1. Reference is made to Page 4, Hyogo Prefecture listings, in subject publication.

2. Subject publication lists plant 61 as Osaka Kiko K.K., Inagawa Kojo. Originally number 61 was assigned to Osaka Kagaku Kogyo K.K., Inagawa Kojo, which does not exist. Osaka Kiko K.K., is number 62, and is listed in Code book for Reparations Plants as Osaka Mechanical Industries. Correction was not necessary. Osaka is incorrect as now listed.

3. On page 4 under "addition" is listed Nishijin Aircraft Co., Ota Kojo, dispersed location. This location with the Nichirin Gomu Kogyo K.K., Koto Plant was completely destroyed by the air raid and the machinery no longer exists having been used as scrap.

- H. Nakajima Factory
- I. Naniwa Factory

3. Each factory has retained its assigned parenthetical letter so only the Plant Code Number has been changed from 32 to 31.

1. The Osaka Military Arsenal, Osaka Prefecture, is listed on inclosure 1, Operational Directive No. 5/2, Headquarters Eighth Army, dated 7 June 1946, as composed of two plants: the Hirakata Factory, code number 31, and the Osaka Factory, code number 32. Paragraph 1, basic communication, makes reference to letter from Osaka Military Government Team which listed numerous branch plants of the Osaka Factory (copy of letter added herewith as inclosure 1).

2. The Osaka Military Arsenal has corrected the original list of branch plants of the Osaka Factory to indicate that the Amanogawa, Fushimi, Nagao, Nakajima and Naniwa factories should properly be listed under the Hirakata Arsenal (code number 31). Inventory sheets had gone forward to higher headquarters before this change was announced.

3. Inasmuch as plants 31 and 32 are both listed under the parent plant, the Osaka Arsenal, it is the opinion of this headquarters that the above change is primarily one of bookkeeping for the Japanese officials. It is not believed a change in code numbers, or redesignation of these plants is advisable.
