, or hell of conscience. Franciscus Spira being in a deepe despaire for renouncing the Gospels doctrine, which hee did once sincerely professe, said he would willingly suffer the most exquisite tortures of hell fire, for the space of ten thousand yeeres, vpon condition he might be well assured to be released afterward: he further added in that hellish and horrible fit that his deere children and wife (for whose sake principally, he turned away from the Gospel, and embraced the present world) appeared now to him as hangmen and torturers, and in fine, that his abominable fault had deserued non modo damnationem, sed etiam aliquid quavis damnatione acerbius, not one hell only, but that Almighty God should create new hels for his condigne punishment. O beloued, had we liued in the dayes of fierie triall, and bloudy persecution, haply wee would haue sacrificed vnto Bel, and bowed our knees vnto Baal so well, or rather so ill as he, peraduenture wee should haue run from the Lords Table to the <sup>14</sup> cup of deuils, euen from Gods Messe to the Popes Masse. Vnhappy Spira denied his Lord but once, but wee through our daily transgressions haue not onely denyed him often, but in some sort denyed him also (as <sup>15</sup> one said) like Pilat, crucifying our blessed Lord Iesus, to giue life vnto Barrabas a murtherer, that is vnto sinne that slayeth the soule. <sup>16</sup> My people (quoth the Lord) haue forsaken me which am the fountaine of liuing waters, to digge them pits, euen broken pits that can hold no water: that is, whatsoeuer they professe in their words, they haue <sup>17</sup> denyed me which am the liuing God in their workes, and haue made to themselves a great many base creatures an Idol and a false god. Ambition is their god, Mammon is their god; nay that which is most vnworthy, Mammung is their god, as S. Paul in determining termes plainly, Philip. 3. 19. whose god is their belly.

Now

f *Ierem. 8. 7.*c *Esay 1. 3.*u *Rom. 13. 4.*x *1. Esdr. 4. 1.*y *Stephen Gardiner apud Fox Mart. fol. 1229.*z *Math. 22. 21.*a *Ephes. 6. 2. 5.*b *Rom. 13. 1.*c *Coloss. 3. 20.*d *Math. 8. 9.*e *Math. 6. 9.*f *Ephes. 6. 9.*g *Malac. 1. 6.*h *Dionys. Cartib. in 3. sen. distinct. 22.*i *Lih. cui tit. Desperatio Spire Genue cum prefat. Caluin.*k *1. Cor. 10. 21.*l *In speculo peccatoris & Iusti. pag. 26.*m *Ierem. 2. 13.*n Titus 1. 16.

Now let vs descend with our consideration into the lowest and vttermost hell, euen the bottomlesse pit not only of desparation, but of destruction also, the which is full of damned soules, among whom a great many burne for a few finnes, and some for one notorious sinne only: thinke then I pray thee with thy selfe in thy Closet, these condemned persons were men as well as I, and many of them (as I) Christians, who receiued the same Sacraments, and heard the same Sermons, and read the same Bible that I still enjoy; how then am I bound to Gods infinite mercies hauing offended him in the same sinne often, and in other kindes of faults without number? If I compare their iniquitie with mine, what remaineth in the iudgement of mine owne conscience but a greater damnation? O how iustly had I deserued that death should haue attached me in committing my first sinne, and that God should haue giuen mee no more space nor grace to repent. I may therefore consider seriously that it is no lesse benefit of the Father of mercy to haue preserued me hitherto from the furious flames of that vnquenchable lake, than if after I had becne descended he had deliuered me from them, and for this exceeding kinnesse, I may well apply that of David, I will thanke thee O Lord my God with all my heart, and I wil praise thy name for euermore, for great is thy goodnesse towards me, deliuering my soule from the nethermost hell.

o Psal. 86. 12.

p Psal. 42. 15.
q Manasses in his prayer.
r Rom. 6. 23.

s Psal. 103. 13.
t Esey 66. 13.
u Psal. 32. 11.
x Ezech. 18. 31.

Lattly, let vs examine whether in comparison of the deuill himselfe we may bee said to be chiefe sinners: his offence for which he was cast out of Gods presence, was (so some thinke) but one, and that not acted, but only plotted: Ours are many, more than either the Phaires of our head, or the sand of the Sea, committed actually both in our words and in our workes. Hee sinned before the stipend of sinne was knowne; but we sinne after experience, that the wages of sinne is death. He sinned created in innocencie; but we sinne restored againe to grace. His heart is hardened against him who punisheth him, ours obdurate many times against him that allureth vs, and pitieth vs as a father, and comforteth vs as a mother, blessing vs with euery kinde of blessing, and compassing vs about with his mercies on all sides, and at all seasons, often crying and calling, Why will ye perish? how often would I haue gathered thy children together, as the hen gathereth her chickens vnder her wings, and ye would not, Math. 23. 37.

Thus euery true penitent, as well as Paul, vpon a strict examination of his owne conscience, findeth himselfe the chiefe sinner. Or haply S. Paul called himselfe the first sinner, as being readie with the first humbly to confesse his faults, and earnestly to sue for pardon at the throne of grace, primus in ordine confitentium, as Aretius vpon the place: so forward as the first in acknowledging his sores, and so forward as the first in applying the saluc.

LECTURE II.

And the confession of S. Paul is exceeding full and free, y<sup>e</sup> so doubtlesse not vntrue. He did not out of his modestie tell a lie, for he was in his owne iudgement, and in others opinion also, worthy to be numbred among the chiefest of sinners, as being a blasphemmer, a persecutor, and an oppressor, as he reporteth of himselfe in this chapter at the 13. verse. Yea but it is objected, that hee

<sup>2</sup> profited in the Iewes religion above many of his equals, and that he was <sup>2</sup> vnrebukeable touching the righteousness which is in the Law. <sup>b</sup> Theophilact, and <sup>c</sup> other answer, that a legall righteousness, in comparison of an euangelicall righteousness, is a very nothing, and vpon the poynt a chiefe sinne. <sup>d</sup> For euen that which was made glorious had no glory in this respect by reason of the glory that excelleth. And therefore Paul after his conuersion, esteemed not these commendations and eminencies, aduantage, but rather <sup>e</sup> losse for Christs sake, iudging all his former religion and zeale to bee dung, that hee might win this excellent knowledge, how Christ Iesus came into the world to saue sinners. <sup>f</sup> Other answer, that hee was in the Iewes religion vnblameable before men, as hauing an outward righteousness: but not vnrebukeable before God, vntill his heart was <sup>g</sup> purified by faith in Christ. Hee liued, as Aquine pithily glosseth, in respect of the world, sine querela, without any scandall or clamour, but in respect of God, non sine peccato, not without infirmities and iniquities too. For hee had his conuersation in time past (as himselfe records of himselfe <sup>h</sup> elsewhere) in fulfilling the lusts of the flesh, and of the minde, and that he was by nature the childe of wrath as well as other.

The greatest offence, for which he said, I am, <sup>i</sup> that is, I haue beene the first of sinners, as he witnesseth in this chapter, and <sup>k</sup> elsewhere, was his extreme wasting of the Church, as being both a <sup>l</sup> blasphemmer of Christ, and a persecutor of Christianitie. For albeit he did ignorantly commit these faults out of an inconsiderate zeale, <sup>m</sup> yet vnbeleefe icyned with obstinate furie, raging against the Lord and against his anointed, is worthily numbred among the chiefe sinnes. Peior omnibus, quia persecutor quo non erat peior. I haue beene the greatest offender, as being the greatest oppressor, Nemo enim acrior inter persecutores, ergo nemo peior inter peccatores. He was both an author and an actor of mischief, making hauocke of the Church, drawing out of euery house both men and women, and dragging them into prison, Acts 8. 3.

Yea, but you will object haply, Indas the traytor, and Iulian surnamed Apostata, persecuted the truth against their owne knowledge maliciously, whereas our Apostle did it ignorantly through vnbeliefe, ergo he could not be so great a malefactor as they. <sup>n</sup> Answer may bee, that those wretches are the vessels of wrath eternally damned, whereas the words of Paul are to be construed with a limitation and reference to such as are saued, Christ Iesus came into the world to saue sinners, of which offenders to be saued, I am the foremost and chiefe. For which of them (I pray) sinned in thought, or word, or deed, more desperately than I: in thought, as imagining mischief vpon my bed, esteeming my persecution of the Gospell a p zealous action toward God: in word, breathing out <sup>o</sup> threatenings and <sup>p</sup> calumnious against the disciples of the Lord: in deed, hating the profession of Christians vnto death: I went to the high Priest, and desired of him letters to Damascus, that if I found any who were of that way (either men or women) I might bring them bound to Hierusalem, and deliuer them into prison.

y *Caluin.*z *Galat. 1. 14.*a *Philip. 3. 6.*b *In loc.*c *Oecumen. in loc.*d *2. Cor 3. 10.*e *Philip. 3. 7.*f *Lombard.*g *Aquin.*h *Anselm. in Philip. 3.*i *Acts 15. 9.*j *Ephes. 2. 3.*k *Primasius.*l *Galat. 1. 13.*m *Acts 22. 4.*n *Philip. 3. 6.*o *1. Cor. 15. 6.*p *1. Aquin.*q *Bulling. in*r *1. Tim. 1. 13.*s *Caluin.*t *Lombard.*u *Aquin.*v *Caictan.*w *Marlorat. in*x *loc.*y *Acts 22. 3.*z *Acts 9. 1.*aa 1. Tim. 1. 13.

This example may comfort distressed consciences in any grieuous temptation, at the houre of death especially. Paul was a miserable sinner, but Christ a more mercifull Sauiour, he therefore receiued him into fauour making him of a bloody persecutor, a godly Pastor; a chosen vessell to beare his name before the Gentiles, and Kings, and the children of Israel, Acts 9. 15. Now Christ is alway like himselfe, Yesterday, and to day, and the same for euer: the same in his word, the same in his working, the same both in his power and promise. Pauls pardon is not singular and extraordinarie, but as the next verse sheweth, it is an example for all other who shall in time to come beleue in Christ vnto euerlasting life. Let not then any troubled spirit be dismayed, seeing wee haue such a full patent, Christ Iesus came into the world to saue sinners: and such a faire patterne, of whom I am chiefe. For he confessed himselfe such a sinner (saith Augustine) that none may despaire, considering Paul obtained pardon. Againe, this example may teach vs not to iudge before the time, Iustin Martyr a Gentile may turne Christian, Augustine a Manichee may turne Catholike, Luther a Monke may turne Minister, persecuting Saul may turne preaching Paul, and so demonstrate that in his owne person which is the summe of all his Sermons, namely, that Christ Iesus came into the world to saue sinners;

Hitherto concerning the grieuousnesse of S. Pauls fault: I come now to the greatnesse of his faith, aplying the generall pardon (Christ Iesus came into the world to saue sinners) in particular to himselfe, of whom I am chiefe. The *Papists affirme, that a man is iustificed by faith, vnderstanding a generall or a catholique faith, by which he beleueth all the articles of religion to be true: but we hold that a iustifying faith is a particular faith, apprehending and applying to our selues the promises of righteousness and euerlasting life by Christ.

For in a sauing faith our Diuines } require two things especially, }
1. Knowledge reuealed in the word touching the } meanes of saluation. }
2. An application of these things knowne vnto } our selues. }

This our assertion is euidently proued by the words of S. Iohn, As many as receiued him, to them he gaue power to be the sonnes of God, namely, to them that beleue in his name. Where to receiue Christ, and to beleue in Christ, import the same thing, because the one of them is put for explanation of the other. Now receiuing is a more particular apprehending and conueying of a thing to a mans owne proper vse. Seeing therefore to beleue in Christ is to receiue Christ; * it followes necessarily, that to beleue in Christ, is to lay hold of Christ with all his benefis, and to make vse of him as he is offered in the promises of the Gospell vnto our owne selues. For a true faith, according to the measure thereof, assureth infallibly, not in the generall onely by principle, but in the particular also by conclusion and application vnto it selfe.

For the further illustration of this argument, Christ in the 6. Chapter of S. Iohns Gospell, sets forth himselfe as the bread of life, and the water of life; making his best hearers as eaters of his flesh, and drinkers of his blood: and further auowing that this eating of his flesh, and drinking of his blood, and beleueing in him, are all one. Looke then <sup>a</sup> as there can be no eating without taking and receiuing of meat: so no beleueing in Christ without a spirituall apprehending and receiuing of him. As the bodie hath his hand, mouth, and stomack, by which it taketh, receiue, and digesteth meat for the nourishment of euery part: so the true beleuer by his faith, as the hand, and mouth, and stomacke of the soule, receiues and takes to him Christ Iesus, with all his merits, particularly, for his strength, and comfort, and nourishment vnto that life which is euerlasting. To the same purpose <sup>b</sup> Tertullian excellently, Christ is chewed by vnderstanding, and digested by faith. And <sup>c</sup> S. Augustine, Ut quid paras dentes & ventrem? crede, & manducasti: why preparest thou teeth and belly? beleue and thou hast eaten. And in an <sup>d</sup> other place, How shall I reach mine hand into heauen, that I may hold him sitting there? send vp thy faith, and thou layst hold on him: according to that of <sup>e</sup> S. Ambrose, Fide tangitur Christus, fide Christus videtur by faith Christ is touched, by faith Christ is seene.

The Saints in old time had this speciall faith, as it is apparant in the Scripture, for

f Heb. 13. 8.

e Ser. 49. de temp.

ii 1. Cor. 4. 5.

x See Perkins reformed Cat. tit. Iustificat.

y Iohn 1. 12.

z See D. Abbotts defence of refor. Cat. tit. Certainty of saluation, pag. 353.

a See latter confession of Heluetia, ca. 15. & Harmon. confess. sect. 9. pag. 243.

b Lib. de resur. carnis, cap. 28. in fine.

c Tract. 25. in Ioan.

d Tract. 50. in Ioan.

e Lib. 6. in Luc. cap. 8.

<sup>f</sup> Job called Christ in respect of this particular assurance, my redeemer; and <sup>s</sup> David, my strength, my rocke my defence, my might, in whom I will trust, my bucler, my refuge my<sup>h</sup> righteousnesse: and <sup>i</sup> S. Thomas, my Lord my God: and the blessed<sup>k</sup> Virgin, my Saviour: and the<sup>l</sup> whole Church my beloved: and our<sup>m</sup> Apottle, The sonne of God loued me, and gave himselfe for me: Christ Iesus came into the world to saue sinners, and of those which are to be saued I am one.

It is objected here, that S. Paul. had a speciall reuelation, ergo we may not hence gather any generall obseruation. Answer is made by Paul in the very next verse, that he was herein an ensample to such as in time to come should beleue in Christ: and he faith<sup>n</sup> elsewhere, Brethren, be followers of me, and looke on them that walke so as you haue vs for a patterne. If in the faith and doctrine of Christ we be to follow Paul, then are we by faith to beleue of our selues, as he beleued of himselfe; and what he wrote in that behalfe, we are to take it as written for our instruction, and not as a matter particular and peculiar to himselfe.

According to this example, the primitive Fathers applied Christ and all his merits particularly to themselves, as the formes of the most ancient Creeds insinuate, I beleue in God, &c. for when S. Thomas said, Ioh. 20. 28. my God, Christ answered, thou hast beleued Thomas, intimating, that to beleue in God, is to beleue that God is our God. The first decree of faith is <sup>o</sup> credere Deum, to beleue that God is: the second credere Deo, to beleue that the words and promises of God are true: but the third is credere in Deum, to trust in God, as being assured that he will deale with vs according to his holy word. For to beleue in him, and to put our whole trust in him, are all one Psalm. 78. 23. They beleued not in God, and put not their trust in his helpe. So P. S. Augustine, & Eusebius Emisenus, and<sup>r</sup> other, haue distinguished aptly betweene beleueing God, and beleueing in God. Againe, the articles concerning the<sup>s</sup> remission of finnes and euerlasting life, teach a particular application of the generall pardon here, Christ Iesus came into the world to saue sinners. The deuill himselfe beleuees that there is a God, and that this God imparts remission of finnes and euerlasting life to his Church in generall; and therefore that we being Gods children may goe beyond all the deuils in faith, it is required on our part, to beleue that forgiuenesse of finnes and euerlasting life belong to vs in particular. Let the soule (quoth<sup>c</sup> Augustine) boldly say, thou art my God, to him that saith vnto our soule, I am thy saluation. It shall doe no wrong in saying so, nay it shall doe wrong in not saying so. <sup>u</sup> S. Bernard faith also, the soule that looketh vpon God, doth no otherwise looke vpon him, than as if it selfe only were looked vpon of God. For as<sup>z</sup> Chrysostome notes, it is loues qualitie to make that proper to a mans selfe, which is common vnto many. So the penner of the booke de<sup>v</sup> visitatione infirmorum, among the workes of S. Augustine, tom. 9. pag. 638. calls Christ my Iesus; and<sup>z</sup> Martin Luther, O sweet Iesu, thou art my righteousnesse, and I am thy sinne,

As some men in temptation apply too little, so many men in presumption apply too much, affirming that they neuer doubted of their saluation all the dayes of their life: the which is a carnall opinion; arising only from their owne conceit, and Satans deceit. It is true, that our saluation in respect of God, and in it selfe, is most infallible: but in respect of our selues, and our apprehension and feeling, it is not alway so certain. And the reason hereof is very plaine: Particular saluation (in the iudgement of all our Protestant Diuines) is to be beleued by faith: as then there be diuers degrees of faith, <sup>a</sup> little faith, <sup>b</sup> great faith <sup>c</sup> full assurance of faith; euen so there be diuers degrees of our perswasion: <sup>a</sup> little faith, howsoeuer it beleuees not falsly, yet faintly: <sup>b</sup> greater faith, beleuees more stedfastly: <sup>c</sup> full assurance, beleueeth vnder hope euen against hope, Rom. 4. 18. The heart of euery beleueer is like a vessell with a narrow necke, which being cast into the sea, is not filled at the first easily, but by reason of the strait passage, receiuech water drop by drop. God giuech vnto vs in Christ euen a sea of mercy, but the same on our part is apprehended and receiued by little and little, we goe from<sup>d</sup> strength to strength, and from grace to grace, praying alwayes as the blessed Apottles, <sup>e</sup> O Lord increase our faith, that from weaknesse of faith and slender assurance, we may grow to firmnesse of faith and full assurance.

f Iob 19. 25.
g Psalm. 18. 1.
h Psalm. 4. 1.
i Ioha 20. 28.
k Luke 1. 47.
l Cant. 6. 2.
m Galat. 2. 20.

n Philip. 3. 17.

o See notes, vpon the Creed in the Liturgie.

p Ser. 181. de temp.

q Hom. 2. de symbol.

r Lombard. 3. sent. dist. 23.

s Melanct. in 1. Tim. 1. 15. &

Perkins exposit. of that art. in the Creed.

t In Psalm. 32. con. 2.

u Ser. 69. in Cant.

x In Gen. hom. 34.

y Lib. 2. Cap. 2.

z Loc. com. tit. de Instit. chrift.

& remiss. peccat

a Math. 8. 26.

b Math. 15. 28.

c Rom. 4. 21.

d Psalm. 8. 4. 7.

e Luke 17. 5.

So father Abraham was assured of his owne saluation, as also the Prophets, and Apostles, and Martyrs of God in all ages, who without doubting were content to forsake their goods, and to lay downe their liues for the Gospell of Christ, as expecting vpon a certaine Ground an <sup>e</sup>uerlasting habitation, and an <sup>e</sup>immortall inheritance. So many doubtlesse in our time by long and often experienc of Gods mercy, and by the witness of the Holy Ghost, attaine to full assurance of their saluation. our spirit alone makes not a true certificate without the <sup>h</sup> Spirit of God crying in our hearts, Abba Father; and the holy Spirit doth assure none to be the children of God <sup>i</sup> vnllesse first hee haue sanctified them and made them children of God. <sup>k</sup> Martin Luther, (who did vnderstand assuredly the question of Iustification as well as any since the dayes of our Apostle) said vsually, that good workes make faith fast, and these fruits of faith in their beginnings and imperfections (as <sup>l</sup> Bernard called them) are tokens of Gods secret election, and foretokens of future happinesse. And S. Peter in his 2. epist. chap. 1. exhorteth vs to make our election sure, by ioyning vertue with our faith; and with vertue, knowledge; and with knowledge, temperance; and with temperance, patience; and with patience, godlinesse; and with godlinesse, brotherly kindnesse; and with brotherly kindnesse, loue. For seeing our assurance of saluation is by faith, and faith is cherished by vertuous actions of pietie toward God, of pitie toward our neighbours; it is requisite that we should be <sup>m</sup> fruitfull in good deeds, and <sup>n</sup> rich in good workes, <sup>o</sup> abundant alwayes in the worke of the Lord, <sup>p</sup> doing good vnto all men, especially to those which are of the household of faith.

But for as much as all of vs are <sup>q</sup> vnprofitable seruants, and all our righteousnesse is like <sup>r</sup> filthy clouts; it is a most safe resolution, in euery temptation and trouble, to put our whole trust in Gods vnsearchable mercy; who knoweth vs better than we know him, and <sup>s</sup> apprehendeth vs more for his owne than we can apprehend him for ours. If we but <sup>t</sup> hunger and <sup>u</sup> thirst after grace, he will not breake the bruised reed, nor quench the smoaking flax, Esay 42. 3. but manifest his power in our weaknesse, 2. Cor. 12. 9. Alas we vile wretches are lesse than all his mercies, as Iacob said, Gen. 32. 10. if he should enter into iudgement with vs, as Dauid speakes, Psal. 143. 2. none liuing should be iustified in his sight. If we consider our owne deseruing, faith <sup>v</sup> Hierome, we must needs despaire; but God will haue the promise to be sure, faith <sup>w</sup> Augustine, not according to our merit, but according to his mercy: he would haue vs to depend vnto his word and oath, that by two immutable things, wherein it was impossible that God should lie, we might haue strong consolation, Heb. 6. 18. This assumption and particular application of Christ vnto the soule, grounded vpon the sure mercies of God, assured by the holy Spirit, and sealed in the receiuing of the blessed Sacraments, is not an idle conceit, or any false hope, but (as the <sup>x</sup> Fathers are bold to call it) a good and godly presumption. O Lord increase our faith euermore, that our little mustard seed growing till it proue a great plant, we may build our nests in the branches thereof, alway relying vpon thy generall pardon here,

Christ Iesus came into the world to saue sinners, and applying it vnto our selues in particular, of whome I am chiefe.

---

FINIS.

---

f Luke 16. 9.
g 1. Pet. 1. 4.

h Rom. 8. 16.

i See Gospell fund. 8. alter
Trinit.

k In Gen. cap. 17.
& citatur à Cham. loc. com-
tit. de bonis ope-
vibus, quest. 4.

l Lib. de Grat.
& libero arbit.

Let no man aske another man, but returne to his owne heart. if he finde charitie there, he hath security for his passage from death to life. August. in epist. Ioan. tract. 5.

m Coloss. 1. 10.

n 1. Tim. 6. 18.

o 1. Cor. 15. 58.

p Galat. 6. 10.

q Luke 7. 10.

r Esay 64. 6.

s Galat. 4. 9.

t Philip. 3. 12.

u Math. 5. 6.

x Iohn 7. 27.

y In Esai. li. 17.

cap. 64.

z In Psal. 88.

a Amb. de Sacr.

lib. 5. cap. 4.

Aug. in Psal. 85.

Greg. in Ezeq.

hom. 22.

THE TABLE.

A

A Arons Priesthood, fol. 818. the difference betweene the Priesthood of Aaron, and the Priesthood of Christ, 819
 Abrahams bosome, 372. his seed, 467
 Absolution of sinne from God, 608. the Ministers absolution after a confession, 2. 305. 523. popish absolution, 253
 Abstinence from meat, 77. 370. 487
 Admonitions generall, 760
 Adulterie, sinne in this kind more dangerous than in another, 55. an exposition of the 7. Commandement, ibid. the flesh is most prone to commit this sinne, 479. the filthinesse of this sinne, 240. 256. 257. indgements upon it, 244. 245. wee must flye from it, 488
 Aduerfaries prooffe without contradiction, 266
 Aduersitie, 301. afflictions are profitable, 152. 165. 166. 385. 493. 652. 698. 801. 827. 935. the righteous haue many, 97. 333. 334. comfort in affliction, 13. 154. 271. 316. 335. 346. 347. 371. 391. 422. 498. 523. 554. 618. 649.
 Ambition, 130. 382. 740. 741. 759. 760. 763.
 Amen, 67. 360
 Anabaptists, 137. 159. 909
 Anarchie, 936
 Angels are creatures, 943. their number unknowne to men, 872. yet euery one differ: from another, 873. Angels attend Gods elect, 591. 726. 727. 728. 785. whether euery man hath a peculiar Angell for his guard, 729. degrees of Angels, 755. Michael is not head of Angels, ibid. what is meant by the foure bad Angels mentioned in the Reuelation, 769 Agent, three things required in an absolute agent, fol. 2.
 Allegories, 266. Allegorie of the man descending from Hierusalem to Iericho. 476
 Almes, 144. 209. 371. 377. 420. 423. 553. 737. 738
 Anger, 149. 211. 410. 411
 Antiquitie, 407
 Apocalyps, the commendation of this booke, 349. 614
 Apologie for our selues in the cause of God. 265. 309. 753
 Apostles, 679. 680. why twelue, 284. 645. when chosen, 569. their mission and commission, worke and warrant, 304. 571. 572. 702. 703. why chosen, two and two, 570. why fishers, 571. confirmed in their calling after Christs ascension, 678. foure sorts of Apostles, 568. they be the heauens declaring the glory of God, 792. the lips of Christ, 924. old sheepe, 859 Apparell, 369. 370.

 Apud, 594
 Armour, the Christians armour and arming, 532
 As, a note of qualitie, not equalitie, 252. 395. 475
 Astrologers, 429. 731
 Atheists are enemies to God and auengers, 878
 Auditors, 93. 202. 311. 458. 464. 465. foure kindes of Auditors, 402. they should aske questions of their Pastors, 202. 541
 Aue Maria martyred by the Papists, fol. 661. 662. &c.
 Auengers confounded by babes and sucklings, 879

B

B Abes both in age and carriage perfit Gods praise, fol. 877. 878.
 Baptisme, 250. 353. 360. 361. 406. Baptisme of children, 573. 718. one baptisme, 112. 506. threefold immersion, 294. 406. why names are giuen in baptisme, 624. 718. Popish applying of spittle in baptisme is apish, 465. why the Baptist called Iohn, 719
 Beasts, mentioned Apoc. 4. cap. fol. 355
 Beggers, 218. 371. 772. 773
 Behold, is a very remarkable word in holy Scripture, 82. 214. 407
 Benedictus expounded, 12
 Belly gods, 546
 Bibles summarie pith, 831. 832. diuided into three parts, 339. it is Gods epistle, 340. a statutebooke for his household, 791. 796. 892. a buckler in temptation, 915. persecuted by the Pope and popelings, 798. 844
 Walking Bibles, 759
 Bishops, 288. 289. 445. 446. 569. 645. 702. 742. what kind of rule forbidden them, 744. 745
 Blasphemie, 49. 524. 809
 Blessings of God threefold, 834
 Blindnesse, 218
 Bondage, 854

THE TABLE.

Booke of the creatures, a common placc booke for all and a primer,	791
Borne of God,	300
Bread three forts,	510
Brotherly fellowship,	314
Three forts of Brethren,	410
Brownists, 133. 179. 183. 283. 291. 311. 341	495. 640
Burden threcfold, 702. 703. 649. 650. the burden of sinne and ponertie,	949. 950. &c.

C

C alling, God Calls at diuers times, and in di- uers places, fol. 191. 192. and diuers wayes, 381. he calleth all,	649. 650
What Callings are lawfull,	126. 191
Cate for the things of this life,	385
Catechisme, the little Bible,	428
Cathari, both iniurie God and deceiue themselues,	607
Ceremonies of the Law, 461. 588. 625. euery Ceremoniall of Moses hath a morall, 638. 639 Ceremonies are diuers in diuers Churches, 929 difference in Ceremonies should make no rent,	492. 507. 625
Children, 134. 497. 498. 851. wherein like chil- dren.	761. 762
Christ, the center of all the Scriptures circumsfe- rence, 19. 78. 116. 672. 702. our God, Redec- mer and Bishop of our soules, 14. 15. 44. 66. 81 82. 121. 252. 253. 272. 273. 307. 309. 389 390. 504. 651. his birth, 281. 591. 592. 594. his presentation in the Temple, 640. his proper name Iesus, appellatiue Christ, 19 119. 624. 732. his humanitie, 20. 114. 122 146. 154. 303. 464. 594. 618. 658. 806. his diuinitie, 20. 42. 278. 336. 421. 524. 561. 586 591. 592. 597. 640. 675. 806. 816. God-man. one person in two natures, 164. 234. 252. 278. 279. 465. 498. 503. 517. 561. 591. 634. 684 689. our Mediator according to both, 121. 154 562. his obedience to the Law, 115. 626. his po- uertie, 683. his Priesthood, 272. after Melchi- sedechs order, 820. 821. his passion 21. 215 216. 253. 275. 282. 304. 307. 363. 614. 697 922. 925. 947. how hee feared death, 444. his descending into hell, 22. his resurrection, 26. 217. 296. 298. 303. 586. 675. 701. his ascen- sion, 322. 679. 697. 698. 704. his comming to indgement, 22. 87. 88. 332. 514. without sinne, 275. 323. the way, the truth, and the life, 694. the true vine, 683. his crosse, 486. enemies of his crosse, 548. 586. what crucifixes are lawfull, 505. Christs coat, 177. Christ the sonne of Da- uid, and lord of David, 810. 823. he maketh all our enemies his footstool, 812. 838. ruling in the mids of his enemies, 812. 814. 826. his ta- bernacle in the Sunne, 793, as the Sunne reioy- cing to run his race, 794. 866. the fruits of his comming, 800. his beauty, 923. his graciousnesse of speech, 923. his intercession, 928. how blessed of God the Father, 924. he deliuereth vs from the burden of affliction, of the law, of sinne, 857 a lambe,	614

Christians Christs pennie, 551. the sonnes of God, 19. 115. 426. 555. led by the Spirit, 233. 355 new creatures, as being dead to the world, and liuing in Christ, 124. 294. 300. 360. 406. 485 souldiers and conquerors, 300. 497. how they doe not sinne, 212. 347. 489. 515. no law against them, 481. wonderfully wonderful, 346. 407 547. described by faith and good workes, 893 their dignitie, 925. 926. followers of Christ, 574. 575. Christmas how to be kept, 102. 591 595. 617. Christians are a royall Priesthood,	976. 977
Church, her prerogatiues, 23. 165. 400. 501. 615 her voyce, 615. the kingdome of heauen, 530 615. 756. no Church, no Christ, 164. 530. one Church, 24. 165. 341. 501. Hierusalem above, 269. our mother, 270. a little flocke, 482. 614 Gods house, 576. 836. the rocke on which it is built, 577. 733. 734. Church militant Gods ta- bernacle, 884. 885. triumphant Gods holy hill, 886. we passe from the one to the other, 887 888. Christs house, 794. wedded and bedded, 926. opposed by cruell enemies, 813. 815. 838. hauing secular enemies, 813. & spirituall, ibid. why called a Quene, 926. 929. Christs heri- tage, 933. Characters of the true Church, agree not to the kingdome of Poperie, 911. Colours in the Churches garment, 929. Diuers dignities and degrees in the Church,	919. 930.
Circumcision, a seale of the right consues of faith, 623. why on the eight day, and in the generatiue part, 625. why Christ circumcised, and named Ielus at his circumcision, 626. a threcfold cir- cumcision,	624
Circumspection in our walking,	525
Commendation of other, 666. when we may com- mend our selues,	198. 308
Complements,	665
Communion booke,	68. 492
Confession of faith,	154. 262. 564. 614
Confession of sinne, 153. 263. 450. 453. 608. publique Confession, 1. Confession of sinne to God and man, 506. auricular,	608
Confirmation after Baptisme by Bishops,	710
Conscience, 161. 438. a bad conscience, 65. 171 an erroneous conscience, 306. foure kindes of conscience,	170
Contemplation,

THE TABLE.

Contemplation,	299.300
Contentation,	775
Correction,	542
Coueting, 58. 896. the conetous are poore, 366 130. 204. Idolaters, 216. 257. Concetousnesse the root of all euill, 284. 896. physicke against it, 260. 490
Councell, 147. Councils may erre,	516
Court, 289. 291. 382. 536. 652. 705. 861. how far Clergie men may be Courtiers,	445
Creation of man,	805
Creatures catechize the first elements of religion, 791. 792. they be diligent, learned, and catho- lique Preachers, to be considered of vs euery day but on the Sabbath especially, 873. they be won- derfull in respect of their magnitude, 871. mul- titude, and varietie, 873. vertue and beautie, 877. the least as wonderfull as the greatest, 874 at the commandement of the Creator, turned upside downe, 856. all of them are to be used of Christians,	910
Creed expounded,	17. 45
Crueltie punished,	838
Curiositie,	610. 699

D

D Ayes, how some good and other bad, 867. one day teacheth another, 793. Christ is the day, and his twelue Apostles are the twelue houres of the day, ibid. day of iudgement,	918
Dauid the sonne God,	657
Dearth,	735
Dead raised by Christ, 868. three sorts of coarces in the Gospell are three sorts of sinners, ibid.
Death, 37. 39. 302. 416. 497. Death a sleepe, 600 diuers kinds of death, 366. 416. spirituall death in the faithfull is threefold, 417. obstinate sin- ners are dead and caried out to be buried, 499
Debts, 73. 549. all are debtors vnto God, 543. what is to be done that our debt may be forgiven, 544
Detraction,	57. 388. 838
Deuill, 182. 231. 234. 261. 262. 264. 302. 311 god of the world, 756. how resisted, 231. 255. de- nials in diuers things taste of Gods mercy, 942
Diligence, 139. Diligence in preaching, 508. to be cherished,	738. 750
Discretion,	228. 951
Diuision,	311
Dominus vobiscum,	26
Doing of our dutie,	831
Doores of our hearts,	912
Drunkenesse, a mother of mischiefe, 5 26. 527 735. questions about drunkenesse,	525
Duell,	149

E

E Arth is wonderfully founded upon the waters, 909. it is the Lords and all that therein is, 908. earth and earthly things,	293
East, why we pay toward the East,	631
Easter day made more honourable than other daies	867
Elect, compassed about on all sides, and at all sea- sons with Gods mercy,	943
Embroyderies of the Spirit,	930
End, twofold,	332
Enuie,	211. 388. 717
Ephata, not used by Christ as a charme,	465
Epiphanie,	630
Epistles, why certaine portions of Scripture taken out of the Prophets, and Acts, are called Epi- stles, 339. why Paul did not subscribe his Epi- stle to the Hebrewes, 588. how people called E- pistles of their Pastors, 458. 459. the summe of S. Pauls Epistles,	73. 677
Euangelists,	281. 679. 792
Exodus of Israel out of Egypt, prefigures our spi- rituall deliuerance by Christ from the tyran- nous oppression of Sathan and sinne, 851. 858
Euill.	3. 317

F

F Ame,	229. 368. 730
Famine,	735. 736
Familie, masters must instruct their household, 537 the fathers,	100
Fashions of the world,	127. 128
Fasting,	226. 234
Faith an evidence of things not seene, 472. 585 Faiths act, obiect, and subiect, 565. a particular application of Gods promise, 18. 28. 83. 169. 177. 583. 980. 986. 987. one faith, 177. 504 505. the power of faith, 191. 246. 247. 301 355. 506. 522. 691. 758. faith is built vpon Gods might and mercy, 835. it is a mother ver- tue, 837. the nest of good works, 893. Faith and fears ioyned together in Gods seruice, 832. de- grees of faith, 40. 462. 536. a little faith is sufficient at some time, 250. 426. 693. trne faith is not without lone, 207. 208. 323. whatsoeuer is not of faith is sinne, 59. 169. 213. 323. 622 776
Fear of God, 45. 669. the beginning of wisdome, 841. 842
Feasts ordained by God, 340. appointed by the Church, ibid. 700. 784
Feasting, 142. 143. 370. 511. how we may feed Christ,	753

THE TABLE.

Fishes, increase wonderfull, 872 Flatterie, 99
 Flesh of man Gods tabernacle, 884. Flesh an home-bred enemy, 290. 301. wee may not live after 424. how crucifie it, 481. the deeds of it manifest, 478. sundry significations of flesh, 423 Forgiuing of our brethren necessarie, 542. 544. yet lawfull to defend our credit by complaining to God and his deputies, 149. 761
 Followers of Christ, 165
 Fornication, 246
 Fortune, chance 509. 671
 Freehold of Christians, 777
 Freewill 450. 685. 686
 Friars, 190. 225. 300. 572. 774 Funerall Sermons are not for the commendation of the wicked, 372

G

GArment of Christ, 556
 Gentiles are now Gods Israel, 15. 246. 249
 381. 560. 619. 627. 629. 771
 Genealogie of Christ, 122. Genealogicall fables, ib.
 Generation what it signifieth, 87. 88
 Gloria Patri, 7. 65
 God of gods, 10. 354. 503. 530. 655. 847. 932. in heauen, 2. 350. one, 18. 504. incomprehensible, 18. almightie, 155. 914. all-seeing, 44. 354 everlasting, 351. father of fathers, 493. to be worshipped according to his word, 49. his glorie, 792. his reuealed will and actuall power concerne vs most, 914. his mercy, 42. 65. 247. 351 364. 379. 395. 396. 494. 706. 748. 800. 914 how we sing the mercies of God for euer, 867. the breath of Gods mercy, 864. the length of Gods mercy, 943. the depth of Gods mercy, 855. the height of Gods mercy, ibid. mercies of God ouer all his works, 940. his iudgements, 11. 351. disposing of euill, 175. 350. no acceptor of persons 152. 566. 668. his providence, 191. 351. 385
 Good men are the heauens declaring Gods glory, 792. their praise doth endure for euer, 845.
 they be Gods sanctuary and dominion, 852. only wise, 841. 845. great men may be good men, 935 and should be good men, 8
 Gospell Gods throne, 355. the word of Christ, 178 who wrote the Gospell, and why, 117. 118. the commendation of Math. Gospell, 752. why the booke of the generation of Christ, 118. in what respect the Gospell is preferred before the Law, 457. 461. the contents and extents of it, 552
 605. a new song, 35. 615. a mysterie, 628. the grace of God, ibid. the word of life, 714. written vnto such as are Theophili, 696. hid only to those which are lost, 748. the wisdom of God, 814 preached first vnto the Iewes, ibid. 933. after planted and continued among vs vnto this present day, 860

 Grace from God, 5. 137. 180. 203. 288. 317. 318 498. 539. 543. 686. 709. to bee employed in his seruice, 138. 148. 440. 682. diuers gifts in di-uers measure by the same Spirit, 318. 345. the seuen gifts of the Spirit, 353. the difference betweene being vnder grace, and in grace, 576. falling from grace, 767. growing from grace to grace, 75. 239

H

HAnds, imposition, 463. Gods hand, 721. 722 why the left hand among the Turkes is most honourable, 814
 Health, a precious iewel, 554. 665
 Hearing, 262
 Heart, regarded of God most, 797. a stonie heart, 315
 Heauen is Gods, 879. his holy hill, 886. heauens gate shut, till Christ opened it, 912. rest in heauen, 886. not attained without contending, 888. why called a kingdome, 889. why life, 900
 a great supper, 379. the center of all our wishes, 501. 692. 693. Heauen on earth, 292. 293. 546
 Heauen in beauen, 373. 381. 392. 393. 427.
 777. a reward of mercy, not of merit, 195. 196.
 379. 393. 420. 515. 693. 765. many mansions in heauen, and degrees of glory, 692. 693. 759 in heauen, fulnesse of ioy to the understanding, 900. fulnesse of ioy to the will, 901. fulnesse of ioy to the memorie, 902. fulnesse of ioy to the seeing, 903. fulnesse of ioy to the hearing, 904. fulnesse of ioy to the rest of the senses, according to their blessed state, 905. the ioy thereof unutterable, 906. the uses of this heavenly doctrine, 906. 907
 Hell on earth, 170. hell in heli, 187. 373. 374. 687 degrees of punishment in hell, 420. diuers significations of hell, 956. Hell paines make a fourefold impression in the soules of men, 899. the paines of losse more grieuous than the paines of sense, 918. 961. Hell paines infinite, 946. 957
 958, &c.
 Hereticks are false Prophets, 429. their fashions,
 155. 229. 485. 572. 731. how to be punished,
 185. why God suffers them, 429
 Herodians, 548
 Historic, 433
 Holinesse, 241. 243
 Holy dayes appointed by the Church, 784 Holy Ghost God, 23. 336. 440. proceeding from the Father and the Sonne, 337. 338. the Spirit, 23. 233. 337. the spirit of truth, ibid. our comforter, 65. 336. the sending of the Holy Ghost on Whitunday, 341. 342
 how

THE TABLE.

how the Disciples were filled with the Holy Ghost, and how wee may know the Spirit to be within vs, 343.426. how quenched, 243

Honestie,	148.313
Hope, 552. how differing from faith, 213. 566. 777
Humilitie, 32. 106. 299. 383. 384. 651. 758. 762	775
Humane learning cited in Sermons,	467
Hyperboles in the Bible,	613
Hypocrites, 181. 283. 326. 388. 395. 431. 432
	485. 619. 816. 883. 892. 894. 898

I

I acobs seed, and the true Iacobines, 15. 800. 857
1911. Iacob and Esau resemble the flesh and the spirit, 852
Ialeneffe,	487. 519. 520
Idolatrie, 106. 237. 440. 447. 616. Idolaters and other ignorant in the worship of the true God, are barbarous people, 855
Iesting,	56
Iesuites,	190. 224. 508. 572. 937. 969
Iewes, Gods peculiar people, 13. 152. their conversion, 560. 561. enemies to Christ, 919. their punishment, ibid.
Ignorance, 306. 440. it is not the mother of denotion, 970
Images,	49
Imitation, how we may follow other, 128. 381. 545
how God, and man, 165. 251. 252. 308. 395
Indulgences,	407
Infants martyred for Christ,	617. 620
Infirmities in good men,	346
Ingratitude;	320. 466. 482
Inuocation of Saints,	328. 567
Iubilation,	30
Iudas, a merchant, 282. 285, his fault inexcusable, 644. there be many Iudasses, 284
Iudges, 668. 965. 966. iudging of our selues, 59
94. of other, 357. 396. Iudgement of men vncertaine: concerning themselves, 890. and touching other. 891. Iudgement of God is certaine concerning both, 892. Iudgement of God vpon sinne; 11. 150. 603. 916. 946. the generall iudgement certaine, 88. 89. at hand, 76. 332. yet vncertaine when, 90. in that day the righteous are blamelesse, 515
Iustificacion by faith alone apprehensiuē, 326
456. 465. 476. 485. 505. 513. 557. 560. 622.
823. by Christs grace effectiue, 307. 352. 468
476. 485. 557. 621. Iustificacion consists in two things, 307 no man ought to iustifie himselfe, 308

K

K ings, and Common-wealths honoured by the Gospell, hated by poperie, 550. the things of Caesar, ibid. Kings of England famous for religion, 557. stiled Gods, 810. 910. The Lords appointed and sonnes of God, 826. The duties of Kings, 830. 836. Their condition in the world vncertaine, 889. They may not respect the persons of men, 668. All subiect to the higher powers, 158. 159. Princes ought to be mercifull, nursing fathers, not cursing tyrants, 415. 550
yet not too popular, 723
Kingdome of God vsed in the Scripture diuersly, 853
Kingdome of Christ, 810. 812. 829. 447. 932.
933. difference betweene Christ and other kings, 824
Kisses of Christ,	833. 927
Kissing of Christ,	833. 927
Knees of euery thing bow to Christ, 280. 811.
Kneeling in prayer,	153. 598. 688
Knowledge, arts, 292. humane learning may be cited for illustration of poynts in diuinitie, 467
Knowing of our duty precedes doing, 831

L

L abour in our vocation, 225. 401. 436. 569
Last things,	90
Law taken for all the Scripture, 267. exposition of the decalogue, 45. why read at the Communion, 58. the lawes government, ends at the coming of Christ, 113. 114. 470. 721. the civill use thereof, 469. the spirituall, 470. 638. 649. why the ministracion of death and killing letter, 460. 471. the law like Hagar, 267. 271. preached with the Gospell, 46. 353. common Lawyers, 290
Laughing ascribed to God,	828. 829.
Legion,	176
Lent,	221. 223
Leper, leprosie,	152. 154. 155
Letanie composed after Dauids order,	821
Libertie, how farre Christians are free, 269. 270
Liberalitie,	737
Life present full of euill, 38. 188. 295. 298. 442. 496. short, 188. 444. 714. 879. 880. 884. a warfare, 230. 531. 756. euerclasting life, 26. 398. it is the gift of God, 190. 196. 197. 393 420. how the crowne of Iustice, 765. the boyes thereof, 901
Light, God is Light,	606
Limbus patrum,	912
Liturgies, how lawfull, 646
Loue the complement of the law, 48. 75. 204. 251

THE TABLE.

344. 363. 481. 517. the neerer the dearer,
 151. 475. 611. yet wee must loue our enemies,
 147. 156. 354. 398. 415. 495. 599. the breadth of loue, 495. loue doth exceed all other vertues in use and continuance, 204. 213. con- sisting in doing more then in saying, 377. 378 yet in suffering more then in doing, 210. 949. how it chuses a multitude of sinne, 333. it com- meth of God, 363. how God is loue, 364. it hath two companions, 540. our neighbours to be lo- ued as our selues, 475. how that is the second commandement, 517. how to loue God with all our hearts the first and greatest, 474. 516 Lust, why called fleshly, 230. 312. the heat there- of cooled foure wayes, 487
 Luther, 192. 765
 Lying, 39. 56. 482

M

M Agdalene visiting Christs sepulcher, 397 an Apostle to the Apostles, 298 Magi, whence they came, and when, and who, 631
 632. their gifts, 634
 Magistrates, 160. 162. 822. 936. why called gates, 911
 Magnificat, 28
 Man, 345. 702. his basenesse, 879. 880. his digni- tie, 881 Manichees, abuse the text, he set his tabernacle in the Sunne, 793 Marriage honourable, 140. 141. 142. 616. what guests are fittest for a wedding, 143 Mary a perpetuall virgin, 21. 658. why affianced to Ioseph, 659. 660. how full of grace, 32. 668 not without sinne, 31. 663. her low estate, 32
 642. pitie, 144. good huswiferie, 661. how God was with her, 665. how bl-ssed above other wo- men, 33. 666. Maries Mater nostra, 145. the Fiers playing upon the word Maria, 663
 Martyrdome, 306. 493. 602. 765. 815. 856.
Schismaticks and Papists are not true martyrs,
 305. 491. a threefold martyrdome in Christs cause, 618. martyrdome without shedding of blood, 603
 Masse, 62. 273. 819
 Mecanicall trades, 128
 Meditation and prayer should talke together.
 Mercifulnesse, 394
 The Mercies of God, 914. not passive, but active,
 519. how sung for euer and euer, 807. 808.
 939. the breadth of Gods mercie, 864. the length of Gods mercie, 865. 943. the depth of Gods mercie, 863. the height of Gods mercie, ibid. mercies of God ouer all his workes, 940. 941.
mercie and truth are met in God, 802. in man,

803. in Christ God and man, ibid. he cannot de- niemerice, 247. what is meant in the Scrip- ture by the mercies of Dauid, 806
 Merit and merit-mongers, 453. 494. 707
 Merits are the gift of God, 5. 198. none is iust- fied by the workes of the law, 197. 469. 475 yet euery man hath a Pope in his belly, 111 Midst, Christ in the midst, 584
 Ministers, how called priests, 273. how pastours,
 309. the worthinesse of their calling, 81. 92.
 101. 107. 138. 156. 157. preach most who liue best, 14. 224. 275. 308. 359. 401. 442.
 545. 570. 578. 672. 697. by whom sent, 304.
their worke, 97. 110. 123. 138. 151. 164. 199.
 201. 203. 223. 225. 305. 315. 359. 374. 401.
 403. 480. 494. 507. 513. 539. 546. 548.
 567. 569. 572. 643. 660. 667. 699. 712.
 763. exposed to malice and enny, 224. 265.
 369. 400. 681. 738. 743. 764. reward and reuerence due to them, 514. 574. 682. 738.
 754. the terme minister is not contemptible,
 689. foure kindes of ministers, 308. our Church furnished with sufficient ministers 309 Miracles, 158. Christ manifested himselfe to bee the Messias by miracles, 151. 462. 524. wee need no new miracles, 656. true miracles knowne from false, 265. miracles in Israels deliuerance from out of Egypt. 855. 856
 Mirth at meales, 512
 Morall duties before ceremoniall, 154
 Mortification, 125. 425
 Mothers loue their children more then their fa- thers, 741
 Multitude, not to be followed for their number, 123. 611. 827
 Murmuring, 388
 Murther, wee may not kill other, 54. much lesse our selues, 37. 294. it is a kinde of sacrilege, 620 Musique of the Church, 180. musiques wonder- full effects, 875
 Mysticall body of Christ, 137

N

N Ames given in Baptisme, 624. 718. Gods people did vsually name their children after the names of their ancestors, ibid. imposition of names a dutie belonging properly to parents, especially to the father. 659. 719 Necessity two-fold, 645
 New-man, 78. 518. 703
 The Nothing of man, is made something with God. 944
 Nunc dimittis, 36
 Oathes,

THE TABLE.

O

Oaths, by whom, and for what end to be taken, 823 Oath of God concerning the Messias, 817. 818
 823 Offering of the Virgin Marie, 641
 Oppression, 244
 Order in all things, 510. 557
 Ordering of Ministers, 567. 568
 Originall sinne, 418

P

Paines of losse more grievous, than paines of sense, fol. 918
 Papists, a barbarous people both in their doctrines and doings, 859. their preaching, 798. their religion upstart, 184. 277. their lying and forgery, 80. 489. their Idolatry praying to the Virgin and other Saints, 36. 145. 163. 237. 249. 277. 329. 330. 567. 616. 780. 781. their cruelty, 185. 278. 338. 602. 786. 815. 840. their fooleries, 843. their treacherie, 224. 359. 786. their uncleane chastitie, 226. 616. their railing on the Gospell, and iniuring of the Scriptures, 276. 344. 433. their not communicating with us, is in them a point rather of state, than any opinion, 507
 Poperie, the kingdom of darknesse, 69. 970
 Parables, 112. why Christ used parables, 201. parable of the lost sheepe, 388. 389 Parents to be honoured, 53. 54. 134. their dutie to their children, 131. 250. 647. why mothers are more fond of their children than fathers, 741
 Partialitie, 668. 960
 Passions of men ascribed to God secundum effectum, not secundum affectum, 817
 Patience, 149. 224. 553
 Peace, 862. Preachers ought to praise God for peace more than other men, in respect both of danger and dutie, 863. Peace threefold, 38. 167 how farre peace with all men, 150. 151. seeking of peace, 399. the wicked haue no peace, 167. Christ is our peace, 585
 Perfections of Christians imperfect in this life, 24 95. 494. 514. 515. 562. 579. 607. 611. 688. 715. 740
 Persecutions and tribulations for the Gospell are the markes of Christ, 493. Persecutors of the Church chiefe sinners, 985 Perseuerance, 189. 483. 768. 897. 907. 928.
 Peter, a Peere, not a Prince, 304. 305. 644 not the Churches Rocke, 577. 733. 734

Philosophers, 286. 292. 467. 731
 Pilgrims, 312
 Phyllicke, 154. 318
 Plague, 175
 Pope, an Anti-god, 46. 502. 503. the greatest Puritan, 579. a Iudas, 285. his office not named, amongst the degrees of Ministers, 80. ignorant Popes, 266. ungodly Popes, 508 Popes supremacie, 10. 277. 501. variance about the successor of Peter, 503
 There was a Pope Ioane, 490
 Poore may serue God as well as the rich, 230 diuers kindes of poore, 752. 773. 774. the poore in spirit, fol. 775. 776
 Prayer, motives to prayer, 1. 326. 332. why God defers our sute sometime, 327. 717
 Why the Lords Prayer used so much in our Liturgie, fol. 2. an exposition of it, b. Prayers are to be made to God onely, 9. 328. 329. 493. 567. 648
 Prayer for our selues, 28. 327. 331. 597. for others, 43. 463. 523. for all men, 43. Prayers are to be built upon Gods mercy, not upon mans merit, 822. importunitie in prayer, 166. 219 717. comely gestures in prayer, 9. 452. 453. 493. 598. Prayers to be made in a known tongue, 68 in faith, hope, charitie, 717. publique prayers in the Temple, 132. priuate prayers, 142. heartie prayers, 29. 181. 333. short prayer, 247. the power of prayer, 725. 726
 Praise of God, 6. 181. why to be praised, and how, 81. 13. 29 35. 47. 320. 356. 496. 779. 807. 808 846. 847. 861. 862. 932. foure kinds of praises answering foure kindes of prayers, 934
 Preachers, the voyce of a cryer, 107. 108. in the wilderness, 109. the end of preaching, 110. Preachers are Prophets, 138. Preachers are helpers in diuers respects, 223. plaine preaching, 315 416
 Preferment is from God, who raiseth poore men out of the mire, 848. and puts downe the mighty from their seat, 849 Pride, the first and the last sinne, 32. 454. foure kindes of proud men, 451. pride and enuie the proper sinnes of Satan, 454. a mountaine, 110 111.
 Priests are the worst among Papists, 508
 Princes are shields to Gods people, 936
 Prisoners of Christ, 627
 Prognostications and predictions, 315
 Promises of God, 468. 469. Promises of God are the chiefe part of the Scripture. 822. they be conditionall, 823. the wicked abuse them in applying them vnto their selues, 825
 Pronounes, great diuinitie in pronounes, 28. 87
 Prophecie fulfilled foure wayes, 79. three kindes of Prophets, 100. who bee now Prophets, 128 680.

THE TABLE.

680. how called, 430. Prophets, Euanglists, and Apostles, the same, 680. Prophets spake by the motion of the Spirit, 920. false Prophets,	428.
Prosperitie, more dangerous than aduersitie,	301
Protestant pastors are worst used,	931
Providence, 385. 737. Gods providence,	847. 838
Psalmes in Diuine Seruice, 7. 180. other Hymnes, 12. why Benedict. Magnif. and Nunc dimit. used so much, ibid. the difference betweene Psalmes and Hymnes,	180
Pvblicans,	751
Purgatorie,	178. 186. 546. 687
Purifying of women, 638. 639. Marias purification,	639. 640

Q

Queene Elizabeths commendation, fol. 514	786. 936
Questions captious,	549

R

Rabbins,	359
Racha,	413
Redemptiour of the world, a greater act than the creation,	920
Reioycing, the good man is the merry man, 30. 82	103. 171. 652
Reioycing in the Lord, 30. 102. 696. our ioy shall be full in the world to come,	606
Religion, we may not be mangle-manglers in Religion, 445. Religion of the reformed Churches most opposite to the children of this world,	827
Reliques,	556
Repentance, foure things required in true repentance, 906. not to bee deferred, 124. 297. 831	907. 907. 390.
heartie repentance, 491. ioy in heauen for the penitent, 390. repentance consisteth in mortification and viuification, 405. 519. the vertues of a penitent,	155
Repetition,	242. 315
Reproofe, if discreet no reproach.	56. 414
Reprebate mentaste of Gnds mercy,	941
Residence, what kinde of Non-residence commendable, 310. Christ not alway resident upon one benefice,	462
Restitution necessarie,	74
Resurrection fol. 807. 85c. the Basis of all other articles of faith, 26. 449. 565. 646. how wee shall rise againe, 547. resurrection of Christ, 918. the benefits thereof, 867. 868. Christs resurrection a demonstration of ours, 586. 716

the Christians comfort, 600. Christ rose with his wounds,	303. 304
Reuenge forbidden,	149
Riches, 368. 490. their burden,	953
Righteousnesse euangelicall doth excell the Pharisaiicall in foure point, 408. Christ is our righteousnessse,	562
Rogation weeke, why so called,	326
Rome, spiritually Babylon and Egypt, 859. new Rome differing from old Rome.	891

S

Sabbath,	50. 202. 583
Sacraments are signes and seales of Gods grace, 623. 655. 869. the butons of the Churches garment, 929. the cup belongs to the people, 62
Christ not grossly present, 106. 293. why the Hymne Glory to God on high, used at the celebration of the sacrament,	64
Sacriledge,	285. 446. 447
Sacrifices & diuinities, 124. 977. the condition of the sacrifices, ibid. 112. 113. 127	976
Saints on earth are more than conquerors in heauen more than Emperors, 889. how the Saints in heauen remember their misdoeds and misdeeds in this valley of teares,	80
Saints communion, 125. 174. the use of Saints lining, 770. 771. the use and benefit of the memories of the blessed apostles and other Saints, 563. 780. the Papists false seruises, 249
780. no Saint George, 781. Saints not to be worshipped, 661. 662. their vertues are their reliques,	780
Salutations among Gods people. 26. 665. objections against ordinarie salutations answered,	413
	414
Saluations assurance,	987
Satisfaction of the Papists, contrarie to the Gospels doctrine,	544. 607. 713
Schismaticks, 189. 199. 211. 239. 324. 404. 426
453. 507. 512. 539. 540. 603. 640.
Schollers are said in Scripture to sit at the feet of their Masters,	933
Schoolemen,	242. 303. 969
Scriptures authoritie, 84. 85. 796. sufficiencie, 236
612. 796. antiquitie, 84. vtilitie, 85. 612. 797
798. the new Testament hidden in the old, 16
215. 362. 667. their agreement, 79. 215. 589
711. difference, 589. to be read in the mother tongue, 85. 216. 798. with preparation and attention diligently, 46. 178. 179. 206. 236. 387
400. 473. the sense is the soule of Scripture, 203

University of California
SOUTHERN REGIONAL LIBRARY FACILITY
405 Hilgard Avenue, Los Angeles, CA 90024-1388
Return this material to the library from which it was borrowed.

RE

MA

Form L9-1

3 1158 00772 7257

UC SOUTHERN REGIONAL LIBRARY FACILITY

D 000 375 240 9

University Southern Library