DOUGLAS BRYMNER, LL.D., F.R.S.C., ARCHIVIST.

SYDNEY A. FISHER,

Minister of Agriculture,

&c., &c., &c.

SIR,—I have the honour to present the report on Archives for 1900.

The work is continued in the usual manner, so that little remark on that head is necessary. The copies of State papers for Upper and Lower Canada have been received down to 1840, shelf marked, and put in place. The minutes of the Executive Council of Nova Scotia were sent to the binder in November last, as were three volumes of correspondence of that province from 1741 to 1752; other work of the same province being in progress. Miscellaneous papers of Upper and Lower Canada not included in the general terms of "State papers" are in process of collection and copying, so as to have the collection made as complete as possible. The same care as has always been taken, is exercised in guarding against error and securing exact transcripts of the papers. Copies have been completed here of the Bougainville papers received from Quimper, France, and for the receipt of which an acknowledgment was made to M^{me}. de Saint Sauveur Bougainville, and to M. de Kerallain, in the report for 1899.

Inquiries have been repeatedly made as to the reason of Lord Halifax signing himself "Dunk" Halifax, an answer to which is furnished by Hone, in the second volume of his "Every Day Book." He quotes the "Gentleman's Magazine" for 1741, which says:—"that on the 2nd of July of that year, Lord Halifax married Miss Dunk with a fortune of £100,000. According to the will of Mr. Dunk, the lady was to marry none but an honest tradesman, who was to take the name of Dunk, for which reason His Lordship took the freedom of the Saddler's Company, exercised the trade and added the name to his own."

The varying dates as to the creation of the peerage of Glenelg, led to some inquiries to ascertain the exact date. In the Century Cyclopædia, the date is given as 1828, a palpable error. In Burke's Peerage, letters patent are said to have issued on the 8th of May, 1836, creating the Peerage. When Mr. Grant (afterwards Lord Glenelg) was Colonial Secretary, Lord Aylmer on the 16th June, 1835, addressed him as Mr. Grant. A week later (23rd June) he was addressed as Lord Glenelg. The answer from the High Commissioner's office was that the letter patent to create the barony of Glenelg was dated on the 8th May, 1835, although Mr. Grant had signed as Lord Glenelg a short time before that.

In a work entitled Wentworth Land Marks, published by the Hamilton Spectator, a description of the Desjardins Canal is given, but nothing is said of the projector. In a dispatch from Sir John Colborne, Lieut. Governor of Upper Canada, dated 6th November, 1835, in dealing with the question of the proprietorship in Canada of property belonging to aliens, Sir John Colborne in reference to the relief bill for the heirs of Peter Desjardins stated that these heirs consisted of two brothers and a sister, who ask to be empowered to inherit the property of their late brother as if they had been natural born subjects. The question submitted by Sir John Colborne was whether the Crown should forego its rights in favour of the family in consequence of them being closely related to the late Peter Desjardins, "projector of the Desjardins Canal," a statement which may be taken as correct as being officially reported by the Lieut. Governor to the Colonial Secretary (Series Q. 387—2, page 273).

In a memorial addressed by Mr. Charles Shirreff, of Fitzroy, to Lord Dalhousie, dated 28th August, 1828, some account of the origin of the lumber trade in Upper Canada is given incidentally. Extracts from this memorial accordingly follow, the purely personal parts of it being omitted. After stating the policy of the Northern Powers of Europe in shutting their ports against Great Britain the memorial continues:

Although the political causes which had made it necessary for Great Britain to procure timber from the Colonies were removed, yet the trade being once opened has been continued. It does not appear, however, that Government till within these few years ever gave any legal sanction, for cutting the timber on the Crown lands, excepting that the mercantile houses in England contracting to supply the Naval yards with timber received annually licenses to take a certain quantity, to enable them to fulfil their engagements with Government. These licenses were transmitted to their agents at Quebec, and contracts were made accordingly with the lumberers in the country. But the quantities of timber brought down had for several years far exceeded the extent of the licenses. This did not arise from neglect on the part of the Provincial Government, but rather from a tacit permission, the trade being considered of consequence to the country and favoured accordingly in the financial arrangements of the general Government.

The contractors with the Government, however, remonstrated a few years ago against those who were cutting without licence as interfering with their privileges, and the Law Officers of the Crown in Upper Canada, from which Province the supply was chiefly obtained, finding that the business was carried on illegally were under the necessity of ordering the Sheriffs of the District to seize all the timber which they should find cut without license.

Your Memorialist has resided since the year 1819 on lands granted to him and situated on the Ottawa, in the Township of Fitzroy, 150 miles from Montreal, and in the neighbourhood of that part of the country where the red pine is procured. He has not been engaged in the trade, but has observed its progress and growing importance, and he saw with regret the above measures adopted, probably unavoidable under existing circumstances, but which, if persisted in, must have destroyed a branch of commerce very beneficial to the country.

Having occasion to go to York in the autumn of 1824, he took an opportunity of speaking to the present Chief Justice (then Attorney General), and Major Hillier, Secretary to His Excellency, the Lieutenant Governor, on the subject, and the result of these conversations was a request that he should on his return home communicate such information as he might think useful in the consideration of measures necessary for the regulation of the trade, which he accordingly did in a letter to Major Hillier.

Your memorialist went to York again in September following, and found that His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland had thought it proper to communicate with Earl Bathurst, previous to taking any steps in the matter. An answer having been received from His Lordship shortly before, His Excellency proceeded to the consideration of the subject as soon as other business permitted, and Your Memorialist had the honour of giving His Excellency in Council what local information he could communicate and of stating the opinion he had been led to form on the subject.

After a very attentive investigation The Honble. Executive Council submitted a report of considerable length to His Excellency, and your memorialist received the following letter from Major Hillier, dated GOVT. HOUSE, 9th Nov., 1825.

DEAR SIR,—The consideration of the Government has been very attentively given to the subject of the present state of the timber trade in this Province, and a report made by the Executive Council will be transmitted without loss of time to Lord Bathurst, containing certain suggestions calculated to place the matter, as it is hoped, on a more clearly defined and better footing for the future.

With respect to the adoption of any intermediate measure it will be clear to you that, even were the Lieut. Governor disposed to assume such a responsibility, the situation of the river Ottawa (in the circumstance of its left bank, during its whole course through this Province, being within the limit of another government) would render such measures in a great degree nugatory.

In making this communication to you, I am commanded by His Excellency to express to you his thanks for the valuable information you have afforded to the government on the matter in question.

I have the honour to be, &c.,

G. HILLIER.

CHARLES SHIRREFF, Esq.

The matter being brought to this point with the government of the upper province, the stay of the memorialist at York was no longer necessary. Still, however, the business was but half completed, as from the situation of the River Ottawa, dividing as it does the two provinces for several hundred miles, any measures respecting the timber trade which might have been adopted by the Government of one, could only have been made effectual, as Major Hillier remarks, by the co-operation of that of the other.

A communication, therefore, on the subject with your Lordship became desirable, and it was proposed as the shortest and most effectual mode that the memorialist should proceed to Quebec and request an opportunity of stating and explaining the business; which he did as soon as the ice became safe for travelling from his residence on the Ottawa.

Your Lordship gave the subject immediate attention and after due consideration and enquiry, the Honourable Executive Council submitted to your Lordship the propriety of adopting and co-operating in the measures recommended by the Government of the Upper Province. In consequence thereof and in order to remedy the inconveniences which arose from the trade being on an illegal footing, proclamations were issued of the same tenor by each Province giving liberty to cut timber on the waste and unappropriated lands upon payment of certain prices to the Crown. * * * *

On receiving the accounts and returns at the end of the first season, the Honourable Executive Council of the Lower Province expressed their sense of the salutary effect of the measures which had been adopted in terms, too flattering perhaps to the memorialist. (The terms are given but are here omitted). * * * *

From the Ottawa being on the confines of both Provinces, their respective Governments saw it most convenient to appoint only one collector for that river. A raft frequently consists of timber from the Crown lands in both Upper and Lower Canada and likewise from private property, so that it would be impossible for an officer not on the spot to ascertain the quantity from each.

The following extract is from a letter from Lord Dalhousie, written from Dalhousie Castle and dated July 26, 1832 :

MY DEAR SIR,—I feel great pleasure in declaring upon all occasions, and particularly when you are urging claims upon the Government, that at many times when I was in the administration of the British Colonies in America, I had great cause to acknowledge services rendered by Mr. Shirreff your father. In these days (1820) the timber trade was rising into activity and prosperity, regulations were necessary and system called for. Mr. Shirreff, an eminent merchant from Leith, came then into the Canadas. (Series Q. vol. 375-2 p. 359).

Part of this letter is a personal testimony to Mr. Shirreff's merits, and has no direct bearing on the lumber trade; it has, therefore, been omitted. Some letters written by Lord Dalhousie are no doubt answers to others from Mr. Shirreff, which it has evidently not been thought necessary to publish. Much of the correspondence relates to claims for remuneration for services rendered and the letters being of no general interest require no comment, but Mr. Shirreff's remarks on the delays and consequent expense caused by the Falls of the Châts and the Chaudière may be quoted as showing the state of affairs that existed on the Ottawa in 1831, so far as the lumber trade was concerned. The object of the remarks was to obtain improvements on the Ottawa, so as to facilitate the transport of timber.

The conflicting interests with regard to the Colonial Lumber Trade make it of the greatest importance to this country that the article should be shipped at Quebec on as low terms as possible, the prices in the English market being kept in check by those of the timber from the Northern countries of Europe. But to enable the lumberers to furnish it moderately, facility of conveyance must be given them, particularly on the Ottawa from whence the greatest part of the Red Pine is brought.

The first serious obstruction which the general body of the timber meets with is at the falls of the Châts where the rafts are broken up in coming over, and must be again formed in the Bay called Fitzroy Harbour. This creates a delay of at least three weeks, and frequently longer, which at the lowest calculation occasions an expense of $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per foot.

The same detention takes place at the Falls of the Chaudière and consequently the same expense.

The timber being thus detained on its way in the upper parts of the Ottawa, loses the most favourable season for going down the rapids at Hawkesbury and at the Island of Jesus, the River falling before the greatest quantity of the Red Pine Timber can reach them, so that it must be taken down in one or two cribs at a time, whereas earlier in the season, one half of a raft, or, if not a very large one, the whole of it, might be carried down these rapids at once. Thus a great deal more time is consumed, and a further expense incurred of at least 1d. per foot. Moreover by this detention a great proportion of the timber from the Ottawa is thrown into a late season. Instead of reaching Quebec in September, as it might do, if these obstructions were removed, many of the Rafts do not arrive till November, when they meet with stormy weather and are frequently broken up and much of the timber lost. All this hazard and expense could be easily saved by the improvement of the passes at the Châts and Chaudière. Slides or inclined planes on a simple principle at these places would give all the facility wanted to insure the arrival of the great bulk of the Timber in Quebec market not only at a safe season in respect to the weather, but also at a more favourable period for its disposal. But if it is not done soon the price of the timber must rise and the Trade diminish, for the timber which is most easy of access is getting scarce and the lumberers cannot at the present prices afford to go further for it without more convenience is given them in bringing it to market.

Partial improvements would also be necessary in the tributary rivers of the Ottawa, such as the Bonnechere, the Madawaska, &c., from which large quantities of the timber is procured.

A branch from the Rideau Canal to the Chaudière Lake has been surveyed and reported on and it was ascertained that it could be carried by the line described of about five miles in length through a bed of clay (avoiding any rock excavation) and that the lockage necessary would not exceed fifteen feet.

It would give the Chaudière Lake and the other upper parts of the Ottawa, the benefit of the Rideau Canal, and consequently uninterrupted water communication to Montreal, besides forming direct and ready access to Kingston from that part of the country. It would also be of great consequence to the lumber trade in reducing the expense of the carriage of provisions from Montreal, Kingston, &c.

For all these important purposes, I humbly think that an appropriation of one-third of the revenue arising from the Crown timber would be sufficient.

When the Crown prices were fixed the rate in the market of Quebec, was no doubt higher than it now is. The fall in the price may be attributed to two causes, one of which I consider a very beneficial one, and will continue I trust to keep the prices moderate.

I allude to that regularity in the trade which the system adopted by Government has introduced. The other cause of the reduction is a gradual increase of the trade until it has exceeded the demand for the article in the Quebec Market. But I am persuaded that if the necessary facilities of conveyance were afforded that the lumberers could furnish it at the present prices, low as they are, with profit which would soon induce a greater demand from home and a consequent increase of the revenue from the Crown Timber in this country.

CHAS. SHIRREFF.

(Series Q. vol. 374-2 p. 291.)

On receipt of Sir John Colborne's letter, with the proposals of Mr. Shirreff, the Lords of the Treasury expressed no objection to the works suggested being executed, but stated that the report of the amount to be expended was far too vague and indefinite to warrant their sanction being given. The expense, the time to be spent on the work, and all other necessary information were to be sent for the consideration of their Lordships before an official decision could be arrived at. In January, 1834, the Board of Ordnance reported that the formation of timber slides at the falls of the Châts and Chaudière would be productive of all the advantages stated by Sir John Colborne and would not interfere with the Rideau Canal. The slides, therefore, might be constructed by the provincial government and placed under its control. This was the nearest approach to an answer to the question whether a charter might be granted to individuals to construct the slides, no notice, so far as the records show having been taken by the Lords of the Treasury or other officials of the action of Lord Dalhousie, although the following letter written by His Lordship to Sir Peregrine Maitland, dated 26th September, 1826, shows that Lord Dalhousie, as Governor General, not only approved of the plan of securing the safe transit of timber over the Chaudière Falls, but appropriated a sum of money for carrying it into effect. The following is the letter, which is given in full :—

FALLS OF CHAUDIÈRE,
26th September, 1826.

MY DEAR SIR PEREGRINE,

I have thought it my duty to meet Lieut.-Colonel By here upon the spot where his great operations on the Rideau Canal will commence. I am much gratified in seeing every thing favourable and even encouraging to it, but as he will himself see you soon, I leave it to him to explain the enquiries and the progress he has made.

At present I write hastily upon another subject concerning the civil affairs of the two Provinces in which I hope my views will correspond with yours.

You are already well acquainted with the wild rocks and falls of the river at this place, that the rafts of timber suffer more losses in being dashed over—that lives are frequently lost in this operation and that there is a branch on this front of broken rock by which a smooth trough of water can be made to pass these rafts in perfect safety at all times.

Colonel By has to-day examined the place with me and roughly calculated that £2,000 would perfectly accomplish the whole. It is now too late in the season to do it all, but yet enough may be done to great public advantage for the opening of the river in next spring.

Considering the report of Mr. Shirreff that the duty on timber collected by him this summer amounts to £3,000, I have no hesitation in applying at once £1,000 of that to the work proposed and that sum in proportion to the total collection for each Province.

In thus promptly deciding on the work, I know I incur responsibility, but in my station, I consider it my duty to do so, and I ask your concurrence to the proposal. All proper steps shall be taken to have the sanction of His Majesty's Government.

I return to Quebec to-morrow and shall feel pleasure in hearing from you upon this subject.

I have, &c., DALHOUSIE.

His Excellency,
SIR P. MAITLAND,
&c., &c., &c.

(Series C., Vol. 42, p. 95.)

A similar letter, of the same date, was written by Lord Dalhousie to Lieut. Colonel By in which it was stated that he was to "consider this work as altogether distinct "from those which you have in charge on the Rideau Canal" his services in this respect being specially rendered to the two provinces and to be acknowledged and the letter ends with the words: "From having conversed [on] the matter fully together, I "leave it wholly to your judgment and execution" (series C. Vol. 42 p. 99). A branch canal through Dow's swamp to connect the Ottawa river with the Rideau Canal was advocated in a memorial to the Colonial Secretary in 1835, asking for various improvements, this branch canal being the first to which attention was directed in the memorial. The benefits that it was urged would flow from this measure were that Government would thus have possession of the key of the whole navigation, that entrance to the Chaudière Lake being secured steamboats from Montreal would be enabled to reach Fitz Roy harbour, where another cut of one mile would be necessary to extend the navigation still further. The ultimate object, as stated by the memorial was to "Continue the navigation to Lake Huron in the direction of Lake Nipissing and the French "River, the distance from Montreal by that route is 450 miles and being once opened

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 18

"would give to that city and Quebec the command of almost the whole of the Atlantic commerce with those important sections of the United States, the Michigan and North Western territories."

The removal of Lord Aylmer from the Governorship of Canada was to be followed by the administration of Lord Amherst, who was in reality appointed to fill the office, but for some reason not shown in the documents now here, the offices of Governor General and commissioner were transferred to Lord Gosford. Christie in the fourth volume of his "History of Lower Canada" page 86 says that Viscount Canterbury was at first thought of but declined on account of ill-health, Lord Amherst was actually appointed but waived the appointment and finally Lord Gosford was selected. This in a few words was the position of affairs, for of the appointment of Lord Amherst there can be no doubt, the contents of the official letters showing this clearly. In a letter from the Colonial Secretary to Lord Amherst, unsigned, dated the 7th May, 1835, it is said: "The variety and the importance of the subjects embraced in your Lordships Commissions and instructions as Governor and His Majesty's Commissioner in that Province (Lower Canada), will sufficiently account for the time His Majesty's ministers have required for the revision of these documents." But that Lord Amherst was in doubt as to his acceptance seems probable from the concluding sentence of the letter.

If your Lordship should be disposed to retain the office of Governor of Lower Canada, uniting with it the office of His Majesty's Chief Commissioner of inquiry in the Province your acceptance of that trust will be received with high satisfaction and with gratitude by the Ministers of the Crown.

The tone of Lord Aylmer's correspondence with Lord Glenelg shows that he was not satisfied with his treatment by the Colonial Office under his (Lord Glenelg's) guidance. This is shown in Lord Aylmer's letter of 23rd June, 1835, which may be referred to (Q 222-2 page 227). Considerable feeling appears to have been excited in Canada on account of his removal, but the House of Assembly had determined to use every influence to have His Lordship removed and he evidently thought that it was due to the complaints and representations of the Assembly that he owed his removal and the terms of the report of the committee of the House of Commons which he expected from the refusal to publish the evidence in his case. In a private note to Mr. Spring Rice, dated 10th August, 1834, he says: "I cannot refrain from expressing my regret at the determination of the committee of the House of Commons on Canadian affairs not to report or publish the evidence taken before it The nature of the accusations of the House of Assembly regarding my administration of the Government requires something more than a verdict of non proven or rather I must consider myself entitled to some unequivocal announcement of that triumph and result which Mr. Stanley anticipates." Further on he says: "If after having been held up to the King and the Imperial Parliament as a criminal by the House of Assembly, the falsehood of their charge is not to be made manifest by the publication of the evidence taken before the committee and the Document submitted to them by the Colonial Office, I shall indeed have cause deeply to regret that the House of Commons has not in compliance with the demand of the House of Assembly preferred articles of impeachment against me before the House of Lords". (Series Q 217-2 pages 305, 306). In a letter to Spring Rice, dated at Sorel on the 2nd of September, 1834, Lord Aylmer says, and his exact words are given, after a slight summary of the first part of the letter, which is marked private, referring to the recent appointment of Mr. Gale to the Bench, which had created a great deal of excitement among what Lord Aylmer calls the disaffected party. His Lordship explains in reference to the charge of injustice towards the French Canadians in the appointments to the Bench, that out of four of these, three were French Canadians, all of whom belonged to the Canadian party and were opposed to his administration, so that he could not be accused of partiality in the exercise of such powers of patronage as he possessed. He then proceeds :—

I am really ashamed of being obliged to justify myself thus beforehand regarding this appointment, but the virulence with which my public character and my administration are assailed by the public prints of the Province, of all parties and denominations, renders it necessary that I should omit no opportunity of guarding His Majesty's Government against their misrepresentations. My situation in this Province has this peculiar difficulty attending it; that having rejected the alliance of the Public Press and having traced out a line of policy of my own wholly independent of all parties, I am considered as an object against which they may all level their principles. Such has been my position hitherto in Lower Canada with this further disadvantage in the early stage of my administration not only of being unsupported but openly censured by the authorities at home.

To have maintained my ground up to this time under those circumstances must be considered by all those who are acquainted with the politics of this distracted Province as a sort of miracle. (Series Q., vol. 217-2, p. 325.)

The position of hostility assumed by the House of Assembly as above indicated, Lord Aylmer attributed to his having inherited certain nice and difficult questions which had long agitated the Assembly at which time he found himself in the same position as Mr. Spring Rice had done when the latter assumed the office of Colonial Secretary. But, he continued, he felt he had no cause to be dissatisfied with his position, in so far as it regarded himself individually, and he was content to be judged by the result of the policy he had adopted. (Series Q., vol. 217-2, page 532.)

Partly, as it would appear, to conciliate Mr. Papineau and Mr. Neilson, partly to satisfy the Assembly as to the method of conducting the business of the Council, they were both offered appointments in the Executive Council, but both declined, Mr. Papineau on the ground that the rules of the House of Assembly would stand in the way of his acceptance, Mr. Neilson because of engagements he had contracted with his constituents at the time of his election. (Series Q., vol. 201-1, page 140.)

The conciliatory course followed by Lord Aylmer was not considered by Sir John Colborne as an example to be followed in the case of Mr. Mackenzie, his words describing him being "A more unprincipled demagogue could not have sprung up to disturb a colony." (Series Q., vol. 374-2, page 260.)

The political letters of Messrs. Papineau, Viger and Mackenzie are so full and detailed that it seems unnecessary to do more than refer to them. The correspondence on the political state of affairs in Upper and Lower Canada will be found in the volumes relating to the two provinces. The opinion of Lord Aylmer with respect to the people of Lower Canada and the Assembly may, however, be quoted. "The former," he says, "are loyal, peaceable and well disposed, and I do not think that (with few exceptions) there exists among the latter any systematic opposition to the views of His Majesty's Government." (Series Q., vol. 206-1, page 67.)

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 18

In April, 1835, Lord Aylmer reported that contrary to the usual practice of obtaining returns by means of an address to the Governor, the House of Assembly of Lower Canada had issued a direct order to the Collector of Customs of Quebec to furnish certain returns which he declined to do as being contrary to his instructions, whereupon as he persisted in his refusal he was sent by the Assembly to the common gaol of Quebec, where he remained till the close of the session. Lord Aylmer stated that the returns would have been furnished without hesitation had the usual courtesy been observed, and that he believed the House of Assembly relied upon the decision of the Imperial Government in the case of Major General Carmichael, who had refused to furnish certain documents ordered by the House of Assembly of Jamaica. In a case of what seemed to him of a doubtful character, Lord Aylmer asked for instructions to enable him, as he expressed it, to steer clear on the one hand of compromising the dignity of the Crown, and on the other hand of infringing the constitutional privileges of the House of Assembly. (Series Q., vol. 222-1, pages 54, &c.)

The answer from the Earl of Aberdeen was an expression of regret that the usual courtesies had been neglected, which could scarcely fail to give birth to inconvenient results, but His Lordship believed that the analogy of Parliamentary practice was in favour of the House of Assembly, and this opinion was supported by what seemed a somewhat inconclusive argument, and winds up with the instruction to direct the officers of customs to obey promptly and respectfully every demand which may be made by the Assembly. (Series Q., vol. 222-1, pages 58, 61.)

The establishment of land companies during the period covered by the calendar was a favourite speculation. The formation of the land company in Upper Canada may be traced in the volumes relating to it in 1824 and 1825. (Series Q. volumes 359 to 373) and the "Autobiography of John Galt" may on that subject be consulted, he being the first administrator of the company in Canada. For Lower Canada the British American Land Company was organized some years later. Other land companies were projected but did not come into being from various causes, some of the failures being due to disagreements among the projectors. So far as shown, the only two that continued in existence were the Land Company of Upper Canada, of whose operations so much has been written that it would be superfluous to add more, and the British American Land Company in Lower Canada. With respect to the latter besides the reference to the documents calendared the papers with the shelf marks P.F. volume 43 and 77 and P. 136—No. 1, may be consulted with advantage. It may not be out of place to give a sketch of the organization of the British American Land Company. On the 6th of March, 1834, the Secretary advised the Under Secretary of the Colonies that £800 had been paid on account of the fees for the charter. Besides the charter a bill was introduced into Parliament to confer certain powers that could not be given in the charter. A copy of this bill will be found in volume 219-1 of series Q., beginning at page 7. On the 5th of April, the company asked the Colonial Secretary to inform the Governor of Lower Canada that the charter of incorporation had been granted, so that operations might be begun. The agreement with the Government was concluded in 1833; an account of the sums paid under it and plan of the counties in Lower Canada acquired by the company may be found in volume 2 of series P.F., the documents being arranged as Nos. 1 and 5 in the volume. In a very long letter signed V, the company is charged with seeking by the purchase of the lands to acquire power for political or party purposes (Series Q. vol. 219-1, page 65). The friends of Mr. Papineau according to the statement of a correspondent in Montreal of Mr. Gillespie, entertained feelings of the greatest hostility to the British American Land Company on account of its promise to use the most valuable means of improving the country both physically and morally. (Series Q. vol. 224-2, page 347). Writing in London on the 2nd February, 1835, Mr. N. Gould said that the clique, as he called Mr. Papineau and his followers, advertised that the British American Land Company had no claim or title to the land and warned emigrants and settlers against having any transactions with the company, meaning no doubt that the House of Assembly would annul the transaction with Government. "It is certain," Mr. Gould continues "that the company will require all the assistance both of the Home and of the Colonial Government to force itself into operation." (Series Q. vol. 224-2, page 375).

Mr. Roebuck, who was acting as agent for the House of Assembly, moved in the beginning of April, 1835, that the Act constituting the British American Land Company should be annulled, but the subsequent history of the company, were there no other evidence, shows the want of success that attended the motion. There are various plans of the counties in the Eastern Townships acquired by the company and also a statistical statement of the Eastern Townships compiled from Bouchette's work; for these reference may be made to volume 213 at various pages and to the agreement already referred to, which is in a printed paper at page 266, showing that the company purchased 847,661 acres of Crown lands for which up to the end of March, 1837, the company had paid £19,200 and expended on public works £15,754 5s. 6d., a total amount of £34,954 5s. 6d.

As will be seen above the charge made against the British American Land Company by the House of Assembly was that the shareholders were seeking to obtain political power by the purchase of lands in Lower Canada. The petitions of Mr. D. B. Viger and Mr. A. N. Morin against granting the charter contradicts, at least by implication, although not in direct terms, the charge, the petition describing the shareholders as speculators, seeking to acquire in whole or in part the Crown lands in the province. The object of speculators being to derive profit from their investments, the two statements neutralise each other, as they could not be at once speculators looking for a return for their invested capital and persons looking for political power by the expenditure of their capital in the acquisition of lands from which no return could be expected. The question of settlement no doubt occupied the minds of the directors and of dividends to accompany the settlement engaged the attention of the committee and shareholders, leaving little thought for political considerations.

In Upper Canada a movement was made to have changes in the method of disposing of the Crown lands, the then method being represented by the House of Assembly as one of the obstacles which retarded the settlement of the province. In transmitting the petition Sir John Colborne represented that steps had been taken, substantially as suggested by the House of Assembly, to remove as far as possible the obstacles to settlement, deputy surveyors having been placed in every district who had been instructed to communicate to intending settlers full information respecting the waste lands of the Crown and to explain to them the method of disposing of them. The policy of settling boys who would otherwise become criminals was urged by Henry Wilson, of Essex, in the month of March, 1833. Writing to Mr. Stanley on the 30th of May, 1833, he said he had applied to Lord Goderich for his support of a plan for protecting and providing for some of the numerous destitute boys who were running wild about the streets of London, whose only means of subsistence arose from the commission of crime. Some had been sent to the Cape and others had been under his care and acquiring habits of industry, and he proposed in the May letter to have some of these latter sent to be settled in Canada, their outfit and passage money to be paid out of their wages. In a letter written by Mr. Wilson to Mr. Hay, the latter was informed that a committee was to be formed at Bytown, on the Ottawa, to receive and dispose of the boys. Writing on the 19th of June, he said he was anxious to send some of the boys to Canada who would, he wrote, "proceed direct to Bytown, on the Ottawa, where the necessary steps "have been taken to form a committee for their reception and distribution." (Series Q, volume 379—3, page 645).

Sir John Colborne, after making inquiry wrote that none of the inhabitants of Bytown had any knowledge of such a committee as Mr. Wilson spoke of, and recommended caution as to bringing boys as proposed. "I should not," he said, "recommend "encouragement to be given to any scheme for conveying boys to Canada, unless "an establishment could be formed for their reception and accommodation till "they could be disposed of among the farmers of the different districts." (Series Q, volume 381—3, page 734).

In the absence of the supposed arrangements a meeting of the leading inhabitants of Bytown was held, at which a committee was appointed to receive the boys who had been sent, and to house them until they could be disposed of. (Pages 739, 740).

The motive of Sir John Colborne's opposition to the scheme of Mr. Wilson appears to have arisen from caution and not from hostility to any feasible plan of settlement, but the contrary and he speaks in terms of praise of the plans of the Colonisation Society of Ireland as being so beneficent and precisely calculated to remove difficulties could certain obstacles be got rid of that stood in the way of the scheme. He pointed out the distress and embarrassment incurred by intending settlers with large families, which were compelled to wait until the heads of families could secure employment. In order to prevent these and kindred evils, agents were stationed as already mentioned at Quebec and other points to give such information as might be required and on arrival in Upper Canada the agents were to procure conveyances for the destitute to districts where work was carried on, or to townships where they could be employed in clearing land. It is clear from this that by the word "destitute" is meant men who were in need of immediate employment, not their helpless families.

One of the projected societies, "The North American Colonial Association of Ireland" applied to purchase the triangular piece of land in the Huron tract adjoining the territory of the Canada Company, but this proposal Sir John Colborne declined to recommend. The block asked for contained according to a diagram and report about 500,000 acres, (Series Q, volume 383—2 plan at page 258, report at page, 260.) From what has been said above it will be seen that the decision of Sir John Colborne not to recommend for acceptance, the proposal of the North American Colonisation Society of Ireland did not arise from any objection to the society itself, but to doubts as to its ability to carry out its plans effectively and in a confidential dispatch from Sir John Colborne to Mr. Spring Rice, Colonial Secretary, dated 2nd December, 1834, he discussed in detail the merits of the different Colonisation Societies as a supplementary statement to his public dispatch, No. 72, of the same date. In this confidential dispatch he again discussed the prospects of the Colonisation Association of Ireland and said that it could only be of a very limited assistance. He further recommended that the plan proposed of granting long leases should be abandoned and that the settlers should have the right to purchase their lots at any time it might suit their convenience. He also objected to the large collection of the labouring classes, as proposed by the Association, without the presence of persons qualified to act as magistrates. Sir John objected to the Ottawa Association which, he believed, had principally in view the engaging largely in the timber trade and would soon strip the whole district and exclude the Quebec merchants from a trade in which they had long been engaged. Returns to the end of 1833 of the lands sold or granted will be found in Series Q, volume 383-2, beginning at page 273. The returns show of land sold and granted: Crown lands in Lower Canada, page 273 verso, and of Clergy Reserves in the same province, page 274. The returns for Upper Canada are more elaborate and with letter from Mr. Peter Robinson, the Commissioner of Crown lands, extend from page 274 to 276, the last return being of the names of officers of the Army and Navy, who received orders for the remission, in accordance with their rank and service, of the purchase money of land purchased by them.

With respect to the progress that could be made in clearing land, Sir John Colborne writing on the 14th January, 1834, said that "a good chopper will clear an acre per week or rather underbrush and cut down an acre a week, leaving the operation of removing the logs to be undertaken at the most convenient season," which is a wise distinction between the preparation for clearing and the actual clearing of the land, the burning of the brush piles and the logs occupying some time. In regard to the experiment of raising funds by a loan on Crown lands for settling, Sir John reported that it could not be safely tried in any other colony on a large scale. The reason he gives for its safety in Upper Canada was the rapidly increasing value of the land, so many settlers constantly arriving with capital to purchase and where provisions could be procured to any extent at short notice. For the purpose of settlement authority was given to the Commissioner of Crown lands to sell the military reserve adjoining the town of York. The plan at page 74 of volume 381-1 of series Q will explain how the land was intended to be laid out and may be studied with interest by inhabitants of Toronto, as will also be the price of acre lots disposed of as a test of the value of the reserves at that date. Eighteen lots of an acre each were offered for sale in November 1834. They sold for £7,500 being an average of £416.13:4 per acre. According to Mr. J. Ross Robertson's "Land marks of Toronto," the population of Toronto in that same year (1834) was under 9,000, by the census return of 1891 it had increased to 181,220 taking the municipality as a whole, the population of the city as constituted with electoral districts for representation in the House of Commons was 144,023 the larger figure being the population of the city as an incorporated municipality. On the 20th March, 1834, Sir John Colborne wrote to Mr. Stanley, Colonial Secretary, that he had assented to a bill to extend the limits of the town of York and to incorporate it under the name of the city of Toronto. According to Sir John Colborne "many of the inhabitants were averse to a resumption of the original name of this part of the "township of York but there appeared no reason for rejecting a useful enactment on that account." (Series Q volume 381-2 page 365). The title of the plan on which the Act was founded was "Plan of ye proposed new town of York, U.C., on ye late military reserve" and has the following note: "The reserve contains about 140 acres 18 of which have been sold for £7,618. The rest may average £350 each. Henry James Castle, Dep. Surv'r., 14th January 1834." (Series Q., 381-1 page 74.) The amount of purchase money differs somewhat in the two statements. Another plan somewhat different in its details is in the same series volume 386-2 page 205.

The preamble to the Act passed on the 6th of March, 1834, recites the reason for granting incorporation in these terms: "Whereas, from the rapid increase of the population, commerce and wealth of the town of York, a more efficient system of police and municipal government than that now established has become obviously necessary." Then follows the reason for the change of name: "Whereas, the name of York is common to so many towns and places that it is desirable for avoiding inconvenience and confusion to designate the capital of the province by a name which will better distinguish it." It was therefore decided to revert to the original name of Toronto, under which it had been so long known as a trading post.

Other settlements were meanwhile advancing. Lord Egremont and others employed an agent to look out lands for a better class of settlers than those usually sent. The lands Mr. Brydone, the agent, preferred as the place of settlement were those to the north of Goderich, and of these he gave the boundaries and proposed to purchase a block of land containing about 60,000 acres, and he also asked that additional land might be reserved amounting altogether to 100,000 acres.

Mr. Brydone in his offer limited the price to $1 per acre; where the land on survey was found to grow chiefly hemlock, or ground hemlock, it was to be half a dollar; tamarac, or other swamps unfit for cultivation, not to be charged for, and that one-fourth of the purchase money was to be applied to the construction of roads and bridges throughout the tract, the rest to be paid at once or by instalments at the option of the Committee. Sir John Colborne had no objection, he wrote, to Mr. Brydone acquiring a block of land for Lord Egremont, but he could allow of no deviation from the regulations for the sale, nor could he recommend the alienation of more than 60,000 acres at a time. What, however, he intended to recommend was that 20,000 acres should be sold at five shillings an acre, on condition that the land should be settled at the rate of one family for every 200 acres. As soon as the conditions were complied with then 20,000 acres more might be sold under similar restrictions, and so on with the rest (Series Q., volume 387-2, pages 257, 258). The documents under review do not show what was the result, and no name being given to the projected township it is not easy to trace whether Lord Egremont was, or was not, able to establish the project he had in view. Some years before he had settled a very considerable number of people in the township of Adelaide and Caradoc (see series P.F., vol. 93, pages 24 to 27).

In 1834 an association was formed in London to form a settlement in Upper Canada, the banks of the Rideau Canal being the locality chosen for the new settlement. In urging support to the undertaking Mr. H. William Hobhouse represented the benefit such a settlement would be to the canal itself. It was stated that the whole of its Atlantic commerce would pass through the first eight locks, and as the supplies for the population and for the wants of the lumber trade, which would be required for years, must be largely brought from the neighbourhood of Lakes Ontario and Erie, the traffic of the canal would thus be greatly augmented. Mr. Hobhouse argued that the benefits of a small scale of operations would be confined to the immediate neighbourhood of the Ottawa, whereas the whole of the Canadas and the Mother Country would feel the advantage of an extensive undertaking. Investigators who desire to ascertain the history of other settlements are recommended to consult series C, beginning at volume 619 for the year 1794 down to the year 1853, and to various volumes in series PF, which contain the reports of Mr. Buchanan, who was emigration agent at Quebec, and are easily found by reference to the catalogue. It may not be out of place to mention that according to the statement of Mr. Byham, Secretary to the Board of Ordnance, the Rideau Canal was opened on the 1st September, 1832 (Series Q, volume 384-1, page 27).

The outbreak of cholera took place, according to Lord Aylmer's dispatch of 15th June, in the month of June, 1832, the first case reported by Dr. Skey, Deputy Inspector General of Hospitals, being that of a pensioner, whose disease was not recognised as being cholera, so that it was the 10th before Dr. Skey received information on the subject, by which time 26 patients had been admitted to the Emigrant's Hospital, of whom 19 had died, and on the following day, out of a total admission of 39, the number who died was 30. "No treatment" said Dr. Skey in his report, "seemed to make the least permanent impression upon the first cases, a temporary rally was produced by powerful agents internally given and externally applied, but they all died and that under a great variety of remedies employed upon different subjects." (Series Q, volume 202-1, page 212). Lord Aylmer wrote that the panic in Quebec and vicinity was general and very distressing, that many had fled from the town which was a relief to the overcrowded city, that the necessary sanitary measures had been adopted, a store hired and fitted up as a hospital and tents pitched on the plains of Abraham, sufficient to accommodate 500 persons, who might be willing to take advantage of the tents as otherwise they would be confined to the most populous and contracted parts of the town. Besides the deaths in the hospitals many took place in private dwellings, but the number of these was not reported to the Governor. Writing from the Horse Guards on the 11th August, FitzRoy Somerset (afterward Lord Raglan) informed Mr. Hay that he had received a private letter from Montreal, no date being given, which gave reason to fear that the cholera had committed severe ravages on the 15th Regiment quartered at Montreal. Either the private correspondent was misinformed or the officers were remiss in transmitting information of the attack as no mention is made of it in the correspondence of the regiment contained in the volume here relating to it, although Lord Aylmer reported the first of the outbreak and deaths in the regiment. The first outbreak which took place in Upper Canada, occurred between Coteau du Lac and Prescott, and was reported by Sir John Colborne on the 5th of July, 1832, but he does not give the date of the first case. The panic all over the country must have been very great as the crews of the boats on the St. Lawrence abandoned the emigrants under their charge and left them in a most deplorable condition. (Series Q., volume 374-4, page 804). But the panic was not confined to the St. Lawrence, as Colonel Nicolls of the Royal Engineers reported on the 6th of September, that the canals on the Ottawa were expected to have been finished before the ensuing winter, "but in consequence of the cholera having carried off many

"of the contractors' workmen and many more having left the work from alarm, I fear that cannot now be expected." (Series C, volume 55, page 51). In York, Kingston and Prescott, as reported in July, the number of cases was 86 in York, 147 in Kingston and 69 in Prescott. The table shows a total of 302 cases of whom 117 died. As according to Dr. Skey's report the attack did not begin in Quebec till the 8th of June, the figures here given must be those of the cases and deaths for less than a month. No dates are given, but Sir John Colborne says in his dispatch: "The disease which has raged with so much violence at Quebec and Montreal has been felt also in this province." (Series Q, vol. 374, page 804). It is, therefore, clear that the epidemic broke out in upper Canada at a date subsequent to its advent in Quebec, so that the number of cases and deaths in so short a period as must have passed was well calculated to create alarm, and if it were true, as reported, that the fish in the Ottawa were unfit and dangerous for food, alarm would not be lessened. (Sermon of Archdeacon Mountain, Series P., vol. 352 No. 2, page 11). The sufferings experienced by emigrants during the first alarm were very serious in consequence of the panic communicated from Montreal to the bateaux men and the inhabitants on the banks of the St. Lawrence, but according to Sir John Colborne's report, the authorities of the different districts used their best exertions to establish hospitals, taking charge of the sick and forwarding emigrants to the western districts. To assist the magistrates the sum of £500 for each district was allotted to be used by the newly formed Board of Health to establish hospitals and provide medical aid. Apparently the disease had not reached the inland parts of Upper Canada to any extent, as the number reported was only two from Brantford, in the London district, a small number compared with the deaths on the St. Lawrence below Lake Ontario.

In reporting the advance of the disease Lord Aylmer, governor, wrote that the disease had followed more particularly the great lines of communication traced by the emigrants on leaving Quebec for Upper Canada and the United States, but that, although to a much more limited extent, it had shown itself in other parts of the country and was not confined to emigrants but extended to the inhabitants in general, no proportion of cases or deaths being given. His Lordship adds that persons in easy circumstances and of regular habits suffered less than others, a statement supported by Archdeacon Mountain in the sermon already referred to, and that the rural parts of Lower Canada suffered less than either Quebec or Montreal. According to a dispatch (series Q, volume 202-1, page 261), the violence of the disease abated in a short time. As has been seen, Dr. Skey reported that the first case occurred on the 8th of June, so that accepting Lord Aylmer's report in his dispatch dated the 26th of that same month, it could only have been at its worst about a fortnight. His Lordship said: "The admissions and deaths in the Public Hospitals (in Quebec and Montreal) have become less frequent and the character of the disease itself appears in many cases to have assumed a form differing essentially from that in which it first presented itself." Only two deaths occurred among the troops at Quebec, but it was different in Montreal where the regiment quartered there, as reported to FitzRoy Somerset by a private correspondent, suffered severely. Lord Aylmer gives the figures which were between the 12th and 23rd of June admissions 85 and deaths 33. At Quebec and Montreal the disease broke out with a degree of violence far surpassing anything that had occurred in Europe and even in India the disease, it was said, was neither so rapidly fatal or so universal in its seizure as during the first five days of its prevalence in Quebec. (Series Q 202-1, page 262.) In the course of a few days at Quebec the disease carried off upwards of 1,500 persons, but the reports from various districts would serve to show that whilst the disease was at first violent in its operations its absolutely fatal effects were not long continued. At Chambly for instance Mr. Samuel Hatt wrote on the 26th of June that the desolating pestilence, which had proved fatal to so many had diminished in virulence, the cases being of a milder type although it had not ceased to exist. Out of 400 or 500 cases of disease at Chambly since the 15th, Mr. Hatt thought that not more than 100 could have been characterised as Asiatic cholera. Similar reports came from other places; whilst, however, its character was much changed and its fatal effects lessened it still lingered. The extracts from the city newspapers confirm the report of the diminution of the power of the disease and the fact that it travelled along the most frequented routes. One of the papers, the name of which is not given, reported that the disease was not spreading to the country. The only exceptions were in the closely inhabited parishes of Beauport and Point Lévis, elsewhere there had been only two or three solitary cases. At Beauport there were 30 deaths, several respectable farmers among the number. At Point Lévis, also closely inhabited, about 25 deaths were reported from the first appearance of the disease up to the 24th of June. The total number of admissions to the two hospitals in Quebec to the same date was 674 with 419 deaths, but the 24 hours between the 23rd and 24th of June show only 16 new cases, and the much smaller rate of mortality of 16 deaths out of 191 cases. Up to the 26th of June there had been 712 cases with 440 deaths, and the Board of Health issued a congratulatory notice of the abatement of the disease, which had besides become much milder and much more easily curable.

An extract from a private letter dated "Montreal, Saturday evening, said: "The cholera has diminished rapidly since yesterday morning. There are, however, still a considerable number of cases." At Kingston, on the 21st June, the writer of a letter to which no name was attached, said the only decided case he had seen was stopped at Kingston and placed in the temporary hospital; on the 20th there were two cases and one death, on the 21st four new cases and no deaths. There were two deaths reported to be due to cholera but they were of two notorious drunkards, whose deaths were caused by delirium tremens. The Montreal Board of Health reported on the 26th of June that there had been from the 10th to the 25th of June inclusive, 3,384 cases and 947 deaths. A comparison of the cases in the earlier and later period shows a marked diminution in the cases but the percentage of deaths had increased very materially if only the new cases of each day and the deaths were considered without regard being paid to the number of cases remaining over from day to day, which would give an entirely wrong view of the virulence of the disease at its first outbreak and at the end of the month, all the reports speaking of its much milder character at the end of the month of June than at the beginning. In Kingston the Board of Health reported that energetic measures had been taken to check the disease and the medical men there it was reported had abandoned every other consideration to attend to the public benefit. From the 20th to the 23rd June inclusive there were according to the report of the Board 14 new cases, 6 deaths and 6 recoveries. At Brockville, the Board of Health reported on the 19th of June 3 cases in the town, one convalescent, one dangerous, the third being a new case attacked that morning. The two local papers congratulated the town on its practical exemption from the disease. In Prescott, a correspondent of the Brockville Recorder said that up to the 19th of June, there had been four cases two of whom had died, one of the patients having died ten minutes after being attacked. The Grenville Gazette reported that between Cornwall and Prescott, a great number of Durham boats were fastened to trees having been deserted by their crews and the Recorder reported that the village of Prescott was in a dreadful state of consternation, many moving their families to a distance and that the crews of the Government boats plying to Montreal had deserted in consequence of the mortality that had taken place on the passage.

In series Q volume 202-2 beginning at page 309, continued at page 311, there are statistical accounts of the number of cases and deaths in Quebec. A correspondent, writing from Montreal on the 25th June, said that the printers, like others, had deserted their work a fortnight before but at the date he wrote activity was resumed, the stores were again opened and the markets better supplied. At St. Joachim, to which the correspondent of the Canadien had fled to escape the cholera he found that it had broken out there with the most violent symptoms. Such is his statement but the fact that a schoolmaster who was attacked was cured by the most simple means would indicate that the correspondent was so terrified that he could not judge correctly of the strength of the disease and this is supported by the fact that he had fled from the town to avoid the cholera (J'ai fui de la ville pour éviter le coléra).

According to the Minerve 19 had died of cholera at Berthier up to the 22nd of June. The Montreal Courier stated on the 26th of June that on the 22nd there were 20 sick, 15 convalescent and 12 cured in the village of Berthier. Up to the 24th, 12 deaths were reported from the mouth of the Chateauguay river, St. Johns had eight deaths and Chambly eleven. In La Prairie 40 deaths were reported. Beginning at page 323 of volume 202-2 series Q is a summary in French of the progress of the disease in Upper and Lower Canada. The summary ends at page 331.

On the 6th of July, Lord Aylmer, the Governor, wrote respecting the disease in Lower Canada: "I am happy in being able to state that it continues to abate in point of malignity and the medical practitioners pronounce it to be now considerably more manageable than it was at the commencement; the panic in the public mind is rapidly subsiding and the people are returning to their ordinary occupations, which at one period of the prevalence of the disorder were almost entirely abandoned." One of the evils threatened during the early stages was the scarcity of provisions in Quebec, the country people being afraid to bring their produce to the town. One of the benefits was the cessation of political agitation (Series Q, volume 202-2 pages, 372-373). Some interesting tables follow by which it will be seen that deaths from the disease increased from 6 in the 24 hours of 8th and 9th June to 143 of the 14-15th, when they began to diminish. During the period covered by this return the Quebec Catholics who died numbered 789, St. Roch Catholics 210 and St. Roch Protestants 412, a total of 1,421 (page 375). The number of cases admitted to the hospitals show a slight difference, the greatest number of admissions being in the 24 hours ending on the 17th when they began to diminish, but the fact that fewer deaths took place on the 15th whilst the cases were still increasing would seem to show that the virulence of the disease had somewhat, although as yet, not greatly abated (page 376). The translation of a lecture on the disease, delivered by Dr. Broussais, begins at page 379 of the same volume. According to the account of Dr. Wallace, assistant surgeon of the 15th regiment, there were among the Caughnawaga Indians 157 cases and 70 deaths, but he could obtain no account of the daily progress of the disease except for three days on each of which three cases occurred; the last death took place on the 6th. From his examination of the last nine cases Dr. Wallace thought the disease was cholera but of a very mild nature. According to his report he could detect no local cause for the outbreak, the houses being clean and neat and remarkably well ventilated. In one of the best of them in what was apparently a most healthful situation five persons out of nine had died. The report of Dr. Wallace's visit to Caughnawaga is dated 11th July, but he does not give the date of the visit in that account. He found at the date, whatever that was, that the cases had been fewer and much milder (pages 432-433).

Dr. Skey, the Deputy Inspector General of Hospitals, attributes the fatalities to intemperate habits (page 434). This belief does not agree with the report from Chambly by Mr. Hatt, in which he stated that the canal labourers there were exempt from the disease, but that this exemption did not arise from cleanliness, sobriety or attention to diet, with the latter of which they took an ample allowance of bad rum. At the end of Mr. Hatt's letter, dated 21st July, one line said that the total number of deaths had been 70 (page 456).

On the 9th of August Lord Aylmer reported that the cholera, although abating in Quebec and Montreal still lingered, was spreading in other parts of the province and had proved very destructive in many places (page 502).

It seems unnecessary to enter more largely into remarks on the outbreak of the disease as the reports continued uninterruptedly of its abatement. The calendar will show to those who desire to investigate the question more minutely, the various references to it in the volumes now under consideration. It may be permitted to add that in the summer of 1834 a disease broke out which assumed the appearance of Asiatic cholera but was attributed by medical men to the excessive heat and as soon as that abated there was a corresponding decrease of the disease.

The state of the metallic currency in the Canadas appears from the documents here to have been in an unsatisfactory condition. On the 15th of April, 1833, Lord Aylmer recommended to the legislature of Lower Canada the expediency of creating a metallic currency to replace that which was then in circulation. The Assembly does not appear to have taken any steps to carry out the recommendation, but the Legislative Council appointed a committee to investigate the question, which presented a report, adopted by the Council, that a small silver currency was not necessary but recommended the creations of copper half-pence of the value of Halifax currency. Lord Aylmer concurred in the report and suggested to the Colonial Secretary, the issue of £5,000 worth of these half-pence to be put in circulation by the Commissariat. The so-called coins in circulation were of the most abundant variety. One of these, sent as a specimen, was a regimental button of the royal fusiliers, as tokens of this kind passed current as half-pence of Halifax currency. (Series Q. 207-2 p. 432.)

In Upper Canada the Treasury complained of the rate of the value fixed upon the copper coinage sent to be applied for the circulation of small sums in that province as they thought it held out an inducement of from 20 to 25 per cent on the return of the coins to Great Britain, so that whilst authorizing the issue by the commissariat of such coins as had been already sent, the Treasury would not send more.

The threatened disallowance of Acts to incorporate banks in Upper Canada created a good deal of agitation and excitement in that province. In the preliminary report for 1899, some remarks are made on the banking systems in Upper and Lower Canada and on the opposition that the establishment of banks met with. A reference to these remarks (pages xxii and xxiii of the preliminary report for 1899) will show the authorities relied upon and in what volumes they are to be found. The contrast between the banking facilities required in the early years of the century and the present day is very striking. In 1821, the Solicitor General made what he considered the alarming statement of the danger that would attend the incorporation of three banks in Lower Canada. In Upper Canada a bank was chartered in 1819 with a capital of $800,000 reduced to one half or $400,000, the larger amount being found too great for the wants of the province. There are now 24 banks in the two provinces with a capital stock of $53,500,000, the total amount invested in banks in the Dominion being nearly $62,000,000.

The proposed disallowance of the Acts respecting the banks, the one for increasing the capital of the Bank of Upper Canada and the other for establishing the Commercial Bank called forth memorials and petitions against the proposal from many quarters. One argument relied upon by the memorialists was the apprehended interference by the Imperial Government with internal legislation. Besides the memorials from individuals taking this ground, there were others from incorporated bodies, town and township councils, &c. The reason of the hesitation of the Imperial authorities to sanction the banking bill was the belief that the necessary safety was not secured to the public by the terms of the charter, and that the necessity existed for additional precautions being taken in the Acts of incorporation before the royal assent was given. The amendments which the Lords of Trade desired to be introduced are recapitulated in volume 379—1, of series Q, beginning at page 10, and included security for the redemption in specie of the notes issued, and the prevention of fluctuations in the amount and value of the paper money, which, it was apprehended, would be attended with disastrous consequences to the community. For this reason the Treasury and Lords of Trade recommended that if assent were given to the Act relating to the chartered banks in Upper Canada it should only be given conditionally, on the agreement that the necessary, or what they considered the necessary, amendments to give greater security to the public should be made. But the public insisted that assent should be given unconditionally, being satisfied with the security. Those in London who had money invested in Canada became alarmed at the suspension of the sanction to the banking Act, which, as was alleged by Mr. N. Gould, chairman of the North American Colonial Association, had created great commercial distrust and a considerable fluctuation in the value of the bank paper, the property of those who had investments in Canada being subject to serious injury from any derangement of the monetary system. This seems to have been the view taken by Canadians generally.

In consequence of a report sent by W. L. McKenzie of the intention of Government respecting the bank charters, a run took place on the banks, but the Lieut Governor hoped to prevent the injurious effects apprehended from the rumors that had been industriously circulated. In a very long letter to the Lieut. Governor, Mr. W. Allan the president of the Bank of Upper Canada, defended the provisions of the charter as furnishing sufficient security and criticised the reasons for withholding assent to the bank Acts as altogether insufficient, whilst he held the effects of the suspension to be the risk of producing the utmost confusion and distress where perfect confidence and security existed. Mr. Allan argued as against the reasons of the Treasury and Lords of Trade that the banks and the public were both interested in the security of these institutions and that the effect of a run, which would be aggravated by the provisions proposed by the Treasury and Lords of Trade to be inserted in the charters, should be overcome as speedily as possible, which it could not be by the provisions suggested by the Treasury and Lords of Trade, not the least of the evils being the withdrawal of the charter if their transactions were not closed in sixty days, many causes concurring to prevent this, the consequence of the abrogations of the charter being that no body would remain liable to the public or with power to collect the assets from which alone the public could be paid. Other evils sprang, as Mr. Allan believed, from the proposed regulations of the Treasury and Lords of Trade, but to do full justice to his representations of these, reference must be made to Mr. Allan's letter to be found in volume 378-1 of series Q. from page 6 onwards. In reference to the proportion of specie to circulation, Sir John Colborne reported for the information of the Colonial Secretary that the directors of the Bank of Upper Canada did not think it necessary to have more specie than one-fifth in proportion to their circulation. Mr. Allan, the president of the Bank, reported that the directors had never found it necessary to be governed by any particular rule as to the proportion between specie and circulation, they always kept a good supply of funds with their foreign agents, the notes being redeemed at Montreal and New York; at the former nearly £600,000 were redeemed in 1833. But for the existence of another chartered bank which collected the notes of the Bank of Upper Canada on which to obtain specie, the directors did not think it would be necessary to keep more than one-half of the reserve to meet demands for specie. The agitation against the suspension of the royal assent to the Bank charters was so great and general in the province, that Lord Glenelg, then Colonial Secretary, saw that it was necessary to bend to the storm, although the Lords of Trade and the Treasury retained their objections to the provisions, and the want in the charters of precautions for the public security. On the 15th July, 1835, the Secretary of the Lords of Trade intimated to Lord Glenelg that for reasons stated in the letter, their Lordships could not recommend that the royal assent should be given to the Banking Act (Series Q volume 388-1 page 11). On the 31st Lord Glenelg's secretary wrote by His Lordship's directions that he did not dispute the correctness of the general principles affecting the grant of such charters, but that there were still more important considerations to be taken into account in dealing with the question (page 15). The reasons were given in the following page which were the attitude of hostility adopted in Upper Canada and the threat to stop supplies should grievances not be redressed of which the refusal to assent to the Bank Acts was one, as the local Legislature passed these Acts with a full knowledge of the opinion of the Imperial Government respecting the subject. Lord Glenelg, through his secretary, stated at some length the views that would be taken by the legislature from which His Lordship did not appear to dissent (pages 17, 18). For these and other reasons Lord Glenelg was of opinion that the proper course would be the confirmation of the Acts and that the Lieut. Governor should be directed to call the attention of the Legislature to the views of the Lords of Trade so that at some future time the Acts might be amended. The Lords of Trade whilst protesting against a precedent being created for the establishment of banks yielded to the political considerations advanced by Lord Glenelg and consented to recommend that the Acts should be assented to, which, however, was only to be done on the responsibility of the Colonial Secretary (page 23).

In October, 1832, a prospectus was issued of the proposal to establish a town at the Falls of Niagara to be called "The City of the Falls" the advantages of which for visitors and residents were described in glowing colours, the genial heat of summer free from mosquitoes and other insects being dwelt upon as part of the inducements to go there and to take stock in the company formed to establish the city. According to the agreement to terminate their joint interests as a company before the 31st December, 1835, the committee proposed to divide the land into building lots and to distribute them to the shareholders by lot. According to the prospectus there were to be distributed 2,600 building lots to be acquired at $100, each lot to be a share, and here came in the lottery element; besides the building lot assured by the purchase money there was the chance of obtaining the Pavilion Hotel, rented at £500 a year, for five years; the Ontario House rented at £200 a year; the Red House valued at $1,500 and four cottages of various values. It was determined to construct water works to supply not less than 80 gallons a minute to the summit level, also to complete the baths and assembly rooms. The principal street, to be called Stanley street it was decided should be 100 feet wide; the other streets were to be 80 feet wide. The arrangements are given in minute detail (Series Q volume 384—1, pages 218 to 228). It may be of interest to give the time of travelling to the proposed city, which was five days from New York and Quebec, the daily post to New York took 75 hours and the postage of a single letter was 30 cents. When the contemplated railway was completed New York might be reached in 30 hours. It is stated in the circular that by the New York packets passages were frequently made across the Atlantic in the "short time" of from 20 to 28 days, but these "short" passages were very uncertain and in no respect compare with the speed and exactitude of the modern steam ship. Mr. Buchanan, the British Consul at New York, alleged that it was to him was due the project of laying out the "City of the Falls" and that from respect to Mr. Stanley, the Colonial Secretary, he had named the great leading street Stanley Street, and had affixed the name of Hay, the Under Secretary, to a space between the Pavilion and Ontario House "in which all stand and gaze at the Falls." The further contents of the letter do not impress the mind with a feeling of Mr. Buchanan's absolute disinterestedness as he urges in the course of the letter that Mr. Hay should take some shares as an investment which would be profitable. Besides the City of the Falls, a company was formed to construct a harbour and dock at Niagara, which was to be in the marshy ground of the ravine, but some mistake appears to have been made as to the extent of the ground set apart for the project and granted to the company. Sir John Colborne, the Lieut. Governor, had, as appears from his dispatch, no apprehension of any trouble with the company, Captain Bonycastle having reported that the company did not wish to retain possession of any ground the property of the Ordnance and was ready to enter into arrangements for leasing property. The plan in page 254 of volume 377-2 of series Q will more clearly than any written description show the proposals and the nature of the objections of Colonel Nicolls to the proposed arrangement.

In September, 1832, an undated plan for the government of Canada was sent to Mr. Nathaniel Gould as chairman of the North American Colonial Association but laid over as the effusion of an enthusiast. The document is signed John W. Sargeant but was without date or address. The proposal was that Canada should be governed by a viceroy to be styled King of Canada, that he was to be one of the royal dukes, that the heirs were to succeed him subject to the Imperial authority, and that the reigning viceroy was to succeed to the Crown on the demise of the elder branches. His annual allowance (it is not stated by whom this was to be paid) was to be £100,000 exclusive of his other resources. The viceroy was to have a House of Lords and a House of Commons, dukes, marquises, earls, viscounts and barons were to be created amongst the wealthiest persons in Canada to form the Upper House. The baronets, knights and esquires should form the lower House. Orders of Knighthood were to be established and everything that could promote royal honour and distinctions. It was proposed also that the whole of the British North American possessions should be included in the vicerealty and that all military or naval expenditure should be borne by it except when there was a war in defence of the Empire. The further proposal deals with systematic emigration, the opening of roads and other communications, the treatment of felons &c. It need scarcely be said that the proposal of Mr. Sargeant was never carried into effect.

On the 22nd November, 1832, Mr. Nathaniel Gould, who took a lively interest in the affairs of Canada and frequently sent extracts from his correspondence to the Colonial Office, reported that meetings had been held by the most respectable parties, presumably of Montreal, at which it had been resolved to petition His Majesty's Government to annex Montreal as a port of entry to Upper Canada. In the December of 1832, the Assembly of Upper Canada discussed the question but without coming to any decision (Series Q, volume 206—3, pages 721 to 751). In January, 1833, the Assembly of Lower Canada protested against the annexation of Montreal or any part of Lower Canada to the upper province and passed a series of resolutions on the subject in course of which they relied upon the terms of the capitulation of Montreal in September, 1760, as protecting Lower Canada from having any part of its territory annexed to Upper Canada (Series Q, volume 207—1, pages 11 to 17). A speech of Mr. Hagerman on the subject was printed in an extra of the Patriot (pages 18 to 56) in the course of which he dwelt upon the exaction of duties levied on products of Upper Canada passing through or shipped in the ports of Lower Canada (pages 31 to 33), the amount of which he calculated to be £10,887 0. 0. The union of the two Canadas in 1841 removed the friction that existed with respect to the duties levied by the province possessing the seaports.

The changes recommended by Mr. Stayner, the deputy Postmaster General, in the management of the Post Office, might be studied with advantage even now when the system has been completely changed and the Post Office department is entirely managed by the Dominion authorities (Series Q, volume 210—2, page 367).

The attempt to settle commuted pensioners does not appear, according to Sir John Colborne's account, to have been successful. Writing to Mr. Hay on the 6th of November, 1832, he said that many of the commuted pensioners were in great distress, whilst these who did not commute were prosperous. He pointed out the great danger that would be incurred by sending out commuted pensioners who being in distress would become discontented, troublesome subjects and think themselves cruelly treated if not relieved. Sir John Colborne suggested that in some cases the pensions might be renewed and continued for two years provided that the pensioners so recommended should remain on their land and clear a sufficient number of acres for the future support of their families. He repeated his warning of the danger of sending so many discontented old soldiers to the province and urged a modification of the then existing system. Should permission be given to commute he suggested that only a certain advance might be made to commuters to enable them to reach the colonies and a reduced pension granted to them whilst employed clearing their land. (Series Q volume 374—4, pages 890-891.)

Writing in January, 1833, Sir John repeated his statement as to the prosperous condition of the soldiers who had retained their pensions and the distress to which the commuted pensioners had been reduced. Of these he had little encouraging to say, they were in great distress having squandered away their commutation allowance, so that they could not, without further assistance, remain on the land, besides which they were either too indolent or unable to labour with energy sufficient to provide for their families. The conclusion arrived at was that from various circumstances they would soon become settlers of the worst description for the provinces. (Series Q volume 377 page 3.) Returns were enclosed with the letter quoted. The first "Return of destitute commuted pensioners remaining at present on their lands in the township of Medonte 1832"; of these there were 51 heads of families with 161 children and 50 wives a total of 262 persons; all these were marked as in absolute distress, the second was entitled "Return of commuted pensioners that left the settlement for want of means to bring their lands into cultivation." In this list were 20 men, 19 of whom were married, having their wives with them and 31 children. These are marked as in actual distress and a note says: "There were above 60 commuted pensioners came here this summer with orders for lot, but as they had not the means of settling on lands, I thought it useless to locate them." (Pages 17 to 19.) These returns fully confirm the opinion expressed by Sir John Colborne respecting the suitability of commuted pensioners for becoming settlers. A report sent by Sir John Colborne in a letter dated 26th March, 1833, stated that the plan of sending commuted pensioners to Australia had long been given up as soon as its evil effects manifested themselves. It was a scheme, the report said, hastily adopted and without due communication with the Colonial Office.

Wolfe's victory on the Plains of Abraham was not, when it occurred, as complete as has been believed although subsequent events have attested its importance. It would not, apparently, have taken much to change the fortunes of the field after the first victory. Carried away by their ardour the troops on the Plains of Abraham were falling into disorder in the pursuit of the flying enemy and Brigadier Townshend, on whom had devolved the command by the death of Wolfe and the incapacity of Monckton from his wound, was obliged to make all haste to rally the centre of the line "for" says Sergeant Johnston in his unpublished memoir: "Monsieur de Bougainville with a body of 2,000 men arrived in the rear of our army, that general having been sent the day before with that body of troops by General de Montcalm to Cape Rouge to watch the motions of our fleet" (Series M volume 132 pages 46, 47). The sergeant continues: "He (Bougainville) no sooner heard of our army having gained the heights of Abraham but he began his march towards us, but did not arrive in time to have any share in the battle." Knox in his "Historical Journal" volume 2 page 70 says, but his account is very confused, "Monsieur de Bougainville with his troops from Cape Rouge came down to attack the flank of our second line, hoping to penetrate there, but by a masterly disposition of Brigadier Townshend, they were forced to desist." The account of Knox, if read by itself would make it appear that M. de Bougainville's force was on the field before the death of Wolfe, but all the circumstances prove clearly that the report of the death of Wolfe and of the wound which incapacitated Monckton had reached Townshend before the threatened attack of M. de Bougainville as it was to meet that attack that Townshend, when he succeeded to the command had hastened to recall the centre of the line from the pursuit of the enemy as he himself stated to the Secretary at War. According to Sergeant Johnson, the battle began about nine o'clock in the morning, so that Wolfe's force must have been on the ground for perhaps two or three hours before that. It was broad day light, says Johnson, by the time the troops were landed and had ascended the hill. They were ordered to lie flat on their arms, which it is reported, they did for a considerable time. The phrase is a very vague one and may not have represented a long period. In September the sun rises a little before six at the date of the battle, so that the French troops must have been brought up without much delay, the battle, as already stated, having been begun about nine. There is a wide difference in the statements of de Bougainville and others in the report of the number of troops that could have been brought from Cap Rouge by Bougainville. His own account is that the number of troops under his command at Cap Rouge was 350 and that with this number he had defeated the efforts of a much larger body to land. Knox says he brought with him 2,600; Johnson gives the number under his command as 2,000, but the number given by de Bougainville is no doubt correct, as Cap Rouge, according to the reconnaissance made in anticipation of offensive measures, was easily defensible. That even the small force under de Bougainville's command, taking the minimum (350 men) as correct might have ensured a different result is not at all improbable. The wisdom of not deferring the attack of the 13th of September is justified by the result, on the axiom that nothing succeeds like success, as it is not probable that the fact was known of two additional French regiments with a corps of Indians being ordered to march (it is not stated from what point) at five o'clock in the morning of the 13th and immediately to entrench the heights up which Wolfe's force had scrambled to the field of battle. It need scarcely be pointed out how completely this new event, if accomplished in time, would have disconcerted Wolfe's plans. There is a tradition that Wolfe was killed by a shot from a deserter from the British Army, who wished to obtain revenge for his being found fault with by Wolfe, but this is one of the stories which, in the present state of information, can neither be proved nor disproved. Hone in his "Day Book" page 126 gives the shooting of Wolfe by a deserter as a report, but without quoting his authority, the only deserter from the British army spoken of was one belonging to the Royal Americans, who was taken prisoner, tried and shot. The story may have originated in the arrest of a French soldier who was caught concealed in an old house, sharpening a knife with which it was suspected he intended to assassinate Wolfe. Nothing was proved against the man who asserted that he was a deserter, and it is not beyond the bounds of possibility that this incident gave rise to the report that Wolfe was shot by a deserter. No contemporary mentions the rumour. As to the shooting of the deserter from the Royal Americans it has been objected that according to the terms of the capitulation of Quebec, no deserter of whatever nation was to be punished, but with regard to that objection it may be sufficient to state that no notice is taken of the treatment of deserters in any of the clauses of the capitulation of Quebec and in the terms of the capitulation of Montréal, the article treating of deserters (VI) proposing that they should on both sides be pardoned for their crime was bluntly answered "Refused." The wonder was that Wolfe should have escaped death rather than that he was killed in the battle, a risk to which no general especially in such critical circumstances as those Wolfe had to face, should expose himself, if only out of regard to the safety of his troops. As a matter of fact, he exposed himself where the attack was hottest and would always be in the front of the line neither would he be prevailed upon to the contrary (Series M, volume 132, page 44).

Major Grant in his report of the state of Canada contradicts the reports of intended attacks upon Quebec after its surrender by de Ramesay but gives no authority for his statement. He says :

It probably will be said that a second attack would have been made upon the English army after the arrival of Mr. Levy at Jaques Cartier, if the Chev. de Ramsay had not given up the town too precipitately, a thing which was much talked of, but, in fact, I dare say no such attack was ever intended. (Series M volume 214—1 page 141).

Much blame, by inference at least, has been cast upon de Ramesay for his having surrendered Quebec on the morning of the 18th or as has been said the 17th September, five days after the battle of the Plains of Abraham, although he had been informed that de Levis was to reinforce him on the 18th and that he was to defend the town at all hazards. According to the report by Grant, already quoted, no preparations had been made by Vaudreuil for the defence of Quebec as he had always considered an attack on it a thing impossible "and had taken no precautions in case such a thing should happen." (Page 138.) Besides Townshend was determined to attack the place by formal siege so as to obtain possession and intended to hold it although the enemy's army and the whole hostile country to Montreal was in his rear; that on his left was a large wood capable of harbouring regular and irregular troops until the forces could recover from the effects of their defeat. From Montreal could be received reinforcements of fresh troops, who had done no duty of consequence. Sergeant Johnson sums up the situation thus: "We lay open to any surprise between their army in our rear and on our flank and the fire of the garrison in our front and no possibility of retreat" (series M, volume 132, page 49). A general assault by the fleet on the lower town and of Townshend on the upper town was fixed for the 17th of September although Townshend's preparations could not be completed for some days after that time, so that de Ramesay not knowing the unprepared state of Townshend and seeing, as he believed, the hopelessness of resistance even for an hour after the attack was delivered and pressure being brought to bear on him by the inhabitants, who looked forward with dread to the effect of a bombardment consented to capitulate if not relieved by de Levis and de Bougainville on the morning of the 18th. The surrender took place on that morning and by the time the relieving force arrived it was too late to reverse the Act of de Ramesay. In a fragment of a diary kept by a French officer, it is stated "The courier on his arrival at Quebec found M. de Ramsay in treaty with the besieging general for the surrender of the place, and why he did not immediately break off, or, at least, suspend the negotiations, we are at a loss to conceive; the "capitulation was reciprocally ratified and exchanged in the English camp on the "morning of the 18th, whereby Quebec became a British garrison." (Knox, volume 2, page 99.)

The reason for granting what Townshend considered such favourable terms to de Ramesay are thus stated by him to the Secretary of State: The enemy assembling in the rear and what was far more formidable the very wet and cold season which threatened the troops with sickness and the fleet with some accident; the rains had made the road so bad that a gun could not be brought up for some time; add to this the advantage of entering the town with the walls in a defensible state and being able to put a garrison there strong enough to prevent all surprise. (Knox volume 2, p. 130.) Additional confirmation is given (page 131) of the difficulty of attacking Quebec, but it seems unnecessary to give further proof. Deserters from the French reported that de Bougainville was on the march with 800 men and provisions to fling himself into Quebec on the 18th, which is confirmed by de Bougainville's own statement, although he does not give the number of troops with him. It may be remarked that Knox stated the strength of de Bougainville's force when he marched on the British army after the death of Wolfe to have been 2,600 and Johnson 2,000; by this account the number for the relief of Quebec is given as 800, a variation which may be taken to support the statement of de Bougainville, written it must be remembered in a private letter to Madame Herault and therefore unaffected by military or political considerations, that at Cap Rouge "with 350 men, I repulsed twice on the same day 1,500 men." Whatever encouragement was held out to de Ramesay to resist, the pressure on him to capitulate was such as to leave him no choice. The troops brought by de Levis from Montreal to assist de Ramesay must have materially, even if only temporarily, weakened the strength of the force at Montreal and the surrender of Niagara was another obstacle removed out of the way of the three corps which were to unite for the reduction of Montreal.

During the winter of 1759 a friendly correspondence appears to have been kept up between the commanders on both sides and an exchange of prisoners took place. The French prisoners (228 in number) who were sent in exchange (as against 270) suffered from the severity of the weather. Writing to Pitt from New York on the 9th of January, 1760, General Amherst said that by the severity of the weather the French prisoners whom he was sending in exchange were detained at Ticonderoga from the 3rd to the 13th, when they marched to Crown Point, with difficulty got some bateaux out of the ice and succeeded in reaching Isle aux Noix. Those who remained he resolved to keep and not to send to Britain as M. de Vaudreuil seemed to desire, a statement which lets in a side light on the character of M. de Vaudreuil (Series M. 214—1, page 180). But it was not from pure benevolence the resolution was come to respecting the retention of the prisoners instead of shipping them across the Atlantic, as Amherst added his reasons immediately after: "Because I imagine they should be but an incumbrance there and in staying here they may hereafter be the means of inducing the "enemy to give up every soul they have belonging to the King's dominions" (page 180).

The objective point in the approaching campaign was Montreal and Amherst, wrote to Pitt that he would begin operations as early as possible and attack the enemy in different places, so as to render less difficult the reduction of Montreal, "the great and essential object. (Series M, 214-2, page 334). According to his statement in his journal under the title of "extra services by me," Lieut. Montresor was sent from Quebec to New England in 1760 to fix the plan for the junctions of the armies at Montreal. General Amherst in his letters of 8th March, 1760, does not state the object of Lieutenant (afterwards Colonel) Montresor in his journey to Boston and subsequently his arrival at New York from Quebec, but he gives a deplorable account of the sufferings of himself and his companions on their way to Boston. Their provisions, General Amherst states, were expended twelve days before they arrived at the settlement at Topsham (the first New England settlement), they ate all the spare leather, Indian shoes and bullet pouches that they had brought with them. Apparently Montresor, although only a lieutenant, was to be placed in charge of a separate command, for he was to be given all the information possible of his (Amherst's) movements that he might give the enemy a diversion with such troops as were not wanted in the garrison of Quebec. (Series M, volume 214-2 page 337). What position Lt. Montresor occupied in the garrison of Quebec is not stated but General Amherst quotes his report as authoritative that the nuns of the Hotel Dieu were perfectly satisfied with their treatment, wood and everything they could expect having been supplied them (page 338). The troops in the various garrisons suffered greatly from scurvy, many having died, and it is specially reported from Quebec, "especially the wounded men" (Series M, volume 132, page 69). In consequence of which many of the men led out by Murray to resist the attack of the French were described as "a pitiful handful of half starved skeletons, many of whom had laid by their crutches for the occasion, as not being prevailed on to stay behind, although they were absolutely forbidden to go" (page 70). Murray's defeat in the field has already been mentioned. But for the arrival of the British fleet for his defence it is not improbable that Quebec might have been retaken by the French as the town lay open to attack on every side and was badly garrisoned.

In spring General Murray was notified by General Amherst that he was to join him at Montreal with all the troops he could spare from Quebec; Colonel Haviland was to come down Lake Champlain and take Isle aux Noix in passing; Amherst with the main army was to proceed by the rivers Mohawk and Oneida to Lake Ontario, and thence down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, there to join the other two corps. M. de Bougainville was sent by Vaudreuil to Isle aux Noix to take command of the frontier, and had most minute directions sent him which contain every indication of the state of uneasiness of Vaudreuil, by whom the instructions were sent. Both he and deLevis, however, express the highest sense of the competence and carefulness of de Bougainville. These expressions are so often repeated by both commanders that it would be idle to quote any of them. General histories contain the fact of the junction of the three corps under Amherst, Murray and Haviland and the surrender of Montreal, but there are remarks on the situation that are of interest. The difficulties in Governor de Vaudreuil's way are first pointed out. His being forsaken by the French Canadians who, to a large extent, had taken to the British Crown the oath of allegiance or of neutrality; the little dependence that could be placed on the regular troops who would not fight to the last extremity, and his ignorance of the movements of the enemy beyond the fact that the forces coming against him were strong and well disciplined, and although he might make a temporary defence and obtain a partial victory, yet as every avenue by water was closed up he saw no place of refuge after his inevitable defeat (Series M, volume 132, pages 119, 120). With respect to General Amherst, his difficulties are next pointed out. He arrived at Oswego in the beginning of July, but the preparation for the expedition to Montreal occupied till the 10th of August before he was able to set off down the St. Lawrence. His road was full of the greatest impediments, he was an entire stranger to the navigation of the lake and it was no better after he had reached the entrance to the St. Lawrence: Isle Royale lay in his way with all its neighboring islands, which he was forced to besiege in form. He had no sooner taken possession of the fortress of Isle Royale and left there a garrison, than he proceeded to Montreal, on the road to which he was forced to fight every inch of the way. He lost by the obstructions in the river between Isle Royale and Montreal 46 bataux, 17 whale boats, one row galley and nearly 100 men, besides stores, provisions, artillery ammunition, &c. (Series M, volume 132, pages 122, &c.).

Although Haviland's route was not attended with such imminent dangers on his road from Crown Point to Montreal, yet he had as many impediments as General Amherst; two strong garrisons lay in his way, that at Isle aux Noix and that at Fort Chambly, which must be defeated before it was possible for him to meet General Amherst or Brigadier General Murray at Montreal (page 125). Brigadier General Murray's motions up the river were closely watched by the enemy; M. deLevy with a numerous army kept the shore on the north side of the river between Cap Rouge and Montreal so well lined that Murray could not make any attempt to land on that side of the water yet, notwithstanding every impediment and every obstacle that lay in the road up the river between Quebec and Montreal, he published his manifestoes on both sides amongst the inhabitants all the way up, which in a great measure produced the desired effect; almost all those on the south shore, as high up as Sorel, laid down their arms and took the oath of neutrality as also did a vast number as high up as Trois Rivières on the north shore, and such as did not were disarmed by Lord Rollo (page 127). The worthy sergeant winds up one of his paragraphs with the pious expression of thanks for the success of the undertaking. He says: "After all these obstructions and seeming impossibilities to see how all these three different armies from three different quarters, so conjunctly to meet together, it plainly appears to be a real act of Providence, as no human foresight could have done it." (page 125).

For previous reports on education reference may be made to the report for 1889, beginning at page xx, giving an account of the state of education in Lower Canada. The report for 1892 gives an account of the demand made for the Jesuits estates as having been given for the purposes of education, the Jesuits being, it was held, only trustees for the management. This begins at page xiv., the want of schools at page xvi., and the classes of schools at page xvii. In the report for 1897 some information is given respecting the foundation of McGill College and the state of other schools, beginning at page xxxi. In the present report a list of schools and other information is given, at Note A. being a continuation of that contained in previous reports, so that it is not considered necessary to dwell upon the subject.

At note B are documents respecting emigration or rather immigration, a subject slightly touched on in the report for 1892, although lists were given in that year's report of settlers—loyalists and disbanded soldiers—on the Crown lands. At the period in question little importance was attached to immigration by the legislatures, the policy of settlement being left largely in the hands of individuals. Sketches have been given of two of those who took a prominent part in the settlement of the land, namely, Lord Selkirk and Colonel Talbot, the task of settlement as a policy being, as stated, apparently left to be carried out by private initiative, although Talbot was recognized by the government as engaged in the work of settling the land.

The legislature of Upper Canada complained that so far from immigration being encouraged a tax was levied on British subjects arriving by sea in the ports of Lower Canada to settle in the country and that this was a burden on the settlement of Upper Canada. So far as appears by an appendix to the report of Mr. A. C. Buchanan, emigration agent at Quebec, no emigrants arrived from any ports except from those in the United Kingdom, so that the complaint of partial taxation of British subjects was, no doubt, unfounded. Lord Aylmer, the Governor, to judge by his letters, was at one time strongly opposed to the tax, whilst at another he pointed out the great benefit the tax would be to the inhabitants of Quebec and Montreal, a statement dwelt upon emphatically by the Emigrant Society, which concluded an appeal to the Governor General with these words: "Unless means are taken to obviate them" (that is, the dangers from diseases and their causes) "by some aid from public funds (if the tax on emigrants should not be continued) a pressure will be felt by the community here which no private resources are at all adequate to remove." It was to relieve this pressure that the tax was continued which had been imposed at the instance of Lord Goderich, the Colonial Secretary, who after pointing out the inconvenience attending the then existing system by which emigrants were conveyed to the colonies without any order or regulation, expressed the desire by means of a tax to have some effectual control over shipmasters, so as to put a stop to their misconduct in respect to emigrants. In his circular dispatch of 11th December, 1831, to the Governors of Lower Canada, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, Lord Goderich said: "In order to do this" (that is to remove the causes of complaint) "and at the same time to raise a fund applicable to the expense of receiving and forwarding emigrants to the places of their destination. * * * I wish you to suggest to the provincial legislatures the propriety of levying a small tax payable by the master of the ship upon all emigrants on their arrival. * * * The proceeds of the tax would also be of much service in supporting hospitals in the ports where emigrants arrive and in defraying other necessary expenses." Lord Goderich strongly recommended to the legislatures the imposition of such a tax not, as His Lordship said, for the purpose of discouraging, but of regulating emigration, and instructed the governors of each of the provinces addressed, not to give his assent to any bill which imposed a heavier tax than at most one dollar on each emigrant. The Act in Lower Canada as recommended was assented to on the 25th February, 1832, under the following title: "An Act to create a Fund for defraying the Expense of providing Medical Assistance for Sick Emigrants and of enabling Indigent Persons of that description to proceed to the place of their destination. (It will be seen that the title is printed as it appears in the original). By the ninth section it was specified that one-fourth of the amount collected either as a tax or by way of a fine might be paid over to each of the following institutions, namely, the commissioners of the Emigrant Hospital at Quebec, the corporation of the Montreal General Hospital, and the emigrant societies at Quebec and Montreal. Out of the amounts thus given, no money was to be advanced to the new arrivals but the whole was to be applied to forwarding poor and destitute emigrants to places in Lower or Upper Canada where they could find employment. Similar Acts were passed in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. That for Nova Scotia was assented to by the Governor on the 16th February, 1832. That for New Brunswick was reserved but confirmed by the King in Council. The Act for Lower Canada was to continue in force till 1st May, 1834, that for Nova Scotia was to be in force for three years, while no limit as to time was placed on the Act in New Brunswick.

One reason for the complaints already mentioned of the legislature of Upper Canada against the imposition of a tax on emigrants arriving at Quebec is stated to have been the general opinion that there was a faction in Upper Canada hostile to emigration, endeavouring with the help of politicians in Lower Canada "to check the "tide of emigration from the Mother Country to the Canadas." From what has been stated it is evident that whatever might be the desires of politicians in Upper or Lower Canada to stop the tide of emigration the proposal for the tax came from the Colonial Office the desire, according to the Colonial Secretary, being to regulate emigration and to have the means of exercising control over the ship masters who brought emigrants to Quebec.

It seems evident, according to the account given of the state of affairs that definite regulations were required for the sending, reception and disposal of emigrants. The commuted pensioners and emigrants who were sent out in a destitute condition were left in great distress. As regarded the commuted pensioners they were reported by Sir John Colborne to have squandered their commutation allowance and without further assistance to be unable to remain on their land, they were, he also reported, either too indolent or unable to labour so as to provide for their families, their best days having been spent in the army. Settlers in the Newcastle district were also in great distress. The emigrants from Sussex and Wiltshire were represented as having spent all their means, so that they could not settle on land, but they had been distributed in the western districts and were satisfied. Under the uncontrolled state of emigration and the desire of parishes and land owners to get rid of the redundant population without providing funds for their settlement or arranging for their reception, Sir John Colborne looked forward to an influx of thirty or forty thousand voluntary emigrants whose reception must be prepared for otherwise five or six thousand persons might frequently be accumulated at Prescott and York, two towns totally unfit to support them or afford them employment. Sir John disapproved of the plan of employing the newly arrived emigrants on the making of roads which, he thought, could be done by persons accustomed to the work for one third of the expense incurred by employing emigrants who should, he considered, be employed clearing land which could be put under crop whilst unsold, and the improvements on which would induce persons of small capital to purchase. Apparently to prepare for the reception of the expected influx, a notice, dated Government House, York, 25th July, 1832, was addressed to discharged soldiers in these terms :

Discharged soldiers entitled to claim land are hereby informed that on their arrival in Upper Canada, they may be located either in the Bathurst, Newcastle, Home or London districts and may proceed direct to their lots from the ports at which they disembark, without the expense or trouble of appearing at York to obtain their location tickets. (Series C, Vol. 632, page 45.)

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 18

Agents whose names are here given, with those of their stations were placed at the undermentioned towns, Cornwall, Mr. Cheeseman Moe; Prescott, Mr. J. Patton; Bytown, Mr. J. McNaughton; Peterborough, Mr. A. McDonell; Cobourg, Mr. J. G. Bethune; Medonte, Mr. W. Richie, and Carradoc, Mr. R. Mount. The policy of making free grants of land to discharged soldiers was set aside about six months afterwards, experience having shown the bad effects of the system. Writing on the 4th of June, 1833, Mr. Stanley, then Colonial Secretary, referred to a dispatch of his predecessor, of the 1st of January, with the conclusions of which he said he agreed, that indigent emigrants under no circumstances should be allowed to possess themselves of land from the government on more favourable terms than other settlers. This, he thought, was a principle peculiarly applicable to the case of discharged soldiers and sailors. The system of commuted pensions, by which the old soldier or sailor might be enabled to emigrate was to be done away with, and the pensioners who went at their own expense should be relegated to the class of labourers rather than placed in that of landowners, his own interest, as well as that of the colony he selected, being best consulted by that means. Mr. Stanley's desire was to do away altogether with free grants to discharged soldiers and sailors, the only exception being specified in the dispatch (series C, volume 632, beginning at page 608). This dispatch was received about the middle of August, till which time, of course, the old system remained operative (page 130). The only exception thus specified to the order discontinuing free grants of land to old soldiers was in the case of men of the Sappers and Miners employed on the Rideau Canal to whom a special expectation of grants of land was given in 1829, who must be allowed twelve months to advance their claims before they were finally barred (page 171). The reason for discontinuing the practice of making free grants of land was stated in a notice issued by the commissioners of emigration, one clause of which may be quoted. The notice begins: "Land used formerly to be granted gratuitously, but when it was taken by poor people, they found they had not the means of living during the interval necessary to raise the crops." They had thus to work for wages until they could make a few savings, and the withholding of the land it was held was no hardship to the emigrant, as he would work for wages as he did before (190). A report to the Colonial Secretary still further develops the idea that the gradual training of the poorer emigrants to make good use of the land was best for himself as well as for the country.

Reverting to the statement of Sir John Colborne that emigrants who were sent out in a destitute condition continued in great distress, this is only partially true, and at most affects the indolent or those who through physical disqualifications were unable to labour, as many who had landed penniless, according to their own account, were in comfortable circumstances after a few years settlement. The evidence of two sergeants of the 103rd regiment may be cited, who both stated that they had not a single shilling at the time of settling on their land, one says that at the end of nine years he would not accept £300 for his property, the other that at the end of five years he had property worth £100. An ordinary emigrant, that is not a soldier, said he had no money when he started, but at the time he made the statement, he said he would not accept £100 for what he had, and adds the following significant postscript: "I owe no one a penny; never received any assistance from any one."

The whole respectfully submitted,

DOUGLAS BRYMNER,

Archivist.

No. 4.—REPORT OF COMMITTEE OF THE ASSEMBLY OF UPPER CANADA.

(Archives, Series Q., Vol. 377, p. 60.)

The Committee to whom was referred the subject of Education and the School Lands, in discharge of their duty, and with a view of devising such means as in their opinion will tend to promote the general Instruction of the youth and children of the Province, upon such a system as may be satisfactory to all classes of their fellow subjects in Upper Canada, beg most respectfully to report:—

That on entering upon the subject of their inquiry they were forcibly struck with the uniform anxiety which has been manifested at all times by the Legislative and Provincial Authorities, for the establishment of a University. It formed part of the prayer of both Houses in their address to the King in 1797. It was strongly recommended by the Executive Government, the Judges and the Law Officers of the Crown in 1798. In 1806, the Legislature, to show that something more was even then required than Grammar Schools, did all their limited means permitted, in providing a small apparatus for the instruction of Youth in Physical Science, that they might enter the world with something more than a common District School Education. Such an institution was again noticed, most honourably, in 1820; and an earnest desire expressed by the Legislature, which knew best the wants of the Province, for its speedy establishment. In 1825 so many young men were found turning their attention to the learned professions that the Executive Government thought that the establishment of a University could be no longer delayed without the greatest detriment to the Province, and therefore applied to His Majesty for a Royal Charter, which was granted in 1827, in terms as liberal, it is said, as the then Government would allow, but such as proved by no means satisfactory to your Honourable House.

Your Committee feel no disposition to inquire why the necessary modification of the Charter has not been made long ago, or why proper Buildings have not been erected, and the business of instruction in Literature and Science commenced, with the full understanding that the required alterations should take place, but they cannot help lamenting the delay, since it has done irreparable injury to the Youth of the Province. Many have already suffered; many are at present suffering; and whatever measures are taken to accelerate the Establishment, many will be deprived forever of the advantages which the University might have opened to them.

Feeling the absolute necessity of such an Institution, and that every day's delay inflicts on the youth of this flourishing colony an injury which allows of no remedy, and that there is little reason to expect that His Majesty's Government will either speedily or effectually arrange the modification of the Charter your Committee recommend the Honourable House to take the matter into immediate consideration, and make such alterations in the said Charter as may be deemed fit and expedient.

In considering the necessary changes, the attention of your Committee was drawn to certain resolutions adopted by your Honourable House in 1829 comprising such alterations in the Charter as appeared requisite for perfecting the Institution, and rendering it perhaps the most efficient Seminary on the Continent.

Your Committee feel great satisfaction in stating, that after mature deliberation, they have come to the determination to recommend the same changes to the adoption of your Honourable House, with such slight variations as are requisite to secure certain great and permanent advantages. Your Committee determined from the first to recommend no alteration but what appeared necessary to render the University efficient; and to show that they were directed by principles only, and not by anything personal. In consequence, they do not propose to interfere in any appointment except that of Visitor, nor would they have made any change in this, had it not appeared inexpedient, that an office so important should be filled by one so frequently absent from the Province. One thing your Committee thought it material to keep in view, namely, that of preserving the character of the University as a Royal Institution, and the power and dignity which the Charter confers as emanating from the King and which can be conferred in no other way ; and they request this may be kept in mind by your Honourable House when considering the Bill to be herewith submitted, since any alterations that might place these advantages in jeopardy would be purchased at a very dear rate.

Having thus stated the grounds on which your Committee have proceeded it only remains for them to submit a Bill embodying the necessary alterations, taken chiefly from the Resolutions of 1829, and which emanates from a Committee of unquestionable ability, presuming at the same time, that your Honourable House is aware that under its present Charter the University of King's College is open to all denominations of Christians and that the Professors, excepting such as may be appointed Members of the College Council, may be of any Christian Denomination, and that it excludes none from what may be considered the essential benefits of the University ; but your Committee leave the Charter as far as possible in its present form and have applied themselves to the removal of the objectionable parts by a distinct enactment which they beg leave earnestly to recommend to the adoption of your Honourable House.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

M BURWELL,
Chairman.

No. 5.—BILL FOR AMENDING THE CHARTER OF KING'S COLLEGE.

Whereas, His late Majesty King George the Fourth was graciously pleased to issue his letters patent, bearing date at Westminster, the fifteenth day of March, in the eighth year of His Reign.

And whereas, certain alterations appear necessary to be made in the same in order to meet the desire and circumstances of the Colony, and that the said charter may produce the benefits intended—Be it, &c. That for and notwithstanding anything in the said Charter contained, after the said University shall be organized upon any future appointment to the office of Governor, Lieutenant Governor or Person administering the Government of the Province, such Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or Person administering the Government, shall not be, Ex-officio Chancellor of the said University, but such person shall be Chancellor thereof as the Convocation of the said University shall elect, and that the Judges of the Court of King's Bench, shall for and on behalf of the King be visitor of the said College, in the place and stead of the Lord Bishop of the Diocese of Quebec for the time being, and that the President of the said University, on any future vacancy, shall be appointed by His Majesty, His Heirs and Successors, without requiring that he should be the incumbent of any Ecclesiastical office. And that the Members of the College in Council, including the Chancellor and President, shall be twelve in number, of whom the Speaker of the two houses of the Legislature of the Province and His Majesty's Attorney and Solicitor Generals for the time being, shall be four, and the remainder shall consist of the six senior Professors of arts and faculties of the said College, and in case there shall not at anytime be six Professors as aforesaid in the said College, and until Professors shall be appointed therein, the Council shall be filled with Members to be appointed as in the said Charter is provided, except that it shall not be necessary that any Member of the College Council to be so appointed, or that any Member of the said College Council or any Professor, to be at any time appointed ; shall be a Member of the Church of England, or subscribe to any Articles of

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 18

Religion,—and further that no religious test or qualification be required or appointed for any person admitted or matriculated as scholars within the said College or of persons admitted to any degree or faculty, therein.

And whereas, it is expedient that the Minor or Upper Canada College lately erected in the Town of York, shall be incorporated with and form an appendage of the University of King's College—Be it therefore, &c.—That the said Minor or Upper Canada College shall be incorporated with and form an appendage of the University of King's College, and be subject to its jurisdiction and control.

And be it, &c. That the Principal of the said Minor or Upper Canada College, shall be appointed by the King during His Majesty's pleasure, and that the said Principal shall ex-officio be a Member of the Council of the University of King's College.

And be it &c. That the Vice-Principal and Tutors of the said College shall be nominated by the Chancellor of the University of King's College, subject to the approval or disapproval of the Council thereof.

And be it &c. That it shall and may be lawful for the Chancellor of the said University for the time being to suspend or remove either the Vice-Principal or Tutors of the said Minor or Upper Canada College, provided that such suspension or removal be recommended by the Council of the said University, and the grounds of such suspension or removal recorded at length in Books of the said Council.

No. 6—EXTRACT FROM COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

(Archives Series Q., Vol. 381, p. 704.)

It was the intention of your Committee here to have closed this communication and to have reserved for their next Report the information which they have obtained respecting Minor or Upper Canada College, but when once they came to the determination of embracing the District Schools of the Home District in their General Plan, it seemed to them more expedient to recommend that the Minor or Upper Canada College should be incorporated with the University of King's College, and they have accordingly prepared certain clauses for that purpose to be added to the Bill which accompanied their first Report, now before Your Honourable House, for amending the Charter of that Royal Institution. Several powerful considerations have induced Your Committee to adopt this course.

1st. The Legislature in thus disposing of Upper Canada College, will be acting in concurrence with its Founder, for it appears by the unanimous evidence before them that it is and has always been considered as an appendage to the University of King's College.

2nd. The Inhabitants of the Home District will have no just cause of complaint as they will in future have their own District School, affording to them the same advantages as the other Districts enjoy.

3rd. In looking upon Upper Canada College as a Minor portion of the University, Your Committee are inclined to believe that a more classical system of studies may be sometimes required as a preparation for the higher branches of knowledge to be taught in King's College than is either useful or necessary at the District Schools.

4th. That a greater strictness in Classical Literature may be a recommendation to some of the Inhabitants of this Province, and of our fellow subjects from the Mother Country who are daily coming amongst us, and who very naturally entertain a preference for the methods practised in the Great Schools in England.

5th. By continuing a strictly classical School and on the moderate terms of admission now in force parents possess the freedom of choice between it and the District Schools.

6th. Your committee were moreover the more inclined to this arrangement as it relieved them from the necessity of proposing alterations in Upper Canada College, to which they felt a repugnance, because the rights of the present Masters, till otherwise provided for, involves the inquiry with peculiar difficulties.

64 VICTORIA, A. 1901

On the whole Your Committee think it for the advantage of the Province as filling a link in the great system of Education that Upper Canada College should become part of the University. Should any modification be deemed necessary it will come better and with immediate effect from the Council of the University of King's College. More especially as His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, who has manifested the greatest anxiety to promote the Education of the Youth of the Colony, is the Founder of Upper Canada College, and as Chancellor of the University can with the more propriety judge of and carry into execution such alterations as may be thought beneficial.

All of which is most respectfully submitted.

NO. 7.—ADDRESS FROM THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

(Archives, Series Q., volume 381, p. 679.)

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty,
Most Gracious Sovereign :

We, Your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Commons of Upper Canada, in Provincial Parliament assembled, most humbly beg leave to approach Your Majesty to express our gratification at the information conveyed by Your Majesty's principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, that Your Majesty, in answer to Our address of the 23rd December, 1831, has been graciously pleased to express your desire that the sums arising from the sale of that portion of the School lands which has not already been alienated should be paid into the hands of the Receiver General to be applied in the Promotion of Education in such manner as the Legislature may direct.

We have to acquaint Your Majesty that it appears by a statement sent down by His Excellency, the Lieutenant Governor, that the whole reservation of School lands amounted to 740,275 acres, of which, it would seem there has been conveyed :

	Acres.
To Individuals	170,719
To the University of King's College	225,944
To Upper Canada College	66,000
To Surveyors for Surveying	19,282
Leaving for the support of Grammar Schools	258,330
	740,275

It is therefore obvious that a very inconsiderable portion of the whole reservation has been left for purposes which in the minds of those individuals who made the Legislative application in the year 1797 to His late Majesty, as well as in that of the Royal Donor took precedence of every other object, and were entitled to a much more valuable endowment. Of the quantity of Land thus remaining for the support of education in the several districts of the province 186,902 acres are in the townships of Sheffield, Bedford, Merlin and Proton and are reputed to be of exceedingly bad quality compared with the lands which have been alienated, consequently the means which may be derived from their sale will frustrate the object which His Majesty's Government contemplated in complying with the joint application of the Legislature for a Grant of Land to establish in the first instance Free Grammar Schools in the several Districts, and in due process of time other Seminaries of a larger and more comprehensive nature.

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 18

We would further observe to Your Majesty, that upon an examination of the Statement alluded to, it appears that for the endowment of King's College and for other purposes exchanges of the School Lands have been made which have had the effect of reducing the appropriation so much that the just expectation of the Inhabitants of the Province can never be realized without the interposition of Your Majesty's Government by restoring the Lands set apart by Your Majesty's late Royal Father for the endowment and support of District Grammar Schools, and in due process of time for establishing other Seminaries of a larger and more comprehensive nature.

The establishment at the Capital of the Province of a University endowed with the greater part of all the valuable School Lands reservation, may confer much benefit on the Inhabitants in its immediate vicinity and also on the wealthier part of the population who are more remote, but it cannot at present answer the intentions which actuated Your Majesty's Royal Father when the Lands were appropriated, in as much as the people resident in distant parts of the country have no opportunity of giving to their sons a preparatory course of instruction even if it were in every respect convenient to send them many hundred miles to attend the University.

For these reasons as well as for many others which might be adduced, we are constrained to represent to Your Majesty the serious injustice of the measure which deprived the people of Upper Canada of that munificent grant of Land which was set apart for the diffusion of learning by the endowment of Free Grammar Schools in the several Districts, and we deem it necessary to inform Your Majesty that the primary object for which these Lands were reserved has hitherto been neglected; and by far the most important and valuable portion of them alienated for the immediate establishment of an Institution which it was intended not only by the joint application of the Legislature in the year 1797, but by the answer of His Majesty, should be endowed, after the Grammar Schools were provided for.

We are unwilling to trespass on the time of Your Majesty; but this subject is, in our estimation so highly important to the best interests of Your Majesty's faithful Subjects in this Province, that we feel bound by the most sacred obligations of duty as Representatives of the People to express to Your Majesty our opinion that the buildings erected in York for Upper Canada College are at present sufficiently extensive and commodious to answer every purpose of a University, and ought therefore to be applied to that object, and thus prevent the vast expenditure which is contemplated in the construction of buildings for the University of King's College, and that Upper Canada College may under existing circumstances, most properly be designated "The University of King's College," and be incorporated and endowed as such by the Legislature of the Province, out of the General funds arising from the sale of School Lands.

We therefore humbly implore Your Majesty to direct such proceedings, as to Your Majesty may seem consistent with justice to the People of Upper Canada, for the restoration of the lands originally set apart for the purposes before mentioned, together with the proceeds of all such portions as may have been sold or leased by the Corporation of King's College or the Executive Government, or in the event of its impracticability with respect to the Lands Granted to Individuals, to direct that an appropriation of equal value be made for that purpose; and also to convey to Your Majesty our earnest hope that Your Majesty may be pleased to appoint Commissioners to ascertain the value of any Lands which may be granted in lieu of those which have been alienated.

COMMONS HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY,
Fourth day of December, 1833.

ARCH'D. McLEAN,
Speaker.

No. 8.—ATTENDANCE AT THE UPPER CANADA COLLEGE.

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 18

No. 10.—ADDRESS BY DR. STRACHAN.

(Archives, Series, Q., Vol. 381, p. 685.)May it please Your Excellency :

On perusing the Address of the House of Assembly to His Majesty on the School lands and University of King's College, I find a material error in regard to the quantity. Twelve Townships were set apart in 1798 for the support of a University and Grammar Schools, which including the Crown and Clergy Reserves would give nearly the number of acres mentioned, but as these reserves were not included, but on the contrary deducted, the true appropriation made was 549,217 acres that is twelve Townships exclusive of the Common reservations and not 740,275 acres, as stated in the Address—or by not attending to various exchanges of portions of the first reservation for other lands the Assembly included both and this was probably the cause of the error, for the quantity appears to be quoted from a return from the Surveyor General's office dated 10th Dec., 1832, giving an account of such exchange.

It is hastily assumed that the best portions of the original appropriation were exchanged or alienated for lands of inferior value ; the reverse of this will be found to be the fact. His Majesty's Government was pleased to exchange 225,944 acres of Crown Reserves with which the University of King's College was endowed for an equal quantity of the original appropriation of School lands, but the portions thus exchanged were believed to be the least valuable of that appropriation.

As respects the complaint that Grammar Schools have not been established and endowed from these lands, it is of importance to remark that the progress of the Colony was for many years so slow that one or two Grammar Schools owing to the low price of land would have absorbed the whole appropriation. The Legislature was therefore induced in 1807 to establish a Grammar School in every District with a Salary of £100 to each Master from the Provincial Revenue—purposing to extend the efficiency of such schools from the School lands, when they became valuable and to multiply their number as the settlements increased.

To the complaint that the endowment of the University of King's College has engrossed too much of the original Appropriation it may be sufficient to answer, that it was from the very first contemplated to grant $\frac{1}{2}$ for the endowment of the University and $\frac{1}{2}$ for the endowment of Grammar Schools, but the endowment given to the University is actually much less than $\frac{1}{2}$ and consequently a larger portion is left for the endowment of Grammar Schools than was originally intended.

The Grammar Schools now twelve in number have been and still are of great advantage to the Province, and the remaining lands with the money accruing from the portions sold are quite sufficient for their liberal endowment, nor does there seem any good reason, why this was not done during the last session, as the whole was placed at the disposal of the Legislature.

With respect to any restoration of the lands, with which the University of King's College, and its appendage Upper Canada College are endowed, they are under patent and cannot be touched without calling in question every title in the Province nor is there the smallest necessity for doing so. Both Institutions are essential to the Education of the Youth of this great Colony, and should other Institutions be deemed requisite, it is right to believe, that His Majesty on being made aware of the same will be graciously pleased to grant proper endowment for such Institutions from the waste lands of the Crown.

The complaint urged against the situation of the University is evidently made without consideration. It must have a locality somewhere and that the vicinity of the Capital is the most central and convenient for all the Inhabitants of the Province admits of demonstration and from the rapid mode of travelling by steam can be reached in a very short time at a trifling expense from the remotest parts of the Colony.

In regard to the suggestion of the Assembly, that Upper Canada College may be incorporated with the University of King's College, it is pleasing to remark that it has already been done at your Excellency's desire. A Royal Grammar School or College such as Eton, Westminster, Winchester, or Rugby is a most proper and useful appendage to King's College to supply it with ripe Classical Scholars and to be a place to which young men from the other Grammar Schools in the Colony may go to perfect their classical course, and to be made fit to profit by the higher instruction to be furnished by the University. All this Upper Canada College is well calculated to accomplish, but the buildings erected for that institution, though quite convenient for itself, afford no more accommodation, than it requires, and consequently there is not one apartment to share for King's College.

The Address is strangely inconsistent with the reports of the Education Committee of 1833 and 1834 and with the sentiments expressed by the Legislature in former years, nor is there any good reason for complaint much less for meddling with the endowments of the University of King's College Upper Canada for as it appears from the Duke of Portland's letter of November 1797, that His Majesty's Government would have readily met the wishes of the Legislature by further grants for the benefit of Education, had they been deemed necessary there is no reason to doubt, but that His Majesty's present Government is equally willing to comply with any reasonable prayer of the Legislature for further appropriations of land for the same purpose. Instead, therefore, of disturbing Institutions, already established, the true policy and the most satisfactory to all parties would be to allow them to proceed unmolested, and not only improve them, as their practical defects are discovered, but add similar Institutions, whenever the character or increase of the Population may require them. And how can the waste lands of the Crown be disposed of in so popular and useful a manner as in promoting public instruction, and founding beneficial Establishments?

All which is humbly submitted,

Archdeacon of Toronto late York.

His Excellency,
Sir JOHN COLBORNE, K.C.B.,
Toronto, 11th April, 1834.

No. 11.—SIR JOHN COLBORNE TO MR. E. G. STANLEY.

(Archives, Series, Q., Vol. 381 p. 664.)

TORONTO, 26th April, 1834.

SIR,—I have the honour to forward an Address to the King from the House of Assembly, praying that His Majesty will cause proceedings to be instituted, with a view of placing under the control of the Legislature the quantity of Land originally set apart for the support of the Free Grammar Schools and other Seminaries and of making an appropriation equal in value to the Lands that have been alienated by the Corporation of King's College or the Executive Government.

I consider it necessary to observe, in transmitting this Address that the Legislative Council, and House of Assembly, in the year 1797, forwarded an Address to the King, praying that a portion of the Waste Lands of the Crown might be appropriated for the establishment and support of a Grammar School in each District and a College or University for the instruction of Youth in the different branches of liberal knowledge, that the Secretary of State for the Colonies in reply to the Address notified His Majesty's intention of directing the establishment of Grammar Schools in the Districts in which they were called for, and in due time Seminaries of a larger and more comprehensive nature, for the promotion of religious and moral Learning, and the study of the Arts and Sciences; and he directed that the Executive Council and Law Officers should be consulted on this subject: that in consequence of these instructions, the Executive Government in 1798 recommended twelve Townships to be set apart, about 549,207 acres, exclusive of the Crown and Clergy Reserves.

None of the Townships set apart for purposes of Education were alienated till the year 1823, when Lord Bathurst authorised a General Board of Education to be formed and a portion of them to be applied towards raising a fund for the establishment of Township Schools, under the management of the Board.

In the year 1827, His Majesty's Government granted 225,944 Acres of Crown Reserves as an endowment for the University of King's College, and ordered, in lieu of this grant, an equal number of Acres to be transferred to the Crown from the School Townships.

The Crown Reserves granted to the Corporation of King's College being mostly leased, and consisting of detached lots in old Townships, or in those which had been some time settled, were of great value. Had this endowment not taken place, they would probably have become the property of the Canada Company, in common with the rest of the Crown Reserves in the Surveyed Townships ceded also in 1827; but under any circumstance, they certainly would not have been exchanged for Land in School Townships.

If therefore, the number of acres granted to the Corporation of King's College should be considered as improperly subtracted from the quantity of Land set apart in the year 1798, by the Executive Government, in pursuance of the instructions communicated in the Despatches of the Secretary of State, it is obvious that the value of the Crown Reserves which were ceded in 1827 by special favour for the establishment of a University can give no additional claim to the Provincial Legislature in respect to the value of the Land that it may now be deemed expedient to set apart for the purposes of education, in compliance with the wishes of the Assembly expressed in the accompanying Address.

In the annexed report from Archdeacon Strachan, it is stated that for many years the price of land in the Colony was so low that even one or two Grammar Schools could not have been effectually supported without absorbing the whole of the appropriation authorised by His Majesty's Government, and on that account the Legislature was induced to grant £100 per annum for the establishment of a Grammar School in each District.

There are about 240,000 Acres remaining out of the original grant of 549,217 Acres, which are placed by the direction of His Majesty's Government at the disposal of the Provincial Legislature. This number of Acres might be selected from the Townships in which the land is selling at the rate of 12s. 6d. per Acre, the average price of sales effected by the Commissioner of Crown Lands in settled Townships originally set apart, might be resumed by the Crown, and for every lot found to have been alienated in these Townships, the Commissioner of Crown Lands might be instructed to set apart one of equal value, to be placed under the control of any Board that may be nominated by the Legislature to superintend the management of School lands.

Should these arrangements be approved of, and the suggestions of the Executive Council, contained in the accompanying report, acted on, and the quantity of Land reserved for the purposes of education increased as the Province may appear to require more extensive endowments for the support of Schools, every cause of complaint would probably be removed.

The Charter of King's College has been brought under the consideration of the Assembly every Session during the last seven Years; but the provisions regarding its exclusive character will not, I fear, be modified by the Provincial Legislature.

With reference to the representations in the accompanying Address, of the injustice of endowing the University with the greater part of the valuable school Lands, I have to remark that the Land reserved by the Crown in lieu of the leased Reserves ceded to King's College, was taken in remote Townships, and I am persuaded that if an able and active Commissioner was appointed to superintend the Land appropriated for the support of inferior Seminaries, the District Schools might be sufficiently endowed.

It is generally considered of much importance to the Colony that the University should be in operation; and in order that no further delay or disappointment may be experienced as to the time of its opening many intelligent individuals are of opinion that another College should be established, and liberally endowed, for Dissenters; but I cannot concur with them in thinking that such a measure could be prudently adopted; and I am inclined to believe, that if their project were realized it would tend to increase the religious differences and distinctions which are so injurious to the interests of the Province.

I cannot hope that any modification of the Charter of King's College can be effected but through the direct interposition of His Majesty's Government, by inviting the Chancellor and President of King's College to accept the modifications proposed by the College Council, in the report transmitted with my dispatch, No. 19, of the 2nd April, 1832, and such of those proposed by the Committee of the House of Assembly in their reports of the 21st November, and 13th December, 1832, as it may be deemed expedient to adopt; and recommending an Order in Council to be passed to confirm the modified Charter, accepted by the Chancellor and President.

The extracts of the reports of the select Committee of the House of Assembly to which I have alluded are annexed.

I have the honour to be, sir,
Your most obedient humble servant,

J. COLBORNE.

COLONIAL OFFICE TO SIR JOHN COLBORNE.

No. 12.—(Archives, Series Q., Vol. 381, p. 671.)

DOWNING ST., 7th Jan.,

SIR,—I have had under my consideration your dispatch No. 34 of the 26th of April last accompanied by an Address from the House of Assembly praying that either all the lands originally set apart in Upper Canada for the advancement of Education may be restored; or if that be impracticable with respect to lands granted to Individuals, that an equivalent appropriation may be made in lieu of the portion thus subtracted.

In examining into the subject of this Address, I have found that it raised three questions: 1st, whether the Estates reserved for purposes of Education have been improperly diminished; 2ndly, whether the part of them allotted to King's College has been disproportionate to the whole; 3rdly, whether such exchanges as have from time to time been effected of the original lands have been disadvantageous to the interests of the Endowment.

The Assembly state that the whole reservation of School Lands amounted to 740,275 Acres, which they understood to have been appropriated as follows:

To Individuals.....	170,719
To the University of King's College.....	225,944
Upper Canada College.....	66,000
Surveyors for Surveying.....	19,282
Remainder, available for schools.....	258,330

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 18

In this statement the Assembly seems to have fallen into a misconception. From the communication you have made to me, it appears that the allotment made in 1798 for Schools and larger Seminaries consisted of 12 Townships; and that although, taken in their entire extent, these would amount to a quantity not remote from that named by the Assembly, yet after making the necessary deductions for Crown and Clergy Reserves, they would not exceed 549,207 Acres. (Dr. Strachan says 549,217 Acres.)

Of this quantity, 291,944 Acres are comprised in the assignments to the University and to Upper Canada College, while about 240,000 Acres are estimated by you to be actually available for the assistance and endowment of Schools. Only 17,263 acres remain to be accounted for; and the appropriation of these would be more than explained by the Grants which are specified by the Assembly as having been made to Surveyors for surveying. You also inform me that a few lots have been sold by the Board of Education for the purposes, of course, for which that Commission was formed. I do not find a statement of the exact quantity alienated in this manner, nor do I quite understand the nature of the allowance said to have been made to Surveyors for surveying; but it is plain that the amount of the original reservation can be accounted for without resorting to those extensive assignments to Individuals which are set down in the Assembly's statement. They must therefore have consisted of Lots given in exchange for others, instead of being absolute and uncompensated deductions from the lands appropriated to Education.

I trust that the foregoing Explanation will satisfy the Assembly that there has not been an improper diminution of the quantity of the lands reserved in 1798 for Schools and larger Seminaries. Whether the share allotted to the University be disproportionate to the whole is a distinct question, on which, in the order I am pursuing, I should next deliver an opinion. But when I advert to the terms of Lord Ripon's dispatch of the 2nd November, 1831, by virtue of which the regulation of the University has been brought before the Legislature for their consideration, and remains to be adjusted according to their advice, I think it would be premature to form a judgment on the suitable endowment of an Institution of which the nature and probable extent cannot be deemed finally determined. In this view I am confirmed by the reflection that a new House of Assembly is about to meet, from which this subject may be expected to receive early attention, and that an expression of their sentiments, or an Act of the Legislature upon the Constitution of King's College may at the present moment be in its transit to His Majesty's Government. I shall confine myself, under the circumstances, to the observation, that the establishment of a "College or University for the instruction of Youth" formed one of the objects prayed for in the address from the Council and Assembly in the year 1797, and that the institution of larger Seminaries than the District Schools was expressly adverted to in the communication by means of which His Majesty signified his compliance with that Address. Whatever difference of opinion, therefore, may exist as to the most appropriate share to be devoted to the purpose, there can be no doubt that the allotment of some of the Reserves for Education to a University is strictly conformable with the objects of the Endowment, and that to exhaust the entire amount of the Estates in the Enrichment of District Schools would contravene the designs of those by whom the property was first set apart.

But if the application of part of the Reserves for Education to the Endowment of a University cannot be deemed a diversion of them from their proper use, it will hardly be denied that the Exchange by means of which they were thus applied was highly advantageous. His Majesty resumed 225,944 Acres out of the School Townships, and granted to the Corporation of King's College in lieu of them an equal quantity of Crown Reserves, most of them under lease, in old and Settled Townships, where the lands bore a great value; it may be presumed, as you justly observe, that had this Endowment not taken place, the same Reserves would have become the property of the Canada Company in common with the rest of the Crown Reserves in the Surveyed Townships or at any rate would never have been exchanged for such Inferior Land as that in the School Townships. With respect to such other exchanges as have been effected of School Lands, I could not adopt any opinion at this distance from the spot without much diffidence. But I cannot overlook one inference which may be drawn from the statement of a high local authority intimately conversant with the subject in the Report of Executive Council on School Reserves, dated 29th April, 1831, I find it said "that the original reservation was an injudicious selection—first because confined to Three Districts,—secondly, because made in whole Townships,—thirdly, because several of these Townships are found to be very indifferent land and containing much altogether unfit for cultivation." It is difficult to read this Remark without forming the conclusion that, unless by the most conspicuous mismanagement, and Exchanges of the Lands so undesirably situated cannot have been prejudicial to the interest for which they have been reserved.

Having thus stated my views on the principal points involved in the Address of the 4th of December, 1833, I have only in addition to convey to you His Majesty's Gracious Permission to adopt a measure suggested by yourself, which I trust will be acceptable to the Assembly. Out of the original grant of 549,217 Acres, there remained disposable about 240,000 Acres not very advantageously situated, and I am now to authorize you, if the Assembly should wish it, to select this number of Acres from the settled Townships (in which, as you informed me, the Land is selling at the rate of 12s. 6d. per Acre) and to resume to the Crown in lieu of them as much as is unalienated of the School Townships. The gain which such a transaction would confer upon the Endowment for Education is obvious; and I hope that this liberal offer will be regarded as proof of the importance which His Majesty attaches to the great object of the Instruction of the People in Upper Canada.

The same measure may be made the means, as you observe, of rendering it certain that there shall have been no improper diminution of the School Estates. If in taking possession of the School Townships it should be found that any Lot has been disposed of except for a fair price received by the Board of Education, or except in exchange for some other lands applied to the proper purposes of these Reserves, the Commissioner of Crown Lands must be instructed immediately to set apart elsewhere a Lot of equal value, to be placed under the control of any Board that may be named by the Legislature to superintend the management of School Lands.

I have, &c., &c.

No. 13.—BILL TO AMEND THE CHARTER OF KING'S COLLEGE.

(Archives, Series Q, Vol. 385---1, p. 200.)

NOW KNOW YE, That we, having taken the premises into our Royal consideration, and duly weighing the great utility and importance of such an institution, have, of our special grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion, ordained and granted, and do by these presents, for us, our heirs and successors, ordain and grant, that there shall be established at or near our Town of York in our said Province of Upper Canada, from this time, one College, with the style and privileges of an University as hereinafter directed, for the education and instruction of youth and students in arts and faculties, to continue for ever to be called "King's College."

And we do hereby declare and grant, that our trusty and well beloved Right Reverend Father in God, Charles James, Bishop of the Diocese of Quebec, or the Bishop for the time being of the Diocese in which the said Town of York may be situate, or any future division or alteration of the said present Diocese of Quebec, shall for us and in our behalf be the Visitor of the said College; and that our trusty and well beloved Sir Peregrine Maitland, our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province, or the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or other person administering the Government of our said Province for the time being, shall be Chancellor of said College.

And we do hereby declare, ordain, and grant, that there shall at all times be one President of our said College, who shall be a Clergyman in Holy Orders of the United Church of England and Ireland; and that there shall be such and so many Professors in different arts and faculties within our said College as from time to time shall be deemed necessary or expedient and as shall be appointed by us or by the said Chancellor of our said College on our behalf, and during our pleasure.

And we do hereby grant and ordain that the Reverend John Strachan, Doctor in Divinity, Archdeacon of York, in our said Province of Upper Canada, be the first President of our said College, and the Archdeacon of York in our said Province for the time being, shall, by virtue of such his office, be at all times the President of the College.

"And we do hereby, for us our heirs and successors, will ordain and grant that the said Chancellor and President, and the said professors of our said College, and all persons who shall be duly matriculated into and admitted as scholars of our said College and their successors for ever shall be one distinct and separate body, politic and corporate in deed and in name, by the name and style of the "Chancellor, President, and Scholars of King's College at York, in the Province of Upper Canada," and that by the same name they shall have perpetual succession and a common seal; and that they and their successors shall from time to time, have full power to alter, renew or change, such common seal at their will and pleasure, and as shall be found convenient, and that by the same name they the said Chancellor, President and Scholars, and their successors from time to time and at all times hereafter shall be able and capable to have, take, receive, purchase, acquire, hold, possess, enjoy and maintain, to and for the use of the said College, any messuages, lands and tenements and hereditaments of what kind, nature or quality soever, situate and being within our said Province of Upper Canada, so as the same do not exceed in yearly value the sum of £15,000 above all charges, and moreover to take, purchase, acquire, have, hold, enjoy, receive, possess and retain, all or any goods, chattels, charitable or other contributions, gifts or benefactions whatsoever.

"And we do hereby declare and grant that the said Chancellor, President and scholars and their successors by the same name shall and may be able and capable in law to sue and to be sued, implead and be impleaded, answer and be answered, in all or any court or courts of record within our United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and our said Province of Upper Canada and other our dominions; in all and singular actions, causes, pleas, suits, matters and demands whatsoever of what nature or kind soever in as large, ample, and beneficial a manner and form as any other body politic or corporate, or any other liege subjects, being persons able and capable in law, may or can sue, implead or answer, or be sued, impleaded or answered, in any matter whatsoever.

"And we do hereby declare ordain and grant that there shall be within our said college or corporation a council, to be called and known by the name of "The College Council;" and we do will and ordain that the said Council shall consist of the Chancellor, President for the time being, and of seven of the Professors in arts and faculties of our said College, and that such seven professors shall be members of the Established United Church of England and Ireland, and shall previously to their admission into the said College Council, severally sign and subscribe the thirty nine articles of religion, as declared and set forth in the book of Common prayer.—And in case at any time there should not be within our said College seven professors of arts and faculties, being members of the Established Church aforesaid, then our will and pleasure is and we do hereby grant and ordain that the said College Council shall be filled up to the requisite number of seven exclusive of the Chancellor and President for the time being, by such persons, being graduates of our said college and being members of the Established Church aforesaid, as shall for that purpose be appointed by the Chancellor for the time being of our said College; and which members of Council shall in like manner subscribe the thirty nine Articles aforesaid previously to their admission into the said College Council.

And whereas it is necessary to make provision for the completion and filling up of the said council at the first institution of our said College, and previously to the appointment of any professors or the conferring of any degrees therein. Now we do further ordain and declare that the Chancellor of our said College for the time being, shall upon or immediately after the first institution thereof, by warrant under his hand, nominate and appoint seven discreet and proper persons, resident within our said Province of Upper Canada, to constitute jointly with him the said Chancellor, and the President of our said College for the time being, the first or original Council of our said College, which first or original members of the said Council shall in like manner respectively subscribe the thirty-nine Articles aforesaid previously to their admission into the said Council.

And we do further declare and grant that the members of the said College Council, holding within our said College the offices of Chancellor, President or Professor, in any art or faculty, shall respectively hold their seats in the said Council so long as they and each of them shall retain such other offices as aforesaid and no longer and that the members of the said Council not holding office in our said College, shall from time to time vacate their seats in the said Council when and as soon as there shall be an adequate number of Professors in our said College, being members of the Established Church aforesaid to fill up the said Council to the requisite number before mentioned.

And we do hereby authorize and empower the Chancellor for the time being of our said College, to decide in each case what particular member of the said Council not holding any such office as aforesaid shall vacate his seat in the said Council upon the admission of any new member of Council holding any such office.

And we do hereby declare and grant that the Chancellor for the time being of our said College shall preside at all meetings of the said College Council, when he may deem it proper or convenient to attend, and that in his absence, the President of our said College shall preside at all such meetings; and that in the absence of the said President, the senior member of the said Council, present at any such meeting shall preside thereat, and that the seniority of the members of the said Council, other than the Chancellor and President shall be regulated according to the date of their respective appointments:—

Provided always that the members of the said Council being Professors in our said College, shall in the said Council take precedence over and be considered as seniors to the members thereof, not being Professors in our said College.

And we do ordain and declare that no meeting of the said Council shall be, or be held to be a lawful meeting thereof, unless five members at the least, be present during the whole of every such meeting; and that all questions and resolutions proposed for the decision of the said College Council, shall be determined by the majority of the votes of the members of Council present, including the vote of the presiding member; and that in the event of an equal division of such votes, the member presiding at any such meeting shall give an additional or casting vote.

And we further declare that if any member of the said Council shall die or resign his seat in the said Council, or shall be suspended or removed from the same, or shall, by reason of any bodily or mental infirmity, or by reason of his absence from the said Province become incapable for three calendar months or upwards of attending the meetings of the said Council, then and in every such case, a fit and proper person shall be appointed by the said Chancellor to act as, and be a member of the said Council in the place or stead of the member so dying or resigning or so suspended or removed or incapacitated as aforesaid; and such new member succeeding to any member so suspended or incapacitated shall vacate such his office on the removal of any such suspension or at the termination of any such incapability as aforesaid, of his immediate predecessor in the said Council.

And we do further ordain and grant, that it shall and may be competent to and for the Chancellor for the time being of our said college, to suspend from his seat in the said Council, any member thereof, for any just and reasonable cause to the said Chancellor appearing provided that the ground of every such suspension shall be entered and recorded at length by the said Chancellor in the books of the said Council, and signed by him; and every person so suspended shall thereupon cease to be a member of the said Council, unless and until he shall be restored to and re-established in such his station therein, by any order to be made in the premises by us or by the said visitor of our said College, acting on our behalf, and in pursuance of any special reference from us.

And we do further declare that any member of the said Council who, without sufficient cause to be allowed by the said Chancellor by an order entered for that purpose on the books of the said Council, shall absent himself from all the meetings thereof which may be held within any six successive calendar months, shall thereon vacate such his seat, in the said Council.

No. 15.—SIR JOHN COLBORNE TO LORD ABERDEEN.

TORONTO, UPPER CANADA,

Private.

MY LORD,—I have the honour to transmit to Your Lordship the accompanying Copy of the Bill to amend the Charter of King's College, which was passed by the House of Assembly last Session, and rejected by the Legislative Council.

From the discussions which took place in the Legislative Council, on the provisions of this Bill, I am persuaded that no law for the amendment of the College Charter will be enacted by the Provincial Legislature. I entertain no doubt, however, that the Charter may be so modified by the interposition of His Majesty's Government, as to leave, in essential points no just grounds for dissatisfaction, either on the part of the Legislative Council or of the House of Assembly.

The interests of the Province certainly require that the opening of the University should be authorized without delay; and that a revision of the Charter should be directed by His Majesty. I beg, therefore to propose that the suggestions in my despatches of the 19th of December, No. 77, may be immediately acted on in regard to the nomination and election of Professors, and to submit for the consideration of His Majesty's Government, the annexed Copy of the University Charter with the alterations proposed to be made, which I understand from Archdeacon Strachan will meet the views of the College Council and the Legislative Council.

The provisions which I consider as essential in the proposed modification of the Charter are :—

1. That the Visitorial power should be transferred.
2. That the office of President should not necessarily be connected with that of Archdeacon of York, nor the appointment even held by a Clergyman.
3. That the Council should not be required to sign the Thirty-nine Articles.

4. That the Council should consist of the Chancellor, President, the Principal of Upper Canada College, the Speaker of the House of Assembly, and five Professors of the University; and that the professors only should be required to be Members of the Church of England.

5. That a Professorship of Divinity of the Church of Scotland should be established, and the Professor appointed by the Synod of Canada.

6. That the Upper Canada College should be acknowledged in the Charter and protected as proposed in the additional provisions.

Although the provision which requires the Professors of the College to be members of the Church of England may be objected to by the House of Assembly, I trust that the revised Charter will be satisfactory to the Province generally; and be deemed consistent with the principles on which the College is founded.

Having informed the Legislative Council and the House of Assembly at the close of the Session, that I should strongly recommend to His Majesty's Government to sanction the opening of King's College, and assured that the College Council will consent to the proposed revision of the Charter; and the Chancellor and President of the University being prepared to remove any legal objection to the granting of another Charter by the surrender of the existing one, and the acceptance of the proposed modifications, I hope your Lordship will think it expedient, under the circumstances, to which I have drawn your attention, to recommend the adoption of the course that I have suggested.

I have also to observe that there are now about one hundred and forty-five Scholars receiving an extensive and liberal education at Upper Canada College, and being convinced that the prosperity of this Seminary is of the greatest importance to the Province, and that it should be closely connected with King's College, and protected by a Charter, I trust that the additional clauses for the Government of the Institution will be approved of by your Lordship.

I have communicated to the Archdeacon the contents of this despatch; and I transmit for Your Lordship's information his remarks on the proposed alteration in the Charter, dispensing with the provision which declares that the President shall be a Clergyman. The objection made by the Archdeacon may be considered of importance, but as the appointment of the President rests with His Majesty, and the Professors of the Council must necessarily be members of the Church of England, I think the alteration may be safely admitted.

I have the honour to be, my Lord,

Your Lordships most obedient humble servant,

J. COLBORNE.

No. 16—BUILDING OF COBOURG SEMINARY.

(Archives, Series Q. Vol. 387-1 p. 182.)

We, Your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects the ministers of the Wesleyan Methodist church in Canada beg leave to express our firm and devoted attachment to Your Majesty's Royal Person and Government, and that constitution under which we have the happiness to live, and most humbly represent to Your Majesty,

That we have at a very heavy expense, and by the aid of the voluntary and liberal contributions of friends of religion and education in these Provinces, erected and, in about three months will have completed the Buildings for a seminary of learning, situate in the vicinity of the town of Cobourg, in the Newcastle district, to be called the Upper Canada Academy; the object of which is to educate the youth of Methodist congregations and other youth in the Canadas, and poor young men of piety and promising talents for common School masters, and the most pious and talented Indian youths, as interpreters, teachers and Missionaries to the aboriginal tribes of the Province—with special care of the moral and religious principles and habits of the pupils, as the union of education and Christian morality is essential to the well being of every civilized country.

That nine trustees have been appointed by the conference three of whom, (the first three on the list,) shall go out of office annually, and the vacancies shall be filled up by the conference who shall hold in trust all property of every kind in any way purchased or acquired, for the use of the said Academy. A board of Visitors consisting of five shall be annually chosen by the conference, at its annual meeting, who, in connection with the Trustees shall have authority to appoint the Principal and Teachers, and frame and make laws for the good government of the said Academy according to the design of its establishment. To its joint board of Trustees and Visitors, the Principal and Teachers shall be amenable for their conduct. The said board of Trustees and Visitors shall transmit annually to the Conference at its annual Meeting, a full and particular statement of the literary and financial state of the said Academy.

That accommodation for the lodging, as well as tuition, for one hundred and seventy pupils are provided within the halls of the Academy.

That an Institution of this kind is all important to the educational and best interests of the Province.

That the Wesleyan Methodists are the most numerous body of Christians in this Province, and are the only body who have made a united and vigorous effort, by the aid of private and individual contribution for the promotion of education in this new and important Province of Your Majesty's dominions.

That notwithstanding the very great and general exertions which have been made to obtain and collect subscriptions, such has been the pressure of the times in this Province for the last two years, that the progress of the buildings has been greatly impeded, anticipated resources and promised subscriptions have in very many instances, failed; so that a debt has accumulated against the Managing Board of about four Thousand Pounds.

That in order to render the said Academy efficient for the accomplishment of the purpose contemplated in its establishment, and in order to render a sound religious education in the elementary branches of Science accessible to poor young men of promising talent as common School masters, and the children of Parents in moderate circumstances, annual resources independent of the fees of Tuition, and a philosophical apparatus and library are indispensably necessary as also a Charter of Incorporation.

That under these circumstances of pressing necessity, animated by an ardent desire to promote the highest religious and educational interests of this Province, encouraged by the assurance of your Majesty's parental desire to advance the educational welfare, as well as general happiness, of your Majesty's faithful and loyal subjects in every part of your Majesty's vast empire, and emboldened by the fact of your Majesty having granted to the Episcopal University of King's College in this Province a Royal Charter, an annual grant of one Thousand Pounds Sterling for sixteen years, and an endowment of two hundred and twenty-five Thousand Acres of waste lands of the Crown, your Petitioners humbly and earnestly pray your Majesty to take the premises into your most gracious consideration and grant a Royal Charter for the said Upper Canada Academy, and such a sum of money and endowment of lands as your Majesty of your Royal grace and liberality may see fit.

EMIGRATION.

No. 1.—MR. SHIRREFF'S PROPOSAL FOR SETTLEMENT.

(Archives Series Q. Vol. 375-2 p. 361)

LONDON, September 29, 1832.

MY LORD,—When I had last the honour of an interview with Mr. Hay I mentioned that I was very desirous of submitting to His Majesty's Government a plan for opening a direct communication between Montreal and Lake Huron by way of the Ottawa, and for settling the neighbouring country and I now beg leave to lay before Your Lordship a few observations on the subject.

An undertaking of this kind was first suggested in a pamphlet published in London by my brother in 1824, and both he and my Father have since been at great pains to ascertain the nature of the country with a view to the objects already mentioned. A description of a part of it which the former explored for that purpose at a very considerable expense and which was previously a blank in the maps accompanies this.

In countries which have been long occupied, the object for increased facilities to communication is generally to accommodate bodies of population already formed, tho' even in that view, an increased activity of intercourse is always reckoned on in calculating the cost. In more recently settled countries, the object of such facilities is often to encourage, and in some measure to guide the progress of settlement, care being taken to observe that other circumstances combine to make the current of population set in towards those parts of the country where the improvements are commenced. The Erie Canal is a striking example of the success with which extensive works may be undertaken on the latter principle in a country where the low price of land removes every check to the increase of population. In this work the Americans were fortunate in being able to combine almost immediate commercial advantages with additional facilities for warlike operations on the Northern frontier. To restore the equilibrium of attack and defence, the Rideau Canal became necessary. It also opens up a most important part of the country tho' not likely to repay itself as soon as the Erie Canal the substantial manner in which it is constructed will prevent any considerable outlay, for repairs in the meantime. It is one of the greatest securities by which we hold the Canadas and the protection of every other great work which either has been, or may be, undertaken there. Among the latter there is none more strongly pointed out by the form of the country, nor which would be a greater stimulus to its trade and settlement, than the completion of the direct water-way between Montreal and Lake Huron which is already half formed by means of the Ottawa. It is remarkable that the distance is the same as that between Albany and Lake Erie, the two extremities of the great work by which our enterprising neighbours have connected the Upper Lakes with the Atlantic. The two lines of communication would indeed in both senses of the word be parallel. Even altho' the route by Lake Nipissing were found to be the most eligible, the increase of distance on our side would be much more than compensated by what nature has done to our hand.

The probability of an advantageous investment of capital in such an undertaking is of course for the consideration of individuals. But it may be observed that the two objects proposed would reciprocally aid each other. The body of land at a Company's disposal would attract labourers and afford supplies for the Canal, and the Canal would bring purchasers for the land, of whom the workmen employed would form a very considerable proportion.

There is this advantage in commencing such operations in a part of the country still unoccupied, that there is no large item to be placed at the debit of the account for damage to private property. In the present instance, on the contrary, there would be the enhanced value of the land to come to the credit of the works. Had this been the case with regard to the Rideau Canal, an Association of individuals might perhaps have been found willing to have undertaken that work. And even had its adaptation to military purposes rendered it necessary to defray the expense out of the public purse, many of the obstacles arising from extravagant claims for compensation, through which in addition to the natural difficulties of the work, the able Officer intrusted with its accomplishment has had to thread or cut his way, would have been avoided, while the lands in the vicinity might have been advantageously sold by Government, and the purchasers more benefitted than by receiving a free grant of them, without such an improvement. Nations, however, like individuals, must often pay for their experience, and I only make these observations because they are in favour of an early commencement in the present instance, one great encouragement to which, is the rapidly increasing population of the Michigan and North Western Territories. For there can be no doubt, and it is a circumstance which appears to ensure success, that these Sections of the United States would avail themselves of an opening in the direction of the Ottawa for almost the whole of their Atlantic commerce.

Indeed, such an outlet for their produce would not fail to accelerate and swell the tide of emigration already set in towards that quarter from the New England and Middle States of the Union. In a political point of view, such an advantageous channel for their trade would very much increase the interest which they have in their Government continuing on a friendly footing with the British Empire. Should we unfortunately however, be involved in hostilities with our powerful rival this short and safe cut to Lake Huron, together with a militia and population of English feelings in that part of Canada, would add greatly to our resources; whereas without them, a reference to the maps will at once show that the enemy, by the settlement of his Michigan and North-western Territories, will have turned our flank, and converted into a source of mischief, or at least annoyance to us, the very circumstance which otherwise would have bound him over to the peace.

The co-operation necessary on the part of Government and Legislature, would be the giving at a valuation, and on certain conditions to a Company either already, or to be formed, an extent of land and a charter that would enable them to combine both the settling effectually that part of the country, with the completing the navigation of the Ottawa as far up, if necessary as Matawowen Bay, and the connecting that river by canals or railroads with the navigable waters between it and Lake Huron, so as to carry forward the line of communication to the latter.

If the writer may venture to hope that his views on this subject accord with those of His Majesty's Government, there are one or two points which he would respectfully state as appearing to him very important.

The first of these is the delaying, for a short time, to make any grants or sales of land in the Midland District of Upper Canada north of the river Madawaska, in the Newcastle District, north of the 45th degree of latitude, and in the Home District north of the same degree and nearer to the Muskoka river and lake than 3 miles. The late season of the year will prevent this being inconvenient, whereas partial settlements north of the above limits might very much embarrass the arrangements with a Company and their subsequent operations.

In the next place that in consideration of the risk and expense of opening this line of communication, an Association willing to undertake it should have the preference in choosing conditionally a tract of land between the Ottawa and Lake Huron, north of the boundary above specified. The extensive space unfit for cultivation immediately in the rear of the present surveyed Townships in the Midland and Newcastle Districts and the obstructions which the falls and rapids of the Ottawa cause to Settlements beyond that space, make it essential to the opening up of the country to the south of Lake Nipissing, that the command of the most desirable part of the land there and the removal of these obstructions should go hand in hand.

The only other point which it appears necessary to mention at present is the importance of Government retaining on both sides of the Ottawa in any measures for the further Settlement of the country, the sole right of disposing of the standing timber on the lands, till they are cleared and fenced for cultivation, leaving of course the settlers at full liberty to use whatever may be wanted for building, fuel and agricultural purposes. It is presumed that this can be done in giving up the property of the lands in other respects. Without the retention of this right in a part of the country where the cutting of timber for exportation is carried on so extensively, a very untimely check might be given to this branch of our Colonial trade, which would be felt by none more severely than the new settlers themselves. The benefit to them from the timber on their respective allotments would be inconsiderable, whereas they would derive a great advantage from the demand which the timber trade occasions for their produce. This stipulation was not necessary with regard to the Canada Company, as their block of land is not near the forests from which the market is chiefly supplied. But in the present instance it would be advisable to extend the reservation always made (tho' seldom acted on) respecting the white pine, to the red pine and oak, and perhaps it might be possible, on the other hand, to dispense with the usual reservation of a proportion of the land.

In reference to the objections which have been made against colonizing by means of joint stock Companies as a resident and proprietor of land in Canada I would say they are most beneficial to us. We want capital. How are we to get it? Individuals possessing it largely cannot be expected to emigrate. It is therefore only by means of joint stock Companies formed in the Mother Country that capital to a sufficient extent can be brought to bear on British America, and the settlement of the Country must naturally be one of the first objects they should point at. When their work is done in this respect they will die out as land holders. The North American Atlantic States, the parents of most of the others which have since grown up, were founded by similar Associations, and altho' the United States may now be settling their lands without having recourse to these means it is owing to the already great accumulation of capital there. Wealthy individuals purchase from the General Government extensive tracts of land, open roads through them, plan and commence villages, build bridges, mills and schoolhouses, and thus prepare the country for being occupied by persons of smaller means. There can be no doubt that all this is advantageous to the settler, as well as the capitalist, and the community at large; and it is exactly what our North American Land Companies must do for their own interest. Such a mode of breaking up the forest provides likewise much employment for the emigrant labourer, and in the present case this would be further increased by the nature of the undertaking, by which also a new channel of commerce would be opened through the Canadas.

Respectfully submitting these remarks to Your Lordship

I have the honour to be, My Lord,
Your Lordships most obedient humble servant

ROBERT SHIRREFF.

No. 2.—SIR JOHN COLBORNE TO VISCOUNT GODERICH.

YORK, 10th January, 1833.

MY LORD,—The Agents appointed to superintend the location of Emigrants having closed their Accounts, I am now enabled to transmit the annexed statement of the expense incurred in carrying into effect the arrangements sanctioned in Your Lordships instructions of the 1st February and 31st May last, No. 72.

The expenditure occasioned by the embarrassing circumstances under which the Emigration of last season commenced, and continued for several months, has been large. I am persuaded however that the speedy and effectual relief experienced in both Provinces, by the constant removal of Emigrants from the Ports on the St. Lawrence and Lake Ontario at which they were liable to be detained, and the permanent benefit which the Country has derived from the measures adopted for the distribution, employment and location of at least thirty thousand persons, cannot fail to show that the outlay was necessary and warranted.

I encouraged, early in the season, the societies established at Prescott, Kingston and York and the settlers interested in local improvements to open Roads which were much required and promised, conditionally, that part of the expense of constructing them should be defrayed by the Executive Government.

On these roads many destitute families were employed successively and earned by their labour a sum sufficient to carry them to remote Townships.

The expense for conveyance was incurred chiefly in forwarding families from Prescott to York, and to the new Townships of Harvey, Medonté and Oro, and to the Western Townships of Adelaide and Warwick.

In Adelaide and Warwick about 3,500 persons have been established; a population that will much advance the interests of the Western District. I have authorised the employment of the destitute Emigrants in these Townships in opening a road from Canada to Lake Huron. Some of them will, I hope, find work on the location of the officers and other settlers who have lately purchased Land in that part of the Province.

I regret to state that many of the Pensioners who arrived last season, having commuted their Pensions, are in great distress. They have squandered away their commutation allowance and cannot, without further assistance, remain on their land, and are either too indolent or unable to labour with energy sufficient to provide for their families. They generally are led to believe that they have been dealt with unfairly and being destitute and discontented, and having passed their best days in the Army must soon become settlers of the worst description for these Provinces.

The discharged soldiers who have retained their pensions are all going on well. There are also others in great distress in the Newcastle District.

The Emigrants from Sussex and Wiltshire that were sent out early in the Spring, having received the small sums due to them on their arrival at York were left without means to provide for their temporary support. They have been distributed, however, in the Western Districts, and are satisfied with their prospects.

As it does not appear probable that any extensive system proposed for the encouragement of Emigration will become acceptable at home nor that the Parishes or Land holders will consent to place under the control of the Government, funds sufficient to establish a portion of their redundant population in these Colonies; this Province must be prepared for the reception annually of thirty or forty thousand voluntary Emigrants, the greater part of which will require immediate support, I beg leave, therefore, to offer some observations suggested by the experience of the last two years, and the result of the measures adopted to provide for destitute settlers.

It is obvious that, if arrangements should not be made to prevent an accumulation of Emigrants at Prescott and York, five or six thousand persons might frequently be detained at the same time in these Towns totally unfit to support them or afford them employment. Hitherto in order insure the removal of Emigrants successively as they arrive and to direct them to Districts where they may provide for themselves, and the Province reap the greatest advantage from their industry, several Townships have been prepared for their reception to which they have been encouraged to proceed. Their conveyance to the interior Townships is expensive, as well as the preparations necessary to be made for their employment; but by this mode large tracts of Land are brought into cultivation in one season.

Officers and Settlers with Capital ready to take up their residence in Townships occupied by four or five hundred labourers, and where the value of land increases in proportion to the population placed near their Grants; the destitute Settlers either are hired by farmers on their route to the Townships to which they have been directed, or are employed by the settlers who enter the new Township with them; or by the Agents of Government, to open roads. A better course perhaps could not be followed both for the interests of Emigrants and the Province.

The only exceptionable part of the system is the employing of Emigrants to open roads in the new Townships, as these could be made by persons accustomed to the work for one-third of the expense now incurred in forming them and the destitute Emigrants might be employed in clearing fifteen or twenty acres on the lots intended for sale in different parts of a Township, and in planting potatoes and Indian corn for the supply of the settlers that may be located, and for the Emigrants employed in clearing the grounds. These crops would probably be sold for the price of labour bestowed in raising them. The improvements would induce persons of small capital to purchase the lots on which they were made, and the proceeds would defray the expenses of the year.

I have no doubt that such a system would succeed. It appears in every respect preferable to employing Emigrants on roads; or to the project of clearing Land for large farms an undertaking which must fail unless conducted by superintendents of great experience, intelligence and integrity.

The Salaries for the Superintendents of this description would add considerably to the outlay and the farms prepared for occupation could not be readily disposed of; but small improvements would be placed within the reach of Settlers of very limited means, and the value of land in every part of the Township would be equally increased.

I shall direct the Agents in the new Townships to employ Emigrants at low Wages, in clearing land early in the spring for cultivation instead of continuing them on work that can yield no immediate profit.

The representation contained in the annexed document from the Commissioner of Crown Lands has induced me to allow officers of the Navy and Army entitled to a remission of the purchase money for land according to their rank to receive their grants at the upset price, provided that they settle on their location a few months after their arrival in the Province.

I have the honour to be,
My Lord, your Lordship's
Most obedient humble servant,

The Right Hon'ble
VISCOUNT GODERICH,

Besides the sum of £8,582 10 11, Messrs. Chisholm and Gamble have been authorised to expend in the employment of poor Settlers on the roads the further sum of £500, to be repaid them after the 1st January, 1832. And there still remains, as by Mr. Patton's statement, unpaid £1,135 5 2½ due the steamboats Great Britain, Queenston, William 4th and Niagara, &c., for passages furnished the Emigrants from Prescott to the different ports on Lake Ontario.

No. 4.—SIR JOHN COLBORNE TO R. W. HAY.

YORK, U. C., January 14th, 1833.

My dear sir,—In my dispatch of the 10th inst. I have proposed a scheme for rendering the labour of Emigrants productive, by employing them in clearing 10 acres on certain lots for sale in new Townships, planting the acres cleared, and selling the improvements to Emigrants who enter the Township with capital.

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 18

Emigration is now an affair of so much importance in this province that our chief attention should be drawn to the changes that are taking place.

If Emigrants can be readily disposed of, I should intreat that the influence of Government may be exerted to promote emigration to the utmost extent to this Province. The effects of the late importations are already apparent in every district, and the necessity of filling Upper Canada till it overflows is obvious.

Have the goodness to show to Lord Goderich the accompanying estimate of the outlay and return for one year, in assuming that 100 Emigrants might be constantly employed in clearing 100 acres every month. The calculations are made on the supposition that 100 acres may be cleared and planted before the 10th of June, that the crops and improvements might be sold to Emigrants located in a new Township before September, and that all the lots improved might be sold in the course of the year for the value of the labour of the men employed. Thus, if four thousand persons should be directed to a new Township in the ensuing season, and a fourth of them in indigent circumstances, and employed in clearing, there would be no difficulty in selling their labour at the rate of £4 an acre on the improved lots, in addition to the upset price.

The greater part of the money advanced for wages would be returned in September. I have consulted many experienced Settlers on this project, and they are all of opinion that it will succeed.

The exertions that I found it necessary to make last year to disperse the emigrants as they arrived, and to prevent such an accumulation of them as might have destroyed half of the number that entered the Province, as well as their neighbours, led to an expense far beyond the sum allowed for the purpose of Emigration; but the emergency demanded the active and expensive arrangements which were adopted, and had they not been sanctioned panic and confusion must have prevailed during the whole season. I am quite satisfied that Lord Goderich will be convinced that the expense could not have been avoided without producing serious consequences.

Many families well able to pay for their conveyance were forwarded; but it was not easy to separate the destitute from those that had means to proceed. The alarm was great and it should be recollected that we had not only to provide for the removal of Emigrants from the St. Lawrence but also for their conveyance to remote Townships, and employment. I cannot regret any portion of the outlay. The Province, generally, has benefited by it, and the Western District particularly. The population of that District has been increased in a few months from 10,000 to 14,000.

The account of the expenditures are nearly completed. The sum expended will amount I believe to about £10,000. The territorial revenue will bear this charge without inconvenience.

I must again advert to Emigration, persuaded that the subject should absorb our chief attention at home and abroad, as far as this Colony is concerned. The experiment of colonization on a large scale has never been tried; nor has it ever been attempted with the many favourable circumstances under which it may be now encouraged.

With prudent regulations the capitalists can be made to support the destitute Emigrants while they are establishing themselves, and we may see a magnificent Colony raised up in ten years, firmly attached to the institutions of the Mother Country advancing her interests and commercial views, without looking towards separation, and by its numbers and opinions influencing every portion of the Canadas that requires a good example. The inclosed report on the Emigrant tax also deserves Lord Goderich's attention.

The estimate for the outlay in employing Emigrants to clear land will bear a rigid inspection, the charges are all made at a high rate. I trust that the Secy. of State will think the scheme of so much importance that his opinion of its merits, and as to the expediency of adopting the plan proposed may be forwarded to me by New York; so that I may receive his instructions in April.

I remain, my dear sir,

Very faithfully yours,

R. W. M. HAY, Esq., F.R.S.,

&c., &c., &c.

J. COLBORNE.

No. 13.—NOTES BY THE EMIGRATION AGENT.

(Archives, Series Q., Vol. 217-3 p. 708.)

Extract from the several Weekly Reports made to the Governor in Chief by the Chief Agent for Emigration at Quebec.

Week ending 10th May, 1834.

Finding that Masters of Ships continue to levy the Tax on Emigrants, I forwarded Printed Notices to Grosse Isle to inform them that there is no Law for such impost.

Week ending May 17th.

The Emigrants already arrived this season are in general, possessed of considerable property, chiefly small Farmers and dealers, the number of persons of the working classes, is under an average of former years, and of that class already arrived, they are in general amply provided to pay their way to their destinations or to such situations as I consider best to direct them, good house servants are much wanted in this City and Montreal and the demand for all persons of the Working classes cannot be better. I have much difficulty in getting Ship Captains to refund to the Emigrants the amount of the late Tax which they illegally collected from them; up to this day I have succeeded in getting them back above five hundred Pounds. Many melancholy Shipwrecks have taken place this Spring among Emigrant Vessels coming to this Port.

Week ending 31st May.

The Emigrants arrived this week were in general in Good circumstances, the City is remarkably free of Emigrants at present considering the great number that has already arrived at so early a period. I succeeded in getting the Capitation Tax refunded to over One Thousand Emigrants on Friday and Saturday. Attendance is given at this office from Seven in the morning until dark to afford the numerous Applicants every aid to get away; nearly all the surviving Emigrants that have been Shipwrecked in the Gulf have come up, for such as stood in need I got gratuitous passage to Montreal.

Week ending 7th June.

This office continues to be exceedingly crowded daily by Emigrants soliciting aid to recover the Capitation Tax; the Captains of the Ship Home from Dublin, and Active from Londonderry which arrived this day have refused to refund the Tax, which I ascertained clearly to have been advanced by the Emigrants. The situation of the city is remarkably satisfactory, as regards the Emigrant population.

Week ending 14th June.

The Emigrants arrived this week have in general proceeded to Upper Canada; some labourers, servants and tradesmen remain employed at Quebec and Montreal. This City is unusually free from distress or want among the Emigrant population, through the aid of the Collector of Customs. I have got it so arranged that the Masters of Ships are prevented from landing the Emigrants and their baggage late in the evening risking the night's exposure unless when going by Steam Boat. A number of farming labourers, late the Tenantry of Lord Suffield arrived this week, they were recommended by the Secretary of State to this Department as also some other Small parties of Emigrants from various Estates all were well provided and I forwarded them as requested to their several destinations. I got the Capitation Tax very generally refunded to all the Emigrants that arrived this and the preceding Week with the exception of the Ship Home from Dublin.

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 18

Week ending 21st June.

A considerable number of persons of the working classes arrived this week, principally from Ireland, they were apparently all able to pay their way, the great demand in Upper Canada for persons of the Working class and particularly at public works for labourers and Artificers with the high rate of wages induced nearly the whole to proceed thither. I have Reports this week from the Emigrant Agents at Toronto, Lachine, Prescott and By-town all testifying as to the good circumstances of the Emigrant population and to the total absence of Sickness or distress among them so far this Season.

This City and Montreal has never been more free from inconvenience from an Emigrant population, and the interference of the benevolent has been less required this Season than for the last five years. From the competition between the Steam Boats here and the forwarding boats above Montreal, Emigrants may now be got from Quebec to Prescott for about One Dollar each Adult.

Week ending 5th July.

The Emigrants arrived this week consist principally of tradesmen, farmers and labourers, of whom very few are now in Quebec.

Week ending 12th July.

The Emigrants arrived this week are very respectable, all in good health and spirits, the great demand for persons of the working classes throughout the Upper Province hastens them forward, the facilities of transport is a further inducement. I got the head money refunded to nearly all the Emigrants arrived this week. The total Sum refunded since the 12th of May to this date is about two thousand five hundred Pounds.

Week ending 19th July.

In consequence of the low rate of transport and great competition this season on the route from Quebec to Kingston, the head Money refunded to the Emigrants is ample to pay a common passage to Prescott.

Week ending 9th August.

By the Kingston, from Liverpool a Mr. Farmer (strongly recommended to this Department) and Family came Passengers, he proceeds for the present to Sorel, he has with him fifty head of live Stock of the most approved English Breeds.

Week ending 16th August.

The greater proportion of the Emigrants arrived this week from Scotland and the North of Ireland, and all had ample means to proceed to Upper Canada whither they were destined.

Week ending 6th September.

By the explosion of one of the Boilers of the Lady of the Lake, Steam Boat on Sunday Morning Six lives have been lost, they were passengers by the Conference from Leith, one of them Mr. W. Ronaldson has left considerable property, An Inventory of which I had taken, and Cash amounting to near Four hundred Pounds I lodged in the Montreal Bank, and his other effects have been stored.

Week ending 20th September.

The Emigrants this week are all in comfortable circumstances, the greater part, have proceeded to Upper Canada. In the Concord from London, there were 20 Boys sent out by the London Childrens Friend Society.

Week ending 27th September.

Seventy-three Saxon Emigrants arrived this week and proceeded to Upper Canada, they appear to be a healthy able bodied, industrious people, I gave them orders for employment at the Long Sault Canal.

Week ending 4th October.

Labourers are much wanted about town to get in the potato crop, and at Cornwall and the Long Sault Canal, Shoemakers and Tailors are in great request, at high Wages. Quebec is unusually free from an Emigrant population. Navigation closes 1st December, no Emigrants unprovided for remain in Quebec.

No. 14.—QUEBEC EMIGRANT SOCIETY.

(Archives, Series, Q., Vol. 216-1 p. 25).

The Committee of Management of the Quebec Emigrant Society have to report the conclusion of their Proceedings under the Provincial Statute 2 Will. 4 Cap. 17, as far as relates to the transportation of poor and destitute Emigrants to the places of their destination.

During the period of the Navigation, from May to November, 1833 inclusive, they have forwarded the following numbers namely:—

Adults	1,330
Under 14 years	479
Under 7 years	531
Total	2,340

The Total number of Emigrants arrived at this Port during the past Season is stated at about 22,000, being a diminution of nearly 30,000 in comparison to the Emigration of 1832. With respect to the causes of this large diminution, the Committee are not called upon to advance any opinion beyond the dread naturally excited at Home by the calamitous details and recollections of the malady of 1832.

Of the immigration of 1833, about 16,000 persons arrived previous to the first of August of whom only about seven hundred made application to this Society for relief; a fact which shows the foresight of those whose means enabled them to reach these shores during the fine season of the year—of the remaining 6,000 who arrived previous to October a different opinion must be given, although having left Home at so late a period, they could hardly expect to obtain permanent employment in this Province so as to provide against the exigencies of a Canadian winter, it would appear that they were inadequately provided with funds, nearly 1,700 of the number having received the assistance of the Society.

The Committee are well satisfied from the experience of 1832, to find that His Majesty's Government have put a stop to the Emigration of Pensioners on receiving a commuted Allowance and a Lot of Land.

The number of Emigrants being so much diminished last Season, a corresponding diminution in the receipts from the Emigrant Fund was the natural result. The Committee therefore, taking into consideration the Surplus expenditure of 1832, which was to be provided for out of the receipt of last Season, made a very practicable reduction in the expenses of the Society giving up the Emigrant Shed in St. Paul's Street, and reducing the Salaries paid from 250 to £136 per Annum. Considering also, that the Act 2, Will. 4 Cap. 17 would cease its operation on the first of May next, they have been careful to keep their expenditure as near as possible within their receipts, so that at the end of the year the balance will not be considerable.

The total Amount available to the Society from the produce of the Emigrant Act is understood to be about £1,180. As far as the Accounts have been received the Expenditure is:—

Passages in 1833.....	£ 605
Provisions.....	15
Remaining due from last Season.....	375
Estimated Salaries and expens s to May 1834.....	190

The Committee beg to mention the receipt of a letter written in Germ in by Mr. Bagelman, of Bremen, soliciting to be informed by the Society if any Encouragement would be held out to German Emigrants wishing to settle in Upper or Lower Canada. The Committee answered this application, informing the writer that no assistance in Money could be expected, but that German Emigrants would doubtless be received here with Kindness, and if provided with means might be advantageously settled in various parts of the two Provinces.

The Emigration of the year 1833 shows no great difference in the proportion of Adults as compared to that of 1832; but it may be remarked that Young Females of good Character seeking service formed a larger proportion of the whole than before. It is worthy of notice also, that the Parents have this year been much less encumbered with young children, a circumstance which must have proved of material advantage to them in their speedy settlement in the Country. The following comparative view of the Emigration of 1832-3 will establish the correctness of this remark:—

Adults.....	2,868	1,330
Under 14.....	875	479
Under 7.....	1,168	531

The Accounts required to be delivered to the three Branches of the Legislature through the Commissioners under the Act 2, William. 4, Cap 17, together with the Lists of the Emigrants forwarded and their full description, will be commenced forthwith and completed, if possible, at the time prescribed by Law for that purpose.

The Committee beg to acknowledge the readiness with which the Steamboat proprietors met their Views by acceding to their request that, following the precedent of 1832, they would reduce the price of passage one half from the 1st of October to the end of the navigation; and they also think proper to mention that they have been informed by their Secretary of numerous instances in which the Agents have taken upon themselves to forward poor persons, who, from various causes did not strictly come under the rules of this Society, yet were nevertheless deserving of relief.

The Committee would now have concluded their Report, but very strong opinions are entertained by a large portion of their Body as to the inexpediency at least if not the injustice of the Tax—the proceeds of which have been in part entrusted to them for distribution.

The Members of the Committee who hold these opinions feel apprehensive lest a statement merely of their proceedings would imply an unqualified approbation of this Tax, and of the practical effects resulting from the mode in which it is collected and applied.

The Committee have been therefore called upon to add that many strong and weighty objections have been advanced by a large portion of their Body against the principles upon which the Tax is founded as well as against its details in execution, these objections, however, have been so met by counter reasons founded on the expediency of the measure and the difficulty of creating a fund to obviate the evils, which, too frequently, beset the Emigrant on his arrival, as to influence the opinions of, probably an equally large portion of the Committee.

Amidst these conflicting opinions there are also some upon which all parties are agreed; and these the Committee would press most earnestly upon the attention of the public.

However they may differ as to the means of creating a fund for charitable appropriation to the Emigrants the Committee are quite assured that such would be necessary to obviate some of the evils inevitably incidental to Emigration; And they do not conceive that under present circumstances, one adequate to them can be derived from private subscriptions: means must be adopted to meet cases of peculiar hardship and the case of the Sick, always far above the average in the same number of persons.

It appears that passages have been provided for Emigrants in a proportion no larger than one-ninth or one-tenth of the whole, this shews a much smaller proportion of actual pauperism than is commonly imagined, or could have been anticipated.

It is also to be observed that a heavy charge upon this fund might be removed altogether, if measures were taken in England to induce or compel the Parishes who send out their Paupers to this Country to advance funds sufficient for the Location of their families, and for the placing their funds in the hands of authorized Agents here, to be applied under the local authorities to this purpose.

The Committee have been through the whole of the period desirous of diffusing correct information as to the situation of the Emigrant on his arrival here, that he might be prepared to cope with the evils unavoidable in a Country where the demand for labour is unequal, the best chance for it remote, and where the inclemency of climate multiplies his wants.

They have availed themselves of every opportunity of doing so but they think that much remains to be done in this respect, as well as in guarding the Emigrant against the impositions to which he is liable, in what relates to his Passage and Provisions for the Voyage. Means should be taken in the Mother Country to apprise the Fathers of Families, in that class who are desirous of emigrating that unless they are provided with Funds, and these are well husbanded, their Emigration will involve them in greater misery than that from which they fly.

By a course of proceeding founded on these views the Committee conceive the possibility of so abating the evils to which the Emigrant is liable, as ultimately to supersede the necessity of any fund beyond what might be required to meet cases of incidental distress from Shipwreck, or death in the Parents, and the support of Hospitals for the Sick

In conclusion, the Committee are desirous of recommending under the uncertainty which necessarily prevails at present as to the funds which may be at the disposal of the Society for the ensuing Season, that measures should be immediately taken to apprise those interested that no reliance can be placed upon assistance of this nature, that expectations which might otherwise be raised might not be disappointed, and the misery consequent thereon, as far as possible be prevented.

All which, &c.

No 15—LORD AYLMER TO MR. STANLEY.

*(Archives, Series Q, Vol. 216-1, p. 15.)*CASTLE OF ST. LEWIS, QUEBEC, 4th April, 1834.

SIR.—I have delayed answering your confidential communication of the 4th August last, relating to the Act of the Provincial Parliament of Lower Canada (which Act expires in May next) imposing a Tax on Emigrants arriving by Sea, at the Ports of Lower Canada, being uncertain whether any attempt would be made to renew it in the House of Assembly.

Soon after the commencement of the late Session, however, a Bill was introduced for the purpose of containing the Act in question, whereupon I sent down a Message to the Legislative Council and House of Assembly (of which I have the honour of transmitting a copy herewith) intimating to them that it would be my duty to reserve the Bill, if brought up to me, for the Signification of His Majesty's pleasure, and recommending that a temporary provision should be made for the relief of sick and indigent Emigrants. The Bill, nevertheless, has passed the two Houses, without containing any such provision, and it will be transmitted along with other reserved Bills, passed during the late Session, for the Signification of His Majesty's pleasure.

Anticipating, however, the possibility of the Bill being favourably considered by His Majesty's Government, I have caused a Duplicate certified Copy of it to be prepared, which is herewith transmitted, and I take leave to request that the earliest intimation of the decision of Government upon it may be communicated to me, in order that if favourable, its provisions may be carried into effect during the ensuing Season.

I am fully aware of the objections to this Bill existing in Upper Canada, and that it is likewise opposed by persons engaged in the Shipping Interest in this Province, but unquestionably in so far as regards the Public at large in Lower Canada, and more especially the Inhabitants of Quebec and Montreal, the effects of it are highly beneficial; for it relieves them from the burden of providing for indigent Sick Emigrants which has heretofore been effected by means of charitable Contributions in those Cities.

The pressure of that burthen may be easily conceived when it is recollected that during the last three years, the number of Emigrants arrived at the Port of Quebec, exceeded one hundred and twenty four Thousand, of whom the large proportion consisted of persons in indigent circumstances. Such of those who were in health went forward into the Country, leaving their Sick (which after a long Voyage, under circumstances calculated to produce disease, could not fail to be numerous) to the chances of being taken care of by those amongst whom they were left.

Under such circumstances the aid derived from the tax levied on Emigrants prove highly beneficial as appears by the Report of the last Season, of the Emigrant Society of Quebec, a copy of which I have now the honour of transmitting, together with Statements shewing the numbers of Sick Emigrants received, during the same period, into the General Hospital of Montreal and the Emigrant Hospital at Quebec.

The Amount of the Emigrant Tax during the last Season was £4,298. 7s. 3d. Sterling which under the Provisions of the Act was equally divided between the Cities of Quebec and Montreal and it is greatly to be apprehended that if this resource be now withheld, the Inhabitants of those Cities will not come forward and contribute from their own means to the relief of sick and indigent Emigrants as they have done heretofore when the Emigration to the Canadas was upon a more limited Scale than it has been during the last few years, and is likely to be in future.

It is to be observed that the whole produce of the Emigrant Tax is applied to the care and Medical treatment of Sick Emigrants, and to the furnishing to the Emigrants who stand in need of such assistance, the means of transporting themselves and families to Upper Canada, and to their respective destinations in this Province.

64 VICTORIA, A. 1901

Under all the circumstances as connected with the Bill for levying a Tax upon Emigrants arriving by sea at the Ports of Lower Canada, I take leave to recommend it to the favourable consideration of His Majesty's Government.

I have the honour to be, sir,
Your most obedient humble servant,
AYLMER.

The Right Honourable,
MR. STANLEY,

P. S.—Since the above was written a Memorial addressed to me by the Emigrant Society of Quebec has been received of which a Copy will be found along with the other documents adverted to in the body of this Dispatch, and I take leave to call your particular attention to it as being calculated to shew the necessity of making some provision from the Public Funds for the relief of sick and indigent Emigrants.

No. 16.—LORD AYLMEER TO MR. STANLEY.

SOREL, LOWER CANADA, June 16, 1834.

(Extract). Some alarm has been created at Quebec arising from the numerous cases of Typhus fever which have occurred on board of Passage Ships with Emigrants from Ireland, and from the circumstances of a few cases of Asiatic Cholera on board of others. But the whole of the Sick having been landed at the Quarantine Station at Grosse Isle, about thirty Miles below Quebec, I trust the existence of disease will be confined to the Hospital at that Station.

I have the honour to be, sir,
Your obedient servant,
AYLMER.

No. 17.—MR. W. H. DRAPER TO LORD ABERDEEN.

(Archives, Series Q, Vol. 225-2, p. 214).

27 NORFOLK STREET, STRAND,
24th February, 1835.

MY LORD,—I have only just become aware through the medium of the public prints that His Majesty's Government contemplate the allowance of an Act of the Legislature of Lower Canada by which a capitation tax is imposed on all passengers arriving in that Province by sea from any port in the United Kingdom.

A tax similar to this was imposed in the years 1831-2, and most justly called forth an expression of the sentiments of the Legislature of Upper Canada on this question. I beg leave respectfully to refer Your Lordship to the sound and constitutional reasoning in that address feeling confident, that hitherto it has remained wholly unanswered.

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 18

It was understood, during the last sitting of the Legislature of Upper Canada that a similar measure was in progress before the Assembly of the Lower Province, and an address praying His Majesty not to assent to any such bill was adopted.

In both the addresses to which I refer the right of the province of Lower Canada to impose such a duty was strongly contested and without hoping to add any force to the arguments there urged, I will briefly recapitulate some of the objections to this measure :—

It is an imposition of a duty, by a local legislature upon all his Majesty's subjects, whose pleasure or business may occasion them to land in Lower Canada, involving a most important principle, for the amount of the tax is a secondary consideration, as the right to impose it being once admitted it may be carried to any extent till it amounts to an absolute exclusion of British subjects from a British province. It cannot be assimilated to the imposition of duties on merchandise, the principle of which is wholly different and in which case the interests of the Upper Province are expressly guarded by the Imperial act 3, Geo. 4. c. 119, sec. 29—nor is it any more defensible on any ground of policy which should be recognized by the mother country, as it has a direct tendency to check emigration and thereby seriously affect the interests of the colonies, and more especially of Upper Canada.

I think I may further venture to urge that a parallel instance of the imposition of a personal tax on every subject visiting a particular section of the British dominion cannot be found. Were this tax confined to those who are or intend to be domiciled in the Province by whose enactment it is imposed, there might be no just ground of complaint but when its operation is extended to residents of the sister Colony and to emigrants from the British Isles who merely desire to pass through Lower Canada to their destination it becomes palpably unjust for while the whole fund is received in that province, one of the uses to which it is applied is to transfer to the Upper Province as speedily as possible, those emigrants, who on arriving there require assistance, while not the smallest portion of this fund is transmitted with them to forward them to their ultimate destination. And I have reason to believe that instances may be found where widows and orphans have been returned in a state of utter destitution, by the same means, without ever proceeding beyond Quebec.

It is not to be denied that a large number of persons in a state of great indigence are annually thrown upon the charity of the inhabitants of Quebec and Montreal, but it is no less true that the same burden is imposed to an equal extent compared with their resources on the principal towns of the Upper Province. The admission of the evil however by no means admits the propriety of the enactment in question and a resort to it can only be justified when the less objectionable modes and expedients have been tried in vain. The regulation of emigration by the Mother country and the provision of a fund for the actual settlement of destitute emigrants to be levied at the different ports of embarkation in the United Kingdom would be free from the principal objections to the present system and would probably without checking emigration to any great extent greatly diminish the evils now complained of.

If it is right that Lower Canada should impose such a tax to provide a fund to relieve the sick and destitute emigrants and forward them to their place of destination, which is the alleged object, it must be equally right that Upper Canada to which at least two thirds of these emigrants proceed, should pursue a similar course. The sick and destitute will not the less require relief and assistance when they arrive at the boundary between the two Provinces than they did when they arrived at Quebec. If the necessity of the case justifies this imposition in one province it will equally justify it in the other, and the unfortunate emigrants after paying for leave to pass through Lower Canada may be called upon to pay for their entry to the Upper Province.

This enactment involves also a departure from the principle on which the apportionment of duties on merchandise raised in Lower Canada is regulated—Upper Canada receives a part of these duties in proportion to her consumption of the articles on which those duties are imposed, and it seems but equally just that she should receive a portion of this tax raised to meet a peculiar evil corresponding to the portion of the very same evil which is inflicted on her which is not however the case.

64 VICTORIA, A. 1901

In conclusion, my Lord, I beg leave to apologise for this intrusion on your time and attention. But well aware as I am that this imposition is viewed in Upper Canada as unconstitutional and oppressive, and that such sentiments have been expressed by its Legislature on former occasions, I cannot refrain from endeavouring to draw your Lordship's attention to it again. It is possible that the period during which your Lordship has presided at the Colonial office has been too short to permit you to have viewed all the bearings of the question—and I would rather incur the charge of presumption in thus addressing your Lordship, than feel myself guilty of neglecting any opportunity of urging the reconsideration of a question on which so deep an interest is felt in my adopted country.

I have the honour to be, my Lord,
Your Lordship's most obedient humble servant,

WM. H. DRAPER.

The Committee of Assembly reported that all the judges, including the Chief Justice, should be disqualified from having seats in the Legislative Council. This clause defeated in the Assembly. The pensions and retiring allowances to the judges to be charged to the casual and territorial revenue. The bill makes the Legislative Council a tribunal for the trial of impeachments, without appeal; but a clause to that effect was negatived. Does not think that there was any attempt to infringe the prerogatives of the Crown in the bill which is so contrary to the instructions that he (Aylmer) had reserved it, but urged its being assented to. The rejection of the civil list will not cause irritation on his part. Advises that a dissolution of the present House should not be resorted to as it would produce an excitement that could not be caused by other means. The Canadian people are loyal, peaceable and well disposed and the members of the Assembly (with a few exceptions) do not use systematic opposition to His Majesty's government. But the Canadians require management, being full of suspicions and jealousies of the intentions of persons in authority. At present the public mind is perfectly tranquil. Explained that much of the action of the Assembly, which appeared unfavourable at a distance was due to the hostility to the present Chief Justice and to Stuart, Attorney General who was regarded as his probable successor. May 5, Quebec.	Aylmer to Goderich (No. 39). The Bishop of Fusala has no feeling of mortification at the decision respecting his appointment to the Executive Council. The Council should be divested of its functions as a court of appeal, as probably not one member of the legal profession will be in it. If the cases were confined to those of equity the duties might be executed by the members but there are often cases involving intricate law points on which those who had not studied law were not capable of pronouncing an opinion. A court of appeal will probably be constituted in the province; the Executive Council would also, he thought, be relieved of the duties of a board of Audit and become altogether a body to advise and assist the governor in the administration. The question of its powers and responsibilities, as it seems a hardship that only the Governor is responsible for following its advice. Suggests that the Executive Council might be reduced to five, three to be a quorum.	440

June 16, Quebec.	Aylmer to Goderich (private). The importance of the season's emigration; arrival of a superior class with capital. The majority of the House of Assembly entertain views that if accomplished would render the province a dependency of the British Crown only in name. They seem afraid that the liberality of the British government would remove all their grievances. The mass of the French Canadians are docile, contented, happy and well meaning but extremely suspicious of the British authorities in the province, a feeling kept alive by those who have objects of their own to serve and who surround their representatives. Discusses the question of the union of Upper and Lower Canada and how it would keep in check the ultra liberal party in the latter. The difficulty of prosecuting such papers as the Minerve and Vindicator , the persons who would form the jury not being likely to give a verdict against them. How Viger should be tested as to his entertaining the same feelings as Papineau.	215

October 17,	Quebec.	Aylmer to Goderich (private). Sends number of Neilson's Quebec Gazette, with an article entitled "The ensuing session of the provincial parliament of Lower Canada," which appears to point out the course which Neilson and the moderate party may take during the session. The gloomy anticipation of the finances have not been realized, and the revenue, as appears by the memorandum sent, has exceeded that of last year. Sends extracts from various papers. Great change taking place both in Upper and Lower Canada, and the British interest is gaining strength. A third and powerful party may be created, combining all that is respectable and talented amongst the French Canadians and the British established in the colony. The delicacy with which the prejudices and feelings of the French Canadians should be treated in such a case. Sends weekly report of emigrants.	167

October 24,	Quebec.	Aylmer to Goderich (private). Transmits article by de Bleury, threatening something not less than a civil war. It has not produced the desired effect, and it is likely that de Bleury and his party will confine themselves to their pens. Asks that the application to the Treasury for the necessary funds to accommodate the increased garrison at Montreal be supported. The works necessary. The amount will be about £700, and there will be a saving in the lodging allowance to officers. Sends article showing the little importance of the meetings held after the 21st May, which have been a great disappointment to their promoters. The approaching session will probably be productive of more violence than any former one, the violent party design to provoke a dissolution, but he does not intend to imitate their violence.	171

- November 1, Quebec. Enclosed. Schedule of enclosures and the correspondence. 206 to 214.
- Aylmer to Goderich (private). Has nothing to report worth mentioning. Emigration has nearly ceased, there being only 15 arrivals since the last report and the late ships have nearly all arrived. Active steps are being taken in Upper Canada to obtain possession of Montreal as a port of entry. This will probably check the Papineau party. 215

- November 13, Quebec. Aylmer to Goderich (No 92). The time has arrived for the adjustment of a new proportion of the duties collected at Quebec to be paid to Upper Canada. The Commissioners not having agreed on an umpire one must be selected by the British Government. The pretensions to an increased proportion of the duties shows the increasing wealth of that improving colony. 217

Opened the session and sends copies of the speech and of addresses from the Legislative Council and Assembly which last opened the session by expelling Christie, so that he had no opportunity of communicating the dispatch of 20th January on the subject of Christie, in fact has had but little opportunity to make any communication to the Assembly. Will send to the House documents relating to Christie and to other subjects. 229

		Aylmer to Goderich (private). His anticipations of violent language in the Assembly have been fulfilled. 		Aylmer to Goderich (No. 96). Had been directed to ascertain from the commanding officer of the Royal Engineers, the probable annual expense of maintaining the Rideau Canal after it was finished and communicate the same to the Assembly which is to be asked to undertake, with the Assembly of Upper Canada, the expense. Had since been instructed not to apply to the Assembly, but as the information might be necessary at some future time, had called on the Royal Engineers to furnish it as du Vernet has been called on for a similar statement respecting the canals at Grenville, Chute à Blondeau and Carillon, copies of which are transmitted. The expenditure is for ordinary management, not allowing for accidents. These would be small for the Ottawa Canals but the Rideau Canal is different. Description of its character and the difficulty of managing the water supply.	240

		Aylmer to Goderich (No. 97). The season of navigation being apparently over, he had caused an abstract to be prepared of the number of emigrants arrived at Quebec in 1832, the number being 51,700. Asks attention to be paid to article marked unofficial which shows the quantity of property brought.	258

November 28, Quebec.		The same to the same (No. 99). The various communications have made His Lordship familiar with the events of May last at Montreal and with the state of excitement produced. Whilst navigation is open an

- additional force could easily be obtained but with a view to order, the approach of winter makes this a serious consideration for the preservation of the property of the inhabitants. The uneasiness in Montreal lest advantage should be taken of the small garrison to disturb public tranquillity. The reinforcements he has provided are described. Page 270
- November 29, Quebec. Aylmer to Goderich (private). Since writing on the 24th, warm debates have taken place in the cases of Christie and Judge Kerr. Resolutions on the former have been withdrawn and he believes others of a more moderate description will be adopted. His anticipations of a stormy session have been more than fulfilled so that he may be compelled to prorogue the legislature in consequence of the unconstitutional course of the Assembly in expelling Mondelet. Papineau and his party feel that they are daily losing ground and that their only chance is to provoke a prorogation. His anxious exertions shall be employed to ward off this provided that can be accomplished without compromising the dignity of the Crown or the principle of the constitution. The disposition of the members from the townships to abandon Papineau's party and the good sense of the province shows a corresponding change of sentiment. 278
- November 29, Quebec. Enclosed. Extract from the Quebec Gazette. Q. 203-2. 572
- Aylmer to Goderich (No. 100.) Had established a communication with the Assembly. Appointment of Panet to the Council. When he was made a Judge Mondelet was appointed to act as intermediary but deprived of his seat in the Assembly although no such step was taken in the case of Panet. Resolution passed to expel Mondelet in spite of the fact that he receives no emolument as honorary member of the Executive Council. Has referred the question to the law officers of the Crown and on receiving their answer will call the Council together. 274
- December 1, Quebec. The same to the same (No. 101). Further respecting the expulsion of Christie. Sends copy of resolutions on dispatch from Goderich on the case of Kerr. The message respecting the supply bill was sent to the Legislative Council and Assembly but no steps have been taken on it by the Assembly. Asks for precise instructions as to the answer he is to make to the Assembly if applied to in the case of Judge Kerr. Has in the meantime sent His Lordship's dispatch which disapproves of the grounds of his refusal to comply with the request of the Assembly. Questions respecting Kerr referred to a committee. Has asked the House to take steps to repay the advance from the military chest. Other addresses &c. 280
- December 8, Quebec. Enclosed. Resolutions respecting the expulsion of Christie. 285
- Aylmer to Goderich (private). Nothing of great importance has passed in the Legislature during the previous week. The commission of King's Printer for the district of Montreal has been cancelled. The Royal Gazette in Quebec is restricted to publishing official notices, so that the step taken in Montreal is in accordance with this. 288
- Enclosed.* Extracts from newspapers Q 203-2 583 to 595 and 203-3. 596 to 638.

- Enclosed.* Aylmer to Lushington. Sends answers to questions (these are in parallel columns) respecting the removal of poor children to Canada. 291
- December 13, Quebec. Aylmer to Goderich (No. 103). The conditional offer of a seat in the Executive Council to Mr. Heney, law clerk of the Assembly, on condition of giving up the latter office, has been declined, as he desires to retain his office of law clerk. Regrets the loss of Heney's services. If the objection to his appointment to be Executive councillor arises from his holding office, the difficulty of filling vacant seats in the Council will be insurmountable, as if holding office is a bar to the Council it will be impossible to find indi-

Quebec. Aylmer to Goderich (private). The change in public opinion respecting political parties. He is trying to break up the influence of the contending parties that is the ultras on either side, which renders him obnoxious to both parties. If well supported has little doubt of seeing a new and better order of things grow out of the present troubled state of political affairs. Both the parties alluded to are sinking and respectable men coming forward; the Papineau party are still a majority composed of the most ignorant members with a few young lawyers of no experience but is deserted by all the most talented and respectable. The other party consists of persons seeking office, who have an interest in seeing the head of the government embroiled with the mass of the people, so that he may be thrown into their arms for support. This party has had more to say in the affairs of the country than is consistent with the true interests of His Majesty's government or of the province. 301

Quebec. Aylmer to Goderich (private). The Committee of Assembly engaged in the examination of witnesses regarding the events of the 21st May at Montreal; the eagerness of the party has produced no satisfactory result, the existence of a serious riot and the necessity for calling out the troops having been proved. In consequence of the expulsion of Mondelet from the Assembly because of his being appointed to the Executive Council, a question has been submitted to the judges and law officers of the Crown regarding the right assumed by the Assembly. Has received the answers which he will forward. Does not think the House will press for a decision by asking why the writ was withheld. The reasons for this forbearance. The bad policy of the party opposed to government. Report of meeting at Shefford favourable to government placed in a conspicuous part of Neilson's Gazette, which is remarkable as he has been heretofore distinguished among the opponents of the local government. 305

Quebec. Aylmer to Goderich (No. 105). In the case of Mondelet, expelled from the Assembly because he had accepted the honorary office of Executive Councillor, the judges, with one or two exceptions, decline to give an opinion as to the power of the Assembly to do so. The law officers of the Crown and King's Counsel agree that the Assembly does not possess the power it has assumed. History of the passage of the bill at various times since 1825, given in case it should be passed again and he be asked to recommend that it be assented to. The determination of the Assembly to enforce the terms of the bill, so that when the Executive government selects a member of the Assembly for office it will be exposed to a contest with the House. It is for His Majesty's government to decide if the evils of the bill are so formidable as to counterbalance the evils to be encountered in the agitation of a question of privilege. 316

Quebec. Aylmer to Goderich (private). The progress of the inquiry respecting the events at Montreal on the 21st May last. It is scarcely possible to say when it will terminate. Proof of the change in public opinion. 321

The proof of confidence in him shown by the freeholders of Gaspé in re-electing him for the sixth time. Government not being ready for the division of the diocese he has applied to the Archbishop of Canterbury for appointment of a suffragan bishop for Lower Canada. His wish for this is increased by there being a very fit person to fill the office, namely Rev Dr. Mountain. It would be desirable that he should retain his archdeaconry as by this arrangement there would be no need to ask pecuniary assistance for the bishop. Points out the exertions making to obtain signatures to a petition to appropriate the proceeds of the clergy reserves towards general education and miscellaneous improvements, the most active supporters of this being the Methodists of Upper Canada chiefly ordained in the United States. The petitioners have no doubt from the machinery at work that a more than ordinary number of signatures may be obtained; they have abstained from entering on such a contest as would be required for opposing successfully the agents of the self constituted committee. The petitioners pray that no effect be given to petitions so signed and support their prayer with minute details. 548

January 25, Quebec.	Aylmer to Goderich (No. 12). Has examined into the complaints made by Gough regarding the treatment of emigrants and thinks Gough is mistaken in his complaints. 233
	Enclosed. Routh to Glegg. Explains the probable cause of Gough's complaints in respect to the arrival and dealings with emigrants. 235
	Questions and answers put to and answered by emigrants. 245
	Answer by Buchanan, emigration agent, to charges by Gough about the treatment of emigrants on their arrival at Quebec. 246
	Patten to Buchanan. Gough's opinion of the province could only have been formed from what he read, not from anything he had seen. 251

January 26,
Quebec. Aylmer to Goderich (No. 13). In reference to the collection at Quebec of head money on emigrants sends copy of letter from collector and comptroller of customs there, describing the whole of the proceedings for the collection. Whatever irregularities exist cannot be attributed to the local authorities at Quebec. Page 253
- Enclosed. Collector and Comptroller of Customs, Quebec, to Craig. Explain the method of collecting head money at Quebec. 255
- January 28,
Quebec. Report by Felton. Enclosed in Aylmer to Goderich, 8th February, 1833.
- January 29,
Chatham. Du Vernet to Glegg. Enclosed in Aylmer to Howick, 5th February, 1833.
- January 30,
Quebec. Aylmer to Goderich (No. 14). Death of Ferrier, collector of customs at Quebec. Shall make arrangements for the office till His Majesty's pleasure be known. 257
- January 30,
Quebec. Aylmer to Goderich (private). Sends newspapers which will give an account of what has occurred during the past week. Calls attention to articles in the Quebec Gazette, showing that Neilson was not going with Papineau and his party in their course towards revolution, they have taken new ground their avowed object being to alter the whole constitution, desiring the abolition of the Council so that the whole power might be in the hands of the Assembly, and that whenever the governor shall be opposed to the will of the Assembly he should be at once removed. Papineau goes a step farther than de Bartzeh and holds that the office of governor should be elective. Apologises for taking up His Lordship's time with the rhapsodies of the party. The examination into the affair of the 21st May is going on in the Assembly. The report of the Finance committee is in the Mercury. 258
- January 31,
Quebec. Aylmer to Goderich. Defends himself against the charge of not securing the use of the Chambly Canal in exchange for land granted, the land having been dealt with in the Act of 1823, which would have required to be altered, causing great delay and the natural inquiry why the condition was not made long previously. 261
- February 1,
Terrebonne. Fraser to Glegg. Enclosed in Aylmer to Howick, 5th February, 1833.
- February 1,
Quebec. Aylmer to Goderich (No. 16). Sends requisition for Indian presents to complete the commissariat store for 1833 and 1834. They are to be divided into two shipments. 267
- Enclosed. Returns of Indian presents required. 268
- February 5,
Quebec. Aylmer to Howick. In answer to the desire of the Treasury for information whether further demands are likely to arise for lands taken for the Carillon canal; transmits correspondence. Does not possess sufficient local knowledge to form a correct judgment on Fraser's claim but refers to the documents. 269
- Enclosed. Schedule of correspondence. 271
- Memorial of Simon Fraser. States his services and the loss he has sustained by the construction of the canal. 272
- Du Vernet to Glegg. Has considered Fraser's claim and his idea of carrying water to his mill by a movable trough and points out the obstacles to its adoption. The loss from boating by the construction of the canal cannot be supported, as the boats were always hauled upon the other side. 274
- Couper to Durnford. Aylmer has no objection to compensation being made to Fraser by waste lands of the Crown, if any is awarded. 277
- Fraser to Du Vernet. Enters into details respecting the loss he has sustained by the construction of the Carillon canal. His intention to build a mill and his reason for postponement. He had petitioned for waste lands equal to the amount of the loss he had sustained as he thought he could be more easily paid in land than by money. 278

February 7, Quebec.	Aylmer to Goderich (private). The inquiry into the Montreal affair still going forward with little prospect of its termination. Doubts the passing of the bill for the independence of the judges. Their dependence on the Crown was once a favourite grievance, but Papineau and his party have turned round and now say the judges are not to be trusted, and they must be made dependent on the House for their salaries. Whatever circumstances may arise that party will always oppose government. Comments on newspaper extracts.	295

February 8, Quebec.	Aylmer to Goderich (No. 17). Sends report on the complaint of the Duke of Hamilton that the settlers from Arran did not obtain land. To continue grants similar to that made to the Duke of Hamilton's tenantry will operate injuriously to the interests of the Crown and be considered unjust by other settlers. The value of land in the province has increased, and will increase, by the arrival of new settlers and the operations of commerce, so that it may be considered by new arrivals a hardship that whilst they have to pay, others not possessing better claims should receive grants.	298
	Enclosed. Report by Felton on the Duke of Hamilton's settlers from Arran.	300
February 9, Quebec.	Aylmer to Howick. Sends all the equivalents for Indian words that he could obtain in the lower province. Shall send the others as soon as he can procure them.	304
February 11, Quebec.	The same to Goderich (No. 18). Has received dispatches by December mail, as by schedule annexed.	305

	Enclosed. Mandamus.	308
February 16, Quebec.	Aylmer to Goderich (private). Death of the Roman Catholic Bishop of Quebec. Sends newspapers. Calls attention to the article on the case of George Ryland accused of erasing a remark on an account book of the Jesuit estates on which an action against his father for defamation was founded. The action of the Assembly against George Ryland is due to enmity to his father on the part of some influential members. Calls attention to the answer published in one of the papers to the address for documents relating to the dismissal of the health officer at Quebec, who had been dismissed at the urgent recommendation of the Board of Health. The sufferer was a favourite with the party now having a majority in the Assembly and the production of the documents would afford a bad precedent in the case of future dismissals. Papineau and his party are prepared to go all lengths, except to draw the sword. If they did that they would not meet with support from the great bulk of the French Canadian population. If authorised the revenues subject to the Act of 14 George 3 might be

February 22, Quebec.	The same to the same (No. 21). Death of the Roman Catholic Bishop of Quebec. His successor Bishop Signay has taken the prescribed oaths.	330
February 23, Quebec.	The same to the same (private). Continuation of the inquiry into the Montreal affair of the 21st May not favourable to the party with whom it originated. The virulence of Papineau and his party increases as the prospect of ultimate defeat develops. Papineau threatens that no supply bill will pass this session, but whatever bill should pass would be so clogged with conditions as to assure its rejection by the Council. Sends letter from a gentleman in Montreal. It may be prudent to learn the proceedings in France of the individuals named. The design of the disaffected in the province is to effect a separation from the mother country, but they will use every artifice and do anything but take up arms. Intends to erase from the commission the name of Roy, the magistrate who issued the warrant against Colonel Mackintosh and Captain Temple after the grand jury had come to a finding.	331

GOVERNOR LORD AYLMER, 1833.

March 4, Quebec.	Aylmer to Goderich (No. 22). Has received dispatches according to schedule annexed.		Page 1
	Enclosed. Schedule.		2
March 5, Quebec.	Aylmer to Goderich (No. 23). In compliance with address transmits resolutions from the Assembly on the subject of the decision of arbitrators appointed under the Imperial Act. The Council agreed with these resolutions but declines to join the Assembly to ask for their transmission.		4
	Enclosed. Resolution of the Assembly to address the Governor asking him to forward resolutions on the subject of the relations between Upper and Lower Canada.		6
	Resolutions of the Assembly against the award of the arbitrators and protesting against the proposed annexation of Montreal and the county of Vaudreuil to Upper Canada.		7
	Speech of Hagerman on the annexation of Montreal to Upper Canada.		18
March 7, Quebec.	Aylmer to Goderich (private). Sends Quebec newspapers. His speech in Neilson's Gazette will show the inconvenience of a law respecting jurors. Shall write officially on the subject with comments on the bill from competent authority. Reminds him that he had mentioned receiving a letter from Papineau which he had treated as private but a copy of which is now asked for by the Assembly on the ground that Papineau as speaker is an authority to be consulted. The mischief caused by the overweening importance attached to the office of speaker and a tendency to lower the Executive government. The want of education on the part of the members of Assembly. It was to settle the question of the political importance of the speaker that he had noticed the letter of Papineau in his letter to the Assembly. The disappointment of the Assembly at the result of the inquiry into the affair at Montreal, it is now trying to bring about a rupture with the Executive Government in the hope of provoking prorogation without any real business being done. Is determined that no provocation shall induce him to prorogue till all the business is done. The members of the Assembly have placed themselves in a wrong position.		57

March 14, Quebec.	Aylmer to Goderich (private). Sends newspaper containing the proceedings of the Assembly of Lower Canada. Calls attention to a speech of Bourdages, maintaining the absolute supremacy of the Assembly. Several of the acts of that body evince the assumption of the executive as well as of the legislative functions. Sends copy of loyal address from Montreal signed by 15,000 of whom 14,500 have subscribed in their own hand writing. The supply bill is now being debated ; doubts if it will ever reach the Executive. The proceedings of the Assembly are becoming more violent and he is led to expect the members will declare they can no longer hold intercourse with the head of the provincial government because he refused to sign a writ for the election to the county of Montreal in place of Mondelet, unseated on the allegation that he had accepted the office of honorary Executive Councillor. Additional proofs that the dominant party wish to force on prorogation if not dissolution which only strengthen his determination not to give them that advantage. Everything shows that the party with Papineau at its head is no less distinguished for incapacity to legislate than for arrogant pretensions. The expressions in a letter from Taylor, the member for Missisquoi, regarding Papineau has been voted a libel and Taylor ordered to be imprisoned in the Quebec gaol for 24 hours, but, he understands, the speaker's order has not issued.

March 18, Quebec.	Aylmer to Goderich (private). Sends by Halifax petition of Assembly against a land company being established in Lower Canada. The petition arose from the predilection in favour of the seigniorial tenure ; the French Canadians view with alarm the number of British settlers who are coming into the province and wish to throw every obstacle in their way. The mixed motives of the opponents of the bill : their objectionable nature. A petition is in course of signature in favour of a land company.	91

March 20, Quebec.	Aylmer to Goderich (No. 27). Has received an address from the Assembly desiring to be informed of the reason for the delay in issuing a writ for the election of a member for Montreal to replace Mondelet, whose seat is vacant by accepting office. Submitted the question to the Council which declared the Assembly incompetent to vacate the seat of a member on his acceptance of office on the single authority of their own resolution. Sends answer to prove that their act is unconstitutional and not in accordance with those of the House of Commons. The course he has adopted has, he believes, prevented a violent outbreak in the Assembly calculated to force on prorogation in spite of his determination to the contrary. Is anxious to prolong it to give the lie to the report that he was desirous to make use of any pretext to dissolve the Assembly in order to stifle the inquiry into the events at Montreal of the 21st May, whereas all parties implicated in the charge are anxious for the fullest inquiry. Now believes that the party with which the inquiry originated is preparing for themselves a signal defeat and are desirous to escape by bringing about a prorogation. Sends resolutions of the Assembly on the question of the writs for a member to replace Mondelet as it shows the temper of the House. Page 107

Aylmer to Goderich (private). His apprehension that no supply bill is to be brought up this session will, he believes, be realized. This is embarrassing, but it must be provided for in some way or other and as the public service must suffer whilst the question is in suspense, he asks for instructions. Notwithstanding the appearance of large majorities for Papineau and his party the credit of the party is rapidly sinking so that a momentary stretch of authority would be viewed without alarm; the Treasury might appropriate the revenues raised under the Act 14 George 3 or if that be considered objectionable, the sum might be advanced from the Military chest by way of loan. Has not seen the proposed supply bill, but if the means of carrying on the government of the country are to depend on an annual vote, under the influence of the present ruler of the Assembly, the task will become impracticable. Cannot venture to suggest a remedy. No good can be expected from a dissolution at present, he would sooner trust to time and reflection on the part of the people or even to the chapter of accidents. The same to the same (No. 29). Transmits address from the Assembly to make the Legislative Council elective. Resolutions to the same effect were rejected in previous sessions and the present vote may have been carried by the influence caused by the excitement of the Montreal affair. The great detriment such a change would be to the province. Will not defend the Council, as he believes that body will ably do that in a petition which he hears is in preparation, summarising the charges brought against the governors; and utterly denies the truth of these so far as his own

March 29,	Aylmer to Goderich (No. 30). His anticipations respecting the supply bill realised, as it has been thrown out by the Council. How it is to be supplied, suggests that the Act 1 and 2, William 4, cap. 23, gives the power to the Treasury to appropriate the revenues raised by 14 George 3, cap. 88. Has called for legal opinions on the point. Believes if the appropriation is agreed to that notwithstanding the clamour in the House there are strong evidences that the public at large is prepared for the appropriation. Sends memorandum of receipts and expenditure of Lower Canada, showing the receipts to be not only sufficient for civil services but leaving a surplus. Other remarks.	245

March 30, Quebec.	Aylmer to Goderich (private). The events of the present session have inflamed the spirit of political party. March 31, Quebec.	Aylmer to Goderich (separate). Sends address from inhabitants of Montreal mentioned in his private letter of 14th instant, in which he committed an error in the number signing. On examination the number was found to be 7,708, all but 215 of whom signed these latter marked the address with a cross. A more respectably signed address was never sent from Lower Canada.	356

April 5, Quebec.	Aylmer to Goderich (No. 33). Sends copy of address from the Council; the original shall be sent by way of Halifax. It may be considered an answer to that lately sent from the Assembly accompanied by observations of his own which bear a strong analogy to the address from the Council which is the more remarkable as he had no communication on the subject with any one connected with that body. Yet it appears to him that parts of Council's address are calculated to produce an evil effect, especially the reference to the establishment of a French republic in the province and the word alarming cannot be justly applied to its actual state. Page 362

Enclosed. Address from the Council. 365

Aylmer to Goderich (private). Sends alphabetical list of the names and professions of members of the Assembly; of 86 members 29 belong to the profession of the law. This large proportion is caused by the ignorance of the mass of the population, which exposes them to be acted upon by persons of education. With few exceptions these 29 are under the influence of Papineau and the majority of the members are ignorant and full of prejudice. 377

Enclosed. Alphabetical list of members of the Assembly of Lower Canada. 379

April 6,
Quebec.

Aylmer to Goderich (private). Directs attention to articles in Neilson's Gazette, which he transmits. Neilson belongs to what may be called the moderate party, which is daily gaining ground. The proceedings of last session is favourable to this, as the majority of the House under the influence of Papineau showed clearly that nothing would satisfy them but complete control of the Executive. Their prejudice, violence and ignorance demonstrated the danger of giving up the affairs of the province to their management. The excitement in the House of Assembly does not extend far beyond its walls and not to its towns or rural districts. The term excitement is used to denote hostility to His Majesty's government, but there is a counter excitement favourable to it. His fear is that this may create a breach between the Canadians of French and those of British and American origin. It shall be his earnest endeavour to counteract the evil effects of such a breach by strict impartiality, the more necessary now as the British party, grown bolder, exhibit a determination no longer to submit to the French party. If government acts with firmness unmindful of the clamours of the Assembly or their agent Viger—or rather the agent of Papineau—authority will be established and quietly submitted to. In fact the question now is: shall the power of the State in the province be exercised by the King's representative or by the Assembly under Papineau's directions? The practical effect is for the Treasury to appropriate Canada's share of the revenue raised by the Act 14 George 3 for the service of the current year. Still believes that the people are prepared for this proceeding in consequence of the rejection of the supply bill by the Council. 383

Quebec. Aylmer to Goderich (No. 38). The principles laid down with regard to the sale of Crown lands shall be strictly attended to, therefore he calls attention to the practice of making gratuitous grants of land to discharged soldiers and commuted pensioners. Points out the evils caused and recommends that gratuitous grants should be done away with, the discharged soldiers and pensioners to receive an equivalent in money or the same principle applied to them as to the officers, that is, they should get credit for the grants in the purchase of Crown lands. The want of qualification for a farm life in most of the soldiers and pensioners. Effect of grants on reducing the price of Crown lands, but, as instructed, he shall try to keep up the price. 415

Quebec. Aylmer to Goderich (No. 41). Had recommended to the Legislative Council and Assembly the subject of a metallic currency to replace that in use. The Assembly does not appear to have considered the question but the Council did so and the result is contained in the report sent. Agrees with the Council and recommends that copper halfpennies be sent out to the amount of £5,000 and circulated by means of the commissariat. The report of the Council as to the value of the halfpennies will serve as a guide. Sends specimens of the present currency one being a regimental button of the Royal Fusiliers. 432

Quebec. Aylmer to Goderich (private). Sends Quebec newspapers and calls attention to articles in Neilson's Gazette and in the Montreal Gazette. Introduces Le Canadien which has been two years in existence and is distinguished for hostility to His Majesty's government and everything British in the colony; it may be considered the official organ of Papineau and his party. The Assembly has separated without having accomplished anything of utility; their time has been wasted on the investigation of the affair at Montreal; is still sanguine that good will come out of the late session and that the people will discover that their interests have been sacrificed to the gratification of party feelings. 437

Quebec. Aylmer to Goderich (No. 42). In accordance with dispatch, Christie has been informed that if the inhabitants of Gaspé wish to be annexed to New Brunswick, they must petition both Houses of Parliament. 440

April 23, Quebec.	Aylmer to Goderich (No. 44). Transmits report on the Bonaventure petition against the annexation of Gaspé to New Brunswick; resolutions passed at different meetings expressive of attachment to Lower Canada are attached to the report. The Assembly considers these as expressing the general sense of the inhabitants but it is evident it regards only one side as re-olutions diametrically opposite have been adopted in the same districts and from the repeated elections of an individual who has taken the most active part in getting up the latter it may fairly be inferred that his views regarding annexation to New Brunswick are countenanced by a large proportion of the inhabitants. The opinion of the House of Assembly must be received with extreme caution. There is so much party feeling mixed up with the question that it is difficult to find out the real sentiments of the people.	444

April 24, Quebec.	Aylmer to Goderich (private). Shall send report on the land company in Lower Canada as soon as he can collect and arrange the information. The news of its establishment received with satisfaction by the English party in Quebec; in the townships it will be particularly acceptable. His Lordship will see by various documents that the subject possesses great interest for Lower Canada. Sends copies of late newspapers. In Neilson's Gazette is the report of a meeting expressive of the opinions of the English part of the population of Quebec. A meeting of Canadians of French origin is appointed at which counter resolutions will, of course, be adopted. Regrets these meetings as they foster national prejudices and he would willingly have both parties to abstain but that is impossible in the present state of political feeling. He is determined to steer clear of both parties. Calls attention to various newspaper articles. Sees no reason to apprehend any interruption to public tranquillity.	508

- May 2, Quebec. Aylmer to Goderich (private). The correspondence respecting the land company is in the hands of the Commissioner of Crown Lands and the Surveyor General. A map is in course of preparation which will show the lands disposable and the prices as settled by himself and the Commissioner of Crown Lands on behalf of the Crown and McGill on behalf of the land company. Is afraid that with all diligence the settlement of the land cannot begin this season, but this is of less consequence than the political effect of the establishment of a land company, an outcry having been raised against it by a party in Lower Canada, and the newspaper organ of that party is calling on the people to assemble to petition against it; on the other hand the step has given great satisfaction to the English party which is increasing in numbers and importance. Sends copies of late newspapers with the articles marked. The public mind in Lower Canada is tranquil and if the revenue raised under 14 George 3 and other revenues unquestionably disposable by the Crown are appropriated for the service of the Crown in Canada there will be no mischief. The proceedings of the Assembly are generally disapproved of in the country. It is the most opportune moment for adopting the plan he has proposed. Page 7

Aylmer to Goderich (No. 52). The Council having rejected the supply bill, the financial question is again brought up for consideration. Transmits the answers of the law officers on the subject. Had refrained from asking the judges for their opinions there being considerations of a political tendency in the bill. The law officers consider that the duties collected under 14 George 3 and some others are especially appropriated for the support of a civil government and may be so applied, independent of the legislature. Summary of the revenues arising from the sources mentioned, which are sufficient to defray the necessary expenditure. In that case the grant of supply during the sovereign's reign or for any other period is unnecessary unless the sources of revenue should prove inadequate. Does not believe that the arrangement for supply, if the price paid were the abandonment of the duties collected under 14 George 3, would relieve the embarrassment to which Government is now annually exposed. 94

Enclosed. Query submitted to the law officers of the Crown respecting the appropriation of the money levied under 14 George 3, cap. 88. 101

Ogden to Craig. Is of opinion that the money collected under the authority of 14 George 3, cap. 88, is at the disposal of the Treasury and may be applied for the administration of justice and the support of the civil administration of the province. 102

Sorel. a subject of deep interest to the governor of Lower Canada by New York. 126August 19, The same to Stanley (No. 77). Has received dispatches on various subjects Sorel. which he will classify and on which he will remark. They are (1) The expulsion of Mondelet from the Assembly. (2) The rejection of the bill of supply by the Council. (3) The petitions from the Assembly and Council relative to the Constitution and composition of the Legislative Council. His gratification at receiving approval of his course in refusing to sign a writ for the election of a member to replace Mondelet. His conviction of the correctness of his opinion as to the unconstitutional power assumed by the Assembly, which seemed to be guided by no fixed principles. Instances given. The question of the finances and the proposal of His Majesty's government to the House of Assembly that it should grant a civil list of £19,500 a year for the King's life or for some definite period and in return to place the revenue under 14 George 3, cap 88, at the disposal of the legislature of the province. A message to that effect was sent, but it resulted in a petition of grievances embracing every subject that could be brought forward against the provincial government but without referring to the financial question. His remarks in forwarding the petition. No communication was made to him on the subject of the message respecting the supply for the life of the King, but a search of the journals of the House showed that a committee had reported that it was inexpedient to make further permanent provision for the expenses of government. Reduced civil list presented but also rejected, so that the supply bill was reserved but sanctioned by the King to avoid the inconvenience to which the public officers and service would have been exposed. Further history of financial attempts, showing that there was no hope of any permanent civil list, however small, or for any time, however limited, besides which the Assembly asserts complete control of the whole of the revenues of the province, even of those of which the Crown has the disposal. This control by the King is the sheet anchor of His Majesty's government in the province. Review of the 1st and 2nd William 4, cap. 23. On receipt of dispatch of 6th June, he assembled the Executive Council to consider and report the most eligible mode of apportioning the limited means at the disposal of the provincial government for the expenses of the public service. Sends report on the subject. The difficulties the Executive Council anticipate at the close of the fiscal year. The petition from the Legislative Council and Assembly in regard to the constitution and composition of the Council springs from the unbounded pretensions of the Assembly, which have already deranged and, if not successfully resisted, must inevitably destroy the balance of the constitution of the province. Petition from Christie represents that he has been expelled from the House of Assembly and praying that measures may be taken to have him reinstated. 339

- November 4, Quebec. Aylmer to Stanley (No. 91). Transmits answer by Capt. Reid to the charge that passengers arriving at the quarantine of Grosse Isle were exposed to certain hardships. Is pleased to be able to bear testimony to the indefatigable zeal, intelligence and ability of Capt. Reid in the arduous office. The complaint that the detention is caused by interested motives is wholly destitute of foundation. 350
Enclosed. Reid to Craig. States the unfounded nature of the accusations brought by Green against the quarantine officers. If a boat was swamped and the baggage injured, that was the fault of the officers and crew of the vessels. 352
- November 4, Quebec. Aylmer to Stanley (No. 92). Had answered inquiry whether additional claims would be made for damages to proprietors for land taken for the Carillon Canal, now sends memorial stating the inconvenience caused by the delay in settling. 355

- November 26, Quebec. Aylmer to Stanley (No. 96). Sends letter from the Bishop of Quebec with reference to the evening lectureship at Montreal under instructions from the Secretary at War. - December 7, Quebec. The same to the same (No. 98). The legislature is called together and will meet on the 7th of next month. The supply bill for the year ending in October will be submitted, but he cannot say with what result and his anticipations are anything but sanguine of the Assembly voting the sum necessary to relieve the present difficulties. No appearance of settling the financial questions. The party opposed to the measures of His Majesty's government has lost ground in the public estimation. Refers to previous dispatches on the subject. 397
- December 11, Quebec. The same to the same (No. 99). Transmits report from the commissioner of Crown Lands on the subject of Widow Campbell's demand for 150 acres of cleared land. The statement concurred in by Mrs. Campbell's agent is so clear as to render further explanation unnecessary. 405

Can give no opinion as to the value of Bouchette's services during the war, they having been long before his assumption of government. As to his services in preparing the map, &c., he had leave of absence in 1815 and from 1829 to 1832, on the latter occasion having his second clerk with him, who was his own son, reducing the staff by one half. It would be difficult and unsafe to limit with precision what is and ought to be the power of the House, but it has no right by resolution only to restrict electors in their choice or to disqualify candidates. - Stephen to Hay. In reference to the conditions attached to items in the supply bill, some are unprecedented in point of form, many without precedent in substance. Grants are invariably embodied in distinct enactments instead of being attached in the shape of notes to the items. By adhering to the usual form discussion would have been invited under each head to a distinct consideration in the different stages. Certain conditions were not unconstitutional, of which examples are given. On the other hand there are conditions which would introduce changes in the law by the decision of a single branch of the Legislature. Page 111

- Gould to Stanley. Sends information respecting Lower Canada at this critical period. All persons connected with Canada will confirm the truth of the assertions. 285
- Enclosed.* Extract from letter from Quebec. No useful bill passed during the long session. It is no credit to the governor or Council that the infamous members indemnity bill passed. The Council has objected to so much bad legislation, that the leaders of the Assembly wish the Council abolished and an elective one substituted which would be a mere office for the registration of the Acts of the Assembly and the whole powers of the government would centre in the representatives elected by an uninformed people. Further reflections on the duty of the government not to tolerate the state of things that exists. 286

An application has been made to Palmerston by the United States chargé d'affaires for leave to Barry to examine documents in the state paper office for the history of the United States. The whole matter is therefore referred to Stanley. 89

Colonial Secretary is to say that he will give the association a million acres at a reasonable price in such provinces as shall be fixed by a deputation and the government officers of the colony in which the land shall be selected and also that facilities shall be given for obtaining a charter. The deputation shall be selected when an official answer is received. It would not be satisfactory to close for a tract without a report being made as to its eligibility. The nature of the information to be obtained. Suggestion that if possible land should be obtained between Montreal and the United States

Ottawa, in the Midland district, West of McNab's settlement, but the cost would be greater than settling the emigrants either in New Brunswick or

- December 3. Barrow to the same. Transmits copies of correspondence relative to the Admiralty. naval establishments on the lakes; the Admiralty submit to Stanley the expediency of breaking up the establishment. The expense caused by the pay of the establishment and by the waste of perishable stores. Afraid of a false impression being created by the sudden withdrawal of the establishment, it was resolved only to cease to repair the ships and to leave the commodore without a second ship, except the schooner which bears his pennant.
No injurious consequence has arisen from the discontinuance of repairs to the fleet which, in fact, has now ceased to exist. The example indeed, was set by the United States and to follow it would be to remove one cause of jealousy and not to diminish the means of defence which are increased by the construction of the Rideau Canal. How the Lords of the Admiralty purpose to break up the establishment, leaving to Commodore Barrie discretionary powers as to the disposal of the ships and stores. Only the small number of people necessary to take care of the buildings is to be left.
If Stanley concurs Barrie will be instructed accordingly. 17

- Enclosed.* Extract from a letter from Montreal. The writer prefers the annexation of Montreal to Upper Canada to the union of the two provinces, has no doubt the question will be wisely decided in the hands of Stanley and Ellice, if they devote sufficient time to its consideration, but it is to the want of proper investigation that unwise decisions are sometimes come to at the Colonial office. Affairs cannot remain as they are in Lower Canada without great detriment and if union is determined on why should it be delayed beyond the time necessary for considering the details. 388

ATTORNEY GENERAL STUART'S LETTERS, 1831 TO 1833.

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 18

February 24,
London. Galt to Goderich. Had sent report and prospectus of the British American Land Company. The subscription list had so far advanced that a deputation had been appointed to wait on His Lordship to ascertain the views of government. It is intended to begin first in the Eastern townships but the company does not wish to pledge itself to any particular district. Their annual payments might be appropriated as a fund for emigration, and although it would be for the advantage of the company to make their lands as accessible as possible, yet there were courthouses, schoolhouses bridges &c., strictly public, towards which a portion of the company's payments might be applied. If further information is desired His Lordship is requested to signify this. Page 3
- March 7,
London. The same to the same. The conditions as to the payments for the land and that a portion should be applied to improvements are satisfactory. Until the clergy reserves are sold they will be a cause of dissatisfaction. 19
- March 24,
London. Outline of what the British American Land Company may require. 21
Galt to Goderich. The committee of the British American Land Company desire to have the letter His Lordship promised on the point discussed with the deputation. 24
- March 30,
London. The same to Howick. The committee of the British American Land Company is satisfied with the liberty given the company to deal for Crown lands and Crown Reserves, but regrets that Goderich had fixed two years instead of five for the valuations for even at the end of five it can only be a speculative valuation. 25
- April 6,
London. The same to the same. The shareholders of the British American land company at a meeting were so determined on obtaining an extension of time for the valuation that a deputation was appointed to wait on Goderich. Desires to know when it would be convenient to receive the deputation. 27
- April 9,
London. The same to the same. Sends copy of the report of the provisional committee of the British American land company. 28
Enclosed. Report. 29
- Resolution of the meeting of shareholders that the report be adopted but they consider that the time fixed for the valuation is too limited and should be extended. 40
- April 11,
London. Galt to Howick. Instead of successive valuations as proposed, the shareholders would prefer to take up a specific quantity of land at a definite price, and he makes an offer, subject to ratification, to purchase 500,000 acres at three shillings an acre, with three terms of payment. Proposes to confer on any points requiring explanation. 41
- April 12,
London. The same to the same. Cannot have a meeting to name a deputation for Saturday but he will call on that day to receive an explanation of the terms proposed, which differ so much from those he (Galt) was authorized to make. 44
- April 16,
London. The same to the same. Propositions for the acquisition of land made by the British American land company on points not previously satisfactory. 45
Memorandum of conversation between Howick and Galt. 47
Copy of Howick's memorandum to Galt. 49
- April 18,
London. Galt to Howick. As government would not be under control of the committee of the British American land company in respect to the application of a moiety of the purchase money, the committee has abandoned the proposal as will be seen by enclosed resolutions. 50
Enclosed. Resolutions. 51
- April 28,
London. Galt to Howick. Has prepared proposed heads of agreement with the British American Land Company. Recollecting the delay in respect to the negotiations with the Canada Company, suggests that the minutes be made the subject of private consideration before being made official. 52
Enclosed. Minutes of agreement. 54

May 5,
London. Galt to Howick. The shareholders having agreed to the terms contained in His Lordship's letter, notice has been given of an intention to apply to Parliament for a charter. Page 63
- April 16,
London. The same to the same. Sends copy of the bill to incorporate the land company. 64
- May, 24,
London. Enclosed. Copy of the bill. 65 to 103
Galt to Howick. There is some technical objection to the bill for the British American Land Company and he has been desired to request that an interview might be granted to a deputation, Monday would be the most convenient day. 104
- May 31,
London. The same to the same. Asks for an interview with Goderich according to former application. 105
- June 4,
London. The same to the same. The object of the directors of the British American Land Company seeking an interview was to ascertain the obstacle that had arisen to the introduction of the bill to which government had promised to make no objection, as it will be difficult to explain to the shareholders without definite information. 106
- June 9,
London. The same to the same. The directors as soon as they have decided the proper course to be adopted will communicate their decision. 108
- June 28,
London. The same to the same. The directors of the land company will under the circumstances stated, suspend their parliamentary proceedings, and ask for a charter of which copy of that proposed is sent. 109
- June 30,
London. The same to the same. To save time asks for an interview respecting the agreement for the land company. 111
- July 30,
London. The same to the same. Sends for the consideration of Goderich proposed charter of the land company, which, when finally approved of by Goderich, will be submitted to the shareholders before being engrossed. 112
Enclosed. Proposed charter of the British American Land Company. 113
- August 18,
London. Gould to Goderich. In view of the approaching interview, sends notes on the proposed charter, respecting the capital and the objects of the company, the quantity of land and the price, which the directors desire, should, when once fixed, be the minimum rate for which lands should be sold to other companies or to individuals. 160
- August 24,
London. Galt to the same. The directors regret that government adheres to the determination expressed in Howick's letter of 23rd April. The changed circumstances led them to hope for more indulgent consideration. The directors find themselves compelled to relinquish the project, which they cannot pursue except on such terms as they can reconcile to their own judgment. Submits modified propositions. Those parts recited which have been agreed to. Further to limit their operations in the first place to Lower Canada and not to begin in other provinces without the consent of the King in Council. Instead of 500,000 acres at an undetermined price payable in ten years, they proposed to take in the surveyed parts of the province 1,000,000 acres at three shillings Halifax currency payable in fifteen years by instalments and 500,000 acres in the unsurveyed country or in another province. A settlement is urged owing to the cost of delay. 167
- August 25,
London. The same to Howick. Sends letter containing matters of vital interest to the company on the authority of letter from Viger that the company had been refused a charter. Supposes this can be explained and presumes that the report of non-incorporation refers to the Act of Parliament and not to the charter. 171
Enclosed. Extract from a newspaper in French. 172
- August 31,
London. Galt to Howick. The directors cannot assent to the terms of the letter of 23rd April, in respect to leaving the price of the land to be fixed by the local authorities. They offer three shillings sterling an acre for 500,000 acres and for the land according to the terms of the letter of 23rd April.

September 7,
London.

Galt to Howick The directors are surprised at His Lordship's statement that the information was not at hand that could show there was enough of land in Lower Canada to be disposed of advantageously to the company, as they had thought the Report of Richard and the opinion of the Surveyor General had been sufficient. The condition and price had been agreed to and nothing remained that could not be easily settled. The directors believe their offer is highly advantageous to government, merely as a mercantile transaction and they trust that His Lordship in consideration of its public utility will comply if possible with their reasonable request.

Gould to Howick. The desire to improve both the Canadas; the effort to establish the land company which cannot be supported unless there is a profit on the investment. The discouraging report sent by Viger by which the company lost the pecuniary support of all the shareholders in the Canadas, particularly by the time Viger's misrepresentations had been allowed to work. Does not think 500,000 acres sufficient to work upon for such an undertaking, but he is willing to try, rather than give up the hope of the great utility of the undertaking, as emigration cannot be stopped. The emigrant he hopes will remain a British subject and a consumer of British goods and this deserves the highest consideration of government.

September 22,
London.

Galt to the same. The directors of the land company do not seek to enter into a controversy. The difference between them and Goderich appears to be his thinking they were offering for detached lots instead of for blocks of land, which are of indefinite size the lots being considered to be of 200 acres each. Their offer was for 500,000 acres in one or more blocks as nearly as possible contiguous.

Gould to Goderich. Sends extract from letter from Quebec which agrees in opinion with two letters which lately appeared in the Morning Herald. Regrets that there is a prospect of the British American land company being broken up, as this will be done with the greatest reluctance by the directors. It would be premature to refer to the opening up of the navigation of the St. Lawrence to the United States. 213

March 8, London. Reid to Howick. The shareholders of the British American land company accede to the terms of His Lordship's letter of the 5th. 230
April 3, London. The same to Lefevre. The directors in reference to the acceptance of the terms in Howick's letter of the 5th instant, desire to know if the governor of Lower Canada has been called on to report. 231
July 26, London. The same to Hay. Now that government is in possession of full information, the directors of the land company ask for an interview to see if an equitable arrangement cannot be arrived at. 232
July 29, London. Resolution of a committee of the directors of the land company. They cannot recommend the directors to accept Stanley's offer the land not being situated as expected. To obtain as near an approximation as possible to the company's views, the committee recommend that the directors endeavour to obtain all the Crown reserves and other surveyed Crown lands amounting to almost 495,000 acres as well as the 500,000 offered in Stanley's letter. 233

MR. VIGER'S LETTERS, 1831 TO 1833.

(Part 1 is paged from 1 to 264; part 2 from 265 to 523; part 3 from 524 to 748; part 4 from 749 to 996; part 5 from 997 to 1227; part 6 from 1228 to 1521; part 7 from 1522 to 1753; part 8 from 1754 to 1957.)

Q. 214.—1-2-3-4-5-6-7-8.

July 11, London.	Viger to Goderich. Recapitulates what took place at the last interview on certain petitions, and asks for another to consider two additional petitions, especially that respecting the Attorney General.	Page 5

August 19, London.	Viger to Goderich. Has received His Lordship's letter. Will use all diligence to answer Stuart's defence.		27
August 23, London.	The same to Hay. (See letter to Goderich, 27th). Has received letter and printed papers, one containing Stuart's petition and memorial, the other his correspondence with the governor's secretary, Samson's petition, &c. There are only observations on the second and third reports, but nothing on the first. Asks if he is to conclude that Stuart sees no neces-

- 1831.
- August 27, London. sity to answer it, or that his observations have been omitted to be sent. In the latter case asks that that answer be forwarded to him that he may treat the different subjects in their order. Page 29
- August 29, London. Viger to Goderich. Illness has prevented him from concluding his supplementary remarks on the subjects discussed at his interviews with His Lordship. He is now occupied with Stuart's memorial, but there are some matters relating to the grievances on which he has collected observations which he does not consider it proper to delay until he can send something better if circumstances and want of time do not present obstacles. If His Lordship's occupations give him time he wishes to give at the same time a word of explanation. He had written to Hay, but had received no answer pointing out that Stuart had in his memorial taken no notice of the first report on grievances. It is difficult for him to believe that Stuart does not think it necessary to answer that part of the complaints, but he does not wish to be reproached for not pointing out this defect, and he had observed to Hay that it was proper to treat the different subjects in their order. 31
- September 12, London. The same to Hay. Had received his letter; the views of Goderich are the same as his (Viger's) to advance, as quickly as possible, the discussion of the affair. The complaints of the Assembly are founded on the three reports of the committee of grievances appointed to inquire into the conduct of Stuart. All the documents collected by Stuart relate to the third report, the rest of the memorial relates to the second report. Had learned from letter that Stuart intended to fill up the gap he (Viger) has pointed out. He (Viger) desired to use all diligence towards the examination and discussion of this affair which has been complicated by Stuart. To treat the subjects separately would involve delay, but he would apply himself with all the diligence possible. 34
- September 14, London. The same to the same. Apologises for not acknowledging on Saturday receipt of his answer. He desired to avoid rather than to raise obstacles. Desires to assure Goderich that he does not dread discussion and has no desire to add to delays, but desires to put an end to labour of a kind to which duty alone could engage him. To form an idea of the time necessary for the work it should be known that the memorial is 64 pages folio printed in rather small type which includes a great variety of subjects complicated with new considerations to which he must attend whatever his personal opinions. He will use all possible diligence without precipitation. 36
- September 17, London. The same to Goderich. Reminds His Lordship of his request for an interview. Since then other communications had been received, some of which added to the motives which led him to ask for an interview. 38
- September 24, London. The same to Hay. Acknowledges receipt of letter, fixes on Monday at 2 o'clock for an interview. 39
- September 24, London. "Observations relatives à quelques uns de griefs de l'Assemblée du Bas Canada énoncés dans son adresse en 1831." The observations are divided into separate parts. The first is entitled "Education." 40 to 61
The second "Concessions of Crown Lands." 62 to 77
- September 27, London. Viger to Goderich. The young gentleman who does his writing was only able that morning to finish the first part of his observations. The work on the second part is well advanced. It is natural he should desire a copy of the finished paper as he has only sketches, but he will be ready to hand over what is already done next week if His Lordship signifies he desires it. He will continue to work so as to finish the second part without delay, asks leave to have a few copies of the memorial to send to the Assembly, if none have been already sent to the governor. Had proposed to state this to His Lordship if he had not been afraid of imposing on his complaisance. 78
- September 27, London. The same to Hay. Has had note that Goderich will receive him on Thursday next; he will attend at the time indicated. 80

September 28, London. Viger to Goderich. Had begun work on Stuart's memorial the moment he received it, the obstacles to a rapid completion of the task of discussing the memorial which would have been even longer had he been obliged to discuss the opinions contained in the memorial. Page 81

Observations. Preliminary remarks. 86
First part. 108
Second part. 167
(The observations are so long and enter into so much detail, that it is impossible to summarise them in any moderate space.)
- October 8, London. Viger to Goderich. Has sent additional observations as requested. They are on that part of the memorial to which Stuart has given most attention. He (Viger) would have wished to contract some of his remarks so as not to swell his own work too much. He has already explained why he cannot think lightly on subjects that concern the writer of the memorial. Will endeavour to complete the remainder of the observations as soon as possible. 215
Continuation of the observations on Stuart's memorial. 216
- October 29, London. Viger to Goderich. At his last interview had called attention to the measures that Parliament could adopt to regulate the commerce of the empire which might affect the colonies. The subject is connected with that of the third of the articles of the address of the Assembly of Lower Canada of 16th March. Had already submitted remarks on the first two. Had sketched remarks on the third, but was desirous to retouch them. After His Lordship writes he could not delay sending them as they are and hopes they will not be found unworthy of notice. 263
Considerations relative to the third of the grievances enumerated by the Assembly in the address of 16th March, 1831. 265
- October 31, London. Viger to Hay. Received his letter late on Saturday night with printed copy of documents from Stuart to be added to his memorial. The translation of his (Viger's) observations has been begun and is continued with activity; it will take yet from two to three weeks, as he has been informed. He has finished his observations on the memorial and is engaged with the appendix. The remarks on Nos. 1 to 15 have been already sent to His Lordship. The delay caused by having copies made; will now take up the rest of the report made to Kempt. How he intends to employ himself. 275
The same to Goderich. On Saturday or such other day thereafter as His Lordship may appoint, he will be ready to hand in another part of the observations. He will as soon as possible have the observations prepared on the different documents forming an appendix to the memorial. 214
- November 2, London. The same to Hay. He was obliged to take time to gain some fair idea of a work so considerable as Stuart's new production referred to in his (Hay's) letter of Saturday. In consequence of the inconvenience to the province caused by the absence of the Attorney General, Goderich desires to have observations on Stuart's memorial within a fortnight. Sends some considerations selected from many others. 278
(The letter is dated 2nd September, but that is apparently a mistake.)
- November 3, London. Viger to Goderich. Could have added many things to his letter, but knew how valuable was His Lordship's time. Asks for a short interview. 283
- November 4, London. The same to Hay. Thanks for letter. He has at heart the desire to comply with the views of Goderich in using all diligence to complete his work. 285
- November 8, London. The same to Goderich. Reminds His Lordship of his request for an interview at which he intended to present his observations on the affidavits contained in Stuart's memorial. 286

November 8,
London. Viger to Goderich. Is taking measures to have the translation made of his observations that His Lordship wishes for. This will explain why he has not been able to send another part of his observations which has been ready for some days. He would even have desired to revise some of his observations as he had received new information in regard to two of the grievances stated by the Assembly on the 16th March. A little more time is necessary to enable him to offer His Lordship a work worthy of notice. Asks that attention be paid to his observations on Crown lands which he has been requested to urge should be placed under the control of the legislature as the only method of making them profitable as well as beneficial to the province. Remarks on the coincidences in his letters to Goderich, and in those received from Quebec. After his explanations by letter and viva voce does not think it necessary to comment on extracts he has given. Sends further extracts with remarks on the mutual interest of the Mother Country and the colony which would be best served by agreeing to the propositions of the Assembly. The letter is of some length.

- Observations on Stuart's memorial. Remarks on the appendix, with summaries of affidavits, &c. 303
- November 23,
London. Viger to Hay. His hope to finish the observations on the appendix to Stuart's memorial in a fortnight or three weeks had been fulfilled, and these on the report to Kempt would have been sent but for the mistake of his amanuensis. Has also completed those on the new affidavits. Progress of remarks on the other parts of the work—the translation, &c. 359
- December 12,
London. The same to Howick. Gives his reasons for delay in answering letter, which required particular observations. 361
- December 12,
London. The same to Goderich. Remarks in the letter from Howick requiring some explanation, asks for a short interview. 369
- December 19,
London. The same to Howick. In reference to His Lordship's letter, his remarks on the first part of Stuart's answer to the commissioners would have been already at the Colonial office, but for the trouble caused by the translation and printing. Thinks he will finish his work in a fortnight or three weeks. Stuart's statements and appendix in the second part require close attention to discuss them, so that he cannot fix the precise time for finishing, but after he has finished the first, he thinks a few days will be sufficient to prepare a sketch of the discussion of the second part, when he might be able to give an idea of the time necessary to finish. Does not understand the difficulties felt by Goderich but as they exist he must give attention to each part of Stuart's answers as if he felt serious difficulties. Sometimes an interview produces more effect than writing. 370
- December 24,
London. The same to Howick. Sends two additional sheets of the translation of his observations. As soon as the work is complete, he shall have as many copies as are wanted. 373
- No date. The same to Goderich. Additional observations on a letter with affidavits from Stuart. 374

- January 6,
London. The same to the same. Has sent to Goderich the part of the observations completed. Will continue work on the rest of Stuart's letter. 428

- May 19,
London. Viger to Howick. Sends three copies of his first observations on Stuart's memorial. For the second he is waiting till the whole be printed but if Goderich wishes to have the sheets already printed of the second observations he will send to the printer for them. 831
- May 22,
London. The same to Goderich. Sends letter respecting the report of the committee of Assembly on Green's affidavit. Has received communications of interest especially respecting reserved bills on which he desires an interview. Had also received a memorial from Thomas Coffin a member of the Legislative Council which he was asked to recommend. 832
- May 23,
London. The same to the same. Observations on Stuart's memorial. 833
- May 25,
London. The same to Howick. Has sent copies of the translation of his second observations so far as they are printed. 845
- May 30,
London. The same to ——— Will come to the Colonial office on Saturday at the hour designated. 846
- June 23,
London. The same to Goderich. Sends the last printed part of his observations on Stuart's letter. The difficulties he has had in preparing them as they were done piece by piece, the translation and printing being done at the same time. Pleads these facts as grounds for indulgence to the composition. Asks that attention be given to parts which close his observations in view of their importance. 847
- June 23,
London. The same to Howick. Sends the two parts which finish his answers to Stuart. As soon as the title and table of contents are printed he will send the number of copies wanted in a complete state. 849
- June 28,
London. The same to the same. Had received his note acknowledging receipt of his (Viger's) to Goderich. Had called at the Colonial office to ascertain how many copies of his observations were wanted so as to save him the trouble of writing but found that he had gone. Had made corrections in the complete sets not made in the parts previously sent. 850
- June 28,
London. The same to Goderich. Has sent half a dozen printed copies of his observations. Will send more if desired. 851
- July 12,
London. The same to Howick. Has received letter. Thanks him and Goderich for information sent. 852
- July 17,
London. The same to Goderich. Since his interview he had received numerous documents although they were not complete, but he expected the rest daily. Even the most limited statement of facts will require time and labour; some of these have not yet reached His Lordship. He knows that at Montreal on the 21st May three were killed and several wounded. The findings of the Jury were that the men were killed by firing of a detachment of 15th Regiment. Arrest of Colonel Mackintosh and Captain Temple by order of the coroner and proceedings in consequence. 853
- July 28,
London. The same to Howick. In reference to the report of the Jury in the case of the riots at Montreal, it was only the fact he wished to notice. Had he wished to go further he might have added remarks on the course of the coroner in various points. The amount of security given by the accused did not matter as whether it was a shilling or a thousand pounds, no one would have suspected that they would not appear at the proper tribunal. 862
- July 28,
London. The same to Goderich. Has received letter from Howick. Will send reasons why he had not entered into considerations which presented themselves as soon as he could send a summary of the facts with respect to the unfortunate occurrence at Montreal on 21st May. The parcel containing information has not yet arrived at Liverpool. In the meantime he is collecting materials besides those already in his possession. The proceedings of the magistrates of Montreal sent to the Colonial Office would be of great

- August 2, London. The same to Goderich. Has been informed that His Lordship cannot comply with his request relative to the proceedings of the magistrates as it relates to an event still under judicial inquiry. Reasons why he should have access to these proceedings. 868
- August 21, London. The same to the same. Has received continuation of the information relative to the event spoken of in letter of 28th July and hopes to send in a few days observations worthy of attention. Expects at any moment papers with proceedings of the Assembly and a list of reserved bills. Asks for an interview on other important subjects. 871

- September 11, London. Viger to Goderich. Explains his motives for entering into the question of events in Montreal of 21st May. 930
- September 11, London. The same to Howick. Had been obliged to add to his observations in consequence of the letter which treated his purposes in dealing with the events in Montreal differently from what he intended. 934
- October 13, London. The same to Goderich. Apologises for troubling His Lordship so soon after he has returned from the country, but he would fail in his duty if he did not ask for a short interview. 935
- October 24, London. The same to the same. Thanks to His Lordship for granting an interview. 936
- November 10, London. The same to the same. Additional observations on the events at Montreal of 21st May. 937
- November 10, London. The same to the same. Had been obliged to send additional observations on the events at Montreal. The picture is not drawn from imagination but from facts and the conclusion can scarcely be doubtful. 960
- November 20, London. The same to Howick. Has received letter that the suspension of Stuart has been confirmed and that a commission is to issue in favour of some one else to the office of Attorney General. 961

Enclosed. Copy of the resolutions. 975
- March 4, London. Viger to Howick. Sends thanks to Goderich for communication of dispatch to Aylmer of 15th February and for other attentions of a similar kind. Had offered to give Goderich an explanation of the facts that led to the expulsion of Christie. 977
- March 9, London. The same to Goderich. Comments on the expulsion of Christie and the reasons of the Assembly for doing so. 979
- March 12, London. The same to Howick. Had informed His Lordship of the receipt of a letter from Marcoux respecting the Indians of Sault St. Louis, and asked for an interview. Had asked for an interview to give him an extract from this letter which contains a sort of memorial. Knows how much his time is occupied but cannot longer delay to bring the subject before Goderich.

March 13,

Viger to Goderich. Has received letter from Howick that His Lordship (Goderich) cannot grant him an interview in respect to Christie. Whatever be his opinion as to the advantages of interviews, he has not interrupted important occupations without pressing motives. The facility with which he obtained interviews is an additional reason for not abusing the privilege. 990

March 13,
London.

The same to Howick. Thanks for letter. To assure Goderich that he did not ask for an interview and regrets if any vague expressions led to explanations that it could not be granted. 992

April 16,
London.

The same to Stanley. Several of the objects with which he is charged require serious consideration. It is not long since he submitted certain observations to Goderich. Now asks for an interview. 993

May 7,
London.

The same to the same. Had been informed by Hay that an interview could not be obtained with Stanley owing to pressure of business. Renews his request. Subjects which could be brought up at such an interview. 994

May 17,
London.

The same to Hay. Had not had time on the previous day to acknowledge receipt of letter, it required some observations to the Colonial Secretary. 996

May 17,
London.

The same to Stanley. Received a letter from Hay that from press of business no interview could be given at the time of the application of 16th April. In answer to the letter of the 7th which repeated the request for an interview no notice was taken of that request. Reminds him of the reasons he gives for urging the granting of the request. Comments on Hay's remarks on the terms Agent officiel and Agent permanent the statement that he was only agent for one special object which Goderich had settled, it was easy to see that the mission could not be restricted in such narrow bounds and that the object indicated by Hay was only of secondary importance and only one of those with which he was entrusted to His Majesty's government. It might be sufficient on this point to refer him to Goderich's letter of 18th August, 1831. 997

June 1,
London.

The same to the same. Has lately received additional documents to those respecting petitions already before government and also new claims. Among these are papers respecting Crown lands with petition against a company to deal with these lands, some relative to the post office and to the suspension of a judge, others on the supply bill rejected by the Council. Asks for an interview to discuss certain of the points. In the absence of a law on the nomination of an agent a resolution of the Assembly required his services. 1001

June 10,
London.

The same to the same. As he cannot obtain an interview writes on two subjects indicated in his letter of the 7th May and 1st June as worthy of attention. Petitions have long been before the Colonial Secretary respecting Crown lands. In his letter of the 11th December, he objected to the plans of those who were forming a joint stock company who desired to make of these lands a commercial speculation and sought the government to dispose of these lands so that the company might sell again to individuals. The evil effect of introducing such companies. Denies that the Assembly desires to preserve the lands to the province to be inhabited exclusively by inhabitants of French origin. 1003

June 17,
London.

The same to the same. Had been obliged in his letter of the 10th to remark on certain passages in an address from the Legislative Council appearing to support the views of the speculators, which are opposed to those of the

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 18

Assembly and to support them makes imputations on the Assembly. This consideration cannot fail to arouse serious reflection that the members of one body should use such language against the popular branch of government. There are other points of the address which he has indicated. Page 1008

Viger to Stanley. Besides other objects mentioned in letters of 10th and 17th, there are three bills which have passed both Houses and been reserved. If time permit, he would wish for an interview. The first bill is for the establishment of a house of education. Another is the renewal of a bill to provide for the trial of small causes and the third is to consolidate an establishment to offer an asylum for fallen women. 1018

July 2,
London.

The same to the same. In acknowledging receipt of his letter of the 17th, Hay intimated that he (Stanley) would refuse to enter into any discussion of the subject to which it related. Does not know what part of the letter gave ground for this intimation. Recapitulates the contents of the letter. 1021

July 12,
London.

The same to Hay. Apologises for not answering sooner. 1024

July 12,
London.

The same to Stanley. Regrets he could not write him yesterday to thank him for the reply that he would receive him with pleasure as soon as he (Stanley) had a little leisure. Knowing the importance of his business he would have wished to avoid troubling him but for the necessity of doing so. A very short time will enable him to explain matters. In consideration of his (Stanley's) pressing occupations, he would defer addressing to him other communications. 1025

August 16,
London.

The same to the same. Will not fail to call at the Colonial office on Tuesday. 1027

September 2,
London.

The same to the same. Congratulates himself that his explanations smoothed away difficulties; he cannot better show his gratitude than by labouring to fulfil the engagement he made at the time of the interviews. Is now sending part of the considerations relating to Lower Canada, then under discussion. Asks him to consider the remarks which follow. Enters into details of his mission, the state of Lower Canada &c., which are too long and complicated to admit of being properly summarised. 1028

Viger to Stanley. Had felt the unlikelihood of the report of the election at Montreal sent on the 2nd, but asks him to guard against first impressions. Had continued the report on the 10th and enters now into the motives which actuated the commander of the garrison for insisting on the necessity of the intervention of an armed force. To facilitate the formation of exact ideas on the subject it was necessary to enter into details, to make explanations and to make known at least the principal circumstances. 1117

January 22, Quebec.	Aylmer to Stanley (No. 3). Immediately after the delivery of the speech, Bourdages in the Assembly, in order to prevent a session of the legislature, moved that the House should break off all communication with him (Aylmer) from his not issuing a writ for the election of a member to replace Mondelet, whose seat had been declared vacant by the House. The motion defeated on an amendment moved by Neilson. Addresses received. Had sent two messages to the Assembly, one relating to the financial embarrassment of the local government, and the other to the case of Mondelet. Had communicated the answers to the addresses to the King. In regard to the financial embarrassment of the local government explains that the estimate of the expenses for the civil government did not include the salaries of the Governor, the Civil Secretary, the Provincial Secretary and the Attorney and Solicitor General, under instructions from Goderich and that authority would have justified Government in paying them from funds at the disposal of the Crown notwithstanding the failure of the supply bill. In order to put the whole of the public officers on the same footing, only a proportion was paid to the above named officers. In consequence of this arrangement the fund was exhausted and no provision would have remained for these officers had the directions of Goderich been adhered to, so that in his message on the financial embarrassment a charge was introduced for the salaries of these officers. The coarse conduct of the violent party in the Assembly. Cannot hazard an opinion as to the result of the present session, but thinks the violent party have received a severe blow, and are greatly staggered by the nature of the communications addressed to the House. If firmness is continued, it will have the happiest effect. Page 34

Quebec. of the 13th and 22nd January, respecting the motion by Bourdages to prevent the Assembly from taking up business and also as to the messages he had sent. The delay in considering the financial state of the province was not calculated to create sanguine impressions of the disposition of the Assembly increased by the demand for £7,000 on account of contingent expenses, so that he refused to meet the demand. Sends copy of reasons which have given rise to the ninety-two resolutions adopted. The impropriety of granting this advance when the officers of government are reduced to a state of destitution from the non-payment of their salaries. Sends copy of address declining to grant the warrant. The objectionable nature of the charges voted by the Assembly for which the advance of £7,000 was asked. It was not likely that the Assembly would forego the right they had assumed to create offices and to assign salaries &c. upon their own authority, so that had he given authority for the payment he would have fallen into another difficulty. In obedience to the call of the House three only were absent on the 15th ultimo. Whilst waiting, a series of 92 resolutions was prepared, submitted to the House, agreed to and an address founded on them ordered to be prepared. Neilson and Cuvillier two of the three members who went to England to support the petitions from the Assembly voted with the minority. The third (Viger) is still absent. The resolutions were carried by 56 yeas to 24 nays. The change that has taken place since 1831, the whole tenour of the 92 resolutions being to excite apprehension for the tranquillity of the province. The language of the Assembly would lead to the belief that the whole population must be in an alarming state of agitation but the very reverse of this is the fact. The vehemence of feeling shown by the resolutions is confined to the walls of the Assembly, whose main object seems to be to get rid of the constitution. Gives the salient points of the resolutions which he classes under eleven heads. These are (1) The Legislative Council. (2) The Executive Council. (3) The waste lands of the Crown. (4) The case of Mr. Mondelet. (5) The interference of the military force at elections. (6) The Tenures Act. (7) Control of the revenue. (8) Withholding public documents by the Executive during the present session. (9) Payments made by the Executive without lawful authority. (10) Contingent expenses of the House of Assembly. (11) The misconduct of public officers.

the Assembly informs His Majesty that supply shall be withheld till the grievances complained of are redressed, and as power is reserved to add to them, is afraid that the time when supply may be expected is far distant. Distressing state of the public officers for want of their salaries. Having had the resolutions and the addresses founded on it passed, the violent party are hurrying away so that he is afraid there may not be a quorum left.

Aylmer to Stanley (No. 18). Sends copy of speech on prorogation. The proceedings during the session have been marked by a more than ordinary degree of violence, of disregard to the dignity of the Crown and of respect to the other branch of the Legislature and at last assumed so grave a character that he felt bound to explain why he did not at once break up the session, dissolution being liable to serious objections from the results of various dissolutions. A dissolution at this time would give the violent party a plausible excuse for their violence and an opportunity of saying that the Executive dreads the result of the investigation into the affair of the 21st May at Montreal. In his speech at closing he told the Assembly that beyond their own walls the people of the province were profoundly tranquil. The Assembly knew this but he thought it necessary to mark the factious character of the majority of the Assembly. Page 373

Quebec. Aylmer to Stanley (separate). In reference to letter marked confidential enclosing copies of dispatches relating to the encroachments by Maine on the territory still in dispute, has written to Sir Archibald Campbell. Has not changed his views on defence and recommends that a fortified post be established at the falls on the River St. John, as recommended by Kempt and himself. This would serve to unite Lower Canada and New Brunswick in a military sense. Has long ago selected a site for a tête du pont opposite the citadel at Quebec but such a work should be secondary to that at the falls on the St. John river. 239

Quebec. Aylmer to Stanley (No. 32). Sends petition from merchants of Quebec complaining of the high rate of fees in the vice Admiralty court. The justice of the complaint, as the court is used by seamen and needy lawyers to the detriment of the petitioners. The fees for 1833 were £715.7.11 and for registrar and marshal fees £629.7.2. Recommends that the prayer of the petition be granted. 247

Quebec. Aylmer to Stanley (No. 33). Had reported the claim of the Ursuline Nuns for indemnification for a portion of their seigniori being included in the township of Leeds. They offer now to settle for the sum of £3,023 and to give the settlers a complete clearance. Recommends that owing to the difficulty of settlement the offer should be accepted. 256

- Second memorial, thanking the governor for his solicitude in their favour. 264
- May 1,
Quebec. Aylmer to Stanley (private). Has, according to instructions, resumed the weekly report, in which he can communicate more freely than in official dispatches. The dominant party has had agents actively employed in getting up meetings, but these have proved anything but favourable to their views and discussions that have arisen have resulted in the Canadians of French origin hitherto united in favour of the majority of the Assembly, taking different sides; the party is losing ground and the Roman Catholic clergy are contributing their good offices, and he begins to think a reaction is in progress. The Executive government has no share in the meetings termed loyal meetings, the people are left entirely to themselves but every shift is resorted to by the violent party to obtain signatures to their addresses, the names of whole families being sometimes added without ceremony. The province is in the utmost tranquillity and the return of spring will take the people to their agricultural labour. Calls attention to two articles from Neilson's Gazette.

Enclosed. Article entitled "The Agitation." Describes the efforts made by both parties, which cannot affect the decision of the British government. It cannot doubt that the colony wishes to preserve the benefits of the protection of the British government, which are lessened by colonial dissensions, which the agitation is not likely to diminish. In Quebec the agitation is chiefly in the newspapers and among the committees of the Resolutions and their missionaries, and the honest cultivators can see nothing of the oppression of government that they are told of. They are deprived of benefits they had a right to expect by the dissensions of the legislature. "Happen what will we see no cause for alarm in the colony, "being persuaded that the great body of the people is sound, and the government, both here and at home, not disposed to any improper exercise of power, or giving way to irritation." Aylmer to Stanley (private). Dispatch received. Hopes that the dispatch with documents of the 5th of March on the 92 resolutions, was received and that the statement would enable His Majesty's ministers to meet and reject the most prominent of the resolutions. In regard to other statements it is difficult to meet Viger and Morin, sent to assist him, for as soon as one fallacy is exposed, the fertile imagination of these gentlemen and their employers will be ready with another, yet he thinks his aide-de-camp, who has sailed, will be able to furnish satisfactory explanations. The measure of the British government will relieve the Executive government of its financial difficulties and satisfy every one but Papineau and his immediate followers, in fact the total repeal of the Act 1 and 2 William 4 cap. 23, so as to place the duties again at the disposal of the Treasury might be effected with safety for those capable of reflection have taken the alarm at the effect in England of the seditious proceedings of the Assembly. Does not anticipate much benefit from the union of the provinces, they being so scattered over long distances besides other hindrances. Would regard with concern the transfer of the Island of Montreal to Upper Canada, but a continuance of such proceedings as have been lately witnessed in the Assembly may render such a measure necessary. The transfer of Magdalen Island to Prince Edward Island and of Gaspé and Bonaventure to New Brunswick would promote the welfare of these places without materially affecting Lower Canada. Acknowledges kindness in dispensing with his presence to answer charges made by Assembly. Does not think the presence of any one from the province besides MacKinnon is necessary. The cause of government is too good to require further aid than the exposure of facts. The utmost liberality to the province and extreme indulgence to the Assembly are to be traced in every line of his instructions and it has been his object to give effect to these instructions. Whatever Viger or any other agent of the Assembly may say, the people are tranquil. The only contest is that between the newspapers. Page 365

Aylmer to Stanley (private). Had answered his private letter of 28th March by a private ship from Quebec. Nothing has occurred since deserving of peculiar notice. Meetings of both sides continue to be held, but tranquillity prevails. The Resolutionists, as they have been called, continue to use the most unworthy means to obtain signatures. Has forwarded address to the King from Montreal now sends that addressed to himself. Although not strictly official thinks they should be sent. There is no doubt that the violent party is losing ground, but he desires to guard against the belief that the next election will introduce into the Assembly a more enlightened class of men and more disposed to second the liberal views of His Majesty's government. The discredit into which the violent party has fallen is chiefly among the educated and thinking but so long as the French Canadians remain so ignorant the constitution granted by the British Parliament will never work beneficially but will always be used as a stalking horse behind which a few crafty unprincipled demagogues will continue to render abortive every attempt of the Mother country to promote the welfare of the province. Justice must be rendered to the great mass of the population of French origin. They are a contented loyal and honest people and yet will return to Parliament men the very reverse of themselves, discontented, disloyal and unprincipled but who know how to impose on the credulity of their countrymen. The leaders of the Assembly possess ample means of rewarding their followers by grants of public money and in other ways. If all the charges of corruption and malversation made against the Executive government were admitted the practices of the Assembly are infinitely more corrupt. So long as the Assembly can control the necessary power of the Executive government its action must always be clogged and impeded. Sees no relief fortunately the people are not to be moved by these appeals. Contemptuous silence will be found the best way of dealing with the party, who are indefatigable in their efforts to get signatures to their addresses in favour of the 92 resolutions. If any of these are presented to the House of Commons a careful examination should be made of the signatures which will show only a small proportion in the hand of subscribers, even the crosses having been made in the same hand. Transmits memorial from the clergy reserves corporation with accompanying documents, complaining that the interests of the corporation have not been duly consulted by the commissioner of Crown lands, and suggesting as a remedy that the duty of disposing of the clergy reserves be confined to a commission of the corporation. The observations of the commissioner of Crown lands are so full and comprehensive as to require no details in the dispatch. Transmits report of the Executive Council on points submitted by Dalhousie in 1827. The different interests of the commissioner of Crown lands and the clergy corporation in the disposal of the clergy reserves, so that it is not wonderful there should be complaints. The ground of the complaints will, no doubt, be removed by the proposed cancelling of the charter of the clergy corporation and vesting the property of the reserves in the Crown for the benefit of the Protestant clergy in the province. Remarks on the proposed Act to give this effect. 48

Niton. Kempt to Hay. Had received his letter respecting grant for Felton and recollected his applying for a grant of 1,200 acres for each of his children which was refused but in forwarding the memorial he recommended that if any were granted the grant should be limited to 200 acres. The suggestion was approved of. Recollects that he never authorised grants to be prepared for each of Felton's children. Encloses letter from Yorke who was civil secretary at the time and has desired him to call in case further information is required. 124

- August 7,
Sorel. Aylmer to Spring Rice. Has been informed that he (Spring Rice) has been honoured with the seals of the Colonial department. 304
- August 10,
Sorel. The same to the same (private). Has received letters. The difficult state of affairs has been brought about by the House of Assembly. His regret that the committee of the House of Commons has determined not to print the evidence on Canadian affairs as it creates in his mind anything but a favourable anticipation of the report so far as it regarded him personally. The nature of the accusations requires something more than a verdict of not proven. He is entitled to a triumphant result. If after being held up as a criminal by the House of Assembly, the falsehood of the charges is not made manifest by the publication of the evidence, he would have cause deeply to regret that articles of impeachment were not prepared against him. Sends a copy of the Vindicator the organ of the party that ruled the House during last session. It shows the object of the party. 305
Enclosed. Extracts from the Vindicator entitled "Our Prospects." 308

- September 2,
Sorel. Aylmer to Spring Rice (private). Excitement caused by the appointment of Gale to the Bench. The opposition to him is on the ground that he is not a French Canadian and that in politics he was a partizan of Dalhousie, but there is no denial of his qualifications. Has himself little knowledge of Gale, but was impressed with the belief that he was opposed to his (Aylmer's) line of policy. The selection, therefore, could not have arisen from personal or political motives but was the result of a strong recommendation by Chief Justice Reid. As to the charge that he is not a French Canadian, of four appointments, including Gale's, subsequent to 1828 three are French Canadians and if politics is to be made a ground of objection the same objection applies to the other three. Is ashamed justifying himself before hand but the virulence with which he was attacked rendered it necessary to guard government against misrepresentation. His peculiar position in the province and the want of support from the Imperial government. 322

- September 9,
Quebec. Aylmer to Spring Rice (private). Sends copy of the Vindicator with proceedings of the central committee of Montreal, which deserve serious attention. The threat to take up arms only excites a smile of contempt, however it may be regarded at 3,000 miles distant. Does not think the new House of Assembly will prove more reasonable than its predecessor. Care will be taken to avoid all appearance of interference with the elections on the part of the local government and the officers have been desired to abstain from offering themselves as candidates, the field being left entirely open to the antagonists. The two provinces have again been severely visited with Asiatic cholera. 361
Enclosed. The Vindicator containing report of Convention including letter from Roebuck. 364
- September 11,
Quebec. Aylmer to Spring Rice (private). So much has been said about finances that he is unwilling to discuss the subject when he (Rice) is so much engaged otherwise; but he cannot divest himself of the opinion that the 1 and 2 William 4 contains its own remedy. Sends extract from dispatch of 19th August, 1833, in support of this. There is no difference of opinion as to the power given to the provincial legislature by 1 and 2 William 4, cap. 23, to appropriate the revenue collected by 14 George 3, cap. 88, but the Imperial law officers appear to have had under consideration only one half of the question. How and under what circumstances, the Act of 1 and 2, William 4, cap. 23, will become inoperative. 397
- September 13,
Quebec. Aylmer to Spring Rice (No 71). On the request of Judge Vallières de St. Real sends correspondence in respect to a case in which he is concerned. In the course of a trial for nuisance in which Judge Vallières managed his own case, he was sentenced to an hour's imprisonment for contempt of Court. Judge Vallières subsequently complained to him (Aylmer) demanded that the Executive should vacate the sentence of the Court and vindicate the dignity of the judicial character. Had decided that the Executive should not interfere but leave Vallières to obtain redress in the courts. Vallières demanded the return of the documents sent in his first communications, which being refused he asked that the whole correspondence should be sent to His Majesty's government which is now being done. If declared to be wrong he shall obey instructions relating to the affair. 402

Sorel. Aylmer to Spring Rice (private). Has received dispatch that arrangements have been made to advance the balance unpaid on the Civil service estimates for 1833. When official dispatches arrive he will send an official answer. Sends now observations on the affairs of the province. Canadian affairs require a long apprenticeship to understand for no where else is the art of chicanery so well understood and one proof is their making members of Parliament believe that the country is in the same condition as it was in the United States before their struggle for independence. If true, he would deserve the severest punishment for concealing it, but nothing can be more remote from the truth. The French Canadians will listen to the list of sham grievances which the leaders of the disaffected party possess such talent in inventing, but they will not go further or attempt armed opposition to the constituted authorities. The difference between the population of the United States at the time of the revolution and that of Lower Canada at the present time. The French Canadians are a quiet race, little given to abstract questions but they are made the instruments by which a small number of factious men contrive to gain an ascendancy in the House of Assembly. The minority makes up for its want of numbers by its wealth, energy and superior industry. In event of armed hostility these to a man, almost, would range themselves on the side of British government as would the people of Upper Canada. The tongues and pens of the disaffected are the only weapons they would use, but the new Assembly will prove more unreasonable than the last. Sends newspapers to show the efforts made by the disaffected. (These were not enclosed). Calls attention to their contents and to the remarks of Neilson's Gazette. The increased violence of the disaffected arises from the committee of the House of Commons having listened to their sham grievances and the seditious menaces of the Assembly. Thinks it not unlikely that a fresh appeal to Parliament may be made and suggests that to anticipate such appeal a parliamentary commission should be sent to Canada to ascertain its state. The care that should be taken to select the individuals to form such a commission.

Sends a copy of the Minerve and calls attention to an article entitled "Correspondance de New York," which indicates the desire of the disaffected party to separate from the mother country. November 22, Quebec.	Aylmer to Hay (private). Recommends him to have an interview with Ryan, a gentleman engaged in commercial pursuits in Lower Canada, who can give him more information of the state of the province than could be supplied in a long letter.	513
November 23, Quebec.	The same to Spring Rice (No. 80). Immediately on being authorised to pay from the military chest a sum not to exceed £31,000 to pay arrears for the year ending in October, 1833, he assembled the Executive Council to arrange details. Sends report and on behalf of himself and the other officials he returns thanks for the seasonable relief, the salaries of some being due for 20 and of others for 17 months, the individuals, with few exceptions, being entirely dependent on their salaries, many having had to part with their furniture, plate and watches to obtain the bare necessaries of life. Was apprehensive of a dissolution of the King's government in the province from the want of means to carry it on. Is relieved for the moment but it is necessary to guard against the recurrence of so critical a state of affairs.	515
	Enclosed. Report of a committee of the whole Council to adjust the payment of arrears. The committee have prepared two schedules, the first showing the balances of salaries unpaid for the year 1833, the other showing the balances due for contingent expenses for the same year. They recommend that warrants issue for the balances stated in these schedules.	518

November 24, Quebec.	Aylmer to Spring Rice (confidential) Will answer in a short time subjects concerning the public service, the present he is writing in his individual capacity giving his own views relating to the public situation in Lower Canada which appear to render a change desirable owing to the difficult services in which he is placed and the personal hostility towards him of the Assembly. States the position of affairs and concludes: "I request it may be understood that if in my peculiar situation the highest office at the disposal of the Crown were to be offered to me, I should most earnestly and respectfully crave permission to decline it. I am still satisfied with my situation here, to me it is in no way discouraging and, however unpromising the public affairs of the province may appear at the present moment, His Majesty's government have still in my opinion the means within their own power of accomplishing every object they may have in view. Out of existing evils much good may be extracted."	532
November 26, Quebec.	The same to the same (No. 81). Reports the death on the 11th inst. of Roche de St. Ours.	539
November 28, Quebec.	The same to the same. His contempt for most of the papers. Those representing the disaffected party may be considered the official exponents of their views, being under the direct and constant control of the heads of the party. This is the reason he forwards them to the colonial office. His mortification at the removal of Judge Kerr from his offices to be replaced by French Canadian lawyers, to do which he is greatly at a loss, as it will be impossible to select any to be acceptable to the Assembly unless they are partizans of the majority, and there is not a partizan of the majority who possesses the indispensable qualifications of knowledge and integrity, being almost all young men of low standing at the bar whose selection would be considered as an act of great injustice to the profession and the warmest partizan would be treated as an enemy the moment he accepted office. It was impossible to propitiate the party by any sacrifice, for their influence will be destroyed whenever they become reconciled to His Majesty's Government. Sends letter to Chief Justice Sewell and his answer on the subject of selecting French Canadians for the bench in larger proportions than hitherto. Page 540

Enclosed. Aylmer to the Chief Justice. Reminds him of a conversation respecting the selection of a large proportion of French Canadians for the bench and his impression that the Chief was of opinion that under existing circumstances it would be inexpedient to increase the proportion of French Canadians on the bench. 546

Chief Justice Sewell to Aylmer. Recollects the conversation and has not changed his opinion. The public law of England, the maritime law of England, certain portions of her civil jurisprudence, particularly the entire law of evidence in commercial cases and the whole of the criminal code, are component parts of the system administered in the provincial courts. The residue comprehends the custom of Paris and so much of the general law of France as was in force at the time of the conquest. In this latter French Canadian barristers are well read, but they have very little knowledge of the other. Besides these reasons such appointments would weaken the confidence of the mercantile community in the administration of justice. 548

Aylmer to Spring Rice (No. 82). Transmits resolutions adopted at a meeting held recently at Montreal. The meeting arose from the proceedings at an election for the west ward of Montreal at which much party feeling prevailed to the danger of life and property. Sends the report of the commandant of the troops on the subject. To the interference of the military may be attributed the preservation of the house of Papineau, one of the candidates who had taken a conspicuous part in condemning the interference of the military. 553

Aylmer to Hay. The English party in the colony are forming constitutional committees as they have determined no longer to submit to the domination of the prevailing party in the Assembly. December 23 Quebec.	Aylmer to Spring Rice (No. 92). Calls attention to Act for imposing a tax on emigrants arriving at Quebec which he had reserved. If sanctioned, asks that notice be given to the emigration agents in the ports of the United Kingdom for the information of all concerned	777
December 24, Quebec.	The same to the same (private). Sends list of the new members of the House of Assembly which confirms his opinion that the new House would be more intractable than the last. The Papineau party carried all before them and by its influence had an unknown man elected there, Dr. O'Callaghan, editor of the Vindicator , distinguished for its low scurrillity and abuse of the British Government. A character of nationality has been given to the elections hitherto unknown in the province, so that a strongly marked separation has taken place between the British and Irish population on the one side and the Canadians of French origin on the other, and Constitutional Associations have been formed by the former, including most of the influential and talented men of that population. It is evident a crisis in the affairs of Lower Canada is fast approaching.	778
December 24, Quebec.	The same to the same (No. 93). 1834. March 24, Ordinance.	Kempt to Hay. Introduces Irvine, a merchant of Quebec, who has a claim for expenditure made by his father for the public service in 1824.
March 31, Treasury.	Stewart to Hay. In reference to the sale of lands to the British American Land Company, the Lords of the Treasury do not consider it necessary to repeat what they said respecting the agreement with the New Brunswick Land Company. Their Lordships desire to be informed of the reason for the omission of the usual reservations of the rights of the Crown to precious metals and other minerals. They also desire to know the price of recent sales of Crown lands in Lower Canada. Have some doubts as to the currency in which payments are to be made; the instalments for the land companies in the Colonies should be made in London where the directors are. The Lords of the Treasury do not object to the condition that one half of the proceeds of sales should be expended on public works, the terms that the expenditure is to be on the responsibility of the Secretary of State is intended to prevent interference by the company.	152
April 4, Ordinance.	Kempt to Stanley. Sends letter from Major Johnson, soliciting grants of land for himself and other members of Sir John Johnson's family. The services and losses of the father. Strongly recommend that each member of the family should receive a suitable grant.	102

April 22, War Office.	Sullivan to Hay. Has Lieut. Boyce, of the North Cork militia, applied for a grant of land in Canada.	286
May 13, London.	Hay to Stewart. Desires to know what is the amount invested in the funds on account of clergy reserves in Upper and Lower Canada.	162
May 15, Treasury.	Stewart to Hay. In considering the case of the missionaries, the Lords of the Treasury will arrange that their salaries, although lower than those originally promised by the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel will be higher than those which the society were able to give after the reduction of the parliamentary grant. The Lords of the Treasury will therefore sanction appropriations from the territorial revenues of Upper Canada, not to exceed £6,506 for the payment of missionaries doing duty in that province, but as the present missionaries drop off the allowance shall diminish and ultimately cease. A similar allowance will be made in New Brunswick to the amount of £552. The grant of £4,000 may be applied by the society of Nova Scotia, assigning such proportion to the stipends paid last year as the grant would allow. Returns asked for of missionaries sent by the Society for Propagating the Gospel to the different colonies of Upper and Lower Canada, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, with information as to the period when engaged &c.	155
May 22, Treasury.	Stewart to Hay. Sends copies of letter and enclosure from Routh respecting payment to the commissariat of £5,200 sterling on account of sales of clergy reserves.	161

June 8, Admiralty.	Barrow to Lefevre. Asks him to call Stanley's attention to the proposed reduction of the naval establishment in Canada. 8
June 25, Ordnance.	Butler to Hay. The canals on the Ottawa from Carillon to Grenville were opened to the public on the 30th April. 123
June 27, Treasury.	Baring to Hay. Will extend the benefits of the pensions to missionaries in Upper Canada or Nova Scotia, or their widows provided the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel undertake to meet claims for pensions of missionaries on the other stations. They would continue the payment of £552 in New Brunswick, so long as the salaries and retired allowances may exceed the sum of £3,800. The charges from which the Society is relieved leave little doubt that it will accede to the arrangement. But should the Society object to provide for the retired allowances for missionaries employed elsewhere than in Upper Canada and Nova Scotia, it will be necessary for their Lordships to reconsider the terms on which future aid should be granted. 221
June 30, Treasury.	Spearman to Hay. The Treasury Solicitor was directed as long ago as March to take the opinion of the law officers of the Crown on the point referred to in memorandum. 224
July 5, Admiralty.	Barrow to Hay. Asks for the Lords of the Admiralty, what are Spring Rice's intentions as to the judge of vice Admiralty. If it is separated from the other court, the emoluments are so small that no person of respectability would take it singly. 9
July 9, Admiralty.	The same to the same. Has laid before the Lords of the Admiralty his letter, with petition from the Board of Trade at Quebec complaining of the inconvenience of the rules, regulations and fees of the vice Admiralty Court being oppressive to the suitors for whose benefit they were intended, and that Spring Rice is anxious for a remedy; the Lords of the Admiralty are as anxious as he and have examined the table of fees, of which some are lower than in the old scale and others, chiefly small cases, are certainly higher. It has been found that most of the cases are small, so that the merchants may be placed in a more disadvantageous position than in other colonies. The merchants submit if the suggestion for a more expeditious method of dealing with sailors' cases may not be adopted. As by the Merchant Seamen's Act cases under £20 may be tried summarily, their Lordships think it advisable to delay making any alterations for the present.

War Office. Collins to Hay. Ellice sees no objection to a certain letter being officially addressed to the Secretary at War. 287
- July 11,
Admiralty. Barrow to the same. Sees no objection to the proposals in the papers, which he returns. They may have a slight effect of discouraging civil and warrant officers of the navy from emigrating, but hitherto it has been the practice to give certificates of servitude without regard to qualifications of the applicant. 14
- July 12,
Admiralty. The same to the same. The Lords of the Admiralty have no records that would enable them to decide on the professional character of Judge Kerr. 15

- Enclosed.* Stuart to Admiralty. Sends report from Rothery. The Lords of the Treasury do not think there is anything in the petition of the shipping association of Glasgow to justify any alteration of the fees or rules in the Vice-Admiralty of Quebec. Page 17
- Report by W. Rothery that nothing is advanced to justify a change in the fees, that the object of the changes made by the Treasury was to make the mode of obtaining a remedy summary and inexpensive, and that if a seaman attempted to arrest a ship to meet his claims, the remedy was easy. 18
- August 8, London. Address for return of the receipts and expenditure of the land and timber funds of Upper and Lower Canada in each of the years—1830, 1831, 1832. 6
- August 8, Admiralty. Elliot to Hay. The Lords of the Admiralty are unwilling to grant this until they know what is intended to be done in his case. 35
- August 8, Admiralty. The same to the same. Asks him to refer Spring Rice to letters of 31st August, 1832, and 6th January, 1834, on the subject of lighthouses in British North America. The report from Beaufort on that subject in which the Admiralty concur is also to be laid before Spring Rice. 23

- Enclosed.* Kerr to Graham. Had not sufficiently explained himself regarding circumstances of delicacy. Sends copy of letter which he has written to Hampson detailing the circumstances also letter to Stewart which he had written the previous day. Should the Lords of the Treasury adhere to their determination of not entertaining his application till the debt be acquitted he shall endeavour to do so although at a great sacrifice to the interests of his family. 37
- The same to Hampson. Explains the cause of his retention of money paid to the Admiralty Court, no deputy receiver having been appointed. 39
- The same to Stewart on the same subject. 44
- Minute by Jones on the debt due by Kerr on account of droits of the Admiralty. 48

1834.

Enclosed. Vaughan to Palmerston. The survey of the lands in the county of Sherbrooke may be made as there is no dispute that they are within the lands of Canada. Page 86

Aylmer to Vaughan. Respecting the survey of the Crown lands in the county of Sherbrooke asked for by the British American Land Company. Should the boundary line claimed by the United States be followed this would probably be used by the negotiators as an argument in favour of their pretensions, even if the declaration be to the contrary. 88

Vaughan to Aylmer. Sherbrooke lies entirely north of the joint line of the commissioners, so that at any time the government of Lower Canada may proceed to survey the lands. 91

November 25, Colonial agents to Hay. Thanks for the gift of a copy of the works
London. published by the Record Commission to each of the provinces. Point out that Lower Canada might receive a double portion, otherwise the hopes of its two chief towns, Quebec and Montreal, could not easily be adjusted. 71

December 2, Barrow to the same. The Lords of the Admiralty have desired the clerk Admiralty. in charge to transfer the whole of the naval establishment to the Ordnance. 57

December 22, Stewart to the same. Transmits report from Rothery on fees in the Treasury. Vice-Admiralty Court, who suggests that a local Act be passed before the fees are restored to the old rates. 268

Enclosed. Aberdeen to Aylmer. In reference to the change of fees intended for the benefit of suitors in the Vice-Admiralty Court of Quebec he finds it regarded rather as a grievance than a benefit. He is to ascertain personally if the memorial from the merchants proceeds from political motives, or from the desire for the good of the country. 269

- March 18,
London. Gould to Stanley. Sends extract from a correspondent's letter, that Papineau could not contain his rage against the Colonial Office, his abuse of Aylmer, whom he threatened to impeach. Stanley must keep firm, for if he flinches ruin will result. If firm the clique is done for. 142
- March 19,
London. Campbell to Hay. Has never seen reason to suppose that the promise of pensions made by Liverpool in 1811 and slightly modified in 1813 has been retracted or materially qualified. The Society has always considered that pensions are in force and there is nothing to lead to a contrary opinion. Missionaries in India receive no pensions, a conclusive proof that the Society offered pensions to the clergy in North America solely on the faith of Bathurst's letter of 1813 and would not have undertaken to pay them from their own resources. 340

Gould to Hay. His letters from Canada received that morning are so full of the doings of the House of Assembly that he cannot forbear stating that all think the clique will get their way and that some difficulties will arise from want of money; still that no real disadvantage will follow if the British feeling and sound principles be supported. Union of the provinces is the remedy; the faction only gains strength by concession. The demagogues are few in number but great in noise. Presumes that the Colonial Office has sent notice to Aylmer of the sealing and delivering the charter of the British American Land Company. If more sweet words of Papineau are received the papers can be furnished if desired. 213

April 1,
 London.

The same to Stanley. Sends extracts from three letters. The longest one is from an intelligent friend who is a man of few letters though not of few words. The union of the provinces is not a new proposal; about two years ago, he (Gould) sent a memorial on that subject. 215

The same to the same. Thanks for his communication. He did not intend to convey the impression that the committee thought that there would be anything like a general revolt, but they were apprehensive of riots endangering life and property, and Aylmer's confidence in his power to preserve tranquillity does not reassure them. The committee wait with anxiety the determination of the question of the Upper Canadian banks. The deranged financial condition of the United States has caused the withdrawal of the credit of Canadian merchants on New York which, with the temporary contraction of accommodation has created a scarcity of money from which their commercial transactions have suffered severely to the mutual loss of buyer and seller. It has only been by the greatest forbearance of creditors in the United Kingdom that a crisis has been avoided. All the correspondence received expresses the same alarm. His house at York wrote of the effect of the charter of the commercial bank not being confirmed that it would cause greater distress and alienation than anything since the constitution was granted. 240

Shareholders of the Ottawa Land Company. Applications are already before the Colonial office on the subject of colonising lands on the Ottawa. They jointly beg to bring the subject again before the Colonial office and ask for an early and favourable consideration that preparations may be made for the reception of labourers. The tract they wish to cultivate lies between the Ottawa and Lake Huron. Although it appears extensive part of the lands is unfit for culture and much of it water. As the plan of emigration is extensive, it will require a proportionately large tract of land. The advantages to Canada of the settlement. Should government approve of the proposal the plan includes the Irish association and that there should be branch committees in Ireland and Scotland. How the headquarters and committees are to be formed. 293

Reid to Hay. As suggested at the interview, brings forward suggestions in writing. As to public works under the 6th article of agreement sends correspondence between the Provincial government and commissioners of the British American land company, and proposes to embody the suggestions in a separate article. There is no difference of interpretation as to the sixth article and the suggestion is a mere following out of it. The arrangement proposed is nearly the same as that between government and the Upper Canada Company. The next point is as to the 4th and 5th articles, which provide that the lands shall be conveyed as the payments are made, the payments not being exigible till the expiry of one year from the granting of the charter but the company can in the meantime proceed with the sale and settlement. The directors ask that the provincial government be instructed to that effect. The directors desire to purchase lands in the Eastern townships of Lower Canada, and are ready to enter into negotiations for the purpose. The commissioners have full and final powers to agree with the provincial government as to the expenditure of the moiety of the purchase money.

Thinks his statement is calculated to remove doubts from the mind of Spring Rice. 427

Gould to Spring Rice. Is doubtful whether it would not be prudent to keep back petitions from the loyal inhabitants of Lower Canada at the late period of the session. Sends the prayer of the petitions which were largely signed and by none but persons of mature age. Trusts that these petitions will prove that the assertions of the delegates of the Assembly are not founded on fact and that neither they nor the celebrated ninety-two resolutions speak the sentiments of the people of Lower Canada. Is informed that he (Spring Rice) would advise as to the policy of now presenting or of withholding the petitions and he would not desire that any act of his (Gould) should lessen their effect. 244

Palliser (chairman) and Singer (director) to Spring Rice. Send prospectus of the North American Colonial Association of Ireland, with list of officers and other documents. The desire to pre-empt or to purchase a tract of land in Upper Canada not exceeding 50,000 acres part of that being the portion of the Huron tract remaining in the hands of the Crown. the proposed land, so that a larger extent of coast might be obtained. Trust that the valuable portions of the lands being already disposed of and the determination in respect to that applied for the price may be favourable. The object of the association is to promote the good of Ireland and the amelioration of the condition of its emigrants. Page 251

Enclosed. Hay to Coghill. Stanley has considered the plans of the association which seem to correspond with what is actually done by government. Sends notice showing the arrangements made for receiving emigrants. Respecting the purchase of land that must be at a fixed price, the period of payment also fixed, not contingent on the number settled. In none of the colonies to which emigrants go could land be sold for less than from three to five shillings an acre Stanley is willing to consider any specific offer. 257

Campbell to Hay. Sends list of missionaries paid partly from public funds in 1832. The gross amount is stated so that, except from the total amount, the sum paid by the Society and by government cannot be distinguished. Apparently the Society paid £9,133 from its own resources out of £24,665. 371

Alley to Hay. Only three or four of the committee of managers of the North American Colonial Association of Ireland have taken on themselves, contrary to the other members and to nine out of ten shareholders, to disavow the arrangement of the Irish noblemen and gentlemen in applying for land on the river Ottawa in Upper Canada. The Coalition is warmly approved of as shown by the extracts from a report laid before the directors. The real cause of the action of the four dissatisfied members is the want of confidence in the management. The Irish association with the exception of these four is determined to go hand in hand with those who addressed Spring Rice on the 24th of June. 262

Enclosed. Extract from report laid before the Board of directors of the North American Colonial Association of Ireland. 265

September 8,

Hamilton (chairman) Singer (director) to Hay. As requested, send six additional copies of prospectus of the North American Colonial Association of Ireland. Refer to the prospectus for the grounds on which the association was formed. The directors have learned that the Huron tract had been sold to the Canada Company before their application and that it is designed to form a united company to colonise lands on the River Ottawa and Lake Huron, and that the proposal was to embrace the Irish association. The proposal was made without the concurrence of the directors and is a contemplated dissolution of the association whose functions were to be transferred to a provisional committee; no proposition has been made to the directors by the proposed society. Whilst willing to cooperate with any society having the same objects, they disclaim any proceedings hitherto taken. Information requested as to the intentions of Government many of their future proceedings depending on this. 270 the amount was provided for by an annual vote of the legislature of Lower Canada but the Assembly has ceased to make such provision. 461 Enclosed. Stayner to Freeling. Stanley had intimated that government intended to relinquish the claims of the Post Office on Lower Canada.

The amount now due for postage is £3,000, augmented at the rate of £1,500 or £2,000 a year, swelling the nominal balance against him. Asks for authority to take credit for the amounts. The other provinces still

- October 22,
London. The same to the same. Sends the first part of his observations on Stuart's memorial. It has been impossible to send information in detail on this as well as on other subjects, he being so busily employed had not time to give a daily account of his proceedings. Trusted the Assembly would see he had not failed to do all in his power to promote the interests confided to him. The petition relative to grievances had been presented to the House of Lords. Circumstances had prevented the presentation of the petition on grievances to the House of Commons. It was presented by Labouchere on the 14th, the same day Hume presented one from Upper Canada. Labouchere delivered an eloquent speech on the subject. The speeches were not reported but the tone of them was such as to give confidence to the people of Lower Canada as not only those of the members of the House but also those of the members of the Administration breathed the sentiment of benevolence and strict justice. The deep impression made on his mind, which he considers it a duty to communicate to the Assembly. 604
- October 29,
London. Same to the same. Has already sent part of remarks on Stuart's memorial. Regrets he cannot send the remarks completely finished but Garneau has been hindered from preparing them by other pressing occupations. Sends part and hopes to send more by next packet. Desires to have access to the provincial laws of Lower Canada having given up his practice in Scotland to obtain one in Lower Canada, having been informed that all barristers and attorneys of the Supreme Courts of Great Britain were entitled to be admitted to the bar of the colony. Finds that the judges here interpreted the law differently. Learns that in Upper Canada the law to prevent attorneys &c. from practising has been found so irksome that it will be repealed. 270
- February 10,
Beauport. Ryland to ———. Sends publication giving an account of the Houses of Assembly in Lower Canada from 1792 to 1814, so that he could compare the course of Colonial politics for the last 20 years with that of the preceding period and estimate the advantages or disadvantages of a policy of concession to the Assembly. Things have now reached a crisis calling for the union of Upper and Lower Canada or the repeal of 1 and 2 William 4 cap. 23 to restore to the Crown the authority to appropriate the revenue arising from 14 George 3 to the expenses of the civil government of the province. The Speaker has threatened to impeach the Government so that nothing satisfactory can be expected from this session, but it is desirable to allow the members to manifest their inmost designs so as to strengthen the determination of government to convert Lower Canada into a truly English colony and to draw forth its vast resources. 307

Refers to letter from Howick to Aylmer respecting the grant of land in room of the arrears of salary to him (Christie). His Lordship had not treated him with the justice he had a right to expect. Sends correspondence respecting the transaction. Complains at some length of the manner in which his claim has been dealt with. 98

- Other enclosures on the subject of lands. 112 to 118
- March 15, London. Viger to Stanley (in French). Refers to previous observations and comments on dispatches relative to the address of the Assembly for changes in the Legislative Council. Many of the most enlightened British statesmen object to the system adopted for the establishment of the Legislative Council. How it is proposed to form a national convention to discuss only one subject so as to dissipate the doubts as to the sentiments of the inhabitants of the country, but the expressions in the dispatch are more than unfavourable to the Assembly of the province and a feeling of justice would lead him (Stanley) to regret it. Calls attention to the severity of rule, to members of Assembly sent to prison, to the events at the election in Montreal in 1832, &c., to show that the conduct of the depositories of power is not always in accordance with the views of the members of His Majesty's Government. Comments also on another dispatch relative to the language of the Council against His Majesty's subjects in the province of whom he was the faithful interpreter in asking in their name for equal protection and laws for all and each without distinction. Remarks on the bill to provide for the expenses of the civil government which was rejected

His bargain with the society for the propagation of the gospel on which he gave up the situation he held in Norfolk. 4
- March 25, London. Kerr to Hay. Having resigned his seat in the Executive Council for the public convenience and having been deprived of his salary, asks that it be restored as a pension for life and that he might receive a grant of land. 212
- March 25, London. Barry to Stanley. Had applied in March last for the grant of land to Mrs. Campbell, in accordance with arrangement with Lord Goderich, and orders were at once sent to have the grant completed. Finds now that this has not been done. States the present position of Mrs. Campbell's claim. She has only received 55 acres of arable land, with some wild land of little or no value. She should have received 150 acres in 1822. If government cannot give the full quantity under agreement Mrs. Campbell is entitled to £529.10. Owing to the failure to redeem the pledge to Mrs. Campbell, she was compelled to sell, the price of which government agents contend should be deducted from the total value of the 150 acres of Mrs. Campbell's claim; simply asks that it be settled. 13
- Enclosed.* Government in account with Mrs. Campbell. 18
- Certificate by farmers of the respective values of arable and wild lands. 19
- Report by J. P. Bureau, surveyor, on Mrs. Campbell's property at Becancour. 20
- (The name as written might be either Bureau or Bareau, but in the official list of surveyors, the name is Joseph Pierre Bureau.)

- March 28, Plymouth. Hamilton to Lefevre. Sends additional supply of Vittoria wheat for the Agricultural Society of Lower Canada. The fourth report of the Society will contain all the information he possesses on the subject. 184
- Enclosed.* Report on Vittoria wheat received from Caraccas. (In the letter the wheat is called Vittoria, in the report Vittoria which latter agrees with Humboldt). 185
- March 28, Liverpool. Irvine to Hay. The vessel will not sail as soon as expected, so that he will have a day longer to write dispatches to Aylmer, which he will have much pleasure in taking. If there are no funds on that side of the Atlantic to meet the claim on account of his father, he will not press it further. 196
- March 30, Liverpool. The same to the same. Is obliged for his trouble in laying petition before Stanley, and is satisfied with the answer, as from the length of time that had elapsed, had great doubts of receiving anything. Shall give his best care to the dispatch for Aylmer. 198

- April 3,
London. Johnson to Stanley. Sends documents relating to the claims of himself and other members of the family of the late Sir John Johnson. It was supposed that the grant of £50,000 was an equivalent for his losses consequent on his loyalty, but that bore no proportion to the loss even of his property in New York, a small portion of which near Onondago Lake yields the state of New York an income of $250,000. The inadequacy of the amounts to which grants were restricted. The reduced circumstances of the family. 199
Enclosed. Johnson to Kempt. Calls attention to petition, which shows that in 1817 he and the other members of the family petitioned for a grant of land to each. The rapid change of governors prevented any result from being reached. Asks his influence to have the matter settled as he knew Sir John Johnson's services and sacrifices. 202

- April 15,

Asks for more clerks. 37
- April 19,

The offer of the highest judicial position in one of the colonies is only compatible with this

Charges Spring Rice with digressing into subjects connected no doubt with the case which do not warrant any conclusion adverse to his claim, but in reality fortify and confirm it. They might divert attention from the claim, but supply no answer to the question. Discusses and criticises consecutively the statements in Hay's letter. 365
- July 31, Ellison, Bloxam and Ellison to Spring Rice. Forward statement on London. behalf of Skinner. Evidence in support will be sent if required. 144

Desires also to call attention to new falsehoods in the last report of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel. Instances given. 171
- November 8,
Edinburgh. Kerr to Spring Rice. Acknowledges his fault in retaining public money but explains the nature of the transaction and did not think the dismissal would have taken place without affording him an opportunity for defence. D. (Dalhousie) Castle. D—(Dalhousie) to Kerr. Sympathises in his troubles and recommends him to separate the complicated question which would render it easier of solution. It is hard that a long service of 37 years should be treated coldly by delays and vexations. 256

- December 30,
Edinburgh. Kerr to Aberdeen. Encloses copies of dispatches received from Spring Rice who informs him of his dismissal by the Lords of the Admiralty and recommends that he should resign his office of puisné judge of King's Bench. As the dispatches involve the honour and future of a public servant, is convinced that they will receive earnest attention to enable an impartial judgment to be formed. Spring Rice is satisfied with the decision of the Lords of the Admiralty but they had not his whole case before them and he cannot but think he has been treated with harshness and severity. Trusts that the result of a full investigation will be that he shall be permitted to return to Quebec to the full exercise of his judicial functions. 252
- December 30,

1835.
January 23, Quebec. Aylmer to the Colonial Secretary. In dispatch from Spring Rice he objected to the appointment of Gale as puisné judge and desired that the names of six or more gentlemen should be sent, from whom a selection could be made to fill the important offices of judge of the Vice Admiralty Court and puisné judge of the district of Montreal. The same mail announced the change in His Majesty's Councils and the retirement of Spring Rice. He has therefore abstained from taking any steps in consequence of the instructions. If these are acted upon it will be a source of much embarrassment and the apparent want of confidence in the discretion of the governor in his selections for office, will cause the situation to be greatly lowered in the eyes of the public and if the selections are to be made as proposed the legal profession will be found peculiarly sensitive on the point owing to the uncertainty. Argues at length on the inexpediency of the mode of appointment. Page 49

- January 30, Quebec. Aylmer to Hay (private). Sent to Spring Rice copy of the "Declaration of the Quebec Constitutional Association;" now sends duplicates. Associations of a similar kind being formed at Montreal and Three Rivers, the object being to draw up and publish a statement of the grievances and disabilities under which the English speaking inhabitants of the province labour, to bring these before the King and Parliament and to employ agents to be sent to Britain to afford information of the state of the province. Recommends that if an agent be sent he should be received and his representations listened to, especially as it is reported that the agent of the other party were listened to with complacency. The character of the opposing parties. The more thoroughly the affairs of Lower Canada are known the more will be felt the necessity for adopting effectual measures for restoring the authority of the King's government. The province should be governed by uniting firmness with kind treatment. The Canadians are a docile, well conditioned people, who trouble themselves little with abstract notions of politics, the reverse of their neighbours of the United States who are in a constant state of political fever. Has reason to believe that dissension has begun in the disaffected party and this would be increased by a show of

- determination on the part of government. Every sort of conciliation has been tried, but there is no better understanding with them than there was four years ago, in fact the breach is wider. A little more conciliation would throw the whole power into the hands of a few factious individuals, who have not the sense to wield that power were it given to them. Were the proper authority exercised Lower Canada would soon be tranquil. Page 99
- January 31, Aylmer to Colonial Secretary (No. 13). Corrects an error in his dispatch Quebec. of 28th April, 1834, respecting the estimated amount of compensation to the Ursuline nuns of Quebec for lands in their Seignory of St. Croix, of which they were deprived in consequence of erroneous survey. The amount should have been £3091 10s. instead of £3023 5s. Further investigation shows that the nuns are only entitled to £2246 14s. 9d, for which a warrant has been issued. 104

- February 7, Aylmer to Hay (private). Has sent a copy of a petition from the Quebec. In spite of all the efforts of the disaffected, the people cannot be made to believe that they are unhappy and oppressed, they are ready enough to vote for their leaders and to sign petitions but farther they are not prepared to go. 130

- February 23, Aylmer to Colonial Secretary (No. 19). Had reported the opening of Quebec. the local legislature and the allowance of the election of Papineau. His seditious language both within and without the House of Assembly has led the most respectable to ask if his election should not have been disallowed. Enters into details of his reasons for confirming so objectionable a person in the Speakership. The seditious character of his speeches outside of the Legislature; he has repeatedly violated the rules of the House established to preserve decorum in the debates, but as the House has taken no notice of these violations the head of the Executive Government cannot be supposed to know anything of the matter. Instead of his election to the Speakership being negatived, which would have appeared to have been directed against the House as well as against the individual, he should have been proceeded against according to law but for the excited state of public feeling and the existing jury law, which rendered hopeless the expectation of a verdict of

March 7,
Quebec.

Aylmer to Hay (private). Imprisonment of the collector of customs at Quebec for an alleged violation of the privileges of the House of Assembly; the determination of that body to assume control of every individual in the province. Will in a short time submit the affair officially for Aberdeen's consideration. Jessop (the collector) has submitted the case to the commissioners of Customs for instructions. Has postponed decision as to granting the amount asked for by the House of Assembly which assumes the right to an unlimited expenditure of the public money for its own purposes without check from the other branches. Had sent a message to the Assembly to provide for the repayment of £31,000 recently issued from the military chest. No effort has been made to consider the subject of the contingent expenses of the judges and public officers whilst the members of the Assembly are clamorous for an advance on account of their own expenses. The new House of Assembly in fact exceeds the old House in violence, but the people are perfectly tranquil, although the emissaries of the disaffected endeavour to create alarm in Britain of the most fatal consequences unless their grievances are redressed. A bill of supply for the present year is out of the question. Page 245

March 12,
Quebec.

The same to the same. The Session of the Legislature may be said to have closed, most of the members having quitted their posts, on the pretext that he had refused to grant their demand for £18,000 on account of their contingent expenses. Hopes to send an official account of the affair but meanwhile sends newspapers. Papineau takes a conspicuous part in the debates with, if possible, increased violence. The state of the province requires the interference of the Imperial Parliament. Is sending his aide de camp Capt. McKinnon to give the Colonial Secretary full information on the subject. 249

March 14,
Quebec.

The same to the same (private). When the Assembly passed the 92 resolutions it was supposed the affairs of the province had reached a crisis. The event has not justified the expectations, for the report of the committee of the House of Commons renders it doubtful how the question at issue will be disposed of. Fortunately the present Legislature not only adopted the 92 resolutions but added some still more pungent, so that doubts of their intentions might be removed from the mind of members of the House of Commons. Sends newspapers containing accounts of meetings. The Constitutional Associations proposed to send agents to represent the state of affairs. The public papers show that the members having abandoned their posts he was under the necessity to prorogue the Legislature. The ostensible motive was his alleged refusal to give an advance of £18,000, but it was well known that the majority came to Quebec determined not to apply themselves to the business of the country, their only object being to obtain money for contingencies and to adopt the 92 resolutions. It is almost useless to call together the present House of Assembly: even if the members obeyed it would only be to heap fresh insults on His Majesty's Government and on every public man or public body opposed to their views. Unless the Imperial Parliament interferes, he begins to fear that the English speaking portion of the population will take the law into their own hands.

April 30, Quebec.	Aylmer to Aberdeen (private).	Delayed writing till he could report what effect was produced by the appointment of a commission but it seemed to take the disaffected party by surprise, so that they had not time to mature their plans, believes they will throw every obstacle in the way. Does not see how they can do otherwise, for if they consent to an investigation their falsehoods and exaggerations must come to light. The result of a previous examination, under circumstances highly favourable to their cause, shows this and a close investigation on the spot will make manifest the absence of all real ground of complaint. It is probable they may seek to quarrel with the commissioner and their newspapers are already showing symptoms of this. The Constitutional party and moderate men French and English are much pleased and gratified at the appointment. Thanks for the approval given to his public conduct which may have the effect of stopping the abuse of the disaffected when they see that it has failed to draw on him the displeasure of His Majesty's Government. There is a degree of frivolity in the very rancour of the disaffected which renders it harmless if met with calmness.	113
April 30, Quebec.	Aylmer to Aberdeen (private).	Received letter announcing the appointment of Gale to the Bench, and desiring that a French Canadian lawyer should succeed Kerr on the bench. Had made arrangements but could postpone them till further instructions without inconvenience to the public service. States the arrangement he had made which had given general satisfaction. The characters of the persons selected, the changes that could be made.	127
May 4, Quebec.	Aylmer to Aberdeen (No. 45).	The cause of so many being settled at Gaspé without any legal title is that many could get no formal location and took unauthorized possession of land they are willing to pay for provided they were exempt from the payment of fees. Unauthorized occupation exists at Gaspé but not to the extent represented by Crawford and whatever its extent it grew to that during Crawford's own agency, not from his fault but as the result of legislative measures. The character of the occupants whose pursuits in the fisheries made the cultivation of the soil a subordinate occupation so that they did not attach so much importance to the permanent possession of the land. Criticism of Crawford's statements.	131
1835. Quebec.	Aylmer to Hay.	No land has been taken up for John Whitcher. A grant of 500 acres each was made to William Whitcher, senior, and Charles Whitcher by order of Bathurst in 1815.	137
May 6, Quebec.	Aylmer to Hay.	There is no record of a grant of land to Lieut. James McDonald from 1762 to 1796 when the Crown lands were granted in free and common socage nor is there any order or application in his favour in any other department.	139

Aylmer to Aberdeen (No. 47). Dispatch received after long delay; laid it before the Executive Council, when it was decided to call the Legislature together as speedily as possible, in case the Royal Commissioner should arrive before the meeting. Shall arrange the meetings so that the Commissioner may have had time to acquire on the spot a knowledge of the concerns of the province before putting himself in communication with the House of Assembly. Thanks for the approbation of his official conduct. The foul attacks made on him in the House of Commons in support of the charges of the House of Assembly, whilst from his situation he is condemned to silence. Asks His Lordship's opinion as to the expediency of petitioning both Houses of Parliament for protection against the calumnies of the House of Assembly. 144

May 8,
Quebec.

Aylmer to Aberdeen (No. 48). Sends remarks on Hay's letter to Reid respecting the British American Land Company. The proposed method of payment is not liable to serious objection. It appears just that the St. Francis block should be surveyed at the expense of government for reasons given so far as regards the exterior of boundaries, but it is different with the interior survey marking the land out in blocks to suit the company. The directors appear to take it for granted that government would assume the expense of the interior survey, but this is not shown in any official or other document which has reached the local government and this should be cleared up soon, as the expense must be considerable. In the meantime the commissioners have been recommended to proceed with the interior survey at their own convenience leaving the question as to who is to bear the expense to be settled hereafter. Transmits copies of communications which have taken place between the Commissioners of Crown Lands and Commissioners of the British American Land Company. Secretary Stanley does not appear to have considered the claim of the land company for five per cent additional to cover the deficiency in the superficies of the land. 148

Enclosed. Peter McGill Commissioner for the land company to Felton. Submits a plan for survey of the land in the district of St. Francis. 154

May 29, Sorel.	Aylmer to Aberdeen (private). Has received dispatch that Amherst is appointed Governor-in-chief of Lower and Upper Canada. His belief that such an appointment would be made. The attacks on his character rendered him (Aylmer) unwilling to give up the governorship until their truth was disproved; that having been done he is now at the disposal of the King.	186
	Enclosed. Aberdeen to Aylmer (private). It is decided that Amherst should go to Canada as Governor-in-chief; he is to sail probably in a fortnight. He will, it is hoped, be successful in settling differences, if there is any spirit of fairness in the discontented; if he fail, Government shall be acquitted before the whole world. The desire to make the appointment agreeable to his (Aylmer's) feelings. If he desire to make a change Spring Rice had intimated his disposition to transfer his services; if a change does not accord with his views he would be prepared to recommend his receiving a mark of His Majesty's favour.	190
	Aberdeen to Aylmer. Had addressed a dispatch to Amherst announcing his appointment to be Governor General of Upper and Lower Canada. The object of the appointment will be intelligible when the communication to Lord Amherst has been read and will explain the motives which at first sight might appear to reflect unfavourably on his (Aylmer's) administration.	193

Quebec. Aylmer to Grant (No. 55). In reference to letter from Brydore relating to the establishment at Grosse Isle, sends report from Reid commandant of the quarantine station there. The public authorities are fully impressed with a sense of the inconvenience and delay to which persons are unavoidably subjected on arrival and no avoidable restrictions are imposed on them, in fact the public authorities have had to contend against representations from Quebec for further restraint. Individual cases of hardship may occasionally occur but any partial relaxation of the regulations must be attended with weighty responsibility. 200

Quebec. Felton to Commissioners of British American Land Company. Enclosed in Aylmer to Glenelg, 22nd August, 1835.
- June 23,
Quebec. Aylmer to Glenelg (No. 60). Has received notice that his administration of the affairs of Lower Canada is to be considered as terminated but with no instructions as to how the public service is to be carried on in consequence; will conduct the current business till he shall receive further instructions. Differs as to the interpretation of Aberdeen's dispatches from that of Glenelg, as he considered they contemplated his resuming the governorship after Amherst's mission was accomplished. This belief has been strengthened by a letter from Amherst in which he says that during the short duration of his mission he would endeavour to adjust differences so as to remove impediments to the satisfactory exercise of his (Aylmer's) government. This is to explain his surprise at being informed of his removal. Believes in the regret expressed by Glenelg for the removal and his disavowal of any design to convey censure on his public conduct. A letter to Aberdeen may remove from his (Glenelg's) mind any sentiment of regret for notifying the recall. The promise that he (Aylmer) was to

- June 30, Quebec. Aylmer to Glenelg (No. 63). Sends copy of letter from the Commissioner of the British American Land Company that the agreement for the purchase was in Halifax currency. Asks that the pleasure of His Majesty's government be made known, there being no stipulation to that effect in any communication hitherto received. 247

August 15, Quebec. Aylmer to Glenelg (No. 78). Agrees with Aberdeen as to the steps to be taken to prevent injury to tenants on the land adjudged to His Majesty on condition that the censitaires entitled to receive free grants of their possessions in the hitherto disputed territory in free and common socage shall renounce all claims on Chandler and Lozeau or any other person for defect of title. 312

The extent of the Company's claim. Aylmer's interpretation of the extent of their title; his objection to their claim which would invest them with power to eject all occupants of Crown lands. He holds the terms of the agreement to be clear as to the extent of the purchase. 317

September 6, Aberdeen to Aylmer. Enclosed in Aylmer to Glenelg, 26th October, Argyll House. 1835.
- October 8, Unsigned to Gosford. On the reasons given by Aylmer for reserving the bill relating to Notaries as it appeared to infringe the rights of the Attorney General and Secretary of the Province. Page 287
- October 26, Aylmer to Glenelg. Sends copy of letter addressed to him (Aylmer) by London. Aberdeen. 340
- Enclosed.* Aberdeen to Aylmer. Had no desire to recall him or to make Amherst governor, his wish being to make Amherst only commissioner, but he was afraid the factions might persuade the Assembly to hold no communication with the commissioner so that Amherst might find himself in the country without any constitutional authority; it was therefore considered prudent to invest him with the character of governor. Had he felt warranted in recalling him (Aylmer) he would never have appointed a commissioner but have instructed his successor. He (Aylmer) could not bring things to a satisfactory conclusion yet he was blameless and had been exposed to the most unmerited obloquy. His (Aberdeen's) course of conduct with relation to public officers. Although Amherst would only be a short time in Canada, yet he (Aylmer) would probably feel his situation so irksome as to desire to return home; it was under this persuasion that he obtained leave from Peel to submit his name to the King for some mark of favour. 341
- November 7, Aylmer to Glenelg. Submits observations on the conversation which London. took place at the interview. Takes up the report of the committee of the House of Commons and discusses it at some length. 345
- November 13, The same to the same. Had written to Gosford about arrears of salary London. due him but was informed that his instructions did not contemplate any steps respecting arrears before communicating with the Assembly. Transmits copies of his letter and of Gosford's answer and also statements by the Inspector General of arrears due to him as governor-in-chief and to his civil secretary. Has been compelled to draw on his private fortune to defray official expenses; the loss of interest on this is a hardship of which he would not have complained had he been continued in office, the other officials being in the same condition but his administration having closed he looks to the equity of government for payment of the arrears. 357
- No date Unsigned to Aylmer that the arrears cannot be promptly paid, the Treasury having no funds at their disposal for such payment. 360
- Aylmer to Gosford. Requests that steps may be taken for payment of the arrears due to himself and his civil secretary. 362
- Gosford to Aylmer. His inability to pay the arrears before he (Aylmer) leaves the province. 364
- Statement signed by the Inspector General of salary due Aylmer. 365
- Salary due Craig. 366
- December 24. Unsigned to Aylmer in answer to that of 7th November. 352

Vaughan to Forsyth. The unsatisfactory nature of the letter from Governor Badger. The decision of the King of the Netherlands was in favour of Great Britain. No mention is made of redress to be given to Rowell. 59

The same to Aylmer. Reports the state of the question of the disputed territory of Indian Streams. Instead of redress to Rowell the United States Secretary of State has requested the release of Parker. The impatience of Maine, Massachusetts and New Hampshire to obtain the construction they put on the terms of the treaty threatens to be productive of frequent causes of complaint. 64

Petition of the inhabitants of Indian Streams Territory. 67

Inhabitants of the Indian Streams Territory to Judge Fletcher, Sherbooke, respecting the encroachments of New Hampshire. 71

Mittimus for the committal of Luther Parker. 73

Walcott to Moore. Sherbrooke letter received; the case of the inhabitants of Indian Streams Territory has received attention. 75

Fletcher to Craig. Reports the circumstances connected with the arrest and detention of Luther Parker. 78

September 23,
Quebec. Gosford to Glenelg. Has not been able to see Caldwell who is absent. Nothing particular has occurred. Hopes the Legislature will meet in good humour. Admiral Cockburn sails for Halifax. Anxious for dispatches; is afraid the line pursued by the Lords will make a longer session than was calculated on. People appear to be satisfied with the period he has fixed for the meeting of the Legislature. 81

September 29,
Quebec. The same to Grey. Introduces A. C. Buchanan to whom he has given six months leave of absence owing to his ill health. 82

October 3,
Quebec. The same to Commissary General. Enclosed in Gosford to Glenelg, 17th October, 1835.

October 3,
Quebec. The same to Glenelg (No. 5). Reports that leave of absence has been given to A. C. Buchanan on account of ill health. Under the peculiar circumstances a warrant for his salary was authorized to be issued, but the contingencies, payment for which was also asked, were not paid. Sends copy of his answer and asks instructions respecting the payment of only a moiety of the salary when absent, if that is to be enforced in Canada, as until now it had only been enforced in the case of the customs officers. 83

Enclosed. Walcott to Buchanan. The Governor-in-chief has granted him leave of absence on condition that he leaves on his return in March, unless he has obtained additional time from the Colonial Secretary. In several of the British dependencies by instructions from the Colonial Office, public officers on leave are only entitled to draw a moiety of their salary. 86

October 5,
Quebec. Gosford to Glenelg (No. 6). Sends schedule of dispatches received by the August Halifax mail. 91

Enclosed. Schedule. 92

October 6,
Quebec. Gosford to Glenelg (No. 7). Sends statements of receipts on account of the casual and territorial revenue and of sales of Crown lands and licences to cut timber. 94

- The same on account of Crown lands and license to cut timber. 97
- October 12, Gosford to Glenelg (confidential). Has sent, under another cover, memo-Quebec. rial from W. L. Mackenzie. Sends copy of Mackenzie's letter to him and answer. Copy of letter to Colborne accompanies this. 98
- Enclosed.* Mackenzie to Gosford. Complains of delay of justice equivalent to a denial of it. Randall died, but could never obtain a fair trial. Had received a letter from Hume that he had handed to him (Gosford) a report of a Committee of Assembly; a copy of the appendix was sent to His Lordship at Quebec. The principal complaint of the people of Canada is that the Legislative Council prevents them from remedying grievances, that even handed justice cannot be obtained, and that the government is inefficient. All this the British Cabinet knew before appointing a commission which appears to be only to delay a remedy. His belief that no attention would be paid to the wrongs of Canada by any ministry, either Whig or Tory; will wait with patience for the remedy which no British ministry can prevent. Suggestions to the Assembly of Lower Canada. 100
- Gosford to Mackenzie. Has received his letter and the papers respecting Randall, but must decline discussing the affairs of a province whose government he does not administer. Had a conversation with Hume, chiefly about Upper Canada. 105
- The same to Colborne. Mackenzie has transmitted a memorial respecting the case of a Mr. Randall. He (Gosford) of course declined to enter into the affairs of a province he did not administer but to save delay he had forwarded it. 107
- October 17, The same to Glenelg (separate). Sends copy of communication to the Quebec. Commissary General, respecting the supply of fuel, which owing to his late arrival is much more expensive than it would be at the summer rates. Has made an arrangement with the Commissary General which he wishes the Treasury to sanction. 109
- Enclosed.* Gosford to Commissary General. To supply wood, coal and sperm oil to Government House for which he would be responsible till the decision of the Treasury shall be received. 111
- October 26, Gosford to Glenelg (No. 8). Has received dispatches by the September Quebec. Halifax mail according to annexed schedule. 112
- Enclosed.* Schedule. 113
- October 27, Gosford to Glenelg. Sends printed copy of speech at the opening of the Quebec. Legislature. So many written copies are required for the Colony that he has not been able to get one for the Colonial Office previous to the departure of the mail. Had thought it most politic to offer to both Houses the contingencies rather than to wait for the Assembly to ask for them. There are other reasons which he will send in detail. 115
- October 28, The same to the same (No. 9). He is trying to ascertain if incongruous
Quebec. offices are held by one person and for this purpose has obtained a return which contains fewer cases than he had anticipated; shall give all of them full consideration. The steps he is taking to remedy the evil of members of the Executive Council holding offices incompatible with that position. Enters into details of the manner in which he dealt with members of the Council holding such offices. 117
- Enclosed.* Return of all persons holding more than one office under Government in Lower Canada. 123
- November 12, Gosford to Glenelg (No. 10). Transmits copy of the speech with which Quebec. he opened the Legislature, the addresses in reply and his answers. 128

- November 13, Gosford to Grey. Calls attention to a deficiency in the public documents
 Quebec. and asks that a full set of instructions should be sent. 185
- November 14, The same to Glenelg (No. 11). Sends a return of the titles of the bills Quebec. passed by the Assembly of Lower Canada. The address of the House of Commons applies only to bills originating in the House of Assembly and rejected or altered by the Council. Has prepared in a similar manner those originating in the Council, which were rejected in the Assembly. 187
- November 14, Unsigned to Gosford. Regrets that the arrears should have been paid to Downing Buchanan, as it was the painful duty of Government to refuse all such Street. payments pending negotiation with the House of Assembly. The rule that only a moiety of their salary is to be made to officers absent from duty on leave is universal, and Buchanan will, therefore, be entitled to only one half of his salary until he shall resume his duties. 188
- December 12. Unsigned to Gosford. Has received information of the infringement by New Hampshire on the disputed territory between that state and Lower Canada. Summary of the state of affairs. The continuous occupation by the British of the territory in dispute; instructions given to protest against the proceedings of New Hampshire. His Majesty's Government are confident that this remonstrance will be effectual. But if New Hampshire persist it will be impossible to avoid a recurrence to the more vigorous measures which alone can preserve the integrity of the British territory.
 Anxious as His Majesty's ministers have been to avoid any step which might hazard the good understanding which happily exists between Great Britain and the United States, they cannot permit British subjects to be molested by the authorities of neighbouring states. 24
- December 26. Unsigned to the same. Has received returns of members of Council holding more than one office. It would be premature to express an opinion on the return, but approves of his course. 122

 February 7, Unsigned to the same. Speech at opening of the Legislature received.
 Downing Approval of his explanation to the Legislature and of the gratification at the Street. spirit of the addresses. 129 been received to the address relative to the inexpediency of annexing the district of Gaspé to New Brunswick. 251

address on the inexpediency of uniting Gaspé to New Brunswick. 253 Message of Gosford to the Assembly. The address and documents were duly forwarded. 255
- November 27, Gosford to Glenelg. (No. 16). Has been unable as yet to get any Quebec. information of the person mentioned in the French document and has at last had a notice inserted in the official gazette. 256
- November 28, The same to the same (No. 17). In accordance with order the appellant Quebec. in the appeal case of Meiklejohn and Sir John Caldwell has paid the Attorney-General the sum of £318 17s 6d, the costs of the appeal, and that this has been paid into the hands of the Commissary General. 258
- November 30, The same to the same (No. 18). Transmits copy of statement by Doucet, Quebec. a notary, of the affairs of the late Charles Maisenholder. Death of John Maisenholder. A new power of attorney required. How a settlement of the estate could be made. 260
Enclosed. Account by Doucet. 262
- December 5, Gosford to Glenelg (separate). Transmits letter from Goulburn to Quebec. Besserer, which the latter thought contained an acknowledgment of a doubt as to the title to Grande Isle in the St. John River, which might have been the source of much inconvenient discussion with the United States, and which, therefore, Besserer had sent to him (Gosford). 264 Enclosed. Goulburn to Besserer. Grande Isle is not within the limits of New Brunswick; even if it were, parts of it have been occupied by Acadian settlers and Bathurst would not feel at liberty to make a grant prejudicial to their interests. 266
- December 7, Gosford to Glenelg (No. 19). Sends return of the comparative number of emigrants arriving annually in the province since 1829. 268
- December 7, Gosford to Glenelg (No. 20). In reference to the resignation of Heney Quebec. as law clerk of the Assembly, the House by a resolution of the 13th has appointed Etienne Parent to be his successor. In this case the forms of procedure have been disregarded. The Assembly has had the right to appoint all its own officers except the Sergeant-at-arms, the Clerk of the House and the law clerk. The first two were nominated by the Executive without reference to the House, in the case of the third a blank commission was sent and filled up with name of the man most acceptable to the House, so that the appointment is virtually in the Assembly, but by the appointment of the law clerk without reference to the Executive, the Assembly asserts its exclusive right to appoint that officer with the others. Having no desire to raise an unprofitable discussion, he had not interfered with the House.
Asks for instructions should the House insist on the exclusive right to appoint the Sergeant-at-arms and the Clerk of the House. 271
- December 8, The same to the same (No. 21). Reports the cause of arrears on Crown Quebec. lands arising from various reasons. The loss is not so much as appears as from the improvements the price has increased sufficiently to cover the arrears. 278

December 12,
Quebec. Gosford to Glenelg (No. 22). A lot of land was entered on the land roll in name of Benjamin Harrison, a commuted pensioner who died before the settlement duties were performed, so that the land reverted to the Crown, although not actually resumed. There is no legal objection to His Lordship acceding to the application of Mrs. Harrison, and in the meantime nothing shall be done with the land in question. Page 281
Enclosed. Licence of occupations for services, to Private Benjamin Harrison. 283
- December 14,
Quebec. Gosford to Glenelg (No. 23). Has taken under his superintendence and control the Indian department in Lower Canada. Transmits an estimate of the probable expenditure of both provinces for next year. Only a small portion of the Indian presents was received this year when the transit was easier and the expense less than at the present time. The first instalment was forwarded at once but from the non-arrival of the remainder the Indians in Lower Canada suffered severe disappointment and in several instances distress. Many had come to Quebec and whilst waiting consumed the provision they had made for their return. So long as there was a prospect of receiving supplies he refrained from taking steps to purchase, but when there was no longer hope he ordered the Commissary General to purchase such articles as could be obtained in the province. Hopes this will be approved of. So long as the system of giving presents continues they should be sent earlier than has been the case. 287
Enclosed. Estimate of the probable expenditure for the Indian department in the Canadas from 1st April, 1836, to 31st March, 1837. 291
List of pensions in Lower and Upper Canada. 292
- December 15,
Quebec. Gosford to Glenelg (No. 24). Sends schedule of the dispatches received by the October Halifax mail. 293
Enclosed. Schedule. 294
- December 24,
Quebec. Gosford to Glenelg (separate). Sends report from the Solicitor General respecting the property left by two individuals of the name of Haas. 296
Enclosed. O'Sullivan to Walcott. Report respecting the property of the brothers Haas with documents. 298
- December 28,
Quebec. Gosford to Glenelg (No. 25). Transmits memorials from Mr. and Miss Heath, two of the children of the late William Heath, a lieutenant in the York Chasseurs. Mr. and Miss Heath believe they are entitled to a pension. 300
Enclosed. Memorial on behalf of John Heath respecting his late father's pension. 302
Memorial on behalf of Miss Mary Heath to have the commissariat instructed to pay the pension to which she is entitled as being on the compassionate list. 304
- December 28,
Quebec. Gosford to Glenelg (No. 26). Transmits resolutions passed by the Legislative Council relative to the expediency of constructing a railway between Quebec and St. Andrews in the Bay of Passamaquoddy in New Brunswick. The project originated in that province; four deputies are in Lower Canada to engage support in which they have been successful. The advantages it would be to the provinces and to the West Indian Colonies and it would augment the trade with the Mother Country. The preliminary work that is being done; a petition in course of signature in its favour. The facilities that will be given by the Legislature of Lower Canada. 305
Enclosed. Resolutions of the Legislative Council respecting a railway to St. Andrews on the Bay of Fundy. 310
The same of the Legislative Assembly. 312
- December 28,
Quebec. Gosford to Glenelg (No. 27). To anticipate exaggerated statements respecting occurrences in Montreal, sends copy of advertisement calling a meeting to raise a body of 800 volunteers. Believes it would not be prudent to make the matter of importance; it originated with Adam Thom, the object being to cause intimidation in Montreal and to create an impression on the commissioners and in Upper Canada. The meeting called for the 12th did not proceed to business on that evening; but on the 16th about 300 people met and passed resolutions that it was expedient to form a volunteer corps of 800 effective men. The Solicitor General advised that it should not be interfered with, so long as it did not infringe the law and that although the press was nourishing excitement the agitators had failed of their object. Transmits copy of address and of the answer expressing disapprobation of the measure and his determination to maintain the public tranquillity. Does not know the result, the answer being only sent off this day. (Dated 1838 through error). Page 314

Enclosed. Memorial of Dr. Arnoldi and others, of Montreal, asking that the Governor would sanction the formation of the British Rifle Corps. 320

Answer by Gosford that he cannot sanction the formation of the British Rifle Corps for reasons given. 323

Quebec.

December 30, The same to the same (No. 30). Transmits memorial from the widow of the late Lieut.-Colonel Mackay for a pension. Although a decision has already been given, yet renews the application on the ground of Lieut.-Colonel Mackay's important services. 348
Quebec.

Enclosed. Memorial from Mrs. Mackay for a pension. 353

Extract from general order of Prevost on the services of Mackay. 356

1856. Unsigned to Gosford. Under the circumstances Gosford's conduct is approved in the case of the appointment of the law clerk until the King's pleasure should be known, but the matter of form may become serious, and the Assembly make further encroachments on the King's prerogative; although there may be no means of enforcing the right, it is not probable the Assembly would avail itself of the powers derived from the constitution to defeat His Majesty's privileges conferred by the same constitution. He is to call the attention of the Assembly to the subject and ask the reason for the deviation in the case of Parent. He may suspend the apparent title to appoint a law clerk, but without waiving any right that may appear to be vested in His Majesty. Should a vacancy occur in either of the two offices, he is to adhere to the usages formerly observed, and if the Assembly should object, he is to ask for their reasons. 275
February 10, Downing Street.

February 20, Downing Street. Unsigned to the same. Has received dispatch respecting the proposed railway to St. Andrews. It would be premature in the present state of information to express any opinion on the subject, but His Majesty's government will be anxious to assist any scheme which promises to benefit His Majesty's subjects on the North American continent. In respect to the passage of the railway over the disputed territory no steps should be taken without the previous concurrence of the States interested. 308

March 1, Downing Street. Unsigned to Gosford. Correspondence has taken place between the Under Secretary for the colonies and the Treasury, the latter of which approves of his (Gosford's) purchases for the Indians in view of the peculiar circumstances. 290

March 2, Downing Street. Unsigned to the same. Transmits letters from the Secretary to the Paymaster General, by which it would seem that no arrears of pension were due to John Heath as son of the late Lieut. Heath, the pension having been transferred to other members of the Heath family. The necessary

January 12, London. Address from the House of Lords for a copy of the commission to Gosford to be Captain General and Governor-in-chief of Lower and Upper Canada. 4

January 16, London. Gould to Aberdeen. Sends extracts from letters received from Lower Canada, where affairs are approaching a crisis, Papineau playing there the part of O'Connell in Ireland. The mischief done by Hume and Roebuck and by the long correspondence held by the Colonial Office with Viger. Has a petition signed by 16,000 of the loyal inhabitants of Canada. Asks advice how most effectively to present it to the House of Commons. 333

Extract from a letter dated Quebec, 26th November, 1834. The return of an immense majority of men in favour of the notorious 92 resolutions. Reports the improper means resorted to and illegal practices in the west ward of Montreal for which the arch agitator Papineau was himself a candidate. Gives details of the elections for the city and county with descriptions. The attempt at the exclusive system has united all of British origin. English, Scotch and Irish, determined no longer to submit to the arrogant pretensions of egotistic demagogues. The use made by Mackenzie and Papineau of the assistance given by Hume and his satellite Roebuck. The effect on the writer of the attempts of the dominant party and the influence of Stuart's meetings and of the dinner given in his honour, with other dinners of the members of the constitutional party, of which a constitutional organization is about to be formed at Montreal and similar associations will be formed in every city and county in the province, so that equal rights may be secured. Strong measures demanded. 336

Extract from letter from Quebec dated 8th and 9th December, 1834, that an independent House of Assembly is being called. Attack by Papineau on the British American Land Company, but this may be the means of saving the country. 343

Extract from a letter dated 8th December, 1834, from Montreal. Reports the illegal proceedings at the polling in the West ward of Montreal. The views of the violent party are for revolution not reform. The provincial Executive is weak and unless the Imperial Government interpose with a strong and decided hand, it had better give up at once, so as to know the worst. They would then call on the neighbouring colonies for physical assistance. Papineau is as little of a man as of a gentleman as arrant a coward as he is a malignant libeller and traitor. The Daily Advocate has ceased to exist, all the mercantile community having withdrawn their support on its change of front; its staff has now joined the revolutionary journal the Vindicator. The destruction of the British American Land Company is one of their principal objects. 345

(1) Duties on goods for the fisheries, application must be made to the Legislature of Lower Canada. (2) The duty of 3d. a gallon on molasses imported has been already removed. If Vail is instructed to apply for any definite information connected with the history of the States whilst Colonies of Great Britain, Palmerston, will do his best to furnish it. 151
- January 21,

Aylmer had called the Legislature to meet on 27th January, whilst the French members had called a meeting for 6th December to concert measures, but these had not become known. It is believed that the Assembly would refuse to transact business with Government. 353

January 29,
India House. Ravenshaw to Hay. Sends paper to show what has passed between the proposed Ottawa Company and the Irish Association. Some agitation as is the fashion has been going on in Ireland on the subject. If he finds anything worth communicating he shall send it. Page 693
- Enclosed.* Minutes of the committee of the Ottawa Company. The proceedings as to amalgamation with the North American Colonial Association of Ireland with correspondence. 695
- January 29,
Treasury. Stewart to Hay. The value of the stationery supplied to the Colonial Government was £111. 17. 2, which the Lords of the Treasury requested be repaid, they having caused it to be paid to the Comptroller of stationery. 208
- January 30,
London. Campbell to the same. There are two missionaries named Robertson employed by the Society, one at Bridgetown, N.S., the other at Stanbridge, Lower Canada, a letter was received from the former, dated 11th December and from the latter 5th November. Trusts it will prove that neither of these men was the person who behaved so infamously at Liverpool. 762
- January 30,
London. The same to the same. Has received letter enclosing one from Leeds, missionary at Coteau du Lac, asking to retire on a pension of £100 a year. A letter of the same kind has been received by the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, the Society will communicate with the Bishop of Quebec who will be asked to advise it on the subject. 764
- January 30,
Treasury. Stewart to the same. The sum of £31,000 having been paid from the military chest by order of Aylmer, on the ground of a dispatch from the Colonial Office the Lords of the Treasury request that a copy of the dispatch be furnished. 209
- February 2,
Dublin. Code of rules.
- February 2,
Dublin. Form of application. Both enclosed in Henchy to Hay, 2nd March, 1835.
- February 2,
London. Gould to Hay. Had called but had found him absent. The clique is evidently waiting to give an unexpected blow. They have advertised, warning emigrants that the British American Land Company has no title to the land, meaning no doubt that the House of Assembly will annul the agreement. The Company will require every assistance to force itself into operation. Has strong reason to believe that a secret mission has gone to the United States on behalf of the clique, namely, Chapman, former editor of the Montreal Advertiser and now Papineau's right hand man; he was patronised by Poulet Thomson and wrote on free trade in corn, his companion was Dr. Nelson, a regular Canadian radical. 375
- February 3,
London. Reid to Hay. Asks on behalf of the British American Land Company an interview with Aberdeen. 666
- February 9,
Admiralty. Barrow to the same. Cannot find who is acting for Kerr. The Lords of the Admiralty will make no appointment without a communication from Aberdeen. 9
- February 9,
London. Reid to the same. Sends note of the points to be brought before Aberdeen by the deputation, from the British American Land Company. 667
- Enclosed.* Points to be brought under the consideration of Aberdeen. 668
- Extract from a dispatch from the commissioners of the British American Land Company to Reid. Reports that the unsurveyed tract of land in the County of Sherbrooke, will fall very far short of estimated quantity stated in the agreement. The importance of the company having the full extent of the property to which it is entitled as the knowledge of this property and the relation of the different parts must regulate the proposed improvements. Statement of the number of acres to be sold to the Company by the agreement entered into. The defects in the maps attached to the agreement.

Calculations of the actual amount of land. Errors in the limits shown by the map and further calculations. Page 673
- February 10, London. Ravenshaw to Hay. Time presses; if the Ottawa scheme is to be sanctioned it should be settled soon. Will call to consult him. 704
- February 12, Dublin. Account current.
- February 13, Dublin. Resolutions passed by the directors of the North American Colonization Association. Both enclosed in circular by Frew of 31st March, 1835.
- February 13, War Office. Sullivan to Hay. Asks for a statement of the annual salary and emoluments of Colonel Elliott, arbitrator on the Rideau Canal, who has applied to receive his half pay with civil income. 322
- February 14, Dublin. Prospectus of the North American Colonial Association. Enclosed in Henchy to Hay, 2nd March, 1835.
- February 19, Treasury. Stewart to Hay. In reference to the dispatch by Aberdeen to Aylmer to authorise the payment of £31,000 from the military chest, it does not appear that previous sanction was granted by the Lords of the Treasury. The Lords of the Treasury owing to the inconvenience which may arise request that no further advances may be authorised. 210
- February 20, Admiralty. Barrow to Hay. The average spring passage to Quebec may be from 7 to 8 weeks and as the first traders leave the Thames in the beginning of March, they meet with no obstruction from ice in the St. Lawrence. 10
- February 20, London. Ravenshaw to the same. Infers that Colborne is favourable to the proposal to colonise the country between the Ottawa and Lake Huron. It is gratifying to find that Aberdeen is alive to the importance of forming a company with that object. Regrets that His Lordship before opening negotiations is inclined to refer to Canada for additional information. The favourable opinion of the company entertained in Canada. Sends printed paper of remarks on a plan of the same nature injurious to the interests of Canada. The disappointment to the people of Ireland who have long been looking for relief to this source. 705
- Enclosed.* Comparative remarks on two projected communications with Lake Huron, one in the direction of the Ottawa to Montreal, the other is by Lake Simcoe the shallow lakes and the River Trent to Lake Ontario. The advantages of the route by Lake Huron. 708
- February 21, London. Gould to Hay. Chapman and Nelson have brought from the meeting of the clique a memorial which has been given to Roebuck. The projected attack on the British American Land Company. The memorial is no doubt in the same position in the House as the numerous signed petition he holds. The history and career of Chapman who has left Canada again in debt and after acting as Secretary to the Convention comes as delegate to Roebuck and Hume. Thought it well to acquaint the Colonial office with the moral value of this specious quack. 378
- February 23, Dublin. Coghill to Aberdeen. A deputation from the North American Colonial Association intends to be in London by the 2nd of March. When can they have an interview? 476
- February 26, London. Gillespie to Hay. Sends to be laid before Aberdeen extracts from letter from his friend in Montreal. If considered intrusive he will not send more but if any value is set on these extracts he will continue to furnish them. 380
- February 26, London. The same to Aberdeen. Sends extract from letter on the state of public affairs received from Montreal, especially on the petition lately signed by the members of Assembly against the Land Company. The proceedings of the factious party were confirmatory of its intentions to overthrow the Colonial government, to unite the province to the United States or to declare its independence if aided by France which could be prevented had parliament time to inform itself of the manoeuvres of the party. 381

	1835.	Enclosed. Extract from letter dated 25th January, 1835, from Montreal. Representation of the political state of Lower Canada. Page 382
February 27, London.		Gould to Gladstone. His associates believe it would be better to postpone the presentation of the petitions, the House of Commons being in such a state of excitement. The existence of petitions signed by 12,000 people against the 92 resolutions might be mentioned when Roebuck presents his petition. 387
February 28, Quebec.		Extract from letter dated as in margin. Enclosed in Gillespie to Aberdeen 6th April, 1835.
February 28, Quebec.		Resolution of the House of Assembly that if the bill passed by the House does not become law, Roebuck be requested as agent to the Assembly to represent the interests and sentiments of the inhabitants of the province. 37
February-- Dublin.		Memorial of the directors of the North American Colonial Association. Enclosed in Henchy to Hay, 2nd March, 1835.
March 2, London.		Henchy to Hay. Coghill and the rest of the deputation are expected in the course of the day, and will lay the letter from Hay before the board on their arrival. Sends memorial without waiting for the signatures of gentlemen who have not yet arrived. Regret at being obliged to send the petition in so soiled a state. 477
		Enclosed. Memorial of the directors of the North American Colonial Association, stating its objects; in case of these being approved of, hopes that immediate measures will be taken to begin operations in the course of the present season. 479
		Prospectus of the association. 491
		Code of Rules. 502
		Form of application for shares. 511
		Another prospectus with plan of settlement and other information. 544
		Another form of application. 568
March 10, London.		Letter on the Canadian question addressed to the Morning Advertiser . Deals with the question of grievances and criticises Papineau's address at considerable length. 395
March 10. London.		Resolutions of the gentlemen proposing to establish a land company to be conveyed to the deputation of the Irish Association. The resolutions were to the effect that the entire control was to centre in the London Board, that no charge should be taken by the company, but their agents would be instructed to attend to public works for the employment of labourers; three gentlemen connected with Ireland to be admitted as directors of the London Company, and that the expenses of the Irish Association were not to exceed £200. 723
March 11, Ordnance.		Byham to Hay. Transmits circular which the Board of Ordnance wishes to be distributed to all governors of colonies. 190
		Enclosed. Circular respecting defences. 192
March 12, London.		Article in the Morning Advertiser on the Canadian question. Remarks on the letter on this question published by the Advertiser on the 10th March. 408
March 12, London.		Coghill to Hay. As suggested the Irish deputation had an interview with a deputation from the London gentlemen and they jointly applied for a large tract of land between the River Ottawa and Lake Huron. Their plans are so different from those of the London gentlemen that they cannot coalesce and have resolved to go on alone. The prospectus shows that the plan is to relieve the distresses of the poor differing from the Glasgow plan of 1821 and 1822 in not asking the land gratis. The London gentlemen are like other land companies who receive those only who can buy land from them. Sends letter to be submitted to Aberdeen 512
		Enclosed. Coghill to Aberdeen. Official letter similar in its contents to the letter to Hay and of the same date. 514

1835.
March 13,
Treasury. Stewart to Hay. The Lords of the Treasury approve of the communication made by Aberdeen to Aylmer respecting the rent payable by Caldwell for Lauzon. Page 211
- March 13,
India House. Ravenshaw to the same (private). Sends copy of his ultimatum to the deputation from Ireland. Has an idea that they will agree to it. 721
- March 13,
London. ——— to the same. Had handed to the Irish deputation on Wednesday last, the ultimatum of the London company. Has no reason to hope the ultimatum will be assented to. Trusts that Aberdeen will give him another interview. 722
- March 16,
Quebec. Extract from a letter dated as in the margin. Enclosed in Gillespie to Glenelg, 9th May, 1835.
- March 16,
Horse Guards. Fitz Roy Somerset to Hay. Transmits petition from James McClelland, out pensioner from the North Mavo Militia, lately emigrated to Canada and found grants discontinued. He prays that his case may be considered, he having served 23 years. 108
Enclosed. Petition. 109
- March 16,
London. Gillespie to Gladstone. Asks that before the bill to alter the regulations of vessels conveying emigrants to the British North American provinces is introduced into the House of Commons, the nature of the proposals be communicated to the committee of the North American Colonial Association. 421.
- March 18,
London. The same to Aberdeen. Applies on behalf of the North American Colonial Association for an interview to present a petition relating to the court of Vice Admiralty, Quebec. Shall be glad to receive information on any change that may be proposed in the law regulating that court. 388
- March 18,
London. The same to Gladstone. Repeats the request that he would postpone the introduction of the bill to regulate passenger ships until there was an opportunity to consider the suggestions of the ship owners society and the North American Colonial Association. 422
- March 20,
Treasury. Brande to Hay. Has received dispatch respecting light houses in North America. The papers are before the Trinity House and the Ordnance for a report. The allowance to Sable Island will be renewed for two years, making £1,200 in all. 212
- March 20,
Admiralty. Dawson to Gladstone. As directed the Lords of the Admiralty will have a ship of war prepared to go to Quebec with Lord Canterbury. They desire to know the number of his suite. 11
- March 23,
London. Gould to Hay. Reports that Ripon will present the petition from Beauharnois, that signed by the smallest number but will not give notice till G. F. Young has presented his. The large petition from Montreal, signed by 11,171 persons, among whom are nearly 1,000 French names, has been left in the audit office for Aberdeen. Reminds Hay of the serious illness of Chief Justice Sewell. The situation is an important one and it is to be hoped that a briefless and almost beardless boy shall not be placed in so responsible a situation as was the case of Carter sent to Halifax. The late Attorney General, James Stuart, well deserves the appointment. 424
- March 23,
London. Bentham to Hay. Reports the death of D. Douglas, who fell into a pit for capturing wild bullocks. 765
- March 25,
Horse Guards. Fitzroy Somerset to the same. Everything in the way of reduction in Nova Scotia has already been done. The two staff appointments in Canada should be maintained. 111
- March 27,

- March 28,
London. Coghill to Aberdeen. The reluctance of the deputation to report to the Association the unwillingness of Government at present to entertain the proposal to purchase land in Upper Canada on which to settle emigrants, and has instructed him again to draw His Lordship's attention to this important subject. As there are objections to grant land in Upper Canada,

Gould to Gladstone. Notes that Roebuck is to move on Thursday to annul the Act of the British American Land Company, and to change the tenure of the land in Lower Canada, the seigniorial tenure being considered a grievance. The benefits conferred by the British American Land Company which had been formed at the urgent demand of the British population. 429

March 31,
Treasury.

Stewart to Hay. In respect to presents for the Indians for 1833, Parliament had only voted enough to enable them to send half of the requisition. The accumulations from former years enabled presents to be made up, the additions costing only £1,669 7. 6. A requisition has been received for 1835 and directions given for the distribution of the presents asked for. 214

London.

Gould to Aberdeen. Transmits copy of petition from the loyal inhabitants of Lower Canada which was in course of signature at Quebec with copy of letter which accompanied it. Constitutional associations have been formed throughout the whole province, the loyal inhabitants having been goaded into taking this means of making known their grievances. There is little doubt that many petitions will arrive within a fortnight and it is hoped that some means will be used to make them public. All the intelligent part of the population repudiate any desire for a change in the constitution and ask only to be free from a Legislature composed of bigotry, ignorance and intolerance. 390

Enclosed. Extract from letter dated Quebec, 7th February, 1835. Copy of petition sent, the original of which will be forwarded when signed. Hopes Gould will direct attention to this as well as to petition in L'Ami du Peuple. The misrepresentations of the latter on which judgment should be suspended till they can be exposed. It is hard to advise what is best to be done, now that the Imperial Government had given up the permanent revenues of the Crown. 392

- April 6,
London. Enclosed. Gillespie to Aberdeen. Sends extract from letter received from Quebec and asks for protection for the British population. Persons obnoxious to members of the House of Assembly dare not trust themselves abroad after dark or even in the daytime alone in by places. 433
- Enclosed.* Extract respecting the meeting of the Legislature, the choice of Papineau as speaker of the Assembly having been confirmed. Anxiety as to the instructions to be sent by the new ministry; the evils caused by the timidity and vacillation of the Colonial Office. Without firmness on the part of the Imperial government a collision cannot long be delayed. Order by the Assembly to produce papers made on the Adjutant General without the intervention of the Commander-in-Chief and now the speaker has issued his warrant to bring the Collector of Customs to the bar of the House because he declined to furnish statements without the authority of the Governor-in-chief. He will no doubt be arrested. 434
- April 7,
Horse Guards. Hill to Aberdeen. Had received letter and newspaper, the latter containing correspondence between Aylmer and Stuart, late Attorney general. The most positive injunctions sent to Aylmer to abstain from taking notice of any appeal from Stuart of a hostile nature. 112
- April 7,
London. Gould to Gladstone. Hale, a relative of Lord Amherst, is a most upright man, but although supposed to favour the clique, they have frequently sent to examine the public chest and always counted the cash on such occasions. Brougham in his speech, must have forgotten that Caldwell, late Receiver General, was nearly connected with him by marriage. In the city article of the Herald will be found the cause of Roebuck's zeal. 437
- April 8,
Treasury. Freemantle to Hay. The bills to be drawn by Amherst which Aberdeen asks to be honoured should be treated like those relating to other foreign missions and dealt with in the same way. 257
- April 8,

- April 20,
London. Reid to Hay. The agreement with the Colonial Secretary that the British American Land Company was not to pay the improvement moiety on the 20th March had not been advised and the commissioners had drawn for the amount and paid it over. Asks that the Receiver General be instructed to repay it. 682

Asks for an audience to present a memorial from merchants and others of Upper Canada, complaining of delay to sanction a scheme for improving the navigation and settling the lands of the province. May 9, Gellespie to Glenelg. Sends extract from a letter written by a correspondent in Canada on the subject of contingencies of the Assembly. The British population must be protected in person and property or they will be harder to deal with than the inhabitants of French descent, who have received concession after concession until they demand that government shall be in one branch of the Legislature, only the House of Assembly, in which the Anglo-Canadian is not represented. The Legislative Council is the only branch in which the British population has any confidence and should that be made elective they would not submit to it. The British part of the population has more to complain of than the French Canadian, although it has some grievances also to complain of. 439

Enclosed. Extract from letter dated Quebec, 16th March, 1835. The dispersion of the Assembly on receiving Aylmer's message respecting the £18,000. Doubts if the painful situation of the officials would have been relieved even if the Assembly had received the amount. Spring Rice will have to receive authority from Parliament to replace the advance. Had he gone to the House in the first place he would not have added strength to the wild pretensions of the Assembly. What Aylmer should have omitted and what he should have said in his message respecting the £18,000. Enters into details as to the origin of the discussion respecting the contingencies. The average decennial amount of these from 1793 to 1832. How the deficiencies arose; other details and criticism of the governor's message, extending to a considerable length. Page 441

Baring to Hay. Has been directed by the Lords of the Treasury to make a special communication on the subject of the advance from the military chest for civil purposes made by order of Aberdeen. The Treasury must exercise a direct and undeviating control over the expenditure whether domestic or colonial. To maintain this just authority, it must be assumed that correspondence passed on the subject, otherwise a very dangerous precedent might be created. Gives a history of the case to show that this had been done although it was stated that no official record of this existed in the colonial office. 266

- June 16, London. Gould to Glenelg. Sends extracts from a letter dated 15th May received from Montreal. 455
- Enclosed.* Extract from a letter dated Montreal 18th April, 1835. It would be premature to criticise the policy of appointing a commission but the people would be agreeably disappointed if it should be productive of the good anticipated. The contest is between those who desire to sever the connection between Canada and the Empire and those who are determined to maintain it, so that no practical benefit is to be looked for. 456
- Extract from a letter dated Montreal, 15th May, 1835. Conjectures as to the course that may be followed by Stuart, late Attorney General, after Aylmer leaves and on the reception given to Amherst by the Clique. Nothing short of a French Republic or the mere semblance of authority would satisfy the few noisy egotists who call themselves "la nation Canadienne." These few noisy men must not be considered when doing justice to the province. The danger of admitting the clique into the Legislative Council; it would be like the fox getting his nose in. Viger and Morin gave Spring Rice a list of those to be placed in the Council who were the most violent and reckless men in the province. Neilson and Walker now in London can give every information required. As Viger and Morin had the ear of the House of Commons, does not see the good of a commission. A governor of sound sense, a statesman rather than a lawyer, a man of decision rather than of talk is what is required. Arrival of ships and bustle beginning; agitation respecting the timber duties. The demands of the leaders of the Clique. Page 458

Roebuck to Glenelg. Regrets that his (Glenelg's) objections did not suggest themselves whilst they were conversing, as they might have been answered at once. Represents the views of the Assembly, which he has been authorised to do. The bearing which the petition from the Assembly had on the commission on grievances. How the commission would be received. State of parties in Canada. Complains that private agents un-accredited are to be listened to, whilst he is to be put off on a point of form. Private agents may say or do what they please but the House of Assembly are forbidden to give their agent any discretion and use him as a mere channel of communication. This will not conciliate the already excited people. 39

- July 7,
Treasury. Stewart to Grey. The Lords of the Treasury concur in the recommendation for the payment of the expenses of Gosford and the other members of the commission. The full rate of £2,000 to each of the two commissioners and £1,500 to the secretary should only take effect from their arrival at Quebec but as they receive no outfit, their Lordships will not object to grant a moiety on their embarkation and to the secretary from the time Glenelg considers it necessary for the transaction of business to withdraw him from duty in His Lordship's department. Bills for expenses of the chief commissioner should be drawn on the person appointed by Glenelg to receive advances. All other expenses should be drawn with the sanction of the three commissioners. Other arrangements. If Glenelg agrees he should furnish instructions to the parties interested. 283

- July 13,
London. Gould to Glenelg. Sends extracts from letters received from Quebec. 463
- Enclosed.* Extract from letter dated Quebec, 9th May, 1835. The agitation over the appointment of a committee of the House of Commons on the timber duties. The French party are waiting orders from Papineau though many show a disposition to secede from the clique. Firmness is wanted, but if there is any show of weakness or talk of conciliation the British people are lost; such men do not appreciate liberal or generous conduct but think it is weakness. 464

1835.

Extract from a second letter dated Quebec, 9th May, 1835; Commercial news. The French Canadian party still determined, they are persecuting the Irish Catholic clergy for not joining them. House breaking and robberies still continue in Quebec; no trace of the Church plate stolen at Quebec, the Treasury at Chateau Richer was robbed of all it contained.

- Enclosed.* Report of auditors respecting arrears of rent the accumulation of 21 years amounting to £2,918.15.0. Recommend that it should be ascertained if the whole or any part is irrecoverable and that the best means be taken to recover any part that is not desperate, that those considered desperate should be struck out so as to limit the head of arrears of rent. 290
- Statement of arrears. 292
- July 20, London. Gould to Grey. Points out that if the amendment clause B of the merchant's bill be carried, all control, either internal or external, of the colonies will cease. Is not aware that any party in Lower Canada ever ventured to suggest such a freedom. 468
- July 22, Whitehall. Maule to the same. Has laid before Russell Glenelg's observations on the memorial and petitions from Edinburgh and Leith respecting the emigration of fraudulent debtors. Russell agrees with Glenelg, but is of opinion it will be advisable to await the course taken by Parliament in regard to the imprisonment for debt bill. 184
- Enclosed.* Grey to Maule. Sends observations of Glenelg on the memorial and petition which are returned. The crime being committed in the realm can only be tried there, and the remedy is to arrest the absconder before he could succeed in escaping, or to take means to have him returned for trial. 185
- July 24, Ordnance. Byham to Grey. The Master General and Board of Ordnance concur in Glenelg's objections to the purchase of land for the defence of Quebec, owing to the quantity of waste land it would be necessary to give in exchange, or to dispose of. 202
- July 25, Dublin. Alley to Glenelg. Desires to know if government will grant the North American Colonization Association land in Upper Canada at a reasonable rate; if a charter of incorporation would be granted, or would any obstacle be thrown in the way by the Colonial Government in regard to the formation of a land company in Upper Canada, New Brunswick or Prince Edward Island, if land can be bought from private individuals, the purchase being for the purposes already detailed. A bill entitled the North American Association bill has been read a second time and committed. Is it likely to become law this session? Asks for immediate attention, as a considerable part of the money of the shareholders is locked up in the $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent stocks. 578

- July 30,
Treasury. Opinion by O'Hanlan respecting the "North American Colonial Association" and the application of the Act of incorporation. 583
- July 31,
London. Reid to Hay. Sends two points raised by the deputation at the interview which Glenelg asked to be submitted in writing. The existence of a party in Canada which has been trying and, to some extent, successfully to prevent emigrants from settling on the British American lands. In consequence there will be many difficulties to contend with and a considerable time must elapse before there can be a return for their large expenditure for improvements. His Lordship might relieve them by remitting the interest on the purchase money. There are certain surveyed Crown lands to which the Company believe they have a claim. The negotiations stated in detail to give a better understanding of the claim, including a description of the Crown reserves and surveyed lands in the counties of Sherbrooke, Shefford and Stanstead. The surveyed lands which have reverted to the Crown are intercalated among the other lands of the company, and the directors are afraid that if sold in detail they might present impediments to the company's plans of improvement. 686
- August 7,
London. Mahoney to Grey. Sends copy of the Colonial Association bill as he proposes to alter it in the Lord's committee. If approved he would pass the bill in that shape or he would make such changes as were directed. 581
- August 24,

- August 27,

1835.
September 21, London. Wood to Grey. The directors of the British American Land Company recognise the error of the commissioners in Canada in considering that payment for the land is to be made in Halifax currency and have instructed the commissioners to that effect. Page 690
- September 21, London. Gould to Glenelg. Has received letters from friends in Montreal and Quebec. Sends extract. Americans from the United States purchasing territory largely in the provinces. In a short time the French Canadians will be invoking the aid of the Mother Country against American aggrandisement. The clique will find more innovation by the introduction of Americans than of British. Twelve months fraternization with the States will destroy the integrity and existence of the "Nation Canadienne" more than twelve years domination of Great Britain. Thinks it proper to bring the subject before His Lordship, as no one can dispute the propriety of preserving lands in the British American Colonies for the British Government and British subjects. If purchases by the people of the United States continue as they have done, they will in a short time, without treaty or conquest become the owners of Canada. 470
- Enclosed.* Extract from a letter dated Quebec, 28th August, 1835. Arrival of the "Pique" with Gosford and suite. Report of her sailing, but it is likely to be delayed. British interests reported to be sacrificed to the egotists here and to Roebuck, Hume, O'Connell & Co on the other side. It would be a most unfortunate time to sacrifice British interests when they could be so easily upheld. Extensive purchase of lands by the people of the United States. Determination of the State of Maine to take possession of New Brunswick. 472
- September 30, London. Cooper to Grey. The volumes of the Record publications not sent to the five public libraries in the North American provinces are out of print, but Eyre and Spottiswood have been directed to obtain them from the booksellers and place them at his (Grey's) disposal. At the same time the volumes, recently published shall be sent, none of which have yet been presented to any library in the United States. 779
- October 14, Boston. Manners to Bidwell. Enclosed in Strangways to Hay. 5th December, 1835.
- October 24, Foreign office. Strangways to Hay. Sends copy of a dispatch from the Consul at New York respecting the increasing demand in the United States for timber the produce of British North America. 154
- Enclosed.* Buchanan, Consul, to Palmerston. Respecting the demand for lumber from British North America in the United States. 155
- October 28, London. Eyre and Spottiswoode to Grey. As instructed they send supply of record works. 780
- October 29, Horse guards. Hill to Glenelg. Sends copy of dispatch from Aylmer conveying request from Gosford for servants from the ranks. Not being in the military service, the regulations do not provide for his being thus accommodated. Asks for instructions. 119
- October 29. Unsigned to Stewart. In reference to the report of the Committee of Parliament that the Indian department must be greatly reduced if not abolished, states that the time has not come when it would be either expedient or just to abolish the department. Except in the case of payments for land, no solemn obligations can be cited for the issues, yet in every case of war in North America the co-operation of the Indians has been anxiously sought. Glenelg believes the practice of giving supplies was begun in 1777 and 1812 and has been in existence during a long series of years; a prescriptive right has thus been created, a title admitted by all who were officially cognizant of the matter, and its sudden abrogation would lead to great discontent and perhaps to consequences of a serious nature. But a reduction may be effected. The strong reasons given by Dalhousie against commuting the presents for money confirmed by Kempt. The objections that had forced them had lost their strength from changed circumstances and the Governors of Upper and Lower Canada might be allowed to commute at their discretion, but this should be restricted to the Indians who have settled on the land. Glenelg to Stewart. (The letter is signed "Glenelg," but is apparently from its style written by the undersecretary in his own person). In relation to the fees in the Vice Admiralty Court, Quebec, the bill consolidating the laws relating to Merchant seamen was before the House of Commons, and it was Rothery's opinion that that bill would remedy the evils complained of. He therefore proposed that the fees established in 1832 should be revoked and a new table of fees established. Glenelg will adhere to Grey's letter of 16th May last that the order of 27th June, 1832, should be revoked entirely the faith of Government having been pledged that Parliament would not interfere to regulate internal affairs of Lower Canada, except in deference to some evident necessity. If complaint was made of interference it would be difficult to answer and Glenelg desires the entire repeal of the Order-in-Council of June, 1832. 279

Unsigned to Hill. His Majesty's ministers are very unwilling to adopt any course inconsistent with the service, but in this case, the assistance Gosford has asked cannot be refused without exposing His Lordship to extreme inconvenience. The requisite authority is to be continued to allow the same number of soldiers to Gosford as would be allowed to a Lieutenant General. 120

Enclosed. Aylmer to Adjutant General. Has authorised soldiers to be employed as servants by Gosford, although he can find no rule to that effect. 122

Clements to Airey. Applies on behalf of Gosford for soldiers to act as servants. 123

November 25, Admiralty. Barrow to Grey. A modification has been made in the Order in Council relative to fees charged in the Vice Admiralty Court at Quebec. 28

November 26, Horse Guards. Fitz Roy Somerset to Stephen. Although the work at St. Johns is now dismantled yet as it would be advisable hereafter to reoccupy it, the ground should not on any account be disposed of, but as in event of reoccupation the barracks being of timber would be out of character with the rest there would be no objection to them being broken up. The post at Three Rivers being the only station between Quebec and Montreal, at which troops could be lodged conveniently, it is essential even during peace that the barracks should be maintained. 127

December 4, Horse Guards. Hill to Secretary at War. Enclosed in Howick to Glenelg, 10th December, 1835,

December 5, Foreign office. Strangways to Hay. Sends copy of dispatch from the consul at Boston, suggesting that consular certificates should be required to prevent smuggling from the United States into British North America. 161

Enclosed. Manners to Bidwell, respecting the issue of consular certificates to prevent smuggling. 162

Collector and Comptroller of Customs, Sydney, C.B., to Manners. By verifying manifests before a British consul much smuggling would be prevented. 166

Voonan, Collector of Customs, Pictou, to Manners. Approves of his proposal to have consular certificates to manifests as a means of preventing smuggling. 167

December 5, Treasury. Stewart to Grey. Transmits copy of letter with enclosures from the Admiralty on the subject of fees in the Vice Admiralty Court at Quebec. 314

Enclosed. Barrow to Stewart. Transmits Order-in-Council of 20th June last to annul the order establishing fees in the Vice Admiralty Court. 315

Order-in-Council. 316

December 9, Ordnance. Byham to Hay. The officers of Ordnance in Canada report that the large arch of the bridge over the Ottawa at the Chaudiere Falls is in a dangerous state. The expense of keeping the bridges in repair is likely now and for some years to exceed the tolls collected. It has been decided, therefore, to transfer them to the Governor General to be disposed of as he shall see fit. Asks that a communication to that effect be made to Gosford. 204

December 10, War Office. Howick to Glenelg. Lord Aylmer having communicated that he had authorised the issue of pay and allowances to two aides de camp to Gosford, had written to Hill for an explanation and sends copy of the answer. Are there special reasons for allowing Gosford aides de camp? 326

1835.

Enclosed. Hill to the Secretary at War. When he allowed Captains Clements and Moreton to accompany Gosford to Canada, he had no idea that it would be expected they would be paid from the military chest or that his consent to their leaving should be construed as a sanction of Gosford having a military staff. Page 327

December 10,
Horse Guards. Hill to Glenelg. Sir Francis Bond-Head having been appointed Lieut. Governor of Upper Canada to succeed Colborne, the necessary steps must be taken to provide for the command of the troops in the event of the immediate return of Colborne. How the staff in North America stood at the beginning of the year, but by the withdrawal of Lieut. General Lord Aylmer and Major General Colborne, the staff will be reduced to the Major Generals in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick and when Colborne leaves the troops will be under the command of the senior regimental officer. Recommends that a Lieut. General should be named for the General commanding the troops in North America. 129

Utica Convention. The Members of Congress of the State of New York to be requested to urge the passing of a law to authorise the importation and transit of British goods through the United States. The benefit this would be to the carrying trade. 171

December 23,
Treasury. Stanley to Stephen. The Lords of the Treasury concur generally with Glenelg's views on the management of the Indian department. Their Lordships see no objection to commuting the usual presents for money, especially where people are engaged in agriculture or other settled pursuit and that no stock of articles provided for distribution remains. Their Lordships are fully prepared to sanction any commutation which might make the value of the presents available for the diffusion of moral and religious instruction and when that is the case they would not have the commutation deferred. Other inducements should be held out to the Indians to engage in agriculture or other settled pursuit. They approve of investigation into the claims of Indians visiting Canada periodically from the United States. A further reduction suggested. Resident ministers or schoolmasters should be substituted for persons employed in the custody or distribution of presents. 318

December 26,
War Office. Marshall to Grey. The appointment of aides de camp to governors not holding military command cannot be allowed as a permanent measure, but may be allowed as a temporary arrangement. Will, therefore, recommend the Treasury to authorise the payment of aide-de-camp to Head and also to Gosford, as a temporary arrangement. 328

December 30,
Downing
Street. Unsigned to Gosford. Sends correspondence respecting aides de camp, showing that under the exceptional circumstances Howick has for the present applied to the Treasury for leave to issue pay to the aides de camp but he must select only one to be retained, the other to be relieved as speedily as possible. 330

December 31. Unsigned to Hill. Hesitates to differ from him on military affairs, but does not agree with the proposal to appoint two general officers to succeed Aylmer and Colborne for reasons given. 131

January 10, London. Petition by K. C. Chandler and of Joseph Lozeau, presented by Trigge, states the cause of the dispute respecting the seigniory of Nicolet and the augmentation to the township of Aston. Pray for a free grant to them of the portion of land in the seigniory of Nicolet, in so far as that is not granted. Page 658
- Enclosed.* Proceedings in the case of the appeal to the Privy Council of K. C. Chandler and Joseph Lozeau, appellants, and the Attorney General and J. B. Gauvin, respondents, in the case of the seigniory of Nicolet. 662
Index to appendix. Page 678
- January 10. Trigge to Aberdeen. Sends petition for a portion of Nicolet, on behalf of Lozeau and Chandler, the part asked for not interfering with those portions which belong to others. 653
- January 12, Nenagh. Secretary of the Nenagh branch. Circular. Enclosed in Haddington to Aberdeen, 17th February, 1835, undated, and 15th January. Other circulars enclosed in same letter.
- January 13, New York. Buchanan to Hay. Dispatch for Aylmer received and forwarded. Suggestions for lessening the delay in the forwarding of dispatches. 82
- January 15, Dalhousie Castle. Dalhousie to Aberdeen. Represents the unmerited and cruel case of Judge Kerr. His character was honoured and esteemed during all the time His Lordship knew him and he does not hesitate to recommend him as a man who has ably and faithfully served his King and country. 212
- January 16, Edinburgh. Kerr to Hay. Regrets that Aberdeen cannot arrive at a more favourable conclusion on his case than his predecessor. Has, therefore, resigned his office of puisné Judge of the Court of King's Bench at Quebec. Asks His Lordship's consideration to the memorial and Dalhousie's letter. 383
Enclosed. Petition of Kerr. Stating his losses and services and praying for a retiring allowance. 384
- January 19, London. Stuart de Rothesay to Hay. Are there any documents in the Colonial or Council Office respecting grants of land to loyalists or British officers in Florida or the southern part of the United States? 618
- January 19, Dublin. Coghill to Hardinge. Enclosed in Haddington to Aberdeen 17th February, 1835.
- January 20, London. Memorandum by Trigge on the unsettled boundary between Nicolet and the Crown Lands. Asks that this be treated as in the similar case of the censitaires and seignior of La Salle by Bathurst. 656
- January 22, Glasgow. Weir to Aberdeen. Addresses His Lordship on the ravages of cholera in Canada in 1832 and 1834. His anxiety to prevent its reintroduction. The importance of the subject to the colony. One point is agreed on, that the overcrowding of emigrant ships has led to the spread of the disease. The unfavourable circumstances of emigrant ships encourage the outbreak. The great number of deaths on board ships in 1832 and 1834, whereas no cholera was introduced into New York owing to better regulations. Recommends that children of any age should be counted as adults, as children from their helplessness are more apt to generate miasma than adults, a principal cause of disease on board emigrant ships. Vessels with nominally 200 passengers have in reality nearly 300 from this absurd law. A liberal supply of water should be set apart for every passenger. The necessity for an efficient quarantine establishment. The mockery of the present establishment, of which an account is given. Should cholera break out in Canada during the present or next year it will not only prevent emigration but all the merchants who are not obliged to remain will leave. 704
- January 23, Chester. Berkeley to Colonial Secretary. Asks advice as to his course as a magistrate in regard to a man giving his name Robinson and passing himself off as a clergyman of the Established Church. He has taken in clergymen and others, has seduced three young ladies by promise of marriage and is in debt to a great amount—has completely disgraced his profession; doubts if he is a clergyman at all. To whom shall he apply for information and what is the proper course to take? Page 8

January 29,
London.

Wood to Aberdeen. Has been charged by the Bishop of Quebec to represent the distressed state of the Church in his diocese in present provision and in the means of extending its ministrations to the poor emigrants. Sends copy of the Bishop's address. Complains that the Clergy reserves are sacrificed by premature sales, so that the royal bounty is being frittered away. 711

January 30,
Quebec.

Poole to Aberdeen. Congratulates him on appointment to the Colonial Secretaryship. Sends printed papers showing the real grievances under which the province labours and which it is probable will not be remedied by the local Legislature until a fair representation is secured by Act of the Imperial Parliament. He has for two seasons held the office of superintendent at Grosse Isle, but this is only an annual appointment. Asks His Lordship to write a few lines that may again obtain him the position. Sends return of the work done at the quarantine station of Grosse Isle. 563

Enclosed. Return. 565

February 7,

Kerr to Hay. Has received dispatch that Aberdeen had accepted his resignation but could not recommend him for a pension. His Lordship had misunderstood as the resignation was not absolute but conditional. His Lordship could only grant the condition or decline to accept the resignation. 391

February 9,
London.

Chandos to Aberdeen. Recommends Haskyns who is anxious to go to Canada in some minor official situation. His mother was an old friend of the Duchess of Buckingham so he has ventured to name him. 189

Enclosed. Mrs. Haskyns to Aberdeen for a government situation. Encloses testimonials. 190

February 14,
London.

Trigge to Aberdeen. Thanks for the information that he would communicate with the Governor in regard to the Nicolet seigniori and be disposed to do everything reasonable on behalf of the occupants. Arrangements in favour of the occupants might be unfair to the seigniors at whose sole expense the land was made available for settlement and it was they who paid the duty of quint. This payment should be taken into account in the question of granting the lands as it is equivalent to purchase money and has been refunded to individuals to an amount exceeding the purchase money of the land in question, showing an equitable consideration

- on the part of the King's government. Chandler has passed the greater part of his life in military service from which he retired in consequence of ill-health. Lozeau has long held commissions in the militia of Lower Canada. Under these circumstances, hopes some of them may warrant an expression of his Lordship's favour. Page 683
- Enclosed.* List of grants of waste lands. 686
- Plan of the Seignior of Nicolet. 689a
- Proceedings in the Court of King's Bench, Three Rivers, in the case of the Seignior of Nicolet, with grant to Douglas. 690
- February 17, Haddington to Aberdeen. Transmits documents from the North American Colonial Association to which he calls attention and enlarges on the benefits that would attend an extensive emigration of the excessive population of Ireland. 339 Dublin.
- Enclosed.* Coghill to Hardinge. A deputation has been appointed to wait on him to explain the objects of the North American Colonial Association. The deplorable situation of the emigrants who sail under ordinary conditions; the facilities which the Association can afford, supported as it is, by gentlemen of rank; fortune and influence in various counties of Ireland. Other considerations in favour of the Association. 341
- The same to the same. Transmits prospectus in accordance with the suggestion by Hardinge that the plans for facilitating emigration on a large scale might be submitted for the consideration of the Lord Lieutenant. The object of the Association is to purchase a large tract which has been fixed on between the Ottawa and Lake Huron part of the emigrants to be settled and part to open the navigation of the Ottawa and carry it to Lake Huron by Lake Nipissing and the French River and to bring the land into proper cultivation. The conditions on which alone the enterprise could be undertaken. 346
- Extract from a paper read before the Society of Arts and Sciences in Canada, October, 1829. The advantage of facilitating the acquisition of land by the removal of unnecessary impediments. 350
- Extract from the evidence of Stanley before a committee (on emigration) of the House of Commons, 2nd June, 1827. 352
- Memorial by settlers on the Ottawa for improvements. 355
- Extract from an unsigned letter stating that whilst Colborne was favourable to improvements on the Ottawa the Council would oppose the proposition. 359
- Extracts from the proceedings of a meeting at Bytown to promote local improvements. 363
- Fairfield to North American Colonial Association. Has the association yet begun its operations? 365
- Secretary of the Nenagh Branch of the North American Colonial Association. Circular sending prospectus. 367
- Similar circular from other branches not copied.
- Unsigned, addressed to various M. Ps. Proposed address to the candidate for Waterford on the scheme for improving by emigration the condition of the people of Ireland. 371
- February 18, Glossop to Aberdeen. The distressed state of the Indian chief and his companions. Now that Government has taken charge of them, urges that they may have their departure hastened as much as possible. 259
London.
- February 18. Whalley to Under Secretary for the Colonies. What is the regulation respecting attorneys or advocates at Quebec? 714
- February 19, Colletan to Colonial Secretary. Death of his son James Colletan drowned at Montreal about 1st of last June, leaving a small sum of money which was put into the hands of government. He is the next relative and if documents are necessary to obtain the money he will sign them, if sent. 192 Carrickmacross.

64 VICTORIA, A. 1901

1835.
February 24,
London. Draper to Aberdeen. Has only learned now of the allowance of an Act to impose a tax on passengers arriving in Lower Canada by sea from the United Kingdom. Refers to the sentiments of the Legislature of Upper Canada when a similar measure was proposed in 1831-32 that has remained unanswered. Summary of the objection to the principle of the measure as the amount is immaterial, for if the principle be admitted the tax might be made prohibitory to any British subject entering Lower Canada. Extends argument in opposition to the bill. Page 214
- February 24,
Edinburgh. Kerr to Hay. Proposes to leave for London by the earliest conveyance and hopes that delay in answering will not inconvenience Aberdeen. 393
- February 24,
Quebec. Secretan to Aberdeen. His situation in the Customs abolished on the secret report of the Collector. The machinations of the Collector to injure his private as well as public character and to prevent him obtaining reparation. Transmits papers which will explain the case. Had the Collector only attacked him in relation to his emoluments from the Customs he would not have taken any notice but when his private character was attacked he would use every legal means to defend it. 619
- February 25,
Temple. Bliss to Hay. Sends letter to Aberdeen on the question of the Court of Vice Admiralty of Quebec and the petition of the committee of trade of that port for the reduction of fees. His letter contains the whole case of the petitioners. Hopes its length will be no obstacle to the full consideration of the subject. Hands in petition from Glasgow on the same subject; other petitions to follow. Trusts that Aberdeen will recommend as a remedy the issue of a new order-in-Council to reform the practice and reduce the fees of the Vice Admiralty Court. 35
- Enclosed.* Bliss to Aberdeen. Statement of the case respecting the complaints against the Vice Admiralty Court of Quebec. 37
- Two petitions previously given. Titles only given 53
- Petition of Merchants forming the Committee of the North American Colonial Association in London. 54
- Table of fees. 56
- Order-in-Council restricting the fees authorised by the order of 27th June, 1832, to two-thirds of the amount therein authorised. 71
- February 26,
Edinburgh. Kerr to Hay. Writes privately to obtain Hay's good offices respecting depriving him of office. The prejudicial effect it would have on his character to resign office without compensation, such resignation would in his apprehension and in that of his friends be to make himself the instrument of his own ruin. Points out a course by which he might resign without disparagement. How his losses might be compensated. Argument at length on this point. 394
- February 26,
Enniscorthy. Neville to Aberdeen. In reference to the tax on emigrants landing at Quebec; are children exempt, and if so, under what age? 518
- February 28,
Toronto. Bishop of Quebec to Colonial Secretary. Sends letter from Stanley that the only obstacle to the appointment of a suffragan bishop arose from the want of an endowment. By the plan of endowment by which the Archdeacon and Rector of Quebec is to be appointed suffragan, receiving one-third of his (the Bishop's) salary, and retaining his other offices, this obstacle would be removed. Trusts to receive the Colonial Secretary's consent to this. 604
- Enclosed.* Stanley to Lord Bishop of Quebec. Has received application for the appointment of a suffragan Bishop and laments the considerations which compel him to withhold his assent to the arrangement. 606
- March 2,
Lincoln's Inn. Collyer to Aberdeen. Sends letter written to his predecessor but which his retirement prevented him receiving at the proper time. It refers to a proposed division by the Bishop of Quebec of his clerical duties. 193

1835.

- Enclosed.* Collyer to Spring Rice. Extracts suggesting the appointment of a suffragan for Lower Canada, the two provinces being now too much for one man. Page 194
- March 2, Dunchattan. Macintosh to Aberdeen. Sends papers relative to the proceedings of the coroner's inquest on the bodies of those who lost their lives in the election riots at Montreal in 1832. 453
(The papers were copied in Volumes 202 and 211 and are now omitted.)
- March 2, London. Whitley to Aberdeen. States his unfortunate speculation with the Indians, whom he engaged to exhibit their customs, &c., he having been cheated by Gale and Glossop. 715
- March 3, London. Dare to Aberdeen. Sends application from Sir George Farmer (who, with a wife and family is reduced to an income of £50 a year) for a situation in British North America or Australia. Services of Farmer. 219
Enclosed. Farmer to Dare. States the cause of his reduced income. His services; is anxious to obtain employment in Nova Scotia if possible. 220
- March 4, London. Trigge to Hay. Besides his former observations, states that when the legal decision was given the system of free grants was in full force and in the court he heard Ogden, Attorney General, say that for what he knew the seigniors of Nicolet might obtain a grant of the land in question. The petition does not go to that extent, but is limited to the portion joining the non-established side line as far as its rear line. There exists the strongest reason for giving effect to Aberdeen's disposition. 701
- March 5, Dublin. Bowen to Aberdeen. Had gone to Canada as an agriculturist and intends to return there but wishes for employment as he has always been accustomed to lead an active life. 10
- March 5, London. Glossop to Boulton. It is difficult to decide whether Whitley or the Indian Chief's statement is correct, but the fact of the Chief being trusted with the treaty and other marks of confidence support his statements. The losses were sustained by Sutton having carried off all the proceeds of the exhibitions and in the great expense for the maintenance of the Indians. 261
- March 6, London. Whitley to Aberdeen. Having been informed that his letter to Aberdeen had been sent to Glossop offers full proof of his rectitude. 717
- March 8, London. Wortley to ——. Encloses a note he has received from Bell, member for Northumberland. 718
Enclosed. Bell to Wortley. Applies for information respecting the contents of letter. 719
- March 9, New York. Buchanan to Hay. As no packet has sailed since the enclosed was received forwards it as he believes it may reach before the official document. Dispatches for him may reach 24 hours earlier if given to the master of the packet to be handed to the pilot. 83
Enclosed. Proceedings of the Legislature of Lower Canada at its opening 23rd February, 1835. 84
- March 10, New York. Buchanan to Hay. States his services and the cost. Asks for his actual expenditure and sends notice to quit he has received on account of the number of emigrants visiting his office. 87
Enclosed. Notice that from the inconvenience caused by the numerous callers especially during the arrival of emigrants he could not be accommodated in the building. 89
- March 13, New York. Directions for passengers to Upper Canada. 90
- March 13, London. Barclay to Aberdeen. States his services and the promise made to him of employment. Asks to be appointed consul at New York. 13
- March 13, London. Stevenson to Gladstone. Submits a plan for clearing wild lands for which he would take the whole risk, the work to be paid for with wild lands; shows the saving he expects to obtain for Government. 623

64 VICTORIA, A. 1901

1835. Enclosed. Dalhousie to Stevenson. Forwards him two letters. He will find in the Governors every disposition to encourage his plans. Page 626
- March 14, London. Kerr to Hay. Sends a letter of a public nature to be laid before Aberdeen. 400
- March 14, Eyrecourt. Montgomery to Under Colonial Secretary. Can he have a man arrested for forgery committed at Eyre Court, who is now living in one of the British Colonies in North America. 451
- March 14, London. Kerr to Hay. Aberdeen says the only alternative proposed is for him to resign or to be removed by an act of authority. He will not resign as that might be regarded as an admission of the justice of the decision of the Lords of the Admiralty. Had His Lordship held office when the documents of the Admiralty were laid before the Colonial Office is convinced that he would have been of opinion that it should be submitted to the Privy Council. 401
- March 16, Liverpool. Baring Bros & Co to Hay. Have received and forwarded two enclosures addressed to Aylmer. 16
- March 16, Ballymena. Dempsey to Colonial Secretary. Applies to have the British Consul in Virginia instructed to make inquiry respecting his uncle's property there. 225
- March 18, London. Stevenson to Gladstone. Asks nothing from Government but a tract of land for a greater equivalent than they now procure or if this is not compatible with the rules, asks for a letter to the Governor saying that if his plans are found to be of essential service he may enter into his (Stevenson's) views. If this is given he would at once proceed to Canada. 627
- March 19, Ardahan. Rev. T. B. Ring to Aberdeen. In May next Dwyer the rector of Ardahan will resume his duties, so that he (Ring) will lose his curacy and in the state of the Irish Church it is impossible to get another. Applies to obtain an appointment in Canada. 611
- March 21, Dublin. Ryan to Hay. Offers to carry dispatches as he sails on the 5th of April. If the Governor of Canada would give contingencies to the House of Assembly before it passed a bill of supply, it might proceed to business, but that was doubtful. The publication of private letter between him and Aylmer by James Stewart was regarded unfavourably. Stewart had also suffered in public estimation by withdrawing from the constitutional Association, because it would not busy itself with his personal concerns. 613
- March 24, London. Kerr to Hay. Intends to apply to the Admiralty to review his case and will transmit from Scotland a memorial to that effect. 403
- March 27, Downing Street. Hay to Dempsey. Aberdeen regrets he cannot assist him (Dempsey) respecting his uncle's estates, as his uncle is residing in the United States. 226
- March 27, Lambeth. Bowden to Hay. The brief in defence of Muk Coonse, the Indian chief, is completed and will be presented to Adolphus immediately. Will be obliged if Hay can inform him if government is to afford Muk Coonse pecuniary assistance. 17
- March 28, Valentia. Browne to Neilson. Enclosed in Glenelg to Gosford, 17th July, 1835.
- March 28, Washington. Vaughan to Hay. Has sent 19 volumes of Congressional papers, for which he has paid. 720
- March 29, London. Stevenson to Gladstone. Thanks for interview with Hay. The effect of his plan will be as beneficial to Canada as the steam engine to the United Kingdom. 628
- Another letter to Gladstone of the same date was substantially to the same effect. 629
- March 30, Clonmell. Alice Butler to the Colonial Secretary. Hopes letter enclosed will be sent as directed, and that an answer will be sent as soon as the case is examined. 18

March 30. Memorandum by Demjsey that his uncle made purchases of property in Virginia and he wishes that the British Consul there be allowed to make inquiry respecting it. Page 226
- March 31, Quebec. George to Colonial Secretary. Renews his application for support, having previously sent a memorial by Captain Alexander of the 42nd Highlanders. Besides other objects successfully brought forward for the benefit of his country, is one that makes the British Cavalry almost invincible against infantry or cavalry in the open field; applies for an office to enable him to prosecute his experiments. 264
- Enclosed.* Schedule of documents enclosed. 266
- George to Dalhousie. Sends particulars respecting the operations of the land office and the machinations which prevented its establishment. 267

- Enclosed.* Application from Stopford Jones to be appointed stipendiary magistrate. 324
- April 4, Carlisle. Esther Hope to —. Applies to know if she can ascertain the time and place where Henry Hope, Lieut. Governor of Canada at one time, died, as her family are next of kin and it is understood he left property. 325
- (Hope resigned his office of Lieut. Governor in favour of Dorchester, (Guy Carleton) who became Governor General on the 3rd October, 1786.)
- April 6, New York. Buchanan to Hay. Has received letter of 14th February advising that three dispatches were sent. Had found only one to Aylmer, but presume three have been sent under one cover. Had sent the dispatch by special messenger. Repeats his desire that letters for him might be sent so that they could be landed with the pilot. 92
- April 6, London. Ivers to Hay. Has sent his address in accordance with desire of Lord Stuart de Rothesay. 378
- April 6, Gullow. Whelan to —. Applies for information respecting his brother William Whelan. 721

 April 28, Rome. Propaganda to Bramston. Enclosed in Memorandum by Bramston, not dated.

April 29, London. Kerr to Grant. Aberdeen having given him time to memorialise the Admiralty before he removes him (Kerr) from his office of puisné judge, sends copy of memorial he has laid before the Admiralty. Has sent facts which would remove the charges of concealment or improper dealing.

Enclosed. Memorial to the Admiralty, stating the facts of his removal from the Vice Admiralty Court and praying that he would either be restored or that he receive an annual sum for life as a retiring allowance. 406

Enclosed. Case of the two brothers Haas who died in Montreal, one on the 26th July, 1828, and the other 13th June, 1832. 457

May 9, Devonport. Banks to Grey. Certificate of the abilities and industrious habits of Rapson. 615

May 9, London. MacKinnon to Glenelg. In reference to the statement that he (Glenelg) does not feel called upon to express an opinion on the charges brought against Aylmer unless he required it, so long as he (Aylmer) remained in office it was a tacit admission that the charges were without foundation. *But now that it had been intimated that his services were no longer required circumstances had altered and Aylmer required an explicit opinion. 470

May 10, Wheatley. Ashurst to Glenelg. Applies on behalf of two men, surveyors and carpenters, for a free passage they understood they would receive for themselves and their families, by them providing their own stock of food and carrying enough money to provide for themselves on landing. Asks if there is such an offer. 6

May 15, London. Neilson to Grey. Thanks Glenelg for his trouble in having the petitions and documents released from the Custom House. To save further trouble has paid the duty on the others. When can he have an interview? Sends printed copies of documents. 520

Enclosed. Circular respecting the Constitutional Association of Lower Canada. 521

List of counties, towns and boroughs sending members to the House of Assembly, under the Representation Act, sanctioned 17th August, 1829, with population of French origin and of British origin, deduced from the census of 1830. 528

Explanation of the table which states: "If all Roman Catholics returned " were of French origin the population in 1831 would stand

" Of French origin.	403,472
" Not of French origin.	108,445

" But it is certain that a great many of the Irish Catholics have been " included in the returns of the Catholic population and ought to be de- " ducted and added to the population not of French origin." 529

May 19,	London.	MacNeill to Glenelg. Applies to be appointed as clerk to any commission that might be appointed to arrange the questions pending between Canada and the mother country. His qualifications.	Page 459
May 19,	Temple.	Bliss to Grey. The report of Aylmer respecting the Vice Admiralty fees at Quebec he is informed has been received and that Glenelg had felt bound to recommend that no time should be lost in procuring an Order-in-Council for a return to the old fees. To return to the old scale of fees would not be to remedy the grievance complained of, the old scale having been long a cause of dissatisfaction and it was to remedy this the order of the 27th June, 1832, was introduced, which only made bad worse. The simple repealing of this order would only be a return to the original cause of grievance. How the grievance could be removed as shown in his letter of 24th February. Hopes that Glenelg will consider the best remedy for the abuse complained of.	74
May 27,	New York.	Buchanan to Grey. Has received dispatch which has been forwarded to Aylmer as desired.	93
May 27,	London.	Kerr to Grey. Regrets that after all his services the Lords of the Admiralty do not feel disposed to submit his name for a retiring allowance. He therefore applies for leave to resume his duties at Quebec.	424
May 28,	London.	Bramston to Hay. Sends document respecting Montreal to be laid before the Colonial Secretary.	20
		Enclosed. Letter from the Propaganda at Rome to Bramston.	21
May 28,	London.	Heger to Glenelg. Thomas Douglas, who died in Montreal left property disposed of by will and there being no nearer relatives than first cousins it is not unreasonable to suppose he may have considered them in the will. Can ascertain nothing about it at Doctor's Commons and asks if information could be obtained respecting it from the Governor of Lower Canada.	326
May 29,	London.	Kerr to Grey. He will submit observations on the injury he has sustained by the course of proceedings adopted towards him.	426
May 29,	London.	Neilson, Walker and Gillespie to Glenelg. The unfortunate position of Canada when Neilson and Walker left and the anxiety of people with large interests there is their apology for again troubling His Lordship. They are anxious to let the petitioners know the views of His Majesty's Government on subjects brought before him (Glenelg) and what is likely to be the course for ensuring the efficiency of the executive authority and extending to the petitioners the full protection of the laws and their just rights as British subjects.	534
May—		Memorandum of how the principal chief of the Chippewas was entrapped into coming to Britain and what he suffered there. Application made on his behalf for relief.	227
		Enclosed. Statement of assistance solicited from the Colonial Office on behalf of the Indian Chief.	229

Chandler to Fox Maule. Represents that on account of the ambiguity of the titles the boundary between the Crown lands and seignior of Nicolet was left unsettled. In the action at law to settle this, the decision of the Privy Council operated unfavourably on his interests. Quebec. Secretan to the same. Sends certified copies of communication between Aylmer and himself. Aylmer has thought proper to say that it is his pleasure to put an end to all further proceedings respecting the complaint, the pretext being the refusal to send a copy to His Lordship of a private letter to Aberdeen. The reason apparently for Aylmer's course is to seek such provocation as would enable him to throw additional obstacles in the way of the complaint. Complains of the treatment to which his complaints were subjected. Sends copies of correspondence. 639
- Enclosed* Secretan to Aylmer. Fourteen days have passed since he (Aylmer) received a dispatch from the Colonial Secretary respecting his (Secretan's) representation. Does His Lordship intend to communicate any information on the subject? 644

December 26, Downing Street. Glenelg to Archdeacon Mountain. After the pledge given to Parliament to discontinue the annual vote towards the maintenance of the clergy in North America, the only way that aid can be given to the appointment of a suffragan to the Bishop of Quebec is to sanction the appointment of a clergyman to the office without any additional salary, for he could not hold out any secular inducement to any one to assume the labour and responsibility of the office. February 3, York.	Colborne to Goderich. (No 2). Bill introduced to authorise His Majesty to resume possession of the clergy reserves, but there was no inclination on the part of the House to take up the subject till next session. Had received dispatches on the subject which he promised to transmit to the Assembly. Closed the session on the 28th, a majority being opposed to taking the subject of clergy reserves into immediate consideration. The corporation for managing the clergy reserves will be glad to be released from granting leases; their duties. There are now several hundred applications for leases which have been acted upon and parties promised leases as soon as they can be completed, the applicants having taken possession in faith of the Government's promise. The clergy reserve leases having given great facilities to emigrants for establishing themselves and families at the easy rate of $7 a year, a number of families has settled. Persons who have already applied are to have communications forwarded but

In the early settlements large grants were made to individuals but since 1827 no free grants have been made except to United Empire loyalists and to men of the army, navy and incorporated militia who served during the late war, all others obtain by purchase. The settlement duties mentioned as a grievance are only required from persons entitled to free grants. The Crown and clergy reserves did increase the difficulties of the early settlers, but the former being sold to the Canada Company are rapidly settling and the latter offer no obstacle to improvement. 1832.
February 16,
York. Colborne to Hay. (private). Account of Mackenzie; all the provincial papers against him except those influenced by the Ryersons. He is a dangerous demagogue. Suggests that the salary of the Bishop of Quebec be not paid from the territorial revenue but from rents of the leased clergy reserves. Page 260
- Enclosed.* Extracts from the Canadian Freeman, condemnatory of Mackenzie's course, in which the Scarborough resolutions are quoted. 265
- Continuation. 276
- Remarks on Medical Board. Another grievance, defending the appointments made by Colborne. 283
- February—
York. Colborne to Goderich. (No. 10). Sends address from the Assembly, praying for the dismissal of the chaplain and that no other be appointed. Believing that the salary of the chaplain was fixed by a permanent Act and that the appointment is vested in the Crown does not consider himself authorised to discontinue the office. 286
- Enclosed.* Address. 288
- February 17,
York. Colborne to Goderich. (No. 11). Sends a sketch and remarks of Shirreff on the increase of the timber trade and Crown revenue that would follow the construction of timber slides at the rapids of the Chats and the Chaudiere. Recommends that this be done by taking a portion of the proceeds of the timber licences. 289
- Enclosed.* Remarks on the delays to timber at the Chats and Chaudiere causing an increase to the cost. How communication could be established from above the Chaudiere falls to the Rideau Canal. 291
- February 18,
York. Colborne to Goderich. (No. 12). Sends petition from Presbyterian ministers in Upper Canada not in connection with the Kirk of Scotland. 295

- February 20,
York. Colborne to Goderich. (No. 13). Transmits memorial from Lieut Edward O'Brien who cannot receive his half pay because he was employed to settle emigrants in the townships on Lake Simcoe. As he was only employed for a few months trusts that the memorial may have favourable consideration. 301
- Enclosed.* Memorial, 303
- February 22,
York. Colborne to Goderich. (No. 14). Sends memorial from the Welland Canal Company that they can make an advantageous arrangement by disposing of the water privileges, but as some doubt exists as to the power of Government over the hydraulic power; they ask that the mortgage be relinquished and it be declared that the only claim is over the tolls. 304
- Enclosed.* Memorial. 306
- February 24,
York. Colborne to Goderich. (No. 15). Forwards petition from emigrants and discharged soldiers settled at Perth in which it is stated they were led to believe their children would be recommended for a grant of lands when they were able to cultivate their allotments. A copy of the document of July 1818 is sent. The case has been several times before the Executive Council but as the indulgence is not mentioned in any correspondence the applications have been refused—The emigrants settled in Perth are loyal and industrious but to grant the indulgence would form an inconvenient precedent. Most of them are able to purchase land for their children. Page 308

Enclosed. Memorial. 310

Memorandum. That the sons of emigrants are to receive the usual indulgence of land as they come of age. 313

March 23,

Colborne to Goderich. (No. 16). The amount of revenue arising from rents, tolls and dues on the Rideau canal should be collected and ascertained by the officers of the Ordnance before any final arrangement is made as to the mode of defraying the contingent expenses. The Assembly will not provide for repairs to bridges, &c., but judging from the produce which passed from Lake Erie to Ontario as shown in report of the Welland canal, a proposal to that effect will be unnecessary. Sends copy of reply to the Respective officers at Quebec. 314

Enclosed. McMahon to Respective officers. Delay in answering owing to the illness of the Attorney General. The Governor has not yet received statement of the rates and dues established by the Welland canal, but sends copy of opinion by Attorney General, so that measures may be taken to report on the validity of titles of land purchased by By. The Governor thinks that even if tolls be established at a low rate, the proceeds should be sufficient for repairs. The collection of tolls, &c., should be entrusted to the Ordnance department until the extent of the commercial intercourse by the Ottawa and Rideau can be ascertained. 316

Boulton to McMahon. Has not heard from By for some time on the subject of the impediments placed by Merrick on the navigation of the Rideau, so presumes they have been discontinued. If resumed he shall take such prompt measures as may be required, but does not apprehend any difficulty on the subject. The lands and works of the Rideau canal cannot be vested in the Ordnance, the officers may have charge of the works, but the property must be vested in the Crown. The necessity to have the titles examined of all land bought by By or his predecessors. 318

McMahon to Respective Officers. Sends report from the Welland canal which may be useful. 321

Welland Canal Company to ———. Sends rates of toll and method of collecting. 322

Colborne to Hay. Meetings to check the progress of the demagogue. Mackenzie; the advantages to be derived from them. The Ryersons have unwisely taken an active political part with Mackenzie who knows he must fail if he does not keep up an excitement. Has not yet received the decision of the college council on the surrender of the charter. There is still a sum of about £20,000 of territorial revenue remaining. The emigrants settled on Crown lands last year are doing well, societies are forming in the Eastern districts to facilitate the conveyance of emigrants. 458

Colborne to Goderich. (No. 20). Reports that the proposed distribution of the casual and territorial revenue must be modified as the legislature had not provided for the salary of the Receiver General or for the clerks of the Surveyor General's office. Suggests that the salary of the Bishop of Quebec should be charged to the rents of the clergy reserves instead of being charged to the territorial revenue. 501

Enclosed. Statement of fund arising from the clergy reserves. 503

April 7,

Colborne to Goderich. (No. 21). The indigent emigrants before receiving their lands, signed an agreement to pay five shillings an acre by instalments. Most of them have cleared enough to maintain their families and can support themselves partly by wages from proprietors of lands who entered the back townships lately. The system of maintaining emigrants for a few months is the best to settle the country if the expense could be met by the territorial revenue or by the parishes desirous of removing their redundant population. The expenditure last year did not exceed £5,000. The details are in the accounts of the agents. The amount has been distributed with the greatest benefit to emigrants and to the province. The advantages to the local government to be able rapidly to settle any particular tract of country. Men with capital are applying to purchase land in townships settled last year by indigent emigrants; the advantages of this settlement. The prosperity of Oro. Of the territorial revenue, he considers £5,000 to be in his hands to assist emigrants sent out next year. Agents appointed. Buchanan afraid that the one at Quebec will interfere with his office and duties. 504

The character of Buchanan, agent at Quebec; the limitation of his opportunities to direct operations in Upper Canada. The duty to spread settlements over both provinces but the difficulties that may be met with in Lower Canada. 577
Enclosed. Colborne to Aylmer. Respecting emigration Buchanan has mistaken the instructions; any interference with agents will cause confusion. He (Colborne) has been instructed to station an agent at Quebec to afford information to emigrants. Owing to Buchanan's complaints the agents for Upper Canada in the lower province are to receive orders through him. Is aware of Buchanan's zeal, but no one is able to direct the operations of agents 600 miles distant. The advantages of employing experienced settlers to meet the emigrants at Quebec. 580
Memorandum on emigration. Buchanan will be furnished with maps on which are the waste lands for sale, and the townships which Government intends to settle this season. Directions as to his duties; the different points on which agents are placed in Upper Canada and their duties. 584

McMahon to Buchanan. Colborne directs Buchanan not to come to the Upper Province where he can be of no use. He will suggest to the Governor General the necessary instructions. 600
- May 7,
York. Colborne to Hay. The preparations for the reception of emigrants will facilitate their dispersion over the province. Dissatisfaction caused by the tax on emigrants in Lower Canada. Shall send the loyal addresses to the King adopted in every district. The strength put forward by the loyal portion of the province will have its effect for many years. There will be little trouble for some years about grievances if the factious party be discouraged and the respectable members be encouraged and supported.

Mackenzie is aware that his views require agitation to have them supported and began it a few months before the session. His principal supporters are settlers from the United States. Mackenzie's Colonial Advocate is taken by them and has made them restless and discontented. The Ryersons are making use of that paper to promote their own views and give them an influence in the province. They have received a check which will keep them in their proper places. Preparations to receive emigrants. Denounces Mackenzie as a seditious knave. Sends letter from Talbot, who says that if Mackenzie be treated as he deserves peace and good order will continue in his district. The caution to be observed in discussing the alien question. The fluctuating nature of the American population. The number of emigrants from the mother country will check emigration from the States. The benefit a bishop would be to Upper Canada. Page 601

The same to the same (No. 33). He regrets the conduct of the Assembly in expelling Mackenzie as by drawing attention to his calumnies it will place him in the situation he desires. The members who insisted on his expulsion are unconnected with the Executive Government and not influenced by its views. Mackenzie's attempt to show that he is persecuted by government. His persistent attacks on the House of Assembly. The conduct of Ryerson brought before the Conference. The cunning and effrontery of Mackenzie, his perservance in trying to create discontent, having made use of every kind of calumny, falsehood and deception to promote his views. 780

Enclosed. Mackenzie to Colborne. The opinion is held that government secretly approves of the grossest personal abuse of persons who differ from his (Colborne's) views as to the government of the province. How this course lowers the reputation of the province. Sends extract from the Niagara Herald to show the abuse he has to endure from officials, the paper being the property of Crooks, a justice of peace and post master. 787

Mudge to Mackenzie. The government has no influence over any newspaper. The propagation of calumny would be more checked by honest journalism than by the law. 791

The same to Smart. In every district there may be persons in the commission of the peace not altogether qualified for the duties but injustice might be done to individuals were government to interfere in all local disputes. In cases where the conduct of a magistrate may be exceptional, government must be guided by the opinion of the quarter sessions and not by an ex parte representation. 792

- July 5,
York. Colborne to Hay. Private and confidential. The complaints of Mackenzie of his being excluded from the Governor's table. With a person of Mackenzie's character there could be nothing beyond official intercourse. His efforts to promote sedition are as well known in the United States as in Canada. His objects are served if he could get his articles reproduced in the United States and in the old country. He can only be made more mischievous by giving him the least reason to suppose that government are alarmed by his measures. His (Colborne's) reply to the Episcopal Methodists has not had the effect it was calculated to produce, had the leaders been acting for the interests of religion only, but the truths contained in the reply have occasioned a favourable change. The Wesleyan Missionaries are prepared to take up the ground. Mackenzie said he followed the advice of Hume and Viger. The disease raging in Quebec and Montreal has reached Upper Canada. On its first appearance between Coteau du Lac and Prescott the men on the boats left them and abandoned the emigrants. Measures taken to meet the disease and to have the emigrants forwarded. Sends reports of the cases. 801

If they discharge their duties properly the church of England in Canada will prosper. Alder, the agent for the Wesleyan Methodists, has been authorised by the British Conference to ascertain the state of the Methodist society. The Conference will exert itself in the cause of religion and the Episcopal Methodists will unite with the Wesleyans. Recommends that the sum of £900 be placed at the disposal of the Presbyterians in communion with the Church of Scotland; £900 to be at the disposal of the Roman Catholic Bishop and £900 at the disposal of the British Wesleyan Conference. September 7, Colborne to Goderich (No. 44.) In accordance with directions reports York. that Lieut. Edward O'Brien ceased to hold the temporary office of superintendent of emigrants in Upper Canada on the 7th September, 1831. 882

September 10, Colborne to Hay. Recommends that the salaries of the clergy should York. be drawn from the rents of leases and the interest on sales rather than from the territorial revenue for advances to the church. The sum of £250 granted to Dr. Strachan has been discontinued, the town lots yielding an income equal to the amount formerly charged against territorial revenue. Has recommended that the Missionaries employed by the S. P. G. should receive £100, the rest of the salary to be paid by the society or the congregation. Had mentioned that 15 additional missionaries could be employed; is persuaded that double that number might be so if of a description fit to work in a new country. In townships recently occupied the missionary should take up his residence before the erection of a church, as it is difficult to gain ground occupied by sectarians. The Wesleyan and the Episcopal Methodists intend to unite. The Canadian Wesleyans, who broke off from the Episcopalian Methodists cannot well be refused pecuniary help. Suggests that £500 be given them. 873

Goderich to Colborne (private and confidential.) His ideas how the Church of England in Upper Canada, should in future be provided for as the present system cannot continue. Sketch for a plan which he suggests. 876

September 21, Colborne to Goderich (private and confidential.) How dispatches may York. be sent without being detained. Should affairs in Canada cause doubt, he would forward dispatches by every opportunity, but it would be found that any excitement would arise from local jealousies rather than from real grievances. Asks that weekly dispatches might be dispensed with unless required by the occurrence of important questions. There are none before the legislature that can cause the excitement often encouraged by a few persons representing the bad feeling of the province. The affection and loyalty of the province may be relied on. 883

September 21, The same to Hay (private.) Regrets the transfer in the department.
York. Circumspection required in dealing with the three parties in the province. Two are firmly attached to Great Britain and her institutions. All attempts to change the third party by concessions or undue attention to their proposals would fail and may prove ruinous in a colony where dependence must be placed on those opposed to their views. The emigration to the upper province is of the best description. “Fill up the vacant space in this province and occupy the waste lands of the Crown with as much speed as possible, and you will have no more cause of anxiety on account of the clamour in the Canadas.” 887

November 6, Colborne to Hay (private.) Has sent memorial from Strachan respecting York. his salary as president of the Board of Education, which was granted more from political considerations than from the services to be rendered as president. Differs in opinion on some questions from Strachan, who therefore considers him unfriendly. It would be best in that case for the Colonial Secretary to intimate to Strachan the expediency of his retiring from the Legislative Council. Is persuaded that he will not resign. Opened the session on the 31st ulto. It will be seen by the address that emigrants will not want encouragement in the province. Mackenzie will lose ground in the province if he be not encouraged in Great Britain. Shall forward in a few days statement respecting emigrants. Many commuted pensioners are in great distress whilst all who retained their pensions are going on prosperously. A soldier of 40 or 50 who squanders his commutation becomes a discontented, troublesome subject and thinks himself cruelly treated if he can obtain no assistance. Has called for a return of the pensioners who were without means. Suggests that pensions might be renewed for two years, so long as the pensioners remain on their land and clear a sufficient number of acres for the support of themselves and families. Some modification of the plan must take place for the sending discontented old soldiers may embarrass the local government. If still allowed to commute a certain advance might be made to them and a reduced pension granted for a few years whilst clearing their land. Has not permitted Phillpott to communicate to Strachan the suggestion of Goderich, knowing how sensitive Strachan is on any question which may refer to his secular and political occupations. Mackenzie has been again declared unfit to sit in the House of Assembly. The members and their constituents are too violent and determined to attend to suggestions recommending a more moderate course.

- November 30,
York. The same to the same (No. 52). With respect to the Indians, the British government cannot get rid of an inconvenient debt contracted when an alliance with them was highly appreciated. The policy towards them was notorious as well as the cringing when their active co-operation was necessary. The distribution of presents cannot be discontinued without a loss of character. The tribes in the settled districts have strong claims on the British Government, and as the presents cannot be withdrawn, it remains to be considered whether their value cannot be reduced. The document from Givins explains the regulations for distribution. Note of the distribution to the different tribes. If the value of the presents were reduced, the Indians would not take their laborious journey to obtain them. Estimated expense of the Indian department. The services of the various Indian officers. How the distribution is conducted and the issues checked. Asks to have the annual balance of the £20,000 allowed for the Indian department applied for civilising those in the surveyed districts of Upper Canada, others would follow their example. 911 Enclosed. Givins to Rowan. Report respecting the Indians and criticising Wilson's report and suggestions for a reduction in the Indian expenditure. 920

- June 13,
London. Mackenzie to Goderich. Had only once had an acknowledgement of the documents he sent having been received. Has been deputed by many thousands of the people of Upper Canada to bring over addresses to the King and to the House of Commons, to support the same by evidence and to bring the consideration of the state of Upper Canada, before the British nation and government. The other powers with which he is vested.
Neglect of representations made to the Lords and Commons of the state of Upper Canada. Reports the proceedings of many county and other meetings. Want of confidence in the Lieut. Governor. His success as a candidate for the legislature. The conduct of the administration condemned by the whole body of the land owners of the Home district. Hume and Viger are ready to wait upon his Lordship with Ryerson and himself (Mackenzie). Has been entrusted with the duty of obtaining the Royal authority to annul the Act to increase the capital of the bank at York. Extraordinary efforts made to obtain testimonials in favour of Sir John Colborne and his political advisers. Would be surprised if these were not to some extent successful.
The difficulty of the attempt to bring the state of the colony before His Majesty's government, but it seems impossible that any member could peruse the plain statement of facts and deny or procrastinate inquiry. Will wait on His Lordship or any committee or board at any moment. 3
- June 26,
London. Mackenzie to Howick. Has shown letter to Hume and Viger, who will wait on Goderich at the time appointed. Has also informed Ryerson of the hour. His letters referred to in that of the 13th were written with reference to public meetings and enclosing petitions. He has been informed that according to the rule of the Colonial office he cannot be recognized as acting for others and therefore has no right to expect answers. This will shut out the vast mass of facts he has collected and the decision has been as unexpected by him as by those he represents. Thinks it his duty to represent by memorial that an unrepresented body ought to have a hearing in the only way that can be obtained from His Majesty's government. Gives an instance of how a similar case was heard. Testimonial to Randal for his exertions on that occasion voted by the Assembly. The good effect of the modified Naturalisation Act, which would not have been the case had the Colonial Office been closed to the people of Canada as is now proposed. 12
- Enclosed.* "First Report of the inhabitants of Upper Canada whose having had a previous engagement. He, Viger and Ryerson could attend next week. 69

1832.
July 24,
London.

Mackenzie to Goderich. Transmits two letters addressed to His Lordship on the state of the representation in Upper Canada. The letters are coarsely written and very long but his Lordship will no doubt read them and the appendix as there is enough to show that there is no official channel by which the feelings, wishes and opinions of the people can be communicated to His Majesty's Government. Will show that the finances and commerce of England have been injured by long continued neglect of Upper Canada. The gratification it will be to him to look back on his making Upper Canada prosperous, free, happy and contented. Has not had time to copy the documents sent, will ask leave to do so for publication in Upper Canada. Page 70

Mackenzie to Howick. The merits of the petition of Appleton, the schoolmaster, were investigated and reported on favourably by the Assembly. Unfortunately his claim is opposed by Dr. Strachan so that he has to apply for redress to the Colonial Office. He would not have criticised the conduct of Phillpotts as a military officer in Canada had he not known he was here to give his own version and as superintendent of militia he, together with the superintendent of Indian Affairs, went to gaol rather than give evidence in accordance with the orders of government; the country being in a feverish condition hopes he may obtain a full investigation. 264

Mackenzie to Goderich. Sends copy of resolutions agreed to at a meeting of the freeholders of the district of Niagara. The address was signed by 1,618 petitioners and contains the names of more respectable, wealthy and influential inhabitants than any document ever agreed upon in that district. The meeting affords proof of the prevailing excitement. After it had been organized the minority left and adopted an address of their own. Asks for another audience. Mackenzie to Goderich. Regrets the vote of £27,000 to the Bishops and clergy of British North America as impolitic. The Assembly of Upper Canada has expressed unqualified opposition to the principle of a church establishment. Continued argument against a church establishment. Enclosed. Memorial. 491
- August 7, London. Mackenzie to Goderich. Represents the case of Thomas Filer, who has petitioned for land as a U. E. loyalist; the objection to the grant in Upper Canada being that he lived in Lower Canada previous to 20th July, 1798, he can get no relief. Forwards his petition. 482
Enclosed. Petition of Thomas Filer, stating his services and asking for land. 484
- August 8, London. Mackenzie to Goderich. Sends memorial from Lieutenant McDermid for the royal bounty. He had made applications to Upper and Lower Canada and to the Colonial Office but without effect. His condition of penury. 502
- August 8, London. Hume, Viger and Mackenzie to Goderich. Have been requested to transmit address from the inhabitants of the district of Niagara, dated 31st March, 1832, to be presented to the King. 505
A note says that the committee at Fort George stated that the number of signatures was 1,618. 506
- August 13, Downing Street. Howick to Mackenzie. Goderich has found on perusal of Filer's papers that the Executive Council has decided correctly in his case and he sees no reason to change the decision. Filer's petition should have been sent through the Lieut. Governor and in future Goderich will insist on this being done. 487
- August 13, Downing Street. The same to the same. Has received memorial of Neil Mackinnon for land. A similar memorial was sent by Mackinnon through the Lieut. Governor and the application was refused having been made long after the sale system was established. 493
- August 13, Downing Street. The same to the same. He will, as requested, be allowed to make copies of papers on the public affairs of Upper Canada, but they cannot be furnished to him. 501
- August 15, Downing Street. The same to the same. In reference to the application on behalf of McDermid, Goderich cannot interfere with the decision of the legislature respecting his name being struck off the pension list. His claim for a year's pay for wound should be made to the Secretary at War. 504
- August 15, Downing Street. Goderich to Hume, Viger and Mackenzie. Has received their letter enclosing memorial of the inhabitants of the district of Niagara which he has laid before the King. 507
- August 15, London. Mackenzie to Goderich. Has received letter that Neil McKinnon's petition was presented in vain. Asks for the return of the papers. Thanks for allowing a clerk to copy the papers. Has learned that Filer's petition has been refused. Asks for the papers. Had received circular that the petition should have been sent through the Lieut. Governor a rule to be strictly enforced. Had always tried to obey the regulations. Filer's petition was submitted to the Lieut. Governor and receipt was acknowledged by McMahon, his private secretary. That was sent with or before the petition. Believes he has conformed to the regulations contained in the circular of 2nd May, 1831, but the contents of the circular now sent were never published in the Colony. Makes further statement on the regulations. Hume promised to bring all grievances before the House of Commons, but His Lordship's willingness to redress all grievances had rendered this unnecessary. His complaints against Colborne and Strachan; his desire to make extracts from the duplicate journals of Assembly the originals having been burned. No extracts can be made in Canada owing to this cause for the ten years preceding 1824 except for the year 1821. Complains that he cannot obtain details of the public expenditure in Upper Canada, contrary to the practice in Lower Canada and secrecy always gives rise to suspicion. Respecting fees collected by the Deputy Postmaster General, the memorial of Appleton, a schoolmaster, and other subjects. Page 508

August 20,

Howick to Mackenzie. The letter of Colborne's secretary acknowledging the receipt of Filer's petition was attached to the resolution of the inhabitants of Niagara and thus escaped the notice of Goderich, so that he was not aware that Filer had complied with the regulations. How official correspondence should be sent. Papers sent to the department become official, so that those of Filer and McKinnon cannot be returned, but those or any others he has forwarded may be copied. Appleton's petition has been sent to the Lieut. Governor of Upper Canada. Goderich can not allow him to examine various accounts and documents in His Lordship's office. Duplicate copies of the Legislative papers and documents burned during the war have been sent to Upper Canada. 520

August 27,

Mackenzie to Goderich. Had received letter that the address of the Niagara district had been laid before the King, but there were forty or fifty other addresses or petitions delivered to His Lordship by Hume, Viger and himself to be presented to the King, some addressed to His Majesty in Council. They were delivered long before the Niagara address but no answer has been received respecting them. The petitioners did not wish to subject themselves to the species of remarks that Colborne indulged in towards the Methodists, by asking him as a favour to transmit the address. They complied with terms of the circular by sending certified copies the acknowledgments for which were transferred to the Colonial Office. If convenient it would be acceptable to give an answer to each address. The people of the colony have as yet been unable to find one Act for the general good by the reform ministry during its two years of existence. The copies of the journals of Assembly to be sent only extend to 1812 when the House was first burned. It was burned again in 1824 and except for one volume in manuscript and one printed the set is missing. He had found no difficulty in obtaining access to the journals of the Commons and cannot understand why his request should be thrice refused. Sends statement of and plan for the adjustment of the war losses. The injustice with which people were treated who lost all. What may be expected from this treatment should occasion again arise. Is not prepared to copy McKinnon and Filer's papers which he received as their property. If Bathurst's letter to McKinnon were returned a subscription would be opened for him, as he was promised the 200 acres. He had sent the circular to Canada that all addresses must be sent through the Lieut.-Governor; is now told that this is a mistake. Shall call on Howick to ascertain what is really the rule. Address from the County of Hastings sent to him for presentation by mail, the sum of £4, 6, 8 being charged as postage which Freeling offered to reduce to $8. Asks that it be delivered free of postage, as it is on public business. 523

Howick to Mackenzie. All the addresses were laid before the King. He may communicate this fact to the persons who signed them, without receiving a separate answer to each. interview. Appelton's petition was received without acknowledgement from the Lieut. Governor so was sent to him in July. As to the return of papers, those sent in letters are retained for reference and to depart from this rule would lead to the greatest inconvenience. As he (Mackenzie) was not aware of the rule he may have the papers but is warned that the same privilege would not be again granted. He can obtain more explicit information as to transmitting petitions. Godrich cannot interfere with the post-master General as to postage of petition. The inhabitants of Upper Canada have a secure and easy method of transmitting complaints to the Throne by the official channel. Page 776

Mackenzie to Goderich. Sends first statement sent concerning the petitions to the King which were signed by a majority of the male population of Upper Canada. His conduct approved of in not urging the discussion of the whole of the grievances by the House of Commons, His Lordship having rendered that unnecessary. Has met with unexpected difficulties in obtaining an audience and gives details of these. Asks now for an answer at as early a date as His Lordship's leisure would allow. 780

Goderich to Colborne. Dispatch laid before the Assembly of Upper Canada. Although he declined to discuss the policy respecting Upper Canada, he has afforded Mackenzie every opportunity of doing justice to his case. Has selected three documents from the mass presented by Mackenzie who has adopted a style ill adapted to bring questions of so much intricacy and importance to a practical issue. He devoted his leisure to the consideration of Mackenzie's case as representing the comparatively small body as opposed to the much more numerous bodies on the other side. It is not necessary to have a very long experience of public controversies to be aware of the levity with which pretensions are advanced on the slightest grounds. The petitions on Mackenzie's side are signed by 12,075 persons, those on the other side by 26,854 expressing satisfaction with the laws and institutions, the others have impugned. Criticises the statements in Mackenzie's papers. 806

Mackenzie to Goderich. Appeals for reform in Upper Canada in view of the disturbed state of various countries and the probabilities of a general war. The same to Hay (private). Had proposed a scheme for rendering the labour of emigrants productive. The importance of emigration and its good effects. Sends estimates of the outlay and returns for one year based on the supposition that 100 acres might be cleared and planted before the 10th June and the crops and improvements sold to emigrants before September. How the scheme would furnish labour. The cost of distributing the emigrants but the benefit they have been to the province. The expenditure, about £10,000, can be borne by the territorial revenue without inconvenience. The expulsion and re-election of Mackenzie took place quietly; few interested. His dispatches are very amusing. The question of the clergy reserves difficult to solve. How is it to be disposed of? Transmits three reports of select committees and calls attention to those on the University and on education. Thinks the Secretary of State will approve of the terms of the new charter and of incorporating the Upper Canada College with King's College. Reverts to the question of emigration and points out what a magnificent colony can be raised up in ten years and by proper regulations firmly attached to the mother country. The estimate for the employment of emigrants will bear a rigid inspection. Hopes that the Secretary of State will approve of the scheme and that he may receive his instructions in April. If the charter should be confirmed recommends that the medical school should be opened as soon as possible. Dr. Rolph is a candidate for a professorship and should be encouraged. 51

Colborne to Hay. Has received the voluminous correspondence resulting from Mackenzie's visit. He is regarded by a majority of the respectable classes and known to be a seditious, unprincipled demagogue. Many of his statements and insinuations are against the Assembly and Legislative Council; believes therefore that the production of the dispatch before prorogation would cause much irritation. Several of the subjects spoken of by Mackenzie had been laid before the Colonial Secretary by the Assembly and Lieut. Governor and two of the most respectable and opulent gentlemen had been sent to London to urge payment of the war losses without effect but as soon as a persevering impostor gives his version the claims are taken into consideration. Mentions these facts to show what caution should be used in dealing with a demagogue formidable from perseverance and cunning. If it is understood that a demagogue makes an impression whilst those who in times of emergency are looked to for support continue to be overlooked, the reputation of the demagogue must rise in the estimation of his fellows and enable him to increase his factious party. He could be rendered harmless if managed properly, but has no doubt he will on his return try to establish political unions. The province is tranquil and many of Mackenzie's supporters are not sorry he is absent. Hopes the nomination of Rolph for the professorship will not be forgotten. 183

1833.	Colborne to Goderich. Sends statement of funds from rent of lands and interest on sales of clergy lands, of the sums from Crown lands paid to the Assistants Commissary and of clergy lands sold in 1832. Remarks on payments and revenues of the latter. Considers himself authorised to issue warrants to pay the salaries of the church of England missionaries, to build rectories, &c.	Page 187

January 17, York.	Colborne to Goderich (No. 5). A bill has passed the legislature for payment of that part of the war losses which is to be settled in the province. Recommends that the sum of £57,000 granted conditionally be authorised to be paid to the claimants.	192
January 23, York.	The same to the same (No. 6). To show the advantages that might be derived from the sale of part of the reserves and in encouraging the extension of the town to the westward sends plan of the town and harbour of York and of the land called the military reserve. Had been instructed to lease a portion of the reserve but nothing was done owing to difficulties in the way and to the doubt that the class of settlers who might promote the prosperity of the town would not improve a lease hold. The value of the lands has increased and if a portion of the reserves was sold the average price of £200 an acre might be obtained. The reason for recommending the sale of this land is because the eastern part of the town is affected by the effluvia from the Don. Further improvements referred to in accompany ing report.	194

January 23, York.	Colborne to Hay. Considering the effect Goderich's able refutation of Mackenzie's statements would have, he had decided to transmit it to the Assembly. Mackenzie has stated in his paper that Hume recommends the establishment of political unions in the province. His conduct is disgraceful in encouraging this mischievous demagogue.	204
	P. S. Should an application be made by the directors of the Canada Company to purchase more land it should be rejected as the exertions of a land company cannot now promote the welfare of the country.	205
January 24, York.	Colborne to Goderich (No. 7). Has transmitted to the Assembly His Lordship's dispatch with statements from Mackenzie with his voluminous documents. Sends copy of his message. and with reference to the petitions carried by Mackenzie has no doubt that his (Colborne's) conduct will be approved of. Page 218

Enclosed. Address of Assembly to Colborne returning thanks for transmitting dispatch respecting letters and documents addressed to Goderich to prove that the people of the happy and prosperous colony were oppressed and burdened with grievances. Considering that the bearer, Mackenzie, was twice expelled from the Assembly and who from having fabricated libels was unworthy of a seat in the Assembly, His Lordship, it might be supposed, had he thought of this, would not have felt at liberty to recognise him as the agent or speaking the sentiments of any portion of the inhabitants of Upper Canada. The remedy for any ill complained of is in the hands of the Legislature of the colony. The proper opinion of the nature of the people held by the Colonial Secretary. 220

Colborne to Goderich (No. 11). Browne, a magistrate, complained of by Levi Soper, may not have been qualified for all the duties but the executive government could not displace him by dismissal unless a case of misconduct was clearly made out. Sends report on Browne's case. 246

Enclosed. Complaint of Soper that Browne had not been dismissed. 248
Memorandum without date or signature on Soper's complaint (here called Leonard, elsewhere Levi). The magistrates of the Newcastle district charge Towke with writing Soper's complaint against Browne and forging his signature. Towke is the correspondent of Hume. The salary of the Speaker of the Legislative Council should be secured permanently and if the Assembly would not admit the charge he trusted to be authorised to pay the salary from the provincial funds under the control of the Crown. Calls attention to reductions of salaries. If the expenditures for civil government not voted by the Assembly are authorized to be paid by the Crown revenues the greater part of the expenditure might be gradually transferred by the House to the territorial revenues. March 27, York.	Colborne to Goderich (private and confidential). Had after some hesitation decided to send dispatch of 8th November to the Legislative Council and Assembly knowing the temper in which it would be received; but it was thought desirable to have it circulated owing to its refutations of Mackenzie's statements, particularly as his adherents had assumed a very subdued tone. He (Goderich) may form a good idea of the manner in which it was received by the two newspapers sent. The difference in the estimate of the number of signatures to petitions. Has not had time to procure a list of the petitions but believes the statement he made to Hay is correct. The failure of Mackenzie's friends to hold meetings. Had they been successful they would have endeavoured to form political unions as advised by Hume.	329

Colborne to Goderich (private and confidential). Recommends that the Imperial Parliament deal with the clergy reserves as the Assembly would never adopt any measure satisfactory to the province or approved of by His Majesty's government. Whatever arrangements are made will be received with dissatisfaction by all parties interested. Government therefore can pursue no other course than one which may protect the interests of the Episcopal Church and dissenting churches so far as political affairs will allow. Considers that if certain changes were made the Episcopal Church would not oppose them although at present they contend for their extreme rights. Statement of the acreage sold with the probabilities of future sales. The Presbyterians in communion with the Church of Scotland have no reason to complain, if certain advantages were given. 385

Colborne to Hay (private). Has lately written to Goderich on various subjects. Trusts the subject of the war losses will never be brought before the provincial legislature again. The clergy reserves must be settled by the Imperial Parliament and if possible this session. How the reserves might be disposed of, but none of the parties interested will be satisfied with an arrangement that can be prudently made. Does not believe that the advantageous terms offered to emigrants by Upper Canada will affect Lower Canada as the advantages of the Upper Province are so great and if the emigrants cannot get land there they will move to the westward. The progress made by townships owing to the encouragements afforded to emigrants. The evil effect of the neglect of this policy. Does not believe that the Land company in Lower Canada will find a profit in their land speculations. The profits of the company in Upper Canada arise from the sale of Crown reserves in the old townships. Sends paper to show how signatures are obtained to petitions and the little importance to be attached to them, the character of the meetings and the class of settlers to be the test. The circumspection required in dealing with Mackenzie; his perseverance, cunning and disregard of truth give him some advantage. The permission to him to examine the provincial journals gives him a lift as a provincial agent; but hopes that his folly and want of judgment have rendered him less formidable than he had been. Thanks for Goderich's dispatch of 8th February. 462

York.

The same to Goderich (No. 28.) Sends document to explain the grounds on which he applied to the commander of the forces for the issue of arms to companies of militia that would clothe themselves. Believed himself authorized to direct the officers of volunteers to receive the arms. The issue, it was stated by the commander of the forces was made on the understanding that should government insist on payment he (Colborne) should guarantee it, but subsequently the commander of the forces in a private communication said he would comply with any requisition of his (Colborne). Return sent of the arms issued. 471

Enclosed. Kempt to Colborne. Will comply with the demand for arms on the understanding that if government insists on payment, he (Colborne) shall guarantee the same. 474

1833.

Rowan to H. J. Boulton. The part of the political proceedings of himself and the Solicitor General to which the Colonial Secretary particularly adverts is their promoting the repeated expulsion of a member of the Assembly, although the constitutional objections to this were communicated. Page 503

H. J. Boulton to Rowan. Desires to know for what breach of public duty he and the Solicitor General have been removed from office. 504

May 2,

Colborne to Goderich. Hopes to remove the unfavourable impression that exists in His Lordship's mind. In his letter of 10th January he intended to represent strongly the impolicy of allowing Mackenzie to obtain credit for settling a question which neither Clarke nor Crooks had succeeded in doing. His frank letters to Hay were always written with the best intentions. 505

May 8,
York.

The same to Hay (private). Boulton has suggested being furnished with a letter of introduction. His prospects destroyed in consequence of his dismissal. It would be satisfactory if the affair could be concluded by the replacing of Boulton and Hagerman. 508

May 8,
York.

The same to the same (private). His essay on his political proceedings will explain his difficulties. The Executive Government cannot interfere with the views of members of the Assembly; but it has been its aim to encourage persons of influence, and whose attachment to the Mother Country was known to endeavour to obtain seats in the Assembly. If the House should be well composed during next session no great inconvenience could be experienced from the factious spirit encouraged by Mackenzie. The hostility of many to the local government may be traced to jealousy or disappointment. It may be expedient to appease them. But the views of others are directed to republican institutions, having no regard for the Mother Country. The least concession to this party can only increase their power for mischief. The difficulty on deciding as to patronage. He is of no party. Believes that by a steady course the influence of Mackenzie may be destroyed, and alleged grievances discussed without apprehension of the result. The unfortunate result of submitting the dispatch of the 8th of November to the Assembly. Had written to Goderich explaining his remarks on the claims for losses. Is aware how difficult it is to get rid of the pertinacious demagogue. The character of the newspapers he is asked to forward. 510

The same to Goderich. Appleton's petition with report by the president of the Board of Education on his case was forwarded in dispatch of 19th April, 1832. Sends copy of dispatch with enclosures. 515

Appleton to Colborne. Sends copy of petition addressed to Goderich for which he asks an acknowledgment. 517

Petition of Appleton. States his services as a schoolmaster and prays for an investigation of his complaint of being deprived of the statutory allowance. 521

May 13,
York.

Colborne to Goderich (private and confidential). Sends considerations that may influence His Lordship's decision in approving of the person recommended for the office of Solicitor General and may show the difficulty in nominating a provincial barrister for the office. Boulton is unpopular and Hagerman not sufficiently popular to occasion any great sensation in the province on his own account but the dismissal of these gentlemen cannot fail to irritate a number of settlers who believe they were endeavouring to put an end to the system of agitation begun by Mackenzie. Considers it would be imprudent to recommend any one whose appointment would be considered a triumph for Mackenzie. Has been left little discretion as regards the nomination of a successor, as a positive expression of opinion is required respecting the qualifications of members of the bar whose political course has been at variance with that of the late law officers of the Crown. In this class Bidwell, John Rolph and Robert Baldwin must be placed and declared qualified to fill the office of Solicitor General. None of these should be appointed and if his choice were left free he would recommend Mr. Archibald Maclean, of Cornwall, as the fittest person for Solicitor General. Will not communicate with him till he hears how far the nomination may be considered objectionable. His political opinions and influence. Whoever is appointed must be informed that it is only a temporary engagement. Sends list of barristers. 525

Colborne to Hay (private and confidential). The appointment of John Rolph to the office of Solicitor General adds to the mortification of those who regret the result of Mackenzie's mission. Has been always on good terms with Rolph and his refusal to attend Mackenzie's meetings gives him a claim on the Executive Government. He resides in York and has a large practice as a surgeon. If appointed to a lectureship in the university, the province would derive more benefit from his talents as professor of anatomy than from the course his political friends are desirous he should adopt. This deserves consideration. 532

York.

The same to the same (No. 33). In reference to the statement by Mackenzie that of the majority of 27 members of Assembly who voted against an address for the dissolution of the Assembly, 19 held offices at the pleasure of the Crown, there were only 7 holding such offices exclusive of two postmasters appointed by the deputy postmaster general, unless magistrates and officers of militia be included, and almost every intelligent land holder, living on his estate and of good character, is either one or the other. In reference to the delay in sending the blue book, the assessment and population returns are not collected till June, so that it can seldom be completed before the end of July. Notes on various subjects. The attempts to hold meetings in various districts to form political unions have proved abortive. 539

Note on the method of making up the blue book. 543

Enclosed. Cameron to Rowan. He is ready as provincial secretary to prepare the blue book but must have additional assistance. 544

York. Colborne to Goderich (No. 35). Sends report of a select committee of the Assembly, on the Post Office department in Upper Canada, but not approved. If an annual statement of the income and expenditure were laid before the Legislative Council and Assembly few would desire that the legislature should have further control. - July 12, York. Colborne to Hay (private). On his route to Long Point and return he saw the increasing prosperity of the western parts of the province, the whole population contented and happy, the emigrants improving their lands with much energy. The discharged soldiers at Adelaide suffered much in the spring from their own imprudence and idleness; most of them are now employed, but several have left to seek employment. Ten thousand emigrants have arrived at Quebec, of whom 4,000 have reached York. The Lord Egremont's emigrants have been forwarded to the western townships to join their countrymen established there last autumn. The demand for labour is extensive. The number of emigrants arriving is larger than that of last year. Several persons with capital, not intending to settle, have bought blocks of land, being alarmed at the state of affairs in Great Britain. Is afraid that these speculators will shut up some of the best townships. Jameson has entered on his duties as Attorney General, and will take the Western Circuit. Draper has been nominated King's Counsel for the Eastern Circuit. The journals supporting Mackenzie are trying to prepare their respective districts for an election, but they do not appear to have much influence. Has no doubt Mackenzie received information which should not have been communicated to him. Will forward the half yearly return of the receipts and expenditure of the territorial revenue as soon as possible. The expense for emigrants last year was very great, but in view of the disease raging and of the panic, it was necessary. 653
- July 23,

August 2,
York.

Colborne to Stanley (No. 48). Has received dispatch with enclosures respecting the Banks of Upper Canada. Run caused by the information forwarded by Mackenzie that the Act passed to amend the charter of the Bank of Upper Canada and to establish the Commercial Bank was to be disallowed. Had, therefore, considered it expedient to communicate contents of the dispatch to the president and directors of the Bank of Upper Canada. Sends copy of the official notice which he hopes will prevent any injurious result. Suggests that the Lieutenant Governor may be instructed to withhold the order disallowing the Act should the provisions proposed by His Majesty's government be adopted at an early period of the session. Page 1

Enclosed. Rowan to Allan, president of the Bank of Upper Canada. In reference to the proposed amendment to the charter of the Bank of Upper Canada and of the Commercial Bank, Colborne will forward any observations the directors may wish to send. 4

Allan to Colborne. Long and elaborate detail of the proceedings of the Bank of Upper Canada, established on the same principles as those of banks in Lower Canada whose charters had been sanctioned. 6

Petition to the Assembly for an amendment to the charter of the Bank of Upper Canada to enable the capital to be increased. 40

Memorial from the president and directors of the Bank of Upper Canada praying that the proclamation of the disallowance of the Act to increase the capital of the bank may be delayed until His Majesty's government may be made acquainted with the ruinous consequences of such a measure. 42

August 2,
York.

Colborne to Hay. Introduces Dunn, Receiver General, who is a director of the Bank of Upper Canada and a shareholder in the Commercial Bank, and can give him information of the proceedings of the banks and the probable effects of the disallowance. 44

August 2,
York.

The same to the same (private). Had reported that he thought it expedient to communicate to the president of the Bank of Upper Canada the intentions of His Majesty's government to disallow the Act for increasing the capital. The information circulated by Mackenzie and his friends would probably have occasioned a run on the Kingston Bank had he (Colborne) not addressed the official note to the president. The orders in Council disallowing the Act need not be notified before January next, suggests that the interests of the public would be best consulted by authorising the Lieutenant Governor to withhold the order if the amended Act can be carried into effect at an early period of the session. 46

August 3,
York.

The same to Stanley (No. 49). Has granted leave of absence to Dunn, Receiver General, for six months. Sends copy of letter from him assigning his reasons for applying for leave. 48

Enclosed. Dunn to Rowan. Has been unsuccessful in his attempt to borrow money on the credit of Upper Canada. The failure does not so much arise from the interest being limited as from the great scarcity of money. Must give up the system of trying to borrow money on this side of the Atlantic. Believes he can obtain the money in London. Sends copy of letter from there which in some degree induced him to proceed to London. 49

Colborne to Stanley (No. 50). Sends petitions from Jackson, Nixon, Ardill and Lewis, complaining of being ejected by Talbot from lands they had held for some years. Talbot explained that he found it necessary to dispose of the lots of petitioners to others to enforce the laws, they besides not being desirable settlers. The petitioners are not satisfied and ask that their cases be laid before His Majesty's government. Page 53

Enclosed. Rowan to the presiding Councillor. Sends four petitions with report by Talbot. The Lieutenant Governor desires the Executive Council to report on the cases for transmission to His Majesty's Government. 55

The Executive Council can afford no further information on the petitions transmitted to that contained in them and in the report by Talbot. Before transmitting them to the Colonial Secretary, the Council think this should be communicated so that Talbot could furnish a more detailed statement if desired. 56

Petition of William Jackson. 57

Rowan to Jackson. The statement in his petition will be referred to Talbot. 61

Jackson to Rowan. Contradicts the statement of Talbot that he had been entered for 100 acres 12 years ago and had never occupied or improved the land. He had only been entered for nine years and had occupied and improved a considerable portion of it as proof of which the locatee had the improvements surveyed and offered to pay for them. He is not an emigrant as Talbot says, but has lived with his father in London for 13 years, being only 19 years old. 62

Memorandum that the papers were sent to Talbot for his observations. 64

Jackson to Rowan. Understands that the Lieut. Governor does not think it a case in which he can interfere; shall be pleased to have the case laid before His Majesty's government and asks that his papers be sent. 65

Petition of John Nixon. 67

Parkinson to Nixon. That his name has been taken off the map for the lot on which it was entered. 70

Certificate by neighbors in favour of John Nixon. 71

Nixon to ———. Contradicts Talbot and alleges he had his consent to acquire the lot from Welsh and Caldwell, when he paid for improvements. 72

Memorandum by Rowan that the preceding was referred to Talbot for his observations. 74

Nixon to Rowan. Introduces Jackson. Had received an answer to his petition with Talbot's explanation which he proved to be untrue. Had since received no answer. If he is considered unworthy of further notice asks that his petition and papers be returned that he may apply to His Majesty's government. 75

Nixon to Rowan. The Lieut. Governor does not think the case one which will warrant his interference. Is desirous that His Majesty's government should be put in possession of all the facts. 77

his suggestions as to the preparations that might be made for the reception of 100,000 emigrants annually into Upper Canada. It is believed that the sentence of expulsion on Mackenzie will be rescinded as it is considered he will fail if not supposed to be persecuted. Page 697

Colborne to Stanley (No. 73). A bill similar to the one disallowed for dividing the County of Carleton having been assented to, he will not promulgate the order of disallowance till receiving further instructions. Thinks there may be some misapprehension as to the necessity of a suspending clause, to Acts passed either in this province or in Lower Canada. Instructions as to reserving bills. 703

Colborne to Stanley (No. 75). It is not probable that the salary of the speaker of the Legislative Council will be provided by the Assembly. If the Assembly reject the charge, recommends it be paid from the casual and territorial revenue. The claims of the present Chief Justice are fully stated in the memorial sent. The Assembly considers that the salary of the Provincial Secretary and Registrar should be charged to the Crown revenue. 717

Colborne to Stanley (No. 76). Motion that Mackenzie take his seat in the Assembly negatived by 18 votes to 7. On this and on the Act for dividing the County of York being disallowed, Mackenzie has sent a memorial of which a copy is annexed. In this he complains that York is disfranchised and requests his (Colborne's) interposition to do him justice. Had communicated with the Assembly on the subject. That communication will show the difficulties the Executive government had to contend with. 732

Enclosed. Memorial from Mackenzie in explanation of his position. 736

Rowan to Mackenzie. Points out the view taken by His Majesty's government of the expulsion of Christie in Lower Canada, cited by Mackenzie in his memorial. 753

December 14,
York.

Colborne to Hay. The expulsion of Mackenzie will in some measure increase his influence but will not affect the elections next year. He will, no doubt, be reelected in York. Does not believe he should interfere between the Assembly and the County of York. The subscription to send Mackenzie to England showed that his influence did not extend beyond that county. The addition by bill of two members for York is fully warranted; finds that the bill should have been reserved, but he thinks as York contains 40,000 persons the Act should be confirmed, or if disallowed the decision should be sent early in spring. Remarks on the memorial of the Chief Justice. The delay that would be caused to public improvements, if he is not to assent to bills authorising the issue of government paper. - May 11, London. Hagerman to the same. Since coming to London has received copy of the dispatch sent by Goderich to Colborne, directing the dismissal of the Attorney and Solicitor General. No particular charge was then made but he has now learned from the Earl of Ripon the grounds of his dismissal. Kennedy to Stanley (private and confidential.) Sends copy of the York Courier, the official organ of the Executive, containing dispatch and other documents respecting the removal of the law officers of the Crown. Calls attention to the correspondence between the Lieut. Governor and Attorney General, which shows that the least check makes those in office throw off the mask of loyalty, and openly set His Majesty's government at defiance and give utterance to rebellious sentiments and threats, one of which he quotes. He regrets that, no doubt by the advice of the present Executive, public meetings have been held to oppose the policy of His Majesty. Encloses report of one of these meetings attended by about seventy persons out of a population of 4,000, a proof of how the executive officers stand when opposed to the Imperial Government. Report of the proceedings at the meeting at Kingston, with remarks. 332

Thompson to ————. Is sending numerous addresses to His Majesty on subjects of interest to the province. The first contains 18,000 or 20,000 signatures respecting the appropriation of the clergy reserves. Notwithstanding repeated declarations of the King's disapproval of exclusive privileges being given to any one body of Christians, yet numerous glebes of the choicest reserves have been lately given to the Church of England. Other addresses more numerous signed will also be sent. Attempts have been made to put down these meetings by force, and all appeals to the local Executive have been made in vain. Calls attention to the method of forming the family compact and sustaining abuses; it cannot be difficult to estimate the treatment to the inhabitants when the Chief Justice can pen such an address as is attached to this. There is a well grounded belief that all who take a decided stand against abuses will feel the judicial consequences and the case of Francis Collins is cited as an instance, all appeals for clemency being rejected by the Lieut. Governor. It is the wish of the central political union, of which he is president, that these sentiments should be communicated. 597

Enclosed. Reply of the Legislative Council to Goderich's dispatch which shows the falsity of Mackenzie's statements, these having been made with a very unusual disregard of truth. The outrageous charges against the authorities and people of the province who can only regard Mackenzie's statements to the Colonial secretary with unqualified contempt. Comment at some length on the contents of the dispatch. 601

July 1, London. Hagerman to Hay. Would it be convenient for Stanley to present him to the King at the first levée? Page 293
- July 2, Treasury. Stewart to the same. The Lords of the Treasury consider it to be an indispensable preliminary to any further contributions towards the liquidation of losses incurred in the war of 1812 that an amount equal to that already contributed by the Treasury should be voted and expended in Upper Canada. 71
- July 2, London. Yates to the same. Has received lists of words and forms of speech with equivalents from Upper Canada. Sends thanks on behalf of the Philological Society. 112

Asks to be allowed to make further communications. 436

Denies that he owes the money alleged to be due by him to the Ordnance, asks that his accounts may be settled and his letters and papers returned. 178
- Enclosed.* Papers concerning the case of Burgess. 184
- July 6, Reading. Bigg to Stanley. Sends observations on the political state of Upper Canada. The exasperation of the ultra Tory party at the removal of the law officers of the Crown for which a large majority of the Canadian people are grateful. The proximity of the United States makes it dangerous to have invidious distinctions in favour of one or more denominations of Christians. Nine tenths of the Upper Canadians are averse to anything like an established religion. People are more ready to pay for schools than for demands by government officers. Thinks that at least a portion of the lands set apart for schools should be sold and the proceeds expended in forming new roads and in improvements. The difficulty in arriving at a correct conclusion as to the real state of public feeling. The influence of the settlers from the United States. The Canadian people are the happiest on earth, although grievance mongers try to persuade them that they are not so. The disposal of the clergy reserves in some way to conduce to the prosperity of the country would excite the admiration and love of the people. 188
- July 8, Downing Street. Stephen to Hay. Is of opinion that the law to tax emigrants coming to Lower Canada is not beyond the powers of that legislature. The argument in dealing with the case is elaborate. 32 feel anxiety to do him justice in these particulars and Maitland will do the same if in England. January 5, Mackenzie to Goderich. The rules laid down in his and Howick's letters cannot be reconciled. Government has been misled and he proposes to put it right. Had refused to apologize to the Assembly for what he said of the members in his newspaper, not having given up his right as an editor to criticise. His county could act as a jury and he would retire from the press and the legislature if the county showed confidence in the Governor, Council or Assembly. Had challenged Government to bring forward a candidate, and circulated thousands of his speech as the address he meant to deliver on the hustings. He was elected by a large majority and was re-expelled. His majority in the heart of the province, shows that the rest of the counties did not sympathize with the executive. Has sent the speech he delivered on the 2nd of January to show the grounds on which he was returned, and also as being the alleged libel which formed the pretext on which he was expelled. The circumstances attending the expulsion of Christie in Lower Canada; His Majesty's Government had refused a constitutional dissolution in Upper Canada which gave the local administration an opportunity again to secure his expulsion. His election of 20th November last, shows not only the confidence of the electors in him but their want of confidence in the local authorities and the general Government. The disappointment in Upper Canada at the support given by a reform government. His anticipations fulfilled to the letter. Doubts the existence of alleged sympathizers with the governor whose addresses are acknowledged in the Courrier, whilst the slightest acknowledgment is withheld from a body of petitioners who appeared in a less equivocal character.

Enclosed. Copies of addresses with answers and remarks. 9

January 9,

Mackenzie to Goderich. His reasons for believing that His Majesty's Government has been misled as to the real character and numbers of the memorialists who express opinions directly opposite to those which he (Mackenzie) maintains. The signatures to petitions to the King entrusted to him, had 20,000 signatures from one to two hundred districts, so that petitions sent by the Lieutenant-Governor of an opposite character could not be signed by a larger number. Either he carried spurious petitions or the addresses sent by Colborne deserved that designation. If he had doubted he was expressing the opinions of the people of Upper Canada, he would not have crossed the Atlantic on the errand that has detained him. Had been urging the dissolution of the legislature and the calling of a new provincial parliament so as to ascertain public opinion; it is through the Assembly that the petitioners propose to carry plans of reform. It would have been Quixotic to have sent him to London to ask for a dissolution, if the petitioners had not felt secure they could send a different class of members to the new legislature. In 1828, the Wesleyan Methodists and Protestant dissenters petitioned against Strachan's misrepresentation and in favour of equal religious privileges, the petitions were signed by 8,000, presented by Hume and referred to a committee of the House of Commons, which reported favourably thereon, but the report was not acted on. The rest of the letter from its length cannot be summarised in a reasonable space. 14

- February 8, London. Mackenzie to Goderich. States that he has only the public good in view and seeks to repay the kindness of the people of Upper Canada. Is not surprised that his motives should have been misunderstood, but is now satisfied that he did His Lordship injustice, and that he is ready to accept suggestions for the public good so far as they appeared to deserve. The good effect that would result from kindness shown to the people of Upper Canada. Compares the cases of York and Gaspé, and contends that the people of Upper Canada had the best case. Repeats his charges of injustice against the local government and the majority of the Assembly, and demands an inquiry. Criticises the conduct of the Assembly and condemns the retention of officials who have become obnoxious to the people. The letter ends in these words: "Are means to be taken for a redress of our wrongs? Or is the form and manner of our application to be considered a fatal bar to our receiving from His Majesty's government a measure of long deferred justice." 265

Letter to Goderich not acknowledged, although the petition to which it refers has been under consideration for nearly eight months. Again compares the cases of Gaspé and York. The delay is a cause of discontent. If increasing dissatisfaction should rend the empire asunder, he hoped that in justice it would be admitted that he had done all he could to continue the connection. A. P. S. calls attention to a letter in the True Sun against the Colonial Secretary with a copy of the petition and denies that he sent the petition to the True Sun nor has he any idea who wrote the letter. SESSIONAL PAPER No. 18

March 20.
London.

Mackenzie to Howick. Sends list of members of the Legislative Council, with the places they fill; also list of members of the House of Assembly who hold offices. Has not seen the civil establishment of Upper Canada for 1830 as referred to by Howick. As the Legislature did not meet till 1831, the public situations could not be ascertained from the Blue Book of 1830. No harmony can take place between the Legislative Council and Assembly until a change is made in the Council. It was determined by the Crown that the puisné judges should, during the continuance of their official authority, lay down their seats as legislators, to be resumed when they ceased to be judges. If it were further decided that all holding office should vacate their seats whilst doing so, sufficient independence might be found in the Council. Does not include all the Councillors when he speaks of those holding office. Page 345

McKenzie to Stephen. Sends latest intelligence from Upper Canada. The necessity of caution on the part of the new law officer of the Crown for Upper Canada. Sends copy of Colborne's speech at prorogation; the difficulty he would experience in selecting a Solicitor General. The vote of thanks to His Majesty defeated. The vigorous speech of Strachan; his large income makes him independent. The frequent passing of the intestate estate bill in the Assembly, has been counteracted in the Council. Cannot think that it is anyone's interest to raise individuals to extraordinary wealth by the law of primogeniture. Apologises for his mistaken views of Goderich.

- January 7, Colborne to Stanley (No. 1). Recommends the appointment of a competent person to preside at the Executive Council, to devote his whole time to public affairs and prepare reports of legal cases. Has consulted Mr.
Justice Macaulay who has no objection to take the office. If such an arrangement is carried into effect recommends the Solicitor General to be made puisné judge in room of Macaulay and Archibald McLean, Speaker of the Assembly, to be made Solicitor General. Macaulay's salary should not be less than £1,000 per annum. Page 1
- January 8, The same to the same (No. 2). Had given an interview to Mackenzie York. and the other member for York on the subject of Mackenzie's expulsion and the unconstitutional proceedings of the Assembly; they ask that the Assembly be dissolved. They are desired to send a statement to which a reply would be made. The correspondence shows that he informed the two members he could not dissolve the House in the middle of the Session and interrupt the whole business of the province. Motion introduced to rescind the vote expelling Mackenzie, but after the discussion, the House adjourned for want of a quorum and was afterwards adjourned from day to day, many of the members having left York. On resuming the motion to address the Lieut. Governor to dissolve the House was rejected. Had presented to the House the reason why he would not dissolve nor take part in a question of privilege. 3

sion. 7

York.

Colborne to Stanley (No. 3). Reports the resignation of Elmsley from the Executive Council. Reports also his speculations in United Empire loyalist lands which being checked led to his resignation he having strongly opposed the measure to impose settlement duties on United Empire loyalists receiving free grants, and used language in the Council for which he apologised and then resigned on the plea that he could not fearlessly express his opinion. Documents relative to the resignation enclosed. 48

Sketch of answer by the Colonial Office dated in December, 1834. Regret that any gentleman should so misapprehend his position in the Executive Council as to suppose that he was prohibited from the utterance of his opinions there. Dunn appointed to succeed Elmsley. 52

Enclosed. Elmsley to Rowan. Sends intimation that he resigns his seat in the Executive Council. 54

Order in Council to prevent speculators acquiring the lands granted for their services to United Empire loyalists and militia. 56

Elmsley to Colborne. Explains that he had no intention of using language to offend him at the Council as he understands was supposed. 59

Elmsley to Colborne. Apologises in more distinct terms than in the previous letter for language used at the Council. 61

Colborne to Elmsley. Sends extract from confidential dispatch. He will be able from this to judge how far he can satisfactorily retain his place in the Executive Council. 62

Extract from confidential dispatch from the Colonial Secretary, that in matters of political importance, government expects support from the members in office. 63

Elmsley to the editor of the Patriot. His reason for resigning his seat in the Executive Council was that he could not fearlessly express there his real sentiments and opinions. 64

January 14,
York.

Colborne to Hay (private). Reports how the emigrants are received and sent to the settlement prepared for them; the amount of clearing each is able to do. The rate of wages for clearing land. The hindrances to colonisation. The loan to be raised on Crown lands for the benefit of emigrants would probably be sanctioned by the Imperial Parliament. The plans, perhaps, could not be safely tried in every colony but in a province where land was increasing in value and provisions easily procurable, there was no risk. 66

January 15,
York.

The same to Stanley (No. 4). Sends plan of the military reserves adjoining the town of York, which the Commissioner of Crown lands has been authorised to sell. Had directed 18 lots of one acre each to be sold to ascertain the average price that might be expected for the remainder. Has reserved a few acres on which he recommends a chapel to be built, principally with reference to the new barracks, which are far from a church. Asks that the commissariat be authorised to pay the Ordnance £10,000 provided the new barracks are begun this year. Has reserved 10 acres on which he recommends a new Government house to be built, a considerable annual expense being incurred in keeping the present house in repair. The sources from which the expenditure could be met. 70

Enclosed. Statement of receipts and expenditure of funds arising from 14 George III. 73

January 16,
York. Colborne to ——— (private). Has sent plan of military reserves and description of lots sold in November. Only a few acres sold, which brought £7,000. To improve the town and increase the value of the lots he has marked out situations for a chapel and Government house. The present wooden Government house is very expensive from the annual repairs required. The Assembly will not vote the necessary amount, whilst the Crown funds are prosperous. Sees no objection to the Colonial Secretary authorising the payment. Macaulay recommended for the Executive Council; is a brother-in-law of Hagerman, but as Hagerman is dead there can be no objection to Macaulay's promotion on account of that connection.

January 16,
York. The same to Hay (private). He has forwarded letter from Mackenzie and the other member for York, relative to Mackenzie's expulsion. The proceedings of the Assembly serve Mackenzie's purpose by keeping his name before the public. The interest of the public will be best consulted by continuing the session; does not intend to dissolve till May. With the exception of the neighbouring townships the province is free from excitement and it is believed that notwithstanding the efforts of newspaper editors to influence the elections the next House will be well composed. The party opposed to the expulsion of Mackenzie will not move for a new writ, so that the case would remain in its present state. The absurd conduct of Elmsley; he is deeply engaged in speculating in United Empire loyalist rights and probably found it convenient to withdraw from a situation in which he could not be permitted to carry on his speculations. Has recommended Dunn to succeed Elmsley and thinks the appointment will be advantageous. Referred to the Act passed last session for dividing the county of York into four ridings. It should have been reserved but cannot now be disallowed as the elections will probably have taken place before the decision is communicated.

January 17,
York. The same to the same (private). The appointment of a properly qualified person to preside at the Executive Council required. The creation of a new office may be considered objectionable, but would be of advantage and Macaulay is best fitted for the position. The charges for pensions to retired judges will, there is reason to expect, soon be reduced. The salary of the President of the Council, if the office is authorized, might be borne by the territorial revenue. Prudence required in adding members to the Legislative Council.

80

January 23,
York. The same to the same. Has enclosed memorial from New York to the United States House of Representatives for the construction of a ship canal round the falls of Niagara.

82

February 5,
York. The same to Stanley. The settlement of Bear Creek, where the Sussex settlers are, has been named Egremont. The townships in the sketch sent by him (Stanley) are occupied by persons who have purchased lands and taken out their deeds, so that their names could not be conveniently changed.

February 15,
York. The same to the same (No. 6). In reference to the letter from the Secretary of the New England Company respecting lands for the Indians near Rice Lake an Order in Council was passed in 1831 to appoint trustees to hold the 1,200 acres alluded to for the benefit of the Indians. With respect to 1,600 acres in the township of Smith which he authorized to be set aside for the Indians he cannot recommend that tract to be alienated from the Crown, as there are not 20 families residing near Mud Lake and no great expense could have been incurred by the agent of the New England Company in building a few log houses, and the improvements there for the benefit of the Indians are very limited.

February 17,
York. The same to the same (No. 7). Mackenzie who was expelled from the Assembly, took his seat in the House, as he had notified in the newspapers.

He was removed and admonished by the Speaker. The crowd attracted to the House by the notification was very orderly. Oath of allegiance administered to Mackenzie by the Clerk of the Executive Council when the Clerk of the Assembly refused to do so. Transmits the opinion of the Attorney General on the course he (Colborne) has followed in this case. Page 87

Enclosed. Opinion of Jameson, Attorney General, that Beikie was wrong in not administering the oath of allegiance to Mackenzie. He is not the judge whether the person applying is a member or not. In reference to the Speaker's letter, he does not seem to have reflected, that the assumption of a discretionary power to administer the oath or not might lead to very serious consequences. 89

February 19, Colborne to Hay. In answer to inquiry by Elizabeth Veal, Hillier and his wife are in good health and living about five miles from York on the Don. Their house was lately burned down but they were doing tolerably well. 92
York.

February 26, The same to Stanley (No. 8). Sends report of select committee of the Assembly on the subject of Bank charters. Letter from the President of the Commercial Bank and copy of petition from the directors to the Assembly. Believes that the report will be adopted and the address to the King approved of. Recommends that the two Bank Acts passed in January 1832 should continue to be operative. 93
York.

Cartwright, president of the Commercial Bank, to Rowan. On the subject of the proposed Bank regulations, calls attention to petition. Has reason to believe the legislature will not pass an ex post facto law subjecting the shareholders to the operation of the regulations suggested. The directors are sensible of the objections urged against the proprietors of a Bank being subjected to responsibilities never contemplated but are desirous to meet the views of His Majesty's government, and have presented petition to the provincial legislature to pass an Act embodying the conditions recommended so as to ensure the confirmation of the charter. The injury the disallowance would do to the public and the shareholders; the directors ask that the petition be forwarded with the remarks proper to ensure the allowance of the charter. Should the legislature not pass the Act, the directors propose that George Mackenzie should be sent to London to explain to the Colonial Secretary their willingness to comply with all the conditions so far as was in their power. 94

York.

Enclosed. Speech at prorogation. 230

March 7, Colborne to Hay (private). Has prorogued the House. Has sent copy of address on Bank Acts. This very objectionable address was carried by 30 in a House of 31. Many of the members regretted that such an address was introduced, but as many suffer from the refusal of the banks to extend their discounts, the terms of address introduced cannot be calculated on. Notwithstanding the character of the address the next Assembly will be well composed and the respectable colonists planted in the province during the last three years will soon have great influence; believes that the result of the approaching elections will give an intelligent class of persons to the next Assembly. From time to time, however, bad subjects will take up their residence in the province, capable of going all lengths with the dema-

Colborne to Stanley (No. 10). Transmits copy of Act for improving the navigation of the St. Lawrence. His reason for assenting to the bill sanctioning the issue of debentures to a large amount, he having received instructions to reserve all such bills. Shall only authorize the issue of £70,000, in debentures, as specified in the Act of 1833. The sum of £50,000 has been granted to the Welland Canal Company. Colborne to Stanley (No. 13). Sends statement of the casual and territorial revenue for 1833 and the sum expended last year in forwarding and employing emigrants. It appears that 21,000 entered the province last season. The township of Sunnidale on the Nottawasaga has been selected to employ emigrants that remain without work in York. About 60 families have been conveyed there since autumn to clear land and are now employed. The rapid progress of the province is to be chiefly attributed to the emigration of the last three years; the benefits the colony can confer on the mother country by receiving her redundant population, but no destitute persons should be permitted to leave their parishes with a view of receiving aid from government unless they are fit to undergo the difficulties of a new country. The excellent quality of the newly surveyed lands. Recommends that privileges be extended to every officer of the Army or Navy resolving to settle and who can obtain recommendations from the Admiralty or commander in chief. 433

Enclosed. Report from the emigration agent at York. 436

Statement of expenditure on account of emigration for 1831, 1832 and 1833 and the amount authorised for the same period by the Colonial Secretary. 438

Transmits memorial from Hopkins and explains the nature of his complaint of not being allowed to settle on the reserve after having incurred expense in building although he had been warned that he must purchase at the public sales of Crown lands. On his petition the Executive Council recommended he should be allowed to purchase 25 acres including the lot on which his house was built, but not being satisfied he removed his family to York and now claims compensation. 449

Toronto. Colborne to Stanley (No. 23). Sends address from the Assembly on the subject of grants of land to the U. E. loyalists and militia. The steps he has taken to prevent speculation in these grants. Documents sent show that ample information was afforded to the Assembly as to the system of granting lands. It is difficult to prevent loyalist land from falling into the hands of speculators and it may probably be expedient to sanction the issue of deeds. Colborne to Stanley (No. 33). Has received dispatch relative to the disposal of the territorial revenue and the application of the available balance of £20,000 for the liquidation of war claims. Is confident that the Assembly will provide for the raising of £20,000 and that the territorial revenue will be sufficient for all the charges on it. With respect to the Indian department, reports the difficulty of introducing a system to encourage the tribes in agricultural pursuits. His misunderstanding of the arrangement for Upper Canada when the department was divided in 1829 or he would earlier have represented the necessity for reconsideration. Numbers of the Indians, cost of presents; a return to be sent each October of the equipment required for the ensuing year. The cost of management. Suggests that the sum of £13,380 be allowed for the expenses of the department and for inland transport. Estimate of the annual amount from the leased lands of the clergy reserves, with other information respecting these reserves and the payment of the clergy. April 30,

Colborne to Hay. In reference to a committee supposed to have been formed at Bytown to receive boys expected from England, through the agency of H. Wilson, none of the inhabitants have any knowledge of such a committee. Cannot recommend any scheme for bringing boys to Canada, unless an establishment could be formed for their reception till they could be disposed of among the farmers, perhaps 200 or 300 could be taken every year by farmers. The enclosures are from an officer who has been settled some time at Bytown. 734

Enclosed. Baker to Rowan. After investigation, can find no evidence of the existence of a committee to receive boys sent by the Secretary of State to Canada. A majority of the farmers are too poor to undertake the charge of providing for boys. It might be possible to dispose of some among the superior class as apprentices. 736

The same to the same. Has consulted with the magistrates, who deemed it expedient to call a meeting. Sends report of the proceedings, but in the meantime it is desired to know the plan proposed for the reception of the boys that might be sent. 738

 Colborne to ——— (private). Will transmit in a short time addresses from the Johnstown and Bathurst districts in reference to Hume's letter. Many think the letter should not have been noticed as it gives agitators of that stamp too much importance, but he (Colborne) is persuaded that the expressions of loyalty it has called forth must be gratifying to His Majesty's Government. The publication of Hume's letter by Mackenzie was an experiment to see how these views of separation would be supported. Report on the progress of the cholera; it is apparently subsiding. 160

- November 8, Toronto. Colborne to Hay. The Inspector General of Accounts has been hitherto nominated by the Lieut. Governor and commissioner under his seal. Colborne to Spring Rice (No. 67). In answer to dispatch respecting manner of keeping the accounts for emigration, reports the manner in which demands were paid, money being drawn from the Crown lands for this purpose. The effect of the increased expenditure for emigration in 1832. 211

- November 18, Toronto. Colborne to Hay (private and confidential). Has communicated to Strachan the circumstances that might place the administration of Upper Canada in the hands of the senior member of the Executive Council. The appointment of Markland by a special commission would be the least objectionable arrangement. Peter Robinson is his senior, but he holds offices which disqualify him from taking charge of the government. Cannot nominate a successor to Baby in the meantime. Recommends that the office be left open until an opportunity occurs of making an appointment. 227
Enclosed. Strachan to Colborne. On the subject of the government of Upper Canada by one of the Executive Councillors. 229
- November 19, Toronto. Colborne to Spring Rice (private and confidential). Reports as to political condition of Upper Canada, and the effect of the election of 1828. Traces the influence shown at subsequent elections. In the election of 1830 two-thirds of the successful candidates were opposed to the parties hostile to Canadian institutions and to connection with the mother country. The successful candidates were among the oldest or the most enterprising settlers, and united to carry measures for improving the country. There were some local questions, however, in which the other side had the advantage. Many of the changes in the representation of the present Parliament might be attributed to local dissatisfaction, rather than to causes that would embarrass the government. The influence of the party called Reformers has been added, who were in opposition in the last Assembly. The subjects of attack on the candidates supporting the majority. Cause of Mackenzie's popularity. The difficulty in selecting magistrates and officers in the militia has also caused a certain amount of dissatisfaction, but an attempt to change the institutions of the colony would be met with disapprobation. 232

Toronto. (This letter by an evident error is dated 22nd, the date of No. 79.)
Colborne to Spring Rice (No. 72). Dispatch received with applications of two proposed societies for acquiring land in Upper Canada. Sends remarks on points which should be considered in deciding on the schemes of these associations. The beneficent views of the Colonial Association of Ireland if supported by the landed proprietors and local societies of Ireland. How distress and embarrassment to voluntary emigrants might be prevented but there are great difficulties in the way. The obstacles to the carrying out of the work by the associations, as the number sent by them would not exceed one fifth of that from voluntary emigration. Considerations as to public advantage to be gained by selling to joint stock companies large tracts of land in which it is maintained that if these joint stock companies could make a profit government is in a better position to do so. Advises that the Association of Ireland be permitted to prove the value of their scheme on the unsurveyed townships to the north of the Gore district. The conditions on which the allowance might be made. Page 245

December 3,
Toronto. The same to Hay (private). Will prepare details of the arrangements required by Spring Rice before the charter of King's College can go into operation. Will report on the society for promoting emigration, which he is persuaded might be turned to advantage. The Ottawa association has chiefly in view the timber trade. If the directors can be induced to undertake the construction of canals they should be encouraged. 270

December 19,
Toronto. Colborne to Spring Rice (No. 77). The manner in which the expenses of Upper Canada College are defrayed; proposal to unite it with King's College. The obstacles to opening the university largely removed and the considerations set forth lead him to believe that the university should be opened without delay. The question of the university charter has been in discussion by the Legislative Council and Assembly for more than six years. The improbability of the points under discussion being satisfactorily settled by legislative interference. Would have no hesitation in allowing the university to open under the existing charter, so soon as professors can be appointed; prosperity depends on their ability and reputation. Asks that the heads of Colleges of Oxford and Cambridge elect four persons to the professorships; the nature of the regulations as to lodgings, &c. 291

December 19,
Toronto. Colborne to Hay (private). Summarises the letters to Spring Rice respecting King's College. Hopes he will take a lively interest in the affair of obtaining professors for the university. Although it would be a matter of difficulty to obtain competent men to raise up a university in the back woods, yet he was not without hope that there were distinguished scholars who would embark in the undertaking. The willing co-operation of the vice-chancellors of the two universities might be depended on. 303

Enclosed. Petition of Rains with proposal to settle 100 families on the Island of St. Joseph. 308 Report by Peter Robinson dated 14th November, 1834, that the Island of St. Joseph contains 80,000 acres of which about 50,000 are capable of cultivation. His suggestions as to settling. 310
- December 22, Toronto. Colborne to Spring Rice (No. 79). Sends application from Lally and Whitley for leave to purchase by private contract 8,000 acres to the westward of Collingwood near Owen Sound. The land has not yet been surveyed or purchased from the Indians. Lally and Whitley have bought land on Lake Simcoe and are very respectable but it appears to be objectionable to authorise private sales unless where the interest of the colony would be particularly promoted. 311
Enclosed Memorial from Lally and Whitley. 313
Report by the Commissioner of Crown Lands on the application. 314
- December 23, Toronto. Colborne to Spring Rice (No. 80). Report on the hospitals in Toronto and Kingston for which the Assembly asked for a grant of land. Notes of the means of their support. An endowment of 12,000 acres would be thought sufficient for Toronto and 8,000 for Kingston. 315

Enclosed. Report by Markland, Inspector General, on the deed of land on Rice Lake. 345
- December 27, Toronto. Colborne to Spring Rice (No. 83). Transmits memorial from Colonel Nicolls, Royal Engineers. He had received a grant of 1,200 acres, but had lost 800 acres under the terms of a provincial statute, during his absence. The Executive Council cannot recommend an additional grant without creating an embarrassing precedent, but he (Colborne) from the long services of Nicoll, has no hesitation in recommending favourable consideration to the case. 346
Enclosed. Memorial of Nicolls for an additional grant of land. 350
- December 27. Colborne to Hay (private). Transmits resolutions of a society formed by Mackenzie and O'Grady, a priest dismissed by Bishop Macdonell. Although the spirit is as bad as possible, thinks it will have little influence. Forwards a communication from Dr. Bains of Upper Canada College. 353

His first idea was to return to Ireland but as his property there was disposed of he decided to wait the result of Colborne's representation. In the meantime he had been allowed to purchase a lot of land to be paid for in the usual manner if his claim be rejected. Has made up his mind to remain and Colborne will find a well affected settler. 450

Bay, and may decide on that place if it is such as it is described in a report in the Colonial Office. Asks for an audience as when in Canada he had formed a plan of settling that district, which he submitted to Dalhousie, who wrote his strictures on it and invited him (Galt) to a trip up the river, but his appointment to India prevented that. - Commons by a motion, but he thinks a reference to the arbitration of mercantile men would be preferable. The Board of Ordnance having been asked their opinion on proposed works on the Ottawa, state that the proposal to construct timber slides will be advantageous and not interfere with the canal. The question of branch canals is different, and the Ordnance believe that the whole of the line of communication with the Upper province should be in the hands of Great Britain. The formation of a branch canal from Dow's Swamp, although very desirable is not immediately required. 60

- March 8.
Toronto. Merritt to Hay. The directors of the Welland Canal have been memorialising government to remit the loan made to the company on the ground of the benefit to the government from the opening of the canal, the reasons being given under various heads. No answer having been returned the Legislative Assembly addressed His Majesty's Government for the relinquishment of the loan; the present is a propitious time to do so. 604
- March 9,
London. Viger to Hay (in French). Had proposed to write to remind Mr. Stanley of his letter of 8th January. Has now to acknowledge receipt of his (Hay's) containing a reply to Berczy which shall be sent to him as soon as possible. 795
- March 10,
Ordnance. Byham to the same. Asks for Hagerman's address as the Board's solicitor wishes to communicate with him on the Rideau Canal. 22
- March 10,

- March 12,
London. Allen to Stanley. Thanks for kindness respecting his (Allen's) claim against Herd. Asks advice as to the best means of securing his claim. 157
- March 12,
Treasury. Stewart to Hay. The Treasury agrees to Stanley's proposal to pay £360 per annum to the Chief Justice of Upper Canada, being the salaries formerly received by him as Chief Justice and speaker of the Council, so long as he may hold the joint offices of Speaker and Chief Justice but this is not to entitle any future Chief Justice or Speaker to a similar allowance. The salary of £100 as Executive Councillor should not be continued unless Stanley is decidedly of opinion that it should be paid in addition to the £360. 71
- March 12,
London. Maxwell to Stanley. Introduces Mr. Jones from Upper Canada who has a memorial to present which he (Maxwell) thinks should be done in person so that the Secretary may have the opportunity of obtaining information respecting the settlements from a source deserving of credit. 608

- March 20,
London. Hagerman to Hay. In reference to the proposed disallowance of the bank charters in Upper Canada points out that the reserved power should only apply to such laws as might affect the general interests of the Empire. The danger of acting on laws that affected municipal interests only, until they were sanctioned, as those acting on them before that might render themselves liable to severe penalties. Reasons why the banking Acts cannot be disallowed without a charge of breach of faith and that the doing so would produce the evils the amendments are intended to guard against. Elaborate argument on the subject. 463
- March 21,
London. The same to the same. Apologises for the length of the letter on the bank charters, but it is an important subject. Shall be obliged if he can

April 12, London.		Gibson to Hay. The report from Scott, agent at Rice Lake and Mud Lake, shows a much more extended improvement than the Lieut. Governor's letter intimates. The company by the report was led to expect a much more favourable recommendation than was made.	113
April 16, London.		Adam to Stanley. Applies for a letter of introduction to Colborne on behalf of William Clarke.	159
April 16, London.		Hagerman to Hay. His satisfaction at Stanley's speech and his admiration of the accuracy of its details. The necessity for this accuracy, otherwise it would be impossible to give a satisfactory answer to charges however unfounded. The ground of complaint that the Colonial Secretary does not know the facts does not now exist. Had expected a more plausible attack on the colonial government but does not recollect a weaker Parliamentary display than that of Roebuck ; the observations of O'Connell and Hume were, if possible, more shallow. Further remarks on the speeches. Is leaving town for Richmond ; hopes on his return to have more agreeable news on the subject of the Church.	540

Mackenzie to Stanley. Refers to his letter of yesterday respecting his expulsion, which could have been avoided had the house been dissolved. The necessity of having as governor in Upper Canada a man of decision and experience, no matter whether he is Whig or Tory, but such men as Aylmer and Colborne are merely the representatives of interested men behind the curtain. 630

Enclosed. Schedule of papers sent. 632

London.

The same to Stanley. Refers to the memorial from the Bishop, clergy and others of Upper Canada, and now sends additional facts to strengthen the argument in favour of the necessity of extending to the clergy of both provinces the benefit of the property set aside for their support. His Majesty's Government intimated to the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel that no further grant would be made for the established Church in British North America. The Society therefore decided to distribute their own funds only in the Colonies where there was no support from public funds and have decided to discontinue pecuniary aid to the Canadas, provision having been made there by the constitution for their support. This resolution has been acted upon sooner than expected, causing great distress to the clergy by the sudden deprivation of the means of subsistence, especially as they had reason to believe that Government was pledged to continue their income for life. Arguments in respect to the public policy of maintaining the established Church. 577

May 5,
Dunmow.

Toke to Stanley. The benefits that would be derived in Upper Canada from the establishment of courts of equity; the cases requiring this refer to the sale of lands, many complaints being made of people ejected from their land after the greater part of their purchase money had been paid, indeed it was said that contracts of sale were drawn up so that they could be broken and the purchaser ejected. 780

May 7,
Toronto.

Sibbald to Stanley. Appeals for a change in the postal regulations by which letters paid or unpaid would be sent by the speediest method. The Agricultural Society is now modelled and is to bring in the finest seeds and the best breeds of cattle. The society is to meet once a month, the farmers are anxious for improvement but nothing can be done without money. It is to the British Government assistance is looked for. Money is required for premiums to encourage agriculture. His ambition to be appointed professor of agriculture. Gives a sketch of his life. 769

Wilmot Horton to Peter Robinson approves of his (Peter Robinson) charging his expenditure. 79
- May 23,
London. Halford to Hay. Has received affidavit from Dumaresq for his halfpay, signed as sub collector. In his previous affidavits he has been recognized as deputy surveyor, under which title his claim has been admitted, but his new appointment must be certified. 453
- May 24,
Montreal. Berczy to Stanley. Is not surprised at the unfavourable opinion of his claim to land on account of his father, as he (Stanley) had only before him the decisions of the Executive Council all denying the right for which he and his father had contended. Was not aware when he wrote his memorial of the nature of these decisions so that he might refute them. The calumnies and misrepresentations he met with in the report for 1801. The time he had required to prepare the statements which he hopes have been received. Regrets that his explanations had not reached before he (Stanley) had come to a decision as his explanations would have put the question in a different light. Statement of the case, in urging which he fears he may have seemed importunate. 209
- May 24. Prospectus of the "city of the Falls" signed by James Robinson "A proprietor and resident agent." 218
- May 26,
Ordnance. Byham to Stewart. Enclosed in Stewart to Hay, 4th June, 1834.
- May 28,
St. John's Nfl. Boulton to Hay. Thanks for the opportunity of refuting the calumnies against him. It is singular that it was not till he left the place where all the facts were known, that he was attacked behind his back in the hope apparently that he had no means of defending himself. Is satisfied to leave matters to explain themselves, having nothing to hide. The contradictions in Powell's statements, which are not, as represented, contemporaneous notes of an important transaction. His certificates only prove more clearly that it is not what he pretends. Criticises the various documents and charges made by Powell and accuses him of various improper actions, the accusations being given at some length. 231
- May 30,
New York. Buchanan to the same. Among other efforts to advance Canada, he has founded a city at the falls of Niagara named the "City of the Falls," has given the name of Stanley to one of the streets and affixed his (Hay's) name to the most commanding situation overlooking the falls. Advises him to take five shares as an investment. 216
- May 31,
Treasury. Stewart to the same. Sends copy of letter from Chelsea Hospital respecting the prize money for Detroit remaining in the hands of Gordon formerly paymaster of the 1st regiment of Essex provincial militia, asking that Gordon be instructed to pay it over with account. Concur in the opinion that he ought not to be proceeded against for not having paid the money already to the Chelsea Hospital. 81
Enclosed. Neave to Stewart. The commissioners of Chelsea Hospital state that under the provisions of the Army prize Act Gordon should give a detailed statement of the disposal of the prize money for Detroit and should pay the balance over to Chelsea Hospital. The commissioners do not think Gordon should be subjected to any penalties for not doing so at an earlier period. 82

June 12,	Treasury.	Stewart to Hay. For reasons given the Treasury are not disposed to object to the Lieut. Governor assenting to the bill for issuing debentures for improving the navigation of the St. Lawrence.	87
June 12,	London.	Gibson to the same. Sends extracts from correspondence of Scott, agent of the New England Company. Earnestly directs attention to the correspondence, as, assuming the reports to be correct, the company hopes for a more favourable consideration of the claims than is implied in Colborne's dispatch, a hope founded on their large expenditure for the conversion of the Indians. Suggestions for the grants for the benefit of the Indians at Rice Lake and Mud (now Chemong) Lake or if a grant there be impracticable an equivalent be given elsewhere.	114
		Enclosed. Extracts from letters received by the Treasurer from Reverend Richard Scott from March 1828 to 5th August, 1833, reporting the progress of the Indians and their schools.	117

June 18,	Downing Street.	Stephen to Hay. Opinion on Colborne's question whether the principal only of the clergy reserves sold need be sent for investment in the British funds, or if the interest should be included. Thinks that Parliament intended that the whole should be remitted, but if the interest were to be expended on the unsold reserves that would be a needless ceremonial.	17

July 19,

- July 23,
Barrie. Hewson to ————. Points out the injurious effects of disposing of land by public auction causing the most useful class of emigrants to settle in the States instead of in Canada. A vast tract of land to the north has not been settled, as the Canada Company and agents from the States encourage settlers to go west where they are settled without delay instead of meeting the impediments in his neighbourhood caused by vexatious delays. Gives details of the impediments and of the practice of speculators at public sales. Instance of how a friend of his lost a mill site by the act of a speculator to the detriment of the settlement. Recommends that the agents should be empowered to place applicants who after six months residence should be entitled to a deed. 455
- July 23,
Ordnance. Butler to Hay. Respecting his (Hay's) letter transmitting copy of a dispatch from the Lieut. Governor concerning a strip of land in Kingston which it was proposed to be alienated and expressing the wish of Spring Rice to be informed if it did not appear possible to offer Cartwright some other equivalent for land to be taken in exchange for public property in Kingston. The object of the Ordinance in suggesting that the strip should be disposed of was that the proceeds might be applied towards the purchase of lands for works indispensably necessary for defence, but on the Lieut. Governor's recommendation that the strip of ground should be retained the Ordinance had no desire to press the disposal. To lessen the expense of such works, the Lieut. Governor should be instructed on the purchase of the necessary lands to appropriate Crown land of an equal value. 29
- July 24,
Whitehall. Laek to Hay. In reference to proposed remission of the duty on wheat, &c., from Upper Canada, the Lords of Trade do not consider it advisable to make any change. 12
- July 28,
Ordnance. Butler to Hay. The improvement of the navigation of the St. Lawrence is impolitic in a military point of view, but seeing its commercial advantages the Board are not prepared to oppose it. The completion of the Rideau and Ottawa canals, secures a back water communication with Upper Canada. 32
- July 30,
Ordnance. The same to the same. Transmits list of sappers and miners who have claims to land on the completion of the Rideau Canal, but has no list of those who intend to make the claim. To complete the business the Ordinance have given notice that those who do not claim their lots within twelve months from the date of notice shall forfeit the grant. 34
- Enclosed. By to Ellicombe. The whole of the non-commissioned officers and men of the 7th and 15th companies of sappers and miners who served on the Rideau Canal, are entitled to 100 acres each for their services but he has no list of those who have been put in possession of the grants. 36

- August 2,
London. Viger to Spring Rice (in French). Thanks for attention and for the promise that although he cannot give him an interview he will examine Berczy's claim if it is set down in writing. A short interview would save sending the following observations. Has referred to previous correspondence and to the reply from Hay which was not favourable to Berczy, who

- at the time had not access to the latest documents which for the first time, came under his observation. These he comments on to show the justice of his demands and his claim, according to this statement, would only be a small part of a stipulated price. Memorandum on the subject of Berezy's claim. Page 796
- August 2, London. Viger to Hay (in French). Acknowledges receipt of letter of 22nd July, and apologises for delay in doing so. 801
- August 5, London. Alder to ————. Asks for interview on the subject of grant to the Methodists Conference in Upper Canada. The justification for this request owing to the position he holds as one of the secretaries entrusted with the missions in Canada. 154
- August 7, London. Address from the House of Commons for a return of the appropriation of the £4,000 to Presbyterians, Roman Catholics, Wesleyan and Canadian Methodists, with all other papers relating thereto. 4
- August 8, Ordnance. Butler to Hay. The Ordnance acquiesces in the plan of Spring Rice, that no sale of Crown lands to pay for the property of individuals bought for public works should be completed without the sanction of the Colonial Secretary. 42
- August 8, Memorial from Kirkpatrick. Enclosed in Baring to Hay, 17th November, 1834. 6
- August 12, Downing Street. Hay's circular respecting grants of land to officers of the army. 6
- August 13, Toronto. Colborne to Stewart. Enclosed in Baring to Hay, 17th November, 1834.
- August 24, St. Catherine's. Merritt to Hay. Regrets his last letter did not reach, which called attention to an address of the House of Assembly to remit the £50,000 lent to the Canal. It is to be made a provincial work next session and the British Government will not be called for further aid. They have an ample return from the enhanced value of Crown lands. Extension to Brantford will be finished this year making another inland communication of 50 miles. The business of the Welland Canal is double that of last year. The election is to take place in October and there is every prospect of a good house. 618
- August 25, London. Viger to Spring Rice (in French). Thanks for attention paid to documents relating to the claims of Berezy, which had been under consideration for thirty years. The improbability after so many years examination of a change of view and the adoption of opinions contrary to those arrived at by the successive authorities not having any personal relations. Continues to urge the claims of Berezy seeing the new considerations adduced. 802
- August 25, London. The same to Hay. Was not able on Saturday evening to acknowledge receipt of his letter of the 22nd, received the same evening. His observations sent by direction of Spring Rice required some remarks from him (Viger) which he sends to address of Spring Rice with copies of letters from Berezy the 6th and 27th January last. 818
- August 27, London. Viger to Spring Rice (in French). Asks for an audience to discuss certain subjects to which he had called attention. Would desire also at this interview to speak of the claims of Berezy. 819
- September 3, London. The same to Hay (in French). Had no time earlier to acknowledge receipt of the letter of the 1st of the month; and would notify Berezy of the part that concerns him in it. 820
- September 8, Waterford. Strangman to Spring Rice. Bought land in Upper Canada but has been unable from absence to perform the settlement duties, so that he will lose the land. Asks that Colborne be written to that he may obtain the land if not sold to any other person and all the settlement duties shall be done in six months. 778
- September 10, Treasury. Baring to Hay. Sends copies of letter and enclosures from the Ordnance respecting a reduction of tolls on timber passing through the Rideau Canal. 92

Enclosed. Butler to Stewart. Sends copy of report from By on the subject of a reduction of tolls on timber passing through the Rideau Canal, also copy of a minute of a meeting of the commissariat and Respective officers respecting a petition from 450 persons interested in the timber trade on the line of the Rideau Canal. The conduct of the Respective officers approved of and the joint minute of them and the Commissariat officers satisfactory. The construction of a lock at St. Ann's rapids is under the consideration of the Ordnance. Page 93

By to Fanshaw. The usefulness of the Rideau Canal and the moderate rate of tolls should have insured gratitude instead of petitions for the reduction of tolls which are already too low. The Rideau should be kept entirely under the control of the British Government and in peace should be thrown open to American boats as far as Montreal which would increase the trade of England and render the canals productive. Recommends building a lock at St. Ann's which could be built for £5,000 leaving £5,000 for the removal of shallows. 95

September 26,
Treasury.

Stewart to Hay. The Treasury agree with Spring Rice that £150 will be a sufficient salary for the inspector general of accounts of Upper Canada and that that should be given to Markland. On Cameron relinquishing the office of Provincial Secretary, it will be sufficient to assign £300 a year as a salary. 103

September 30.

- October 30, Upper Canada Vidal to the Earl of Limerick. Sends for presentation to the Colonial Secretary complaint that 14,000 acres were advertised for sale in one lot at the upset price of 1.10½ d. an acre, while other lands in the same township were sold in 100 acre lots at 10s. per acre. The other possessions of Jones, for whose benefit the 14,000 acres are to be disposed of, are described which, it is alleged, were given him for losses in bringing emigrants—being a private speculation for obtaining land; he does not see why such an unusual sale should be made because of its failure. Had been obliged to take his military grant 14 miles off on account of this tract, which was declared not to be vacant although now offered at public sale. It is said to be open for public competition, but the amount of deposit on so great a quantity is so large as to preclude hundreds from bidding who would be glad to have smaller quantities. The disadvantages to the navigation on account of the situation of this block; stoppage of the sale after arrangements had been made to beat down the monopoly. 783
- Enclosed.* Plan of the land referred to in the letter. 790

- December 29, Toronto. Boulton to Colonial Secretary. Has with the assent of the Lieut. Governor transmitted copy of memorial respecting the emoluments of his office of Auditor General of patents. January 3, Toronto. Colborne to Spring Rice (No. 1). With respect to the Lanark settlers. McMillan, the superintendent, finding it difficult to come to a decision on many of the cases, did not send a satisfactory report. Sends report and return of settlers to whom advances were made with remarks. The land occupied by the Lanark settlers is unproductive, and he is persuaded that the sums advanced cannot be recovered. Page 1
- Report by C. Rankin on the district of Bathurst. It is on the whole an inferior tract, with a vein of good land, consisting of the township of Fitzroy, eastern part of Ramsay, Drummond and part of Bathurst crossing it from north to south. The country to the eastward consists for the most part of a cold clay or flat lime rock, with a thin covering of soil. To the westward is a succession of rocky ridges with scraps of good land between. About 50 of the lots granted to the Lanark settlers, out of 570 lots were good, the rest should never have been attempted to be settled. They are, as above stated, a succession of rocky ridges, with scraps of good land between, seldom exceeding an acre. States the case of the settlers placed on the land without means, the land having been selected by themselves without judgment, simply to look upon the place as a home, and besides the view of the land in a state of nature is apt to deceive even an expert. Description of the timber; emigration of the young people. Return of the number of settlers remaining. 3

Colborne to Aberdeen (confidential). Nothing particular doing in the Assembly till a few days ago when a bill to authorise the disposal of the clergy reserves was introduced. Has no apprehension that any of the proceedings of the Legislature will embarrass the local government this session, which he intends to close early next month. Grants in the supply bill may induce the Council to reject it. Sends newspapers with reports of debates on the clergy reserves. Resolutions have been proposed in the Council for an address to the King praying that the clergy reserve question may be brought before the Imperial Parliament without reference to the provincial Legislature. The difficulties of the clergy reserves question can only be solved by their resumption by the Crown. 65

Colborne to Hay (private). Prorogation of the Provincial Legislature. Sends by his son papers that will show the present state of affairs. The shameful reduction of the salaries of the Attorney and Solicitor General. His anxiety for the close of the session. The most objectionable part of the proceedings was to have 2,000 copies of the report of the grievance committee printed without having it read to the House. Mackenzie had moved for this select committee early in the session. Cannot obtain a copy of the report but understands it contains most of the statements brought by Mackenzie to Downing Street and his comments on the petitions. The government party consisted of about 28 members but 6 or 7 were generally absent, so that their opponents were able to carry almost every measure they proposed. Recommends his son. 95

Toronto. bill to amend the charter of the Commercial bank of the Midland District, Act to incorporate the Gore Bank and Act to incorporate the Upper Canada Life Insurance and Trust Company. Sends report of the law

cated as early as possible 171
- May 6. The same to the same (No. 14). Sends copies of bill to amend the Toronto. charter of King's College, passed last session by the Assembly and rejected by the Council. Does not think a bill to amend the charter can be passed, but believes the Imperial Parliament could so amend it as to leave no just grounds for dissatisfaction. The interest of the province requires that the opening of the University be authorised and a revision of the charter should be directed. Sends such provisions as would meet the essential conditions of the case. The provision which requires the professors to be members of the Church of England may be objected to in the Council but will be satisfactory generally in the province as consistent with the principles on which the college was founded. Hopes that His Lordship will recommend the opening of the Council on the conditions named. There are 145 scholars receiving a liberal education at Upper Canada College; its prosperity is of the greatest importance to the province, it should be closely connected with King's College and protected by a charter. Hopes the additional clauses for its government will be approved of. Has communicated the dispatch to the Archdeacon and transmits his remarks. 189
Enclosed. Copy of bill to amend the charter of King's College. 200

- Strachan to Colborne. Concurs generally in the proposed alterations to the charter of King's College but does not approve of the office of president being open to any but a clergyman. Does not however feel justified in making this single point a matter of serious objection. 248
- May 6. Colborne to Hay (private). There can be no doubt of the importance of Toronto. establishing King's College on principles generally approved of in the province. The preparations for the charter being received; in the alterations there are no tests but five of the Council are to be members of the Church of England. Remarks on the other proposed alterations in the charter. He has endeavoured to leave no just grounds of objection; other observations.
249
- May 15. The same to Aberdeen (No. 15). Sends address from the House of Toronto. Assembly praying for the removal of certain grievances. The failure of the Assembly to promote the public good is attributed by it to the frequent rejection of its measures by the Legislative Council and that there is no community of feeling between the Council and the people. Important bills are mentioned by the Assembly as having been rejected last session. Sends these bills with remarks on the reasons of the Council for rejecting them.
The difficulty of selecting men fit to be placed in the Council, which should be composed of settlers who have been many years in the country and who should be able to attend regularly. The composition of the Council as it existed in 1831. Its present composition. 253 Enclosed. Address by the Assembly signed by Bidwell, Speaker. The Assembly has sent an address which, it is requested, may be sent to the Colonial Secretary. 257

Has sent explanation respecting the course of the Council in relation to the bills which the Assembly complains had been rejected and has also sent copies of the most important bills. Has not thought it necessary to enter into consideration of bills not enumerated by the Assembly. For forty years the Council and Assembly have proceeded with harmony in only one instance, about 18 years ago, there having been an interruption to this. Since 1829 the greater number of the laws of a general and public nature either originated in the Council or emanated from the Council as amendments to bills sent from the Assembly.	391

Colborne to Aberdeen (No. 16). The objects of the bill imposing a tax on lands adjoining Canborough and Simcoe Road is the improvement of a very bad road, running through a portion of the Indian reserve. It was reserved chiefly because of the right it conferred to interfere with the ungranted Crown lands and clergy reserves. From the benefit it confers thinks the Act should be allowed to go into operation. Address to Colborne. 760

May 30, Toronto. Colborne to Aberdeen (No. 26). Forwards memorial from St. Andrew's Church, Toronto, for a grant towards relieving the church from debt. 768

Enclosed. Memorial from St. Andrew's Church, Toronto. 769

June 5, Downing Street. Unsigned to Colborne. Sends remarks on the Blue Book for the guidance of the secretary, and points out the improvements that are required in the returns. 40

June 15. Unsigned to the same. Respecting the decision in the case of the reserved bills with reasons for the decision in the case of the Insurance Company, and that His Majesty would assent to the Act were the objections removed. 173

June 17. Unsigned to the same. Cannot comply with the recommendations contained in his letter of 6th May respecting the modifications of the College charter for reasons given. Does not believe his scheme could be carried into effect, as it is contrary to their resolutions to think that the Assembly

1835. would give permanently five members to the Church of England in the governing body of the college in which according to his plan the whole number would only be seven, and when one of the two is to be filled by him (Colborne) and the seventh by Strachan. The plan claims for the established church privileges which those who best understand and most deeply prize her true interests would not think it prudent to assert for her. His regret at hearing of the dissensions on this subject between the Council and Assembly. If they should address His Majesty to interfere as a mediator, he would be most happy to do so. Page 194
- July 1. Unsigned to Colborne. In reference to the continuance of the office of Auditor of Land patents, Colborne's attention is called to his former instructions on the subject; his continued silence has caused dissatisfaction and he is desired to send a report without delay. In the reply sent he finds no sufficient answer to the demand for the information of Spring Rice. The duties of the office and the risks to which the registration of the patents is exposed. The care that should be taken for their preservation. 524
- July 2. Unsigned to the same. Arrival of dispatches expected with anxiety owing to the information contained in the public journals of hostility to His Majesty's Government shown in the Assembly, but no official report was received till the 26th June. Dispatches received containing enclosures of moment which he left aside and called attention to the want of information from him (Colborne) on subjects of importance which he only learned from the public journals but on which he (Colborne) was silent. Shall look for full, detailed and explicit reports at the earliest possible period on the subjects to which he has called attention. 716
- September 11. Unsigned to the same. The King has assented to the bills for extending the charter of the Commercial Bank of the Midland district and for the incorporation of the Gore Bank. The omission in both cases of security for the public but he has decided not to insist on the principles laid down in the United Kingdom in opposition to the judgment of the provincial Legislature not doubting its willingness to adopt provisions for the security of the public. Attention is to be called to this at the next session. 178
- November 19. Unsigned to the same. Stationery sent and authority transmitted to pay the amount from the casual revenue to the military chest. 32

- June 1,
Toronto. Colborne to Aberdeen (No. 27). Calls attention to the miserable condition to which the soldiers have been reduced who commuted their pay.
Their removal on arrival to suitable localities. The strong, hearty, industrious and sober remained on their land, the maimed and infirm removed to Toronto as a place where they could exist on charity. Has ordered the removal of a number to Penetanguishene to be under the charge of an officer of that post. The children will probably be taken charge of by the farmers. Sends tables showing the extent of aid to the party sent to Penetanguishene and the assistance they received during the winter.
Refers to his letters anticipating the state of affairs. Hopes the fact of their accepting commutation may not be held as giving them no longer any claim on the country. 1
- Enclosed.* Return of commuted pensioners sent to Penetanguishene. 5
- Hawke to Rowan. Remarks on the commuted pensioners sent to Pene-tanguishene. 6

The name of Dickson from whom Davidson derives his claim was inscribed on lot 27 in 1796, but the claim lay dormant till the Welland Canal Company had decided to carry the canal through the lot when they applied for and received a grant of it on condition that another on the line of the canal should be assigned to Davidson. June 22, Toronto. Colborne to Aberdeen (No. 32). Sends report from the Executive Council to show the precautions taken to verify the claims of U. E. loyalists and their children. The Council represents the inconvenience that would result from fixing a limit of time for free grants to the children of U. E. loyalists and Canadian militia. He himself is persuaded that all living in the province entitled to free grants should forward to the Inspector General their description and documents. Has desired the Surveyor General to send list of all U. E. loyalist claims lodged in his office and from these measures the extent of the liabilities may be easily ascertained. Page 61

In the Order in Council and the Attorney General's report the case is further explained. 91

The order for a grant to Daniel Daverne was countermanded by the commander of the forces and the Council have constantly rejected the applications of Richard Daverne, it being incumbent on the petitioner to show that at the time the grant was made to Daniel Daverne, it was unjustly set aside. 122

July 2,
Toronto.

Colborne to Aberdeen (No. 37). Reports that the application of people of colour for settlement at Wilberforce was at first received favourably, but apparently in consequence of representations from the London and Western districts the commissioners did not feel authorized to conclude the negotiations. There are about 20 families at Wilberforce; they have a school and are well conducted. Paul, their leader, is a Baptist minister, and bears a very good character. 128

1835.

- Enclosed.* Prior to Rowan. Report of the commissioners of the Upper Canada Land Company respecting the settlement of Wilberforce, some of the arrivals being respectable but the greater number idle and dissolute and the respectable part expressed a strong desire to obtain land elsewhere. Under happier circumstances the commissioners might have sold them more land but their general bad conduct began to be felt as a serious obstacle to the sale of the adjacent lands. The commissioners refused to sell them more land and offered to take back the 800 acres at a liberal rate of payment for improvement. The settlement of Wilberforce is broken up, but will be formed elsewhere. Under the auspices of such men as Paul it may flourish and be attended with the happy effects alluded to in Nisbett's letter. Page 131

- July 30. Unsigned to Colborne. The case of Davidson reviewed, the justice of his claim acknowledged and the course of the Executive Council condemned. 19
- July 30. Unsigned to the same. Remarks on the part Strachan took in the case of Davidson in opposing the wishes of the Assembly, it being supposed that he had given up politics and only retained his seat in the Council as an honorary distinction. Efforts of Ripon to induce Strachan to confine himself to his ecclesiastical functions. Amongst the changes that may be rendered necessary by the position of affairs in the Canadas may be the revision of the Executive Council in each province and in such case it is unlikely that Strachan would again be called to the discharge of this duty. The principles maintained by Ripon and his successors are opposed to placing ecclesiastical dignitaries in political offices. By a voluntary retirement Strachan would relieve the King from the pain of a measure which would appear to derogate from the merits of a gentleman distinguished by a long course of zealous services. 28
- August 1, Toronto. Colborne to Glenelg (No. 40). Sends copies of the Acts passed at last session. 178
- August 3, Toronto. The same to Hay (private). Has just received a book containing the report and appendix from the select committee on grievances. Should the documents require an explanation or remarks he will write when he has had time to examine them. 179

Aylmer to the same. Sends statement showing that Givins is not entitled to any allowance additional to his present salary. 186

August 15,

Colborne to Glenelg, (No. 42.) Has appointed William Hepburn, permanent clerk to the superintendent of the Indian department. Recommends that his salary be fixed at £150 per annum. 193

August 19,
Toronto.

The same to the same (No. 43.) His object in suggesting the sale of the reserve at Toronto was to show that the advantages to be derived from the project were the erection of convenient barracks without expense to the Ordnance, reducing the outlay for repairs, enlarging Toronto by an extension westward and the employment of emigrants. To provide means for accomplishing the objects in which the Ordnance is most interested, the other improvements must be immediately undertaken and as the reserve becomes a desirable place of residence the funds for barracks and defence will be supplied. How he proposes that the work should be carried out. Is persuaded that the sale of lots will ensure the works being carried on gradually. The completion of the works will depend on the rate at which the value of land shall increase to the westward of Toronto, but the interests of the Ordnance and of the King's service cannot but be promoted by the scheme proposed. 197

Enclosed. Abstract of lands sold on the military reserve at Toronto. 203

Total supposed value of land east of the garrison. 204

Plan of military reserve at Toronto. 205

August 19,
Toronto.

Colborne to Glenelg (No. 44.) Transmits with reluctance memorials from the Chief Justice, the Attorney General, the Secretary and Registrar and other officers of Government whose salaries had been discontinued or reduced after the decided opinion of the Colonial Secretary in reply to dispatches of the 20th March and 23rd May, 1833, knowing, too, that government had been relieved from responsibility for the support of civil Government and Courts in all instances in which the revenue of 14 George 3 applicable to these charges had been ceded, but it is due to the Judges and Attorney General to send their statements of their inadequate remuneration. The salaries in lieu of fees fixed for the Attorney General and Solicitor General at £1,200 and £600 per annum had been reduced to 750 and 375. Undoubtedly there is a strong argument that if the deficiencies were made up by the Imperial Government the allowances provided for by the legislature would be gradually transferred to the Crown funds. Under the special circumstances, however, submits the cases for favourable consideration. 206

Enclosed. Memorial from the judges for payment of salaries and arrears due them. 215

Memorial from the Judges, calls attention to the non payment of travelling expenses to the Judges, of the contingent accounts of the clerks of the assizes, and of the allowance to the sheriff of the home district. Argument on each of these points in regard to payment. 220

Cameron, Secretary and Registrar, to Colborne. Calls attention to the neglect of the Assembly to provide for the salaries and contingencies of the officers or Government for the current year. 240

S. P. Jarvis to the same. Reminds him of former application. The failure of the Assembly to provide salaries has left him no alternative but to submit to total loss of income or to solicit favourable consideration again. Has prepared a second memorial to the colonial secretary which he asks to be forwarded. 242

The memorial from S. P. Jarvis to Aberdeen. Respecting the failure of the Assembly to provide for his salary. 244

S. P. Jarvis to Stanley. Urges on His Majesty's Government his claim to favourable consideration respecting the amount due him. 251 paid from the rents of leased clergy reserves and the interest on sums permitted to England, and the balance of the reduced salaries of those paid above £100 is to be borne by the territorial revenue. How the revenues will meet these charges. The list from the Bishop of Quebec shows the amount to be paid annually and the balance required to complete their salaries to the end of the year. Has sanctioned the payment of the salaries from the 1st of January instead of the 1st of April, subject to any alteration the Colonial Secretary may make, and on condition that the society is to pay the first quarter's salaries. How the pensions to retired ministers and widows should be paid. Page 311

Remarks on the expenditure for emigration to 30th June, 1835. 331

Report to Hawke from H. C. Young, Sunnidale. The road being opened to Nottawasaga, he has sent the emigrants to their lots. Cannot yet tell how many rods had been earthed and brushed on the Sunnidale road; will be obliged to employ a trustworthy person to do it. Had been obliged to hire a person to superintend the work. It should be surveyed as soon as convenient for a heavy fall of snow would delay it till spring. Christian Bornes, one of the foreign emigrants, strayed in the wood and has not been found. The difficulty he has in managing the foreign emigrants. 334

Unsigned to Colborne. Has received copies of the Acts passed last session and of the reserved bills. Is anxious to come to a prompt decision on the reserved bills, but accidental circumstances have delayed the completion of the necessary forms in the present instance. The necessity for furnishing all the information possible respecting the subject of bills which are reserved so that the Colonial Secretary may be enabled to advise what decision should be come to, but neither he (Colborne) nor the Attorney General had done so. Remarks on bills reserved. The conclusion to recommend sanctioning the bill affecting the family of DesGardins (sic) for confirming British subjects in the lands derived through aliens. 135

October 8,

Unsigned to Colborne. His letter of 26th June only received on the 10th of October. Regret at the delay in forwarding the address for 12 weeks after it was communicated. Has laid the address before the King and was instructed to state that the Assembly is the guardian of the public revenues in the province and when it recommended compensation to any one from injury caused by the local government, the ministers of the Crown, could not advise His Majesty to withhold compensation, except in an extreme case. The Assembly is to be informed that out of deference to its judgment, although in opposition to the opinion of the law officers of the Crown His Majesty has ordered full compensation to be made to Forsyth. How the amount should be determined. His Majesty hopes that the Assembly will not prejudge the question as to the right of the Crown to the land of which Forsyth was dispossessed. According to decisions the land was not Forsyth's, but was vested in the Crown for public uses. The evils that would be caused by the abandonment of that claim. Agrees with Murray respecting the course followed by Maitland in this case as being improper.

- October 31. Unsigned to Colborne. Dispatch of 19th August received, but had previously heard from the Chief Justice. Sends explanation that according to the rules of the office he could not answer any one except through the Lieut. Governor (Colborne). The object of the dispatch and application is to obtain the amount of the salaries reduced by the Assembly. So far as he can see the claims are reasonable. The question arises how can this admission be reconciled with the refusal or delay to meet the demands of the claimants. Believes that the period has fully come when the question of finance in the provinces must undergo revision and settlement by the Executive government in concert with the two Houses of the local legislature. To accomplish this will be among the principal objects of the meeting of the general assembly by the end of January next for which His Majesty's commands have been sent to him (Colborne). Cannot take up detached parts of the question, but when the question comes to be settled, it will be found that the interests of the public officers, whose memorials have been forwarded have not been neglected. 210
- November 30. Unsigned to the same. Has received dispatch with account of the clergy fund. Summarises the dispatch. Approves of the intention to repay the amount due the Receiver general from the sums to be received from defaulters, trusts that the augmented sales will relieve the casual and territorial revenue from the charge for the salaries of missionaries. 309
- November 30. Unsigned to the same. Has received and laid at the foot of the Throne the petitions from Thorah and from Lancaster in favour of Donald Cameron, the object being to ask protection for Cameron and his settlers against the proceedings of the Executive Council. In 1831, acting on the report of the Executive Council, Ripon declined to take steps with reference to the case. The memorialists, although they impugn in general terms the justice of the Executive Council, do not refute the allegations on which the decision is founded. Cannot advise His Majesty to interfere. Cannot understand the reason for the delay of the Council in dealing with the case, and desires to have an explanation. 262
- November 30. Unsigned to the same. Has received dispatch respecting emigrants. Is gratified that all have found employment but the commuted pensioners, respecting whom instructions were already sent. Has written to Gosford who, no doubt, will use every exertion to mitigate the inconvenience of quarantine. In reference to shipwrecks the Treasury is ready to apply for the means of erecting lighthouses on the islands of Scatterie and St. Paul, provided the colonies which are benefited will maintain them. Encloses copy of dispatch to Governors respecting the proposal of the Treasury. 319
- December 31. Unsigned to Head. Cannot confirm the appointment of Hepburn whilst the investigation of the expenditure on account of Indians is in progress. Hepburn to be informed of the regret that is felt that his services cannot be made use of. 195
- No date. Unsigned to Colborne. Has referred proposals of the 18th August to the Ordnance, who have not had it in their power to afford information for his guidance, and must again refer the subject to himself (Colborne). In transmitting estimates on which the Board of Ordnance may have to act, he is

- September 5, Toronto. Colborne to Glenelg (No. 50). Transmits documents from Peter Robinson which give a satisfactory explanation of his alleged negligence respecting the balances which were supposed to have remained in his hands. The dispatch of 16th August, 1834, only required return of receipts and expenditure for 1830, 1831 and 1832. 13
Enclosed. Peter Robinson to Rowan. The method of keeping the accounts having the appearance of large balances being kept in the hands of the Surveyor General of Woods, he has changed the system to show the true state of affairs, as regards the balances. To explain the subject, sends statement of dues collected by Shirreff at Bytown in 1830, 1831 and 1832. The amount for 1833 has been secured by bond. The other dues are trifling, and he had delayed in hope of Shirreff obtaining payment and remitting but as no specific period could be named, he will make up the accounts for 1833 and 1834 immediately. 15
- Statement showing the period of payment of dues on Crown timber cut in 1830, 1831 and 1832. 16
- September 7, Toronto. Colborne to Glenelg (No. 51). The injury alleged by LeBreton to have been caused to him by the timber channel in the Ottawa river is not connected with the Rideau navigation and the claim cannot be submitted to arbitration under the Rideau Canal Act. Has referred to the office of engineers at Bytown for information. 18
Enclosed. Rowan to LeBreton. Colborne refers him to the answer of Ripon that the decision of his claim rests with the courts of law. With respect to the permanent injury alleged to have been sustained Colborne is instructed to have an investigation made. 20

Second presentment on the death of McCarthy. 36

Presentment of the Grand Jury on the state of the gaol. 38

Presentment of the Grand Jury, that the prisoners were well, but inconveniently crowded owing to the small size of the prisons. 40

Judge Macaulay to Rowan. Has sent presentments of the Grand Jury for 1835, and one for 1834. The nature of these presentments. Had visited the prison which he found greatly crowded. The building is new and well situated, but too small and not very secure. No classification is possible, and the mixture of prisoners is most highly objectionable. By the removal of certain convicts to the provincial Penitentiary, the prison will be relieved for the time, but will no doubt be overcrowded before another court is held. Is convinced that most of the gaols in the province are felt to be too small and that the enlargement of the present or the erection of new edifices is indispensable. It would be desirable that the Legislature should provide the plans and the regulations so that a unity of system might prevail. 43

Extract from the charge delivered to the Grand Jury on 17th August, 1835. 47

Rowan to Receiver General. The Lieut. Governor will sanction his sending any documents to the Assembly that may convey the information required, but he is to bear in mind the necessity of preserving original documents. 229

The same to Mackenzie. The Lieut. Governor has in every instance complied with the address of the Assembly respecting public accounts and he is probably aware that the Inspector General has been directed to furnish all information. Judge Macaulay to Rowan. Reports the case of the rioters now imprisoned on whose behalf a memorial has been presented by James Gray and others. 236

Talbot to the same. Cannot send any return of settlers as until the performance of the settlement duties he does not consider the settlement final. Has received no fees or perquisites from settlers so can make no return of that kind. Has sold no land to settlers. Has nothing to do with preparing or procuring deeds so knows nothing of the charge of obtaining them. How settlers are treated in respect to certificate for settlement duties. On the sales of school and college lands he has received money which has been handed to the proper officers. 245

September 28,
Toronto. Colborne to Hay. Has sent by his son a dispatch to be delivered at Downing Street. 247

October 28. Unsigned to Colborne. In respect to the conduct of the correspondence assures him (Colborne) of the respect he entertains for him and regrets if any expressions should lead to a contrary conclusion. Summary of the proceedings of the House of Assembly and of his dispatches previous to that from the Colonial Office of 2nd July. Except with regard to the clergy reserve bill, the questions respecting the composition of the Council and its rejection of the bills sent up by the Assembly he (Glenelg?) was without explanation or remark on any one of the important occurrences of the session of 1835. Discusses the justification by Colborne that his private letters to Hay supplied all the necessary information and calls attention to the embarrassing position such a method of business places the Secretary of State in. 249

October 28. Unsigned to the same. The address from the Assembly has been received and laid before the King and has engaged his serious attention. Has also laid before the King the report on grievances with remarks. A considerable time must elapse before the King's answer can be received. He is instructed to direct that steps be taken to have the Assembly called together by the end of January to hear His Majesty's communications in relation to the subjects mentioned. He is to lay this dispatch before the House. The communications will prove conclusively that the King's fixed purpose is to redress every real grievance affecting any of His Majesty's subjects in Upper Canada. 168

October 28. Unsigned to the same (private and confidential). The concern the writer (Glenelg?) feels at the nature of the correspondence and his knowledge of Colborne's high qualities. 171

November 18. Unsigned to the same. Has received dispatch respecting the death of McCarthy. He is to call on Dr. Thomas to reconcile the statements he made respecting McCarthy's state of health. Censures the long delay between the death of McCarthy and the report of the grand jury, the delay making the report useless. Is bound to assume that a strict investigation took place at the time of the death and regrets that he (Colborne) did not furnish the fullest information. He is to lose no time in supplying this deficiency. Regret is felt at the insufficient state of the prisons and the want of classification; overcrowding and idleness have led to attempts to escape, some of which have been successful. The defects of prison arrangements pointed out. Page 24

- December 1. Unsigned to Colborne. Summarises the claims in the petition of Mackenzie sent on the 10th of September, to which he decides he cannot agree for reasons given. 77
- December 2. Unsigned to the same. Sir Francis Bond Head has been appointed Lieut. Governor of Upper Canada. 173 1836.
March 23. Unsigned to Head. The King's satisfaction at the expression of the attachment of the Wesleyan Methodists to his person and government. As to pecuniary aid to the seminary at Cobourg, means cannot be afforded to grant it. Sends copy of the letter to Ryerson on the subject. 180

- October 1, Toronto. The same to the same. This and the two preceding enclosed in Colborne to Glenelg, 3rd October, 1835.
- October 3, Toronto. Colborne to Glenelg, (No. 59). Forwards copies of correspondence with Brydone, agent of the Earl of Egremont, employed to superintend the conveyance of emigrants from Surrey. Brydone was authorised to purchase a tract of land on which to place emigrants from Surrey and to employ them till they could provide for themselves. Recommends for favourable consideration the proposal to purchase 20,000 acres by private contract. Page 249
- Enclosed.* Brydone to Rowan. Has surveyed land to the north of the Canada Company's on Lake Huron, and also land near Balsam Lake; prefers land to the north of Goderich, and proposes to purchase 60,000 acres; applies for additional land to make altogether 100,000 acres, the latter to be reserved for not less than three, nor more than five years. Points out the difficulties in the way of the settlement. Under the circumstances the price of the land should not exceed one dollar an acre, that such portion as consists chiefly of hemlock and ground hemlock shall be only half a dollar and that swamps shall not be charged for, that one fourth of the purchase money should be applied to building roads and bridges, the remainder to be paid either in twelve months or by instalments at the option of the committee. Engages to relinquish all claim to any part of the reserves remaining unsettled on the expiry of the specified term. As it is expedient before he leaves that a mill dam should be constructed, asks for early consideration. 251
- Rowan to Commissioner of Crown lands. Returns Brydone's proposals for the purchase of a tract of land to the westward of the Canada Company's Huron block. The Lieut. Governor sees no objection to Brydone

- Rowan to Commissioner of Crown lands. The Lieut. Governor directs him to inform Brydone that he must apply to the Colonial Secretary for the lands and that he is to be informed of the terms the Lieut. Governor will recommend. 257
- October 25, Burford. Duncombe to Rowan. Enclosed in Colborne to Glenelg, 4th November, 1835.
- October 26, Toronto. Strachan to Colborne. Enclosed in Colborne to Glenelg, 3rd November, 1835.
- November 3, Toronto. Colborne to Glenelg (No. 60). Has communicated to Strachan the contents of private dispatch. From his reply he intends to retire from the Executive Council in January. The zeal and activity of Strachan. Requests that the warrant to enable Dunn to take his seat in the Executive Council may be sent as soon as possible. 260
- Enclosed.* Strachan to Colborne. Thanks for the communication of dispatch respecting himself. Explains his position with respect to the Council and asks to be relieved after the first of January next. 264
- November 4, Toronto. Colborne to Glenelg (No. 61). Transmits report of Duncombe appointed by the Assembly to obtain information respecting lunatic asylums, schools, and other public matters of interest to the province. 269
- Enclosed.* Duncombe to Rowan. Is anxious to obtain reports on education and other documents as they materially assist him in obtaining information. 270
- November 6, Toronto. Colborne to Glenelg (No. 62). The people of Canada are sensible of the protection the examination of provincial Acts secures to them, but they expect that no unnecessary delay will occur in regard to reserved bills. The two bank bills are now in operation and the parties concerned are satisfied at their having been promptly considered. Remarks on two reserved bills to which the Lieut. Governor could not assent on account of peremptory orders to the contrary. It is a question in the Desjardins bill whether the Crown should forego its rights in favour of the Desjardins family in consequence of their relationship to the late Peter Desjardins, projector of the Desjardins canal, or should be allowed to seek relief by application for the Royal bounty. Other remarks on reserved bills. 271
- November 9, Toronto. The same to the same. (No. 63.) In respect to the charge of sending scanty reports of the proceedings of the Assembly, trusts that the contents of his dispatch of the 16th September will remove some erroneous impressions. There can be no doubt that the appointment of a disaffected person like Mackenzie to be chairman of a select committee on grievances must create distrust and surprise as well as that through his influence 2,000 copies of a very disgraceful report should have been issued. The publication of the report has not created any bad impression in the province and little importance is attached to it or to the documents promulgated with it. If anything discreditable to government is found among the papers, the Assembly is competent to pursue the inquiry. Has nothing additional to report respecting the province; believes it never was more tranquil, but the season of clamour will again return when the Legislature convenes, nor should the democratic influence be disregarded, but a respectable class of settlers is obtaining a beneficial influence to counteract the effect of factions. 279
- November 10, Toronto. Bonnycastle to Colborne. Enclosed in Colborne to Glenelg, 23rd November, 1835.
- November 11, Toronto. Colborne to Glenelg. (No. 64.) Transmits return asked for in dispatch of 24th July. 283
- Enclosed.* Return of the titles of bills from 1832 to 1834.

pediency of continuing the office. Its uses. The Crown lawyers recommend its continuance. No disadvantage could arise from the delay, except to the individual petitioning for remuneration. In reference to His Lordship's remark that he could not continue a useless office for private interests he (Colborne) had not recommended the continuance of the office of Auditor of Land Patents whether it was necessary or not. SESSIONAL PAPER No. 18

1835. Claim. Page 433
Abstract of Claims. 434
- December 23. Unsigned to Head. Is happy to learn that Strachan is to resign when his successor shall be appointed. Dunn's claim to be appointed a member of the Board rests on Aberdeen's promise. But as he is to be responsible for the appointment, he cannot proceed till he has had his (Head's) advice. In the present state of the province the appointment involves many important considerations. He is to signify to Strachan the King's acceptance of his resignation and the thanks of the ministry for his having relieved them from the embarrassment of his opposition to the declared opinions of the Assembly and of the Ministers of the Crown. He is to nominate provisionally to replace Strachan whatever person he may think best qualified. 262
- December 23, Toronto. Colborne to Genelg (No. 76). Encloses copies of communications from the secretary to the Bishop of Quebec, respecting missionaries employed in Upper Canada. 435
Enclosed. Lockhart to Rowan. Reports death of Rev. Thomas Morley, his widow entitled to £50 sterling of a pension. 438
The same to the same. Reports the death of Rev. John Houghton and of Weagent, a retired missionary. The widows entitled to pension of £50 each and have been instructed to draw for the part due on 1st January next. The suspension of Rev. Robert Short has been confirmed by the Bishop. The death of Mr. Campbell, at Belleville, had been previously notified, and that his wife was entitled to the pension of £50 a year. 439
- December 26, Toronto. Colborne to Glenelg (No. 77). Refers to dispatches recommending a portion of the timber revenue to be appropriated for slides for the passage of timber at the Châts and other rapids of the Ottawa, and sends report on the lumber trade. Has visited Bytown and the neighbourhood as far as the Châts, and had an opportunity of seeing the extent of the commercial interest of the trade. His belief in the increase of trade were the river improved. Directs attention to the Ottawa and Rideau Canal navigation, which has been obstructed by the first lock being in the hands of a Montreal Forwarding Company. Proposes that the lock be purchased or a new one built between Isle Perrot and Ste. Anne's, the estimate for which is £15,000. It is impossible to believe that after all the expense of building government would allow the entrance of the navigation to be obstructed. 441
Enclosed. Extract from the committee of the Bank of Upper Canada, the part, namely, relating to the lumber trade. 447
- December 28, Toronto. Colborne to Glenelg (No. 78). Transmits petition and communication from Justice Sherwood, respecting McAuliffe, a private convicted of murder. Legal doubts on the part of Sherwood; has referred the question to the other judges, whose judgment cannot be delivered till June or July next, and asks that the case be submitted to the Crown officers. 453 1836.
February 29, Downing Street. Unsigned to Head. Colborne had found it necessary to confirm certain grants of lands to loyalists, made in February, 1834, without waiting for the final decision of His Majesty's government. Presumes he will communicate to the Assembly the substance of Aberdeen's dispatch respecting the loyalists on consideration of which he (Aberdeen) trusted the Assembly would modify their sentiments. The dispatch not having arrived before the close of the session His Majesty's government would still further delay a decision. Declines to express any opinion on the subject of the townships recommended to satisfy the claims of the loyalists. 321
- March 2, Downing Street. Unsigned to the same. Has referred to the commander-in-chief the memorials from Niagara and Amherstburg against the removal of troops from those districts and regrets that he cannot accede to the prayer of the memorialists. His Majesty feels that the maintenance of the public peace does not belong to the military but to the civil authorities. 309

March 15. Unsigned to Head. Has received dispatch of 26th December. The importance of opening up communication in a new country, but when first proposed the great expenditure was not felt to be warranted for the works then suggested for improving the waterways. Pending the settlement of the question of the appropriation of the territorial revenue he cannot sanction the application of any of that money. He (Head) is to bring the subject under the notice of the House of Assembly. Page 444

February 18. Ordinance. Byham to Hay. Had received letter respecting the erection of barracks and their defences in Toronto. The necessary instructions to be given to pay into the hands of the Ordnance department two thirds of the proceeds of the military reserves until the sales shall amount to the sum required for the construction of the works, former estimates show that the sum required would not exceed £59,205, but the precise amount cannot be ascertained until further reference is made to Canada. The sum to be paid to account by Colborne is to be received by the officers of Ordnance, but no part of the proposed works should be begun until a considerable portion of the total sum has been received. Page 51
- February 24. Treasury. Stewart to the same. Before the Treasury can decide on Colborne's proposal to build a new chapel and house for the Governor, they have thought necessary to refer to the Ordnance for specific information respecting the charge to be incurred for barracks and military works, &c., and therefore request that authority to Colborne to proceed with these works may be deferred. Before authorising the building of a governor's house, if the funds admit of it, the Treasury must have a plan submitted. 84
- February 26, Quebec. Routh to Stewart. Enclosed in Stewart to Hay, 3rd July, 1835.
- February 27, Treasury. Stewart to Hay. In reference to correspondence respecting the salary to the Inspector General of Accounts, the Lords of the Treasury believe that the sum of £200 per annum will be sufficient to allow from the land fund. 86
- February 27, London. Gibson, Treasurer of the New England Company, to the same. Has received from Colborne letters and copy of dispatch. Thanks for the attention of Aberdeen so amply represented by him (Hây). Has received dispatch from Colborne respecting the subject under discussion. 125
- February 28, London. Campbell to the same. By direction of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, he calls attention to the cases of four clergymen in Upper Canada aggrieved by the regulations recently adopted by which their salaries were reduced and asks that they be restored to the former amounts. 150
- February 28, Admiralty. Houghton to the same. Applies for a letter of recommendation to Colborne in favour of Battersby that he might obtain a government situation in Upper Canada. 309
- March 4, Hamilton. Memorial of McCarthy, stating the circumstances of his trial and sentence to death, his respite and the commutation of his sentence, &c. 454
Certificate of the state of McCarthy's health by Thomas, the gaol surgeon. 458
- March 7, Treasury. Stewart to Hay. The Lords of the Treasury concur with Aberdeen in regard to the survey of the country north of Lake Huron and to the increased allowance for the support of Presbyterian ministers, but with respect to the latter asks that Aberdeen's attention be called to the arrangement respecting ecclesiastical establishments in the North American colonies that the allowance should only be continued during the lives of the present incumbents. 89
- March 8, Toronto. Chief Justice Robinson to Hay. Enclosed in Hewson to Hay, 12th March, 1835.

Troughton to Aberdeen. Is the only son and heir of the late Lieutenant Felix Troughton, who died at sea on his return from the war in Canada. He was entitled to a grant of land which has never been applied for. Fears that the delay may invalidate the claim. The testimonials to his father enumerated; evidences of the applicant's birth, &c. can be produced. 919

March 10,
Toronto.

Hagerman to Hay. Defends himself against misrepresentations made of his conduct. Complains of the annoyance to which he is subject from some of the newspapers. Would not complain if they were confined to the province but the charges find their way across the Atlantic. The cause of this is his opposition to Bidwell. Character of O'Grady, a priest suspended for reprehensible conduct who stood as a candidate at Kingston for the House of Assembly and was supported by Bidwell, whom he (Hagerman) opposed when a candidate for the speakership. Hence Bidwell's enmity. Denies that he has voted in opposition to the views of His Majesty's government. The scurrilous attacks made on him by O'Grady's paper. The treasonable letter of Hume to abandon allegiance to the Empire; the attachment of the people to the British connection. The next Assembly will be of a different cast from the present as many of the emigrants who refused to vote because they had so recently come to the country, now see the necessity of doing so. The appointment of Roebuck as agent by the Assembly with £600 of salary and £500 for contingencies. If the Council should reject the bill the Assembly propose to pay Roebuck out of contingencies which is unconstitutional. 311

P.S.—Hopes something will be done to settle the clergy reserves question. 321

March 11,
Beccles.

Cutting to Colonial Secretary. Has had no word of his son for about 18 months, who was then living in Adolphustown. Asks if he is applying for information to the right place, if not asks to be informed. 276

March 12,
Toronto.

Hewson to Hay. Has received letter from Chief Justice Robinson to him and, has referred friends to him (Hay). His knowledge of the country. The loss by its resources not being made known when so many of his countrymen are starving for want of employment. The system of emigration hitherto followed has been detrimental to the Irish peasant who too soon becoming a landed proprietor becomes idle and dissolute. Advocates a system of tenancy at a moderate rent. Since his arrival was a magistrate and commissioner of the Court of Requests. The good he hopes to do as agent of the North American Colonial Association. 322

March 23,
Treasury. Freemantle to Hay. The decision in the case of Markland, the Inspector General of Accounts, has been come to so recently and no new facts appearing, does not see how the minute can be altered. If Markland makes a second application and states more distinctly the extent of his duties, an increase may be granted. Page 88
- March 26,
London. By to the same. Is greatly obliged for the notice that he (By) might be called before the committee on military expenditure in Canada but owing to a severe attack of paralysis he will be unable to go before the committee. Refers to Dr. Thomson who attended him in his illness, which was brought on by the unmerited censure passed on him by the Treasury. All the papers respecting the expenditure on the Rideau Canal are now before the Ordnance, giving the fullest information he could give were he able to appear personally before the committee. 167
- March 26,
London. The same to the same. Has received dispatch with petition from the Tay Navigation Company. Has no doubt, from the respectability of the names, of the correctness of the statements in the petition but was not aware of the intentions of the government, not having been in Canada at the time; when he gave assistance he was pleased with the admirable manner the work was executed. Thinks from various considerations that it would be just and equitable to grant the prayer of the petition. 165
- March 26,
London. King to the same. Sends copy of dispatch from Colborne to the New England Company. 129
Enclosed. Colborne to Gibson. The local government is disposed to give the agents of the New England Company its zealous assistance in promoting the civilisation of the Indian tribes. Description of the lands and desires of the Indians. 130

- March 30,
Milford. Pogson to Hay. Through a kind offer from Taylor is going to settle in Upper Canada. Asks for a good word to any one who refers to him on his (Pogson's) account. 847
- March—
Unsigned to Campbell. The list complained of in his letter of 28th February was copied from the list provided by the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel and if any error was in the list Aberdeen will readily consent to its being rectified, but if the salaries were reduced on grounds applicable to themselves or stations, Aberdeen could not consent that the salaries could be calculated at any other rate than that which the Society had assigned to them as just. Desires to know if the salaries in the list of June, 1834 were stated by mistake or were reduced on considerations independent of the contraction of the means of the society. 152
- April 11,
London. Gibson to Hay. The New England Company can only arrive at the conclusion stated in the accompanying paper. 135
Enclosed Memorandum on the exchange of land for that at Balsam Lake; the New England Company desires to know the conditions of the grant. 136

David Browne to Aberdeen. Further respecting the claims of himself and associates. 201

Ordnance.

Byham to Hay. In reference to statement that the expenditure for barracks in Toronto is larger than Aberdeen was led to expect asks the Board of Ordnance if the sum mentioned is necessary. The military establishments at Toronto form no part of the general defence of Canada, but are solely for local purposes. The board has no desire for extensive works, but revised estimates had been directed to be made for these. All questions of alienation or appropriation of military reserves should be submitted to the Board of Ordnance, which has made a communication to the Treasury on the subject. 53

Enclosed. Byham to Stewart. The Board of Ordnance cannot give a confident opinion of the realization of the estimated purchase of that part of the military reserves near Toronto. The sum of £10,000 is inadequate for the erection of the contemplated barrack and even if £43,000 can be realised for the land it will fall far short of the expense of the barrack and defences so that nothing will remain of the sales for any other purpose. It would no doubt be desirable to have a small church built near the barrack but the board cannot recommend that any of the funds from the military reserves be applied to it. 56

April 16,
Toronto.

Byham to Hay. The Board of Ordnance agrees that the beginning of the building of the barrack should be postponed for the present, but it is desirable that the sale of the military reserves should proceed in anticipation of the services that may be decided on. If agreed to the Board suggests that measures may be taken for securing the application of the proceeds towards the expense of such military reconstructions as may be considered advisable. 58

- May 23, Strublely. Lindsay to ———. Remarks on the depressed state of agriculture. The remedy is emigration to the colonies where there is plenty of room, particularly in Upper Canada, and the emigrants would become good customers for manufactured goods. Proposes as a means of settling them to dispose of Crown and clergy lands by lottery. How the lottery should be managed. 429
- May 25, Toronto. J. B. Robinson to Hay. In consequence of the approaching departure of Archdeacon Mountain some ecclesiastical arrangement for the division of the diocese of Quebec will most likely be brought under the consideration of the government. The claims of Dr. Strachan, his qualifications. His services and long experience cannot be overlooked. The kindness shown to him (Robinson) by Strachan leads him to urge his claims. 849
- May 27, Toronto. Mackenzie to Colonial Secretary. Sends duplicate of petition by Daniel Arnot of Clarke, complaining that the clergy are about to take away a lot he had agreed to purchase. 484
- May 28, Toronto. Enclosed. Petition of Arnot. 485
- Strachan to Aberdeen. Discusses the question of the division of the diocese of Quebec. States his claims to the position of Bishop of the additional diocese and cannot believe that any one could be placed over him in any arrangement regarding the church in Canada. 888

- June 1, Edinburgh. Thomson, Moderator of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, to Glenelg. Sends memorial from the Synod in Canada in connection with the Church of Scotland; supports the claim to a portion of the clergy reserves and recommends the prayer of the petition. 949
- Enclosed.* Memorial to the King of the Synod of the Church of Scotland in Canada stating the loyalty of their adherents and their desire to support their ministers but the difficulty they experience in doing so, and thus many localities are left destitute of religious instruction and are invaded by ignorant vagrants who attempt to deceive the people. Was honoured with these letters and the grant for having erected at great expense iron works in Upper Canada a work of great importance as stated in a third letter, that from Maitland to Wilmot Horton. The financial panic in London, the cause of the failure of the works. His subsequent employment in emigration and failure to obtain the permanent employment he had been promised. His desire to have the letter to Colborne confirmed. 331
- Enclosed.* Hay to Hayes. His proposal to transfer the 5,000 acres of land he was authorised to receive would be too great a departure from the regulations. Sir George Murray is willing to give him employment in the department when an opportunity shall offer. 335
- Hillier to the same. The Lieut. Governor will recommend the extension of time for his contract. He has been pleased with the appearance of the establishment. 337

Applies to have three reserved bills considered, so that Upper Canada may have the benefit of their provisions which by two of them will be of advantage in preventing the establishment of private banks. The augmentation of the Commercial and the establishment of a new bank at Hamilton will for the present afford relief. Sends also list of loyalists and their families except a few who are absent, all of whom are affected by the provincial Act of 1819 and solicit a favourable consideration of their case. 461
- Enclosed.* Petition of Scotch Highlanders, U. E. loyalists, representing that the exemption from taxation had been cancelled by a provincial Act. Camberwell. James to Glenelg. Reminds His Lordship that he is on the list for an appointment. His qualifications. 346
- July 7,
Admiralty. Wood to Hay. Requests he would bring under Glenelg's consideration the propriety of promoting the establishment of an observatory in Upper Canada. One half of the globe is connected by a chain of observatories, whilst the other is destitute of the means of furthering the purposes of astronomy. It is equally wanting in the material objects of geography. The subject has been strangely overlooked. The observatory at St. Helena is about to be dismantled and the instruments in it would be available for the proposed observatory, thus saving expense. Should this suggestion be approved of, an inventory might be sent to the Admiralty to ascertain what further instruments are wanted. 7
- July 10,
London. Boulton to Grey. Had left a letter from his brother D'Arcy Boulton with a memorial to which he was told no answer could be made until a dispatch was received from Colborne. As he understands that Dunn brought the dispatch is anxious to know if his brother's application has been favourably considered as he proposes to for leave Canada shortly. 180

Hayes to Grey. Had been informed at an interview that letters authorising grants of land if not acted on were to be withdrawn. McKenzie to Glenelg. Sends copy of a legislative production rendered necessary by the difficulties thrown in the way by the Colonial Office. The evidence is not one sided and the officials have had full opportunity to explain their conduct. If Sir John Colborne is continued there will be more trouble than has ever been in Lower Canada. Complains of the action of successive governments. 488

Boulton to Grey. Is anxious to report on his return that the bill for increasing the capital stock of the Commercial Bank of Upper Canada had been assented to. Sullivan to Grey. The commuted pensioners having received all that the law allows, no further assistance can be afforded from the War Office. 122

July 31.

Unsigned to Lack. Glenelg assumes the correctness of the principles respecting bank charters expressed by the Lords of Trade, but there are other considerations than any which relate to commercial policy which must be referred to in deciding. The critical state of affairs in Lower Canada is known to their Lordships, but probably not the spirit of discontent that exists in Upper Canada, where the supporters of the Executive Government were for the first time placed in a minority in the Assembly which passed an address on grievances and threatened if they were not redressed to stop supplies. Glenelg thinks, therefore that the rejection of the bills in question would seriously endanger the peace of the province. The Assembly knowing their Lordships' opinion asserted its own. No answer to the objections, however reasonable, would be accepted by the Assembly; advises, therefore, that the Acts be assented to so as to avoid a contest and that the Lieut. Governor should call the attention of the Assembly to the remarks of the Lords of Trade so that amendments could be made at a future session. 15

McKenzie to Glenelg. Sends pamphlet of which the Assembly has ordered 2,000 to be printed. Had sent others to satisfy his own mind that he had not failed to give warning of the mischief his (Glenelg's) policy was causing rather than with the hope that the Whigs would do more justice to Canada than their predecessors. With his (McKenzie's) consent no petition for redress of grievances should be sent across the Atlantic except from the Assembly. How the Highland emigrants who crossed the Ocean to avoid being fleeced by the Tory Government are plundered by the same class here upheld by a professedly reform government. August 19, Ordnance. Byham to Hay. Bill to authorize the Ordnance to buy and sell lands in Canada was brought before the Assembly of Upper Canada last session but no decision come to. Requests that the Colonial Secretary communicate to the Lieut. Governor instructions on this subject. The Act is required to enable the Board to get a proper title to lands bought for military purposes. 60

August 27, Treasury. Stewart to the same. Transmits letter from Routh that he has deposited proceeds of the sales of clergy reserves to the credit of the Treasury. The amount has been ordered to be invested in three per cent. Consols. 106

August—London. The same to Hay. In reference to the communications with the Lieut. Governor of Upper Canada the New England Company believe the simplest way to lay them before the Colonial Secretary is to send copies of the dispatches to and from Colborne. The term "conditions" occurs in Markland's letter to Colborne. 137

Enclosed. New England Company to Colborne. Had hoped to answer his dispatch sooner. The pleasure of the New England Company at the disposition of the local government to assist the objects of the company. The benefit to the Indians of the exchange from Chemong to Balsam Lake. If the Imperial Government authorizes the alienation of the lands at Chemong, how that can be accomplished. The good effect of Colborne's visit to Chemong and Rice Lake. The company approves of the proposed removal of Scott and the Indians from Chemong to Balsam Lake and do not object to his superintending the work at Balsam Lake. The gratification of the company at the favourable movements. Are sending documents. 139

Enclosed. Nichols to Rowan. In reference to the offer of Clements to purchase 4 acres on the military reserve of Niagara, he has been directed to make a specific communication to the Board of Ordnance but has deferred doing so in hopes that a bill would have passed the legislature of Upper Canada last session, to enable the Ordnance to hold lands in the province. The bill not having passed, asks if on payment by Clements of £800 for the four acres, the Lieut. Governor would give Clements a legal title. If so, he proposes to recommend the appropriation of this and other sums from reserves to the part payment of lands taken for or damaged by the construction of the Rideau canal.

Rowan to Nicolls. Sends copies of correspondence on the subject of the military reserves. No portion of these so set aside, which are no longer necessary for that purpose, is to be at the disposal of the Ordnance department. The Lieut. Governor has been empowered to lease portions of the Niagara reserves, but has not done it, partly from the objections of the Niagara people and partly from the difficulty of obtaining good tenants. The Lieut. Governor does not feel authorised to deliver any Crown lands to the Ordnance except such as may be immediately required for fortifications or Ordnance works. The purposes to which the proceeds of the sales could be applied. The Lieut. Governor will not sell detached lots of the Niagara reserves to speculators to disfigure the banks of the Niagara. By the sale of Toronto reserves many important provincial objects have been gained.

Browne to Colonial Secretary. Cannot explain in plainer language the grievances of the British subjects now in the United States who, on the faith of Colborne's promises under the seal of the province, removed to Upper Canada to take up the land said to be allotted to them in the township of Seymour.

Unsigned to Browne. Glenelg desires him to be informed that the form adopted in his communications makes it difficult to understand the complaint against the Upper Canadian authorities and he has now adduced no additional evidence. Glenelg does not, therefore, feel justified in issuing special instructions to the Lieut. Governor. In regard to the demand for remuneration there are no funds to apply to such a purpose.

Petition of Browne. Calls attention to the excitement in the United States in consequence of attempts by delegates of O'Connell's anti-tithe combination to bring about a combination between Protestant and Roman Catholic Irish inhabitants of the United States. The exertions of these men to refute the scandalous calumnies against Great Britain; complains of the treatment by Buchanan, the consul, to British subjects and of his illegal exactions of which he gives instances. List of members of the Adelaide Association. Page 228

Peter Robinson to Browne. The application of the Adelaide Association for lands in Seymour township has been referred to the Council by Colborne and the Council recommended that the college lands there be disposed of at 10s. currency per acre, and to be open to proposals till the Association finally decided. Government has thought it expedient to reduce the cost to the Adelaide Association to seven shillings and sixpence currency. The friendly feelings with which government regards the Adelaide Association. 269

Byham to Grey. In reference to the legislation to secure to the Ordnance legal title to lands in Canada, the Board are doubtful if the object in view is so fully recognized as is necessary. The letter speaks only of instructions having been sent to Upper Canada, but an equal necessity exists in the lower province, when the department is charged with the Ottawa Canals and other works. The propriety of having the proper instructions extended to all the provinces or colonies. 73

- December 14, Stanley to Grey. The Lords of the Treasury have received notice of intended application for a portion of the casual and territorial revenue towards the payment of the unliquidated claims for losses by the war with the United States and authorised the Lieut. - December 14, Byham to Hay. Respecting the correspondence relating to the new Ordnance. barracks, &c., at Toronto, sends extracts on the subject from the commanding Royal Engineer to the Inspector General of fortifications. As in the case of the barrack, Colborne and Nicolls are anxious that one wing should be begun before the necessary funds for the whole are provided, it being desirable to remove the troops from the condemned log barrack. Under the circumstances the Board concurs in the measure, and on receiving Glenelg's assent orders shall be sent out to the officers in Canada. The plans and estimates do not hold out any prospect of a diminution of the contemplated total. The plan No. 2 to be returned to the Ordnance. 77

- December 17, McKenzie to Glenelg. Sends a first report on the amount spent on the Toronto. Welland Canal. Had devoted much time to an inquiry into the management of the canal and found it to be like the majority of the public offices. After a journey in Lower Canada is convinced that the view he (Mackenzie) took of the policy of the government of which he (Glenelg) forms a part, when it attempted to coerce the Irish was a correct one. He (Glenelg) had tried to make the Canadian constitutional Act a nullity and instead of encouraging a frugal government, he allowed every possible abuse. By the bankruptcy of the canals and the expenditure for interest on money borrowed, capitalists will never be paid their money by additional taxation with his consent. The report on grievances and the first trade report contain full evidence which was not listened to. It seemed to him that Colborne's partisan policy had the approval of the British Government and it is no matter whether it is a reform or anti-reform administration. Ridicules the concessions in Lower Canada by Gosford. When Canada shall have learned the lessons he (McKenzie) is teaching, no government will be able to trample on Canadian rights and then Britain will be disappointed if it was her desire to cultivate friendly feelings. Clearly sees that Glenelg takes all his advice from the enemies of reform. Five years of rule have been sufficient to show that the Whigs were the worst enemies Canada could have had to contend with. Complaints against the Council and other subjects. 571

Bishop Macdonell to Glenelg. Sends letter by Macgregor, who has thorough knowledge of Canada. The good qualities and contentment of the French Canadians. Papineau has, however, had his agitators among them for some years, endeavouring to persuade them they are oppressed, but that he would obtain redress for them. In spite of his professions of friendship he is the enemy to their real interests, which he would sacrifice to his own ambition. The more intelligent are perfectly aware of his views and intentions. Every concession made to him only makes him bolder and more insolent and every favour granted to him he tries to show is exacted from fear. Papineau called to his counsels the two greatest agitators in the province, Mackenzie and O'Grady a most abandoned and immoral character. The former was a bankrupt soap boiler in Dundee and when he emigrated begun a fraudulent trade in politics. How he found support for his calumnies. His method of getting up petitions. In Glenegarry he attached a thousand forged signatures to his petitions. As soon as he had obtained a sufficient number of petitions he imposed a tax on his dupes to defray his expenses to London. There he enlisted the services of Hume and Roebuck, but none of his promises have been fulfilled, his partisans have lost faith in him. O'Grady also established a paper which exceeded if possible MacKenzie's in scurrility. They, however, joined their talents having concluded that their joint abuse would have greater effect on the public mind. These are the worthy co-adjutors of the agitator of Lower Canada in the important work of obtaining liberty and happiness for his countrymen. 476

December 31.

Unsigned to Stanley. Has received letter containing the opinion of the Treasury that the advances made to the Lanark settlers should be paid from the land revenue. Glenelg opposes the opinion for reasons given in addition to which were others of a political nature which would oppose an insuperable obstacle to such a measure. Glenelg agrees with Aberdeen that the settlers should not be called on for repayment, but the loss should be borne by the United Kingdom. 116
