Mr. Henry Augustus Taylor died at his home at Milford, Conn., on April 8, aged 60 years. In 1878 he built the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg R. R. into Rochester, N. Y., and also constructed a part of the Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg R. R. He was also interested in many other railways, and was Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Ry. Co. and the Cleveland, Lorain & Wheeling Ry. Co.

Mr. Felix Brown, of the firm of A. & F. Brown, owners of the Progress Iron Works, died at his home at Elizabeth, N. J., on April 6, aged 70 years. Mr. Brown was the inventor of the foghorn now in use in the United States lighthouses.

Capt. Jas. J. Power, civil engineer, died at Perry, Okla., on April 9, aged 67. He was a son of the late Gen. Thos. J. Power, civil engineer, of Rochester, Pa.; and was engaged in engineering work in various parts of the country during a period of 46 years.

Mr. Wallace C. Andrews was burned to death in a fire at his home in New York city, on April 7. He was President of the Hudson River Stone Service Supply Co., the New York Ice Co., the New York Steam Co., and the United States Mineral Wool Co., and Director of the New York Launch & Engine Co., the Safety Car Heating & Lighting Co., and the Standard Coupler Co. Mr. Andrews was born of New England parentage, at Vienna, O., in 1833.

Mr. Menard K. Bowen, President of the Chicago City Ry. Co., died in Chicago, on April 9, after an operation for appendicitis. He was born at Jefferson Barracks, Mo., in 1856, and was the son of Gen. John S. Bowen. He studied engineering at the St. Louis University and afterward at the Washington University at St. Louis. When 19 years old he entered the government service as an assistant engineer on a triangulation survey of the Mississippi River, and later was made assistant engineer on the jetty work below New Orleans. In 1880 he took charge of the survey work from Fort Smith, Ark., to California for the St. Louis & San Francisco Ry. After several years of railway work he entered the street railway business, his first work in this field being in Kansas City, where he was chief engineer and superintendent of construction, and afterwards superintendent of the completed system. The Short Electric Ry. Co. of Cleveland, O., next engaged him, and he went to New York as its commercial representative. Mr. Bowen went to Chicago as assistant to Mr. Holmes in the extensions of the South Side cable and electric system, and in the reorganization of the work was made superintendent, which position he held until the office of general manager was created for him in 1897. On Jan. 15, 1898, upon the retirement of Mr. Wheeler, he was elected President of the company, and continued in that office until his death.

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF CIVIL ENGINEERS.—A regular meeting of this society was held at the Society House in New York city on April 5. The paper of the evening, by L. M. Hoskins, was entitled "General Criterion for Position of Loads Causing Maximum Stress in Any Member of a Bridge Truss."

THE AMERICAN GEOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY.—This society has purchased a lot on West 81st St., New York city, near Central Park, and will, it is understood, immediately erect a society house. The lot is 50 × 100 ft., and it is the intention to make the new building a very complete and comfortable headquarters.

The club has been invited to visit Pacific Junction, on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry., to inspect the new 108-lever interlocking machine, and the outdoor work, which is designed with a view to permanence of construction.

C. O. Tilton, Secy.

ENGINEERS' SOCIETY OF WESTERN NEW YORK.—A meeting of this society was held at Buffalo, N. Y., on April 3, to consider a preliminary report of the Pan-American Exposition. The report referred principally to the selection of a site, of which about 20 had been offered. The committee's work so far has consisted in making maps showing the locations of the sites, wooded lands, the nature of the earth, the drainage conditions, and accessibility, so far as water and railways are concerned. There was considerable discussion as to the engineering features of the Exposition, and the sites suggested were considered from this standpoint.

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF LANDSCAPE ARCHITECTS.—This is the name of a new society organized in New York city on April 6. The object of the society is to promote good-fellowship among its members and to increase the efficiency of the profession by establishing some standard by which landscape architects may be chosen for special work, just as has been done by the Architectural League. The officers of the association are: Pres., J. C. Olmstead, of Olmstead Bros., Boston; Vice-Pres., Samuel Parsons, Jr., of Parsons & Pentecost, St. James Bldg., New York; Secy., Daniel W. Langton, of New York, and Treas., C. W. Laurie, of New York. The next meeting of the society will be held at Boston.

THE ENGINEERS' CLUB OF PHILADELPHIA.—A meeting of this club was held on April 1, with 60 members and visitors present, and after some routine business was dispatched Mr. Richard L. Humphrey presented some notes on "The Testing Laboratory of the City of Philadelphia." This was an illustrated description of some of the improvements which have been made in the equipment and operation of the municipal laboratory of Philadelphia during the past three years. Mr. Carl Hering followed, presenting some notes on "Recent Development in Electrical Engineering," in which attention was called to electrolysis of gas and water mains, improvements in electric traction and power transmission, schemes for the generation of electricity near coal mines, etc.; also a description of the Marconi system of wireless telegraphy.

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF MECHANICAL ENGINEERS.—The list of candidates to be voted for at the spring meeting of the society, to be held at Washington, D. C., May 9-12, has been sent to members. The list is unusually large, and may be taken as an indication of the revival of industrial activity and the growing importance of the society. It includes the names of 39 candidates for full membership; 5 to be voted for as associates; 6 for promotion to full membership; 1 for promotion to associate membership, and 34 junior applicants. This makes a total of 84 new and transferred members, against 22 who were admitted and transferred at the winter meeting, held in New York in November, 1898. If these are all admitted the total membership of the society will be 1,995, of which number 15 will be honorary members, 1,426 will be full members, 123 associates and 381 juniors.

LITERARY MAGAZINES.—The April "Cosmopolitan" contains a new story of the Keely Motor, by Julius Moritzen; an article on a kindred subject, "Some Tricks of Ancient Tempies," by Henry R. Evans, and a description of a rattlesnake's den that will match any snake story which any of our readers could tell who have made surveys in those parts of the Southwest where rattlers abound.

In the "Century," Prof. W. C. Peckham writes on Liquid Air, giving the best popular account of recent scientific progress in the liquefaction of gases that we have anywhere seen. We looked with interest to see whether he too had swallowed Mr. Tripler's remarkable story of liquid air as a means of multiplying power, with which a writer in "McClure's" astonished the reading public last month. Prof. Peckham has evidently heard Tripler's claim, but he contents himself with the following guarded statement:

> Eager minds are striving to invent grander uses for the greater forces which the recent results place at our disposal, and some think they can foresee the day when the power stored in these abysses of cold will enable man to do that which is now looked upon as impossible, or at least chimerical.

In the April "Atlantic" Mr. T. J. J. See writes on "The Solar System in the Light of Recent Discoveries," and explains a new law of temperature which he believes regulates the temperature of every gaseous star in the universe. According to this discovery, the original nebula out of which the bodies of our solar system are supposed to have been developed may have been cold instead of hot. The heat of the sun and other bodies has been developed by their gradual condensation and contraction. The law above referred to is that the increase in the total amount of heat generated in a gaseous mass in condensing from infinite expansion varies as the square of the radius. In the same magazine Mr. Chas. M. Robinson reviews the improvement in the condition of city life which has been effected during the past 20 years.

In the "Popular Science Monthly" Mr. Edward Atkinson presents his views on the wheat production controversy, which has already been noticed in these columns. Life on a South Sea whaling ship in the days when New Bedford's great industry was at its height is described by F. T. Bullen. The "North American Review" opens with a paper by Congressman John Hull on the Army reorganization. He places the responsibility for the makeshift bill passed by the last Congress where it rightly belongs. "The Future of Cuba" is the subject of a paper by Robert P. Porter, who shows very plainly that the material interests of Cuba will be best served by close identity with the United States. He points out the kind of labor needed and the fields for profitable enterprise in Cuba, and this portion of his article should have much practical usefulness. Another paper in the same magazine on the Mexican Hacienda system is of considerable interest at this time when the new problem of controlling the labor of tropical countries is before us.

In the April "Forum" Rev. Gilbert Reid discusses American opportunities in China, and urges that America should unite with England to secure the maintenance of the "open door" in China. It is to be feared, however, that the opportunity to effectively do this has already passed. "The Industrial Development of Russia," by Prof. Ivan Oseroff, of Moscow University, is a most interesting account of the growths of manufacturing, mining and other industries in Russia. It is of interest to note that Russia has a sugar trust, which was organized at the suggestion and with the co-operation of the government.

The trial trip of the "Oregon" is described by Rear-Admiral Beardslee in the April "Harper," and is one of the best accounts of the contract trial of a battleship that we have seen printed anywhere. In the same magazine Mr. Russell Sturgis continues his papers on city house architecture, discussing closets, plumbing, heating and house equipment generally.

In the April "Scribner's" we find an interesting account of a journey to the Klondike in winter, by Frederick Palmer. "The Review of Reviews" for April has a couple of papers on our Pacific problems, "American and Malay in Hawaii," by Winthrop L. Marvin, and "Material Problems in the Philippines," by Samuel W. Belford. Mr. W. H. Tolman also writes on landscape gardening for factory homes, and tells of the wonderful results which have been accomplished by an enterprising and liberal-minded manufacturer at Dayton, O. "The Fortnightly Review" for March contains a better account of General Wood's work at Santiago than we have seen in any American periodical.

Most of the matter in this report relates to the recent winter meeting of the society, an account of which was given in our issue of Jan. 11, 1899.

THE HORSELESS AGE. E. P. Ingersoll, Editor and Proprietor, New York City. 9¼ × 12 ins.; pp. 25. Illustrated.

This is number 1, volume 4, of a technical journal published in the interest of the motor vehicle industry. With the present issue it changes from a monthly to a weekly publication, and will henceforth be issued on Wednesday of each week.

THE CIVIL ENGINEER AS A GUARDIAN OF THE PUBLIC HEALTH.—By J. B. Johnson, Member of the Engineers' Club of St. Louis. Reprinted from the Journal of the Association of Engineering Societies, vol. xxi., No. 6 (Dec., 1898). Paper; 6 × 9 ins.; pp. 11.

In this paper the author reviewed rapidly some of the ways in which the public health, especially of our cities, is conserved by the work of engineers.

DRINKING WATER; CITY, TOWN AND RURAL SUPPLIES.—By A. W. Blair, State Chemist of North Carolina. Bulletin No. 161. The North Carolina Agricultural Experiment Station. Paper; 6 × 9 ins.; pp. 207-23. Raleigh, N. C.: Address the Director.

This is a somewhat popular review of the subject indicated in the title, with directions for taking and sending samples and the results of a number of analyses.

PASSAIC RIVER POLLUTION.—Report of Commission Appointed to Consider the Pollution of the Rivers and Streams of New Jersey. Jas. A. Exton, Secretary, Arlington, N. J. Paper; 6 × 9 ins.; pp. 54.

The main part of this report was abstracted at length in our issue of March 9. In addition to the ideas on the solution of the Passaic pollution problem, dvanced by the Commission, there was a number of reports from committees appointed by the several committees affected and a minority report by Mr. Jno. Hinchliffe, Mayor of Paterson.

AN IMPROVED FILTER FOR MICROSCOPICAL WATER ANALYSIS.—By Daniel D. Jackson, S. B., Chemist, Department of Water Supply, Brooklyn, N. Y. Reprinted from the "Technology Quarterly," December, 1898. Paper; 7 × 10 ins.; pp. 5; one illustration.

This pamphlet describes an improvement of the Sedgewick-Rafter method, designed to secure more accuracy in determining delicate organisms, like protozoa. It consists of an attachment to the ordinary filter tunnel, by means of which samples may be collected with less danger of destruction than ordinarily.

LEGISLATION BY STATES IN 1898.—State Library Bulletin No. 10. Albany: University of the State of New York. Paper; 6 × 9 ins.; pp. 742—909. Price, 25 cts.; or $1 each for Vols. 1 or 2, covering years 1890-4 and 1895-9, respectively.

This is a most admirable and useful piece of work. The most important legislation of the year is reviewed and correlated with previous legislation. Then follows a well classified summary of all except purely local legislation. Where the statutes summarized have been declared unconstitutional between the date of passage and the close of 1898, the fact is noted.

STATE ENGINEER OF WYOMING.—Report for the years 1897 and 1898. Elwood Mead, Engineer, Cheyenne, Wyo. Paper; 6 × 9 ins.; pp. 304; illustrated.

This report contains a large amount of matter relating to irrigation and kindred subjects in Wyoming, including some handsome views of natural scenery. In our issue of Dec. 29, 1898, we published a long extract from advance pages of the report, under the title, "Stream Gagings and Other Studies Relating to Irrigation in Wyoming."

STATE ENGINEER OF UTAH.—Report for the Years 1897 and 1898. R. C. Gemmell, State Engineer, Salt Lake City. Paper; 6 × 9 ins.; illustrations and tables.

Appended to Mr. Gemmell's review of the work of his office are "Special Instructions to Watermasters as to Measurements of Water so as to Secure a Just Distribution of the Same." Besides illustrated descriptions of various measuring devices some useful tables are given. Special computations were made for the table giving the discharges over rectangular weirs, with two complete contractions, so that the quantities could be read direct, without subsequent computations; the heads are also given in inches, approximately, as well as in decimal parts of a foot. All this trouble was taken to aid the watermasters, few of whom are engineers. The tables may prove of value to others than those for whom they were primarily intended.

THE PROBLEM OF WATER PURIFICATION FOR THE CITY OF PHILADELPHIA.—By P. J. A. Maignen. Reprinted from Procedings of the Engineers' Club of Philadelphia, vol. xvi., No. 2 (March, 1899). Paper; 6 × 9 ins.; pp. 25.

This paper describes a patented system of filtration which the author is promoting in this country. It appears from the paper that for the water supply of Philadelphia double filtration is suggested, with a primary filter composed partly of charcoal, operating at 120,000,000 gallons an acre, and a secondary filter of sand covered with asbestos, working at 12,000,000 gallons an acre.

ENGINEERING CONSTRUCTION IN CONNECTION WITH RAINFALL.—By J. I. Haycroft, M. Inst. C. E. I., Assoc. M. Am. C. E., Wooliahra, N. S. W., Australia. Reprinted from the Journal and Proceedings of the Royal Society of New South Wales, Vol. xxxii. Paper; 5 × 7 ins.; pp. XXX-LXIII.

The subject named is discussed chiefly from the standpoint of the relation between rainfall or stream flow and railway design and construction. Some consideration is also given to municipal engineering problems. A number of formulas are presented and discussed, and several authorities, mostly American, are cited, by quoting from their published works and personal correspondence with the author.

AZIMUTHS OF THE NORTH POLE STAR for 1899 and 1900. Lat. 48° N. to Lat. 54° N. By S. A. Roberts, Dominion and Provincial Land Surveyor, Victoria, B. C. Paper, 9 × 6 ins. pp. 5. $1.00.

This useful set of tables is accompanied by a full explanation of their use and the rule for finding the azimuth. With them and a reliable watch, Mr. Roberts claims that a true meridian, or any other line, can be determined, whenever the North Star is visible, without the ordinary tedious method of waiting for the elongation. The azimuths are given to the nearest tenth of a minute for the latitude used.

INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION UNIVERSELLE, PARIS, 1900.—General information for citizens of the United States of America who desire to become exhibitors. Regulations, classifications. Compiled under the direction of the Commissioner-General for the United States. Chicago, Ill. January, 1899. Paper; 9 × 6 ins.; pp. 110.

This compilation includes the law of the U. S. establishing the commission; the various decrees of the French Republic relating to the exposition; the general staff of the exposition in Paris; a description of the grounds and buildings; the general classification of exhibits under 18 heads; railway agreements; freight rates to Paris, and general information for exhibitors. Among the decrees will be found the awards to exhibitors and diplomas, and the duties of the international jury and the method of organization. The Chicago office of the American commission is in the Auditorium Building; the New York office in the Equitable Building, and the Paris office is at No. 20 Avenue Rapp.

IRON MAKING IN ALABAMA.—By Wm. Battle Phillips, Ph. D., Alabama Geological Survey. Second edition. Montgomery, Ala., 1898. Paper; 9 × 6 ins.; pp. 380.

The first edition of this report was published in 1896, and the present edition recasts the entire chapter on fuels and adds a new chapter on pig-iron. The writer has been the consulting chemist for the Birmingham Rolling Mill and Steel Works since the building of their first basic furnace, and he treats of the ores found—especially hematite ores, the fluxes, fuel, furnaces, pig-iron and cost of production in Alabama. Other chapters relate to coal, concentration of low grade ores, basic steel and iron, and the coke furnaces. In 1889-90 the average cost of making pig-iron in Alabama was about $9.50 per ton; in 1890-97 the lowest cost was $5.75; this question of cost is treated in minute detail. The general average price of Alabama coal, f. o. b. at mines, was $0.88 per ton in 1897, with a total production of 5,893,770 tons for that year. The average cost of hard, soft and brown ore, in 1896, was $0.672, $0.572 and $1.07 per ton respectively; the limestone cost $0.647 and the coke $1.727 in the same year. In making the iron, in 1896, the materials cost 70.9%; labor 15%; supplies and current repairs 4.8 and 3.2%, and the remainder was represented by general expenses, relining, taxes and bad debts.

WATER SUPPLY AND IRRIGATION PAPERS OF THE U. S. GEOLOGICAL SURVEY.—No. 19, Irrigation near Merced, Cal., by Carl Ewald Grunsky; pp. 58. No. 20, Experiments with Windmills, by Thos. O. Perry; pp. 96. Washington, D. C. Paper; 9 × 6 ins.

The first of these papers describes the hydrography of the San Joaquin, Merced and other rivers, and illustrates and describes the canals, dams and appurtenances employed in the development of the irrigating system on these rivers. In an introduction to the second paper, Mr. F. H. Newell, Chief Hydrographer, points out the value of the windmill throughout the sections of arid and semi-arid country where underground water is to be found. In these sections the wind is almost constantly blowing, and Mr. Newell briefly outlines the best practice in raising the water by windmills, storing and distributing it to the crops. The experiments upon windmills here set forth were commenced in 1882 and ended in 1883; and the only well defined previous records date back about 125 years, as made by John Smeaton, and reported to the Royal Society in 1759. Mr. Perry describes and illustrates the apparatus employed by him, and then in a series of tables gives the results of his experiments with various types of wheels. As the result of these experiments he discusses the best angle of of weather, the automatic brake-adjuster, the theory of the action of wind on sails, barometric and thermometric influences, axle friction, the construction of sails, etc.

Under the head of power windmills he deduces that in a 5-mile wind a 12-ft. windmill develops a power about equal to 1-40 of a horse-power. Computing the power of other wind velocities, according to the law of cubes, he finds as follows for a 12-ft. wheel: 5-mile wind, 0.025 HP.; 10-mile wind, 0.2 HP.; 15-mile wind, 0.675 HP.; 20-mile wind, 1.6 HP.; 25-mile wind, 3.125 HP.; 30-mile wind, 5.4 HP.; 35-mile wind, 8.575 HP., and in a 40-mile wind, 12.8 HP. Most of the 12-ft. wheels are now made strong enough to stand the strain of furnishing 13 HP., or to work in a 40-mile wind.

HOUSE PAINTS.—New Jersey Zinc Co., 52 Wall St., New York. Paper; 7 × 4¼ ins.; pp. 16. Illustrated.

Under the title of "Paints and Architecture," Mr. Stanton Dudley has here given a concise and practical treatise on the characteristics and properties of pigments and paints for the especial benefit of architects. Starting with the proposition that the object of painting is "to protect and beautify," Mr. Dudley deals with the pigments and vehicles by the use of which an architect can expect permanence and beauty in his "color scheme." He deals with the means of detecting the presence of aniline dyes, and adulterants for oil; and discusses at considerable length white lead and zinc. He shows by illustrations the effect of weathering, sulphur fumes, etc., on these two pigments, and gives his reasons for preferring zinc white to the long used white lead in paints. He says good ready-made paints cannot be made without zinc white; but pure linseed oil is quite as essential for the vehicle, and cheap substitutes for this oil will largely counteract the best pigment.

MOTOR CARRIAGES.—The Winton Carriage Co., Cleveland, O. Pamph.; 7 × 5 ins.; pp. 12. Illustrated.

This pamphlet describes in a necessarily abbreviated manner the good points of a type of motor vehicle which employs a gasoline motor, claimed by the makers to be all that could be desired. The accompanying illustrations show a simple and compact carriage and delivery wagon, and the testimonials seem to bear out the builders' claims.

THE AJAX BLUE BOOK.—The Ajax Manufacturing Co., Cleveland, O. Pampb.; 7⅜ × 4¾ ins.; pp. 115. Illustrated.

This pamphlet presents a series of illustrations of heading, forging and upsetting machines, with descriptions which are scarcely more than general dimensions. Bending, bulldozing and bot pressed nut machines are treated in the same way. A number of dimensioned drawings of specimens produced by the various machines are given, and the pamphlet concludes with tables showing the amount of material required to make bolt heads, number of rivets per 100 lbs., etc.

This little work contains an engraving of each of the various types of air compressors made by this company, with remarks as to their particular merits and appropriate use. An interesting table at the end gives in alphabetical order a list of about 170 processes and devices using compressed air. A similar little book of 20 pages illustrates and describes the several types of rock-drills and stone-channeling machines made by the Ingersoll-Sergeant Co.

STEEL DOOR HANGERS AND RAILS, AND CHAIN HOISTS.—The Chisholm & Moore Mfg. Co., Cleveland, O. Pampb.; 6 × 9 ins.; pp. 24. Illustrated.

This is a very attractive booklet published by the passenger department of the New York Central Railway to call attention to Saratoga, N. Y., as a watering place. The prominent hotels and points of interest of this well-known resort are illustrated and briefly described. A portion of the pamphlet shows some of the scenery along the Hudson River, as it appears from the "Saratoga Limited," and several interior views of this speedy and comfortable train are given.

WATCHMAN'S TIME DETECTOR.—The Cleveland Electrical Manufacturing Co., Arthur B. Foster, General Manager. Paper; 9 × 6 ins.; pp. 32. Illustrated.

This catalogue is devoted to illustrating and describing the American Watchman's Time Detector, approved by all the mutual and standard insurance companies. Any one instrument may be connected with any number of stations at any distance; and the one dial keeps a full separate record for each watchman. And the record can only be made by operating the separate stations, so that no one watchman can make a record for others without being detected.

PELTON WATER WHEELS.—Pelton Water Wheel Co., 121-123 Main St., San Francisco, Cal. Catalogue in Spanish. Paper; 10¼ × 6⅝ ins.; pp. 80. Illustrated.

This company is fully awake to the trade possibilities of our "new possessions," and this catalogue is not only issued in Spanish and fully describes and illustrates the machines manufactured, but it also gives all instructions and tables in metrical measurements. Its general appearance is a telling argument in favor of the policy of pushing American manufactures among foreign nations by addressing them in their own language and speaking in dimensions with which they are familiar.

HOISTING ENGINES, PILE-DRIVERS, ETC.—Excelsior Iron Works Co., Cleveland, O. Paper; 12 × 9¾ ins.; pp. 47. Illustrated.

The catalogue of this company covers a long list of machinery, tools and appliances used by contractors, quarrymen, miners, railways, steamship companies, etc. Among those illustrated and described we note the following: The Long car-dumping machine; the Long coal and ore car unloading machine; revolving steam traveling derricks; bottom-dump coal buckets; steel clam-shell buckets; hand traveling cranes; wrecking cars; derricks and quarry machinery; steam engines and boilers; frogs, switches and stands.

STREET SWEEPING AND PICKING-UP MACHINE.—Improved Street Sweeper Co., 601 German National Bank Building. Pittsburg, Pa. Paper; 7 × 4⅝ ins.; pp. 12. Illustrated.

The Monarch Pick-up Street Sweeping Machine is described as a "huge carpet sweeper" adapted to the cleaning of streets. The revolving broom is made of steel wires, which pick up and deposit in a cylindrical continuous casing all manner of refuse; the casing encloses the vital parts of the machine and a chain conveyor carries the sweepings into a tank on top of the machine. This tank holds one cubic yard and can be turned upside down and made to deposit the dirt in piles for removal in wagons. Letters are shown attesting to its satisfactory use in Pittsburg and Allegheny during last year.

MILL MACHINERY; THE "GRILL" PATENT DRYER.—C. O. Bartlett & Co., Cleveland, O. Pamphs.; 5¾ × 9 ins.; pp. 178; and 9 × 6¼ ins.; pp. 20. Both illustrated.

The first of these pamphlets is largely devoted to chain bucket conveyors, belt conveyors and other conveyors for such purposes as raising barrels. The remainder refers to engines, boilers, grinders and general milling machinery. The second pamphlet describes a form of revolving dryer which consists of a cylindrical case divided into four longitudinal compartments, to the inner faces of which are riveted small Z-bars. These form pockets from which the material spills, as the dryer revolves, and is thus continually exposed to the hot air which circulates through the cylinder. Other special drying apparatus is illustrated and described.

STEAM GAGES AND VALVES.—Crosby Steam Gage & Valve Co., Boston, Mass. Catalogue; 6¼ × 9¼ ins.; pp. 174. Illustrated.

This is a cloth-bound book, well illustrated and well printed, and of more than ordinary value owing to the explanations given of the principles and operation of the instruments illustrated. Various forms of steam, vacuum and pressure gages, revolution counters, gage tablets, test pumps and gage testers are shown. Considerable space is devoted to valves of different sorts. The Crosby steam engine indicator is described in detail, and a new form of electrical attachment for the simultaneous operation of several indicators is shown. Planimeters and their use are described, and a table of circumferences and areas of circles concludes the catalogue.

STEAM ENGINES AND BOILERS; AUTOMATIC ENGINES AND DIRECT CONNECTED HIGH SPEED ENGINES.—Watertown Steam Engine Co., Watertown, N. Y. Three pamphlets; 6 × 9 ins.; pp. 31, 16 and 24, respectively. Illustrated.

The first of these pamphlets illustrates and describes the types of slow speed automatic engines manufactured by this concern for heavy duty and several forms of high-speed automatic engine and both stationary and portable return tube steam boilers. Tables giving general dimensions accompany the text. Portable engines and agricultural engines are also included. The second pamphlet briefly discusses the advantages of the Watertown automatic engine and reproduces a number of indicator diagrams taken from engines of this class which have been in operation for some time. The third pamphlet contains several excellent illustrations of high speed engines direct connected to electric generators, both engine and generator being on the same bed plate. The accompanying text notes briefly the good points of these engines.

The determination of the Highway Department is conclusive, and any complaints of other officers will not excuse the Auditor and Comptroller in the performance of their duties which are held to be ministerial.
