THE DAILY BEE.
PUBLISHED BY CLYDE WORDEN & CO.
1 LINER, 1 1868.
Daily Paper, one year in advance.....$10
Six months.....5
Three months.....2 50
Single copies, five cents each. Every number of the paper will contain a synopsis of the latest telegraphic news, and the general news of the day. Any person sending us a club of ten subscribers, will be entitled to one copy free. Any person sending us a club of twenty subscribers, will be entitled to one copy free, and the paper sent to the address of the person getting up the club.
NEW ORLEANS:
FRIDAY [illegible], SEPTEMBER 20

The New Orleans Bee.

Office, 73 Chartres street. NEW-ORLEANS, FRIDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 20, 1860. Vol. XVI—New Series. Vol: XXXIII.—Whole No. 11,791.

SUBSCRIPTIONS BY THE WEEK

The carriers of the Bee are authorized to receive subscriptions to our paper, at the rate of 25 cents a week, payable in all cases to the carriers delivering.

A uniform Quince Tree Stem.

By G. Lapham, Skaneateles, N.Y., at 10 o'clock, at No. 29 Chartres street, boats, canoe and trimmers, skates and drawers.

KEEP THE PEACE.

Political excitement, always unpleasant during a Presidential campaign, when it is fomented by the contravention of the press, the disseminators of the concern the pistol, and the knife and the bludgeon and the like, it ugh, as the election draws nigh, to assume a more malevolent spirit, and a more dangerous character. We consider it, therefore, to be our duty to restrict the citizens of New Orleans of the respect which each owes to the other, and to recommend to all parties mutual forbearance and magnanimity, if not good feeling upon the occasion of them all will in equity endeavor to do.

Within the past week we have had gratifying evidence of the esteem of a better spirit on the part of our community. At the outset last November for State and parish officers, and at the really exciting election in June for Mayor and Aldermen, a marked change was perceptible. The voters were free to educate their progressive possibility. No importunate whisperer existed to their exercise to, or oppress them the polls. Strife seemed banished from the hustings, and personal violence and thumbing disappeared. This was the inauguration of a system which, we put well assured, will be thoroughly maintained next November, and we are therefore warranted in the highest apprehension of a recurrence of those deplorable scenes of disorder which for several years had rendered our political elections proverbially turbulent and disgraceful. Only requisite for us to put the citizens on their guard against the machinations of designing persons endeavored somewhat by many possessed and other manifestations of personal preferences common during an active canvass.

There is but one safe and infallible guide, and it is this: that every party processes an unquestionable and unquestionable right to hold meetings, to turn out in processions, to display banners and transparencies, and to be addressed by its champions. Under the peaceable operation can justly arrogate the privilege in any manner whatever to interfere with another, and every manner of the same character made by few or many, merits severe reprehension, and should be promptly discountenanced. We are all American citizens; we may, and do differ among ourselves respecting the validity of the claims of the several Presidential candidates, but we should agree to disagree with proper respect for each other's views. The idea which many have entertained appears practicable, if not avowedly, to charge that an opponent is, essentially a foe, to be conquered by abuse, intimation and invective, or that opponent is an honest man and a patriot, entitled to our esteem and confidence, is the absurd and unreasonable. It is this absurd and heathenishing of political animosity that engenders feuds and personal enmities, and not unfrequently puts an end to the same kind conflicts. Let us, then, as good citizens in every one bear in mind that a political advocacy is guaranteed by the Constitution of our common country the full and undisputed expression of his opinions, and whosoever he and his associates think fit to make a public declaration, their opponents should quietly abstain from offering the slightest provocation or insult. To neglect the opinions of others is to assert or respect for our own. The promotion of quiet by being ½ politic is an indispensable one. If our calm political elegance would one man, let us remember that when we herself for any standard-bearers, the effect is precisely the same upon our adversaries, by opposite.

Moreover there is nothing in this present contest as all calculated to disturb the subsidy which, generally speaking, characterizes the people of New Orleans. We see there among us no Know-Nothings. Not one of the three candidates who are run in the South can be properly imagined to intermingle hostile to his advancement her ambitions, as to inspire irreprovable indignation at the idea of his being warmly supported. On the contrary, of all of these gentlemen it requires no sagacity to discover that he is the favorite of a large person, whatever and principle of the Southern, the canvass should usually be of a bona residing character these trend. There has been no apology for the slightest outrage upon the person, or the gallant defiance against the sentiment of courtesy. We can see no possible offensive in the display of the finest sentiment enthusiasm by the respective friends of Bell, Breckenridge or Douglas, provided it preserves throughout its local limits, and is not rendered peculiarly offensive to others. There is no occasion whatever for zeal to degenerate into frenzy, or for ardor it be alloyed with political bitterness. Of course in large gatherings there are generally a few noisy and unmeaning partisans; but if the opinions at large discourage and reprobate every species of excess, these will speedily find their level, and be reduced to silence.

One more observation we will make, and it is simply an advice to all who attend public meetings and processions to carry no deadly weapon. The imposition of the law on the subject leads to many a fatal dispute. Arrest your revolvers and bowie-knives at home, and when should you unfortunately become involved in difficulty, and be tempted to draw of violence, you will have reason to rejoice at your prudence in voluntarily divesting yourself of those implements of bloodshed.

LITTLE FLORIDA.—The Florida Sentinel announces the formation of a Douglas electoral ticket in that State. The candidates for electors are Governor Perry, Judge Marvin, Odyssey Judge Jones. The Sentinel says:

Governor Perry has opened the campaign in good earnest in the East. "Alas! poor Yorick." Brook's friends have dozed on South Florida, but now we shall have Stephen A. Douglas. The matter was learned. It's the Great Little. The Sentinel says of "Jack the Giant Killer." The Sentinel says of the Senator, "long, tall and lean looking," by the Tampa Peninsular, "small and slender," by the Jacksonville Republican, and the idea of Governor Perry "running a voter for the Presidency" is "rich." The Senator from Florida to Bell without a doubt. "So much for Buckingham."

While on this subject, it may be well to state that on Monday next, October 1st, an election will be held in Florida for a Governor, members of Congress, and State officers. The candidates for Governor are Governor Perry (Democrat) and Milton (Breck.) The Douglas candidate for State ticket in the field. The contest has been very animated, and the result doubtful. The Breckinridgers claim Florida with much confidence, but so they did Kentucky, and the other South. We shall know something about it next week.

COL. J. B. WALTON, ADVERTISING AND APPRAISER.—In calling the attention of our friends to Col. J. B. Walton's notice in the appraising promotion of his extensive business, at No. 48 Camp street, we cannot forbear making the observation of paying a tribute to his ability and energy as a business man, which as well as to his individual worth, which we can the more confidently do as it is of our personal knowledge and observation that he has enjoyed. Indeed it is well known to the community at large that the gentleman is distinguished for his superior commercial qualifications and marked for eminent success in every enterprise undertaken by him. His long experience, acquired in the various pursuits, indicates knowledge of the value of land and other property, and his tact and ability as an auctioneer give him great advantages in his line of business, as will be seen by the offers he holds at City Auctioneer. Without his high-toned character, well known integrity and many virtues of head and mind have won for him an exalted position in the public estimation, and crowned his business undertakings with most signal success.

NORTH BRITISH REVIEW.—The August number of L. Scott & Co.'s republication of this sterling periodical has been received by J. C. Morgan & Co., Exchange Place. It is one of the ablest number, and has already received a large circulation.

THE PEOPLE.—It will be seen by the announcement elsewhere that the above will be delivered at Odd Fellows' Hall. Admission free.

MR. JAMES BRADDOCK, teacher in the [illegible] located A. B. Shaw's office, opposite the Custom-house of collecting and collecting agent, at No. 20 Commercial Place. We offer pleasure in recommending him to the patronage of our friends.

NEW BOOKS AND STATIONERY.—The merchant Lafayette, Captain Smith, arrived last evening from Baltimore with, having on board one of new supply of new books and stationery, which the firm of Messrs. Jones, from the Messrs. Harnett's plantation, parish of St. Charles, and consigned to Messrs. B. Beaubien & Co.

MR. BOYER'S ADVERTISEMENT.—Mr. Boyer has given an advertisement to another column that the course of his will be resumed next Monday, October 1st, at Mr. Boyer's Academy, Odd street, No. 193.

A private letter from an experienced political observer in Philadelphia to a friend in Washington, says: "Politically, every thing looks well. I believe Penn will be for Bell and Everett by 15 to 20,000. The Democratic majority in this city. Penn the last fall was 7,000. I am strongly inclined to believe 500 of the majority, as do several others. The Bell and Everett ticket is the only ticket in the field. The contest has been very animated, and the result doubtful. The Breckinridgers claim Florida with much confidence, but so they did Kentucky, and the other South. We shall know something about it next week.

Col. J. B. Walton, Advertising and Appraiser—To collect the attention of our friends to Col. J. B. Walton's notice in the appraising promotion of his extensive business, at No. 48 Camp street, we cannot forbear making the observation of paying a tribute to his ability and energy as a business man, which as well as to his individual worth, which we can the more confidently do as it is of our personal knowledge and observation that he has enjoyed. Indeed it is well known to the community at large that the gentleman is distinguished for his superior commercial qualifications and marked for eminent success in every enterprise undertaken by him. His long experience, acquired in the various pursuits, indicates knowledge of the value of land and other property, and his tact and ability as an auctioneer give him great advantages in his line of business, as will be seen by the offers he holds at City Auctioneer. Without his high-toned character, well known integrity and many virtues of head and mind have won for him an exalted position in the public estimation, and crowned his business undertakings with most signal success.

North British Review.—The August number of L. Scott & Co.'s republication of this sterling periodical has been received by J. C. Morgan & Co., Exchange Place. It is one of the ablest number, and has already received a large circulation.

The People.—It will be seen by the announcement elsewhere that the above will be delivered at Odd Fellows' Hall. Admission free.

Mr. James Braddock, teacher in the [illegible] located A. B. Shaw's office, opposite the Custom-house of collecting and collecting agent, at No. 20 Commercial Place. We offer pleasure in recommending him to the patronage of our friends.

New Books and Stationery.—The merchant Lafayette, Captain Smith, arrived last evening from Baltimore with, having on board one of new supply of new books and stationery, which the firm of Messrs. Jones, from the Messrs. Harnett's plantation, parish of St. Charles, and consigned to Messrs. B. Beaubien & Co.

Mr. Boyer's Academy.—To collect the attention of our friends to Mr. Boyer's notice in the appraising promotion of his extensive business, at No. 48 Camp street, we cannot forbear making the observation of paying a tribute to his ability and energy as a business man, which as well as to his individual worth, which we can the more confidently do as it is of our personal knowledge and observation that he has enjoyed. Indeed it is well known to the community at large that the gentleman is distinguished for his superior commercial qualifications and marked for eminent success in every enterprise undertaken by him. His long experience, acquired in the various pursuits, indicates knowledge of the value of land and other property, and his tact and ability as an auctioneer give him great advantages in his line of business, as will be seen by the offers he holds at City Auctioneer. Without his high-toned character, well known integrity and many virtues of head and mind have won for him an exalted position in the public estimation, and crowned his business undertakings with most signal success.

ACADEMY,
Corner street, [illegible]
Between Dauphin and Bienville.
PARENTS are reminded that the classes open on the [illegible] SCHOOL BOOK-KEEPING [illegible]
Pupils can call immediately to have their names [illegible]
NOTICE TO PATRONS.
[illegible] PRICE of SHAVING and HAIR DRESSING from 10 to 15 cents, from the 1st of October. (Signed)
J. O. Shumard, J. C. Viguerie, F. J. Kramer,
Thos. Hyde, Joseph Robins,
H. B. Forbes, [illegible]
J. Meyer, [illegible]
John Ivis, [illegible]
John Rohrer, [illegible]
F. Fetter, [illegible]
J. B. WALTON,
CITY AUCTIONEER,
And AUCTIONEER, APPRAISER and GENERAL AGENT for the Purchase and Sale of REAL ESTATE, SLAVES, LANDS, etc., etc.
Office, 48 Camp street.
Continues to appraise [illegible] of all kinds, Real Estate, Slaves, Merchandise, etc., attending to all sales, [illegible] Commission, and to all business appertaining to the profession.
He invites attention to his system of plans and plan books of Real Estate, recognized as a large acquisition with the public every where and very [illegible] with the [illegible] of Real Estate engaged advantages and facilities.
Furniture and other out-door sales attended to. [illegible]
Wanted,
[illegible] CLERK, [illegible] and writing [illegible] Apply at [illegible]
Succession of Stephan Schilling.
THE creditors of this succession are hereby requested to present their claims, duly authenticated, for [illegible] signed, and present their title [illegible]
ALEX. LARIMER, Executor.
MARINES WAREHOUSE.
MESSRS. GUILBAUX & CHEPPES,
193 ..... Royal street ..... 193
[illegible] their friends and the public that they have [illegible] to the above [illegible] the late firm of Levy & Co.
[illegible] the MARINES WAREHOUSE, [illegible] and well-selected stock of [illegible] and [illegible] of all descriptions—[illegible] Hardware, Cutlery, Fancy Goods, [illegible] Ship Chandlery, Paints, Oils, Glass, [illegible] Ware, Tinware, Hardware, Iron, Steel, Nails, [illegible] Rope, Bagging, Twine, Bale Rope, Anchors, Chains, Blocks, Sails, and Clothing, Boots and Shoes, Hats, Caps, Blankets, Cloths, Cassimeres, Linseys, Flannels, Drills, Duck, Ticks, Shirts, Drawers, Hosiery, Gloves, Suspenders, Cravats, Handkerchiefs, Umbrellas, Canes, Combs, Brushes, Perfumery, Soaps, Tobacco, Cigars, Pipes, Snuff, Matches, Candles, Lamps, Oils, Groceries, Provisions, Liquors, Wines, Ale, Porter, Cordials, Cider, Vinegar, Pickles, Sauces, Preserves, Fruits, Nuts, Raisins, Figs, Candies, Crackers, Cheese, Butter, Lard, Hams, Bacon, Flour, Meal, Rice, Hominy, Grits, Potatoes, Onions, Coffee, Sugar, Molasses, Syrup, Tea, Saleratus, Starch, Soda, Yeast Powders