

Accessions 12975. mary of the City of From the Bates Fund Added Dea 8: 1853

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2016

C389,31

Bto. Dec. 8, 1853.

12975

To the most High & Mightie Prince CHARLES, King of Great Britaine, France, and IRELAND.

SIR,

fruites of my Trauels, when You were our Hope, as now our Happinesse; hath actuated both Will and Power to the singling of this Peece: being limn'd by that unperfect lighs which was snatcht from the howers of night and repose. For the day was not mine, but dedicated to the service of your Great Father, and your selfe: which, had it promed as fortunate as faithfull, in me, and others more worthy; we had hoped, ere many yeares had turned about, to have presented You with a rich and wel-peopled Kingdome; from whence now, wish my selfe, I onely bring this Composure:

Inter victrices Hederam tibi serpere Laurus.

It needesh more than a fingle denization, being a double Stranger. Sprung from the stocke of the ancient Romanes; but bred in the New-world, of the rudenesse whereof it cannot but participate; especially having Warres and Tumults to bring it to light in stead of the Muses. But how ever unperfect, Your favour is able to supply; and to make it worthy of life, if you sudge it not unworthy of your Royall Patronage. Long may you live to be, as you are, the Delight and Glorie of your People: and slowly, yet surely, exchange your mortall Diadem for an immortall. So wishes

Your Maiesties most humble

Seruant,

GEORGE SANDYS.

THE LIFE OF OVID.

PVBLIVS OVIDIVS NA-so, descended of the ancient Family of the Nasones, who had preserved the dignitie of Roman Knights from the first original of that Order, was borne at Sulma, a Citie of the Peligni, on the 14. of the Calends of April, in the Conful-ships of Hirciws and Pansa, both slaine at the battell of Mutina against Marcus Antonius. While yet aboy, his quicke wit and ready apprehension gaue his parents an affurance of a future excellencie: in so much as his father Lucius sent nim to Rome (together with his brother, a yeere elder than he, and borne on the same day) to bee instructed by Plotius Grippus, that Art might perect the accomplishments of nature. n his first of youth he was much adicted vnto poetrie, wherein hee had an excellent grace and naturall tacilitie. But continually reproued by his father for following so vnprofitable a studie, with an ill will he for sooke the pleasant walkes of the Muses to trauel in the rugged paths of the Law, vnder Aureleus Fuscus and Porcius Latro; of whose eloquence and learning he was a great Admirer. Neither attained he therinto a vulgar commendation; being numbred by Marcus Annaus Sene. ca among the principall Orators of those times. His prose was no other than dissolued verse: his speech wittie, briefe, and powerful in perswasion. Hauing past through diversoffices of Indicature, and now readie to assume the habit of a Senator: his elder brother and father being dead, impatient of toyle, and the clamours of litigious Assemblies, hee retired himselfe from all publick affaires to affected vacan cie and his former abandoned studies Yet such was the mutuall affection betweene him and Varro, that he accepted of Command, & served vnder him in the wars of Asia: from whence he returned by Athens, where he made hisaboad, vntill hee had attained to the perfection of that language. Hee was of a meane stature, slender of body, spare of diet; and, if not too amorous, euery way temperate. He drunk no wine but what was much alayed with water: An Abhorrer of vnnaturall Lults, from which it should seem that age was not innocent: neat in apparell; of a free, affable, and courtly behauiour; whereby he acquired the friendship of many, such as were great in learning & nobilitie; among whom not a few of Consular dignities, and so honoured by divers, that they wore his picture in rings cut in preciousstones. A great Admirer, and as much admired, of the excellent Poets of those times, with whom hee was most familiar and intimate. Being perfwaded by some of them to leave out three verses of those many which hee had written, hee gaue his consent, so that of all he might except three only: A 4 wherewhereupon they privately writthose which they would have him abolish, and he on the other side those which he excepted; when both their papers, being showne, presented the same verses; the first and second recorded by Pedo Albinovanas, who was one of the arbiters,

A 3

Semi-benemque virum, semi-uirumque Sed gelidum Borean, egelidumq; Notu. whereby it appeareth that his admirable wit did not want an answerable iudgement in suppressing the libertie of hisverse, had he not affected it. An ample patrimonie he had in the tereitories of Sulmo; with a house and a temple in the citie, where now stands the Church of Sancta Maria de Tumba: and where now stands the Church of Sancta Maria de Consolatione he had an other in Rome, not farre from the Capitoll; with pleasant Hort-yards betweene the wayes of Flaminia and Claudia, wherein hee was accustomed to recreate himselfe with his Muses. Hee had had three wives: whereof the first being given him in his youth, as neither worthie nor profitable. foone after (according to the custome) of the Romans) he divorced: nor liu'd he long with the fecond, although nobly borne, and of behauiour inculpable. The chastitie and beauty of the third he often extolleth; whom hee instructed in poetrie, and to his death entirely affected. Neither was her affection inferior to his; living all the time of his banishment like a sorrowfull widow, and continuing to the end exemplarie faithfull. But in this euery-way happy condition, when his age required ease, and now about to imploy his beloued vacancie in the reniew and polishing of his former laours, he was banished, or rather confined to Tomos (a citie of Sarmatia pordering on the Euxine Sea) by Aurustus Casar, on the sourth of the Ides. of December, and in the one and fiftith yeere of his age, to the generall griefe of his friends & acquaintance: who sailed into Thrace in a ship of his.

the

A

owne,

owne, and by land performed the rest of his voyage. The cause of this his so cruell and deplored exile is rather coniectured than certainely knowne. Most agree that it was for his too much familiaritie with Iulia the daughter of Augustus, masked vnder the name of Corinna. Others, that hee had vnfortunately seene the incest of Cafar: which may be infinuated, in that he complaines of his error, and compares himself to Altaon. But the pretended occasion was for his composing of the Art of Loue, as intolerably lasciuious, and corrupting good manners. Apretence I may cal it, fince vnlikely it is that he should banishhim in hisagefor what he writ whe hardly a man, & after so long a conniuance. Yet Augustus, either to conceale his owne crime or his daughters, would haue it so thought: neither would Ov I D reueale the true cause, lest hee should further exasperate his displeafure. After he had long in vaine solicited his repeale by the mediation of Germanicus Germanscus Casar, and others that were neere vnto the Emperour; or at least to bee removed to a more temperate Clime; his hopes (as he writes) forfaking the earth with Angustus, he dyed at Tomos in the fifth yeere of the raigne of Tiberius; having lived seven yeeres in banishment. As Tibullus and hee were borne in one day, so he and Linie dyed on an other; that his birth and death might bee nobly accompanied. He had so wonne the barbarous Ger's with his humanitie and generous actions (hauing also written a booke in their language) that they honoured him in his life with triumphant garlands, and celebrated hisfunerals with vniuerfall forrow; ere-Sting his tombe before the gates of their citie, hard by a lake which retaineth his name to this day. His fepulchre was found in the yeere, MDVIII. with a magnificent couerture presenting this Epitaph.

FATYW NECESSITATIS LEX.

Here lies that living Poet, by the rage Of great Augustus banished from Rome: Who in his countrie fought t' interre bis Age; Butvainly, Fate bath lodg'd himin this tomb.

Isabella Queene of Hungarie, in the yeere MDXL. shewed to Bargans a pen of filuer, found not long before vnder certaine ruines, with this inscription; OVIDII NASONIS CALA-MVS: which fhe highly esteemed, and preserved as a sacred relique. Of the bookes which he writ, fince most of them are extant among vs, I will onely recite these following verses of Angelus Politianus.

I From times first birth he chants the change of seenmorpholis. 2 The flames of Loue in Elegiachs fings, e Arte, & Apift. Heroi-

Lieutica.

pigrammata.

de deac trag.

a Biales Poctas

3 With curses doubtfuli Ibis be infnares,

4 Epifiles dictates fraught with Louers care, s in Sman-thetunes deplores his fade xile,

6 His ver se the Roman Festivals comsile,

7 Of fishes fings unknowne to Latineares,

8 Coputes the flars that glide in heavely spheres,

9 His paper f. ls mith epigrammick rimes, to The tragick stage on high cothurnals climes,

IL Whips Poetasters that abuse the times,

Yer

(things.

let leaves he out the Remedie of Love, legitimate Poem (except he make it n appendix to the Art ) and his Conplation to Linia for the death of Dru. us: which Seneca hath excerped and prinkled among his fenerall Confolaions. Among such a multiplicitie of rguments our gentle Poet did neuer vrite a virulent verse, but onely aainst Cornificus; (maskt vnder the ame of Ibis) who folicited his wife n his absence, and laboured against he repeale of his banishment. Conerning his Metamorphofis, it should seme that he therein imitated Parbenius of Chies, who writ on the same rgument: as the Latin Poets euen geerally borrowed their inventions com the Gracian Magazms. I will onclude with what himselfe hath ritten of this Poem, wherein I have mployed my vacant howres: with phat successe, I leave to the censure fothers, which perhaps may prome fle rigid than my owne.

Trift.lib.t. Elegia.6.

I thanke your love: my-verse farre livelier then My picture shew me; wherefore those peruse. My verse, which sing the changed shapes of men Though left unperfect by my banisht muse. Departing, thefe I fadly with my hand Into the fire, with other riches, threw. Her sonne so Thestias burning in his brand, A better sister than a mother grew: So I, what should not perish with me, cast Those bookes, my issue, in the sunerall flame: In that I did my Muse and verse distast; Or that as yet unpolished and lame. But since I could not so desiroy them quite; For sundrie copies it should seeme there be: Now may they line, nor lazily delight The generous Reader; put in mind of me. Yet they with patience can by none be read, That know not how they uncorrected stand: Snatcht from the forge, ere throughly anuiled; Deprined of my last life-giving hand. For praise I pardon crave: though highly grac'd If Reader, they be not despised by thee: Yet in the front be these sixe verses plac'd; If with thy liking it at least agree. Who meets this Orphan-volume, poor in worth Within your Citie harborage afford. To winne more fauour, not by him set sorth; But rauisht from the funerall of his Lord. This therfore which presents it's sweene defect, At pleasure with a friendly band correct.

OVID DEFENDED.

Ince divers, onely wittie in reprocuing, have prophaned our Poet with their aftidious censures: wee, to vindicate his worth from detraction, and prevent preiuticacie, have here revived a few of those usinite testimonies, which the elecrest adgements of all Ages have given him. I will begin with the censure of that accuate Orator

MARCYS ANNEYS SENECA, Conston.

One of his frequent and admiring to a

Auditors. NASO bada conftant, becomning, and amiable mit. His Prose appeawed no other than dissolved Verses: And a ittle after. Of his words no Prodigall, except in his Verse: wherein, hee was not gnorant of the fault, but affected it: and iften would say, that a Mole misse-became wot a beautiful face, but made it more onely. Amongst the excellent of his time, wee may esteeme

VELLEIVS PATER CVLVS, Hist. who writeth thus in his history. It is al.

200/6

most a folly, to number the wits that are ever in our eyes. Amongst these, of our Age the most eminent are, Virgil the Prince of Verse, Rabirius, Liuie imitating Salust, Tibullus, and Naso in the forme of his absolute Poem. Nor doth

Natur. Quæst.li.3. degenerate from his Fathers opinion: who to that Verse, by him thus disfolued, The Rocks appeare like Ilands, and augment the dispersed Cyclades, annexeth this, as saith the mittiest of all Poets. A constant Imitor of his, through all his Philosophie; but especially in his Tragedies. Whereupon, some haue coniectured that Seneca's Medea belongeth to O V I D. Whereof thus censures. OVID's Medea seemeth to me to expresse how much that man could have performed, would bee rather have restrayned than cherished his invention, And.

Lib.10.

CORNELIVS TACITYS,

Neither is there any composition of Minius, or Messala soillustrious, as OV 1 D'S. Medea. The wittie

Orate;

MAR-

MARTIAL

or the most part links him to incomarable Virgil: as in this Epigram; ou'r more than mad! thefe, who you fee fo bare, Lib. 3.

ith Ovi D's felfe, or Virgil may compare. Epig. 18

And in that to Instantius. ould you adde spirit to my fainting Muse, Indread immortall Verses ? love insuse. ie, Mantua , Sulmo mee should file dinine; Tere but Alexis, or Corinna mine.

Lib. F. Epig. 730

Sylvar. I. F.

2 - 5 2 1 21 2

Recorded by

STATIVS PAMPINIVS, mongst the best Poets.

bat bonoured Day the old Callimachus. hiletas, Vmbrian Propertius, repare to celebrate with one confent; nd N A so, chearfull, though in banishment, With rich Tibullus.

for is hee onely approued by prohane Authors, Thus learned

LACTANTIVS, y I D, in the beginning of his excellent lib.1.

oem, confesseth that God (not disquizing is Name ) ordayned the World; who calls m the Creator thereof, and Maker of It things. In the following booke. bich that ingenious Post bath admiray described. And

S. HIE-

In Ofe.

S. HIEROME;

Semiramis, of whom they report man wonders, erected the walls of Babylon as testifies that renowned Poet in the fourth booke of his Metamorphosis. No is he forgot by De Ciuit. Dei.

S. AVGVSTINE.

And Naso, that excellent Poet. Nor descend wee to those, whom late times have preferred for learning an iudgement. Thus sings the highprais'd

In Nutricia.

ANGELVS POLITIANVS.

"Tis doubtfull, whether He, whom Sulmo bore, The World-commanding Tyber honour'd more, Than his foule exclethee defam'd, O Rome! Whom Getick fands (alas!) but halfe intombe. Perhaps observed by Augustus Spyes To looke on Iulia with too friendly eyes.

In Cicero-

ERASMVS

crownes him with the perfection o Eloquence. And the Censurer of al Poets, logo.

Poetkes.

thus writes, when hee comes to cen fure our Author. But now wee arrivablere the height of wit, and sharpnesse of indgement, are both to bee exercized. For who who can commend OV I D sufficiently? much lesse, who dares reprehend him? Notwithstanding, I will say something; not in way of detraction, but that we also may be able to grow with his greatnesse. Then speaking of his Metamorphosis. Bookes deserming a more foriunate. Author; that from his last hand they might have had their persection: which hee himself bewasleth in succeed an infinite number, in these, well-nigh an infinite number, which the wit of an other, I beleeve, couldnesser have equall'd. And thus exclaimes against Casar in the person of OVID.

tyrant, with me I would thou badst begun:
Nor thy black slaughters had my fate fore-runif my licentious Youth incenst thee so;
I by owne condemnes thee: into exile goe.
Thy Cabinets are stain'd with horrid deeds;
And thy foule guilt all monstrous names exceeds.
Divine wit, innocence, nor yet my tongue;
Next to Apollo's, could prevent my mong;
I smooth'd th'old Poets with my sluent vaine;
And taught the New a far more numerous strain.

When thee I prais'd, then from the truth I sweru'd.
And banishment for that alone deserv'd.

In Heroi-

Præfat.in Horatinus. STEPHANVS.

NASO, in his Metamorphosis, may well be called the Poet of Painters; in that those welly descriptions afford such levely pat termes for their pencils to imitate. No may wee omit the Testimonie of Disputat.

MARCUS ANTONIUS TRITONIUS,
This Divine worke is nesofary, and to be desired of all, that are addicted to Poetris both for the gracefulnesse of speech, the admirable art of the Poet, and delightfull varietie of the Subsect. Neither was there ever any, that disigently collected, or learnedly, elegantly and orderly expresses the fables, but OVID; who composed one of Orpheus, Hesiod, Homer, and other the most ancient Poets, so excellent and noble a Work, that there in the Learning of the Latines may worthily glorie. And thus

Variar. lest.lib.z. BERNARDYS MARTINYS,
I conceine the Poet of Sulmo did follow the industrie and advice of Zeuxes, in the composure of that admirable worke of his Metamorphosis. For as that excellent Painter, about to draw the picture of Helena,

lelena, had assembled together the most are & beautifull Virgins of Greece; that rexamining their severall perfections and graces hee might expresse all in one ithin curious pencill: so hee out of the numerable volumes of the Gracian Positists, composing the disfused and varially dispersed into one bodie: and them ligently noting what in every author was egant and beautifull, transferd the same his owne, that nothing might be wanting the inriching and adorning of his so une a Poem. I must not omit this telimonic of the learned

ANTONIVS MVRETVS.

Orat.3.

he Metamorphosis, a divine Poem; shi_vloum.2.

ng through-out, with all the lustres of nceit and eloquence. Not this of Hercyles Ciofanys; Prefit.obthat a Citizen of Sulmo. A wittle feruin inke, repleat with folial and manifold Metam. traing. Who peruse it disgently, shall de such admirable suencie, such fuinesse, great a gravitie of words and sentences;

at sew ornore amongst the Latin Poets can bee said to transcend him. What should I say of that singular, and well-nigh di nine contexture of Fable with Fable? [ surpassing, that nothing can bee spoken of done, more artificially, more excellently or, indeed, more gracefully. Who handling such diversitie of matter, so cunningl weaves them together, that all appeare bu one Series. Planudes, well knowing that Greece had not a Poem so abounding with delight and beautie, translated it into tha language. What should I say more? Al Arts, which Antiquitie knew, are here for fully delineated, that a number, expert is both tongues, of prime understanding an indgements, admire it beyond all expressi on. The first that writ a Commentarie on this booke (whereof fiftie thou Sand were vented, and that in his life time) was In præfat.

RAPHAEL REGIVS:

who thus in his Preface. There is not thing appertaining to the knowledge and glorie of warre, whereof wee have not famous examples in the Metamorphosis o OVID; (notto speake of stratagems, not whiche Orations of Commanders ) described with such efficacie and eloquence, that offen, in reading, you will imagine your selfe mbroiled in their conflicts. Neither Shall on finde any Author, from whom, a civill in ife may gather better instruction.

th

LACOBVS MICYLLYS.

In princi-

Hardly shall you find a Poem, which flowes tionum with greater facilitie. For what should I beake of Learning? Herein, so great, so various, and abstruse; that many places ane neither beene explained, nor yet un-Herstood; no, not by the most knowing:reuiring rather a resolution from the Delian Oracle, &c.

Let the ingenuous, that affect not rror, now rectifie their owne by the adgements of these. But, incurable Criticks, who warre about words, ndgall the found to feed on their ores, as not desiring their sanitie, I forbeare to diffwade, and deliver them'vp to the censure of Agrippa, -

QVOD OLIM FA. CIEBAT VOTVM GERMANICO OVIDIVS, IDEM

AVGVSTISSIMO CAROLO
Interpretis sui nomine taciunt

OVIDIANI MANES.

Excipe pacato, Casar Brittannice, vultu Hoc opus, & timida dirige nanis iter.
Officioque, leuem non auersatus bonorem, Huic tibi deuoto, numine dexter ades.
Huic te da placidam, dederis in carmine vires:
Ingenium vultustatque tadit que tuo.
Pagina indicium dosti subitura mouetur
Principis, vt Clario misa legenda Deo.

THE MINDE OF

THE FRONTISPEECE, And Argument of this WORKE.

That stroug in Chaos, powrefull Love vnites;
Ind from their Discord drew this Harmonie
That smiles in Nature: who, with rauisht eye, Iffects his owne-made Beauties. But, our Will,
Defire, and Powres Irascible, the skill
Of Pallas orders; who the Mind attires
Vith all Heroick Vertues: This aspires
To Fame and Glorie; by her noble Guide
Sternized, and well-nigh Deis'd.
Sut who forsake that faire Intelligence,
To follow Passion, and voluptuous Sense;
That shun the Path and Toyles of Hercules:
Such, charm'd by Circe's suxurie, and ease,
Themsclues deforme: 'twixt whom, so great an ods;
That these are held for Beasts, and those for Gods.

PHOEBUS APOLLO (facred Poelie)
Thus taught: for in the seancient Fables he
The mysteries of all Philosophie.

Some Netures secrets show; in some appeare
Distempers staines; some teach vs how to beare
Both Fortunes, bridling loy, Griefe, Hope, and Feare;

These Pietie, Denotion those excite;
These prompt to Vertue, those from Vice affright;
Alistly mingling Profit with Delight.

This Course our Poet steeres : and those that faile, By wandring Stars, not by his Compasse, faile,

" Lancy! โลเดียวการสากเส

John Solm as

OVIDS

METAMORPHOSIS

Thefirst Booke.

THE ARGYMENT.

The World, form'd out of Chaos. Man is made.
The Ages change. The Giante Heaven invade.
Earth turnes their blow! to men. I ove's flames confound.
Lycaon, now a Wolfe. The World is drown'd.
Man-kind, caft flones reftore. All quickning Earth
Renews the reft, and gives new Monfers birth.
Apollo, Python kilk; hart-wounded, loves
Luft-flying Daphné: She a Laurel proves
Ioue, lio made a Cow, to maske foule deeds.
Hermes, a Heardf-man. Syrinx, chang'd to Reods.
Dead Argus eyes adont the Peaceck's trains.
The Cowsto 16, 1000 transform's agains.

F formes, to other bodies chang'd, I fing.

Afsift, you God (from you these wonders spring.)

And, from the Worlds first sabrick to these times, aduce my neuer discontinued Rymes.

The Sea, the Earth, al-couering Heauen vnstram'd, the face had nature, which they base nam'd; which they have named hornes; which they have not never named hornes; which they have named hornes;

B

2

Nor hung the selfe-poiz'd Earth in thin Ayre plac't; Nor Amphitrite the vast shore imbracit. With Earth, was Ayre and Sea: the Earth vnstable, The Ayre was darke, the Sea vn-nauigable: No certaine forme to any one affign'd: This that refilts. For, in one body ioyn'd, The Cold and Hot, the Drie and Humid fight: The Soft and Hard, the Heavy with the Light. But God, the better Nature, this decides: Who Earth from Heaten, the Sea from earth divides? And purer Heaven extracts from groffer Ayre. All which viifolded by his prudent care From that blinde Masse; the happily dis-joyn'd With strifelesse peace he to their seats confin'd. Forth-with vp-sprung the quicke and waightlesse Fire, Whose flames whto the highest Arch aspire: The next, in leuitie and place, is Ayre: Groffe Elements to thicker Earth repayre Selfe-clog'd with waight : the Waters, flowing round, Possesse the last, and solid Tellus bound.

What God soeuer this division wrought;
And ever, part to due proportion brought;
First, left the Earth ynequall should appeare,
He purn die round, in figure of a Sphere;
Then Seas disflus'd; commanding them to rore
With ruffling Winds, and give the Land a shore.
To those h, addeth Springs, Ponds, Lakes immenle;
And Rivers, whom their winding borders sence;
Of these, not sew Earth's thirstie lawes devour;
Therest, their streames into the Ocean pour;
When, in that liquid Plaine, with freer watte,
The somy Cliffs, in stead of Banks, they lane;

Bids Trees increase to Woods, the Plaines extend, The rocky Mountaynes rise, and Vales descend.

Two equal Zones, on either fide, dispose
The measur'd Heavens; a fifth, more hot than those.
As many Lines th'included Globe divide;
I'th'midst vnsusserable beames reside;
Snow clothes the other two; the temperate hold

Snow clothes the other two: the temperate hold. Twixt these their seats, the heat well mixt with cold.

As Earth, as Water, vpper Ayre out-waighs; So much doth Ayre Fire's lighter balance raife. There, he commands the changing Clouds to stray; There, thundering terrors mortall mindes dilmay; And with the Lightning, Winds ingendring Snow? Yet not permitted enery way to blow; Who hardly now to teare the World refraine (So Brothers iarre!) though they divided raigne. To Persis and Sabaa, Eurus flies; Whole fruits perfume the blushing Mornes vp-rife: Next to the Euening, and the Coast that glowes With setting Phabus, flowry Zepb'rus blowes; In Scythia horrid Boreas holds his raigne, Beneath Bootes and the frozen Waine: The Land to this oppos'd, doth Aufter steep With fruitfull showrs, and clouds which ever weep. Aboue all these he plac't the liquid Skies; Which , void of earthly dregs, did highest rife.

Scarce had he all thus orderly disposed;

When as the Starres their radiant heads disclosed (Long hid in Night) and shone through all the skie.

Then, that no place should unpossed lie, 3 right Constellations, and fair-figured Gods, a heavenly Mansions fixt their blest abodes.

B 2

The glittering Fisher to the Flouds repayre; The seafts to Earth, the Birds refort to Ayre.

The nobier Creature, with a minde polleft, Was wanting yet, that should command the rest. That Maker, the best World's originall, Either am fram'd of fe d Coelestiall; Or Earth, which late he did from Heauen divide, Some facred feeds retayn'd, to Heauen ally'd: Which with the living streame Prometheus mixt; And in that artificiall ftrusture fixt I he forme of all th' all-ruling Deities. And where as others fee with downe-cast eyes, He with a loftie looke did Man indue, And bade him Heauens transcendent glories view. So, that rude Clay, which had no forme afore,

Thus chang'd, of Man the vnknowne figure bore. The Golaen Age was first; which vncompeld,

And without rule, in Faith and Truth exceld. As then, there was nor punishment nor feare; Nor threatning Lawes in braffe prescribed were; Nor suppliant crouching priseners shooke to see Their angrie ludge: but, all was fafe and free-To vibr other Worlds, no wounded Pine Did yet from Hills to faithleffe Seas decline. Then, vnambitious Mortals knew no more, But their owne Countrie's Nature-bounded shore. Nor Sw. 1ds, nor Armes were yet: no trenches round Befieged Townes, nor strifefull Trumpets sound: The Souldier, of no vie. In firme content And harmeleffe ease, their happy dayes were spent. The et-free Earth did of her owne accord (Vncoine with ploughs) all forts of fruit afford.

Content with Natures vn-enforced food,
They gather Wildings, Strawb'ries of the Wood,
Sowre Cornels, what vpon the Bramble growes,
And Acorns, which voice is fpreading Oke bestowes.
"Twas alwayes Spring: warme Zephyrus sweetly blew
On smiling Flowres, which without setting grew.
Forth-with the Earth corne, vnmanured, beares;
And euery yeere renewes her golden Eares;
With Milke and Nectar were the Rivers fill'd;
And yellow Hony from greene Elms distill'd.

But, after a atume was throwne downe to Hell, lone rul d; and then the Silver Age befell:

More base than Gold, and yet than Brasse more pura lone chang'd the Spring (which alwayes did indure). To Winter, Summer, Autumne hot and cold: The shortned Springs the year's fourth-part vphold. Then, first the glowing Ayre with servor burn'd: The Raine to yeicles by bleake winds turn'd. Men houses built; late hous'd in Caues profound, in plassed Bowres, and Sheds with Osiers bound. Then, first was Corne into long surrowes thrownes. And Oxen under heavieyokes did grone.

Next vnto this succeeds the grazen Age;
Vorse natured, prompt to horrid warre, and rage;
But yet not wicked. Stubborne Trn the last.
Then, blushlesse Crimes, which all degrees surpass,
The World surround. Shame, Truth, and Faith departs.

raud enters, ignorant in no bad Art.

orce, Treason, and the wicked Loue of gayn.
'heir sailes, those winds, which yet they knew not, straynand ships, which long on lostie Mountaynes stood, hen plow'd th' unpractized bosome of the Flood.

3 3

The

The Ground, as common earst as Light, or Ayre, By limit-giuing Geometrie they share. Nor with rich Earth's just nourishments content, For treasure they her secret entrailes rent; The powerfull Euill, which all power inuades, By her well hid, and wrapt in stygian shades. Curst Steel, more cursed Gold she now forth brought: And bloody-handed Warre, who with both fought. All live by spoile. The Hoft his Guest betrayes; Sons, Father-in-lawes: twixt Brethren loue decayes. Wines husbands, husbands wines attempt to kill : And cruell Step-mothers pale poyfons fill. The Sonne his Fathers hastic death desires: Foild Pietie, trod vnder foot, expires. Alirea, last of all the heavenly birth, Affrighted leaves the blood-defiled Earth.

And that the Heauens their lafetie might suspect.

The Giants now coelestiall Thrones affect;

Who to the skies congested Mountaines reare.

Then love with thunder did Olympus teare;

Steep Pelion from under offa throwne.

With their owne waight their monstrous bodies grone;

And with her Childrens blood the Earth imbru'd;

Which shee, scarce throughly cold, with life indu'd;

And gaue thereto, t'uphold her Stocke, the face

And forme of Man; a God-contemning Race,

Greedie of slaughter, not to be withstood;

Such, as well shews, that they were borne of blood.

Which when from Heauen Saturnius did behold; He figh't; revoluing what was yet vntold, Of fell Lycaen's late inhumane feast.

Just anger, worthy Jone, inflam'd his breast.

A

A Synod call'd, the fummoned appeare. There is a way, well seene when skies be cleare, The Milkie nam'd: by this, the Gods refort. Vnto th'Almightie Thunderers high Court. With euer-open dores, on either hand, Of nobler Deities the Houses stand: The Vulgar dwell disperst : the Chiefe and Great In front of all, their shining Mansions seat. This glorious Roofe I would not doubt to call, Had I but boldnes lent me, Heauen's White-hall. All fet on Marble feats; He, leaning on His Juory Scepter, in a higher Throne, Did twice or thrice his dreadfull Trelles shake: The Earth, the Sea, the Stars ( though fixed ) quake; Then thus, inflam'd with indignation, spake: I was not more perplext in that sad Time, For this Worlds Monarchie, when bold to clime, The Serpent-footed Giants durst inuade, And would on Heauen their hundred-hands have laid, Though fierce the Foc, yet did that Warre depend But of one Body, and had soone an end. Now all the race of man I must confound, Where-euer Nereus walks his wauy Round: And this I yow by those infernall Floods, Which flowly glide through filent Stygian woods. All cures first lought; such parts as health reject Must be cut off, least they the found infect. Our Demi-gods, Nymphs, Syluans, Satyres, Faunes, Who haunt cleare Springs, high Mountayns, Woods, and On whom fince yet we please not to bestow Coelestiall dwellings ) must subsist below.

Thinke you, you Gods, they can in safetie rest,

When

When me (of lightning, and of you poffeft, Who both at our Imperiall pleasure sway) The sterne Lycaon practiz'd to betray? All blufter, and in rage the wretch demand. So, when bold Treason sought, with impious hand, By Cafar's bloud t'out-race the Roman name; Man-kind, and all the World's affrighted Frame, Astonisht at so great a ruine, shooke. Nor thine, for Thee, leffe thought, Augustus, tooke, Than they for love. He, when he had supprest Their murmur, thus proceeded to the rest. He hath his punishment; remit that care:

The manner how, I will in briefe declare. The Times accused, (but as I hop't bely'd) To trie, I downe from steep Olympus slide. A God, transform'd like one of humane birth, I wandred through the many-peopl'd Earth. Twere long to tell, what crimes of every fort Swarm'd in all parts: the truth exceeds report. Now past den-dreadfull Manalus confines, Cyllene, cold Lycaus clad with Pines, There where th' Arcadians dwell, when Doubtfull-light

Drew on the deawy Charriot of the Night,

I entred his vnho pitable Court.

The better Vulgar to their pray'rs refort, When I by fignes had showne a Gods repayr. Lycain first derides their zealous pray'r;

Then faid, We straight the vindoubted truth will trie, Whether he be immortall, or may die.

In dead of night, when all was whist and still,

Me, in my sleepe, he purposeth to kill. Nor with so foule an enterprize content. An Hostage murders, from Molo (a) lent:
Part of his seuer'd scarce-dead lim, he boyles;
An other part on hissing Embers broyles;
This set before me, I the house ore-turn'd
With vengefull slames, which round about him burn'd.
He, frighted, to the filent Desart slies;
There howles, and speech with lost indeuour tries.
His selfe-like iawes still grin: more than for food
He slaughters beasts, and yet delights in bloud.
His armes to thighs, his clothes to bristles chang'd;

So horie hair'd; his lookes fo full of rape; So fiery ey'd; fo terrible his fhape.

One house that fate, which all deserve, sustaines:
For, through the World the fierce Erizas raignes.
You'ld thinke they had conspir'd to sinne. But, all

A Wolfe; not much from his first forme estrang'd:

Shall swiftly by descrued vengeance fall.

Ioue' words apart approue, and his intent
Exasperate: the rest giue their consent.
Yet all for Mans destruction grieu'd appeare:
And aske what forme the widowed Earth shall beare?
Who shall with odours their cold Airars seast:
Must Earth be onely by wilde beasts posses?
Must Earth be onely by wilde beasts posses?
And biddeth them impose on him that care:
Who promis'd, by a strange original!
Of better people, to supply their fall.
And now about to let his signming slie.
He sear'd less so much slame should a ten the skie.
And but ne heauens Axeltres see, des, by doome,
Of certaine Fate, he knew that time should come.

BI

When Sea, Earth, rauffit Heaven, the curious Frames

Of this World's masse, should thrinke in purging slame. He therefore those cyclopean darts rejects;
And different-natur'd punishments elects:

To open all the Flood-gates of the skie, And Man by inundation to destroy.

Rough Boreas in Allan prison laid;

And those drieblasts which gathered Clouds inuade; Out flyes the South, with dropping wings; who shrouds

His terrible aspect in pitchy clouds.

His white hair streams, his swolne Beard big with showres

Mists bind his brows, Rain from his bosom poures. As with his hands the hanging clouds he crusht;

They roar'd, and downe in showres together ruly.

All-colour'd Iris, Inne's messenger,

To weeping Clouds doth nourithment confer-

The Corne is lodg'd, the Husband-men despaire; Their long yeares labour lost, with all their care.

Toue, not content with his athereall rages.

Mis Brother's auxiliarie flouds ingages.

The Streames convented; Tis too late to vie

Much speech, said Neptune; all your powres effuse; Your dores vnbarre, remoue what-ere restraines

Your liberall Waues, and give them the full raynes.

Thus charged, they returne; their Springs vnfolds

And to the Sea with head-long furie rol'd.

He with his Trident strikes the Earth: Shee shakes ;

And way for Water by her motion makes.

Through open fields now ruth the spreading Floods;

And hurry with them Cattell, People, Woods, Houses, and Temples with their Gods inclos'd.

What such a force, vn-ouerthrowne, oppos'd,

The higher-swelling Water quite denoures

Which hides the aspiring tops of swallowed towres. Now Land and Sea no different vilage bore: For, all was Sea, nor had the Sea a shore. He, takes a Hill: He, in a Boat deplores; And, where He lately plow'd, now strikes his Oares O're Corne, o're drowned Villag :s He sailes : He, from high Elmes intangled Fishes hales. In Fields they anchor cast, as Chance did guide: And Ships the under-lying Vineyards hide. Where Mountayne-louing Goats did lately graze, The Sea-calfe now his vgly body layes. Groues, Cities, Temples, couer'd by the Deep, The Nymphs admire; in woods the Delphins keep, And chace about the boughs: the Wolfe doth fwin Amongst the Sheepe: the Lyon (now not grim) And Tygres tread the Waues. Swift feet no more Auaile the Hart; nor wounding tuskes the Bore. The wandring Birds, hid Earth long fought in vaine, With weary wings descend into the Mayne. Licentious Seas o're drowned Hills now free: And vnknowne furges Ayerie Mountaynes beat. The Waves the greater part devoure: the rest, Death, with long-wanted fustenance, opprest. The Land of Phocis, fruitfull when a Land Divides Aonia from th' Actean strand; But now a part of the infulting Mayne, Of fudden-fwelling waters a vaft Playne, There, his two heads Parnassus doth extend To touched Stars; whose tops the Clouds transcend. On this Dencalion's little Boat was thrownes With him, his Wife; the rest all ouer-stowne.

Corycian Nymphs, and Hill-godshe adores;

And Themis, then oraculous, implores. None was there better, none more just than Hee: And none more reverenc't the Gods than Shee Hour, when he faw that all a Lake was growne, And of so many thousand men but one: One, of so many thousand women, left: Both guiltlesse, pious both; of all bereft: The clouds (now chac't by Boreas) from him throwes : And Earth to Heaven Heaven vnto Earth he showes Nor Seas perful ro rage: their awfull Guide The wilde wattes calmes, his Trident laid afide; And calls blew Triton, riding on the Deep (Whole manule Nature did in purple steep) And bids him his lowd-founding shell inspire, And give the Flouds a fignall to retire. He his wreath'd trumper takes (as given in charge) That from the turning bottom growes more large? To which when he gives breath, tis heard by all, From farre-vprifing Phabus to his Fall When this the watery Deitie had fet -To his large mouth, and founded a retreat; All Flouds it heard, that Earth or Ocean knew? And all the Flouds, that heard the same, with-drew. Seas now have thores: full streames their channels keeps They fink, and hils about the waters peep. Earth re-ascends: as waves decrease, so grow The formes of things, and late-hid figures show. And after a long day, the trees extend Their bared tops; with mud their branches bend. The World's restor'd. Which when in such a state, So deadly filent, and so desolate,

Deutation faw: with teares which might have made

An other Floud, he thus to Pyrrha faid. O Sifter! O my Wife! the poore Remaines

Of all thy Sex; which all, in one, containes!

Whom humane Nature, one parernall Line, Then one chafte Bed, and now like dangers joyne! Of what the Sunne beholds from East to West,

We two are all: the Sea intombs the rest. ).

Nor yet can we of life be confident : r.

The threatning clowds strange terrors still present O, what a heart would'ft thou have had, if Fate

Had ta'ne me from thee, and prolong'd thy date!

So wilde a feare, such sorrowes, so forlorne

And comfortleffe, how couldest thou have borne! If Seas had fuckt thee in, I would have follow'd

My Wife in death, and Sea thould me have fwallow'd.

O would I could my Father's cunning vic!

And foules into well-modul'd Clay infuse! Now, all our mortall Race we two contayne;

And but a pattern of Man-kind remaine.

This faid, both wept; both, pray'rs to heaven addresse; And feeke the Oracle in their diffresse.

Forth-with descending to cephisus Floud,

Which in known banks now ran though thick with mud ; They on their heads and marments water throw;

And to the Temple of the Goddelle goe;

At that time all defil'd with mosse and mire;

The vnfrequented Altar without fire.

Then, humbly on their faces proftrate lay'd, And kiffing the cold flones, with feare thus pray'd.

If Powres digine to iust desires consent, And Angry Gods doc in the end relent:

Say, Themis, how shall we our Race repaire?

O, helpe the drown'd in Water and Despayre! The Goddesse, with compassion mou'd, reply'd; Goe from my Temple; both your faces hide; Let Garments all vnbraced loofely flow; And your Great-Parents bones behinde you throw. Amaz'd! first Pyrrha filence breakes, and faid; By me the Goddesse must not be obay'd; And, trembling, pardon craucs: Her Mothers ghost She feares would fuffer, if her bones were toft. Meane-while they ponder and reiterate The words proceeding from ambiguous Fate. Then, Promethides, Epimethida Thus recollecteth; loft in her dismay: Or we the Oracle miffe-vnderstand (The righteous Gods no wicked thing command) Or Earth is our Great-Mother: and the stones, Therein contain'd, I take to beher bones. These, sure, are those we should behind vs throw. Although Titania thought it might be fo, Yet she misse-doubts. Both with weake faith rely On ayding Heauen. What hurt was it to try? Departing with heads vail'd, and clothes vnbrac't, Commanded stones they o're their shoulders cast. Did not Antiquitie auouch the ane, Who would beleeu't! the fives leffe hard became And as their naturall hardnesse them for sooke; So by degrees they Mans dimensions tooke; And gentler-natur'd grew, as they increast: And, yet not manifestly Man exprest; But, like rough hewne' rude marble Statues stand, a That want the Workemans last life-giving hand The Earthy parts, and what had any juyce,

Were both converted to the body's vie.
The vnflexible and folid, turne to bones:
The veines remaine, that were when they were flones.
Those, thrown by Man, the forme of men indue:
And those were Women, which the Woman threw.
Hence we, a hardy Race, inur'd to paine:
Our Actions our Originall explaine.

All other creatures tooke their numerous birth

And figures, from the voluntary Earth.

When that old humour with the Sunne did sweats

And flimy Marishes grow big with heat;

The pregnant Seeds, as from their Mothers wombe,
From quickning Earth both growth and forme affume.
So, when seuen chanel'd Nite forsakes the Plaine,
When ancient bounds retiring streames containe,
And late-left slime athereall servours burne,
Men various creatures with the gleabe vp-turne:
Of those, some in their very time of birth;
Some same; and others halfe aliue, halfe earth.
For, Heat and Moysture, when they temperate grows

Forth-with conceive; and life on things befrow. From striving Fire and Water all proceede; Discording Concord ever apt to breede.

So, Earth by that late Deluge muddy growne, When on her lap reflecting litan shone, Produc't a World of formes; restor'd the late;

And other vnknowne Monsters did create.

Huge Python, thee, against her will, she bred;
A Serpent; whom the new-borne People dread;
Whose bulk did like a mouing Mountaine show,
Behold! the God that beares the Siluer Bow

(Till then, inur'd to strike the flying Deere,

Or swifter Roe, who every shadow feare) That terror with a thousand arrowes flew: And through black wounds the clotted poylon drew. Then, least the well-deserved memorie Of such a Praile, in future times should die; He instituteth celebrated Games Offree contention; which he inthia names. Who ran, who Wraftled best; or Rak't the ground With swiftest Wheeles, the Oken Garland crown'd The Laurel was not yet: all forts of Boughes Phases then bound about his radiant Browes. Iseneran Larbne was his first belou'd: Not Chance, but Cupia' wrath, that fury mou'd. Whom Delias (proud of his late Conquest) faw, As he his pliant Bowe began to draw; And faid: Lascinious Poy, how ill agree Thou and these Armes too Manly far for thee. Such fuit our floulders; whole strong arme confounds Both Man and l'east, with neuer-missing wounds; That Pythor, buffled with thick Arrowes, queld, Who o're formany poyfned Akers sweld. Be thou content to kindle with thy Flame Defires we know not; nor our prayses claime. Then, I enu fonne; Selfe-praysed euer bee: All may thy Bowe transfixe, as mine shall thee. As much as Iour excelleth humane powr's; So much thy glory is exceld by ours. With that, he breaks the Ayre with nimble wings And to Parnofius shadie summit Springs; Two different arrowes from his Quiuer drawes: One, hate of Loue, the other Loue doth cause. What cauld, was sharpe, and had a golden Head:

But what repulft, was blunt, and tipt with Lead. The God this in Peneia fixt: that Arucke Are 'l'os bones and in his Marrow stucke. Forth-with he loues: a Louers name the flyes: And emulating vn-wed Phabe loves In spoyles of saluage Beasts, and syluan Lares; A filler binding her neglected haires. Her, many fought: but the, averse to all, Vnknowne to Man, nor brooking fuch a thrall, Frequents the pathleffe Woods; and hates to proue; Nor cares to heare, what Hymen is, or Loue. Oft said her Father; Daughter, thou do'ft owe A Son-in-law, who Nephews may bestowe. But she, who Marriage as a Crime eschew'd Her Face with blushing shame fac tnes imbew'd) lung on his necke with fawning armes, and faid, Deare Father, giue me leaue to liue a Maid: This boone rana's did to her afford. le, too indulgent, gaue thee his accord: fur thee, thy excellencie countermands; Ind thy owne beautie thy defire with-stands. Apollo loues, and faine would Daphne wed: Vhat he desires, he hopes; and is misse-led y his owne Oracles. As stubbles burne, is hedges into fudden blazes turne, ire set too neere, or left by chance behinde ly passengers, and scattered with the winde : o springs he into flames: a fire doth moue hrough all his veins: hope feeds his barren loue le on her shoulders sees her haire vnrrest: ) what, said he, if these were nearly drest! lee lees her Eyes, two Starres! her Lips which kiffe

Their

Their happy Sclues, and longs to tafte their bliffe: Admires her fingers, hands, her armes halfe-bare; And Parts vnseene conceiues to be more rare. Swifter than following Winds, away she runs; And him, for all this his intreatie, thuns.

Stay Nymph, I pray thee stay; I am no Fo: So Lambs from Wolues, Harts flye from Lyons fo: So from the Eagle springs the trembling Doue: They, from their deaths: but my pursute is Loue. Wo's me, if thou shouldst fall, or thornes should race Thy tender legs, whilft I enforce the chace! These roughs are craggy: moderate thy haste, And trust me, I will not pursue so fast. Yet know, who t is you please: No Mountanere, No home-bred Clowne; nor keepe I Cattell here. From whom thou fly if thou know it not (filly foole!) And therefore fly'st thou. I in Delphos rule. Ionian Claros, Lycian Patera, And Sea-girt Texedos doe me obay. love is my Father. What shall be, hath beene. Or is; by my instructive rayes is seene. Immortall Verse from our invention springs; And how to strike the well concording strings, My shafts hit sure : yet He one surer found, Who in my emptie bosome made this wound. Ofherbs I found the vertue; and through all The World they Me the great Physician call. Aye me, that herbs can Loue no cure afford! That Arts, relicuing all, should faile their Lord!

More had he faid, when the with nimble dread, From him, and his vnfinitht court-ship fled.
How gracefull then! the Wind that obvious blew,

Too much betray'd her to his amorous view; And play'd the Wanton with her fluent haire, Her Beauty, by her flight, appear'd more rare. No more the God will his intreaties loofe; But, vrg'd by Loue, with all his force pursues. As when a Hare the speedy Gray-hound spyes; His feet for prey, shee hers for safetie plyes; Now beares he vp; now, now he hopes to fetch her; And, with his snowt extended, straines to catch her; Not knowing whether caught or no, the flips Out of his wide-stretcht lawes, and touching lips. The God and Virgin in fuch strife appeare: He, quickned by his hope; She, by her feare, But, the Purfuer doth more nimble proue: Enabled by th' industrious wings of loue. Nor gives he time to breathe: now at her heeles, His breath ypon her dangling haire shee feeles. Cleane spent, and fainting, her affrighted bloud Forfakes her cheeks. Shee cryes vnto the Floud.] Helpe Father, if your streames contayne a Powre! May Earth, for too well pleafing; me deuour : Or, by transforming, O destroy this shape, That thus betrayes me to vindoing rape. Forth-with, a numnefic all her lims possess; And slender filmes her softer fides inuest. Haire into leaues, her Armes to branches grow: And late swift feet, now roots, are lesse than flow. Her gracefull head a leauy top sustaines: One beauty throughout all her forme remaines. Still Phabus Ioues. He handles the new Plant; And feeles her Heart within the bark to pant: Imbrac't the bole, as he would her have done

And

And kift the boughs: the boughes his kiffes shun. To whom the God: Although thou canst not bee The Wife I wisht, yet shalt thou be my Tree, Our Quiuer, Harp, our Tresses neuer shorne, My Laurell, thou shalt cuermore odorne; And Browes triumphant, when they lo fing, And to the Capitol their Trophecisbring. Thou shalt defend from Thunders blasting stroke, .. Augustus doores, on either side the Oke. And, as our vn-cut haire no change receives; So cuer flourish with vnfading leaues. Here Pean ends. The Laurell all allowes: In signe whereof her gratefull head shee bowes. A pleasant Groue within Amonia grows, Call'd I empe; which high ragged Cliffs inclose. Through this, Peneus, pour'd from Pindu, raues, And from the bottom rowles, with foming waves; That by steep down-fals tumbling from on hie, Ingender mists, which smoke-like, vpward flie, That on the deawy tops of Trees distill, And more than neighboring woods with noyfes fill. Here, in a Caue, his Court and residence The great Floud keepes: here justice dorn dispence To streams, and gentle Nymphs that streams frequence: The Flouds, that natiue were, with one consent First thither came; as yet, at selfe-debate, Whether to comfort, or congratulate. Coole Sperchius, flow Amphrysus, Apidan. Swift Ear, Empe, that troubled ran. Then, forth-with those, who (as their sourses bend) To Seas, their Waues (with wandring, weary) fend.

All but old inachus: who in his Caue's

Obscure

Obscure recesse, with teares augments his waves: For lo, mournes as loft; nor yet knowes hee Whether aboue or under earth the bec: Buther, whom he not any-where could find, He thinks is no where : feared itracts his mind. As from her Fathers streames the Nymph return'd Saturnius, seeing her, in passion burn'd. O Virgin, worthy . ohe! whole bed must bleffe What God I know not; though a Man, no leffe: Here in these Woods, said he, or these repose, "Whil'st thus the world with fainting feruor glowes." Nor feare among the Saluages to venter: . A God protecting, thou maift fafely enter. Nor one of vulgar ranke; but, He that beares Heauens Scepter, and the clouds with thunder teares O, flie not! for the fled. The Pastures past Of Lerna, and Lyreau's gloomy wast, He in the Aire a fable cloud displai'd, Caught, and devirginar's the strugling Maid. Meane-while, with wonder iuno doth luruay Those duskie Clouds, that made a Night of Day. And, finding that they neither tooke their birth From vap'rous streames, nor from the humid Earth. For her mift Husband fearcheth Heauen: as one. To whom his stealths so often had beene knowne. Whom when she could not finde; Deceiu'd am I, Or wrong'd, she said. Downe from the enamel'd skie Shee flides to Earth. The foggy Clouds with-draw At her command. Her comming Ione fore-faw, And chang'd inachides into a Cow; Whose forme even Iuno prais'd; demanding how Shee thither came? Whose was she? of what herd?

As ignorant of what the more than fear'd. loue faynes (her importunitie to shift) Her borne of Earth. Saturnia begs the gift. What should he doe? be cruell to his Loue; Or by denying her, suspition moue? Shame that perswades; and Loue doth this disswade: But, stronger Loue Shame vnder foot had layd; Yet doubts, if he should such a thing deny His Wife and Sifter, 't would the fraud descry. Obtayn'd; not forth-with feare the Goddelle left; Distrusting love, and icalous of his theft, Vntill deliuered to Argus guard. A hundred eyes his head's large circuit starr'd; Whereof, by turnes, at once two onely slept; The other watcht, and still their Stations kept. Which way so-ere he stands, he 10 spyes: 10, behind him, was before his eyes. By day, she graz'd abroad: Sel vnder ground, He hous'd her, in vnworthy halter bound. On leaves of Trees, and bitter herbs the fed. Poore foule! the Earth, not alwayes greene, her bed; And of the Torrent drinks. With hands Vp-heau'd Shee thought to beg for pity: how deceiu'd! Who low'd, when she began to make her mone; And trembled at the voyce which was her owne. Vnto the banks of inachus fhee stray'd; Her Fathers banks, where the fo oft had play'd: Beholding in his streame her horned head, She starts; and from her selfe, selfe-frighted, fled. Her Sisters, nor old Inachus, her knew: Which way so-ere they went, she would pursue, And suffer them to stroke her; and doth moue

Their wonder with her strange expressed loue. He brought her Grasse: Shegently lickt his hands, And kift his palmes; nor, longer, teares withstands. And had shee then had words, shee had display'd Her Name, her Fortunes, and implored his ayde. For words, the letters with her foot imprest Vpon the Sand, which her fad change profest. Wo's me! cry'd Inachus: his armes he throwes About her fnowy Necke. O, woe of woes! Art thou my daughter, throughout all the Round Of Earth so sought; that now, vnsought, art found! Lesse was thy losse: lesse was my miserie. Dumbe wretch (alas!) thou canft not make reply: Yer, as thou canst thou dost: thy lowings speake, And deep-fercht fighes that from thy bosom breake. Lignorant, prepar'd thy marriage bed: My hopes, a Sonne-in-low, and Nephewes fed. Now, from the Heard, thy iffue must descend: Nor can the length of time my forrowes end: Accurst in that a God. Deaths sweet reliefe Hard fates denie to my immortall griefe.

This faid; his Daughter (in that shape belou'd)
The Star-cy'd Argus farre from thence remou'd;
When, mounted on a hill, the warie Spic

When, mounted on a hill, the warse Spic Survayes the Playnes that round about him lie.

The King of Gods those forrowes she indur'd:
Could brooke no longer, by his fault procur'd:
But, calls his sonne, of sulgent Pleias bred;
Commanding him to cut off Argus head.
He wings his heeles, puts on his Felt, and takes His drowsie Rod; the Towre of love for sakes;
And, winding, stoops to Earth. The changed God

His Hat and Wings layes by; retaynes his Rod: With which he driues his Gotes (like one that feeds The bearded Heard) and fings this flender Reeds.

Much taken with that Art, before vnknowae, Come, fit by me, said Argus, on this stone. No place affordeth better Pastorage, Or shelter from the Sunnes offensive rage. Pleas'd Atlantiades doth him obay; And we a discourse protracts the speedy Day: Then, finging to his Pipes for melody, Endeuors to subdue each wakefull eye. The Herdf-man striues to conquer vigent sleepe: Though feiz'd on halfe, the other halfe dockeepe Observant watch. He askes who did invent (With that, he yawn'd) that late-found Instrument. Then, thus the God his charmed eares inclines? Amongst the Hamadry'd's and last crines (On cold Accadian Hils) for beautie fam'd, A Naia dwelt; the Nymphs, her prinx nam'd. Who oft deceiu'd the Satyres that pursu'd, The rurall Gods, and those whom woods include: In exercises, and in chast defire, Diana like; and fuch in her attire. You either in each other might behold: Her Bow was Horne; Diana's was of Gold:

You either in each other might behold:
Her Bow was Horne; Diana's was of Gold:
Yet oft mistooke. Lan crown'd with Pines, returning
From steep Licen, saw her; and, loue-burning,
Thus said: Faire Virgin, grant a Gods request;
And be his Wife. She would not heare the rest;
But fled from the despis'd as from her shame,
Till to smooth Ladan's sandy banks shee came.

There stopt; implores the liquid Sisters aid,

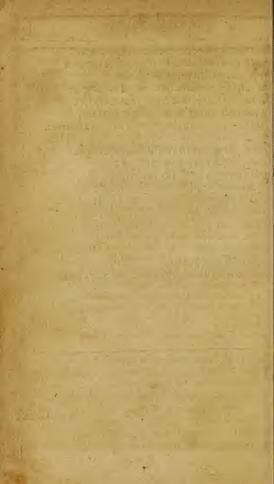

.

To change her shape, and pitty a forc't Maid. 'an, when he thought he had his Syrinx claspt Betweene his arms, Reeds for her body graspt. le fighs: they, flir'd there-with, report againc I mournefull found, like one that did complaine. lapt with the musick; Yet, O sweet (said he) logether ever thus converse will wehen, of vnequall wax-joyn'd Reeds he fram'd This seuen-fold Pipe; ofher 't was Syronx nam'd. The fly Cyllenius, thus discourfing, spyes low leaden fleep had feal'd-vp all his eyes. hen, filent, with his Magick rod he strokes heir languisht lights, which sounder sleep prouokes, Ind with his Fawchion lops his nodding head: Vhose bloud belinear d the hoarie Rock with red. here lyes he; of so many lights, the light 'ut forth: his bundred eyes let in one night. et, that those starry iewels might remayne, aturnia fixt them in her Peacocks trayne. Inflam'd with anger, and imparient hafte, efore fad 10s eyes and thoughts thee plac't rynnis Snakes, and through the World doth drive he conscience-stung affrighted Fugitiue. hou, Nile, to her long toyle an end didft yeeld. pproaching thee, shee on thy margent kneel'd; ler looks (fuch as shee had) to heaven vp-throwes ? lith tears, fighs, founds (expressing worldlesse woes) hee feemed love t'accuse, as too ingrate, nd to implore an end of her hard fate. e clips his Wife; and her intreats to free he'vniustly plagu'd. Be consident (said he) hee neuer more thall cause thy griefe, or fcare:

His vow he bids the Stygian Waters heare.
Appeas'd; the Nymph recouer'd her first looke;
Sofaire, so sweet! the haire her skin forsooke:
Her horns decrease: large eyes, wide iawes, contract:
Shoulders and hands againe become exact:
Her hooues to nailes diminish: nothing now
But that pure White, retaynes shee of the Cow.
Then, on her feete her body she erects
Now borne by two. Her selfe she yet suspects;
Nor dares to speake alowd, lest she should heare
Her selfe to low; but softly tries with seare.
Now, shee, a Goddesse, is ador'd by those
That linnen weare, where sacred Nilus slowes.

Hence sprung loue's Epaphus, no lesse divine; Whose Temples next vnto his Mother's 10ync. Equall in yeeres, nor equall spirit wants The Sunne-got Phaeten: who proudly vants Of his high Parentage; nor will give place. Inachides puts on him this difgrace: Foole, thou thy Mother trusts in things vnknowne; And of a Father boasts that's not thy owne. Vext Phaëton blusht: his shame his rage repels: Who straight to clymene the slander tels: And Mother, faid he, to your gricles increase; I free, and late so fiery, held my peace; Asham'd that such a tainture should be lay'd Vpon my blond, that could not be gayn-laid. Bur, if I be descended from aboue; Giue proofe thereof, and this reproach remoue. Then hangs about her necke: by her owne Head, By Merope's, her Sisters nuptiall bed, Intreats her to produce some certaine gage,

That might affure his question'd parentage. Mou'd with her sonnes intreaty, more inflam'd With indignation to be so defam'd, She casts her armes to heaven; and looking on His radiant Orbe, thus said: I sweare my son, By yon'faire Taper, that so bright appeares Withfar-proiected beames; who sees, and heares: That Sun whom thou behold ft, who light and heat Affords the informed World, did thee beget. If not, may he to me deny his fight: And to my eyes let this be his last light. Nor far-remoued doth his Palace stand; His first-vprise confines vpon our Land: If that thy heart doe serue thee, thither goe; And there thy Father, of thy Father, know. Hereat, ioy'd Phaëton enlightned grew; Whose towring thoughts no lesse than Heaven purseys. His Æthiopia past, and ind which fries With burning beames, he climes the Sun's vprife.

OVIDS

METAMORPHOSIS.

The second Booke.

THE ARGUMENT.

R Alb Phaeton fires the World. His sifers mourned this Tragedie; who into Poplars turne; Their teares to Amber; Cygnus, to a Swan. Ioue, Phœbe-like, Califto found a Man. Her, Iuno made a Beare: Shee, and her fon, Advanced starres, that still the Ocean soun. Coronis, now a Crowe, sies Neptune's frights Nictimine is made the Bird of Night. The too-officious Raven, late so saye, Is plum'd with black. Ocyrol grower a Mara. Phœbus, a Heardsman. Mercury, twice such; Who turnes betraying Rattus into Tuch. Envisous A glauros, to a Statue, full Of her minde's spots. Love Ioue converts t'a Buk.

Ol's loftie Palace on high Pillars rais'd,
Shone all with gold, and stones that flame-like blaz'
The roofe of Iuory, diuinely deckt:
The two-leau'd filuer-doores bright rayes proiects.
The workmanship more admiration crau'd:
Tor, curious Mulciber had there ingrau'd
The Land-imbracing Sea, the orbed Ground,
The arched Heauens. Blew Gods the billowes crown'd;

C3

Shape

Shape-changing Proteus, Triton shrill; the tall Big-brawn'd Ageon mounted on a Whale. Gray Doris, and her daughters, heavenly-faire: Some sit on Rocks, and drie their Sea-greene haire; Some seeme upon the dancing Waves to glide; Others on backs of crooked Fishes ride: Amongst them all, no two appears the same; Nor differ more than fifters well became. The Earth had saluage Beasts, Men, Cities, Woods, Nymphs, Satyres, rurall Gods, and crystall Floods: Aboue all these, Heauen's radiant Image shines, On both fides deckt with fix refulgent Signes. To this, bold Phaeton made his ascent; And to his doubted Father's presence bent; Yetfore't to stand aloofe: for, mortall fight Could not indure t' approach so pure a light. Sol cloth'd in purple, fits vpon a Throne, Which cleerly with tralucent Emralds shone. With equall-raigning Houres, on either hand, The Dayes, the Moneths, the Yeers, the Ages stand: The fragrant Spring with flowrie chaplet crown'd: Wheat-eares, the browes of naked Summer bound: Rich Autuma Invear'd with crusht Lyeus blood; Next, hoary-headed Winter quiuering stood. Much daunted at these facred nouclties, The fearefull Youth all-feeing Phabus spies; Who faid, What hither drew thee Phaëton, Who art, and worthily, my dearest Son? He thus reply'd: O thou refulgent Light, Who all the World reioycest with thy fight! O Father! if allow'd to vie that name, Nor clymene by thee disguise her shame;

Produc

Produce fome figne, that may my birth approue,
And from my thoughts these wretched doubts remoue,
He, from his browes, his shining rayes displac't;
And, bidding him draw-neere, his neck imbrac't.
By merit, as by birth, to thee is due
That name, said he, and clymene was true.
To cleere all doubts, aske what thou wilt, and take Thy granted wish. Beare witnesse thou dark Lake,
The oath of Gods, vnto our eyes vnknowne.
These words no sooner from his lips were flowne,
But he demands his Chariot, and the sway
Of his hot Steeds, to guide the winged Day.
The God repents him of the oath he made;
And, shaking his illustrious Tresses, said:

Thy tongue hath made mine erre, thy birth vnbleft.

O, would I could break promife! this request,
I must confesse, I onely would denie:
And yet, distinct I may. Thy death doth lie
Within thy wish. What's so desir'd by thee,
Can neither with thy strength nor youth agree.
Too great intentions set thy thoughts on fire.
Thou, mortall, do'st no mortall thing desire;
Through ignorance, affecting more than they Dare vndertake, who in Clympus sway.
Though each himselse approue; except me, none
Is able to supply my burning Throne.
Not that dread Thunderer, who rules aboue,
Can drive these wheeles: and who more great than lone?

At Noone, through highest skies their course they beare:

Steep is the first ascent; which in the prime Ofspringing Day, fresh Horses hardly clime.

Whence Sea and Land even We behold with fears, C 4

Then downe the Hill of Heauen they scoure amaine With desperate speed, and need a steady reigne; That Thetis, in whose wany bowres I lie, Bach evening dreads my down-fall from the skie. Besides; the Heauens are daily hurried round, That turn the Starres, to other motions bound. Against this violence, my way I force, And counter-run their all-o're-bearing course. My Charriot had: can thy fraile strength ascend The obnious Poles, and with their force contend? No Groues, no Citics, fraught with Gods; expect; No marble Fanes, with wealthy offrings deckt. Through faluage shapes, and dangers lyes thy way: Which could'st thou keep, and by no error stray, Betweene the Buls sharp horns yet must thou goe; By him that draws the strong Amonian bowe; The deathfull Scorpion's far-out-bending clawes; The shorter Crab's; the roaring Lyon's lawes. Nor easie is't those siery Steeds to tame:" Who from their mouthes and nofthrils vomit flame. They, heated, hardly of my rule admit; But, head-strong, struggle with the hated bit. Then, left my bountie, which would faue, should kill; Beware: and whil'st thou maist, reforme thy will. A figne thou crau'ff, that might confirme thee mine: Ly by dehorting, giue a certaine figne; Approu'd a Father, by Paternall feare: Look on my looks, and reade my forrows there. O, would thou could ft descend into my brest;

And apprehend my vexed Soules vnrest! And lastly, all the wealthy World behold, Of all that Heaven enrich, rich Seas infold.

0

Or on the pregnant-bosom'd Earth remayne, Aske what thou wilt; and no repulse sustaine. To this alone, I give a forc't consent: No honour, but a true-nam'd punishment. Thou, for a bleffing, beg'ft the worst of harms. Why hang'ft thou on my neck with fawning arms? Distrust not; we have sworn: but aske, and take What thou canst wish: yet, wifer wishes make. In vaine dehorted; he, his promise claymed; With glory of so great a charge inflam'd. The wilfull Youth then lingring Phabus brought To his bright Chariot, by Vulcan wrought. The Beam and Axeltree of maffie gold: On Siluer Spokes the golden Fellies rol'd: Rich Gems and Cryfolites the Harnesse deckt; Which, Phabus beames, with equal light, reflect. Whil'st this, admiring Phaëton survayes, The wakefull Morning from the East displayes Her purple doores, and odoriferous bed, With plentic of deaw-dropping Roles spred. Cleare Lucifer the flying Starres doth chace; And, after all the rest, resignes his place. When Titan faw the Dawning ruddy grew, And how the Moon her filuer horns with-drew: He bade the light-foot Houres, without delay To joyn his Steeds. The Goddesses obay: Who, from their loftie Mangers, forth-with led His fieric Horses, with Ambrosia fed. With facred Oyle anounted by his Syre, Of vertue to repulle the rage of fire, He crowns him with his Rayes, Then, thus began With doubled fighs, which following woes fore-rans.

Let not thy Father still aduise in vaine. Sonne, spare the whip, and strongly vse the raigne. They, of their owne accord will run too fast. Tis hard, to moderate a flying hafte. Nor drive along the five directer Lines. A broad and beaten path obliquely windes, Contented with three Zones: which doth aucid The diftant Poles: the track thy wheeles will guide. Descend thou not too low, nor mount too high; That temperate warmth may heaven and earth supply. A loftie course will heaven with fire infest; A lowely, earth: the fafer Meane is best. Nor to the folded Snake thy Chariot guide ? Nor to the Altar on the other fide: Berweene these drive. The rest I leave to Fate; Who better proue, than thou, to thy owne state. Bur, while I speak, behold, the humid Night Beyond th' Hesperian Vales hath ta'ne her flight. Aurora's splendor re-inthrone's the Day: We are expected, nor can longer flay. Take vp the reignes, or, while thou maift, refule 3. And not my Chariot, but my counsell vic; While on a firme foundation thou doft stand, Not yet posselt of thy ill-wisht Command. Let me the World with vsuall influence cheare: And view that light which is vnsafe to beare.

The generous and gallant Phaêton,
Alfeourage, vaut's into the blazing Throne:
Glad of the reignes, nor doubtfull of his skill;
Meane while, the Sunnes swift Horses, hot Pyrons,
Strong Athon, tiery Phicgon, bright Edus, Neighing.

Neighing alowd, inflame the Ayre with heat; And, with their thundring hooues, the barriers beat. Which when hospitious Thetis once with-drew, (Who nothing of her Nephew's danger knew) And gaue them scope; they mount the ample skie And cut the obuious Clouds with feet that flie. Who, rays'd with plumed pinions, leaue behinde The glowing East, and slower Easterne-winde. But, Phabus Horses could not feele that fraight: The Chariot wanted the accustom'd waight. And as viballac't ships are rockt and tost With tumbling Waues, and in their feerage loft: So, through the Ayre the lighter Chariot reeles; And joults, as emptie, voon jumping Wheeles. Which when they found, the beaten path they shun; And, frraggling, out of all subjection run. He knowes not how to turne, nor knowes the way; Or had he knowne, yet would not they obay. The cold, now hot, Triones fought in vaine To quench their heat in the forbidden Maine. The Serpent, next vnto the frozen Pole, Benum'd, and hurtleffe, now began to rowle With actuall heat; and long forgotten ire-Resumes, together with athereals fire. 'Tis faid, that thou Bootes ranst away, Though flow, though thee thy heavy Waine did flay. But, when from top of all the arched skye, Vnhappy Phaeton the Earth did eye: Pale sudden seare vn-nerves his quaking thighs; And, in fo great a light, benights his eyes. He wisht those Steeds vnknowne; vnknown his birth; His fute vngranted a now he couets earth;

Metamorphosis.

To be the sonne of scorned Merope. Rapt as a ship vpon the high-wrought Sea, By saluage tempests chac't; which in despaire 'The Pilor leaueth to the Gods, and Pray'r. What should he doe? much of the heaven behinde; Much more before: both measur'd in his minde. The neuer-to-be entred West survay's; And then the East. Lost in his owne amaze, And ignorance, he can nor hold the reignes. Nor let them goe; nor knowes his Horles names: But stares on terror-striking skies (possest By Beafts and Monstels) with a panting breft. There is a place, in which the Scorpion bends His compast clawes; who through two Signes extends. Whom when the Youth beheld, flew'd in black sweat Of poyson, and with turn'd-vp taile to threat A mortall wound; pale feare his senses strooke, And flackned reignes let's fall, from hands that shooke. They, when they felt them on their backs to lie, With vn-controlled error scoure the skie Through Admowne ayrie Regions; and tread The way which their disordred fury led. : We to the fixed Starres their course they take; And stranger Spheres with smoking Chariot rake: Now clime: now, by steep Præcipies descend: And neerer Earth their wandring race extend. To see her brother's Steeds beneath her owne The Moon admires! the Clouds like Comets shone. Imading fire the upper Earth affayld; All chapt and con'd; her pregnant iuyce exhal'd. Trees feed their ruin: Graffe, gray-headed turns: And Corne, by that which did produce it, burns.

But this was nothing. Cities with their Towres, Realmes with their People, funerall fire deuoures. The Mountayns blaze: High Ather, but too high; Fount-fruitfull Ida, neuer till then drie; Oete, old Implus, and Cilician Taurus Muse-haunted Acticon, Ocagrian AEmus. Loud Eetna roreth with her doubled fires: Parnassus grones beneath two flaming spires. Steep Othrys, Cynthus, Eryx, Mimas, glowc; And Khodope, no longer cloath'd with snowe. The Phrygian Dindyma, in cinders mourns: Cold Caucasus in frosty Scythia burns. High Mycale, divine Cytheron, wast; Pindus, and Offa once on Pelion cast, More great Olympus (which before did shine) The ayrie Alpes, and cloudic Appenine. Then Phaëton beheld on every fide The World on fire, nor could fuch heat abide: And, at his deadly-dric and gasping iawes, The scalding Ayre, as from a furnace, drawes; His Chariot, redder than the fire it bore; And, being mortall, could indure no more Such clowds of afters, and elected coles. Muffled in smoake which round about him rowles. He knowes not where he is, not what succeeds; Dragg'd at the pleasure of his frantick Steeds. Men fay, the AEthiopians then grew fwart; Their blood exhaled to the outward part. A fandie Defert Lybia then became, -Her full veins empried by the thirsty flame."-With hair unbound and torn, the Nymphs, diffraught, Bewaile their Springs Baotta Dirce fought;

Argos

Argos, Amymone: Ephyre, faire Pirene mist: Nor streames securer arc. Great Tanais in boyling chanell fumes; Teuthranian Cayeus with heat confumes; Imenus, old l'eneus, Erymanibus, Yellow Lycomas; to be twice-burnt, Zanthus. Meander, running in a turning maze, Mygdonian Melas, and Eurotas blaze: Euphrates, late investing Babylon; Grontes, Phasis, Ifter, Thermodon, Ganges, Alpheus, Sperchius lately cold, .. And Tagus flowing with diffolued gold. The Swans, that rauisht with their melodie Maonian banks, now in cayfter frie. To farthest Earth affrighted Nilus fled; And there conceal'd his yet vnfound-out head. Whil'ff his feuen duftie chanels streamlesse lie Ismarian Hebrus, Strymon now are drie. Hesperian streames, Rhene, Rhodanus, the Po, And Scepter destinated Tyber glow. Earth cracks: to Hell the hated light descends; And frighted Pluto, with his Queene, offends. The Ocean shrinks, and leaves a field of Sand: Where new discouered Rocks, and Mountaines stand. That multiply the scattred cyclades, Late couer'd with the deepe and awfull Seas, The Fishes to the bottom dive: nor dare The sportlesse Dolphins tempt the sultrie Aire. Long boyl'daline, the monstrous Phoca die, And on the brine with turn'd-vp bellies lie. With Doris and her daughters, Nereus raucs; Who hide themselves beneath the scalding waves.

Thrice wrathfull Neptune his bold arme vp-held About the Floods: whom thrice the fire repel'd. Yetfoodfull Tellus with the Ocean bound. Amidst the Seas, and Fountaines now infound (Selfe-hid within the womb where they were bred) Neck-high advanceth her all-bearing head. (Her parched fore-head shaddowed with her hand) And, shaking, shooke what-euer on her stand: Where-with, a little shrunke into her brest, Her facred tongue her forrowes thus exprest: If fuch thy will, and I deferue the same, Thou chiefe of Gods, why sleeps thy vengefull flame? Be't by Thy fire, if I in fire must frie: The Author leffens the calamitie. But, whilst I strive to vtter this, I choke. View my fing'd haire, mine eyes half-out with smoke! The sparkling cinders on my vissage throwne! Is this my recompence? the fauour showne For all my service ? for the fruit I have borne? That thus I am with plough and harrowes torne? Wrought-out through-out the yeare? that man and beaft Sustayne with food? and you with incense feast? But, say I merit ruine, and thy hate: What hath thy brother done (by equall Fate Elected to the wavy Monarchie), That Seas should finke, and from thy presence flie? If neither he, nor I thy pittie moue, Pitty thy Heauen. Behold! the Poles about At either end do fume: and should they burne, Thy habitation would to ruine turne. Distressed Atlas shoulders shrinke with payne,

And scarce the glowing Axeltree sustayne.

If Sea, if Earth, if Heauen shall fall by fire, Then all of vs to chaos must retire.

O! quench these flames: the miserable state

Of things releeue, afore it be too-late. This faid, her voyce her parched tongue forfook, Nor longer could the smothering vapors brook; But, down into her-felfe with-drew her head, Neere to the infernall Cauerns of the Dead. love calls the Gods to witnesse, and who lent The strayning Chariot; should not be preuent, That All would perish by one destinie: Then mounts the highest Turret of the skie, From thence inur'd to cloud the spacefull Earth. And give the flame fore-running thunder birth. But, there, for wasted clouds he lought in vaine, To shade or coole the scorched Earth with raine He thunders; and, with hands that cannot erreg Hurls lightning at the audacious Charioter. Him strooke he from his seat, breath from his brest. Both at one blow, and flames with flames supprest. The frighted horses, plunging seucrall wayes, Breake all their tire: to whom the bir obayes; The reignes, torne beame, crackt spokes, disperst abroad, Scorcht Heauen was with the Chariots ruines strow'd. But, foule-leffe Phaêton, with blazing haire, Shot head-long through a long descent of Aire; As when a falling starre glides through the skie, Or feemes to fall to the deceived eye. Whom great Eridamus (farre from his place Of birth ) receiu'd, and quencht his flagrant face: Whose Nymples interrid him in his Mothers womb; And fixe this Epitaph upon his Tomb: "

Here

Here Phaëton lyes: who though he could not guide His Fathers Steeds, in high attempts he dy'd. Phabus with griefe with-drew. One day did runne About the World, they fay, with-out the Sunne, Which flamie funerals illuminate: That good, deviued from a wretched Fate. When Clymene had faid what could be faid In fuch a griefo; halfe-foul'd, in black array'd, She fils the Earth she wanders through, with grones, First seeking his dead corps, and then his bones. Interr'd in forren Lands shee found the last: Her feeble-lims vpon the place shee cast, And bath'd his name in teares, and strictly prest The carued Marble with her bared breft. Nor lesse th' Heliades lament; who shead From drowned eyes vaine offerings to the dead: Who with remorfelesse hands their bosoms teare: And wayling, call on him that cannot heare. With joyned horns foure Moons their orbs had fil'd. Since they their customarie plaints vpheld: When Phaethufa, thinking to have cast Her selfe on Earth, cry'd, ah ! my feet stick fast! Campetie, pressing to her sisters ayd, Is fuddenly with fixed roots was stayd. third, about t'haue torne her scattered haire, fore-off the leaves which on her crowne she bare. This, grieueth at her stiffe and senselesse thighes: hee, that her stretcht-out arms in branches rife. and whil'ft with wonder they thenselves behold. The creeping barke their tender parts infold; Then, by degrees, their bellies, brefts, and all except their mouthes; which on their mother call.

What should shee doe? but runto that, to this; As furie draue; and snatch a parting kisse?
But yet, not so suffized, shee stroug to take Them, from themselves, and down the branches brake:
From wherice, as from a wound, pure blood did glide.
O pitry, Mother! (fill the wounded cry'd)
Nor teare vs in our Trees! O! now adicu!
With that, the barke their lips together drew.
From these cleere dropping trees, tears yearly flow:
They, hardned by the Sunne, to Amber grow;
Which, on the moysture-giving River spent,
To Roman Ladies, as his gift, is sent.

A-kin to Phation; in love, more neere.

He, leaving State (who in Liguria raign'd, Which Citics great and populous contayn'd)

Fild with complaints the River-chiding floods, The fedgie banks, and late augmented Woods. At length, his voice grew small: white plume contends In whitenesse with his haire: his neck ascends. Red films vnite his toes: armees turne to wings: His mouth, a flat blunt bill, that fadly sings. Beconne a Swan, remembring how vniust Beconine a Swan, remembring how vniust toue's lightning was, nor Heauen, nor him will trust. Whom Lakes and Ponds (detesting fire) delight; And Floods, to Flames in nature opposite.

The wofull Father to dead Phatton,
Him-felfe neglecting (all his lustre gon,
As when eclipst) day, light, his owne life hates;
And loued griese, with anger aggravates.
Refusing to illuminate the Earth.

Enough, too much my toile! born with the birth

Of Time; (as reftleffe;) without end, regard,
Or honour: recompenc't with this reward!
Some other now may on my Chariot fit.
If all of you confesse your selues vnsit;
Let Ioue ascend: that he (when he shall trie)
At length may lay his murdering thunder by.
Then will he sinde, that he, who could not guide
Those fire-hoou'd Steeds, deserv'd not to have dy'd.

The Gods stand round about him, and request That endlesse Night might not the World inuest. Eucn toue excus d his lightning, and intreats: Which, like a King, he intermixt with threats. Displeased Phath a, hardly reconcil d, Takes-up his Steeds, as yet with horror wild. On whom he vents his spleen; and, though they run, He Lashes, and upbraids them with his Son.

The Thunderer then walks the ample Round
Of Heauens high walls, to fearch if all were found.
When finding nothing there by fire decay'd;
He Earth, and humane industrics survay'd.

Areadia chiefely exerciz'd his cares;
There, Springs and streames, that durst not run, repaire's;
The Fields with grasse, the Trees with leaves indue's,
And withered Woods with vanishes hades renew's.
Of passing to and from a Newscripe.

Oft passing to and fro, a Nonacrine
The God inflam'd; her beautie, more divine!
'Twas not her Art to spin, nor with much care
And fine varietie to trick her haire;
But, with a zone, her looser garments bound,
And her rude tresses in a fillet wound:
Now armed with a Dart, now with a Bowe:
A Squire of Phabe's. Manalus did knowe

Metamorphosis:

44

None more in grace; of all her Virgin throng: But, Fauorites in fouour last not long. The parted Day in equall balance held, A Wood shee entred, as yet neuer feld. There from her shoulders shee her Quiuer takes, Vnbends her Bowe; and, tyr'd with hunting, makes The flowry-mantled Earth her happy bed; And on her painted Quiuer layes her head. When love the Nymph without a guard did see In such a positure; This stealth, said hee, My Wife thall neuer know: or, say shee did; Who, ah, who would not for her fake be chid! Diana's shape and habit them indew'd, He faid; My Huntresse, where hast thou pursew'd This morning s chace? Shee, rifing, made reply; Haile Pow'r, more great than love (though love stood by) In my efteem -He smil'd: and gladly heard Him-selfe, by her, before Himselfe preferr'd; And kift. His kiffes too intemperate grow; Not fuch as Maids on Maidens do bestow. His strict imbracements her narration stay'd; And, by his crime, his owne deceir betray'd. Shee did what Woman could to force her Fate: (Would luno faw! it would her spleene abate) Although, as much as Woman could, thee stroue; What Woman, or, who can contend with I sue! The Victor hies him to th'athereall States. The Woods, as guiltie of her wrongs, thee hates; Almost forgetting, as from thence shee flung, Her Quiuer, and the Bowe which by it hung. High Manalus Di Etynna with her traine Now carring, pleafed with the quarry flaine,

Beheld,

Beheld, and call'd her: call'd vpon, shee fled;
And in her semblance Iupiter doth dread.
But, when shee saw the attending Nymphs appeare;
Shee troops amongst them, and diverts her feare.
Ah, how our faults are in our faces read!
With eyes scarce ever rais'd, shee hangs the head:
Nor perks shee now, as shee was wont to do,
By Cynthia's side, nor leads the starry crew.
Though mute shee bee, her violated shame
belse-guiltie blushes silently proclaime.
But that a Maid, Diana the ill hid
Had soone espy'd: they say, her sly Nymphs did.
Nine Crescents now had made their Orbs compleat;

When, faint with labour, and her brothers heat, shee takes the shades; close by the murmuring and filuer current of a fruitfull Spring. The place much prays d, the streame as coole as cleere. Her faire feet glads. No Spyes, said shee, be here: Here will wee our distribed bodies dip. Latist blusht: the rest their faire lims strip. And her perforce vncloth'd, that sought delayes; Who, with her body, her offence displayes. They, all abasht, yet loth to haue it spy'd, striuing her belly with their hands to hide; Auant, said Conthia; get thee from our trayne;

Nor, with thy lims, this facred Fountaine stayne.
This knew the Matron of the Thunderer;
Whose thoughts, to fitter times, reuenge defer:
Nor long delaye's; for, Areas (which more scorne and griefe prouok't) was of the Lady borne.

Beheld with ire, which turn'd her eyes to flame; Must thou be fruitfull too, to blaze my shame, And propagate the wrong? and must be be A living infamy to love and me? I'je not indur't: That so selfe-pleasing shape, W hich drew my husband to thy willing rape, I sure shall spoile. This said, her haire she wound About her hand, and dragg'd her on the ground. Her hands, for pitty heau'd ( so smooth, so faire! ) Grew forth-with rough, and horrid with black haire. Her daintie hands (which, swift deformity Converts to pawes) the place of feet supply. The mouth, so prais'd by love (that late to sin Entic't a God ) nowhorribly doth grin. And, left shee might too powrefully befeech, Shee instantly bereft her of her speech: In stead whereof, a noyle ascends her hoarse And rumbling throte, which terror doth inforce; Although a Beare, her minde shee still possest, And with continuall grones her griefe exprest; With pawes stretcht vp to heauen, accus'd her fate: And whom the could not call, the thought ingrate. How oft, affraid to keepe the Wood's alone, Sought she the house and fields that were her owne! How often, chaced by the following crie, Th'affrighted Huntresse from her hounds did flie! Oft thee (the Wood's wild for agers espy'd) Forgetting what shee was, her selfe would hide: A Beare; yet trembles at the fight of Beares; And Wolues (her Father then amongst them) feares. When (lo!) Lycaon's Grand-child thither drew, Thrice five yeares old, nor of his Mother knew; While he pursues the chace and saluage spoyles (The Erymanthian Woods begirt with toyles)

Her he encounters. Arcas feene, shee stay'd, And would have ta'ne acquaintance. He, affraid, Stared vpon her with a constant eye; Andbackward stept, as shee approched nye. About to wound her undefended breft: The King of Gods, who did the fact deteft, With them, the crime with-drew, and both conuai'd To heauen; now neighbouring Constellations made. Saturnia sweld to see her Rivall shine Amongst the Starres. Shee stoops to Neptune's brines Gray Thetis and the old Oceanus (Grac't by the Deities) accoasting thus: Aske you why I, the Queene of Gods, am com-From bleft aboads? Another holds my roome. When Nights blacke mantle shall the World infold; My wounds (those honour'd Stars) you may behold; There, where the shortest Circle, at the end Of all the turning Axeltree, doth bend. Who would not injurie the wife of lone, When our worst punishments preferments proue? How great our act! how is our powre display'd! Vnform'd a Woman, and a Goddesse made. Thus we the guiltie scourge! Thus, thus we our Reuenge aduance! fuch, and so great our powre! Let him vnbeast the beast ( as heretofore Phoronida) and her proud shape restore. Why doth he not Lycaen's daughter wed, Rejecting me, and place her in his bed? But, you who once my carefull Nurses were. If my indignities doe touch you neere, Command you that the seuen Triones keepe Their lazie Waine out of your facred Deepe

From thence, those stars, the price of whordome, drive;

Nor let th'impure in your pure Surges diue.

They both assent. Her Peacocks to the skyes
Their Goddesse draw; late stucke with Argus eyes.
Thou too, thou prating Rauen, turn'd as late
From white to blacke, by well-deserved Fate.
(The spotlesse filuer Doue was not more white,
Nor Swans which in the running brookes delight:
Nor yet that vigilant Fowle, whose gaggling shall Hereafter free th'attempted Capitoll.)
Thy tongue, thy tell-tale tongue did thee vndoe:

white, is now of fable hew., coronis, of Larissa, bare lemonian Dames for matchlesse faire. Delphian, was belou'd by thee;

As long as chafte, or from detection free.
But, Phubus Bird her scapes did soone descrie:
Nor could they charme th'inexerable Spie:
Whom, slying to his Lord, the Crowe pursewes

(As talkatine as he) to know the newes;

And, knowing, said: Thy selfe thou dost ingage
By thanklesse feruice: slight not my presage.
Know what I was, and am: through all my time
My actions sift: thou'lt find my faith my crime.
For, Pallas, on a day, in chest compos'd
Of Attick Osiars, privately inclos'd
Her Erichthonius (whom no Woman bare)
Committed to the custodic and care
Of three saire Virgin Nymphs, that daughters were
To prudent Cecreps, who two shapes did beare:
Nor told what it contayn'd; but, charg'd that they
Her secrets should not to themselves betray.

Thefe

These from an Elme I (virespy'd) espy.
Faire Herse and Pandrosa faithfully
Persorme their charge. Aglaures then did call
Her searfull sisters, and virtyes with-all
The wicker Cabinet; whose twigs contayne
An insant, rayled on a Dragon's trayne.
This, I my Goddesset told; and for reward,
Am now cashiered from Minerua's Guard,
The Bird of Night presend. Beware by mee:

Vor too officiously tell all you see.

Perhaps, you thinke, I to that place aspir'd Vithouther grace: vnfought-to, or defir'd: hould you aske Pallas, and her anger by; hough more than angrie, his shee would deny. de had King (oroneus, great in fame. hrough happy Phecis, by a royall Dame. lich futers I (despise me not ) had store: ly beauty wrackt me. Walking on the shore, s leafurely as now I vie to goe, old Neptune faw me, and with luft did glowe. he time, his prayr's, and prayles spent in vaine; hatwould not yeeld, he offers to constraine; nd follows me that fled. The harder strand chind me left: and tyr'd with yeelding fand, o Gods and Men I crie. No humane aid as then at hand; a Maid releeues a Maid or, as to heaven my trembling armes I threw; y armes cole-black with houering feathers grew. y Robe I from my shoulders thought to thrower it, that was plume, and to my skin did growe. ith hands to beat my naked brest, I trie: t, neither brest to beat, nor hands, had L

R

Running

Running, in land I lunke not as before;
But, me the scarce-toucht Earth, vnburden'd bore.
Forth-with, I lightly through the Ayre ascend;
And on Minerua, without blame, attend.
But, what was this; when shee, whose wicked deeds
Vnwoman'd her, in our lost grace succeeds?
For, know (nomore than through all Lesbos spred)
Nystimene defil'd her Fathers bed.
Though now a Bird; yet, full of guilt, the sight,
The Day, she shuns, and masks her shame in Night.
About her, all our winged troops repayre;
And, with inuectives, chace her through the Ayre.
To her, the Rauen: Mischiese thee surprise
For staying me. Vaine Omen's I despise;

Then, forward flew; and told the hurtfull truth Of loft Coronis, and th' AEmonian Youth. The Harp drops from his hand: and from his head The Laurell fell: his chearefull colour fled. Transported with his rage, his bow he tooke, And with ineuitable arrow strooke That breft, which he so oft to his had joyn'd: Shee shreeks; and from the deadly wound doth wind The biting steele, pursu'd with streames of blood, 'That bath'd her pure white in a crimson Flood: And faid; Though this be dew, yet, Phabus, 1 Might first have teem'd: now, two in one must die. Shee faints: forc't life in her blood's torrent swims: And stifning cold benums her senselesse lims. His crueltie, to her he lou'd, too late, He now repenteth, and himselfe doth hate, Who lent an eare, whom rage could so incense:

He hates his Bird, by whom he knew th'offence;

Hee hates his Art, his Quiuer, and his Bowe; Then, takes her vp, and all his skill doth showe. But (ah!) too late to vanquish Fate he tries; And furgerie, without fuccesse, applies. Which when he saw, and saw the funerall pyle Prepared to deuour so deare a spoyle; Since no coelestiall eye may shed a teare, He fetcht a grone, that made Earth grone to heare: And now vncar'd-for odours powr'd vpon her; And vndue death with all due rites doth honour. But, Phabus, not induring that his feed (And that by her ) the greedic Fire should feed, Snatcht it both from her womb, and from the flame; And to the two-shap't Chiron brought the same. The white-plum'd Rauen, who reward expects, He turnes to blacke; and ; this truth rejects. It pleas'd the Halfe-horse to be so imploy'd; Who in his honorable trouble ioy'd. Behold: the Centaur's daughter with red haire, Whom formerly the Nymph caricle bare By the swift River, and Ocyroe nam'd; Who had her Father's healthfull Art disclaym'd, To fing the depth of Fates: Now, when her breft Was by the prophecying rage possest, and that th'included God inflam'd her mind; leholding of the Babe, the thus divin'd: Health giver to the World, grow Infant, grow; o whom mortalitie so much shall owe. led Soules thou shalt restore to their aboads nd once against the pleasure of the Gods. o doe the like, thy Grand-fires flames denie: nd thou, begotten by a God, must die.

Thou, of a bloodlesse corps, a God shalt bee: And Nature twice shall be renew'd in thee. And you, deare Father, not a Mortall now; To whom the Fates eternitic allow; Shall with to die, then when your wound shall smart With Serpents blood, and flight your helplesse Art. Relenting Fates will pitty you with death, Against their Law, and stop your groning breath. Not all yet faid, her fighes in stormes arise; And ill-aboding teares burst from her eyes. Then, thus: My Fates preuent me: lo, they tie My faltering tongue; and farther speech denie. Alas! these Arrs not of that valew be, That they should draw the wrath of Heauen on me! O, rather would I nothing had fore-knowne! My lookes feeme now not hum the, nor my owne. I long to feed on graffe: I long to run About the spacious fields. Woe's me, vadon! Into a Mare (my kindred's shape) I grow: Yet, why throughout ? my Father but halfe fo. The end of her complaint you scarce could heare To vadersand: her words confused were. Forth-with, nor words, nor neighings, she exprest; Her yoyce yet more inclining to the beaft: Then, neigh'd out-right. Within a little space, Her down-thrust armes vpon the Meadow pale. Her fingers joyne : one hoofe five nayles vnite; Her head and neck enlarge, not now vpright: Her trayling garment to a trayne extends: Her dangling haire vpon her creft descends: Her voyce and shape at once transform'd became:

And to the Prodigie they give a name.

Hence,

Old Chiron weeps; and Phabus, vainly cryes on thee to change the changelesse Destinies. Admit thou could strate, from thy selfe expel'd, Then Elis, and Messenian pastures held.

It was the time when, cloth'd in Neat-herds weeds Thou play'dit vpon vnequall feuen-fold Reeds: Whil'It thee thy Pipe delights, whil'It cares of loue Thy foule possesse, and other cares remoue; Without a guard the Pylian Oxen stray: Observed by the craftie sonne of May, Forthwith he fecretly conucighs them thence, n yntract Woods concealing his offence. None saw but Baltus, in that Country bred: Who wealthy Neleus famous horses fed. lim onely he misdoubts: then, (t'ane a-part) stranger, faid Mercury, what ere thou art; fany for this Herd by chance inquire. Conceale thy knowledge: and receive, for hire, This white-hair'd Cow. Hee tooke her, and reply'd, le safe; thy theft shall sooner be discry'd y yonder stone, than me; and shew'd a stone. me's sonne departs, and straight returns vnknowne A sceming Clowne in forme and voice ) who said: aw'ft thou no cattel through these fields conuay'd? etect the theft; in their recouerie ioyne: nd, lo, this Hecfer, with her Bull, is thine. c (the reward redoubl'd') answer'd: There eneath those hills, beneath those hills they were. hen, Hermes, laughing lowd; What, knaue, Isay, le to my selfe; me to my selfe betray? hen, to a Touch-stone turn'd his periur'd brest; hose nature now is in that name exprest.

Hence, he, who beares the Caduceus springs Through boundlesse ayre; & views, fro stretcht-out wings, Munychian fields, Minerua's loued foyle, Lycaum, exerciz'd with learned toyle. By chance, vpon that day it did befall, When to her Fanc, prepar'd for festivall, In crowned baskets on their shining haire, The Virgin-trayne her facrifices bare: Returning; these the winged God doth view; Who not forth-right, but in a circuit flew. As when a greedie Kite fresh entrailes spics, Fearing to stoop for those that facrifice, Strikes circles through the Ayre, nor far remoues; But, with fixt eyes reuerts to what he loues: So, swift Cyllenius o're the Attick towres, In ayrie windings circularly scowres. As Lucifer out-shines each other Starre; As silver Phabe, Lucifer; so farre Did Herse all the other Virgins stayne; The glory of that pomp, and ofher trayne. Loue-struck, he burnes as in the Ayre he hung. A bullet by Balarian Slinger flung. Increaseth so in feruor as it flyes; And findes the fire it had not, in the skyes. From Heauen, he Roops to more affected Earth: Not now disguis'd like one of humane birth ; Such confidence his beauteous parts impart; Which, though divine, he strives to grace by Art. He curls his haire; his mantle, wrought with gold, He in the most becomming garb doth fold; And his fine feet adorns: then, in his hand Takes his fleep-caufing and exp. lling wand.

Three roomes there were within the faire contect Of cecrop's house, with Iuory arches deckt. Pandrofa and Aglauros on each fide Of Herse lay; Aglauros first espy'd The fly-approching Mercurie: his name Shee boldly asks, and why he thither came. Fo whom, Plesones nephew: He am I Who on love's crrands (love, my Father) flie-And to be plaine; to Herfe faithfull proue: And be an Aunt vnto our fruitfull loue. Thy fifter's beauties this repaire inforce: pray thee of a Louer take remorfe. So star'd she on him, and as much amaz'd; As when thee on Minerua's fecrets gaz'd: Who askes a massic of treasure for her hire; And, till 'twere payd, constrayn'd him to retire.

Warres angrie Goddesse cast on her a looke that darted fire; and fetcht a figh which shooke ser bosom, with the Agis which shee wore. Who cals to minde, how shee, not long afore, Profancly did, against her faith, discouer the Lemnian issue, borne without a Mother: Now to her fister, to the God ingrate; and by so base a meanes t' inrich her state.

Forth-with to Enuie's caue her course shee bent, 'urr'd with black filth, within a deepe descent letween two hils; where Phabus neuer showes lis chearfull face; where no winde euer blowes lepleat with sadnesse, and vnactiue cold; benoid of fire, yet still in smoake enrows'd. Whither when as the fear'd in battell came, hee staid before the house (that hatefull frame)

Shee might not enter ), and the darke doore strooke With her bright lance; which straight in sunder broke. There faw shee Envie lapping Vipers blood; And feeding on their flesh, her vices food: And, having feen her, turn'd-away her eyes. The Catiffe flowly from the ground doth rife (Her halfe-deuoured Serpents laid-afide) And forward creepeth with a lazie stride. Viewing her forme so faire; her armes, so bright; Shee gron'd, and figh't at fuch a chearfull fight. Her body more than meger; pale her hew; Her teeth all rufty; still shee looks askew; Her brest with gall, her tongue with poylon sweld: Shee only laught, when thee fad fights beheld. Her euer-waking cares exil'd foft fleep: Who looks on good successe, with eyes that weep 5 Repining, pines: who, wounding others, bleeds: And on her selfe reuengeth her misdeeds. Although Tritonia did the Hag detest; Yet briefely thus her pleasure thee express: Aglaures, one of the Cecropides, Doe thou infest with thy accurst disease. This said; the hastie Goddesse doth aduance Her body, with her earth-repelling lance. Enuic pursues her with a wicked eye, Much grieu'd at her preuayling industrie. Wrapt in darke clouds, which way so ere she turns, The Corne she lodges, flowry pastures burns, Crops what growes high; Towns, Nations, with her breath Pollutes; and Vertue persecutes to death. When shee the faire Atherian towres beheld Which so in wealth, in learned Arts exceld, And

And feaftfull Peace; to crie thee scarce forbeares, In that shee saw no argument for teares. When thee Aglauros lodging entred had, Shee gladly executes what Pallas bade: Her cancred hand vpon her breft shee lay'd, And crooked thornes into her heart conuay'd, And breath'd in banefull poyfon; which shee sheads nto her bones, and through her liver spreads. Ind that her enuy might not want a cause: The God in his divinest forme thee drawes: and with it, fets before her wounded eyes Ier happy fifter, and their nuptiall loyes: lugmenting all. These secret woes excite, and gnaw her foule. Shee fighes all day; all night; and with a flow infection melts away, ike Ice before the Sunnes vncertaine ray. aire Herse's happy state such heart-burne breeds n her black bosom, as when spiny weeds re fet on fire : which without flame confume: and feem ( fo small their heat ) to burne with fume. Ift shee resolues to die, such sights to shun: Ift, by disclosing, to have both vindon. low fits shee on the threshold, to preuent he Gods accesse; who with lost blandishment, nd his best Art, perswades. Quoth shee; forbeare, cannot be remou'd, if you stay here. to this bargain, he reply'd, will stand; he doore then forces with his figured wand. triuing to rife, to second her debate, er hips could not remote, prest with dull waight? gaine shee struggl'd to have stood on end: ut, those vassipple farewes would not bend.

And lack of bloud her veines blew branches pale's.
And lack of bloud her veines blew branches pale's.
And as a Canker, flighting helpeleffe Arts,
Creeps from th'infected to the lounder parts:
So by degrees the winter of wan Death
Congeales the path of life, and ftops her breath:
Nor stroug she: had the stroug to make her mone,
Voyce had no way; her neck and face now stone.
There shee a bloudlesse Statue sate, all freekt:

Her sported minde the Marble did infect. When Atlantiades, on her, prophane Oftongue and heart, this sharp revenge had ta'ne; He from the Citie, nam'd by Pallas, flew On mounting wings, and vnto heaven with-drew. With whom, some thus (his loue concealing) joynes: Thou, faithfull Minister to my designes, Shoot swiftly through the Ayre vnto that Land, Whose Northern coasts beneath thy Mother stands Which those Inhabitants Sidoma name: Behold, you royall Herd: conduct the same, From not farre distant Mountaines, to the shore This he dispatcht, with speed that went before A humane thought. There, oft the princely Maid, Accompany'd with Tyrian Virgins, play'd. Loue and high Maiestic agree not well; Nor will together in one bosom dwell.

Nor will together in one bosom dwell.

That Powre, from whom, what ere hath being, springs;
That King of Gods, who three-fork't lightning flings;
Whose nod the World's vnfixt foundation shakes,
The figure of a soulclesse Bull now takes:
And lowing, walks upon the tender grafte.

Amongst the Herd; though he in forme surpasse.

His

His colour whiter than vntrodden fnow, Before still-moyst and thawing Auster blow. The flesh, in swelling rowles, adornes his necke: His broad-spred brest, long dangling dew-laps decks His hornes, though small, yet such as Art inuite To imitate, than shining gemmes more bright: His eyes no wrath, his browes no terror threat; His whole aspect with smiling peace repleat. The beast, Agenor's daughter doth admire, So wondrous beautifull, so void of ire. Though such, at first the his approach did dread, Yet forthwith toucht; and then with flowres him fed. The Louer ioyes: till he his hopes might feaft, He kist her hands; ah, scarce defers the rest! Now, on the springing grasse, he frisks and playes: His sides now on the golden sands be layes. Her feare subdu'd, shee strokes his proffred brest: Her Virgin-hands his hornes with garlands dreft. The royall Maid, who now no courage lackt, Ascends the Bull, not knowing whom shee backt. He, to the Sea approaching, by degrees First dips therein his hoofs, anon his knees; Then, rushing forward, beares away the prize. Shee shreeks, and to the shore reverts her eyes: One hand his horne, the other held behind; Her lighter garments swelling with the winds budget in the second plantage.

Control of the Contro or the state of the state of the state of

OVIDS

METAMORPHOSIS.

The third Booke.

THE ARGVNENT.

A Rm dirospifrom Dragons late-sowne teeth arises. By his owne Hounds the Hart Act won dyes.

Iuno, a Beldame, Semele doth frie
In wist imbraces. Bacchus from Ioue's thigh
Takes second birth. The wise Tirelias twice
Doth change his sex. Scorned Eccho pines t'a voice?

Selfe-low a Narcissus to a Daffadill.
Bacchus, a Boy. The Tyrthen's ship stands fills,
With Iuy mor'd. Strange shapes the Saylers fright a
Who Dolphines turne, and fill in ships delight.

Nd now the God ariuing with his Rape
At facred creet, refumes his heauenly shape.
The King his some to seeke his daughter sense.
The King his some to seeke his daughter sense.
The King his some to seeke his daughter sense.
The King his some to seeke his daughter sense.
The King his some to select his some to sense to sense.
The his sortene to his wish succeed?
The wandred through (lowe's these who can exquire?)
Thuns his Country, and his Fathers ire:
The Phebus Oracle consults, to know at Land the Fates intended to bestow.
The sense in the sense in the sense was the sense work.
The sense was the s

Follow her flow conduct, and where shee shall Repose, there build: the place Beetia call.

Scarce Cadmus from Castalian Caue descended, When he a Hecfer saw, by no man tended, Her neck vngall'd with groning seruitude. The God ador'd, he foot by foot pursew'd. Cephisus sloud, and Panope now past, Shee made a stand; to heauen her fore-head cast, With lostie horns most exquisitely faire; Then, with repeated lowings fild the Ayre: Looks back vpon the company shee led; And, kneeling, makes the tender graste her bed. Thanks-giuing Cadmus kift the vnknowneground; The stranger fields and hills saluting round. About to sacrifice to heauen's high King, He sends for water from the living Spring.

A Wood there was, which never Axe did hew; In it, a Cauc, where Reeds and Ofiers grew, Rooft with a rugged Arch by Nature wrought; With pregnant waters plentifully fraught. The lurking Snake of Mars this Hold poffeft; Bright scal'd, and shining with a golden crest; His bulk with poyfon swolne; fire-red his eyes: Three darting tongues, three ranks of teeth comprise. This fatall Well th'vnlucky Tyrians found; Who with their down-ler Pitcher, rays'd a found. With that, the Serpent his blew head extends; And fuffering Ayre with horrid hiffes rends. The water from them fell: their colour fled: Who all, aftonisht, shook with sudden dread. Hee wreaths his scaly foldes into a heape; And fercht a compafie with a mightie leape:

Then, bolt-vpright his monstrous length displayers.
More than halfe way; and all the Woods survayers.
Whose body, when all seene, no less appearers,
Than that, which parts the two Coelestiall Bearers.
Whether the Tyrians sought to sight, or sie,
Or whether they through seare could neither trie;
Some crasht he't wixt his iawes; some class to death;
Some kils with poyson; others with his breath.

And now the Sunne the shortest shadowes made; Then, cadmus, wondring why his servants stay'd, Their foot-steps trac't. A hide the Hero's wore, Which late he from a flaughtred Lyon tore: His Arms a dart, a bright steele-pointed Speare; And such a minde as could not stoope to feare. When he the Wood had entred, and there view'd The bodies of the flaine with bloud imbrew'd; Th'insulting victor quenching his dire thirst At their suckt wounds; he sigh't, as heart would burst: Then faid, I will reuenge, O faithfull Mates, Your murders, or accompany your Fates. With that, he lifteth up a mighty stone, Which with a more than manly force was throwne. What would have batter'd downe the strongest wall. And shiuered towres, doth give no wound at all. The hardnesse of his sking and scales that grow Vpon his armed back, repell the blowe. And yet that ft. ong defence could not so well The vigour of his thrilling Dart repell; Which through his winding back a passage rends: There flicks: the steele into his guts descends. Rabid with anguith, hee retorts his looke Voon the wound; and then the laureling tooke

Betweens

Metamorpholis.

64

Betweene his teeth; it every way doth winde: At length, tugg'd out, yet leaues the head behind. " His rage increast with his augmenting paines: And his thick-panting throte fwels with full veines. A cold white froth furrounds his poys nous iawes: On thundring Earth his trayling scales he drawes: Who from his black and Stygian maw eiect's A blafting breath, which all the graffe infects. His body, now he circularly bends; Forthwith into a monstrous length extends: Then rusheth on, like showr-incensed Floods; And with his brest ore-beares the obujous Woods. The Prince gaue way; who with the Lyon's spoyle Sustayn'd th' assault; and forc't a quick recoyle, His Lance fixt in his lawes. What could not feele, He madly wounds; and bites the biting steele. Th' inuenom'd gore, which from his palate bled, Converts the graffe into a duskie red: Yer, flight the hurt, in that the Snake with-drews And fo, by yeelding, did the force subdew. Till Agenorides the steele imbrew'd In his wide throte, and still his thrust pursew'd; Vntill an Oke his back-retrait with-stood: There, he his neck transfixt: with it, the Wood. The Tree bends with a burden so vnknowne; And, lathed, by the Serpents taile, doth grone. While he furuay'd the hugenesse of his foe, This voyce he heard (from whence he did not know) Why is than Serpent for admir'd by thee? Agenor's sonne, a Serpent thoushalt bee. Hespeechlesse grew : pale feare repeld his blood And now vacualed haire like briftles stood? · Behold!

Behold! mans Fautresse, Pallas (from the sky Descending to his needfull aide) stood by: Who bade him in the turn'd-vp furrowes throw The Serpents teeth; that future men might grows He, as commanded, plow'd the patient Earth: And therein fow'd the feeds of humane birth. Lo (past beliefe!) the Clods began to moue: And tops of Lances first appear'd aboue: Then, Helmets, nodding with their plumed Crefts; Forth-with, refulgent Pouldrons, plated Brests; lands, with offensing weapons charg'd, insew: and Target-bearing troops of Men vp-grew. o in our Theater's folemnities; When they the Arras rayle, the Figures rife: More the rest, their faces first appeare By little and by little then they reare Their bodies, with a measure-keeping hand, ntill their feet vpon the border stand. old cadmus, though much daunted at the light If such an Host, addrest him to the fight. orbcare (a new-borne Souldier cry'd) t' ingage hy better fortune in our civill rage! Vith that, he on his earth-bred brother flew: it whom, a deadly dart another threw. For he that kildhim, long furuiucs his death; ut, through wide wounds expires his infant breath. laughter, with equall furic, runs through all: nd by vnciuill civill blowes they fall. he new-sprung Youth, who hardly life possest, low panting, kick their Mother's bloudy breft. ut fine furniu'd: of whom, Echienone; listArmes to Earth by Pallas counsell throwne,

He craues the love he offers. All accord As Brother's should, and what they take afford. Sidonian Cadmus these affist, to build His Ioftie walls; the Oracle fulfild.

Now flourisht Thebes: now did thy exile prouc In shew a bleffing; those that rule in loue And warre, thy Nuptials with their daughter grace: By such a Wife to have so faire a race; So many fonnes and daughters; nephewes too (The pledges of their peacefull beds) infew; And they now growne to excellence and powre. But, Man must censur'd be by his last houre: Whom truly we can neuer happy call,

Afore his death, and clofing funerall.

In this thy euery way so prosperous state, Thy first misse-hap sprung from thy Nephew's face, Whole browes vnnaturall branches ill adorne; By his vngratefull dogs in pieces torne. Yer fortune did offend in him; not he: For, what offence may in an error be? With purple bloud, flaine Deare the Hills imbrew: And now high Noon the shades of things withdrew; While East and West the equal! Sunne partake: Thus, then, Hyantius to his Partners spake, That trod the Mazes of the pathleffe Wood: My Friends our nets and iauelins reake with blood: Enough hath beene the fortune of this day: To morrow, when Aurora shall display Her rosic cheeks, we may our sports renew. Now, Phabu, with inflaming eye doth view The crannyed Earth: here let our labour end: Take vp your toyles. They gladly condescend.

I vale there was with Pines and Cypresse crown'd, argaphie call'd; for Dian's foue renown'd. I shady Cauc possest the inward part, Not wrought by hands; there, Nature witty Art Did counterfer: a native Arch shee drew, Vith Pumice and light Topales, that grew. bubbling Spring, with streams as cleere as glasse lan chiding by, inclos'd with matted graffe. he weary Huntresse vsually here laues Icr Virgin lims, more pure than those pure waves. and now her Bowe, her Iau'lin, and her Quiuer; oth to a Nymph, one of her Squires, deliuer: ler light impourrisht Robes another held: ler Buskins two vntie. The better skil'd menian crocale, her long haire wound 1 pleited-wreathes: yet was her owne vnbound. lear Hyale, Niphe, Rhanis, Pfecas (Still nploy'd) and Phiale the Lauers fill Vhile here Titania bath'd (as was her guise) o Cadmus Nephew, tyr'd with exercise, nd wandring through the Woods, approche this Groue Vith farall steps, so Destinie him droue! ntring the Caue with skipping Springs bedeaw'd: he Nymphs, all naked, when a Man they view'd lapt their resounding brests, and fild the Wood Vith sudden shreeks: like luory pales they stood bout their Goddesse: but shee, far more tall, y head and shoulders ouer-tops them all. uch as that colour, which the Clouds adorns, hot by the Sunne-beam's; or the rose Morn's: uch flusht in Dians cheeks, being naked tane. nd though inuiron'd by her Virgin trayne,

Metamorphosis.

68

She fide-long turnes, looks back, and wisht her bow: Yet, what shee had, shee in his sace doth throw. With vengefull Waters sprinkled; to her rage These words she addes, which future Fate presage: Now, tell how thou hast seene me disarray'd; Tell if thou canst: I give thee leave. This said, Shee to his neck and eares new length imparts; This Browe th' antlers of long-liuing Harts: His legges and feet with armes and hands supply d; And cloth'd his body in a spotted hide. To this, feare added. Autonocius flyes, And wonders at the swiftnesse of his thighes. But, when his looks he in the River view'd, He would have cry d, Woe's me ! no words infew'd: His words were grones. He frets, with galling teares, Checks not his owne; yet his owne mind he beares. What should he doe? Goe home? or in the Wood For euer lurke? Feare, this; shame that withstood. While thus he doubts, his Dogs their Mafter view: Black-foot and Tracer, opening first, pursew: Sure Tracer, Gnoffus; Black-foot Sparta bare. Then all fell in, more swift than forced Ayre: Spie, Kauener, Cline-cliffe; these Arcadia bred: Strong Fama-bane, Whirlwind, eager Follow-dread; Hunter, for sent; for speed, Flight went before; Fierce Saluage, lately ganched by a Bore; Greedy, with her two whelps; grim Wolf-got Ranger; Stout Shepheard, late preserving flocks from danger; Gaunt Catch, whose race from Sicyonia came; Patch, Coursir, Blab, rafh Tyger neuer tame; Blanch, Mourner, Koyster, Wolfe lurpasting strong; And Tempest, able to continue long:

Swift,

Swift, with his brother Churle, a Cyprian hound; Bold Snatch, whose sable brows a white star cround; cole, shag-hair'd Rug, and Light-foot wondrous fleet, Bred of a Spartan Bitch, his Sire of creets white-tooth, and King-wood (others not t'expresse.) O're Rocks, o're Crags, o're Cliffs that want accesse, Through streightned wayes, and where there was no way, The well-mouth'd hounds pursue the princely prey. Where of the wont to follow, now he flyes; Flyes from his family! in thought he cryes, I am Acteun, seruants, know your Lord! Thoughts wanted words. High skyes the noyse record. First, collier pincht him by the haunch: in flung Fierce Kill-deare; Hill-bred on his shoulder hung. These came forth last; but crost a nearer way A-thwart the hills. While thus their Lord they stay, In rush the rest; who gripe him with their phangs. Now is no roome for wounds. Grones speake his pangs, Though not with humane voyce, vnlike a Hart: In whose laments the knowne Rocks beare a part. Pitcht on his knees, like one who pitty craues, His filent looks, in stead of Armes, he waves. With vsuall showts their Dogs the Hunters-cheare; And seeke, and call Action. He (too neare!) Made answer by mute motions, blam'd of all For being absent at his present fall. Present he was, that absent would have beene; Nor would his cruell hounds have felt, but seene. Their snowts they in his body bathe; and teare Their Master in the figure of a Deare: Nor, till a thousand wounds had life disseis'd, Could quiner-bearing Dian be appear d.

'Twas censur'd variously: for, many thought The punishment farre greater than the fau't. Others fo sowre a chastitie commend, As worthy her: and both, their parts defend. Ioue's wife not so much blam'd or prays'd the deed; As shee rejoyceth at the wounds that bleed In Cadmus Family; who keeps in mind Europa's rape, and hateth all the kind. Now new occasions fresh displeasure moue: For Semcle was great with child by love. Then, thus shee scolds: O, what amends succeeds Our lost complaints! I now will fall to deeds. If we be more than titularly great; If we a Scepter Sway; if Heauen our Seat; If Ioue's fear'd Wife and Sifter (certainly, His Sifter) torment shall the Whore destroy. Yet, with that theft perhaps she was content, And quickly might the injurie repent: But, shee conceines, to aggravate the blame, And by her Belly doth her crime proclaime. Who would by Inpiter a Mother proue, Which hardly once, hath hapned to our loue: So confident is beautie! Yet shall he Deceiue her hopes: nor let me lune be, Vnlesse, by her owne some destroy d, shee make A swift descent vnto the Stygian Lake. Shee quits her Throne, and in a yellow clowd Approach't the Palace; nor dismist that shrowd, Till shee had wrinkl'd her smooth skin, and made Her head all gray: while creeping feet conuay'd Her crooked lims; her voice small, weake, and hoarse, Beroe-like, of Epidaure, her Nurse.

Lon

Long-talking; at the mention of leue's name, Shee figh't, and faid; Pray heaven, he prove the fame! Yet much I feare: for many oft beguile With that pretext, and chastest beds defile. Though ioue; that's not enough. Give hea figne Of his affection, if he be divine. Such, and so mightie, as when pleasure warmes His melting bosome, in high Iuno's armes; With thee, such and so mightie, let him lie, Deckt with the enfignes of his deitie. Thus thee aduiz'd the vnfuspecting Dame; Who begs of loue a boone without a name. To whom the God: Choose, and thy choyce possesse; Yet, that thy diffidencie may be leffe, Witnesse that Powre, who through obscure aboads Spreads his dull streams: the feare, and God of Gods. Pleas'd with her harm, of too much powre to moue! To perish by the kindnesse of her Loue: Such be to me, she said, as when the Invites Of I uno fummon you to Venus Rites. Her mouth he fought to stop: but, now that breath Was mixt with ayre which sentenced her death. Then, fetch't a figh, as if his brest would teare For, thee might not vnwish, nor he vnsweare) And fadly mounts the skie; who with him tooke The Clouds, that imitate his mournefull looke; Thick showrs and tempests adding to the same, With thunder and incuitable flame. Whose rigor yet he striueth to subdew: Not armed with that fire which ouerthrew he hundred-handed Giant; 't was too wilde There is another lightning, far more milde,

By cyclops forged with leffe flame and ire: Which, deathleffe Gods doe call the Second fire. This, to her Father's house, he with him tooke: But (ah!) a mortall body could not brooke Æthercall tumults. Her successe she mournes; And in those so defir'd imbracements burnes.

Th' vnperfect Babe, which in her wombe did lie, 'Was ta'ne by love, and few'd into his thigh, His Mother's time accomplishing: Whom first, By stealth, his carefull Aunt, kinde Ino, nurst: Then, given to the Ny/eîdes, and bred In secret Caues, with milke and honey fed.

While this on earth befell by Fates decree (The twice-born Bacchus now from danger free) lowe, waightie cares expelling from his breft With flowing Nectar, and dispos'd to iest With well-pleas'd Iuno, said: In Venus deeds, The Femal's pleasure farre the Male's exceeds. This shee denyes; Tiresias must decide The difference, who both delights had try'd. For, two ingendring Serpents once he found, And with a stroke their slimy twists vnbound; Who straight a Woman of a man became: Seuen Autums past, he in the eighth the same Refinding, faid: If fuch your powre, fo ftrange, That they who strike you must their nature change; Once more l'Ietrie. Then, struck, away they ran: And of a Woman he became a Man. He, chosen Vmpire of this sportfull strife, Iouc's words confirm'd. This vext his froward wife More than the matter crau'd. To wreak her spite, His eyes shee muffled in eternall night.

Th'omni

Th'omnipotent (fince no God may vndoe In others deed) with Fates which should infew nform'd his Intellect; and did supply lis body's eye-fight, with his mindes cleere eye.

He giving fure replyes to fuch as came, Through all th' Aonian City's stretcht his fame.

irst, blew Liriope sad triall made low that was but too true which he had faid: Vhom in times past cephisus flood imbrac't Vithin his winding streams, and forc't the chaste. he louely Nymph (who not vnfruitfull prou'd) rought fortha Boy, euen then to be belou'd, arciffus nam'd. Enquiring if old age hould crowne his Youth; He, in obscure prelage, 1ade this reply: Except himselfe he know. ong, they no credit on his words bestow: et did the euent the prophecie approue, his strange ruine, and new kind of louc. low, he to twentie added had a yeare: low in his looks both Boy and Man appeare.

lany a loue-fick Youth did him defire; nd many a Maid his beautic set on fire: et, in his tender age his pride was such, hat neither Youth nor Mayden might him touch The vocall Nymph, this louely Boy did fpy hee could not proffer speech, nor not reply) then busie in pursuite of saluage spoyles, e draue the Decre into his corded toyles.

che was then a Body, not a Voyce: t then, as now, of words shee wanted choyce; it onely could reiterate the close feuery speech. This June did impose.

For, often when the might have taken love,
Compressing there the Nymphs, who weakly strove;
Her long discourses made the Goddesse stay,
Vntill the Nymphs had time to run-away.
Which when perceiv'd; the said, For this abuse
Thy tongue henceforth shall bee of little vse.
Those threats are deeds: Shee yet ingeminates
The last of sounds, and what shee heares relates.

Narcissus seene, intending thus the chase; Shee forth-with glowes, and with a noyselesse pase His steps pursues; the more she did pursew, More hor (as neerer to her fire) shee grew: And might be likened to a fulph'rous match; Which instantly th'approched flame doth catch. How oft would thee have woo'd him with fweet words! But, Nature no such libertie affords: Begin she could not, yet full readily To his expected speech shee would reply. The Boy, from his Companions parted, faid; Is any nigh? I, Eccho answer made. He, round about him gazed (much appall'd) And cry'd out, Come. Shee him, who called, call'd. Then looking back; and feeing none appear'd, Why shunst thou mee? The selfe-same voyce he heard, Deceived by the Image of his words; Then let vs joyne, saidhe: no sound accords More to her wish: her faculties combine In deare consent, who answer'd, Let us ioyne! Flattering her selfe, out of the Woods she sprung; And would about his struggling neck have hung. Thrust backe; he said, Life shall this brest forsake, Erethou, light Nymph, on me thy pleasure take.

On me thy pleasure take, the Nymph replyes To that disdainfull Boy, who from her flyes. Despiz'd; the Wood her sad retreat receaues: Who couers her ashamed face with leaves; And sculks in desert Caues. Loue still possess Her soule; through griefe ofher repulse, increast. Her wretched body pines with sleeplesse care: Her skin contracts: her bloud converts to ayre. Nothing was left her now but voyce and bones: Fhe voyce remaynes; the other turne to stones. Conceal'd in Woods, in Mountaynes neuer found, ihee's heard of all; and all is but a Sound. Thus her, thus other Nymphs, in mountaines born, Ind fedgy brooks, the Boy had kild with fcorn. hus many a Youth he had afore deceiu'd: Vhen one thus prai'd: with hands to heau'n ypheau'd; o may he loue himselfe, and so despaire! bamnusia condescends to his just pray'r. A Spring there was, whose filuer Waters were, is smooth as any mirror, nor lesse cleare: Which neither Herds-men, tame, nor saluage Beast, lor wandring Fowle, nor scattered leaves molest; irt round with graffe, by neighboring moysture fed, nd Woods, against the Sunnes inuation spred. e, tyr'd with heat and hunting, with the Place nd Spring delighted, lyes vpon his face. uenching his thirst, another thirst doth rise; ays'd by the forme which in that glasse he spyes. he hope of nothing doth his powres inuade: nd for a body he mistakes a shade. imselfe, himselfe distracts; who pores thereon fixedly, as if of Parian stone.

Beholds his eyes, two starres! his dangling haire Which with vnshorn Apol's might compare! His fingers worthy Bacchus! his finooth chin! His Iuory neck! his heavenly face! where-in The linked Deiries their Graces fix! Where Rofes with ynfullied Lillyes mix! Admirethall; for which, to be admir'd: And vnconfiderately himselfe desir'd. The prayles, which he gives, his beautie claym'd. Who feeks, is fought: th' Inflamer is inflam'd. How often would he kille the flattering spring! How oft with downe-thrust arms sought he to cling About that loued necke! Those cous'ning lips Delude his hopes; and from himselfe he slips. Not knowing what, with what he sees he fryes: And th' error that deceives, incites his eyes. O Foole! that striu'st to catch a flying shade! Thou seek'st what's no-where: Turn aside, 'twill vade. Thy formes reflection doth thy fight delude: Which is with nothing of its owne indu'd. With thee it comes; with thee it flayes; and so *Twould goe away, hadft thou the power to go. Nor fleep, nor hunger could the Louer rayle: Who, lay'd along, on that falle forme doth gaze With looks, which looking neuer could suffice; And ruinates himselfe with his owne eyes. At length, a little lifting up his head;

You Woods, that round about your branches spred,
Was euer so vnfortunate a Louer!
You know, to many you have beene a cover;
From your first growth to this long distant day
Have you knowne any, thus to pine away!

I like, and see, but yet I cannot find The lik't, and seene. O Loue, with error blind! What grieues me more: no Sea, no Mountayn freep No wayes, no walls, our ioyes a-funder keep: Whom but a little water doth duride. And he himselfe desires to be injoy'd. As oft as I to kiffe the floud decline. So oft his lips ascend, to close with mine. You'ld thinke we toucht: fo small a thing doth part Our equall loues! Come forth, what ere thou art. Sweet Boy, a simple Boy beguile not so: From him that feeks thee, whither would'it thou go ? My age nor beautie merit thy disdaine: And me the Nymphs have often lou'd in vaine. Yet in thy friendly shewes my poore hopes live; Still striuing to receive the hand I give: Thou smil'st my smiles: when I a teare let fall, Thou shedd'st an other; and consent'st in all .. And, lo, thy sweetly-mouing lips appeare To veter words, that come not to our care. Ah, He is I! now, now I plainly fee: Nor is't my shadow that bewitcheth me. With loue of me I burne; (O too too fure!) And fuffer in those flames which I procure. Shall I be woo'd, or wooe? What shall I craue? ince what I couet, I already haue. Too much hath made me poore! O, you divine Ind fauoring Powres, me from my felfe dif-ioyne! Df what I loue, I would be dispossest: This, in a Louer, is a strange request! Now, strength through gricfe decayes: short is the time haue to liue; extinguisht in my Prime.

E3.

Nor grieues it me to part with well-mist breath; For griese will find a perfect cure in death: Would he I loue might longer lise inioy! Now, two ill-sated Louers, in one, die.

This said; againe vpon his Image gaz'd; Teares on the troubled water circles rais'd: The motion much obscur'd the fleeting shade. With that, he cry'd (perceiuing it to vade) O, whither wilt thou! stay: nor cruell proue, In leaving me, who infinitely loue. Yet let me see, what cannot be possess; And, with that emptie food, my fury feast. Complaining thus, himselfe he disarrayes; And to remorfelesse hands his brest displayes: The blowes that folid frow with crimfon stripe; Like Apples party-red, or Grapes scarce ripe. But, in the water when the same appearc, He could no longer fuch a forrow beare. As Virgin wax distolues with feruent heat; Or morning frost, whereon the Sun-beams beat: So thawes he with the ardor of defire; And, by degrees, confumes in unfcene fire. His meger cheeks now loft their red and white; That life, that fauour loft, which did delight. Nor those divine proportions now remaine, So much by Eccho lately lou'd in vaine. Which when shee saw; although she angry were, And still in minde her late repulse did beare; As often as the miserable cry'd, Alas! Alas, the wofull Nymph reply'd. And ever when he struck his founding brest, Like founds of mutuall sufferance exprest.

His last words were, still hanging o're his shade;
Ah, Boy, belou'd in vaine! so Eccho said.
Farewell. Farewell, sigh't she. Then downe he lyese Deaths cold hand shuts his selfe-admiring eyes:
Which now eternally their gazes six
Vpon the Waters of infernall Styx.
The wosfull Najades lament the dead;
And their clipt haire vpon their brother spred.
The wosfull Dryades partake their woes:
With both, sad Eccho soynes at euery close.
The funerall Pyle prepar'd, a Herse they brought
To fetch his body, which they vainely sought.
In stead whereof a yellow flowre was found,
With tusts of white about the button crown'd.

This, through Achaia spred the Prophets same; Who worthily had purchas't a great name. But, proud Echion's sonne, who did despise. The rightcous Gods, derides his prophecies; And twits Tiresias with his rauisth sight. He shook his head, which age had cloth'd in white; And said, 'T were well for thee, hadst thou no eyes To see the Bacchanal solemnities.

The time shall come (which I presage is neere)

The time shall come (which I presage is neere When Semeleian Liber will be here:

Whom if thou honour not with Temples due; Thy Mother, and her fifters shall imbrue Their furious hands in thy effused blood;

And throw thy feuered lims about the Wood.
'Twill be; thy malice cannot but rebell:
And then thou!'t fay; The blinde did fee too well.

His mouth proud Pentheus stops. Beliefe succeeds Fore-running threats: and words are seal'd by deeds.

E 4

Liber

They in his Orgies tread a frantick Round. Women with Men, the base, and nobler fort, Together to those whomen Rites resort.

You sonnes of Mars, you of the Dragons race (Said he) what furie doth your minds imbale? Is Brasse of such a powre, which drunkards bear, Or found of Hornes, or Magicall deceit; That you, whom Trumpets clangor, horrid fight, Nor death, with all his terrors, could affright; Lowd Women, wine-bred rage, a Juffull crew Of Beafts, and Kettle-drums, should thus subdew? At you, graue Fathers, can I but admire! Who brought with you your flying Gods from Tyre, And fixt them here: now from that care so farre Estranged, as to lose them without warre! Or you, who of my able age appeare; Whose heads should helmets, and not garlands, weare? Not leavy Iauelins, but good Swords adorne The hands of Youth. O you, so nobly borne; That Dragon's fiery fortitude indue, Whose fingle valour such a number slue. He, in defending of his Fountayne, fell: Doe you th' Inuaders of your fame repell. Heslue the strong: doe you the weake destroy ; And free your Country from foule imfamy. If Destinies decree that Thebes must fall; May men, may warlike engines raze her wall: Let sword and fire our familht lives affault: Then should we not be wretched through our fault. Nor striue to hide our guilt; but, Fortune blame; And yent our pittyed forrowes without shame.

Now.

The Third Booke.

Now, by a naked Boy we are put to flight: Whom bounding Steeds, nor glorious Arms delight But haire perfum'd with Myrrhe, soft Anadems, And purple Robes inchac't with gold and gems: Who shall confesse (if you your aid denie) His forged Father, and false Deitie. What? had Acrifius vertue to withstand Th' Impostor, chaced from the Argine strand? And shall this vagabond, this forainer, Me Pentheus, and the Theban State deterre? Goe (faid he to his servants) goe your way, And drag him hither bound : prevent delay. Him Cadmus, Athamas, and all diffwade; By opposition, more intemperate made. Furie increaseth, when it is with-stood :; And then good counsell doth more harme than good. So haue I seen an vnstopt torrent glide With quiet waters, scarcely heard to chide: But, when faln Trees, or Rocks, impeacht his course; To fome, and roare with yncontrolled force. All bloudy they returne. Where is, said hee, This Bacchus? Bacchus none of vs did fee Reply'd they; This his minister we found (Presenting one with hands behinde him bound) A Lydian, zealous in those mysteries. On whom fierce Pentheus looks, with wrathfull eyes: Who hardly could his punishment deferre.

Then, thus: Thou wretch; that others shalt deterre, Declare thy Name, thy Nation, Parentage: And why thou followest this new-fangled Rage

. He in whom innocency feare o're-came;

Made this reply: Acetes is my name: .

My life I owe to the Meonian earth; To none, my fortunes; borne of humble birth. No land my Father left me to manure, Nor Herds, nor bleating Flocks: himselfe was poore. The tempted Fish, with hook and line he caught: His skill was all his wealth: His skill he taught; And faid, My heire, fuccessor to my Art, Receive the riches which I can impart. He, dying, left me nothing; and yet all: The Sea may I my patrimony call. Yet, left I still should on those Rocks abide, To nauigation I my time apply'd; Obseru'd th' Glenian Kids, that raine portend; The Hyades, who weepe when they descend; Taygeta, and Areturus; the reforts Offeuerall windes; and harbour-giuing Ports. For Delos bound, we made the Chian shores: And, there arrived, with industrions Oares. Leaping a-shore, I made the beach my bed. When aged Night Aurora's blushes fled, I rose; and bade my men fresh water bring: Shewing the way that guided to the Spring. Then, from a Hill obseru'd the windes accord My Mares I cald, and forth-with went abord. All here, the Master's Mate Opheltes cryes; And thinking he had light vpon a prize, Along the shore a louely Boy conuay'd, Adorned with the beautie of a Maid. Heavy with wine and sleepe, he reeled so, That, though supported, he could hardly goes. When I beheld his habit, gair and feature, I could not thinke it was a humane Creature.

The Third Booke.

Fellowes, I doubt (nay, without doubt) faid I, This excellence includes a Deitic-O, be propitious, who-fo-'ere thou art: And to our industrie successe impart: And pardon these who have offended thus Then, Dietys faid: Forbeare to pray for vs: (Than he, none could the top faile-yard bestride With lighter speed; nor thence more nimbly slide) This, Libys, swart Melanthus (who the Prow Commanded) and Alcimedon allow; Epopeus the Boats-man, so all say; Bewitched with the blind defire of preva This ship, sard I, you shall not violate With facriledge of so divine a weight: Wherein I have most int'rest, and commande And on the hatches their ascent with-stand. Whereat, the desperate Lycabas grew wild: Who for a bloudy murder was exil'd From Tulcany. Whil'st I alone resist. He tooke me such a buffer with his fift. That downe I fell; and had falne ouer-board. If I (though senselesse) had not caught a cord. The wicked Company the fact approue.

The wicked Company the fact approue.

Then, Bacebus (for, 'twas he) began to moue, As if awaked with the noyse they made (His wind-bound senses now discharg'd) and said: What clamor's this? What doe you? Sailers, whither Meane you to beare me? Ah, how came I hither! Feare not, said Proreus: name where thou would'st be; And to that Harbor we will carry thee.

Then, Friends, Lyzus said, for Naxos stand:

Naxos my home; an hospitable Land.

Metamorphosis.

34

By Seas, by all the Gods, by what anayles, They sweare they will, and bade me hoyse-vp sayles. Which trim'd for Naxos on the Star-board fide; What do'ft thou mad-man, foole? Opheltes cry'd. Each feares his Josse. Some whilper in mine eare :: Most say by fignes, Vnto the Lar-board steere. Amaz'd: Some other hold the Helme, faid I; I'le not be tainted with your periurie. All chafe and storme. What? said Ethalion, Is all our safetie placet in thee alone? With that, my office he vpon him tooke; And Naxos (altering her course) for sooke. The God (as if their fraud but now out-found) From the vpper deck the Sea furuayed round; Then, feem'd to crie. Sirs, this is not, said he, That promis't shore, the Landso wisht by me-What is my fault? what glory in my spoyle, If men a Boy, if many one beguile? I wept afore: but, they my teares deride; And with laborious Oares the waves divide. By him I sweare (than whom none more in view) That what I now shall veter, is as true, As past beliefe. The ship in those profound And spacefull Seas, so stuck as on drie ground. They, wondring, ply'd their Oares; the sayles display'd And striue to run her with that added aide. When Luy gaue their Oares a forc't restraint; Whose creeping bands the sayles with Berryes paint.

He, head-bound with a wreath of clustred Vines, A lauelin shook, claspt with their leavy twines, Stern Tygers, Lynxes (such vnto the eye) And spotted Panthers, round about him lye.

The Third Booke.

All, ouer-boord now tumble; whether 'twere Out of infused madnesse, or for feare. Then, Medon first with Spiny fins grew blacke; His forme depressed, with a compast back. To whom faid Lycabas; ô more than strange! Into what vncouth Monster wilt thou change ! As thus he spake, his mouth became more wide; His nose more hookt: scales arme his hardned hide. While Libys tugg'd an Oare that fixed stands, His hands shrunke vp; now finns, no longer hands. An-other by a cable thought to hold; But, mist his armes. He fell: the Seas infold. His maymed body: which a tayle eft-soone Receives, reverfed like the horned Moone. They leap a loft, and sprinkle-vp the Flood; Now chace aboue; now vnder water scud: Who like lasciuious Dancers friske about; And gulped Seas, from their wide nothrils spour. Of twenty Saylers, onely I remayn'd: So many men our Complement contayn'd. The God my minde could hardly animate; Trembling with horror of fo dire a Fate. Suppresse, said he, these tumults of thy feare; And now thy course for sacred Dia beare. Arrived there, with his implor'd confent, LOrders tooke; and thus his Feasts frequent. Our eares are tyr'd with thy long ambages : Which wrath, faid he, would by delay, appeale. Gae, seruants, take him hence: let his forc't breath.

Expire in grones and torture him to death.
In folid prison pent; while they provide

Whips, Racks, and Fire, the doores flie open wide.

And

And of themselues, as if dissolu'd by charmes, The fetters fall from his ynpinion'd armes.

But now, not bidding others, Pentheus flings
To high Cytheron's facred top, which rings
With frantick songs, and shrill-voic't Bacchanale,

In Liber's celebrated Festivals.

And as the warlike Courfer neighs and bounds, Inflam'd with furie, when the Trumpet founds a: Euen so their far-heard clamours set on fire Sterne Pentheus, and exasperate his ire. In midst of all the spacious Mountayne stood.

A perspicable Champain, fring'd with wood-Here, first of all, his Mother him espyes, Viewing thoseholy Rites with prophaneeyes.

Viewing thoseholy Rites with prophaneeyes. Shee, first, vpon him frantickly did runne:

And first her eger Iauelin peare't her sonne.

Come, fifters, cry'd shee, this is that huge Bore
Which roots our fields; whom we with wounds must gore.

With that, in-rush the sense-distracted Crew:

And altogether the amaz'd pursew.

Now trembled he; now, late-breath'd threats supprest:

Himselfe he blames, and his offence confest. Who cry'd, Helpe Aunt Autonoë; 1 bleed:

O let Attaon's ghost soft pitty breed!

Not knowing who Atlaen was, thee lops His right hand off: the other Ino crops.

The wretch now to his Mother would have throwne. His suppliant hands; but, now his hands were gone.

Yet lifting vp their bloody stumps, he said,

Ah, Mother, see! Agaue, well appay'd,

Shouts at the fight, casts up her neck, and shakes Her staring haire. In cruell hands shee takes. His head, yet gasping: 16 sing, said shee, 16 my Mates! this spoyle belongs to mee.
Not leaves, now wither'd, nipt by Autumn's frost,
So soone are rauisht from high Trees, and tost
By Scattering windes, as they in peeces teare
His minced lims. Th'I menians, struck with seare,
His Orgies celebrate; his prayses sing;
And incense to his holy Altars bring.

OVID'S

OVIDS

METAMORPHOSIS.

The fourth Booke.

THE ARGVMENT.

DErceta, a Fish. Semiramis a Doue. Transforming Nais equal Fate doth prous. White berries Louers blood with black defiles. Apollo, like Eurynome, beguiles Leucothoe, buried quick for that offence: Who, Nectar-fprinkled, sprouts to Frankincenfe. Grieu'd Clitie, turn'd t'a Flowr, turns with the Sun. Daphnis, to ftone. Sex changeth Scytheon. Celmus, a Load-stone. Curets got by showers. Crocus and Smilax turn'd to little flowers. In one Hermaphrodite, swo bodies ioyne. Mineides, Bats. Sad Ino made divine, With Melicert. Who luno's fast upbray'd; Or Statues, or Cadmean Fowles are made. Hermione and Cadmus, worne with woe, Proue hurtleffe Dragons. Drops to Serpents growe-Atlas, a Mountaine. Gorgon-toucht Sea-weeds To Corall change. From Gorgon's blood, proceeds Swift Pegalus : Crylaor also takes From thence his birth. Fair haires convert to Snakes.

Pytyet, Alcithon Mineides
The honour'd Orgics of the God displease.
Her fisters share in that impietie;
Who Bacchus for the sonne of 1040 denie.

Metamorphosis.

90

And now his Priest proclaimes a solemne Feast; That Dames and Maids from viuall labour rest; That wrapt in skins, their haire-laces vnbound, And dangling Treffes with wilde Iuy crown'd, They leavy Speares assume. Who prophesies Sad haps to such as his command despile. The Matrons and new-marryed Wives obay: Their Webs, their vn-spun Wooll, aside they lay 5 Sweet odours burne; and fing : Lyaus, Bacchus, Nyseus, Bromius, Euan, great lacchus: Fire-got, Sonne of two Mothers, The twice-borne, Father Eleleus, Thyon neuer shorne, Leneus, planter of life cheering Vines; Nyctileus: with all names that Greece affignes. To thee. ô Liber! Still dost thou injoy. Vnwasted Youth; eternally a Boy ! Thou'rt seen in heauen; whom all perfections grace; And, when vnhorn'd, thou haft a Virgins face. Thy conquests through the Orient are renown'd, Where tawny India is by Ganges bound. Proud Pentheus, and Lycurgus, like prophane, By thee (ô greatly to be fear'd!) were flaine: The Thuscans drencht in Seas. Thou hold'it in awe The spotted Lynxes, which thy Chariot draw. Light Bacchanals, and skipping Satyrs follow, Whil'ft old Sylenus, reeling ftill, doth hallon; Who weakly hangs, vpon his tardie Asic. What place so-e're thou entrest, sounding brasse, Lowd Sack-buts, Tymbrels, the confused cryes Of Youths and Women, pierce the marble skyes. Thy presence, we, 1/menides, implore: Come, ô come pleas'd! Thus they his Rites restore.

Yet,

Yet, the Menêides at home remaine: And with their plyed task's his Feast prophane: Who either weave, or at their distasts spin; And vrge their Maids to exercise their sin. One said, as shee the twisted thread out-drew; While others foort, and forged Gods pursew, Let vs, whom better Pallas doth inuite, Our vsefull labour season with delight, And stories tell by turnes; that, what long yearcs d Denie our eyes, may enter at our cares. They all agree; and bade the eldeft tell Her storie first. Shee paus'd, not knowing well Of many which to choose: T'insift vpon The Sad Dercetis, of fam'd Babylon (Who, as the Palestines believe, did take A scaly forme, inhabiting a Lake) Or of her daughter speake, with wing'd ascent High-pearcht on towres: who there her old age spent: Or of that Nais; who with charmes most strange, And weeds too pow'rfull, humane shapes did change, Into mute Fishes, till a Fish shee grew: Or of the Tree whose berries chang'd their hew; The white to black, by bloods aspersion, growne: This pleaseth best; as being most vnknowne. - Who thus began; and draws the following woll. Young Pyramus (no Youth so beautifull Through all the East ) and Thisbe (who for faire Might with th'immortall Goddeffes compare) loyn'd houses, where Semiramis inclos'd Her stately towne, with walls of brick compos'd. This neighbourhood their first acquaintance bred: That, grew to loue; Loue fought a nupriall bed:

But Parents, who could not with-stand, with-stood Their joyna defires, and like incenfed blood. Signes onely ytter their vnwitnest loues: But hidden fire the violenter proues. A cranny in the parting wall was left; By shrinking of the new-layd morter, cleft: This, for so many Ages vndescry'd (What cannot Loue finde out!) the Louers spy'd. By which, their whilpering voyces foftly trade, And Passion's amorous embassie conuay'd. On this fide, and on that, like Snailes they cleave And greedily each others breath receaue. O enuious walls (faid they ) who thus divide Whom Loue hath joyn'd! O, give vs way to flide Into each others armes! if fuch a bliffe Transcend our Fates, yet suffer vs to kisse! Nor are w'ingrate: much we confesse we owe To you, who this deare libertie bestowe. At Night they bid farewell. Their kisses greet The senselesse stones, with lips that could not meet: When from th'approching Morn the stars withdrew, And that the Sunne had drunke the scorched dew, They at the vsuall Station meet againe; And with foft murmurs mutually complaine. At last, resolue in silence of the Night To steale away, and free themselues by flight; And with their houses, to forsake the Towne.

Yet, lest they so might wander vp and downe; To meete at Ninus tombe they both agree, Vnder the shelter of a shady Tree. There, a high Mulberry, full of white fruit; Hard by a living Fountayne fixt his Root.

Th

The Sun, that feem'd too flow, his freeds bestowes In restfull Seas: from Seas, wisht Night arcse. Then Thisbe in the darke the doores vnbarr'd; And flipping forth, vnmissed by her guard, Comes maskt to Ninus tomb: there in the cold Sits underneath that Tree: Loue made her bold. When (lo!) a Lyonesse, smear'd with the blood Of late-flaine Beeues, approcht the neighbor flood, To quench her thirst. Far-off by Moon-light spy'd, Swift feare her flight into a Caue doth guide. Flying, her mantle from her shoulders fell: The fatall Lionesse, as from the Well Vp to the rocky Mountaine shee with-drawes. Found it, and tore it with her bloody iawes. When Pyramus, who came not forth fo foone. Perceived by the glimples of the Moone The footing of wilde Beafts: his looke grew pale. But, when he spy'd her torne and bloody vaile; One night ( faid he ) two louers shall destroy! Shee longer life deserued to inioy. The guilt is mine; 'twas I (poorefoule!) that flue thee Who to a place so full of danger drew thee, Nor came before. You Lyons, ô descend From your aboads! a wretch in peeces rend,

But Cowards wish to die. Her mantle hee
Carryes along vnto th'appointed Tree.
There having kist, and washt it with his eyes;
Take from our blood, said he, the double dyes.
With that, his body on his sword he threw:
Which, from the reaking wound, he dying drew.

Condemned by his felfe-pronounced doom:

And make your entrailes my opprobrious tomb!

Now, on his back, vp-fpun the blood in smoke; As when a Spring-conducting pipe is broke, The waters at a little breach break out, And hiffing, through the aëry Region spout. The Mulberries their former white forsake; And from his sprinkling blood their crimson take.

Now she, who could not yet her scare remoue, Returns, for searc to disappoint her Loue. Her eger spirit seeks him through her eyes; ongs to tell of her escap't surprise.

ace and figure of the Tree she knew;
ubts, the berries having chang'd their hew.
aine; she his panting lims descry'd, ruck the stayned earth; and starts aside.
s not paler than her changed looke;
e the lightly breath'd-on Sea she shooke.
en she knew'twas he (now disposses)

Other amaze) thee shreeks, beats her swoln brest, Puls off her haire; imbraces, softly reares His hanging head, and fils his wound with teares. Then, kissing his cold lips: Woe's me (she said) What cursed Fate hath this diuision made! Ofpeake, my Pyramus! ô looke on mee! Thy deare, thy desperate Thisbe calls to thee! At Thisbe's name he opens his dim eyes; And hauing seen her, shuts them vp, and dyes. But when his emptie scabbard shee had spy'd, And her known Robe; Vnhappy man! she cry'd, These wounds from loue, from thine own hand proceed! Nor is my hand too weake for such a deed: My loue as strong. This, this shall courage give To force that life which much disdains to live.

In death I'le follow thee! instyl'd by all, The wretched Cause, and partner of thy Fall. Whom Death (that had (alas!) alone the might To pull thee from me!) shall not dif-vnite. O you, our wretched Parents (thus seuere To your owne blood!) my last Petition heare: Whom constant loue, whom death hath ioyn'd, interre Together in one envi'd Sepulcher. And thou, ô Tree, whose branches shade the slaine; Of both our flaughters beare the lasting staine: In funerall habitseuer clothe your brood; A liuing monument of our mixt blood. This faid, his fword, yet reeking, shee reuers't, And with a mortall wound her bosom pearc't. The easie Gods vnto her wish accord: Their Parents also her desire afford: The late-white Mulberryes in black now mourne; And what the fire had left, lay in one vrne.

Here ended the. Some intermission made,

Leucothoë, her fisters filent, said:

This Sunne, who all directeth with his light, Weake Louc hath tam'd: his loues we now recite. It first discouer'd the adulterie

Of Mars and Venus (nothing scapes his eye)

And in dipleasure told to Inno's sonne
Their secret stealths, and where the deed was done.
His spirits saint: his hands could not sustaine
The worke in hand. Forthwith, he forg'd a chaine,
With nets of brasse, that might the eye deceaue, Lesse curious far the webs which Spiders weaue)
Made pliant to each touch, and apt to close:

This, he about the guiltie bed bestowes.

No sooner these Adulterers were met, Than caught in his fo strangely forged net; Who, strugling, in compeld imbracements lay. The luory doores then Vulcan doth desplay; And calls the Gods. They shamefully lay bound: Yet one, a wanton, witht to be so found. The heavenly dwellers laugh. This tale was told Through all the Round, and mirth did long vphold. Venus, incenst, on him who this disclos'd A memorable punishment impos'd. And he, of late so tyrannous to Loue, Loue's tyrannie in iust exchange doth proue. Hyperion's sonne, what boots thy pearcing sight! Thy feature, colour, or thy radiant light ! For thou, who earth inflamest with thy fires, Art now thy selfe inflam'd with new desires. Thy melting eyes alone Leucothoë view; And give to her, what to the V orld is dew. Now, in the East thou hastnest thy vp-rise: Now, flowly fett'st; even loth to leave the skyes. And, while that Obiect thus exacts thy stay, Thou addest houres vnto the Winters day. Oft, in thy face thy mindes disease appeares; Affrighting all the darkned World with feares. Not Cynthia's interposed Orbe doth moue These pale aspects; this colour springs from loue. Shee all thy thoughts ingrost: nor didst thou care For Clymene, for her who circes bare, For Rhodos, Clytic, who in loue abounds, Although despised, though tortur'd with two wounds. All, all were buried in Leucothee; Borne in sweet Saba, of Eurynome.

As shee in beautie farre surpast all other: So much the Daughter farre surpast the Mother. Great Orchamus was Father to the Maid: Who, seuenth from Belus Priscus, Persia sway'd in low Hisperian Vales those pastures are Where Phæbus horses on Ambresia fare. There, tyred with the trauels of the day, They renouate what labour doth decay. Now, while coelestiall food their hunger feeds, and Night in her alternate raigne succeeds; n figure of Eurynome, the God pproche the chamber, where his life aboad. le, spinning by a lamp, Leucathoe found, Vith twice fix hand-maids, who inclos'd her round hen kiffing her (her Mother now by Art) haue, faidihe, a fecret to impart: laids, presently with-draw. They all obay'd. c, after he had cleer'd the chamber, faid; he tardie Yeare I measure: I am he ho see all Obiects, and by whom all see; he World's cleere eye: by thy fair felfe, I sweare, oue thee aboue thought. Shee shooke for feare er spindle and her distasse from her fell: ad yet that feare became her wondrous well. nen, his owne forme and radiancy, he tooke: lough with that vnexpected presence strookes t, vanquisht by his beautie, her complaint ee laid-aside, and suffred his constraint. his Clytie vext ( his love observ'd no measure ) ho in the furie of her fell displeasure, vulg'd the quickly-spreading infamy : id to her father doth the fact descry.

Metamorphosis.

98

Who sterne and sauage, shuts vp all remorse, From her that fu'd, fubdew'd, fhe faid, by force; And Sol to witnesse calls. He his dishonour Interres aliue, and casts a Mount ypon her. Hyperion's sonne this batters with his rayes: And for her re-ascent a breach displayes. "Yet could not she advance her heavy head: But life, too hasty, from her body fled. Neuer did I bebus with fuch forrow mourne Since wretched : baëton the World did burne: "Yet striues he with his influence to beget In her cold lims a life-reuoking hear. But, fince the Fates fuch great attempts withstood; He steeps the place and body in a floud Of fragrant Nectar: much bewailes her end: And fighing, faid; Yet shalt thou heaven ascend. Forthwith, her body thawes into a deaw: Which, from the moultned earth, an odour threw. Then through the hill a shrub of Frankincense Thrust up his crowne, and tooke his root from thence Though loue might chries forrow have excus'd; Sorrow, her tongue; Daye's King her bed refus'd. She, with distracted passion, pines away, Deteleth company; all night, all day, Difrobed, with her ruffled haire vnbound, And wer with humour, fits vpon the ground: For muelong dayes all fustenance forbeares; Her hunger cloyd with deaw, her thirst with teares. Nor role but, rivers on the God her eyes; And ever turnes her face to him that flyes. At length, to earth her flapid body cleanes: Her wan complexion turns to bloodleffe-leaves.

Yet streak't with red: her perishe lims beget A flowre, resembling the pale Violet; Which, with the sun, though rooted fast, doth moue; And, being changed, changeth not her loue.

Thus the This wondrous flory caught their cares

To some the same impossible appeares;
Others, that all is possible, conclude,
To true-styl'd Gods: but, Bacchus they extrude.
All whist, Alcithoê, call'd-vpon, doth runder should the web; and thus begun.

Tomit the pattorall loues, to few vnknowne, Of young Idean Daphnis; turn'd to ftone By that wext Nymph; who could not elfe affwage der icalousie: such is a loner's rage! And Soython who his nature innouates, Now male, now semale, by alternate Fates; Nith Celmus turn'd into an Adamant, Who of his faith to little love might vant; The shorne Curetes, got by falling showres; crocos and Smilax, chang'd to pretty flowres, ouer-passe; and will your eares surprize

Vith fweet delight of viknowne nouelties.

Then, know, how Salmacis infamous grew;
Whose too strong waves all manly strength vindo,
And molliste, with their soule-softning touch:
The cause viknown; their nature knowne too much.
The strength of the surft, in secure delight,
The sonne of Hermes and faire Approxiste.
Its father and his mother in his looke
Ou might behold: from whom, his name he tooke.
When Summers sine he thrice had multiply'd;
cauing the fount-full Hills of soster 18th.

FZ

He wandred through strange Lands, pleas'd with the fight Of forren streames; toyle less'ning with delight. The Lycian Cities past, he treads the grounds Of wealthy Caria, which on Lycia bounds .: There lighted on a Poole, so passing cleer, That all the glittering bottom did appear; .Inuiron'd with no marish-louing Reeds, Nor piked Bull-rushes, nor barren weeds: But, living Turf vpon the border grew; Whose euer-Spring no blasting Winter knew. A Nymph this haunts, vnpractiz'd in the chace, To bend a Bow, or run a strife-full race. Of all the Water-Nimphs, this Nymph alone To nimble-footed Dian was vnknowne. Her fisters oft would say; Fie, Salmacis, Fie lazie fifter, what a floth is this! Vpon a Quiucr, or a lauelin seaze; And with laborious hunting mix thine eafe. On Quiuer, nor on lauelin, would the scaze; Nor with laborious hunting mix her ease. But now in her owne Fountayne bathes her faire And shapefull lims; now kembs her golden haire: Her selfe oft by that liquid mirror drest; There taking counsell what became her best: Her body in transparant Robes array'd, Now on loft leaves, or lofter moffe display'd: Oft gathers flowres; fo, when the faw the Boy: Whom seen, forthwith shee couets to inioy; And yet would not approch, though big with hafte, Till nearly trickt, till all in order plac't; Her loue-inweighling lookes fer to insnare; Who merited to be reputed fair e.

Sweet Boy, said she, well worthy the aboad Of bleft cœlestialls! if thou be a God. Then art thou Cupid! if of humane race, Happy the Parents, whom thy person grace! Thy fifter, if thou haft a fifter, bleft! Thy Nurse, much more, who fed thee with her breft! But (ô!) no lesse than deisi'd is shee Whom mariage shall incorporate to thee! If any fuch; let me this treasure steale: If not, be't I; and our dear Nuptials seale. This faid, the held her peace. He blusht for shame; Not knowing loue: whom shamefac'tnesse became. So Apples show vpon the sunny side : So luory, with rich Vermillion dy'd: So pure a red the filuer Moone doth fraine, When auxil'ary braffe resounds in vaine. Shee earnestly intreats a sisters kisse: And now, advancing to imbrace her bliffe, He, struggling, said; Lascinious Nymph, forbeare; Or I will quit the place, and leave you heare. Faire Stranger, timorous Salmacis reply'da Tis freely yours; and therewith stept aside: Yet, looking back, amongst the shrubby Trees She closely sculks, and crouches on her knees. The vacant Boy, now being left alone, Imagining he was obseru'd by none. Now here, now there, about the margent trips; And, in th'alluring waves his ankles dips. Caught with the Water's flattering temp'rature, He streight disrobes his body; ô, how pure! His naked beautie Salmacis amaz'd: Who with vnsatisfied longing gaz'd.

Her

Metamorphosis.

BO2 .

Her sparkling eyes shoot flames through this sweet error; Much like the Sunne reflected by a mirror. Now, she impatiently her hope delayes; Now, burns t'imbrace: now, halfe-madde, hardly stayes. He swiftly from the banke on which he stood, Clapping his body, leaps into the flood; And, with his rowing armes, supports his lims: Which, through the pure waves, glifter as he swims. Like Iuory statues, which the life surpasse: Or like a Lilly, in a crystall glasse. He's mine! the Nymph exclaim'd: who all vnstript; And, as the spake, into the water skipt: Hanging about the neck that did refift; And, with a mastring force, th'ynwilling kist : Now, puts her hand beneath his scornfull brest; Now every way invading the diffrest: And wraps-about the subject of her lust, Much like a Serpent by an Eagle truss't; Which to his head and feet, infettered, clings; And wreaths her tayle about his ftretcht-out wings. So clasping luy to the Oke doth grow; And so the Polypus detaines his foe-But Atlantiades, relentlesse coy, Still struggles, and refists her hop't-for joy. Inuested with her body: foole, said shee, Struggle thou may'ft; but never shalt be free. O you, who in immortall thrones reside, Grant that no day may euer vs divide! Her wishes had their Gods. Euen in that space Their cleauing bodies mix: both haue one face. As when wee two divided scions ioyne,

And see them grow together in one rine:

So they, by fuch a strict imbracement glew'd,
Are now but one, with double forme indew'd.
No longer he a boy, nor she a maid;
But neither, and yet either, might be said.
Hermaphreditus at himselse admires:
Who halse a semale from the spring retires,
His manly sims now softned; and thus prayes;
With such a voyce as neither sex betrayes:
Swift Hermes, Aphredise! him ô heare
Who was your sonne! who both your names doth beare!
May euery man, that in this water swims,
Returne halse-woman, with inseebled lims.

His gentle parents figne to his request;
And with ynknowne receits the pring infest.

Here, they conclude: yet give their hands no reft; But Bacchus flight, and still prophane his Feast. Then, fuddenly harsh instruments surprize Their charged eares, not extant to their eyes: Sweet Mytrhe and Saffron all the house perfume. Their webs (past credit!) flourish in the loome: The hanging wooll to green-leau'd Juy spreads; Part, into vines: the equal twifted threads To branches run: buds from the distaffe shoote; And with that purple paint their bluthing fruit. Now to the day succeeds that doubtfull light; Which neither can be called day, nor night. The building trembles: torches of fat Pines Appeare to burne; the roome with flathes thines: Fill'd with fantasticall resemblances Of howling beafts, whom blood and flaughter pleafe. The Sisters, to the smoaky roofe retire; And, there disperst, avoid both light and fire.

F 4

Thus,

Thus, while they corners seeke, thin films extend From lightned lims, with small beams inter-pend, But how their former shapes they did forgoe, Concealing darknesse would not let them know. Nor are these little Light-detesting things Born-vp with seathers, but transparant wings. Their voyce bests their bodies; small, and faint: Wherewith they harshly vtter their complaint. These houses haunt, in night conceale their shame; And of the loued Euening take their name.

All Thebes now feared Bacchus celebrates:
Whose wondrous powr his boasting Aunt relates.
She onely, of so many fisters, knew
No griefe as yet, but what from them she drew.
A happy Mother, Wife to Athamas,
Nurse to a God: these caus'd her to surpasse
The bounds of her felicities; and made

Vext Iuno storm; who to her selfe thus said;
What? could that Strumpets brat the form defeife.

What? could that Strumpets brat the form defeile.

Of poore Machien Saylers, drencht in Seas?

A Mother vige to murther her owne fon?

And wing the three Mineides that fpun?

Can I but yn-reuenged wrongs deplore?

Must that suffize? and is our powre no more?

He teacheth what to doe; learne of thy Foe:

What furic can, the wounds of Pentheus show

More than too-much. Why should not Ino tread.

The path which late her franticke sisters lead?

A steepe darke Caue, with deadly Ewe repleat,
Through silence leads to hell's infernall seat.
By this, dull Styx eiects a blasting sume:
Here ghosts descend, whose bodies earth inhume;

Amongst

Amongst those thorns, stiffe Cold, and Palenesse dwell. The new-come ghosts nor know the way to Hell; Nor where the roomy Stygian Citie stands; Or that dire Palace where black Dis commands. A thousand entries to this Citie guide: The gates still open stand, on every side. And as all Rivers run into the Deep: So all vnhoused Soules doe thither creep. Nor are they peftered for want of roome:. Nor can it be perceiu'd that any come. Here shadowes wander from their bodies pent: Some plead; and some the Tyrants Court frequent; Some in life-practiz'd Arts imploy their times: Others are tortur'd for their former Crimes. Saturnia stooping from her Throne of Ayre (Her hate immortall!) thither makes repayre. As soone as shee had entered the gate, The threshold trembl'd with her sacred waight. Still-waking Cerberus the Goddesse dreads, And barketh thrice at once, with his three heads. Shee calls the Furies, Daughters to old Night; Implacable, and hating all delight. Before the doors of Adamant they fit; And there with combs their fnaky curles vnknit. When they through gloomy darknesse did disclose That forme of Heauen, the Goddesses arose. The Dungeon of the Damned this is nam'd. Here Tityus, for attempted Rape defam'd, Had his vast body on nine Acres spread: And on his heart a greedy Vulture fed-From Tantaln', deceitfull water flips: And catchi-at fruit avoids his touched lips.

Thou ever scekest, or roul'st vp in vaine A stone, ô Sisyphus, to fall againe. Ixion, turn'd vpon a restlesse wheele, With giddy head pursews his slying heele. The Belides, whom Kinf-men's blood accuse, For ever draw the Water, which they loofe. On all, Saturnia frowns; but most of all At thee Ixion; then, a looke lets fall On Silyphus: And why (faid shee) remaines This brother onely in perpetuall paines; When haughtie Athamas, whose thoughts despise Both love and me, abides in constant ioyes? Then tells the cause of her approch, her hate, And what thee would: the fall of cadmus state; That Athamas the Furies would diftract, And vrge him to some execrable fact. Importunately shee foliciteth, Commands, intreats, and promist, with one breath. Incenst Tisiphone her Tresses shakes; And, toffing from her face the hiffing Snakes, Thus faid : You need not vie long ambages; Suppose all done already, that may please: Forfake this lothfome Kingdome, and repayre To th'vpper world's more comfortable ayre. Well-pleas'd Saturnia then to heaven with-drew: Whom heft Thaumantian Iris purg'd with deaw. Forthwith, Tifiphone her garment takes, Dropping with blood, and girt with knotted Snakes. About her head a bloody torch the shooke;

And swiftly those accurit aboads for sooke.

Still-fighing Sorrow, Horror, trembling Feare, and gastly Madnesse, ber associats were.

The entred Palace gron'd: pale poyson soyles The polisht doores: the frighted Sunne recoyles. Then Athamas and Ino, strucke with dread And monstrous apparitions, sought r'haue fled: But sterne Erinnys their escape withstands; And stretching-out her viper-grasping hands, Shook her dark brows. The troubled Serpents hift: Some, falling on her shoulders, there vntwist; Others, vpon her vgly brest descend, Spet poylon, and their forked tongues extend. Two Adders from her crawling haire shee drew; And those ar Athamas and Ine threw: These vp and down about their bosoms roule; And with infus'd infection fad the Soule. No wound ypon their bodies could be found: It was the mind that felt the desperate wound. She brought besides, from her abhorred home, The furfer of Echidna, with the fome Of hell-bred cerberus, still-wandring Error, Obliuion, Mischiefe, Teares, in fernall Terror, Distracted Fury, an Affection fixt On murder; altogether ground, and mixt With blood yet reeking; boyl'd in hollow braffe, And stird with Hemlocke. While sad Athamas And ino quake, the pours into their brefts The ragefull poylon; which their peace infests. Her flamy torch then whisking in a round (Whose circularie fire her conquest crown'd) To Pluto's emptie regiment the makes A swift descent; and there vngirts her Snakes. Forthwith, Æalides with poyson boyles. 16, my Mates, he cryes, here pitch your toyles;

Here, late a Lyonesse by me was seen With her two whelps. With that, pursues the Queca And from her breft clearchus fnatcht: The Child Stretcht forth his little arms, and on him smil'd: Whom like a fling about his head he swings; And cruelly against the pauement slings. The Mother, whether with her gricfe distraught, Or that the poyfon on her senses wrought, Runs howling with her haire about her eares; And in bare arms her Melicerta beares; Oryes Euche Bacchus! Iuno laught, and faid; Thus art thou by thy Foster-child repay'd. There is a Rock that ouer-looks the Mayne, Hollow'd by fretting Surges, sconst from rayne; Whole craggy brow to vafter Seas extends. This, In (fury adding strength ) ascends; Descending head-long, with the load she beares; And strikes the sparkling waves, that fall in teares. Then, Venus, grieuing at her Neece's Fate, Mer Vncle thus intreats: O thou, whose State As next to lone's; great Ruler of the Flood; My sute is bold; yet pitty thou my blood, Now toffed in the deepe 16 nian Seas: And joyne them to thy watrie Deities. Some fauour of the Sea I should obtaine, That am ingender'd of the fomy Maine: Of which, the acceptable name I bearc. Neptune affords a fauourable earo;

Neptune affords a fauourable earc;
Who what was moreall from their beings tooke;
Then gaue to either a Maiesticke looke;
In all their faculties divinely fram'd;
And her, figures bes; him, Palemon nam'd;

The

The Theban Ladics, who her steps pursew'd, Her last on the first Promontorie view'd. Then, held for dead; with haire, and garments rent; They beat their brests; and cadmus House lament. Of little Iustice, and much Crueltie, All, Inno tax. Indure (shee said) shall I Such blasphemies? I'le make you monuments Of my reuenge. Threats viher their euents. When one, of all the most affectionate, Cry'd, Omy Queene, I will partake thy Fate ! And thought to leape into the roring Flood; But could not moue : her feete fast fixed stood. Another, who her bosome meant to beat; Perceiu'd her stiff ned armes to lose their heat. By chance, her hand This stretcheth to the Maine, Nor could her hand, now stone, vnstretch againe. As She her violated Tresses tare, Her fingers forthwith hardned in her haire. Their Statues now those seuerall gestures beare Wherein they formerly surprised were. Some, Fowles became; now cald Cadmeides; Who with their light wings sweepe those gulphy Seas-Little knew cadmus, that his Children raign'd Little knew Cad nus, that his Children raign'd In facred Seas, and deathleffe States retayn'd. Subdew'd with woes, with tragicall euents, That had no end, and many dire oftents, He leaves his Citie; as not through his owne, But by the fortune of the place o're-throwne. And with his wife Hermione, long toft, At length arriveth at th' Illyrian Coaft. Now ipent with griefe and age, whil'st they relate Their former toyles, and Familie's first fare.

Metamorphosis.

TIO

And was that Serpent facred, which I flew (Said he) whose teeth into the Earth I threw (An vncouth feed) when I from Sidon came? If this, the vengefull Gods so much inflame, May I my belly Serpent-like extend! His belly lengthned, ere his wish could end. Tough scales upon his hardned out-fide grew; The black, diftinguished with drops of blew. Then, falling on his breaft, his thighs vnite; And in a spiny progresse stretch out-right. His armes (for, armes as yet they were.) he spreads: And teares on cheeks, that yet were humane, sheds. Come, O Sad Soule, faid he; thy husband touch; Whil'ft I am I, or part of me be fuch. Shake hands, while yet I have a hand to shake; Before I totally endue a Snake. His tongue was yet in motion; when it cleft. In two, forthwith of humane speech bereft. He hift, when he his forrowes fought to vent; The onely language now which Nature lent. His Wife her naked bosom beats, and cryes, Stay cadmus, and put off these prodigies. O strange! where are thy feet, hands, shoulders, breast, Thy colour, face, and (while I speake) the rest! You Gods, why also am not I a Snake? He lick't her willing lips euen as she spake; Into her well-knowne bosom glides; her waste, And yeelding neck, with louing twines imbrac't. Amazement all the standers-by possest;
While glittering combs their slippery heads inuest. Now are they two: who crept, together chayn'd, Till they the couert of the Wood attayn'd.

Theli

These gentle Dragons, knowing what they were, Do hurr to no man, nor mans presence feare. Yet were those forrowes by their daughters sonne Much comforted, who vanquisht India won: To whom th': Achaians Temples confecrate; Divinely magnifi'd through either State. Alone Acrisius Abantiades, Though of one Progenie, differts from thele: Who, from th' Argolian Citie, made him flie; And manag'd armes against a Deirie. Nor him, nor Perseus he for Ioue's doth hold; (Begot on Danae in a showre of gold) Yet straight repents (so preualent is truth) Both to have forc't the God, & doom'd the Youth. Now is the one inthroned in the skyes: The other through Ayr's emptie Region flyes And beares along the memorable spoyle Of that new Monster, conquer'd by his toyle. And as he o're the Lybian Deferts flew, The bloud, that drop't from Gorgon's head, ftreight green To various Serpents, quickned by the ground: With these, those much infested Climes abound. Hither and thither like a cloud of rayne Borne by croffe windes, he cuts the ayrie Mayne: Far-distant earth beholding from on high; And ouer all the ample World doth flie: Thrice faw Areturus, thrice to cancer prest; Oft hurried to the East, oft to the West. And now, not trusting to approched night, Vpon th' Hesperian Continent doth light: And craves some rest, till Lucifer displayes Aurora's blufh, and thee Apollo's rayes.

Huge-statur'd Atlas I apetoni des Here sway'd the vimost bounds of Earth and Seas; Where Titan's panting steeds his Chariot steepe, And bathe their fierie feet-locks in the Deepe. A thousand Heards, as many Flocks, he fed. In those large Pastures, where no neighbours tread. Here to their tree the shining branches sute; To them, their leaves; to those, the golden fruit. Great King, said Perfeus, if high birth may moue. Respect in thee, behold the sonne of love: If admiration, then my Acts admire; Who rest, and hospitable Rites desire; He, mindfull of this prophecie, of old By facred Themis of Parnassus told; In time thy golden fruit a prey shall proue, O laphets sonne, vnto the sonne of loue. This fearing, he his Orchard had inclos'd With solid Cliffs, that all accesse oppos'd: The Guard whereof a monstrous Dragon held ! And from his Land all Forrainers expeld. Be gone, said he, for feare thy glories prooue, But counterfeit; and thou no sonne to love; Then addes vnciuill violence to threats. With strength the other seconds his intreates: In strength inferiour; Who so strong as he? Since courtesie, nor any worth in me, Vext Perseus said, can purchase my regard; Yet from a guest receive thy due reward. With that, Medula's vgly head he drew, His owne reversed. Forthwith, Atlas grew Into a Mountayne equall to the man: His haire and beard to woods and bushes ran

His armes and shoulders into ridges spred; And what was his, is now the Mountaynes head: Bones turne to stones; and all his parts extrude Into a huge prodigious altitude. (Such was the pleasure of the euer-blest) Whereon the heavens, with all their tapers, reft. Hippotades in hollow rocks did close The strife-full Windes: Bright Lucifer arose And rous'd-vp Labour. Perfeus, having ty'd His wings t' his feet, his fauchion to his fide, Sprung into ayre : below, on either hand innumerable Nations left: the Land Of Æthiop, and the Cephen fields survay'd; There, where the innocently wretched maid Was for her mothers proud impietie, By vniust Ammon sentenced to die. Whom when the Heros faw to hard rocks chain'd; But that warm tears from charged eye-springs drain'd and light winds gently fann'd her fluent haire, de would have thought her marble: Ere aware le fire attracteth; and, aftonisht by der beautie, had almost forgot to fly. Who lighting said; O fairest of thy kinde More worthy of those bands which Louers bind, han these rude gyues) the Land by thee renownds. hy name, thy birth declare; and why thus bound. t first, the silent Virgin was affrayd o speake t'a man; and modestly had made visard of her hands; but, they were ty'd: and yet abortiue teares their fountaines hide. till vrg'd, left the thould wrong her innocence, sifasham'd to vtter her offence.

HerCountrie shee discouers; her owne name; Her beauteous Mothers confidence, and blame. All yet vntold, the Waues began to rore: Th' apparant Monster (hast'ning to the shore) Before his breft, the broad-spred Sea vp-beares. The Virgin shreeks. Her Parents see their feares. Both mourne; both wretched (but, shee justly so:) Who bring no aid, but extalies of woe, With teares that fute the time: Who take the leave They loathe to take; and to her body cleaue. You for your griefe may have, the stranger laid, A time too long: short is the houre of aid. If freed by me, love's fonne, in fruitfull gold. Begot on Danaë through a brazen Hold; Who conquer'd Gorgon with the snakie haire; And boldly glide through vn-inclosed aire: If for your fonne you then will me prefer; Adde to this worth, That in deliuering her I'le trie (so fauour me the Powres divine) That shee, sau'd by my valour, may be mine. They take a Law, intreat what he doth offer: And further, for a Dowre their Kingdome proffer. Lo! as a Gally with fore-fixed prove (Row'd by the sweat of slaues) the Sea doth plow: Eucn so the Monster furroweth with his breft, The forning floud; and to the neere Rocke prest: Not farther distant, than a man might fling A way-inforcing bullet from a fling. Forth-with, the youthfull issue of rich showrs, Earth pulhing from him, to the blew skye towrs. The furious Monster eagerly doth chace His shadow, gliding on the Seas smooth face.

And as love's bird, when shee from high survayes A Dragon basking in Apollo's rayes; Descends vnseene, and through his necks blew scales (To shun his deadly teeth) her talons naile's: So swiftly stoops high-pircht Inachides Through finging ayre: then on his backe doth feaze; And neere his right fin sheaths his crooked sword Vp to the hilts; who deeply wounded, roar'd: Now capers in the ayre, now dives below The troubled waves; now turn's vpon his foe: Much like a chafed Bore, whom eager hounds Haue at a Bay, and terrifie with founds. He, with swift wings, his greedy iawes auoids; Now, with his fauchion wounds his scaly fides; Now, his shell-rough-cast back; now, where the tails Ends in a Fish, or parts expos'd t'assaile. A Rreame mixt with his bloud the Monffer flings From his wide throat; which wets his heavy wings: Nor longer dares the wary Youth rely On their support. He sees a rock hard by. Whose top aboue the quiet waters stood; But vnderneath the winde-incensed flood. There lights; and, holding by the rocks extent. His oft-thrust sword into his bowels sent. The shore rings with th' applause that fills the skye-Then, cepbeus and Cassiope, with ioy, Salute him for their fon; whom now they call The Saujour of their House, and of them all: Vp came Andromeda, freed from her chaines The cause, and recompence of all his paines.

Meane-while, he washeth his victorious hands In cleansing waves. And lest the beachy Sands

Metamorphosis.

Should hurt the snaky head, the ground he strew With leaves and twigs that vnder water grew. Whereon, Medusa's vgly face he layes.

The greene, yet inicy, and attractive sprayes. From the toucht Monster stiffning hardnesse tooke; And their owne native pliancy for looke. The Sea-Nymphs this admired wonder trie. On other Sprigs, and in the issue ioy: Whosow againe their Seeds ypon the Deepes. The Corall now that propertie doth keepes. Receiving hardness from felt ayre alone: Beneath the Sea a twig, above a stone.

Forth-with, three Altars he of Turf erects, To Hermes, love, and Her who warre affects: Minerua's on the right; on the left hand Stood Mercurie's: loue's in the midft did ftand To Mercurie, a Calfe they facrifice; To lone, a Bull; a Cow, to Pallas dyes: Then takes Andromeda, the full reward. Of fo great worth; with Dow'r, of leffe regard. Now, Loue and Hymen vrge the Nuptiall Bed: The facred Fires with rich perfumes are fed; The house hung round with Garlands; every where Melodious Harps and Songs falure the eare; Of iocond mirth the free and happy fignes: With Dores display'd, the golden Palace shines. The Cephen Nobles, and each stranger Guest, Together enter to this sumptuous Feast. The Banquer done, with generous wines they cheare Their heightned spirits: ver/eus longs to heare Their fashions, manners, and originall; Who, by Lyncides is inform'd of all.

This told; he said: Now tell, O valiant Knight, By what felicitie of force or fleight, ou got this purchase of the snaky haires. hen Abantiades forthwith declares, low under frosty Atlas cliffy side here lay a Plaine, with Mountaines fortify'd: n whose accesse the Phoreides did lye; wo fifters; both of them had but one eye: low cunningly his hands thereon he lay'd, is they from one another it conuay'd. hen through blind wasts, and rocky forrests came o Gorgon's house: the way vnto the same, eset with formes of men and beasts, alone y lecing of Medufaturn'd to stone: Vhose horrid shape securely he did eye, a his bright target's cleere refulgency. and how her head he from her shoulders tooke, re heavy fleepe her fnakes and her forfooke. hen told of Pegafus, and of his brother, prung from the bloud of their new-flaughtred mother : dding the perils past in his long way; Vhat seas, what soyles, his eyes below suruay; nd to what starres his lofty pitch ascends: et long afore their expectation ends. Ine Lord among the rest would gladly know, Vhy Serpents onely on her head did grow. Stranger, said he, since this that you require eserues the knowledge, take what you desire: ler paffing beautie was the onely scope If mens affections, and their enuied hope: et was not any part of her more rare So say they who have seene her) than her haire.

Whom

Metamorphosis.

113

Whom Neptune in Minerua's Fane compress.

Ioue's daughter, with the Æzis on her brest,
Hid her chaste blushes: and due vengeance takes,
Instruming of the Gorgon's haire to Snakes.
Who now, to make her enemies affrayd,
Beares in her shield the Serpents which she made.

OFID

O VID'S

METAMORPHOSIS.

The fifth Booke.

THE ARGVMENT.

The Gargon scene, Cepheni Statues growe?

So Phine 18, Pratus, Polydech, the foe
To Perseus prayse. The sent ayne Hippocrene
By Hosse hoose raysed. The Muses into Nine Rape-stying Birds: Piericles, to Tyes.
The Gods, by Typhon chack, themselues disguise.
Sad Cyane into a Fourtayne stowes.
This ill-nuttuid Boy a spotted Stellion growes.
Loud Arethusa thawes into a spring.
Ascalaphus an Owle Leght seathers wing
The sweet-rough Syrens, who on Waters measure.
Stern Lyncus Ceres to a Lynx doth turne,

Hill the Danagan Heros this relates,
Amidft th' affembly of the Cephen States;
Exalted voyces through the Palace ring;
Yot like to theirs who at a marriage fing;
Sut fuch as menace warre. The nuptiall Feaft,
Thus turn'd to tumult, to the life exprest
I peacefull Sea whose brown of frown deformes, Streight ruffled into billowes by rude stormes.
Sirft: bins w, the rath Author of this warre,
Shaking a Lance, began the deadly iarre.

10, I the man, that will upon thy life
Leuenge, said he, the rapture of my wife.

Nor shall thy wings, nor love inforged gold, Worke thy escape. About to throw: O hold! Perplexed Cepheus cries: What wilt thou do? What furie, frantick brother, tempts thee to So foule a fact? Is this the recompence For fuch high merit? for her life's defence? Not Perfeus, but th' incens't Nereides, But horned Hammon, and the wrath of Seas (That Orke that fought my bowels to denoure) Haue matcht her from thee; rauisht in the houre Ofher exposure. But thy cruckie Perhaps was well content that the should die, Tocale thy losse with ours. May't not suffize, That shee was bound in chaynes before thine eyes; That thou, her Vncle, and her Husband, brought Her perill no preuention, nor none fought; But that anothers aid thou must enuy, And claime the Tropheys of his victory? Which, if of fuch esteeme, thou shouldst have strain'd T'haue forc't them from those Rocks, where lately chaind Let him, who did, enioy them: nor exact What is his dew by merit and compact. Nor thinke, we Perfeus before thee prefer; But him, before so abhorr'd a sepulcher. · He, without answer, rowling to and fro His eyes on either, doubts at which to throwe: And paufing, his ill-aymed lance at length At Perfeus hurles, with rage-redoubled strength, Fixt in the bed-stock; vp fierce Perfens starts. And his retorted Speare at Phineus darts: Who fuddenly behind an Altar stept; An Altar yengeance from the wicked kept:

Indyet in Khætus brow the weapon stuck. le fell: the steele out of his scull they pluck: Tho spurnes the earth, and staynes the board with blood, Vith that, the multitude, with fury wood, heir Lances fling, and some there be who cries hat Cepheus, and his sonne in law, should die. ur Cepheus wisely quits the clamorous Halls Tho Faith and Iustice doth to record call, lith all the hospitable Gods; that hee 'as from this execrable vp-rore free. he warlike Pallas, present, with her shield totects her Brother, and his courage steel'& oung Indian Atys by ill hap was there; hom Ganges-got Limniace did beare her cleare Waues: his beautie excellent, hick care and coftly ornaments augments ho scarce had fully fixteene Summers told lad in a Tyrian mantle, fring'd with gold. out his neck he wore a carquenet: s haire with Riband bound, and odors wee. though he cunningly a Dart could throwe: t with more cunning could he vie his Bowe. hich now a-drawing with a tardy hand; uick Perseus from the Altar snatcht a Brand id dasht it on his face: ont-start his eyes; d through his flesh the shiuered bones arise. hen Syrian Lycabas his Atys view'd, aking his formlesse looks, with bloud imbrew'd him in strictest bonds officendship ty'd, done who could not his affection hide: er he had his tragedie bewail'd; no through the bitter wound his soule exhal'ds

He took the Bowe, which erst the Youth did bend; And faid; With me, thou Murderer contend; Nor longer glory in a Boye's fad fate, Which staines thy actions with deserved hate. Yet speaking, from the string the arrow flew: Which tooke his plighted robe, as he with-drew. Acrisoniades upon him prest; And sheath'd his Harpy in his groning brest. Now dying, he for Atys looks, with eyes That swim in night; and on his boson elyes: Then chearfully expires his parting breath: Reioycing to be joyn'd to him in death. Phorbas the Syenit, Methion's fon With him the Libyan Amphimedon: Eager of combate, flipping in the blood That drencht the pauement, fell: his sword withstood Their re-ascent, which through the short-ribs smote Amphimed on, and cut the others throte. Yet Perseus would not venture to inuade The Halbertere Erithen, with his blade; But in both hands a Goblet high imbost And massie, tooke; which at his head he tost: Who vomits clotted bloud; and, tumbling downe, Knocks the hard paucment with his dying crowne. Then Polydamon (sprung from Goddesse-borne Semiramis) Phlegyas, the vnthorne Elyce, Clytus, Scythian Abaris, And braue Lycetus (old Sperchefius bliffe) Fell by his hand: whose feet in triumph tread Vpon the flaughtred bodies of the dead. But Phineus, fearing to confront his Foe In close assault, far-off a dart doth throw:

Whit

Which led by error, did on I da light; A Neuter, who in vaine forbare to fight.

ie, fler downing, thus to Phineus spake;

me an vnwilling partie make. me an vnwilling partie make, Receive the enemie whom you have made; That, by a wound, a wound may be repay'd. About to hurle the Dart, drawne from his side; With loffe of bloud he faints, and falling dy'd. Then, great Odytes fell by clymen's fword; Next to the King, the greatest Cepben Lord: typfaus flew Protenor; Lyncedes Typleus. Old Emathion fell with these; Vho fear'd the Gods, and fauoured the right. le, whom old age exempted from the fight, ights with his tongue, himselfe doth interpose, nd deeply execrates their wicked blowes. romis, as he imbrac't the Altar, lopt is shaking head; which on the Altar dropt: /hose halfe-dead tongue yet curses; & expires is righteous foule amidst the sacred Fires. hen Broteas and Ammon, Phineus flew; ho from one womb at once their being drew; uincible with hurle-bats, could they quell he dints of swords. Neere these Alphytus fell, he Priest of ceres, with a Miter crown'd; hich to his temples a white fillet bound. nd thou Lamperides, whose pleasant wit, testing discord, in soft peace more fit ing vnto thy tunefull Lire; now prest ith Songs to celebrate the nuptiall Feaft: hen Pettalus, at him who stood far off ith his defenseleffe Harp; strikes with this scoff; Goe fing the rest vnto the Ghosts below: And pearc't his Temples with a deadly blow. His dying fingers warble in his fall: And then, by chance, the Song was tragicall. This, vnreueng'd, Lycormas, could not brooke; But from the door's right fide a Leauer tooke, And him between the head and shoulders knocks: Downe falls he like a facrificed Ox. Ciniphean Palates then sought to seaze Vpon the left: when fierce Marmorides His hand nayl'd to the door-post with a Speare: Whole fide ftern Abas piere't as he stuck there. Nor could he fall ; but, giving vp the ghoft, Hung by the hand against the smeared post. Melaneus then, of Perfeus partie, fell; And Dorilas, whose riches did excell: In Nasamonia none than he more great For large Possessions, and huge hoards of Wheat. The steel stuck in his groine, which death pursew'd: Whom Halcyeneus of Bactria view'd (The Author of the wound) as he did roule His turn'd-up eyes, and fighed-out his foule: For all thy land, said he, by this divorce Receive thy length; and left his bloudlesse corse. The Speare, reuengefull Abanti'des drew From his warm wound; and at the Thrower threw: Which in the middle doth his nares divide; And, passing through, appear'd on either side. Whilst Fortune crown'd him, clytius he confounds And Danus, of one womb, with different wounds : Through Clytius thighs a ready Dart he cast; An other twixt the lawes of Danus past. Mindesia Mindefian Celadon and After flew, His Father doubtfull, gotten on a Iew: Echion, late well feene in things to come, Now ouer-taken by an vnknowne doome: Thoaster, Phineus Squire, his fauchion try'd: And fell Agyrtes, that fould parricide. Fet more remayn'd than were already spent: For, all of them, to murder one, consent. The bold Conspirators on all sides fight; impugning promise, merit, and his right. The vainely-pious Father sides with th'other; With him, the frighted Bride, and penfine Mother; Who fill the Court with out-cryes; by the found Of clashing Armes, and dying screeches drown'd. sellena the polluted floore imbrews With streams of bloud, and horrid warre renewes. Balle Phineus, with a thousand, in a ring Begirt the Heros: who their Lances fling Is thick as Winters haile; that blinde his fight, ing in his eares, and round about him light. lis guarded back he to a pillar fets; And with vindaunted force confronts their threats baonian Molpeus prest to his left side : The right, Nabathean Ethemon ply'd. As when a Tyger, pincht with famine, heares Two bellowing Herds within one Vale; forbeares, Vor knowes on which to rush, as being loth To leave the other, and would fall on both: io Perseus, which to strike, vncertayne proues; Who daunted Molpeus with a wound remoues; Contented with his flight, in that the rage Of fierce Ethemen did his force ingage:

Who

Metamorphosis.

7 2 da

What his neck vncircumspectly stroke, And his keene fword against the pillar broke. The blade from vnrelenting stone rebounds; And in his throte th' vnhappy owner wounds. Yet was not that enough to work his end; Who fearfully doth now his armes extend For pirty vote Perfeus, all in vaine: Who thrust him through with his tyllenian skeine. But, when he law his valour ouer-sway'd By multitude: I must, said he, seek ayd (Since you your selves compell me) from my foe; Friends turn your backs: then Gorgons head doth thow. Some others feek, faid The falus, to fright With this thy Monster; and with all his might A deadly dart indeuour'd to have throwne: But in that positure became a stone. Next, Amphix, full of spirit, forward prest; And thrust his sword at bold Lyncides brest: When, in the passe, his fingers stupid grow; Nor had the power of mouing to or fro. But Nileus (he who with a forged stile Vanted to be the sonne of seuen-fold Nile. And bare seuen filuer Rivers in his shield, Distinctly waving through a golden field) To Perfeus faid: Behold, from whence we sprung! To euer-filent shadowes beare a-long This comfort of thy death, that thou didst die By fuch a braue and high-borne enemie. His viterance faultred in the latter clause: The yet vnfinisht sound stuck in his lawes; Who gaping stood as he would something fay:

And to had done, if words had found a way.

These Eryx blames; 'Tis your faint soules that dead four powres, said he, and not the Gorgon's head. Rush on with me, and prostrate with deep wounds. This Youth, who thus with Magick Armes consounds. Then rushing on, the ground his soot-steps stay'd; Now mutely sixt: an armed Statue made.

These suffer'd worthily. One, who did fight For Perfeus, bold Aconteus, at the fight Of Gorgon's fnakes abortive marble grew. On whom Astrages in fury flew, As if aline, with his two-handed blade; Which (hrilly twang'd; but no incision made: Who, whil'if he wonders, the same nature tooke; And now his Statue hath a wondring looke. It were too tedious for me to report Their names, who perisht of the vulgar sort. Two hundred scap't the furie of the fight: Two hundred turne to stone at Gorgon's fight. Now Phineus his vniust commotion rewes: What should he doe? the senselesse shapes he views Of his knowne friends, which differing figures bore; And doth by name their seuerall ayd implore. And yet not trulling to his eyes alone, The next he toucht; and found it to be stone. Then turns aside: and now, a Penitent, With suppliant hands, and armes obliquely bent; O Perseus, thine said he, thine is the day! Remoue this Monster. Hence, O hence conuay Medusa's vgly looks, or what more ftrange, Which humane bodyes into marble change! Not hate, not thirst of rule begot this strife: I onely fought to re-obtaine my Wife.

Thine is the plea of Merit; mine, of Time: Yer, in contending I confesse my crime. For life (O chiefe of men!) I onely sew: Afford me that: the rest I yeeld to you. Thus he; nor daring to revert his eyes On him whom he intreats: who thus replyes

On him whom he intreats: who thus replyesFaint-heatted Phineus, what I can afford,
(A gift of worth to fuch a fearefull Lord)
Take courage, and perswade thy selfe I will:
No wounding sword thy bloud shall euer spill.
Moreouer, that I may thy wish preuent,
Here will I fix thy lasting monument:
That thou by her thou lou st maist still be seene;
And with her Spouse's image cheare our Queene.
Then, on that side Phorevas head doth place,
To which the Prince had turn'd his trembling face.
And as from thence his eyes he would have throwne,
His neck grew siffe: his teares congeale to stone.
With fearfull suppliant looks, submissing hands,
And guiltie countenance, the Statue stands.

Victorious Abantiades now hycs
'T' his natiue Citie, with the refcu'd prize:
'There, vengeance takes on Pratus, and reftor'd
His Grand-fathers, whose wrongs redresse implor'd.
For Pratus had by force of Armes expeld.
His brother; and vsurped Argos held.
But him, nor Arms, nor Bulwarks, could protect Against the snaky Monsters grim aspect.

Venezate are wrong to be Venus which same

Yet not the vertue of the Youth, which shone Through so great toyle, nor sorrowes vnder-gone; With thee, O Polyde Ges, King of small Sca-girt Seriphus, could prevaile at all. Endlesse thy wrath, thy hate inexorable:
Detracting; and condemning for a sable
Medusa's death. The moued Youth replyes:
The truth your selfe shall see; Friends, thut your eyes.
Then, represents Medusa to his view:
Who presently a bloudlesse Statue grew.

Thus long Tritonia to her brother cleaues:
Then in a hollow cloud Seriphus leaues
(Seyros and Gyaros on the right-hand fide)
And o're the toyling Seas her course apply d
To Thebes, and Virgin Helecon; there stay'd:
And thus ynto the learned Sisters said.

The fame of your new Fountaine, rays'd by force

Of that swift-winged Medusean horse,

Me hither drew, to see the wondrous Flood: ... Who saw him issue from his Mothers blood...

Goddeffe, Vrania answered, what cause So-cuer you to this our Mansion drawes, You are most wel-come. What you heard is true sand from that Pegalus this Fountaine grew.

Then Palls to the forced Spring compared.

Then Pallas to the facred Spring conuay'd, ',
Shee admires the waters by the horse-hoose made';
Suruay's their high-grown groues, coole caues, fresh bowrs;
And meadowes painted with all forts of flowers;

Then happy stiles shee the Ma onides,
Both for their Arts, and such aboads as these.

Of heauculy Virgin, one of them reply'd, of Most worthy our Societie to guide, of the worthy our societie to guide, of the your active vertue did not move.

To greater deeds: deserv'dly you approve Our studies, pleasant seat, and happie state,

Were we fecure from what we chiefly hate.

Metamorphosis.

130

But nothing is vnlawfull to the lewd: And Maids by nature are with feare indu'd. The dire Pyreneus still inuades my fight: Nor have I yet recover'd that affright. He, Daulis with all Phocis, had obtain'd By Thracian Armes; and there vniustly raign'd: Bound for Parnassus Temple, vs he spies; And with false zeale adores our Deities. Maenides, saidhe, (he knew vs well) While fad stars governe, and showrs fall (then fell By chance a mightie shower) vouchsafe I pray Beneath the shelter of my roofe to stay: The Gods have entred humble Cottages. Vrg'd by the weather, and such words as these We to his importunitie assent; And yet no farther than the Lobby went. It now held vp: the vanquisht South-winds flie Before the North; which purge the duskie skie. Prest to depart; he shuts the doores; prepares. To offer force: with wings we scape his snares. He presently the highest tower ascends; And, as he would have flowne, his body bends :: The way you goe, faid he, will I purlew; And from the battlements himselfe he threw : Who falling, ftril the earth with dasht-out braines a Which with his wicked bloud, he dying, staines. The Mule yet spake: when, wings were heard to clatter; And from high trees faluting voyces chatter. Ioue's daughter we iders, and inquires from whence Those voyces cam , including humane sense. Not men, but nine all-imitating Pies; Bewayling their deserved destinies.

The Goddesse to th'admiring Goddesse said:
They, foyl'd by vs, by vs were thus repay'd.
Pierus, who rich Pella held by lot,
These on Pesnian Euippe got.
Nine times shee on Lucina call'd alowd:
The foolish fisters, of their number prowd,
Through all Emmia and Achaia came;
And thus vnciuilly their strife proclaime.

Thespiades, th' ynlearned multitude
No more with your vaine harmonic desude;
But cope with vs (if hope excite your will)
As many; yet vnmatcht, for voyce or skill.
Surrender you to vs, if we excell,
Hyantian Azanip, and Gorgon's Well:
Th' Emathian Woods to snowy Peone

Shall pay our losse. The Nymphs our judges be.

A shame it was to striue; more shame it were

A shame it was to striue; more shame it were
To yeeld. The Nymphs by their owneriuers sweare:
And sit on benches made of liuing stone.
Then, yn-elected, rudely stept forth one;
Who sung the Giants warre: their sayned acts
Shee magnisses; and from the Gods detracts.
How Typhon, from earths gloomy entrailes rais'd,
Struck all their powr's with seare: who sled amaz'd,
Till Azypts scorched soyle the weary hides;
And wealthy Nile, who in scuen chanels glides.
That thither Earth-born Typhon them pursu'd.
When as the Gods concealing shapes indu'd.
Jone turn'd himselfe, shee said, into a Bull:
Whence Libyan Hammon hath a horned scull.
Bacchus a Gote, Apollo was a Crowe,
Phabe a Cat, Jone's wife a Cow of snowe:

Venus a Fish, a Stork did Her mes hide: And still her voyce vnto her Harp apply'd. Then call they vs. But, ours perhaps to heare, Nor leisure serues you, nor is't worth your care. Doubt not, said Pallas, orderly repeat Your long d-for Verse; and takes a shady seat. Then shee; On one we did the taske impose: Calliope, with Ivy crown'd, vp-rofe; Who with her thumb first turn'd the quauering strings, And then this Ditty to the mufique fings. The gleab, with crooked plough, first ceres rent; First gaue vs corne, a better nourishment; First Lawes prescrib'd - all from her bountie sprung-By me, the Goddesse Ceres shall be sung. Would We could Verses, worthy her, reherse: For shee is more than worthy of our Verse Trinacria was on wicked Typhon throwne; Who vnderneath the Ilands waight doth grone, That durst affect the Empire of the skyes: Oft he attempteth but in vaine, to rife. Aufonian Pelorus his right hand Down waighs; Pachyne on the left doth stand; His legs are under Lilyben fored; And Ætna's bases charge his horrid head : Where, lying on his back, his iawes expire Thick clowds of dust, and vomit flakes of fire. Oft times he struggles with his load below: And Townes, and Mountaynes labours to ore-throw. Earth-quakes therewith: the King of thadowes dreads. For feare the ground should split about their heads, And let-in Day t'affright the trembling Ghosts.
For this, he from his filent-Empire posts,

Drawne

Drawne by black horses; tracing all the Round Of rich Sicilia; but, no breaches found. Him Erycina from her Mount survey'd: ( Now fearelesse ) and, her sonne imbracing, said.

My Armes, my ftrength, my glorie; for my fake, O cupid, thy all-conquering weapons take; And fix thy winged arrowes in his heart, Who rules the triple world's inferior part. The Gods, euen Ioue himselfe; the God of waves; And who illustrates earth haue beene thy slaues. Shall Hell be free? Thine, and thy mother's Sway Inlarge, and make th'internall Powr's obey. l'et we ( such is our patience! ) are dispis'd n our owne heauen; and all our force vnpriz'd. Secft thou not Pallas, and the Queen of Night, Far-darting Dian; how my worth they flight? And ceres daughter will a Maid abide, f we permit; for shee affects their pride. But, if thou fauour our joynt Monarchy, Thy Vncle to the Virgin-Goddesse tie.

Thus Venus. He his Quiver doth vnclose; Ind one, out of a thousand arrows, chose It her Arbitriment: a sharper head, Yone had; more ready, or that furer sped. hen bends his Bowe: the string this eare arrives, ind through the heart of Dis the arrow drines.

Not far remou'd from Enna's high-built wall, Lake there is, which men Pergufa call. ayster's flowly-gliding waters beare. ar fewer finging Swans than are heard there-Voods crown the Lake, and clothe it round about Vith leavy veils, which Phabus beames keep-out,

The.

The trees create fresh ayr, th'Earth various flowres: Where hear nor cold th'eternall Spring deuoures. Whil'st in this groue Proferpina disports, Or Violets pulls, or Lyllyes of all forts: And while the stroug with childish care and speed To fill her lap, and others to exceed; Dis faw, affected, carryed her away, Almost at once. Loue could not brooke delay. The sad-fac't Goddesse cryes ( with feare appall'd ) To her Companions; oft her Mother call'd. And as the tore th'adornment of her haire, Downfell the flow'rs which in her Jap shee bare. And fuch was her fweet Youth's simplicitic, That their losse also made the Virgin crie. The Rauisher flies on swift wheeles; his horses Excites by name, and their full speed inforces: Shaking for hafte the rust-obscured raignes Vpon their cole-black necks, and shaggy maines. Through Lakes, through Palicine, which expires A fulphrous breath, through earth ingendring fires, They passe to where corinibian Bacchides Their Citic built betweene vnequall Seas. The Land'twixt Aretbusa and Crane With stretcht-out hornes begirts th'included Sea. Here Cyane who gave the Lake a name, Amongst Sicilian Nymphs of speciall fame, Her head aduanc't: who did the Goddesie know? And boldly faid, You-shall no farther goe; Nor can you be vnwilling Ceres fon: What you compell, perswasion should have won. If humble things I may compare with great; Anapis lou'd me: yet did he intreat;

And me, not frighted thus, espous'd. This said, With out-stretcht armes his farther passage staid. His wrath no longer Pluto could restraine; But gives his terror-striking steeds the raigne; And with his Regall mace, through the profound. And yeelding water, cleaues the solid ground: The breath t'infernall Tartarus extends: At whose darke iawes the Chariot descends. But cyane the Goddesse Rape laments; And her owne injur'd Spring; whose discontents Admit no comfort: in her heart shee beares Her filent forrow: now, refolues to teares; And with that Fountayne doth incorporate, Whereof th'immortall Deitie but late. Her softned members thaw into a dew: Her nailes leffe hard, her bones now limber grew. The slendrest parts first melt away : her haire, ine fingers, legs, and feet; that soone impaire, And drop to streames: then, arms, back, shoulders, side, And bosom, into little Currents glide. Water, in stead of blood, fils her pale veines: and nothing now, that may be graspt, remaines. Mean-while, through all the earth, and all the Maine, he fearfull Mother fought her childe in vaine. Not deawy-hayr'd Aurura, when shee rose, Vor Hesperus, could witnesse her repose. wo pitchy Pines at flaming Ama lights; nd restlesse, carries them through freezing Nights : gaine, when Day the vanquisht Statres supprest, ler vanishe comfort seeks from East to West. hirsty with trauell, and no Fountayne nye, cottage thatcht with Araw, inuites her eyes.

At th'humble gate she knocks: An old wife showes Her selfe thereat; and seeing her, bestowes . The water so desir'd; which shee before Had boyl'd with barly. Drinking at the doore, A rude hard-fauour'd Boy befide her stood, Who laught, and cald her greedy-gut. Her blood Inflam'd with anger, what remayn'd shee threw Full in his face; which forthwith speckled grew. His armes convert to legs; a taile withall Spines from his changed shape: of body small, Lest he might proue too great a foe to life: Though lette, yet like a Lizard: th'aged wife (That wonders, weeps, and feares to touch it) fhuns, And presently into a creuise runs-Fit to his colour they a name elect; With fundry little stars all-ouerspeckt. What Lands, what Seas, the Goddesse wandred through Were long to tell: Earth had not roome enough. To Sicil shee returns: where ere shee goes, Inquires; and came where cyane now flowes. Shee, had thee not beene changed, all had told; Now, wants a tongue her knowledge to vnfold: Yet, to the mother, of her daughter gaue. A fure oftent: who bore vpon a wave-Persephone's rich zone; that from her fell, When, through the facred Spring, the funke to hell? This feen, and knowne; as but then loft, shee tare, Without selfe-pitty, her dis-sheueled haire; And with redoubled blowes her breft inuades: Nor knowes what Land t'accuse, yet all vpbraids ; ;

Ingrate, vnworthy with her gifts t'abound: Trinarria chiefly; where the steps shee found ... Of her misfortunes. Therefore there shee brake The furrowing plough; the Oxe and owner strake Both with one death; then, bade the fields beguile The trust impos'd, shrunk seed corrupts. That soile, So celebrated for fertilitie, Now barren grew: corne in the blade doth die. Now, too much drouth annoys; now, lodging showres: Stars smitch, winds blast. The greedy fowle deuourcs The new-fowne graine: Kintare, and Darnell tire The fetter'd Wheat; and weeds that through it spire. In Elean waves Alpheus Louc appeard; And from her dropping haire her fore-head clear'd: O Mother of that far-lought Maid, thou friend To life, faid she; here let thy labour end: Nor be offended with thy faithfull Land; That blamelesse is, nor could her rape with-stand. I, here a guest, not for my Country plead: My Country Pifa is, in Elis bred? And, as an Alien, in Sicania dwell: But yet no Country pleaseth me so well. I, Arethusa, now these Springs possesse:

This is my feat: which, court cous Goddesse, blesse.
Why I affect this place, "Ortygia came Through such vast Seas; I shall impart the same
To your desire; when you, more sit to heare,
Shall quir your care, and be of better cheare.
Earth gives me way: through whose darke cauerns roll d,
I here a seend; and vnknowne stars behold.

While vader ground by Styx my waters glide,
Your sweet Proserpina I there cipy d.

Full fad shee was: euen then you might have seen. Feare in her face: and yet shee is a Queen;

And yet shee in that gloomy Empire swayes; And yet her will th'infernall King obayes.

Stone-like stood Ceres at this heavy newes; And, staring, long continued in a muse. When gricfe had quickned her stupiditie, Shee tooke her Chariot, and ascends the skie: 'There, veiled all in clouds, with scattered haire, Shee kneeles to tupiter, and made this pray'r.

Both for my blood and thine, ô Ioue, I few:

If I be nothing gracious, yet doe you

A Father to your Daughter proue; nor be
Your care the leffe, because thee sprung from me.

Lo, she at length is found, long sought through all
The spacious World; if you a Finding call
What more the loss assures: but if, to know
Her being, be to Finde, I have found her so.
And yet I would the injurie remit,
So he the stolne restore: 'Twere most yinst

That holy Hymen should thy daughter ioyne
To such a Thiefe; although shee were not mine.

Then Ioue: The pledge is mutuall, and these cares. To either equall: Yet this deed declares. Much loue, mis-called Wrong: nor should we shame. Of such a sonne, could you but thinke the same. All wants suppose, can he be lesse than great, And be Ioue's brother? What, when all compleat? I, but preferr'd by lot? Or if you burne. In endlesse species, Let Proserpine returne: On this condition, That shee yet have taine. No sustenance: so Destinies ordaine. To fetch her daughter, Ceres postes in haste: But, Fates with-stood: the Maid had broke her fast.

For, wandring in the Ort-yard, simply shee Pluckt a Pomegranet from the stooping Tree; Thence tooke seuen grains and cats them one by one: Observed by Ascalaphus alone; Whom Acheron on Orphne erst begot In pichy Caues: a Dame of speciall nete Amongst th'Auernal Nymphs. This vtter'd, stayd The sighing Queene of Erebus; who made The Blab a Bird: with waues of Phlegeton His sace besprinkles; plume appeares thereon, Crookt beake, and broader eyes: the shape he had He lost, forthwich in yellow seathers clad. His head or'e-siz'd, his long nailes talons proue; His winged armes for lazinesse scarce moue:

A filthy, euer ill-presaging Fowle, To Mortals ominous: a screeching Owle.

Yet was the punishment no more than due
To his offence. But how offended you

Acheloides, that wings and clawes difgrace
Your goodly formes, yet keepe your Virgin-face?
Was it, you Sirens, that your deathlesse Powers
Were with the Goddesse when shee gathers flowrs?
Whom when through all the Earth you sought in vaine,
You wisht for wings to swim vpon the Maine;
That pathlesse Seas might testisse your care:
The easie Gods consented to your pray'r.
Streight, golden feathers on your backs appeare:
But, less that musick, fram'd to inchant the eare,
And so great gifts of speech should be prophan'd;''
Your Virgin-lookes, and humane voyce remayn'd.

But love, his fifter's discontent to cheare, Between her and her Brother parts the yeare, The Goddesse now in either Empire swayes:
Six months with Ceres, fix with Pluto stayes.
Proscrpina then chang'd her minde, and looke
(Late such as sullen Dis could hardly brooke)
And clear'd her browes; as Sol, obscur'd in shrowds.
Of exhalations, breaks through vanquisht clowds.

Pleas'd teres now bade Arethusa tell
Her cause of flight; and why a sacred Well.
Th'obsequious waters left their murmuring:
The Goddesse then about the Crystall Spring
Her head aduanc't; and, wringing her green haires,

Shee thus Alphaus ancient loue declares.

I, of Achaia once a Nymph: none more The chace affected, or t'intoyle the Bore. By beautie though I neuer fought for fame; Though masculine; offaire I bare the name; Nor tooke I pleasure in my praysed face, Which others yalew as their only grace: But, simple, was ashamed to excell; And thought it infamy to please too-well. As from Stymphalian woods I made retreat (Twas hor, and labour had increast the heat ) When well-nigh tyr'd; a filent streame I found, All eddilesse, perspicuous to the ground: Through which you every pebble might have feen; And ran, as if it had no River been. The Poplar, and the hoary-Willow, fed-By bordering streames, their gratefull shadow spread. In this coole Rivulet my foot I dipt; And by and by into the middle skipt: Where, while I swim, and labour to and fro A thousand wayes, with armes that swiftly row,

I from the bottom heard an vnknowne tongue; And frighted, to the hither margent sprung. Whither fo falt, ô Arethufa!twice Out cry'd Alphan; with a hollow voyce. Vnclothed as I was, I ran away (For, on the other fide my garments lay) The faster followed he, the more did burne; Who naked, sceme the readier for his turne. As trembling Doues the eger Hawkes eschew; As eger Hawkes the trembling Doucs purlew; I fled, He followed To Orchomenus, Psophis, Cyllene, high-brow'd Manalaus, Cold Erymantbus, and to Elis, I My flight maintayned; nor could he come ny: But, far vnable to hold out fo long; He, patient of much labour, and more strong. And yet o're Plaines, o're woody hills I fled, And craggy Rocks, where foot did neuer tread. The Sunne was at our backs: before my feet I faw his shadow; or my feare did see'r. How-ere his founding steps, and thick drawne breath That fann'd my haire, affrighted me to death. Starke tyr'd, I cry'd': Ah caught! help ( ô forlorne! Diana helpe thy Squire, who oft have borne Thy Bowe and Quiuer! Mou'd at my request, With muffling clowds the couer'd the diffrest. The River seeks me in that pitchy shrowd, And searches round about the hollow clowd: Twice came to where Diana me did hide; And twice he 18 Arethufa cry'd. Then what a heart had I! the Lamb so feares When howling Wolues about the Fold she heares:

142 Metamorphosis.

So heartlesse Hare, when trayling Hounds draw nye Her sented forme; nor dares to moue an eye. Nor went he on, in that he could not trace My further steps; but guards the clowd and place. Cold sweats my then-besieged lims possest: In thin thick-falling drops my strength decreast. Where-ere I step, streames run; my haire now fell In trickling deaw; and, sooner than I tell My destinie, into a Flood I grew. The River his beloued waters knew: And, putting off th'assumed shape of man, Resumes his owne; and in my Current ran. Chaste Delia cleft the ground. Then, through blind taues To lou'd Ortygia she conducts my waves: Affected for her name; where first I take Reuiew of day. This, Aretbusa spake. The fertill Goddesse to her Chariot chaines Her yoked Dragons, checkt with stubborn raignes: Her course, 'twixt heaven and earth, to Athens bends; And to Triptolemus her Chariot fends. Part of the seed shee gaue, shee bade him throw On vntill'd earth; part on the till'd to fow. O're Europe, and the Asian soyle conuay'd, The Youth to Scythia turnes; where Lyncus Sway'd. His Court he enters. Askt what way he came, His cause of comming, Countrie, and his Name: Triptotemus men call me, he reply'd; And in renowmed Atbens I refide. No thip through toyling Seas me hither bare; Nor ouer-land came I; but through the ayre. I bring you ceres gift: which sowne in fields,

Corn-bearing crops (a better feeding) yeelds.

The barbarous King enuies it: and, that he The Author of fo great a good might be; Giues entertaynment: but, when sleep opprest His heavy eyes, with steele attempts his brest. Whom Ceres turn's t'a Lynx: and home-wards makes The young Mopsopian drive her sacred Snakes. Our Chiefe concluded here her learned Layes. The Nymphs, with one consent, give vs the Bayes: The vanquisht raile. To whom the Muse: Since you Esteeme it nothing to deserve the due. To your contention, but must adde foule words To your ill deeds; nor this your pride affords Our patience roome: we'll wreak it on your heads, And tread the path which Indignation leads. The Peons laugh, and our sharp threats despile. About to scould, and with disgracefull noyse To clap their hands; they faw the feathers sprout Beneath their nailes, and clothe their armes throughout; Hard nebs in one another's faces spie; And now, new birds, into the Forrest flie. These Sylvan Scoulds, as they their armes prepare To beat their bosoms, mount, and hang in ayre.

Who yet retayne their ancient eloquence; Full of harsh chat, and prating without lense.

O VID'S

METAMORPHOSIS.

The fixth Booke.

THE ARGYMENT.

PAllas, an old-wife. Hantie thoughts o're-throw Hæmus and Rhodope; who Mountaines grow.
The Pigmy, a Crane. Autigone become,
A Storke. A flatue Cyneras intombs:
His impious daughters, flones. In various flapos
The Gods commit adulteries and rapes.
Arachne, a Spider. Niobe yet drownes
Her marble cheekes in teares. Uncivill Clownes
Are curst to Frogs. From teares deare Martyas flower.
His inory fhoulder new-made Pelops flowes.
Progne, a Swallow; fign'd with murders flaines.
Sad Philomel to feeret might complaines.
Rage to a Lapwing turnes th'Odrysian king.
Calais and Zetes native feathers wing.

Who both her Verse, and just reuenge commends.
Then said t'her selse: To praise is of no worth:
et our reuenged Powre our praise set forth.
itends Arachnes ruine. She, she heard, efore her curious webs, her owne prefer'd.
or dwelling, nor her nation same impart ato the Damsell, but excelling Ara

H

Deriu'd from Colophonian Idmons side; Who thirstie Wooll in Phocian purple dide. Her mother (who had pay'd her debt to fate) Was also meane, and equall to her mate. Yet through the Lydian townes her praise was spred; Though poore her birth, in poore Hypepa bred. The Nymphs of Tmo!ns of their Vines for fooke; The sleeke l'actolian Nymphs their streames; to looke On her rare workes: nor more delight in viewing The don (don with fuch grace) than when a doing. Whether the orbe-like roule the ruder wooll; Or, finely finger'd, the selected cull; Or draw it into clowd-refembling flakes; Or equall twine with swift-turn'd spindle makes; Or with her lively-painting needle wrought: You might perceive the was by Palles raught. Yet such a Mistresse her proud thoughts disclame: Let her with me contend; if foyld, no shame (Said she ) nor punishment will I refuse. Pallas, forth-with, an old-wines shape indues: Her haire all white; her lims, appearing weake, A staffe supports: who thus began to speake. Old Age hath somthing which we need not shun:

Experience by long tract of time is won.
Scorne not aduice: with dames of humane race.
Contend for fame, but giue a Goddelle place.
Craue pardon, and the will thy crime remit.

With eyes confessing rage, and eye-brows knit, (Her labour-leaning hands scarce held from strokes) She, masked Pallas with these words pronokes.

Old foole, that dot'ft with age; to whom long-life is now a curse: thy daughter, or sons wife,

(If thou hast either) taught be they by this My wisedom, for my selfe, sufficient is And least thy counsell should an intrest clame In my diuersion, I abide the same.

Why comes she not? why tryall thus delayes?
She comes, said Pallas, and her selfe displayes.
Nymphs, and Mygdonian dames the Powre adores
Onely the maid her selfe vndaunted bore:
And yet she blusht; against her will the red
Flusht in her cheeks, and thence as swiftly sled.

Euen so the purple Morning paints the skyess And so they whiten at the Suns vprise.

Who now, as desperately obstinate,
Praise ill affecting, runs on her owne sate.
No more source daughter labors to dissivade,
No more resuscit, more the strike delayde.
Both settle to their tasks apart: both spread

At once their warps, confifting of fine thred,
Ty'd to their beames; a reed the thred divides,
Through which the quick-returning thuttle glides,
Shot by fwift hands. The combs inferted tooth
Betweene the warp suppress the rising woose:
Strife less ning toyle. With skirts tuckt to their waste,

Both moue their cunning armes with nimble hafte. Here crimfon, dyde in Tyr an braffe, they weaue: The scarce diffinguisht shadowes sight deceaue.

So warry clowds, (hot by Apo?'s, showe;
The vast sky painted with a mightie Bowe;
Where, though a thousand seuerall colours shine,

No eye their close transition can define: ""
What touch, the same so neerely tepresents

And by degrees, scarce sensible, dissens.

Through-out imbellished with ductil gold : And both reuiu'd antiquities vnfold.

Pallas, in Athens, Marfe's Rock doth frame: And that old strife about the Citties name. Twice fix Coelestials sit inthron'd on hie, Repleat with awe-infusing grauitie: love in the midst. The futed figures tooke Their lively formes: Iouchad a regall looke. The Sea-god flood, and with his Trident strake The cleaning rock, from whence a fountaine brake: Whereon he grounds his clame. With speare and shield Her selfe she armes: her head a murrion steild: Her breft her Ægis guards. Her lance the ground Appeares to frike; and from that pregnant wound The hoary olive, charg dwith thuir, alcends. The Gods admire: with victory the ends." Yet she, to show the Rivall of her prayle What hopes to cherish for such bold aslayes, Add's foure contentions in the vtmost bounds Of cuery angle, wrought in little Rounds. One, Thracian Rhodepe and Hamus howes, Now mountaines, topt with neuer-melting snowes, Once humane bodyes: who durst emulate The bleft Coelestialls both in stile and stare. The next containes the miserable doome Of that Pygmaan matron, ouer-come By Iuno; made a Crane, and forc't to iar With her owne nation in perpetuall war. A third prefents Antigone, who stroug For ynmatcht beautie with the wife of loue. Not llium, nor Laomedon her fire, Prevail'd with violent Saugraia's ire-

Turn'd

Turn'd to a Stork; who, with white pinions rais'd, Is ever by her creaking bill selfe-prais'd. In the last circle Cynaras was plac't; Who, on the temples staires, the formes imbrac't Of his late daughters, by their pride o're-throwne: And seemes himselfe to be a weeping stone The web a wreathe of peacefull olive bounds: And her owne tree her work both ends and crowness. Arachne weaties Europa's rape by Ione: The Bull appeares to liuc, the Sca to moue. Back to the shore she casts a heavy eye; To her diffracted damifels scemes to cry: And from the sprinkling waves, that skip to meet With such a burden, shrinks her trembling feet. Asteria there a struggling Eagle prest: A Swan here spreads his wings o're Leda's brest. loue, Satyr-like, Antione compels; Whose fruitfull wornb with double issue swels: Amphicryo for Alemena's loue became: A showre for Danae, for Agina flame? For beautifull Mnemosyne he takes A pastors forme; for Deois, a snakes. Thee also, Neptune, like a lustfull Stere, She makes the faire Aolian Virgin beare To get th' Aloi des in Enipe's shape : Now turn'd t'a Ram in sad Bisaltis rape. he gold-hair'd mother of life-strengthning Scede, he snake-hair'd mother of the winged Steede, ound thee a Stalion : thee Malantho findes. Delphin. She to cuery forme affignes ife-equald looks; to euery place their fites. lere Phabus in a Heards-mans shape delighes;

150 Metamorphosis.

A Lyon's now; now falcons wings displayes:

Macarian Isla shepheard-like betrayes.

Liber, a grape, Errgone comprest:

And Saturne, horse-like, Chiron gets, halfe-beast.

A slender wreathe her knisht web consines;

Flowres intermixt with clasping in twines.

Not Pallas this, not Enuy this reprones: kler faire successe the vext Virago moues; Who teares the web, with crimes coeleftiall fraught: With shuttle from cytorian mountaines brought, 1145 a. Arachne thrice vpon the fore-head hits! Her great heart brooks it not A cord the knits. About her neck. Remorfefull Pallas flay'd Her falling waight: Line wretch, yet bang, she said. This curse (least after times thy pride secure) Still to thy iffue, and their race, indure. Sprinkled with Heras's banefull weeds, her haire vis She forthwith theds: her note and eares impaire; As Her head growes little; her whole body for and or and Her thighs and legs to spiny fingers grow : The rest all belly. Whence a thred she sends: And now, a Spider, her old webs extends.

All Lydia fforms; the fame through Phrygia rung:
And gaue an argument to enery tongue.

Her, Niube had knowne; when the, a maid, In Sipylus, and in Maonia staid, Yet slights that home example: still rebels: Against the Gods; and with proud language swels. Many things sweld her. Yet Amphion's towne, Their high descents; nor glory of a crowne, So pleas'd her (though the pleas'd her selfe in all) As her faire race. We Niobe might call

The happiest mother that yet ever brought Life vnto light; had not her felfe fo thought. Tirefian Manto, in prefages skild, The streets, inspired by holy fury, fild With these exhorts: 1/menides, prepare: To great Latona, and her Twins; with prayer Mix sweet perfumes; your brows with Laurel binds By me Latona bids. The Thebans wind About their temples the commaunded Bay 2" And facred fires, with incense feeding, pray-Behold, the Queene in height of state appeares? A Phrygian mantle; weau'd with gold, she weares ? Her face, as much as rage would luffer, faire. She ftops; and shaking her disheucled haire, The godly troope with hauty eyes survayes. What madnesse is it Here-say Gods (she sayes) Before the scene Coelestials to prefer? Or while I Altars want, to worship her? Me Tantalus begot, alowd to feast In heauenly bowres; my mother not the least Plesas; greatest Atlas fire to those, On whose high shoulders all the stars repose. love is my other Grandfather; and he My father in law: a double grace to me. Me Phrygia, Cadmus kingdomes me obay My husbands harp-rais'd walls we joyntly fway. Through-out my Court behold in every place Infinite riches ! adde to this, a face Worthy a Goddesse. Then, to crowne my loyes, Say now, have we not reason for our pride?

Seuen beauteous daughters, and as many boyess:

All these by marriage to be multiply'd.

How dare you then Latona, Caus birth
Before me place? to whom the ample Earth
Deny'da little spot t'vnlade her wombe?
Heauen, Earth, nor Seas, afford your Goddesse roome
A Vagabond, till Delos harbor gaue.
Thou wandress on the land, I on the waue,
It said; and granted an vnstable place.
She brought forth two; the seuenth part of my race:
Happy! who doubts? I happy will abide:
Or who doubts that? with plentic fortisid.
My state too great for fortune to bereaue:
Though much she rauish, she much more must leane.
My blessings are aboue low feare. Suppose
Some of my hopefull sons this people lose.
They cannot be reduc't to such a few.

Off with your bayes; these idle Rites eschew.
They put them off; the sacrifice forbore:

And yet Latona filently adore.

As far as free from barrennesse, so much

Distaine and griefe th'inraged Goddesse touch.
Who on the top of cynthus thus begins
To vent her passion to her sacred Twins.
Lo I, your mother, proud in you alone;
(Excepting Iuno, second vnto none)
Am question'd if a Goddesse; and must loose,
If you assist not, all religious dews.
Not is this all: that curst Tantalian Seede

Adds foule reproches to her impious deede.

She dares her children before you prefer;
And calls me childleffe: may it light on her!

Whose wicked words her fathers tongue declare.

About to second her report with praier ;

Peace, Phabus faid, complaint too long delayes Conceau'd reuenge: the same vext Phabe sayes. Then swiftly through the yeilding ayre they glide To Cadmus towres; whom thickned vapors hide A spacious plaine before the citty lies, Made dusty with the daily exercise Of trampling hooues; by strife-full chariots trackt. Part of Amphions active sons here backt High-bounding steeds; whose rich caparison With scarlet blusht, with gold their bridles shone. Ismenus loe, her pregnant wombs first spring, As with his ready horse he beats a Ring, And checks his fomy iawes; ay me! he cryes; While through his groning brest an arrow flyes: His bridle flackning with his dying force, He leasurely finks side-long from his horse. Next, Siphilus from clashing quiuer flies With flackned raignes: as when a Pilot spies A growing storme; and, least the gentle gaile: Should scape besides him, claps on all his saile. His hafte th'vneuitable bowe o're-took, And through his throte the deadly arrow ftrook. Who, by the horses mane and speedy thighes Drops headlong, and the earth in purple dies. Now Phædimus; and Tantalus, the heire I'his Grand-sires name; that labour done, prepare To wrastle. Whilst with oyled lims they prest Each others power, close grasping brest to brest; A shaft, which from th'impulsive bow-string flew, Them, in that sad Conjunction joyntly flew. Both grone at once, at once their bodyes bend With bitter pangs, at once to earth descend: .

Their rowling eyes together set in death 5. Together they expire their parting breath. In rusht Alphenor (bleeding in their harmes ) And rais'd their heatlesse corses in his armes: But in that pious ductie fell. The threads Oflife, his fivers, wrathfull Delius shreds. Part of his lungs claue to th'extracted head :: And wich his blood his troubled spirit Hed. But vnshorne Damasichibon slaughtred lies Not by a fingle wound: that where the thighs Knit with the ham-strings in the knotty ioynt, Striuing from thence to tug the fatall poynt, An other in his neck the wings imbrew'd. Thick-gulling blood th'eiected thaft pursew'd: Which spinning vpward cleft the passive ayre. Last thoneus, with successelle prayer, His hands vp-heaues: You Gods in generall, Saidhe (and ignorantly pray'd to all) O pitty mc! The Archer had remorce; But now irresposable was that force: And yet his life a little wound disparcht, His heart but onely with the arrow scratcht. Ill newes, the peoples griefe, her housholds teares Present their suine to their mothers cares:

Present their suine to their mothers cares:
Who wonders how the Gods their liues durst touch;
And swels with anger that their powre was such.
For sad Amphien, wounding his owne breast,
Had now his force, with his soule, releast.
How different is this Ninh, from that!
Who scorn d Latona's sacrifice of late,
And proudly pac't the streets; enui'd by those.
That were her friends; now pittied by her sociel.

Frantick

Thence also, frighted from her painefull bed, With her two infant Deities she fled. Now in Chimera-breeding Lycia (fir'd By burning beames) and with long trauell tyr'd, Heat-raised thirst the Goddesse sore opprest: By their exhausting of her milk increast. By fortune, in a dale, with longing eyes. A Lake of shallow water she descries: Where Clownes were then a gathering picked weeds, With shrubby ofiers, and plash-louing reedes. Approcht; Titania kneeles vpon the brink: And of the cooling liquor floops to drinke. The Clownes with-stood. Why hinder you, said she, The vse of water, that to all is free? The Sun, aire, water, Nature did not frame Peculiar; a publick gift I clame. Yet humbly I intreat it: not to drench: My weary lims, but killing thirst to quench. My tongue wants moy sture, & my jawes are dry: Scarce is there way for speech. For drink I dye. Water to me, were Nectar. If I live, Tis by your fauour: life with water give. Pitty these babes: for pitty they advance Their little armes I their armes they stretcht by chance With whom would not fuch gentle words preuaile? Jut they, perseuering to prohibit, raile; We place with threats command her to forfake. Shen with their hands and feet disturbe the lake: A cl. Jeaping with malicious motion, moue The woubled mud; which rising, flotes aboue. Forsakesencht her thirst: no more Latona sucs Her eye-base slaves: but Goddesse-like doth vie

Her dreadfull tongue; which thus their fates imply'd :. May you for euer in this lake refide! Her wish succeeds. In loued lakes they striue: Now sprawle aboue, now under water diue; Oft hop vpon the banke, as oft againe. Back to the water: nor can yet restraine Their brawling tongues; but setting shame aside,.. Though hid in water, vnder water chide. Their voyces still are hoarce: the breath they fetch Swels their wide throtes; their iawes with railing stretch. Their heads their shoulders touch; no neck betweene As intercepted. All the back is greene. Their bellies (cuery part o're-fizing) white. Who now, new Frogs, in slimy pooles delight. Thus much, I know not by what Lycian, laid: An other mention of a Satyre made, By Phabus, with Tritona's reede, o're-come: Who for prefuming felt a heavy doome-Why doe you (oh! ) me from my felfe diftract? (Oh! ) I repent, he cry'd: Alas I this fact Deserves not such a vengeance! Whilst he cry'd; Apolle from his body stript his hide. History was one wound, bloud every way Stammes from all parts: his finewes naked lay. His bare veines pant: his heart you might behold; And all the finers in his breft have told. For him the Faunes, that in the forrests keepe; For him the Nymphs, and german Satyres weepe:: His end, Glympus (famous then) bewailes; With all the shepheards of those hills and dales. The pregnant Earth conceiveth with their teares; Which in her penetrated womb fac beares,

Fill big with waters: then discharg'd her fraught.
This purest Phrygian Streame a way out sought
By down-falls, till to toyling seas he came:
Now called Marssas of the Satyres name.

The Vulgar, these examples told, returne.
Vnto the present: for Amphion mourne,
And his poore issue. All the mother hate.
Celups alone laments his sisters fate.
While with rome garments he presents his woes,
The inory peece on his left shoulder showes.
This slessly was, and coloured like the right.
Slaine by his sire, the Gods his lims vnite:
His scattered parts all found; saue that alone
Which interpos d the neck and shoulder bone.
They then with suory supply'd th' vnfound:

And thus restored Pelops was made sound. The neighboring princes meet: the Cities neare: Intreat their kings the desolate to cheare, Pelops Mycane, Sparta, th' Argine State; And calydon, not yet in Dian's hate; Fertill Orchomens; Corinthus fam'd For high-priz'd braffe; Meffene, neuer tam'd; Cleone; Patre; Pylos, Nelius Crowner And Trazen, not then knowne for Pittleus towne; With all that two-sea'd 1stbn of Streights include: And all without, by two-fea'd Isthmos view'd. Athens alone (who would beloeu't) with-held: Thee, from that civill office, war compeld. Th' inhabitants about the Pontick coaft Had then befie g'd thee with a barbarous hoast: Whom Thracian Tereus, with his Aids, o'rethrew:

And by that victoric renowned grew.

Potent:

Metamorpholis.

160

Potent in wealth, and people; from the loynes Of Mars deriu'd: Pandion Progne ioynes To him in marriage. This, nor Iune bleft; Nor Hymen, nor the Graces grac't that feast. Eumenides the nuptiall tapers light At funerall fires; and made the bed that Night. Th' ill-boading Owle vpon the roofe was fet. Progne and Tereus with these omens met: Thus parents grew. The Thracians yet rejoyce; And thanke the Gods with harmonic of voyce. The marriage day, and that of Itys birth, They consecrate to vniuerfall mirth. So lyes the good vnfeene. By this the Sun, Conducting Time, had through fine Autumns run: When flattering Progne thus allures her Lord. If I have any grace with thee, afford This fauour, that I may my fifter fee: Send me to her, or bring thou her to me. Promise my father that with swiftest speede She shall returne. If this attempt succeede, The fumme of all my wishes I obtaine. He bids them lanch his ships into the maine: Then makes th' Athenian port with sailes and oares; And lands upon the wisht Pyraan shores. Brought to Pandion's presence, they salute. The King with bad presage begins his sure. For loe, as he his wifes command recites, And for her quick returne his promise plights Comes Phi'omela; clad in rich array; More rich in beauty. So they vie to fay The stately Naiades, and Dryad's goe In Syluan shades ; were they apparrel'd for.

This fight in Tereus such a burning breeds, As when we fire a heape of hoary reeds; Or catching flames to Sun-dry'd stubble thrust. Her face was excellent: but in-bred luft Inrag'd his bloud; to which those Climes are prone: Stung by his countries fury, and his owne. He streight intends her women to intice, And bride her Nutle to profecute his vice; Her selfe etempt with gifts; his crowne to spend: Or rauish, and by warre his rape defend. What dares he not, thrust on by wilde defire? Nor can his breft containe so great a fire. Rackt with delay, he Prozne's fute renewes: And for himselfe in that pretention sucs. Loue made him elequent. As oft as he Exceeded, he would fay, Thus charged the. And mouing teares (as the had fent them) sheds. O Gods! how dark a blindnesse ouer-spreds The foules of men! whilft to his fin he climes, They think him good; and praise him for his crimes. Euen Philomela wisht it! with soft armes She hugs her father, and with winning charmes Ofher liues safery, her destruction prest: While Tereus by beholding pre-possest. Her killes and imbraces heat his blood: And all afford his fire and fury food. And wisht, as oft as she her fire imbrac's. He were her fire; nor would have been more chaft. He, by their importunities is wrought. She, ouer-joy'd, her father thanks; and thought Her selse and fifter in that fortunate, Which drew on both a lamentable fate.

Metamorphosis.

The labour of the Day now necre an end, From steep Olympus Phæbus Steeds descend. The boards are princely feru'd: Lyaus flowes In burnisht gold. Then take their soft repose. And yet th' Odrysian King, though parted, fries : Her face and graces euer in his eyes. Who parts vnleene vnto his fancy faines; And feeds his fires: Sleep flies his troubled braines. Day vp : Pandion his departing fon

1283

Wrings by the hand; and weeping, thus begun. Deare Son, fince Pietie this dew requires;

With her, receive both your and their defires. By faith, aliance, by the Gods aboue, I charge you guard her with a fathers loue : And fuddenly fend back (for all delay ... To me is death ) my ages onely stay. And daughter ('tis enough thy fifter's gone) For pitty leave me not too long alone. As he impos'dehis charge, he kift with-all And drops of teares at every accent fall. The pledges then of promis'd faith demands (Which mutually they give) their plighted hands To Progne, and her little boy, said he, My loue remember, and salute from me. Scarce could he bid farewell: fobs fo ingage His troubled speech; who dreads his soules presage.

As soone as shipt; as soone as a Siue ores Had mould the furges, and remould the shores; Shee's ours! with me my with I beare! he cryes. Exults; and barbarous, scarce defers his joyes :: His eyes fast fixt. As when lones eagle beares A Hare t'her ayery, trust in rapefull scares:

And to the trembling prisoner leaues no way For hoped flight; but still beholds her pray. The Voyage made; on his owne land he treads: And to a Lodge Pandions daughter loads; Obscur'd with woods: pale, trembring, full of feares; And for her fifter asking now with teares. There mues her vp; his foule intent makes knowne: nfore't her; a weake Virgin, and but one. Helpe father! fifter helpe! in her distresse She cries; and on the Gods, with like successe. She trembles like a lamb, fnatcht from the phange Of some fell wolfe; that dreads her former pangs: Or as a doue, who on her gorget beares Her blouds fresh staines, and late-felt talents feares. Restor'd vnto her mind, her russled haire, As at a wofull funerall the tare; Her armes with her owne fury bloudy made: Who, wringing her vp-heaued hands, thus faid. O monster! barbarous in thy horrid lust! Trecherous Tyrant! whom my fathers trust, Impos'd with holy teares; my fifters loue; My virgin state; nor nupriall ties, could moue! D what a wild confusion hast thou bred! l,an adultresse to my fisters bed; Thou husband to vs both; to me a foe; To all a punishment; and justly so. Why mak'ft thou not thy villanies compleat;

By forcing life from her abhorred feat?
O would thou hadft, e're I my honour lost!
Then had I parted with a spotlesse ghost.
Yet, if the Gods haue eyes; if their Powers be
Of any powre; not all decay with me;

Thou shalt not scape due vengeance. Sense of shame I will abandon; and thy crime proclaime: To men, if free; if not, my voice shall breake Through these thick walls; and teach the woods to speake Hard rockes resolue to ruth. Let heaven this heare: And Heauen-thron'd Gods: if there be any there! These words the saluage Tyrant moues to wroth: Nor lesse his feare: a like prouok't by both. Who drawes his fword: his cruell hands he winds In her loofe haire: her armes behind her binds. Her throte glad Philomela ready made: Conceiuing hope of death from his drawne blade. Whilst she reuiles, innokes her father; sought To vent her spleene; her tongue in pincers caught, His sword deuideth from the panting root: Which, trembling, murmurs curses at his foot. And as a serpents taile, disseuer'd, skips: Euen so her tongue and dying sought her lips. After this fact (if we may Runior trust). He oft abus'd her body with his luft war and a noned on I Yet home to Progne, in the end, retires :- 1 Who for her fifter hastily inquires. He funeralls belyes, with fained griefe: And by instructed teares begets beliefe. Progne her royall ornaments rejects; a meanade dien And puts on black: an emptie tombe erects; and alle To her imagin'd Ghost oblations burnes: Her fifters fate, not as the should, the mournes. Now through twelue Signes the yeere his period drew. What should distressed Philomela doe?

A guard restraind her slight; the walls were strong; Her mouth had lost the index of her tongue.

The

he wit that miserie begets is great: reat forrow addes a quickneffe to conceit. woofe vpon a Thracian loome she spreds; nd inter-weaves the white with crimfon threds; hat character her wrong. The closely wrought, s closely to a servant gave; befought o beare it to her Mistresse: who presents he Queene therewith; not knowing the contents. he wife to that dire Tyrant this vnfolds: nd in a wofull verse her state beholds. ne held her peace: 'twas strange! griefe struck her mute. o language could with such a passion sure. or had she time to weepe. Right, wrong, were mixt her fell thoughts: her foule on vengeance fixt. It was that time; when, in a wilde difguife, thonian matrons vie to folemnife a grain and ans three-yeares Feast. Night spreds her wings: night high Khodope with timbrels rings. night th'impationt Queene a iauelin takes, nd now a Bacchanal, the Court for fakes. ncs shade her browes: the rough hide of a Deare logs at her side: her shoulder bare a speare. urried through woods, with her attendant froes, errible Progne, frantick with her woes, ny milder fury, Backus, counterfets. length vnto the defart cottage gets: owles; Euche; cries: breakes ope the doores, and tooke r fifter thence: with iny hides her looke: habit of a Bacchanal arrayd: id to her citie the amaz'd conuayd. lat hated roofe when Phi'omela knew; ic poore soule shooke; her visage bloudlesse grew.

Progni

Progne with-drawes, the sacred weeds vnlos'd;
Her wofull sisters bathfull face disclos'd:
Falls on her neck. The other durst not raise
Her down-east eyes: her sisters wrong survayes
In her dishonour. As she strong that worne
With vp-rais'd lookes; and call the Gods t' haue borne
Her pure thoughts witnesse, how she was compeld
To that loth'd tast; the hands, for speech, vpheld.
Sterne Frogne broiles; her bosome hardly beares
So vast a rage: who chides her sisters teares.

No teares, said she, our lost condition needs: But steele; or if thou hast what steele exceeds. I, for all horrid practices, am fit: To wrap this roofe in flame, and him in it: His eyes, his tongue, or what did thee inforce, T'extirp; or with a thousand wounds, divorce His guiltie souler The deed I intend, is great: But what, as yet, I know not. In this heat Came Itys in, and taught her what to doe. Beheld with cruell eyes; Ah, how I view In thee, faid the, thy father! and began Her tragick Scene: with filent anger wan. But when her sonne saluted her, and clung Vnto her neck; mixt kisses, as he hung, With childish blandishments; her high-wrought bloud Began to calme, and rage distracted stood. Teares trickl'd from her eyes by strong constraint. But when the found her resolution faint With too much pittie, her sad sister viewes, And faid, while both, her eyes by turnes peruse. Why flatters he? why tonguelesse weepes the other? Why fifter calls not she, whom he calls mother?

Degen

Degenerate! thinke whose daughter; to whom wed: Ill pietic is sinne to Tereus bed. hen Itys trailes: as when by Ganges flouds Tigreffe drags a Fawne through filent woods. letiring to the most sequestred roome: Vhile he, with hands vp-heau'd, fore-fecs his doome, lings to her bosom; mother! mother! cry'd; he ftabs him: nor once turn'd her face aside. lis throte was cut by Philomela's knife: Ithough one wound suffiz'd to vanquish life. lis yet quick lims, ere all his foule could paffe, hee piece-meale teares. Some boyle in hollow braffe, ome hisse on spits. The paucments blutht with blood. rogne inuites her husband to this food: and faines her Countries Rite; which would afford To attendant, nor companion, but her Lord. low Tereus, mounted on his Grand-fires throne, With his fons carned entrailes stuffes his owne; and bids her (fo Soule-blinded!) call his boy. regne could not disguise her cruell ioy: nfull fruition of her horrid ire, hou hast, said she, within thee thy defire. le looks about : asks where. And while againe le asks, and calls all bloudy with the slaine, orth,like a Fury, Philomela flew; and at his face the head of Itys threw. Vor euer more than now desir'd a tongue; 'expresse the joy of her reuenged wrong. le, with lowd out-cryes, doth the boord repell; nd cites the Furies from the depth of hell. Now from his rising stomack strives to cast h' abhorred food : now weeps, with griefe agast':

And calls himselfe his sons vnhappy tombe.
Then drawes his sword; and through the guilty roome
Pursues the Sisters; who appeare with wings
To cut the ayre: and so they did. One sings
In woods, the other neare the house remaines:
And on her brest yet beares her murders staines.
He, swift with griefe and sury, in that space
His person chang'd. Long tusts of feathers grace
His shining crowne; his sword a bill became;
His face all arm'd: whom we a Lapwing name.
This killing newes, ere halfe his age was spent.

Pandion to th' infernall Shadowes sent.

Who, both in iustice, and bold armes exceld.
To him his wife foure sons, all hopefull, bare:
As many daughters: two, surpassing faire.
Thee, Cephalus, thy Procris happy made:
Put Thract and Tereus, Boreas nuptiall stayd.
The God belou'd Grithya wanted long;
While he put off his powre, to vie his tongue.
His sure rejected; horridly inclind
To anger (too familiar with that Wind.)

I iustly suffer this indignity:
For why, said he, haue I my armes laid by?
Strength, violence, high rage, and awfull threats.
'Tis my dishonour to haue vs'd intreats.
Force me besits With this, thick clouds I driue;
Tosse the blew billowes, knotty Okes vp-riue;
Congeale soft snow, and beat the earth with haile.
When I my brethren in the ayre assaile,
(For that's our field) we meet with such a shocke,
That thundring skyes with our incounters rock,

And clowd-struck lightning flashes from on high. When through the crannies of the earth I flye, And force her in her hollow caues, I make The Ghofts to tremble, and the ground to quake. Thus should I have wood; with these my match have made irichtheus should haue been compeld, not pray'd. Thus Boreas chafes; or no leffe froming, shooke His horrid wings; whose avery motion strooke The earth with blafts, and made the Ocean rore. rayling his dusky mantle on the flore, Ic hid himselfe in clouds of dust, and caught sclou'd Orithya; with her feare distraught. lying, his agitated fires increast: Nor of his ayerie race the raignes supprest Till to the walled Cicones he came. 'wo goodly Twins th' espous'd Athenian Dame Saue to the Icie author of her rape: Who had their fathers wings and mothers shape et not so borne. Before their faces bare he manly enfignes of their yellow haire, alais and Zetes both unplumed were. ut as the downe did on their chins appeare; o, foule-like, from their fides foft feathers bud. When youth to action had inflam'd their blood: the first vessell, with the flowre of Grecce, hrough vnknowne feas, they fought the Golden Fleece,

OVIDS

METAMORPHOSIS.

The seuenth Booke.

THE ARGUMENT.

MEn, Dragons teeth produce. Wing'd Snakes their yeares By odors cast. A seire branch Olives beares. Drops sprous to Flowres. Old Acton your became So Libers Nurfes. An old Sheepe a Lambe. Cerambus flies. A Snakesa fnake-like Stone. An Oxe, a Stag. Sad Mera barks unknowne. Hornes front the Coan dames. The Telchines All change. A Done-turn'd Maid. The hard to pleafen Becomes a Swan, His mother Hyric weepes Into a Lake, High-mounting Combe keepes Her fon-fought Life. A King and Queeno estrange To flightfull Foule, Cephilus Nephen change Into a Seale. Eumélus daughter flees Through tracelefferegions. Men from Musbrumps rifes Phinius and Periphas light wings affume. So Polyphemons neece. From Cerberus foume Springs Aconite Just Earth a grave denies To Scyrons bones; which now in racks arafe. Arne a Chough. Stout Myrmidons are borne Of toyling Ants. The late reielted Morne Masks Cephalus. The Dog, that did purfue, And Beaft pufu de ; two marble Statues grew.

VIth Pagasean keele the Minya plow
The curling waves; and Phineus see; who now

In endlesse night his needy age consumes.
The youthfull sons of Boreas, rais'd with plumes,
Those greedy Harpyes, with the virgin sace,
Far-off from his polluted table chace.
They, under tasen, having suffer'd much;
At length the banks of slimy Phasis touch.
Now Phryxus sleece the hardy Minya aske:
And from the King receive a dreadfull taske.

Meane-while Æêtias fries in secret fires: Who strugling long with ouer-strong desires, When reason could not such a rage restraine; She said : Medea, thou resists in vaine. Some God, vnknowne, with-stands. What will this protte! Or is it fuch as others fancie, loue? Why seeme the Kings commands so too seucre? And so, in truth they be. Why should I feare A ftrangers ruine, neuer feene before? Whence spring these cares? Why feare I more and more? Thele furies from thy virgin breft repell, Wretch, if thon canst. Could I, I should be well. A new-felt force my firiting powers inuades: Affection this, discretion that, perswades. I see the better, I approue it too: The worle' I follow. Why shouldst thou pursue A husband of an other world; that art Of royall birth? Our country may impart A choice as worthy. If this forrein mate; Or liue, or dye; 't is in the hands of fate. Yet, may he live! I fuch a fute might move To equall Gods, although I did not loue. For what hath Iafon done? his hopefull Youth

Would move all hearts, that were not hard, to ruth;

His birth, his valour. Set all these apart; His person would: I am sure it moues my heart. Yet should not I assist, the flaming breath Of Bulls would blast him; or, asfaults of death pring vp in armes from Tellus hostill womb: Or else the greedie Dragon proues his tomb. This suffer, and thou hast a heart of stone; Borne of a Tygreffe, and more fauage growne. Yet why stand I not by? behold him slaine? And with that spectacle my eyes profane?
Adde fury to the Bulls? to th' Earth-borne ire? And sleeplesse Dragon with more spleene inspire? The Gods forbid! yet rather helpe, than pray. My fathers kingdome shall I then betray? And saue this fellow, whom I hardly know, That sau'd by me, he should without me goe, Marry an other, and leave me behind Fo punishment? could he proue so vnkind, Or for an other my deferts neglect; Then should he dye. Such is not his aspect; The clearnesse of his mind; his every grace; To seare deceir, or censure him so base. Besides, before hand he shall plight his troth: And bind the contract by a solemne oath. What need thou doubt? goe on; delay decline: Obliged lason will be euer thine. Hymen shall crowne, and mothers celebrate Their sons Protectresse through th' Achaian State. My sister, brother, father, country, Gods, Shall I abandon for vnknowne abodes? Austere my father, barbarous my land, My brother, a child; my fifters wishes stand

174 Metamorphosis.

With my defires; the greatest God of all My brest inshrines. What I forsake, is small: Great hopes I follow. To receive the grace For Arge's fafetie: know a better place And Cities, which, in thefe far-diftant parts, Are famous; with civilitie, and arts: And Æfins fon, whom I more dearely prize Than wealthy Earth and all her Monarchies. In him most happy, and affected by The bounteous gods, my crown shall reach the sky. They tell of Rocks that juftle in the maine: Charybdis, that fucks in, and casts againe The wrackfull waves; how rau'nous Seyl'a waits With barking dogs in rough Sicilian straits. My loue possest; in Iasons besome laid; Let scasswell high: I cannot be dismaid While I infold my husband in my armes. Or should I feare, I should but feare his harmes. Call'st thou him husband? wilt thou then thy blame Medea, varnish with an honest name? Confider well what thou intendst to doe; And, while thou maift, so foule a crime eschue. Thus she. When honour, pictie, the right, Before her stood; and Cupid put to flight. Then goes where Hecates old Altar stood; O're-shadowed by a dark and secret wood. Her broken ardor she had now reclaim'd: Which lasons presence forth-with re-inflam'd. Her checks blush fire: her face with feruor flashes. And as a dying cinder, rak't in ashes, Fed by reuiuing windes, augmenting, glowes; And toffed, to accustom'd fury growes:

So fickly Loue, which late appear'd to dye; New life affum'd from his inflaming eye. Whose looks by chance more beauty now discouer Than heretofore: you might forgiue the louer. Her eager eyes she rivets on his face; And, frantick, thinks him of no humane race: Nor could divert her lookes. As he his tongue Began t'vnloose, her faire hand softly wrung, Implor'd her aide, and promis'd her his bed: She answer made, with tearrs profusely shed. I see to what cuents m' intentions moue: Nor ignorance deceives me thus; but loue. You, by the vertue of my art, shall live :: In recompence, your faithfull promise giue: He, by the Altar of the Triple Powre, The groues which that great Deity imbowre, Her fathers Sire, so whom the hid appeares, His owne successe, and so great danger, sweares Beleeu'd : from her th' inchanted herbs receives : With them, their vse : and his Protectreffe leaues. The Morrow had the sparkling stars defac't:

When all in Marse's field affemble; plac't
On circling ridges. Seated on a throne,
The inory-scepter'd King in scarlet shone.
From adamant nostrils bras-hoou'd Buls now cast.
Hot Vulcan, and the grasse with vapors blast.
And as full forges, blowne by art, resound;
As puluer'd flints, insurnest under ground;
By sprinkled water fire conceine: so they Pent slames, inuolu'd in noysefull brests, betray;
So rumble their scorcht throtes. Yet As ons Heire
Came brauely on: on whom they turne, and stare

Metamorphosis.

176

With terrible aspects; his ruine threat Vith steele-tipt hornes. Inrag'd, their cleft hooues beat The thundring ground; whence clouds of dust arise; and with their smoky bellowings rend the skies. The Minye freeze with feare; but he remaines Intoucht: such vertue Sorcery containes. Their dew-laps boldly with his hand he strokes. nfore't to draw the plough with heavy yokes. The colchians at so strange a fight admire: The Minye shout, and set his powres on fire. Then, in his caske, the vipers teeth assumes: Those in the turn'd-vp furrowes he inhumes. Earth mollifies the poys'nous feeds, which spring; And forth a haruest of new People bring. And as an Embrion, in the womb inclos'd, Assumes the forme of man; within compos'd, Through all accomplishenumbers; nor comes forth To breathe in ayre, till his maturer growth: so when the bowels of the teeming Earth Grew great, the gaue mens perfect thapes their birth. And, what's more ftrange; with them, their armes ascend: Who at th' Æmonian Youth their lances bend. When this th' Achaians faw, they hung the head: And all their courages for terror fled. Euen the, who had fecur'd him was affraid, When the beheld fo many one inuade. A chil cold checks her bloud; death looks lesse pale. And left the hearbs she gaue should chance to faile; Vnheard auxiliarie charmes imparts: And calls th' affistance of her secret Arts. He hurles a massic stone among his focs: Who on themselves convert their deadly blowes.

The Earth-borne brothers mutuall wounds destroy, And civill warre. The Achives skip for ioy, And throng t' imbrace the Victor. Her the same Affection spurd, but was with-held by shame. Yet that too weake if none had lookt vpon her: Not vertue checkt her, but the wrack of honor. Now, in conceit, the hugs him in her armes: Applauds th' inuentine Gods; with them, her charmes To make the Dragon fleepe that neuer flept, Remaines; whose care the golden purchace kept. Bright crested, triple tongu'd; his cruell iawes Arm'd with sharpe phangs; his feet with dreadfull clawer When once besprinkled with Lethaan iuyce, And words repeated thrice; which sleepe produce, Calme the rough seas, and make swift rivers stand; His eye-lids vail'd to fleepes vnknowne command. The Heros, of the Golden Fleece possest, Proud of the spoyle, with her whole fauour bles His enterprize, an other Spoyle, now bore To fea; and lands on fafe telcian shore.

Æmonian parents, for their fons returne,
Bring gratefull gifts, coniected incense burne;
And chearfully with horne-gist offrings pay
Religious vowes. But Æfon was away;
Oppress with tedious age, now neere his tomb.
When thus Æfonides: O wise, to whom
My life I owe: though all I hold in chiece
From thy deserts, which far surpasse beliese;
If magick can (what cannot magick do?)
Take yeeres from me; and his with mine renue.
Then wept. His pietie her passion stirs:
Who sighs to thinke how valike she had beene to hers.

Yel

Metamorphosis.

Yet this concealing, answers: What a crime Hath slipt thy tongue? thinkst thou, that with thy time I can, or will, anothers life inuest?

Hecat' fore-fend! nor is't a just request.

Yet Iason, we a greater gift will give:

Thy father, by our art renew'd, shall live, Without thy losse; if so the triple Powre

173

Affift me with her presence in that howre.

Three nights yet wanted, ere the Moone could joyne.

Her growing hornes. When with replenish thine
She fac't the earth; the Court she leaves; her haire Vntrest, her garments loose, her ankles bare:
And wanders through the dead of drowsie Night
With vnseene steps. Men, beasts, and birds of slight,
Deepe Rest had bound in humid gyues; who crept
So silently, as if her selfe had slept.

No Aspen wags, moyst ayre no sound receives; Stars onely fhine; to which her armes she heaves; Thrice turnes about; besprinkles thrice her crowne

Thrice turnes about; besprinkles thrice her crowne With gather'd deaw; thrice yawnes; and kneeling downs

O Night, thou friend to Secrets; you cleare fires,
That, with the Moone, succeed when Day retires:
Great Hecate, that know st, and aid imparts
To our designes: you Charmes, and magick Arts:
And thou, O Earth, that to Magicians yeelds
Thy powerfull simples: aires, winds, mountaines, sields;
Soft murmuring springs, still lakes, and rivers cleare:
You Gods of woods; you Gods of night, appeare!
By you, at will, I make swift streames retire
To their first sountaynes, whilst their banks admire;

Scas tosse, and smooth; cleere clouds, with clouds desorme; Stormes turne to calmes, and make a calme a Storme.

With

With spels and charmes I breake the Vipers iaw, Cleaue folid rocks, okes from their feasures draw, Whole Woods remoue, the ayrie mountaines shake; Earth grone, and ghosts from beds of death awake. And thee, Titania, from thy Sphere I hale: Though ringing Cymballs thy extreames availe. Our charmes thy charriot pale; our poys'nous weeds, The frighted Morne; though drawne by rosie Steeds. Flame-breathing buls you tam'd; you made them bow Their stubborne necks vnto the seruill plow; The Serpents brood by you selfc-slaughtred lyes; Your flumbers clos'd the wakefull Dragons eyes, At our command: and fent the Golden Fleece (The guard deluded) to the towres of Greece. Now need I drugs, that may old age indue With vigour, and the flowre of youth renuc. Which you shall give. Nor blaze these stars in vaine: Nor Dragous vainly through the ayrie maine This Charriot draw. Hard by the charriot rests. Mounting, the strokes the bridled dragons crefts; And shakes the raignes. Rapt vp beneath her spics The falian Tempe; and her snakes applies To parts retir'd. The hearbs that Offa beare, Steepe Pelion, Othrys, Pindus; cuer-cleare Olympus, who the loftic Pindus tops: Vp-roots, or with her brazen Cycle crops. Much gathers on the bank of Apidan ; By Amphrysus much; and where Enipeus ran. Nor Sperchius, nor Peneus, barren found: Nor thee smoothe Babes with sharpe rushes erown'd. And raught from Enboian Anthedon. That hearb, as yet by Glanens change ynknownes.

By winged Dragons drawne, nine nights, nine dayes, About the romes; and every field furuayes. Return'd: her Snakes, that did but onely smell The Odors, cast their skins, and age expell. Her feete to enter her owne roofe refuse Rooft by the sky: the touch of man eschues. Two Altars builds of living turfe; the right To Hecate, the left to Youth. These dight With Vervin and greene boughs; hard by, two pits. She forthwith digs: and facrificing, flits The throtes of black-fleeft rams. With reaking blood The ditches fils; and powres thereon a flood Of honey, and new milke, from turn'd-vp bowles; Repeating powerfull words. The King of Soules, His rauitht Queene, inuokes; and Powers beneath, Not to prevent her by old Æsons death. With pray'rs, and long-breath'd murmurings appeas'd. She bids them to produce the age-diseas'd. Her sleepe-producing charme his spirits deads: Who on the graffe his senselesse body spreads. Charg'd lafon, and the reft, far-off with-drew : Vnhallowed eyes might not such secrets view. Furious Medea, with her haire vnbound, About the flagrant Altar trots a Round. The brands dips in the ditches, black with blood; And on the Altars fires th'infected wood. Thrice purges him with waters, thrice with flames, And thrice with sulphur smuttering horrid names. Meane while, in hollow braffe the med'cine boyles : And fivelling high, in fomy bubbles toyles. There seethes she what th' Amonian vales produce; Rootes, inyces, flowres, and feeds of foueraigne vie.

The Seventh Booke.

Addes pretious stones, from farthest Orient rest: And pibles, by the ebbing Ocean left. The deaw collected ere the Dawning springs: A Screech-owles flesh, with her infamous wings. The entrailes of ambiguous Wolues; that can-Take, and forfake the figure of a man. The liver of a long-liv'd Hart: then takes The scaly skins of small cinyphean snakes. A Crowes black head, and poynted beake, was caft Among the rest; which had nine ages past-These, and a thousand more, without a name, Were thus prepared by the barbarous Dame For humane benefit. Th'ingredients now She mingles with a wither'd olive bough. Lo! from the caldron the dry flick receives First virdure; and a little after, leaues; Forth-with, with ouer-burdning Oliues deckt. The skipping spume which vnder flames eiect, Vpon the ground descended in a dew: Whence vernall flowres, and springing pasture grew. This seene, she cuts the old mans throte; out-scrus'd His scarce-warmeblood, and her receipt infus'd. Suckt in at mouth or wound, his beard and head Black haire forth-with adorne, the hoary shed. Pale colour, morphue, meger looks remoue: And vnder-rifing flesh his wrinkles smoothe. His limmes wax strong and lustic. Afon much. Admires his change: himselfe remembers such Twice twenty summers past. With alk indu'd. A youthfull mind; and both at once renew'd. This wonder from on high Lyaus views: By Colchis gift his nurses dates renewes.

Leal

Metamorphosis.

182

Least fraud should faile; she, with her bed's Consort Diffention faines, and flies to Pelias Court. His daughters (for lad Age the King arrests) Her entertaine. Who soone with sly protests Of forged loue allures their quick beliefe. Among her merits mentions the repriefe Of Æsons yeares; infisting on that part. This hope ingenders, that her able Art Might so their father's vanisht youth restore: Whom they, with infinite rewards implore. She, mufing, feemes to doubt : and, with pretence Of difficultie, holds them in suspence. But when she had a tardy promise made; To win your stedfast confidence ( she said ) Take from your flocks the most age-shaken Ram; And suddenly he shall become a Lamb. Streight thither by the wreathed hornes they drew A funk-ey'd Ram; whose youth none living knew. Now, at his riueled throte, out-lanching life (Whose little blood could hardly staine her knife) is carkasse she into a caldron throwes: lith it, her drugs. Each limb more slender growes; He casts his hornes, and with his hornes his yeares: Anon a tender bleating strikes their cares. While they admire, out skips a frisking lamb; That sports, and seekes the vdder of his dam. Fixt with aniaze: they, strongly now possest; Her promise more importunately prest. Thrice Phabus had vnyok't his panting Steeds, Drencht in Iberian Seas; whist Night succeeds, Studded with stars: when falle Medea tooke,

With vselesse herbs, meere water of the brooke.

On Pelias, and his drowfic Guard, she hung A death-like fleepe with her inchanting tongue. Whom now the fo-instructed fisters led Into his chamber; and besiege his bed.

Why paule you thus, said she, ô slow to good! Vnsheath your swords, and shed his aged blood; That I his veines with sprightly iuyce may fill: His life and youth depend vpon your will.

If you have any vertue, nor purfue

Vnfruitfull hopes, performe this filiall due. With steele your fathers age expulse, and purge His dregs through wounds. Their zeale her speeches vrge. Who were most pious, impious first became:

And, by auoyding, perpetrate the same.

Yet hearts they had not to behold the blow: But, with auerted lookes, blind wounds bestow.

He, blood-imbrew'd, his hoary head aduanc't: Halfe-mangled, stroue to rise. Who now intranc't

Amidst so many swords, his armes vp-held; And, Daughters, cry'd, what doe you! what compeld

Those cruell hands t'inuade your fathers life! Downe funke their hands and hearts. Medea's knife's With following speech his throte asunder cuts:

And his hackt limmes in feething liquor puts.

And had not Dragons rapt her through the skies Reuenge hadtortur'd her. Aloft the flies Ore shady Pelien, god-like chirens Den, Aspiring Othrys, hills renown'd by men For old cerambus fafety: who, by aide Of fauouring Nymphs, reliefefull wings displaide; While swallowing wanes the waighty earth surround: And swolne Deucations surges scap't vndrown'd.

Aglian.

184

Aulian Pitane on her left hand leaves; That marble which the Serpents shape receives; Idean groues, where Liber turn'd a Steere (To cloke his sons slye thest) into a Deere; The fand-heape which corytus Sire containes; And where new-barking Mera frights the plaines: Euryphylus towne, where hornes the Matrons sham'd Of co, when Hercules the Coans tam'd; Phabeian khodes; Ialysian Telchines, Drencht by loues vengeance in his brothers fcas, For all transforming with their vitious eyes: By caa's old Cartheian turrets flyes, Where fate's Aicidamas with wonder moue, To thinke his daughter could become a Doue: Then Hyries lake, Cycneian Tempe view'd, Grac'rby a Swan with sudden plumes indu'd. For Phyllius there, had, at a Boyes command, Wild birds, and faluage Lyons, brought to hand. Who bid to tame a Bull, his will perform'd; Yet at so fterne a loue not seldome storm'd, And his last purchase to the boy deny'd. Pouting, You'l wish you had given it me, he cry'd; And jumpt from downe-right cliffs. All held him bain'd ; When spredding wings a siluer Swan sustain'd His Mother (ignorant thereof) became A Lake with weeping: which they Hyrie name. Next Pleuron lies; where Ophian Combe shuns. With trembling wings, her life purfuing fons. Then neere Latena-lou'd Galaurea rang'd; In which the King and Queene to birds were chang'd. Cyllene on the right hand ( where the beaft Menephron would his mother have comprest) Cepbisus

The Seventh Booke.

cephisus spies (who for his nephew mourn'd; nto a Sea-calfe by Apollo turn'd ). Eumelus Court, whose daughter sads her Sire, With mounting wings. Her Snakes at length retire. To Piren, Ephyr: men, if Fame say true, Here at the first from shower-rayed mushrumps grew. But after colchis had the new-wed Dame, And creons Pallace, wrapt in Magick flame; When impious steele her childrens bloud had shed, The ill-reveng'd from Iafons fury fled. Whom now the swift Titanian Dragons draw To Pallas towres. Those thee, just Phineus, saw; And thee, old Peripbas, at once to flie: Where Polyphemons Neece new wings supply. Ægæus entertaines her ( of his life The onely staine ) and took her for his wife. Here The feus maskt vnknown: who, great in Deed Had two-sea'd Isthmos from oppression freed. Whose vndescrued ruin Phasias sought By mortall Aconite, from Scithia brought. This from Echidna's hel-hound effence drawes. There is a blind steepe caue with foggy iawes, Through which the bold Tirynthian Heros strain'd Drag'd Cerberus, with adamant inchain'd. Who backward hung, and scouling, lookt a-skew On glorious Day; with anger rabid grew: Thrice howles, thrice barks at once, with his three heads; And on the graffe his fpumy poylon sheds. This sprung; attracting from the fruitfull soyle Dire nourithment, and powre of deathfull spoyle. The rurall Swaines, because it takes delight In living rocks, furnam'd it Aconite.

Ezens, by her fly persuasions wonne;
As to a foe, presents it to his sonne.
He took the cup: when by the inory hist
Of Thesens sword, Ezens found her guist;
And struck the potion from his lips. With charmes Ingendring clouds, she scapes his lengthlesse armes.

Though glad of his fons safetic, a chill scare
Shooke all his powers, that danger was so neere.
With fire he feeds the Altars, richly scasts
The Gods with gifts. Whole Hecatombs of beasts
(Their hornes with ribands wreath'd) imbrew the ground.
No day, they say, was cuer so renown'd

Amongst th' Athenians. Noble, vulgar, all, Together celebrate that Festivall.

And fing, when flowing bowles their spirits raise:

Great Theseus, Marathon resounds thy praise

For flaughter of the Cretan Bull. Secure
They live, who Cremyons wasted fields manure.
By thy exploit and bounty. Vulcans Seed
By thee glad Epidaure beheld to bleed.
Immane Procrustes death Cephisia view'd:
Elusis, Cercyon's. Scinis ill indu'de
With strength so much abus'd; who Beeches bent,
And tortur'd bodyes 'twixt their branches rent,
Thou slew'st. The way which to Alcathoë led
Is now secure, inhumane Seyron dead.
The Earth his scatter'dbones a grave deny'd;
Nor would the Sea his hated reliques hide:
Which tossed to and fro, in time became
A solid rock: the rock we Seyron name.
If we thy yeares should number with thy acts;

Thy yeares would proue a cypher to thy facts.

The Seventh Booke.

Great soule! for thee, as for our publique wealth, We pray; and quaffe Lyeus to thy health. The Pallace with the peoples praises rings: And facred loy in euery bosome springs. Ægens yet (no pleasure is compleat: Griefe twins with joy.) for Thefeus lafe receit Reapes little comfort. Minus makes a war: Though strong in men and ships, yet stronger far Through vengeance of a father: who, his harmes In slaine Androgeus, scourgeth with just armes. Yet wisely first endeuours forraine aid: And all the Ilands of that Sea furuai'd. Who Anaphe and Astipalea gain'd; The one by gifts, the other war constrain'd: Low Mycone, Cimolus chalkie fields, High Seyros, Siphnus, which rich metals yeelds, Champion Seriphos, Pares far display'd With marble browes, and cythnos il-betray'd By impious Arne for yet-loued gold; Turn'd to a Chough, whom sable plumes infold. Oliaros, Didyma the Sea-lou'd foyle Of Tenos, Peparethos fat with oyle, Andros, and Gyaros; these their aid deny'd. The Gnossian fleet from thence their sailes apply'd Vnto Oenopia, for her children fam'd. Oenopia by the ancient dwellers nam'd: But Æacus, there raigning, call'd the same Ægina, of his honour'd mothers name. All throng to see a Prince of so great worth. Straight Telamon and Peleus, iffuing forth, With Phocus, youngest of that royall race, Make hafte to meet him. With a tardie pace

Metamorphosis.

Came aged Æacus, and askt the cause
Of his repaire. At those sad thoughts he drawes
His breath in sighs: some intermission made,
The Ruler of the hundred Cities said.
Affist our armes, borne for my murdred son;
And in this pious war our fortunes run:
Giue consfort to his graue. The King reply'd:
In vaine you aske what needs must be deny'd.
No Citie is in stricter league than ours
Conion'd to Athens: mutuall are our powres.
He, parting, said; Your league shall cost you deare.
And held it better far to threat, than beare
An accidentall warre; whereby he might

188

Consume his force before he came to fight. Yet might they see the Cretans under saile From high built walls: when, with a leading gale, The Attick ship attain'd their friendly shore: Which cephalus, and his embassage, bore. Th' Æacides him knew (though many a day Vnscene ) imbrace, and to the Court conuay. The goodly Prince, who yet the pledges held Of those perfections, which in youth exceld, Enters the Pallace; bearing in his hand A branch of Olive. At his elbowes stand Clytus, and Butes; valorous and young: Who from the loynes of high-borne Pallas sprung. First cephalus his full oration made ; Which shew'd his message, and demanded aid: Their leagues, an ancient loues to mind recalls; And how all Greece was threatned in their falls: With eloquence inforc't his embassic. When God-like Azens made this replie.

(His royall scepter shining in his hand) Athenians, craue not succour, but command: This Ilands forces yours vouchfafe to call; For in your ayde I will aduenture all. Souldiers I have enow, at once t'oppose My enemies, and to repell your foes. The Gods be prais'd, and happy times, that will Seeke no excuscs. May your Citie still Increase with people; Cephalus reply'd. At my approch I not a little ioy'd To meet to many youths of equall yeares, So fresh and lustie. Yet not one appeares Of those who heretofore your towne possest; When first you entertayn'd me for a Guest. Then Æacus, (in fighs his words ascend) A sad beginning had a better end. Would I could veter all: Day would expire Ere all were told, and t'would your patience tire. Their bones, and ashes, filent graves inclose: And what a treasure perished with those! By Iuno's wrath, a dreadfull pestilence Deuour'd our lives: who tooke vniust offence. In that this Ile her Riuals name profest. While it feem'd humane, and the cause vnghest;

So long we death-repelling Physick try'd:
But those diseases vanquisht Art deride.
Heauen first, the earth with thickned vapors shrouds
And lazie heat involves in sullen clouds.
Four pallid moones their growing hornes vnice,

And had as oft with-drawne their feeble light; Yet still the dearh-producing Auster blew. Sunke springs, and standing lakes insected grew:

Serre

Metamorphosis.

190

Serpents in vntild fields by millions creepe; And in the streames their tainting poylons steepe. First, dogs, sheepe, oxen, fowle that flagging fly, And saluage beasts, the swift infection try. Sad Swaines, amazed, fee their oxen shrink Beneath the yoke, and in the furrowes fink. The fleecie flocks with anguish faintly bleat; Let fall their wooll, and pine away with hear, The generous Horse that from th' Clympicks late Return'd with honour, now degenerate, Vnmindfull of the glory of his prize; Grones at his manger, and there deedleffe dyes. The Bore forgets his rage: swift feet now faile The Hart: nor Beares the horned Herd affaile. All languish. Woods, fields, paths (no longer bare) Are fil'd with carkasses, that stench the aire. Which neither dogs, nor greedy fowle (how much To be admir'd!) nor hoary wolues would touch. Falling, they rot: which deadly Odors bred, That round about their dire contagion spred. Now raues among the wretched country Swaines: Now in our large and populous Citie raignes. At first, their bowels broyle, with feruor stretcht: The symptoms; rednesse, hot wind hardly fetcht. Their furd tongs swell; their drie iawes gasp for breath; And with the ayre inhale a swifter death. None could indure or couerture, or bed: But on the stones their panting bosoms spred. Cold stones could no way mitigate that heat: Euen they beneath those burning burdens sweat. None cure attempt: the sterne Disease inuades The heartlesse Leech; nor Arther author aids.

The

The neere ally'd, whose care the fick attends, Sicken themselues, and dye before their friends. Of remedy they fee no hope at all, But onely in approching funerall. All cherish their desires: for helpe none care: Help was there none. In shamelesse throngs repaire To forings and wells: there cleave, in bitter strife l'extinguish thirse; but first extinguish life. Nor could th'o're-charg'd arise; but dying, sink: And of those tainted waters, others drink. The wretches lothe their tedious beds: thence breake With giddy steps. Or, if now growne too weake, Roule on the floore: there quitted houses hate, As guilty of their miserable fate; And, ignorant of the cause, the place accuse; Halfe-ghosts, they walk, while they their legs could vic. You might fee others on the earth lye mourning; Their heavy eyes with dying motion turning: Stretching their armes to heaven, where euer death Surpris'd them, parting with their figh't-out breath. O what a heart had I! or ought to haue! I loth'd my life, and wisht with them a grave. Which way focuer I convert my eye, The breathlesse multitude dispersed lye. Like perisht apples, dropping with the strokes Of rocking windes; or acornes from broad okes. See you yon' Temple, mounted on high staires? Tis I upiters. Who hath not offer'd praiers, And flighted incense there! husbands for wives Fathers for sons: and while they pray, their lines Before th'inexorable altars vent: With incense in their hands, halfeyet vnspents!

How of the oxe, vnto the temple brought. While yet the Priest the angry Powres belought, And pour'd pure wine betweene his hornes; fell downe Before the axe had toucht his curled crowne! To Inpiter about to facrifice. For me, my country, fons; with horrid noyle Th'vnwounded Offering fell: the blood that life Bore into exile, hardly staind the knife. The Inwards lost their fignes of heavens prelage; Out-raized by the sterne Diseases rage. The dead before the facred doores were laid: Before the Altars too; the Gods t'ypbraid. Some choke thenselves with cords: by death eschue The feare of death; and following Fates pursue. Dead corps, without the Dues of funerall, They weakly beare: the ports are now too small. Or vn-inhum'd they lye: or else are throwne On wealthlesse pyles. Respect is given to none. For Pyles they friue : on those their kinsfolke burne. That flame for others. None are left to mourne. Ghosts wander vndeplor'd by sons or fires:

Nor is there roome for tombs, or wood for fires.

Aftonisht with these tempests of extreames:

O love, said I, if they be more than dreames
That wrapt thee in Ægina's armes; nor shame
That I, thy son, should thee my father name:
Render me mine, or render me a grave!
With prosperous thunder-claps a signe he gave.
I take it, said I; let this Omen be
A happy pledge of thy intents to me;
Hard by, a goodly Oke, by fortune, stood,
Sacred to love; of Dedoncian wood:

- Graine-

Graine-gathering Ants there, in long files I faw, it Whose little mouthes selfe-greater burthens draw; Keeping their paths along the rugged rine. While Ladmire their number: O divine, while Man And cuer helpfull I give to me, faid Is and south in the As many men; who may the dead supply a continuous The trembling oke his loftie top declin'd: And murmured without a breath of wind. I shooke with scare; my tresses thood an end; we lotted Xenon the earth and oke I kiffes spender a late in ward A durft not seeme to hope; yet hope I did this or grand o't And in my breft my cheritht withes hid and the remod Night came; and Sleepe care-wasted bodies chear'd? Before my cyes the felfe-same Oke appear'd; So many branches, as before, there were; So many busic Ants those branches beare; So shooke the Oke, and with that motion threw To vnder-earth the graine-supporting crew. Greater and greater straight they seeme to sight: To raise themselves from earth, and stand vp-right. Whom numerous feet, black colour, lanknelle leaves and instantly a humane shape receive. Now Sleep with-drew. My dream I waking blames ind on the small-performing Gods exclaime. et heard a mightie noyle; and seem'd to heare Imost forgotten voyces: yet I feare hat this a dreame was also. Whereupon, he doore thrust open, in rushe Telamon : ome forth, said he, O father; and behold hat hope transcends; nor can with faith be told? orth went I; and beheld the men which late y dreame presented: such in enery state

I faw; and knew them. They falute their King.

Ioue prais'd: a partie to the towne I bring;
Among the rest I share the fields: and call
Them Myrmidons of their originall.
You see their persons: such their manners are
As formerly. A people giuen to spare,
Patient of labour; what they get, preserve.
They, like in yeares and mindes, these wars shall serve,
And follow your conduct; when first this wind.
(The wind blew Easterly) that was so kind the original to bring you hither, will to your availance of the conduct it selfe into a Southerne gale.

Discourse thus entertain'd the day; with feasts They crowne the euening: Sleep the Night inuelts. The morning Sun projects his golden rayes: Still Eurus blew; and their departure stayes. Now Pallar sons to Cephalus resort, And Cephalus, with Pallas fons, to Court, With early vifits: (fleepe the King inchaines). at 1916 Whom Photosin the Presence entertaines on the line For Peleur, with his brother Telamon, Jane 1981 To raise an army were already gone. Meane-while th' Athenians Phoeus leads into The Priuy chamber, beautifull to view.

Talking; his eyes vpon the iauclin feaze,
Which grac't the fingers of Edides. I haunt, saidhe, the woods; delight in blood Of saluage beafts; yet know not of what wood stood al Your dart is made of. If of ash it were 'Tould look more brown; if Cornel, 'twould appeare More knotty: on what tree fo'ere it grew, My eyes did neuer fuch another view.

One of th' Acta an brethren made reply: You would more wonder at the quality. It hits the aim'd at, not by fortune led; And of it selfe returnes with flaughter red. Phocus the cause desireth much to know: From whence it came; and who did it bestow. He yeelds to his request; yet things well knowne, Restrain'd by modesty, he lets alone. Who toucht with forrow for his wife, that bleeds .... In his remembrance; thus with teares proceeds. This Dart, ô Goddesse-borne, prouokes these tearest And euer would, if endlesse were my yeares. This me, in my vnhappy wife, destroy'd: This gift I would I neuer had inioy'd! Procris Orithya's fister was; if Fame Haue more inform'd you of Orithya's name. Yet she ( should you their minds and formes confer ) More worth the rape. Erechtheus, mee to her, And loue, vnite. Then happy ! happy, I Might yet have beene. Bur o, the Gods enuy! : durit Two months were now confum'd in chafte delights When gray Aurora, having vanquisht Night, Beheld me on the cuer-fragrant hill Of steepe Hymettus: and, against my will, Is I my toyles extended, bare me thence. may the truth declare without offence: hough rosie be her checks; although she sway as he H he deawy Confines of the Night and Day and Nectar drink; my Process all possess: ly heart was hers; my tongue her prayle profest. told her of our holy nuptiall ties;

of wedlocks breach; and yet scarce tasted ioyes,

Fire-red, she said; thy harsh complaints forbeare: Possesse thy Procris. Though so faire, so deare; Thou'lt wish th'hadst neuer knowne her, if I know Insewing fare: and angry, lers me goe. Her words I ponder as I went along: And 'gan to doubt the might my honour wrong. Her youth and beauty tempt me to distrust: Her vertue checks those feares, as most vniust. But I was absent: but example fed My icalousie: but louers all things dread. I feeke my forrowes; and with gifts intend To tempt the chaste. Aurora proues a friend .... To this suspition; and my forme translates. Vnknowne, I enter the Athenian gates; And then my owne. The house from blame was free: In decent order, and perplext for me. Scarce with a thousand sleights I gain'd a view: View'd with aftonishment, I scarce pursue My first intent: scarce could I but reneale and appeal The truth; and pardon with due killes seale. She was full sad: yet louelier none than she, the Euen in that sadnesse: sorrowfull for me. How excellent, ô Phocus, was that face, Which could in griefe retaine so sweet a grace? What need I tell how often I assail'd Her yexed chastitie! how often fail'd! How often faid the! One I onely ferue: For him, where euer, I my ioyes preserue. What mad man would fuch faith have farther preft, But I? industrious in my owne vnrest. With deepe protests, and gifts still multiply'd, At length the wavers. Falle of faith, I cry'd, Thouart disclos'd : I, no adulterer. But thy wrong'd spouse: nor can this tryall erre. She made no answer, preft with filent shame. Th'infidious house, and me, far more in blame, Forfaking; man-kind for my fake eschues: And Dian-like the mountaine chace pursues. Abandon'd; hotter flames my blood incense. I beg'd her pardon, and confest m'offence: And faid, Aurora might have me subdude With such inticements, had but she so woo'd. My fault confest, her wrong reuenged, wee Grow reconcil'd; and happily agree. Besides her selfe, as though that gift were small, A Dog the gaue: which cynthia giving; All, Said the, furpaffe in swiftnesse: and this Speare You so commend, which in my hand I beare. Doe you the fortune of the first inquire? Receive a wonder: and the fact admire. Dark prophesies, not vnderstood of old,

The Natades with searching wits vnfold. When facred Themis, in that so obscure, Neglected grew: Nor could the this indure. A cruell Beaft infests th' Aonian plaines; To many fatall: fear'd by country Swaines, Both for their cattle, and themselues. We mer: And with our toyles the ample fields befer-He nimbly skips aboue the vpper lines: And mounting ouer, frustrates our designes. Their dogs the vncouple; whose pursuit he out-fprings With no leffe speed, than if supply'd by wings. All bid me let my Lalaps flip (for fo My dog was call'd ) who strugling longlagoe,

Halfo

Halfe-throtled, ftraind the leash. No sooner gone, Than out of fight; his foot-steps left vpon The burning fand: who vanisht from our eyes As swiftly as a well-driven iguelin flyes; Or as a finging pellet from a fling; Or as an arrow from a Cretan ftring. I mount a hill which ouer-topt the place; From thence beholding this admired chace. The Beast now pincht appeares, now shuns by slight His catching lawes. Nor (crafty) runs out-right; Nor trufts his heeles: with nimble turnings shunning His vigent foe; cast back by ouer-running. Who prest, what onely might in speed compare; Appeares to eatch th'vncaught; and mouthes the aire. My dart I take to aide: which, while I shooke, And on the thong direct my haltie looke To fit my fingers; looking vp againe, I faw two marble statues on the plaine. Had you these seene, you could not chuse but say That this appear'd to run, and that to bay.

The Gods decree'd: if Gods descend so low.

Thus he: here paus'd. Then Phoens; Pray'vnfold Your darts offence. Which Cephalus thus told. Ioy griefe fore-runs: that ioy we first recite. For so, those times I mention with delight, When youth and Hymen crown'd our happy life: She, in her husband blest; I in my wife. In both one care, and one affection moues. She would not have exchang'd my bed for loves; Nor Venus could have tempted my desire: Our bosoms stam'd with such an equal fire.

That neither should each other ouer-goe

When Sol had rais'd his beames about the floods; My custome was to trace the leavy woods; Arm'd with this dart, I folitary went, Without horse, huntimen, toyles, or dogs of sent. Much kild; I to the cooler shades repaire: And where the vallie breathes a fresher aire. Coole aire I feeke, while all with feruor gloes: Coole aire expect, my trauels sweet repose. Come aire, I wont to fing, relieue th'oppreft; Come, ô most welcome, glide into my brest: Now quench, as erst, in me this scalding heat. By chance I other blandishments repeat; (So Fates inforce ) as, ô my foules delight! By thee I am fed and chear'd: thy fweets excite My affections to these woods: ô life of death! May cuer I inhale thy quickning breath!

A busic earethese doubtfull speeches caught; Who oft-nam'd aire some much-lou'd Dryad thought: And told to Procris, with a leuder tongue, His false surmises; with the song I sung. Loue is too credulous. With griefe she faints; And scarce reuiuing, buiffs into complaints: My spotlesse faith with furie execrates. Woe's me, she cryes, produc't to cruell fates! Transported with imaginarie blame, What is not, feares: an vnfubstantiall name. Yet grieues (poore soule!) as if in truth abus'd; Yet often doubts; and her distrust accus'd. Now holds the information for a lye: Nor will trust other witnesse than her eye. Aurora re-inthron'd th'infuing Day: I hunt, and speed. As on the grasse I lay,

K 4

Come aire, said I, my tyred spirits cheare. At this an voknowne fighe inuades my eare. Yet I; O come, before all ioyes prefer d. Among the withered leaves a ruftling heard, I threw my dart; supposing it some beast: But ô, 'twas Procesis I wounded on the breit, Shee threekt, ay me! Her voyce too well I knew : And thither, with my griefe diffracted, flew-Halfe dead, all blood-imbrew'd, my wife I found: Her gift (alas!) exhaling from her wound. rais'd her body, than my owne more deare: To bind her wounds my lighter garment teare; And strine to stench the blood. O pitty take, Said I, nor thus a guilty soule forfake! She, weake, and now a dying, thus applies Her tongues fore't motion: By our nuptiall ties: By heauen-imbowred Gods; by those below, To whose infernall monarchy I goe: By that, if euer I deserued well; By this ill-fated loue, for which I fell, Yet now in death most constantly retaine; O, let not Ayre our chaster bed prophane. This faid; I show'd, and she perceived how That error grew: but what avail'd it now? She finkes; her blood along her spirits tooke: Who lookes on me as long as the could looke. My lips her foule receive, with her last breath : Who, now refolued, sweetly smiles in death.

The weeping Hero's told this tragedy
To those that wept as fast. The King drew nye
And his two sons, with wel-arm'd Regiments,
New-rais'd; which he to cephalus presents.

OVIDS

METAMORPHOSIS

The Eighth Booke.

THE ARGUMENT.

Harmonious walls. Leud Scylla now despaires With Nifus, chang'd : the Larke the Hobby dases. Ariadnes Crowne a Confellation made. Th'inventiue youth a Partridge; still affraid Of mounting. Meleagers Sifters mourne Histragedie : to Foule, fo named, turne .. Fine water Nymphs the fine Echinades Defigure. Perimele, neere to thefe, Becomes an Iland, Ioue and Hermes take The formes of men. A Citie turn' da Lakes A Cottage to a Temple. That good pare, Old Baucis and Philemon, changed are At once to facred Trees It various fapes Blew Proteus sports. Oft selfe chang'd Metra feapare Scorn'd feruitude. The Streame of Calydon For fakes his owne, and other hapes puts on.

Ow Lucifer exalts the Day: to hell!
Old Night descends. The Easterne winds now fell;
Moyft clouds arose: when gentle Southerne gales.
Befriend returning Cephalus. Full failes
Wing his successefull course: who, long before;
All expectation, toucht the wished shore.

K.5

Metamorphosis.

202

Meane-while iust Minos wastes Lelegia's coast, And girts Alcothoes Citic with his Hoaft. This Nifus held; whose head a Purple haire, Mong those of honourable filuer, bare: His Kingdomes strength. Sixe aged Moones grew young: Yet warres successe in equall ballance hung. Slow Victorie, not knowing what to doe, With doubtfull wings, twixt either armie flew. A regall Tower, with vocall walls, there stands; Erected by Apollo's lacred hands ; Whercon, they say, his golden Lyre he lay'd; Which then from thence a gratefull found conuay'd. This, Nifus daughter oft ascends alone; And drops small pebbles on the warbling stone; In time of peace. When warre had peace expeld, From thence the conflicts of sterne Mars beheld. By this delay, the Princes names the knowes; Their armes, horse, habits, and cydonian bowes: Europa's Son, the Generall, yet knew, More than the rest; more than 'twas fit to doc. For when he wore his fairely plumed cask; She thought him louely in that warlike mask: Or when his braffe-refulgent thield he rais'd; His gracefull gesture infinitely prais'd. Nor could his practis'd arme let flye a dart; But straight sh'extols his strength, inform'd by arts If he an arrow drew; th'would sweare that so. Apollo stood, when he discharg'd his bow. But when he d'oft his helme, and shew'd his face ; When clad in purple, with a gallant grace, He on his hot-high-bounding Courser sits:

O then the scarce was mistris of her wits!

Happy

Happy she cals the lance his hand sustaines: Happy the cals his hand-fustained raignes. Had Will the powre, she would have madly past Through all the hoffile ranks; her felfe have call Amid the Cretan tents, even from that towre: Or ope the braffe-rib'd gates to Minos powre: Or what he would. Who, musing long, suruay'd The Gnossian Kings white Tent; and foftly faid: Whether I should for this so sad a warre Or ioy, or gricue; within my felfe Liarre. Alas, that he I love should be my foe! I had not knowne him had it not beene for Yet me in hostage might he take: of peace A pledge; his spouse; and bloody broyles surcease. No maruell though a God her beauty tooke: If thee that bare thee had fo fweet a looke. Thrice happy I, could I with wings preuent This dull delay; and flye to Minos tent. My felfe I would disclose, confesse my flame; And buy him, with what dowry he should name; Saue to betray those towers: dye, dye defire, E're I by treason to your ends aspire. Yet, through the Victors clemency, it some, Nay many, hath auail'd, t'haue beene o're-come Just warre he wageth for his Sons sad end: His cause is strong: strong armes his cause defend. Sure we must fall. If such our Cities fate; Why should his powre inthrone him in this States. And not my loue? better, without delay, His fouldiers blood, his owne, he conquer may. For il-presaging feares my rest confound, Least some, not knowing him, should Mines wound:

Metamorphofis.

204

For no heart is so hard, that did but know,
And would a lance against his bosom throw.
It takes: with me, my country I intend
To render vp; and give these warres an end.
What is to intend? Each passage hath a guard;
My sather keepes the keyes, and sees them bard.
'Tis he desers my soyes; 'ris he I dread:
Would I were not, or he were with the dead!
Tush, we are our owne Gods. They thrine, that dare:
And fortune is a foe to slothfull praire.
Long since, an other, scorcht with such a fire,
By death had sore't a way to her desire.
'Yet why should any more aduenturous proue?
I dare through sword and fire make way to Loue.

Yet why should any more aduenturous proue?

I dare through sword and fire make way to Loue.

And yet here is no vie of fire nor sword;

But of my fathers haire. This must afford

What I so much affect, and make me blest:

Richer than all the treasure of the East.

This faid. Night, pure of caree, her survaines dre

This faid; Night, nurse of cares, her curtaines drew: When in the dark she more audacious grew.

In prime of rest, when tyr'd with day-bred cares
Sleepe all inuests; she filently repaires
Into her fathers bed-chamber; and there
Extracts (ô horrid act!) his fatall haire.
Ceas'd of her wicked prey; with her she bore
The guilty spoyle; vnicks a Posterne doore:
Then past the foe (bold by her merit made)
Vnto the King; nor vn-astonisht, said.
Inforc't by Loue, I Scylla, Nijus Seede,
Yeeld vp my Country, and my Gods: no meede,
But thee, I craue, This purple haire receive,
My loues rich pledge; nor thinke a haire I give,

But my old fathers head. With that, prefents. The gift with wicked hand, and bad oftents. Minos rejects it: and much terrifide With horror of so foule a deede, replide: The Gods exile thee (O thou most abhord!) Their world; to thee nor Land nor Sea afford. How-cre loues Creete, the world wherein I raigne, Shall fuch a Monster neuer entertaine. This faid: the most just Victor doth impose. Lawes, no leffe iust, vpon his vanquisht foes. Then orders, that they forth with ores conuay Abord the brasse-beakt ships, and anchors waye. When Scylla faw the Gnossian nauy-fwim; And that her treason was abhor'd by him: To violent anger the conuerts her prayers. And Furie-like, with stretcht armes and spred haires Cry'd; Whither fly'st thou? leaving me for-lore, That conquest-crown'd thee? ô preferd before My Country! Father! 't was not thou didft win;

But I that gaue: my merrit, and my fin. Not this; not such affection, could perswade: Nor that on thee I all my hopes had layd. For whither should I goe, thus left alone? What? to my Country? that's by me o're-thrown Wer't not? my treason doomes me to exile. Or to my father; given vnto thy spoyle? Me worthily the Citizens will hate: And neighbours feare th'example in their State.

I, out of all the world my selfe have throwne, To purchase an accesse to Creet alone. Which if deny'd; and left to fuch despaire's Europa ne'r one so yngratefull bare:

But swallowing Syrt's, charybdis chaft with wind; Or some fell Tygres of th' Armenian kind. Ioue's not thy father; nor with forged shape Of Bull beguild, thy mother culd her rape. That story of thy glorious race is faind: For thee a wild and loueleffe Bull fuftaind. O father Nifus, thy reuenge behold! Reioyce, O Citie, by my treason, sold! Death, I confesse, I merit. Yet would I Might, by their hands whom I have injur'd, dye. For why shouldst thou, who onely didst subdue By my offending, my offence pursue? My Country and my father felt this sinne: Which vnto thee a courtese hath beene. Thou worthy art of such a wife, as stood A Bulls hot incest in a Cow of wood; Whose shamelesse womb a monstrous burthen bare. Ah! doe my forrowes to thy eares repaire? Or are my fruitlesse words borne by that wind That brares thee hence, and leaves a wretch behind? What though Pasiphae a Bull preferd? Thou far more brutish than the saluage Herd. Woe's me! make hast I must : the waves with orce Resound; his ship forsakes, with vs, our shores. In vaine! I'le follow thee vngratefull King: And while I to thy crooked veffell cling Be drag'd through drenching seas. This having said Attempts the waves, by Cupids strengthning aid, And cleaves t'his ship. Her father, now high-flowne Strikes ayrie rings (a red-maild Hobbie growne) And stoopes to cuff her with his golden feares. She flips her hold, infeebled by her feares.

While yet a falling, that she might eschue The threatning sea, light wings ther shoulders grew. Now changed to a bird in fight of all :

This, of her tufted crowne we ciris call. No fooner Minos toucht the Cretan ground, Butby an hundred Buls, with garlands crown'd. His vowes to conquest-giuing love he payd: And all his pallace with the spoyle arrayd. And now his families reproch increast.

That vncouth prodigie, halfe man, halfe beaft,

His mothers dire adultery descryd.

Minos resolues his marriage shame to hide In multitude of roomes, perplext and blind

The work t'excelling Dedalus affignd. Who sense distracts, and error leades a maze

Through subtill ambages of fundry wayes. As Phrygian Meander sports about

The flowrie vales; now winding in, now out; Himselfe incounters, sees his following floods,

His streames leades to their springs; and, doubling scuds

To long mockt seas: so Dædalus compil'd Innumerable by-wayes, which beguild

The fenses conduct; that himselfe with much Adoc returnes: thefallacies were fuch.

When in this fabrick Mines had inclos'd This double forme, of man and beaft compos'de The Monster, with Athenian bloud twice fed,

His owne, the third Lot, in the ninth yeare, shed, Then by a Clew reguided to the doore

( A virgins counsell) neuer found before

Agides, with rapt Ariadne, makes

Metamorphosis.

208

His confident and scepe-oppressed Mate.

Now, pining in complaints, the desolate

Bacchus, with marriage, comforts: and that she Might glorious by a Constellation be;

Her head vnburthens of her crowne, and threw

It vp to heauen: through thinner ayre it flewFlying, the iewels that the verge inchace

Conuert to fires; fast-fixed in one place;

Th' old forme retaining. They their station take,

Twixt Him that Kneeles, and Him who holds the Snake.

The Sea-impris' ned Dadalus, meane-while,

Weary of Creet, and of his long exile; Toucht with his countries loue, and place of birth; Thus faid: Though Minos bar both sea aud earth; Yet heaven is free. That course attempt I dare: Held he the world, he could not hold the ayre. This faid; to arts ynknowne he bends his wits In natures change. The quils in order knits, Beginning with the least: the longer still The short succeeds; much like a rising hill. Their rurall pipes, the shepheards, long agoe, (Fram'd of vnequall reeds) contriued fo. With threds the midst, with wax he ioynes the ends And these, as naturall wings, a little bends. Young Icarus stood by, who little thought That with his death he playd; and smiling, caught The feathers that lay hulling in the ayre: Now chafes the yellow waxe with busic care, And interrupts his Sire. When his last hand

He had impos'd; with new-made wings he fand.

The ayre that bare them. Then inftructs his fon g:

Be fure that in the middle courfe thou run.

Dank

Dank seas will clog the wings that lowly flye: The Sun will burnethem if thou for'ft too high. Twixt either keepe. Nor on Bootes gaze, Nor Helice, nor sterne Orions rayes: But follow me. At once he doth aduife; And vnknowne pinions to his shoulders ties. Amid his work and words a tyde of teares Fret his old checks, who trembling fingers reares. Then kift him neuer to be kiffed more: And rais'd on lightfome feathers flies before; His feare behind: as birds through boundleffe sky From ayerie nests produce their yong to fly; Exhorts to follow: taught his banefull skill; Waves his owne wings, his fons observing still. Thefe, while some Angler, fishing with a cane; Or Shepheard, leaning on his staffe; or Swaine; With wonder viewes: he thinks them Gods that glide Through ayrie regions. Now on the left side Leaues Iuno's Samos, Delos, Paros white, Lebynthos, and Calydna on the right, Flowing with hony. When the boy, much tooke With pleasure of his wings, his Guide forfooke: And rauisht with defire of heaven, aloft Ascends. The odor-yeelding wax more soft By the swift Suns vicinitie now grew: Which late his feathers did together glew. That thaw'd; he shakes his naked armes, that bare, As then no faile, nor could containe the ayre. When crying, Helpe, ô father! his exclaime Blew Seas supprest, which tooke from him their name. His father, now no father, left alone, Cryde Icarus! where art thou? which way flowne?

What region, learns, doth thee containe.
Then spies the feathers floting on the Maine.
He curft his arts; interres the corpse, that gaue
The land a name, which gaue his some a graue.
The Partridge from a thicker him for a graue.

The Partridge from a thicket him suruayd; As in a tombe his wretched fon he layd; Who clapt his fanning wings, and lowdly churd T' expresse his ioy: as then an onely bird. So made of late (vnknowne in former time) O Dadalus, by thy eternall crime. To thee thy Sifter gaue him to be taught; Who little of his destinie fore-thought: The boy then twelue yeare aged; of a mind Apt for instruction, and to Arts inclind. He Sawes invented, by the bones that grow In fishes backs; the steele indenting so. And two-shankt Compasses with river bound; Th' one to stand still, the other turning round In equall distance. Dadalus this stung: Who from Minerua's facred turret flung The enui'd head-long; and his falling faincs. Him Pallas, fautor of good wits, sustaines: Who straight the figure of a foule assumes; Clad in the midst of ayre with freekled plun es. The vigor of his late swift wit now came Into his feet, and wings: he keepes his name. They never mount aloft, nor trust their birth To tops of trees; but fleck as low as earth, And lay their egs in tufts. In mind they beare Their ancient fall, and haughtie places feare.

Tyr'd Dedaius now in Sicula lights: In whose defence hospitious Cocalus fights.

Now Athens by Ægeus glorious Seed Was from her lamentable tribute freed. They crowne their Temples: warlike Pallas, loue, Inuoke; with all the Deities aboue. Whom now they honour with the large expence Ofbloud, free gifts, and heapes of frankineenle. Vast fame through all th' Argolian cities spred His praise: and all that rich Achaia fed His aid in their extremities intreat, His aid afflicted calydon (though great In Meleager) fought. The cause a Bore: Dian's reuenge, and horrid Servatore. For Oeneus, with a plenteous haruest blest; To ceres his first fruits of corne addrest, To Pallas oyle, and to Lyaus wine. Ambitious honours all the Powres diuine Reape from the rurals; yer neglect to pay Diana dues; her Altars empty lay. Anger affects the Gods. This will not we Vnpunisht beare: nor vnrcueng'd, said she, Though vn-adored, shall they vant webc. With that the fent into Oeniean fields A vengefull Bore. Rank-graft Epirus yeelds No big-bon'd bullock of a larger breed: But those are lesse which in Sicilia feed. His eyes blaze bloud and fire: his stiffe neck beares Horrible briftles, like a groue of speares. A boyling fome vpon his shoulders flowes From grinding lawes: his tushes equall those Of Indian Elephants: his fell mouth casts Hot lightning; and his breath the virdure blafts. He tramples under foot the growing corne;

And leaves the fighing husband-man forlorne; Reaping the riper eares. Their vsuall graine The barnes and threshing floores expect in vaine. Broad-spreading vines he with their burden, sheres: And boughs from euer-leauy oliues teares. Then falls on beafts: the Herdimen, now vnfeard; Nor dogs, nor raging Buls, defend their Herd. The people flye; nor are secure of mind In walled townes, till Meleager, ioyn'd With youths of choycest worth, inflam'd with praise, Attempts his death. The twin'd Tyndarides; One for his horsemanship, the other fam'd For hurle-bats; lason, who the first ship fram'd; Theseus with his Pirithous, a paire Of happy friends; and Lynceus, Aphar's heire; The two Thestiade, Leucippus crownd For strength; Acastus for his dart renownd; Swift Idas, Caneus, not a maiden then; Hippothous, Dryas; Phanix (best ofmen,) A mynters issue; both th' Actorides, And Phyleus sent from Elis, came with these: Pheretes hope; aduenturous Telamon; And he who call'd the great Achilles fon; Hyantian löläus, the, quick grac't Eurytion; and Echion, who surpast In running; Lelex the Narycian, With Panopaus, Hyleus, Hippalan, Now youthfull Neffor : fons to that intent Hippocoon from old Amyclis sent: Penelopes father in law, Parrasia-bred Anceus, wise Ampycides well read In faces; Oiclides, not as yet betrayd

B' his wife; Tegezan, Atalant'; a maide
Of passing beautie, sprung from Schanus race;
Of high Lycan woods the onely grace.
A possific Zone her upper garment bound;
And in one knot her artlelle haire was wound; n
Her arrowes iuory guardian clattering hung
On her lest shoulder; and a bow well strung
Her lest shand held. Her lookes a wench displayd
In a boyesface, a boyes face in a maide.
The Calydonian Heros her beheld
And witht at once: his wishes fate repeld.
Who lurking slames attracts; and said, O blest
Is he, whom thou shalt with thy ioyes inuest!
But time, and shame, with further speech dispence:

Vrg'd by a work of greater confequence.

A Wood o're-growne with trees, yet neuer feld.

Mounts from a Plaine, that all beneath beheld.
The glory-thirfting Gallants this alcend.
Forth-with a part their corded toyles extend,
Some hounds vncouple; some the tract of feet
Together trace: and danger long to meet.
A Dale there was, through which the raine-rais'd flood
Oft tumbled downe, and in the bottom freod.
Repleat with plyant willowes, marish weeds,
Sharpe rushes, ofiers, and long slender reeds.
The Bore from thence dislode d, like lightning crusht
Through justiling clouds, among the hunters rushe.
Beares downe the obuious trees; the crashing woods
Report their fall. The youths each others bloods

With high-rais'd shoots inflame: who keepe their stands: And shake their broad-tipt speares with threatning hands. The dogs he scatters; those that durst oppose

His

Metamorphosis.

214

His horrid furie, wounds with ganching blowes. Echion first his iauelin vainly cast, Which struck a beech. The next his sides had past, But that with too much strength it ouer-flew: The weapon Pagasean Iason threw. O Phabus, said Ampycides, If I Haue honourd, and doe honour thee, apply Thy fuccour in fuccesse of my intents. The God, as much as lay in him, assents: But from the dart the head Diana took; Which gaue no wound, although the Bore it strook. The beaft like lightning burns, thus chaft with ire: His grim eyes shine, his brest breaths slames of fire. And as a stone which some huge engine throwes Against a wall, or bulwarke man'd with foes: The deadly Bore with fuch fure violence Affaults their forces. The right wings defence; Eupalamon, and Pelagonus, caft On founding earth: drawne off with timely haft. Enasimus, great Hippocoons fon, Could not so well his flaughtring tushes shun: Which cut the shrinking finewes in his thigh, Euen as he trembled, and prepar'd to flye. And Neftor long had perished, perchance, Before Troyes warre; but, vauring on a lance, He tooke a tree, which there his branches spred; And safely saw the foe from whom h'had fled. Who, full of rage, his vengefull tushes whets Vpon an Oke; and dire destruction threats. When, trusting to his new-edg'd armes, the Bore The manly thigh of great Grubyus tore. The brother Twins, not yet coelestiall Starres;

Confp

Conspicuous both, both terrible in warres; Both mounted on white Steeds, a loft both bare Their glittring speares, which trembled in the aire: 11 And both had sped; but that the Swine with-drew Where neither horse nor iauelin could pursue. in followes Telamon, hot of the chace; And stumbling at a roote, fell on his face. While Peleus lifts him vp, a winged flight Tegea drew, which flew as swift as fight: Below his care the fixed arrow flood, And staind his bristles with a little blood. The Virgin leffe reioyced in the blow Than Meleager: who first faw it flow, First show'd his mates the blood: O most renownd Said he, thy vertue hath thy honour crownd. The men, they blush for shame; each other cheare; And high-rais'd soules, with clamors higher reare: Their speares in clusters fling; which make no breach Through idle store: and throwes their throwes impeach. Behold, Ancaus with a polax sterne To his owne fate; who faid, By me O learne You youths, how much a mans sharpe steele exceeds A womans weapons, and applaud my deeds. Though Dian should take armes, and in this strife Protect her beaft, she should not saue his life. Thus gloriously he boasts; in both his hands Aduanc't his polax, and on tip-toes stands. Whom, ere his armes descend, the furious Swine Preuents, and theathes his tushes in his groyne. Downe fell Anceus, out of his bowels gusht, All gore; with blood the earth, as guilty, blusht Ixions fon Pirithous forward preft:

216 Metamorphosis.

And with an able arme his lance addrest. To whom Ægides; O to me more deare Than my owne life! my better halfe, forbeare. The wife in valour should aloofe contend: Foole-hardy courage was Ancaus end. This faid, his heavy cornell; with a head Of brasse, he hurles; which sure had struck him dead (It was deliuered with so true an aime) But that a Medlar interpos'd the same. Æsonides then threw his thrilling lance; Which hit (diuerted from the mark by chance) A dog betweene his baying lawes: the wound Rusht through his guts, and naild him to the ground. Oenides varying hand dischargd two speares: The earth the one, the beast the other beares. While now he raues, grunts, turnes his body round, Casts bloud and fome; the author of his wound Rusht in; prouokes his greater wrath; and where His shields diffeuer, thrusts his deadly speare. They all with chearfull shouts their ioyes vnfold;

Shake his victorious hands; the Beaft behold
With wonder, whose huge bulk possess from much:
And hardly thinke it safe the flaine to touch:
Yet with his bloud they die their iauclins red.
He sets his foot vpon his horrid head;
My right, said he, teceiue rare Nonacrine,
And let my glory euer share with thine.
Then gaue the bristledspoyle, in terror charm'd;
And gastly head with monstrous tushes arm'd.
She in the Gift and Giuer pleasure tooke.
All murmur, with prepositrous enuy, strooke,
On whom the violent The stiade frowne;

And cry aloud with stretcht-out armes; Lay downe: Nor, Woman, of our titles vs bereaue, Lest thee thy beauties confidence deceaue His aid to weake whom loue hath reft of fight: And snatcht from her, her gift; from him, his right. Denides Twels; his lookes with anger fterne: You rauishers of others honours, learne Saidhe) the distance betweene words and deeds. With wicked steele secure Plexippus speeds. While Toxens, whether to revenge his blood, Or shun his brothers fortune, wavering stood : He cleares the doubt: the weapon, hot before By th'others wound, new heats in his hearts gore. Gifts to the holy Gods Altheabrings For her fons victorie; and Peans fings. When back the faw her flaughtred brothers brought: At that sad object screecht; and griefe-distraught, The Citie fils with out-cryes : off she teares Her royall robes, and funerall garments weares. But told by whom they fell; no longer mournes: Rage dries her eyes; her teares to vengeance turnes. The triple Sifters earst a brand conuai'd into the fire; her belly newly laid; Thus chanting, while they foun the fatall twine: I lately borne, one period we assigne To thee and to this brand. The charme they weave into his fare; and then the chamber leaue. His mother fnarcht it with an haftie hand Dut of the fire; and quencht the flagrant brand. This in an inward clotler closely layes: and by preferuing it, preferues his dayes. Which now produc't; a pyle of wood the rais'd,

That by the hostile fire inuaded, blaz'd. Foure times the proffers to the greedy flame The fatall brand: as oft with-drew the fame. A Mother, and a Sister, now contend: And two-divided names, one bosome re nd. Oft feare of future crimes a palenesse bred : Oft burning Furie gaue her eyes his red. Now seemes to threaten with a cruell looke: And now appeares like one that pitie tooke. Her teares the feruor of her anger dryes: Yet found the teares againe to drowne her eyes. Euen as a ship, when wind and tyde contends, Feeles both their furies, and with either bends: So Thestias, whom vnsteddie passion drives; By changes, calmes her rage, and rage reviues. A fifters loue at length subdues a mothers: That bloud may appeale the ghosts of bleeding brothers, Impiously pious. Flames, to ashes turne This brand, said the, and my loth'd bowels burne. Then, holding in her hand the fatall wood; As the before the funerall altar flood:

You triple Powers, who guiltie Soules persue; Eumenides; these Rites of vengeance view. I act the crime I punish. Death must be By death atton'd. On murder, murder we Accumulate; redoubling sunerall. Dire linage, by congested sorrowes fall. Shall Oeneus ioy in his victorious son? Sad Thestius rob'd of his? be both vndone. Looke vp, ô you my brothers ghosts; you late Dislodged soules; see how I right your fate.

Accept of this infernall facrifizes

Of high efterme: my wombs accurfed prize. Ay me! ô whither am I rapt! excuse A mother, brothers. Trembling hands refuse Their fainting aid. He merits death: yet by A mothers rage me thinkes he should not dye. Then shall hee scape? alive, a victor, feast In proud successe; of Calydon possest? You, little ashes, and chill Shades, forlorne? 'le not indure it. Perish Villaine, borne To our immortall ruine. Ruinate With thee, thy fathers hopes, his crowne and state. Where is a mothers heart? a parents praier? Th'ynthought-of burden which I ten months bare? O would, while yer an infant, the first flame Had thee deuour'd; nor Ioppos'd the same! Thy life, my gift; by thine owne merit dye: A just reward for thy impiety. Thy twice-giuen life restore; first by my womb, Last by this rauisht brand; or me a tomb With my poore brothers. Faine I would perfue Reuenge; yet would not. O, what shall I doe! Before my eyes my brothers wounds now bleed: And the lad image of so foule a deed. Now pittie, and a mothers name controule y sterne intention. ô distracted soule!

You have won, my brothers; but, alas, ill won:
So that, while thus I comfort you, I run
Your fate. With eyes reverst, her quaking hand
To trembling slames expos'd the funerallbrand.
The Brand appeares to sigh, or sighes expires:
Wrapt in th'imbracements of vnwilling sires.
Vnknowing Meleager, absent broyles

K 2

Euen in those stames: his blood, thick-panting, boyles
Ir vnscene fire. Who such tormenting paines
With more then manly fortitude sustaines.
Yet grieues that by a flothfull death he fals
Without a wound: Anceus happy calls.
His aged father, brothers, fisters, wife,
Now groning names, with his last words of life:
Perhaps his mother. Flame, and paines increase:
Againe they languish; and together cease.
To liquid aire his vanisht spirits turne.
And sable coles in shrouds of ashes mourne.

Low lies high calydon: the yongue, the old, Ignoble, noble, all, their griefes vnfold. The Calydonian matrons cut their haire; Deflowre their beauties: cry, woe and despaire ! His hoarie head with dust his father hides; Lyes groueling on the ground; and old age chides. For now his mother, by her guilt perfude, Revenging steele in her owne brest imbrude: Though love an hundred able tongues beflow, A wit that should with full invention flow, All Helicon infuse into my breft; His fifters forrowes could not be exprest. Themselues forgetting decency, deface: As long as he a bodie, it imbrace; Kisse his palelips: when turn'd to ashes, they The ashes in their bruised bosoms lay: Fall on his tomb; his name, that there appeares, Infold; and fill the characters with reares. But when Diana's wrath was fatisfide With Oenius mifery: they all (befide Faire Gorge and the louely Delanire)

In plumy pinions, by her powre, aspire; With long-extended wings, and beakes of horne Who through the ayre in varied shapes are borne Meane while to Pallas towres Ægides hyes His part performd in that ioynt enterprise) Whose hast raine-raised Achelous staid. Kenoun'd Cecropian Prince, the River faid, Vouchsafe my roofe; nor to th'impetuous flood Commit thy person. Oft huge logs of wood, And broken rocks, downe-tumbling, lowdly rore. Joufes and Herds not feldome heretofore Hurried away: nor was the Oxe of force To keepe his stand; nor swiftnesse sau'd the Horse. And when diffolued fnow from mountaines pour'd. The turning eddies many haue deuour'd More safe to stay vintill the current run Within his bounds. To whom Ægaus fon : I were folly, if not madnesse, to resule Thy house and counsell: both I meane to vie. Then enters his large caue, where Nature plaid The Artisan; of hollow Pumice made, And rugged Tophas; floord with humid mosse : The roofe pure white and purple shels imbosse. Now had Hyperion past two parts of day: When Thefeus, with the partners of his way, Pirithous, and Lelex the renowne Of Træzen, now appearing gray; fat downe: and whom the River glad of fuch a guest, Preferd vnto the honour of his feaft. Forth-with, bare-footed Nymphs bring in the meat : That tane away, vpon the table fet Crown'd cups of wine. When Thefeus turnd his face

To vnder feas; and poynting, faid; What place Is yon, and of what name, that frands alone? And yet me thinks it should be more then one.

It is not one, the courteous Flood replyes,
But five; their neighbourhood deceives your eyes.
The leffer admire Diana, late despised,
Five Nymphs they were: who having sacrifised
Wen beeves, invited to their seftinall
The rurall Gods; my selfer togor by all.
At this my surges swell. I, then as great
As ever, with invaged waters fret.
The woods from woods, and fields from fields I teare
With them, the Nymphs (now mindfull of me) beare
In exile to the Deep: whose waves, with mine,
That then vnited masse of earth distingue
Into as many peeces as in seas

Arc of the flood imbrac't Echinades.

Yet see one lle, far, o far offremou'd?

Call'd Perimele; once by me belou'd.

I, from this Nymph, her virgin honour tooke

Hippodamas his daughter could not brooke:

But cast her from a rock into the Deepe.

Whom, while my thickned streames from sinking keepe;
Isaid: O Neptune, thou that do'st command

The wandering waues that beat vpon the land;

To whom we Riuers run, in whom we end;

Incline a gentle care. I did offend;

In wronging whom I beare: if pious; he

Would both haue pittied her, and pardon'd me.

Her, whom his surie hath from earth exil'd,

And in the strangling waters drencht his child;

A place assort or let her be a place

Whic

Which I may euer with my streames imbrace. His head the King of Surges forward shooke: And, in assenting, all the Ocean strooke. The Nymph yet swims; although with feare oppressel laid my hand ypon her panting breast: While thus I handled her, I might perceive. The earth about her stifning body cleaue. Now, with a masse infolded, as she swims, An Iland rose from her transformed lims.

He held his peace. This admiration won

In all : derided by Ixions fon :

Man, etridety and one who did despise All-able Gods: who faid; Thou tel'st vs lyes, And thinkst the Gods too potent: as is they Could give new shapes, or take our old away. His saying all amaz'd and none approu'd: Most Lelex, ripe in age and wisdome, mou'd.

Heavens power immense and endlesse, none can shun a Said he; and what the Gods would doe, is done. To check your doubt; on Phygian lists there growes An Oke by a Line-tree, which old wals inclose.

My felfe this faw, while I in Phygia staid; By Pittheus fent: where erst his father swaid. Hard by, a lake, once habitable ground;

Where Coots and fishing Cormorants abound.
Joue, in a humane shape; with Mercurie;

(His heeles vnwing'd) that way their steps apply. Who guest-rites at a thousand houses craue; A thousand shut their doores: One only gaue. A small that th'r Cottage: where, a pious wise

Old Baucis, and Philemon, led their life.

Sorth equall-ag'd. In this, their youth they spent;

K 4

In this, grew old: rich onely in content. Who pouertie, by bearing it, declind: And made it easie with a chearfull mind. NoneMafter, nor none Seruant, could you call ; They who command, obey; for two were all. Jone hither came, with his cyllenian mate; And stooping, enters at the humble gate. Sit downe, and take your case, Philemon laid. While bufie Baucis ftraw-Ruft cufhions layd: Who stird abroad the glowing coles, that lay In fmothering afhes; rak't vp yester-day. Dry barke, and withered leaues, thereon the throwes: Whose feeble breath to flame the einders blowes. Then flender cleits, and broken branches gets: And over all a little kettle fets. Her husband gathers cole-flowrs, with their leaues; Which from his gratefull garden he receives: Tooke downe a flitch of bacon with a prung, That long had in the smokie chimney hung: Whereof alittle quantitie he cuts: And it into the boyling liquor puts. This seething; they the time beguile with speech: Vnsensible of stay. A bowle of beech, There, by the handle hung vpon a pin: This fils he with warme water; and therein Washes their feet. A mosse-stufe bed and pillow Lay on a homely bed-steed made of willow: A couerlet, onely vs'd at feafts, they spred: Though course, and old; yet fit for such a bed. Downe lye the Gods. The palfie-shaken Dame Sets forth a table with three legs; one lame, And shorter then the rest, a pot-share reares:

This, now made levell, with greene mint she cleares. Whereon they party-colour'd olives fet, Autumnall Cornels, in tart pickle wet; Poole endiffe, radish, new egs rosted reare, Ind late-prest cheese; which earthen dishes beare I goblet, of the selfe same silver wrought and bowles of beech, with wax well varnishe, brought, Iot victuals from the fire were forthwith fent: Then wine, not yet of perfect age, present. This tane away; the fecond Course now comes: hilberts, dry figs, with rugged dates, ripe plummes, weet-finelling apples, disht in ofier twines; and purple grapes new gatherd from their vines : 'th' midft, a hony combe. Aboue all thefe; chearefull looke, and ready will to pleafe. Aeane-while, the Maple cup it felfe doth fill s Ind oft exhausted, is replenishestill. Monisht at the miracle; with fcare. 'bilemon, and the aged Baueis, reare Their trembling hands in prayre: and pardon craue, or that poore entertainment which they gaue. One Goose they had, their cottages chiefe guard; Which they to hospitable Gods award: Who long their flow perfuit deluding, flies To Iupiter; so sau'd from sacrifice. Ware Gods, said they; Revenge shall all vadoe llone immunitie we grant to you. Together leave your house; and to you hill Follow our steps. They both obey their will; The Gods conducting: feebly both afcend; Their staues, with theirs; they, with times burden bend. A flight-shot from the top, review they take; And And see all swallowed by a mightic lake: Their house excepted. While they this admire, Lament their neighbours ruine, and exquire Their holy cottage, which doth onely keepe Its place; while for the places fate they weepe; That little shed commanded late by two, Became a Fane. To colums crotches grew; The roofe now shines with burnisht gold; the doores Divinely caru'd; the pauement marble floores. Thou iust old man, Saturnius said, and thou lust woman, worthy such a husband; how Stand your defires. They talke a while alone; Then thus to love their common wish make knowne. We crane to be your Priests, this Fane to guards And fince in all our lives we never iarr'd; Let one houre both dissolue; nor let me be Intomb'd by her, nor she intomb'd by me. Their fute is fign'd. The Temple they poffelt. As long as life. With time and age opprest; As now they stood before the sacred gate, And call to memorie that places fate; Philemon faw old Bausisfreshly sprout: And Baucis saw Philemon leaves thrust out. Now on their heads aspiring Crownets grew. While they could speake, they spake: at once, adieu-Wife, Husband, said: at once the creeping rine Their trunks inclos'd; at once their shapes refigne. They of Tyana to this present show. These neighbour trees, that from two bodies grow. Old men, not like to lye, nor vaine of tongue, This told: I saw their boughs with garlands hung : And hanging fresher, said; Who Gods before Receiu'd Receiu'd, are such: adorers, we adore.

The tale, and teller; wonder, and beliefe,
Prouck't in all: but Thefens moues in chiefe.
Who couetous to heare such deeds as these:
The Calydonian River, prest to please,
In this fort, leaning on his elbow, spake.
There be, who ever keepethe forme they take:
Others have power themselves, at will, to change;
As thou blew Protëus, that in seas do strange.
Who now a Man, a Lyon now appeares;
Now, a fell Bore: a Serpents shape now beares.
A Bull, with threatning hornes, now seem sto be:
Now, like a Stone; now, like a spredding Tree.
And sometimes like a gentle River flowes:
Sometimes like Fire, opposing Water, showes.

Autolicus his wife, the daughter to Leud Erifichthon, things as strange could doc-He washer father, who the Gods despis'd : Nor ever on their altars facrifis'd. Who Ceres groves with steele profan'd: where stood An old huge Oke; even of it selfe a wood. Wreaths, ribands, mentall tables, deckt his boughs And facred stem; the Dues of powerfull Vowes. Full of the Dryades, with Chaplets crownd, Danc't in his shade, full oft they tript a Round About his bole. Five cubits three times told His ample circuit hardly could infold. Whose stature other trees as farre exceeds As other trees furmount the humble weeds. Yet Triopeius all could not prouoke: Who bids his feruants fell the facred Oke. And fnatches, while they paus'd; an axe from one:

Thus storming: Not the Goddesse-lou'd alone; But though this were the Goddesse, shee should downe: And sweepe the earth with her aspiring crowne. Ashe aduanc't his armes to firike; the Oke Both figh'd and trembled at the threatning stroke. Hisleaues and acornes pale together grew: And colour-changing branches sweat cold deaw. Then wounded by his impious hand, the blood Gusht from th'incision in a purple flood. Much like a mighty oxe, that falls before The facred altar; spouting streames of gore. On all amazement feaz'd: when One of all The crime deterres; nor would his axe let fall. Contracting his sterne browes; Receive, said he, Thy pieties reward; and from the tree The stroke converting, lops his head; then strake The Oke agains: from whence a voice thus spake; A Nymph am I, within this tree inshrin'd, Belou'd of Ceres. O prophane of mind, Vengeance is necre thee. With my parting breath I prophese: a comfort to my death. He still his guilt perfues: who overthrowes With cabels, and innumerable blowes, The sturdy Oke: which, nodding long, downerusht; And in his lofty fall his fellowes crusht.

Their fifter, and their groue, the Nymphs lament Who hid in fable stoles, to Ceres went On Erifichthonius reuenge require. Who readily confents to their defire. The faire-brow'd Goddesse shakes her shining haires With that, the fields shook e all their golden eares,

Who to apitteous punishment proceeds,

(Hac

Had he had any pitty in his deeds ) By staruing. But fince not by fatall doome, eres and Famine might together come: I mountaine Faery of th'Oreades Dispatcheth thither, with such words as these! n frosty Scythia lies a land, forlorne and barren; bearing neither fruit nor corne. Numb Cold, pale Hew, chill Ague, there abide; And fasting Famine. Bid the Fury glide Into his cursed entrailes, and deuoure All plenty: let her rage subdue my powre. But lest long wayes thy journy tedious make : My chariot and my yoked dragons take. Taking her chariot; through the empty skies To Scythia and rough Caucasus the flies. There, in a stony field, sad Famine found fearing with teeth and nailes the foodleffe ground With snarled haire, sunk eyes, lookes pale and dead, ips white with flime, thin teeth with rust ore-spred; Hide-bound, through which her clinged guts appeare; Dry bones, in spare and crooked hips, vp-beare Her belly bellyleffe: low hung her breft; so lank, as if her bosom had no cheft: The rifing knuckles falling flesh augment Round knees and ankles leanely eminent, ispide far off ( she durst not be so bold to come too neere) the Nymph her message to Ifter a little stay, although she were arre off, although but now arrived there; the famine felt. Who wheeles about her Snakes 3 And her high passage to Amonia takes. Famine obayes the Goddeffes command;

Though their endeuors still opposed stand.
Who, by a tempest hurried through the skies,
Enters the wretches roose: besides him lyes,
Then fast asleepe: (for now Nights heavy charmes
All eyes had clos'd) imbra'st himin her armes;
Her selfe infus'd; breathes on his sace and brest:
And emptie veines with hungers rage possess.
This thus perform'd for sakes the fruitfull earth:
And back returnes to her abodes of dearth.

Sound Sleepe as yet with pleasurable wings On Erifichthon gentle flumber flings. Who dreames of feafts, extends his idle iawes; With labouring teeth fantastically chawes. Deludes his throte by swallowing emptie fare: And for affected food denoures the aire. Awak't; hot famine raues through all his veines: And in his guts, and greedic pallat raignes. Forth-with; what Sea, what Earth, what Ayre affords, Acquires: complaines of staruing at full bords. In banquets, banquets feekes. What might alone Haue Townes and Nations fed; suffize not one. Hungerincreaseth with increast repast, And as all rivers to the Ocean halt; Who thirsty still, drinks up the stranger floods: As rauenous fires refuse no profferd foods; Huge pyles receive; the more they have, the more By much dabe; made hungry with their store. So Erifichthon, of a mind prophane, Full dishes empties, and demands againe. Meat breeds in him an appetite to meat; Who euer emptie, still prepares to eat. His bellies gulfe his partmonie wasts :

Consuming

Consuming famine yet vnlesned lasts; And his insatiable throtes extent Now all his wealth, into his bowels fent : A daughter left, vnworthy fuch a Sire, The beggar fold to feed his hungers fire. Her noble thoughts base servitude disdainte Who now her hands extending to the Maine : O thou that hadft my mayden-head, faid she, Thy ranisht spoyle from hated bondage free! Neptune had this: who to her prayer consents. And, though then by her master seene, preuents His following fearch: transforming of his Rape Into a man; maskt in a fishers shape. Angler, her mafter faid, that with thy bair Conceal'st thy hooke; so prosper thy deceit, So rest the sea compos d; so may the fish Be credulous, and taken at thy wish; As thou reueal'st her, who in garments, poore, And ruffled haire, late flood voon this shore, For here, but very now, I faw her stand: Norfarther trace her foot-steps in the sand. ... She, Neptunes bountie finding; well apaid To be inquir'd for of her felfe; thus faid. Pardon me Sir, who c're you are; my eyes Have beene attentive on this exercise. To win beleefe; so may the God of Seas Affift my cunning in fuch arts as thefe: As late nor man nor maid I faw before Your selfe, my selfe excepted, onthis shore. He credits, and beguil'd, the shore for sooke: When the agains her former figure tooks, Her father, feeing the could change her thape, Oft fold her; who as often made a fcape. Now hart-like, now a cow, a bird, a mare: And fed his hunger with ill-purchaft fare. But when his maladie all meanes had fpent, He gaue the mischiefe a new nourishment. Now to deuoure his proper flesh proceeds: And by diminishing, his body feeds.

Whatneed I dwell on forrein facts? euen we Can vary shapes, though limited they be.
Now seeme I as Iam; oft like a Snake:
And many times a Buls hornd figure take.
But while I hornes a stum'd, one thus was broke.
As you behold. This, with a figh, he spoke.

OVID'S

OVID'S

METAMORPHOSIS.

The ninth Booke.

THE ARGV MENT

A Serpent Achelous: now a Bull:
His senered Horne with plenty ener full.
Lichas a Rocke. Alcides sunke in stame;
Ascends a God. The labour-helping Dame
MWeefell. Loris, string lust, becomes
A Tree: the like sad Dryope intombes
Old lollaus waxeth young agen.
Callirthoes: Insants sodenly grow Men.
Byblis a weeping Fountaine. Iphis new
A Boy, so Ilis payes his maiden Yow.

Ee, who his high descent from Neptune drawes,
Of his so sad a sigh demands the cause,
And maimed brow. When thus the God proceeds:
lis dangling curles impald with quiuering reeds.
A heauie taske you impose: his owne disgrace
Vho would reuiue? yet was it not so base to be subdude, as noble to contend:
Ind such a Victor doth my soile defend.
Ind such a Victor doth my foile defend.
Ind such a Victor doth m

Parthaons

Paribaons son, be I thy Son in law; I, and Alcides faid: the rest with-draw. He, with his father love, his Labours fame,

And step-dames vanquisht tasks, inforect his claime. 'Iwere shame, said I, that deathlesse Gods, to men Who dye, should stoope. ( A God he was not then.) These ever-living waters I command, That wind in endlesse currents through thy land. Thy Son no stranger is, if I be He: But of thy Countrie and a friend to thee. Yet be't no prejudice; that Iuno's hate.

Nor punishing imployments presse my fate. If from Alemena thou thy being drew: Ioue's thy false father, or the crime is true. Thou seekst a Father in a Mothers shame:

Or be not loue's, or take a bastards name.

He, all this while, with eyes that sparkle fire, Vpon me fround: and weakly rules his ire. Then onely faid; My hand my tongue exceeds: Win thou with words, fo I subdue with deeds. With that, fell on. To speake so big, and shrink, I shame: and let my wave-greene Mantle fink; My armes oppose, my hands for seasure prest; And every fitted part for fight addrest. He throwes dust on me with his hollow hand: And I againe befprinkle him with fand. Now catches at my neck, now at my thighes; Or proffer makes: and euery lim applies. But me my waight defends; in vaine he striues. Much like as when a roring billow driues Against a Tock: the rock repels his pride; By his owne ponder firmely fortifi'd.

Both for a while with-drew: againe we meet, And strongly keepe our stands; feet joyne to feet. With that I rusht vpon him with my brest: My fingers, his; my browhis fore-head prest. io haue I seene two Buls together close; The fairest Cow in all the pasture chose To wine the Victor: while the Herds with feare expect who should so wisht a purchace beare. Thrice Hercules endeuours to constraine My powers to dis-ingagement: thrice in vaine. The fourth affay my ftrong imbrace vnbound: And from my grasping armes his body wound. Then turning me about ( truth guides my tongue ) I pon my back with all his burden hung. f I have faith viie can find no way lo praise) me thought a mountaine on me lay. carce could I free my armes, all frotht with fweat; carce from his gripes my aking bosome fer. itill pressing on, he gives nor time to breathe Nor gather frength: my powres my trust deceaue.

n fine, his yoking armes my neck command: When, puld ypon my knees, I bit the fand. nferior force my natiue flight supply'd: Now from him like a lengthfull Serpent glide. When in contracted folds I forward sprung: Horridly histing with my forked tongue. le laughs; and flours my terrors in this fort: To strangle Serpents is my cradles sport. Though other dragons to thy conquest bow: To dire Lernean Hydra what art thou? ler wounds were fruitfull: from each feuer'd head iach of her hundred necks two figreer bred:

More strong by twinning heirs. This death-borne crue Growing in wounds; I tam'd: and twice subdue. What hope hast thou, a forged Snake, to scape? That fightst with others armes; and begst thy shape.

This faid; my necke his grassing singers clincht; And scruz'd my throat; as if with pincers wrincht; While from his gripes i stroue my lawes to pull. Twice ouer-come; now, like a furious Bull, Once more his terrible assaults oppose. His armes about my swelling chest he throwes, And following, backward hales; my foreheads bith Fixt in the ground; and threw me on the earth. My brow (that not sufficing) disadornes: By breaking one of my ingaged hornes. The Nasades with fruits and flowes this sill; Good Plenty, in my Horne aboundeth still.

Here Acheloss ends. One louely-faire, Girt like Diana's Nymph; with flowing haire, Came in; and brought the wealthy Horne; repleas

With Autumnes store, and apples after meat.

Day fprings, and mountaines shine with early beames.
His Guests depart: nor stay till peacefull streames.
Gyde gently downe, and keepe their bounded race.
When Asheivus, his agrestick face.
And may med head within the current shrowds.
This blemish much his former beauty clouds:
All else compleat. The rupture of his browes.
He shades with slaggie wreathes, and sallow boughes.

So Deianira, Neffus, was thy wrack:
A deadly arrow piercing through thy back.

Ioues fon, with his new wife; to Thebes his course
Directing; came t' Euenus rapid sourse.

The big-swolne Streames increast with winters raine. And full of turning gulfes, his Paffe restraine. For her hefeares: though he felfe-feare abhord. When strong-limd Neffus came, who knew the Ford; And faid ; I fafely will transport thy Bride: Meane-while swim thou vnto the other side. To him Alcides his pale wife betakes: Who, fearing both the flood, and Nessus, quakes. Charg'd with his quiuer, and his Lyons skin (His club and bow before throwne ouer) in The Hero's leapes, and faid; How ever vaft, These wanes, since vodertaken, shall be past. And confident, nor feekes the smoothest wayes: Nor dy declining his transcent delayes. Now ouer; stooping for his bow, he heard His wives shrill shreeks; and Nessus saw, prepar'd To violate his trust. Thou ravisher, What hope, faid he, can thy vaine speed confer? Holla, thou halfe a beast; with-hold thy flight: I pray thee heare; nor intercept my right. If no respect of me can fix thy trust: Yet, let thy Fathers wheele restraine thy lust. Nor shalt thou scape revenge; how cuer fleet, Wounds shall ore-take thy speed, though not my feet The last, his deeds confirme; for as he fled, An arrow ftruck his back : the barbed head Past through his brest. Tug'd out, both vents extrude Hot spinning gore, with Hydras blood imbrude. This Nellis tooke 2 and foftly faid 2 yet I. Alcides, will not vnreuenged dy. And gaue his Rape a vest; dipt in that gore:

This will (faid he) the heat of love restore.

Long after ( all the ample world poileft With his great acts, and Iunos hate increast) From raz'd Oechalia hastning his remoue, To facrifice vnto Cenean loue: Fames bablings Deianira's eares surprise (Who falshood ads to truth, and growes by lies) How 16!e, Amphitryoniades With loue inthraul'd. Stung with this strong disease. The troubled louer credits what the frares. At first she nourisheth her griefe with teares: Which weeping eyes diffuse. Then sayd; But why Weepe we? the Strumper in these teares will joy. Since come the will, fome change attempt I must; Before my bed be stained with her lust. Shall I complaine? be mute? shift houses? stay? Returne to Calydon, and give her way? Or call to mind that I am fifter to Great Meleager, and some mischiese doe? What iniur'd woman; what the spleenefull woe Oficlousie; or harlots death, can show? Her thoughts, long toyld with change, now fixed stood To fend the garment dipt in Nessus blood; To quicken fainting loue. The Present she To Lycas gaue (as ignorant as he) And her owne forrow. Who, with kind commends, The robe to her suspectlesse husband sends. Which now the factificing Heros wore: Wrapt in the poylon of Echidna's gore. Who praying, new-borne flames with incense fed : And bowles of wine on marble altars shed. The spreading mischiefe works: with hear dissolu'd, The manly limines of Hercules inuolu'de

Who, whilst he could, with vsuallfortitude lis grones supprest. All patience now subdew'd With fuch extremes; the altar downe he flings: And shady Oete with his clamour rings. orth-with to teare the torture off, he frines. The riven robe, his skin that lines it, rives : Dr to his limmes vnseparable cleaues; Dr his huge bones and finewes naked leaves. Is fire-red steele in water drencht; so toyles lis hiffing blood, and with hot poylon boyles. To meane! the greedy flames his bowels fret; and all his body flowes with purple fweat: lis scorched sinewes crack, his marrow fries. Then, to the stars his hands advancing, cries. Feast, Iune, on our harmes. O from on high sehold this plague! thy cruell stomack cloy. f foes may pitty purchase ( such are we ) This life, with torments cras'd; long fought by thee; and borne to toyle, depriue. For death would proue o me a bleffing; and a Step-dames loue May fuch a bleffing give. Have I this gain'd or flaine Busiris; who loues temple stain'd With strangers blood? That from Antens tooke His mothers aid? Whom Geryons triple looke, Nor thine, ô Cerberus, could once difmay? These hands, these made the Cretan Bull obey. Your labors, Elis; smooth Sigmphalian floods, Confesse with praises; and Parthenian woods. You got the golden belt of Thermodon: 3 and apples from the sleeplesse Dragon won. Nor Cloud-borne Centaures, nor th' Arcadian Bore, Could me refift: nor Hydra with her store

Of frightfull heads; which by their loffeincreaft. I, when I faw the The acian Horsesfeast With humane flesh, their mangers ouer-threw : And with his steeds, their wicked Master slew. These hands the Nemean Lyon choakt: these queld Huge Cacus: and these shoulders heaven vpheld. Iones cruell wife grew weary to impose; I neuer to performe. But ô these woes, This new found plague, no vertue can repell: Nor armes, nor weapons! Hungry flames of hell Shoot through my veines, and on my liver prey. And yet Eury Abous thrives; and some will say That there be Gods! Here his complaints he ends, And high-raifd fteps ore lofty Oeta bends, Hurried with anguish: lik a Bull that beares A wounding iauelin; whom the wounder feares. Oft should you see him quake, oft grone, oft friuing To teare his garments; folid trees vp-riving, Inraged with the mountaines, and to reare His scorche armes vnto his fathers sphere. Hid in a his or wrocke, he Lycas spies: When is he are had posses this faculties With a her furies. Lycas did thou give This horrid gift, said he? Thinkst thou to live; And I die by thy treason? While he quakes, Lookes gastly pale, vnheard excuses makes; While yet he spake, while to his knees he clung Caught by the heeles, about his head thrice fwong. Himinto deep J' bean furges threw (As engines stories) who hardned as he flew. As falling shoures congeald with freezing winds Convert to fnow; as fnow to gether binds,

And rouling round in folid haile descends: So while the aire his forced body rends, Bloodlesse with terror, all his moisture gone; Those times his change produc't to rigid stone. And still within Eubeas gulphy deepes: A short rock lies, which mans proportion keepes. Whereon the mariners forbeare to fall, As sensitive. And this they Lycas call. But thou, Iones God-like son (a Pyle with store Of trees aduanc's, which lofty Oete bore Thy bow and ample Quiuer ( wherein ly Those arrowes that againe must visit Troy ) Bequeath'st to Peans Heire: who catching fire 'uts to the Pyle. While greedy flames aspire; hou on the top thy Lyons spoyle didst spread: Indlay thereon ( thy club beneath thy head ) Vith fuch a looke; as if a crowned Guest midft full goblets, at a mirthfull feaft. low all imbracing flames a crackling made: nd their Contemnors patient limms inuade. he Gods much thought for Earths Defendor tooke: /hen thus Saturnius, with a chearefull looke : This griefe, you Gods, is our delight: with all ur foule we joy, that fuch a people call s King and Father; who so gratefull are, id of our progeny haue such a care. ir though his noble acts deserue as much, u vs oblige. But lest vaine terrors touch our loyall hearts, let not these flames displease: ho conquer'd all, shall also conquer these. lan his mother-part shall but subdue: r that's immortall which from vs hedrew;

And can not take of death, nor stoope to fire: Which, purg'd from earth, shall to our ioyes aspire, This all your Deities I thinke will please. If any grudge such grace to Hercules, Nor would his God-head; let them enuy still: They shall our act approve against their will.

The Gods affent. And luno's felfe accords; At least in shew: yet lupiters last words
Vnsnooth her forchead with observed distaste.
What slame could vanquish, Mu Der doth waste.
Yet Hereules, not knowne by face, remaines;
Who nothing of his Mothers forme retaines:
Now onely louiall. As a finake his yeares
Casts with his skin, and sprightly young appears
With sittering scales: so, the Tirynthian,
Hauing put off mortality with man,
Shines in his better part, and seemes more great:
With awe-infusing maiestie compleat.
Rapt in a chariot by almighty love,

Through hollow clouds, vnto the starres aboue.

Prest Atlas (celes his waight. Euryfibeus ire
Ends not in death: his hatred to the Sire
Perfues his race. Ahmena, worne with care;
Had löle to whom she might declare
Her old-wines plaints, her Sons hard labouts (knowne Through broad-spred Earth) his fortunes, and her ow
Her, Hyllus, by Alcides testament,
Tooke to his bed, with loves vnfore't consent;
And fild her word with generous seed: when thus

Alcmena: Be the Gods propitious,

And quick in working, when thy time drawes neare

"Il Ilithyia, whom iad mothers feare;

To me made difficult by Iunos spight. For ten accomplishe signes did now excite My trauell to Alcides birth; whose waight My belly stretcht: which bare so great a fraight, That you might sweare it was begot by Ione: When with intolerable paines I stroue. Yow alfo, speaking, horror chils my heart: and griefes remembrance beares in griefe a part. euen nights, seuen dayes, thus rakt; with anguish tir'd, ly hands vpheld, with out-cries, I defir'd ucina's aid, my burden to vnty. he came indeed, but precorrupted by nfriendly Iuno, life to ruinate. earing my grones, she fate before the gate n vonder Altar: her right knee vpholds er crosse left ham; whose fingers knit in foulds elai'd delivery: and with mutter'd spels ffectet powre, the prefing birth repels. triue; and rauing, task vngratefull Ioue: efire to die; and breath complaints to moue elentlesse flints. The Cad nean Dames were there; ho pray for me, and comfort my despaire. :d-haird Galanthis, one of meane descent; all imployments stoutly diligent, wine loued for her duetie; doth misdoul t nowalicious luno: Paffing in and our, e saw the Goddesse on the altar sit; r armes about her knees, her angers knit. nat ere you be, rejoyce with vs, the fayd; full Alemena hath her belly I yd. e Goddeffe, great in child birth, ftorting, rofe:

d parting her lin. kt fingers, eafd my throwes.

Th y

They say Galanthis laught at this deceit:
Whom straight the flouted Goddesse, in a fret,
Drags by the haire; nor suffers her to rise:
Forth-with her armes convert to legs and thighes;
Agility and colour still abide:
Her forme transformed. In that her mouth supplide
Desective child-birth, at her mouth she beares:
Nor now our still-frequented houses seares.
This said, she sighs for her old seven stake:

To whom her daughter, likewise fighing, spake. You, Mother, forrow for no kinreds fate. But what if I the wonderous change relate Of my poore Sitter? Teares, and forrow feaze My troubled speech. Of all th' Oechalides For forme few might with Dryope compare; The onely child her dying mother bare: I borne by a second wife. Her virgin flowre Being gathered by that ouer-mastering Powre, Who in Delos, and in Delphos doth refide; Andremon weds her: happy in his Bride. Alake there is, which sheluing margents bound, Much like a shore; with fragrant myrtles crownd. Hather came simple Dryope ( what more Afflicts me ) to those Nymphs she garlands bore. Her armes her child, a pleasing burden, hold; Who fuckther brefts: not yet a twelue-month old: Hard by the lake a flowry Lotus grew, Expecting berryes, of a crimfon hew. Thence pulling flowres, the gaue them to her fon To play withall; fo was I like t'haue don: For I wasthere. I faw the blood descend Feom dropping twigs the boughs with horror bend.

Since told, too late; how that a Nymph, who fled From lustfull Priapus; to quit her dread, Affum'd this shape : the name of Lotus kept. Inknowne; my frighted Sifter backward ftept; and would depart, as soone as she had prayd: Sucroots her feet, for all her struggling, stayd. Vho onely moues aboue. The bark increast: nd creepeth from the bottom to her breft. his feene; the thought t'haue torne her haire; her hand he fils with leaves ; boughs on her fummit stand. he child Amphifus (for his grand-Father urytas, did that name on him confer ) jow finds his mothers brefts both stiffe and dry. ,a spectator of thy tragedy eare fifter, had in me no powre of aid; 1 et as I could, thy growing trunk I stayd. lung to thy spredding boughs; and wisht that I ight with thee in the same inclosure ly. :hold, Andremon comes; with him, her Sire: Both wretched! ) and for Dryope inquire: Then I for Dryope the Lotus show'd. ney kisses on the heatfull wood bestow'd: id, groueling on the ground, her roots imbrace. ow all of thee, deare Sifter, but thy face l'incroching habit of a tree receiues : ow teares, like pearles of dew, hang on thy leaues. ho, while she might, while yet a way remain'd r speaking passion; in this fort complain'd. f Credit to the wretched may be given; veare by all the Powres inbowr'd in Heauen, euer this deseru'd. Without a sin d. litter; innocent my life hath been.

Or if I lie, may my greene branches fade: And, feld with axes, on the fire be layd, This Infant from his dying mother beare To some kinde Nurse : and often let him here Be fed with milke; oft in my shadow play. Let him falute my tree; and fadly fay. (When he can speake) This Letis doth containe My dearest mother: Yet let him refraine Alllakes; nor euer dare to touch a flowre: But think that every tree inshrines a Powre. Deare Husband, Sifter, Father, all farewell. Since you I know in pietie excell, Suffer no axe to wound my tender boughes; Nor on my leaves fer hungry cattaile brouse. And fince I cannot vnto you decline, Ascend to me; and joyne your lips to mine. My little fon, while I can kiffe, aduance. But fate cuts off my failing vtterance. For now the fofter rine my neck ascends: And round about my leavy top extends. Remove your hands: without the helpe of those, The wrapping barke my dying eyes will close. Soleft to speak, and be. Yet humane heat In her chang'd body long retain'da feat While löle this story told; her eyes,

Glaz'd with her teares, the kinde Alemond dryes, And weeps her felfe. Behold, a better change With loy defers their forrow: nor leffe strange. For Islaus, twice a youth, came in:
The doubtfull downe now budding on his chin. Faire Hebe, at her busbands sute, on thee
This gift bestow'd. About to sweare that she

Would never give the like; wife Themis faid,

Forbeare: Warre raues in Thebes by Discordswayd:

And Capaneus but by Ione alone Can be subdude. The brothers then shall grone With mutuall wounds. The facred Propher, loft n swallowing earth, aliuc shall see his Ghost. His Sons red hands his Mothers life extract. I' appease his Sire: a just and wicked fact. Rapt from his home and fenfes, with th'affright -Of staring Furies, and his mothers Sprite, Vntill his wife the fatall gold demands: The kinfman murder'd by Phog des hands. Then Acheloian Callirrhoa hall love importune, that her infants may Be turn'd to men : and due reuenge require Ashe, for his ) of those who slew their fire; Her prayers shall win consent from love: who then Will bid thee make Callirrhoe's children men.

This, Themis with prophetick rapture fung. lmong the Gods a grudging murmur sprung, Why she this gift should not to others give . surora for her husbands age doth grieue; eres complaines of lasons hory haire; Tulcan would Erichthonius youth repaire; ind cares of time to come in Venus raigne, That her Anchifes might wax yong againe. Il fue for some: seditious fauour stroug n hight of tumult; thus opprest by Ioue.

What mutter you? Or where is your respect? hink you, you can the powre of fate subject?

old Iolaus was by fate renew'd:

y fate Callirrboe's babes shall be indew'd

With youth: not by ambition, nor warre.
Euen we, that you may better brook it, are Prescrib'd by Fate. Which could we change; not thus Should time suppresse our God-like Eacus:
Eternall youth should Rhadamanthus crowne:
Nor should our Minos lose his old renowne:
Des, ised now through age: who heretofore,
With such a braue command his scepter bore.

These words of Iones the yeelding Gods asswage; Sith Rhadamanth' and Eacus, with age Decline: and Minos whose youths active flame Made mighty nations tremble at his name. But now in mind and body impotent, Deioniden Miletus fear'd ascent T' his throne suspects; adorn'd with youth and stile Of Phabus fon : nor durst his feares exile. But thou, Miletus, of thy owne accord Forfookft thy natiue home : and now abord, Through deepe Egean feas to Afia came: Erecting there a City of thy name. He, as the Nymph Cyance (excellent For beauty ) daugher to Maander, went Along his winding banks, comprest her there: Who B; blis at one birth with Caunus bare. . Byblis example lawleffe loue reproues :

Byblis Apollinian Caunin loues,
Not as a lifter should a brother doe:
Nor at the first her owne affections knew.
Nor thought it sinne so eagerly to kisse:
Nor by imbracing to have done amisse.
Whom shadow of false pietic beguiles;
Loue by degrees corrupts. Her deesle, and smiles,

Shee frames t'attract; to seeme too faire desires.
And enuies whom so euer he admires.
Yet knowes not her disease: no wishes rise
In smoking sighes as yet; yet inlye fries.
Now calls him Lord; the due of blood disclaim'd:
Who would be Byblis, and not sister nam'd.
Nor waking durst she harbour in her brest
Awanton hope: but in dissoluing rest
Her louer oft enioyes; her serses keepe
A festivall; yet bloshes in her sleepe.
Sleepe sled; long mute; her dreame againe renues
By repetition, which shee thus persues.

Woe's me! what bode these fantasies of Night! If true, how wretched! why should such delight? His heavenly forme by Enuy is approu'd: Who might, if not a brother, be belou'd; And merits my affections (ô too well!) If I were not his fifter, there's my hell! While waking, I indevour no fuch ill, May these bewitching dreames inchant me still ! No Spie could blab that imitated joy. O Venus, and with thee, thou winged Boy! What pleasure, what content, had I that night ! How lay I all diffolued in de ight! With how much joy remembred! short those joyes; And haftie Night our happinetle enuies. Would I could change this wretched name of mine ! Or he the intrest in his blood resigne! How well, ô Caunus, might our father be A father in law, or to thy felfe, or me! O would to love we all in common held, Except our birth! though roine his birth exceld!

Who then (ô fairest!) wilt thou make a mother? How ill hath Nature linkt vs to each other ! Still must thou be my brother: what I hate I only haue. What then prognosticate These flattering visions? What in these extremes, Can dreames availe? or is there waight in dreames? The Gods forbid! The Gods their Sisters wed. Saturne and Ops had both one truth and bed. So Tethys with Oceanus; fo lone Combines with Iuno in eternall loue. Gods have peculiar lawes: how dare I draw From them examples, bound t'another law? Die, die forbidden flames; or let me die. Then may my brother kisse me when I lie On fable herse. Besides, the joynt consent This craues of two. Say it should me content: He may abhor it. Yet th' Æolides Imbraced theirs. Whence spring such proofes as these !! O whether rapt! you wicked flames, remoue: A brother, as befits a fifter, loue. Yet should he first affect, perhaps I then His love might cherish, and aftect againe. Then shall I, who would not his fute reiect; She first? What, canst thou speake? thy thoughts detect? I can : Loue prompts. If shame my speech suppresse ; Yet speechlesse letters may my flames confesse. This pleas'd her; and a little fatisfi'de Her doubtfull minde. When rais'd on her left fide,

This pleas'd her; and a little satisfi'de
Her doubtfull minde. When rais'd on her lest side,
And leaning on her elbow; Hap what may,
We will (said she) our frantike loue display.

Q whether side I! o what slames excite
These thoughts! then sits her trembling hands to write:

On

One holds the wax, the ftyle the other guides.

Begins, doubts, writes, and at the tables chides;
Votes, razes, changes oft, diflikes, approues,
Throwes all a fide, refumes what the remoues;
Her will the knowes not; no composure brookess soft thame and impudence ftriue in her lookes.
The had writ Sifter: that as most vnfit,
Defacing; tooke the tables, and thus writ.

Health to her onely Loue that Louer sends: Who health hath none, but what your loue extends, To tell you who I am; alas, I shame. f you would know my fute; without a name D let me plead, nor be for Byblis knowne, Intill my hopes be to affurance growne. Pale colour, leannesse, ruthfull lookes, wet eyes. ong fighs which from concealed paffion rife, requent imbracements, and (if you so much Doserued) kisses of too hot a touch l'o sute a fisters coldnesse: these exprest The deepe distemper of my wounded brest. and yer, although my foule the wound fustain'd Although a fiery fury in me raign'd; feauens witnesse, that I might at length be well, try'd the vtmost; striuing to repell The violent darts of Cupid: and farre more Then you would thinke a woman could, I bore. Against my will, I now become your slaue: and with afflighted language pity craue. You may preserue; you only can vindoe: Choose which you will. Nor sues a foe to you; But who, cooneere ally'd, would neerer ioyne: And in a firickter league of loue combine.

Let old men know what's lawfull, good, or ill:
And to their frosty rules subiect their will.
Rash Venus sits our yeares. Yet know not wee Intangling lawes: let vs thinke all things free,
And imitate the Gods. Paternall awe,
Respect of same, nor seare can vs with-draw:
Alone all distinctic lay aside.
Our easie stealths a brothers name will hide.
We may in private talke; converse, and kisse,
Who ever by. What wants to crowne our blisse?
O pitty mee, who have my love confest;
Nor would, had not my vimost ardor prest:
Lest thy remorfelesse crueltie be read
Vpon my monument, when I am dead.

This on the wax she drew with vaine successe: Inucgling verse th' extremest margent presse. 1 Then seales her shame : her parched tongue deni'd To wet her gemme ; which weeping eyes suppli'd. She, blushing, calls a servant of knowne trust, And flattering him awhile; My friend, thou must See these with care, and secrecie, conuaid To my (there paus'd, and after) brother, faid. In their delivery the tables fell: She, at that Omen, flarts; yet bids farewell. The wary messenger attends his time; And gives to Caunus her infolded crime. Amaz'd Meandrius high in choller grew; And on the ground the halfe-read tables threw. About to strike; Thou wicked instrument Ofhorrid luft, faid he, by flight preuent My swords revenge; but that our infamic I hy death would publish; villaine, thou shouldst die.

Perhaps

He, frighted, flies; and to his mistresse beares The wrath of Caunus. Byblis quaking heares Her sad tepulse, a death-resembling cold Befeeg'd her hart, and vitall hear controld. let, with her soule, her frantick loue returnes. Who, with scarce mooning lips, thus foftly mournes. And worthily. Why, ô too rash! have I Disclos'd this wound? affections secrecie Who would fo foone to headdy lines commit? First, with ambiguous words it had beene fit I' have felt his thoughts; and traind him to perfue. should have noted how the weather grew; And chosen a safe Sea : but now my failes stretch desperately with vnexplored gales. Now borne on crushing rocks, the flouds or'e-beare Ay finking barke; nor can I back-ward fleere. Could not that Omen checke the cherisht scope Of my defires; when, with our blafted hope, The tables fell? should I not have affign'd nother day; or wholly chang'd my mind? ) no, the day. This, Heauen fore-shewd by sad ind fure portenfes; had I not beene mad. Ay selfe, before my letters, should have su'de; and liucly loue exprest: he should have viewd Ay moouing teares; a louers pleading looke. fore could I have spoke then writte wold more have tooke. bout his necke my armes I might have wound; ind, had he cast me off, appeare to swound; llung to his feet, and groueling, life implore. his passion might have acted, and much more: Vhereof, though each particular should faile;

let altogether joyntly might preuaile,

Perhaps the blame-deserving messenger Did in behauiour, or occasion, erre: Nor chose a season when his thoughts were free. This bain'd my hopes. For of no Tygresse he, Nor Lyonesse, was borne: his gentle brest Rough flint, hard steele, nor adamant inuest. He must be won : no sowre repulse shall make My powers retire, till life my breft forfake. The best, if what is done were to begin, Is not t'attempt: next, what w'attempt, to win-For neuer would he, though I should ore-sway My strong defires, forget this leud affay. Defisting, would condemne my lone for light; Or that I tri'd to intraphim by this flight: Or may conceaue that brutish lust did moue These extasses; and not the God of loue. And to conclude; I must be wicked still: My hand hath fignd it; tainted in my will. No giuing backe can make me innocent: Nought can I adde to fin, Much to content.

This faid; one thought another doth controuless So great a discord racks his watering toule!

Diflikes; yet acts: who never fatisfied;
Accurft! attempteth, to be oft denied.

This feene, he flies his country for her crime:
And builds a City in a forraine clime.

When wofull Byblia, finking in despaire,
Her garments, rating, from her bosome tare;
Striking her armes through fury, and proclames
In high distraction, her incesteous flames.

Hopelesse, her hated mansion she eschues:
And frantikely, her brothers slight persues.

ind as Ismarian Bacchanals (great fon of Semele) Aruck with thy Thyrsus, run 1 thy Triennials: so Bubasian Dames aw howling Byblis hurrying o're their plaines. rom these she wanders through the Carian bounds, he warlike Legates, and Lycian grounds: ragus, Lymira's streames; the siluer waves )f Xanthus past; and where Chimeraraues In high rocks; with a Lions face and mane, Gotes rough body, and a Serpens traine. he woods were past: when thou, ô Byblis, faing Vith long perfuit, and paffions strong constraint. unk'ft downe; thy haire on earth diffus'dly spread: nd hid'ft with withered leaves thy low-laid head. he kinde Lelegian Nymphs oft in their armes ttempt to raise her: and with powerfull charmes. If counsell, ftriue to cure her love-ficke mind. ut, to the deafe they fing; and lofe their wind. he, grasping the greene rushes, silent lyes: nd bathes them in the rivers of her eyes. he Naiades thrust vnder these a spring: heir bounty could not give a greater thing. s pitch distilleth from the fable wound, s stiffe Birumen issues from the ground; s flouds, which frofts in icie fetters bind, haw with th'approching Sun; and Southerne wind :: uen so Phateian Byblis, spent in teares, ecomes a living fountaine, which yet beares er name: and vnder a blacke. Holme that growes those ranke vallies, plentifully flowes. The fame of this fo wonderfull a fate ad fill'd creets hundred Civies; if of late

The Thange of Iphis, generally knowne. Had not produc't a wonder of their owne. For Phastus, neere to Gnossus, fostered One, Lygdw, of vn-noted parents bred: How'euer, free. Nor did his wealth exceed His parentage: yet both in word and deed Sincerely just, and of a blamelesse life." Who thus befpake his now downe-lying wife. Two things I wish: that you your belly lay With little paine; and that it proue a boy. A daughter is too chargeable, and we Too poore to match her. If a girle it be, Icharge, what I abhorre (ô Piety Forgiue me!) that, as soone as borne, it die. This having viter'd; the commanded wept And the Commander; teares no measure kept. Yet Telethusa still with fruitlesse praire, Desires he would not in the Gods despaire. But he too constant, Now her time was come And the ripe burden vext her heavy womb: When Inachis, with all her facred band; In dead of night, or stood, or seem'd to stand Besides her bed. Her browes a crowne adornes, With eares of shining corne, and cynthian he racs, Barking Anubis, and Bubaftis bright, Black Apis spotted variously with white. He whose mouth-sealing finger silence taught, Tymbrels, Ofiris neuer enough fought; And forreine ferpents, whose dire touch constraine A deadly flumber, confummate her traine. Then (as awake, and feeing) the Diuine Thus faid: O Teletbusa, One of mine; eiect these cares, thy husband disobay: nd when Lucina shall thy belly lay, ofter what ere it be. A Deity uxiliary to Distresse am I; eady to helpe, and eafily implor'd: for shall it grieve thee that thou hast ador'd ngratefull Iss. This admonished he leaves the roome. When, rifing in her bed, er hands to Heaven glad Telethusa threw: nd humbly prayes her vision may proue true. icreasing throwes at length a girle disclosed, oth by the father and the world supposed obe a boy; so closely hid: and knowne it to the Mother, and the nurse alone. e payeshis vowes, and of his Fathers name Iphia cals; which much reioyc's the dame, o both fex common; nor deceives thereby: ho still with pious fraud conceales her lie. boy in show, whose lookes should you assigne boy or girle, loue would in either shine thirteene yeares her Father her affide o yellow-trest lanthe: she the pride f Phastian virgins for vnequald faire: leftes daughter, and his onely heire, ke young, like beautifull, together bred, formd a like, alike accomplished: ke darts at once their fimple bosoms strike; ke their wounds; their hopes, ô far vnlike! ie day they expect. Ianthe thought time ran o flow; and takes her Iphis for a man. ore Iphis loues, despaires; despaire eiects r fiercer flames: a maid, a maid affects.

What will become of me ( fhe weeping faid ) Whom new, vnknowne, prodigious loues inuade! If pittifull, the Gods should have destroi'd: Or else have given what might have beene injoy'd. No Cow a Cow, no Mare a Mare persues: But Harts their gentle Hindes, and Rammes their Ewes. So Birds together paire. Of all that moue, No Female si ffers for a Female loue. O would I had no being! Yet, that all Abhord by Nature should in Creet befall; Sol's lust-incensed daughter lou'd a Bull: They male and female. Mine, ô farre more full Of vncouth fury! for she pleas'd her bloud; And flood his errour in a Cow of wood: She, to deceive, had an adulterer. Should all the world their daring wits confer: Should Dedalus his waxen wings renue, And hither flye; what could his cunning doe! Can art conuert a virgin to a boy? Or fit lanthe for a maidens ioy? No, fixthy mind; compose thy vast desires: O quench these ill-aduis'd and foolish fires! Or know thy selfe, or Selfe-deceit accuse: What may be, seeke; and loue as virgins vie. Hope wings Defire; hope cupids flight fustaines: In thee thy Sex this deads. No watch restraines Out deare imbrace, nor husbands iealoufies, Nor rigorous Sires; nor the her felfe denies: Yet not to be injoy'd. Nor canst thou be Happy in her sthough men and Gods agree! Now also all to my desires accord: What they can give, the easie Gods afford;

What me, my Father, hers, her felfe would pleafe, Displeaseth Nature; stronger than all these. she, the forbids. That day begins to thine; ong wisht! wherein länthe must be mine : Ind yet not mine. Of mortals most accurst! starue at feasts, and in the river thirst. uno, ô Hymen, wherefore are you come? We both are Brides: but where is the Bride' groome? Here ended. Nor lesse burnes the other Maid; Vho, Hymen, for thy swift apparance praid. let Telethusa feares what thou affects: rotracting time : oft want of health objects ; II-boading dreames, and auguries oft taines: lut now no colour for excuse remaines. heir nuptiall rites, put off with fuch delay; Vere to be folemniz'd the following day. When the vnbinds, hers, and her daughters haire; and holding by the Altar form'd this praire. sis; who Paratonium Pharos Ile, mooth Mareotis, and feuen-channeld Nile, hear'st with thy presence: thy poore suppliants heare: ) helpe in these extremes, and cure our feare! hee Goddesse, thee of old; these ensignes, I laue seene, and know: thy lamps, attendancie, nd founding Timbrels : and have thee obaid. o me, impunity; life, to this maid, hy fauing counsell gaue: to both renue hy timely pittie. Teares her words persue. he Goddesse shar Altar; when the gate hooke on the hinges: hornes that imitate he waxing Moones, through all the Temple flung facred splendor : noyse-full Timbrels rung.

The Mother, glad of this successefull signe, Though not secure, returnes from I fis shrine. Whom Iphis followes with a larger pace Then viuall; nor had fo white a face. Her strength augments; her looke more bold appeares; Her shortning curles scarce hang beneath her eares; More courage hath, then, when a wench, she had: For thou, of late a Wench, art now a Lad. Gifts to the temple beare, and 16 fing! Sing Ioy! Their gifts vnto the Temple bring; And adde a title in one verse displaid: What Iphis vow'd a Wench, a Boy he pai'd. The Morning Night dismasks with welcome flame: When Iuno, Venus, and free Hymen came To grace their marriage; who, with gifts divine, Iphis the Boy, to his lanthe joyne.

OVID'S

MET.AMORPHOSIS.

The tenth Booke.

THE ARGYMENT.

Fare turnes a man to Flint. Lethaa's blame Olenus beares : now flones ; their [hapes the fame. Vext Cybele to Pine her Atys turnes. Sweet Exparissus in a Cypresse mournes. Enamoured Iouc an Eagles wings displayes; And louely Ganymed to Heaven convayes. Slaine Hyacinthus fighes in bis new Flowre. The cruell Sacrificers by the power Of Venus turnd to Buls. The Proflitute To Stones, Pygmalion wines the lining fruit Of his rare Art. Erigone doth Shine In Heaven; converted to the Virgin Signe. Myrrha, a wceping Tree. Hippomenes And Atalanta, Lyons. Cyprides (Inform'd by Mentha's change ) her Paramoure Turnes to a faire, but quickly fading flowre.

Ence to the Citanes, through boundlesse skies, In saffron mantle, Hymeneus flies:
By Orpheus cal'd. But neither vsuall words, Vor chearfull lookes, nor happy signes affords.
The torch his hand sustain'd, still sputtering, rais'd a tearefull smoke: nor yer, though shaken, blaz'd.

Th'eueng

Th' euent worse then the Omen. As his Bride
Troopes with the Naiades by Hebrus side;
A Scrpent bit her by the heele: which fore't
Life from her hold, and nupriall tyes diuore't.
Whom when the Thracian Poet had aboue
Enough bewail'd; that his complaints might moue
The vnder Shades, at Tanarus descends
To Siygian flouds; and his bold steps extends
By ayrie Shapes, and fleeting Soules, that boast
Offepulture, through that vnpleasant coast
To Plitos Court. When, having tun'd his strings,
Thus to his harpe the God-like Poet sings.

You Powres that sway the world beneath the Earth,

The last abode of all our humane birth:

If we the truth without offence may tell;

I come not hither to discouer Hell,

Nor binde that scolding Curre, who barking shakes

About his triple browes Medusa's snakes.

My wife this iourney vig'd: who, by the tooth

Of trod-on Viper, perisht in her youth.

I would, and stroue thaue borne her losse: but Loue

Won in that strife. A God well knowne aboue:

Nor here, perhaps, vnknowne. If truly Fame

Report old rapes, you also felt his stame.

By these obscure abodes, so full of dread;

By this huge chaos, and deepe Silence, spread

Through your vast Empire; by these prayers of mine;

Eurydices too hasty fate vntwine.

We all are yours: and after a fhort flay; Early, or late; we all must runne one way. Hither we throng; for our last home assign'd: Th'eternall habitation of man-kind.

Sh

reame-bordering Willow, Lotus louing Lakes, iffe Box whom neuer lappy spring for sakes, anch-stender Tamarisk, with trees that beare surple figge, nor Myrtles absent were. e wanton luie wreath'd in amorous twines, nes bearing Grapes, and Elmes supporting Vines, saight Service trees, trees dropping Pitch, fruit-red butus; these the rest accompaned. th limber Palmes, of Victory the meede: d vp-right Pine, whose leaves alost proceeds s'd by the Mother of the Gods: for Shee r lust-staind Atys turn'd into that tree. The spyre-like Cypresse in this throng appeares. late a Boy : lou'd by that God who beares e filuer Bow, and strikes the vocall strings. red to Nymphs that haunt Carthean Springs itag there was; whose hornes, on high displaide th spreading palmes, afford his head a shade. antlers shone with gold; a carquenet necke imbrac't, with sparkling Diamonds set, luer bell voon his forehead hung filken ftrings, which every motion rung. und pearle, of equall fize, from either care ng on his cheekes: who void of native feare, quented houses: and well pleas'd, would stand gentle strokings of a strangers hand, s, Cypariffus, was thy onely ioy, fall that ceabred, the fairest boy) hee full oft to change of pafture led: purling streames that part the ranker mead. th various flowres now would'st thou tricke his hornes: won his backe (who no fuch burden fcornes) ALOUE

About the pleasant fields in pleasure ride; And with a purple raigne the willing guide. 'Twas Summer, and high Noone: Dayes burning eye Made smoking Cancers crooked clawes to fry. Vpon the ground the panting Hart was laide: Coole aire receiving from the fyluan shade. Whom filly Cypariffus wounds by chance: And seeing life pursue his tug dout lance, Resolues to die. What did not Phabus fay. That might a griefe, fo flightly caus'd, allay? He answers him in fighs: this last good-turne Implores; That he might neuer cease to mourne. His bloud now shed in teares, a greenish hiew His body dimmes: the locks that dangling grew Vpon his inory fore-head briftling rife; And pointing vpward, seeme to threat the skies. When Phabas; fighing: I for thee will mourne: Mourne thou for others: Herses still adorne.

Such trees attracting; and inuiron'd round With birds and beafts, vpon the rifing ground The Poet fits; who, having tun'd his ftrings, Indiffonancie musicall, thus fings.

From love, ô Mother Muse, derive my verse;
All bow to love: loves power we oftrehearse.
And lare of Giants sung, in losty straines,
Foil'd by his thunder on Phlegran plaines.
Now, in a lower key, to lovely boyes
Belou'd of Gods, turne we our softer layes.
And sing of womens suries, who persue
Forbidden lusts: persude by Vengeance due.
Heavens King, young Ganymed inflames with love:
There was what love would rather be than love.

(et daines no other shape than hers, that beares lis awfull lightning in her golden seares. Who forthwith stooping with deceitfull wings, rust up Iliades by Ida's springs.

Vho now, for Ious (though lealous Iuno seoules) lelitious Nestar fils in flowing bowles.

And thee Amyelides, in azure skies ad Phabus fixt; if cruell Destinies lad not prevented: yet in some fort made rernall. For, as oft as Springs inuade harpe winters; and to Aries Pisces yeelds: o oft renu'd, thy Flowre adorne the fields. hee lou'd my Father, best of humane births. er Guardian quits his Delphos, in wide Earths ound nauill feated: while the God of Beames aunts wall-leffe Sparta, and Eurotas streames. owneither for his Harpe, nor Quiuer, cares: imselfe debasing, beares the corded snares; r leads the dogs; or clambers mountaines; led Lordly Loue, and flames by custome fed. ow Titan bore his equall-distant Light, :tweene fore-running and enfuing Night : hen lightned of their garments, either shone ith suppling Oile, in strife to throw the stone. his fwinging through the aire first Phabus threw: he obuious clouds dispersing as it flew; nfolid earth, though flying long, at length feends; inforc't by art-inabling strength. n'imprudent Boy attempts with fatall hast take it vp; when Earth, by boundings, caft ie Globe, ô Hyacinthus, at thy head. ie Boy lookt pale; and so the God, who bled

N 2

Euen in his bleeding. Raised from the ground; He sought t'asswage and dry the bitter wound. And would with herbes his flying foule have staid: That wound was curelesse; art affords no aid. As Violets, or Lillies louing streames, Or Poppie, forced in their yellow stemmes. Wither forthwith, and hang their heavy heads: Nor raise themselves, but bow to their first beds: So hung his dying lookes; fo ouer-fwaid, His limber necke vpon his shoulder laid. Thou fall'st Ochalides, in thy youths faire prime, Said Phabus: with thy wound, I fee my crime. My forrow, and my finne. This hand thy breath Hath crushe to aire : I, author of thy death. Yet, what my fault, vnlesse t'haue plaid with thee, Or lou'd thee (ô too well!) offences bee. I would, sweet Boy, that I for thee might die! Or die with thee! but fince the fates denie So deare a wish; thou shalt with me abide: And euer in my memory relide. Our Harpe, and verse thy praises shall resound: And in thy Flowre my forrow shall be found. The Great in Valour shall in time, to it Another adde; and in the same be writ. While thus Apollo truly prophecide: Behold! the bloud which late the graffe had dide; Was now no bloud: from whence a flowre full-blowner Farre brighter than the Tyrian scarlet shone: Which feem'd the same, or did resemble right A Lillie; changing but the red to white. Nor so contented; (for the youth receiv'd That grace from Plabus) in the leaves he wean'd

The fad impression of his sighes: Ail Ail They now in funerall Characters display. For shame to Sparta, Hyacinth procures; Those adoration to this day indures: or now, as erst, they yeerely celebrate the Hyacinthian Feastin solemne State.

Perhaps if Anathus you aske (whose earth abounds with mettals) if she would the birth of her Projutides; she would fay, I: Is well as theirs, for their impiety, in former time, with monstrous hornes defam'd: Whereof they sitly were cerafia nam'd. I lefore their doores the tragicke Altar stood of Ione the Hospitable; stain'd with blood of stranger guests. Who had this shambles seene, Would thinke that bloud the bloud of calues had beene. Guest new sacrifiz'd: faire Cyprides

Iffended with fuch cruell Rites as these;

repares to quit her Cities and the Groues

If Ophiusa. Yet, what guilt reproues

Said she my Groues and Cities? what offence?

ather with death their bloudy lives compence;

rexile: if from these extremes they scape,

That middle course, but to transforme their shape?

Then musing to what forme, she cast her looke pon the horned Heard; and from them tooke resolution so to arme their skuls:

Tho turnes their mighty limbs to monstrous Bulso

Yet durst th'obscene Propatides deny, Venus, thy all-ruling Deity. he first, that euer gaue themselves for hire o prossitution; viged by thy ire.

13

Their

Their lookes imboldned, modesty now gone, Convert at length to little-differing Stone. Pyemalion feeing these to spend their times So beaft-like; frighted with the many crimes That rule in women; chose a single life: And long forbore the pleasure of a wife. Meane while, in inory with har py art A Statue carnes; so shapefullin each part, As woman neuer equall'd it: who flands Affected to the fabrick of his hands, It feem'd a Virgin, fullof living flame; That would have mou'd, if not withheld by shame, So Art it felfe conceal'd. His art admires; From th'Image drawes imaginary fires: And often feeles it with his hands, to try If 'twere a body, or cold inory. Nor could resolue. Who kissing, thought it kist: Oft courts, imbraces, wrings it by the wrift; The ficsh impressing (his conceit was such) And feares to hurt it with too rude a touch. New flatters her; now sparkling stones presents. And orient pearle (loues witching inftruments) Soft-finging birds, each seuerall colour'd flowre, First Lillies, painted balls, and teares that powre From weeping trees. Rich Robes her person decke; Her fingers, rings; reflecting chaines her necke; Pendants her eares; a glittering zone her breft. In all, shew'd well; but thew'd, when naked, best. Now laies he her vpon a gorgeous bed: With carpets of Sidenian purple spred. Now calls her wife. Her head a pillow prest Of plumy downe, as if with sense posseit.

Yow came the day of Venus Festivall: Through wealthy Cyprus folemniz'd by all. White heifers, deckt with golden hornes, by ftrekes Of axes fall: ascending incense smokes. Te, with his gift, before the Altar flands: You Gods, if all we crave be in your hands, Five me the wife I wish: one like, he faid, lut durst not say, giueme my iuory Maid. The golden Venus, present at her Feast, Conceives his wish; and friendly signes exprest: The fire thrice blafing, sparkling thrice on high. le hastes to his admired Imag'rie: couches besides her, rais'd her with his arme; hen kist her tempting lips, and found them warme. That lesson oft repeates; her bosome oft Vith amorous touches feeles, and felrit foft, he inory dimpled with his fingers, lacks ccustom'd hardnesse: as Hymettian wax telents with heat, which chafing thumbs reduce: 'o pliant formes, by handling fram'd for vie. maz'd with doubtfullioy, and hope that reeles; gaine the Louer, what he wishes, feeles, he veines beneath his thumbs impression beat : perfect Virgin full of iuyce and hear. 'he cyprian Prince with joy-enhightned words, o pleasure-giving Venus thanks affords. lis lips to hers he joynes, which feeme to melt: he blushing Virgin now his kiffes felt: nd fearefully creeting her faire eies. ogether with the light, her Louer spies. enus was present at the match she made. nd when nine Crescents had at full displaide

Their ioyning hornes, repleat with borrowed flame, She Paphus bore: who gaue that Ile a name. He, Cinyras begot: who might be stil'd Of men most happy, had he had no child.

I fing of Horror! Daughters, farre, ô farre From hence remoue! and You, who fathers are! Or if my winning verse your minds allure: Let them no credit in this part procure. Or if you will believe the same for true: Beleeue with all the judgements that enfue. If nature could permit fo foule a Crime: Jam glad for you Ismarins; for this Clime; This world of ours; fo distant from that earth That gaue to such a cursed Monster birth. In Costus, Cinnamon; and Amomum, Rich let Pansbaia be: let pretious Gum Sweat from her trees; aftected flowers bring forth So't Myrrba beare. Notree is of that worth. Cubid denies t'haue vs'd his darts therein: And vindicates his flames from fuch a Sinner Alecto, with swoine snakes, and Stygian fire That fury rais'd. 'Tis sinne to hate thy Sire: This Loue, a greater. Princes their abodes Leave in all parts; and for thee fall at oddes: Of all, ô Myrrba, make thy choice of one: So one of all be in that number none. She knew't: and flining; to her selfe thus spake:

O whither rapt! what is't I vndertake!
Good Gods! good Pietie! diuine Respect
Of Parents guard me! and this sinne eiect!
Is so a sinne it be. No pietic

Condemnes such Venus; Natures common tie.

Jorses their fillies backe, sires Heifers beare; Fores kids beget on those whose kids they were: lirds of that leed conceive, whereof but late Conceiu'd themselues; nor they degenerate. lappy in this are those ! But humane care lath fram'd malignant lawes: and we who are y Nature free; malitious customes bind. here is a Nation, to their bloud more kind; There fons their mothers, fathers daughters wive: nd piety with doubled loue reuine. ) woe is me, that there I was not borne! lurst by this place. What thoughts are these! for lorne alse hopes, quant. Though he all-worthy bee: et, as a father, must be lou'd by thee. Vere I not danghter to great Cinyras; Il I conceiue in my desires might passe. low, in that mine, not mine: proximitie if ioynes vs; neerer, were we not fo nigh. ence would I flye by vn-returning wayes o shun this sinne : dire Loue my sourney staies : o feast my hungry eyes with his deare fight, alke, touch, and kiffe; or more, if more I might. ) wicked virgin, canst thou more propound! nowst thou what lawes and names thy lusts confound! hy fathers whore ! a riuall to thy mother ! hy owne fons fifter I mother to thy bother ! lor fear'ft the Furies with their hiffing haire, Tho on the faces of the guilty stare, lith dreadfull torches! From thy foule exile his mischiefe, ere it actually defile. for with thy horrid luft infringe the law If fuffering Nature; but in time with draw-N 5.

Would I ? it will not : he too well inclin'd. O that like fury would inflame his mind! Thus she. But Cinyras, prest with the store Of worthy futers who his voice implore; In his owne choice irresolute, demands (Their names rehearfing) how her fancy stands. She, thoughtfull filent; gazing on his face, Flusht with imbosom'd flames, and wept apace. He, taking this for mayden feare; Delist From weeping, faid: then dride her cheeks, and kift, Too much she ioyes. Againe demanded, who I me best could like: replyde, One, like to you. 78e still, said he, so pious. At that name She hung the head, as conscious of her blame. Twas now the mid of night: when Sleepe bestowes On men; and on their cares, a sweet repose. But Myrrha watches, rapt with tamelelle fires; Retracting her implacable defices. Despaires, hopes; will not, will; now shames, againe Defires; nor knowes what course to take. As when A mighty Oke (one blow behind) his fall On each fide threatens; and is fear'd on all: Euen fo her mind, impair'd with various wounds, Waues to and fro; and changes still propounds. No meane, no cure, was left for loue but death; Death pleas'd. Resolu'd to choke her hated breath;

Death pleas'd. Refolu'd to choke her hated breath Vp-starting, to a beame her girdle ties.
Deare Cinyras farewell (she softly cries)
And of my ruine vnderstand the cause.
That said, the noose about her necke she drawes.
Her wakefull Nurses faithfull cares, they say,
A whispering heard: who in the Lobby lay.

Strai

Straight rose; valockt the doores; the instrument Of death beholding, screecht: together rent Her haire and bosome: and, with trembling hafte, The girdle from her pallid necke displac't. Now had she time to weepe; t'imbrace her Care: And aske the cause of such accurst despaire. she filent, fixes on the earth her eyes: And grieues at deaths preuented enterprise. Baring her horie haires and empty breft, The Nurse, by her first food, and cradle, prest der griefes disclosure. Myrrhaturnes aside, And fighes. The Nurse would not be so denide: Nor onely promist fecrecy; but faid: Tell me, my child, and entertaine my aid. My old age is not fruitleffe: charmes have we, and powerfull medcines, if it furie be:: f witchcraft; magicke shall thy torments ease:: if wrath of Gods, the Gods we will appeale With facrifice. What can be else surmiz'd? Thy fortunes by incursions vnfurpriz'd; Thy mother, and thy father, well? That Name Drew from her foule a figh, that scorcht like flame. Nor in the Nurse did this suspition moue Of fuch a crime: and yet the faw twas Louc. mportunate to know what least the feares, Laid in her lap surrounded with her teares, Sh'infolds her in her feeble armes, and faid; know thou lou'ft; wherein (nor be afraid) Thou maift on my fedulity rely: Nor shall thy father ever this descry. At that, in fury from her lap the fprung; Then on the bed her prostrate body flung;

Muffling her guilty lookes. Be gone, she said, And spare the blushes of a wretched maid. Still vrg'd: Be gone, replyd; or else forbeare T'inquire of that which is a sinne to heare. The Nurse lost in amaze; her hands, with yeeres And terror trembling (kneeling to her) reares: Now speakes her faire, now threatens to disclose (Vnleffe fhe made her priuy to her woes) Her purpos'd violence: and vowes to proue Both secret and affishant to her love. At that, her head she rais'd; her Nurses brest With weeping baths: oft stroue to have confest; As oft with-held: at length the hid her head; And said, ô Mother, happy in thy bed! There ends: then grones. The Nurie cold horror shooke Now too much knowing: with a gastly looke, Her hory haire star'd on her browes: Who said, What not? that might so foule a lust disswade. The Virgin could not such a truth denie: But stands resolu'd, or to possesse, or die. Live, faid the, and possesse (there stopt, as loth To fay; thy Sire) and bound it with an oath. Now Matrons celebrate the yeerely Feast

Of Ceres; whom long linnen stoles inues:
And offer garlands of their first-ripe corne;
Forbidden Venus for nine nights forborne,
And touch of man. In spotlesse ornaments,
With these, the Queene her secret Rites frequents.
Lying alone, the leaudly diligent
Doth Cingras, o're-charg'd with wine, present
With prosser of true love, though falsely maskt:
And prais'd her beauty. Of what age being askt?

The Tenth Booke.

Of equal age with Myrrba, the replies. When bid to bring her: home in haste she highes; Reloyce, said she, I bring thee victory. Th'vnhappy Virgin felt but little ioy; such ill successe her troubled Soule divin'd : And yet the joy'd : fuch discord rackt her mind. Now Silence ouer all the world did raigne: And flow Bootes had declin'dhis Waine. To finne addrest; from heaven bright Cynthia flyes: starres shroud their heads in clouds: Night lost her eyes. trigone, Icarius, firft remoue: hee stellist'd for her paternall love. By stumbling thrice reuok'd; the funerall Owle Thrice fadly shreekt; yet she proceeds: the scoule It Df Night, and Darknesse, modesty bereft. der Nurses right hand olding with her left, and groping with the other hand, explores Her blinde accesse. Now came she to the doores Of that dire chamber; now the way to sinne she boldly opens; and now enters in. Tet bloud and courage her at once for fooke; Her knees, vnknitting, one another ftrooke: The neerenest o her crime remoues desire: Who now repents, and would vnknowne retire. Protracting, by the hand the Nutse her led; and, having rendred her vnto his bed, Here Cymeras, faid the, receive thy owne. and joynes their curfed bosomes. He, vnknownes His bowels to his bed assumes: and cheares Nith comfortable words, her maiden feares, By chance he call'd her daughter, in that, old; and the him father: that their names might hold

Metamorphosis.

Now full of father, bed and chamber leaves. With wicked feed her curfed wombe conceines: Who beares about the burden of her shame: Next night, and next, and next, re-acts the same. When Cinyras, who longs to fee his Louer, So oft imbrac't; did with a light discouer His sinne, and daughter. Sorrow not a word Could veter: he vnsheaths his shining sword. She swiftly flies: whom nights blacke shelter shields From threatned death; and strayes through spatious fields, Palme-clad Arabia, and Panchea past; Now having wandred by nine Moones, at last Rest to her weary limbes Sabaa gaue. Charg'd with her womb; not knowing what to craue; Betweene the hate of life, and feare of death, She this conception quickens with her breath.

You Powers! If Penitencie pietce your eare; I have deserued, nor result to beare, Your institutions: yet lest I prophane Or those who live, or who in death remaine, O banish me from either Monarchie; That, chang'd by you, I may nor live, nor die!

Confession some coelestiall pitty soundar
Those wishes had their Gods. Even then the ground
Coverd her legs: a downe-ward-spreading root
Burst from her toes; whose ever-fixed soor
Sustain'd the lengthful bole. Bones turne to wood,
To pith her marrow, into sap her blood:
Her armes greatbranches grow, her singers spine.
To little twigs; her skin converts to rine.
Now her big wombe the rising tree posses,
Her bosome folds, and now her necke opprest:

Whe

When she, delay ill-brooking, downward shrunke
And vales her visage in the closing trunke.
Though sense, with shape, she lost; still weeping, shee
Sheds butter teares, which trickle from her tree:
Teares of high honour; these their Mistresse name
As yet preserve, and still shall beare the same.

Th'incestuous infant, now at perfect growth Within the tree; indevors to get forth. The barke, amid the bole, her belly wrung, With torment stretcht: nor had that griefe a tongue: Nor could the call Lucina to her throwes: And yet the tree like one in labour showes; Bowes downe with paine, and grones, and weepes a flood. Lucina by her trembling branches stood; Her hand impos'd, and veterd powerfull words. The yawning tree the crying Babe affords A pailage; whom those Nymphs receive with ioy: And in his mothers teares anoint the Boy. His beauty Enuie would commend. Such be Thomaked Cupids which we painted fee. But, lest their habit some distinction make; A quiuer giue, or his from Cupid take.

Time glides away with undiffeouerd haft;
And mockes our hopes: no wings can fly so fast.
He, whom his sister bore, his grandsires son;
Late tree-inclos'd, who lately life begun,
But now an infant louely past compare,
Now boy, now man, now then himselse more faire.
And now on Venus for his mothers fires
Reuenge assumes; who dotingly admires.
For kist by quiuer-bearing Loue, his dart
By fortune raz'd her lilly hand; with smare

Incenst, the thrust him from her: nor then found The wounds deceitfull depth, yet deepe the wound. Not now Cythera could the Louer please; Nor Paphos, grasped with resulting Seas. High Gnidos, Amathus, renown'd for braffe, Nor heaven frequents : her heaven Adonis was. Him woo's, accompanies, besides him lyes In gratefull shades; and striues to please his eyes. Now like Diana the her felfe attires; And trips o're hills and rockes, through brakes and briers: He lowes the hound; persuing beasts of chace, Buckes, high-horn'd Harts, and Hares, who fly apace: But rapefull Wolues, rough Beares, fell Bores elchues; And Lions, whom the bloud of Beeues imbrues. And thee Adonis, her mildoubts diffwade From such encounters; had they been obay'd. Those boldly chace, said She, who flight propose: Valour vnsafely copes with valiant foes. Sweet Boy! be not too hardy in my harmes; Nor tempt those crueil beasts whom nature armes: For feare such glory but too coftly proue. Thy youth and beauty, though they Venus moue, The buffled Swine, nor fhaggie Lion touch : Pitie ne're pierc't the eyes nor hearts of such. Bores, in their crooked tufhes lightning hauc: And Lions with mpetuous fury raue. I hate them. Asked why? We will relate Old crimes, faid she, and wonder-firiking face. But now vn-vsuall toile my strength invades: And loe, yon Poplar courts vs with her shades ; The graffe affords a bed: there let vs reft. When, lying downe, the graffe and him the preft.

ler head now in her Louers bosome laid: hus (word with kifles intermixing) faid. Perhaps you of a Maid haue heard, who wan he Prize in running from the swiftest man. lis true; She, won indeed: nor could you tell hether her speed or beauty most excell. aquiring of a husband; this reply pollo gaue. The vse of husband fly Atalant! nor shalt thou fly; nor thrive that estate, but lose thy felfe alive. ighted herewith in shady woods she lives: nd troopes of pressing Sutors from her drives ith this reply: Except out-runne I be, m a wife for no man, Run with me. y bed, and I, are both the winners meed: he Tardie dies. Vpon this law proceed. e, cruell: yet so powerfull was her looke, 1at many a youth the perill vndertooke. ppomenes beheld this tragicke strife. illany through fuch danger feeke a wife ? aid He) and taxt their follies that perfude. t when her face and naked forme he view'd; ch as is Mine; or Thine, wer't thou a Maid: raz'd! with hands vp-heau'd, Forgiue (he faid) you whom late I blam'd! not then I knew le Prizes worth. Loue still by praising grew: no wishes now that none might runne & fast; denuy fear'd. Why make not I more wast uid he) to trie my fortune? Gods doe aid aduenturous. While this in thought he faid; e Virgin with a winged pace past by.

ough seeming to th'Anian Youth to fly

As swift as Seythian shafts; her forme he more
Admires; by motion louelier than before.
The wind reuerberates her ankles wings,
And whiskes her ham-bound buskins purple strings,
Tossing her haire, on inory shoulders spred.
Her pure white body so assumes the red;
As when carnation curtaines are displayd.
On pure white walls, and dye them with their shade.
While this the stranger view'd, the race was run:
And Atalanta's browes the garland won.
The vanquisht sigh, and pay their forseiture.
Nor could so sad successes his feare procure:
Who rose; and fixing on the Maid his eyes;

Why seeke you praise by easie victories?
Contend with vs.: if we obtaine the Bayes,
Our victory will not eclipse your praise.

Megareus me begot, Onchestius bloud;
He Neptunes, Ruler of the sacred Floud:
Nor we degenerate. My soyle, your name
Will honour; and immortalize your fame.

This while, a well-pleas'd eye She on him threw:
Nor knowes her wish; to lose, or to subdue.
What God, a Foe to beauty, would destroy
This Youth, said she, who seekes my bed t'inioy
With his lifes forfeiture? If I may be
The judge, there is not so much worth in me.
Nor is't his beauty moues, though it might moue;
But that a Boy. We pitte, and not loue.
Besides; his courage, and contempt of death!
But once remou'd from Neptunes sacred birth!
And then, his Loue; content to part with life,
If harder sate deny me for his wife!

Begon

egone, ô Stranger; shun my bloudy bed, hile yet thou maift this Match will cost thy head. o Virgin is there who would not be thine: nd fuch would feeke, whose lusters darken mine. er why regard I him, so many staine? ooke to thy felfe, or perish: fince in vaine amonishe by such numbers, whom this strife ath fent to death. Thou'rt weary of thy life. nd must be die, because bee'd live with me? ust death, aduenturous Loue, thy wages be? his mur der will our victory defanie; nd purchase hate: yet am not I in blame. would thou wouldst defist, and danger shun ! r fince fo mad, would thou couldft fafter run! ow Boy and Virgin reuell in his face! h poore Hippomenes! O would this place, h'hadft neuer feene ! thou well deferu'ft to live. Vere I more happy, and hard fare would give e leaue to marry; thou art He alone. o whom my bed and beauties should be knowne. Thus she: Who raw, and pierc't with Loues first touch rres in her thoughts; and lones; nor knew fo much. ow King and People call vpon the Race: 'hen Neptunes Issue thus implor'd my grace. Venus, fauour my attempts, he faid: ad those affections, which you gave me, aid! his friendly winds conuey'd vnto my eare: sitie, and no longer helpe forbeare. A field there is, so fertill none, through all ich Cyprus; which they Damascenus call. ntiquity this to my honour vow'd: nd therewith all my Temples had indow'd.

A tree there flourisht on that pregnant mould, Whose glittering leaves, and branches, shone with gold. Three golden apples, gathered from thartree, By chance I brought: and, fo as none could fee. Himselfe excepted, to Hippomenes, Together with their vie, deliver'd thefe. The trumpets found. Both from the Barrier start: Whose nimble steps scarce touch earths upper part. Their feet, vnwet, the lea might well have borne : Or unsuppressed stalkes of standing corne. Fauour and Clamour, ioyning in remorfe, The Youth thus hearten: Now thy speed inforce, Make haste Hippomenes; delay decline; Collect thy powers: the victory is thine. 'Tis doubtfull whether that which Fauour said, More joy'd the Heros or Schaneian Maid. How often lag'd she, when she might o're-goe! And gazing on him, figh't t'out-strip him fo! Short breath from panting bosomes scorching flew The Gole farre off: when Neptunes Nephew threw One apple of the three. The Maid admires: And greedy of the shining fruit, retires To catch the rowling gold: the Youth past by; And all the field resounded shouts of ioy. This hindrance she repaires with winged hast ; Againe Hippomenes behind her cast. The second fruit, throwne faither than before, Declin'd her steps; yet him out-strips once morc. The Race now neere an end, he said, ô saue! Great Goddesse, giue successe to what you gaue! And threw the shining gold another way With all his vigor; to prolong her stay.

Whe

Vhen I compei'd her, doubtfull what to doc. o take it vp; and added waight thereto: Vith-held, both by diverting her persuit; ind with the burden of the ponderous fruit. jutlest my words the Race in length exceed; he was out-run, and he receiu'd his Meed. Descru'd not I both thankes and frankincente, Thinke you Adonis, for his lifes defence? le neither gaue. Prouok't with sudden rage it this contempt; and left the future age ly fuch examples should my God-head slight; lgainst them both I due reuenge excite. he fane, erected by Echiens vow Into the Mother of the Gods, they now lad past; obscur'd by darke and secret shades; When their long iourney them to rest perlwades. lippomenes, incensed by my fires; Here lufteth with vnfcas'nable defires. I gloomie grot, much like vnto a caue, itood neere this Fane; to which light pumice gaue I natiue couer; by denotion grac't With old religion: where the Priest had plac's The woodden Images of ancient Gods: his entring; he pollutes their chafte abodes. The Statues wry their lookes. The Mother, crown'd Vith towres, had strucke them to the Stygian Sound: lut that she thought that punishment too small. When yellow maines on their left shoulders fall; heir armes, to legs, their fingers turne to nailes; Their brefts of wandrous strength: their tusted tailes Whiske up the dust; their lookes are full of dread; or speech, they rose: the woods become their bed.

Thefo

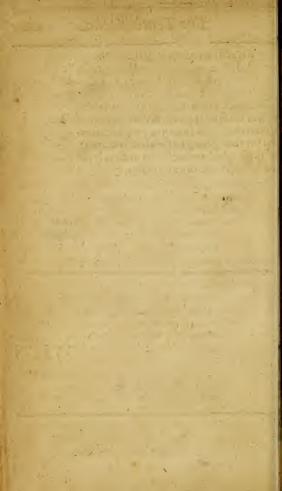

These Lions, sear'd by others, cybelcheckes With curbing bits; and yokes their stubborne neckes. These, ô my Deare, and all such kinds of beasts As will not turne their backes; but bend their brests Tincounter with the rash affailant, Shun: Lest by thy courage We be both yndone.

This faid: thence flew the, rais'dby yoked Swans. But Valour such admonishments with-stands. By chance the dogs, perfuing long before His sented footings, had dislodg'd a Bore. Whom, rushing from his couert, the bold Youth Obliquely wounds. The Bore with crooked tooth Writhes out the iauelin, with his bloud imbrude. Who now his fafety-feeking Foe perfude; Sheathing his tuthes in his groine: and threw To earth the dying Boy. The Swans that drew Idalia's waightleffe chariot through the aire, Yerreacht not Cyrus: when the heavenly Faire Thence heard his dying grones; and wheeling round, Her filver birds directs to that fad found. But when she saw him weltzing in his gore; Downe jumping from the skies, at once she tore Her haire and bosome: then her brest inuades With bitter blowes; and Destiny vpbraides. Not all, faid the, is subject to your wast: Our forrowes monument shall ever last. Sweet Boy 1 thy deaths fad image, every yeare Shall in our folemniz'd Complaints appeare. But be thy bloud a Flowre. Had Proserpine The power to change a Nymph to Mint? is mine Inferiour? or will any enuy mee For this exchange? This having vtter'd, thee owr'd Nectar on it, of a fragrant smell.

POWI

prinkled there-with; the bloud began to swelle like shining bubbles, which from drops ascend, and e're an houre was fully at an end,
from thence a Flowre, alike in colour, rose, uch as those trees produce, whose fruits inclose Within the limber rine their purple graines, and yet their beauty but a while remaines;
for those light-hanging leaues, infirmely plac't,
he winds, that blow on all things, quickly blass.

OVIDS

OVID'S

METAMORPHOSIS.

The Eleuenth Books.

THE ARGUMENT.

A Serpent chang'd to Stone. Rough barkes infilst
Alberneul Bacchanals. To firming Gold
Alberneus at Midas touch He's bodie lause
In cleere Pactolus, whose inriched waues
Wash off hu gold and gibt: an Asserted
Hu solly shame: the whispred Serves beares
Like-sounding Reeds. Apollo, and the Guide
Of sacred Seas, in humane shapes reside.
Fore't Thetis varies formes. Dadalion
Ta Falcontum d. A Wesse conteal to Stone.
Morpheus to mortals, Phobesor to Brutes,
And Phantasus to shapes inanimate suites.
Transform d Hal yone and Ceyx siye.
So Escaus, who vainly strius to dye.

Hus while the Thracian Poet with his fongs
Beafts, trees, and stones, attracts in following throngs:
Behold, Ciconian dames (their furious brests ad with the spotted skins of saluage beasts) ie Sacred Singer from a hill espy'd, he his dittie to his Harpe apply'd.
these, One scream'd, and tost her slairing haire;
e, see the Woman-hater! then her speare

Threw at his vocall mouth; which iuie-bound, Kift his affected lips without a wound. An Other hurles a stone; this, as it flew, His voice and Harpes according tunes subdue: Which felfe-accus'd for fuch a rude affay, Before his feet, as in Submission, lay: Rash violence, the meane exil'd, increast: And mad Erimnys raign'd in euery breaft. His fongs had all their weapons charm'd, if noyle Of Berecynthian Shalmes, clapt hands, loud cryes, Drummes, howling Bacchanals, with franticke found Had not his all-appearing musique drown'd. The stones then blush with filenst Orphers blood. But first on rauisht beasts that listning stood, On fowle, and Serpents, they their spight infer; Andraze the glory of his Theater. Then all with cruellhands about himfly: And flocke, like birds, when they by day espy The bird of Night. And as a Stag at bay, In early Spectacle given to the pray Of eager hounds; affaile, together flung Their leauie speares, not fram'd for such a wrong. Some clods, some armes of trees, some stones advance: And lest wilde Rage should weapons want, by chance Not far off Oxen drew the furrowing ploughes; And Swaines, prouiding food with sweating browes, I heir brawny armes imploy'd: who feare-inclinde, before them fled, and left their tooles behinde. I heir mattockes, rakes, and spades, dispersed lay About the empty fields: these snarcht away, (The oxens hornes torne from their skuls) their hate hurry them backe vato the Poets fate.

The

Thee, holding vp thy hands, who n'er before

Befought'st in vaine, now to preuaile no more, That Rout of facrilegious Furies flew! uen through that mouth (ô Iupiter!) which drew From stones attention, which affection bred a faluage beafts, his forced spirits fled ! ad birds, wilde Heards, hard flints, and woods which ofe Remou'd to heare thee, wept: trees weeping doft Their pallid leaves; ftreames with their teares increast: The Naiades and Dryades inuest Their loynes in fullen fable, and display Their scattered haire. Thy limbes dispersed lay. lebrus had head and Harpe: asborne along he Harpe founds fomething, fadly; the dead tongue ighes out fad ditties: the ! . kes sympathie; hat bound the river in their fad replie. Now borne to Sea, from native streames they drive; ind at Methymnian Lesbes shore arine. Dragon on the forren fand prepares o feaze his head, and licke his dropping haires. Vhen gaping to deuoure the Hymnists face, habus descends; and in that very space ato a Stone converts him by his powre, Vith lawes extended readie to deuoure. lis Ghost retires to vnder-mades: once more le sees, and knowes, what he had seene before. hen through the Elysian fields among the bleft cekes his Eurydice. Now repossest

Vith strict imbraces, guided by one minde, 'hey walke together: oft he comes behinde, 'strgoes before: now Orpheus safely may is following Eurydice survay.

Oa

Yet would not Bacchus fo remit their hate: Who vexed for his Prophets ciwell fate, Fixt all th' Edonion Dames that then reby With spreading roots; and who more eagerly Persude his death, their toes he deeper drew Within the follid earth, which downward grew. And even as fowle whose feet intangled are Within the Subtile Fowlers Secret Snare Become by fearfull fluttering faster bound: So, each of these, now cleaning to the ground. With terror Aruggle to escape in vaine; For faster-binding roots their flight restraine. One, looking for her nailes, her toes, her feet: Behold, her twinning legs in timber meet: In passion, thinking to have Acucke her thighes, She strikes hard oke; hard oke her brest supplies; Her shoulders such: her armes appeare to grow In naturall branches; and indeed did fo.

Nor thus content, their fields Lyaus leaves: Whom Tmolus, with a better crew, receives, And swift Passolus, who did then infold No precious sands, nor graines of enui'd gold. Salyres and Bacchanals make their repaire, His vsualitaine: Silenus then not there. Him erst the Phygian wards recling found With age and wine; and now, with inie crown'd, To Midas bring: whom Orpheus Orgies taught, And sage Eumolpus from Cerropia brought. When knowne to be his partner in those Rites; Full twice sue dayes, with their succeeding nights, He entertain'd him with a sumptuous feast. Eleven times Lucifer the starres suppress:

Then,

When, with wilde mirth, he treads the Lydian fields; And to the God his Foster-father yeelds. He in his fafe receipt doth much reloyce: Whole bounty Midas frustrates by his choyce. For, will'd to wish; Let all, said he, I touch Convert to gold. His ignorance was fuch. orth-with his hurtfull with Lyeus gives: And at his folly not a little grieues. But in his curse the Bereconthian ioyes: and home-ward bound, the truth by touching tryes. carce trusts himselfe. Who from a tree bereaues I flender branch; this shone with golden leaves. Takes vp a stone; that stone pale gold became : Takes vp a clod; the clod prefents the fame: crops stalkes of corne; they yeeld a sheafe of gold: in apple pulls; therein you might behold h'Hefterian purchace: toucht by him alone. he marble pillars with rich mettall shone. and when he washt his hands; that, showr'd in raine, light simple Danaê haue deceiu'd againe. lis breft scarce holds his hopes; whose fancie wrought In golden wonders: when his feruants brought feat to the table. Sooner had not he oucht Ceres bounty, but that prou'd to be fhining maffe : affumed viands ftraight etweene his greedy teeth conuert to plate. bout to drinke mixt wine; you might behold listhirfty iawes o're-flow with liquid gold. trucke with so strange a plague; both rich and poore; e hates, and shuns the wealth he wisht before. lo plenty hunger feeds; he burnes with thirst: loathed gold deservedly accurst.

Then, lifting up his shining armes, thus praid: Father Leneus, ô, afford thy aid! I have offended; pitie thou; and mee From this so beautifull a mischiefe free. The gentle Powre accepts his penitence: And for his faith, doth with his gift dispence. Lest ill-wisht gold about him still abide. Goe, said he, to those Cristall streames that glide By porent Sardis: keepe the bankes that lead Along th'incountring Current to his head. There, where the gushing fountaine fomes, dine in: And, with thy body, wash away thy sinne. The King obeyes: who in the fountaine leaves That golden vertue, which the Spring receives. And still those ancient seeds these waters hold: Who gild their shores with glittering graines of gold. He, having wealth, in woods and helds bestowes

Histime with Pan; whom mountaine Caucainclose.

Yet his groffe wit remaines: his shallow braine

And fottish senses punish him againe. High Tmoles with a fleepe ascent vnfolds His rigid browes, and vader-feas beholds: Whose stretcht-out bases here to Sardis ioyne; There to Hypepis, girt in small confine. Where boafting Pan, while he his verse doth praise Totender Nymph,, and pipes this rurall layes;

Before Apollo's durst his songs prefer. They meer (ill-matcht) great T molus arbiter. Th'old Iudge on his owne Mountaine fits; and cleares His eares from trees: alone a garland weares Of Oke, with acornes dangling on his brow.

Who thus bespake the God of Shepherds; Now

our Iudge attends. He blowes his wax-bound reeds: nd Midas fancie with rude numbers feeds. hen facred Tmolus to divine Apollo onverts his lookes: his woods his motion follow. e, his long yellow haire with laurell bound. lad in a Tyrian robe that swept the ground, Violl holds, with sparkling gemmes inchac't nd Indian teeth; the bow his right hand grac't. perfect Artist shew'd. The strungs then strucke ith cunninghand: With his sweet musicke tooke, nolus bids Pan his vanquisht reeds resigne. lin the holy Mountaines sentence ioyne. ut Midas only; whose exclaimes traduce he Censure. Phabus for this grolle abuse ransformes his eares, his folly to declare: retcht out in length, and couer'd with gray haire : stable, and now apr to moue. The rest he former figure of a man possest. misht in that offending part: who beares pon his skull a flow-pac't Affes eares He striues to couer such a foule defame : nd with a red Tiara hides his shame. it this his feruant faw that cut his haire: ho bigge with secrets, neither durst declare is Soueraignesseene deformity, nor yet ould hold his peace. Who digs a shallow pit, ad therein foftly whispers his disgrace: hen turning in the earth, forfooke the place. tuft of whilpering Reeds from thence there growes; hich comming to maturity, disclose he husbandman: and by foft South-winds blowne fore his words, and his Lords cares make knowne. Reueng'd Reueng'd Apollo, leaving Tmolus, flies Through liquid aire; and on the land which lies On that fide Helles ftreightned furges ftands: Where far-obey'd Laomedon commands. Below Rhulanm, high about the flood, And on the right hand of Sigeum, flood An Altar vow'd to Panomphean loue: From whence He faw Laomedon improue New Troy's scarce founded walls; with what adoe. And with how great a charge they flowly grew. Who, with the Father of the tunid Maine, Indues a mortall shape: and entertaine Themselves for varegarded gold to build The Phrygian Tyrants walls. That worke fulfill'd; The King their promised reward denies: And periury by iwearing multiplies. Reuengefull Neptune his wilde waves vnbound; Which all the shores of greedy Troy surround, And made the Land a Lake : the country Swaine His labour lost beneath that liquid Plaine. Besides the daughter of the King demands: Who chained to a Rocke exposed stands To feed a Monster of the Sea; setfree, By strenuous Hercules. Yet could not Hee The horses of Liomedon enjoy; His valours hire: who fackes twice periur'd Troy; And gives his fellow Souldier Telamon Hefione: for Pel us now had won A Deity; nor in his Grandfather Tooke greater pride, than in his Sire by her. For Inpiter had Nephewes more than one: But he a Goddesse had espous'd alone.

for aged Proteus thus foretold the truth fo waste-wet Thetis: Thou shalt beare a Youth, Who shall in glorious armes transcend his birth and Fathers fame. Lest any thing on earth should be more great than love, love shuns the bed
Of Sea-th on'd Thetis, though her beauty led dis strong desires: who bids Accides succeed his love, and wed the Queene of Seas.

A Bay within Amonialies, that bends Much like an arch, and far-firetcht armes extends: Which were, if deepe, a harbor lockt by land; Where shallow seas o're spred the yellow fand. The follid shore (where-on no sea-weed growes) Nor closs the way, nor print of footing showes. Hard by, a mirtle groue affords a shade: in this, a caue; though doubtfull, rather made By art than nature: hither Thetis swimmes On Delphins backes, here coucht her naked limbes. In this the fleeping Goddeffe Peleus caught: Who, when she could not by his words be wrought, Attempts to force, and claspt her in his armes. And had the not affum'd her viuali charmes In varying shapes, he had his will obtain'd. Now, turning to a fowle, her flight restrain'd: Now seemes a massie tree adorn'd with leaves; Close to the bole th'inamor'd Peleus cleaues. A spotted Tygresse she presents at last: When he, with terrour ft ucke, his armes ynelafpt. Who powring wine on seas, those Gods implores; And with persumes and facrifice adores: Till the Carpathian Prophet rais'd his head, And said; Agides, injoy her bed.

Doe thou but binde her in her next surprise, When in her gelid caue the fleepinglies: And though the take a thousand thapes, let none Dismay; but hold, till she resume her owne. This Proteus faid, and diu'd to the Profound: His latter word in his owne waters drown'd. Now hasty Titan to Hesperian seas Descends; when beauteous Thetis, bent to ease Forfooke the floud, and to her caue repair'd. No sooner she by Peleus was infnar'd, But forth-with varies formes; vntill she found Her Virgin limbes within his fetters bound. Then, spreading forth her armes, She sighing said, Theu haft subdude by some immortallaid; And Thetis shew'd; nor his imbrace repell'd: Whose pregnant wombe with great Achilles swell'd.

Happie was Peleus in his sonne and wife: And had not Phocus murder foild his life, All-fortunate. With brothers bloud defil'd. Thee Trackin harbours, from thy home exil'd. Where courteous Ceyx, free from rigour, raign'd; The sonne of Lucifer; whose lookes retain'd His fathers lufter: then disconsolate, Nor like himselfe, for his lost brothers fate. Hither, with trauell tir'd, and clog'd with cares, The banisht with a slender traine repaires: His Flockes and Heards, with men for their defence, Left in a shadie vale not farre from thence. Conducted to his Royall presence, Hee With oliue brancht, downe bending to his knee, His name and birth declares: the murder maskes With forged cause of flight: a dwelling askes field, or citie. Ceyx thus replyes: ur hospitable bounty open lyes o men of vulgar ranke: what owes it then your high spirit, so renoun'd by men? f monumentall praise? Whose bloud extracts is fourfe from love, improved by your Acts? o sue, is times abuse: your worth assures our full defires; of all, the choice is yours: wish it better. And then wept. The cause ues Nephew askes: when, after a short pause; Perhaps you thinke this Bird which lives by rape o all a terror, ever had that shape. e was a man; as constant in his minde s fierce in warre, to great attempts inclinde. adalien nam'd; fprung from that Star which wakes he deawie Morne; the last that heaven forsakes. flected peace I fostered, with the rites of nupriall ioyes: He ioy'd in bloudy fights. is valour Kingdomes with their Kings Subdude 5 y whom the Thisbian Doues are now persude. is daughter Chione, whose beauty drew thousand surors, ripe for marriage grew. y fortune Phabus, and the sonne of Mai. rom Delphos, and Cyllenus, came this way : lere meeting, looke, and like. The God of Light deferres his joy-imbracing hopes till night. termes ill-brookes delay: who on her laid lis drowsie rod, and forc't the sleepie Maid. light spangs the skie with starres. An old wifes shape spullo tooke, and seconds Hermes rape. Now when the fulnctie of her time drew nies Autolichas was borne to Mercuris.

Nor from the Sire the Sonne degenerates, Cunning in theft, and wily in all fleights: Who could with subtiltie deceive the fight ;-Converting white to blacke, and blacke to white. To Phabus (for the bare two fonnes) belongs Philammon, famous for his Harpe and fongs. What is't t'haue had two fonnes? two Gods t'inflame? A valiant father? Iupiter the same? Is glory fatall? fure t'was fo to Her: Who to Dianas durfther face confer, And blame her beauty. With a cruell looke, She said; Our deeds thall right vs. Forthwith tooke Her bow, and bent it: when the bow-string flung Th'eiected arrow through her guiltie tongue. It bleeds; of speech and sound at once bereft: And life, with bloud, her falling bodge left. What griefe (ô Piety!) opprest my heart! What faid I not, t'asswage my brothers smart! Who heares me so as rockes the roring waves That beat their browes; and for his Daughter raues. But when he saw her burne, foure times affail'd To facke the flamie Pile: as often fail'd. Then turnes his heeles to flight (much like a Bull By Hornets stung) whom scratching brambles pull: Yet feem'd to run farre faster than a man, As if his feet had wings; and all out-ran. Who swift in chace of wished death, ascends Parnassus top. As he his bodie bends To iumpe from downe-right cliffes, compassionate Apollo, with light wings, prevents his fate: With beake and tallons arm'd; with strength repleat Aboue his fize : his courage fill as great. Thi ais Falcon, friend to none, all foule persu'th: nd grieuing, is the cause of common ruth. Sad Cepx thus his brothers change relates: then Phocean Anetor prest the gates; 'ho kept the Heard: and cry'd (halfe out of breath) leus, I bring thee newes of loffe and death. eport, said Peleus, we are bent to beare he worst of fortunes. While the King with feare angs on his tongue. He panting still afeard: To winding shores we draue the weary Heard, hen Phabus from the heighth of all the skie he East and West beheld with equall eic. part on yellow fands their limbs display; nd from their ease the wany fields surnay : Thile other flowly wander here and there: ome swim in seas, and lofty fore-heads reare. Fane, vnd ckt with gold or marble stone dioynes; high blockt; within a groue o're-growne. his the New ides and Nevens hold: y sea men, who there dry'd their nets, fo told. leere it, a Marish, thicke with fallowes, stood; lade plashie by the interchanging flood. Wolfe, a monstrous teast; with hideous noise hat frights the confines, from those thickets flies. lis lightning lawes with bloud and foame befmear'd: n whose red eyes two darting flames appear'd. hough fell with rage and famine; yet his rage fore greedy farre: nor hunger feckes t'affwage Vith bloud of beeues, and fo furcease; but all le meets with, wounds; insulting in their fall. For few of vs, while we his force with-flood, ell by his rankling phangs. The shore with blood,

With bloud the sea-brimme blusht, and bellowing lakes. Delay is losse; and Doubt it selfe for sakes. Arme, arme, while something yet is lest to lose: And joyning force, this mortall Bane oppose.

The Heardsman ends. Nor did this losse incense Aacides; remembring his offence: Borne, as the iustice of fad Psamathe, To celebrate her Phocus Obfequie. -The King commands his men to arme: prouides To goe in person. Busie rumour guides This to Alcyone: her passion bare Her swiftly thither; running with her haire Halfe vncompos'd: and that disordering, clung About his necke: then weepes; and with a tongue That scarce could speake, intreats, that they alone Might goe; nor hazard both their lines in one. To whom Aacides; Faire Queene forgoe Your vertuous feare: too much your bounties flow. .No force auailes in fuch oftents as these: 'Tis prayer that must the sea-thron'd Power appeale. A lofty towre within a fortresse stood; A friend to wandring ships that plough the flood. They this ascend; and fighing, see the shore With cattell frew'd; the Spoyler drencht in gore. Here Peleus fixt on feas, with knees that bend, Blew Pfamathe implores at length to end The justice of her wrath. She from his speech Diuerts her eares: till Thetis did beseech, And got her husbands pardon: nor yet could The faluage Wolfe from thirst of bloud with-hold; Till she the beast, as he a Heifer slew, Transform'd to marble; differing but in hew:

else intire. The colour of the stone w him no Wolfe: now terrible to none. t Fate would not permit Aacides harbour here; nor found in exile eafe; lat Magnesia, in a happy time affus purg'd him from his bloudy crime. Meane-while perplext with former prodigies th of his neece and brother; to aduize ith facred Oracles, the ioyes of men, x prepares for Claros. Phorbas then, ith his Phlegyan hoaft, alike prophane, ie passage stopt to Delphian Phabus Fane. t first to thee his secret purpose told, ith crown'd Alcyone. An inward cold orthrough her bones: her changing face appeares pale as Box, surrounded with her teares. rice stroue to speake, thrice weeps through deare combs interrupting her divine complaint. (Straint: What fault of mine, my Life, hath chang'd thy mind? here is that loue that late so cleerely shin'd? inft thou thy felfe enioy, from me remou'd? oe long wayes please? is now my absence lou'd? et didst thou goe by land, I should alone rieue without feare: now both combine in one. as fright me with their tragicall aspect. flate I saw them on the shore eiech heir scattered wracks: and often haue I read id nameson sepulchers that want their dead. or let false hopes thy confidencie please; that my father, great Hippotades, he strugling winds in rockie cauernes keepes. nd at his pleasure calmes the raging Deepes.

They

They once broke loofe submit to no command;
But raue o're all the sea, and all the land;
High clouds perplex, with sterne concursions rore,
Emitting slames: I seare, by knowledge, more.
These knew I, and oft saw their rude comport;
While yet a Girle, within my Fathers Court.
But if my prayers can no recesse procure;
And that, alas, thy going be too sure;
Take me along: let both one fortune beare;
Then shall I only what I suffer seare.
Together saile we on the toyling Maine:
And equally what euer hap sustaine.

Thus fpoke Aleyone: whose forrowes melt Her star-like spouse; nor he lesse passion felt, Yet neither would his first intent for fake Nor her a Partner in his danger make. Much faid he to affwage her troubled breft: As much, in vaine. This addes vnto the reft, Which only could her penfiue cares reclaime: All stay is irkesome; by my fathers Flame, I sweare, if Fate permit, returne I will E'retwice the Moone her thining Crescens fill. Reuiu'd with promise of so short a stay; He bids them lanch the ship without delay, And fit her tacklings. This renues her feares; Presaging ill successe: abortine teares Flow from their springs; then kift : a sad farewell, Long first, at length she takes; and swowning, fell. The Sea-men call aboard: in double ranks Reduce their oares, vp-rising from their Banks With equall ftrokes She reares her humid eies, And fish her husband on the Poope espies naking his hand: that, answers. Now from shore he vessell drives, and thence her Obiect bore. er following eyes the Lying ship persue: hat loft, the failes her eager gazes drew. Vhen all had left her, to her chamber goes; nd on the empty bed her body throwes: he bed and place, with teares, to minde recall hat absent part, which gaue esteeme to all. Now farre from Port; the winds began to blow In quivering Shrowds; their ores the Sailers flow: hen hoise their Yards a trip, and all their failes t once let fall to catch th'approching gales. he Ship scarce halfe her Course, or sure no more, y this had runne; farre off from either shore : Vhen, deepe in night, fierce Eurus flifly blew; nd high-wrought Seas with chafing foamie grew. trike, strike the Top-faile, let the Main-sheat fly, nd furle your failes, the Master cry'd; his cry he bluftring winds and roring feas suppresse. et of their owne accord in this distresse They ply their taske: fome sceling yards bestri'd nd take-infailes; some stop on either side he yawning leakes; some teas on seas reied. Vhile thus Disorder toiles to small offect. he bitter forme augments; the wilde Winds wage Varre from all parts, and joyne with Neptunes rage. he Master lost, in terrour, neither knew The state of things, what to command, or doe; Confeiling ignorance; to huge a maffe If ills oppresse! which slighted Art surpasse. owd cries of men refound; with rathing shrowds, louds juffling flouds, and thunder-crashing clouds.

Now toffing Seas appeare to front the sky, And wrap their curles in clouds, frotht with their spry: The fand now from the bottome laue, and take Their swarter die; now blacke, as Stygian lake; Sometimes deprest, with histing foame all white. The Trachinship such horrid changes fright. Which now, as from a mountaine rockt with flawes, Viewes vnder vales, and Acherons darke iawes: Now head-long with the tumbling billowes fell; And heaven survaies from that infernal! Hell. Her waue-beat sides a hideous noise report: As when a battering Ramaffronts a Fort. As chafed Lions, senselesse of remorfe, Rush on extended steele with horrid force: So Seas inuade with Storme-imbatled powre The Ships defence; and o're her hatches towre. Her yeelding plankes now spring : sterne Neptune raues; Charging her breaches with his deadly wates. The prodigall clouds in showres their substance spend: Ambitious leas to gloomy Heauen ascend; All heaven descending to the lofty Maine: At least so seeme. Sailes sucke the falling raine; Showres ioyne with flouds. No friendly star now shone: Blind Night in darknesse, tempests, and her owne Dread terrors lost: these horrid lightning turnes To light more fear'd; the Sea with lightning burnes. Now vaulting flouds her vpper decke opprest. And as a Souldier, brauer than the rest, Tempting to scale the walls with lost assaies, At length inioyes his hopes; and spur'd with praise, Among a thousand onely stands the shocke: So while affailing waves the veffell rocke, e tenth hold Billow rusheth in, nor shrinkes will the Ship beneath his furie finkes. rose seas, without, the labouring Barke assaile: efe facke her Hold. All tremble and looke pale ; at a siege, when foes inforce a wall; hile some within to execution fall. t failes, hearts quaile: on euery rising wave ath fits in triumph, and presents a graue. weepes; He stands amaz'd; He calls them blest hom funerals grace: He vowes to Heauen addrest, oking on what he fees not, and befought e Gods in vaine : He on his parents thought, s children, house, and what he left behind. tione alone had Ceyx mind; r onely names: now in her absence ioy'd hose presence was his heaven : and had imploy'd s eyes last duty to descry the way her abode; but knew not where it lay. e giddy seas so whirle, such pitchie clouds oscure the skie: Night two-fold darknesse shrouds. ud howling whirle-winds ouer-boor'd now bore e shiuered mast; and now the rudder tore. Billow with these spoiles incourag'd, raues; ho victor-like contemnes the vnder waves : or lighter falls, then if some God had torne idus and Athes from their roots, vp-borne high as heaven, and tumbled on the Maine. or could the ship such force and waight sustaine; t to the bottome finkes. Most of her men ie feas ingage; who neuer feene againe complished their fates: while other swim a scattered planks; a planke vpholding Him

The

Who late a scepter held. His father in law, And father, now inuokes: but could not draw (Alasse!) from either succour. Still his wise Runnes in his thoughts in that short span of life. He wisht the waues would cast him on the sands Of Trachin, to be buried by her hands. Who swimming, sighes Alyme; her name His last of speech: in Seas conceives the same. Behold; an arch of waters, blacke as hell, Brake o're the floud: the breaking surges quell Their sinking Burthen. Lucifer that night Became obscure; nor could you see his light. And since he might not render up his place, With pitchie clouds immur'd his darkned sace.

Meane-while Aleyone, not knowing ought Computes the tedious night; the daies out-wrought Vpon a robe for him; another makes To weare her selfe: whose flattering hope mistakes In his returne. Who holy fumes presents To all the Gods; but most of all frequents The Fane of lune: at her altars prai'd For him that was not. Grant successe! (she said) A quicke returne! Give he our right to none! Of all her prayers the last succeeds alone. The melting Goddeffe could no longer brooke Her death-croft prayers; but from her altar shooke Her tainted hand; and thus to Iris spake: Hafte faithfull Messenger, thy iourney take To drowfie Sleepes dimme palace: bid him fend A dreame that may present the wofull end Of Ceyx to Aleyone. This faid; She, in a thousand-coloured robe araid, ample Bow from Heauen to Earth extends: d in a cloud to his abode descends. Neere the Cimmerians sculks a Caue, in steepe dhollow hils; the Mansion of dull Sleepe: t seene by Phabus when he mounts the skies, height, nor stooping: gloomy mists arise m humid earth, which still a twi-light make. crested fowles shrill crowings here awake e cheerefull Morne: no barking Sentinell re watch; nor geele, who wakefull dogs excell. afts rame, nor faluage, no wind-shaken boughes, r strife of iarring tongues, with noyses rouse ured Ease. Yet from the rocke a spring, th streames of Lethe foftly murmuring, rles on the pibbles, and inuites Repote. fore the Entry pregnant Poppie growes, th numerous Simples; from whose juicie birth ght gathers fleepe, and fleds it on the Earth. doores here on their creeking hinges jarr'd: rough-out this court there was nor doore, nor guard. hid the Hebon Caue a downie bed th mounted stands, with fable coverings spred. re lay the lazie God, dissolu'd in rest. ntafficke Dreames, who various formes exprest, out him couch: then Autumn's eares far more; leaues of trees, or lands on Neptunes hore. e Virgin entring, parts the obulous Dreames: d fils the facred Concaue with the beames her bright robe. The God with strife dissoines feeled lids; againe his head declines, d knocks his chin against his brest. Anon nselfe Himselfe eiects; and, leaning on.

His elbow, asketh (for he knew her) why
She thither came? when Iris made reply:
Thou Rest of things, most meeke of all the Gods;
O Sleepe, the Peace of minds, from whose abodes
Care euer flies; restoring the decay
Oftoile-ty'd limbs to labour-burdning Day:
Send thou a Dreame, resembling truth, in post
T'Hereusean Trachin; that, like Ceyx ghost,
May to Alcyone his wracke vnsold.
Saturnia this commands. Her message told,
Iris with-drew; who could the power of Sleepe
Resist no longer. When she found it creepe
Vpon her yeelding senses, thence she flies:
And by her painted Bow reasounts the skies.

The Sire, among a thousand sons, excites Shape-faining Morpheus: of those brother Sprites None (bid t'affume) with fubtler cunning can Vsurpe the gesture, visage, voice of man, Hishabit, and knowne phrase. He onely takes A humane forme: an Other shewes a snakes, A birds, a beafts. This Iceles they call. Whom heaven imbowre; though Phobetor by all Of mortall birth. Next Phantasus; but he, Of different facultie, indues a tree, Earth, water, stone, the feuerall shapes of things That life enioy not: These appeare to Kings And Princes in deepe night: the rest among The vulgar stray. Of all the germane throng Their aged father onely Morpheus chose To act Thaumantia's charge. His cies then close Their drowsie lids, and hanging downe his head, Resolu'd to sumber, shrinkes into his bed, is noiselesse wings through night fly Marpheus straines: nd with the swiftnesse of a thought attaines h' Amonian towers: then laid them by, and tooke he forme of Cerx. With a pallid looke e naked stood, like one depriu'd of life, fore the Couch of his vnhappy wife: is beard all wet, the haire vpon his head ith water dropt; who, leaning on her bed, nus spake; while teares from seeming passion flow. Doft thou, ô wretched Wife, thy cyxknow? ram I chang'd in death? looke on the Loft: nd for thy husband thou shalt see his Ghost, o fauour could thy pious prayers obtaine: ir I am drown'd; no longer hope in vaine. loud-crushing South-winds in Agaum caught ur rauisht ship, and wrackt her with her fraught. y voice the flouds opprest, while on thy name ainely call'd. This, neither wandring Fame, or doubtfull Author tels : this I relate; that there perisht by vntimely fate. rife, weepe, put on blacke: nor vndeplor'd or pity fend me to the Stygian Ford. To this he addes a voice, such as she knew prest her Lords; with teares appearing true, nd gesture of his hand. She sigh't and wept; retch out her armes t'imbrace him as she slept, it claspt the empty aire. Then cry'd, O stay! , whither wilt thou! goe we both one way. ak't with her voice, and husbands shade; with feare e lookes about for that which was not there. r now the maids, rais'd with her shreekes, had brought Taper in. Not finding what the fought,

She

She strikes her cheekes, her nightly linnen tare, Inuades her brests; nor staies t'enbind her haire, But tugs it off. Her Nurse the cause demands Of such a violence. She wrings her hands, And in the passion of her griese replyde:

There's no Aleyone; none, none! she dyde Together with her Ceyr. Silent be All founds of comfort. These, these eyes did see My ship-wrackt Lord. I knew him; and my hands Thrust forth t'haue held him : but no mortall bands Could force his stay. A Ghost: yet manifest: My husbands ghost: which ô but illexprest His forme and beauty, late divinely rare! Now pale, and naked, with yet dropping haire. Here stood the miserable; in this place: Here, here (and fought his aiery steps to trace.) O this my sad mis-giuing soule diuin'd; When thou for fook it me to perfue the wind. But fince imbarqu'd for death, would I with thee Had put to sea: a happy fate for me! Then both together all the time affign'd For life had liu'd; nor in our death dif-joyn'd. Now here, I perisht there: on that profound Poore I was wrackt; yet thou without me drown'd. O I, then flouds more cruell; should I striue To lengthen life, and fuch a griefe furuiue! Nor will I, nor forfake thee, nor defer. Though one Vrne hold not both, one Sepulcher Shall toyne our titles: though thy bones from mine The leas diffeuer, yet our names shall joyne.

Griefe chok't the rest. Sobs euery accent part:
And sighes ascend from her astonish theart.

ay springs: She to the shore address her hafte. uen to that place from whence the faw him laft. nd while she fadly veters, Here he staid; ere parting, kist me; from thence anchor waid; Thile the fuch fighs recalls; her fleady eyes xt on the Sea, far off the something spies; it knowes not what: yet like a cor's. First shee oth doubt : driven neerer (though not neere) might fee body plainly. Though vnknowne, yet much ne Omen mou'd her, fince his fate was fuch. pore wretch, who'ere thou art; and fuch (she faid) ly wife, if wed, by thee a widdow made! flouds driven neerer; the more neere, the more er spirits faint: now nigh th'adioyning shore. ow fees the what the knowes; her husbands cor's. oe's me!'tis He, the cries! at once doth force er face, haire, habit: trembling hands extends foule-leffe Ceyx; and then faid: Here ends y last of hopes: thus, ô then life more deare; husband, thus return'it thou! Art a Peere id stretcht into the surges; which with-stood, id brake the first incursion of the flood. lither forth-with (ô wonderfull!) the fprings; ating the passive aire with new-growne wings. ho, now a bird, the waters fummit rakes: out the dies, and full of forrow, makes nournfull noise; lamenting her divorce: on the tought his dumbe and bloudleffe cor's; ith Aretched wings imbrac't her perisht bliffe; d gaue his colder lips a heatleffe kiffe. aether he felt it, or the flouds his looke uanc't, the vulgar doubt : vet fure he tooke

Sense from touch. The Gods commiserate:
And change them both, obnoxious to like fate.
As erst, they loue: their nuptiall faiths they shew
In little birds; ingender, parents grow.
Seuen winter dayes with peacefull calmes possess,
Aleyon sits upon her floring nest.
Then safely saile: then Alous incaues

For his, the winds; and smoothes the stooping waves, Some old man seeing these their pinions move

O're broad-spread Seas, extols their endlesse loue. By theirs, a Neighbour, or Himselfe, reviues An others fate. You'fable fowle that dives; (And therewith shewes the wide-mouth'd Cormoralit) Of royall parentage may also vaunt. Whose ancestors from Tres their branches spreda Ilas, Affaracus, Ioues Ganymed, Lasmedon, and Priamus the last That raign'd in Troy: to Hellor (who furpaft Infortitude) a brother. If by powre Of Fate vnchanged in his youths fir a flowre, He might perhaps as great a name haue wonnes Though Heffer were great Dymas daughters fonne. For Alixothoe, a country Maid, Bare Æfacus by flealth in Idas shade. He, having Cities, and the discontents Of glittering Courts; the louely woods frequents; And vnambitious fields; but made repaire To Ilium rarely: yer, he debonaire, Nor vnexpugnable to loue. Who spide Eperia, oft defir'd, by Cebrens fide (Her fathers river) drying in the Sun Her fluent haire. Away the Nyniph did run, Swift as a frighted Hinde the Wolfe at hand; Or like a fearefull fowle thrust over-land Beneath a falcon. He perfues the chace: Feare wings her feet, and loue inforc't his pace. Behold a lurking Viper in this strife, Ceaz'd on her heele; repressing flight with life. ranticke, his trembling armes the dead include: Who cry'd, Alas that euer I persude! fear'd not this; nor was the victory North such a losse. Ay me! two, one destroy. Thy wound the Serpent, I the occasion gaue: ,ô more wicked! yet thy death shall haue Ay life for fatisfaction. There-with flung Is body from a cliffe which ouer-hung The vndermining Seas. His falling limmes Ipheld by Tethys pitie; as he swimmes h'his person plumes, nor power of dying giues. o be compel'd to live the Louer grieues: Disdaining that his soule, so well appai'd o leaue her wretched fear, should thus be staid ind mounting on new wings, againe on Seas lis body throwes; the fall his feathers eafe. Vith that, inrag'd, into the deepe he dines: nd still to drowne himselfe as vainly striues. oue makes him leane. A long neck doth fustaine lis sable head; long-ioynted legs remaine. for ever the affected Seas for fakes: indnow a futed name from diving takes.

OVID'S

THE ELLIST IN SEA

And the second of the second o

The state of the s

The back of the second of the

OVID'S

METAMORPHOSIS.

The twelfth Booke.

THE ARGY MENT.

A Snake; a snake-like Stone. Cycnus, a Swan, Canis the maid, now Caneus and a man, Becomes a Fowle. Neleius varies snapes: At last an Eagle; nor Alcides scapes.

Ld Priam mournes for Afacus; nor knew
That he furuiu'd, and with light feathers flew.
While Hellor and his brethren dues, with teares,
'ay to the tombe which his infeription beares.

Sut Paris, ablent from that oblequy, itraight, with his Rape, brought ten yeeres warre to Troy.
I thousand ships, in one confederate,
'ersue his stealth, with all the Achaian State,
'ersue his stealth, with all the Achaian State,
'or vow'd reuenge so long had beene delaid;
f wrathfull Seas had not their passage staid:
It sishie Aulis, in Baosia,
Their wind-bound Nauy in expectance lay.
Itere, as th'old vse, to love they sacrifice.
While from the antique altar slames arise;
I blew scal'd Dragon, in the Armies view, scends a tree, which neere the altar grew.

P 3

A feathered neft the vpper branches beare. With twice foure birds: these and their dam (with feare Flying about her loffe) the greedy Inake At length deyour'd. This all with wonder ftrake. When Chalchas cry'd (who could the truth deuine) Reioyce, Pelasgans, is a happy signe! Proud Troy shallfall; though with long toile and care: These thrice three birds, thrice three yeeres war declare He, wound about a bough, gorg'd with his rape; Became a Stone, that held the Serpents shape. Still Nerem in Adnian furges raues: Nor warre transferres. Some thinke the God of Wayes Would Troy preserve; and faue the walls he made. Thestorides resents: who knew, and said, A virgins bloud must Dian' reconcile. Now did the publike cause the private foile; A King a father: Iphigenia stood Before the altar to religne her blood. The Priest did weepe; the Goddesse pittieth too: Who o're their eyes a cloudy meteor threw; And while they profecute her rites, and praid; Produc't a Hinde to represent the Maid. When fitter facrifice had dul'd her rage; Her furie and the Seas, at once asswage. A fore-winde then their thousand Vessels bore: Who, fuffering much, attaine the Phrygian shore. Amid the world, 'twixt Aire, Earth, Neptunes brine, A place there is; the triple Worlds confine! Where all that's done, though far remou'd, appeare: And every whisper penetrates the care? The House of Fame: who in the highest towre Her lodging takes. To this capacious bowre In inumerable wayes conduct; no way Vith doores debar'd, but open night and day. Il built of ringing braffe; through-out refounds & he heard reports, and every word rebounds. to rest within, no silence 1 yet the noise for lowd, but like the murmuring of a voice. s seas that sally on far-distant shores; p)r as loues terminating thunder rores. ither the idle Vulgar come and goe: lillions of Rumors wander to and fro; ies mixt with truths, in words that vary fill. If these, with newes vnknowing eares Some fill; ome carry tales: all in the telling growes; nd cuery Author addes to what he knowes. ere dwels rash Error, light Credulity, eiected Feare, and vainly grounded loy; lew rais'd Sedition, secret Whisperings f vnknowne Authors, and of doubtfull things. Il done in Heauen, Earth, Ocean, Fame furthewes: and through the ample world inquires of newes. She notice gave, how with a dreadfull hoaft; he Grecian Nauie steered for their coast for vnexpected came: the Troians bend heir powers t'incounter, and their shores defend. aft thou thy life, Proufilaus, loft y Hectors fatall lance; the battle cost he Greekes a world of foules: fo cleerely shone. heir fortitudes; great Hellor yet vnknowne. or no small streames of bloud their valours drew com Phrygian wounds, who felt what Grecce could doc. nd now their mingled gores Signum staine: ow Neptures Cycnus had a thousand flame.

Now, in his charior, on Achilles fell; And with his lance whole squadrons sent to hell: Seeking for Cyenus, or for Hector, round About the field; at length braue Cycnus found: (For Fare nine yeeres great Hestors life suftaines.) Cheering his horses with the flaxen maines. His thundring Chariot drives against his foe, And shakes his trembling lance: about to throw: O youth, he faid, what e're thou art, reioyce: Achilles honours thee with death. His voice His speare persues: the steele no wound imprest Though strongly throwne. When, bounding from his bre He said; Thou Goddesse-borne, Fame brutes thee such Why wondrest thou (Achilles wondred much) This helme with horse-haire plum'd, this shield I beare, Defend not me: for fashion these I weare. So Mars his person armes. Should I display My naked brest, thy force could finde no way. The grace to be Nercis sonne is small: What his, who Nereus, who his Nymphs, who all The Ocean guides? Then at Achilles threw His lance, that pierc't his plated fhield, and through Nine oxe-hides rusht; the tenth did it restraine. The Heros caught it, and retorts againe The finging steele; againe it gaue no wound. The third affay no better entrance found, Though Cycaus bar'd his bosome to the blow. He rages like a bull in Circian Shew; Whose dreadfull hornes the stammell, which propokes His fury, toffe with still deluded strokes. Then fearches if the head were off: that on a What, is my hand, faid he, so feeble growne?

In one is all my vigour spent? my powre Vas more, when first I raz'd Lyrnessus towre: Vhen Tenedos, Eetion, Thebes, were fil'd Vith bloud of theirs, by my incounters spild. he red cayeus flaughtred natives dyde: wice Telephus my powrefull Iauclin tryde. ehold these heapes of bodies! these I slew: such could my hand have done; as much can doe. his faid, his former deeds almost suspects, nd at Menetes breft his aime directs, A Lycian of meane ranke) the thrilling dart Duite through his faithlesse curasse pierc't his heart: whose dying body firucke the groning ground. natching the weapon from his recking wound; his hand, he said, this now victorious Jance hall vige thy fate : affift me equal! Chance! lith that, th'vnerring dart at Cycnus flung. h'vneuitated on his shoulder rung; /hich like a rocke the lance repel'd againe: et where it hit it left a purple staine; y vainely glad Aacidas descry'd: e woundleste: this Menctes bloud had dy'd. hen roring, from his chariot leapes; and made horrid on-fet with his flaming blade: Tho fees the breaches in his helme and shield: et he secure : his skin the steele vnsteeld. low all impatient, with the hilt his Foe's ard front inuades with thicke redoubled blowes ; ersues his back retreit, perturbs, insists; for lets the astonisht breath. He faints; blew mists wim o're his eyes: whose now auerted steps stone with-stood. On whom Achilles leapes

With all his firength, and cycnus vp-ward caft
On founding earth: there held the Heros fast.
Then with his shield and knees his bosome prest;
And, drawing hard his helmets strings, distrest
His gasping iawes: the breathing-path and way.
Of life shuts vp. About t'vnarme his prey,
The body mist. To a fowle as white as snow
By Neptune chang'd; whom by that name we know.

This toyle, this fight gave many daies of rest: And either part from a ctuall armes furceaft. While on their walls the watchfull Phrygians ward, And while the watchfull Greekes their trenches guard, A feast was kept: wherein Æacides For Cycnus death with heifers bloud did please, Propitious Pallas. When the entralls laid On burning altars, to the Gods conuaid An acceptable smell: a part addrest. To sacred vse; the boord receiv'd the rest. Downelay the Heroes, fed on rosted flesh, And generous wines their cares and thirst refresh Normuficke now, nor fongs their eares delight; But in discourse consume the shortned night. The subject, Valour: of the valour snowne By their couragious foes, and of their owne. Promiscuously of passed dangers tell, Andforraine enterprizes. What fo well Could great Achilles speake of? or what were A fitter theame for great Achilles eare? Then spake he of his conquest, in the fall .. Of noble Cycnus: wondred at by all, That weapons had no power to penetrate His woundleffe body, which could feele rebate.

This the Pelafeans, this Æacides Himselfe admires. When Nestor said to these : cyenus is he, who in your age alone Contemned steele, and could be hurt by none, . ( faw Perrhebian Caneus once indure A thousand strokes; yet he from wounds secure. Perrhabian Caneus, excellent in deeds, On Othrys dwelt: and what beleefe exceeds, A woman borne. This Prodigie begets Their greater wonder. Euery one intreats; Achilles thus : Dininely eloquent ; O thou the wifdome of our age; confent To our desires; for all desire the same : Of cancus tell; how he a man became; In what contention, or what battell knowne; By whom, if so by any, ouerthrowne. Then He: Though age impaire my memory, And much beheld in youth my notion flie, more remember: yet, of all that are Among so many acts of peace and warre; None deeper is imprinted in my braine. And if the length of time not spent in vaines Can many accidents to knowledge give; Iwo ages finisht, in the third I live.

Not all the Virgins that Theffalia bare.
With Elateian Canis could compare.
For praised beauty. Through the cities neere, and those, Achilles, which thy Empire beare.
For the her bith to your America ought; A world of louers her affection sought.
And Peleus too perhaps had woo'd her bed;

But that already to thy mother wed,

Orelfe affured. Canis still forbore All nuprial ties. As on the secret shore She walkt alone, the Sea-god her diffent Inforc't to Rape : for fo the rumor went. Rapt with the loy of loues first tasted fruit; All shall, said Neptune, to thy wishes sute ; Wish what thou wilt. So Fame the story told. My wrong, said canis, makes my wishes bold: That never like inforcement may befall, Be I no woman; and thou giu'st me all. Her latter words a deeper voice expresse, Much like a mans, for now it prou'd no leffe. The Sea-God had affented to her will: And further addes, that steele should neither kill Nor wound his person. Young Atracides Departs; reloycing in such gifts as these: Who great in euery manly vertue growes; And haunts the fields through which Peneus Howes.

And haunts the fields through which Peneus howes.

The fonne of bold Ixion now had wed

Hippedame: the faluage Centaures, bred

Of clasped Clouds, his inuitation grac't;

In plashed bowres at fundry tables plac't.

There were th' Amonian Princes; there was I:

The Palace rung with our confusedioy.

They Hymen sing; the altars sume with slames:

Forth came th' admired Bride with troopes of dames.

We call Pirithous happy in his choice:

But scarce maintaine the Omen of that voice.

For Eurytus, more heady than the rest;

Foule rapine harbors in his saluage brest;

Incenst by beauty, and the heat of wine;

Lust and Ebriety, in out-rage ioyne.

Straight, turn'd-vp boords the feast prophane: the faire And tender spouse now haled by the haire. Fierce Eurytus Hippodame; all tooke Their choice, or whom they could: fackt cities looke With such a face. The women shreeke; we rise, When Thefeus first; ô Eurytus, vnevise! Dar'st thou offend Pirithous as long As Theseuslines? in one two suffer wrong. The great-fould He: os, not to boaft in vaine, Breakes through the throng, and from his fierce disdaine The Rape repris'd. He no reply affords; Such facts could not be justified by words: But with his fifts the braue redeemer preft; Assailes his face, and strikes his generous brest. Hard by there stood an antique goblet, wrought With extant figures: this Ægides caught; Hurl'd at the face of Eurytus: a floud Ofreeking wine, of braines, and clotted bloud At once he vomits from his mouth and wound; And falling backward, kickes the dabled ground. The Centaures, franticke for their brothers death, Arme, arme, resound, with one exalted breath. Wine courage giues. At first an vncouth flight Of flagons, pots, and boules, began the fight: Late fit for banquets, now for bloud and broiles. First Amyous, Ophions issue, spoiles The facred places of their gifts; downerampes A brazen creffer Aucke with burning lampes: This swings alost, as when a white-hair'd Bull The Sacrificer Arikes; which crusht the skull Of Celadon the Lapithite, and left His face vnknowne - confusion forme bereft.

Out fart his eyes; his batter'd nofe betwixt His shiper'd bones flat to his pallat fixt. Pellean Pelades a treffell tore That propt the boord, and fell'd him to the flore, Heknockes his chin against his brest, and spude Bloud mixt with teeth. A fecond blow persude The first; and fent his vexed soule to hell Next, Gryneus stood; his lookes with vengeance swell: Serues this, faid he, for nothing? therewith rais'd Alofta mighty Alrar: as it blaz'd, Among the Lapithites his burden threw; Which Brotezs, and the bold Orion flew. Or o smother Mycale, eft-soone Could with her charmes deduce the strugling Moone. Exadius cry'd, Nor shalt thou so depart Hadla weapon. Of a voted heart The Antlers from a Pine he puls; they fix. Their forkes in Gryneus darkned eyes: this flickes Vpon the horne, that in concreted gore Hungon his beard. A fire-brand Rhatus borc. Snatch from the Alear; and Charaxus head Grackt through the skull, with yellow treffes fored. The rapid flame his blazing curles furround, Likecorne on fire; bloud broyling in his wound Horribly hilles: as red feele that gloes With feruent blafts, which plant tongues dispose To quenching coole-troughes, sputters, striues, consume And hissing under heated water, fumes. The Wounded from his finged treffes thakes. The greedy flame; and on his shoulders takes A stone torne from the threshold, which alone Would loade a waine, at distant Rhetus throwne.

This, falling short, cometes life inuades: And fent his friend to everlasting shades. When Rhatus, laughing; May you all abound In strength so try'd; and aggrauates his wound With repercufficns of his burning brand. Crusht bones now finke in braines. Then turnes his hand? Vpon young Coritus, Euagrus, Dryas: Which gave to Coritus a fatall paffe. What glory can the flaughter of a boy Afford, Euggrus faid? nor more could fay: For Rhætus, e'r his iawes together came, Hid in his throte and brest the choaking same. Then whiskes the brand about his browes, and drives At valiant Dryas; but no longer thrives. For through his shoulder, who had triums he long In daily flaughter, Dryas fixt his prong. Who groning, tugs it out with all his might: And foild with bloud, converts his heeles to flight. So Lycidas, Arnaus, Medon (fped In his right arme) Pifenor, Coumas, fled: Wound-tardie Mermerus, late swift of pace : Mencleus, Pholus; Abas, vs'd to chace The Bore; and Aftylos, who fates fore-knew 3: Who vainly bade his friends that warre eschew; And said to frighted Nessus, Fly not so; Thou art refere'd for great Alcides bow. But yet Eurynomus, nor Lycidas, Areus, nor Imbreus, ynflaughtred paffe: All quell'd by Dryas hand. Thee Caneus too, Though turn'd about for flight, a fore-wound flue: For looking backe; the point betweene his fights, There where the nose ioynes with the fore-head, lights.

Vnwakened with the tumult of this fray, Dissolu'd in death like sleepe, Aphydas lay Vpon a Beares rough hide on Offakill'd: Whose lither hand a mixed goblet held. Phorbas farre off the vainly hurtleffe fpy'd: And to the thong his fingers fitting, cry'd, Thy wine hence-forth with Stygian water brew. This said, at flumber-bound Aphidas threw His trembling dart: the steeled ash made way Through's naked necke, as he supinely lay. Death was vnfelt: his full throat voids a floud: The bed and gobler, drown'd and fill'd with bloud. I saw Petraus striue t'vproot an oke: And while his brawnie armes the tree prouoke To quit his seasure, this and that way hall'd; Pirithous to the bole his bosome nail'd. Stout Lycus by Pirithous valour fell: Pirithous valour Chromis funke to hell. These lesse the glory of his acts elate Then Helogs death, and Dillys stranger face. His eager iauelin Helopstemples cleft: Which at the right eare rushed through the left, But Dictys from a broken mountaine flides, As he Ixious furious fonne avoids. And head-long fell: his weight afunder brake A mighty Afh; the stumpes his entrailes stake. In rushe revengefull Phereus with a stone Torne from a rocke; his montrous elbow-bone ( About to hurle ) in thiuers Thefeuscrackt: Nor leasure had, or further care, e exact His vselesse life. Then nimbly vaults vpon Byaner's backe, before bearid by none,

His knees claps to his fides; his shaggie haire His left hand hales: his eyes, that grimly flare And threaten, crushes with his knotty oke. Dart-fam'd Lyceffes, and Medinnus ftroke To humble earth: fo Hippafus, whose beard Obscur'd his brest; and Ripbeus, who appear'd More tall than trees; with Thereus, who caught Wilde beares in high Amonian hills, and brought Th'inraged purchace to his home aliue. remolean frets to fee Ægides thriue With fuch fuccesse; and from the center striues To teare a Pine: which when he could not rives The yeelding bole, and darts it at his foe. befeus farre offespi'd the comming throw; Who by Minerua's counsell (for fo he Yould have vs thinke) with-drew; and yet the tree Not idly fell; but Cranters shoulder, breft, and throat divides; which tortur'd life releaft. le was ( Aacides ) thy fathers Squires siuen by fubdude Amyuter to thy fire Amynter the well-train'd Dolopians Guide) n hostage for their peace, and faith affide. When Peleus faw that spectacle of ruth; leceiue, ô Cranter, ô beleued youth, his facrifice, he faid: and fent a dart Vith all the rigour of his hand and heart t proud Demoleon; which the bones that loyne lis ribs transfixt; and quauer'd in the chine. lis hand, without the head, the staffe reueld; nd hardly that: his lungs the head with-held. nguish it selfe the heat of wrath improves: creares afore, and pawes him with his hooues.

Who with his shield and burganet defends The founding strokes: yet still his sword extends, And twixt his shoulders at one thrust doth gore His double brefts. Yet had he flaine before Phlegraus, Hyles, with his lances flight; Hiphinous and Danis, in close fight. Addes Dorylas to these; who were a skull Of Wolfe-skin tan'd; the sharpe hornes of a Bull-In stead of other weapons, fixt before: And dyde in crimson with Lapithian gore. To whom, with courage fir'd, I faid in scorne ; Behold how much our steele excels thy horne. And threw my lance: not to be shun'd, he now Claps his right hand vpon his threatned brow; Which both together nail'd. They rore: and while Th'ingaged with his bitter wound doth toile; Thy father, who was neerest, neerer made: And through his nauill thrust his deadly blade. He bounds, and on the earth his bowels trailes; The trailed kickes, the kickt in peeces hales; Which winding, fetter both his legs and thighes: So falls; and with a gutleffe belly dies. Nor thee thy beauty, Cyllarus, could faue: If fuch a two-form'd figure beauty haue. His chin now gan to bud with downe of gold; And golden curles his inory backe infold: His lookes a pleasing vigor grace; his brest, Hands, shoulders, necke, and all that man exprest, Surpassing arts admired images. Nor were his bestiall parts a shame to these: Adde but a horses head and crest, he were For Castors vie; his backe fo strong to beare, o largely chefted; blacker than the crow; is taile and feet-lockes, white as falling inow. number of that nation fought his lone; Thom none but faire Hylonome could mout: one for attracting favour fo excell, fall the halfe-mares that on Othrys dwell. ace, by fweet words, by louing, by confest ffection, only cyliarus possest. lith combes the smoothes her haire; her person trimmes ith all that could be gracefull to fuch limbes. f Roses, Rosemary and Violets, nd oft of Lillies curious dreffings pleats. wice daily washt her face in Springs that fall' rom Pagasan hills; twice daily all er body bathes in cleanling streames: and ware he skins of beafts, fuch as were choice and rare, 'hich flowing from her shoulder crosse her brest. aile her left side. Both equall loue possest: ogether on the shady mountaines stray, woods and hollow caues together lay. hen to the palace of the Lapithite ogether came; and now together fight. iaueline from the left hand flung, thy breft cyllarus, beneath thy necke imprest. is heart though flightly hart (the dart exhal'd) rew forth-with cold; and all his body pal'd. vlonome his dying limbes receives; ments his wound: close to his fips she cleaues, o ftay his flying foule. But when the found fes fire extinct; with words in clamour drown'd; uen on that steele, which through his bosome past, ae threw her owne: and him in death imbrac't.

Me thinkes I fee grim Phancomes yet: Who with two Lions skins, together knit, Protects his man and beaft. A log he tooke, Which scarce two teams could draw; this darted, strong The Crowne of Phonolenides: his braines It through the fractures of his skull confraines; Which from his mouth, eyes, eares, and nosthrils gushe, Like curds through wicker squease; or inces crushe Through draining Colendars. As he the dead Prepares t'vnarme, my sword his bowels shred. Your father faw his downfall. Chthonius too. And frout Teleboas our fawchion flew. The first a forked branch, the other held A lengthfull lance: the lance this wound impeld; Whereof you see the ancient scarre. Then I, Then should I have beene fent t'haueruin'd Troy. Then might I have restrain'd, if not o're-throwne Great Hellor. But, he either then was none. Or elfe a child. Now spent with age, I waine. What speake I of two-shapt Pyretus, flaine By Periphas? Thy dart, without a head, Braue Ampyous, soure-hoou'd Oules sped. Macareus, borne by Peletbronian rocks, Huge Erigdupus with a leaver knocks To ecchoing earth. His dart Cymelus theath'd Deepe in Nesseus groine, and life bereau'd. Nor would you thinke Ampycides alone Could Fare fore-tell; a lance by Moplus throwne Odites flue : this, as the Centaure rail'd, His tongue t'his chin, his chin t'his bosome nail'd. Fine Caneus flue; Bromus Antimachus, Axc-arm'd Pyracmos, Helius, Stiphelus.

Althou

though forgetfull by what wounds they fell; seir names, and number, I remember well. ant-like Latreus lightneth to these broiles; m'd with Emathian Alefus spoiles: syeares, 'twixt youth and age; nor age impaires he strength of youth, though sprinkled with gray haires, Macedonian Speare, a Sword, a shield, nfirme his powers: o're-viewes the well-fought field, afhes his armes; and trotting in a round. fring'd the aire with this disdainfull found. Shall I indure thee Cenis? Still to me iou art a woman, and shale Cenis be. ou haft forgotthy births originall, d for what fact rewarded; by what fall uanc't to this man-counterfeiting shape. inke of thy birth; thinke of thy easie rape. e, take a spindle and a distaffe; twine re carded wooll; and armes to men refigne. While thus he scoffes; and circularly ran; seus his fides gores with his lance, where man d horse vnite. He, mad with anguish, flings speare at the Phyllean youth, which rings his vntainted face; and backe recoiles. pibbles dropt on drummes, or haile on tiles. en rushing on, with thrusts affayes to wound hardned fides; the fword no entrance found. r shalt thou scape; the edge shall lanch thy throte, rough the point be dull. This faid, and smore once. The blow, as if on marble, founds: from his necke the broken blade rebounds: en he his charmed limbes had open laid ugh to wounds and wonder, Caneus faid:

Now will we trie, if thou our sword canst feele. Then'twixt his shoulders thrusts the fatall steele Vp to the hilts; which to and fro he wanes Deepe in his guts, and wounds on wounds ingraues. The frighted Centaures, with a horrid cry, On him alone, with all their weapons fly. Their darts rebated fall, but draw no blood: For Cancus still in-vulnerable stood. This more amaz'd. Ah, Monychus exclaimes, One foiles vs all, to all our endlesse shames ! He scarce a man! nay he the man, and we Are what he was: so poore our actions be-What bootes our mighty limbes? our double force? The strongest of all creatures, man and horse, In vs by nature ioyn'd? fure we are not A Goddesse birth; nor by Ixion got, Who durst the Queene of Deities imbrace: This Halfe-man conquers his degenerate race. Stones, maffie logs, whole mountaines on him roule; And with congested trees crush out his soule. Let woods oppresse his lawes; o're-whelme with waigh In stead of idle wounds. Thus he : and fraight An Oke, vp-rooted by the furious blafts Of franticke winds, on valiant Ceneus cafts, Th'example quickly Othrys disaraide and an analysis Of all his trees; and Pelion wanted shade: and bombin Prest with so huge a burthen, Ceneus sweats? word that And to th'o're-whelming okes his shoulders fers, 11000 But now the load about his starm e climbes, 16 22 And choakes the passage of his breath. Sometimes He faints; then ftruggles to advance his crowne About the Pile, and throw the timber downes So ometimes the pressure with his motion quakes; s when an earth-quake yonder Ida shakes. is end was doubtfull: some there be, who tell ow with that weight his body funke to hell. oplus diffents; who law a fowle arise om thence with yellow wings, and mount the skies; The first I euer faw) which flying round bout our Tents, sent forth a mournefull found, sishe persuing with his soule and fight, ry'd, Haile thou glory of the Lapithite! Caneus, late a man at armes; but now vnmatcht fowle! His witnesse all allowriefe whets our fury; brooking ill, that one fuch a multitude flould be o're-throwne: id Sorrow fo long executes the fight, Il halfe were flaine : halfe fau'd by ipeed, and night, Tlepolemus could not his tongue debarre: ace in the repetition of that warre, f Hercules he had no mention made. ld man, how can you so forget (he said) ides praise ? my father oft would tell, w by his hand the Cloud borne Centaures fell. To this fad Neftor answer'd: Why should you impell me to remember, and renue forrowlost in time? er iterate our fathers guilt; together with my hate? sacts transcend beleefe; his high repute Is all the world; which would I could refute. t not Polydamas, Deiphobus, r valiant Hellor, are extol'd by vs. r who commends his foe? Messene's walls raz'd: faire Elis, Pylus, in their falls

Derest his fury; Cities which his hate Had not descru'd: with them, did ruinate Our House with sword and fire. Not now to tell Of others, who by his sterne out-rage fell; 'Twice six faire-fam'd Neleide were wee; Twice fix Alcides flew, excepting mee. Conquest is common: but, ô more than strange Was Perictymen's flaughter! who could change And rechange to all figures. Such a grace Great Neptune gaue; the root of Neleus race. He, fore't to vary formes, at length vnfolds loues well-lou'd Fowle, who in her tallons holds Impetuous thunder; and His visage teares Both with his crooked beake, and armed seares. At him his bow, too fure, Alcides drew, As towring in the loftie clouds he flew. And stru ke his side-ioyn'd wing. The wound was slight But funder'd nerues could not fustaine his flight. When tumbling downe, his weight the arrow smote In at his fide, and thrust it through his throat. Now braue Commander of the Rhod an Fleet; Think'ft thou Alcides praise a subiect meet For my discourse? Alone with filence wee Reuenge our flaughtered brothers; and loue thee. When Nefter with mellifuous eloquence Had thus much verer'd; they with speech dispence, And liberall Bacchus quaffe: then all arose; And give the rest of night to soft repose.

The God, whose Trident calmes the Ocean,
For strangled cycnus, turn'd into a Swan,
Grieues with paternall griese. Achilles fate
He prosecutes with more than civil hate.

-

en yeeres now well-nigh laps'd in horrid fights, hus vnfhorne Smintbeus his sterne rage excites. Of all our brothers sonnes to vs most deare: Those hands, with ours, Troys walls in vaine did reare: figh'ft thou not to fee the Afian towres o neere their fall? their owne, and aiding powres millions flaine? the last of all their ioy ead Helter drag'd about his fathers Trey ? et dire Achilles, who our labour giues overer spoile, then Warre more cruell, lives. ame he within my reach, he then should trie he vengeance of my Trident: but fince I innot approch t'incounter with my foe; t him thy close and mortall arrowes know. Delius affents: his vakles wrath intends; ith it, his owne; and in a cloud descends th' llian hoaft: amid the battle feekes r Paris, shooting at vn-noted Greekes. en shew'd a God, and said: Why dost thou lose ly shafts so basely? nobler objects chose; thou of thine at least hast any care: ly brethrens deaths reuenge on Peleus heire. en thew'd him sterne Achilles, as he slew e Tro an troopes: and, while his bow he drew. easthe deadly thaft. This only might I Priam, after Heliors death, delight. n, who with conquests cloy'd the lawes of death, unt adulterer depriues of breathy th'effeminate to be o're-throwne; en should the Pollax of the Amizon ie forc't thy fate. The Phrygian feare; the fame. I ftro g protection of the Gracian Name,

Inuig

Innincible Ancides now burnes: The God, who arm'd, his bones to ashes turnes. And of that great Achilles scarce remaines So much as now a little Vrne containes. Yet still he lives; his glory lightens forth, And fills the world: this answers his full worth. This, ô diuine Pelides, soares as high As thy great spirit; and shall neuer die. And even his armes, to instance whose they were; Procure a warre. Armes for his armes they bearc. Aiax Oileus, Diomedes, nor The leffe Atrides; not in age and war The Greater: no nor any; but the Son Ot old Laertes, and bold Telamon, Durst hope for such a prize. Tantalides, To shun the burden, and the hate of these, The Princes bids to fit before his tent: And puts the strife on their arbitrement.

OVID

OVID'S

METAMORPHOSIS.

The Thirteenth Booker

THE ARGUMENT.

Those purple floures which Alax name difflay,
Hu bloud produce. Innaged Hecuba
Becomes a Betch. From Memmons cinders rise
Selse studenting Frowle: a yearch sawning.
What ever Anius daughters handle, proves
Come, wive, or ogle: shemselves transformed to Doves.
From honour'd virgins as hes Somes assend.
Th' Ambracian stude a Stove. Light wings defend Molossy royalisse. Scylla growes
A hortid Monster, Murder'd Acis flowes
With speedie streames. The kinde Nercides
For Glaucus sue: inthron'd in sacred Scas.

He great Chiefes fate; the Souldiers crowne the field: Vp rose the Master of the seuen-fold Shield.

With wrath impatient, his sterne eyes suruay eurs, and the Nauie which there lay.
en holding vp his hands, ô Ioue, he said;
fore the Fleet must we our title plead?
d is Vlyss my Competitor?
toce flightfull feare did Hetter's stames abhor.

 $Q_2$

Those, I, sustain'd; from those this Nauie freed. Tisfafer to contend in word than deed. I cannot talke, nor can he fight; as farre His tongue excells, as I exceed in warre. Nor need I to rehearfe what you have feene In act, renowned Greekes: what his hath beene Let Ithacus declare; perform'd by flight, Without a witnesse, only knowne to Night. Great is th'affected prize, I must confesse: But fuch a Rivall makes the Value leffe. For me'tis no ambition to obtaine. However great, what he could hope to gaine. Who of this strife now wins the praise; that he, When vanquished, may boast he strove with me. But were my valour question'd, I might on My birth infift; begot by Telamon, Who vnder Hercules Troy's bulwarkes fcal'd: And in Pagafean keele to Colchis fail'd. His father, Æacus; the judge of Sonles, Where S Typhus his restlesse torment roule. High Iupiter vpon a mortall Loue Got Facus: I Aiax third from louc. Nor let this pedegree affift my clame, If great Achilles joyn'd not in the fame. He was my brother, his laske. Why thus Shouldst thou, thou some of damned Sifyhus, Alike in theft and fraud, a stranger to Achilles race, the right of his perfue? Because I first assumed armes, descry'd By no detector, are these armes deny'd? Or rather for the last in field design'd; Who with fain'd lunacie the watre declard:

Though

ill Palaned more politicke, and more elfe-fatall, did his coward-guile explore, nd drew him to avoided armes? Must he low weare the best, who all eschew'd? and we nhonour'd, of hereditary right epiiu'd, in that we first appear'd in fight? nd would to love he had beene truly mad; r ftill fo thought; nor this companion had, his tempter to foule actions, euer feene he Phrygian towres. Then should'st not thou have beene Peans sonne, exposed by our crime o Lemnian rockes: where thou confum'st thy time louely caues obscur'd with woods, the stones ouok't to pitie with thy daily grones, id wishest him, what he deserues, thy paine? there are Gods thou wishest not in vaine. ow our Confederate (a Prince of brane mmand) to whom his shafts Akides g :ue; oken with paine and famine, doth imploy sole arrowes, that import the fare of Troy, r food and clothing: yet he lines the while, that removed from Vly Tesquile. d Palamed might wish t'haue beene so left: en had he liu'd, or perisht vnbereft his deare fame. This, hellishly inclin'd, ares his convicted madneffe in his mind; dfalfely him accus'd to have betraid Achaian hoast; confirming what he said shewing summes of gold, which in his tent nselfe had hid. Thus he by banishment death, our strength impaires; for this preferr'd: fights, so is Vly fes to be fear'd.

Q. 3

Though faithfull Neftor he in eloquence, Surpasse, his leaving Nester, no defence Of words can falue: who flow with tired Age And wounded Steeds, implor'd to his ingage Whiles helpe; who left to oddes of foes His old acquaintance. This Tydides knowes For no for g'd crime; who vainly call'd, to flay His trembling friend, reuiling his dismay. The Gods with i stice view our humane deeds. Who would not late affift, affiftance needs: And now to be for faken by the law Himselfe prescrib'd. He cry'd; I came, and saw The coward quaking, pale, about to yeeld His ghost for feare. Linterpos'd my shield; Bestrid him as he lay; and from that strife Redeem'd (my least of praise) his coward life. But if thou wilt contend, reioyne we there; Renoke the foe, thy wounds, and vfuallfeare; Behinde my target sculke: then plead. This man, Who reel'd with wounds; freed, as vnwounded, ran. Now Hector came, and brought the Gods along; Rusht on all parts: not thou alone, the strong And best resolued shrinke : so great a dread He drew on all. Him, as he triumph led Through bloud and flaughter, with a mightie flone I ft ucke to earth: Him I fustain'd alone. When he to all fo bold a challenge made; When for my lot you all deuoutly pray'd, Nor pray'd in vaine: If you inquire the summe Of this our fight, I was not ouercome. With vengefull weapons, flames, and lone, the men Of Troy inuade our nauie: where was then our eloquent Vlysses? I, euen I thousand ships preseru'd; whereon rely he hope of your returne. These armes for all our Fleet afford. The meed more honour shall ecciue then giue : our glories iustly pease; hele armes doe Aiax feeke, not Aiax thele. befus furprise, with ours let him compare; hat poore Spie Dolon's, Hellenus despaire; he rapt Palladium: nothing done by day; e nothing worth, take Diomedaway. to fuch meane deferts these armes accrue; iuide them: to Tydides most is due. /hy would he thefe? who still vnarmed goes, onceal'd; and cunningly intraps his foes? his radiant Caske that thines with burnisht gold ; ill his deceit, and lurking steps vnfold. is necke can scarce Achille, belmet beare; or can his feeble arme imploy this speare: is shield, whese orbe the figured world adornes; cowards arme, inur'd to theeuing, scornes. foole, that thus thy owne vndoing scekes! giuen thee by th'error of the Greekes, will not make thee dreadfull to thy foe; it be th'occasion of thy ouerthrow, ad flight, wherein thou only doft exceed, log . ith fo huge a weight, will faile thy need. fides, thy shield in battle rarely borne, yet entire: mine, all to hackt and torne ith stormes of blowes, a new successor needs. hat boots so many words? behold our deeds. rese armes deliver to the foes defence: id let him weare, that wins the prize from thence,

Here

Here Aiax ends. The Souldier in the close A murmure rais'd; till Ithacus arose: Who having fixed on the earth a space His eyes, vnto the Princes rais'd his face; And now expected, spake vnto this sense; With all the grace of winning eloquence.

Gracians; if heaven, with yours, had heard my prayre Sogreat a strife had found no doubtfull Heire: Th'hadft kept thy armes, Achilles, and we thee. But fince sterne Fate, auerse to you and mee. Socoueted an Excellence denies; (With that appeares to weepe, and wipes his eyes) Who great Achilles with more right fucceeds, Than he who gauc you great Achilles deeds? Let not his folly purchase your assent; Nor let my wit, in that so preualent For you, my losse incurre: nor hate incense, That for my felfe I arme my eloquence; (If I have any) oft for you imploy'd. Let none the glory of his owne auoid. For Ancestors, divine originall, And deeds by vs not done, we ours mis-call. Yet in that Aiax vants himselfe to bee Great-grandchilde vnto Ioue; no lesse are wee. Laertes was my Sire, Arcesus his; His, Iupiter: in this descent there is None damn'd nor banisht. By the venter I From Hermes spring: in both a Deitie. Nor that more noble by the mothers side, Nor that my father had his hands undide In brothers bloud, doe I inforce this claime: Weigh but our worths; and censure by the same.

hat Telamon and Peleus brethren were. Aiax is no merit. Northe Neere birth, but Great in act, deferue this grace. or if proximity in bloud haue place, eleus his father, Pyrrbus is his fon : That right remaines for Aiax Telamon ? o Phibia then, or Seyros carry these. ucer is coozen to Aacides swell as he; yet ftirs not he herein: rifhe should, should he the honour win? hen fince our actions must our sure aduance : though my deeds furmount my vtterance, neir abstract yet in order to relate: White in etis, fore-knowing great Achilles fate, fguis'd her sonne : lo like a Virgin drest, nat all mistooke, and Aiax with the rest. hen, Armes, with womens trifles, that might blinde speet, I brought to tempt a manly minde. t was the Heros Virgin-like araid; ho taking vp the Speare and Shield, I faid: Goddesse-borne, for thee the fate of Troy rfall reserues: why doubts thou to destroy eat Pergamus ? then made him d'off those weeds: d feat the mighty vnto mighty deeds. s acts are therefore ours. We Telephus ild with our lance; the suppliant cut'd by vs. ong Thebes we fackt : fackt Lesbes vs renounes. Wa and Tenedos (Apollo's townes) ith cilla; Sea-girt Syros, in their talls r fame aduance: we raz'd Lyrneffa's walls. paffe the rest; I gaue, who could subdue e braue Priamides : I Hector flue.

3 3

For th'armes that found Achilles, these I craue: He dead, I aske but what, aliue, I gaue. The griefe of one, with all the Greekes prenailes: Euboran Aulis held a thousand failes. The long-expected winds opposed stand, Or fleepe in calmes. When cruell Fates command Afflicted Agamemnon to allwage With Ighigenia's death, Diana's rage. But he diffents; the Gods themselves reproves ? And in a King a fathers passion mones. His noble disposition ne're the lesse I to the publike won : and must confesse (Atrides, pardon; ) we did profecute Before a partial Iudge a hatefull fute. Yet him his brother, scepter, publike good Perswade to purchase endlesse praise with blood. Then went I to the mother for her child: Now not to be exhorted, but beguild. Had Aiax thither gone, our flagging failes Not yet had swel'd with still-expected gales. Then on a bold embassage I was fent To haughty Troy: to th'llian Court I went, Yet full of men : and feareleffe, vig'd at large The common cause committed to my charge. False Paris Iaccuse: rapt Helena I re-demand, with all they bore away. Old Priam and Antener iust appeare. But Paris, with his brethren, and who were His followers in that stealth, from wicked blowes Could scarce refraine. This Menelaus knowes. The first of dangers wherein you and I Together ioyn'd. But what my policie

And force perform'd, behoovefull to this State, In that long warre, too long is to relate. The first great battle fought, our weary foes Long live immur'd: nor durft their powers expose. Nine yeeres expir'd, warres all the fields affright. Meane-while what didft thou, only fit to fight? What vse of thee? inquire my actions; I The foe intrap, our trenches fortifie, ncouraging the weary Souldier To brooke the tediousnesse of lingring warre With faire expectance: reach them wayes to feed, and arts to fight. Imploy'd at euery need. The King del ded in his fleepe by love, lids vs the care of future warre remoue. The author was his strong apologie. siar should have with-stood : the facke of Troy le should have vrg'd; and, what hee could, have fought. Why was the nobler frege by him vnfought? Why arm'd he not? a speech he might have made, hat would the wavering multitude have staid; ohim not difficult, who lookes to high, and speakes so big. What, if himselfe did flie? faw, and fham'd to fee thee turne thy backe-To hoise thy sailes vnto thy honours wracke. Vhat doe you? ô what madneffe, mates, faid I, rouokes you to abandon yeelding Troy? en yeeres nigh spent, what will you beare away ut infamie ? I this, and more did fay; Vherein my forrow made me eloquent: and from the flying Fleet turn'd their confenta he King a Councell calls; distrusts afford To found aduice: durft Ainx speake a word?

When base Thersites durst the King provoke With bitter words: who felt my scepters ftroke. Their doubts with hope of conquest I inspire : And let their fainting courages on fire. Since when, what he hath nobly done, by right To me belongs, that thus reuok't his flight. Besides, what one of all the wifer Greekes Commends thee; or thy conversation seekes? Tydides vs approues, builds on our will; Is confident in his Vlyffis ftill. Among a million'tisa grace for me To be his consort; and the choise so free. The danger of the fee, and night despis'd; I Dolon, then a counter-scout, surpris'd: Nor flue him, till I forc't his bosome to; Informed what perfidious Trey would doe. Allknowne, and nothing left to be inquir'd; I now with praise enough might haue retir'd. Yet not so satisfide, I forward went; And Rhesus slue, with his, in his owne Tent. When like a Victor, on his Chariot I Return'd in triumph. Can you then denie Achilles armes, whose horses were assign'd For one nights hazard? Aiax is more kind. What should I of Sarpedons forces tell, O're-throwne by vs? by vs Caranos fell, Iphitides, Alaftor, Chromius, Alcander, Prylanis, Neemonus, Halius, fout Theon, bold Pheridamas, With Charope: Eunomon's farall Paffe Sign'd by my lance : and many more in view Of hostile Trey, of meaner ranke, I flue.

And I, ô Country-men, haue honour'd wounds, Faire in their scarres: nor trust to empty sounds; Behold (faid he, with that his bosome bares) This breft, still exercis'd in your affaires. No drop of bloud in all thefe lengthfull warres For Greece hath Aiax shed: shew he his scarres. What boots it, though his deeds his brags approue; That for our fleet he fought with Troy and loue? I grant he did fo: nor will we detract With hated enly from a noble act. So he ingrosse not to himselfe alone A common praise, but render vs our owne. Actorides (for great Achilles held) Troy's flames and Fautor from our ships repeld. He thinkes, he onely able, could alone Incounter Hettors opposition: The King, his brother, and my felfe forgot. Of nine the last, and but preferd by lot. But what euent, ô great in valour, crown'd Your doughty combat? Heller had no wound. Woe's me! with what a tide of griefe I call That time to mind; wherein the Gracian Wall, Achilles fell ! reares, feares, nor forrow staid My forward zeale; his raised corps I laid Vpon these shoulders: these, even these did teare Him and his armes; which now I hope to weare. Our strength sufficient is for such a weight: Dur knowledge can your bounty explicate. Was Thetis fo ambitious for her Son; That fuch a brainlesse Souldier should put on This heavenly gift, of so divine a frame? Whole figured thield his ignorance would thame.

Wherein, the Ocean; Earth with cities crown'd, Skies with their flarres; cold Aretos never drown'd, Sword-girt Orion, Sad Plesades; The rainie Kids. He seekes, yet knowes not, these. Vpbraids he me, that I this warre did shun, And time deferd till others had begun? Nor can confider how he wounds in me. Achilles honour. If a crime it he To counterfeit; we joyne in that defame :: If, in that tardy; I before him came. Me, my kind wife; his mother him with-drew := Our flow; eto them w gaue; the fruit to you. Nor feare I, should I quit my owne defence, To fuffer with so cleere an Excellence. Not Aiax wit reueal'd Vhiles; yet Reueal'd Achilles was Vlyffes wit. Left I should wonder, why his foolish tongue, Should flander me, he you vpbraids with wrong. Was guiltlesse Palamed accus'd by me. To my defame ? nor must his sentence be. To you reprochfull? neither Nauplins Seed. Could iustifie so euident a deed? Nor did your eares informe your faculties; The hire of treason laid before your eies. Paantius in Lemnos left, was none Of my offence; doe you defend your ownes: You to his stay consented. Yet, how'ere, I must confesse I aduiz'd him to forbeare The travels of long warre: and to appeale The anguish of hisbitter wound with ease. He did : he lives. Th'advice was good : fucceffe As fortunate approues it for no lelle.

Since Fate designeshim for the fall of Trey: Spare me, and Aiax industry imploy. His tongue the mad with wrath and anguish will Appeale: hee'l fetch him with some reach of skill. First Simois shall retire, Ide want a shade, Achaia promise to the Troians aide; E're my endenours in your service faile, And fortish Aiax, with his wit, preuaile. And, Philostetes, though obdure thou be, Incenst against the King, these Lords, and me; Though curses lighten from thy lips, though still Thou couet my accesse, my bloud to spill; Yet I'le attempt thee: and will bring thee backe; That neither may his cager wishes lacke. Thy shafts I must possesse (so Fauour Fate) As I possest the Dardan Prophet late; As I vnknit the Troian destinie, And doubtfull answer of the Gods; as I Amid a world of foes, the fatall Signe Of Phrygian Pallas ravisht from her shrine. Compare with me will Aiax? this vntane, Troy's hopt-for expugnation had beene vaine. Where was strong Aiax? where the glorious boast Of that great Souldier? why in terror loft? How durst Vlyffes trust himselfe to night, Paffe through the watch, their threatning weapons flight? The walls not onely, but the highest towre Of Ilium scale; and from her Fane the Powre That beares their fate inforce : and with this prey, Repasse the dangers of that horrid way? Which had not latchieued, Yet in Field Had Aiax vainly borne his seuen-fold Shield.

That night Troy fell before Laertes fon: Won, when I made it that it might be won. Forbeare to mutter; nor with nodding gaze On Diomed: he shares in equall praise. Nor for our Nauy didst thou fight alone: Thou by an host assisted, I by one. He knew that wisdome valour should command: That this belong'd not to a strenuous hand: Else he him selfe had joyn'd in our debate : Orth'other Aiax, far more moderate; Braue Thoas, fierce Eurypylus; with these Idomeneus and Meriones Of creet; or Menelaus. For they are As strong, nor second vnto thee in warre: Yet yeeld to our advice. Thou, fit for fight. Doft need my reason to direct thy might. Thy valour wants fore-cast, my studious care Respects the future: thou canst fight thy share: The time and place must be by vs assign'd: Thou only strong in body; I in mind. As skilfull Pilots those surpaffe, who row; As wife Commanders, common fouldiers; fo-Ithee excell. Our vertue is lesse great In brawne than braine: this vigoroufly compleat, Then ô remunerate my vigilance: And, Princes, for so many yeeres expence In anxious cares, this dignity extend To my deserts. Our worke is at an end: With-standing fates remou'd : I, in that I Haue made it fesable, haue taken Troy. Now by our mutuall hopes, Trop's overthrow, Those Gods which late I rauisht from the fee ; ..... If ought remaine to be discreetly done,
That courage craues, through danger to be won;
If in the Ilian destiny there be
A knot yet to vakit; remember me.
Or if you can forget; these Armes resigne
To this: and she wes Minerua's fatall Signe.
The Chiefer were moved. Here weeds appear

The Chiefes were mou'd. Here words approu'd their The Eloquent the Valiant now disarmes. (charmes: He who alone, loue, Hetter, Sword and fire So oft sustain'd; yeelds to one brunt of ire-Th'vnconquered, forrow'conquers. Then his blade in haste vnsheaths: Sure thou art mine, he said; Or seekes Vlysses this? this shall conclude. All sense of wrong. And thee, so oft imbrude 'n Phrygian bloud, thy Lord's must now imbrue: That none but Aiax, Aiax may subdue. This faid; his breft, till then with wounds vngor'd, The deadly sword, where it could enter, bor'd. Nor could his strength the fixed steele reuell; expeld by gushing gore. The bloud that fell, spurple flowre ingendred on the ground:

Created first by Hyacinthus wound.

The tender leaves indifferent letters paint;

Both of His name, and of the Gods complaint.

The Conqueror, now hoifing failes, doth fland for chafte Hypfiphile's, and Thoms land;
Defam'd by womens vengefull violence)
To fetch the shafts of Hercules from thence.
These, with their owner, to the campe contaid,
In that long warre a finall hand they laid.
Now Troy and Priamus together fall.
Th'vnhappy wife of Priam after all,

Her humane figure lost: whole rauing Sprite And vncouth howlings forraine fields affright. The flames of Ilium firetch their hungry fire To narrow Helleftont; nor there expire. That little bloud which Priams age could shed, loues altar drinkes. By her anointed head Apollos Priest they drag, her hands in vaine To heaven vpheld. The Victor Greekes constraine The Dardan Dames; a deadly-hating prey: Who imbrace their country Gods; and while they may Behold their burning Fanes. Dire violence Afryanax threw from that towre; from whence He had scene his father, by his mother showne, Fight for his Kingdomes safety, and his owne. North-winds to seas inuite, and prosperous gales Sing in their shrouds: they haste to trim their sailes. The Troian Ladies cry, Deare soile farewell! We are hal'd to loth'd captivitie ! thenfell On kissed earth: and leave with much delay, Their countries smoking ruines. Hecuba Her fad departure to the Jast deferres: Now found among her childrens sepulchers, (A fight of ruth!) spread on their tombes: there wailes; Their cold bones kiffing: whom Vlyffes hales From that sad comfort, Some of Hectors dust, Vp fnatcht, deliuers to her bosomes trust. Vpon his tombe the left her horie haires (A poore oblation 1) mingled with her teares. Oppos'd to Ilium's ruines lyes a land, Till'd by the Bistones; in the Command Of Polymneflor. Danger to preuent,

To him his father Polydorus fent.

Ar

And wifely; had he not withall confign'd A maffe of gold, to tempt his greedy mind. His foster-child, when lingring Ilium drew Toher last date, the Thracian Tyrant flew. Whom, as if he his murder with the flaine Could cast away, he casts into the maine. Now rod Atrides at the Thracian shore; Till winds forbore to storme, and seas to rore. When from the yawning earth Achilles role; Like mightie as in life: whose lookes discose As sterne a wrath, as when his lawlesse blade Was on Atrides drawne; and frowning, faid:

You Greekes, of me vnmindfull; can you thus From hence depart? shall our deserts with vs Lodge in oblinion? Proue not so ingrate.

With flaine Polixena regratulate

Our Sepulcher: tis she I couet most: A facrifice, that will appeale our Ghoft.

Then vanisht. They th'vngentle Sprite obaid; And from her Mothers bosome drew the Maid, (High-fould, vnhappy, more then feminine,) To his resembled tombe; with life to figne Infernall Dues. Of her high birth the thought: And now vnto the bloudy altar brought; Seeing the facilitie for her prepar'd, And that Neoptolemus vpon her star'd With fword aduanc't; she said, vntoucht with dred:

Our generous bloud to your intentions thed:

Dispatch; I am ready; in my throat or brest

Your weapon sheath. (With that, with-drew her vest. Polyxena doth seruitude despise:

And yet no God affects such sacrifice.

I onely wish my death might be vnknowne To my afflicted mother. She alone Disturbs the loyes of death: though Priams wife My death should lesse bewaile, then her owne life. Nor let the touch of man pollute a maid: That my free foule may to the Stygian shade Vntainted passe. If this be just, remoue Your hand: I shall more acceptable proue Vnto that God or Ghost, what ere he bee To whom I am offer'd, if my bloud befree. And if a dying tongue preuaile at all; I, late great Priams daughter, now a thrall, Sollicit that my corps may not be fold; But given my mother: nor exchange for gold Sad rites of sepulture. In former yeares Sh'had gold to giue, now poore, accept her teares.

This having faid; for her that would not weepe, The people wept: the Priest could hardly keepe. His eyes from teares; yet did what he abhord; And in he proffered bosome thrust his fword. On fad denig knees the finkes, with filent breath; low four refully incounters smild-on Death. (A fighwhen she fell, she had a care to hide What should be hid; and chaftly-decent dide. Her corpes was carried by the Troiandames: Who in a funerall fong repeat the names Of Priams mourn'd-for Seed; what streames of gore One House had spent. Thee, Virgin, they deplore: And thee, O royall Wife, intitled late The mother Queene, and glory of that State: A Captine now, cast by a scorned los On victor Ithachas; refus'd, if not

For bearing Hetter. Hetter, fo renoun'd, A master hardly for his mother found. She hug's the corps that such a spirit kept. Who for her country, children, husband, wept So oft; now weepes for her: her lips comprest, Her wounds fils with her teares. Then beats her breft: Her hoarie haire befmear'd with clotted gore, And bosome torne, this spake she; and much more. Poore daughter, our last sorrow: (what is left For Fortunes spight!) by bloudy death bereft. On thee I fee my wounds. That none of mine May woundlesse die, these wounds thy bosome signe. In that a woman, thee I held fecur'd: But thou, a woman, fuffer ft by the sword. This Bane of Troy, our Deprination, who So many of thy princely brothers flue; Hith flaine thee also. When his life was laid By Paris and Apollo's shafts, I said, Now is Achilles to be fear'd no more. Now dead, to vs as dreadfull as before. Against my race his ashes raues: his tombe refents a foe. O my vnhappy wombe! This fury fruit full! Ruin'd Troy descends; And fad fucceffe the publike for ow ends: Yet they are ended. Ilium alone To vs remaines: our forrowes freahly grone: , erst so potent and so fertunate n husbands, sons, and height of humane State; o exile now am hal'd: despis'd, and torne rom my owne sepulchers: from Phrygia borne o serue Penelope; that while I sew Ir fpin at her commandement, the may thew

Her slave to Ithacen sian dames, and say, Loe Hectors mother, Priam's Hecuba. My forrowes fole reliefe, so many lost, Is offered to appeale an hostile Ghost. Infernall facrifices to the dead, Euen to my foe, my curfed wombe hath bred. Hard heart, why break'st thou not? what hopes ingage Thy expectation? Mischieuous Old-age, For what referu'st thou me ? You cruell Powres, Why lengthen you a poore old womans howres To see new funerals? O Priam, I May call thee happy, after ruin'd Troy. Happy in death. Thouseest not this sad fate: Thou loft thy life together with thy state. Rich funerals attend thee, royall Maid: And by thy Ancestors thou shalt be laid. O no! thy mothers teares, a heape of fand, Must now content thee in a forreine land. All, all is lost! Yet liues a little Boy My last, and youngest ioy, when I could ioy; For whom I condescend to live a space; Here foster'd by the courteous King of Thrace. Meane while why fray we with the cleanfing floud To wash these wounds, and lookes besmear'd with bloud :

Then with an aged pace, her horie haires
All torne and scattred, to the Sea repaires.
And while the wretched said; You Troades,
A pitcher bring to draw the brinish Seas:
She saw the elected corps of Polydore
Stucke sull of wounds upon the beachie shore.
The Ladies shreeke; she dumbe with sorrow stood:
Internall griefe her voice, her teares, her blood,

At once deuour'd. And now, as if intrane't Stares on the earth; sometimes to Heauen aduane's Her scouling browes: oft on his visage gaz'd; But oftner on his wounds. By anger rais'd, Arm'd, and instructed; all on vengeance bent, Still Queene-like, destinates his punishment. And as a Lyonesse, rob'd of her young, Perfues the vnfeene-hunters fleps: 10 flung With fury, when her forrow with her rage, Had joyn'd their powers; vnmindfull of herage, But not offormer greatnesse, ran with speed To Polyinnestor, author of this deed. And craving conference, the Tyrant told low the would thew him fummes of hidden gold Fo giue her Polydor. This held for true; le this fly of his prey, with "er with-drew. Ind flattering her thus craft ly begun: Delay not, Hecuba, t'inrich thy fon: ly all the Gods we justly will restore What thou shalt give, and what thou gau'ft before. he with a truculent aspect beheld 'he fallely swearing King: with anger swel'd. hen calls the captine dames, vpon him flyes; who hides her fingers in his periur'd eyes, atracts his eye-balls: more then viuali arong Vith thirfly vengeance and the fenfe of wrong, ler hand drownes in his skull; the roots vp-tore this loft fight, imbrude with guilty gore. he men of Thrace incenfed for their King, leapons and stones at Hesuba now fling. ne, gnaring, bites the followed flints: her chaps, or speech extended, barke. Of whose mis-haps

That place is nam'd. She, mindfull of her old Muf-fortunes, in Sithonian deferts howld.

Kinde Troians, Greei: n foes, both love and hate; Yea, all the Gods commiferate her fate.

So all, as Iuno did to this descend;

That Hecuba deserved not such an end.

Aurora had no leasure to lament
(Although those armes she fauour'd) the euent
Of Trey or Hesuba. Domesticall
And neerer griese, afflicts her for the fall
Of Memnon; who Achilles lance imbru'd
In Phrygian fields. This as the Goddesse view'd,
The rose die, that deckt the Mornes vp-rise
Grew forth-with pale, and clouds immur'd the skies.
Nor could indure to see his body laid
On funerall flames: but with h, 1 haire displaid,
As in that season, to high love repaires;
And kneeling, thus with teares, vnfolds her cares.

To all inferior, whom the skie sustaines
(For mortals rarely honour me with Fanes)
A Goddesse yet, I come: not to desire
Shrines, Festivals, nor Altars fraught with fire;
Yet should you weigh what I, a woman doe,
That Night confine, and sacred Day renue,
I merit such: such sute not now our state;
Nor such desires insect the desolate.
Of Memnorob'd, who glorious armes in vaine
Bare for his vnkle, by Achilles slaine
In flowre of youth so would you Gods) come I.
O chiefe of Powers, a mothers forrow, by
Some honour given him, lessen: death with same
Recomfort! love assents. When greedy slame

Deuou

Deuour'd the funerall Pile; and curling fumes Day ouer-cast: as when bright Sol assumes rom ftreames thicke vapours, nor is feene below. The flying, dying sparkles ioyatly grow nto one body. Colour, forme, life, fpring o it from fire, which leuity doth wing. irft like a Fowle, forth-with a Fowle indeed: nnumerable fifters of that breed Together whiske their feathers. Thrice they round he funerall Pile; thrice raise a mournfull sound. n two battalions then divide their flight; and like two strenuous nations fiercely fight: heir opposites with beake and tallons rend: luffe with their wings; in facrifice descend. low dying on the athes of the dead: emembring they were of the Valiant bred. hele new-sprung Fowle, men of their author call temnonides. No fooner Solthrough all he Signes returnes; but they reloyne againe ciuill warre, and dye vpon the flaine. Thile others therefore doe commiserate oore barking Hecuba in her chang'd fare: urora her owne griefe intends; renewes er pious teares, which fall on earth in dewes. Yetfates refift, that all the hopes of Troy hould perish with her towres. The Son and Joy If Cycherea, with his houshold Gods, nd aged Sire, his pious shoulders lodes. If so great wealth he onely chose that prize, nd his Ascanius: from An:andres flies feas, and fhuns the wicked Thracian shore, eff'd with bloud of murdered Pelyder:

With prosperous winds arriving with his traine At Phabustowne, where Anius then did raigne, Apollo's holy Priest; who, with the rest, Into the Temple leads his honour'd Gueft: The City, with the facred places, showes; And trees held by Latona in her throwes. Incense on flames, and wine on incense powr'd; Entrailes of flaughtered beeues by fire deuour'd; His Guests conducts to Court: on carpet spred, With Ceres and Lyeus bounty fed. When thus Anchifes: ô to Phabus deare! I am deceiu'd; or, when I first was here, Foure daughters and a fon thy folace crown'd. He shooke his head, with sacred fillers bound : And fighing faid: ô most renoun'd of men. I was the father of five children then: Whom now (fuch is the change of things!) you fee Halfe childlesse: for my absent sonne to mee Is of small comfort; who, my Vice-roy, raignes In sea-girt Andros, which his name retaines. Him, Delius with prophetick skill inspir'd. A gift past credit, still to be admir'd, My daughters Bacchus gaue; aboue their fute That all they toucht should presently transmute To wine, to corne, and to Minerua's oile. Rich in the vse. To purchase such a spoile, Great Troy's Depopulator, Atreus Heire, (Left you should thinke we have not borne a share In your mif-haps) with armed violence Inforc't them from me: charged to dispence That heavenly gift vnto th' Argolian Hoft. They scape by Right : two to Eubaa crost; wo fled to Andros: these the Souldier ersude, and threaten (if vnrender'd) warre. eare nature now subdude: his fifters were whim resign'd; forgiue a brothers feare. or Hestor nor Aneas then were by o guard his towne, who fo long guarded Troy. out to binde their captive armes in bands; earing to heaven their yet vnchained hands, father Bacchus helpe! While thus they prai'd, he Author of that gift presents his aid. f fuch a loffe may be accounted fo) thow they loft their shapes I could not know a or yet can tell. It selfe the sequell proues; onuerted to thy Wives white-feather'd Doues. With fuch discourse they entertaine the feast : hat to'ne away, dispose themselves to rest. ith day they rose; the Oracle exquire: ho bids them to their ancient Nurse retire, adkinged-shores. With them the King convents, nd their departure with rich gifts prefents. scepter to Anchises gives: a brave ch cloke, a quiuer t'Ascanius gaue : figur'd goblet on Aneas prest; I Theban Therfes fent him, once his Gueft. ilean Alson made what Therles fent; nd caru'd thereon this ample argument. A City with seuen gates of equall grace; nese plainly character the name and place. fore it, exequies, tombs, piles, bright fires. ames with spred haire, bare brefts, and torne attires, ecipher mourning: Nymphs appeare to weepe or their dry Springs: sap-searing cankers creepe

On naked trees: Goats licke the foodleffe earth. In midft of Thebes, Orion's female birth V ndanted ftand: This proffers to the sword Her manly breft; her hands her death afford, For common fafety. All the people mourne; And with due funerals their bodies burne. Yet left the world should such a linage lose, Two youths out of their virgin ashes rose. These Orphans wandring Fame Corone calls: Who celebrate their mothers funerals. The anticke brasse with sulgent figures thin'd: Whose brim neat wreaths of guilt Acanthus bind.

Nor were the Troian gifts of leffe expense: Who gaue a Cenfor for sweet frankincense, An ample Chalice of a curious mold; With these a crowne, that shone with gemmes and gol

In that the Tucrans sprung from Teucers ble od, They faile to Creet: but Ione their flay with-flood. Leauing those hundred Cities, now they stand For wisht Ausonia's destinated strand. Tost by rough Winter and the wrath of seas, They anchor at the faithlesse Stropbades. Thence frighted by Aello; faile away By steepe Dulicbium, stony Ithaca, Samus, high Neritus clasp'd by the Maine; All subject to the flye Vhilles raigne. Then at Ambracia touch, the strife and grudge Of angry Gods; the image of the Iudge Behold, by them converted into Rone Now to Actiacan Apollo knowne. Then the Dodonean vocall Oke they view; Chaonia, where Moloffus children flew fith aidfull feathers from the impious flame; ext to Pheacia, rich in hort-yards, came; hen to Epirus: at Buthrotos flaid, hose scepter now the Phrygian Prophet swaid; ad see resembled Troy. Fore-told of all Priam's Helenus, that would befall, hey reach Sicania. This three tongues extends to circumfluent Seas. Pachynus bends o showrie Auster; flowrie Z phyr blowes n Lilybæums browes; Pelorus showes is Cliffes to Boreas, and the Sea expel'd Hurus. Vnder this their course they held lith stretching ores; and fauour'd by the tide. hat night in Zancle's crooked harbour ride. ne right-fide dangerous Scylla, turbulent arybdia keepes the left; on ruine bent. ie belches swallowed ships from her profound: r fable wombe, dogs euer rau'ning, round; t beares a Virgins face: if all be true hat Poets fing, she was a Virgin too. many fought, as many fhe despis'd: Nymphs of feas, of fea-nymphs highly priz'd, e beares her vizets; and to them discouers e history of her deluded louers. whom thus Galatea, fighing, faid; hile Scyllacomb'd her haire. You, louely Maid, e lou'd of generous-minded men, whom you ith safety may refuse, as now you doe. tI, great Nereus and blue Doris Seed, eat in so many fifters of that breed; thunning of the Cyclops love prouck's lad revenge. Here teares her viterance chok's

These cleansed by the marble-singer'd maid; Who, having comforted the Goddesse, said: Relate, ô most ador'd, nor from me keepe The wretched cause that makes a Goddesse weepe; For I am faithfull. Nereie consents,

And thus her griefe to Cratic daughter vents.

The Nymph Simethis bore a louely Boy

To Faunus, Acis cal'd; to them a ioy;
To vs a greater. For the sweetly-Faire
To me an innocent affection bare.

His blooming youth twice told eight Natals crowne, And figne his cheekes with scarce appearing downe.

As I the gentle boy, so Polypheme
My loue persu'd; vnlike, a like extreme.

Whether myloue to Acis, or my hate To him were more, I hardly can relate. Both infinite! ô Venus, what a powre Hath thy command! He fill auftere and fowre,

A terror to the woods, from whom no guest With life escapes, accustomed to feast

On humane flesh; who all the Gods aboue,
With them Ohmpus scorn'd; now stoops to loue.
Forgetfull of his flocks and caues, a fire

Forgetfull of his flocks and caues, a fire Feeds in his breft, converts into defire. His feature now intends, now bends his care

To please: with rakes he combes his stubborne haire;
His bristles barbes with scithes: and by the brook's
Vnfolid mirror calmes his dreadfull lookes:

His thirst of bloud, and love of slaughter cease;
Lesse cruell now: ships come and goe in peace.
When Telemus came from Sicilian Seas,

Augurious Telemus Eurymides, and said to Polypheme, thy browes large fight shall by Vly Tesbe depriu'd of light. I foole, he laughing faid, thou tell'ft a lye; A female hath already stolne that eye; Thus flouts the Prophets true prediction: And with extended paces stalks vpon The burdned shore; or weary, from the waue-Bet beach retireth to his gloomy caue, A promontory thrusts into the maine; Whose cliffie fides the breaking Seas restraine: The Cyclop this ascends: whose Heecy flocke Vnforced follow. Seated on a rocke; dis staffe, a well-growne Pine, before him cast, iufficient for a yard-supporting mast; le blowes his hundred reeds: whose squeaking fils The far-resounding Seas, and ecchoing hils. did in a hollow rocke, and laid along by Acis fide, I heard him fing this fong. O Galatea, more than lilly-white,

O Galatea, more than lilly-white,
More fresh than slowrie meads, than glasse more bright, ligher than Alder-trees, than kids more blithe, imoother than shels whereon the surges drive,
More wisht than winters Sun, or Summers aire,
More sweet than grapes, than apples far more care,
Deerer than Ice, more seemly than tall Planes, ofter than tender curds, or downe of Swans,
More faire, if fixt, than Gardens by the fall
Of springs inchac't. Though thus, thou art withall wore serce than saluage bulls, who know no yoke,
Then waves more giddy, harder than the oke,
Than vines or willow twigs more easily bent,
More stiffe than rocks, than streames more violent,

R4

Prouder

Prouder than Peacocks prais' a, more rash than fire. Than Beares more cruell, sharper than the brier. Deafer than Seas, more fell than trod-on Snake; And, if I could, what I would from thee take, More speedy than the Hound-persued Hind. Or chased clouds, or than the flying wind. If knowne to thee, thou wouldft thy flight repent: Curfe thy delay, and labour my content. For I have Caues within the living flone: To Summers heat, and Winters cold vnknowne: Tices charg'd with Apples, spreading Vines that hold A purple grape, and grapes resembling gold. For thee I these preserve, affected Maid. Thou Straw-berries shalt gather in the shade, Autumnall cornels, plummes with azure rin'd, And wax-like yellow, of a generous kind; Nor shalt thou Chef-nuts want, if mine thou bee, Nor scalded wildings: seru'd by euery tree. Thefe flocks are ours: in vallies many fray, Woods many shade, at home as many stay. Nor can I, should you aske, their number tell: Who number theirs, are poore. How these excell, Beleeue not me, but credit your owne eyes: See how their Vdders part their stradling thighes. I in my sheep-coats have new-weaned lambs; And frisking kids late taken from their dams. New milke, fresh curds and creame, with cheese well prest are never wanting for thy pallats feaft. Nor will we gifts for thy delight prepare Of easie purchase, or what are not rare? Deere, red and fallow, Roes, light-footed hares, Nefts scal'd from cliffes, and doues produc't by paires.

rugged Beares rough twins I found vpon The mountaines late, scarce from each other knowne. for thee to play with : finding thefe, I faid, ly Mistris you shall serue. Come louely Maid. Tome Galatea, from the furges rife, right as the Morning; nor our gifts despile. know my felfe; my image in the brooke lately saw, and therein pleasure tooke. chold how great! not Inpiter about For much you talke I know not of what love) larged fiz'd : curles on my browes displai'd, Iffright; and like a groue my shoulders shade. for let it your esteeme of me impaire, hat all my body brifles with thicke haire. rees without leaves, and horfes without manes. re fights vnfeemely: graffe adornes the planes, Vooll sheepe, and teathers fowle. A manly face beard becomes: the skin rough briftles grace. mid my fore-head shines one onely light; ound, like a mighty Shield, and cleere of fight. he Sun all objects fees beneath the skie: nd yet behold, the Sun hath but one eye. esides your Seas obey my fathers throne: giue you him for yours. Doe you alone ouchfafe me pity, and your suppliant heare: o you I onely bow; you onely feare. Alcauen, Iupiter, his lightning I despise: lore dread the lightning of thy angry eyes. nd yet your scorne my patience lesse would moue, fere all contemn'd. Why should you Acid love, nd flight the cyclop? why to him more free? khough himselfe he please; and pleaseth thee, (Which frets me most) could I your darling get, He then should find my strength and me like great. His guts I would extract, squeaze out his braines, Throw his discuered limbes about the plaines: And if with thee he mingle, mix thy wave With his hot bloud; and make thy deep his grave. For O, I fry! despised affection burnes With greater rage: my Allto Atnaturnes, And all her slames are in my bosome pent: Yet Galatea, wilt not thou relent.

This said, he rose; (for I beheld him well.) Nor could stand still; but terrible and fell, Hurries about the woods and well knowne coasts Much like a bull that bath his heifer loft. Who me and Acis, too fecure, espy'd: And with a voice that futes a Cyclop, cry'd, This houre shall be the last of all your ioyes. Affrighted Æinarored with the noise, I ynder water diu'd: he flying faid; Helpe Galatea! you, O parents, aid The vtterly vndone; and entertaine Your issue in the Empire where you raigne. A torne-off rocke the following Cy lop threw: Whose vtter edge o're-whelmed Acid flew. We did, what could be licensed by Fate: Resuming Airs to his Grand-sires state. The purple bloud from that depressure fled; Which presently forsooke the native red: First like a raine-discoloured freame appeares; Then Christaline. The rocke in Sunder reares: Whose crannies with vp-starting reeds abound; And in the breach infulring waves refound:

rom whence a youth arose aboue the wast; is horned browes with quivering reeds imbrac't. Iwas wondrous strange: but that his lookes appeare lore blew, and he more great, it Acis were. nd fo it was: although he now became liuing streame, which still preserues his name. Here Galaten ends; th'affembly brake; osmiling Seas the Nymphs themselues betake. cylla returning, dares not trust the Deepes; ut naked, nigh the thirsty graueil keepes; or weary in the more-sequestred waves ler comely limbs with cooling water laues. oe, Glaucus in the Sea but lately knowne, ransformed neere Eubaan Anthedon, hrough fliced waves arrives: rapt with her fight; y gentle words attempts to stay her flight. he faster fled: who swift with feare ascends lofty hill, which neere the shore extends: Vhose round congested summit, crown'd with wood, )id ouer-peere the vader-swelling flood. here stayes, secured by the place; norknew BGod, or Monster: much admires his hiew, lis spreading locks; which all his shoulders veile; Ind hinder parts, that beare a fishes taile. erceined; leaning on a rocke, he faid: I am no beaft, nor prodigie, faire Maid: Vot Proteus, Triton, Athamanis'des tre greater Gods, or more command in Seas. let once a mortall; and did then frequent Th'affected Seas. On those my labour spent, lometimes with nets I fishes hale to land: iometimes the line directed with my wand.

The shore a meddow bounds; whereof one fide Is fring'd with weeds, the other with the tide. On this nor horned cattle euer fed, Nor harmlesse sheep, nor gotes on mountaines bred. No bees from hence their thighes with honey lade; Those flowers no geniall garlands euer made: That graffe ne're cut with fithes. Of mortals I First thither came; my nets hung vp to dry. While I expos'd the fishes which I tooke; By their credulity hung on my hooke, Or masht in nets; (what would a lye behoue? Yet fuch it feemes) my prey began to moue, Display their finnes, and swim as on the flood. While I neglect their stay, and wondering stood; They all by flight avoiding my command, Together left their owner and the land. Amaz'd, and doubting long; the cause I sought, If either God, or Herbe, this wonder wrought. What herbe, faid I, hath fuch a powre? in hafte An herbe I pul'd, and gaue it to my tafte. No sooner swallowed, but my entrailes shooke: When forth-with I another nature tookc. Nor could refraine; but said, O Earth, my last Farewell receive ! in seas my selfe I cast. The Sea-gods now youchfafing my receit Into their facred fellowship, intreat Both Tetbys and Oceanus, that they Would take, what euer mortall was, away. Whom now they hallow, and with charmes nine times Repeated, purge me from my humane crimes: And bade me couch beneath a hundred streames. Forth-with the rivers rusht from sundry Realmes:

Ind fea-rais'd furges roule aboue my crowne.
Is foone as freames retire, and feas were downe,
Indike the former, they to me affign'd.
Thus much of Wonder I remember well:
Then first of all this fea-greene beard I faw,
Thefe dangling lockes, which through the deepe I draw;
The dangling lockes, blew armes of greater might;
That hoots this forme? my grace with Gods of feas?

That a God? If thou affect not these?

While this he spake, and would have vttered more, Doy Seylla flies. He with impatience bore lis loues repulse: whom strong desires transport the region of the file . . . . . . . . . . . .

To great Titanian Circes horrid Court.

OVID'S

control of the second s ovios

OVID'S

METAMORPHOSIS.

The Fourteenth Booke.

THE ARGUMENT.

I Nebanted Scylla, hemb'd with horrid fhapes, Becomes a Rocke, Cercopeans surn'd to Apes Sibylla wearest'a Voice. Vlyffes mon Transform'd to Swine, are re-transform'd agene Picus a Bird: bis Followers. Beafts. Defbare Refolues fad-finging Canens into Aire. The Mates of Diomed unreconcil d Idalia turnes to Fowle. An Olive wild Rude Apulus deciphers. Turnus burnes Eneas Ships : thefe Berecynthia turnes To Sea-nymphs; who Alcinous Ship with iop Behold a Rocke. The Trojan flames deftroy Befreged Ardea; from whose ofhes fprings A meager Herne, that beares them on her wings. Ancas, Deifed. Vermannus eries All fhapes. Rhamnufia; for ber cruelties, Congeales proud Anaxarete to Stone Cold Fountaines boile with heat. Ta heavenly thron Mars Romulus assumes. Herfilia Like grace receines: who ione in equalt from.

Ow Glaucus, thron'd in tumid floods, had par High Atna, outhe lawes of Typhen cast;

cycloplan

Cyclopian fields, where neuer oxen drew
The furrowing plough, nor ever tillage knew;
Crookt Zancle; Rhegiam on the other fide;
The wrackfull Straights, whose double bounds divide
Sicilia from Ausonia: fotward drives
Through spatious Tyrrhen Seas; at length arrives
At hearbie Hills, Phabean Circes seat,
With sundry formes of monstrous beasts repleas.

When, mutually faluting, Glaucus faid:

A God, ô Goddesse, pitie: on your aid Alone relies (if my desert might moue
So deare a grace) th'asswagement of my Loue.
For none than I, Titania, better knowes
The powre of hearbs, that am transform'd by these.
T' informe you better, in Italia
Against Messenia, on a fandie Bay,
I Scyllasaw: it shames me to recite.
My slighted court-ship, answered by her slighte.
Doe thou, if charmes auaile, in charmes vnite
Thy sacred tongue: or sourcaigne Hearbs apply,
If of more powre. Yer I affect no cure,
Nor end of Loue: like hear let her indure.

But Circe (none to fuch defires more prone,
Or that the cause is in her selfe alone;
Or stung by Venus angry influence,
In that her Father publish her offence)
Reply'd: The willing with more ease persue;
Who wish the same, whom equal stames subdue.
For thou ô well deseru'st to be persude:
Giue hope, and, credit me, thou shalt be woo'd.
Rest therefore of thy beautie consident;
Loe, I, a Goddesse, radiant sels descent.

heaths fo potent, and no leffe in charmes; roffer my felfe, and pleasures to thy armes. corne her that scornes thee; her, that seekes, persue: nd in one deed revenge thy selfe of two. Glaucus reply'd to her who fought him fo: irst shady groues shall on the billowes grow, nd Sea-weeds to the mountaine tops remoue; re I (and Seylla living) change my love. he Goddeffe frets: who fince the neither could leftroy a Deitie, nor, louing, would; In her, preferr'd before her, bends her ire: nd high-incenfed with repul& defire, orth-with infectious drugs of dire effects ogether grindes; and Hecat's charmes iniects: fullen robe indues, the Court forfakes hrough throngs of fawning beafts : her iourney takes oRbegium opposite to Zancle's shore; nd treads the troubled waves that lowdly rore. unning with vnwet feet on that Profound; sif sh'had trod vpon the solid ground. little Bay, by Siylla haunted, lies ent like a bow; from the Seas and skies istemper, when the high-pitcht Sunne inuades he World with hottest beames, and shortens shades. his with portenteous poisons she pollutes; fprinkled with the juyce of wicked roots: words darke and ambiguous, nine-times thrice chantments mutters with her magicke voice. ow Scylla came; and, wading to the waste, theld her hips with barking dogs imbrac't. arts backe : at first not thinking that they were art of her selfe; but rates them, and doth feare

Theire

Their threatning iawes: but those, from whom she flies, She with her hales. Then looking for her thighes, Her legs, and sect; in stead of them she found The mouthes of Cerberus; inuiron'd round With rau'ning Curres: the backes of saluage beasts Support her groine; whereon her belly rests.

Kinde Glaucus wept; and Circes bed refus'd:
Who! d fo cruelly her Art abus'd.
But Scylla ftill remaining, Circe hates;
Who for that cause destroy'd Vlyses mates.
And had the Troian navie drown'd of late,
If not before transform'd by powerfull Fate

Into a Rocke: the stony Prodigie

Yet eminent, from which the Sea-men flie. This, and Charybdis past with stretching oares; The Troian Acet, now neareth' Aufonian shores, Croffe winds, and violent, to Libya draue. There, in her heart, and palace, Dido gaue Aneas harbor: with impatience beares Her husbands flight; forth-with a Pile she reares, Pretending facrifice; and then doth fall Vpon his sword: deceiu'd, deceiuing all. Flying from Carthage, Eryx he re-gain'd; There where his faithfullfriend Aceftes raign'd His fathers funeralls re-folemniz'd, He puts to Sea, with ships well-nigh surpriz'd By Iris flames. Hippotade's Command, The fulphur-fuming lles, the rockie Strand Of Acheloian Sirens leaving, loft His Pilot: to Inarime then croft, To Prochyta, and Pithecufa, wall'd With barren hilles; so ofher people call'd.

Fol

Nor Impiter, detesting much the slie and fraudulent Cercopeans periury, not deformed beafts transform'd them then; withough vnlike, appearing like to men; Contracts their limbes, their notes from their browes. It flats, their faces with old wrinkles plowes; and, couering them with yellow haire, affords. This dwelling; first depriuing them of words, so much abus'd to periury and wrongs; Who iabber, and complaine with stammering tongues.

Then on the right-hand left Parthenope, Misenus on the left, far-stretcht in Sea, So named of his Trumpetor: thence, past By flimie Marishes, and anchor east At Cuma; entring long-liu'd Sibyls caues, A passage through obscure Auernus craves I' his Fathers Manes. She erectsher eyes, Long fixt on earth, and with the Deities Reception fill'd, in facred rage reply'd. Great things thou feek'st, o thou so magnifi'd For mighty deeds: thy piety through flame, Thy arme through Armies confecrate thy name. Yet feare not, Troian, thy desires inioy: I' Elyfan Fields, th'infernall Monarchie, And Fathers Shade, I will thy person guide: No way to noble Vertue is denide.

Then to a Golden bough directs his view,
Which in Auernian Iuno's Hort-yard grew:
And bade him pull it from the facred tree.
Eneas her obeyes: and now doth fee
The Spoiles of dreadfull Hell; his Grand-fires, loft in death, and great Anchifes aged Ghost.

There

There knowes the customes of the Latian State,
The toile of future warre, and following fate.
Then, in retreat, his weaty steps applied:
And by discourse with his Cumean Guide
His toile beguiles; as in that horrid way,
Through gloomie twy-light, he remounts to Day.

Whether, said he, thou bee'ft a Deity,
Or of the Gods belou'd; for ever I
Will serve thee as a Goddesse: and consesse
That by thy savour I have wonne accesse
Vnto th'abodes of Death; and that by thee
I from th'abodes of gripple Death am see.
And therefore will, when I to Day returne,
A Temple build, and incense to thee burne.

The Prophetesse on him reverts hereye;
And sighing, said; I am no Deitie:
To mertalls offer no immortal Dues;
Lest ignorance thy gratitude abuse.
Yet had beene free from deaths impetuous powre,
Had I to Phabus, given my virgin flowre.
While hopefull; tempting me with gifts, he said,

Aske what thou wilt, my faire Cuman Maid,
And take thy wish. I shew'd a heape of sand,
And wish as many Birth-dayes as my hand
Contained graines: forgot to adde the prime
Of youthfull yeares, which should have crown'd my time.

Who this had granted also, if my bed

He could have won. His gifts despis'd, Iled A single life. Those happier times are gone; And crasse Age with trembling steps comes on. Seven Ages have I liu'd; and live I must Till yeares have equalled those graines of dust.

Three

Three hundred Haruests consummate the summe; Threehundred Vintages. The time will come, When length of dayes my body shall abate, And little leave in quantitie or weight. None then will thinke that I belou'd had beene. Or pleas'd a God: He, by whom all is feene, Such change shall I indure) or, will not know, Dr else deny, that he had lou'd me so. No eye shall see me: yet a voice alone Fare will afford; by which I shall be knowne. Thus Sibyl, as they clim'd that steepe ascent. When good Aneas through this Siguan vent At Cama rose: and facrificing, came To shores since called of his Nurses name. Neritian Macareus, the friend Of Ithacus did here his trauels end. Who knowing Achamenides, of late On Ætnaleft, admires to see his mate Long given for dead. What chance, or God, said he, O Achiemenides, hath fet thee free? How comes a Gracian fouldier to be found In Troian vessell? for what Country bound? When A: hamenides: (not now forlorne, Now like himfelfe, his rags not pin'd with thorne) May I fell Polyphem behold againe, Whose lawes ore flow with bloud of strangers slaine; If I this ship prefer not farre aboue Tyffes home; or leffe Aneas loue Then my owne father. Could I render more Than all my All, the recompence were poore. That now I speake, I breathe Heaven, Sun-shine see (Can I vnmindfull, or vngratefull be)

Is by his bounty: that the cyclops fowle And hungry maw had not deuour'd my Soule: That now I may be buried when I die; Or at the least, not in his entrailes lie. O what a heart had I! with feare bereft Of foule and fense! when I behinde was left, And faw your flight! I had an Out-cry made, But that afeard to have my selfe betray'd. Yours, almosthad Vlyffes ship destroy'd. I saw him rive out of the mountaines side A folidrocke, and dart it on the Maine: I faw the furious Giant once againe, When mightie stones with monstrous strength he flung: Like quarries by a warlike engine flung. Left ship should sinke with waves and stones I feare: Not then remembring, that I was not there. He, when your flight had rescu'd you from death, O're Atna paces; fighing clouds of breath: And groping in the woods, bereft of fight, Incounters suffling rockes: mad with despight Extends his bloudy armes to under waves, The Greekes perfues with curses; and thus raues.

O would some God V biffes would ingage, Or some of his, to my insatiate rage! I'd gnaw his heart, his living members rend, Gulpe downe his bloud till it againe ascend, And crash his panting sinewes. O, how light A losse, or none, were then my losse of sight!

This spake, and more. My ioynts pale horror shooke,
To see his grim, and slaughter-sineared looke,

His bloudy hands, his eyes deferted feat,

Vast limbes, and beard with humane gore concreat.

Death

eath stood before mine eyes (my least dismay: ) ow thought my felfe furpriz'd; now, that I lay, u'ft in his paunch. That time presents my view. hen two of ours on dashing stones he threw: hen on them like a shagged Lion lies; heir entrailes, flesh, yet mouing arteries, hite marrow, with crasht bones, at once deuoures. fad, and bloudleffe flood: feare chill'd my powres, eing him eat, and cast the horrid food; aw lumpes of flesh, wine mixt with clotted blood. ien fuch a fate my wretched thoughts propound. onglying hid, afraid of euery found, horring death, yet coueting to die; ith mast, and hearbs repelling famine; I, one, forlorne, to death and torment left, his ship espy'd: this by my gestures weft, anne to shore, nor safety vainly seeke: Troian vessell entertain'd a Greeke. ow, worthy friend, your owne aduentures tell; nd what, fince first you put to sea, befell. He told how Æolus raign'd in Thuscan Seas, orme-fettering Aplus Hippotades, ho nobly gaue to their Dulichian Guide wind, inclosed in an oxes hide. ine daies they failed with fuccessefull gales; ought shores descry'd: the tenth had blancht their failes; hen greedy Sailers, thinking to have found maffe of enuy'd gold, the wind vnbound. his through rough seas the Nauie backward drives, Thich at the Æolian port againe arrives. o Lestrigonian Lamus ancient towne rom thence, said he, we came. That countries crowne Antiphates

Antiphates then wore. Three thinker fent Two of vs scarce by flight our death prevent: The third the Lestrigenians teeth imbrude With his hot gore. Antiphates persude Our flight; incites his troopes; who tumbling downe Huge stones and trees, our men and vellels drowne. One fcap't; which vs, and fad Vlyffes bore. Ioyntly our lost companions we deplore; And grieuing reach that Sea-inuiron'd land, Which farre from hence you fee : Still may it stand Farre from my sight! beware thou Goddesse Sonne, Iust Troian Prince; (for now the warres are done, With them for euer end our enmitie) From circes Mansion, & Aneas file. There anchoring; mindfull of the cyclops strand, Andfell Antiphates, we feare to land. Bur casting lors, the lot elected vs, Faithfull Polites, Sage Eurylochus, Elpenor prone to wine, and eighteene more To visit Circes on that vnknowne shore. Approching, we before the Portall staid. A thousand Lions, Beares, and Wolves inuade Our hearts with terror : but their milde affailes No wounds produce: who wag their flattering tailes, And fawning follow; till her hand-maids came And led vs through that marble-couer'd frame Vnto their Mistris. On a throne of State, Shee in a sumptuous inward chamber sate: Her under Vest, with gold imbellisht, shone; And ouer it a purple mantle throwne. Nereides, and Nymphs, nor carded wooll, Nor following twine with busic fingers pull:

ut weeds dispose in order; mingled flowers elect in maunds, and hearbs of different powers, ther direction: who the vertue knew If euery simple, of their compounds too; nd gives them their due weight. Saluted, thee alures againe; her cheerefull lookes as free. s her full bounty to supply our need. tho bids her ready Danifels mix with speed he pulpe of Barly, hony, curds, strong wines: nd to this sweet receit hid iuces joynes. hengaue the cup with her owne facred hand; hich thirstily we drunke, while with her wand he direfull Goddesse strokes our crownes. I shame o tell; yet tell: I presently became ith briftles rough: thinking, as I was wonr, haue spoke, and shew'd my griefe in words, I grunt, vlookes hung downe, my mouth extends t'a snout. y stiffer necke with swelling brawnes stickes out; id goe vpon those hands, wherewith of lare ooke the cup. With those whom frightfull fare d thus vn-mand (fogreat a potencie potions lurkes) included in a Stie. one Eurylochus the shape of Swine oids: alone refus'd the proffered wine. hich had not he reiected, with the rest infelfe had prou'd a briftle-bearing Beaft. ir should Vlyffesour mishaps have knowne: forced Circe to restore his owne. ace-bearing Hermes gaue him a white flowre; I'd Moly by the Gods; of wonderous powre, rung from a Sable root: inform'd withall heavenly counsell, enters Circe's Hall.

Proffering th'insidious Cup, her magicke wand About to raise, he thrusts her from her stand; And with drawne sword the trembling Goddesse frights. When vowed faith with her faire hand shee plights; And grac't him with her nuptiall bed : who then Demands in dowry his transfigur'd men. Sprinkled with bitter iuyce, her wand reuerst Aboue our crownes, and charmes with charmers dispers The more she chants, we grow the more vpright, Our briftles shed, our clouen feet vnite, Shoulders and armes possesse their former grace. With teares our weeping Generall we imbrace, And hang about his necke: nor scarce a word Breathes through our lips, but such as thankes afford. From hence our passe was for a yeere deferr'd; In that long time much faw I, and much heard: Of which, a Maid (one of the foure, prepar'd For facred feruice) closely this declar'd. For while my Chilefe with Circe sports alone, Shee shew'd a youthfull Image of white stone Clos'd in a Shrine, with crownes imbellished; Who bare a Wood-pecker vpon his head. Demanding whose it was, why placed there, Why he that Bird vpon his fummit bare? I will, reply'd she, ô Macareus, tell In this my Mistris power: observe me well. Saturnian Picus in Aufonia raign'd, Who generous horses for the battle train'd. His forme, fuch as you fee: whom had you knowne, You would have ra'ne this feature for his owne. His minde as beautifull. Nor yet could hee Foure Gracian wraftlings in th'Olympicks fee.

The Dryades, in Latian mountaines borne, His lookes attract: nor Nymphs of fountaines scorne To fue for pitie. Those whom Albula, Numicus, Anie, Almo short of way, And headie: Nar fustaine, the shadie Flood Of Farfarus, the Scythian Cynthias woo'd-'nuiron'd marishes, and neighbouring lakes. Yet for one only Nymph the rest for lakes: Who whilome on Mount Palatine, the faire renilia to the two fac'd Ianus bare. The Maid, now marriageable, honoured aurentian Picus with her nuptiall bed. Her beauty admirable: yet more fam'd for artfull fong; and thereof canens nam'd. Her voice the woods and rockes to passion mones; ames saluage beasts, the troubled Rivers smooths, Detaines their hafty course; and, when she sings, he birds ne left the labour of their wings. While her fweet voice coelestiall musicke yeelds; oung Picus followes in Laurentian Fields he faluage Bore, vpon a fiery Steed; arm'd with two darts: clad in a Tyrian weed Vith gold close-buckl'd. Thither also came he daughter of the Sunne; who left her name etaining fields, and on those fruitfull hills er sacred lap with dewie Simples fills. eeing vnseene, his sight her sense amaz'd: he gathered hearbs fell from her as the gaz'd: hose bones a marrow-melting flame inclosed. it when the her distraction had composed; out t'impart her wish, attendancie; id swiftnesse of his horse, accesse denie.

Thou shalt not so escape, said shee, altho' The winds should wing thee; if my selfe I know, If hearbs retaine their powre, if charmes at least My trust deceiue not. Then creates a Beast Without a body, bid to runne before The Kings persuit; and made the ayrie Bore To take a thicket, where no horse could force His barr'd accesse. He leaves his foming horse On foor to follow a deceitfull Shade. With equall hopes? and through the forrest strai'd. New Vowes she straight conceineth, aid implores: And Gods vnknowne with vnknowne charmes adores. Wherewith inur'd t'eclipse the pale-fac't Moone: And cloud her Fathers splendor at high Noone. And now with pitchie fog: obscures the Day, From earth exhal'd, His Guard mistake their way In that deceitfull Night, and from him straid. When she, the time and place befitting said:

By those faire eyes, which have inthralled mine;
And by that all-alluring face of thine,
Which makes a Goddesse sue; asswage the fire
By thee incenst; and take vnto thy Site
The all-illuminating Sunne: nor prove

Hard-hearted to Titanian Circes love.

Her, and her prayers, despis'd; What ere thou art, I am not thine, said he: my captine heart Another holds; and may she hold it long. Nor will I with externall Venus wrong Our nuptiall faith, so long as Fate shall gine Life to my veines, and ianus daughter line.

Titania, tempting oft, as oft in vaine;
Thou shalt not scape my vengeance, nor againe

Retui

Returne to Canens. What the wrong'd can doe,
A wronged Louer, and a Woman too;
Thou shalt, said she, by sad experience proue?
For I a woman, wrong'd and wrong'd in loue.
Twice turnes she to the East,, twice to the West;
Thrice toucht him with her wand, three charmes express.
He slyes; at his vnwoated speed admir'd;
I hen saw the feathers which his skinne attir'd:
Who forth with seekes the woods; and angry still,
Hard okes assailes, and wounds them with his bill.
His wings the purple of his cloake assume;

The gold that classes his garment turnes to plume, and now his necke with golden circle chaines:

Of Picus nothing but his name remaines.

The Courtiers Pieus call, and feeke him round bout the fields, that was not to be found. let circe finde (for now the day grew faire, The Sunne and Winds fet free to clenfe the aire ) Ind charge her with true crimes: their King demand With threatning lookes, and weapons in their hand. hee sprinckles them with juyce of wicked might. rom Erebus and Chaos coniuces Night, With all her Gods; and Hecate intreates Vith tedious mumblings. Woods for sake their seates, rees pale their leaues, Hearbes blush with drops of gore. arth grones, dogs howle, rockes horcely feeme to rore: pon the tainted ground blacke Serpents flides ad through the aire vnbodied Spirits glide. righted with terrors, as they trembling fland, hee strokes their wondering faces with her wand: orthwith the shapes of Saluage beasts inuest heir former formes; not one his owne possest.

5

Phabus

Phabus now entring the Tartessian Maine. Sad Canens with her eyes and foule, in vaine Expects her Spouse. Her servants shee excites Torunne about the woods with blazing lights. Who not content to weepe, to teare her haire, And beat her brefts (though these present her care) In haste forsakes her roote; and franticke, strayes Through broad-spred fields. Six nights, as many dayes, Withoutor fleepe, or sustenance, shee fled O're hills and dales, the way which fortune led. Now tir'd with griefe and trauell, Tybris laft Beheld the Nymph: on his coole bankes she cast Her feeble limbes: there weepes, and weeping fung Her forrowes with a foftly warbling tongue. Euen so the dying Swan with low-rais'd breath, Sings her owne exequies before her death. At length her marrow melts with griefes despaire: And by degrees the vanisheth to Aire. Yet still the place doth memorize her fame : Which of the Nymph the Rurall Canens name.

In that long yeere, much, and such deeds as these
I saw and heard. Vn-neru'd with restice ease, Againe we put to Sea: by Circe told
Of our hard passage, and the manifold
Disasters to ensue, I grew asraid
(I must confesse) and here ariting, staid.

Macareus ends. Caieta Vrne-inclos'd,
This verse had on her marble tombe impos'd.
Here, with due fires, my pious Nurse-child mee
Caieta burnt; from Gracian fires set free,

They loofe their cables from the graffie strand;

Auoiding Cixies guilefull palace, stand

For those tall groues, where Tybris, darke with shades, In Tirrhen Seas his fandy streames volades. The throne of Faunus sonne, the Latian starre auinia gaine; but not without a warre. Narre with a furious Nation is commenft; iterne Turnus for his promist wife incenst: While all Hetruria to Latium swarmes: Hard victory long fought with penfiue armes. To get Recrutes from forren States they try Nor Troians, nor Rutslians want supply. Vor to Enanders towne Aneas went n vaine: though vainly Venulus was fent o banisht Diemeds Citie, late immut'd: hose fields Lapygian Daumus had insur'd o him in dowre. When Venulus had done lis embassie to Tydeus warlike sonne: he Prince excus'd his aid; as loth to draw he subjects of his aged father in law 'vnnecessary warre: that none remaine If his to arme. Left you should thinke I faine; hough repetition Sorrow renouates; et, while I fuffer, heare the worst of fates. After that Pergamus our prey became, nd lofty Ilium fed the Grecian flame: Virgin, for a Virgins rape, let fall er Vengeance, to Oileus due, on all. cattered on faithlesse Seas with furious stormes. le, wretched Gracians, suffer'd all the formes f horror: lightning, night, showres, the of skies, f Seas, and dire Capbarean cruckies. o abridge the story of fo fad a fate; ow Priam would have pitied our estate.

Yet Pallas fnatcht me from the swallowing Maine; Then from my vngratefull Country chac't againe. For Venus, mindfull of her ancient wound, New woes inflicts. Much on the vast profound, Much suffering in terrestrial conflicts, I Oft call'd them happy, whom the injury Of publike tempests, and importunate Caphareus drown'd: and now enui'd their fate. The work indur'd; with feas and battles tyr'd, My men an end of their long toyle defir'd. But Acren, full of fire, and fiercer made By vsuall flaughters: What remaines (he faid) O mates, which now our patience would eschue? Though willing, what can Cytherea doe More than sh'hath done? when worse mishaps affright, Then prayers availe: but when Mif-fortunes spight Her worst inflicts, then feare is of no vie: And height of ills, securitie produce. Let Venus heare: although the hate vs all, ( As all the hates that ferue our Generall) Yet let vs all despise her emptie hate; Whose Powre hath made us so unfortunate.

Pleuronion Acmon angry Venus stung:
Reuenge reniuing with his lauish tongue.
Few like his words the most seuerely chid
His tongues excesse. About to have reply'd,
His speech, and path of speech, at once grew small,
His haire converts to plume; plumes cover all
His necke, backetes wine: larger feathers spring grom his rough cames, and now his elbowes wing.
His feet divide to toes, had horne extends

From his chang'd face, and in a bill descends,

Rhitens

Rhetenor, Nicteus, Lycus, Abas, Ide, Admire! and in their admiration try'd Like destiny. Most of my Souldiers grew Forthwith new Fowle; and round about vs flew. If you inquire, what shape their owne va-mans; They are not, yet are like to filuer Swans. Thele barren fields, with this poore remnant, I, As sonne in law to Dannus, scarce inioy.

Thus farre Oenides. Venulus forfakes Tydides Kingdome: by Puteo'i takes His way, and through Mesapia: there survaid A Caue, inuiron'd with a syluan shade, Distilling streames. By halfe-goat Pan possest: Which erst the Wood-nymphs with their beauties blest. They terrified at first with sudden dread, From home bred Apulus, the shepheard, fled. Straight, taking heart, despised his persuit: And danced with a measure-keeping foot. He scoffes: their motion clowne-like imitates: Nor only raileth, but obscenely prates. Nor cealeth, till a tree inuefts his throte; A tree whose berries his behaulour note: An olive wilde, which bitter fruit affords, Becomes; dif-seasned with his bitter words.

Th'Embassador returnes without the sought Etolian succours: the Rutulians fought Gainst foes and fortune; of that hope depriu'd: Whole streames of bloud from mutuall wounds deriu'd. Loe, fire-brands to the Nauie Turnus beares : and what escaped drowning, burning feares. Pitch, rozen, and like ready food for fire, Now Valcan feed : the hungrie flames afpire Vu Vp to the failes along the lofty mast; And catch the yards, with curling smoke embrac't, But when the Mother of the Gods beheld Those blazing Pines, from top of Ida feld; Lowd Shalmes and Cymballs viher'd her repaire: Who, drawne by bridled Lions through the aire, Thus faid: Thy wicked hands to small effect, O Turnus violate, what we protect. Nor shall the greedy fire a part of those Tall Woods devoure, which shelter our repose. With that the thunders, powring downe amaine Thicke stormes of skipping haile, and clouds of raine, The Astrean Sonnes in swift concursions joyne; Toffing the troubled aire, and Neptunes brine. One shee impleyes, whose speed the rest out-strips; That brake the Cables of the Phygian Ships, And draue them under the high-swelling Flood. The timber fostens, flesh proceeds from wood, The crooked Sterr & to heads and faces growes, The Oares to lw. aming legs, fine feet and toes; What were their holds, to ribbed fides are growne, The lengthfull keele presenting the back-bone; The yards to armes, to haire the tackling grew: As formerly, so now, their colour blew. And they, but lately of the floods afraid; Now in the flouds, with virgin pastime, plaid. These Sea-nymphs, borne on mountaines, celebrate The Seas, forgetfull of their former state. Yet weighing, what themselues so oft endur'd On high-wrought waves, oft finking fhips fecur'd; Excepting such, as Gracians carry : those They hate, memorious of the Troian moes.

Who saw Visses thips in surges queld with pleased eyes, with pleased eyes beheld alkinous ship, in swiftnesse next to none, Vnmoueable; the wood transform'd to stone.

'Twas thought this wondrous prodigie would fright. The Rutuli, and make them ceafe from fight. Both parts perfift, both have their Godsto friend; And Valour no leffe porent: nor contend Now for Lauinia, for Latinus crowne, Nor dotall Kingdome; but for faire renowne: Afham'd to lay their brufed armes afide, Till death or conquest had the quarrell tride. Venus her sonne victorious sees at length. Great Turnus stell; strong Ardea falls, of streng hiwhile Turnus stood, det out d by barbarous stame, In dying cinders buried. From the same A Fowle, vnknowne to former ages, springs;

A Fowle, vnknowne to former ages, springs; And fannes the ashes with her houering wings. Pale colour, leanenesse, shreeking sounds of woe, The image of a captine City show.

Who also still the Cities name retaines:

And with felfe-beating wings of Fate complaines.

And now Eneas vertues terminate
The wrath of Gods, and Iuno's ancient hate.
An opulent foundation having laid
For young Iuius, by his merit made
Now fit for Heaven: the Powre, who rules in Loue
The Gods folicits; then, imbracing Ioue:

O Father, neuer yet to me vinkinge; Now & inlarge the bountie of thy minde. A God-head, meane, so it a God-head be, Eneas give; that art to him by mo A Grand-father: th'vn-amiable realmes Suffice it once t'haueseene, and Sygian streames.

The Gods agree; nor Iuno's lookes diffent. Who with a chearefull freenesse forward bene. Then love; He well deserves a Deity: Thy fure, faire Daughter, to thy wish enioy. Shee, joyfull, thankes returnes: and through the aire, Drawne by her youked Doues, lights on the bare Laurentian shores; where smooth Numicius creepes Through whispering reedes into the neighbour Deepes. Who kids him from Æneas wash away All vnto death obnoxious, and conuay It silently to Seas. The horned Flood Obeyes; and what fubfifts by mortall food, With water purg'd, and only left behinde His better parts. His mother they refinde Anoints with facred odors, and his lips In Nectar, mingled with Ambrefia, dips; So deifi'd: whom Indiges Rome calls; Tonour'd with altars, fhrines, and festivalls. Wh! Wo-nam'd Ascan us Latium then obey d, The Alba: next, the scepter Sylvius swai'd. And crowne. Him Epitus, renown'd by Fame, Succeeds. Then Capys. Capetus, his Son Succeeded him. Next Tiberine begun His raigne: who, drown'd in Thuscan waters; gaue Those streames his name: who Remulus got, and braue-Sould Acrota. But Remulus was flaine With thunder; who the Thunderer durst faine. More moderate Acrota refign'd his throne To Auenime: vpon the Mount whereonHe raign'd, intomb'd; which yet his name retaines, Ouer the Palatines next Procas raignes, Pomona flourisht in those times of case: Of all the Latian Hamadryades, None fauitfull Hort-yards held in more repute; Or tooke more care to propagate their fruit. Thereof so nam'd. Nor streames, nor shadie groves, But trees producing generous burdens loues. Her hand a hooke, and not a jauelin bare: Now prunes luxurious twigs, and boughs that dare Transcend their bounds; now flits the parke, the bud Inferts; inforc't to nurse an others brood. Nor fuffers them to fuffer thirst, but brings To moisture-sucking roets, soft-sliding Springs. Such her delight, her care. No thoughts extend To lour s vnknowne defires: yet to defend Her selfe from rapefull Rurals, round about Her Horr-yard walls; t'auoid, and keepe them out. What left the skipping Satyrs vn-affai'd; Rude Pan, whose hornes Pine-brisiled garlands shade; Silenus, still more youthfull than his yeares; Or he who theeues with hooke, and member feares, To taste her sweetnesse? but farre more than all Vertumnus loues; yet were his hopes as small. How often, like a painfull Reaper, came, Laden with weighty sheafes; and seem'd the same! Oft wreathes of new mow'd graffe his browes array; As though then excercis'd in making hay. A gode now in his hardned hands he beares, And newly seemes to have vnyok't his Steeres. Oft Vines and fruit-trees with a pruning hooke Corrects, and dreffes; oft a lather tooke

To gather fruit: now with his crooked skeine A Souldier feemes; an Angler with his cane: And various figures daily multiplies To winne accesse, and please his longing eyes. Now, with a staffe, an old-wife counterfeits: On hory haire, a painted miter fets. The Hort yard entering, admires the faire And pleasant fruits: So much, said he, more rare Then all the Nymphs whom Albula enioy, Haile spotlesse flowre of Maiden chastity: Andkist the prais'd. Nor did the Virgin know, (So innocent) that old wives kist not so. Then, fitting on a banke, observeth how The pregnant boughs with Autums burthen bow. Hard by, an Elme with purple clusters thin'd: This plaifing, with the Vine fo closely ioyn'd;

Yer, faid he, if this Elme should grow alone. Except for shade, it would be priz'd by none :: And so this Vine, in amorous foldings wound, If but dif-lovn'd, would creepe vpon the ground. Yet art not thou by fuch examples led: But shun'st the pleasures of a happy bed. Nor would thou wouldft: not Helen was fo fought, Nor the for whom the luftfull Centaures fought, As thou shouldst be; no nor the wife of bold. And timorous Vhilles. Yet, behold Though thou averse to all, and alleschue; A thouland men, Gods, demi-gods, persue Thy constant scorne; and every deathlesse Powre Which Alba's high and shady hils imbowre. But thou, if wife, if thou'lt well married be: Or an old woman trust, who credit me, ffects thee more than all the reft, refuse hese common wooers, and Vertumnus choose. Accept me for his gage; fince so well none an knowhim; by himfelfe not better knowne. le is no wanderer, her's his delight: Nor loues, like common louers, at first sight. Thou art the first, so thou the last shalt be: Is life he onely dedicates to thee. Besides his youth perpetuall; excellent Hisbeaury; and all shapes can represent. Wish what you will, what ever hath a name; such shall you see him. Your delights the same: The first-fruits of your Hort-yard are his due; Which ioyfully he still accepts from you. But neither what these pregnant trees produce He now defires, nor herbs of pleafant inyce: Nor ought, but onely You. O pity take! And what I speake, suppose Vertumnus spake. Reuengefull Gods, Idalia, still seuere To fuch as flight her, and Ramnusia feare. The more to fright you from fo foule a crime, Receive (fince much I know from aged Time) A ftory, generally through Cyprus knowne: To mollifie a heart more nard than stone. Ipbio, of humble birth, by chance did view The high-borne Anaxarete, who drew Herbloud from Tencer. Seeing her, his eyes Extracts a fire, wherein his botome fries. Long strugling, when no reason could reclaime His fury, to her house the Suppliant came. Now to her Nurse his wretched love displaid ; And by her tofter'd hopes implor'd her aid:

Now humbly fues to some of most repute
In her assection, to prefer his suit.
Sad letters oft his desperate passions beares:
Oft myrtle garlands, sprinkled with his teares,
Hangs on the posts: the stonic threshold lades
With his soft sides, and rigid doores vp-braids.
But she more cruell than the seas, imbroyl'd
With rising stormes; more hard than iron, boyl'd
In sire-red sureaces; or rooted rocks;
Disdaines the louer, and his passion mocks:
Who to her forward deeds addes bitter words
Of no lesse forme; nor hope to loue assorbing to long attended.
Impatient of his torment, and her hate;
These words, his last, he ytters ather gate.

O Anaxerete, thou hast o're come! Nor shall my life be longer wearisome To thy disdaine. Triumph, ô too vnkind! Sing Peans, and thy browes with laurell bind. Thou hast o're-come; loe, willingly I die: Proceed, and celebrate thy cruellioy. Yet is there something in me, ne're the leffe, That thou wile raifpe; and my deferts confesse, Thinke how my loue my heart no sooner left Then life it felfe: of both at once bereft. Nor rumor, but euen I will death present In such a forme, as shall thy pride content. But O you Gods, if you our actions fee (This onely I implose) remember me! Let after ages celebrate my name : And what you take from life, afford to fame.

Then heaves his meger armes and watry eyes
To those knowne posts, oft crown'd with wreaths, and tye halter to the top. Such wreather, he faid, Best please; hard-hearted, and inhumane Maid! Then turning toward her, he forward fprung: When by the neck th'vnhappy louer hung. Strucke by his sprawling feet, wide open flies The founding wicket; and the deed descries-The servants shreeke; the Vainely raised bore l'his mothers house; his father dead before. His breathleffe corps she in her bosome plac't; And in her armes his key-cold limbs imbrac't. Lamenting long, as wofull parents vie; And having paid a wofull mothers dues; The mournfull Funerall through the City led: And to prepared fires conveyes the dead. This forrowfull Procession passing by Her house, which bordering on the way, their cry To th'eares of Anaxarete arrives: Whom now sterne Nemelis to ruine drives Wee'l see, said she, these sad solemniries: and forth-with to the lofty window highes, When feeing Iphis on his fatall bed; Her eyes grew stiffe; bloud from her visage fled, Vsurpt by palenesse. Stritting to retire, Her feet fluck fast; nor could to her defire Divert her looks: for now her flony heart it selfe dilated into euery part. This Salamis yet keeps, to cleere your doubt, n Venus temple; call'd, the Looker-out. Inform'd by this, ô louely Nymph, decline Thy former pride, and to thy louer joyne.

Ľ

so may thy fruits furnine the Vernall frost: Nor after by the rapefull winds be tost.

When

When this the God, who can all shapes indue, Had said in vaine; againe himselfe he grew: Th'abiliments of heatlesse Age depos'd.
And such himselfe vnto the Nymph disclos'd, As when the Sunne, subduing with his reyes. The mussling clouds, his golden brow displaies. Who force prepares: of force there was noneed; Strucke with his beauty, mutually they bleed.

Vniust Amulius next th' Ausonian State Py strength vsurpt. The nephewes to the late Deposed Numitor, him re-inthrone: Who Rome, in Pales Feafts, immur'd with stone. Now Tatius leades the Sabine Sires to warre. Tarpcia's hands her fathers gates vnbarre: To death with armelets prest; her treasons meed. The Sabine Sires like filent Wolves proceed T'inuade their fleeping sonnes, and seeke to seaze Vpon their gates; barr'd by Iliades. One Inno opens: though no noise at all The hinges made; yet by the barres lowd fall Descry'd by Venus: who had put it too; But Gods may not, what Gods have done, vndoe. Aufonian Nymphs the places bordering To lanus held, inchased with a spring. Their aid sh'implores. The Nymphs could not deny A fute so just, but all their flouds vntie. As yet the Fanc of lanus open stood: Nor was their way impeached by the flood. Beneath the fruitfull spring they sulphure turne; Whose hollow reines with blacke bitumen burne: Vith these the vapours penetrate below;

'nd waters, late as cold as Alpin fnew,

The

he fire it selfe in feruour dare prouoke: low both the posts with flagrant moisture smoke. 'hele new-rais'd streames the Sabine Powre exclude, ill Marshis Souldiers had their armes indu'd.

ly Romulus then in Batalia led:

The Roman fields the flaughtred Sabines spred; heir owne the Romans: Fathers, Sonnes in law, Vith wicked steele, bloud from each other draw. It length conclude a peace; nor would contend Into the last. Two Kings one throne ascend Vith equalirule. But noble Tatius flaine, foth Nations under Romulus remaine. When Mars laid by his shining caske; and then Thus spake vntothe Sire of Gods, and men.

Now, Father, is the time (fince Rome is growne o fuch a greatnesse, and depends on One) To put in act thy neuer-failing word; Ind Remulus a heavenly throne afford. lou, in a synod of the Gods, profest Which still I carry in my thankfull brest) That one of mine (this o now ratifie!) hould be aduanc't vnto the starry skie.

love condescends: with clouds the day benights; Ind with flame-winged thunder earth affrights. Mars, at the figne of his affumption, eanes on his lance, and strongly vaults vpon lis bloudy Chariot; lashes his hot horses With founding whips, and their full speed inforces: Who, scouring downe the ayrie region, staid In faire mount Palatine, obscur'd with shade: There Romulus assumeth from his Throne, Vn-kinglike rendering justice to his owne.

Rapt through the aire, his mortall members wafte, Like melting Bullets by a Slinger cast: More heavenly faire, more fit for lofty shrines; Our great and scalet-clad Quirinus shines.

Then Iuno to the sad Herstia
(Lost in her sorrow) by a crooked way
Sent Iris to deliver this Command.
Star of the Latian, of the Sabine land;
Thy sexes glory: worthy then the vow
Of such a husband, of Quirinus now;
Suppresse thy teares. If thy desire to see
Thy husband so exceed, then follow mee
Vnto those woods, which on mount Querin spring;
And shade the temple of the Roman King.

Iris obayes: and by her painted Bow
Downe-sliding, so much lets Hersilia know.
When she, scarce listing up her modest eyes:
O Goddesse (which of all the Deitics
I know not; sure a Goddesse) thou elecrelight,
Conduct me, o conduct me to the sight
Of my deare Lord: which when the Fates shall shew,
They heauen on me, with all the gists, bestow.
Then, with Thaumanties entering the high
Annulian Hills, a Star shot from the Skie,
Whose golden beames instant of Hersilia's haire;
When both together mount th'enlightned Aire.
The Builder of the Roman City tooke
Her in his armes, and forth-with chang'd her looke:
To whom the name of Ora he assign'd.

This Goddeffe now is to Quirinus ioyn'd.

OVID'S

OVID'S

METAMORPHOSIS:

The Fiftcenth Booke.

THE ARGUMENT.

B Lacke Stones consert to White. Pythagoras In Ilium's lings in warre Euphoi bus was. Of transmigration, of the change of shings, And strange efficis, the learned Samian sings. Recur'd Hippolytus u desiste; Whom safer Age, and name of Virbius bide. Egeria thaves into a Spring. From Earth Trophetich Tages takes his wondrous birth. A Speare a Tree. Grave Cippus vertues shings The rownes, bu Hornes present. Apollo's San Assumes a Serpeus shape. The Soule of Warre, Great Casar, shings becomes a Blaying Starre, Ranewhile, a man is fought that might fustaine So great a butthen, and succeed the raigne Of such a King; when true-foreshewing Fame To God-like Numa destinates the same. Ie, with his Sabine rites vnsatissid, To greater things his able mind applied in Natures search. Inticed with these cares, Ie leaues his countries cures, and repaires

To Croton's City: askes, what Gresian hand Those walls erected on Italian land? One of the Natiues, not ynknowing old, Who much had heard and seene, this story told. loues sonne, inrich't with his Iberian prey, Came from the Ocean to Lacinia With happy steps: who, while his cattle fed Vpon the tender clouer, entered Heroick Croton's roofe; a welcome Guest: And his long trauell recreates with rest. Who faid, departing; In the following age A City here shall stand. A true presage. There was one Mysilus, Argolian Alemons issue; in those times, no man More by the Gods affected. He, who beares The dreadfull Club, to him in sleepe appeares; And faid: Begon, thy countries bounds for fake; To stony Afarus thy journey take. And threatens vengeance if he dif-obay. The God and Sleepe together flew away. He, rifing, on the Vision meditates: Which in his doubtfull foule he long debates. The God commands; the Law forbids to goe: Death due to such as left their Country fo. Cleare Sol in feas his radiant fore-head vail'd. Swart Night her browes exalts, with starres impal'd; The felfe same God the same command repeats: And greater plagues to disobedience threats. Afraid, he now prepares to change his owne For forreine feats. This through the City blowne; Accus'd for breach of lawes, arraign'd, and try'd; They proue the fact, not by himselfe deny'd.

lis hands and eyes then lifting to the skie: I thou, whom twice Six Labours deifie, Iffift, that art the author of my crime! White stones and blacke they vs'd in former time: The white acquit, the blacke the pris'nor caft: And in fuch fort this heavy sentence past. Blacke stones all threw into the fatall Vrne: but all to white, turn'd out to number, turne, Thus by Aleides powre the sad Decree Was strangely chang'd, and Mycilus fer free. Who, thanking Amphitryoniades, With a full fore-wind croft th' 16 pian Seas. acedemonian Tarentum past, faire Sybaris, Neathus running fast By Salentinum, Thuriz's crooked Bay, ligh Temelis, and strong lapygia: scarce fearthing all that shores sea-beaten bound. The fatall mouth of Æ farus out-found. A Tombe, hard by, the facred bones inclos'd Of famous Croton: here, as erft impos'd, Alemons sonne erects his City walls: Which of th'intombed he Crotona calls. Of this Originall, this City boafts: Built by a Grecian on Italian coafts. Here dwelt a Samian, who at once did flie From Samos, Lords, and hated Tyrannie: referring voluntary banishment. Though farre from Heaven, his mind's divine ascent Drew neere the Gods: what natures selfe denies To humane Sight, he faw with his Soules eyes. Illapprehended in his ample breft, and studious cares; his knowledge he profest

To filent and admiring men: who taught The Worlds or win ill, past humane thought: What nature was, what God: the cause of things; From whence the Snow, fi 6 whence the lightning spring Whether love thunder, or the winds that rake The breaking Clouds: what caus'd the Earth to quake; What course the Starres obseru'd; what e're lay hid From vulgar sense: and first of all forbid With flaughtred creatures to defile our boords, In such, though vnbeleeu'd; yet learned Words. Forbeare your selues, ô Mortals, to pollute With wicked food : corne is there; generous fruit Oppresse their boughs; plump grapes their Vines attire There are sweet hearbs, and sauory roots, which fire May mollifie; milke, honey redolent With flowres of Thime, thy pallat to content. The prodigall Earth abounds with gentle food; Affording banquets without death or blood. Brute beafts with flesh their rau'nous hunger cloy: And yet not all; in pastures horses ioy: So flocks and heards. But those whom Nature hath Indu'd with cruelty, and faluage wrath (Wolues, Beares, Armenian Tigers, Lions) in Hot bloud delight How horrible a Sin, That entrailes bleeding entrailes should intombe! That greedy flesh, by flesh should fat become! While by the Liuers death the Liuing liues! Of all, which Earth, our wealthy mother, gives; Can nothing please, valesse thy teeth thou imbrue In wounds, and dire Cyclopean fare renue? Nor fatiate the wilde voracitie Df thy rude panch, except an other die?

ut that old Age, that innocent estate, thich we the Golden call; was fortunate hearbs, and fruits, her lips with bloud vndy'd. hen Fowle through aire their wings in fafety ply'da he Hare, then feareleffe, wandred o're the plaine; for Fishby their credulity were ta'ne. lot treacherous, nor fearing treacherie, Il liu'd secure. When he, who did enuic What God so e're it was) those harmlesse cates nd cramb'd his guts with flesh; set ope the gates o cruell Crimes. First, Slaughter without harme must confesse) to Piety, did warme Which might fuffice) the recking steele in blood ffaluage beafts, which made our lives their food; hough kil'd; not to be eaten. Sinne now more idacious; the first facrifice, the Bore as thought to merit death; who, bladed corne -rooting left the husband-man forlorne ine-brouzing Gotes at Bacchus altar flaine. d his reuenge: in both, their guilt their bane. u Sheep, what ill did you? a gentle beaft, hose vdders swell with Nectar, borne t'inuest posed man with your soft wooll; and are iue, then dead, more profitable farre. what the Oxe? a creature without guile, innocent, so simple; borne for toile. most vngratefull is, deserving ill ie gift of corne; that can vnyoke, then kill shusband-man: that necke with axe to wound feruice gall'd, that had the stubborne ground often til'd; fo many crops brought in. tnot contest therewith, t'ascribe the finne

Toguiltleffe Gods: as if the Powres on high In death of labour-bearing oxen ioy. A spotlesse sacrifice, faire behold, ('Tis death to please) with ribands trickt, and gold, Stands at the Altar, hearing prayers vnknowne: And fees the meale vpon his fore-head throwne, Got by his toile: the knife smear'd in his gore, By fortune in the laver scene before. The entrailes, from the panting body rent, Forth-with they search; to know the Gods intent. Whence springs so dire an appetite in man To interdicted food? O Mortals, can, Or dare you feed on flesh? henceforth forbeare I you intreat, and to my words give eare: When limbs of flaughtred Beeues become your meat: Then thinke, and know, that you your Scruants eat.

Phabus inspires; his Spirit we obay:
My Delphos, heauen it selfe, I will display:
The Oracle of that great power vnfold:
And sing what long lay hid; what none of old
Could apprehend. I long to walke among
The losty starces: dull earth despised, I long
To backe the clouds; to sit on Atlas crowne:
And from that hight on erring men looke downe
Th. treason want: those thus to animate
That seare to die; t'vnfold the booke of Fate.

O You, whom horrors of cold death affright;
Why feare you Stix, vaine names, and endlesse Night
The dreames of Poets, and fain'd miseries
Of forged Hell? whether last-flames surprise,
Or Age denoure your bodies; they nor grieue,
Nor suffer paines. Our Soules for euer line;

let euermore their ancient houses leave o liue in new; which them, as Guests, receive. n Troin warres, I (I remember well) nohorbus was, Panthous fonne; and fell y Menelaus lance : my shield againe Argos late I faw, in Iuno's Fane. Ill alter, nothing finally decayes: lither and thither still the Spirit strayes; quest to all bodies: out of beafts it flies o men, from men to beafts; and neuer dies. spliant wax each new impression takes; ixt to no forme, but still the old for fakes; et it the same: so Soules the same abide, hough various figures there reception hide. hen lest thy greedy belly should destroy prophesie) depressed Piety, orbeare t'expulse thy kindreds Ghosts with food y death procur'd; nor nourish blood with blood. Since on so vast a sea, my saile's vnfurl'd, nd stretcht to rising winds; in all the World here's nothing permanent; all ebbe and flow: ach image form'd to wander to and fro. uen Time, with restlesse motion, slides away ike living streames: nor can swift Rivers stay, or light-heel'd Howers. As billow billow drives, riven by the following; as the next arrives o chace the former: times fo five, perfue once each other; and are ever new. hat was before, is not; what was not, is; lin a moment change from that to this. e; how the Night on Light extends her shades: e, how the Light the gloomy Night inuades. The

Nor such Heauens hew, when Mid-night crown's Repose As when bright Lucifer his taper showes: Yet changing, when the Harbinger of Day Th'inlightned World resignes to Phabus sway. His raised Shield, earths shaddowes scarcely fled. Lookes ruddy; and low-finking, lookes as red: Yet bright at Noone; because that purer skie Doth farre from Earth, and her contagion flie. Nor can Night-wandring Dian's wavering light Be ever equall, or the fame: this night Leffe than the following, if her hornes the fill; If the contract her Circle, greater still. Doth not the image of our age appeare In the successive quarters of the Yeare? The Spring-tide, tender; fucking Infancie Resembling: then the inycefull blade sprouts high; Though tender, weake; yet hope to Plough-men yeelds. All things then flourish: flowers the gaudy fields With colours paint : no vertue yet in leaves. Then following Summer greater strength receives: A lufty Youth; no age more firength acquires, More fruitfull, or more burning in defires. Maturer Autumne, heat of Youth alaid, The fober meane twixt youth and age, more flaid And temperate, in Summers waine repaires: His reuerend remples sprinckled with gray haires. Then comes old Winter, void of all delight, With trembling fleps: his head or bal'd, or white. So change our bodies without rest or stay: What we were yester-day, nor what to day, Shall be to morrow. Once alone of men I hesceds and hope; the wombe our mansion: when find Nature shew'dher cunning; not content That our vext bodies should be longer pent n mothers stretched entrailes, forth-withbare hem from that prison, to the open aire. Ve strengthlesselye, when first of light posses; traight creepe vpon all foure, much like a beaft : hen, staggering with weake nerues, stand by degrees, nd by some stay support our feeble knees: low, lufty, swiftly run. Youth quickly spent, nd those our middle times, incontinent Ve finke in fetting Aze: this last deuoures he former, and dimolisheth their powres. 'ld Milo wept, when he his armes beheld, 'hich late the strongest beast in strength excel'd, g, as Akides brawnes, in flaggie hide ow hanging by flacke finewes: Helen cry'd hen she beheld her wrinkles in her Glasse; id asks her felfe, why she twice rauisht was. ill-eating Time, and thou ô envious Age; I ruinate: diminisht by the rage your denouring teeth, All that have breath onfume, and languish by a lingring death. or can these Elements stand at a stay: t by exchanging alter enery day. 'eternall world foure bodies comprehends, gendring all. The heavy Earth descends, Water, clog'd with weight: two light, aspire, prest by none; pure Aireand purer Fire. d though they have their severall sites; yet all these are made, to these agains they fall. Solued Earth to Water rarifies: Aire extenumed Watersrife;

Kir

The Aire, when it it selfe againe refines. To elementall Fire extracted, shines. They in like order backe againe repaire: The groffer Fire condenseth into Aire; Aire, into water: Water thickning, then Growes folid, and converts to Earth againe. None holds his owne : for Nature euer ioyes In change, and with newformes the old supplies, In all the world not any perish quite: But onely are in various habits dight. For; to begin to be, what we before Were not, is to be borne; to dye, no more Than ceasing to be such: although the frame Be changeable, the substance is the same. For nothing long continues in one mold. You Ages, you to Silver grew from Gold; To Braffe from Silver; and to Yr'ne from Braffe, Even places oft fuch change of fortunes paffe: Where once was folid land, Seas haue I feene; And folid land where once deepe Seas have beene. Shels, far from Seas, like quarries in the ground; And anchors have on mountaine tops beene found. Torrents have made a valley of a plaine; High hils by deluges borne to the Maine. Deepe standing lakes suck't dry by thirsy fand; And on late thirsty earth now lakes doe stand. Here Nature, in her changes manifold, Sends forth new fountaines; there shuts vp the old. Streames, with impetuous earth-quakes, heretofore Haue broken forth; or funke, and run no more. So Lycas, swallowed by the yawning Earth, Takes in an other world his fecond birth.

o Erasinus, now conceales, now yeelds lis rifing waters to Argolian fields. Ind Mysus, hating his first head, and brayes, aicus nam'd, else-where his streame displayes. Coole Amasenus, watering Sicily, Now flowes; now spring-lockt, leaves his channell dry. 1en formerly drunke of Anigrus streames: lot to be drunke (if any thing but dreames he Poets tell) fince Centaures therein washt heir wounded limbs, by Alcides arrowes gasht. o Hypanis, deriu'd from Scythian Hills, ong sweet, with bitter streames his channell fills, Intilia, Tyrus, and Agyptian Phare, he flouds imbrac't : yet now no llands are. h'old Colon knew Leucadia Continent: Vhich now the labouring furges circumuent. o Zancle once on Italie confin'd; 'ill interposing waves their bounds dis-joyn'd. Bura and Helice (Gracian townes) ou seeke; behold, the Sea their glory drownes: hose buildings, and declined walls, below h'ambitious floud as yet the Sailers show. Hill by Pitthean Tragen mounts, vncrown'd ith fyluan shades, which once was levell ground. or furious winds (a story to admire!) ent in blinde cauernes, strugling to expire; nd vainly feeking to inioy th'extent f freer aire, the prison wanting vent; i'vnpassable tuffe earth inflated fo, when with swelling breath we bladders blow. ie tumor of the place remained still, time growne follid, like a lofty hill,

To speake a little more of many things Both heard and knowne: New habits fundiy Springs Now give, now take. Horn'd Hammons Well at Noone Is cold; hot at Sun-rise, and setting Sun. Wood, put in bubling Arbamas then fires; When farthest from the Sun the Moone retires. Ciconian streames congeale his guts to stone That thereof drinkes: and what therein is throwne. crathis, and Sybaris (from your mountaines rold) Colour the haire like Amber, or pure gold. Some fountaines of a more prodigious kind, Not onely change the body but the mind. Who hath not heard of obscene Salmacis? Of th' Athiopian Lake? who drinke of this, Runne forth- with mad: or if their wits they keepe, Fill suddenly into a deadly sleepe. Who ar Clitorius Fountaine thirst remoue: Loath wine, and abstinent, meere water loue. Whether it by antipathie expell Defire of wine; or (as the Natives tell) Melampus hauing with his herbs and charmes Snatcht Prætus franticke daughters from the harmes Of entred Furies, their wit's physicke cast Into this fpring; infufing fuch diftaft. With ftreames, to these oppos'd Lyncestus flowes: They reele, as drunke, who drinke too much of those. A Lake in faire Arcadia stands, of old Call'd Pheneus; suspected, as two-fold: Feare, and forbeare, to drinke thereof by night: By night vnwholfome, wholfome by day-light. So other lakes and streames have other powre. Ortygia floted once; fixt at this houre:

One

Ince Argofear'd the jufling Cyanes; Vhich rooted now, refult both winds and feas, 33 837 for Ætna, burning with imbowel'd fire, hall euer, or did alwayes, flames expire. or whether Tellus be an Animall, laue lungs, and mouthes that fmoking flames exhale : ler organs alter, when her motions close hefe yawning passages, and open those. )r whether winds, in caues impris ned raue; it states iffling the stones, and minerals which have the he feed of fire, inkindled with their rage: . half grant les hey then extinguish when the winds affwage. or if Bitumen doe the fire proueke; or fulpher burning with more fubtill smoke: then Earth that food and oylie nourishment lith drawes, the matter by long feeding spents and mil he hungry fire of sustenance berefr, l-brooking famine, leaves, by being left. 1-1000 Annual 1 Hyperborean Palleneliuc. W Was a server to the server to the People, if to Fame we credit give, ho, diving three times thrice in Tritons lake, of Fowle the feathers and the figure take. he like, they fay, the Scythian Witches doe lith magicke oyles i incredible thoughtrue. we may trust to triall, see you not mall creatures of corrupted flesh begot ? ury your flaughtred Steere (a thing in v(c) nd his corrupted bowels will produce lowre-fucking Bees; who, like their parent flaine. oue labour, fields, and toile in hope of gaine. lorners from buried horfes take their birth. reake off the Crabs bent clawes, and in the earth ) not see . . .

Busy

Bury the rest; a Scorpion without faile From thence will creepe, and menace with his taile. The Catterpillers, who their cop-webs weave On tender leafes (as Hindes from proofe receiue) Convert to poyshous Butterflies in time. Greene Frogs, ingendred by the feed of flime, First without feer, then legs assume; now strong And apt to swimme, their hinder parts more long Then are their former, fram'd to skip add iumpe. The Beares deformed birth is but a lumpe Of living flesh: when licked by the Old, It takes a forme agreeing with the mold. Who fees the Young of honie-bearing Becs Intheir sexangular inclosure, sces Their bodies limb-leffe : these vnformed things In time put forth their feet, and after, wings. The farre-imbellisht Fowle, which Iuno loues, lones Armour-bearer, Cytharea's Doues, And birds of every kinde; did we not know Them hatch't of egges, who would coniecture fo? Some thinke the pith of dead men, Snakes becomes; When their back-bones corrupt in hollow tombs. Yet these from others doe derive their birth. One onely Fowle there is in all the Earth, Call'd by th' Affyrians Phonix, who the waine Of age repaires, and sowes her selfe againe. Nor feeds on graine nor herbs, but on the gumme Of Frankincense, and inycie Amomum. Now, when her life five ages hath fulbl'd; A nest her horned beake and tallons build Vpon the crowner of a trembling Palme: This strew'd with Caffia, Spicknard, precious Balme, bruz'd Cinamon, and Myrrh; thereon she bends ler body, and her age in odors ends. This breeding Corp's a little Phoenix beares: Which is it selfe to live as many yeeres. Frowne strong; that load now able to transferre; ler Cradle, and her parents sepulcher, Deuoutly carries to Hyperions towne: ind on his flamie Altar layes it downe. fthese be wonderfull, admire like strange yana's, who their fex fo often change: hose foodlesse creatures, fed by ayre alone; Vho euery colour, which they touch, put on. he Lynx, first brought from conquered India y vine bound Bacchus, his hot piffe, they fay, ongeales to stone. So Corall, which below he water is a limber weed, doth grow cone-hard, when toucht by aire. But Day will end, nd Phabus panting Steeds to Seas descend, efore my scant oration could persue ll forts of shapes, that change their old for new. or this we fee in all is generall. ome Nations gather strength, and others fall. wy, rich and powrefull, which so proudly stood; har could for ten yeeres spend such streames of blood; or buildings, onely her old ruines showes; or riches, tombs; which flaughtred Sires inclose. aria, Mycene, were of Greece the flowres; ) Cecrop's City, and Amphion's towres: ow glorious Sparta lies vpon the ground; fty Mycene hardly to be found, f OEdipus his Thebes what now remaines. r of Pandien's Athens, but their names?

Now Fame reports that Rome by Dardans Sons Begins to rife, where yellow Tybris runs From fountfull Appenines; and there the great Foundation of so great a fabricke seat. This therefore shall by changing propagate, And give the World a Head. Of such a fate. The Prophets have divin'd. And this of olda, As I remember, Priam's Helen told To sad Aneas, of all hope for lorne, In finking Troy's eclipse. O Goddesse-borne, If our Apollo can prefage at all; Trey, thou in lafety, shall not wholly fall. Both fire and sword shall give thy vertue way :. Flying with thee, thou Ilium shalt conuay; Vntill thou finde a Land as yet ynknowne, To Troy, and thee, more friendly than thy owne. A City built by Phrygians I fore-fee; So great none euer was, is, or shall bee. Others shall make it great: but He, whose birth Springs from Inlus, Soueraigne of the Earth. He, having rul'd the World, shall then ascend Æthereall thrones, and Heaven shall be his End. This, I remember, with propheticke tongue, Sage Helen to divine Ancas fung. We joy to fee our kindreds City grow: The Phrygians happy in their Ouer-throw. But left our heedleffe Steeds too far should range From their proposed coutse; All suffer change: The heavens themselves, what under them is found; Earth, what thereon, or what is under ground. We, of the World a part, fince we as well Haue Soules as Bodies, which in beafts may dwell:

Fo those, which may our parents Soules inuest, Dur brothers, dearest friends, or men at least; Let vs both fafety, and respect afford: Nor heape their bowels on 7 byeftes boord. low illinur'd I to shed the bloud of man How wickedly is he prepar'd, who can Munder cut the throats of calues; and heares The bellowing breeder with relentlesse eares! Or filly kids, which like poore infants cry, Sticke with his knife! or his voracitie Feed with the fowle he fed! o to what ill Are they not prone, who are so bent to kill! Let Oxen till the ground, and die with age: Let Sheepe defend thee from the winters rage: Boats bring their vdders to thy paile. Away With nets, grins, fnares, and arts that doe betray ; Deceiue not birds with lime; nor Deere inclose With terrors; nor thy baits to fish expose. The hurtfull kills yet only kill : nor eas-Defiling flesh; but feed on fitter meat. With other, and the like Philosophy nstructed; Nama, now return'd, was by-nstructed; Nama, now return'd, was by.

Th'intreating Latines crown'd. Taught by his Bride
The Nymph Ageria, by the Muses guide,
Religion institutes; a People rude
And prone to warre, with lawes and peace imbu'd.
His raigne and age resign'd to sunerall;
Plebeians, Roman Dames, Patricians, all
For Numa mourne. His wife the Citie sled;
Hid in Aricia's Vale, the ground her bed,
The woods her shroud, disturbes with grones and crice
Pressent Diana's sacrifice.

How

How oft the Nymphs who haunt that Groue and Lake Reprou'd her teares, and words of comfort spake! How oft the Thesean Heros, Temperate Thy forrow, said! nor onely is thy fate To be deplor'd: on worse mis-fortunes looke; And you will yours with greater patience brooke. Would mine were no example to appease So sad a griefe: yet mine your griefe may ease.

Perhaps y'haue heard of one Hippolytus; By step-dames fraud, and fathers credulous Beleefe deuow'd to death. Admire you may That I am he, if credit, what I fay, Whom Phadra formerly folicited. But vainly to defile my fathers bed. Fearing detection, or in that refus'd; She turnes the crime, and me of her's accus'd. My father, banishing the innocent, Along with me his winged curses sent. Toward Pitthean Trazen me my Chariot bore: And driving now by the Corinthian shore, The smooth Seas swell; a monstrous billow rose, Which, rouling like a mountaine, greater growes; Then, bellowing, at the top afunder rends : When from the breach, breft high, a Bull afcends; Who at his dreadfull mouth and nofthrils spouts Part of the Sea. Feare all my followers routs: But my afflicted minde was all this while Vnterrifi'd; intending my exile. When the hot horses start, erect their eares: With horror rapt, and chased by their feares, O're ragged rocks the tottr'd Chariot drive : While I to curbe their fury vainly strine;

The bits all frotht with fome: with all my might full backe the raignes, nowlying bolt vp-right. Nor had their heady fright my firength o'r-gon; lad not the feruent wheele, which roules vpon The bearing Axel-tree, rusht on a stump: Which brake, and fell afunder with that iump. Throwne from my charior, in the raignes fast-bound, My guts drag'd out alive, my finewes wound bout the stumpe, some of my limbs hal'd thence You might have feene, some hanging in suspence; My breaking bones to cracke, not any whole, While I exhal'd my faint and weary foule. No part of all my parts you could have found That might be knowne: for all was but one wound. Now say, selfe-tortred Nymph, or can, or dare (ou your calamities with ours compare? also saw those realmes, to Day vnknowne: and barh'd my wounds in wauy Phlegeton. lad not Apollo's Son imploi'd the aid Of his great Ait; I with the dead had staid. lut when by potent hearbs, and Peans skill, was restor'd, 'gainst angry Plutos will: eft I, if Icene, might entry have procur'd, 1e, friendly cynthia with a cloud immur'd: and that, though feene, I might be hurt by none; he added age, and left my face vnknowne. Whether in Delis, doubting, or in Creet; Leiecting Creet and Deles as vnmeet. he plac't me here. Nor would I should retains he memory of One by horses slaine: ut said; Hence forward Virbius be thy name hat wer't Hippolytes; though thou the fame.

One of the Leffer Gods, here, in this Groue, I Cynthia serue; preserved by her love.

Apollo's Sifter, pitying her wees,

Turn'd hert'a Spring; whose current euer flowes.

The Nymphs and Amazonian this amaz'd;
No leffe than when the Tyrrhen Plough-man gaz'd;
Vpon the fatall clod, that mou'd alone:
And, for a humane shape, exchang'd its owne.
With infant lips the newly Animate,
Reueal'd the Mysteries of suture fate:
Whom Natines Tages call'd He sust of all
Th'Hetrorians taught to tell what would be fall.

Or when aftonitht Remulus of old Did, on Mount Palatine, his lance behold To flourish with greene leaues: the fixed foot Stood not on fleele, but on a living root, Which, now no weapon, spreading armes displaid;

And gave admirers vnexpected shade.

Or when as Cippus in the liquid glasse.

Beheld his hornes, which his beleefe surpasse.

Who listing oft his fingers to his brow,
Felt what before he saw: nor longer now
Condennes his sight. Return'd with victory;
His eyes and hornes erecting to the skie:

You Gods, what e're these prodigies portend;
If prosperous, he said, let them descend.

On Romans and on Rome: but if they be Ynfortunate, ô let them fall on me!

In Altar then of living turfe creets; he fire feeds with perfumes, pure wine inicets: ind with the panting entrailes of a beaft Vew flaine, consults; to know the Gods beheft. This, when the Tyrrben Augur had beheld, and faw therein endeuours that excell'd, Ithough obscure; he from the facrifice o Cippus hornes converts his steady eyes: laile King, to thee, and to those hornes of thine. his place, and Latian towres, their rule refigne. lelay not; enter thou the yeelding gate: laste, Cippus, haste: such is the Will of Fate. hou shalt be crown'd a King vpon that day: nd safely an eternall Scepter sway. e, starting backe, from Rome diverts his face: nd said; You Gods, farre hence this Omen chace. etter that I in banishment grow old; han me, a King, the Capitoll behold. iding his hornes with leavie ornaments, he people and grave Senarhe convents. hen mounts a Mound, late by the Souldier made, nd praying first (as was the custome) faid; Vnlesse expell'd your Citie, here is One ill be your King: though not by name, yet knowne his strange hornes. I heard the Augur say, once in Rome, you all should him obey. : might, vnftopt, have entred without feate: it I withstood; though none to me more neare. he, Quirites, into exile sent: r, if he merit such a punishment, nde him in heauie chaines, and keepe him fure: with the Tyrants death your feares secure,

The

The troubled People such a murmuring make; As when farre off the roring surges take On ratling shores; or when through high-trust Pines Lowd Eurus howles. One only Voice dif-ioynes In this confusion; asking, Which is he? All feeking for the hornes they could not fee, Cippus repli'd; Behold the man you looke. Then from his head (with-held) his garland tooke; And shew'd the hornes which on his fore-head grew. Not one but figh'd, and downe his count'nance threw: And those cleare browes (a thing beyond beliefe) Adorn'd with merit, they behold with griefe. Nor suffer him his honour to debase: But on his head a laurell garland place. And fince he his owne entrance did with-stand: The Nobles, in due fauour, so much land To Cippus gaue, as well two oxen might Round with a plough from morning vntill night. The Monumentall figure of his hornes, So much admir'd, the golden Posts adornes. Now Muses, Goddeffes of Verse, relate (You know, nor yeares your memory abate) How Afculapius in our Citie found A Temple, by circumfluent Tybris bound. A deadly plague the Latian aire defil'd: Soules from their feats the pale disease exil'd. Wearied with funeralls, when physicke fail'd; Nor any humane industry preuail'd;

They seeke coelestiall aid. To Delphos sent, Built in the round Earths nauell, and present Their prayers to Phabus; that he would descend To their reliefe, and give their woes an end.

H

lis Temple, Laurell, and his Quiuer, shake: Who thus, they trembling, from his Tripod spake. Vhat here you feeke, you neerer should have fought: ind feeke it neerer yet. Ajollo ought Not now to cure you, but Apollo's Seed. Foe with successe; and fetch my Sonne with speed. he Senathauing heard this Oracle, he Citie fearch, where Phabus sonne should dwell. he shore of Epidaure the Legate scekes: here anchoring, he intreats th'affembled Greekes o fend their God: who might th' Aufenian State o health restore; and vrg'd the charge of Fate. hey vary in opinion: some affent o fend this fuccour; many, not content blose their owne in giving othersaid, trive to retaine him, and the rest disswade. Vhile thus they doubt, the Day declin'd his Light: nd Earth-borne shadowes cloth'd the world in Night! h'Health-giuing God, in sleepe, appeares to stand his old forme; a staffe in his left hand: nd ftroking with his right his reverend beard; com his hope-rendring breft these words were heard, care not, I come; my shape I will for sake: iew, and marke well this staffe-infolding Snake: sch will I seeme, yet shew of greater size; great as may a Deity comprize. od with the Voice, with God and Voice away cepe flew: fled Sleepe perfude by chearefull Day. ae Starres now vanquisht by the mornings flame; ie doubtfull Nobles to the temple came, treat him by coelestiall signes to shew hether he were content to stay or goe.

This hardly faid, the God in Serpent's shroud, His high creft gold-like gliftring, hift aloud. His statue, altar, gates, the marble flore, And golden roofe, shooke at th'approching Powre. He, in his Fane, brest-high his body rais'd: Rouling about his eyes that flame-like blaz'd. All tremble. The chast Priest, his haire imbraid With Virgin filler, knew the God, and faid: 'Tis he!' tis he! all you who present are Pray with your hearts and tongues: ô heavenly-Faire, Propitious proue to those who thee implore! All that were there the present Powre adore; Reiterating what the Priest had said: With heart and tongue the Romans also pray'd. He, by the motion of his lofty creft, And doubled hisles, figne's to their request. Then sliding downe the polisht staires, his looke Reuerts on his old altars; now for sooke: Salute's his shrine, and Temple deckt with towres. Then creeping on the ground, ftrew'd with fresh flowres Indenteth through the Citie; stopping where The Harbour is defended by a Peere. The following troopes, and those whose zeales affist In honouring him, with gentle lookes dismist; He climbes th' Ausonian ship: which felt the waight, And shrunke with pressure of so great a fraight. The joyfull Romans, offering on the firand A Bull to Neptune; anchor weigh, and land Forsake with easie gales. Rais'd on his traine, He, leaning, lookes upon the blew-wau'd Maine. Through Ionian Seas by friendly Zephyrus borne, They fell with Italy on the fixth merne. Lacini acinian Iunos Fane, Scyllean shores, ipygia past; they shun with nimble ores Imphrysian rockes; Ceraunian, weather-cleft: omechium, Caulon, and Narycia left : cilian Straights o're-come, and wrackfull seas, aile by the mansion of Hippotades: y Temefa, in metalls fruitfull; by eucosia, and the Pastan Rosary. lecre Caprea, and Minerua's Fore-landrow, wrentine hills, where wines fo generous grow; eraclea, Stabia, Naples borne to ease, imean Sibyl's Temple: next to thefe, ot Baths; Linternum, sweet with masticke flowres; ultarnus, who his fandy channell skoures; nueffa, swarming with white Snakes; ill-air'd 'inturna; and where Pietie prepar'd is Nurse a tombe; forthwith the mansion make t fell Antiphates; and then the Lakeefieged Trachin: thence directly bore Ino Circe's Ile, and Antium's folid shore. he Sea now swelling high, this harbour holds he Saile-wing'd ship. The God his orbs vnfolds; nd, with huge doublings o're the yellow fand ides to his fathers Temple on that strand. ough waves affwag'd, the Epidaurian Guest s fathers altar leaues; to Sea-ward prest, icing the fandie shore with rustling scales: id, by her sterne the ship ascending, sailes llhe to Castrum, to Lauinia's nametaining Seat, and mouth of Tyber came. lhither throng; fonnes, daughters, mothers, fires, ic Nunnes who keepe the Phrygian Vesta's fires,

With

With lowd salutes of ioy. On either side
The Riuer, as the Vessell stemmes the tide,
Altars, with incense sed, the aire persume:
And kniues from Sacrifices heat assume.
Rome entring, the Worlds Head, He winds about
The losty mast; and from on high thrusts out
His glittering head, to chuse a fitting place.
The armes of Tyber doe an Ile imbrace,
Which equall streame from either banke divides;
Thither Apollo's sacred Serpent slides:
Who now coelestial shape assuming, ends
Their miseries, and health to all extends.

He here, a forren Powre, makes his aboad. In his owne Citie Cafar is a God. Glorious in Peace and Warre: whom war's surcease With triumphs crown'd, his gouernment in peace, Norrace of wonder with fuch quicknesse runne; More make a blazing Star, than his great Son; For of all Cafars acts, none may compare With his adopting so divine an Heire. For, was it more t'o're-come the Brittish Ile? Fill the seuen mouthes of paper-bearing Nile With conquering failes? Numidians rebelling, Cinyphian Inba, Pontus proudly swelling In Mithridates, to Subiect to Rome? Meriting many, to triumph for some? Then him beget, in whose dominion The Gods fo abundantly have favour'd man? To th'other they a Deity decreed; That this might not from mortall birth proceed. Which, when faire Venus faw; and faw withall, Conspiring weapons threat her Prelats fall; ler colour fled: to every God she met, hee faid, Behold, what snares for me are set? To murder me in him how Treason striues; Vho only of Iulus race surviues! till must I vndeseru'd afflictions beare? lowlately wounded by Tydides speare! Jow ill-defended Troy againe is loft: ly Sonne Aneas, with long errors toft In wrathfull Seas, againe descends to Hell: low warres with Turnos; or, the truth to tell, lith Inno rather. How remember I Ild harmes fustain'd in my posterity? through this feare, all former feares forget. oe! they their wicked fwords against me whet: helpe! restraine their furies! nor, for shame, lith Prelats bloud extinguish Vesta's flame.

Thus, through all heaven, her Sorrowes vainly speake: nd melt the Gods: who, fince they could not breake he ancient Sifters adamantine doome, fure Ostents demonstrate Woes to come. rmes clashing in the aire with clouds o're-cast; errible trumpets, and the cornet's blaft, oclaime the Murder: Sols afflicted looke ad pale eclipse, the World with terror strooke. ft, Meteors through the aire their flames extend: fr, drops of bloud from purple clouds descend. acke rust obscures dimme Lucifers aspect: id Cynthia's charior bloudy staines infect. ne Stygian Owle each where disturbs their sleepe ith ominous screeches: iuory Statues weepe. ie facred Groues resound with yelling cries, d fearefull menaces. No facrifice

The Gods appease: the headlesse inwards shew Signes of succeeding Tumults, Death, and Woe. Dogs nightly, in the Court, about the Gods, And holy Temples howle. From sad abodes The Dead arise, and wander here and there: Rome trembling, both with Earth-quakes and with seare, These Warnings of the Gods no changes wrought In Fate, or Treason. Murderous swore brought Into the Temple: for no place might fort With such a Slaughter, but the facred Court. Then Venus smote her brest: who sought to shroud, And snatch him thence in that Æthereall cloud, Which Paris from Atrides rage conuaid:

And freed Eneas from Tydides blade.

Daughter, said Ioue, canst thou resist the doome Of conquering Fates? Into their mansion come, There shalt thou see Decrees that needs must passe, Writ in huge folds of solid steele and brasse. Which fafe, eternall, euer fixed there; My thunder, lightnings rage, nor ruine feare. In lasting Adamant there maift thou reade What shall to thy great Progenie succeed. I read, remember well, and will relate What may informe thee in succeeding fate. He, whom thou ftriu'ft to faue, his race hath runne Of Time and Glory: whom, thou and his Sonne Shall make in heaven a God; on Earth, with praire And Temples dignifi'd. His names great Heire Alone his Load shall beare: and strongly shall By our conduct revenge his fathers fall. By his good fortune Mutine, o're-throwne, Shail fue for peace: Pharfalian fields shall grone: aughter againe Philippi shall imbrue: in red Sicilian Seas he shall subdue mighty Name. Th' Egyptian Spoufe shall fall. trusting toher Roman Generall: o make our stately Capitell obay er proud Canopus, shall in vaine affay. hat need I of those barbarous People rell. ad Nations, which by either Ocean dwell? : shall the habitable Earth command; id stretch his Empire over sea and land. ace given to Earth; he shall convert his care ciuill Rule, iust Lawes; and by his faire ample Vertue guide. Then looking to e future times, and Nephewes to enfue; Sonne shall blesse him from a holy wombe: him he shall refigne his name, and roome, rshall, tillfull of age, ascend th'aboads heavenly Dwellers, and his kindred Gods. ane-while from this flaire corps his foule conuay to the starres, and give it a cleare Ray: at Iulius may with friendly influence ine on our Capitoll and Court from thence. This faid : inuifible faire Venus Rood id the Senate; from his corps, with blood if'd, her cefars new-fled spirit bare leauen, not suffei'd to resolue to aire. , as in her foft bolome borne, thee might eine it take a Powre, and gather li. ht. n once let loofe, It forth-with vp-ward flew; after it long blazing treffes drew. radiant Starre his Sonnes great acts beheld t-lufter his: and toy'd, to be excell'd.

Slaugh

Though he would have his Fathers deeds preferr'd Before his owne : yet free-tongu'd Pame, deteri'd By no commandement, yeeld th'cuited Bayes To his cleare browes; and but in this gain-fayes. So Atreus yeelds to Agamemnons fame; Ægeus fo to Thefeus: Peleus name Stoopes to Achilles. That I may confer Th'illustrious to their equalls, Iupiter So Saturne tops. Ioue rules the arched Skie. And triple World; th'Earths vast Monarchie T' Augustus bowes: both Fathers, and both sway. You Gods, Aneas mates, who made your way Through fire and fword; you Gods of men become; Quirinus, Father of triumphant Rome; Thou Mars, inuincible Quirinus Sire; Chast Velta, with thy euer-burning fire, Among great Cafars Houshold-Gods inshrin'd; Domesticke Phabus, with his Vesta ioyn'd; Thou love, Whom in Tarpeian towres we adore; And You, all You, whom Poets may implore: Slow be that day, and after I am dead, Wherein Augustus, of the world the Head, Leauing the Earth, shall vnto Heauen repaire; And fauour those that seeke to him by prayer.

And now the Worke is ended, which, love's rage,
Nor Fire, nor Sword shall raze, nor eating Age.
Come when it will my deaths uncertaine howre;
Which only of my body hath a powre:
Yet shall my better Part transcend the skie;
And my immortall name shall never die.

The Fifteenth Booke.

445

For, where-fo-ere the Roman Eagles spread Their conquesing wings, I shall of all be read: And, if we Prophets truly can divine, I, in my living Fame, shall ever shine.

V. 2

The Figurett Books.

by a force to refer the control of the sale for the sale

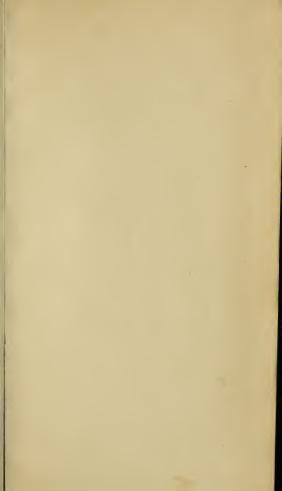

5 V

ow br

744

B.P.L. Bindery, 0CT 12 1892

