One wish, one hope-it it were not presumptious -beat in his fainting breast. Could it be so - might it please God--he would desire once more to see the sun; once more to look abroad on the more to see the sun; once more to look abroad on the scene around him on the great day of liberty. Heaven in its mercy fulfilled that prayer. He saw that sun he enjoyed its sacred light; he thanked God for this mercy; and bowed his aged head to the grave. He that wishes to see the character of Jefferson properly appreciated, should read the life of him by Ray ner; and those whose taste and means go further, should attentively peruse the articles on him in the North American Review for July 1834, and January 1885. The July article is entitled 'origin and character of the old parties;' and contains the most temperate and judicious remarks on -and the most accurate view of -- the subject that we have had the good fortune to read.

THE ASSEMBLY.

The committee repor favorably on the contentment of the patients, and the kind trestment they receive-particularly complimenting the assiduition of the sisters of charity; but they think the rooms of indes of weather. They assert that the prices paid for provisions, medecines and enpplies of every kind, are extravagastly high. On motion of Mr Labavys, the bill was called up for consideration—to incorporate a company having the exclusive privilege for 10 years, of employing steamboats to ply from Lafayette city across the river Mississippi. The bill to incorporate the Exchange hotel and banking empany was again considered; and was amended by exacting an annual state honus from the company—which is to be distributed to the Jefferson, Jackson and St. Landry colleges.

The hour arriving for considering the orders of the day prevented further progress. These were bills from the other house, which were read a first time: one was to amend one or two dozen articles of the civil code, and the code of orac

STATE COASE. - Most of the states have effected a loan to the purposes of internal improvement, or public education Indiana has very recently procured a loan of $300,000which was taken by Frime & Co. of New-York, at the rate of $100 for 102 five per cent. stocks, payable by instalments in 20 and in 25 years.

A very eligible proposition was lately made in the senate of this state, by a committee of which colonel Niestolan was chairman. It was to effect a loan to a certain amoun by the state, for the purpose of erecting and establishing achools-for which state bonds were to be issued, bearing interest, and payable in respective instalments, in 20, 30 and 40 years. A loan of this kind for half a million could easily he procured; and while it would materially benefi, public aducation in the state, it would be attended with no expense to Louisiana: for it is almost certain that appropriations of public lands from congress for education, could be ebtained, before it would be necessary to redeem the bonds. Such a measure would require very little legislation, as its act of the legislature of 1833, the same payable $5,000 paragraph is a second of the legislature of 1833, the same payable $5,000 paragraph is a second of the legislature of 1833, the same payable $5,000 paragraph is the same payable $5,000 parag prepriety is so palpable that "all who run may read;" and should be passed before the assembly shall have adjourned.

THE MILITIA.—A bill was pending in congress, at date of last advices, to introduce the system of discipline and military tacties, prepared by major-general Scott, into the U S. army; and the militia of the country. It had passed the house of representatives. In the legislature of this state, a bill has been introduced by general Richardson, far the more efficient organization of our militin. Would it not perhaps be as well to postponthe consideration of this bill, till next session; in order to indge of the effects or tendency of the congress resolution?
