INTRODUCTION.

THERE were but few among the early settlers of New England, whose names passed away for lack of heirs male so soon as that of John Oliver of Newbury; and whose genealogical history can therefore be embraced in so small compass. I know no good reason for believing him to have been a member of the family of the same name in Boston; on the contrary, it may be taken as certain, that there were five or six families of this surname in Massachusetts, no two of which have been shown to have a common origin in England. I have long wished to try to give a correct account of the life of my own ancestor, John Oliver of Newbury; and the number of documents illustrating his English pedigree has seemed to me such as to warrant their appearance in this shape.

SKETCH

OF THE

LIFE OF JOHN OLIVER.

JOHAN OLIVER was born at Bristol, England, in 1613.

In 1629 he was apprenticed for eight years to his uncle, Walter Stephens of Bristol, mercer. James Oliver, his father, died in 1629, and his mother, Frances, in 1635. He probably came to New England in 1639, in company with the Lowles, Richard Dole, and William Gerrish. I presume he brought with him his wife Joanna, whom I believe to have been daughter of Percival Lowle.* He settled at Newbury, Massachusetts, and was made Freeman of the Colony, 13 May, 1640. His business seems to have been that of a merchant and importer of English goods. On 2 June, 1641, he was appointed by the General Court, with Mr. Woodman and Mr. John Woodbridge, "to order small causes at Newberry." The day of his death is not known, but it was before June, 1642. He was probably either dead or an invalid in October, 1641, when Mr. Edward Rauson was "appointed instead of M<sup>r</sup> Oliver, to end small causes at Newberry." John Oliver left in lands and goods an estate of about £420, and an only child, Mary, born 7 June, 1640. His widow married, 17 April, 1645, Capt. William Gerrish of Newbury, and died 14 June, 1677; and Mary, his daughter and heir, married 8 December, 1656, Samuel Appleton, jr., of Ipswich, and was mother of John, Isaac, Joanna, Joseph, Oliver and Mary Appleton. Through Isaac and Oliver she was ancestress of most of the name in the New-England States and New York. She died 15 February, 1698, and lies buried at Ipswich.

Imp<sup>rs</sup> I geve unto my daughter Mary Gryffith one sixteenth ptt of the prysadge * lease, and unto my sonne Henry Olyver

* I am not sure if this be a farming-out of the prisage, which JOHNSON defines as "a custom, now called butlerage, whereby the prince challenges out of every bark loaden with wine, two tuns of wine at his price." Tomlin's Law Dictionary says: "It is where the King claims out of every ship or vessel laden with wine, containing twenty tons or more, two tons of wine, the one before, the other behind the mast, at his price, which is twenty shillings for each ton."

thother sixtenth ptt of the same prysadge lease I did putt my husband Hierom Ham in trust to buy for mee and to bee disposed of at my pleasure And if it shall happen. my said daughter Mary Griffith shall decease and deþtt this liffe before thend of the said sixteenth ptt of the lease, then I will that all the pfitt and benefitt of the tyme then remayning shall issue to her children to bee devided by equall p̄tions that Child only excepted w<sup>ch</sup> shall then be interested in the lyving in Redland. More I geve unto her one fether bed on boulster and two pillowes w<sup>ch</sup> is ñked wth two lettres for her name and my best Arras Coverlett the great Cypres Chest a needle worcke Chayre wth the two stooles one of the gilt Chayres and all my wearing apparell whatsoever belonging unto me, also I give unto her half the brasse and iron and that she quietly enjoy all such things I have heretofore delyvered her.

More I geve unto my Grandchild William Griffith the great spruce Chest in the hyer galery and my greene Carpet.

More I geve to Mary Griffith my grandchild my dossen of apostles spoones, her Mother to have the use of them so long as she lyveth, and I will that her mother shall leave her the bedding w<sup>ch</sup> I do geve her.

It̄ my will is that my sonne Henry Olliver doe pay out of his said sixtenth ptt of the prysadge lease unto my husband Jerom Ham Ten pounds yearly during the lease (if he so long shall live) only the last two yeeres thereof excepted to him the said Henry.

More he shall pay unto my sonne Thomas Rowland* out of y<sup>e</sup> said sixtenth ptt during the said lease (only the last two yeares to him the said Henry excepted) Ten pounds yeerely (if the said Thomas soe longe shall live) and if the said Thomas shall happen to de<sup>ptt</sup> this liffe before thend of these yeares geven him Then my will is that what yeares shalbe then to come shall remaine to his Children that hath no p<sup>tions</sup> left them by their grandmother Redwood.

More my will is that the first ten pounds payable out of his sixtenth ptt of prysadge lese unto my sonne Thomas Rowland shalbe geven unto Mary Oliver the daughter of my sonne James Oliver as my Guift. And my will is that my sonne Henry Olyver shall leave in my executo<sup>rs</sup> hands the said sixtenth ptt of the prysadge lease so geven him for thassurance of the payment of the said ten pounds yeerely to the said Hierom Ham and the ten pounds yeerely to the said Thomas Rowland And if the said Sixtenth ptt of prysadge soe geven him the said Henry shall at any tyme not amount to the some of Forty pounds by the yeere, then each of them shall stand to their ptt of the losse accordingly. At London is the will of Robert Oliver of Lydeard Lawrence, in the county of Somerset, written and proved in 1582. He mentions his sons Simon, Robert, William, John, Edward, his daughters Johan, Elizabeth, and Agnes, and also Robert, son of John Oliver. He is not known to have been a relative of those of Bristol, but the use of the same names renders such relationship extremely probable. Lydeard Lawrence is about forty miles from Bristol.

WHOM DID JOHN OLIVER OF NEWBURY MARRY?

The only woman, who has been supposed to have become wife of John Oliver, can not have done so, for the very good reason that she never had any being. Joshua Coffin, and, after him, the Hon. James Savage, say that John Oliver married Joanna, daughter of Elizabeth Goodale of Newbury, who came from Yarmouth, England, a widow. She was invented to fulfill certain conditions of relationship; but I hope to be able to show that no such daughter ever lived, and also to arrive as near as possible to actual proof that this Joanna was daughter of Percival Lowle of Newbury.

As to the first point, the evidence is mostly of a negative character. The will of John Goodall of Yarmouth, husband of Elizabeth, has been examined. It was written in June, 1625. He mentions his daughters Rebecca, Elizabeth and Maria, and his step-daughter Susan Taylor, but no Joanna is named.

The following document may be read at the State House* in Boston, and the judgment of the General Court thereon is found in the Records of Massachusetts, III. 125, under date of 13 May, 1648 :—

The humble petiçõn of W<sup>m</sup> Gerrish, Richard Lowle, John Sandders, Richard Knight and Nicolas Noyes, Humbly sheweth,

That whereas the estate of John Lowle deceased by us & Elizabeth Lowle wyddow hath binn devided betweene the said wyddow and the children : only tenn pounds worth of Clothes wch are somewhat darkly in the will given to Elizabeth Lowle daughter to the said wyddow as in the will as of the said Elizabeth Lowle mother & now wyddow, but the genuine interpretaçõn is conceaved that the father intended his daughter the said legacy as out of hir grandmothers clothes wch by this Courte was given to the said Elizabeth Lowle wyddow & Susanna Toppan daughters to Elizabeth Goodale deceased who died intestate now they disire they might understand to wch this Courté inclines & their order shall be observed, &c.

Now for the sècond point, where also we want such absolute certainty, as would be afforded by the register of the parish of Kingston-Seymour and the will of Percival Lowle. John Lowle, in his will of 9. 4. 1647, appoints his brothers W<sup>m</sup>

* Estates, Vol. I.

Gerrish, Richard Lowle, John Sanders, Richard Knight and Nicholas Noice executors, and uses these words: "If my wife marry, my daughter Mary shall live with my sister Johan Gerrish, if my sister please, if daughter Mary chuse to live with my sister before my wife." The reasonable explanation of this provision, and of the fact that the name of W<sup>m</sup> Gerrish stands first, seems to me to be that Johan Gerrish, widow of John Oliver, was own sister of the testator.

Elizabeth Lowle, in her will, written in March, 1650, mentions her sister Tappin, and her four brothers, Thomas Millard, Richard Lowle, Abraham Tappin and W<sup>m</sup> Gerrish. Here the order probably agrees with the degree of relationship. We can only guess at that of Thomas Millard, but he may have had as first wife Rebecca, sister of the testatrix, and in her memory have given that name to one of his daughters; Richard Lowle was her husband's brother; Abraham Tappin married her half-sister, Susan Taylor; and W<sup>m</sup> Gerrish married her husband's sister Joanna.

I shall be very glad if this conjecture of mine — I do not dare to give it a higher name — shall receive such critical attention, from those whose opinion is valuable, as may test its claims to consideration. I shall listen to such persons as are willing to adopt it, or able to confirm it, with more pleasure than to those who wish to overthrow it, unless some other name be suggested for that of Joanna Lowle.
