A Man's Life and His World

MAN'S life is as large as the world he lives in, and a man's world is what he knows, what he loves, and what he does. How much of this great universe is your world? All that is known to you. Of the things that are small or great, near or far, inanimate or animate, transient or enduring, all that you have perceived, thought about, and understood, is your world. How much of this great universe is your world? All that is within the range of your sympathies. Whether things or men; whether members of your own family, your neighbors, your fellow-citizens, or the whole wide world of men—to whatsoever, or whomsoever, your affections go out, that is your world. How much of this great universe is your world? Everything that you have added to the sum-total of created things—to plant a tree or an idea, to build a house or a life, to increase in any way the resources of mankind, is to enlarge by so much the world you live in.

Thus the growth of a man's world is the measure of the growth of his life. As knowledge increases, as love is broadened, as deeds become more effective, life is correspondingly enlarged and perfected. Herein is realized the divinity of man. Herein is fulfilled his destiny. For the universe is God's world, and is the measure of His life. In proportion, therefore, as man's knowledge, sympathy, and deeds become universal, does he, in very truth, share the life of his Maker.

Class History

“Let us be cheerful. Without regret for the past, with contentment in the present, and with strong hope for the future.”

Like every class in the past, “NINETEEN HUNDRED AND TWENTY-THREE” has passed in review before the “College Window.” With a spirit of reminiscence we now stand at the window and wonder how well we have marched: Have we kept step all the way? Have we been halted in our march forward? Have we kept our head and eyes to the front? Are we prepared for our final inspection?

Our history is unique. We have had to meet many new challenges, and have done our best to make our actions count for the advancement of “Old Springfield.” With blissful ignorance we set foot upon campus in the fall of 1919. The aftermath of the war was still in the air. Some of it came in with our class; and with that restlessness of spirit pervading the student body as a whole, many scrappy experiences resulted which helped to mold a unity in our Class, interpreted in terms of the “Ole-Fight.” Our four years has been a period of transition in the history of the college, and without any spirit of egotism we can safely say that 1923 has made many contributions. One outstanding fact about our Class is that practically every member has been active in some phase of college life: Athletics, student government, class activities. Every man has contributed something. Our task has been one of regeneration, in the life of the college; we have functioned: Function makes for character, and we feel 1923 has molded a Class character which is commendable.

Entering almost one hundred and fifty strong, green to the many "idiosyncrasies" of college life, and with a spirit of submissiveness and meekness that would have astounded "Ghandi," we were terrifically paddled by the unsympathetic Sophomores into a realization of what they termed the "Springfield spirit." Bedecked with little green skull protectors, we started on our first year, absorbing everything that came our way; some of us even soaking up a little of Lake Massasoit.

The gladiatorial gods of ancient days must have caused their spirits to hover around the campus along about the middle of the college year, and especially imbued our spirits with the ambition to conquer at all costs. We first gave vent to our feelings in an attempt to rush the Sophomore Banquet at the Bridgway Hotel, and soon after, our Freshman flag floated high above the Dormitory. Our Sophomore Banquet at the Hotel Cooley, successful despite the attempt of the Freshmen to break it up, brings back many memories. Our valient fight for the "Totem" two years ago will never be forgotten, nor will the "Great Naval Battle" of Power House Point over our class canoe.

Our greatest contributions have, perhaps, been made as upperclassmen. Winners of the basketball and wrestling championships in our Junior year, we also placed second in the totals of the three Fall Sports. The success of the annual College show, "Twenty-One," the finest musical comedy ever given in the College, is attributed almost wholly to Twenty-Three.

Now we find ourselves taking the last hurdle. As the final count is being made, we feel proud as a class that not only have we accomplished much in the various activities of college life, but have set a standard of scholarship which any class would be justly proud.

Many other features of our college life might be published if space permitted. As the closing days of our Senior year are drawing near, the realization of fellowship, which we call the "Springfield spirit," permeates our whole being. We owe much to Old Springfield, and our prayer as we leave its sanctified walls is that we may graduate taking with us character, capacity, and culture, that will radiate to the outside world the true ideals of Springfield.

To thee, our beloved Alma Mater, we bow our heads in reverence and gratitude.

"A place in the ranks await us,
We each have some part to play,"

and old '23 shall not be found wanting.

Class History

After three years spent in developing intellect and personality by our college life and study, it is hard to realize that we were once a group of ignorant and unassuming Frosh. Unsophisticated is the word. Our ranks have been considerably thinned since that time, some falling by the way-side because they were not willing to pay the price of increased capacity and knowledge.

Our first days on campus were impressive ones. We saw stern professors with towering foreheads go passing by. The lofty Seniors passed with wrinkled brows, looking as if they were solving all of the world's social problems, when they were actually thinking about quizzes. We were worried and rightfully so. How were we ever going to stand the intellectual pace which the upperclassmen openly professed to have attained? This question has answered itself. We are the initiated, we know all about it now. Three outstanding events overshadow everything else which happened to us as Frosh. Our winning of the Soph-Frosh football game was a victory never to be forgotten; and then our canoe scrap on Lake Massa-soit will go down in the archives of class fights as being absolutely original; and then the class banquet serap at the Cooley Hotel, which we still contend was won by us.

As Sophs, we promptly forgot all of our troubles as Freshmen, and proceeded very energetically to assimilate the green clad towheads of '25. Another class football game was hotly contested, resulting in a O—O score. We accomplished our desire. The Frosh didn't take off their caps. Until Faculty intervention became necessary (according to the Faculty story) we had won the Soph-Frosh Banquet fight, when they attempted to hold their feed in Holyoke and we captured their officers and had them imprisoned in a cellar in Forest Park for a day. The Faculty demanded an armistice, the result being that we held our class banquet on the campus, something never before heard of in collegiate circles.

And now we are upperclassmen! Oh boy! Isn't it great to walk around the campus without a hat? We are the intellectual. Oh, what responsibility! Of course, with the advent of Juniorship comes the responsibility of putting out a year book. The book has not yet gone to print, but we have seen some of the stuff, and we are sure that it will be the best ever. Oh yes, and the Prom. We couldn't forget that if we tried. Well, we won't write up the Prom until it is over, but you just wait. As underclassmen, we were somewhat skeptical about any of our class ever having the ability to fill the important offices of the Student Association. But men do arrive and we did. The offices have all been filled with capable men and we will soon take over the responsibility of a senior class with the prospect of a successful year.

Class History

Oh, East is East and West is West,
 And never the twain shall meet
 Till earth and sky stand presently
 At God's great judgment seat.

But there is neither East nor West,
 Border nor Breed nor Birth,
 Where praises sound and rocks rebound
 To tell of Springfield's worth.

Men there were, from many lands, in nineteen twenty-one,
 Came to the shores of Massasoit for four years of work and fun.
 And some were wise, and some were fools, and some were much alive,
 And they were known at Springfield as "the class of twenty-five."

As we stood there, a motley crew, the Soph'mores took a hand.
 They led us round the campus and they sang, "Ain't nature grand!"
 They led us through a wondrous maze, and when we seemed in doubt,
 A paddle was most wisely plied to try and help us out.

Time rolled around, as time it will, and another year was here,
 And the season for class banquets was drawing very near.
 The plans were laid for a goodly feed at Hotel Nonotuck,
 But with officers all captured, we seemed to have no luck.
 'Twas then that desperation made us exceeding wise,
 And we tied the Soph class up to give them a surprise.
 A truce was formed between the two, at Doctor Mac's request;
 'Twas well for them that he did so. We did not mean to jest.

There came a play called "Twenty-One." It was a huge success.
 And in the histrionic line no peer would we confess.
 The "ladies fair" and gentlemen, that acted from our class,
 Created a sensation that but very few surpass;
 And welded in a common cause and strengthened in our might
 We won the spring sports carnival after a mighty fight.

After summer vac. and we came back with all our Sophomore strength,
 We thought we'd boss the lowly Frosh, and told them so at length.
 Alas! We did not realize that they, too, had some schemes,
 And a call of "Come and lick the Frosh!" awoke us from our dreams.
 In dead of night, when all was still, they to South Field repaired;
 And when the morning ended night, their banner boldly flared.
 We did the best we could to fight, but all without avail;
 The Frosh kept high their banner bright, but we did not turn tail.
 The banner scrap ended our nap, from then we wanted blood;
 And in the Soph-Frosh football game they landed with a thud.

Again the time for banquets came and we had made our plan,
 But the faculty objected and on scraps they put a ban.
 This led to an arrangement which was absolutely new—
 The classes had their banquets, but they had one for two.
 So the classes got together and enjoyed the gay repast,
 And thus we were united in bonds we believe will last.

And thus we've worked throughout the year, scarcely with a pause,
 Helping along in every way in every worthy cause.
 Our White Arrow Club greets strangers in a friendly sort of way;
 Though their work is not spectacular, they're busy every day.

In every sort of effort we have given of our best;
 In every game of every kind our men have stood the test.
 We have placed in almost all class games during the present year;
 As we look into the future, there is little that we fear.

For there is neither East nor West,
 Border nor Breed nor Birth
 When the class of "twenty-five"
 Sing songs of Springfield's worth!

Class History

We came not amid the blare of trumpets or a multitude of flying flags, not that we did not merit it, but because we were Freshmen.

As by secret order of an omnipotent Potentate we silently appeared on campus and rapidly grew in numbers. On September 23rd, we mustered well toward one hundred and fifty "wearers of the green."

Alas, we did not grow in wisdom as rapidly as we did in numbers, and on the second day of October we began to cram new and diversifying experiences into our boxes of memories. The chain gang proved the "hit" of the evening. Yet we must say that everyone came up smiling, much to the credit of our austere body.

One evening of the same month a sinister plot was conceived whereby we were to have the opportunity to show our "wim and wigor." During the dead of the night preceding October 14th, mysterious forces were at work. As a result, the first streaks of dawn revealed in splendor the flag of 1926 flying in the breeze. Tacked to a pole firmly planted in South Field it proved an eyesore to the Sophomores. In less time than it takes to tell a gory battle raged about the pole. The earth was torn up, cries rent the air, the sound of ripping shirts mingled with the thud of a stricken warrior as Mother Earth received him to her bosom. The enemy retired several times to perfect some new strategic plans, but we always met the fresh onslaught with greater power, and victory crowned our efforts. Hail! Freshmen.

We came, we saw, we conquered but were conquered. On Pratt Field we bowed in defeat to the Sophomore football team. It was a titanic struggle, yet to the victor belong the spoils. For half the game our boys proved their masters but experience and variety of attack combined to take victory from us in the second half.

The Freshman varsity teams showed cleverness and all-around ability but heavy schedules gave the impression of weakness not really present. The football team did well against such teams as Dartmouth Freshmen and Brown seconds. The basketball team proved a fast combination but followed by misfortune. Most of their losses were sustained by but a few points. The soccer team which was our real star team have won all the games of a long schedule, defeating Holyoke High's team and breaking their long string of victories. Varsity men are doubtless in our midst.

Wonders never cease. The Freshmen and Sophomores buried the hatchet and ate and drank together on the evening of February 15 at the Hotel Kimball. In view of the several regulations concerning class banquets, and weather conditions, it was deemed inadvisable to have the traditional fight. Substitutions suggested were too mild for our tastes. We believe in a good blood and thunder fight or none at all.

Springfield surely may be proud of her youngest and coming years will show that they carry her standard high and many will receive "Her" benefits through our influence.

Class History

There are always some fellows who are going through this world who never find the right thing for themselves to do; that is, the work they like best. When they finally decide on the course which they intend to follow, they are confronted with the problem of getting prepared for it. They see that, in the case of real secretaryship in the Y. M. C. A., they must have a college education, or its equivalent.

Upon learning that the Springfield Y. M. C. A. College offers a preparatory course they are much relieved to find that they are enabled to continue their studies just about where they left off, probably from one to ten years ago. Filled with the desire for learning, much beyond that of the ordinary college student, they, almost without exception, make the best students in the school. They easily make the best secretaries after graduation, because they, almost all, have had experience before entering the college, in one phase or other of the work, and do not have to solve many new trying problems.

Just such men as those described make up the Prep. Class of '27. There are sixteen of them, who have become known on the campus, in one way or another, as fine fellows. Much is expected of them, and they intend to go far beyond that "much." Although they were not given any physical practice as the Preps received in former years, they have kept active. A basketball team was formed which went through a successful season. Baseball, tennis, and track teams were developed.

Physical Department Committee

The Physical Department Committee of the Student Association is made up of six men who are elected direct by the student body at spring elections. This committee, with the Graduate Manager, supervise and direct the intercollegiate and intra-mural activities of the college. This past year the following sports have been carried on: Football, soccer, cross-country, basketball, gym team, swimming, wrestling, baseball, tennis, and track. Beside conducting varsity sports, these are duplicated in the freshman class by having like teams. At the close of each season's sport, managers and assistants are chosen for the next year; letters and numerals are awarded, and budget discussed. By no means the least important of the activities conducted, are the intra-mural sports. Each committee member is held responsible to promote at least one sport in this way each year. This opens an excellent opportunity to men who have not varsity abilities to gain experience in the given sport, and form new contacts with each other. The strength of this committee is, that the same spirit of co-operation and ideals that govern our Association, of which it is a part, dominates these men in their carrying out the plans of our sport life at Springfield.

Football Season 1922

Frank Civiletto
Captain

THE advent of a new coach, winning six games out of eight on a hard schedule, and the country-wide recognition of Springfield's clean code of football ethics, combined to make the 1922 season one of the most eventful in Springfield College football history. Coach Edward J. Hickox, coming here one week before the opening of college, faced a difficult problem in preparing an eleven with which to open the season ten days later. But eight veterans remained on the squad and, due to injuries, only a few of these were able to play in the first game. Hickox was forced to use men of the second and freshman teams of the year before.

The fact that the football ability of the entire squad was unknown to him made the task a peculiarly difficult one for the new coach. The speed with which he rejected undesirable and recognized desirable material speaks well for his ability as a coach and a handler of men. Ten days after the starting of practice with a group of strange players, he had moulded together a team which opened the season in a 12 to 0 victory over Colby.

In winning six out of eight games Springfield scored a total of 89 points against 61 by opponents. Among the teams defeated by the Red and White are some which were classed among the strong elevens of the East. Holy Cross and the Army were Springfield's only conquerors, while among the list of victims are such formidable combinations as Fordham, Detroit, and Vermont. Colby, Connecticut Aggies and Stevens were the others defeated. Springfield was scored upon four times and an equal number of times held its opponents scoreless, was blanked but twice and that by Holy Cross and the Army.

One of the outstanding features of the season was the favorable comment upon Springfield by many of the well-known sport writers of the East. The element of surprise played a prominent part in gaining much of the publicity. The big surprise came early in the season when Vermont was defeated 7 to 0. Writers began to take notice of the little college which was heretofore not considered a serious menace to the reputations of the big teams. When Springfield defeated Detroit and Fordham later in the season the squad took its place among the elevens of this section.

The recognition of Springfield's football ability, while gratifying to local followers, cannot be considered as important as the awakening of writers to the fact that Springfield has a high standard of sportsmanship. There was nothing unusual in Springfield's attitude on the field to bring forth comment upon its clean type of play. The team played as all Springfield teams had in the past. However, in two games Coach Hickox's men adhered to their ethical standards in the face of unsportsmanlike conduct on the part of opposing players. These incidents, unfortunate as they were, served by contrast to bring Springfield's conduct into prominent relief. To quote from one writer, "Springfield plays clean football, so clean, in fact, that in the minds of many 'hard-boiled' football men, it borders upon the absurd." When picking all-New England teams many of the prominent Eastern papers frequently mentioned Springfield players.

The opening game with Colby was played at the Eastern States Exposition grounds in sweltering heat and clouds of dust which arose from the inadequately prepared gridiron. Although the contest resulted in a 12—0 victory, from the standpoint of football it was nothing exceptional. It served, however, to show that Coach Hickox had a team which was considered by many to be farther advanced than is usual in opening games.

As in the past, the eleven met the Army in the second game and was defeated, this time 35 to 0. Springfield's hopes of scoring on the Cadets with its frequently effective weapon, the forward pass, were not realized. One of the biggest surprises of Eastern football came with the victory over Vermont at Burlington. "Chief" Walmer carved himself a niche in Springfield's Hall of Fame on that memorable occasion by intercepting a forward pass and scoring in the closing minutes of the game. Chief's saying, "Vell, boys, ve did it," goes down in Springfield history.

DETROIT GAME, PRATT FIELD

HOLY CROSS GAME, WORCESTER

The next game, with the Conn. Aggies, was the first of a three-game home series. The Aggies were defeated 24 to 7 after throwing a big scare into the Red and White. The first half ended with Springfield trailing, 7 to 3. Here Coach Hickox's eleven staged a third-quarter comeback which resulted in the above-mentioned score. A week later, following what seemed at the time to have become a tradition, Springfield again came back strong in the third quarter and defeated Stevens on Pratt Field 23 to 2. The visitors led at the close of the second period 2 to 0.

The home series closed in a 6 to 0 victory over Detroit, a team which was expected by many authorities to be far superior to Springfield. The game was a repetition of that played by the two teams on Pratt Field in 1920, Springfield winning on a forward pass in the second quarter. Springfield's football reputation reached its maximum with the 17 to 0 victory over Fordham in New York. The Red and White was again victim of Holy Cross. The final game at Worcester resulted in a 17 to 0 defeat, casting a slight shadow on a season which may, in all events, be considered one of the best in the history of the college.

Gym Team 1922—1923

YMNASTICS, while not a competitive sport at Springfield, ranks high among the major athletic activities, and the winning of an "S" on the Gym Team is as great an honor as receiving the emblem in Football, Baseball, or Track. It is one of the most difficult teams to make, requiring a type of athletic ability which is not necessary for most other sports. The period of preparation for gymnastics is considerably longer and more strenuous than other sports. The fall practice begins well before the end of the football season, although the opening exhibitions are never given until after the first of the year. Practice continues almost daily throughout the season, which is fairly long, ending in the Home Exhibition, February 22.

The history of varsity gymnastics dates back to 1900. Four students who were interested in the work held practices which resulted in weekly exhibitions in connection with normal work. During that year the first outside exhibition was given in Ludlow. The success of the venture resulted in several invitations to perform at various Y. M. C. A.'s. The first regular schedule was accordingly arranged in 1902. At first, only apparatus work composed the programs. Later music and dancing were added along with tumbling and club swinging.

Prof. L. Schroeder was the first faculty coach, taking charge of the team in 1915. When he left for France in 1920, Prof. Leslie Judd took charge and has made an enviable record in the past few years. Prof. Judd's work in coaching the team during the recent season is commendable. With only one veteran left from the year before, Capt. Willard Ashbrook built up a squad of performers which not only outranked those of the past few seasons in ability but also in size. The squad was unusually large, eleven performers making their letters.

While there were not so many exhibitions as the year before, the team was well received in every instance. The Gym Team may be said to be one of the few which has an easy time in making up schedules. So great has been the demand for the team's appearance in various cities in the past few years that managers have an opportunity to pick and choose.

One of the best all-round performers on the squad during the past season was Captain-elect Lawrence Ludwig. Besides the performers who received letters, S. S. Todd received recognition as pianist. Manager F. McClumpha also received an award.

Besides the exhibitions regularly listed the team gave an exhibition for the Springfield Auto Club and another at the American Physical Education Convention held in this city during April.

THE 1922 track season may be considered an exceptionally successful one, due rather to the interest created in track athletics among students and the public than to the number of meets won. Last spring marked also the first real success of the annual Eastern Intercollegiate meet on Pratt Field.

Springfield won three out of four dual meets and placed third in the Intercollegiates. The season opened on Pratt Field, April 22, in a meet with Wesleyan. Coach Otto's athletes pulled out with a 68 to 67 win, defeating Wesleyan in the final event, the javelin throw. And it was this event that the visitors insisted upon adding to the list. Springfield had never before attempted to use the javelin in competition.

The opening meet served to dispel many doubts in regard to the season's possibilities. Things had not looked any too bright at the beginning of the practice season. Unfavorable weather interfered considerably with the early work. The loss of Louis Watson through graduation left a vacancy in the sprints. The showing made by Ray Oosting and Bob Converse in the first meet disclosed the fact that Springfield was again to be rated high among the "speed artists" of the season. The new team was strong in the dashes, two-mile run, 220-yard dash, and pole vault. The second meet, which was with Worcester Tech at Worcester, resulted in a 94½ to 31½ victory for the Red and White.

E. I. A. A. MEET

May 13 brought something distinctly new in the line of Eastern Inter-collegiate track meets. For the first time in four years the meet was held in dry weather. Consequently, Association records were lowered in eight events and one former record was equalled.

Boston College for the third consecutive season took first place, with 50 points. New York University, a newcomer to the E. I. A. A., placed second. Springfield's third place was won by virtue of making 25½ points. The next closest contender was Holy Cross with 13 points. Springfield has the honor of holding two of the new records. Oosting, running against Driscoll of Boston College, a former Olympic athlete, set up a new record in the 220, making the length of the cinder path in 22 seconds flat. The former record of 22 2-5 seconds was held by Watson of Springfield.

Eldridge set the other record for Springfield in the two-mile run, making the eight laps in 10 minutes, 14-5 seconds. The former mark was 10 minutes, 21 4-5 seconds.

The other new records set were: Welch of Boston College in the one-mile, 4 minutes, 32 2-5 seconds; Kirley of Boston College, 880, 2 minutes, 2-5 seconds; Weatherdon of N. Y. U., high jump, 6 feet, 6-10 inches; Courtois of N. Y. U., broad jump, 22 feet, 3 inches; Weatherdon of N. Y. U., discus throw, 125 feet, 11½ inches.

West Point, the next opponent, gave Otto's charges an unmerciful trouncing at West Point, 91½ to 34½. A week later in the closing meet of the season Springfield defeated Northeastern on Pratt Field by a score similar to that which the Army piled up, 84½ to 32½.

Baseball — 1922

IEWING the 1922 baseball season from the standpoint of games won and lost, the results are gratifying, 11 of 16 games being on Springfield's side of the tally sheet. The outstanding feature of the season, however, was the building of a winning pitching staff from green material by Coach Prof. Elmer Berry.

The graduating class of the year before took with it practically all men with varsity mound experience. Nor was there a veteran catcher on hand to bolster up the pitching weaknesses. Berry accordingly started indoor battery practice shortly after the holidays and by the time weather permitted outside work he had a staff of pitchers who were well drilled at least in the fundamentals of twirling. The coach was aided in his indoor work by "Shanty" House, a former Springfield player and at present in professional ball. Other pitchers were called in to help in bringing the staff out of its embryonic stage. Among those helping in this capacity was "Chief" Bender.

Other positions on the team caused the coach less anxiety. The famed "Midget Infield" was again on hand. With Capt. "Brute" McCarraher on second, "Chick" Maynard on first, Bill Diemer at short, and "Dunc" Bennett on third, an infield problem did not exist. Outfielders were numerous and Berry's chief concern was the picking of fielders who had combined with their defensive acquirements, the ability to locate with accuracy the elusive "horse hide."

As a pre-season performance the team met the Springfield Eastern League nine at League Park in a pair of practice games. Although Springfield lost both games it gave Berry the desired information in regard to the respective abilities of his players.

The season opened with five straight wins. From that time on the team passed through a series of ups and downs, sometimes losing to teams that were not considered strong and at other times coming through with victories where they were least expected.

Berry took his team to Hamilton, N. Y., for the first scheduled game, there giving Colgate a 3 to 1 trouncing. At Syracuse the next day the university bearing the name of that city suffered embarrassment. The resultant score was 6 to 4. Northeastern opened the home season on Pratt Field. The game which was rather loosely played was a 10 to 6 win for the Red and White. Conn. Aggies next lost to Coach Berry's fast-moving nine. The 3 to 1 victory was costly, however. Capt. McCarraher injured a finger in practice before the game and was, consequently, kept out of a majority of the remaining game. With the 11 to 2 defeat of Providence College at League Park, Springfield's winning streak ended.

Brown was the stumbling block. The contest with Bruin in Providence brought a 6 to 1 defeat. Conn. Aggies were defeated by the same score in a return game at Springfield. The beating of Harvard at Cambridge, 2 to 1, may be considered one of the team's greatest accomplishments. It was in this game that Coach Berry had an opportunity to demonstrate the effectiveness of his famed "bunting game." Norwich, the next opponent, went down to a 13 to 3 defeat at Northfield, Vt. The next day Vermont University on its home grounds gave Springfield a 13 to 1 trouncing. Colgate avenged its earlier defeat in an 8 to 2 victory at League Park. Northeastern College dropped its second game to the Red and White at Boston 7 to 4. Then at Medford Springfield suffered its most serious setback of the season, losing 14 to 0 to Tufts.

The season closed with three home games. Holy Cross was victorious by a 13 to 3 score at League Park. Boston College lost to Springfield 3 to 1 on Pratt Field, and Syracuse came in on the long end of an 11 to 5 score.

THE cross country team of the past season was practically a new organization. Francis Robbins was the only letter man remaining from the year before. He was captain of the team and acted also in the capacity of coach, Prof. Otto having resigned the position because of other duties.

Starting with a group of sophomores, members of the freshman team of the year before, and one senior besides himself, Robbins produced a team which had little difficulty in upholding Springfield's cross country reputation. Out of four starts only one defeat is chalked up against Robbins' distance men, and that by only two points. In the past four seasons Springfield harriers have met defeat but three times. Harry Anderson, a newcomer to varsity cross country, was the only senior, besides Robbins, who made the team last fall. The sophomores were A. V. MacCullough, M. K. Corbin, and E. M. Nettleton. Nettleton proved the fastest man on the squad. His points for the season total but eight. Robbins is second in the matter of points, with 16.

Tufts' runners were responsible for the only defeat of Coach Robbins' charges. The meet, run over the home course, opened the season. The visitors managed to pull through with a 27 to 29 win in a close contest. The second meet, a triangular competition with Wesleyan and Williams as Springfield's opponents, brought victory for the Red and White. Springfield made 39 points; Williams came second with 41, and Wesleyan trailed with 44.

Running over Holy Cross' course, part of which led over a hard macadam road, Springfield defeated the Purple 27 to 28. The season closed in 20 to 38 victory over Amherst on Lord Jeff's own course.

Varsity Soccer

Capt. Wm. Chase

SOCCER is a sport which is fast coming into favor at Springfield. The success of teams in the past few years, while gratifying, has its drawbacks, as Springfield's soccer reputation makes it difficult for managers to secure games. As a result, Manager Engleman was able to book only four contests last fall. The eleven won three out of the four, defeating Clark University, Dartmouth, and M. I. T., and losing to Harvard.

Coach Affleck had a nucleus of six veterans around which to build his 1922 team. Besides these there were several second team men of the year before. It is hard to pick stars from last fall's squad, but some names stand out as those most often seen on the score sheets opposite "goals kicked." They are Grassi, Ko, Gorton, and Chase. Seven of the 1922 letter men will be lost through graduation in June, Capt. Chase, Chang, Lloyd, Burr, H. Davis, Simmons, and Pereyra. This will leave Grassi, Captain-elect Adams, Ko, Gorton, Ludwig, Nash and several subs with which to begin the 1923 season.

Springfield's loss to Harvard at Cambridge in the opening game of the season was the only defeat suffered by a Red and White soccer team in three seasons. Although Springfield led 2 to 1 at half time, the Crimson came back in the second half, winning 4 to 2. The second game which was with Clark University on the home field was a one-sided affair, resulting in a 6 to 1 defeat for Clark. The hardest game of the season came when Coach Affleck's booters crossed shins with the Dartmouth booters at Hanover. Playing on Dartmouth's trick field, Springfield came through with a 4 to 2 victory after having trailed at half time 2 to 0.

The season ended in a game on the home field with M. I. T. which resulted in a 3 to 0 win for Springfield.

Varsity Basketball

Capt. Dale Lash

THE recognition of Basketball as one of Springfield's major sports was one of the outstanding features of the 1923 season. Coupled with this event, the advent of a new coach and a remarkable record made by the team, makes the season stand out as one of the most eventful in the history of the game at Springfield.

Although Basketball was made a major sport during the recent season, the action does not have any bearing on the 1923 squad. Basketball takes its place officially among the major sports in 1924.

Professor Paul Otto, coaching varsity basketball for the first time, produced a team which ranked as one of the fastest college fives in the East. In 17 games only two were lost, and one of the defeats was in a post-season game with the local Y. M. C. A. The other loss was to the Army. Although the team has no official claim on the New England Collegiate Championship, it was not defeated by any New England five.

Coach Otto's five scored a total of 649 points against 361 by opponents. In the 15 victories the score was close but twice, in the Clarkson game at home and the Vermont game at Burlington. The Clarkson contest was the closest call of the season and the only real thriller on the home schedule.

Too much cannot be said of Coach Otto's coaching ability. He started the season with only two veterans and a bunch of ex-freshman team members. Although only five men made letters, the squad was exceptionally large, 16 men being on the list. The success of the season is due partly to the large squad. Otto not only produced a remarkable team but provided also for the future. His system developed a squad, the greater part of which will be present for the next two years. Capt. Dale Lash will be the only man lost through graduation this year.

Besides those earning letters the following men were considered regular members of the squad: Harold Bockoven, Ray Hanson, Lester Bursey, Harold Kistler, William Chase, L. E. Hutto, Andrew Sturm, F. C. Stull, Wm. Banks, Harold Gordon, and Walter Eckerson.

The outstanding victories of the season are those over Vermont at Burlington and Clarkson here. The Clarkson game came to a thrilling conclusion when Harmon Smith tied the score for Springfield just as the timer's gun cracked. The Red and White won by two baskets in the five-minute overtime period. The game at Burlington was hard-fought and one of the greatest disappointments ever handed the Vermonters.

Capt.-elect Paul Reddick won fame during the season as one of the best foul shooters in the East. Although the score in most games was too one-sided to have the result hinge on foul shots, Reddick's accuracy was directly responsible for one victory. He has a season record of 159 successful shots in 175 attempts.

Varsity Swimming

Captain
Edw. Abercrombie

THE varsity swimming team, which during the past season was built around two veterans of the year before, came through a heavy schedule of nine meets with two victories. Capt. Abercrombie in the dives and Chris Beukema in the sprints were the only experienced men at Coach Affleck's disposal at the beginning of the season. The absence of Eastwood, Nichols, and John Beukema in the speed events made the formation of a team rather difficult.

Chris Beukema, captain-elect, who had the year before been a 220 swimmer changed over to the sprints. He leads the scoring of the team for the season. Capt. Abercrombie was one of the squad's most consistent point getters, ranking second in the number of points for the season. His diving was a feature of nearly all meets. After the close of the season Abercrombie won fourth place in the National Intercollegiates held at Princeton.

The season opened with the swimmers taking a 41 to 9 drubbing in the Hanover pool at the hands of Dartmouth mermen. The next meet which was with Boston University in the home tank resulted in a 36 to 17 victory. But the team did not stay out of the rut long, losing to Amherst in Lord Jeff's swimming hole 47 to 21 in the next meet. Wesleyan also proved too strong for the Red and White in the meet which resulted in a 35 to 15 defeat in the Middletown tank. The next day Rutgers, at New Brunswick, outswam Affleck's men by a 50 to 18 score.

Williams was 20 points better than Springfield in the Williamstown pool, winning 35 to 15. R. P. I. did likewise in its own tank by a score of 31 to 22. The season closed with two home meets, Syracuse and R. P. I. being the competitors. Syracuse was victorious in its meet, winning the contest, 27 to 23, by taking the relay, the last event. The season ended in a 31 to 18 win over R. P. I.

Springfield scored a total of 190 points against 304 by opponents. The individual scoring records for the season are as follows: Beukema, 57½; Abercrombie, 36; Shepard, 29; Hyde, 16; Dillenbeck, 12½; LeBree, 12; Bullock, 11; Munson, 4½; Ellinwood, 4; Emmons, 2; Novarine, 2; Paine, 1¼; Norfeldt, 1.

Those members of the squad who made points but did not receive letters were: Everett Ellinwood, Harry Munson, C. A. Emmons, Ray Novarine, S. C. Paine, and E. Norfeldt.

VARSITY WRESTLING was somewhat handicapped during the past season because of difficulty in securing meets. Wrestling has been suffering from the same thing which is causing soccer manager's trouble. The team has been so good in the past two or three seasons that there is a noticeable inclination on the part of other colleges to have other meets booked on all occasions where it would be possible for Springfield to make a date. The winning of the New England championship in 1920, when the team was under the guidance of Kirk Montague, made other colleges take notice and they are still noticing. The loss of only one meet in 1921 and the winning of four out of six on a hard schedule in 1922 did much toward preventing other teams from competing in 1923. Only two meets were scheduled during the recent season. Both were won. Springfield defeated Brooklyn Polytech. in the opening meet on the home mat, 22 to 5. Brooklyn came here highly rated, having defeated Princeton earlier in the season. Capt. Staley secured the only fall in the meet. Pasho, Zimmerman, James, Thomas, and Mooney won their bouts on decisions. Rasch was the only loser, being thrown after receiving an injury in an overtime period.

In the second meet which resulted in a 25 to 10 victory over the Army at West Point, Springfield wrestlers took five bouts on falls. The Cadets' two matches were won also on falls. Pasho, Staley, Zimmerman, Thomas, and Mooney won. Rasch and Pfaender were thrown.

Staley, Pasho, Zimmerman, and Mooney were veterans, while Thomas, James, and Rasch were newcomers to the squad. Mooney, Pasho, and Zimmerman will be lost to the team through graduation. Harry Anderson, who has been coaching the team for the past two years, will also graduate.

Several members of the squad entered the New England A. A. U. meet held at Cambridge after the close of Springfield's schedule. George Zimmerman carried away the New England title in the 135-pound class. Later in the National A. A. U. meet he lost out for national honors.

Varsity Tennis

Capt. Lawrence Rockhill

TENNIS brought out an unusually large squad last spring. Twenty-five candidates were at the disposal of Coach John Brock when he started indoor practice. Capt. Bill Davison was the only letter man left from the year before. Four men of the 1921 second team were among the candidates.

The first match with the Yale seconds came before the team was able to get any outdoor work. The result was a loss, 6 to 0. The week following, Springfield defeated Worcester Tech at Worcester, 4 to 2. This was followed by a tie with Holy Cross.

At this point in the schedule Capt. Davison left college, producing a vacancy which was in a large measure responsible for the down-hill trend of the team's accomplishments. Lawrence Rockhill, a former second team man, was elected captain to take Davison's place. McCaskie was also placed on the squad.

Tufts was tied and a match was dropped to Harvard seconds, 5 to 1. The team continued in its losing streak. Clark defeated Springfield on the Pratt Field courts 6 to 0. Holy Cross came here and repeated the performance. Trinity won the next match at Hartford, 2 to 4. Middlebury, the last team on Springfield's schedule, won by the same score on the Middlebury courts.

Sports Receptions

HERE are three events during the College year that are ever uppermost in the minds of both the athletically and socially inclined. These are the Fall, Winter, and Spring Sports Receptions. It is fitting that our athletes who represent Springfield so nobly on the different teams receive their awards in a manner worthy of their efforts.

The presentations are now arranged so that they are the center of an evening's program of activities. This past year it has been found advisable to honor both the Varsity and Freshman Varsity teams at the same reception, although previously there were two separate functions. The West Gymnasium is tastefully decorated for these important events and dancing is enjoyed from eight until nine, when the presentations are made. These are in charge of one of the faculty members, and the various teams are called forward one by one to receive their well-earned awards, the coach or manager of the team speaking of the achievements of their men; and each one then has his certificate and emblem given to him. Dancing is then resumed for the balance of the evening.

The College social committee, who have charge of these receptions, spend considerable time, thought, and effort in making the affairs successful. The ladies' programs are usually in the form of favors; such as, vanity cases, pocketbooks, or small picture cases, while the men receive a leather covered dance program. Pictures of the various teams, with their schedules, are also part of both the ladies' and gentlemen's programs.

At the Fall Sports Reception the teams to be honored this year were the Varsity, Second, and Freshman Football Teams, the Varsity and Freshman Soccer Teams, and the Varsity and Freshman Cross-Country Teams. At the Winter Sports Reception the Varsity and Freshman Teams in Basketball, Gymnastics, Swimming, and Wrestling were honored, while medals were also given to the Interclass Boxing Champions. At the Spring Sports reception, teams in Baseball, Track, and Tennis will receive their awards, and the Senior cheer-leader is awarded his sweater.

The receptions this year have been very successful and have become a part of the social life of the College, and, with the co-operation of both the student body and the faculty, should be even more successful as time goes on.

The Annual Mountain Day

ONCE every year there comes a day to which all lovers of the out-of-doors look forward with the keenest of pleasure. This is the annual Mountain Day, planned and directed by the Social Committee. No classes convene on this day but everyone turns up in the morning dressed in their best hiking uniform, prepared to spend a few hours in close touch with nature.

Mountain Day this year came on the eighteenth of October, an autumn day made to order. After being ticketed (for dinner) and waiting the inevitable hour for the last truck to turn up, a happy crowd, two hundred and sixty strong, bade farewell to the Campus and turned their faces toward the foot of the Holyoke Range. After an invigorating ride of probably an hour and a half we arrived at the foot of the mountain. A few who felt that they must relieve their superfluous animal spirits immediately instituted a cross-country run up the mountain side, being trailed by the more sane and sedate hikers, who in turn were trailed by Prof. Burr's Ford, and, bringing up the rear, Chef Hall with the eats.

A stop in the day's proceedings invariably means a feed—and feed we did—steak and buns, cheese, and coffee and doughnuts, and apples and fresh air. After the first paper bagful had been disposed of, there were few of the hikers who had room left to call for “seconds.”

After lunch we all gathered around the Spring, while Dr. Kirkham gave a talk on the geology of the country, covering the history of the eight hundred million years that it had been in formation in about seven minutes. His talk was not only instructive but interesting to the extreme. Prof.

Cheney then mapped out briefly the various courses which might be followed during the afternoon, giving particular instructions as to how to reach Northampton and South Hadley, which seemed to be the two points of greatest geological interest. The trucks had returned to Springfield, as the various trails to be followed led in every direction and ended anywhere but the starting place.

It seemed that there were as many delegations as there were hikers. Some, including the Frosh football team, came back with the trucks. Others began immediately to bum their way toward Mount Holyoke College. Still others forsook the beauties of Smith and Mt. Holyoke for the beauties of nature and followed Prof. Cheney to the top of the mountain immediately back of our stopping place. The view from the summit, when it was finally attained, was worth all the climbing, and then some. There stretched the beautiful Connecticut Valley, hundreds of feet beneath. There, like a silver ribbon, was the winding river, between fields of green, dotted here and there with miniature houses, and cut up into irregular blocks by narrow, yellow lines which must have been roads. To the right were plainly visible Amherst College and Massachusetts Aggie, while to the left loomed up Mt. Holyoke, and way off in the hazy distance, old Graylock, at least fifty miles away

After feasting our eyes on this scene — and incidentally getting our breath back to normal — we again split up into smaller parties. What was left of the original number of hill climbers followed Prof. Cheney over hill and dale — up slippery inclines and down precipitous drops — toward the Summit House on Mt. Holyoke. Finally, we captured the foot of Mt. Holyoke proper, and then began another fierce ascent. Once again, the view was worth the climb — this time it was the discarded ox-bow bend that attracted our attention. After a score of narrow squeaks coming down the face of the mountain, where small stones and dirt and steepness combined to make falling easy and getting up hard, we finally reached the road. An apple orchard happily hove in view, and most of us stocked up for the winter.

Then commenced the getting home process, and coal trucks, flour trucks, delivery trucks, Pierce-Arrows, Fords, and even trolley cars were utilized to accomplish this purpose. It was a long and weary way for those unfortunate enough to need eight or nine lifts to reach Springfield— but, on the whole, it was a happy bunch that finally sat down to one of Chef Hall's best.

Initiations

HE making of a Springfield Man commenced a few days after the arrival on the campus of those young men who, regarding —well you know the rest: it's part of the Paris Basis. Some were meek, others wary, lest some of their big brothers play tricks on them or make them climb a tree to "coo koo," like a bird. Now and then the campus bore unfamiliar scenes as, a bold "Don Quixote," a would-be actor, or a devout-looking ascetic wrestling with temptation, all acting conscientiously for fear of the wrath of their superiors or the cold and damp arms of "King Massasoit."

The day of the informal initiation drew near causing in some, fear and trembling, others, that "you can't scare me" attitude; but, alas, the fateful night came. First came the banquet. Such an unetiquetted bunch —couldn't drink water without picking up the glass, couldn't eat soup with a fork, or—well, it was terrible, the mess they made. One disobedient and naughty boy would be seen playing monkey gymnastics from the ceiling, others, having a water duel. Well, a fine time was had by all. Soon it was time for assembly in the East Gymnasium. The Kiltie Band "struck up" and the procession of freshmen with their "bouquets de papier" and the upper classmen with their roughly hewn war-clubs gently tripped down to Court Square to be received by Mayor Leonard, who gave some very inspiring words. King Massasoit ended the ceremonies in front of the "Municiple Group" by reading the pledge to Springfield which all the freshmen accepted. The throng wended their way back to the West Gymnasium where the “green-topped youths” were warmly received—very warmly. After a shoe scramble took place the general ceremonies terminated and the yearlings went up the “cork screw” staircase to absorb the rest of their lesson.

The chain gang then was the center of interest and entertainment and were brought before the “King” to answer to the charges against them. The misconduct was reported and dealt with severely. The principal offence of these was the overstepping of “a freshman’s place” in the college circle. The night’s ceremonies were brought to a close by a feast of doughnuts and cider. It was pleasant to behold the good fellowship which was prevalent and which gave proof of a successful event.

The formal initiation was held Tuesday evening in the West Gymnasium. King Massasoit welcomed the faculty and guests. In darkness the freshmen were ushered in and were seated on the floor. Leo Staley, president of the class of 1924, greeted them. Very interesting and animated remarks were made by President Doggett, Dr. Philip Moxom, and Dr. W. B. Kirkham, dean of the freshmen. The members of the student cabinet each outlined his special duties and the scope of his department. The singing of the Alma Mater concluded the program after which refreshments were served by the White Arrow Club. This was the final touch in the preliminary process of the making of the true “Springfield Man.”

Union Banquet

ERILY, yea verily, the words of the sage are fulfilled, and the first dawns of the everlasting peace have been seen. For in what other way could the Union Banquet of the sophomore and freshman classes be taken? That these two classes, ever traditional enemies in all college circles, should unite in the most important events in their College careers, seemed to portend the arrival of a new era in life on the campus.

It was a far cry from the bloody battles that marked the banqueting in 1921 and 1922 to the peaceful burying of the hatchet early this year, which finally resulted in the union banquet of these classes. And great was the dismay of the upper classmen to whom it seemed that the very foundations of class spirit and unity were being shaken.

Yet—the swords having been beaten into plowshares—it was a merry crowd of underclassmen who sat down to a sumptuous repast at the Hotel Kimball on the evening of February 15th, the first banquet of its kind in the annals of the College. Contrary to the expectations of many of the upperclassmen, the entire affair was a peaceful one, nothing happening to mar the joyousness of the occasion. The toastmaster for the evening was Professor F. S. Hyde, and he handled his part in his original and inimitable manner. The first speaker of the evening was Dr. W. B. Kirkham, Dean of Freshmen, who spoke on the “Evolution of a Union Banquet,” tracing this process up through the ages. At the banquet the various men in the sophomore class were presented such varsity awards as they had earned and were given the privilege of wearing them, this right being reserved until after the Sophomore Banquet. The Freshman Varsity Teams were also presented with their numerals. The speeches that followed, both by the faculty and by members of each class, were interspersed by musical entertainment furnished by the Freshman Quartette and by Morgan’s Jazz Hounds.

In spite of the opposition which developed against the idea of a Union Banquet, the affair was a decided success. It can certainly be said that these classes have set a new standard in the College banqueting activities, which coming classes may do well to follow. Of course, the omission of the traditional fight was keenly felt by all members of both classes, but the maturer judgment of the men was to prevent further faculty-student wrangles by conforming to the rules set down by the faculty. “Yea, verily, the lion and the lamb shall eat together, and a little child shall lead them.”

ANOTHER year of history for the Student Association shows further growth and development beyond that of any previous year. With this growth has come the added interest and enthusiasm together with a team work of some one hundred and twenty-five officers which could only make for success.

The turn over of business done by the various departments will exceed that of former years by many thousands of dollars. With the increase of students the store and Commons have outdone any previous record. The athletic department, through its teams, will turn in profits equal to that of before. Lack of suitable equipment and meeting places handicaps the broadening of the social, musical, dramatic, and literary programs. This is also true of the various religious activities of the student life. Woods Hall at the present time can only adequately handle half of the plans laid out for student social and educational development. A new building which will give adequate opportunity for demonstration work is the great ideal of the Association at this time.

The opportunity for expression of the theory of the classroom has aroused the interest of the men for a desire to put it into practice. The training that this Christian Association offers is most novel for a college group. Here are practical business relationships, executive control, and team play demonstrated. This is carried out under the direction of the Cabinet of fifteen men, who are supervised by the Graduate Secretary and Manager. The retiring Cabinet has done excellent work and is being succeeded by men with like desires and aspirations.

HE Senate is an official, judicial, and legislative body, seeking to act as a mediary between the students and the faculty. It tests cases in regard to breaches of discipline and conduct out of harmony with Springfield ideals. It is also vested with the legislative power of enacting new standards of conduct when deemed advisable.

The work of this body is not alone confined to the Senate chamber. The Senators are obliged to interview men personally and suggest to them changes of conduct that will be in keeping with the traditions of the institution.

An added feature that the Senate has inaugurated this year, and we feel that it has been a great success, is the meeting with the two lower classes early in the year to present to them the policy of the organization. It was also found expedient to urge student support at a chapel service in the fall term, at which time there was a very enthusiastic response.

The Senate has endeavored to fearlessly attack irregularities among the students of the College. There have been limitations—limitations are inevitable for all such organizations—but we have conscientiously tried to do our duty as we saw it.

Our suggestion to future Senates is that there be a more distinct affiliation with the Student Association, in order that there might be greater co-operation between the two bodies.

The Congress

IN the last few years it became apparent to those to whom the Student Association was of vital interest that the monthly meetings of the entire student body were not satisfactory from a legislative standpoint. This was due, not to the lack of interest on the part of the men, but rather to the difficulty of handling such large numbers as attended the meeting. This difficulty was not apparent until the student body increased rapidly from a relatively small number to 100 men. It was then seen that some radical change would have to be made in the legislative organization. To this end the Cabinet recommended the following: "That the business of the Student Association be transacted by a representative body, elected by the classes whom they represent, the monthly session of this body to take the place of the regular monthly business meeting of the Association." This body was to be known as the Congress and composed of 10 per cent of the entire student body, divided as follows: Seniors, 40% ; juniors, 30% ; sophomores, 20% ; and freshmen, 10% . This was placed on trial for one year, and at the end of that time, in view of its success, these recommendations were incorporated into the Constitution of the Student Association.

Secretary	E. H. ELLINWOOD

THE White Arrow Club is the newest organization on the campus, and bids fair to being one of the most helpful and beneficial clubs in the promotion of Springfield spirit and in promoting the standards and traditions of Springfield College. It is the duty of each member to greet the incoming freshmen in the fall and to aid them in getting settled. Members of this organization are also at the service of the management of the various teams, and meet all visiting teams at the station, remain with them throughout their stay in the city, and do all in their power to make them comfortable and feel welcome while they are on campus.

These men are elected at the end of their freshman year by their class cabinet and remain in office during their sophomore year. These men are easily recognizable by their distinctive maroon hats with a white arrow on the front.

Kappa Delta Pi

THE Alpha Chapter of Kappa Delta Pi was formed in 1915, with the aim of "encouraging the development of scholarship, professional capacity, and personal character, in a symmetrical and winning personality, among its members and the students of the College." In 1920 the Beta Chapter was instituted at the Chicago Y. M. C. A. College, and in 1921 a permanent national organization was formed by representatives of these two chapters.

The insignia of this organization is a triangular key with the Greek letters Kappa, Delta, Pi, the initial letters of the Greek words for Character, Capacity, and Culture.

To be elected to this society a senior must be distinguished for his character as a Christian gentleman, his efficiency as a Christian worker, and his capacity for leadership. In addition to this, he must have maintained a high scholastic standing and have taken an active part in athletics or student activities.

The method of election to this society is an unique one. A committee of the faculty prepares a list of men who are, in their judgment, worthy of the key; each individual member of the faculty prepares a separate list; and each member of the senior class also makes up a list of the men he thinks worthy of a place in this society. From these lists the final choice is made.

It will be seen that the awarding of this key is more than an academic honor; that it is granted to a man by his fellows who for four years have "toiled, and wrought, and thought" with him.

Dramatics

HE season of 1922-'23 in dramatics marks a change in the nature of the productions given in contrast to the plays of the years immediately preceding. It might be called a reversion to the one-act plays of several years ago. Professor Hyde, promoter of dramatics in the college for many years, and a most able and enthusiastic leader and director, returned to us after an extensive study of the amateur stage in New York. Resuming charge of our endeavors, his knowledge and direction have been invaluable and account, in a large measure, for the success of the year's plays.

His return with the certainty that the one-act plays were coming into their own again in the amateur world, marked the advent of this year's efforts being confined thus in producing more plays instead of one large production which amounted to annual elaboration or spectacle. It was thought that, in having several one-act plays, more men might take part, and thus more readily fulfill the objective of dramatics in the College. While no organized club is enjoyed here, due to the great number of activities on campus, it is the purpose of the committee in charge that dramatics should be for the development of all those students interested and desirous of acting and learning how to produce plays, including all phases of the work, such as lighting, scenery, etc.

Our first production was an unusually difficult one, and was started soon after College convened in the fall. Nearly forty men tried out for ten parts, thus giving an indication of the interest of the student body in activities of this line. The play was a one-act characterization by William Chauncey Langdon, a noted pageant and play writer of widely known ability. The play called "McBurney" was a detailed reproduction of the outstanding figure in the history of the North American Young Men's Christian Association, Robert McBurney, and was written from an intimate, personal, and accurate study of the man.

This play was produced at the International Convention of the Y. M. C. A. of North America at Atlantic City in November, and was well received at both performances given to large and enthusiastic audiences. A very vital and essential part of the program was the incidental music, written by Professor Hyde, which lent an added beauty of effort without which the play would have lost much. Too much cannot be said of the playing of Bronson, '23, as "McBurney," and Herron, '23, as the "Writer." The play included several excerpts of human interest, giving an insight into McBurney's character. Though he died in 1898, there are many who remember him well, among whom is Mr. Langdon, the playwright. Many were the remarks of his erstwhile friends on the accuracy of the detail in reproducing the peculiarities of that remarkable individual.

The original lighting arrangements and effects were accomplished by Stacy, '23. This, with the commendable work of LeBrun on the scenery, is in no wise to be considered accessory. Their adaptation at Atlantic City finally spelled success when the strange and inconvenient stage seemed an insurmountable barrier. This play is considered one of the College's greatest successes of all times.

Our next endeavor, two one-act plays given at the College and at Hope Church, was of a smaller and different nature, but of a kind to receive popular favor. One, "Rameses' Dream," a timely pantomime of an Egyptian Tomb scene, as strange as it is new in amateur circles, was the more impressive, due to the present interest in archeology and Egypt's buried kings. The lighting and scenery effects were most notable in this play, and the acting was beyond criticism, a clever piece of difficult interpretation.

"Free Speech," the other play given, was in direct contrast to the one preceding it. In ten minutes the scene had changed from Egypt to Russia, and from absolute silence to all kinds of noise and activity. It was a satire on the over-use of free speech in newly democratized Russia. Moore, '23, was easily the outstanding star and speaker, and his cry of "Parliamentary Law!!" will long be remembered.

Other men active during the year were Staudenmayer, H. G. Adams, Brockner, Cowan, Sleeter, Sexton, Morris, Balentine, H. R. Allen, and Lyman. Withal, the dramatic reputation of Springfield was upheld and advanced, Staley, '24, relinquishing his post as Chairman of the Dramatic Committee to enter new fields, and turning it over to Hyde, '25.

Musical Clubs

SPRINGFIELD College Musical clubs have again finished a very successful year. We who have been members of the different organizations look back with pleasure over months of profitable experience, which have been pleasurable both to ourselves and to the entire student body as well as to many admiring and appreciative audiences before whom the different clubs have appeared.

It is with great regret that our mandolin club, which was organized for the first time this year by Mr. Harry L. MaLette, '23, chairman of the music committee, had to be temporarily discontinued, owing to the tremendous pressure of so many other activities on campus. Mr. McCollam, '24, and Mr. LeBree, '25, are to be commended for their hearty co-operation given to Mr. MaLette in fostering this new musical club, and it is hoped that they will take up the reins next year and that the mandolin club will become a permanent addition to our campus organization.

The Glee Club has had another very successful season, and from the standpoint of people reached they have far surpassed any other Springfield organization of its kind. This year the Glee Club has given several concerts over the radio at station WBZ, Westinghouse Electric Company, and, judging from the many letters that have come in to the management, their concerts have been very much appreciated by people all over the United States. Much credit is due Mr. Robert Stone, '23, for his continued interest in directing and training the men and the efficient way in which he has conducted the concerts. Credit is also due the members of the Glee Club for their unfailing interest in supporting the club in its many rehearsals and concerts.

The College Quartette has also given a very good account of itself by dividing honors with the Glee Club in doing radio work. Several fine concerts have been given this year and much credit is due the members for their faithful work in representing the College in this way. Its program has included classical as well as humorous selections, making a very well-balanced program, which has been received with enthusiasm by all audiences before which it has appeared.

We have been fortunate again this year in having another freshman quartette that has done justice to itself and the college on all occasions, and it is this source from which we obtain our material for the college quartette. Greetings to our freshmen.

LITERARY

The Literary Department

N most professional colleges there is a decided tendency on the part of the students to underestimate the value of literary expression. This is largely due, no doubt, to the lack of time of the students to actively engage in any endeavor unless they can give of their best efforts in the furthering of the ideals of the society.

The Literary Department, therefore, because Springfield is a highly specialized college, seeks to supplement the curriculum of the College by offering to the students an ample opportunity for literary expression. The training offered consists in preparing for and participation in declamation and oratorical contests, formal debates, as well as regular practice in addressing audiences on prescribed subjects.

The intercollegiate debate with Connecticut State proved that Springfield is capable of holding her own on the forensic platform. With the additional appropriation for this department continued success should be had in this field. At least four debates are hoped for next year. A great deal of interest was manifested in the inter-society oratorical contest, held during the winter term. The success of this event argues well for continued progress.

The annual inter-society debates are being held this year during the spring term, rather than during the winter. As The Massasoit goes to press we find all the societies busily preparing for them. Both the old and new Literary Departments are co-operating in making this endeavor a worthy literary achievement.

While special emphasis was directed toward the development of the literary societies, the administration also sought to improve the various College publications. Notable improvement was made on The Student, it being increased and developed so that it is now comparable with any college publication.

The present status of the Literary Department is sound, and it is a cherished desire that the achievements of each year may be heightened as the years roll by.

HE International Literary Society draws its membership from all parts of the world. It has for its aim, the development in its members of a world-wide outlook. To this end, its discussions are international in their scope. Besides the ideas of those members who belong to this country, the viewpoints of men from Canada, the Near East, the Orient, and South America are presented.

It was a member of the International Literary Society who was awarded the gold medal, as winner of the inter-society oratorical contest.

Besides the intellectual side of the members, which is developed by the literary work, the social part of man's nature is also given a chance to function. Social nights are held regularly, and this part of the program is culminated by an up-the-lake supper held in the spring of the year.

The members of this society personify to a large degree the spirit of world brotherhood for which Springfield College is famous.

HE McKinley Literary Society is made up of thirty-five active, enthusiastic members. These men are carefully selected from all classes of the student body. Thirteen of its members will graduate this year. This will allow thirteen new men to become members next year.

The primary aim of this society is to promote ability in public speaking and the use of the English language.

The society has been fortunate in having Mr. Robert Stone as the critic. He has been most helpful in his criticisms, and the society is greatly indebted to him for its success during the past year.

The officers of the society are elected at the beginning of each college term and hold office for that term only. Meetings are held every Monday evening during the college year.

HE Philomathean Literary Society began this year by repledging itself to its original policy of two fundamental purposes: First, to give to its members a training in public speaking that would prove of real value to them as they take their places in the work of the world; and, second, to furnish a social atmosphere that would bind the men into a closer fellowship and mutual understanding. With this end in view, our programs have been so arranged.

It was with real pleasure that we welcomed Doctor Hawley back from his studies in Europe. His clear and straightforward criticisms have been a source of stimulation to every member of the society. Although it has been necessary for him to leave us again, we are eagerly awaiting his return next year.

This society feels that there has been much accomplished this year; and that the next year will find it even more progressive in upholding the policy it has established.

HE current year marks the eighth year of Weidensall Society in Springfield. In the early years of its activity, it was known as the County Work group, and its program was definitely tied up with Rural Problems. Lately the society has widened its scope until it now includes men in all departments in the College.

Although the passing year has been a very successful one in the life of the society, yet it has not been without its sorrows. Our devoted and esteemed friend, Uncle Robert Weidensall, whose name we have the honor of possessing, passed out of this world of pleasure and toil. We will miss him sorely, but may we as a society, resolve to live the life of Christian service as he has lived it, and follow the example he has set.

FORENSIC ability in college men, considered, for years, at this institution, at least, as non-essential, has, after a three-year debut, developed into an interesting and integral part of the Literary Department of the Student Association. The evolution of this new branch of training has meant not only more attractiveness to the members because of the intercollegiate character of the debates, but has also raised the standards of public speaking. While the number of intercollegiate debates for the year fell below that of previous years, by no means does it display any lack of student interest, but rather an increased demand for intercollegiate leagues which an institution in its embryonic debating stage could enter. Later, when the organization of this phase of work becomes more complete, the schedule will necessarily increase.

The only debate for the season proved contrary to expectations. Connecticut State College defeated the Varsity on the question: "Resolved, That Turkey Constitutes a Menace to the Working Out of International Order in Europe." While the decision was unanimous, it in no wise portrays the calibre of the 1923 team which showed remarkable powers of speech and rebuttal. It is clear that only a team of unusual merit could have defeated a team, which, in the opinion of the chairman of the occasion, was par excellence in quality.

Deputation

Aim :

The aim of this committee is to stimulate a zest for religious work and set up a program that will give an opportunity for wider development in the religious life of the College.

Policy of Teams :

The policy of the teams is to create interest in the fundamental principles of Christianity and the promotion of religious life by coming into close contact with boys and helping them to solve personal problems, supervising social activities, and outdoor activities for boys and men.

The teams have supplied programs for young people's societies, Sunday and week-end engagements, the teams consisting of one to six men. There have been twenty-three teams sent out, composed of thirty-six different men.

HE Cosmopolitan Club is an unique organization, being made up of thirty-two active members and fifteen honorary members. The active members represent sixteen different countries and speak sixteen languages. The interests of the members differ considerably, but in spite of their differences they have a great many things in common. They have come to this selected spot from the remotest corners of the earth, with the idea in mind of developing their technical knowledge. Under a new environment, this group of internationally minded students, with their keen desire for knowledge and saturated with high ideals, have blended into a truly Cosmopolitan Club, without losing their individuality. Eight American students who are interested in countries other than their own are contributing very liberally to the life of the Club. "Friendship" is the motto.

Massasoit

HIEF MASSASOIT, whose representation we have on our title page, has come to mean to us here at Springfield what the Bull Dog is to Yale, the Tiger to Princeton, and the Bear to Brown. Just how or when the name of the Sachem of the Wampanoags became associated with the College is not known, but it is thought that the name was given the Lake by some early settlers, and that it was adopted by the College when it first located here in 1896. Since his name is so often associated with our traditions, and is the title of our Annual, it is fitting that we should be a little more familiar with his history.

King Massasoit (1586-1661), the Sachem of the Wampanoags, held dominion over all of Southern Massachusetts from Cape Cod to Narragansett Bay, with a tribe that at one time numbered 30,000 but which was reduced to 300 around 1600. A short time after the founding of Plymouth, he appeared before the infant colony and, with Gov. Carver, formed a treaty of peace and mutual protection which was kept for over fifty years. He was just, humane, and honest, never violating his word and constantly endeavored to imbue his people with a love of peace. Such was the man whom we have chosen to be the representative of our ideal here at Springfield—and it would be well if we were to adopt his principles in our lives and actions.

The Massasoit

HE work of the Massasoit Staff this year has resulted, we hope, in a radical departure from that of other years. We have endeavored to make it different in so far as we were able, because we felt that, with the growth of the College, its most representative publication should also change. However, we have done our best to mirror truthfully the life of Springfield, and to record this picture of the year which has seen so many advances.

This work is far from perfect. As we look back over it we realize that there are many additions and changes that we would make, but it is for you men who are coming up to profit by our experiments, and to take advantage of our mistakes. To you we throw the challenge—and we wish you success in your undertaking.

Yet—if this volume may worthily represent the ideals of our Alma Mater, and if, in future years, it may rouse reminiscences of the happy days spent here, then we will feel that our work has been repaid and that the 1923 Massasoit has been a success.

The Springfield Student

HE Springfield Student, since it was started in 1909 in connection with the Association Seminar, has grown steadily until it has become a college newspaper of which the student body may justly be proud. The connection with the Association Seminar was severed in 1910, and until 1916 The Student appeared as an independent monthly. In 1916 it became a weekly. One of the greatest forward steps in the history of the paper was made during the recent year when it was enlarged to its present size, twice that of when it was started.

The paper is written and edited entirely by undergraduates and is financed through the work of its advertising department and the Student Association. Increased size and quality of the publication during the recent year has placed it on a firm financial basis, due to increased advertising possibilities.

The Student is a medium of expression of campus life, through which the sentiment of the faculty as well as that of the student body is expressed. It is the policy of The Student to confine, as closely as possible, its activities to those things which directly affect students, faculty, and alumni of Springfield.

Student Handbook

THE Student Handbook, popularly known as the Freshman Bible, is a publication sent to the entering men in order to have them become familiar with the various workings of the Student Association. The book contains the College yells and songs, and it is the express desire of the Student Association that the entering men learn these before they arrive at Springfield. Each department of the Student Association has a resumé of its specific duties and purposes, the committee chairmen endeavoring to get the new men acquainted with the various phases of the work of their department. Many valuable bits of information and knowledge are inserted in this little handbook. The customs and traditions of the College are given in detail for the enlightenment of the men. Records of the various teams are given, as well as their schedule of games, all of which help the new men to become better acquainted with the sports which are being promoted by the Physical Department Committee. The workings of student government and control are brought before the men, together with the duties and obligations of the Senate. In fact, the whole workings of the College are boiled down and presented in this book in a concentrated form. It is, therefore, a valuable booklet in assisting each man in getting a right start.

Walter Rupert Weiser Infirmary

HE latest addition to the buildings on the Campus is the Walter Rupert Weiser Infirmary, which was made possible by the gift of $40,000 from the Hampden Hospital through Dr. Weiser. This building will house the Department of Medical Gymnastics under Professor Stacy B. Betzler, and will also be an infirmary for the use of the College.

The building is designed primarily for the re-construction, re-education, and re-habilitation of post-operative cases, and others who have lost their grip in physical and mental ways, and is fully equipped with the most modern apparatus for this type of work. The bottom floor contains the hydro-therapeutic department with the latest types of medical baths and electrical equipment. In the rear on this floor is found the main floor of the gymnasium proper which is used for posture work and is unlike any other in the country. The second floor contains eight rooms for private treatment, examination, and special electrical work, as well as the office, while the third floor consists of rooms for private patients and the infirmary proper for college men. There is also a small ward, diet kitchen, nurses' room, and everything that is needed to make this an up-to-date building of this type.

The building is entirely finished and, at the present time, is in the process of being equipped. The dedication will form one of the attractions at Commencement this June.

The initials of a friend

You will find these letters on many tools by which electricity works. They are on great generators used by electric light and power companies; and on lamps that light millions of homes.

They are on big motors that pull railway trains; and on tiny motors that make hard housework easy.

By such tools electricity dispels the dark and lifts heavy burdens from human shoulders. Hence the letters G-E are more than a trademark. They are an emblem of service—the initials of a friend.

GENERAL ELECTRIC

Advertising

T has two motives: First, the value of display before prospective purchasers, in gaining an audience and selling products; second, co-operation, that faith in another person or quantity which prompts the kindly hand. Our advertisers comprise both motives, equally honorable and worthy of recognition by every true Springfield student.

In so far as we believe in the par excellence of these products, so ought we to further the business of our friends through acknowledgement of this excellency not only to ourselves but to others as well.

The business people of Springfield, we believe, are with us as we are with them. Our contacts are limited, it is true; but they can be productive.

Not only have our advertisers helped in the making of this volume but also have placed their faith in our ability to remember them. The student body is consoled accordingly to join with us in acknowledgement of our gain and in making a prosperous year for our friends.
