Boston, Jan. 22, 1849.

Dear Friend:

I wish it were in my power to say, I will be with you on the 29th, according to your desire; but I should certainly fail if I should attempt it, and therefore must take advantage of the latitude you kindly give me. It shall be my endeavor to be with you on the evening of Feb. 5th, at which time you may consider me positively engaged.

We hope to see some of our New Bedford friends at our State anniversary, this week, in the Old Cradle of Liberty.

Hastily, but with great esteem,

Yours, truly,

Wm. Lloyd Garrison.

Dear Friend,

I wish it were in my power to say, I will be with you in the fall, according to your desire; but I should certainly fail if I should without it, and therefore must have assurance of the Justice you wish to give me. It shall be my endeavor to be with you on the evening of the 20th of which time you will consider me positively engaged.

We hope to see some of our dear old friends at our dinner

tomorrow, this week, in the old church of Liberty.

Respectfully, but with great esteem,

Yours truly,

Wm. Lloyd Garrison.

Joseph W. Weston.
