P R E F A C E .

In submitting the following treatise on the Cross,—the first of a proposed series of volumes devoted to the different openings,—any apology seems unnecessary.

The game of Draughts has been practiced for centuries, but never so extensively as at the present time. Its profound intricacy is to a certain degree, incomprehensible, yet its rules and first principles are so simple that almost any person, with a few days of practice and study, can gain a limited knowledge of the game. To be a master player, however, requires two qualities—judgment and memory. The first enables one to make deep, searching and exact calculation, to compare different lines of play without moving the men, and adopt the proper one. The second enables one to retain what he has discovered, what has been shown him, how he has lost or won before, what has been laid down in the books, or published from week to week in the numerous magazines and draught columns. Memory is of great importance, not, however, so indispensable as judgment; and the secret of every great player's success lies in these two qualities.

In chess judgment becomes of still greater importance, because the position is more likely to assume a new form which you have never before seen, and at once throws you on your own judgment; while on the other hand, the line of play adopted will be less liable to run in that which you have committed to memory, and will be of little or no help.

To my superiors in general, and particularly those whose names are quoted in this book, I have nothing to say; but to the amateur and student candor compels me to state that, in my opinion, if we were to devote a life-time to checkers or chess, but few of us could aspire to be a Yates, Wyllie, Morphy, or Zukertort, and your humble servant would not by any means be one of these few. But this makes little difference as to the enjoyment any or all of us may obtain from a few months' attention to the game; for few, if any, have had more real pleasure from a limited knowledge of its beauties than the writer of these lines.

A certain degree of chance enters into almost everything, perhaps death and taxes excepted; but if there be one game more free from chance than another that is sweet "Dameh" itself, chess not excepted.

Checkers, as an intellectual pastime, has no superior. It enables you to weigh yourself mentally with your fellow-man; it causes the rich and poor to intermingle in the most friendly manner; capital and labor are often seen struggling across the board in the most social style. Esteem and friendships spring up between devotees of the game, both far and near; and the players of England, Scotland and the Canadas, are as well known and admired as though they lived in our midst, to which the quotations in this volume will most amply testify.

This work is intended to be historical, corrective, and additional. The plan of James Neilson, first adopted in Anderson's 2d edition, has been followed as near as has been consistent with that idea. The play of the Authors has been quoted in full, in chronological order, except where they showed it to be unsound themselves in the same volume. The trunk is the same as Anderson's 1st, it being the same as in the 2d and 3d, and also the American Draught player. Then Payne's two games next, (see var. 1 and 2.

The star (*) always stands for a supposed correction, and is a warning at all times. Passing down variation 1 to the 25th move you will see 31-27 starred. Beware now! If you play 31-27 Black will beat you by *23-26, as shown by Mr. Bertie in var. 515. You can instead play *25-22 and your game will be safe for a draw, as shown by Mr. Hefner in var. 916. Again, in var. 2 at 3d move, 4-8 loses; but *11-16 or *5-9 draws, as shown in var. 10 and 11 by Sturges. And thus it is throughout the first 514 variations. Look out for the *.

I know some will say the weak play ought to have been eliminated. With those I shall have no controversy, it being a question difficult to decide which plan to adopt; being intent, however, on retaining the history of the Authors in full, the present plan was decided upon.

Criticism is invited, and all corrections coming to the notice of the author will be published, with due credit in every instance, in a supplement to the second edition, or in future volumes on other openings.

After the 514th variation, which closes the Author's play, no * will appear, except at the first move in the variation, which indicates that it is a correction of the Authors, claimed by him whose name appears at the bottom, all weak play so far as known having been eliminated from the contributors' part of the volume; the * in var. 925 being a solitary exception, Mr. Hefter sending me the correction long after the manuscript was in the printer's hands.

The number of variations copied from the different books is as follows:—Payne 2, Sturges 46, Sinclair 8, Hay 28, Drummond's 1st 59, Anderson's 1st 69, Drummond's 2d 95, Anderson's 2d 17, American Draught Player 67, Game of Draughts 27, Draughts for beginners 1, Drummond's 4th 95, Anderson's 3d 14; total, 528.

Just as this volume goes to the binder's, Mr. M'Culloch's 3d edition of Anderson comes to hand, for which we beg the author to accept our most heartfelt thanks. We bow gracefully, and hope to return the compliment at once.

That any other book should be as free from errors as Anderson's 3d is impossible. Anderson's 2d being one of the most correct ever published, and the 3d embraces the discoveries of the combined world for more than 25 years. If there is one blemish it is in not using quite care enough in giving credit to those noble laborers who have made some of the discoveries. We had hoped Adair might retain his 5-9 Bristol, and Drummond his 30-26 Whilter, etc. Personally we have no grievance, but simply plead for others. However, its beautiful pages will be an imperishable honor to the great Anderson, to Draught literature, and to its talented author, Robert M'Culloch.

In conclusion, feeling we are one of the most feeble of mortals, dealing with a most profound subject, we beg of you one and all, your leniency.

R. E. BOWEN.

LAWS OF THE GAME.

1—The standard board must be of light and dark squares, not less than fourteen inches nor more than fifteen inches across the squares.

2—The standard men, technically described as white and black, must be light and dark, (say white and red or white and black,) turned and round, not less than one inch, nor more than one and one-eighth inches in diameter.

3—The board shall be placed so that the bottom corner square on the left hand shall be black.

4—The men shall be placed on the black squares.

5—The black men shall be invariably placed on the real or supposed first twelve squares of the board; the white on the last twelve squares.

6—Each player shall play alternately with white and black men, and lots shall be cast for the color only once, viz.: at the commencement of a match, the winner to have the choice of taking black or white.

7—The first play must invariably be made by the person having the black men, and alternately till the end of the match.

8—TIME.—At the end of five minutes, (if the play has not been previously made) time must be called by the person appointed for that purpose, in a distinct manner, and if the play be not completed on the expiration of another minute, the game shall be adjudged to be lost through improper delay.

9—When there is only one way of taking one or more pieces, time shall be called at the end of one minute, and if the play be not completed on the expiration of another minute, the game shall be adjudged to be lost through improper delay.

10—After the first move has been made, if either player arrange any piece, without giving intimation to his opponent, he shall forfeit the game; but if it is his turn to play, he may avoid the penalty by playing that piece, if possible.

11—After the pieces have been arranged, if the player whose turn it is to play touch one, he must play it or forfeit the game. When the piece is not playable, he forfeits according to the preceding rule.

12—If any part of a playable piece is played over an angle of the square on which it is stationed, the play must be completed in that direction.

13—A capturing play, as well as an ordinary one, is completed whenever the hand has been withdrawn from the piece played, even although one or more pieces should have been taken.

14—The huff or blow is to remove from the board, before one plays his own piece, any one of the adverse pieces that might or should have taken. But the huff or blow never constitutes a play.

15—The player has the power either to huff, compel the capture, or let the piece remain on the board, as he thinks proper.

16—When a man first reaches a square on the opposite extreme line of the board it becomes a King, and can be moved backward or forward as the limits of the board permit, though not in the same play, and must be crowned (by placing a man on the top of it) by the opponent; if he neglect to do so, and play, any such play shall be put back until the man be crowned.

17—Either player making a false or improper move, shall instantly forfeit the game to his opponent, without another move being made.

18—When taking, if either player remove one of his own pieces, he cannot replace it; but his opponent can either play or insist on his replacing it.

19—A Draw is, when neither of the players can force a win: when one of the sides appears stronger than the other, the stronger party is required to complete the win, or show at least a decided advantage over his opponent within forty of his own moves—to be counted from the point at which notice was given:—failing in which, he must relinquish the game as a Draw.

20—Anything which may tend to annoy or distract the attention of the player, is strictly forbidden; such as making signs, or sounds, pointing or hovering over the board, unnecessarily delaying to move a piece touched, or smoking. Any principal so acting, after having been warned of the consequence, and requested to desist, shall forfeit the game.

21—While a game is pending, neither player is permitted to leave the room without giving a sufficient reason, or receiving the other's consent, or that of the company.

22—Either player committing a breach of any of these laws, must submit to the penalty, and his opponent is equally bound to exact the same.

23—Any spectator giving warning by sign, sound, or remark, on any of the games, whether played or pending, shall be expelled from the room during the match.

24—Should any dispute occur, not satisfactorily determined by the preceding laws, a written statement of facts must be sent to a disinterested arbiter, having a knowledge of the game, whose decision shall be final.

25—A match must consist of an even number of games, so that each player will have the first move the same number of times.
