ROBERT LE DIABLE was performed last evening for the first time at the French theatre, but although we went determined to be pleased, and desirous if mossible to give the preference to the exhibition of the opera at this theatre. We succeeded in our resolution, but not in our wishes.

The orchestral arrangements and accompaniments were enercy of wind and basa matromenia. We can with safety her locubrations called poems; and her contributions to pegive the preference to the French representation over the riodicals. American only as regards the orchestra, the chorusses and ; nuns. The part of Robert by Heymann was greatly inferio, compass, volume and sweetness in his voice. The fiend of gratify the vanity of a woman, and the cupidity of a writer liailly was not so 'devilishly' good as that of Reynoldson Builly has indeed an excellent bass voice, round and fully but not matured of properly cultivated; and he lacks the taste and judgment of Reynoldson. The Alice of Mademorselle Dupuys was improperly a courtezan, whisting her voice through her teeth; yet in her melody in the first act, she was delightful-but chiefly on account of the auavity of her man ners. At the commencement of her playing, we had apprehended Madame St Clair was ill; but her teshargy or indis position soon were off towards the end of the scene wit Heymann, and she was deservedly applauded.

. On the whole considering that anticipation was arous to the highest puch by the reiterated announcements and the length of time consumed in the necessary preparations. we were rather disappointed: although four or five weekago we foretold that our present impresssion would be verified. Yet we expected more from the scenery and machinery, from the dresses and decorations-in all of which the American theatre excelled. Many parts of the representation were tedinor and dull; and imight be advantageously omitted. The periods between the acts are intoerably long; and in papable violation of the ordinances of the city, and the order and comforts of the aud enco.

A second performance may however obviate many de sfects and meliorate many errors generally attending a first representation.

Mr H G PEARSON is to take he benefit this evening. Were it necessary to descant on the professional and its which he has displayed during the season, in every species of drama from tragedy to farce, we would cheerfully do so; but they are so well known, acknowledged and approved, that a detailed notice would be supererogatory. c Hisbill of fare wil prove satisfactory to the theatrical gosrmanic.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY OF LOUISIANA On last Saturday, many respectable literary gentleme this city assembled at the Sapreme Court room, for the pur pose of organizing a Historical Society of this state: the Hon. HENRY BULLARD was called to the chair; and J. Burton Harrison, Esq. was appointed secretary to the meeting. Resolutions were passed establishing the society, and de.

fining its objects-researches into the history of this part of North America, under the aborigines, the Spaniards and the French. A committee was also appointed consisting o the honorables Alexander Porter and Henry Bullard, and Mr. J. B. Harrison; with instructions to report a project of a constitution for the society, to be presented to an annual neecting convened for the 2d Monday of January nextwhen it is intended to complete the organization of the insti tution. The secretary was firected to correspond with lite." wary gentlemen in different parts of the state; the members engaged themselves to commence immediately an investigation of such subjects within the scope of the society, as they coan compaes during the summer; and Judge Bullard was requested to prepare and deliver a discourse at the first annual meeting.

It is evident that the objects of this society are of the most laudable nature; and n is consolstory to learn that the most intell gent of our citizens are or will be members. The htersture of Louisiana has been too long and supinely neglected; but under auspices like those of this society, we have [1 reason to hope that that stigms will be effected. Most of Massachusetts, whence she was ejected by the torm of Massachusetts, whence she was ejected by the torm have elucidated in a material degree and authentic manner the annals of their respective localnes and predecessors; and miany of their works are deposited in the erchives of the mational or Congress library. The memoirs of the historical society of Massachusetts are favorably known to all literargentlemen: so are those of New York, Pennsylvania and other states; shall not those of Louisiana be similarly en titled to public estimation under the supervision of such gen tiemen as Judges Porter and Bullard; and the contribution of the literati of the state?

Our citizens have now an opportunity of indulging the most extravagant fancies in monetary speculations. Several banking and insurance companies present the greatest The Gastight bank with its capital of six millions; the Red river railroad bank, with four millions; the Exchange bank, the Atchafulaya and Carrolton railroad banks with their capitals varying from 1 to 2 millions :- the Ocean Insurance Company; the Commercial do; Commerced soil do; the Life Insurance and Trust do, etc, etc present to gullible capitalists an excellent medium for disposing of their surplus funds.

On Monday the 11th instant, a very drendful hail storm escurred in the parish of Jefferson. It commenced about 2 n'm; and continued for 2 hours. It extended along the river nor 3 leagues; and covered a large extent of the parish. A perceptible whirlwind preceded the storm, devestatand several places; and small pieces of molecule from went afterwards discovered-many of them about the size of ben's egg. The Mariner's Church, and so earnest in enlising public pre-indice and the influence of the government paper to have i form down just at the moment when arrangements are mak-ing to complete the building in such a style, that t shall be an ornament to the city, and a liouse of worship commodities and inviting to the sons of the ocean and the boatman of the mest? We don't maderstand ...

The above is from the New Orleans Observer, a respecta ble well-conducted religious journal, published weekly. Bu we assure the deputy editor that we are not 'wrathful agains' the Mariners' Church as a church; but as being a disgrace and a nuisance; and as occupying unconstitutionally and uselessly the public grounds. It would be easier and more eligible to build a new church for the sons of the ocean and the hoatmen of the west, than to repair the miserable ruins now mouldering.

The public service imperatively demands the restitution of the ground whereon the present remaintant, and we but 'give a local habitation and a same' to the murmurs and onteries too long stuffed. The whole of the square is required for the construction of a new customhouse, commensurate with the wealth and wants of the city.

It would be much better for the trustees of the Mariners church to ceds the ground with a good grace, and make virtue of necessity: for it indubitably will be reclaimed by the general government. They have now funds equal in amount to what they had when they first undertook th, work; and their auspices in other respects are more favor while. Let them then acquire in time a different location for a new church.

The Louisiana Journal published by Mesers Bradford and Nesmith at St Francisville, has been enlarged and improved It is a diffully conducted journal.

Indeed we have been often as much astenished as pleased at the amount of talent and attention indicated in the differ. ent papers in the country parts of the state; at the sametime that we have been gratified to find that none of those jearnals indulge in parsonalities—which too often degrade and diegrace the press. If journalists understood their true interests, and were resolved to maintain their own selfrespec and the cotosm of others, nothing slanderous, scurrilous personal should ever find place in their periodicals; for the most contemptible species of wordy warfare is the customary contest of editors, who attack the writers but not their arguments. Sir, Having remarked in your paper of Monify last that a Benefit at the American Theatre will be given of Thursday next to Mr Jonn B DUNONT, author of the dran WASHINGTON OR RETALIATION;—a piece that has met with the most signal success at several of the principal Theatres of the Union. I was highly pleased to see the interest you take in whatever concerns the dramatic talent of the United States; but my pleasure was somewhat alloyed on observing that the benefit was considered in a great measure the result that the benefit was considered in a great moasure the result of CHARITY. Myself from having seen the piece performed, and from the high encommuna bestowed on it by many first rate judges, I am disposed to consider the Benefit as a merited tribute of respect to an estimable citizen and an author who has given frequent proofs of dramatic talent, and who althiftom a series of misfortunes originating from a too greet willingness to oblige has been ruined by his friends, is still (from an independence of mind which all must admire) desirous that the success of his Benefit depend more on the merits of his drama than upon merely those charityles feetperits of his drama than upon merely those charituble feel-

Speculation in Stocks and real property is more pendra and extravagant than that been before, for many years, in a principal cause. A gambling spirit is spir to prove epid mic, and becomes violent in proportion to its spread. It is zes on men in all sorts of circumstances, diverting them from the regular pursuits and hopes of industry, and municating them from risks by which their minds are kept in extreme segutation and all their means exposed to sudden and and runnous vicissitudes. We are told by intelligent gentlemen who have been lookers on, of fate, at Boston, New York, and in our own city, that multitudes are now prominent and desperate dealers in the stock and other speculation markets; of classes and ages, callings and positions in life, hat fermerly were never seen nor expected, and themselves natkets; of classes and ages, caming and themselves hat f-merly were never seen nor expected, and themselves sever thought of acting in such scenes. Small tradesmen, ever thought of acting in such seenes. Small tradesmen, hopkeepers, clerks of all degrees, operatives of town and hopkeepers, clorks of all degrees, sperarives of incompression, students in the offices, beginners in the world without capital or with a little, all frequent the exchanges and the action grounds to try their forumes as with the lotteries. They chose bubbles not east intunity than those with have leaving and money to spare. We accreely need add that this diffusive excitement, subject as it is to immort and various chances of the day or hour is unfrequeble to productive industry, to steady halfits our, is unfavorable to productive industry, to steady halfits and our aims, and to morals which are always more or less in danger when hazard whets coundity, governs action and determines fate in a general whirl of spirits and thoughts.—
