PREFACE

This yearbook is a pictorial view of the year 1982 at the University of North Carolina. It is filled with pictures to illustrate the dynamics of our times. The editors sought to establish a record of the way we present ourselves, the environment in which we come together, and the events which draw us together to show us and our successors what effects the Carolina student. To that extent, the goal of the 1982 Yackety Yack is to give an image to the ideas we have in common.

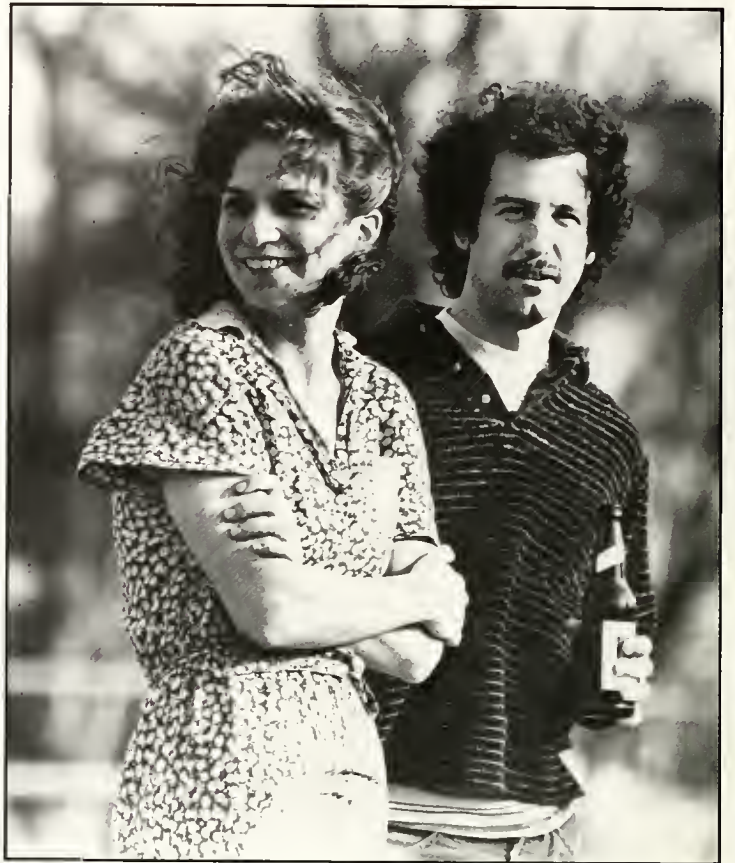

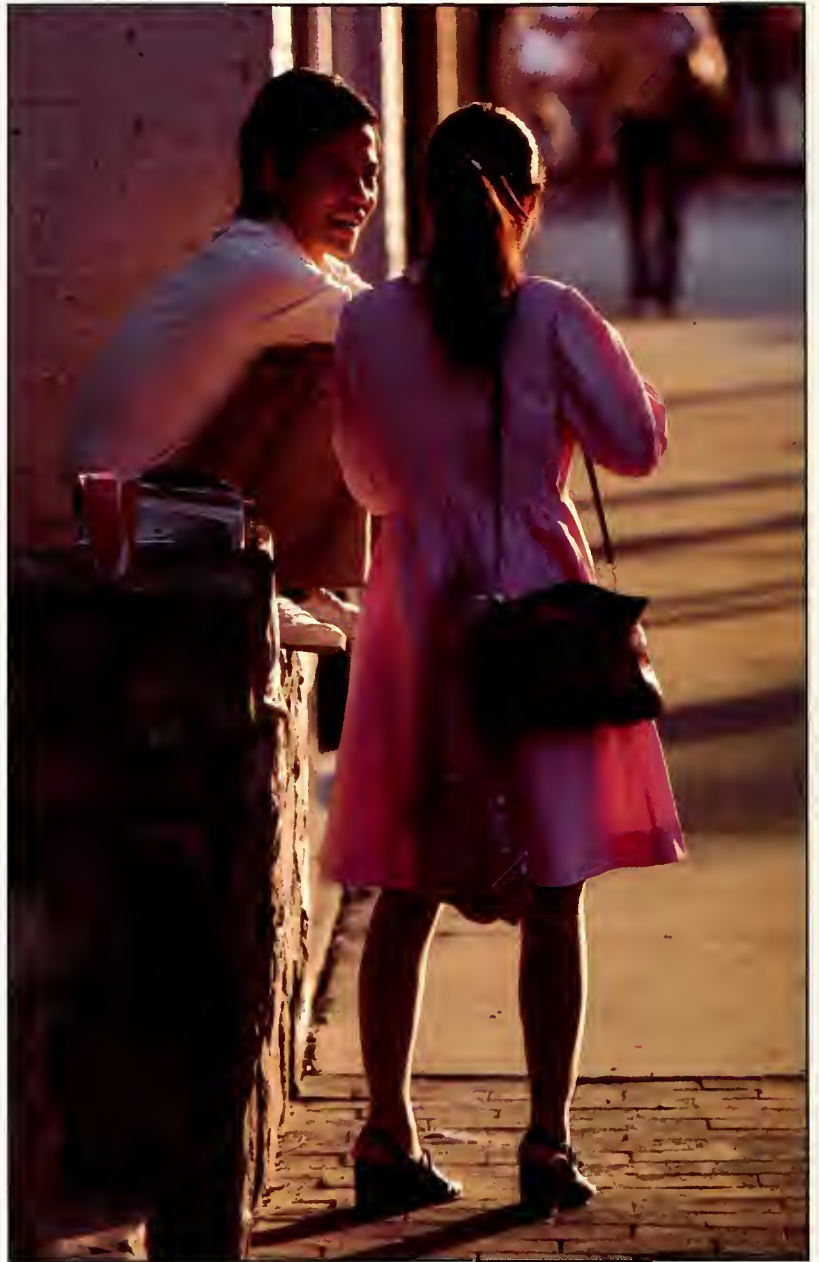

THE STREET

STREET AFFAIRS

THERE IS A WOMAN AT THE BEGINNING OF ALL GREAT THINGS. BEING A WOMAN IS A TERRIBLY DIFFICULT TASK, SINCE IT CONSISTS PRINCIPALLY IN DEALING WITH MEN, MOST OF WHAT WE DO IN LIFE, EVEN IF WE ADVANCE OTHER REASONS, IS DONE BECAUSE OF WOMEN LOVE, WHICH IS ONLY AN EPISODE IN THE LIFE OF MEN, SHAPES THE ENTIRE HISTORY OF WOMEN. IT IS ALWAYS INCOMPREHENSIBLE TO A MAN THAT A WOMAN SHOULD EVER REFUSE AN OFFER OF MARRIAGE. ALL WOMEN BECOME LIKE THEIR MOTHERS. THAT IS THEIR TRAGEDY. NO MAN DOES. THAT IS HIS. THE ONLY MAN WHO CAN BE AT ALL EXCUSED FOR WANTING TO WITHHOLD FREEDOM FROM WOMEN IS THE MAN WHO IS HIMSELF A SLAVE. TO DESCRIBE WOMEN, THE PEN SHOULD BE DIPPED IN THE HUMID COLORS OF THE RAINBOW AND THE PAPER DRIED WITH THE DUST GATHERED FROM THE WINGS OF A BUTTERFLY. THE MOST VALUABLE THING IN THE WORLD IS A VIRTUOUS WOMAN. IF WE WOULD KNOW THE POLITICAL AND MORAL CONDITIONS OF A STATE, WE MUST ASK WHAT RANK WOMEN HOLD IN IT. THEIR INFLUENCE EMBRACES THE WHOLE OF LIFE. MEN ARE NERVOUS OF REMARKABLE WOMEN. CONTACT WITH A HIGH MINDED WOMAN IS GOOD FOR THE LIFE OF ANY MAN. WELL, IT'S HARD FOR A MERE MAN TO BELIEVE THAT A WOMAN DOESN'T HAVE EQUAL RIGHTS. WOMEN ARE THE WILD LIFE OF A COUNTRY. WOMAN'S COMPLETION CORRESPONDS TO GAME LAWS. MEN ALWAYS WANT TO BE A WOMAN'S FIRST LOVE. WOMEN LIKE TO BE A MAN'S LAST ROMANCE. THE DOGMA OF SOCIAL SCIENCE AFFIRMS A WOMAN'S PLACE IN SOCIETY MARKS THE LEVEL OF CIVILIZATION. WOMEN'S CHAINS HAVE BEEN FORGED BY MEN, NOT BY ANATOMY. ONE OF THE BEST JOBS IN THE WORLD FOR A PREGNANT WOMAN WOULD BE A POSITION ON THE SUPREME COURT. THE WORK IS SEVENTY AND THE CLOTHING LOOSE-FITTING. WOMEN ARE FORCING THEIR WAY INTO A SYSTEM THAT HAS DEHUMANIZED MEN FOR CENTURIES AND CALLING THIS A GREAT VICTORY. WOMAN REDUCES US ALL TO A COMMON DENOMINATOR. (THE WOMAN HERSELF) THE FAMILY APPEARS AS A NATURAL OBJECT, BUT IS ACTUALLY A CULTURAL CREATION. MANY SOCIETIES HAVE EDUCATED THEIR MALE CHILDREN ON THE SIMPLE DEVICE OF TEACHING THEM NOT TO BE WOMEN. WOMEN'S LIBERATION IS THE LIBERATION OF THE FEMINE IN THE MAN AND THE MASCULINE IN THE WOMAN. WHENEVER YOU EDUCATE A MAN YOU EDUCATE AN INDIVIDUAL. WHEN YOU EDUCATE A WOMAN YOU EDUCATE A FAMILY. THERE ARE A FEW THINGS THAT NEVER GO OUT OF STYLE. AND A FEMINE WOMAN IS ONE OF THEM. WHAT SIR, WOULD THE PEOPLE OF THE EARTH BE WITHOUT WOMEN? THEY WOULD BE SCARCE. SIR, ALMIGHTY'S SCARCE. A MAN OF QUALITY IS NOT THERE LEMED BY WOMAN FOR EQUALITY. A WOMAN HAS TO BE TWICE AS GOOD AS A MAN TO GO HALF AS FAR. WE SHOULD BE CONCERNED NOT JUST WITH HALF OF HUMANITY, BUT WITH ALL OF IT. THE MAN WHO STRIKES A WOMAN OR CHILD LAYS VIOLENT HANDS UPON THE HOLDEST OF BODY TYPES. ADAM WAS A ROUGH DRAFT. THE SPECIAL TIE WOMEN HAVE WITH CHILDREN IS RECOGNIZED BY EVERYONE. LET THE TALENTS OF WOMEN BE FULLY DEVELOPED. AND NO MAN WILL LOSE ANY PLACE HE IS QUALIFIED TO FILL. A MAN ONLY BEGINS TO KNOW WOMEN AS HE GROWS OLD. AND FOR MY PART, MY IDEA OF TIE AND CLEVERNESS RISES EVERY DAY. WE HAVE OFTEN FELT DISPOSED TO GIVE MEN CREDIT FOR EMPLOYING WOMEN IN PREFERENCE TO PERSONS OF THEIR OWN SEX. BUT OFTEN THE PREFERENCE IS GIVEN BECAUSE THEY CAN BE EMPLOYED FOR LESS WAGES. I SAY NO ONE SHOULD BE DENIED EQUAL RIGHTS BECAUSE OF THE SHAPE OF THEIR SKIN. DO NOT CONSIDER ME AS AN ELEGANT FEMALE, BUT AS A RATIONAL CREATURE. THE GROWING FREEDOM OF WOMEN CAN HARDLY HAVE ANY OTHER OUTCOME THAN THE PRODUCTION OF MORE REALISTIC AND MORE HUMAN MORALS. IF MEN COULD GET PREGNANT, ABORTION WOULD BE A SACRAMENT. A WOMAN'S INTUITION IS MUCH MORE ACCURATE THAN A MAN'S CERTAINTY. THE SOCIETY OF WOMEN IS THE ELEMENT OF GOOD MANNERS. IT IS NOT DECIDED THAT WOMEN LOVE MORE THAN MEN, BUT IT IS INDISPUTABLE THAT THEY LOVE BETTER. NEVER SEND A BOY TO DO A MAN'S JOB. SEND A WOMAN.

Paul was the first person I ever saw wearing sneakers with a suit. He looked normal that way.

"Dressing is an art," he told me once. It seemed like he made everything into an art.

We went to a party one night. Paul had heard there would be drugs and dancing there. He wore his usual grey tweed suit, with one red sneaker and one black. I dressed more conservatively.

On the way, we talked about inhibitions, and things like that. It was the first time I heard alcohol called a "social lubricant."

We walked down a steep hill and got to an apartment complex. A punk rock band was playing on a sidewalk; the audience was dancing in the parking lot. The band was loud and energetic and when we arrived they were playing "Slap Your Mama." Paul knew the words and sang along.

We got beers from a keg on the porch and leaned against an old car. I told Paul that the party seemed a lot different from parties in the dorm.

"Yeah," he said. "People here don't stand around comparing beer-guts and grade-point averages."

Some girls came and stood near us, talking. Paul leaned over me and tapped one of them on the shoulder. "Whose apartment did we come to trash?" They didn't know.

Soon the owner of the car came and drove away, and Paul started dancing in the empty parking place. One of the girls danced with him. I think they knew each other before the party.

Paul looked over at me while he danced. "Crunchy music," he said. I smiled and nodded, and kept tapping my foot.

The band did a version of "Yesterday," that didn't sound anything like the Beatles and then took a break. "We gotta wet our whistles," they said.

Paul wiped the sweat off his forehead with his handkerchief. "This is a strange kind of party," he said. "I know I've seen all these people around, but I only know a couple of them."

I said I had the same kind of feeling.

When the band came back, Paul said I should ask someone to dance. "There's a lot of single type women here." He spoke in a funny voice, imitating someone.

I said I was looking around.

Soon a guy I had seen before came up and started talking to Paul. He felt the skinny, striped tie Paul was wearing and wailed softly. "I dig the threads, man."

"Hey thanks."

"But tell me. Those shoes, like, what do they represent?"

Paul looked down and grinned. "Psychic duality, man. See, the black is depression. You know, the eternal void. And the red is passion. Raw sex drive — that's how you fill the void."

The other guy whistled. "Cosmic. We better get a beer and douse that hot libido." They laughed and headed for the keg.

The police came when I was talking to a guy from one of my classes. "The keg's on the porch," said the lead singer over the microphone to the investigating officer. Everyone laughed. But the cop said that several neighbors had complained, and the music had to stop.

"One more song," everyone yelled as soon as the cop had driven away.

The band agreed. "We've been saving this for the proper occasion," they said, and then started into their version of the "Gilligan's Island" theme song. Everybody danced.

On the way home, I asked Paul why he really wore different colored shoes.

"People notice me," he said. He wasn't even embarrassed to admit it.

INSTITUTIONAL

A WORD FROM THE PRESIDENT

For centuries the universities in the Western world have been a major force in the movement of mankind from the darkness of ignorance and fear to the light of reason and disciplined intelligence. The universities have been constructive and positive forces because they have nurtured and guarded intellectual freedom. They have resisted throughout much of their history the efforts of tyrants, legislative assemblies, bigots, pressure groups and special interests to restrain the freedom of expression and to control what is studied and thought. Academic freedom has become the foundation of education in a free society.

Yet as we look about our planet, we know that this struggle to unlock the creative, innovative and better impulses of men and women never ends. Our universities have provided an environment in which any problem can be studied. They have sent successive generations of artists, business persons, engineers, farmers, humanists, journalists, lawyers, ministers, natural scientists, physicians and other health related personnel, social scientists, teachers and many others into society. This stream of trained intelligence has had a major impact on the way we live and make a living.

Nevertheless, sometimes one feels very little has been accomplished when we observe around the world poverty, hunger, poor health, and the barbaric and useless killing of people even now. But those who believe in and are committed to a better, free and more productive society for all citizens must not grow faint nor yield to despair and cynicism. We must maintain and develop even further our systems of schools, colleges and universities, placing our highest priority on trained intelligence, moral integrity, and the development of the skills and talents of our people. The eventual unity and strength of mankind may depend on this.

What does this have to say to the University at Chapel Hill? This venerable institution, born in the spirit of the American Revolution has been faithful to the essential principles of good teaching, sound research activity and public service rendered without fear or bias — the hallmarks of a great university. In the early years of the University President Joseph Caldwell pointed the faculty toward good teaching. He also provided the equipment for research, some of which is now on display in the Morehead Building. His objective has been followed down to the present day by such great teachers and scholars as Mitchell, Venable, Odum, MacNider and Holman. The research equipment and personnel now assembled here make this one of the important research universities of the nation. In the 1830's President David L. Swain began to emphasize the service obligation of the University to the state in areas other than on-campus instruction. By the second decade of this century President Edward Kidder Graham was advocating that the boundaries of the campus should be coterminous with the state. Out of this objective has developed such agencies as the Extension Division, the Institute of Government, North Carolina Memorial Hospital and many others that now serve the needs of thousands of persons every year.

The University must continue to be a dynamic force. Throughout its history it has been nurtured by devoted support and constructive criticism of its family of alumni and friends. It has been seasoned by successful defenses against those few, but significant, hostile attacks upon its freedom such as the denominational assault of the 1890's, the "monkey bills" of the 1920's, the criticism of research in the social sciences in the 1930's and the "Speaker Ban" law of 1963. Tried in the crucible of almost two hundred years of history, it has emerged as one of America's most respected and productive institutions.

What you really learn you teach yourself. To slide this activity into teaching over here and learning over there, into a teacher facing east and a minority of learning facing West is to invite, out of very thin air indeed, an unnecessary entity, a university, as an institution of learning, is little more than a tangle of unnecessary entities arranged at haphazard in what to a reasonable mind, must seem the least efficient manner conceivable. The faculties, the activities, the procedures, the usual "plans" must look like a query, at best an interlocking conglomerate of dim duplications. All these parts of the university act much more as obstacles and impediments than as facilitators of real learning. The same result would be obtained if some malevolent genius set out to make learning as impossible as possible.

Learning breeds change, which endangers culture. As a cultural institution, the university — like a recruit center or concentration camp — is ideally designed to carry out all sorts of functions that have to do with subjects or skills but with certain emblematic tasks that must be measured by people of a certain age. Most schools to mine respect are exactly alike. Differences — public-private, quarter-semester, graduate-undergraduate — are minor, marginal, or unimportant. Being all alike, schools expend much energy in creating artificial differences, rivalries, primacies, col- or codes, and mechanisms that insistently impose a sur- face of uniqueness when no uniqueness exists, or could exist, or ought to exist.

Any sentence about any university's activity could begin, "Ironically . . ." The educational foundation has nothing to do with real education, the real teachers are hired for incompetence, fraternities create brotherhood, nobody can sleep in a dormitory, and so on.

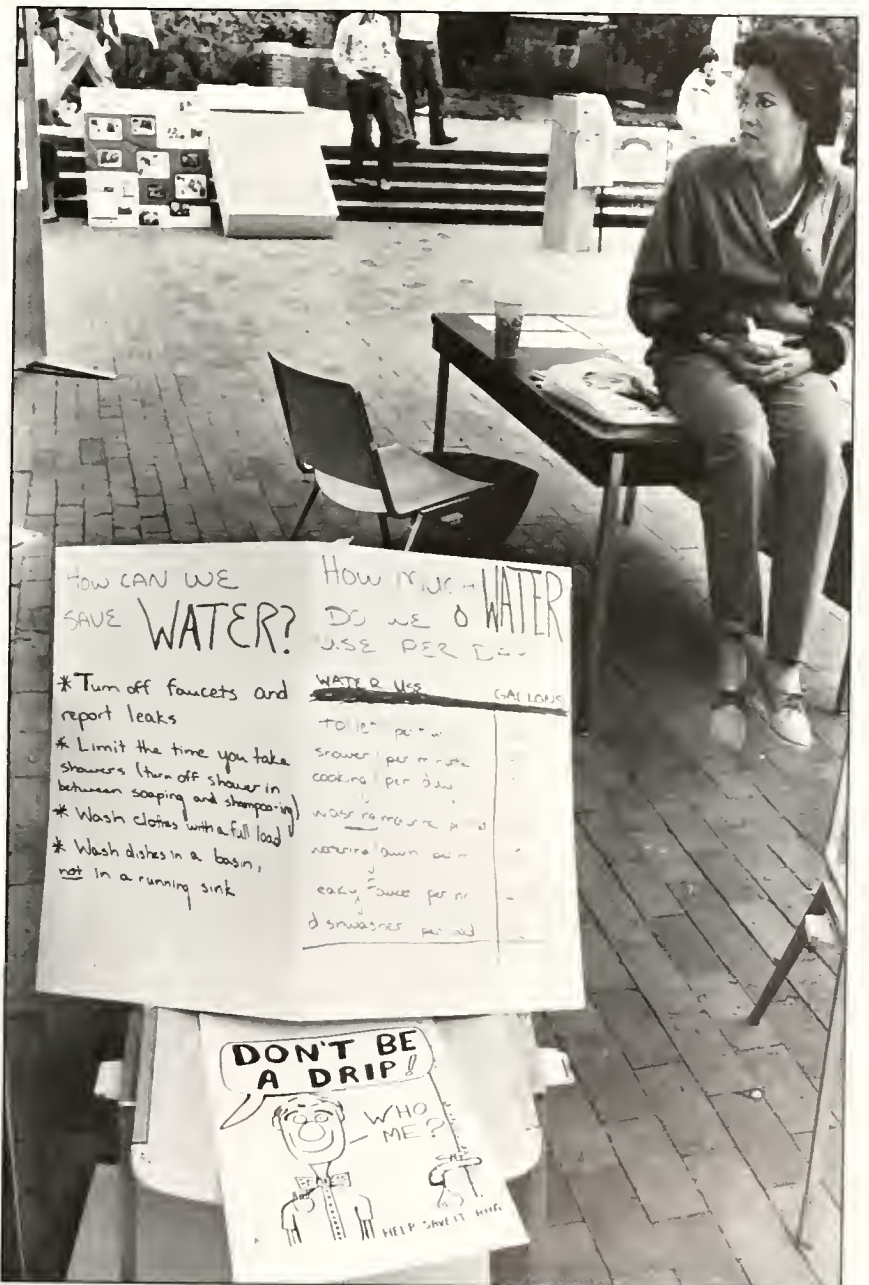

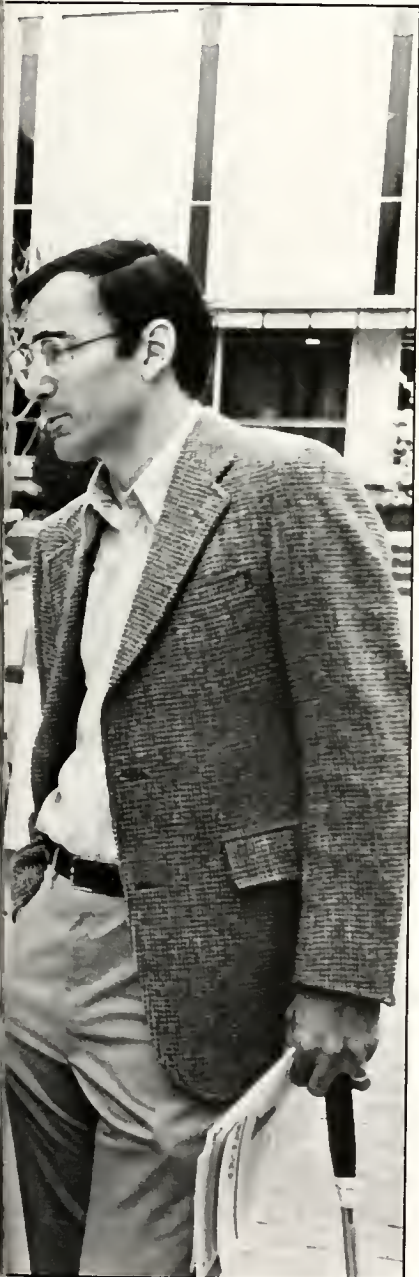

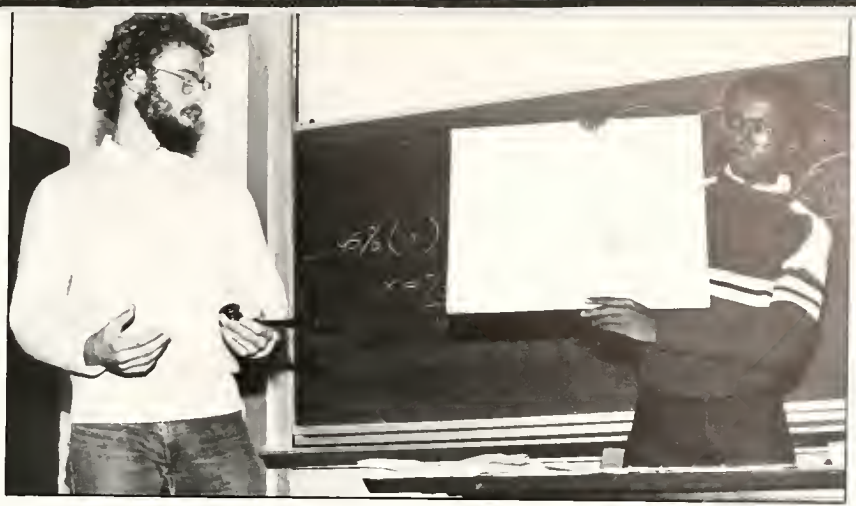

That is true of all institutions, even political ones, camps, Arbeit machet frei, Lux et Libertas.

COMPLICATIONS

In 1982, UNC political activists helped curb the aggression of the United States government.

Many people concerned themselves with counteracting the influence of the resurgent right. Americans for Common Sense, the largest campus activist group, formed for this purpose. It organized educational forums to warn students about Reagan's budget cuts (when few felt threatened enough to listen), and sponsored speakers like militant Catholic anti-militarist Daniel Berrigan. The Coalition for Social Justice focused primarily on exposing government complicity in the 1979 Greensboro murders of five Communist Workers Party members, and on reversing the acquittal of the Nazis and Ku Klux Klansmen who killed them.

Campus conservatives couldn't sit idly by, being counteracted. Young Americans for Freedom formed to counteract the campus left, particularly through its propaganda organ, the Carolina Free Press.

Other groups were less visible. The local Democratic Socialist Organizing Committee discussed issues and worked against the conversion of local apartments to condominiums. Students Against Militarism, untainted by considerations of public credibility or appeal, maintained a dogmatic analysis of imperialism. Internationalist Books provided a source of leftist literature unavailable elsewhere, and the Young Democrats and College Republicans suggested standard variations of the status quo.

Meanwhile, the Reagan Administration had decided that El Salvador was the place to "draw the line" against "communist expansion"; to justify massive military and financial support for the fragile governing junta, it created the myth that anti-government guerrillas were inspired and manipulated by the Soviet Union and Cuba. Throughout 1981, while excusing the armed forces' systematic murder of Salvadoran citizens, the US presented consistently fraudulent or misinterpreted evidence of an international communist conspiracy in Central America.

This poorly rationalized promotion of genocide, along with the persistent educational efforts of the Carolina Committee on Central America, helped spread moral outrage to growing numbers of campus liberals. Further anger was generated by the farcical investigation into the deaths of four American churchwomen shot by Salvadoran soldiers, and by Secretary of State Alexander Haig's insinuation that the nuns were at fault.

In the winter came the measures which catalyzed united campus activism: in the face of deep and painful domestic budget cuts, the U.S. gave the Salvadoran government another reprieve from collapse — $100 million more in military aid, more U.S. military advisors, and training programs for Salvadoran soldiers on U.S. army bases (including Ft. Bragg). This aid was granted with only token consideration of the junta's human rights record; where the Reagan Administration saw "improvements," Amnesty International continued to see among the world's worst human rights abuses.

Increasingly, activists were reminded of the Vietnam War. In El Salvador, as it had been in Vietnam, the U.S. was backing a government that killed peasants in order to undermine popular support for left-wing opposition. Salvadoran armed forces were killing civilians at a rate of over 10,000 a year, and thousands more were forced by government terror to flee the country. The anti-communist rationalizations for this support of genocide were the same as those used in Vietnam. And as the opposition guerrilla forces failed to die, the threat of direct Vietnam-style intervention grew.

UNC liberal and left-wing activists, not inclined to agree with Reagan's estimation of the Vietnam War as a "noble cause," coalesced into an opposition movement. The first expression of this united opposition came in mid-January, when 50 people marched through campus with posters and chants, and then stood silently with candles in front of the post office. For the rest of the winter, most of the movement's political energy was spent mobilizing for marches. On February 27 over 100 Chapel Hill students and townspeople joined radical and religious activists from across the state at Ft. Bragg to protest the counter-insurgency training of Salvadoran soldiers. A month later, at a national demonstration in Washington, two busloads of Chapel Hillians joined over 30,000 people protesting U.S.-sponsored repression.

This marching, and the movement as a whole, was to some extent successful. By demonstrating the unwillingness of the American public to support or tolerate U.S. aggression in Central America, it restricted the range of options open to policy makers: clearly, the domestic political costs of direct U.S. military intervention would be unbearable. The opposition movement thus effectively prevented an outright American war on the Salvadoran people.

But government repression continued in El Salvador, with (uncritical) U.S. sponsorship. In spite of opposition, the U.S. continued to protect the interests of a small Salvadoran elite at the expense of the human rights of the vast majority. And U.S. officials continued to invoke exaggerated "communist threats" to rationalize this policy. The movement, as a result, did not fade away. Instead, on campus and nationwide, it intensified and broadened into an overall critique of U.S. foreign policy. American intervention in El Salvador was increasingly viewed by activists not as an unethical aberration, but as a natural outgrowth of a foreign policy which was fundamentally at odds with the interests of Third World peoples. Thus, the movement imparted lessons which went beyond the immediate crisis in Central America, and instilled commitments to a struggle which would endure long after this crisis had passed: political "liberals" were transformed to "radicals."

Although U.S. involvement in Central America was the issue that effected campus political unity, it was not the only U.S. policy found worthy of opposition. Indeed, it came to be seen as only a symptom of the Reagan Administration's general program of militaristic protection of corporate interests at the expense of social programs, peace, and human rights.

In the spring of 1982, many of the movement's educational efforts — the Southern Student Activist Network conference in February, the Students Against Militarism forum in March, and the Student Action Committee's campus strike in April — emphasized the systemic nature of Reagan's plans. Efforts were made to illustrate the links between budget cuts, U.S. policy in Central America, oppression of minorities, nuclear arms build-up, and corporate capitalism.

Single-issue politics continued as well. Reagan's proposed cuts in student financial aid generated some insecurity and a Student Government-sponsored protest rally. And UNC President William Friday, noting that all the educational cutbacks equalled the cost of one B-1 bomber, testified in Congressional committee that the cuts could irreparably damage public higher education. But by late April the issue which spurred the most activity — on campus and nationwide — was that of nuclear arms.

Soon after Reagan took office, it became clear that he was not a trustworthy guardian of the U.S. nuclear arsenal. Not only did members of his administration speak openly of nuclear wars that could be "winnable" and "limited," but they launched the most massive and extensive nuclear build-up in history based on these notions.

This build-up was widely perceived as a waste of money. While Reagan's "austerity budget" was decimating the "safety net" of social support programs, it also called for the expenditure of $180 billion over the next six years for some fancy new weaponry — MX missiles, cruise missiles, neutron bombs, B-1 bombers, etc. These weapons were strategically superfluous; the Reagan Administration, arguing that the U.S. must close a "window of vulnerability" to the "Soviet threat," justified them with exaggerated calculations of Soviet capability.

But the new weapons were also dangerous. They were based on (or publicly justified by) a new nuclear strategy — developed under Carter and extended under Reagan — whereby nuclear war could bring not the Mutual Assured Destruction guaranteed in the past, but military victory. Soviet (or other anti-capitalist) conventional aggression, under the new plan, would elicit a "tactical" nuclear response from the U.S.: neutron bombs would kill enemy battalions; MX missiles, in the event of further escalation, would knock out Soviet retaliatory power; etc. To be effectively deterred, potential aggressors needed to perceive the U.S. willingness and capacity to initiate and win a nuclear war: hence the persistent refusal of U.S. leaders to rule out a U.S. first use of nuclear arms (unlike their Soviet counterparts); and hence the abandonment of previously sought-after nuclear parity and the build-up to destabilizing U.S. superiority (a more profitable policy for the weapons magnates in the Defense Department).

Thus, for the ostensible purpose of deterring Soviet aggression, the formerly fundamental distinction between nuclear and conventional warfare was obscured; nuclear war, for the U.S., was now simply an extension of conventional conflict. Accordingly, the American public was now encouraged to view nuclear war — previously "unthinkable" — as a potentially "limited" and "winnable" adventure, and to view the Soviet menace as ever imminent.

But the Reagan's Administration's marketing strategy failed; instead of giving nuclear war mass appeal as the means to counter the Soviet threat, it generated a mass movement in opposition to the American threat. The more the American public thought about it, the less nuclear holocaust sounded like a good idea; such contemplation created not the zealous rush to construct comfortable fallout shelters suggested by some Administrators, but a grass-roots gut repulsion to the new Cold War fervor: the nuclear freeze.

In Chapel Hill, arms race anxiety surfaced in the fall of 1981. The first important campus activity was a Student Government-sponsored Veterans' Day forum, in which debates and films centered on the sanity of the Carter/Reagan limited war strategy.

On this point, a local and nationwide consensus began to emerge: preparation for limited war was insane. People began to agree that nuclear war could probably not be limited and could certainly not be winnable — everybody would lose. And under Reagan, it was agreed, such a holocaust was increasingly likely.

Locally, the intensive educational efforts of groups like the Fellowship to reverse the Arms Race and Physicians for Social Responsibility helped to build this consensus. The public was bombarded with graphic detail of the inevitably grisly consequences of nuclear war: lots of people would die, and those who survived might wish they hadn't.

Growing grass-roots uneasiness began to be channelled into a cohesive movement to prevent a nuclear holocaust and stop the arms race. Beginning in town councils across the country, and spreading to state legislatures, resolutions were considered and often passed calling for a freeze in the production of U.S. and Soviet nuclear arms. Groups like Critical Perspectives led the drive locally, and the Chapel Hill Town Council passed a near-unanimous freeze resolution in late spring.

Momentum began to build for a June 12 rally in New York city, scheduled to convey to the U.N. Second Special Session on Disarmament the peaceful will of the American people. A group of Buddhist monks on a walking tour of the world came through Chapel Hill in April on their way to the New York march. They walked down Franklin Street smiling in a parade, and then there was a picnic in Battle Park. Not many students attended.

But lots of students who didn't desert Chapel Hill in the summer worked with the June 12 Coalition of groups mobilizing for New York. The local highlight of the preparations, an early June march through Carrboro and Chapel Hill followed by a rally on campus, turned out 100 people and a variety of political inclinations. Many of the activists remained motivated primarily by Christian and pacifistic moral outrage. Others emphasized systemic connections between the arms race and other issues — US intervention in the Third World, budget cuts, etc. — and tended to see Reagan's nuclear policies not simply as grave strategic miscalculations or as an ugly stain on America's moral fiber, but as a reckless effort towards militarization of the economy for the sake of corporate interests.

The same division — between single-issue pacifists and multi-issue radicals — typified the movement nationwide.

But June 12 was a day of harmony. Three quarters of a million people — the largest political demonstration in American history — marched through Manhattan and converged on Central Park to express their grievances, fears, and hopes. All kinds of contingents marched together — veterans of the Spanish civil war, Harlem residents, poets, union members, Southern people, punks with mohawks, children with puppets, Catholic nuns, Buddhist monks, etc. T-shirts said "Arms Race or Human Race?" and buttons said "Nuclear War is Bad for Plants and Children" and posters said "Feed the People Not the Pentagon" and leaflets said "Imperialism Breeds Arms Race." Speakers talked either about peace or the disgusting lack of it.

There was a calm, millennialistic unity. Many marched confident in the belief that the spiritual energy of this collective messiah, of this noble outpouring of America's soul, would channel itself to the White House and permeate the Pentagon, transcending and transforming the misguided misanthropic designs of heartless generals and politicians. Righteousness, they felt, would disarm America.

More realistic marchers knew that they were up against more than just evil and ignorance, that this was a matter of interests which were invulnerable to assaults of moral virtue. But 750,000 people had come as representatives of a large and potent interest group — humanity. Supporters of human life had come to challenge the material self-interest of a small minority of militarists and industrialists. Ultimately, how could they lose?

After the march, President Reagan claimed that it had been manipulated by enemies of the United States, that the marchers had been duped by the Soviets. The New York Times said that the nuclear freeze idea was naive, "a simplistic, sloganeering response to a complex issue."

About fifty of us walked out of Chapel Hill with the World Peace March that Monday afternoon. Our route to Durham took us through the sub-suburban sprawl that follows 15-501. A few hours of walking on broken shoulder and intermittent gravel was enough to impress most novices with the dedication of the people who had been part of the march for weeks or months already. The four monks who led us had walked across Japan and Europe before they began their American crossing, and some of their followers had joined them as long ago as Stockholm, and New Orleans, and Atlanta. Others of our group — two young women who took turns pushing a baby in a stroller, and the older Japanese woman who had been hostess and translator for the monks for a few days, and the student with Carolina Blue paint on his grey sweater — marched for just a few long, patient miles.

The leaders of the march were Nipponzan Myohoji, Japanese Buddhists of a 700-year-old order, who had vowed to walk and pray for the sake of nuclear disarmament and world peace. They were one of five such groups that led branches of the World Peace March across North America in the first half of 1982, all meeting at the United Nations in June in support of the second Special Disarmament Session. The arrival of the March in Chapel Hill marked the beginning of Nuclear Freeze Campaign activities here.

The four monks prayed aloud every step of the way. A precisely erect posture, impassive face, and continual chant was required of each monk as he marched, and so each assumed a great and impersonal dignity. When rest breaks were called, a short ceremony of retiring the red and purple peace banner released the monks into their individuality. They could then stretch, laugh, eat a snack, discuss the route, or ask for news of home. At one such break I heard a marcher with what I guessed was a Norwegian accent tease the youngest of the monks, "Greedy, greedy, you always think all the letters will be for you! And no they won't bring them to you here, you have to walk on to the church!"

Thirteen miles is a long way to walk. Many people turned back, but marchers from Durham came out to join us. For a while we had a police escort that droned redundant orders at us through a bullhorn: "Keep to the right of the white line, please. Keep to the right . . ." A TV news crew, bristling with equipment, kept pace with us for half an hour. Traffic was close and loud. Drivers variously waved, frowned, ignored us, or looked puzzled. I think that many of them took us for Hare Krishnas or somesuch, and didn't care to know what we marched for.

We wanted them to know, of course. A central purpose in marching was to draw people's attention to the issues of nuclear weapons and peace. It is impossible to say to what degree we succeeded that day, although we arrived at the Church of the Immaculate Conception a hundred strong, with an excited escort of kids on bicycles. The notion that we had the least impact on global politics is absurd; still, we were only a small part of the World Peace March, and the entire March only one part of an increasing international demand for disarmament. It has become obvious to people of many nations that the stockpiling of nuclear warheads serves the best interests of no one, and that no national or political cause whatsoever could be of such gravity as to justify the waste and ongoing peril of the arms race. We continue to ask, in good faith, that our governments begin to dismantle the terrible threat they have built in the name of our safety.

1982 CAROLINA SYMPOSIUM America in Pieces

The Carolina Symposium began in 1927 as a quadriennial event sponsored by the Institute of Human Relations. In 1956 the name was changed to the Carolina Symposium on Public Affairs and since then the name has been shortened and the event has taken place every other year.

The purpose of the Symposium is manifold. Primarily it should give the University community a keener perspective on an issue of present concern.

Public lectures, panel discussions, workshops, exhibits, films and dinners are some of the means through which students address the issues and discussion is generated. Previous participants include William Fulbright, Jimmy Carter, Robert Penn Warren, Allen Ginsberg, and Jesse Jackson, and Symposium topics have ranged from "Man and the Environment" to "East Asia" and "The Mind and Soul of the South."

This year's Symposium, "America in Pieces," grew out of discussions among students and faculty members. Various ideas sprang up — the emergence of the Evangelical Movement, the New Right, the minority experience, the Women's Movement, the Civil Rights Movement, the relation between higher education and the economic system, and the effects of special interest politics. We looked deeper into all these areas to try and find common threads and hit upon an age old question concerning the American identity — to what extent is our nation fragmented or united?

There is little doubt that evangelists and special interest groups have been a part of American life for a long time, but it is also clear that there are new faces emerging in the crowd. What is new and different about the New Right? How does our treatment of immigrants and aliens today compare with 100 years ago? What has happened to the Civil Rights Movement? What social changes are implicit in the Women's Movement? These are just some of the questions America in Pieces asked.

Social fragmentation itself is ambivalent in the way it has made room for needed reform through something like the Civil Rights Movement on the one hand while on the other hand it has fostered the boom of special interest politics. The 1982 Carolina Symposium brought to this campus a test of different perspectives on America. Speakers this year included Tom Wolfe, Frances Fitzgerald, Samuel Hill, Pat Robertson, Kenneth Woodward, Frank Church, Doug Marlette, John Higham, John Conyers, Alejandro Portes, Maynard Jackson, and David Halberstam, among others.

(Record: 32-2; ACC: 12-2)

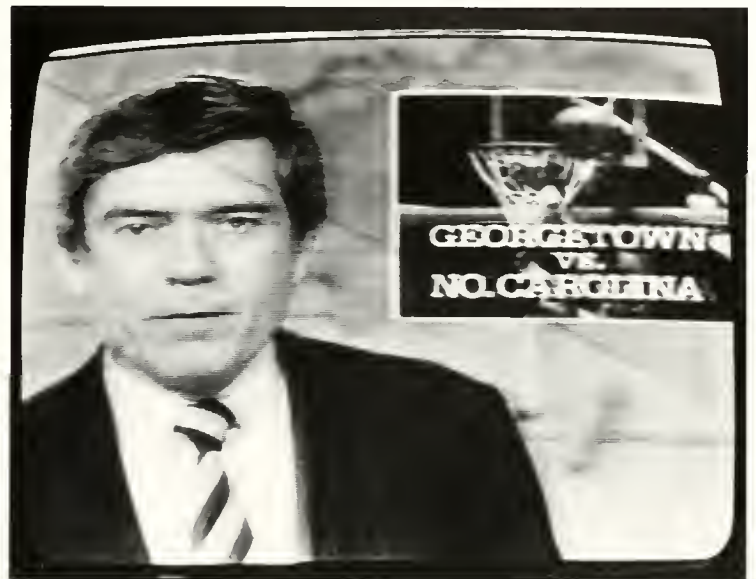

Basketball used to be important.

When I was 11 I watched the first game of the NCAA tournament on TV. It didn't look good: with about five minutes to go, Purdue was leading UNC by nearly ten points. None of our shots were falling, and they were getting all the rebounds.

A lot was at stake for me. I often wore Carolina sweatshirts to school, and I bragged whenever UNC won. Also I had bet a dollar.

It was obvious that the referees wanted Purdue to win. I locked myself in my mom's bedroom closet and cried at the injustice. We lost. It seemed like we were never going to win the NCAA's.

In 1982 when UNC beat Georgetown by one point for the NCAA championship, I watched the second half. During the first half I was writing my paper and then around half-time I went to Fowler's and got some beer and went to a friend's apartment. The TV was turned down so we could hear Woody Durham broadcast the game. (Woody was always a lot more fun than TV announcers. Once after Carolina won a close ACC game he said "Like Diana Ross sings it, ain't no mountain high enough." And somebody told me that once before a UNC-Oklahoma football game he said, "I don't know if it means anything Bob, but the sky is Carolina blue here in Norman, Oklahoma!" I think we lost that game something like 61-7.)

About ten people were there watching. We talked about it and everyone agreed that they wanted UNC to win, mostly because Dean Smith seemed like such a great guy for a basketball coach. Also our players didn't seem like they took themselves too seriously.

The last few minutes were intense. Everyone sat on the edge of their seats and jumped up when something big happened. People stopped their conversations to hear Woody interpret Dean Smith's facial expressions. During time outs we paced back and forth. "I feel nervous enough to be playing," someone said.

I think we used four corners some, but it didn't work very well. At the end Michael Jordan had to make a long jump-shot. Everyone screamed when it went in, and somebody spilled their beer on Beth's coffee table. Then a guy on the other team threw the ball accidentally to James Worthy, and it was over. Everyone was sorry for the guy who made the mistake, but we drank three bottles of champagne anyway and decided we deserved to win. Woody agreed; we sat and listened to him serve as the team's emotional spokesman for a few minutes, and then went outside.

Everywhere people were coming out of their houses and screaming and moving toward Franklin St. "How 'bout 'dem Heels!" is what everyone was yelling.

A few of us got on bikes and followed the crowd. We yelled "How 'bout Cecil Exum!" — I think he was one of the last guys off the bench — and weaved in and out of traffic until we got into the mob.

First we went and danced to a Hendrix song on the porch of the Beta house. I think it was "Stone Free" but I don't remember. When the music changed we left. I saw a guy puking on the steps of the Baptist church. Somebody threw a beer can at him and called him a faggot.

It took a long time to walk down the street. You had to find a fast-moving current of people and push yourself into it. In places the current would get backed up and you would get crushed by the momentum behind you. There were islands of people standing around that you had to avoid. A lot of them were throwing firecrackers, beer, or Carolina blue paint. Most were just standing in the street, drinking and yelling.

When we got to the Methodist church we stood in the grass and breathed a while. A man about fifty years old came up in a Carolina blue cowboy hat and asked for a joint. Nobody had one. "I graduated from Carolina," he said, but still nobody had one. He got a beer from the cooler his wife was carrying and began to point out to her the interesting women who walked by. "That's a nice ass, there," he said.

After a while we got back to the other end of the street. People were crowded outside the Happy Store, waiting to be allowed in to buy more beer. A girl who had just spray-painted "Dean Smith is God" on Columbia Street started spraying people's shoes. I should have been at home, writing my paper.

A gray-haired man stooped over heaps of cans and bottles, collecting them in a plastic garbage bag. "Hey old man," somebody said. "Who's number one?" Without looking up, the man said that Carolina was the best team in the world.

Another guy was competing for the bottles: he would find one and toss it in the air and yell "James Worthy!" and it would shatter in the intersection of Franklin and Columbia. A policeman grabbed him by the arm and led him away.

There was a big fire in the street near the Ackland Museum. About ten feet away was as close as you could get without having your face get too hot. When the fuel would start to crumble into coals people would go get more things to burn. A lot of wood came from a fence between two fraternity houses. And some people ripped big branches off the trees that lined Columbia Street; the wood made loud popping sounds when it burned, and the pink blossoms instead of catching fire just wilted quickly and fluttered into the coals.

The fire attracted a circle of people who stood drinking beer and getting warm. Everyone laughed when a few guys took their pants off and threw them into the flames.

"Fuck," said one. "My wallet was in there."

What made people laugh the most was when someone brought a lounge chair from the Beta house and threw it on the fire. It burned for a long time, until only hot metal springs were left. Also some people hacked up a coffee table.

When I was leaving a guy took off a pair of white leather tennis shoes and tied them to a table leg and dangled them over the fire until the flames caught them. "Like marshmallows," someone said.

Riding my bike home I could hear shouts and firecrackers from the celebration. But luckily I lived far enough away from downtown so I could sleep, and later, write my paper.

It is my ardent desire to perpetuate as far as possible the great service which that institution (The University of North Carolina) has rendered to the State of North Carolina, the South and the Nation, and I can think of no better way of extending its influence and increasing its prestige than by attracting youth of the character and ability I have mentioned to become student thereof. In this way I feel I will render a service not only to the students themselves and to the University, but also to the people of the State and Nation through the accomplishments and leadership of these students . . ."

The Order of the Gorgon's Head Lodge was founded in 1876. Its founding fathers sought fellowship with others to wage war against untruth, disloyalty and the evils surrounding the myth of Medusa and Perseus. All members are sworn to secrecy and dedication to the ideals of the founding fathers.
