Military Matters

Communications from members of the different branches of Her Majesty's Services represented in Victoria and Esquimaux will be welcomed. Address "Chevron," Times Office. The ribbon chosen for the British decoration to commemorate the recent operations of the Nile is to be an equal stripe of yellow and black divided by a thin line of red. The league matches opened at Clover Point this morning at six o'clock in order to give those who are forced to be at their place of business during the day an opportunity of making their score. The weather has been favorable and good scoring is being made. Nearly a million 203 ball cartridges and 10,000 projectiles, for the 9. pr. 12 pr. and 64 pr. guns now in possession of the batteries of the artillery, have been manufactured at the Canadian government's cartridge and shell factory during the past year. The record made by Bomb. Currie's team at the hill last Saturday was in many respects phenomenal. The team gathered from among the members of the company not attached to any team. Nevertheless they succeeded in capturing 32 points, taking second place to Sergt. Turner. A complimentary banquet was tendered to Colonel H. A. Macdonald, C. B., D. S. O., A. D. C., at the Hotel Cecil, recently, when a sword of honor was presented to the gallant colonel by the Highlanders in London. The Duke of Atholl presided, and among those who were present were the high commissioner for Canada, and the agents general for Nova Scotia and British Columbia. The result of the gun practice of No. 1 Co. at Beacon Hill last Saturday must have been exceedingly gratifying to Major Muoro and the officers and instructors of that company. In the report given in the Times the impression was conveyed that the allowance of distance for hits beyond and short of the actual target was exceptional. This was not the case, the allowance being the regular one made in such cases. The Scotia, at her annual prize firing on April 26, beat all records by scoring 80 per cent. of hits. In order to ensure all the regulations being carried out and to check the marking, officers from other ships were sent out in the cruiser, so that there can be no question about the results. Out of a total of seventy rounds fired fifty-six were direct hits on the target. The speed of the ship was twelve knots and the distance 1,000 yards, the target being of the customary prize-firing service pattern. The firing occupied the whole day as the target had to be repaired after every round. A meeting of the British Columbia Rifle Association was held on Tuesday evening at the Drill Hall, Colonel Peters, D. O. C., who attended, announced that he had the authority of the minister of militia in saying that the government grant would be withheld until the constitution was amended, and the administration of the association placed in the hands of members of the active militia. The announcement, while it created consternation among some of the council, should not have come as a surprise for the order issued several months ago by General Hutton asking for a return showing what proportion of members of these associations belonged to the militia should have shown them the attitude of the general officer commanding. Despite numerous protests the British Columbia Rifle Association has continued from year to year to be administered, so far at least as Victoria and Nanaimo representatives were concerned by men who have long since severed their connection with the militia. Some of them have never been in the militia and others are not members of the association at all. It was decided to accept the inevitable and a committee consisting of Messrs. Sloane, Tlie and Stuart, from the mainland, was appointed to revise the constitution in accordance with the minister's suggestions. The division of the Royal Artillery into mounted and dismounted branches has been practically settled upon, and at an early date the officers of the regiment will appear on two entirely separate lists. The magnificent band is also to be at least tri-sectioned and formed into small bands, two of which we understand, will be located at the large garrison artillery stations on the southern coast. There is much difference of opinion regarding the breaking up of the regiment, unwisely, as it undoubtedly is, with 30,000 officers and men. But many artillery officers of high rank are of opinion that nothing short of the formation of small regiments, of from ten to twelve batteries each, will produce any marked difference in the present organization. It remains to be seen whether the new order of things will enhance the efficiency of the garrison artillery, for it is very doubtful if anything except a large increase of pay to the officers of the dismounted branch will satisfy the restless spirit, especially

ART IN JOURNALISM.

The future of illustrated journalism is not easy to forecast. Will the public get tired of photographs? I think not--while they are able to convey with such intense reality many of the incidents of the hour. At the same time, however, the future of the black-and-white artist who illustrates current topics is absolutely assured. The thoroughly competent artist will always command even the somewhat high prices that in many people's eyes he now receives. One friend of mine--an accomplished journalist--does, indeed, insist that he prefers a photograph of a house to the most finished drawing by Mr. Pennell or Mr. Ballton. I do not, however, accept this as a normal state of mind. I believe there will always

AN ARTIST'S STORY.

Verestchagin's religious pictures are another illustration of his devotion to truth and his hatred of mere conventionalism. I asked him to tell me the story of his famous picture, "The Resurrection." "It was compelled to destroy the picture," he said, "owing to its hostile reception in Vienna. I found, when I was in the Holy Land, that the tomb in which the body of Christ was possibly laid was very low--as all tombs are, indeed, in Palestine. It was impossible for our Saviour to have walked out of the tomb upright, and I represented Him stooping, as He must have done. "This offended the priests in Vienna, and a great outcry arose against the picture. I was asked to take it down, but refused to do so. The archbishop of Vienna wrote a hostile letter, and one Sunday a special service was advertised to be held in the cathedral, at which I was to be denounced. Thousands assembled, and a special prayer was offered for me, and a special hymn, composed for the occasion, was sung. Pamphlets, condemning the picture, were distributed in the streets in thousands. "Had there been any irreverence in the picture, I would have yielded to this demonstration of public feeling, but there was no suggestion of that. I had visited the Holy Land especially to prepare those religious pictures, and I painted exactly what I found there. I had done the work in a very reverent spirit, and was determined not to sacrifice it to the unreasonable prejudices of the priests. "But one day somebody threw vitrol over the picture, and as the damage was irreparable I destroyed it altogether." From an interview with M. Yassil Verestchagin in the Strand. THE ADVANTAGES OF THE MOCCASIN.

The moccasin is the most rational and comfortable of all foot-wear. In moccasins the feet have full play; they can hold and grasp; there is nothing to chafe them or to impede circulation. In moccasins one can move like an acrobat, crossing slender and slippery logs, climbing trees, or passing with ease and security along dizzy trails on the mountain-side where a slip might mean sure destruction. The feet do not stick fast in mud. In the North when the mercury is far below zero and no civilized boot will protect the feet from freezing, the savage suffers no inconvenience. His moccasins, stuffed with dried grass, let the blood course freely. The perspiration may freeze on the hay in a soldier's camp, but the moccasin remains warm and dry. The buckskin moccasin Indian, dressed with deer's brains and wood smoke, always dries soft after a wetting. In autumn, when all the leaves and twigs are dry as tinder, a man wearing shoes makes a noise in the forest like a troop of cavalry; but in moccasins he can move swiftly through the woods with the stealth of a panther. The feet are not bruised, for, after enjoying for a time the freedom of natural covering, these hitherto blundering members become like hands, and feel their way through the dark like those of a cat, avoiding obstacles as though gifted with a special sense. Best of all, the moccasin is light. Inexperienced sportsmen and soldiers affect high-topped laced boots with heavy soles and hobnails, imagining that these are most serviceable for rough work. But these boots weigh between four and five pounds, while a pair of thick moosehide moccasins weigh only eleven ounces. In marching ten miles, a man wearing the clumsy boots lifts twenty tons more shoe-leather than if he wore moccasins. Harper's Magazine.

THE DRAMA. In the course of his fine lecture on Hamlet, in Victoria, a month ago, the Rev. H. H. Gowen, of Seattle, mentioned a fact which has often puzzled those who can take down their Shakespeares from the shelf and beguile a midnight dreary amid the gorgeous pageantry of its immortal scenes.
