We have spoken generally in defence of accountants, meaning by that term those who are regularly qualified by professional knowledge and experience to exercise their craft. But we must again appeal to the world not to put faith in every individual who puts that title on a brass plate. At present any one who chooses may style himself an accountant, just as any one may be a dentist; but the recognised members of the profession must not be blamed for the vagaries of outsiders. In the case we have been commenting on, we do not know the name of the trustee, and only infer that he is an accountant from the remarks of the judge. But, be he who and what he may, we still protest against the injustice to the individual, and the insult to the profession; and we do most earnestly press upon the attention of all accountants the lesson that they may derive. Let them consolidate themselves more; let the higher and better known members of the profession protest against the innuendoes and aspersions that are constantly being cast upon them. They may think it beneath their dignity to notice such attacks; but the remarks of a judge, expressing, as we fear, the opinion of many of his legal brethren, demand an answer. Let them endeavour to assert their own rights, and while systematically discouraging all attempts at fraternity from the casual tribe of mere debt collectors, let them unite with their younger brethren in guiding and regulating public opinion. Otherwise they may find that a feeling will be aroused, encouraged by their apathy, fed by sinister motives of class jealousy, and aided by the clamour of those who shout with all noisy babblers, which may be hard to allay. They have fairly appropriated an unoccupied area of legitimate usefulness; if they are wise, they will leave no stone unturned to strengthen and consolidate their position.

We published a letter last week which, in a portion of one sentence, contained a brief epitome of the universal series of complaints against the Bankruptcy Act, and which at the same time goes to the root of the outcry. Our correspondent briefly narrates that previous to a certain meeting of creditors due notice had been sent out, but that the meeting was attended only by three solicitors, each of whom appeared armed with a bundle of proxies, and each of whom was "friendly." His comment upon this circumstance is pithy: "It appears," he wrote, "most ridiculous and absurd for the public to raise an outcry about the manner in which liquidations, compositions, or arrangements are carried out, when no one individual will trouble himself to look after his own affairs." Here is briefly the "Iliad in a nutshell." A debtor whose affairs are in process of arrangement, a party of "friendly" solicitors, and a company of careless or indifferent creditors, form a dramatis personæ with which any student of human nature, as seen through the medium of the bankruptcy court, can form his tableau.

The complaints against the working of the Act may generally be resolved into two. Firstly, it is said, all expenses are very much increased; and secondly, debtors look upon the process under the Act as a means of whitewashing themselves, and not so much as a mode of protecting honest, but unfortunate men, against the stringent harshness of a solitary creditor, as a device by the aid of which they may escape the necessity of payment to any creditor at all. Now, we are not very much concerned to defend the Act in its integrity. We have not only frequently admitted into our columns letters from correspondents calling attention to its numerous defects, but we have also ourselves pointed out many points which, in our judgment, require very considerable modification. And so, we claim that in seeming to commend the Act we may be allowed the benefit of our criticisms in the past, and, if we contend that a bad statute may be greatly improved by attention and care on the part of those who are most concerned with it, we must not be taken to have abandoned all hope of reform. There are many measures badly framed and carelessly draughted, which, if studied by zealous minds and scrutinised by keen eyes, may be made to bring about a great deal of injustice; and to this category the Bankruptcy Act belongs. But, at the same time, we must add that, one of the greatest aids to fraud in its working lies in the apathy of creditors.

Digitized by Google

The principle of the Act is, to give every available opportunity to the creditors to realise an amount equivalent to their loss, while at the same time it affords an equitable amount of protection to the debtor. The creditors may proceed in bankruptcy if they choose, with all the odium cast upon the debtor that the name involves; or they may, if they think fit, suffer matters to go into liquidation, which is practically intended to be realising the assets in their own way; or they may, if compassion and self-interest point in the same direction, accept a composition, and thereby at once relieve the debtor from further anxiety as to his future, and ease their own minds by at once assessing the amount of their loss. But it too often happens that cunning debtors, advised by dexterous solicitors, take advantage of those sections of the Act which provide for the carrying of resolutions by the majority of creditors voting personally or by proxy, and by the aid of the corporeal presence, and the incorporeal, but no less effectual, proxies of their friends succeed in governing the meeting just as they choose. Here we get at the root of the evil. In every failure there are almost always several so-called friendly creditors. These may be bonâ-fide creditors, who have really a strong feeling of sympathy for the debtor, and are willing to make a sacrifice for the purpose of assisting him, or they may be creditors manufactured by means well-known, for the purpose of creating a fictitious majority in his favour. But, worked upon by the persuasion of cunning advocates, there they are, ready to vote any thing that may be required of them; and their numbers are too often reinforced by those men who, too busy or too careless to attend in person, are willing to hand over their proxies to the first person who asks for them. The Act was supposed to put an end to the tricks perpetrated under the old system of composition deeds, in which fictitious debts were largely used to eke out the deficient majority; and sought to obviate this by enacting that the creditors should meet together and pass resolutions. But this was frustrated by the general apathy of creditors. Here is the first great remedy to be adopted. It is just as impossible to make men wise and prudent by Act of Parliament, as it is to make them virtuous or temperate. It is possible to crowd every imaginable safeguard into the columns of a statute, and yet to fail to make sure that mankind will take advantage of them. The first rule to be adopted is, for every creditor to look after his interests. If every man who is applied to for his proxy, would remember that "friendliness" in matters of bankruptcy, like "benevolent neutrality" in the case of belligerent powers, means the strongest possible form of partisanship, he would hesitate before lending the weight of his authority to the tactics of an interested solicitor. If he would make up his mind to judge for himself, or at the least to preserve a strict and legitimate neutrality, and to take no part in the proceedings whatever, he would do some good. At present, a great many complaints come from those whose loss and annoyance is owing to their own carelessness, but who are the first to cry out when it recoils upon themselves. The first step to reform must be to prove its necessity, and that can only be done by those whose sufferings are due, not to their own thoughtlessness or negligence, but to the necessary and consequential results of the legislation of which they complain.

BANKRUPTCY STATISTICS.

The Fifth Annual Report by the Comptroller in Bankruptcy has recently been issued, embracing the proceedings under the Bankruptcy Act of 1869 for the year ending the 31st December, 1874. The general features of the Report are similar to those of the previous year. These are:—an increase in the number of failures, especially under the heading of liquidations and compositions; an increase in the amount of liabilities; and an increase in the cost of winding-up. So far as can be ascertained from the statistics on this point, which are confined to Bankruptcy proper (no information being given as to the expenses of winding-up under liquidation by arrangement), the total number of estates administered under the Act during the year 1874 was 7919, the liabilities thereunder amounting to £20,136,670. Compared with 1870, the first year under the Act of 1869, the year 1874 shows an increase of 58 per cent. in the total failures, the numbers being 5,002 as against 7,919. In the year 1870 there were 1,616 compositions registered; last year there were 2,549. Of the former number, the rates of composition in 562, or 34·77 per cent., exceeded 7s. 6d. in the pound; of the latter number, only 409 or 16·05 per cent., exceeded that rate. In fact, one fifth, or 20 per cent. of the whole number of compositions registered last year, were at rates not exceeding one shilling in the pound.

The average cost of realising and distributing Bankrupts' estates, as ascertained from 552 estates closed in 1874, amounted to 36·39 per cent. of the assets realised, of which nearly 20 per cent. consisted of law costs, while receivers and trustees together figure for 9·53 per cent. The number of bankruptcies pending on the 31st December, 1874, was 2924, and during the year the conduct of the trustees in no less than 562 of these cases was reported to the Courts by the Comptroller, and in four instances the trustees were removed from their office. In several cases the trustees had either removed or absconded. The number of bills taxed by the Masters and Registrars during the year was 14,838, about one half of which were solicitors' bills. The gross amount of bills brought in for taxation was £415,882, and the amount taxed off was £65,449. The number of trustees' bills taxed under liquidations was 571, the number of liquidations registered being 4,440.

Digitized by Google

These statistics do not appear to call for any particular comment. They do not indicate any improvement over the preceding years in the matter of cost of administration, rather the reverse. Nor are the increase of failures, the increase of liabilities, and the decrease of assets, matters upon which we can offer any congratulations to the commercial world. The figures for the current year will doubtless disclose, when published, a still worse state of affairs, at any rate as regards the increase of failures and liabilities.

It will be observed from the report that out of a total increase of 430 in the failures for 1874 over 1873, no less than 415 fall under the headings of liquidation or composition, again showing the marked preference shown by debtors, and we must presume by creditors, for these methods of administration over bankruptcy proper. But we cannot help thinking that if the administration of estates under bankruptcy and liquidation were not to some extent discredited by creditors, they would not so eagerly accept the trifling compositions which are so often offered. The serious decline year after year in the rates of dividend paid in composition cases is one of the most marked features of the last three reports of the Comptroller, and should engage the earnest attention of those who have been intrusted with the duty of inquiring into the working of the Act of 1869. This point has, doubtless, not escaped the deliberations of the Lord Chancellor's Committee; and, as we suppose we may now look forward to an early publication of the Committee's report, seeing that the appointment was made nearly twelve months ago, we purpose to reserve further comment on the subject of bankruptcy amendment generally until the report is before us. We are presuming the report of the Committee will be published; but should the Lord Chancellor not have determined on its publication, we should strongly advise his doing so, as a discussion of the recommendations of the Committee cannot but strengthen the hands of the Government in dealing with this important question.

FACTS AND FALLACIES CONCERNING LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANIES.*

It may be open to discussion how far existing Life Assurance Companies require a champion to assert their solvency and sound condition, but it is at any rate a matter for congratulation when so earnest and competent an advocate, as is the author of this brochure, puts pen to paper for the purpose of demonstrating the stability of the various offices. Since the passing of the Life Assurance Companies' Act the returns furnished to the Board of Trade are replete with information concerning the financial conditions of the life offices transacting business in the United Kingdom, and the so-called "valuation accounts" contain ample materials upon which the professional actuary may exercise his statistical powers. It is not, however, to his professional brethren that the author of "Facts and Fallacies" solely addresses himself, as his remarks are stated to be for the benefit of the public at large, whether previously acquainted or not with the subject upon which he treats. "The alarm excited in the public mind with regard to the financial position of the majority of the life assurance offices is without foundation," is an assertion of a straightforward character, to say the least, and having regard to the source whence it emanates, should carry weight. The author goes straight and steadily to his goal, and judiciously dividing his subject under four heads, deals with it in a clear and masterly manner, and in so explicit a way that the merest tyro cannot fail to appreciate and understand the statements and comparisons set before him. We recommend every one interested in life assurance to read the pamphlet, and above all, to examine carefully the four very excellent diagrams, which form one of the best features of the book.

The Hon. Judge Miller has had before him, in the Dublin Bankruptcy Court, the case of a representative of an ancient Irish constituency, who is at present effecting an arrangement with his creditors. The matter had been before the court when some of the creditors offered a determined opposition to the arrangement, and sought to turn the case into bankruptcy. Owing to a difference of opinion in regard to "proofs," the case was adjourned. The debtor was examined, and it appeared from his evidence that the only assets he had were some shares in a public company, and a sum of about £2,000, which he expected soon to receive. Judge Miller having heard the evidence, declined to turn the case into bankruptcy, and passed the first sitting in arrangement.

* Facts and Fallacies concerning Life Assurance Companies, illustrated by Diagrams, by F. Allan Curtis, F.I.A. London: Rixon and Arnold, 29 Poultry. Price One Shilling.

Digitized by Google

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the Accountant.

Sir,—Mr. Justice Quain has thought fit, in a recent prosecution, to give his personal views as to the position and status of Public Accountants as a body, and the Daily Telegraph has taken up the hue and cry.

The remarks arose out of the liquidation proceedings of a cabinet maker named Winge, who appears to have been guilty of a fraudulent sale, and of concealing a material and valuable asset from his creditors. Sufficient information is not given to enable one to judge how far the trustee, in instituting the prosecution, was getting up "an Accountant's case" (an expression hitherto unknown to me). The trustee is a stranger to me, and were I personally acquainted with him, I should leave him to fight his own battle, but I must take exception to the gratuitous vilifying of the whole profession. It is a deliberate misrepresentation to say that accountants, when acting as trustees, are not under the control of the Court; they are very much under the control of the Court, and subject to very severe penalties.

I have also yet to learn that, as a body, accountants are "an ignorant set of men." I have met a great many of my colleagues, and it has been my pleasure to notice that a high type of intelligence preponderates. Mr. Plimsoll is getting himself into hot water by his negligence of facts, and persistent reiteration of generalities. Mr. Justice Quain, who, as a judge, is supposed to be impartial, should have confined himself to the facts before him; for wholesale and gratuitous abuse of a body of men, the majority of whom must be unknown to him, is hardly in accordance either with the dictates of decency or common sense, or that impartiality on which the English Bench so prides itself.

The Daily Telegraph does not appear to understand the duties for which a respectable accountant is, or should be, qualified; they are according to my views as follows:—

1. The keeping and auditing of business, manufacturing, banking, and other books of accounts, and the preparation of balance sheets.
2. Arbitration in cases in which facts, figures or commercial customs are the points at issue.
3. Liquidations in chancery.
4. Receiverships, managerships and trusteeships in bankruptcy, and matters generally relating to accounts and figures.

To assert, however, that an accountant is simply a book-keeper and auditor, is all nonsense. A man may be a very fair book-keeper, and yet prove to be an indifferent accountant; but a good accountant must necessarily be an efficient book-keeper. Undoubtedly the most pleasant part of our profession is that of keeping and auditing books, and showing traders their profits, but it is equally our duty to bring to light deficits, defalcations, &c.

The great hostility appears to be directed against trustees. Now, sir, as you well know, trusteeships are no sinecures; in the first place, the liabilities of a trustee are personal, and even where he obeys the directions of the creditors, if their directions should prove to be wrong, he cannot, unless he holds their special indemnity in writing, ask them to make good any loss he may sustain; in the second place, under the present rotten laws (which, bear in mind, no accountant is consulted in the framing of) many of the estates which go either into liquidation or bankruptcy only do so when the debtor or bankrupt has sucked all the good out of them, and a large number do not realise sufficient to pay the expenses out of pocket. In small estates, again, the trustee may, with great trouble, succeed in realising a few assets, and then find that the lawyer's and other costs, which take priority over his remuneration, leave nothing for his services. I know some public accountants who persistently refuse trusteeships, their experience teaching them that the remuneration for services rendered is not equivalent to the risk and annoyance incurred.

The Daily Telegraph appears to have got hold of some titles which I am sure are unknown in the profession. I never heard of "a certified accountant," "a professed accountant," or "an accountant of the City of London."

Again, the Daily Telegraph complains of the discreditable fry "collecting debts, discounting bills on a petty scale, at exorbitant and ruinous rates," and "getting hold of fat pickings out of little bankruptcy cases." Every accountant has occasionally to apply for debts, and I plead guilty to the charge, but I am satisfied with taking a commission from my principal for doing so, and in no instance charge a fee to the debtor, neither do I, in cases of non-payment, go beyond intimating that unless the debt be paid on or before a certain date the matter will be handed over to a solicitor. I consider that every man should have a reasonable opportunity of paying before he is put to legal expense, and I do not think that any respectable member of the legal profession would differ from this view. Every man in business has occasionally to collect debts for others; even large merchants, having correspondents abroad, and bankers; and no respectable accountant goes beyond two or three applications, courteously expressed. There are, undoubtedly, black sheep among us, and accountants who desire to conduct their business respectably are the greatest sufferers by their misconduct.

Notwithstanding the somewhat serious mistakes of the Daily Telegraph, through evident ignorance of what constitutes an accountant, I am exceedingly grateful to that paper for advocating that which the various societies of accountants have for some years (and hitherto unsuccessfully) striven to obtain, namely the placing of competent and reputable accountants upon a proper footing of protection.

There is, I sincerely believe, a large field still open for our profession, but we ought to be able legally to exclude those fools and rogues who disgrace us. I trust that the agitation of this question may lead to some practical result. If the legislature will grant a charter to the various societies upon their adopting one uniform basis, and impose an annual fee similar to that now paid by solicitors, I feel convinced that both the public and the profession, as well as the revenue, will be gainers thereby; but it is hardly fair to refuse us the means of keeping our profession respectable, and then vilify us as a body because incompetent and disreputable men choose to dub themselves by a name, the duties in connection with which they are not qualified to perform. I do hope the various societies will co-operate for the purpose of placing the profession on a recognised footing: I am sure if they do so, they will obtain the support not only of the commercial community, but also of the law.

Digitized by Google

For the guidance of the Daily Telegraph, I would add, that Accountants do not make out Bills of Costs: as Accountants, they claim for Accountants' Charges; as Trustees, for remuneration.

Yours truly,
F. S. A. E.

London, 19th August, 1875.

To the Editor of the Accountant.

SIR,—The notice of the public accountants of England should, I think, be specially called to the report of a case tried at Bristol before Mr. Justice Quain, on the 13th instant, and reported in the Times of the 16th instant. James Winge, a cabinet maker, who had filed a petition for liquidation by arrangement, was indicted for various offences under the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, for concealing property and not delivering up certain monies to the trustee of his bankruptcy. The prosecution was ordered by the county court judge, after an investigation of the whole facts and circumstances of the debtor's dealings with his property; but this is the extraordinary summing up of Mr. Justice Quain to the jury, as reported in the Times:—

"The learned Judge, after commenting on the costs of the examination before the registrar, the magistrates, and the present trial, said the affairs of bankrupts now got into the hands of accountants, debt collectors, and others, instead of into the hands of solicitors, gentlemen who were under the control of the court. They had got into the hands of a class of persons over whom the courts had no control at all, and he trusted before long the mercantile community would give an opinion on the present bankruptcy system, and deliver it in such a manner that it should be heard by the legislature. That the whole affairs in bankruptcy should be taken out of the hands of solicitors—a respectable body, subject to the control of the court—and handed over to an ignorant set of men called accountants, was one of the grossest abuses, in his opinion, ever introduced into the law."

The report continues that the jury found the prisoner guilty, with the strongest recommendation to mercy. The foreman added, that the jury concurred in every remark which had fallen from the learned judge with regard to the present system which obtains under the Bankruptcy Act. The prisoner had already been in prison six weeks, and his lordship sentenced him to a fortnight's imprisonment without hard labour, and also disallowed the costs of the prosecution. Now, doubtless, it may be a mark of great learning, wisdom, and impartiality, to brand indiscriminately a large class of professional men as an ignorant set; but allegation is no proof, and the questions I would like to ask Justice Quain are the following:—

Is it becoming in a judge to discredit the law which he is called upon to administer, and to express a hope that the mercantile community would deliver an opinion in such a manner that it should be heard by the Legislature?

Was the Bankruptcy Act drawn up by ignorant laymen, or by learned lawyers?

Is it true that accountants acting as trustees are not under the control of the court to which the proceedings relate, namely the Court of Bankruptcy?

Is it true that accountant trustees, charged with instituting prosecutions against fraudulent debtors, act without the advice and assistance of duly qualified solicitors?

Is it just to saddle an accountant trustee with the costs of a prosecution which resulted in a conviction, and which has been ordered by a county court judge after an investigation of the legal evidence in the case?

Such cases as the foregoing more than ever serve to show the necessity of the public accountants of England combining to let their voices be heard in defence of their just rights, whenever and by whomsoever assailed.

I am, sir, your obedient servant,
S. D. N.

To the Editor of the Accountant.

SIR,—The opinions of the Bench are, as a rule, greatly valued and highly appreciated by the community, and the utterances of a judge are generally considered to be not only the result of careful deliberation and practical experience, but also to possess for their basis a long legal training and a supreme knowledge of the law. It will, therefore, be a matter of astonishment to accountants to find themselves suddenly stigmatised as a "set of ignorant men" by Mr. Justice Quain,—a gentleman who has universally been considered to possess a knowledge of commercial transactions in a practical sense, and who has always been thought to have certain pretensions to a thorough acquaintance with the different classes of business men by whom those transactions are carried out. A veil becomes, however, lifted from our eyes when we find ourselves attacked in so unqualified a manner, when we are as a body so vehemently decried, and when we have the authority of a judge to consider ourselves neither scrupulous, intelligent, nor honest. There are certainly grave and serious grounds for explanation of what the learned judge really meant to convey by his remarks, which, however, if correctly reported, seem almost too sweeping to retract. The Daily Telegraph of yesterday endeavoured to elucidate what was really meant by his lordship's summing-up; but as it was the merest attempt to place a construction which in no way coincided with the words of the summing-up, but rather, if any thing, tended to complicate their meaning, the endeavours of the essayist are not worth much. It remains for the accountants to disprove Mr. Justice Quain's erroneous convictions respecting themselves and their mode of transacting their business. I should regret, for one, to think that the judge's remarks were made in a vituperative spirit, or that his opinion meant to embrace the whole body of accountants; but, at all events, it does appear strange that a prominent member of the Bench should permit a monstrous assertion to go the round of the papers, without taking steps to have such important and unfortunate remarks contradicted or explained.

Yours, &c.,
August 19th. AN ACCOUNTANT.

To the Editor of the Accountant.

"IS A CRISIS AT HAND?"

SIR,—Your issue of the 10th July contains, under this heading, a letter I had the pleasure of writing you on the 3rd of that month, and inter alia, called attention to the fact that England's trading monopolies were being broken down. The following paragraph, extracted from the Hour of Thursday, the 12th instant, tends to bear out my assertion; and it must be within the knowledge of your readers that India also has already established cotton mills of its own:—"A Philadelphia paper says, the extraordinary decline in the prices of cotton goods has proceeded so far, that it has enabled our manufacturers to court a trade that a few years ago they would never have dreamed of. Prices are now so low, and the American demand for goods so slack, that it is found that some manufactures of cotton can actually be shipped from this country to England for sale there. The enterprise is being attempted in some quarters, and the result will be awaited with interest. Success has attended a similar enterprise with some iron manufacturers, and prices have been brought so nearly together on the opposite sides of the ocean as to almost stop English export to this country. Five years ago such an achievement would have been thought altogether out of the question." Some of the recent failures tend also to show that my forebodings were not ill-founded, and I fear that the troubles in the commercial world are really only beginning. Panics will periodically arise under any laws, but there is no particular necessity to facilitate their occurrence by continuing laws which hold out a premium to reckless and irresponsible trading.

Digitized by Google

Yours truly,
Expert Comptable.

London, August 13*th*, 1875.

To the Editor of the Accountant.

Sir,—Every accountant of respectability and repute will not fail to recognise and appreciate the straightforward manner in which you have caused to be reported in your paper of last week the case against Hedley, Harper, and Bennison, at the York Assizes, for fraudulent conspiracy. The last-named person, however, is stated to be "an accountant," and my more immediate object in addressing you is to inquire whether the person so described is a member of any of the societies of accountants existing in the United Kingdom? As, doubtless, you have at hand accurate information and data from which you can supply a reliable answer to my inquiry, I hope you will do so, and doubtless your many readers will feel equally as grateful as

Your obedient servant,
An Accountant.

[We are glad to be able to state that we cannot find the name of the person referred to on the lists of members of any of the societies of accountants in the United Kingdom.—Ed. Accountant.]

The receipts on account of revenue from the 1st April, 1875, when there was a balance of £6,265,322, to the 14th instant, were £26,383,872, against £25,428,617, in the corresponding period of the preceding financial year, which began with a balance of £7,442,854. The net expenditure was £30,816,722, against £29,876,336 to the same date in the previous year. The Treasury balances on the 14th instant amounted to £1,466,892, and at the same date in 1874 to £2,182,175.

At the Lambeth Police Court on Friday, Walter Thompson Hunt, 33, described as "an accountant," residing at 11 Woodside-terrace, Gipsey-hill, Norwood, was charged before Mr. Chance with maliciously causing the death of Mary Ann Hudson, by administering to her a draught of strychnine, at 11 Providence-place, Norwood, also with attempting to kill Thomas and Hannah Taylor by administering a portion of the same poison. The prisoner, who strongly protested his innocence, was, on his removal in a cab from the Norwood Police-station, greeted with a very decided outburst of popular indignation.

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY.

August 12.

(Before Mr. Registrar Hazlitt.)

In re Paterson.—A first meeting for the proof of debts and the appointment of a trustee was held under this adjudication. The bankrupt, Peter Hay Paterson, was described as of the Albany, Piccadilly, of no occupation. His statement of affairs disclosed liabilities of £16,630, with assets £3,900, irrespective of a reversionary interest in property in Fife and Perthshire of the annual rental of £8,000. Messrs. Linklater, Messrs. Lumley, Messrs. Raven and Co., Mr. Bushby, and others took part in the proceedings. Mr. James Waddell, accountant, was appointed trustee, with a committee of inspection.

August 13.

(Before Mr. Registrar Haylitt, sitting as Chief Judge.)

In re Heald, Mathwin, and Co.—Upon the application of Mr. Stocken, Mr. T. Y. Strachan, accountant, Newcastle, was appointed receiver under a petition for liquidation filed by the debtors, who carry on business in London and at Newcastle-on-Tyne. The liabilities are estimated at £100,000, with assets of considerable value.

(Before Mr Registrar Murray.)

In re John Graham.—This was a first meeting for the proof of debts and the appointment of a trustee. The bankrupt was a warehouseman carrying on business in Wood-street, Cheapside. His statement of affairs showed unsecured debts of £10,973, and liabilities £60,720, the latter arising for the most part in connexion with the failure of Messrs. Collie and other firms. The assets, consisting of stock-in-trade, book debts, bills of exchange, and furniture, are returned at £22,384. Debts to a considerable amount having been proved, Mr. Charles Chatteris, accountant, was appointed trustee, with a committee of inspection.

August 14.

(Before Mr. Registrar Murray, sitting as Chief Judge.)

In re Whitlock and Dadson.—The debtors, wine merchants in the City, have filed a petition for liquidation, with liabilities estimated at £146,000, and assets £5,000. Mr. R. Griffiths (for the petitioners and with the concurrence of creditors to a large amount) asked that Mr. Lovering, accountant, should be appointed receiver, and also for an interim injunction to restrain actions by creditors. His Honour granted the application.

August 17.

Mr. Registrar Murray, sitting as chief judge, disposed of a list of cases. A point arose under a petition for adjudication presented against a trader. The petitioning creditor was the landlord, and he had a large claim for rent, which the debtor disputed. Proceedings in ejectment had been commenced for the recovery of possession of the premises, and a distress had also been levied. The petitioning creditor asked that a receiver and manager of the business—that of a perfumer—should be appointed, but the debtor resisted the application, stating that he denied in toto the allegations contained in the petition. Mr. Registrar Murray pointed out that the hearing of the petition was fixed for Monday next, and said that no necessity had been shown to exist for the appointment of a receiver. Until the adjudication was pronounced the debtor was master of his own property. The application was therefore refused.

(Before Mr. Registrar Hazlitt.)

In Re W. J. Harker.—At the first meeting for the proof of debt and choice of a trustee to the estate of this bankrupt,

Digitized by Google

Mr. A. A. James, accountant, 110 Cannon-street, was elected to the post. The bankrupt, who is described as a gentleman, residing at Eton-place, Haverstock-hill, was adjudicated on the 29th of June last on the petition of William Bingham, tailor, Conduit-street, creditor for £90. No statement of affairs was produced, but debts to the amount of £4,027 were admitted against the estate.

In Re Jacob Birkett.—This was also a first meeting for the proof of debt and appointment of trustee to the estate. The bankrupt, who is described in the petition as a merchant, carrying on business at Fenchurch-street, under the firm of Jacob Birkett and Co., was adjudicated on the 4th of the present month upon a debt of £114. The rough statement of affairs produced at the meeting discloses liabilities to the extent of £25,784, against assets £724. Debts to a considerable amount were proved, and a resolution was come to, appointing Mr. John Pattinson (H. Brett, Milford and Co.), accountant, Leadenhall-street, trustee, with a committee of inspection.

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY, DUBLIN.

August 13th.

(Before the Hon. Judge Miller.)

In Re William Armstrong.—The bankrupt was a money-lender at Hollywood, county Down. He came up for final examination. Mr. Purcell, Q.C. (instructed by Messrs. Dinnen, and S. Benner) appeared for the creditors, and submitted that the final examination could not be passed. Counsel stated that a worse case never came before the court than the present. The bankrupt had carried on business as a money-lender for 30 years, during which period he was supposed to be a solvent man, and the poor of the county all deposited with him their hard-earned money, and the result is that an immense amount of misery and ruin had been caused by his dealings. The bankrupt now came before the court, and asked his lordship to believe that—having carried on his trade for 30 years, lending out £30,000 a year in various small sums, and receiving 20 and 25 per cent. interest—that he had no books that contained a record of his transactions—no cash book, or any thing that would enable the creditors to ascertain the extent of his dealings or the bona fides of the return he had made to the court. The creditors believed that the bankrupt had not made a full and fair disclosure. It was impossible that the statement he now made—that he had no means—could be true, when they considered the extent and nature of the business he carried on. The only book the bankrupt produced was one containing an entry of the sums he had lent, but there was no record of the money he received from time to time. The vouching of the accounts lasted two entire days, and the result of the investigation was that in 1865 the bankrupt was deficient £14,000, and if that were true, he was going on swindling the public down to the period of his bankruptcy, and receiving the hard earnings of these unfortunate people until he increased the amount from £14,000 to £20,000. Mr. Carton (instructed by Mr. Bennett Thompson) submitted, on behalf of the bankrupt, that his client had rendered the best account of his position that he possibly could. If the accounting was unsatisfactory, it was owing to the absence of books, and it was an unfortunate circumstance for the bankrupt that he had never kept books. Judge Miller said that in the course of his career he had seldom met with a case more utterly destitute of merits than the present. The greatest punishment that the court could impose was to adjourn the examination sine die; but he thought the greatest punishment of all that the bankrupt could get was his own conscience, for the way he kept up fictitious dealings by receiving the moneys of these poor people and using it for his own advantage. The final examination was then adjourned sine die, with liberty to the bankrupt to apply at a future day to re-open it. Mr. Perry, instructed by Mr. Eaton (Oldham and Eaton), appeared for the assignees.

HUDDERSFIELD COUNTY COURT.

August 13th.

Re C. H. Rost.—An application was made to the registrar of the court, by Mr. S Learoyd, on behalf of Mr. J. P. Birtwhistle, in the bankruptcy of Messrs. C. H. Rost and Co., merchants, Nelson-street, Bradford, for an order by the registrar for the delivery to the trustee of certain goods which had been ordered by the bankrupts from Messrs R. Andrew and Co., 82 Fountain-street, Manchester. The value of the goods is stated to be £540 16s. 11d. It appeared that in 1874, the bankrupts ordered goods to the amount stated from Messrs. Andrew and Co., and they were to be sent to London, they intending to export them to China. On the 18th September, a note was sent by Mr. Farr from the Great Eastern Railway Company to Rost and Co., stating that the goods had arrived at the London Docks station, and remained there to the order of Rost and Co., being held by the railway company as warehousemen, and subject to warehouse charges. This note was read by a clerk named Bush, at Rost's office, in Bradford, and he telegraphed that instructions should be sent about the goods the next day. He that night wrote to Messrs. Andrew, informing them that Rost had failed and had gone away to the continent, and enclosing him a note received from the railway company, endorsed by Bush, and assigning the goods to Messrs. Andrews. On the receipt of this letter, Messrs. Andrew went to the agent of the Great Eastern Railway Company, in Manchester, and stopped the goods at London; subsequently obtaining possession of the goods and giving the railway company an indemnity. It was contended by Mr. Learoyd that inasmuch as the goods had arrived at the London Docks and were warehoused, they had come into the possession of the bankrupts, and consequently Mr. Andrew had no right to seize them for himself, and Bush had no right to transfer the goods to Mr. Andrew, and therefore Mr. Andrew could not seize under Bush's endorsement. Mr. H. Cadman, barrister, contended that inasmuch as the goods had been sent to the London Docks by mistake when they ought to have been sent to the Victoria Docks, they were in transitu, and that therefore Mr. Andrew had no right to stop them and take possession of them. The Registrar, however, held that Mr. Learoyd's view was the correct one, and an arrangement was come to whereby Messrs. Andrew should pay to the trustee a sum of £450, each party to bear their own costs.

LIVERPOOL COUNTY COURT.

Aug. 13.

(Before Mr. Collier, Judge.)

In re J. J. Harratt.—This was a motion for an order declaring that certain household furniture in the possession of Mr. Henry Beckwith, belonged to Mr. Banner, the trustee. It appeared that in 1871 Mr. Beckwith became bankrupt, and to secure his furniture he induced Mr. Harratt to advance £250 to purchase the same from the trustee. The furniture was so bought, and an agreement entered into by Beckwith with Harratt under which he was to have the use of the furniture on payment of 7½ per cent. on the purchase-money. Early in the present year Harratt became bankrupt, and his trustee now claimed the furniture in question as part of the estate. Mr. Walton (instructed by Messrs. Woodburn, Pemberton, and Sampson) appeared for Mr. Banner, the trustee, and Mr. Nordon for Mr. Beckwith. His Honour made an order in accordance with the prayer of the motion.

Digitized by Google

SUMMER ASSIZES.—BRISTOL.

August 18.

Crown Court.—(Before Mr. Justice Quain.)

David Tate, a miller, 29, was indicted as a fraudulent bankrupt under the Bankruptcy Act, 1869. Mr. Norris prosecuted; Mr. Collins defended the prisoner. The prisoner had a flour mill at Radipole, near Weymouth, and went into liquidation in May last. The charge against him was that he had obtained goods by fraud within four months previously. It appeared that, owing to some operations of the Weymouth Corporation, the mill had stopped altogether in December, 1872. The prisoner had commenced an action against the Corporation to recover damages, and used this fact as a means to induce corn merchants in Bristol to sell corn to him, which he pretended he was in the habit of having ground at some other mill, so as not to lose his connexion; whereas, in fact, he had given up the mill in 1873. One of these transactions was as follows. In February of this year the prisoner bought 100 quarters of wheat in Bristol at 43s. 6d. a quarter, and 25 quarters of barley at 26s. 9d., and three days after sold the same, delivered free, at Dorchester—the wheat at 40s., and the barley at 26s. He gave bills on the purchase, but took cash on the sale, and this cash he used to partially replace some trust money he had misappropriated. The defence was that this was simply a business transaction; but the jury negatived this view of the matter, and convicted the prisoner, who was sentenced to six months' imprisonment, with hard labour.

James Wingo, cabinet maker, 54, was indicted for various offences under the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, for concealing property and not delivering up certain moneys to the trustee of his bankruptcy. Mr. Frere and Mr. T. L. Matthews prosecuted; Mr. Carter defended the prisoner. In August, 1874, the prisoner, finding himself in difficulties, filed a petition for liquidation by arrangement in the Bristol County Court, and he returned debts to the amount of over £400, and assets £70. The principal fact relied upon by the prosecution was that early in August, about a fortnight before the petition was filed, a furniture dealer, named Pincott, of Cardiff, was sent for by the defendant, and Pincott bought of him all the furniture there was in the warehouse and completely gutted the place. Pincott gave a bill for £40 at two months. This bill was not included in the assets, and the first intimation that the trustee of the estate had of the existence of this bill was when the defendant's son offered to purchase his father's business of the trustee, and mentioned Pincott as a friend who would give him an advance of £40 by a bill to assist him in the purchase. The trustee went over to Cardiff, and then he found that instead of Pincott being about to advance the money, there was a bill already in existence. This aroused his suspicions, and he made inquiries in Bristol, and learnt about this sale of furniture. Upon these facts, and other circumstances relating to his affairs, which were not relied upon at the trial, although the investigation showed they were of a very suspicious nature, the County Court Judge ordered the bankrupt to be prosecuted. The shorthand notes of the examination in the bankruptcy proceedings of the bankrupt and other witnesses were very bulky. The learned Judge, after commenting on the costs of the examination before the registrar, the magistrates, and the present trial, said the affairs of bankrupts now got into the hands of accountants, debt collectors, and others, instead of into the hands of solicitors, gentlemen who were under the control of the court. They had got into the hands of a class of persons over whom the courts had no control at all, and he trusted before long the mercantile community would give an opinion on the present bankruptcy system, and deliver it in such a manner that it should be heard by the legislature. That the whole affairs in bankruptcy should be taken out of the hands of solicitors—a respectable body, subject to the control of the court—and handed over to an ignorant set of men called accountants, was one of the grossest abuses, in his opinion, ever introduced into the law. The jury found the prisoner guilty, with the strongest recommendation to mercy. The foreman added that the jury concurred in every remark which had fallen from the learned judge with regard to the present system which obtains under the Bankruptcy Act. The prisoner had already been in prison six weeks, and his Lordship sentenced him to a fortnight's imprisonment, without hard labour, and also disallowed the costs of the prosecution.

Civil Court.—(Before Mr. Justice Blackburn and a Special Jury.)

Billett v. the Imperial Union Assurance Company, Limited.—This was an action on a policy of insurance. Mr. Pinder was for the plaintiff; Mr. Cole, Q.C., and Mr. Norris for the defendants. The plaintiff is a potato dealer, living with his father, who is an innkeeper at Marshfield, Gloucestershire, and having a house in Bristol, where he sold the potatoes, which he bought of farmers and others. He had insured with the defendants against death by accident, and also, against "non-fatal bodily injury from or by accidental violence, if," in consequence thereof, he should be "wholly and entirely disabled from attending to business." In this case he was to receive £6 a week while so disabled. The plaintiff's case was that on the evening of the 22nd January last he was thrown from his horse and dragged some distance, and very seriously hurt. He was attended by a medical man, and afterwards, in April, went for some time into the Bath Mineral Hospital, none of the surgeons of which were, however, called as witnesses. The whole claim was for 26 weeks, during which, the plaintiff alleged, that he was totally disabled. The rest of his family and the medical man were called to corroborate the plaintiff. The case for the defendants was that there had been a prior claim under the policy, which was fraudulent, and that, therefore, all interest under the policy had been forfeited. This prior claim was in respect of injury to the plaintiff's foot, caused by a large piece of wood falling on it and crushing and breaking a bone. The plaintiff had claimed for seven weeks, during which, he said, he was disabled by this accident, which, the defendants alleged, was of the slightest description. A medical man was called who had seen the plaintiff, and declared that the bone had never been broken at all, and also witnesses who had seen him walking about during the time when, according to his account, he was disabled. The case lasted half the day, and the jury were locked up for two hours, after which, being unable to agree, they were discharged.

THE "DAILY TELEGRAPH" ON ACCOUNTANTS.

The Daily Telegraph of August 18th has the following leader:—

"Some very pertinent remarks on the position and status of public accountants were made last week at Bristol by Mr. Justice Quain, and will, we believe, be welcomed not only by the legal profession, but by the great body of the mercantile community. The case itself out of which these valuable obiter dicta arose was one of very small importance, and its details were more or less sordid and uninteresting. In the August of 1874 an unhappy cabinetmaker named Winge filed a petition for liquidation by arrangement in the Bristol County Court, returning his debts at over £400, and his assets as £70. Upon inquiry, it came out that only a fortnight before his petition was filed he had called in from Cardiff a furniture dealer of the name of Pincott, and sold to him all the stock-in-trade in his warehouse, taking in return a bill of exchange for £40 drawn at two months after date. This bill he had not included in his assets. The trustee, however, learning the truth, felt it his duty to institute criminal proceedings, on the ground that the sale itself was fraudulent, and that the bankrupt had knowingly, wilfully, and with intent to defraud, concealed a material and valuable asset from his creditors. The jury returned a verdict of guilty, coupling with it a strong recommendation to mercy, and the learned Judge sentenced the prisoner to a fortnight's imprisonment without hard labour, at the same time expressing his opinion very strongly as to the substantial merits or demerits of the case, by refusing to allow the prosecution its costs. As the prisoner was, beyond all question, guilty, this somewhat lenient sentence, joined as it was with a distinct censure of the prosecution, appears at first a little strange. The difficulty, however, disappears in a moment when we learn that Mr. Justice Quain was dealing with what is technically known as an accountant's case. The affairs of the luckless Mr. Winge had got into an accountant's hands, and the result had been a tangle of litigation, and a needless running up of costs and professional charges, which very justly excited the learned Judge's indignation. His lordship, we are told, after commenting on the expenses of examination before the Registrar, proceedings before the magistrates, and ultimately of the trial itself, said 'the affairs of bankrupts now got into the hands of accountants, debt collectors and others, instead of into the hands of solicitors, gentlemen who were under the control of the Court. They got into the hands of a class of persons over whom the Courts had no control at all, and he trusted before long the mercantile community would give an opinion on the present bankruptcy system, and deliver it in such a manner that it should be heard by the Legislature. That the whole affairs in bankruptcy should be taken out of the hands of solicitors—a respectable body, subject to the control of the Court—and handed over to an ignorant set of men called accountants, was one of the grossest abuses, in his opinion, ever introduced into the law.' These are hard words, but we venture to think that they are fully justified by equally hard facts, and we are glad to notice that the foreman of the jury took it upon himself to state in open court that both he and his brother jurors fully and entirely agreed with Mr. Justice Quain's remarks.

"There are, of course, accountants and accountants; and Mr. Justice Quain, who has had in his day a very considerable experience of mercantile law, would, we are sure, be the last man to underrate the especial services which a skilled accountant can render. Of firms such as those of Quilter and Ball, or of the Messrs. Turquand, we need hardly speak. Their reputation and standing in the City are such that, as writers on evidence say, res ipsa loquitur. Nor is it only these large and old-established houses that have a right to our good opinion. There are in the City several professed accountants in a much smaller way of business than that of the eminent houses to which we have referred, and who thoroughly deserve the esteem and confidence of their clients. Every large business firm employs an accountant to audit its books; and as long as the accountant confines himself within the strict limits of his duty, which is, as we understand it, that of a professional expert in bookkeeping, he discharges a very valuable and most important function. Were he, in short, to style himself 'Accountant and Auditor,' he would exactly describe the responsibilities which devolve upon him, and would be recognised at once as a gentleman with whose assistance on certain occasions it is altogether impossible to dispense. Unfortunately, however, there are black sheep in every profession and in every calling; and, as it is open to any man who chooses to dub himself an accountant, or a "certified accountant," or a "professed accountant," or an "accountant of the City of London," it is to be feared that the tale of shady and disreputable practitioners in this peculiar branch of business is very much larger than it might be. An honourable and respectable practitioner takes the very strictest care to confine himself to his legitimate business. For the smaller and discreditable fry, all is fish that comes to their net. They collect debts, they discount bills on a petty scale, and at exorbitant and ruinous rates; they are best pleased of all when fortune sends in their way a little bankruptcy case with some chance of fat pickings. The impudence of these freebooting extortioners is almost beyond belief. When employed to collect a trifling debt, they add to its amount a demand of 'ten shillings and sixpence for my professional charges,' which the luckless and ignorant debtor only too often pays, in the belief that a gentleman who signs himself 'Certified Accountant of the City of London,' has a right at law to recover his fees as 'costs in the case.' But it is out of bankruptcy, as it is at present administered, that these undergrown vultures make their largest gains. They inspect the files of the Bankruptcy Court, and send touting letters to creditors, offering to 'represent their interests.' In little cases they often obtain a sufficient number of proxies to enable them to seize upon the coveted position of trustee; and under such circumstances the old proverb that the shells fall to the litigant is only too fully realised. The 'costs,' as it pleases him to style them, of a so-called 'professional accountant' will be found, on taxation, to be fully as onerous as those of a solicitor, while, on the other hand, his employers, as Mr. Justice Quain pointed out, are not dealing with a respectable and properly qualified professional man, who is responsible for the advice which he gives to his clients, and who can be at once, upon summary process, made to answer for his conduct to one of the Superior Courts of Law, but simply with an uncertified quack, who stands to a solicitor in much the same position as that which a 'licensed herbalist' occupies towards a properly registered member of the College of Surgeons. County Court Judges could tell, if they chose, a long tale of the evil ways of these legal pirates; of the extortionate fees which they extract from simple and ignorant folk under the pretence that their charges are recoverable at law; of the oppressive usury they demand for small loans, and—only too often—of the manner in which they use their position as debt collectors to retain balances in their own hands, for the use of which they render no manner of account. The cause to which all these malpractices are capable of being referred is sufficiently obvious. As long as any disreputable ex-attorney's clerk or small usurer's jackal may style himself 'accountant,' the profession of accountancy, which ought to be, and in honourable hands is, a most trustworthy and valuable calling, will remain, as it is at present, a sort of legal Alsatia. Accountants of ascertained position, for self-protection, should take measures to prevent the title under which they carry on their legitimate business from being thus abused by unscrupulous and only too often fraudulent pettifoggers, and the position of an accountant ought to be made as responsible and as satisfactory as that of a notary public, or a surrogate, or even an attorney. At present the black sheep are bringing the old-established and well-conducted houses into disrepute and ill odour, and the profession, if we may so call it, is in a position in which it will do well to consider carefully its own interests and future prospects. The general public, on the other hand—and more especially that portion of it whose ill fate it is to be vexed with small debts—should recollect that the status and calling of an accountant, whether 'certified' or not, or whether 'of the City of London' or elsewhere, is not recognised by the Courts of Law, and that no accountant has a right to demand any charge for his services except in pursuance of a previous and positive agreement that he is to be remunerated for them. Nor is this all. An accountant and debt collector who adds to the debt which he demands his own 'professional charges,' and threatens legal proceedings unless the total amount is at once paid, sails very closely indeed within the range of the criminal law; while, if he specifies the Court in which he intends to proceed, he is clearly guilty of contempt. If, instead of looking up small debtors, our County Court Judges were to keep a strict and keen eye upon the various accountants in their district, they would be discharging a very valuable service to the great body of small suitors by whom their Courts are frequented, and who are precisely the kind of people whom the self-constituted accountant usually selects as the victims of his extortionate malpractices."

Digitized by Google

CREDITORS' MEETINGS.

W. Styles (Isleworth).—A meeting was held at the offices of Messrs. Barrett and Patey, public accountants, 90 London-wall, E.C., on Tuesday the 10th inst., in the matter of William Styles, of Isleworth, when liquidation was resolved upon, and Mr. Edward T. Barrett appointed trustee.

R. Nicolson.—A meeting was held at the offices of Messrs. Barrett and Patey, public accountants, 90 London-wall, E.C., on Wednesday the 11th inst., in the matter of Roderick Nicolson, of Fleet-street, London, and East Register-street, Edinburgh, advertising agent, when a composition of 2s. in the pound was accepted. Mr. Henry H. Patey being appointed trustee to distribute the composition.

T. Hayes (Manchester).—A meeting of the creditors of Mr. Thomas Hayes, Fennel-street, Manchester, wholesale provision merchant and commission agent, was held at the offices of Messrs. Addleshaw and Warburton, on the 16th inst., when a statement af affairs was submitted by Messrs. Nicholson and Milne, accountants, showing liabilities £3,846 8s. 2d., and assets £1,107 10s. 2d. A composition of 4s. 3d. in the pound was accepted, payable at 2s. in two months and 2s. 3d. in four months, the last instalment guaranteed.

T. Syms (Manchester).—A meeting of the creditors under the bankruptcy of Mr. Thomas Syms, of 100 Deansgate, licensed victualler, was held on Friday, August 13th, when debts to the amount of £4,659 were proved, the assets being stated to be about £2,000. It was resolved to appoint Mr. E. B. Harding, of Sutton and Harding, accountants, trustee, with a committee of inspection.

J. C. Fowlie.—It was arranged at the adjourned meeting of J. C. Fowlie's creditors, held on Tuesday, to liquidate the estate by arrangement and not in bankruptcy. The probable dividend is expected to be about 1s. in the pound, but this is contingent upon certain bills being withdrawn which it is arranged shall not rank against Fowlie's estate if 10s. in the pound be paid on them by a third party whose name they do not carry.

The Aberdare Co.—At an adjourned meeting of the creditors of the Aberdare and Plymouth Iron Companies, held on Wednesday, at the Cannon-street Hotel, it was decided to adjourn the meeting for another month, to afford time for Messrs. Fothergill and Hankey to make arrangements with their friends to provide the funds necessary to carry on the works, with a view to work the large and valuable properties which upon closer investigation show that if time be allowed the coal and iron fields may yield sufficient to pay the creditors. Such a result will, we are informed, be greatly facilitated by the manner in which the Marquis of Bute has acted in reference to the leases, and which was spoken of as being a very encouraging feature.

T. S. Hare (Liverpool).—At a meeting of the creditors of Mr. T. S. Hare, cotton broker, Liverpool, the liabilities were shown to be £58,456, and the assets £1,292. These figures are exclusive of £33,295 owing for cotton still afloat, and upon which there will be a considerable loss, owing to the fall in the market. Liquidation by arrangement was resolved upon.

FAILURES.

England.—In consequence of the non-arrival of expected remittances from their Lima correspondents, occasioned solely, it is mentioned, by the scarcity of bills procurable for the purpose, Messrs. P. Denegri and Sons, commission merchants, of 8 Old Jewry, have suspended payment. It is believed, however, that the difficulty is only a temporary one, and that the assets of the Lima house will allow all claims to be paid in full. The books have been placed in the hands of Messrs. Harding, Whinney, & Co.—Mr. W. J Craven, commission merchant, of Fenchurch-street, has stopped payment, owing chiefly, it is understood, to speculative operations on the Stock Exchange. The liabilities amount to £17,000, and assets to £2,000. The books have been placed in the hands of Messrs. Johnstone, Cooper, Wintle and Co., accountants, for investigation.—The Stockton Rail Mill Company, Limited, on Friday, issued circulars to its creditors intimating that, in consequence of previous heavy losses, and the suspension of Messrs. Shaw and Thomson, metal brokers, London, the company is unable to keep its engagements, and the indulgence of creditors is asked until a meeting of shareholders can be held. The liabilities are stated to exceed £100,000.

America.—Advices from America report the failure of Mr. William Henderson, lumber merchant, Montreal, with liabilities of £32,000, and assets of £20,000.—The Chicago Plate and Bar Mill Company, a well-known local establishment, with liabilities of £20,000.—Messrs. Martin Y. Bunn and Co., wholesale grocers, New York, have suspended, with liabilities of £18,000; also Messrs. Worth and Watson, wholesale grocers, 183 Duane-street, with liabilities of £12,000.—A meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Taussig, Gemp and Co., bankers, and of Taussig, Fisher and Co., of St. Louis, had been held, and a proposal of settlement agreed to. The indebtedness of the bank was £50,000.—At Northampton, Mass., the Arms and Bardwell Manufacturing Company failed; liabilities £40,000—Messrs. C. C. Hellen and Mr. H. L. Bogart, of the New York Stock Exchange, had failed.—Mr. Mr. Merriman, wholesale clothing house, Hartford, suspended. —Messrs. Foster and Brothers, carpet dealers, Fulton-street, Brooklyn, New York, have made an assignment (August 4th). Their liabilities are stated at £53,000, and assets £40,000.—American advices announce the suspension of the old established shipping and commission firm of Messrs. Thomas R. Matthews and Sons, 18 Bonley's Wharf, Baltimore, with liabilities of £10,000; the Girard Tube and Iron Company of Philadelphia are reported as in difficulties; the Rolling Mill, Alliance, Ohio, failed with liabilities of £80,000.

The National Zeitung states that the firm of Liebmann Levy, of Trieste, has suspended payment, with liabilities estimated at £30,000.

APPOINTMENTS.

[The Editor will be glad to receive early notice of appointment of Liquidators and Auditors for insertion in this column.]

Vice-Chancellor Bacon has appointed Mr. James Cooper, of the firm of Johnstone, Cooper, Wintle, and Co., official liquidator of the Anglo-Italian Pulp and Paper Making Company, Limited.

The Vice-Chancellor Sir Richard Malins has appointed Mr. G. A. Cape (Cape and Harris), of No. 8, Old Jewry, official liquidator of the Peat, Coal, and Charcoal Company, Limited.

Mr. Harry Brett (of the firm of Harry Brett, Milford, Pattinson, and Co.), of 150 Leadenhall-street, E.C., and 12 Vigo-street, Regent-street, W., Public Accountant, has been appointed Trustee of the estate of Daniel Orpen, of 10 Denmark-terrace, Denmark-hill, in the County of Surrey, Cheesemonger, a bankrupt. Mr. George Beswick, Solicitor to the Trustee, 10 Bedford-row, W.C.

Mr. John Pattinson (of the firm of Harry Brett, Milford, Pattinson, and Co.), of 150 Leadenhall-street, E.C., and 12 Vigo-street, Regent-street, W., Public Accountant, has been appointed Trustee of the estate of Jacob Birkett, trading as Jacob Birkett and Company, of 116 Fenchurch-street, in the City of London, a bankrupt. Mr. E. W. Owles, Solicitor to the Trustee, 22 Chancery-lane, E.C.

Digitized by Google

THE INCOME AND EXPENDITURE OF THE CORPORATION OF LONDON.

An account has just been issued of the produce and expenditure of the City's estates for the year ending 31st December, 1874, and published under the authority of the City Chamberlain, Mr. Benjamin Scott. The document, which is one of a very voluminous nature, occupies no fewer than 131 closely printed pages. The City's receipts are enumerated under various heads, and details are given in every case. Among the receipts are rents and quit rents, £93,510 17s. 7d.; renewing fines, £3,438 13s. 5d.; premiums for granting leases, £1,200; bequests, £135 13s. 4d.; interest on Government securities, £10,864 1s. 3d.; Metropolitan Cattle Market, Islington, £37,351 12s. 11¼d.; Metropolitan Meat and Poultry Market, Smithfield (exclusive of tolls), £40,455 13s. 11d.; Leadenhall, £2,065 0s. 6d.; Farringdon, £1,714 4s. 2¼d.; Smithfield (Haymarket), £155 15s. 6d.; Billingsgate (exclusive of tolls), £6,518 2s. 6d.; and Columbia Market, £1,131 13s. 6d. Voluntary metage on grain, &c., £1,869 15s. 5¾d.; fruit metage, £2,421 3s. 6d.; brokers' rents, £7,029. Justicary fees—Mansion House, £2,025 4s. 8d.; Guildhall, £864 2s. 6d. Account of prisons, viz., Newgate, £476 9s. 4d.; Holloway, £3,236 14s. 4d.; ditto on account of criminal prosecutions, £935 9s.; ditto felons' goods, fines and forfeitures, £10,000; Mayor's Court fees (gross), £7,393 1s. 10d.; officers' surplus fees and profits, £5,399 17s.; reimbursement sanitary expenses Port of London, £127 15s. 4d.; sundry and casual receipts, £1,060 0s. 2d.; reimbursement, entertainment to his Imperial Majesty the Shah of Persia, £112 12s.; ditto, Thanksgiving day, £61 16s. 6d. The total receipts, therefore, are £313,917 7s. 9d. On the same side of the account is given a statement of loans raised, amounting to £263,872 4s. 6d., so that the grand total was £577,789 12s. 3¼d. The charges for expenditure show a profit on the markets of about £10,000. The expenses of the prisons were as follows:—Newgate, £5,969 10s. 7d.; City Prison, Holloway, £10,972 6s.; general prison expenses, £1,318 19s. The expenses of the administration of justice (criminal) were £7,491 0s. 5d.; ditto, office of coroner, £1,351 14s. 8d.; enlargement of Pauper Lunatic Assylum, £7,250. The expenses of the Civil Government of the City, including the payments to the Lord Mayor, sheriffs, judge, and officers of the Mayor's Court, expenses of the Mansion House, Guildhall, Law Courts, &c., amounted to £49,304 7s. 4d.; pensions, including London almshouses, £6,797 14s. 6½d.; charitable donations, £3,497 8s. 8d.; honorary votes, £513 11s. The educational expenses were: City of London School, £1,572 8s. 7½d.; Freemen's Orphan School, £4,783 16s. 1d. Other items are:—Expenses in relation to Epping Forest were £12,260 19s. 6d.; Bills in Parliament, £1,158 2s. 5d.; Guildhall Library and Museum, £2,810 16s. 3d.; entertainment of his Imperial Majesty the Czar of Russia, £13,362 15s. 9d.; déjeûner to the Prince of Wales, £1,821 14s. 7d.; erection of the new library and museum, £6,570 19s. 3d.; making a total of £274,238 0s. 3d.; but, in addition, under the head of loans discharged, will be found charges relating to the enlargement of Billingsgate Market, £60,034 10s. 11d.; western extension of Metropolitan Meat Market, £47,755 17s. 8d.; bringing the total expenditure to £554,044 3s. 5d.

On the petition of Messrs. Travers Smith and Co., solicitors to the London and Westminster Bank, Alexander and William Collie were adjudicated bankrupts on the 19th instant.

LATE ADVERTISEMENT.

TO ACCOUNTANTS' CLERKS.—Wanted in an Accountant's office, a respectable, energetic man; must have a thorough practical knowledge and experience in making up, auditing and balancing books and accounts, the working of Limited Liability Companies, and the management of Bankruptcies and Liquidations.—Address by letter only, stating age, salary required, &c. &c., "Alpha," care of Mr. Alfred W. Gee, Advertising Agent, 62 Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

R E S T A U R A N T,
13 OXFORD STREET,
Near the corner of Tottenham-court-road.

Known as the BODEGA, now under the new management of Mr. L. BOECKER, late of 13 Idol-lane, City.

Luncheons from the joints, hot or cold, including vegetables and bread, 1s. 3d

Dinners from 12 till 4 o'clock, from the joint, with soup or fish, vegetables, cheese and bread, 2s.

Dinners from 6 till 9 o'clock, from 2s. 6d. to 10s. 6d.

Private Dining Rooms for large and small parties on the Second Floor.

MONEY to LEND to BORROWERS residing in town or Country, from £50 upwards, repayable in one sum, from one to five years, at five per cent. interest on personal security; also on mortgage of freehold or leasehold property from 3 per cent., for a term of years to be agreed upon. No commission.
Apply to R. F. Preston, Esq., 120 Southampton-row, London, W.C.

"The source of many a writer's woe has been discovered."

PENS! PENS!! PENS!!!

"They come as a boon and a blessing to men, The Pickwick, the Owl, and the Waverley Pen."
"The misery of a bad Pen is now a voluntary infliction."
Another blessing to men! The Hindoo Pen.
1,200 Newspapers recommend them. See Graphic, 17th May, 1873.
Sold by every respectable Stationer. Post 1s.1d.
Patentees, MACNIVEN & CAMERON, 23 to 33 Blair-street, Edinburgh.

THE BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY'S ANNUAL RECEIPTS EXCEED THREE MILLIONS.

HOW TO PURCHASE A HOUSE FOR TWO GUINEAS PER MONTH. With immediate Possession and no Rent to pay.—Apply at the Office of the Birkbeck Building Society, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO PURCHASE A PLOT OF LAND FOR FIVE SHILLINGS PER MONTH.
With Immediate Possession, either for Building or Gardening purposes.—Apply at the Office of the Birkbeck Freehold Land Society, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO INVEST YOUR MONEY WITH SAFETY AT £4 PER CENT. INTEREST.
Apply at the Office of the Birkbeck Bank. All sums under £50 repayable upon demand. Current Accounts opened similar to ordinary Bankers. Cheque-books supplied. English and Foreign Stocks and Shares purchased and sold, and Advances made thereon.
Office Hours from 10 till 4; on Mondays from 10 till 9, and on Saturdays from 10 till 12 o'clock.
A Pamphlet containing full particulars may be obtained post-free on application.
Francis Ravenscroft, Manager.

THE METROPOLITAN AND PROVINCIAL LAND, ESTATE, HOUSE, LICENSED VICTUALLERS' & GENERAL BUSINESS TRANSFER "SYNDICATE" AGENCY,
Registered according to Act of Parliament, Head Offices, No. 3 Craven-street, Charing Cross, W.C. The organisation and working system of the "Syndicate" are; —1st.—The Sale, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Ground of Rents, Freehold and Leasehold Land, Farms, Estates, Houses, Hotels, Public Houses, Inns, Beer Houses, Restaurants, Coffee Houses, Tobacconists, Drapers, and every other description of Business, Furniture, Objects of Art, or Goods of any description by Auction or Private Contract. 2nd.—The letting, or disposing of, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Land, Farms, Estates, Furnished, or Unfurnished Houses Chambers, or Offices under private contract. 3rd.—The Collection of Rents and the recovery of outstanding accounts. 4th.—The Surveys and Valuations of Land, Farms, Estates, and Houses; also Valuations of Furniture, Jewellery, and other Effects, for probate and other purposes. 5th.—The transaction of all other business usually transacted by Auctioneers, Surveyors, Land, House, Estate and Insurance Agents. 6th.—The negociations of partnerships, and from unlimited connection with capitalists, monetary advances on real and personal securities, as well as merchandize, and every other description of property intended for absolute sale, or otherwise. 7th. Generally the carrying out of all things incidental or conducive to the above objects, and every of them; also the laying out of estates and surveys for delapidations, The "Syndicate" from their extended connection with the Trades' Protection Societies and other sources, undertake expeditiously for Clients and others to ascertain reliably the status of parties, and make inquiries of a private and confidential character. Liberal terms to Accountants in town or country introducing business.

Digitized by Google

OLD FALCON HOTEL, GRAVESEND
Proprietor—W. SKILLETER.
Late Chef de Cuisine to His Grace the Duke of Argyll.

Visitors to Gravesend will find every accommodation at the Old Falcon Hotel, East Street. Public and Private Rooms facing the River, directly opposite Tilbury Fort, and with a capital view of the Thames Shipping.

FISH DINNERS AND WHITEBAIT.

BED AND BREAKFAST FOR GENTLEMEN £1 1s. PER WEEK.

And an equally low Tariff for Dejeuners, Dinners, &c.
Five Minutes' walk from North Kent Railway, and Two Minutes from the Piers, and Tilbury and Southend Railway.

J. DEFRIES' AND SONS'

CHANDELIERS, IN CRYSTAL, BRONZE, AND ORMOLU.

TABLE GLASS AND CHINA.

Dinner Services, Gilt Pieces, £4 10s.

KEROSENE and MODERATOR LAMPS for INDIA.

Works:—London and Birmingham.

WEDDING AND BIRTHDAY PRESENTS.

NEW DECORATIONS for the DINING TABLE.

FOUNTAINS.

STORER'S Patent Perpetual Perfumed CRYSTAL TABLE FOUNTAIN, for Dining, Hall and Drawing Rooms, in Crystal and Gilt, £2 17s. 6d. to 100 guineas.

FETES AND REJOICINGS.

BALLROOMS and GARDENS, &c., DECORATED and ILLUMINATED for Evening Parties. Tents, Temporary Rooms, and Banqueting Halls erected.

CRYSTAL and BRONZED CHANDELIERS.

TABLE GLASS and CHINA LENT ON HIRE.

J. DEFRIES and SONS, 147, HOUNDSDITCH.

Five minutes' walk from the Bank of England.

RUPTURES—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS is allowed by upwards of 500 Medical Men to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided, a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the manufacturer, Mr. John White, 228, Piccadilly, London. Price of a single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., 31s. 6d, Postage Free. Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. An Umbilical Truss, 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. P.O.O. to be made payable to John White, Post-office, Piccadilly.

TRADE MARK.

NEW PATENT ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS, &c. for Varicose Veins, and all cases of Weakness and Swelling of the Legs, Sprains, &c. They are porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and are drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price from 4s. 6d, 7s, 6d., 10s, to 16s. each. Postage free.

CHEST EXPANDING BRACES, for both sexes. For gentlemen they are a substitute for the ordinary braces. For children they are invaluable; they prevent stooping and preserve the symmetry of the chest. Prices for children, 5s. 6d. and 7s. 6d. Adults, 10s. 6d., 15s. 6d., and 21s. each. Postage free.—John White, Manufacturer, 228 Piccadilly, London.

EPPS'S COCOA.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—See article in the Civil Service Gazette.

STAR LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY,

48 MOORGATE STREET, LONDON, E.C

DIRECTORS.

Chairman—

Mr. Alderman McArthur, M.P.

Deputy Chairman—

William Mewburn, Esq.

H. J. Atkinson, Esq.
Thomas Ball, Esq.
Walter Griffith, Esq.
George M. Kiell, Esq.
George Lidgett, Esq.
Sir Francis Lycett.
William Merry, Esq.
John Napier, Esq.
Jonathan S. Pidgeon, Esq.
John Vanner, Esq.
S. D. Waddy, Esq., Q.C., M.P.

Assurance and Annuity Fund	1,216,115	13	5
Annual Income (1874)	223,613	2	0
Bonuses Apportioned	581,774	6	2
Claims Paid	1,140,151	1	8

Copies of the Report, Balance Sheet and Prospectus can be obtained on application to the Head Office.

W. W. BAYNES, Secretary.

The Only and Special "MEDAL FOR PROGRESS," Was awarded for "Feuerfeste Eisone Schranke und Kunstchlosser Fortschritts," to

HOBBS, HART, & CO.,

AT THE VIENNA UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION.

This Medal is only given to Exhibitors whose New Inventions testify marked Progress.

"FIRE-PROOF SAFES; AND LOCKS AND ENDLESS CHANGE LOCKS AND KEYS,"

Invented especially for Safes and Strong-Room Doors, to frustrate the use of False Keys.

N.B.—The continued security and secrecy of a Lock, fixed on a Safe or Strong-Room Door, depends on the fact that there are no false duplicate keys of that Lock in existence. The object of a Lock is twofold—security against burglars, and secrecy against prying curiosity. A new change in this Lock may at any time be obtained in five minutes by simply filing away the thickness of a hair from one or more of the steps of the Key. The Lock, by a simple movement of the Regulator, is thus made to adapt itself to the New Key, after which no other Key will open the Lock.

The Lock and Key may thus be easily altered into what would be virtually a New Lock and Key, as often as may be desired, without the aid of Lockmaker or of any second person, thus frustrating the use of fraudulent copies of the original Key (see the Safe Robbery in Dublin of £630, vide "Times," 12th September, 1875). This Lock affords effectual protection from duplicate or "Master" Keys secretly made in manufactories; very extensive robberies (in one case 13 Safes in one vault) having been effected by this means.

HOBBS, HART & CO.,
LOCK, SAFE, AND STRONG-ROOM DOOR MANUFACTURERS,
76 Cheapside, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

SUBSCRIPTIONS ARE INVITED FOR 5,000 SHARES IN

THE BUFFALO HIDE HORSESHOE COMPANY, LIMITED.

Registered under the Companies' Acts, 1862 and 1867.

CAPITAL £60,000, IN 12,000 £5 SHARES FULLY PAID UP.

£1 on Application, the remainder on Allotment.

DIRECTORS.

Joseph James Smith, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, Manchester.
William Birch Cooper, Esq., Durham Massey, Cheshire.
George Hill, Esq., Coal Merchant, Navigation Wharf, Manchester.
James Haslam, Esq., Veterinary Surgeon, Manchester.
Albert Septimus Cox, Esq., Veterinary Surgeon, Altrincham, Cheshire.

BANKERS.

The Manchester and Liverpool District Bank, King-street, Manchester, and its Branches.

SOLICITORS.

Messrs. Hampson and Walmsley, 60 King-street, Manchester.

MANAGING DIRECTOR.

James Haslam, Esq., M.R.C.V.S.

SECRETARY.

(Pro. tem.) Mr. Thomas Winder.

OFFICES.

(Pro tem) 60, King Street, Manchester.

PROSPECTUS:

The great want of a Shoe for Horses and other draught animals (so as to obtain a firm and solid foot hold upon Asphalte and other smooth or slippery pavements, and to obviate roughing or sharpening in frosty weather; to reduce the jar or concussion the limbs are subjected to by the hoof striking the ground; to allow the hoof to expand and develop; to reduce the labour of the animals by diminishing the weight of the present unnatural and unwieldy iron shoe, and to add to their comfort), has long been felt by the community at large, but more especially by those who employ large numbers of horses, and also by "The Societies for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals."

Such a Shoe has been Invented and Patented by Mr. Yates, and is made from buffalo or other hides, rendered impervious to moisture under Patented Process. They are as durable as the iron shoe, one-third the weight, cheaper, and are neat and easily applied, and their application adds greatly to the comfort of the animal.

They are made from a material as nearly approaching the nature of the hoof as possible, and therefore are the most natural substance from which to form a shoe. They will maintain the integrity of the hoof in its natural form, and allow its freedom and development. They also assist in retaining a firm and solid foothold, and aid in the impulsive efforts required in the performance of work and movements, and will thus be invaluable in preserving the health of the animal shod with them.

This Company has been formed for purchasing and working the patent rights, titles, and interests for Great Britain, Ireland, and the Channel Islands, of this Shoe, and for manufacturing and vending the same.

It is the intention of this Company to fit up works sufficient to manufacture these shoes, and to establish offices or stores in our principal cities for the sale of the same, where they will be able to supply sets much cheaper than iron shoes, and which can be readily applied by any smith or farrier.

Forms of application for shares may be obtained by applying to the Bankers of the Company, or to the Secretary.

H. D. RAWLINGS,

PURVEYOR OF MINERAL WATERS TO

H. R. H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.
H. R. H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH.
H. R. H. THE PRINCE CHRISTIAN.
THE LATE EMPEROR NAPOLEON III.

AND THE PRINCIPAL COURTS OF EUROPE.

Gold Medallist of the Societe Nationale Agricole Manufacturiere et Commerciale de Paris.

SODA, BRIGHTON, SELTZER and all other Mineral Waters for HOME CONSUMPTION and EXPORTATION.
PRICE LISTS on Application, at the Manufactory, Nassau-street, W.

ALFRED W. GEE,

ADVERTISING AGENT,

62, GRACECHURCH STREET,

LONDON, E.C.

London Gazette Notices, and Advertisements and Announcements of all kinds for English, Colonial, and Foreign Newspapers promptly inserted.

N.B.—In the case of an ordinary Advertisement ordered for insertion in a number of Newspapers, only one MS. copy need be forwarded. Same rates charged as at the Publishing Offices.

Printed and Published for the Proprietor by Williams & Strahan, 7 Lawrence Lane, Cheapside. August 21, 1875.

Digitized by Google

The Accountant.

A MEDIUM OF COMMUNICATION BETWEEN ACCOUNTANTS IN ALL PARTS OF THE UNITED KINGDOM

VOL. I.—NEW SERIES.—No. 38.] SATURDAY, AUGUST 28, 1875. [PRICE 6D.

Established 1843.
PERIODICAL SALE OF REVERSIONS, ANNUITIES, LIFE POLICIES, SHARES, &c.

MESSRS. MARSH, MILNER, AND Co., are preparing their printed particulars for the forthcoming Monthly AUCTION, which is held the FIRST THURSDAY in every month. To insure due publicity, particulars of Properties intended to be included in the next sale should be forwarded, without delay, to the City Land and Reversion Offices, 54 Cannon Street, London.

LAND, Domains, Mountain Ranges, Woods, Forests, and Important Residential Estates. Messrs. MARSH, MILNER, and Co., Land Valuers and Timber Surveyors, have a number of WEALTHY BUYERS DESIROUS of INVESTING in AGRICULTURAL, SPORTING, and RESIDENTIAL ESTATES. OWNERS of marketable properties wishing to effect advantageous sales are therefore invited to forward plans and particulars, which, when received, will be judiciously placed before intending purchasers, publicity being carefully avoided, and written terms settled before any cost or liability is incurred. Address Messrs. Marsh, Milner, and Co., Land and Timber Surveyors, 54 Cannon-street, London, E.C.

MESSRS. MARSH, MILNER, AND Co.'s REGISTER of LANDED ESTATES, Town and Country Residences, and property of every description, is published Monthly, and may be obtained at the Auction, Land, and Estate Agency Offices, 54 Cannon-street, E.C., or will be forwarded by post on application.

MORTGAGES promptly NEGOTIATED upon Landed Estates, City Properties, and upon sound securities of all kinds. Messrs. MARSH, MILNER and Co., have at the present time access to large sums of Money ready to be immediately advanced upon approved securities. Apply at the City Land and Reversion Offices (Established 1843), 54 Cannon-street.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

39 BROAD-STREET, BRISTOL,
JUNE 24TH, 1875.

The PARTNERSHIP hitherto existing under the Style or Firm HANCOCK, TRIGGS, & CO., having been DISSOLVED by mutual consent, I beg to give notice that I purpose henceforth to CARRY ON BUSINESS as a PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT at the above address.

PHILIP TRIGGS.

MESSRS. BARRETT AND PATEY,
PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS,
90 LONDON WALL, E.C.

HAVING removed from No. 8 Finsbury Circus, to more commodious offices at the above address, will be pleased to hear from Accountants resident in the provincial and manufacturing towns who require agents in London.

LOVEWELL BLAKE, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT, RECEIVER, AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY.
SECRETARY TO THE GREAT YARMOUTH TRADERS' ASSOCIATION.
OFFICES: HALL QUAY CHAMBERS, GREAT YARMOUTH.

J. F. TITCHMARSH, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT AND AUDITOR.
17 PRINCESS STREET, IPSWICH.

RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY AND LIQUIDATION.

TO ACCOUNTANTS.—A managing Clerk of large practice in Limited Companies, Accounts, Audits, Liquidations, &c. would assist pro tem, or otherwise, or undertake London business for Provincial Accountants. Accountant's Clerk, 141 Hampstead Road, N.W.

WILLIAMS & STRAHAN,
Legal, Accountancy, & General Printers,
MANUFACTURING STATIONERS, &c.
7 LAWRENCE LANE, CHEAPSIDE, LONDON.

Bankruptcy Forms, Statements of Affairs, Dividend Notices, Balance Sheets, &c., printed with despatch.

STEAM PRINTING WORKS, LAMBETH S.E.

TRANSLATIONS.
MR. ALFRED W. GEE,
BRITISH AND FOREIGN ADVERTISING AGENT,
62 GRACECHURCH STREET, LONDON, E.C.,

Begs to announce that in compliance with a wish expressed by some of the subscribers to the Accountant, he has made arrangements for the translation of legal and commercial documents, correspondence, &c., into the Principal European Languages. Members of the Profession are therefore respectfully informed that arrangements can be made for efficient and speedy translations into, or from, the French, German, Italian, Spanish, and Dutch Languages on Moderate Terms.

RESTAURANT,
13 OXFORD STREET,
Near the corner of Tottenham-court-road.

Known as the BODEGA, now under the new management of Mr. L. BOECKER, late of 13 Idol-lane, City.

Luncheons from the joints, hot or cold, including vegetables and bread, 1s. 3d.

Dinners from 12 till 4 o'clock, from the joint, with soup or fish, vegetables, cheese and bread, 2s.

Dinners from 6 till 9 o'clock, from 2s. 6d. to 10s. 6d.

Private Dining Rooms for large and small parties on the Second Floor.

Digitized by Google

The Accountant.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

The Accountant is printed and published in time for Friday evening's mail; price 6d. per copy, or 28s. per annum (including postage), the reduced terms for payment in advance being: annual subscription 24s. (post free); half-yearly ditto, 13s. (post free). Cheques and Post-office orders to be made payable to Mr. Alfred W. Gee, 62 Gracechurch-street, E.C., to whom applications for advertisement space, and letters relating to the general business of the paper, should also be addressed. Literary communications should be directed to the Editor of the Accountant at the same address, and in order to ensure insertion in the current number, correspondents are respectfully requested to forward their copy as early in the week as possible.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The Proprietor desires to call the attention of Advertisers to the special advantages offered by the paper as an Advertising medium. Starting with a good guaranteed circulation, and with the entire concurrence and hearty support of the leading members of the profession, the Accountant has achieved a large measure of success in a wide field hitherto unoccupied by any professional organ. The Accountant thus secures to Advertisers an excellent circulation of an exclusive character; and is particularly valuable as a medium for the announcements of members of the profession, as to Estates and Declaration of Dividends, and the appointment of Trustees and Receivers; for Publishers, Printers, Law Stationers, Auctioneers, and Estate Agents; for the Advertisements of Insurance and Public Companies; and for Notices as to Investments, Vacant Partnerships, &c. Advertisements intended for insertion in the current number, should reach the office on Thursday; late announcements can, however, be received up to 12 o'clock (noon) on Friday.

N.B.—Copies may be obtained at Messrs. W. H. Smith and Sons, Strand, at their numerous Railway Bookstalls, and at the Shops of the leading City and West-End Newsvendors.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.

In consequence of numerous applications from subscribers, the proprietor has made arrangements for the supply of Cases for holding and preserving the Accountant, which may be obtained at the office on the following terms:—In green cloth (well got up), with elastics, and "The Accountant" in gold letters on front, 3s. each; same in leather, 4s. 6d. each. Subscribers' names in gold lettering, 1s. extra. Post Office Orders payable to Alfred W. Gee, 62 Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

The Accountant.

AUGUST 28, 1875.

Those who think the law too favourable to debtors must derive consolation at times from studying the decisions of the Lords Justices, and laying to heart the grim resolution with which those high officials interpret the various sections of the Bankruptcy Act as far as possible in the interests of creditors. It is in the cases of liquidations and compositions, which are popularly supposed to give the principal openings for fraud, that certain little pitfalls occur, into which the unwary fall. A nice little point thus arose in a case we reported in a recent issue. Judgment having been recovered against a trader, the debtor, with much promptitude, filed a petition for liquidation. Execution was duly levied, and then all proceedings were stayed to await the result of the meeting of the creditors. At this a composition was agreed to, and the question to be decided was whether the execution creditors could proceed with their execution and obtain payment of their claim in full, or whether they must relinquish their security and content themselves with their share of the composition. The consensus of judicial authority on the point was most gratifying; the judge of the County Court was not overruled by the Chief Judge, and the latter's opinion was confirmed by the Lords Justices, who unhesitatingly declared that the right to realise the security was not taken away by the resolution for composition. It was conceded that if the creditors had decided to proceed in bankruptcy or liquidation, the execution creditors would have been bound by the opinion of the majority, and their security would have been realised for the general benefit; and it was argued that such ought to be the case here, and that the chief body of creditors could compel a dissentient, holding security, to content himself with his dividend, and hand over the goods he relied on for enforcing payment to the debtor. But here, the canons of interpretation now universally acknowledged, came into play. The estate must be administered in the interest of the creditors, so that no mere minority shall interfere so as to prevent the best means of realisation from being adopted, but yet with due regard to the interest of the individual, if not opposed to the interest of the general body. Here it is plain that the majority suffer no detriment by giving an advantage to the secured creditor. They agree to forbear their claims for a certain sum, but they cannot indicate the fund from which they are to be paid. It may be hard on the debtor, who may have relied upon selling these goods and using the proceeds as a means of paying the composition. If that be the case, and he is precluded from carrying out his arrangement, the remedy is simple. The creditors are restored to their original position, and liquidation or bankruptcy must be the result. The creditors have made their choice. They might have elected to appoint a trustee who would take possession of the assets and distribute them in due proportion in liquidation. Instead of that, they have trusted to the debtor rather than to his estate, they personally lose nothing by the success of their co-creditor, and on the principle of allowing a single creditor to exercise his rights to the full against the debtor where he does not prejudice the action of the majority, the execution is allowed to take its course.

It is impossible not to feel a certain amount of sympathy for the unfortunate trustee whose obedience to the direction of the creditors to make a present of fifteen pounds to his committee of inspection was punished by the fine of a certain amount of costs, though he was mercifully spared from having to pay any to the Comptroller in Bankruptcy. At the same time it is certain that unless the principle of the honorary nature of an inspector's office had been peremptorily asserted, there might have been an "ugly rush" of creditors eager to become inspectors and trustees. Every body is complaining of the little interest which creditors show in the affairs of their debtors. The reason is probably that people know by personal experience how little the interference of any creditor can really effect, and prefer losing their money without wasting their time in futile efforts to get it back. But if committees of inspection were to charge for their services, the difficulty would be not so much to find candidates for the office, as to make a selection between the numerous competitors. In fact, remuneration might take a great many forms, from friendly dinners and testimonials down to jobbery of the most unmitigated form. If the creditors themselves were to vote the remuneration out of their own pockets, there could be no objection to the plan, but it is clear that there can be no right to take the money out of the scanty assets of the debtor. It is to be hoped that the creditors will recoup the trustee for his expense, and the literary members of their body may ponder on the sentiments expressed in an old friend of our childhood, which inculcates in homely language the moral and economical truth that while it is laudable for a little boy to give away his own clothes in charity, he is not justified in supplementing the gift by a loaf of bread from his schoolmaster's pantry. They will also have the consolation of thinking that they have been the instruments of settling an important principle of law, which at the same time inculcates the beautiful moral maxim that justice should come before generosity; and the combined effects of literary study and ethical contemplation will doubtless convince them that the decision they have evoked is equally admirable in point of law and of morality.

Correspondence.

MR. JUSTICE QUAIN'S ATTACK UPON ACCOUNTANTS.

To the Editor of the Accountant.

Sir,—The unjustifiable attack made upon accountants by Mr. Justice Quain, at the trial of James Winne, at Bristol Assizes, for numerous offences under the Debtors Act, 1869, calls, I think, for a few remarks from myself as the trustee and prosecutor in the case in question, and upon whom his lordship thought fit to vent his indignation.

Before dealing with the comments which fell from the learned judge, or the sensational gibberish which appeared in the Daily Telegraph of August 18th, I will particularise as concisely as possible the facts of the case.

The liquidating debtor, in August 1874, applied to a respectable attorney of this city, to file his petition for liquidation under the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, and I was, on the 29th August, 1874, appointed receiver and manager of the businesses of cabinet maker, sawyer, lamp and oil dealer and washing board manufacturer, carried on by the debtor, James Winne, at West-street, and Lawrence-hill in this city.

The appointment of receiver and manager was never solicited by me. Prior to my appointment, I had no acquaintanceship whatever with either the debtor or his estate. I duly carried on the business, as receiver, until the first general meeting of creditors, held September 23rd, 1874. At this meeting I was unanimously elected trustee; and I may mention, the appointment of trustee was not solicited by me,—in fact, I only held one proxy. A solicitor was duly appointed by an order of the court, dated 3rd of October, 1874. Any one at all conversant with bankruptcy law, must at once see that, so far from this being an accountant's case, the whole proceedings were entirely under the control of a solicitor, who has had the sole management of the prosecution.

At the first meeting of creditors, the debtor was examined as to his affairs, and the statements of account filed by him. He has since stated upon oath that the answers given to questions put to him at the first meeting of creditors were false.

The estate was duly realised, and the creditors assembled at the second general meeting voted me the munificent sum of £10 10s. as remuneration for my services.

Amongst the creditors were two aldermen of this city, three magistrates, and a gentleman who recently filled the office of high sheriff; and no steps were taken by me without their concurrence.

Digitized by Google

Many of the creditors being dissatisfied with the debtor's statement of affairs, inquiries were instituted, and it was proved beyond a question of doubt that a considerable portion of the estate had been made away with, and concealed, by the debtor immediately preceding his bankruptcy.

By way of illustrating one of the many ways in which the debtor's estate was concealed and disposed of, it was proved that the debtor's bedroom had been divided by a partition,—this partition was papered over with wall paper corresponding to the other walls of the room, and behind this partition was secreted stock-in-trade and other articles of the estimated value of £70; this has been proved upon oath by the man who put up the partition and took it down.

A general meeting of creditors was held in accordance with the provisions of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, when it was resolved—

"That the trustee do apply to the court for an order directing a prosecution against the debtor for offences against the Debtors Act, 1869."

The learned judge of the Bristol County Court, upon reading evidence taken on oath, and the above resolution at the general meeting of creditors, made an order upon me to prosecute:—I had no alternative, therefore, but to institute these proceedings. Had I disregarded the order of the court, doubtless I should have been severely censured by the judge.

Acting on the order of the court and the resolution of the general meeting of creditors, I instructed the solicitor to the estate appointed by the court to apply for a warrant against the debtor. A warrant was granted, and the debtor duly appeared before the magistrates, and, after two remands, was committed to take his trial at the Assizes upon five counts.

Had the debtor handed over to his creditors the property which I am in a position to prove he concealed, and otherwise made away with, I can show that his estate would have paid twenty shillings in the pound.

The article in the Daily Telegraph refers to the needless running up of costs and professional charges in this case. Surely, a single penny of the costs cannot be attributed to my incurring, when there was a solicitor duly appointed by the learned registrar of the court and under its control, who exercised his own discretion in taking whatever examination he thought necessary.

In spite of the difficulties which surrounded the case, and the many legal technicalities and quibbles, the jury found the prisoner guilty; and why I should be censured by the court I am at a loss to understand.

Bankruptcy trusteeship I have never sought after. During the four years in which I have been in business, I have only been engaged as trustee in three cases, in two of which I was a creditor, and in both cases not a farthing of assets came into my hands, consequently I got no remuneration; and in this case, which the Daily Telegraph has thought fit to illustrate, I have received only £10 10s. for managing two businesses, collecting and getting in the estate, inventories, valuations, writing over two hundred and fifty letters, attending several meetings of creditors, and making out statements of account: so your readers will see that bankruptcy business, so far as I am concerned, is most unremunerative.

True, black sheep there are in every flock; but I think the character and reputation of the "ignorant" set of men called accountants, as a body, will bear a favourable comparison with the gentlemen solicitors under control of the court.

These are, as concisely as I can put them, the facts of the case. I will now pass on to the escapade of the learned judge on accountants, and to the scurrillous remarks and mistatements of the Daily Telegraph, which they designated hard facts.

The learned judge's remarks on accountants will be readily understood by the commercial community. His lordship's forensic wrath was evoked upon me as prosecutor, and upon accountants generally, simply because his lordship considered that the entire management of bankrupts' estates should be taken out of the hands of accountants, whom he derided as an "ignorant set of men," and Heaven knows what, and handed over to solicitors, whom his lordship was pleased to style "gentlemen." It is greatly to be regretted that one of her Majesty's Lord Justices should use his position to advocate in a most offensive manner the claims of the class to which he himself belongs, and the claims of the very gentlemen who placed him in the position which he now holds.

The learned judge told the jury that it was a prosecution that never ought to have been brought before the court, and the next moment said it was a most grave charge. What does his lordship mean? Does he consider it no crime for a debtor to defraud his creditors? if so, what earthly use is the Debtors Act? The creditors, the principal of whom are men of the highest standing in Bristol, one and all thought it a most proper case for criminal proceedings, as did likewise the learned judge of the County Court; the magistrates who committed the prisoner also thought there was a good cause for trial, or, depend upon it, a judge and jury would not have been troubled with it.

On reference to the Bankruptcy Act, it will be seen that trustees in bankruptcy are far more under control of the court by whom they are appointed than solicitors. Any creditor has power, if he disapproves of the conduct of a trustee, be he an accountant or not, to call a meeting of creditors for his removal; and this step is often adopted.

A trustee, before he can get his costs, must submit his bill for approval to a general meeting of creditors called for that purpose; not so with the gentlemen under control of the court; they get their costs taxed before the registrar, who is guided by the rules of the Act of Parliament; and an inspection of the bankruptcy files will convince any one that the pickings of an estate, be it large or small, is swallowed up in law costs and solicitors' bills.

The Billingsgate slang of the Daily Telegraph will receive little attention from me—the vocabulary whence the delicate epithets were derived must be a matter of prodigious surprise to the public. Bad and rotten must be the cause that cannot be sustained without such vulgar advocacy. I have little fear that the article in question will mislead any portion of the public for whose edification it is written. The public will read this, the Daily Telegraph's latest coup de main upon accountants, with the same credulity as attended the celebrated "Khiva Expedition" and the notorious "Man and Dog Fight." After the expression of public opinion on these two cases, one would think that for ever after the Daily Telegraph would abstain from venturing upon subjects of which it is utterly ignorant.

I am, Sir, Yours, &c.,
Michael Henry Clark.

11 High Street, Bristol.

Digitized by Google

THE "DAILY TELEGRAPH" AND ACCOUNTANTS.

To the Editor of the Accountant.

SIR,—One of the correspondents in your paper of the 21st instant remarks that "Mr. Justice Quain has thought fit, in a recent prosecution, to give his personal views as to the position and status of public accountants as a body, and the Daily Telegraph has taken up the hue and cry."

Doubtless many of your readers will be surprised that the remarks of the Telegraph have led to no further correspondence on the subject in the columns of that paper, especially as we are in the midst of what has been jocosely called the silly season, when the readers of that paper are usually treated to disquisitions and correspondence on the status and pay of commercial clerks, the wrongs of post-office and telegraph officials, the hardships of agricultural labourers, and such-like matters. This remarkable silence on the part of the Telegraph after having raised such a loud hue and cry must not be attributed to its not having received remonstrances from members of the body assailed, as I know that letters from various members of our profession have been addressed to the Telegraph on the subject. It may possibly arise from a consciousness that many of its assertions are not warranted by facts, and that, however much it may proclaim to the world its hatred of injustice and its love of fair play, it would appear as if it sometimes is disposed to "wear its rue with a difference." From this little incident, however, the public accountants of England are enabled to discriminate between their friends and their foes, and to know that one organ of liberal public opinion is willing to issue innuendoes and aspersions against their character and conduct, accompanied by such flowers of speech as "free-booting extortioners," "shady and disreputable practitioners," "undergrown vultures," but at the same time closely shuts its columns to any defence or explanation which may be called forth by its own unwarranted accusations.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient Servant,
S. D. N.

"THE COMPANIES' ACT, 1862."

To the Editor of the Accountant.

SIR,—Referring to the inquiry of your correspondent, "J. G. B." in No. 32 of the Accountant, I think a slightly more elaborate reply than that which you courteously furnished may not be altogether out of place. It has been decided that the wages and salaries of servants do not rank preferentially as against other creditors in the event of a winding-up under order of the Court of Chancery; but by clause 133, paragraph I., which deals with companies winding up voluntarily, it is enacted that:—"The "property of the Company shall be applied in satisfaction "of its liabilities pari passu, and, subject thereto, shall, "unless it be otherwise provided by the regulations of the "Company, be distributed amongst the members according "to their rights and interests in the Company." As regards claims existing against a company at the date of the order for winding it up under the Act, clause 158 provides that all debts or claims against the company, whether present or future, certain or contingent, &c., shall, on admission of proof, be equitably estimated or valued, and the claim accordingly allowed. There is absolutely nothing in the Act by which preference or priority can possibly be given to one creditor over another, consequently Queen's and other taxes and rates can stand on no better footing than other claims; and I am unaware of the existence of any Act of Parliament by which the above construction of the 1862 Act has been effected.

Yours, &c.
X.

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY.

August 19.

(Before Mr. Registrar MURRAY, sitting as Chief Judge.)

IN RE ALEXANDER COLLIE AND CO.—An adjudication of bankruptcy was made against Messrs. Alexander Collie and William Collie, described as merchants, carrying on business in London and Manchester, under the style of Alexander Collie and Co. Messrs. Travers, Smith, and Co. appeared as solicitors to the proceedings. The petitioning creditor is the London and Westminster Bank, claiming the sum of £1,400 upon a bill of exchange, dated the 4th of January last, drawn by the debtors upon and accepted by Charles Carnie, payable six months after date, and dishonoured at maturity. In respect to this debt, which forms a very small portion only of the aggregate amount due from the bankrupts, the petitioning creditor has no security. The act of bankruptcy upon which the petition is founded is the presentation by the debtors of the liquidation petition, the proceedings under which fell to the ground. As to Alexander Collie, who has absconded, an order for "substituted service" of the petition had been obtained, but in the case of the other partner, who remains within the jurisdiction, service was effected in the prescribed mode. No notice to dispute the petition was given on behalf of either debtor, and Mr. Registrar Murray made the adjudication in the usual form. The first meeting is fixed for the 6th of September, at 12 o'clock, when the proceedings will be merely formal, no serious contest being anticipated for the choice of a trustee.

IN RE THOMAS CORNEY.—Mr. Registrar Murray appointed Mr. Pettis, accountant, Guildhall-chambers, receiver to the estate of this debtor, who is described as a plasterer and modeller, of Westminster-chambers, Victoria-street, also of the Fulham-road and Langley, Buckinghamshire, who has petitioned the Court, estimating his liabilities at £5,223. The value of the assets is at present unestimated, but will, it is expected, realise a considerable amount. Upon the application of Mr. John Haynes, his Honour also granted an interim restraining order.

August 20.

(Before Mr. Registrar HAZLITT, sitting as Chief Judge.)

IN RE ALEXANDER THORN.—The debtor is described as a builder and contractor for public works, of Cremorne Wharf, Chelsea; Ennismore-gardens, Hyde-park; and Oakley-street, King's-road. He also carries on business at the Water-works, baths, the Assembly-rooms, and skating rink, West Worthing, Sussex. He has filed a petition for liquidation, with debts estimated at £151,000, and assets, consisting of stock-in-trade and other property of various descriptions, £140,000. Upon the application of Mr. Doria, the court appointed Mr. Charles L. Nichols, accountant, receiver and manager, and granted an interim injunction to restrain actions by creditors.

(Before Mr Registrar MURRAY.)

IN RE GILEAD A. SMITH AND CO.—At a first meeting under an adjudication obtained against these bankrupts, who are merchants, of Change-alley, Cornhill, and New York, debts amounting to about £30,000 were proved, and Mr. Whinney (Hardin Whinney, and Co.) was appointed trustee. The unsecured liabilities are returned at £105,169, with liabilities partly secured, £220,212; and assets, £20,212. Messrs. Clarkes, Rawlins, and Co., are the solicitors in the matter.

Digitized by Google

August 21.

(Before Mr. Registrar Murray, sitting as Chief Judge.)

In re Whitlock and Dadson.—The debtors were wine and spirit merchants, in Cannon-street, City. Their debts were about £14,000, and the assets estimated at £5,500. On a former occasion a receiver had been appointed. Mr. Robertson Griffiths now moved to continue a restraining order on legal proceedings until further orders. The learned registrar granted the application.

In re David Young.—This was another failure in the wine trade. The debtor carried on business in Gracechurch-street. He had recently been made a bankrupt on his liquidation petition. An application was made to dissolve an injunction. Mr. Brough and Mr. Robertson Griffiths appeared in the case. The Court ordered an adjournment until after the first meeting of creditors.

August 24th.

Mr. Registrar Roche held a sitting at Lincoln's-Inn, and disposed of several applications in liquidation matters.

In re Thomas Richardson.—Mr. Lucas applied for leave to register a resolution to liquidate by arrangement come to under the separate estate of Thomas Richardson, late M.P. for Hartlepool, and described as of Gracechurch-street, also of Middleton, near Hartlepool, trading in partnership with John William Richardson, as engineers and ironfounders, under the firm of Thomas Richardson and Sons. Resolutions to liquidate by arrangement had been duly registered with regard to the joint estate and the separate estate of J. W. Richardson; but a further meeting of creditors in the separate estate of Thomas Richardson had been rendered necessary. His Honour, being informed that all objections had been withdrawn, directed registration.

In re James Watson.—The debtor, who has presented a petition for liquidation, was a skirt and costume manufacturer of Gresham street, trading under the style of Tellwright and Watson. His liabilities are estimated at about £14,000, and assets £7,000. Upon the application of Mr. A. H. Miller, supported by Mr. Farrar, his Honour appointed Mr. Lovering, public-accountant, to the office of receiver and manager, and granted an interim injunction.

LIVERPOOL COUNTY COURT.

Aug. 18.

(Before Mr. J. F. Collier, Judge.)

The case "Tappenbeck ex parte Beckman, Bastos, and Co., trustees of August Christiansen and Co., of Para," came up this day for judgment. Mr. W. F. Robinson, Q.C., and Mr. Aspland (instructed by Mr. Rogerson) appeared for the applicants, Messrs. Beckman and Co., trustees of Christiansen; and Mr. Herschell, Q.C., and Mr. Walton (instructed by Messrs. Hull, Stone, and Fletcher), for Mr. Harmood Banner, the trustee of Tappenbeck. His Honour had reserved his judgment, which he gave as follows:—The form in which this matter came before me was a motion on behalf of Messrs. August Christiansen and Co. for an order on the trustee under the liquidation of Messrs. Augustus Tappenbeck and Co. to deliver up to the trustee of the estate of Christiansen and Co. certain goods, or the proceeds thereof, shipped by the latter firm to former, on the ground that such goods had been appropriated to meet certain bills of exchange drawn by Christiansen and Co. upon Tappenbeck and Co. Mr. J. F. A. Tappenbeck and Mr. A. L. Christiansen traded in Liverpool as merchants under the style of Augustus Tappenbeck and Co. The same J. F. A. Tappenbeck, and the same A. L. Christiansen, together with Mr. W. Schramm, traded in partnership in Brazil under the style of Augustus Christiansen and Co. as commission agents. The course of business was as follows:—Christiansen and Co., as agents for Tappenbeck and Co., bought produce in Brazil for account of Tappenbeck and Co., and shipped it to their order, Christiansen and Co. being paid by commission. The property in the goods passed to Tappenbeck and Co. on arrival in Liverpool. Either before the purchase, for the purpose of providing funds for the purchase, or after the purchase and before the shipment, Christiansen and Co. drew bills on Tappenbeck and Co. and sold them in Brazil. These bills passed by endorsement to holders in England. Christiansen and Co. advised the bills in batches without any reference to the shipments. They then advised the shipments, and forwarded bills of lading, enclosing in the same or a subsequent letter an account current, showing on one side the value of the produce and on the other setting out certain bills or parts of bills which, together with charges, exactly balanced the account. The bills not having been always drawn with reference to the shipments advised were not of the exact amount of the invoice, and therefore a portion of a bill was sometimes credited to one shipment and the balance to another. This course of business will be best explained by an example. On the 28th May Christiansen and Co. wrote to Tappenbeck and Co. as follows:—"Enclosed you find our drafts by this mail, Nos. 191 to 206, amounting to £6,092 17s. 1d., which please protect." Amongst the bills set out in the letter are those numbered 201, 203, 204, 205. On the 5th June they advised bill No. 213, and on the 7th June Nos. 214 and 215; and on the 10th June they advised No. 220. On the 23rd June Christiansen and Co. shipped 96 cases of indiarubber, which arrived in Liverpool on 10th August. On the 6th July Christiansen and Co. wrote to Tappenbeck and Co. as follows:—"Enclosed we hand you to-day bill of lading and duplicate invoice of 96 cases of rubber shipped for your account per Maranhense, amounting to 37,399 Rs., due 23rd June, for which please give us credit on general account." On the 17th July Christiansen and Co. wrote thus to Tappenbeck and Co.:—"Enclosed you find statement of these shipments (viz. the 96 cases per Maranhense and another), and apportionment of drafts against same, which please examine, and, if found correct, enter in conformity." The account enclosed is headed "Messrs. Aug. Tappenbeck and Co., Liverpool. Their general account." On the debit side is the amount of the invoice of the 96 cases, and on the credit side the bills Nos. 201, 203, 204, 205, part of 213, the whole of 214, 215, and 220, together with several others. With interest on both sides of the accounts it exactly balances. On the reception of the above accounts the transactions were entered in Tappenbeck and Co's books in the same form. Both houses failed. Some of the bills were accepted by Tappenbeck and Co., and were not paid; others were never accepted. Mr. Christiansen swears, and he was not cross-examined on his affidavit, that it was always understood between the Liverpool and Brazil houses that the proceeds of merchandise were to be appropriated to the payment of the bills drawn against the invoices for such merchandise. One of the difficulties in the case is, that many of the bills at any rate were not drawn, strictly speaking, against the invoices. I do not, however, think that the fact that the bills were not always drawn with reference to the particular shipment they were afterwards placed against in the account, or the fact that they did not exactly correspond in amount with the value of the shipment, is very material if they were by consent of both parties, as in this case, appropriated to the shipment. The course of business between Christiansen and Co., and Tappenbeck and Co., although not precisely identical with, does not, in my opinion, differ in any essential particular from, that with respect to the cotton in the case of ex parte Dewhurst, in 8 L. R. Ch: App: 965, and I consider myself bound by the decision therein. I have therefore come to the conclusion that the various shipments were appropriated to the payment of some of the bills at all events, and that with regard to such bills the doctrine in ex parte Waring 19, Vesey 345, applies to those which were accepted by Tappenbeck and Co. and not paid, and that so much of the merchandise appropriated to such bills as has come into the hands of the trustees in specie, or the produce of it, ought to form a fund in the hands of the trustee for the payment of the billholders, pro rata with reference to the amount of the fund and the amount of the bill; and that with regard to the bills unaccepted by Tappenbeck and Co., so much of the merchandise appropriated to such bills as has come into the hands of the trustee in specie, or the produce of it, should be returned to the trustees of Christiansen and Co., as the billholders will have to prove upon their estate as drawers. I shall, however, have to direct an inquiry as to what goods were appropriated to what bills; what bills were accepted, and what unaccepted; and what bills have been paid or otherwise disposed of by mutual debits and credits between the parties. For the purpose of facilitating an appeal from this decision, and also by way of guide in the inquiry, I shall hold that part of the goods shipped per Maranhense mentioned in the account enclosed in the letter of the 17th July was appropriated to the payment of the bills numbered 203, 204, 205, 214, 215, and 220.

Digitized by Google

August 20.

(Before Mr. Perronet Thomson.)

In re William Hughes.—This was an application by Mr. Harris on behalf of the debtor, a leather dealer in Brownlow-hill, for an order upon the receiver and trustee to submit his bill of charges for taxation and to hand to the debtor any balance remaining, after payment of the taxed costs. It appeared that the debtor presented his petition in March, 1875, and Mr. Arthur Barron, of Old Jewry-chambers, London, accountant, was nominated by the creditors as receiver and manager. At the first meeting of creditors, a composition of 5s. in the pound was accepted, and the receiver was appointed trustee for the distribution of the composition. The liabilities were £1,193, and assets £352. At the second meeting, the creditors confirmed the acceptance of the composition, and the resolutions were duly registered. As manager and trustee, Mr. Barron had received between the 2nd and 26th April £134 2s. 3d., and his account for costs, expenses, and disbursements was £117. The items of the account were as follow:—Professional charges, £50 4s. 10d.; hotel and travelling expenses, £30 5s. 11d.; valuation charges, £10 10s.; postages, £1 15s.; and new goods bought, £25 3s. 1d. Mr. Harris submitted that these charges were excessive, having regard to the limited dimensions of the estate; and after pointing out the too common mistake of creditors bringing down London accountants to manage estates which could be more economically and efficiently administered by local agency, contended that the charges of Mr. Barron ought to be taxed, and his accounts passed before the registrar. Mr. Carey (from Messrs. Evans and Lockett's) in reply, took exception to the jurisdiction of the court. He argued that a case of composition being merely one of arrangement, by which the creditors, instead of having 20s in the pound, accepted a smaller sum, all the court was empowered to do was to assist the creditors in enforcing the terms of the arrangement. If the debtor or the creditors considered it necessary to obtain the assistance of a receiver and trustee to carry out such an arrangement, they must provide for the costs, but there was no provision in the act or rules which gave the court jurisdiction to interfere. In cases of bankruptcy and liquidation, where the debtor was divested of his estate, and it was being administered for the benefit of creditors, express jurisdiction was given to the court to decide all questions which might arise, but the omission of such a provision with respect to a composition clearly implied that in case of dispute or difference, the parties were left to their ordinary remedy at law. His Honour, after hearing Mr. Harris on the point raised, ruled that he had no jurisdiction, and therefore refused the application.

In re Charles Querner.—This was an application for an order for payment of the legal costs of an abortive liquidation petition, which eventuated in the present bankruptcy. His Honour, after hearing Mr. Nicholson for Mr. Bolland, the trustee, made the desired order, and intimated that, by the terms of the 292nd rule, the costs were allowed as a matter of course, unless otherwise ordered.

In re J. P. Mercer.—This was also an application as to costs. The debtor, a painter in St. Thomas's-buildings, presented a petition for liquidation, and immediately afterwards Mr. Edward Williams, solicitor for a creditor, obtained the signatures of a majority in value of the creditors to the appointment of Mr. Nicholls, accountant, as receiver. At the first meeting Mr. Ford was chosen trustee, and the present application was for an order that he pay the legal costs of obtaining the appointment of receiver, amounting to £8 9s., and also the costs of the receiver, £10 3s. On an intimation from the court that the former could not be allowed, the claim was withdrawn, and the costs of the receiver being consented to, were allowed. Mr. J. Carruthers represented Mr. Ford, the trustee.

Defalcations of a Bank Manager.—At the Cannon-street Hotel, on Monday night, a meeting of the shareholders of the Equitable Permanent Building Society and Deposit Bank was held, under the presidency of Mr. Cotton. Mr. Green said that the liabilities were—to depositors, £6,155 6s. 2d.; to shareholders, £2,564 0s. 9d.; making, with other liabilities, a total of £9,561 13s. 5d. On the other side were advances on mortgages estimated to produce £7,323 3s. 7d., the present value of which was £6,000. That, with other smaller assets, left a deficiency of £3,412 3s. 1d. The chairman said that he had placed implicit confidence in Mr. Martindale, and could not have believed that he would have placed them in that position. There was the greatest need for the assistance of the shareholders in order to avoid bankruptcy. Mr. Minton (auditor) stated that when he commenced to audit the accounts he discovered errors in the books—£100 in one place, £20 in another, £40 in another, and so on. It was then necessary, until the whole affairs were known, that every thing should be stopped. It was impossible for him to audit the accounts, for there were no figures in some of the columns of the books. The cash book had not been posted up since February last. An independent auditor was appointed, and considering the discrepancies in the books he (Mr. Minton), although one of the auditors of the company, bowed to the decision of the directors. Mr. Stubbings said that there appeared to be a deficit of £2,500, and as the directors had signed the cheques they were responsible to the shareholders. He begged to be excused for speaking strongly, for on the Thursday before payment was stopped he had put in the bank £50 out of his hard earnings, and £20 on account of a Sunday school excursion. He proposed an adjournment in order that a full statement of accounts might be presented to every shareholder. Mr. Taylor (solicitor) did not think that the directors were liable; besides which, the estate of the late manager could be placed against the defalcations, although what that would realise was not at present known. After a prolonged discussion, Mr. Stubbings' motion was withdrawn, and a resolution, moved by Mr. Luck, was passed, to the effect that a committee be appointed to confer with the directors as to the correctness of the accounts presented, and to wind-up the company voluntarily.

Digitized by Google

EDINBURGH BANKRUPTCY COURT.

In the Edinburgh Bankruptcy Court on Tuesday, before Sheriff Hamilton, Messrs. Buchan and Meek, wholesale ironmongers, electro-platers, and manufacturers, Edinburgh, appeared for examination. There were present Mr. James H. Balgarnie, C.A., trustee; Mr. W. Duncan, S.S.C., agent in the sequestration; Mr. D. M'Kechnie, advocate, instructed by Mr. P. H. Cameron, S.S.C., for Mr. Meek; Mr. Aitken, accountant, for Mr. Cruickshank, a creditor; Mr. R. Smyth, of Messrs. Lang, Smith and Co., Wolverhampton, a commissioner; Mr. A. Bowie, of Messrs. R. Anderson & Co., iron merchants, Leith, creditors.

Mr. Buchan, interrogated by the trustee, deponed that he commenced business in 1865, as a wholesale ironmonger and agent at 24 St. James-square. He had no partner at that time. He was then agent for Messrs. J. and J. Taunton, of Birmingham, for iron bedsteads and safes, and also for Messrs. Smith and Chamberlain, Birmingham, for brassfounding and gas fittings. He had no capital when he commenced in 1865; he did not require any, as he acquired the ironmongery business gradually. He assumed Mr. Meek, his son-in-law, as partner in the beginning of 1870, when he had a capital of about £200, and Mr. Meek put in £168. The co-partnership included the agencies, the ironmongery, and all the other businesses carried on. The arrangement was that he was to take special charge of the agencies and the travelling department, and Mr. Meek was to look after the other part of the business. Besides the agencies already mentioned, Mr. Meek acquired one from Messrs. Ready and Son, Wolverhampton, gasfitters, which he held for about one and a half years. He (the bankrupt) also acquired the agency of Messrs. J. Hunt and Co., Birmingham. The arrangement with reference to these agencies was, that they went into the general business, and the profits from them were equally divided. There was no distinction kept up in any form between the agencies and the general business. The last balance-sheet made out was dated 31st December, 1873, and in it the profits of the whole business were divided equally. The bank account was always in the name of the firm. They carried on this practice for about a year and a half, when they found it awkward for their system of book-keeping, and consequently they began to remit all the collections to the firm's bank account, and delayed making remittances to the constituents until the journeys were completed. The agencies were kept in their individual names, and the reason for this was that each of them took special charge of their respective agencies, and they were to belong to each in the event of a dissolution. Both Mr. Meek and the travellers were in the habit of collecting Taunton's accounts. These were all discharged in name of the firm of Buchan and Meek. At first they were remitted punctually, but for the last twelve months they were not. There had been no settlement for a considerable time previous to the sequestration. Mr. Taunton came down to their premises in July last, and looked over the affairs of the firm. He found that, besides being in a bad way financially, the partners were not agreeing and wishing to separate. Under Mr. Taunton's advice and that of their law agent, they executed a trust-deed in name of Mr. Balgarnie. Until 6th July, when Mr. Taunton came, he had no idea of stopping payment, and so far as he knew the firm had no idea either, although they had been considerably hampered for money for some months previous. Mr. Taunton got from him a good number of bills prior to sequestration. Being shown a list of bills handed to Messrs. Taunton in payment of their claim within sixty days, which bills amounted to £698, he deponed that these were paid in the same manner as they had been in the habit of doing for years. When they had no cash they sent bills. Messrs. Taunton got no money, goods, or bills after 6th July, when the trust-deed was executed. He could not tell what were the profits during any year excepting 1872 and 1873. During these two years the profits were £1,954. The balance sheet also brought out a surplus as at 31st December, 1873, of £1,916 15s. 9d. The present state of affairs showed a deficiency of £2,612, making up a total deficiency since December of £4,528 16s. In a statement which he submitted, the deficiency was accounted for. For his household expenditure he drew on an average about £250 a year.

Interrogated by Mr. Fraser—He found himself pinched for money for at least twelve months before signing the trust-deed. He first informed the Messrs. Taunton that they were pinched for money on 1st July. In that letter he did not inform them that a collapse was approaching, but he said that Mr. Taunton should come down to see what should be done. He acquainted Mr. Meek about the letter to Messrs. Taunton, at the time of writing it, but he did not show it to him. He (bankrupt) might have stated to a creditor that Messrs. Taunton's claim might amount to £1,000 or £1,200, but it was a mere guess, arrived at without going upon facts at all. Its actual amount was £2,700. The firm did not consult Messrs. Taunton as to the change of agency. For them he gathered about £250 within a few days previous to the execution of the trust-deed, and remitted the money. Part of this consisted of the bills already spoken to.

Interrogated—In company with Mr. Balgarnie, did you call on any of the Birmingham creditors and canvass them to support him for the trusteeship?

Mr. Balgarnie (to the bankrupt)—Don't answer that; the question is a piece of impertinence. (Laughter.)

Mr. Fraser—Were you ever bankrupt before?—Yes, I was sequestrated about the year 1858. I was discharged then.

Mr. Fraser—Had you been bankrupt previous to that?—Yes, I was once bankrupt in Leith as a wood merchant.

Mr. Fraser—I am told you have been bankrupt even previous to the Leith business, when you lived in Inverkeithing?—Whoever told you so told what is not true.

Mr. James Meek, the other partner, having been called and heard Mr. Buchan's deposition read, concurred generally therein. In answer to questions by the trustee, he stated he had had various dealings with Mr. Cruickshank since the beginning of the co-partnery. He got from him stationery, and Mr. Cruickshank got from them safes through Taunton's agency, and general fittings for his shop, which the firm charged to his account. On the 29th June last there were certain bills drawn by the firm upon him—the first was for £93 10s., dated 4th March at four months; another for £172, dated 23rd March, at four months; another £65, dated 29th April, at four months. On the 29th and 30th June Mr. Cruickshank also got goods to the value of £137 11s. 10d. He promised to Mr. Buchan to grant a bill for these goods provided they were put in at the cost price, as he did not require them. The invoice was written out and sent in to Mr. Buchan at higher than cost prices, and, therefore, he understood Mr. Cruickshank refused to sign the bill. The bills referred to were not due when he paid them. He gave Mr. Cruickshank money to pay them on 29th June. His reason for paying these bills before they were due was that Mr. Cruickshank pressed him to relieve him of the obligations, as he saw Mr. Buchan and he (witness) were disagreeing, and speaking of a dissolution. Another reason which influenced him was that the £93 10s. bill was got from Mr. Cruickshank for Taunton's goods. Mr. Cruickshank got no other goods, bills, or cash beyond what he mentioned within sixty days of the sequestration. Both Mr. Buchan and he agreed that the goods he got should go to the account of his claims against the firm. They got goods from M'Lelland Brothers, Birmingham, about 20th June, which were sent on approbation. They consisted of watches, brooches, and earrings to the value of £400. He selected from this lot watches to the value of about £84, and returned the remainder, except a parcel of brooches to the value of about £60, which he inadvertently omitted to enclose. He got a letter from them, dated 2nd July, asking whether they would invoice these brooches to them as sold, and in reply he wrote them a letter, of which he kept no copy, to the effect that the firm had kept the watches only. At this time he did not know that the brooches had not been returned. M'Lelland sent back an invoice for the watches and brooches as sold, and on 12th July they forwarded three bills for the amount of the invoice. He heard no more of the matter till 15th July, after the execution of the trust-deed, when the traveller called at the warehouse and demanded the brooches back. He saw him with the trustee, who told him he could not get them back. After the trustee had gone, however, the traveller persuaded witness to give him the brooches, and also the invoice, which he promised to correct and return. On 25th June the traveller of Messrs. Wolfson, of Manchester, called with an assortment of watches, of which Mr. Buchan and he purchased ten, the value of which was £116 15s., and for which the traveller took a bill. About the middle of June he ordered watches from Mr. G. J. Hill, Coventry, amounting to £139 6s. They wrote offering to keep them on condition that Mr. Hill allowed 5 per cent. off. Mr. Hill never replied, and he (the bankrupt) wrote back stating that he had kept the watches on the usual terms. He sold all the watches except two, for the sum of £300, to Mr. Paton, West Port, on the 30th June, and the sale was entered in the cash-book on the 1st July. The amount was paid partly in cheque and partly in cash.

Digitized by Google

By Mr. M'Kechnie—Up till 6th July bankrupt did not consider himself insolvent, nor contemplate suspending payment. It was Mr. Taunton coming down that was the cause of their stopping payment. Neither himself personally nor the firm of Buchan and Meek were ever appointed agents to Taunton. They appointed themselves agents. The Tauntons throughout addressed Mr. Buchan individually in writing about matters touching upon the agency. There was a special account in their books, headed "Taunton's collections."

Mr. Buchan, on being recalled, concurred with his partner's examination, so far as it was not inconsistent with his previous deposition, and subject to the explanation that he did not know why Cruickshank did not sign the bill except on the belief that Mr. Meek had told him not to do it. He further explained that he had nothing to do with the transactions with Mr. M'Lelland and Mr. Hill, and the sale to Mr. Payton, or the payment to Mr. Cruickshank.

This closed the examination, which had lasted over five hours, and the oath will formally be administered to the bankrupts to-day.

In the state of affairs the liabilities were given at £10,819 14s 10d, and the assets, exclusive of heritable property, at £8207 14s 7d.

One of the most important parliamentary papers of the session has just been issued containing the accounts for the year ended the 31st March last. The income of the United Kingdom was £74,928,039 13s. 3d., and the expenditure was the same amount. The Customs duties realised net £19,626,342 14s. 9d.; the "conscience money" remitted in the year to the Chancellor of the Exchequer was £2,668 12s. 9d., a much greater sum than sent last year. The Excise duties produced £27,956,020 9s. 9¾d., including £15,321,119, on spirits, tobacco, &c. Excise licences realised £85,729 12s. 2½d., and the "Railway Duty on Passengers," £629,756 5s. 9d.

Fraudulent Bankruptcy.—At the Central Criminal Court, August 19th, William Richardson was charged with various offences under the Bankruptcy Act, the charges against him being, making away with his property, not giving a true account of his estate, and embezzling a portion of it, appropriating it to his own use, and thereby defrauding his creditors. The prisoner carried on the business of a cheesemonger in the Fulham-road, and when he failed the amount of his debts was about £300, and the assets £5. He appeared to have been struggling to support his family, and the defence was that he had not been guilty of any fraud.—The Jury found the defendant guilty, but strongly recommended him to mercy, and he was sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

THE ALBERT LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY ARBITRATION.

Lord Cairns has made his third and final award in this matter, which has been pending since May, 1871. This bulky document sets forth all the particulars concerning the Bank of London Association, the Family Endowment Society, the Western Society, the Medical Invalid Society, the Metropolitan Counties Society, the Manchester and London Association, the Anchor Company, the Falcon Society, and the National Provincial Society, all of which became amalgamated with the Albert Company. With regard to that company the following claims were established:—

English and Continental policies and endowment contracts	£1,183,917 19 4
English and Continental annuities	39,506 16 0
		£1,223,424 15 4
Indian policies and endowment contracts	£283,144 0 11
Indian annuities	21,962 14 0
		305,106 14 11
General claims limited ..	£11,082 9 7
General claims unlimited.	4,372 13 10
		15,455 3 5
		£1,543,986 13 8
Claims under Indemnities:—
By Bank of London Association	£26,997 6 9
By Family Endowment Society	67,819 12 2
By Western Society ..	28,427 14 8
		123,244 13 7
Total claims established......		£1,667,231 7 3

Lord Cairns made a call on the contributories of the company settled of the full amount of share capital for which they were liable, the latest time limited for payment whereof by any of the contributories was 31st January, 1873, and the detail and results whereof were as follows:—Number of shares on which call was made, 24,473; aggregate nominal amount of call, £317,411; expected aggregate produce of call as estimated when call was made, £150,000. A compromise of call was approved and ordered by Lord Cairns on 7780 shares held by 116 contributories. The aggregate nominal amount of call on those shares was £120,967; the aggregate amount accepted in compromise on those shares (including dividends on value of policies surrendered in compromise) was £35,823 8s. 3d.; the difference, being loss by compromise, was £85,143 11s. 9d. An abandonment of call was ordered by Lord Cairns on 7261 shares held by 111 contributories. The aggregate nominal amount of call on those shares was £118,217, less received in part £3032 16s. 2d.—£115,184 3s. 10d. The total loss by compromise and abandonment amounted to £200,327 15s. 7d. The actual aggregate produce of call (including interest on arrears and including aggregate amount received in compromise) was £117,343 16s. 6d. The following was the general result of the call:—Number of contributories, 484; number of shares, 24,473; amount of call, £317,411; amount paid, £117,343 16s. 6d. The assets of the company realised other than the produce of the call on the contributories were as follows:—

Digitized by Google

Cash in hand and at bankers and branches at commencement of liquidation	£11,210 16 11
Agents' balances	8,406 14 2
Loans on policies and interest	20,338 7 8
Loans on mortgages and bonds and interest	23,984 1 4
Reversions and annuities	13,522 12 6
Sums due on half-credit policies and for suspended premiums	12,462 5 2
Premiums due before date of winding-up order and paid to support claims in the liquidation	9,862 0 6
Re-assurance policies	8,044 11 2
Leaseholds and furniture	4,608 6 1
Indian assets, consisting of loans and Indian government rupee paper and interest	120,625 15 11
Balance of trust fund of Bank of London Association (as in paragraph 37)........	246 6 6
Unexpended assets of Medical Invalid Society (as in paragraph 80)............	13,618 19 2
Sundry receipts	61 11 7
Total assets (other than call) realised ..	£246,992 8 8

Money forming part of the general fund was from time to time invested in the public funds or placed on deposit, and the dividends and interest received thereon and credited and carried to the general fund amounted to the sum of £9,869 3s. 10d. The aggregate amount of the general fund was as follows:—

Call	£117,343 16 6
Other assets	246,992 6 8
Dividends and interest	9,869 3 10
Total general fund	£374,205 7 0

Out of the general fund there was paid the sum of £35,629 19s. 11d. to creditors of the company, in order to release property of the company held by those creditors as security, leaving a balance of £338,575 7s. 11d. applicable for dividend on the claims established of unsecured creditors. On those claims there were ordered to be paid a first dividend of 2s. in the pound and a second dividend of 1s. 6d. in the pound, and a third dividend of 5½d. in the pound, making in the aggregate a dividend of 3s. 11½d. in the pound. The aggregate amount of those three dividends was £329,972 12s. 9d., leaving a balance of assets unappropriated of £8,602 15s. 2d.

The aggregate amount of the payments out of the general fund was as follows:—

Secured creditors		£35,629 19 1
Dividends on English and Continental policies and annuities	£241,900 17 5
Dividends on Indian policies and annuities ..	60,258 6 8
Dividends on general claims, limited and unlimited	3,037 17 10
Dividends on claims under indemnities	24,392 3 6
		329,589 5 5
Total payments....		365,219 4 6

There remained a balance of £8986 2s. 6d. of the general fund unexpended, which was transferred to the surplus fund.

The total amount received in England in respect of premiums under an order of the Court of Chancery of 14th August, 1869, on the terms of being returned on application, was £65,319 18s. 4d., and of that sum there was applied for and returned the sum of £63,342 6s. 5d., leaving the sum of £1,977 11s. 11d. unclaimed. The total amount received in India in respect of premiums under that order of the Court of Chancery was Rupees 146,464.0.3, and of that sum there was applied for and returned the sum of Rupees 137,203.3.0, leaving a sum of Rupees 9260.13.3 unclaimed. Of the last mentioned sum the sum of Rupees 5061.12.1, being premiums paid in respect of policies on which claims were established, was paid to the Administrator Generals of Bengal, Madras, and Bombay, in pursuance of the Arbitration Act of 1874, leaving a balance of Rupees 4199.1.2, or £419 18s. 2d., being premiums paid on policies in respect of which claims were not established. The sums of £1,977 11s. 11d. and £419 18s. 2d., amounting together to the sum of £2,397 10s. 1d., constituted a fund in this award referred to as the premium fund, and the same was transferred to the surplus fund.

There was also a costs fund, which realised a total of £95,603 16s. 3d., and the following were the expenses and claims:—

Expenses of liquidation in Court of Chancery and other proceedings authorised by the Court before passing of Arbitration Act (August 11th, 1869, to May 25th, 1871)		£49,198 2 4
Share of promoters' expenses of passing of Arbitration Act of 1871, and promoters' expenses of passing of Arbitration Act of 1874		1,265 17 10
Share of expenses of re-construction committee..................................		675 0 0
Share of expenses of execution of Arbitration Acts		33,573 11 6
Residue of amount of claims for which liability of contributories was unlimited after payment of dividends thereon:—
Claims	£4,372 13 10
Less dividends of 3s. 11½d. in the pound included in aggregate dividend paid thereon	865 8 8
	£3,507 5 2
Less amount not applied for	50 14 11
		3,456 10 3
Total payments		£88,169 1 11

The balance of the costs fund remaining after deduction of those payments was £7,434 11s. 4d. Out of that balance a return of £1 a share to such of the contributories of the company as had paid in full the costs call was ordered to be made. That return amounted in the aggregate to £7,038, leaving a balance of £396 14s. 4d. unappropriated. Out of the surplus fund a return of 35s. a share to those contributories of the Albert Company who had paid in full the costs call was ordered to be made, in addition to the return of £1 a share out of the costs fund. That return out of the surplus fund amounted in the aggregate to £12,316 10s. The unappropriated balances were applied in payment of expenses connected with the closing of the arbitration.

Lord Cairnsnow declares that all calls made by the Court of Chancery, or by him, on contributories in the several associations, societies, and companies comprised in the Arbitration Act of 1871, and not enforced, shall be abandoned. The affairs of those several associations, societies, and companies, are declared to be completely wound-up and finally settled. Each of those associations, societies, and companies is dissolved as from the date of the award.

The Times, in a leader on this subject, says:—"Lord Cairns has issued his third and final Award in the Arbitration of the Albert Assurance Company, and the settlement of the numerous and most complicated claims of the creditors of this society, whether against it or the companies that had been from time to time absorbed in it, has been completed in little more than four years. The Arbitration has thus been exceedingly expeditious, and it has also been remarkably cheap. The costs of the winding-up of the Albert, from May, 1871, to the final award on the 13th of this month, have just exceeded £70,000. There may be persons, unacquainted with the intricacy of the claims and counter claims that have been settled, who will not at once appreciate the praise that is rightly bestowed on the celerity and cheapness of the Award. £70,000 is no inconsiderable sum, and four years contain a very large number of working hours; but some conception may be formed of the credit that is due to Lord Cairns by comparing the time and cost of his Award with the time and money spent by the Court of Chancery over the same business with no result whatever. The winding-up of the Albert was first commenced at Lincoln's Inn, and, if we remember rightly, in the Court of Vice-Chancellor Sir Richard Malins. It remained in Chancery from the 11th of August, 1869, to the 25th of May, 1871, and the costs incurred in a year and nine months were £71,668, or about £1,435 more than the costs of the Arbitration in more than four years. The comparative cheapness of the proceedings before Lord Cairns is thus numerically demonstrated. Its greater expedition cannot be measured so exactly, but we know that before the bold step was taken of applying for a special Act of Parliament to authorise the winding-up of the Albert before an Arbitrator, the condition of the liquidation in Chancery was contemplated by those interested in it with feelings of despair. Whether the fault was entirely due to a want of elasticity in the procedure in Chancery or to special and personal causes is an inquiry on which we cannot enter; but the result was described by Lord Westbury as a scandal on our judicature, which was openly confessed when application was made to Parliament to create a special court to administer the liquidation of the Albert, the proper court for this business having shown its incapacity to discharge it."

Digitized by Google

FRAUDULENT BANKRUPTCY.

At the Manchester quarter-sessions, on the 20th inst. before Mr. H. W. West, Q.C., Recorder, Nicolaos Demetrius Carandrea, 28, a Greek, formerly carrying on business as a shipper, in Bond-street and Lloyd's House, was charged on a variety of counts with having, as a bankrupt, defrauded his creditors. Mr. Jordan and Mr. Smith prosecuted; Mr. Leresche appeared for the prisoner. Mr. Jordan, in detailing to the jury the nature of the evidence he proposed to call, said that the charges against the prisoner were made under the Debtors Act (1869), which made it a criminal offence for a trader to go away within four months immediately preceding his bankruptcy and take with him money amounting to £20 and upwards, which ought to be divided amongst his creditors. The prisoner was in business on his own account in this city for two or three years prior to October, 1874, and the jury would perhaps not be astonished to hear—though it showed how easily credit was obtained in Manchester—that three months and a half before his bankruptcy Carandrea was able to get on credit from some of the first houses in Manchester goods to the value of £9,244. His method of payment, a usual one among merchants, and especially foreigners, was by bills of exchange, payable principally at three months' date. The goods mentioned he sent to his brother in Constantinople, and then absconded, clearing out every farthing's worth of property, and leaving his creditors to look after themselves. While in business here the prisoner had in his employment a clerk named Musgrove, and after his arrest in Paris a number of letters he had written to that clerk fell into the hands of Inspector Shandley, the officer in charge of the case. These letters threw a good deal of light on the prisoner's conduct, and would go a good way towards proving his guilt. Musgrove, it might be mentioned, had absconded, there being a serious charge against him. When the prisoner disappeared, his creditors became anxious, and held a meeting on January 14. Here the prisoner's attorney, Mr. Storer, presented a statement showing the condition of the estate as described by his client. The liabilities were placed at £6,627, and the assets at £5 1s. 6d. Mr. Storer offered the creditors £300 (afterwards increased to £500) for division amongst themselves in satisfaction of their claims; but they rejected it, and filed a petition against the prisoner in the Manchester County Court. An adjudication was made soon afterwards. The prisoner was arrested on July 20 in Paris, where he had been living for several months in constant correspondence with Musgrove, through one Bistaki, also a Greek. Witnesses were then called to support this statement. Mr. Lawson, merchant and agent, 33 Kennedy-street, creditor, and trustee in the bankruptcy, said that the prisoner's estate had only realised £3 towards the discharge of liabilities amounting to about £7,000. The witness proved a number of letters in the prisoner's handwriting.—Detective inspector Shandley deposed to having apprehended the prisoner, and reading the warrant over to him. The reply, the witness said, was: "I have sent £10 to Manchester. I intended to pay my creditors. I entrusted my money to Bistaki, and he has robbed me." Cross-examined: The prisoner said the £10 had been sent to Manchester to pay the expenses of a meeting of his creditors. The defence as put before the jury by Mr. Leresche was that the prisoner had gone abroad simply with the intention of obtaining money from his foreign correspondents, with which to pay his creditors; and the learned counsel pointed out that with the exception of consigning all his goods to one quarter, there had been nothing irregular, injudicious, or imprudent in his conduct. Mr. Jordan having replied to the effect that the prisoner's conduct from the beginning to the end had been a gross fraud, the Recorder summed up, the jury considered their verdict, and found the prisoner guilty. He was then sentenced to nine months' imprisonment with hard labour, his Honour remarking that he took into consideration the fact that he had already been in gaol for a month.

CREDITORS' MEETINGS.

A SHAW (SUNDERLAND).—The first meeting under bankruptcy in the matter of Alexander Shaw, of Sunderland, draper, was held on Wednesday at the County Court, Sunderland. A statement was filed by the debtor showing liabilities £1,910, and assets £1,289. Messrs. Sale and Co., of Manchester, solicitors, attended on behalf of a number of creditors. Mr. Gillibrand, accountant, was appointed trustee, and the proceedings were transferred to Manchester.

ARCHIBALD MOIR AND CO. (GLASGOW).—At a meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Archibald Moir and Co., warehousemen, Cochran-street, Glasgow, held on Tuesday in the hall of the Institute of Accountants, a statement of affairs prepared by Messrs. Thomson, Johnston, and Jackson, accountants, was submitted, showing liabilities £15,229 5s. 4d., and assets £11,130 12s. There being no offer, it was resolved to liquidate by assignment.

RUDALL AND SONS.—At the meeting of creditors of Messrs. Rudall and Sons, merchants, held on the 20th inst., at the offices of Messrs. J. Waddell and Co., the receiver, Mr. J. Waddell, submitted the debtors' statement of affairs, showing total liabilities £128,605, which it was estimated would be reduced by securities, &c., to the extent to rank £44,090, with general assets £18,015. The creditors unanimously resolved to liquidate by arrangement, and appointed Mr. J. Waddell trustee, Messrs. Crook and Smith being the solicitors to the estate.

J. ANDERSON AND CO.—The creditors of Messrs. John Anderson and Co., a firm which failed in conjunction with Collie, met on the 19th inst., and agreed to liquidate by arrangement. They expect to get about 1s. in the pound. The liabilities were £144,747, against assets £31,596, of which a doubtful £16,000 is said to be in Ceylon.

Digitized by Google

J. Rankin and Co.—The creditors of Messrs. John Rankin and Co. met on the 19th inst., and a statement was submitted to them showing liabilities of £106,898, of which £70,800 was on acceptances for Robert Corkling. The assets were £31,491, exclusive of £26,900 assets in Egypt considered doubtful. The creditors agreed to accept £29,000 for the £31,491 of good assets, that sum being offered by the friends of the firm, payable in two instalments within two months of the date of registering the resolution to liquidate by arrangement. On that understanding the bankrupts obtained their discharge.

Lambert Brothers and Scott.—A meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Lambert Brothers and Scott, of 35 Gracechurch-street, the Coal Exchange, Rochester, Deptford, and Port-Said, Egypt, was held on Thursday, at the London Tavern, when a statement of affairs prepared by Messrs. J. J. Saffery and Company, of 14 Old Jewry-chambers, was submitted, showing debts and liabilities amounting to £323,977 18s. 7d., of which it was expected that £170,848 7s. 1d. would rank for dividend, against assets amounting to £95,996 10s. 4d. A resolution was passed to liquidate the estate by arrangement, Mr. Saffery being appointed trustee to act with a committee of five of the principal creditors.

E. Jones and Co.—The statement of affairs of Messrs. Edmund Jones and Co., of King William-street, City, was laid before the creditors by Messrs. Andrews and Marsh, accountants. The liabilities shown amount to £102,898, the assets to £54,235.

Da Costa, Raalte, and Co.—A meeting of the creditors of Da Costa, Raalte, and Co., was held at the Cannon-street Hotel, London, this week. Messrs. Clarkes, Rawlings, and Clarkes represented the debtors; and Mr. Abrahams, of London, and Mr. Addleshaw, of Manchester, the principal creditors. The statement prepared by Messrs. Turquand, Youngs, and Co. showed the debtors' liabilities to be £267,000, and the assets £85,400. No composition was offered, but a a large majority of the creditors present were strongly in favour of liquidation by arrangement. After a protracted discussion it was resolved to adjourn for a week, so that the creditors in Alexandria may be communicated with before any final resolution is come to.

E. Hopkinson (Bradford).—A meeting of the creditors of Edwin Hopkinson, contractor, Bowling Old-lane, Bradford, was held on the 25th instant, at the office of Mossman and Haley, solicitors, at Bradford. There was a large attendance of creditors, and Mr. William Moulson presided. A statement of the debtor's affairs, presented by Mr. C. J. Buckley, the receiver, showed the liabilities £5,718 6s. 4d., against assets £3,238 16s. 8d. It was resolved to liquidate by arrangement, and Mr. Buckley was appointed trustee.

C. W. Machen (Attercliffe).—A meeting of the creditors of Charles William Machen, steel and iron merchant, Foley-street, Attercliffe, was held at the Albert Hall. Mr. F. W. Brewster was called to the chair. From a statement of the debtor's affairs, presented by Mr. E. Bennett, accountant, it appeared that the liabilities amounted to £4,531 19s. 9d., and the assets to £858 12s. 10d. The debtor had not kept any satisfactory books, but it was ascertained that during the last six months he had made no profits but rather losses, the total of which came to £2,411 2s. 10d. Added to that were his personal expenses for two and a half years, amounting to £1,250. The meeting resolved to liquidate by arrangement.

Schultze and Mohr. — At a meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Schultze and Mohr, a firm in the East India trade, whose suspension was announced last month, and it was resolved to liquidate the estate by arrangement. The immediate discharge of the debtors was unanimously granted. The statement of affairs shows liabilities expected to be proved £142,524 6s. 5d., against assets £7,971 11s. 3d.

J. Baxter (Blairgowrie).—At the first statutory meeting of the creditors under the sequestration of John Baxter, spinner, Ashbank and Ashgrove Works, Blairgowrie, held at Perth, Mr. David Myles, accountant, Dundee, was unanimously elected trustee, and Messrs. W. T. Murison and Alexander Emslie, Dundee, and Mr. John Smith, Alyth, were appointed commissioners.

R. Hardwick and Son (Mansfield).—A meeting of the creditors was held at the Bankruptcy Court, Nottingham, on the 24th August, before Mr. Registrar Patchitt, for the purpose of appointing a trustee. Proofs of claims were tendered against the estate for upwards of £33,000. Mr. Hind, of the firm of Wells and Hind, solicitors and Mr. Martin, solicitor, represented creditors for over £19,000. Mr. Thomas Leman, of Pelham-street, accountant, was appointed the trustee. The bankrupt having absconded, did not appear. Mr. Maples, solicitor, appeared for the petitioning creditor.

FAILURES.

England.—Messrs. Edward Hewitt and Son, of Montague-close, Southwark, an old-established firm in the American provision trade, have stopped payment, but the liabilities do not exceed about £25,000. The books have been placed in the hands of Messrs. Cook and Smith, accountants.

Scotland.—Mr. John P. M'Laren, shipowner, of Greenock, has suspended payment, with liabilities amounting to £15,000.

America.—American advices state that Messrs. Nilson and Lefort, wholsale jewellers, Montreal, have made an assignment; as also the State Street Savings Bank of Chicago.—Messrs. Cuttle and Bordley, known as the New York Tea Co., of Baltimore, have failed: liabilities £12,000.—Mr. J. H. Dawes, of the Butternutt Tannery, Port Jervis, New York, has made an assignment; liabilities, £8,000. The Northampton Anchor Tape and Webbing Co., Springfield, Mass., has failed; liabilities £6,000. Messrs. De Wolf and Doune, dry goods dealers, Halifax, N.S. have made an assignment.—The suspension of Messrs. Archd. Baxter and Co., shipping merchants, New York, is also reported.—Mr. Albert L. Dodge, wholesale wine and cigar merchant, New York, had made an assignment, with liabilities of £14,000.

The Allgemeine Zeitung states that a meeting has been held of the creditors of Messrs. G. Lichtenstern and Son, of Vienna, whose liabilities, chiefly due to Austrian and English firms, amount to £50,000. The house has been established 30 years.

Winding-up.—Petitions have been presented for the winding-up of the Globe Galvanised and Corrugated Iron Company, the Stockton Rail Mills Company, and Pavey's Felted Fabric Company.

Bankers' Clearing House.—The following is the official return of the cheques and bills cleared in the Bankers' Clearing-house for the week ending Wednesday, August 25:—

Thursday, August 19	£12,700,000
Friday, August 20	15,061,000
Saturday, August 21	12,442,000
Monday, August 23	13,952,000
Tuesday, August 24	14,076,000
Wednesday, August 25	12,371,000
	£80,602,000

The total at the corresponding period of last year, was £80,245,000.

Digitized by Google

APPOINTMENTS.

[The Editor will be glad to receive early notice of appointment of Liquidators and Auditors for insertion in this column.]

Mr. William Brooks, accountant, of 11 Old Jewry-chambers, has been appointed liquidator of the United Service Commercial Agency, Limited.

Fraudulent Bankrupts.—At the Yorkshire Assizes, William Hall, 26, warp-dresser, on bail; and Thomas Hall, 43, overlooker, also on bail, were indicted for unlawfully making or being privy to the falsification of certain books or documents relating to their property and affairs; also with making or being privy to the making of certain false entries in those books within four months next before the presentation of a petition in the liquidation of their affairs; and also attempting to account for part of their property by fictitious losses and expenses after the commencement of such liquidation at Eccleshill. Mr. Campbell Foster, Q.C., and Mr. Phillips were for the prosecution; Mr. Tennant and Mr. Lockwood defending the prisoners. From the opening statement it appeared that the defendants are brothers, and carried on the business of woollen manufacturers, at Eccleshill, near Bradford, and it was alleged that entries in their cash book of £1 and £2, purporting to be received by the prisoners as wages for the support of themselves and their families, had been altered to £4 and £2 18s. respectively. It was further alleged that a number of entries in the weavers' wages book had also been altered, the original sums being much smaller than those now in the books. There was also a question as to a loss of £250 in betting. Evidence having been called to prove these facts, the learned Commissioner intimated that the counsel for the defence need not take notice of the altering of the defendants own wages, but confine themselves to the alterations in the weavers' wages and the betting transaction. Mr. Tennant denied that any alterations had been made in the books as alleged, and disputed the guilt of the prisoners. The jury retired to consider their verdict, and after a short absence they found both the prisoners guilty. His Lordship sentenced each of them to six months imprisonment.

At Bow-street Police-court, on the 19th instant, Captain Ernest Scott Jervis, of 34 Queen's-gate, Hyde-park, appeared to an adjourned summons, charging him, under the order of the Court of Bankruptcy, with obtaining by false pretences a loan of £480 from Mr. Hollingsworth. Mr. Douglas Straight, instructed by Mr. Roberts, prosecuted; and Mr. George Lewis, jun., defended. The facts of the case were as follow:—Captain Jervis applied, in May 1874, for a loan of £500, and £480 was advanced to him by Mr. Hollingsworth on the defendant signing a declaration to the effect that 34 Queen's-gate, upon which the money was to be advanced, was his property without the encumbrance of a previous bill of sale, that he had never been declared bankrupt or effected a composition with his creditors, that he derived his income from a colliery in South Wales, and that his actual debts were not more than £250. Mr. Saffery, a gentleman connected with the Court of Bankruptcy, gave formal evidence, and another person attached to the Court stated that at the time of the loan the defendant's debts were very heavy, and he himself admitted that he owed about £10,000. Mr. Hollingsworth, who was a subpœnaed witness, gave evidence as to the interview between himself and Captain Jervis, and stated that the money was advanced upon the faith of the defendant's debts not being more than £250. Mr. Lewis cross-examined the witness, who admitted that there might have been some conversation about the colliery, but he could not remember what. Mr. Hollingsworth, sen., was examined, and stated that he heard of the embarrassment, and that his son would not have advanced the money at all if the defendant had not been introduced to him by Mr. Lamplough, whom he knew well. Mr. Lewis, after some further evidence had been gone into, opened the case for the defendant. He said that Captain Jervis was a gentleman moving in good society, and until recently was a very wealthy man. He owned a colliery and ironworks in South Wales, but during the last two years there had been great depreciation in the value of collieries and ironworks, and Captain Jervis became suddenly embarrassed. It would seem that this was not through any fault of his, but because his works were unsaleable. Mr. Lewis proposed to call Mr. Kendal, a solicitor, and one of the Committee of the Court of Bankruptcy, to prove that in 1873 he offered Captain Jervis £100,000 for the works, and Mr. Heron, another solicitor, would show that on behalf of a Mr. Leafchild he offered even £130,000. It had been stated that the colliery was mortgaged, and so it was to the extent of £40,000, but it would be seen that if Captain Jervis had sold the property after paying off the mortgages, he would still have been in possession of a fortune of about £100,000. Mr. Lewis further contended that in signing the contract with Mr. Hollingsworth the defendant mentioned that there were debts attached to the colliery, but that they could be covered by sale. He said that his personal debts were only £250. Mr. Hollingsworth did not deny that this conversation might have occurred. The matter was very important to Captain Jervis, and he hoped that the magistrate would dismiss the case, as there was not the slightest intention of a fraud on the defendant's part. Mr. Straight objected to matters anterior to the date of the contract being gone into. As to the value of the colliery, it was even now being worked at a heavy loss. Mr. Straight, after some discussion, called a witness who stated that there was a debt of £300 for house repairs at the time when the defendant said his liabilities were only £250. Mr. Lewis called witnesses as to the offers made for the purchase of the colliery. Mr. Flowers said he should commit the case for trial, for he could not help thinking that the money was advanced upon the belief that the defendant owed only £250. Mr. Flowers knew what money-lenders were, and could not think that Mr. Hollingsworth advanced the money on the speculation of a successful issue in the sale of the colliery. Mr. Lewis said he still hoped to be able to alter his worship's decision. On account of the lateness of the hour, the case was adjourned for three weeks, that time being chosen to suit Mr. Straight, who is compelled to leave town. Mr. Straight added that he could call as witnesses several unsecured creditors to the amount of £10,000.

County Courts.—Mr. Albert H. Elworthy, Secretary Criminal Law Amendment Association, writes:—"In the interest of the public and under the auspices of this Society, I have to inform you that it has come to their knowledge that a system, pernicious in its inception, is being carried on throughout the country, which is a gigantic swindle, and has been carried on to a great extent. It appears that some evil disposed persons (probably strangers) are visiting the County Court districts, creating fictitious debts of not more than 40s., and selecting for their victims persons of responsible positions in London or elsewhere. They then make false affidavits that the debt is due, that the defendant resides in a foreign district, and that the cause of action arose in that particular district in which the affidavit is made; the affidavits are made before the Registrar, and the summonses consequently issue into the foreign district. If the defendant appears at the court on the return day by attorney, no appearance is made by the plaintiff or by any one on his behalf. Very often the defendant is deterred (from the expense which would be incurred in taking the journey to and from a distant place) from going to the court, and lets the matter take its chance, when execution will follow in default of payment. The whole matter is founded on perjury on the affidavits which have been made on which the summonses were obtained. As there is not at present a public prosecutor, the society invite the assistance of the aggrieved persons in the respect above described to put themselves in communication with them at once, with the object that through their exertions the system may be uprooted and the malefactors may be brought to punishment."

Digitized by Google

Rival Receivers.—The Judge of the Sheffield County Court recently gave judgment in an application that had been made in the liquidation proceedings of a Scotch draper named Duncan. The creditors at their first meeting appointed as receiver Mr. Chesney, and his appointment was confirmed by the Court. Mr. Kirkwood, whose debt was greater than all the creditors put together, appointed himself receiver, and the Court was asked to sanction his appointment as against Chesney. The Judge said it would appear a strange thing if he granted the application, when 16 creditors had nominated Chesney, although their debts altogether were £200 less than that of Kirkwood. He refused to grant the application, and expressed a hope that the opinion of the Chief Judge would be taken upon the point.

Funded and Unfunded Debt.—Mr. Hubbard, M.P., obtained a return to the order of the House of Commons, which was printed on Saturday, giving a good deal of information on the Funded and Unfunded Debt. At the 31st of March last the Funded Debt was £714,797,715, and the Unfunded Debt £5,239,000. The capital value of Terminable Annuities at £3 per cent. stock was £55,311,671. The deposits due to the Savings-banks and Friendly Societies at the 20th of November, 1874, being the last day at which the account was made up, were £4,552,421. A statement is given of the Funded and Unfunded Debt held by the National Debt Commissioners, with a valuation of the annuities granted. In Consols the Commissioners hold £3,729,982 17s. 6d.; Reduced, £4,228,978 11s. 8d.; New £3 per Cents., £9,372,513 19s. 1d., and Two-and-a-Half per cents., £1,122,392 1s. 8d., besides Exchequer Bills and Exchequer Bonds.

Payers of Income-tax.—A Parliamentary return shows that, in the year 1873, the latest for which such an account is at present given, the Income-tax in England was charged as follows:—30·99 per cent. of it under Schedule A, on the owners of land, houses, tithes, &c.; 4 per cent. under Schedule B, known as the tenant-farmers' schedule; 10·30 per cent. under Schedule C, on dividends and annuities payable out of public revenue; 48·90 per cent. under Schedule D, on trades and professions; and the remaining 5·81 per cent. under Schedule E, on public salaries and pensions. The incidence of the old Income-tax was different; in 1814, 35·04 per cent. of the total amount was charged under Schedule A, as much as 14·11 per cent. under Schedule B, 22·07 per cent. under Schedule C, only 20·67 per cent. under Schedule D, and 8·11 per cent. under Schedule E. On the re-introduction of the Income-tax in 1842, as much as 43·22 per cent. of the total was charged under Schedule A, 6·00 per cent. under Schedule B, 15·74 per cent. under Schedule C, 29·82 per cent. under Schedule D, and 5·22 per cent. under Schedule E. The amount charged on trades and professions increased until in 1865 it had grown to be 35·25 per cent. of the whole amount charged. In 1866 the assessments on railways, mines, quarries, ironworks, fisheries, canals, gasworks, &c. were transferred from Schedule A to Schedule D, these being, in fact, trades; and the result was to raise the share or proportion charged under Schedule D from 35 to nearly 45 per cent. of the total product, Schedule A falling from upwards of 42 to little more than 33 per cent. Since that time trades and professions have paid more and more of the tax, until, as already stated, their share in 1873 was nearly one-half. In Scotland the share of trades and professions is still greater, there being no fundholders' schedule to bear a proportion; and the ratios in 1873 were 35·38 per cent. under Schedule A, 4·26 under Schedule B, 56·31 under Schedule D, and 4·05 under Schedule E. In Ireland houses and land pay more than half the tax; the returns for 1873 show that 50.97 per cent. of the total was charged under Schedule A, 4·73 under Schedule B, 4·30 under Schedule C, only 34·19 under Schedule D, and 5·81 under Schedule E.

Duncan, Sherman and Co.—A statement of the financial affairs of Duncan, Sherman and Co. shows that the liabilities amount to 4,872,128 dols. (including 2,512,139 dols. due to depositors, 1,213,691 dols. on bills payable but unsecured, and 932,119 dols. due to foreign correspondents subject to adjustment). The assets are estimated to total 2,112,740 dols., and these include stocks and bonds estimated at present market value to realise 556,470 dols.; open accounts, of which it is estimated 502,664 dols. will be collected; real estate valued at 371,367 dols.; and the personal estates of W. Butler Duncan, Francis H. Grain, and W. Watts Sherman, estimated to realise 274,800 dols.

MONEY to LEND to BORROWERS residing in town or Country, from £50 upwards, repayable in one sum, from one to five years, at five per cent. interest on personal security; also on mortgage of freehold or leasehold property from 3 per cent., for a term of years to be agreed upon. No commission.
Apply to R. F. Preston, Esq., 120 Southampton-row, London, W.C.

"The source of many a writer's woe has been discovered."

PENS! PENS!! PENS!!
"They come as a boon and a blessing to men, The Pickwick, the Owl, and the Waverley Pen."
"The misery of a bad Pen is now a voluntary infliction."
Another blessing to men! The Hindoo Pen.
1,200 Newspapers recommend them. See Graphic, 17th May, 1873.
Sold by every respectable Stationer. Post 1s.1d.
Patentees, MACNIVEN & CAMERON, 23 to 33 Blair-street, Edinburgh.

THE BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY'S ANNUAL RECEIPTS EXCEED THREE MILLIONS.

HOW TO PURCHASE A HOUSE FOR TWO GUINEAS PER MONTH.
With immediate Possession and no Rent to pay.—Apply at the Office of the Birkbeck Building Society, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.
HOW TO PURCHASE A PLOT OF LAND FOR FIVE SHILLINGS PER MONTH.
With Immediate Possession, either for Building or Gardening purposes.—Apply at the Office of the Birkbeck Freehold Land Society, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.
HOW TO INVEST YOUR MONEY WITH SAFETY AT £4 PER CENT. INTEREST.
Apply at the Office of the Birkbeck Bank. All sums under £50 repayable upon demand. Current Accounts opened similar to ordinary Bankers. Cheque-books supplied. English and Foreign Stocks and Shares purchased and sold, and Advances made thereon.
Office Hours from 10 till 4; on Mondays from 10 till 9, and on Saturdays from 10 till 12 o'clock.
A Pamphlet containing full particulars may be obtained post-free on application.
Francis Ravenscroft, Manager.

THE METROPOLITAN AND PROVINCIAL
Land, Estate, House, Licensed Victuallers' & General
BUSINESS TRANSFER "SYNDICATE" AGENCY,
Registered according to Act of Parliament, Head Offices, No. 3 Craven-street, Charing Cross, W.C. The organisation and working system of the "Syndicate" are;—1st.—The Sale, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Ground of Rents, Freehold and Leasehold Land, Farms, Estates, Houses, Hotels, Public Houses, Inns, Beer Houses, Restaurants, Coffee Houses, Tobacconists, Drapers, and every other description of Business, Furniture, Objects of Art, or Goods of any description by Auction or Private Contract. 2nd.—The letting, or disposing of, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Land, Farms, Estates, Furnished, or Unfurnished Houses Chambers, or Offices under private contract. 3rd.—The Collection of Rents and the recovery of outstanding accounts. 4th.—The Surveys and Valuations of Land, Farms, Estates, and Houses; also Valuations of Furniture, Jewellery, and other Effects, for probate and other purposes. 5th.—The transaction of all other business usually transacted by Auctioneers, Surveyors, Land, House, Estate and Insurance Agents. 6th.—The negociations of partnerships, and from unlimited connection with capitalists, monetary advances on real and personal securities, as well as merchandize, and every other description of property intended for absolute sale, or otherwise. 7th. Generally the carrying out of all things insidental or conducive to the above objects, and every of them; also the laying out of estates and surveys for delapidations. The "Syndicate" from their extended connection with the Trades' Protection Societies and other sources, undertake expeditiously for Clients and others to ascertain reliably the status of parties, and make inquiries of a private and confidential character. Liberal terms to Accountants in town or country introducing business.

Digitized by Google

OLD FALCON HOTEL, GRAVESEND
Proprietor–W. SKILLETER.
Late Chef de Cuisine to His Grace the Duke of Argyll.
Visitors to Gravesend will find every accommodation at the Old Falcon Hotel, East Street. Public and Private Rooms facing the River, directly opposite Tilbury Fort, and with a capital view of the Thames Shipping.
FISH DINNERS AND WHITEBAIT.
BED AND BREAKFAST FOR GENTLEMEN £1 1s. PER WEEK.
And an equally low Tariff for Dejeuners, Dinners, &c.
Five Minutes' walk from North Kent Railway, and Two Minutes from the Piers, and Tilbury and Southend Railway.

J. DEFRIES' AND SONS'
CHANDELIERS, IN CRYSTAL, BRONZE, AND ORMOLU.
TABLE GLASS AND CHINA.
Dinner Services, Gilt Pieces, £4 10s.
KEROSENE and MODERATOR LAMPS for INDIA.
Works:—London and Birmingham.

WEDDING AND BIRTHDAY PRESENTS.
NEW DECORATIONS for the DINING TABLE.
FOUNTAINS.
STORER'S Patent Perpetual Perfumed CRYSTAL TABLE FOUNTAIN, for Dining, Hall and Drawing Rooms, in Crystal and Gilt, £2 17s. 6d. to 100 guineas.

FETES AND REJOICINGS.
BALLROOMS and GARDENS, &c., DECORATED and ILLUMINATED for Evening Parties. Tents, Temporary Rooms, and Banqueting Halls erected.
CRYSTAL and BRONZED CHANDELIERS.
TABLE GLASS and CHINA LENT ON HIRE.
J. DEFRIES and SONS, 147, HOUNDSDITCH.
Five minutes' walk from the Bank of England.

RUPTURES—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.
WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS is allowed by upwards of 500 Medical Men to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided, a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the manufacturer, Mr. JOHN WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London. Price of a single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., 31s. 6d. Postage Free. Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. An Umbilical Truss, 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. P.O.O. to be made payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

NEW PATENT ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS, &c. for Varicose Veins, and all cases of Weakness and Swelling of the Legs, Sprains, &c. They are porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and are drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price from 4s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 10s., to 16s. each. Postage free.
CHEST EXPANDING BRACES, for both sexes. For gentlemen they are a substitute for the ordinary braces. For children they are invaluable; they prevent stooping and preserve the symmetry of the chest. Prices for children, 5s. 6d. and 7s. 6d. Adults, 10s. 6d., 15s. 6d., and 21s. each. Postage free.—JOHN WHITE, Manufacturer, 228 Piccadilly, London.

EPPS'S COCOA.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—See article in the Civil Service Gazette.

STAR LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY,
48 MOORGATE STREET, LONDON, E.C
DIRECTORS.
CHAIRMAN—
Mr. Alderman McArthur, M.P.
DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—
William Mewburn, Esq.
H. J. Atkinson, Esq.
Thomas Ball, Esq.
Walter Griffith, Esq.
George M. Kiell, Esq.
George Lidgett, Esq.
Sir Francis Lycett.
William Merry, Esq.
John Napier, Esq.
Jonathan S. Pidgeon, Esq.
John Vanner, Esq.
S. D. Waddy, Esq., Q.C., M.P.

Assurance and Annuity Fund	1,216,115	13	5
Annual Income (1874)	223,613	2	0
Bonuses Apportioned	581,774	6	2
Claims Paid	1,140,151	1	8

Copies of the Report, Balance Sheet and Prospectus can be obtained on application to the Head Office.
W. W. BAYNES, Secretary.

THE ONLY AND SPECIAL

"MEDAL FOR PROGRESS,"
Was awarded for "Feuerfeste Eisene Schranke und Kunstchlosser Fortschritts," to

HOBBS, HART, & CO.,
AT THE VIENNA UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION.
This Medal is only given to Exhibitors whose New Inventions testify marked Progress.
"FIRE-PROOF SAFES; AND LOCKS AND ENDLESS CHANGE LOCKS AND KEYS,"
Invented especially for Safes and Strong-Room Doors, to frustrate the use of False Keys.
N.B.—The continued security and secrecy of a Lock, fixed on a Safe or Strong-Room Door, depends on the fact that there are no false duplicate keys of that Lock in existence. The object of a Lock is twofold—security against burglars, and secrecy against prying curiosity. A new change in this Lock may at any time be obtained in five minutes by simply filing away the thickness of a hair from one or more of the steps of the Key. The Lock, by a simple movement of the Regulator, is thus made to adapt itself to the NEW KEY, after which no other Key will open the Lock.
The Lock and Key may thus be easily altered into what would be virtually a NEW LOCK and KEY, as often as may be desired, without the aid of Lockmaker or of any second person, thus frustrating the use of fraudulent copies of the original Key (see the Safe Robbery in Dublin of £630, vide "Times," 12th September, 1875). This Lock affords effectual protection from duplicate or "Master" Keys secretly made in manufactories; very extensive robberies (in one case 13 Safes in one vault) having been effected by this means.
HOBBS, HART & CO.,
LOCK, SAFE, AND STRONG-ROOM DOOR MANUFACTURERS
76 Cheapside, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

THE

SOCIETY OF ACCOUNTANTS IN ENGLAND.

COUNCIL.

President.—JOSEPH DAVIES, Warrington. Vice-President.—JOHN BATH, London.

ALFRED ALLOTT, Sheffield.
JOSEPH ANDREWS, London.
JOSIAH BEDDOW, London.
HENRY BOLLAND, Liverpool.
JAMES CHARLES BOLTON, London.
HARRY BRETT, London.
ROBERT BUCK, Sunderland.
JOHN CALDECOTT, Chester.
WALTER NEWTON FISHER, Birmingham
EBENEZER CHAMBERS FOREMAN, London.
EDWARD NORTON HARPER, London.
WILLIAM COMBEN HARVEY, London.
JOHN ALISON HESELTON, Bradford.
GEORGE EDWARD LADBURY, London
FRANCIS NICHOLLS, London.
WILLIAM JOHN PARRY, Bethesda.
EDWARD THOS. PEIRSON, Coventry.
EDWARD SMITH, Manchester.
F. TENDRON, London.
JOHN HENRY TILLY, London.
LEWIS VOISEY, Warrington.
EDWIN WILKS, Plymouth.
JOHN UNWIN WING, Sheffield.

Trustees.—JOHN BATH, 40a, King William Street, London; THOMAS COLTMAN, Leicester; JOSEPH DAVIES, Warrington.
Treasurer.—JAMES CHARLES BOLTON, 26 Great St. Helens, and 2 St. Mary Axe, London.
Auditors.—R. R. ROBINSON, London; C. PEMBER, Hereford.
Bankers.—Messrs, WILLIAMS, DEACON, & Co., Birchin Lane, London.
Offices—2 COWPER'S COURT, CORNHILL, LONDON.
Further information can be obtained, and copies of the Rules can be had, upon application to ALFRED C. HARPER, Secretary.

H. D. RAWLINGS,

PURVEYOR OF MINERAL WATERS TO

H. R. H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.
H. R. H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH.
H. R. H. THE PRINCE CHRISTIAN.
THE LATE EMPEROR NAPOLEON III.
AND THE PRINCIPAL COURTS OF EUROPE:

Gold Medallist of the Societe Nationale Agricole Manufacturiere et Commerciale de Paris.

SODA, BRIGHTON, SELTZER and all other Mineral Waters for HOME CONSUMPTION and EXPORTATION.
PRICE LISTS on Application, at the Manufactory, Nassau-street, W.

ALFRED W. GEE,

ADVERTISING AGENT,

62, GRACECHURCH STREET,

LONDON, E.C.

London Gazette Notices, and Advertisements and Announcements of all kinds for English, Colonial, and Foreign Newspapers promptly inserted.

N.B.—In the case of an ordinary Advertisement ordered for insertion in a number of Newspapers, only one MS. copy need be forwarded. Same rates charged as at the Publishing Offices.

Printed and Published for the Proprietor by Williams & Strahan, 7 Lawrence Lane, Cheapside. August 28, 1875.

Digitized by Google

The Accountant.

A MEDIUM OF COMMUNICATION BETWEEN ACCOUNTANTS IN ALL PARTS OF THE UNITED KINGDOM

VOL. I.—NEW SERIES.—No. 89.] SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 1875. [PRICE 6D.

Established 1843.
PERIODICAL SALE OF REVERSIONS, ANNUITIES, LIFE POLICIES, SHARES, &c.

MESSRS. MARSH, MILNER, AND Co., are preparing their printed particulars for the forthcoming Monthly AUCTION, which is held the FIRST THURSDAY in every month. To insure due publicity, particulars of Properties intended to be included in the next sale should be forwarded, without delay, to the City Land and Reversion Offices, 54 Cannon Street, London.

LAND, Domains, Mountain Ranges, Woods, Forests, and Important Residential Estates. Messrs. MARSH, MILNER, and Co., Land Valuers and Timber Surveyors, have a number of WEALTHY BUYERS DESIROUS of INVESTING in AGRICULTURAL, SPORTING, and RESIDENTIAL ESTATES. OWNERS of marketable properties wishing to effect advantageous sales are therefore invited to forward plans and particulars, which, when received, will be judiciously placed before intending purchasers, publicity being carefully avoided, and written terms settled before any cost or liability is incurred. Address Messrs. Marsh, Milner, and Co., Land and Timber Surveyors, 54 Cannon-street, London, E.C.

MESSRS. MARSH, MILNER, AND Co.'s REGISTER of LANDED ESTATES, Town and Country Residences, and property of every description, is published Monthly, and may be obtained at the Auction, Land, and Estate Agency Offices, 54 Cannon-street, E.C., or will be forwarded by post on application

MORTGAGES promptly NEGOTIATED upon Landed Estates, City Properties, and upon sound securities of all kinds. Messrs. MARSH, MILNER and Co., have at the present time access to large sums of Money ready to be immediately advanced upon approved securities. Apply at the City Land and Reversion Offices (Established 1843), 54 Cannon-street.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

89 BROAD-STREET, BRISTOL,
JUNE 24TH, 1875.

The PARTNERSHIP hitherto existing under the Style or Firm HANCOCK, TRIGGS, & CO., having been DISSOLVED by mutual consent, I beg to give notice that I purpose henceforth to CARRY ON BUSINESS as a PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT at the above address.

PHILIP TRIGGS.

MESSRS. BARRETT AND PATEY,
PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS,
90 LONDON WALL, E.C.

HAVING removed from No. 8 Finsbury Circus, to more commodious offices at the above address, will be pleased to hear from Accountants resident in the provincial and manufacturing towns who require agents in London.

LOVEWELL BLAKE, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT, RECEIVER, AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY.
SECRETARY TO THE GREAT YARMOUTH TRADERS' ASSOCIATION.
OFFICES: HALL QUAY CHAMBERS, GREAT YARMOUTH.

J. F. TITCHMARSH, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT AND AUDITOR.
17 PRINCESS STREET, IPSWICH.

RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY AND LIQUIDATION.

TO CAPITALISTS.—Wanted a Gentleman to make advances upon Goods, for which a liberal arrangement can be entered into and ample security upon every advance. The amount at any one time will not exceed in the aggregate more than £3000 to £1000.—"X.L.," at the Office of The Accountant, 62 Gracechurch-street, E.C.

A GENTLEMAN, who for seven years occupied the position of Principal Clerk in a firm of Accountants in the City, is open to a similar or other position. References, certificates, &c., if required.—Address, "Accountant," Letter Exchange Office, Ludgate Arcade, E.C.

WANTED a Gentleman to represent an old-established Life Office in London and vicinity. Terms, salary or commission.—Apply by letter to "Veritas," Letter Exchange Office, Ludgate Arcade.

WILLIAMS & STRAHAN,
Legal, Accountancy, & General Printers,
MANUFACTURING STATIONERS, &c.
7 LAWRENCE LANE, CHEAPSIDE, LONDON.

Bankruptcy Forms, Statements of Affairs, Dividend Notices, Balance Sheets, &c., printed with despatch.

STEAM PRINTING WORKS, LAMBETH S.E.

TRANSLATIONS.
MR. ALFRED W. GEE,
BRITISH AND FOREIGN ADVERTISING AGENT,
62 GRACECHURCH STREET, LONDON, E.C.,

Begs to announce that in compliance with a wish expressed by some of the subscribers to the Accountant, he has made arrangements for the translation of legal and commercial documents, correspondence, &c., into the Principal European Languages. Members of the Profession are therefore respectfully informed that arrangements can be made for efficient and speedy translations into, or from, the French, German, Italian, Spanish, and Dutch Languages on Moderate Terms.

Digitized by Google

The Accountant.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

The ACCOUNTANT is printed and published in time for Friday evening's mail; price 6d. per copy, or 28s. per annum (including postage), the reduced terms for payment in advance being: annual subscription 24s. (post free); half-yearly ditto, 13s. (post free). Cheques and Post-office orders to be made payable to Mr. Alfred W. Gee, 62 Gracechurch-street, E.C., to whom applications for advertisement space, and letters relating to the general business of the paper, should also be addressed. Literary communications should be directed to the Editor of the ACCOUNTANT at the same address, and in order to ensure insertion in the current number, correspondents are respectfully requested to forward their copy as early in the week as possible.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The Proprietor desires to call the attention of Advertisers to the special advantages offered by the paper as an Advertising medium. Starting with a good guaranteed circulation, and with the entire concurrence and hearty support of the leading members of the profession, the ACCOUNTANT has achieved a large measure of success in a wide field hitherto unoccupied by any professional organ. The ACCOUNTANT thus secures to Advertisers an excellent circulation of an exclusive character; and is particularly valuable as a medium for the announcements of members of the profession, as to Estates and Declaration of Dividends, and the appointment of Trustees and Receivers; for Publishers, Printers, Law Stationers, Auctioneers, and Estate Agents; for the Advertisements of Insurance and Public Companies; and for Notices as to Investments, Vacant Partnerships, &c. Advertisements intended for insertion in the current number, should reach the office on Thursday; late announcements can, however, be received up to 12 o'clock (noon) on Friday.

N.B.—Copies may be obtained at Messrs. W. H. Smith and Sons, Strand, at their numerous Railway Bookstalls, and at the Shops of the leading City and West-End Newsvendors.

TO SUBSCRIBERS

In consequence of numerous applications from subscribers, the proprietor has made arrangements for the supply of CASES for holding and preserving the Accountant, which may be obtained at the office on the following terms:—In green cloth (well got up), with elastics, and "The Accountant" in gold letters on front, 3s. each; same in leather, 4s. 6d. each. Subscribers' names in gold lettering, 1s. extra. Post Office Orders payable to ALFRED W. GEE, 62 Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

The Accountant.

SEPTEMBER 4, 1875.

We confess that it was with but faint surprise that we learnt, as our readers will have noticed from an advertisement which recently appeared in our columns, that the committee appointed at the meeting of public accountants held at the Guildhall Tavern, on the 12th of May, have, after due consideration, found it impossible at the present time to draw up a fixed scale of charges which shall be applicable to all cases of liquidation, composition, and bankruptcy. The circumstances which led to the appointment of the committee will probably be familiar to most of our readers, and we shall but very briefly recapitulate them. Some time towards the end of last April, the warehousemen of the metropolis were moved to indignation at the expenses of working the Bankruptcy Act. They assembled in conclave under the presidency of that universal philanthropist Mr. Samuel Morley, and solemnly resolved that it was all the fault of the accountants, whose charges were so exorbitant; and they suggested a modest scale of remuneration, which might, doubtless, have served to diminish expenses, just as a solicitor engaged in contentious business might materially lessen the amount of his bill of costs by resolutely refusing to employ any leader, and intrusting the conduct of his case to the most "struggling junior" he could manage to discover. The challenge was promptly taken up by the Society of Accountants in England. A public meeting was called, and a committee appointed; and now, after taking the opinion of representatives of the profession throughout the kingdom, the committee practically leave the matter where it stood. The report of the committee refers entirely to proceedings under the Bankruptcy Act, and we have therefore but little to say with reference to the ordinary system of accountants' charges, except that, where the assistance of an accountant is sought simply to make up a balance sheet, there will be found no very great difficulty in arriving at a just scale of remuneration, on the same principle as guides the charges of a solicitor in ordinary non-contentious business. A charge for perusing, according to the number of pages, and a further charge for attendances and drawing the final deed, is often commuted in the case of petty transactions for a small lump sum. So an accountant would naturally regulate his charge. The investigation of the books of a company whose transactions amounted to many thousands of pounds a week, would be more troublesome and paid for on a much higher scale than the examination of the books of a small tradesman, even though the former, being well and regularly kept, were in reality the less complicated of the two. There are two ways of charging for this: one by the number of pages in the books submitted, the accountant taking his chance of the clearness or unintelligibility of the entries, just as a solicitor, charging so much per folio, runs the risk of having to spend many hours in solving some apparently trifling phrase which may involve great difficulties; the other, by charging for hours employed. It is obvious that the first system is most advantageous. A man who is thoroughly master of his profession, gains an advantage over his less skilful and less experienced competitor, and gets through a larger amount of work in the same time. By charging for time, the slower worker gains, on the other hand, a proportionate advantage, as his very slowness is a source of great profit. In such cases as these there can be but little ground for real dispute; though, of course, dissatisfaction may be felt. A bargain may be made, or the ordinary professional charges demanded, and, we apprehend, if any difference were to arise, there could be no difficulty in the way of a jury or an arbitrator deciding what was the proper and customary amount. It is in the case of trusteeships that the most general complaints are made, and it was against the charges of trustees that the circular of the warehousemen was directed; and it is these charges as to which the committee declare it impracticable to lay down any fixed and universal scale. As to these we shall make a few comments, pointing out the considerations which induce us to hold that the determination at which the committee has arrived is thoroughly sound, and that at present any attempt to move is premature.

Digitized by Google

In the first place, we must ask, what we have had frequently to urge before, that accountants whose names are on the register of the various societies, and who thus hold a recognised professional position, may not be confounded with the general dealers in every kind of advice and assistance, to whose capabilities for endeavouring to catch every kind of fish in every sort of water there is no close season. And next, we have to ask that the authorised charges alone, in any case, may be the grounds of complaint; and that those whose folly or carelessness leads them to pay unfair demands shall not at once proclaim a crusade against accountants, simply because they have paid a debt collector's "professional charges." If a man, styling himself an accountant, writes a letter demanding payment of a debt due to a tradesman, he is perfectly justified in doing so. If he adds to his demand a claim for his charges, he is acting wrongfully, and the claim must be resisted, and he will then be told that the tradesman who employed him is the person to whom he must look for payment. Whether even a solicitor can recover such charge, unless he has issued a writ, is very doubtful; and therefore we say at once, that any one receiving any such letter should pay the demand, and refuse to pay the costs. But, with delightful inconsistency, one of the very accusations made against "accountants," is that they charge for writing a letter demanding payment of a debt due to an estate. Well may the much-denounced brotherhood ask that their accusers will blow either hot or cold, and not both simultaneously.

The fact is often forgotten, that the remuneration of the trustee is plainly settled by the words of the Bankruptcy Act itself; and that if the charges are exorbitant, there is an easy means of remedying them. Section 14. subsection 1, gives powers to the creditors "to appoint a fit person, whether a creditor or not, to fill the office of trustee, at such remuneration as they may from time to time determine;" and by rule 108, "if no remuneration has been voted to the trustee, the taxing master or registrar will settle the amount of proper costs and expenses to be allowed him." In liquidation and composition, by rule 278, the "general meeting shall decide what remuneration, if any, the trustee shall receive; or they may resolve to leave his remuneration to the committee of inspection, or to a subsequent general meeting." In popular estimation, the usual course of proceeding is, that an accountant being voted trustee in obedience to some mysterious influence which he exercises over the minds of the creditors, forthwith proceeds to settle the amount of his own remuneration, and to make up a list of heavy and unconscionable charges from which there is no appeal. But the creditors have the matter entirely in their own hands. They may vote large or small remuneration to the trustee, just as they choose; they may make a bargain with him at the outset, if they think fit, and in the case of a liquidation it is not till the taxing master is satisfied that the sum claimed is "in accordance with the determination of the creditors thereon," that any payment will be allowed (rule 5). Moreover, if an accountant, not being a trustee, is employed for any purpose, his bill will be taxed by the proper officer just the same as that of a solicitor, the judges, sad to relate, with wanton inconsideration for the tender scruples of the legal profession, having cruelly classed "attorneys, receivers, managers, accountants, auctioneers, and brokers," as being persons whose "dues and charges" must perforce be submitted to taxation. It is tolerably plain from consideration of these sections that the extravagant charges are not the result of the preternatural rapacity of accountants, but must be attributed to the failure of creditors to look after their own interests. It is, in fact, the old, old story, to which we alluded a fortnight ago. People act carelessly, and negligently; they will not attend to their business, but must hire others to do so for them, and then stand aghast with indignation and astonishment when they find that they have to pay heavily for their indolence. Here is every imaginable safeguard provided. The creditors meet, they may choose any body they please as trustee—one of their own body, or an outsider—and may either make such a bargain with him for his services as they like, or they may leave him and his remuneration to be dealt with by the taxing master of the courts. It is their interest to obtain the services of the most competent man they can find for the smallest pay they can offer him; and the more closely they can hold the balance between economy and efficiency, the less will be the ultimate loss to their pockets. If the trustee they select employ a solicitor or an accountant, he may, it is true, pay their charges without examination, but he does it at his own risk—a liability no prudent man would venture to incur. An accountant, employed as trustee, would naturally expect a rate of payment framed upon the scale on which he is accustomed to be paid; but the creditors may vote any remuneration, or make any arrangement with him they can. If, therefore, at any time, any member of the committee of warehousemen should fall under the jurisdiction of any of the courts of bankruptcy—which Heaven forefend that they ever should—their course, or rather that of their creditors, is plain and simple. All they have to do is, to attend to their business. If they blindly give proxies to any one who canvasses for them, the exercise of a little common sense must show them that they are sacrificing their legal safeguards to their faith in their petitioner. They may vote the trustee the amount of remuneration they propose to do in their circular, if he is willing to accept it; but they must not be surprised if they find that skill and experience command a high price in every market. In fact, many accountants hold, that unless there are large assets, a bankruptcy trusteeship is not worth having; just as well-known legal firms object to be concerned in suits where but small sums are at stake. That the difficulty may be solved, we fully believe; but it must be in a way which will make it to the interest of the accountants to take such cases, and will definitely assert their professional position. Till the action we have so often advocated is taken, we quite hold that any attempt to fix a common scale of charges is wholly futile.

Digitized by Google

The close of the Albert Society Arbitration marks the successful termination of a new experiment, and will probably lead to the extension of the system in many cases. The plan by which the European arrangement is being carried on, and which is a modification of the old scheme, has yet to be fully tried; but there can be but little doubt that the result will be equally successful. We shall take an opportunity of further considering the statistics of Lord Cairns's report; to-day we shall view the question simply in its bearings with regard to ordinary practice. The great saving in expense has probably been as much as any thing owing to the rapidity with which proceedings have been carried on. As winding-up is ordinarily carried on, there is great delay in the legal part of the business. Questions brought into chambers, or before the judge, have to wait their turn for hearing; and any one who has been practically concerned in these matters, knows how the case is set down in the paper only to be blocked out by a press of matter in front of it. In chambers the chief clerks, who are about the hardest working body of men in the public service, have their time so fully occupied, that to get an appointment fixed for an early day is seldom practicable; while a summons adjourned into court is, in most instances, in the paper for one day in the week, and often stands over almost indefinitely. Such a course as this is fatal to steady progress. Delay is inevitable, and time is wasted in waiting about for the hearing of the case. Under the new system all is changed. The sittings are regular and frequent, if not continuous; the various points are dealt with as they arise in practice; and the proceedings go on without that extreme friction of mind and body to all concerned, which so greatly diminishes rapid progress.

Sir John Hawkshaw, in his remarkable address to the British Association at Bristol, pointed out very forcibly the truth of the saying that "time is money," and showed how materially the development of the railway system had contributed to the prosperity of the country, by shortening the time occupied in the delivery of goods. The reduction of rates of course added to the wealth of the nation, but the reduction of time he considered of scarcely less importance. The pecuniary saving in liquidations by the quickened procedure is incalculable. The moral effect produced on creditors and contributories alike is very great. Bankruptcy experience shows that creditors prefer quick returns to large dividends, and are willing to pay a heavy discount on the amount of their claims in order to obtain a speedy settlement. The creditors of a company, especially of an insurance company, are naturally anxious to know the worst at once; and the shareholders in the unfortunate "absorbed" companies are relieved from a load of anxiety. If the accelerated procedure had done no more than relieve such as these from a state of uncertainty which must hopelessly paralyse all exertion, and by enabling them to go about their business, restore them to their proper function as producers, adding to the national fund of labour-earned accumulations, it would have been a moral and economical benefit to every single member of the community.

Digitized by Google

There is one point in which we think the system of appointing an arbitrator, not of the highest judicial rank, and giving a right of appeal from his decisions, is a great improvement on the original plan. Apart from the unlucky differences of opinion between Lord Cairns, Lord Westbury, and Lord Romilly, the judgment of any arbitrator, however eminent, would carry no judicial weight, and would not in any degree contribute to settle the law. In his own court the judgment of the arbitrator would be conclusive, but beyond its walls, it might deserve respect, but could never command obedience. No judge would be bound to follow it, except so far as he coincided with the views expressed, and it would be open to him to disregard it, as the mere casual opinion of a great lawyer. But an appeal from an arbitrator, decided by the highest tribunal in the country, would settle the law definitely, and the ruling of the Judges of Appeal would be binding upon every court in the land. Thus, while, under the old system, the particular company alone was the gainer, under the new, the whole country gains by eliciting an authoritative exposition of the law.

There are many cases in which the system of appointing assessors may prove highly beneficial, and in any company where its condition is at all complicated it may be advantageously resorted to. The great saving in time and expense would amply compensate for the remuneration to the arbitrator, and thus be highly beneficial to both shareholders and creditors of the company. The chief clerks would be relieved of a very harassing and tedious portion of their duties, and be able to greatly expedite ordinary business; and thus the whole country would be a gainer. No fresh expense would be cast upon the public purse; and such a course, if consistently adopted and thoroughly carried out, would be the truest economy, and would go far to remove the discredit of procrastination and delay which is so widely associated with the late Court of Chancery.

A GOLDEN YEAR.—The finance accounts for the year ending the 31st of March, 1875, show, as a part of the National Debt, annuities amounting to no less than £4,170,430, all terminating in 1885, the year which will thus bring a very large reduction in the public expenditure. The above amount of terminable annuities is upwards of £600,000 a year more than the total in the preceding year. This increase is chiefly owing to a large investment in these securities under the Post Office Savings Banks Acts, and partly to the creation by this method of funds for fortifications and military barracks.

THE CENSUS.—A Parliamentary return shows that the heads of information comprised in the inquiries made in the Census of 1871 were almost precisely the same as in the preceding Census. In England the chief addition was that in 1871 a return was required of the number of lunatics, idiots, and imbeciles, whether they were or were not in asylums; and proprietors of land were desired, in addition to giving their rank or occupation, to describe themselves as landowners. The English Census volumes for 1871 tell less than those for 1861 in some of the details. The inquiry relating to religious professions is still confined to Ireland. The cost of the Census advanced in England to £5 5s. 8d. per 1,000 of population; in Scotland to £8 1s. 4d.; in Ireland to £7 2s. 7d. But the Irish Census work is not yet completed; the public have not got the General Report, and, perhaps, not the whole bill of costs.

THE FAILURE OF MESSRS. DUNCAN, SHERMAN AND CO., NEW YORK.—Mr. W. Butler Duncan has issued a circular to the creditors of the firm, of which the following is a digest:—The liabilities, as shown by the assignee, amount to 4,910,013 dols. 89 cents., and the assets to 2,119,368 dols. 4 cents., or a proportion of assets to liabilities of say 43 per cent. Both these items may be varied by the actual realisation of the estate, and it is the desire of the firm to give the creditors the fullest benefit, and they make the following proposition to the creditors without distinction: That in consideration of their being discharged from their present obligations, W. Butler Duncan proposes to pay, therefore, 33⅓ per cent., as follows: 8⅓ per cent. in his note dated July 27th, payable on or before November 27th, 1875; 5 per cent. payable on or before May 27th, 1876; 5 per cent payable on or before November 27th, 1876; 5 per cent payable on or before May 27th, 1877; and 10 per cent payable on or before November 27th, 1877, with interest at 7 per cent per annum till paid, or as much sooner as the assets shall be realised and divided. On the acceptance of this proposition by all the creditors, the estate shall be realised for the benefit of all concerned by W. Butler Duncan, under the control and supervision of R. E. Kennedy, Esq., president of the National Bank of Commerce, and George W. Duer, Esq., president of the National Bank of the State of New York, who have consented to act in the premises.

Digitized by Google

Correspondence.

MR. JUSTICE QUAIN'S ATTACK UPON ACCOUNTANTS.

To the Editor of the Accountant.

SIR,—The particulars furnished in your issue of the 28th ult., by the trustee of the estate of James Winne (Mr. M. H. Clark of Bristol), as to the mode in which this prosecution was brought about, appear to render the attack upon our body still more unjustifiable than I at first imagined, for I certainly supposed that Mr. Justice Quain had got hold of a remarkably bad specimen of a "man calling himself an accountant."

From Mr. Clark's statement, the real facts appear to be:

1. That he was appointed receiver and manager without solicitation.
2. That he carried on the business from the 29th of August, until the 23rd of September, 1874.
3. That he was unanimously elected trustee, he himself holding only one proxy.
4. That the appointment of solicitor was made by the court.
5. That as trustee, he, at the second general meeting of creditors, received £10 10s. only as his remuneration.
6. That among the creditors figured some of the leading men of the City of Bristol, who took an active part in the matter.
7. That the debtor filed a statement of affairs which was admittedly false and fraudulent.
8. That the debtor secreted stock-in-trade and other articles of the estimated value of £70.
9. That Mr. Clark, as trustee, was directed by a resolution of the creditors to apply to the court for an order directing a prosecution.
10. That the judge of the Bristol County Court made an order to prosecute.
11. That as trustee, Mr. Clark was bound to obey the direction of the creditors, supplemented as it was by the order of the court.
12. That Mr. Clark asserts he would have been able to pay twenty shillings in the pound but for the misconduct of the debtor.
13. That Mr. Clark has only taken three trusteeships, none of which have been profitable to him.
14. That the debtor was found guilty of the charges brought against him, and
15. That the prosecution was conducted by the solicitor in his discretion.

Now, sir, none of the above facts redound to the discredit of the trustee. Mr. Clark is an entire stranger to me; but unless his statements are contradicted in a very authoritative manner, I shall, with most reasoning beings, hold that Mr. Clark is a very ill-used man, and that the impartiality of the bench does not come out in that brilliant way Englishmen are always so ready to boast of and admire.

That all accountants are not ignorant men, is well shown by Mr. Clark's letter. His statements are terse, and his arguments to the point.

Allow me to cap Mr Clark's statements by requesting reference to the comptroller's returns, by which it will be seen that although trustees take personal responsibilities which solicitors do not, the remuneration to them and accountants averages about 10 per cent. of the amount paid to solicitors, and so far as trustees are concerned, their remuneration is entirely dependent on the goodwill and good faith of creditors.

In one case in which I was interested as trustee, after 18 months' litigation by direction of the committee of inspection, our case was established, but no order obtained. The solicitor advised an appeal to the Lords Justices (for the purpose of obtaining the desired order), and we both offered to risk our shares (inasmuch as there was sufficient to pay costs and remuneration unless beaten on appeal), and to hold the creditors harmless from the consequences. This offer was the more simple, as in the event of a defeat the trustee alone was responsible; but the committee were tired of the case, and directed the trustee to abandon the appeal and close the estate. On getting all the figures together, it transpired that after payment of costs and remuneration to the trustee, there would only remain a dividend of about 2¼d. in the pound (whereas, in the event of success attending the appeal, there would have been something like 5s. in the pound to divide). The remuneration of the trustee was left to the committee. I submitted my account; the committee, after examining it, admitted it to be fair and reasonable, but expressed a wish to declare 4d. in the pound. I was in their hands; and eventually, with the most perfect courtesy, they calculated the amount required to make up the desired dividend, and deducted it from my account, voting me the balance, thus giving the creditors the dividend in question at my expense. I was entirely at their mercy, and had no alternative but to submit, which I did with the best possible grace; but I thought of surgical operations nevertheless, and considered myself a sufferer.

Any statements put forward by the Daily Telegraph are admittedly "so painfully veracious," that I have not thought fit to refer to them. By the way, I see in a recent report from America, that a journalist bearing the same name as the alleged "inventor" of "Khivan Expeditions," and the "Man and Dog Fight," has come to an untimely end through a balloon accident. I trust that this is not our friend of the vivid imagination; for it would be a great pity to be deprived of his descriptive, although somewhat unreliable, articles.

In conclusion, let me add, that I think if Mr. Clark's connection with the case of James Winne is a test of his acts as an accountant, the other members of our profession need not be ashamed of him.

The wisest of men sometimes say in hot blood things which they afterwards would prefer to have left unsaid. Doubtless by this time Mr. Justice Quain "is sorry he spoke."

I enclose my card; but as I have no desire to create an animus in judicial minds against me, beg to retain my nom de plume, and remain, Yours truly,

F. S. A. E.

[Our correspondent is, we believe, slightly in error as to the Daily Telegraph and its contributors. The gentleman who went "up in a balloon" was an energetic New York reporter named Grimwood; the author of the "Man and Dog Fight," was James Greenwood, the "Amateur Casual;" we do not recall the name of the smart writer who "did" the "Khivan Expedition" and the Daily Telegraph, but it was neither the one nor the other.—ED. ACCOUNTANT.]

MR. JUSTICE QUAIN AND THE "DAILY TELEGRAPH."

To the Editor of the Accountant.

SIR,—Mr. M. H. Clark's letter, which appeared in The Accountant of last week, completely clears up any doubt as to the propriety of that gentleman's conduct in instituting the prosecution which had been ordered by a county court, but which Mr. Justice Quain (supplemented by the zealous support of a rather opinionated jury) decided should never have been brought before the court over which he presided. It may, perhaps, afford Mr. Clark some slight consolation to learn that the majority of the accountants in London are fully aware of the injustice of his case, and that his misfortune in being so hardly dealt with is thoroughly understood. The remarks which fell from the bench as to the ignorance or incapacity of the class of business men "styling themselves accountants," have tended simply to awaken among them that contempt which such thoughtless aspersions merit; and it may be augured, have not to any great degree strengthened the faith in the bench of those who have been in the habit of relying on the wisdom of judges' utterances. Little, very little, notice need be taken of the semi-pusillanimous effusion of the Daily Telegraph, whose columns are renowned for sensational and over-drawn articles; and one can afford to pass over its pages with more than usual celerity when it stoops to publish its ignorance respecting the duties and obligations connected with the business of accountants. It may, perhaps, be going a little too far to accuse your Fleet-street contemporary of using the slang of Billingsgate, or of indulging in any extraordinary amount of vulgarity; but no one will deny that its comments upon the recent trial at Bristol, if not to some extent garbled, were, at all events, very faulty, and entirely unnecessary and uncalled for. It would be greatly satisfactory to many accountants, I am sure, to learn that Mr. M. H. Clark is a Member of one of the Societies of Accountants; as although we are at present a presumably unrecognised profession, there is some satisfaction in being in a position to impart the information to certain individuals, when occasion arises, that although self-elected, we know one another; and self-election, bad as it may at times be, has ever been the groundwork of position, authority, influence, and power.—Yours, &c.

Digitized by Google

X.

COMMITTEE OF INSPECTION.

To the Editor of the Accountant.

SIR,—Your issue of the 28th ult. contains an article referring to a recent decision, disallowing a present of £15 made by the trustee to his committee of inspection in obedience to the direction of the creditors. The principle upon which that decision is based is undoubtedly sound; but, as a matter of common and every-day experience, it is very difficult, especially in cases where the prospect of dividend is not encouraging, to get the committee to act. In the majority of instances, where a trustee in bankruptcy is reported for not sending in his audited accounts, the committee of inspection are the culprits. It is but natural for them, when they see little or no advantage to be gained from a loss of time, to prefer their first loss, that of their money. Legally they are to blame, and the trustee must elect between reporting them or being reported himself for neglect. But human nature is very much the same with creditors and trustees, —when no advantage is to be derived from fruitless labour, what is more natural than to abandon one's exertions? That, however, the present Act will not allow, and the "dead horse" must still be worked.

Were the French system—of suspending bankruptcies where no assets are forthcoming—adopted, schemes of settlement, when they subsequently arise, would be effected at a great saving of costs and remuneration; for trustees cannot be expected personally to incur the loss of time and money involved in closing such bankruptcies.

Yours truly,
A TRUSTEE.

London, September 2nd, 1875.

At the Mansion-house on Friday, Robert Gordon Coleman, 37 years of age, described as an accountant, was charged before Alderman Sir Robert Carden, sitting for the Lord Mayor, with forging and uttering a banker's check for £13 12s. 9d. with intent to defraud. The circumstances were somewhat peculiar. Mr. Mullens, solicitor to the Bankers' Protection Association, conducted the prosecution; Mr. Montagu Williams, barrister, appeared for the defence. Mr. B. W. Newport, the landlord of the Duke of Edinburgh Tavern at Bromley-by-Bow, said that on the 12th of May last a crossed check for £13 12s. 9d., drawn upon Messrs. Smith, Payne, and Smiths, and bearing the signature "George Graham and Company," was brought to him by Mr. Charles Wolf, whom he knew as a customer. At his request he advanced him £8 upon it. He afterwards paid it into the Limehouse branch of the London and County Bank, where he kept an account, and it was returned to him with the endorsement—"No account." Charles Wolf, a clerk, living in Knapp road, Bromley, said he had known the prisoner for 15 years. He received the check in question from him on the 11th of May, for the purpose of obtaining cash for it. He obtained an advance of £8 from the last witness, which he handed to the prisoner. The latter had told him that he was an accountant, and that he had received the check for work he had done for a firm. He noticed and remarked to him that the body of the check was in his own handwriting. The prisoner had called upon him two days previously, and asked him if he could get a crossed check cashed for him. Witness then held an appointment under the Local Government Board, and he told the prisoner that as their accounts were audited he could not pass it through their bankers. The prisoner suggested to him that the check should be made out in witness's name, and that he should have a small amount out of it to pay a debt. He received £2 10s. out of the £8. When he called at the public-house for the balance witness was arrested and committed for trial, but ultimately acquitted. In replying to Mr. Montagu Williams, he said that he had no idea that the check was a forgery. He owed the prisoner the balance of a bill for £25, upon which he had paid 25s. He understood, however, that the prisoner had waived his claim. Before going to the public-house he tried, but without success, to get the lodge porter of the Asylum where he was employed to cash it. He represented to Mr. Newport, the publican, that the check was given for work done, and that it was as good as gold. Further evidence was adduced to the effect that on Wolf's arrest the prisoner, who then denied that he had given him the check, was requested to attend the court as a witness, but failed to do so, and that nothing was heard of him from the 22nd of May until the 11th of August, when he was apprehended. The check had been abstracted from the check-book of Mr. Albert Henry Nicholson, a commission agent, at 11 Mansion-house-buildings, Queen Victoria-street, whom the prisoner had assisted in business. His father-in-law proved that the whole of the check was in the prisoner's handwriting, and that there was no attempt at concealment or disguise. Mr. Montagu Williams, admitting that the check was in the prisoner's handwriting, said the only question was whether in uttering it he had had any intention to defraud. That, of course, would be a matter for a jury. He thought no great reliance would be placed on Wolf's statement. The prisoner reserved his defence. Sir Robert Carden committed him for trial at the next sessions of the Central Criminal Court. Bail was refused.

Digitized by Google

VICE-CHANCELLORS' COURTS, LINCOLN'S INN.

August 31.

(Before Vice-Chancellor Sir JAMES BACON.)

IN THE MATTER OF E. LOWTHER, A SOLICITOR.—This was an application for the release of a solicitor, imprisoned under an order of attachment from the Court of Chancery. Mr. Robert Williams, who with Mr. Robertson Griffiths, appeared for Mr. Lowther, argued that the arrest had been illegal, Mr. Lowther having been captured by the Sergeant-at-Mace while actually within the precincts of the Mansion-house Court. The Vice-Chancellor held that a solicitor is privileged from arrest eundo et redeundo, and accordingly ordered Mr. Lowther to be discharged upon his undertaking to take no further proceedings in the matter.

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY.

August 26.

(Before MR. REGISTRAR PEPYS, sitting as Chief Judge.)

IN RE C. A. LEA.—The debtor, described as of the Coal Exchange, also of Camden-town, and Bramley, near Guildford, coal merchant, has presented a petition for liquidation, his liabilities being estimated at about £9,000, and assets £2,300. It appeared that he was being sued by several creditors, and application was accordingly made for an interim injunction restraining further proceedings in the actions. No receiver, however, had been appointed, and his Honour accordingly declined to make any order.

IN RE JOSEPH NIXON.—In this case an adjudication was made upon the petition of the Fore-street Warehouse Company, Limited. The bankrupt, who carried on business as a wholesale hosier at 66 Wood-street, Cheapside, had filed a petition for liquidation, but those proceedings have become abortive. His debts are roughly estimated at about £15,000, and assets £6,000.

August 27.

(Before Mr. Registrar ROCHE, sitting as Chief Judge.)

IN RE ALEXANDER THORN.—In this case, upon the application of Mr. Doria, an interim injunction, granted by the court last week, restraining further proceedings in an action commenced by the Union Bank of London, was continued until further order. The debtor, who has presented a petition for liquidation, is described as of Cremorne-wharf, Chelsea; also of Ennismore-gardens, Hyde-park, and of West Worthing, builder and contractor for works, and carrying on the business of the Waterworks, Baths, Assembly-rooms, and Skating-rink at West Worthing. His debts are said to represent an aggregate of about £150,000, and assets £40,000, subject to various encumbrances thereon.

IN RE C. A. LEA.—In this case an order was made for the appointment of Mr. Meggy, accountant, Old Jewry-chambers, as receiver and manager. The debtor is a coal merchant of the Coal Exchange, also of Camden-town, Bramley, near Guildford, and elsewhere. His liabilities are estimated at about £9,000, and assets £2,300.

August 28.

(Before Mr. Registrar PEPYS sitting as Chief Judge.)

IN RE EDMOND V. PHILLIPS.—The debtor, carrying on business as a provision merchant in London-street, City, has presented a petition for liquidation; and, upon the application of Mr. Robertson Griffiths, his Honour appointed Mr. Turquand, public accountant, receiver and manager of the estate, his nomination to the office being supported by some of the principal creditors. The debts, secured and unsecured, may be roughly estimated at about £40,000, and it appeared from the affidavits that large quantities of goods were lying at wharves and in the hands of bankers, which it was desirable should be realised without delay.

August 30.

(Before Mr. Registrar PEPYS.)

IN RE SHAND AND CO.—This was a first sitting under the bankruptcy of Charles Shand, Alexander Shand, and Ralph Abram Robinson, who had traded in co-partnership as merchants in Rood-lane, and also at Liverpool, Madras and Colombo, under the name of Shand and Co. The bankrupts had in the first instance presented a petition for liquidation, but those proceedings fell to the ground, and an adjudication followed on the petition of the London and County Bank. Proofs to the extent of £270,000 were now admitted without opposition, and Mr. H. Bishop, accountant (Turquand and Co.), was appointed trustee, the following being nominated as a committee of inspection:—Mr. Donald Bremner, of the London and Westminster Bank; Mr. Edward Clodd, Secretary of the London Joint-Stock Bank; and Mr. James Gray, of the London and County Bank. A statement of the joint affairs disclosed a total unsecured liability of £341,980, and assets £38,368. It appeared that the bankrupts had incurred large liabilities in connection with Messrs. Collie and Co. Messrs. Wilkinson, Stevens and Harries are the solicitors under the proceedings.

August 31.

Mr. Registrar Pepys held a sitting at Lincoln's Inn, and heard several applications in liquidation matters.

IN RE H. AND A. RANKING.—Under liquidation proceedings instituted by Henry and Augustus Ranking, trading as merchants at 11 St. Helen's-place, under the firm of John Ranking and Co., the creditors have determined to liquidate by arrangement with a trustee and committee of inspection, the debtors' discharge being also granted; and his Honour now allowed registration of the resolutions. The liabilities were returned in the debtor's statement of affairs at £106,897, and assets £58,391.

IN RE ROBERT BENSON AND CO.—Registration was also ordered of the resolutions come to by creditors under this heavy failure. The debtors traded as merchants in the City of London, also at Liverpool and Boston (U.S.). The liabilities, irrespective of secured claims amounting to about £300,000, are returned at £82,920, the assets being estimated at £54,843. The creditors have determined to liquidate by arrangement, with Mr. R. Waterhouse, public accountant, as trustee, and a committee of inspection. Registration allowed accordingly.

SOCIETY OF ACCOUNTANTS IN ENGLAND.—The Monthly Meeting of the Society of Accountants in England was held on the 20th August, at the Society's Offices, 2 Cowper's Court, Cornhill. Present—Messrs. J. Davies (President), in the chair, J. Bath (Vice-President), F. Nicholls, J. C. Bolton, E. C. Foreman, H. Brett and J. Andrews. The following were admitted as Associates of the Society, viz.:—William Henry Chamberlain, 4 New-street, Leicester; William Henry Nairne, 40 Brown-street, Manchester. A notice of resignation was received from Thomas Wood, of Chester, an Associate of the Society.

Digitized by Google

LIVERPOOL COUNTY COURT.

Aug. 27.

(Before Mr. PERRONET THOMPSON.)

IN RE FREDERICK GRANVILLE AND CO.—This was an application on the part of the bankrupt to appoint a day for his public examination, and to suspend the execution of a warrant which had been issued to enforce his appearance before the court. It seemed that the bankruptcy took place in October, 1872, and Mr. Grahame, the partner of Mr. Granville, then surrendered and obtained his discharge, but Mr. Granville did not appear, and after several warrants had been issued to bring him before the court he obtained a sitting for his public examination. That sitting was appointed for yesterday, but it was found that through inadvertence the order of the court had not been drawn up, nor had the bankrupt complied with its terms by paying the costs of two abortive warrants. Mr. Norton (from the office of Messrs. Norris and Sons) now asked for a new day to be appointed, and for the suspension of the execution of the warrant; and Mr. Kennedy, instructed by Messrs. Bateson and Co., for Mr. Banner opposed. His Honour, after hearing the learned gentlemen at length, made order that the warrant be suspended until the 1st October, and that in the mean time, if the costs be paid, a new sitting be appointed for public examination.

IN RE WILLIAM G. TAYLOR.—This was an application involving a point of practice. The debtor, an ale and porter bottler, presented a petition for liquidation in June last, and at the first meeting Mr. Bolland was chosen trustee. Before the registration of the resolutions the debtor made a proposal for the purchase of the estate for a sum equivalent to 8s. in the pound, provided he was allowed his discharge. A meeting to consider this offer was called by the trustee, at which the creditors accepted the same and granted the discharge; but on the latter being presented for the registrar's signature, it was refused, on the ground that at the time when the trustee called the meeting he had not obtained the certificate of his appointment. His Honour, on being appealed to, after hearing Mr. Labron Johnson for the debtor, affirmed the decision of the registrar.

IN RE JOHN C. WILSON.—This debtor was a draper in Great Homer-street. He filed his petition on the 2nd February last, but five days previously thereto divested himself, in favour of his sister, of his interest under a will, for £35, the same being at the time of the value of £321. Mr. Nordon, for Mr. Bolland, the trustee, contended that the transaction was a fraud upon creditors; and after at great length referring to the circumstances of the case, the court intimated its opinion that, although there was ground for suspicion, upon the facts it did not see its way to declare the transaction fraudulent. Mr. Nordon thereupon asked that the case might be tried before a jury, and, after hearing Mr. Kennedy for the sister in opposition, the court granted the application. Mr. William Lowe appeared in the case.

August 28.

BANKRUPTCY EXAMINATIONS.—A question was raised by a witness as to the right of the court to compel him to be sworn until he had been paid the expenses he claimed consequent upon his attendance as a witness. The witness was Mr. W. Richards, of London, the brother of Mr. Albert J. Richards, of Victoria-street, Liverpool, provision merchant, whose affairs are now in liquidation. He was summoned by Mr. Bolland, the trustee, as a person suspected to have in his possession property belonging to the liquidating debtor, and was paid on the service of the summons £3 10s. That sum, he contended, did not cover his legal expenses, they being, as he submitted, £3 3s. each for two days' time and his first-class railway fare; and until they were paid he refused to be sworn. Mr. Lupton instructed by Messrs. Lace and Co. for the trustee, insisted upon the witness being sworn. He said that in civil proceedings no witness was bound to attend unless tendered, on service of the subpœna, reasonable compensation for his subsistence during his attendance on the trial, and his travelling expenses to and from the place of trial; but the rule in bankruptcy was that, where a witness was summoned as an accounting party to an estate, all that need be tendered was a sufficient sum to carry him to the court. If he should turn out not to be an accounting party, the court had power to order that his full expenses be paid. There was no plaintiff or defendant in these proceedings, but the examination sought, although at the instance of the trustee, was the examination of the court; and where, in the administration of justice, the attendance of a witness was required, he was compellable to attend as in criminal matters, without any expense being tendered. The only object of tendering expenses was to meet the objection which might be raised that the witness was too poor to pay his travelling expenses. Further, he submitted that the witness being in the precincts of the court, it had full jurisdiction in the interests of justice to compel him to give evidence. His honour ruled that the witness must be sworn, and, on his still refusing, committed him at once into the custody of the high bailiff until the admiralty case then being heard before him was concluded, when he would further consider the course to be pursued. Subsequently, the witness, on reflection, and on the assurance of the trustee that all proper costs would be allowed if it turned out he was not an accounting party, consented to be sworn. His examination was taken in private, but we were informed he admitted that, subsequent to a preliminary meeting of the creditors of his brother at which he was present, he received, to cover liabilities he was under for his brother, £93 and several bills of exchange amounting to about £300.

WARRINGTON COUNTY COURT.

CREDITORS' PROXIES.—Mr. Marshall, barrister, made an application to his Honour to order the taxation of a trustee's bill under the following circumstances:—John Knowles, of Runcorn, draper, filed his petition for liquidation in the Warrington County Court on the 7th day of October, 1874; and on the same day, Mr. G. Jepson Knight, of Runcorn, accountant, was duly appointed receiver and manager of the business, until the first meeting of creditors; but on the 16th of October, Mr. Joshua Crowther of Manchester, accountant, presented himself at the county court with a written document signed by a large majority of the heaviest creditors, nominating him as receiver (residing in and about Manchester) under rule 262, which provides that where a receiver has been already appointed by the court, a majority of the creditors may nominate some other person as receiver, and such receiver shall be forthwith substituted in his place. Consequently, Mr. Crowther, by virtue of the creditors' proxies which he had obtained, became the receiver in the place of Mr. Knight, against whose fitness not one word could be said. On the 4th of November the first meeting of creditors was held, and Mr. Joshua Crowther, of Bath Chambers, York-street, Manchester, accountant, attended, holding no less than 33 proxies from the heaviest creditors, by virtue of which he elected himself as trustee, without a committee of inspection; thus taking the sole and absolute control over the estate. A resolution was passed in accordance with the petitioner's own proposal that he should pay his creditors 20s. in the pound by instalments of 5s. in three months from the 1st December, 1874, 5s. at the expiration of six months from the said 1st day of December, 5s. at the expiration of nine months from the said 1st day of December, and 5s. at the expiration of 12 months from the said 1st day of December; and the resolution went on to say that the costs and charges of Messrs. Joshua Crowther and Co., accountants, be paid within one month from the date of confirmation of the resolution. The two first instalments of 5s. each had been already paid, when the petitioner applied to Mr. Joshua Crowther for a statement of accounts with his charges, when he made out a bill of upwards of £190, which had been deducted from monies arising from the estate. This bill the petitioner considered as exorbitant, and objected, through his attorney, Mr. Garratt of Runcorn, to the trustee deducting it until the bill had been taxed by the officer of the court. To this course, Mr. Joshua Crowther, of course, objected, on the ground that the resolution provided for the payment of the costs and charges of Messrs. Joshua Crowther and Co., who it was contended were simply the accountants, and were separate and distinct from Mr. Joshua Crowther, trustee. Mr. Atkinson, of the firm of Atkinson and Saunders, of Manchester, represented Crowther, and at great length contended that the court had no jurisdiction to tax the bill of Messrs. Joshua Crowther; that it was ordered to be paid by the resolution, although the amount had not been filed, but he contended it was a fair and reasonable bill, and was entitled to be paid. Mr. Marshall, in reply, characterised the circumstances upon which Mr. Atkinson mainly relied as a mere juggle to evade the operation of the law. If there could have been any doubt that the bill was that of Joshua Crowther, it was removed by his own affidavit, in which he admitted sending the bill, and spoke of having included in it his payments and disbursements as receiver. Attending the first meeting with 33 proxies in his pocket, he assumed to have command of the whole position; and according to his mode of arguing, could vote himself what remuneration he chose, in utter defiance of the bankruptcy law. The section of the Act referred to gave the court absolute power as to the remuneration of a receiver, and he (Mr. Marshall) trusted the learned judge would not permit it to be evaded by a scheme such as that disclosed in the present case.—His Honour said that if ever there was a case in which the court should interfere, it was this; but he was afraid that the resolution which provided that the costs and charges of Messrs. Joshua Crowther and Co. should be paid deprived him of the power; but he felt sure it was never the intention of the legislature that such cases as this should be tolerated, and he was of opinion that a very great change in the law was urgently required; the whole system of proxy giving should be swept away; the greatest jobbery and injustice was daily practised by irresponsible people calling themselves accountants, going round to the creditors obtaining their proxies under the false pretence of representing their interest at the meeting, the fact being, as experience showed only too plainly every day, that these people could go with the proxies to the meeting of so-called creditors, get themselves appointed trustees, possess themselves of the estate, and deal with it pretty much as they pleased without let or hindrance, and only too frequently ignoring altogether the interests of the creditors in their anxiety to study their own. The present state of the law in this respect was a perfect anomaly, and he hoped a change would speedily take place that would do away with it He regretted that he could not help the petitioner in the face of the resolution ordering "the costs and charges of Messrs. Joshua Crowther and Co. to be paid;" but he would not grant their costs of opposing this application.

Digitized by Google

We are requested to insert the following letter, which appeared in the Manchester Guardian, in regard to the above application:—

RE JOHN KNOWLES, RUNCORN.

ACCOUNTANTS' CHARGES IN DISPUTE.

To the Editor of the Manchester Guardian.

Sir,—Many of our friends are under the impression that the £198 mentioned in your paper of Saturday last are our charges in the matter. It is not so; it is simply a cash account and not charges, and any one conversant with figures will at once see the difference. Out of the sum named we paid all preferential claims, including all creditors whose amounts were too small to accept for, goods supplied for carrying on the business, solicitors' charges representing the creditors, debtor's house expenses and wages, and many other matters of a similar kind; the trustee's remuneration as receiver, manager, and trustee being less than one sixth of the whole amount, being £29 8s. The observations of the judge were directed against the principle in general, and had no reference to the charges then before him; as he expressly said, he was not passing any reflection on those charges, as he had not looked at them. Our estate book is open to the Committee of the Home-trade Association or the Council of the Manchester Institute of Accountants—of which Society I am a member—or any one appointed on their behalf.

Yours, &c.

JOSHUA CROWTHER.

Manchester, August 30, 1875.

THREE MONTHS' FAILURES.

The Times says, "The following table exhibits the results of the failures of the past three months so far as the balance-sheets hitherto published reveal them. It is not a complete list, but the majority of the more important firms are here included. Of those about which there are as yet no particulars the most conspicuous are Fothergill and Hankey, Sanderson and Co., and Young, Borthwick, and Co. Regarding the first of these, we are told that the assets depend upon whether a public company can be formed for working the valuable mines and works owned by the firm. If capital can be found to do this, the estate may, it is said, pay in full—that is, if the shareholders will take up the firm's liabilities—but a forced sale might yield almost nothing. The liabilities are about £1,250,000. The other two firms are the discount houses brought down by Fothergill and Hankey and Alexander Collie respectively, and their actual position cannot yet be shown because a good many of their bills have not yet come to maturity, and because the bankrupt estates on which they rank have not yet been realised. Sanderson's estate is not expected to turn out well; the creditors may get 2s. or 2s. 6d. in the pound. Young, Borthwick, and Co.'s assets, are, we hear, even less substantial. It appears that the capital of this firm was nearly if not quite all held by the Bank of England as margin on advances at the time of its stoppage, and, that money being forfeited, there is little left for the ordinary creditor out of the estate itself. Sanderson's estate, on the other hand, shows a better state of affairs than would otherwise have been the case, through their having in hand a considerable deposit from Fothergill, Hankey and Co., which that firm forfeited when it failed. The liabilities of the 29 firms whose balance-sheets are summarised below, amount to £6,306,656, against assets of £1,493,000, exclusive of £594,000 which is marked "doubtful." At the best, therefore, these statements show an absolute loss of something like £5,000,000, and it may well be much more. The Collie group is, as might be expected, the worst, firms connected with his ventures having failed for £3,831,000, against which only £839,000 good assets can be set, the £551,000 "doubtful" being worth probably next to nothing, consisting as it does in great part of claims against the American Government, which, so far as we know, were never admitted by it. It will be well, indeed, if the "good" assets prove good to the amount set down. If we include the probable deficit of a couple of millions on the minor firms' estates, and on those named above,—which is probably much within the mark, the nominal liabilities of the two discount houses and Fothergill and Hankey alone reaching over ten millions,—we shall arrive at £7,000,000 as the net sum of floating capital lost through the recent collapse. It may be found to be actually £10,000,000 to £12,000,000 when all the losses of country houses and of firms that have not failed are taken into account; but estimated at its smallest, this is a very heavy sum, for even a wealthy commercial community like ours to lose. That the loss has been hitherto sustained without any suspension of credit is very strong testimony to the essential stability of the institutions upon which it has chiefly fallen. Taken in conjunction with the exceeding cheapness of money now, we should say that two things seem to be proved by the fact that so heavy a loss has been borne without any serious strain on credit,—that there is an enormous accumulation of wealth to be employed, and that before the crash came an amount much beyond that represented by the subsequent losses was employed in very dangerous business. If the legitimate business of the country can now be done on so much less capital that, in spite of losses like these, money can hardly find a borrower, this would seem to be conclusively proved. Some, however, question whether enough accommodation is now being given to trade, and we have received a strong complaint from Manchester to the effect that the London bankers will no longer discount Manchester bills, however good they be, because Collie professed to be a Manchester merchant. If that be the case, no doubt the bankers are making a mistake; but on the whole we should say it is only the big adventures that are at present tabooed. Small genuine trade bills find no difficulty in getting discounted, although, as a rule, such discounting is done at rates much above the present Bank of England minimum. If the banks were to forbid altogether dangerous commitments on ventures unbacked by capital, such as they have suffered by, the community would have purchased future stability at a very cheap figure, heavy though these losses be.

Digitized by Google

	Liabilities.	Assets.
Gilead A. Smith and Co.	£411,381	£20,212
E. Corry	172,770	74,323
A. and M. Zimmerman	49,773	21,004
A. Collie and Co.	1,889,786	*802,392
Shand and Co.	341,980	38,368
Rainbow, Holberton, and Co.	61,515	6,336
John Anderson and Co.	144,747	31,596
John Strachan and Co.	96,938	5,711
J. C. Fowlie	121,638	10,704
Alexander, Sons and Co.	210,535	34,254
Adamson and Sons	94,298	12,917
J. P. Westhead and Co.	318,000	302,000
R. Benson and Co.	124,331	70,000
L. Stewart	32,821	11,368
Wilson and Armstrong	258,531	57,090
C. Carnie	56,000	1,050
S. and J. Graham	71,606	22,943
Laing and Irvine	173,000	70,000
Rudall and Sons	128,605	18,015
E. Jones and Co.	102,898	54,235
Da Costa, Raalte, and Co.	265,580	85,290
Kilburn, Kershaw, and Co.	201,476	6,577
John Ranking and Co.	106,898	†58,392
Lambert Brothers and Scott	170,848	95,996
R. Corkling and Co.	149,000	41,000
Schultze and Mohr	142,524	7,972
W. Walker and Co.	130,000	70,000
Whitlock and Dadson	146,000	5,000
Shaw and Thompson	103,177	‡52,363
	£6,306,656	£2,087,018

*Of which £551,850 is doubtful.
† " 26,900 "
‡ " 15,510 "

The following circular has been issued by the committee of the Glasgow Stock Exchange, with reference to gambling there:—"The attention of the committee having been drawn to reported large dealings in prospective dividends of certain railway companies, they think it right to express their disapproval of those transactions, and to declare that such cannot be recognised by them, or allowed to take place during the business meeting of the association."

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY, DUBLIN.

September 1st.

(Before the Hon. Judge MILLER.)

IN RE THOMAS BRACKEN.—The bankrupt was a clothier in Mary-street. A charge for £150 had been filed by a Mr. Ryan, on the ground that he had advanced that sum to the bankrupt upon equitable mortgage secured by the possession of the lease of bankrupt's house. Subsequently Bracken obtained a loan of £50 from a person named Boylan, Ryan agreeing to hand him over the lease on the distinct understanding that when paid back the £50, the lease should be given back to him (Ryan). It appeared that Bracken paid Boylan a sum of £20 on account, and Ryan advanced the remaining £30 to the representatives of Boylan. It had been contended on the part of the assignees, that when Ryan voluntarily parted with possession of the lease which he held equitable mortgage, his lien ceased, and the bankrupt was entitled to get the document back. His Lordship held that the lease had been handed over to Boylan for a specific purpose, and after his claim had been satisfied either by Ryan or Bracken, it was the right of Ryan to get back the custody of it. He therefore allowed the charge for the full amount, but directed the lease to be brought into court.

IN RE GEORGE MEARES.—The bankrupt in this case was a stay manufacturer on the quays. On the 7th May last, he had with his assistant O'Healy been committed to Kilmainham prison for unsatisfactory answering, and both remained in jail since. By the desire of his lordship they were now again brought before the court. Mr. Perry, on the part of the assignees, proposed that his lordship should permit the prisoners if they desired it to explain their former evidence with reference to the alleged execution of a deed by the bankrupt's mother. If they did not wish to give any information they could be sent back to the jail. The bankrupt and his assistant were then sworn, and said they had no further information to give. Mr. Perry then asked that the prisoners be sent back to Kilmainham. The assignees believed that the bankrupt well knew who personated his mother on the occasion of the execution of the deed, and that O'Healy also knew. He submitted that as nothing had transpired to alter his lordship's opinion as a reasonable man in committing the prisoners for unsatisfactory answering, that they should be sent to jail. His Lordship asked what would the creditors gain by having the men kept in? Supposing he kept them in for 20 years, would that be of any advantage to the creditors? Mr. Perry said they would gain the truth. His Lordship said that even if the prisoners produced to him the person whom they dressed up for the occasion, would that assist the creditors? Mr. Perry said the assignees believed that the mother signed the deed. Judge Miller said if that were the case the prisoners should not be in custody. Mr. Perry said he believed a conspiracy had been entered into to deny the execution of the deed. He submitted the prisoners should be kept in until they told the truth—even if it were for 20 years. Mr. Clay said that with respect to O'Healy the creditors believed he might have been mistaken, but they had no doubt that the bankrupt was aware of the whole affair. Mr. Davoren, for the bankrupt, pointed out that no property had been suppressed. His Lordship said that in this matter, when George Meares came before the court, it was proposed that his mother, who resided in the suburbs of the city, should secure a composition to be paid by the bankrupt—then an arranging trader—by a mortgage upon a certain property in which she had a life interest. That deed was subsequently executed by a person purporting to be bankrupt's mother, but the bankrupt's mother on examination denied having ever executed the mortgage. The prisoners having refused to disclose the name of the individual who personated Meares' mother, had been kept in jail for nearly four months. Although as a punishment the confinement was inadequate, having regard to the wicked deceit practised on the creditors, he had been informed by the officers that the bankrupt's estate had been realised and would pay nearly 5s. in the pound, with the prospect of a little more. He believed that even the discovery of the person who represented Mrs. Meares on the occasion of the execution of the deed would only lead to additional expense of a prosecution, which would come out of the pockets of the creditors, and he did not believe he could further the interests of the creditors by keeping the prisoners longer in custody. He did not like to be indirectly the means of punishing men who had not had any trial beyond that of the judge himself. If he were bound to pronounce upon their guilt or innocence, it would be quite another thing. Therefore, believing it would do no good to keep the men longer in jail, he would order their discharge upon an undertaking been given to assist the assignees in realising the property. The necessary undertaking was then given.

Digitized by Google

CREDITORS' MEETINGS.

Shaw and Thomson.—The statement of Messrs. Shaw and Thomson's affairs was presented at a private meeeting of their creditors last week. It shows liabilities amounting to £103,177, against assets of £36,853, but these assets do not include a balance of £15,510 due in Alexandria to the North of England Iron Company, under which style Messrs. Shaw and Thomson traded in Egypt, although Mr. Shaw expects to recover it. The estate does not show so much, but Mr. Shaw has offered 10s. in the pound, payable 2s. 6d. now, 2s. 6d. in six months, 1s. 6d. in twelve months, and the remaining 3s. 6d. in three annual equal instalments, with the power to obtain extension of time. This proposal was subject to the report of a committee of investigation, whose circular, recommending its adoption, is subjoined:—" 150 Leadenhall-street, London, August 25th. We, the undersigned, being the committee appointed at the meeting of creditors held on the 20th of August, 1875, have to report:—We have examined the statement of affairs which was submitted to the meeting by Messrs. Cooper, Brothers and Co., and we find that it is fairly drawn up and substantially represents the position of Mr. Shaw's estate. We, however, differ in opinion with Mr. Shaw as to the value of some of the securities deposited with the creditors, but not to an extent to lead us to recommend the creditors to alter the resolution come to at the meeting of creditors held on the 20th of August, when it was decided to accept Mr. Shaw's offer of 10s. in the pound, the committee being of opinion that the liquidation of the estate would not result in a division nearly equal to Mr. Shaw's offer. That we are of opinion that the arrangement made by Mr. Shaw for dissolving his partnership with the Moor Ironworks was judicious and to the interest of his creditors. Every information and assistance has been afforded to the committee by Mr. Shaw, and they venture to express a hope that prosperous times will lead to his being able to fulfil his promise of eventually paying every creditor in full."

J. Mellor (Macclesfield).—At a meeting of the creditors of James Mellor, of Macclesfield and Manchester, silk tie manufacturer, held at the Macclesfield Arms Hotel, in Macclesfield, on Wednesday, a statement of affairs, prepared by Mr. Thomas Mottershead, accountant, Manchester, was presented, showing liabilities to unsecured creditors, £4,706; creditors fully secured, £2,157; estimated value of securities, £2,270; surplus to contra, £113; liabilities on bills discounted, £474, which are not expected to rank against the estate. Assets, including surplus from securities, £1,936. A resolution was passed to liquidate the estate by arrangement.

Cohen, Bonas and Brother.—At the meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Cohen, Bonas and Brother, merchants, of London and Lima, held on Tuesday, Mr. J. Waddell presented the statement of affairs, showing liabilities to rank £48,028 16s, 10d., and general assets £11,397 14s. 6d., exclusive of the amount at the debit of the Lima house, £52,557 7s. 6d. The offer of 5s. in the pound made by Messrs. Lewis and Lewis, on behalf of the debtors, was accepted.

Heald, Mathwin and Co.—On Monday a meeting of the creditors of the above firm, of Billiter-street, ship and insurance brokers and commission agents, was held at the London Tavern, Bishopsgate-street; Mr. Ingledew presiding. The statement of affairs, which was presented, showed that the total liabilities of the firm were £7,336, against which there were assets, consisting of book debts, cash in hand, &c. of £2,147. It was agreed to wind-up by arrangement; the trustee was appointed, as were, also, two of the creditors as a committee of inspection. The proceedings then terminated.

Da Costa, Raalte, and Co.—On Monday, the adjourned meeting of the creditors of the above firm was held at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street; Mr Turquand (of the firm of Turquand, Youngs, and Co.) in the chair. Mr. Rawlins, who represented the debtors, said he thought he might say that as the result of the telegram which Mr. Abrahams—who represented the Alexandria committee of Behrend, Brothers—had despatched to Alexandria, he was now prepared to vote in favour of liquidation by arrangement, as to which so strong a feeling was expressed at the meeting a week ago. He wished now to say a few words he had intended to say at the last meeting. He thought it only right to state that Mr. Da Costa, in the early part of 1872, retired from the firm as from the 30th of June previously. He agreed to allow the firm the use of his name—that was, his retirement was not announced—for a certain period, which expired on the 30th of June last—a very singular coincidence, as on that day the firm suspended payment. Three years previously to this failure, therefore, Mr. Da Costa had nothing to do with the firm, which was thoroughly solvent when he left. He left capital in the firm estimated at £25,000. By the failure of Mr. Lizardi, at the beginning of 1873, the firm sustained a heavy loss, and Mr. Da Costa, who had not drawn out a penny from the business, was obliged to submit to a reduction to £10,000. Under the belief that a sum of £2,800—representing the value of shares in Pavy's Patent Felted Fabric Company—had been set aside that he might have so much more to draw on, he did draw to some extent on what would have been his interest on capital, and, so far as he could understand, he had overdrawn to the extent of £2,000. Through leaving his name in the firm he now found himself liable, and, instead of questioning this liability, he at once said he would share the responsibility with the others. He then stated that he had now to ask them to assent to the resolutions to liquidate the estate by arrangement, Mr. Turquand being the trustee, with a committee of inspection; and he would put it to the sense of the meeting whether it would not be in accordance with the wishes of the creditors that as regarded Mr. Da Costa he should be released at once. He should withdraw this proposition unless it received their unanimous approval. The names he proposed as a committee were Mr. Pickford, of Sales, near Manchester; Mr. Blockey, of the Standard Discount Company; Mr. D. Wylie, of 13 Leadenhall-street; and Mr. A. Bidelow, manager of the Credit Lyonnais. He then moved resolutions for having the estate liquidated by arrangement, &c. Mr. Abrahams said that directly after the last meeting he forwarded a telegram to Behrend, Brothers' house at Alexandria, but the telegram was not understood. He had therefore sent again, and he had expressed a strong feeling that liquidation was much more advantageous than bankruptcy. He had received a telegram in reply, but this was ambiguous. However, he would venture to stretch his powers and would agree to liquidation, which he knew would be so much preferable. He then mentioned that he had asked Mr. Raalte what he had done with £10,000 Treasury Bonds, and he was told that he had dealt with them. He afterwards acknowledged, however, that he had given his brother-in-law £6,000; to his brother's firm, Raalte and Behrend, £2,000; and he had about £2,000-worth in his possession. In answer also to his question when he suspended, he said the 30th; but he had a copy of a telegram which he had forwarded at 11 o'clock on the 29th to Behrends at Alexandria, in which he said, "Can't overcome difficulties; must stop to-morrow; deplore position we placed you in; send us your creditors list, but try to make the best arrangement you can for both estates, so that you may start afresh soon." This was sent the same day on which the securities were given away—the day before the stoppage, and it required no comment on his part. As to Mr. Da Costa, he did not know him, although he had heard him very well spoken of; but he had no instructions to grant his present discharge. Mr. Rawlins said, as to the telegram which Mr. Raalte had sent to Behrend, Brothers, he thought under the circumstances it was only fair to them to do so. After a brief discussion, the resolutions for liquidating the estate by arrangement, appointing the trustee and the committee of inspection, were unanimously agreed to, Mr. James Barlow, of Manchester, being added to the committee. The proceedings then terminated with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

Digitized by Google

R. H. Armit.—The first meeting of creditors under the bankruptcy of Mr. R. H. Armit, of 33 Abchurch-lane, E.C., and 93 Regent-street, W., commission agent and financial agent, took place at Basinghall-street, on the 2nd instant. Proofs for about £15,000 were put in, and Mr. Harry Brett (Harry Brett, Milford, Pattison, and Co.), of 150 Leadenhall-street, E.C., was appointed trustee with a committee of inspection. No statement of affairs was filed, but we gather that the liabilities are estimated at from £15,000 to £18,000, against assets of the nominal value of £103,000, which latter are of course "subject to realisation." Mr. W. J. Foster, of 21 Birchin-lane, E.C., is the solicitor under the proceedings.

G. F. Bates (Redcar).—At the meeting of creditors of G. F. Bates, stationer, of Redcar, a report was submitted by Messrs. W. C. Harvey and F. Lucas. The statement of affairs presented showed total liabilities £5,312 14s., with estimated assets £1,174. The debtor offered a composition of 4s. in the pound, but it was resolved that in the absence of security the consideration of the offer be postponed.

FAILURES.

England.—Messrs. Albert Cohn and Co., woollen merchants, of Old Change and Leeds, have suspended payment "in consequence of heavy losses and depression in their trade." The liabilities, amounting to £120,000, are covered to the extent of £50,000; while the assets, consisting of stock-book debts, &c., are estimated to be worth about £40,000. The books have been placed in the hands of Messrs. J. F. Lovering and Co., the accountants, and Messrs. Rooks, Kenrick and Co., are the solicitors in the matter.—Consequent on the absence of remittances, Messrs. Henry Druitt and Co., South American and West India merchants, of Fenchurch-street, have stopped payment. Their liabilities amount to £70,000 or £80,000, but a favourable liquidation is expected.

America.—American advices announce the suspension of Mr. Washington Root, president of the Agricultural National Bank at Pittsfield, Massachusetts, with liabilities estimated at £20,000. Mr. Wm. Dilworth, jun., a well known lumber merchant, of Pittsburgh, Pa., had suspended; he claims his assets will exceed his liabilities by £30,000. Messrs. S. D. Richardson and Co., dry goods merchants, Syracuse, N.Y., had failed; liabilities, £6000. Messrs. J. G. Shaw and Co., manufacturers of blank books, New York, have failed. Messrs. Hayes and Brittain, wool pullers, Portland, Me., have stopped. Messrs. Hubbard Bros., lumber dealers, Middletown, Conn., had called their creditors together. Messrs. E. Brierly and Son, shawl manufacturers, Milton Mills, N.H., had failed. Messrs. Parker, Burgess and Co., commission house, of Boston, suspended; as also, Messrs. Abbott, Lorng, and Co., in the iron trade. The failure is announced of Mr. R. Stinde, boot and shoe merchant, St. Louis, with liabilities of £36,000.—Messrs. Day, Kealhofer and Co., a grocery firm, Memphis, had suspended; liabilities, £5,000.—Several small dealers on the Board of Trade, Chicago, had failed.—The State Street Savings Bank, Chicago, had stopped, while a large firm was in difficulties.

At Lambeth Police Court, on Friday, Walter Thomas Hunt, described as "an accountant," was again brought before Mr. Chance, on remand, charged with maliciously causing the death of Mary Ann Hudson by administering to her a draught of strychnine, and also attempting the death of Thomas and Hannah Taylor, at Lower Norwood. The prisoner was committed to take his trial at the Central Criminal Court for manslaughter.

The Supreme Court of Judicature.—The statute to amend and extend the Supreme Court of Judicature Act, 1873, has just been printed. It is a very long one of 49 sheets, and is to be construed with the other one, and with the rules and orders to be observed, will be food for consideration during the present long vacation. The new law, consisting of the two Acts, will come into operation on the 1st of November. Notwithstanding the provisions in the principal statute abolishing the appellate jurisdiction of the House of Lords, the right is to be reserved until the 1st of November, 1876. The present number of Judges is not to be reduced. The constitution of Her Majesty's Court of Appeal is declared, and there will be divisions of the Courts—Queen's Bench, Common Pleas, and Exchequer. All the officers of those courts are continued, and on appeals are to attend the High Court of Justice. The Probate Court and the Court of Admiralty will act in divisions, and the present Judge of the latter is to give up his ecclesiastical appointments if he accepts the appointment of one of the Judges of the High Court before the commencement of the Act. The London Court of Bankruptcy is not transferred to the High Court. A plaintiff has option as to which division he will sue in. Three Judges are to constitute the Court of Appeal. Before and after the commencement of the Act rules may be made for the sittings of the Courts, &c. and her Majesty is empowered by Order in Council to make regulations as to the circuits of the Judges. There are other provisions to carry out the new law, and the last section, number 35, provides that the present Chamber Clerks may be re-appointed on a vacancy at the same salary. The statute only extends to seven sheets, and the remaining 42 comprise the orders and forms. There are 63 rules and numerous forms set out to be used. There is to be no local venue, and causes may be tried before a Judge or before a Judge and assessors, or jury, or official referee. Although terms are abolished, the "long vacation" is preserved, and is to commence as usual on the 10th of August and terminate on the 24th of October. There is to be a vacation of a week at Easter, Whitsuntide, and Christmas. Two of the judges, however, are to sit in the vacation for the hearing in London and Middlesex of such applications as may require to be immediately or promptly heard, and they may sit either together or separately as a Divisional Court. The vacation Judges of the High Court may dispose of all actions, matters, and other business of an urgent nature during any interval between the sittings of any division of the High Court to which such business may be assigned, although such interval may not be called or known as a vacation. The two statutes, with the various rules, and others to be added, will require much attention. The Courts now known as Queen's Bench, Common Pleas, and Exchequer, with the Probate and Admiralty Courts, will still exist in their several divisions, and "Her Majesty's Court of Appeal" is now substituted for the Court of Chancery. The ordinary Judges of the Courts of Appeal are to be styled "Justices of Appeal." The two statutes on the Supreme Court of Judicature will take effect, as stated, on the 1st of November.

Digitized by Google

APPOINTMENTS.

[The Editor will be glad to receive early notice of appointment of Liquidators and Auditors for insertion in this column.]

Messrs. Haydon and Vivian, of 29 New City Chambers, 121 Bishopsgate-street Within, Accountants, have been appointed Auditors of the Inhabited House Duty Association.

Messrs. Nairne and Sons, of 40 Brown-street, Manchester, have been appointed auditors to the St. Helens and Ashton-under-Lyne Corporations.

WINDING-UP.—A petition to wind-up the Vale of Neath Colliery Company, Limited, has been presented to the Court of Chancery.—A petition has been presented in the Court of Chancery for the winding-up of the Whitefield Colliery Company, Limited.—A petition to wind up the Dorset Fire Brick and Blue Clay Company, Limited, has been presented to the Court of Chancery.

ACCOUNTANTS.—Messrs. Dawes and Ashton, referring to the discussion on accountants and their work, suggest that in order to sustain in a healthy condition a profession which is most honourable if rightly exercised, and to prevent unscrupulous aspirants to questionable fame causing a slur to be cast upon a reputable calling, it is desirable an effort should be made to place the profession of an accountant on as responsible a basis as either the legal or medical profession, and to render it illegal for any one openly to announce himself and practice as an accountant in the City, or elsewhere, unless he possesses a certificate, to be issued under conditions to be determined upon by a legally constituted society.—City Press.

At the Birkenhead County Court, on the 27th ult., an application in bankruptcy was made on behalf of John Lloyd, provision dealer, of Union-street, Tranmere, to confirm a resolution of the creditors accepting a composition of 5s. in the pound. As the second meeting of creditors was made up of three persons only, and did not represent the larger moiety of the liabilities, the registrar felt some difficulty about registering it, although a statutory majority had previously consented to such an arrangement. His Honour said he would order a registration, for the sake of making the practice uniform with what he understood to prevail in Liverpool. He could not but feel that this was a case of omissus in the act or rules, and he felt grave doubts whether he was not bound strictly by the words of the Act. Despite his doubts as to the legal view, however, he thought no injustice could be done by the confirmation of the resolution.

ACCOMMODATION BILLS.—On Tuesday morning, the Council of the Bradford Chamber of Commerce had under consideration a suggestion made by the president, Mr. Jacob Behrens, to the effect that the law should provide that the issue of a bill of exchange should be a misdemeanour, if such bill contained a false or deceptive reference to corresponding value having passed between the parties; that the signing of a promissory note should be a misdemeanour, if it contained false or deceptive reference to corresponding value having been received by the signer of such note from, or on account of, the person in whose favour it was drawn; and that the negotiation of any such bill of exchange, if the value corresponding to the reference on the face of the document has not been received by the signer, should be a misdemeanour. Mr. Garnett, vice-president, thought the only way to deal with the matter would be for the law to require every man who signed a promissory note or a bill of exchange for accommodation to be able to prove that at the time he signed it he had sufficient assets with which to meet it. He did not think that in all cases the law could hold that accommodation bills ought not to be given. No decision was arrived at.

R E S T A U R A N T,

13 OXFORD STREET,

Near the corner of Tottenham-court-road.

Known as the BODEGA, now under the new management of Mr. L. BOECKER, late of 13 Idol-lane, City.

Luncheons from the joints, hot or cold, including vegetables and bread, 1s. 3d

Dinners from 12 till 4 o'clock, from the joint, with soup or fish, vegetables, cheese and bread, 2s.

Dinners from 6 till 9 o'clock, from 2s. 6d. to 10s. 6d.

Private Dining Rooms for large and small parties on the Second Floor.

MONEY to LEND to BORROWERS residing in town or Country, from £50 upwards, repayable in one sum, from one to five years, at five per cent. interest on personal security; also on mortgage of freehold or leasehold property from 3 per cent., for a term of years to be agreed upon. No commission.
Apply to R. F. PRESTON, Esq., 120 Southampton-row, London, W.C.

"The source of many a writer's woe has been discovered."

PENS! PENS!! PENS!!

"They come as a boon and a blessing to men, The Pickwick, the Owl, and the Waverley Pen."
"The misery of a bad Pen is now a voluntary infliction."

Another blessing to men! The Hindoo Pen. 1,200 Newspapers recommend them. See Graphic, 17th May, 1873.

Sold by every respectable Stationer. Post 1s. 1d.

Patentees, MACNIVEN & CAMERON, 23 to 33 Blair-street, Edinburgh.

THE BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY'S ANNUAL RECEIPTS EXCEED THREE MILLIONS.

HOW TO PURCHASE A HOUSE FOR TWO GUINEAS PER MONTH. With immediate Possession and no Rent to pay.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO PURCHASE A PLOT OF LAND FOR FIVE SHILLINGS PER MONTH.

With Immediate Possession, either for Building or Gardening purposes.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK FREEHOLD LAND SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO INVEST YOUR MONEY WITH SAFETY AT £4 PER CENT. INTEREST.

Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BANK. All sums under £50 repayable upon demand. Current Accounts opened similar to ordinary Bankers. Cheque-books supplied. English and Foreign Stocks and Shares purchased and sold, and Advances made thereon.
Office Hours from 10 till 4; on Mondays from 10 till 9, and on Saturdays from 10 till 12 o'clock.

A Pamphlet containing full particulars may be obtained post-free on application.

FRANCIS RAVENSCROFT, Manager.

THE METROPOLITAN AND PROVINCIAL LAND, ESTATE, HOUSE, LICENSED VICTUALLERS' & GENERAL BUSINESS TRANSFER "SYNDICATE" AGENCY,

Registered according to Act of Parliament, Head Offices, No. 3 Craven-street, Charing Cross, W.C. The organisation and working system of the "Syndicate" are;—1st.—The Sale, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Ground of Rents, Freehold and Leasehold Land, Farms, Estates, Houses, Hotels, Public Houses, Inns, Beer Houses, Restaurants, Coffee Houses, Tobacconists, Drapers, and every other description of Business, Furniture, Objects of Art, or Goods of any description by Auction or Private Contract. 2nd.—The letting, or disposing of, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Land, Farms, Estates, Furnished, or Unfurnished Houses Chambers, or Offices under private contract. 3rd.—The Collection of Rents and the recovery of outstanding accounts. 4th.—The Surveys and Valuations of Land, Farms, Estates, and Houses; also Valuations of Furniture, Jewellery, and other Effects, for probate and other purposes. 5th.—The transaction of all other business usually transacted by Auctioneers, Surveyors, Land, House, Estate and Insurance Agents. 6th.—The negociations of partnerships, and from unlimited connection with capitalists, monetary advances on real and personal securities, as well as merchandize, and every other description of property intended for absolute sale, or otherwise. 7th. Generally the carrying out of all things incidental or conducive to the above objects, and every of them; also the laying out of estates and surveys for delapidations, The "Syndicate" from their extended connection with the Trades' Protection Societies and other sources, undertake expeditiously for Clients and others to ascertain reliably the status of parties, and make inquiries of a private and confidential character Liberal terms to Accountants in town or country introducing business.

Digitized by Google

OLD FALCON HOTEL, GRAVESEND
Proprietor – W. SKILLETER.

Late Chef de Cuisine to His Grace the Duke of Argyll.

Visitors to Gravesend will find every accommodation at the Old Falcon Hotel, East Street. Public and Private Rooms facing the River, directly opposite Tilbury Fort, and with a capital view of the Thames Shipping.

FISH DINNERS AND WHITEBAIT.

BED AND BREAKFAST FOR GENTLEMEN £1 1s. PER WEEK.

And an equally low Tariff for Dejeuners, Dinners, &c.
Five Minutes' walk from North Kent Railway, and Two Minutes from the Piers, and Tilbury and Southend Railway.

J. DEFRIES' AND SONS'
CHANDELIERS, IN CRYSTAL, BRONZE, AND ORMOLU.
TABLE GLASS AND CHINA.
Dinner Services, Gilt Pieces, £4 10s.
KEROSENE and MODERATOR LAMPS for INDIA.
Works:—London and Birmingham.

WEDDING AND BIRTHDAY PRESENTS.
NEW DECORATIONS for the DINING TABLE.
FOUNTAINS.
STORER'S Patent Perpetual Perfumed CRYSTAL TABLE FOUNTAIN, for Dining, Hall and Drawing Rooms, in Crystal and Gilt, £2 17s. 6d. to 100 guineas.

FETES AND REJOICINGS.
BALLROOMS and GARDENS, &c., DECORATED and ILLUMINATED for Evening Parties. Tents, Temporary Rooms, and Banqueting Halls erected.
CRYSTAL and BRONZED CHANDELIERS.
TABLE GLASS and CHINA LENT ON HIRE.
J. DEFRIES and SONS, 147, HOUNDSDITCH.
Five minutes' walk from the Bank of England.

RUPTURES—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.
WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS s allowed by upwards of 500 Medical Men to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided, a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the manufacturer, Mr. JOHN WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London. Price of a single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., 31s. 6d, Postage Free. Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. An Umbilical Truss, 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. P.O.O. to be made payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

TRADE MARK.

NEW PATENT ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS, &c. for Varicose Veins, and all cases of Weakness and Swelling of the Legs, Sprains, &c. They are porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and are drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price from 4s. 6d., 7s, 6d., 10s, to 16s. each. Postage free.

CHEST EXPANDING BRACES, for both sexes. For gentlemen they are a substitute for the ordinary braces. For children they are invaluable; they prevent stooping and preserve the symmetry of the chest. Prices for children, 5s. 6d. and 7s. 6d. Adults, 10s. 6d., 15s. 6d., and 21s. each. Postage free.—JOHN WHITE, Manufacturer, 228 Piccadilly, London.

EPPS'S COCOA.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—See article in the Civil Service Gazette.

STAR LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY,
48 MOORGATE STREET, LONDON, E.C

DIRECTORS.

CHAIRMAN—
Mr. Alderman McArthur, M.P.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—
William Mewburn, Esq.

H. J. Atkinson, Esq.
Thomas Ball, Esq.
Walter Griffith, Esq.
George M. Kiell, Esq.
George Lidgett, Esq.
Sir Francis Lycett.
William Merry, Esq.
John Napier, Esq.
Jonathan S. Pidgeon, Esq.
John Vanner, Esq.
S. D. Waddy, Esq., Q.C., M.P.

Assurance and Annuity Fund	1,216,115	13	5
Annual Income (1874)	223,613	2	0
Bonuses Apportioned	581,774	6	2
Claims Paid	1,140,151	1	8

Copies of the Report, Balance Sheet and Prospectus can be obtained on application to the Head Office.

W. W. BAYNES, Secretary.

THE ONLY AND SPECIAL
"MEDAL FOR PROGRESS,"
Was awarded for "Feuerfeste Eisone Schranke und Kunstchlosser Fortschritts," to

HOBBS, HART, & CO.,
AT THE VIENNA UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION.
This Medal is only given to Exhibitors whose New Inventions testify marked Progress.

"FIRE-PROOF SAFES; AND LOCKS AND ENDLESS CHANGE LOCKS AND KEYS,"

Invented especially for Safes and Strong-Room Doors, to frustrate the use of False Keys.

N.B.—The continued security and secrecy of a Lock, fixed on a Safe or Strong-Room Door, depends on the fact that there are no false duplicate keys of that Lock in existence. The object of a Lock is twofold—security against burglars, and secrecy against prying curiosity. A new change in this Lock may at any time be obtained in five minutes by simply filing away the thickness of a hair from one or more of the steps of the Key. The Lock, by a simple movement of the Regulator, is thus made to adapt itself to the NEW KEY, after which no other Key will open the Lock.

The Lock and Key may thus be easily altered into what would be virtually a NEW LOCK and KEY, as often as may be desired, without the aid of Lockmaker or of any second person, thus frustrating the use of fraudulent copies of the original Key (see the Safe Robbery in Dublin of £630, vide "Times," 12th September, 1875). This Lock affords effectual protection from duplicate or "Master" Keys secretly made in manufactories; very extensive robberies (in one case 13 Safes in one vault) having been effected by this means.

HOBBS, HART & CO.,
LOCK, SAFE, AND STRONG-ROOM DOOR MANUFACTURERS
76 Cheapside, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

SUBSCRIPTIONS ARE INVITED FOR 5,000 SHARES IN

THE BUFFALO HIDE HORSESHOE COMPANY, LIMITED.

Registered under the Companies' Acts, 1862 and 1867.

CAPITAL £60,000, IN 12,000 £5 SHARES FULLY PAID UP.

£1 on Application, the remainder on Allotment.

DIRECTORS.

Joseph James Smith, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, Manchester.
William Birch Cooper, Esq., Durham Massey, Cheshire.
George Hill, Esq., Coal Merchant, Navigation Wharf, Manchester.
James Haslam, Esq., Veterinary Surgeon, Manchester.
Albert Septimus Cox, Esq., Veterinary Surgeon, Altrincham, Cheshire.

BANKERS.

The Manchester and Liverpool District Bank, King-street, Manchester, and its Branches.

SOLICITORS.

Messrs. Hampson and Walmsley, 60 King-street, Manchester.

MANAGING DIRECTOR.

James Haslam, Esq., M.R.C.V.S.

SECRETARY.

(Pro. tem.) Mr. Thomas Winder.

OFFICES.

(Pro tem) 60, King Street, Manchester.

PROSPECTUS.

The great want of a Shoe for Horses and other draught animals (so as to obtain a firm and solid foothold upon Asphalte and other smooth or slippery pavements, and to obviate roughing or sharpening in frosty weather; to reduce the jar or concussion the limbs are subjected to by the hoof striking the ground; to allow the hoof to expand and develop; to reduce the labour of the animals by diminishing the weight of the present unnatural and unwieldy iron shoe, and to add to their comfort), has long been felt by the community at large, but more especially by those who employ large numbers of horses, and also by "The Societies for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals."

Such a Shoe has been Invented and Patented by Mr. Yates, and is made from buffalo or other hides, rendered impervious to moisture under Patented Process. They are as durable as the iron shoe, one-third the weight, cheaper, and are neat and easily applied, and their application adds greatly to the comfort of the animal.

They are made from a material as nearly approaching the nature of the hoof as possible, and therefore are the most natural substance from which to form a shoe. They will maintain the integrity of the hoof in its natural form, and allow its freedom and development. They also assist in retaining a firm and solid foothold, and aid in the impulsive efforts required in the performance of work and movements, and will thus be invaluable in preserving the health of the animal shod with them.

This Company has been formed for purchasing and working the patent rights, titles, and interests for Great Britain, Ireland, and the Channel Islands, of this Shoe, and for manufacturing and vending the same.

It is the intention of this Company to fit up works sufficient to manufacture these shoes, and to establish offices or stores in our principal cities for the sale of the same, where they will be able to supply sets much cheaper than iron shoes, and which can be readily applied by any smith or farrier.

Forms of application for shares may be obtained by applying to the Bankers of the Company, or to the Secretary.

H. D. RAWLINGS,

PURVEYOR OF MINERAL WATERS TO

H. R. H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.
H. R. H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH.
H. R. H. THE PRINCE CHRISTIAN.
THE LATE EMPEROR NAPOLEON III.

AND THE PRINCIPAL COURTS OF EUROPE.

Gold Medallist of the Societe Nationale Agricole Manufacturiere et Commerciale de Paris.

SODA, BRIGHTON, SELTZER and all other Mineral Waters for HOME CONSUMPTION and EXPORTATION.
PRICE LISTS on Application, at the Manufactory, Nassau-street, W.

ALFRED W. GEE,

ADVERTISING AGENT,

62, GRACECHURCH STREET,

LONDON, E.C.

London Gazette Notices, and Advertisements and Announcements of all kinds for English, Colonial, and Foreign Newspapers promptly inserted.

N.B.—In the case of an ordinary Advertisement ordered for insertion in a number of Newspapers, only one MS. copy need be forwarded. Same rates charged as at the Publishing Offices.

Printed and Published for the Proprietor by Williams & Strahan, 7 Lawrence Lane, Cheapside. September 4, 1875.

Digitized by Google

The Accountant.

A MEDIUM OF COMMUNICATION BETWEEN ACCOUNTANTS IN ALL PARTS OF THE UNITED KINGDOM

VOL. I.—NEW SERIES.—No. 40.] SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 11, 1875. [PRICE 6D.

Established 1843.
PERIODICAL SALE OF REVERSIONS, ANNUITIES, LIFE POLICIES, SHARES, &c.

MESSRS. MARSH, MILNER, AND Co., are preparing their printed particulars for the forthcoming Monthly AUCTION, which is held the FIRST THURSDAY in every month. To insure due publicity, particulars of Properties intended to be included in the next sale should be forwarded, without delay, to the City Land and Reversion Offices, 54 Cannon Street, London.

LAND, Domains, Mountain Ranges, Woods, Forests, and Important Residential Estates. Messrs. MARSH, MILNER, and Co., Land Valuers and Timber Surveyors, have a number of WEALTHY BUYERS DESIROUS of INVESTING in AGRICULTURAL, SPORTING, and RESIDENTIAL ESTATES. OWNERS of marketable properties wishing to effect advantageous sales are therefore invited to forward plans and particulars, which, when received, will be judiciously placed before intending purchasers, publicity being carefully avoided, and written terms settled before any cost or liability is incurred. Address Messrs. Marsh, Milner, and Co., Land and Timber Surveyors, 54 Cannon-street, London, E.C.

MESSRS. MARSH, MILNER, AND Co.'s REGISTER of LANDED ESTATES, Town and Country Residences, and property of every description, is published Monthly, and may be obtained at the Auction, Land, and Estate Agency Offices, 54 Cannon-street, E.C., or will be forwarded by post on application.

MORTGAGES promptly NEGOTIATED upon Landed Estates, City Properties, and upon sound securities of all kinds. Messrs. MARSH, MILNER and Co., have at the present time access to large sums of Money ready to be immediately advanced upon approved securities. Apply at the City Land and Reversion Offices (Established 1843), 54 Cannon-street.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

39 BROAD-STREET, BRISTOL,
JUNE 24TH, 1875.

The PARTNERSHIP hitherto existing under the Style or Firm HANCOCK, TRIGGS, & CO., having been DISSOLVED by mutual consent, I beg to give notice that I purpose henceforth to CARRY ON BUSINESS as a PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT at the above address.

PHILIP TRIGGS.

MESSRS. BARRETT AND PATEY,
PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS,
90 LONDON WALL, E.C.

HAVING removed from No. 8 Finsbury Circus, to more commodious offices at the above address, will be pleased to hear from Accountants resident in the provincial and manufacturing towns who require agents in London.

LOVEWELL BLAKE, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT, RECEIVER, AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY.
SECRETARY TO THE GREAT YARMOUTH TRADERS' ASSOCIATION.
OFFICES: HALL QUAY CHAMBERS, GREAT YARMOUTH.

J. F. TITCHMARSH, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT AND AUDITOR.
17 PRINCESS STREET, IPSWICH.

RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY AND LIQUIDATION.

TO ACCOUNTANTS.—WANTED, as ACTIVE PARTNER, a gentleman of experience and some connection, to join an established accountant, with excellent offices in a central position in the City. A capital of £250 to £500 required, which will be secured. A fair income, with good prospects. Letters (strictly confidential) to "Fides," care of Mr. Daniel, 77 Gracechurch-street, City.

TWENTY THOUSAND POUNDS to be lent at 3½ per cent., for a term of twenty years, on freehold land of ample security. Messrs. Harvey and Davids, 126 Bishopsgate-street, Cornhill.

WANTED a Gentleman with from £2000 to £4000 to take a half share and the financial management of a merchant's and consignee's business. The present proprietor is sole consignee for several large firms, both in France and England. Every satisfaction will be given to any gentleman or his accountant.—John Bath and Co., 40a King William-street, London Bridge, E.C.

WILLIAMS & STRAHAN,
Legal, Accountancy, & General Printers,
MANUFACTURING STATIONERS, &c.
7 LAWRENCE LANE, CHEAPSIDE, LONDON.

Bankruptcy Forms, Statements of Affairs, Dividend Notices, Balance Sheets, &c., printed with despatch.

STEAM PRINTING WORKS, LAMBETH S.E.

TRANSLATIONS.
MR. ALFRED W. GEE,
BRITISH AND FOREIGN ADVERTISING AGENT,
62 GRACECHURCH STREET, LONDON, E.C.,

Begs to announce that in compliance with a wish expressed by some of the subscribers to the Accountant, he has made arrangements for the translation of legal and commercial documents, correspondence, &c., into the Principal European Languages. Members of the Profession are therefore respectfully informed that arrangements can be made for efficient and speedy translations into, or from, the French, German, Italian, Spanish, and Dutch Languages on Moderate Terms.

Digitized by Google

The Accountant.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

The ACCOUNTANT is printed and published in time for Friday evening's mail; price 6d. per copy, or 28s. per annum (including postage), the reduced terms for payment in advance being: annual subscription 24s. (post free); half-yearly ditto, 13s. (post free). Cheques and Post-office orders to be made payable to Mr. Alfred W. Gee, 62 Gracechurch-street, E.C., to whom applications for advertisement space, and letters relating to the general business of the paper, should also be addressed. Literary communications should be directed to the Editor of the ACCOUNTANT at the same address, and in order to ensure insertion in the current number, correspondents are respectfully requested to forward their copy as early in the week as possible.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The Proprietor desires to call the attention of Advertisers to the special advantages offered by the paper as an Advertising medium. Starting with a good guaranteed circulation, and with the entire concurrence and hearty support of the leading members of the profession, the ACCOUNTANT has achieved a large measure of success in a wide field hitherto unoccupied by any professional organ. The ACCOUNTANT thus secures to Advertisers an excellent circulation of an exclusive character; and is particularly valuable as a medium for the announcements of members of the profession, as to Estates and Declaration of Dividends, and the appointment of Trustees and Receivers; for Publishers, Printers, Law Stationers, Auctioneers, and Estate Agents; for the Advertisements of Insurance and Public Companies; and for Notices as to Investments, Vacant Partnerships, &c. Advertisements intended for insertion in the current number, should reach the office on Thursday; late announcements can, however, be received up to 12 o'clock (noon) on Friday.

N.B.—Copies may be obtained at Messrs. W. H. Smith and Sons, Strand, at their numerous Railway Bookstalls, and at the Shops of the leading City and West-End Newsvendors.

TO SUBSCRIBERS

In consequence of numerous applications from subscribers, the proprietor has made arrangements for the supply of CASES for holding and preserving the Accountant, which may be obtained at the office on the following terms:—In green cloth (well got up), with elastics, and "The Accountant" in gold letters on front, 3s. each; same in leather, 4s. 6d. each. Subscribers' names in gold lettering, 1s. extra. Post Office Orders payable to ALFRED W. GEE, 62 Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

The Accountant.

SEPTEMBER 11, 1875.

The Bristol case, and the unjustifiable vituperation of the judge, have been sufficiently disposed of by the temperate reply of the abused trustee, and by the various comments which have been provoked; but we observe that there is a marked disposition on the part of many to make a strong effort to oust accountants altogether from a very large portion of their legitimate professional sphere. Among others, Mr. P. M. Leonard, the County Court Judge for Hampshire, has seen fit to follow the precedent of his superior, and to declare that he will never appoint an accountant to be a receiver. Doubtless, Mr. Leonard's comparatively brief experience of administering law, equity, bankruptcy, admiralty, and the other multifarious occupations of a county court judge, has forced upon his mind a conviction of the necessity of such a resolution, but it is strongly to be wished that he had stated, more fully than he appears to have done, the reasons by which he was actuated. He may have thought that the assets to be collected were so small as not to repay the expense of collection; and that would have been ample justification for not appointing a receiver at all. Or he may have thought that an accountant would naturally require higher remuneration than the estate could afford. That would have been a very good reason for refusing to confirm the choice of the receiver unless he chose to do the work at a nominal percentage, or to decline to nominate an accountant in this particular instance; but scarcely justifies the sweeping condemnation which the judge pronounced. Nor can we consider that this showed any very great courtesy to the creditors, whose money was to pay the receiver's charges, and on whom any deficiency would ultimately have to fall. In connection with Mr. Leonard's outburst at Winchester, we may refer to the case at Warrington, which we reported last week, in which an application was made to disallow a sum of £200, the amount voted to Mr. Crowther, trustee of the estate. Here the judge, in deciding against the application, took occasion to denounce the "irresponsible people calling themselves accountants," and, as usual, expressed a hope for a change in the law, which was somehow to do away with all abuses. It appears, however, by a short letter from the trustee in question, that this amount of £200 included nearly £170 for money actually paid out of pocket, leaving the remuneration of the trustee at a little under £30. The arguments were somewhat complicated by a confusion between the firm to which the trustee belonged and the trustee himself, but the wording of the Act, as we pointed out last week, is clear. If an accountant is appointed trustee, he is at the mercy of the creditors as regards his remuneration. If he himself does professional work, it will be, of course, or, rather, ought to be taken into account when the creditors discuss the amount to be allowed him. If he employs another accountant, he is personally liable for the bill, and must submit it to the proper taxing officer. It would probably be more satisfactory to all parties if an accountant, whether a trustee or not, had always to make out a bill, and have it taxed in the regular way. The tender mercies of the taxing-master would certainly be less cruel than the caprice of creditors, not made more generous by the loss of their money.

With reference to the employment of accountants in bankruptcy cases, it must be obvious that in all important cases their assistance is absolutely essential. A few weeks ago, a paragraph went the round of the papers to the effect that the leading joint-stock banks had determined to take upon themselves the management of any bankruptcy proceedings in which they were involved, under the guidance of their own accountant and their own solicitors. In the case of the bankruptcy of Messrs. Collie, an accountant is at once nominated as trustee; and the same course is adopted in all proceedings where the amount to be received is considerable. It is, no doubt, perfectly true that in many small cases, and in the majority of cases where the assets bear a very small proportion to the liabilities, the expenses of investigation swallow up the scanty amount available for dividend. We can well understand that in such cases creditors may prefer to put up with a total loss, rather than incur the responsibility of engaging competent advisers. But this is no reason for indulging in sweeping condemnations of professional trustees in general. Doubtless, if liquidations could be conducted entirely without professional advice, the expenses would be much diminished, but the amount of dividend would be diminished in equal or even greater proportion. What really does the charge against the accountants amount to? That they undertake business for which they receive either their strictly fixed charges, or an arbitrary rate of remuneration. We venture to say that if a fair estimate were made, the accountant's charges would be less than the solicitor's; and that it would be found that those estates were, upon the whole, most thoroughly and economically managed in which an accountant was trustee. In the mean time, we venture to remind those whose business it is to administer the law, that it is their duty to do so without prejudice, and not to draw hasty and sweeping generalisations from insufficient premises.

As will be seen by various paragraphs, which we quote for the amusement and edification of our readers, the example set by Justice Quain has been vigorously followed up by authorities of more or less weight The various legal papers and other journals have repeated the cry in various intonations, from the "heedless rhetoric" of the Daily Telegraph to the small paragraphs of less-known country newspapers, who all speak as if an accountant were an entirely new animal, of exactly six years' standing, so far as regards the duration of his existence. Perhaps the most amusing part about the matter, is the way in which the herd of detractors fasten upon the name, and insist that an accountant should simply attend to the keeping of accounts, and act, in fact, as a mere book-keeper. The Daily Telegraph, indeed, together with much astonishing information about the names by which accountants chose to be styled, which was more admirable on the ground of startling novelty than of rigid accuracy, informed the world that the term "accountant and auditor" exactly conveyed the right description, and liberally added that there could be no objection to any member of the profession drawing up balance-sheets and examining accounts, but that he must not go beyond the duties implied in his name. And the result is this, that, with doubtless the very strictest logic, accountants are to be almost the only body of men who are to be considered as eligible to practise only the very limited range of business, which acute philologers may discover to be indicated in their title.

It is always an amusing and not wholly unprofitable study to trace the various steps by which terms, originally perfectly correct, have gradually become "terms of art," or, as we used to be taught by the logicians to style them, "words of the second intention." The word "bankrupt," for instance, is universally used by persons who are ignorant of the peculiar meaning of the breaking of the bench, and have strange confusion in their minds as to the meaning of the first syllable. Then, consider how many words there are, which, if literally translated, give a meaning totally distinct from what they bear in common parlance. An accident happens, and the bystanders run for the doctor, a word which, without any qualification, is invariably applied to members of the medical profession, and is often borne by men who have never taught any body in their life, and is strictly synonymous with professor. The doctor, on arriving, is probably a surgeon,—a word literally denoting one who works with his hands, but who would never be identified if termed a "manual labourer;" whilst the worthy workman who has summoned him would be surprised to learn that he is more strictly speaking a "surgeon" than the other. But when we come to consider the old rules, by which a doctor was a person who had proved himself competent to give instruction to others in his art, and had won his degree not simply by an honorary exercise and a certain expenditure of hard cash, we at once recognise the propriety of the title. So with the surgeon. As distinguished from the physician, whose duty it was solely to prescribe, the man who used his hands to alleviate suffering by direct operation, rightly bore that title; though now the distinctions are broken down, and the surgeon will prescribe medicines in everyday practice, just the same as his neighbour, the physician, may have frequent occasion to set a limb or reduce a fracture.

Digitized by Google

And so we ask that too much may not be written on the literal meaning of the word "accountant," and that persons bearing that title may not be summarily disposed of by being told that their very name is a bar, on all principles of logic, to their being any thing more than mere book-keepers. But, even if we admit that nothing can be done by an accountant which is not connected with accounts, we must point out that this definition is sufficiently wide to cover almost every thing, including trusteeships and receiverships. The very first duty of every trustee is to prepare the accounts, or to see that the bankrupt does so; and if the letter is to be pressed against us, then, on the principle advocated by the Daily Telegraph, the field of accounts must not be trespassed upon by unauthorised persons, and an accountant must be employed in every case and paid his professional charges, instead of being employed in certain cases only, and remunerated with such sum as the creditors may see fit to vote for his services. We should have no hesitation in pointing out which alternative accountants as a body would prefer.

Messrs. Haswell (Chester), and William Hawkins Tilston (Wrexham), public accountants, have been engaged in obtaining information from the collieries in North Wales, in connection with the North Wales Coal Trade Arbitration.

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the Accountant.

SIR,—The following statistics will doubtless prove of interest to your readers and the profession generally.

Yours,

X.

Pending the report of the committee appointed by the Lord Chancellor in August, 1874, to consider the working of the Act, it may be interesting to scrutinise the number of bankruptcies, compositions, and liquidations which have been conducted under its provisions. From 1870, the first year of its operation, to 1874, inclusive, there have been no less than 33,525 estates which have passed into liquidation, with total liabilities amounting to £85,224,188. The following table will show how these amounts are distributed over the five years:—

Years.	Failures.	Liabilities.
1870	5002	£17,456,429
1871	6280	14,158,859
1872	6835	14,287,418
1873	7489	19,184,812
1874	7919	20,136,670

The cause in 1870 of the liabilities appearing so large as against the failures, is attributable to the suspension of some large houses during that year; but by deducting three and a-half millions, which was about the amount of these exceptional failures, from the sum of £17,456,429, it will be observed that insolvency has been increasing with a very distinct amount of regularity.

From 1870 to 1874, we find that "bankruptcies" decreased in number from 1350 to 930; while, on the other hand, "compositions" and "liquidations by arrangement" increased respectively from 1,607 and 2,305, to 2,549 and 4,440. The 930 bankruptcies of 1874 had liabilities, £3,788,639; assets, £485,445. The 2,549 compositions had liabilities £5,216,116, the gross amount of composition being £1,484,510; while the liquidations by arrangement had liabilities £11,131,915, against gross assets amounting to £3,461,893. Of 670 bankruptcies closed in 1874, 241 paid no dividends at all, in consequence of the estates either possessing no assets, or of the absorption of what assets there were in costs and expenses. It is a remarkable fact, that there were only ten bankruptcy cases in which the assets were found to exceed £2,000. Although the number of liquidations in 1874 was 4,440, the gross value of the assets was about £600,000 less than in 1873; but the compositions, paid and arranged, show an increase of about £250,000.

The great falling-off in the number of estates wound-up in bankruptcy is, undoubtedly, owing to the facilities offered by the Act for compounding with creditors, or liquidating under arrangement. Creditors, however, appear to be in no better position than they were before 1870, as in but few cases have estates yielded satisfactory dividends, and the instances where the distributions have amounted to 10s. in the pound have been exceptionally and lamentably rare. In compositions, it is a notable circumstance that the rates paid have been 30 per cent. less in 1874 than they were in 1870, and, in 20 cases out of 100, 1s. in the pound only has been accepted by the creditors. It may naturally be asked what is the reason that, under an Act of Parliament framed on the experience of former legislation, the legal benefits to trade and commerce have become curtailed and confined, instead of having been augmented and perfected; and it appears very doubtful whether the deliberations of the 1874 Committee will ever result in the formation of a measure of a sound and practical nature, unless a clean sweep be made of the anomalous mistake perpetrated in 1869.

THREE MONTHS' FAILURES.

A correspondent writes to us on this subject as follows:

To the Editor of the Accountant.

The estimate made by the Times in the article quoted in your last issue, of the losses occasioned by "three months' failures," is manifestly too high. The question as to what the actual loss must be can be readily grasped, when it is considered that if the leading firms who failed within that period had been able to meet their acceptances, the subsidiary firms would have been saved.

According to the estimate made by the Times, £1,250,000 would suffice to pay the creditors of the Aberdare Company, and about £1,600,000 more would be required to make up the deficiency on Messrs. Collie's estate. These sums, about three millions, being supposed to be found, probably the discount houses which have failed would be restored to solvency, and most, if not all, of the subsidiary failures would have been averted. The identical bills on which Messrs. Fothergill and Hankey, and Messrs. Collie and Co. are liable, are many of them repeated in the lists of liabilities of the subsidiary firms whose names are upon them, and are again repeated in the lists of the liabilities of the discount houses.

The subsidiary houses and the discount houses being compelled to sacrifice what capital they would otherwise have possessed in paying dividends on these liabilities, the bill-holders benefit to a certain extent through having their names, and the national loss is not altered, the three millions being in fact paid partly by these houses, and the residue falling on institutions and firms who are solvent.

What the Times means by the "losses of country houses and of firms that have not failed," is not clear; but it is pretty evident that, were the total loss to the solvent part of the community set down at four millions instead of twelve, we should be tolerably near the truth. If the Times writer contemplated losses other than those occasioned by bad debts, no doubt there is room to suppose that in the iron trade and in the Manchester export trade these losses were large; but if bad debts alone were under consideration, we do not see how the total of such can exceed the sum which, together with the assets of the failed houses, would suffice to pay every body in full.

THE HISTORY OF ENGLAND.—A new edition is announced of "Cassell's History of England," in monthly parts. This is the history of which Lord Brougham said, "The soundest principles are laid down in almost every instance. The interests of virtue, of liberty, and of peace—the best interests of mankind—are faithfully and ably maintained throughout." It will be illustrated with upwards of two thousand engravings, and a new portrait of her Majesty the Queen, produced in the best form of art, and printed on imperial plate paper, 2 ft. 6 in. by 1 ft. 10 in., will be issued as a presentation plate with the first monthly part, which will be published on September 27th.

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY.

September 6.

(Before Mr. Registrar PEPYS.)

IN RE A. AND W. COLLIE.—A first meeting was held to-day, under the bankruptcy of Alexander and William Collie, lately trading in co-partnership as merchants in the City of London and at Manchester, under the firm of Alexander Collie and Co. The bankrupts in the first instance filed a petition for the liquidation of their affairs by arrangement or composition, but the proceedings fell to the ground, and on the 19th of August an adjudication was made on the petition of the London and Westminster Bank, creditors to the extent of about £460,000. The criminal proceedings instituted by that bank against the bankrupts have, it is well known, resulted in the absconding of Alexander Collie, and only William Collie now attended. There were a large number of creditors present, many of whom had come from Manchester and Scotland, where the liabilities are very heavy. The balance-sheet produced was as follows:—

	£	s.	d.	£	s.	d.
Liabilities incurred				£90,025	0	0
Liabilities subject to the payment of acceptances				1,274,292	5	5
Creditors fully secured	£164,829	1	5
Value of security	195,876	5	0
Surplus	£31,046	16	5
Creditors partly secured	£42,605	11	9
Value of securities	20,843	2	2
Deficiency				21,762	9	7
Other liabilities				39,418	14	7
Rent, &c.				844	2	7
Liabilities on bills discounted against consignments	£606,286	11	2
Other bills	2,059,916	8	0
	£2,666,202	19	2
Of which is estimated to rank against estate				480,849	19	5
Total debts				£1,890,922	16	4
ASSETS.
Stock-in-trade at Manchester				£38,789	16	1
Book debts about				231,277	7	7
Estimated to produce				22,767	8	4
Cash in hand				9,914	14	6
Bills of exchange and surplus securities estimated to produce				7,363	2	6
Freehold premises, furniture and fittings, at Manchester; estimated balance after payment of balance of purchase-money				75,000	0	0
Property				32,160	0	0
Bills of lading in hand				2,427	11	7
Surplus from securities in the hands of creditors				31,040	16	5
Sundry accounts requiring time for realisation	£109,875	17	7
Venture account, subject to adjustment	140,540	0	0
Other amounts to be recovered	400,000	0	0
				509,875	17	7
Total assets				£729,345	7	3

The total unsecured debts (apart from those for which security is held) are thus returned at £1,890,922, with assets £729,345, but comprising doubtful items in the nature of ventures, &c., in South Carolina and elsewhere to the extent of about £500,000. The separate accounts of Alexander

Digitized by Google

Collie showed unsecured debts £1,641, with assets £45,054; the separate debts of William Collie being returned at £68, and assets £14,936. A number of proofs having been admitted, Mr. John Young, public accountant (of the firm of Turquand and Co.), was appointed trustee, the following being nominated a committee of inspection:—Mr. Henry Smith, of the London and Westminster Bank; Mr. R. Price, of the National Discount Company; and Mr. Edward Clodd, of the London Joint Stock Bank. Messrs. Travers Smith and Co. are the solicitors under the proceedings.

September 7.

(Before Mr. Registrar ROCHE.)

IN RE A. AND W. COLLIE.—This case was again before the Court. It seemed that Mr. John Adamson, of Blairgowrie, and the Union Bank of Scotland, large creditors against the estate, had taken proceedings by way of attachment in the Supreme Court of New York, and attached considerable sums due to the bankrupts from the American Government. An interim injunction was recently granted staying the prosecution of the attachment, and the question now arose whether, having regard to the fact that the creditors had taken the proceedings in question at New York in their capacity of domiciled Scotchmen, this Court had jurisdiction to stay such proceedings. Mr. J. Linklater was counsel for the trustee; Mr. Lucas and Mr. G. W. Lawrance appeared, under protest, on behalf of the Union Bank of Scotland and Mr. Adamson respectively; Mr. Martin, on behalf of Messrs. Harwood and Co., who had also taken proceedings, submitted to the jurisdiction of the Court. His Honour, in giving judgment, stated that the question argued by the learned counsel had to some extent been decided by the chief judge in that of "Ex parte Morton re Roberston," (Accountant, June 12, p. 8,) in which it was held that a Scotch creditor had waived his right to contest the jurisdiction of the Court by arguing the case; and had the learned counsel present submitted to the jurisdiction, he should have heard the present case on its merits, but he had no doubt as to what his decision should be. It was admitted that the jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery to restrain proceedings by British subjects abroad should only be exercised in very strong and extreme cases, and this was one of the weakest imaginable. The whole question was disposed of by a most luminous judgment of Lord Westbury in the case of "Cookney re Anderson," in which that noble and learned lord went fully into the civil law, and the modern European law, and came to the conclusion that he ought to dismiss a similar application. In his opinion, there was no justification whatever for the injunction, more especially as by the comity of nations the American Court would take notice of the appointment of a trustee. They were bound to assume that the Supreme Court of New York would do justice to the trustee in every respect, and if he granted the injunction there would be no power to enforce it. The injunction would, therefore, be dissolved, except so far as the same affected Messrs. Harwood and Co. No order was made as to costs.

BRADFORD COUNTY COURT.

September 3.

(Before MR. W. T. S. DANIEL, Q.C., Judge.)

IN RE TOWNEND, EX PARTE BATEMAN.—This was an application on behalf of Alexander Atkinson, the trustee under the liquidation of the affairs of John Townend, of Cleckheaton, manufacturing chemist, for an order declaring that an alleged distraint made by Thomas Bateman and John Firth, on May 20th last, upon certain goods and chattels of the debtor for the sum of £39 7s. 6d. (being two and a-half years' rent of a messuage demised by the said Thomas Bateman to the said John Townend) was illegal and void against the trustee; and that the said Bateman and Firth might withdraw from the possession of the goods distrained upon, and deliver the same to the trustee. The facts are as follows: The debtor rented a house from Bateman as tenant from year to year, at a yearly rent of £15 15s. per annum, and on May 12th, 1875, there was due from the debtor to Bateman the sum of £39 7s. 6d. for rent and arrears of rent. On May 20th, 1875, Firth, as the bailiff and acting under the authority of Bateman, distrained a portion of the goods of the debtor in the house rented by him, sufficient to raise the rent, and having made a proper seizure and inventory of the goods so distrained, left with the wife of the tenant upon the premises the usual notice of such distress, and that the goods as particularised in the schedule to the notice were impounded and secured in the debtor's dwelling-house, and that if the rent together with the charges of the distress were not paid, or the goods replevied within five days from the date thereof, the same would be appraised and sold according to law. By this proceeding the distress was duly made and completed, and the goods distrained were placed in the custody of the law and taken out of that of the debtor. On May 21st, at 6 p.m., the debtor filed his petition for liquidation, under which the present trustee was on May 24th duly appointed receiver, and afterwards at the first meeting of creditors on June 14th was appointed trustee. On May 21st, after the petition had been filed, the solicitors for the debtor sent to respondents a notice that the petition had been filed that day, and that by filing the petition an act of bankruptcy available for adjudication had been committed by the debtor. On the morning of Monday, May 24th, the respondents sent a man to the debtor's house and placed him in actual possession of the goods distrained. On the same May 24th, Atkinson was appointed receiver by order of this court, and later in the same day sent a man to take possession of all the goods in the debtor's house, who found the respondents' man in possession of the goods distrained. On the same May 24th the solicitors of the debtor and the receiver, made an unconditional tender to the respondents of the sum of £15 15s. for one year's rent due prior to filing the petition for liquidation, and such tender was accompanied by a notice which stated as follows: "It appears that prior to the filing by Mr. Townend of his petition, you made a distress upon Mr. Townend's premises for a sum exceeding a year's rent. You, however, afterwards withdrew such distress, and Mr. Townend thereupon filed his petition. It appears you have now re-entered the premises, under the pretence of continuing the distress; but this we contend you have no power to do, and the amount now offered to you is for one year's rent which has accrued due previous to the filing of the liquidation petition. "The respondent Firth in reply to such notice wrote to the solicitors as follows: "Re John Townend.—In reply to yours of this date, I beg to inform you that you have been misinstructed in the matter of my distraint for rent on behalf of Mr. Thomas Bateman. I made the distraint on Thursday, and on every day since except yesterday (Sunday) has my man visited the premises in order to retain possession, and when the receiver went to the place to-day he found a man in possession on my behalf. These are the real facts of the case, and I think you will see that possession has not been relinquished—Yours, John Firth." And on the same May 24th, the respondent Firth wrote to the receiver Atkinson, as follows: "Re John Townend.—As I understand that you have been appointed receiver in this matter, I beg to inform you that I have a distraint in the house of the petitioner for £39 7s. 6d., being two and a-half years' rent owing to Mr. Bateman of this town. The distraint was made on Thursday forenoon last, and as the five days will expire on Wednesday next, I hereby give you notice that I shall on Wednesday, if not paid out in the mean time, advertise the goods for sale at once, and shall sell on Friday.—Yours, &c., John Firth." On May 25th the debtor and Atkinson as receiver, applied to this court for and obtained an order ex parte, whereby it was ordered that the respondents and their bailiff be and they were thereby restrained from proceeding further with the distress for rent alleged to have been made by them upon certain goods of the said John Townend to recover the sum of £39 7s. 6d. for two and a-half years' rent until June 5th, should show cause to the court why the said order should not be continued until the registration of a special or extraordinary resolution in this matter, with a provision that in default of passing such resolution the order should stand discharged. The first meeting of creditors was held on June 14th. No cause appears to have been shown against the order of May 25th, and at the meeting resolutions were passed for liquidation by arrangement. Atkinson was appointed trustee, and Messrs. Lancaster and Wright were appointed solicitors. These resolutions were afterwards duly registered, and on June 17th the present notice of motion was given. After stating the facts, his Honour said,—Upon the evidence it appears that the distress was duly levied and the levy completed, and the goods effectually taken out of the custody of the debtor and placed in the custody of the law, on May 20, the day before the petition for liquidation was presented. And as there is no dispute about the sum of £39 7s. 6d. being then due for rent and arrears of rent, the respondent Bateman as landlord was entitled under section 34 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, to distrain for the whole amount, and the distress having been completed before the petition was filed, he is not subject to the limitation of one year's rent; that limitation applying expressly only to a distress levied after the bankruptcy. Here the distress was before the bankruptcy, and is therefore good for the whole arrears distrained for; and the only ground stated in the notice of motion, namely, the illegality of the distress by reason of its having been made for two and a half years, fails, and that might suffice to dispose of the present motion. It was argued on behalf of the trustee, that at the time the petition was filed, that is at 6 p.m. on May 21st, the goods were in the order and disposition of the debtor, with the consent of the true owner, and that this consent was not determined until Monday morning, May 24th, when Pinder took actual possession, and that previous to that time the trustee's title had by relation back accrued. In strictness, this form of objection is not open upon the notice of motion. The objection now taken rests upon grounds which are directly opposed to the objection raised by the notice. These grounds involve the admission that the distress was legal and had not been relinquished, and insist that the landlord, having become and continued the true owner of the goods, they being his property, were, with his consent, left in the order and disposition of the debtor, and were so at the time the trustee's title accrued, namely, the filing the petition for liquidation. The case was argued by analogy to that of the holder of an unregistered bill of sale, who had not taken possession, and against whom the doctrine of order and disposition prevails. But this analogy is not in my judgment applicable. The holder of a bill of sale derives title from the voluntary act of the debtor, and though as between those two parties the property in the goods passes by the assignment without actual possession taken, yet when the title of a third party accrues by an act in invitum, as regards the debtor, that title being completed by possession prevails over a title without possession. In the case Swann v. Lord Falmouth, Mr. Justice Littledale, after stating that as between the parties there was in that case an original seizure, and no abandonment, as since the 2 Geo. II. the landlord might keep the goods on the premises, proceeds thus: "The case might have been different had the question arisen between the landlord and an execution creditor or a purchaser for valuable consideration, without notice, for the landlord might be considered to have lost his right as against third persons if he neglected to give reasonable notice of it." This dictum was not required for the decision of the particular case, and was, therefore, extra-judicial; but, attributing to it all the weight that is properly due to the deliberately expressed opinion of that learned judge, I think it does not apply to the present case. The trustee is neither an execution creditor nor a purchaser for valuable consideration. So far as he derives title from the debtor he is a volunteer, and in that character can have no better or greater title than the debtor had, and as against the debtor the distress was complete. The only question is whether the trustee has acquired a title paramount under the order and disposition doctrine. The limits of the doctrine have been varied, and the variations have been influenced by the fluctuation of judicial opinion. In Ex parte Kemp, In re Fastnedge, Law Rep. 9 Chanc. App. 383, Lord Justice Mellish says: "In former times this clause was construed most favourably to creditors, of which there could not be a greater instance than that the words 'goods and chattels' were construed to include choses in action. In later times, the judges have given a stricter construction to the clause, and have endeavoured to confine it to cases properly within the principle," stated by Lord Redesdale in Joy v. Campbell, as follows: "That clause refers to chattels in the possession of the bankrupt in his order and disposition with the consent of the true owner; that means where possession, order, and disposition is in a person who is not the owner to whom they properly belong, and who ought not to have them, but whom the owner permits unconscientiously, as the Act supposes, to have such order and disposition. The object was to prevent deceit by a trader from the visible possession of property to which he was not entitled." Now applying the doctrine according to this principle, it is clear that the goods in question were never in the order and disposition of the debtor with the consent of the landlord as the true owner. From the time when the distress was levied (on May 20), the goods, although they remained in the debtor's house, were lawfully impounded there and remained there in the custody of the law, and if the debtor had attempted to remove them, or in any way deal with them so as to defeat his landlord's right under the distress, he would have been guilty of a pound breach and might have been proceeded against accordingly.

Digitized by Google

BLACKBURN COUNTY COURT.

August 23.

(Before W. A. HULTON, ESQ., Judge.)

RE WHITAKER; EX PARTE TOMLINSON.—This was an application to the court on behalf of the debtor for an order to restrain Tomlinson from further proceeding with a judgment he had obtained against him. It appeared that in June, 1874, Whitaker filed a petition under the arrangement clauses of the Bankruptcy Act for liquidation by arrangement or composition with his creditors. Tomlinson was a creditor for £29 9s. 9d., and he so appeared in all the lists of creditors (including the statement of affairs) filed by the debtor. The meetings of creditors under the petition were duly held, and a composition of 5s. in the pound was agreed upon, payable by two instalments of 2s. 6d. each, at three and six months after the registration of the resolutions, to be secured by the promissory note of the debtor, and of one Christopher Whitaker, such instalments to be paid to the trustee appointed by the creditors. At neither of the meetings was Tomlinson present or represented. On the 2nd November, 1874, the debtor paid to the trustee the sum of £100 in satisfaction of the first note, and a few days aftewards the trustee remitted the amount of the first instalment of the composition then due to all the creditors who had proved their debts. The debtor did not pay the note given to meet the second instalment at the time it became due, and in April of this year Tomlinson brought an action against him to recover the full amount of his debt. The case was tried before his Honour at Preston on the 6th July following. On the hearing it was contended that inasmuch as Tomlinson had not proved upon the estate, he was not entitled to the composition, and that a trustee having been appointed it was the duty of the creditors to apply to him for the amount of their composition. And on the other hand it was urged that it had been decided by the Lords Justices that it was not necessary for a creditor to prove his debt under a composition arrangement to entitle him to receive his composition, and that the trustee, having notice through the debtor's statement of affairs of the existence of the plaintiff's claim, should have paid it without proof. A verdict was returned for the plaintiff (Tomlinson) for the amount of his claim, and execution stayed for a month. A restraining order was subsequently applied for on the grounds previously stated, and that in Ex parte Waterer; Re Taylor, the Lords Justices had held that where a trustee had been appointed by the creditors, the debtor was not liable for any default of such trustee in not paying the composition, that a creditor who had commenced an action for his original debt against the debtor ought to be restrained, and that the trustee under a composition arrangement is not bound to tender to the creditors the amount of their composition. Tomlinson was inserted in the debtor's statement of affairs, but did not attend the meetings, nor did he prove his debt. He made no demand for payment of the composition upon the trustee, who had always money in hand belonging to the estate to pay the amount had payment been demanded, and it was contended that this case was on all fours with the one quoted. On behalf of Tomlinson it was contended that, according to the resolutions passed at the meeting of the creditors, the trustee was not appointed to receive and distribute the amount of the composition, but that he was simply appointed as a person to whom the promissory notes might be made payable, for there was nothing upon the resolutions to show that the composition had not to be paid by the debtor himself, and further that the debtor did not meet the notes in due time, and that at the time the action was commenced by Tomlinson, the trustee had not sufficient funds in hand to pay all the creditors. His Honour held that the trustee was appointed in accordance with rule 279, and that inasmuch as he (the trustee) had always funds in hand sufficient to pay the composition to Tomlinson had he demanded it, and not having so demanded it, he must restrain him from taking any further proceedings in the action he had commenced. His Honour, however, said that the amount of the composition ought to have been paid into court before the hearing of the case at Preston, and he should therefore grant the plaintiff the costs of that action.

Digitized by Google

WIGAN COUNTY COURT.

September 3.

(Before MR. WYNNE FFOULKES, Judge.)

Mr. France, solicitor, made an application re Samuel Webb, for the decision of the registrar to be set aside. At a meeting of creditors held on the 23rd of August a resolution to liquidate the affairs of the debtor by arrangement and appointing a trustee was passed unanimously, but as no statement was presented at that meeting of the affairs of the debtor, the registrar refused to register the resolution. Mr. France contended that it was the duty of the registrar to register, although no statement was presented, and called the attention of the Judge to sub-sections 3 and 4 of section 125 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869. The Judge, however, was of opinion that the registrar had acted rightly, as the intention of the section clearly was that a statement of affairs should be produced, the object of the provision being to prevent the creditors passing a resolution in the dark. Mr. France asked for the case to be adjourned in order that he might endeavour to find a case bearing upon the point, but this his Honour refused to do.

The following are the comments of the Law Times on the case Re Knowles which we reported last week :—" In another column we report a case of some importance which recently came before Mr. W. W. Ffoulkes, Judge of the Warrington County Court. It was an application for an order directing the taxation of an accountant's charges, who had been appointed a trustee of the estate of an insolvent debtor, who had presented a petition for liquidation. It seems that during the proceedings and in the ordinary course, a resolution was passed agreeing to accept a composition, but unfortunately one resolution agreed to the payment of a sum of about £200 to the trustee. The learned judge considered that he could not interfere, although he 'should have been very glad to tax a bill so preposterous and exorbitant.' His Honour, moreover, expressed his opinion that a great change in the law was most desirable. We must say that it is certainly a monstrous state of things that a person styling himself an accountant—be he a competent man or not—should make his own terms with debtors and creditors, and be able to defy the authority and power of the court in which proceedings, which are the foundation of his charges, were commenced. It would seem that the judges of both superior and inferior tribunals are beginning to discover the evil consequences of recognising the continued existence of a new class of persons styling themselves bankruptcy accountants. The profession and the public look for radical reforms in our present bankruptcy system, which it is to be hoped will be accomplished early in the next session of Parliament. In ninety-nine matters out of one hundred there is no occasion for the office of accountant trustee in cases of bankruptcy or insolvency."

CREDITORS' MEETINGS.

B. TATTERSALL (WESTGATE).—A meeting of the creditors of Benjamin Tattersall, of Westgate, Haberham Eaves, near Burnley, draper, was held on Friday, the 3rd instant, at the Bull Hotel, Burnley. After some discussion, it was resolved to liquidate by arrangement, Mr. Alexander Atkinson, of Bradford, accountant, being appointed trustee, and the proceedings were transferred to the Bradford County Court. Messrs. Terry and Robinson, of Bradford, were appointed solicitors in the proceedings.

H. C. MOUNSEY (HALIFAX).—A meeting of the creditors of H. C. Mounsey, oil and grease manufacturer, was held at the offices of Mr. Walter Storey, solicitor, Halifax, on Monday. The statement of affairs was produced by Mr. Roberts, of the firm of Foster, Roberts and Co., public accountants, and showed liabilities as follows, viz. unsecured creditors, £1,401 5s. 1d.; fully secured, £682. For rent, rates, &c., £20 14s.; liabilities on bills discounted, £70. Total £2,173 19s. 2d.: against assets consisting of stock and plant £300; book debts estimated to produce £70; property £400; and also property partly in the hands of secured creditors, £800. Total, £1,570. It was resolved to liquidate the estate by arrangement, and Mr. Roberts was appointed trustee, with a committee of inspection; Mr. Storey to register the resolutions.

J. D. HILTON (GREAT YARMOUTH).—A first meeting of creditors under the bankruptcy of Joseph Deare Hilton, of Great Yarmouth, grocer, was held at the office of the Registrar of the County Court, Great Yarmouth, on 7th September, when Mr. Lovewell Blake, of Hall Quay-chambers, Great Yarmouth, public accountant, was elected trustee, with a committee of inspection. Messrs. Worship and Rising are solicitors in the proceedings.

M. WILLIAMS (LIVERPOOL).—The first meeting of creditors of Maurice Williams, of 10 Berey's-buildings, cotton broker, was held on Tuesday at the Court-house, 80 Lime-street, before Mr. Registrar Watson, and proofs of debt were presented amounting to £5,706 3s. 10d. The total liabilities, it was stated, were about £11,200, and assets estimated at £1,250. Mr. Henry Bolland, accountant, was appointed trustee, with a committee of inspection. Messrs. Miller, Peel, and Hughes were nominated solicitors to the trustee. The public examination before the court is fixed for the 8th October next.

Digitized by Google

FAILURES.

ENGLAND.—Messrs. Samuel Freeth and Co., of the Phœnix Iron Works, Millwall, and the West Drayton Iron Works, have suspended payment, and the books are in the hands of Messrs. Robert A. McLean and Co. The liabilities are estimated at £30,000, and the assets at £11,000. A petition for liquidation has been presented, and Mr. McLean has been appointed receiver and manager of the works which, are being continued by him.—Mr. John Hammond, of 6 and 7 Avenham street, and 1 Friargate, Preston, wholesale and retail draper, filed a petition for the liquidation of his affairs by arrangement or composition with his creditors at the office of the Registrar of the Preston County Court on the 28th ult. The liabilities are estimated at £5,529 11s. 5d. The first meeting of creditors has been summoned to be held at the office of Messrs. Joshua Crowther and Co., accountants, Bath Chambers, York-street, Manchester, on Wednesday, the 15th inst., at three o'clock in the afternoon.—The failure is reported of the old-established firm of Tysoe and Sons, fine spinners, of Salford. The liabilities are estimated at £50,000, and the assets at from £25,000 to £30,000.

SCOTLAND.—Messrs. George Burgess and Co., merchants, New York, with a branch house in Dundee, have suspended payment. Their liabilities are variously estimated at £30,000 to £50,000, and a favourable realisation is expected. The debts fall chiefly upon jute spinners and manufacturers in this district, and in some cases the amounts are considerable. The firm is an old-established one—having formerly been Burgess and Meade—and had long been in good credit. The failure is understood to have arisen from losses on the other side, and was quite unexpected here.

IRELAND.—Charles Johnson, wine and spirit merchant, Tunstall, and of the Royal Hotel, Malahide, near Dublin, has filed a petition in liquidation in the County Court of Hanley. The liabilities are £15,000, and the assets unascertained.

CANADA.—Advices received from Canada report the failure of Messrs. Moffat Bros., Toronto, with liabilities of £6,000.—Mr. J. M. Leavitt, of Courtney Bay Glass Works, and Allan Bros., founders, St. John, N.B., have both made assignments. Several small failures have occurred in Montreal.

AMERICA.—American advices announce the failure of Mr. William H. Locke, calico printer, of Possaic, New Jersey, with liabilities of £160,000.—Mr. William Braden, a prominent merchant, and real estate dealer, Indianopolis, Ind., has made an assignment; liabilities £30,000.—Mr. C. S. Whistler, Devonport, Ind., has also made an assignment, with liabilities of £20,000.—Messrs. John Mayall and Co., dry goods dealers, Colorado, have failed; liabilities £14,000.—Messrs. Simon G. Gove and Co., tanners, N.H., with liabilities of £10,000.—Messrs. Ferdinand, Hertz, and Co., produce exporters, 50 Broadway, New York, have suspended.—Mr. George Reeves, coal merchant, N.J., with liabilities of £10,000.—Messrs. Graham Bros., Baltimore, with liabilities of £12,000.—The suspension is announced of William A. Perry, at No. 817 Broad-street, Newark, N.J. The affairs of the firm are complicated with the settlement of the bankrupt firms of Howell and Co., of Newark, and T. W. Sprague and Co., of Cincinnati. The liabilities are estimated roughly at 140,000 dols.—The failure of the firm of Edmund and Lewis Dunham, clothiers, at No. 815 Broad-street, Newark, is also announced. No statement of assets and liabilities has been made.—A telegram from Ottawa, Canada, says that the statement of the affairs of D. W. Coward and Co., insolvents, shows their liabilities to be 100,000 dols., and assets 80,000 dols.

GERMANY.—It is announced that Messrs. Gottleib, Gunther and Co., and Messrs. Rocholl Brothers, of Remscheid (Prussia), have for the present suspended payment, owing to some severe losses that they have sustained in the trade. Mr. J. F. Reike, of Remscheid, father-in-law to Mr. F. W. Rocholl, is appointed general liquidator to both firms. The liabilities of Messrs. Gottleib, Gunther and Co. are estimated at about £16,000.

Messrs. Robert A. McLean and Co. notify that certificates of the Company of Bondholders of the Bay of Havana Railway are now being exchanged, at their offices, 8 Old Jewry, for Bonds of the 1st Loan of £250,000, the 2nd Loan of £100,000, and the 3rd Loan of £400,000.

LOANS IN AID OF PUBLIC WORKS.—In the last financial year the Public Works Loans Commissioners advanced sums amounting to £2,318,759 by way of loan in Great Britain. Among these loans are £1,676,154 to School Boards; £460,979 to Sanitary Authorities; £83,140 for harbours, docks, and piers; £46,292 to Local Boards and Boards of Health; £26,700 under the Labouring Classes' Dwellinghouses Act of 1867; £12,794 for workhouses; and £7,000 to the Portpatrick Railway Company. In Ireland the Commissioners of Public Works advanced in the year sums amounting to £286,845. Among these loans are £102,005 for improvement of lands by drainage, erection of farm buildings and cottages, planting for shelter, &c.; £46,285 for advances to tenants for purchase of their farms, and to landlords for reclaiming waste lands, and compensating tenants for improvement; £52,966 in aid of construction of Railways; £39,236, for river drainage; and £26,781 for glebe loans. The account of the Paymaster-General (Dublin) shows also that sums amounting to £220,452 were advanced in the year in Ireland by way of loans under various Acts of Parliament for public works other than those under the management of the Commissioners of Public Works; the chief item is £217,861 for the building and support of lunatic asylums. The principal outstanding at the end of the year, the balance of advances made in Great Britain and Ireland under various Acts, after allowing for repayments made, and for sums remitted (chiefly on public works loans in Ireland), is stated in the finance accounts as amounting to £14,635,775.

At the meeting of the Congress on International law at the Hague, two important papers on bills of exchange were read. The first, by Mr. H. D. Jencken, was upon negotiable paper and paper to bearer. After showing the great importance of this class of securities, which in fact, he said, included even properties such as bonds, bills, bills of lading, dock warrants, and those which the text writers described as "imperfect paper to bearer"—namely, postage-stamps, railway tickets, &c., Mr. Jencken sketched out the history of these commercial documents, and gave an interesting outline of their origin, progress, and final development, dating as far back as the year 1275; when Marguerite, Countess of Flanders, issued Treasury bonds payable to bearer. In Venice, in the year 1171, an office of public loans, called the Camera del Imprestito, to meet the necessities of a disastrous war, issued promises to bearer. While in France and commercial Holland their employment was all but universal, merchants, battling step by step, in England had tardily compelled the Courts to admit the transferability of paper to bearer, even in the case of bills of exchange; and, Mr. Jencken pointed out, the English had to this very day refused to acknowledge a floating debt to bearer. The more scientificpart of this paper dealt with the legal definition of these instruments, and concluded with the following conclusions:—1. That the minimum value of a bond or share shall be limited to £4 (100f.) 2. That, after 50 per cent. of the nominal value has been paid up, bonds or scrip to bearer shall be issuable. 3. That they shall be transferable by delivery. 4. That the property conveyed by delivery shall not be hampered by any rights of third parties. 5. That the words "to bearer" shall appear on the face of the instrument itself. And, finally, that no private person shall be allowed to issue paper to bearer. In the concluding remarks Mr. Jencken suggested that in the case of a public loan or issue of paper by a joint-stock company the funds shall only be allowed to be touched after the holding of a meeting of the allottees, and disclosure in such meeting of all contracts and matters relating to the security issued to the public; all the documents being filed at some public office, including the minister of the public meeting.

Digitized by Google

THE FINANCIAL CRISIS IN SAN FRANCISCO.

New York papers give detailed accounts of the failure of the Bank of California, and the subsequent financial troubles. The following despatch, published on Friday, August 28th, gave the first intimation of the failure:—

"San Francisco, California, August 26th.

"The Bank of California stopped paying cheques at 2.45 to-day. President Ralston stated orally, on his own responsibility and that of the officers of the bank, that there was no doubt they would be able to meet all obligations. Mr. Ralston further stated that about 1,400,000 dols. was paid out to-day. No assistance was received from other banks, although application had been made for it. They had telegraphed to all the agencies of the bank to close. The excitement in California-street was intense. The street was blocked during the afternoon."

The following telegram announcing heavy failures at Baltimore was received the same day:—

"Baltimore, August 26th.

"Sterling, Ahrens and Co., said to be the largest importing house in the United States, suspended payment this afternoon. Mr. Ahrens thinks the liabilities amount to about 2,000,000 dols., but that if the assets are judiciously administered, the creditors can ultimately be paid dollar for dollar. He assigns as the causes for the failure the general depression of business and shrinkage in the value of coffee and sugar, of which the firm have a large stock on hand. The debts of the firm are due to parties in this city and in Cuba almost exclusively. It is said that the business of the firm footed up 40,000,000 dols. per annum."

Summarising the situation on the following day (Saturday, August 28th), the New York Times says:—"The San Francisco failures are not likely to have any direct effect upon the commercial or financial business interests of this city, or indeed of any part of the country east of the Rocky Mountains. The news naturally created some excitement at the opening of business yesterday. Gold went up a little, and there was a rush to sell stocks, amounting to quite a small panic for awhile, 74,000 shares being disposed of at the morning board. Gradually, however, returning reason, combined with reassuring reports from local quarters, and a strong effort on the part of the stock bulls to uphold the market, tended to calm down the general feverishness, and the close of business left things nearly as they were the day before. The news of the failure of the Bank of California came upon the street like a thunder-cloud out of a clear sky. Every where the bank was regarded as one of the strongest institutions of the kind on the Continent. William C. Ralston was of Missouri parentage, and began life as a hand on a Mississippi steamer. In 1850 he was in Panama, a member of the firm of Fretz and Ralston, who were the agents of Commodore C. K. Garrison on the Isthmus. From 1852 to 1857 the firm of Garrison, Fretz and Ralston flourished in San Francisco. In the latter year Commodore Garrison came east, and a new firm was formed under the title of Donohue, Ralston, Kelly and Co., which lasted until 1862 or 1863. In 1865 Ralston took a leading part in the organisation and establishment of the Bank of California, which he has just led to its ruin. The bank was started on a capital of 2,000,000 dols., which was increased two years ago to 5,000,000 dols. Mr. Mills was made president, and Mr. Ralston cashier. More than a year ago Mr. Mills resigned, and Mr. Ralston was elected to his place. Both men were accounted extremely wealthy. Mr. Mills is probably so still, though if he be, as is believed, a trustee of the bank, and therefore liable for its indebtedness, his fortune will probably suffer considerable diminution. Two years ago Mr. Ralston's private wealth was estimated at 20,000,000 dollars. Mr. Ralston was by all accounts a man of restless energy, and unbounded liberality as well as great financial genius. 'There was no enterprise of any importance on the Pacific coast in which he was not foremost,' said a banker yesterday, who knew him well. When asked to name some of the principal enterprises in which he had been engaged, the answer was a repetition of the above sentence, with the word 'every' strongly accentuated. 'You can name nothing,' added the banker, 'in which he was not.' This policy of widespread speculation is believed to have been the indirect cause of the disaster to the bank over which he presided. The theory as to the direct cause that found most supporters in Wall-street yesterday was the following:—Ralston, with the Bank of California at his back, and aided by his or its vast interest in the silver mines of Nevada, wielded such a tremendous power not only over the commercial and financial destinies of the two States, but also over their politics, as naturally to arouse the envy and opposition of men of wealth and energy under his rule. A number of such men did get together, and the result was the organisation of the Bank of Nevada, with a capital of 5,000,000 dollars, and a right to increase it to 20,000,000 dollars. These men were J. C. Flood, William S. O'Brien, Samuel McLean, J. W. Mackey, and James Fair. Flood and O'Brien are known as 'the rich Bar tenders.' They kept a whisky shop in Sacramento-street for a number of years, and also owned an interest in certain of the Nevada mines. McLean was formerly a member of the firm of Wells, Sargo, and Co., and afterwards president of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company. Mackey, who is reputed to be the richest man on the Pacific coast, his fortune being estimated at 75,000,000 dollars, was working in a tunnel at 4 dollars a day sixteen years ago. These men are the owners between them of the Consolidated Virginia, Kentucky, Gavage, and Hale and Norcross mines. Taking advantage of the widespread manner in which Mr. Ralston had been scattering the funds of the Bank of California, and of his involvement in mining stock speculations, they sold their own stocks short to him, and when they knew him to be full of them, and short of gold, called upon him suddenly for margins, and broke the bank. They were aided in this, it is said, by one of the rival banks, who locked up all the gold it could get. It was stated by another gentleman, thoroughly informed regarding the financial business of California, that the Flood-O'Brien party, though distinct from the clique of the Bank of California, had in no way joined in an attempt to compel its suspension, but on the contrary, for several months, ever since the rumoured embarrassment of the corporation, published during the past spring, had done every thing in their power to sustain the tottering institution. To this end the incorporators of the New Bank of Neveda had received a proposition from the directors of the Bank of California to purchase their goodwill; but an investigation of the books made it evident that this could not be done, except at a great loss, at the terms proposed. In general terms, the Flood and O'Brien party, though they had gained supremacy in the great Nevada mines, to the exclusion of the Bank of California, did not care to see the latter fall to the ground, on account of the damaging effect that it would have not only upon their own interests but throughout the coast.

"The latest advices from San Francisco indicate that the failure of the Bank of California will have no lasting effect upon the financial world, and that commerce in this section at least will be in no way injured by it. In consequence of the failure of the bank, the National Gold Bank and Trust Company, and the Merchants Exchange Bank of San Francisco, two rich and powerful institutions, were obliged to close their doors. The directors of both institutions declare their ability to meet every demand upon them, but state that their temporary suspension is rendered necessary by the scarcity of gold, which, it will be remembered, is a circulating medium in California. There, there seems to be no possibility of a continuance or spread of the panic, and in the opinion of the best-informed business men of this city the money-market of San Francisco will in a few days return to its usual condition. It is probable that the mining interests of the Pacific Coast will be for a time interfered with by the failure of the Bank of California, but, as already stated, it is believed that its suspension will have little or no effect upon the country at large. To avert the possibility of further trouble, the Treasury Department at Washington is now engaged in transferring large sums of gold to aid the California banks. A telegram from San Francisco, dated Friday the 27th, says the excitement consequent on the failure of the Bank of California seems to be subsiding. The crowd on California-street is much less than at the opening of business this morning. The run on the London and San Francisco Bank ceased with a large surplus remaining in values. There was a slight run on the Anglo-California Bank on its opening this morning, but it soon subsided. The first National Gold Bank reports 'every thing secure,' and the same may be said of the Bank of British Columbia, the Pacific, and Commercial Banks. Private banks report no excitement, and every thing is going on as usual. Generally speaking, all the city banks are considered sound except the Bank of California. There has been a slight rush on the Hibernian Bank and Savings Bank, but demands were promptly met within the rules as expressed in by-laws of the institution. A later telegram on the same day says the Board of Directors of the Bank of California held a meeting on that day, and Mr. Ralston was requested to resign as president and director, which he did. As regards the financial prospect, in the best informed circles it is believed that all the banks will go on without further trouble. The town is full of rumours. The streets at this hour (8 p.m.) are crowded with people. It is understood that, owing to the excited feeling manifested, arrangements have been made to call out the military to preserve order if necessary. President Ralston committed suicide about 5.10 o'clock. This afternoon a close carriage drove rapidly to the side door of the Bank of California, when a gentleman jumped out in a state of excitement and ran into the bank. In response to inquiries, the driver of the carriage said he had just left the drowned body of the President of the Bank, Mr. Ralston, in charge of an officer on the beach near the smelting works, in the north part of the city. From the best information obtainable, it appears that he went to a sea-bathing establishment at the North Beach at about 3.25, undressed, went into the water, swam about 200 yards, and disappeared behind a vessel. Soon after his body was discovered floating by the Selby Lead Works, and was brought ashore still alive. A physician was summoned, but all efforts to resuscitate him failed, and he died at 4.50 p.m. Colonel Fry, his father-in-law, Mayor Otis, and a number of prominent citizens arrived before he expired. Colonel Fry and Captain Lees went to the bathing house, and obtained Mr. Ralston's clothes, in which were found a few dollars, and his statement to the Bank, but nothing having any tendency to show that he committed suicide. His body was conveyed to No. 1,812 Jackson-street, the residence of Colonel Fry. A boy named Festus Mazzele states that he saw Mr. Ralston before he reached the house, saw him sit on the clay bank near the smelting works, saw him tear up several papers and throw the scraps into the water. Search was made for the pieces, but none could be found. It is also reported that he was seen to drink the contents of a phial before going into the water."

Digitized by Google

Fraudulent Bankruptcy.—At the Central Criminal Court, Henry Webb, a china and earthenware dealer, was sentenced to one month's imprisonment with hard labour, for making false statements at the meeting of his creditors to induce them to agree to liquidation.

Miscellaneous Revenue. — The accounts of our public income, after stating the well-known great items of revenue, conclude with "miscellaneous receipts," approaching four millions sterling; and the recent issue of the Finance Accounts for the financial year ending with March last presents an opportunity for observing the component parts of this large amount. India contributed some £655,000 towards the military and diplomatic expenditure of the Empire, charged on the other sides of the accounts; and colonial governments £253,000. The year's interest received on loans for public works advanced from the Exchequer reached £467,000. There is an item of nearly £139,000 payable annually by the Bank of England out of the profits of issue; this was formerly deducted from the gross charge payable to the Bank for management of the public debt. There is also an item of £300,000, the diminution of the cash balance in the Treasury chest, and another of £48,000 for "small branches of the hereditary revenue." Among the miscellaneous receipts by Naval and Military Departments there is an item of as much as £464,000, with only the brief and general explanation that it is for "repayments for stores supplied" (perhaps to Indian and Colonial Governments), "sale of old stores, and other extra receipts." The fees, &c., received by public offices amount to £561,000; these include £34,000 for House of Commons fees, nearly as much, also, received in the House of Lords, fees of honour received in the Queen's Household, and fees and fines in Courts of Justice. Other large sums for constituted fees in Courts of Justice paid by the use of stamps are entered as receipts under the head of "stamps," and some persons might be misled by this entry of some of the fees of the courts in one part of the accounts and some in another. The miscellaneous receipts (other than fees) by civil departments amount to £424,000. Here are entered a host of items:—Unclaimed wages and effects of deceased merchant seamen; sale of British Museum publications; sale of Common Law Courts printed cause lists; product of labour of convicts; repayment of enclosure and drainage expenses; receipts for brokerage on purchase and sale of Chancery investments; produce of Dublin police tax, pawnbrokers' licence duty, and carriage revenue; sale of school books by the Irish Education Office; Mint profit on bronze coinage; rents received by the Office of Works for Westminster-bridge estate, &c. and sale of materials; parental contributions to reformatory schools, £16,200; sale of waste by the Stationery Office, £29,023; sale of House of Commons papers, £1,482; and a long string of other items. Then come miscellaneous receipts by revenue departments, £347,000. Among these are rents received by the Customs Department and receipts for special attendance of officers; Inland Revenue fines and penalties, receipts by the Post Office from India and Australia on account of the mail packet service; also £103,000 from the National Debt Commissioners for charges of management of Post Office savings-banks and insurances, and £4,420, the amount of "void money orders." Finally, come some items with no pretence of classification; among them are £7,890 repayment from Greece towards our loss by guaranteeing the Greek loan, £68,531, last instalment of the indemnity payable by Japan under the Convention of 1865; £6,326, part of the revenue of the Gazettes, other part being collected by means of stamps. These "Finance Accounts" cannot be regarded as conveniently arranged. We want an annual statement, which need not occupy above 20 pages probably, showing the actual income of the year last past classified as far as may be, and with all the main items stated, and, on the other hand, the actual expenditure arranged in a certain number of classes, and with all the large items shown. Such an account should, of course, equally include charges on the Consolidated Fund and payments voted by Parliament, and indeed need take no notice of "votes," but should show actual expenditure, and show the amount for every department or establishment—the salaries, pensions, general expenses, maintenance of buildings, and all other charges, and stating also the amount of fees and other receipts, whether obtained in cash or by requiring the purchase of stamps. An account of this kind used to be obtained annually on motion made in the House of Commons, in the later years by Mr. W. Williams, but the return seems to have departed with him. If ever revived and resumed, as it deserves to be, the arrangement of the items should be reconsidered and the account made rather fuller; in 1864 it occupied only 13 pages. It would be much more serviceable for general use than the Blue-book of "Finance Accounts."

Digitized by Google

COSTS IN BANKRUPTCY.

The following reports and remarks are from a contemporary:

A somewhat remarkable application was some time since made to the judge of the Blackburn County Court. It was an application under Rule 292 of the Bankruptcy Act for an order directing that the proper officer of the court should not tax the costs of a solicitor incurred in a petition for liquidation by arrangement and composition with creditors by a bankrupt, and asking his Honour to direct that the said costs be not paid out of the proper estate of the bankrupt. The chief ground for this unusual application was, that but for the action of the solicitor at a meeting of creditors called in consequence of a liquidation petition, the creditors would have agreed to resolutions continuing the liquidation proceedings, and bankruptcy would have been avoided, and the liquidation proceedings would nat have proved abortive. After a lengthened argument, the learned judge said, that in order to make out a case for refusing to allow the costs of the liquidation, something very strong ought to be shown, because rule 292, upon which the application was founded, is in express terms—that where a bankruptcy occurs pending proceedings in liquidation by arrangement, the proper course is for the trustee to pay the costs of the liquidation "unless the court shall otherwise order." There is primâ facie an unquestionable title, on the part of the solicitor to the debtor, to have those costs paid, and they ought to be paid unless something is shown which either affects the bankrupt himself in the institution of the proceedings, or affects the conduct of the solicitor in the proceedings in the bankruptcy or the liquidation. From first to last it was a fair contest between the parties whether one gentleman or another should be appointed on the committee of inspection. His Honour did not think there was any imputation in the slightest degree against the solicitor, and did not see any reason why the costs of the proceedings should not be paid out of the estate.

With reference to the employment of accountants in proceedings under the Bankruptcy Act, it is gratifying to find County Court judges following in practice the opinions so aptly expressed by Quain, J., at the recent assizes. The following is reported in regard to a case heard in the Winchester County Court, before Mr. P. M. Leonard, judge. A debtor had filed a petition in bankruptcy, and his solicitor desired a restraining order as to two summonses, so that there should be no undue preference. It was desired to have an accountant appointed receiver. His Honour said he had decided never to appoint an accountant to be receiver, and desired to know what security the creditors had if the restraining order were granted. 'It was the old story where debts were liquidated by a dividend of a penny perhaps in the pound. He expressed again his determination never to appoint accountants as receivers. If creditors would only refuse to consent to liquidation proceedings, and compel every debtor to go into bankruptcy, they would often get perhaps 10s., or even sometimes 20s. in the pound, at a cost of not more than £5 per cent. in the way of expenses.' Although we cannot concur with his Honour in the moderate view he takes of the costs of bankruptcy proceedings, we trust that other judges will adopt his belief as to the evil arising from appointing so-called accountants as trustees in liquidation.

The Associated Chambers of Commerce.—A special meeting will be held at Leeds on the 21st and 22nd inst., at which Mr. Sampson Lloyd, M.P., President of the Chambers of the United Kingdom, will take the chair. On the evening of the 22nd, Alderman Barran, President of the Leeds Chamber, will give a dinner to the members of the association at the Queen's Hotel, Leeds; and on the 23rd, excursions will be made to different places of interest in the neighbourhood, and the principal manufactories in Leeds and the neighbourhood will be visited, as may be found most convenient. The programme of business is not yet completed, but resolutions on the following subjects among others will be discussed:—The desirableness of all Imperial taxes being collected by the Inland Revenue; the introduction into Parliament next Session of a Bill for the Compulsory Registration of Firms; the appointment of a deputation to the Postmaster-General, with a view to a more moderate tariff for telegraphic messages between England and France, and to the removal of the anomaly of charging 4f. for a message from Paris to London, and 6f. from Paris to English towns beyond London. At the request of the Paris (British) Chamber, the Executive will be asked to take the necessary steps for the early introduction of a Bill into Parliament to adopt the metric system in the United Kingdom. On the subject of Private Bill legislation, the Executive, being convinced of the necessity of effecting some reform in the present costly and uncertain system, press upon her Majesty's Government the desirableness of adopting certain resolutions (set forth), prepared by Mr. Dodson, formerly Chairman of Committees of the House of Commons, with a proviso that a local inquiry should be made before a provisional order be issued, as suggested by Mr. Dodson, by a permanent tribunal of a judical character, before which both promoters and opponents shall be heard in open court, and the decision of which shall be subject to confirmation by Parliament. As to Public Bills in Parliament, the Executive will propose a memorial to the Prime Minister, declaring the desirableness that Bills which have been read a second time in either House of Parliament shall be taken up at the same stage in the next ensuing Session of the same Parliament. Both the Executive and the Bradford Chamber have proposals for the appointment of a Cabinet Minister of Commerce. The Hull Chamber have on the paper a notice referring to limited liability companies, to the effect, that every such company be required annually to file, with the Registrar of Joint-Stock Companies, a copy of its profit and loss account and balance-sheet for the preceding year, together with a statement of the principle on which its assets have been valued, such statements to be signed by the chairman or deputy-chairman and the secretary, under penalties similar to those provided by the Regulation of Railways Act, 1868, and that the Executive Council be and is hereby requested to bring this matter before the Board of Trade. On behalf of Newcastle and Gateshead, it will be moved that, with the view of carrying out one of the suggestions contained in the report of the committee of the association on bankruptcy, already adopted, it is deemed expedient that the Bankruptcy Act should be extended by statutory enactment as under:—1. That it shall be compulsory upon every trader to keep books of account showing all his transactions. 2. That the same should be periodically balanced and made up to the time of his insolvency. 3. That on non-performance of either of the above, no trader shall receive his discharge. 4. That the failure to keep proper books, or to have them periodically balanced and properly posted up, shall be an offence, punishable in the same manner and by the same process as offences in bankruptcy are made punishable under the existing law; and the non-production of proper books by an insolvent trader, whether in bankruptcy or liquidation, shall ipso facto be deemed fraudulent, and the omission considered as done with the intent to deceive. The Northampton Chamber will recommend that, in any alteration of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, it is desirable that farmers should be excluded from the schedule of non-traders. The Bradford representatives will recommend that County Courts ought to be made Courts of first instance for all commercial suits without limitation of amount, the legal Judge to be assisted by two honorary mercantile Judges. Other subjects to come before the association at Leeds are the Patent Laws, Bills of Sale, Halfpenny Letter Post, and Public Prosecutors.

Digitized by Google

MESSRS. COLLIE.

At Guildhall on Monday, Mr. William Collie surrendered in discharge of his bail before Sir Thomas White, to answer the charge of conspiring, with his brother Alexander Collie, to defraud the London and Westminster Bank of large sums of money, amounting to upwards of £300,000.

Mr. Poland, instructed by Messrs. Travers Smith and Co., appeared for the London and Westminster Bank; and Mr. Coward, of the firm of Hollams, Son, and Coward, appeared for the defendant.

The particulars of the case will be fresh in the recollection of our readers. Mr. William Collie, of No. 8 Aytoun-street, Manchester, of the firm of Collie Brothers, of 17 Leadenhall-street, and his brother Alexander Collie, appeared before Sir Thomas White, conjointly, on this charge, and at the last examination, a month ago, Mr. Alexander Collie did not put in an appearance, having absconded, and his bail was forthwith estreated. It will also be remembered that Mr. Serjeant Parry stated to the court that the Union Bank of Scotland (whom he represented) had obtained a warrant against Mr. Alexander Collie for £170,000.

Mr. William Collie was in court some time before 12 o'clock.

Mr. Poland: Sir Thomas, in this case, since the adjournment, I need hardly tell you that a reward of £1,000 was offered by the directors of the London and Westminster Bank for the apprehension of Alexander Collie, and every effort has been made to apprehend that person. At present these efforts have been unsuccessful, but we still hope that we may succeed in bringing him before you at some future time. Whether it will be so or not, of course, time alone can show. All we can do we have done, and will do, to secure the re-arrest of Mr. Alexander Collie. In those circumstances, I have to apply to you for a further adjournment of this case until such a day as you may think right and proper to fix.

Mr. Martin (the Chief Clerk): I forgot to ask whether the solicitor for Mr. William Collie was present. I am reminded that he has not yet arrived.

Mr. Poland: Then I must wait. I myself thought he was present.

Mr. Martin (to the defendant): Do you expect any legal representative here to-day?

The Defendant: Yes. Mr. Coward will be here to represent me. [Mr. Coward having arrived,]

Mr. Poland said: I was just observing that I thought my friend, Mr. Coward, who represents the defendant, was in court. I was remarking that we still had a hope of arresting Alexander Collie, but we thought that the more convenient course would be to have another adjournment, to such a time as would be convenient to all parties. It would not, I think, be desirable to take a short adjournment at this time of the year, because it would be difficult to get the witnesses together. It would, therefore, be better, under all circumstances, that I should apply for an adjournment till some day in October, when we may hope to have a more definite statement to make to you, and I hope also one of a more satisfactory character.

Mr. Martin (the Chief Clerk): It has been suggested that the 18th of October would be a convenient day.

Sir Thomas White: First of all, Mr. Martin, suppose we ask whether the bail of William Collie are present.

One of the gentlemen, who is bail for the defendant, at once answered in the affirmative; and at the request of the Chief Clerk, he and his colleague came to the front of the court.

Sir Thomas White: I need not tell you, Mr. Poland, that the eye of the world is upon you in this case. It entirely rests with you, gentlemen, on both sides. If the solicitors for the prosecution and the defence are agreed, I am quite satisfied.

Mr. Poland: I am sure a somewhat lengthened adjournment would be the better course.

Sir Thomas White: Is it understood that is the wish of the defendant as well as the prosecution?

Mr. Coward: I have no objection to raise on the part of the defendant.

Mr. Poland: Would the 18th of October, then, be convenient?

Sir Thomas White: Mr. Poland, I will not hear of any thing like the word "convenience" being suggested so far as I am concerned. We are here as servants of the public, and however inopportune the time may be, in the interest of justice and of the public, I am ready to be here.

Mr. Poland: I am sure, Sir Thomas, from my experience of yourself and your colleagues in this court, nothing would stand in the way of your attending here when the interests of the public are concerned; but what I intended to convey was, that if a future day must be fixed the convenience of the court must be consulted.

It was then agreed that the case should stand adjourned until the 18th of October, at 12 o'clock, with the same bail, under the same recognisances—that is, the defendant, William Collie, in the sum of £4,000, and Mr. George Yule and Mr. Theodore Andreae, each in £2,000.

Mr. Andreae intimated that he feared he would be obliged to leave the country on his own business before the 18th, and wished to know whether substituted bail would answer the purpose of his attendance.

The Chief Clerk having arranged this matter to the satisfaction of all parties, the proceedings were adjourned to the 18th of October.

Collapse of a Limited Company.—On Monday, an extraordinary special meeting of the shareholders in the Silkstone Fall Colliery Company Limited, which was floated a few years ago with a capital of £50,000, was held at the King's Head Hotel, Barnsley, for the purpose of taking into consideration the present position of the company, and passing a resolution to wind it up voluntarily by liquidation. Mr Baker, chairman of the company, presided. In 1865 an attempt was made to float the colliery with a capital of £100,000. The attempt proved abortive, and a year or two later it was brought out with a capital of £50,000, the first dividend paid being 25 per cent, and that it was stated entirely out of the capital of the company. So rotten was the concern that the whole of the first board of directors save one had their shares presented to them, and in March last the chairman moved that the capital should be reduced from £50,000 to £10,000. It was also agreed at that meeting to discontinue working a so-called Silkstone pit, owing to the worthless nature of the coal. Until a recent period the directors worked the Thorncliffe seam for the purpose of the coal obtained from it, which they consumed in burning bricks and working a bed of fire clay. The quality of both the clay and the coal was found to be very inferior, and the directors having heavy waggon leases to pay, they resolved to wind-up the company, and bring all to a stand. The chairman explained at great length the deplorable position in which the company were placed. Being without funds, the directors had to guarantee the bank from loss in order to keep the thing afloat, and they had been compelled to sell part of the plant to pay off the bank. Mr. Kimber (London) moved a resolution to the effect that it having been proved to the satisfaction of the shareholders, that this company could not by reason of its liabilities carry on its business, it be voluntarily wound-up. Mr. Culpin seconded the motion, which was carried. Mr. Crabtree (Halifax) moved, and Mr. Chambers seconded, that Mr. Baker, the chairman, be the liquidator. Mr. Warwick (London) moved, as proxy for Mr. J. Dawson (Exeter), and seconded himself, that Mr. J. V. Young, public accountant, of London, be the liquidator. The show of hands was in favour of Mr. Baker, and a poll was demanded.

Digitized by Google

APPOINTMENTS.

[The Editor will be glad to receive early notice of appointment of Liquidators and Auditors for insertion in this column.]

Mr. S. J. Beswick has been appointed receiver and manager to the estate of Mr. William Killingbeck, tailor and draper, Snaith. Mr. Beswick has also been appointed receiver to the estate of Mr. M. Joseph, hat and cap manufacturer, Park-lane, Leeds. A meeting of the creditors of Eleanor Cluderoy, of Infirmary-street, Bradford, was held on Wednesday, at the offices of Mr. Mumford, solicitor, Bradford, when it was resolved to liquidate the estate by arrangement, and Mr. S. J. Beswick, accountant, Leeds, was appointed trustee, with Mr. Hardwick, solicitor, Leeds, to register the resolutions.

John Pattinson, (of the firm of Harry Brett, Milford, Pattinson and Co.,) of 150 Leadenhall-street, E.C., and 12 Vigo-street, Regent-street, W., public accountant, has been appointed trustee of the estate of Andrew Holland Hingston, formerly of 58 Bold-street, Liverpool, in the county of Lancaster, chemist and druggist, but now of 123 Gloucester-road, Regent's-park, in the county of Middlesex, of no occupation. Mr. E. W. Owles, 22 Chancery Lane, W.C., solicitor to the trustee.

Harry Brett (of the firm of Harry Brett, Milford, Pattinson and Co.), of 150 Leadenhall-street, E.C., and 12 Vigo-street, Regent-street, W., public accountant, has been appointed arbitrator on behalf of the liquidators of "Hester and Company, Limited," in liquidation.

Harry Brett (of the firm of Harry Brett, Milford, Pattinson and Co.), of 150 Leadenhall-street, E.C., and 12 Vigo-street, Regent-street, W., public accountant, has been appointed trustee of the estate of R. H. Armit, of 33 Abchurch-lane, E.C., and 93 Regent-street, W., commission and financial agent, with a committee of inspection.

FRIENDLY SOCIETY IRREGULARITIES.—Some very unpleasant discoveries have just been made in connection with the Burngreave funding societies at Sheffield. They were established eleven years ago, and the investors in them were a poor but provident class. For some weeks past it has been impossible to obtain any withdrawals, and a committee has been appointed to investigate their affairs. They find that at the present time the investments amount to about four thousand pounds, about three hundred has been lent at fifty per cent. interest; where the remaining sum has gone has not been ascertained. The revelations made have caused great excitement in the neighbourhood.

VALUE OF CITY PROPERTY.—One of the finest and most important vacant sites in the City of London, at the corner of Threadneedle-street and Bishopsgate-street, having commanding frontages thereto, the whole covering an area of about 3,600 feet, has recently been let by Messrs. Harvey and Davids, at a ground rent of £2,600 per annum, and it is proposed to have erected thereon a handsome pile of buildings suitable for bankers, public companies, and merchants, of the estimated rental value of over £8,000 per annum. The lessee has commenced the work with unusual energy, and there is no doubt but that he will find the transaction a very profitable one, as there is a great demand for offices in this locality.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.—L. B. Thanks; you will see that we have quoted similar paragraphs. They are scarcely worth notice.

LATE ADVERTISEMENT.

AN ACCOUNTANT (6 years established) would like to meet with a gentleman of experience in the profession, who possesses a good business connection, with a view to partnership.—Apply, in the first instance by letter only, to "G. D.," 59 Lincoln's Inn Fields, W.C.

RESTAURANT,
13 OXFORD STREET,
Near the corner of Tottenham-court-road.
Known as the BODEGA, now under the new management of Mr. L. BOECKER, late of 13 Idol-lane, City.
Luncheons from the joints, hot or cold, including vegetables and bread, 1s. 3d
Dinners from 12 till 4 o'clock, from the joint, with soup or fish, vegetables, cheese and bread, 2s.
Dinners from 6 till 9 o'clock, from 2s. 6d. to 10s. 6d.
Private Dining Rooms for large and small parties on the Second Floor.

MONEY to LEND to BORROWERS residing in town or Country, from £50 upwards, repayable in one sum, from one to five years, at five per cent. interest on personal security; also on mortgage of freehold or leasehold property from 3 per cent., for a term of years to be agreed upon. No commission.
Apply to R. F. PRESTON, Esq., 120 Southampton-row, London, W.C.

"The source of many a writer's woe has been discovered."
PENS! PENS!! PENS!!
"They come as a boon and a blessing to men,
The Pickwick, the Owl, and the Waverley Pen."
"The misery of a bad Pen is now a voluntary infliction."
Another blessing to men! The Hindoo Pen.
1,200 Newspapers recommend them. See Graphic, 17th May, 1873.
Sold by every respectable Stationer. Post 1s. 1d.
Patentees, MACNIVEN & CAMERON, 23 to 33 Blair-street, Edinburgh.

THE BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY'S ANNUAL RECEIPTS EXCEED THREE MILLIONS.
HOW TO PURCHASE A HOUSE FOR TWO GUINEAS PER MONTH. With immediate Possession and no Rent to pay.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.
HOW TO PURCHASE A PLOT OF LAND FOR FIVE SHILLINGS PER MONTH.
With Immediate Possession, either for Building or Gardening purposes.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK FREEHOLD LAND SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.
HOW TO INVEST YOUR MONEY WITH SAFETY AT £4 PER CENT. INTEREST.
Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BANK. All sums under £50 repayable upon demand. Current Accounts opened similar to ordinary Bankers. Cheque-books supplied. English and Foreign Stocks and Shares purchased and sold, and Advances made thereon.
Office Hours from 10 till 4; on Mondays from 10 till 9, and on Saturdays from 10 till 12 o'clock.
A Pamphlet containing full particulars may be obtained post-free on application.
FRANCIS RAVENSCROFT, Manager.

THE METROPOLITAN AND PROVINCIAL LAND, ESTATE, HOUSE, LICENSED VICTUALLERS' & GENERAL BUSINESS TRANSFER "SYNDICATE" AGENCY.
Registered according to Act of Parliament, Head Offices, No. 3 Craven-street, Charing Cross, W.C. The organisation and working system of the "Syndicate" are;—1st.—The Sale, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Ground of Rents, Freehold and Leasehold Land, Farms, Estates, Houses, Hotels, Public Houses, Inns, Beer Houses, Restaurants, Coffee Houses, Tobacconists, Drapers, and every other description of Business, Furniture, Objects of Art, or Goods of any description by Auction or Private Contract. 2nd.—The letting, or disposing of, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Land, Farms, Estates, Furnished, or Unfurnished Houses Chambers, or Offices under private contract. 3rd.—The Collection of Rents and the recovery of outstanding accounts. 4th.—The Surveys and Valuations of Land, Farms, Estates, and Houses; also Valuations of Furniture, Jewellery, and other Effects, for probate and other purposes. 5th.—The transaction of all other business usually transacted by Auctioneers, Surveyors, Land, House, Estate and Insurance Agents. 6th.—The negociations of partnerships, and from unlimited connection with capitalists, monetary advances on real and personal securities, as well as merchandize, and every other description of property intended for absolute sale, or otherwise. 7th. Generally the carrying out of all things incidental or conducive to the above objects, and every of them; also the laying out of estates and surveys for delapidations. The "Syndicate" from their extended connection with the Trades' Protection Societies and other sources, undertake expeditiously for Clients and others to ascertain reliably the status of parties, and make inquiries of a private and confidential character. Liberal terms to Accountants in town or country introducing business.

Digitized by Google

OLD FALCON HOTEL, GRAVESEND

Proprietor—W. SKILLETER.

Late Chef de Cuisine to His Grace the Duke of Argyll.

Visitors to Gravesend will find every accommodation at the Old Falcon Hotel, East Street. Public and Private Rooms facing the River, directly opposite Tilbury Fort, and with a capital view of the Thames Shipping.

FISH DINNERS AND WHITEBAIT.

BED AND BREAKFAST FOR GENTLEMEN £1 1s. PER WEEK.

And an equally low Tariff for Dejeuners, Dinners, &c.

Five Minutes' walk from North Kent Railway, and Two Minutes from the Piers, and Tilbury and Southend Railway.

J. DEFRIES' AND SONS'

CHANDELIERS, IN CRYSTAL, BRONZE, AND ORMOLU.

TABLE GLASS AND CHINA.

Dinner Services, Gilt Pieces, £4 10s.

KEROSENE and MODERATOR LAMPS for INDIA.

Works:—London and Birmingham.

WEDDING AND BIRTHDAY PRESENTS.

NEW DECORATIONS for the DINING TABLE.

FOUNTAINS.

STORER'S Patent Perpetual Perfumed CRYSTAL TABLE FOUNTAIN, for Dining, Hall and Drawing Rooms, in Crystal and Gilt, £2 17s. 6d. to 100 guineas.

FETES AND REJOICINGS.

BALLROOMS and GARDENS, &c., DECORATED and ILLUMINATED for Evening Parties. Tents, Temporary Rooms, and Banqueting Halls erected.

CRYSTAL and BRONZED CHANDELIERS.

TABLE GLASS and CHINA LENT ON HIRE.

J. DEFRIES and SONS, 147, HOUNDSDITCH.

Five minutes' walk from the Bank of England.

RUPTURES—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS s allowed by upwards of 500 Medical Men to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided, a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the manufacturer, Mr. JOHN WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London. Price of a single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., 31s. 6d, Postage Free. Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. An Umbilical Truss, 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. P.O.O. to be made payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

NEW PATENT ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS, &c. for Varicose Veins, and all cases of Weakness and Swelling of the Legs, Sprains, &c. They are porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and are drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price from 4s. 6d., 7s, 6d., 10s, to 16s. each. Postage free.

CHEST EXPANDING BRACES, for both sexes. For gentlemen they are a substitute for the ordinary braces. For children they are invaluable; they prevent stooping and preserve the symmetry of the chest. Prices for children, 5s. 6d. and 7s. 6d. Adults, 10s. 6d., 15s. 6d., and 21s. each. Postage free.—JOHN WHITE, Manufacturer, 228 Piccadilly, London.

EPPS'S COCOA.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—See article in the Civil Service Gazette.

STAR LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY,

48 MOORGATE STREET, LONDON, E.C

DIRECTORS.

CHAIRMAN—

Mr. Alderman McArthur, M.P.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—

William Mewburn, Esq.

H. J. Atkinson, Esq.
Thomas Ball, Esq.
Walter Griffith, Esq.
George M. Kiell, Esq.
George Lidgett, Esq.
Sir Francis Lycett.
William Merry, Esq.
John Napier, Esq.
Jonathan S. Pidgeon, Esq.
John Vanner, Esq.
S. D. Waddy, Esq., Q.C., M.P.

Assurance and Annuity Fund	1,216,115	13	5
Annual Income (1874)	223,613	2	0
Bonuses Apportioned	581,774	6	2
Claims Paid	1,140,151	1	8

Copies of the Report, Balance Sheet and Prospectus can be obtained on application to the Head Office.

W. W. BAYNES, Secretary.

THE ONLY AND SPECIAL

"MEDAL FOR PROGRESS,"

Was awarded for "Feuerfeste Eisone Schranke und Kunstchlosser Fortschritts," to

HOBBS, HART, & CO.

AT THE VIENNA UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION.

This Medal is only given to Exhibitors whose New Inventions testify marked Progress.

"FIRE-PROOF SAFES; AND LOCKS AND ENDLESS CHANGE LOCKS AND KEYS,"

Invented especially for Safes and Strong-Room Doors, to frustrate the use of False Keys.

N.B.—The continued security and secrecy of a Lock, fixed on a Safe or Strong-Room Door, depends on the fact that there are no false duplicate keys of that Lock in existence. The object of a Lock is twofold—security against burglars, and secrecy against prying curiosity. A new change in this Lock may at any time be obtained in five minutes by simply filing away the thickness of a hair from one or more of the steps of the Key. The Lock, by a simple movement of the Regulator, is thus made to adapt itself to the NEW KEY, after which no other Key will open the Lock.

The Lock and Key may thus be easily altered into what would be virtually a NEW LOCK and KEY, as often as may be desired, without the aid of Lockmaker or of any second person, thus frustrating the use of fraudulent copies of the original Key (see the Safe Robbery in Dublin of £630, vide "Times," 12th September, 1875). This Lock affords effectual protection from duplicate or "Master" Keys secretly made in manufactories; very extensive robberies (in one case 13 Safes in one vault) having been effected by this means.

HOBBS, HART & CO.,

LOCK, SAFE, AND STRONG-ROOM DOOR MANUFACTURERS

76 Cheapside, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

THE

SOCIETY OF ACCOUNTANTS IN ENGLAND.

COUNCIL.

President.—JOSEPH DAVIES, Warrington. Vice-President.—JOHN BATH, London.

ALFRED ALLOTT, Sheffield.
JOSEPH ANDREWS, London.
JOSIAH BEDDOW, London.
HENRY BOLLAND, Liverpool.
JAMES CHARLES BOLTON, London.
HARRY BRETT, London.
ROBERT BUCK, Sunderland.
JOHN CALDECOTT, Chester.
WALTER NEWTON FISHER, Birmingham
EBENEZER CHAMBERS FOREMAN, London.
EDWARD NORTON HARPER, London.
WILLIAM COMBEN HARVEY, London.
JOHN ALISON HESELTON, Bradford.
GEORGE EDWARD LADBURY, London
FRANCIS NICHOLLS, London.
WILLIAM JOHN PARRY, Bethesda.
EDWARD THOS. PEIRSON, Coventry.
EDWARD SMITH, Manchester.
F. TENDRON, London.
JOHN HENRY TILLY, London.
LEWIS VOISEY, Warrington.
EDWIN WILKS, Plymouth.
JOHN UNWIN WING, Sheffield.

TRUSTEES.—JOHN BATH, 40a, King William Street, London; THOMAS COLTMAN, Leicester; JOSEPH DAVIES, Warrington.
TREASURER.—JAMES CHARLES BOLTON, 26 Great St. Helens, and 2 St. Mary Axe, London.
AUDITORS.—R. R. ROBINSON, London; C. PEMBER, Hereford.
BANKERS.—Messrs, WILLIAMS, DEACON, & Co., Birchin Lane, London.
OFFICES—2 COWPER'S COURT, CORNHILL, LONDON.
Further information can be obtained, and copies of the Rules can be had, upon application to
ALFRED C. HARPER, SECRETARY.

H. D. RAWLINGS,

PURVEYOR OF MINERAL WATERS TO

H. R. H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.
H. R. H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH.
H. R. H. THE PRINCE CHRISTIAN.
THE LATE EMPEROR NAPOLEON III.
AND THE PRINCIPAL COURTS OF EUROPE.

Gold Medallist of the Societe Nationale Agricole Manufacturiere et Commerciale de Paris.

SODA, BRIGHTON, SELTZER and all other Mineral Waters for HOME CONSUMPTION and EXPORTATION.
PRICE LISTS on Application, at the Manufactory, Nassau-street, W.

ALFRED W. GEE,

ADVERTISING AGENT,

62, GRACECHURCH STREET,

LONDON, E.C.

London Gazette Notices, and Advertisements and Announcements of all kinds for English, Colonial, and Foreign Newspapers promptly inserted.

N.B.—In the case of an ordinary Advertisement ordered for insertion in a number of Newspapers, only one MS. copy need be forwarded. Same rates charged as at the Publishing Offices.

Printed and Published for the Proprietor by WILLIAMS & STRAHAN, 7 Lawrence Lane, Cheapside. SEPTEMBER 11, 1875.

Digitized by Google

The Accountant.

A MEDIUM OF COMMUNICATION BETWEEN ACCOUNTANTS IN ALL PARTS OF THE UNITED KINGDOM

VOL. I.—NEW SERIES.—No. 41.] SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1875. [PRICE 6D.

Established 1843.
PERIODICAL SALE OF REVERSIONS, ANNUITIES, LIFE POLICIES, SHARES, &c.

MESSRS. MARSH, MILNER, AND Co., are preparing their printed particulars for the forthcoming Monthly AUCTION, which is held the FIRST THURSDAY in every month. To insure due publicity, particulars of Properties intended to be included in the next sale should be forwarded, without delay, to the City Land and Reversion Offices, 54 Cannon Street, London.

LAND, Domains, Mountain Ranges, Woods, Forests, and Important Residential Estates. Messrs. MARSH, MILNER, and Co., Land Valuers and Timber Surveyors, have a number of WEALTHY BUYERS DESIROUS of INVESTING in AGRICULTURAL, SPORTING, and RESIDENTIAL ESTATES. OWNERS of marketable properties wishing to effect advantageous sales are therefore invited to forward plans and particulars, which when received, will be judiciously placed before intending purchasers, publicity being carefully avoided, and written terms settled before any cost or liability is incurred. Address Messrs. Marsh, Milner, and Co., Land and Timber Surveyors, 54 Cannon-street, London, E.C.

MESSRS. MARSH, MILNER, AND Co.'s REGISTER of LANDED ESTATES, Town and Country Residences, and property of every description, is published Monthly, and may be obtained at the Auction, Land, and Estate Agency Offices, 54 Cannon-street, E.C., or will be forwarded by post on application.

MORTGAGES promptly NEGOTIATED upon Landed Estates, City Properties, and upon sound securities of all kinds. Messrs. MARSH, MILNER and Co., have at the present time access to large sums of Money ready to be immediately advanced upon approved securities. Apply at the City Land and Reversion Offices (Established 1843), 54 Cannon-street.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

39 BROAD-STREET, BRISTOL,
JUNE 24TH, 1875.

The PARTNERSHIP hitherto existing under the Style or Firm HANCOCK, TRIGGS, & CO., having been DISSOLVED by mutual consent, I beg to give notice that I purpose henceforth to CARRY ON BUSINESS as a PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT at the above address.

PHILIP TRIGGS.

MESSRS. BARRETT AND PATEY,
PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS,
90 LONDON WALL, E.C.

HAVING removed from No. 8 Finsbury Circus, to more commodious offices at the above address, will be pleased to hear from Accountants resident in the provincial and manufacturing towns who require agents in London.

LOVEWELL BLAKE, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT, RECEIVER, AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY.
SECRETARY TO THE GREAT YARMOUTH TRADERS' ASSOCIATION.
OFFICES: HALL QUAY CHAMBERS, GREAT YARMOUTH.

J. F. TITCHMARSH, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT AND AUDITOR.
17 PRINCESS STREET, IPSWICH.

RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY AND LIQUIDATION.

TO WHOLESALE PROVISION MERCHANTS.—To be disposed of by Private Sale, the business of a wholesale Provision Merchant in Newcastle-upon-Tyne, doing a large trade.—For further particulars apply to Mr. John M. Winter, 56 Westgate-road, Newcastle-upon Tyne.

WILLIAMS & STRAHAN,
Legal, Accountancy, & General Printers,
MANUFACTURING STATIONERS, &c.
7 LAWRENCE LANE, CHEAPSIDE, LONDON.

Bankruptcy Forms, Statements of Affairs, Dividend Notices, Balance Sheets, &c., printed with despatch.
STEAM PRINTING WORKS, LAMBETH, S.E.

TRANSLATIONS.
MR. ALFRED W. GEE,
BRITISH AND FOREIGN ADVERTISING AGENT,
62 GRACECHURCH STREET, LONDON, E.C.,

Begs to announce that in compliance with a wish expressed by some of the subscribers to the Accountant, he has made arrangements for the translation of legal and commercial documents, correspondence, &c., into the Principal European Languages. . Members of the Profession are therefore respectfully informed that arrangements can be made for efficient and speedy translations into, or from, the French, German, Italian Spanish, and Dutch Languages on Moderate Terms.

RESTAURANT,
13 OXFORD STREET,
Near the corner of Tottenham-court-road.
Known as the BODEGA, now under the new management of Mr. L. BOECKER, late of 13 Idol-lane, City.
Luncheons from the joints, hot or cold, including vegetables and bread, 1s. 3d
Dinners from 12 till 4 o'clock, from the joint, with soup or fish, vegetables, cheese and bread, 2s.
Dinners from 6 till 9 o'clock, from 2s. 6d. to 10s. 6d.
Private Dining Rooms for large and small parties on the Second Floor.

Digitized by Google

THE INSTITUTE OF ACCOUNTANTS.

President, WILLIAM QUILTER.

Vice-President, WILLIAM TURQUAND.

COUNCIL.

JOHN BALL (Quilter, Ball, and Co., London).
HARMOOD WALCOT BANNER (Liverpool).
HENRY WEBSTER BLACKBURN (H. W. and J. Blackburn, Bradford, Yorkshire).
GEORGE AUGUSTUS CAPE (Cape and Harris, London).
HENRY CROYSDILL (Croysdill, Saffery, and Co., London).
EDWARD CARTER (Carter and Carter, Birmingham).
WILLIAM WELCH DELOITTE (Deloitte, Dever, Griffiths, and Co., London).
ROBERT FLETCHER (Robert Fletcher and Co., London).
ROBERT PALMER HARDING (Harding, Whinney, and Co., London).
CHARLES FITCH KEMP (C. F. Kemp, Ford, and Co, London).
GEORGE HERBERT LADBURY (Ladbury, Collison, and Viney, London).
SAMUEL LOWELL PRICE (Price, Waterhouse, and Co., London).
WILLIAM QUILTER (Quilter, Ball, and Co., London).
GEO. EDWIN SWITHINBANK (Gillespie, Swithinbank, and Co., London, and Newcastle-on-Tyne).
WILLIAM TURQUAND (Turquand, Youngs and Co., London).
JOHN YOUNG (Turquand, Youngs and Co., London).

TRUSTEES.

WILLIAM HOPKINS HOLYLAND (London).
ALFRED AUGUSTUS JAMES (James and Edwards, London).
ALEXANDER YOUNG (Turquand, Youngs and Co., London).

AUDITORS.

FREDERICK WHINNEY (Harding, Whinney and Co., London).
SAMUEL BARROW (Barrow and Gates, London).

BANKERS.

MESSRS. FULLER, BANBURY, NIX, and MATHIESON, 77 Lombard Street, E.C.

SOLICITOR.

HENRY MARKBY (Markby, Tarry and Stewart), 57 Coleman Street, E.C.

SECRETARY.

THOMAS A. WELTON, 30 Moorgate Street, E.C.

Under RULE 16, applicants for admission as Associate up to 1st of July, 1878 (save as provided by RULE 19) must be twenty-one years of age, and must have served for not less than five years as clerk, either articled or otherwise. to a member of this Institute or of some other Institute or Society of Accountants, or else must have been in Partnership with such a person for not less than four years, or have been in practice as a Professional Accountant for the five consecutive years preceding the date of application.

RULE 10 is to the effect that Fellows shall (except as provided by RULE 19) for the future be elected from among the Associates only; RULE 19 enacts that it shall be competent to the Institute, in special cases, to admit persons either as Fellows or Associates who may not be eligible under the foregoing regulations, provided such persons have made application to the Council, accompanied by the proper written recommendation according to the Rules, and have received the recommendation of three-fourths at least of the Council.

Applicants for admission as Associate must be recommended to the Council by at least one Fellow of the Institute in the terms prescribed.

Applicants for admission as Fellow must be recommended in like manner by at least three Fellows.

The Membership of the Institute is by RULE 53 restricted to persons who are not engaged in any other pursuit than that of a Professional Accountant.

THOMAS A. WELTON, SECRETARY.

30 Moorgate-street, E.C., 23rd July, 1875.

Digitized by Google

The Accountant.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

The ACCOUNTANT is printed and published in time for Friday evening's mail; price 6d. per copy, or 28s. per annum (including postage), the reduced terms for payment in advance being: annual subscription 24s. (post free); half-yearly ditto, 13s. (post free). Cheques and Post-office orders to be made payable to Mr. Alfred W. Gee, 62 Gracechurch-street, E.C., to whom applications for advertisement space, and letters relating to the general business of the paper, should also be addressed. Literary communications should be directed to the Editor of the ACCOUNTANT at the same address, and in order to ensure insertion in the current number, correspondents are respectfully requested to forward their copy as early in the week as possible.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The Proprietor desires to call the attention of Advertisers to the special advantages offered by the paper as an Advertising medium. Starting with a good guaranteed circulation, and with the entire concurrence and hearty support of the leading members of the profession, the ACCOUNTANT has achieved a large measure of success in a wide field hitherto unoccupied by any professional organ. The ACCOUNTANT thus secures to Advertisers an excellent circulation of an exclusive character; and is particularly valuable as a medium for the announcements of members of the profession, as to Estates and Declaration of Dividends, and the appointment of Trustees and Receivers; for Publishers, Printers, Law Stationers, Auctioneers, and Estate Agents; for the Advertisements of Insurance and Public Companies; and for Notices as to Investments, Vacant Partnerships, &c. Advertisements intended for insertion in the current number, should reach the office on Thursday; late announcements can, however, be received up to 12 o'clock (noon) on Friday.

N.B.—Copies may be obtained at Messrs. W. H. Smith and Sons, Strand, at their numerous Railway Bookstalls, and at the Shops of the leading City and West-End Newsvendors.

TO SUBSCRIBERS

In consequence of numerous applications from subscribers, the proprietor has made arrangements for the supply of CASES for holding and preserving the Accountant, which may be obtained at the office on the following terms:—In green cloth (well got up), with elastics, and "The Accountant" in gold letters on front, 3s. each; same in leather, 4s. 6d. each. Subscribers' names in gold lettering, 1s. extra. Post Office Orders payable to ALFRED W. GEE, 62 Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

The Accountant.

SEPTEMBER 18, 1875.

Now that it is pretty generally admitted that the law of bankruptcy has been relaxed very much in favour of the debtor, it may be worth while to consider some of the enactments of former statute law on the subject, and see exactly how far the stringency of their provisions has been modified; and by so doing, we may form an opinion how far a retrograde movement may be expedient. With reference to imprisonment for debt, we must say at once that it is a practice which ought never to be restored as it existed previous to the passing of the Debtors Act. To arrest a man for debt, and to punish him like a criminal for not having the means to pay it, is simply barbarous. It would be far wiser to restore a still more ancient practice, and to condemn the debtor to work out his debt, than to shut him off from any means of getting a livelihood, and so prevent him from paying his creditors. But with the increased deference which is paid to the liberty of the individual debtor, has come a great want of control over defaulters. Bankruptcy is now resorted to as an easy means of escape from all difficulties, instead of a measure of the most extreme self-preservation. How far this is attributable to the leniency of the law we propose to examine.

Theoretically the practice in bankruptcy is marked by the most admirable principles. The estate is to be administered in the interest of all creditors, and they have absolute power to do what they think most expedient. On the other hand, the debtor is entitled to his discharge on certain lenient conditions; and so long as he has only made away with half as much as he received, can claim it as a matter of right. But the creditors have the control over the discharge, and in the case of liquidation their resolution is an essential preliminary. The assent of the creditors to the discharge is not of unbroken usage. Under 4 & 5 Anne, cap. 17, the power of granting a certificate to the bankrupt is vested in the commissioners alone. A statute of the subsequent year provided that the certificate should be first signed by four-fifths in number and in value of the creditors. The power, though modified by succeeding statutes, was still vested in creditors till the year 1842, when the signatures of the creditors were dispensed with, and power was given to the commissioner, either to allow the discharge, or suspend it, or grant it upon such conditions as he might think fit, subject to confirmation of his action by the Court of Review. The Act of 1849 did away with the necessity of confirmation, but granted a right of appeal. Under this act, certain proceedings on the part of the bankrupt are stated to have the effect of making the certificate void (section 251), and certificates were by schedule Z, to the act, divided into three classes. The first-class certificate was granted only where the bankruptcy had arisen from unavoidable losses and misfortunes; the second class, where it had not wholly arisen from unavoidable losses and misfortunes; and the third class, where it had not arisen from unavoidable losses or misfortunes at all. These distinctions were abolished by Lord Westbury's Act in 1861.

Digitized by Google

To Lord Westbury belongs the honour, such as it is, of having endeavoured to cut down the discretionary powers of the commissioners. According to the act, and the interpretation of its provisions which he himself gave in his judgment in the well-known case of Re Mew and Thorne, the discharge must be granted, unless the bankrupt has been guilty of certain offences specified in the Act. These are: 1. Carrying on trade by fictitious capital. 2. Contracting debts without reasonable expectation of payment. 3. Neglecting, if a trader, to keep proper books. 4. Failing through rash and hazardous speculations, or extravagant living. 5. Vexatiously defending any actions. The Act of 1869 sweeps away these offences, and makes the order of discharge consequent upon payment of ten shillings in the pound, with the exceptions specified in the 48th section of the Act, with which all our readers are sufficiently familiar. It is obvious that the modern provisions are much more favourable to the debtor, and it is impossible to look through the clauses of the Act of 1861 without seeing that the re-enactment of some of them would meet many of the complaints which are so loud against the working of the Act. The third provision, especially, is one which all accountants would consider of importance. Incorrect books, sometimes no books at all, sometimes books so arranged and made up as to be misleading to any one who has not the key to their solution, are common occurrences in bankruptcy; and one of the great difficulties is to prepare a clear statement of affairs. Why this provision, so essential in impressing proper business habits on a trader, has been cut down into altering or falsifying books within four months of bankruptcy, it is difficult to say. Moreover, the omission to keep books was an omission that might be punished in various ways by the commissioner; the offences against the Debtors Act involve the machinery of a prosecution, and a trial before judge and jury, with even the possibility of a judicial lecture on the heinousness of incurring any further costs. The fifth offence is one which has almost entirely died out. Just as smuggling came to an untimely end when free trade became universal, so nobody ever thinks of defending an action vexatiously when so ready a means is at hand of getting rid of all debts and liabilities at one clean sweep. But the clause as to rash and hazardous speculations, is one which would be of peculiar importance in the present day. How many debtors are there whose collapse is owing, not to unavoidable misfortunes in business, but to speculations on the Stock Exchange, or ventures quite beyond the scope of their ordinary trade! Under the old Act there were fewer cases in which the assets bore an infinitesimal ratio to the liabilities. The re-enactment of this provision would cure a great evil. Many a firm has been induced to endeavour to recover some part of its losses by speculation, sure of but little notice being taken of such proceedings.

Lastly, we would urge, as to orders of discharge, that it would be as well to distinguish more clearly between the purely ministerial duty of realising the assets, and the judicial duty of examining into the conduct of the debtor. When men make a practice of resorting to liquidation as an easy mode of escape from their embarrassments, on the condition of giving up the portion of their creditors' money that they have not succeeded in irretrievably wasting, it is time that a check should be put upon such criminal vagaries. Every one must pity honest misfortune; but at the same time a suicidal leniency must not be extended to recklessness and dishonesty.

Two Scotch cases which we report this week illustrate admirably the simple mode in which people contrive to become bankrupt, with only nominal assets to set against a large account of liabilities. The first is the common case of a man starting in business with no capital, and looking upon the bankruptcy law as a means kindly devised by a paternal legislature for relieving him from any anxiety on the score of his pecuniary responsibilities. Mr. Duncan McLaren, indeed, seems to be thoroughly experienced in the art of whitewashing. He starts as a bankrupt in 1868, and then having given up all his property to his creditors, among whom is included a friendly one in the shape of his father, he commences life anew by buying a business for which he never pays. Less than four years afterwards, he calls a meeting of his creditors, when his balance-sheet, which is then made out for the first time, shows that he can pay exactly five shillings in the pound. A brief space of two years elapses, and then Mr. McLaren, feeling that on revient toujours à ses premiers amours, betakes himself again to the protecting shades of the Bankruptcy Court. This time his statement of affairs is even less favourable to his business capabilities. He has to show liabilities of over £1,100, his assets being £140—as nearly as possible one-eighth part of their amount—and he has contrived to make bad debts and losses to the amount of £1,338. What the future of Mr. McLaren will be it is difficult to predict, and it might be as well for his country to consider the advisability of supporting him at the public expense. It seems clear that if he again urges on his wild career as a trader, it will result in no benefit to him, and positive loss to those with whom he may chance to do business. Possibly, improved legislation may result in preventing the repetition of such a story as this. Even the much-abused Act of 1861 would have been of some efficacy; but the much-vaunted Scotch law is simply powerless. We hope that Mr. McLaren will confine his energies to his own country, where they have been so successful, and resolutely turn his back to the "noblest prospect that a Scotchman can ever see."

Digitized by Google

The history of Messrs. Wilson and Armstrong is no less instructive, and the frankness with which Mr. Walter Armstrong favoured the Court with his autobiography, leaves nothing to be desired, except that no such story may ever have to be told again. Mr. Wilson and Mr. Armstrong are tweed manufacturers, their joint capital, including stock, plant and buildings, amounting to £18,500, of which Mr. Armstrong contributed £3,500. For some time their business throve amazingly, and it was this exceeding prosperity that was the first cause of their misfortunes. Finding that money poured in upon them, they began to speculate with more vigour than judgment, and in 15 years they succeeded in losing £240,000, while of this a large amount was lost in pure speculation. Theirs was not the case of men ruined by the unforeseen chances of trade; their failure, as the senior partner candidly stated, was owing entirely to the "losses made by their London house out of trade and speculation." This, surely, is a case in which it is an abuse to invoke the protection of the law. There, again, the provision of the Act of 1861 against engaging in hazardous speculations might advantageously be brought into play. The creditors of the firm in their proper mercantile capacity suffer heavy loss, not from any causes which, in the ordinary course of trade, quick foresight might have enabled them to have checked, but because of these gambling transactions, utterly foreign to their legitimate business, in which the partners saw fit to engage.

We hear a great deal of the vast superiority of the Scotch system in all mercantile matters, but we suspect that a good deal of the boast is founded more upon the national characteristics of the Scotch than on any very searching comparison of the two systems. Such cases as the two we have commented on, show that the bankruptcy law is a mere farce played for the amusement of the debtor, or it would be impossible for a man to fail three times in six years; and that the fever of gambling and speculation is just as keen among the prudent inhabitants beyond the Tweed as it is among the more fervid southern race. Formerly there was some amount of disgrace attached to bankruptcy; and it would be better to let the law press heavily on debtors, than to see it contemptuously made use of as it is at present. In these instances, at least, the fault is more with the law than those concerned in administering it.

The rights of dissenting creditors under a composition are now fully ascertained, and the case of Re Whitaker Ex parte Tomlinson, which we reported last week, has been decided in the fullest accordance with the most recent authorities. The section of the Act which regulates compositions, gives power to the court to enforce the debtor's obedience to the resolution in a summary manner, or the creditor may, if he prefers it, bring his action for the full amount of his debt. But where a trustee has been appointed, it is simple justice that the debtor shall not be punished for default on his part; and so it has been held that no action can be maintained against the debtor if the trustee neglect to pay the composition. As regards the argument that the trustee is bound to pay the composition without requiring any proof of the debt, the position of the law is rather curious. A creditor cannot vote at a general meeting in respect of "any debt the value of which is not ascertained," and these words have been decided to include untaxed costs; but a compounding debtor is bound to estimate their value, and pay the composition on the estimated amount. This is, however, a different thing from saying that no proof of the debt should be required. It would, in the case referred to, have been competent to a trustee to show that the debt was fictitious altogether. The distinction between the creditor's remedy, in cases where there is a trustee and where there is not, is obvious. If the debtor neglects to pay, he may be sued, or punished by the court. If the trustee neglects his duty, the proper course is to apply to the court to compel him, and not to try to recover what is virtually a penalty from a man who has performed his share of the bargain, and has had, moreover, no voice in the election of the trustee.

Digitized by Google

We have often said that the right of refusing registration to resolutions for liquidation and composition has been unduly strained, though doubtless with good results; but there can be no doubt whatever as to the duty of a registrar, to satisfy himself that all necessary formalities have been observed. In the case of Samuel Webb, at the Wigan County Court, the registrar refused to register a resolution for liquidation because no statement of affairs had been presented to the meeting. As against this refusal, the 3rd and 4th clauses of the 125th section were quoted, to show that the registration was a matter of course. Whether the amount of the assets should influence the registrar's decision has long ago been decided in the affirmative, though the creditors, who know that the arrangement is illusory, have come to a resolution which "whitewashes the debtor." But the presence of the debtor, and the production of his statement, are essential parts of the formalities of the meeting, and the registrar is bound to inquire if all due formalities have been observed. Mr. Webb's solicitor asked for an adjournment, to find authorities. We will present him with one. In the case of a composition, unless a statement of debts and assets, with the names and addresses of all creditors, has been produced, a resolution to accept a composition cannot be registered. This is decided by Ex parte Sidey, reported in the 24th volume of the Law Times. Further, the statement must show a clear distinction between joint and several debts. It is plain, therefore, that the registrar is bound, not only to require the production of the statement, but to examine it.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

"A SUBSCRIBER."—A stamp must be affixed on all receipts for sums amounting to £2 or upwards. We never heard of any exception in bankruptcy cases.

RENT.—A trustee may disclaim a lease, even though he has taken possession; and in that case, the surrender is held to relate back to the adjudication, and no rent would be payable. But we have inquired of legal friends, and are told they can give no decided opinion on the point. Our impression is that the £15 only is payable, but it is a question which must be decided by judicial authority. Perhaps some of our readers can give further information.

Correspondence.

FAILURE OF THE BANKRUPTCY LAW UNDER "FREE TRADE."

To the Editor of the Accountant.

SIR,—The Hour, some short time since, published a series of letters signed "Hyde" under the above heading. The letter appearing in that paper on the 31st August, commenced by criticising the sale of the Report of the Comptroller in Bankruptcy for three-halfpence in lieu of the price at which the writer valued it, namely one shilling. "Hyde" complained also of the "wholesale fraud committed under that amiable process called bankruptcy," and accuses people of selling their goods without a profit and becoming insolvent according to the modern commercial system, and charges the authorities with setting the example by selling documents "at less than cost price, and levying direct taxes to make up the loss;" and thereupon went a little into the statistics furnished by the report in question, and argued that "the law ought never to give a man a clearance from his debts and liabilities."

There is a great deal of reason in some of "Hyde's" remarks, but I cannot agree with him that if a man meets once with a misfortune he shall have no chance of retrieving his position. Furthermore, I am a believer in "free trade," but I certainly think that the expression is entirely misconstrued, not only by the existing bankruptcy law, but also by creditors themselves. The present practice appears to be to grant unreasonable credit upon the slightest provocation, to allow men to squander or divert their assets in the most reckless and barefaced way, and then, on their filing a petition, to accept any composition which they may be graciously pleased to offer, or hush up the matter quietly under liquidation. Now, sir, my idea of "free trade" is, to give liberty to every man to try his luck, if he thinks he sees his way; but for creditors themselves to ascertain whether they are asked to trust a speculator, or a hard-working and intelligent man. It is certain that the overcrowded state of England, and the keenness of competition, render it very difficult for small men to hold their own against wealthy or unscrupulous houses unless they possess ability and energy above the average, and therefore, in spite of a man's best efforts, he may find it impossible to succeed. There are also many circumstances connected with trade and credit (for trade means credit) which prevent a man from making a positive certainty of success, even after the most careful calculations. I should, therefore, be sorry to see a law which prevented an honest but unfortunate man from getting his release; while, on the other hand, I should like to see a law which would render it impossible for a man, without the unanimous consent of all his creditors, to effect an arrangement of less than twenty shillings in the pound, unless the deficiency were first clearly explained and authenticated.

I recently attended a meeting whereat a statement of affairs was submitted, showing liabilities to the amount of £140,000, against trade assets of £2,700 only, which were increased by supposed surpluses from the separate estates to a total of £13,500. The difference between £13,500 and £140,000 is not small, and some of the creditors very reasonably desired to know what had become of this large sum,—whether the alleged losses had been incurred during the last year, whether they were of ten or twenty years standing, or whether a purse had been made for the secret benefit of the debtors. But this the debtors positively declined to explain, and treated the very suggestion as an insult. It was urged that the misconduct of the debtor of itself justified recourse to bankruptcy, and many of the creditors in the room seemed to be of that opinion, and desired a strict investigation and public exposé of the matter; but the majority of the creditors elected to liquidate, and I suppose we shall hear no more of it.

Digitized by Google

Now, sir, I believe very much in amicable arrangements between debtors and creditors, and strongly advocate compositions, although not so profitable to all parties as liquidations or bankruptcy; but I do not believe in men hanging on until they have practically eaten up every thing, and then quietly escaping from their debts by way of liquidation. In my opinion, creditors should use some discrimination, and when they get hold of a glaring case make a thorough example of the delinquent, reserving all their pity for persons deserving of sympathy.

I am, Sir,
Yours faithfully,
PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT.

London, September 10th, 1875.

A QUERY.

To the Editor of the Accountant.

SIR,—Will you kindly say which is correct of the two following interpretations of the 34th Section B. A., 1869:—A. B. was bankrupt 25th May: at that time he owed landlord the half-year's rent, due 12th May previous to the bankruptcy; also a balance of £2 10s. of previous half-year, in all £15. The trustee only vacated premises a day or two prior to another quarter's rent becoming due. Landlord claims to be paid in full for what has accrued subsequent to the bankruptcy, as well as the £15 previous to it. Trustee thinks he should rank for the subsequent quarter as a common debt, not being of opinion that the Act contemplated whatever was deficient of a year's rent prior to bankruptcy was to be made up by adding thereto what had accrued during the bankruptcy. Can you tell me which is correct?

Your obedient servant,
RENT.

MR. REGISTRAR ROCHE.

To the Editor of the Accountant.

DEAR SIR,—I am sure all your readers will learn with much regret the death of Mr. Registrar Roche. The cases which come before the learned Registrars are not always of the most respectable character, and many are the opportunities of testing the patience and temper of the Judges of that Court. Mr. Registrar Roche, while he knew how to uphold the dignity of the Court, will leave behind him a good name for patience and invariable courtesy; and his death will, I am sure, be regretted by many accountants. I, for one, shall miss his old familiar face and pleasant ways.

H. B.

London, 15th September, 1875.

THE BANKRUPTCY COURT.—The stamp duty in bankruptcy matters realised a net sum in the year ended March 31 of £63,072 10s. 7d.

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY.

September 14.

(Before Mr. Registrar PEPYS.)

IN RE ANDERSON, DUNCAN, AND ANDERSON.—The debtors, John Anderson, John Duncan, and George Gray Anderson, trading in co-partnership as merchants at 17 Philpot-lane, under the firm of John Anderson and Co., and at Colombo as Duncan, Anderson, and Co., had presented a petition for the liquidation of their affairs, and at a meeting recently held the creditors resolved to liquidate the estate by arrangement, Mr. Bishop, accountant, Tokenhouse-yard, being appointed trustee, with a committee of inspection. A statement of the joint affairs disclosed liabilities to the extent of £144,746, and assets £31,595, besides doubtful items returned at about £42,000. The case now came before the court upon the hearing of an application for leave to register the resolutions, and in the absence of opposition registration was ordered.

IN RE HEALD, MATHWIN, AND CO.—The debtors, Joseph Heald, William Mathwin, Francis Brichta, and William M'Allum, were merchants, ship and insurance brokers, commission agents, and steamship owners, of Billiter-street, and also trading at Newcastle-on-Tyne and Constantinople, under the firm of Heald, Mathwin, and Co. Liquidation of their estate by arrangement has been agreed upon, Mr. T. Y. Strachan, accountant, Newcastle, being appointed trustee, and the debtor's discharge was also granted. Liabilities returned at £51,146, and assets £21,022. Registration of the resolutions was now allowed.

(Before Mr. Registrar PEPYS.)

IN RE DA COSTA RAALTI AND CO.—In this case the creditors had agreed to liquidate by arrangement. The liabilities amount to £135,580 10s., and the assets £85,290 9s. 7d. It was stated that a question of great nicety had arisen with respect to the connection of the firm with that of Messrs. Behrend Brothers, of Alexandria, whose affairs were being liquidated under the German law, and the relations were such that, without being actual partners, each firm was entitled to participate in the profits of the other, and important questions would have to be determined both in the law courts of this country and Germany as to the amount of the profits to which they were entitled. The applicant, however, contended that even a quasi-partnership with a foreign firm would not disentitle an English firm from taking the benefit of the bankruptcy law, still less would it prevent the registration of a resolution of the creditors. The relations between the two firms could only be determined in the courts, and their decision would only affect the distribution of the assets. His Honour, taking this view, decided that the resolution must be registered, and made an order accordingly.

RE ROBERT BENSON AND CO.—The debtors in this case were London and Liverpool and American merchants, who recently failed for £82,900. The resolution with reference to the joint estate has been registered, but on the application to-day to register that with reference to the separate estate, Mr. J. Linklater stated that the resolution had been objected to in the office, on the ground that two of the debtors were formerly in partnership with the late Mr. Robert Benson, and that his executors must be made parties to the proceeding and his estate liable. After hearing a lengthened argument, his Honour decided that, inasmuch as the two debtors in question were continuing partners, being surviving members of the old firm, and that a new firm was constituted on the death of Mr. R. Benson, he had no jurisdiction, sitting as Registrar, to enter into the legal question, but was bound by the proceedings, which appeared to be regular. Registration ordered.

IN RE DOWSE BROS.—His Honour also ordered the registration of a resolution for liquidation by arrangement in the case of these debtors, who were potato salesmen in the metropolitan markets, and who recently failed for £140,190. In the course of the proceedings Mr. Linklater took occasion to express the regret felt by himself and the profession generally at the great loss the court had sustained in the death of Mr. Registrar Roche, who was much esteemed alike for the soundness of his decisions and his courteous and kindly bearing towards all who had to come before him. It appears that the deceased registrar's death was not quite so sudden as has been stated. He had complained of being unwell for some days, and especially on Tuesday last, when he sat as liquidation judge. Mr. Registrar Pepys also expressed his sorrow at the death of his learned colleague, and stated that, finding his health failing, Mr. Roche had taken an early vacation, in the hope that an interval of rest would restore his powers, but unfortunately such was not the result.

Digitized by Google

Mr. Henry Philip Roche was a member of Lincoln's Inn, and was called to the Bar in Michaelmas Term, 1848. He was appointed one of the Registrars of the Court of Bankruptcy by Lord Westbury, in acknowledgment of the services he had rendered in framing the Bankruptcy Act of 1861.

EDINBURGH BANKRUPTCY COURT.

September 9.

At this Court yesterday, Duncan M'Laren, carrying on business at Bread-street as an ironmonger, under the firm of M'Laren and Son, appeared before Sheriff Hallard for examination in bankruptcy. Bankrupt, in answer to the trustee, Mr. James Drummond, C.A., stated that he was sole partner of the firm of M'Laren and Son, and that he commenced business in Bread-street, at the end of 1868. He got the business which had been previously carried on by his father and brother, but he had no capital. The sum he had to pay for the goodwill and stock was £213, but no part of that sum had yet been paid. Previous to taking over the business of his father and brother he had been in difficulties, and obtained a degree of cessio in March 1868. Every thing that he then possessed was made over to the trustee, including his furniture, which was sold to his father for £15 odds. His father took delivery of the furniture, which was moved out of the house, and bankrupt left the town. On returning to Edinburgh the greater part of the furniture was restored to him. He went on in business till 1872, but during the whole of that time he never took a balance sheet. In 1872 he called a meeting of his creditors, and his state of affairs then showed a dividend of 5s. in the pound. There were between £200 and £300 of bills granted by bankrupt for the accommodation of others in the hands of the bank. He paid 5s. in the pound on his liabilities under the accommodation bills, 20s. in the pound to some of his trade creditors, and the claims of some of them which were not so extinguished were carried forward. Some time ago he became a member of four building associations, his object being to make money—(laughter)—and specially to get their contracts for the furnishing of ironmongery. His anticipations of making money in this matter were not realised, but, on the contrary, he attributed his present bankruptcy chiefly to his connection with these building societies. These associations owed him, for work done and materials supplied, accounts amounting to between £400 and £500, and he was under large liabilities as a member. In the case of two of these associations, meetings were held to allot the houses among the members; the allocation was made but not carried out. In the year 1869 he bought four houses in Dalry Park-terrace at the price of £550 for the whole lot, and he borrowed a sum equal to the price on the security of these houses. He also gave in as security a policy on his own life, for the sum of £200. He had no other property transactions. In June, 1874, he opened at Haymarket-terrace, a branch establishment of his ironmongery business. He left the branch on 25th May last. He had got the stock for £15 when he went into the shop, but he did not pay the money, and he made over the stock to his successor in the place, Mr. Hay, on condition that he would pay the sum and the rent to the landlord. The stock had grown in value from £15 to £17, and he got the difference. All the four building associations of which he was a member were insolvent, so far as he knew, and they were all under the management of a judicial factor or trustee. His liabilities were £1,124 8s. 7d., besides unascertained building association claims, and the assets £140 3s. 11d., excluding claims of £45 against building associations, being a deficit of £984 4s. 8d. He handed in to his trustee a list of bad debts and losses to the amount of £1,338 5s. 3d. No goods had been removed out of his shop since sequestration, except in the ordinary course of trade. In answer to Mr. Roy, bankrupt said he was not in a position to place any value at present, as an asset in his estate, on his claims as a member of the four building associations. The principal men of these societies were practical men connected with the building trade. These societies got estimates for the erection of their houses, but in dealing with these estimates the members of the association got the preference. He could not remember any case in which a contract was given to an outsider. Mr. Roy—Did it not come to this, that the taking of estimates was a mere farce and form? Bankrupt—It served as a check upon the member who got the contract. There was no limitation of liability in these building associations. The statutory oath was then administered.

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY, DUBLIN.

September 8.

(Before JUDGE HARRISON.)

IN RE WM. BORTHWICK.—The bankrupt had been a seed merchant, carrying on business in North-street, Belfast. Mr. H. Fitzgibbon and Dr. Houston, instructed by Messrs. Armstrong and Johnstone, Belfast, appeared for the assignees. Mr. Falkiner, Q C., instructed by Mr. Browning, appeared for Mr. Kirkpatrick, who claimed to be a creditor on the estate. The case came before his Lordship on appeal from the ruling of the Chief Registrar, dated the 16th of August, admitting the proof of the alleged debt of Mr. Kirkpatrick for the sum of £602 18s. 8d. The application was for an order that the ruling should be reversed or varied, and that the proof of the debt should be expunged, or only admitted subject to the condition that all the creditors of the bankrupt should be first paid in full, the allegation being that the said J. J. Kirkpatrick was a partner of the bankrupt, and that he was not entitled to a share of the profit of the trading carried on with the moneys in respect of which the said proof of debt had been made. It appeared that on the 16th of August, a meeting for proof of debts was held before the Chief Registrar, and on that occasion Mr. Kirkpatrick was examined and cross-examined at considerable length by counsel, and after argument the Chief Registrar admitted Mr. Kirkpatrick's proof to the amount in question, £602 18s. 8d. From that ruling the present appeal was brought. Mr. Kirkpatrick had served his time to the bankrupt. His apprenticeship expired in 1870, and after its expiration he entered into the employment of Mr. Borthwick, as he stated, at a salary. Mr. Fitzgibbon, Q.C., opened the case, and referred in detail to the evidence of Mr. Kirkpatrick, contending that it showed a partnership between himself and the bankrupt. Mr. Kirkpatrick was employed as a salesman and buyer, and he lent £800 in different sums to the bankrupt, on which he was to receive 5 per cent. The condition besides, on which, it is stated, he lent the money, was that he was to get half the profits on what was known as the Irish Flax account, in the purchase of which flax the money so lent was to be expended, and which was to be security for the loan. It was contended on the part of the assignees that the agreement constituted Mr. Kirkpatrick the partner of the bankrupt. Counsel having been heard on both sides, Judge Harrison said he would take time to consider his decision.

Digitized by Google

JEDBURGH BANKRUPTCY COURT.

The adjourned examination in bankruptcy of Messrs Wilson and Armstrong, tweed manufacturers and warehousemen, Hawick and London, was held yesterday in the Court-room, Jedburgh, for the purpose of questioning Mr. Walter Armstrong both as a partner of the firm and as an individual. Bankrupt having been sworn, deponed in answer to the trustee —When I joined Mr. Wilson, in 1853, I was possessed of about £3,500 of capital. Mr. Wilson's capital was about £15,000, in cash, buildings and plant. That, I understand, was the capital of which he was possessed after deducting liabilities. Our business was as manufacturers and merchants, and until about 1861 we confined our business to that, when we began to speculate in stocks. I should say it was owing to our having spare money in our business that we invested it in shares. We accumulated money rapidly in London, to say nothing of what we made in Hawick as well. At first our investment account was kept exclusively at Hawick, but afterwards we opened books for investments managed in London; but the annual balance statements were sent down to Hawick, the figures being there filled in, and the profit and loss accounts were there made up. There were frequent changes in the investments. Our transactions on the Stock Exchange never exceeded, I should say, £200,000 in any one year. The investments at Hawick were entirely separate from those in London. In one or two instances, the transactions were initiated by Mr. Wilson, such as the Iberian Irrigation Company, for which the whole money was found in London, and which ultimately resulted in a loss of £9,000. This transaction was gone into on the representation of Mr. Bateman, and with my full cognisance. For some time I received copies of the general balance-sheet made up at Hawick, but for several years I have not received any copy, but, generally speaking, the result was communicated to me in conversation by Mr. George Wilson. I first found that I was in difficulty for want of money in the early part of 1874. Our trade previous and up to that time had been fairly satisfactory. I attributed the difficulty in which I found myself to losses in speculations in which the firm engaged. I cannot at this time particularise the losses I refer to, but from the depreciation in certain stocks on which we had been formerly able to borrow, and from absolute losses on other transactions, we had some difficulty in carrying on our speculations. I did not at that time inform Mr. Wilson that we were pinched for money. I never informed him that we were in any difficulty until Collie and Co. failed; indeed, I did not consider that the firm was in any difficulty until that event happened. It was well-known at Hawick from our daily correspondence that we were pressed for money in London, because we applied to them for money.

When did you first begin the system of adventures conjointly with other persons?—To the best of my recollection the first joint adventures were entered into at Hawick, in wheat and wool, about the year 1860. From that time we have had many such transactions, jointly with other persons, and have had a share in adventures along with other firms. Some of these transactions were carried on in Hawick, and others in London. We were cognisant of each other's transactions to a large extent, but there were some transactions in which I was engaged which were not communicated to Mr. Wilson. The principal of these were the French Property Company and a joint adventure with Frith, Sands, and Co. The transactions relating to the French property were entered into in 1871. I think two days before I became seriously unwell, an illness which necessitated my absence from all business for five or six months. The purchase price of the French property was about £140,000. There were four partners, and we were each equally interested. On my recovery I was informed that the property could have been sold at a price which would have yielded £80,000 of profit, but one of the other partners held out for a larger price, and the opportunity was lost. It was expected, however, from time to time, that the property would be realised, and it was not till 1872 that we required to grant any acceptances on account of the price. These acceptances were granted to Alexander Collie and Co., who did the finance connected with this purchase. The bills have been renewed from time to time. It was in these circumstances that my entering on this speculation for the firm of Wilson and Armstrong was not mentioned to Mr. Wilson at the time, but the cash payment on account of the deposit was entered in our books, and formed an item in the list of investments returned to Hawick, and I observe that it is included as an asset of the firm in the balance-sheet as at April, 1873 to 1874. The French property adventures consist of the Seyssel Pyremont Asphalte Mine and Manufacturing Company; the Lawsal mine, in Savoy; the Schavroch property, including a chateau and forty-eight acres of land. There are two or three other parts on the lower part of the Rhone—of which I do not recollect the names, and there is an asphalte mine in Sicily. Along with the mines we purchased the works of the Paris Asphalte Paving Company. This latter business was purchased by the French Property Company for £70,000—£50,000 in cash and £20,000 in shares. The property is held by Mr. Callendar. He holds this property under a deed of sale, which was signed by me for our firm, but whether that deed has been executed by my co-adventurers I cannot tell. I am quite sure it was not executed by Mr. Collie. Mr. Callendar gave no consideration at the time or since for the deed. He may have been at some outlay in connection with the property, as he is working it; but I consider that one-fourth of the properties above described unsold is an asset of the firm subject to adjustment of accounts.

Did you ever explain to Mr. Wilson what the French property was? I told Mr. Wilson very little about this transaction, as I expected it to be closed speedily with a profit. I am not aware that I told him I had granted acceptances to Collie in connection with this transaction. These acceptances were regularly entered in our books. We had other joint adventures with Messrs. Collie in seven or eight different matters. In these cases Collie and Co. drew upon Wilson and Armstrong, and I attribute the bankruptcy of our firm to the stoppage of Collie and Co. The whole of these adventures are still open, and in some of them there is a large amount of property which ought to have met our acceptances. Previous to the failure of Collie and Co. in June last, we had suffered considerable losses in our speculations, but when the Collies stopped we found it impossible to carry on business.

To what do you attribute the bankruptcy of your firm?—I attribute the bankruptcy of our firm in the first instance to my illness, and I had never the strength to recover the control of matters. My cashier was a Mr. Casswell, in whom I had great confidence, but shortly after the stoppage of the firm he absconded, or rather he went away and has never been seen since. (Laughter.)

Have you made any endeavour to find him?—I have used my best endeavours to find him, but without avail. He had the exclusive charge of the cash.

Are you aware that the cash column had not been added up for the previous twelve months?—I am now aware; but I never looked at the cash-book, trusting every thing to Casswell. The books show a balance unaccounted for by him of between £2,000 and £3,000. Some of the investments belonging to the firm were taken in the name of Casswell—a very common practice in London. The purpose of this was to conceal the true ownership, and the reasons for doing so were that the holding of many stocks tends to discredit the holder if he were a borrower, and another reason is that the stocks could be dealt in more readily.

Are there any other persons holding investments in the name of the firm?—There are none at present, but there have been. At the date of the stoppage Casswell was, to the best of my recollection, the only party holding stocks or other securities belonging to the firm, not held by myself or Mr. Wilson. At the date of my illness Casswell got the keys of the safes in which the securities were kept, and he retained them until he left, when he gave them to the London accountants who were called in.

Digitized by Google

Have you found that all the securities are paid for?—I believe the whole of the securities can be accounted for. So far as regards the firm's transactions in London, the state of affairs by the London accountant is, to the best of my knowledge and belief, a true statement of affairs, and I account for the deficiency of over £200,000 by handing to the trustee a list of losses which occurred in the London house, viz.: 1st, Losses by public companies enumerated, £25,400; 2nd, losses by Spanish land and irrigation companies, £24,000; 3d, bad debts in trade, £21,600; 4th, losses in shares and stocks, £21,000; 5th, consignments and adventures, £18,500; 6th, loss through Messrs. Collie and Co., £60,000; 7th, bills payable, £8,600; 8th, bills receivable, £60,000—total £239,100. I believe this statement to be a true statement of the losses, with the explanation that the loss through Collie is rather understated. A number of these losses through public companies were ascertained long previously. Some of these had been written off in the balance-sheet, while others were carried on until they lost all hope of securing them. We never balanced our books in London, but we regularly, at the close of each year, sent certain materials to Hawick, from which Mr. Wilson prepared the balance-sheet. We never had any profit and loss account in London, and so far as I know in Hawick. I have furnished to my trustee a list of the joint adventures carried on with eight different parties—also a list of certain adventures in which we had a share with other firms, five in number. The speculations in shares were carried on either in name of Mr. Wilson or myself, or a third party for behoof of the firm; but when I say the firm, I mean that Mr. Wilson and I alone shared in the profits of the speculation.

You said, when you commenced to speculate in 1861, that you had made money fast in London and in Hawick. Were you not at that time accepting bills from manufacturers in payment of tweeds they sent you? We might have been accepting bills to manufacturers from whom we purchased goods, notwithstanding that we had so much money, but such acceptances would be more advantageous in some instances than by taking the usual credit and paying cash.

Bankrupt was then examined as to his individual estate. He said: There is no marriage contract between my wife and me. I have not at any time settled money or estate of any kind upon her or upon any of my daughters. The only provision of any kind which I made for any of my children is a sum of £11,000, payable to the trustees of the marriage settle-personal expenditure, including purchases of furniture, horses, ment on my son's marriage in 1873. My household and &c., has been about £7,000 on the average of the last seven years. The sum expended during that time in furniture, pictures, &c. was about £11,000. The policies of insurance on my life for £10,000 are deposited with Mr. M'Ewen, in security of advances made to my firm. I considered that the profits of my business quite entitled me to live at the rate I have mentioned, but during the last eighteen months the expenditure caused me great uneasiness, and in view of reducing the expenditure I had made arrangements for selling the house and furniture in April last. I let the house and went to the country when the stoppage took place.

Mr. George Wilson, senior, was then recalled for further examination. He said, I was possessed of about £15,000 of capital when I went into partnership with Mr. Armstrong. For the first three or four years our business was not very successful, but in the next ten years it was very prosperous.

What led you to go into speculations in stock and public companies? We had spare money, and we thought the transactions would be profitable. The same explanation applies to our entrance into joint adventures outside our regular business. When we entered upon these outside transactions we accepted bills for supplies by wool merchants and others, and we considered this was profitable to our business, in so far as the rate of discount we paid was less than the value of the money to us in our business. We have had several joint adventures specially conducted in Hawick, the profits of which were divisible between Mr. Armstrong and myself. I was aware that Mr. Armstrong had entered into joint adventures in London in name of the firm, but I was not aware of the full nature and extent of these until the failure.

When were you first aware of Mr. Armstrong's connection with Collie and Co.?—I was aware many years ago that he had transactions with Collie & Co. Such transactions appear in our balance-sheet, and were on behalf of the firm, but I was not aware that the firm was under the acceptances to Collie, or that there were any transactions open with them at the date of our stoppage, except an old debt due to the firm both at Hawick and London. The first time I heard of a joint adventure with Firth, Sands, and Co. was in April last. I knew of adventures with Mr. D. P. M'Ewen, also of the adventure in potashes with Smith. I heard of the adventure regarding the French property first from the balance-sheets sent from London, but I knew nothing of the co-adventurers nor of the magnitude of the transaction. I only knew from the statements furnished that a certain sum was invested under that head. I made no inquiries, believing that it was the limit of the obligation. The London business and transactions were managed by Mr. Armstrong, and the only time I attended in London was during his illness, but I never interfered with the cash. Mr. Casswell attended to that. The only time when we in Hawick were pressed for money was in the panic of 1857, and again slightly so in 1866. More recently when we required money we drew upon the firm and discounted the acceptances for a round sum, as being the cheapest way of supplying money. The same explanation applies to our getting other parties to discount the acceptances of the London house for goods supplied. The London house in the spring of 1874 was not to my knowledge in want of funds, but in the spring of 1875 we advanced them a very considerable amount.

To what causes do you attribute the bankruptcy of Wilson and Armstrong? Entirely to the losses found to have been made by the London house, arising out of trade and speculations. In 1874 the London balance-sheet, prepared by me from the information furnished, shows a balance to their credit of £44,000, this balance being comprised in favour of the trade of £9,725, and London investments amounting to £34,367. At the same date the balance appearing on the Hawick business was £86,000, of which £25,000 was invested. I was aware of some of the investments in London which caused losses prior to 1874, but I knew of no losses after that date except Grant, Brodie and Co. for £10,000.

Did you take any steps to investigate into the nature and worth of these London investments? I did not make any independent investigation, but always took Mr. Armstrong's statement. With reference to the drawings for private accounts, I explain that although these seem to be large, I consider that my personal expenses did not exceed £2,000 to £2,500 per annum. I had considerable advances in the purchase of land and buildings, which now form assets in my private estate. My private expenditure did not nearly equal the interest of my capital. So far as I know, the state of affairs of the London house, prepared by the London accountants, is correct, and I adopt it.

The statutory oath was then administered to Mr. Wilson.

The principal sales by auction of landed property during the past week were as follows:—"Kentish-town-road—Nos. 1, 3, 5, 7, and 9, Frideswide-place, £1,160; Redhill—plot of freehold land, containing 5a. 0r. 22p., £1,060; Holloway, Eden-grove, lease of the George publichouse, £4,360; Rotherhithe—Nos. 51, 52, and 53, Adam-street and the Adam and Eve publichouse, £2,350; Greenwich—the King's Head publichouse, £1,100; Lingfield, Surrey—Crowhurst Land Farm, containing 116 acres, £4,360; Chelsea—Nos. 428 and 438, King's road, £1,370; Westbourne-park—freehold ground rents of £69 10s. per annum, £1,580; Hammersmith—15 to 20, York-road and a ground rent of £6 per annum, £2,020."

Digitized by Google

BRADFORD COUNTY COURT.

IN RE HAINSWORTH EX PARTE HAINES.—This was a judgment of Mr. T. S. Daniel, Q.C., on an application that Mr. John Rayner, a mungo merchant of Leeds, should deliver up to the trustees of Hainsworth's estate certain sheets of mungo which had been received from the debtor in April, 1874. The case was heard on June 8th last, and the debtor stated in his affidavit that he was being sued on bills of exchange bearing his name, which had been dishonoured; and that he was apprehensive that he would have to fail before long. He had then in his possession a quantity of mungo, which he had some time previously purchased from Rayner, and he conceived the idea of returning these goods; his object in doing so being to make the loss less in case of his having to file a petition. On April 20th, 1874, he returned to Rayner sixteen sheets of mungo, of the value of £185 10s. 4d. His petition was filed on May 1st, and in the mean time he had no conversation with Rayner as to the return. His Honour said he had no reason to doubt the truth of the debtor's affidavit; but he held that the transaction was a fraudulent preference within section 92 of the Bankruptcy Act, and an act of bankruptcy within sub-section 2 of section 6 of the same statute. The respondent, in his affidavit, said he had known and done business with the debtor for many years, and was in the habit of permitting customers to return goods, when these, after purchase, were not required, on the understanding that any difference upon resale was made up. This practice, it was said, was well-known to the debtor, who had taken advantage of it in the February previous by returning goods which he could not use. In dealing with the credibility of the affidavits, his Honour said that Rayner's had been prepared with legal skill for the purpose of making out his case, and was more of the character of pleading than of evidence. The respondent, he held, had no lien or charge upon the goods for current acceptances or for goods supplied since the return. The only question that could be raised was whether he was a purchaser in good faith and for valuable consideration, and that appeared to depend upon the question whether the transaction as deposed to by Rayner was a transaction in the ordinary course of business as between the debtor and Rayner. The case was referred to a jury who sat on June 22nd, and questions were put to them: Were the goods received and dealt with by Rayner in the ordinary course of business? Were they dealt with by Rayner in the ordinary course of business as between him and the debtor? Were they received and dealt with by Rayner in the ordinary course of business as between him and his customers? Were they dealt with by Rayner after he had received notice of the insolvency of the debtor? The jury answered these questions in the negative, and his Honour, who concurred in the view of evidence taken by the jury on these points, ordered a verdict to be entered for the trustees. The case came before him again on July 20th, on an application for a new trial to set aside the verdict of the jury, mainly on the ground that the verdict was against the weight of evidence. That application was refused without the trustees' advocate being called on for an answer, and, having promised at a future time to state his reasons for such refusal, he now did so. In his opinion the crucial test of the validity of the transaction, as between the respondent and the trustees, was whether, at the time it took place, it was a transaction in the ordinary course of business between the debtor and the respondent. If it were, then it was a purchase for a valuable consideration; if not, then, whatever might be the good faith of the respondent in the matter, it was immaterial, and the transaction was void as against the trustees as being a voluntary transfer of goods by the debtor to the respondent for the purpose of being sold by the respondent for the debtor's benefit. In that view of the transaction, the property in the goods would not pass to the respondent, but would remain in the debtor; and as the goods remained in the respondent's possession at the time the petition for liquidation was filed, the property would vest in the trustees, unless after the petition had been filed, and before the respondent had notice of it, he had disposed of the goods in good faith and for valuable consideration. His Honour then declared that the goods were transferred to the respondent voluntarily, and that the property in them remained with the debtor and passed to the trustees under the liquidation, and advised the respondent to pay their value to the trustees.

The result of all this liquidation was that, though he had failed to obtain for himself the benefit of the fraudulent preference which the debtor intended for him, Mr. Rayner's right of proof as a bonâ fide creditor was not prejudiced, and he stood in the same position as all the other bonâ fide creditors. The result might be a disappointment, but it was not an injustice, nor even a hardship; and although, according to a recent case in the House of Lords, full effect was to be given to the proviso in favour of a creditor who received a debt justly due, having an ignorance of the debtor's fraudulent intention to prefer, the same effect ought, in his opinion, only to be given in the case of a purchaser who bona fide bought in the ordinary course of business, and was ignorant of the debtor's intentional preference.

A CO-OPERATIVE FAILURE AT NEWCASTLE.

The annual report just issued of the Ouseburn Engine Works Company, established at Newcastle on productive co-operation principles during the memorable nine hours' strike some years ago, shows a greater loss than in previous years. It is £10,862, £8,000 being due to bad debts through failures. The workmen insisted upon a rise of 10 per cent. in wages, which the directors were powerless to prevent. The system of compulsory deposit, though founded on sound principles, has, in the opinion of the manager and foreman, increased the cost of reduction. The directors have taken counsel with the debenture holders, and with shareholders who have not paid-up their shares, but the result had not been such as to warrant the hope that they would be able to resist pressure of creditors or prevent liquidation. The directors call the immediate attention of the shareholders, if they wished to save their business and property, to a scheme of reconstruction, and submit various suggestions for their consideration.

A GENERAL COLLAPSE.—Some time ago Thomas M'Gregor Miller, a travelling draper, of Huddersfield, filed a petition in the Huddersfield County Court for the liquidation of his affairs, and Mr. P. K. Chesney, Bradford, accountant, was appointed trustee under the petition. With the consent of the creditors, the business was sold to the debtor for £1,050, which was to be paid in three equal instalments of £350 each, at 6, 12, and 18 months. As security, bills were accepted from five of the creditors; and about six months afterwards Miller again failed for several hundred pounds, and was made a bankrupt. Since then Mr. Chesney, the trustee, has served notices on each of the five sureties under the first petition for the whole of the first instalment due under the first petition. Of these five sureties four have filed petitions for liquidation. They are Alfred Laycock, Primrose Hill, designer, who does not estimate his liabilities; John Horace Davidson, Bradford Road, draper, whose liabilities amount to £1,500; Francis Nicholson, Paddock, Huddersfield, who says he can pay more than 20s. in the pound; and James Peacock, Cross Church-street, draper, whose liabilities are estimated at £4,000. Messrs Learoyd and Learoyd are acting for some of the debtors, and Messrs. Craven and Sunderland for some of the others.

Digitized by Google

PUBLIC REVENUE AND EXPENDITURE.

(From the London Gazette.)

Receipts into and payments out of the Exchequer between the 1st April, 1875, and the 11th September, 1875:—

REVENUE AND OTHER RECEIPTS.

—	Budget Estimate for 1875-76.	Total Receipts into the Exchequer from April 1 to Sept. 11, 1875.	Total Receipts from April 1 to Sept. 12 1874.
Balance on April 1, 1875:—	£	£	£
Bank of England	—	4,662,261	5,908,870
Bank of Ireland	—	1,603,061	1,533,984
		6,265,322	7,442,854
Revenue.
Customs	19,500,000	8,295,000	8,111,000
Excise	27,740,000	11,270,000	10,869,000
Stamps	10,600,000	4,860,000	4,762,000
Land Tax and House Duty	2,450,000	563,000	536,000
Income Tax	3,900,000	1,029,000	1,374,000
Post Office	5,750,000	2,832,000	2,600,000
Telegraph Service	1,200,000	520,000	500,000
Crown Lands	385,000	150,000	140,000
Miscellaneous	4,100,000	1,745,813	1,253,217
Revenue	£75,625,000	31,264,813	30,145,217
Total including Balance		37,530,135	37,588,071
Other Receipts.
Advances, under various Acts, repaid to the Exchequer		782,667	1,038,378
Money raised for Fortifications and Military Barracks		250,000	400,000
Money raised for Local Loans by Exchequer Bonds		500,000	—
Temporary advances, not repaid		—	—
Totals		39,062,802	39,026,449

EXPENDITURE AND OTHER PAYMENTS.

—	Estimate for 1875-76.	Total Issues from Exchequer to meet Payments from April 1 to Sept. 11, 1875.	Total Issues from Exchequer from April 1 to Sept. 12, 1874.
Expenditure.	£	£	£
Permanent Charge of Debt *	27,400,000	13,341,431	13,311,529
Interest on Local & Tem. Loans *	70,000	—	—
Other charges on Consolidtd. Fund *	1,590,000	689,102	715,693
Supply Services †	46,837,000	20,301,034	19,430,462
Estimate	£75,897,000
Expenditure		34,331,567	33,457,684
Other Payments.
Advances, under various Acts, issued from the Exchequer		1,780,361	1,345,607
Expenses of Fortifications and Military Barracks		—	200,000
Exchequer Bills paid off		17,300	9,000
Surplus income applied to reduce debt		331,867	466,409
		36,461,095	35,478,700
Balances on Sept. 11, 1875:—
Bank of England		1,892,463	2,633,079
Bank of Ireland		709,244	914,670
Totals		39,062,802	39,026,449

* As stated in the Budget. † As per Appropriation Act.

Treasury, Sept. 14, 1875.

At a meeting yesterday of the creditors of the Phœnix Bessemer Steel Company (Limited), Sheffield, which failed in June with trading and share liabilities amounting to £220,000, it was determined to reject an offer of 10s. in the pound, but another meeting will shortly be held.

COMPANIES REGISTERED.

The Investors' Guardian publishes the following list of companies which were registered during the past weeks:—

	Capital.		Shares.
Broadroyd Felt Manufacturing	£25,000	in	£5	"
Cadogan & Hans-place Estate	150,000	in	10	"
Cambrian Sanitary Pipe and Terra Cotta	25,000	in	5	"
Compressed Gas Regulator and Pneumatic Machine	40,000	in	5	"
English Sulphur Fusion	40,000	in	10	"
Halifax Worsted	10,000	in	5	"
Industrial Fire Insurance	50,000	in	1	"
Joseph Wright and Co.	50,000	in	10	"
Ley and Co.	25,000	in	10	"
London and General Skating Rinks	10,000	in	5	"
Mossley-road Brick and Tile	5,000	in	5	"
North Lancashire Agricultural Auction Mart	3,000	in	10	"
North London and Suburban Skating Rink	400	in	5	"
Preston Nursery and Pleasure Gardens	20,000	in	50	"
Rockingham Clay Works	20,000	in	5	"
Ship Timber	2,000	in	10 & 25	"
Winterbottom Brothers and Co.	8,000	in	1	"

	Capital.		Shares.
Bryneini Lead Mining	£5,000	in	£50	"
City of London Lighterage	2,000	in	10	"
Clayton Liberal Club	3,000	in	1	"
Dinas Slate and Slab	50,000	in	5	"
Downham Market Hall	300	in	1	"
General Shipping & Trading	120,000	in	10	"
Henry Cutts and Co.	5,000	in	1	"
Highbridge Cattle & Stock Market	5,000	in	1	"
Hyde Paper Manufacturing	15,000	in	5	"
James Bartleet and Co.	10,000	in	10	"
Life Saving Dress Company (Boyton-Merriman Patents)	120,000	in	10	"
Manley Hall Winter Garden Society	450,000	in	18s.	"
Metropolitan Safe and Strong Room	125,000	in	10	"
Morpeth Grand Stand	2,000	in	5	"
New Flintshire Lead Mining	20,000	in	1	"
New Guinea	100,000	in	10	"
New Town Manure	50,000	in	10	"
North Buckley Colliery and Fire Brick	15,000	in	10	"
Plant Brothers	50,000	in	10	"
St. Anne's-on-the-Sea Gas Light and Coke	15,000	in	5	"
South Cwmstwith Lead Mining	12,000	in	2	"
South Leicestershire Colliery	100,000	in	10	"
Temperance Artisans', Labourers' and General Dwellings Association	50,000	in	1	"
Thomas Wood and Co.	10,000	in	5	"
Union Buildings	4,000	in	5	"
William Bland and Son	60,000	in	10	"

Digitized by Google

CREDITORS' MEETINGS.

W. KILLINGBECK (SNAITH).—A meeting of the creditors of William Killingbeck, tailor and draper, of Snaith, was held on Wednesday last, the 8th inst., when it was resolved to liquidate the estate by arrangement, and Mr. S. J. Beswick and Mr. J. Barrett were appointed joint trustees.

T. SHAW (LOWER BROUGHTON).—A meeting of the creditors of Thomas Shaw, of Lower Broughton, near Manchester, out of business, was held on Friday last, the 10th inst. The statement of affairs, prepared by Mr. John C. Beswick, the receiver, showed liabilities £967 8s. 5d., against assets £170. It was resolved to liquidate the estate by arrangement, and Mr. J. C. Beswick was appointed trustee.

KNIGHT AND SONS.—The first meeting of creditors of Messrs. Knight and Sons, of 8½ Copthall-court, E.C., stockbrokers, was held at the Bankruptcy Court, on Thursday, the 9th inst., when Mr. E. Downs, of Moorgate-street Chambers, E.C., accountant, was appointed trustee.

R. MALLALIEU (MANCHESTER).—A statutory meeting of the creditors of Richard Mallalieu, of Manchester, Salford, and Pendlebury, grocer and provision dealer, was held on Saturday, at the offices of Messrs. Addleshaw and Warburton, solicitors, when a statement of affairs submitted by the receiver, Mr. Nicholson (Nicholson and Milne), showed liabilities £2,366 8s. 8d., and assets £853 13s. 9d. A composition of 7s. in the pound was accepted. Mr. Bent, solicitor, of this city, represented the debtor.

SHAW AND SON (MANCHESTER).—A second meeting of the creditors of Messrs. John Shaw and Son, trading at Miles Platting, Manchester, and at Barrow-in-Furness, under the style of "The Furness Coal and Coke Company," was held on Friday, at the offices of Mr. J. Best, solicitor, 64 Lower King-street, when the creditors confirmed the resolution passed at a former meeting to accept 7s. in the pound, by three instalments. Mr. Whitehead, of 6 Brown-street, was appointed trustee.

H. BENNETT (FARNWORTH).—A meeting of the creditors of Henry Bennett, carrying on business as a builder in Glynn-street, Farnworth, was recently held at the offices of Messrs. Dawson and Scowcroft, Bolton, when a statement was read, showing liabilities amounting to £4,246, and assets estimated to produce £4,592 10s. Mr. Gordon, solicitor, represented the majority of the creditors. Resolutions were passed that the estate should be wound-up in liquidation.

G. BURGESS & CO. (DUNDEE).—A meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Geo. Burgess and Co., of New York and Dundee, was held in the chambers of Messrs. Pattullo and Thornton, Dundee, on the 11th inst. It was reported that the liabilities amounted to about £62,000. An offer of composition of 10s. in the pound was made—5s. to be paid in cash, 2s. in six months, and 3s. in twelve months, the last instalment to be guaranteed. A committee of investigation was appointed to transmit a telegram to New York, authorising an accountant there to make an examination of the firm's books.

J. L. WHITELEY (SOWERBY BRIDGE).—A meeting of the creditors of John Lord Whiteley, wool waste dealer, Sowerby Bridge, was held on the 10th inst. at the offices of Mr. Francis Jubb, solicitor, Halifax. The debtor's statement showed liabilities of about £1,140, with assets—subject to realisation—of £470. An offer by the debtor of a composition of 6s. in the pound was refused by the meeting, which also declined to appoint the debtor's accountant trustee. One third of the creditors were relatives of the debtor. It was resolved to liquidate by arrangement; and Mr. Atkinson, accountant, of Bradford, was appointed trustee, with a committee of three of the principal trade creditors. The proceedings were transfered to Bradford County Court. General dissatisfaction was expressed with the statement of affairs.

At an adjourned meeting on Wednesday, September 15th, of the creditors of the Aberdare and Plymouth Iron and Coal Companies it was announced that an arrangement had been come to which would allow the works to be continued, and secure the creditors, it was hoped, 20s. in the pound. The claims of the creditors are now to be represented by an issue of debentures, to be gradually liquidated out of the future income, and meanwhile cash has been raised to work the properties, which are believed to be very valuable. A future meeting of the creditors will be held, when the details of the proposed scheme of arrangement will be submitted for their approval. Resolutions were passed in favour of the liquidation of the estate by arrangement, Mr. Turquand being appointed trustee, with a committee of inspection.

J. HOLDEN (LIVERPOOL).—A statutory meeting of the creditors of Joseph Holden, of Kirkdale-road, Liverpool, builder and contractor was held on Wednesday, at the offices of Messrs. Quelch and Greenway, solicitors, Dale-street. An offer was made of a composition of 5s. in the pound, but was declined. It was subsequently resolved to liquidate the estate by arrangement. A spirited contest took place for the choice of trustees between Mr. Bolland (of Gibson and Bolland), and Mr. Sheen (of Sheen and Broadhurst). The latter was chosen.

FAILURES.

ENGLAND. — A petition has been filed in the Dewsbury County Court, on behalf of Mr. George Oates, wool merchant, of Bradford-road, Dewsbury, for liquidation by arrangement or composition. The liabilities are estimated at £12,000. Mr. J. D. Good was appointed the receiver.—A statement of the affairs of Messrs. Joseph Heald and Co., of Newcastle-on-Tyne, who recently stopped payment, has been sent to the creditors. The liabilities of the Newcastle office are—to creditors, £36,684 4s. 9d.; other liabilities which will not rank, £5,993 13s. 7d.; estimated to be paid in full, £315 15s. 7d.; liabilities on bills discounted, £25,158 9s. 11d., of which it is expected there will rank against the estate, £14,146 3s. 6d.; total, £51,146 3s. 10d. Estimated assets—book debts estimated to produce £7,000; cash in hand, £348 8s. 3d.; bills in hand, £2,250 12s. 1d.; estimated value, £1,066 19s. 7d.; furniture estimated to produce £100; property, £12,022 14s. 10d.; total, £21,022 14s. 10d.

AMERICA.—American advices report the suspension of Messrs. Juan De Mier and Co., of 69 and 71 William-street, New York, with liabilities estimated at from £80,000 to £100,000. The firm was largely engaged in exporting soap, flour and other American products to New Grenada.—Messrs. Edward and Lewis Dunbarn, clothiers, Newark, N.J., had suspended; liabilities, £20,000.—The Phillips and Jordan Iron and Steel Company, Covington, Ky., had made an assignment; liabilities, £30,000.—Mr. J. Klopenstein, brewer, Canton, O., had failed; liabilities, £20,000.—Messrs. Edmund, Anget, and Co., of the Dominion Boot and Shoe Company, Montreal, had made an assignment; liabilities, £15,000.—Mr. P. H. Stevens and Mr. J. W. Brown, stock brokers, New York; and Mr. J. B. French, of the Produce Exchange, had suspended.—Further advices announce the suspension of Sterling, Ahrens, and Co., Baltimore, said to be the largest importing-house in the United States. Mr. Ahrens thinks the liabilities amount to about 2,000,000 dollars, but that, if the assets are judiciously administered, the creditors can ultimately be paid dollar for dollar. It is said that the business of the firm amounted to 40,000,000 dollars per annum. — The suspension is announced of the Washington Market Co., in Paterson, New Jersey, with liabilities of £50,000. — Messrs. Union, Adams, and Co., of 913 Broadway, wholesale and retail dealers in knit goods, &c. had also suspended; liabilities and assets unknown when the mail left.—Messrs. Lee and Shepherd, of Boston, and Messrs. Lee, Shepherd, and Dillingham, of New York, publishing houses, had also stopped payment, the former with liabilities of about £30,000, the latter at close on £120,000. The creditors are in Boston, New York, and London.—Messrs. Robert Griffith and Co., wholesale grocers, Ontario, had made an assignment.—Messrs. H. Seymour and Son, Montreal, have made an assignment; liabilities £40,000.—Mr. Andrew Moody, builder, Mr. H. F. Hamilton, trader, and Messrs. Richardson and Mason, ironfounders, all of Halifax, N.S., had made assignments.

Digitized by Google

APPOINTMENTS.

[The Editor will be glad to receive early notice of appointment of Liquidators and Auditors for insertion in this column.]

Mr. John Slater (of the firm of Slater and Pannell), of No. 1 Guildhall chambers, in the City of London, public accountant, has been appointed trustee of the property of the bankrupt estate of Arbuthnot Macaulay Emerson, of 19 Cambridge-street, Pimlico, a bankrupt.

Mr. John Slater (of the firm of Slater and Pannell), of No. 1 Guildhall chambers, in the City of London, public accountant, has been appointed trustee of the property of William Bond, of No. 16 Garway-road, Westbourne-grove, in the county of Middlesex, dyer, a bankrupt.

Mr. William H. Pannell (of the firm of Slater and Pannell), of No. 1 Guildhall chambers, in the City of London, public accountant, has been appointed trustee of the property of Charles Morton, of 38 Alwyne-road, Canonbury, in the county of Middlesex, theatrical manager, a bankrupt.

Mr. John Slater (of the firm of Slater and Pannell), of No. 1 Guildhall chambers, in the City of London, public accountant, has been appointed trustee of the property of Cyrus Baker Kirke, of 19 and 20 Lime-street chambers, Lime-street, in the City of London, wine merchant, trading under the style or firm of "Cyrus B. Kirke and Co." and residing at 26 Grove-road, St. John's Wood, in the County of Middlesex, a bankrupt.

Mr. John Slater (of the firm of Slater and Pannell), of No. 1 Guildhall chambers, in the City of London, public accountant, has been appointed trustee of the property of William Leopold Zoers, of No. 88 Victoria-park-road, Hackney, in the county of Middlesex, stick manufacturer, who has instituted proceedings for liquidation by arrangement or composition with his creditors.

MR. FORSTER ON FRIENDLY SOCIETIES.—The points in regard to which Mr. Forster would have liked to see the Act made more stringent are fundamental points. They are a real and satisfactory audit of accounts, and a periodical valuation of assets and liabilities. These are provided in the great Friendly societies, such as the Odd Fellows, at a meeting of which Mr. Forster was speaking, because the great societies have proved their anxiety to know and publish the exact state of their affairs, and a society which has proved this in other ways can be trusted to commit its audit and its valuation to competent and disinterested persons. But of a great number of the smaller societies no good is certainly known, while much evil is shrewdly suspected. To place these societies on the same level in respect of Government recognition with the Odd Fellows or the Foresters, because they have gone through the form of submitting their accounts to an audit which may only be a sham audit and their assets and liabilities to a valuation which may only be a sham valuation, is to neglect a duty which is strictly within the competence of Parliament, and which, but for the cowardice of those who had charge of the Bill, it might easily have performed. As the Act stands, says Mr. Forster, "there is no security taken that the auditors shall be responsible auditors, or that the valuation shall be made by responsible valuers." In other words, there is no security taken that the one condition of solvency in a friendly society which is at once indispensable in itself and ascertainable by Government, and in many cases by Government only, shall be present in all societies which bear the Government stamp. Honest administration is also indispensable, but then honest administration is not ascertainable by Government, while for the most part the members of a friendly society are able to ascertain it for themselves. But the existence of a scientific proportion between the rates of payment to the society and the rates of payment by the society must be disclosed by a proper audit of accounts and a proper valuation of assets and liabilities, so that if these two things were made compulsory the true position of every friendly society in the kingdom would be published to the world. When Mr. Forster says that he should have liked to see the Act made a little more stringent than it is, he means that he should have liked to see a provision introduced into the Act without which the rest of the Act is no better than an equivalent weight of waste paper.—Pall Mall Gazette.

LATE ADVERTISEMENT.

PARTNERSHIP—Wanted a Gentleman with £,1000 to join another having an equal amount of capital and a large connection, with a view of commencing business as Accountants in connection with that of Commission Merchants.—Address, in the first instance, "A. B.," at the office of The Accountant, 62 Gracechurch street, City.

MONEY to LEND to BORROWERS residing in town or Country, from £50 upwards, repayable in one sum, from one to five years, at five per cent. interest on personal security; also on mortgage of freehold or leasehold property from 3 per cent., for a term of years to be agreed upon. No commission.
Apply to R. F. PRESTON, Esq., 120 Southampton-row, London, W.C.

THE BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY'S ANNUAL RECEIPTS EXCEED THREE MILLIONS.

HOW TO PURCHASE A HOUSE FOR TWO GUINEAS PER MONTH. With immediate Possession and no Rent to pay.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO PURCHASE A PLOT OF LAND FOR FIVE SHILLINGS PER MONTH.

With Immediate Possession, either for Building or Gardening purposes.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK FREEHOLD LAND SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO INVEST YOUR MONEY WITH SAFETY AT £4 PER CENT. INTEREST.

Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BANK. All sums under £50 repayable upon demand. Current Accounts opened similar to ordinary Bankers. Cheque-books supplied. English and Foreign Stocks and Shares purchased and sold, and Advances made thereon.

Office Hours from 10 till 4; on Mondays from 10 till 9, and on Saturdays from 10 till 12 o'clock.

A Pamphlet containing full particulars may be obtained post-free on application.

FRANCIS RAVENSCROFT, Manager.

THE METROPOLITAN AND PROVINCIAL LAND, ESTATE, HOUSE, LICENSED VICTUALLERS' & GENERAL BUSINESS TRANSFER "SYNDICATE" AGENCY,

Registered according to Act of Parliament, Head Offices, No. 3 Craven-street, Charing Cross, W.C. The organisation and working system of the "Syndicate" are;—1st.—The Sale, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Ground of Rents, Freehold and Leasehold Land, Farms, Estates, Houses, Hotels, Public Houses, Inns, Beer Houses, Restaurants, Coffee Houses, Tobacconists, Drapers, and every other description of Business, Furniture, Objects of Art, or Goods of any description by Auction or Private Contract. 2nd.—The letting, or disposing of, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Land, Farms, Estates, Furnished, or Unfurnished Houses Chambers, or Offices under private contract. 3rd.—The Collection of Rents and the recovery of outstanding accounts. 4th.—The Surveys and Valuations of Land, Farms, Estates, and Houses; also Valuations of Furniture, Jewellery, and other Effects, for probate and other purposes. 5th.—The transaction of all other business usually transacted by Auctioneers, Surveyors, Land, House, Estate and Insurance Agents. 6th.—The negociations of partnerships, and from unlimited connection with capitalists, monetary advances on real and personal securities, as well as merchandize, and every other description of property intended for absolute sale, or otherwise. 7th. Generally the carrying out of all things incidental or conducive to the above objects, and every of them; also the laying out of estates and surveys for delapidations. The "Syndicate" from their extended connection with the Trades' Protection Societies and other sources, undertake expeditiously for Clients and others to ascertain reliably the status of parties, and make inquiries of a private and confidential character. Liberal terms to Accountants in town or country introducing business.

Digitized by Google

"The source of many a writer's woe has been discovered."

PENS! PENS!! PENS!!!

"They come as a boon and a blessing to men,
The Pickwick, the Owl, and the Waverley Pen."
"The misery of a bad Pen is now a voluntary infliction."

Another blessing to men! The Hindoo Pen. 1,200 Newspapers recommend them. See Graphic, 17th May, 1873.

Sold by every respectable Stationer. Post 1s. 1d.

Patentees, MACNIVEN & CAMERON, 23 to 33 Blair-street, Edinburgh.

J. DEFRIES' AND SONS'

CHANDELIERS, IN CRYSTAL, BRONZE, AND ORMOLU.

TABLE GLASS AND CHINA.

Dinner Services, Gilt Pieces, £4 10s.

KEROSENE and MODERATOR LAMPS for INDIA.

Works:—London and Birmingham.

WEDDING AND BIRTHDAY PRESENTS.

NEW DECORATIONS for the DINING TABLE.

FOUNTAINS.

STORER'S Patent Perpetual Perfumed CRYSTAL TABLE FOUNTAIN, for Dining, Hall and Drawing Rooms, in Crystal and Gilt, £2 17s. 6d. to 100 guineas.

FETES AND REJOICINGS.

BALLROOMS and GARDENS, &c., DECORATED and ILLUMINATED for Evening Parties. Tents, Temporary Rooms, and Banqueting Halls erected.

CRYSTAL and BRONZED CHANDELIERS.

TABLE GLASS and CHINA LENT ON HIRE.

J. DEFRIES and SONS, 147, HOUNDSDITCH.

Five minutes' walk from the Bank of England.

RUPTURES—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS is allowed by upwards of 500 Medical Men to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided, a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the manufacturer, Mr. JOHN WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London. Price of a single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., 31s. 6d, Postage Free. Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. An Umbilical Truss, 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. P.O.O. to be made payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

TRADE MARK.

NEW PATENT ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS, &c. for Varicose Veins, and all cases of Weakness and Swelling of the Legs, Sprains, &c. They are porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and are drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price from 4s. 6d, 7s, 6d., 10s, to 16s each. Postage free.

CHEST EXPANDING BRACES, for both sexes. For gentlemen they are a substitute for the ordinary braces. For children they are invaluable; they prevent stooping and preserve the symmetry of the chest. Prices for children, 5s. 6d. and 7s. 6d. Adults, 10s. 6d., 15s. 6d., and 21s. each. Postage free.—JOHN WHITE, Manufacturer, 228 Piccadilly, London.

EPPS'S COCOA.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—See article in the Civil Service Gazette.

STAR LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY,

48 MOORGATE STREET, LONDON, E.C

DIRECTORS.

CHAIRMAN—

Mr. Alderman McArthur, M.P.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—

William Mewburn, Esq.

H. J. Atkinson, Esq.
Thomas Ball, Esq.
Walter Griffith, Esq.
George M. Kiell, Esq.
George Lidgett, Esq.
Sir Francis Lycett.
William Merry, Esq.
John Napier, Esq.
Jonathan S. Pidgeon, Esq.
John Vanner, Esq.
S. D. Waddy, Esq., Q.C., M.P.

Assurance and Annuity Fund	1,216,115	13	5
Annual Income (1874)	223,613	2	0
Bonuses Apportioned	581,774	6	2
Claims Paid	1,140,151	1	8

Copies of the Report, Balance Sheet and Prospectus can be obtained on application to the Head Office.

W. W. BAYNES, Secretary.

THE ONLY AND SPECIAL

"MEDAL FOR PROGRESS,"

Was awarded for "Feuerfeste Eisone Schranke und Kunstchlosser Fortschritts," to

HOBBS, HART, & CO.,

AT THE VIENNA UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION.

This Medal is only given to Exhibitors whose New Inventions testify marked Progress.

"FIRE-PROOF SAFES; AND LOCKS AND ENDLESS CHANGE LOCKS AND KEYS,"

Invented especially for Safes and Strong-Room Doors, to frustrate the use of False Keys.

N.B.—The continued security and secrecy of a Lock, fixed on a Safe or Strong-Room Door, depends on the fact that there are no false duplicate keys of that Lock in existence. The object of a Lock is twofold—security against burglars, and secrecy against prying curiosity. A new change in this Lock may at any time be obtained in five minutes by simply filing away the thickness of a hair from one or more of the steps of the Key. The Lock, by a simple movement of the Regulator, is thus made to adapt itself to the NEW KEY, after which no other Key will open the Lock.

The Lock and Key may thus be easily altered into what would be virtually a NEW LOCK and KEY, as often as may be desired, without the aid of Lockmaker or of any second person, thus frustrating the use of fraudulent copies of the original Key (see the Safe Robbery in Dublin of £630, vide "Times," 12th September, 1875). This Lock affords effectual protection from duplicate or "Master" Keys secretly made in manufactories; very extensive robberies (in one case 13 Safes in one vault) having been effected by this means.

HOBBS, HART & CO.,
LOCK, SAFE, AND STRONG-ROOM DOOR MANUFACTURERS,
76 Cheapside, London, E.C.

SUBSCRIPTIONS ARE INVITED FOR 5,000 SHARES IN

THE BUFFALO HIDE HORSESHOE COMPANY, LIMITED.

Registered under the Companies' Acts, 1862 and 1867.

CAPITAL £60,000, IN 12,000 £5 SHARES FULLY PAID UP.

£1 on Application, the remainder on Allotment.

DIRECTORS.

JOSEPH JAMES SMITH, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, Manchester.
WILLIAM BIRCH COOPER, Esq., Durham Massey, Cheshire.
GEORGE HILL, Esq., Coal Merchant, Navigation Wharf, Manchester.
JAMES HASLAM, Esq., Veterinary Surgeon, Manchester.
ALBERT SEPTIMUS COX, Esq., Veterinary Surgeon, Altrincham, Cheshire.

BANKERS.

The MANCHESTER AND LIVERPOOL DISTRICT BANK, King-street, Manchester, and its Branches.

SOLICITORS.

Messrs. HAMPSON AND WALMSLEY, 60 King-street, Manchester.

MANAGING DIRECTOR.

JAMES HASLAM, Esq., M.R.C.V.S.

SECRETARY.

(Pro. tem.) Mr. THOMAS WINDER.

OFFICES.

(Pro tem) 60, King Street, Manchester.

PROSPECTUS.

The great want of a Shoe for Horses and other draught animals (so as to obtain a firm and solid foothold upon Asphalte and other smooth or slippery pavements, and to obviate roughing or sharpening in frosty weather; to reduce the jar or concussion the limbs are subjected to by the hoof striking the ground; to allow the hoof to expand and develop; to reduce the labour of the animals by diminishing the weight of the present unnatural and unwieldy iron shoe, and to add to their comfort), has long been felt by the community at large, but more especially by those who employ large numbers of horses, and also by "The Societies for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals."

Such a Shoe has been Invented and Patented by Mr. Yates, and is made from buffalo or other hides, rendered impervious to moisture under Patented Process. They are as durable as the iron shoe, one-third the weight, cheaper, and are neat and easily applied, and their application adds greatly to the comfort of the animal.

They are made from a material as nearly approaching the nature of the hoof as possible, and therefore are the most natural substance from which to form a shoe. They will maintain the integrity of the hoof in its natural form, and allow its freedom and development. They also assist in retaining a firm and solid foothold, and aid in the impulsive efforts required in the performance of work and movements, and will thus be invaluable in preserving the health of the animal shod with them.

This Company has been formed for purchasing and working the patent rights, titles, and interests for Great Britain, Ireland, and the Channel Islands, of this Shoe, and for manufacturing and vending the same.

It is the intention of this Company to fit up works sufficient to manufacture these shoes, and to establish offices or stores in our principal cities for the sale of the same, where they will be able to supply sets much cheaper than iron shoes, and which can be readily applied by any smith or farrier.

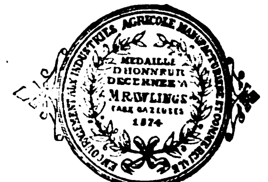
Forms of application for shares may be obtained by applying to the Bankers of the Company, or to the Secretary.

H. D. RAWLINGS,

PURVEYOR OF MINERAL WATERS TO

H. R. H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.
H. R. H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH.
H. R. H. THE PRINCE CHRISTIAN.
THE LATE EMPEROR NAPOLEON III.

AND THE PRINCIPAL COURTS OF EUROPE.



Gold Medallist of the Societe Nationale Agricole Manufacturiere et Commerciale de Paris.

SODA, BRIGHTON, SELTZER and all other Mineral Waters for HOME CONSUMPTION and EXPORTATION.
PRICE LISTS on Application, at the Manufactory, Nassau-street, W.

ALFRED W. GEE,
ADVERTISING AGENT,
62, GRACECHURCH STREET,
LONDON, E.C.

London Gazette Notices, and Advertisements and Announcements of all kinds for English, Colonial, and Foreign Newspapers promptly inserted.

N.B.—In the case of an ordinary Advertisement ordered for insertion in a number of Newspapers, only one MS. copy need be forwarded. Same rates charged as at the Publishing Offices.

Printed and Published for the Proprietor by WILLIAMS & STRAHAN, 7 Lawrence Lane, Cheapside. SEPTEMBER 18, 1875.

Digitized by Google

The Accountant.

A MEDIUM OF COMMUNICATION BETWEEN ACCOUNTANTS IN ALL PARTS OF THE UNITED KINGDOM

VOL. I.—NEW SERIES.—No. 42.] SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 1875. [PRICE 6D.

THE BANKRUPTCY ACT, 1869.

IN THE LONDON BANKRUPTCY COURT.

IN THE MATTER of ROBERT HENRY ARMIT, of 33 Abchurch-lane, in the City of London, and of 93 Regent-street, in the County of Middlesex, Commission and Financial Agent, a bankrupt.

Harry Brett (a Fellow of the Society of Accountants in England), of 150 Leadenhall-street, in the City of London, Public Accountant, has been appointed trustee of the property of the Bankrupt. The Court has appointed the public examination of the Bankrupt to take place at the London Bankruptcy Court, Lincoln's-Inn Fields, in the County of Middlesex, on the 20th day of November next, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon. All persons having in their possession any of the effects of the Bankrupt, must deliver them to the trustee. Creditors who have not yet proved their debts must forward their proofs of debt to the trustee.

Dated this Second day of September, 1875.

H. P. ROCHE,
Registrar.

A PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT (an Associate of the Society of Accountants in England) is open to an engagement as Managing Clerk. Is thoroughly conversant with Bankruptcy and Mercantile Law, the duties of Trustees, Receivers, and Auditors, and could manage a practice without supervision. Highest references as to capability, &c. An engagement where arrangements may be made with a view to partnership preferred, and no objection to a temporary engagement.—Address, "Alpha," at the Office of the Accountant, 62 Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

39 BROAD-STREET, BRISTOL,
JUNE 24TH, 1875.

The PARTNERSHIP hitherto existing under the Style or Firm of HANCOCK, TRIGGS, & CO., having been DISSOLVED by mutual consent, I beg to give notice that I purpose henceforth to CARRY ON BUSINESS as a PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT at the above address.

PHILIP TRIGGS.

MESSRS. BARRETT AND PATEY,
PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS,
90 LONDON WALL, E.C.

HAVING removed from No. 8 Finsbury Circus, to more commodious offices at the above address, will be pleased to hear from Accountants resident in the provincial and manufacturing towns who require agents in London.

LOVEWELL BLAKE, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT, RECEIVER, AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY.
SECRETARY TO THE GREAT YARMOUTH TRADERS' ASSOCIATION.
OFFICES: HALL QUAY CHAMBERS, GREAT YARMOUTH.

J. F. TITCHMARSH, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT AND AUDITOR.
17 PRINCESS STREET, IPSWICH.

RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY AND LIQUIDATION.

TO WHOLESALE PROVISION MERCHANTS.—To be disposed of by Private Sale, the business of a wholesale Provision Merchant in Newcastle-upon-Tyne, doing a large trade.—For further particulars apply to Mr. John M. Winter, 56 Westgate-road, Newcastle-upon Tyne.

WILLIAMS & STRAHAN,
Legal, Accountancy, & General Printers,
MANUFACTURING STATIONERS, &c.
7 LAWRENCE LANE, CHEAPSIDE, LONDON.

Bankruptcy Forms, Statements of Affairs, Dividend Notices, Balance Sheets, &c., printed with despatch.

STEAM PRINTING WORKS, LAMBETH, S.E.

TRANSLATIONS.
MR. ALFRED W. GEE,
BRITISH AND FOREIGN ADVERTISING AGENT,
62 GRACECHURCH STREET, LONDON, E.C.,

Begs to announce that in compliance with a wish expressed by some of the subscribers to the Accountant, he has made arrangements for the translation of legal and commercial documents, correspondence, &c., into the Principal European Languages. Members of the Profession are therefore respectfully informed that arrangements can be made for efficient and speedy translations into, or from, the French, German, Italian Spanish, and Dutch Languages on Moderate Terms.

RESTAURANT,
13 OXFORD STREET,
Near the corner of Tottenham-court-road.

Known as the BODEGA, now under the new management of Mr. L. BOECKER, late of 13 Idol-lane, City.

Luncheons from the joints, hot or cold, including vegetables and bread, 1s. 3d

Dinners from 12 till 4 o'clock, from the joint, with soup or fish, vegetables, cheese and bread, 2s.

Dinners from 6 till 9 o'clock, from 2s. 6d. to 10s. 6d.

Private Dining Rooms for large and small parties on the Second Floor.

Digitized by Google

MR. FERDINAND WOLFSKEHL,

BANKER,

9 STEINWEG, FRANKFORT A/MAIN, GERMANY,

CALLS THE ATTENTION of Investors to different Continental Government Securities, guaranteed by Acts of Parliament, through which Capital and Interest ARE SECURED BEYOND ANY DOUBT.

Every one of these Loans must be repaid as per Plan attached to each Debenture, within a limited number of years, by periodical Drawings, OFFERING ADVANTAGES PRESENTED BY NO OTHER SECURITIES, WITH BONUSES AT EACH DRAWING, varying from

£10 to £30,000.

For full particulars apply by letter, addressed care

MESSRS. WOLFSKEHL BROTHERS, BANKERS,

LORD STREET, LIVERPOOL.

The Accountant.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

The ACCOUNTANT is printed and published in time for Friday evening's mail; price 6d. per copy, or 28s. per annum (including postage), the reduced terms for payment in advance being: annual subscription 24s. (post free); half-yearly ditto, 13s. (post free). Cheques and Post-office orders to be made payable to Mr. Alfred W. Gee, 62 Gracechurch-street, E.C., to whom applications for advertisement space, and letters relating to the general business of the paper, should also be addressed. Literary communications should be directed to the Editor of the ACCOUNTANT at the same address, and in order to ensure insertion in the current number, correspondents are respectfully requested to forward their copy as early in the week as possible.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The Proprietor desires to call the attention of Advertisers to the special advantages offered by the paper as an Advertising medium. Starting with a good guaranteed circulation, and with the entire concurrence and hearty support of the leading members of the profession, the ACCOUNTANT has achieved a large measure of success in a wide field hitherto unoccupied by any professional organ. The ACCOUNTANT thus secures to Advertisers an excellent circulation of an exclusive character; and is particularly valuable as a medium for the announcements of members of the profession, as to Estates and Declaration of Dividends, and the appointment of Trustees and Receivers; for Publishers, Printers, Law Stationers, Auctioneers, and Estate Agents; for the Advertisements of Insurance and Public Companies; and for Notices as to Investments, Vacant Partnerships, &c. Advertisements intended for insertion in the current number, should reach the office on Thursday; late announcements can, however, be received up to 12 o'clock (noon) on Friday.

N.B.—Copies may be obtained at Messrs. W. H. Smith and Sons, Strand, at their numerous Railway Bookstalls, and at the Shops of the leading City and West-End Newsvendors.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.

In consequence of numerous applications from subscribers, the proprietor has made arrangements for the supply of CASES for holding and preserving the Accountant, which may be obtained at the office on the following terms:—In green cloth (well got up), with elastics, and "The Accountant" in gold letters on front, 3s. each; same in leather, 4s. 6d. each. Subscribers' names in gold lettering, 1s. extra. Post Office Orders payable to ALFRED W. GEE, 62 Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

The Accountant.

SEPTEMBER 25, 1875.

There is, probably, no question of law which has been so hotly disputed at times as the question of the validity of voluntary settlements, and the Bankruptcy Act has afforded a sufficiently simple mode of testing the propriety of these convenient family arrangements. It used to be very common, on the failure of some person of great reputed wealth, to discover that his wife and family were enjoying large incomes under settlements of property that in reality ought to have belonged to his creditors. The remedies against this state of things are of very long standing. As far back as the reign of Queen Elizabeth it was enacted that such conveyances of property should be void as against creditors existing at the time; but the mere circumstances of the deed being voluntary have not been considered grounds for setting it aside in the interest of subsequent creditors. Some very curious questions arose on these distinctions, and a number of cases were decided in the courts on the claims of creditors. The test applied was, whether the settlement was intended to, or would have the effect of delaying the creditors, and much judicial learning was expended on the various points of difference that arose; but at last a startling decision of the late Vice-Chancellor Kindersley gave creditors very great power. Previous to this, it was held that a creditor to whom money was owing at the time of the execution of the deed could file a bill to have it set aside, if he was put to any inconvenience in recovering his debt, but that a subsequent creditor could not be said to have been delayed by the execution of a settlement which had been completed before his claim accrued. Of course, if the deed was upset at the instance of the earlier creditor, he was fully entitled to receive the amount of his debt from the estate. But Sir Richard Kindersley declared it to be his opinion that a subsequent creditor might file a bill, if any debt remained due which was owing at the time of executing the deed. This view of the law, expressed by a judge of such deservedly high eminence, was a great blow to all who relied on the protection of voluntary settlements, as the slightest debt omitted or forgotten at the time might be raked up and used to invalidate a perfectly legitimate transaction.

Digitized by Google

The Bankruptcy Act of 1849 made all deeds by a trader with intent to defeat his creditors an act of bankruptcy, and further, that if any bankrupt, being at the time insolvent, should, except on the marriage of his children, or for valuable consideration, have transferred any property, the court should have power, as against the bankrupt, and those claiming under him, to annul the transfer, and sell the property for the benefit of creditors. But still this threw upon the creditors the onus of proving the insolvency, and a resort to the Court of Chancery was tedious, expensive, and often liable to be defeated by unseen circumstances. As the law is now declared by the Act of 1869, nothing can be more to the advantage of the creditors. The settlement is absolutely void if the settler becomes bankrupt within two years of its date, and the onus of proving his solvency lies upon him, or those who claim under him, if he fails within ten years. It must be borne in mind that the Act speaks only of traders, and therefore the convenient summary process which it provides must give place to the more dilatory and costly process of a suit in Chancery, or the modern equivalent which is provided in the Judicature Acts, in the case of a bankrupt who has not carried on one of the avocations mentioned in the schedule to the Bankruptcy Act.

There is one other point in this 91st section which is worth notice, and which may become very important in view of sundry recent popular agitations. From the operation of the opening clauses is excepted "A settlement made before, and in consideration of, marriage, or a settlement made on or for the wife, or children, of property which has accrued to the settler after marriage in right of his wife." The latter portion embodies a rule which has long been acted on by the Court of Chancery in enforcing what is termed the wife's equity to a settlement. Where money belonging to a married woman can only be obtained by means of proceedings in equity, the court will insist on a due proportion of the amount being settled, the amount varying from the entire fund to a-half, according to the discretion of the judge; and this, whether the object is to protect the after-acquired property from actual, or merely potential, creditors. But the mention of marriage as a valid consideration, also carries out the rules of the Court of Chancery. With that delightful commercial spirit of interpretation, which is one of the greatest blessings of our law, and which is charmingly exemplified in actions for breach of promise of marriage, it is laid down that, if a woman marries and has a settlement of all her husband's property upon her, nothing can deprive her of her bargain; she has purchased her husband's fortune as the price of herself, and she is the valuable consideration that has passed. The case of Hardey v. Green, which is a stock case on the point, exemplifies this doctrine to perfection. There (we quote from memory) a man perfectly insolvent at the time of his marriage, but entitled to valuable reversionary interests, married, and settled the whole of his property of every description on his wife. The claims of the creditors were thus entirely defeated; it was laid down that the marriage was a valuable consideration, and that the wife was fully entitled to what she had sacrificed herself to obtain. This doctrine still remains unshaken, though somewhat qualified by a more recent case, in which, where a marriage was obviously entered into merely as a means of cheating creditors, the wife being fully cognisant of the intended fraud, it was held that the settlement was void. Still, in the absence of the very peculiar circumstances of Colombine v. Fenhall, it may safely be laid down that young men of fortune, who have perfect confidence in their powers to manage their future wives, need not hesitate to marry for fear of the consequences; and it must be observed further, that the High Court alone, and not the Court of Bankruptcy, would have the exclusive right of determining the questions arising under similar circumstances, and of declaring a settlement void. The Court of Bankruptcy, indeed, would have to strain its authority very far if it ventured to do more than declare that such settlements were absolutely protected.

It is curious to consider what may be the effect of the "emancipation of women" on the question of marriage as a valuable consideration. The tendency of the agitation is doubtless to reduce marriage to a sort of partnership determinable at very short notice, and on very slight grounds, in which both parties to the contract retain their individual rights over the property they contribute to the common stock. So far as relates to the right of creditors to seize the wife's fortune to satisfy their claims on the husband, modern legislation must soon form a complete bar to this, whether a settlement has been executed or not; but as regards the power of the husband to lock up his property from the grasp of his creditors by giving what may be a mere nominal control to the wife, the case is very different to those who regard marriage from its aspect as a life-long connection, and those who treat it as a mere partnership at will. Such a case as Hardey v. Green is an anomaly, look upon it how we will, and though we may have every pity for the disappointed expectations of the family of the ruined trader, we must have equal sympathy for the deceived and deluded creditors. Probably the most satisfactory solution would be found in a species of retrograde extension of the old system. We would still preserve the property that strictly belongs to the wife from the clutches of the husband's creditors, but we would make his property, as far as possible, available for the debts he has incurred. We would make, for instance, every settlement of furniture void unless registered, instead of exempting marriage settlements, and we would extend the provisions of the Act to settlements whether made in consideration of marriage or not. But we would apply the doctrine of the wife's equity to a settlement to those cases where a settlement previous to marriage had been made; and though declaring the settlement void, if of less than two years standing, we would allow the judge to give effect to the wife's claim, and settle a portion of it according to the rules now prevailing in the Court of Chancery, and would not permit the settled property to be resorted to further than to make up the statutory dividend. We throw out these suggestions for the consideration of those who are vexed with the law as it stands, but uncertain in what direction to turn for amendment.

Digitized by Google

There is one point especially to which we must call attention. The Act of last session is supplemented by a very large number of forms. It will be the duty of the profession at the outset to watch jealously the use of such forms. They will be printed by law stationers all over the kingdom, who will be as ready to sell them to the class of so-called "accountants" whom Mr. Justice Quain has lately dealt with, as to the profession. It is the use of forms which has led to such a wholesale illegal traffic in the preparation of bills of sale, leases, assignments, and other documents, forms of which are exposed for sale in the shop windows of tradesmen. We admit that their use often leads to profitable litigation, but from this risk the public ought to be protected.—Law Times. [We are glad to see our contemporary draws so accurate a distinction between "Accountants" and "so-called Accountants."—ED.]

Correspondence.

THE ERIE RAILWAY COMPANY.

To the Editor of the Accountant.

SIR,—Although fortunately not an investor or speculator in any one of the various issues of Eries, I, in common with most Englishmen, have from time to time watched the moves. Sir Edward W. Watkin's report, dated London, 18th September, 1875, was published in the Times of 21st inst. That report gives just about as much satisfaction as most people expected, that is to say none. I sincerely hope Sir Edward W. Watkin and Mr. Morris enjoyed their trip, which must have been very pleasurable and remunerative at the vacation period. Perhaps, next year the investing public will send me out to look into some other American swindle. I will not ask the same terms in consideration of the pleasure to be derived from the trip, and the meagre result likely to arise to those trusting people who believe in Yankees trading with Britishers' capital, I will be more moderate, and be satisfied with from a thousand pounds upwards for my honorarium. (This word, Mr. Editor, conveys to thinking minds a good deal!) It is not my intention to find fault either with Sir Edward W. Watkin or Mr. Morris, both of whom will, I am sure, do all in their power for the interests they represent, but how are they to succeed in an attempt to get "figs from thistles?"

Mr. Jewett's report of the 13th of May last, seems to have omitted various deductions of loss, "and thus unintentionally produced an erroneous impression of the actual available net profit."

"Should it be found possible under the management of "Mr. Jewett to work the Erie undertaking at a rate of "even 70 per cent. of outlay, an additional net profit— "equal to some 1,600,000 dollars per annum—would result "and we shall all watch with anxiety the changes of "management already hopefully commenced. Mr. Jewett "speaks with confidence of the propable future progress "of the net earnings, &c.," but Sir Edward Watkin wisely postpones the expression of any opinion of his own. "Only one engine in ten is in the shops for repairs or "renewals. The railway, together with the plant, is in "a full average state of repair according to the standard "of the United States. One seventh of the nominal "stock of cars is represented by useless or worn out "vehicles, or missing in number. It is gratifying to "know that at the principal workshops at Susquehana, 600 "men now do as much work as 1200 formerly got through. "As respects the usually heavy fees and charges attaching "to a receivership, Mr. Jewett does not contemplate or "intend to receive any other remuneration than that of his "salary as president of the company." How very considerate of Mr. Jewett, to content himself with 35,000 dollars per annum, for which sum, as president, he generously issued an erroneous report (no extra charge being made for the same, we will suppose), and how very ungrateful of "those Britishers" to think that President and Receiver Jewett had the best of the bargain!

Now, Mr. Editor, as "an outsider," but one who takes sufficient interest in his compatriots to like to follow their "little game," I should be glad to know what the ungrateful British public expected in the way of a pecuniary result from the last move in Erie. If I may judge from other experience, Erie is in its present shape a "sucked egg."

Digitized by Google

The suggestion of Sir Edward W. Watkin, "that the "bond and stock holders will have the courage now to "submit to a period of self-denial, and will consent to "pay their debts and complete essential obligations out "of available net profits, the bond holders receiving in "place of cash such equitable obligations realisable out of "surplus revenue in the future, as each, according to right "and priority, may justly claim," reads very nicely, but it seems to me that this is merely another way of "burying "one's head in the sand, and from that elevated position "winking benignly on one's baffled pursuers." The Erie shareholders, by this time, must be simply a figure of speech, and the question at issue really lies between the creditors and the bondholders. Who takes precedence I know not, but suppose that the bond-holders are "secured creditors." If such is the fact, why do they not realise their security. Liquidate the whole concern by a sale to a new corporation formed out of their foreclosure; "shunt" all the Yankee element; put in a practical, efficient and honest English staff, and then, and not till then, hope for better things.

This suggestion may be "rough" on the shareholders; but is it not better that one section should lose, rather than that Yankees should absorb the whole? I admire "Young America" as a remarkably 'cute race; but I think they might, with profit to the "Old Country," confine their attentions a little more to home.

Yours truly,
JOHN BULL'S BROTHER.

London, 22nd Sept., 1875.

[With reference to the answers to correspondents in our last, we have received several communications, of which we print the first two, received from a well-known firm of accountants. It is singular enough, that in the 113th section of the Act, the word "receipt" is not used, the marginal note speaks of "deeds, &c.," and the instruments specified are "every deed, conveyance, assignment, surrender, admission, or assurance," and later on, "every power of attorney, proxy, paper, writ, order, certificate, affidavit, bond, or other instrument in writing." There appear to be no cases on the point, which is purely one of practice, and on which the opinion of our various experienced correspondents must be conclusive.]

To the Editor of the Accountant.

SIR,—In your present number (41), you reply, in answer to "correspondents," that a stamp must be affixed to all receipts for sums above forty shillings. I beg to say, that relying upon clause 113 of the Bankruptcy Act, I have never required receipts for dividends to have receipt stamps affixed.

Yours truly,
PRACTICE.

To the Editor of the Accountant.

SIR,—In reply to "Query" as to a landlord's rights.— A landlord can distrain for rent, not exceeding twelve months, due before bankruptcy, should there be goods to distrain upon, otherwise, he is but an ordinary creditor— the intervening period between the time of rent-due and date of filing of petition he must prove for—and rent accruing after the bankruptcy should be paid by the trustee, so long as he holds possession.

Yours truly,
PRACTICE.

To the Editor of the Accountant.

SIR,—As your answer to "Subscriber" in last week's Accountant, with regard to stamp duty in cases of bankruptcy, is calculated to mislead trustees, I hope you will allow me to correct it. When the 1869 Act came into operation, I took an early opportunity of ascertaining whether trustees in bankruptcy would be justified in following the practice previously followed by official assignees under former Acts, who, in giving receipts for moneys due to bankrupts' estates, in drawing cheques on account of the same, and in taking receipts for creditors' dividends, omitted all Inland Revenue stamps. The result of my communication with the Inland Revenue authorities was, that the Solicitor to the Board informed me that a receipt given by a trustee for moneys due to a bankrupt's estate was exempt from stamp duty, as was also any cheque drawn by a trustee on a banking account representing the assets of a bankrupt's estate. With regard to receipts given by creditors for dividends due to them from bankrupts' estates, I was informed the law was not so clear, but that there appeared no reason for departing from the practice theretofore prevailing on this point, viz. of taking such receipts unstamped. The practice thus laid down, applies to liquidation by arrangement as well as bankruptcy, but would not, I imagine, extend to cases of composition—at any rate, I have never treated it as being applicable to the latter.

Trusting this letter may be of service to trustees, and afford some little relief to estates in the matter of stamp duty,

I am, yours truly
TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY.

London, 20*th September*, 1875.

To the Editor of the Accountant.

SIR,—In reply to "Rent's" query in your issue of the 18th inst., I think he will find the law and practice on the question of payment of rent in full to be this:—A landlord is entitled to distrain after the commencement of a bankruptcy for a year's rent accrued due prior to such commencement, and he is also entitled to prove for any rent due in respect of a proportionate part of a current quarter up to the date of the bankruptcy. But if he neglects to avail himself of the power which the law gives him, by either distraining, or obtaining from the trustee an undertaking for payment in consideration of his not distraining, he loses his right of payment in full, and must rank as an ordinary creditor. Rent is not a preferential payment in the same sense as rates, taxes, and wages; the landlord may rather be looked upon as a secured creditor to a certain extent, the security being the property on his premises, and that security is not available to him unless he distrains. Therefore, if the landlord omits to secure himself, the trustee would be justified in selling the goods on the premises, and treating the landlord as an unsecured creditor. With regard to the case cited by your correspondent, I should hold the law to be this:—The landlord is entitled to be paid in full his rent due up to the 12th May prior to bankruptcy, presuming the quarter terminated on that day, and also that the landlord took care to get from the trustee the requisite undertaking to pay what was legally due. He is also entitled to prove against the estate for the rent accrued due between the 12th of May and the date of the bankruptcy (25th of May). With regard to the trustee's occupation, it has been generally held, that the assignees or trustees are entitled to hold possession of the bankrupt's premises for a reasonable period sufficient to enable them to realise the property thereon, and that for such a reasonable time no claim can be made by the landlord for rent; but where the trustees hold the premises for the purpose of continuing the bankrupt's business, or otherwise obtaining a beneficial occupation, the landlord is entitled to be paid a rent for use and occupation for the actual period occupied by the trustees. Of course, in the case of a lease, the trustees would be bound by its covenants, unless they disclaimed.

Digitized by Google

Yours truly,

Accountant.

London, 21st September, 1875.

[We quite agree with our correspondent's views on this point. Probably the landlord's course would always be to distrain, or obtain some guarantee for his rent. We will examine into the matter, and endeavour to state some more positive rules for the guidance of trustees next week.—Ed. Accountant.]

To the Editor of the Accountant.

Sir,—I was much pleased to see a letter in the Accountant of the 18th inst. respecting the relations at present existing between a landlord and a trustee in bankruptcy. It is a question which has puzzled myself, and, no doubt, many others of your subscribers, for some time, and one which "I am informed and believe" has not yet been judicially settled. I have had to deal with many cases somewhat similar to the one referred to by your correspondent "Rent," and shall be glad to give him the result of my experience, and the conclusions at which I have arrived, which, of course, he can estimate at what he may think they are worth. It appears, I think, quite clear, that a landlord is entitled to six years rent, if he has only distrained before the adjudication, but if not until after, then he is only entitled to twelve months in full, and to rank as an ordinary creditor for any balance "up to the day of the adjudication;" of course, in both cases, the rent must necessarily have become due before the adjudication, and as a landlord can "only" distrain for rent accrued due before the adjudication, he cannot, of course, distrain for any rent accruing due after the adjudication, and (query?) if he cannot distrain for it, is he entitled to it? I think not. (Bankruptcy Act, 1869, section 34, and Roche and Hazlitt's Bankruptcy, page 81.) A difference of opinion seems to exist as to whether, if a landlord fails to distrain, and allows the goods to be removed off the premises, he thereby loses his legal preference, and must prove as an ordinary creditor? I know of several cases where it was so decided. It would also seem that a trustee is entitled to hold possession of premises for a reasonable time, for the purpose of realising the estate, and is not bound to formally disclaim, without his having had notice to do so, in which case, however, he must disclaim within the 28 days (secs. 23-24), or he will be responsible for the rent in full. If a trustee holds premises for an unreasonable time, and no notice calling upon him to disclaim has been given by the landlord, then I think it may be competent for the landlord to prove only on the estate for "damages," (Subsec. 23 and Sec. 31) which, in case of dispute, will be assessed by the Court; but I cannot see that he can call upon the trustee for "rent," seeing that no tenancy has really existed between them. It is, therefore, to the landlord's interest to give a trustee notice to disclaim immediately, or get an undertaking from him for his rent. For my part, I have always failed to see why a landlord should be entitled to any preference over an ordinary creditor, seeing that his rent is merely at best, as it were, but the interest or profit only on his capital; whereas the tradesman's debt is made up, not only of his profit or interest, but also of a part of his capital in addition! As matters stand at present, I think the little hardship seeming to press unjustly against landlords after a bankruptcy, is more than counterbalanced by the preferences and privileges enjoyed by them before. At the same time, I do not think that a landlord ought to be compelled to make a bad debt in spite of himself, and I think it would only be fair and reasonable to allow him to claim his proportion of rent, as due from day to day, in full, after a bankruptcy, until he obtains possession of his premises; but then, let him rank as an ordinary creditor for any rent or proportion of rent due up to the adjudication. But all this is, of course, beside the question. I have, at the present time, several cases on hand, involving claims of hundreds of pounds, and I should very much like to see—with your permission—the opinions of your many subscribers fully and freely expressed, in the columns of the Accountant, on this very important subject. I shall be glad, too, at any time to exchange opinions, confidentially, with any of your readers on unsettled points of practice as to a trustee's duties and responsibilities in the ordinary working of bankruptcies, liquidations, compositions, &c. avoiding, of course, all legal matters, where the advice and assistance of the solicitor to the estate ought to be sought.

Yours truly and obliged,

C. T. R.

Halifax, Sept. 21st, 1875.

RECEIVERS' AND TRUSTEES' CHARGES IN COMPOSITION CASES.

To the Editor of the Accountant.

Sir,—Referring to the case of Re Knowles, reported in your issue of the 4th inst., I should be glad to be informed what power or right the creditors of an insolvent have, in case they accept a composition under sec. 126, to vote any part of their debtor's property to the receiver or trustee, or any one else. It appears to me that if the creditors resolve to accept a composition in satisfaction of their debts, they have not a shadow of right to deal in that or any other way with the property which they have practically sold to the debtor in consideration of his paying the composition. They may determine as to the amount of composition, manner of payment and security, and by whom the composition shall be distributed; but there I consider their power ends. The debtor's property does not vest in the trustee, in fact the term "trustee" is perhaps somewhat misleading. The trustee's duty is simply to receive from the debtor or his sureties the moneys or securities for the composition, and distribute such moneys or securities amongst the creditors. The question of the payment of the costs of the debtor's attorney, the receiver, the accountant, and the trustee, is one entirely between those agents and the debtor. Their remedy is against the debtor and not against the creditors; and for the latter to pretend to pass resolutions on the question of costs must be entirely ultra vires. The agents in the matter are, or ought to be, amenable to the court, and if the debtor is dissatisfied with their charges he has, or ought to have, the right to call upon the taxing officer to tax such charges. With all respect, therefore, to the learned judge before whom the application in Re Knowles was heard, I am of opinion that his decision was founded on an erroneous view of the rights of creditors in composition cases, and he ought, upon the debtor's application, to have decided the taxation of the accountant's, receiver's, and trustee's charges. The amount allowed on taxation would have been recoverable by the agents from the debtor in the ordinary way. No part of any funds handed to the trustee to pay the creditors their composition could have been applied in payment of the taxed charges, though he might reasonably have a right to retain his own costs out of any moneys which he might have received during his receivership, and which moneys would remain the property of the debtor upon the passing of the extraordinary resolution, and the receiver would be accountable to the debtor therefor under Rule 298.

Digitized by Google

My remarks are intended only to apply to the principle at issue, and I leave the question of the fairness or otherwise of the charges made by the accountants and trustee in Re Knowles to the decision of those acquainted with the circumstances of the case, which I am not. I think, however, that some of the strictures of the learned judge were beside the mark.

I am, yours truly,

TRUSTEE.

London, 21st September, 1875.

RECEIPT STAMPS IN BANKRUPTCY.

To the Editor of the Accountant.

SIR,—Referring to your answer to "Subscriber" in your issue of the 18th instant, permit me to call your attention to sec. 113 of the Bankruptcy Act, which expressly exempts all deeds, documents, papers, &c. from stamp duty.

Being in doubt as to whether the wording of this section covered receipts given by trustees in bankruptcy, I, in the early part of 1870, wrote to the Board of Inland Revenue on the subject, and on the 22nd February, 1870, received a reply in the following words: "Receipts given by trustees under the Bankruptcy Act for moneys paid to them as such trustees are exempt from stamp duty."

I am, Sir, your obedient Servant,

F. M. I. A.

BANKRUPTCY LAWS. No. 9.

LIQUIDATION BY ARRANGEMENT OR COMPOSITION.

Owing to various calls on our time, we have been compelled to defer continuing these articles. The last (No. 8), appeared on the 10th April, 1875 (No. 18 of the Accountant). Our readers will, we trust, excuse the delay, and accept the apology which we hereby offer.

The last article referred to the duties of a Receiver and Manager. A recent decision, which has not yet been upset, removes the distinction between a Receiver appointed, either upon the application of the debtor or of a creditor, and one appointed upon nomination by a majority of the creditors. The practice hitherto has been to disallow the charge for the preparation of the statement of affairs, when the appointment of a Receiver was made under one of the two first conditions, but to allow for it upon the appointment by nomination.

The decision referred to (Ex parte Gordon Re Gomersal reported in our issue of August 14th) certainly is a step in the right direction. Creditors always expect Receivers to submit a statement of affairs, and it is not fair that they should be left to depend on the goodwill of persons whose interest it may be to dispute the charge for its preparation; and unfortunately, in the case of small assets, this is too frequently done. After all, it is but natural that the principle of self-preservation should be adopted, and we therefore hold that, in common fairness, that which is daily expected should be legally chargeable.

The duties of a Receiver, or of a Receiver and Manager under composition or liquidation, ought not to cease until the registration of the resolutions is completed. As a matter of fact, however, their duties do cease at the first meeting of creditors, unless continued by a special resolution; and we would call the attention of our readers to the necessity of such a resolution being passed, if the creditors desire their interests not to be left unprotected during an indefinite period.

Instances frequently arise of registration being delayed for one and even two months. Section 125, subsection 4, contains these words, "and the liquidation by arrangement shall be deemed to have commenced as from the date of the appointment of the trustee." It is therefore highly important that creditors should not neglect the precaution of having their estate protected until the trustee is in a position to act.

Irregularities in connection with these points are not of rare occurrence, such as Receivers continuing to act after their duties cease in consequence of omission to have their position confirmed, or trustees commencing to act before their appointment is made.

As a rule, these irregularities are either overlooked, or tacitly connived at in consequence of their having been committed for the protection and benefit of the creditors, and owing to their being based on common sense (which is not always law); but some of these days advantage will be taken of it by some "outsider," or sharp practitioner who is looking after his own costs or remuneration, and the receiver or trustee will realise the fact that attention to detail is necessary in his vocation.

Digitized by Google

Our next number will deal with the duties of a trustee under liquidation.

H. B. [London.]

A SCOTCH BANKRUPTCY.—At Perth, on Saturday, September 4th—before Sheriff Barclay—Mr. John Baxter, proprietor of Ashbank and Ashgrove Spinning Mills, Blairgowrie, was examined in bankruptcy. There appeared—the bankrupt; along with Mr. David Myles, accountant, Dundee, trustee; Mr. John P. Kyd, solicitor, Dundee, agent in the sequestration; and Mr. Thomas Thornton, solicitor, Dundee, agent for the Commercial Bank and other creditors. The bankrupt, interrogated by Mr. Kyd, deponed—I commenced business in September 1869, on my father's death, and after his affairs were wound-up. I succeeded to Ashgrove mill and machinery under my father's settlement, burdened with an annuity of £300 a year to my mother as long as she lived, and also with the obligation to pay my father's debts in so far as the movable estate was insufficient to pay them. In respect of that condition I have paid about £8,000 of my father's debts. As shown by state of affairs, Ashgrove Works and machinery are valued at about £20,000. Since my father's death I have spent nearly £7,000 on improvements, so that the value as at my father's death would be about £13,000. I had no capital other than the works and machinery. I afterwards bought Ashbank Mill from my brother Robert. As far as I remember, the price was left to be determined by two practical men—Mr. Luke and Mr. Grimond—who are personal friends; but we had agreed as to the price of the mill, although we took their advice. These two gentlemen fixed it at £2,100. I have since spent on it upwards of £7000, as shown by my books. In the state of affairs my brother Robert is a creditor to the extent of £470 14s. 7d., being the balance still to be paid to him. My brother granted a discharge in 1874 bearing that I had paid the full amount, but I had not paid him at that time. The discharge was delivered to me and recorded. I do not remember if I granted him any letter as to the sum unpaid. My books show all the moneys paid to my brother, and the dates of the payments. I have made up a statement showing how the deficiency of £19,850 is accounted for, which I now hand in. I have given the trustee and his agent and the commissioners every information I am aware of, and I will continue to do so. I have disclosed to the trustee all the goods and effects and bills given away by me during the present year, and have kept nothing back. I have kept back nothing of my actings during the sixty days prior to my bankruptcy. Mr. Thornton said—I understand, Mr. Myles, that you have got a full and correct statement from the bankrupt of all his transactions and deliveries of goods, articles, and machinery, not only for the sixty days preceding his bankruptcy, but for the whole year, and that you have compared notes of the information so received; and I believe you are satisfied that they are correct. Mr. Myles replied by stating that he was fully satisfied. Mr. Thornton thereupon said he had no questions to put to the bankrupt. The statutory oath was then administered. The assets are £10,466 16s. 8d.; liabilities, £30,317 8s. 5d.; deficiency, £19,850 11s. 9d.—showing a dividend of 6s. 10d. per £, subject to expenses in realising and administering the estate.

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY.

September 17.

(Before Mr. Registrar PEPYS.)

IN RE HON. W. F. O'CALLAGHAN, M.P.—This was an application to confirm a scheme of arrangement come to by creditors under the 28th section. The bankrupt, who was adjudicated in March last, is described as of Old Burlington-street, and Paris. Mr. Theodore Lumley applied to his Honour to confirm the resolutions. He said that they were to the effect that the trustee should be at liberty to sell the estate for £6,250, to be divided among the creditors, in satisfaction of their claims, the bankrupt receiving his discharge and the bankruptcy being annulled. The report of the official assignee as to the reasonableness of the offer having been read, his Honour confirmed the resolutions.

IN RE JOHN STRACHAN AND CO.—This was a first meeting for the proof of debt and appointment of trustee. The adjudication was made in August last; the bankrupt, John Strachan, being described as an East India merchant, of 14 New City-chambers, Bishopsgate-street-within, trading as John Strachan and Co. Debts to the amount of £60,000 were proved, and a resolution was come to appointing Mr. W. Waddell, accountant, trustee of the estate, with a committee of inspection. The bankrupt was not in attendance, and no statement of affairs was produced. The account produced at the meeting held under the liquidation shows debts of £96,938, against assets of £5,711.

IN RE MCFARLAND AND NANCE.—A trustee was appointed to the estate of these bankrupts, who are described as builders, carrying on business at Park-street, Victoria-park-road. The adjudication was made on the 1st instant. The statement shows about 18s. in the pound, subject to realisation.

September 20.

(Before Mr. Registrar PEPYS.)

RE W. R. PERRIN.—The debtor, carrying on business as a rod merchant and basket manufacturer at Ma idstone-buildings Southwark, and Peckham, has presented a petition for liquidation, and the court now appointed a receiver and manager of the estate, it appearing of importance that the business should be continued for the benefit of creditors. The amount of debts was not stated. The assets, consisting of stock and book debts, were of the estimated value of £1,230.

September 21.

(Before Mr. Registrar PEPYS, sitting as Chief Judge.)

IN RE CHARLES CARNIE.—Upon the application of Mr. Travers Smith, on behalf of the London and Westminster Bank, petitioning creditors, his Honour appointed Mr. Whinney, public accountant, receiver of the estate of Charles Carnie, of 25 New Broad-street, merchant, who has filed a declaration of his inability to pay his debts. The liabilities were estimated at £56,000, and it appeared that the assets comprised valuable property at the debtor's residence which required to be protected. Order accordingly.

WINDING-UP.—A petition has been filed in Chancery to wind-up the Newspaper Company.

Messrs. W. Turquand and R. P. Harding, the liquidators in the matter of Overend, Gurney, and Company (Limited), have, with the sanction of Vice Chancellor Malins, declared a seventh return of 10s. per share, payable on the 27th inst.

Digitized by Google

BIRMINGHAM COUNTY COURT.

September 21.

(Before MR. W. H. COLE, Q.C., Judge.)

Mr. Motteram applied to the Court, on behalf of William Hales Pridmore, iron merchant, New-street, to have a warrant, made on that debtor some time ago, directing him to keep the terms of a composition, rescinded or varied. Mr. Nordon, of Liverpool, appeared for Mr. McCulloch, iron merchant, of that town, and one of the creditors, to oppose the application. Mr. Motteram based his application on the fact that the debtor had not had notice of the other proceedings against him, so that the order of committal was without his knowledge, and he had no chance of appearing to answer it. On the other hand, Mr. Nordon submitted that the debtor could not be heard in support of an application to vary an order whilst he was in contempt. The objection was over-ruled, however, and Mr. Nordon then said that Pridmore failed to attend the court, as required. Mr. Motteram explained that he could not do so, being seriously ill at the time, and he put in an affidavit from a surgeon at Folkestone saying that this was so. He assured the court that the debtor was not contumaciously in contempt, even if he were in contempt at all. He had not had a chance to answer the order, and it was not known whether he had paid his creditors or not. Mr. Nordon said Pridmore had kept out of the way, so that the order could not be served upon him. His Honour said he could not rescind the order, but he would hear Mr. Motteram further if he had a case upon the merits. Mr. Motteram did so, but his Honour refused the application on the merits also.

FAILURES IN THE IRON TRADE.

The Richmond iron works have ceased working. The establishment comprises 26 puddling furances and rolling mills, and has been regularly occupied in manufacturing puddled bar since their erection by Messrs. Jaques and Co., five years ago, affording employment to nearly 300 hands. Mr. Jaques was transacting business at Middlesborough market on Tuesday, and on Wednesday it was rumoured that he had left the district. The night-shift men did not resume work on Thursday, and the furnaces have since been idle. The operatives presented themselves at the office on Saturday morning, and demanded their wages, but were informed that no money could be obtained, and that the concern was insolvent. Four sheriffs' officers, representing Middlesborough and Stockton firms, made their appearance immediately afterwards, and are now in possession.

COURT OF CHANCERY.—In the year ended the 31st of March the compensation paid to officers of the Court amounted to £5,046 10s., including £1,145 11s to "Chaff Wax."

THE ALBERT ARBITRATION.—The several firms of solicitors recently engaged in the Albert Company Arbitration have sent to the secretary of the Arbitration a testimonial, in which they express to Lord Cairns, their satisfaction at the way in which Mr. Thomas Preston has discharged the duties of the office of secretary in relation to the legal practitioners concerned. They state that the magnitude, intricacy, and novelty of the work demanded special qualifications, and that Mr. Preston has proved himself in all respects equal to the occasion. The Lord Chancellor, in acknowledging the receipt of the testimonial, says it has given him much pleasure to note such a recognition of the services of Mr. Preston, and that he is himself fully cognisant of the diligence and intelligence with which the duties of the office of secretary have been discharged.

CREDITORS' MEETINGS.

N. M. DUFFIELD (LOWESTOFT).—A meeting of the creditors of Naomi Mary Duffield, of Lowestoft, single woman, was held at the offices of Messrs. Chamberlin and Divers, solicitors, Yarmouth, on the 20th of September, when it was resolved to liquidate the estate by arrangement, Mr. Lovewell Blake, of Hall Quay-chambers, Great Yarmouth, public accountant, being appointed trustee.

W. SIXTON (SALFORD).—A numerously attended meeting of the creditors of Mr. William Sixton, of Salford, builder and contractor, was held last week at the offices of Mr. Dawson, solicitor, Ridgfield. The statement of affairs, read by Mr. Whitt, accountant, showed total liabilities, £4,964; and assets, £5,183, subject to realisation. An offer of 12s. 6d. in the pound was made, which the creditors unanimously refused. It was resolved to wind-up the estate in liquidation, Mr. Whitt being appointed trustee, with three of the principal creditors as a committee of inspection. Mr. Dawson was intrusted with the registration of the resolutions.

ANDERSON & CO.—An application has been made for leave to register the resolutions come to by creditors in the case of Messrs. Anderson, Duncan, and Anderson, trading in copartnership as merchants in Philpot-lane, and at Colombo, Ceylon. A statement of the joint affairs disclosed total unsecured liabilities to the extent of £144,746, and assets £31,595, besides doubtful items returned at about £42,000. The creditors have determined to liquidate the estate by arrangement, with Mr. Bishop, accountant, Tokenhouse-yard, as trustee; and, in the absence of opposition, registration of the resolutions was ordered.

J. MAYE (HUDDERSFIELD).—At a special sitting of the Huddersfield County Court, Mr. S. Learoyd, of Messrs. Learoyd and Learoyd, solicitors, filed a petition on behalf of John Maye, Cross Church-street, Huddersfield, rope and twine maker, for the liquidation of his affairs. The liabilities were about £4,000. The debtor had during the last six months sustained losses to the amount of £4,700, and he was compelled to come to the court. He had to ask the court to appoint Thomas Westerby, accountant, the receiver under the liquidation, and grant injunctions restraining five actions commenced against the debtor by creditors.

G. HANDSOM (MIDDLESBROUGH).—At a meeting of the creditors of George Handsom, of Middlesbrough, watch maker and jeweller, held at Birmingham on Friday the 17th inst., a statement of affairs was presented showing liabilities to unsecured creditors, £1361 3s. 5d.; creditors fully secured, £1,006 17s.; estimated value of securities, £1,250; surplus to contra, £143 3s. 0d.; creditors partly secured, £145; estimated value of securities, £100; other liabilities, £259 16s.; creditors to be paid in full, £33 17s. 9d. Assets, including surplus from securities, but less creditors to be paid in full, £776 12s. 7d.; stock-in-trade estimated to produce £500; book debts, £43 11s. 10d.; furniture, &c., £50; property, £73 16s. 6d.; surplus from securities, £143 3s. Mr. E. T. Peirson, of Coventry, public accountant, who represented several trade creditors, examined the debtor and learnt that he had been in business about 5 years, having commenced with a borrowed capital of £100; since then he had taken stock twice, the last time being about 18 months ago, when he had a surplus of about £100, but the book and papers containing the accounts, he thought, had been destroyed. The debtor's solicitor offered 7s. 6d. in the pound at 4, 8, and 12 months, but this was increased to 10s. in the pound, at 4, 8, 12, and 16 months, to be secured.

The adjourned statutory meeting of the creditors of Richard Mallalieu, of Manchester, Salford, and Pendlebury, grocer and provision dealer, was held on the 21st instant, at the offices of Messrs. Addleshaw and Warburton, King-street. It was resolved to liquidate by arrangement, and Mr. H. G. Nicholson, 100 King-street, was appointed trustee, with a committee of inspection.

Digitized by Google

S. FREETH & Co. (MILLWALL).—The first meeting of creditors of Messrs. Samuel Freeth and Co., of the Phœnix Iron Works, Millwall; the West Drayton Iron Works, West Drayton, and 60 Gracechurch-street, London, was held on the 20th inst., at the Cannon-street Hotel. The creditors resolved to liquidate the estate by arrangement; and appointed Mr. Robert A. McLean (R. A. McLean and Co.), to be trustee, with a committee of inspection. The statement submitted showed liabilities, £30,824; and assets, £10,276. Messrs. Linklater and Co. are solicitors in the matter.

WILSON AND ARMSTRONG.—The creditors of Messrs. Wilson and Armstrong, manufacturers at Weensland, Hawick, met on the 21st instant, in the Freemasons' Hall, George-street. The trustee, Mr. T. S. Lindsay, accountant, presided, and the meeting considered what allowance should be given to the bankrupts. At a previous meeting the creditors fixed the allowance at £1,500 a year—£750 to be given to Mr. George Wilson, £500 to Mr. Charles Wilson, and £250 to Mr. George Murray Wilson, for the management of the business. Mr. Dunlop said that, so far as the bankrupts were concerned, the bankruptcy looked like a farce. The senior partner still resided in the same mansion house he occupied in the days of his prosperity, and kept his horses and carriages. He (Mr. Dunlop), as representing creditors, would not be a party to taking money out of the pockets of the creditors to support such an establishment. If a poor man or a tradesman had failed with £200 or £300, he would soon have found himself rouped out. He had no objection to giving a small allowance, but he would not be a party to giving a large allowance. He concluded by moving that the allowance to the bankrupts be at the rate of three guineas a week for six months from the day of the sequestration, that being the highest statutory allowance. Mr. Dalziel, Edinburgh, who represented the Bank of England, moved that the allowance previously fixed by the trustees and commissioners be continued, and on a division this was agreed to, only the mover and seconder voting for Mr. Dunlop's motion. At a meeting of creditors, held immediately before, it was agreed to continue Mr. Armstrong's allowance at three guineas a week.

FAILURES.

ENGLAND.—The firm of Crowther and Gledhill, slaters and plasterers, Halifax, were adjudicated bankrupts on the 13th inst., and Mr. C. T. Rhodes, Halifax, accountant, was appointed receiver. The first meeting is fixed for the 4th October at 11 o'clock, at the Halifax County Court. Mr. W. H. Boocock and Mr. J. W. Longbottom are the solicitors acting in the bankruptcy.—A petition for liquidation has been filed in the Halifax County Court by Richmond Gledhill, of Halifax, plasterer and slater. The first meeting will be held at the offices of Mr. J. W. Longbottom, solicitor, Northgate, Halifax. Mr. C. T. Rhodes, accountant, of Ward's End, Halifax, has been appointed receiver.—Messrs. Hallett, Manning, and Prentis, merchants and insurance brokers, of 150 Leadenhall-street, have suspended payment in consequence of non-receipt of remittances from abroad. The books have been placed in the hands of Messrs. J. J. Saffery and Co., public accountants, 14 Old Jewry Chambers, for investigation.—A petition for the liquidation of the affairs of Mr. Francis Day, accountant, Sheffield, was filed on Saturday. The liabilities are estimated at nearly £10,000.—A petition for liquidation by arrangement or composition has been filed in the Dewsbury Court by Henry S. Binney, glass and china merchant, of the Market-place, Dewsbury. His liabilities are from £2,800 to £3,000, and the assets are estimated at £1,400. Messrs. Binney and Sons, of Sheffield, are the solicitors to the estate, and Mr. Rhodes Clay, of Dewsbury, accountant, the receiver.

AMERICA.—American advices announce the failure of Messrs. Azagra and Bell, of Valparaiso, with liabilities of £100,000; also that of the Calvert Sugar Refining Company, caused, it is said, by the incautious use of its credit to bolster up Messrs. Stirling, Ahrens and Co., of Baltimore, to the extent of £160,000.—The following suspensions are also announced:—Messrs. Joseph Nicholl and Son, general contractors, Longton; liabilities £12,000. Messrs. Homer, Langer and Co., fruit merchants, Philadelphia, had suspended, with liabilities of £5,000.—New York advices announce the failure of Mr. Robert M. Ferran, an extensive dealer in teas and groceries; it was believed that a compromise would be effected with his creditors.—Mr. William H. Hewitt, of 3 Bowling Green, had notified the New York Produce Exchange of his inability to meet his engagements, owing to the embarrassment of Messrs. Hewitt and Sons, of London, with whom he was connected.—The boot and shoe manufacturing firm of Messrs. Snow, Hopper and Sanderson had failed.—Messrs. Richardson, Merriam and Co., wood-working machinists, of Worcester, Mass., reported failed.—Mr. George W. Hayward, of Buffalo, N.Y., wholesale grocer, had made an assignment; liabilities £18,000.—The Boston and Charleston Steamship Company had also made an assignment; the Company, it was thought, would offer 50 cents on the dollar.—Mr. Friend Pitts, a Broadway merchant, New York, suspended; liabilities £4,000.—Messrs. Morton and Co., Falmouth, Hart County, Halifax, in the lumber trade, had made an assignment; liabilities £10,000.—Referring to the failure of Messrs. Schuchard and Sons, the New York bankers, we learn that the house, which was established in 1825, formerly enjoyed a high reputation, but it appears that, in common with other banking and mercantile firms whose difficulties have, to a large extent, been the result of participation in the American railway mania, which has caused so much mischief, there has been too great a lock-up of capital, the immediate effects of which were avoided by timely assistance being obtained in 1873, since which time the business has been in virtual liquidation. The foreign bill business of the house was, previous to the crisis, the largest of any house in the United States, and the ramifications are understood to be very large now on the Continent, especially in Germany, there being a branch establishment at Hamburg. The total liabilities are understood to be about £600,000, and it is feared the estate will pay only a small dividend.—American advices report the failure of Messrs. Hengehold and Co., extensive coal merchants, Cincinnati; also, the suspension of the New York and Erie Bank, Buffalo, which had a capital of £60,000.—The Union Lumbering Co., Chippewa Falls, Milwaukee, has failed, with liabilities estimated at £130,000.

The National Zeitung reports the failures of Wallfisch and Sons, Schulhof and Co., and Steinitzer and Co., of Arad (Hungary). The suspensions are attributed to speculations. Some of the banks are concerned to a considerable extent.

AT THE CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT, on Thursday, Robert Gordon Coleman, 37 years of age, an accountant, was convicted of feloniously forging and uttering a check for £13 12s. 9d., with intent to defraud Messrs. Smith, Payne, and Co., bankers in Lombard-street, and was sentenced to nine months' hard labour.

By the death of Mr. Roche one of the supernumerary registrarships in the Court of Bankruptcy ceases. It will be remembered that by the act of 1869 the registrars in the old London Bankruptcy Court were attached to the London Bankruptcy Court constituted under that act. But by section 61 it was provided that, subject to this provision the court should consist of a judge, "and such number of registrars not exceeding four . . . as may be determined by the chief judge with the sanction of the Treasury." There are still five registrars in the Senior Registrars' Department, so it may be expected that no new appointment will be made in the place of Mr. Roche.—Solicitors' Journal.

Digitized by Google

THE ABUSES OF LIFE ASSURANCE.

The following letter is of peculiar interest to holders of policies :—

SIR,—It is hardly possible to conceive a subject of more general interest to the public than that of life assurance; and seeing how extensively the practice of assuring has become, I think you will agree with me that it is of the utmost importance for the public to be acquainted with the position and practice of the offices in which they are invited to insure.

We all know what loss and disappointment have been occasioned by the failure of insurance companies to fulfil their obligations; and next to being protected against such contingencies, it is most desirable that assurers should have some reasonable security as to the current value of their policies, so that in the event of their requiring to surrender them, they may get a fair consideration for the amount paid in the shape of premium.

Unless the honourable dealing of assurance offices can be relied on to afford some security in this respect, I need hardly say that much hardship and injustice are likely to result. Suppose, for example, a tradesman or a professional man has insured his life for a considerable amount, and adverse circumstances, or it may be the increasing demands of a large family, should render it impossible for him to keep up his annual payments. Unless he is able to surrender his policy upon something like equitable terms, he has to face a most disagreeable alternative. Either he must accept a sum out of all proportion to the amount he has paid, and so small as to be comparatively useless to him; or he has to risk the forfeiture of his policy; and whichever it be, the insurance office gets the benefit, and the unfortunate insurer becomes the victim.

There are, I am glad to know, many offices in which the surrender value of policies is regulated upon a just and reasonable basis, and in which assurers are, as a consequence, protected against such unjust and unjustifiable treatment; but I have had recent experience of a precisely opposite kind, and as a protection to the public both of Southampton and the entire kingdom, I feel it incumbent upon me to make the facts known through the medium of the newspaper press, which I have ever found to be the most effective means of exposing injustice and ensuring the redress of wrongs.

Ten years ago, upon the solicitation of a friend, I took out a policy for £2,000, payable at death, in the Briton Medical and General Life Association. The annual premium was £76 3s. 4d.; and up to last November I had paid upon that policy £761 13s. 4d., receiving no advantages whatever in the form of bonus. On the 3rd of June last I wrote to the actuary and secretary (Mr. Messent) to inquire what sum of money the directors of the Briton would advance on the security of this policy, and what amount they would give for the surrender of the same. In reply to this, I was informed that the required information would be supplied on payment of a fee of five shillings! I accordingly paid the fee, and renewed the inquiry, which brought an answer to the effect that the present office value of the policy was £99 4s.; or if preferred, the sum of £99—a difference, be it observed, of four shillings!—would be advanced upon it by way of loan. And it was added that the quotation of value would only remain in force seven days from the date, whereas it appeared from the printed form that fourteen days had been the usual time previously.

As you may imagine, I was fairly astonished at such an amount being named, more especially as I knew what very different estimates other offices placed upon their policies; and accordingly, on the 17th June, I wrote to the secretary as follows:—

I cannot understand how you can make the surrender value of policy 19,924, on the life of myself, only worth £99. Is there not some mistake? I find I have paid £761 13s. 4d. in annual premiums of £76 3s. 4d., so that you allow very little more than one year's premium. I made the same application to the directors of the Crown Life Assurance on a policy that I hold for £500, and on which I have paid £342. The secretary replied by the next post, without asking for any fee, stating that they would give £188 on loan or surrender of policy. From this I feel that the sum offered by the directors of the Briton is so unfair that I shall feel it my duty to make these facts known to the inhabitants of Southampton, through the local press. Please let me know at your earliest convenience if there is not some mistake, as I fully expected £350 would have been paid on the surrender of policy.

The actuary replied to this under date of 21st June, though I did not receive his letter until the 3rd of July; and in order that both sides of the case may be fully and fairly stated, I quote his remarks in extenso. He writes:—

I have referred to the calculation of the value of your policy, and find the same correctly arrived at in accordance with the rules adopted by the society at the present time. It is right I should add that the association has lately been the subject of a most violent though unjustifiable attack, and that an unusual number of surrender applications have been made in consequence. The directors, therefore, in order fully to protect the interests of the existing assured, have determined to reduce, though but temporarily, the rate of return. Although this may be a little disappointing to individual applicants, the general wisdom of the course pursued will, no doubt, be recognised by all. The surrender value of a policy of assurance must depend upon a variety of circumstances existing at the time the surrender is applied for, and it is a source of regret to the Board and to myself that at this moment the circumstances, so far as our society is concerned, are somewhat adverse to the policy-holder. Doubtless, at some not very distant period, this will be removed. I shall be happy, if you wish it, to place this matter before the Board; but I do not anticipate they will be able to depart from the rules laid down. With respect to the imposition of a fee, I would explain that this is an office, and not a personal charge, and is a very common charge with assurance companies.

Before the receipt of this communication, I had inquired for what amount the office would insure a paid-up policy in substitution for that which I held, and was apprised that a paid-up policy for £157 18s. could be issued in lieu of the existing assurance. Feeling that this proposal was even more unsatisfactory than the former one, and that both were manifestly unjust to myself as the assured, I addressed the following communication to Mr. Messent on the 8th of July:—

In answer to your letter of the 2nd July, I beg to say, however much I was disgusted by the paltry sum of £99 offered by the "Briton" Board of Directors for the surrender of policy 19,924 for £2,000 on the life of myself, and on which I have paid the sum of £761 13s. 4d., without receiving any bonus whatever, I am more than disgusted to find that you will only issue a paid-up policy for £157 18s. You say the directors will only grant this small amount because an unjustifiable attack has been made on the association; but I am at a loss to see why the policy holders should be robbed of what they are justly entitled to because the "Briton" Life Association has been assailed. I, therefore, trust you will bring my case before the Board of Directors at your earliest convenience, and let me know their final decision in this matter. I beg to add that I shall feel myself at liberty to publish the correspondence that has taken place between us, not only in the local but also in the London papers. I may add that since I last wrote to you I have applied to the Argus Life directors, where I am insured for the same amount, and on which I pay only £52 1s. 8d. a-year, and have received in the shape of bonus one year's premium every five years, and they now offer on the surrender of policy £511 6s. I will add that I have been assured in the company fifteen years, as I only wish what is right and just. But I feel that the directors of the "Briton" are acting so unfairly, that if the association suffer from my publishing these facts it will be their own fault.

To this communication Mr. Messent replied by saying that he had laid the correspondence before the directors, and was instructed to state that they were unable to alter the quotation in respect to the value of the policy.

Digitized by Google

Thus the matter ended. I felt obliged, in self-protection, to accept the paltry sum offered, for the very obvious reason that the actual value of a life policy must bear at least some proportion to the surrender value; and if the surrender value of the Briton's policies be so trifling, what faith can be placed in their prospective actual value, even when the premiums paid amount to much larger sums than in my case? I had already paid £761 16s., and might have paid another annual premium of £76 3s. 4d. in November next without increasing the surrender value, or obtaining any better security; and, therefore, I felt the best plan was to cut the connection with such an office as speedily as possible.

These facts are of so much importance to life insurers and the public generally, that I am satisfied you will be conferring a public benefit by giving effect to my determination to publish them. The directors of the Briton announce that the total income of the office last year was £245,516, and that the funds in hand amount to £660,000. The new annual premiums in the same period are stated to be £11,667 10s. 3d., derived from 1,245 persons, and assuring £352,619 15s. 3d. If this be so, and if these statements fully represent the position of the office at the present time, why is it that the surrender value of its policies should be regarded as comparatively worthless?

The shareholders of the Briton were paid 5 per cent. last year upon their paid-up capital. Why should not the policy-holders, who have provided the necessary means for paying this dividend, also receive just and equitable treatment at the hands of the directors when they seek for some return for the money they have invested? If the surrender value of all the Briton's policies is to be estimated at the same rate as mine, I pity the unfortunate 1,245 insurers who were induced last year to avail themselves of this means of making provision for those who may survive them. Should any of them through affliction, losses, or other unforeseen circumstances be unable hereafter to keep up their premiums, they know what they will have to expect.

Life assurance is worse than useless—it becomes a snare and a deception, unless, in all its details, it is regulated upon a just, fair, and consistent basis; and who can say that this is the case with regard to the surrender values of the Briton? I ask the public, in justice to themselves, to look impartially at these facts, and to draw their own conclusions. One office which I have named offers more than a third of the sum assured as the surrender value of its policy; another office, which has given every four years a bonus equivalent to one year's premium, offers more than a fourth; whereas the Briton, with all its vaunted advantages, refuses to give one twentieth part of the sum assured for the surrender of a policy upon which premiums have been paid to the amount of nearly eight hundred pounds! If this is the value which the office puts upon its own policies, what value can attach to the office itself; and what confidence can be felt in the security which it offers to the life-assuring public? Facts are proverbially stubborn things; and there are some facts which should never fail to act both as a warning and a caution..

I am, Mr. Editor, faithfully yours,

THOMAS P. PAYNE.

Southampton, Sept. 8th, 1875.

APATHETIC CREDITORS.

A correspondent of a Birmingham newspaper writes as follows:—" Sir,—The interesting correspondence which recently appeared in your paper induces me to ask permission to direct the attention of your commercial readers to the report in your paper of to-day of a meeting of the creditors of Henry Chapman, of Gate-street, Saltley, formerly of Balsall Heath. The liabilities are stated to be £778 10s. 5d., and the assets £4 10s. The result of the meeting is given in these words:—' The creditors resolved to liquidate, and granted the debtor his discharge.' I am in no way interested in the failure, and do not even know the debtor; but as some of your correspondents have attempted to make the law responsible for the ready way in which debtors are released from their liabilities, I wish to point out the above case as proving incontestably that creditors alone are themselves to blame, and not the law. I assert that the apathy and indifference of creditors to their own interests lead to the perpetration of many of the abuses which they very thoughtlessly attribute to the present state of the law. It may be that the debtor, Chapman, was a fit subject for the exercise of creditors' benevolence, and that his losses may have induced them to give him a gratuitous release from his debts. As to this I have no knowledge whatever; but it must be borne in mind that such a happy termination of a debtor's difficulties can only happen by the consent of creditors, or, rather, of the bulk of the creditors, who are empowered to bind the rest. The only possible complaint against the law is, that it allows a large majority to bind a minority; but on a fair consideration of the question, such a complaint is untenable. Nearly all the public affairs of life which affect the private interests and rights of individuals are controlled and governed by majorities. Laws are so made, and municipal and parochial concerns are managed in the same way. The law very reasonably assumes that what is considered right by a large majority of creditors should be held to be so by the minority; but the law is perfectly consistent, for whilst it allows a majority to rule, it only does so when the majority exercises its power bona fide and honestly in the interests of the whole body of the creditors. It does not permit the majority to discharge a debtor from a motive of friendship, generosity, or benevolence, and it certainly does not allow them to go through the farce of passing a resolution to 'liquidate the estate' when there are no assets available for a dividend; and, above all things, the law does not sanction the granting of a debtor's discharge under such circumstances. The Bankruptcy Courts have repeatedly declared, at the instance of non-assenting creditors, that a resolution so passed has no validity, because it is of the essence of a liquidation that there be something to liquidate, which will result in the attainment of the object of a liquidation—viz. the payment of a dividend. I do not now enter into the question as to the way in which the consent of a majority of creditors is not unfrequently obtained, or as to the manufacturing of debts for the purpose of creating a majority by a debtor, who wishes to 'whitewash' his affairs at the expense of the genuine creditors. These matters are entirely within the control of the creditors themselves, if they will only be true to one another, and adopt those measures which the law provides for suppressing such dishonest practices."

APPOINTMENTS.

[The Editor will be glad to receive early notice of appointment of Liquidators and Auditors for insertion in this Column.]

Mr. Edward Thomas Peirson, of 46 Jordan Well, Coventry, public accountant, has been appointed auditor to the Coventry Corporation.

Mr. J. J. Saffery (J. J. Saffery and Company), 14 Old Jewry chambers, E.C., public accountant, has been appointed trustee of the estate of David French, coal merchant, cooper, &c., of Chatham, in the county of Kent.

The Vice-Chancellor Sir James Bacon has appointed Mr. H. J. C. F. Woodhouse, public accountant, of 14 Warwick-court, Holborn, and Mr. J. N. Cuthbertson, merchant, of 29 Bath street, Glasgow, to be official liquidators of the British Seaweed Company (Limited).

Digitized by Google

CONTINENTAL DEBENTURES.

Under this heading a correspondent sends the following:—Such large sums being constantly placed in the hands of accountants for the purpose of investment, and their advice being continually required as to the safest modes of investing capital and the reliability and genuineness of different financial undertakings, it will not be out of our province to explain the nature and security of the different "continental debentures" now announced in this country by the Messrs. Wolfskehl, an old established firm of bankers, at Frankfort-am-Main. For some years past, many of the continental governments, notably Austria, Prussia, Russia, and Hungary, have been in the habit of raising money by loans, bearing three to five per cent. interest, repayable by periodical drawings extending over a term of years, with a certain number of bonuses attached to each drawing. An explanation of one will give the salient points in all, as the system adopted in each is almost identical. We will take, for instance, the Imperial Austrian Loan issued in the year 1860, for £20,000,000 sterling, in 400,000 obligations of 500 guldens or £50 each, bearing 5 per cent. interest. The terms of the legislative enactment authorising this loan stipulate that it shall be paid off in 57 years by 114 half-yearly drawings, at each of which drawings £50,000 shall be divided in bonuses amongst 50 obligations as follows, viz. one obligation to receive £30,000, one £5,000, one £2,500, two £1,000 each, fifteen £500 each, and thirty £100 each; besides which, all other debentures drawn shall receive £60 each for the £50 originally paid, for the obligation. Up to the present time 31 drawings have taken place, by which means 37,600 debentures have been redeemed, and the amount already paid by the Austrian Treasury is £3. At a superficial glance, it may appear difficult to see how it can answer the purpose of any government to borrow money at 5 per cent., and be able besides to pay handsome bonuses; but a small amount of calculation will prove that the system is sound, and the countries negotiating these loans procure great benefits therefrom. The interest bearing portion of these loans being continually reduced, it will be seen that they have only to pay a fraction less than two and a half per cent. for the money, which is at once paid up in full, and is used for the construction of railways and other public works—as stated on the face of each debenture; on the completion of which the State realises great benefits; and the payment of the interest and bonuses is, therefore, of small account. All these loans are secured primarily on the works for which they are issued, and also bear the guarantee of the respective governments, with the sanction of the different legislatures on the continent; they are held in highest esteem, extensive investments being continually made in them on account of "trust-money," municipal, church and orphanage funds, &c. and large transactions are daily recorded on all the Continental Bourses, where nearly all are now dealt in at a high premium, in instance of which we may mention the Imperial Austrian Loan of 1839, redeemable in 40 years, of which four have still to run, the debentures being scarcely obtainable at the enormous premium of 12.53 per cent. Up to the present these loans have been neglected by English capitalists, owing to their being confounded with the German lotteries, to which, however, they bear no resemblance whatever, and which were, with two or three small exceptions, prohibited by an Imperial German Edict passed January 1st, 1873.

We are informed that considerable dealings have already taken place in these debentures through the agency of Messrs. Wolfskehl, of Liverpool, and that two of their clients in this country have already been lucky enough to receive bonuses of £20,000 each.

The Frankfurt Zeitung of the 10th instant states that one banking firm alone in that city sold, from the 1st of January to the 31st of August this year, 216,678 Continental loan debentures.

BUSINESS IN THE DIVORCE COURT.—The stamps in the financial year ending 31st of March 1875, amounted to the sum of £4190 13s.

COMMON LAW COURTS (ENGLAND).—The fee stamps used at common law in the year ending on 31st March, 1875, amounted to £85,781 17s. 6d.

FEES IN THE HOUSE OF LORDS.—A sum of £13,047 11s. 11d. was received in the year 1874 as fees in the House of Lords.

REGISTRATION OF DEEDS.—The amount produced by stamp duty in the year ending the 31st of March 1875, amounted to £13,980 12s. 11d.

THE OLD MARSHALSEA COURT.—There are 12 officers of the late Marshalsea Court who enjoy pensions on the abolition of their offices, to the amount of £1,482.

TAXATION.—Mr. Paget, M.P., has obtained a Return, just issued, relating to Property and Income Tax Assessment, Poor Rate, &c. from 1814-15 to 1873-74. In the first year the amount of property and profits assessed was £168,234,808, and increased to £437,611,490 last year. Returns are given in reference to the Poor Rate assessment and Poor Rate expenditure over the same period. In 1814-15 the relief to the poor only amounted to £5,418,846, and for all other purposes £2,090,008. The total Poor Rate expenditure in that year was 7,508,854, and in 1873-74 the relief to the poor only £7,664,957; for other purposes (generally), £4,408,909, and £777,141 (specially) Highway Rate transferred to the Poor Rate. The total Poor Rate expenditure last year was £12,851,007.

CO-OPERATIVE MINING.—The annual report of the Co-operative Mining Society (Limited), which owns a colliery in Derbyshire, and whose meeting will be held in Newcastle-on-Tyne on Saturday, has been published by the directors. Messrs. Benson, Eland, and Co, auditors, report a loss to the company upon the trading transactions of the year ending June 30, 1875, of £7,715 3s. 6d.; adding to this interest on purchase money and loans amounting to £3,295 5s. 11d., the result is a loss of £11,010 9s. 5d. The directors report that the output of the colliery was such as the committee was never led to anticipate. This, with the increased cost of production and the unsatisfactory state in which the society found the colliery, has occasioned the loss shown in their balance sheet. The directors report that they have instructed their solicitors to file a bill in Chancery against the vendor for the recision of the contract and the return of the purchase money.

LEGAL TOUTING.—Under the head of "More Touting," a legal contemporary says:—"The annexed advertisement has appeared in a local paper, the Frome Times; I send it in case you may think proper to refer to it. I do not know what is meant by the term 'law agents;' the names, I need scarcely say, do not appear in the Law List.

EDWARD HENLEY.

[We quite recently noticed this miserable advertisement, part of which is as follows:]

LEGAL ASSISTANCE in the Chancery, &c., Courts. Actions brought or defended by skilful Solicitors. Damages recovered for breach of contract, railway accidents, and illegal distresses. Divorces obtained. Compositions with creditors. See prospectus. Advice free.——— and Co. Law Agents, High Holborn, London."

Digitized by Google

BANKERS' CLEARING HOUSE.—The following is the official return of the cheques and bills cleared in the Bankers' Clearing-house for the week ending Wednesday, Sept. 22 :—

Thursday, September 16	£15,773,000
Friday, September 17	14,559,000
Saturday, September 18	17,085,000
Monday, September 20	14,667,000
Tuesday, September 21	11,925,000
Wednesday, September 22	12,826,000
	£86,835,000

The total at the corresponding period of last year, was £102,122,000.

HOUSE OF LORDS APPEALS.—It appears from a recent official report, that when Parliament assembled in February, twenty-three causes were effective for hearing and twenty-four causes set down for hearing before the Whitsuntide recess, that is, forty-seven causes were ready for effective hearing before Whitsuntide. During the session forty-seven causes were heard, seven of which causes were brought into the House during the past Session. Subsequently to the Whitsuntide recess fourteen more causes were set down for hearing.

The meeting of the profession at Liverpool, says the Law Times, will afford an opportunity to solicitors to let their united voice be heard and their influence felt in regard to the Inns of Court Act of last session, the origin and passing of which is due to the energy and resolution of Lord Selborne; and among the many other subjects which should engage the attention of those members of the profession so attending, we may mention the question of professional remuneration, the non-liability of counsel for negligence, their indiscriminate receipt of briefs and fees without regard to their other engagements, restrain upon transfer of leasehold property, audience of solicitors at assizes and quarter sessions, encroachments by unauthorised persons on professional rights, unjust restrictions on the call of solicitors to the Bar, qualifications of parliamentary agents, practice under the Judicature Acts, land transfer, scale of charges in conveyancing, and public prosecutors. We hope that the meeting in October will be a success, to which we are anxious to contribute in every way in our power; and we cannot help thinking that an annual meeting in London of a somewhat similar character would prove of advantage, not only in securing a free discussion on all questions of professional interest, but also in promoting additional adhesion to the chief society on the part of solicitors, some thousands of whom still hold aloof and take little or no interest in their profession.

LATE ADVERTISEMENTS.

TO ACCOUNTANTS.—A Gentleman established some years in one of the best positions in the City, will shortly have a portion of his handsomely furnished offices vacant, and will be open to share same (together with use of clerk, &c.) with any gentleman having a connection of his own, on equitable terms.—Address, "Accountant," care of Housekeeper, Old Jewry Chambers, E.C.

TO FIRMS OF ACCOUNTANTS.—An Efficient Clerk, of many years experience in all departments, desires a re-engagement.—"Ledger," 84 Kender-street, New Cross, S.E.

OLD FALCON HOTEL, GRAVESEND.
Proprietor—W. SKILLETER.

Late Chef de Cuisine to His Grace the Duke of Argyll.

Visitors to Gravesend will find every accommodation at the Old Falcon Hotel, East Street. Public and Private Rooms facing the River, directly opposite Tilbury Fort, and with a capital view of the Thames Shipping.

FISH DINNERS AND WHITEBAIT.

BED AND BREAKFAST FOR GENTLEMEN £1 1s. PER WEEK.

And an equally low Tariff for Déjeuners, Dinners, &c.

Five Minutes' walk from North Kent Railway, and Two Minutes from the Piers, and Tilbury and Southend Railway.

MONEY to LEND to BORROWERS residing in town or Country, from £50 upwards, repayable in one sum, from one to five years, at five per cent. interest on personal security; also on mortgage of freehold or leasehold property from 3 per cent., for a term of years to be agreed upon. No commission.
Apply to R. F. PRESTON, Esq., 120 Southampton-row, London, W.C.

THE BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY'S ANNUAL RECEIPTS EXCEED THREE MILLIONS.

HOW TO PURCHASE A HOUSE FOR TWO GUINEAS PER MONTH. With immediate Possession and no Rent to pay.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO PURCHASE A PLOT OF LAND FOR FIVE SHILLINGS PER MONTH.

With Immediate Possession, either for Building or Gardening purposes.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK FREEHOLD LAND SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO INVEST YOUR MONEY WITH SAFETY AT £4 PER CENT. INTEREST.

Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BANK. All sums under £50 repayable upon demand. Current Accounts opened similar to ordinary Bankers. Cheque-books supplied. English and Foreign Stocks and Shares purchased and sold, and Advances made thereon.

Office Hours from 10 till 4; on Mondays from 10 till 9, and on Saturdays from 10 till 12 o'clock.

A Pamphlet containing full particulars may be obtained post-free on application.

FRANCIS RAVENSCROFT, Manager.

THE METROPOLITAN AND PROVINCIAL LAND, ESTATE, HOUSE, LICENSED VICTUALLERS' & GENERAL BUSINESS TRANSFER "SYNDICATE" AGENCY,
Registered according to Act of Parliament, Head Offices, No. 3 Craven-street, Charing Cross, W.C. The organisation and working system of the "Syndicate" are; —1st.—The Sale, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Ground of Rents, Freehold and Leasehold Land, Farms, Estates, Houses, Hotels-Public Houses, Inns, Beer Houses, Restaurants, Coffee Houses, Tobacconists, Drapers, and every other description of Business, Furniture, Objects of Art, or Goods of any description by Auction or Private Contract. 2nd.—The letting, or disposing of, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Land, Farms, Estates, Furnished, or Unfurnished Houses Chambers, or Offices under private contract. 3rd.—The Collection of Rents and the recovery of outstanding accounts. 4th.—The Surveys and Valuations of Land, Farms, Estates, and Houses; also Valuations of Furniture, Jewellery, and other Effects, for probate and other purposes. 5th.—The transaction of all other business usually transacted by Auctioneers, Surveyors, Land, House, Estate and Insurance Agents. 6th. —The negociations of partnerships, and from unlimited connection with capitalists, monetary advances on real and personal securities, as well as merchandize, and every other description of property intended for absolute sale, or otherwise. 7th. Generally the carrying out of all things instdental or conducive to the above objects, and every of them; also the laying out of estates and surveys for delapidations, The "Syndicate" from their extended connection with the Trades' Protection Societies and other sources, undertake expeditiously for Clients and others to ascertain reliably the status of parties, and make inquiries of a private and confidential character. Liberal terms to Accountants in town or country introducing business.

Digitized by Google

"The source of many a writer's woe has been discovered."

PENS! PENS!! PENS!!!

"They come as a boon and a blessing to men, The Pickwick, the Owl, and the Waverley Pen."
"The misery of a bad Pen is now a voluntary infliction."

Another blessing to men! The Hindoo Pen. 1,200 Newspapers recommend them. See Graphic, 17th May, 1873.

Sold by every respectable Stationer. Post 1s.1d.

Patentees, MACNIVEN & CAMERON, 23 to 33 Blair-street, Edinburgh.

J. DEFRIES' AND SONS'

CHANDELIERS, IN CRYSTAL, BRONZE, AND ORMOLU.

TABLE GLASS AND CHINA.

Dinner Services, Gilt Pieces, £4 10s.

KEROSENE and MODERATOR LAMPS for INDIA.

Works:—London and Birmingham.

WEDDING AND BIRTHDAY PRESENTS.

NEW DECORATIONS for the DINING TABLE.

FOUNTAINS.

STORER'S Patent Perpetual Perfumed CRYSTAL TABLE FOUNTAIN, for Dining, Hall and Drawing Rooms, in Crystal and Gilt, £2 17s. 6d. to 100 guineas.

FETES AND REJOICINGS.

BALLROOMS and GARDENS, &c., DECORATED and ILLUMINATED for Evening Parties. Tents, Temporary Rooms, and Banqueting Halls erected.

CRYSTAL and BRONZED CHANDELIERS.

TABLE GLASS and CHINA LENT ON HIRE.

J. DEFRIES and SONS, 147, HOUNDSDITCH.

Five minutes' walk from the Bank of England.

RUPTURES—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS s allowed by upwards of 500 Medical Men to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided, a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the manufacturer, Mr. JOHN WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London. Price of a single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., 31s. 6d, Postage Free. Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. An Umbilical Truss, 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. P.O.O. to be made payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

TRADE MARK.

NEW PATENT ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS, &c. for Varicose Veins, and all cases of Weakness and Swelling of the Legs, Sprains, &c. They are porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and are drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price from 4s. 6d., 7s, 6d., 10s, to 16s. each. Postage free.

CHEST EXPANDING BRACES, for both sexes. For gentlemen they are a substitute for the ordinary braces. For children they are invaluable; they prevent stooping and preserve the symmetry of the chest. Prices for children, 5s. 6d. and 7s. 6d. Adults, 10s. 6d., 15s. 6d., and 21s. each. Postage free.—JOHN WHITE, Manufacturer, 228 Piccadilly, London.

EPPS'S COCOA.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—See article in the Civil Service Gazette.

STAR LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY,

48 MOORGATE STREET, LONDON, E.C

DIRECTORS.

CHAIRMAN—

Mr. Alderman McArthur, M.P.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—

William Mewburn, Esq.

H. J. Atkinson, Esq.
Thomas Ball, Esq.
Walter Griffith, Esq.
George M. Kiell, Esq.
George Lidgett, Esq.
Sir Francis Lycett.
William Merry, Esq.
John Napier, Esq.
Jonathan S. Pidgeon, Esq.
John Vanner, Esq.
S. D. Waddy, Esq., Q.C., M.P.

Assurance and Annuity Fund	1,216,115	13	5
Annual Income (1874)	223,613	2	0
Bonuses Apportioned	581,774	6	2
Claims Paid	1,140,151	1	8

Copies of the Report, Balance Sheet and Prospectus can be obtained on application to the Head Office.

W. W. BAYNES, Secretary.

THE ONLY AND SPECIAL

"MEDAL FOR PROGRESS,"

Was awarded for "Feuerfeste Eisone Schranke und Kunstchlosser Fortschritts," to

HOBBS, HART, & CO.,

AT THE VIENNA UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION.

This Medal is only given to Exhibitors whose New Inventions testify marked Progress.

"FIRE-PROOF SAFES; AND LOCKS AND ENDLESS CHANGE LOCKS AND KEYS,"

Invented especially for Safes and Strong-Room Doors, to frustrate the use of False Keys.

N.B.—The continued security and secrecy of a Lock, fixed on a Safe or Strong-Room Door, depends on the fact that there are no false duplicate keys of that Lock in existence. The object of a Lock is twofold—security against burglars, and secrecy against prying curiosity. A new change in this Lock may at any time be obtained in five minutes by simply filing away the thickness of a hair from one or more of the steps of the Key. The Lock, by a simple movement of the Regulator, is thus made to adapt itself to the NEW KEY, after which no other Key will open the Lock.

The Lock and Key may thus be easily altered into what would be virtually a NEW LOCK and KEY, as often as may be desired, without the aid of a Lockmaker or of any second person, thus frustrating the use of fraudulent copies of the original Key (see the Safe Robbery in Dublin of £630, vide "Times," 12th September, 1875). This Lock affords effectual protection from duplicate or "Master" Keys secretly made in manufactories; very extensive robberies (in one case 13 Safes in one vault) having been effected by this means.

HOBBS, HART & CO.,
LOCK, SAFE, AND STRONG-ROOM DOOR MANUFACTURERS,
76 Cheapside, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

THE SOCIETY OF ACCOUNTANTS IN ENGLAND.

COUNCIL.

President.—JOSEPH DAVIES, Warrington. Vice-President.—JOHN BATH, London.

ALFRED ALLOTT, Sheffield.
JOSEPH ANDREWS, London.
JOSIAH BEDDOW, London.
HENRY BOLLAND, Liverpool.
JAMES CHARLES BOLTON, London.
HARRY BRETT, London.
ROBERT BUCK, Sunderland.
JOHN CALDECOTT, Chester.
WALTER NEWTON FISHER, Birmingham
EBENEZER CHAMBERS FOREMAN, London.
EDWARD NORTON HARPER, London.
WILLIAM COMBEN HARVEY, London.
JOHN ALISON HESELTON, Bradford.
GEORGE EDWARD LADBURY, London
FRANCIS NICHOLLS, London.
WILLIAM JOHN PARRY, Bethesda.
EDWARD THOS. PEIRSON, Coventry.
EDWARD SMITH, Manchester.
F. TENDRON, London.
JOHN HENRY TILLY, London.
LEWIS VOISEY, Warrington.
EDWIN WILKS, Plymouth.
JOHN UNWIN WING, Sheffield.

TRUSTEES.—JOHN BATH, 40a, King William Street, London; THOMAS COLTMAN, Leicester; JOSEPH DAVIES, Warrington.
TREASURER.—JAMES CHARLES BOLTON, 26 Great St. Helens, and 2 St. Mary Axe, London.
AUDITORS.—R. R. ROBINSON, London; C. PEMBER, Hereford.
BANKERS.—Messrs, WILLIAMS, DEACON, & Co., Birchin Lane, London.
OFFICES—2 COWPER'S COURT, CORNHILL, LONDON.
Further information can be obtained, and copies of the Rules can be had, upon application to
ALFRED C. HARPER, SECRETARY.

H. D. RAWLINGS,

PURVEYOR OF MINERAL WATERS TO

H. R. H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.
H. R. H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH.
H. R. H. THE PRINCE CHRISTIAN.
THE LATE EMPEROR NAPOLEON III.
AND THE PRINCIPAL COURTS OF EUROPE.

Gold Medallist of the Societe Nationale Agricole Manufacturiere et Commerciale de Paris.

SODA, BRIGHTON, SELTZER and all other Mineral Waters for HOME CONSUMPTION and EXPORTATION.
PRICE LISTS on Application, at the Manufactory, Nassau-street, W.

ALFRED W. GEE,

ADVERTISING AGENT,

62, GRACECHURCH STREET,

LONDON, E.C.

London Gazette Notices, and Advertisements and Announcements of all kinds for English, Colonial, and Foreign Newspapers promptly inserted.

N.B.—In the case of an ordinary Advertisement ordered for insertion in a number of Newspapers, only one MS. copy need be forwarded. Same rates charged as at the Publishing Offices.

Printed and Published for the Proprietor by WILLIAMS & STRAHAN, 7 Lawrence Lane, Cheapside. SEPTEMBER 25, 1875.

Digitized by Google

The Accountant.

A MEDIUM OF COMMUNICATION BETWEEN ACCOUNTANTS IN ALL PARTS OF THE UNITED KINGDOM

VOL. I.—NEW SERIES.—No. 48.] SATURDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1875. [PRICE 6D.

LARGE LIGHT OFFICES on the Fourth Floor. Rents £10 and £15. Apply to Housekeeper, 26 Budge-row, Cannon-street, E.C.

TO ACCOUNTANTS.—Partnership wanted in a sound established Business. Has connection and business (six years' standing), which would be brought in. Age 36.—Address "B," 4 Linden-grove, Nunhead, S.E.

A PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT (an Associate of the Society of Accountants in England) is open to an engagement as Managing Clerk. Is thoroughly conversant with Bankruptcy and Mercantile Law, the duties of Trustees, Receivers, and Auditors, and could manage a practice without supervision. Highest references as to capability, &c. An engagement where arrangements may be made with a view to partnership preferred, and no objection to a temporary engagement.—Address, "Alpha," at the Office of the Accountant, 62 Gracechurch street, London, E.C.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

89 BROAD-STREET, BRISTOL,
JUNE 24TH, 1875.

The PARTNERSHIP hitherto existing under the Style or Firm of HANCOCK, TRIGGS, & CO., having been DISSOLVED by mutual consent, I beg to give notice that I purpose henceforth to CARRY ON BUSINESS as a PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT at the above address.

PHILIP TRIGGS.

MESSRS. BARRETT AND PATEY,
PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS,
90 LONDON WALL, E C.

HAVING removed from No. 8 Finsbury Circus, to more commodious offices at the above address, will be pleased to hear from Accountants resident in the provincial and manufacturing towns who require agents in London.

CHARLES LOWDEN, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT,
RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY,
BARROW-IN-FURNESS.
REFERENCES GIVEN.

LOVEWELL BLAKE, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT,
RECEIVER, AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY.
SECRETARY TO THE GREAT YARMOUTH TRADERS' ASSOCIATION.
OFFICES: HALL QUAY CHAMBERS, GREAT YARMOUTH.

J. F. TITCHMARSH, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT AND AUDITOR.
17 PRINCESS STREET, IPSWICH.
RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY AND LIQUIDATION.

WILLIAMS & STRAHAN,
Legal, Accountancy, & General Printers,
MANUFACTURING STATIONERS, &c
7 LAWRENCE LANE, CHEAPSIDE, LONDON.

Bankruptcy Forms, Statements of Affairs, Dividend Notices, Balance Sheets, &c., printed with despatch.

STEAM PRINTING WORKS, LAMBETH, S.E.

TRANSLATIONS.
MR. ALFRED W. GEE,
BRITISH AND FOREIGN ADVERTISING AGENT,
62 GRACECHURCH STREET, LONDON, E.C.,

Begs to announce that in compliance with a wish expressed by some of the subscribers to the Accountant, he has made arrangements for the translation of legal and commercial documents, correspondence, &c., into the Principal European Languages. Members of the Profession are therefore respectfully informed that arrangements can be made for efficient and speedy translations into, or from, the French, German, Italian Spanish, and Dutch Languages on Moderate Terms.

RESTAURANT,
13 OXFORD STREET,
Near the corner of Tottenham-court-road.

Known as the BODEGA, now under the new management of Mr. L. BOECKER, late of 13 Idol-lane, City.

Luncheons from the joints, hot or cold, including vegetables and bread, 1s. 3d

Dinners from 12 till 4 o'clock, from the joint, with soup or fish, vegetables, cheese and bread, 2s.

Dinners from 6 till 9 o'clock, from 2s. 6d. to 10s. 6d.

Private Dining Rooms for large and small parties on the Second Floor.

OLD FALCON HOTEL, GRAVESEND.
Proprietor—W. SKILLETER.
Late Chef de Cuisine to His Grace the Duke of Argyll.

Visitors to Gravesend will find every accommodation at the Old Falcon Hotel, East Street. Public and Private Rooms facing the River, directly opposite Tilbury Fort, and with a capital view of the Thames Shipping.

FISH DINNERS AND WHITEBAIT.

BED AND BREAKFAST FOR GENTLEMEN £1 1s. PER WEEK.

And an equally low Tariff for Dejeuners, Dinners, &c.

Five Minutes' walk from North Kent Railway, and Two Minutes from the Piers, and Tilbury and Southend Railway.

Digitized by Google

MR. FERDINAND WOLFSKEHL,
BANKER,
9 STEINWEG, FRANKFORT A/MAIN, GERMANY,

CALLS THE ATTENTION of Investors to different Continental Government Securities, guaranteed by Acts of Parliament, through which Capital and Interest ARE SECURED BEYOND ANY DOUBT.

Every one of these Loans must be repaid as per Plan attached to each Debenture, within a limited number of years, by periodical Drawings, OFFERING ADVANTAGES PRESENTED BY NO OTHER SECURITIES, WITH BONUSES AT EACH DRAWING, varying from

£10 to £30,000.

For full particulars apply by letter, addressed care
MESSRS. WOLFSKEHL BROTHERS, BANKERS,
LORD STREET, LIVERPOOL.

The Accountant.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

The ACCOUNTANT is printed and published in time for Friday evening's mail; price 6d. per copy, or 28s. per annum (including postage), the reduced terms for payment in advance being: annual subscription 24s. (post free); half-yearly ditto, 13s. (post free). Cheques and Post-office orders to be made payable to Mr. Alfred W. Gee, 62 Gracechurch-street, E.C., to whom applications for advertisement space, and letters relating to the general business of the paper, should also be addressed. Literary communications should be directed to the Editor of the ACCOUNTANT at the same address, and in order to ensure insertion in the current number, correspondents are respectfully requested to forward their copy as early in the week as possible.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The Proprietor desires to call the attention of Advertisers to the special advantages offered by the paper as an Advertising medium. Starting with a good guaranteed circulation, and with the entire concurrence and hearty support of the leading members of the profession, the ACCOUNTANT has achieved a large measure of success in a wide field hitherto unoccupied by any professional organ. The ACCOUNTANT thus secures to Advertisers an excellent circulation of an exclusive character; and is particularly valuable as a medium for the announcements of members of the profession, as to Estates and Declaration of Dividends, and the appointment of Trustees and Receivers; for Publishers, Printers, Law Stationers, Auctioneers, and Estate Agents; for the Advertisements of Insurance and Public Companies; and for Notices as to Investments, Vacant Partnerships, &c. Advertisements intended for insertion in the current number, should reach the office on Thursday; late announcements can, however, be received up to 12 o'clock (noon) on Friday.

N.B.—Copies may be obtained at Messrs. W. H. Smith and Sons, Strand, at their numerous Railway Bookstalls, and at the Shops of the leading City and West-End Newsvendors.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.

In consequence of numerous applications from subscribers, the proprietor has made arrangements for the supply of CASES for holding and preserving the Accountant, which may be obtained at the office on the following terms:—In green cloth (well got up), with elastics, and "The Accountant" in gold letters on front, 3s. each; same in leather, 4s. 6d. each. Subscribers' names in gold lettering, 1s. extra. Post Office Orders payable to ALFRED W. GEE, 62 Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

The Accountant.

OCTOBER 2, 1875.

In accordance with our promise last week, we have taken an opportunity of investigating further the correct construction to be placed on the sections regulating the respective relations of landlords and trustees. The facts on which the discussion has arisen are of frequent occurrence in cases of bankruptcy. A trustee has taken possession of premises, in respect of which rent is owing, and occupies them for some little time. The landlord claims to be paid in full, not only the rent which accrued due previous to the bankruptcy, but also rent for the period during which the trustee occupied. To this our correspondent "Rent," whose letter first raised the question, very properly, in our opinion, answers, that rent subsequent to the bankruptcy cannot be treated as a preferential claim; and with this view many experienced correspondents agree. We may assume at once that the landlord has taken steps to assert his right to the rent which has accrued. The Act gives him a power of distress, limited to the arrears of one year; and if he has remained passive, he loses his right. If he has either distrained, or has forborne to distrain by arrangement with the trustee, he has done all that the law requires in the way of protecting his own interests.

We have found no cases decided on the point arising under the 34th section of the Act. But it is a fact very frequently overlooked, that many of these provisions are taken bodily from older statutes; and it is by reference to these that we may arrive at some definite solution. The rule, that distress is effectual only in respect of one year's rent, is exactly fifty years old, and is laid down in the 74th section of the Act of 1825 (6th George IV. cap. 16), which enacts that "no distress for rent made and levied after an act of bankruptcy, upon the goods or effects of any bankrupt, shall be available for more than one year's rent accrued prior to the date of the commission; but the landlord shall be allowed to come in as a creditor for the overplus of the rent due, and for which the distress shall not be available." This clause, with a few verbal alterations, is repeated in the Act of 1849, and is substantially re-enacted in the Act of 1869. The clause giving power to the landlord to apply for an order that the assignees may elect whether they will continue in possession or give up the lease, is also in the Act of George IV. (sec. 75), and is followed in the 145th Section of the Bankruptcy Act of 1849. It is to be observed, that the 75th Section of the 6th of George IV., c. 16, provides that the bankrupt shall not be liable for rent due after his bankruptcy, if the assignees elect to take the lease, or if he gives up possession within fourteen days after the assignees have declined. It appears pretty clear, from a consideration of these sections, that there is no right to rent at all after adjudication, in case the trustee refuses to continue the lease; and so it is laid down in the text books of bankruptcy law to which we have referred. The Bankruptcy Act of 1861 allowed (by Section 131) the assignees to take and retain possession of the premises "up to some quarter or half-yearly day on which rent is made payable by the leases or agreement, such day not being more than six months from the adjudication of bankruptcy; and upon such day to decline such lease." This section was introduced in the interest of the assignees, who often found themselves treated as having accepted a lease which they had never intended to accept, and thus became liable to the rent and covenants. Under this section it is said, that if they take possession for the limited period allowed, they will be liable to an action for use and occupation.

We have treated this matter throughout as if the landlord had exercised his right of distraint, but he may lose his preferential claim altogether by negligence. If he neglects to distrain, and the goods are removed from off the premises and sold by the trustee, he can only prove and take his dividends with the rest of the creditors. But, if the trustee agrees to pay the amount of rent, he will then render himself personally liable, and the landlord will naturally only forbear to exercise his right of distress on receiving such an undertaking from the trustee. It becomes important, therefore, for a trustee to ascertain that the value of the goods actually on the premises, and liable to distress, is sufficient to pay the amount of the year's rent. If not, his only course is to allow the distress to take place. If there is insufficient distress on the premises, the loss will fall on the landlord; but, if the trustee has agreed to pay the rent, he will be personally liable for deficiency.

Upon a consideration of the whole circumstances of the case, we are inclined to think that where a trustee has disclaimed a lease, no rent is payable from the date of the order of adjudication, and that this applies to the case stated by our correspondent "Rent." The 23rd section of the Act is very strongly worded. It provides that the trustee, "notwithstanding he has taken possession of such property, or exercised any act of ownership in relation thereto, may disclaim such property, and upon the execution of such disclaimer the property disclaimed shall, if the same be a lease, be deemed to have been surrendered on the date of the order of adjudication." Abuse is prevented by the 24th section of the Act, and the 21st rule of 1871. Our correspondent C. T. R. thinks that unreasonable delay on the part of the trustee would be considered as an "injury" within the meaning of subsection one of sec. 23. We cannot quite take this view. The creditor has only to serve the notice mentioned in sec. 24 to protect himself, and unreasonable delay on the part of the trustee would be ground for holding that he had elected to accept the lease, rather than as an act for which the bankrupt could be mulcted in damages. What the meaning of the subsection is, is clearly laid down in a case which came before the Lords Justices about four years ago. In that case a bankrupt was tenant under a lease of property at a very high rent; and the trustee, upon being applied to to make his option, at once disclaimed. It was stated that the property had deteriorated in value, and would only let for about half the rent reserved by the lease. This was an "injury" for which the lessor was allowed to prove against the debtor's estate on the following principles,—"if the landlord got as much rent for the premises as he did before, the damages would be nil; if he got less rent, it would be the difference."

We would, therefore, finally recommend all trustees to act as promptly as they can in the matter. So long as they receive no application, they need not disclaim. But, except under very peculiar circumstances, no rent would be payable. They may apply to the court for further time to make up their minds, and it must be remembered that the disclaimer must be approved of by the court. This may press hardly on the landlord, but then landlords generally are now suffering some curtailment of their ancient rights and privileges.

Digitized by Google

The letter of "Trustee" in our last week's issue raises, à propos of the case of re Knowles, the question of the right of remuneration of a trustee under a composition, and our correspondent holds that though fees and charges paid out of pocket were properly allowed, though in a somewhat informal manner, yet there was no right in the creditors to vote any part of the debtor's money as remuneration to the trustee. The case of re Knowles is not reported sufficiently full to make all the facts perfectly clear, but as far as they are set out, they seem to justify the decision of the judge. It is quite true, as "Trustee" points out, that no property vests in the trustee in a composition, and that his duties are simply to receive the amount of the composition and divide it in due proportion among the creditors. But in Knowles' case, it appears that Mr. Crowther had been for some time acting as receiver and manager, and that the remuneration was mainly given to him for his services in that capacity, hence the question scarcely arises in that instance. But let us put the point on abstract grounds. A first meeting is held, and a composition proposed and accepted. If a trustee is appointed, (and whether this is done or not is left optional by the Act), the question then arises, how is he to be paid. This question, according to "Trustee," the meeting cannot entertain. "They may," he says, "determine as to the amount of composition, manner of payment, and security, and by whom the composition shall be distributed; but there their power ends." But with all respect to the opinion of our correspondent, we conceive that the meeting has full power to decide also how, and what sum the distributor is to be paid. A composition is virtually a compromise. It may be of the most vital importance to a debtor to escape from any proceedings which vest his property in a trustee. He is entitled to certain estate, which goes over to his children or to strangers, if he is deprived by any means of the use or enjoyment of it. Let a trustee in liquidation be appointed, and that property is gone from the debtor for ever. But if the creditors like to take a composition without any bankruptcy, the estate is not diverted. In these and many other cases, composition is an advantage to a debtor who has assets. Surely the creditors, who are omnipotent in the manner in which they will deal with these assets, may say, "Pay us five shillings in the pound, and pay so much as remuneration to the man we appoint as our agent in the matter, and we will release you, or we will proceed by liquidation in the ordinary way." We cannot see that either in a legal or an ethical point of view such a proceeding would be incorrect.

Then there is another fallacy in "Trustee's" argument, and that is, in talking about "the debtor's property." The case of Mr. Knowles was very exceptional. It is undoubted that every creditor was paid in full, and so the trustee's remuneration really came out of the debtor's pocket. But how often does such a case as this happen? As a rule, the larger the amount paid to the trustee, the less is there for the creditors. If they pay the trustee out of their own pockets, they fail to get the exact amount of composition they expected. If the debtor pays it, that must be taken into the account. If a man pays five shillings to his creditors and a lump sum to their trustee for time, trouble and costs, as the terms of his release, he cannot complain. If he objects to assent to the arrangement, he can apply to the Court, and become a bankrupt. And even in a case where twenty shillings in the pound is paid, there is still a fallacy lurking in the phrase the "debtor's property." He must be presumed to have had some advantageous result in view when he filed his petition, and sought the protection of an act where the essential point is that a debtor once brought within its provisions is no longer master of his property, but holds it in absolute trust for his creditors till a trustee is appointed in whom it vests. So that it is, in reality, the creditors dealing with their own property, and not that of their debtor. He has invoked to his aid a power whose operation is at times inconvenient to him; and can only escape from his unpleasant position at the will of those to whose mercy he has surrendered himself.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

"R. R. R."—We are afraid that the words "made by a trader" do not apply to the case you speak of, where the debtor was not actually in trade at the time of making the settlement. We will try and answer you more fully next week, when, perhaps, some of our correspondents may be able to assist us.—Ed.

Profit on Bronze Coinage.—The sum of £34,609 6s. was received in the year ended the 31st of March as profit on bronze coinage.

Digitized by Google

Correspondence.

ANTE-NUPTIAL SETTLEMENTS.

To the Editor of the Accountant.

Sir,—I have read with interest your article in last week's Accountant upon this subject, but do not agree with all your conclusions. A few years ago, at the instance of the Chambers of Commerce, a committee of merchants and lawyers was formed, and after many meetings, they came to certain resolutions, which, when published, were much commended by the press. A long and varied experience has convinced me that in nine cases out of ten, a settlement by a man, before or after marriage, ought to be prohibited, at least in the case of a trader. If an intended wife has property, let her settle that, if you will. The express object of all settlements is to defeat creditors, if the chances of life should turn against the husband. In the case of re Clint, decided in December, 1873, in which I was trustee, the debtor made a settlement in contemplation of marriage, whereby, in addition to a life policy for £1,000, and household furniture, he covenanted to settle all future real or personal estate, of which he, the settlor, might at any time during the intended coverture become possessed. The settlor subsequently became possessed, inter alia, of shares in ships, and on his bankruptcy they were claimed by the trustees of the wife's settlement. The County Court Judge upheld the claim, whereupon I appealed to the Chief Judge, who, in giving his decision, said, that no man could make a declaration of such a trust, because he could never know the value—he could only make a guess at it. He added, that nothing could be more opposed to plain reason and justice and the policy of the law, than that a man, either in trade or out of it, should make over every particle of his property, down to his very boots, to his wife, by including it in his marriage settlement, when the effect might be to interfere with the rights of his creditors. He declared the settlement void as to the after-acquired property, but solely on the ground of a well known rule in equity, upon which there have been other decisions, beside the leading case of Lewis v. Madocks (17 Vesey junr., page 47), that settlements of after-acquired property only carry property in the nature of capital. Continually I find, where men have made ante-nuptial settlements, and afterwards become bankrupts, the trustees of the settlements come in and claim the amount the debtor covenanted to settle, and vote at meetings of creditors with the bonâ fide creditors, and by their vote carry the debtor's proposal. We have a great many wise laws as to marriage being a valuable consideration, and so on, which might well be modified in operation. I say, let ladies settle their property, if they have any, and share their husbands' good or ill luck; if they have no property, let them do the latter. As matters stand, instances will occur to every business man where persons who have settlements of their own or their wife's property, go to the wall again and again, simply because, whatever comes or goes, they are assured of no diminution of worldly comforts, and can calculate on the kindness of their wives. What do the strong-minded women say as to marriage being a good consideration when it is used all on one side? If they rightly contend for equal privileges with the men, they ought to accept the same position as to the acquisition of property.

Yours truly,
H. B.

Liverpool, Sept. 26th, 1875.

To the Editor of the Accountant.

Sir,—Having just read the article in your issue of this date, on the subject of settlements, I am induced to ask whether the question of a man being considered a "trader" under the 91st section of the Bankruptcy Act 1869 has been raised under circumstances as follows, and if so, with what result? A failed as a wine merchant in 1872, but the creditors received twenty shillings in the pound (I believe by friends coming forward), his affairs being settled by private arrangement; in 1873, it appears he had no occupation, but in 1874 again commenced business in the same trade, in partnership with B, who was known to be without means, whilst A was believed to have money. Early in 1875, this firm was adjudicated, there being no assets, except some furniture of slight value in the separate estate of A, settlements of considerable amount having been made by A on his wife in 1873, behind which he shelters himself from his present creditors (although the settlements bear date within two years of bankruptcy) on the ground that he was not then a trader. I may add, that the furniture was settled in like manner early in 1874, but that settlement has been set aside on evidence that A was at the time selling wine on commission. There are no books to show what became of the goods for which the firm's acceptances (nearly all bearing A's individual endorsement), now proved on, were given, or how the proceeds of said goods were disposed of, there having been, apparently, no bonâ-fide sales. The office furniture was sold a month before the date of adjudication, the tradesman's account for same having since been proved; yet from all I can learn, without trying the question, for which funds are not in hand, this fraudulent insolvent, (who has never surrendered, being still somewhere on the Continent) can with impunity live on the interest of the money invested under the settlements, and set his creditors at defiance.

Surely such protection was never intended when the word "trader" was introduced into the 91st section of the Act, which, as far as form goes, so jealously watches over the interests of creditors.

Yours truly,
R. R. R.

September 25*th*, 1875.

THE STAMP QUESTION.

To the Editor of the Accountant.

Sir,—As your correspondents do not seem quite clear as to how far the exemption from stamp duty in the 113th section appears, I enclose copy of a letter from the Inland Revenue authorities, which I think is conclusive.

Yours truly,
L. B., A.S.A.E.

[Copy.]

"Inland Revenue, Somerset House,
London, W.C.,
25th April, 1872.

Sir,—In reply to the inquiry contained in your letter of the 18th instant, I am directed by the Board of Inland

Digitized by Google

Revenue to acquaint you that the exemption from stamp duty in the 113th section of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, is applicable to receipts for dividends payable under Bankruptcies, and to cheques drawn by trustees in Bankruptcy upon their separate accounts as such trustees, but that it is not applicable to receipts or cheques in liquidation or compositions.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient Servant,
WILLIAM LOMAS."

To the Editor of the Accountant.

SIR,—The correspondence in your last two issues on the question of stamps and rents, is both interesting and instructive to accountants. With respect to the former, the course I have adopted (and it is founded upon authority) is, not to give stamped receipts for moneys due to a bankrupt's or liquidating debtor's estate, but to require them on all payments exceeding forty shillings out of such estates, including dividends and allocaturs for bills of costs. As to rent, if it accrues due during the occupation by the trustee, it can be distrained for, and must be paid, that is, to the extent of twelve months, but if the trustee can realise the estate before it accrues due, there is no obligation to pay the landlord the proportion of rent owing, but the landlord would have a right of proof for the loss sustained. If a trustee, after having paid rent accruing due whilst he is in possession, remains longer than a time which may be considered reasonable for the realisation of the estate, he will be taken to have adopted the tenancy, and may be held answerable for the rent. On both these points it will be seen that my views are in accordance with those of your correspondents. There are, however, two other questions which have recently cropped up in my practice to which I wish to draw attention. The first is as to whether the allocatur for a bill of costs should be for the bill as presented for taxation, or upon the amount at which the bill is taxed. The latter was all that was required under the former Acts, but now, for certain ingenious reasons, founded upon the strict reading of the rules and scale, it is held in some Courts that on presentation of the bill for taxation, an allocatur for the full amount thereof must be attached. The other question is, whether it is imperative to require bills to be taxed in liquidation cases? I have invariably insisted upon such being done, in conformity, as I considered, with the direct requirements of the rules, but I am informed that in London and other large towns, certain eminent accountants are in the habit of discharging solicitors' bills without requiring taxation. It is important there should be some uniform practice herein, and it is much to be regretted that the rules are so vague as to the consequences of non-compliance therewith in liquidation cases.

Yours truly,
H. B.

Liverpool, September 26th, 1875.

Talley, the solicitor who endeavoured to prevent a witness giving evidence in a case of felony, was sentenced at the Central Criminal Court, on Saturday, to twelve months' imprisonment.

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY.

September 27.

(Before the Hon. W. C. SPRING-RICE, sitting as Chief Judge.)

IN RE FELLWRIGHT AND WATSON.—The debtors, Messrs. Thomas Fellwright and James Watson, skirt and costume manufacturers, carrying on business in Gresham-street, have filed a petition for liquidation. Their debts are estimated at £9,000, with assets, consisting of stock-in-trade, book debts, and various other items, £7,000, subject to realisation. It appeared that the debtor Watson, by whom the business had been conducted for about a year, had presented a petition as a sole trader; but at the first meeting the creditors declined to pass any resolution, and it became necessary to file a joint petition. Upon the application of Mr. A. H. Miller, his Honour appointed Mr. J. F. Lovering, accountant, Gresham-street, receiver and manager of the business.

September 28.

(Before MR. REGISTRAR BROUGHAM, sitting as Chief Judge.)

IN RE BAUM, SONS, & CO.—The debtors, Messrs. Peter Frederick Baum and Adolphus Saly Baum, money-changers, carrying on business at 58 Lombard-street, under the firm of Baum, Sons, and Co., have filed a petition for liquidation. Their liabilities are returned at £15,000, with assets about £3,000, consisting of bullion and cash, furniture, and bills receivable. Mr. F. Miller now applied that Mr. James Holah, accountant, 62 Moorgate-street, should be appointed receiver of the estate; and he produced an affidavit showing that it was desirable the business should be continued until the first meeting of creditors. His Honour granted the application, an interim injunction being also allowed to restrain actions by creditors.

IN RE ARTHUR RIX.—Mr. Barnard, for creditors, applied under proceedings for liquidation instituted by the debtor, an iron merchant, carrying on business at 384 Rotherhithe-street, for the appointment of a receiver of the debtor's property. Mr. R. Griffiths, for the debtor, opposed the application, stating that no actions were pending, and that the appointment would only give rise to unnecessary expense. His Honour thought there was no evidence of the property being in jeopardy, and refused the application.

September 29.

(Before Mr. Registrar SPRING-RICE.)

IN RE JOHN HIGH.—This was an application for the appointment of a receiver and manager of the estate. The debtor has presented a petition for liquidation, describing himself as a builder and contractor, carrying on business at the Clarence Works, Upper Clapton. Mr. E. C. Willis, in applying for the appointment of Mr. Joseph Payne, St. Clement's House, Clement's-lane, as receiver and manager of the estate, read from an affidavit which stated the fact that the debtor had called a meeting of his creditors, and at that meeting it was resolved to appoint a receiver and manager to the estate. No statement of affairs was then presented, but a list of the debtor's contracts were read, the amount being stated and the profit expected to be realised. The debtor also then informed the meeting that about twelve writs were out against him, and several judgments. His Honour granted the application. The debts are estimated at about £30,000. The value of the assets is not at present known.

September 30.

(Before Mr. Registrar SPRING-RICE.)

RE A. ZAWADSKI.—A first meeting was held under an adjudication against Alfred Zawadski, described as of Essex-road,

Digitized by Google

Islington, and Camden Town, American organ manufacturer. The act of bankruptcy upon which the proceedings were founded was the departure of the debtor from his dwelling-house with the alleged intent of defeating or delaying his creditors. No accounts were filed, but proofs for about £7,000 were admitted, and a trustee appointed.

LORD MAYOR'S COURT.

Sept. 30.

(Before the RECORDER and a Special Jury.)

HUNTER v. BROUSSON.—This was an action brought to recover the value of a dishonoured bill of exchange, for £479 11s. 6d. The defendant pleaded a traverse of the endorsement and acceptance, and also never indebted.—The plaintiff, in the month of April last, succeeded to the business of a Mr. Buchanan, of Glasgow and Kames, who traded at both places, as the Kames Gunpowder Company, and thus became the holder of a dishonoured bill, which had been paid into the account of the company by their London agent, Mr. M'Allam, and was drawn by a Mr. Paterson, in the month of November, 1874, in the name of the defendant's firm as it then existed, Brousson, Wagner, and Paterson, and which was dishonoured upon being presented at the Imperial Bank, who now claimed its value.—The plaintiff, who was called, denied in cross-examination that the bill in question was one of several given by Paterson in part payment of a sum of £52,000, the proposed purchase-money for the company's business, for which he was in treaty with Mr. Buchanan, through M'Allam, in 1874. On the part of the defence it was urged that M'Allam had had notice given him that Paterson had no right to pledge the credit of the firm or to sign the name of the firm to bills of exchange or cheques, and that such a notice to an agent was a notice to the principals, and therefore they took the bill knowing that fact, and the defendants were not responsible.—Mr. Brousson, one of the defendants, who said he and his partner, Mr. Wagner, carried on business at 106 Fenchurch-street, City, as merchants, detailed the facts with relation to the partnership of the firm when the bill was drawn by his then third partner, Paterson. He said he had no authority to do so under the articles of partnership without the consent of his senior, Mr. Wagner, which had never been obtained. About £30,000 worth of these bills had been floated by Paterson for his own individual benefit, bearing the name of the firm. In cross-examination he admitted the firm had met one bill for £378 11s. 4d., not knowing of the others, and had sometimes allowed Paterson to sign cheques in the name of the firm. They were also all three present at the bank at the time of signing the signature book. Upon that the learned Judge ruled in favour of the plaintiff, and ordered a verdict for the amount claimed.

BIRMINGHAM COURT OF BANKRUPTCY.

September 28.

(Before Mr. Registrar CHAUNTLER.)

IN RE WILLIAM COOKE.—The debtor, described as a licensed victualler, of the Victoria Inn, Albert-road, in the parish of Aston-juxta-Birmingham, has filed his petition for liquidation, with liabilities estimated at £1,700, or thereabouts, and assets £1,000. Upon the application of Mr. Matthew J. Blewitt, of No. 40 Waterloo-street, solicitor, the Registrar appointed Mr. Spencer Dominy, accountant, receiver of the estate, and granted an interim injunction to restrain proceedings by creditors.

IN RE JAMES JEFFERY.—The debtor, described as a grocer and provision dealer, of 67 and 68 Cattell-road, Small Heath, Birmingham, has filed his petition for liquidation, with liabilities estimated at £1,500 or thereabouts, and assets £500. —Upon the application of Mr. Edwin Jaques, solicitor for the debtor, the Registrar appointed Mr. C. T. Starkey, of Cannon-street, Birmingham, public accountant, receiver of the estate, and granted an interim injunction to restrain proceedings of creditors.

The Bankers' Magazine furnishes the returns of the circulation of the Private and Joint-Stock Banks in England and Wales for the four weeks ending the 4th of September, 1875. These returns, combined with the circulation of the Scotch and Irish Banks for the same period, and the average circulation of the Bank of England, for the four weeks ending the 1st of September (the nearest date furnished by their returns), will give the following results of the circulation of notes in the United Kingdom when compared with the previous month:

	Sept. 4.	Aug. 7.	Increase	Decrease.
Bank of England	£28,215,954	£28,464,786	—	£248,832
Private Banks	2,373,305	2,410,897	—	37,592
Joint-Stock Banks ...	2,221,238	2,244,758	—	23,520
Total in England ...	32,810,497	33,120,441	—	309,944
Scotland	5,873,681	5,952,816	—	79,135
Ireland	6,533,661	6,507,526	26,135	—
United Kingdom ...	£45,217,839	£45,580,783	£26,135	£389,079

And as compared with the month ending the 5th of September, 1874, the above returns show an increase of £1,526,186 in the circulation of notes in England, and an increase of £2,150,701 in the circulation of the United Kingdom. On comparing the above with the fixed issues of the several banks, the following is the state of the circulation:—

The English Private Banks are below their fixed issue	£1,434,687
The English Joint-Stock Banks are below their fixed issue.........	431,755
Total below fixed issue in England.................	£1,866,442
The Scotch Banks are above their fixed issue	£3,124,410
The Irish Banks are above their fixed issue	179,167

The average stock of bullion held by the Bank of England in both departments during the month ending the 1st of September was £29,161,499, being an increase of £858,523 as compared with the previous month, and an increase of £6,546,094 when compared with the same period last year. The following are the amounts of specie held by the Scotch and Irish Banks during the month ending the 4th of September:—

Gold and silver held by the Scotch Banks	£4,189,054
Gold and silver held by the Irish Banks	2,659,838
Total..	£6,848,892

—being an increase of £38,992 as compared with the previous return, and an increase of £364,569 when compared with the corresponding period last year.

The risks to which stockbrokers are liable in delivering stock in exchange for cheques has been just exemplified in connexion with the adjustment of the fornightly settlement, and the circumstance should be made public without delay as a warning to others. It appears that £10,000 worth of Spanish, Egyptian, and Turkish stocks were delivered to a Greek, who is said to be well known at the Baltic, in exchange for his check on one of the City banks, which was returned dishonoured. On inquiries it was found that his balance at the bank was 5s. Detectives were immediately despatched to the different railway termini, and the person in question was fortunately seen by a gentleman who accompanied one of the detectives seated in a train just about to start, and he was given into custody. On examining the bonds found upon him it was discovered that he had, in addition to the £10,000 referred to, £8,000 of other securities, which it is presumed were also fraudulently obtained.—Times.

Digitized by Google

CREDITORS' MEETINGS.

F. FURNISS.—A meeting of the creditors of Mr. F. Furniss, contractor, of Westminster, who failed about three months since, was held on Monday, at which Mr. R. Eaton James, accountant, was appointed trustee, in the place of one of the trade trustees, who had resigned.

J. BROWNE (MANCHESTER).—A meeting of the creditors of John de Maine Browne, of Rochdale-road, grocer, was held on the 24th September, afternoon, at the offices of Messrs. Addleshaw and Warburton, solicitors, when the statement of affairs presented by the receiver, Mr. Nicholson (Nicholson and Milne), showed liabilities, £1,380 6s. 11d., and assets, £548 18s. 3d. A composition of 4s. 6d. in the pound was accepted, and Mr. Nicholson appointed the trustee.

J. WAITE (MANCHESTER).—The statutory meeting of the creditors of Joseph Waite, of Ogden-lane, Openshaw, provision dealer, was held on the 24th September, at the offices of Messrs. Cobbett, Wheeler, and Cobbett, solicitors. It was resolved to liquidate the estate by arrangement, and Mr. Nicholson (Nicholson and Milne) was appointed the trustee.

KENDRICK & CO.—The first meeting under this failure was held at the offices of Messrs. Haydon and Vivian, accountants, 29 New City Chambers, 121 Bishopsgate-street, Within, on the 25th September. From the statement read the liabilities amount to £4,000, with assets of £686 3s. It was resolved to liquidate by arrangement, Mr. Flaxman Haydon, accountant (Haydon and Vivian), being appointed trustee, jointly with Mr. Brice Grellier (West of England and South Wales District Bank), with a committee of inspection. Mr. Edmund Kimber is the solicitor to the proceedings.

R. LONG (LIVERPOOL).—On the 27th September, a first meeting of creditors was held in the matter of Richard Long, of Tempest-chambers, Tempest-hey, in this town, carrying on business as an engineer and metal broker, under the style of "Richard Long and Co.," and as an oil merchant, under the style of the "Lancashire Lubricating Oil Company," who was adjudicated bankrupt on the 9th September inst. Mr. J. P. Harris, solicitor, represented the petitioning creditor, and Mr. Rodway (of the firm of Messrs. Barrell and Rodway, solicitors), Mr. Collins (of the firm of Messrs. Francis, Almond, and Collins, solicitors), and Mr. T. Theodore Rogers, accountant, represented the principal creditors. The statement of affairs submitted by the bankrupt, showed liabilities £1,492 7s. 2d., against assets £583 4s. 6d. Mr. Thomas Theodore Rogers, accountant, 16 Lord-street, Liverpool, was chosen trustee, with a committee of inspection.

R. MACKENZIE (DUNDEE).—A meeting of the creditors of Mr. Robert Mackenzie was held in the office of Messrs. W. and D. Myles, accountants, on the 24th September. Mr. John Gordon, chairman of the committee of inquiry, presided. There was a full attendance of creditors. The report of the arbitrator in the questions betwixt Mr. Mackenzie and Messrs. Stewart and Co., of New York, was laid before the meeting, but its terms were so vague and indefinite that none of the creditors were able to understand it. It was stated in explanation that three different letters had been written requesting explanations regarding the report. One of the answers received led to the belief that the sum of £1,000 would fall to be paid to Mr. Mackenzie. Another answer received was to the effect that Messrs. Stewart and Co. might have something to receive, and that if this were the case they would rank as creditors on Mr. Mackenzie's estate, and the third reply led to the belief that the sum of £7,000 would fall to be paid to Mr. Mackenzie by Messrs. Stewart and Co. Mr. Mackenzie, who was present, said he would find out what in reality were the terms of the report of the arbiter, and would like a week's delay to enable him to get the explanation he wished. He might say that if the adverse view of the arbiter's decision was correct, he would endeavour to pay a composition of 6s. in the pound, and that if the more favourable interpretation were the correct one he would endeavour to pay a composition of 11s. in the pound. The creditors generally were willing to grant Mr. Mackenzie the delay he asked for, and seemed to be willing to entertain favourably the offer he had made. One of the creditors, however, insisted upon action being immediately taken by the creditors, and stated that for his part he would agree to no further delay, and that if no action was to be taken by the creditors he would take immediate measures to use all diligence against Mr. Mackenzie. Mr. Mackenzie, seeing the position of affairs, thought it advisable to apply for sequestration in the afternoon, which was granted. His liabilities are between £30,000 and £40,000.

G. OATES (BRADFORD).—A meeting of the creditors of Mr. George Oates, wool merchant, of Bradford and Dewsbury, was held on the 28th of September at the Royal Hotel, Dewsbury, Mr. Guy, of the firm of Thistlethwaite and Co., Bradford, in the chair. Mr. J. D. Good, receiver, read the statement of affairs, which showed the total liabilities to be £14,674 17s. 1d., and the assets £3,002 4s. 10d. The debtor offered a composition of 4s. in the £; and, after a long discussion, the meeting was adjourned.

MULLER and Co. (BIRMINGHAM), gun stock and veneer dealers.—A meeting of creditors of this firm was held at the offices of Messrs. Beale, Marigold and Beale, solicitors, Waterloo-street, on the 28th of September. The statement of affairs showed liabilities £10,670 4s. 6d., of which £20 6s. 11d. is to be paid in full. The assets (which consist of gun stocks and veneers) were estimated to be worth £4,392 7s. 3d. It was unanimously resolved that the estate should be liquidated by arrangement. Mr. Luke Jesson Sharp, accountant, of Ann Street, Birmingham, was appointed trustee, with a committee of inspection.

J. PEACOCK (HUDDERSFIELD).—A meeting of the creditors of James Peacock, Cross Church-street, Huddersfield, draper, who had filed his petition through the failure of T. M. M'Miller, Hill-house, Huddersfield, draper, was held on Monday at Manchester. The statement read to the meeting showed that the liabilities amounted to £4,588 5s. 7d., and the net or available assets were £2,991 4s. 11d., though the total assets were set down at £3,991 4s. 11d. It was resolved that the estate should be liquidated by arrangement, that Mr. Joshua Crowther, Manchester, and Mr. Peter Kerr Chesney, Bradford, accountants, be appointed the trustees, with a committee of inspection. It was also resolved that the proceedings be transferred to the Bradford County Court, and that the committee be empowered to grant the debtor his discharge.

RE EDWARD BEVAN (BIRKENHEAD).—A meeting of the creditors of Edward Bevan, of Birkenhead, watch manufacturer, jeweller and silversmith, was held a few days ago. The statement of affairs presented by J. G. B. Mawson, public accountant, showed secured liabilities, £4,697; unsecured, £5,493 14s. 2d. The assets consisted of stock-in-trade, £2,102 5s. 6d.; book debts, £1,197 15s. 9d.; estimated to produce £500; cash in hand, £25; bills of exchange, £22 13s. 11d; furniture and fixtures, £400; other property, £26 5s. 3d., from which to deduct for rent rates and taxes, £57 13s. A composition of 7s. 6d. in the pound, payable in 4, 8, and 12 months (the last secured), was unanimously accepted.

W. WARBURTON AND CO. (MANCHESTER).—A special meeting of creditors of William Warburton, corn merchant, Hanging Ditch, Manchester, trading as Warburton and Co., now a bankrupt, was held on the 29th September, at the offices of Messrs. Cobbett, Wheeler and Cobbett, 61 Brown-street, Manchester. A statement of affairs, as presented by Mr. William Butcher, of 73 Princess-street, Manchester, public accountant, showed liabilities £4,135 3s. 1d., assets £100. An offer was made of 1s. 3d. in the pound, guaranteed, and the costs of the bankruptcy, payable in one month from this date. A resolution was passed accepting the offer, and to guarantee the discharge of the bankrupt upon payment of the said composition.

Digitized by Google

A Circular has been issued by Mr. W. T. Henley, telegraph engineer and contractor. who suspended payment in March last, offering his creditors a composition of 7s. 6d. in the pound, payable in three instalments, 12, 18, and 24 months from the 7th of October next. It may be remembered that shortly after his suspension a statement of his affairs was issued showing that he could pay nearly 50s. in the pound. The surplus realisable from securities in the hands of creditors was alone sufficient to pay all the debts shown, and leave a good £100,000 to go on with. The offer of 7s. 6d. has, therefore, excited some surprise. The committee of inspection recommend the acceptance of the offer, on the ground that forced realisation might yield less.

FAILURES.

ENGLAND.—Messrs. B. von Bartels and Co., merchants, of Bradford, have filed a petition for liquidation in the County Court. The liabilities amount to £15,000.—On the 25th of September, a petition was filed in the Dewsbury County Court on behalf of Mr. Abraham Marsden, woollen manufacturer, of Ossett, who seeks for the liquidation of his affairs by arrangement or composition. The liabilities are estimated at over £2,000.—A petition for liquidation has been filed in the Manchester County Court by Edward Barber, 9a New Brown-street, Manchester, and Moston-lane, Harpurhey, and Langford-road, Heaton Chapel, in the County of Lancaster, rope and twine manufacturer and paper maker; liabilities, £3,500.—At the Sheffield County Court, on the 23rd of September, a petition was filed on behalf of Charles Owen and Co., electro-plate and Britannia metal manufacturers. The liabilities are estimated at £2,800.—A petition by Joseph Gardner, Doncaster, potato merchant, and carrying on the business of a tanner in copartnership with Charles H. Verity, at Conisborough, under the style of the Conisborough Tanning Company, was filed on the 27th of September, in the Sheffield Bankruptcy Court. The liabilities are £6,000; assets not stated.—A petition for liquidation by arrangement or composition was filed on the 28th of September, by Mr. Edward Williamson, Scarborough, and Mr. J. Ibberson, Dewsbury, solicitors, at the Dewsbury County Court, on behalf of Thomas George Fletcher, wool merchant, Bradford-road, Dewsbury. The liabilities are estimated at £3,500. Mr. Good, of Dewsbury, accountant, has been appointed receiver.—A petition has been filed for the liquidation of the affairs of Messrs. Marsden and Stoker, iron and steel merchants, Sheffield; liabilities, £5,000.—A petition for liquidation of the affairs of Mr. W. S. Taylor, dealer in pictures and fine art property, St. James-street, Sheffield, was filed on September 29th. The liabilities are £5,500, and it is stated that the assets are sufficient to pay them in full.

SCOTLAND.—The liabilities of Messrs. Geekie and Black, Coupar Angus, are estimated at about £18,000; and as the works are reported not to belong to the firm, the estate, it is expected, will not turn out well.

AMERICA.—American advices report the failure of the St. Paul (Minn.) Lumber Company, with liabilities of £40,000. —Messrs. Alexander Pope and Co., lumber dealers, in the Dorchester district, had also suspended.—Mr. John A Robertson, lumber and planing mill, Boston, had failed, with liabilities of £8,000.—Messrs. S. L. Holt and Co., machinists, &c., Boston, had stopped.—Mr. Henry W. Nason, Montclair, N.J., had suspended; liabilities, £16,000.—Messrs. W. A. Cumming and Co., flour and grain merchants, Baltimore, had failed; liabilities, £10,000.—The large sugar refinery of Messrs. William Moller and Sons, of New York, has failed, with liabilities amounting to about £100,000. The losses will fall upon four or five houses, which are presumed to be able to sustain them. The suspension is also announced of Messrs. John J. Cohen & Sons, of Augusta, Ga., bankers and brokers, owing, it is stated, to a shrinkage in securities, purchased by them during the last two years.—Also of Mr. Harlow Chandler, wholesale grocer, Montreal, with liabilities of £40,000.--Messrs. Mallory and Butterfield, No. 41 Broadway, New York, the largest dealers in paper board in the United States, have suspended. The creditors, however, have allowed the house to continue business. —Messrs. Killert and Friendman, Montreal, had failed; liabilities, £24,000.

GERMANY.—The suspension of Hirsch and Co., of Memel, has been followed by the stoppage of Herr Hellbusch and Judell and Loll. Other firms are understood to be embarrassed.

The National Zeitung reports a further group of failures, viz.—Karl Teubner, of Vienna; Miesto and Co., of Leopoldstadt; and Victor Fischel, of Gumpendorf. The liabilities of the last-named are said to be very considerable.

SAVINGS-BANKS.—The annual return, recently issued, giving detailed accounts of the trustee savings-banks of the United Kingdom, is advanced to the dignity of a "Blue Book." The return fills 100 folio pages, constituting a remarkable contrast with the brief annual account of the Post Office savings-banks. At the close of the last savings-banks year, on the 20th of November, 1874, there were 474 of these (trustee) establishments in the United Kingdom, or seven fewer than at the end of the preceding year. But the number of accounts open, which was 1,463,560 in 1874, was 18,071 more than at the end of the previous year; and the amount due to depositors—namely, £41,467,171, shows an increase of as much as £941,320. In England (with Wales) the increase exceeded £740,000. In Lancashire the deposits advanced from £4,934,050 in 1873 to £5,087,621 in 1874; in Cheshire, from £1,115,950 to £1,163,736; in the West Riding of Yorkshire, from £2,282,190 to £2,353,621. In Northumberland there was an increase from £1,089,896 in 1873 to £1,158,015 in 1874; in Durham, with a much larger population, from £321,884 to £338,199; in Glamorganshire, from £426,258 to £464,715; in Devonshire, from £1,813,895 to £1,858,219. In Middlesex the increase is from £5,183,087 to £5,255,128. Dorset shows a decrease from £399,802 in 1873 to £330,713 in 1874; Wilts, a decrease from £492,983 to £491,128; and there is a decrease also in Suffolk, in Buckinghamshire, in Surrey, and in Westmoreland. In Scotland the deposits show an increase of £298,656 over the amount in 1873; Edinburgh county, an increase from £899,693 to £962,275; and Lanark, from £2,061,312 to £2,245,583. Ireland shows a decrease of £106,925, the Channel Islands an increase of £8,745. The total amount due to depositors in November, 1874, was £34,064,254 in England and Wales, £4,936,084 in Scotland, £2,017,561 in Ireland, and £449,272 in the Channel Islands. The rate of interest allowed to the depositors in England in 1874 averaged as much as £2 19s. 6d. per cent., in Scotland 1d. less, in Ireland 1s. 10d. less; but it was £3 in the Channel Islands. There were in the year as many as 1,835,763 receipts from depositors, the average amount being £4 9s., and there were but 983,608 payments to depositors, the average being £8 7s. 6d. The year's expenses of management were equal to 6s. 10d. per cent. on the capital. The number of accounts open in November, 1874, was 1,144,884 in England and Wales, 241,551 in Scotland, 55,455 in Ireland, and 21,670 in the Channel Islands,—all showing an increase except Ireland, in which the depositors were less by 3,290 than in 1873. But all these figures relate only to the trustee savings-banks, on which the Post Office savings-banks are so rapidly gaining, having less than £5,000,000 deposits in 1864, and more than £23,000,000 in 1874.

Digitized by Google

A "CLEARING DISCOUNT ESTABLISHMENT."

An "Ex Bank Director" writes as follows to a daily contemporary:—

"Sir,—Although the proposition of 'A Bank Manager,' which appeared in your article several days ago, for the opening of an office to receive and give information regarding the leading features of the discount market, has been pooh-poohed by some as too good to be practicable, its practicableness, nevertheless, becomes every day more and more apparent. There is, in fact, no difficulty in the thing itself, for it only suggests that being done, though less in detail, for all banks, which each bank is supposed to do for itself. The only difficulty is in getting the banks to combine for such a purpose. It is taken for granted, however, that the banks that have suffered most from the Collie failures, and their shareholders, would be only too glad to see such an institution in effective operation, and that the public generally would give it a no less hearty welcome, as likely not only to save us from such catastrophes as we have seen of late, but to keep trade in a normally sound state. The elements referred to are sufficient of themselves, from the area they already occupy, to set the thing going, and banks standing aloof from it at first may before long see the advantage of joining it, every new adherent facilitating its further extension and usefulness. The policy of secrecy hitherto maintained by banks generally with regard to their own affairs evidently requires modification, for it is this which has enabled Collie to achieve the mischief he has done. If any one of the banks had known the amount of bills he had in the circle at one time, it would certainly have acted more tentatively than it did. It is proposed that the several banks should make their returns to the central office under ciphers, variable from time to time and intelligible only to the chief manager. If it is asked, 'Do you mean that he should give information when required as to the amount each firm is under acceptance?' certainly not, for two reasons—first, because Collie accepted no bills; and, secondly, because banks would thus have no difficulty in seeing into the character of each other's business. Hitherto banks have been open to information from all and parted with none, except when it suited themselves, but it is now proposed they should all contribute their proper quota of information to a general fund, in so far as they can do so without injury to themselves—namely, that they should give the extent to which each customer is liable on bills under discount, without saying whether as drawer, acceptor, or endorser. It has been objected that merchants might not like their commitments to be known out of doors. Clearly not if they were either shaky or of the Collie stamp. But all others would prefer it, as enabling them the better to understand their own position; and certainly the shares of banks having access to such information would be none the worse for it. Again, looking to the immense deposits on which banks have to pay interest, is it not natural, or inevitable almost, in the absence of such an institution, that these should get mopped up by a few cliques or coteries, instead of being more widely, as well as more usefully, employed?

"The Collie failures are said to amount to something under six millions, or about a tenth of what used to be our Government annual expenditure, and the consequent outside failures and fall in bank stocks must aggregate a considerable sum. Nor should we lose sight of what they in the same trade must have suffered when the Collies were in full operation and casting them into the shade. If the king of all this mischief escapes scot free—and for any thing we know he may now be better off than any of his victims—we surely owe it to ourselves to do something to prevent the recurrence of such disasters."

FORGED BANK NOTES.—A paper was laid before the House of Commons Select Committee of last Session on Banks of Issue, giving an account of the number and nominal value of the forged notes presented at the Bank of England in every year since 1805. Up to 1820 the number was very large. In that year 29,063 forged notes, of the nominal value of £33,682, were presented, and no less than 27,993 of them were £1 notes. The £1 notes were then called in, and the forgeries declined rapidly. In 1822 the number of forged notes presented had fallen to 3,642, and since 1829 the number has never reached 1,000 in any year. In 1873 it was but 52, of the value of £173; in 1874 it advanced again to 93, of the value of £475, one being a £200 note. In 1871 a forged £1,000 note was presented, the only one mentioned in the 69 years' list. Mr. K. D. Hodgson, M.P., a director of the Bank, stated to the committee, that in the last ten years forgery of Bank of England notes may be said to have become almost unknown; but it is beginning again, not in this country but in foreign countries. The system which the Bank of England has for many years followed, and found very successful in detecting forgeries, has been to make the note as simple as possible, to rely largely upon paper very difficult to make, and to obtain the most perfect uniformity. Even the signature of the cashier is engraved on the plate, and the examiners are able to see in a second if there is the slightest difference even in the breadth of a line in any portion of the note, showing it to be false. The public have always claimed from the Bank of England the means of stopping notes and of being able to trace them in case of robbery. No note is ever re-issued by the Bank; and the notes brought in are preserved in the library, in which may be found every note that has been presented for a certain number of years back, with a statement of the date at which it was presented, and the person from whom it was received. It would be difficult, if not impossible, to apply to £1 notes that system of record and tracing which is adopted with the notes now issued by the Bank of England. If £1 notes were issued, they would circulate among a larger and poorer class than the present holders, and would probably remain out for years. The average life of a £5 Bank of England note is not above 80 days. The forged notes have almost always been notes of small amounts. The largest number of forged £5 notes presented was in 1812, when it reached 1,049; the last year in which it exceeded 100 was in 1862; in 1873 it reached its minimum of seven; it was 27 in 1874.

THE NATIONAL DEBT.—The Financier says that in spite of the purchase of telegraphs, fortification loans, and other outlays, the debt of this country is £41,004,688 less than it was ten years ago. It is the habit to state the debt of the United Kingdom in round numbers at £800,000,000,—an amount, indeed, which was rather below the truth in 1870; but since then we have paid off £26,057,875, and the total indebtedness—whether funded, unfunded, or in the shape of terminable annuities—now amounts to £775,348,686. During the last five years the annual reduction of debt has averaged £5,211,500; and, according to Sir Stafford Northcote's provisions, it now promises to be still more considerable.

APPOINTMENTS.

[The Editor will be glad to receive early notice of appointment of Liquidators and Auditors for insertion in this Column.]

Mr. Pannell (Slater and Pannell), has been appointed trustee of the estate of Woodward Mason, of Tunbridge Wells, Kent, tobacconist.

Digitized by Google

WINDING-UP.—A petition to wind-up Whitley Partners (Limited) has been presented to the Court of Chancery.

The extraordinary charge of poisoning at Norwood was disposed of at the Central Criminal Court on Saturday, when the prisoner, Walter Thompson Hunt, described as "an accountant," was found guilty of the manslaughter of Mary Ann Hudson, by administering to her a quantity of strychnine in August last, and was sentenced by Mr. Justice Field to five years' penal servitude. The prisoner's defence was that he gave the woman strychnine intending to do her good.

FRAUDULENT DISPOSAL OF BONDS.—RESPONSIBILITY OF TRUSTEES.—An important case, arising out of the failure of the Mercantile Union Bank at Jersey, came before the Royal Court of the island this week. It was an action by Mr. Edward Nicolle to recover from Mr. Philip Nicolle Onley and Mr. Robert Philip Malet the sum of £187 10s., being three half years' dividend due on £5000. Sardinian Five per Cent Stock, of which they were trustees, conjointly with Mr. Joshua Le Bailly, formerly judge of the Royal Court and chairman of the Mercantile Union Bank, and now a convict in Pentonville Prison. The particulars of the claim are as follows:—In 1856 Mr. John Matthews, banker, died, leaving the before-mentioned bonds in trust to his two daughters, Susan and Ann Elizabeth, who were to enjoy the interest during their lifetime. By the terms of the will the trustees were to deposit the bonds in the Bank of England for safe custody, and if the bank declined to take charge of them they were to be deposited in such other place of security as the trustees jointly should deem advisible. Without consulting the other trustees, and, so far as appears, even without their knowledge, Mr. Le Bailly, in whose custody they were, placed them in the care of Glyn, Mills, and Co., that bank being the London agent for the Mercantile Bank. Afterwards the Metropolitan Bank became the London agent for the Mercantile, and on Mr. Le Bailly's request they were returned to Jersey. They were shortly afterwards remitted to the Metropolitan Bank by Mr. Le Bailly as collateral security for advances made to the Mercantile, and later, on account of the heavy debt against this bank, the Metropolitan, after due notice, sold the bonds, placing the proceeds to the credit of the Mercantile Bank, which failed in February, 1873. Mr. Le Bailly became the subject of a criminal prosecution for his transactions with these bonds, amongst other charges against him, and was sentenced to five years' penal servitude. Mr. Edward Nicolle, who married Miss Susan Matthews, one of the legatees, now sought to make the co-trustees of Mr. Le Bailly liable for the payment of the three instalments due to her previous to the failure of the Mercantile Bank, on the ground that they had wilfully neglected the trust they had undertaken, and by their negligence allowed Mr. Le Bailly to dispose of the property in question. The case was part heard, and then adjourned to a future day.

ALLEGED FRAUDULENT SALE OF A LIFE POLICY.—Thursday, the 23rd instant, was fixed for a special sitting at the Halifax County Court, before Mr. Giffard, the judge, and a jury, for the purpose of an inquiry into the circumstances of an alleged fraudulent assignment of a life policy for £500 by Mr. Robert Frederick Beswick, of the firm of Beswick and Co., accountants, Halifax, Bradford, Leeds, and other towns, to Mr. Powell, bill broker, of Leeds. The proceedings were instituted by Jno. Alderson, of St. James's-road, the trustee of the estate of the late Jacob Stead, woolstapler, Halifax, who, shortly before his death, filed a petition for liquidation with his creditors. Beswick was for a time trustee under the liquidation, and he sold a policy for £500 on Stead's life for a comparatively trifling sum to Powell, who is a relation, which transaction resulted in his being removed from the trusteeship and Alderson elected in his place. The issues which it was decided should be heard by the jury were (1) whether the deed of assignment bearing date the 2nd day of April, 1875, and expressed to be made between Robert Frederick Beswick, as trustee of the estate of Jacob Stead, on the one part, and Wm. Powell of the other part, was executed in good faith and for valuable consideration, or was fraudulent and collusive as against the creditors and estate of the said Jacob Stead. (2) Whether, at the time of the execution of the said assignment, the said Wm. Powell had notice of any breach of trust on the part of the said Robert Frederick Beswick in reference to the said assignment. Mr. West and Mr T. Atkinson, barristers, had been retained as counsel for the trustee; Mr. Shaw, barrister, for Powell; and Mr. Laurence Gane, barrister, for Mr. Beswick; but the case did not go to a hearing. Counsel had a conference with the learned judge in his private room, and shortly afterwards, on their return into court, the judge arriving subsequently, Mr. West said the case would have taken some time if it had gone to a trial, but by a compromise between himself and his learned friends on the other side a compromise had been effected. The terms were definitely settled.—The Judge: You had better have them in writing.—Mr. West. They are in writing.—Mr. Gane said he appeared for Beswick, and the terms were satisfactory.—The Judge then said he was happy to tell the jury that their services would not be required. We are informed that the arrangement decided upon was for the trustee to receive £350 out of the policy money, and each party to bear their own costs.

WHERE WE DEAL.—In the year 1874 we imported foreign and colonial merchandise, for consumption or resale, of the value of above 370 millions sterling, and we exported produce of the United Kingdom of the value of nearly 240 millions, making a total of nearly 610 millions. The bulk of this vast trade—about 500 millions of it—was with 16 countries:—with the United States, 102 millions; with France, 63 millions; with British India, above 55 millions; with Germany, nearly 45 millions; with Australia, nearly 38 millions; with Russia, nearly 30 millions; with Holland, 29 millions; with British North America, above 21 millions; with Belgium, 21 millions; with China, above 20 millions; with Brazil, nearly 15 millions; with Egypt, 14 millions; with Spain and Canary Islands, above 13 millions; with Turkey, nearly 13 millions; with Sweden, nearly 12 millions; with Italy, 10 millions. Holland and Belgium serve in part as gateways for a trade really carried on with Central Europe, and Egypt for trade with the East. The 16 countries above named do not stand in the same order in the amount of imports and exports. In 1874 we imported merchandise from the United States of the value of nearly 74 millions sterling, but exported thither our own produce to the value of not quite 28½ millions. Our imports from France exceeded 46½ millions, but our own exports thither were not very much over 16¼ millions. Our imports from British India exceeded 31 millions; our exports thither were a little over 24 millions. On the other hand, our imports from Germany were below 20 millions, but our exports thither were nearly 25 millions. Our imports from Australia were less than 19 millions, our exports thither were rather over 19 millions. Our imports from Russia reached nearly 21 millions; our exports thither not 9 millions. Our imports from and exports to Holland were nearly equal, both exceeding 14 millions. Our imports from British North America reached nearly 12 millions, our exports thither not 9½ millions. Our imports from Belgium exceeded 15 millions, our exports thither were below 6 millions. Our imports from China were nearly 12 millions, our exports thither were less than 8½ millions. Our imports from Brazil amounted to 7 millions, our exports thither were larger by nearly £700,000. Our imports from Egypt were 10¼ millions, our exports thither little more than 3¼ millions. Our imports from Spain exceeded 9 millions, our exports thither were less than half that amount. Our imports from Turkey were below 6 millions, our exports thither exceeded 7 millions. Our imports from Sweden were 8½ millions, our exports thither were less than 3½ millions. Our imports from Italy exceeded 3½ millions, our exports thither were nearly 6½ millions. Our imports from these 16 countries in 1874 amounted to nearly 309 millions sterling, and our exports thither of our own produce exceeded 191 millions, without including our exports of foreign and colonial goods.

Digitized by Google

ALLEGED EXTENSIVE FRAUD ON STOCKBROKERS.

At Guildhall Police-court on the 30th September, Mr. Charles T. Mavrocordato, a Greek merchant, carrying on business at No. 108 Bishopsgate-street within, was charged before Mr. Alderman Ellis with obtaining by false pretences certain foreign stock, to the nominal value of £24,000.—Mr. George Lewis, jun., prosecuted; and after the case had been partially heard, Mr. Pratt, from the office of Mr. Buchanan, appeared for the defence.—Mr. George Lewis stated that he appeared on behalf of several members of the Stock Exchange to prosecute the defendant, who was a merchant in the City of London, for what he believed he would be able to show was a gross fraud upon the stockbrokers of the City. For many years the prisoner had been a merchant in the City of London, and held a very high position in the commercial world. He was in the habit of buying stock through brokers, and in some instances paying for it and taking it up, and in others paying the difference and not taking it up. He would now show that the prisoner hadj bought a quantity of stock from several brokers, in payment for which he had given a number of cheques on the Imperial Bank, which on presentation were dishonoured and marked "N. S.," which meant that there was not sufficient money there to meet them. The purchases that he made and for which he gave cheques were as follows:—Messrs. Stocken and Co., £5,000 Turkish Bonds, value £1,600; Mr. Mackintosh £5,000 Spanish, value £983 5s. 1d.; Mr. Dixon £5,000 Spanish, value £983 5s. 1d.; Messrs. Moore and Greatorex £3,000 Egyptians, value £1,800; Messrs. Messel £5,000 Turks, value £1,600; and Messrs Samuel and Cohen £1,000 Egyptians, value £740, making in all £24,000 of securities, the cash value of which was £7,540. Before the defendant could make use of the securities it was necessary that he should obtain possession of them, and for that purpose he gave his cheques to the several parties for the amount of their respective contracts. When, however, they were presented at the clearing-house, which could not be done until five o'clock, they were every one dishonoured, and upon inquiry it was found that the prisoner had kept an account at that bank since 1869, and that the balance to his credit was now £60. As soon as the fraud was discovered the police were communicated with, and Detective Serjeants Bull, Moss, Hancock and others, together with their staff of assistants, went to the various London railway stations to see if they could discover the prisoner, as they expected that he would try to leave the country. He was found in a first-class carriage at the Waterloo Station of the South-Western Railway, and when he observed the officer and another person whom he knew, he put his hat in front of his face in order to conceal himself, and when the person who knew him walked round to the other side of him, he passed his hat round his face so as to conceal it from him. The officer, however, saw the movement, and went into the carriage and stopped that manœuvre by apprehending him. When he was searched nearly the whole of the bonds were found upon him, or in his luggage, the only difference being that he had changed some Spanish for some Turkish bonds of equal value. Aristides Carridia said that he was agent to Mr. John M'Ewen Mackintosh, a stock and share broker, of Cornhill. He had known the prisoner for two or three years, and he knew that he was a member of the "Baltic." He sold to the prisoner £5,000 worth of Spanish bonds on behalf of Mr. Mackintosh, to be settled for on the 29th inst. Yesterday he took the bonds to the prisoner, who counted them out to see that they were correct, and then gave him his cheque for them for £983 5s. 1d. He had not seen him since until he was in the dock.—William Potts, detective officer, said that he and Mr. Pollak went to the Waterloo Station on Wednesday night, about a quarter-past-seven o'clock, and walked up and down the platform until the train arrived that was to start at 20 minutes to eight o'clock. They discovered the defendant in one of the first-class carriages of that train, and he evidently observed them, for he at once took off his hat and placed it before his face. Mr. Pollak said he thought he was the man, and witness told him to get into the carriage and walk round to the other side and see. He did so, and the prisoner put his hat round his face so as to prevent him recognising him. Witness observed it, and stepped into the carriage and apprehended him. Mr. Pollak then identified him. There were others in the carriage, and he asked the prisoner if he had any luggage, and he replied that he had a portmanteau and a bag. He brought them away with the prisoner, and found in them the securities he was charged with having obtained by means of the false cheques. Mr. George Lewis asked for a remand on this evidence, as he was not then prepared to go into all the cases. Mr. Alderman Ellis granted a remand for a week.

EXPORT STATISTICS.—The Statistical Abstract of the United Kingdom for 1874, shows that the declared value of the British and Irish produce exported from the United Kingdom to various foreign countries was £167,278,029, the exports to British possessions reaching a value of £72,280,092, giving a gross total of £239,558,121 against £255,164,603 for the preceding year. There had been a decrease of £1,000,000 sterling in the value in 1873, as compared with 1872; but the decrease of 1874 as compared with 1873 was £15,500,000. From 1862, when the value was £123,992,264, there had been a steadily increasing rise in the annual value up to 1873, the increase in the ten years reaching an amount of £132,000,000. The reduction in the value of the purchases made from us last year was exclusively in the foreign countries, the value of the exports to the British possessions showing a large increase. Our trade diminished chiefly with Germany, where the value fell by nearly £2,500,000; Holland, where the reduction was upwards of £2,000,000; Belgium, where it was nearly £1,500,000; France and Italy, where the fall nearly reached £1,000,000; Egypt, where it fell by nearly £3,000,000; and the United States, where the fall was nearly £5,000,000. In a few cases there was an increase in the value of the exports. Russia (northern ports) bought more than in 1873 by an amount of £148,730; Sweden and Norway by £369,764; Spain by £327,611; Greece by £16,742; and Brazil by £133,784. The purchases of our home produce made by the British possessions showed an increased value of nearly £6,000,000 sterling as compared with 1873, and the value has risen from £43,664,835 in 1860 to £72,280,092 in 1874, being nearly £29,000,000, or £2,000,000 a year, in the fourteen years. Our North American possessions bought to the value of £9,332,119; the West India Islands purchased £3,283,764 worth of goods; Australia, including New South Wales, Queensland, Tasmania, and New Zealand, bought to the amount of £19,000,000; and the purchases of our East Indian, African, and Chinese settlements reached the enormous sum of about £37,000,000. British India's purchases reached £24,080,693; the Straits Settlements, £2,701,526; Hong Kong £3,650,963; and the Cape of Good Hope and Natal £4,301,761. In the case of the foreign countries the rise in the value of their purchases has been most remarkable during the past fourteen years. Russia, which in 1860 bought to the extent of about £3,000,000, now buys nearly £8,000,000. France, whose purchases stood at £5,000,000, has trebled her custom. Spain buys more than a third as much again as in 1860. The value of the imports to the United States has risen from £21,000,000 to £28,000,000, and thus English produce still finds its best market across the Atlantic—France, our second customer, scarcely buying to half the extent. Greece, which in 1860 stood at £343,500, now buys to the value of a million; and Japan, which in that year scarcely entered into the competition, now purchases to the value of upwards of a million. The exports to the British possessions at the Antipodes have doubled in the fourteen years, having risen from £9,000,000 to £19,000,000, and the value of the exports to British India have increased in the same period from £17,000,000 to £24,000,000.

Digitized by Google

THE SOCIETY OF ACCOUNTANTS IN ENGLAND.—The monthly meeting of the Council of the Society was held on the 29th September, at the Society's offices, 2 Cowper's court, Cornhill. Present: Messrs. John Bath (vice-president) in the chair; E. C. Foreman, Harry Brett, E. Norton Harper, E. T. Peirson, W. C. Harvey, John H. Tilly, and the secretary. James Sdeward, 133 West George-street, Glasgow, was admitted as an associate of the Society.

CONTINENTAL DEBENTURES.—In the article under the above heading in our issue of the 25th of September, our correspondent was made to say that the total amount paid by the "Imperial Austrian Treasury" in recalling the obligations of the 1860 loan, with interest and bonuses, was £3, instead of £3,713,000.

BANKERS' CLEARING HOUSE.—The following is the official return of the cheques and bills cleared in the Bankers' Clearing-house for the week ending Wednesday, Sept. 29:—

Thursday, September 23	£10,786,000
Friday, September 24	12,011,000
Saturday, September 25	15,131,000
Monday, September 27	14,078,000
Tuesday, September 28	14,297,000
Wednesday, September 29	39,564,000
	£105,867,000

The total at the corresponding period of last year, which also comprised a Stock Exchange settlement, was £129,065,000.

On Thursday evening the revenue returns for the quarter, half-year and year ending on the 30th of September were published. The receipts during the twelve months amounted to £75,916,637, a decrease of £49,582 as compared with the return for the previous year. The half-year's receipts, however, show an increase of £994,764, and those for the quarter an increase of £400,623, as compared with the corresponding periods of 1874.

THE EXPORT COAL TRADE.—The exports of coal from the United Kingdom in August amounted to 1,534,826 tons, as compared with 1,436,421 tons in August, 1874, and 1,109,039 tons in August, 1873. In these totals the exports to Germany figure for 276,721 tons, 243,164 tons, and 181,869 tons respectively; and those to France for 249,960 tons, 202,930 tons, and 202,816 tons respectively. The exports also largely increased in August to Russia, Sweden and Norway, Holland and Spain. The aggregate exports of coal from the United Kingdom in the first eight months of this year were 9,277,298 tons, as compared with 8,910,616 tons in the corresponding period of 1874, and 8,309,571 tons in the corresponding period of 1873. In these totals the exports to Germany figured for 1,418,191 tons, 1,339,200 tons, and 1,077,680 tons, and those to France for 1,752,733 tons, 1,531,209 tons, and 1,580,710 tons respectively. The exports have increased this year to Sweden and Norway, Denmark, Germany, Holland, France, Spain, and Italy; but they have decreased to Russia, Turkey, Egypt, Brazil, Malta, and British India. The value of the coal exported from the United Kingdom in August was £992,642, as compared with £1,171,130 in August, 1874, and £1,136,216 in August, 1873; and in the eight months ending August 31 this year £6,373,195 as compared with £8,072,223 in the correspoding period of 1874, and £8,755,831 in the corresponding period of 1873.

LATE ADVERTISEMENTS.

TO CAPITALISTS.—Wanted a Partner with £10,000 for an Old-Established and prosperous Firm, to replace capital withdrawn by retiring partner.—Apply to J. Renton, Stationers' Hall Buildings, 34-40 Ludgate Hill, E.C.

TO TRUSTEES AND OTHERS—Wanted a Loan of £15,000, at 4½ per cent., on security of property in Aldersgate-street, worth over £50,000.—Apply to J. Renton, Stationers' Hall Buildings, 34-40 Ludgate Hill, E.C.

TO AUCTIONEERS, ACCOUNTANTS, &c.—A Gentleman, aged about twenty-eight, wishes for an engagement, with a view to Partnership. He is of active business habits, and his training has fitted him for the management of the financial department, or keeping of the books. He can command a moderate amount of capital.—Apply to Mr. J. Jones, Westminster Buildings, Chester.

MONEY to LEND to BORROWERS residing in town or Country, from £50 upwards repayable in one sum, from one to five years, at five per cent. interest on personal security; also on mortgage of freehold or leasehold property from 3 per cent., for a term of years to be agreed upon. No commission.
Apply to R. F. PRESTON, Esq., 120 Southampton-row, London, W.C.

THE BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY'S ANNUAL RECEIPTS EXCEED THREE MILLIONS.

HOW TO PURCHASE A HOUSE FOR TWO GUINEAS PER MONTH. With immediate Possession and no Rent to pay.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO PURCHASE A PLOT OF LAND FOR FIVE SHILLINGS PER MONTH.

With Immediate Possession, either for Building or Gardening purposes.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK FREEHOLD LAND SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO INVEST YOUR MONEY WITH SAFETY AT £4 PER CENT. INTEREST.

Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BANK. All sums under £50 repayable upon demand. Current Accounts opened similar to ordinary Bankers. Cheque-books supplied. English and Foreign Stocks and Shares purchased and sold, and Advances made thereon.

Office Hours from 10 till 4; on Mondays from 10 till 9, and on Saturdays from 10 till 12 o'clock.

A Pamphlet containing full particulars may be obtained post-free on application.

FRANCIS RAVENSCROFT, Manager.

THE METROPOLITAN AND PROVINCIAL LAND, ESTATE, HOUSE, LICENSED VICTUALLERS' & GENERAL BUSINESS TRANSFER "SYNDICATE" AGENCY,
Registered according to Act of Parliament, Head Offices, No. 3 Craven-street, Charing Cross, W.C. The organisation and working system of the "Syndicate" are;—1st.—The Sale, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Ground of Rents, Freehold and Leasehold Land, Farms, Estates, Houses, Hotels-Public Honses, Inns, Beer Houses, Restaurants, Coffee Houses, Tobacconists, Drapers, and every other description of Business, Furniture, Objects of Art, or Goods of any description by Auction or Private Contract. 2nd.—The letting, or disposing of, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Land, Farms, Estates, Furnished, or Unfurnished Houses Chambers, or Offices under private contract. 3rd.—The Collection of Rents and the recovery of outstanding accounts. 4th.—The Surveys and Valuations of Land, Farms, Estates, and Houses; also Valuations of Furniture, Jewellery, and other Effects, for probate and other purposes. 5th.—The transaction of all other business usually transacted by Auctioneers, Surveyors, Land, House, Estate and Insurance Agents. 6th.—The negociations of partnerships, and from unlimited connection with capitalists, monetary advances on real and personal securities, as well as merchandize, and every other description of property intended forabsolute sale, or otherwise. 7th. Generally the carrying out of all things incidental or conducive to the above objects, and every of them; also the laying out of estates and surveys for delapidations, The "Syndicate" from their extended connection with the Trades' Protection Societies and other sources, undertake expeditiously for Clients and others to ascertain reliably the status of parties, and make inquiries of a private and confidential character. Liberal terms to Accountants in town or country introducing business.

Digitized by Google

"The source of many a writer's woe has been discovered."

PENS! PENS!! PENS!!

"They come as a boon and a blessing to men,
The Pickwick, the Owl, and the Waverley Pen."
"The misery of a bad Pen is now a voluntary infliction."

Another blessing to men! The Hindoo Pen.
1,200 Newspapers recommend them. See Graphic, 17th May, 1873.

Sold by every respectable Stationer. Post 1s.1d.

Patentees, MACNIVEN & CAMERON, 23 to 33 Blair-street, Edinburgh.

J. DEFRIES' AND SONS'

CHANDELIERS, IN CRYSTAL, BRONZE, AND ORMOLU.

TABLE GLASS AND CHINA.

Dinner Services, Gilt Pieces, £4 10s.

KEROSENE and MODERATOR LAMPS for INDIA.

Works:—London and Birmingham.

WEDDING AND BIRTHDAY PRESENTS.

NEW DECORATIONS for the DINING TABLE.

FOUNTAINS.

STORER'S Patent Perpetual Perfumed CRYSTAL TABLE FOUNTAIN, for Dining, Hall and Drawing Rooms, in Crystal and Gilt, £2 17s. 6d. to 100 guineas.

FETES AND REJOICINGS.

BALLROOMS and GARDENS, &c., DECORATED and ILLUMINATED for Evening Parties. Tents, Temporary Rooms, and Banqueting Halls erected.

CRYSTAL and BRONZED CHANDELIERS.

TABLE GLASS and CHINA LENT ON HIRE.

J. DEFRIES and SONS, 147, HOUNDSDITCH.

Five minutes' walk from the Bank of England.

RUPTURES—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS s allowed by upwards of 500 Medical Men to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided, a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the manufacturer, Mr. JOHN WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London. Price of a single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., 31s. 6d, Postage Free. Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. An Umbilical Truss, 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. P.O.O. to be made payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

NEW PATENT ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS, &c. for Varicose Veins, and all cases of Weakness and Swelling of the Legs, Sprains, &c. They are porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and are drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price from 4s. 6d., 7s, 6d., 10s, to 16s. each. Postage free.

CHEST EXPANDING BRACES, for both sexes. For gentlemen they are a substitute for the ordinary braces. For children they are invaluable; they prevent stooping and preserve the symmetry of the chest. Prices for children, 5s. 6d. and 7s. 6d. Adults, 10s. 6d., 15s. 6d., and 21s. each. Postage free.—JOHN WHITE, Manufacturer, 228 Piccadilly, London.

EPPS'S COCOA.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—See article in the Civil Service Gazette.

STAR LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY,

48 MOORGATE STREET, LONDON, E.C

DIRECTORS.

CHAIRMAN—

Mr. Alderman McArthur, M.P.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—

William Mewburn, Esq.

H. J. Atkinson, Esq.
Thomas Ball, Esq.
Walter Griffith, Esq.
George M. Kiell, Esq.
George Lidgett, Esq.
Sir Francis Lycett.
William Merry, Esq.
John Napier, Esq.
Jonathan S. Pidgeon, Esq.
John Vanner, Esq.
S. D. Waddy, Esq., Q.C., M.P.

Assurance and Annuity Fund	1,216,115	13	5
Annual Income (1874)	223,613	2	0
Bonuses Apportioned	581,774	6	2
Claims Paid	1,140,151	1	8

Copies of the Report, Balance Sheet and Prospectus can be obtained on application to the Head Office.

W. W. BAYNES, Secretary.

THE ONLY AND SPECIAL

"MEDAL FOR PROGRESS,"

Was awarded for "Feuerfeste Eisone Schranke und Kunstchlosser Fortschritts," to

HOBBS, HART, & CO.,

AT THE VIENNA UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION.

This Medal is only given to Exhibitors whose New Inventions testify marked Progress.

"FIRE-PROOF SAFES; AND LOCKS AND ENDLESS CHANGE LOCKS AND KEYS,"

Invented especially for Safes and Strong-Room Doors, to frustrate the use of False Keys.

N.B.—The continued security and secrecy of a Lock, fixed on a Safe or Strong-Room Door, depends on the fact that there are no false duplicate keys of that Lock in existence. The object of a Lock is twofold—security against burglars, and secrecy against prying curiosity. A new change in this Lock may at any time be obtained in five minutes by simply filing away the thickness of a hair from one or more of the steps of the Key. The Lock, by a simple movement of the Regulator, is thus made to adapt itself to the NEW KEY, after which no other Key will open the Lock.

The Lock and Key may thus be easily altered into what would be virtually a NEW LOCK and KEY, as often as may be desired, without the aid of a Lockmaker or of any second person, thus frustrating the use of fraudulent copies of the original Key (see the Safe Robbery in Dublin of £630, vide "Times," 12th September, 1875). This Lock affords effectual protection from duplicate or "Master" Keys secretly made in manufactories; very extensive robberies (in one case 13 Safes in one vault) having been effected by this means.

HOBBS, HART & CO.,
LOCK, SAFE, AND STRONG-ROOM DOOR MANUFACTURERS.
76 Cheapside, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

MANSION HOUSE CHAMBERS, 11 QUEEN VICTORIA STREET, LONDON, E.C.

First issue of Capital, £500,000, in Subscriptions of £1 and upwards. No further liability. Open to all. Each cash subscriber is entitled to interest in lieu of dividend, at the rate of £1 10s. per cent. per month, 18 per cent. per annum, which will be paid in Cash.

TRUSTEES.

Lieut.-General, J. H. GASCOIGNE, C.B., Ivybridge, Devon.
The Rev. W. F. GOOD, D.D., Newton Abbott, Devon.
Rev. C. HOPE ROBERTSON, Smeeth Rectory, Ashford.
HENRY WALKER, Esq., Fowler Height, Blackburn.

ACCOUNTANTS AND AUDITORS.

Messrs. R. W. HUDSWELL AND Co., 23 Martin's Lane, Cannon Street, London, E.C.

MANAGER AND PROPRIETOR. — RICHARD BANNER OAKLEY, F.R.G.S.

Current accounts opened, and 5 per cent. interest allowed on the minimum monthly balances. Cheque Books supplied. The Bank grants credits and issues circular notes for the Continent and America, and transacts every description of sound Financial Business.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street, ISSUES GUARANTEED CHEQUES for any sum not exceeding £20 against cash deposits, without any charge for commission, the penny stamp being the only expense. These are very convenient for persons not having banking accounts, or not wishing to draw small cheques. They are payable on demand at all the Branches of the Co-operative Credit Bank, or can be passed through any bank in ordinary course.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street, is NOW ISSUING PROMISSORY NOTES from £5 upwards, payable three months after date with interest at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum if held to maturity, or payable on demand without interest. These are very useful to persons requiring short investments, and are perfectly negotiable instruments.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The ONLY SAFE and FIRM SYSTEM of BANKING.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The PEOPLE'S BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—No Promotion Money or Preliminary Expenses.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Managerial Remuneration Dependent on Profits.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Profits on the whole amount of the Liability.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Minimum of Risk, its operations being spread over a variety of subjects.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—No Liability beyond amount of subscription.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The Secrecy and Despatch of Individual Management.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—A fixed instead of an uncertain Scale of Profits.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Eighteen per Cent. per Annum paid Monthly.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—A constantly accruing Reserve Fund.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Power of Total Withdrawal after six months on Sixty Days' Notice.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street, City.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Book-keeping in the hands of the Subscribers.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Quarterly published Balance-sheet issued and certified by the Subscribers' Accountant.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Current Accounts opened and Five per Cent. allowed on the Minimum Monthly Balances.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK. — Furnishes Cheque Books for Customers.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK grants Credits and issues Circular Notes for the Continent and America.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK transacts every description of Sound Financial Business.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK introduces Public Loans.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK promotes Public Companies of a bona-fide character.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK negotiates the Discount of Bills and Mortgages on a Small Commission.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK negotiates Loans on Deposit of Deeds and other valuable Securities.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK assists in the Development of Patents for Useful Inventions.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK undertakes on Commission the Purchase and Sale of Stocks and Shares.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street, near the Mansion House.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK accepts the Agencies of Foreign and Country Banks and Merchants, and of Foreign Governments.

IF YOU WANT TO HAVE YOUR BUSINESS done Cheaply and Expeditiously, go to the CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

IF YOU WANT TO BE TREATED WITH CIVILITY, lodge your Money with the CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

IF YOU WANT THE BEST AND MOST RELIABLE COMMERCIAL INFORMATION OF THE DAY, ask the Manager of THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK,
Mansion House Chambers,
11 QUEEN VICTORIA STREET, LONDON.

BRANCH OFFICES.—LIVERPOOL: Mr. E. Dronke, Batavia-builings, Hackins Hey. MANCHESTER: Messrs. Lawrenson & Co., 20 Barton Arcade. BLACKBURN: Henry Walker, Esq., Fowler Heights. BATH: Mr. H. J. Pocock, 4 Union Street. GLASGOW: Mr. J. Cameron, 32 West George Street. WARRINGTON: Messrs. Henry Walker & Son, Albert Works, School Braw. DENBIGH: Jas. A. York, Vale Street. AYR: Mr. Ramsay, Temperance Hotel, High Street.

Digitized by Google

SUBSCRIPTIONS ARE INVITED FOR 5,000 SHARES IN

THE BUFFALO HIDE HORSESHOE COMPANY, LIMITED.

Registered under the Companies' Acts, 1862 and 1867.

CAPITAL £60,000, IN 12,000 £5 SHARES FULLY PAID UP.

£1 on Application, the remainder on Allotment.

DIRECTORS.

Joseph James Smith, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, Manchester.
William Birch Cooper, Esq., Durham Massey, Cheshire.
George Hill, Esq., Coal Merchant, Navigation Wharf, Manchester.
James Haslam, Esq., Veterinary Surgeon, Manchester.
Albert Septimus Cox, Esq., Veterinary Surgeon, Altrincham, Cheshire.

BANKERS.

The Manchester and Liverpool District Bank, King-street, Manchester, and its Branches.

SOLICITORS.

Messrs. Hampson and Walmsley, 60 King-street, Manchester.

MANAGING DIRECTOR.

James Haslam, Esq., M.R.C.V.S.

SECRETARY.

(Pro. tem.) Mr. Thomas Winder.

OFFICES.

(Pro tem) 60, King Street, Manchester.

PROSPECTUS.

The great want of a Shoe for Horses and other draught animals (so as to obtain a firm and solid foothold upon Asphalte and other smooth or slippery pavements, and to obviate roughing or sharpening in frosty weather; to reduce the jar or concussion the limbs are subjected to by the hoof striking the ground; to allow the hoof to expand and develop; to reduce the labour of the animals by diminishing the weight of the present unnatural and unwieldy iron shoe, and to add to their comfort), has long been felt by the community at large, but more especially by those who employ large numbers of horses, and also by "The Societies for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals."

Such a Shoe has been Invented and Patented by Mr. Yates, and is made from buffalo or other hides, rendered impervious to moisture under Patented Process. They are as durable as the iron shoe, one-third the weight, cheaper, and are neat and easily applied, and their application adds greatly to the comfort of the animal.

They are made from a material as nearly approaching the nature of the hoof as possible, and therefore are the most natural substance from which to form a shoe. They will maintain the integrity of the hoof in its natural form, and allow its freedom and development. They also assist in retaining a firm and solid foothold, and aid in the impulsive efforts required in the performance of work and movements, and will thus be invaluable in preserving the health of the animal shod with them.

This Company has been formed for purchasing and working the patent rights, titles, and interests for Great Britain, Ireland, and the Channel Islands, of this Shoe, and for manufacturing and vending the same.

It is the intention of this Company to fit up works sufficient to manufacture these shoes, and to establish offices or stores in our principal cities for the sale of the same, where they will be able to supply sets much cheaper than iron shoes, and which can be readily applied by any smith or farrier.

Forms of application for shares may be obtained by applying to the Bankers of the Company, or to the Secretary.

H. D. RAWLINGS,

PURVEYOR OF MINERAL WATERS TO

H. R. H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.
H. R. H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH.
H. R. H. THE PRINCE CHRISTIAN.
THE LATE EMPEROR NAPOLEON III.
AND THE PRINCIPAL COURTS OF EUROPE!

Gold Medallist of the Societe Nationale Agricole Manufacturiere et Commerciale de Paris.

SODA, BRIGHTON, SELTZER and all other Mineral Waters for HOME CONSUMPTION and EXPORTATION.
PRICE LISTS on Application, at the Manufactory, Nassau-street, W.

ALFRED W. GEE,
ADVERTISING AGENT,

62, GRACECHURCH STREET,

LONDON, E.C.

London Gazette Notices, and Advertisements and Announcements of all kinds for English, Colonial, and Foreign Newspapers promptly inserted.

N.B.—In the case of an ordinary Advertisement ordered for insertion in a number of Newspapers, only one MS. copy need be forwarded. Same rates charged as at the Publishing Offices.

Printed and Published for the Proprietor by Williams & Strahan, 7 Lawrence Lane, Cheapside. October 2, 1875.

Digitized by Google

The Accountant.

A MEDIUM OF COMMUNICATION BETWEEN ACCOUNTANTS IN ALL PARTS OF THE UNITED KINGDOM

VOL. I.—NEW SERIES.—No. 44.] SATURDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1875. [PRICE 6D.

LARGE LIGHT OFFICES on the Fourth Floor. Rents £10 and £15. Apply to Housekeeper, 26 Budge-row, Cannon-street, E.C.

TO ACCOUNTANTS.—Partnership wanted in a sound established Business. Has connection and business (six years' standing), which would be brought in. Age 36.—Address "B," 4 Linden-grove, Nunhead, S.E.

FOR SALE.—A well-established Wine and Spirit Business in London, having, besides a fair private connection, a regular trade attached to it, with four retail establishments, which alone yield a profit of over £1,100 per annum, in addition to profit rentals exceeding £250 per annum. Principals only to apply to Richard R. Robinson, Accountant, 19 St. Swithin's-lane, E.C.

A TRAINED ACCOUNTANT of skill and experience, having a connection worth £460 a year, wishes an engagement as Managing Clerk in an established Office, or would take a partner having capital. "Auditor," 141 Hampstead-road, London.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

39 BROAD-STREET, BRISTOL,
JUNE 24TH, 1875.

The PARTNERSHIP hitherto existing under the Style or Firm of HANCOCK, TRIGGS, & CO., having been DISSOLVED by mutual consent, I beg to give notice that I purpose henceforth to CARRY ON BUSINESS as a PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT at the above address.

PHILIP TRIGGS.

MESSRS. BARRETT AND PATEY,
PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS,
90 LONDON WALL, E.C.

HAVING removed from No. 8 Finsbury Circus, to more commodious offices at the above address, will be pleased to hear from Accountants resident in the provincial and manufacturing towns who require agents in London.

CHARLES LOWDEN, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT,
RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY,
BARROW-IN-FURNESS.
REFERENCES GIVEN.

LOVEWELL BLAKE, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT,
RECEIVER, AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY.
SECRETARY TO THE GREAT YARMOUTH TRADERS' ASSOCIATION.
OFFICES: HALL QUAY CHAMBERS, GREAT YARMOUTH.

J. F. TITCHMARSH, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT AND AUDITOR.
17 PRINCESS STREET, IPSWICH.
RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY AND LIQUIDATION.

WILLIAMS & STRAHAN,
Legal, Accountancy, & General Printers,
MANUFACTURING STATIONERS, &c
7 LAWRENCE LANE, CHEAPSIDE, LONDON.

Bankruptcy Forms, Statements of Affairs, Dividend Notices, Balance Sheets, &c., printed with despatch.

STEAM PRINTING WORKS, LAMBETH, S.E.

TRANSLATIONS.
MR. ALFRED W. GEE,
BRITISH AND FOREIGN ADVERTISING AGENT,
62 GRACECHURCH STREET, LONDON, E.C.,

Begs to announce that in compliance with a wish expressed by some of the subscribers to the Accountant, he has made arrangements for the translation of legal and commercial documents, correspondence, &c., into the Principal European Languages. Members of the Profession are therefore respectfully informed that arrangements can be made for efficient and speedy translations into, or from, the French, German, Italian Spanish, and Dutch Languages on Moderate Terms.

RESTAURANT,
13 OXFORD STREET,
Near the corner of Tottenham-court-road.

Known as the BODEGA, now under the new management of Mr. L. BOECKER, late of 13 Idol-lane, City.

Luncheons from the joints, hot or cold, including vegetables and bread, 1s. 3d

Dinners from 12 till 4 o'clock, from the joint, with soup or fish, vegetables, cheese and bread, 2s.

Dinners from 6 till 9 o'clock, from 2s. 6d. to 10s. 6d.

Private Dining Rooms for large and small parties on the Second Floor.

OLD FALCON HOTEL, GRAVESEND.
Proprietor—W. SKILLETER.
Late Chef de Cuisine to His Grace the Duke of Argyll.

Visitors to Gravesend will find every accommodation at the Old Falcon Hotel, East Street. Public and Private Rooms facing the River, directly opposite Tilbury Fort, and with a capital view of the Thames Shipping.

FISH DINNERS AND WHITEBAIT.

BED AND BREAKFAST FOR GENTLEMEN £1 1s. PER WEEK.

And an equally low Tariff for Dejeuners, Dinners, &c.

Five Minutes' walk from North Kent Railway, and Two Minutes from the Piers, and Tilbury and Southend Railway.

Digitized by Google

MR. FERDINAND WOLFSKEHL,
BANKER,
9 STEINWEG, FRANKFORT A/MAIN, GERMANY,

CALLS THE ATTENTION of Investors to different Continental Government Securities, guaranteed by Acts of Parliament, through which Capital and Interest ARE SECURED BEYOND ANY DOUBT.

Every one of these Loans must be repaid as per Plan attached to each Debenture, within a limited number of years, by periodical Drawings, OFFERING ADVANTAGES PRESENTED BY NO OTHER SECURITIES, WITH BONUSES AT EACH DRAWING, varying from

£10 to £30,000.

For full particulars apply by letter, addressed care
MESSRS. WOLFSKEHL BROTHERS, BANKERS,
LORD STREET, LIVERPOOL.

MR. FERDINAND WOLFSKEHL announces the following Drawings:—

The 70th DRAWING of 1,400 IMPERIAL AUSTRIAN 1858 £10 CREDIT DEBENTURES, and the 42nd BONUS DRAWING of 1,500 IMPERIAL AUSTRIAN 4 per cent. 1854 £30 DEBENTURES took place on the 1st instant, at Vienna. The 9th BONUS DRAWINGS of 120 RAAB GRAZ 4 per cent. £15 1871 DEBENTURES, took place at Ofen on 1st instant.

He will Forthwith Cash or Exchange any of the above-mentioned Debentures against other Debentures, Stocks, Shares or Obligations.

To secure safe delivery of Letters, Mr. F. W. requests that all communications should be addressed care of
Messrs. WOLFSKEHL BROTHERS, Bankers,
3 LORD STREET, LIVERPOOL,
Of whom full particulars of the above Drawings can be had on application.

P S.—The Imperial Austrian 1858 Credit Debentures, Series 1,006, No. 78, drawing a Bonus of £4,000, has been sold by Mr. F. W. to a Gentleman residing in London.

Established 1843.
PERIODICAL SALE OF REVERSIONS, ANNUITIES, LIFE POLICIES, SHARES, &c.

MESSRS. MARSH, MILNER, AND Co., are preparing their printed particulars for the forthcoming Monthly AUCTION, which is held the FIRST THURSDAY in every month. To insure due publicity, particulars of Properties intended to be included in the next sale should be forwarded, without delay, to the City Land and Reversion Offices, 54 Cannon Street, London.

LAND, Domains, Mountain Ranges, Woods, Forests, and Important Residential Estates. Messrs. MARSH, MILNER, and Co., Land Valuers and Timber Surveyors, have a number of WEALTHY BUYERS DESIROUS of INVESTING in AGRICULTURAL, SPORTING, and RESIDENTIAL ESTATES. OWNERS of marketable properties wishing to effect advantageous sales are therefore invited to forward plans and particulars, which, when received, will be judiciously placed before intending purchasers, publicity being carefully avoided, and written terms settled before any cost or liability is incurred. Address Messrs. Marsh, Milner, and Co., Land and Timber Surveyors, 54 Cannon-street, London, E.C.

MESSRS. MARSH, MILNER, AND Co.'s REGISTER of LANDED ESTATES, Town and Country Residences, and property of every description, is published Monthly, and may be obtained at the Auction, Land, and Estate Agency Offices, 54 Cannon-street, E.C., or will be forwarded by post on application.

MORTGAGES promptly NEGOTIATED upon Landed Estates, City Properties, and upon sound securities of all kinds. Messrs. MARSH, MILNER and Co., have at the present time access to large sums of Money ready to be immediately advanced upon approved securities. Apply at the City Land and Reversion Offices (Established 1842), 54 Cannon-street.

The Accountant.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

The Accountant is printed and published in time for Friday evening's mail; price 6d. per copy, or 28s. per annum (including postage), the reduced terms for payment in advance being: annual subscription 24s. (post free); half-yearly ditto, 13s. (post free). Cheques and Post-office orders to be made payable to Mr. Alfred W. Gee, 62 Gracechurch-street, E.C., to whom applications for advertisement space, and letters relating to the general business of the paper, should also be addressed. Literary communications should be directed to the Editor of the Accountant at the same address, and in order to ensure insertion in the current number, correspondents are respectfully requested to forward their copy as early in the week as possible.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The Proprietor desires to call the attention of Advertisers to the special advantages offered by the paper as an Advertising medium. Starting with a good guaranteed circulation, and with the entire concurrence and hearty support of the leading members of the profession, the Accountant has achieved a large measure of success in a wide field hitherto unoccupied by any professional organ. The Accountant thus secures to Advertisers an excellent circulation of an exclusive character; and is particularly valuable as a medium for the announcements of members of the profession, as to Estates and Declaration of Dividends, and the appointment of Trustees and Receivers; for Publishers, Printers, Law Stationers, Auctioneers, and Estate Agents; for the Advertisements of Insurance and Public Companies; and for Notices as to Investments, Vacant Partnerships, &c. Advertisements intended for insertion in the current number, should reach the office on Thursday; late announcements can, however, be received up to 12 o'clock (noon) on Friday.

N.B.—Copies may be obtained at Messrs. W. H. Smith and Sons, Strand, at their numerous Railway Bookstalls, and at the Shops of the leading City and West-End Newsvendors.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.

In consequence of numerous applications from subscribers, the proprietor has made arrangements for the supply of Cases for holding and preserving the Accountant, which may be obtained at the office on the following terms:—In green cloth (well got up), with elastics, and "The Accountant" in gold letters on front, 3s. each; same in leather, 4s. 6d. each. Subscribers' names in gold lettering, 1s. extra. Post Office Orders payable to Alfred W. Gee, 62 Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

The Accountant.
OCTOBER 9, 1875.

We are glad to see that the doctrine of the sanctity of marriage settlements is not of universal acceptance.

Digitized by Google

But we still adhere to our former opinion, that at present some amount of consideration ought to be attached to them, and in this respect we differ from our correspondent of last week, H. B., who holds that a settlement in the case of a trader ought to be prohibited altogether. At the same time, we would go further in one direction than he does, and make no distinction whatever between trader and non-trader in this respect; we would also make all settlements of furniture void, unless registered under the Bills of Sale Act. As the law at present stands, post-nuptial settlements of furniture require registration; and many a simple-minded husband who has, even with the most innocent motives, proposed to settle his "articles of domestic use and ornament" upon his wife, has been sadly shocked to find that such a praiseworthy token of confiding affection is summarily classed among bills of sale. But there appears no sound reason why ante-nuptial settlements should not also be registered. The object of registration is sufficiently apparent. It is to give notice to creditors, and all others whom it may concern, that certain property, which has hitherto been available towards payment of their claims, is about to be withdrawn from their control, and to put them on the alert to adopt such means in the future as they may deem most advantageous for their interests. But it is surely just as important to notify to the tradesmen of a district, that the costly furniture at a house they serve is not the property of their debtor, but belongs to his wife; especially as the ordinary form of a settlement of furniture, whether before or after marriage, is so framed as to give the most absolute powers of disposal to husband and wife, and requires the trustees to interfere only so as to defeat the just claims of creditors. In our experience the settlement question arises mainly in the case of non-traders, especially of settlements of furniture. It is not only commercial men who seek the protection of the Bankruptcy Laws. The fatal vice of gambling has been fast permeating all ranks of society. The younger man bets upon horses; the elder man speculates on the Stock Exchange, or invests far beyond his means in the shares of companies of doubtful solvency. There is scarcely a man who has ever had the command of a few hundreds of capital who has not at some time or other endeavoured to increase it tenfold by measuring his limited sources of intelligence, and his scanty stores of monetary lore, against the great moneyed capitalists who can make or unmake the fortunes of nine-tenths of the stockholders of the world. There is the vice of luxury, which leads people to live beyond their means, and then calmly attribute their failure to their insufficiency of income. And these are the people who calmly shelter themselves behind their marriage settlements. A man who honestly works for his living and fails from pure misfortune,—and, notwithstanding all that has been said and written on the subject, there are many of such cases,—has seldom resorted to a settlement. His capital is too valuable to be locked up in the hands of trustees. But a skilled conveyancer can draw a settlement, bristling with apparent restrictions, full of technicalities and apparently framed in a spirit of the utmost prudence, but which will, at the same time, allow the most entire freedom in the investment of the capital. Armed with such a deed, a man may speculate, may gamble, using for that purpose even a portion of the settled property, secure that at the very worst, failure will result to him in but a trifling diminution of his ordinary comfort.

We would, then, amend the law thus. We would abolish the distinction between a trader and non-trader in the first place; and we would not stop to consider the solvency of the debtor at the time of making the settlement, in declaring it absolutely void, unless it was made by deed duly registered. But we would treat every payment made under it up to the date of the Act of Bankruptcy as valid, and we would allow the judge to consider the claims of wife and children so far as to direct a certain portion to be handed over to them, or to allow the trustees of the settlement to prove for the full amount settled and receive their dividend with the other creditors. In this case, any subsequent bankruptcy would again diminish the sum. Such a course as this would be severe, but it would be extremely effectual in its operation on the luxury of the age. The wife's property we would certainly protect in the instance of a trader; though there might be cases in which, in the case of private individuals, some portion of it might be fairly made amenable to creditors' claims. To go as far as this would be to effect almost a revolution in society, and the change will probably be due to the involuntary action of that eccentric section of politicians which profess to seek the exclusive advantage of women. It will be a curious termination of their labours, if they succeed in destroying the peculiar privilege of their clients to enjoy their own, and their husband's property, "free from his debts, control and engagements."

Digitized by Google

We must say a few words, in conclusion, about the leading cases that were referred to in our previous article, and in the letter of H. B. last week. The case of Hardey v. Green, which we quoted then from memory, is sufficiently startling to deserve a fuller quotation, and we cite, therefore, the marginal note of the case given by Mr. Beavan in his report (vol. 12, p. 182). "Articles were executed previous to a marriage by which the husband and wife agreed that all property, estate and effects to which the husband or wife might thereafter become entitled, should be settled to such uses as the wife should appoint; and, in default, on trusts for the husband, wife, and children. At the time, neither husband nor wife had any property, the husband was insolvent, and soon after the marriage took the benefit of the Insolvent Act. Property subsequently descended on him. Held as against his assignee that it was bound by the articles." It is true that in the case of a trader, the trustee would be entitled, even under such a clause as this, to the after-acquired property, by virtue of the 91st section of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, which makes void "any settlement by a trader of any money or property wherein he had not at the time of his marriage any estate or interest, either vested or contingent;" and it was under this section that the case of re Clint, to which H. B. alludes, was decided. But in the case of a non-trader Hardey v. Green remains as a dangerous precedent, till it is finally overruled by some higher judicial authority than the Master of the Rolls. There is, however, one gleam of light of which trustees may be glad, and that is, that it is extremely probable that since 1869 any settlement made, whether in consideration of marriage or not, which assigns over all property, both present and future, would be, in itself, an act of bankruptcy under sec. 2 subsection 6 of the Act, and consequently void as against creditors. As far as we are aware, the point has not been actually decided by competent authority, but there can be but little doubt as to the correctness of this view. So that, to the caution to persons about to become bankrupt to take care, before they make a settlement of all they possess, to ascertain that they have sufficient power to obtain due obedience from the wives whom they literally endow with all their goods, must be added another, namely, to postpone their bankruptcy till six months after marriage, or to take care, by following the precedent of the merchant who, when pursued by wolves, saved himself by throwing out the various members of his household at judicious intervals, to leave out a few morsels of property for their creditors to fight over, and content themselves with preserving merely the greater portion of all they possess. But we are afraid that in too many instances the risk may be safely run, as an Act of Bankruptcy is of but little assistance to the creditors of a man who has learned as the first element of success to keep his own counsel.

There are few questions more distasteful to the legal mind than those which deal with points of practice, and especially those relating to the rules of the taxing masters. Those useful officers have a system of their own, embodied but tentatively in text-books, and profess an equal contempt for the opinions of counsel or the decision of judges as recorded in the multitudinous volumes of reports. It is, therefore, with some diffidence that we venture to pronounce an opinion on the two points raised last week by our correspondent "H. B." The first point is not very clearly stated, but we take it to refer, in effect, to the amount of stamp duty on the costs, whether it is to be calculated on the original or the taxed bill. If this is so, we should say that it ought to be assessed on the revised bill. The 189th rule provides that costs shall be taxed on production of an office copy of the order for taxation, and "the allocatur, being duly stamped, shall be signed and dated by the master or registrar taxing the costs." The term "allocatur" we understand to mean the certificate of approval, stating the total amount of costs allowed. Till the bill is taxed, it is merely tentative and inchoate, and cannot be used by the trustee as a voucher for money paid. To "attach an allocatur for the full amount" would be to pass a bill without any taxation at all. On the second point, we agree with "H. B." that bills of costs in liquidations ought to be taxed. The rules are express on the point. Rule 114 directs that "a trustee shall not be allowed in his accounts any sum paid by him to his attorney for his bill of costs, unless the same shall have been duly taxed." The 5th rule of 1871 directs that "all bills and charges of attorneys in matters of liquidation shall be taxed, and no payments in respect of such bills shall be allowed in the accounts of a trustee, without due proof of such taxation having been made." And the Act, in addition, contains a scale of costs to be allowed in matters of liquidation. It is true that the creditors may, in liquidation, audit the accounts as they think fit, and the rule must therefore be probably taken to mean, not only that no untaxed bills of costs be allowed, but that every taxed bill of costs shall be allowed, and the trustee protected by the certificate of the proper officer from vexatious objections to his accounts from men who are ignorant of the principles which govern the remuneration of solicitors. It may be more economical for a trustee to make a bargain with the solicitors, especially in small estates, to do the required work for a fixed sum, and it would be hard to say that this practice is wrong in liquidation. But then the trustee must be careful to get the consent of the creditors to this arrangement, or he may find this item disallowed, or its propriety questioned. We should say, therefore, that the proper course for a trustee acting on his own responsibility, would be to have all bills of costs duly taxed; but that he might, in his discretion, dispense with this ceremony, if he chose to run the risk incurred, or was confident of the support of the majority of the creditors.

Digitized by Google

Winding-up.—A petition to wind-up the Military and Naval Supply and Perfect Guarantee Company (Limited) has been presented to the Court of Chancery.

From the 1st of April to the 30th of September the payments into the Exchequer amounted to £34,648,879, as compared with £33,654,115 in the corresponding period of 1874. The payments were £37,926,519, against £36,847,274 in 1874. The balance in the Bank of England on the 30th of September was £1,076,318, and in the Bank of Ireland, £803,109.

The quarterly revenue returns lately issued are extremely satisfactory. The apparent net increase of revenue in the quarter is £400,000, and in the first half of the financial year which has now elapsed £995,000, the real increase, making certain "rectifications," being considerably greater. The increase in Excise and Customs is especially satisfactory, amounting in the former case to £309,000 for the quarter and £406,000 for the half-year, and in the latter to £181,000 for the quarter and £305,000 for the half-year. The remark is obvious that the quiet, steady industry of the country must be going on without a check for such results to be produced. The decline of certain parts of the foreign trade, the recent shocks to credit and dislocation of a few trades, are hardly to be traced when the general results on the welfare of the community are summed up in figures like the present. The return, however, shows the exchequer balance to be very low, and largely deficient to meet the charge on the Consolidated Fund for the ensuing quarter, thus confirming what has been surmised from the amount of the public deposits in the weekly Bank return, that the Government must borrow a large sum from the Bank—probably about £3,000,000—to pay the October dividends. The advance will, of course, only be temporary, but it does not seem good finance for a country like England, with a highly flourishing revenue, to be obliged to obtain short advances in this way from time to time.—Daily News.

Correspondence.

RECEIVERS' AND TRUSTES' CHARGES IN COMPOSITION CASES.

To the Editor of the Accountant.

Sir,—In reply to the query put by "Trustee" in your issue of the 25th ultimo, I beg to state, that creditors are quite competent to impose the conditions upon which they will accept a composition from their debtor; but if those conditions go beyond a payment of so much in the pound, it is necessary that the debtor and his sureties (if there are sureties) should in writing concur therein. Debtors are very often exceedingly fair spoken and lavish in their promises before carrying a composition, and proportionately ungrateful afterwards. The practice I have adopted from the first, has been to require the debtors (and other parties to the arrangement) to sign their concurrence in the terms of the resolution, or the resolutions themselves, and when that has been done, I have experienced no difficulty in settling.

Yours truly,
H. B.

London, October 1st, 1875.

To the Editor of the Accountant.

Sir,—I have read with considerable interest the correspondence in your paper as to the power of landlords to distrain after the filing of a liquidation or bankruptcy petition, but there is one point which does not appear to have been discussed, namely, the power of landlords to distrain for rent payable in advance, the distraint not being levied until after the petition was filed. In a case in which I was recently appointed trustee, the landlord distrained for £40 rent from June to Christmas next, and his authority for so distraining, was an agreement by the debtor to pay rent six months in advance. I shall be glad to learn through the medium of your columns if such distraint can be held good in a court of law.

Yours truly,
W. C. H.

London, October 1st, 1875.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

To the Editor of the Accountant.

Sir,—The balance sheet of this "bank" for the quarter ending June 30th, 1875, has only just come under my notice. Although I have had some experience as an accountant, I must say I have never seen under the heading of Assets such items as the following :—Interest paid to depositors, £246 5s. 2d.; discounts and interests, £383 2s. 6d.; advertisements, £922 4s. 9d.; printing, stationery, account books, &c., £266 5s.; rent of offices, salaries, postages, legal and incidental expenses, and remuneration of trustees, £996 13s.; Co-operative and Financial Review, £995 8s. 6d. Considering that the profit and loss account is annexed to the balance sheet, and that some of these items are therein placed at the debit, I, in my ignorance, should have supposed that a balance sheet setting forth the liabilities and assets would not have recapitulated items of profit and loss. It must be gratifying to the subscribers of "the Co-operative Credit Bank" to learn that the books are kept by a "well-known firm of accountants and auditors," and that "the above balance sheet is a true transcript of the books." Would it not, however, be as well if the firm of "accountants and auditors," for the future, either suppress the words "liabilities and assets," or at least so place their figures as to enable subscribers to see at a glance what the liabilities and assets really consist of? The securities are stated at £8,611, but there is no explanation as to what they are composed of, and how they are valued. I am not a subscriber to the "Co-operative Credit Bank." Do you know any body that is?

Digitized by Google

I am, Sir, yours obediently,

INCREDULOUS.

London, October 6th, 1875.

[In regard to the statements and question of our correspondent, we have made some inquiry, and understand that the system of accounting used by the Co-operative Credit Bank, as shown in the balance sheet, is the same as that adopted by leading London banks. It is scarcely likely that the auditors of the Co-operative Credit Bank would make public the particulars of the bank's investments, which would be tantamount to doing what our correspondent suggests. As to the final query of "Incredulous,"—we understand that there are many hundred subscribers to this bank.—ED. ACCOUNTANT.]

THE AUDIT OF MERCHANTS' ACCOUNTS.—A correspondent of a Liverpool paper writes as follows:—"I scarcely ever now take up a paper without finding one or more accounts of cases of embezzlement and defalcation; and frequently the amounts are large, and it is stated that the pilferings have been going on for a length of time. I cannot help thinking that many of these cases might have been entirely avoided, or at least effectually "nipped in the bud," if the employers had been in the habit of having their books audited by an accountant, say, quarterly or half-yearly, and the cash, bills, and other securities checked, to see if they corresponded with the balance shown by the cashier or book-keeper. There are numbers of merchants, provision dealers, brokers, &c., in this and other towns who have very good businesses, but never having been accustomed to book-keeping, know next to nothing about it, and leave that department entirely to some young man, probably with a salary of £100 a year, and take his word without any check, that such and such a statement, is what is shown by their books. The pilferings, at first small, gradually grow, and as the party in charge of the department sees that his employers cannot make out anything from the books themselves, he gives up the idea of repaying what he has abstracted, possibly because he does not now see any way of doing so, and goes on until his employers find out that there are hundreds, perhaps thousands, of pounds which they cannot lay their hands on. I consider it to be a duty of every master (to himself and his clerk) who cannot afford time to check his books himself to have them gone over from time to time by an auditor. It is not right to put such a temptation in the way of a young man who has probably nothing but his small salary to live upon. If accountants were employed more in this kind of work, clerks would generally contrive to have their cash, &c., right by the time the auditor was expected. Many people seem to think that there is no use in employing an accountant until they are in difficulties, but it is a great mistake. Accountants would much rather see people prospering than in difficulties."

BANKRUPTCY LAWS. No. 10.

TRUSTEE UNDER COMPOSITION.

Considerable misapprehension exists as to the status of a Trustee under composition. The expression is a wrong one, as is evidenced by the refusal of the Court to issue a certificate of appointment. The word "agent" would certainly convey a more correct idea of the duties to be performed. As a matter of fact, where no trustee is appointed, the debtor is bound to tender his composition as, and when due, to each individual creditor, and on his neglect to do so, the whole (or unliquidated balance) of the original debt revives; whereas in those cases where a "trustee" is by resolution appointed, he is selected by the creditors to act as their agent in the receipt and distribution of the dividends, and the debtor has but to settle the claims with the trustee, and hand over to him the means necessary to carry out the terms of the resolution come to. Where no provision is made for the remuneration of the "trustee," the debtor and his sureties concurring therein, the "trustee" would, we think, have an undoubted right to charge for his services as agent by distributing the dividends less the amount of his charges for so doing. Creditors, however, are competent to agree with the debtor as to the terms upon which they will release him, and if the debtor accepts those terms nobody is aggrieved. For the guidance of our readers, we submit a form of resolution which (subject to modification according to the circumstances of the case) will, we believe, prevent the occurrence of any misunderstanding.

1. That a composition of six shillings in the pound (free of all costs, charges, and expenses, including the charges of the trustee under this arrangement, which shall be borne and paid by the debtor as a first charge upon his assets) shall be accepted in satisfaction of the debts due to the creditors from the said Thomas Jones.

2. That such composition be payable as follows, viz.—Two shillings in the pound within one calendar month from the date of registration of these extraordinary resolutions; two shillings in the pound within two calendar months from the same date; and two shillings in the pound within four calendar months from the same date.

3. That such composition be secured in the following manner, viz.—The first instalment of two shillings in the pound by the promissory notes of the said Thomas Jones, and the second and third instalments of two shillings in the pound each by the joint and several promissory notes of the said Thomas Jones, of William Smith of——street, Southampton, in the county of Hants, ironmonger, and of Henry Jones, of 10——street, Clapham, in the county of Surrey, gentleman.

Digitized by Google

4. That———of———in the City of London, public accountant, be appointed trustee in the matter, to receive and distribute the aforesaid promissory notes, and that such promissory notes be receivable at his office.

We concur in the terms of aforesaid resolutions,

(Creditors' signatures.)

Thomas Jones, Debtor.

William Smith, } Sureties.
Henry Jones, }

The neglect to make some such provision will give rise to disputes when the debtor is disposed to fail in good faith.

H. B. [London.]

PROFITS FROM TRADES AND PROFESSIONS.—In 1842-43, the first year of the income-tax, the profits on trades and professions were estimated at £52,787,348, and in 1873-74 at £148,853,731, and this year, £2,112,563.

THE COUNTY COURTS ACT, 1875.—A barrister writes as follows:—"Upon the 2nd day of November next, the above Statute, 38 and 39 Vict., cap. 50, which contains some very useful provisions, comes into operation. Section 4, however, as it now stands, seems to be so defective as to be of little or no practical utility until it has been amended by striking out the words 'on an ex parte application.' As it now stands—'A Judge of County Courts shall, whether within the district of any of his courts or not, have jurisdiction to make any order, or exercise on ex parte application any authority or jurisdiction in any action or proceeding pending in any of the Courts of which he is Judge, which if the same related to an action or proceeding pending in one of Her Majesty's Superior Courts might be given, made, or exercised by a Judge of such last-mentioned Courts in Chambers, and, with the consent of both parties to an action or proceeding, to hear and decide any matter at any place, either within or without any such district.' By the above enactment, except by consent, the power of the County Court Judges to exercise in relation to actions and proceedings pending in their Courts the authority and jurisdiction of a 'Judge at Chambers,' with regard to actions and proceedings pending in one of the Superior Courts—which is, I have reason to believe, what was intended to be the result of this new provision—is confined to such authority and jurisdiction as may be exercised by a Judge at Chambers on an ex parte application, and this, as will be seen, by reference to Chitty's 'Archibold's Practice,' 11th edition, p. 1,588, is extremely limited and of little or no general value in County Court practice; it is as follows:—'There are some cases, however, where a Judge's order may be obtained on an ex parte application. For instance, an order that the defendant may be held to bail, that plaintiff may sue in formâ pauperis, and to compel the attendance of a witness before an arbitrator, may be thus obtained. If a party obtain an order ex parte without summons, where the opposite party ought to have had an opportunity of showing cause, the order will be rescinded on application to the Court, and in some cases might, perhaps, be treated as a nullity.' It can scarcely be intended that all interlocutory orders of whatever nature which can now be made by a Judge at Chambers are to be made by County Court Judges in proceedings before them, on an ex-parte application, as this would be investing the latter with powers greater than those exerciseable by the Judges of the Superior Courts, besides often operating injuriously to the party to the action or proceeding in whose absence such orders were obtained."

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY.

October 1.

(Before Mr. Registrar BROUGHAM.)

IN RE ALEXANDER, PEARSE, AND COLLIE.—This was a first meeting for the proof of debt and choice of trustee to the estate. The bankrupts, Nathaniel Alexander, Brise Hugh Pearse, and Alexander Collie, were East India agents and merchants, carrying on business at 23 Great Winchester-street, under the firm of N. Alexander, Son, and Co., and were adjudicated on the petition of the London and Westminster Bank, who are unsecured creditors to the extent of £50,000 and upwards. One of the partners, Alexander Collie, was the senior partner in the firm of Alexander Collie and Co., through the stoppage of which firm the difficulties of the bankrupts were mainly brought about. Debts to the amount of £147,605 were tendered and proved, and upon the nomination of the London and Westminster Bank Mr. Harding (Harding, Whinney, and Co., accountants, 8 Old Jewry) was chosen trustee, with a committee of inspection. No statement of affairs was produced. Messrs. Travers, Smith, and Co. are the solicitors to the proceedings.

IN RE ALEXANDER LESLIE.—This was a bankruptcy arising out of that of Messrs. Collie. The debtor was described as of 32 St. Mary-axe, East India agent, trading under the firm of Leslie, Rivington, and Co. A preliminary statement of affairs returned liabilities of £46,800, stated to be in respect of the bankrupt's acceptances to the draughts of Alexander Collie and Co., discounted by that firm, and of which they had the proceeds, for purchases in cotton and grey shirtings on joint account; other debts, £321. The assets are thus given:—Book debts estimated to produce £334; cash in hand, 16s. 11d.; and office furniture, £20. It appeared that a petition for liquidation was presented in the first instance, but the proceedings under it fell to the ground, and an adjudication of bankruptcy was pronounced. At a first meeting now held debts were proved, and Mr. Hurlbatt, accountant, 8 Old Jewry, was appointed trustee, to act with a committee of inspection.

October 2.

(Before Mr. Registrar BROUGHAM.)

IN RE G. W. K. MEW.—The debtor, described as of Water-lane and Tudor-street, Blackfriars, wine merchant, trading in partnership with J. G. P. Brotheridge, an infant, recently presented a petition for liquidation, and the court last week appointed a receiver, and granted an interim order staying further proceedings at the suit of a judgment creditor. Mr. R. Griffiths, on behalf of the receiver and debtor, now applied for the continuance of the injunction. Mr. Keighley, in opposing the application, pointed out that the judgment had been recovered against the debtor jointly with Brotheridge, who was not before the Court. The Registrar, without at present deciding any question as to the rights of the parties, held that the injunction must be continued until after the meeting of creditors. Order accordingly.

October 6.

(Before Mr. Registrar SPRING-RICE.)

IN RE FREETH AND WHITLING.—This was an application to register a liquidation resolution, come to by the creditors of these debtors, who are iron manufacturers, carrying on business at 60 Gracechurch-street, the Phœnix Iron Works, Millwall, and the West Drayton Iron Works, West Drayton. The failure took place early in September, and the statement since filed shows debts £30,824, against assets £10,316. Registration was directed by his Honour. The estate will be liquidated by arrangement, Mr. R. A. M'Lean being trustee, with a committee of inspection. Messrs. Linklaters and Co. are the solicitors to the proceedings.

Digitized by Google

IN RE E. G. PHILLIPS.—Registration of the resolution come to by the creditors was also directed in this case. The debtor, who is described as a provision merchant, of 8 London-street, and Staines, failed in August last, with debts to the amount of £38,000 odd, of which £20,947 is fully secured, and assets £11,968 5s. 4d. The estate will be liquidated by arrangement with Mr. John Young (Turquand, Youngs, and Co.) as trustee, and a committee of inspection.

October 7.

(Before Mr. REGISTRAR BROUGHAM, sitting as Chief Judge.)

IN RE PHILLIPS AND PHILLIPS.—The debtors, Messrs. Octavius and Maximilian Phillips, colonial brokers, carrying on business in Great Tower-street, have filed a petition for liquidation. Their liabilities are returned at £45,600, of which £41,800 appears to be due to the holders of the acceptances of the debtors to the draughts of Messrs. Shand and Co., of Rood-lane, given against security, with property, of which the value is not yet ascertained. Mr. Baker, for the debtors, and with the concurrence of some of the creditors, asked that Mr. John Weiss, accountant (Turquand, Young, and Co.), should be appointed receiver. His Honour granted the application.

IN RE R. C. POOLE.—This was another petition for liquidation, the debtor being described as of Bow-lane and West-street, Southwark, wholesale mantle manufacturer, and late proprietor of the Royal Surrey Gardens, against debts of £24,000; the assets are returned £8,000. Mr. Philip, for the debtor and three creditors, asked that a receiver and manager should be appointed to continue the business until after the first meeting of creditors. Mr. E. C. Willis, for a large body of creditors, objected to the nominee of the debtor, and asked that another appointment should be made. His Honour thought when a contest arose, the Court must have regard to the wishes of the creditors, and appointed Mr. J. F. Lovering to act as receiver and manager.

MANSION HOUSE POLICE COURT.

October 6.

EMBEZZLEMENT BY A BANK CLERK.—Mr. Thomas Hughes, 35 years of age, a clerk in the Bank of England, was brought before Mr. Alderman Owden upon a warrant, in custody of Detective Serjeant Webb, charged with embezzlement. Mr. W. D. Freshfield, solicitor to the Bank, appeared for the prosecution; Mr. Louis Lewis, solicitor, for the defence.—Mr. Windsor Ansted, a clerk in the intellers' office at the Bank, said he knew the prisoner, who was the third clerk in that department. On the 28th of September he paid the prisoner £300 in silver, and gave it him in three bags of £100 each. It was money which had been received from the London Joint-stock Bank. The prisoner signed a receipt for the money. The prisoner also received on that day £26 from Messrs. C. Mathew and Son, £27 from Messrs. Walter and Son, and £50 from Mr. T. Wylde, who were customers of the Bank of England. He likewise debited himself with £200, being money obtained by him from the treasury of the Bank. These were "cross bags," made up of various denominations of silver and gold coins. These sums together made up £603. In the ordinary course the bags would go into the Bank treasury in the evening, each bag being labelled and tied up by the prisoner. They would then be weighed by another clerk and a porter. On the 29th of September the prisoner had charge of the "blue book," and had to give out money to the different officers who required it, and count money received from bankers. On that day he received £200 from Glyn's, and £200 from the London and Westminster Bank. He also drew £300 from the treasury; that made a total of £700, for which he would have to account. In the evening he handed over bags appearing to contain that sum. — Mr. Herbert Walter Tilley, another clerk in the same office, said he remembered the 28th of September, when he received from the prisoner six bags, purporting to contain £600 in silver, and deposited them in the treasury; they were locked up in the presence of a cashier and porter.—Mr. Frederick Griffiths, also an in-telling clerk, proved that on the 29th of September, he received from the prisoner seven bags, purporting to contain £700 in silver, and deposited them in the treasury.—Other evidence was given to the effect that on the bags in question being subsequently counted there was a deficiency in all of £65 17s. 6d. The prisoner admitted that he had used the money to pay a lawyer's bill, and that he had intended to return it —Mr. Alderman Owden remanded the prisoner for the completion of the depositions. On the following day the prisoner, who reserved his defence, was committed for trial, with liberty in the mean time to give bail in two sureties, for his appearance at the Central Criminal Court, in £100 each.

LEEDS COUNTY COURT.

October 7.

EX-PARTE HOPKINSON; RE JOHN HALLIDAY, OF WHARFDALE MOUNT, BEN RHYDDING.—In this case, in which Mr. Gane, barrister, appeared for the trustee (Mr. Beswick), and Mr. West, barrister, for Messrs. Hopkinson, Brothers and Co., pianoforte dealers, his Honour (Mr. Daniel, Q.C.) delivered judgment. He said: In the month of July, 1874, the bankrupt, John Halliday, hired a pianoforte from Messrs. Hopkinson, Brothers and Co., upon the terms of an agreement to the effect that the piano was ultimately to belong to the bankrupt upon the sum of £37 4s. being paid by him in instalments. It was agreed that, in case of default in the punctual payment of any instalment, the instalments previously paid should be forfeited to Messrs. Hopkinson, who should thereupon be entitled to resume possession of the instrument, the understanding being that until the full payment of £37 4s., the pianoforte remained the absolute property of Messrs. Hopkinson. In pursuance of the agreement a pianoforte was delivered to the said John Halliday, but he had paid no instalment. He was adjudicated a bankrupt, and the pianoforte was taken possession of by Mr. S. J. Beswick, trustee of the estate, who now held the same. The question for the opinion of the court was—Is the trustee entitled to hold the pianoforte under the circumstances aforesaid, as being in the order and disposition of the bankrupt, or on the ground that the bankrupt was the reputed owner thereof; or, assuming (as is admitted) that there is a valid custom for the hiring of pianofortes, were Messrs. Hopkinson entitled to it? His answer to the question submitted to him was that the right of the trustee to the piano prevailed over that of Messrs. Hopkinson, and that they were only entitled to prove as creditors upon the estate for £37 4s., the price of the piano; and, unless some arrangement to the contrary had been made, Messrs. Hopkinson must pay the trustee the cost of this proceeding—to be taxed by the registrar.

THE NEW LAW SITTINGS.—Under the Supreme Court of Judicature Acts the Michaelmas sittings will commence on the 2nd proximo and terminate on the 21st of December. The Christmas vacation will commence on the 24th of December and terminate on the 6th of January—" The days of the commencement and termination of each sitting and vacation shall be included in such sitting and vacation."

Digitized by Google

CREDITORS' MEETINGS.

BURY, LEECH AND CO.—A meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Bury, Leech, and Co., Australian merchants, was held on the 30th September, at the offices of Messrs. Harding, Whinney, and Co., by whom a statement of affairs was submitted, showing creditors expected to rank against the estate £35,102, with assets amounting to £16,157, a considerable portion of which is in Australia. The creditors agreed to accept a composition of 7s. 6d. in the pound.

J. KAYE (HUDDERSFIELD).—The first meeting of the creditors of John Kaye, rope and twine maker, Cross Church-street, and Alfred-street, Huddersfield, was held on the 4th inst., at the offices of Messrs. Learoyd, Learoyd, and Morrison, solicitors, Huddersfield. Mr. T. Westerby, accountant, the receiver, read a statement of the accounts which showed that the liabilities amounted to £6,184 17s. 1d., made up as follows:—Unsecured creditors, £3,436 4s. 10d,; balance due to creditors partly secured, after deducting value of security held by them, £1,806 0s. 11d.; liability on bills discounted by the debtor, £942 12s. 2d. To meet the liabilities, the assets, consisting of stock in trade, book debts, and furniture amounted to £1,703, and the debtor offered a composition of 5s. in the pound, payable in equal instalments, at two, four, and six months, the last instalment to be guaranteed. It was unanimously accepted, and Mr. Westerby was appointed trustee for the purpose of carrying out the compositional arrangement. Messrs. Learoyd, Learoyd, and Morrison were appointed to register the resolutions.

C. F. AVEY (HOLTON).—A meeting of the creditors herein took place on Monday, the 4th inst., at the rooms of the London Warehousemen's Association. The claims of secured creditors amounted to £500, and unsecured £2,813 7s. 3d.; as against assets of £2,661 17s. 11d. It was decided to liquidate the estate by arrangement, and Mr. W. L. Clifton Browne (C. Browne, Stanley and Co., public accountants, 25 Old Jewry, E.C.) was appointed trustee, with a committee of inspection.

W. EVERINGHAM (BIRKENHEAD).—At the statutory meeting of the creditors in the matter of William Everingham, of 44 Watson-street, Birkenhead, in the county of Chester, general draper, held at the offices of Messrs. Quelch and Greenaway, solicitors, Dale-street, Liverpool, on the 5th inst., liquidation was unanimously resolved upon, and Mr. T. Theodore Rogers, accountant, 16 Lord-street, Liverpool, was appointed trustee.

J. MILLS (BECCLES).—A meeting of the creditors of James Mills, of Worlingham, near Beccles, wheelwright, was held at the White Lion hotel, Beccles, on Saturday, October 2nd, when it was resolved to liquidate the estate by arrangement, Mr. Lovewell Blake, of Hall Quay-chambers, Great Yarmouth, public accountant, being appointed trustee with a committee of inspection. Mr. H. K. Moseley is solicitor in the proceedings.

CROWTHER & GLEDHILL (HALIFAX).—The first meeting of the creditors in this bankruptcy was held at the Halifax County Court on Monday last. Mr. C. T. Rhodes produced the statement of affairs, which he had prepared by special order of the court, and which showed nearly 20s. in the pound on the joint estate. Both assets and liabilities were only small. During the meeting complaint was made that Messrs. Foster, Roberts and Co., accountants, had written letters to the creditors containing statements which were untrue, and asking for proofs and proxies to enable them to have the "management of the estate," which, after hearing an explanation from Mr. Foster, the deputy registrar (Mr. A. W. Alexander) characterised as "a very improper proceeding;" and from the wording of the letters, "very much like a contempt of court." Mr. C. H. Leeming, solicitor, on behalf of Mr. Boocock, appeared for the petitioning creditor, and Mr. Garsed, from Mr. Jubbs, for the bankrupt Crowther.

THE PHŒNIX BESSEMER COMPANY.—A special meeting of the shareholders in the Phœnix Bessemer Company Limited was held at Sheffield on the 5th of October, to decide what should be done with the concern. When the company found themselves in difficulties, they agreed to offer the creditors a composition of 12s. in the pound. As less than £50,000 preference stock was subscribed, they were obliged to reduce the offer to 10s. in the pound, but that sum the creditors declined to accept. The shareholders were very anxious that the works should not pass out of their hands, and they now authorised the committee to make the unsecured creditors an offer of 12s. 6d. in the pound.

W. C. GREEN (UPPER NORWOOD).—An adjourned meeting was held at the offices of Messrs. Barrett and Patey, 90 London-wall, on the 5th inst. The statement of affairs showed unsecured creditors to the amount of £10,785 7s. 10d., and assets consisting principally of surplus from properties in the hands of secured creditors. The meeting was further adjourned to the 1st of November next, for the purpose of ascertaining the value of such assets, and with a view to accepting a composition.

G. E. SWIFT (SHEFFIELD).—A meeting of the creditors of Mr. G. E. Swift, steel merchant, of Sheffield, was held on the 6th instant, at the offices of Mr. Bennett, accountant. A report was presented showing liabilities amounting to £5,173 7s., and assets to £697. Liquidation by arrangement was resolved on.

W. PROCTER (MANCHESTER).—A first statutory meeting of the creditors of Mr. William Procter, of Clifton, and of No. 1 Cannon-street, Manchester, estate agent and farmer, was held on the 6th instant, at the offices of Mr. J. Best, solicitor, 64 Lower King-street, in this city. The statement of affairs read by Mr. Best disclosed liabilities £2,635, and assets estimated at about £200. Resolutions were passed to liquidate the debtor's affairs by arrangement, and granting his discharge, Mr. S. R. Freeman being appointed trustee, and Mr. Best, solicitor, to register the resolutions.

G. BURGESS & CO. (DUNDEE).—A meeting of the creditors of George Burgess and Co., of New York and Dundee, was held in Dundee on Tuesday last, when an offer of 10s. in the pound was submitted by the bankrupts. Some of the creditors declined to entertain the proposal until they had tried the legal question affecting the sale of their goods by the bankrupts shortly before stoppage. After an adjournment, the other creditors agreed to accept the offer made, subject to certain conditions, and provided that, should the estate realise more favourably, the dividend should be augmented accordingly.

FAILURES.

ENGLAND.—A petition was filed in the Sheffield Bankruptcy Court, on the 4th instant, for the liquidation of the affairs of Magnus Sanderson, brass founder, whose liabilities are £1,200. A petition was also filed for the liquidation of the affairs of Alfred Pearson, provision dealer, Sheffield, with liabilities estimated at £1,100.—A petition for liquidation has been filed in the Manchester County Court by George Frederick Heywood and John Lymer, both of 25 Piccadilly, Manchester, importers of ribbons and silk merchants, trading under the style or firm of "Heywood, Lymer, and Co." The liabilities are £22,000. —A petition has been filed in the Dewsbury County Court, by Messrs. B. Chadwick and Sons, on behalf of Mr. Matthew Johnson, woollen manufacturer and merchant, of the Scarborough Mills, Saville Town, whose liabilities are estimated at over £3,000.

SCOTLAND.—The suspension is announced of Messrs. Green Brothers, worsted spinners, Kildwick, with £13,000 liabilities, and of Messrs. P. and J. Brown, stuff manufacturers, of the same place, whose liabilities are estimated at £5,000.—The suspension of Messrs. Brown, Stevens, and Williamson, sugar merchants, Glasgow, is announced. Their liabilities are stated to be of a considerable amount, and several of the sugar refiners in Greenock are involved.

Digitized by Google

AMERICA.—Advices to hand from America state that Mr. B. H. Murphy, pork packer, Chicago, had gone into bankruptcy, liabilities £60,000.—The banking house of O. M. Tyler and Co., of Milwaukee, Wis., had made an assignment. The creditors of Messrs. Lee, Shephard, and Dillingham, publishers, New York, had accepted 70 cents on the dollar, payable in six, twelve, and eighteen months; they were to resume business in a few days.—The liabilities of Union, Adams, and Co., New York, are £37,000.—The failure of Messrs. Drake and Colby, produce commission merchants, 66 Pearl-street, New York, had created much interest; heavy speculations with shrinkage in values said to be the cause of their stoppage.—Messrs. W. L. Holcomb and Co., flour merchants, had also suspended; liabilities £5,000. Messrs. Foster Brothers, carpet dealers, Fulton-street, New York, had filed a petition in bankruptcy.—Messrs. Anderson Brothers, flour merchants, Brooklyn, failed; liabilities £5,000.—Messrs. Taylor and Sons, brewers in Albany, had also suspended.—Messrs. Carr and Andrew J. Cunningham, importers, of 69 Duane-street, New York, as also Mr. William C. Duryea, had made assignments, the latter with liabilities of £7,000.—Messrs. Himsicker Brothers, lumber dealers, at Germantown Railroad Junction, had failed; liabilities £22,000.—The following failures had transpired at Boston:—Alexander Pope and Son; liabilities, £12,000.—W. H. Phipps and Co., wholesale dealers in boots and shoes; liabilities estimated at from £40,000 to £60,000.—Messrs. Summerfield and White, wholesale clothiers, liabilities £6,000. —Messrs. J. D. Evans and Co., produce dealers; liabilities £5,000.—Messrs. C. E. Raddin and Co., wholesale dealers in boots and shoes.—Bernard Baer, in the tobacco leaf trade; liabilities £5,000.

The National Zeitung states that the firm of Hahn and Marburg, silk mercers, of Vienna, has suspended payment, with liabilities amounting to £60,000 or £70,000.

In our advertising columns it will be seen that Mr. Ferdinand Wolfskehl, of Frankfort-am-Main, announces the drawing of the following loans on the 1st instant, at Vienna:—The 70th drawing of the "Imperial Austrian" 1858 Loan, when the bonus of £4,000 was drawn by Debenture, series 1006, No. 78. The lucky possessor resides in London, and purchased the debenture a short time back of Mr. Ferdinand Wolfskehl. The 42nd drawing of the Imperial Austrian 4 per cent. 1854 Loan, and the 9th drawing of the Raab Graz 4 per cent. 1871 Loan, took place on the same date. Mr. Ferdinand Wolfskehl announces that full particulars can be had on application to his brothers, Messrs. Wolfskehl, of Lord-street, Liverpool, who will also cash or exchange them.

THE LOW RATE OF MONEY.—First, the principal cause of the low rate of money is our present position in the commercial cycle. It has sometimes been said that there are "five lean years in the Money Market, and five fat years," and though, of course, this is not the complete truth, yet there is much truth in it. There is a period of ascending price when almost every one is prosperous, followed by a period of descending price when almost every one is threatened. Towards the end of the descending period there has in this country generally been a panic. The banking reserve of the country has been suddenly called upon, and has been found unequal to meet the demands upon it. In consequence, credit has completely collapsed, and the bad effects of long falling price have been intensified and prolonged. This time, owing mainly to the improved policy of the Bank of England, that danger has been avoided. Whether other bankers showed any especial caution may be doubted; it is certain that several important banks showed the reverse of caution. But, happily, when the time of trial came the Bank of England was found with a reserve far greater than at any previous period, and therefore we escaped a panic. But we are, nevertheless, suffering from the effects of long descending price—many failures, great loss of credit, and indisposition to engage in new business, an entire absence of the sort of business which we sometimes call speculative and sometimes enterprising, and a consequent scarcity of "bills," which are the product of such business. This is the main cause of our present situation, the others are only minor and co-operative. Secondly, for a long time past the growth of first-class securities has hardly kept pace with that of the money which was to be invested in them. "Banking money" will not go in large quantities out of this country; some little of it may be invested in the best colonial securities, or in the American funded loans. But, upon the whole, we adhere to this country, because it is not certain that any foreign investments can be converted, at the day of need, readily in large quantities, and without excessive loss. The same considerations have prevented its being invested in many home securities. "Banking money" was and is greatly lent to speculators in ordinary railway shares, but it is little used to buy railway shares. Sufficient confidence is not felt in these great concerns; their name is so tainted by long adversity that their true merits are hardly seen. We confess we think it possible that a time may come when "banking money" may be put safely into ordinary railway shares. But as yet that time has not arrived. Such money is confined, as far as railways are concerned, to debenture and the best preference stocks. The borrowings of the Indian Government have been small of late years, and our own Government is repaying debt. Other new investments for such money are rare. The "Metropolitan stock" of the Board of Works is about the only one of a large amount which occurs to us. In consequence, the price of such securities has been rising for some years past; and although this was not so much felt while trade was brisk, and the rate of discount high in Lombard-street, it is of cardinal importance now, when the rate is low and that trade sluggish. Thirdly, the amount of "speculative" investments brought to the market has been less for the last few months than for a long time past. The effect of the panic of 1866, and specially of the failure of Overend, Gurney, and Co. (Limited), its most conspicuous event, was to create and diffuse very widely a disgust of limited companies. From these people turned to foreign stocks. But the effect of recent collapses and discussions has been that all but the best foreign Governments have now a difficulty in borrowing here. Not only South American Republics, which had no revenue, and never ought to have borrowed 6d., but States like Turkey and Egypt, which really have large resources, and which might have been in good credit if they had not misused the credit founded on them, cannot now borrow any thing. The whole "foreign want," so to speak, for money has for the moment stopped, for first-class States are not just now borrowing. And though it is quite true that what we call "banking money" would not have gone into such securities if they had been offered, yet their non-existence diminishes its value, because it brings into incessant competition with it other money which those investments would have occupied and removed. Fourthly, for the moment the machinery of credit in Lombard-street is somewhat impaired. The large and unlooked-for losses by bills of exchange have rendered the largest banks very cautious what they do. They compete with the best bill-brokers less than they did, and (having found the danger of inferior ones) they make use of the best more. And this tends to fill the hands of those brokers with money, and to lower the rate which they will give for it. It is to the remarkable concurrence of these causes, of unequal, although all of considerable, importance, that we must attribute the unprecedented difficulties which bankers experience in employing their funds suitably at present.—Economist.

Digitized by Google

REGISTRATION OF BILLS OF EXCHANGE.

"A Collie Victim" writes as follows to the Times:—

"The deserved prominence you gave to a letter from a 'Bank Manager' a short time since, and the vast importance conveyed in the idea of registering bills of exchange as suggested by him, ought to have produced before this some attention from finance authorities. The registration of bills of exchange would certainly prevent great and serious frauds, as no firm or individual could then accumulate paper credit to any serious amount without its being known. Bills of exchange are, no doubt, a great and necessary convenience to the commerce of the world, but in their present form they offer too much facility to weak and risky trading, from their vague character. For instance, A buys of B goods, for which B draws on A for the amount at, say, six months, 'for value received.' Now, the point I wish to raise is this, that all bills of exchange should upon the face of them show the particular transaction to which they refer, and against which they are drawn, so that in the event of any suspicion of fraud or difficulty, the particular transaction referred to may be traced. Bills should therefore be drawn 'for value received in goods as per statement of — date.' This form of wording would fix the bills and the transactions belonging to them together definitely. It may be remembered that some of the bills of Messrs. Collie alluded in rather a vague, misleading way to particular goods, but that reference is now known from its vagueness to have been open to legal dispute. If the goods supposed to exist had been regularly invoiced, and the bills drawn against the amounts of the dated invoices, disputes could not arise in that direction, and this particular fraud could not have gone on so long without being discovered. Bills drawn against credit only should be drawn 'for value received in cash,' so that credit bills and trade bills would be distinct. No merchants doing good and substantial business would object to their bills showing the particular transactions or business against which they were drawn. Risky over-traders may object, and probably would do so with all the assurance of injured innocence, but these are the very men who do all the mischief by speculating and underselling every body. They are a class of traders bankers and discount houses should not encourage, because in the long-run they must, like the Collies, find it impossible to continue their operations, and in their certain fall would ruin hosts of innocent persons. I, therefore, hold, Sir, that the proper way to remedy this great evil of fraudulent trading would be to register bills of exchange, as suggested by your correspondent, and to see that such bills recorded the business they were drawn against. It has been said that merchants and bankers would both object to their operations being known to their competitors. This is no argument against the proposed registration. If merchants want the accommodation of discount, they are not in a position to object to registration, and if it is so necessary that their transactions should be only known to themselves, then they should be able to hold their paper until it is matured, and thus retain their own secret. The periodical losses sustained both by private and public banks in consequence of the bills drawn 'for value received' too frequently representing nothing, are a sufficient reason for their seeking more definite and collective information before they lend their cash, or the cash of their shareholders, and that information can only be had by their agreeing to compare notes through the agency of a registration office."

"DESCRIBED AS AN ACCOUNTANT."—At the Worship-street police court on Monday, James Treherne, who according to the daily papers was "described as an accountant," was charged with stealing from the person of William Gardner a silver watch, value £4. The prosecutor, a printer, of Huntingdon-street, Hoxton, said he was in a crowd in Hoxton-street and felt a hand fumbling in front of him, but until a girl named Mason told him that his watch was gone he did not notice any thing. The girl pointed out the prisoner as being the thief, and the prosecutor seized him, but the watch was not recovered. The prisoner, who was well known to the police, and had been previously convicted for a similar offence, was committed for trial.

THE HAMBURG BANK.—An event of some historical interest has just taken place in Germany in connexion with the coinage reforms. This is the absorption in the Imperial Bank of Germany of the Hamburg Giro Bank, the reference to whose course of business, as well as that of the Bank of Amsterdam, forms so interesting a chapter in Adam Smith's "Wealth of Nations." The Hamburg "valuation," which the bank established, has already been abolished, Hamburg having adopted the new Imperial marks as the standard for a long time past; but now the bank itself becomes a branch of the Imperial Bank of Germany. The officers of the old bank pass over into the service of the Imperial Bank. The bank, it is stated, was established in 1619, and now disappears from the scene, to use the language of the Berlin Börsen Zeitung in recording the fact, "after 257 years of fruitful activity."—Economist.

CHARGE OF FRAUDULENT BANKRUPTCY.—At the Mansion House on Monday, Mr. John Westwood, a commission merchant, lately trading at 3 Mincing-lane, City, attended upon an adjourned summons, charging him, under the 11th section of the Debtors' Act, 1869, with having within four months next before the presentation of a bankruptcy petition against him (he then being a trader), pawned, pledged, and disposed of, otherwise than in the ordinary way of his trade, 20 chests of tea, of the value of £100 10s. 4d., which he had obtained on credit from Mr. Frederick G. B. Wells, a tea-dealer in Seething-lane, City, and had not paid for. Mr. Besley was counsel for the prosecution; Mr. Merriman, solicitor, appeared for the defence. The facts of the case were undisputed. A traveller of the prosecutor called upon the defendant in July last for an order, and, after some discussion as to terms, the defendant agreed to purchase the tea in question at two months' credit. He accepted a bill for the amount on the 7th of July, which, in the ordinary course, became due on the 10th of September. Meanwhile the defendant had become bankrupt, and the acceptance was dishonoured. It was then found that the tea warrants, or some of them, had been given to Messrs. Martin and Co., bankers, in Lombard-street, of whom the defendant had been a customer, as security for an advance. These proceedings were subsequently instituted. Mr. Merriman, for the defence, contended that the defendant had committed no offence within the meaning of the statute, for otherwise every man who applied to his bankers for a temporary advance upon security, as even the largest and most respectable firms often had occasion to do, would be made amenable to the criminal law. Eliminating a few millionaires, no merchant in the city of London would stand that test. He argued, moreover, that such dealings on the part of a merchant like the defendant, he not being a mere retail tradesman, were clearly in the ordinary way of his trade. It was a very common thing indeed for traders in the City to obtain temporary advances on bills of lading, dock warrants, and other securities. Sir Benjamin Phillips.—Not within a few hours of their bankruptcy. Mr. Merriman, continuing, said the defendant did not stop payment until a month after the advance was made. He concluded by asserting that the defendant's dealings were of the most bonâ fide character, that he had not the remotest intention to defraud, and that no jury would venture to convict on the shadow of a case presented them. Sir Benjamin Phillips said the intent to defraud was purely a question for a jury to decide, and he must, therefore, commit the defendant for trial at the next Sessions of the Central Criminal Court. Meanwhile he admitted him to bail, as before, in his own recognisances in £200 and two sureties in £100 each. Bail was at once forthcoming.

Digitized by Google

THE ALLEGED FRAUD ON STOCKBROKERS.

At Guildhall, on the 7th inst., Mr. Charles F. Mavrocordato, a merchant, formerly of 108 Bishopsgate-street Within, was charged, on remand, before Aldermen Ellis and Sir Robert W. Carden, with fraudulently obtaining by false pretences certain foreign securities of the nominal value of £25,000, with intent to defraud certain stockbrokers. Mr. George Lewis, jun., prosecuted; Mr. Blanchard Wontner appeared for the prisoner, and Mr. Mullens watched the case on behalf of a stockbroker who was a creditor. At the previous hearing, as reported in the Accountant of the 2nd inst., it was proved that Mr. Mavrocordato had been a merchant in the city for several years and stood in very high credit. He had been in the habit of dealing in different stocks on the Stock-Exchange, and was well known to the brokers. Previous to the 29th ult. he gave orders to various brokers to buy for him Turkish, Spanish, and Egyptian bonds, to the amount of £24,000 nominal value, but the cash value of which was £7,540. They were all to be delivered on the 29th ult., the settling day. They were delivered, and the prisoner gave checks on the Imperial Bank (Limited) for the respective amounts, but when the checks were presented at the clearing-house they were all dishonoured, there being only about £60 in the bank to his credit. The police were communicated with, and Detective Potts apprehended him at the Waterloo terminus of the South-Western Railway in a first-class carriage, about to start for Southampton. He had with him a black portmanteau and black bag, and on those being searched, nearly the whole of the bonds were discovered. In lieu of those missing were others, for which, it had been ascertained, he had exchanged them. Mr. Charles David Moss, of 13 Copthall-court, stockbroker, said that by the prisoner's orders, he, on September 28th, purchased £15,300 Spanish stock for delivery on the 29th. The price was £2,868 15s., and for that amount the prisoner offered his check, but he declined to take it, and required Bank notes for it. He then received orders from Mr. Mavrocordato to sell £4,000 Egyptian, 1873, stock, for delivery on the 29th; he did so, the price of which was £2,980. On the 29th he received from the prisoner the Egyptian stock and handed him over the Spanish stock, and on the transaction there was a balance owing to the prisoner of £101 17s. 6d., for which a check was drawn on the Alliance Bank and paid to him. The Spanish stock produced was that which he delivered to the prisoner. Mr. Lodovic Messel, stockbroker, of 34 Throgmorton-street, said that he bought £5,000 Turks for the prisoner, and had them delivered to him, and in return received a check on the Imperial Bank, drawn by the prisoner, for £1,949 19s. 6d., which included £200 differences that the prisoner owed him. He carried over £10,000 other stock which he had open for the prisoner, who was now indebted to witness £345, irrespective of the check. Levi Cohen, stockbroker, Throgmorton-street, said the prisoner purchased of him £6,000 Egyptian stock for delivery on the 29th. He delivered by his clerk only £1,000 worth of these bonds, and his clerk brought back to him a check signed by the prisoner for £750. Later in the day the prisoner sent his clerk for the other £5,000 worth, but he declined to deliver them. The prisoner now owed him between £50 and £60 for differences on other accounts. William Henry Cobden, clerk to Messrs. Moore and Greatorex, stockbrokers, said that on the 29th ult. he delivered to the prisoner £3,000 of Egyptian stock, and received a check from him for £2,402 1s. 9d. on the Imperial Bank. Mr. Greatorex said he purchased £5,000 Egyptians for the prisoner, but only delivered £3,000. The prisoner owed him in addition to the check £250 for differences. Mr. Frederick Pollack, of the firm of Stocken and Co., 75 Old Broad-street, stockbrokers, said that he purchased £5,000 5 per cent. Turkish bonds for the prisoner for delivery on the 29th ult. The value of that stock was £1,800, but he owed him some differences on that account, and the prisoner sent him a check for the two amounts, making a total of £2,060 5s. The prisoner now owed him in addition between £370 and £380. Evidence was then given by other brokers of amounts of stock purchased by them for the prisoner, for which he had given his checks. Also that he was besides indebted to them each in sums varying from £200 to £400. James Sweetland, porter at the Waterloo-road Station of the South Western Railway, said that on the 29th ult. the prisoner drove up to the station in a hansom cab about 7 37 p.m., and asked him when was the next train for Southampton, and he replied in three minutes. He took his luggage to the first-class booking office, and there the prisoner asked if there would be any saving by taking a through ticket to Havre. One of the clerks answered him, and he said he would take a ticket to Havre. He took a ticket and witness put his portmanteau and bag into a first-class carriage, and the gentleman got in after them. Mr. Moreton Stammers said he was cashier at the Imperial Bank. The prisoner had kept an account with them since 1869. On the morning of the 29th ult. the prisoner had £111 0s. 4d. standing to his credit in the books of the bank. No money was paid in on that day. At the clearing in the evening of that day the checks produced, for £7,540, were presented, but not cleared. He had some bills under discount at the bank, and in addition he had a loan against some securities. Witness produced a letter from the prisoner sent to the bank on the 29th ult., asking for the delivery to bearer of 200 shares in the Bank of Alexandria. The value of them was about £2,600. They were delivered to the prisoner's clerk. Mr. Pollack was recalled, and, having examined the stock found on the prisoner, described it. He said there were five shares of the Bank of Constantinople, 200 shares in the Bank of Alexandria, £25,500 worth of Spanish bonds, and £10,000 of Turkish stock, but no Egyptian. Evidence was given showing that the prisoner had exchanged the Egyptian stock for Spanish, and the numbers were traced. Mr. George Lewis applied for a remand, and asked that the bonds might be given up to the respective owners, as the prisoner also acquiesced in that application. Mr. Wontner supported Mr. Lewis's application, and also asked that the balance should be given up to the prisoner's friends on his behalf. Alderman Ellis said it was a great hardship upon the witnesses to be deprived of their property for a time, but there might be some legal difficulties in the way—there might be creditors, for instance, who might put in a claim for debts due to them. Mr. George Lewis contended that creditors could have no claim upon goods obtained by fraud, for although they had come into the prisoner's possession the property had never been vested in him. Besides, as a matter of fact, he could state that the prisoner had no creditors except those gentlemen whom he and Mr. Mullens represented. After an animated discussion, Alderman Ellis declined to order any of the property to be given up at present. The prisoner was then remanded until Tuesday next.

Bankers' Clearing House.—The following is the official return of the checks and bills cleared in the Bankers' Clearing-house for the week ending Wednesday, October 6:—

Thursday, September 30	£18,269,000
Friday, October 1	18,621,000
Saturday, October 2	18,453,000
Monday, October 4	18,069,000
Tuesday, October 5	20,503,000
Wednesday, October 6	16,630,000
	£110,545,000

The total at the corresponding period of last year was £115,538,000.

Digitized by Google

THE LORD CHANCELLOR AND THE JUDGES.—As the first sittings under the new Supreme Court of Judicature Acts will be held on the 2nd of November, on which day Michaelmas Term was wont to commence, it is expected that the Lord Chancellor will, as usual, receive the Judges and Queen's Counsel, &c., to breakfast at his residence, and afterwards proceed to Westminster-hall, where the High Court of Justice will sit in several divisions, and where Her Majesty's Court of Appeal will inaugurate the new sittings.

THE METROPOLITAN AND PROVINCIAL
LAND, ESTATE, HOUSE, LICENSED VICTUALLERS' & GENERAL BUSINESS TRANSFER "SYNDICATE" AGENCY,

Registered according to Act of Parliament. Head Offices, No. 3 Craven-street, Charing Cross, W.C. The organisation and working system of the "Syndicate" are;—1st.—The Sale, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Ground of Rents, Freehold and Leasehold Land, Farms, Estates, Houses, Hotels, Public Houses, Inns, Beer Houses, Restaurants, Coffee Houses, Tobacconists, Drapers, and every other description of Business, Furniture, Objects of Art, or Goods of any description by Auction or Private Contract. 2nd.—The letting, or disposing of, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Land, Farms, Estates, Furnished, or Unfurnished Houses Chambers, or Offices under private contract. 3rd.—The Collection of Rents and the recovery of outstanding accounts. 4th.—The Surveys and Valuations of Land, Farms, Estates, and Houses; also Valuations of Furniture, Jewellery, and other Effects, for probate and other purposes. 5th.—The transaction of all other business usually transacted by Auctioneers, Surveyors, Land, House, Estate and Insurance Agents. 6th.—The negociations of partnerships, and from unlimited connection with capitalists, monetary advances on real and personal securities, as well as merchandize, and every other description of property intended forabsolute sale, or otherwise. 7th. Generally the carrying out of all things instdental or conducive to the above objects, and every of them; also the laying out of estates and surveys for delapidations. The "Syndicate" from their extended connection with the Trades' Protection Societies and other sources, undertake expeditiously for Clients and others to ascertain reliably the status of parties, and make inquiries of a private and confidential character. Liberal terms to Accountants in town or country introducing business.

MONEY to LEND to BORROWERS residing in town or Country, from £50 upwards repayable in one sum, from one to five years, at five per cent. interest on personal security; also on mortgage of freehold or leasehold property from 3 per cent., for a term of years to be agreed upon. No commission.
Apply to R. F. PRESTON, Esq., 120 Southampton-row, London, W.C.

THE BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY'S ANNUAL RECEIPTS EXCEED THREE MILLIONS.

HOW TO PURCHASE A HOUSE FOR TWO GUINEAS PER MONTH
With immediate Possession and no Rent to pay.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO PURCHASE A PLOT OF LAND FOR FIVE SHILLINGS PER MONTH.
With Immediate Possession, either for Building or Gardening purposes.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK FREEHOLD LAND SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO INVEST YOUR MONEY WITH SAFETY AT £4 PER CENT. INTEREST.
Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BANK. All sums under £50 repayable upon demand. Current Accounts opened similar to ordinary Bankers. Cheque-books supplied. English and Foreign Stocks and Shares purchased and sold, and Advances made thereon.

Office Hours from 10 till 4; on Mondays from 10 till 9, and on Saturdays from 10 till 12 o'clock.

A Pamphlet containing full particulars may be obtained post-free on application.

FRANCIS RAVENSCROFT, Manager.

SUBSCRIPTIONS ARE INVITED FOR 5,000 SHARES IN

THE BUFFALO HIDE HORSESHOE COMPANY, LIMITED.

Registered under the Companies' Acts, 1862 and 1867.

CAPITAL £60,000, IN 12,000 £5 SHARES FULLY PAID UP.

£1 on Application, the remainder on Allotment.

DIRECTORS.

JOSEPH JAMES SMITH, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, Manchester.
WILLIAM BIRCH COOPER, Esq., Durham Massey, Cheshire.
GEORGE HILL, Esq., Coal Merchant, Navigation Wharf, Manchester.
JAMES HASLAM, Esq., Veterinary Surgeon, Manchester.
ALBERT SEPTIMUS COX, Esq., Veterinary Surgeon, Altrincham, Cheshire.

BANKERS.

The MANCHESTER AND LIVERPOOL DISTRICT BANK, King-street, Manchester, and its Branches.

SOLICITORS.

Messrs. HAMPSON AND WALMSLEY, 60 King-street, Manchester.

MANAGING DIRECTOR.

JAMES HASLAM, Esq., M.R.C.V.S.

SECRETARY.

(Pro. tem.) Mr. THOMAS WINDER.

OFFICES.

(Pro tem) 60, King Street, Manchester.

PROSPECTUS.

The great want of a Shoe for Horses and other draught animals (so as to obtain a firm and solid foothold upon Asphalte and other smooth or slippery pavements, and to obviate roughing or sharpening in frosty weather; to reduce the jar or concussion the limbs are subjected to by the hoof striking the ground; to allow the hoof to expand and develop; to reduce the labour of the animals by diminishing the weight of the present unnatural and unwieldy iron shoe, and to add to their comfort), has long been felt by the community at large, but more especially by those who employ large numbers of horses, and also by "The Societies for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals."

Such a Shoe has been Invented and Patented by Mr. Yates, and is made from buffalo or other hides, rendered impervious to moisture under Patented Process. They are as durable as the iron shoe, one-third the weight, cheaper, and are neat and easily applied, and their application adds greatly to the comfort of the animal.

They are made from a material as nearly approaching the nature of the hoof as possible, and therefore are the most natural substance from which to form a shoe. They will maintain the integrity of the hoof in its natural form, and allow its freedom and development. They also assist in retaining a firm and solid foothold, and aid in the impulsive efforts required in the performance of work and movements, and will thus be invaluable in preserving the health of the animal shod with them.

This Company has been formed for purchasing and working the patent rights, titles, and interests for Great Britain, Ireland, and the Channel Islands of this Shoe, and for manufacturing and vending the same.

It is the intention of this Company to fit up works sufficient to manufacture these shoes, and to establish offices or stores in our principal cities for the sale of the same, where they will be able to supply sets much cheaper than iron shoes, and which can be readily applied by any smith or farrier.

Forms of application for shares may be obtained by applying to the Bankers of the Company, or to the Secretary.

Digitized by Google

"The source of many a writer's woe has been discovered."

PENS! PENS!! PENS!!!

"They come as a boon and a blessing to men,
The Pickwick, the Owl, and the Waverley Pen."
"The misery of a bad Pen is now a voluntary infliction."

Another blessing to men! The Hindoo Pen. 1,200 Newspapers recommend them. See Graphic, 17th May, 1873.

Sold by every respectable Stationer. Post 1s. 1d.

Patentees, MACNIVEN & CAMERON, 23 to 33 Blair-street, Edinburgh.

J. DEFRIES' AND SONS'

CHANDELIERS, IN CRYSTAL, BRONZE, AND ORMOLU.

TABLE GLASS AND CHINA.

Dinner Services, Gilt Pieces, £4 10s.

KEROSENE and MODERATOR LAMPS for INDIA.

Works:—London and Birmingham.

WEDDING AND BIRTHDAY PRESENTS.

NEW DECORATIONS for the DINING TABLE.

FOUNTAINS.

STORER'S Patent Perpetual Perfumed CRYSTAL TABLE FOUNTAIN, for Dining, Hall and Drawing Rooms, in Crystal and Gilt, £2 17s. 6d. to 100 guineas.

FETES AND REJOICINGS.

BALLROOMS and GARDENS, &c., DECORATED and ILLUMINATED for Evening Parties. Tents, Temporary Rooms, and Banqueting Halls erected.

CRYSTAL and BRONZED CHANDELIERS.

TABLE GLASS and CHINA LENT ON HIRE.

J. DEFRIES and SONS, 147, HOUNDSDITCH.

Five minutes' walk from the Bank of England.

RUPTURES—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS s allowed by upwards of 500 Medical Men to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided, a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the manufacturer, Mr. JOHN WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London. Price of a single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., 31s. 6d, Postage Free. Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. An Umbilical Truss, 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. P.O.O. to be made payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

NEW PATENT ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS, &c. for Varicose Veins, and all cases of Weakness and Swelling of the Legs, Sprains, &c. They are porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and are drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price from 4s. 6d., 7s, 6d., 10s, to 16s. each. Postage free.

CHEST EXPANDING BRACES, for both sexes. For gentlemen they are a substitute for the ordinary braces. For children they are invaluable; they prevent stooping and preserve the symmetry of the chest. Prices for children, 5s. 6d. and 7s. 6d. Adults, 10s. 6d., 15s. 6d., and 21s. each. Postage free.—JOHN WHITE, Manufacturer, 228 Piccadilly, London.

EPPS'S COCOA.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—See article in the Civil Service Gazette.

STAR LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY,

48 MOORGATE STREET, LONDON, E.C

DIRECTORS.

CHAIRMAN—

Mr. Alderman McArthur, M.P.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—

William Mewburn, Esq.

H. J. Atkinson, Esq.
Thomas Ball, Esq.
Walter Griffith, Esq.
George M. Kiell, Esq.
George Lidgett, Esq.
Sir Francis Lycett.
William Merry, Esq.
John Napier, Esq.
Jonathan S. Pidgeon, Esq.
John Vanner, Esq.
S. D. Waddy, Esq., Q.C., M.P.

Assurance and Annuity Fund	1,216,115	13	5
Annual Income (1874)	223,613	2	0
Bonuses Apportioned	581,774	6	2
Claims Paid	1,140,151	1	8

Copies of the Report, Balance Sheet and Prospectus can be obtained on application to the Head Office.

W. W. BAYNES, Secretary.

THE ONLY AND SPECIAL

"MEDAL FOR PROGRESS,"

Was awarded for "Feuerfeste Eisone Schranke und Kunstchlosser Fortschritts," to

HOBBS, HART, & CO.,

AT THE VIENNA UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION.

This Medal is only given to Exhibitors whose New Inventions testify marked Progress.

"FIRE-PROOF SAFES; AND LOCKS AND ENDLESS CHANGE LOCKS AND KEYS,"

Invented especially for Safes and Strong-Room Doors, to frustrate the use of False Keys.

N.B.—The continued security and secrecy of a Lock, fixed on a Safe or Strong-Room Door, depends on the fact that there are no false duplicate keys of that Lock in existence. The object of a Lock is twofold—security against burglars, and secrecy against prying curiosity. A new change in this Lock may at any time be obtained in five minutes by simply filing away the thickness of a hair from one or more of the steps of the Key. The Lock, by a simple movement of the Regulator, is thus made to adapt itself to the NEW KEY, after which no other Key will open the Lock.

The Lock and Key may thus be easily altered into what would be virtually a NEW LOCK and KEY, as often as may be desired, without the aid of a Lockmaker or of any second person, thus frustrating the use of fraudulent copies of the original Key (see the Safe Robbery in Dublin of £630, vide "Times," 12th September, 1875). This Lock affords effectual protection from duplicate or "Master" Keys secretly made in manufactories; very extensive robberies (in one case 13 Safes in one vault) having been effected by this means.

HOBBS, HART & CO.,
LOCK, SAFE, AND STRONG-ROOM DOOR MANUFACTURERS
76 Cheapside, London, E.C.

CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

MANSION HOUSE CHAMBERS, 11 QUEEN VICTORIA STREET, LONDON, E.C.

First issue of Capital, £500,000, in Subscriptions of £1 and upwards. No further liability. Open to all. Each cash subscriber is entitled to interest in lieu of dividend, at the rate of £1 10s. per cent. per month, 18 per cent. per annum, which will be paid in Cash.

TRUSTEES.

Lieut.-General, J. H. GASCOIGNE, C.B., Ivybridge, Devon.
The Rev. W. F. GOOD, D.D., Newton Abbott, Devon.
Rev. C. HOPE ROBERTSON, Smeeth Rectory, Ashford.
HENRY WALKER, Esq., Fowler Height, Blackburn.

ACCOUNTANTS AND AUDITORS.

Messrs. R. W. HUDSWELL AND Co., 23 Martin's Lane, Cannon Street, London, E.C.

MANAGER AND PROPRIETOR. — RICHARD BANNER OAKLEY, F.R.G.S.

Current accounts opened, and 5 per cent. interest allowed on the minimum monthly balances. Cheque Books supplied. The Bank grants credits and issues circular notes for the Continent and America, and transacts every description of sound Financial Business.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street, ISSUES GUARANTEED CHEQUES for any sum not exceeding £20 against cash deposits, without any charge for commission, the penny stamp being the only expense. These are very convenient for persons not having banking accounts, or not wishing to draw small cheques. They are payable on demand at all the Branches of the Co-operative Credit Bank, or can be passed through any bank in ordinary course.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street, is NOW ISSUING PROMISSORY NOTES from £5 upwards, payable three months after date with interest at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum if held to maturity, or payable on demand without interest. These are very useful to persons requiring short investments, and are perfectly negotiable instruments.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The ONLY SAFE and FIRM SYSTEM of BANKING.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The PEOPLE'S BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—No Promotion Money or Preliminary Expenses.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Managerial Remuneration Dependent on Profits.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Profits on the whole amount of the Liability.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Minimum of Risk, its operations being spread over a variety of subjects.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—No Liability beyond amount of subscription.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The Secrecy and Despatch of Individual Management.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—A fixed instead of an uncertain Scale of Profits.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Eighteen per Cent. per Annum paid Monthly.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—A constantly accruing Reserve Fund.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Power of Total Withdrawal after six months on Sixty Days' Notice.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street, City.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Book-keeping in the hands of the Subscribers.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Quarterly published Balance-sheet issued and certified by the Subscribers' Accountant.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Current Accounts opened and Five per Cent. allowed on the Minimum Monthly Balances.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK. — Furnishes Cheque Books for Customers.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK grants Credits and issues Circular Notes for the Continent and America.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK transacts every description of Sound Financial Business.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK introduces Public Loans.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK promotes Public Companies of a bona-fide character.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK negotiates the Discount of Bills and Mortgages on a Small Commission.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK negotiates Loans on Deposit of Deeds and other valuable Securities.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK assists in the Development of Patents for Useful Inventions.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK undertakes on Commission the Purchase and Sale of Stocks and Shares.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street, near the Mansion House.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK accepts the Agencies of Foreign and Country Banks and Merchants, and of Foreign Governments.

IF YOU WANT TO HAVE YOUR BUSINESS done Cheaply and Expeditiously, go to the CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

IF YOU WANT TO BE TREATED WITH CIVILITY, lodge your Money with the CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

IF YOU WANT THE BEST AND MOST RELIABLE COMMERCIAL INFORMATION OF THE DAY, ask the Manager of THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK,
Mansion House Chambers,
11 QUEEN VICTORIA STREET, LONDON.

BRANCH OFFICES.—LIVERPOOL: Mr. E. Dronke, Batavia-builings, Hackins Hey. MANCHESTER: Messrs. Lawrenson & Co., 20 Barton Arcade. BLACKBURN: Henry Walker, Esq., Fowler Heights. BATH: Mr. H. J. Pocock, 4 Union Street. GLASGOW: Mr. J. Cameron, 32 West George Street. WARRINGTON: Messrs. Henry Walker & Son, Albert Works, School Braw. DENBIGH: Jas. A. York, Vale Street. AYR: Mr. Ramsay, Temperance Hotel, High Street.

Digitized by Google

THE

SOCIETY OF ACCOUNTANTS IN ENGLAND.

COUNCIL.

President.—JOSEPH DAVIES, Warrington. Vice-President.—JOHN BATH, London.

ALFRED ALLOTT, Sheffield.
JOSEPH ANDREWS, London.
JOSIAH BEDDOW, London.
HENRY BOLLAND, Liverpool.
JAMES CHARLES BOLTON, London.
HARRY BRETT, London.
ROBERT BUCK, Sunderland.
JOHN CALDECOTT, Chester.
WALTER NEWTON FISHER, Birmingham
EBENEZER CHAMBERS FOREMAN, London.
EDWARD NORTON HARPER, London.
WILLIAM COMBEN HARVEY, London.
JOHN ALISON HESELTON, Bradford.
GEORGE EDWARD LADBURY, London
FRANCIS NICHOLLS, London.
WILLIAM JOHN PARRY, Bethesda.
EDWARD THOS. PEIRSON, Coventry.
EDWARD SMITH, Manchester.
F. TENDRON, London.
JOHN HENRY TILLY, London.
LEWIS VOISEY, Warrington.
EDWIN WILKS, Plymouth.
JOHN UNWIN WING, Sheffield.

TRUSTEES.—JOHN BATH, 40a, King William Street, London; THOMAS COLTMAN, Leicester; JOSEPH DAVIES, Warrington.
TREASURER.—JAMES CHARLES BOLTON, 26 Great St. Helens, and 2 St. Mary Axe, London.
AUDITORS.—R. R. ROBINSON, London; C. PEMBER, Hereford.
BANKERS.—Messrs, WILLIAMS, DEACON, & Co., Birchin Lane, London.
OFFICES—2 COWPER'S COURT, CORNHILL, LONDON.
Further information can be obtained, and copies of the Rules can be had, upon application to
ALFRED C. HARPER, SECRETARY.

H. D. RAWLINGS,

PURVEYOR OF MINERAL WATERS TO

H. R. H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.
H. R. H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH.
H. R. H. THE PRINCE CHRISTIAN.
THE LATE EMPEROR NAPOLEON III.
AND THE PRINCIPAL COURTS OF EUROPE!

Gold Medallist of the Societe Nationale Agricole Manufacturiere et Commerciale de Paris.

SODA, BRIGHTON, SELTZER and all other Mineral Waters for HOME CONSUMPTION and EXPORTATION.
PRICE LISTS on Application, at the Manufactory, Nassau-street, W.

ALFRED W. GEE,

ADVERTISING AGENT,

62, GRACECHURCH STREET,

LONDON, E.C.

London Gazette Notices, and Advertisements and Announcements of all kinds for English, Colonial, and Foreign Newspapers promptly inserted.

N.B.—In the case of an ordinary Advertisement ordered for insertion in a number of Newspapers, only one MS. copy need be forwarded. Same rates charged as at the Publishing Offices.

Printed and Published for the Proprietor by WILLIAMS & STRAHAN, 7 Lawrence Lane, Cheapside. OCTOBER 9, 1875.

Digitized by Google

The Accountant.

A MEDIUM OF COMMUNICATION BETWEEN ACCOUNTANTS IN ALL PARTS OF THE UNITED KINGDOM

VOL. I.—NEW SERIES.—No. 45.] SATURDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1875. [PRICE 6D.

THE BANKRUPTCY ACT, 1869.

IN THE COUNTY COURT OF YORKSHIRE, HOLDEN AT HALIFAX.

A DIVIDEND of Five Shillings in the Pound has been declared in the matter of the special resolution for liquidation by arrangement of the affairs of RICHARD CRABTREE PATCHETT, of Crown Street, in Halifax, in the County of York, Wine and Spirit Merchant, and will be paid by the undersigned Christopher Tate Rhodes, Accountant, Agent, and Valuer, one of the Trustees, at his Offices at Ward's End, Southgate, Halifax, aforesaid, (to those creditors only who have proved their debts) on Friday, the 22nd day of October, 1875, between the hours of Three and Six o'clock in the afternoon.

Dated this Ninth day of October, 1875.

CHRISTOPHER TATE RHODES, } Trustees.
CHARLES WILLIAM CHEESMAN, }

FRANCIS JUBB,
Barum Top, Halifax, Solicitor acting in the Bankruptcy.

THE ACCOUNTANTS' DIARY
AND
DIRECTORY for 1876

Will be published in December next.

MEMBERS OF THE PROFESSION are particularly requested to send in at once their proper names and addresses for insertion in the Directory, to

ALFRED C. HARPER,
2 COWPER'S COURT, CORNHILL,
LONDON, E.C.

PRICE:—

Foolscap Folio .. 6s. By post 6s. 9d.
Medium Octavo .. 3s. „ 3s. 6d.
(Bound in Cloth.)

Orders and Advertisements received at the above address.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

39 BROAD-STREET, BRISTOL,
JUNE 24TH, 1875.

The PARTNERSHIP hitherto existing under the Style or Firm of HANCOCK, TRIGGS, & CO., having been DISSOLVED by mutual consent, I beg to give notice that I purpose henceforth to CARRY ON BUSINESS as a PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT at the above address.

PHILIP TRIGGS.

MESSRS. BARRETT AND PATEY,
PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS,
90 LONDON WALL, E.C.

HAVING removed from No. 8 Finsbury Circus, to more commodious offices at the above address, will be pleased to hear from Accountants resident in the provincial and manufacturing towns who require agents in London.

CHARLES LOWDEN, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT,
RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY,
BARROW-IN-FURNESS.
REFERENCES GIVEN.

LOVEWELL BLAKE, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT,
RECEIVER, AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY.
SECRETARY TO THE GREAT YARMOUTH TRADERS' ASSOCIATION.
OFFICES: HALL QUAY CHAMBERS, GREAT YARMOUTH.

J. F. TITCHMARSH, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT AND AUDITOR.
17 PRINCESS STREET, IPSWICH.

RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY AND LIQUIDATION.

WILLIAMS & STRAHAN,
Legal, Accountancy, & General Printers,
MANUFACTURING STATIONERS, &c
7 LAWRENCE LANE, CHEAPSIDE, LONDON.

Bankruptcy Forms, Statements of Affairs, Dividend Notices, Balance Sheets, &c., printed with despatch.

STEAM PRINTING WORKS, LAMBETH, S.E.

TRANSLATIONS.

MR. ALFRED W. GEE,
BRITISH AND FOREIGN ADVERTISING AGENT,
62 GRACECHURCH STREET, LONDON, E.C.,

Begs to announce that in compliance with a wish expressed by some of the subscribers to the Accountant, he has made arrangements for the translation of legal and commercial documents, correspondence, &c., into the Principal European Languages. Members of the Profession are therefore respectfully informed that arrangements can be made for efficient and speedy translations into, or from, the French, German, Italian Spanish, and Dutch Languages on Moderate Terms.

Digitized by Google

MR. FERDINAND WOLFSKEHL,

BANKER,

9 STEINWEG, FRANKFORT A/MAIN, GERMANY,

CALLS THE ATTENTION of Investors to different Continental Government Securities, guaranteed by Acts of Parliament, through which Capital and Interest ARE SECURED BEYOND ANY DOUBT.

Every one of these Loans must be repaid as per Plan attached to each Debenture, within a limited number of years, by periodical Drawings, OFFERING ADVANTAGES PRESENTED BY NO OTHER SECURITIES, WITH BONUSES AT EACH DRAWING, varying from

£10 to £30,000.

For full particulars apply by letter, addressed care

MESSRS. WOLFSKEHL BROTHERS, BANKERS,

LORD STREET, LIVERPOOL.

MR. FERDINAND WOLFSKEHL announces the following Drawings:—

The 70th DRAWING of 1,400 IMPERIAL AUSTRIAN 1858 £10 CREDIT DEBENTURES, and the 42nd BONUS DRAWING of 1,500 IMPERIAL AUSTRIAN 4 per cent. 1854 £30 DEBENTURES took place on the 1st instant, at Vienna. The 9th BONUS DRAWINGS of 120 RAAB GRAZ 4 per cent. £15 1871 DEBENTURES, took place at Ofen on 1st instant.

He will Forthwith Cash or Exchange any of the above-mentioned Debentures against other Debentures, Stocks, Shares or Obligations.

To secure safe delivery of Letters, Mr. F. W. requests that all communications should be addressed care of

Messrs. WOLFSKEHL BROTHERS, Bankers,

3 LORD STREET, LIVERPOOL,

Of whom full particulars of the above Drawings can be had on application.

P S.—The Imperial Austrian 1858 Credit Debentures, Series 1,006, No. 78, drawing a Bonus of £4,000, has been sold by Mr. F. W. to a Gentleman residing in London.

Established 1843.

PERIODICAL SALE OF REVERSIONS, ANNUITIES, LIFE POLICIES, SHARES, &c.

MESSRS. MARSH, MILNER, AND Co., are preparing their printed particulars for the forthcoming Monthly AUCTION, which is held the FIRST THURSDAY in every month. To insure due publicity, particulars of Properties intended to be included in the next sale should be forwarded, without delay, to the City Land and Reversion Offices, 54 Cannon Street, London.

LAND, Domains, Mountain Ranges, Woods, Forests, and Important Residential Estates. Messrs. MARSH, MILNER, and Co., Land Valuers and Timber Surveyors, have a number of WEALTHY BUYERS DESIROUS of INVESTING in AGRICULTURAL, SPORTING, and RESIDENTIAL ESTATES. OWNERS of marketable properties wishing to effect advantageous sales are therefore invited to forward plans and particulars, which, when received, will be judiciously placed before intending purchasers, publicity being carefully avoided, and written terms settled before any cost or liability is incurred. Address Messrs. Marsh, Milner, and Co., Land and Timber Surveyors, 54 Cannon-street, London, E.C.

MESSRS. MARSH, MILNER, AND Co.'s REGISTER of LANDED ESTATES, Town and Country Residences, and property of every description, is published Monthly, and may be obtained at the Auction, Land, and Estate Agency Offices, 54 Cannon-street, E.C., or will be forwarded by post on application.

MORTGAGES promptly NEGOTIATED upon Landed Estates, City Properties, and upon sound securities of all kinds. Messrs. MARSH, MILNER and Co., have at the present time access to large sums of Money ready to be immediately advanced upon approved securities. Apply at the City Land and Reversion Offices (Established 1842), 54 Cannon-street.

The Accountant.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

The ACCOUNTANT is printed and published in time for Friday evening's mail; price 6d. per copy, or 28s. per annum (including postage), the reduced terms for payment in advance being: annual subscription 24s. (post free); half-yearly ditto, 13s. (post free). Cheques and Post-office orders to be made payable to Mr. Alfred W. Gee, 62 Gracechurch-street, E.C., to whom applications for advertisement space, and letters relating to the general business of the paper, should also be addressed. Literary communications should be directed to the Editor of the ACCOUNTANT at the same address, and in order to ensure insertion in the current number, correspondents are respectfully requested to forward their copy as early in the week as possible.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The Proprietor desires to call the attention of Advertisers to the special advantages offered by the paper as an Advertising medium. Starting with a good guaranteed circulation, and with the entire concurrence and hearty support of the leading members of the profession, the ACCOUNTANT has achieved a large measure of success in a wide field hitherto unoccupied by any professional organ. The ACCOUNTANT thus secures to Advertisers an excellent circulation of an exclusive character; and is particularly valuable as a medium for the announcements of members of the profession, as to Estates and Declaration of Dividends, and the appointment of Trustees and Receivers; for Publishers, Printers, Law Stationers, Auctioneers, and Estate Agents; for the Advertisements of Insurance and Public Companies; and for Notices as to Investments, Vacant Partnerships, &c. Advertisements intended for insertion in the current number, should reach the office on Thursday; late announcements can, however, be received up to 12 o'clock (noon) on Friday.

N.B.—Copies may be obtained at Messrs. W. H. Smith and Sons, Strand, at their numerous Railway Bookstalls, and at the Shops of the leading City and West-End Newsvendors.

TO SUBSCRIBERS

In consequence of numerous applications from subscribers, the proprietor has made arrangements for the supply of CASES for holding and preserving the Accountant, which may be obtained at the office on the following terms:—In green cloth (well got up), with elastics, and "The Accountant" in gold letters on front, 3s. each; same in leather, 4s. 6d. each. Subscribers' names in gold lettering, 1s. extra. Post Office Orders payable to ALFRED W. GEE, 62 Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

The Accountant.

OCTOBER 16, 1875.

The question of the validity of marriage settlements is in itself so important, and so full of interest, that we make an apology for reverting briefly to the points raised in the letter of "H. B." In the case of Colombine v. Penhall, it was stated that a general assignment of all present and future property was in itself an act of bankruptcy, though the settlement was held void on the general ground of fraud, independently of any question under the bankruptcy laws, and the first proposition was therefore not judicially decided. In Colombine v. Penhall, the settlor, being at that time in utterly insolvent circumstances, married his mistress; and previously to the marriage settled the whole of his property upon her, and a child he had by her. It was inferred from various circumstances, though not conclusively proved, that she was aware of his embarrassments, and this fact, no doubt, had considerable effect on the decision of the judge. As Vice-Chancellor Malins said, in a subsequent case, "a marriage got up for the purpose of defrauding a man's creditors, when the intended wife is a party to the fraud, will not be supported. When the settlor has satisfied his creditors, then he may give away the property if he pleases." But the difficulty in all these cases is the proof of the collusion. It is curious, that in the two principal cases on the subject, the husband and wife had been previously cohabiting together; and it might safely be presumed that the wife had full knowledge of the husband's embarrassments, and was fully aware that the settlement was mainly intended to defeat the claims of the creditors. In the case of an ordinary marriage, proof must necessarily be very difficult, especially as the Courts would lean rather to the defensive than the assailing side. But admitting that any fraudulent connivance on the part of the wife would vitiate the settlement, there is a kindred question arises. As a rule, settlements are not mere matters of barter between husband and wife, but the friends have a good deal to do with them. Supposing the settlement is made fraudulently, with the privity of the father or any responsible adviser acting on behalf of the future wife, she ignorantly or carelessly leaving all matters to their control,—at present the verdict of the Court would be wholly in her favour, and it is difficult to lay down positively that this should be otherwise. It seems clear, therefore, that it is only in very exceptional cases that the validity of a marriage settlement could be impeached with any chance of success.

Digitized by Google

We cannot help thinking that the reforms we advocate will some day be carried into effect. As regards settlements of the husband's property, they may be limited in their operation in the way we suggested, of simply giving the trustees a right of proof for the sum settled, at any rate, for a space of some years, and subject to certain considerations as to the provision made for the wife. It is perfectly just that a woman should not be left dependent on the testamentary caprices of her husband, but should be protected against any neglect or deliberate malice on his part. But this principle cannot be made to operate to the detriment of creditors; and where a settlement of the husband's property is made giving the first life-interest to the wife, it is more or less suspicious in proportion to the amount of property thus placed out of the husband's control. So long as a wife takes her husband "for richer or poorer, for better or worse," she must be contented to abide by her bargain, and to follow the fortunes of her husband. Whatever may be the ultimate manner in which this is to be brought about, we have no hesitation in saying that such a reform is imperatively wanted, and we shall be glad if "H. B.," or any of our readers, can furnish us with any statistics of liquidations or other proceedings in which the marriage settlement has been used as a convenient lever to bring about an unsatisfactory result. With regard to the wife's property, the general current of feeling seems setting so strongly in the direction of its inviolability by any claim of the husband, that future legislation will probably tend more and more to separate the interests of husband and wife. But though we would free the wife's property from any claim on behalf of the business creditors of the husband, we should be inclined to make it liable to the claims of domestic creditors, and even to go so far as, by a process analogous to "marshalling," to make it primarily responsible for such claims. Take an instance which has actually occurred within our own experience, and which can easily be paralleled from the experience of most of our readers. A private individual becomes bankrupt. His debts are mainly due to his tradesmen, for the food, clothing and maintenance of his family. The wife has property settled to her separate use; the extravagant living is discontinued, and the family live upon the wife's money, while the creditors are foiled. Now, surely, in such a case as this the wife's property may fairly be made responsible. But how many cases are there in which bankruptcy proceedings have been taken against a wife? The failure has been as much owing to her as to her husband; the credit has been given to them jointly, and they ought both to be made responsible. A system of registration of all settlements would be the best safeguard. It is not so much the increased dividend which would be produced, or the increased security to the creditor, which would be the beneficial change, as the check which would be placed upon unrestrained luxury and extravagance. Let it be once clearly understood by all classes of the community that family arrangements and settlements would not protect wrong-doers against the consequences of their default, and a marvellous change would very speedily take place. As instruments useful in checking speculation, inculcating prudence, and promoting the acceptance of the Duke of Wellington's theory as to high interest and bad security, settlements are of the highest social advantage; but they are too often used as instruments of fraud, and mere covers to reckless extravagance; and, as such, the more their absolute inviolability is restricted the better.

Digitized by Google

A further perusal of the 180th rule, table A, and the remarkably worded foot-note to table C, combined with a consideration of the practice at the Liverpool County Court, leaves us still in uncertainty as to the meaning of the Act. It seems an absurdity to affix a stamp to a bill of costs far exceeding the ad-valorem duty properly payable, and to refuse to make any abatement; and yet this absurdity seems countenanced by the wording of the Treasury order directing that "the stamp shall be affixed in respect of every fee before the proceeding is had in respect of which the fee is payable." Leaving out this order, and translating the rules as to taxation into plain English, what is meant is this:—Every bill shall be taxed, and the certificate of the amount allowed, duly signed and stamped with an ad-valorem stamp. But the words of table A seem to countenance the stricter view:—"Every allocatur for costs, where such bill of costs," not "such costs" simply, is the phrase used. The question as to the stamp duty on resolutions seems concluded by the same literal mode of interpretation:—"Every special resolution presented to a registrar for registration" must be stamped before presentation; and the act of presenting is, we suppose, what is meant by "having the proceeding," to use the clumsy and involved diction of the Treasury minute; though it might be plausibly contended, that as the Act obviously contemplates registration as a mere formal act, the proceeding in question would be the actual registration, and not the presentation. At any rate, in the first instance we are inclined to think that the solicitor should only be allowed his payment for the stamp in proportion, not to what it has been, but what it ought to have been, as its excess must be owing to his overcharges. The amount of duty is not very large; but the principle of allowing these petty attempts to pick up small sums of money is one which might well be reconsidered, and authoritatively declared in the Act, if it is to be finally upheld, and not left to the uncertain practice of individual officials.

What is a month? Most people would decide in favour of a calendar month, and so, apparently, does Registrar Spring-Rice in restraining a creditor for taking proceedings against a compounding debtor who had tendered his composition one day within his time, if month meant calendar month, but was too late if lunar months were referred to. This was probably what the creditors, excepting always the dissentient, meant too; but it is curious to notice how varied the rule is for computing exactly which is meant. Originally, the term month when used in any statute or any legal proceeding, meant a lunar month, unless a calendar month was expressly specified. As regards the statute law, this interpretation was reversed by the 13th Vict. c. 21, which directed that the word "month" should in future acts primâ facie mean calendar month. In law and equity proceedings "month" was "used to denote lunar months, except when a twelvemonth" was the phrase, in which case it was taken as equivalent to a year; and in cases of presentation to livings, where, to prevent lapse, calendar month was understood. In cases of bills of exchange, and, indeed, in commercial transactions, a calendar month, subject to any customs of trade, is the understanding, except in contracts for stock, where the word means "lunar." There is yet one final observation. The 57th order of that Supreme Court of Judicature Act which is to do so much for us, declares that where under the Act "time is limited by months, not expressed to be lunar months, such time shall be computed by calendar months." It seems probable, therefore, that Registrar Spring-Rice's view was correct. At the same time, it might be as well for debtors not to make quite such close computations on another occasion, and to show their gratitude to their creditors by not insisting on taking those "days of grace" which mark the difference between calendar and lunar months.

Digitized by Google

Accountants' Diary and Directory.—We are glad to note that Mr. Alfred C. Harper is preparing to continue the useful and praiseworthy work which he set on foot last year, viz. the publication of an annual Diary and Directory for Accountants. The form and matter of last year's Diary afford ample assurance of the value and general utility of the publication. Mr. Harper will be glad to be informed of any alteration of address, or of additions to the ranks of the profession.

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the Accountant.

Sir,—I have read your further observations in the Accountant of Saturday last upon marriage settlements, and agree with you that both ante- and post-nuptial settlements should be registered. If they were, it would tend to diminish the frauds constantly practised on creditors. They would thereby be put on their guard against giving credit to persons with the appearance of wealth, which really had been vested by them in trustees for the benefit of their intended wives. Trader and non-trader ought to be treated alike, for there is no reason why one should have greater facilities of obtaining credit than the other. The case of re Clint, referred to in my letter, was decided since the present Act came into operation, but had reference to a settlement executed previously, and therefore was exempt from the provisions of the Act, and decided in accordance with the law as it previously existed. The suggestion you make, that a settlement in consideration of marriage might be held to be a fraudulent transfer of property under sub-section 6 of section 2 of the Act, and therefore an act of bankruptcy, can scarcely, I think, be of any avail. Where is the fraud on the part of the woman, if she gives for the property conveyed to her the highest consideration known to the law? She is not supposed to know the circumstances of her intended husband; and the transaction, therefore, so far as she is concerned, is bonâ fide. If, as in the case of a fraudulent preference, it can be shown that she is cognisant of her intended husband's position, and colludes with him by means of the settlement to defraud creditors, then, no doubt, it would be held to be fraudulent. But how difficult it is to prove, in the case of a fraudulent preference where two parties only are interested, that the one favouring the other had made such communications as to place the latter in the light of a conspirator to defraud! The transaction is between the two, and what earthly motive could they have in admitting their own fraud! The last decision on fraudulent preference, makes the old bankruptcy doctrine a nullity! It is a subject well worthy of discussion in the Accountant. The point of practice to which I referred in a second letter, is dealt with by you in a separate article, but as I am writing, it may not be out of place to refer thereto shortly, especially as you appear to think I have not clearly stated the case. What is insisted upon in Liverpool is, that when a bill of costs is presented for taxation, it shall have affixed thereto an allocatur stamp for its full amount; and that if reduced on taxation to one-third the amount, as is frequently the case, there is no rebate of the stamp duty. Thus, for instance, if some member of the honourable and liberal profession brought in a bill for £1,000, and it was reduced to £50, the poor creditor would have to pay stamp duty on the £1,000. This, I understand, is done in conformity with the absurd terms of the scale, which prescribes that every allocatur for costs, where such bill of costs shall exceed a certain sum, shall bear the requisite stamp duty; and a subsequent memorandum at the foot of the scale provides that the stamp shall be affixed before the proceeding is had in respect of which the fee is payable. This is absurd, but it is carried out in the same manner with respect to resolutions for liquidation in compositions presented for registration. All the stamp duty has to be paid on lodging the proceedings, although, as too frequently is the case, from some technical defect, they are refused registration, and become abortive. Another absurd imposition of stamp duty seems to me to be, the imposing of a 5s. stamp on the adjournment of a public examination, or witness summons, both one and the same proceeding upon which duty has been paid. In case of public examination being appointed, no stamp is required; ergo, why on an adjournment?

Yours,
H. B.

Liverpool, Oct. 10*th*, 1875.

A correspondent has forwarded us some particulars of a fraud of which he has been the victim, with the double object of awaking the post-office authorities to the necessity of discovering, if possible, the offender, and of warning the public of the danger to which they are exposed. The circumstances are these:—On the 3rd of July a firm at New York posted to a correspondent a draught drawn by the Merchants Bank of Canada, payable on demand to order. The letter was opened in transit, the draught was endorsed by the payee's name being forged, and was paid by the agency of the Merchants Bank of Canada in London. The firm's correspondent is much surprised that the 16 and 17 Vict., cap. 59, sec. 19, holds the bank blameless. We may remark, however, that similar forged endorsements have frequently before given rise to litigation, but it has always been decided that it is impossible for a bank to verify a strange signature when endorsed upon a draught or order drawn on a banker payable on demand. In this case the chief responsibility seems to rest with the post-office, which never accepts any.

Alleged Fraud by a Merchant.—Telo Stitterd Hare, general merchant, was charged at the Liverpool Police Court, on the 8th instant, with defrauding the Rochdale Co-operative Manufacturing Society Limited of £1,978. The defendant in December last received an order from Mr. Clarke, manager of the society, to purchase cotton of a particular sort. In June last Hare sent in an invoice for 200 bales ex steamship Ganges, and on the strength of his representations Mr. Clarke accepted bills of exchange to the above amount. The defendant was afterwards repeatedly pressed to give a delivery order, but he made various excuses, and on being requested to return the acceptances he said he had discounted them, and that the cotton had been stopped by his creditors. It was alleged that the invoice in question was wholly fictitious, no such cotton having been bought from the gentleman therein named or shipped by the steamer represented. The defendant, who reserved his defence, was committed for trial at the sessions, bail being accepted in two sureties of £500 each and himself in £1,000.

Digitized by Google

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY.

October 9.

(Before the Hon. W. C. Spring-Rice, sitting as Chief Judge.)

In re Collie and Collie.—A question arose under this bankruptcy in regard to the jurisdiction of this Court to compel the attendance for examination of a person domiciled in Scotland. The proposed witness appeared by counsel, and, acting under legal advice, objected to be examined on the ground that he resided out of the jurisdiction. The matter was argued in chambers by Mr. J. Linklater for the trustee, and Mr. G. W. Lawrence for the person summoned. The proceedings resulted in an order being made for a peremptory summons to issue, the sitting to be adjourned in the interval.

An application was made in the liquidation petition of W. Stephenson, who had been a wine merchant in Water street, City, and latterly a commercial traveller. Mr. Holberry, barrister, appeared to restrain by injunction an action pending in the Queen's Bench, by a creditor named Speechey, for £100, brought under peculiar circumstances. The debtor offered a composition of one shilling in the pound, in two months after the registration of the resolutions, at a meeting of his creditors under the petition. The first offer was in May, and a resolution passed, but the second meeting was the 11th of June. On the 10th of August the debtor was on his way to pay the creditor the composition, and met him in the street, and on telling him he refused to take it, and forthwith an action was commenced to recover the original debt of £100, the creditor considering that the 10th of August was too late, and that the time had expired for its payment. The action was still pending, and the present application was to restrain the creditor from litigation. Mr. Clare, on the part of Mr. Sparling, submitted that the two months, being reckoned as lunar months, had expired when the debtor met his creditor in the street; no tender had been made of the money, and he ridiculed the idea that for so small a sum as one shilling in the pound a creditor was to be deprived of his legal rights. Mr. Registrar Spring-Rice was of opinion that calendar months were to be reckoned, and as the interview took place on the 10th of August, and as the second meeting was on the 11th of June, it was within the period mentioned. As to there being no tender, the debtor said he had the money in his pocket, and the creditor said he would not take it. He restrained the action, and directed the creditor to pay costs. Order accordingly.

October 11.

(Before Mr. Registrar Brougham.)

In re C. T. Mavrocordato.—In this case notice had been given of an application that immediate adjudication might be made. The debtor, Charles Themistocle Mavrocordato, is the person against whom a criminal charge has been preferred; and he is described as a merchant and dealer in stocks and shares, of 108 Bishopsgate-street Within. The petitioning creditors are Messrs. Cohen and Samuel, stock and share brokers, Angel-court, the act of bankruptcy upon which the petition is based being the debtor's departure from his place of business with intent to defeat and delay his creditors. Mr. Lewis, jun., appeared in support of the application, and, no cause being shown, his Honour made an immediate adjudication. The first meeting for proof of debts and the appointment of a trustee will be held on the 9th of November, at 11 o'clock.

October 12.

(Before Mr. Registrar Brougham.)

Wilson and Armstrong.—An application was made on behalf of the separate creditors of these debtors for an order restraining Mr. J. Lindsay, of Castle-street, Edinburgh, the trustee under the sequestration proceedings in Scotland of the estate of William Armstrong, from interfering or dealing with his separate estate, and from further proceedings in relation to the same until the further order of the court. Mr. F. O. Crump appeared in support of the application, and Mr. Finlay Knight against it. Mr. Crump read the affidavit of Mr. Emanuel, jeweller, Bond-street, which stated that the debtors, George Wilson and Walter Armstrong, were woollen warehousemen, of 69 Aldermanbury, also carrying on business at Hawick, Roxburghshire, Scotland, in partnership with Charles, John, and George Murray Armstrong, as manufacturers, and failed on the 12th of July last for upwards of £500,000. On the 19th Mr. Henry Chatteris, accountant, Gresham Buildings, was appointed receiver and manager of the estate. The first meeting of the separate estate was held on the 10th of August, and adjourned for six months. Subsequently to the adjournment, Mr. William Armstrong applied for and obtained sequestration of his estate in Scotland, and Mr. Lindsay was appointed trustee under those proceedings. It also appeared that William Armstrong, in addition, carried on a separate business as an underwriter at Lloyd's, and as such had incurred liabilities to the extent of £3,000. The larger portion of those creditors were resident in England, where the greater portion of the assets were, and the application was supported by sixty-two creditors, who were anxious that the debtor's estate should be administered in this country, more especially as William Armstrong had submitted to the jurisdiction of the court by filing a petition here prior to the institution of any proceedings in Scotland. The learned counsel contended that the liquidation proceedings having been instituted prior to the sequestration, the receiver ought to have taken possession of the whole of the estate, both joint and separate, for the general polling of creditors. The learned Registrar, without calling on Mr. Knight, said that he thought the motion was wholly misconceived. There was no evidence that the trustee in Scotland intended to interfere in any way, or that the receiver was not doing his duty. It seemed to him that there was no ground for the application, and he should dismiss it with costs. If it should be found that the receiver was in way neglecting his duty, the court could then be applied to. Application dismissed with costs.

October 13th.

(Before Mr. Registrar Brougham.)

In re Fothergill and Hankey.—The Aberdare Iron Works.—This was an application to register the resolutions passed by the creditors to liquidate by arrangement under this heavy failure, and appointing Mr. Turquand, public accountant, trustee, to collect and distribute the assets. Mr. Hollams appeared on the part of the debtors, and Mr. Travers Smith watched the case for the London and Westminster Bank. By the balance-sheet appended to the proceedings it appeared that the total liabilities amount to £898,687 18s. 1d., and the assets to £103,851 14s. 6d.; but in addition to this there is the property in the Aberdare and Plymouth Ironworks, including stock, stores, cottages, freehold, and railways, which had been valued as a going concern at £1,290,665, but which was subject to mortgages and charges to the amount of £317,180 10s. It appeared that 56 creditors for debts, amounting in the aggregate to £8,000, had not been served with the notice of the first meeting, but His Honour, taking into consideration the large amount of liabilities, and the fact that no opposition was now made, and that the amount did not affect the majority, allowed registration of the resolutions to take place, and also consented to an order being made, permitting the trustee to pay the sum of £129 due to workmen for wages.

In re W. F. P. Dadson.—The debtor in this case was a retired captain in the Royal Marine Light Infantry, who carried on business as a banker and money lender at 301 Strand, under the style of the Clarendon Bank. The balance-sheet showed liabilities of £8,568 0s. 5d., against assets to the amount of £2,599 16s. 8d. At the meeting of the creditors an offer of a composition of 8s. 6d. in the pound was accepted, but the resolution was objected to by Mr. Baker, of the firm of Lawrence, Plews, Boyer, and Baker, on the ground that the debtor at the first meeting refused to answer certain questions. Mr. Winslow, Q.C., and Mr. Beaumont appeared for the trustee, Mr. H. J. Warham. Several witnesses were examined as to what took place at the meeting, and it appeared that, after answering several questions respecting his estate, he refused to answer any thing relating to the proof of his mother and sister, it appearing that he had misappropriated trust-money; and, acting under the advice of his solicitor, he absolutely declined to disclose the amount coming to him under his father's will, on the ground that his answers might subject him to criminal proceedings. Mr. Winslow, in reply, stated that the fullest disclosures had been made to a committee of creditors appointed at the first meeting, in which the whole matter had been gone into and the deeds produced. A report had been made by the committee to the shareholders, in which the acceptance of the composition had been recommended, but the North Kent Bank, for whom Mr. Baker appeared, and who were creditors for a considerable amount, were not satisfied. The learned counsel contended that after the searching investigation which had been made, the debtor was justified in refusing to answer questions which he was apprehensive might lead to his being proceeded against criminally. The learned Registrar, in giving judgment, stated that had the debtor simply refused to answer the specific question referred to, he might have been justified in doing so, but he had refused to answer any question respecting the proof of his mother and sister, and all other questions, after reference was made to them. He had therefore denied to his creditors the information which they had a right to demand, and the registration of the resolutions must be refused. Mr. Baker stated that there were also other points of objection on the proofs in the event of his Honour's decision being reversed on appeal, and the learned Registrar took a note to that effect.

Digitized by Google

In re J. H. Thornber.—This was an application to register a liquidation resolution come to by the creditors of this debtor, a tailor and clothier at 1 Fenchurch-street, and 120 and 149 Cheapside, who lately failed for £3,087, the assets being stated at £1,366. The resolution passed was for the liquidation of the estate by arrangement with a trustee and committee of inspection. Mr. Bagley, instructed by Mr. A. H. Miller, opposed registration on the ground of mis-description in the style of the firm, it appearing that the debtor carried on business under the firm of Dombey and Son, which was omitted from the petition. The debtor, in examination, said he had used the name of Dombey and Son to obtain notoriety, but that all his bills were made out in his own name, and all his credit was obtained in that name. After hearing Mr. Rooks in support of the registration, his Honour decided that he should refuse registration, but that, inasmuch as it had not been shown that any creditor had been deceived by the omission, leave was given to apply to the court to amend the petition and to call a new first meeting.

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY, DUBLIN.

October 11.

(Before Judge Harrison.)

In Re Alex. M'Donald.—The bankrupt had been a draper, carrying on business at 25 Merchant's-quay, in this city. This was the first public sitting, and there was also a meeting to consider an offer of composition. A question of some importance arose in reference to the appointment of a trade assignee. It appeared that one of the proofs on which the appointment was sought to be made was sworn before a commissioner in England. It was contended by Mr J. A. Rynd (instructed by Mr. J. G. Rynd), on behalf of creditors, that a commissioner in England to administer oaths for English courts had no power to take affidavits for the Irish Court of Bankruptcy. Counsel relied on the 366th section of the Irish Bankruptcy Act of 1857. Mr. Carton (instructed by Mr. Larkin), for other creditors, argued, on the other hand, that such commissioner had the power, under the combined operation of the Irish Chancery Act, 1867, with the Bankruptcy Act referred to. Judge Harrison thought the point a very important one to the practitioners of the court, and suggested the point should be fully argued before the court. Subsequently, however, his lordship having referred to the statutes bearing on the subject, decided that the proof so sworn was valid. Mr. Davoren, for creditors, proposed another assignee, but his lordship adjourned the appointment of the assignee till next court day.

LIVERPOOL COUNTY COURT.

October 8.

(Before Mr. J. F. Collier, Judge.)

In re Henry Peplow Forwood.—This was a bankruptcy which took place in February, 1874, the bankrupt being a cotton broker, trading under the firm of Zigamalo and Forwood. The creditors in the course of the bankruptcy passed a resolution to accept a composition of 3s. 4d. in the pound, and that sum having been paid by the trustee, the court was now asked to annul the bankruptcy. Mr. Sampson, for the trustee, assenting, the court made the desired order.

In re George Murray Quayle.—This was a sitting for the public examination of the bankrupt, a cotton broker, in Exchange-buildings. His accounts disclosed liabilities £6,182, against assets, consisting of debts outstanding, £1,360, estimated to produce £438, and office furniture £25. Mr. Sampson, for Mr. Chalmer, the trustee, said that the bankrupt had supplied all the information required with respect to his estate, and therefore the public examination could be passed. The bankrupt accordingly passed.

In re Maurice Williams.—This bankrupt, a well-known cotton broker in Liverpool, appeared on his public examination upon a statement of accounts, showing unsecured debts £5,586, those partly secured £25,000, the securities being valued at £20,015, and other liabilities £846. Mr. Rutherford, (from the office of Miller, Peel, and Hughes) represented Mr. Bolland, the trustee, and stated that his investigation of the debtor's affairs had not been concluded, and he desired the sitting for public examination to be adjourned. Mr. Sampson, for the bankrupt, consenting, an adjournment was taken to 5th of November.

In re John Morgan Hughes.—This was also a public examination sitting, the bankrupt being a cotton broker in Tithebarn-street. The total liabilities were £1,143. Mr. Bellringer, for Mr. Bolland, trustee, said that arrangements were pending under which the creditors were to receive a composition of 5s. in the pound and annul the bankruptcy. Under those circumstances he applied for an adjournment of the public examination, which was taken to the 5th of November.

In re John Whitfield.—This bankrupt was a cartowner in Collingwood-street. His public examination had been repeatedly adjourned in consequence of unsatisfactory accounts. Mr. Nordon, for Mr. F. L. Jones, a creditor, said that the trustee, Mr. Bolland, had obtained from the bankrupt extra accounts, which his client had examined, and although numerous errors had been discovered, the trustee did not think any advantage would accrue to the creditors by keeping the matter open. He (Mr. Nordon) wished, however, to disabuse the mind of the bankrupt as well as others similarly situated of the idea that by passing his public examination he became free to recommence trade. Such was far from being the case. The passing of the examination did not liberate the bankrupt, but left him amenable to the trustee until he had obtained his discharge. His Honour agreed, and said that if such an impression were abroad the sooner it was dispelled the better. The bankrupt thereupon was allowed to pass his public examination.

Digitized by Google

MANCHESTER COUNTY COURT.

October 12.

(Before MR. J. A. RUSSELL, Q.C., Judge.)

RE FRED. J. HARTE.—In this case, an application was made by Mr. Taylor, instructed by Messrs. Grundy and Kershaw, on behalf of Mr. and Mrs. Royle and the Yorkshire Banking Company, for an order that the provisions of the composition made by the debtor might be enforced, or that, in default, the debtor might be adjudicated a bankrupt. The debtor, Fred. J. Harte, formerly carried on business as a wholesale stationer in Piccadilly, in this city, as under the firm of Harte and Co., but now residing at Lytham. In November, 1864, he entered into a composition with his creditors, whereby he agreed to pay them 5s. in the pound, by two instalments of 2s. 6d. each, at three and six months, to be secured by Mrs. Royle postponing her right to prove until after the receipt of the dividend by the other creditors. The time of payment of the composition had long since expired, but the debtor had failed to pay all his creditors. The judge made an order adjudicating Harte a bankrupt, ordering the costs to be paid out of the bankrupt's estate.

RE BURGHARDT AND KREUELS.—Mr. Storer applied to the Court on behalf of Mr. E. R. Trevour, trustee to Thomas Burghardt, one of the firm of Burghardt and Kreuels, Greek-street, merchants, who are now in liquidation, for an order to declare void as against him, the trustee of Burghardt's separate estate, a certain bill of sale of April 3rd, 1875, made between Thomas Burghardt and Robert Aders, merchant, Whalley Range, by which Mr. Burghardt assigned his household furniture at Bowdon to Mr. Aders, as security for £700 advanced by Mr. Aders to Mr. Burghardt. The judge amended the declaration by making Mr. Aders the plaintiff. Mr. Jordan, who appeared for Mr. Aders, gave a detailed history of the case. He said the bankrupt's petition was filed on April 6th. The present proceedings, however, were in respect of the separate estate of Burghardt. Many years ago Mr. Aders was in partnership with Mr. Burghardt, and they separated in 1851, Mr. Burghardt going into partnership with his present partner, and Mr. Aders with other persons. On the 10th of March, Mr. Burghardt called at the warehouse of Mr. Aders and asked him for a loan, which he said he wanted for private purposes. Mr. Aders looked upon £700—the amount required—as no very great thing, and having a great regard for his former partner, agreed to lend him the money, and had a cheque drawn out for that sum, which was given to Mr. Burghardt, and that gentleman obtained the money. It was a loan, but for a very short period of time, and a few days after Mr. Aders, meeting Mr. Burghardt, and the money not having been returned, he asked him for it. The truth was, however, that Mr. Burghardt had not got the money, and he told Mr. Aders that he could not pay it. Mr. Aders, a little annoyed that the money was not forthcoming, saw his solicitors, Messrs. Page and Rowley, and ultimately Mr. Page was instructed to issue a writ against Mr. Burghardt. Mr. Burghardt was seen about the matter, and he agreed to give a bill of sale on his furniture at Green Bank, Bowdon, to secure the loan of £700, and the bill of sale was accordingly given on the 3rd April. A day or two after that Mr. Aders heard rumours of an unpleasant character as to the solvency of the firm of Burghardt and Kreuels, and thereupon he consulted Mr. Page again, told him what he had heard, and requested him to take the necessary steps to enforce his security. Accordingly, on the 5th April, Mr. Page, acting under instructions, put a man named John B. Mercer, a person regularly employed in such matters, in possession, and he remained there. The next day the petition was filed by the firm of Burghardt and Kreuels. Mr. Jordan urged that the goods had been taken out of the order and disposition of the bankrupt, because they were taken possession of on a previous day for Mr. Aders, and if these facts were true he contended that there was no question to try. Mr. Aders, Mr. Mercer, and other witnesses were examined in support of this view of the case. Mr. Storer gave his version of the case, which was that so early as December, 1873, the partnership estate of Burghardt and Kreuels was insolvent to the extent of £9,000. The partnership continued to trade, and in December, 1874, they were further insolvent to the extent of £18,000. In the month of February, 1875, they were insolvent to the extent of £21,000, and on the 6th April, when the petition was filed, and the 3rd April, the date on which the bill of sale was given, they owed creditors £31,216. They had nominal assets of the value of £5,281. His Honour would therefore perceive that as regarded the partnership property Mr. Burghardt had no interest whatever in it. On the day on which the bill of sale was given, Mr. Burghardt was indebted to his separate creditors in the sum of £7,463, and he had no assets whatever, excepting any surplus which might arise upon the disposal of the security held by Mr. Aders. It therefore followed that Mr. Burghardt assigned the whole of his estate to Mr. Aders for a past debt, and that therefore the bill of sale was in itself an act of bankruptcy, and as such was void as against the trustee. After hearing Mr. Trevor, the trustee, the Judge gave a verdict for Mr. Aders, the plaintiff, with costs.

RE MATTHIAS ROBINSON.—Mr. Nuttall appeared to support an application for the discharge of Matthias Robinson from the city gaol, where he had been committed for contempt for not having filed his statement of affairs. Mr. Nuttall stated, in support of his application, that the debtor's statement had now been filed, together with an affidavit of the debtor offering to submit himself for examination, and that he had disclosed the whole of his estate. Mr. W. R. Minor, on behalf of the trustee, contended that before the bankrupt could be released, he should be brought up for examination upon his statement of affairs, as the trustee wished to question him upon his book debts. The Registrar thought that, strictly speaking, the proper course would have been to have had the bankrupt in attendance, and that his solicitor should have had him brought up under a habeas corpus or otherwise. Mr. Nuttall, however, pointed out that, according to the form of the order as given by the Act, the release of a bankrupt committed for contempt under the 19th section was to be ordered upon an affidavit showing that he had cleared his contempt, and he (Mr. Nuttall) contended, therefore, that there was no necessity for the debtor to be in attendance in the present case, but that every thing had been done to entitle the bankrupt to his release. The Registrar said that he thought that the bankrupt had cleared his contempt, and there were no reasons that he should be kept longer in custody. He should therefore make an order for his release. If, however, he refused to attend upon the trustee, and give him all the assistance he could to realise the estate, the trustee could then make another application to have him committed.

NOTTINGHAM COUNTY COURT.

October 13.

(Before Mr. E. PATCHITT, Registrar.)

RE ROBERT JESSOP WOOD.—Mr. Thorpe appeared on behalf of the bankrupt, and Mr. Wright for Lloyd's Banking Company. This being the first meeting under the petition, the proofs of debt were produced, to none of which was there any objection. These having been passed, Mr. Wright, as the representative of the largest creditors, nominated Mr. W. Marriott, of Nottingham, as the trustee, which was agreed to. He then proposed Mr. Taylor, of Raleigh-street, Mr. H. J.

Digitized by Google

Brown, of Portland-road, and Mr. J. Thornton, of St. Peter's Chambers, all of Nottingham, as the committee of inspection. This being agreed to, the Joint Stock Banking Company were selected as the bankers, and the further proceedings were adjourned.

RE JONATHAN BURTON, of Nottingham, lace manufacturer.—Mr. Acton appeared for the debtor, Mr. Lees, jun., and Mr. Cranch for creditors. This was a meeting for the purpose of considering objections filed with the registrar, requesting him not to register certain resolutions passed at a meeting of the creditors; and also for the purpose of considering objections which had been taken by the trustee to the proofs of the creditors for whom Mr. Lees and Mr. Cranch appeared, viz. Mr. Lees and Mr. Richard Burton. Mr. Lees submitted proofs of debt for £367, and Mr. Cranch for £2,690. The objections taken by Mr. Lees were, first that in the petition filed by the debtor he had not inserted the whole of the places where he resided and carried on business during the time the debts incurred in his statement were contracted, and also that he had not made a full disclosure of his estate. The court was occupied for some considerable time with the arguments of the gentlemen on either side, but eventually the matter was adjourned until November 8th, in order that Mr. Lees might furnish the trustee with particulars of his client's claim. Mr. Cranch's claim was also ordered to stand adjourned for the same time.

RE THOMAS ALDRIDGE, of Fiskerton, farmer.—Mr. Fraser appeared for the trustee, and Mr. Pratt, of Newark, for the debtor.—The bankrupt was called by Mr. Fraser, and stated that he was a tenant of some land at Fiskerton, but not tenant in connection with Mr. May. He had had many dealings with Mr. May, principally cattle dealing. He bought and sold some cattle for him, and settled at the time. They never had any account between them. He had some memorandum books, but they did not contain any profit and loss account. They had carried on business like that for years; some weeks they had no dealings whatever. He never alleged that Mr. May owed him £200, nor any other amount. He was indebted to May, but did not know to what extent. He believed May had filed proofs against his estate. He bought some cattle at May's sale, some four or five years ago. He had also sold some that May had bought, and was going to pay him with a cheque the morning the Southwell Bank stopped payment. He received the money; he believed there were 14 or 16 bullocks, which sold for £20 each, and were sold to Mr. Mathers, living near Norwich. Mr. May never sent him a bill for the amount of that sale, nor did he apply for payment. He had never applied to him from about 1864 to 1874, nor had he paid interest on the loan of that money. He paid the £320 he received for the bullocks into the bank; they had from £700 to £800 of his money in the bank. There were four rooms in the house at Fiskerton where he resided, and in the petition he had filed he returned his furniture at £30. He did not know if that was its proper value, but there had been two valuers to see it. There were two bedrooms, two rooms under, a kitchen, with a room over that, and cellar, but one of the bedrooms was not furnished. He had never valued his furniture at all. He had never sold any furniture out of his house. None of it had gone to the house of Mr. Moore, but he sold him a cow for £14. He knew a Mr. Cullen, and had dealt with him, but he had not had any of his furniture. He had a horse and cart, but was obliged to sell it soon after Christmas. He never had a barometer in his house, nor did he sell one to a Mrs. Mitchley. He did not occupy any fields near Fiskerton station, but he looked after some beasts and sheep for Mr. Houseley, who occupied the fields. Mr. Houseley did not pay him anything for his services, but that gentleman had a mortgage upon his house; he lent him £300 upon it, and the money had since been paid away; £100 to Mr. Smith, of Edinburgh; £75 to a man at Thurgarton; £50 to Mr. Young, of Rolleston. He had owed Mr. Hart £57 for some time, and he had paid that. The Southwell bank commenced an action against him to recover a large sum. They brought an action to recover £3,247. The bank people beat him, as he had no money to carry on the case. They had filed a proof against him for a large sum of money. Mr. Patchitt here interposed, and said he did not see how all this came before the court. This matter really ought to have been taken before the trustee at his own chambers, and if he was not satisfied he could report to the court at the next meeting. The court was not to sit there and hear all that general evidence. He was quite sure if the judge had been present he would not have allowed it to proceed so far.—Mr. Fraser said it was a public examination.—Mr. Patchitt said it was to hear any dispute that might arise, not evidence as he was going on with.—Mr. Fraser then applied that the bankrupt should be ordered to produce a cash account for the last twelve months, and also to make out a statement of his dealings with May; and the Registrar ordered him to make out these, to be produced at the next meeting to be held on the 8th Nov.

MANSION HOUSE.

October 14.

CHARGE OF FRAUD AGAINST A MERCHANT. — Léon Skalski, 58 years of age, a merchant, lately trading in Queen Victoria-street, City, was charged before Mr. Alderman Besley, upon a warrant, with unlawfully obtaining by false pretences a quantity of cloth of the value of £140 odd, with intent to defraud. The prosecutor was Mr. Robert Cadenhead, a woollen merchant, carrying on business at No. 12 Size-lane, Cannon-street, and in October 1874 the prisoner, whom he had known four months, was indebted to him on a bill of exchange for £99 15s. for goods supplied. The acceptance became due on the 3rd of that month, and upon that, or the previous day, the prisoner called upon him and engaged to meet the bill next day. He went on to say that he wanted some Scotch Tweeds and black cloth, and he asked the prosecutor to supply him. Mr. Cadenhead promised, in the event of the bill being paid, to let him have the goods. The prisoner assured him that he had sufficient funds at his bankers, the City and County Bank, to meet the acceptance, and, believing that statement, the prosecutor allowed him to buy on credit twelve pieces of woollen cloth, worth £142 14s. 2d. The bill was dishonoured, the goods still remained unpaid for, and the prisoner, according to the prosecutor's statement, absconded. He was not arrested until the 6th instant. The case for the prosecution had not been completed when the Court rose, and Mr. Alderman Besley remanded the prisoner for a week, and refused an application by Mr. Merriman, his solicitor, to admit him to bail.

ALLEGED FRAUDS BY A BANKRUPT.—At the Bradford West Riding Court, on Tuesday, Jabez Bolton, of the firm of Cooper and Bolton, manufacturers, of Yeadon, near Leeds, a bankrupt, was charged with various offences against the Debtors Act, namely, with omitting to make a full disclosure to the trustee of his property, with concealing part of his property, with fraudulently removing a part of his property, and with quitting England, with property belonging to his creditors. The prisoner became bankrupt in October 1873, and subsequently left England and went to Norway. The evidence went to show that the prisoner had failed to render a true account of various sums of money due or paid to the estate; and it was found by the trustee that he had received a number of sums of money, including some lodge funds, of which he had either rendered no account or an erroneous account. The prisoner was committed for trial at the assizes.

Digitized by Google

CREDITORS' MEETINGS.

G. E. SWIFT (SHEFFIELD). A meeting of the creditors of Mr. G. E. Swift, steel merchant, of Sheffield, was held on the 7th instant. A report was presented showing liabilities amounting to £5173 7s., and assets to £697. Liquidation by arrangement was resolved on.

R. MACKENZIE (DUNDEE). A meeting of the creditors of Mr. Robert Mackenzie under this sequestration was held in Lamb's Hotel, on the 7th instant. It was unanimously agreed to elect Mr. David Myles, accountant, as trustee. In terms of the statute Mr. Mackenzie submitted a statement of his affairs. The assets were given at £7439 16s. 3d., preferable debts, £150, and ordinary debts £33,740 6s. 7d., showing an apparent dividend of 4s. 4d. per £. Reference was made to the claim against Messrs. A. T. Stewart and Co., New York. It was stated that the award by Mr. Fox in the arbitration between Mr. Mackenzie and the firm amounted to £6300, but the exact effect of it on the bankrupt estate had not been ascertained. Interim protection was granted to the bankrupt, and the next step in the procedure will be his examination.

GEIKIE AND BLACK (DUNDEE).—A meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Geikie and Black, manufacturers, Coupar-Angus, was held at Dundee on the 8th inst. A statement of the affairs was submitted, showing the assets to amount to £14,612 14s. 10d.; preferable debts, £450; and liabilities, £51,439 18s. 9d.—showing an apparent dividend of 5s. 6d. in the pound.

J. TYSOE (SALFORD).—A meeting has been held of the creditors of Mr. John Tysoe, Victoria Mill, Hope-street, Salford, cotton spinner and doubler, trading as Charles Tysoe and Sons, and also carrying on business in the Albert Mill, Hope-street, as a cotton spinner and doubler, in co-partnership with John Henry Tysoe, trading as John Tysoe, Son, and Co. The liabilities were stated to be £57,000, and the assets £60,500. It was resolved to liquidate the estate by arrangement, and Mr. John Adamson, accountant, was appointed trustee, with a committee of inspection.

J. WILLIS & SON (BRADFORD).—A special meeting of the creditors of Messrs. John Willis and Son, brassfounders and ironmongers, Millbank, Bradford, was held on the 12th inst., at the offices of Messrs Wood and Killick, solicitors, in that town, to consider an offer made by friends of the debtors to purchase the joint estate for a sum equal to 10s. in the pound, payable in two equal instalments of three and six months. The trustee was authorised to accept the offer, and the discharge of the debtors was granted.

O. DAYION (Manchester).—A special general meeting of the creditors of Mr. Ovanes Dayion, late of Lloyd's House, Albert square, Manchester, merchant, trading as Agop, Dayian and Co., was held on the 13th instant at the offices of Messrs. Grundy and Kershaw, solicitors, Booth-street, when the debtor's offer to pay 1s. 6d. in the pound within seven days on all provable debts, with costs, and to hand his acceptances for each creditor for sums equal to 9d. in the pound, payable in twelve months, was accepted. It was also resolved that these engagements being fulfilled, the debtor's order of discharge be granted.

N. PROCTER (MANCHESTER).—The second statutory meeting of the creditors of Nemin Procter, commission agent, was held on the 13th inst., at the offices of Mr. George Whitt, accountant, 8 King-street, when the resolutions passed at the first meeting, accepting a composition of 2s. in the pound, were confirmed. Mr. Whitt was appointed trustee, Mr. Dawson, solicitor, Ridgfield, to register the resolutions.

T. O. CONDLIFF (LIVERPOOL). A general meeting of the creditors of Mr. Thos. Oakes Condliff, wine and spirit merchant, was held on the 13th instant at the offices of Messrs. Williams and Quiggin, solicitors. The statement of accounts submitted to the meeting showed liabilities £2,315 17s. 11d. and assets £860 12s. 7d. Liquidation by arrangement was resolved upon, and Mr. Thomas H. Sheen (Sheen and Broadhurst) was appointed trustee, with three of the principal creditors as a committee of inspection. Messrs. Williams and Quiggin were intrusted with the registration of the resolutions.

FAILURES.

ENGLAND.—A petition has been filed in the Huddersfield County Court by Thos. Hirst Smith, of Providence Mill, Marsh, Huddersfield, cloth finisher, for liquidation of his affairs, the liabilities are stated at £2,500. Messrs. Laycock, Dyson, and Laycock, are the debtor's solicitors, and Mr. J. Westerby, accountant, is the receiver.—A petition for liquidation has been filed by Mr. George Alfred Jeffery, of Great George-street, Liverpool. His debts amount to £16,681, the creditors being 188 in number. Mr. Gibson was appointed receiver. —Mr. John S. Galatti, Blomfield-street, London-wall, a Greek merchant of twelve years' standing, has failed for about £150,000. The assets are said to be considerable. The books are in the hands of Messrs. Turquand. —John Hirst, of Lower Low Westwood Mills, Golcar, trading under the style or firm of Thomas Hirst and Son, has filed a petition in the Huddersfield County Court, with liabilities estimated at £7,600. Messrs. Hesp, Fenton, and Owen are the debtor's solicitors, and Mr. Henry Wilde, accountant, has been appointed the receiver.—In connection with the fortnightly settlement on the Stock Exchange, the failure was announced of Mr. Henry S. Strachan, of 33 Throgmorton-street, City, stockbroker. The books have been placed in the hands of Messrs. Price, Waterhouse, and Co.—On Thursday a letter was received by the chairman of the Sheffield Stock Exchange from Charles Edward Smith and Sons, sharebrokers, stating their inability to meet their engagements. The liabilities are said to be heavy.

AMERICA.—American advices to hand report the suspension of Messrs. Glass, Neely, and Co., of the Keystone Iron Works, Pittsburgh, Pa., with liabilities of £60,000.—The Fourth National Bank, Chicago, had stopped.—Messrs. Levinger and Co., a large lager beer firm, had suspended.—The failure is also reported of Messrs. Shepard, Hall, and Co., extensive lumber dealers, with liabilities estimated at £300,000, including £200,000 due to the Boston banks.—Messrs. Languedoc, Trotter, and Fournier, wholesale butchers, Montreal, had stopped with liabilities of £24,000.—Mr. S. A. Cohen, clothing house, had stopped.—The Jagger Iron Co., Albany, New York, whose blast works cost £130,000, were having their affairs investigated.—Messrs. Janeway and Co. the well-known paper-hangers, New Brunswick, had made an assignment.—Messrs. Strauss and Lehman, New York, in the dry goods trade, have suspended, with liabilities amounting to half a million.—The Third Avenue Savings Bank, in New York city, has suspended payment, and been placed in the hands of a receiver. It has 1,500,000 dollars liabilities, and assets nominally worth as much, though it will be difficult to realise them. There are 5,000 depositors, chiefly small tradesmen and mechanics.

A telegram from Berlin, according to Galignani, announces that the famous financier, Strausberg, is a bankrupt.

WINDING-UP.—A petition has been presented to the Court of Chancery for the winding-up of the Volunteer Co-operative and General Equipment Company (Limited).

Digitized by Google

INFORMALITY IN LIQUIDATION PROCEEDINGS.

The following is from a Liverpool paper:—"At the County Court a case came before the learned judge, Mr. Collier, which affords but one of many illustrations of delay and unnecessary expense to creditors through proceedings in liquidation being conducted in an informal and slovenly manner. It appeared that on the 23rd day of August last, Joseph Holden, of Kirkdale-road, builder, presented a petition for the liquidation of his affairs by arrangement, and at the first meeting of creditors, held on the 14th September, a liquidation was determined upon and a trustee chosen. The proofs and proxies, with the resolution of the creditors, purporting to be signed by the statutory number and majority in value, were in due course lodged with the registrar for registration, but he found that many of the proofs and proxies were so informal as not to be admissible, and that, deducting the amount represented by those proofs and proxies from the lists of assents to the resolutions, they had not been passed by the requisite majority in number and value of the creditors, and therefore he refused registration. From his decision an appeal was now made to the judge, Mr. Hodgson Bremner, instructed by Mr. Harris, appearing in support of the registration. Mr. Bremner took the objections of the registrar seriatim. The first was that a proxy at the foot of one of the proofs had a line through it, and was apparently cancelled. This, it was submitted, was an inadvertent act of the commissioner before whom the proof was sworn, and he, the commissioner, on being examined, admitted the mistake, and stated that it was done without authority. His Honour remarked that he was bound to regard the document as presented for registration. As so presented the proxy was struck out, and he was unaware of any authority he possessed to make valid that which was clearly invalid. If, as argued, a mistake had been committed, there had been sufficient time afforded prior to the meeting of creditors to have made the necessary correction. The second objection was to a defective jurat to a proof, the date when it was sworn having been omitted. A third objection was to a proof to which there was no jurat. Mr. Bremner argued that these latter objections were not matters of substance, and that so long as the court was satisfied of the intention of the creditor to claim a debt, and take part in the proceedings, the formality in question ought not to be allowed to prevail. His Honour, after hearing the learned counsel at great length, said that although the points raised appeared trivial, they were important as precedents for future guidance in the court, and he would consider them further, and on Monday he stated that as he was satisfied the proxy in question was struck out inadvertently and without authority, he should allow it to stand, but as to the other objections they would be sustained. With this intimation he remitted the matter to the registrar to deal with the case on its merits, and added that he considered the registrar was perfectly justified in taking the objections which had been discussed."

THE ALLEGED FRAUDS UPON STOCK-BROKERS.

Mr. Charles Themistocles Mavrocordato was brought up for final examination before Mr. Alderman Ellis, at the Guildhall Police-court, on Tuesday, charged with obtaining, by means of false pretences, different foreign stocks, amounting to the nominal value of £24,000, but the cash value of which was £7,540, with intent to defraud the various stockbrokers with whom he had transactions. Mr. George Lewis, jun., prosecuted; Mr. Mullens appeared for a creditor; and Mr. Blanchard Wontner for the prisoner. The evidence previously given, and which has already appeared in our columns, having been read over to the witnesses, and re-sworn to, Mr. Lewis called formal evidence to complete the case. Mr. Solomon R. Cavaliero, a foreign bill-broker, of Finsbury-circus, said that the prisoner asked him to buy him 40,000f. worth of bills on Paris, payable at sight. He told him that since the failure of Messrs. Maua and Co., the French bankers had decided not to sell bills at short dates, except for cash; and if he had to purchase them for the prisoner he must trouble him for the money. The prisoner then said, "Don't trouble yourself, I will get them through another channel." Joseph Duson, ticket clerk at the Waterloo Station of the South-Western Railway, said on the 29th September, he issued two and a-half first-class tickets to Havre by the 7.40 train. Mr. Lewis said that would complete the evidence with regard to the charge of obtaining the securities by false pretences; and he now proposed to charge him under the 12th section of the Bankruptcy Act with endeavouring to leave England within four months of his bankruptcy, with a large sum of money belonging to his creditors, with intent to defeat and delay his creditors. The prisoner had been adjudicated a bankrupt on the 11th instant, and therefore his attempting to leave the country on September 29th, was certainly within the four months. After some discussion as to the course to be pursued, it was decided that a new witness should be called to prove the adjudication of the prisoner as a bankrupt, and the evidence of such witnesses as had been examined and were necessary to this charge should be read over to them, and this was done. Richard Sparks, clerk in the London Court of Bankruptcy, proved that, on the 6th instant, Messrs. Samuel and Cohen presented a petition in bankruptcy against Charles Themistocles Mavrocordato, merchant and dealer in stocks and shares, of No. 108 Bishopsgate-street, Within. The adjudication took place on the 11th inst. The act of bankruptcy alleged was that, with intent to defeat and delay his creditors, on the 29th September he absented himself from his place of business. Mr. Wontner opposed the committal of the prisoner on the last charge, because notice had been served on him to attend the Bankruptcy Court while he was in prison, and was totally powerless to attend and give any explanation to the court. Mr. Lewis said that it did not require his personal attendance, as his solicitor could attend for him. Mr. Alderman Ellis said he would commit on this case also. The witnesses having had their evidence read over to them, were re-sworn to it, and the prisoner having reserved his defence, Mr. Alderman Ellis committed him for trial on both charges, and refused to make any order for the property found on the prisoner to be given up to either party.

Mr. E. J. Wilson, the Secretary of the Estate Exchange, Tokenhouse-yard, has published the following return of landed estates, &c. registered at the Exchange as sold by public auction and by private contract from the 1st of January to the 30th of September, as compared with the corresponding period in the three preceding years:—January 1 to September 30, 1872, £8,000,581; ditto, 1873, £7,591,885; ditto, 1874, £8,783,904; ditto, 1875, £9,766,135.

BANKERS' CLEARING HOUSE.—The following is the official return of the checks and bills cleared in the Bankers' Clearing-house for the week ending Wednesday, October 13:—

Thursday, October 7	£11,910,000
Friday, October 8	14,063,000
Saturday, October 9	16,049,000
Monday, October 11	13,401,000
Tuesday, October 12	15,377,000
Wednesday, October 13	40,423,000
	£111,223,000

The total at the corresponding period of last year, which did not comprise a Stock Exchange settlement, was £103,196,000.

Digitized by Google

APPOINTMENTS.

[The Editor will be glad to receive early notice of appointment of Liquidators and Auditors for insertion in this Column.]

Mr. William Edwards, the accountant, has been appointed by Mr. Registrar Spring-Rice, receiver and manager of the estate of Augustus Ahlborn, of No. 74 Regent-street and elsewhere, Court dressmaker. The liabilities are said to be over £100,000, and the assets considerable.

John Pattinson (of the firm of Harry Brett, Milford, Pattinson and, Co.), of 150 Leadenhall-street, London, E.C., and 12 Vigo-street, Regent-street, W., has been appointed trustee of the estate of Benjamin Francis Hallowell Carew, of 41 St. George's-road, Pimlico, in the County of Middlesex, of no trade or occupation, a bankrupt.

Vice-Chancellor Bacon has appointed Frederick Whinney (of the firm of Harding, Whinney, and Co.), liquidator of the European and South American Telegraph Company, Limited, in the place of Mr. H. W. Crace.

PROPERTY AND INCOME TAX.—The gross receipts for the year 1874-5 are estimated at £4,401,692 2s. 11¾d., and the net at £4,315,132 3s. 3¾d., the remaining £86,559 19s. 8d. being absorbed in allowance, &c.

ALLEGED FRAUD BY A BANKRUPT.—William Bland, manufacturer, of Idle, a bankrupt, was on Thursday, at Bradford, committed by the West Riding magistrates for trial, with the option of offering bail, on several charges against the Debtors Act, viz. with having failed to disclose to the trustee all his property, with not delivering it up, with concealing it, and with removing it. A petition against the prisoner was filed on the 27th August, and on subsequent occasions he consigned, as was shown, goods of the value of £150 or £200 to persons in Liverpool and Melbourne, and also received £80, refusing to render any account of these transactions.

The Bank of England raised its minimum rate of discount on Thursday 14th instant from 2½ to 3½ per cent. This step was abundantly justified by the return published in the afternoon for the bygone week, which shows, as we stated yesterday, that much gold has been withdrawn for the Provinces in addition to the large sum exported. The decrease in bullion has altogether been £1,329,954, and it is almost exclusively to this large withdrawal that we owe the advance in the rate of discount. There has been a heavy demand for discount during the week, it is true, but the quiet prevailing to-day proves it to have latterly been precautionary, in anticipation of an advance in the price of accommodation. The payment of the October dividends has, in fact, had the effect of increasing the volume of unemployed money, both at the Bank and in the open market. But, although loanable capital is still very abundant, the other banks and discount houses have followed the Bank of England, and 3½ per cent. is the general charge for advances. Few bills have, however, been offering to day, and the pressure of the past few days is likely to produce a lull for a little time. It looks still as if the advance of 1 per cent. would produce no effect where it is wanted, for more gold has gone away to-day, and should the overflow continue the rate will not likely remain long where it is. The reserve is now down to rather less than £11,000,000 and the proportion of reserve to liabilities has fallen to 35·25 per cent., so that small withdrawals of gold will now have a much more direct effect on the action of the Bank than they had some weeks ago.—Times.

ENGLISH LOSSES FROM THE TURKISH DEFAULT.—Estimating approximately the amount lost by British investors in the Turkish loans, the Times says:—"All the tribute loans are probably held almost exclusively in this country, and perhaps about from half to two-thirds of most of the other loans supposed till now to be secured on special hypothecations. The General Debt and the 1873 Loan are less held here, and, indeed, the 1873 Loan has never reached the small holders to any extent. Now, as the interest and sinking fund charges on all the loans, exclusive of the general debt and the 1873 Six per Cent. stock amount to between five and six millions, it follows, if the 1854, 1858, and 1871 loans are all held here, and say a full half of the remainder, that about £2,200,000 has to come annually, exclusive of sinking fund payments, to investors in this country as their share of the sum paid by Turkey on her debt. Some of the 1873 loan must be added to this as being held in some shape, and we also hold a part of the general debt, while the financiers here are interested in operations and profits of the floating debt, and some may hold Roumalian Railway bonds. Adding all together, it seems probable that something like £3,500,000 will represent approximately what has come every year to England from Turkey as interest only. If the half of this is now to be lost, the incomes of a large section of the English public will have been diminished by £1,750,000—say at least £1,500,000—a very formidable loss; and if the sinking fund charges are added, that will make an additional half million or so which will cease to arrive in the shape of drawings."

THE INCORPORATED LAW SOCIETY.—The second annual provincial meeting of the Incorporated Law Society of the United Kingdom was opened on Wednesday in the Town Hall, Liverpool. Mr. G. B. Gregory, M.P., president of the society, in the chair. Nearly 300 members were present. The president, in opening the proceedings, adverted to the objects of the association, and observed, with respect to the general question of the education of articled clerks, that it was absolutely necessary that any gentleman entering the profession should have a fair and liberal education. It might be a question whether the term of service under articles should not be reduced. He saw great difficulties in the way of carrying out any scheme for uniting the education of the two branches of the profession. He advocated the granting of further facilities for passing from one branch of the profession to the other. During last Session some important Acts bearing upon the interests of the profession were passed. One affected procedure in County Courts, facilitating appeals from those courts, and giving County Courts powers that Superior Courts had with reference to actions upon bills of exchange and other bills of that description. The President also referred to the Land Transfer and Titles and Judicature Acts, pointing out with regard to the latter that a good deal yet remained to be done in respect to the completion of the scheme. What he believed the general body of solicitors desired was a strong Court of Appeal, and that its sittings should be continuous. He thought that their exertions should be directed to these points. The reading and discussion of papers occupied the rest of the day, and in the evening the members of the conference were entertained at a banquet by the Incorporated Law Society of Liverpool.

The receipts on account of revenue from the 1st of April, 1875, when there was a balance of £6,265,322 to the 9th instant were £35,717,293, against £34,867,467 in the corresponding period of the preceding financial year, which began with a balance of £7,442,854. The net expenditure was £42,390,841, against £41,582,924 to the same date in the previous year. The Treasury balances on the 10th instant amounted to £1,413,993, and at the same date in 1874 to £1,656,280.

Digitized by Google

ALLEGED FRAUDULENT BANK TRANSACTION IN JERSEY.—An action for the sum of £5000, arising out of singular circumstances, came on for hearing before the Jersey Royal Court, on Tuesday. The virtual defendants were his Excellency Major General Norcott, C.B., (bailiff), and the twelve judges of the Royal Court, the whole of whom constitute the impôt assembly, or excise board. The plaintiff was Mr. Philip Gosset, manager of the Jersey Banking Company, the nominal defendant being Mr. Joshua M. Nicolle, the treasurer of the impôt assembly. The action arose out of the failure of the Mercantile Union Bank. The case of the plaintiff was that the impôt assembly had advertised for the loan of money to carry on public works, issuing debentures for the same, bearing interest at the rate of 4 per cent. He offered Mr. Nicolle the sum of £5,000, and, after some consultation between them, it was arranged that they should together proceed to the Mercantile Union Bank, at which Mr. Nicolle kept his account for the impôt assembly. They went there on the 29th of February, 1873, and after consultation between Mr. Gosset and Mr. Armstrong, the manager of the Mercantile Bank, the latter informed Mr. Nicolle that the sum of £5,000 had been placed to his account for the credit of the impôt assembly. Mr. Nicolle thereupon gave to Mr. Gosset an acknowledgment for the said amount and a promise to let him lands under the seal of the impôt assembly. Three days after the Union Mercantile Bank suspended payment, and the impôt assembly at once repudiated the arrangement made by the treasurer, Mr. Nicolle, on the alleged ground of fraud. As they had persistently refused to ratify the act of their treasurer, the plaintiff brought this action. The defendants pleaded that the transaction was a pure fraud, effected for the purpose of benefiting the plaintiff in his private capacity, and as manager of the Jersey Banking Company. Mr. Gosset and Mr. Armstrong were said to be brothers-in-law, and by their relationship, and also by his position as bank manager, plaintiff was alleged to have known well what was the state of the Mercantile Bank at the time, and that he took advantage of that knowledge to carry out this attempted fraud. It was alleged on the part of the defendant that no money whatever passed between Mr. Gosset and Mr. Armstrong at the time of the pretended transference of the £5000, and that the whole affair was a plan to benefit the plaintiff and his bank at the public expense, both being creditors of the Mercantile Bank at the time. Several witnesses were called to give evidence, their depositions being taken in writing. The case was only partly heard, and was adjourned till a future day.

ACCOUNTANTS may greatly facilitate their office work, and materially increase their profits, by printing liquidation notices, &c., by Zuccato's Papyrograph, which is used by a large number of London and Provincial Accountants, including John L. Lovering and Co.; Gamble and Harvey; Andrews and Mason; Nicholls and Leatherdale; Slater and Pannell; John Bath and Co.; Sydney Smith, and Co.; Ladbury, Collinson, and Viney; Arthur Barron, and Co.; Edmunds, Davis, and Clarke; &c. For 2½d., 500 4to. copies can be taken upon any kind of dry paper, by an office boy in a copying-press at the rate of 10 a minute. For price list and testimonials, apply to WALTER HENRY, Papyrographic Depôt, 409 Strand, W.C.

LARGE LIGHT OFFICES on the Fourth Floor. Rents £10 and £15. Apply to Housekeeper, 26 Budge-row, Cannon-street, E.C.

TO ACCOUNTANTS.—Partnership wanted in a sound established Business. Has connection and business (six years' standing), which would be brought in. Age 36.—Address "B," 4 Linden-grove, Nunhead, S.E.

MONEY to LEND to BORROWERS residing in town or Country, from £50 upwards repayable in one sum, from one to five years, at five per cent. interest on personal security; also on mortgage of freehold or leasehold property from 3 per cent., for a term of years to be agreed upon. No commission.
Apply to R. F. PRESTON, Esq., 120 Southampton-row, London, W.C.

THE BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY'S ANNUAL RECEIPTS EXCEED THREE MILLIONS.

HOW TO PURCHASE A HOUSE FOR TWO GUINEAS PER MONTH
With immediate Possession and no Rent to pay.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO PURCHASE A PLOT OF LAND FOR FIVE SHILLINGS PER MONTH.
With Immediate Possession, either for Building or Gardening purposes.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK FREEHOLD LAND SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO INVEST YOUR MONEY WITH SAFETY AT £4 PER CENT. INTEREST.
Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BANK. All sums under £50 repayable upon demand. Current Accounts opened similar to ordinary Bankers. Cheque-books supplied. English and Foreign Stocks and Shares purchased and sold, and Advances made thereon.
Office Hours from 10 till 4; on Mondays from 10 till 9, and on Saturdays from 10 till 12 o'clock.
A Pamphlet containing full particulars may be obtained post-free on application.
FRANCIS RAVENSCROFT, Manager.

THE METROPOLITAN AND PROVINCIAL
LAND, ESTATE, HOUSE, LICENSED VICTUALLERS' & GENERAL BUSINESS TRANSFER "SYNDICATE" AGENCY,
Registered according to Act of Parliament, Head Offices, No. 3 Craven-street, Charing Cross, W.C. The organisation and working system of the "Syndicate" are; - 1st.—The Sale, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Ground of Rents, Freehold and Leasehold Land, Farms, Estates, Houses, Hotels-Public Houses, Inns, Beer Houses, Restaurants, Coffee Houses, Tobacconists, Drapers, and every other description of Business, Furniture, Objects of Art, or Goods of any description by Auction or Private Contract. 2nd.—The letting, or disposing of, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Land, Farms, Estates, Furnished, or Unfurnished Houses Chambers, or Offices under private contract. 3rd.—The Collection of Rents and the recovery of outstanding accounts. 4th.—The Surveys and Valuations of Land, Farms, Estates, and Houses; also Valuations of Furniture, Jewellery, and other Effects, for probate and other purposes. 5th.—The transaction of all other business usually transacted by Auctioneers, Surveyors, Land, House, Estate and Insurance Agents. 6th.—The negociations of partnerships, and from unlimited connection with capitalists, monetary advances on real and personal securities, as well as merchandize, and every other description of property intended forabsolute sale, or otherwise. 7th. Generally the carrying out of all things incidental or conducive to the above objects, and every of them; also the laying out of estates and surveys for delapidations, The "Syndicate" from their extended connection with the Trades' Protection Societies and other sources, undertake expeditiously for Clients and others to ascertain reliably the status of parties, and make inquiries of a private and confidential character Liberal terms to Accountants in town or country introducing business.

RESTAURANT,
13 OXFORD STREET,
Near the corner of Tottenham-court-road.
Known as the BODEGA, now under the new management of Mr. L. BOECKER, late of 13 Idol-lane, City.
Luncheons from the joints, hot or cold, including vegetables and bread, 1s. 3d
Dinners from 12 till 4 o'clock, from the joint, with soup or fish, vegetables, cheese and bread, 2s.
Dinners from 6 till 9 o'clock, from 2s. 6d. to 10s. 6d.
Private Dining Rooms for large and small parties on the Second Floor.

OLD FALCON HOTEL, GRAVESEND.
Proprietor—W. SKILLETER.
Late Chef de Cuisine to His Grace the Duke of Argyll.
Visitors to Gravesend will find every accommodation at the Old Falcon Hotel, East Street. Public and Private Rooms facing the River, directly opposite Tilbury Fort, and with a capital view of the Thames Shipping.
FISH DINNERS AND WHITEBAIT.
BED AND BREAKFAST FOR GENTLEMEN £1 1s. PER WEEK.
And an equally low Tariff for Dejeuners, Dinners, &c.
Five Minutes' walk from North Kent Railway, and Two Minutes from he Piers, and Tilbury and Southend Railway.

Digitized by Google

"The source of many a writer's woe has been discovered."

PENS! PENS!! PENS!!

"They come as a boon and a blessing to men, The Pickwick, the Owl, and the Waverley Pen."
"The misery of a bad Pen is now a voluntary infliction."

Another blessing to men! The Hindoo Pen. 1,200 Newspapers recommend them. See Graphic, 17th May, 1873.

Sold by every respectable Stationer. Post 1s. 1d.

Patentees, MACNIVEN & CAMERON, 23 to 33 Blair-street, Edinburgh.

J. DEFRIES' AND SONS'

CHANDELIERS, IN CRYSTAL, BRONZE, AND ORMOLU.

TABLE GLASS AND CHINA.

Dinner Services, Gilt Pieces, £4 10s.

KEROSENE and MODERATOR LAMPS for INDIA.

Works:—London and Birmingham.

WEDDING AND BIRTHDAY PRESENTS.

NEW DECORATIONS for the DINING TABLE.

FOUNTAINS.

STORER'S Patent Perpetual Perfumed CRYSTAL TABLE FOUNTAIN, for Dining, Hall and Drawing Rooms, in Crystal and Gilt, £2 17s. 6d. to 100 guineas.

FETES AND REJOICINGS.

BALLROOMS and GARDENS, &c., DECORATED and ILLUMINATED for Evening Parties. Tents, Temporary Rooms, and Banqueting Halls erected.

CRYSTAL and BRONZED CHANDELIERS.

TABLE GLASS and CHINA LENT ON HIRE.

J. DEFRIES and SONS, 147, HOUNDSDITCH.

Five minutes' walk from the Bank of England.

RUPTURES—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS s allowed by upwards of 500 Medical Men to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided, a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the manufacturer, Mr. JOHN WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London. Price of a single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., 31s. 6d, Postage Free. Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. An Umbilical Tsusr, 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. P.O.O. to be made payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

TRADE MARK.

NEW PATENT ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS, &c. for Varicose Veins, and all cases of Weakness and Swelling of the Legs, Sprains, &c. They are porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and are drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price from 4s. 6d., 7s, 6d., 10s, to 16s. each. Postage free.

CHEST EXPANDING BRACES, for both sexes. For gentlemen they are a substitute for the ordinary braces. For children they are invaluable; they prevent stooping and preserve the symmetry of the chest. Prices for children, 5s. 6d. and 7s. 6d. Adults, 10s. 6d., 15s. 6d., and 21s. each. Postage free.—JOHN WHITE, Manufacturer, 228 Piccadilly, London.

EPPS'S COCOA.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—See article in the Civil Service Gazette.

STAR LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY,

48 MOORGATE STREET, LONDON, E.C

DIRECTORS.

CHAIRMAN—

Mr. Alderman McArthur, M.P.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—

William Mewburn, Esq.

H. J. Atkinson, Esq.
Thomas Ball, Esq.
Walter Griffith, Esq.
George M. Kiell, Esq.
George Lidgett, Esq.
Sir Francis Lycett.
William Merry, Esq.
John Napier, Esq.
Jonathan S. Pidgeon, Esq.
John Vanner, Esq.
S. D. Waddy, Esq., Q.C., M.P.

Assurance and Annuity Fund	1,216,115	13	5
Annual Income (1874)	223,613	2	0
Bonuses Apportioned	581,774	6	2
Claims Paid	1,140,151	1	8

Copies of the Report, Balance Sheet and Prospectus can be obtained on application to the Head Office.

W. W. BAYNES, Secretary.

THE ONLY AND SPECIAL

"MEDAL FOR PROGRESS,"

Was awarded for "Feuerfeste Eisone Schranke und Kunstschlosser Fortschritts," to

HOBBS, HART, & CO.,

AT THE VIENNA UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION.

This Medal is only given to Exhibitors whose New Inventions testify marked Progress.

"FIRE-PROOF SAFES; AND LOCKS AND ENDLESS CHANGE LOCKS AND KEYS,"

Invented especially for Safes and Strong-Room Doors, to frustrate the use of False Keys.

N.B.—The continued security and secrecy of a Lock, fixed on a Safe or Strong-Room Door, depends on the fact that there are no false duplicate keys of that Lock in existence. The object of a Lock is twofold—security against burglars, and secrecy against prying curiosity. A new change in this Lock may at any time be obtained in five minutes by simply filing away the thickness of a hair from one or more of the steps of the Key. The Lock, by a simple movement of the Regulator, is thus made to adapt itself to the NEW KEY, after which no other Key will open the Lock.

The Lock and Key may thus be easily altered into what would be virtually a NEW LOCK and KEY, as often as may be desired, without the aid of a Lockmaker or of any second person, thus frustrating the use of fraudulent copies of the original Key (see the Safe Robbery in Dublin of £650, vide "Times," 12th September, 1875). This Lock affords effectual protection from duplicate or "Master" Keys secretly made in manufactories; very extensive robberies (in one case 13 Safes in one vault) having been effected by this means.

HOBBS, HART & CO.,
LOCK, SAFE, AND STRONG-ROOM DOOR MANUFACTURERS
76 Cheapside, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

MANSION HOUSE CHAMBERS, 11 QUEEN VICTORIA STREET, LONDON, E.C.

First issue of Capital, £500,000, in Subscriptions of £1 and upwards. No further liability. Open to all. Each cash subscriber is entitled to interest in lieu of dividend, at the rate of £1 10s. per cent. per month, 18 per cent. per annum, which will be paid in Cash.

TRUSTEES.

Lieut.-General, J. H. GASCOIGNE, C.B., Ivybridge, Devon.
The Rev. W. F. GOOD, D.D., Newton Abbott, Devon.
Rev. C. HOPE ROBERTSON, Smeeth Rectory, Ashford.
HENRY WALKER, Esq., Fowler Height, Blackburn.

ACCOUNTANTS AND AUDITORS.

Messrs. R. W. HUDSWELL AND Co., 23 Martin's Lane, Cannon Street, London, E.C.

MANAGER AND PROPRIETOR. — RICHARD BANNER OAKLEY, F.R.G.S.

Current accounts opened, and 5 per cent. interest allowed on the minimum monthly balances. Cheque Books supplied. The Bank grants credits and issues circular notes for the Continent and America, and transacts every description of sound Financial Business.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street, ISSUES GUARANTEED CHEQUES for any sum not exceeding £20 against cash deposits, without any charge for commission, the penny stamp being the only expense. These are very convenient for persons not having banking accounts, or not wishing to draw small cheques. They are payable on demand at all the Branches of the Co-operative Credit Bank, or can be passed through any bank in ordinary course.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street, is NOW ISSUING PROMISSORY NOTES from £5 upwards, payable three months after date with interest at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum if held to maturity, or payable on demand without interest. These are very useful to persons requiring short investments, and are perfectly negotiable instruments.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The ONLY SAFE and FIRM SYSTEM of BANKING.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The PEOPLE'S BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—No Promotion Money or Preliminary Expenses.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Managerial Remuneration Dependent on Profits.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Profits on the whole amount of the Liability.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Minimum of Risk, its operations being spread over a variety of subjects.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—No Liability beyond amount of subscription.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The Secrecy and Despatch of Individual Management.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—A fixed instead of an uncertain Scale of Profits.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Eighteen per Cent. per Annum paid Monthly.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—A constantly accruing Reserve Fund.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Power of Total Withdrawal after six months on Sixty Days' Notice.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street, City.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Book-keeping in the hands of the Subscribers.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Quarterly published Balance-sheet issued and certified by the Subscribers' Accountant.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Current Accounts opened and Five per Cent. allowed on the Minimum Monthly Balances.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK. — Furnishes Cheque Books for Customers.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK grants Credits and issues Circular Notes for the Continent and America.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK transacts every description of Sound Financial Business.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK introduces Public Loans.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK promotes Public Companies of a bona-fide character.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK negotiates the Discount of Bills and Mortgages on a Small Commission.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK negotiates Loans on Deposit of Deeds and other valuable Securities.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK assists in the Development of Patents for Useful Inventions.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK undertakes on Commission the Purchase and Sale of Stocks and Shares.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street, near the Mansion House.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK accepts the Agencies of Foreign and Country Banks and Merchants, and of Foreign Governments.

IF YOU WANT TO HAVE YOUR BUSINESS done Cheaply and Expeditiously, go to the CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

IF YOU WANT TO BE TREATED WITH CIVILITY, lodge your Money with the CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

IF YOU WANT THE BEST AND MOST RELIABLE COMMERCIAL INFORMATION OF THE DAY, ask the Manager of THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK,
Mansion House Chambers,
11 QUEEN VICTORIA STREET, LONDON.

BRANCH OFFICES.—LIVERPOOL: Mr. E. Dronke, Batavia-builings, Hackins Hey. MANCHESTER: Messrs. Lawrenson & Co., 20 Barton Arcade. BLACKBURN: Henry Walker, Esq., Fowler Heights. BATH: Mr. H. J. Pocock, 4 Union Street. GLASGOW: Mr. J. Cameron, 32 West George Street. WARRINGTON: Messrs. Henry Walker & Son, Albert Works, School Braw. DENBIGH: Jas. A. York, Vale Street. AYR: Mr. Ramsay, Temperance Hotel, High Street.

Digitized by Google

SUBSCRIPTIONS ARE INVITED FOR 5,000 SHARES IN

THE BUFFALO HIDE HORSESHOE COMPANY, LIMITED.

Registered under the Companies' Acts, 1862 and 1867.

CAPITAL £60,000, IN 12,000 £5 SHARES FULLY PAID UP.

£1 on Application, the remainder on Allotment.

DIRECTORS.

JOSEPH JAMES SMITH, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, Manchester.
WILLIAM BIRCH COOPER, Esq., Durham Massey, Cheshire.
GEORGE HILL, Esq., Coal Merchant, Navigation Wharf, Manchester.
JAMES HASLAM, Esq., Veterinary Surgeon, Manchester.
ALBERT SEPTIMUS COX, Esq., Veterinary Surgeon, Altrincham, Cheshire.

BANKERS.

The MANCHESTER AND LIVERPOOL DISTRICT BANK, King-street, Manchester, and its Branches.

SOLICITORS.

Messrs. HAMPSON AND WALMSLEY, 60 King-street, Manchester.

MANAGING DIRECTOR.

JAMES HASLAM, Esq., M.R.C.V.S.

SECRETARY.

(Pro. tem.) Mr. THOMAS WINDER.

OFFICES.

(Pro tem) 60, King Street, Manchester.

PROSPECTUS.

The great want of a Shoe for Horses and other draught animals (so as to obtain a firm and solid foothold upon Asphalte and other smooth or slippery pavements, and to obviate roughing or sharpening in frosty weather; to reduce the jar or concussion the limbs are subjected to by the hoof striking the ground; to allow the hoof to expand and develop; to reduce the labour of the animals by diminishing the weight of the present unnatural and unwieldy iron shoe, and to add to their comfort), has long been felt by the community at large, but more especially by those who employ large numbers of horses, and also by "The Societies for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals."

Such a Shoe has been Invented and Patented by Mr. Yates, and is made from buffalo or other hides, rendered impervious to moisture under Patented Process. They are as durable as the iron shoe, one-third the weight, cheaper, and are neat and easily applied, and their application adds greatly to the comfort of the animal.

They are made from a material as nearly approaching the nature of the hoof as possible, and therefore are the most natural substance from which to form a shoe. They will maintain the integrity of the hoof in its natural form, and allow its freedom and development. They also assist in retaining a firm and solid foothold, and aid in the impulsive efforts required in the performance of work and movements, and will thus be invaluable in preserving the health of the animal shod with them.

This Company has been formed for purchasing and working the patent rights, titles, and interests for Great Britain, Ireland, and the Channel Islands of this Shoe, and for manufacturing and vending the same.

It is the intention of this Company to fit up works sufficient to manufacture these shoes, and to establish offices or stores in our principal cities for the sale of the same, where they will be able to supply sets much cheaper than iron shoes, and which can be readily applied by any smith or farrier.

Forms of application for shares may be obtained by applying to the Bankers of the Company, or to the Secretary.

H. D. RAWLINGS,

PURVEYOR OF MINERAL WATERS TO

H. R. H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.
H. R. H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH.
H. R. H. THE PRINCE CHRISTIAN.
THE LATE EMPEROR NAPOLEON III.

AND THE PRINCIPAL COURTS OF EUROPE.

Gold Medallist of the Societe Nationale Agricole Manufacturiere et Commerciale de Paris.

SODA, BRIGHTON, SELTZER and all other Mineral Waters for HOME CONSUMPTION and EXPORTATION.
PRICE LISTS on Application, at the Manufactory, Nassau-street, W.

ALFRED W. GEE,

ADVERTISING AGENT,

62, GRACECHURCH STREET,

LONDON, E.C.

London Gazette Notices, and Advertisements and Announcements of all kinds for English, Colonial, and Foreign Newspapers promptly inserted.

N.B.—In the case of an ordinary Advertisement ordered for insertion in a number of Newspapers, only one MS. copy need be forwarded. Same rates charged as at the Publishing Offices.

Printed and Published for the Proprietor by WILLIAMS & STRAHAN, 7 Lawrence Lane, Cheapside. OCTOBER 16, 1875.

Digitized by Google

The Accountant.

A MEDIUM OF COMMUNICATION BETWEEN ACCOUNTANTS IN ALL PARTS OF THE UNITED KINGDOM

VOL. I.—NEW SERIES.—No. 46.] SATURDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1875. [PRICE 6D.

THE

ACCOUNTANTS' DIARY

AND

DIRECTORY for 1876

Will be published in December next.

MEMBERS OF THE PROFESSION are particularly requested to send in at once their proper names and addresses for insertion in the Directory, to

ALFRED C. HARPER,

2 COWPER'S COURT, CORNHILL,

LONDON, E.C.

PRICE :—

Foolscap Folio .. 6s. By post 6s. 9d.

Medium Octavo .. 3s. „ 3s. 6d.

(Bound in Cloth.)

Orders and Advertisements received at the above address.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

39 BROAD-STREET, BRISTOL,

JUNE 24TH, 1875.

The PARTNERSHIP hitherto existing under the Style or Firm of HANCOCK, TRIGGS, & CO., having been DISSOLVED by mutual consent, I beg to give notice that I purpose henceforth to CARRY ON BUSINESS as a PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT at the above address.

PHILIP TRIGGS.

MESSRS. BARRETT AND PATEY,

PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS,

90 LONDON WALL, E.C.

HAVING removed from No. 8 Finsbury Circus, to more commodious offices at the above address, will be pleased to hear from Accountants resident in the provincial and manufacturing towns who require agents in London.

CHARLES LOWDEN, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT, RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY, BARROW-IN-FURNESS.

REFERENCES GIVEN.

LOVEWELL BLAKE, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT, RECEIVER, AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY.

SECRETARY TO THE GREAT YARMOUTH TRADERS' ASSOCIATION.

OFFICES: HALL QUAY CHAMBERS, GREAT YARMOUTH.

J. F. TITCHMARSH, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT AND AUDITOR,

17 PRINCESS STREET, IPSWICH.

RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY AND LIQUIDATION.

PUBLICATIONS.

Now Ready.

Third Edition, Revised and Enlarged, 8vo, cloth. Price 7s. 6d.

PRACTICAL BOOKKEEPING, Adapted to Commercial and Judicial Accounting.

By F. HAYNE CARTER, C.A., Edinburgh.

"A business book from a business man in a thoroughly business form." Daily Review.

"There are few points on which even experienced bookkeepers may not obtain some useful hints from this work."—Daily Mail.

"As bad bookkeeping and bankruptcy are closely related, we cordially recommend all who wish to keep an accurate record of their transactions to procure this work."—Edinburgh Courant.

J. MENZIES & Co., Edinburgh and Glasgow.

SIMPKIN, MARSHALL, & Co., London.

WILLIAMS & STRAHAN,

Legal, Accountancy, & General Printers,

MANUFACTURING STATIONERS, &c

7 LAWRENCE LANE, CHEAPSIDE, LONDON.

Bankruptcy Forms, Statements of Affairs, Dividend Notices, Balance Sheets, &c., printed with despatch.

STEAM PRINTING WORKS, LAMBETH, S.E.

TRANSLATIONS.

MR. ALFRED W. GEE,

BRITISH AND FOREIGN ADVERTISING AGENT,

62 GRACECHURCH STREET, LONDON, E.C.,

Begs to announce that in compliance with a wish expressed by some of the subscribers to the Accountant, he has made arrangements for the translation of legal and commercial documents, correspondence, &c., into the Principal European Languages. Members of the Profession are therefore respectfully informed that arrangements can be made for efficient and speedy translations into, or from, the French, German, Italian Spanish, and Dutch Languages on Moderate Terms.

Digitized by Google

MR. FERDINAND WOLFSKEHL,

BANKER,

9 STEINWEG, FRANKFORT A/MAIN, GERMANY,

CALLS THE ATTENTION of Investors to different Continental Government Securities, guaranteed by Acts of Parliament, through which Capital and Interest ARE SECURED BEYOND ANY DOUBT.

Every one of these Loans must be repaid as per Plan attached to each Debenture, within a limited number of years, by periodical Drawings, OFFERING ADVANTAGES PRESENTED BY NO OTHER SECURITIES, WITH BONUSES AT EACH DRAWING, varying from

£10 to £30,000.

For full particulars apply by letter, addressed care

MESSRS. WOLFSKEHL BROTHERS, BANKERS,

LORD STREET, LIVERPOOL.

MR. FERDINAND WOLFSKEHL announces the following Drawings:—

The 70th DRAWING of 1,400 IMPERIAL AUSTRIAN 1858 £10 CREDIT DEBENTURES, and the 42nd BONUS DRAWING of 1,500 IMPERIAL AUSTRIAN 4 per cent. 1854 £30 DEBENTURES took place on the 1st instant, at Vienna. The 9th BONUS DRAWINGS of 120 RAAB GRAZ 4 per cent. £15 1871 DEBENTURES, took place at Ofen on 1st instant.

He will Forthwith Cash or Exchange any of the above-mentioned Debentures against other Debentures, Stocks, Shares or Obligations.

To secure safe delivery of Letters, Mr. F. W. requests that all communications should be addressed care of

Messrs. WOLFSKEHL BROTHERS, Bankers,

3 LORD STREET, LIVERPOOL,

Of whom full particulars of the above Drawings can be had on application.

P S.—The Imperial Austrian 1858 Credit Debentures, Series 1,006, No. 78, drawing a Bonus of £4,000, has been sold by Mr. F. W. to a Gentleman residing in London.

Established 1843.

PERIODICAL SALE OF REVERSIONS, ANNUITIES, LIFE POLICIES, SHARES, &c.

MESSRS. MARSH, MILNER, AND Co., are preparing their printed particulars for the forthcoming Monthly AUCTION, which is held the FIRST THURSDAY in every month. To insure due publicity, particulars of Properties intended to be included in the next sale should be forwarded, without delay, to the City Land and Reversion Offices, 54 Cannon Street, London.

LAND, Domains, Mountain Ranges, Woods, Forests, and Important Residential Estates. Messrs. MARSH, MILNER, and Co., Land Valuers and Timber Surveyors, have a number of WEALTHY BUYERS DESIROUS of INVESTING in AGRICULTURAL, SPORTING, and RESIDENTIAL ESTATES. OWNERS of marketable properties wishing to effect advantageous sales are therefore invited to forward plans and particulars, which, when received, will be judiciously placed before intending purchasers, publicity being carefully avoided, and written terms settled before any cost or liability is incurred. Address Messrs. Marsh, Milner, and Co., Land and Timber Surveyors, 54 Cannon-street, London, E.C.

MESSRS. MARSH, MILNER, AND Co.'s REGISTER of LANDED ESTATES, Town and Country Residences, and property of every description, is published Monthly, and may be obtained at the Auction, Land, and Estate Agency Offices, 54 Cannon-street, E.C., or will be forwarded by post on application.

MORTGAGES promptly NEGOTIATED upon Landed Estates, City Properties, and upon sound securities of all kinds. Messrs. MARSH, MILNER and Co., have at the present time access to large sums of Money ready to be immediately advanced upon approved securities. Apply at the City Land and Reversion Offices (Established 1843), 54 Cannon-street.

The Accountant.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

The ACCOUNTANT is printed and published in time for Friday evening's mail; price 6d. per copy, or 28s. per annum (including postage), the reduced terms for payment in advance being: annual subscription 24s. (post free); half-yearly ditto, 13s. (post free). Cheques and Post-office orders to be made payable to Mr. Alfred W. Gee, 62 Gracechurch-street, E.C., to whom applications for advertisement space, and letters relating to the general business of the paper, should also be addressed. Literary communications should be directed to the Editor of the ACCOUNTANT at the same address, and in order to ensure insertion in the current number, correspondents are respectfully requested to forward their copy as early in the week as possible.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The Proprietor desires to call the attention of Advertisers to the special advantages offered by the paper as an Advertising medium. Starting with a good guaranteed circulation, and with the entire concurrence and hearty support of the leading members of the profession, the ACCOUNTANT has achieved a large measure of success in a wide field hitherto unoccupied by any professional organ. The ACCOUNTANT thus secures to Advertisers an excellent circulation of an exclusive character; and is particularly valuable as a medium for the announcements of members of the profession, as to Estates and Declaration of Dividends, and the appointment of Trustees and Receivers; for Publishers, Printers, Law Stationers, Auctioneers, and Estate Agents; for the Advertisements of Insurance and Public Companies; and for Notices as to Investments, Vacant Partnerships, &c. Advertisements intended for insertion in the current number, should reach the office on Thursday; late announcements can, however, be received up to 12 o'clock (noon) on Friday.

N.B.—Copies may be obtained at Messrs. W. H. Smith and Sons, Strand, at their numerous Railway Bookstalls, and at the Shops of the leading City and West-End Newsvendors.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.

In consequence of numerous applications from subscribers, the proprietor has made arrangements for the supply of CASES for holding and preserving the Accountant, which may be obtained at the office on the following terms:—In green cloth (well got up), with elastics, and "The Accountant" in gold letters on front, 3s. each; same in leather, 4s. 6d. each. Subscribers' names in gold lettering, 1s. extra. Post Office Orders payable to ALFRED W. GEE, 62 Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

The Accountant.

OCTOBER 23, 1875.

The rights of a trustee over the foreign property of a debtor seem to be somewhat obscure under the present practice, and the decision of Registrar Brougham in the application Re Wilson and Armstrong (reported last week) does not tend to make it any lighter. Messrs. Wilson and Armstrong, who were carrying on business as woollen warehousemen both in London and in Scotland, a country which, though for national purposes a part of our nation, is nevertheless in a judicial point of view a foreign country, failed on the 12th of July last, and on the 19th, Mr. Chatteris was appointed receiver and manager of the estate. Subsequently to this a sequestration was obtained by Mr. Armstrong of his estate in Scotland, and a trustee duly appointed. The majority of the creditors were decidedly in favour of having the estate wholly administered in England, and an application to that effect was made to the Court of Bankruptcy. The registrar, however, held that there was no evidence that the Scotch trustee was not doing his duty, and on this ground he refused to restrain him from proceeding to interfere any further with the Scotch assets.

Digitized by Google

We wish that such a question as this could be satisfactorily settled once for all. At present the Act seems to have introduced uncertainty where none existed before. The statute 6 George IV. c. 16, sec. 63, enables the commissioners to assign a bankrupt's property wheresoever the same might be found or known; and as by the Act, all property of the debtor vests at once in the trustees, and has done so ever since the Act of 1841, it follows that all property, wherever situate, whether in England or in a foreign country, vests at once in the trustees,—subject, of course, with regard to property abroad, to the laws of the State in which it might happen to be situated. On this question a case was decided which has never, so far as we are aware, been questioned, and which has been followed on more than one occasion, which conclusively lays down the rule of practice to be followed. In the Bank of Scotland v. Cuthbert, it was decided that "a commission of bankrupt vested in the assignees under it all the property of the bankrupt, wheresoever situated, precluding creditors in Scotland from attaching by sequestration the debtor's property remaining or situate in that country, and from administering it in a course of distribution under such process of sequestration," and that though the commission had no operative effect upon heritable property in Scotland, it imposed a legal obligation on the debtor to execute proper assurances for the purpose of vesting it in his assignees. The case we are referring to bears a very strong resemblance to the case above cited, as our readers will see by comparing our report of last week with the following short summary of the facts of the Bank of Scotland v. Cuthbert. Four traders were carrying on their business in partnership in both London and Scotland, two of the partners, indeed, residing and carrying on business on their own account in Edinburgh. The firm became bankrupt in London at the instance of the London partners, and it was held by the Scotch Court of Session, that the issuing of the commission of bankruptcy in London, vested the whole of the property of the bankrupts every where in the assignees, and was a complete bar to the proceedings under a sequestration, both as regards the partnership property and the separate estate of the debtors. It was held, too, that a Scotch sequestration would have just the same effect as regarded proceedings in bankruptcy,—the preference would be given to the court in which the earliest steps were taken; and further, that the certificate of the London Court of Bankruptcy operated as a valid discharge of all debts contracted in Scotland.

The Bankruptcy Act of 1861 authorised the assignees or trustees of debtors who have been adjudged bankrupt in any colony or dependency to obtain an order for adjudication in an English Court, upon simple production of a certified copy of the first order of adjudication. The present Act apparently omits this clause. In no respect, however, is the doctrine stated above altered, and the rules now stand as they are stated by Story in "The Conflict of Laws," namely that "An assignment under the bankrupt law of a foreign country passes all the personal property of the bankrupt locally situate, and debts owing, in England," and that "in England the same doctrine holds under assignments by her own bankrupt laws, as to personal property and debts of the bankrupt in foreign countries."

If we apply these rules to the case before us, we shall find that the following consequences will result. Firstly—by the proceedings in England the whole of the property of the debtors in Scotland would vest in their trustee, and, therefore, there would be no assets upon which a Scottish sequestration would operate; secondly—the sequestration ought to have been stayed, upon the production of proper evidence of the English proceedings; and lastly, the zeal or integrity of the Scotch trustee ought not to have been held to justify his proceeding to take upon himself the duties of his English colleague. It will be observed that Mr. Chatteris was not appointed trustee, but receiver and manager only. But a receiver, unless his powers are expressly restricted, is ordered to "collect, get in, and receive the property of the debtor, and to take immediate possession of such property;" and these words seem to cover property of every description. Any how, there seems a strange inconsistency in allowing proceedings to be carried on in two countries simultaneously, of course at a very considerable increase of expense. It is clear that the court which first takes seisin, so to say, of the matter, has the entire control of the business. It is clear also that the appointment of a trustee vests immediately all the debtor's property in him. Whether the interest of a receiver is co-extensive with that of a trustee or not, is for our present purpose immaterial. Either the whole of Messrs. Wilson's property vested in Mr. Chatteris, or it did not. In the former case, there was nothing left for the Scotch trustee to claim, and he had no business to interfere; in the latter case, the Scotch trustee takes every thing, and the London registrar would have no right to sit in judgment on his proceedings. At any rate, there seems a confusion here which it would be as well to have cleared up on the highest authority. There is one final observation as to the right of the court of bankruptcy to restrain by injunction. The extent of the jurisdiction conferred upon the court by the Act is most unrestricted. It has power to restrain proceedings in other courts, and to decide in the most ample manner questions of all kinds which had hitherto belonged to the exclusive cognisance of other courts. It is scarcely surprising that the Judges of the other courts have set their faces as far as they can against too great an extension of this jurisdiction; and it has been laid down that there is no power given over any property, or the owners of any property, which is not vested in the trustee. If, therefore, the appointment of a manager and receiver does not vest all property in him, the court cannot interfere to restrain the Scotch trustee from acting. If it did, then we conceive that it was bound to interfere. The Court of Chancery has interfered to stay proceedings in Scotland, and it is expressly provided in the 73rd and 74th sections of the Act, that an order made in an English court may be enforced in a Scotch one. But it might be as well for the creditors to come to a common understanding, and settle their respective priorities. Bankruptcy is an expensive business enough as it is, when carried on in one court only, and must be still more expensive when carried on in two. It seems evident that the debtor's property must have vested either in Mr. Chatteris or Mr. Lindsay, and according to the actual fact future proceedings ought to be governed. If the creditors like to authorise the appointment of joint receivers, they can do so openly; but at present they had better unite to decide the question of priority, otherwise they will find some knotty points are still left open.

Digitized by Google

Insurance Risks and the Indian Tour.—So many insurances have been effected on the life of the Prince of Wales by speculative persons, that the proposed Indian tour sent a twinge of alarm through the insurance offices. The Lancet affirms that the Prince undergoes no greater risks by visiting India than if he remained at home, and that the Indian climate from November to February is as healthy as that of England, if not more so. The Lancet adds this further assurance, that experienced members of the royal suite, and especially Dr. Fayrer, who has had extensive professional practice in India, may be trusted to utilise their intimate knowledge of the country and its diseases in order that the Prince may avoid malarious localities and other places where any source of danger might be apprehended. Some anxiety would be justified if, by any inducement, the Prince were to remain in India beyond what is considered the healthy season.

A Defaulting Cashier.—In March last Edward John Parry, a cashier in the employ of Messrs. Duncan, Ewing, and Co. timber merchants, Liverpool, absconded, his defalcations being said to amount to about £20,000. Parry was traced to Jamaica, and was detained by the authorities while Detective Maxwell, of the Liverpool police force, went there to bring him back. Maxwell duly arrived at his destination, received his prisoner, and returned to England. He landed at Plymouth, and instead of taking his prisoner to the Bridewell, he accompanied him to an hotel. There Maxwell fell asleep in the smoke room, and while he slept his prisoner escaped. On Monday morning Maxwell arrived in Liverpool, and was immediately put under arrest. He is now in Bridewell under a charge of neglect of duty. Nothing has been heard of the prisoner, for whose apprehension a reward of £100 has been offered.

Marine Assurances.—A Parliamentary paper has just been issued containing a copy of replies to questions from the English Government, concerning the law of foreign countries on the subject of marine insurance. The answers are from France, Austria, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, Italy, Germany, and the United States. The replies, except those from France and Belgium, are in the English language. With regard to the United States, it is stated, "policies are sued upon in the Common Law Courts almost invariably, although the Admiralty Courts have occasionally taken jurisdiction of such cases. That the latter Courts have not been more frequently resorted to, has no doubt been owing very much to doubts as to their jurisdiction; but it indicates also that the Common Law Courts have given satisfaction. In the latter Courts the trial is by jury." The English Government sent 24 questions to the foreign countries touching their law on marine insurance.

Digitized by Google

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY.

October 15.

(Before Mr. Registrar Spring-Rice.)

In re William John Coe.—This debtor, who is a jeweller and silversmith, of 37 Old Bond-street, has petitioned the court, estimating his liabilities at £9,000, against assets £6,500, stock, book debts, &c. Upon the application of Mr. George Lewis, jun., his Honour appointed Mr. J. G. Bennett, accountant, Great Marlborough-street, receiver of the estate, and granted an interim restraining order against a suing creditor, staying him from further proceedings at law for a week.

In re W. H. and J. R. Carter.—These debtors, who are the proprietors of the St. Helena-gardens, Rotherhithe, have filed a petition for liquidation on the statutory ground of inability to pay their debts, which are estimated at £6,000, with assets to the amount of £1,420. Mr. Hastings, from the firm of Nash, Field, and Matthews, now applied to the Court for the appointment of a receiver, and also for an interim injunction restraining eleven creditors from proceeding further with actions-at-law. His Honour granted the application, and appointed Mr. Julius Goodliffe, public accountant, Palmerston-buildings, receiver to the estate.

(Before Mr. Registrar Brougham.)

In re Thomas Standring.—This was a meeting held under this bankruptcy for the proof of debts and choice of trustee to the estate. The bankrupt, who has absconded, was a stockbroker, of Copthall-chambers, Copthall-court. Debts to the amount of upwards of £10,000 were proved, and Mr. T. W. Gilbert, Clement's-inn, accountant, was appointed trustee, with a committee of inspection. Mr. W. Patton is the solicitor to the proceedings.

In re J. Westwood and G. K. Hebden.—Mr. S. W. Baggs, (Baggs, Josolyne, and Clarke) was appointed trustee to the estate of these bankrupts, who are described as commission merchants, of 3 Mincing-lane. The statement of affairs shows liabilities £2,395 18s., against assets £222 17s. Debts to the amount of £2000 were proved against the estate.

October 16th.

(Before the Hon. W. C. Spring-Rice, sitting as Chief Judge.)

In re Henry Druitt and Co.—The debtors, Messrs. Henry Druitt and Charles Druitt, West Indian and South American merchants, carrying on business at 118 Fenchurch-street, have filed a petition for liquidation by arrangement. Their liabilities are returned at £80,000, of which £45,000 are secured, with assets, consisting of bills of exchange and book debts, of the estimated value of £5,000. Mr. Robson, for the petitioners, now asked that Mr. Henry Bishop, accountant, should be appointed receiver. The affidavits showed that the firm had been in the habit of receiving consignments of produce from the West Indies and South America, and it was anticipated that outstanding debts to a considerable amount would shortly be paid. His Honour appointed Mr. Bishop to act as receiver, and, as the majority of the creditors reside abroad, granted an extension for three months of the time allowed for the first meeting of creditors.

In re Ernest A. Smith.—On the application of Mr. Downing, his Honour appointed Mr. Winton, public accountant, to the office of receiver and manager to the estate of this debtor, who is an umbrella manufacturer, carrying on business at Queen Victoria-street, and also issued an injunction restraining suing creditors from proceedings at law. The liabilities are estimated at £11,000, against assets to the amount of £2,900, including £600 book debts.

A notice was issued on the 16th October, to the effect that on and after the 27th inst., the business of the Court at Basinghall-street and its various offices will be transacted at 33 and 34 Lincoln's-inn-fields.

October 19.

(Before Mr. Registrar Brougham, sitting as Chief Judge.)

In re Jacob L. Solomon.—The debtor, a dealer in works of art, carrying on business in Duke-street, Manchester-square, has filed a petition for liquidation by arrangement, and a majority of the creditors have appointed a receiver. A preliminary statement of affairs returns debts of £9,000, with assets, consisting principally of works of art, of which the value is not yet known. It appeared that after the presentation of the petition the Sheriff of Middlesex caused a levy to be made at the suit of two judgment creditors, and that he was still in possession of the premises. Mr. Brough, on behalf of the petitioner and receiver, now asked that an interim injunction should be granted to restrain further proceedings under the executions. His Honour granted the application.

(Before Mr. Registrar Spring-Rice.)

In re Charles Carnie.—The bankrupt, a merchant, of 25 New Broad-street, had been adjudicated upon the petition of the London and Westminster Bank, creditors for £1,600, upon a bill of exchange drawn by Messrs. Collie and accepted by the bankrupt. A first meeting was now held, when proofs amounting to £40,000 were admitted, and a trustee was nominated; but the creditors being unprepared to appoint a committee of inspection, an adjournment became necessary.

October 20.

(Before the Hon. W. C. Spring-Rice, sitting as Chief Judge.)

In re Oliph Leigh Spencer.—This was an application to register the resolution of the creditors to wind-up the estate of this debtor, who traded as a merchant at 28 Lisle-street, Leicester-square. The registration was opposed by Mr. Roberts, from the firm of Messrs. Wild, Barber, and Brown, who objected to the proof of Mr. L. Lewis, for three sums of £100, £90, and £65, on the ground that it was admitted that the debts were released. Before going into the objection the learned Registrar took one in limine to the proof because it did not state the time when the debt was contracted, and therefore, so far as voting purposes were concerned, it must be expunged. Mr. Debenham asked for an adjournment to give him an opportunity of examining the creditor, but his Honour refused to do so, observing that it was but common sense that a creditor should attend to prove his debt. The proof in question affecting the majority, the objection proved fatal to the registration, which was accordingly refused.

In re F. S. Hemming.—The debtor in this case was described as a gentleman, formerly residing at Lee, in Kent, and now of Belsize-terrace. He had embarked in building speculations, which had resulted in his filing a petition for liquidation. The accounts filed showed an indebtedness to the amount of £3,072, but the assets, consisting of the mortgaged property, were put down at over £3,300, including £2,067 surplus securities. A question now arose as to the right of the Plumstead Board of Works, to whom the debtor was liable for a sum of £38 5s. for paving, to vote as a creditor. No notice had been given of the first meeting to that body, and Mr. Richardson contended that no notice was required, the Board of Works being in the position of secured creditors; which was contested by Mr. Weitland, who contended that a charge for paving by the local board was not in the category of a parochial rate. It was admitted that if the Local Board of Works stood in the position of creditors, the statutory majority for the resolution was not obtained. His Honour eventually adjourned the case in order that the creditors might have an opportunity of ascertaining the wishes of the Plumstead Board of Works.

Digitized by Google

October 21.

(Before the Hon. W. C. SPRING-RICE.)

IN RE DAVID E. POWER.—This was a first meeting. The bankrupt was described as of 45 Abingdon-villas, Kensington, and his statement of affairs showed debts of £3,800, with assets £156. Several proofs having been admitted, Mr. R. Rabbidge, accountant, King-street, Cheapside, was appointed trustee, with a committee of inspection.

IN RE W. F. PORTLOCK DADSON.—This debtor, who is described as a banker and money lender, carrying on business in partnership at 301 Strand, as the Clarendon Bank, a retired captain in the Royal Marine Light Infantry, had presented a petition for liquidation, and at the meeting of the creditors resolutions were come to accepting a composition of 8s. 6d. in the pound, payable in three instalments. Last week an application was made to the court to register the resolution, but registration was refused on the ground that the debtor had declined to answer questions in relation to the proofs of his mother and sister. Mr. A. J. Shepheard now applied to his Honour for leave to hold a new first meeting, or, in the alternative, to file a fresh petition. He said his Honour would no doubt remember the circumstances of the case, as the application to register had come before him. He had been unable to attend on the registration, and therefore could not state the whole circumstances of the case. The fact was that the debtor had acted on his advice in not answering questions, but they were only in relation to two of the proofs; other questions he had answered. It was important that the matter should not go into bankruptcy, because on that taking place the debtor's interest, amounting to £420 a year under a marriage settlement, would cease, and also his salary of £70 a year as a member of her Majesty's Guard of the Honourable Corps of Gentlemen-at-Arms. The resolution for composition was supported by a considerable majority of the creditors, who preferred that to bankruptcy. Mr. Plews, on behalf of the North Kent Bank, opposed the application, and said he did so because his clients thought that more would be got out of bankruptcy. In fact, he believed that there was amply sufficient to pay 20s. in the pound, and the debtor did not make any better proposition now than he did before. His Honour said he was not disposed to act in opposition to the majority of the creditors, who seemed to prefer a composition. The fact as to the non-answering of the questions had been made more clear to him than on the previous occasion, and the refusal to register was upon an almost technical ground. He did not think that the description of the debtor was sufficient, inasmuch as his partners were not disclosed. He should, therefore, refuse to grant a new first meeting, but would give leave to file a new petition.

CITY OF LONDON COURT.

October 20.

(Before Mr. Commissioner KERR.)

BROOKS V. M'SHEEHAN.—The plaintiff, an accountant in the City, sought to recover £5 commission for obtaining a policy of assurance upon the life of Mr. George Augustus Hamilton Chichester, against the lives of Lord Edward Chichester and the Marquis of Donegall. The defendant pleaded a denial of his liability.—Mr. Mayhew appeared for the plaintiff; Mr. Chapman represented the defendant.—It appeared from the evidence on behalf of the plaintiff that in June last a Mr. Dyson had for sale a post-obit bond on the lives of the three above-named gentlemen, and consulted the plaintiff. He introduced the matter to the defendant, with whom the bond was left on the 15th of June, when the latter, who was represented as a gentleman of property, said he would consider the question of purchase, but would not definitely entertain it unless the life of Mr. George Augustus Hamilton Chichester was insured; but if that were carried out and the post-obit bond was purchased, he (the defendant) would "not mind parting with £5," and further, did not object to the plaintiff's estimated expenditure of one guinea in champagne on the occasion of bringing Mr. Chichester to town for the purpose of making the proposal to the assurance company. The defendant subsequently returned the bond to Dyson, but the plaintiff alleged that although he obtained an acceptance from the Emperor Assurance Society for the insurance of Mr. Chichester's life for £500, against the lives of Lord Edward Chichester and the Marquis of Donegall, the defendant failed to satisfy the plaintiff's claim.—Mr. Chapman, on behalf of the defendant, contended that the plaintiff must be non-suited. The defendant promised that if the bond were purchased in a short time after the introduction of the matter to him, and the life of Mr. Chichester were insured, he would entertain the matter, as time was of the essence of the bargain. As a consideration for the introduction he would have no objection to giving the plaintiff £5 for his trouble. In the interim between the introduction on the part of the plaintiff and the return of the bond to Dyson, he ascertained that Mr. Chichester's life had been proposed for insurance in the Albion Assurance Office, and had been rejected, whereupon the defendant refused to entertain the matter. Subsequently to that time the plaintiff obtained an acceptance by the Emperor Assurance Society, but he (Mr. Chapman) contended that if any contract existed between the parties the plaintiff had been too late in the fulfilment of his part of it.—The defendant was called, and corroborated the statement made by his solicitor.—His Honour ruled that the plaintiff had not made out a case to his satisfaction, and non-suited him.

SALFORD COUNTY COURT.

October 20.

(Before MR. J. A. RUSSELL, Q.C., Judge.)

The right of a bankruptcy registrar to refuse to register the resolutions of a creditors' meeting came before the Judge. The question arose in the case of Joseph Jackson, commission agent, Lower Broughton, who filed a petition in August last, and at the meeting of creditors resolutions were passed to liquidate the debtor's affairs by arrangement, appointing a trustee, and giving the bankrupt his discharge. Mr. Cobbett, solicitor, who appeared for himself and another creditor, objected to the registering of the resolutions, and the deputy-registrar (Mr. Lister) refused to register them. An application was yesterday made to the Judge by Mr. Best, solicitor, to vary the order made by the deputy-registrar. The creditors, he said, were of opinion that it was to their advantage that the estate should be liquidated by arrangement.—Mr. Cobbett opposed the application. He contended that the majority of the creditors could not bind the minority for the benefit of the debtor. The policy of the last act of Parliament was that the resolution of the majority must be for the benefit of the whole body of the creditors. In this case the debts were £973, and the assets £39; but the assets were swallowed up by the proceedings previous to the application to the deputy-registrar to register the resolutions, and the action of the majority of the creditors was for the benefit entirely of the debtor.—The Judge agreed with Mr. Cobbett that the result of the creditors' meeting ought to be for the benefit of the creditors; and remarking that here the assets were so small that practically there would be no dividend, dismissed the appeal with costs.

The receipts on account of revenue from the 1st April, 1875, when there was a balance of £6,265,322, to the 16th instant, were £37,894,687, against £36,973,467 in the corresponding period of the preceding financial year, which began with a balance of £7,442,854. The net expenditure was £43,965,543, against £43,566,073 to the same date in the previous year. The Treasury balances on the 16th instant amounted to £1,590,685, and at the same date in 1874 to £1,350,131.

Digitized by Google

HALIFAX COUNTY COURT.

October 13th.

(Before Mr. GIFFARD, Judge.)

EAST NORFOLK TRAMWAY COMPANY.—This was an action brought by the East Norfolk Tramway Company against William Alfred Pardoe, designer, Crown-street, Halifax, for the recovery of £11 13s. 9d., an amount alleged to be due on calls for two shares. Mr. Jubb appeared for the company and Mr. Storey for the defendant. It appeared from the evidence that the defendant applied for and became an allotee of two shares, upon which he had paid an allotment and a call to the amount of £6, and the action was brought in respect to calls which he had not paid. Mr. Jubb said he would call the registrar to the company to prove that the defendant was a registered shareholder, and that he had paid the first allotment and the first call. The judge said there was a decision of the supreme court to the effect that a call was due when it was made. Henry Kinduck, secretary to the company, produced the register and the number of the defendant's shares. The amount already paid by the defendant was £2 on application and £4 on allotment. The rules and regulations stated that £1 per share should be paid on application, and £2 on allotment. A resolution approved by the company was also read to the effect that every shareholder should be liable to pay the amount of call at the time appointed by the company, and another resolution of the Board that seven days' notice would be necessary previous to the demanding of a call. The company was formed in 1871, and the defendant paid the first call on the 8th September, 1873. The second call was made on 16th April, 1874. Mr. Storey demanded the minute-book, but the secretary said he had not brought a second book, and in consequence of that he would only be able to prove one call. Mr. Storey said he apprehended that the reason why only one minute-book was forthcoming was that there was not another. The secretary alleged that he had forgotten the other book. In answer to Mr. Storey, he further stated that about £200 had been actually subscribed in shares, and that 200 shares had been alloted. The defence was that the company had been formed for a specific object, and that object had not been carried out. In 1873 the only money the company could boast of was £404. It had been stated that a dividend had been declared, and the company had no right to declare a dividend. His Honour returned a verdict for £4, and £3 for travelling expenses on behalf of a witness who was not called.

A BRIGHOUSE BANKRUPTCY CASE.—Mr. Boocock, in the case of Alfred Clarke, who lately carried on business at Brighouse as a plumber, asked on behalf of the largest creditor, Mr. Edward Foster, that the bankrupt should be ordered to file an account of his receipts and payments within the dates of his two petitions. About twelve months ago, the bankrupt filed a petition in the court, and the costs of that were not yet paid. The bankrupt owed £400, and in that was included what was owing to his friends and his brother. His (Mr. Boocock's) client had lost £80 in four months, and could get no explanation as to where the goods were. Mr. Rayner (Messrs. Tennant and Rayner) appeared for the trustee, who he said was perfectly satisfied with what the bankrupt had done. The bankrupt did not wish to do any business with Mr. Foster, but the goods were thrust upon him. The judge said Mr. Boocock ought to have all reasonable accounts, and after some conversation it was decided that the case should be formally adjourned for a month, and in the mean time it might be settled.

SHARP PRACTICE.—RE HANSON, PICKLES, AND CO.—EX PARTE NORTH.—EXTRAORDINARY APPLICATION IN BANKRUPTCY.—This case was again before his Honour, when a long argument took place respecting costs in a certain motion in which the trustees, Messrs. C. T. Rhodes and J. I. Learoyd, were concerned. Mr. England appeared for the creditor on whose behalf the motion was made, and the trustees were represented by Mr. West, barrister, of Leeds, who was instructed by Mr. Godfrey Rhodes. Mr. England said the motion originally was to commit the two trustees to prison for contempt in the disobedience of an order of the court directing them to pay a sum of money. But the trustees had sent a cheque for the amount of his Honour's order, and the motion now came before the court on a question of costs. This was a material question, as his client was a poor man, and he hoped his Honour would make an order granting the costs. On the 28th of September an order was made by consent that the trustees should within seven days of the "service" of the order pay £30 to the creditor. No time was lost on the part of the creditor, and on the 29th of September an office copy of the order was sent by request to the solicitor to the trustees. Mr. West: My friend is quite out of order in saying that that was done at the request of Mr. Rhodes. Mr. England said that on the 28th of September the order was made that the trustees should pay the money; the order was sent to the solicitor of the trustees, whose clerk wrote in reply, "I am in the receipt of copy of order. The trustees' cheque shall be sent to you to-morrow." That was the 29th. On the 2nd of October a letter was written to the effect that the trustees had not sent the cheque. On the 7th of October they wrote to ask if the order was to be enforced, and stating that that was the third letter which had been written since the order was made. On the 8th of October, the solicitor to the trustees wrote that one of them was away from home, but on his return he had no doubt that the cheque would be sent. The solicitor also stated that there had been no necessity to write three letters. The solicitor to the trustees was right as to one of the trustees being away, but it was not stated when he would return. There was no reason why the matter should have stood over from the 28th of September, and he asked for costs because, as he had stated, his client was a poor man. Mr. West opposed the motion, and said he should ask for costs against it, and he must take up a little time in relating the facts of the case, inasmuch as Mr. England had put it on account of the poverty of his client. His client was a poor man, and could not afford to wait for this money, but there was fortunately his examination on the file of the court, and from that examination the facts appeared to be these: That one of the partners in Hanson, Pickles and Co., was leaving the firm, and he was paid by the remaining partners £209 in promissory notes or bills. Mr. North, knowing, as he told them, that the partners were in difficulties, and that the first bill had not been met, said, "I bought these promissory notes out and out for the sum of £20." This poor man, one of the bills being dishonoured, and two others being likely to share the same fate, could pay £20 for them. The man's poverty was hardly the subject of that strong remark which Mr. England had made. The trustees naturally rejected his proof of £209. The matter came before his Honour, and they had it that his Honour said it was a very suspicious case indeed, and should be tried by a jury; but in order to save costs there was an agreement between the solicitors that £30 should be taken by Mr. North without costs, the money to be paid in seven days. Now there was a motion seeking to commit the two trustees to prison. He (the learned counsel) always understood the rule to be that an order of which process of imprisonment was to follow must be personally served upon the person against whom the order was made, and he should ask his friend, before he continued with his motion, to show that he personally served that order of the 28th upon the two trustees. It had been admitted that such had not been done, but that a copy of the order was sent to the solicitor to the trustees. He (the learned counsel) should show that that never came to the notice of the trustees. The solicitor was not the proper person to receive the order. The order itself stated that the money was to be paid within seven days "after service." There had been no "service" or "acceptance of service" as his friend alleged, up to that time. There was merely an acknowledgment by the solicitor's clerk that they had received the copy order, and promising the trustees' cheque the day after, but on inquiry, it was found that one of the trustees was away and an intimation sent to that effect, and that a cheque would be forwarded on his return, but neither he nor his principal had requested the order to be sent to them. He ought to say that the solicitor himself was away. Mr. Learoyd was on the Continent, and he said, "I do not know when he will come back." On the 8th of October, before this notice of motion was filed, the managing clerk of Messrs. Norris, Foster, and England called upon Mr. C. T. Rhodes, and asked for payment. The whole of the affidavit of Mr. Rhodes on this point was read; the salient features of the affidavit were that Robert Edward Evans called at his office, produced a document signed by Charles North appointing him one of the proxies, and to demand £30. Mr. Evans said if the money was not paid he should file the document in the court on the following morning, but said nothing about any intended application to the court. The trustee did not dispute his authority to receive the amount, but said his co-trustee was out of town, and when he came back the cheque should be sent. That they did not know up to that moment that the money was ordered to be paid within seven days—that Mr. Learoyd was away when the matter was before the court—that he could not give him a cheque himself alone, because the resolutions required all acts to be done jointly. Mr. Rhodes, in his affidavit, further stated that he called at the office of his co-trustee immediately afterwards, and was informed that he would be there on the following day. He left a message with Mr. Learoyd's clerk that immediately on his return Mr. Learoyd should draw a cheque for £30, he (Mr. Rhodes) would sign it, and it should be sent to the office of Messrs. Norris, Foster, and England. Mr. Rhodes wrote to these gentlemen to the effect that he could not get a cheque that day because his co-trustee was out of town, and all things must be done jointly between the two trustees. There was nothing there, continued the learned counsel, like a refusal to pay, quite the contrary; but Messrs. Norris, Foster, and England, instead of acknowledging the letter, filed the notice of motion, though a cheque was signed in the course of the day, and would have been paid that day, even had the notice not been filed. The cheque was signed within seventeen hours of the trustees' personally knowing that the money was to be paid.—This was proved by the sworn evidence on the file.—Mr. England denied that the cheque was sent on the 9th. Mr. West said it was signed and sent on the 9th, and there was an affidavit that it was received on the 11th, Sunday intermitting. On a matter of form this motion must fail on the ground that there was no personal service, and he must ask for costs, the usual result when motions failed. A long argument ensued, in the course of which his Honour said there had been some sharp practice on the side whence the application came, and expressed his abhorrence of it. Ultimately the motion was dismissed, and the judge ordered the trustees' costs to be paid by the applicant.

Digitized by Google

At the Sheffield Town Hall, last week, Mr. Clegg, on behalf of the directors of the Sheffield Loan and Investment Company, made an application to the stipendiary for a warrant for the apprehension of Mr. C. Colgrave, the secretary of the company, who is described as an accountant, carrying on business in Sheffield. On the evening of the 30th September, he received a cheque from the directors amounting to £448 15s., with which he was to meet some applications for loans. The cheque was cashed on the following day by Colgrave, who left the town, and was now in a foreign country. The stipendiary granted the application.

PROSECUTION OF BANK DIRECTORS.

On Monday, at the Justice-room of the Mansion House, Mr. John Axtell Deacon Cox, of 31 St. John's Wood-park; Mr. Henry James Godden, of 168 Fenchurch-street; Mr. James Hole, of Great College-street, Westminster; Mr. Alfred Marsh, of 85 Gracechurch-street; Mr. W. Archer Redmond, M.P., of 12 Cambridge-terrace, Hyde-park; Mr. W. Jones, of Woodberry-lodge, Stamford-hill; and Mr. William Russell Crowe, of 35 Lombard-street, appeared before the Lord Mayor on a summons, at the instance of Mr. Charles Oldacre Pulley, farmer, of Latchington, near Maldon, charging them with having in January and February last, being respectively directors and the manager of a public company, called the City and County Bank (Limited), incorporated under the Companies' Acts, 1862 and 1867, unlawfully made, circulated, and published, or concurred in making, circulating and publishing, a certain written statement and account—namely, the prospectus and a report and balance-sheet of that company—well-knowing it to be false in certain material particulars, with intent thereby to induce Mr. Pulley to become a shareholder in the concern.

Mr. George Lewis, jun., solicitor, conducted the prosecution; Mr. Poland acted as counsel for the defendants Messrs. Godden and Marsh; Mr. Straight for Mr. Hole; Mr. Kemp for Mr. Crowe; Mr. Digby Seymour, Q.C., and Mr. Thomas for Mr. Jones; Mr. Plunkett, solicitor, for Mr. Redmond, M.P.; and Mr. W. H. Roberts, solicitor, for Mr. Cox.

The hearing excited great interest, and the court was much crowded.

Mr. George Lewis, in opening the case for the prosecution, said, addressing the Lord Mayor, that he appeared on behalf of Mr. Pulley, a farmer living near Maldon, in Essex, to support a charge which had been made upon sworn information duly filed. That charge practically was that the defendants, being either directors, managing directors, or sub-manager of a bank in the City, were parties to the issuing of a false prospectus, reports, and balance-sheet of that concern with a view of deceiving the public and inducing them to take shares in the bank. So far as the gentlemen who had surrendered were concerned, it was but fair to state that they were persons of position and of the highest possible character, and the court, therefore, started with the assumption of the infinite improbability that they would commit such an act of deceit as that charged against them. Up to that transaction all the defendants, as he had every reason to believe, had borne an irreproachable character. The facts of the case were very simple, and he thought it would not be contested for a moment that a false prospectus, false reports, and false balance-sheets had been issued. The real question, so far as he could anticipate, would be who was responsible for the acts which were the subject of the present inquiry. (Mr. Digby Seymour, Q.C., interposing, asked that it might not be taken for granted that that was the only question.) Mr. Lewis, proceeding, said the City and County Bank was started in 1872, and took over another bank or building society with which the defendant Mr. Jones was connected. Its nominal capital was £500,000, but from its formation to its stoppage a very small portion of that sum had only been taken up. It had offices in Abchurch-lane, next door to its bankers, Messrs. Brown, Jansen and Co. To that firm it had ever been and still was largely indebted. In January, 1874, the attention of the prosecutor, Mr. Pulley, was called to a prospectus of the bank, issued by the directors through Messrs. Brown, Janson and Co., which represented the concern to be in active and successful operation, its business enabling the directors to declare dividends of 5 and 6 per cent. respectively in the two preceding half years, and to have been carrying on a successful trade. By those representations he was induced to take 100 shares of the nominal value of £500, upon which he paid up £250. The next report and balance-sheet issued, for the half-year ending the 30th of June, 1874, represented the bank not only as perfectly solvent, but also as having earned a gross profit of £2,751 odd. So far, however, from that being a correct representation, he found that in the assets, under the terms "Bills discounted, advances on security, current and other accounts," were included bad debts and overdrawn accounts amounting to upwards of £20,000, no sum at all, in reality, having been written off for bad debts. Moreover, the item of "Cash on hand and at bankers of £18,225" was, he submitted, entirely fictitious, it having been created by means of a fictitious loan on the 30th of June of £15,000, which was written off again on the 1st of July, and the debit balance against the bank thus disappeared by such means, bnt re-appeared on the 1st of July. In fact, it was a mere ledger entry, and no money passed. The same process was, he said, observable in the balance-sheet of December 1874, and the banker's pass-book produced showed no entry of any loan. The complaint of the prosecutor against the defendants was that the bad debts and overdraughts had increased to £35,000, but appeared in the item "Bills discounted," &c., as good assets, and by such means the bank was represented to have made a gross profit for the half-year of £4576 odd. He argued that if the bad debts had been written off, the bank was practically insolvent, and in fact had made a loss, instead of a profit. As an illustration of that, he stated that if the larger London banks had not written off the losses by the Collie failures, they could have continued to show their usual profits, and pay their accustomed dividends. He drew attention to the details of what was called the bad debt account, showing that over-draughts of 1873-74 and dishonoured bills against which dividends had been received had been treated as good assets, and in some instances the half-year's profit increased by charging interest on some of these accounts. Mr. Pulley, the prosecutor, upon all these representations, took altogether 200 shares, in respect of which he paid £400, and was now liable for the uncalled portion of £600. Mr. Lewis added that, so far as Mr. Pulley's inquiries were concerned, the defendants were gentlemen of high character, and that if they could explain the circumstances to the Lord Mayor's satisfaction, no one would be more pleased than the complainant, who had undertaken the prosecution from no feeling of retaliation, but in the public interest, and, until explained, he considered he was bound to call upon the defendants to abide by his Lordship's decision. Subsequent to the last balance-sheet a further prospectus was issued, inviting applications for 7,300 shares, and attention was called in it to the circumstance that the bank from its formation had paid dividends of 5, 6 and 7 per cent. The business was represented as profitable, and the bank as in active and successful operation. This occurred in February 1875, and a great number of shares were taken up; but on the 12th of May the bank suddenly stopped payment, and its affairs had since been ordered to be liquidated by the Court of Chancery.

Digitized by Google

Mr. F. W. Lewis, from the office of the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies, produced the memorandum and articles of association of the City and County Bank (Limited), which, he said, was registered on the 20th of April, 1872. The paid-up capital was represented to consist of 11,736 shares, on which a call of £2 10s. per share had been paid, making £22,182 odd, and the unpaid calls £7,157 18s. Among the shareholders was the name of Mr. Charles Pulley, of Latchington, farmer, for 100 shares. Replying to Mr. Digby Seymour and Mr. Straight, witness said by the articles the directors were entitled to £500 a year each. In September, 1874, the defendant Mr. Hole appeared to have 200 shares; the defendants Messrs. Cox, Godden, and Marsh, 200 each; Mr. Redmond, 300, and Mr. Jones, 605. Up to September, 1874, when he transferred some, Mr. William Russell Crowe held 18, having previously held 79.

Mr. Pulley, the prosecutor, was called as a witness. He said,—I am a farmer at Latchington, near Maldon. My attention was first called to the City and County Bank in January, 1874, by the receipt of its prospectus. In consequence of that I applied for 100 shares, and paid £250 in all in respect of them to Brown, Jansen, and Co. In June, 1874, I received a copy of the balance-sheet of the bank for the half-year ending June. I had attended the meeting at which the balance-sheet was passed, the defendant, Mr. Godden, being in the chair. The report was adopted, and the balance-sheet passed unanimously; I being present, and thinking every thing was straightforward. In January 1875, I received the balance-sheet for January 1874, and in February my dividend of 7 per cent. I afterwards saw the prospectus asking the public to take up a further issue of shares, in consequence of which I applied for 100 more shares, through Mr. Field, my stockbroker, and paid the calls, amounting to £150. I am now the holder of 200 shares. I took the new shares in February, 1875. If I had known the balance represented to be in hand was not a true statement, I should certainly not have taken the shares. I believed the statement in the prospectus and balance-sheet to be correct. I am the prosecutor in this case. The bank stopped payment on the 12th of May, 1875.

Mr. Poland, and other legal gentlemen representing the defendants, intimated to the Lord Mayor that they would reserve the cross-examination of the witness to a future occasion.

Mr. Arthur William Blunt, managing clerk to Messrs. Hart Brothers, public accountants, of 57 Moorgate-street, deposed that Mr. Hart was appointed the official liquidator on the petition to wind-up the affairs of the bank, and in that character the books came into his possession, where they remained about three months. Mr. Price was now the official liquidator, and the books were now in his possession. Witness in that capacity had access to the books. The balance-sheet made up to December, 1874, showed the cash at the bankers to be £9,019 18s. 8d. Messrs. Brown, Jansen, and Co. were the bankers, as appeared by the books. Looking to the ledger under date of the 30th of December, 1874, the state of the account between the bank and Messrs. Brown, Jansen and Co., showed that the latter were creditors for £9,456 on that day. From July, 1874, Messrs. Brown, Jansen, and Co. always appeared to be creditors. They were on the 2nd of July, 1874, creditors for £5,673 15s. The bankers' pass-book showed that on the 30th of December, 1874, there was a balance to the credit of the account of £9,882. On the 31st of December there was placed to the credit of the bank in the ledger an entry of £13,151, including the loan account with Brown, Jansen, and Co., amounting to £10,400. On the same day £2,087 1s. 8d. was paid out. There remained in the hands of Brown, Jansen, and Co. £1,647 3s. 5d., and the balance, £9,456 0s. 2d., disappeared. Referring to the bankers' pass book, he found no such sum as £10,400 credited to the City and County Bank, nor could he trace any such money to have passed through the account. On the 31st of December, according to the pass book, the bank had overdrawn to the amount of £8,791. On the 1st of January, 1875, the balance of £1,647 3s. 5d. was carried down in the ledger. There were payments in on that day of £1,486 18s. 1d., and payments out of £12,392 14s. 11d., including the sum of £10,400. Messrs. Brown, Jansen, and Co. were then creditors to the amount of £9,708 13s. 5d. There was no entry in the pass book of a payment out on the 31st of December of £10,400. Messrs. Brown, Jansen, and Co. continued creditors to the stoppage of the bank, when the balance due to them was £7,186 2s. 6d. On the 29th of June, 1874, that firm were creditors for £3,864 16s. 4d. On the 30th of June, according to the cash book, there was a payment in to the credit of the bank of £18,407. In that was included a loan of £15,000 made by Messrs. Brown, Jansen, and Co. On the 1st and 2nd of July there appeared to have been payments in to the amount of £745 13s., and payments out of £2,737 8s. 7d., and

Digitized by Google

£16,831 6s. 11d., including in the latter item the loan of £15,000. On the 2nd of July Messrs. Brown, Jansen and Co. became creditors again for £5,763 15s. The account of that firm in the bank books was never in credit, except on the day when the balance-sheets were made up. On the 30th of June, 1874, the loan of £15,000 was entered in the pass book, and on the 1st of July it was paid off with £2 1s. 1d. interest. On the 31st of December, 1874, the bank books showed that the amount of over-draughted accounts and dishonoured bills of customers was £35,460 19s. 8d. That sum was included as assets in one of the balance-sheets in the amount of £98,682 2s. 1d., described as "bills discounted, advances on security, current and other accounts."

At this stage of the examination—the witness not having concluded the evidence he had to give—the Lord Mayor adjourned the further hearing of the case until Monday, the 1st of November, admitting in the mean time the defendants, Messrs. Cox, Godden, Hole, Marsh and Redmond to bail, on their own recognisances, each in £1,000; Mr. Jones on his own recognisances in £1,000, and two sureties in £500 each; and Mr. Crowe on his own recognisances of £500, and two sureties in £250 each.

Mr. Roberts, solicitor, acting for Mr. Cox, assured the Lord Mayor his client had a complete answer to the charge.

Mr. Digby Seymour, speaking on behalf of Mr. Jones, said he was sure when the matter came to be thoroughly investigated it would vanish into thin air.

The Court then adjourned.

In the above report a witness, Mr. F. W. Lewis, is reported to have said that "by the articles the directors were entitled to £500 a year each." This, we are requested by Mr. J. Pettengill to state, is not correct. The "total remuneration of the directors collectively, as fixed by the articles of association, was £500 in each year, so long as the dividends paid by the company did not exceed 5 per cent. per annum, and was to increase at the rate of £500 per annum for every 1 per cent. per annum declared and paid as dividend, until the directors' remuneration in any one year reached £2,000. For two years before the order to wind-up the bank was made, the directors were entitled to take £1,500 each year as their remuneration."

MESSRS. COLLIE.

Mr. William Collie on Monday surrendered to his bail at Guildhall before Sir Thomas White to answer the charge which had been made against him and his brother, Mr. Alexander Collie, of having conspired together to defraud the London and Westminster Bank of over £300,000 by means of false pretences.

Sir Henry James and Mr. Poland, instructed by Messrs. Travers, Smith and Co., prosecuted; and Mr. Serjeant Ballantine and Mr. Pollard, instructed by Messrs. Hollams, Son and Coward, appeared for the defendant.

Sir Henry James said that six weeks had elapsed since the last adjournment of this case, and probably it would be felt by the court and every one connected with it, that the time had come when those who appeared for the prosecution should state what course they proposed to pursue in relation to it. When the directors of the London and Westminster Bank instituted this prosecution, they had, as they still had, but one desire, which was that the allegations put forward on the part of the prosecution should be heard and determined by a jury. As the court was aware, since this prosecution had commenced Alexander Collie had absconded, and his bail had been forfeited; and that having occurred, those who were the legal advisers of the London and Westminster Bank had thrown upon them the responsibility of determining what would be the best course to take in order that the ends of justice should not be defeated. Not only had he and his learned friend Mr. Poland had to consider this matter, but they had also had the able judgment and great experience of Mr. Hardinge Giffard. They perceived, of course, it was very advantageous to co-conspirators to be tried separately, and it had been felt, therefore, that if the trial of William Collie was proceeded with in the absence of Alexander Collie, there would be a substantial benefit accruing to both the defendants in being thus tried separately. Now, of course, the absconding of Alexander Collie was a matter which ought not to cast any obstacle in the way of the prosecution, and as far as the prosecution could defeat the act of his absconding, they were determined to do so, and therefore they had come to the conclusion that it would not be advisable, in order that the ends of justice might be carried to their proper limits, to allow the prosecution of William Collie to come to an end until all hopes of arresting Alexander should be abandoned. How far those hopes were likely to be realised there were many reasons for not stating at present. He would only mention that the directors trusted before long there would be an opportunity of trying both the defendants together. It was thought the practical course to be taken should be either now to remand the defendant for an indefinite period until he should receive notice to attend, or to remand him for a definite period, say two months, if that should meet his learned friend's views on the subject. He had only to add that, however much the absconding of Alexander Collie had defeated the ends of justice, and, looking back upon the matter now, however much one might regret that he was allowed to go at large on bail at all, this being a common-law conspiracy, he was entitled to bail; and, speaking with the utmost deference to the court, it was not a matter of discretion left to any one, for they were entitled to it by right. Whether the course taken by the Bank in not going on with the prosecution against William Collie at the present time was the most advisable or not, it was one the responsibility of which rested with the legal advisers of the London and Westminster Bank, and not upon the directors individually.

Mr. Serjeant Ballantine said he cordially concurred in some of the remarks made by his learned friend, especially that relating to bail. He never imagined for one moment that the bench had power to refuse bail in cases of the present description, and he considered that Messrs. Collie only obtained that which was a legal and a constitutional right in being admitted to bail. After the observations of his learned friend, he did not propose to refer at any length to the question as to whether William Collie was so implicated in those proceedings that his connexion with Alexander Collie would in any way make him criminally responsible; at the same time, when his learned friend said—and his position at the bar made every thing he said of importance and authority—that the ends of justice might be frustrated by this matter being terminated at the present moment, he, on the part of William Collie, would offer no objection to a further postponement. He concurred with Sir Henry James that the postponement should be for two months. It was not uncustomary, and he thought not improper on the present occasion, to beg that persons would withhold their judgment. It was not the fault of William Collie that this matter was postponed to an indefinite time. He did not by any means like those cut and dried observations that there was an answer to the charge; but if the trial ever did come on, he was prepared to answer the charge, having had materials supplied to him which gave him great confidence and hope that he would be able to successfully answer it.

Sir Thomas White quite concurred in the observations made by the learned counsel, and he believed that the course suggested was the only one and the best to adopt in order to attain the ends of justice. He wished to know what was to be done with regard to bail.

Digitized by Google

Mr. Serjeant Ballantine said that would be arranged between Mr. Travers Smith and Mr. Hollams.

Sir Henry James said the bail was perfectly satisfactory.

The bail were then taken, and they were Mr. George Yule, 93 Bishopsgate-street, City, and Mr. Charles Snell Paris, No. 10 St. James's-street, Westminster. The amount was fixed, the same as before—the two sureties in £2,000, and the defendant in £4,000.

The case was then adjourned until Monday, the 13th of December next.

CREDITORS' MEETINGS.

A. Cohn (London).—At a meeting of the creditors of Mr. Albert Cohn, of London and Leeds, the liabilities were stated at £69,620 6s. 1d., and assets at £27,853 8s. 1d. It was unanimously resolved to accept a composition of 7s. in the pound, at two, four, six, and eight months. Messrs. Lovering and Co., accountants, and Messrs. Rooks, Kenrick, and Co., and Messrs. Sampson and Burrice, solicitors, represented the various interests.

F. Day (Sheffield).—A meeting of the creditors of Francis Day, accountant and coal merchant, formerly a partner in the Cardigan Iron and Steel Company Limited, and also the treasurer in the Burngreave Funding Societies, was held at Sheffield on Monday. Mr. Wm. Smith, president of the Chamber of Commerce, was voted to the chair. The statement of accounts showed that the total liabilities amounted to £9,898; and of this amount the unsecured creditors were £5,208 7s. 1d., and creditors partly secured came to £1,307 10s. The assets were put down at £2,292 7s. 6d. A considerable portion of this sum is for book debts, many of which, it is believed, will not go into the estate, but will belong to the Burngreave Funding Societies. The debtor was submitted to a very long examination as to his connection with the societies, which are now in an insolvent condition. He declined to pledge himself as to their position until he had concluded a statement of their affairs, on which he was now engaged. He admitted that he had banked the societies' money with his own, and had also paid it away with his own. It was stated that from £3,000 to £4,000 of the societies' money was still unaccounted for, although it had been received by him. He explained that much of it had been lost upon bad loans, and said he believed he should be able to show that the societies were indebted to him and not the reverse. A proposition that the estate should be wound-up in bankruptcy was advocated by the chairman and several other gentlemen, on the ground that the particulars revealed at the meeting showed that further investigation of the debtor's conduct was needed. An amendment that the estate should be wound up by liquidation was carried by a large majority.

J. Whittaker (Manchester).—At the second meeting of the creditors of Mr. John Whittaker, of Barnes Green, Blackley, near Manchester, trading there as "Bradshaw and Whittaker," as a builder and contractor, held on Monday at the offices of Messrs. Hinde, Milne, and Sudlow, 7 Mount-street, Manchester, the resolutions passed at the first meeting, accepting a composition of 10s. in the pound by three equal instalments, at three, six, and nine months, and appointing Mr. H. G. Nicholson, of 100 King-street, in this city, public accountant, the trustee, and Messrs. Hinde, Milne, and Sudlow, the solicitors, were confirmed, the latter being intrusted to register the resolutions.

J. S. Stower (Liverpool).—A meeting of creditors under the failure of Mr, John Stevens Stower, of Harrington-street, Liverpool, oilman, was held at the offices of Messrs. Gibson and Bolland, South John street, Liverpool, on the 20th instant. The statement of accounts showed liabilities £1,675, and assets, after deducting preferential claims, £1,393. A proposal on the part of the debtor of 10s. in the pound, in four and eight months, unsecured, was refused, and after some discussion it was determined to liquidate the estate by arrangement and appoint Mr. Bolland trustee, with power to dispose of the estate for 10s. in the pound, provided it was paid in three and six months. It was further resolved that the debtor should have his discharge on the trustee certifying that he had made a full and true disclosure of his estate.

B. von Bartels and Co. (Bradford).—A meeting of the creditors of B. Von Bartels and Co., stuff merchants, of Bradford, was held on the 20th instant, at the Victoria Hotel. The statement of affairs showed liabilities £8,225; assets not known. It was resolved to liquidate by arrangement, Mr. H. Dickin, of Bradford, being appointed trustee.

Baum, Sons and Co.—At a meeting of creditors of Messrs. Baum, Sons and Co., of Lombard-street, money changers, held on Wednesday, the statement of affairs showed liabilities to rank £18,087 0s. 3d., and general assets £2,966 16s. 4d. The composition offered of 3s. 4d. in the pound was not accepted, and it was resolved to liquidate by arrangement, Mr. James Waddell being appointed trustee, with a committee of creditors.

Heywood, Lymer, and Co. (Manchester).—The creditors of George Frederick Heywood and John Lymer, trading as Heywood, Lymer, and Co., of 25 Piccadilly, Manchester, importers of ribbons, and silk merchants, held a meeting on the 20th instant, at the offices of Messrs. Sale, Seddon, and Sale, solicitors, when the following statement, prepared by Mr. David Smith, accountant, Brown-street, was submitted:—

LIABILITIES.

	£	s.	d.	£	s.	d.
To creditors unsecured				£23,011	14	10
Creditors fully secured	£34	2	9
Value of securities	111	18	0
Surplus	£77	15	3
Creditors for rent, &c.				32	18	4
On bills discounted, £5,646 1s. 1d., of which it is expected will rank against the estate				500	0	0
				£23,544	13	2

ASSETS.

	£	s.	d.
Stock at warehouse	£8,014	5	0
Book debts, £5,339 2s. 5d., estimated to realise	4,761	12	3
Cash in hand	255	17	11
Bills of exchange, estimated to produce	216	11	10
Furniture at warehouse, estimated at	60	0	0
Surplus, per contra	77	15	3
	£13,386	2	3

After a discussion the meeting was adjourned, and in the mean time the receiver, Mr. Smith, to act under four of the principal creditors, who were appointed a committee.

FAILURES.

England.—Messrs. E. L. Aves and Co., of 134 Leadenhall-street, provision and wine merchants, have filed a petition for liquidation, the liabilities being estimated at £17,000; assets at present unascertained. Mr. William Cornish Cooper, of 7 Gresham-street, E.C., public accountant, has been appointed receiver and manager by the creditors.—The suspension is announced of Messrs. E. Smyth and Co., of 98 Queen Victoria-street, E.C., umbrella manufacturers, with liabilities of over £11,000; assets not ascertained. The books are in the hands of Messrs. Minton, Boyes, and Child.—A petition for liquidation has been filed in the Manchester County Court by Frederick William Ewen, of

Digitized by Google

22 Dale-street, Manchester, merchant and agent, trading under the style or firm of F. W. Ewen and Co., and of 232 Oldham-road, Manchester, and Barlow Moor, Didsbury, near Manchester, retail draper. The liabilities are stated at £10,000.—Messrs. Roger Bolton and John Kay Bolton, drysalters, 4 Glover's-court, Preston, and 23 Argyle-street, Liverpool, have filed a petition for the liquidation of their affairs. Their joint liabilities are stated to be £13,115 17s. 4d.; and the private liabilities of Mr. R. Bolton £145 18s. 7d., and those of Mr. J. K. Bolton £69 18s. As yet there is no estimate of the amount of assets. Mr. Henry Davies, accountant, Preston, is appointed receiver, pending the meeting of creditors.—Mr. James Blakoe, of the Beach Hotel, Blackpool, has also filed a petition for the liquidation of his affairs, stating his indebtedness at £3,525 19s. 2d.—A petition for the liquidation of the affairs of Mr. G. Wright, engineer and machinist, Masborough, was filed in the Sheffield Bankruptcy Court on Monday. The liabilities are £8,840, and the assets about £1,000.—Messrs. J. and W. Dudgeon, engineers, of the Sun Engine Works, Millwall, and the Iron Ship-yard, Cubitt-town, have suspended payment. It is understood that the liabilities are considerable, and the firm has never recovered the loss on the Brazilian ironclad Independencia, which was wrecked in launching. The books are in the hands of Messrs. Robert Fletcher and Co., of Moorgate-street, and Mr. W. R. Preston is the solicitor.—On the 14th instant, at the Huddersfield County Court, a petition for liquidation was filed on behalf of Thomas Hirst, trading as a woollen manufacturer, under the firm of Thomas Hirst and Son, Lower Low Westwood Mill, Golcar. The liabilities are estimated at £7000. Mr. H. Wilde, accountant, Huddersfield, has been appointed receiver.—The failure is reported of Mr. Alexander J. Halcomb, of Felixstowe, who was formerly proprietor of a cloth and sack manufactory. His liabilities amount to about £30,000.—The suspension is announced, owing, it is stated, to the non-receipt of remittances from abroad, of Mr. M. B. Messulam, of 21 Cooper-street, Manchester, merchant. His books have been placed in the hands of Messrs. Broome, Murray and Co., accountants, and the liabilities are expected to amount to £10,000.—A petition for liquidation has been filed in the Manchester County Court by Messrs. Grundy and Kershaw, solicitors, on behalf of Mr. Marco Dente, trading as M. Dente and Brothers, 22 Ridgefield, merchant. Liabilities estimated at £7,000.—The failure is reported of Mr. George Demetrius Neroutsos, trading at 7 East India Avenue, Leadenhall-street, London, as G. D. Neroutsos and Co., and 10 Dickinson-street, Manchester, as Neroutsos and Co., merchants. The liabilities are stated to be about £30,000, which will fall chiefly among grey cloth agents and calico printers. Rumour ascribes the failure in some measure to the Turkish financial collapse.

AMERICA.—American advices report the suspension of Messrs. J. and G. Robson, of Winona, Minnesota, in the lumber trade; liabilities, £27,000.—Messrs. Charles Clayton and Co., commission merchants, San Francisco, had asked for an extension; liabilities about £40,000.—Mr. E. Mann, in the boot and shoe trade, Milford, Massachusetts, had gone into bankruptcy; liabilities, £20,000.—Mr. George Brigham, in the same trade, Westboro', Massachusetts, had failed; liabilities, £28,000.—A meeting of the creditors of Dow, Hunt, and Co., importers of fancy goods, Boston, had been held; liabilities, £7,000.—Messrs. Holmes and Blanchard, iron-founders, Boston, had failed. Mr. E. G. Norris, New Jersey, in the clothing trade, had made an assignment with liabilities of £23,000. No arrangement had been made in the affairs of Messrs. E. D. Jewitt and Co., St. John, N.B.

AUSTRIA.—A telegram from Vienna announces the suspension of Messrs. Jonas Fraelbeck and Sons, in the wool trade.

APPOINTMENTS.

[The Editor will be glad to receive early notice of appointment of Liquidators and Auditors for insertion in this Column.]

His Honour the Vice-Chancellor Sir James Bacon has appointed Mr. John Luttman (of the firm of Luttman, Boddington, and Co.) provisional official liquidator of the British, Colonial, and Foreign Property Insurance Corporation (Limited).

Mr. J. Yalden, of No. 70 Cheapside, has been appointed trustee of the estate of Joseph Ashton and Sons, hat manufacturers, Cornwall-road, Stamford-street.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

R. R. R.—We have looked further into your point, and see no reason to change the opinion we expressed before.

C. L.—There is no objection to what you propose.

The Bank rate was advanced on Thursday from 3½ to 4 per cent.

A SINECURIST.—The recently issued Finance Accounts for the year ended the 31st of March contain for the last time a statement of the compensations paid for a lengthened period to the late Rev. Thomas Thurlow. To the 26th of September, 1874, he received £2,977 4s. 4d. as Keeper of the Hanaper of the Court of Chancery, and it is added in a note, "This annuitant received also up to the time of his decease the following annual allowances, viz. £291 7s. 3d., compensation as late Prothonotary Court of Pleas, Durham, and £7,352 14s. 6d. as Patentee of Bankrupts, London.

LIGHT SOVEREIGNS.—The Bank of England clip every light sovereign that comes into the Bank. The weighing of every sovereign is accomplished quickly; they weigh 3,000 in an hour with one machine. Mr. Palmer, the Deputy-Governor, informed the House of Commons Select Committee of last Session on banks of issue that last year the Bank of England weighed coin to the amount of £23,100,000, and rejected £840,000, or about 3·6 per cent., as being light gold. For this last amount the bank paid the value, making a deduction for the deficiency of weight, which is generally about 3d. or 4d. per light sovereign. It was stated to the Committee that boxes of correctly weighed gold sent by the Bank of England to Scotland, frequently came back without having been opened, and Mr. Palmer stated that there is then some reduction for light weight. He explained this by adding that the mere shaking of the sovereigns on the journey will make a slight difference. There is a point at which every sovereign becomes light, and many sovereigns turn that point on the journey. Mr. Hodgson, M.P., a Bank director, stated that in a box of 5,000 sovereigns the number which would be found to have turned the point would generally be about eight if they have not been disturbed; and he added, "You are aware that the sovereign which is in your pocket at 8 o'clock in the morning is not the same sovereign at 12 o'clock at night." After this rather alarming announcement it is satisfactory to find Mr. Hodgson stating also that the charge for light weight on the eight deficient sovereigns would be about 2d. per coin, making only 16d. on the box of £5000; so that, says he, "it really amounts to nothing."

Digitized by Google

Three members of the firm of Duncan, Sherman, and Co., have been arrested on a charge of fraud. The complainants, a firm named Roebling, state that, having faith in the solvency of the defendants, they purchased of the defendants a sight draft for the sum of £293 on the Union Bank of London. The draft was dishonoured, and within six days afterwards the defendants declared themselves hopelessly insolvent. They state further that three months previous to the failure, William Butler Duncan conveyed his real estate to his father, but that the deeds were not removed until the day after the failure. They charge that the firm knew of their insolvency when they sold them the bill of exchange, as they well knew they had exhausted every avenue of relief, and also in not at once recording the conveyance of the real estate to old Mr. Duncan. The defendants were released on bail.

OBTAINING MONEY BY FALSE CHEQUES.—At the Clerkenwell Police Court on Monday, William Adams, aged 34, described as "an accountant," of 16 Junction-road, Upper Holloway, James Henderson, aged 20, a student-at-law, of 26 Barnsbury-road, Islington, and Edward Wood, aged 36, described as "an accountant," and late a schoolmaster, of 295 Essex-road, Islington, were charged with being concerned together in obtaining by means of false cheques several sums of money.—Mr. Fenton prosecuted; and Mr. Ricketts, Mr. P. Ogle, and Mr. Gilbert defended. It was stated by Police-serjeant Tyler, 27 Y, and Detective Webb, Y, that if a remand was granted numerous cases would be brought against the prisoners. The false pretence that it was alleged was used was that the prisoner Adams got cheques cashed which, when presented, were marked "N. S.," and that he had received them as money for salary from the other prisoners.—Mr. Barstow remanded the prisoners for a week, and consented to take bail—one surety in the sum of £50 for each. The necessary bail not being forthcoming, the prisoners were removed in custody.

LATE ADVERTISEMENTS.

TOLMIE, SON, AND CO.,

ACCOUNTANTS, AND PROPRIETORS OF

TOLMIE'S MERCANTILE OFFICES,

116 ST. VINCENT STREET, GLASGOW.

Proofs prepared, and proxies obtained from Scottish Creditors in English Bankruptcies.
Meetings of Creditors attended and the proceedings reported.
Debts recovered, and business inquiries made, in all parts of Scotland.

Correspondence invited.

ACCOUNTANTS may greatly facilitate their office work, and materially increase their profits, by printing liquidation notices, &c., by Zuccato's Papyrograph, which is used by a large number of London and Provincial Accountants, including John L. Lovering and Co.; Gamble and Harvey; Andrews and Mason; Nicholls and Leatherdale; Slater and Pannell; John Bath and Co.; Sydney Smith, and Co.; Ladbury, Collinson, and Viney; Arthur Barron, and Co.; Edmunds, Davis, and Clarke; &c. For 2½d., 500 4to. copies can be taken upon any kind of dry paper, by an office boy in a copying-press at the rate of 10 a minute. For price list and testimonials, apply to WALTER HENRY, Papyrographic Depôt, 409 Strand, W.C.

LARGE LIGHT OFFICES on the Fourth Floor. Rents £10 and £15. Apply to Housekeeper, 26 Budge-row, Cannon-street, E.C.

MONEY to LEND to BORROWERS residing in town or Country, from £50 upwards repayable in one sum, from one to five years, at five per cent. interest on personal security; also on mortgage of freehold or leasehold property from 3 per cent., for a term of years to be agreed upon. No commission.
Apply to R. F. PRESTON, Esq., 120 Southampton-row, London, W.C.

THE BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY'S ANNUAL RECEIPTS EXCEED THREE MILLIONS.

HOW TO PURCHASE A HOUSE FOR TWO GUINEAS PER MONTH With immediate Possession and no Rent to pay.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO PURCHASE A PLOT OF LAND FOR FIVE SHILLINGS PER MONTH.

With Immediate Possession, either for Building or Gardening purposes.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK FREEHOLD LAND SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO INVEST YOUR MONEY WITH SAFETY AT £4 PER CENT. INTEREST.

Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BANK. All sums under £50 repayable upon demand. Current Accounts opened similar to ordinary Bankers. Cheque-books supplied. English and Foreign Stocks and Shares purchased and sold, and Advances made thereon.

Office Hours from 10 till 4; on Mondays from 10 till 9, and on Saturdays from 10 till 12 o'clock.

A Pamphlet containing full particulars may be obtained post-free on application.

FRANCIS RAVENSCROFT, Manager.

THE METROPOLITAN AND PROVINCIAL LAND, ESTATE, HOUSE, LICENSED VICTUALLERS' & GENERAL BUSINESS TRANSFER "SYNDICATE" AGENCY,
Registered according to Act of Parliament, Head Offices, No. 3 Craven-street, Charing Cross, W.C. The organisation and working system of the "Syndicate" are;—1st.—The Sale, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Ground of Rents, Freehold and Leasehold Land, Farms, Estates, Houses, Hotels-Public Houses, Inns, Beer Houses, Restaurants, Coffee Houses, Tobacconists, Drapers, and every other description of Business, Furniture, Objects of Art, or Goods of any description by Auction or Private Contract. 2nd.—The letting, or disposing of, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Land, Farms, Estates, Furnished, or Unfurnished Houses Chambers, or Offices under private contract. 3rd.—The Collection of Rents and the recovery of outstanding accounts. 4th.—The Surveys and Valuations of Land, Farms, Estates, and Houses; also Valuations of Furniture, Jewellery, and other Effects, for probate and other purposes. 5th.—The transaction of all other business usually transacted by Auctioneers, Surveyors, Land, House, Estate and Insurance Agents. 6th.—The negociations of partnerships, and from unlimited connection with capitalists, monetary advances on real and personal securities, as well as merchandize, and every other description of property intended forabsolute sale, or otherwise. 7th. Generally the carrying out of all things instdental or conducive to the above objects, and every of them; also the laying out of estates and surveys for delapidations. The "Syndicate" from their extended connection with the Trades' Protection Societies and other sources, undertake expeditiously for Clients and others to ascertain reliably the status of parties, and make inquiries of a private and confidential character Liberal terms to Accountants in town or country introducing business.

RESTAURANT,
13 OXFORD STREET,
Near the corner of Tottenham-court-road.

Known as the BODEGA, now under the new management of Mr. L. BOECKER, late of 13 Idol-lane, City.

Luncheons from the joints, hot or cold, including vegetables and bread, 1s. 3d

Dinners from 12 till 4 o'clock, from the joint, with soup or fish, vegetables, cheese and bread, 2s.

Dinners from 6 till 9 o'clock, from 2s. 6d. to 10s. 6d.

Private Dining Rooms for large and small parties on the Second Floor.

OLD FALCON HOTEL, GRAVESEND.
Proprietor—W. SKILLETER.

Late Chef de Cuisine to His Grace the Duke of Argyll.

Visitors to Gravesend will find every accommodation at the Old Falcon Hotel, East Street. Public and Private Rooms facing the River, directly opposite Tilbury Fort, and with a capital view of the Thames Shipping.

FISH DINNERS AND WHITEBAIT.

BED AND BREAKFAST FOR GENTLEMEN £1 1s. PER WEEK.

And an equally low Tariff for Dejeuners, Dinners, &c.

Five Minutes' walk from North Kent Railway, and Two Minutes from the Piers, and Tilbury and Southend Railway.

Digitized by Google

"The source of many a writer's woe has been discovered."

PENS! PENS!! PENS!!

"They come as a boon and a blessing to men,
The Pickwick, the Owl, and the Waverley Pen."
"The misery of a bad Pen is now a voluntary infliction."

Another blessing to men! The Hindoo Pen.
1,200 Newspapers recommend them. See Graphic, 17th May, 1873.

Sold by every respectable Stationer. Post 1s. 1d.

Patentees, MACNIVEN & CAMERON, 23 to 33 Blair-street, Edinburgh.

J. DEFRIES' AND SONS'

CHANDELIERS, IN CRYSTAL, BRONZE, AND ORMOLU.

TABLE GLASS AND CHINA.

Dinner Services, Gilt Pieces, £4 10s.

KEROSENE and MODERATOR LAMPS for INDIA.

Works:—London and Birmingham.

WEDDING AND BIRTHDAY PRESENTS.

NEW DECORATIONS for the DINING TABLE.

FOUNTAINS.

STORER'S Patent Perpetual Perfumed CRYSTAL TABLE FOUNTAIN, for Dining, Hall and Drawing Rooms, in Crystal and Gilt, £2 17s. 6d. to 100 guineas.

FETES AND REJOICINGS.

BALLROOMS and GARDENS, &c., DECORATED and ILLUMINATED for Evening Parties. Tents, Temporary Rooms, and Banqueting Halls erected.

CRYSTAL and BRONZED CHANDELIERS.

TABLE GLASS and CHINA LENT ON HIRE.

J. DEFRIES and SONS, 147, HOUNDSDITCH.

Five minutes' walk from the Bank of England.

RUPTURES—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS s allowed by upwards of 500 Medical Men to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided, a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the manufacturer, Mr. JOHN WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London. Price of a single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., 31s. 6d, Postage Free. Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. An Umbilical Tsusr, 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. P.O.O. to be made payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

NEW PATENT ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS, &c. for Varicose Veins, and all cases of Weakness and Swelling of the Legs, Sprains, &c. They are porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and are drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price from 4s. 6d., 7s, 6d., 10s, to 16s. each. Postage free.

CHEST EXPANDING BRACES, for both sexes. For gentlemen they are a substitute for the ordinary braces. For children they are invaluable; they prevent stooping and preserve the symmetry of the chest. Prices for children, 5s. 6d. and 7s. 6d. Adults, 10s. 6d., 15s. 6d., and 21s. each. Postage free.—JOHN WHITE, Manufacturer, 228 Piccadilly, London.

EPPS'S COCOA.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—See article in the Civil Service Gazette.

STAR LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY,

48 MOORGATE STREET, LONDON, E.C

DIRECTORS.

CHAIRMAN—

Mr. Alderman McArthur, M.P.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—

William Mewburn, Esq.

H. J. Atkinson, Esq.
Thomas Ball, Esq.
Walter Griffith, Esq.
George M. Kiell, Esq.
George Lidgett, Esq.
Sir Francis Lycett.
William Merry, Esq.
John Napier, Esq.
Jonathan S. Pidgeon, Esq
John Vanner, Esq.
S. D. Waddy, Esq., Q.C., M.P.

Assurance and Annuity Fund	1,216,115	13	5
Annual Income (1874)	223,613	2	0
Bonuses Apportioned	581,774	6	2
Claims Paid	1,140,151	1	8

Copies of the Report, Balance Sheet and Prospectus can be obtained on application to the Head Office.

W. W. BAYNES, Secretary.

THE ONLY AND SPECIAL

"MEDAL FOR PROGRESS,"

Was awarded for "Feuerfeste Eisene Schranke und Kunstchlosser Fortschritts," to

HOBBS, HART, & CO.,

AT THE VIENNA UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION.

This Medal is only given to Exhibitors whose New Inventions testify marked Progress.

"FIRE-PROOF SAFES; AND LOCKS AND ENDLESS CHANGE LOCKS AND KEYS,"

Invented especially for Safes and Strong-Room Doors, to frustrate the use of False Keys.

N.B.—The continued security and secrecy of a Lock, fixed on a Safe or Strong-Room Door, depends on the fact that there are no false duplicate keys of that Lock in existence. The object of a Lock is twofold—security against burglars, and secrecy against prying curiosity. A new change in this Lock may at any time be obtained in five minutes by simply filing away the thickness of a hair from one or more of the steps of the Key. Th Lock, by a simple movement of the Regulator, is thus made to adapt itself to the NEW KEY, after which no other Key will open the Lock.

The Lock and Key may thus be easily altered into what would be virtually a NEW LOCK and KEY, as often as may be desired, without the aid of a Lockmaker or of any second person, thus frustrating the use of fraudulent copies of the original Key (see the Safe Robbery in Dublin of £630, vide "Times," 12th September, 1875). This Lock affords effectual protection from duplicate or "Master" Keys secretly made in manufactories; very extensive robberies (in one case 13 Safes in one vault) having been effected by this means.

HOBBS, HART & CO.,

LOCK, SAFE, AND STRONG-ROOM DOOR MANUFACTURERS

76 Cheapside, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

MANSION HOUSE CHAMBERS, 11 QUEEN VICTORIA STREET, LONDON, E.C.

First issue of Capital, £500,000, in Subscriptions of £1 and upwards. No further liability. Open to all. Each cash subscriber is entitled to interest in lieu of dividend, at the rate of £1 10s. per cent. per month, 18 per cent. per annum, which will be paid in Cash.

TRUSTEES.

Lieut.-General, J. H. GASCOIGNE, C.B., Ivybridge, Devon.
The Rev. W. F. GOOD, D.D., Newton Abbott, Devon.
Rev. C. HOPE ROBERTSON, Smeeth Rectory, Ashford.
HENRY WALKER, Esq., Fowler Height, Blackburn.

ACCOUNTANTS AND AUDITORS.

Messrs. R. W. HUDSWELL AND Co., 23 Martin's Lane, Cannon Street, London, E.C.

MANAGER AND PROPRIETOR. — RICHARD BANNER OAKLEY, F.R.G.S.

Current accounts opened, and 5 per cent. interest allowed on the minimum monthly balances. Cheque Books supplied. The Bank grants credits and issues circular notes for the Continent and America, and transacts every description of sound Financial Business.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street, ISSUES GUARANTEED CHEQUES for any sum not exceeding £20 against cash deposits, without any charge for commission, the penny stamp being the only expense. These are very convenient for persons not having banking accounts, or not wishing to draw small cheques. They are payable on demand at all the Branches of the Co-operative Credit Bank, or can be passed through any bank in ordinary course.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street, is NOW ISSUING PROMISSORY NOTES from £5 upwards, payable three months after date with interest at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum if held to maturity, or payable on demand without interest. These are very useful to persons requiring short investments, and are perfectly negotiable instruments.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The ONLY SAFE and FIRM SYSTEM of BANKING.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The PEOPLE'S BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—No Promotion Money or Preliminary Expenses.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Managerial Remuneration Dependent on Profits.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Profits on the whole amount of the Liability.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Minimum of Risk, its operations being spread over a variety of subjects.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—No Liability beyond amount of subscription.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The Secrecy and Despatch of Individual Management.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—A fixed instead of an uncertain Scale of Profits.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Eighteen per Cent. per Annum paid Monthly.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—A constantly accruing Reserve Fund.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Power of Total Withdrawal after six months on Sixty Days' Notice.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street, City.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Book-keeping in the hands of the Subscribers.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Quarterly published Balance-sheet issued and certified by the Subscribers' Accountant.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Current Accounts opened and Five per Cent. allowed on the Minimum Monthly Balances.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK. — Furnishes Cheque Books for Customers.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK grants Credits and issues Circular Notes for the Continent and America.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK transacts every description of Sound Financial Business.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK introduces Public Loans.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK promotes Public Companies of a bona-fide character.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK negotiates the Discount of Bills and Mortgages on a Small Commission.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK negotiates Loans on Deposit of Deeds and other valuable Securities.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK assists in the Development of Patents for Useful Inventions.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK undertakes on Commission the Purchase and Sale of Stocks and Shares.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street, near the Mansion House.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK accepts the Agencies of Foreign and Country Banks and Merchants, and of Foreign Governments.

IF YOU WANT TO HAVE YOUR BUSINESS done Cheaply and Expeditiously, go to the CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

IF YOU WANT TO BE TREATED WITH CIVILITY, lodge your Money with the CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

IF YOU WANT THE BEST AND MOST RELIABLE COMMERCIAL INFORMATION OF THE DAY, ask the Manager of THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK,
Mansion House Chambers,
11 QUEEN VICTORIA STREET, LONDON.

BRANCH OFFICES.—LIVERPOOL: Mr. E. Dronke, Batavia-builings, Hackins Hey. MANCHESTER: Messrs. Lawrenson & Co., 20 Barton Arcade. BLACKBURN: Henry Walker, Esq., Fowler Heights. BATH: Mr. H. J. Pocock, 4 Union Street. GLASGOW: Mr. J. Cameron, 32 West George Street. WARRINGTON: Messrs. Henry Walker & Son, Albert Works, School Braw. DENBIGH: Jas. A. York, Vale Street. AYR: Mr. Ramsay, Temperance Hotel, High Street.

Digitized by Google

THE

SOCIETY OF ACCOUNTANTS IN ENGLAND.

COUNCIL.

President.—JOSEPH DAVIES, Warrington. Vice-President.—JOHN BATH, London.

ALFRED ALLOTT, Sheffield.
JOSEPH ANDREWS, London.
JOSIAH BEDDOW, London.
HENRY BOLLAND, Liverpool.
JAMES CHARLES BOLTON, London.
HARRY BRETT, London.
ROBERT BUCK, Sunderland.
JOHN CALDECOTT, Chester.
WALTER NEWTON FISHER, Birmingham
EBENEZER CHAMBERS FOREMAN, London.
EDWARD NORTON HARPER, London.
WILLIAM COMBEN HARVEY, London.
JOHN ALISON HESELTON, Bradford.
GEORGE EDWARD LADBURY, London
FRANCIS NICHOLLS, London.
WILLIAM JOHN PARRY, Bethesda.
EDWARD THOS. PEIRSON, Coventry
EDWARD SMITH, Manchester.
F. TENDRON, London.
JOHN HENRY TILLY, London.
LEWIS VOISEY, Warrington.
EDWIN WILKS, Plymouth.
JOHN UNWIN WING, Sheffield.

TRUSTEES.—JOHN BATH, 40a, King William Street, London; THOMAS COLTMAN, Leicester; JOSEPH DAVIES, Warrington.
TREASURER.—JAMES CHARLES BOLTON, 26 Great St. Helens, and 2 St. Mary Axe, London.
AUDITORS.—R. R. ROBINSON, London; C. PEMBER, Hereford.
BANKERS.—Messrs, WILLIAMS, DEACON, & Co., Birchin Lane, London.
OFFICES—2 COWPER'S COURT, CORNHILL, LONDON.
Further information can be obtained, and copies of the Rules can be had, upon application to
ALFRED C. HARPER, SECRETARY.

H. D. RAWLINGS,

PURVEYOR OF MINERAL WATERS TO

H. R. H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.
H. R. H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH.
H. R. H. THE PRINCE CHRISTIAN.
THE LATE EMPEROR NAPOLEON III.
AND THE PRINCIPAL COURTS OF EUROPE.

Gold Medallist of the Societe Nationale Agricole Manufacturiere et Commerciale de Paris.

SODA, BRIGHTON, SELTZER and all other Mineral Waters for HOME CONSUMPTION and EXPORTATION.
PRICE LISTS on Application, at the Manufactory, Nassau-street, W.

ALFRED W. GEE,

ADVERTISING AGENT,

62, GRACECHURCH STREET,

LONDON, E.C.

London Gazette Notices, and Advertisements and Announcements of all kinds for English, Colonial, and Foreign Newspapers promptly inserted.
N.B.—In the case of an ordinary Advertisement ordered for insertion in a number of Newspapers, only one MS. copy need be forwarded. Same rates charged as at the Publishing Offices.

Printed and Published for the Proprietor by WILLIAMS & STRAHAN, 7 Lawrence Lane, Cheapside. OCTOBER 23, 1875.

Digitized by Google

The Accountant.

A MEDIUM OF COMMUNICATION BETWEEN ACCOUNTANTS IN ALL PARTS OF THE UNITED KINGDOM

VOL. I.—NEW SERIES.—No. 47.] SATURDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1875. [PRICE 6D.

THE

ACCOUNTANTS' DIARY

AND

DIRECTORY for 1876

Will be published in December next.

MEMBERS OF THE PROFESSION are particularly requested to send in at once their proper names and addresses for insertion in the Directory, to

ALFRED C. HARPER,

2 COWPER'S COURT, CORNHILL,

LONDON, E.C.

PRICE:—

Foolscap Folio .. 6s. By post 6s. 9d.

Medium Octavo .. 3s. „ 3s. 6d.

(Bound in Cloth.)

Orders and Advertisements received at the above address.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

39 BROAD-STREET, BRISTOL,

JUNE 24TH, 1875.

The PARTNERSHIP hitherto existing under the Style or Firm of HANCOCK, TRIGGS, & CO., having been DISSOLVED by mutual consent, I beg to give notice that I purpose henceforth to CARRY ON BUSINESS as a PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT at the above address.

PHILIP TRIGGS.

MESSRS. BARRETT AND PATEY,

PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS,

90 LONDON WALL, E.C.

HAVING removed from No. 8 Finsbury Circus, to more commodious offices at the above address, will be pleased to hear from Accountants resident in the provincial and manufacturing towns who require agents in London.

CHARLES LOWDEN, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT, RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY,

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.

REFERENCES GIVEN.

LOVEWELL BLAKE, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT, RECEIVER, AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY.

SECRETARY TO THE GREAT YARMOUTH TRADERS' ASSOCIATION.

OFFICES: HALL QUAY CHAMBERS, GREAT YARMOUTH.

J. F. TITCHMARSH, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT AND AUDITOR,

17 PRINCESS STREET, IPSWICH.

RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY AND LIQUIDATION.

FOR SALE BY PRIVATE TREATY.—A Chemical Works in full operation, in the neighbourhood of Manchester. For particulars, apply to C. R. Trevor, Accountant, 2 Clarence Buildings, Booth Street, Manchester.

TO ACCOUNTANTS.—A useful Clerk and good Penman is open to temporary or a permanent engagement, at a moderate amount of remuneration. Reference is permitted to Messrs. Josiah Beddow and Son, Accountants, 2 Gresham Buildings, Basinghall Street, to whom applications may be made.

WILLIAMS & STRAHAN,

Legal, Accountancy, & General Printers,

MANUFACTURING STATIONERS, &c

7 LAWRENCE LANE, CHEAPSIDE, LONDON.

Bankruptcy Forms, Statements of Affairs, Dividend Notices, Balance Sheets, &c., printed with despatch.

STEAM PRINTING WORKS, LAMBETH, S.E.

TRANSLATIONS.

MR. ALFRED W. GEE,

BRITISH AND FOREIGN ADVERTISING AGENT,

62 GRACECHURCH STREET, LONDON, E.C.,

Begs to announce that in compliance with a wish expressed by some of the subscribers to the Accountant, he has made arrangements for the translation of legal and commercial documents, correspondence, &c., into the Principal European Languages. Members of the Profession are therefore respectfully informed that arrangements can be made for efficient and speedy translations into, or from, the French, German, Italian Spanish, and Dutch Languages on Moderate Terms.

Digitized by Google

MR. FERDINAND WOLFSKEHL,

BANKER,

9 STEINWEG, FRANKFORT A/MAIN, GERMANY,

CALLS THE ATTENTION of Investors to different Continental Government Securities, guaranteed by Acts of Parliament, through which Capital and Interest ARE SECURED BEYOND ANY DOUBT.

Every one of these Loans must be repaid as per Plan attached to each Debenture, within a limited number of years, by periodical Drawings, OFFERING ADVANTAGES PRESENTED BY NO OTHER SECURITIES, WITH BONUSES AT EACH DRAWING, varying from

£10 to £30,000.

For full particulars apply by letter, addressed care

MESSRS. WOLFSKEHL BROTHERS, BANKERS,

LORD STREET, LIVERPOOL.

MR. FERDINAND WOLFSKEHL announces the following Drawings:—

The 70th DRAWING of 1,400 IMPERIAL AUSTRIAN 1858 £10 CREDIT DEBENTURES, and the 42nd BONUS DRAWING of 1,500 IMPERIAL AUSTRIAN 4 per cent. 1854 £30 DEBENTURES took place on the 1st instant, at Vienna. The 9th BONUS DRAWINGS of 120 RAAB GRAZ 4 per cent. £15 1871 DEBENTURES, took place at Ofen on 1st instant.

He will Forthwith Cash or Exchange any of the above-mentioned Debentures against other Debentures, Stocks, Shares or Obligations.

To secure safe delivery of Letters, Mr. F. W. requests that all communications should be addressed care of

Messrs. WOLFSKEHL BROTHERS, Bankers,

3 LORD STREET, LIVERPOOL,

Of whom full particulars of the above Drawings can be had on application.

P S.—The Imperial Austrian 1858 Credit Debentures, Series 1,006, No. 78, drawing a Bonus of £1,000, has been sold by Mr. F. W. to a Gentleman residing in London.

The Accountant.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

The ACCOUNTANT is printed and published in time for Friday evening's mail; price 6d. per copy, or 28s. per annum (including postage), the reduced terms for payment in advance being: annual subscription 24s. (post free); half-yearly ditto, 13s. (post free). Cheques and Post-office orders to be made payable to Mr. Alfred W. Gee, 62 Gracechurch-street, E.C., to whom applications for advertisement space, and letters relating to the general business of the paper, should also be addressed. Literary communications should be directed to the Editor of the ACCOUNTANT at the same address, and in order to ensure insertion in the current number, correspondents are respectfully requested to forward their copy as early in the week as possible.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The Proprietor desires to call the attention of Advertisers to the special advantages offered by the paper as an Advertising medium. Starting with a good guaranteed circulation, and with the entire concurrence and hearty support of the leading members of the profession, the ACCOUNTANT has achieved a large measure of success in a wide field hitherto unoccupied by any professional organ. The ACCOUNTANT thus secures to Advertisers an excellent circulation of an exclusive character; and is particularly valuable as a medium for the announcements of members of the profession, as to Estates and Declaration of Dividends, and the appointment of Trustees and Receivers; for Publishers, Printers, Law Stationers, Auctioneers, and Estate Agents; for the Advertisements of Insurance and Public Companies; and for Notices as to Investments, Vacant Partnerships, &c. Advertisements intended for insertion in the current number, should reach the office on Thursday; late announcements can, however, be received up to 12 o'clock (noon) on Friday.

N.B.—Copies may be obtained at Messrs. W. H. Smith and Sons, Strand, at their numerous Railway Bookstalls, and at the Shops of the leading City and West-End Newsvendors.

TO SUBSCRIBERS

In consequence of numerous applications from subscribers, the proprietor has made arrangements for the supply of CASES for holding and preserving the Accountant, which may be obtained at the office on the following terms:—In green cloth (well got up), with elastics, and "The Accountant" in gold letters on front, 3s. each; same in leather, 4s. 6d. each. Subscribers' names in gold lettering, 1s. extra. Post Office Orders payable to ALFRED W. GEE, 62 Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

The Accountant.

OCTOBER 30, 1875.

There was a certain amount of originality about the Cheque Bank system which makes us regret the unlucky breakdown which has befallen it; and it might be worth the while of other banks to consider how far they could adopt one or two of its leading features. The system of ear-marking cheques is adopted in America and Australia; and an amusing story, which is, we believe, perfectly authentic, is told of an Australian minister, who, having been tendered a cheque in payment of his fees, by a would-be bridegroom, and knowing that the bank would be closed before the ceremony was over, requested the happy couple to devote a short time to serious reflection, slipped over to the bank, had the cheque ear-marked, and then returned to his pious offices with a clear conscience and a mind perfectly at rest. In London, the bankers can seldom be persuaded to do any thing of the kind, though to do so would be as much to their advantage as to that of their customers. The banker would gain, as the Cheque Bank expected to do, by the greater length of time during which the cheque would remain in circulation, and the longer use he would have of his customer's money. The customer would have all the advantages of carrying about with him cheques whose value was absolutely beyond question. The system, in one aspect, is that of the issue of circular notes. A traveller, intending to roam from place to place, from Jerusalem to Madagascar, deposits as much money as he will require with his bankers, and receives documents which are readily taken in exchange, which will be cashed by any banker quite as readily as those designated, and which are valueless to any one without his properly authenticated signature. An ordinary cheque would only be cashed after a tedious delay, and possibly at a considerable discount, as its value depends upon two elements, the identity of the drawer, and the amount of his balance.

Digitized by Google

The value of an extension of the plan would be very great. There are many occasions on which persons who object to carrying about large sums of money would find it useful to have these cheques, which would form a complete answer to those doubts as to solvency which even the most courteous of tradesmen at times insinuate. The guaranteed cheques would become of almost universal acceptance. They might be issued in blank, limited, like the Cheque Bank cheques, to certain amounts, and left with clerks or servants ready to be filled up to meet any sudden claim. The banks would gain by knowing, when a cheque was once presented, that any difference between the amounts for which it might, or for which it had been filled up, would remain in their hands for some time, and, in fact, the principle of guaranteed cheques would be most useful, when treated as an adjunct to the business of an established bank.

The weakness of the Cheque Bank system lay in the efforts of its promoters to extend the blessing of a banking account too far. As a substitute for post-office orders their cheques were useful to persons who had to transmit sums which those who kept a banking account would naturally pay by crossed cheque. But, as a means of making ordinary remittances, their superior cheapness was counterbalanced by the simplicity by which a post-office order was cashed. A post-office order is readily convertible into the due quotient of pounds, shillings, and pence, by application at the proper office, or it may be carried about till the money is wanted. A Cheque Bank cheque was only useful when some one could be found to cash it, and it may be questioned whether in practice a stranger would not have to pay a premium for such accommodation far exceeding the commission paid for a money order.

As a means of paying small debts and wages, the Cheque Bank cheques must necessarily prove failures. To give a workman a document which he can only get cashed by a friend who has a banking account, is a palpable absurdity on its face. It was these defects that have led to the collapse. The directors, in a somewhat lachrymose statement, attribute their failure to the want of sympathy of the public, who persisted in passing away the cheques as soon as they got them. It was fondly anticipated that these cheques would pass from hand to hand like bank notes, and, by remaining as currency for some time, enable the bank to make a nice profit out of the interest accruing on their deposits. As a matter of fact, the persons who dealt with the bank were, as it must have been foreseen they would be, persons of small incomes, who could not keep a regular banking account, and hence belonging to the very class who would be the most anxious to change notes for cash. If the Cheque Bank determine to continue their operations, we would recommend them to organise some plan by which their cheques might be conveniently changed into cash. But we very much doubt if an institution which depends for its customers solely upon the poorer classes, can ever do much, unless it offers some attraction to those who keep balances with it. And now one or two enterprising banks have taken up the idea, and by the aid of multifarious country branches are working it with good prospect of success in conjunction with their ordinary business. If they fail, no one else can well expect to succeed; if they prosper, we fear the originator of the Cheque Bank must be content with the fame of having pointed out the road for others to travel.

The great evil of the present system is, the enormous costs incident to the realisation of estates under the supervision of the court. A case in a recent issue of a legal contemporary affords but one of many illustrations which daily occur of the cumbrous and expensive routine to be undergone in the solution of what ought to be a very simple question. It appears from the report of the case which was heard by Judge Daniel in the Bradford County Court, that in April last a trader, being apprehensive of failure and desirous of emulating the example of the unjust steward mentioned in Scripture, thought to make friends of some of his creditors by returning goods he had bought from them, and he accordingly, on the 24th of April, returned to one creditor sixteen sheets of mungo which had cost

Digitized by Google

£185. On the 1st of May the debtor filed his petition for liquidation, and in ordinary course trustees were chosen. They, on the 8th June, moved the court for the return of the mungo, or its value. The question was argued at length, and the judge, not wishing to enforce his own views too strongly, they being in favour of the trustees, offered the respondent an issue to be tried by a jury, which, of course, he accepted. On the 22nd of June the case came before a jury, who found for the trustees. On the 6th of July the trustees moved for an order on the motion, in accordance with the finding of the jury; but it was opposed by the respondent, on the ground that he intended to apply for a new trial. The Judge adjourned the motion in order that the respondent might have an opportunity to move the court for a new trial, and on the 20th July the matter was argued at length, but the Judge refused the application, and remitted the case to the Registrar, to ascertain the precise value of the goods in dispute at a particular time. Now, without anticipating an appeal, which is more than probable, seeing the litigiousness already displayed, we should like to know how much of this precious mungo will reach the hands of the trustees?

It is true, the costs follow the result of the decision; but what if the case goes up on appeal, and is reversed? The much maligned trustee has to stand the brunt of such a contingency, and in the event of non-success is denounced for wasting the estate in litigation, and often left personally liable for costs. Why, we would ask, should there be such an exhaustive course of procedure in the court below, as in the case cited, so long as any decision arrived at is not conclusive? The decision of the County Court is not regarded as an authority, and in reality is of little value, except as a medium of obtaining the judgment of the Court of Appeal. Instead of taking such pains to ventilate their views upon nice points of law as is observable in the case cited, it would tend materially to economise time and minimise expense if the County Court Judges limited their functions to a more summary disposal of the cases upon which they have to adjudicate.

There are many theorists who place superstitious reliance on a name. It has been imagined that to give a child the name of a hero will make it bold and self-reliant; while pious mothers have been known to name their children after archbishops, with a view to their ulterior promotion in the Church. But Mr. Thornber, who started in business under the imposing title of "Dombey and Son," can hardly have sufficiently considered the consequences of attaching to himself the name of that eminent firm. We will not do him the unkindness of imagining that his notion was a mere vulgar desire to attract notoriety, in much the same way as enterprising tradesmen seek to draw custom by gaudy placards and lavish expenditure of gas; but we will give Mr. Thornber credit for having sought to emulate the fame of the eminent, but unpleasant merchant prince whose name he adopted, and to pay a graceful compliment to the great historian of his doings. But the bad fortune which overtook his prototype befell Mr. Thornber, and the firm of Dombey and Son figures for the second time among the dismal list of commercial failures. Not only that, but still further disaster ensued. Mr. Thornber, with true magnanimity, filed his petition in his own name; but the Registrar considered that in trading under so well-known a name, he might have incurred liabilities to persons who would not recognise their debtor under his own proper designation, and refused to register the resolutions. It is only fair to Mr. Thornber to add that his estate has yielded a much better dividend than Mr. Dombey's, and that he will soon be able to start again. It might, however, be as well for him to choose the name of some successful merchant; and possibly, if he traded under the name of "Gills and Cuttle," he might find some of his old investments turn out wonderfully.

We direct attention to an extract from a Liverpool paper, which we quoted a fortnight since, headed "Informality in liquidation proceedings." It appears that on a resolution of the creditors of a debtor being submitted for registration, it was found that so many of the proofs and proxies were informal that it was impossible to proceed. As regards the inadvertent striking out of a proxy by the Commissioner before whom the proof was sworn, the Judge was undoubtedly right in holding that the debtor must not be made to suffer for the carelessness of an official; but the number of invalid proxies is a suggestive commentary on the many assertions that have been made that any body can be a trustee. As a matter of fact, it is curious to notice what difficulty the average Englishman finds in filling up a form. However plain the directions may be upon a paper, there will always be a large percentage of mistakes. The intelligent men are seldom embarrassed; the dull ones can seldom understand any explanation. But it is all the more necessary that proofs and proxies should be rigidly scrutinised before they are actually used, and the trustee should look to their formality, so as to obviate the expense necessarily consequent upon a refusal to register. What would have been the result if one of these intelligent creditors had been chosen trustee we fail to imagine.

Digitized by Google

A Model Friendly Society.—Mr. W. Cole, the first enrolled benefit member of the Calne District Friendly Society, writes:—" The Calne District Friendly Society was established in the year 1835, and completed the 40th year of its existence on the 30th of April last. The formation of this valuable society was largely due to the efforts of the late Earl of Kerry, the eldest son of the third Marquis of Lansdowne, and uncle of the present marquis, in conjunction with the late Canon Guthrie, his Lordship's former preceptor, and then the newly-appointed vicar of Calne. In order to ascertain whether the then existing clubs in the town and neighbourhood could be remodelled, so as to make them in reality what they professed to be, his Lordship obtained from several of them a statement of the ages of their members, with an account of their financial condition, and had it submitted to a competent actuary. The reply his Lordship received was,—' They are hopelessly insolvent, and it would be useless to attempt to help them.' After carefully calculated tables of rates of payments, with such other information as was thought necessary, had been procured, the society was formed, his Lordship accepting the office of President. This society does not have recourse to feasting, drinking, music, or any other kind of display. As stated by the late Canon Guthrie, at the last annual meeting he attended shortly before his death,—' its appeals were to the sense and not to the nonsense of men, and those appeals were found to succeed.' The late Mr. John Tidd-Pratt was present at two of its annual meetings a few years before his death, and after having examined its tables of payments with the books, and showing the manner in which its operations were carried on, congratulated the members on the position their society had attained, and pronounced it a ' model society —a society not to be surpassed.' At the end of last April the number of members was 360, 85 of whom assure for annuities commencing when their sick pay ceases, either at the age of 60 or 65. The society has received since its commencement:— Benefit members' contributions, £5,749 3s. 10d.; paid for sickness and other claims as they became due, £3,812 6s. 3d.; April, 1875, accumulated capital invested, £4,948 16s. 10½d.; having realised from money invested, the whole of which arose from the contributions of benefit members, £3,011 19s. 3½d. Within the last ten years £1,000, half of two declared surpluses, has been distributed among the members by increasing the weekly amount of their annuities and in lessening all contributions. Another sum equal to that amount, which is less than half of the recently declared surplus, is now awaiting distribution. The progress and present position of the Calne District Friendly Society clearly demonstrates the soundness and value of the principle of mutual assurance on which friendly societies are founded, and shows that, when rightly carried out, without display and unnecessary expense, it is of the highest value to those engaged in labour, not only by affording them an opportunity for making a provision for times of sickness and the infirmities of age, but also by creating and fostering habits of economy, forethought, and self-reliance."

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY.

October 22.

(Before the Hon. W. C. Spring-Rice.)

Re Nathaniel Victor Rix.—The debtor was described as of Royal Exchange-buildings, Shadwell, and Rochester, iron merchant. He had presented his petition for liquidation, estimating his liabilities at £55,000, and his assets, consisting of stock, &c. at £5,000, besides book debts.—His Honour, upon application for that purpose, appointed Mr. F. Cape, public accountant, receiver of the estate.

October 23.

(Before Mr. Registrar Brougham, sitting as Chief Judge.)

In re Neroutsos. — The debtor, George Demetrius Neroutsos, a merchant, carrying on business at 7 East India-avenue, Leadenhall-street, and 10 Dickinson-street, Manchester, has presented a petition for liquidation. The liabilities are returned at £25,000, including liabilities alleged to exist on account of certain goods intended to be consigned to the debtor and others, and which never, in fact, arrived, with assets of uncertain value. Mr. R. Griffiths, for the petitioner, and with the concurrence of creditors, now mentioned the case to the court, and asked that Mr. Halliday, accountant, Manchester, should be appointed receiver and manager of the estate. His Honour granted the application.

October 27.

(Before Mr. Registrar Brougham, sitting as Chief Judge.)

In re Upton and Hussey.—Messrs. George Evans Upton and Thomas Alfred Hussey, jewellers and silversmiths, of St. James-street, have filed a petition for liquidation, with debts amounting to £28,000, and assets, consisting of stock-in-trade valued at £11,000, and book debts about £8,000. At the instance of creditors, Mr. Richard Webb, jeweller, Oxford-street, was appointed receiver, and Mr. Lewis, on his behalf, now asked that an interim injunction should be granted to restrain actions by creditors. His Honour granted the application.

(Before the Hon. W. C. Spring-Rice.)

In re J. J. De Lizardi.—The bankrupt, Joseph Javier de Lizardi, formerly carried on business at 124 Cannon-street, as a merchant. The failure occurred in 1873, when the bankrupt absconded in consequence of a criminal charge being preferred against him. The case was now brought before the Court upon an application by Mr. John White, silk mercer, of Regent-street, as the representative of the bankrupt's separate creditors, for an order declaring that the sum of £5,103 in the hands of Mr. William Turquand, the trustee, and being a portion of the assets collected by him, was the separate estate of the bankrupt, and divisible as such. Mr. Winslow, Q.C., and Mr. Finlay Knight appeared for the applicant; Mr. Stiffe Everitt, and Mr. Henderson for creditors who opposed; and Mr. J. Linklater for the trustee. The question in dispute between the parties seemed to be whether the bankrupt, at the date of his adjudication, was in partnership with his brother, M. Miguel de Lizardi. It appeared that on the 1st July, 1862, a circular was addressed by the bankrupt to certain firms in London stating that M. Miguel de Lizardi had entered as a partner in the firm, and the trustee had caused diligent search to be made among the bankrupt's papers, but he had found no document revoking or cancelling the notice, or referring to a dissolution of the partnership. The trustee had realised the assets of the estate, and a sum of £23,508 was now in his hands, of which £5,103 was the produce of the bankrupt's furniture and effects; and if the Court declared that a partnership existed at the date of the adjudication, the latter amount would be distributed among the separate creditors. The case was only part heard at the rising of the Court.

Digitized by Google

THE EUROPEAN ASSURANCE ARBITRATION.

On Tuesday, the Arbitrator, Mr. F. S. Reilly, held a sitting in this matter, and delivered judgment in several cases, the following being amongst them:—

NASH, MIDDLEMIST, AND MURIEL'S CASE.—This case arises out of an application made by the liquidators of the English Widows' Fund and General Life Assurance Association for a call, and was opposed by the respondents, who are contributories. It appeared that in 1860 this association was amalgamated with the British Nation Life Assurance Company. In 1862, however, the former was ordered by the Court of Chancery to be wound-up, and a list of contributories was settled. In 1865 the British Nation Life was united with the European Society, and all three companies are now included in the liquidation of the arbitration. The liquidators of the English Widows' Fund applied by summons that two calls—one of £4 and £7 per share respectively—credit being given for any money paid or credited in respect thereof, might be made on the contributories. This it was proposed to carry out under two classes, A and B—Class A, consisting of holders of English Widows' Fund Shares; and Class B, consisting of holders of English Widows' Fund Shares issued (on the union in 1858 with the Commercial Life Assurance Company) to shareholders in the Commercial. Class B included these three gentlemen. His Honour, in giving judgment, said the first question is, whether any call should be made on contributories in the English Widows' Fund, and I am of opinion that a call is necessary. The liquidators' affidavit states the liabilities of the English Widows' Fund under four heads——1. The balance of the late official manager's remuneration, £150 5s., claimed as remaining due to him under the proceedings in Chancery. 2. The balance of interest on debts admitted in Chancery, £492 9s. 10d. 3. The annuity contracts as valued for proof in the arbitration, £4,352 12s. 3d, being 28 in number, which have all been admitted to rank against the English Widows' Fund. His Honour's opinion was that there was no valid objection raised to the call in respect of the outstanding annuity contracts of the English Widows' Fund. 4. The liquidator's estimated amount of costs in the arbitration £1,000. Such a liability necessarily exists, and the estimate is a very low one. I think no sufficient reason has been shown why the call should not be made against the respondents. It had been contended that their being on the list was not conclusive as regards their liability to the call, and that a formal application to remove them was not necessary; but they were settled the 16th April, 1863, and have ever since submitted to be treated as contributories, and time and acquiescence would be against their application to be removed from the list. The ground on which they claim exemption from call was, that they no longer were, after selling their shares in the English Widows' Fund to the British Nation, in 1861, and receiving payment for the same, any longer shareholders. But they never sold out absolutely, as the agreement between the companies stipulated that shareholders in the English Widows' Fund should have alloted to them shares in the British Nation equivalent to those held by them in the English Widows', or a cash equivalent, and the respondents received half in shares and half in cash. They say, however, that after the lapse of a year, in 1861, the British Nation agreed and did purchase from them the surrender of the shares so held by them in the English Widows' Fund, as to one-half thereof at their full value, and the other half at two-thirds of the value, and the British Nation paid them the amount by instalments. I am of opinion that the transactions for the sale and so-called surrender of their shares was ineffectual to relieve the respondents of their liability in the English Widows' Fund. Even the agreement between the two companies does not provide for the release of the English Widows' Fund by means of a substitution of the British Nation shares; therefore, notwithstanding the alleged surrender or abandonment by the respondents of the shares, I am bound to hold that they are still affected with all the liabilities of being the holders of the shares. It appears to me that the transaction between the respondents and the British Nation was a mere incident to the general arrangement between the English Widows' and the British Nation; and that that arrangement was not intended to be, and was not such as to destroy the rights of existing creditors of the English Widows' Fund, or to put an end to the liabilities of the shareholders of that company. The call must be enforced on the contributories of the English Widows' Fund, including the three respondents, and the latter must pay the liquidator's costs in this case.

TAYLOR'S EXECUTORS' CASE.—This case relates to the list of contributories in the European Assurance Society, and is rather interesting. In 1862 Ann Bowden, spinster, married Charles Taylor, she being the registered holder of 200 shares. No settlement was made under the marriage. In 1864 her husband died. In 1872 the European was ordered to be wound-up, and Mrs. Ann Taylor was settled on the list of contributories in Chancery in respect of 200 shares as "Ann Taylor, widow." The liquidators by summons now sought to amend the register by inserting the name of Charles Taylor with hers, so that they might both be jointly settled on the list. The matter was argued immediately before the long vacation. His Honour, in giving judgment, said:—I think I cannot make the order as required by the summons. Section 78 of the Companies' Act provides, in effect, that a man marrying a woman who is a shareholder is liable to be made a contributory during the marriage, but no longer. The husband, as such, is only to be a contributory while he is a husband. Judgment must be recovered against him during the marriage, otherwise the liability cannot be sustained against him in his marital character. If the marriage ceases by the death of the husband the liability does not attach to his estate, but becomes again that of the wife's alone. His Honour cited several cases bearing out this interpretation of the law, and continued—Under section 78 of the Companies' Act, 1862, the liability of Charles Taylor, as husband of Ann Bowden, was a mere transitory one, which ceased on his death, and therefore the woman alone ought to be placed on the list of contributories, and the husband's executors ought not to be added to the list. The application of the liquidators must be dismissed, and they must pay the costs of the executors.

LAKE'S CLAIM.—This is a claim against the British Nation Fire Insurance Company, Limited, which was formed in 1863, and a resolution passed appointing Henry Lake, manager, without salary, but with emoluments of two per cent. on the gross premium income of the company. In 1865 the company was amalgamated with the European, the latter agreeing to take all the former's assets and discharge its liabilities. In 1872 the European went into liquidation. Mr. Lake has since been adjudicated bankrupt, and the trustees under his bankruptcy have taken out a summons claiming a sum of £350, as due to him for services rendered to the British Nation Fire Company in liquidating the affairs of that company from 18[illegible] to 1872.—His Honour said the summons must be disallowed on the ground of no sufficient agreement between the British Nation and Mr. Lake for his receiving the remuneration. The facts did not support his right to any remuneration in respect to those services, inasmuch as his duties with the British Nation Fire Company had become united with his functions as general manager of the European Society, and in the latter capacity he received a sum varying from £3,000 to £4,000 a year, being £500 a year as salary, and one per cent. on the gross life guaranteed premium income of the company. The claim was therefore disallowed, and the trustees ordered to pay the liquidator's costs.

THE MUNSTER BANK.—The following is an important representative case, and the decision affects about £20,000 paid away by the European Society after the presentation of the petition to wind-up. The case relates to a death claim against that society, the amount of which was paid by the directors after the presentation of the petition. Mr. W. J. Murray held a life policy, originally issued by the Commercial Life Assurance Company in 1870. The life fell in, and the solicitor to the bank which held it as a security requested to be supplied with the necessary forms to prove the claim. On the 3rd of February, 1871, the office admitted the claim, subject to a debt for premiums and proof of title. Correspondence thereupon ensued, which ended in the bank threatening legal proceedings if the claim was not forthwith settled. On the 9th of May Mr. Murray executed a formal assignment of the policy to the Munster Bank, and on the 6th of June an action was commenced by the bank against the European in the Court of Common Pleas in Dublin. The office, however, requiring further documents to support the claim, caused a delay in the negociation. The action was subsequently dropped on receiving payment of the amount of the claim. On the 3rd of July, 1871, a cheque was sent to the bank. On the 10th of June of that year, a petition was presented for winding-up the society, on which an order was thereafter made. It was duly advertised in the Gazette, the Times, the Standard, &c. on the 14th of June. The liquidators have now made application by summons against the bank for the repayment to them of the amount received by the bank on the 3rd of July, 1871, and the matter was fully argued before the long vacation, and duly reported —His Honour remarked that, in his opinion, the bank had not shown any sufficient reason why the order should not be made. The bank had pleaded want of knowledge of the presentation of the petition; that plea had, no doubt, been established. Even their solicitor, Mr. Hollams, had attested that he went to the European Society's offices, and had not been informed of the presentation. The liquidator's case had declared otherwise; the allegation, therefore, that there was knowledge of the pendency of the petition must fail. His Honour carefully reviewed the law bearing upon the matter, and remarked that he should, as at present advised, adopt the rule of treating as void all payments made after the petition had been advertised, in accordance with the rule of the Court of Chancery. However hard it might be, which he much regretted, yet it must apply to all cases in the arbitration. The question of costs was arranged.

Digitized by Google

There were several other cases in the list on which his Honour gave judgment devolving upon this one, and the counsel engaged in them were Mr. Napier Higgins, Q.C., Mr. Jackson, Q.C., M.P., Mr. A. G. Martin, Q.C., M.P., Mr. Romer, Mr. Bush, Mr. Bevir, Mr. F. C. J. Millar, Mr. Renshaw, Mr. William Beard, and Mr. Methold.

October 27.

Rivington's, Sullivan's and Thompson's and Doman's Cases.—The greater part of the day was occupied with the arguments of counsel in Rivington's, Sulllivan's and Thompson's, and Doman's cases, arising out of the British Commercial, European, and Industrial and General Companies. In these several cases decisions have been given by Lord Westbury and Lord Romilly, and the liquidators contend that for properly carrying on the administrative work of the arbitration it is absolutely necessary that a certificate for appeal to a higher tribunal should be now granted, in order, as they say, that the conflicting decisions of the two first named arbitrators may be properly set right.—Mr. Napier Higgins, Q.C. (with him Mr. Romer), appeared for the liquidators; Mr. Jackson, Q,C., Mr. Millar and Mr. Methold represented the several parties involved.—Mr. Higgins submitted that there had been a difference between previous decisions on matters of principle relating to cases of novation, and also on cases relating to liability of contributories, a difference, not merely as between one arbitrator and the other, but as between decisions of the same arbitrator; and, moreover, not only one arbitrator, but both—that is, each differing from the other, and each differing from himself. The learned counsel then proceeded to point out the judgments of Lords Westbury and Romilly in the above cases, for the purpose of showing that they had clearly contradicted each other; and that, in fact, the one had given later decisions exactly contrary to former ones, showing thereby that the principles on which they delivered their decisions differed in very material particulars from the principles involved, recognised, and established in several cases under consideration.—Mr. Jackson, Mr. Millar and Mr. Methold respectively addressed the court, urging that the decisions already given were final, and could not be disturbed.—His Honour reserved judgment.

Great Western Railway Case.—Under section 10 of the European Assurance Society's Act, 1859, it was provided that any public functionary or any person employed in any public office required to give security in respect of such office or employment may accept, instead of the security so required, the guarantee or security of the society, to be given by their bond or policy. Section 16 defines the meaning of "public functionary" contemplated by Section 10 as "all municipal and other corporations and all persons acting under acts of parliament, charters or deeds of settlement." A reserved fund, amounting to about £34,000, was created and invested in the Three per Cent. Stock, and that money is now in the hands of the liquidators of the society. The Great Western Railway is a corporation with perpetual succession, and a common seal, duly incorporated under act of parliament. One of the rules of the company was to take security from their officers for their faithful services. In February, 1864, they took out a policy guaranteeing the fidelity of one of their servants, and they further effected several policies for like purposes in respect of other employés, and duly paid the premiums. While the policies were in full force each of the persons insured under them committed breaches of trust, under the terms of the policies, amounting in the whole to £153 13s., which sum the company have claimed to be paid from the reserve fund, contending that the policies are of the nature and kind provided by the act of 1859.—The official liquidators, however, urge that the Great Western Railway is not a corporation or body within the meaning of the 16th section of the act of 1859, and that the several persons assured under the policies were not persons appointed to any office or employment within the meaning of the 10th section of the act, and therefore the railway are not entitled to rank as creditors in respect of such policies against the reserved fund but only to prove against the general estate of the society applicable to guarantee purposes.—Mr. Napier Higgins, Q C., and Mr. Romer, for the liquidators; Mr. Medd for the railway.—After hearing arguments on both sides, his Honour said he thought it was a case in which the policies should rank against the reserved fund. All that was necessary on the part of the railway directors was to show they were public functionaries acting under an act of parliament, and that the persons serving under them were appointed to an office or employment established by acts of parliament, and that those persons were by virtue of that act, required to give securities of fidelity in respect of such office or employment. Looking to the facts of the case, he thought they fully came up to all the requisitions in the act of 1859. At first sight it might be thought that the term "act of parliament" in section 16 might properly be limited to acts of a public character, but there he thought the expression "acts of parliament" might be fairly construed by the neighbouring words "charters or deeds of settlement." He might say, therefore, that the act pointed to a public company working under an act of parliament, just as it pointed to a company acting under a "charter or deed of settlement." The claim of the Great Western Railway Company must be allowed against the reserved fund, the costs of both sides to be borne out of the same fund. This decision is very important, as there are several claimants anxiously watching the result in this case in order to lodge their claims on the same fund.

Digitized by Google

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT.

October 27.

(Before the Right Hon. the Recorder.)

Charles Mavrocordato, aged 40, a Greek merchant, who on Tuesday pleaded guilty to a charge of obtaining bonds valued at £7,500 by false pretences, was brought up for judgment before the Recorder. There was a second charge against the prisoner, that of attempting to quit the country with property to the value of upwards of £20 within four months of the presentation of a bankruptcy petition, and to this count he pleaded "Not Guilty." Mr. Poland and Mr. F. H. Lewis appeared for the prosecution; Mr. Straight and Mr. Sims were retained for the defence. Mr. Lewis said the prisoner was a member of the Baltic, and carried on business in Bishopsgate-street. Undoubtedly he had been speculating for some time, and had been a considerable loser by his transactions. On the 29th of September he was indebted for differences to the amount of £1,000, and he gave notice to the different stockbrokers that he required the stock for which he had entered into contracts. He gave cheques on the Imperial Bank to the extent of between £9,000 and £10,000, where his balance amounted only to about £100. He did not mean to say that the departure of the prisoner was premeditated; it might have been an act of momentary impulse, but it must be remembered that he was apprehended at Waterloo station, having taken his ticket for Havre. Mr. Straight said that after reading the depositions he felt it would be useless to attempt to fight against the evidence, and to waste the time of the Court. The prisoner came to England seven or eight years ago from Greece, where he was in a good position, and brought with him a very considerable sum of money to carry on the business of a merchant. He became a member of the Baltic, and carried on his legitimate business for some time; but he soon became a follower of the example of others, and embarked in speculations whereby his capital soon became impaired. The prisoner had endeavoured to obtain loans to meet his engagements, but the percentage he was asked for advances was more than he could afford to pay. He became suddenly awakened to his position, and, instead of facing his difficulties, he foolishly and wickedly formed the idea of going abroad, but he intended to restore the stock. One thing he asked his Lordship to remember, was that each of the stock certificates bore a number, and the payment of each could have been easily stopped. He would further remind the Court that if the prisoner had intended to leave the country he might, from his position, have obtained stock to a very much larger amount. He appealed also for mercy on the ground that the prisoner had a wife and seven children. The Recorder thought the position of the prisoner rather an aggravation of the crime than a foundation for an appeal for leniency. Looking to the nature of the things in connexion with the case, the circumstances under which the frauds were committed, and the consequences which might have arisen, the Court did not think justice would be met unless he passed a sentence of five years' penal servitude.

Leon Skalski, 58, dealer, was charged with obtaining from Mr. R. Cadenhead orders for the delivery of goods of the value of £180. Mr. Straight prosecuted; Mr. Grain defended. The accused had transactions with the prosecutor, a woollen merchant, on several occasions, and it was alleged that he gave orders for goods to the above amount, stating that he had sufficient funds in the bank to meet the bills he gave in payment for them. When the bills were presented there was no money to meet them, his balance amounting only to 7s. 6d. The total amount of bills not met was £600. He was sentenced to 18 months' imprisonment, with hard labour.

THE KEOKUK AND KANSAS CITY RAILWAY.

The advertisement of the Keokuk and Kansas City Railway Company, which will be found elsewhere, presents some new features and novel characteristics of negotiation; but it is evident from a careful reading of the Prospectus and the Engineer's Report that the promoters of this enterprise, and the Bank which is authorised to receive subscriptions, have not ventured to place the loan on the market without subjecting the enterprise in every detail to the most crucial tests which practical experience could suggest. It may be noticed, in the first place, that efforts are made to popularise the loan by having the bonds, if required, of a much lower denomination than has been generally supposed to be advisable. An appeal is thus made to all, not to one peculiar class of the community. It may be that the subscribers to bonds of £5 will be few; but an opportunity is now offered to the mechanic or artisan to invest his mite on as favourable terms as he who can draw his cheque for thousands. Eight per cent. annually on the price of issue, especially if the security is proved to be good, should not be disregarded in these times, when every thing indicates that there is a plethora of unemployed capital both here and throughout Europe, as well as in the chief financial centres of the United States; and when ordinary common sense dictates more judicious investment than in Turkish, Spanish, and South American loans. Again, the terms of payment, extending altogether over eight months, seem specially framed to meet the views if not the purses of small investors, while ample assurance is given that the money thus subscribed will only be applied to the purposes contemplated, when and as it is required, by the provision that no disbursement of money subscribed shall be made except on a certificate, signed by an engineer appointed by the bondholders, that five consecutive miles of railroad are completed and in running order for trains, and so from time to time as every consecutive five miles of new railroads are completed. A novel and decidedly commendable feature of the prospectus is, that the management of the property will be vested in those who subscribe the money for carrying on and completing the undertaking. Heretofore, when money has been subscribed for any foreign enterprise, the investors have been left in blissful ignorance of how the property was managed, or the money applied; more especially has this been the case with the Erie securities, and those of other railroads too numerous to mention, whose holders would now congratulate themselves if the same vigilance had been exercised in their cases as in that which is now brought before the public. There will be an English trustee to guard the interests of the bondholders, said trustee to be appointed by the subscribers at a meeting to be held after allotment. It has also been agreed that the railway company shall use its best endeavours to procure additional powers conferring on the bondholders a right to vote equally with the shareholders at all meetings, but in the interim the subscribers to this loan have, by special agreement, the right to nominate and elect three English directors. A direct voice in the management is thus obtained, and it may be appropriately noted that, while the original charter of the company now advertising for a loan may be interpreted as investing them with the necessary powers to confer such extraordinary privileges on bondholders, still it has been deemed advisable to procure additional legislation, with the view of making such voting power unalienable and incontrovertible during the continuance of the trust. Special attention is also directed to the scheme for enabling holders of bonds of lower denominations than £100 to participate in the 20 per cent. bonus of ordinary full-paid share capital of the company, which will be allotted after the payment of the final instalment and the issue of the definitive bonds, so that each holder of a £5 bond has a chance of drawing a 100 dollar share of the ordinary stock, which it is calculated will itself be within three or four years a 4 per cent. dividend paying stock. There is an evidence in every line of bona fides on the part both of the railway company issuing the loan, and of the Bank which invites subscriptions to the loan, and the commendable scrutiny which has preceded the advertisement of this investment should elicit from investors a corresponding endorsement and approval.

Digitized by Google

THE NEW CIVIL SERVICE CO-OPERATION.

We have been asked to give publicity to the following letters, which have appeared in the Times :—

"City, Oct. 26.

"Sir,—Your notice on Friday last of the report just issued by the Civil Service Supply Association (Limited), encourages me to hope that you will permit me to draw attention to the very extraordinary principles upon which one of the competitors of that institution has been founded. I refer to the New Civil Service Co-operation (Limited), in which undertaking privileges and emoluments are given by the articles of association to promoters, and to consulting, managing, and ordinary directors, such as almost, if not entirely, subvert the true principle of co-operation, which is essentially mutual in the benefits it confers. This undertaking has already done an extensive business, and is clearly a success as far as patronage is concerned, but I venture to say that it is not less one-sided in its constitution than would be any private establishment conducted on a sound basis. For example, the promoters of the company have appointed their leading man, Mr. W. W. Bentley, and a Mr. B. H. Evans, as consulting and managing directors respectively, the first to be remunerated by a commission of 10s. per cent. on the annual gross returns of the company, and the second by a similar commission on the annual gross returns in excess of £50,000, both to be paid in fully paid-up ordinary shares. Mr. Evans is secured in his position for 14 years, and Mr. Bentley is practically secure for a much longer period. Mr. Evans is also to receive a salary as managing director of £600 for the first year, £750 for the second, and £1,000 per annum afterwards. All these payments are to be made over and beyond their remuneration as directors. Besides these comfortable arrangements, the promoters have received £500 in fully paid-up ordinary shares, and are 'retained for placing from time to time all shares forming the capital of the Company,' at a commission which, with the above £500, has already given them £2,375 in fully paid-up ordinary shares. The directors have also been apportioned 50 fully paid-up ordinary shares for 'special services.' And all these fully paid-up ordinary shares, so lavishly given away, carry a 10 per cent. accumulative dividend, and are to be ultimately redeemed at 10 per cent premium.

"Seeing that some of the members of the Civil Service Supply Association now propose that the remuneration of their directors be reduced from £1,050, notwithstanding that the annual gross returns of that institution attain to nearly one million sterling, the directors of the New Civil Service Co-operation must not be surprised if some objection should be raised at the forthcoming meeting of the members to arrangements which, under a similar extent of business, would give the managing, consulting and ordinary directors something like £12,750 a year.

"Another reason why I crave your aid in drawing attention to this company is, that although it is mostly composed of employés in banks and other business establishments, the directors have called this meeting for Saturday next, at 11 o'clock, a day and hour obviously most inconvenient to the bulk of the members. Besides this, it is stated that the press will not be permitted to attend. I may add, that the meeting of the Civil Service Supply Association is called for Friday evening next, and that the press will be admitted.

"I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

"A MEMBER OF THE CO-OPERATION."

"5 and 6 Bucklersbury, E.C., Oct. 27.

"Sir,—Will you allow me to state, in reply to your correspondent, 'A Member of the Co-operation,' that the commission provided for me by the articles, as projector of the company and consulting director, of 10s. per cent. on the gross annual returns, is by subsequent registered agreement reduced so as to be calculated only on their excess over £50,000 a year. Its amount for the first year has proved below £100. This part of the statement being of a personal character, you will, I trust, allow me space for immediate reply. The other portion can await the meeting. I may add, however, that your correspondent is in error as to any intention to exclude the press. Your reporter received in my presence a few days ago a balance sheet and invitation to attend.

"Yours faithfully, "W. W. BENTLEY."

The Bankruptcy Court.—A correspondent of a contemporary says :—"The general public may not be aware that the offices of the London Court of Bankruptcy will in a few days be removed from Basinghall-street to Lincoln's-inn-fields, and that henceforth the whole of the administrative business in bankruptcy will be carried on at the latter place. As at least three-fourths of this business is transacted by solicitors whose offices are within a radius of half a mile of the Court in Basinghall-street, this removal will be a great inconvenience to the principal practitioners, but, as it is now beyond recall, it is useless remonstrating about it. There is, however, one matter to which the attention of the authorities should be called, and that is the absolute necessity for the retention at some place in the City of the 'officer appointed to administer oaths.' No fee is payable to this officer for swearing affidavits, and it is of importance to merchants and others in the City that they should not be deprived of this right. Should they be, they will have to incur the expense of paying a commissioner for swearing them, as, of course, they could not go to Lincoln's-inn; and it need hardly be said that in many bankruptcy matters it is desirable to avoid every possible expense. It is to be hoped that the authorities will not deprive the City people of the facility they have hitherto enjoyed."

A Bankrupt's Effects.—Sir Simeon Stuart, Bart., of St. James's-square, Bath, came up for final examination at the Bath County Court on Thursday. His inventory of effects caused considerable amusement. It transpired at the last examination that Sir Simeon had obtained a large quantity of jewellery from tradesmen at Bath, Exeter, and Bournemouth, the majority of which he had given to ladies who were not members of his own family. Hosiery and tailors' goods to the amount of £200 had been obtained. The bankrupt had no income whatever, and he said he thought Lady Stuart would have paid the bills if she had had means, although she might have objected when she knew to whom the presents were made. The inventory was as follows :—A railway rug much worn, set of old onyx studs, pencil case, pair of opera glasses, useless because out of order; pair of worn-out gaiters, half a hundred pin cartridges, a gun cleaner, cartridge extractor, a fishing rod, silver watch, three pairs of worsted stockings, and a lantern. The solicitors humorously remarked that the fishing rod was an emblem of how the tradesmen jumped at the bait. The bankrupt was allowed to pass his final examination, but proceedings in a superior court were announced.

Digitized by Google

CREDITORS' MEETINGS.

WILLIAM WINN (LIVERPOOL).—A meeting of creditors under the liquidation petition of this debtor, a silk mercer and general draper, was held at the offices of Gibson and Bolland, accountants, on the 21st instant. The statement of accounts disclosed unsecured debts, £7,104 8s. 5d.; preferential claims, £481 7s. 1d.; and assets, £2,179 17s. 4d. A resolution was passed to liquidate the estate by arrangement, and to appoint Mr. Bolland trustee. There being creditors who held security which would be available in case a composition were accepted, no proposal was made on the part of the debtor, it being understood that there would be an offer by him to purchase the estate from the trustee.

MESSRS. LOTTERIS AND CO. (LIVERPOOL).—A meeting of creditors under the failure of this firm, shipbrokers and ship chandlers in Liverpool, was held on the 19th inst. The liabilities were £3,000, and assets £300. Liquidation was determined upon, and Mr. Bolland chosen trustee.

JAMES BLACK (LIVERPOOL).—A meeting of creditors was held at the offices of Gibson and Bolland, under the failure of this debtor, a woollen warehouseman, with liabilities £10,423 10s., and assets £3,653 13s. 1d. A resolution to liquidate by arrangement was passed, and Mr. Bolland chosen trustee, with a committee of inspection. The debtor subsequently purchased his estate from the trustee for 6s. in the pound.

JOHN E. GIBNEY (LIVERPOOL).—On the 23rd instant, a meeting of creditors was held under the liquidation petition of this debtor, a tailor and draper. The debts are £1,018, and assets £450. A resolution to liquidate was passed, and Mr. Bolland chosen trustee.

LEONARD STEPHENSON (LIVERPOOL).—A meeting of the creditors of this debtor, a confectioner, was also held on the 23rd instant. The liabilities are £150, and assets doubtful, being dependent on litigation. Mr. Bolland was chosen trustee to wind-up the estate, and the debtor allowed his discharge.

PHILLIPPS HART AND CO. (LIVERPOOL).—At a meeting of the creditors of John Dennis Phillipps and Hugh Hart, pianoforte and music sellers, of Church-street, Liverpool, held on the 26th instant, at the Westminster Palace Hotel, Westminster, the liabilities were stated at £7,064 15s. 0d., and assets £6,675 11s. 6d. It was resolved to liquidate by arrangement, Mr. Frederick Lucas, of 20 Great Marlborough-street, London, W., accountant, and Mr. John S. Blease, of Liverpool, accountant, being appointed the trustees, together with a committee of inspection, the debtors being allowed their discharge on the trustees' certificate.

FAILURES.

ENGLAND.—A petition for liquidation has been presented to the Court of Bankruptcy by Mr. N. V. Rix, iron merchant and ironmonger, trading as John and Nathaniel Rix, of 4 Royal Exchange-buildings, and High-street, Shadwell. The liabilities amount to about £55,000.—The stoppage is announced of Messrs. Raffael Brothers, produce merchants, whose liabilities amount to about £60,000, while the liquidation depends upon the realisation of assets abroad. The books have been placed in the hands of Messrs. Cape and Harris, accountants.

Owing to pressure of matter, several communications are unavoidably deferred until next week.—ED.

The Liverpool Courier states that the late Mr. C. Turner, M.P., was possessed of property of various kinds to the amount of between £600,000 and £700,000, and that he has included among his bequests £50,000 to Mr. Groves, of Liverpool, to be applied to charitable purposes.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

W. C. H.—We are sorry your query in our number for October 9th has remained so long unanswered. If, by the terms of the lease, the rent is made payable from quarter to quarter in advance, the distraint may be levied as soon as the rent becomes due. The right depends entirely on the wording of the lease, and would undoubtedly be upheld at law.

APPOINTMENTS.

[The Editor will be glad to receive early notice of appointment of Liquidators and Auditors for insertion in this Column.

Mr. W. H. Pannell has been appointed trustee of the estate of J. W. Worden and H. Crook, of 28 Jewry-street, Aldgate, in the City of London, importers of foreign goods, and co-partners; also of the separate estate of J. W. Worden. Also receiver of the estate of Alfred E. Schultz, of 21 King's-road, Chelsea, in the county of Middlesex, wine, spirit, and beer merchant.

Mr. John Slater has been appointed receiver of the estate of William C. Steane, of 102 Denmark-street, Camberwell, in the county of Surrey, gentleman.

THE CHARGE AGAINST A LIVERPOOL CASHIER.—Edward John Barry, who is charged with embezzling several thousands of pounds belonging to Messrs. Duncan, Ewing and Co., timber brokers, Liverpool, in whose service he was a cashier and confidential clerk, was brought up on Tuesday at the Liverpool Police-court. The prisoner absconded in March last, and was not heard of until a few weeks ago, when he was apprehended in Jamaica and brought back to this country in charge of Detective Maxwell, of the Liverpool force. At Plymouth, however, he made his escape, but was re-captured at Yeovil, in Somersetshire, on Friday last. The case was not gone into, the prisoner being remanded for a week. Mr. Davies, the prosecuting solicitor, said that a statement had appeared in one of the Liverpool papers to the effect that Barry's recapture was chiefly due to a telegram from him to a lady in Liverpool having been stopped by the Post-office authorities and the contents communicated to the police. He was instructed by the police to give this statement an unqualified denial. It was quite untrue.—The prisoner, addressing the magistrate, Mr. Raffles, said he wished to complain of undue severity on the part of the police, he having been put in irons when being conveyed to Liverpool.—Mr. Raffles declined to hear the complaint, stating, however, that he had better make it at another time.—The court was densely crowded during the hearing of the case.—At the Liverpool Police-court Joseph Maxwell, late a detective in the borough force, was brought up on remand, charged with neglect of duty in permitting Barry to escape from his custody. The court was crowded. It was now stated that the suspicions of corruption and collusion with Barry were unfounded, and that the case against Maxwell was one of negligence only. The magistrate decided to try him under a local act, providing a penalty not exceeding £10, or a month's imprisonment in default, and the evidence was then taken. Judgment was reserved to allow the magistrate time to consider a point of objection which had been taken, as to the applicability of the act in question.—On the following day Maxwell was brought up and fined in the nominal penalty of one shilling. Mr. Raffles said that the prisoner having been already dismissed from the police force, he was unwilling to add to his punishment. At a meeting of the Town Council, Mr. Samuelson drew attention to the case of Detective Maxwell, and expressed his opinion that his dismissal was an act of undue precipitation on the part of the Watch Committee. The deputy chairman, however, said that upon Maxwell's own statement he had been guilty of gross negligence, and the committee had no other course open to them but to dismiss him from the force.

Digitized by Google

CONVICTION OF A STOCKBROKER.

At the Central Criminal Court, on Monday, Mr. Edward Bland pleaded "Not Guilty" to an indictment charging him with having unlawfully converted certain valuable securities to his own use. Mr. Poland appeared for the prosecution; Mr. Straight defended the prisoner. It appeared that the prisoner was formerly a stockbroker, carrying on business at 3 Crown-court, Threadneedle-street. Mr. Swyer, the prosecutor, is a chymist in business at 131 Brick-lane, Bethnal-green, and in 1870 he directed the prisoner to purchase for him Peruvian, Turkish, and other bonds of the actual value of £2,313 13s. The purchase was made, but the prosecutor could not obtain possession of the bonds, and, consequently, in July, 1870, he obtained a warrant for the apprehension of the prisoner, who, however, was not taken into custody until the 4th of August in the present year, he having been residing in the mean time on the Continent. When arrested, he said to the detective, "It is all right; you have got a penniless man;" and previously in 1873 he had written letters to the prosecutor containing acknowledgments of his guilt. The jury returned a verdict of Guilty. Mr. Straight said that previously to this unfortunate occurrence there had been no imputation on the character of the prisoner, who had speculated with the bonds, fully believing at the time that he would soon be able to replace the securities he had thus appropriated, but this was rendered impossible by the breaking out of war between France and Germany. The prisoner had been recently married, and during the last five years he had been living on the Continent in great poverty and distress. He hoped the court would take this circumstance into consideration, and pass a light sentence. The Recorder said the prisoner had been convicted of an offence of great gravity in a commercial country like this. Under the statute many cases might arise in which he should think it necessary to pass a sentence of penal servitude. The court were justified, however, in taking into consideration the punishment which the prisoner had brought upon himself by his act. He had already had five years of misery, and but for that circumstance the present sentence would have been much more severe. The prisoner would be imprisoned and kept to hard labour for six calendar months.

WINDING-UP.—Petitions have been presented to the Court of Chancery for the winding-up of the Volunteer Co-operative and General Equipment Company, Limited, Grammes Magneto-Electric Company, Limited, and the General Register and Meter Company, Limited. Petitions for the winding-up of the Kent Tramways Company, Limited, East Norfolk Tramway Company, Limited, and E. Fisher and Company, Limited, are to be heard in the Court of Chancery. A petition for the winding-up of the British Imperial Insurance Corporation, Limited, will be heard on the 5th day of November next.

LATE ADVERTISEMENTS.

ACCOUNTANTS may greatly facilitate their office work, and materially increase their profits, by printing liquidation notices, &c., by Zuccato's Papyrograph, which is used by a large number of London and Provincial Accountants, including John L. Lovering and Co.; Gamble and Harvey; Andrews and Mason; Nicholls and Leatherdale; Slater and Pannell; John Bath and Co.; Sydney Smith, and Co.; Ladbury, Collinson, and Viney; Arthur Barron, and Co.; Edmunds, Davis, and Clarke; &c. For 2½d., 500 4to. copies can be taken upon any kind of dry paper, by an office boy in a copying-press at the rate of 10 a minute. For price list and testimonials, apply to WALTER HENRY, Papyrographic Depôt, 409 Strand, W.C.

THE BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY'S ANNUAL RECEIPTS EXCEED THREE MILLIONS.

HOW TO PURCHASE A HOUSE FOR TWO GUINEAS PER MONTH With immediate Possession and no Rent to pay.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO PURCHASE A PLOT OF LAND FOR FIVE SHILLINGS PER MONTH.

With Immediate Possession, either for Building or Gardening purposes.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK FREEHOLD LAND SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO INVEST YOUR MONEY WITH SAFETY AT £4 PER CENT. INTEREST.

Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BANK. All sums under £50 repayable upon demand. Current Accounts opened similar to ordinary Bankers. Cheque-books supplied. English and Foreign Stocks and Shares purchased and sold, and Advances made thereon.

Office Hours from 10 till 4; on Mondays from 10 till 9, and on Saturdays from 10 till 12 o'clock.

A Pamphlet containing full particulars may be obtained post-free on application.

FRANCIS RAVENSCROFT, Manager.

THE METROPOLITAN AND PROVINCIAL LAND, ESTATE, HOUSE, LICENSED VICTUALLERS' & GENERAL BUSINESS TRANSFER "SYNDICATE" AGENCY.

Registered according to Act of Parliament. Head Offices, No. 3 Craven-street, Charing Cross, W.C. The organisation and working system of the "Syndicate" are;—1st.—The Sale, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Ground of Rents, Freehold and Leasehold Land, Farms, Estates, Houses, Hotels-Public Houses, Inns, Beer Houses, Restaurants, Coffee Houses, Tobacconists, Drapers, and every other description of Business, Furniture, Objects of Art, or Goods of any description by Auction or Private Contract. 2nd.—The letting, or disposing of, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Land, Farms, Estates, Furnished, or Unfurnished Houses Chambers, or Offices under private contract. 3rd.—The Collection of Rents and the recovery of outstanding accounts. 4th.—The Surveys and Valuations of Land, Farms, Estates, and Houses; also Valuations of Furniture, Jewellery, and other Effects, for probate and other purposes. 5th.—The transaction of all other business usually transacted by Auctioneers, Surveyors, Land, House, Estate and Insurance Agents. 6th. —The negociations of partnerships, and from unlimited connection with capitalists, monetary advances on real and personal securities, as well as merchandize, and every other description of property intended forabsolute sale, or otherwise. 7th. Generally the carrying out of all things instdental or conducive to the above objects, and every of them; also the laying out of estates and surveys for delapidations. The "Syndicate" from their extended connection with the Trades' Protection Societies and other sources, undertake expeditiously for Clients and others to ascertain reliably the status of parties, and make inquiries of a private and confidential character Liberal terms to Accountants in town or country introducing business.

RESTAURANT, 13 OXFORD STREET,

Near the corner of Tottenham-court-road.

Known as the BODEGA, now under the new management of Mr. L. BOECKER, late of 13 Idol-lane, City.

Luncheons from the joints, hot or cold, including vegetables and bread, 1s. 3d

Dinners from 12 till 4 o'clock, from the joint, with soup or fish, vegetables, cheese and bread, 2s.

Dinners from 6 till 9 o'clock, from 2s. 6d. to 10s. 6d.

Private Dining Rooms for large and small parties on the Second Floor.

LARGE LIGHT OFFICES on the Fourth Floor. Rents £10 and £15. Apply to Housekeeper, 26 Budge-row, Cannon-street, E.C.

MONEY to LEND to BORROWERS residing in town or Country, from £50 upwards repayable in one sum, from one to five years, at five per cent. interest on personal security; also on mortgage of freehold or leasehold property from 3 per cent., for a term of years to be agreed upon. No commission.

Apply to R. F. PRESTON, Esq., 120 Southampton-row, London, W.C.

Digitized by Google

CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

MANSION HOUSE CHAMBERS, 11 QUEEN VICTORIA STREET, LONDON, E.C.

First issue of Capital, £500,000, in Subscriptions of £1 and upwards. No further liability. Open to all. Each cash subscriber is entitled to interest in lieu of dividend, at the rate of £1 10s. per cent. per month, 18 per cent. per annum, which will be paid in Cash.

TRUSTEES.

Lieut.-General, J. H. Gascoigne, C.B., Ivybridge, Devon.
The Rev. W. F. Good, D.D., Newton Abbott, Devon.
Rev. C. Hope Robertson, Smeeth Rectory, Ashford.
Henry Walker, Esq., Fowler Height, Blackburn.

ACCOUNTANTS AND AUDITORS.

Messrs. R. W. Hudswell and Co., 23 Martin's Lane, Cannon Street, London, E.C.

MANAGER AND PROPRIETOR. — RICHARD BANNER OAKLEY, F.R.G.S.

Current accounts opened, and 5 per cent. interest allowed on the minimum monthly balances. Cheque Books supplied. The Bank grants credits and issues circular notes for the Continent and America, and transacts every description of sound Financial Business.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street, ISSUES GUARANTEED CHEQUES for any sum not exceeding £20 against cash deposits, without any charge for commission, the penny stamp being the only expense. These are very convenient for persons not having banking accounts, or not wishing to draw small cheques. They are payable on demand at all the Branches of the Co-operative Credit Bank, or can be passed through any bank in ordinary course.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street, is NOW ISSUING PROMISSORY NOTES from £5 upwards, payable three months after date with interest at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum if held to maturity, or payable on demand without interest. These are very useful to persons requiring short investments, and are perfectly negotiable instruments.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The ONLY SAFE and FIRM SYSTEM of BANKING.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The PEOPLE'S BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—No Promotion Money or Preliminary Expenses.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Managerial Remuneration Dependent on Profits.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Profits on the whole amount of the Liability.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Minimum of Risk, its operations being spread over a variety of subjects.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—No Liability beyond amount of subscription.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The Secrecy and Despatch of Individual Management.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—A fixed instead of an uncertain Scale of Profits.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Eighteen per Cent. per Annum paid Monthly.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—A constantly accruing Reserve Fund.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Power of Total Withdrawal after six months on Sixty Days' Notice.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street, City.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Book-keeping in the hands of the Subscribers.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Quarterly published Balance-sheet issued and certified by the Subscribers' Accountant.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Current Accounts opened and Five per Cent. allowed on the Minimum Monthly Balances.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK. — Furnishes Cheque Books for Customers.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK grants Credits and issues Circular Notes for the Continent and America.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK transacts every description of Sound Financial Business.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK introduces Public Loans.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK promotes Public Companies of a bona-fide character.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK negotiates the Discount of Bills and Mortgages on a Small Commission.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK negotiates Loans on Deposit of Deeds and other valuable Securities.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK assists in the Development of Patents for Useful Inventions.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK undertakes on Commission the Purchase and Sale of Stocks and Shares.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street, near the Mansion House.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK accepts the Agencies of Foreign and Country Banks and Merchants, and of Foreign Governments.

IF YOU WANT TO HAVE YOUR BUSINESS done Cheaply and Expeditiously, go to the CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK

IF YOU WANT TO BE TREATED WITH CIVILITY, lodge your Money with the CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

IF YOU WANT THE BEST AND MOST RELIABLE COMMERCIAL INFORMATION OF THE DAY, ask the Manager of THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK,
Mansion House Chambers,
11 QUEEN VICTORIA STREET, LONDON.

BRANCH OFFICES—LIVERPOOL: Mr. E. Dronke, Batavia-builings, Hackins Hey. MANCHESTER: Messrs. Lawrenson & Co., 20 Barton Arcade. BLACKBURN: Henry Walker, Esq., Fowler Heights. BATH: Mr. H. J. Pocock, 4 Union Street. GLASGOW: Mr. J. Cameron, 32 West George Street. WARRINGTON: Messrs. Henry Walker & Son, Albert Works, School Braw. DENBIGH: Jas. A York, Vale Street. AYR: Mr. Ramsay, Temperance Hotel, High Street.

Digitized by Google

"The source of many a writer's woe has been discovered."

PENS! PENS!! PENS!!

"They come as a boon and a blessing to men, The Pickwick, the Owl, and the Waverley Pen."

"The misery of a bad Pen is now a voluntary infliction."

Another blessing to men! The Hindoo Pen. 1,200 Newspapers recommend them. See Graphic, 17th May, 1873.

Sold by every respectable Stationer. Post 1s.1d.

Patentees, MACNIVEN & CAMERON, 23 to 33 Blair-street, Edinburgh.

J. DEFRIES' AND SONS'

CHANDELIERS, IN CRYSTAL, BRONZE, AND ORMOLU.

TABLE GLASS AND CHINA.

Dinner Services, Gilt Pieces, £4 10s.

KEROSENE and MODERATOR LAMPS for INDIA.

Works:—London and Birmingham.

WEDDING AND BIRTHDAY PRESENTS.

NEW DECORATIONS for the DINING TABLE.

FOUNTAINS.

STORER'S Patent Perpetual Perfumed CRYSTAL TABLE FOUNTAIN, for Dining, Hall and Drawing Rooms, in Crystal and Gilt, £2 17s. 6d. to 100 guineas.

FETES AND REJOICINGS.

BALLROOMS and GARDENS, &c., DECORATED and ILLUMINATED for Evening Parties. Tents, Temporary Rooms, and Banqueting Halls erected.

CRYSTAL and BRONZED CHANDELIERS.

TABLE GLASS and CHINA LENT ON HIRE.

J. DEFRIES and SONS, 147, HOUNDSDITCH.

Five minutes' walk from the Bank of England.

RUPTURES—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS s allowed by upwards of 500 Medical Men to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided, a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the manufacturer, Mr. John White, 228, Piccadilly, London. Price of a single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., 31s. 6d, Postage Free. Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. An Umbilical Tsusr, 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. P.O.O. to be made payable to John White, Post-office, Piccadilly.

TRADE MARK.

NEW PATENT ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS, &c. for Varicose Veins, and all cases of Weakness and Swelling of the Legs, Sprains, &c. They are porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and are drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price from 4s. 6d., 7s, 6d., 10s, to 16s. each. Postage free.

CHEST EXPANDING BRACES, for both sexes. For gentlemen they are a substitute for the ordinary braces. For children they are invaluable; they prevent stooping and preserve the symmetry of the chest. Prices for children, 5s. 6d. and 7s. 6d. Adults, 10s. 6d., 15s. 6d., and 21s. each. Postage free.—John White, Manufacturer, 228 Piccadilly, London.

EPPS'S COCOA.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—See article in the Civil Service Gazette.

STAR LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY,

48 MOORGATE STREET, LONDON, E.C

DIRECTORS.

Chairman—

Mr. Alderman McArthur, M.P.

Deputy Chairman—

William Mewburn, Esq.

H. J. Atkinson, Esq.
Thomas Ball, Esq.
Walter Griffith, Esq.
George M. Kiell, Esq.
George Lidgett, Esq.
Sir Francis Lycett.
William Merry, Esq.
John Napier, Esq.
Jonathan S. Pidgeon, Esq
John Vanner, Esq.
S. D. Waddy, Esq., Q.C., M.P.

Assurance and Annuity Fund	1,216,115	13	5
Annual Income (1874)	223,613	2	0
Bonuses Apportioned	581,774	6	2
Claims Paid	1,140,151	1	8

Copies of the Report, Balance Sheet and Prospectus can be obtained on application to the Head Office.

W. W. BAYNES, Secretary.

The Only and Special "MEDAL FOR PROGRESS,"

Was awarded for "Feuerfeste Eisone Schranke und Kunstchlosser Fortschritts," to

HOBBS, HART, & CO.,

AT THE VIENNA UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION.

This Medal is only given to Exhibitors whose New Inventions testify marked Progress.

"FIRE-PROOF SAFES; AND LOCKS AND ENDLESS CHANGE LOCKS AND KEYS,"

Invented especially for Safes and Strong-Room Doors, to frustrate the use of False Keys.

N.B.—The continued security and secrecy of a Lock, fixed on a Safe or Strong-Room Door, depends on the fact that there are no false duplicate keys of that Lock in existence. The object of a Lock is twofold—security against burglars, and secrecy against prying curiosity. A new change in this Lock may at any time be obtained in five minutes by simply filing away the thickness of a hair from one or more of the steps of the Key. Th Lock, by a simple movement of the Regulator, is thus made to adapt itself to the New Key, after which no other Key will open the Lock.

The Lock and Key may thus be easily altered into what would be virtually a New Lock and Key, as often as may be desired, without the aid of a Lockmaker or of any second person, thus frustrating the use of fraudulent copies of the original Key (see the Safe Robbery in Dublin of £630, vide "Times," 12th September, 1875). This Lock affords effectual protection from duplicate or "Master" Keys secretly made in manufactories; very extensive robberies (in one case 13 Safes in one vault) having been effected by this means.

HOBBS, HART & CO.,

LOCK, SAFE, AND STRONG-ROOM DOOR MANUFACTURERS

76 Cheapside, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

Issued and Strongly Recommended by the Co-operative Credit Bank.

KEOKUK AND KANSAS CITY RAILWAY COMPANY

OF MISSOURI, UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

FIRST MORTGAGE SINKING FUND BONDS.—Issue of £500,000 sterling = 2,500,000 dols., American Gold, being part of £1,000,000 sterling, or £5,000,000 dols. American Gold, authorised to be issued in accordance with the Charter and resolutions of the Board of Directors.

Bearing interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum payable half-yearly, but yielding at the price of issue 8 per cent. annually.

Interest and principal payable in London, at the Co-operative Credit Bank, in sterling, or in New York City (U.S.A.) at the office of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, in American Gold, free from all United States or State taxes.

The Bonds are to bearer or registered of various denominations as under, repayable at par A.D. 1905.

DENOMINATIONS OF BONDS.

Class A, 1,000 dols., American Gold	=	£200	0	0	sterling.
Class B, 500 dols., ,,	=	100	0	0	,,
Class C, 250 dols., ,,	=	50	0	0	,,
Class D, 100 dols., ,,	=	20	0	0	,,
Class E, 25 dols., ,,	=	5	0	0	,,

PRICE OF ISSUE PER BOND.

Class A, 875 dols., American Gold	=	£175	0	0	sterling.
Class B, 437 50-100 dols., ,,	=	87	10	0	,,
Class C, 218 75-100 dols., ,,	=	43	15	0	,,
Class D, 87 50-100 dols., ,,	=	17	10	0	,,
Class E, 21 88-100 dols., ,,	=	4	7	6	,,

A BONUS OF 20 PER CENT. IN FULL-PAID ORDINARY SHARES OF THE RAILWAY COMPANY WILL BE ALLOTED TO SUBSCRIBERS AFTER THE FINAL PAYMENT, ON THE ISSUE OF THE DEFINITIVE BONDS.

TRUSTEES UNDER THE MORTGAGE.

Farmers' Loan and Trust Company of New York (U.S.A.)
* . . . . England.

PRESIDENT.

Samuel H. Melvin, Esq. Springfield, Ill.

VICE-PRESIDENT.

A. C. Vandewater, Esq., Pana., Ill.

DIRECTORS.

Samuel H. Melvin, Esq., Springfield, Ill.
Howard M. Holden, Esq., President 1st National Bank, Kansas City (Missouri).
William Patterson, Esq., President Keokuk National Bank, Keokuk (Iowa).
William H. Waters, Esq., President 2nd National Bank, St. Louis (Missouri).
John H. Cardell, Esq., Cashier Saline County Bank, Marshall (Missouri).
Geo. H. Rea, Esq., President Mississippi Valley Transportation Company, St. Louis (Missouri).
John W. Morse, Esq., General Agent, Indianapolis and St. Louis Railroad Company, St. Louis (Missouri).
General F. A. Jones, formerly United States Army, Macon (Missouri).
A. C. Vandewater, Esq., Pana (Illinois).
George P. Laurence, Esq., Pana (Illinois).
* . . . . Esq., England.
* . . . . Esq., England.
* . . . . Esq., England.

* To be elected by the Bondholders at a meeting to be called for that purpose after Subscription and Allotment.

SOLICITOR.

Charles Henry Edmands, Esq., 33 Poultry, London, E.C.

ENGINEER-IN-CHIEF.

Oswald Younghusband, Esq., M. Inst. C.E.

BANKERS.

The Co-operative Credit Bank, Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street, London, E.C., and all its branches throughout Great Britain and Ireland.

Digitized by Google

The Co-operative Credit Bank is authorised by the Keokuk and Kansas City Railway Company to receive subscriptions for £500,000 sterling, in Bonds of various denominations as above, said £500,000 being the first portion of an authorised issue of £1,000,000 sterling, which is now for the first time offered to the public.

The terms of payment are—

20 per cent. on application.	10 per cent. Feb. 1st, 1876.
10 per cent. on allotment.	10 per cent. March 1st, 1876.
10 per cent. Dec. 1st, 1875.	10 per cent. April 1st, 1876.
10 per cent. Jan. 3rd, 1876.	20 per cent. May 2nd, 1876.

Subscribers will have the option of prepaying in full under discount at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, either on allotment or on any of the dates when an instalment falls due. The failure to pay duly any instalment will subject all previous payments to forfeiture and cancellation of the allotment.

Scrip certificates will be issued against allotment letters and the Bankers' receipts, and after payment of the final instalment will be exchanged for the Definitive Bonds in due course.

Special attention is drawn to the fact that a bonus of 20 per cent. of their holdings, in full-paid ordinary shares of the Keokuk and Kansas City Railway Company, will be alloted to subscribers on the payment of the final instalment and the issue of the Definitive Bonds. It is calculated that this ordinary share capital will, within four years from completion of the road, be earning a dividend of at least 4 per cent. annually. For subscribers to bonds of a lower denomination than £100, it has been arranged that inasmuch as the share capital cannot be subdivided, according to the charter, into a lower denomination than 100 dollars, a new plan shall be carried out to secure for them a similar interest in the 20 per cent. bonus. This arrangement is that the balance after allotment, made to the holders of larger bonds, shall be placed in the hands of trustees; against which numbered coupon tickets will be issued in proportion to the amount of the lower bonds, as, for instance, one to each holder of a £5 bond, four to a holder of a £20 bond, and so forth. Within one month after the final payment on such smaller bonds (i.e. those below £100), a drawing will take place in the presence of a notary public, for such a number of 100 dollar shares as will represent the proportion of said bonus of 100 dollars shares to £100 worth of bonds held in sums under the said sum of £100 in which ONE coupon will have a chance of being drawn for a 100 dollar share.

The Bonds now offered will form a first charge on a main line of road 225 miles in length, extending from Keokuk (Iowa) to Kansas city (Missouri), the latter terminus being, as is well-known, the great commercial centre of the South-west. There has been expended already on the property, 1,170,239 dollars, or, in round numbers, £200,000. On the section or division between Salisbury and Kansas city (107 miles in length, exclusive of sidings); fifteen and a half miles between Glasgow and Salisbury are already in operation; and about twenty miles more are so far advanced in respect to the earthworks and bridges that they can be completed ready for the permanent way at a very moderate outlay.

A special provision of the mortgage is that the railway company bind themselves to use their best endeavours to procure at the next session of the legislature of Missouri, such additional powers as will confer on the Bondholders the right to vote at all elections equally with the Shareholders. In the mean time it has been agreed that the Bondholders shall have at once the nomination of three English directors, and thus be guaranteed a direct voice in the management. It will be evident to Bondholders that by securing this voting power the management is practically vested in them, as having in connection with the stock bonus above mentioned a majority of votes.

An English Trustee will be appointed to guard the interests of the English Bondholders.

No disbursement of the money subscribed will be made either to the Railway Company or the Contractors, except on the certificate of an engineer appointed by the Bondholders that five consecutive new miles of railway are completed according to specification, and are in running order for trains, and so from time to time as every successive five miles of new railway are completed, the contract being specific, that no payment shall in any case be made except as and when every five miles are completed.

The completed and projected line of the Keokuk and Kansas City Railway has been very carefully examined by Mr Oswald Younghusband, M.Inst.C.E. His report demonstrates that the proceeds of the Bonds will be amply sufficient for the completion and full equipment of the division between Salisbury and Kansas City; that in consequence of its judicious location it can be worked at a very moderate cost; and that through opening up a richly settled agricultural and mineral section of the State of Missouri, the net receipts from the traffic will be amply sufficient, on completion of the road, to pay the interest on the debentures.

Provision has been made by the Railway Company for depositing with Trustees two years' interest in advance on the Bonds, so that there may be no possibility of default during the construction of the road. These Trustees are two in number, and have been appointed conjointly in the interests of the Bank and the Railway Company. Every precaution has been taken to guard against those abuses, which unfortunately have, in some cases, cast discredit on American railroad investments.

The legal documents connected with the Company can be seen at the office of C. H. Edmands, Esq., Solicitor, 33 Poultry, London, E.C.

Copies of the engineer's report and of the mortgage or deed of trust, as settled by J. P. Benjamin, Esq., Q.C., together with prospectuses and forms of application, can be obtained at the Chief Office of the Co-operative Credit Bank, 11 Queen Victoria-street, London, E.C., or at its various branches throughout Great Britain and Ireland.

Subscription Lists will be opened October 30th, at the Co-operative Credit Bank in London, and at its various branches. These Lists will be closed in London November 8th, and in the country November 9th. [See next page.

Digitized by Google

Applications must be made on the following form, and must in all cases be accompanied by a deposit of 20 per cent., which will be returned without deduction should there be no allotment.

FORM OF APPLICATION.

(To be retained by the Bank.)

Issue of £500,000—2,500,000 dols.—part of £1,000,000, or 5,000,000 dols., First Mortgage Sinking Fund Bonds of the

KEOKUK AND KANSAS CITY RAILWAY COMPANY.

Redeemable in Thirty Years from October 1st, 1875.

Principal and interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable in gold.

In Bonds of A £200, B £100, C £50, D £20, E £5.

To THE DIRECTORS OF THE KEOKUK AND KANSAS CITY RAILWAY COMPANY, LONDON, E.C.

Having paid to your credit with the CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK the sum of £ , request that you will allot to , on the conditions of the Prospectus issued by you, dated October 30th 1875, Bonds of the above-mentioned issue, Class , and hereby agree to accept the same or any smaller number that may be allotted to , and to pay the additional instalments thereon as they may become due from time to time, and in default of due payment on any instalment agree that allotment and all previous payments shall be liable to forfeiture.

Name in full ....

Address ....

Date ....

Signature of Applicant ....

ADDITION TO BE FILLED UP IF THE APPLICANT DESIRES TO PAY IN FULL.

desire to pay up Subscription in full, discount at the rate of 6 per cent. thereon to be allowed for the intervening period. Signature ....

RECEIPT.

(To be retained by the Applicant.)

Received of the sum of £ for account of the Keokuk and Kansas City Railway Company, being the payment of deposit of £20 per cent. per Bond, required on application for an allotment of Bonds, Class . For the Co-operative Credit Bank, ...

£ : : Manager.

N.B.—Similar receipts will be issued to subscribers on the payment of each instalment as it becomes due, said receipts to be exchanged as soon as possible after the final payment for the definite Bonds.

H. D. RAWLINGS,

PURVEYOR OF MINERAL WATERS TO

H. R. H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.
H. R. H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH.
H. R. H. THE PRINCE CHRISTIAN.
THE LATE EMPEROR NAPOLEON III.

AND THE PRINCIPAL COURTS OF EUROPE.

Gold Medallist of the Societe Nationale Agricole Manufacturiere et Commerciale de Paris.

SODA, BRIGHTON, SELTZER and all other Mineral Waters for HOME CONSUMPTION and EXPORTATION

PRICE LISTS on Application, at the Manufactory, Nassau-street, W.

ALFRED W. GEE,

ADVERTISING AGENT,

62, GRACECHURCH STREET,

LONDON, E.C.

London Gazette Notices, and Advertisements and Announcements of all kinds for English, Colonial, and Foreign Newspapers promptly inserted.

N.B.—In the case of an ordinary Advertisement ordered for insertion in a number of Newspapers, only one MS. copy need be forwarded. Same rates charged as at the Publishing Offices.

Printed and Published for the Proprietor by WILLIAMS & STRAHAN, 7 Lawrence Lane, Cheapside. OCTOBER 30, 1875.

Digitized by Google

The Accountant.

A MEDIUM OF COMMUNICATION BETWEEN ACCOUNTANTS IN ALL PARTS OF THE UNITED KINGDOM

VOL. I.—NEW SERIES.—No. 48.] SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1875. [PRICE 6D.

THE

ACCOUNTANTS' DIARY

AND

DIRECTORY for 1876

Will be published in December next.

MEMBERS OF THE PROFESSION are particularly requested to send in at once their proper names and addresses for insertion in the Directory, to

ALFRED C. HARPER,

2 COWPER'S COURT, CORNHILL,

LONDON, E.C.

PRICE:—

Foolscap Folio .. 6s. By post 6s. 9d.

Medium Octavo .. 3s. „ 3s. 6d.

(Bound in Cloth.)

Orders and Advertisements received at the above address.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

39 BROAD-STREET, BRISTOL,

JUNE 24TH, 1875.

The PARTNERSHIP hitherto existing under the Style or Firm of HANCOCK, TRIGGS, & CO., having been DISSOLVED by mutual consent, I beg to give notice that I purpose henceforth to CARRY ON BUSINESS as a PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT at the above address.

PHILIP TRIGGS.

MESSRS. BARRETT AND PATEY,

PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS,

90 LONDON WALL, E.C.

HAVING removed from No. 8 Finsbury Circus, to more commodious offices at the above address, will be pleased to hear from Accountants resident in the provincial and manufacturing towns who require agents in London.

CHARLES LOWDEN, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT, RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY,

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.

REFERENCES GIVEN.

LOVEWELL BLAKE, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT, RECEIVER, AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY.

SECRETARY TO THE GREAT YARMOUTH TRADERS' ASSOCIATION.

OFFICES: HALL QUAY CHAMBERS, GREAT YARMOUTH.

J. F. TITCHMARSH, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT AND AUDITOR,

17 PRINCESS STREET, IPSWICH.

RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY AND LIQUIDATION.

WILLIAM EDWARDS, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT AND AUDITOR,

GRANVILLE PLACE, STONE ROAD, LONGTON, STAFFORDSHIRE.

RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY AND LIQUIDATION.

WILLIAMS & STRAHAN,

Legal, Accountancy, & General Printers,

MANUFACTURING STATIONERS, &c

7 LAWRENCE LANE, CHEAPSIDE, LONDON.

Bankruptcy Forms, Statements of Affairs, Dividend Notices, Balance Sheets, &c., printed with despatch.

STEAM PRINTING WORKS, LAMBETH, S.E.

TRANSLATIONS.

MR. ALFRED W. GEE,

BRITISH AND FOREIGN ADVERTISING AGENT,

62 GRACECHURCH STREET, LONDON, E.C.,

Begs to announce that in compliance with a wish expressed by some of the subscribers to the Accountant, he has made arrangements for the translation of legal and commercial documents, correspondence, &c., into the Principal European Languages. Members of the Profession are therefore respectfully informed that arrangements can be made for efficient and speedy translations into, or from, the French, German, Italian Spanish, and Dutch Languages on Moderate Terms.

Digitized by Google

MR. FERDINAND WOLFSKEHL,
BANKER,
9 STEINWEG, FRANKFORT A/MAIN, GERMANY,

CALLS THE ATTENTION of Investors to different Continental Government Securities, guaranteed by Acts of Parliament, through which Capital and Interest ARE SECURED BEYOND ANY DOUBT.

Every one of these Loans must be repaid as per Plan attached to each Debenture, within a limited number of years, by periodical Drawings, OFFERING ADVANTAGES PRESENTED BY NO OTHER SECURITIES, WITH BONUSES AT EACH DRAWING, varying from

£10 to £30,000.

For full particulars apply by letter, addressed care
MESSRS. WOLFSKEHL BROTHERS, BANKERS,
LORD STREET, LIVERPOOL.

MR. FERDINAND WOLFSKEHL announces the following Drawings:—

The 70th DRAWING of 1,400 IMPERIAL AUSTRIAN 1858 £10 CREDIT DEBENTURES, and the 42nd BONUS DRAWING of 1,500 IMPERIAL AUSTRIAN 4 per cent. 1854 £30 DEBENTURES took place on the 1st instant, at Vienna. The 9th BONUS DRAWINGS of 120 RAAB GRAZ 4 per cent. £15 1871 DEBENTURES, took place at Ofen on 1st instant.

He will Forthwith Cash or Exchange any of the above-mentioned Debentures against other Debentures, Stocks, Shares or Obligations.

To secure safe delivery of Letters, Mr. F. W. requests that all communications should be addressed care of
Messrs. WOLFSKEHL BROTHERS, Bankers,
3 LORD STREET, LIVERPOOL,
Of whom full particulars of the above Drawings can be had on application.

P.S.—The Imperial Austrian 1858 Credit Debentures, Series 1,006, No. 78, drawing a Bonus of £4,000, has been sold by Mr. F. W. to a Gentleman residing in London.

The Accountant.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

The ACCOUNTANT is printed and published in time for Friday evening's mail; price 6d. per copy, or 28s. per annum (including postage), the reduced terms for payment in advance being: annual subscription 24s. (post free); half-yearly ditto, 13s. (post free). Cheques and Post-office orders to be made payable to Mr. Alfred W. Gee, 62 Gracechurch-street, E.C., to whom applications for advertisement space, and letters relating to the general business of the paper, should also be addressed. Literary communications should be directed to the Editor of the ACCOUNTANT at the same address, and in order to ensure insertion in the current number, correspondents are respectfully requested to forward their copy as early in the week as possible.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The Proprietor desires to call the attention of Advertisers to the special advantages offered by the paper as an Advertising medium. Starting with a good guaranteed circulation, and with the entire concurrence and hearty support of the leading members of the profession, the ACCOUNTANT has achieved a large measure of success in a wide field hitherto unoccupied by any professional organ. The ACCOUNTANT thus secures to Advertisers an excellent circulation of an exclusive character; and is particularly valuable as a medium for the announcements of members of the profession, as to Estates and Declaration of Dividends, and the appointment of Trustees and Receivers; for Publishers, Printers, Law Stationers, Auctioneers, and Estate Agents; for the Advertisements of Insurance and Public Companies; and for Notices as to Investments, Vacant Partnerships, &c. Advertisements intended for insertion in the current number, should reach the office on Thursday; late announcements can, however, be received up to 12 o'clock (noon) on Friday.

N.B.—Copies may be obtained at Messrs. W. H. Smith and Sons, Strand, at their numerous Railway Bookstalls, and at the Shops of the leading City and West-End Newsvendors.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.

In consequence of numerous applications from subscribers, the proprietor has made arrangements for the supply of CASES for holding and preserving the Accountant, which may be obtained at the office on the following terms:—In green cloth (well got up), with elastics, and "The Accountant" in gold letters on front, 3s. each; same in leather, 4s. 6d. each. Subscribers' names in gold lettering, 1s. extra. Post Office Orders payable to ALFRED W. GEE, 62 Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

The Accountant.

NOVEMBER 6, 1875.

The fatal day has come, and the time-honoured courts which have for so long administered justice in the country, are swallowed up and become mere divisions of one great court, amidst the most doleful lamentations on the part of those whose livelihood is gained by taking a guiding share in litigation. How far the result attained will be commensurate with the inconvenience caused to the profession generally cannot appear for some time to come, but it is pretty well conceded that the really important alterations might have been contained in a much smaller compass, and that there is not so very much change, except in the shape of reduction of fees, as was anticipated. The rules as regards bankruptcy are of most interest to our readers, and we shall therefore sketch them out, leaving the more ponderous details of the simplification of common law and Chancery procedure to those whose business it is to study them.

The Court of Bankruptcy has escaped the universal fusion and still remains independent, except that its judge is a judge of the High Court, and that the appeal from his decisions lies to the full court. The time for appeal is stated somewhat verbosely to be "the same as the time limited for an appeal from an interlocutory order," which, as we gather from another section of the rules, is three weeks, in this instance agreeing with the time prescribed for notice of appeal against a winding-up order by sec. 121 of the Companies' Act, 1862, and from an appeal against a decision of the Chief Judge, or a judge of the County Court under rule 143 of the Bankruptcy Rules 1870. Appeals from the County Courts are to be heard by divisional courts, consisting of such judges of the High Court as may be chosen to serve on them.

There are two other provisions which bear upon the question of bankruptcy. One assimilates the winding-up of insolvent estates in an administration suit to the practice at present obtaining in bankruptcy; and the other provides that no suit shall abate by bankruptcy of any of the parties, but that the trustee may, upon an ex-parte application, be placed upon the record instead of the debtor. It must be noticed also that claims by a trustee in bankruptcy, as such, shall not, unless by leave of the Court or a Judge, be joined with any claim by him in any other capacity. In this respect a trustee differs from other individuals, who hold a representative as well as a personal character. It will be observed that nothing is said as to claims against a trustee. As the Act provides that, subject to the rules, the plaintiff may unite in the same action several causes of action, it follows that a trustee may be sued, but must not sue in both capacities.

Another alteration is made in the rule as to unclaimed dividends. Section 116 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, provides that dividends under any bankruptcy which remain unclaimed for five years shall then be deemed to be vested in the Crown, and disposed of by the Commissioners of the Treasury, with power to the Lord Chancellor to direct that their amount shall be repaid to any applicant. This power is given to the various Bankruptcy Courts, any of which may order payment of such moneys in like manner as it might have done if the same had not, by reason of the expiration of five years, become vested in the Crown in pursuance of the said section. This seems a very decided improvement, and substitutes a simple and adequate method of procedure for the cumbrous formula of a petition to the Lord Chancellor. Altogether, those interested in bankruptcy proceedings may congratulate themselves on the very trifling amount of fresh knowledge which they are called upon to acquire.

The half-yearly meeting of the Institute of Accountants was marked by two resolutions in which we heartily concur. We contended at the time that the Friendly Societies Act was one in which accountants were especially interested, and we are glad to see the Institute taking under their charge the proper framing and carrying into effect of the various rules and orders under the Act. The rate of accountants' charges has attracted a good deal of attention, and we are glad to see that the Council will consider it. We are not very sanguine of a result being attained which will suit alike employer and employed, but discussion and consideration cannot fail to do some good. But while we admit that the Institute cannot, strictly speaking, be called upon to fight the battles of any but its own members, we are sorry to see that an attempt was made to gloss over the utterly unjustifiable language which Mr. Justice Quain used at Bristol. It may be that the members of the Institute meet with courteous treatment at the hands of Her Majesty's judges. Certainly, Mr. Clarke did not; and we doubt very much if the judge took into consideration the fact that he was not a member of the Institute, or would have spoken any differently if he had been. The unanimous opinion of our many correspondents was, that Mr. Clarke did what any accountant of position would have done, and the Judge's language was resented as a slur on the whole body of accountants. We wish we could see a more cordial union of the profession in this and in other matters.

Winding-up.—A petition to wind-up Gostling and Company, Limited, has been presented to the Court of Chancery.

The London Bankruptcy Court.—A correspondent writes: —" May I ask you to allow me to supplement the note which you have already inserted on this subject, by calling attention to the great inconvenience and loss of time which will be caused to the legal profession and mercantile community of the City by having all the officials of this Court at Lincoln's-inn? Up to the present time many applications could be made and all affidavits sworn in Basinghall-street, and, as no step of importance in bankruptcy or liquidation can be taken without application to the Court at some stage of the proceedings, and as every proof of debt has to be sworn, it is not too much to ask that some office shall be retained in the City where mere formal applications can be made and affidavits sworn, to save the necessity for frequent journeys to Lincoln's-inn on mere matters of routine, and for running about the City to find a Commissioner to administer oaths."

Digitized by Google

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the Accountant.

SIR,—I enclose you the circular of a firm of "Accountants and Auditors," which was sent to a firm of which my father is the head. I need hardly say that in the event of his firm requiring the services of "Accountants and Auditors," he would hardly instruct the senders of a touting circular who are entire strangers to him. These "Accountants and Auditors" state that they "continue to translate books, pamphlets, articles for the press, legal, nautical, and patent documents, and commercial correspondence, from any language into English, and vice versa." They also state that they contract for correspondence by the year, and affect reasonable charges. Moreover, by way of postscript, they appear to give their "personal and most thorough attention to accountancy in all its branches at reasonable charges, arrange partnerships, and have numerous clients with large amounts of capital, seeking partnerships in concerns bearing strictest investigation."

I would suggest that, as an evidence of their skill as translators in any language, they send you some specimen translations of a leading article of the Times into the Bengalese, Kamskatchan, Malay, and Hottentot language. That will keep them out of mischief for the present.

I think, if these gentlemen claim to have any pretensions to respectability as professional men, they might confine their red and black circular attention to the clients whom they may be blessed with.

Yours truly,
PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT.

BANKRUPTCY LAWS, No. 11.

Having shown in Article No. 10, which appeared in our issue of the 9th ult., that the word trustee as applied to composition is a misnomer, we now come to

TRUSTEE UNDER LIQUIDATION BY ARRANGEMENT.

The routine leading up to the first meeting of creditors having been duly gone through, the creditors at the statutory meeting, or any adjournment thereof, having decided to liquidate by arrangement and not in bankruptcy, thereupon proceed to elect one or more trustees, with or without a committee of inspection. In liquidation, we are strongly in favour of the trustee being directed by the committee of inspection. The duties of a trustee under liquidation commence as from the date of the registration of the resolutions. This registration sometimes involves a delay of many weeks. Should the trustee have been previously appointed receiver, no difficulty will arise, for he will naturally continue his duties until he obtains the certificate necessary to enable him to act as trustee; but should another person have held the appointment of receiver, it is desirable either to continue him by resolution at the first meeting until the appointment of trustee, or to nominate the individual chosen as trustee to act as receiver in the interim. Immediately upon his appointment, the trustee should send the statutory notice thereof to the Gazette and local paper, and to each creditor appearing on the statement of affairs, whether secured or unsecured, preferential or otherwise, and cause an affidavit of the postage of such notice to be duly filed. He should thereupon proceed to realise the estate, consulting the committee of inspection (if one exist) upon all important points in connection therewith, and also proceed to investigate the proofs of debt and claims which may be tendered. In the event of the information contained in the statement of affairs being of too meagre a character to enable him to effect the recovery of alleged assets or the settlement of alleged claims, he should submit the position of matters to the committee of inspection, and take their directions as to the examination of the debtor, or the calling upon him for further accounts or particulars—that is, of course, supposing that the debtor's bookkeeping has been of such a nature as not to afford the requisite data. We have noticed that in cases where the discharge of the debtor is left to the discretion of the trustee and committee of inspection, the debtor, as a rule, is far more ready to furnish information than where he depends upon a general meeting of creditors for his liberty. As soon as the trustee sees a prospect of declaring a dividend, he should issue a notice of intended dividend, giving a margin of, say a month, for claims to be sent in. On proceeding to declare an interim dividend after duly settling the list, it will be necessary for him to reserve for those creditors who have not proved, but he should also be careful to ascertain before declaring a dividend what amount it will be necessary to reserve for untaxed costs.

While the fact of the trustee being directed by a committee of inspection does not in any way relieve him from his personal legal responsibilities, it does to a certain extent diminish the moral ones, inasmuch as, in the majority of estates, questions arise in which considerable discretion is necessary. In the first place, the committee of inspection having been chosen from among the creditors, or their direct representatives, they are more conversant than the trustee with the ins and outs of their trade, and are frequently better acquainted with particular transactions to which the trustee may have to give his attention; and we would recommend the trustee to leave the terms of his remuneration to the committee of inspection, rather than to the general body of creditors. Creditors as a rule look only to the result, being unacquainted with the details of the administration leading to that result; whereas the committee of inspection, having the opportunity of going more fully into matters with the trustee, are better competent to appreciate the nature and extent of his services, and the duties which it is desirable he should perform. Were our laws based upon a proper foundation, a trustee's duties should, in the majority of instances, be of a very simple character, namely the settlement of claims, and the realisation and distribution of assets. Owing, however, to the laxity of the present laws, and the facilities offered to fraud, it is difficult for a trustee, at the outset of a case which is new to him, to form even an approximate estimate of the duties which will devolve upon him. The requisite labours may prove to be merely mechanical; or they may involve tedious and expensive investigations, litigation, or negotiations requiring considerable diplomacy and tact. For this reason, experience proves that it is difficult to draw a hard and fast line, or fix a standard scale of percentage or commission on the results attained. This fact was most forcibly illustrated in the report issued by the committee appointed to consider the practicability of arriving at a fixed standard for charges. In some trades (as, for example, the drapery trade) the majority of cases are very simple; whereas, in many other trades, there are no two cases exactly alike. One case is wound-up and disposed of quickly, involving little trouble or expense. In the next case the realisation of the few assets involves costly litigation and heavy loss of time, and more particularly in matters where the liabilities are large and the assets small; or perhaps even the nominal cost of getting in such assets may, and sometimes does, exceed the amount eventually recovered. It is not an unusual thing now-a-days for proofs of a very suspicious character to be tendered, which proofs, unless upset, swamp the bonâ-fide trade creditors, and enable the debtor, against all the principles of equity, to carry out the terms which he thinks fit to dictate. In one case which came under our notice, in which there was not the slightest pretence of fraud, a proof was tendered for an amount representing nearly the whole of the other indebtedness. This proof being contested under the directions of the committee of inspection, involved a litigation which extended over nearly eighteen months, and it was eventually expunged, but the cost of expunging the same ate up the difference of dividend to the remaining creditors. The principle which was involved in that case was of sufficient importance to determine the creditors to make the sacrifice, and those who had taken the trouble to inquire into the circumstances, considered themselves well repaid by the result obtained; but one or two creditors, who had not taken that trouble, looked only at the dividend they were to receive, and it required some patience to bring them to an exact appreciation of the facts. Trustees are unfortunately considered a fair butt for attack, and it is ofttimes difficult for them to give satisfaction to all. We hold, however, that it is perfectly possible so to frame our laws or even adapt the present Act (by putting a stop to existing facilities for fraud), as to enable creditors and trustees to establish one principle of remuneration to govern all cases: and we shall proceed in a future article to make a few suggestions tending towards that end. H. B. [London.]

Digitized by Google

THE INSTITUTE OF ACCOUNTANTS.

The Half-yearly General Meeting of the Institute of Accountants was held, in accordance with the rules, on Wednesday, the 27th of October, at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon Street, at half-past three o'clock; Mr. F. Whinney in the chair.

The formal business of the meeting having been transacted, it was moved by Mr. Lovelock, seconded by Mr. Pannell, and unanimously resolved:

> That the Council be requested to consider the propriety of making some communication to the Government with reference to the rules and orders to be framed under the Friendl Societies Act of last Session.

It was moved by Mr. Pannell, seconded by Mr. Tibbetts, and unanimously resolved:

> That the Council be requested to consider and report to the Institute, as to the advisability of fixing a minimum rate of charge for ordinary accountancy work, and their opinion as to what such minimum rate of charge should be.

It was moved by Mr. James Cooper, seconded by Mr. Tibbetts, and resolved:

> That the Council be requested to fix a day upon which the members may have the opportunity of dining together, and to make all necessary arrangements in relation to the matter; and that each member be entitled to introduce a friend.

Reference was made to certain observations of Mr. Justice Quain, and it appeared that the Council had not thought it necessary to interfere in the matter, on the grounds, firstly, that the person against whom those remarks were immediately directed was not a member of the Institute of Accountants, and secondly, that the more general language used by the learned Judge could not be considered as directed against the members of the Institute, regard being had to the fact that members of the profession are in the habit of meeting with most courteous treatment at the hands of Her Majesty's Judges.

After some further discussion on minor topics, the thanks of the meeting were given to Mr. Whinney (on the motion of Mr. C. F. Kemp) for his able conduct in the chair, and it was adjourned until April next.

BANKERS' CLEARING HOUSE.—The following is the official return of the checks and bills cleared in the Bankers' Clearing-house for the week ending Wednesday, November 3:—

Thursday, October 28	£11,986,000
Friday, October 29	43,969,000
Saturday, October 30	20,087,000
Monday, November 1	14,139,000
Tuesday, November 2	21,175,000
Wednesday, November 3	17,837,000
	£129,193,000

The total at the corresponding period of last year which also comprised a Stock Exchange settlement, was £134,461,000.

Digitized by Google

SUPREME COURT OF JUDICATURE.

COURT OF APPEAL, LINCOLN'S-INN.

November 3.

(Before the LORD CHANCELLOR, Lord Justice JAMES, and Lord Justice MELLISH.)

IN RE THE BRITISH IMPERIAL INSURANCE CORPORATION, LIMITED.—Mr. Glasse, Q.C., and Mr. F. C. J. Millar moved on behalf of the corporation that the fiat obtained from the Lord Chancellor's secretary to a petition for winding-up this corporation might be vacated, and instead thereof that the petition be referred to Vice-Chancellor Malins in Chambers to inquire whether a primâ facie case within the meaning of section 21 of the Life Assurance Companies Act, 1870, was established, and to consider the security to be given pursuant to the same section. The question turned upon the provisions of the Life Assurance Companies Act, 1870, which it may be observed was passed at a time when the notorious European Assurance Society, though persistently attacked by winding-up petitions, had succeeded (for the time) in resisting a winding-up order. By section 21 it is provided that the court may order the winding-up of any company under the Companies Act, 1862, on the application of policyholders or shareholders, upon it being proved to the satisfaction of the court that the company is insolvent, taking into account its contingent or prospective liability under policies and annuity and other existing contracts; " but the court shall not give a hearing to the petition until security for costs for such amount as the judge shall think reasonable shall be given, and until a primâ facie case shall also be established to the satisfaction of the judge." The petitioners were holders of policies for £1,000, both effected with the office in July, 1872. By the terms of the policy it was provided that the holders could surrender the policy with the last renewal receipt at any time after the expiration of the first year, and either receive or make payable to order, at three days' notice, the cash value of the stipulated amount of Government Stock withdrawable without any deduction for expenses, or they could have the amount of Government Stock transferred to their own names, or to the name of any person designated by them, or they could have a new policy for the sum which that amount would insure, whatever might be the state of their health at the time. On the 23rd of September, 1875, the petitioners left at the office of the company their policies, each of which was accompanied by a letter, mutatis mutandis, identical in terms:—" Herewith I beg to hand you my policy of insurance and last receipt, and shall be obliged by your letting me have the full amount due as a loan standing to my credit, on Saturday next, being three days' notice, as required by you." The application was not complied with, and in the course of last month a petition was presented for winding-up the company, stating the application for the surrender value of these policies, the neglect of the company to pay such value, although the policies had been surrendered, and the consequent inability to pay its debts and insolvency of the company as grounds for the winding-up orders. On the 21st of October the Lord Chancellor's principal secretary made the usual endorsement or fiat for the hearing of the petition. In support of the present application to vacate the fiat, it was contended by Mr. Glasse, Q.C., and Mr. F. C. J. Millar that, having regard to section 21, and a decision of the late Lord Chancellor upon that section, the proper course before granting the fiat was to remit the petition to the Vice-Chancellor before whom it was set down, to ascertain if a prima-facie case had been made out. In the present case the allegation of the petition that the corporation had refused to comply with the petitioners' application to pay them the surrender value of their policies was not correct, inasmuch as the letters now produced showed that the application was simply for a loan upon deposit of the policies in question. Mr. C. H. Turner, for the petitioners, submitted that they had elected to convert the demand upon their policies into a mere money claim for the surrender value to which they were entitled under the terms endorsed upon their policies; and, consequently, that no case arose for obtaining the opinion of the Vice-Chancellor as to the propriety of issuing the fiat. The Lord Chancellor said it was quite clear that there was not that accurate or full statement on the face of the petition which would at once have shown that the requirements of section 21 had been complied with. He therefore thought that the answer or fiat to this petition given by the officer to whom that duty was intrusted ought to be struck out or vacated. What, then, ought now to be done with this petition? The proper course would be to send the petition to the Vice-Chancellor, Sir R. Malins, and request him to treat it as a petition addressed to the High Court of Justice and marked for his division. The Vice-Chancellor would then consider whether the provisions of section 21 applied, and if applicable, whether they had been complied with. Their Lordships would also request the Vice-Chancellor to deal with the question of the costs of this application.

IN RE THE EUROPEAN ASSURANCE SOCIETY—THE ANGLO-AUSTRALIAN, &c., ASSURANCE COMPANY—HARMAN'S CASE AND PRATT'S CASE.—These cases, which, together with several others, have been specially appointed to be heard before the Court of Appeal upon special cases submitted by Mr. J. S. Reilly, the arbitrator in this liquidation, for the opinion of the Court, under the provisions of the European Assurance Society Arbitration Act, 1875, were this day argued. The cases of Harman and Pratt, which were substantially identical, arose as follows:—The Anglo-Australian Company was instituted in 1853, and incorporated under the 7th and 8th Vic., c. 110. By clause 17 of the deed of settlement, as subsequently duly altered in 1858 by two extraordinary general meetings of shareholders and policy-holders, it was provided that the company should have full power to resolve, by a majority consisting of at least two-thirds in value of the shareholders present (either personally or by proxy), also of two-thirds in value of the policyholders of the company personally present at such meeting to make bye-laws, repeal, alter, or vary any of the clauses contained in the deed, or any rules and regulations of the company, and to do other acts, including the purchase of the business of any other company, whether by amalgamation or otherwise, or upon the sale of its own business or upon the amalgamation of the company with any other company; and that such resolution should, if duly confirmed, be binding on the company. By the constitution of the company all policyholders were entitled to vote at meetings of the company. In 1856 Harman and Pratt effected policies on their lives with the Anglo-Australian Company. In 1858 it was resolved by two extraordinary meetings of shareholders and policyholders, duly convened, that the Anglo-Australian should be amalgamated with the British Provident Society, which had power under its deed of settlement to amalgamate with other companies. This amalgamation was effected by a deed of the 1st of June, 1858, whereby the business, property, and liabilities of the Anglo-Australian were absolutely transferred to and undertaken by the British Provident Society. It was also provided that the policyholders of the company should be under no necessity to establish their claims against the society, or to have endorsements on their policies or new policies unless they should require the same, in which case they might choose in what manner the society should assume liability on their policies. In July, 1858, Harman applied to the British Provident Society, and received from it a guarantee policy, executed by three directors, and stamped with the common seal of the society. In March, 1859, the business and liabilities and name of the British Provident were transferred to the British Nation, and in March, 1861, the British Provident was, on the petition of a shareholder, ordered to be wound-up in Chancery. In 1865 the British Nation transferred its business and liabilities to the European Assurance Society, which was ordered to be wound-up in

Digitized by Google

January, 1872. Harman and Pratt duly paid the premiums on their policies to the Anglo-Australian, the British Provident, and the European Society successively, and received their respective receipts. Under the European Arbitration they claimed to be entitled to prove for the value of their policies concurrently against the Anglo-Australian Company (which had never been ordered to be wound-up) and the several transferee companies until all claims in respect of their policies had been satisfied. The case came in the first instance in June, 1873, before the late Lord Westbury, the first of the arbitrators appointed in this unfortunate liquidation. His Lordship gave judgment in favour of Messrs. Harman and Pratt to the full extent asserted by them, holding that there had been no "novation" between these gentlemen and either the British Provident or the British Nation, but that they remained creditors of the Anglo-Australian, with the additional guarantee of their policies by the British Provident and British Nation, and were entitled to prove concurrently for the value of their policies against the Anglo-Australian and each of the three companies between which and the Anglo-Australian successive amalgamations had been made. Upon the death of Lord Westbury in July, 1873, Lord Romilly was appointed arbitrator, and, taking a different view on the question of novation from his illustrious predecessor, directed the "novation" cases, including Harman's and Pratt's cases, to be set down again before him. On the 28th of October, 1874, Lord Romilly stated that, looking at Lord Westbury's judgment as if it were his own, and as if subsequent cases had induced him to reconsider his view of the case, he was satisfied that he—that is to say, Lord Westbury—was wrong, and that he was bound to set the case right according to his own newer lights on the subject. Accordingly, all that Lord Westbury had so carefully decided was summarily reversed, and in this state of things, before the arbitration could be proceeded with on this new footing, occurred the death of Lord Romilly. Mr. Reilly having been appointed the new arbitrator, special provision was made in the Act of last Session for a rehearing of these cases, in which there had been a conflict of opinion between the arbitrators by the Full Court of Appeal. In the case this day decided occurred, as will be seen, the singular, if not altogether unusual, result of a reversal of Lord Westbury's decision, and an affirmance of Lord Romilly's conclusion upon a totally new ground, not adverted to, or at least, not raised to prominence on the former hearings, by the much-vexed question of "novation," upon which Lords Westbury and Romilly differed, being passed over entirely. Mr. Jackson, Q.C., and Mr. F. C. J. Millar appeared for Messrs. Pratt and Harman; Mr. Higgins, Q.C., and Mr. Romer for the joint official liquidator of the European, were not called upon. The Lord Chancellor said that in this case the Anglo-Australian Company, in which Harman and Pratt were insured, was formed under a deed which, to a certain extent, was peculiar in its provisions, inasmuch as the policyholders had a voice in the management of the affairs of the company, and ranked as shareholders in this respect. By the 17th clause of the deed power was given to the Anglo-Australian to deal with other companies by selling their business or by amalgamating, such power to be exercised with the consent of a majority of two-thirds of the shareholders and two-thirds of the policyholders at an extraordinary general meeting of the company, convened as therein provided. What was done was this:—Extraordinary general meetings were held, at which it was resolved to transfer the whole mass of business and liabilities of the Anglo-Australian to the British Provident, to make all Anglo-Australian shareholders British Provident shareholders, and to agree that the British Provident should take over all the engagements and assets of the Anglo-Australian. The policyholders, therefore, according to the constitution of the company, had a voice in the arrangement thus made with the British Provident Society. Either Mr. Harman agreed to what was being done or he was in a minority, in which case, there being the requisite majority, he was bound by the resolution of the majority. This agreement for amalgamation was duly ratified and confirmed by a deed of the 1st of June, 1858. His Lordship, after stating the provisions of this deed, said that Harman was a party to the agreement thereby entered into, his policy being included in the schedule to the deed. Interpreting, therefore, the deed and the schedule together, it came to this—that there was an agreement by which Harman was bound, and the effect of which was that his policy was transferred to, and was to be undertaken by, the British Provident Society, who thereby assumed liability in respect of it, without any necessity for the policy to be endorsed or a new policy granted, though that might be done if the policyholder required it. The burden which lay upon the shoulders of the Anglo-Australian was thus shifted from them and taken off and placed solely upon the British Provident, and in this arrangement Harman was a concurring party. That was the whole case. It would have been absurd to suppose that these shareholders were to be transferred and placed under liabilities to the British Provident, and that they were at the same time to remain liable to the Anglo-Australian, or that the Anglo-Australian was to continue for the benefit of the British Provident. The arrangement being thus complete, it appeared that at a later period Harman made some communication to the British Provident, and that in reply they forwarded to him a deed guaranteeing his policy. But this was evidently done in a thoughtless manner, and being a thing entirely inter alios acta, could have no effect upon the Anglo-Australian Company, or fix them with liability to Mr. Harman. In his Lordship's opinion, without using the term "novation," all the liability of the Anglo-Australian under these policies held by Messrs. Harman and Pratt ceased and came to an end at the execution of the deed of amalgamation on the 1st of June, 1858. The costs of all parties would be provided out of such funds as the arbitrator should think fit. The Lords Justices concurred.

HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE.—Chancery Division.

November 3.

(Before the Master of the Rolls.)

In re the Phœnix Bessemer Steel Company.—The 10th Section of the Judicature Act, 1875, enacts that, in the winding-up of any company under the Companies Acts, 1862 and 1867, whose assets may prove to be insufficient for the payment of its debts, the same rules shall prevail as to the rights of secured creditors as may be in force for the time being under the law of bankruptcy. In other words, partly secured creditors of a company that is winding-up are no longer entitled to prove for the whole amount that is due to them, but merely for the balance remaining due to them after realising or valuing their securities. In the present case, the question was whether the enactment applied to creditors of a company the winding-up of which commenced on the 11th of June last, before the Act came into operation, there being nothing in the section expressly restricting its application to windings-up commencing after the coming into operation of the Act, although, curiously enough, it is provided by the same section that the new rule as to the administration of the assets of deceased persons shall only apply to persons dying after the commencement of the Act. Mr. Bagshawe, Q.C., and Mr. F. W. Bush argued the point for the creditors; Mr. Chitty, Q.C., and Mr. G. C. Price for the liquidators of the company. The Master of the Rolls said it was a general principle of the Legislature in altering the law to interfere with existing rights and liabilities as little as possible. The real reason why the law was altered in this respect was, that it was felt to be improper that there should be one way of distributing the assets of a living insolvent, and another way of distributing the assets of a dead insolvent; and the rule in Equity had now been assimilated to the rule in bankruptcy to meet the wishes of the commercial part of the community. In the case of a deceased person's assets, the Legislature had been careful not to disturb ascertained rights, for it had enacted that the new rule should only apply to the case of persons dying after the commencement of the Act, and his Lordship could see no sufficient ground for deciding that the new rule affected the case of creditors of this company whose rights had been ascertained before the commencement of the Act. He was of opinion, therefore, that the creditors were entitled to prove for the full amount of their claim, according to the old rule.

Digitized by Google

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY.

October 28.

(Before Mr. Registrar BROUGHAM.)

RE DONALD MUNROE.—The debtor, carrying on business as an oil refiner and blacking manufacturer at the Lansdowne Chemical Works, Bow, has presented a petition for liquidation, his liabilities amounting to about £10,000 and assets £8,000, comprising stock, plant, and book debts.—Upon the application of Mr. C. E. Jones, his Honour appointed a receiver and manager under the petition, and granted an interim injunction.

October 29.

(Before the Hon. W. C. SPRING-RICE, sitting as Chief Judge.)

IN RE KATTENGELL AND CAMPBELL.—EXTENSIVE MERCANTILE FAILURE.—LIABILITIES, £400,000.—The debtors in this case carried on their business as merchants at 118 Leadenhall-street, and both of them are at present abroad, but have sent over directions to their solicitors to file a petition for liquidation, estimating their debts at £400,000. The assets, it is stated, will be considerable, but depend to a great extent upon the recovery of debts abroad. Mr. J. Hollams, jun., now applied to the court to appoint a receiver and manager to the estate, and in support of the application read an affidavit from Mr. Langley, who had been left in charge of the business, stating that both the partners were abroad, Mr. Kattengell in Spain, endeavouring to recover a debt of £50,000, and Mr. Campbell in Central America, where the debtors have debts due to them to the amount of £300,000. The have filed their petition by power of attorney to Mr. Langley and Mr. C. Lee Nicholls, of the firm of Chatteris, Nicholls, and Co., public accountants, in whose hands the books were placed. His Honour granted the application, and appointed Mr. C. Lee Nicholls receiver and manager. Subsequently Mr. Hollams applied for leave to amend the description in the petition, he having just discovered that the firm had a branch at Manchester, and consequently they were permitted to describe themselves as of London and Manchester. The creditors' meeting under the liquidation has been postponed for three months, to give the partners time to get in the debts.

IN RE WILLIAM ARTHUR.—The bankrupt, who was a non-trader, resided at Holland-road, Kensington, and had recently filed a petition for liquidation, but the proceedings having fallen through, he was adjudicated bankrupt on the petition of one of his creditors. His debts amounted to £5,600, and his assets, including £635 surplus securities, to about £855. On the application of Mr. Hackwood, of the firm of Linklater and Co., his Honour appointed Mr. James Waddell, public accountant, receiver to the estate, and granted an interim injunction restraining a suing creditor.

(Before Mr. Registrar BROUGHAM.)

IN RE CAMPANA.—This was a first meeting for proof of debts and the appointment of a trustee. The bankrupt is described as a merchant, carrying on business at Mark-lane. The balance-sheet shows debts to the amount of £9,260, and assets, £1,014. Several creditors having proved, the choice of trustee fell upon Mr. H. J. Leslie, who was accordingly appointed to the office, with a committee of inspection.

October 30.

(Before Mr. Registrar BROUGHAM.)

RE G. D. NEROUTSOS.—The debtor was a merchant in London and Manchester, trading as G. D. Neroutsos and Company. The debts were estimated at £25,000, and the assets depend on consignments from India and elsewhere. Mr. Robertson Griffiths asked to continue an injunction, which Mr. Salem opposed, on the ground that third parties were affected by the order. The learned Registrar, after a lengthened discussion, declined to continue the injunction, and it was therefore dissolved.

RE SNELL, EX PARTE FRIEDHEIM.—This was a motion on the part of the debtor to restrain proceedings in the Lambeth County Court. Mr. Friedheim, the bankrupt, had declined to pay a second instalment to a particular creditor, on the ground that the debt in respect of which the instalment was due had not been proved, as required by Rule 311. Mr. Robert Williams appeared for the debtor, and Mr. R. T. Reid for Mr. Snell. It was contended by Mr. Reid that default had been made in the instalment, and that the right reverted to the creditor to sue on the original debt. Reference was made, in support of this view, to the case of Hodge, ex parte Hatton. Mr. Registrar Brougham, after listening to the arguments of Mr. Williams on behalf of the debtor, granted the injunction without costs, on the ground that the default in payment of the second instalment had not, as in Hodge's case, been of a wilful character.

November 2.

(Before MR. REGISTRAR BROUGHAM, sitting as Chief Judge.)

IN RE G. W. R. MEW.—Mr. Downing mentioned this case to the court under the following circumstances:—The debtor, a wine merchant, carried on business in Water-street and Tudor-street, Blackfriars, in partnership with J. G. P. Brotheridge. He had filed a petition for liquidation under which the creditors passed a resolution to liquidate by arrangement, Brotheridge being no party to the proceedings. The question arose whether, having regard to the infancy of the partner, it was incumbent upon the debtor to distinguish in his statement between the joint and separate debts and assets. This the debtor omitted to do, and Mr. Registrar Keene, following the decision of the Chief Judge in the case of "Ex parte Cockayne" ("Law Reports," 16 Equity, p. 218), declined to register the resolution. It was now submitted that a new meeting of creditors might properly be called. His Honour allowed a new meeting to be convened.

(Before Mr. Registrar KEENE.)

IN RE ALEXANDER THORNE.—The creditors under this petition for liquidation had passed a resolution accepting a composition of 4s. in the pound, payable by instalments. The debtor, a builder and contractor, of Cremorne-wharf, Chelsea, also carried on business at the water-works, baths, assembly-rooms, and skating-rink, West Worthing. Against debts of £33,150, the assets were returned at £13,536. Mr. Winslow, Q.C., and Mr. Doria now appeared in support of an application to register the resolutions; Mr. Finlay Knight, Mr. Wilkinson, and Mr. E. C. Willis, for creditors, opposed the registration. The chief ground of objection was that, having regard to the value of the assets, the amount of the composition was unfair and unreasonable, and that the resolution ought not to be binding upon creditors who dissented. It appeared, however, that the debtor was fully examined at the meeting upon his accounts, and Mr. Registrar Keene thought the matter ought not to be re-opened, and overruled the objections. Registration was accordingly allowed.

Digitized by Google

November 3.

(Before Mr. Registrar MURRAY, sitting as Chief Judge.)

THE JUDICATURE ACT.—Shortly after the sitting of the court Mr. E. C. Willis, for a debtor, who had filed a petition for liquidation by arrangement, asked whether, in the opinion of the Registrar, the power of the court to grant injunctions in liquidation cases was interfered with by the 24th Section, 5th Sub-section, of the Judicature Act, 1873. His Honour said that the question proposed was rather a wide one. His attention had not been specially directed to the subject, but, as at present advised, he thought the jurisdiction of the Court under Section 13 to grant injunctions was not affected by the clause referred to.

IN RE BOWLES BROTHERS AND CO.—The bankrupts were bankers, carrying on business in London, New York, and elsewhere. The failure occurred in 1872, and it appeared that the firm had been declared bankrupt in three different countries, and Charles Bowles individually in Geneva. Mr. Richard Jones, on behalf of the trustee, now applied for the confirmation of a resolution passed at a meeting of creditors, whereby it was resolved in substance that the assets in the hands of the syndic in France and Geneva, and the trustees in England and America, be handed over to trustees for the benefit of creditors, and that the residue of the estate of Mr. Nathan Appleton be also handed over to them as a security for payment of the bonds of the bankrupts by annual coupons, extending over a period of 10 years, until 20s. in the pound be paid with interest, an instalment of 14 per cent. to be paid upon the execution of the deed. Mr. George Lewis and Mr. W. H. Roberts appeared for creditors. His Honour made an order confirming the scheme, subject to the production of a deed embodying the terms proposed, and also of the form of bond intended to be used.

IN RE ALEXANDER, PYKE, AND ALEXANDER.—The debtors are jewellers, carrying on business in Hatton-garden. They have filed a petition for liquidation, with debts of £20,000 and assets £27,000, consisting of stock in trade, bills of exchange, leasehold property and cash. Mr. Brough, for the petitioners, and with the concurrence of creditors, asked that a receiver and manager should be appointed, and for an injunction to restrain actions. His Honour appointed Mr. James T. Snell, accountant, to act as receiver and manager, and allowed an interim injunction.

(Before MR. REGISTRAR HAZLITT.)

IN RE CHARLES BEDELL.—At a first meeting under an adjudication obtained against the bankrupt, a wine merchant, carrying on business at 38 Mark-lane, several proofs were admitted, and Mr. Crosbie, of the firm of Quilter, Ball and Co., was appointed trustee. The bankrupt had filed a petition for liquidation, under which a composition was proposed, but the proceedings fell to the ground, and an adjudication followed. The liabilities are now returned at £28,022, with assets £3,238, subject to realisation.

EUROPEAN ASSURANCE ARBITRATION.

October 28.

(Before Mr. F. S. REILLY.)

DAILEY'S CASE.—To-day this case, which relates to the liability of a bankrupt shareholder, after a prolonged argument, was concluded. The Arbitrator said he would consider the case. Mr. Napier Higgins, Q.C., and Mr. Romer appeared for the official liquidator; Mr. Robinson, Q.C., and Mr. Lawrence for Mr. Dailey.

On Tuesday, judgment was given in some important cases.

MUNSTER BANK'S CASE.—It was here established that all moneys paid by the European Society after the advertisements of the petition to wind it up had appeared must be repaid to the Society, even though the persons who received the moneys had at the time no knowledge whatever of the winding-up petition. A petition to wind-up the European Society was presented to the Court of Chancery on the 10th of June, 1871. It was served on the Society on the 12th of June, and on the 13th of June it was advertised in the London Gazette, and on the 14th of June in The Times and other daily papers. The petition stood over from time to time, and an order to wind-up was not made until the following January. During this interval various payments were made by the Society. One of these payments was to the solicitor of the Munster Bank of a sum of money due on a policy, on which the life had dropped in the previous year. The payment was made on the 3rd July 1871, and the Bank and their solicitors were at that time unaware of the presentation of the petition. The official liquidator now applied for an order directing the Bank to repay the money to the Society. The Arbitrator, after referring to the arguments based on the peculiar circumstances of the case, said,—"It appears to me that the tendency of such a discussion to travel into details of this character proves the desirableness of a broad rule. The policy of the Legislature is obvious; and one who has to administer the Act is bound to give full effect to that policy. In no case, probably, can there be more need for the application of the principle of Section 153 than in the case of a Life Assurance Company, where such payments as that now in question go to the destruction of the fund, on the due maintenance and progressive increase whereof depends the capacity of the company to fulfil in good faith its obligations. Further, if such payments are considered by the directors of a company absolutely necessary for the preservation of the company's credit, application may be made to the Court, pending the petition, for authority to apply the money of the company. I therefore shall, as at present advised, adopt the rule of treating as void all payments made after the petition had been advertised in accordance with the general orders of the Court of Chancery. This rule appears to me to be reconcilable with the former decisions in this Arbitration. In the National Bank's case, in which the payment was allowed to stand good, it was not shown or stated that the advertisements had been completed, and for aught that appeared the petition might have been at the time of payment advertised in the London Gazette only, and not yet in two daily morning newspapers." The Arbitrator went on to say that as the liquidators had made no demand of interest in writing, and the summons did not ask for interest, he had no power to allow interest before the date of an order to repay. Mr. Napier Higgins, Q.C., and Mr. Romer appeared for the European Society; Mr. Marten, Q.C., for the Munster Bank.

MAUNDERS' CASE.—ROBERTSON'S CASE.—Here the check was delivered to the London bankers acting for the payees, in the first case on the 15th of June, 1871, and in the second case as early as the 14th of June, 1871, and the checks were cleared from the bankers of the European Society on the 19th and 15th respectively. The order now made by the Arbitrator was the same as in the previous case. Mr. Napier Higgins, Q.C., was for the European Society, and Mr. Bush for the respondents.

GOODALL AND LONGFIELD'S CASE.—Here the respondents were trustees, and after receiving the money from the European Society had handed it over to their beneficiary. The Arbitrator said he could not deal with that matter now. Any representation made by them through the liquidators would receive attention. The same order must be made as in the preceding cases. Mr. Napier Higgins, Q.C., and Mr. Romer were for the European Society; and Mr. Bush for the respondent.

HINGSTON AND SERCOMBE'S CASE.—This was a similar case, and the Arbitrator said,—"There is nothing in the Life Assurance Companies' Act, 1870 (Cave's Act), to interfere with the effect of Sections 84 and 153 of the Companies' Act of 1862, fixing the commencement of the winding-up at the date of the presentation of the petition, and making void, unless the Court otherwise orders, all transactions of the company after the commencement of the winding-up. It was also urged that the presumption, both legal and moral, is in favour of the upholding of a payment made in good faith in the ordinary course of business. But I think, in the first place, Section 153 turns at least the legal presumption the other way; and, secondly, that if all the circumstances were gone into, it would almost certainly appear that these payments were not made purely in good faith for the purpose of carrying on the business of the company in its ordinary course. The order, therefore, will be as in the Munster Bank's case." Mr. Napier Higgins, Q.C., and Mr. Romer were for the European Society; Mr. Jackson, Q.C., and Mr. B. Eyre for the respondents.

Digitized by Google

WADE AND FORSHAW'S CASE. — NATIONAL BANK'S CASE, No 2.—SMITH'S CASE.—These were cases of a similar kind, and the same order was made. Mr. Napier Higgins, Q.C., Mr. Romer, Mr. Renshaw, Dr. Thompson, and Mr. Willis Bund were the counsel engaged.

TAYLOR'S CASE.—This had reference to the liability of the estate of a man who had married the owner of some shares in a company. In 1862 Ann Bowden was married to Charles Taylor. At that time she held 200 shares in the European Assurance Society, which was constituted by a deed of settlement, dated in 1854, and was registered under the Act of 1844, and subsequently under the Companies' Act of 1862. No settlement was made on the marriage, and she had no separate estate. In 1864 the husband died. In 1872 the European Society was ordered to be wound-up, and Mrs. Taylor was settled on the list of contributories. The present application was to amend the register by inserting therein the names of the husband's executors. The Arbitrator thought the question was settled by Sections 196 and 78 of the Companies' Act of 1862, from which it would appear that a man marrying a woman who is a shareholder is liable to be made a contributory during the marriage, but no longer. Thus the husband's estate would not here be placed under any liability by the Act. With regard to the receipts for dividends having been twice signed by the husband and wife, that circumstance was insufficient in itself to make the husband liable to be treated as a shareholder in his own right. So also the acceptance by the executors of the half-yearly dividend which last accrued due before the testator's death was insufficient to make the testator's estate liable. Thus the application of the liquidator must be refused, with costs. Mr. Napier Higgins, Q.C., and Mr. Romer appeared for the official liquidator, and Mr. Ilbert for the respondent.

LAKE'S CASE.—Mr. Lake was the general manager of the British Nation Fire Insurance Company, which in 1865 transferred its business to the European Society. Mr. Lake then became general manager of the European Society. Subsequently he was adjudicated a bankrupt, and the trustees in bankruptcy now claimed that his estate was entitled to the sum of £350 from the British Nation for certain services alleged to have been rendered by him to that company between 1865 and 1872. The Arbitrator refused the claim, with costs. Mr. Napier Higgins, Q.C., and Mr. Romer were for the British Nation Company, and Mr. Warmington for the trustees in bankruptcy.

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY'S CASE.—In this case, which was heard yesterday, the Great Western Railway Company had effected with the European Society several policies, insuring the fidelity of certain of their employés. Seven of these servants committed breaches of fidelity, and the railway company suffered losses to the amount of £153 15s. in consequence. The company now claimed to be entitled to be paid this sum out of the European Society's Reserved Fund. The official liquidator, on the other hand, contended that the claim must be against the general assets only. The question turned upon the interpretation of the Society's Act of Parliament, the chief doubt being whether the railway company could with propriety be included among the different bodies empowered by the Act to accept the guarantee of the Society. The Arbitrator gave judgment in favour of the railway company's claim. Mr. Napier Higgins, Q.C., and Mr. Romer were for the official liquidator; Mr. Medd for the Great Western Company.

November 1.

INDIA AND LONDON.—CARGILL AND STUART'S CASE.—Mr. Montague Cookson, Q.C., applied on behalf of Mr. Adam Stewart Stuart, formerly of the Admiralty, to have his name removed from the list of contributories of the India and London Life Assurance Company, on the ground that his name was placed in the list of members against his will; that there had been no privacy of contract between him and Cargill or any past shareholder of the Society in respect to these shares; that he had never done any act whereby any acquiescence in his name remaining on the register of shareholders could be implied in any reasonable sense, and that he was entitled, therefore, to have his name removed. In 1855 Mr. Stuart was asked by the then secretary and manager of the society to become auditor. This he consented to do on the terms of being under no liability to the society, and being obliged to take no shares therein. In 1860 the business of the India and London was transferred to the European Society, whereupon Mr. Stuart's connection as auditor ceased, when he considered he had entirely washed his hands of the India and London, and was not aware that the society had taken upon themselves to open in their register an entry under the head of "Adam Stewart Stuart." In January, 1873, however, he received notice of a call in respect of 50 shares, whereas he was unaware of there being any ostensible tie between himself and the India and London. On receipt of the call-notice he at once wrote repudiating the suggestion that he ever held any shares in the India and London. He also wrote a full statement to the liquidators, from which it appeared that one of the officials of the India and London had taken upon himself to carry through, as far as he could, being unauthorised, the transfer of Mr. Cargill's shares to Mr. Stuart, and that somebody, not Mr. Stuart, had purported to pay to Mr. Cargill a sum of money as the consideration for the transfer of the shares. Moreover, no dividend was ever received by Mr. Stuart, but probably Mr. Irving, in his capacity as secretary and manager, did receive the dividends, out of which, it was suggested, he paid Mr. Cargill a consideration for the transfer. It was also suggested that the transfer was kept unexecuted by the transferee, and, unfortunately for Mr. Stuart, Mr. Irving died last year. His testimony would have been of great moment to Mr. Stuart. He (the speaker) urged now, as a reason for striking the name off, that Mr. Cargill ought to be proceeded against first, and in the event of his name not being restored to the register, that then proceedings might be commenced against Mr. Stuart. After the case had proceeded so far, Mr. Romer, for the liquidators, applied to have the present application adjourned, in order that both the summonses against Messrs. Cargill and Stuart should be heard together, on the ground that it would be inconvenient for them to be heard separately. For the ends of justice, he urged that postponement was essential, Mr. Stuart's name having been found on the register for the shares the original owner of which was Mr. Cargill. Mr. Montague Cookson contended that it would not be right to his client, Mr. Stuart, to have the case adjourned. He might die in the interval, and the matter would then have to be contested by his executors. Besides, he had a complete answer to make, and it would be keeping him in suspense—perhaps for months, as Mr. Cargill was abroad, and it would take a long time to communicate with him. He asked, consequently, for a peremptory order for the removal of the name. Messrs. Lawrance, Plews, and Boyer, for Mr. Cargill, said they could not possibly be ready to go on with his case for two months, and, after further discussion, his Honour said he thought Mr. Stuart could not possibly be damnified to any serious extent by the adjournment. As the liquidators declared it was absolutely necessary in the interests of the arbitration that the two cases should be heard together, there was left no alternative but to comply with the application of the counsel for the liquidators, and adjourn the case. The case was then postponed till the 22nd of December.

Digitized by Google

AUDITING.

The following letter recently appeared in a daily contemporary. We give insertion to Mr. Lowe's communication, although his conclusions apply to honorary and ornamental auditing, rather than to the work of a paid accountant :—

"Arthur-street, Rochdale, Oct. 31.

"Sir,—It must have been a matter of painful surprise and astonishment to the outside public that so many great frauds on the public elude detection. Day after day we are accustomed to find in our morning paper the account of some serious defalcation on the part of some officer of trust who has been successfully deluding his employers for a number of years, and whose discovery is generally mainly attributable to the chapter of accidents. It is not only in the affairs of private firms that these practices obtain success, but equally in the accounts of public bodies, corporate or otherwise, who employ disinterested persons periodically to audit and certify the same to be found correct. An effort to supply some remedy that would prevent this anomaly, and nip in the bud these gigantic frauds which so frequently startle us, is a simple duty.

"It must be admitted that there must be a serious defect in the system of auditing as at present generally exercised, else it were a total impossibility that these evils should obtain. I am inclined to think, indeed I know, that the majority of gentlemen who discharge the duties of auditor content themselves with the examination of the balance-sheet as prepared by the secretary or book-keeper who submits it for their perusal. This examination consists—firstly, of a simple comparing of the balances shown in the balance-sheet with the balances as they appear in the ledgers; secondly, the comparing of the vouchers with the payments as entered in the cash-book; and lastly, a general checking of the various additions in the different books. This completed, the auditor signs his name to the balance-sheet, and his work is ended. No means are adopted by him to ascertain if every thing is in the books that ought to be there; that point he considers to be out of his province.

"I would ask, then, if this set form of procedure is all the public or the auditor's employers have a right to expect? Take, for instance, the affairs of a private firm who employ an auditor. The books are put through the process as described above, but there are probably some hundred or two of accounts represented as debtors to the firm, but which are never applied to by the auditor to ascertain if their debit balances as shown by the ledger are correct or not. If any of these have paid money which has not been passed to their credit, but which has been appropriated by the dishonest servant, no means are adopted whereby this wide door to fraud can be early and promptly closed. Again, take an instance of a Corporation, where a rate of so much in the pound is laid upon a certain assessed value. The balances as shown to be owing by the books are invariably assumed to be correct without any further inquiry, and so fraud may go on from year to year, duly audited and found correct. In the latter case, it may be argued that it is an impossibility to frame a check, as the number of debtors are so numerous. I am not of that opinion. The amount of the rate to be realised is known. The amount actually paid is easily traceable. The difference between the two should be represented by the balances owing. Now, I would suggest that in the case of a private firm, all the debtors should be furnished with a statement of their indebtedness as shown by the books, and requested to verify or otherwise the same; and in the case where collectors are employed, as in corporate or public bodies, inspectors should at certain periods either acccompany them or go independently and check off what amounts are unaccounted for. These reports being submitted to an auditor, would render him wholly independent of the fair copied books, and I believe effectually remedy this great evil.

"It is time that audits ceased to be matters of routine, and that they became what the outside world understand them to be—thorough investigations. Honest men will not shrink at any thing that proves them to be worthy of trust.

"I hope, Sir, you will excuse my addressing you, but the interest I have long taken in this subject must be my apology.

"Your obedient servant,

"JOHN LOWE."

CREDITORS' MEETINGS.

A. AHLBORN.—A meeting of the creditors of Augustus Ahlborn, of Regent-street, was held on Monday, at which some singular disclosures were made. According to the statement of affairs presented at the meeting the debts were £203,836, and the assets £95,817, but this large deficiency does not represent the real state of affairs. It appears that Ahlborn systematically kept two sets of books—one correct, and the other intended to deceive those who trusted him. In this latter set book debts figure to no less an amount than £268,000, all of which are false.

FAILURES.

ENGLAND.—The failure is announced of Messrs. Duca Paleologo and Sons, Greek merchants, of Liverpool, Alexandria and Cairo, whose liabilities are estimated at about £100,000, with large assets. The firm has occupied a respectable position, and its capital was originally understood to be £75,000.

AMERICA.—American advices announce the suspension of Messrs. C. J. Ketchum and Co., Mr. C. B. Camp, and Messrs. Dufair and Elbert, on the Cotton Exchange, New York. Messrs. Moseley, Hodgman, and Co., iron dealers, Boston, had failed, with liabilities of £20,000. The creditors of Messrs. C. and M. Cox, wholesale boot and shoe makers, Boston, had met. The statement submitted showed liabilities of £47,000. A composition of 40 or 50 cents on the dollar, it was thought, would be paid. Mr. George Weymouth, cotton broker, Boston, failed. The liabilities of Congdon and Son, lumber dealers, South Hadley Falls, Massachusetts, are about £6,000. Mr. Morris Selegman, of the New York Stock Exchange, suspended. Mr. F. Stanton, merchant, Richfield Springs, New York, failed; liabilities £10,000. Mr. A. S. Herman, dealer in woollens, New York, has made an assignment; liabilities £30,000. The liabilities of Messrs. M. G. Hermann and Co., woollen merchants, in the same city, and whose stoppage we have already reported, are put down at £40,000. A run had been made on the Home Savings Bank, Boston, but all demands were met. The first National Bank of Tiffin, Ohio, reported as in difficulties; the cashier had committed suicide.

Digitized by Google

"The source of many a writer's woe has been discovered."

PENS! PENS!! PENS!!

"They come as a boon and a blessing to men, The Pickwick, the Owl, and the Waverley Pen."
"The misery of a bad Pen is now a voluntary infliction."

Another blessing to men! The Hindoo Pen. 1,200 Newspapers recommend them. See Graphic, 17th May, 1873.

Sold by every respectable Stationer. Post 1s.1d.

Patentees, MACNIVEN & CAMERON, 23 to 33 Blair-street, Edinburgh.

J. DEFRIES' AND SONS'

CHANDELIERS, IN CRYSTAL, BRONZE, AND ORMOLU.

TABLE GLASS AND CHINA.

Dinner Services, Gilt Pieces, £4 10s.

KEROSENE and MODERATOR LAMPS for INDIA.

Works:—London and Birmingham.

WEDDING AND BIRTHDAY PRESENTS.

NEW DECORATIONS for the DINING TABLE.

FOUNTAINS.

STORER'S Patent Perpetual Perfumed CRYSTAL TABLE FOUNTAIN, for Dining, Hall and Drawing Rooms, in Crystal and Gilt, £2 17s. 6d. to 100 guineas.

FETES AND REJOICINGS.

BALLROOMS and GARDENS, &c., DECORATED and ILLUMINATED for Evening Parties. Tents, Temporary Rooms, and Banqueting Halls erected.

CRYSTAL and BRONZED CHANDELIERS.

TABLE GLASS and CHINA LENT ON HIRE.

J. DEFRIES and SONS, 147, HOUNDSDITCH.

Five minutes' walk from the Bank of England.

RUPTURES—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS s allowed by upwards of 500 Medical Men to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided, a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the manufacturer, Mr. John White, 228, Piccadilly, London. Price of a single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., 31s. 6d, Postage Free. Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. An Umbilical Tsusr, 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. P.O.O. to be made payable to John White, Post-office, Piccadilly.

TRADE MARK.

NEW PATENT ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS, &c. for Varicose Veins, and all cases of Weakness and Swelling of the Legs, Sprains, &c. They are porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and are drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price from 4s. 6d., 7s, 6d., 10s, to 16s. each. Postage free.

CHEST EXPANDING BRACES, for both sexes. For gentlemen they are a substitute for the ordinary braces. For children they are invaluable; they prevent stooping and preserve the symmetry of the chest. Prices for children, 5s. 6d. and 7s. 6d. Adults, 10s. 6d., 15s. 6d., and 21s. each. Postage free.—John White, Manufacturer, 228 Piccadilly, London.

EPPS'S COCOA.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—See article in the Civil Service Gazette.

STAR LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY,

48 MOORGATE STREET, LONDON, E.C

DIRECTORS.

Chairman—

Mr. Alderman McArthur, M.P.

Deputy Chairman—

William Mewburn, Esq.

H. J. Atkinson, Esq.
Thomas Ball, Esq.
Walter Griffith, Esq.
George M. Kiell, Esq.
George Lidgett, Esq.
Sir Francis Lycett.
William Merry, Esq.
John Napier, Esq.
Jonathan S. Pidgeon, Esq
John Vanner, Esq.
S. D. Waddy, Esq., Q.C., M.P.

	£	s.	d.
Assurance and Annuity Fund	1,216,115	13	5
Annual Income (1874)	223,613	2	0
Bonuses Apportioned	581,774	6	2
Claims Paid	1,140,151	1	8

Copies of the Report, Balance Sheet and Prospectus can be obtained on application to the Head Office.

W. W. BAYNES, Secretary.

The Only and Special

"MEDAL FOR PROGRESS,"

Was awarded for "Feuerfeste Eisone Schranke und Kunstchlosser Fortschritts," to

HOBBS, HART, & CO.

AT THE VIENNA UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION.

This Medal is only given to Exhibitors whose New Inventions testify marked Progress.

"FIRE-PROOF SAFES; AND LOCKS AND ENDLESS CHANGE LOCKS AND KEYS,"

Invented especially for Safes and Strong-Room Doors, to frustrate the use of False Keys.

N.B.—The continued security and secrecy of a Lock, fixed on a Safe or Strong-Room Door, depends on the fact that there are no false duplicate keys of that Lock in existence. The object of a Lock is twofold—security against burglars, and secrecy against prying curiosity. A new change in this Lock may at any time be obtained in five minutes by simply filing away the thickness of a hair from one or more of the steps of the Key. The Lock, by a simple movement of the Regulator, is thus made to adapt itself to the New Key, after which no other Key will open the Lock.

The Lock and Key may thus be easily altered into what would be virtually a New Lock and Key, as often as may be desired, without the aid of a Lockmaker or of any second person, thus frustrating the use of fraudulent copies of the original Key (see the Safe Robbery in Dublin of £530, vide "Times," 12th September, 1875). This Lock affords effectual protection from duplicate or "Master" Keys secretly made in manufactories; very extensive robberies (in one case 13 Safes in one vault) having been effected by this means.

HOBBS, HART & CO.,
LOCK, SAFE, AND STRONG-ROOM DOOR MANUFACTURERS,
76 Cheapside, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

In consequence of the unfounded attack made on the Keokuk and Kansas City Railway by the Times, and their refusal to admit a reply to the same, the said reply has been inserted as an advertisement in two hundred London and Provincial papers. It can also be obtained as a leaflet from all agents of the Co-operative Credit Bank. Special attention is drawn to this answer; and in order to give the Public full time to digest it, the Lists will be kept open until Friday the 12th inst., for London; and Saturday the 13th inst., for the country.

Issued and Strongly Recommended by the Co-operative Credit Bank.

KEOKUK AND KANSAS CITY RAILWAY COMPANY

OF MISSOURI, UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

FIRST MORTGAGE SINKING FUND BONDS.—Issue of £500,000 sterling = 2,500,000 dols., American Gold, being part of £1,000,000 sterling, or £5,000,000 dols. American Gold, authorised to be issued in accordance with the Charter and resolutions of the Board of Directors.

Bearing interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum payable half-yearly, but yielding at the price of issue 8 per cent. annually.

Interest and principal payable in London, at the Co-operative Credit Bank, in sterling, or in New York City (U.S.A.) at the office of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, in American Gold, free from all United States or State taxes.

The Bonds are to bearer or registered of various denominations as under, repayable at par A.D. 1905.

DENOMINATIONS OF BONDS.

			£	s.	d.
Class A, 1,000 dols., American Gold		=	£200	0	0	sterling.
Class B, 500 dols.,	,,	=	100	0	0	,,
Class C, 250 dols.,	,,	=	50	0	0	,,
Class D, 100 dols.,	,,	=	20	0	0	,,
Class E, 25 dols.,	,,	=	5	0	0	,,

PRICE OF ISSUE PER BOND.

			£	s.	d.
Class A, 875 dols., American Gold		=	£175	0	0	sterling.
Class B, 437 50-100 dols.,	,,	=	87	10	0	,,
Class C, 218 75-100 dols.,	,,	=	43	15	0	,,
Class D, 87 50-100 dols.,	,,	=	17	10	0	,,
Class E, 21 88-100 dols.,	,,	=	4	7	6	,,

A BONUS OF 20 PER CENT. IN FULL-PAID ORDINARY SHARES OF THE RAILWAY COMPANY WILL BE ALLOTED TO SUBSCRIBERS AFTER THE FINAL PAYMENT, ON THE ISSUE OF THE DEFINITIVE BONDS.

TRUSTEES UNDER THE MORTGAGE.

Farmers' Loan and Trust Company of New York (U.S.A.)
* . . . . England.

PRESIDENT.

Samuel H. Melvin, Esq. Springfield, Ill.

VICE-PRESIDENT.

A. C. Vandewater, Esq., Pana., Ill.

DIRECTORS.

Samuel H. Melvin, Esq., Springfield, Ill.
Howard M. Holden, Esq., President 1st National Bank, Kansas City (Missouri).
William Patterson, Esq., President Keokuk National Bank, Keokuk (Iowa).
William H. Waters, Esq., President 2nd National Bank, St. Louis (Missouri).
John H. Cardell, Esq., Cashier Saline County Bank, Marshall (Missouri).
Geo. H. Rea, Esq., President Mississippi Valley Transportation Company, St. Louis (Missouri).
John W. Morse, Esq., General Agent, Indianapolis and St. Louis Railroad Company, St. Louis (Missouri).
General F. A. Jones, formerly United States Army, Macon (Missouri).
A. C. Vandewater, Esq., Pana (Illinois).
George P. Laurence, Esq., Pana (Illinois).
* . . . . Esq., England.
* . . . . Esq., England.
* . . . . Esq., England.

* To be elected by the Bondholders at a meeting to be called for that purpose after Subscription and Allotment.

SOLICITOR.

Charles Henry Edmands, Esq., 33 Poultry, London, E.C.

ENGINEER-IN-CHIEF.

Oswald Younghusband, Esq., M. Inst. C.E.

BANKERS.

The Co-operative Credit Bank, Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street, London, E.C., and all its branches throughout Great Britain and Ireland.

[See next page.

Digitized by Google

The Co-operative Credit Bank is authorised by the Keokuk and Kansas City Railway Company to receive subscriptions for £500,000 sterling, in Bonds of various denominations as above, said £500,000 being the first portion of an authorised issue of £1,000,000 sterling, which is now for the first time offered to the public.

The terms of payment are—

20 per cent. on application.	10 per cent. Feb. 1st, 1876.
10 per cent. on allotment.	10 per cent. March 1st, 1876.
10 per cent. Dec. 1st, 1875.	10 per cent. April 1st, 1876.
10 per cent. Jan. 3rd, 1876.	20 per cent. May 2nd, 1876.

Subscribers will have the option of prepaying in full under discount at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, either on allotment or on any of the dates when an instalment falls due. The failure to pay duly any instalment will subject all previous payments to forfeiture and cancellation of the allotment.

Scrip certificates will be issued against allotment letters and the Bankers' receipts, and after payment of the final instalment will be exchanged for the Definitive Bonds in due course.

Special attention is drawn to the fact that a bonus of 20 per cent. of their holdings, in full-paid ordinary shares of the Keokuk and Kansas City Railway Company, will be alloted to subscribers on the payment of the final instalment and the issue of the Definitive Bonds. It is calculated that this ordinary share capital will, within four years from completion of the road, be earning a dividend of at least 4 per cent. annually. For subscribers to bonds of a lower denomination than £100, it has been arranged that inasmuch as the share capital cannot be subdivided, according to the charter, into a lower denomination than 100 dollars, a new plan shall be carried out to secure for them a similar interest in the 20 per cent. bonus. This arrangement is that the balance after allotment, made to the holders of larger bonds, shall be placed in the hands of trustees; against which numbered coupon tickets will be issued in proportion to the amount of the lower bonds, as, for instance, one to each holder of a £5 bond, four to a holder of a £20 bond, and so forth. Within one month after the final payment on such smaller bonds (i.e. those below £100), a drawing will take place in the presence of a notary public, for such a number of 100 dollar shares as will represent the proportion of said bonus of 100 dollars shares to £100 worth of bonds held in sums under the said sum of £100 in which ONE coupon will have a chance of being drawn for a 100 dollar share.

The Bonds now offered will form a first charge on a main line of road 225 miles in length, extending from Keokuk (Iowa) to Kansas city (Missouri), the latter terminus being, as is well-known, the great commercial centre of the South-west. There has been expended already on the property, 1,170,239 dollars, or, in round numbers, £200,000. On the section or division between Salisbury and Kansas city (107 miles in length, exclusive of sidings); fifteen and a half miles between Glasgow and Salisbury are already in operation; and about twenty miles more are so far advanced in respect to the earthworks and bridges that they can be completed ready for the permanent way at a very moderate outlay.

A special provision of the mortgage is that the railway company bind themselves to use their best endeavours to procure at the next session of the legislature of Missouri, such additional powers as will confer on the Bondholders the right to vote at all elections equally with the Shareholders. In the mean time it has been agreed that the Bondholders shall have at once the nomination of three English directors, and thus be guaranteed a direct voice in the management. It will be evident to Bondholders that by securing this voting power the management is practically vested in them, as having in connection with the stock bonus above mentioned a majority of votes.

An English Trustee will be appointed to guard the interests of the English Bondholders.

No disbursement of the money subscribed will be made either to the Railway Company or the Contractors, except on the certificate of an engineer appointed by the Bondholders that five consecutive new miles of railway are completed according to specification, and are in running order for trains, and so from time to time as every successive five miles of new railway are completed, the contract being specific, that no payment shall in any case be made except as and when every five miles are completed.

The completed and projected line of the Keokuk and Kansas City Railway has been very carefully examined by Mr Oswald Younghusband, M.Inst.C.E. His report demonstrates that the proceeds of the Bonds will be amply sufficient for the completion and full equipment of the division between Salisbury and Kansas City; that in consequence of its judicious location it can be worked at a very moderate cost; and that through opening up a richly settled agricultural and mineral section of the State of Missouri, the net receipts from the traffic will be amply sufficient, on completion of the road, to pay the interest on the debentures.

Provision has been made by the Railway Company for depositing with Trustees two years' interest in advance on the Bonds, so that there may be no possibility of default during the construction of the road. These Trustees are two in number, and have been appointed conjointly in the interests of the Bank and the Railway Company. Every precaution has been taken to guard against those abuses, which unfortunately have, in some cases, cast discredit on American railroad investments.

The legal documents connected with the Company can be seen at the office of C. H. Edmands, Esq., Solicitor, 83 Poultry, London, E.C.

Copies of the engineer's report and of the mortgage or deed of trust, as settled by J. P. Benjamin, Esq., Q.C., together with prospectuses and forms of application, can be obtained at the Chief Office of the Co-operative Credit Bank, 11 Queen Victoria-street, London, E.C., or at its various branches throughout Great Britain and Ireland.

Subscription Lists will be opened October 30th, at the Co-operative Credit Bank in London, and at its various branches. These Lists will be closed in London November 12th, and in the country November 13th.

Digitized by Google

Applications must be made on the following form, and must in all cases be accompanied by a deposit of 20 per cent., which will be returned without deduction should there be no allotment.

FORM OF APPLICATION.

(To be retained by the Bank.)

Issue of £500,000—2,500,000 dols.—part of £1,000,000, or 5,000,000 dols., First Mortgage Sinking Fund Bonds of the

KEOKUK AND KANSAS CITY RAILWAY COMPANY.

Redeemable in Thirty Years from October 1st, 1875.

Principal and interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable in gold.

In Bonds of A £200, B £100, C £50, D £20, E £5.

To THE DIRECTORS OF THE KEOKUK AND KANSAS CITY RAILWAY COMPANY, LONDON, E.C.

Having paid to your credit with the CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK the sum of £ , request that you will allot to , on the conditions of the Prospectus issued by you, dated October 30th 1875, Bonds of the above-mentioned issue, Class , and hereby agree to accept the same or any smaller number that may be allotted to , and to pay the additional instalments thereon as they may become due from time to time, and in default of due payment on any instalment agree that allotment and all previous payments shall be liable to forfeiture.

Name in full ....

Address ....

Date ....

Signature of Applicant ....

ADDITION TO BE FILLED UP IF THE APPLICANT DESIRES TO PAY IN FULL.

desire to pay up Subscription in full, discount at the rate of 6 per cent. thereon to be allowed for the intervening period.

Signature ....

RECEIPT.

(To be retained by the Applicant.)

Received of the sum of £ for account of the Keokuk and Kansas City Railway Company, being the payment of deposit of £20 per cent. per Bond, required on application for an allotment of Bonds, Class .

For the Co-operative Credit Bank, ...

£ : : Manager.

N.B.—Similar receipts will be issued to subscribers on the payment of each instalment as it becomes due, said receipts to be exchanged as soon as possible after the final payment for the definite Bonds.

THE METROPOLITAN AND PROVINCIAL LAND, ESTATE, HOUSE, LICENSED VICTUALLERS' & GENERAL BUSINESS TRANSFER "SYNDICATE" AGENCY,

Registered according to Act of Parliament, Head Offices, No. 8 Craven-street, Charing Cross, W.C. The organisation and working system of the "Syndicate" are; - 1st.—The Sale, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Ground of Rents, Freehold and Leasehold Land, Farms, Estates, Houses, Hotels-Public Houses, Inns, Beer Houses, Restaurants, Coffee Houses, Tobacconists, Drapers, and every other description of Business, Furniture, Objects of Art, or Goods of any description by Auction or Private Contract. 2nd.—The letting, or disposing of, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Land, Farms, Estates, Furnished, or Unfurnished Houses Chambers, or Offices under private contract. 3rd.—The Collection of Rents and the recovery of outstanding accounts. 4th.—The Surveys and Valuations of Land, Farms, Estates, and Houses; also Valuations of Furniture, Jewellery, and other Effects, for probate and other purposes. 5th.—The transaction of all other business usually transacted by Auctioneers, Surveyors, Land, House, Estate and Insurance Agents. 6th.—The negociations of partnerships, and from unlimited connection with capitalists, monetary advances on real and personal securities, as well as merchandize, and every other description of property intended forabsolute sale, or otherwise. 7th. Generally the carrying out of all things instdental or conducive to the above objects, and every of them; also the laying out of estates and surveys for delapidations. The "Syndicate" from their extended connection with the Trades' Protection Societies and other sources, undertake expeditiously for Clients and others to ascertain reliably the status of parties, and make inquiries of a private and confidential character Liberal terms to Accountants in town or country introducing business.

RESTAURANT, 13 OXFORD STREET,

Near the corner of Tottenham-court-road.

Known as the BODEGA, now under the new management of Mr. L. BOECKER, late of 13 Idol-lane, City.

Luncheons from the joints, hot or cold, including vegetables and bread, 1s. 3d

Dinners from 12 till 4 o'clock, from the joint, with soup or fish, vegetables, cheese and bread, 2s.

Dinners from 6 till 9 o'clock, from 2s. 6d. to 10s. 6d.

Private Dining Rooms for large and small parties on the Second Floor.

THE BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY'S ANNUAL RECEIPTS EXCEED THREE MILLIONS.

HOW TO PURCHASE A HOUSE FOR TWO GUINEAS PER MONTH With immediate Possession and no Rent to pay.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO PURCHASE A PLOT OF LAND FOR FIVE SHILLINGS PER MONTH.

With Immediate Possession, either for Building or Gardening purposes.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK FREEHOLD LAND SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO INVEST YOUR MONEY WITH SAFETY AT £4 PER CENT. INTEREST.

Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BANK. All sums under £50 repayable upon demand. Current Accounts opened similar to ordinary Bankers. Cheque-books supplied. English and Foreign Stocks and Shares purchased and sold, and Advances made thereon.

Office Hours from 10 till 4; on Mondays from 10 till 9, and on Saturdays from 10 till 12 o'clock.

A Pamphlet containing full particulars may be obtained post-free on application.

FRANCIS RAVENSCROFT, Manager.

LARGE LIGHT OFFICES on the Fourth Floor. Rents £10 and £15. Apply to Housekeeper, 26 Budge-row, Cannon-street, E.C.

MONEY to LEND to BORROWERS residing in town or Country, from £50 upwards repayable in one sum, from one to five years, at five per cent. interest on personal security; also on mortgage of freehold or leasehold property from 3 per cent., for a term of years to be agreed upon. No commission.

Apply to R. F. PRESTON, Esq., 120 Southampton-row, London, W.C.

Digitized by Google

THE

SOCIETY OF ACCOUNTANTS IN ENGLAND.

COUNCIL.

President.—JOSEPH DAVIES, Warrington. Vice-President.—JOHN BATH, London.

ALFRED ALLOTT, Sheffield.
JOSEPH ANDREWS, London.
JOSIAH BEDDOW, London.
HENRY BOLLAND, Liverpool.
JAMES CHARLES BOLTON, London.
HARRY BRETT, London.
ROBERT BUCK, Sunderland.
JOHN CALDECOTT, Chester.
WALTER NEWTON FISHER, Birmingham
EBENEZER CHAMBERS FOREMAN, London.
EDWARD NORTON HARPER, London.
WILLIAM COMBEN HARVEY, London.
JOHN ALISON HESELTON, Bradford.
GEORGE EDWARD LADBURY, London
FRANCIS NICHOLLS, London.
WILLIAM JOHN PARRY, Bethesda.
EDWARD THOS. PEIRSON, Coventry.
EDWARD SMITH, Manchester.
F. TENDRON, London.
JOHN HENRY TILLY, London.
LEWIS VOISEY, Warrington.
EDWIN WILKS, Plymouth.
JOHN UNWIN WING, Sheffield.

TRUSTEES.—JOHN BATH, 40a, King William Street, London; THOMAS COLTMAN, Leicester; JOSEPH DAVIES, Warrington.
TREASURER.—JAMES CHARLES BOLTON, 26 Great St. Helens, and 2 St. Mary Axe, London.
AUDITORS.—R. R. ROBINSON, London; C. PEMBER, Hereford.
BANKERS.—Messrs, WILLIAMS, DEACON, & Co., Birchin Lane, London.
OFFICES—2 COWPER'S COURT, CORNHILL, LONDON.
Further information can be obtained, and copies of the Rules can be had, upon application to
ALFRED C. HARPER, SECRETARY.

H. D. RAWLINGS,

PURVEYOR OF MINERAL WATERS TO

H. R. H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.
H. R. H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH.
H. R. H. THE PRINCE CHRISTIAN.
THE LATE EMPEROR NAPOLEON III.
AND THE PRINCIPAL COURTS OF EUROPE.

Gold Medallist of the Societe Nationale Agricole Manufacturiere et Commerciale de Paris.

SODA, BRIGHTON, SELTZER and all other Mineral Waters for HOME CONSUMPTION and EXPORTATION
PRICE LISTS on Application, at the Manufactory, Nassau-street, W.

ALFRED W. GEE,

ADVERTISING AGENT,

62, GRACECHURCH STREET,

LONDON, E.C.

London Gazette Notices, and Advertisements and Announcements of all kinds for English, Colonial, and Foreign Newspapers promptly inserted.

N.B.—In the case of an ordinary Advertisement ordered for insertion in a number of Newspapers, only one MS. copy need be forwarded. Same rates charged as at the Publishing Offices.

Printed and Published for the Proprietor by WILLIAMS & STRAHAN, 7 Lawrence Lane, Cheapside. NOVEMBER 6, 1875.

Digitized by Google

The Accountant.

A MEDIUM OF COMMUNICATION BETWEEN ACCOUNTANTS IN ALL PARTS OF THE UNITED KINGDOM

Vol. I.—New Series.—No. 49.] SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1875. [Price 6d.

Established 1843.
PERIODICAL SALE OF REVERSIONS, ANNUITIES, LIFE POLICIES, SHARES, &c.

MESSRS. MARSH, MILNER, AND Co., are preparing their printed particulars for the forthcoming Monthly AUCTION, which is held the FIRST THURSDAY in every month. To insure due publicity, particulars of Properties intended to be included in the next sale should be forwarded, without delay, to the City Land and Reversion Offices, 54 Cannon Street, London.

LAND, Domains, Mountain Ranges, Woods, Forests, and Important Residential Estates. Messrs. MARSH, MILNER, and Co., Land Valuers and Timber Surveyors, have a number of WEALTHY BUYERS DESIROUS of INVESTING in AGRICULTURAL, SPORTING, and RESIDENTIAL ESTATES. OWNERS of marketable properties wishing to effect advantageous sales are therefore invited to forward plans and particulars, which, when received, will be judiciously placed before intending purchasers, publicity being carefully avoided, and written terms settled before any cost or liability is incurred. Address Messrs. Marsh, Milner, and Co., Land and Timber Surveyors, 54 Cannon-street, London, E.C.

MESSRS. MARSH, MILNER, AND Co.'s REGISTER of LANDED ESTATES, Town and Country Residences, and property of every description, is published Monthly, and may be obtained at the Auction, Land, and Estate Agency Offices, 54 Cannon-street, E.C., or will be forwarded by post on application.

MORTGAGES promptly NEGOTIATED upon Landed Estates, City Properties, and upon sound securities of all kinds. Messrs. MARSH, MILNER and Co., have at the present time access to large sums of Money ready to be immediately advanced upon approved securities. Apply at the City Land and Reversion Offices (Established 1843), 54 Cannon-street.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

89 BROAD-STREET, BRISTOL,

June 24th, 1875.

The PARTNERSHIP hitherto existing under the Style or Firm of HANCOCK, TRIGGS, & CO., having been DISSOLVED by mutual consent, I beg to give notice that I purpose henceforth to CARRY ON BUSINESS as a PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT at the above address.

PHILIP TRIGGS.

MESSRS. BARRETT AND PATEY,
PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS,
90 LONDON WALL, E.C.

HAVING removed from No. 8 Finsbury Circus, to more commodious offices at the above address, will be pleased to hear from Accountants resident in the provincial and manufacturing towns who require agents in London.

CHARLES LOWDEN, Public Accountant, RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY,
BARROW-IN-FURNESS.
REFERENCES GIVEN.

LOVEWELL BLAKE, Public Accountant, RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY.
Secretary to the Great Yarmouth Traders' Association.
Offices: HALL QUAY CHAMBERS, GREAT YARMOUTH.

J. F. TITCHMARSH, Public Accountant AND AUDITOR,
17 PRINCESS STREET, IPSWICH.

Receiver and Trustee in Bankruptcy and Liquidation.

WILLIAM EDWARDS, Public Accountant AND AUDITOR,
GRANVILLE PLACE, STONE ROAD, LONGTON, STAFFORDSHIRE.

Receiver and Trustee in Bankruptcy and Liquidation.

TO ACCOUNTANTS.—A useful Clerk and good Penman is open to temporary or a permanent engagement, at a moderate amount of remuneration. Reference is permitted to Messrs. Josiah Beddow and Son, Accountants, 2 Gresham Buildings, Basinghall Street, to whom applications may be made.

WILLIAMS & STRAHAN,
Legal, Accountancy, & General Printers,
MANUFACTURING STATIONERS, &c
7 LAWRENCE LANE, CHEAPSIDE, LONDON.

Bankruptcy Forms, Statements of Affairs, Dividend Notices, Balance Sheets, &c., printed with despatch.

STEAM PRINTING WORKS, LAMBETH, S.E.

TRANSLATIONS.
MR. ALFRED W. GEE,
BRITISH AND FOREIGN ADVERTISING AGENT,
62 GRACECHURCH STREET, LONDON, E.C.,

Begs to announce that in compliance with a wish expressed by some of the subscribers to the Accountant, he has made arrangements for the translation of legal and commercial documents, correspondence, &c., into the Principal European Languages. Members of the Profession are therefore respectfully informed that arrangements can be made for efficient and speedy translations into, or from, the French, German, Italian Spanish, and Dutch Languages on Moderate Terms.

Digitized by Google

THE INSTITUTE OF ACCOUNTANTS.

President, WILLIAM QUILTER.

Vice-President, WILLIAM TURQUAND.

COUNCIL.

JOHN BALL (Quilter, Ball, and Co., London).
HARMOOD WALCOT BANNER (Liverpool).
HENRY WEBSTER BLACKBURN (H. W. and J. Blackburn, Bradford, Yorkshire).
GEORGE AUGUSTUS CAPE (Cape and Harris, London).
HENRY CROYSDILL (Croysdill, Saffery, and Co., London).
EDWARD CARTER (Carter and Carter, Birmingham).
WILLIAM WELCH DELOITTE (Deloitte, Dever, Griffiths, and Co., London).
ROBERT FLETCHER (Robert Fletcher and Co., London).
ROBERT PALMER HARDING (Harding, Whinney, and Co., London).
CHARLES FITCH KEMP (C. F. Kemp, Ford, and Co, London).
GEORGE HERBERT LADBURY (Ladbury, Collison, and Viney, London).
SAMUEL LOWELL PRICE (Price, Waterhouse, and Co., London).
WILLIAM QUILTER (Quilter, Ball, and Co., London).
GEO. EDWIN SWITHINBANK (Gillespie, Swithinbank, and Co., London, and Newcastle-on-Tyne).
WILLIAM TURQUAND (Turquand, Youngs and Co., London).
JOHN YOUNG (Turquand, Youngs and Co., London).

TRUSTEES.

WILLIAM HOPKINS HOLYLAND (London).
ALFRED AUGUSTUS JAMES (James and Edwards, London).
ALEXANDER YOUNG (Turquand, Youngs and Co., London).

AUDITORS.

FREDERICK WHINNEY (Harding, Whinney and Co., London).
SAMUEL BARROW (Barrow and Gates, London).

BANKERS.

MESSRS. FULLER, BANBURY, NIX, and MATHIESON, 77 Lombard Street, E.C.

SOLICITOR.

HENRY MARKBY (Markby, Tarry and Stewart), 57 Coleman Street, E.C.

SECRETARY.

THOMAS A. WELTON, 30 Moorgate Street, E.C.

Under RULE 16, applicants for admission as Associate up to 1st of July, 1878 (save as provided by RULE 19) must be twenty-one years of age, and must have served for not less than five years as clerk, either articled or otherwise, to a member of this Institute or of some other Institute or Society of Accountants, or else must have been in Partnership with such a person for not less than four years, or have been in practice as a Professional Accountant for the five consecutive years preceding the date of application.

RULE 10 is to the effect that Fellows shall (except as provided by RULE 19) for the future be elected from among the Associates only; RULE 19 enacts that it shall be competent to the Institute, in special cases, to admit persons either as Fellows or Associates who may not be eligible under the foregoing regulations, provided such persons have made application to the Council, accompanied by the proper written recommendation according to the Rules, and have received the recommendation of three-fourths at least of the Council.

Applicants for admission as Associate must be recommended to the Council by at least one Fellow of the Institute in the terms prescribed.

Applicants for admission as Fellow must be recommended in like manner by at least three Fellows.

The Membership of the Institute is by RULE 53 restricted to persons who are not engaged in any other pursuit than that of a Professional Accountant.

THOMAS A. WELTON, SECRETARY.

30 Moorgate-street, E.C., 11th November, 1875.

Digitized by Google

MR. FERDINAND WOLFSKEHL,
BANKER,
9 STEINWEG, FRANKFORT A/MAIN, GERMANY,

CALLS THE ATTENTION of Investors to different Continental Government Securities, guaranteed by Acts of Parliament, through which Capital and Interest ARE SECURED BEYOND ANY DOUBT.

Every one of these Loans must be repaid as per Plan attached to each Debenture, within a limited number of years, by periodical Drawings, OFFERING ADVANTAGES PRESENTED BY NO OTHER SECURITIES, WITH BONUSES AT EACH DRAWING, varying from

£10 to £30,000.

For full particulars apply by letter, addressed care

MESSRS. WOLFSKEHL BROTHERS, BANKERS,
LORD STREET, LIVERPOOL.

MR. FERDINAND WOLFSKEHL announces the following Drawings:—

The 70th DRAWING of 1,400 IMPERIAL AUSTRIAN 1858 £10 CREDIT DEBENTURES, and the 42nd BONUS DRAWING of 1,500 IMPERIAL AUSTRIAN 4 per cent. 1854 £30 DEBENTURES took place on the 1st instant, at Vienna. The 9th BONUS DRAWINGS of 120 RAAB GRAZ 4 per cent. £15 1871 DEBENTURES, took place at Ofen on 1st instant.

He will Forthwith Cash or Exchange any of the abovementioned Debentures against other Debentures, Stocks, Shares or Obligations.

To secure safe delivery of Letters, Mr. F. W. requests that all communications should be addressed care of

Messrs. WOLFSKEHL BROTHERS, Bankers,
3 LORD STREET, LIVERPOOL,
Of whom full particulars of the above Drawings can be had on application.

P.S.—The Imperial Austrian 1858 Credit Debentures, Series 1,006, No. 78, drawing a Bonus of £4,000, has been sold by Mr. F. W. to a Gentleman residing in London.

The Accountant.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

The ACCOUNTANT is printed and published in time for Friday evening's mail; price 6d. per copy, or 28s. per annum (including postage), the reduced terms for payment in advance being: annual subscription 24s. (post free); half-yearly ditto, 13s. (post free). Cheques and Post-office orders to be made payable to Mr. Alfred W. Gee, 62 Gracechurch-street, E.C., to whom applications for advertisement space, and letters relating to the general business of the paper, should also be addressed. Literary communications should be directed to the Editor of the ACCOUNTANT at the same address, and in order to ensure insertion in the current number, correspondents are respectfully requested to forward their copy as early in the week as possible.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The Proprietor desires to call the attention of Advertisers to the special advantages offered by the paper as an Advertising medium. Starting with a good guaranteed circulation, and with the entire concurrence and hearty support of the leading members of the profession, the ACCOUNTANT has achieved a large measure of success in a wide field hitherto unoccupied by any professional organ. The ACCOUNTANT thus secures to Advertisers an excellent circulation of an exclusive character; and is particularly valuable as a medium for the announcements of members of the profession, as to Estates and Declaration of Dividends, and the appointment of Trustees and Receivers; for Publishers, Printers, Law Stationers, Auctioneers, and Estate Agents; for the Advertisements of Insurance and Public Companies; and for Notices as to Investments, Vacant Partnerships, &c. Advertisements intended for insertion in the current number, should reach the office on Thursday; late announcements can, however, be received up to 12 o'clock (noon) on Friday.

N.B.—Copies may be obtained at Messrs. W. H. Smith and Sons, Strand, at their numerous Railway Bookstalls, and at the Shops of the leading City and West-End Newsvendors.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.

In consequence of numerous applications from subscribers, the proprietor has made arrangements for the supply of CASES for holding and preserving the Accountant, which may be obtained at the office on the following terms:—In green cloth (well got up), with elastics, and "The Accountant" in gold letters on front, 3s. each; same in leather, 4s. 6d. each. Subscribers' names in gold lettering, 1s. extra. Post Office Orders payable to ALFRED W. GEE, 62 Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

The Accountant.

NOVEMBER 13, 1875.

The right of stoppage in transitu is one which has been the occasion of much legal argument to decide the exact point at which the transit ends. The right, we may briefly remind our readers, is thoroughly recognised, and is one which in every way deserves upholding. A vendor has a lien on goods till he has received their price; that is to say, though he has sold them and is bound to deliver them upon payment, he can retain them in his custody till such payment is actually made. But if, after he has sent them off,—that is, if he chooses to send them off without waiting for his money,—he hears of the bankruptcy or insolvency of his consignee, he may take due steps to stop their delivery. This right depends strictly upon the diligence with which it is exercised. If the vendor is able to act with such promptitude as to serve the notice countermanding the delivery upon the carrier while he is yet on his way, he is successful, and his goods are restored to him. If, on the other hand, from late information or undue delay, the carrier has delivered the goods, the right is gone; the goods pass to the trustee in bankruptcy, and the vendor is reduced to prove for the amount of his debt in the ordinary way.

Digitized by Google

It is obvious that in almost every case, with the wide complications of our various systems of rail and road, many nice points must arise, and the case of "Re Whitworth," which we report this week, is certainly not free from difficulty. The practice of the American firm claiming right of stoppage was to send bill of lading of goods shipped to their Liverpool agents together with a bill of exchange. This the agent sent off to Messrs. Whitworth, and on receiving it back from them duly accepted, he forwarded to them the bill of lading. Their custom then was to send the bill of lading to the Liverpool manager of the Lancashire and Yorkshire railway, who took steps to deliver the goods. The transactions appear to have been quite regular on both sides, so that the goods, instead of remaining in the custody of the consignor's agent at Liverpool, were, pending the receipt of the bill of exchange, transferred into a siding on the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway, known as the "Whitworth siding." But at last Messrs. Whitworth filed a petition for liquidation, and a difficulty arose. Certain bales of cotton had been landed at Liverpool, transferred to the trucks of the railway company in the siding, and nothing remained to enable the company to complete the delivery but the receipt of the bill of lading by the traffic manager of the company. The report does not set out the circumstances with sufficient precision to enable us to criticise the judgment of the court, but we may just point out a few rules to govern the judgment of private individuals in a similar position. The right of stoppage may be exercised so long as goods are actually in transitu, that is to say, in the hands of the carrier as such, and also so long as they remain in any place of deposit connected with their transition. But if they are once delivered at a place from which they are to be removed by the direction of the consignee and not the consignor, the transit is over and the right of stoppage is lost. It was, we gather, upon this last principle, that the case we have taken as the text for our commentary was decided. The goods were lying in the railway siding, subject to the orders of the purchasers. As far as the consignors were concerned, their duty was over. They were bound to deliver them at a certain place and in a certain manner, and the mode in which they were to be removed from that place depended upon the will of Messrs. Whitworth. Had the vendors undertaken the whole of the delivery, their right would not have been lost; but here the transitus was ended, and no further transit availed to revive it.

But there are still nice points connected with such a case. It is laid down that the transit is not ended "until the goods reach the place originally named by the vendee as their ultimate destination; and it does not cease although the general agent of the vendee receive them at an intermediate place into his warehouse, for the purpose of forwarding them." So that receipt by the agent of the vendee is not sufficient, it must be actual possession by himself; and it apparently does not matter how he gets them—indeed, he may take them out of the possession of the carrier into his own, either with or without the consent of the carrier, so far as the right of stoppage is concerned: a somewhat alarming doctrine for speculative vendors who are in the habit of doing business with the inhabitants of regions where the system of police needs revision. The question of part payment needs only a simple reference. The custom in Whitworths' case is stated to be, that the bill of lading was sent on receipt of the debtors' acceptance. But it is suggested that the right is not destroyed by taking any such acceptance, but that the goods may be stopped even without tendering back the bill, and it does not appear whether the bill of lading was actually sent or what are its terms.

We have referred to this case simply as a means of showing the many pitfalls which lie in the path of those who seek to give an authoritative opinion on points of law, without the fullest study. We are told that some day the law will be codified, and that then we shall be all able to do without the assistance of lawyers. The careful consideration of the cases upon the law of stoppage in transitu is recommended to the sanguine individuals who aspire to cheapen law. They will find their codification and reduction to a few simple principles a task of no small difficulty.

A curious question has come before the Court of Appeal respecting the effect of writing a banker's name across a cheque. The impossibility of a banker identifying the signature of any but his own customers, led to an enactment, which provided that if a cheque made payable to order purported to be signed by the person whose name was on its face, the banker need make no inquiry as to the genuineness of the signature. So that, except as a kind of receipt, making a cheque payable to order was of but little practical utility. But most persons believed in the use of crossing a cheque. Stated in familiar language, a crossed cheque imposes upon its possessor the necessity of having either a banker of his own, or a friend who has a banker; a guarantee of respectability which various recent disclosures have rendered somewhat less satisfactory than of yore. The crossing of a cheque, if the name of some particular banker instead of the formal "and Co." were inserted, was supposed to make it incumbent upon the holder to present it for payment through the particular banker named. This view was negatived by the Court of Queen's Bench, and the validity of their decision is now under consideration by the Court of Appeal. Whatever the attributes of a cheque may be as regards its negotiability, it might be thought that as a matter of public convenience, the judgment of the Court of Queen's Bench was unfortunate. A cheque is a direction to a banker by his customer to pay a sum of money. If he makes it payable to bearer, it is simply an order which may be presented by any one; if he makes it payable to order, it is intended not to be openly negotiable without the written consent of the person to whom it is payable. The crossing is for the benefit of the holder. It is difficult to conceive a more secure mode of transmitting money than by a cheque payable to order, and crossed with the name of the bankers of the payee. A post-office order is payable to any one who has happened to find out the names of the owner and of the remitter. But the thief of a crossed cheque must possess as much skill in imitating handwriting as a man who makes it his business to forge signatures. It must come into the hands of the bankers who are to present it, and they, being acquainted with the signature of their customer, would not only tell at once the genuineness of the endorsement, but would take care to place the amount to his credit. But if any banker may receive a cheque, nothwithstanding a special crossing, the security is gone. A cheque is crossed with the name of, the Union Bank, let us say. Their clerks would know their own customer's writing, and a forged endorsement would be instantly detected. But if the cheque were passed through Coutts, no clerk could say if the endorsement were in the writing of the proper owner or not, and the bankers of the drawer would be absolved if the forged name was correctly spelled. The negotiability of a cheque may be important, and seems to be of the very essence of the case, but its security is in our opinion still more important, and we therefore humbly hope that their Lordships may signalise the fusion of law and equity by summarily reversing the judgment of the court below, though we are afraid that so sound a lawyer as Mr. Justice Blackburn has more than the mere substance of soundness in the reasoning on which he based his judgment.

Digitized by Google

Benevolence is a charming attribute of woman, but it must not be allowed to interfere with the course of even-handed justice; and though Lady Sebright may feel some natural pain at the high-handed manner in which Vice-Chancellor Malins wound up the "Patent Felted Fabric Company," yet a little reflection will show her that her well-intentioned intervention could not be tolerated. A hard-hearted creditor was desirous of winding-up the above-mentioned company, being unable to obtain payment of his little account, and presented a petition for that purpose. This Lady Sebright objected to, and not only as a holder of paid-up shares opposed any order being made, but tendered the petitioner his debt and costs out of her own pocket. This generous offer was not appreciated; Sir R. Malins, indeed, actually doubted whether Lady Sebright had any right to appear; and though he somewhat unwillingly conceded this point out of chivalrous motives, summarily ordered the company to be wound-up. Perhaps it may soothe Lady Sebright's disappointed feelings if we point out that the reason for winding-up is that the company is unable to pay its debts, the fact that a petitioning creditor cannot get his money being taken as proof positive of this. Her offer, if accepted, would not have lightened in any way the position of the company, or made it better able to pay its other creditors. It would have merely exchanged one harsh creditor for one lenient one, but its insolvency would have remained as hopeless as ever.

APPOINTMENTS.

[The Editor will be glad to receive early notice of appointment of Liquidators and Auditors for insertion in this Column.

The Master of the Rolls has appointed Mr. Samuel Lovelock, accountant, 19 Coleman-street, official Liquidator of the Newspaper Company, Limited.

Vice-Chancellor Malins has appointed Mr. F. Maynard to be provisional official liquidator of the Grandreath Valley Colliery Company, Limited.

Mr. George Edward Morton, A.S.A.E., of 22 Buckingham-street, Strand, W.C, has been appointed by Mr. Registrar Murray receiver and manager of the estate of John James Green, of 134 Fenchurch-street, and Sutton, Surrey, colonial broker.

Mr. Edward Thomas Peirson has been appointed trustee of the estate of Moses Jonah Cohen, of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, jeweller and dealer in watches.

Digitized by Google

SUPREME COURT OF JUDICATURE.

COURT OF APPEAL, LINCOLN'S-INN.

November 5.

(Before the LORD CHANCELLOR, Lord Justice JAMES, and Lord Justice MELLISH.)

IN RE THE EUROPEAN SOCIETY'S ARBITRATION, AND IN RE THE ROYAL NAVAL, MILITARY, AND EAST INDIA COMPANY LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY.—GRAIN'S CASE.—This was another of the appeals under the European Arbitration Acts, the appeal being from a decision of the late Lord Romilly, the Arbitrator. The question was whether Colonel Grain, who, in 1861, effected a policy on his own life for £400 in the Royal Naval Society, which company, in September, 1866, was amalgamated with the European Society, was now entitled to rank as a creditor for the value of his policy against the Royal Naval Company, or whether he was to be treated as only a creditor of the European Society. Lord Romilly admitted the claim against the Royal Naval Company, being of opinion that there had been no novation. The joint official liquidators appealed. As the hearing of the appeal is not yet concluded, we reserve a statement of the nature of the provisions of the deed of settlement of the Royal Naval Company and of the circulars which were sent to the policy-holders on the occasion of the amalgamation. These provisions and circulars are lengthy, and they apply also to "Hort's case," which was argued at the beginning of August last, the judgment of the court being reserved. The peculiarity of the present case was that, in September, 1867, Colonel Grain, being desirous of going to reside temporarily in Jamaica without forfeiting his policy, applied to the European Society for permission to do so, which was granted on the terms of his paying an extra premium of £16 per annum, and a memorandum to that effect was endorsed on the policy by the European Society. The policy when originally granted contained a condition that it would become void on the assured going into (among other places) Jamaica, unless he should communicate his departure to the directors (of the Royal Naval Company), and pay the additional premiums for the increased risk according to the company's existing rates for the time being, or as a board of directors should specially determine. The additional premium was paid by Colonel Grain to the European Society as long as he resided in Jamaica, the original premium being also paid to the European after the date of the amalgamation. The receipts given by the European for Colonel Grain's premiums contained the words "Royal Naval, &c , Department." His policy was not endorsed upon the amalgamation, and he never received any bonus from the European. Mr. Higgins, Q.C., and Mr. Romer appeared for the liquidators; Mr. Jackson, Q.C., and Mr. Millar are for Colonel Grain. The Lord Chancellor not being able to sit after 1.30, the arguments on this appeal were not concluded, and the further hearing stands adjourned.

November 9.

(Before Lords Justices JAMES and MELLISH and Mr. Justice BRETT.)

IN RE THE MORVAH CONSOLS TIN MINING COMPANY, LIMITED. —This was an appeal from a decision of the Vice-Warden of the Stannaries Court. The company was registered under the Companies' Acts on the 7th of November, 1871, with a nominal capital of £15,000, divided into 3,000 shares of £5 each, its object being to purchase and work the Morvah Consols Mine in Cornwall, a lease of which for 21 years had, in June, 1871, been granted to a Mr. James Hammon. Mr. C. M. Fisher was one of the subscribers of the memorandum of association, and Mr. G. S. M'Kay was another. The articles of association provided that a certain agreement, set out in the appendix thereto, should be confirmed and adopted, and declared to be binding on the company. The agreement referred to was one between Hammon, of the one part, and M'Kay, on behalf of the Morvah Company, then intended to be formed, of the other part, by which it was agreed that Hammon should sell, and the company should purchase, the lease of the mine for £6,000, to be paid, as to £3,000, in cash; and as to the other £3,000, by the issue to the vendor or his nominees of 600 fully paid-up shares of £5 each in the company. The agreement was duly registered with the Registrar of Joint-Stock Companies. The agreement was afterwards modified in this way, that Hammon was to receive only £1,000 in cash and £5,000 in fully paid-up shares. There was a secret arrangement between Hammon and M'Kay that the latter was to have 600 of the fully paid-up shares transferred to him as a remuneration for his services in getting the agreement entered into between Hammon and the company. Of this agreement between Hammon and M'Kay the directors of the company knew nothing. M'Kay said that in this transaction he was acting on behalf of Fisher, who was the person really entitled to the benefit of it. M'Kay was the secretary of the company from its registration in November, 1871, until the 8th of March, 1872, when he went away to America. On the 5th of March, 1872, at a meeting of the directors, at which M'Kay was present, as secretary, 1,000 shares were allotted as fully-paid up to Hammon, and of these 600 were, on the 12th of April, 1872, transferred to M'Kay for a nominal consideration. He had executed the transfer in blank before he left England. In December, 1872, he returned to England, and in December, 1874, he was appointed a director of the company. In February, 1875, the company, which had proved unsuccessful, was ordered to be wound-up. Before this time, M'Kay had transferred 100 of the shares to Colonel Trevenan J. Holland, the managing director of the company. Under these circumstances, the Vice-Warden, on the application of the liquidator, made an order that M'Kay should pay to the liquidator £2,500, being the amount which he was liable or accountable to contribute to the assets of the company in respect of 500 shares in the company. The order professed to be made under Sec. 165 of the Companies' Act, 1862, which provides that "where, in the course of the winding-up of any company, it appears that any officer of such company has misapplied or retained in his own hands, or become liable or accountable for any moneys of the company, or been guilty of any misfeasance or breach of trust in relation to the company, the court may examine into the conduct of such officer, and compel him to repay any moneys so misapplied or retained or for which he has become liable or accountable, together with interest, or to contribute such sums of money to the assets of the company by way of compensation in respect of such misapplication, reticence, misfeasance, or breach of trust, as the court thinks just." M'Kay appealed from the order. Mr. Ince, Q.C., and Mr. Langworthy, in support of the appeal, argued that if M'Kay was to be treated as a trustee for the company, he could be charged only with the profit which he had actually made from the transaction, which profit in this case was nothing; that Section 165 did not apply, because M'Kay was not an officer of the company when the shares were transferred to him; and that, if it did apply, yet in estimating the amount of damages the Court ought to take into account the fact that the persons who might otherwise have had these shares might have been insolvent, as indeed many of the holders of shares in the company had proved to be. The appellant ought therefore not to be charged with the full amount of the shares. Mr. Marten, Q.C., and Mr. Northmore Lawrence appeared for the liquidator, but were not heard. Lord Justice Mellish was of opinion that the decision of the Vice-Warden was perfectly correct. The principle to be applied to the case was plain enough. M'Kay was the secretary of the company, and was also the person employed on their behalf (whether he was or was not agent for Fisher appeared to be wholly immaterial) to enter into negotiations with Hammon for the sale of the mining property to the company

Digitized by Google

An agreement for the sale of the property to the company was entered into between Hammon and M'Kay on behalf of the company. There was a sub-agreement (whether contemporaneously with or after the agreement for the sale of the property was immaterial) that M'Kay or Fisher should receive from Hammon 600 of the fully paid-up shares, and unquestionably there was never any consideration for the transfer of those 600 shares from Hammon to M'Kay beyond the benefit which Hammon had derived from M'Kay or Fisher while they were acting as agents of the company in the transaction. Whether it was a matter of bargain or a present made by Hammon, it was in consideration of a benefit which he received from the company's agents. Now, in this court it was quite clear that all the benefit which the agent of the purchaser in such a transaction received from the vendor would be treated as belonging to the purchaser. It was so laid down in "Sir John Hay's case" and many others. All the remuneration which an agent so received, he received on behalf of his principal. It was, therefore, clear that all the shares transferred by Hammon to M'Kay, for which there was no other consideration than the benefit which Hammon derived from him in the course of his agency, belonged to the company. Either those shares should have had no existence at all, or M'Kay held them only as trustee for the company. That was the substance of the transaction, and in the view of this Court M'Kay was liable for the 500 shares. Then arose the question whether the value of the shares could be recovered by a proceeding under Section 165. His Lordship agreed that it was necessary that the person summoned should have been an officer of the company at the time when the wrongful act complained of was committed. But here M'Kay was an officer of the company when the act was committed, or at any rate at the time when it was begun to be committed. He, as secretary, knowing all the facts, allowed the directors of the company to allot these shares to Hammon without telling them that in truth the shares were the property of the company. It was immaterial that the actual transfer of the shares to himself did not take place till after he had ceased to be secretary. Therefore, his Lordship was of opinion that the proceeding was rightly taken under Section 165, and that it was not necessary to file a bill. Then came the question, what was the proper amount of damages to be paid? His Lordship did not quite agree with the Vice-Warden that, because M'Kay was not entitled to have the shares as fully paid-up shares, therefore he was to be treated as a holder of ordinary shares. His Lordship thought he was only liable to account for the fair value of the shares. But M'Kay was a wrong-doer, and therefore in estimating the damage a presumption might be made against him which could not be made against a person who was not a wrong-doer. The directors were at this time allotting the shares, and it was their duty to see that the shares were taken by solvent persons, and it was impossible as against a wrong-doer to assume that the persons who might otherwise have taken these shares would have been insolvent. It must be assumed that these shares would otherwise have been allotted to solvent persons; and those of the shareholders who were solvent had been compelled to pay up the full amount of their shares; therefore his Lordship thought that the amount of damages had been properly fixed, and that the order was quite right. The appeal must be dismissed with costs. Mr. Justice Brett was not quite sure that he agreed with all the reasons given by the Vice-Warden in his judgment; but still he thought it quite clear that the decision itself was that which the court ought to give in this case. At a time when M'Kay was not an officer of the company, he entered into the agreement for purchase on behalf of the company. By this agreement it was made to appear that a certain number of fully paid-up shares in the company were to be given to Hammon as part of the purchase money. But there was a concealed agreement between M'Kay and Hammon that 600 of these fully paid-up shares were not to go to Hammon, but to Fisher or M'Kay, as remuneration for their trouble in the transaction. The company were induced to believe that Hammon was receiving from them a particular sum, whereas, in truth, Hammon was only to receive a part of that purchase-money, and the company, without their knowledge, were being made to pay 600 shares, part of the purchase-money, to M'Kay, who was affecting to act on behalf of the company, while he was in reality deceiving them. There was not much difficulty in saying that this was a fraud on the part of M'Kay and Fisher, but at any rate it was a misfeasance. This was done at a time when M'Kay was not an officer of the company; but then he committed another misfeasance by assisting, after he became secretary, to carry out the wrongful agreement, which he had previously entered into. He had been guilty of a misfeasance while he was an officer of the company, and this court had jurisdiction under Section 165 to order him to pay a sum of money in respect of that misfeasance. Then, what was the proper amount for him to pay? Where there had been a breach of trust or a misfeasance, there was no fixed legal rule to determine the amount of the damages, but the damages were at large. Of course he could not be ordered to pay any damages which were not consequent on the act, but he could be ordered to pay the largest amount of damages which might have resulted from the wrongful act, and it might be assumed that a solvent purchaser could have been found for these shares if M'Kay had not had them. If a clerk in an office chose to allow himself to be made a tool of his employer to carry out such a transaction as this, the Court ought to compel him to pay the largest amount of damages. Lord Justice James quite agreed with the judgments of both his learned brothers. He only wished to add that, while their Lordships did not at present express their concurrence with the view of the Vice-Warden that the shares should be treated as unpaid shares, they did not intend to express their dissent from that view, inasmuch as it might be a question of importance in other cases in which the holder of shares transferred in this way was not an officer of the company.

COMMON LAW DIVISION.

November 8.

(Sittings on Appeal from the Queen's Bench Division, before the LORD CHANCELLOR, Lord COLERIDGE, Baron BRAMWELL, and Mr. Justice BRETT.)

SMITH v. THE UNION BANK OF LONDON.—This case—as Mr. Justice Blackburn observed—though the amount in dispute was small, raised a point of considerable importance with respect to the liability of bankers to the holders of crossed checks which have been stolen. The question, shortly stated, was whether if a check crossed to a particular bank, and which has been stolen, is paid through the wrong bank but to a lawful holder, the banker so paying it is liable. The question had arisen thus:—A person indebted to the plaintiff gave him a check for £21, payable to the plaintiff's order, on the Union Bank of London. He having endorsed his name on it, crossed it with the name of his bankers—the London and County Bank—but the check was stolen from him, and sold by the thief for £8 10s. The buyer passed it to another person, who took it bonâ fide, and paid it to his bankers—the London and Westminster—and they presented it to the Union Bank, who paid it to them, notwithstanding the special terms of the crossing. The Act 21 and 22 Vic., c. 79, s. 2, enacted that a check payable to order or bearer, and uncrossed, may be crossed by the holder with the name of a banker, and such crossing shall be deemed a material part of the check, and the banker upon whom it is drawn shall not pay it to any other than the banker named in the crossing, and upon this the plaintiff sued the Union Bank to recover the amount; but the Court of Queen's Bench—constituted of Mr. Justice Blackburn and Mr. Justice Field—held that he was not entitled to recover, as the Act did not affect the negotiability of the check, and the plaintiff had endorsed it so that a person had become the bonâ fide holder of it for value before it was presented to the bankers, and the plaintiff was not then the holder. Mr. Justice Blackburn, in giving judgment, said he did not mean to hold that the bankers would not have been liable if they had paid the check to any one but a lawful holder; on the contrary, he thought, that they would. But here the bankers, though they had disobeyed the Act, as they had paid the check to another bank— not the bank mentioned in the crossing—had paid it through that bank to a person who was bonâ fide holder—that is, they had paid it through the wrong bank to the right party. There are obvious reasons, said the learned Judge, why bankers should not, and do not in practice generally pay checks to any bank but the one whose name is across the check, because they do not protect their customers and may incur a very serious liability; for if the crossed check is drawn payable to order and it is endorsed specially, or is kept unendorsed, and is stolen and endorsement is forged, a party who took it even for value would not be holder, and if the check is crossed to a particular banker and is paid to another the banker who pays it will be liable. But when he pays to the right holder, though through a wrong banker, he is not liable. From this judgment the plaintiff appealed. Mr. Brown, Q.C. (with him Mr. Collyer), argued for the plaintiff, the appellant; Mr. Thesiger (with him Mr. Douglas Walker and Mr. Pollock) were for the bank. It was admitted in argument by the counsel for the appellant that the negotiability of the check was not restrained by the crossing, which was not an endorsement, but merely a direction to pay through a particular banker, so that it could be transferred; but still it could only be paid through the particular banker. The Lord Chancellor. —But what harm has been done to you? You were not the holder of the check. Mr. Brown.—We were deprived of the protection the statute gave us. Mr. Justice Brett.—Were not the bankers bound to pay the lawful owner? Mr. Brown.— Only through the proper banker. The Lord Chancellor.— Then surely the negotiability of the check is restricted, which you do not contend. Mr. Brown.—Then in the sense that the check can only be paid through the proper banker the negotiability is restrained, but to that extent only. It is like the acceptance of a bill of exchange, making it payable at a particular place; and by the payment to the wrong banker the plaintiff had lost all remedy. On the other side the grounds taken by the Judges in the court below were urged and relied upon. The Court took time to consider their judgment.

Digitized by Google

HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE.—CHANCERY DIVISION.

November 5.

(Before Vice-Chancellor Sir RICHARD MALINS.)

IN RE THE GOITRE WEN LLANGENNECH MERTHYR SMOKELESS STEAM COAL COMPANY, LIMITED.—In this matter a petition was presented, praying for an order to wind-up the company. Mr. Glasse, Q.C., was for the petitioner. The Vice-Chancellor made an order to wind-up the company, upon an affidavit of service.

IN RE PAVY'S PATENT FELTED FABRIC COMPANY, LIMITED, EX PARTE WERTHEIMER AND ANOTHER—AND IN RE THE SAME, EX PARTE THE CREDIT FONCIER OF ENGLAND.—The above-named Pavy's Patent, &c., Company was registered under the Companies Acts in May, 1872, for the purpose of working a patent granted in 1868 for an invention of improvements in treating and preparing certain vegetable and animal fibres to manufacture a new description of fabric or stuff applicable to various useful and decorative purposes in this country and in France, Belgium, and the United States of America. The capital of the company was originally £100,000, in 20,000 shares of £5 each, but it was afterwards resolved to increase that capital to £150,000 by the issue of 10,000 additional shares of the same amount. The whole of those new shares were not issued, but calls upon such of them as had been issued were made to the extent of £3 per share, and in most instances paid. Nothwithstanding that, the company was unable to pay its debts, and, on the 12th of August last, Messrs. Wertheimer and Co., as creditors of the company for about £76, presented a petition for a winding-up order. On the 20th of August the petitioners' solicitor gave notice of an application for the appointment of provisional liquidators, and on the 24th of October the application came on to be heard before the Vice-Chancellor Sir J. Bacon. Lady Sebright, who was the holder of 100 fully paid-up shares, appeared and opposed the application, but an order was, nevertheless, then made for the appointment of two provisional liquidators. Lady Sebright then offered to pay the petitioning creditors' debt and £50 for costs, but that offer was declined, and, although subsequently renewed, again refused The petitioners then applied for the appointment, by order, of Mr. Maynard as official liquidator. Lady Sebright opposed that application, and nominated another gentleman. After some discussion, the matter was directed to be adjourned into court, to be heard in due course. Mr. Higgins, Q.C., and Mr. Barber now appeared in support of the petition to wind-up the company, which, they said, it was, under the circumstances, just and equitable should be wound-up. The person who most strongly resisted the petition was a married woman, who did not appear with her husband, or by a next friend, and should not be heard. Mr. Glasse, Q.C., and Mr. Solomon, for the company, admitted its inability to pay its debts, and that the petitioners' claim was still unsatisfied. Mr. E. Widdrington Bryne, for creditors of the company to the amount of £20,000, supported the prayer of the petition, and submitted that, even if the petitioners were not the proper parties to present it, his clients, as the largest creditors of the company, might be allowed to have the carriage of the order. Mr. Whitehorne, for Lady Sebright (whose right to appear was after some discussion conceded) and other creditors, opposed the petition. He said the petitioners, having had their very small debt and costs tendered to them, must be considered as having been paid what was due to them, and should not now be intrusted with the working out of the proposed order. If other petitioners were substituted for them, his clients might, perhaps, withdraw their opposition. As to the company itself, there was no reason for thinking it would not succeed if allowed to go on.—The Vice-Chancellor said that the petition in this matter had been presented by creditors who, it was true, were not creditors of the company to any very great amount, but still they were, in fact, creditors. The objection to their petition was that they had been offered their debt and costs, which, having refused, they should be treated as having been paid. But the company itself appeared by counsel, and admitted that the petitioners' debt was due to them, and that the company could not pay it and its other debts. So far, therefore, the making of the winding-up order was a matter of course. But in answer to that it was said a shareholder (whose right, however, as a married woman to appear alone as such was by no means clear), when the application was made to the Vice-Chancellor Sir J. Bacon, had tendered the petitioners their claim, and afterwards repeated the offer. If the company itself had done that, there might have been some reason for staying the proceedings on the petition of these gentlemen; but it was a very different thing when the petitioning creditors' debt was tendered or paid by a shareholder in the company. His Lordship had serious doubts whether that could be allowed. If such a course were permitted, any bonâ fide petitioner might be stopped by some Quixotic shareholder, to the real detriment of a company's interest. He could not, therefore, admit the right of Lady Sebright, even if an unmarried woman, to intervene in the way she had proposed. The company still owed the petitioners their money: but that was not all. Other creditors, to the extent of £20,000, wished the company to be wound-up. No one said it was solvent. How absurd, then, it would be to refuse the order now asked for, simply because Lady Sebright was willing to pay this particular debt! It was manifest that even if that was satisfied, other petitions would be presented immediately, and for precisely similar purposes. The affairs of the company were now in the hands of the provisional liqui-dators already appointed, and would remain with them till their successors were nominated. He considered that, on the whole case, the opposition to the petition had been most vexatious and ridiculous, and the usual winding-up order must be made. The second of the above-named petitions in this matter was then withdrawn.

Digitized by Google

IN RE E. FISHER AND COMPANY, LIMITED.—In this matter a petition was presented for an order to wind-up the company, on the ground that it had not commenced its business—had, in fact, done nothing towards it—viz. "the manufacture of champagne nectar"—within twelve months from the time when the company was formed. Mr. Buckley was for the petitioner; Mr. J. Cutler was for the company. The Vice-Chancellor, on being satisfied that the evidence supported the grounds of the application (the granting of which his Lordship considered the best thing for all parties concerned in the matter), made a winding-up order, but, under all the circumstances of the case, directed the order not to be drawn up for a week, so as to enable the company within that time to pay to Mr. Fisher £2,000 on account of purchase-money due from them to him; and if at the end of the week the money was paid, another application must be made to the court before the order was finally drawn up.

(Before Vice-Chancellor Sir C. HALL.)

IN RE THE WALNEY LAND AND BUILDING COMPANY, LIMITED. —This company was ordered to be wound-up on a judgment creditors' petition. Mr. Graham Hastings, Q.C., and Mr. Speed appeared for the petitioners. The company did not appear, but the order was made on an affidavit of service.

November 6.

(Before the MASTER of the ROLLS.)

BRANNON'S PATENT FIRE-PROOF, SANITARY, AND PERMANENT WORKS, LIMITED—THE BRITISH, COLONIAL, AND FOREIGN PROPERTY INSURANCE CORPORATION, LIMITED.—These companies were ordered to be wound-up by the court. Mr. Roxburgh, Q.C., Mr. Lawson, Mr. Angelo Lewis, Mr. Romer, and Mr. McSwinney were the counsel engaged.

THE SOUTH WALES ATLANTIC STEAMSHIP COMPANY, LIMITED. —This was a director's petition for continuing under supervision the voluntary winding-up of a company which was established in May, 1874, with a nominal capital of £600,000, the Marquis of Bute and others being the first directors. Mr. Roxburgh, Q.C., and Mr. Grosvenor Woods appeared for the petitioners, and Mr. Whitehorne for the company and liquidators. Mr. Cracknall, for three contributories, said the directors were holders of paid-up shares only, and his clients were the only parties liable to contribute to the assets; and he claimed that a direction as to the appointment of an independent liquidator should be inserted in the order. The Master of the Rolls, however, said that if Mr. Cracknall's clients considered the present liquidators to be improper persons, they might take out a summons in chambers for their removal, and made the usual supervision order.

IN RE BARKER'S TRUSTS.—This was a petition praying the removal of a sole trustee on the ground of bankruptcy. Mr. Chitty, Q.C., and Mr. F. W. Bush, for the petitioners, referred to section 117 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, which authorises the court, if it appear expedient to do so, to appoint a new trustee in substitution for the bankrupt. Mr. Chapman Barber, for the bankrupt, stated that he had obtained his discharge since the presentation of the petition, and appealed to the court, under the circumstances, not to remove his client, but to appoint an additional trustee. Mr. Chester appeared for the trustees of the bankrupt. The Master of the Rolls.—I have no hesitation in saying that in my opinion it is the duty of the court to remove a bankrupt trustee in every case where he has money to receive or there is property which he may misappropriate. A man who is in necessitous circumstances is far more likely to be tempted than a man who is wealthy. Another reason is, that a man who has not shown sufficient prudence in the management of his own affairs to avoid bankruptcy is not likely to exhibit prudence in the management of the affairs of others. There is a further special reason in this case, that the trust fund is personal property, consisting of various descriptions of stocks and shares, some portion of which, at all events, is capable of being made away with. I must make an order for removal of this gentleman.

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY.

November 4.

(Before MR. REGISTRAR BROUGHAM, sitting as Chief Judge.)

IN RE GALATTI AND GALATTI.—The debtors, John Sergio Galatti and G. C. Galatti, merchants, of Bloomfield-street, Finsbury, and Alexandria, have filed a petition for liquidation. Their liabilities are returned at £165,000, with assets consisting of cash in hand, book debts, bills of exchange, shares in companies, and land at Worthing of the estimated value, in the aggregate, of £19,000, exclusive of an interest in cotton, in the hands of brokers at Liverpool, upon which advances have been made. Mr. Latham, for the petitioners, and with the concurrence of creditors, now asked that Mr. John Weise, accountant, should be appointed receiver of the property. The evidence showed that creditors of the firm were taking hostile measures in Alexandria, and that it was necessary the assets there should be protected. His Honour granted the application.

PRACTICE OF THE COURT.—It may be useful to state that, for the future, applications for the appointment of receivers and for injunctions in liquidation cases are to be made during the sitting of the Court of the Registrar who may be acting for the Chief Judge, and that such applications will not be allowed to be made in Chambers after the Court has risen.

(Before the Hon. W. C. SPRING-RICE.)

IN RE THE HON. W. F. O. O'CALLAGHAN, M.P.—The case of the bankrupt, who is M.P. for Tipperary, was again in the list upon a motion by the trustee, but was struck out in consequence of the annulment of the adjudication, the creditors receiving the sum of £6,250 in satisfaction of their debts.

November 5.

(Before Mr. Registrar PEPYS, sitting as Chief Judge.)

IN RE CHARLES RONALDSON.—A petition for liquidation has been filed in this case, the debtor being described as a wine merchant, of Mincing-lane. The liabilities are returned at £80,000, with assets, consisting of stock-in-trade (estimated), £4,000; book debts, £3,000; and household furniture at Belvidere, £300. Upon the application of Mr. F. H. Linklaker, the Court appointed Mr. Charles Chatteris, accountant, receiver and manager of the business.

November 6.

(Before the Hon. W. C. SPRING-RICE, sitting as Chief Judge.)

IN RE WILLIAM THOMAS HENLEY.—The debtor, a telegraph engineer and contractor, carrying on an extensive business at 110 Fenchurch-street, City, Plaistow, and Pontnewynydd Ironworks, Monmouthshire, recently filed a liquidation petition. His debts amounted to upwards of £600,000 in the aggregate, of which more than one-half were secured. The matter was now brought before the court for its approval of a scheme of arrangement, under section 28 of the Act, which provided for payment to the creditors of a composition of 7s. 6d. in the pound by three instalments at 12, 18, and 24 months' date, with power for all creditors proving against the estate to claim in lieu of their composition fully paid-up shares (value taken at par) in a company registered under the name of William Thomas Henley and Co., Limited. The scheme also provided that all the debtor's assets, except his house and furniture, should be assigned to the company by the trustee, and that the liquidation should be closed and the debtor discharged when the proposal had been carried into effect. Mr. Jeune appeared for the trustee and Mr. Chidley and Mr. Starkey for creditors, in support of the application; and Mr. Hollams, jun., for a creditor in opposition. The Court, after considerable discussion, confirmed the scheme.

Digitized by Google

In re J. J. de Lizardi.—The bankrupt formerly carried on business as a merchant at 124 Cannon-street. He failed about two years since, when, upon a criminal charge being preferred by creditors, he absconded. A claim was recently made by Mr. White and others, alleged to be separate creditors of the bankrupt, to a sum of £5,103, now in the hands of Mr. Turquand, the trustee, on the ground that the fund formed part of the separate estate. The claimants contended, in support of their case, that the bankrupt had been in partnership with his brother, M. Miguel de Lizardi, who resided in Mexico, and the fact mainly in dispute was whether such partnership really existed at the time of the bankruptcy. Mr. Winslow, Q.C., and Mr. Finlay Knight appeared for the claimants; Mr. Everett and Mr. George Henderson for creditors in opposition; and Mr. J. Linklater for the trustee. His Honour now gave judgment, and, after reviewing the evidence, held that the alleged partnership with the brother was not proved, and that the claim of the applicants, as separate creditors, failed.

(Before Sir J. Bacon, Chief Judge.)

November 8.

Ex Parte the Trustee, re Whitworth.—This was an appeal from a decision of the Halifax County Court, and involved a question as to the right of Messrs. Gibbes, of Charlestown, in the United States, to stop in transitu certain cotton which they had consigned to Messrs. Whitworth, of Luddenham, Yorkshire. Mr. Benjamin, Q.C., and Mr. Jordan were counsel for the appellant, and Mr. De Gex, Q.C., and Mr. Finlay Knight for the respondents. It would appear that for many years Messrs. Gibbes were in the habit of consigning to Messrs. Whitworth, who were cotton-spinners, large quantities of cotton to be used by them for the purpose of their trade. Simultaneously with the shipment of the goods a bill of lading for Liverpool was usually forwarded to Messrs. Brown, Shipley, and Co., the agents of Messrs. Gibbes and Co. in this country, together with a draught of exchange, which the latter transmitted to Messrs. Whitworth for acceptance, and on receiving from that firm the draught duly accepted, they immediately sent to Messrs. Whitworth, at Luddenham, the bill of lading, which was thereupon forwarded to Mr. Windle, the manager of the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway at Liverpool, with directions to forward the goods to Luddenham. On the 17th of April, 1875, Messrs. Whitworth filed a petition for liquidation. At that time a quantity of cotton consigned by Messrs. Gibbes to the debtors, and of which the bill of lading had been transmitted by the consignees to their agent at Liverpool, was lying in trucks of the railway company, placed in a siding known as "the Whitworth siding," at Luddenham Station. On the 21st of April Mr. Ernest Schutt, the agent for Messrs. Gibbes, countermanded the delivery of the cotton to Messrs. Whitworth, and the learned Judge, upon the matter being brought before him, held that Messrs. Gibbes were entitled to the goods. The trustee under the liquidation appealed. The Chief Judge, on the ground that the transitus of the cotton, so far as concerned the vendors, was at an end upon its arrival at Liverpool, reversed the decision of the Court below, and held that the trustee was entitled to possession of all the cotton which was in the hands of the railway company as agents for the debtors at the date of the petition for liquidation.

November 9.

(Before Mr. Registrar Murray, sitting as Chief Judge.)

In re Hart and White.—The bankrupts, David Hart and George Hart, wine merchants, of George-street, Tower-hill, applied to pass their examination. They had presented a petition for liquidation, but the proceedings fell to the ground, and the creditors obtained an adjudication. The balance-sheet of the bankrupts showed debts and liabilities amounting to £83,069, and assets £28,608 subject to realisation. The case has been before the court for a considerable time. Mr. Lanyon, for the trustee, stated that at the last public examination some months since, the late Mr. Registrar Roche, who then presided, directed that the evidence should be taken in private, and the result of it afterwards stated to the court. The trustee did not desire now to oppose the bankrupts, but only to make a statement as to what had been elicited at the meetings. Mr. Linklater, solicitor for the bankrupt Hart (the other bankrupt being unrepresented), objected to the proposed statement being made, and submitted that the sole question for the court to determine was whether or not the bankrupts were entitled to pass their examination. Mr. Registrar Murray, after some discussion, said this was a sitiing for public examination under the 19th Section. He did not know what reason there was for taking the examinations in private, but he supposed it was for the convenience of the creditors and the trustee. The learned counsel might read the examinations as a brief. He thought it would be inconvenient to make a statement, but he could not refuse to hear the examinations read. Mr. Lanyon said the trustee desired that the accounts should be more full, and that the bankrupts should make a further discovery. Considerable discussion followed in regard to the right of the bankrupts to pass their examination upon the accounts as they at present stood. Eventually Mr. Registrar Murray said he must call upon the learned counsel to point out some particular item as to which the trustee was not satisfied. Mr. Lanyon, after conferring with the trustee, said he did not think any information could be obtained from an examination of the bankrupts beyond that which they had actually disclosed. Mr. Registrar Murray said in that case the only duty he had to perform was to allow the bankrupts to pass their examination. They did so simply because they had filed their accounts, and had submitted themselves to examination at the instance of the trustee, and the trustee gave no reason for adjournment. Passed.

(Before Mr. Registrar Spring-Rice.)

In re C. T. Mavrocordato.—This was a first meeting. The bankrupt was a merchant and a dealer in stocks and shares, of 108 Bishopsgate-street-within. He was recently convicted and sentenced to five years' penal servitude on a charge of defrauding various stockbrokers, and consequently now failed to appear. Several proofs of debt were admitted, and a trustee appointed. No accounts were presented.

The Jersey Mercantile Union Bank.—There is at length some prospect of the creditors of this bank receiving a trifling dividend out of the estate. The bank suspended payment on the 1st of February, 1873, with liabilities amounting to about £320,000, the investigation into the affairs resulting in the trial and condemnation of the chairman, Mr. Joshua Le Bailly (a judge of the Royal Court), to five years' penal servitude. After numerous efforts an agreement was at length come to between the creditors and the shareholders, by which the latter agreed to contribute a sum of £80,000, in full discharge of their liabilities. This, together with the sum realised by the sale of Mr. Le Bailly's estate, is estimated to yield about 5s. 6d. in the pound. The liquidators have obtained from the Royal Court an order to call in the £1 notes held by creditors, against which they will issue notes of hand, for the purpose of simplifying the process of payment of the dividend, which is expected to be commenced shortly.

Digitized by Google

EUROPEAN ASSURANCE ARBITRATION.

November 4.

(Before Mr. F. S. REILLY.)

At a sitting to-day the Arbitrator determined that an appeal should be allowed in some cases which in a very great degree affect the amount of assets available for some of the creditors in the arbitration.

RIVINGTON'S CASES, No. 1 AND No. 2.—The Arbitrator, in giving judgment, said that the first question was whether the new Act relating to the arbitration provided for an appeal in cases where decisions on different principles had been given by the same Arbitrator, or only in cases where the differences of opinion were between different Arbitrators. The interpretation the learned Arbitrator would now put upon the Act was, that it did apply to a difference in principle between two or more decisions of the same Arbitrator. Then came the question whether there had been any such difference. The duty of making this inquiry had been cast upon him (the learned Arbitrator) by the Legislature, and must be discharged. This duty, however, did not involve the consideration of the merits of any decision. Any one who studied the judgment in "Rivington's Case, No. 1" (Law Times European Reports, p. 57) would see that, apart from all particular circumstances, the principle of the decision was that Lord Westbury would not inquire into the validity of an arrangement in the nature of amalgamation between two companies, after the lapse of a considerable number of years, and when he could not restore the parties to their original position. The judgment made no reference to the rights and interests of the respective creditors of the two amalgamating companies. On the other hand, in "Barnes's Case" (Law Times European Reports, p. 72) Lord Westbury did inquire into the validity of an arrangement in the nature of amalgamation between two companies after the lapse of a considerable number of years. He did not consider whether he could restore the parties to their original position, and his judgment dwelt almost exclusively on the rights and interests of creditors as alleged to be affected by the amalgamation. It was immaterial how the question arose, whether on an application to put a person on the list or to remove one therefrom; whether on an application for a winding-up order, or on an application relating to the validity of a particular transfer of shares. The only material question was what were the principles of the decisions; and he was of opinion that there was a difference in those principles. He should accordingly grant a certificate allowing an appeal to the Court of Appeal, in accordance with the Act, which required a certificate that, by reason of the difference of decisions, an appeal was desirable. He had no difficulty in so certifying, having regard to the desirableness of uniformity in the measure to be meted out to the shareholders and the creditors of the several companies subject to the arbitration, and to the desirableness of the claims of the creditors of the British Commercial Company being satisfied, as far as the rules of law and the assets of that company would permit.

RIVINGTON'S CASE, No. 2.—This case was decided by Lord Romilly, and turned on the effect of the previous case. The Arbitrator said the two cases would therefore be heard in the Court of Appeal together.

DOMAN'S CASES, No. 1 AND No. 2.—The Arbitrator said the principle of the decision in this first case (Law Times European Reports, p. 133) was the same as that in "Rivington's Case, No. 1." The decision treated of the rights and interests of creditors of a company as prejudicially affected by the operation of an arrangement in the nature of amalgamation assumed to be binding on or enforceable as between the amalgamating companies. It proceeded then to deal with the rights and interests of those creditors in such a manner as to subordinate and postpone them to the rights and interests of persons who were shareholders in the transferor company at the time of the amalgamation. He should, accordingly, for the reasons given in "Rivington's Case, No. 1," certify for an appeal. The Arbitrator further said that "Doman's Case, No. 2," would go with "Doman's Case, No. 1."

SULLIVAN'S CASES, No. 1 AND No. 2.—THOMSON'S CASES, No. 1. AND No. 2.—The Arbitrator said that these cases had been throughout treated as governed by Doman's Cases, and must continue to be so treated as regards the certificate for appeal. Mr. Napier Higgins, Q.C., Mr. Jackson, Q.C., Mr. Millar, Mr. Romer, and Mr. Methold were the counsel engaged in the foregoing cases.

CREDITORS' MEETINGS.

G. D. NEROUTSOS.—At a preliminary meeting of the creditors of Mr. G. D. Neroutsos, merchant, of London and Manchester, a committee was appointed. The liabilities amount to £22,603, and assets to £12,869.

W. WOOLSTON (GREAT YARMOUTH).—A meeting of the creditors of William Woolston, of Yarmouth, grocer, was held at Hall Quay Chambers, Great Yarmouth, on 5th November, 1875, when it was resolved to liquidate the estate by arrangement; Mr. Lovewell Blake, of Hall Quay Chambers, Great Yarmouth, public accountant, being appointed trustee with a committee of inspection. Mr. F. J. Dowsett, of Yarmouth, and Mr. Alfred Kent, of Norwich, are solicitors in the proceedings.

M. J. COHEN, JEWELLER (NEWCASTLE-UPON-TYNE).—At a meeting of creditors herein held on Monday, November 8th, 1875, for the confirmation of a resolution to accept 3s. 6d. in the pound, it was resolved to refuse the same and to wind-up the estate under liquidation, with Mr. Edward Thomas Peirson, public accountant, of Coventry, as trustee.

JACOB WOLFE (LEEDS).—At the meeting held herein, the debtor was closely examined by Mr. Peirson, public accountant, Coventry, who brought out the fact that there must have been a large amount of property removed, and the debtor repudiating all knowledge of same, his offer of composition of 5s. 6d. in the pound was refused. He subsequently amended the offer to 8s. in the pound, but this was refused, and bankruptcy was resolved upon. A few days after the meeting steps were taken to trace the missing property, and the debtor then made an offer to pay 12s. 6d. in the pound all secured, which offer the creditors will probably accept, and annul the bankruptcy in due course.

N. J. CHAVIARA (LIVERPOOL).—A meeting of creditors under the failure of Mr. Nicholas J. Chaviara, of Exchange-buildings, Liverpool, was held at the offices of Mr. C. C. Deane, Liverpool, on November 2nd. A statement of accounts produced disclosed unsecured debts £2311, and those partly secured £7347, the estimated value of the security being £4216. The assets consist entirely of book debts, amounting to £1089, which are not estimated to produce more than £350. Liquidation was determined upon, and Mr. Bolland chosen trustee, with a committee of inspection, and the debtor to be allowed his discharge on payment of 10s. in the pound. Mr. Deane was retained as the solicitor to the trustee.

F. M'GRATH (LIVERPOOL).—A first meeting of creditors under the bankruptcy of Mr. Francis M'Grath, provision merchant, trading in Peter-street, under the firm of A. Broadhurst and Co., was held on the 7th of November, at the county court. A statement of accounts produced showed liabilities £2407, and assets £175. Mr. Robert Nicholson represented the creditors, and appointed Mr. Bolland trustee, with a committee of inspection. The 10th of December was fixed for public examination.

E. PLEASANCE (LIVERPOOL).—A meeting of creditors of Elijah Pleasance, of Liverpool, licensed victualler and tile merchant, was held on the 28th ult. Debts, £912; assets £444. Liquidation was determined upon, and Mr. Bolland chosen trustee.

Digitized by Google

T. MORRIS (LIVERPOOL).—A meeting of creditors was held on the 7th instant, at the offices of Messrs. Gibson and Bolland, under the liquidation petition of Mr. Thomas Morris, of St. John's Market and Brownlow-hill, butcher. The debts were £1171, and assets £166. Liquidation was determined upon, and Mr. Bolland chosen trustee, with a committee of inspection. An offer of 5s. in the pound on the part of the debtor was refused, but the discharge was allowed, subject to the trustee and the committee certifying that the bankrupt had made a full disclosure of his estate. Mr. Martin and Mr. Rodway represented the creditors.

CASTREE BROTHERS (MANCHESTER).—A second meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Castree Brothers, Manchester, silk manufacturers, has been held, when the resolution passed at the former meeting was confirmed, accepting a composition of 3s. 4d. in the pound, payable in two instalments—2s. in one month, and 1s. 4d. in two months.

C. L. MAVROCORDATO.—The first meeting of creditors was held to-day in the bankruptcy of C. I. Mavrocordato, the Greek merchant who was recently sentenced to five years' penal servitude for absconding with about £10,000 worth of securities, which were recovered. The liabilities have not yet been ascertained. Mr. J. Waddell was appointed trustee, with a committee of creditors, Messrs. Lewis and Lewis being the solicitors to the estate.

W. PITTS (LOWESTOFT).—A meeting of the creditors of William Pitts, of Lowestoft, draper, was held at the office of Mr. R. Nicholson, solicitor, Lowestoft, on 2nd November, when it was resolved to liquidate the estate by arrangement, Mr. Lovewell Blake, of Hall Quay Chambers, Great Yarmouth, public accountant, being appointed trustee. Mr. Nicholson and Mr. W. R. Seago are solicitors in the proceedings.

FAILURES.

ENGLAND.—The suspension is announced of Messrs. G. A. Witt and Co., of London and Liverpool, East India merchants, of about six years' standing. The unsecured liabilities are roughly estimated at under £100,000, and the liquidation is expected to prove favourable. Their books have been placed in the hands of Mr. Joseph Shubrook, of 9 Gracechurch-street, London, public accountant.—The failure is also announced of Messrs. J. J. Ronaldson and Sons, wine merchants, of 27 Mincing-lane. The liabilities are estimated at about £70,000, the assets are not stated. The stoppage is understood to have been caused by the suspension of Messrs. Kattengell and Campbell, who filed a petition in bankruptcy on Friday last, with liabilities estimated at £400,000. The books have been placed in the hands of Messrs. Chatteris, Nicholls, and Chatteris.—A petition for liquidation was presented to the Liverpool Court, on November 6th, by Messrs. Blood and Taylor, wholesale druggists, with liabilities £3,500, and assets £1,800, and Mr. Bolland was appointed receiver.

"FOREIGN LOTTERY TICKETS OF NO VALUE."—The following curious statement appears in the Report of the Postmaster General just printed:—"A registered letter containing Turkish Bonds, with coupons payable to bearer, worth £4,000, intended for a firm in the city of London, was misdirected to a street in the West-end, where it was delivered. On inquiry being made for the packet, it was found that the Bonds had been mistaken for 'foreign lottery tickets' of no value, and had been put aside for the children of the family to play with."

ACTION AGAINST AN ADVERTISING MONEY LENDER.—In the County Court for the Newbury district of Berkshire, on Thursday, an action was brought by a widow lady named White, residing at East Woodhay, Hants, against "W. Seymour, Esq.," who describes himself in the newspaper advertisement as "financier, of 9 Great Russell-street, London, E.C.," to recover £2 2s. which she had paid him under the circumstances stated below.—Mr. Lucas, solicitor, of Newbury, represented the plaintiff, and explained to the Judge (Mr. Stonor) that the defendant (who did not put in an appearance) had been advertising in the Newbury paper that he had money ready for immediate investment in large or small sums not under £50 at 4 per cent. interest per annum. on any description of real or personal security. Plaintiff applied for a loan of £50., and defendant replied that she could have it, and plaintiff told him she had property, and could show him deeds to satisfy him as to her bonâ fides. He then wrote requiring the payment of £2 2s. to cover the preliminary expenses, and plaintiff said he might deduct that sum from the loan, and remit her the balance, but he insisted on the cash payment of the two guineas which she subsequently remitted. Having obtained this money, defendant sent down to plaintiff several documents for execution, including an absolute bill of sale, a bond, a guarantee, and a statutory declaration, which documents Mr. Lucas said were such that not one borrower in a hundred could execute, and it was clear that defendant's object was to obtain the two guineas, none of the conditions eventually mentioned being hinted at or required prior to the payment of that money. Plaintiff placed the matter in Mr. Lucas's hands, and defendant having refused to refund the two guineas, or carry out the loan on the terms originally stated, the present action was commenced for the breach of contract. Defendant, had, in his advertisement, distinctly stated that no commission would be charged. The solicitor's statement being borne out by evidence, Mr. Stonor gave judgement for the plaintiff for the amount claimed, with full costs.

A LIVELY CREDITORS' MEETING.—At the Mansion-house, on Thursday, E. W. J. Thompson, of 28 Burney-street, Greenwich, and Walter Thompson, of Tottenham, were summoned before Mr. Alderman Ellis, the former for assaulting Mr. Moss Myers, manager for Messrs. Lederer Brothers, 10 Fore-street, and the latter for using threats.—Mr. T. Beard, for the complainant, stated that the defendant E. W. J. Thompson recently filed a petition in bankruptcy, and on Wednesday, the 27th ult., a meeting of creditors was held; but in consequence of the defendant, Walter Thompson, who had likewise filed a petition some time ago, being returned a creditor for £500, a question as to the genuineness of this and other claims was raised. Complainant took an active part against the defendants, and he being thus obnoxious to them they sought to get rid of him by ejecting him.—Complainant deposed to these facts, and to the assault committed and threats used, but said he did not wish to punish defendants, and only wanted them bound over. Mr. Straight, for defendants, suggested that it would be well to bind all parties over. Defendants would certainly object to being bound over unless complainant was.—Mr. Alderman Ellis said, if the case went on, and complainant's story was not rebutted, he should think it his duty to inflict a very heavy penalty, if indeed he did not send defendants to gaol without the option of a fine. For a man attending a legal meeting to be thus interfered with, and that when he was endeavouring to do his duty, seeing that matters were gone into and the bankruptcy carried out properly, was to his mind a most serious offence. It was an endeavour to pervert justice, but, fortunately for defendants, complainant had taken a most lenient view of the matter.—Mr. Straight said after this expression of opinion defendants were willing to be bound over.—They then entered into their own recognisances of £50 each to keep the peace for six months.

Digitized by Google

PROSECUTION OF A FRAUDULENT DEBTOR.

At the Hull Sessions, on Thursday, before Mr. Recorder Beasley, John Wilkinson, jeweller, of Driffield (on bail) was charged with a breach of the Bankruptcy Act. Mr. Smith and Mr. Wilberforce (instructed by Mr. R. C. Sydney, of 5 John Street, Bedford Row, London, and by Messrs. Reece and Harris, of Birmingham) appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. Lawrance, of the Midland Circuit, and Mr. Silvester (instructed by Mr. White, of Driffield) for the defence.—The defendant filed a petition of bankruptcy in February, 1875, and he was charged under the 32 and 33 Vic., sec. 11 and sub-sec. 14 and 15 of the Fraudulent Debtors' Act, with having, during the four months previous to that date, obtained on credit certain goods and articles with intent to defraud, and also unlawfully and with intent to defraud, disposed of certain goods and chattels otherwise than in the ordinary way of trade. The bill of indictment contained ten counts, and the prosecution was ordered by the Registrar of the London Bankruptcy Court. On the accounts being gone through, it was found that there was a deficiency of £2,186 13s. 1d. Defendant commenced business in March, 1871, with a capital of £1,180, a present from his father, with which he bought the business at Driffield. The returns were admitted to be about £1,500 a year, upon which the defendant estimated that he made a profit of 25 per cent. The liabilities of the defendant were £3,269 6s. 9d., and the assets £1,092 13s 8d., but that amount was subject to certain reductions, amounting to £17. Thus, after adding the capital the defendant started with to his present deficiency of £2,186 13s. 1d., and £1,500 the estimated profits for four years, it would be seen that there was a deficiency of £1,866 13s. 1d. At an examination of the defendant in the Bankruptcy Court the defendant made a statement which was to the effect that he had spent £500 per annum for housekeeping and other purposes. Defendant stated that he lost £1,000 by racing, and had also lost money by selling stock under cost price. He sold diamond rings and other jewellery to Mr. Louis Holt, jeweller, of Hull, to the value of about £1,000 at a reduction of 25 per cent. on the cost price. Watches were also disposed of in a like manner.—A number of witnesses, including many Birmingham jewellers, were called in support of the case against the prisoner, who pleaded not guilty. The evidence of Louis Holt was to the effect that he gave the defendant Wilkinson the full value of the goods which were sold him, and that if he had gone to Birmingham he would have got similar as cheap, if not cheaper.—Mr. Wilberforce having summed up the case for the prosecution, Mr. Lawrance asked the jury to discharge the prisoner on the evidence of Holt, and maintained that the prosecution had not proved their case. The conduct of the creditors before the Registrar in London, in wishing to settle the case, showed that they did not think the prisoner had been guilty of any criminal action. He asked the jury to look upon the acts of the defendant as having occurred more from inexperience and foolishness than any thing else.—At the conclusion of Mr. Lawrance's speech there was some applause in Court, but it was immediaetly suppressed.—The Recorder having summed up in a very exhaustive manner, the jury retired to consider their verdict, and on returning into Court announced that they found the prisoner guilty, but strongly recommended him to mercy.—The Recorder deferred passing sentence until Friday.—On Friday morning the prisoner was again brought up, and the Recorder sentenced him to six months' imprisonment, with hard labour.

It is announced that a partnership has been formed between Mr. Charles Rutherford, accountant, of 29 Saint Swithin's lane, and Mr. Francis William Pixley, accountant, of 82 Cheapside, under the style of Rutherford and Pixley, and that their offices will in future be at the former address.

THE METROPOLITAN AND PROVINCIAL
LAND, ESTATE, HOUSE, LICENSED VICTUALLERS' & GENERAL BUSINESS TRANSFER "SYNDICATE" AGENCY,
Registered according to Act of Parliament, Head Offices, No. 3 Craven-street, Charing Cross, W.C. The organisation and working system of the "Syndicate" are;—1st.—The Sale, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Ground of Rents, Freehold and Leasehold Land, Farms, Estates, Houses, Hotels-Public Houses, Inns, Beer Houses, Restaurants, Coffee Houses, Tobacconists, Drapers, and every other description of Business, Furniture, Objects of Art, or Goods of any description by Auction or Private Contract. 2nd.—The letting, or disposing of, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Land, Farms, Estates, Furnished, or Unfurnished Houses Chambers, or Offices under private contract. 3rd.—The Collection of Rents and the recovery of outstanding accounts. 4th.—The Surveys and Valuations of Land, Farms, Estates, and Houses; also Valuations of Furniture, Jewellery, and other Effects, for probate and other purposes. 5th.—The transaction of all other business usually transacted by Auctioneers, Surveyors, Land, House, Estate and Insurance Agents. 6th.—The negociations of partnerships, and from unlimited connection with capitalists, monetary advances on real and personal securities, as well as merchandize, and every other description of property intended forabsolute sale, or otherwise. 7th. Generally the carrying out of all things instdental or conducive to the above objects, and every of them; also the laying out of estates and surveys for delapidations. The "Syndicate" from their extended connection with the Trades' Protection Societies and other sources, undertake expeditiously for Clients and others to ascertain reliably the status of parties, and make inquiries of a private and confidential character Liberal terms to Accountants in town or country introducing business.

RESTAURANT,
13 OXFORD STREET,
Near the corner of Tottenham-court-road.
Known as the BODEGA, now under the new management of Mr. L. BOECKER, late of 13 Idol-lane, City.
Luncheons from the joints, hot or cold, including vegetables and bread, 1s. 3d
Dinners from 12 till 4 o'clock, from the joint, with soup or fish, vegetables, cheese and bread, 2s.
Dinners from 6 till 9 o'clock, from 2s. 6d. to 10s. 6d.
Private Dining Rooms for large and small parties on the Second Floor.

THE BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY'S ANNUAL RECEIPTS EXCEED THREE MILLIONS.

HOW TO PURCHASE A HOUSE FOR TWO GUINEAS PER MONTH
With immediate Possession and no Rent to pay.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO PURCHASE A PLOT OF LAND FOR FIVE SHILLINGS PER MONTH.
With Immediate Possession, either for Building or Gardening purposes.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK FREEHOLD LAND SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO INVEST YOUR MONEY WITH SAFETY AT £4 PER CENT. INTEREST.
Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BANK. All sums under £50 repayable upon demand. Current Accounts opened similar to ordinary Bankers. Cheque-books supplied. English and Foreign Stocks and Shares purchased and sold, and Advances made thereon.
Office Hours from 10 till 4; on Mondays from 10 till 9, and on Saturdays from 10 till 12 o'clock.
A Pamphlet containing full particulars may be obtained post-free on application.
FRANCIS RAVENSCROFT, Manager.

LARGE LIGHT OFFICES on the Fourth Floor. Rents £10 and £15. Apply to Housekeeper, 26 Budge-row, Cannon-street, E.C.

MONEY to LEND to BORROWERS residing in town or Country, from £50 upwards repayable in one sum, from one to five years, at five per cent. interest on personal security; also on mortgage of freehold or leasehold property from 3 per cent., for a term of years to be agreed upon. No commission.
Apply to R. F. PRESTON, Esq., 120 Southampton-row, London, W.C.

ACCOUNTANTS may greatly facilitate their office work, and materially increase their profits, by printing liquidation notices, &c., by Zuccato's Papyrograph, which is used by a large number of London and Provincial Accountants, including John L. Lovering and Co.; Gamble and Harvey; Andrews and Mason; Nicholls and Leatherdale; Slater and Pannell; John Bath and Co.; Sydney Smith, and Co.; Ladbury, Collinson, and Viney; Arthur Barron and Co.; Edmunds, Davis, and Clarke; &c. For 2½d., 500 4to. copies can be taken upon any kind of dry paper, by an office boy in a copying-press at the rate of 10 a minute. For price list and testimonials, apply to WALTER HENRY, Papyrographic Depôt, 409 Strand, W.C.

Digitized by Google

"The source of many a writer's woe has been discovered."

PENS! PENS!! PENS!!

"They come as a boon and a blessing to men,
The Pickwick, the Owl, and the Waverley Pen."
"The misery of a bad Pen is now a voluntary infliction."

Another blessing to men! The Hindoo Pen. 1,200 Newspapers recommend them. See Graphic, 17th May, 1873.

Sold by every respectable Stationer. Post 1s.1d.

Patentees, MACNIVEN & CAMERON, 23 to 33 Blair-street, Edinburgh.

J. DEFRIES' AND SONS'

CHANDELIERS, IN CRYSTAL, BRONZE, AND ORMOLU.

TABLE GLASS AND CHINA.

Dinner Services, Gilt Pieces, £4 10s.

KEROSENE and MODERATOR LAMPS for INDIA.

Works:—London and Birmingham.

WEDDING AND BIRTHDAY PRESENTS.

NEW DECORATIONS for the DINING TABLE.

FOUNTAINS.

STORER'S Patent Perpetual Perfumed CRYSTAL TABLE FOUNTAIN, for Dining, Hall and Drawing Rooms, in Crystal and Gilt, £2 17s. 6d. to 100 guineas.

FETES AND REJOICINGS.

BALLROOMS and GARDENS, &c., DECORATED and ILLUMINATED for Evening Parties. Tents, Temporary Rooms, and Banqueting Halls erected.

CRYSTAL and BRONZED CHANDELIERS.

TABLE GLASS and CHINA LENT ON HIRE.

J. DEFRIES and SONS, 147, HOUNDSDITCH.

Five minutes' walk from the Bank of England.

RUPTURES—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS s allowed by upwards of 500 Medical Men to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided, a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the manufacturer, Mr. JOHN WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London. Price of a single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., 31s. 6d, Postage Free. Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. An Umbilical Tsusr, 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. P.O.O. to be made payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

TRADE MARK.

NEW PATENT ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS, &c. for Varicose Veins, and all cases of Weakness and Swelling of the Legs, Sprains, &c. They are porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and are drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price from 4s. 6d., 7s, 6d., 10s, to 16s. each. Postage free.

CHEST EXPANDING BRACES, for both sexes. For gentlemen they are a substitute for the ordinary braces. For children they are invaluable; they prevent stooping and preserve the symmetry of the chest. Prices for children, 5s. 6d. and 7s. 6d. Adults, 10s. 6d., 15s. 6d., and 21s. each. Postage free.—JOHN WHITE, Manufacturer, 228 Piccadilly, London.

EPPS'S COCOA.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—See article in the Civil Service Gazette.

STAR LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY,

48 MOORGATE STREET, LONDON, E.C

DIRECTORS.

CHAIRMAN—

Mr. Alderman McArthur, M.P.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—

William Mewburn, Esq.

H. J. Atkinson, Esq.
Thomas Ball, Esq.
Walter Griffith, Esq.
George M. Kiell, Esq.
George Lidgett, Esq.
Sir Francis Lycett.
William Merry, Esq.
John Napier, Esq.
Jonathan S. Pidgeon, Esq
John Vanner, Esq.
S. D. Waddy, Esq., Q.C., M.P.

Assurance and Annuity Fund	1,216,115	13	5
Annual Income (1874)	223,613	2	0
Bonuses Apportioned	581,774	6	2
Claims Paid	1,140,151	1	8

Copies of the Report, Balance Sheet and Prospectus can be obtained on application to the Head Office.

W. W. BAYNES, Secretary.

THE ONLY AND SPECIAL

"MEDAL FOR PROGRESS,"

Was awarded for "Feuerfeste Eisone Schranke und Kunstchlosser Fortschritts," to

HOBBS, HART, & CO.,

AT THE VIENNA UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION.

This Medal is only given to Exhibitors whose New Inventions testify marked Progress.

"FIRE-PROOF SAFES; AND LOCKS AND ENDLESS CHANGE LOCKS AND KEYS,"

Invented especially for Safes and Strong-Room Doors, to frustrate the use of False Keys.

N.B.—The continued security and secrecy of a Lock, fixed on a Safe or Strong-Room Door, depends on the fact that there are no false duplicate keys of that Lock in existence. The object of a Lock is twofold—security against burglars, and secrecy against prying curiosity. A new change in this Lock may at any time be obtained in five minutes by simply filing away the thickness of a hair from one or more of the steps of the Key. Th Lock, by a simple movement of the Regulator, is thus made to adapt itself to the NEW KEY, after which no other Key will open the Lock.

The Lock and Key may thus be easily altered into what would be virtually a NEW LOCK and KEY, as often as may be desired, without the aid of a Lockmaker or of any second person, thus frustrating the use of fraudulent copies of the original Key (see the Safe Robbery in Dublin of £630, vide "Times," 12th September, 1875). This Lock affords effectual protection from duplicate or "Master" Keys secretly made in manufactories; very extensive robberies (in one case 13 Safes in one vault) having been effected by this means.

HOBBS, HART & CO.,
LOCK, SAFE, AND STRONG-ROOM DOOR MANUFACTURERS,
76 Cheapside, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

MANSION HOUSE CHAMBERS, 11 QUEEN VICTORIA STREET, LONDON, E.C.

First issue of Capital, £500,000, in Subscriptions of £1 and upwards. No further liability. Open to all. Each cash subscriber is entitled to interest in lieu of dividend, at the rate of £1 10s. per cent. per month, 18 per cent. per annum, which will be paid in Cash.

TRUSTEES.

Lieut.-General J. H. GASCOIGNE, C.B., Ivybridge, Devon.
The Rev. W. F. GOOD, D.D., Newton Abbott, Devon.
H. R. SNELGROVE, Esq., The Vicarage, Exmouth.
HENRY WALKER, Esq., Fowler Height, Blackburn.

ACCOUNTANTS AND AUDITORS.

Messrs. R. W. HUDSWELL AND Co., 23 Martin's Lane, Cannon Street, London, E.C.

MANAGER AND PROPRIETOR. — RICHARD BANNER OAKLEY, F.R.G.S.

Current accounts opened, and 5 per cent. interest allowed on the minimum monthly balances. Cheque Books supplied. The Bank grants credits and issues circular notes for the Continent and America, and transacts every description of sound Financial Business.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street, ISSUES GUARANTEED CHEQUES for any sum not exceeding £20 against cash deposits, without any charge for commission, the penny stamp being the only expense. These are very convenient for persons not having banking accounts, or not wishing to draw small cheques. They are payable on demand at all the Branches of the Co-operative Credit Bank, or can be passed through any bank in ordinary course.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street, is NOW ISSUING PROMISSORY NOTES from £5 upwards, payable three months after date with interest at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum if held to maturity, or payable on demand without interest. These are very useful to persons requiring short investments, and are perfectly negotiable instruments.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The ONLY SAFE and FIRM SYSTEM of BANKING.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The PEOPLE'S BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—No Promotion Money or Preliminary Expenses.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Managerial Remuneration Dependent on Profits.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Profits on the whole amount of the Liability.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Minimum of Risk, its operations being spread over a variety of subjects.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—No Liability beyond amount of subscription.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The Secrecy and Despatch of Individual Management.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—A fixed instead of an uncertain Scale of Profits.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Eighteen per Cent. per Annum paid Monthly.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—A constantly accruing Reserve Fund.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Power of Total Withdrawal after six months on Sixty Days' Notice.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street, City.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Book-keeping in the hands of the Subscribers.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Quarterly published Balance-sheet issued and certified by the Subscribers' Accountant.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Current Accounts opened and Five per Cent. allowed on the Minimum Monthly Balances.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK. — Furnishes Cheque Books for Customers.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK grants Credits and issues Circular Notes for the Continent and America.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK transacts every description of Sound Financial Business.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK introduces Public Loans.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK promotes Public Companies of a bona-fide character.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK negotiates the Discount of Bills and Mortgages on a Small Commission.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK negotiates Loans on Deposit of Deeds and other valuable Securities.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK assists in the Development of Patents for Useful Inventions.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK undertakes on Commission the Purchase and Sale of Stocks and Shares.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street, near the Mansion House.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK accepts the Agencies of Foreign and Country Banks and Merchants, and of Foreign Governments.

IF YOU WANT TO HAVE YOUR BUSINESS done Cheaply and Expeditiously, go to the CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

IF YOU WANT TO BE TREATED WITH CIVILITY, lodge your Money with the CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

IF YOU WANT THE BEST AND MOST RELIABLE COMMERCIAL INFORMATION OF THE DAY, ask the Manager of THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK,
Mansion House Chambers,
11 QUEEN VICTORIA STREET, LONDON.

BRANCHES at Bath, Blackburn, Denbigh, Dundee, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Inverness, Liverpool, Manchester, Warrington, Bristol, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Shields, Woolwich, Sunderland, Bishop Auckland, Exeter, Blyth, Bradford-on-Avon, Newton Abbott, Neath, Newport (Mon.), Middlesborough, Plymouth, South Shields, Worcester, Sheffield, Salisbury, Tow Low, Brompton, Leicester, Moreton-in-the-Marsh, Hull, Norwich, Portsmouth, Easingwold, Birmingham and Greenock.

Digitized by Google

SUBSCRIPTIONS ARE INVITED FOR 5,000 SHARES IN

THE BUFFALO HIDE HORSESHOE COMPANY, LIMITED.

Registered under the Companies' Acts, 1862 and 1867.

CAPITAL £60,000, IN 12,000 £5 SHARES FULLY PAID UP.

£1 on Application, the remainder on Allotment.

DIRECTORS.

JOSEPH JAMES SMITH, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, Manchester.
WILLIAM BIRCH COOPER, Esq., Durham Massey, Cheshire.
GEORGE HILL, Esq., Coal Merchant, Navigation Wharf, Manchester.
JAMES HASLAM, Esq., Veterinary Surgeon, Manchester.
ALBERT SEPTIMUS COX, Esq., Veterinary Surgeon, Altrincham, Cheshire.

BANKERS.

The MANCHESTER AND LIVERPOOL DISTRICT BANK, King-street, Manchester, and its Branches.

SOLICITORS.

Messrs. HAMPSON AND WALMSLEY, 60 King-street, Manchester.

MANAGING DIRECTOR.

JAMES HASLAM, Esq., M.R.C.V.S.

SECRETARY.

(Pro. tem.) Mr. THOMAS WINDER.

OFFICES.

(Pro tem) 60, King Street, Manchester.

PROSPECTUS.

The great want of a Shoe for Horses and other draught animals (so as to obtain a firm and solid foothold upon Asphalte and other smooth or slippery pavements, and to obviate roughing or sharpening in frosty weather; to reduce the jar or concussion the limbs are subjected to by the hoof striking the ground; to allow the hoof to expand and develop; to reduce the labour of the animals by diminishing the weight of the present unnatural and unwieldy iron shoe, and to add to their comfort), has long been felt by the community at large, but more especially by those who employ large numbers of horses, and also by "The Societies for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals."

Such a Shoe has been Invented and Patented by Mr. Yates, and is made from buffalo or other hides, rendered impervious to moisture under Patented Process. They are as durable as the iron shoe, one-third the weight, cheaper, and are neat and easily applied, and their application adds greatly to the comfort of the animal.

They are made from a material as nearly approaching the nature of the hoof as possible, and therefore are the most natural substance from which to form a shoe. They will maintain the integrity of the hoof in its natural form, and allow its freedom and development. They also assist in retaining a firm and solid foothold, and aid in the impulsive efforts required in the performance of work and movements, and will thus be invaluable in preserving the health of the animal shod with them.

This Company has been formed for purchasing and working the patent rights, titles, and interests for Great Britain, Ireland, and the Channel Islands, of this Shoe, and for manufacturing and vending the same.

It is the intention of this Company to fit up works sufficient to manufacture these shoes, and to establish offices or stores in our principal cities for the sale of the same, where they will be able to supply sets much cheaper than iron shoes, and which can be readily applied by any smith or farrier.

Forms of application for shares may be obtained by applying to the Bankers of the Company, or to the Secretary.

H. D. RAWLINGS,

PURVEYOR OF MINERAL WATERS TO

H. R. H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.
H. R. H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH.
H. R. H. THE PRINCE CHRISTIAN.
THE LATE EMPEROR NAPOLEON III.

AND THE PRINCIPAL COURTS OF EUROPE:

Gold Medallist of the Societe Nationale Agricole Manufacturiere et Commerciale de Paris.

SODA, BRIGHTON, SELTZER and all other Mineral Waters for HOME CONSUMPTION and EXPORTATION.
PRICE LISTS on Application, at the Manufactory, Nassau-street, W.

ALFRED W. GEE,

ADVERTISING AGENT,

62, GRACECHURCH STREET,

LONDON, E.C.

London Gazette Notices, and Advertisements and Announcements of all kinds for English, Colonial, and Foreign Newspapers promptly inserted.

N.B.—In the case of an ordinary Advertisement ordered for insertion in a number of Newspapers, only one MS. copy need be forwarded. Same rates charged as at the Publishing Offices.

Printed and Published for the Proprietor by WILLIAMS & STRAHAN, 7 Lawrence Lane, Cheapside. NOVEMBER 13, 1875.

Digitized by Google

The Accountant.

A MEDIUM OF COMMUNICATION BETWEEN ACCOUNTANTS IN ALL PARTS OF THE UNITED KINGDOM

VOL. I.—NEW SERIES.—No. 50.] SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1875. [PRICE 6D.

Established 1843.
PERIODICAL SALE OF REVERSIONS, ANNUITIES, LIFE POLICIES, SHARES, &c.

MESSRS. MARSH, MILNER, AND Co., are preparing their printed particulars for the forthcoming Monthly AUCTION, which is held the FIRST THURSDAY in every month. To insure due publicity, particulars of Properties intended to be included in the next sale should be forwarded, without delay, to the City Land and Reversion Offices, 54 Cannon Street, London.

LAND, Domains, Mountain Ranges, Woods, Forests, and Important Residential Estates. Messrs. MARSH, MILNER, and Co., Land Valuers and Timber Surveyors, have a number of WEALTHY BUYERS DESIROUS of INVESTING in AGRICULTURAL, SPORTING, and RESIDENTIAL ESTATES. OWNERS of marketable properties wishing to effect advantageous sales are therefore invited to forward plans and particulars, which, when received, will be judiciously placed before intending purchasers, publicity being carefully avoided, and written terms settled before any cost or liability is incurred. Address Messrs. Marsh, Milner, and Co., Land and Timber Surveyors, 54 Cannon-street, London, E.C.

MESSRS. MARSH, MILNER, AND Co.'s REGISTER of LANDED ESTATES, Town and Country Residences, and property of every description, is published Monthly, and may be obtained at the Auction, Land, and Estate Agency Offices, 54 Cannon-street, E.C., or will be forwarded by post on application.

MORTGAGES promptly NEGOTIATED upon Landed Estates, City Properties, and upon sound securities of all kinds. Messrs. MARSH, MILNER and Co., have at the present time access to large sums of Money ready to be immediately advanced upon approved securities. Apply at the City Land and Reversion Offices (Established 1842), 54 Cannon-street.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

39 BROAD-STREET, BRISTOL,
JUNE 24TH, 1875.

The PARTNERSHIP hitherto existing under the Style or Firm of HANCOCK, TRIGGS, & CO., having been DISSOLVED by mutual consent, I beg to give notice that I purpose henceforth to CARRY ON BUSINESS as a PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT at the above address.

PHILIP TRIGGS.

MESSRS. BARRETT AND PATEY,
PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS,
90 LONDON WALL, E.C.

HAVING removed from No. 8 Finsbury Circus, to more commodious offices at the above address, will be pleased to hear from Accountants resident in the provincial and manufacturing towns who require agents in London.

CHARLES LOWDEN, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT, RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY,
BARROW-IN-FURNESS.
REFERENCES GIVEN.

LOVEWELL BLAKE, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT, RECEIVER, AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY.
SECRETARY TO THE GREAT YARMOUTH TRADERS' ASSOCIATION.
OFFICES: HALL QUAY CHAMBERS, GREAT YARMOUTH.

J. F. TITCHMARSH, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT AND AUDITOR,
17 PRINCESS STREET, IPSWICH.

RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY AND LIQUIDATION.

WILLIAM EDWARDS, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT AND AUDITOR,
GRANVILLE PLACE, STONE ROAD, LONGTON, STAFFORDSHIRE.

RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY AND LIQUIDATION.

TO ACCOUNTANTS.—A useful Clerk and good Penman is open to temporary or a permanent engagement, at a moderate amount of remuneration. Reference is permitted to Messrs. Josiah Beddow and Son, Accountants, 2 Gresham Buildings, Basinghall Street, to whom applications may be made.

WILLIAMS & STRAHAN,
Legal, Accountancy, & General Printers,
MANUFACTURING STATIONERS, &c
7 LAWRENCE LANE, CHEAPSIDE, LONDON.

Bankruptcy Forms, Statements of Affairs, Dividend Notices, Balance Sheets, &c., printed with despatch.

STEAM PRINTING WORKS, LAMBETH, S.E.

TRANSLATIONS.

MR. ALFRED W. GEE,
BRITISH AND FOREIGN ADVERTISING AGENT,
62 GRACECHURCH STREET, LONDON, E.C.,

Begs to announce that in compliance with a wish expressed by some of the subscribers to the Accountant, he has made arrangements for the translation of legal and commercial documents, correspondence, &c., into the Principal European Languages. Members of the Profession are therefore respectfully informed that arrangements can be made for efficient and speedy translations into, or from, the French, German, Italian Spanish, and Dutch Languages on Moderate Terms.

Digitized by Google

MR. FERDINAND WOLFSKEHL,
BANKER,
9 STEINWEG, FRANKFORT A/MAIN, GERMANY,

CALLS THE ATTENTION of Investors to different Continental Government Securities, guaranteed by Acts of Parliament, through which Capital and Interest ARE SECURED BEYOND ANY DOUBT.

Every one of these Loans must be repaid as per Plan attached to each Debenture, within a limited number of years, by periodical Drawings, OFFERING ADVANTAGES PRESENTED BY NO OTHER SECURITIES, WITH BONUSES AT EACH DRAWING, varying from

£10 to £30,000.

For full particulars apply by letter, addressed care
MESSRS. WOLFSKEHL BROTHERS, BANKERS,
LORD STREET, LIVERPOOL.

MR. FERDINAND WOLFSKEHL announces the following Drawings:—

The 70th DRAWING of 1,400 IMPERIAL AUSTRIAN 1858 £10 CREDIT DEBENTURES, and the 42nd BONUS DRAWING of 1,500 IMPERIAL AUSTRIAN 4 per cent. 1854 £30 DEBENTURES took place on the 1st instant, at Vienna. The 9th BONUS DRAWINGS of 120 RAAB GRAZ 4 per cent. £15 1871 DEBENTURES, took place at Ofen on 1st instant.

He will Forthwith Cash or Exchange any of the above-mentioned Debentures against other Debentures, Stocks, Shares or Obligations.

To secure safe delivery of Letters, Mr. F. W. requests that all communications should be addressed care of

Messrs. WOLFSKEHL BROTHERS, Bankers,
3 LORD STREET, LIVERPOOL,
Of whom full particulars of the above Drawings can be had on application.

P S.—The Imperial Austrian 1858 Credit Debentures, Series 1,006, No. 78, drawing a Bonus of £4,000, has been sold by Mr. F. W. to a Gentleman residing in London.

The Accountant.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

The ACCOUNTANT is printed and published in time for Friday evening's mail; price 6d. per copy, or 28s. per annum (including postage), the reduced terms for payment in advance being: annual subscription 24s. (post free); half-yearly ditto, 13s. (post free). Cheques and Post-office orders to be made payable to Mr. Alfred W. Gee, 62 Gracechurch-street, E.C., to whom applications for advertisement space, and letters relating to the general business of the paper, should also be addressed. Literary communications should be directed to the Editor of the ACCOUNTANT at the same address, and in order to ensure insertion in the current number, correspondents are respectfully requested to forward their copy as early in the week as possible.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The Proprietor desires to call the attention of Advertisers to the special advantages offered by the paper as an Advertising medium. Starting with a good guaranteed circulation, and with the entire concurrence and hearty support of the leading members of the profession, the ACCOUNTANT has achieved a large measure of success in a wide field hitherto unoccupied by any professional organ. The ACCOUNTANT thus secures to Advertisers an excellent circulation of an exclusive character; and is particularly valuable as a medium for the announcements of members of the profession, as to Estates and Declaration of Dividends, and the appointment of Trustees and Receivers; for Publishers, Printers, Law Stationers, Auctioneers, and Estate Agents; for the Advertisements of Insurance and Public Companies; and for Notices as to Investments, Vacant Partnerships, &c. Advertisements intended for insertion in the current number, should reach the office on Thursday; late announcements can, however, be received up to 12 o'clock (noon) on Friday.

N.B.—Copies may be obtained at Messrs. W. H. Smith and Sons, Strand, at their numerous Railway Bookstalls, and at the Shops of the leading City and West-End Newsvendors.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.

In consequence of numerous applications from subscribers, the proprietor has made arrangements for the supply of CASES for holding and preserving the Accountant, which may be obtained at the office on the following terms:—In green cloth (well got up), with elastics, and "The Accountant" in gold letters on front, 3s. each; same in leather, 4s. 6d. each. Subscribers' names in gold lettering, 1s. extra. Post Office Orders payable to ALFRED W. GEE, 62 Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

The Accountant.

NOVEMBER 20, 1875.

The proper rate of remuneration for the services of professional men is always a question of difficulty, and none have found it more perplexing to adjust than solicitors. Their clients are invariably discontented; the taxing masters are a race whose régime is very ruthless, and it is not always easy to make a bargain which shall not come ultimately within their cognisance. Moreover, the ordinary system of charging is of a very vexatious description, as every one knows who has had dealings with a solicitor; and the number of petty items which are charged for in detail, makes a bill of costs very lengthy reading. A remedy for this was sought by the Attorneys and Solicitors Act, which allowed those much-abused members of society to make agreements in writing with their clients to take a gross sum or a commission, and thus save bills of costs and the uneasy feeling which they entail. But the Act itself contains a very important clause, which virtually nullifies a good deal of its beneficial effects, as far as the profession is concerned, by declaring that any agreement as to costs in an action must be submitted to the taxing master, and examined by him; a proviso which can only be complied with by a solicitor taking as much trouble upon himself as would be caused by making out a bill of costs. And there is also a terrible clause, which makes void any agreement that the solicitor's costs shall be contingent on the success of his undertaking; an act known by the name of champerty. In construing the Act, the Master of the Rolls has given it as his opinion that an agreement by which a solicitor was to receive a commission in case of success, and costs out of pocket only in case of failure, was an act of champerty, and therefore void. The wisdom of our ancestors was very great, and they certainly abhorred litigation. They rightly thought that a litigant ought to feel that he brought his action at the risk of a large fine of costs if unsuccessful, and therefore they prohibited any attempt to make a solicitor's costs dependent on his professional skill, under the impression that this would discourage speculative actions. It is certainly true that many attorneys would take up cases on speculation, setting off heavy commissions in case of success against loss of costs in case of failure, if the present law were repealed. But it is equally true that the law is notoriously set at defiance every day, and that numbers of actions are brought simply as speculations. And there is another point of view from which law reformers may advantageously survey the situation. For one attorney who takes up a case on the chance of getting costs out of the defendant, there are a dozen who encourage unhappy plaintiffs to carry on an expensive litigation without the remotest prospect of success, if their clients are men of means, knowing perfectly well that their costs are quite secure. It would scarcely be practicable to insure that every solicitor had a direct pecuniary interest in his client's success, but it might be as well not to check rudely any steps in that direction. The present law may be advantageous to a few rich defendants, but its amendment would be a great boon to countless hosts of plaintiffs. In truth, the theory of champerty is of a very antiquated kind. Take the case of a bonâ-fide "claimant," a man who has really a good title to an estate, but has to enforce his claim in the teeth of a powerful and organised opposition. Such a man may suffer the greatest injustice. He is unable to pay the costs of taking proceedings; and a solicitor is forbidden to prosecute his cause except on the heavy risk of losing large sums of money if he fails, and receiving his bare remuneration only if he succeeds. So far from promoting litigation, doing away with the term of champerty would check it. An experienced and honourable solicitor would hesitate before taking up a doubtful case, and his professional reputation would be a pledge of the bona fides of the claim. The change would be beneficial to the higher members of the profession, and not in the least affect the practice and procedure of its residuum.

Digitized by Google

A somewhat novel illustration of the difficulty of making the steed drink when he is taken to the water has occurred at Liverpool. A bankrupt, being brought up for his public examination, declined to answer questions, observing that he had no wish to pass, as he disapproved of the way in which the trustee was administering his estate. The judge settled the matter by saying that it was for the creditors, and not the debtor, to raise objections to the conduct of the trustee, and implied that the debtor must pass his examination. It certainly seems hard upon the debtor that he should have no voice in the realisation of his affairs, as the way in which they are managed might, though we admit that such an occurrence is very rare, be of pecuniary importance to him as well as his creditors. Ultimately, the judge adjourned the case; and we must wait for another fortnight to learn what can be done to a contumacious bankrupt who declines to pass.

BANKRUPTCY LAWS.—No. 12.

In a previous number we purposed making some suggestions with reference to the amendment of the present laws. In the first place, we considered that there should be no intermediate stage between composition and bankruptcy. If a liquidating debtor has no intention of making an offer to his creditors, it is a farce that he should be allowed to call them together under that assumption. There are daily cases occurring in which no offer whatever is made, and the nature of the trading is so discreditable that bankruptcy is richly deserved. A serious omission in the Act, to our mind, is the necessity to commence bankruptcy proceedings from the initiative stage, even after creditors have refused to accept liquidation. In our opinion, the fact of a liquidation proving abortive, should of itself suffice to involve, as a natural sequence, an immediate adjudication in bankruptcy. The fear of incurring additional costs, and thus frittering away the estate, often induces creditors to adopt a proposal for liquidation, even when their convictions lead them to regard bankruptcy as the merited consequence of their debtor's misconduct. The Act was intended to induce insolvents to suspend payment while their estates would represent a minimum dividend of ten shillings in the pound, but an experience of nearly five years shows us that any such dividend is rather a rara avis.

Digitized by Google

Again, in our opinion, it should be compulsory on traders to keep proper books of account; and any neglect to do so should not only render bankruptcy compulsory, but should be, per se, an offence punishable with a fixed term of imprisonment, the onus being thrown on the debtor to substantiate grounds for any mitigation of the penalty. This law is in force throughout most of the commercial countries of Europe, and has been found to work well. It is unreasonable to ask creditors to accept less than twenty shillings in the pound, without adducing some substantial and reasonable proofs in support of any such proposal.

Taking the above points as the fundamental principle of any effective bankruptcy law, we will in our next article proceed to suggest the modifications of the existing laws which are in our opinion desirable to effect a satisfactory working of the Act.

H. B. [London.]

SOCIETY OF ACCOUNTANTS IN ENGLAND.—At the last monthly meeting of the Council, held at the offices of the Society, 2 Cowper's court, Cornhill, there were present:—Mr. John Bath (Vice-President) in the chair; Messrs. E. C. Foreman, J. Beddow, J. C. Bolton, F. Nicholls, F. Tendron, and the Secretary. The following were admitted Associates of the Society:—Robert Hugh Sloley, 61 Bartholomew-close, E.C.; James Milne, Albion chambers, Bristol. The Secretary was instructed to issue a circular letter to the magistrates and boards of justice in reference to persons brought before them styling themselves accountants.

AUDITING.—"Ex Auditor" writes as follows to a daily contemporary.—"Sir,—In connexion with the subject of auditing the accounts of public companies, permit me to give you my experience as the auditor of a building society. On examination of the accounts it appeared—1, That the directors had been paying dividends out of capital; 2, that the assets included ascertained losses; and, 3, that the rules of the society had been worked unfairly by the directors for their own benefit or that of their friends. Of the members of the society about one-seventh attended the general meeting held in the office of the secretary. Notwithstanding the opposition of the auditors (themselves, be it remembered, the nominees of the directors), expressed in very plain language, and with no justification attempted on the part of the directors, except virtuous indignation, the report and accounts were adopted. To the uninitiated this may appear incredible, but the explanation is not merely that those present consisted mainly of friends of the directors brought there to support them, but that it was for the interest of those present to adopt the report, as the effect would be to give them the chance of withdrawing from the society, leaving the impending loss on the absentee majority."

HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE.

CHANCERY DIVISON.

November 11.

(Before the MASTER of the ROLLS.)

IN THE MATTER OF THE ATTORNEYS' AND SOLICITORS' ACT, 1870.—The motion in this matter raised a point of general importance under section 4 of the above Act, which enables solicitors to make agreements in writing with their clients respecting the amount and manner of payment for their professional services, which may now be remunerated either by a gross sum, or by commission or percentage, or otherwise as may be agreed on, instead of by the ancient and vexatious six-and-eightpenny method. The point arose in the following way:—A solicitor was applied to by some persons who represented that they were entitled to some property; but owing to the difficulties appearing in the case and the large expenditure which would have to be incurred to assert their title, had remained without their title to the property being asserted, and requested him to take up the case. This the solicitor agreed to do, and a deed was executed, by which the parties covenanted, in the event of the solicitor recovering for them any real or personal property beyond a legacy of £5,000 mentioned in the deed, to pay to him 10 per cent. commission upon the property recovered, with a proviso that if nothing beyond the legacy should be recovered the solicitor should in that case receive from the parties his costs out of pocket only. Before taking any step on behalf of the parties the solicitor submitted the agreement to the Taxing Master, who required the opinion of the court to be taken thereon, which was now sought to be done. Mr. C. H. Turner, for the solicitor, submitted that the agreement was valid, having regard to Sections 4 and 11 of the Act. The Master of the Rolls said the meaning of Section 4 was that a solicitor might make any agreement he pleased with his client respecting remuneration for his services, but should not receive payment for such services unless it should appear to the Taxing Master that the agreement was fair and reasonable, and if this should appear to the Taxing Master to be not the case, he might require the opinion of the court or a Judge to be taken thereon. And the meaning of Section 11 was that nothing in the Act contained should give validity to any agreement that amounted to champerty. As the solicitor had not yet commenced proceedings for recovery of the property, and consequently nothing was yet payable to him under the agreement, his lordship thought there was nothing on which the Taxing Master could require his opinion to be taken, and therefore he should make no order on the motion. His Lordship added, that in his opinion the agreement was clear champerty, and within the meaning of the 11th section, for it purported to give to the solicitor, in the event of success, what was in substance a tenth part of the property to be recovered by his exertions.

November 12.

(Before Vice-Chancellor Sir RICHARD MALINS.)

IN RE THE WOOLLEN TRADE ASSOCIATION COMPANY, LIMITED.—In this matter a petition was presented by all parties interested in it, praying for an order to stay the proceedings in the winding-up of the company, and to discharge the official liquidator, so that the company might continue to carry on its business. Mr. Dale appeared for the petitioners. The Vice-Chancellor made the order.

IN RE THE HYNIR VARLEY COLLIERY COMPANY, LIMITED.—In this matter a petition was presented praying for an order to wind-up the company. Mr. Glasse, Q.C., and Mr. Romer appeared for the petitioner. The Vice-Chancellor made the order, on an affidavit of service.

Digitized by Google

IN RE THE PORT OF LONDON WHARFAGE AND WAREHOUSE COMPANY, LIMITED.—In this matter a petition was presented by a creditor of the company praying for an order to wind it up compulsorily. The company was formed in 1871 for the purchase or leasing of the business of a Mr. Fergusson, a wharfinger. The capital was to be £100,000, in 25,000 shares of £4 each, of which 1,503 shares had been taken, and £7,091 10s. paid for calls. There was a sum of £423 10s. still due for unpaid calls, and a further sum of £130 had been paid on 65 forfeited shares. In June, 1871, Mr. Fergusson agreed to grant to the company a lease of his premises in Upper Ground street, Blackfriars. The company then commenced its operations, and continued them till the 2nd of March, 1875, when a meeting was held, and a resolution passed for a voluntary winding-up and the appointment of a liquidator. On the 9th of March the petitioner's attention was drawn to a circular issued by Mr. Fergusson referring to the discontinuance by the company of its business, and to the fact that the possession of the premises occupied by the company would, consequently, revert to him. On the 17th of March, 1875, Mr. Fergusson wrote to the petitioner's firm, offering them, as lightermen and wharfingers, the lighterage on the same terms as the company had previously had it from him. The company owed the petitioner £56 10s. 4d. for lighterage and goods, and he, being unable to obtain payment of the debt, and not finding that any liquidator had been appointed, believing the company to be unable to pay its debts, and being dissatisfied with the mode in which (as he thought) the assets of the company were being collected and managed, presented this petition on the 16th of April last. Mr. Glasse, Q C., and Mr. Renshawe were for the petitioner. Mr. Napier Higgins, Q.C., and Mr. Crossley, for the company, contended that the petitioner was an unsecured creditor for a small, but disputed debt, for which he had made no demand; that the voluntary liquidation was supported by all the other creditors of the company, was still going on, and would in no way prejudice the petitioner's rights. The Vice-Chancellor, after stating the facts of the case, said that when this petition was first before him he had had some thoughts of dismissing it, but, in the hope that something might be done in the matter before November, he had directed it to stand over accordingly. Nothing, however, appeared to have been since arranged, and might not be for, even now, some indefinite period. It would be wrong, therefore, to let the parties go on squabbling any longer. Although his Lordship thought that the petitioner should have waited some little while before he presented the petition as he did, still looking at the position of things since the former occasion and feeling that the court ought, in the interest of all parties, to have more control over the matter, he should make an order to continue the voluntary winding-up of the company under the supervision of the court.

Before Vice-Chancellor Sir CHARLES HALL.

IN RE THE SURREY GARDENS COMPANY, LIMITED.—This company was ordered to be wound-up on the petition of a creditor, and Mr. John F. Lovering was appointed official liquidator. Mr. E. C. Willis appeared for the petitioner; Mr. Mulligan for the company.

November 13.

(Before the MASTER of the ROLLS.)

IN RE THE PEOPLE'S GARDEN COMPANY.—An order to wind-up this company being made on the petition of a creditor, Mr. Cozens-Hardy, for the petitioner, applied under the 24th section of the Judicature Act, sub-section 5, to stay proceedings in an action of ejectment ("Kingchurch v. People's Garden Company"), pending in the Common Pleas Division. The Master of the Rolls: Why do you come here? Why do you not apply to the court in which the action is pending? Mr. Cozens-Hardy.—We did, but the judges refused the application, on the ground that the proper course was to apply to your Lordship, there being, in their opinion, nothing in the Act which takes away the jurisdiction to stay actions which you formerly exercised. They did not think they had not also power to stay the action, but they thought your Lordship had power as much as themselves to do so, it being their view that any Judge of the High Court has power to stay an action pending in any Division of that Court. The Master of the Rolls: I cannot see that I have jurisdiction to stay this action. The jurisdiction to restrain actions by prohibition or injunction is gone. The sub-section provides that either court—that is, the High Court or the Court of Appeal—may direct a stay of proceedings in any action pending before it, on the application of any person who if the Act had not passed would have been entitled to apply to any court with that object. Now, the High Court, as such, does not and cannot sit. The application can only be made to some Division or sub-Division sitting as and representing the High Court. "Pending before it," means, I think pending before that court, whether Divisional Court or single Judge, to which the application is made. It seems to me, therefore—I say it with the utmost deference to the opinion of the Judges of the Common Pleas Division—that the application to stay proceedings in an action must be made to the court or judge, as the case may be, before whom it is pending.

(Before Vice-Chancellor SIR RICHARD MALINS.)

IN RE THE CANADIAN OIL WORKS CORPORATION, LIMITED.—EASTWICK'S CASE.—This matter came on to be heard upon two summonses taken out by the official liquidator of the company—the one for an order directing Mr. Eastwick, a past director, to pay the sum of £1,000 received by him out of the assets of the company; the other for an order directing him to pay a call of £25 per share on his 40 qualification shares, amounting to a further sum of £1,000. The nature of the case will fully appear from the judgment infra. The case itself was said, on the one hand, to be governed by that of Sir John Dalrymple Hay in the same company (which has been already reported in the Accountant); and on the other, that this case was clearly distinguishable from that of Sir John D. Hay's, and unaffected by it. The decision of the Vice-Chancellor in that case was confirmed by the Lords Justices. Mr. Glasse, Q.C., and Mr. Cookson, Q.C., appeared for the official liquidator; Mr. Cotton, Q.C., and Mr. Horace Davey, Q.C., were for Mr. Eastwick. Mr. Cookson, Q C., was heard in reply. The Vice-Chancellor said this case had occupied a great deal of the time of the court. It first came on to be heard soon after he had decided Sir John Hay's case. When that was under appeal, his Lordship ordered this one to stand over till that appeal was disposed of. The Court of Appeal affirmed his Lordship's decision, and this case then came on again in July, when it stood over till this month. The arguments in it were then continued on Saturday, November 6, and concluded on Saturday, November 13. The question to be determined in this case was, however, a very narrow one. It was not necessary for his Lordship to go minutely into the nature and objects of this company, which had often been before this court and the courts of law. It was sufficient to say that it was formed in 1871, when Mr. Longbottom came to England as the agent of Mr. Prince, and represented that the oil wells in Canada were of great value, inducing Sir John Hay, Mr. Eastwick and other gentlemen to become directors of the company. The chairman was to receive £1,500 a year, and the directors £500 a year each. There were other directors besides Sir John Hay and Mr. Eastwick, and with some of them there were express contracts that their qualifications were to be paid for by Mr. Longbottom. They were made to believe that they might join the company without any risk whatever. The company being a limited one, they were assured that, taking as they would do 40 qualification shares each, there could be no liability in respect of them; that the shares being fully paid-up, there would undoubtedly be profits; while of losses there would be none. His Lordship held in Sir John Hay's case that he took the 40 shares originally on the footing that Mr. Longbottom was to pay for them. His Lordship had then to decide whether the transaction was a payment. In this case Mr. Eastwick had agreed to take 40 shares of £25 each, for which he was liable to pay £1,000 to the company. If Mr. Eastwick had agreed that his qualification was to be paid for him, his Lordship would have been at a loss to see any distinction between his case and that of Sir John Hay. The material questions here, therefore, were whether Mr. Eastwick had agreed with Mr. Longbottom that the qualification for his directorship should be paid for out of the assets of the company, or whether it was not proved that Mr. Eastwick intended to pay, and did pay, for the shares out of his own resources. The official liquidator had relied on the evidence of Mr. Longbottom and a confederate of his. On the other hand, Mr. Eastwick swore that he never did agree with any one for the payment for him of his qualification as director, but that he meant to pay for it out of his own pocket, and that allegation was corroborated by his own son-in-law. He said that Mr. Eastwick declared he never would accept a qualification in this or any other company. The burden of proof in the case, therefore, rested on the official liquidator. Mr. Eastwick said he had paid the £1,000. His Lordship, therefore, had before him on the one side Mr. Longbottom and his confederate asserting that which Mr. Eastwick positively denied, and his denial supported by another witness. As to Mr. Longbottom, his conduct in all these transactions was extremely bad. He came to this country for the purpose of robbing, as his Lordship was sorry to think he had done, many families, to their utter ruin, and of deceiving others, as in the case of Sir John Hay, and several more. No language was too strong for the condemnation of the folly and want of sense of the persons who had been deluded. But that was not for this court now to consider. What had to be decided was, whether Mr. Eastwick had himself paid the £1,000 for the 40 shares (and the case was rested on that) to the company out of his own money? It was admitted that he had signed the articles of the company for the 40 shares, and was bound to pay the £1,000 for them. He said he had paid for them, and in this way:—He found, directly after he had become a director of the company, that it was expedient for him to go over to Canada to inspect the mines. He did go, and remained there till December, 1871. When he came back he found that a sum of £2,000 had been paid by Mr. Longbottom into Coutts's to his credit there. Mr. Eastwick was entitled to receive £1,000 from the company. The money was paid in two checks for £1,000 each. One was for his journey to Canada, and the other for £1,000, made payable to Prince, and endorsed by Mr. Longbottom. Now, Mr. Eastwick went to Canada on the very day of the resolution for the payment of the money, and he did not return to England till the 23rd of December, 1871. On the 27th, finding the £2,000 standing to his credit at Coutts's, he drew a check on them for £1,000 for the payment of his shares, and gave that check to the company in satisfaction of his debt to them. The official liquidator, however, objected to the propriety of that transaction. He contended that there was another check standing or paid in to Mr. Eastwick's account at Coutts's—viz. the check made payable to Prince and endorsed by Mr. Longbottom, and that it was with the £1,000 drawn out of the company's assets by that check that Mr. Eastwick purported to pay for his shares. His Lordship felt bound to confess, after all the arguments he had heard, that inasmuch as Mr. Eastwick had £2,000 standing to his account, paid to him out of the company's assets—as to £1,000 properly, and as to the other £1,000 improperly—there was no compulsion on the court to attribute the payment of the £1,000 made by Mr. Eastwick to the company to the £1,000 improperly paid to him. It had been said, and his Lordship agreed with the argument, that as to the £1,000 properly paid to Mr. Eastwick, he was at perfect liberty and fully entitled to apply it in any way he thought fit —to pay it to his baker, or his shoemaker, or any body else. Well, Mr. Eastwick said he paid it to the company. Why was not Mr. Eastwick, a gentleman of unspotted character, making such a statement, and on oath, to be believed? His Lordship regretted, so far as Mr. Eastwick was concerned, and as he had formerly said he regretted in the case of Sir John Hay, that he should have been mixed up with the affairs of this company. But against the personal honour and character of those gentlemen there was nothing. Mr. Eastwick on his oath contradicted the evidence of the official liquidator. Which ought the Court to believe? Although, as his Lordship had said, no language could too strongly describe the folly of these gentlemen, there was no fraud on their part, nor any intention to commit one, or even to deceive any body. Having regard, then, to the positive assertion of Mr. Eastlake, that he never intended to accept, and never did or would accept, from any one a qualification in any company, and admitting that he was rightly paid one sum of £1,000, the Court must conclude that the £1,000 which he paid to the company he paid rightly and out of his own resources. He must therefore be held to have paid the call which it was now sought to enforce against him. Mr. Longbottom's evidence was materially contradicted on several points; but, were it not so, the statements of a man whose conduct had been such as his must be received with qualifications. Now he swore that Mr. Eastwick never accounted to him for a sum of £100 which he owed him in respect of advances made by Mr. Longbottom to him for a journey to California. Mr. Eastwick was to receive £3,000 for that journey. Why a gentleman in Mr. Eastwick's position, in the service of the East Indian Government, should have made the arrangement he did with Mr. Longbottom was surprising; but at all events, there was nothing wrong or dishonest in it. His Lordship thought Mr. Longbottom must really have been a most fascinating man, to have persuaded so many persons that these oil wells and mines in other places were so valuable, but he certainly did so persuade them. No doubt Mr. Eastwick was not so wealthy a man as in his position he could have wished to be, and therefore he was induced to enter into these transactions, to take this directorship, and to make the journeys to Canada and California. He said he received the £2,000, and that one-half of that amount was for the journey to California. On the 3rd of January, 1872, he wrote to Mr. Longbottom—and littera scripta manet—telling him how £50 of the money for the California journey was disbursed; that in order not to mix up pounds and dollars in the account he had not entered in it the £100 advanced by Mr. Longbottom to him before he left England; nor another sum of £11, and one or two small items for hotel charges. But in that letter Mr. Eastwick said he owed Mr. Longbottom £80, and sent him a check for that amount, which he could get cashed in the mode suggested in the letter, the receipt of which he asked Mr. Longbottom to acknowledge; more than that, Mr. Eastwick added on the other side of the letter a receipt for the sum of £1,000, which he spoke of as an "honorarium" on account of his journey to San Francisco, and which Mr. Longbottom had paid into his account at Coutts's for him. That letter Mr. Longbottom received, and to it he sent a reply, stating that he had received Mr. Eastwick's letter, that the account was most satisfactory, and that he was much obliged. It was said in the argument that the payment by Mr. Eastwick of the £80, when there was money still owing, as he said, for the journey to California, was, to say the least, a very strange act on his part; £3,000 were to be paid to him for the journey, and he had only received £1,000. Why did he not retain the £80 on account of the balance due to him? But the £80 had been advanced to him for special purposes, and it might well be that he did not wish to mix up the different accounts. He had been to Canada, but had not discovered the frauds of which he had been the victim. He thought all was right, and there was no necessity for him to retain the £80. His pass-book, which was put in in evidence, showed that he had a good balance at his bankers when he paid the £1,000 to the company. So far, therefore, any discrepancy connected with Mr. Longbottom's assertion that it was paid out of the assets of the company was disposed of. There was, however, one other part of the case which was not very clear. Mr. Eastwick, having to receive a sum of £3,000 for the Californian journey, and having received £1,000 on account of that, not only gave the receipt already referred to, but brought an action at law against Mr. Longbottom for £3,000, instead of the balance—viz. the £2,000 due to him. If a bill had been filed in respect of the claim in this Court, the true facts would have appeared on the face of the pleadings, and the particulars of demand in the action should have been equally accurate. It was urged that this was the pleader's doing, and that Mr. Eastwick's explanation was that, although he was not certain as to the instructions which he gave to his solicitor in the action, it was not his wish to recover more than the £2,000. Then, again, there was something said about the payment of a sum of £2,500 in relation to an alleged arrangement with reference to some subsequent acquisition from certain mines in California. There was, no doubt, a mystery about this part of the case. On the whole, however, his Lordship had come to the conclusion that although Mr. Eastwick had become liable for the £1,000 in respect of the 40 qualification shares, he had honestly and fairly paid for them with the check properly paid to him by the company. But then it was also insisted that, admitting that to be correct, still he had had £1,000 of the company's money which he ought not to have had. His Lordship was inclined to think that was the case; but what were the circumstances as to that? The company, being in difficulties, issued bonds. Mr. Eastwick was a creditor of the company in respect of those bonds for £800. The company could not meet them, and it was said, if Mr. Eastwick received the £1,000 improperly, it should be repaid so as to enable the company to satisfy their obligations. It was true Mr. Eastwick could not set off any thing against a call, but against a general debt he could. His Lordship came, therefore, to the further conclusion, on the whole case, that the two summonses must be dismissed, with costs, to be paid by the official liquidator out of the estate, but not exceeding £100. The liquidator's costs must, of course, come out of the estate.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

(Before Vice-Chancellor Sir JAMES BACON.)

IN RE THE WELSH FREEHOLD COAL AND IRON COMPANY.—This was a winding-up petition by a creditor, who claimed either to be paid off or to have a compulsory winding-up order made ex debito justitiæ. Mr. Jackson, Q.C., and Mr. Brooksbank appeared for the petition, which was supported by Mr. A. E. Miller, Q.C., and Mr. Romer on behalf of creditors for £5,000, and Mr. Leeson for other creditors. Mr. Kay, Q.C., and Mr. B. B. Rogers, for the company (supported by Mr. Caldecott on behalf of secured creditors), asked that the Court would make an order to continue a voluntary winding-up already commenced under the supervision of the court, instead of a compulsory order, on the ground that the assets would be better realised in such manner. The Vice-Chancellor adopted this view, and made a supervision order.

IN RE GOSTLING AND CO.—A supervision order was made in the matter of this company, on the petition of the company itself, who applied by Mr. Warrington.

IN RE THE UNITED BITUMINOUS COLLIERIES COMPANY.—A compulsory order for winding-up this company was made. Mr. Robinson, Q.C., and Mr. Grosvenor Woods appeared in support of the petition; Mr. Bilton, for the company, did not oppose.

(Before Vice-Chancellor Sir C. HALL.)

IN RE THE NORWICH AND NORFOLK PROVIDENT AND BUILDING SOCIETY—SMITH'S CASE.—This was a case of considerable importance, as affecting the rights inter se of the numerous class of persons who are members of the various provident and building societies throughout the country. This society, which was established in 1852, appeared to have had a prosperous existence for some years, until, having suffered very heavy losses, said to be between £20,000 and £30,000, by the defalcations of their former secretary, Mr. Josiah Buttivant, they stopped payment early in 1873. At that time certain rules passed in 1863 were in force, and the society in March, 1873, partly with the view of providing for their liabilities, passed new rules. The society was ultimately, however, ordered to be wound-up on the 3rd of July, 1874. There were no outside creditors of the society, and the principal questions in the winding-up were in what manner the losses of the society were to be borne by its various classes of members inter se. There were four of these classes—1, investing, or "unadvanced" members; 2, borrowing, or "advanced" members; 3, withdrawing, or "withdrawal" members; and 4, realised members. The society's shares were £25 each, and the unadvanced members were those who subscribed for a share and paid for it in monthly payments of 3s. a share, yearly payments of £1 19s. or £3 18s. a share, or in one or more sums not exceeding in the whole £19 10s. per share. The "advanced" members were those who subscribed for shares in order to obtain an advance. The terms under which these advances were made were under the 15th of the Rules of 1863, as follows:—When the funds in hand of the society were sufficient, the chairman offered them to the members in shares of £25, and the member who bid the highest premium was declared the purchaser of that share. The amount advanced and this premium was then secured by mortgage, providing for periodical payments accordingly, and by the 21st of the rules of 1863 advanced members were to be discharged from liabilities as soon as they had by their periodical payments paid all moneys due from them. "Withdrawal" members were ordinary investing members, who, requiring their money elsewhere, had given certain notices of withdrawal, and "realised" members were the holders of shares which had been fully paid-up. Mr. Smith was an "advanced" member, who, for a premium of £130 10s., had obtained in 1866 an advance of £600. This advance was secured by an indenture of mortgage, by which he covenanted with the trustees of the society, that he would pay unto the society, at the times and in the manner prescribed by its rules for the time being applicable thereto respectively, the several sums of money payable periodically, by way of subscription or otherwise, in respect of the said several shares until (first) the same shares, together with interest at the rate of £4 per cent. per annum, on the amount thereof for the time being in advance should be realised and paid respectively, and until (secondly) the said premium of £130 10s., together with interest at the rate aforesaid on the unpaid part thereof for the time being, should be paid, and that in the mean time (except where varied by those presents) all the rules for the time being of the society should, in respect of the same shares, be observed and complied with by the mortgagee." The mortgage then contained a conveyance of certain property as a security, to be redeemed upon payment of the sums mentioned in the covenant. After it appeared that the society had incurred losses, but before their extent was ascertained, the Rules of 1873 were adopted, and one of those Rules—viz. Rule F—altered the terms on which members were entitled to withdraw, redeem, or realise. That Rule (upon which much of the argument in the case turned) was as follows:—

"The amounts to be deducted on withdrawal, redemption, or realisation under these rules shall in each case be such a sum as the directors may consider to be the just share of the member withdrawing, redeeming, or realising in the debts and liabilities of the society, including any losses on investments or otherwise, ascertained or reasonably probable at the date of the withdrawal, redemption, or realisation. But at each annual meeting the directors shall declare the amount per share which shall be payable during the following year, and such amount shall be the prescribed rate for that year, whatever the result."

Another of the new rules—viz. Rule 1, provided that

"So far as the Rules of Law and Equity will permit, these rules shall apply to all members as well present as future, and to all transactions as well past as future."

The question now argued upon a summons taken out by Mr Smith as a representative case was, whether advanced members who had borrowed money under the old rules were entitled to redeem their securities upon making the payments required by those rules, or whether they must make the additional payments required by the rules of 1873. Mr. Bristowe, Q C., and Mr. Badnall for Mr. Smith, contended that he was not responsible for any of the losses of the society; that the contract between him and the society was regulated by the terms of his mortgage deed and by the rules in force at the time it was executed, and that his rights could not be affected by rules passed subsequently to the terms of the contract, and that, consequently, he was entitled to redeem without making any contribution to the losses of the society under Rule F. Mr. Dickinson, Q.C., and Mr. Cozens Hardy, for the liquidator, took no part in the arguments. Mr. Graham Hastings, Q.C., and Mr. Bury for the investing members, contended that Mr. Smith was a member of the society, and as such bound by its rules, unless he had contracted not to be so bound, and that his contract in terms bound him to observe all the rules "for the time being" of the society, which was an express reference to future rules. He must, therefore, comply with Rule F before he could be allowed to redeem his property. The Vice-Chancellor said he could not construe the rules of the society, taken together with the terms of Mr. Smith's security, as operating to compel him to make any payments other than those which he was bound to make under the rules which were in existence at the time his contract was entered into. In other words, that the contract must be construed with reference to the rules as they existed at its date. In his Lordship's opinion there was a clear bargain between Mr. Smith, as an individual member (and there was no doubt that he was a member) of the society, and the society itself, that he should pay certain sums of money as a premium for getting his advance, and those sums he had paid. When his Lordship said the society itself he meant not so much the society generally as the unadvanced members of the society, into whose pockets the moneys paid by Mr. Smith would go. And the sums which Mr. Smith had bargained to pay must be taken to have been those sums only which he ought to pay by the rules then in existence, for the Vice-Chancellor could not hold that his contract, although it referred to rules for "that time being," left him exposed to the passing of a rule laying upon him a larger burden, although he had no share in the profits of the society. That would be a construction too unreasonable for him to put upon the contract, seeing that Mr. Smith was taking his money out of the society and leaving the rest of its property for those who came after him. The language of the covenant in the mortgage deed was that "in the mean time" all the rules for the time being of the society should be observed by the members, and this expression, "in the mean time," meant until the two descriptions of payments specified in the covenant had been made; and it would be a strange thing if such a bargain could be held to include another payment and an additional obligation merely because rules "for the time being" were referred to. Further, the new Rules of 1873 were, as expressed in Rule I, to receive a construction having regard to the rules of Law and Equity, and in his Lordship's view, he must accordingly read them so as to exclude from their operation members whose existing contracts would be varied by them. Upon the whole, Mr. Smith's right of redemption was not varied by the Rules of 1873, and there must be a declaration that advanced members in his position were not liable to make any payments under Rule F. This being a representative case, the costs of all parties would come out of the estate.

Digitized by Google

THE SAME SOCIETY—COLE'S CASE.—This was also a representative case arising out of the liquidation of the same society. It was, however, of less public interest, the question being whether, under the 20th and 21st of the Rules of 1863, investing members were entitled to be credited with compound interest after the rate of £4 per cent. to the date of this winding-up order. After argument, the Vice-Chancellor held that they were not so entitled unless there were profits sufficient for the purpose, and referred it to Chambers to ascertain whether such was the case. Mr. William Pearson, Q.C., and Mr. Freeman appeared for Mr. Cole; Mr. Dickinson, Q.C., and Mr. Cozens Hardy for the liquidator; Mr. Bristowe, Q.C., and Mr. Badnall for advanced members; and Mr. Graham Hastings, Q.C., and Mr. Bury for unadvanced members.

November 16.

(Before Vice-Chancellor Sir JAMES BACON.)

IN RE THE ST. PETERSBURG AND VIBORG GAS COMPANY.—This was a petition for winding-up the above company, brought by Mr. E. Herzberg Hartmont, a shareholder. In addition to a winding-up order, the petitioner asked that proceedings might be directed to be taken in the name of the company to obtain an account from the directors in respect of certain allegations of misconduct made by the petitioner. It appeared that the petitioner was in arrears of calls, and the company was in voluntary liquidation. Mr. Kay, Q.C., and Mr. Terrell appeared for the petitioner; Mr. Jackson, Q C, with Mr. Ward for the company, and with Mr. Brooksbank for creditors, opposed. The Vice-Chancellor said that on the merits no case had been made by the petitioner. The petitioner, moreover, a single shareholder, asked in effect that proceedings might be taken at his instance in the name of the company, a thing he clearly had no right to. He was also shown to be indebted in respect of calls, and before he had paid them he could not be allowed to ask for a winding-up order. The petition was therefore dismissed, with costs.

COMMON PLEAS DIVISION.

November 9.

(Sittings in Banco, before Mr. Justice GROVE, Mr. Justice DENMAN, and Mr. Justice ARCHIBALD.)

ARNOLD v. CITY BANK.—SAME v. CHEQUE BANK.—These were two actions tried before Lord Chief Justice Coleridge at Guildhall, when his Lordship decided the verdict in each case to be entered for the plaintiff for £1,000. His Lordship, at the same time, refused leave to move, but stayed execution upon the money being brought into court. Sir Henry James, Q.C. (with him the Hon. A. Theisger, Q.C., and Mr. R. T. Reid) moved for a new trial on the grounds of misdirection of the learned Judge and non-reception of evidence. The plaintiffs were merchants in America, and, in August, 1874, were desirous of remitting two sums of £1,000 each to correspondents in England. For this purpose they purchased of Stewart and Co., bankers, in New York, two draughts of £1,000 each. These draughts were drawn on Messrs. Smith, Payne, and Co., who had assets of Stewart's equal to or exceeding the amount. The draughts were payable on demand, and were endorsed to the order of the English correspondents. The draughts were stolen on their way to England, and payment obtained upon them from the defendants upon forged endorsements. Upon proof of these facts at the trial, a body of evidence was read on the part of the defendants as to what had happened in America, the object of it being to show that there had been gross negligence on the part of the plaintiff. The Lord Chief Justice, however, ruled that the evidence was not sufficiently proximate to the loss, and declined to submit it to the jury. This was the non-reception of evidence complained of, but Sir Henry James also submitted on general grounds that the plaintiff could not recover at all, irrespective of the evidence rejected. He urged, in the first place, that the action, being one of money had and received, the money had and received by the defendants was not the money of the plaintiffs; and, secondly, that, whosesoever the money might be, the defendants had never so received it as to entitle the plaintiff to recover. The Court granted a rule. In the course of the day, the Lord Mayor, accompanied by the Recorder of London and the usual civic officials, attended in court, according to ancient custom, and invited the judges to the banquet at Guildhall. Mr. Justice Grove, in acknowledging the invitation, said some of their Lordships would have the honour to attend.

Digitized by Google

November 11.

(Sittings in Banco, before Lord Chief Justice COLERIDGE, Mr. Justice GROVE, and Mr. Justice ARCHIBALD.)

IN THE MATTER OF JAMES C. MARTIN AND JAMES MARTIN, SOLICITORS.—This case came before the court on the 10th instant, in the form of a rule to be made absolute, when their Lordships intimated that, though they were fully agreed upon what they ought to do in point of substance, they were not so certain as to the form in which, under the new Act, a solicitor should be struck off the rolls, and they, therefore, reserved their judgment until they had consulted the other judges, and could announce that a uniform practice by all the Divisions had been agreed upon. The Lord Chief Justice now delivered the judgment of the court. It appeared from the facts, he said, that Mr. J. C. Martin was an attorney, residing at Deal, in Kent, and that James Martin, his son, was also an attorney in Kent, but residing at Sandwich. They were either in partnership together, or the son was the representative of the father, and discharged for the father's benefit, under certain arrangements, such business of the two as arose at Sandwich. An account was opened at the bank in Sandwich in the name of the father, in which all moneys received by the son for their common business were paid. Both had powers of drawing, though this power was chiefly exercised by the son, but it was the father's account, and he, also, had power. It appeared that at Sandwich there was a Benefit Building Society, of which one Charles Baker, who made the application in this case, was secretary. The society was, as its name purported, for the benefit of persons with limited means, and the funds of the society and its affairs became, of necessity, very much intrusted to the hands of Mr. Martin. If, said his Lordship, in any case absolute integrity is the duty of an attorney to his client in this case peculiarly, though not more than to others, it was the duty of the attorney to deal in the fairest, most upright, and honourable manner with the funds of this society. These being the facts, application has been made to the Court in respect of three distinct transactions, the broad result of them being that into the hands of the two had passed a sum of £1,000 belonging to the society; which, in point of truth and of fact, they had since embezzled. His Lordship then, after going minutely into the facts of each transaction, said he conceived it to be the bounden duty of the Court, when it was proved that an attorney had abused and misemployed for purposes of fraud and dishonesty, a character in which he had been originally clothed by the Court itself, to take that character away. The Court, therefore, ordered that both gentlemen be struck off the existing rolls of the Old Court, which still existed, and were in the custody of the Master of the Rolls. And the Court further ordered that if, under the new system, there was a Registrar of Solicitors of the Supreme Court of Justice, their names should be struck off that register; and if the register itself was not yet complete or in existence, that their names should not be inserted upon it, and notice of this order would be given by the court to the Master of the Rolls.

November 12.

EDWARDS v. HANCHER.—This was an action for goods sold and delivered, tried before Mr. Justice Brett at Middlesex in January last, when a verdict was found for the plaintiff. The facts of the case were few and undisputed. It was admitted that a debt was owing by the defendant to the plaintiff, and that, while it was still due, the defendant became bankrupt, and was obliged to file a petition in liquidation. At the regular meeting of creditors which followed, certain resolutions were passed, of which the first was "that a composition of three shillings in the pound shall be accepted in satisfaction of the debts due to the creditors." The second provided that the money should be paid in instalments, and the third and last, "that the security of one Henry Smith be accepted for the whole of the composition, and for the receiver's and solicitor's fees to be given in the joint promissory notes of the debtor and Henry Smith." After the confirmation of these resolutions, three promissory notes for the composition in instalments were prepared, of the first of which the following is a copy:—

"Three months after date we jointly and severally promise to pay to Messrs. Edwards Brothers, or order, the sum of £4 10s. 10d. for value received.

"JOHN HANCHER.
"HENRY SMITH.

"Payable at the National Provincial Bank of England, at Birmingham."

Other notes similar in form to this were sent to the plaintiff, and with them a form of receipt in these words:—"Received of Mr. Luke Sharp, trustee of estate, three promissory notes, respectively amounting in the aggregate to £13 12s. 6d., being a composition of 3s. in the pound on our debt of £90 17s. 4d., resolved to be accepted at a general meeting of the creditors, and in discharge of our debt." When the first promissory note became due, the plaintiff presented it at the bankers named, but there were no funds to meet it. The plaintiff then applied personally to the defendant, but he refused to make payment. Action was then brought, and a verdict found for the plaintiff for the full amount. A rule was afterwards obtained upon the ground that the rights of the plaintiff, which had, without doubt, been suspended by the resolution of the creditors, were, in point of law, superseded upon the proper interpretation to be placed upon the different documents, which, construed together, must be taken to mean that the plaintiff agreed to accept the resolution of the creditors in satisfaction of his claim. Mr. Anstie showed cause against the rule. Mr. A. L. Smith (with him Mr. Day, Q.C.) and Mr. Arbuthnot argued in support of it. The Lord Chief Justice, in giving judgment against the rule, said it was too clear for dispute that it was the composition by the terms of the Act of Parliament, and not the resolution to accept the composition, which was the consideration for the suspension of the plaintiff's remedy; and it was also plain that if this had been an agreement by the debtor himself, and the debtor himself had made default, that the plaintiff could have brought his action, but it had been said there was a difference if some solvent person was taken as security for payment of the debt. In point of fact there was a difference, inasmuch as the creditors were doubtless influenced by the addition of the surety's name, but in point of law there was no difference. It was true that the composition, like any other document, must be interpreted by its meaning, and it was also true that in giving it an interpretation the receipt was not to be lost sight of. This receipt might possibly bear the interpretation relied upon for the defendant, and it was certainly not drawn up in the most precise English; but if the resolution meant "payment," it was a strong proposition to say that the receipt was intended to produce ambiguity. In his opinion the receipt fairly construed meant that these notes had been received, and represented £13 12s. 6d.; that composition of 3s. in the pound which had been resolved to be accepted, and which so resolved to be accepted and so paid would discharge the debt. Mr. Justice Grove said he was of the same opinion, though the interpretation of the receipt, if it had stood alone, would have caused some doubt in his mind. The argument for the defendant went to show that something taken as a new debt was a substitution of the old debt; but the word "security" in the third resolution meant something in addition to the rights of the creditors, and could not be regarded as meaning a substitution. Standing alone, the receipt was ambiguous; but taken with the resolution, he agreed in the interpretation which had been given to it by the Lord Chief Justice. Mr. Justice Archibald also concurred. A composition accepted by creditors required performance, and it was only for non-performance that the right to sue would revive. In this case he thought the fair interpretation was the money itself should be paid, and as this had not been done the original debt revived. Rule discharged. Mr. Anstie said he believed under the Judicature Act, Order 40, Rule 1, he ought now to apply for judgment by motion. The Lord Chief Justice pointed out that the Act itself provided that in all cases transferred from the old courts they should be continued in the same and like manner, and the court thought it better in all pending cases before it the old procedure should apply. Mr. Herschell, Q C., made an application with respect to a case in the new trial paper in the Exchequer. The rule had been obtained in that Court when it existed, but as the case was one from the Lancaster Court of Common Pleas, it was assigned under the Judicature Act to the Common Pleas Division. The learned counsel said it was thought most convenient that the rule should be argued in the Exchequer, and all difficulty could be avoided under Order 51, Rule 2, of the Judicature Act, by transferring the case to the Exchequer Division, with the consent of the President of that Division—that consent in this case had been obtained. The Lord Chief Justice.—We can have no possible objection.

Digitized by Google

EXCHEQUER DIVISION.

November 11.

(Sittings in Banco before the Lord Chief Baron and Barons Cleasby and Amphlett.)

Eley v. the Positive Government Security Life Assurance Company, Limited.—This was a special case stated by an arbitrator for the opinion of the Court. It has an important bearing on the relations of companies and their solicitors and other officers. Mr. Douglas Kingsford argued for the plaintiff; Mr. Finlay (with whom was Mr. Day, Q.C.) argued for the defendants. The petitioner is a solicitor, and brings this action for a breach of contract, alleging that he was appointed and employed on the terms that the defendants would, so long as he continued solicitor to the company, employ him to transact all their legal business. The breach is that the company sent business elsewhere while the plaintiff continued to hold the office; and so, practically refused to employ him. The plaintiff prepared articles of association, which were signed and registered in January, 1870. These articles were signed by the seven subscribers to the memorandum of association. Clause 118 was "that Mr. W. Eley, of 27 New Broad-street, in the City of London, solicitor, shall be the solicitor to the company, and shall transact all the legal business of the company, including Parliamentary business, for the usual and accustomed fees and charges, and shall not be removed from his office unless for misconduct." This clause was inserted in the articles in pursuance of a preliminary arrangement made with the promoter of the company, Mr. T. H. Baylis, to the effect that the plaintiff should be appointed solicitor on the said terms in consideration of an advance by him to the company of £200. That sum was advanced, the first advance being for the registration of the company, and various other sums were paid by the plaintiff between January and May, 1870. These moneys were paid to Mr. Baylis, who, early in February, 1870, had been appointed out-door manager to the company, and were applied by him to the purposes of the company. In the minutes of the proceedings of February 2nd, the first meeting of directors, the plaintiff's name appeared as solicitor to the company. The plaintiff transacted all the legal business of the company up to near the end of 1871. From that time the company ceased to employ him as solicitor, although his name appeared occasionally in the prospectus with the names of other solicitors. In December, 1870, at the first allotment of shares, the plaintiff accepted 200 shares in payment of his advance. Mr. Kingsford contended that the clause in the articles of association, having been signed by the whole of the then members of the company, bound the company either as a contract to appoint or an appointment of the plaintiff. At any rate, that the assent of the plaintiff to the terms of the articles and his employment by the company were only referable to an appointment of him as solicitor on those terms. Mr. Finlay, on behalf of the company, submitted that no such contract existed. If it did, it was not on the terms of the plaintiff being the permanent or sole solicitor. To hold such a contract to exist would lay the defendants open, being ultra vires, to perpetual and vexatious actions whenever they employed another solicitor. This was not an action of wrongful dismissal. The employment of a solicitor must be conducted on the usual terms, and did not preclude another solicitor being employed for other business. Even if there were such a contract, it was not sufficiently reduced into writing to satisfy the requirements of the Statute of Frauds as to contracts not to be performed within the year. The Lord Chief Baron intimated that the majority of the Court wished the learned counsel for the plaintiff to confine himself to the last point. Baron Amphlett said as he differed from the majority of the Court it did not matter much what his opinion was; but he thought no such contract could be set up. Mr. Kingsford, in reply, urged that the Statute of Frauds did not apply to contracts which, though possibly permanent, might be determined at any time in certain events—as, for instance, the plaintiff's misconduct. Even if it did that, the articles of association being signed by all the members of the then company, directors till others were appointed under a clause in the articles, was a sufficient memorandum of the contract to satisfy the statute. The Court took time to consider its judgment.

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY.

November 10.

(Before Mr. Registrar Murray, sitting as Chief Judge.)

In re Raffael Brothers.—The debtors, Messrs. M. and E. Raffael, trading as merchants at St. Benet's-chambers, City, and also at Corfu and Rio Janeiro, under the firm of Raffael Brothers, have filed a petition for liquidation. Their liabilities are estimated at £60,000, with assets comprising consignments and furniture of considerable value. Upon the application of Mr. J. Linklater, for the petitioners, and with the concurrence of a creditor, his Honour appointed Mr. G. A. Cape, accountant, receiver and manager of the business.

In re Henry Wainright.—The bankrupt is the person against whom a charge of murder has been preferred. He is described in the petition as a brush manufacturer, of 215 Whitechapel-road, and the petitioning creditor, Mr. Joseph Hobinstock, is a wholesale furrier and importer of bristles, carrying on business in East-road, City-road, the act of bankruptcy being the non-compliance with the terms of a debtor's summons, issued for the recovery of a debt of £59 14s. for goods sold to the bankrupt. The petition was filed on the 30th of June last, and adjudication was made on the 10th of July, no notice to dispute having been given. At the first meeting, proofs amounting to about £300 were admitted, and claims representing a very much larger sum stood over for investigation. This was a sitting for public examination. Upon the case being called on, the bankrupt did not appear, and Mr. J. Barrett, as representing the trustee, said the reason for his absence was notorious. He asked that an adjournment sine die should be ordered. Mr. Registrar Murray observed there was no evidence upon the file that the trustee had given notice to the creditors of the present meeting. Mr. Barrett said a difficulty had occurred in consequence of the bankrupt's books and papers being in the hands of his late solicitor in the action against the Sun Fire Office. That gentleman claimed a lien for costs, and declined to give them up. He had served the bankrupt with a summons to attend, and also with notice to file his accounts. Mr. Registrar Murray said that if the bankrupt did not attend, all he could do was to order a memorandum of non-appearance to be entered. The name having been again called without any response, the memorandum usual in such cases was drawn up. It was stated during the proceedings that the only "asset" which vested in the trustee was the claim against the fire office.

Digitized by Google

November 13.

(Before the Hon. W. C. SPRING-RICE, sitting as Chief Judge.)

IN RE E. M. DE BUSSCHE.—This was an adjourned sitting for public examination. The bankrupt, Edward M. de Bussche, was a steamship owner, carrying on business at Ryde. He did not now appear, and it was stated that an arrangement was pending under the 28th section, and a further adjournment had been agreed to. His Honour said that the bankrupt ought to have attended the sitting, and ordered a memorandum of his non-appearance to be entered. The bankrupt's accounts show the following figures:—Creditors unsecured, £35,727; creditors partly secured, less the value of securities, £53,450; book debts estimated to produce £10,000; and surplus from securities in the hands of creditors, £9,250.

November 15.

(Before Sir J. BACON, Chief Judge.)

EX PARTE FORD, RE CAUGHEY.—This was an appeal from a decision of the Liverpool County Court. The debtor, William Francis Caughey, formerly carried on business at Liverpool with his brother, under the firm of J. and A. Caughey, as dealers in cotton and corn. In July, 1870, the firm got into difficulties, and filed a petition for liquidation. At the first meeting of creditors a resolution was passed for a liquidation by arrangement, appointing Mr. Read as trustee, and providing that the debtors should be entitled to their discharge when the creditors had received 2s. in the pound upon their respective debts. Mr. Read took possession of the existing assets of the debtors, and a sum of 10½d. in the pound, and no more, was paid to the creditors in respect of the agreed composition. William Francis Caughey afterwards resumed business alone as a corn merchant in the same town, under the style of Caughey Brothers, and incurred fresh debts, and, in August, 1873, he filed a second petition for liquidation. The creditors under that petition passed a resolution for liquidation by arrangement, and appointed Mr. Ford trustee. The assets realised the sum of £475, which was claimed by Mr. Ford for division among the present creditors, and also by Mr. Read, the trustee under the former liquidation, on the ground that the bankrupt was undischarged, and that the proceedings had not been closed, and the learned judge decided that Mr. Read was entitled to the fund. The trustee under the second petition appealed. Mr. Read in his evidence stated that he had no knowledge of the debtor having recommenced business, except by meeting him in the streets of Liverpool which were devoted peculiarly to the corn trade. Mr. Finlay Knight and Mr. W. R. Kennedy were counsel for the appellant; Mr. James was counsel for the respondent. The Chief Judge said that no doubt there was an apparent want of equity in giving to old creditors the fruits of a subsequent trading, but, if creditors would deal with undischarged bankrupts, they must take the consequence. The law was settled that, to entitle new creditors to participate, there must be evidence the trustee had knowledge of the subsequent trading, and neglected to avail himself of his rights as to after-acquired property. There was nothing of the kind here. He regretted that he must affirm the order of the Court below. Appeal dismissed.

IN RE GILEAD A. SMITH AND CO.—This was an adjourned sitting for public examination. The bankrupts, Messrs. Gilead Abijah Smith, John Dennis Phillips, Robert Lyon Burnett, and Henry Eagle Smith, are merchants carrying on business at 23 Change alley, and New York, as Gilead A. Smith and Co. In July last they filed a petition for liquidation, but the proceedings fell through and an adjudication was obtained. A statement of affairs returns the following items:—Creditors unsecured £40,586; creditors partly secured, less value of securities, £38,855; creditors holding bills for which security purported to be given £37,565; other liabilities, £67,901; and debts in respect of the Vacuum Break Company, £261; with assets, £20,212. Mr. W. Clarke, solicitor, appeared for the trustee; Mr. Linklater, solicitor, for the bankrupts. It was stated that Messrs. G. A. Smith and Phillips attended the sitting, the other partners being engaged at New York on business connected with the estate. His Honour allowed the bankrupts who were in attendance to pass their examination; as to the others, he directed a memorandum to be entered showing the cause of their non-appearance.

November 17.

(Before Mr. REGISTRAR BROUGHAM, sitting as Chief Judge.)

IN RE H. A. E. DRAMBURG.—The debtor, who carries on business at 2 Tower Royal, and is largely engaged in the paper trade, has filed a petition for liquidation. His liabilities are estimated at £9,000, with assets, consisting of stock, book debts, and other property, of considerable value. Mr. Lucas, for the petitioner, and with the concurrence of creditors, asked that Mr. Chandler, accountant, should be appointed receiver and manager of the business. It appeared that an action was pending against the debtor, and it was necessary the property should be protected. His Honour granted the application.

LIVERPOOL COUNTY COURT.

November 5.

(Before Mr. J. F. COLLIER, Judge.)

IN RE JAMES BOARDMAN HILL.—This bankrupt, a lard refiner in Blackstock-street, appeared on his public examination. A statement of accounts prepared by Mr. Banner, the trustee, showed unsecured debts £1,391, and those partly secured £15,442. The latter represented a debt to a Liverpool broker, on open account £6,042, and on acceptances £9,500, against which he holds securities valued at £7,600. The assets consist of stock-in-trade, £1,000; book debts, £4,000; and other property, £661. Mr. Jenkins, on the part of Mr. Banner, said there was no opposition to the bankrupt passing his public examination, and he was accordingly allowed to pass.

IN RE AUGUSTUS DE METZ.—This was also a sitting for public examination, the bankrupt being a civil engineer, and the projector of the proposed railway under the Mersey. The trustee was not represented, but the registrar stated that he had intimated to him there was no objection to the examination being passed. Mr. Etty said he represented Mr. De Metz, and, anomalous as it might appear, he objected to pass his examination. The trustee had failed in the discharge of his duties, and, instead of asserting his rights to property which should form part of the bankrupt's estate, he had allowed matters to remain quiescent; and as the bankrupt had an interest in whatever his estate might produce over 20s. in the pound, he preferred not to pass until the trustee had taken such action as was necessary for the due realisation of the estate. His Honor said he much doubted the right of a bankrupt to interfere with the discretion of his trustee. If a trustee neglected his duties the creditors who had appointed him might call him to account, but not the bankrupt. The administration of an insolvent's estate under the present system was left entirely to the creditors, and the aid of the court could only be invoked to enforce rights not otherwise enforceable. If the trustee had not done his duty it was for the creditors to move; but as they would not suffer by an adjournment of the public examination, he should, on the representation of the bankrupt's solicitor, assent thereto. An adjournment was then taken to the 19th inst.

IN RE ANONYMOUS.—This was a debtor's summons heard in camerâ which involved a point of interest to the public,

Digitized by Google

A bankrupt it appeared had effected an arrangement with his creditors by which, on payment of 2s. 6d. in the pound, the bankruptcy was to be annulled, and on the basis of that arrangement being bona fide the Court approved thereof, and annulled the bankruptcy. The present claim was on a promissory note given to one of the creditors, the consideration alleged being that, on his assenting to the arrangement, the original debt was to revive. His Honour, on hearing the evidence, at once dismissed the summons, and said that without using a stronger expression, he thought the action on the part of the claimant most objectionable.

AMERICAN FAILURES.

A daily contemporary publishes the following statistics :—

Mercantile, commercial, and financial failures afford one means of estimating the prosperity of a country, just as diseases and deaths carefully reported show us the condition of a country as to its health. The mercantile agency of Dunn, Barlow, and Co., in New York, has just published some interesting figures upon the subject of failures, and if these are trustworthy, as we may hope they are, they are very important. I give them for what they are worth, resting as they do upon the authority of a firm whose success must depend upon their accuracy. The figures given cover only the nine months preceding the annual report —that is, the second, third, and fourth quarters of the fiscal year.

Taking the American States by sections, we have in the Eastern States the numbers of failures and amounts of liabilities given in the two columns of figures :—

Maine	90	904,000 dols.
New Hampshire	57	880,900
Vermont	49	472,500
Connecticut	141	2,368,569
Massachusetts	564	15,628,321
Rhode Island	59	995,594
Total	960	21,259,884 dols.

The population of the Eastern States being 3,487,924, the above exhibit shows in the last nine months one failure to every 3,633 inhabitants, with an average of 6.09 dollars to every inhabitant, and an average of 22,145 dollars each failure.

The Middle States—following the division of Maury in his series of geographies—show as follows :—

New York	476	8,474,857 dols.
New York City	546	31,696,350
New Jersey	77	1,804,103
Pennsylvania	419	13,019,883
Delaware	15	154,500
Maryland	85	9,324,566
District of Columbia	15	139,924
Total	1633	64,704,283 dols.

The population of these Middle States is 9,848,255; and the above figures show in the same period one failure to every 6030 inhabitants, with an average of 6.57 dols. to every inhabitant, and an average of 30,623 dols. to the failure.

The Southern States show as follows :—

Virginia & W. Virginia	90	1,480,370 dols.
North Carolina	44	671,409
South Carolina	118	2,554,518
Georgia	123	4,318,430
Florida	12	241,800
Alabama	22	543,000
Mississippi	29	813,465
Louisiana	24	702,484
Texas	193	1,876,239
Arkansas	20	221,000
Tennessee	83	598,743
Total	758	14,021,478 dols.

The population of these Southern States is 9,929,400, and the above figures show in the given period one failure to every 13,112 inhabitants, with an average of 1.41 dollars to every inhabitant, and an average of 18,494 dollars to the failure.

The Western States and Territories show as follows :—

Ohio	260	4,686,834 dols.
Kentucky	106	2,582,300
Indiana	236	3,654,012
Illinois	277	6,013,970
Michigan	172	2,490,652
Wisconsin	198	1,523,027
Missouri	145	2,725,793
Iowa	131	1,014,805
Minnesota	109	1,363,200
Kansas	57	543,400
Nebraska	29	176,400
Colorado Territory	53	552,402
Montana Territory	1	35,000
Total	1774	27,371,295 dols.

The population of these States and Territories is 14,348,400; and the above figures show in the given period one failure to every 8,088 inhabitants, with an average of 1.91 dollars to every inhabitant, and an average of 15,429 dollars to the failure.

The Pacific States and Territories show as follows :—

California	165	3,134,111 dols.
Oregon	15	210,418
Nevada	23	411,700
Utah Territory	3	53,500
Idaho Territory	1	3,000
Washington Territory	1	2,804
Total	208	3,815,563 dols.

The population of these States and Territories is about 820,000, and the above figures show in the given period one failure to every 3941 inhabitants, with an average of 4.65 dollars to every inhabitant, and an average of 18,344 dollars to the failure.

Reviewing the United States by sections we have :—

	Failures.	Liabilities.
Eastern States	960	21,259,884 dols.
Middle States	1633	64,704,283
Southern States	758	14,021,478
Western States	1774	27,371,295
Pacific States	208	3,815,563
Total	5333	131,172,503 dols.

The calculations given above are, similarly grouped, as follows :—

	Inhabitants to each Failure.	Dollars to each inhabitant	Average Liabilities.
Eastern	3,633	6.09	22,145 dols.
Middle	6,030	6.57	39,623
Southern	13,112	1.41	18,944
Western	8,038	1.91	15,429
Pacific	3,941	4.65	18,344
Averages	6,961	4.13	22,807 dols.

There have been, that is to say, in the United States, within the last nine months, 5,333 failures, aggregating 131,172,503 dollars, which is an average of one failure to every 6961 inhabitants, 4.13 dollars to each inhabitant, the liabilities being 22,807 dollars each failure.

The following table shows the number of failures and the liabilities during the corresponding period (the first nine months of each year) since 1871 :—

	Failures.	Liabilities.
1872	3,050	90,791,000 dols.
1873	3,887	171,374,000

Digitized by Google

1874	4,371	116,429,000
1875	5,333	131,172,000

This shows a gradual increase in the number of failures, but the liabilities were heaviest in 1873. The average number of failures for the four years is 4,160, and the present year is 1,173 in excess of the average. The average amount of liabilities in these four years is 127,442,250 dollars. The liabilities of the present year are 3,729,750 dollars in excess of the four years' average.

The failures in New York City indicate hard times there in excess of those in the country at large. The following table will exhibit that city's history of failures in round numbers:—

	Failures.	Liabilities.
1872	315	15,000,000 dols.
1873	498	69,000,000
1874	483	24,000,000
1875	546	31,000,000
Average	460	35,000,000 dols.

This shows an excess this year of 86 failures over the average, and an excess of 4,000,000 dollars over the average of the four years.

The circular of Dunn, Barlow, and Co. gives also some figures regarding the failures in British America. In the last nine months there are reported 1569 failures, with 22,000,000 dollars liabilities, in Canada.

EMBEZZLEMENT.

"Public Accountants" write to a Liverpool paper as follows:—

Sir,—Owing to the frequent cases of embezzlement in this town of late, we are emboldened to write you respecting the method in which money is paid into the various banks without any acknowledgment being given at the time for the same. When banking transactions are frequent, how is a principal to know that the amounts charged in his cash book by his clerk have ever reached the bank? Moreover, it frequently happens that the cashier cannot leave his post until after banking hours, and has of necessity to depend upon his subordinates paying in the various sums intrusted to them by him, and has no check until he obtains the bank pass book, duly posted up, which cannot be obtained daily.

To obviate this state of things, we would suggest that the usual slip that has to be filled up when paying money into the bank should be in duplicate something like the enclosed:—

Liverpool, 187	Liverpool, 187
Credit	Credit
Notes ....£
Gold
Silver	Cash, &c., as per slip.
Cheques on	£
	Stamp of the bank embossed or ink.
Bills
£

Lodged by

The teller at the bank would simply have to stamp the counterfoil with the embossed stamp of the bank, which, although not being a receipt, would be satisfactory evidence to those sending money to the bank that it had been lodged there. If parties will not wait for the counterfoil, that is their look-out. Not wishing publicity, we ascribe ourselves.

PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS.

AUDITING.

The following additional communication on the subject of auditing is extracted from a contemporary:—

"Arthur-street, Rochdale, Nov. 5.

"Sir,—In my letter which appeared in your columns of the 2nd inst. I called attention to the loose system of auditing as at present exercised, and ventured to point out some means whereby it might be improved. Your remarks of yesterday are exceedingly pertinent to the question, and your suggestion of the formation of a wholly independent body of professional auditors is one that would dissipate many of the existing evils.

"Your correspondent 'Auditor' remarks 'that audits are too often regarded as tedious formalities, to be disposed of at the least possible amount of expense; and the fee allowed is frequently such as to make it well understood that merely a superficial discharge of the duties is required.' If any thing were required to confirm the justice of my remarks it is to be found in this sentence, where we are gravely told by a professional gentleman that we are to judge of the worth of the audit by the amount of fee paid for its performance. Such is not my opinion of the duty. Either a gentleman should refuse to audit where the fee is insufficient, or the public should be informed of its relative value. An auditor's certificate should be based upon totally disinterested grounds, the result of careful and honest investigation.

"If you will allow me, Sir, to make another remark on this subject, I would like to suggest that, when such a body as you refer to has been formed, every proposed new company should submit its plans to the Board of Trade, and receive its sanction before the public are invited by specious prospectuses to invest their capital. This would have, palpably, a very beneficial effect in keeping out fraud. The promoters of any new company that was honest would not complain of such a step as this on the ground of unwarrantable interference, as the public have a perfect right to a proper guarantee against the designs of schemers and those who make their fortunes by plausible representations and by cleverly working the share markets. If a body of independent auditors were attached to the Board of Trade, to whom all new schemes would be referred for approval or otherwise, and, if sanctioned, were periodically audited by this body, a powerful check would, in my opinion, be put upon the issuing of many delusive schemes which now cause incalculable ruin.

"Permit me also to hope that measures will be taken to amend the clause in the Municipal Act which has been recently defined as confining the duties of an auditor to the examination of the books and vouchers in a borough treasurer's department only, and which, through being so interpreted by the legal adviser of a corporation, has materially helped to prevent an earlier discovery of the defalcations lately reported in a neighbouring borough.

"Allow me to thank you for your assistance, and I hope it will promote an improvement in our commercial system of auditing.

"Your obedient servant,
"JOHN LOWE."

CREDITORS' MEETINGS.

HALLETT, MANNING, AND PRENTIS.—A meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Hallett, Manning, and Prentis, of No. 150 Leadenhall street, in the City of London, merchants and insurance brokers, who suspended payment in September last, was held at the London Tavern on the 6th inst., when a statement of affairs, prepared by Messrs. J. S. Saffery and Company, of 14 Old Jewry Chambers, was submitted, showing gross liabilities amounting to £15.804 3s. 1d., and assets amounting to £7,264 1s., expected to realise £2,278 12s. 9d. Resolutions were passed to liquidate the joint and separate estate by arrangement, Mr. Saffery being appointed trustee to act with a committee of inspection.

Digitized by Google

APPOINTMENTS.

[The Editor will be glad to receive early notice of appointment of Liquidators and Auditors for insertion in this Column.

Mr. W. H. Pannell has been appointed trustee of the estate of Robert Scarlett, butcher, Air-street, Regent-street, in liquidation; also, trustee of the estate of Alfred Ebenezer Schultz, of 21 King's-road, Chelsea, in the county of Middlesex, wine, spirit, and beer merchant.

OFFICIAL CORRESPONDENCE.—The estimate of correspondence carried by the Post Office for the public offices during the past year shows that in Great Britain 11,254,440oz. were conveyed, at an estimated value of £87,460. In Ireland 3,199,330oz were conveyed during the year, at a cost of £11,780. The largest items are £16,590 on account of the Admiralty, £19,750 for the War Office, £8,500 for the Colonial Office, £9,550 for the Inland Revenue, and £6,210 for the Home Office. These items include a large amount of material charged with book postage.

BANKERS' CLEARING HOUSE.—The following is the official return of the checks and bills cleared in the Bankers' Clearing house for the week ending Wednesday, November 17:—

Thursday, November 11	£14,089,000
Friday, November 12..............	39,115,000
Saturday, November 13............	20,426,000
Monday, November 15	16,340,000
Tuesday, November 16	15,532,000
Wednesday, November 17	12,849,000
	£118,351,000

The total at the corresponding period of last year which also comprised a Stock Exchange settlement, was £132,673,000.

LATE ADVERTISEMENTS.

ACCOUNTANCY.—Wanted by a firm of Accountants possessing a large and valuable business in the provinces, a Gentleman qualified to take the management of London offices about to be opened for better facilitating the working of that part of the business which may more conveniently be worked in London, such as Liquidation in Chancery and Bankruptcy. To a Gentleman with connection and influence in London, arrangements might be made which might ultimately lead to a partnership in the London branch of the business. Address, W W. C., care of Alfred W. Gee, Advertising Agent, 62 Gracechurch-street, E.C.

OLD FALCON HOTEL, GRAVESEND.
Proprietor—W. SKILLETER.

Late Chef de Cuisine to His Grace the Duke of Argyll.

Visitors to Gravesend will find every accommodation at the Old Falcon Hotel, East Street. Public and Private Rooms facing the River, directly opposite Tilbury Fort, and with a capital view of the Thames Shipping.

FISH DINNERS AND WHITEBAIT.

BED AND BREAKFAST FOR GENTLEMEN £1 1s. PER WEEK.

And an equally low Tariff for Dejeuners, Dinners, &c.

Five Minutes' walk from North Kent Railway, and Two Minutes from the Piers, and Tilbury and Southend Railway.

THE METROPOLITAN AND PROVINCIAL
LAND, ESTATE, HOUSE, LICENSED VICTUALLERS' & GENERAL BUSINESS TRANSFER "SYNDICATE" AGENCY,

Registered according to Act of Parliament, Head Offices, No. 3 Craven-street, Charing Cross, W.C. The organisation and working system of the "Syndicate" are;—1st.—The Sale, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Ground of Rents, Freehold and Leasehold Land, Farms, Estates, Houses, Hotels, Public Honses, Inns, Beer Houses, Restaurants, Coffee Houses, Tobacconists, Drapers, and every other description of Business, Furniture, Objects of Art, or Goods of any description by Auction or Private Contract. 2nd.—The letting, or disposing of, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Land, Farms, Estates, Furnished, or Unfurnished Houses Chambers, or Offices under private contract. 3rd.—The Collection of Rents and the recovery of outstanding accounts. 4th.—The Surveys and Valuations of Land, Farms, Estates, and Houses; also Valuations of Furniture, Jewellery, and other Effects, for probate and other purposes. 5th.—The transaction of all other business usually transacted by Auctioneers, Surveyors, Land, House, Estate and Insurance Agents. 6th. —The negociations of partnerships, and from unlimited connection with capitalists, monetary advances on real and personal securities, as well as merchandize, and every other description of property intended forabsolute sale, or otherwise. 7th. Generally the carrying out of all things instdental or conducive to the above objects, and every of them; also the laying out of estates and surveys for delapidations. The "Syndicate" from their extended connection with the Trades' Protection Societies and other sources, undertake expeditiously for Clients and others to ascertain reliably the status of parties, and make inquiries of a private and confidential character Liberal terms to Accountants in town or country introducing business.

RESTAURANT,
13 OXFORD STREET,
Near the corner of Tottenham-court-road.
Known as the BODEGA, now under the new management of Mr. L. BOECKER, late of 13 Idol-lane, City.
Luncheons from the joints, hot or cold, including vegetables and bread, 1s. 3d
Dinners from 12 till 4 o'clock, from the joint, with soup or fish, vegetables, cheese and bread, 2s.
Dinners from 6 till 9 o'clock, from 2s. 6d. to 10s. 6d.
Private Dining Rooms for large and small parties on the Second Floor.

THE BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY'S ANNUAL RECEIPTS EXCEED THREE MILLIONS.

HOW TO PURCHASE A HOUSE FOR TWO GUINEAS PER MONTH
With immediate Possession and no Rent to pay.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO PURCHASE A PLOT OF LAND FOR FIVE SHILLINGS PER MONTH.
With Immediate Possession, either for Building or Gardening purposes.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK FREEHOLD LAND SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO INVEST YOUR MONEY WITH SAFETY AT £4 PER CENT. INTEREST.
Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BANK. All sums under £50 repayable upon demand. Current Accounts opened similar to ordinary Bankers. Cheque-books supplied. English and Foreign Stocks and Shares purchased and sold, and Advances made thereon.
Office Hours from 10 till 4; on Mondays from 10 till 9, and on Saturdays from 10 till 12 o'clock.
A Pamphlet containing full particulars may be obtained post-free on application.
FRANCIS RAVENSCROFT, Manager.

LARGE LIGHT OFFICES on the Fourth Floor. Rents £10 and £15. Apply to Housekeeper, 26 Budge-row, Cannon-street, E.C.

MONEY to LEND to BORROWERS residing in town or Country, from £50 upwards repayable in one sum, from one to five years, at five per cent. interest on personal security; also on mortgage of freehold or leasehold property from 3 per cent., for a term of years to be agreed upon. No commission.
Apply to R. F. PRESTON, Esq., 120 Southampton-row, London, W.C.

ACCOUNTANTS may greatly facilitate their office work, and materially increase their profits, by printing liquidation notices, &c., by Zuccato's Papyrograph, which is used by a large number of London and Provincial Accountants, including John L. Lovering and Co.; Gamble and Harvey; Andrews and Mason; Nicholls and Leatherdale; Slater and Pannell; John Bath and Co.; Sydney Smith, and Co.; Ladbury, Collinson, and Viney; Arthur Barron and Co.; Edmunds, Davis, and Clarke; &c. For 2½d., 500 4to. copies can be taken upon any kind of dry paper, by an office boy in a copying-press at the rate of 10 a minute. For price list and testimonials, apply to WALTER HENRY, Papyrographic Depôt, 409 Strand, W.C.

Digitized by Google

"The source of many a writer's woe has been discovered."

PENS! PENS!! PENS!!

"They come as a boon and a blessing to men, The Pickwick, the Owl, and the Waverley Pen."

"The misery of a bad Pen is now a voluntary infliction."

Another blessing to men! The Hindoo Pen. 1,200 Newspapers recommend them. See Graphic, 17th May, 1873.

Sold by every respectable Stationer. Post 1s.1d.

Patentees, MACNIVEN & CAMERON, 23 to 33 Blair-street, Edinburgh.

J. DEFRIES' AND SONS'

CHANDELIERS, IN CRYSTAL, BRONZE, AND ORMOLU.

TABLE GLASS AND CHINA.

Dinner Services, Gilt Pieces, £4 10s.

KEROSENE and MODERATOR LAMPS for INDIA.

Works:—London and Birmingham.

WEDDING AND BIRTHDAY PRESENTS.

NEW DECORATIONS for the DINING TABLE.

FOUNTAINS.

STORER'S Patent Perpetual Perfumed CRYSTAL TABLE FOUNTAIN, for Dining, Hall and Drawing Rooms, in Crystal and Gilt, £2 17s. 6d. to 100 guineas.

FETES AND REJOICINGS.

BALLROOMS and GARDENS, &c., DECORATED and ILLUMINATED for Evening Parties. Tents, Temporary Rooms, and Banqueting Halls erected.

CRYSTAL and BRONZED CHANDELIERS.

TABLE GLASS and CHINA LENT ON HIRE.

J. DEFRIES and SONS, 147, HOUNDSDITCH.

Five minutes' walk from the Bank of England.

RUPTURES—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS s allowed by upwards of 500 Medical Men to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided, a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much case and closeness that it cannot be detected and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the manufacturer, Mr. JOHN WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London. Price of a single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d, 31s. 6d, Postage Free. Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. An Umbilical Tsusr, 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. P.O.O. to be made payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

TRADE MARK.

NEW PATENT ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS, &c. for Varicose Veins, and all cases of Weakness and Swelling of the Legs, Sprains, &c. They are porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and are drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price from 4s. 6d., 7s, 6d., 10s, to 16s. each. Postage free.

CHEST EXPANDING BRACES, for both sexes. For gentlemen they are a substitute for the ordinary braces. For children they are invaluable; they prevent stooping and preserve the symmetry of the chest. Prices for children, 5s. 6d. and 7s. 6d. Adults, 10s. 6d., 15s. 6d., and 21s. each. Postage free.—JOHN WHITE, Manufacturer, 228 Piccadilly, London.

EPPS'S COCOA.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—See article in the Civil Service Gazette.

STAR LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY,

48 MOORGATE STREET, LONDON, E.C

DIRECTORS.

CHAIRMAN—

Mr. Alderman McArthur, M.P.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—

William Mewburn, Esq.

H. J. Atkinson, Esq.
Thomas Ball, Esq.
Walter Griffith, Esq.
George M. Kiell, Esq.
George Lidgett, Esq.
Sir Francis Lycett.
William Merry, Esq.
John Napier, Esq.
Jonathan S. Pidgeon, Esq
John Vanner, Esq.
S. D. Waddy, Esq., Q.C., M.P.

Assurance and Annuity Fund	1,216,115	13	5
Annual Income (1874)	223,613	2	0
Bonuses Apportioned	581,774	6	2
Claims Paid	1,140,151	1	8

Copies of the Report, Balance Sheet and Prospectus can be obtained on application to the Head Office.

W. W. BAYNES, Secretary.

THE ONLY AND SPECIAL

"MEDAL FOR PROGRESS,"

Was awarded for "Feuerfeste Eisone Schranke und Kunstchlosser Fortschritts," to

HOBBS, HART, & CO.,

AT THE VIENNA UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION.

This Medal is only given to Exhibitors whose New Inventions testify marked Progress.

"FIRE-PROOF SAFES; AND LOCKS AND ENDLESS CHANGE LOCKS AND KEYS,"

Invented especially for Safes and Strong-Room Doors, to frustrate the use of False Keys.

N.B.—The continued security and secrecy of a Lock, fixed on a Safe or Strong-Room Door, depends on the fact that there are no false duplicate keys of that Lock in existence. The object of a Lock is twofold—security against burglars, and secrecy against prying curiosity. A new change in this Lock may at any time be obtained in five minutes by simply filing away the thickness of a hair from one or more of the steps of the Key. Th Lock, by a simple movement of the Regulator, is thus made to adapt itself to the NEW KEY, after which no other Key will open the Lock.

The Lock and Key may thus be easily altered into what would be virtually a NEW LOCK and KEY, as often as may be desired, without the aid of a Lockmaker or of any second person, thus frustrating the use of fraudulent copies of the original Key (see the Safe Robbery in Dublin of £630, vide "Times," 12th September, 1875). This Lock affords effectual protection from duplicate or "Master" Keys secretly made in manufactories; very extensive robberies (in one case 13 Safes in one vault) having been effected by this means.

HOBBS, HART & CO.,

LOCK, SAFE, AND STRONG-ROOM DOOR MANUFACTUFERS.

76 Cheapside, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

THE

SOCIETY OF ACCOUNTANTS IN ENGLAND.

COUNCIL.

President.—JOSEPH DAVIES, Warrington. Vice-President.—JOHN BATH, London.

ALFRED ALLOTT, Sheffield.
JOSEPH ANDREWS, London.
JOSIAH BEDDOW, London.
HENRY BOLLAND, Liverpool.
JAMES CHARLES BOLTON, London.
HARRY BRETT, London.
ROBERT BUCK, Sunderland.
JOHN CALDECOTT, Chester.
WALTER NEWTON FISHER, Birmingham
EBENEZER CHAMBERS FOREMAN, London.
JOHN BRADLY GEARD, Ipswich.
EDWARD NORTON HARPER, London.
WILLIAM COMBEN HARVEY, London.
JOHN ALISON HESELTON, Bradford.
GEORGE EDWARD LADBURY, London
FRANCIS NICHOLLS, London.
WILLIAM JOHN PARRY, Bethesda.
EDWARD THOS. PEIRSON, Coventry.
EDWARD SMITH, Manchester.
F. TENDRON, London.
JOHN HENRY TILLY, London.
LEWIS VOISEY, Warrington.
EDWIN WILKS, Plymouth.
JOHN UNWIN WING, Sheffield.

TRUSTEES.—JOHN BATH, 40a, King William Street, London; THOMAS COLTMAN, Leicester; JOSEPH DAVIES, Warrington.
TREASURER.—JAMES CHARLES BOLTON, 26 Great St. Helens, and 2 St. Mary Axe, London.
AUDITORS.—R. R. ROBINSON, London; C. PEMBER, Hereford.
BANKERS.—Messrs, WILLIAMS, DEACON, & Co., Birchin Lane, London.
OFFICES—2 COWPER'S COURT, CORNHILL, LONDON.
Further information can be obtained, and copies of the Rules can be had, upon application to
ALFRED C. HARPER, SECRETARY.

H. D. RAWLINGS,

PURVEYOR OF MINERAL WATERS TO

H. R. H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.
H. R. H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH.
H. R. H. THE PRINCE CHRISTIAN.
THE LATE EMPEROR NAPOLEON III.
AND THE PRINCIPAL COURTS OF EUROPE.

Gold Medallist of the Societe Nationale Agricole Manufacturiere et Commerciale de Paris.

SODA, BRIGHTON, SELTZER and all other Mineral Waters for HOME CONSUMPTION and EXPORTATION.
PRICE LISTS on Application, at the Manufactory, Nassau-street, W.

ALFRED W. GEE,

ADVERTISING AGENT,

62, GRACECHURCH STREET,

LONDON, E.C.

London Gazette Notices, and Advertisements and Announcements of all kinds for English, Colonial, and Foreign Newspapers promptly inserted.

N.B.—In the case of an ordinary Advertisement ordered for insertion in a number of Newspapers, only one MS. copy need be forwarded. Same rates charged as at the Publishing Offices.

Printed and Published for the Proprietor by WILLIAMS & STRAHAN, 7 Lawrence Lane, Cheapside. NOVEMBER 20, 1875.

Digitized by Google

The Accountant.

A MEDIUM OF COMMUNICATION BETWEEN ACCOUNTANTS IN ALL PARTS OF THE UNITED KINGDOM

VOL. I.—NEW SERIES.—No. 51.] SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1875. [PRICE 6D.

TO PUBLIC COMPANIES, &c.

"THE CHRISTIAN UNION,"

The largest Religious Penny Journal in the World.

IS INVALUABE AS A MEDIUM for Advertising to Public Companies, Charities, Commercial Houses, Auctioneers, Estate Agents, Capitalists, Bankers, Shippers, Railway Companies, Exporters, Merchants, Manufacturers, Share Brokers, Insurance Companies, Benefit Societies, Building Clubs, Public Schools, Colleges, Institutions, Hotels, Tutors, Governesses, Secretaries, Managers, Clerks, etc., etc.—Applications for advertisement space to be addressed to ALFRED W. GEE, Advertising Agent, 62 Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

PUBLISHING OFFICE:—108 Fleet-street, London, E.C.

TO OVERWORKED ACCOUNTANTS.—A Gentleman (aged 40), an experienced man of business, and a thorough and very expeditious Auditor, with audits of £200 a year, seeks to ally himself with an Established Accountant. Remuneration, first 12 months, by salary, if desired; afterwards out of profits or otherwise. Strictest integrity.—Address "Scrutator," office of The Accountant.

ACCOUNTANCY.—Wanted by a firm of Accountants possessing a large and valuable business in the provinces, a Gentleman qualified to take the management of London offices about to be opened for better facilitating the working of that part of the business which may more conveniently be worked in London, such as Liquidation in Chancery and Bankruptcy. To a Gentleman with connection and influence in London, arrangements might be made which might ultimately lead to a partnership in the London branch of the business. Address, W W. C., care of Alfred W. Gee, Advertising Agent, 62 Gracechurch-street, E.C.

TO ACCOUNTANTS.—A useful Clerk and good Penman is open to temporary or a permanent engagement, at a moderate amount of remuneration. Reference is permitted to Messrs. Josiah Beddow and Son, Accountants, 2 Gresham Buildings, Basinghall Street, to whom applications may be made.

LARGE LIGHT OFFICES on the Fourth Floor. Rents £10 and £15. Apply to Housekeeper, 26 Budge-row, Cannon-street, E.C.

Established 1843.

PERIODICAL SALE OF REVERSIONS, ANNUITIES, LIFE POLICIES, SHARES, &c.

MESSRS. MARSH, MILNER, AND Co., are preparing their printed particulars for the forthcoming Monthly AUCTION, which is held the FIRST THURSDAY in every month. To insure due publicity, particulars of Properties intended to be included in the next sale should be forwarded, without delay, to the City Land and Reversion Offices, 54 Cannon Street, London.

LAND, Domains, Mountain Ranges, Woods, Forests, and Important Residential Estates. Messrs. MARSH, MILNER, and Co., Land Valuers and Timber Surveyors, have a number of WEALTHY BUYERS DESIROUS of INVESTING in AGRICULTURAL, SPORTING, and RESIDENTIAL ESTATES. OWNERS of marketable properties wishing to effect advantageous sales are therefore invited to forward plans and particulars, which, when received, will be judiciously placed before intending purchasers, publicity being carefully avoided, and written terms settled before any cost or liability is incurred. Address Messrs. Marsh, Milner, and Co., Land and Timber Surveyors, 54 Cannon-street, London, E.C.

MESSRS. MARSH, MILNER, AND Co.'s REGISTER of LANDED ESTATES, Town and Country Residences, and property of every description, is published Monthly, and may be obtained at the Auction, Land, and Estate Agency Offices, 54 Cannon-street, E.C., or will be forwarded by post on application.

MORTGAGES promptly NEGOTIATED upon Landed Estates, City Properties, and upon sound securities of all kinds. Messrs. MARSH, MILNER and Co., have at the present time access to large sums of Money ready to be immediately advanced upon approved securities. Apply at the City Land and Reversion Offices (Established 1842), 54 Cannon-street.

LOVEWELL BLAKE, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT, RECEIVER, AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY.

SECRETARY TO THE GREAT YARMOUTH TRADERS' ASSOCIATION.

OFFICES: HALL QUAY CHAMBERS, GREAT YARMOUTH.

J. F. TITCHMARSH, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT AND AUDITOR,

17 PRINCESS STREET, IPSWICH.

RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY AND LIQUIDATION.

WILLIAM EDWARDS, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT AND AUDITOR,

GRANVILLE PLACE, STONE ROAD, LONGTON, STAFFORDSHIRE.

RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY AND LIQUIDATION.

CHARLES LOWDEN, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT, RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY,

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.

REFERENCES GIVEN.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

39 BROAD-STREET, BRISTOL,

JUNE 24TH, 1875.

The PARTNERSHIP hitherto existing under the Style or Firm of HANCOCK, TRIGGS, & CO., having been DISSOLVED by mutual consent, I beg to give notice that I purpose henceforth to CARRY ON BUSINESS as a PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT at the above address.

PHILIP TRIGGS.

MESSRS. PARRETT AND PATEY,

PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS,

90 LONDON WALL, E.C.

HAVING removed from No. 8 Finsbury Circus, to more commodious offices at the above address, will be pleased to hear from Accountants resident in the provincial and manufacturing towns who require agents in London.

Digitized by Google

MR. FERDINAND WOLFSKEHL,
BANKER,
9 STEINWEG, FRANKFORT A/MAIN, GERMANY,

CALLS THE ATTENTION of Investors to different Continental Government Securities, guaranteed by Acts of Parliament, through which Capital and Interest ARE SECURED BEYOND ANY DOUBT.

Every one of these Loans must be repaid as per Plan attached to each Debenture, within a limited number of years, by periodical Drawings, OFFERING ADVANTAGES PRESENTED BY NO OTHER SECURITIES, WITH BONUSES AT EACH DRAWING, varying from

£10 to £30,000.

For full particulars apply by letter, addressed care
MESSRS. WOLFSKEHL BROTHERS, BANKERS,
LORD STREET, LIVERPOOL.

MR. FERDINAND WOLFSKEHL announces the following Drawings:—

The 70th DRAWING of 1,400 IMPERIAL AUSTRIAN 1858 £10 CREDIT DEBENTURES, and the 42nd BONUS DRAWING of 1,500 IMPERIAL AUSTRIAN 4 per cent. 1854 £30 DEBENTURES took place on the 1st instant, at Vienna. The 9th BONUS DRAWINGS of 120 RAAB GRAZ 4 per cent. £15 1871 DEBENTURES, took place at Ofen on 1st instant.

He will Forthwith Cash or Exchange any of the above-mentioned Debentures against other Debentures, Stocks, Shares or Obligations.

To secure safe delivery of Letters, Mr. F. W. requests that all communications should be addressed care of

Messrs. WOLFSKEHL BROTHERS, Bankers,
3 LORD STREET, LIVERPOOL,
Of whom full particulars of the above Drawings can be had on application.

P S.—The Imperial Austrian 1858 Credit Debentures, Series 1,006, No. 78, drawing a Bonus of £4,000, has been sold by Mr. F. W. to a Gentleman residing in London.

Royal Hungarian (1870 Loan) Debentures.—The 22nd DRAWING of 800 DEBENTURES, upon redemption on the 15th of May next, took place at Pesth on the 15th instant. I have forwarded the list with full particulars to

Messrs. WOLFSKEHL, BROS., Bankers, Liverpool, at whose offices they can be seen, and who are prepared, on my account, to cash any of these DEBENTURES forthwith.

FERDINAND WOLSKEHL.
Frankfort-am-Main, Nov. 16th, 1875.

WILLIAMS & STRAHAN,
Legal, Accountancy, & General Printers,
MANUFACTURING STATIONERS, &c
7 LAWRENCE LANE, CHEAPSIDE, LONDON.
Bankruptcy Forms, Statements of Affairs, Dividend Notices, Balance Sheets, &c., printed with despatch.
STEAM PRINTING WORKS, LAMBETH, S.E

TRANSLATIONS.
MR. ALFRED W. GEE,
BRITISH AND FOREIGN ADVERTISING AGENT,
62 GRACECHURCH STREET, LONDON, E.C.,

Begs to announce that in compliance with a wish expressed by some of the subscribers to the Accountant, he has made arrangements for the translation of legal and commercial documents, correspondence, &c., into the Principal European Languages. Members of the Profession are therefore respectfully informed that arrangements can be made for efficient and speedy translations into, or from, the French, German, Italian, Spanish, and Dutch Languages on Moderate Terms.

The Accountant.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

The ACCOUNTANT is printed and published in time for Friday evening's mail; price 6d. per copy, or 28s. per annum (including postage), the reduced terms for payment in advance being: annual subscription 24s. (post free); half-yearly ditto, 13s. (post free). Cheques and Post-office orders to be made payable to Mr. Alfred W. Gee, 62 Gracechurch-street, E.C., to whom applications for advertisement space, and letters relating to the general business of the paper, should also be addressed. Literary communications should be directed to the Editor of the ACCOUNTANT at the same address, and in order to ensure insertion in the current number, correspondents are respectfully requested to forward their copy as early in the week as possible.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The Proprietor desires to call the attention of Advertisers to the special advantages offered by the paper as an Advertising medium. Starting with a good guaranteed circulation, and with the entire concurrence and hearty support of the leading members of the profession, the ACCOUNTANT has achieved a large measure of success in a wide field hitherto unoccupied by any professional organ. The ACCOUNTANT thus secures to Advertisers an excellent circulation of an exclusive character; and is particularly valuable as a medium for the announcements of members of the profession, as to Estates and Declaration of Dividends, and the appointment of Trustees and Receivers; for Publishers, Printers, Law Stationers, Auctioneers, and Estate Agents; for the Advertisements of Insurance and Public Companies; and for Notices as to Investments, Vacant Partnerships, &c. Advertisements intended for insertion in the current number, should reach the office on Thursday; late announcements can, however, be received up to 12 o'clock (noon) on Friday.

N.B.—Copies may be obtained at Messrs. W. H. Smith and Sons, Strand, at their numerous Railway Bookstalls, and at the Shops of the leading City and West-End Newsvendors.

TO SUBSCRIBERS

In consequence of numerous applications from subscribers, the proprietor has made arrangements for the supply of CASES for holding and preserving the Accountant, which may be obtained at the office on the following terms:—In green cloth (well got up), with elastics, and "The Accountant" in gold letters on front, 3s. each; same in leather, 4s. 6d. each. Subscribers' names in gold lettering, 1s. extra. Post Office Orders payable to ALFRED W. GEE, 62 Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

The Accountant.

NOVEMBER 27, 1875.

The position of official liquidators, trustees, and other persons who have to assume the control and direction of property which does not belong to them, is, in itself, sufficiently onerous, without an additional burden in the shape of a personal liability in respect of the solicitors they employ. They are responsible for mistakes of judgment, for acts of the slightest negligence; and no good intentions on their parts will save them from loss if they have departed one hair's-breadth from the strict letter of the instrument which, in language not always intelligible to the world, defines their duties. Trustees are responsible in every degree; they are responsible to their cestuis que trustent for the safety of the property, they are personally responsible to the solicitors they employ to explain to them the limits to which they may safely go, and if by any chance the assets are insufficient to pay the amount they must bear the ultimate loss. What the liabilities of a trustee in bankruptcy are, is painfully familiar to many of our readers. But an official liquidator is in a more fortunate position than his humbler brethren. He is one of the very few persons who may employ a solicitor, without taking thought how he shall provide for the necessary costs. Serenely confident in the security of reported decisions, he may enjoy all the luxury of an action at law, heightened by the consciousness that the assets must pay the bill or the solicitor must suffer. But solicitors are by no means content to sit quiet under affliction. Some of them fill the columns of legal journals with the record of their wrongs; while others boldly seek the intervention of the Court of Justice, in defiance of the proverb about the physician who never takes his own physic. One of the pugnacious portion of the profession has lately, with praiseworthy public spirit, appealed to the Lords Justices, only to meet with disappointment; and a case which we report under the somewhat verbose title of "Re the Anglo-Moravian Hungarian Junction Railway Company" chronicles the result.

Digitized by Google

We will not refer to the facts in detail, as they are fully set out in our report. The liquidator of the company had occasion to change his solicitors, and the usual order was made directing the delivery up of all papers, and that the costs should be taxed and paid within twenty-eight days from the filing of the taxing master's certificate by the official liquidator. The case was slightly complicated by questions of date, and by the intervention of the long vacation; but it was finally disposed of on the simple issue. An attempt was made to show that the direction that the liquidator should pay the costs imposed upon him the personal obligation of providing for them, but this was scarcely seriously pressed, and the point may now be considered as finally settled that a liquidator is merely the agent to pay the costs out of the assets of the Company. It seems abundantly clear from every precedent that this was the law; and indeed it has been decided that where during the proceedings the solicitor is changed, and the assets are not sufficient to pay the whole of his costs, they will in general, as between the solicitors, be applied in payment of their costs pro rata. The remuneration of the official liquidator himself is, however, not to be paid until all the costs of the winding-up have been provided for; so solicitors may console themselves, if they are capable of consolation, under the loss of any part of their claims, that they are not the only sufferers, but that no one can more earnestly have desired an abundance of assets than the official liquidator himself.

Judicial terseness of expression is a very rare gift on the bench, and Vice-Chancellor Malins has lately developed an epigrammatic style which is at times very effective. Nothing can be happier than some of his comments on the attempt made by the liquidator of the Taly-y-drws Slate Company to place the executrix of a deceased director on the register of shareholders. Mr. Mackley, the director in question, had signed the memorandum of association for fifty shares, but though agreeing to become a director, he in fact took no further part. No shares were allotted to him, though the whole of the shares were applied for and allotted to various individuals. But when the Company fell into trouble and underwent the process of winding up, the liquidator placed Mr. Mackley's executrix on the register in respect of these shares. This proceeding the Vice-Chancellor set aside in a judgment vigorously and cleverly expressed, but differing somewhat boldly from some previous cases which scarcely seem capable of being distinguished. As regards the rights of creditors, said his Lordship, "considering that Mr. Mackley's name was never on the register of shareholders—a copy of which was at the offices of the company, and that no one knew, or could know, that it might have been there—it was plain that no creditor trusted the company on the faith of its being on the register, and so far no injury was done to the creditors, and the other contributories were not damnified." "It did," continued the Vice-Chancellor, "seem somewhat unjustifiable that the company (when found to be a losing concern) should be allowed to say that a man, who could not have a share when he might have asked for one, was nevertheless liable to the company for shares in his lifetime, and that his estate remained subject to that liability after his death." It certainly does seem hard on Mr. Mackley, but the various reported cases are very strong in laying down that, if persons will sign memorandums of association, and for a space of time, however brief, hold themselves out to the world as shareholders and directors, they must take the consequences of their acts, and that they can only be relieved from liability by taking shares and then making a formal transfer of them. If Mr. Mackley ever made formal application and was refused, the point is clear, and the inference drawn by the Vice-Chancellor from the remarks of Lord Cairns is a good specimen of acute reasoning. But in future, gentlemen who wish to avoid difficulties either to their executors or themselves, will do well not to sign memorandums of association, unless they are fully prepared to accept in their entirety the corresponding liabilities.

Digitized by Google

The decision of the Court of Appeal in the matter of the petition of Mr. Huxham to have the Dunraven Adare Coal and Iron Company wound-up compulsorily at his instance is of a very technical nature. Mr. Huxham claimed £218 from the company, and served them with the requisite statutory demand, of which the company took no notice. Previously, however, to presenting his petition, he brought an action for the amount he claimed; and this step was unfortunate for his interests. It was held, that by bringing an action and submitting to arbitration, Mr. Huxham had waived the effect of his notice, and therefore had lost his right to present a petition for winding-up. He was, in fact, a victim to the separation of law and equity. Had he proceeded with his petition in the Court of Chancery without fitting another string to his bow in the shape of an action at law, he might have been more prosperous. The petition would have stood over to abide the result of his action, and the costs of the petition would have followed the result. The case is one in which the petitioner has to pay for the mistakes of his advisers. His claim was, as it turned out, sufficient to support a petition, and the order might have been made on it, but for his resort to law. Under the circumstances, it is to be hoped that the assets of the company will be sufficient to pay Mr. Huxham's debt in full; otherwise, though the decision seems unimpeachable, and indeed could hardly have been different, he will find that a minute acquaintance with the technicalities of law and equity is occasionally scarcely worth the price at which it is bought.

Winding-up.—A petition for the winding-up of the Court Grange Silver Lead Mining Company, Limited, is to be heard before Vice-Chancellor Malins on the 3rd December.—A petition to wind-up the Christon Bank Colliery Company, Limited, has been presented to the High Court of Justice.

Attorney at Law.—Wednesday the 24th inst. was the last day for applicants to be sworn in before the Master of the Rolls; Wednesday, the 1st proximo, will be the last to leave the necessary documents. It is the first occasion since the operation of the Judicature Act. The term "attorney" is now abolished, and all are to be designated "solicitors of the Supreme Court," and officers of the same are to be admitted by the Master of the Rolls. The Judicature Act of 1873 contained provisions as to solicitors, and the same were amended by the statute which came into force on the 1st inst. The certificate duty by solicitors is now payable, and must be paid before the 16th of December. According to a recent Parliamentary paper the number was 14,419. In London, Edinburgh, and Dublin the annual duty is £9, and elsewhere £6. Only half duty is payable for the first three years of being in practice.

The Cheque Bank.—The Times of Nov. 19th says:—It was decided to-day, at a meeting of 27 shareholders of the Cheque Bank, Limited, to wind-up the bank voluntarily. For some time past a section of the shareholders has been dissatisfied and unwilling to wait the issue of an extended trial of the system, and as it has not been found possible to buy these out this resolution was the only alternative. It is one to be regretted for several reasons. The worst was past, and as there was nothing speculative in the Bank's business its risks were now fairly measureable and small, while in one direction it has made very considerable progress. Some of the ramifications of its business were not of a kind to command popular support very readily, but where it devoted its organisation to post checks it was not only doing real service to the community but meeting with a fair amount of popular support. In a statement issued lately it was shown that as rapid progress had been made by the Cheque Bank in selling post checks as was made by the money-order system on its first introduction, and there can be no doubt that the post check is as safe, and a much cheaper and more negotiable instrument for transmitting money than the cumbrous and costly post-office order. There is some talk still of reorganising the Bank, but if it cannot be set on foot again the Government might do worse than remodel its money-order business on the Cheque-Bank plan.

Imprisonment for Debt.—There were as many as 4,438 persons imprisoned in the course of the year 1874, by order of Judges of County Courts in England and Wales. The largest numbers are the following seven:—94 persons were imprisoned under orders made at the County Court held at Bristol; 99 persons under orders made at Leicester; 106 at Derby; 136 at Leeds; 162 at Birmingham; 173 at Ulverston and Barrow-in-Furness, where the whole number of plaints entered was but 3,034; and, lastly, 196 at Wigan. This last town belongs to Circuit No. 7, on which the number of persons imprisoned in the year was 423, or not very far from double the number imprisoned on any other circuit. The number of plaints entered on that circuit was 23,404, but there were five other circuits with a still larger number of plaints. Circuits No. 57 and 59, in rural or small-town districts in the South-west, had little more than 10,000 plaints each, but had to send only ten persons to prison in the year, six in one circuit and four in the other.

Digitized by Google

SUPREME COURT OF JUDICATURE.

COURT OF APPEAL, LINCOLN'S-INN.

November 18.

(Before Lords Justices JAMES, MELLISH, BAGGALLAY, and Mr. Justice BRETT.)

IN RE THE DUNRAVEN ADARE COAL AND IRON COMPANY, LIMITED.—This was an appeal from the refusal of Vice-Chancellor Bacon to make an order for the winding-up of this company. The petition was heard in the Long Vacation. It was presented by Mr. Hortensius Huxham, a mining engineer at Swansea, who claimed to be a creditor of the company for £218 in respect of work and labour done for and services rendered to them, and by Mr. J. H. Morrell, a shareholder in the company. Huxham in June last served a statutory notice on the company, demanding payment of his debt, and the company neglected for three weeks to pay it. It appeared, however, that he afterwards brought an action against the company for his claim. The company defended the action, and ultimately Huxham consented to have the case referred to arbitration. The arbitrator found that there was due to Huxham more than £50, but considerably less than he claimed. On the 17th of September last a meeting of the shareholders resolved that it was desirable that the company should be wound-up. Soon after that the petition was presented, and it was heard by the Vice-Chancellor on the 5th of October, and dismissed: the petitioners appealed. Mr. Marten, Q.C., and Mr. C. H. Turner were heard on behalf of the appellants. Mr. Locock Webb, Q.C., and Mr. Grosvenor Woods, for the company, were not called on; Mr. Whitehorne appeared for a committee appointed for the reconstruction of the company and for other shareholders; Mr. Warmington appeared for debenture holders. Lord Justice James said that the petition must be treated as that of a creditor only. His claim was one as to the amount of which there was a bona-fide dispute. By bringing the action and consenting to the arbitration he waived the effect of his previous notice, and could not be allowed afterwards to proceed with his petition, which had been therefore rightly dismissed. The other learned judges concurred.

November 19.

IN RE THE ANGLO-MORAVIAN HUNGARIAN JUNCTION RAILWAY COMPANY, LIMITED.—EX PARTE T. E. WATKIN.—This was a case of considerable importance to official liquidators and their solicitors, involving the question whether the solicitor of an official liquidator has any claim against him personally for his costs, or whether the solicitor's right is only a right to be paid his costs out of the assets of the company in liquidation. Mr. F. B. Smart is the official liquidator of the above company. Messrs. T. E. Watkin and Frederick Clift formerly acted as his solicitors in the liquidation, but on the 5th of August, 1874, he obtained an order to change his solicitors, and Messrs. Lawless and Co. were appointed in place of Messrs. Watkin and Clift. On the 28th of January, 1875, an order was made that Watkin and Clift should deliver over the books and other documents relating to the winding-up upon payment of their taxed costs, and it was referred to the taxing master to tax and settle their bill of costs, and it was ordered that the official liquidator should pay the taxed amount of the costs within 28 days after the filing of the taxing master's certificate. Watkin and Clift did not carry in their bill of costs for taxation until April, and the taxing master's certificate was not obtained until the 7th of August, just before the Long Vacation. Mr. Watkin at once pressed for payment, but as the chief clerk of Vice-Chancellor Hall, who had the conduct of the winding-up, was away, Lawless and Co. told Watkin that in all probability they could not obtain a check for him until after the Long Vacation. Ultimately he threatened to take proceedings against Mr. Smart personally to recover the costs, and on the 31st of August Vice-Chancellor Bacon, as Vacation Judge, granted an injunction to restrain Watkin from issuing a subpœna for his costs, or from taking any other proceedings against the official liquidator, or his estate, or the estate of the company, or from seeking to enforce payment of his costs until further order; and the time for payment of the costs was extended until the 10th of November, 1875. From this order Watkin now appealed. Mr. Cracknall, on behalf of the appellant, argued that as a matter of general law an official liquidator is personally liable to his solicitor for costs, but, moreover, in the present case, the order of the 28th of January, 1875, amounted to an agreement on the part of the liquidator to be personally liable for the costs. At any rate the Vice-Chancellor's order must be wrong, inasmuch as it prevented the appellant from taking any steps whatever for the recovery of what was due to him. Mr. Dickinson, Q.C., and Mr. Everitt, for the liquidator, were not heard. Lord Justice James said that on the question of general law the argument was that the relation between the liquidator and his solicitor was the ordinary relation between a client and his solicitor, and that the solicitor was retained by the liquidator on his personal responsibility. It had, however, been expressly decided to the contrary several years ago in the cases of "In re Massey" (Law Reports," 9 Eq., 367), and "In re Trueman" (Law Reports," 14 Eq., 278), in which it was held that in cases of this kind credit is given by the solicitor to the assets of the company. In a voluntary winding-up the liquidator was only an agent of the company, and in a compulsory winding-up the official liquidator was a person appointed by the court to act as the agent of the company, and the only contract made by him with the solicitor was a contract to pay him out of the assets of the company. This court would be very loth to disturb decisions which had been acted on for some years. Then the only question was whether the order of the 28th of January had introduced any new contract. It would require very strong words indeed to show that the liquidator was making himself personally liable without any consideration for that for which he was not previously personally liable, while the solicitor was not altering his position at all. The language of the order was not sufficient to lead to any such conclusion. The order appealed from was not intended to prevent an application being made by the solicitor to the Vice-Chancellor in chambers for payment of what was due to him. The appeal must be dismissed, with costs. Lord Justice Mellish concurred, observing that the position of a liquidator differed from that of a trustee in bankruptcy in this respect—that the assets of the company were not vested in him, and, in the absence of an express bargain, it must be assumed that the solicitor trusted for payment only to the assets of the company. Lord Justice Baggallay was of the same opinion, adding that Vice-Chancellor Bacon's order was on the face of it intended to keep matters in statu quo until an application could be made in chambers to Vice-Chancellor Hall, who had the conduct of the winding-up of the company. Mr. Justice Brett agreed, adding that, even if the assets of the company were insufficient to pay the solicitor's costs in full, there was, in his opinion, no personal liability on the part of the liquidator to make good the deficiency.

November 24.

EX PARTE GORDON—IN RE GOMERSALL.—This case involved an important question with regard to the right of a person who just before the bankruptcy of the acceptor of a bill of exchange purchases the bill from the drawer for a sum very much less than its nominal amount, to prove against the estate of the acceptor for the amount of the bill. The case was argued on the 18th inst., and the judgment of the Court was given on the 24th. Mr. De Gex, Q.C., and Mr. Finlay Knight were for the appellant; Mr. Marten, Q.C., and Mr. E. C. Willis were for the respondents. The appeal was from two orders made by the Chief Judge in Bankruptcy, admitting two proofs tendered against the estate of John Gomersall and James Francis Gomersall, who were woollen manufacturers at Dewsbury, and who were adjudicated bankrupts on the 6th of October, 1874, upon an act of bankruptcy committed by them in filing a liquidation petition on the 3rd of September, 1874. One of the proofs in question was tendered by Mr. Joseph William Bennett, a stock-dealer, of Moorgate-street, London, for £3,593 18s. 6d., the amount of ten bills of exchange accepted by the bankrupts, and drawn upon them by John Searby and Co., of Honey-lane Market, London. According to Bennett's evidence, the bills were brought to him on the 25th of August, 1874, by Mr. J. F. Lovering, an accountant, and were offered to him for discount. He made inquiries and received information that the acceptors would be unable to pay the bills in full, as they were in difficulties, but that they were possessed of property, and if they failed there was a reasonable prospect that a dividend would be paid from their estate. On the 3rd of September he agreed to purchase the bills for £250, and the same day he gave a check for that sum on his bankers, payable to Searby and Co., and the next day the check was paid by the bankers. From the evidence of John Searby it appeared that he had acted for several years as commission agent for the bankrupts in London, and that he had been in the habit of accepting for their accommodation bills drawn by them on him to the extent of many thousands of pounds, and till the beginning of 1874 they always supplied him with funds to take up the bills at maturity. During that time he had a large quantity of stock belonging to them in his possession, but at the beginning of July, 1874, he, at their request, sent back to them all their stock which he then had. The ten bills in question, together with four others, were drawn by him and sent down for their acceptance in August, 1874, as a security to him against the bills then current which he had accepted for them. This was done in pursuance of a letter written to him by the bankrupts on the 20th of August, 1874, in which they said, "What we want you to do is to draw on us for same amounts we have drawn upon you." The 14 bills thus drawn and accepted bore various dates from the 22nd of April to the 1st of August. Searby said that he could not get the bills discounted himself, and so he handed them to Lovering to get them discounted or to do the best he could with them. Searby had no interview with Bennett about them. Lovering deposed that he received the 14 bills from Searby on the 22nd, 23rd, or 24th of August, 1874, and he said, "I offered them to several persons, but no one would discount them. I offered to sell them at last. I was fully aware that Gomersalls were talked about in London. I tried to get £1,000 for them, but afterwards less. I was down in Yorkshire about that time, and I knew that Gomersalls were between wind and water." The other four bills, which were for sums amounting to £1,727 2s., were purchased on the 31st of August, 1874, for £200, by Mr. Jesse Jones, of Camden-road, under similar circumstances. In his evidence he said, "I inquired of one or two clerks I knew in the City about the credit of Messrs. Gomersall. I thought it a very risky thing from the information I received. The Judge of the County Court at Dewsbury rejected the proofs of Bennett and Jones, but allowed them to receive from the bankrupt's estate the sum which they had actually paid for the bills held by them respectively. The Chief Judge decided that the proofs must be admitted for the full amounts of the bills held by Bennett and Jones respectively. The trustee of the bankrupt's estate appealed. Lord Justice James, after reviewing the facts, said it was quite clear that, as far as regarded Gomersall and Searby, the bills in question were mere shams—fictitious things got up for a fraudulent purpose connected with their then impending bankruptcy. The question was whether Jones was affected with notice of the fraud so as to disentitle him to prove upon the bills. It was to be noted that, though Jones in his evidence said that he made inquiries about Gomersall, he did not suggest that he made any inquiries about Searby, and he did not say what he knew about him; but it was clear that he must have known that Searby was hopelessly and recklessly insolvent, for no man who was not in that state would have made himself personally liable for the sum of £1,700 in consideration of £200, when as to part of it he could be proceeded against in bankruptcy within a few weeks, inasmuch as one of the bills for £227 was to fall due on the 26th of September. Suppose this had been the case of a purchase for £20 of bills for £17,000, could the transaction have stood? Suppose bills to that large amount had been brought to Jones by the sweeper of a neighbouring crossing. Clearly in such a case the transaction could not stand. And his Lordship was of opinion that what occurred then came really to the same thing. Jones, when he took those bills from such a man as Searby, and under such circumstances, must have known that Searby had not got them honestly. The whole transaction was saturated with fraud, and Jones had notice of it. He bought these sham bills knowing that they were shams, and consequently he was not entitled to prove upon them. The County Court Judge thought that Jones was entitled to prove as the holder of accommodation bills, and to receive dividends up to the amount which he had actually given for them; but they were not, in truth, accommodation bills; they were shams. The transaction was really a payment of £200 to Gomersall through his agent Searby, and the holder of the bill was entitled to prove and receive dividends for that sum only. The case of Bennett was in substance exactly the same, and a similar order must be made. Lord Justice Mellish said that the County Court Judge held that Jones and Bennett were not entitled to receive more than they had actually given for the bills, and he did so upon the authority of some old cases mentioned in Cook's "Bankrupt Law." In his Lordship's opinion, those cases had nothing to do with the present. They related not to a case where bills had been brought out, but to a case where money had been advanced upon the security of bills for a larger amount. In those cases it was held that, if the bill was one given for value as between the drawer and acceptor, the holder might prove in bankruptcy against the acceptor for the full amount of the bill, and receive dividends until he had been paid the sum which he had advanced to the drawer. But those decisions had no bearing on the present case, which was not an advance made on the credit of a bill, but a purchase of the entire amount of the bill. His Lordship thought that the Chief Judge was right in holding that in such a case as this the purchaser of the bill might, if he had no notice of fraud, prove for the full amount of the bill; but in the present case his Lordship thought that the bills were drawn and accepted for a fraudulent purpose, in order to cheat the creditors both of the drawer and the acceptor, and that both the holders had notice of the fraud. This raised a very important question; for this, his Lordship thought, was a new kind of fraud. What would be the nature and result of a similar transaction if it had occurred between the bankrupt and one other person? If an insolvent debtor had some assets it would be quite possible for him, on the eve of bankruptcy, to raise money from a person who was aware of his insolvency on such terms as to enable that person to obtain afterwards the full value of the goods he had supplied by means of dividends in the bankruptcy. The debtor might say, If you will let me have goods on a month's credit I will enter into a written contract to pay you four times the value of the goods at the end of the month. But in such a case as that the Court of Bankruptcy would say, without any hesitation, You cannot be allowed to prove for four times the value of the goods. Such a case as this had never happened, and probably never would happen. Suppose, again, that the debtor went to a money lender and said to him, If you will lend me £200 for a month I will enter into a written agreement to pay you £2,000 at the end of the month, the lender, speculating that by means of the dividends on the £2,000 he would be able to make a handsome profit on the sum which he advanced. The Court of Bankruptcy would certainly not be taken in by such a transaction as that. What difference, then, was there between that transaction and a case where there was, as here, a bill between two parties? The only difference was that the Court must be able to arrive at the conclusion that the person who had discounted the bill had notice of its invalidity—had notice that it was not a good bill as between the drawer and the acceptor. This was the only part of the present case about which his lordship had entertained any doubt; but he thought that there was evidence that the holders of the bills in this case knew such facts as would have led a jury to say that any reasonable man must have concluded that the transaction was tainted with fraud, and even that he knew the particular nature of the fraud. What right had the purchaser of the bills to suppose that such a man as Searby would have kept the bills in his possession for two or three months after they were drawn if he had a good title to them? They wilfully shut their eyes to the facts which made it clear that the bills had been recklessly drawn and accepted on the eve of bankruptcy, and the Court of Bankruptcy ought to deal with the case just as if there had been a contract for the sale of goods such as his Lordship had suggested. The fraud was not one upon the holders of the bills, but upon the general body of the creditors. This Court would be an unworthy successor of the great Judges who first set up such doctrines as that of fraudulent preference if it allowed this kind of fraud to prevail. The consequence of doing so would be that any man who wanted a sum of money in order to stave off his bankruptcy for a week, or in order to make a payment in favour of a particular creditor, or to make a provision for himself and his family, would be able to do this at the expense of the general body of his creditors. Lord Justice Baggallay was of the same opinion. He fully recognised the well-established principle that negligence on the part of the holder of a bill of exchange was not of itself sufficient fo deprive him of his right of proof, but yet that negligence accompanied by the surrounding circumstances might be evidence of mala fides. He was not prepared to say that the mere fact of giving a very small sum for a bill of exchange would of itself be evidence of fraud. The holder who had originally given full value for the bill might, when he afterwards found that the acceptor had become hopelessly insolvent, honestly sell the bill for one-fifth or one-tenth, or even a less proportion of its nominal value; but the facts of the present case were very different. The circumstances were, in his Lordship's opinion, such as must have brought to the mind of the purchasers of the bills knowledge that there was some fraud in their preparation, and if they wilfully omitted to make inquiries they must take the consequence. Mr. Justice Brett said he apprehended that the argument in favour of admitting the proof for the full amount was this—that the bills in their inception were honest bills as between the drawer and the acceptor, and that the persons who bought them did so honestly, or that, if the bills were fraudulent as between the drawer and the acceptor, the persons who bought them did so without any notice of the fraud. On the other side, the argument was that the bills were fraudulent in their inception, not, indeed, as between the drawer and the acceptor, for they both knew that, as between them, it was not intended that either of them should be responsible for the bills, but that the bills were fraudulently concocted as against their creditors, and that the purchasers of the bills knew when they bought them that they were fraudulent, and even though they did not know all the circumstances, yet knew enough to affect them with notice that the bills were fraudulent. In determining the question of fact, the Court must, as a jury would do, make use of their ordinary knowledge of business and of mankind. His Lordship reviewed the evidence at considerable length, coming on it to the conclusion that the intention of the parties was that the money obtained by the sale of these bills should go to Gomersall, and that it did in fact go to him, Searby being a mere agent of Gomersall. As to Bennett, he said that he made inquiries about Gomersall, and the fair inference was that when he paid the £250 for the bills he did so in the expectation that Gomersall's estate would be able to pay him in dividends more than £250 if he could prove for the full amount of the bills, and that he knew that both the drawer and acceptor were insolvent, and were going into immediate bankruptcy. The bill-holders ought, therefore, only to be allowed to prove for what they actually advanced, which was, in fact, a loan to Gomersall.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE.

CHANCERY DIVISON.

November 19.

(Before Vice-Chancellor Sir RICHARD MALINS.)

IN RE THE ELLAND-ROAD, WORTLEY, FIRE CLAY COMPANY, LIMITED.—In this matter a petition was presented, praying for an order to wind-up the company. It was stated that another petition was about to be presented to the Master of the Rolls for a similar order, and leave was asked, with the view of covering the costs of both petitions, to transfer this one to the Rolls Court. Mr. W. Barker was for the petitioner here; Mr. F. C. J. Millar was for the company; Mr. Francis Webb was for the other petitioner. The Vice-Chancellor said he had no power to direct this petition to be transferred, and could do nothing as to the one at the Rolls. There must be the usual winding-up order in the petition to this court, and the parties could arrange as to the costs.

IN RE THE WEDGEWOOD COAL AND IRON COMPANY, LIMITED.—In this matter a petition was presented praying for an order to wind-up the company. Mr. Glasse, Q.C., and Mr. F. C. J. Millar were for the petitioner; Mr. S. Pearson, Q.C., was for the company, and Mr. Williams was for other parties. The Vice-Chancellor made an order to continue the voluntary winding-up of the company under the supervision of the court, and appointed Mr. Smart as liquidator in the place of Mr. Banner.

IN RE THE KENT TRAMWAYS COMPANY, LIMITED.—In this matter a petition was presented praying for an order to wind-up the company. Mr. Glasse, Q.C., and Mr. Solomon were for the petitioner; Mr. W. Barber was for some of the creditors of the company; Mr. Cracknall, for other creditors, opposed the petition. The Vice-Chancellor made the usual order to wind-up the company, but gave no costs to Mr. Cracknall's clients.

(Before Vice-Chancellor Sir C. HALL.)

IN RE THE EQUITABLE PERMANENT BENEFIT BUILDING SOCIETY.—This society was ordered to be wound-up compulsorily on the petition of a member and creditor. The society was established in 1868, but, as in another recent well-known case—that of the Norwich and Norfolk Provident and Building Society—had got into difficulties through the misappropriation of its funds by its manager, Martindale, who died in August last. Mr. Graham Hastings, Q.C., appeared for the petitioner; Mr. Langley for the society.

November 20.

(Before the MASTER of the ROLLS.)

IN RE THE DUNRAVEN ADARE COAL AND IRON COMPANY, LIMITED.—The usual winding-up order was made in this instance on a creditor's petition, presented by the Sheffield Waggon Company. Mr. Chitty, Q.C., and Mr. F. C. J. Millar appeared in support of the petition; Mr. C. H. Turner for creditors; and Mr. Warmington for shareholders holding debentures.

IN RE THE CONTINENTAL AND SHIPPING BUTTER COMPANY, LIMITED.—EX PARTE MEGE.—This company was incorporated in January, 1874, with the object of purchasing a Frenchman's patent for the treatment of fatty bodies for a purpose which may be guessed from the title of the company. It was ordered to be wound-up in July, 1874. The patent never had been assigned to the company, and the question now was, whether

Digitized by Google

2,000 shares which had been allotted to Messrs. Mège and Augier in part payment for their patent, and which appeared opposite to their names in the register as fully paid-up shares, were to be treated as shares on which nothing had been paid, by reason of the requirements of the well-known Section 25 of the Companies Act, 1867, not having been complied with. Messrs. Mège and Augier's case was that the shares in question were properly issued as fully paid-up shares under the contract for the sale of the patent which was made prior to the incorporation of the company between their agent of the one part, and a person described as "trustee for a company in course of formation, and intended to be incorporated under the title of the Continental and Shipping Butter Company Limited," which agreement, they contended, being printed at length in the articles of association, was notice to every body concerned, and entitled them to say that the shares were fully paid-up. Mr. Chitty, Q C., and Mr. W. C. Druce appeared for the official liquidator; Mr. Waller, Q.C., and Mr. Cottrell for Messrs. Mège and Augier. The Master of the Rolls said it had been thought that a contract entered into between a promoter and nominee of his own as trustee for an intended company might be a contract within the meaning of Section 25; but this could not be correct, for the company could not adopt or ratify a contract made prior to its own existence. The company might, of course, have entered into a new contract to perform the old contract, but it had not done so. He should have thought, therefore, that there was no contract between the company and Messrs. Mège and Augier that the shares registered in their names should be payable otherwise than in cash. In the case of the Western of Canada Oil Lands and Works Company he had decided that some directors were liable to pay up certain nominally paid-up shares which had been transferred to them by the promoter, who received them under a contract entered into, as in this case, between himself and a nominee of his own prior to the formation of the company. He had so decided on the ground that such a contract was no contract at all—that there was no registered contract, as required by the section. It appeared, however, that the Court of Appeal had reversed his decision on the assumption that there was such a contract. He was, of course, bound by that decision, and should therefore decide, against his own opinion, that the contract between Messrs. Mège and Augier and the trustee for the company prior to its incorporation amounted to a contract binding the company. It appeared, too, that for some reason or other the company had not got the patent. This might entitle the liquidator to sue Messrs. Mège and Augier for breach of contract, or to have back the shares for failure of consideration, but not to say that the shares were not fully paid-up.

(Before Vice-Chancellor SIR RICHARD MALINS.)

IN RE THE TAL-Y-DRWS SLATE COMPANY, LIMITED.—This was a summons taken out by a Mrs. Mackley to remove her name from the list of contributories of the above-named company. The company was formed in 1863, with a capital of £20,000 in 2,000 shares of £10 each. Mr. Mackley agreed to become a director of it, and signed the memorandum of association for 50 shares in it. No shares, however, were allotted to him, and his name was not entered in the register of shareholders. Moreover, he never acted as a director, or in any way interfered in the affairs of the company. In the month of August, 1864, the directors allotted all the 2,000 shares to other and solvent parties. In 1868 they, under a power in the articles of association, declared 89 shares forfeited. On the 6th July, 1869, Mr. Mackley died, leaving the applicant his widow and executrix. On the 30th of March, 1874, a resolution was passed for the voluntary winding-up of the company; and in the following month an order was made to continue the winding-up under the supervision of the court. The name of Mrs. Mackley, as executrix of her husband, was then placed by the official liquidator on the list of contributories in respect of 50 shares, on the ground that he, in his lifetime, and his estate now, was liable to the company on account of the shares for which he signed the memorandum of association. Mr. Glasse, Q.C., and Mr. Dixon appeared in support of the summons; Mr. J. Napier Higgins, Q.C., and Mr. W. D. Griffiths were for the official liquidator. The Vice-Chancellor said that after all the arguments which he had heard in this case he could not think that the official liquidator was justified in raking up this gentleman's name for the purpose of putting his widow on the list of contributories, and the attempt to maintain her in that position was unsustainable. The company having been formed in 1863, Mr. Mackley made up his mind to be a director of it, and signed the memorandum of association accordingly for 50 shares. Although he had intended to act as a director, he never did. On the 15th of August, 1864, the whole of the 2,000 shares of £10 each were allotted to other persons, presumably solvent, and remained in their hands till March, 1868. On the 18th of March in that year the directors declared 89 of the shares to be forfeited, so that from 1864 to 1868 there was not a single share which could have been allotted to Mr. Mackley, even if he had then applied for them. The company, however, went on for some time longer, till, in April, 1874, his Lordship made an order to continue the voluntary winding of it up under the supervision of the court. Considering that Mr. Mackley's name never was on the register of shareholders—a copy of which was at the offices of the company, and that no one knew, or could know, that it might have been there—it was plain that no creditor trusted the company on the faith of its being on the register, and so far no injury was done to the creditors. So with regard to the other shareholders in the company, the contributories, they were not damnified. It was impossible, therefore, for the shareholders inter se or by the official liquidator now to call on this gentleman's estate to help to pay their debts. In answer to that, however, it was said that Mr. Mackley was liable because he signed the memorandum of association for the 50 shares. No doubt, as a general rule, that was true. His Lordship had so decided in more than one case; and other branches of this court had taken a similar view. But that rule, like others, must depend on the surrounding circumstances in each particular case. The present case was, no doubt, a novel one; but it did seem somewhat unjustifiable that the company (when found to be a losing concern) should be allowed to say that a man who could not have had a share when he might have asked for one was nevertheless liable to the company for shares, in his lifetime, and that his estate remained subject to that liability after his death. His Lordship thought it clear that the view which he took of this case would have been taken by the Court of Appeal in Evans's case ("Law Reports," 2 Chancery Appeals 427) if the facts of that case had been the same as those of this one. Then Lord Justice Turner said:—"Mr. Evans originally subscribed the memorandum of association, and became one of its first directors, and, therefore, his first duty was to take care that his name was entered upon the register. It was, therefore, the plain duty of Mr. Evans to enter his own name on the register. This, however, he did not do, but went on leaving the matter exactly as it stood. Then could he take advantage of his own neglect? for if he had entered his name on the register, he could only have got rid of his liability by regular transfer, and it was impossible to say that he transferred the shares." Then the Lord Justice added this, which was most important with reference to the present case:—"If, indeed, all the shares had been allotted to others, a question might have arisen." If, that was to say, the very fact which occurred in this case had been found in that, the Lord Justice Turner would have considered there would have been some question about it. Lord Cairns, the other Lord Justice, said this:—"It was said that the shares which Mr. Evans would have had were allotted to other people, but it seemed that the allotment was not final, and there were left at all times sufficient to answer the right of Mr. Evans." Could any thing, therefore, be plainer than this, that if there had been no shares for Mr. Evans when (if ever) he wanted them he would have been relieved by the Court? There were also some remarks of Lord Cairns in other cases with respect to the argument deduced from the fact that no mischief actually arose from, and that no one had been deceived by, what had been done. Upon the whole of this case his Lordship thought it very vexatious and unjust on the part of the official liquidator, representing not only the creditors, but also the contributories of the company, to bring this lady so improperly before the Court. He should, therefore, order her name to be removed from the list of the contributories, and she must be paid her costs out of the estate. The official liquidator must also be paid his; and if the estate was insufficient for the payment of all the costs, the parties must have liberty to apply again to the Court on the subject.

Digitized by Google

IN RE THE BIRMINGHAM, BLAKELEY HALL, AND COLLIERY COMPANY.—The voluntary winding-up of this company was directed to be carried on under the supervision of the Court on the petition of Mr. Kean, a creditor. Mr. King and Mr. E. Ford appeared for the petitioner, Mr. Beale for other creditors, and Mr. Fellows for the company.

November 22.

(Before Vice-Chancellor Sir RICHARD MALINS.)

THE PHOSPHATE SEWAGE COMPANY, LIMITED, v. HARTMONT AND OTHERS.—The plaintiffs in the suit were the above-named company alone; the defendants were Messrs. Hartmont and Begbie, who were merchants in partnership together as Hartmont and Co.; a Mr. Ogle, a promoter of the company: Messrs. Englebach and Keir, accountants in the City, and also promoters of the company; Messrs. Cockburn, Grant, Green, and Lonsdale, who with Mr. Keir signed the memorandum of association of the company; Messrs. Elmslie, Forsyth, and Sedgwick, solicitors; a Mr. Ramsden (who since the opening of the case has been dismissed from the suit on certain terms); and a Mr. Malleson, the assignee in the bankruptcy of Messrs. Lawson and Son. The bill in the suit stated that Messrs. Hartmont and Co., Lawson and Son, and Engelbach and Keir were the promoters of the company, and that Messrs. Elmslie, Forsyth, and Sedgwick acted first as the solicitors of Messrs. Hartmont and Co., Lawson and Son, and Mr. Ogle, in the promotion of, and afterwards for, the company itself. In 1869 the Government of the Dominican Republic authorised Messrs. Hartmont and Co. to raise a loan of £420,000 for it, and on the 8th of May in that year granted them a concession for 50 years of the guano or phosphate of lime on the island of Alto Vela, belonging to the Republic. The articles of that concession, to which it is at present necessary to refer, were these:—Messrs Hartmont and Co. were themselves to bear all the expenses of working the guano, guanito, or phosphate of lime in the island; to carry out the agreement at the latest by the 1st of January then next, and to export annually a quantity of at least 10,000 tons of guano, guanito, or phosphate of lime; to pay a specified tax for each ton of material exported; and the Revenues resulting to the Dominican Government from the operations were to be devoted to the loan contracted for it by Messrs. Hartmont and Co. It was further provided that, in case the grantees should not export the minimum quantity stipulated for, the Dominican Government should have the right to declare that concession null and void and to dispose of it as they should see fit. An arrangement was then come to by which Messrs. Hartmont and Co. became trustees of the concession for themselves and Messrs. Lawson and Son and Mr. Ogle. Messrs. Lawson and Son had the working of the island of Alto Vela. Up to the 31st of December, 1870, no guano or phosphate of lime had been exported from the island; but 1,981 tons and no more, of a substance known as phosphate of alumina was exported from the island. By reason of that the Dominican Government acquired the right to annul the concession, which was then voidable and liable to forfeiture. In 1870 Professor Forbes and a Mr. Price took out patents for the manufacture of artificial manures in the West Indies and other islands, and in the early part of 1871 Messrs. Hartmont and Co., Lawson and Son, and Mr. Ogle determined to form a joint-stock company to purchase the original concession. Accordingly, a provisional committee was formed, which consisted of the defendants Begbie, Engelbach, Keir, and Grant; and while Mr. Ramsden acted as the solicitor of the committees, Messrs. Elmslie and Co. were to be the advisers of the proposed company. The bill stated, further, that the committee determined that the price to be paid for the concession should be £65,000, of which £50,000 was to be paid by Messrs. Hartmont and Co., Messrs. Lawson and Son, and Mr. Ogle, in shares agreed upon between them; £15,000 to Messrs. Engelbach and Keir; £262 10s., to Messrs. Elmslie and Co.; and £420 to Mr. Ramsden, out of the intended company's moneys, for assisting in its formation. To carry out that arrangement, on the 20th of April 1871, Messrs. Hartmont and Co. assigned their interest in the concession to Messrs. Lawson and Son. On the 28th of April, in the same year, the Messrs. Lawson and Son (called "the vendors") entered into a contract with Messrs. Engelbach and Keir (called "the purchasers") "for and on behalf of a company then intended to be forthwith incorporated." That contract recited the concession that Messrs. Hartmont and Co. had assigned or agreed to assign it to "the vendors;" that the purchasers believed that the working of the deposits on the island of Alto Vela and the other patents of Professor Forbes and Mr. Price would be very profitable, and that a company should be formed to work the patents and products of the island with a capital of £200,000, divided into 20,000 shares of £10 each; the first issue to consist of 12,000 shares. The contract then provided that the consideration for the sale of the concession should be the sum of £65,000, of which £20,000 was to be paid in fully paid-up shares, and the rest in cash. The contract then specifically stated that the vendors had delivered to the purchasers copies of all the documents of title showing their rights to the concession, and had produced to the purchasers' solicitors, who had examined the same, all the original documents of title; "and the purchasers by the now stating agreement testified their acceptance of the vendors' title thereto," and the purchase was to be completed on or before the 3rd of July, 1871. The plaintiffs contended that the object of the parties to that agreement was not the bonâ-fide working of the concession or patents, but to obtain the control of a large number of shares in the plaintiffs' company and procure a settling day on the Stock Exchange and quotation of the shares in order to speculate for their own benefit. The plaintiffs' bill also stated that the last-mentioned agreement was prepared by Mr. Ramsden, and approved by Messrs. Elmslie and Co.; the former having insisted on and the latter having struck out a clause protecting the proposed company from the consequences of a forfeiture of the concession, although warned by counsel that the due compliance with the requisitions in that respect was essential to the existence of the concession. On the 8th of May, 1871, the plaintiffs' company was duly registered under the Acts of 1862 and 1867, with the prescribed capital of £200,000, divided into 20,000 shares of £10 each; and Messrs. Cockburn, Grant, Green, Lonsdale, and Keir signed the memorandum of association. It is unnecessary, at this stage of the case, to refer more particularly to the articles of association of the company, which were fully set out or referred to in the bill in the suit. Soon after the formation of the company, Mr. Hartmont was appointed a director, and afterwards chairman of the Board of Directors, which office he held till November, 1872. Immediately after the incorporation of the company the directors issued a prospectus, stating, among other things, "that the vendors had expended more than £39,000 up to that time in connexion with the island of Alto Vela, besides the payment to the San Domingo Government." The plaintiffs alleged by their bill that that statement was, as the defendants knew, untrue, and inserted in the prospectus on the sole authority of Mr. Forsyth. The prospectus also stated that £5,000 in fully paid-up shares had been allotted to those parties who subscribed the money necessary for thoroughly testing the various processes connected with the patents. That sum, the plaintiffs alleged, was to be in full satisfaction of all the claims of those parties. After the issuing of the prospectus, applications came in for shares, and 8,107 were allotted; but of these shares 4,500 were applied for by Messrs. Hartmont and Co. and others of the defendants and their nominees. On the 29th of May, 1871, Messrs. Lawson and Son sold the concession and letters patent to the plaintiff company for £65,000, subject, as to the concession, to the payment of the royalties and the other matters stipulated for by it. The £65,000 was to be paid or provided for in the manner mentioned in the contract. The bill in the suit then set forth a number of details, to which, also, a precise reference is not now required, and stated, among other things, that the defendants, Messrs. Hartmont and Co., Mr. Ogle, and Messrs. Engelbach and Keir, requested the directors of the company, and the directors obtained for those defendants on a certificate which the plaintiffs alleged was untrue, a settling day on the Stock Exchange for the quotation of the shares in the company. Hartmont and Co. then obtained the leave of the directors of the company to enter into a contract, through Messrs. Oppert and Co. with some eminent French financiers for the sale to them of some of the patents belonging to the company for a sum of £250,000, payable in 12 months. A meeting was called, and in lieu of that it was stated that a sum of £150,000 in cash might be procured immediately. The shares in the company then rose considerably, and Mr. Hartmont, in March, 1872, sold 1,000 of his shares at £56 per share. The proposed acceptance of the £150,000 was, however, afterwards declined at a meeting of the company, and Messrs. Oppert paid, on account of the other sum, as much as £14,000. The plaintiffs insisted that Mr. Hartmont furnished the Messrs. Oppert with that amount in order to give colour to the transaction which he had really been throughout instrumental in furthering. No other sums were ever paid in respect of the proposed contract with the French financiers. The result of the dealings between the defendants was that the shares of the company fell so low as £3 per share in the market. The Dominican Government, also, in August, 1872, cancelled the agreement for the concession under the powers which they had originally reserved to themselves, and refused to recognize the transfer of it to the plaintiff company. The bill in the suit prayed that the sale of the concession to the plaintiff company was fraudulent and ought to be set aside; that the combination alleged in the bill of the defendants (other than Mr. Malleson) might also be declared fraudulent; that the payment by the directors of the £65,000 or that concession was a breach of trust on their part, and that all the defendants engaged in the transaction as vendors, or as promoters, directors, or solicitors of the company were bound (together with the estate of Messrs. Lawson and Son) to make good to the company the sum of £65,000 so improperly paid, as above mentioned; or that, at all events, the £15,000 wrongly paid to Messrs. Englebach and Keir should be repaid by them to the company. The bill also prayed that some of the defendants should repay other money improperly paid (as it was alleged) to them out of the company's assets, and for other relief. The above is a condensed statement of the case as it is disclosed on the plaintiff's pleadings. The arguments on behalf of the company, which had already occupied four days, were not yet concluded. Mr. J. Napier Higgins, Q.C. (who was two entire days in opening the case for the plaintiffs), contended that, on the facts and evidence of the whole of it, there had been, as regarded the Messrs. Hartman and Co., the most extraordinary and unprecedented course of dealing which this Court, or, indeed, any Court, had ever been called upon to consider, and argued that on every ground of fraud and breach of trust on the part of the defendants (whom and whose misconduct respectively he particularly referred to) the company were entitled to the relief they sought in this suit. Mr. Horace Davey was with Mr. Higgins, Q.C., and Mr. Melville was with them; Mr. Glasse, Q.C., Mr. J. Pearson, Q.C., Mr Cotton, Q.C., Mr. H. M. Jackson, Q.C., Mr. Westlake, Q.C., Mr. Locock Webb, Q.C., Mr. Montagu Cookson, Q.C., Mr. Whitehorne, Mr. Romer, Mr. J. R. Griffith, Mr. Cepo, and Mr. Terrell were for the several defendants.

Digitized by Google

QUEEN'S BENCH DIVISION, WESTMINSTER.

November 20.

(Before Mr. Justice MELLOR, Mr. Justice QUAIN, and Mr. Justice FIELD.)

WALKER v. THE BANAGHAR DISTILLERY COMPANY.—This was a case of importance as to the procedure under the Judicature Acts. By the Companies' Act, 1862, the Court of Chancery is empowered to grant injunctions staying proceedings when actions are brought against companies which are in the process of being wound-up. This was the case with the defendants' company, the dates of the proceedings being as follows:—On the 6th of October notice was given of a meeting to wind-up the company. On the 18th of October the meeting was held, and the requisite consents obtained to a resolution for voluntarily winding-up; the plaintiff attended and voted in favour of the resolution. On the 19th of October notice was given of a general meeting to confirm the resolution. On the 22nd of October the plaintiff issued a writ in an action in this Division for money paid. Mr. Meadows White now moved to stay further proceeding in this action. There had been a difference of opinion in the profession as to whether the proper course under the Judicature Act is to apply to the Division in which the action is brought or to that in which the company is being wound-up. Mr. White stated that the two days' notice of the application required by the Judicature Act had been given, but the plaintiff did not appear to show cause. The Court, without giving reasons, made the order on the terms that the costs already incurred by the plaintiff should be added to his debt.

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY.

November 19.

(Before Mr. Registrar PEPYS, sitting as Chief Judge.)

The Court was occupied during nearly the whole day in hearing arguments upon an appeal from a decision of Mr. Registrar Keene, allowing registration of a resolution for a liquidation by arrangement in the case of Thomas Stammers Webb, colliery proprietor, of Gracechurch-street. Mr. Hemming, Q.C., and Mr. Leeson were counsel for Mr. Gibbs, the appellant; Mr. Winslow, Q.C., and Mr. Goodman for the respondent. The case is not likely to be disposed of for some time.

IN RE M. COIN.—This was a sitting for public examination. The bankrupt formerly carried on business in Wilson-street, Finsbury, and Cutler-street, Houndsditch, as a wholesale clothier. Upon the case being called on, the bankrupt did not appear, and Mr. Townend, for the trustee, stated that he had absconded. His Honour ordered the usual memorandum of non-attendance to be entered.

IN RE V. CHARD.—The bankrupt was described as a stock and share broker, of 31 Threadneedle-street. He appeared before the court on a statement which returned debts of £4,938, and assets, £150. His Honour now confirmed a scheme of arrangement, whereby the creditors would receive a composition of 2s. 6d. in the pound, and the adjudication be annulled.

Digitized by Google

November 20.

(Before the Hon. W. C. SPRING-RICE, sitting as Chief Judge.)

IN RE LESLIE.—This was a sitting for examination. The bankrupt was an East India agent, carrying on business at 32 St. Mary-Axe as Leslie, Rivington, and Co., and his accounts disclosed liabilities £47,121, chiefly in relation to Messrs. Collie and Co., with assets £355. The bankrupt passed his examination without opposition.

IN RE ARMIT.—This was a sitting for examination. The bankrupt, Robert Henry Armit, was described as a commission and financial agent, of 33 Abchurch-lane, and 93 Regent-street; and it appeared he was engaged in a scheme for the colonisation of New Guinea. His balance-sheet returned liabilities of £23,778, with book debts estimated to produce £1,123; unliquidated claims, £98,000; other property, £4,000; and surplus from securities in the hands of creditors, £724. Mr. H. Brett, the trustee, opposed in person, on the ground that the balance-sheet was insufficient. After an examination of the bankrupt, who stated he desired to complete his bankruptcy in order that he might proceed to New Guinea, his Honour gave the trustee leave to hold a private sitting, at which further inquiry might be made, but declined to grant any order for further accounts.

November 22.

(Before Sir J. BACON, Chief Judge.)

EX PARTE ROBINSON—RE ROBINSON.—This was an appeal arising out of the failure of T. M. Robinson, a woollen merchant, carrying on business at Leeds. The question mainly in issue was whether a surety with whom the liquidating debtor had, without the knowledge of his creditors, deposited goods as security for the amount agreed to be paid by him, was entitled to the benefit of the goods so deposited, or whether, in the event of a subsequent liquidation by arrangement, the trustee appointed thereunder was not entitled. The county court judge sitting at Leeds came to the conclusion that inasmuch as the arrangement with the surety had been concealed from the creditors, the trustee under the second liquidation was entitled to the goods, and Mr. Robinson, the surety, appealed.—Mr. Little, Q.C., and Mr. G. W. Lawrance appeared for the appellant; Mr. De Gex, Q.C., and Mr. Northmore Lawrence supported the order of the county court judge.—The Chief Judge said that there was no evidence of fraudulent concealment from creditors of the deposit of the goods as security, and it appeared that the property had been parted with for full value. It would be unreasonable, under the circumstances, to hold that the trustee under the second liquidation was entitled to the property deposited with the appellant, and his lordship therefore discharged the order of the county court judge.

(Before Mr. Registrar KEENE.)

IN RE W. H. AND J. R. CARTER.—The debtors were licensed victuallers and proprietors of the Saint Helena Gardens, Rotherhithe. They had petitioned under the liquidation clauses, and the creditors have determined to liquidate by arrangement; the accounts showing debts to the amount of £1907, and assets £121 7s. 6d.—Mr. Field applied for leave to register the resolutions, and stated that although the assets appeared to be small it was proposed that the business of the Saint Helena Gardens should be continued with a view to benefitting the creditors. No resolution granting the discharge had yet been passed. Mr. Hardwick opposed registration, upon the ground that there were practically no assets divisible among the creditors. His Honour said it was clear that after payment of the expenses of the proceedings there would be nothing available for the creditors, and upon the authority of a decision of the Chief Judge in the case of "Staff" refused registration.

November 23.

(Before Mr. Registrar PEPYS, sitting as Chief Judge.)

IN RE ALEXANDER COLLIE AND CO.—This was a sitting for public examination. The bankrupts, Messrs. Alexander and William Collie, were merchants, carrying on business at 17 Leadenhall-street, and Aytoun-street, Manchester, under the firm of Alexander Collie and Co. They were adjudicated upon the petition of the London and Westminster Bank, in respect of a debt of £1,400 due upon a bill of exchange dated the 4th of January, 1875, drawn by the debtors upon and accepted by Charles Carnie, and payable six months after date; and the act of bankruptcy upon which the adjudication proceeded was the presentation by the debtors of a petition for liquidation. A joint statement of affairs filed by Mr. William Collie returns the following items:—Dr. — Creditors unsecured, £90,025; ditto, subject to payment of their acceptances, £1,274,292; creditors partly secured, less value of securities, £?9,418; creditors for rent, rates, &c., £844; and liabilities on bills discounted, estimated to rank £464,579. Cr.—Stock-in-trade at Manchester, £38,789; book debts estimated to produce £22,767; cash in hand, £9,914; bills of exchange and other similar securities, estimated to produce, £7,363; freehold premises, furniture, fixtures, and fittings, at Aytoun-street, Manchester, estimated surplus after payment of balance of purchase-money, £75,000; other property, £32,160; bills of lading in hand, £2,427; surplus from securities in the hands of creditors, £31,046; and sundry assets requiring time for realisation, a judgment against a debtor, and further amounts, estimated at £509,875. A statement of the affairs of Alexander Collie, filed but not signed by him, shows debts of £1,641, with assets, £45,054, inclusive of bankrupt's house at Palace-gardens, Kensington, furniture, and effects, subject to lien, £28,755; pictures, water-colour drawings, and paintings, £14,500. The debts of William Collie separately, are returned at £68, with assets, comprising property of various descriptions, £14,936.

Mr. J. Linklater, for the trustee, said the facts of this case were so notorious that he would scarcely be justified in bringing them before the court again. The bankrupts failed a short time since, and the trustee had every reason to suppose that one of them would not be in attendance. The other had filed a statement which the trustee considered wholly insufficient, but he was in this difficulty, that he could not examine the bankrupt thereon, seeing that the whole matter was pending before another tribunal, and appointed to be heard on the 18th of December. He would ask for an adjournment for three months. Alexander Collie, on being called, did not appear. Mr. Registrar Pepys asked whether the other bankrupt objected to an adjournment until after Christmas. A solicitor's clerk, by whom he was represented, said he did not object. His Honour granted an adjournment until the 12th of January.

IN RE SHAND AND CO.—The bankrupts, Messrs. Charles Shand, Alexander Shand, and Ralph Abram Robinson, were merchants, carrying on business at 23 Rood-lane and elsewhere, and they had been adjudicated upon the petition of the London and County Banking Company. A statement of affairs returned liabilities of £341,980, with assets, comprising book debts, bills of exchange, and other property, inclusive of surplus from securities in the hands of creditors, £38,368. There was also an estimated surplus from the separate estates in the case of Mr. C. Shand of £5,425; A. Shand, £2,714; R. A. Robinson, £223. This was a sitting for examination. The trustee did not oppose; Mr. Finlay Knight appeared for the bankrupts. The bankrupts passed their examination.

November 24.

(Before Mr. Registrar MURRAY, sitting as Chief Judge.)

IN RE ALEXANDER COLLIE AND CO.—This case was again brought before the Court this morning upon an application by the trustee to restrain an action commenced against him by

Digitized by Google

Mr. Palin, a cloth manufacturer, carrying on business in Mosley-street, Manchester. It would appear that on the 6th of April last Mr. Palin received an order from Messrs. Collie for 2,000 pieces of grey shirtings, of certain dimensions, at 8s. 4½d. per piece. One thousand pieces were delivered on the 29th of May, and 1,000 on the 9th of June, to the debtors. Messrs. Collie rejected 340 of the pieces as not being according to the order, and Mr. Palin assented to the rejection, and afterwards Messrs. Collie became bankrupt. The trustee took possession of the 340 pieces as part of the property of the bankrupts, and Mr. Palin had since commenced an action in the High Court of Justice to recover the shirtings and damages for the detention. Another action, brought under similar circumstances by another creditor, against the trustee was also pending, and the Court was asked to restrain the second action too. Mr. Linklater appeared for the trustee in support of the application. Mr. Finlay Knight, for the plaintiffs in the actions, raised the objection that, having regard to the terms of the 24th Section, 5th Sub-section, of the Judicature Act, 1873, the Court had no longer jurisdiction to restrain an action brought against a trustee under a bankruptcy, and contended that even if the jurisdiction remained, the court would not exercise it in a case of this description. After hearing Mr. Linklater in reply, His Honour held that, having regard to the provisions of the 72nd Section of the Bankruptcy Act, and the authorities which had been decided under it, this court was the proper tribunal to deal with a case of this nature, and that the right course for the respondents to have taken was to have applied to this court to decide the question between themselves and the trustee. It was clear that, under the 9th Section of the Amendment Act of 1875, the jurisdiction of this court remained unaffected; and the 24th Section, 5th Sub-section, of the 1873 Act did not apply to this particular case. The goods had been taken possession of by the trustee as part of the property of the bankrupts, and that seemed to bring the matter within the 72nd section of the Bankruptcy Act. He thought the trustee was entitled to an injunction restraining the actions, but upon an undertaking to accept service of notice of any application in the case to be made in this court supported by affidavit.

In re Kilburn and Kershaw.—This was a sitting for the public examination of H. W. Kilburn. Messrs. Kilburn and Kershaw carried on a very large business as silk piece brokers at 28 St. Mary Axe, and were adjudicated in July last. Kershaw absconded, a reward of £200 being offered for his apprehension. The joint statement produced by Kilburn shows a total unsecured liability of £201,456, as against assets of £6,577 12s.; his separate statement shows debts of £10,513, against assets £7,300. No opposition was made to the passing of the bankrupt, and His Honour accordingly allowed him to pass. The usual memorandum was entered against Kershaw.

In re A. and W. Collie.—This case was again before the Court upon an application by the trustee to stay proceedings instituted by creditors in the Manchester Court to recover the value of certain parcels of goods rejected by the bankrupts as not being in accordance with contracts with these creditors, but which were at present in the hands of the trustee, forming a part of the property on the bankrupt's premises at the time the petition for liquidation was presented. After hearing Mr. J. Linklater for the trustee and Mr. Finlay Knight for the creditors, His Honour stayed the proceedings at Manchester, holding that the proper tribunal to try the questions at issue was the London Bankruptcy Court.

Messrs. Samuel Freeth and Co., of the Phœnix Iron Works, Millwall, and the West Drayton Iron Works, whose failure we announced in September last, have obtained a settlement for seven shillings and sixpence in the pound. The instalments of cash and bills are now payable by the trustee, Mr. Robert A. McLean, 8 Old Jewry.

LIVERPOOL COUNTY COURT.

November 12.

(Before Mr. J. F. Collier, Judge.)

In re William Hughes.—This was an application for the court's approval of a resolution of creditors whereby they agreed to accept a composition of 1s. in the pound, and consent to the bankruptcy being annulled. The bankrupt was described as a metal merchant's clerk in Argyle-street, and his statement of accounts disclosed debts £301 and assets £382. Mr. Monkhouse, for Mr. Byrne, the trustee, stated that he had investigated the affairs of the bankrupt, and had made an affidavit to the effect that in his opinion, the offer of the bankrupt was a reasonable one to accept, having regard to the unrealisable character of the assets, which consisted of equities in cottage property. His Honour, on perusing the affidavit, said he was not satisfied that the offer was a reasonable one. The court stood in the position of guardian of the interest of the minority of the creditors unrepresented by the resolution of the statutory majority; and seeing the wide variance between the bankrupt's estimate of his assets and that of the trustee, he thought more detailed information should be given as to the precise value of the assets. Mr. Monkhouse respectfully submitted that where the court found that the resolution was carried by the statutory majority of creditors its functions were simply to approve thereof and give effect to their wishes. Under the previous Bankruptcy Act, in a similar proceeding to the present, the court had to be satisfied that the terms of the resolution were reasonable and calculated to benefit the general body of creditors; but the omission of such a provision from the present act, as well as its general scope, namely, to give effect to the wishes of the statutory majority of the creditors, pointed to the action of the court being purely ministerial. His Honour thought otherwise, and considered the court had a discretion in granting or withholding its approval. Mr. Monkhouse bowed to the ruling of the court, and applied for an adjournment to supply the requisite information, which was granted to the 3rd December.

In re Maurice Williams.—This bankrupt, a cotton broker in Liverpool, was allowed to pass his public examination. Mr. Rutherford (from the office of Messrs. Miller, Peel, and Hughes) represented Mr. Bolland, the trustee, and Mr. Sampson the bankrupt.

In re F. J. Granville and Co.—This was a bankruptcy which took place in 1872, the firm then being cotton brokers in Liverpool. The present was an adjourned sitting for the public examination of Mr. Granville, the other member of the firm having already passed and been allowed his discharge. Messrs. Bateson and Co. appeared for Mr. Banner, the trustee; and Mr. George Norris for the bankrupt. The trustee having stated that the bankrupt had been fully examined, he was allowed to pass his examination.

In re Thomas Byrne.—This bankrupt was a merchant in Walmer-buildings, and the present application was for his discharge, in conformity with a resolution of the creditors approving of the same. The liabilities were £3,629, and assets £20. Mr. Kennedy, instructed by Messrs. Tyrer and Kenion, appeared for Mr. Banner, the trustee. The court granted the desired discharge.

In re George Stead.—This was a motion for an order to declare void a transfer made by the debtor, a druggist at Widnes, to his shopman, shortly prior to his liquidation, of his stock-in-trade and effects. Mr. Kennedy (instructed by Messrs. Tyrer and Kenion) represented Mr. Bolland, the trustee, and Mr. Etty the respondent. Mr. Etty took exception to the motion proceeding, on the ground that it was not supported by affidavit, as required by rule 50. Mr. Kennedy, in reply, submitted that the rules were merely directory, and not imperative; and where, as in this case, the motion was founded upon the evidence of the party sought to be affected, there was no necessity to serve him with a copy thereof; for, if he had spoken the truth, he must know what he had said; and if he had not spoken the truth, it gave him an opportunity to place a different complexion on the transaction now that he saw it was impeached. Further, on the examination Mr. Etty attended, and had full liberty to examine his client and elicit the whole account of the transaction if it had been left imperfect by the examination in chief; and therefore, even if he had been served on the present motion with a copy of the examination, it was too late either to add to or amend the same. His Honour said, as he understood the practice had hitherto been to serve the party sought to be affected by the application with a copy of the evidence upon which it was founded, he saw no sufficient reason to deviate therefrom in the present instance, but he would consult with his learned colleague as to the future practice. The motion was then adjourned to the 19th instant.

Digitized by Google

MANCHESTER COUNTY COURT.

(Before MR. J. A. RUSSELL, Q.C., Judge.)

RE HAND C. O'HANLON.—An application of importance to debtors whose affairs are in liquidation was made in this court by Mr. Edgar, of the firm of Boote and Edgar, solicitors, Manchester, on behalf of the debtors to register the resolutions passed at the first meeting of the debtor's joint and separate creditors for liquidation of the debtor's affairs by arrangement and not in bankruptcy. Mr. Best, solicitor, Manchester, for Mr. Turner, a creditor for £463, opposed the registration of the resolutions on the ground that they had not been passed bona fide for the benefit of creditors, but obviously in the sole interest of the debtors. This, he contended, was clearly evidenced by the fact that the debts shown to be due from the debtors on their separate statement of affairs were put down at £2,951 11s. 7d., whilst the only asset disclosed was a mortgaged reversionary interest estimated by the debtors to produce £52, and that estimate was wholly unreliable. On the joint estate the liabilities were £3,906, and the only asset disclosed was a claim of £259 15s. 3d. alleged to be due from a Mr. Robin, who also appeared on the other side of the account as a creditor for £521 12s. 7d., and would of course exercise his right of set-off. His Honour held that the statement of affairs disclosed a state of things which he could not sanction. It would not only be against the principle of, but a fraud on the law of bankruptcy to permit registration under the circumstances, and he accordingly refused to allow the resolution to be registered.

APPOINTMENTS.

[The Editor will be glad to receive early notice of appointment of Liquidators and Auditors for insertion in this Column.

A petition to wind-up the Carmarthenshire Anthracite Coal and Iron Company, Limited, has been presented to the High Court of Justice.

Vice-Chancellor Bacon has appointed Mr. J. Waddell official liquidator of the Tinfoil Decorative Painting Company, Limited.

Mr. J. H. Tilly, of Messrs. Tilly and Company, has been re-elected auditor of the Frontino and Bolivia Gold Mining Company, Limited.

Messrs. Tilly and Company, Victoria Buildings, Queen Victoria Street, have been appointed auditors of the Vale of Neath Dinas Fire Brick and Cement Company, Limited.

Vice-Chancellor Malins has this day made an order to wind-up the Wedgewood Coal and Iron Company, Limited. Mr. Frederick B. Smart, accountant, 85 Cheapside (F. B. Smart, Snell and Co.), being appointed liquidator.

Vice-Chancellor Bacon has appointed Mr. Frederick Warwick, of Bucklersbury, the official liquidator of the United Bituminous Collieries Company, Limited, on the petition dated 13th November, 1875.

FAILURES.

ENGLAND.—The failure is announced of Mr. Sloane Richards, metal merchant, of Birmingham, with liabilities amounting to £100,000 or thereby. The cause of stoppage is understood to be serious losses through the failure of several of Mr. Richards' customers. These losses have crippled his operations for some time past, and a large claim for £50,000, and an alleged contract which could not be carried out, compelled suspension. The assets are set down at £18,000. Mr. C. A. Harrison is the accountant, and Messrs. Tyndall, Johnson, and Tyndall the solicitors.—C. E. Ochsenbein: this debtor who carried on business as a corn, seed, and oil merchant, in Crutched Friars, has filed a petition for liquidation, estimating his total liabilities at £60,000, of which about £30,000 is expected to rank against the estate, the value of the assets being as yet unascertained. Mr. William Cornish Cooper, of No. 7 Gresham-street, public accountant, has been appointed the receiver and manager by order of the Court, on the nomination of creditors.

It is notified by Mr. Ferdinand Wolfskehl that the 22nd drawing of Debentures Royal Hungarian 1870 Loan took place at Pesth on the 15th inst. These debentures will be cashed by Messrs. Wolfskehl of Liverpool.

BANKERS' CLEARING HOUSE.—The following is the official return of the checks and bills cleared in the Bankers' Clearing house for the week ending Wednesday, November 24:—

Thursday, November 18	£13,181,000
Friday, November 19	12,667,000
Saturday, November 20	14,881,000
Monday, November 22	13,349,000
Tuesday, November 23	14,755,000
Wednesday, November 24	12,824,000
	£81,657,000

The total at the corresponding period of last year was £88,752,000.

LATE ADVERTISEMENTS.

AN ACCOUNTANT, wishing to commence, may hear of an Established Business.—Two offices, furnished.—No premium. In Brown-street, Manchester.—Address, Mr. Hanley Wilson, "Poste Restante," General Post Office, Manchester.

ACCOUNTANT, with thorough knowledge of Bankruptcy, County Court, and Common Law—declining own practice, seeks appointment as chief in Solicitor's or Accountant's office, where ability, experience, and application will have scope, and meet with appreciation.—Address, Accountant, care of Mr. Alfred W. Gee, Advertising Agent, 62 Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

MONEY to LEND to BORROWERS residing in town or Country, from £50 upwards repayable in one sum, from one to five years, at five per cent. interest on personal security; also on mortgage of freehold or leasehold property from 3 per cent., for a term of years to be agreed upon. No commission.
Apply to R. F. PRESTON, Esq., 120 Southampton-row, London, W.C.

ACCOUNTANTS may greatly facilitate their office work, and materially increase their profits, by printing liquidation notices, &c., by Zuccato's Papyrograph, which is used by a large number of London and Provincial Accountants, including John L. Lovering and Co.; Gamble and Harvey; Andrews and Mason; Nicholls and Leatherdale; Slater and Pannell; John Bath and Co.; Sydney Smith, and Co.; Ladbury, Collinson, and Viney; Arthur Barron and Co.; Edmunds, Davis, and Clarke; &c. For 2½d., 500 4to. copies can be taken upon any kind of dry paper, by an office boy in a copying-press at the rate of 10 a minute. For price list and testimonials, apply to WALTER HENRY, Papyrographic Depôt, 409 Strand, W.C.

Digitized by Google

"The source of many a writer's woe has been discovered."

PENS! PENS!! PENS!!

"They come as a boon and a blessing to men,
The Pickwick, the Owl, and the Waverley Pen."
"The misery of a bad Pen is now a voluntary infliction."

Another blessing to men! The Hindoo Pen. 1,200 Newspapers recommend them. See Graphic, 17th May, 1873.

Sold by every respectable Stationer. Post 1s. 1d.

Patentees, MACNIVEN & CAMERON, 23 to 33 Blair-street, Edinburgh.

J. DEFRIES' AND SONS'

CHANDELIERS, IN CRYSTAL, BRONZE, AND ORMOLU.

TABLE GLASS AND CHINA.

Dinner Services, Gilt Pieces, £4 10s.

KEROSENE and MODERATOR LAMPS for INDIA.

Works:—London and Birmingham.

WEDDING AND BIRTHDAY PRESENTS.

NEW DECORATIONS for the DINING TABLE.

FOUNTAINS.

STORER'S Patent Perpetual Perfumed CRYSTAL TABLE FOUNTAIN, for Dining, Hall and Drawing Rooms, in Crystal and Gilt, £2 17s. 6d. to 100 guineas.

FETES AND REJOICINGS.

BALLROOMS and GARDENS, &c., DECORATED and ILLUMINATED for Evening Parties. Tents, Temporary Rooms, and Banqueting Halls erected.

CRYSTAL and BRONZED CHANDELIERS.

TABLE GLASS and CHINA LENT ON HIRE.

J. DEFRIES and SONS, 147, HOUNDSDITCH.

Five minutes' walk from the Bank of England.

RUPTURES—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS s allowed by upwards of 500 Medical Men to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided, a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the manufacturer, Mr. JOHN WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London. Price of a single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., 31s. 6d, Postage Free. Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. An Umbilical Tsusr, 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. P.O.O. to be made payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

TRADE MARK.

NEW PATENT ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS, &c. for Varicose Veins, and all cases of Weakness and Swelling of the Legs, Sprains, &c. They are porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and are drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price from 4s. 6d., 7s, 6d., 10s, to 16s. each. Postage free.

CHEST EXPANDING BRACES, for both sexes. For gentlemen they are a substitute for the ordinary braces. For children they are invaluable; they prevent stooping and preserve the symmetry of the chest. Prices for children, 5s. 6d. and 7s. 6d. Adults, 10s. 6d., 15s. 6d., and 21s. each. Postage free.—JOHN WHITE, Manufacturer, 228 Piccadilly, London.

EPPS'S COCOA.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—See article in the Civil Service Gazette.

STAR LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY,

48 MOORGATE STREET, LONDON, E.C

DIRECTORS.

CHAIRMAN—

Mr. Alderman McArthur, M.P.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—

William Mewburn, Esq.

H. J. Atkinson, Esq.
Thomas Ball, Esq.
Walter Griffith, Esq.
George M. Kiell, Esq.
George Lidgett, Esq.
Sir Francis Lycett.
William Merry, Esq.
John Napier, Esq.
Jonathan S. Pidgeon, Esq
John Vanner, Esq.
S. D. Waddy, Esq., Q.C., M.P.

Assurance and Annuity Fund	1,216,115	13	5
Annual Income (1874)	223,613	2	0
Bonuses Apportioned	581,774	6	2
Claims Paid	1,140,151	1	8

Copies of the Report, Balance Sheet and Prospectus can be obtained on application to the Head Office.

W. W. BAYNES, Secretary.

THE ONLY AND SPECIAL

"MEDAL FOR PROGRESS,"

Was awarded for "Feuerfeste Eisone Schranke und Kunstchlosser Fortschritts," to

HOBBS, HART, & CO.

AT THE VIENNA UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION.

This Medal is only given to Exhibitors whose New Inventions testify marked Progress.

"FIRE-PROOF SAFES; AND LOCKS AND ENDLESS CHANGE LOCKS AND KEYS,"

Invented especially for Safes and Strong-Room Doors, to frustrate the use of False Keys.

N.B.—The continued security and secrecy of a Lock, fixed on a Safe or Strong-Room Door, depends on the fact that there are no false duplicate keys of that Lock in existence. The object of a Lock is twofold—security against burglars, and secrecy against prying curiosity. A new change in this Lock may at any time be obtained in five minutes by simply filing away the thickness of a hair from one or more of the steps of the Key. The Lock, by a simple movement of the Regulator, is thus made to adapt itself to the NEW KEY, after which no other Key will open the Lock.

The Lock and Key may thus be easily altered into what would be virtually a NEW LOCK and KEY, as often as may be desired, without the aid of a Lockmaker or of any second person, thus frustrating the use of fraudulent copies of the original Key (see the Safe Robbery in Dublin of £630, vide "Times," 12th September, 1875). This Lock affords effectual protection from duplicate or "Master" Keys secretly made in manufactories; very extensive robberies (in one case 13 Safes in one vault) having been effected by this means.

HOBBS, HART & CO.,

LOCK, SAFE, AND STRONG-ROOM DOOR MANUFACTURERS.

76 Cheapside, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

MANSION HOUSE CHAMBERS, 11 QUEEN VICTORIA STREET, LONDON, E.C.

First issue of Capital, £500,000, in Subscriptions of £1 and upwards. No further liability. Open to all. Each cash subscriber is entitled to interest in lieu of dividend, at the rate of £1 10s. per cent. per month, 18 per cent. per annum, which will be paid in Cash.

TRUSTEES.

Lieut.-General J. H. Gascoigne, C.B., Ivybridge, Devon.
The Rev. W. F. Good, D.D., Newton Abbott, Devon.
H. R. Snelgrove, Esq., The Vicarage, Exmouth.
Henry Walker, Esq., Fowler Height, Blackburn.

ACCOUNTANTS AND AUDITORS.

Messrs. R. W. Hudswell and Co., 23 Martin's Lane, Cannon Street, London, E.C.

MANAGER AND PROPRIETOR. — RICHARD BANNER OAKLEY, F.R.G.S.

Current accounts opened, and 5 per cent. interest allowed on the minimum monthly balances. Cheque Books supplied. The Bank grants credits and issues circular notes for the Continent and America, and transacts every description of sound Financial Business.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street, ISSUES GUARANTEED CHEQUES for any sum not exceeding £20 against cash deposits, without any charge for commission, the penny stamp being the only expense. These are very convenient for persons not having banking accounts, or not wishing to draw small cheques. They are payable on demand at all the Branches of the Co-operative Credit Bank, or can be passed through any bank in ordinary course.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street, is NOW ISSUING PROMISSORY NOTES from £5 upwards, payable three months after date with interest at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum if held to maturity, or payable on demand without interest. These are very useful to persons requiring short investments, and are perfectly negotiable instruments.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The ONLY SAFE and FIRM SYSTEM of BANKING.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The PEOPLE'S BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—No Promotion Money or Preliminary Expenses.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Managerial Remuneration Dependent on Profits.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Profits on the whole amount of the Liability.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Minimum of Risk, its operations being spread over a variety of subjects.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—No Liability beyond amount of subscription.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The Secrecy and Despatch of Individual Management.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—A fixed instead of an uncertain Scale of Profits.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Eighteen per Cent. per Annum paid Monthly.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—A constantly accruing Reserve Fund.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Power of Total Withdrawal after six months on Sixty Days' Notice.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street, City.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Book-keeping in the hands of the Subscribers.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Quarterly published Balance-sheet issued and certified by the Subscribers' Accountant.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Current Accounts opened and Five per Cent. allowed on the Minimum Monthly Balances.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK. — Furnishes Cheque Books for Customers.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK grants Credits and issues Circular Notes for the Continent and America.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK transacts every description of Sound Financial Business.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK introduces Public Loans.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK promotes Public Companies of a bona-fide character.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK negotiates the Discount of Bills and Mortgages on a Small Commission.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK negotiates Loans on Deposit of Deeds and other valuable Securities.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK assists in the Development of Patents for Useful Inventions.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK undertakes on Commission the Purchase and Sale of Stocks and Shares.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street, near the Mansion House.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK accepts the Agencies of Foreign and Country Banks and Merchants, and of Foreign Governments.

IF YOU WANT TO HAVE YOUR BUSINESS done Cheaply and Expeditiously, go to the CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

IF YOU WANT TO BE TREATED WITH CIVILITY, lodge your Money with the CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

IF YOU WANT THE BEST AND MOST RELIABLE COMMERCIAL INFORMATION OF THE DAY, ask the Manager of THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK,
Mansion House Chambers,
11 QUEEN VICTORIA STREET, LONDON.

BRANCHES at Bath, Blackburn, Denbigh, Dundee, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Inverness, Liverpool, Manchester, Warrington, Bristol, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Shields, Woolwich, Sunderland, Bishop Auckland, Exeter, Blyth, Bradford-on-Avon, Newton Abbott, Neath, Newport (Mon.), Middlesborough, Plymouth, South Shields, Worcester, Sheffield, Salisbury, Tow Low, Brompton, Leicester, Moreton-in-the-Marsh, Hull, Norwich, Portsmouth, Easingwold, Birmingham and Greenock.

Digitized by Google

THE METROPOLITAN AND PROVINCIAL
LAND, ESTATE, HOUSE, LICENSED VICTUALLERS' & GENERAL BUSINESS TRANSFER "SYNDICATE" AGENCY,
Registered according to Act of Parliament, Head Offices, No. 8 Craven-street, Charing Cross, W.C. The organisation and working system of the "Syndicate" are;—1st.—The Sale, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Ground of Rents, Freehold and Leasehold Land, Farms, Estates, Houses, Hotels-Public Houses, Inns, Beer Houses, Restaurants, Coffee Houses, Tobacconists, Drapers, and every other description of Business, Furniture, Objects of Art, or Goods of any description by Auction or Private Contracts 2nd.—The letting, or disposing of, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Land-Farms, Estates, Furnished, or Unfurnished Houses Chambers, or Offices under private contract. 3rd.—The Collection of Rents and the recovery of outstanding accounts. 4th.—The Surveys and Valuation of Land, Farms, Estates, and Houses; also Valuations of Furniture, Jewellery, and other Effects, for probate and other purposes. 5th.—The transaction of all other business usually transacted by Auctioneers, Surveyors, Land, House, Estate and Insurance Agents. 6th.—The negociations of partnerships, and from unlimited connection with capitalists, monetary advances on real and personal securities, as well as merchandize, and every other description of property intended forabsolute sale, or otherwise. 7th. Generally the carrying out of all things incidental or conducive to the above objects, and every of them; also the laying out of estates and surveys for delapidations. The "Syndicate" from their extended connection with the Trades' Protection Societies and other sources, undertake expeditiously for Clients and others to ascertain reliably the status of parties, and make inquiries of a private and confidential character Liberal terms to Accountants in town or country introducing business.

OLD FALCON HOTEL, GRAVESEND.
Proprietor—W. SKILLETER.
Late Chef de Cuisine to His Grace the Duke of Argyll.
Visitors to Gravesend will find every accommodation at the Old Falcon Hotel, East Street. Public and Private Rooms facing the River, directly opposite Tilbury Fort, and with a capital view of the Thames Shipping.
FISH DINNERS AND WHITEBAIT.
BED AND BREAKFAST FOR GENTLEMEN £1 1s. PER WEEK.
And an equally low Tariff for Dejeuners, Dinners, &c.
Five Minutes' walk from North Kent Railway, and Two Minutes from the Piers, and Tilbury and Southend Railway.

RESTAURANT,
13 OXFORD STREET,
Near the corner of Tottenham-court-road.
Known as the BODEGA, now under the new management of Mr. L. BOECKER, late of 13 Idol-lane, City.
Luncheons from the joints, hot or cold, including vegetables and bread, 1s. 3d
Dinners from 12 till 4 o'clock, from the joint, with soup or fish, vegetables, cheese and bread, 2s.
Dinners from 6 till 9 o'clock, from 2s. 6d. to 10s. 6d.
Private Dining Rooms for large and small parties on the Second Floor.

THE BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY'S ANNUAL RECEIPTS EXCEED THREE MILLIONS.

HOW TO PURCHASE A HOUSE FOR TWO GUINEAS PER MONTH
With immediate Possession and no Rent to pay.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO PURCHASE A PLOT OF LAND FOR FIVE SHILLINGS PER MONTH.
With Immediate Possession, either for Building or Gardening purposes.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK FREEHOLD LAND SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO INVEST YOUR MONEY WITH SAFETY AT £4 PER CENT. INTEREST.
Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BANK. All sums under £50 repayable upon demand. Current Accounts opened similar to ordinary Bankers. Cheque-books supplied. English and Foreign Stocks and Shares purchased and sold, and Advances made thereon.
Office Hours from 10 till 4; on Mondays from 10 till 9, and on Saturdays from 10 till 12 o'clock.
A Pamphlet containing full particulars may be obtained post-free on application.
FRANCIS RAVENSCROFT, Manager.

H. D. RAWLINGS,
PURVEYOR OF MINERAL WATERS TO

H. R. H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.
H. R. H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH.
H. R. H. THE PRINCE CHRISTIAN.
THE LATE EMPEROR NAPOLEON III.
AND THE PRINCIPAL COURTS OF EUROPE.

Gold Medallist of the Societe Nationale Agricole Manufacturiere et Commerciale de Paris.
SODA, BRIGHTON, SELTZER and all other Mineral Waters for HOME CONSUMPTION and EXPORTATION.
PRICE LISTS on Application, at the Manufactory, Nassau-street, W.

ALFRED W. GEE,
ADVERTISING AGENT,
62, GRACECHURCH STREET,
LONDON, E.C.
London Gazette Notices, and Advertisements and Announcements of all kinds for English, Colonial, and Foreign Newspapers promptly inserted.
N.B.—In the case of an ordinary Advertisement ordered for insertion in a number of Newspapers, only one MS. copy need be forwarded. Same rates charged as at the Publishing Offices.

Printed and Published for the Proprietor by WILLIAMS & STRAHAN, 7 Lawrence Lane, Cheapside. NOVEMBER 27, 1875.

Digitized by Google

The Accountant.

A MEDIUM OF COMMUNICATION BETWEEN ACCOUNTANTS IN ALL PARTS OF THE UNITED KINGDOM

VOL. I.—NEW SERIES.—No. 52.] SATURDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1875. [PRICE 6D.

TO PUBLIC COMPANIES, &c.

"THE CHRISTIAN UNION,"

The largest Religious Penny Journal in the World.

IS INVALUABE AS A MEDIUM for Advertising to Public Companies, Charities, Commercial Houses, Auctioneers, Estate Agents, Capitalists, Bankers, Shippers, Railway Companies, Exporters, Merchants, Manufacturers, Share Brokers, Insurance Companies, Benefit Societies, Building Clubs, Public Schools, Colleges, Institutions, Hotels, Tutors, Governesses, Secretaries, Managers, Clerks, etc., etc.—Applications for advertisement space to be addressed to ALFRED W. GEE, Advertising Agent, 62 Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

PUBLISHING OFFICE:—108 Fleet-street, London, E.C.

TO OVERWORKED ACCOUNTANTS.—A Gentleman (aged 40), an experienced man of business, and a thorough and very expeditious Auditor, with audits of £200 a year, seeks to ally himself with an Established Accountant. Remuneration, first 12 months, by salary, if desired; afterwards out of profits or otherwise. Strictest integrity.—Address "Scrutator," office of The Accountant.

A FIRM OF ACCOUNTANTS AND AUDITORS with a large and increasing practice, require an articled clerk. Premium 250 guineas, and a corresponding salary will be given. Address Auditor, care of Mr. ALFRED W. GEE, Advertising Agent, 62 Gracechurch Street, E.C.

LARGE LIGHT OFFICES on the Fourth Floor. Rents £10 and £15. Apply to Housekeeper, 26 Budge-row, Cannon-street, E.C.

AN ACCOUNTANT, wishing to commence, may hear of an Established Business.—Two offices, furnished.—No premium. In Brown-street, Manchester.—Address, Mr. Hanley Wilson, "Poste Restante," General Post Office, Manchester.

ACCOUNTANTS may greatly facilitate their office work, and materially increase their profits, by printing liquidation notices, &c., by Zuccato's Papyrograph, which is used by a large number of London and Provincial Accountants, including John L. Lovering and Co.; Gamble and Harvey; Andrews and Mason; Nicholls and Leatherdale; Slater and Pannell; John Bath and Co.; Sydney Smith, and Co.; Ladbury, Collinson, and Viney; Arthur Barron and Co.; Edmunds, Davis, and Clarke; &c. For 2½d., 500 4to. copies can be taken upon any kind of dry paper, by an office boy in a copying-press at the rate of 10 a minute. For price list and testimonials, apply to WALTER HENRY, Papyrographic Depôt, 409 Strand, W.C.

Established 1843.

PERIODICAL SALE OF REVERSIONS, ANNUITIES, LIFE POLICIES, SHARES, &c.

MESSRS. MARSH, MILNER, AND Co., are preparing their printed particulars for the forthcoming Monthly AUCTION, which is held the FIRST THURSDAY in every month. To insure due publicity, particulars of Properties intended to be included in the next sale should be forwarded, without delay, to the City Land and Reversion Offices, 54 Cannon Street, London.

LAND, Domains, Mountain Ranges, Woods, Forests, and Important Residential Estates. Messrs. MARSH, MILNER, and Co., Land Valuers and Timber Surveyors, have a number of WEALTHY BUYERS DESIROUS of INVESTING in AGRICULTURAL, SPORTING, and RESIDENTIAL ESTATES. OWNERS of marketable properties wishing to effect advantageous sales are therefore invited to forward plans and particulars, which, when received, will be judiciously placed before intending purchasers, publicity being carefully avoided, and written terms settled before any cost or liability is incurred. Address Messrs. Marsh, Milner, and Co., Land and Timber Surveyors, 54 Cannon-street, London, E.C.

MESSRS. MARSH, MILNER, AND Co.'s REGISTER of LANDED ESTATES, Town and Country Residences, and property of every description, is published Monthly, and may be obtained at the Auction, Land, and Estate Agency Offices, 54 Cannon-street, E.C., or will be forwarded by post on application.

MORTGAGES promptly NEGOTIATED upon Landed Estates, City Properties, and upon sound securities of all kinds. Messrs. MARSH, MILNER and Co., have at the present time access to large sums of Money ready to be immediately advanced upon approved securities. Apply at the City Land and Reversion Offices (Established 1842), 54 Cannon-street.

LOVEWELL BLAKE, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT, RECEIVER, AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY.

SECRETARY TO THE GREAT YARMOUTH TRADERS' ASSOCIATION.

OFFICES: HALL QUAY CHAMBERS, GREAT YARMOUTH.

J. F. TITCHMARSH, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT AND AUDITOR,

17 PRINCESS STREET, IPSWICH.

RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY AND LIQUIDATION.

WILLIAM EDWARDS, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT AND AUDITOR,

GRANVILLE PLACE, STONE ROAD, LONGTON, STAFFORDSHIRE.

RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY AND LIQUIDATION.

CHARLES LOWDEN, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT, RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY,

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.

REFERENCES GIVEN.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

89 BROAD-STREET, BRISTOL,

JUNE 24TH, 1875.

The PARTNERSHIP hitherto existing under the Style or Firm of HANCOCK, TRIGGS, & CO., having been DISSOLVED by mutual consent, I beg to give notice that I purpose henceforth to CARRY ON BUSINESS as a PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT at the above address.

PHILIP TRIGGS.

MESSRS. BARRETT AND PATEY,

PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS,

90 LONDON WALL, E.C.

HAVING removed from No. 8 Finsbury Circus, to more commodious offices at the above address, will be pleased to hear from Accountants resident in the provincial and manufacturing towns who require agents in London.

Digitized by Google

MR. FERDINAND WOLFSKEHL,
BANKER,
9 STEINWEG, FRANKFORT A/MAIN, GERMANY,

CALLS THE ATTENTION of Investors to different Continental Government Securities, guaranteed by Acts of Parliament, through which Capital and Interest ARE SECURED BEYOND ANY DOUBT.

Every one of these Loans must be repaid as per Plan attached to each Debenture, within a limited number of years, by periodical Drawings, OFFERING ADVANTAGES PRESENTED BY NO OTHER SECURITIES, WITH BONUSES AT EACH DRAWING, varying from

£10 to £30,000.

For full particulars apply by letter, addressed care
MESSRS. WOLFSKEHL BROTHERS, BANKERS,
LORD STREET, LIVERPOOL.

MR. FERDINAND WOLFSKEHL announces the following Drawings:—

The 70th DRAWING of 1,400 IMPERIAL AUSTRIAN 1858 £10 CREDIT DEBENTURES, and the 42nd BONUS DRAWING of 1,500 IMPERIAL AUSTRIAN 4 per cent. 1854 £30 DEBENTURES took place on the 1st instant, at Vienna. The 9th BONUS DRAWINGS of 120 RAAB GRAZ 4 per cent. £15 1871 DEBENTURES, took place at Ofen on 1st instant.

He will Forthwith Cash or Exchange any of the above-mentioned Debentures against other Debentures, Stocks, Shares or Obligations.

To secure safe delivery of Letters, Mr. F. W. requests that all communications should be addressed care of

Messrs. WOLFSKEHL BROTHERS, Bankers,
3 LORD STREET, LIVERPOOL,
Of whom full particulars of the above Drawings can be had on application.

P S.—The Imperial Austrian 1858 Credit Debentures, Series 1,006, No. 78, drawing a Bonus of £1,000, has been sold by Mr. F. W. to a Gentleman residing in London.

Royal Hungarian (1870 Loan) Debentures.—The 22nd DRAWING of 800 DEBENTURES, upon redemption on the 15th of May next, took place at Pesth on the 15th instant. I have forwarded the list with full particulars to

Messrs. WOLFSKEHL, BROS., Bankers, Liverpool,
at whose offices they can be seen, and who are prepared, on my account, to cash any of these DEBENTURES forthwith.

FERDINAND WOLSKEHL.
Frankfort-am-Main, Nov. 16th, 1875.

WILLIA M & STRAHAN,
Legal, Accountancy, & General Printers,
MANUFACTURING STATIONERS, &c
7 LAWRENCE LANE, CHEAPSIDE, LONDON.
Bankruptcy Forms, Statements of Affairs, Dividend Notices, Balance Sheets, &c., printed with despatch.
STEAM PRINTING WORKS, LAMBETH, S.E.

TRANSLATIONS.
MR. ALFRED W. GEE,
BRITISH AND FOREIGN ADVERTISING AGENT,
62 GRACECHURCH STREET, LONDON, E.C.,

Begs to announce that in compliance with a wish expressed by some of the subscribers to the Accountant, he has made arrangements for the translation of legal and commercial documents, correspondence, &c., into the Principal European Languages. Members of the Profession are therefore respectfully informed that arrangements can be made for efficient and speedy translations into, or from, the French, German, Italian, Spanish, and Dutch Languages on Moderate Terms.

The Accountant.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

The ACCOUNTANT is printed and published in time for Friday evening's mail; price 6d. per copy, or 28s. per annum (including postage), the reduced terms for payment in advance being: annual subscription 24s. (post free); half-yearly ditto, 13s. (post free). Cheques and Post-office orders to be made payable to Mr. Alfred W. Gee, 62 Gracechurch-street, E.C., to whom applications for advertisement space, and letters relating to the general business of the paper, should also be addressed. Literary communications should be directed to the Editor of the ACCOUNTANT at the same address, and in order to ensure insertion in the current number, correspondents are respectfully requested to forward their copy as early in the week as possible.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The Proprietor desires to call the attention of Advertisers to the special advantages offered by the paper as an Advertising medium. Starting with a good guaranteed circulation, and with the entire concurrence and hearty support of the leading members of the profession, the ACCOUNTANT has achieved a large measure of success in a wide field hitherto unoccupied by any professional organ. The ACCOUNTANT thus secures to Advertisers an excellent circulation of an exclusive character; and is particularly valuable as a medium for the announcements of members of the profession, as to Estates and Declaration of Dividends, and the appointment of Trustees and Receivers; for Publishers, Printers, Law Stationers, Auctioneers, and Estate Agents; for the Advertisements of Insurance and Public Companies; and for Notices as to Investments, Vacant Partnerships, &c. Advertisements intended for insertion in the current number, should reach the office on Thursday; late announcements can, however, be received up to 12 o'clock (noon) on Friday.

N.B.—Copies may be obtained at Messrs. W. H. Smith and Sons, Strand, at their numerous Railway Bookstalls, and at the Shops of the leading City and West-End Newsvendors.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.

In consequence of numerous applications from subscribers, the proprietor has made arrangements for the supply of CASES for holding and preserving the Accountant, which may be obtained at the office on the following terms:—In green cloth (well got up), with elastics, and "The Accountant" in gold letters on front, 3s. each; same in leather, 4s. 6d. each. Subscribers' names in gold lettering, 1s. extra. Post Office Orders payable to ALFRED W. GEE, 62 Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

The Accountant.

DECEMBER 4, 1875.

The doctrine of novation has received a fresh illustration from the judgment of the Court of Appeal in two representative cases in the European Assurance Company's Arbitration. The Lord Chancellor, assisted by the two Lords Justices, has decided these cases in the manner in which it was generally anticipated he would decide, but the grounds of the decision differ apparently from those principles of legal presumption which were so strongly contested before the arbitrators. The battle raged on the point as to what acts on the part of a policy-holder constituted a novation, or a release of his claim against the old company, and an acceptance of the new one as his sole debtor. If his opinion were consulted, and he agreed to the transfer, he was bound by his action, and his rights against the old company went at once. But in those numerous cases in which a man was transferred from one company to another, nolens volens, many nice points arose, and the three arbitrators differed mightily among themselves as to the main principle by which these cases were to be governed. Hence Hort's case excited some interest, and was looked upon with eager expectation as finally setting the point at rest. The result in both cases was curious. The Court decided in favour of the presumption of novation, but on curiously commonplace grounds. The fine-drawn distinctions as to the meaning of the policy-holders' acts were summarily disregarded, and the case was decided on the plain words of the contract. There was, it seems, a power given to the Royal Naval and Military Assurance Company to make over their funds to any other society which would take upon itself the obligation of paying their policy-holders. That being so, Mr. Hort's claim failed. He had signed away all his rights; the company had transferred him and his claim, in pursuance of the power he had consented to allow them, and it was too late for him to complain.

There is an obvious moral to be drawn from this case, which we commend to our readers' attention, and which should be carefully laid to heart by every one who has any dealings with Assurance Companies;—that is, that before signing any agreement, terms, or conditions, they should be carefully read over, and professional advice taken on any doubtful points. Nothing is more striking in the way in which large companies of every kind do business, than the cool manner in which they hedge themselves round with conditions and stipulations which place the unlucky person who has to contract with them completely at their mercy. The ordinary conditions of a policy are hard enough on the insurer, without such a clause as that to which Mr. Hort fell a victim. There are plenty of pitfalls for the unwary, in the shape of conditions, which may at any moment vitiate the policy, and proofs of various matters which, at the time when they are required, may be almost impossible to obtain, without an additional power enabling the company at any time to make a clean sweep of its liabilities. Doubtless in the present case every thing was done with the most perfect fairness and openness, but such a power is open to the greatest abuse. The companies urge, in answer to those who complain of the over-stringency of their conditions, that they are intended as a necessary protection against rogues, and not to be pressed severely against honest claimants. But insurers would do well to insist upon such terms as could not, by any possible interpretation, be made instruments, in the hands of a penurious or illiberal company, of oppressing and delaying those who ask for their own. But if people will enter into agreements without reading or endeavouring to comprehend them, they must take the necessary consequences.

The anticipations which we expressed a week or so back as to the ultimate decision in the crossed cheque case have been realised, and our indignation at the short-comings of those draftsmen who frame acts of parliament which no one can construe, must be tempered with admiration for the skill of those judges who can construe a statute in a mode directly opposed to its plain grammatical sense, and to the avowed intentions of its framers. Why an act which is on the face of it intended to restrict the negotiability of a cheque, should have its plainest phrases wrested from their meaning, because they fulfil the very purpose they were intended to fulfil—that of making a cheque less negotiable, it is hard to see. The interpretation which the judges have put upon the act renders it almost a dead letter. There is one point, too, that they do not seem to have sufficiently considered. Granting that a cheque is intended to be as transferable as a bank note, so far as the drawer is concerned, it is hard to interfere with the rights of the holder. A man who has no banker may reasonably complain if he has to open a banking account, or seek the aid of a friend, to get his due, and may ask to be paid by a document which is easily negotiable. But surely, if he chooses himself to restrict his powers of negotiation he is at liberty to do so. As the law now stands, a man who receives a cheque after banking hours, cannot make it secure. The thanks of the felonious are due to the judges for the assistance that has been extended to them in carrying on their nefarious career.

Digitized by Google

THE PAPYROGRAPH.—We are glad to call the attention of Accountants to the advantages to be derived from the use of Zuccato's Papyrograph now introduced into the offices of professional and mercantile firms in the City by Mr. W. Henry, of 409 Strand. In cases where circular letters or a considerable number of copies of any document are required, the papyrograph is of great service. In ordinary cases it is necessary either to write each copy separately, or to use the somewhat slovenly manifold, by which from four to six copies may be written at once, but with the Papyrograph process a letter written on prepared paper can be reproduced to the extent of a couple of hundred clean respectable looking copies in about an hour by a smart office boy, and a much greater number can be printed from the original, of course, in a proportionately longer space of time.

The Banker's Magazine furnishes the returns of the circulation of the Private and Joint-Stock Banks in England and Wales for the four weeks ending the 30th of October. These returns, combined with the circulation of the Scotch and Irish Banks for the same period, and the average circulation of the Bank of England, for the four weeks ending the 27th October (the nearest date furnished by their returns), will give the following results of the circulation of notes in the United Kingdom when compared with the previous month:—

	Oct. 30.	Oct. 2.	Increase.	Decrease.
Bank of England	£28,326,747	£28,135,792	£690,955	—
Private Banks............	2,694,427	2,496,421	198,006	—
Joint-Stock Banks... .	2,400,648	2,312,926	87,722	—
Total in England ...	33,921,822	32,145,139	976,683	—
Scotland	6,238,417	6,098,978	139,439	—
Ireland	8,238,863	7,140,293	1,098,570	—
United Kingdom......	£48,399,100	£46,184,412	£2,214,692	—

And as compared with the month ending the 31st of October, 1874, the above returns show an increase of £1,467,232 in the circulation of notes in England, and an increase of £2,334,863 in the circulation of the United Kingdom. On comparing the above with the fixed issues of the several Banks, the following is the state of the circulation:—

The English Private Banks are below their fixed issue	£1,113,565
The English Joint-Stock Banks are below their fixed issue	252,345
Total below fixed issue in England	£1,365,910
The Scotch Banks are above their fixed issue............................	£3,489,146
The Irish Banks are above their fixed issue	1,884,369

The average stock of bullion held by the Bank of England in both departments during the month ending the 27th of October was £24,841,920, being a decrease of £3,043,138 as compared with the previous month, and an increase of £2,965,969 when compared with the same period last year. The following are the amounts of specie held by the Scotch and Irish Banks during the month ending the 30th of October:

Gold and Silver held by the Scotch Banks	£4,401,849
Gold and Silver held by the Irish Banks..................................	3,393,001
Total	£7,794,850

—being an increase of £644,587 as compared with the previous return, and an increase of £565,966 when compared with the corresponding period last year.

SUPREME COURT OF JUDICATURE.

COURT OF APPEAL, LINCOLN'S-INN.

November 25.

CANNOT v. MORGAN.—Mr. J. Pearson, Q.C., applied in this case under the 51st order of the new Rules of Court for an order to transfer this action, which was, on the 11th instant, commenced in the Chancery Division of the High Court, to the Queen's Bench Division. The action, which was to recover damages for an alleged untrue representation made by the defendants, was stated to be one which ought to be tried before a jury, and would be more conveniently tried in the Queen's Bench Division. It appeared that in February last the plaintiff commenced an action in the Court of Queen's Bench against the same defendants for the very same matter, and on the 30th of October discontinued such action on the usual terms of paying the costs. Under the old practice if he had commenced another action at law against the same defendants for the same matter, the defendants would have been entitled to have the proceedings in the second action stayed until the costs of the first action had been paid. Those costs had not yet been paid, and this was an additional reason for making the transfer asked for. The Lord Chancellor.—Under the present practice there is no reason why an action for damages should not be brought in the Chancery Division, and there tried by a jury. I think I should be doing what was never intended if I were to fetter in any way the right which the rules give to the suitor to choose the Division in which he will bring his action, merely because some persons may think that another Division would be more convenient than the one which he has selected. The other ground urged may be a good reason for applying to the Judge of the Chancery Division, to whom the action is attached, to stay the proceedings in it until the costs of the former action have been paid, by analogy to the old practice of the Common Law Courts, but it is no reason for making the transfer which is asked for.

IN RE THE EUROPEAN ARBITRATION ACTS.—HORT'S CASE.—GRAIN'S CASE.—CONQUEST'S CASE.—The hearing of the appeals in the last two of these cases was resumed from the point at which the argument broke off, as long ago as the 6th of November. The first of the cases—that of the Rev. C. J. Hort, Chaplain of the Forces at Portsmouth, was argued on the 3rd of August, on the eve of the Long Vacation, and at the conclusion of the arguments their Lordships intimated that they should not decide Hort's case while the other cases, which must stand over until November, remained unheard. The first case argued during the present sittings was that of Pratt and Harman in re the Anglo-Australian and Universal Family Life Assurance Society, in which their Lordships held, upon grounds hardly touched upon in the former decisions, that Messrs. Pratt and Harman were bound by the amalgamation and had lost all right of proof against their original company. The arguments in Grain's case were resumed this morning and soon terminated; and the case on behalf of the official liquidator in Conquest's case had been alone finished when their Lordships rose for lunch. On their return into court they proceeded to give judgment not only in Conquest's case, in which it had been intimated that they would not call upon counsel for Mrs. Conquest, but also in the reserved and very important case of Hort, upon which from the conflict of decisions it had been expected that their Lordships would deliver a written judgment, after due notice to all parties interested. From the sudden and unexpected decision of that and the other case it will be necessary first briefly to state the particulars of each case, in order to render the judgments at all intelligible, and the more so as the ground of decision was, in Hort's case at least, quite different from that taken by either Lord Romilly or Lord Westbury.

Digitized by Google

IN RE THE ROYAL NAVAL AND MILITARY, &c., ASSURANCE CO.—HORT'S CASE.—In 1855 and 1857 the Rev. C. J. Hort effected policies upon his own life for £200 and £300 in the Royal Naval Society. In August, 1866, negotiations for the transfer of the business assets and liabilities of the Royal Naval to the European Assurance Society were entered into by the directors. Circulars were sent out to the policy-holders of the Royal Naval (including Mr. Hort) informing them that the arrangements required by the deed of settlement for dissolving the society had been duly performed, and that an arrangement had been made with the European for undertaking the obligation of their policies and securing the interest of the assured, and that the European would in future be the substitute of the Royal Naval. The terms and conditions of policies would remain unaltered by the arrangement, and, although each policyholder was fully guaranteed by the covenants of the European Society in the deeds carrying out the arrangement—"Any of the assured desiring it may for greater security either have an endorsement to that effect or may have a policy guaranteeing the existing policy, or a new policy of the European Society. All communications should now be addressed and all premiums paid to the European Assurance Society, at the office, 17 Waterloo-place, Pall-mall, where the Royal Naval, &c., Department will be conducted." A circular from the manager of the European Society, which was enclosed in the Royal Naval circular, after dwelling upon the advantageous position of the European and the great benefits insured to the policy-holders of the company thus fortunately amalgamated, called attention to the option given to the Royal Naval policy-holders of having their policies endorsed, signed by three directors, and sealed with the seal of the European, or of having a new policy of the European, in lieu of the one then held in the Royal Naval. Mr. Hort sent his policies to the European Society, and they were returned to him with endorsements, sealed with the seal of the society, and signed and countersigned, to the effect that its funds and property were liable for the sums assured by the policies, provided all future premiums were paid to it. Mr. Hort continued to pay his premiums at 17 Waterloo-place, the place of business of the Royal Naval Society, and where, according to the circulars, the "Royal Naval, &c., Department" of the European Society would be conducted. The receipts for the premiums presented—if the term may be allowed—a series of dissolving views, in which, while the Royal Naval, &c., gradually, and by almost imperceptible changes, faded away and melted out of sight, the European assumed shape and prominence, until at last "European Assurance Society, Chief Office No. 17 Waterloo-place," figured boldly alone as the head and front of the premium receipts and notices. The case came before Lord Westbury, sitting as Arbitrator in the liquidation of the European Assurance Society, in April, 1873, upon a claim by Mr. Hort to retain his original right as against the Royal Naval, and his Lordship, without hearing counsel for Mr. Hort, gave a most elaborate judgment, deciding that there had been no novation of contract between the European Society and Mr. Hort, and accordingly that Mr. Hort's original right as a policy-holder of the Royal Naval continued in all its integrity. Lord Romilly, on succeeding Lord Westbury as Arbitrator, took an entirely different view upon these questions of novation; and accordingly, under the powers of the Act of last Session, Mr. Reilly, the newly-appointed Arbitrator, had stated special cases on this and other questions for the opinion of the Court of Appeal. Mr. Higgins, Q.C., and Mr. Romer appeared for the official liquidators; Mr. Ince, Q.C., and Mr. F. C. J. Millar for Mr. Hort.

IN RE THE ROYAL NAVAL AND MILITARY, &c., CO.—GRAIN'S CASE.—In 1861 Colonel Grain effected a participating policy on his own life in the Royal Naval for £400. He received the circulars which were issued upon the occasion of the amalgamation with the European in August, 1866, and paid his premiums at the European office down to the winding-up of that society in 1872. No bonus had ever been declared by the European in respect of his policy. In September, 1867, Colonel Grain being desirous of going to reside temporarily in Jamaica without forfeiting his policy, applied to the European Society for permission, which permission was granted on the term of his paying an extra premium of £16 per annum, and a memorandum to that effect was endorsed on the policy by the European Society. The policy when originally granted contained a condition that it would become void on the assured going into (among other places) Jamaica, unless he should communicate his departure to the directors (of the Royal Naval Company) and pay the additional premiums for the increased risk according to the company's existing rates for the time being, or as a Board of Directors should specially determine. The additional premium was paid by Colonel Grain to the European Society as long as he resided in Jamaica, the original premium being also paid to the European after the date of the amalgamation. The receipts given by the European for Colonel Grain's premiums contained the words "Royal Naval, &c., Department." His policy was not endorsed upon the amalgamation, and he never received any bonus from the European. In this case, Lord Romilly was of opinion that no novation had been established, and, following Lord Westbury's decision in Hort's case, that Colonel Grain had not lost his rights as a creditor against the Royal Naval. Mr. Higgins, Q.C., and Mr. Romer appeared for the official liquidators upon the present appeal; Mr. Jackson, Q.C., and Mr. F. C. J. Millar for Colonel Grain.

CONQUEST'S CASE.—This was also a case of novation. In 1861 the Wellington Reversionary, &c., Society granted to Mrs. Conquest (then a widow) a policy on her own life for £300, with profits, "such profits to be appropriated so as to make this policy payable during the lifetime of the assured." In 1863 the Wellington, having agreed to transfer its business to the British Nation, issued a circular to its own policy-holders announcing the union of the two companies and stating:—"The terms and conditions contained in the policies issued by this society will remain unaltered by the arrangement. The policy-holders are fully guaranteed for all claims under their present policies by the British Nation, by the agreement between the two companies, but any of the assured desiring or can have the endorsement to that effect on their policies of can receive new policies from the British Nation." "The Wellington policy-holders will have not only the security it the large annual income of the joint business, but it has been arranged that in all future bonuses they shall participate on an equality with all the other policy-holders in the conjoint companies." Mrs. Conquest did not have her policy endorsed nor take a new policy, but she paid her premiums to the British Nation and took their receipts until 1865, when the British Nation transferred its business to the European, after which time she paid her premiums at the office where the amalgamated business was carried on, and took the receipts, which were by a gradual process transmuted from British Nation to European. In 1867 a bonus was declared by the European, and a circular was prepared for the Wellington policy-holders, which, in the case of Mrs. Conquest, would have informed her that a bonus would be payable to her at 85 if she lived to attain that age. The letter, however, which in mistake was sent to Mrs. Conquest announced that a reversionary sum of £2 8s. had been added to her policy. Mrs. Conquest took no notice of this letter. Upon a claim by Mrs. Conquest to prove against the Wellington as a preliminary step to presenting a petition to wind it up, Lord Westbury held that there had been no novation, and that she was entitled to rank as a creditor of the Wellington Company. Mr. Higgins, Q.C., and Mr. Romer appeared for the official liquidators in support of the appeal from this decision; Mr. H. M. Jackson, Q.C., and Mr. R. J. Cust, for Mrs. Conquest, were not called upon. The Lord Chancellor.—The first question was how far the receipt from the European Society, signed by two of its directors, which was produced by Mrs. Conquest in support of her claim, showed payment of premiums in the Wellington Society. His Lordship, after stating the successive assignments from the Wellington to the British Nation in 1863, and again from the British Nation to the European in 1865, said that as between the British Nation and the European it was right and proper that premiums of the old Wellington payable to the British Nation should then become payable to the European, and therefore the production by Mrs. Conquest of these receipts given by the European would be evidence of payment to the right quarter. Then the question arose quo animo these payments were made to the European. They might have been made by Mrs. Conquest as acting on that catena of representation without any intention of altering her original contract with the Wellington, or payment might have been made on her consent to the substitution first of the British Nation for the Wellington and then of the European for the British Nation. In all these cases which had been called cases of novation it had always appeared to him to be a question of fact in the particular case. With what intent was that different payment to a different company made? Was it made with the intention of accepting as the body to whom the policy-holder was to look for payment some different body from that by which the policy was originally granted? It was important to consider what was the amount of information conveyed to Mrs. Conquest as to the arrangement between the British Nation and the European. With respect to the policy-holders there was nothing to convey to them any notice that for the future they were to pay their premiums upon any different contract from that on which they had hitherto been paid. Nothing whatever was proposed to them as to any option or choice between the accepting and rejecting the arrangement. They were told as a matter of course and as a direction which they must follow that they were to pay their premiums at the office where the two businesses were being carried on with one staff. But there was nothing calling upon them for the exercise of any choice or election; no intimation that they were to pay their premiums under any different contract or with any different result. The case was complicated by the fact that Mrs. Conquest had again married since she took out her policy in the Wellington, and he had great doubts, to say the least, whether her husband was armed with sufficient power to alter a contract by which, during her widowhood, a reversionary sum of £300 payable on her death had been secured. Neither on the first nor on the second transfer was there anything calling on Mrs. Conquest to elect. With respect to the bonus declared by the European in 1867, the circular sent to her was erroneous, and referred to a different class of policies. No notice was taken of that circular. There had been no dealing with the bonus and no assent to it, and therefore the circular issued as to the bonus did not affect the question. He was of opinion, without any doubt, that there was nothing in this case which as between the Wellington, the British Nation, the European, and Mrs. Conquest had released the Wellington from their obligation to Mrs. Conquest; that the Wellington policy still continued in force, and that Mrs. Conquest was entitled to rank as a creditor on the policy against the Wellington Company. It was to be regretted from the complications introduced by Mrs. Conquest's marriage, that this had been taken as a representative case, as it could hardly govern any other case. Lord Justice James was also of opinion that there had been nothing amounting to contract or bargaining on the part of Mrs. Conquest or her husband to accept the liability of any other company in substitution for that of the Wellington. Lord Justice Mellish concurred. On the question whether Mrs. Conquest had ex animo agreed to take the liability of the British Nation in lieu of that of the Wellington not a jury in all England would have turned round in the box for the purpose of considering whether she had assented to this substitution of liability. It was the business of directors to frame their circulars in plain terms, so as to let the shareholders understand that they had the choice between the old and the new company. Here, however, the circular was altogether ambiguous and contained nothing more than an announcement that the policy-holders must pay their premiums at a certain place, and not the same as where they had previously been paid. There was no sufficient evidence to induce the Court to say that Mrs. Conquest had ever lost her right against the Wellington.

Digitized by Google

HORT'S CASE.—The Lord Chancellor then proceeded to give judgment in this case. After referring at considerable length to the provisions of the deed of settlement and the terms of the policy, his Lordship said that the contract between the Royal Naval and the policy-holders contained in it the elements of power, proceeding on the course laid down by their own deed, to enter into an engagement to dissolve and make over the funds available for payment of the policies to any other society which would take upon itself the liability of providing funds for payment, always provided such transfer was made bona fide and without any fraudulent intent. The Royal Naval, acting upon this power contained in their deed of settlement, and following its provisions, agreed to make over the business to the European Society, and the transaction was carried out by deeds executed on the 17th of September, 1866. There was no imputation on the good faith of this arrangement, which was done openly and not in a corner. The parties professed to follow, and evidently did follow, the terms of the deed of settlement under which they were acting. The call was not in any way a case of novation, and the simple questions were, whether the Royal Naval were authorised to do what was done by them; and next, whether Mr. Hort was bound by what was so done. His Lordship, after stating the facts attending the amalgamation, said that Mr. Hort was not, under the terms of his contract with the Royal Naval, entitled in all events to come against them. It was a contract in its nature open to the chance of shifting as the Royal Naval by the terms of their deed were at liberty to hand over the funds, against which alone Mr. Hort had a claim. Mr. Hort had clear notice of what had been done. He could not, in his Lordship's opinion, have objected, and in point of fact he never did object. He was therefore a creditor of the European Society and not of the Royal Naval. Lords Justices James and Mellish also delivered judgment, and agreed with the Lord Chancellor that the case was entirely one turning upon the construction of the deeds of settlement and the terms of the policy, and that it had been too much treated on former occasions as a question of novation.

GRAIN'S CASE.—The Lord Chancellor said that this case was exactly similar to Hort's case, with this peculiarity added to it that Colonel Grain made an arrangement with the European, by which on payment of a higher premium he obtained leave to go to reside in Jamaica. It was quite unnecessary to repeat what had been already said in Hort's case, and the result was that Colonel Grain was entitled to prove as a creditor against the European only.

WINDING-UP.—A petition to wind-up the City and County Investment Company (Limited) has been presented to the High Court of Justice.

Digitized by Google

HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE.

CHANCERY DIVISION.

November 24.

(Before Vice-Chancellor Sir RICHARD MALINS.)

THE PHOSPHATE SEWAGE COMPANY, LIMITED, v. HARTMONT AND OTHERS.—The arguments in this case were continued on Wednesday: Mr. J. Napier Higgins, Q.C., argued generally, on behalf of the plaintiff company, that when the concession was sold to them in April, 1871, through Messrs. Engelbach and Keir as trustees for the company, the concession was voidable, if not void, because the clause of it which prescribed the time within which the minimum amount of material was to be exported from the island had not been complied with; that all the parties concerned in the matter, including some of the directors of the company, knew that this was the case; that even if a foreign tribunal might hold the forfeiture of the concession to have, under all the circumstances of the case, been waived, still it was a breach of trust on the part of the directors of the company to foist upon it a property the title of which depended upon such a contingency as the possible view of the law to be taken by a foreign court; that as a matter of fact the concession had since been forfeited by the Dominican Government; that there was, really, no guano or phosphate of lime in the island, but only phosphate of alumina; that the Messrs. Lawson and Son, the alleged vendors, had, at the time of the contract for the sale of the concession to the company, no interest in it at all, and that the pretended sale of it by them was, therefore, a fraud on the company; that the price of the concession was improperly increased in various ways, and notably by the sum of £15,000 in favour of Messrs. Engelbach and Keir; that the prospectus was false in several respects, and in particular in asserting that £39,000 had been spent by the Messrs. Lawson and Son on the island; and that, otherwise, as regarded the issuing and distribution of and dealing with the shares in the company, the defendants, the directors and officers of it, had so acted as to entitle the plaintiff company to the relief against them which they prayed by their bill. Mr. Horace Davey, Q.C., and Mr. R. Melville, who were with Mr. Higgins, Q.C., contended that as regarded Messrs. Elmslie, Forsyth, and Co.—or rather Mr. Forsyth—it was the plain duty of a solicitor who in any transaction, but especially in such a one as the present, acted for both vendor and purchaser, or indeed for any two parties to a contract, to give each party the best and most independent advice. The solicitor was bound to afford each party the benefit of any knowledge he might derive from the other of them, assuming, of course, that the client afforded him any such knowledge. Applying those principles to the conduct of Mr. Forsyth with respect to the preparation of the contract in this case, it was difficult, if not impossible, to see how—though no doubt the ingenuity of his counsel might, however severely taxed, make some defence for him—still it was not easy to see how those defendants, Messrs. Elmslie, Forsyth, and Co., could resist the claim which was made against them, or their firm, through Mr. Forsyth, in this suit. Mr. Davey then commented upon the remaining facts of the case, in their relation to Messrs. Engelbach and Keir—who, though trustees for the company, had seemed to think they were not bound to take so much care of its property as they would have done of their own—and also with reference to the respective positions of the other directors and officers of the company, whose cases, though in some respects similar, were yet distinguishable; and he concluded the arguments on behalf of the plaintiff company by asking for a decree as to the £65,000—or certainly, in the alternative, for the repayment of the £15,000 by Messrs. Engelbach and Keir. The right of the plaintiff company to the lesser relief sought by their bill would, he said, depend on their obtaining the greater, and needed not to be particularly discussed at this stage of the proceedings. Mr. Glasse, Q.C., for the defendants, Messrs. Hartmont and Co., Mr. Cockburn, and Mr. Begbie's assignees in bankruptcy, said that when all the facts of this case were fully stated to the court it would be found that the bill in the suit was wholly misconceived. It was based entirely on "fraud," and on the assumption that when the contract for the sale to the company of this concession was entered into the concession was voidable, if not void, and therefore valueless. But the concession was not then either voidable or void. The contract was entered into between the Messrs. Lawson and Son, in April, 1871, and the Messrs. Engelbach and Keir, on behalf of the company. It was not true that Messrs. Lawson and Son then had no interest in the concession, for they were to be paid out of the profits for their working of it; and they had, as a fact, spent not only £39,000, as stated in the prospectus, but quite £40,000 on the island. There was, therefore, no misrepresentation either as to the concession or in the prospectus. But, further than that, the bill in this suit actually referred to a letter, written in August, 1872, in which the Dominican Minister, on behalf of his Government, treated the concession as subsisting in April, 1871; and though he asserted the right of his Government to forfeit it if they thought fit to do so, yet he at the same time—August, 1872—offered to place the company in possession of the island and other mines if the company paid £8,000 extra for future royalties. The original concession could not, by the Code Napoléon, which prevailed in San Domingo, have been invalid at the time of the contract for the sale of it to the company. Where, then, was the equity of the plaintiff company against Messrs. Hartmont and Co. on that part of the case? Then it must not be forgotten who the present plaintiffs were—they were the company itself. But who were they? Why, the very persons who had signed the memorandum and articles of association, and who perfectly well knew every thing that had been done in the course of these transactions. At the time, too, of the contract, Mr. Hartmont had no interest whatever in the concern, and all those matters about which so much had been said at the bar—viz. the dealing with and distribution and appropriation of the shares, the French contract for the £250,000, and the sale of the shares for such large amounts on the Stock Exchange, after the obtaining of the settling day—had really nothing to do with the merits of this case. As to the £15,000 that was to be paid to Messrs. Engelbach and Keir as the owners of the two patents, and in respect of them alone. That payment had no reference to the island of Alto Vela. Above all, it was not a bonus or "bribe," as it had been called, to those gentlemen. He then commented on the other facts of the case in relation to Messrs. Hartmont and Co. and his other clients, and, in conclusion, said the evidence showed that phosphate of alumina was, in its nature, guanitic; and there was nothing whatever in the facts of this case to render Mr. Hartmont liable, as the plaintiff company wish to have it supposed he was. In fine, if the £65,000 were paid to the plaintiff company, they would be in possession of a sum larger than their share capital; and who would be really entitled to the surplus, and what would be—what could be—done with it? At all events, his clients should not be made liable for it. Mr. Terrell (who was with Mr. Glasse, Q.C.) then proceeded to read the defendants' evidence; and after a short time, Mr. Hartmont was called and cross-examined by Mr. Higgins, Q.C. Mr. Hartmont said that his name had not always been Hartmont, but that he assumed that name when he came to England in 1867, instead of the name of Hertzberg, as he believed the name of Hartmont could be more easily pronounced by English people. He admitted having been a bankrupt, but said that he had since paid 20s. in the pound in respect of the bankruptcy. He further admitted that he had been concerned in promoting several other companies, which had not been successful, and that in all, or most of them, the directors were the same as in the Phosphate Sewage Company. Mr. J. Pearson, Q.C., and Mr. Locock Webb, Q.C., for the assignees in bankruptcy of Messrs. Lawson and Son (who were seedsmen of London and

Digitized by Google

Edinburgh), stated that an application had been made to the Scotch Courts in connexion with the bankruptcy there to appropriate a portion of the assets in Scotland belonging to the firm to the payment of the claim contested in this suit, but without success, and that this application was now under appeal to the House of Lords. Mr. Cotton, Q.C., Mr. Westlake, Q.C., and Mr. Terrell were for Messrs. Elmslie, Forsyth, and Co.; Mr. H. M. Jackson, Q.C., and Mr. Terrell were for Mr. Ogle and Mr. Lonsdale; Mr. Montague Cookson, Q.C., and Mr. A. B. Cope were for Colonel Grant; Mr. Whitehouse and Mr. J. R. Griffith were for Messrs. Engelbach and Captain Keir; Mr. Romer was for General Green. Mr. Terrell had not concluded his address on behalf of the first defendants when the court rose on this day.

The arguments in this part-heard case were continued on Saturday.—Mr. Cotton, Q.C., for Messrs. Elmslie, Forsyth, and Co., said that it had been insisted that Mr. Forsyth was guilty of a participation in the fraud alleged to have been practised upon the company, and had, moreover, exhibited negligence in the discharge of his duties as solicitor. He would take the charge of fraud first. As to that the plaintiff company complained that they had been induced to purchase, at a large price, a concession subject to a stipulation which, not being complied with, reduced the concession itself to a nullity. But the company knew of the stipulation, and unless Messrs. Elmslie, Forsyth, and Co. knew that when the company purchased the concession it was forfeited, those gentlemen—or, rather, Mr. Forsyth—could not properly be accused of any fraud in the matter. The evidence showed that in April, 1871, when the contract was entered into with the company, there was no suggestion whatever on the part of the Dominion Government of a forfeiture of the concession. That Government never raised that question till 1872; and even if it had, "fraud" could not be "presumed" in this court against any one. It must be strictly proved, and that proof must extend to the establishment against the incriminated party of such a complete knowledge of the facts as would alone render him liable for the consequences. The evidence here showed that Messrs. Elmslie and Co. did not know, in 1871, that the exports from the island were deficient, and in that very year royalties were paid on the cargoes exported. A good deal had been said about the Messrs. Lawson and Son not being the real vendors, but did Mr. Forsyth know they were not? The Dominion Government itself dealt with them as the persons in possession, and the report of the Government which was in evidence spoke of some concessions, of which it gave a list, being in force and others forfeited. That report mentioned the concession in this case as "now being carried out." The certificate showing that was dated in February, 1871. Mr. Forsyth did not know of any deficiency on the exports till October, 1872. But it was only in that year, when the Government was discussing the question of royalties for the future, that they first adverted to a forfeiture, which they said they had a right to make, of the concession, and that, too, "in the future," clearly showing that up to that time they had had no idea of the concession not being an existing one; but if that were so, where, so far, was the fraud? At all events, there could be none on the part of Mr. Forsyth. Then as to the preparation of the contract and the statements in the prospectus; unless Mr. Forsyth knew that the Lawsons were not the vendors, there was nothing to convict him of any fraud, certainly not as against the company; and it must never be forgotten that the plaintiffs here were the company, who could not say they did not know all that was being done. How, again, could they be heard to complain at all—how in any way against Mr. Forsyth in respect of the French contract for the purchase of the patents for £250,000? The company, at all events, had actually received no less a sum than £14,000 on account of that very transaction. Even if they could say any thing as to that branch of the charge, the matters there in dispute occurred long after the contract which it was now said should be set aside. All the proved facts showed that Mr. Forsyth could not be implicated in the alleged fraud (if any there were) in this case. Then with regard to the charge of negligence. Mr. Forsyth was not the solicitor of the plaintiff company, but of the vendors, on the occasion of drawing up the contract, and it never yet was known that a solicitor could be arraigned for negligence by any one else than his own client in the matters in dispute between them. Mr. Ramsden was then the solicitor for the plaintiff company; but that was not all. Even if Mr. Forsyth could be held liable to any one for negligence, it would not be to the plaintiff company, nor in the mode attempted by them. They did not seek "damages" against him for the consequences of his alleged negligence in not properly investigating the title to the concession, but asked a decree against him for the repayment of the whole £65,000 purchase money. Mr. Forsyth never had any interest in the company, and never derived any benefit from it as a company. Mr. Cotton then went into several details of the case to show, inter alia, that the plaintiff company were to blame for the non-success of the undertaking, which, if it had been allowed to go on, would in due course have been a prosperous affair. As to the form in which the articles of the contract were drawn, they merely enabled the plaintiff company to purchase that which it was of the very essence of its constitution it should acquire. On both heads, therefore, of fraud and of negligence, he asked the judgment of the Court in his client, Mr. Forsyth's, favour.

The arguments in this part-heard case were continued on Tuesday. Mr. Montague Cookson, Q.C., for the defendant Colonel Grant, said the bill in the suit must be regarded as praying relief against all and each of the defendants on the grounds of conspiracy, collusion, and fraud, and, so regarded, it called on Colonel Grant to pay either a sum of £65,000 or £15,000. There were lesser sums claimed, but these two were the principal ones. Colonel Grant's case was quite different from those of his co-defendants, and there was no foundation for the charges against him, either from a legal or a moral point of view. He was a Colonel in the Fusiliers, and also Colonel of the Tower Hamlets Militia. In 1871, Captain Kerr spoke to him about the company. Colonel Grant was a gentleman who took great interest in the sewage question, but beyond that he knew nothing whatever of the parties interested in getting up this company. He was aware that Mr. Hartmont was the Consul-General of St. Domingo, but that was all that could so far implicate him with any one. In that state of things Colonel Grant found that the affairs of the company seemed to be all regularly conducted. There was a provisional committee formed; there was a responsible solicitor, Mr. Ramsden, acting for it; and there was a broker, Mr. Walker. Colonel Grant joined the provisional committee, and after subscribing £150, out of a total of £1,500, towards some experiments at Tottenham, went down himself with Mr. Engelbach to that place and took part in the proceedings there. For his services he was to receive some bonus shares on condition that allottees of the whole were found, sufficient to take up a sum of £25,000. The facts of the bonus shares, in which Colonel Grant was to participate, being issued, and their amounting to £5,000, were mentioned in the prospectus, and so far, therefore, there was no concealment. But then, it was said, the concession was worthless in 1870, because it did not comprise phosphate of allumina, and that Colonel Grant, as a member of the provisional committee, knew, or must, or ought to, have known that. The answer to that was that, as a matter of fact, the concession did comprise phosphate of allumina, as the evidence showed. In 1870 the concession was not forfeited, and the question of its voidability was one with which the company was the proper hand to deal when it had commenced its operations, not sooner. That question, however, never assumed a definite form till 1872. Suppose, that instead of the company being the plaintiffs in this case, an original allottee of shares had filed the bill, complaining of the misstatements in the prospectus, and, assume that the plaintiff company was in the position of such an allottee—a position really superior to their actual one—Colonel Grant would have a complete answer to any thing which, for the reasons alleged, the supposed allottee-plaintiff could say against him. Much more then could he successfully resist the present plaintiffs. The provisional committee of the company must not be confounded with Messrs. Engelbach and Keir. Colonel Grant, as a member of that committee, had nothing whatever to do with the alleged bad title to the concession, and he neither did nor could, know any thing of the so-called sham assignment to the Lawsons, and sham sale by them to the company. The bill in this suit charged that the provisional committee was formed for the purpose of carrying out the alleged fraudulent transaction, and insisted that Colonel Grant was an accomplice in those transactions because he was a member of the committee. It was very easy for a corporation, a body without a soul and without a conscience, and possessing a balance at its bankers, to institute a suit and make the most serious charges against honourable men; but it was an abuse of the powers of this Court so to launch grave imputations at the head of any man. The plaintiff company could only attempt to get the relief they prayed against Colonel Grant by straining the equitable doctrine of constructive notice beyond all possible and proper limits. Was Colonel Grant, a director of the company, bound to take more care of its property than he did of his own? He was bound to take as much care; and if he deviated from that he ought, perhaps, to try and take more care. In this instance Colonel Grant had every reason to think all was right. There was the protection afforded by Mr. Ramsden, acting for the committee, and Mr. Forsyth for the company, the one before, the other after its formation. There was, so to say, no solution of continuity. There was every thing to put him off his guard, because he had no reason to doubt the honesty of any one connected with the affair. All the shares he applied for and had allotted he paid for with his own money; any others (and there were some) were allotted under circumstances perfectly legitimate in themselves. Then with respect to his signing the certificate as to the shares, in order to obtain a quotation of them on the Stock Exchange, he was in Scotland when he signed it. It was sent to him there for signature by the secretary of the company, and with the approval of Mr. Walker, its broker. How could Colonel Grant for one moment imagine that the shares were not bonâ fide ones, and that the holders of them were mere nominees of Mr. Hartmont? He signed the certificate believing its statements to be true; but his belief in the truth of the certificate was a sufficient answer to the charge of fraud brought on that account against him. With respect to the alleged French contract for the £250,000, to be paid at the end of one year, rather than the sum of £150,000 at once, it was proved that Colonel Grant voted at the meeting for the immediate payment of the £150,000, and afterwards retired from the directorship because his views were not endorsed by the action of the company. Therefore, as to the claim against him for the £65,000, there was absolutely no ground whatever. Then with regard to the £15,000, the plaintiff company said Colonel Grant must have known that that was a "bribe" to Messrs. Engelbach and Keir. Why? An equity of a novel kind was relied upon by the plaintiffs in opening their case, an equity of "magnitude." They tried to make out that the fraud in this case was "vast," and the guilt of the defendants, one and all—except Mr. Ramsden—the deeper as the fraud grew greater. Now Colonel Grant knew nothing of the Lawsons and had no understanding whatever with the Messrs. Engelbach and Keir. Those gentlemen were to receive through Mr. Ogle, from the Lawsons, the £15,000 in respect of the patent of which they were the owners, and which patents were afterwards assigned to the company. Unless Colonel Grant had been possessed of some "divine instinct of fraud," how could he, in so regular a transaction, have suspected a fraud if there was one? But in this as in all such cases when charges so groundless were brought against gentlemen of character and position, it was very proper to consider the reputations of the persons attacked. Here was Colonel Grant, an officer of the highest and most unblemished fame, and who had long held a commission in her Majesty's service, was it likely that he would in so short a time as he was proved to have been acquainted with this company have lent himself to the frauds so lavishly imputed to him? Certainly not. The Vice-Chancellor: Nemo repente fit turpissimus. Mr. Cookson: But there was no ground for suggesting any thing of the sort against Colonel Grant at any time. The learned counsel then went minutely through the details of the case in their relation to 90 bonus shares, with the improper possession of which Colonel Grant was also charged by the bill; and after refuting those charges, and commenting on the other lesser claims against him, and on the peculiar form and constitution of the suit, concluded by insisting that the case attempted to be made against Colonel Grant wholly failed, and that so far as he was concerned the bill should be dismissed against him, with costs.

Digitized by Google

November 25.

(Before the Master of the Rolls.)

In re Joseph Suche and Co., Limited.—This was a summons by partially secured creditors of the company, which was ordered to be wound-up under supervision in January last, raising an important question under Section 10 of the Judicature Act, 1875—namely, whether in estimating the amount for which the applicants were to be allowed to stand as creditors against the assets of Joseph Suche and Co., Limited, the value of their securities ought first to be deducted, as in bankruptcy; or, whether according to the rule in Equity, they were to be allowed to stand as creditors for the whole nominal amount of their debt. The case resembled that of the Phœnix Bessemer Steel Company, decided by his Lordship at the commencement of the present sittings, with this distinction—that whereas in the Phœnix Bessemer Company's the creditors' claim had been ascertained and admitted before the commencement of the Act, in the present case the claim, though sent in before the 1st of November, had been neither admitted nor rejected. Mr. Whitehorne, in support of the summons, contended that the old rule must be followed, by admitting his clients to prove for the full amount of their debt, for the section was prospective, nothing in it being applicable to companies ordered to be wound-up before the commencement of the Act. Mr. E. B. Rogers, for the liquidators, contended that the new rule—namely, the rule in bankruptcy, must prevail; for the applicants' rights had not been ascertained before the winding up, and statutes dealing with procedure only formed an exception to the general rule that legislation is not retrospective unless expressed to be so. The Master of the Rolls said he abstained in the previous case from laying down any general rule as to the meaning of Section 10, and purposely decided the case on the narrowest possible ground, because he hoped the opinion of the Court of Appeal would be taken on the point. And in the present case he might, if he thought fit, confine himself to the particular circumstances of the case and decide that the old rule applied, on the simple ground that the claim was carried in before the commencement of the Act. But his Lordship, having consulted some of the other Judges on the subject, now preferred to decide the case on the general ground, that the section was not intended to apply to companies which were already in liquidation at the commencement of the Act. It was a general rule of the Legislature, when it took away a right of action that previously existed or created a right of action that did not previously exist, to interfere as little as possible with existing rights. It had been said that the Judicature Acts constituted a mere code of procedure, and so were applicable to all pending proceedings; but he declined to take that view of the Acts. His Lordship, in support of that view, referred to several subsections of Section 25 of the Act of 1873, to show that most important alterations of the law were effected thereby. Then, returning to Section 10 of the Act of 1875, his Lordship showed that it had no application to the case of such companies as were already in liquidation, whether the claims of creditors had already been admitted or not, and decided that the proof was to be admitted for the full amount.

Digitized by Google

November 27.

(Before Vice-Chancellor Sir RICHARD MALINS.)

RE THE BESSEMER STEEL AND ORDNANCE COMPANY, LIMITED.—The above-named company was ordered to be wound-up compulsorily on the 24th of July, 1874; and in the next month Mr. Kemp and Mr. Aylmer were appointed the official liquidators. The total amount of the debts of the company was about £170,000, of which some were admitted and others disputed. Among the admitted creditors was a Mr. Dixon, one of the directors of the company, for a sum of £44,275; his claim being for £45,000, or thereabouts. In the month of June in this year the official liquidators, on behalf of the company, entered into an agreement with Mr. Dixon for the sale to him of the assets of the company in consideration of his paying the costs of the winding-up and a composition to the other creditors of the company in discharge of their several claims. On the 24th of September last a meeting of the creditors of the company was ordered by the court to be held, and was attended, either personally or by proxy, by 69 creditors, whose debts, either allowed or appearing in the company's books, or admitted to be due, amounted in the whole to £120,002 12s. 3d. All the creditors then present at the meeting (with the exception of one who claimed £4 10s. 1d. in full for poor rates) approved the proposed arrangement with Mr. Dixon, and desired that it might be sanctioned by this court. The only persons who objected to the arrangement were the lessors of the company's premises at Greenwich, who, however, had since withdrawn their objection, and the Messrs. Payne's Fire Brick Company, who were creditors for £113 17s. The official liquidator, deeming the proposed arrangement with Mr. Dixon to be beneficial to the company, presented a petition under the Joint-Stock Companies Arrangement Act, 1870, praying for an order confirming the agreement. Mr. Glasse, Q.C., and Mr. Whitehorne, for the petitioners, said the only question was whether the agreement had been approved by the proper number of creditors required by the Act. The second section of the Act provided that the meeting of the company's creditors might approve and sanction the agreement:—"If a majority in number representing three-fourths in value of such creditors, or class of creditors, present either in person or by proxy at such meeting should agree to the arrangement or compromise," and the arrangement or compromise should, if sanctioned by an order of the court, be binding on all "such" creditors or class of creditors (as the case might be), and also on the liquidators and contributories of the company. The question, therefore, was, whether "the majority representing three-fourths in value" was to be the majority of all the creditors—in which case the £120,002 12s. 3d. were not three-fourths of £170,000, or the majority representing that value of the creditors present at the meeting? In the latter case all the creditors but one, for a very small amount, approved the agreement. Mr. Carson was for Mr. Dixon. The Vice-Chancellor thought the Act intended the majority of creditors present at the meeting, and made the order asked for by the petition.

IN RE THE RIVERS PROTECTION AND MANURE COMPANY, LIMITED.—NEEDHAM V. THE SAME COMPANY.—In this matter an action had been brought against the company in the Common Pleas Division of the High Court of Justice. The company was being wound-up voluntarily. Prior to the Judicature Acts, 1873, 1875, this court would, on an application to stay the action, have had power, under the Companies Acts, 1862 and 1867, to stop the proceedings as a matter of course. But it has recently been the subject of some difference of opinion between this and the other Divisions of the High Court of Justice whether the court intrusted with the winding-up of a company which—up to the passing of the Judicature Act had unquestionably been the Court of Chancery—or the Court in which the action was brought should stay it. The Court of Common Pleas, in a case of "Kingchurch v. the People's Garden Company, Limited," declined to make such an order, and referred the matter to the Master of the Rolls, who was then about to make an order to wind-up that company. The Master of the Rolls differed from the Common Pleas Division, and remitted the case to that Division, in accordance, as his Lordship thought, with the requirements of the Judicature Acts. In "Fawcus v. Garbutt," however, this branch of the High Court still more recently differed from the views entertained by the Master of the Rolls, so far as that learned judge thought the jurisdiction to stay actions in winding-up matters was taken from the Chancery Division of the High Court by the late statutes. Mr. Glasse, Q.C., and Mr. Berrill, now moved for an injunction to restrain the action brought by Mr. Needham against the Rivers Pollution and Manure Company, Limited. Mr. Methold, for Mr. Needham, admitted that the action would have to be stopped; but said it should—in accordance with the Judicature Act, 1873, sec. 24, sub-division 5—be stopped by the Common Pleas Division of the High Court, and not by this one. The Queen's Bench Division had, on Monday last, in a case of "Walker v. the Banagher Distillery Company," assented to a motion to stay proceedings in an action against a company in the course of winding-up. The Vice-Chancellor said the question raised in this case had been much discussed lately. In his Lordship's opinion there was nothing in the Judicature Acts that interfered with the jurisdiction of this Division of the High Court, in the winding-up of companies. This company was being wound-up voluntarily, and although that process did not bring the parties before the court, yet it gave power to apply to the court if any questions of difficulty arose in their proceedings. Creditors, however, had no right in such a winding-up to apply to the court, except by presenting a petition for an order to wind-up the company compulsorily. Whatever applications were necessary, however, must be made to this court. Before the Judicature Acts they would have been mere matters of course. His Lordship, being unable to find any thing in those Acts to take away the jurisdiction—and, he might add, the useful jurisdiction of this court—to stay actions in winding-up matters, said he thought the true meaning of these Acts was that all actions brought against companies which were being wound-up by this Division of the High Court should be stayed by that branch of this Division in which the company was being wound-up. Looking at the words of the 24th section of the Judicature Act, sub-division 5, no doubt in one sense there was no court in which this company was being wound-up, because the winding-up was voluntary. But in another sense there was a court, because this was the Court to which if this company should make any application in the winding-up it must resort. The Common Pleas Division really had nothing to do with winding-up matters, and, with every deference to it, knew from experience but little about them. His Lordship wished it to be reported as his opinion that now, in all cases of the winding-up of companies, applications of the nature of that here in question should be made to this Division of the High Court. At the same time he would say that he thought both the Court of Common Pleas Division in the case recently before it and the Court of Queen's Bench Division in the case cited were right in the views they respectively took.

EXCHEQUER DIVISION.

(Sittings in Banco before the LORD CHIEF BARON and Barons CLEASBY and AMPHLETT.)

November 12.

SHELTON V. WIGHTON.—This was an appeal from the County Court of Middlesex holden at Edmonton. It involved an important point as regards the rights of landlord and tenant. The action is one of detinue; and at the trial a verdict was found for the plaintiff,—damages £10, and £20 16s. 4d., the value of the goods, unless returned. Mr. Bush Cooper argued for the defendant, the appellant. Mr. John Cook appeared for the respondent, but was not called on by the court. The complaint is for taking the plaintiff's goods, furniture, a piano, &c. The plaintiff was a tenant of the defendant, and the alleged detention took place on the 29th of September, 1874, when the tenancy expired. The evidence was that while the plaintiff was removing her goods on the 29th, the defendant, at 12 o'clock (noon), called and claimed his rent. Thereupon the plaintiff asked for time; but this the defendant refused to grant. The defendant then came with a policeman, and ordered the goods, which were placed in a van, to be returned to the house. The goods were accordingly brought back. Afterwards the defendant got the key of the house from the plaintiff's daughter, Mrs. Herbert, who was then superintending the removal. The house was then given up to the defendant, but the goods were never returned. On the 30th of September application, in writing, was made by the plaintiff's solicitor for the return of the goods. But to this the defendant made no reply, and the writ was issued on the 3rd of October. Mr. Cooper, for the appellant, contended that there was no evidence to go to the jury of the detention. There was no tortious act done by the defendant—no physical seizure. The Lord Chief Baron said:—This seems a pretty clear case. The law invests the landlord with great, with extraordinary powers. The day after rent is due he may distrain. Any other creditor, except the Crown in certain cases, must bring an action and wait for execution. That is a power, however, which ought not to be abused, as in the present case. The defendant has a tenant who owes him rent at Michaelmas. He would have been entitled to distrain on the 30th. But he goes on the very day and sees the defendant about to remove her goods. He takes the law into his own hands. He goes and calls a policeman, he says, as a witness—it is difficult to see why. Under his authority and that of the policeman the goods are taken out of the van, where they are for the purpose of removal, and are brought back into the house, where they are now, for aught I know. The first question is whether, though he took possession, he in fact detained. I think when he laid hands on them by his agent to convey them back, until they should be restored to the owner, the defendant had possession and did detain them. If it were not so, the owner would have no more rights over them. The plaintiff had a right to convey the goods away. There is a suggestion of fraudulent removal. If so, it would have been a good defence to the action if he could have substantiated it by evidence. The law confers on a landlord the power to stop goods which are being or about to be removed fraudulently. There was no evidence at the trial to give him such right. The question then resolves itself into this—the defendant had no right to touch the things till next day; while he is in the house he prevents their removal, and deprives the owner of the right to do what she pleases with them. Within an hour or two after the defendant gets the key and some one prays him for time—till 5 o'clock. He says "No; I must have it at 3 o'clock." This was a reasonable request as the plaintiff had till midnight to pay. The refusal was cruel and oppressive and as illegal as cruel. It would have been different if a reasonable time had elapsed before the writing of the letter of the 30th, or if the defendant had returned the goods on the 1st of October, or had intimated his willingness to do so. The seizure may have been made under a mistake of law; but the defendant gives no answer to the letter of request. Had he done so there would have been evidence that he had not acted wilfully or knowingly. There was evidence for the jury, and, under the circumstances, they could not have returned any other verdict than for the plaintiff. I shall not say whether the action is entirely to be commended; but the plaintiff had a right to bring it. Baron Cleasby: The jury have come to the conclusion that before 11 o'clock on the 1st of October the goods were in the defendant's possession, and wrongfully detained. We cannot say whether this is true or no. I might have found it difficult to find so myself. Was their evidence for the jury is the sole question for us. On the day the goods are being removed the defendant sees them. Now, the defendant is bound to act reasonably. Under the supposition that he is being deprived of his rent, he directs them to be taken back. If he had only forbidden the removal, it would have been difficult to say he had taken possession. If he had no right so to forbid, he was a trespasser; but he had no right to place his hands on the goods against the will of the owner. The house was in the possession of the plaintiff, but would become the defendant's on the evening of that day. We must assume that the plaintiff wished the defendant to have possession by delivering the key. Why did not the defendant answer the letter of the 30th of September? The jury had to consider the real character of the defendant's act. I cannot say it was not for them. Baron Amphlett: I am of the same opinion. Appeal dismissed with costs.

Digitized by Google

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY.

November 26.

(Before Mr. Registrar PEPYS, sitting as Chief Judge.)

IN RE ROBERT SCOTT.—The bankrupt formerly carried on business in Trinidad as a merchant, but he was now resident in this country. He had been adjudicated in the Trinidad Bankruptcy Court, and the trustee in the matter had applied for and obtained letters of request to this court for his examination here. The bankrupt attended upon his subpœna, and it was elicited from him that he was possessed of property at Shepherd's Bush, upon which an execution had been levied by the Sheriff of Middlesex at the suit of a creditor whose debt was incurred subsequently to the adjudication in Trinidad. The trustee also claimed the property as part of the assets divisible among the creditors. Mr. Banning, for the trustee, now applied that an interim injunction granted to restrain the Sheriff from proceeding to a sale should be continued. Mr. Bagley, for the execution creditor, appeared to show cause. During the argument the Registrar pointed out that the onus was upon the trustee to prove that the Court at Trinidad would have jurisdiction to restrain proceedings at law in England. Mr. Banning contended that the foreign Court had jurisdiction, and that the property vested absolutely in the trustee. The Registrar was of opinion that the application could not be supported. The letters of request were simply that the bankrupt should be examined. This had been done, and he could not extend the letters so as to grant an injunction. Application refused.

IN RE S. G. CEFFALA AND CO.—The debtors, Messrs. Spiridion Ceffala, George Ceffala, and Richard Wiltiam Lough, are merchants carrying on business at 4, Great Winchester street, under the firm of S. G. Ceffala and Co. They have presented a petition for liquidation, with liabilities estimated at £38,000, and assets, comprising book debts, £43,000; furniture £700; and other property, £700. Mr. Spiridion Ceffala is now at Corfu engaged upon the business of the firm. Upon the application of Mr. Munns, his Honour appointed Mr. C. J. Schneidau, accountant, to act as receiver and manager of the estate.

November 29.

(Before Mr. Registrar KEENE.)

IN RE W. P. DADSON.—Mr. Marten, Q.C., and Mr. Beaumont, appeared in support of an application to register a resolution of creditors in this case to accept a composition. The debtor was a retired captain in the Royal Marine Light Infantry, and he had traded in partnership with others at 301 Strand, as the Clarendon Bank. He recently presented a petition under the arrangement clauses, and the necessary majority of the creditors had passed a resolution accepting a composition of 8s. 6d. in the pound, payable by instalments, in satisfaction of their debts. Mr. Baker (Lawrence and Co.) opposed the application on behalf of the North Kent Bank, and pointed out that the separate assets of the debtor were capable of yielding a very much larger composition than the sum offered. He stated that the debtor possessed an income of about £500 per year from other sources, and he argued that, in existing circumstances, the resolution, so far as it affected the rights of the separate creditors, was inequitable. Considerable discussion followed, and eventually Mr. Registrar Keene ordered an adjournment for one week, with an intimation that, having regard to the amount of the debtor's income, some arrangement should be made as to the separate creditors.

Digitized by Google

November 30.

(Before Mr. Registrar MURRAY, sitting as Chief Judge.)

IN RE CHARLES MORTON.—This was a sitting for public examination. The bankrupt, who was described as a theatrical manager, residing at 38, Alwyne-road, Canonbury, had been adjudicated upon the petition of Mr. Joseph Hirschmann, wine merchant, Highbury Park North, the act of bankruptcy being the non-compliance with the terms of a debtor's summons. His balance-sheet returned debts and liabilities amounting to £7,704, with assets £20. Mr. Hand appeared for the trustee, and Mr. H. Montagu for the petitioning creditor. The bankrupt passed without opposition.

December 2.

(Before Mr. Registrar BROUGHAM.)

IN RE EDWARD GARCIA.—The bankrupt, described as manager of the Knightsbridge Music Hall of Varieties, Trevor-square, Knightsbridge, applied to pass his examination on a statement of affairs showing unsecured debts £3,094, and assets £450. On behalf of the trustee it was submitted that the accounts were insufficient in every way. The Registrar said he could pay no attention to such a vague allegation. The only question was, did the accounts contain a full disclosure of the bankrupt's estate. The bankrupt was briefly examined, and it appeared that he had omitted to return in his accounts a debt that was due to his estate, upon the ground that the debt was bad. He had given the trustee all the information in his power respecting his affairs. His Honour allowed the bankrupt to pass his examination, subject to the insertion in the accounts of the bad debt omitted therefrom.

WINTER ASSIZES.

NORTHERN CIRCUIT, MANCHESTER.

November 27.

(CROWN COURT.—Before Mr. Justice LUSH.)

John Wrigley was placed in the dock charged with embezzling £404 2s. 2½d., the property of the Corporation of Bolton. He was further charged with falsifying entries and with destroying books and accounts with intent to defraud; also with embezzling another sum of £83 17s. 9d. Mr. Pope, Q.C., and Mr. Lerescho appeared for the prosecution; the prisoner was defended by Mr. Charles Russell, Q.C., and Mr. Addison. He had been in the employment of the Corporation of Bolton during a period of 22 years, commencing as a clerk with a salary of £80 per annum, finally becoming superintendent of the waterworks department at a salary of £240 per annum. Under the terms of the employment as superintendent he was to pay into the bank every two months the moneys coming into his hands, or whenever the sum collected by him exceeded £50. Evidence was given that the counterfoil receipts showed that between the 1st June and the 28th of July, 1874, the amount passing into the hands of the prisoner was £5,934 2s. 2½d. arising from water rents and payments for fittings. During that period he only paid into the bank £5,530, leaving a balance of £404 2s. 2½d. unaccounted for. On the 29th, 30th, and 31st of July, 1874, the receipts amounted to £826 14s. 2½d., the prisoner making a payment into the bank of £742 16s. 2d. on the 1st August, no moneys having been paid in on the three previous days, showing a deficiency of £83 17s. 9½d., of which no payment or account was given. On the books being examined by an accountant, serious deficiencies were found during the four previous years, amounting to £5,451. After the 1st of August, when the prisoner left the office, the counterfoil receipts exactly corresponded with the sums paid into the bank. The books, which were under the immediate control of the prisoner, had in part disappeared at the time of his apprehension, and evidence was called to prove that he was seen destroying account books in a furnace near his office in the Town-hall, Bolton, and that a portion of them from which leaves had been torn out was found subsequently concealed under the flooring of his office. The cross-examination of the witnesses for the prosecution showed that great laxity in keeping and auditing the accounts had prevailed among the officials of the Bolton Corporation, and it was powerfully urged, on behalf of the prisoner, that the charge was not fully made out against him, and that the discrepancies might have arisen by mistake. After a long and careful hearing, the jury retired to consider their verdict, and returned into court with a verdict of Guilty. The learned Judge sentenced the prisoner to penal servitude for a term of five years.

FAILURES.

ENGLAND.—Messrs. John Holmes and Co., who have for a number of years carried on business in Leeds as the Mercantile Bank, suspended payment on Thursday. It is estimated that their liabilities amount to £65,000. The business of the bank was in large part a deposit business, and as the depositors, attracted by a 5 per cent. interest, numbered from 500 to 600, there was great excitement when the stoppage of payment became known. A number of small tradesmen had their accounts with the bank. Mr. John Holmes, who established the firm, died some time ago, and the present partners are Mr. George Avison Woodhead and Mr. Joseph Holmes. The books have been placed in the hands of Messrs. John Routh and Co., accountants, Leeds, who will prepare a statement of the affairs of the firm. A petition for liquidation was filed in the Leeds County Court by Mr. T. A. Spirett, solicitor, acting on behalf of the firm.—A petition for liquidation has been filed in the Halifax County Court by George Rothwell, woolstapler, Horton-street, Halifax. C. T. Rhodes, accountant, Halifax, is the receiver, and Messrs. Ingram and Huntress, Halifax, are the solicitors in the matter. The first meeting is fixed for December 12.—John Speak, woolstapler, Halifax, has filed a petition for liquidation. C. T. Rhodes, accountant, Halifax, has been appointed receiver until the first meeting of creditors, December 14.—Mr. W. S. Wigg, jeweller, of Yarmouth, has filed a petition for liquidation. Mr. Lovewell Blake, of Hall Quay Chambers, Great Yarmouth, has been appointed receiver by the Court.

Digitized by Google

LEGAL EDUCATION.—The Inns of Court, it is semi-officially announced, are about to propound a grand new scheme of legal education. They have appointed Sir Edward Cressy, Mr. Joshua Williams, Mr. Fitz-James Stephen, and Mr. Eddis, Professors of Jurisprudence, Real Property, Common Law, and Equity, at salaries of £1,000 each. They have dismissed, or, at all events, declined to re-appoint, the previous professors and tutors. Of course, it may be said, by way of excuse for this decisive action, that the classes under the old system were small, and, in fact, grievously disappointing. No doubt this was so. The attendance was such as to discourage all concerned; and there were few signs of improvement. But we should have thought that the true cure was not to be discovered by search in the quarter to which the Inns of Court look; a more efficacious remedy would seem to be the removal of some of the obstacles which obviously opposed the success of the previous system. How could one hope that law students would sedulously attend the classes of the professors and tutors when they were obliged to prepare for examinations before other men who might not pursue the same lines as those pursued in the classes? The system hitherto existing was purely theoretical, and led to nothing. Attendance was not compulsory, it was not even clear that attendance was advantageous; hence the failure. We shall not prejudge the merits of the system which has been foreshadowed; but we may be permitted to doubt whether it is at all likely to be much more successful than that which preceded it. The future lectures are not, we understand, to be compulsory. Nobody need attend them. They are to be interesting diversions for the leisure hours of the law students. It is needless to say that unless a violent revolution occurs in the habits of law students they are scarcely likely to appreciate these theoretical disquisitions.—Observer.

BANKERS' CLEARING HOUSE.—The following is the official return of the checks and bills cleared in the Bankers' Clearing house for the week ending Wednesday, December 1:—

Thursday, November 25	£11,415,000
Friday, November 26..............	12,321,000
Saturday, November 27............	16,223,000
Monday, November 29	15,432,000
Tuesday, November 30	51,980,000
Wednesday, December 1	22,353,000
	£129,724,000

The total at the corresponding period of last year which also comprised a Stock Exchange settlement, was £135,623,000.

ATLAS OF THE COUNTIES OF ENGLAND.—Under this title Messrs. Philip and Son have published a very neat, handy, and convenient atlas, containing an index map of England and Wales and forty-seven maps of the counties reduced from the Ordnance Survey by E. Weller, and the source from which they are obtained is the best of all possible guarantees for their accuracy. The usefulness of the work is materially enhanced by an index compiled by Mr. Bartholomew, F.R.G.S., which, upon a rough calculation, contains about 450,000 references.

APPOINTMENTS.

[The Editor will be glad to receive early notice of appointment of Liquidators and Auditors for insertion in this Column.

Mr. Flaxman Haydon, (Haydon and Vivian, public-accountants) of 29 New City Chambers, 121 Bishopsgate-street Within, has been appointed receiver of the estate of William Rollason, of Leopard's-court, Holborn, and 116 Edgware-road, tin-plate worker and japanner, in liquidation.

LATE ADVERTISEMENTS.

MONEY to LEND to BORROWERS residing in town or Country, from £50 upwards repayable in one sum, from one to five years, at five per cent. interest on personal security; also on mortgage of freehold or leasehold property from 3 per cent., for a term of years to be agreed upon. No commission.
Apply to R. F. PRESTON, Esq., 120 Southampton-row, London, W.C.

RESTAURANT,
13 OXFORD STREET,
Near the corner of Tottenham-court-road.
Known as the BODEGA, now under the new management of Mr. L. BOECKER, late of 13 Idol-lane, City.
Luncheons from the joints, hot or cold, including vegetables and bread, 1s. 3d
Dinners from 12 till 4 o'clock, from the joint, with soup or fish, vegetables, cheese and bread, 2s.
Dinners from 6 till 9 o'clock, from 2s. 6d. to 10s. 6d.
Private Dining Rooms for large and small parties on the Second Floor.

THE BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY'S ANNUAL RECEIPTS EXCEED THREE MILLIONS.

HOW TO PURCHASE A HOUSE FOR TWO GUINEAS PER MONTH
With immediate Possession and no Rent to pay.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO PURCHASE A PLOT OF LAND FOR FIVE SHILLINGS PER MONTH.
With Immediate Possession, either for Building or Gardening purposes.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK FREEHOLD LAND SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO INVEST YOUR MONEY WITH SAFETY AT £4 PER CENT. INTEREST.
Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BANK. All sums under £50 repayable upon demand. Current Accounts opened similar to ordinary Bankers. Cheque-books supplied. English and Foreign Stocks and Shares purchased and sold, and Advances made thereon.
Office Hours from 10 till 4; on Mondays from 10 till 9, and on Saturdays from 10 till 12 o'clock.
A Pamphlet containing full particulars may be obtained post-free on application.
FRANCIS RAVENSCROFT, Manager.

THE METROPOLITAN AND PROVINCIAL
LAND, ESTATE, HOUSE, LICENSED VICTUALLERS' & GENERAL BUSINESS TRANSFER "SYNDICATE" AGENCY.
Registered according to Act of Parliament, Head Offices, No. 3 Craven-street, Charing Cross, W.C. The organisation and working system of the "Syndicate" are; - 1st.—The Sale, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Ground of Rents, Freehold and Leasehold Land, Farms, Estates, Houses, Hotels-Public Houses, Inns, Beer Houses, Restaurants, Coffee Houses, Tobacconists, Drapers, and every other description of Business, Furniture, Objects of Art, or Goods of any description by Auction or Private Contracts 2nd.—The letting, or disposing of, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Land-Farms, Estates, Furnished, or Unfurnished Houses Chambers, or Offices under private contract. 3rd.—The Collection of Rents and the recovery of outstanding accounts. 4th.—The Surveys and Valuation-of Land, Farms, Estates, and Houses; also Valuations of Furniture, Jewellery, and other Effects, for probate and other purposes. 5th.—The transaction of all other business usually transacted by Auctioneers, Surveyors, Land, House, Estate and Insurance Agents. 6th.—The negociations of partnerships, and from unlimited connection with capitalists, monetary advances on real and personal securities, as well as merchandize, and every other description of property intended forabsolute sale, or otherwise. 7th. Generally the carrying out of all things incidental or conducive to the above objects, and every of them; also the laying out of estates and surveys for delapidations, The "Syndicate" from their extended connection with the Trades' Protection Societies and other sources, undertake expeditiously for Clients and others to ascertain reliably the status of parties, and make inquiries of a private and confidential character. Liberal terms to Accountants in town or country introducing business.

OLD FALCON HOTEL, GRAVESEND.
Proprietor—W. SKILLETER.
Late Chef de Cuisine to His Grace the Duke of Argyll.
Visitors to Gravesend will find every accommodation at the Old Falcon Hotel, East Street. Public and Private Rooms facing the River, directly opposite Tilbury Fort, and with a capital view of the Thames Shipping.
FISH DINNERS AND WHITEBAIT.
BED AND BREAKFAST FOR GENTLEMEN £1 1s. PER WEEK.
And an equally low Tariff for Dejeuners, Dinners, &c.
Five Minutes' walk from North Kent Railway, and Two Minutes from the Piers, and Tilbury and Southend Railway.

Digitized by Google

"The source of many a writer's woe has been discovered."

PENS! PENS!! PENS!!

"They come as a boon and a blessing to men, The Pickwick, the Owl, and the Waverley Pen."
"The misery of a bad Pen is now a voluntary infliction."

Another blessing to men! The Hindoo Pen. 1,200 Newspapers recommend them. See Graphic, 17th May, 1873.

Sold by every respectable Stationer. Post 1s.1d.

Patentees, MACNIVEN & CAMERON, 23 to 33 Blair-street, Edinburgh.

J. DEFRIES' AND SONS'

CHANDELIERS, IN CRYSTAL, BRONZE, AND ORMOLU.

TABLE GLASS AND CHINA.

Dinner Services, Gilt Pieces, £4 10s.

KEROSENE and MODERATOR LAMPS for INDIA.

Works:—London and Birmingham.

WEDDING AND BIRTHDAY PRESENTS.

NEW DECORATIONS for the DINING TABLE.

FOUNTAINS.

STORER'S Patent Perpetual Perfumed CRYSTAL TABLE FOUNTAIN, for Dining, Hall and Drawing Rooms, in Crystal and Gilt, £2 17s. 6d. to 100 guineas.

FETES AND REJOICINGS.

BALLROOMS and GARDENS, &c., DECORATED and ILLUMINATED for Evening Parties. Tents, Temporary Rooms, and Banqueting Halls erected.

CRYSTAL and BRONZED CHANDELIERS.

TABLE GLASS and CHINA LENT ON HIRE.

J. DEFRIES and SONS, 147, HOUNDSDITCH.

Five minutes' walk from the Bank of England.

RUPTURES—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS s allowed by upwards of 500 Medical Men to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided, a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the manufacturer, Mr. JOHN WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London. Price of a single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., 31s. 6d, Postage Free. Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. An Umbilical Tsusr, 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. P.O.O. to be made payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

TRADE MARK.

NEW PATENT ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS, &c. for Varicose Veins, and all cases of Weakness and Swelling of the Legs, Sprains, &c. They are porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and are drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price from 4s. 6d., 7s, 6d., 10s, to 16s. each. Postage free.

CHEST EXPANDING BRACES, for both sexes. For gentlemen they are a substitute for the ordinary braces. For children they are invaluable; they prevent stooping and preserve the symmetry of the chest. Prices for children, 5s. 6d. and 7s. 6d. Adults, 10s. 6d., 15s. 6d., and 21s. each. Postage free.—JOHN WHITE, Manufacturer, 228 Piccadilly, London.

EPPS'S COCOA.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—See article in the Civil Service Gazette.

STAR LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY

48 MOORGATE STREET, LONDON, E.C

DIRECTORS.

CHAIRMAN—

Mr. Alderman McArthur, M.P.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—

William Mewburn, Esq.

H. J. Atkinson, Esq.
Thomas Ball, Esq.
Walter Griffith, Esq.
George M. Kiell, Esq.
George Lidgett, Esq.
Sir Francis Lycett.
William Merry, Esq.
John Napier, Esq.
Jonathan S. Pidgeon, Esq
John Vanner, Esq.
S. D. Waddy, Esq., Q.C., M.P.

Assurance and Annuity Fund	1,216,115	13	5
Annual Income (1874)	223,613	2	0
Bonuses Apportioned	581,774	6	2
Claims Paid	1,140,151	1	8

Copies of the Report, Balance Sheet and Prospectus can be obtained on application to the Head Office.

W. W. BAYNES, Secretary.

THE ONLY AND SPECIAL "MEDAL FOR PROGRESS,"

Was awarded for "Feuerfeste Eisone Schranke und Kunstchlosser Fortschritts," to

HOBBS, HART, & CO.

AT THE VIENNA UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION.

This Medal is only given to Exhibitors whose New Inventions testify marked Progress.

"FIRE-PROOF SAFES; AND LOCKS AND ENDLESS CHANGE LOCKS AND KEYS,"

Invented especially for Safes and Strong-Room Doors, to frustrate the use of False Keys.

N.B.—The continued security and secrecy of a Lock, fixed on a Safe or Strong-Room Door, depends on the fact that there are no false duplicate keys of that Lock in existence. The object of a Lock is twofold—security against burglars, and secrecy against prying curiosity. A new change in this Lock may at any time be obtained in five minutes by simply filing away the thickness of a hair from one or more of the steps of the Key. The Lock, by a simple movement of the Regulator, is thus made to adapt itself to the NEW KEY, after which no other Key will open the Lock.

The Lock and Key may thus be easily altered into what would be virtually a NEW LOCK and KEY, as often as may be desired, without the aid of a Lockmaker or of any second person, thus frustrating the use of fraudulent copies of the original Key (see the Safe Robbery in Dublin of £630, vide "Times," 12th September, 1875). This Lock affords effectual protection from duplicate or "Master" Keys secretly made in manufactories; very extensive robberies (in one case 13 Safes in one vault) having been effected by this means.

HOBBS, HART & CO.,
LOCK, SAFE, AND STRONG-ROOM DOOR MANUFACTURERS.
76 Cheapside, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

MANSION HOUSE CHAMBERS, 11 QUEEN VICTORIA STREET, LONDON, E.C.

First issue of Capital, £500,000, in Subscriptions of £1 and upwards. No further liability. Open to all. Each cash subscriber is entitled to interest in lieu of dividend, at the rate of £1 10s. per cent. per month, 18 per cent. per annum, which will be paid in Cash.

TRUSTEES.

Lieut.-General J. H. GASCOIGNE, C.B., Ivybridge, Devon.
The Rev. W. F. GOOD, D.D., Newton Abbott, Devon.
H. R. SNELGROVE, Esq., The Vicarage, Exmouth.
HENRY WALKER, Esq., Fowler Height, Blackburn.

ACCOUNTANTS AND AUDITORS.

Messrs. R. W. HUDSWELL AND Co., 23 Martin's Lane, Cannon Street, London, E.C.

MANAGER AND PROPRIETOR. — RICHARD BANNER OAKLEY, F.R.G.S.

Current accounts opened, and 5 per cent. interest allowed on the minimum monthly balances. Cheque Books supplied. The Bank grants credits and issues circular notes for the Continent and America, and transacts every description of sound Financial Business.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street, ISSUES GUARANTEED CHEQUES for any sum not exceeding £20 against cash deposits, without any charge for commission, the penny stamp being the only expense. These are very convenient for persons not having banking accounts, or not wishing to draw small cheques. They are payable on demand at all the Branches of the Co-operative Credit Bank, or can be passed through any bank in ordinary course.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street, is NOW ISSUING PROMISSORY NOTES from £5 upwards, payable three months after date with interest at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum if held to maturity, or payable on demand without interest. These are very useful to persons requiring short investments, and are perfectly negotiable instruments.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The ONLY SAFE and FIRM SYSTEM of BANKING.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The PEOPLE'S BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—No Promotion Money or Preliminary Expenses.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Managerial Remuneration Dependent on Profits.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Profits on the whole amount of the Liability.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Minimum of Risk, its operations being spread over a variety of subjects.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—No Liability beyond amount of subscription.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The Secrecy and Despatch of Individual Management.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—A fixed instead of an uncertain Scale of Profits.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Eighteen per Cent. per Annum paid Monthly.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—A constantly accruing Reserve Fund.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Power of Total Withdrawal after six months on Sixty Days' Notice.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street, City.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Book-keeping in the hands of the Subscribers.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Quarterly published Balance-sheet issued and certified by the Subscribers' Accountant.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Current Accounts opened and Five per Cent. allowed on the Minimum Monthly Balances.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK. — Furnishes Cheque Books for Customers.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK grants Credits and issues Circular Notes for the Continent and America.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK transacts every description of Sound Financial Business.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK introduces Public Loans.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK promotes Public Companies of a bona-fide character.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK negotiates the Discount of Bills and Mortgages on a Small Commission.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK negotiates Loans on Deposit of Deeds and other valuable Securities.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK assists in the Development of Patents for Useful Inventions.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK undertakes on Commission the Purchase and Sale of Stocks and Shares.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street, near the Mansion House.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK accepts the Agencies of Foreign and Country Banks and Merchants, and of Foreign Governments.

IF YOU WANT TO HAVE YOUR BUSINESS done Cheaply and Expeditiously, go to the CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

IF YOU WANT TO BE TREATED WITH CIVILITY, lodge your Money with the CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

IF YOU WANT THE BEST AND MOST RELIABLE COMMERCIAL INFORMATION OF THE DAY, ask the Manager of THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK,
Mansion House Chambers,
11 QUEEN VICTORIA STREET, LONDON.

BRANCHES at Bath, Blackburn, Denbigh, Dundee, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Inverness, Liverpool, Manchester, Warrington, Bristol, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Shields, Woolwich, Sunderland, Bishop Auckland, Exeter, Blyth, Bradford-on-Avon, Newton Abbott, Neath, Newport (Mon.), Middlesborough, Plymouth, South Shields, Worcester, Sheffield, Salisbury, Tow Low, Brompton, Leicester, Moreton-in-the-Marsh, Hull, Norwich, Portsmouth, Easingwold, Birmingham and Greenock.

Digitized by Google

THE

SOCIETY OF ACCOUNTANTS IN ENGLAND.

COUNCIL.

President.—JOSEPH DAVIES, Warrington. Vice-President.—JOHN BATH, London.

ALFRED ALLOTT, Sheffield.
JOSEPH ANDREWS, London.
JOSIAH BEDDOW, London.
HENRY BOLLAND, Liverpool.
JAMES CHARLES BOLTON, London.
HARRY BRETT, London.
ROBERT BUCK, Sunderland.
JOHN CALDECOTT, Chester.
WALTER NEWTON FISHER, Birmingham.
EBENEZER CHAMBERS FOREMAN, London.
JOHN BRADLY GEARD, Ipswich.
RALPH PRICE HARDY, London.
EDWARD NORTON HARPER, London.
WILLIAM COMBEN HARVEY, London.
JOHN ALISON HESELTON, Bradford.
GEORGE EDWARD LADBURY, London
FRANCIS NICHOLLS, London.
WILLIAM JOHN PARRY, Bethesda.
EDWARD THOS. PEIRSON, Coventry.
EDWARD SMITH, Manchester.
F. TENDRON, London.
JOHN HENRY TILLY, London.
LEWIS VOISEY, Warrington.
EDWIN WILKS, Plymouth.
JOHN UNWIN WING, Sheffield.

TRUSTEES.—JOHN BATH, 40a, King William Street, London; THOMAS COLTMAN, Leicester; JOSEPH DAVIES, Warrington
TREASURER.—JAMES CHARLES BOLTON, 26 Great St. Helens, and 2 St. Mary Axe, London.
AUDITORS.—R. R. ROBINSON, London; C. PEMBER, Hereford.
BANKERS.—Messrs, WILLIAMS, DEACON, & Co., Birchin Lane, London.
OFFICES—2 COWPER'S COURT, CORNHILL, LONDON.
Further information can be obtained, and copies of the Rules can be had, upon application to
ALFRED C. HARPER, SECRETARY.

H. D. RAWLINGS,

PURVEYOR OF MINERAL WATERS TO

H. R. H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.
H. R. H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH.
H. R. H. THE PRINCE CHRISTIAN.
THE LATE EMPEROR NAPOLEON III.
AND THE PRINCIPAL COURTS OF EUROPE.

Gold Medallist of the Societe Nationale Agricole Manufacturiere et Commerciale de Paris.

SODA, BRIGHTON, SELTZER and all other Mineral Waters for HOME CONSUMPTION and EXPORTATION.
PRICE LISTS on Application, at the Manufactory, Nassau-street, W.

ALFRED W. GEE,

ADVERTISING AGENT,

62, GRACECHURCH STREET,

LONDON, E.C.

London Gazette Notices, and Advertisements and Announcements of all kinds for English, Colonial, and Foreign Newspapers promptly inserted.

N.B.—In the case of an ordinary Advertisement ordered for insertion in a number of Newspapers, only one MS. copy need be forwarded. Same rates charged as at the Publishing Offices.

Printed and Published for the Proprietor by WILLIAMS & STRAHAN, 7 Lawrence Lane, Cheapside. DECEMBER 4, 1875.

Digitized by Google

The Accountant.

A MEDIUM OF COMMUNICATION BETWEEN ACCOUNTANTS IN ALL PARTS OF THE UNITED KINGDOM

VOL. I.—NEW SERIES.—No. 53.] SATURDAY, DECEMBER 11, 1875. [PRICE 6D.

IN the Matters of the QUEEN'S, BETHESDA, GLAN OGWEN, and VICTOR BENEFIT BUILDING SOCIETIES, established at Bethesda, in the County of Carnarvon, in the years 1858, 1860, and 1864 respectively.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that all parties having any claims or demands against the above-named Societies, or the Trustees of the said Societies, respectively, are hereby required to send to me, the undersigned, on or before the 18th day of December, 1875, full particulars of such claims or demands preparatory to declaration of final dividends in the matters aforesaid.

WILLIAM JOHN PARRY,

Liquidator appointed in the Matters of the said Societies.

3 and 4 William's-court, Bethesda.

TO PUBLIC COMPANIES, &c.

"THE CHRISTIAN UNION,"

The largest Religious Penny Journal in the World.

IS INVALUABE AS A MEDIUM for Advertising to Public Companies, Charities, Commercial Houses, Auctioneers, Estate Agents, Capitalists, Bankers, Shippers, Railway Companies, Exporters, Merchants, Manufacturers, Share Brokers, Insurance Companies, Benefit Societies, Building Clubs, Public Schools, Colleges, Institutions, Hotels, Tutors, Governesses, Secretaries, Managers, Clerks, etc., etc.—Applications for advertisement space to be addressed to ALFRED W. GEE, Advertising Agent, 62 Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

PUBLISHING OFFICE:—108 Fleet-street, London, E.C.

LARGE LIGHT OFFICES on the Fourth Floor. Rents £10 and £15. Apply to Housekeeper, 26 Budge-row, Cannon-street, E.C.

ACCOUNTANTS may greatly facilitate their office work, and materially increase their profits, by printing liquidation notices, &c., by Zuccato's Papyrograph, which is used by a large number of London and Provincial Accountants, including John L. Lovering and Co.; Gamble and Harvey; Andrews and Mason; Nicholls and Leatherdale; Slater and Pannell; John Bath and Co.; Sydney Smith, and Co.; Ladbury, Collinson, and Viney; Arthur Barron and Co.; Edmunds, Davis, and Clarke; &c. For 2½d., 500 4to. copies can be taken upon any kind of dry paper, by an office boy in a copying-press at the rate of 10 a minute. For price list and testimonials, apply to WALTER HENRY, Papyrographic Depôt, 409 Strand, W.C.

Established 1843.

PERIODICAL SALE OF REVERSIONS, ANNUITIES, LIFE POLICIES, SHARES, &c.

MESSRS. MARSH, MILNER, AND Co., are preparing their printed particulars for the forthcoming Monthly AUCTION, which is held the FIRST THURSDAY in every month. To insure due publicity, particulars of Properties intended to be included in the next sale should be forwarded, without delay, to the City Land and Reversion Offices, 54 Cannon Street, London.

LAND, Domains, Mountain Ranges, Woods, Forests, and Important Residential Estates. Messrs. MARSH, MILNER, and Co., Land Valuers and Timber Surveyors, have a number of WEALTHY BUYERS DESIROUS of INVESTING in AGRICULTURAL, SPORTING, and RESIDENTIAL ESTATES. OWNERS of marketable properties wishing to effect advantageous sales are therefore invited to forward plans and particulars, which, when received, will be judiciously placed before intending purchasers, publicity being carefully avoided, and written terms settled before any cost or liability is incurred. Address Messrs. Marsh, Milner, and Co., Land and Timber Surveyors, 54 Cannon-street, London, E.C.

MESSRS. MARSH, MILNER, AND Co.'s REGISTER of LANDED ESTATES, Town and Country Residences, and property of every description, is published Monthly, and may be obtained at the Auction, Land, and Estate Agency Offices, 54 Cannon-street, E.C., or will be forwarded by post on application.

MORTGAGES promptly NEGOTIATED upon Landed Estates, City Properties, and upon sound securities of all kinds. Messrs. MARSH, MILNER and Co., have at the present time access to large sums of Money ready to be immediately advanced upon approved securities. Apply at the City Land and Reversion Offices (Established 1842), 54 Cannon-street.

LOVEWELL BLAKE, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT, RECEIVER, AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY.

SECRETARY TO THE GREAT YARMOUTH TRADERS' ASSOCIATION.

OFFICES: HALL QUAY CHAMBERS, GREAT YARMOUTH.

J. F. TITCHMARSH, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT AND AUDITOR,

17 PRINCESS STREET, IPSWICH.

RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY AND LIQUIDATION.

WILLIAM EDWARDS, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT AND AUDITOR,

GRANVILLE PLACE, STONE ROAD, LONGTON, STAFFORDSHIRE.

RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY AND LIQUIDATION.

CHARLES LOWDEN,

PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT,

RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY,

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

89 BROAD-STREET, BRISTOL,

JUNE 24TH, 1875.

The PARTNERSHIP hitherto existing under the Style or Firm of HANCOCK, TRIGGS, & CO., having been DISSOLVED by mutual consent, I beg to give notice that I purpose henceforth to CARRY ON BUSINESS as a PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT at the above address.

PHILIP TRIGGS.

MESSRS. BARRETT AND PATEY,

PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS,

90 LONDON WALL, E.C.

HAVING removed from No. 8 Finsbury Circus, to more commodious offices at the above address, will be pleased to hear from Accountants resident in the provincial and manufacturing towns who require agents in London.

Digitized by Google

THE INSTITUTE OF ACCOUNTANTS.

President, WILLIAM QUILTER.

Vice-President, WILLIAM TURQUAND.

COUNCIL.

John Ball (Quilter, Ball, and Co., London).
Harmood Walcot Banner (Liverpool).
Henry Webster Blackburn (H. W. and J. Blackburn, Bradford, Yorkshire).
George Augustus Cape (Cape and Harris, London).
Henry Croysdill (Croysdill, Saffery, and Co., London).
Edward Carter (Carter and Carter, Birmingham).
William Welch Deloitte (Deloitte, Dever, Griffiths, and Co., London).
Robert Fletcher (Robert Fletcher and Co., London).
Robert Palmer Harding (Harding, Whinney, and Co., London).
Charles Fitch Kemp (C. F. Kemp, Ford, and Co, London).
George Herbert Ladbury (Ladbury, Collison, and Viney, London).
Samuel Lowell Price (Price, Waterhouse, and Co., London).
William Quilter (Quilter, Ball, and Co., London).
Geo. Edwin Swithinbank (Gillespie, Swithinbank, and Co., London, and Newcastle-on-Tyne).
William Turquand (Turquand, Youngs and Co., London).
John Young (Turquand, Youngs and Co., London).

TRUSTEES.

William Hopkins Holyland (London).
Alfred Augustus James (James and Edwards, London).
Alexander Young (Turquand, Youngs and Co., London).

AUDITORS.

Frederick Whinney (Harding, Whinney and Co., London).
Samuel Barrow (Barrow and Gates, London).

BANKERS.

Messrs. Fuller, Banbury, Nix, and Mathieson, 77 Lombard Street, E.C.

SOLICITOR.

Henry Markby (Markby, Tarry and Stewart), 57 Coleman Street, E.C.

SECRETARY.

Thomas A. Welton, 30 Moorgate Street, E.C.

Under Rule 16, applicants for admission as Associate up to 1st of July, 1878 (save as provided by Rule 19) must be twenty-one years of age, and must have served for not less than five years as clerk, either articled or otherwise, to a member of this Institute or of some other Institute or Society of Accountants, or else must have been in Partnership with such a person for not less than four years, or have been in practice as a Professional Accountant for the five consecutive years preceding the date of application.

Rule 10 is to the effect that Fellows shall (except as provided by Rule 19) for the future be elected from among the Associates only; Rule 19 enacts that it shall be competent to the Institute, in special cases, to admit persons either as Fellows or Associates who may not be eligible under the foregoing regulations, provided such persons have made application to the Council, accompanied by the proper written recommendation according to the Rules, and have received the recommendation of three-fourths at least of the Council.

Applicants for admission as Associate must be recommended to the Council by at least one Fellow of the Institute in the terms prescribed.

Applicants for admission as Fellow must be recommended in like manner by at least three Fellows.

The Membership of the Institute is by Rule 53 restricted to persons who are not engaged in any other pursuit than that of a Professional Accountant.

THOMAS A. WELTON, Secretary.

30 Moorgate-street, E.C., 11th November, 1875.

Digitized by Google

MR. FERDINAND WOLFSKEHL,

BANKER,

9 STEINWEG, FRANKFORT A/MAIN, GERMANY,

CALLS THE ATTENTION of Investors to different Continental Government Securities, guaranteed by Acts of Parliament, through which Capital and Interest ARE SECURED BEYOND ANY DOUBT.

Every one of these Loans must be repaid as per Plan attached to each Debenture, within a limited number of years, by periodical Drawings, OFFERING ADVANTAGES PRESENTED BY NO OTHER SECURITIES, WITH BONUSES AT EACH DRAWING, varying from

£10 to £30,000.

For full particulars apply by letter, addressed care

MESSRS. WOLFSKEHL BROTHERS, BANKERS,

LORD STREET, LIVERPOOL.

MR. FERDINAND WOLFSKEHL announces the following Drawings:—

The 57th DRAWING of 1,500 IMPERIAL AUSTRIAN 1864 £10 DEBENTURES took place on the 1st inst., at Vienna.

Series—76-321-772-1,080-1,279-1,569-1,793-1,845-1,862-2,137-2,445 2,518-3,229,3,457-3,535 were drawn for redemption upon the 1st of June next.

He will Forthwith Cash or Exchange any of the abovementioned Debentures against other Debentures, Stocks, Shares or Obligations.

To secure safe delivery of Letters, Mr. F. W. requests that all communications should be addressed care of

Messrs. WOLFSKEHL BROTHERS, Bankers,

3 LORD STREET, LIVERPOOL,

Of whom full particulars of the above Drawings can be had on application.

WILLIAMS & STRAHAN,

Legal, Accountancy, & General Printers,

MANUFACTURING STATIONERS, &c

7 LAWRENCE LANE, CHEAPSIDE, LONDON.

Bankruptcy Forms, Statements of Affairs, Dividend Notices, Balance Sheets, &c., printed with despatch.

STEAM PRINTING WORKS, LAMBETH, S.E.

TRANSLATIONS.

MR. ALFRED W. GEE,

BRITISH AND FOREIGN ADVERTISING AGENT,

62 GRACECHURCH STREET, LONDON, E.C.,

Begs to announce that in compliance with a wish expressed by some of the subscribers to the Accountant, he has made arrangements for the translation of legal and commercial documents, correspondence, &c., into the Principal European Languages. Members of the Profession are therefore respectfully informed that arrangements can be made for efficient and speedy translations into, or from, the French, German, Italian, Spanish, and Dutch Languages on Moderate Terms.

The Accountant.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

The ACCOUNTANT is printed and published in time for Friday evening's mail; price 6d. per copy, or 28s. per annum (including postage), the reduced terms for payment in advance being: annual subscription 24s. (post free); half-yearly ditto, 13s. (post free). Cheques and Post-office orders to be made payable to Mr. Alfred W. Gee, 62 Gracechurch-street, E.C., to whom applications for advertisement space, and letters relating to the general business of the paper, should also be addressed. Literary communications should be directed to the Editor of the ACCOUNTANT at the same address, and in order to ensure insertion in the current number, correspondents are respectfully requested to forward their copy as early in the week as possible.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The Proprietor desires to call the attention of Advertisers to the special advantages offered by the paper as an Advertising medium. Starting with a good guaranteed circulation, and with the entire concurrence and hearty support of the leading members of the profession, the ACCOUNTANT has achieved a large measure of success in a wide field hitherto unoccupied by any professional organ. The ACCOUNTANT thus secures to Advertisers an excellent circulation of an exclusive character; and is particularly valuable as a medium for the announcements of members of the profession, as to Estates and Declaration of Dividends, and the appointment of Trustees and Receivers; for Publishers, Printers, Law Stationers, Auctioneers, and Estate Agents; for the Advertisements of Insurance and Public Companies; and for Notices as to Investments, Vacant Partnerships, &c. Advertisements intended for insertion in the current number, should reach the office on Thursday; late announcements can, however, be received up to 12 o'clock (noon) on Friday.

N.B.—Copies may be obtained at Messrs. W. H. Smith and Sons, Strand, at their numerous Railway Bookstalls, and at the Shops of the leading City and West-End Newsvendors.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.

In consequence of numerous applications from subscribers, the proprietor has made arrangements for the supply of CASES for holding and preserving the Accountant, which may be obtained at the office on the following terms:—In green cloth (well got up), with elastics, and "The Accountant" in gold letters on front, 3s. each; same in leather, 4s. 6d. each. Subscribers' names in gold lettering, 1s. extra. Post Office Orders payable to ALFRED W. GEE, 62 Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

The Accountant.

DECEMBER 11, 1875.

There is no portion of the Bankruptcy Act which is so little comprehended generally as the sections relating to compositions. The practice in Bankruptcy itself is clear, and liquidation, which follows in very nearly the same lines, is now familiar to every professional man. But the essentials of a composition are often a puzzle to the uninitiated, though they differ but slightly from the old practice. Formerly a composition with creditors, or "doing a deed," was a very simple matter. By the aid of friendly creditors and the manufacture of a sufficient majority of assents, the matter could be arranged without the debtor ever leaving his office, and with but little risk of interference on the part of the hostile minority. The Act has, it is true, imposed a little more formality upon debtors who wish to compound, but if a man has sufficient proxies at his command, he may nearly always get a composition accepted. But there is a distinction between the different kinds of composition which is frequently overlooked, the neglect of which often leads to difficulties. In compositions, the property of the debtor does not pass from him of necessity. He may call together his creditors in solemn form; he may point out to them that they will gain nothing by harassing him, but will find forbearance much to their advantage; and state the amount of composition he is willing to offer. If this is accepted, the debtor, so long as he duly pays the sums payable, is a free man, no property has passed from him, and no forfeiture has been incurred. But where the debtor has been adjudicated a bankrupt or has filed a petition for liquidation, his property passes away from him at once, and the effect of accepting a composition is merely to restore to him what he has lost, and even an annulment does not wholly destroy the effect of a previous adjudication. But as regards the action of the creditors, the acceptance of a composition is binding upon all, and an annulment of a bankruptcy on the terms of a certain composition, effectually destroys all rights against the debtor which might have existed previously on the part of any creditor.

Digitized by Google

The case of Mr. G. R. Chidley's bankruptcy, which has suggested the foregoing observations, may be taken as conclusive of the proposition we have stated; but there are other points of interest not directly touched by the judgment, which are worth briefly referring to. Under the 87th section of the Act, the sheriff who has taken in execution and sold the goods of a trader to satisfy a judgment for a sum exceeding fifty pounds, is bound to retain the proceeds for fourteen days; and if within that time he receives notice of a petition in bankruptcy having been presented, he is to account for the proceeds to the trustee when appointed, and if not, to hand them over to the execution creditor. On the construction of this section, it must be remarked, that a petition for liquidation is comprised in the phrase 'petition in bankruptcy,' and though the plain words of the section refer merely to a judgment for a sum exceeding fifty pounds, that an execution for a sum of less than fifty pounds, but which the costs of execution bring up to that amount, comes within its operation. But there is one curious distinction between the effect of a petition in liquidation and a petition in bankruptcy, so far as regards the rights of an execution creditor. Where the petition for liquidation is duly filed, and the first meeting held within the fourteen days, then, if no resolution is passed at the meeting, the sheriff is justified in handing over the proceeds of the sale to the execution creditor, and this, although the title of the trustee to the property has been, in apparent defiance of the 4th subsection of the 125th section of the Act, held to relate back to the date of the filing of the petition. In Mr. J. R. Chidley's case, no question of this kind arose; the sheriff received due notice of the presentation of the petition, and the length of time which elapsed between petition, adjudication, and appointment of trustee, was of no advantage to the creditor. It must be observed too, finally, that in the present case the dissentient creditors were not secured creditors, strictly speaking. The Act suspends the operation of the judgment for a fortnight, till it can be ascertained to whom the property of the debtor belongs. If he becomes bankrupt, then, as the title of the trustee is retrospective, the goods which were taken in execution, and sold, were the goods of the trustee, to be distributed by him among the general body of the creditors, and not the property of the debtor himself. It is true, that the judgment creditors were secured to this extent that, provided no adjudication were made, their claim would have to be paid in full in priority to any others. But the effect of the adjudication was to destroy this advantage, and to reduce them to an equality with their less energetic or more forbearing brethren. Hence they were not secured creditors at all; and as the effect of allowing them to continue their proceedings against the debtor might have been to exhaust the assets available for the payment of the composition, and so, by enabling every creditor to commence an action for the full amount of his debt, undo the whole benefit that had been gained by the bankruptcy proceedings, the decision of the court must be pronounced to be as sound on the principles of public convenience as on the more technical principles of judicial legislation.

Digitized by Google

SUPREME COURT OF JUDICATURE.

COURT OF APPEAL, Lincoln's-Inn.

November 29.

(Before Lords Justices James, Mellish, and Baggallay.)

Ex parte Brett—in re Hodgson.—This case raised an important question upon the construction of the Debtors Act, 1869. Section 11 of the Act provides that any person adjudged bankrupt under the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanour, and shall on conviction be liable to imprisonment for two years, in (among others) the following cases:—"Sub-section 13.—If within four months next before the presentation of a bankruptcy petition against him he, by any false representation or other fraud, has obtained any property on credit and has not paid for the same. Sub-section 14.—If within four months next before the presentation of a bankruptcy petition against him, he, being a trader, obtains, under the false pretence of carrying on business and dealing in the ordinary way of his trade, any property on credit and has not paid for the same, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to defraud. Sub-section 15.—If, within four months next before the presentation of a bankruptcy petition against him, he, being a trader, pawns, pledges, or disposes of otherwise than in the ordinary way of his trade any property which he has obtained on credit, and has not paid for, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to defraud." Section 16 provides that where a trustee in any bankruptcy reports to any Court exercising jurisdiction in bankruptcy that, in his opinion, a bankrupt has been guilty of any offences under this Act, "the Court shall, if it appears to the Court that there is a reasonable probability that the bankrupt may be convicted, order the trustee to prosecute the bankrupt for such offence." And, by Section 17, when a prosecution is ordered by the Court, the expenses of the prosecution are to be paid "in the same way as the expenses of prosecution for felony are paid"—that is, by the public funds. Edward Hornby Hodgson and Frank Arthur Denham were merchants, carrying on business at Clements-house, Clements-lane. They were adjudicated bankrupts on the 20th of February last. From the evidence taken in the bankruptcy it appeared that the firm had been in an insolvent state from the beginning of 1874. It was also shown that within four months before the presentation of the petition the bankrupts had on several occasions purchased large quantities of goods upon credit for the purpose of exportation to Australia, and that they had in each case at once raised money by pledging the bills of lading with the Bank of Australasia. The goods were not paid for. Hodgson, who appeared to have been the acting partner, could not state what had become of the money thus raised. The trustee under the bankruptcy made a report to the Court that in his opinion the bankrupt Hodgson had been guilty of offences under section 11 of the Debtors' Act—viz. under sub-section 14 and 15 thereof, and then applied to the Court under section 16 for an order for the prosecution of the bankrupt Hodgson. This application was refused by Mr. Registrar Murray, sitting as Chief Judge. The trustee appealed. Mr. Winslow, Q.C. (with whom was Mr. Brough), for the trustee, argued that the whole course of business of the bankrupt must be looked at, including the way in which the proceeds of the goods were applied. From that it was clear that he knew he would not be able to pay for the goods, and never intended to do so. Therefore sub-sections 14 and 15 met the case. But, if not, it was within sub-section 13. When the bankrupt bought the goods the creditors, of course, assumed that he intended to pay for them, and if he knew that he could not do so, he was guilty of a fraud equivalent to a false representation. No one appeared on behalf of the bankrupt. Lord Justice James was of opinion that the Registrar was quite right in refusing the application. There was abundant evidence of fraud of some kind, which might perhaps be the subject of some other proceedings, statutory or otherwise. The question was whether there was evidence of the particular things mentioned in these sub-sections; whether there was any evidence that these goods were disposed of otherwise than in the ordinary way of trade. In his Lordship's opinion they were dealt with in the most ordinary course of business. It was a simple case of buying goods on credit for export to Australia, and then obtaining an advance of money on the bill of lading. The mode in which the money thus raised was applied could not affect the present question. The Court would not be justified in acceding to an application under these particular sections of this Act merely because it was of opinion that there was evidence of some other fraud not mentioned in them. Lord Justice Mellish was of the same opinion. He thought that the Court would not be warranted in allowing the trustee to prosecute the bankrupt at the expense of the country unless it could see that there was a clear case within these sections. If this application were granted, the consequence would be that every insolvent who purchased goods knowing that he would not be able to pay for them would be within the provision. But the essence of the offence was that the goods themselves should have been dealt with not in the ordinary way of business. The thing aimed at was the obtaining of goods on credit and then immediately selling them at a loss, which was clearly not a transaction in the ordinary way of business. What was done in the present case amounted to nothing beyond the ordinary way of dealing with goods by an export merchant. It was clearly not within sub-sections 14 and 15. His Lordship had had more doubt whether it was within sub-section 13; but he thought it was not. To satisfy the words of that sub-section he thought there must have been some active fraud on the part of the bankrupt, similar to the making of a false representation, and that the mere fact that he knew he could not pay for the goods would not be sufficient. Lord Justice Baggallay concurred, observing that there was no evidence of any false representation made by the bankrupt to the vendors of the goods, though the case was one of very grave suspicion. After the usual adjournment in the middle of the day, their Lordships did not return into Court. Mr. Murray, the Registrar in attendance, then informed the Bar that Lord Justice Mellish was indisposed and unable to sit any longer to-day, and, consequently, the business could not be proceeded with. If his Lordship should be well enough to attend to-morrow (Tuesday) the hearing of the bankrupt appeals would be continued then. If he could not attend then, the sitting of the Court to-morrow must depend upon whether one of the Judges of the Common Law Divisions should be able to be present. This, however, could not be ascertained until late this afternoon, and possibly not till to-morrow morning.

November 30.

(Before Lords Justices James and Baggallay, and Baron Bramwell.)

Ex parte Lennard—in re Chidley.—This was an appeal from a decision of Mr. Registrar Hazlitt, sitting as Chief Judge in Bankruptcy. On the 11th of December, 1874, a bankruptcy petition was presented against Mr. J. R. Chidley, a solicitor, as a trader, he having carried on the Abbey Mills Distillery at West Ham. On the 5th of March, 1875, he was adjudicated a bankrupt, and on the 29th of June Mr. John Riches was appointed trustee. On the 27th July a general meeting of the creditors was held, and it was resolved that the order of adjudication should be annulled forthwith, that the creditors should accept in discharge of their claims against the bankrupt a composition of 1s. in the pound, payable in three instalments, six, twelve, and eighteen months from the date of the annulling of the bankruptcy, and that the composition should be secured by the covenant of Chidley, and by an assignment by him to Riches of all his personal property, on trust to secure the composition, and with power of sale in case of default. On the 5th of August the court made an order approving these resolutions, and directing them to be carried into effect, and the same day another order was made annulling the bankruptcy. On the 6th of August Chidley executed an assignment accordingly. On the 5th of December, 1874, Messrs. H. B. Lennard and A. Blockey, who had recovered judgment against Chidley in an action at law for a debt above £50, issued execution on the judgment, under which the Sheriff of Essex seized goods of the debtor before the commission of the act of bankruptcy on which the adjudication was made. After the annulling of the bankruptcy Lennard and Blockey claimed the right to proceed with their execution, and on the 20th of August the Registrar granted an injunction to restrain them from so doing, on the ground that they were bound by the composition scheme. The execution creditors appealed. Section 28 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, provides:—

Digitized by Google

"The trustees may, with the sanction of a special resolution of the creditors assembled at any meeting of which notice has been given specifying the object of such meeting, accept any composition offered by the bankrupt, or assent to any general scheme of settlement of the affairs of the bankrupt upon such terms as may be thought expedient, and with or without a condition that the order of adjudication is to be annulled, subject, nevertheless, to the approval of the court, to be testified by the judge of the court signing the instrument containing the terms of such composition or scheme, or embodying such terms in an order of the court. Where the annulling order of adjudication is made a condition of any composition with the bankrupt, or of any general scheme for the liquidation of his affairs, the court, if it approves such composition or general scheme, shall annul the adjudication on an application made by or on behalf of any person interested, and the adjudication shall be annulled from and after the date of the order annulling the same. The provisions of any composition or general scheme made in pursuance of this Act may be enforced by the court on a motion made in a summary manner by any person interested, and any disobedience of the order of the court on such motion shall be deemed to be a contempt of court. The approval of the court shall be conclusive as to the validity of any such composition or scheme, and it shall be binding on all the creditors, so far as relates to any debts due to them and provable under the bankruptcy."

And by Section 81—

"Whenever any adjudication in bankruptcy is annulled, all sales and dispositions of property and payments duly made, and all acts theretofore done, by the trustee or any person acting under his authority, or by the court, shall be valid, but the property of the debtor who was adjudged a bankrupt shall in such case vest in such person as the Court may appoint, or, in default of any such appointment, revert to the bankrupt for all his estate or interest therein, upon such terms and subject to such conditions, if any, as the Court may declare by order." Mr. Winslow, Q.C., and Mr. R. T. Reid, for the appellant, argued that after the bankruptcy was annulled the Court had no jurisdiction to make the order. It could not decide the rights of mortgages in a case of composition. Mr. De Gex, Q.C., and Mr. Robertson Griffiths, for the trustee, contended that the adjudication had taken away the rights of the appellants to sell under their execution, and that the goods, which but for the order to annul would have been distributable in the bankruptcy, were now vested in the trustee to secure the composition. Mr. Winslow replied. Lord Justice James was of opinion that in the case of an arrangement under Section 28 the Court of Bankruptcy had full jurisdiction to determine all questions which might arise. It was not necessary to decide what the Court could do in an ordinary case of composition between a debtor and his creditors. But here there was a case of bankruptcy, and the order annulling the adjudication was made by the Court itself as part of a composition or scheme which had been approved by the Court. At the time when the composition or scheme was made, the property of the bankrupt was, beyond all question, vested in the trustee under the bankruptcy, and the Court having the administration of that property approved a scheme by which it was to be assigned as a security for the payment of the composition. The order was therefore made in what continued to be a matter of bankruptcy, and it was within the words of Section 72—"a case of bankruptcy" in which the Court of Bankruptcy had "full power to decide all questions whatsoever, whether of law or fact, arising." The other learned judges concurred. Mr. Winslow and Mr. R. T. Reid then argued on the merits that the effect of the argument to accept the composition was to make the debtor master of his property again, as if no petition had been filed. This was shown by the case of "Ex parte Jones" (23 "Weekly Reporter," 886). Therefore, the execution which was valid against him ought now to be allowed to go on. Mr. De Gex and Mr. Griffiths were not heard on this point. Lord Justice James was of opinion that the decision of the Registrar was well founded. The objections taken to it were technical and formal rather than matters of substance. He entirely adhered to what was said in "Ex parte Jones"—viz. that a majority of creditors could not by their own act compel a dissentient creditor to give up his security and accept something else in satisfaction of it. But here that which was done was done by the creditors with the authority of the court. An adjudication had actually been validly made, and it could only be annulled, and was only annulled, by the Court for the general benefit of the creditors, not by reason of any infirmity in its inception. At the time when the order was made by the court the property in these goods belonged to the general body of the creditors, and they were distributable among them in priority to the claim of the execution creditors. Then the body of the creditors came to a resolution adopting a scheme one of the terms of which was that the debtor's property should be assigned to a trustee for the benefit of the creditors generally as a security for the payment of the composition, and this scheme was approved by the court and the bankruptcy was annulled. In his Lordship's opinion, the effect of this transaction was that that property, which was then the property of the creditors, was intended to be, and was, vested by the court in the trustee for the benefit of the creditors generally. In substance and effect, the property continued vested in the same person as a security for the payment of the composition, freed and discharged from the execution. The Registrar's order was, therefore, right. Lord Justice Baggallay was of the same opinion. The creditors having agreed to this scheme, and the Court having approved it, it appeared to his Lordship that Mr. Riches was in substance a person appointed by the Court, under Section 81, in whom the property of the bankrupt should vest, and all that property was vested in him to secure the composition. Baron Bramwell was entirely of the same opinion. He took it to be clear that, if the bankruptcy had gone on, the appellants would have lost the benefit of their execution. It was not reasonable to suppose that the composition was to give them an exclusive benefit. Whether or not it was necessary that an actual assignment should be made by the bankrupt, it was manifest that there had been antecedently a disposition of the property of the bankrupt within the meaning of Section 81, giving to the creditors at any rate an equitable interest in this property, free from the execution. If the property did not revest in the bankrupt, cadit quæstio. If it did, it revested in him subject to an equitable interest in the creditors, and an obligation on his part to execute the assignment.

EX PARTE ANDREW—IN RE ANDREW.—This was an appeal from a decision of Mr. Registrar Pepys, as Chief Judge. On the 19th of July last, a debtor's summons was issued against Jabez Henry Andrew, a packing-case maker in Ormside-street, Old Kent-road, and it was served on him the next day. The summoning creditors were Mr. Peter Rolt, who claimed a debt of £26 12s. 9d., and Mr. Arnold Goodwin, who claimed a debt of £33 14s. 2d., thus making together a debt above £50, the sum necessary to support such a summons. Andrew took no steps to dispute the summons, but he alleged that he made a tender, within seven days of the service of the summons, of £26 12s. 9d. to Mr. Rolt. The tender was, however, made to a clerk, who said that he had no authority to receive payment, and refused to accept it. No other step was taken to comply with the summons, and Andrew was afterwards adjudicated a bankrupt on the petition of Messrs. Rolt and Goodwin, on the ground that he had committed an act of bankruptcy by neglecting to pay the debts claimed by the summons. Andrew appealed from the adjudication. Mr. R. Vaughan Williams, for the appellant, contended that on the true construction of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, two separate creditors could not join in one debtor's summons; and, if they could, the tender of payment of one of the debts put an end to the right to proceed with the summons. Mr. De Gex, Q.C., and Mr. E. C. Willis, for the creditors, argued that, as two creditors were permitted by the Act to unite in a bankruptcy petition in order to make up the requisite sum of £50, it must have been equally intended that they should be able to unite in compelling the debtor to commit an act of bankruptcy. The tender alleged in this case was not sufficient, and, if it had been, still the summons was not satisfied unless the debtor tendered payment of both the debts. Mr. Williams replied. Lord Justice James said that, for the purpose of the decision, he would assume that a good tender had been made. He adhered to the opinion he had expressed in a former case—"ex parte Kibble" ("Law Reports," 10 Chancery Appeals)—that there were great inconveniences in allowing two or more creditors to join in issuing one debtor's summons, but it appeared to him, on full consideration of the Act and the rules and forms, that it was intended that two or more creditors, whose several debts were less than £50, but whose debts in the aggregate amounted to £50, should be able to take out a debtor's summons for the purpose of making their debtor a bankrupt. If that was so, an act of bankruptcy could not be avoided by the debtor making a tender of one of the debts claimed to one of the creditors. By so doing the requirements of the summons were not complied with, and the Court should not compel one creditor to accept the tender for the purpose of destroying the act of bankruptcy. Lord Justice Baggallay and Baron Bramwell concurred.

Digitized by Google

BANKRUPT APPEALS.—Lord Justice James gave notice that these appeals will not be taken again before Thursday, December 9.

HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE.

CHANCERY DIVISION.

December 3.

(Before the MASTER of the ROLLS.)

ALBION STEEL AND WIRE COMPANY, LIMITED, v. MARTIN.—This was a suit for an account against a director of the plaintiff company, raising a new point under the general equitable rule that a person occupying a fiduciary position is not at liberty to derive profit therefrom without the knowledge of his principal. In September, 1872, Messrs. Fox and Bear were carrying on business at Sheffield under the style or firm of George Gray and Co.; and negotiations were going on between them and an accountant named Allott for the transfer of their business to a limited company promoted by himself. Mr. Martin, who was in the habit of supplying the firm with various descriptions of iron under contract, was asked to become a director of the projected company, and on the 7th of September he agreed to become a director, on the understanding that a clause would be inserted into the articles of association to enable him to continue to supply goods to the company. On the 24th of September a provisional agreement was executed by which Fox and Bear agreed to sell, and Allott, as promoter, agreed to buy on behalf of the company when incorporated, the goodwill of the business of George Gray and Co., with all subsisting contracts, &c., thereto belonging, with a proviso that the agreements should take effect as from the 31st August, then last. On the 7th of October Mr. Martin attended a meeting of directors and took part in allotting the shares; and on the 31st of October the company was incorporated, with articles of association which purported to ratify and adopt the provisional agreement. On the 15th of October and on subsequent occasions, as well before as after the incorporation of the company, Mr. Martin entered into contracts with Fox and Bear, who were the managing directors, and delivered goods as before, in the belief that he would be protected by the clause in the articles, but this proved not to be the case, and in the result he was called upon by the shareholders to account for his profits under the contracts. He made an offer to refund the amount of such profits, after deduction of losses under some of the contracts, but his offer was not accepted, and this bill was filed to compel him to account for his profits under all the contracts entered into by him since the time he agreed to become a director, without set off of losses, on the ground of the fiduciary relation subsisting between himself and the company. Mr. Robinson, Q C., and Mr. F. W. Bush, for the plaintiff company, admitted that the defendant had acted throughout with perfect good faith, and that the contracts, without exception, were fair and reasonable, but these circumstances, they urged, could not take the case out of the general rule—that a director cannot deal with his company with a view to profit unless there be a stipulation that he shall be at liberty to do so. Mr. Chitty, Q.C., and Mr. North, for the defendant, admitted that he was liable to account for the profits upon contracts entered into subsequently to the incorporation of the company, which profits he all along had been prepared to account for; but they contended he was not liable to account for his profits upon contracts prior to the incorporation, for the company was not then in existence, and there could be no agency on behalf of a non-existent principal; and the company, having agreed to buy Fox and Bear's contracts, must be taken to have notice of the defendant's participation in them. The Master of the Rolls, after hearing Mr. Robinson in reply, said the rule was meant to meet cases of fraud, and the Court would not, where, as in the present instance, it was satisfied of the good faith of a defendant, bring him within the mischief of the rule without absolute necessity. It had been argued that from the moment he agreed to become a director the defendant was disabled from entering into contracts to supply materials for the use of the company by reason of his fiduciary position; but, in point of fact, he did not at that time occupy a fiduciary position. He was not at that time a trustee or agent for the company, or any body else. He was simply a principal, contracting to sell goods to Fox and Bear, who were the only other parties to the contract and the parties liable to perform it. The subsequent adoption by the company of these contracts did not put the company in the position of Fox and Bear; it merely authorised the directors to see to the performance of the contracts. If after the incorporation of the company there had been a breach of contract on the defendant's part, Fox and Bear would have been the proper parties to sue, not the company. Being of opinion that the plaintiffs' case failed as to contracts prior to the incorporation of the company, there would be judgment for an account of the profits of subsequent contracts only; each party to pay his own costs of suit up to and inclusive of the hearing.

December 4.

THE CARMARTHENSHIRE ANTHRACITE COAL AND IRON COMPANY, LIMITED.—The voluntary winding-up of this company was ordered to continue under the supervision of the court, after an ineffectual opposition on the part of some shareholders who pressed for a compulsory winding-up. Mr. Roxburgh, Q.C., Mr. Chitty, Q.C., Mr. Davey, Q.C., Mr. Kekewich, Mr. Owen, Mr. E. T. Holland, and Mr. Warmington were the counsel engaged.

Digitized by Google

THE INTERNATIONAL PATENT PULP COMPANY, LIMITED.—A compulsory winding-up order was made in this case. Mr. F. H. Colt, Mr. Macnaghten, and Mr. Methold appeared.

(Before Vice-Chancellor Sir RICHARD MALINS.)

THE PHOSPHATE SEWAGE COMPANY, LIMITED, v. HARTMONT AND OTHERS.—The arguments in this part heard case were continued to-day. Mr. Whitehorne, for Messrs. Engelbach and Keir, before proceeding to argue on their behalf, said he had appeared for Mr. Ramsden, who was no longer a party to the suit. It was, however, only right to say that Mr. Ramsden was present at the meeting of the company in March, 1872, when the question of the French contract was under consideration. He was there as a holder of 12 shares in the company. He seconded Mr. Parry's proposition for a poll, and afterwards voted in favour of the immediate payment of the £150,000, instead of the deferred one of £250,000. Till that moment Mr. Ramsden had never seen Mr. Hartmont; and never was his nominee. With respect to Messrs. Engelbach and Keir, the case made against them by the bill in this suit was very far from correct. The defendants were charged generally with fraud throughout the transactions in dispute; but Messrs. Engelbach and Keir were specifically accused of three things—first, that they were "promoters" of the company; second, that they had joined as conspirators with the others to concoct a scheme for the purpose of committing a fraud; third, that they did certain improper acts in furtherance of that fraud; and fourth, that they finally completed the fraud. The general answers to these charges were these:—First, they believed in the soundness of the process which was to be worked out by the company in their operations; they also believed that the property to be acquired by the company was a valuable one and would prove a success; second, they as financial agents undertook to do certain works in the formation of, and for, the company, for a certain fixed remuneration, which they were from their position perfectly competent to do; that which they did they did thoroughly; and the remuneration they received they took openly from the parties entitled to give it, and with the knowledge of every one concerned; third, there was in their conduct no fraud, no deliberate deceit, and no improper concealment of any thing; and fourth, they were not accountable for the present state of the company, whatever that might be. No doubt they were promoters of the company, in a sense at least; but the fact of a man being a promoter of a company—doing acts which tended to or assisted in its procreation—in no way made that man a promoter in the sense of any fiduciary relationship between the company and himself. Of course, there could be no such relationship between a promoter of that sort and the still unborn company. Messrs. Engelbach and Keir had every reason—and notably from the report of a Monsieur Grafinstein, who had been sent out to San Domingo to examine the island of Alto Vela—for regarding the project as likely to be a good one. The company was, in fact, formed for three objects—(1) to work the concession; (2) to work a patent of the Messrs. Lawson; and (3) to work four patents of the Messrs. Forbes and Preed. The concession was neither void nor voidable in 1871, when Messrs. Engelbach and Keir had conveyed to them the property comprised in it, as bare trustees for the company; and they were not to be made liable for the losses of a company which, sound in its origin, had become afterwards unhealthy, by reason of its own conduct. The learned counsel then went minutely, and at great length, into all the details of the case, as they affected the Messrs. Engelbach and Keir, and concluded his argument, at a quarter to 5 o'clock, by urging that no case whatever had been established against his clients for the repayment of any portion either of the £65,000, or the £15,000, as claimed by the bill. Before resuming his seat Mr. Whitehorne read some passages from a report of the present directors of the company, signed by its chairman, which, he contended, showed that the company could not be in so very bad a condition as had been supposed. At the same time, he said, in reply to a question from the Court, that he believed the causes of the downfall of the company arose, first, from the reputation acquired by it in consequence of the proceedings with respect to the alleged French contract for the £250,000; and, second, from the revengeful feeling entertained by the Dominican Government towards Mr. Hartmont on account of his failure in raising the loan of £430,000 which he had undertaken to obtain for them.

The arguments were continued on Monday. Mr. J. Pearson, Q.C., for the assignee in bankruptcy of Messrs. Peter Lawson and Son (the last defendant on the record), said,—It was of the greatest importance to his client to appreciate clearly the nature of the issue between him and the plaintiff company. They only sought a declaration with respect to the £65,000, but prayed no relief as to the £15,000 They asked that the Messrs. Lawson's estate might be held liable to repay the £65,000, and for liberty to go in and prove for that amount in the Scotch bankruptcy. In the early part of the present century, viz. in 1813—there was a controversy, when there were two bankruptcies of the same estate, one in England and the other in Scotland, which was to have precedence. That controversy was ultimately decided in favour of that one of the two bankruptcies which had occurred first. In this case there was only the Scotch bankruptcy, and therefore no difficulty existed in that respect. The sequestration in the Messrs. Lawson's bankruptcy occurred on the 11th of February, 1873. The plaintiff company then took in a claim on the 4th of March following. On the 19th of April, 1873, the bill in this suit was filed. On the 24th of June, 1873, the claim so carried in, in Scotland, was withdrawn, and on the 28th of June, 1873, another one for the absolute payment of the £65,000 was substituted for the former. On the 22nd of October, 1873, the trustee in the Scotch bankruptcy rejected that claim. Further steps by way of appeal were taken by the plaintiff company, but without success, and the matter was now about to go before the House of Lords. So far for the proceedings in Scotland. As regarded the case made by the plaintiff company in this suit, it was to be observed that they sought relief against the firm of Messrs. Peter Lawson and Son, and their estate only, and not against any member of the firm individually. It was said that the firm knew the concession to have been void or voidable, and therefore worthless, in the first instance, and that they, being in want of a sum of £17,000, concocted the alleged fraudulent scheme, which had been so much commented on. If, however, the Messrs. Lawson and Son believed at the time of the sale of the concession to the company that the concern was a valuable one, and had good reason for so thinking, they could not be accused of palming off upon it, or the public, a worthless bargain. Now the evidence adduced by the plaintiff company themselves showed that the committee of investigation, which was appointed in December, 1872, made their inquiries into the condition of the concession, cross-examined Mr. Hartmont as to it, and in February, 1873, with the concurrence of all parties concerned, recommended the rescission of the existing, and the granting to the company of a new, concession. The company then found that they must work the concession themselves, and a proposition was made for a new one. This Court was, nevertheless, now gravely asked to say that the whole affair was a sham, and that in 1870 or 1871 every one knew it to be so. It was absurd to suppose that any one would wish to continue the working of really a sham concern. But, independent of that, the character of the Messrs. Lawson and Son then stood too high for them to be thought capable of concocting a fraud, and a fraud which, if perpetrated or attempted, must have been so with the eyes of every one upon them. To establish a fraud, there must be a person deceived as well as a deceiver; and here there was no proof of any one having been for one instant deceived by any act of the Messrs. Lawson and Son. The acts particularly laid to their charge were these:—1. That they ought not to have been parties to the conveyance of the concession to the company, and that Mr. Hartmont ought to have been. 2. That the prospectus was fraudulent, in not stating the voidability of the concession; and 3. In its stating that they had spent £39,000 " in connexion" with the Island of Alto Vela; and 4. The plaintiff company--as if they knew the other three charges could not be maintained—said if the articles of association were examined it would be seen that Mr. Henry Graham Lawson—one of the firm—was a director of the company. He, therefore, must be taken to have known all the fraud (if there was any) and be liable for all his partner's misdeeds, of which the company now complained. Further, it was insisted that because he was a sham director, and his firm sham vendors, they were moral guarantors of the concession, and therefore responsible to the plaintiffs in this suit. But the only relief prayed was against Messrs. Lawson and Son's estate, not against Mr. Henry Graham Lawson, who was not even a party to this suit. Then further, the concession was originally granted to Mr. Hartmont and Mr. Begbie in 1868. They afterwards assigned their interests in the concession on certain terms to Messrs. Lawson and Son, in December, 1870. Those gentlemen were regarded as the vendors. Then, when the contract was entered into for the sale by them of the concession to the company in 1871, it would be found apparent, and it was the fact, that on the face of the documents carrying out that arrangement the very clause of forfeiture, as it affected the existence of the concession, was fully stated, together with such a disclosure of all necessary information as the most accurate and censorious of critics would ever be expected to require. Where then was the alleged fraud so vehemently urged against the Messrs. Lawson and Son? There was no concealment of any thing which they were bound to disclose. With the publishing of the prospectus by the company itself, whether true or false, they had nothing whatever to do. One of their firm was a director of the company; but how could that affect them—and at a time when they had ceased to have any interest in the concern? Mr. Henry Graham Lawson only attended one meeting of the company, and there was nothing to make him responsible on that account. In reality, the whole foundation of the plaintiff company's case was this—that all the parties interested knew they were going into a concern for the express purpose of deceiving the public. If such had been the case, there would have been a villanous conspiracy indeed. But nothing of the sort existed, and nothing of the kind was proved in the case. The learned counsel then went minutely through the various facts of the case (as they have been already more or less fully noticed in The Accountant) with reference to their bearing on the specific charges made against the Messrs. Lawson and Son, and concluded by insisting that as all the accusations of fraud—all the motives for any on his client's part—all the alleged improper concealment, and all the supposed misrepresentations by them had been entirely disproved, the Bill against them in this suit should be dismissed with costs. At the conclusion of Mr. Pearson's argument, Mr. Henry Graham Lawson was called, and cross-examined by Mr. Horace Davey. The witness admitted, inter alia, that he did not think the Dominican Government got more than £50,000 out of the loan of £420,000 which Mr. Hartmont originally, and which, as it appeared, the Messrs. Lawson and Son afterwards, undertook to negotiate; but that that sum of £50,000 was borrowed by the Messrs. Lawson and Son from the British Linen Company, and paid by Mr. Henry Graham Lawson to the agents of the Dominican Government.

Digitized by Google

The arguments on behalf of the defendants in this part-heard case were concluded on Tuesday. Mr. J. Napier Higgins, Q.C., in reply, said he had listened to the addresses of the defendants' counsel during more than ten days, and with respect to the opinions which he had expressed in his opening, he retracted nothing, withdrew nothing, and qualified nothing. He repeated that the case was one of fraud in its commencement, fraud in its continuation, and fraud in all its circumstances. Many facts had transpired since the opening which justified those assertions. The other side had in many respects imputed to him a meaning which it was not his intention, in every instance, to convey; but as regarded Mr. Hartmont, Mr. Begbie, Mr. Ogle, and the Messrs. Lawson and Son, he should, before he concluded, be able to substantiate every word uttered by him in his opening. The defendants, here, if one half of them were to be credited, considered the other half to have been guilty of the grossest fraud; and it had been over and over again asserted that every one of the "corporators," as they were called, or persons concerned in getting up the company, knew every thing that had been done in the matter, with the exception of Mr. Forsyth, who, it was said, knew hardly any thing of several points in dispute, which, however, he ought to have known. The facts, then, were these:—There was a contract in April, 1871, for the sale to the company of the concession for £65,000, of which £45,000 was to be paid in cash, and £20,000 in shares. Before that sale—a very few weeks before it—the Messrs. Lawson and Son, the ostensible vendors in it, had parted with all their interest in the contract, and had sold the very same concession (he would not then advert to the patents) for £10,000; so that while the whole value, in any point of view, of the concession, was then only £10,000, they were to get, in little less than a month, the increased amount of £65,000. But then, supposing every one concerned knew every thing, there was this additional fact—from December, 1870, when the affair got into the hands of Messrs. Engelbach and Keir, there was a secret understanding, not reduced into a written or formal shape, not entered upon any of the deeds, as to a sum of £15,000. The real object of that understanding was eventually to get rid of the claims of a Mr. Gill to a remuneration for what he said were his services. The £15,000 was to be paid to Messrs. Engelbach and Keir for distribution by them among the persons whom they should select; and Mr. Hartmont, it was said, actually divided the money. If, therefore, in March, 1871, the true value of the concern was only £10,000 at the utmost, was it not clear that there was throughout the whole transaction a complete catena of fraud? But, as he did not wish to make unfounded charges of such a nature, he would proceed to clear away several misapprehensions which appeared to him to have prevailed during the arguments. He would shape his reply thus:—1. He would re-examine the case as it stood upon the bill in the suit. 2. He would consider the concession itself. 3. He would show that it was in any point of view of little or no commercial value, and that it was not worth £10,000, and certainly not worth £65,000. 4. He would prove that it was voidable, as all parties knew, or if they did not know it, their own blindness was the cause of their ignorance. 5. He would show that there was a forfeiture of the concession in 1871, in respect of things then existing, and of the deficiency in the exports from the island in 1870. 6. He should argue that the Dominican Government acted reasonably in the matter; that phosphate of alumina was not heard of in 1869, at the time of the grant of the concession; and that the Government, therefore, could very fairly say, "We did not then raise any question as to that." 7. He should examine the machinery by which the sale to the company was carried out, and make it manifest that every one of the defendants was impeachable for that sale. 8. He should show, also, how the £65,000 was divided. 9. With respect to the £15,000, he had said at the opening, and he said still, that it was and is practically an undefended case. The counsel for Messrs. Engelbach and Keir, on whom was thrown the principal duty of explaining that part of the transactions, kept quite clear of the rocks they saw looming so dangerously ahead of them. 10. Lastly, he should consider the legal consequences to the parties with reference to the £65,000, and in doing so would deal with the right of the company, as such, to sue the defendants in this case, and the effect of the Joint-Stock Companies Act, 1862, and the force of the argument that this was a case "primæ impressionis." Now, the bill in the suit did not seek any relief in respect of Messrs. Forbes and Price's patents, for which they had been paid the sum of £16,000, wholly irrespective of the £65,000, and with which payment those gentlemen were quite satisfied. It had, indeed, been most strangely argued that the plaintiff company could not get the contract of which they complained rescinded without giving the defendants some relief as to those patents. But the matters were wholly distinct. The company had done their best—though that was not much—to work the patents, and had only got involved in profitless litigation while Mr. Hartmont was at the head of their affairs. That gentleman and the Lawsons having got the concession, and Mr. Ogle and Mr. Begbie being interested in it, wanted to form a company to work it. To get the requisite capital they only issued about 8,100 out of the first proposed issue of 12,000 shares. Of those, 4,500 were taken by the directors of the company, who then became vendors of the shares in the market, in order to give an appearance of stability to the concern. The public only had some 3,600 shares allotted to them; but the number of shares sold really exceeded the share capital of the company. Then came the Oppert contract. In addition to the £15,000, there was a cash commission, on the whole capital, of £1,500, which Messrs. Engelbach and Keir justified themselves in accepting by saying "they did not keep it, but paid it to Mr. Ogle." Mr. Ogle said it was Mr. Hartmont's money. There was the most extraordinary uncertainty throughout all that part of the case, and as to the distribution of the shares. This, however, was clear—that in November, 1870, the concession was worthless, and the Lawsons were in difficulties. That was proved by letters from Mr. Henry Graham Lawson to Mr. Begbie, and to his own firm, written in November, 1869, and by a letter from Messrs. Lawson and Son to Mr. Hartmont. Those gentlemen—Messrs. Lawson and Son—appeared to be unpleasantly mixed up with Mr. Hartmont, and the correspondence referred to showed that they knew at that time that the concession was worthless. In one of the letters Mr. Henry Graham Lawson stated that there was, in fact, no guano on the island of Alto Vela, but that providentially "something had turned up." That something was phosphate of alumina. In another letter the island was spoken of as "that wretched island," and as being "any thing but a guano island." The "sample guano," it was said, was good, but the great bulk of the production very inferior. The correspondence also spoke of the Messrs. Lawson obtaining the island without payment of any royalty to the San Domingo Government. The grant of the concession was mixed up with the San Domingo loan, and that Government said they only actually received £30,000 of their money. However that might be, it was in evidence that on the 1st of July, 1869, Messrs. Lawson and Son wrote to Mr. Hartmont with reference to the loan, and, speaking of the island, said there were 3,000,000 tons of guano on it, which could be most advantageously worked every year; while just before that Mr. Henry Graham Lawson had written to his firm to say there was hardly any guano on it. Further, it appeared from other letters in evidence that in 1870 the Government had threatened to forfeit the concession unless the royalties due to it were paid. Now, the Scotch Courts thought there was clearly some fraud in the matter, but did not consider the Lawsons to have been guilty of it. Assuming, for a moment, that they had accounts to show that the statement in the prospectus that they had spent £39,000 in connection with the island was correct, how could that statement be reconciled with the allegations in the correspondence referred to? But no such accounts had been produced in evidence. The learned counsel then adverted to the position of Mr. Forsyth in connection with the Messrs. Lawson and the company, the statements in the prospectus, the issuing of it, the contract for the payment of the £15,000 to Messrs. Engelbach and Keir, the division of it, the dealing with the shares, the concurrent sub-contract, and several other matters relating to the details of the case. He had not concluded his address when the Court rose.

Digitized by Google

The arguments on behalf of the plaintiff company in this part-heard case were concluded on Wednesday, being the 16th day of the hearing. Mr. J. Napier Higgins, Q.C., in continuing his reply, adverted to several details of the case connected with the forfeiture of the concession, which, he said, was proved by this additional fact among others—viz. that prior to the negotiations in 1872 for the grant by the Dominican Government to the company of a new concession, Mr. Hartmont was in possession of a letter from the representative of that Government notifying to the company that the Government had, on the assumption that the concession was forfeited, actually resold the Island of Alto Vela to some French concessionaires. That led to further consideration of the position in which the matter then stood; and the Dominican Government proposed, as the condition of a new concession to the company, that they must get a release from the French concessionaires of their interest in the concern, and must waive all their claims against Messrs. Hartmont and Co. in respect of the £65,000 already paid for the concession. All this showed the intimate connexion between the loan negotiated for the Government by Mr. Hartmont and the concession. After dwelling at some length on the surrounding circumstances of that portion of the case, as establishing against the principal defendants—viz. Mr. Hartmont, Mr. Begbie, Mr. Ogle, and Messrs. Lawson and Son—the charges made by the bill in the suit, the learned counsel proceeded to discuss the legal consequences of the proved facts—first, as to the contract itself; and second, as to the several defendants. He argued that the plaintiff company had a perfect right to have the contract of April, 1871, which saddled them with this ruinous and worthless bargain. set aside. They had that right because the contract was fraudulent and improper, and one which could not be forced on the company without the fullest knowledge and acquiescence of all the parties interested. They also had the right because not only was the contract bad in itself, but the means by which it was imposed on the company were also fraudulent. Those means were the procurement of an agent and promoter of the company, who, for a price to be paid out of the assets of the company as a bribe, should be induced not to do his duty to his principal—the company—but to neglect his duty and aid in carrying out the fraudulent contract. Then, again, the contract could not stand, because the firm of solicitors who were to act for the company, and who were informed thus they would be treated as so acting, perferred the interest of the vendors to those of their clients (the company); neglected their duty to the company, and were guilty, to say the least, of the grossest negligence and unfairness. Their negligence alone might not, perhaps, have had so much weight against them, but, as it was, that and the misrepresentations which Mr. Forsyth had made together gave the plaintiff company a right to rescind the contract. Mr. Harrison, one of the directors, when he saw the statement in the prospectus, that Messrs. Lawson and Son had expended the £39,000 in connexion with the island, at once required the truth of that statement to be ascertained; and if Mr. Forsyth had not then said that there were in his possession accounts which would show that that or some similar amount had been spent, Mr. Harrison would then and there have put his foot upon the mischief, and all the fraud that was perpetrated might never have occurred. Even if this suit was considered as one for damages for the breach of the contract, the recent Judicature Acts removed all technical objections on that ground, and enabled the Court to deal with the rights of the parties now before it. Even if the Court should not adopt that view of the effect of the recent Statutes, the authorities went to the length of showing that where there was what amounted only to "moral" fraud, a contract dependent on such a basis might be rescinded in Equity. The doctrine of restitutio in integrum, without which it was said no decree could be made, and which had been held up by the defendants' counsel like a red flag of danger, really presented no difficulty where fraud was proved to have governed the transaction. Here there was the greatest amount of fraud. Nor could it be said that the plaintiff company had been guilty of any delay. The contract impeached was in April, 1871, and the bill in this suit was filed in April, 1873. If the company was entitled—as, under all the circumstances of the case, he said it was—to have had this contract rescinded at the end of the year 1871, nothing whatever had since occurred to deprive them of that right. All that related to the £65,000. As to the sub-agreement for the £15,000, its existence was not known to the company and its present advisers till after the bill in this suit was filed, when it was introduced into the bill by way of amendment. But the case against the defendants more directly concerned with the payment and distribution of the £15,000 was practically undefended. What, therefore, the plaintiff company was entitled to was a decree in their favour as to the £65,000, with an inquiry as to damages; and as to the profits, if any, which they might have made by the working of the concession, and the giving up to the defendants of the concession and any profits, and the Messrs. Lawson's patent, which had never been used. The learned counsel then commented at great length on the various circumstances of the case as they related to the £15,000, the issuing of the prospectus, the rigging of the market—procured through the misconduct, as he contended, of the directors and the secretary of the company, who issued and signed the false certificate of shares—the contract with the Messrs. Oppert and Co. for the alleged French contract, and several other details, all of which have already been more or less fully noticed in The Accountant; and argued that, although as facts in the case they occurred after the time of the contract which the suit was instituted to rescind, they all tended to confirm the one long unbroken chain of fraud by which, from the very commencement of the history of these transactions, Mr. Hartmont and the other defendants, or some of them, had bound this worthless concession round the neck of the defrauded company. The learned counsel then referred to and commented on the various cases which had been cited in the course of the arguments; and, after minutely stating the precise nature of the relief he sought against each of the defendants, concluded by an analysis of the arguments addressed to the Court on the defendants' behalf, and a submission that the plaintiff company were clearly entitled to the relief for which they prayed by their bill. The Vice-Chancellor said the case had occupied a great number of days, and had been most ably argued on all sides. It involved an enormous mass of details, the whole of which, together with his own very voluminous notes, he must read before he could pronounce his decision. In the present state of the business before him, his Lordship said he would deliver the judgment in this case as soon as possible, but he could not undertake to do so this year. He reserved his judgment accordingly.

Digitized by Google

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY.

December 2.

(Before Sir J. BACON, Chief Judge.)

EX PARTE HALE, RE BINNS.—This was an appeal from the Huddersfield County Court, and raised a question as to the rights of landlords in liquidation cases. Mr. Robson was counsel for the appellant, and Mr. E. Beaumont for the respondent. The appellant, Thomas Hale, was the owner of extensive manufacturing premises called Bradley Mills, which were used for the making of woollen goods. One of the mills consisted of three floors, one of which he let to Binns under an agreement made in May, 1875, by which Binns became tenant as from the February previously at a certain rental, payable in advance. Default having been made in payment of one of the instalments due under the agreement, Mr. Hale levied a distress for the amount, and on the 24th of June the debtor filed a petition for liquidation. On the 14th of July a trustee was appointed and a resolution passed for a liquidation by arrangement. On the 1st of August a further instalment of rent, amounting to £55, became due in advance, and on the 14th of the same month the appellant levied a further distress upon the premises of the debtor, then in the occupation of the trustee, for that sum. The trustee paid the amount of the first distress, which was for rent due before the commencement of the liquidation, but denied the appellant's right to distrain for rent due afterwards. The County Court Judge adopted the view of the trustee, and granted an injunction restraining the landlord from taking further proceedings under the second distress. The landlord appealed. His Lordship held that, under the 34th section of the Act, the appellant had a right to distrain for the full amount which he claimed, and, as that right was interfered with by the order of the learned Judge, the appeal must be allowed.

(Before Mr. REGISTRAR BROUGHAM, sitting as Chief Judge.)

IN RE HENDREY AND KALSHOVEN.—This was an adjourned sitting for public examination. The bankrupts, Messrs. Ramsey, Hendrey, and John Christian Kalshoven, were colonial merchants, carrying on business at 61 Mark-lane, and their balance-sheet returned debts amounting to £10,663, and assets £3,713. At a former sitting the bankrupt Kalshoven alone appeared, and the trustee proposed to examine him fully upon his accounts, but the court ordered that requisitions should be delivered in writing stating in what particulars the trustee required the accounts to be amended, and with information of any asset alleged not to be disclosed by the bankrupt. Mr. Hollams, jun., appeared for the trustee; and Mr. Finlay Knight for the bankrupt. It was stated that an appeal had been entered by the trustee from the order of the court compelling him to file requisitions, and that nothing further had been done by the trustee. An adjournment of the present sitting was proposed. Mr. Registrar Brougham said the trustee was at liberty to examine the bankrupt now, if he so desired. Mr. Hollams said the trustee declined to proceed with an examination at present. The sitting was then adjourned.

December 3.

The Chief Judge sat again to hear appeals. It may be mentioned that his Lordship has intimated his intention of following the rule recently adopted by the Lords Justices of giving costs to a successful appellant, the old practice, which occasionally operated somewhat harshly, being thus abrogated.

(Before Sir J. BACON, Chief Judge.)

EX PARTE MONKHOUSE RE DALE.—This was an appeal from the county court or Newcastle, and involved a question of the duties of a trustee in cases of composition. The liquidating debtor, Mr. Dale, had failed for about £30,000, against assets to the extent of £13,000, and at the meeting of creditors they agreed to take a composition of 6s. in the pound in instalments, which were secured by the debtor and a surety; but when the first became due the debtor could not pay it, and on the application of a creditor for £8,000, the county court judge ordered the trustee to take proceedings against the surety, but he declined to do so, on the ground that there was no estate, and now appealed. The Chief Judge said that there was no ground for the appeal, especially as the trustee was indemnified to the satisfaction of the registrar, and dismissed the appeal with costs. Counsel for the appellant, Mr. Doria; and for the respondent, Mr. De Gex, Q.C.

(Before Mr. Registrar HAZLITT, sitting as Chief Judge.)

IN RE CHARLES CURRIE.—This was a sitting for the public examination of this bankrupt, who is described as a merchant, recently carrying on business at 28 New Broad-street. The adjudication was made in October last, the London and Westminster Bank being the petitioning creditors. The statement of affairs showed liabilities £57,736, and £421 19s. 10d. assets.

Digitized by Google

Mr. Linklater, for the trustee, offered no opposition, and the bankrupt was allowed to pass.

IN RE CHARLES CARNIE.—This was a sitting for public examination. The bankrupt, a merchant carrying on business at 25 New Broad-street, had been adjudicated upon the petition of the London and Westminster Bank. His balance-sheet disclosed debts and liabilities amounting to £57,736, of which £56,778 were in respect of the draughts of Messrs. A. Collie and Co., accepted against purchases of goods and cotton held by Messrs. Collie and Co. for re-sale; with assets, cash in hand, &c., £421. Mr. J. Linklater appeared for the trustee. It was stated that inquiries were in progress in reference to various matters connected with the estate; and, upon the application of the trustee, the Court ordered an adjournment, so that the investigation might be completed.

December 4.

(Before the Hon. W. C. SPRING-RICE, sitting as Chief Judge.)

IN RE G. A. WITT AND CO.—The debtors, Messrs. G. A. Witt and Edward Bohlen, are merchants, carrying on business at 7 Fen-court, Fenchurch-street, and also at Liverpool, under the firm of G. A. Witt and Co. Their liabilities are estimated at £100,000. Mr. W. A. Crump applied for leave to file a liquidation petition, signed by Mr. Bohlen under a power of attorney, on behalf of himself and his co-partner. The Court granted the application. Subsequently another application was made on behalf of the debtors and some of the creditors that a receiver and manager of the estate should be appointed. It appeared that the assets consisted of cash, bills, policies of insurance, and other property, of value in the aggregate of £20,000. The agents of the debtors at Bombay, Calcutta, and Madras had in their possession goods consigned by third parties upon which advances had been made by acceptances, and it was necessary the property should be protected. His Honour appointed Mr. Joseph Shubrook, accountant, receiver and manager of the estate.

December 6.

(Before SIR J. BACON, Chief Judge.)

EX PARTE WINDER—RE WINSTANLEY.—This appeal from the Wigan County Court raised a question as to the validity of a bill of sale executed by John Winstanley, a brass founder carrying on business at Wigan, in favour of Messrs. Winder and Harrop, Gaythorne, Manchester. Mr. De Gex, Q.C., and Mr. Bagley were counsel for the appellants; Mr. Little, Q.C., and Mr. Smyly for the respondent. It would appear that Winstanley, being indebted to Messrs. Winder and Harrop in the sum of £287 for goods supplied by them in the course of their trade, applied for further credit, which Messrs. Winder and Co. refused to give unless they were secured against loss. On the 11th of December, 1874, the debtor, in consideration of the amount then due, and of further goods to the limit of £500 in the aggregate to be supplied, executed a bill of sale in favour of Messrs. Winder and Co., by which he mortgaged his stock-in-trade, machinery, and furniture to secure the debt due to that firm. He at that time possessed book debts, the lease of his foundry, and the lease of his dwelling-house subject to a mortgage, all of which were excluded from the deed. The deed was duly registered, and further goods were supplied to the debtor beyond the limit agreed upon, the total amount due to Messrs. Winder and Harrop in May, 1875, being about £600. On the 23rd of June an adjudication of bankruptcy was made against Winstanley. The trustee under these proceedings afterwards applied in the County Court for an order to set aside the deed. Mr. Harrop, in his evidence, stated that before the bill of sale was executed the debtor told him that he had a very good business, which he had worked up himself; that he had a rare prospect before him; and that he could pay from 40s. to 50s. in the pound. Mr. Harrop believed the debtor to be perfectly solvent. The learned Judge set aside the bill of sale on the ground that it constituted an act of bankruptcy. Messrs. Winder and Co. appealed. His Lordship was of opinion that the trustee's objection to the bill of sale could not be sustained. The debtor asked for time, and the creditors consented to give it upon certain terms. The question was whether the transaction was a fraudulent one. He could not discover any trace of fraudulent intention. It was said the bill of sale comprehended the whole of the estate, but it was clear that it did not. The very object of the arrangement was to enable the debtor to continue his trade; and his Lordship could not impute any fraudulent motive, which was the basis upon which the trustee's case rested. Appeal allowed.

December 7.

(Before Mr. Registrar PEPYS, sitting as Chief Judge.)

IN RE CHARLES BEDELL.—This was a sitting for examination. The bankrupt was a wine merchant, carrying on business in Mark-lane; and his balance-sheet returned unsecured debts of £27,820, and assets £3,228. Mr. Lucas appeared for the trustee; Mr. Brough for the bankrupt. It would seem that in November, 1874, the bankrupt presented a petition for liquidation, under which a proposal was made to and accepted by the necessary majority of creditors, for payment of a composition of 7s. 6d. in the pound by instalments. A deed of inspectorship was executed for the purpose of carrying out the arrangement, and the debtor paid the first instalment of 4s. in the pound, but the assets proved insufficient for payment of the second, and an adjudication was obtained by a debtor whose debt had been inadvertently omitted from the statement of affairs. A contest had since arisen between the inspectors under the liquidation and the trustee in the bankruptcy as to the right to the undistributed assets, and an appeal was pending upon the subject. His Honour allowed the bankrupt to pass.

FAILURES.

ENGLAND.—The failure was announced on Monday of Messrs. William Spotten and Co., linen manufacturers and bleachers, of London and Belfast, a firm established about a quarter of a century. The partners, however, lost a large sum in May, 1874, by the stoppage of Messrs. Lowry, Valentine, and Kirk, and their operations have since been considerably reduced from want of credit. The liabilities amount to about £300,000, and the estate will produce, it is thought, about 10s. in the pound.

SCOTLAND.—The Glasgow Herald contains a circular addressed to the creditors of Messrs. Edmund Brace and Co., wine merchants, of Exchange-square, Glasgow, stating that a committee of creditors has recommended the debtors to assign their property to trustees for the benefit of the creditors. It is estimated that their liabilities amount to nearly £80,000.

AUSTRIA.—The failure is announced of Mr. Sigmund Reinitz, of Vienna, with liabilities to the extent of £50,000, of which £10,000 to £15,000, falls on Manchester commission agents, £15,000 falls on Bradford, and the remainder on the continent. The losses of Bradford through the failures of continental houses lately have been considerable.—The failures of Messrs. H. Lange and Co., of Caracas, and Messrs. Lange, Son, and Co., La Guayra, are confirmed. The liabilities amount to £30,000, of which less than half will fall on Manchester commission agents. The liabilities of the Vienna house and of these two South American houses fall so equally on several houses here that they will not cause much inconvenience.

The 57th drawing of 1500 Imperial Austrian 1864 £10 debentures took place on the 1st inst., at Vienna. Mr. Ferdinand Wolfskehl announces that he has forwarded lists and full particulars to Messrs. Wolfskehl Brothers, bankers, Liverpool, from whom they may be obtained on application.

Digitized by Google

CREDITORS' MEETINGS.

W. CULLIS (HEREFORD).—At a meeting of the creditors of Walter Cullis, of Hereford, lithographer, a resolution was passed to liquidate the estate, and Mr. W. C. Harvey was appointed trustee.

JOHN HART (NEWCASTLE).—At a meeting of the creditors of John Hart, of Newcastle, cabinet maker, held on the 2nd instant, it was resolved that a composition of eleven shillings in the pound be accepted in satisfaction of the debts due to the creditors from the said John Hart. That such composition be payable by three equal instalments at three, six, and nine months from this date, of three shillings and fourpence each, and one shilling at twelve months, the last six shillings of such composition to be secured to the satisfaction of the three largest trade creditors. Mr. William Comben Harvey, of 1 Gresham-buildings, Basinghall-street, in the City of London, accountant, was appointed trustee.

S. RICHARDS (BIRMINGHAM).—A first meeting of the creditors of Mr. Sloane Richards, metal broker, whose liabilities are estimated at £100,000, was held on Thursday, at the office of Messrs. Tyndall, Johnson, and Tyndall, Birmingham, and was numerously attended. Nearly the whole of the unsecured debts were proved, and the proofs amount to more than £15,000. Mr. C. A. Harrison, receiver, presented a statement of the assets, and made a lengthy and exhaustive report, particularly on the losses which Mr. Richards had sustained, and which, according to the figures produced, amounted to nearly £40,000. The greater portion of the assets appeared to consist of shares in ships and Spanish mines, which at the present time would not realise a tenth of their cost, and which did not admit of any offer of a composition. It was therefore resolved to wind-up the affairs by arrangement. Mr. C. A. Harrison was appointed trustee with a committee of instruction consisting of three of the principal creditors.

APPOINTMENTS.

[The Editor will be glad to receive early notice of appointment of Liquidators and Auditors for insertion in this Column.

The Master of the Rolls has appointed Mr. Alfred Audrey Broad, (Broads, Paterson, and May, public accountants) official liquidator of Brannon's Patent Fireproof, Sanitary, and Permanent Works, Limited.

Mr. Edward Thomas Peirson, public accountant, Coventry, has been appointed receiver of the estate of George Smith, of Coalville, in the county of Leicester, Brickmaker.

CHARGE AGAINST AN "ACCOUNTANT."—At the Guildhall on Friday, Mr. F. Wood Morphett, of No. 35 Moorgate-street, described as an "accountant," appeared on remand in discharge of his bail before Sir James Clarke Lawrence, M.P., charged with being a fraudulent bailee. Mr. Thorne Cole, instructed by Mr. Pratt, from the office of Messrs. Buchanan and Rogers, prosecuted, and Mr. Blanchard Wountner appeared for the defence. In this case, according to the opening statement of counsel, the defendant had acted as an accountant in Moorgate-street, and in the course of his business he had a client named Saunders, who was in difficulties, and he undertook to arrange his affairs for him. A proposal was made to pay the creditors a composition, and for that purpose Mr. Dixon, the brother-in-law of Mr. Saunders, gave him ten guineas, and afterwards sent him a post-office order for £6 17s. 4d., to pay in full a creditor, named Edmonds, from whom credit to that amount had been obtained only shortly before Saunders failed. With that order Mr. Dixon sent him specific instructions to pay Messrs. Edmonds' bill, but he had not done that, nor had he returned the money, hence the present proceedings. Messrs. Edmonds had sued Mr. Saunders for the amount of their account, and had recovered judgment against him, and he was now paying the debt by instalments, under an order of the County Court. When Mr. Dixon pressed the defendant for the money which had been intrusted to him, the defendant declared his inability to pay, but offered as security the duplicate of a gold watch and chain, which he said had been his father's, and were worth £50, but which were pledged for £15. Mr. Dixon took the ticket as security for £10 10s. handed to the defendant to pay the composition £6 1s. 6d. for a dishonoured bill, and 15s. for three months' interest for waiting. The watch and chain were pledged for £15, and Mr. Dixon had since found out that they were purchased by the defendant for £29, and immediately pledged, only part of the purchase-money having been paid on them. None of this transaction, however, referred to the £6 17s. 4d. with which the defendant was charged with having misappropriated instead of settling the account of Messrs. Edmonds. Some evidence in support of the charge having been heard, Sir James Clarke Lawrence remanded the defendant, but admitted him to bail, one surety in £100 and himself in £200.

STOCK EXCHANGE GAMBLING.—At the Liverpool Quarter Sessions, on Saturday, Edward James Barry, formerly cashier to Messrs. Duncan, Ewing, and Co., timber merchants, Liverpool, pleaded "Guilty" before the Recorder, Mr. J. B. Aspinall, Q.C., of embezzling sundry sums, amounting to £1,250. The case created unusual interest, as it was expected that, as the prisoner had become involved through large Stock-Exchange speculations, important revelations would be made during the trial. In his charge to the Grand Jury the Recorder had made strong comments upon the practice of sharebrokers permitting clerks to gamble in shares, and the Grand Jury subsequently made a presentment in which they said that the evidence disclosed in the depositions more than justified the remarks of the Recorder. Barry, when brought back to England from Jamaica, whither he had absconded, escaped from detective officer Maxwell at an hotel in Plymouth, and was at large for a week before his recapture. Mr. M'Connell, on behalf of the prosecution, said the actual defalcations of the prisoner amounted, within two years, to the sum of £22,556 11s. 6d., which was lost by him in speculations on the Stock Exchange. The books of the gentlemen through whom he speculated had been in the hands of the prosecution. It seemed that his speculations were conducted chiefly through Mr. Bellman. For the year 1875 the purchases amounted to £1,642,592, and the sales to £1,641,093, while in 1874 and 1875 the former reached the sum of £1,390,119, and the latter that of £1,379,727. Dr. Commins, on behalf of the prisoner, pointed out that the losses on the share speculations, pure and simple, did not amount to more than about £3,000, but the continuation of the transactions swelled up the figures within less than two years to about £5,000,000 sterling, making the basis upon which commission was charged so large that about £30,000 was swallowed up. The prisoner had commenced with £4,000 of his own, so that but for the enormous commissions he had to pay he might have met the losses with his own money. The Recorder, in sentencing the prisoner to five years' penal servitude, said he agreed that most dangerous temptations were offered to him. He went to the temptations, for he probably knew that such things existed and that there were such opportunities. He went into speculations, but it was not suggested, nor was it reasonably to be believed, that the stockbrokers sought him out. Mr. Higgin, Q.C., who watched the case for Mr. Bellman; Mr. Goldney, who appeared for the Committee of the Stock-Exchange; and Mr. Segar, who appeared for various stock-brokers, wished to make statements after sentence had been passed, but the Recorder ruled that the applications could not be entertained.

WINDING-UP.—A petition has been presented to the Master of the Rolls for the winding-up of the Malvern Hotel Company, Limited.

MONEY to LEND to BORROWERS residing in town or Country, from £50 upwards repayable in one sum, from one to five years, at five per cent. interest on personal security; also on mortgage of freehold or leasehold property from 3 per cent., for a term of years to be agreed upon. No commission.
Apply to R. F. PRESTON, Esq., 120 Southampton-row, London, W.C.

Digitized by Google

"The source of many a writer's woe has been discovered."

PENS! PENS!! PENS!!

"They come as a boon and a blessing to men, The Pickwick, the Owl, and the Waverley Pen."
"The misery of a bad Pen is now a voluntary infliction."

Another blessing to men! The Hindoo Pen. 1,200 Newspapers recommend them. See Graphic, 17th May, 1873.

Sold by every respectable Stationer. Post 1s.1d.

Patentees, MACNIVEN & CAMERON, 23 to 33 Blair-street, Edinburgh.

J. DEFRIES' AND SONS'

CHANDELIERS, IN CRYSTAL, BRONZE, AND ORMOLU.

TABLE GLASS AND CHINA.

Dinner Services, Gilt Pieces, £4 10s.

KEROSENE and MODERATOR LAMPS for INDIA.

Works:—London and Birmingham.

WEDDING AND BIRTHDAY PRESENTS.

NEW DECORATIONS for the DINING TABLE.

FOUNTAINS.

STORER'S Patent Perpetual Perfumed CRYSTAL TABLE FOUNTAIN, for Dining, Hall and Drawing Rooms, in Crystal and Gilt, £2 17s. 6d. to 100 guineas.

FETES AND REJOICINGS.

BALLROOMS and GARDENS, &c., DECORATED and ILLUMINATED for Evening Parties. Tents, Temporary Rooms, and Banqueting Halls erected.

CRYSTAL and BRONZED CHANDELIERS.

TABLE GLASS and CHINA LENT ON HIRE.

J. DEFRIES and SONS, 147, HOUNDSDITCH.

Five minutes' walk from the Bank of England.

RUPTURES—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS s allowed by upwards of 500 Medical Men to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided, a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on th circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the manufacturer, Mr. JOHN WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London. Price of a single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., 31s. 6d, Postage Free. Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. An Umbilical Tsusr, 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. P.O.O. to be made payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

NEW PATENT ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS, &c. for Varicose Veins, and all cases of Weakness and Swelling of the Legs, Sprains, &c. They are porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and are drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price from 4s. 6d., 7s, 6d., 10s, to 16s. each. Postage free.

CHEST EXPANDING BRACES, for both sexes. For gentlemen they are a substitute for the ordinary braces. For children they are invaluable; they prevent stooping and preserve the symmetry of the chest. Prices for children, 5s. 6d. and 7s. 6d. Adults, 10s. 6d., 15s. 6d., and 21s. each. Postage free.—JOHN WHITE, Manufacturer, 228 Piccadilly, London.

EPPS'S COCOA.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—See article in the Civil Service Gazette.

STAR LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY

48 MOORGATE STREET, LONDON, E.C

DIRECTORS.

CHAIRMAN—

Mr. Alderman McArthur, M.P.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—

William Mewburn, Esq.

H. J. Atkinson, Esq.
Thomas Ball, Esq.
Walter Griffith, Esq.
George M. Kiell, Esq.
George Lidgett, Esq.
Sir Francis Lycett.
William Merry, Esq.
John Napier, Esq.
Jonathan S. Pidgeon, Esq
John Vanner, Esq.
S. D. Waddy, Esq., Q.C., M.P.

Assurance and Annuity Fund	1,216,115	13	5
Annual Income (1874)	223,613	2	0
Bonuses Apportioned	581,774	6	2
Claims Paid	1,140,151	1	8

Copies of the Report, Balance Sheet and Prospectus can be obtained on application to the Head Office.

W. W. BAYNES, Secretary.

THE ONLY AND SPECIAL

"MEDAL FOR PROGRESS,"

Was awarded for "Feuerfeste Eisone Schranke und Kunstchlosser Fortschritte," to

HOBBS, HART, & CO.

AT THE VIENNA UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION.

This Medal is only given to Exhibitors whose New Inventions testify marked Progress.

"FIRE-PROOF SAFES; AND LOCKS AND ENDLESS CHANGE LOCKS AND KEYS,"

Invented especially for Safes and Strong-Room Doors, to frustrate the use of False Keys.

N.B.—The continued security and secrecy of a Lock, fixed on a Safe or Strong-Room Door, depends on the fact that there are no false duplicate keys of that Lock in existence. The object of a Lock is twofold—security against burglars, and secrecy against prying curiosity. A new change in this Lock may at any time be obtained in five minutes by simply filing away the thickness of a hair from one or more of the steps of the Key. The Lock, by a simple movement of the Regulator, is thus made to adapt itself to the NEW KEY, after which no other Key will open the Lock.

The Lock and Key may thus be easily altered into what would be virtually a NEW LOCK and KEY, as often as may be desired, without the aid of a Lockmaker or of any second person, thus frustrating the use of fraudulent copies of the original Key (see the Safe Robbery in Dublin of £630, vide "Times," 12th September, 1875). This Lock affords effectual protection from duplicate or "Master" Keys secretly made in manufactories; very extensive robberies (in one case 13 Safes in one vault) having been effected by this means.

HOBBS, HART & CO.,

LOCK, SAFE, AND STRONG-ROOM DOOR MANUFACTURERS.

76 Cheapside, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

MANSION HOUSE CHAMBERS, 11 QUEEN VICTORIA STREET, LONDON, E.C.

First issue of Capital, £500,000, in Subscriptions of £1 and upwards. No further liability. Open to all. Each cash subscriber is entitled to interest in lieu of dividend, at the rate of £1 10s. per cent. per month, 18 per cent. per annum, which will be paid in Cash.

TRUSTEES.

Lieut.-General J. H. GASCOIGNE, C.B., Ivybridge, Devon.
The Rev. W. F. GOOD, D.D., Newton Abbott, Devon.
H. R. SNELGROVE, Esq., The Vicarage, Exmouth.
HENRY WALKER, Esq., Fowler Height, Blackburn.

ACCOUNTANTS AND AUDITORS.

Messrs. R. W. HUDSWELL AND Co., 23 Martin's Lane, Cannon Street, London, E.C.

MANAGER AND PROPRIETOR. — RICHARD BANNER OAKLEY, F.R.G.S.

Current accounts opened, and 5 per cent. interest allowed on the minimum monthly balances. Cheque Books supplied. The Bank grants credits and issues circular notes for the Continent and America, and transacts every description of sound Financial Business.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street, ISSUES GUARANTEED CHEQUES for any sum not exceeding £20 against cash deposits, without any charge for commission, the penny stamp being the only expense. These are very convenient for persons not having banking accounts, or not wishing to draw small cheques. They are payable on demand at all the Branches of the Co-operative Credit Bank, or can be passed through any bank in ordinary course.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street, is NOW ISSUING PROMISSORY NOTES from £5 upwards, payable three months after date with interest at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum if held to maturity, or payable on demand without interest. These are very useful to persons requiring short investments, and are perfectly negotiable instruments.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The ONLY SAFE and FIRM SYSTEM of BANKING.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The PEOPLE'S BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—No Promotion Money or Preliminary Expenses.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Managerial Remuneration Dependent on Profits.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Profits on the whole amount of the Liability.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Minimum of Risk, its operations being spread over a variety of subjects.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—No Liability beyond amount of subscription.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The Secrecy and Despatch of Individual Management.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—A fixed instead of an uncertain Scale of Profits.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Eighteen per Cent. per Annum paid Monthly.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—A constantly accruing Reserve Fund.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Power of Total Withdrawal after six months on Sixty Days' Notice.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street, City.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Book-keeping in the hands of the Subscribers.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Quarterly published Balance-sheet issued and certified by the Subscribers' Accountant.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Current Accounts opened and Five per Cent. allowed on the Minimum Monthly Balances.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK. — Furnishes Cheque Books for Customers.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK grants Credits and issues Circular Notes for the Continent and America.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK transacts every description of Sound Financial Business.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK introduces Public Loans.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK promotes Public Companies of a bona-fide character.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK negotiates the Discount of Bills and Mortgages on a Small Commission.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK negotiates Loans on Deposit of Deeds and other valuable Securities.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK assists in the Development of Patents for Useful Inventions.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK undertakes on Commission the Purchase and Sale of Stocks and Shares.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street, near the Mansion House.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK accepts the Agencies of Foreign and Country Banks and Merchants, and of Foreign Governments.

IF YOU WANT TO HAVE YOUR BUSINESS done Cheaply and Expeditiously, go to the CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

IF YOU WANT TO BE TREATED WITH CIVILITY, lodge your Money with the CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

IF YOU WANT THE BEST AND MOST RELIABLE COMMERCIAL INFORMATION OF THE DAY, ask the Manager of THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK,
Mansion House Chambers,
11 QUEEN VICTORIA STREET, LONDON.

BRANCHES at Bath, Blackburn, Denbigh, Dundee, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Inverness, Liverpool, Manchester, Warrington, Bristol, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Shields, Woolwich, Sunderland, Bishop Auckland, Exeter, Blyth, Bradford-on-Avon, Newton Abbott, Neath, Newport (Mon.), Middlesborough, Plymouth, South Shields, Worcester, Sheffield, Salisbury, Tow Low, Brompton, Leicester, Moreton-in-the-Marsh, Hull, Norwich, Portsmouth, Easingwold, Birmingham and Greenock.

Digitized by Google

THE METROPOLITAN AND PROVINCIAL
Land, Estate, House, Licensed Victuallers' & General
BUSINESS TRANSFER "SYNDICATE" AGENCY.
Registered according to Act of Parliament. Head Offices, No. 3 Craven-street, Charing Cross, W.C. The organisation and working system of the "Syndicate" are;—1st.—The Sale, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Ground of Rents, Freehold and Leasehold Land, Farms, Estates, Houses, Hotels-Public Houses, Inns, Beer Houses, Restaurants, Coffee Houses, Tobacconists, Drapers, and every other description of Business, Furniture, Objects of Art, or Goods of any description by Auction or Private Contracts 2nd.—The letting, or disposing of, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Land-Farms, Estates, Furnished, or Unfurnished Houses Chambers, or Offices under private contract. 3rd.—The Collection of Rents and the recovery of outstanding accounts. 4th.—The Surveys and Valuation of Land, Farms, Estates, and Houses; also Valuations of Furniture, Jewellery, and other Effects, for probate and other purposes. 5th.—The transaction of all other business usually transacted by Auctioneers, Surveyors, Land, House, Estate and Insurance Agents. 6th.—The negociations of partnerships, and from unlimited connection with capitalists, monetary advances on real and personal securities, as well as merchandize, and every other description of property intended forabsolute sale, or otherwise. 7th. Generally the carrying out of all things incidental or conducive to the above objects, and every of them; also the laying out of estates and surveys for delapidations. The "Syndicate" from their extended connection with the Trades' Protection Societies and other sources, undertake expeditiously for Clients and others to ascertain reliably the status of parties, and make inquiries of a private and confidential character Liberal terms to Accountants in town or country introducing business.

OLD FALCON HOTEL, GRAVESEND.
Proprietor—W. SKILLETER.
Late Chef de Cuisine to His Grace the Duke of Argyll.
Visitors to Gravesend will find every accommodation at the Old Falcon Hotel, East Street. Public and Private Rooms facing the River, directly opposite Tilbury Fort, and with a capital view of the Thames shipping.
FISH DINNERS AND WHITEBAIT.
BED AND BREAKFAST FOR GENTLEMEN £1 1s. PER WEEK.
And an equally low Tariff for Dejeuners, Dinners, &c.
Five Minutes' walk from North Kent Railway, and Two Minutes from the Piers, and Tilbury and Southend Railway.

RESTAURANT,
13 OXFORD STREET,
Near the corner of Tottenham-court-road.
Known as the BODEGA, now under the new management of Mr. L. BOECKER, late of 13 Idol-lane, City.
Luncheons from the joints, hot or cold, including vegetables and bread, 1s. 3d
Dinners from 12 till 4 o'clock, from the joint, with soup or fish, vegetables, cheese and bread, 2s.
Dinners from 6 till 9 o'clock, from 2s. 6d. to 10s. 6d.
Private Dining Rooms for large and small parties on the Second Floor.

THE BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY'S ANNUAL RECEIPTS EXCEED THREE MILLIONS.

HOW TO PURCHASE A HOUSE FOR TWO GUINEAS PER MONTH
With immediate Possession and no Rent to pay.—Apply at the Office of the Birkbeck Building Society, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO PURCHASE A PLOT OF LAND FOR FIVE SHILLINGS PER MONTH.
With Immediate Possession, either for Building or Gardening purposes.—Apply at the Office of the Birkbeck Freehold Land Society, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO INVEST YOUR MONEY WITH SAFETY AT £4 PER CENT. INTEREST.
Apply at the Office of the Birkbeck Bank. All sums under £50 repayable upon demand. Current Accounts opened similar to ordinary Bankers. Cheque-books supplied. English and Foreign Stocks and Shares purchased and sold, and Advances made thereon.
Office Hours from 10 till 4; on Mondays from 10 till 9, and on Saturdays from 10 till 12 o'clock.
A Pamphlet containing full particulars may be obtained post-free on application.
Francis Ravenscroft, Manager.

H. D. RAWLINGS,
PURVEYOR OF MINERAL WATERS TO

H. R. H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.
H. R. H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH.
H. R. H. THE PRINCE CHRISTIAN.
THE LATE EMPEROR NAPOLEON III.
AND THE PRINCIPAL COURTS OF EUROPE.

Gold Medallist of the Societe Nationale Agricole Manufacturiere et Commerciale de Paris.
SODA, BRIGHTON, SELTZER and all other Mineral Waters for HOME CONSUMPTION and EXPORTATION.
PRICE LISTS on Application, at the Manufactory, Nassau-street, W.

ALFRED W. GEE,
ADVERTISING AGENT,
62, GRACECHURCH STREET,
LONDON, E.C.

London Gazette Notices, and Advertisements and Announcements of all kinds for English, Colonial, and Foreign Newspapers promptly inserted.

N.B.—In the case of an ordinary Advertisement ordered for insertion in a number of Newspapers, only one MS. copy need be forwarded. Same rates charged as at the Publishing Offices.

Printed and Published for the Proprietor by Williams & Strahan, 7 Lawrence Lane, Cheapside. December 11, 1875.

Digitized by Google

The Accountant.

A MEDIUM OF COMMUNICATION BETWEEN ACCOUNTANTS IN ALL PARTS OF THE UNITED KINGDOM

VOL. I.—NEW SERIES.—No. 54.] SATURDAY, DECEMBER 18, 1875. [PRICE 6D.

THE

ACCOUNTANTS' DIARY

AND

DIRECTORY for 1876

IS NOW READY, and can be had upon application to the Publishers, Messrs. WILLIAMS & STRAHAN, 7 Lawrence-lane, Cheapside, or to MR. A. C. HARPER, 2 Cowper's Court, Cornhill, E.C.

PRICE:—

Foolscap Folio .. 6s. By post 6s. 8d.
Medium Octavo .. 3s. „ 3s. 4d.

TO PUBLIC COMPANIES, &c.

"THE CHRISTIAN UNION,"

The largest Religious Penny Journal in the World.

IS INVALUABLE AS A MEDIUM for Advertising to Public Companies, Charities, Commercial Houses, Auctioneers, Estate Agents, Capitalists, Bankers, Shippers, Railway Companies, Exporters, Merchants, Manufacturers, Share Brokers, Insurance Companies, Benefit Societies, Building Clubs, Public Schools, Colleges, Institutions, Hotels, Tutors, Governesses, Secretaries, Managers, Clerks, etc., etc.—Applications for advertisement space to be addressed to ALFRED W. GEE, Advertising Agent, 62 Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

PUBLISHING OFFICE:—108 Fleet-street, London, E.C.

ACCOUNTANTS may greatly facilitate their office work, and materially increase their profits, by printing liquidation notices, &c., by Zuccato's Papyrograph, which is used by a large number of London and Provincial Accountants, including John L. Lovering and Co.; Gamble and Harvey; Andrews and Mason; Nicholls and Leatherdale; Slater and Pannell; John Bath and Co.; Sydney Smith, and Co.; Ladbury, Collinson, and Viney; Arthur Barron and Co.; Edmunds, Davis, and Clarke; &c. For 2½d., 500 4to. copies can be taken upon any kind of dry paper, by an office boy in a copying-press at the rate of 10 a minute. For price list and testimonials, apply to WALTER HENRY, Papyrographic Depôt, 409 Strand, W.C.

Established 1843.

PERIODICAL SALE OF REVERSIONS, ANNUITIES, LIFE POLICIES, SHARES, &c.

MESSRS. MARSH, MILNER, AND Co., are preparing their printed particulars for the forthcoming Monthly AUCTION, which is held the FIRST THURSDAY in every month. To insure due publicity, particulars of Properties intended to be included in the next sale should be forwarded, without delay, to the City Land and Reversion Offices, 54 Cannon Street, London.

LAND, Domains, Mountain Ranges, Woods, Forests, and Important Residential Estates. Messrs. MARSH, MILNER, and Co., Land Valuers and Timber Surveyors, have a number of WEALTHY BUYERS DESIROUS of INVESTING in AGRICULTURAL, SPORTING, and RESIDENTIAL ESTATES. OWNERS of marketable properties wishing to effect advantageous sales are therefore invited to forward plans and particulars, which, when received, will be judiciously placed before intending purchasers, publicity being carefully avoided, and written terms settled before any cost or liability is incurred. Address Messrs. Marsh, Milner, and Co., Land and Timber Surveyors, 54 Cannon-street, London, E.C.

MESSRS. MARSH, MILNER, AND Co.'s REGISTER of LANDED ESTATES, Town and Country Residences, and property of every description, is published Monthly, and may be obtained at the Auction, Land, and Estate Agency Offices, 54 Cannon-street, E.C., or will be forwarded by post on application.

MORTGAGES promptly NEGOTIATED upon Landed Estates, City Properties, and upon sound securities of all kinds. Messrs. MARSH, MILNER and Co., have at the present time access to large sums of Money ready to be immediately advanced upon approved securities. Apply at the City Land and Reversion Offices (Established 1843), 54 Cannon-street.

LOVEWELL BLAKE, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT, RECEIVER, AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY.

SECRETARY TO THE GREAT YARMOUTH TRADERS' ASSOCIATION.

OFFICES: HALL QUAY CHAMBERS, GREAT YARMOUTH.

J. F. TITCHMARSH, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT AND AUDITOR,

17 PRINCESS STREET, IPSWICH.

RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY AND LIQUIDATION.

WILLIAM EDWARDS, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT AND AUDITOR,

GRANVILLE PLACE, STONE ROAD, LONGTON, STAFFORDSHIRE.

RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY AND LIQUIDATION.

CHARLES LOWDEN,

PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT,

RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY,

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

39 BROAD-STREET, BRISTOL,

JUNE 24TH, 1875.

The PARTNERSHIP hitherto existing under the Style or Firm of HANCOCK, TRIGGS, & CO., having been DISSOLVED by mutual consent, I beg to give notice that I purpose henceforth to CARRY ON BUSINESS as a PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT at the above address.

PHILIP TRIGGS.

MESSRS. BARRETT AND PATEY,

PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS,

90 LONDON WALL, E C.

HAVING removed from No. 8 Finsbury Circus, to more commodious offices at the above address, will be pleased to hear from Accountants resident in the provincial and manufacturing towns who require agents in London.

Digitized by Google

MR. FERDINAND WOLFSKEHL,
BANKER,
9 STEINWEG, FRANKFORT A/MAIN, GERMANY,

CALLS THE ATTENTION of Investors to different Continental Government Securities, guaranteed by Acts of Parliament, through which Capital and Interest ARE SECURED BEYOND ANY DOUBT.

Every one of these Loans must be repaid as per Plan attached to each Debenture, within a limited number of years, by periodical Drawings, OFFERING ADVANTAGES PRESENTED BY NO OTHER SECURITIES, WITH BONUSES AT EACH DRAWING, varying from

£10 to £30,000.

For full particulars apply by letter, addressed care
MESSRS. WOLFSKEHL BROTHERS, BANKERS,
LORD STREET, LIVERPOOL.

TRANSLATIONS.
MR. ALFRED W. GEE,
BRITISH AND FOREIGN ADVERTISING AGENT,
62 GRACECHURCH STREET, LONDON, E.C.,

Begs to announce that in compliance with a wish expressed by some of the subscribers to the Accountant, he has made arrangements for the translation of legal and commercial documents, correspondence, &c., into the Principal European Languages. Members of the Profession are therefore respectfully informed that arrangements can be made for efficient and speedy translations into, or from, the French, German, Italian, Spanish, and Dutch Languages on Moderate Terms.

The Accountant.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

The ACCOUNTANT is printed and published in time for Friday evening's mail; price 6d. per copy, or 28s. per annum (including postage), the reduced terms for payment in advance being: annual subscription 24s. (post free); half-yearly ditto, 13s. (post free). Cheques and Post-office orders to be made payable to Mr. Alfred W. Gee, 62 Gracechurch-street, E.C., to whom applications for advertisement space, and letters relating to the general business of the paper, should also be addressed. Literary communications should be directed to the Editor of the ACCOUNTANT at the same address, and in order to ensure insertion in the current number, correspondents are respectfully requested to forward their copy as early in the week as possible.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The Proprietor desires to call the attention of Advertisers to the special advantages offered by the paper as an Advertising medium. Starting with a good guaranteed circulation, and with the entire concurrence and hearty support of the leading members of the profession, the ACCOUNTANT has achieved a large measure of success in a wide field hitherto unoccupied by any professional organ. The ACCOUNTANT thus secures to Advertisers an excellent circulation of an exclusive character; and is particularly valuable as a medium for the announcements of members of the profession, as to Estates and Declaration of Dividends, and the appointment of Trustees and Receivers; for Publishers, Printers, Law Stationers, Auctioneers, and Estate Agents; for the Advertisements of Insurance and Public Companies; and for Notices as to Investments, Vacant Partnerships, &c. Advertisements intended for insertion in the current number, should reach the office on Thursday; late announcements can, however, be received up to 12 o'clock (noon) on Friday.

N.B.—Copies may be obtained at Messrs. W. H. Smith and Sons, Strand, at their numerous Railway Bookstalls, and at the Shops of the leading City and West-End Newsvendors.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.

In consequence of numerous applications from subscribers, the proprietor has made arrangements for the supply of CASES for holding and preserving the Accountant, which may be obtained at the office on the following terms:—In green cloth (well got up), with elastics, and "The Accountant" in gold letters on front, 3s. each; same in leather, 4s. 6d. each. Subscribers' names in gold lettering, 1s. extra. Post Office Orders payable to ALFRED W. GEE, 62 Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

The Accountant.

DECEMBER 18, 1875.

Whether it will ever become possible to put down gambling speculations by legislation, is a question to which various answers will be given. On the one hand will be urged the trite saying as to the impossibility of making men moral by Act of Parliament, and the inequitable effect of a law which punishes only the unsuccessful. On the other hand, it may be fairly alleged that, though no legislation can bring men to a state of absolute moral perfection, there can be no doubt that stringent enactments, which bring sharp and speedy punishments upon those who offend against their provisions, are very effectual in deterring men from vicious courses. At the same time, a law may be so sweeping and severe as to defeat the object at which it aims. It can scarcely be doubted, to use a familiar illustration, that an attempt to shut up all public houses in the country would be wholly abortive to produce a rigid régime of total abstinence from intoxicating drinks. During the brief period which would elapse before it was swept away in an outburst of popular indignation, it would be constantly evaded, and the masses of the world would remain in their present degraded condition. But, though so extreme a measure is admitted by all but fanatics to be impracticable, there is no one who would deny the utility of some legislation on the subject. To regulate the traffic, to place houses under proper control, to punish excess severely, if scarcely satisfactory to Good Templars, has yet a very beneficial effect in counteracting the evils of drunkenness.

At the present time, the great evil with which the nation has to grapple is the spirit of gambling. Upon this scarcely any restraint is put. The vices of the turf are bad and demoralising enough, but they are outdone by the vices of the Stock Exchange. Among the causes of failure which bankrupts put upon record occurs over and over again, the tale of heavy losses incurred by gambling speculations on the Stock Exchange. The merchant, apparently in the full tide of prosperity, whose ships invariably come home laden with heavy freight, whose credit stands upon a rock, and whose business seems almost daily to increase, suddenly suspends payment, and his creditors, who would have trusted him to any amount, find that a nominal dividend is all that they can expect. The fortune made by slow years of steady industry has been dissipated by a run of ill-luck on the Stock Exchange, and the creditors are robbed to feed the hungry tribe of schemers to whose unblushing dishonesty so many impoverished families owe their ruin. No class, apparently, is safe from the fascination of the Exchange. To the brokers the mania means a rapid fortune. What their profits are appears from the case we recorded last week, tried at Liverpool. A clerk in the employment of a firm of timber merchants engages in speculation. Considering the magnitude of his transactions, he lost a comparatively small amount, not exceeding £3,000. But in order to lose this sum he had to pay £30,000 to his brokers. That the brokers are culpable in the matter does not appear. They incur a heavy responsibility; they have to exercise all the arts of their profession; and the commissions they charged were probably not in excess of the lawful sums. But that brokers as a rule should discourage speculation is scarcely to be expected. A few old firms, strong in the confidence of a numerous and wealthy connection, may refuse to aid speculation, and confine themselves to doing the business of bonâ fide investors. But the great majority must swim with the stream; and to resist the temptation of making so large a profit as the brokers employed by the defaulting clerk must have done, is one which it scarcely lies in human nature to achieve.

The answer that is made, when eager reformers endeavour earnestly to grapple with such an evil as this, is that any legislation would do more harm in checking lawful enterprise than it would do good in staying heedless speculation. It is no more unlawful, it is said, from a moral point of view, to speculate for the rise or fall of stocks and shares, than to speculate as to the rise or fall of the price of commodities. If a wholesale merchant thinks that his wares are going up in price, he buys as largely as he can, regardless of the loss he may cause to those from whom he makes his purchases. Why, then, it is asked, should we forbid a man from buying shares which he thinks will rise in value, or getting rid of those which he has reason to believe will go down? The answer is simple, though often denounced as unsatisfactory. There is no objection to a man buying or selling to the best advantage in the way of business. If his experience or private knowledge lead him to believe that it will be to his advantage to invest all his capital in a particular stock, by all means let him do so. If it rises in value, and he thinks it expedient to sell out, that again is a proper and perfectly justifiable course. But if he buys or sells without having stock or money in case of his calculations proving incorrect, he is no longer an investor but a gambler. If he professedly gets his living by watching the fluctuations of the market, and buying or selling at opportune times, let him do so. He will deal, in the ordinary course of business, with men who have proper means of estimating his position, and know how to trust him. But let him confine himself to this walk of life, and pursue it openly and soundly. There are many individuals who pursue the despised trade of bookmaking. As a rule they are perfectly solvent, and in their way strictly honourable and straightforward men. In the great collapses and scandals of the turf they are not the persons whose names are covered with disgrace and reproach. It is those who take up betting, not as a trade, but as a pure speculation, on whom rests the burden of loss and dishonour. So we would lay down this rule as regards all losses through gambling. Let those who will follow speculation as a profession, but let business men stick to their business; and let all failures attributable to speculation, of whatever kind outside the strict limits of business, be treated with some mark of severity.

We have before expressed our opinion that some of the penal provisions of the Act of 1861 might advantageously be re-enacted. The offences for which a bankrupt is liable to criminal proceedings are now reduced to those which may prejudice the operation of the Act. Fraudulent concealment of assets, fraudulent removal of goods, and other like items, are alone punishable. If the creditors receive a sufficient dividend, or if they are kindly disposed or so apathetic as to be swayed by a vigorous and organised minority of the friends of the debtor, freedom from unpleasant consequences follows as a matter of course. The discharge is granted if the creditors are not anxious to oppose it, and the Court has no power to interfere unless the bankrupt has made default in giving up his property, or has been involved in a prosecution for an offence under the Debtors' Act. The remedy we would propose would be to enact plainly and clearly, that when the losses were occasioned by gambling speculations outside the proper line of business, the Court should have absolute power to suspend the order of discharge.

Digitized by Google

We would not, for the present at least, go so far as to make reckless trading punishable. The creditors, who, at any rate, have to bear the pecuniary consequences of failure, may be left to decide upon this point; and they can already prevent the discharge of the bankrupt till he has made his statutory dividend. But to those whose losses have been occasioned outside their business, we would show scant mercy. A man may be deceived in his calculations as to what he professes to understand, and in the present age of adventurous competition, it may not be easy to draw the exact line between bold and hazardous trading. But there is no possible excuse for the man who loses his money in illegitimate speculations. It may seem contrary to the principles of rigid justice to punish want of success as a crime, and to let the successful speculator go on his way rejoicing. But rigid justice is not always practicable. We would disregard all cant about punishment, but we would simply declare that, while every body is free to make money in any way he likes, those who choose to gamble must do it at the risk, if they fail, of finding themselves utterly at the mercy of every creditor. At present the chances are in their favour. If they calculate aright they reap a rich harvest, if they fail the chief part of their loss falls upon others. So in the future, let the cobbler stick to his last, and the trader to legitimate trade. If they choose to wander from the regular path forewarned of the results of ill-success, they will only have themselves to blame if those consequences are unpleasant.

There are one or two cases in our last week's issue which are worth noting as to practical points. First of all we have the case Ex parte Andrew, which as far as it goes, seems scarcely worth arguing. The practice of allowing two creditors to unite for the purpose of making their joint claims sufficient to invoke the jurisdiction of the Court of Bankruptcy, is so plainly laid down in the Act, that it is an obvious corollary that the debtor shall not be allowed to endeavour to evade it by tendering the amount of one creditor's debt alone. What payment of one claim would effect is different. We agree with Lord Justice James in thinking that the plan is productive of inconvenience, and a good many judicial decisions will be required before the full meaning of the rule is finally settled. Another case raised the question as to the power of a landlord to distrain after bankruptcy for rent payable in advance. The 34th section allows a landlord to distrain after bankruptcy for any rent due not exceeding one year's amount. According to the view taken by the Chief Judge, the landlord is entitled to distrain for rent which fell due after the appointment of a trustee. The section, however, which uses the words "rent due from the bankrupt," is by no means clear. It gives the landlord power to distrain not only after but before the bankruptcy; a right which he possesses independently of all the statutes of bankruptcy that have ever been passed. But surely what is intended is, that the landlord does not lose his right of distress for what is due by bankruptcy, but is treated as a secured creditor for the amount of one year's rent. This is not quite the same as saying that he may distrain for rent which accrues after the bankruptcy. The sections as to the rights of landlords are, however, sadly in need of authoritative judicial explanation throughout.

APPOINTMENTS.

[The Editor will be glad to receive early notice of appointment of Liquidators and Auditors for insertion in this Column.

Mr. J. J. Saffery (J. J. Saffery and Company), 14 Old Jewry-chambers, London, has been appointed trustee of the estate of George Wilson Hay, of Leicester, seedsman and florist, in liquidation.

The protracted proceedings against the directors of the City and County Bank at the Mansion-house have resulted in Sir Robert Carden discharging Mr. Redmond and committing the other defendants for trial, bail being accepted.

Digitized by Google

Correspondence.

REMOVAL OF THE BANKRUPTCY COURT.

To the Editor of the Accountant.

SIR,—With reference to the appointment of an officer to administer oaths in bankruptcy in the City of London, the principal point urged against the appointment is, the expense of providing such an officer. I would suggest, as a solution of the difficulty, that the chief clerk of any of the police, or other courts, should be allowed to administer oaths in bankruptcy, free of charge to creditors; but should receive, as compensation for extra trouble, some advance of salary. This would give numerous facilities to creditors for swearing their proofs, without materially increasing the expenses of the Bankruptcy Court. If, however, it is absolutely necessary that the expenses of such an officer should be entirely done away with, a small fee (say of sixpence) might be charged for every affidavit. It has been urged that in large firms a clerk is generally deputed to make all affidavits in proof of debt. It is, however, seldom that he can make more than one or two at a time; and a journey to the West End, therefore, entails a further loss of time and money to his principals, which, in the case of small debts, is a very serious matter, it being necessary in liquidation and bankruptcy that debts, however small, should be proved, and in many instances the cost of making the proof would exceed the amount of the dividend to be received. For the convenience of all concerned, I trust that somebody will be authorised to take affidavits in the City free of charge.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
A. S. A. E.

1 Gresham-buildings, London, Dec. 13.

To the Editor of the Accountant.

SIR,—As a proof that we are advancing in Bankruptcy legislation, and that the present mode of realising estates is preferable to that adopted under the previous Acts of Parliament, I would inform you that I have this day received a dividend for a firm in which I am interested, where the bankruptcy petition was filled in April, 1857.

Yours truly,
TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY.

Newcastle-on-Tyne, Dec. 9th,

THE CASE OF MESSRS. COLLIE.

Mr. William Collie, whose case has been so frequently before the public, surrendered to his bail on the 13th inst., before Sir Thomas White, at the Guildhall, to answer the charge of being concerned with his brother, Mr. Alexander Collie, who had absconded, in obtaining £300,000 from the London and Westminster Bank by false pretences. Mr. Alexander Collie, it will be recollected, absconded from his bail, and the prosecution have not been able to proceed without him.

Mr. Poland, instructed by Messrs. Travers, Smith, and Co., prosecuted for the London and Westminster Bank, and Mr. Pollard, instructed by Messrs. Hollams, Son, and Coward, appeared for the defendant.

Mr. Poland said that when this case was last before the court statements were made by his leader, Sir Henry James, on the part of the prosecution, and by Mr. Serjeant Ballantine for the defence, and it was then thought desirable that the case should stand adjourned until that day, but it was now considered that it would be a somewhat inconvenient course to fix a day for a further adjournment, and he therefore proposed that recognisances should be entered into for the defendant to appear on receiving reasonable notice to do so. Of course that would not be for an indefinite period, but he proposed that the notice should be given within a period of six months from this date. He understood that there was no objection offered to this course on the part of the defendant, and the bail were willing.

Mr. Pollard said that his client did not seek to avoid the investigation, but, on the contrary, desired it, so that he might be exculpated from a charge of which he was totally innocent. It was, however, necessary that the investigation should take place at as early a date as possible, and there appeared to be no objection to the course suggested that the defendant should enter into recognisances to come up if notice be given within six months, or before then if reasonable notice were given. The only thing he had to ask was that the reasonableness of that notice should be decided by Sir Thomas White.

Mr. Martin, the chief clerk, then read the special conditions of the recognisances.

Mr. Poland said the more convenient course would be that the recognisances should be limited to six months, and if they do not receive notice within that period, they will no longer continue in force.

Mr. Pollard suggested that the notice should also be served on the solicitors for the defence. He offered no opposition on the part of the defendant, and the bail were prepared to renew.

The recognisance, as amended, was then read as follows:—"That Mr. William Collie appears at the Guildhall Justice-room to answer the charge preferred against him on any day at any hour when required, within six months of this day, by giving seven days' notice in writting, to be served by the solicitor to the prosecution on the defendant, William Collie, personally, or by leaving such notice at his last known place of abode, or by sending it to Messrs. Hollams, Son, and Coward, the solicitor to the defendant."

Sir Thomas White said then what he was to understand was that the case was to be adjourned on those conditions, on the same bail as before.

Mr. Pollard said that was so.

Sir Thomas White asked if the bail were present?

Mr. Pollard said they were.

Mr. Andrew Yule and Mr. Theodore George Andreæ then entered into the required securities of £2,000 each, and the defendant into his own recognisances in £4,000, and they then left the court.

FAILURES.

ENGLAND.—Messrs. A. A. Morlet and Co., merchants, of Billiter-square, have stopped payment "in consequence of the failure of remittances from abroad." Their liabilities amount to £110,000, but the value of the assets has not yet been ascertained. The books of the firm have been placed in the hands of Messrs. Chatteris, Nicholls, and Chatteris, the accountants, and the solicitors in the matter are Messrs. Hardwick and Holmes.

AUSTRIA.—The failure is reported of Messrs. Spitzer and Loewy, merchants, of Vienna, with considerable liabilities, including £25,000 due to Bradford houses.

The receipts on account of revenue from the 1st April, 1875, when there was a balance of £6,265,322, to the 11th inst. were £49,437,312, against £48,661,442 in the corresponding period of the preceding financial year, which began with a balance of £7,442,854. The net expenditure was £51,173,644, against £50,571,463 to the same date in the previous year. The Treasury balances on the 11th inst. amounted to £3,620,405, and at the same date in 1874 to £4,202,672.

Digitized by Google

SUPREME COURT OF JUDICATURE.

COURT OF APPEAL, Lincoln's-Inn.

December 15.

(Before Lords Justices James, Mellish, and Baggallay, and Mr. Justice Brett.)

Ex parte Powell—In re Matthews.—This was an appeal from a decision of the Chief Judge in Bankruptcy. Charles Matthews was an hotel-keeper at the North-Eastern Railway Station Hotel, Harrogate. He took the hotel in November, 1874, and furniture for it to the value of over £900 was supplied to him by Messrs. J. and D. Milling, who are furniture dealers at Leeds. This furniture was supplied upon what is called a "hiring agreement," which was not actually executed until the 30th of April, 1875. The agreement provided that Messrs. Milling thereby let to Matthews, and Matthews thereby hired of Messrs. Milling, the articles of furniture mentioned in the schedule to the agreement, which were admitted by Matthews to be of the value of £913 14s. The hiring was to be on the condition that Matthews should pay the £913 14s. to Messrs. Milling in certain specified instalments spread over several years. In the event of non-payment of any of the instalments when due, the payments previously made by Matthews were to be forfeited to Messrs. Milling. Upon payment of the whole £913 14s. the furniture was to become the property of Matthews, but until the whole of that sum was paid it was to remain the sole property of Messrs. Milling, and was only to be let on hire to Matthews. The agreement was registered as a bill of sale. On the 9th of June, 1875, Matthews was adjudicated a bankrupt. The whole of the price of the furniture had not been then paid. The trustee under the bankruptcy claimed the furniture, under Section 15 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, as having been at the commencement of the bankruptcy in the order or disposition of the bankrupt as reputed owner, with the consent of the true owner. Against this claim reliance was placed on the existence of an alleged notorious custom that furniture should be hired out in this way, so that the possession of furniture would not lead to the reputation of ownership; and to show the existence of this custom the evidence of several furniture dealers were adduced. They were not cross-examined, nor was any evidence brought forward to contradict them. The Judge of the County Court at York decided in favour of the claim of the trustee, but on appeal to the Chief Judge this decision was reversed; the Chief Judge thought that the custom of hiring furniture in this way had been so often proved in previous cases in the Court of Bankruptcy that the Court was bound to take judicial notice of it. From this decision the trustee appealed. Mr. Winslow, Q.C., and Mr. Yate Lee were for the appellant; Mr. Little, Q.C., and Mr. Bagley were for Messrs. Milling. The arguments were heard last month, and this morning the judgment of the court was delivered, affirming that of the Chief Judge. Lord Justice Mellish, in delivering the judgment of the Court, said that the furniture clearly passed to the trustee unless the existence of such a custom of letting furniture in this way was proved as would prevent Matthews being the reputed owner. The Chief Judge decided the case, not upon the evidence, but on the ground that the existence and validity of the custom had been so frequently proved in the Bankruptcy Court that the Court ought now to take judicial notice of it. The Courts of Common Law no doubt did take judicial notice of mercantile customs which had been often proved, and treated them as a part of the law merchant. Their Lordships saw no reason why a similar rule should not prevail in the Court of Bankruptcy. But then came the question, how was the Court of Appeal to ascertain that a custom had been proved to this extent? That Court ought, no doubt, to give great weight to the testimony of the Chief Judge, but it could not act on his opinion alone. The members of the Court of Appeal who heard this case were not aware of any other decided cases which tended to show the existence of the alleged custom than those which were reported in the books, and the experienced counsel engaged in the case were unable to mention any others. The reported cases did not appear to their Lordships sufficient to establish that the alleged custom had been frequently proved; and, on the whole, they were of opinion that it had not been proved in such a number of cases as would entitle the court to take judicial notice of it. The next question was whether the evidence in the present case was sufficient to establish the custom. The question of the amount of evidence to establish such a custom had been before the Court of Appeal recently in the cases of "Ex parte Watkins" ("Law Reports," 8 Chan.) and "Ex parte Marston" (heard in March last and reported in The Accountant). The result of those cases was that the custom must be proved to have existed so long, and to have been so extensively acted upon, that the ordinary creditors of the bankrupt in his trade must be reasonably presumed to have known it. The defect of the evidence in the present case was that, though it might prove that the practice of supplying customers with furniture under contracts of this description was one well known to and used by furniture dealers, it afforded but a slight inference that it was so well known that the ordinary creditors of an hotel-keeper—the wine merchant, the spirit merchant, the ordinary tradesman of his town—were likely to know it. In the hearing of the appeal their Lordships offered to direct an issue to try the question of the custom. The trustee, however, declined this on the ground that there were but small assets of the bankrupt, except this furniture. The trustee could not be blamed for taking this course; but, as the issue had been, in fact, declined, their Lordships thought that they ought not to reverse the judgment of the Chief Judge, the evidence in support of the custom being, though slight, yet entirely uncontradicted. The appeal was therefore dismissed, but without costs.

Ex Parte Rashleigh.—In re Dalzell.—This was an appeal from a decision of the Chief Judge in Bankruptcy, and it raised a curious question as to the construction of those clauses of the Bankruptcy Acts of 1861 and 1869 which make non-traders liable to the Bankrupt Laws. The Act of 1861, by which non-traders were first made liable to those laws, provided, by Section 90, that, in the case of a non-trader, the debt of the petitioning creditor must be a debt "contracted after the passing of this Act." But Section 32 provided that the Act should commence and take effect from and after the passing thereof, as to the appointment af certain officers, and "as to all matters and things from and after the 11th of October, 1861." The Act was passed —i e. received the Royal Assent—on the 6th of August, 1861. The Bankruptcy Act of 1861 being now repealed, the Act of 1869 (Section 118) provides that a non-trader shall not be adjudged a bankrupt in respect of a debt "contracted before the date of the passing of the Bankruptcy Act, 1861." The Chief Judge held that a debt contracted on the 10th of September, 1861—i.e. between the passing of the Act of 1861 and its coming into operation—must, for the purpose of rendering a non-trader liable to be made a bankrupt in respect of it, be taken to have been contracted before the passing of the Act. Their Lordships held that this decision was wrong, and that the words "the passing of the Act" must be taken in their strict literal sense. Mr. De Gex, Q.C., and Mr. Finlay Knight were for the appellant; Mr. Karslake, Q.C., and Mr. Herbert Smith were for the respondent.

Winding-up.—Petitions to wind-up the British Imperial Insurance Corporation, Limited, the Bulkamore Magnetic Iron Ore Company, Limited, and the Exchange Trading Company, Limited, have been presented to the High Court of Justice.—A petition to wind up the New Dolcoath Tin and Copper Mining Company, Limited, has been presented to the Vice-Warden of the Stannaries.

Digitized by Google

HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE.

CHANCERY DIVISION.

December 11.

(Before the Master of the Rolls.)

The Erimus Iron Company, Limited.—The Charlton Iron Works Company, Limited.—The usual winding-up order was made in each of these cases. Mr. Chitty, Q.C., Mr. G. Williamson, Mr. F. C. J. Millar, Mr. Brodrick, and Mr. Romer were the counsel engaged.

(Before Vice-Chancellor Sir Richard Malins.)

The Imperial Land Company of Marseilles, Limited, v. Masterman and others.—The main object of the suit as it now stands is to recover from Messrs. Frühling and Goschen two sums of £38,000 odd and £30,000 alleged to have been improperly paid to and received by them out of the assets of the plaintiff company. The liability of the Messrs. Frühling and Goschen arose out of the circumstances which preceded the formation of the plaintiff company. These circumstances were extremely complicated, and involved the consideration of a great deal of correspondence between the various parties interested; but the results of the whole, so far as the Messrs. Frühling and Goschen were concerned, appeared to be these: —In 1865 a French company called the Compagnie Immobilière of Paris, were the owners of large estates for building purposes at Marseilles. On the 14th of February in that year they entered into a contract with a M. Barnéond for the sale to him of certain plots of their land for the sum of £1,532,174. The purchase-money was to be payable by 30 annual instalments of £116,000 each, including the purchase-money and interest, and not commencing till the end of two years from the date of the purchase. The purchaser bound himself to build on the lands within six years, and to pay a deposit of £200,000 as caution money. Some slight alterations were afterwards made in that original contract by another; but on the 1st of May, 1865, they were ratified by the Compagnie Immobilière. M. Barnéond then applied to Mr. Masterman, a financial agent in London, to assist him in procuring the caution money. Mr. Masterman consulted some stockbrokers in the City; and eventually Professor Donaldson was sent out to Marseilles to report upon the property. He did so favourably, advising the purchase of the land at the rate of £8 per metre. Mr. Masterman then entered into two provisional contracts with M. Barnéond for the purchase of his rights under the other, two agreements. One half of the £200,000 was to be deposited before the 31st of May, 1865. Mr. Masterman, accordingly, applied to Messrs. Frühling and Goschen to advance that amount, and to take part in the formation of a company to carry out the purchase. Those gentlemen then agreed to advance the £100,000, and that a company should be formed with a capital of £600,000, divided into 30,000 shares of £20 each, of which they would take one-half provided the other half of the capital was subscribed for by responsible parties. On the 19th of May, 1865, the memorandum and articles of a company called "The City of Marseilles Improvement Company (Limited)" were prepared, with the view of acquiring the property agreed to be purchased by M. Barnéond at Marseilles. That company was to have been divided into 30,000 shares of £20 each, and to have had a capital of £600,000. Its directors were authorised to purchase the property for £293,000. On the 25th of May, 1865, Mr. Masterman agreed with M. Barnéond for the purchase of his interest in the property for £114,000. On the same day Messrs. Frühling and Goschen agreed with Mr. Masterman to provide the first instalment of the caution money before the 31st of May, 1865, and to subscribe for 15,000 shares in the proposed company. Mr. Masterman then agreed to sell the benefit of the convention with the Compagnie Immobilière to the intended company (subject to the repayment of the caution money and £114,000 to M. Barnéond) for £179,000. That sum was to be paid to and applied by Messrs. Frühling and Goschen as follows—viz. £78,000 to the subscribers for 26,000 shares in the company; £52,000 to be retained by Messrs. Frühling and Goschen as remuneration for their services; £39,000 to Mr. Masterman; and £10,000 to the promotion of the company. The two sums of £114,000 and £179,000 made up the £293,000. Messrs. Frühling and Goschen then, on the 31st of May, 1865, paid the £100,000 to the Compagnie Immobilière. In the mean time it was ascertained that the property might not be so valuable as was supposed. In June, 1865, the memorandum and articles of the intended company were revised, and it was called the City of Marseilles Land Company (Limited). This alteration was also made in the articles, enabling the company to purchase the property at an average price of 200f. per metre, instead of the former provision for buying the estate at the sum of £293,000. In July, 1865, Mr. Quentell (a partner of Messrs. Frühling and Goschen), who had been to Marseilles, and there had an offer made to him by a M. Tellene to purchase the whole concern for a sum that would have yielded a profit of £800,000 on the original to M. Barnéond, obtained a modification of the contract of the 1st of May, 1865, with the Compagnie Immobilière, but subject to the approval of M. Barnéond and Mr. Masterman. Mr. Masterman declined to approve the modification. In July, 1865, M. Tellene came to London, and renewed his offer to purchase the undertaking; but Messrs. Fruhling and Goschen again declined it. In September, 1865, Mr. Masterman went to Paris, and himself obtained a modification of the contract of the 1st of May. About the end of September, 1865, the completion of the proposed company was again thought of, and Mr. Albert Grant, the head of the Credit Foncier of England, was spoken to on the subject. Messrs. Fruhling and Goschen did not accede to the then proposed arrangement, and ultimately an agreement was come to by which they were to be repaid the £100,000 advanced by them as caution money, and two sums of £30,000 each for the release of their interest in the adventure. They stipulated, however, that that payment should be guaranteed by the Credit Foncier of England, and Mr. Albert Grant agreed to that, on condition that Messrs. Fruhling and Goschen would take and hold for three months 2,000 shares of £20 each in the proposed company. Those terms were embodied in two agreements dated 17th of October and the 19th of October, 1865. Messrs. Fruhling and Goschen considered that from that time they had not (with the exception of the 2,000 shares they were to take in the proposed company) any further interest in the concern. On the 18th of October, 1865, the memorandum and articles of association of a company called the City of Marseilles Freehold Land Company, Limited, were registered, with a capital of £600,000, in 30,000 shares of £20 each. The subscribers to those articles were seven gentlemen, all directors of the Credit Foncier Company. Messrs. Fruhling and Goschen subscribed for 2,000 shares in it, and paid into the Agra and Masterman Bank, £8,000 on account of those shares. The Credit Foncier Company also took 20,000 shares in the company, for which they paid £80,000; and Mr. Masterman took 6,000 shares, for which he paid £24,000. On the 19th of October, 1865, Mr. Masterman paid Messrs. Fruhling and Goschen the sum of £100,000 by a check of the City of Marseilles Freehold Land Company, Limited, drawn in favour of "John Masterman or order." In January, 1866, it was considered desirable that that company should be wound-up, and to that Messrs. Fruhling and Goschen assented; on being paid the two sums of £30,000 and £30,000, receiving also the sum of £8,000 in respect of their 2,000 shares, and being entirely released from any further interest in the undertaking. Those sums were then paid to Messrs. Fruhling and Goschen by the Credit Foncier Company. On the 19th of January, 1866, the plaintiff company was duly registered. Its capital was £1,600,000, divided into 80,000 shares of £20 each, for the purpose of purchasing and leasing land at Marseilles. The above, though only a short outline of so much of the case as relates to the Messrs. Fruhling and Goschen, is (in the present stage of the cause) sufficient to explain the nature of the claim made against them by the plaintiff company. That Corporation, in effect, insisted that all the four companies were practically one and the same; that the Messrs. Fruhling and Goschen, having agreed to join in purchasing the property, and being bound to the Compagnie Immobilière to form a company for the purpose of carrying out the proposed purchase, and thinking the property worthless, combined with the Credit Foncier Company and others to bring out a company; that the plaintiff company was then brought out, and that the Messrs. Fruhling and Goschen were paid by the Credit Foncier Company with moneys which were, and which Messrs. Fruhling and Goschen knew, or ought to have known, were in reality the moneys of the plaintiff company. All those allegations the Messrs. Fruhling and Goschen distinctly deny, and insist on the perfect bona fides of their conduct throughout. The opening of the case for the plaintiff company was not concluded when the Court rose. Mr. Glasse, Q.C., Mr. J. Napier Higgins, Q.C., and Mr. Wingfield were for the plaintiff company; Mr. Cotton, Q.C., Sir Henry James, Q.C., Mr. Kekewich, and Mr. Hornell were for Messrs. Fruhling and Goschen.

Digitized by Google

December 13.

The Vice-Chancellor, when they were about to resume their arguments, on the 13th, said that he had thought a great deal about the case since its commencement, and could not help feeling that, having regard to the high character and position of the gentlemen interested in the suit, it was extremely desirable that some arrangement of it should, if possible, be arrived at. Mr. Glasse, Q.C., expressed his concurrence in that opinion. Mr. Cotton, Q.C., on behalf of Messrs. Fruhling and Goschen, said the question was not, so far as they were concerned, one of money. The bill in the suit contained very grave charges of fraud, and he could not recommend any stoppage of the case without the most public and unconditional withdrawal by the plaintiff company of all imputation against his clients. Mr. Glasse, Q.C., said he had carefully abstained from making any personal observations. Mr. Cotton, Q.C., found no fault whatever with the mode in which the case had been opened by the counsel for the plaintiff company; but Messrs. Fruhling and Goschen naturally desired to clear themselves from the charges made against them in the bill. Mr. Glasse, Q.C., for the plaintiff company, said that, with the object of promoting an arrangement, he would have no objection, and then offered to make the fullest retraction possible on his part. The Vice-Chancellor said if some arrangement of this suit could be effected, it would materially facilitate the winding-up of this company. If there was any reasonable prospect of a settlement being come to he would adjourn the Court for its consideration by the parties; and he did so accordingly. Mr. Cotton, Q.C., when the adjournment of the court was over, said:—Of course, his position had been, in the absence of Mr. Goschen, a difficult one. But for the fact that the suggestion of an arrangement was made by the Court, he should have urged the further hearing of the case. But the suggestion by the Court that an arrangement of the case was deemed advisable placed him in a different position. The claim made by the plaintiff company against his clients was a large one, being for principal and interest together as much as £100,000. Still, the question was not, as he had already said, one of mere money with them. Since the adjournment of the Court he had seen his clients, and he was now able to accede to the suggestion made by the Court, and to accept—but before he acceded to the suggestion—the offer of a full retraction of all imputations made by the plaintiff company, through their counsel. It was right, however, that he should (without, of course, going into his client's case) say this,—that had the hearing of the case being continued he should have proved that Messrs. Fruhling and Goschen - when they first entered into the affair, and in October, 1865, when they withdrew from it—had the best reasons for believing that the property in question was an extremely valuable one. He should further have established to the satisfaction of the Court, that from October, 1865, the Messrs. Fruhling and Goschen had no control over, and took no part whatever in the management of the concern. The plaintiff company was not formed till January, 1866, and his clients had nothing to do with it. In fact, Mr. Goschen had retired from mercantile business before that time. The offer which he now made on his client's behalf was to pay a sum of £20,000 towards the expenses of the plaintiff company. He had written out the terms of the proposed arrangement, which was assented to by the plaintiff company. They were to this effect:—The Vice-Chancellor having suggested that a course should be taken for terminating the case which would in no way affect the high character and position of the house of Messrs. Fruhling and Goschen, and the counsel for the plaintiff company having stated that, on the part of his clients, and, personally, he in the fullest manner retracted and withdrew any suggestion that any imputation could in any way attach to the defendants in relation to any matter connected with the suit. The defendants, although they have hitherto refused to make any concession by way of arrangement to the plaintiff company, and have insisted on the suit being heard in open court, yet, upon the bill being dismissed, are willing to yield to the Vice-Chancellor's suggestion, and will voluntarily, and in consideration of the position of the shareholders in the plaintiff company, contribute £20,000 to the funds of the company now in liquidation. The Vice-Chancellor expressed his satisfaction, both with the amount named in the arrangement, and the arrangement of the cause itself, as being most honourable to all parties concerned in it. Mr. Glasse, Q.C., said that these proceedings had procured for the plaintiff company, independently of the £20,000, no less a sum than upwards of £600,000. He wished also to add that Mr. Masterman had given his clients the fullest assistance possible in the investigation of their affairs. Sir Henry James, Q.C., Mr. Kekewick, and Mr. Hornell were (with Mr. Cotton, Q.C.) for Messrs. Fruhling and Goschen. The Vice-Chancellor made an order to the effect that, all imputations being withdrawn by the plaintiff company by consent, the bill in the suit to be dismissed, without costs.

(Before Vice-Chancellor Sir C. HALL.)

HOLT v. EVERALL.—This case raised a singular and important question upon the 10th Section of the Married Women's Property Act, 1870, which enables a married man to effect an insurance upon his life for the benefit of his wife and family. Mr. John Edward Everall, of Wem, Shropshire, a married man, and a tanner by trade, insured his life in the City of Glasgow Life Assurance Company in two policies of £500 each, dated respectively the 5th of April, 1870, and expressed to take effect as from the 26th of March, 1870. The Married Women's Property Act, 1870, came into operation on the 9th of August following, and on the same day Mr. Everall, who was the company's agent at Wem, wrote to the secretary of the company desiring to know whether "old policies could be renewed so as to act for the sole use of wife and children." To this the secretary replied that "he did not think that the company's policies could be altered, but if any such question should arise with one of their policyholders, he would consult their solicitor about it." On the 23rd of March, 1871, Mr. Everall delivered his two policies to the company for the purpose of having two new policies substituted for them, and the secretary thereupon gave him a receipt stating that they had been "deposited with the company to be cancelled, in order that two new settled policies might be issued in lieu thereof." Accordingly, in substitution for the old policies two new policies for £500 each, dated respectively the 3rd of April, 1871, were handed to Mr. Everall, providing for payment of the policy moneys to his wife, if living at his death, for her sole and separate use. The day fixed for the premiums was the same as in the old policies. Each of the new policies also bore an endorsement that, "notwithstanding its date, the within policy shall participate in the profits of the company from the 26th of March, 1870, and shall be entitled to the same privileges as a policy opened with the company at that date." The premiums which became due on the substituted policies on the 26th of March, 1871 and 1872, were duly paid; but in January, 1873, Mr. Everall filed a petition for liquidation under the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, and his creditors appointed the plaintiff Holt trustee of his estate. In June, 1873, Mr. Everall died, leaving his wife surviving him; and the question now was whether the policy moneys were payable to the trustee or to Mrs. Everall. The question of law in the case turned upon the effect of the 10th section of the Married Women's Property Act, 1870, and the 91st section of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869. By the 10th section of the former Act it is enacted that "a policy of insurance effected by any married man on his own life, and expressed upon the face of it to be for the benefit of his wife, or of his wife and children, or any of them, shall enure and be deemed a trust for the benefit of his wife for her separate use, and of his children, or any of them, according to the interest so expressed, and shall not, so long as any object of the trust remains, be subject to the control of the husband or to his creditors, or form part of his estate." The 91st section of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, provides that "any settlement of property made by a trader not being a settlement made before or in consideration of marriage. . . or a settlement made on or for the wife or children of the settlor of property which has accrued to the settlor after marriage in right of his wife, shall, if the settlor becomes bankrupt within two years after the date of such settlement, be void as against the trustee of the bankrupt appointed under this Act." This bill was accordingly filed by the trustee in bankruptcy to obtain a declaration that he was entitled as such trustee to the policy moneys in question, on the ground that the two substituted policies were "settlements" within the 91st section of the Bankruptcy Act. Mrs. Everall, by her answer, asserted that the policies ought to be deemed as settlements made by her, she having, as she alleged, arranged with her husband for the payment of the premiums thereon out of certain property which had been settled to her separate use upon her marriage. The other facts in the case will be found stated in his Honour's judgment. Mr. W. Pearson, Q.C., and Mr. Lorence Bird were for the plaintiff; Mr. Waller, Q.C., and Mr. Bunting for Mrs. Everall. The Vice-Chancellor said,—The plaintiff, as trustee in bankruptcy of a Mr. Everall, now deceased, claims to be entitled to the sums assured by two policies dated in April, 1871, on the life of Mr. Everall. The defendant, Mrs. Everall, the widow of Mr. Everall, claims to be entitled to these sums. According to the terms of the policies of 1871 the two sums, in the event, which happened, of Mrs. Everall surviving her husband, belong to her. The plaintiff's case, in addition to other contentions, upon which it is unnecessary for me to state my views, is that the two policies of 1871 were substituted for two similar policies which Mr. Everall had, in April, 1870, effected with the same office at the same premiums, and that although according to the terms of the policies of 1871, the sums assured, in the event which happened, belong to Mrs. Everall, she is not entitled thereto, Mr. Everall having— as, in fact, he did—paid the premiums on the policies of 1870, and the policies of 1871 being, as the plaintiff contends, in substance, a settlement by Mr. Everall of the sums assured by the policies of 1870 through the medium of an assurance professedly effected under the 10th section of the Married Women's Property Act, 1870, and that inasmuch as Mr. Everall was a trader and became bankrupt in January, 1873, which was within two years from the date of the policies of 1871, the provisions for Mrs. Everall in the policies of 1871 are void under the 91st section of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, which (with exceptions not material in the present case) makes void as against the trustee in bankruptcy all settlements by a trader who becomes bankrupt within two years after the date of the settlement. That the two policies of 1871 were substituted for those of 1870 is clear upon the evidence. Mr. Everall was the local agent of the insurance company, and applications were made to him by insurers in reference to making use of policies existing at the date of the Married Women's Property Act, 1870, coming into operation, and he applied to the secretary of the company to ascertain whether old policies could be renewed so as to act for the sole use of wife and children. The secretary, in answer, wrote, saying that he thought the old policies could not be altered, but that if the question arose he would consult the company's solicitor. Mr. Everall subsequently, and, as far as appears, without any further correspondence with the secretary of the company, delivered to the secretary of the company the policies of 1870, for which the secretary gave a receipt, expressing that they were deposited to be cancelled in order that two new settled policies might be issued in lieu thereof. Two new policies were accordingly issued. They do not refer to the old policies; they purport to be based on declarations made a few days before, but as to whether any such declarations were, in fact, made there was not any evidence. The annual premiums payable under the policies of 1871 were the same as those payable under the policies of 1870; the assurance year was computed from the same date in both sets of policies, and by express endorsements on the policies of 1871 privileges were attached to them corresponding to those which attached to the policies of 1870. There were two or more classes of policies, and the policies of 1871 were of the same class as those of 1870. That the two policies of 1871 were substituted for the two policies of 1870 is, I think, clear. And I think that for the purposes of the 91st section of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, the policies of 1871 should be treated and considered as being policies of 1870, so as to be operated upon by that section, unless the contentions on the part of Mrs. Everall, which I now proceed to consider, can be sustained. These contentions are, first, that the policies of 1871 should be considered as being policies effected under the 10th section of the Married Women's Property Act, 1870, and effectual as settlements under that section. It appears to me that that section does not operate to render valid, as against the 91st section of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, a policy effected under circumstances such as exist in the present case. Inasmuch as Mr. Everall could not have settled the old policies he could not, by resorting to a new mode of making a settlement, although created by Act of Parliament, and although that Act of Parliament contained provision for a bankrupt's estate being recouped moneys paid for premiums by the bankrupt, get rid of the enactment contained in the 91st section of the Bankruptcy Act. The Married Women's Property Act is not, I consider, operative as to cases falling within the 91st section of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869. That section and Act apply to specified cases, which, as I consider, are left untouched by the general law created by the 10th section of the Married Women's Property Act. The two Acts can well be read together, the specific cases provided for by the one not being repealed by the other. Secondly, Mrs. Everall alleges that the obtaining the new policies of 1871 was suggested by her, and under an arrangement come to between her and her husband that she should pay the premiums out of her separate estate; that she accordingly so paid the premiums; and she contends that under such circumstances she is entitled to the proceeds of the policies, she being under such circumstances herself the settlor of the policies, Mr. Everall having, in Mrs. Everall's engagement to pay, or her actual payment of the premiums in respect of the new policies, more than an equivalent for his having paid one premium (the one on the policy of 1870), and in the moneys assured being by the policies of 1871 made payable to him if he survived his wife. Mrs. Everall claims the sums assured irrespective of the Married Women's Property Act, or at all events under that Act. In her answer she says it was agreed between herself and her husband that the premiums should be paid out of her separate income. It appears to me that there is no foundation for the contention and claim of Mrs. Everall. Such an arrangement as Mrs. Everall alleges in her answer to have been made was not capable of being made. She had not any separate estate as to which she could contract. She was by her marriage settlement restrained from anticipating the income to which she was thereunder entitled for her life, and she had no other separate estate. The alleged arrangement, therefore, if come to, was in its inception inoperative. Whether, if it had been acted upon by Mrs. Everall making the payments, it could or should be treated as effectual, it is not, I think, necessary to consider, because it is not, I think, established either that such an arrangement was come to, or that the payments to be made under it out of Mrs. Everall's separate estate were, in fact, so made. His Honour having commented at some length upon the evidence on this point, continued:—Upon the whole, I consider the alleged arrangement and payment out of separate income are not established. In coming to this conclusion, I do not forget that Mrs. Everall has not been cross-examined. It follows that the plaintiff is entitled to the sums in question, except that the premium payable in 1873 having been paid by Mrs. Everall after Mr. Everall's bankruptcy, out of her separate income, she must be repaid that sum, and considering that the policy was preserved by that payment, I shall not order her to pay costs. The defendants, the company, must be paid their costs out of the fund, and the residue thereof, after the payment to Mrs. Everall of the premium of 1873, must be paid to the plaintiff.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

December 15.

(Before the MASTER of the ROLLS.)

VAGG v. SHIPPEY.—This bill was filed in August by an accountant's clerk against his employer to recover an alleged debt of £66 9s. 3d. The defendant having demurred on the ground that the subject-matter of the suit, being an ordinary money demand, was not within the jurisdiction of the Court of Equity, the plaintiff, on the 12th of November, amended his bill on payment of 20s. costs, without introducing any equitable matter. The defendant demurred to the amended bill on the same ground as before, and the demurrer now came on for argument. Mr. C. H. Turner appeared in support of the demurrer; Mr. E. Chisholm Batten for the bill. The Master of the Rolls.—There is no ground for this demurrer. It is said that this is a mere action for money had and received, which the Court of Chancery could not have tried, and I agree that it is so. But, though the suit was commenced before the coming into operation of the Judicature Act, the bill was amended afterwards, so that the suit is a pending suit. Now, what does Section 2 of the Act of 1873 say with regard to pending suits? It says that the High Court of Justice shall have the same jurisdiction in relation to all pending causes, matters and proceedings as if the same had been commenced in the High Court and continued therein to the point at which the transfer occurs. This, then, being an action for money had and received, which this Court, as a branch of the High Court, has jurisdiction to try, comes the defendant with his demurrer, and for cause of demurrer showeth that the subject of the suit is not within the jurisdiction of a Court of Equity. He might as well have said of a French Court, as of a Court of Equity, for there are no longer Courts of Equity, it is all the High Court. The demurrer must be disallowed with costs.

WEMYSS v. ROBERTSON.—The defendant, Mr. William Wybrow Robertson, was the promoter of the Royal Aquarium and Summer and Winter Garden Society, Limited, and the plaintiffs were Colonel Francis Wemyss, Mr. Constantine Henderson, an architect, and Messrs. Henry Benson James and Leslie Jeyes, civil engineers. The object of the suit was to obtain specific performance of an alleged parole agreement come to between the plaintiffs and the defendant prior to the formation of the society, to the effect that the plaintiffs and an accountant named Massey should find £1,250 for preliminary expenses, and that if the concern should be floated through their instrumentality, the defendant should provide out of the promotion money £5,000, or its equivalent in paid-up shares, for distribution in equal shares between the plaintiffs and Massey, by way of remuneration for the services in relation to the society. The society was incorporated in due course as a company with limited liability, and, £30,000 in cash and shares having been paid to Robertson in consideration of his transferring to the company the contract which he had negotiated for purchasing the site upon which the society's gardens and buildings were to be laid out and erected, the bill was filed against him by the plaintiffs to enforce the alleged agreement so far as they were concerned, Massey not being a party to the suit, as it was alleged that his claim on the promoter had been satisfied. The defence was that the plaintiffs had not performed their part of the bargain, the money required for preliminary expenses not having been found by them, but through the agency of a syndicate, who advanced to Robertson £2,000 for the purpose on the terms of receiving back their money with a bonus of £200 per cent. Mr. A. G. Marten, Q.C., and Mr. B. B. Rogers, for the plaintiffs, admitting the difficulty of a case resting on the parties' recollection of a verbal agreement, argued that the real bargain was that the plaintiffs and Massey should introduce the scheme to the public, and find other persons to advance the £1,250, and this they contended they had done; but the Master of the Rolls, without calling on Mr. Southgate, Q.C., and Mr. Begg, for the defendant, said that each of the six persons present at the meeting when the alleged agreement was entered into gave a different version of its terms. On such circumstances it was no discredit to these six gentlemen to say that the court was not bound to believe any one of them. Assuming the plaintiffs' version to be the correct one, the question was, what it meant. The plaintiffs said it meant that they should find some one to lend the money; the defendant that they were to provide it gratis. His Lordship was clearly of opinion that the latter was the true meaning of the agreement, for it never could have been intended that these gentlemen should receive £5,000 in cash or shares for finding a syndicate to advance a sum of money on terms of receiving back three for one. But he need not hear further evidence for the purpose of deciding what the real agreement was, for there was an amount of variance about the case which rendered it an improper one for specific performance. The bill would be dismissed with costs, on the simple ground that the plaintiffs had not satisfied the court of their title to specific performance.

(Before Vice-Chancellor Sir JAMES BACON.)

IN RE THE STAPLEFORD COLLIERY COMPANY.—This was an ex-parte application by Mr. Kay, Q.C., and Mr. Cracknell for the stay of execution against goods of a company which is being wound-up. There has been a conflict of opinion between the Master of the Rolls and three Judges of the Common Pleas Division as to which was the proper division to make such an application in—whether it was to be made before the Judge of the Chancery Division who has seizing of the winding-up, or the Judges of the Division in which the action to be stayed is pending. The Common Law Judges considered the jurisdiction was not affected by the Judicature Act, and refused, on an application to them, to make an order. When the matter came before Sir George Jessel in winding-up proceedings on the question of costs, he considered the Common Law Judges wrong and allowed the costs of the application to them. Vice-Chancellor Malins has since had the question before him, and made an order in a winding-up for the stay of proceedings in a Common Law action. The Vice-Chancellor said that if there had not been some difference of opinion on the subject he should have thought there could be no doubt, and made the order asked for.

Digitized by Google

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY.

December 9.

(Before Mr. REGISTRAR BROUGHAM, sitting as Chief Judge.)

IN RE THOMAS STANDRING.—This was a motion on behalf of Captain C. J. J. Wilkinson for an order for the delivery of Bolivian bonds, of the nominal value of £1,800, now in the custody of the trustee. Mr. Wilson appeared in support of the application; Mr. F. Turner for the trustee. The bankrupt, who formerly carried on business as a stockbroker in Copthall-chambers, absconded in September last. At the time of the adjudication, which occurred on the 1st of October, £4,500 Bolivian bonds were found in the iron safe in the office, and the trustee, upon his appointment, took possession of the property. The question now arose whether the applicant was entitled to £1,800 of the bonds, the numbers of which were proved to be identical with those deposited with the bankrupt for sale on the 18th of September. It appeared that as many as 35 notices had been received from different persons claiming securities supposed to have been in the custody of the bankrupt, but no demand had been made for the particular bonds, of which the applicant now sought the delivery. The trustee did not desire to place any obstacle in the way of the applicant if the court considered his claim to be sufficiently established, and the direction of the Registrar was sought upon the subject. Captain Wilkinson, upon being called, proved the deposit of the bonds with the bankrupt on the 18th of September. He said the bankrupt advised him not to sell, and the bonds were left in his custody awaiting orders for sale. On the following day a slip was left at the office of the solicitor for the witness containing the numbers of the bonds. He had no dealings with the bankrupt before this transaction. His Honour was of opinion that the applicant had established his claim to the bonds, and ordered the trustee to deliver them up. In reply to Mr. Turner, his Honour said he must decline to give any general directions in regard to other cases which might arise. The trustee must form his own opinion upon the evidence before him, and, in case of conflicting claims, must give notice to all persons interested requiring them to establish their title. Application granted.

IN RE JULIUS NELKEN.—This was a sitting for public examination. The bankrupt, who formerly carried on business in Milk-street, as a velvet and silk warehouseman, has absconded. His liabilities are estimated at from £20,000 to £25,000. Upon the application of Mr. Goldberg, for the trustee, his Honour directed the usual memorandum of non-appearance to be entered.

December 10.

(Before Mr. Registrar HAZLITT, sitting as Chief Judge.)

IN RE ARTHUR ORTON.—This case was again brought before the court in consequence of a report by the controller to the effect that the trustee had failed to comply with the provisions of the Act and the Rules by transmitting a certified copy of "the estate book." The bankrupt was adjudicated in the year 1870, under the description of "Sir Roger Charles Doughty Tichborne, of Harley-lodge, Harley-road, Brompton, of no business or profession." Repeated adjournments of the first meeting occurred in the hope that an arrangement would be effected with the creditors. Eventually this proved to be impracticable, and the proceedings were continued in the usual mode, Mr. Joseph Neale, of 42 St. Peter's-road, Mile-end, being appointed trustee. No accounts have yet been filed by the bankrupt, and the probability of a dividend seems to be exceedingly remote. Mr. Aldridge, the official solicitor, mentioned the case to the court, and pointed out that it was the duty of the trustee to make the necessary return, irrespective of the consideration whether the estate was large or small. Mr. Hogan, who appeared for the trustee, stated that accounts were rendered to the Controller some time ago, and since then nothing had been received or paid. Mr. Aldridge said that until the close of the bankruptcy the trustee was bound to furnish quarterly returns of his receipts and payments. Mr. Registrar Hazlitt made an order on the trustee to file the necessary account within 14 days, and pay the costs of the application. He said that unless proper returns were made, the controller could not tell how cases stood, or whether additional funds had been received.

December 11.

(Before the Hon. W. C. SPRING-RICE, sitting as Chief Judge.)

IN RE MAVROCORDATO.—The bankrupt, Charles Themistocles Mavrocordato, formerly carried on business at 108 Bishopsgate-street Within as a merchant and dealer in stocks and shares. He was recently convicted of fraud, and sentenced to five years' penal servitude. This was a sitting for public examination. Upon the application of Mr. Finlay Knight, for the trustee, the Court ordered a memorandum of non-appearance to be entered.

December 13.

(Before Mr. Registrar KEENE.)

IN RE C. E. OCHSENBEIN.—This was an application to register the resolutions come to by the creditors under the failure of this debtor, who is described as a corn, seed, and oil merchant carrying on business at 23 Crutched Friars. The statement of affairs filed shows total unsecured debts £33,200, against assets £3,300. Mr. Doria now applied to register a series of resolutions liquidating the estate by arrangement, with Mr. W. Cornish Cooper, accountant, as trustee, with a committee of inspection. An objection was raised to the registration by Mr. Morley on the ground that certain partnership transactions had not been disclosed on the statement of affairs. The debtor was examined, and from his evidence it appeared that these partnership transactions were really co-adventures in certain sales, which ended on the sales being effected. His Honour then directed registration.

IN RE UPTON, HUSSEY, AND CO.—This was also an application to register a resolution come to by the creditors under the failure of Messrs. Upton, Hussey, and Co., jewellers, of St. James's-street. The petition was filed in October last, the liabilities being estimated at £28,484 2s., against assets, £15,569 19s. Upon the application of Messrs. Lewis and Lewis, his Honour registered the resolution. The estate will be liquidated by arrangement with a trustee and committee of inspection.

December 15.

(Before Mr. Registrar MURRAY, sitting as Chief Judge.)

IN RE A. A. MORLETT AND CO.—The debtors, who are merchants, carrying on business at 11 Billiter-square, and Manchester, have filed a liquidation petition. Their liabilities are estimated at £110,000, with assets of uncertain value. Mr. Finlay Knight, for the petitioners, asked that the first meeting should not be fixed earlier than the 15th of March next. The evidence showed that many of the creditors were resident in America, and it would be impossible to communicate with them before that time. The learned counsel also, with the concurrence of creditors for £31,000, applied that Mr. Nichols, of the firm of Charteris and Co., should be appointed receiver and manager. The assets consisted partly of bills of exchange, in respect of which remittances were being received, and it was necessary the property should be protected. His Honour granted the applications.

IN RE FRANCIS AVRILLON.—The debtor is the proprietor of the Westminster Club, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly. He has presented a petition for liquidation with liabilities estimated at £7,000 and assets £1,000. Upon the application of Mr. Brough for the petitioner, his Honour appointed Mr. James

Digitized by Google

Waddell, accountant, receiver of the property, and granted an interim injunction to restrain an action brought by one of the creditors in the High Court.

SUNDERLAND COUNTY COURT.

(Before E. J. MEYNELL, ESQ., Judge.)

IN RE JOHN PALLISER, WEST HARTLEPOOL.—This was a motion on behalf of John Palliser, a liquidating debtor, against George Hudson, his trustee, praying that the said trustee might be ordered to return goods of the said debtor recently wrongfully taken possession of by him, or to pay the proceeds of such goods, if sold to the new creditors of the said debtor. That an inquiry might be made as to the damages suffered by the said debtor, and an order made for payment thereof to him by the said trustee. That the said trustee might be ordered to pay the costs. His Honour gave judgment as follows:—The debtor filed his petition for liquidation on the 10th October, 1874, and a meeting was held and liquidation resolved upon. Mr. Hudson was appointed trustee, and took possession of the debtor's property in the same month, and, according to the debtor's affidavit, filed in this motion, it was all realised in December and January. The debtor has never got his discharge. It appears from his affidavit that on the 18th February, 1875, he again commenced business with a new stock-in-trade, procured, as he states, from new creditors, of whom he gives a list. On the 18th of September the trustee seized the new stock, and the validity of such seizure is the question I have to decide. The motion, however, I must remark, is made by the debtor; none of the said creditors have interfered in the matter, nor is there any evidence before me to show that such creditors were not perfectly well aware that they were dealing with an undischarged debtor. Mr. Simpson, who appeared for the debtor, seemed to admit that the trustee had a legal right to seize (the case of Nias v. Adamson, 3 B. and Ald., is conclusive as to this); but he argued that this was a case in which a Court of Equity would protect the after-acquired property from the claims of the trustee. In the case of Everett v. Backhouse, 10 Vic., c. 94, it was held that an uncertificated bankrupt could only acquire property for the creditors, except as the M. R. said in his judgment, under very particular circumstances, as where assignees, by their conduct, have precluded themselves from claiming the property. Are there, then, such circumstances in this case? Mr. Simpson argued that there were, and cited several cases, which, however, when examined, seem very different from the present. First, he relied on the old case of Troughton v. Gilby. In that case the bankrupt had bought his stock of his assignees, and sureties joined to secure the consideration. He traded for four years, and then died, but still uncertificated, and it was held that the subsequent creditors were to be preferred to those under the commission. That was a question between two sets of creditors, and the assignees having themselves sold the stock to the bankrupt to enable him to re-commence trading on his own account; it was held that they were precluded from claiming until the new creditors were satisfied. In ex parte Jinker, 47 L. J. B., 91 and 147, the creditors agreed to dispose of the whole of the debtor's business to a third person for a sum to be paid by instalments, and a small part of which was to be paid by the debtor himself out of his future earnings. This arrangement was duly carried out by deed. Afterwards the purchaser and debtor carried on business in partnership; the instalments were paid, but the creditors becoming inimical to the debtor, refused his discharge, and claimed his after-acquired profits, and it was held inequitable for them to do so in the face of the arrangement they had agreed to and carried out. That case, then, is very much stronger than the present. The very fact that the debtor was to pay a sum out of his future earnings, showed a consent by the creditors to his trading on his own account. EX PARTE RUSSELL (44 L. J. B. 112), also relied upon by Mr. Simpson, was a case in which the creditors of Sir W. Russell had, at the first meeting, resolved to grant his discharge on payment on his behalf to the trustee of £4,000 within a month, and on his executing a covenant to pay £5,000 by instalments: £4,000 and two of the instalments were paid, and the deed was executed. A second petition was afterwards presented, and it was held that the first, though not formally closed, was no longer pending, as the arrangements amounted to a purchase by the debtor of his after-acquired property. In that case the creditors had resolved to grant the debtor's discharge on his doing certain acts, which were done, and it merely remained to formally close the proceedings. In the case before me there has been no such resolution, and the facts are altogether different. The last case cited was the very recent one of Englebach v. Nixon (32 L. P. C. P.) There the trustee had allowed the bankrupt to trade for the benefit of his creditors; a creditor put in an execution in respect of a debt contracted after and without notice of the bankruptcy, and it was held that his rights were to be preferred to the rights of the trustee, that there was a case not between the debtor and trustee, but between a new creditor without notice, and the trustee, and moreover the debtor, was trading with the consent of the trustee and for the benefit of the creditors. Justice Grove says, in his judgment:—"The true principle appears to be that where a bankrupt trades with the knowledge of the assignees all the property which he may acquire by such trading belongs to the assignees, but that where the assignees themselves allow him to trade they give him power to contract debts, and therefore cannot prevent those debts being satisfied out of his effects." All the cases that Mr. Simpson has cited seem to me very different from the present, and I cannot find any such particular circumstances in this case as would take it out of the general principle that all the after-acquired property of an uncertificated bankrupt belongs to the assignee, now trustee. Mr. Simpson argued that the trustee must have known the debtor had recommenced business, and that he should have objected to his doing so. There is no evidence on the debtor's behalf that the trustee did know it, but he says in his affidavit that the debtor told him that he was carrying on business, and had retaken the premises for his sister, and that it was not until the day before the seizure that he discovered the debtor was carrying on business on his own account. Even assuming, however, that the trustee had known that the debtor had recommenced business, I am not aware that he could object to his doing so, I know of nothing to prevent a bankrupt trading again before he gets his discharge, if he chooses to run the risk of having his property seized. It was held in Morgan v. Knight, (33 L. J. C., P. 168,) and other cases, that the title of a bankrupt to his after-acquired property is good, except as against his assignees. I take it that when Justice Grove speaks of the assignees allowing a bankrupt to trade, he does not mean their merely remaining passive, but he refers to such cases as those cited, where they have expressly allowed time, or at all events done something from which such assent can be implied, as by selling him his stock, &c. But be that as it may, as I have already said, there is no evidence in this case that the trustee knew the debtor was trading unless on his sister's behalf. I can see nothing in the case to deprive the trustee of his right to seize the property, and refuse the motion with costs.

CREDITORS' MEETINGS.

C. BARLOW (BECCLES).—A meeting of the creditors of Charles Barlow, of Beccles, was held on Tuesday 14th December, 1875, when it was resolved to liquidate the estate by arrangement, Mr. Lovewell Blake, of Hall Quay-chambers, Great Yarmouth, public-accountant, being appointed trustee with a committee of inspection. Mr. C. H. Wiltshire is solicitor in the proceedings.

THE ABERDARE AND PLYMOUTH IRON COMPANY.—At a meeting of the creditors of the Aberdare and Plymouth Iron Companies, held on Tuesday, Mr. Joseph Robinson, of the Ebbw Vale Company, presiding, the scheme which has been put forward for carrying on the business by a limited liability company, and for the immediate discharge of the debtors, was proposed by Mr. Travers Smith, solicitor, and unanimously adopted. It was also agreed to hold meetings on the 7th proximo to close the liquidation in the separate estates of Mr. Fothergill and Mr. Hankey. Mr. Smith, in moving the resolutions, gave an account of the arrangement which has been come to, and of the present position of matters, which show a much more hopeful prospect for the creditors than would have been thought at all possible when the suspension of the firms took place. The estates altogether are valued at £1,250,000, which will be the nominal capital of the new company, and the debts are about £310,000, represented by two mortgages, and about £900,000 besides, being the amount of the proved debts ranking on the estate, there being also two small annuities amounting to £700 which come before the mortgages. The arrangement, then, is that the company to be formed, besides assuming liability for the mortgages, involving an annual charge for interest and sinking fund of £22,750, should create two kinds of debentures—one called "A" debentures, bearing 5 per cent. interest for £36,000, which has been subscribed by the private friends of the partners, for working capital of the company, and the other called "B" debentures, to be given in exchange for the debts proved in the liquidation, and not to bear interest, but to be paid off out of the first profits of the company after the debenture interest and charges have been paid; an immediate payment of about 1s. per pound being made as the surplus value of certain assets sold to the new company, which reduces the "B" debentures to £850,000. The first charges altogether, including the above £700 of annuities, amount to £25,250, and the profits above this annual sum will thus go to repay the "B" debenture holders—that is, the creditors upon the estates in liquidation. The new company will work under a committee of control, seven in number, including five of the largest creditors, one representative of the mortgage-holders, and one representative of the subscribers of the working capital. Such are the arrangements for again setting this great business on foot and gradually paying off the past indebtedness. At present, only the coal business is being worked; but it appears from Mr. Smith's statement that since the suspension this has been done at a profit, the working expenses of the whole concern having been met and payments having been made on account of arrears of rates and other preferential charges. The company will also resume the ironworks business when the condition of trade permits. The usual formal votes instructing the trustee, Mr. Turquand, to obtain the confirmation of the resolutions by the court, were also passed at the meeting, and as the remaining proceedings are only formal, the liquidation is practically at an end.

Digitized by Google

THE BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY'S ANNUAL RECEIPTS EXCEED THREE MILLIONS.

HOW TO PURCHASE A HOUSE FOR TWO GUINEAS PER MONTH With immediate Possession and no Rent to pay.—Apply at the Office of the Birkbeck Building Society, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO PURCHASE A PLOT OF LAND FOR FIVE SHILLINGS PER MONTH.

With Immediate Possession, either for Building or Gardening purposes.—Apply at the Office of the Birkbeck Freehold Land Society, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO INVEST YOUR MONEY WITH SAFETY AT £4 PER CENT. INTEREST.

Apply at the Office of the Birkbeck Bank. All sums under £50 repayable upon demand. Current Accounts opened similar to ordinary Bankers. Cheque-books supplied. English and Foreign Stocks and Shares purchased and sold, and Advances made thereon.

Office Hours from 10 till 4; on Mondays from 10 till 9, and on Saturdays from 10 till 12 o'clock.

A Pamphlet containing full particulars may be obtained post-free on application.

Francis Ravenscroft, Manager.

THE METROPOLITAN AND PROVINCIAL
Land, Estate, House, Licensed Victuallers' & General
BUSINESS TRANSFER "SYNDICATE" AGENCY.
Registered according to Act of Parliament, Head Offices, No. 3 Craven-street, Charing Cross, W.C. The organisation and working system of the "Syndicate" are;—1st.—The Sale, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Ground of Rents, Freehold and Leasehold Land, Farms, Estates, Houses, Hotels-Public Houses, Inns, Beer Houses, Restaurants, Coffee Houses, Tobacconists, Drapers, and every other description of Business, Furniture, Objects of Art, or Goods of any description by Auction or Private Contracts 2nd.—The letting, or disposing of, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Land-Farms, Estates, Furnished, or Unfurnished Houses Chambers, or Offices under private contract. 3rd.—The Collection of Rents and the recovery of outstanding accounts. 4th.—The Surveys and Valuation of Land, Farms, Estates, and Houses; also Valuations of Furniture, Jewellery, and other Effects, for probate and other purposes. 5th.—The transaction of all other business usually transacted by Auctioneers, Surveyors, Land, House, Estate and Insurance Agents. 6th.—The negociations of partnerships, and from unlimited connection with capitalists, monetary advances on real and personal securities, as well as merchandize, and every other description of property intended forabsolute sale, or otherwise. 7th. Generally the carrying out of all things instdental or conducive to the above objects, and every of them; also the laying out of estates and surveys for delapidations. The "Syndicate" from their extended connection with the Trades' Protection Societies and other sources, undertake expeditiously for Clients and others to ascertain reliably the status of parties, and make inquiries of a private and confidential character Liberal terms to Accountants in town or country introducing business.

OLD FALCON HOTEL, GRAVESEND.
Proprietor—W. SKILLETER.
Late Chef de Cuisine to His Grace the Duke of Argyll.
Visitors to Gravesend will find every accommodation at the Old Falcon Hotel, East Street. Public and Private Rooms facing the River, directly opposite Tilbury Fort, and with a capital view of the Thames Shipping.
FISH DINNERS AND WHITEBAIT.
BED AND BREAKFAST FOR GENTLEMEN £1 1s. PER WEEK.
And an equally low Tariff for Dejeuners, Dinners, &c.
Five Minutes' walk from North Kent Railway, and Two Minutes from the Piers, and Tilbury and Southend Railway.

RESTAURANT,
13 OXFORD STREET,
Near the corner of Tottenham-court-road.
Known as the BODEGA, now under the new management of Mr. L. BOECKER, late of 13 Idol-lane, City.
Luncheons from the joints, hot or cold, including vegetables and bread, 1s. 3d
Dinners from 12 till 4 o'clock, from the joint, with soup or fish, vegetables, cheese and bread, 2s.
Dinners from 6 till 9 o'clock, from 2s. 6d. to 10s. 6d.
Private Dining Rooms for large and small parties on the Second Floor.

LATE ADVERTISEMENTS.

NOTICE.—From and after 1st of January, 1876, the business hitherto carried on by the undersigned Mr. ARCHIBALD STEWART, under the style of A. STEWART and Co., at the above address, will be carried on by Mr. D. W. LAMBE, his former partner, at his offices No. 32 Walbrook. Mr. ALFRED HORTON has ceased to have any connection with the business.

ARCHIBALD STEWART;
D. W. LAMBE,

30 Moorgate-street, Dec. 16th, 1875.

WANTED AN EXPERIENCED ACCOUNTANT'S CLERK who thoroughly understands the duties of auditing, and the general routine of an Accountant's Office, and is competent to undertake the management of the office. Apply by letter, stating salary and references, to J. YALDEN and Co., 70 Cheapside, E.C.

WILLIAMS & STRAHAN,
Legal, Accountancy, & General Printers,
MANUFACTURING STATIONERS, &c
7 LAWRENCE LANE, CHEAPSIDE, LONDON.
Bankruptcy Forms, Statements of Affairs, Dividend Notices, Balance Sheets, &c., printed with despatch.
STEAM PRINTING WORKS, LAMBETH, S.E.

Digitized by Google

"The source of many a writer's woe has been discovered."

PENS! PENS!! PENS!!

"They come as a boon and a blessing to men, The Pickwick, the Owl, and the Waverley Pen."
"The misery of a bad Pen is now a voluntary infliction."

Another blessing to men! The Hindoo Pen. 1,200 Newspapers recommend them. See Graphic, 17th May, 1873.

Sold by every respectable Stationer. Post 1s.1d.

Patentees, MACNIVEN & CAMERON, 23 to 33 Blair-street, Edinburgh.

J. DEFRIES' AND SONS'
CHANDELIERS, IN CRYSTAL, BRONZE, AND ORMOLU.
TABLE GLASS AND CHINA.
Dinner Services, Gilt Pieces, £4 10s.
KEROSENE and MODERATOR LAMPS for INDIA.
Works:—London and Birmingham.

WEDDING AND BIRTHDAY PRESENTS.
NEW DECORATIONS for the DINING TABLE.
FOUNTAINS.
STORER'S Patent Perpetual Perfumed CRYSTAL TABLE FOUNTAIN, for Dining, Hall and Drawing Rooms, in Crystal and Gilt, £2 17s. 6d. to 100 guineas.

FETES AND REJOICINGS.
BALLROOMS and GARDENS, &c., DECORATED and ILLUMINATED for Evening Parties. Tents, Temporary Rooms, and Banqueting Halls erected.
CRYSTAL and BRONZED CHANDELIERS.
TABLE GLASS and CHINA LENT ON HIRE.
J. DEFRIES and SONS, 147, HOUNDSDITCH.
Five minutes' walk from the Bank of England.

RUPTURES—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.
WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS s allowed by upwards of 500 Medical Men to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided, a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the manufacturer, Mr. JOHN WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London. Price of a single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., 31s. 6d, Postage Free. Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. An Umbilical Tsusr, 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. P.O.O. to be made payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.
NEW PATENT ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS, &c. for Varicose Veins, and all cases of Weakness and Swelling of the Legs, Sprains, &c. They are porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and are drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price from 4s. 6d., 7s, 6d., 10s, to 16s. each. Postage free.
CHEST EXPANDING BRACES, for both sexes. For gentlemen they are a substitute for the ordinary braces. For children they are invaluable; they prevent stooping and preserve the symmetry of the chest. Prices for children, 5s. 6d. and 7s. 6d. Adults, 10s. 6d., 15s. 6d., and 21s. each. Postage free.—JOHN WHITE, Manufacturer, 228 Piccadilly, London.

EPPS'S COCOA.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—See article in the Civil Service Gazette.

STAR LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY.
48 MOORGATE STREET, LONDON, E.C
DIRECTORS.
CHAIRMAN—
Mr. Alderman McArthur, M.P.
DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—
William Mewburn, Esq.
H. J. Atkinson, Esq.
Thomas Ball, Esq.
Walter Griffith, Esq.
George M. Kiell, Esq.
George Lidgett, Esq.
Sir Francis Lycett.
William Merry, Esq.
John Napier, Esq.
Jonathan S. Pidgeon, Esq
John Vanner, Esq.
S. D. Waddy, Esq., Q.C., M.P.

Assurance and Annuity Fund	1,216,115	13	5
Annual Income (1874)	228,613	2	0
Bonuses Apportioned	581,774	6	2
Claims Paid	1,140,151	1	8

Copies of the Report, Balance Sheet and Prospectus can be obtained on application to the Head Office.
W. W. BAYNES, Secretary.

THE ONLY AND SPECIAL
"MEDAL FOR PROGRESS,"
Was awarded for "Feuerfeste Eisone Schranke und Kunstchlosser Fortschritts," to

HOBBS, HART, & CO.,
AT THE VIENNA UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION.
This Medal is only given to Exhibitors whose New Inventions testify marked Progress.

"FIRE-PROOF SAFES; AND LOCKS AND ENDLESS CHANGE LOCKS AND KEYS,"
Invented especially for Safes and Strong-Room Doors, to frustrate the use of False Keys.

N.B.—The continued security and secrecy of a Lock, fixed on a Safe or Strong-Room Door, depends on the fact that there are no false duplicate keys of that Lock in existence. The object of a Lock is twofold—security against burglars, and secrecy against prying curiosity. A new change in this Lock may at any time be obtained in five minutes by simply filing away the thickness of a hair from one or more of the steps of the Key. Th Lock, by a simple movement of the Regulator, is thus made to adapt itself to the NEW KEY, after which no other Key will open the Lock.
The Lock and Key may thus be easily altered into what would be virtually a NEW LOCK and KEY, as often as may be desired, without the aid of a Lockmaker or of any second person, thus frustrating the use of fraudulent copies of the original Key (see the Safe Robbery in Dublin of £830, vide "Times," 12th September, 1875). This Lock affords effectual protection from duplicate or "Master" Keys secretly made in manufactories; very extensive robberies (in one case 13 Safes in one vault) having been effected by this means.

HOBBS, HART & CO.,
LOCK, SAFE, AND STRONG-ROOM DOOR MANUFACTURERS.
76 Cheapside, London, E.C.

CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

MANSION HOUSE CHAMBERS, 11 QUEEN VICTORIA STREET, LONDON, E.C.

First issue of Capital, £500,000, in Subscriptions of £1 and upwards. No further liability. Open to all. Each cash subscriber is entitled to interest in lieu of dividend, at the rate of £1 10s. per cent. per month, 18 per cent. per annum, which will be paid in Cash.

TRUSTEES.

Lieut.-General J. H. Gascoigne, C.B., Ivybridge, Devon.
The Rev. W. F. Good, D.D., Newton Abbott, Devon.
H. R. Snelgrove, Esq., The Vicarage, Exmouth.
Henry Walker, Esq., Fowler Height, Blackburn.

ACCOUNTANTS AND AUDITORS.

Messrs. R. W. Hudswell and Co., 23 Martin's Lane, Cannon Street, London, E.C.

MANAGER AND PROPRIETOR. — RICHARD BANNER OAKLEY, F.R.G.S.

Current accounts opened, and 5 per cent. interest allowed on the minimum monthly balances. Cheque Books supplied. The Bank grants credits and issues circular notes for the Continent and America, and transacts every description of sound Financial Business.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street, ISSUES GUARANTEED CHEQUES for any sum not exceeding £20 against cash deposits, without any charge for commission, the penny stamp being the only expense. These are very convenient for persons not having banking accounts, or not wishing to draw small cheques. They are payable on demand at all the Branches of the Co-operative Credit Bank, or can be passed through any bank in ordinary course.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street, is NOW ISSUING PROMISSORY NOTES from £5 upwards, payable three months after date with interest at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum if held to maturity, or payable on demand without interest. These are very useful to persons requiring short investments, and are perfectly negotiable instruments.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The ONLY SAFE and FIRM SYSTEM of BANKING.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The PEOPLE'S BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—No Promotion Money or Preliminary Expenses.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Managerial Remuneration Dependent on Profits.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Profits on the whole amount of the Liability.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Minimum of Risk, its operations being spread over a variety of subjects.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—No Liability beyond amount of subscription.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The Secrecy and Despatch of Individual Management.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—A fixed instead of an uncertain Scale of Profits.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Eighteen per Cent. per Annum paid Monthly.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—A constantly accruing Reserve Fund.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Power of Total Withdrawal after six months on Sixty Days' Notice.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street, City.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Book-keeping in the hands of the Subscribers.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Quarterly published Balance-sheet issued and certified by the Subscribers' Accountant.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Current Accounts opened and Five per Cent. allowed on the Minimum Monthly Balances.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK. — Furnishes Cheque Books for Customers.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK grants Credits and issues Circular Notes for the Continent and America.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK transacts every description of Sound Financial Business.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK introduces Public Loans.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK promotes Public Companies of a bona-fide character.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK negotiates the Discount of Bills and Mortgages on a Small Commission.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK negotiates Loans on Deposit of Deeds and other valuable Securities.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK assists in the Development of Patents for Useful Inventions.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK undertakes on Commission the Purchase and Sale of Stocks and Shares.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street, near the Mansion House.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK accepts the Agencies of Foreign and Country Banks and Merchants, and of Foreign Governments.

IF YOU WANT TO HAVE YOUR BUSINESS done Cheaply and Expeditiously, go to the CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK

IF YOU WANT TO BE TREATED WITH CIVILITY, lodge your Money with the CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

IF YOU WANT THE BEST AND MOST RELIABLE COMMERCIAL INFORMATION OF THE DAY, ask the Manager of THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK,
Mansion House Chambers,
11 QUEEN VICTORIA STREET, LONDON.

BRANCHES at Bath, Blackburn, Denbigh, Dundee, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Inverness, Liverpool, Manchester, Warrington, Bristol, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Shields, Woolwich, Sunderland, Bishop Auckland, Exeter, Blyth, Bradford-on-Avon, Newton Abbott, Neath, Newport (Mon.), Middlesborough, Plymouth, South Shields, Worcester, Sheffield, Salisbury, Tow Low, Brompton, Leicester, Moreton-in-the-Marsh, Hull, Norwich, Portsmouth, Easingwold, Birmingham and Greenock.

Digitized by Google

THE SOCIETY OF ACCOUNTANTS IN ENGLAND.

COUNCIL.

President.—JOSEPH DAVIES, Warrington. Vice-President.—JOHN BATH, London.

ALFRED ALLOTT, Sheffield.
JOSEPH ANDREWS, London.
JOSIAH BEDDOW, London.
HENRY BOLLAND, Liverpool.
JAMES CHARLES BOLTON, London.
HARRY BRETT, London.
ROBERT BUCK, Sunderland.
JOHN CALDECOTT, Chester.
WALTER NEWTON FISHER, Birmingham.
EBENEZER CHAMBERS FOREMAN, London.
JOHN BRADLY GEARD, Ipswich.
RALPH PRICE HARDY, London.
EDWARD NORTON HARPER, London.
WILLIAM COMBEN HARVEY, London.
JOHN ALISON HESELTON, Bradford.
GEORGE EDWARD LADBURY, London
FRANCIS NICHOLLS, London.
WILLIAM JOHN PARRY, Bethesda.
EDWARD THOS. PEIRSON, Coventry.
EDWARD SMITH, Manchester.
F. TENDRON, London.
JOHN HENRY TILLY, London.
LEWIS VOISEY, Warrington.
EDWIN WILKS, Plymouth.
JOHN UNWIN WING, Sheffield.

TRUSTEES.—JOHN BATH, 40a, King William Street, London; THOMAS COLTMAN, Leicester; JOSEPH DAVIES, Warrington
TREASURER.—JAMES CHARLES BOLTON, 26 Great St. Helens, and 2 St. Mary Axe, London.
AUDITORS.—R. B. ROBINSON, London; C. PEMBER, Hereford.
BANKERS.—Messrs, WILLIAMS, DEACON, & Co., Birchin Lane, London.
OFFICES—2 COWPER'S COURT, CORNHILL, LONDON.
Further information can be obtained, and copies of the Rules can be had, upon application to
ALFRED C. HARPER, SECRETARY.

H. D. RAWLINGS,

PURVEYOR OF MINERAL WATERS TO

H. R. H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.
H. R. H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH.
H. R. H. THE PRINCE CHRISTIAN.
THE LATE EMPEROR NAPOLEON III.
AND THE PRINCIPAL COURTS OF EUROPE.

Gold Medallist of the Societe Nationale Agricole Manufacturiere et Commerciale de Paris.

SODA, BRIGHTON, SELTZER and all other Mineral Waters for HOME CONSUMPTION and EXPORTATION.
PRICE LISTS on Application, at the Manufactory, Nassau-street, W.

ALFRED W. GEE,

ADVERTISING AGENT,

62, GRACECHURCH STREET,

LONDON, E.C.

London Gazette Notices, and Advertisements and Announcements of all kinds for English, Colonial, and Foreign Newspapers promptly inserted.

N.B.—In the case of an ordinary Advertisement ordered for insertion in a number of Newspapers, only one MS. copy need be forwarded. Same rates charged as at the Publishing Offices.

Printed and Published for the Proprietor by WILLIAMS & STRAHAN, 7 Lawrence Lane, Cheapside. DECEMBER 18, 1875.

Digitized by Google

The Accountant.

A MEDIUM OF COMMUNICATION BETWEEN ACCOUNTANTS IN ALL PARTS OF THE UNITED KINGDOM

VOL. I.—NEW SERIES.—No. 55.] SATURDAY, DECEMBER 25, 1875. [PRICE 6D.

THE

ACCOUNTANTS' DIARY

AND

DIRECTORY for 1876

IS NOW READY, and can be had upon application to the Publishers, Messrs. WILLIAMS & STRAHAN, 7 Lawrence-lane, Cheapside, or to MR. A. C. HARPER, 2 Cowper's Court, Cornhill, E.C.

PRICE:—

Foolscap Folio .. 6s. By post 6s. 8d.
Medium Octavo .. 3s. ,, 3s. 4d.

TO PUBLIC COMPANIES, &c.

"THE CHRISTIAN UNION,"

The largest Religious Penny Journal in the World.

IS INVALUABLE AS A MEDIUM for Advertising to Public Companies, Charities, Commercial Houses, Auctioneers, Estate Agents, Capitalists, Bankers, Shippers, Railway Companies, Exporters, Merchants, Manufacturers, Share Brokers, Insurance Companies, Benefit Societies, Building Clubs, Public Schools, Colleges, Institutions, Hotels, Tutors, Governesses, Secretaries, Managers, Clerks, etc., etc.—Applications for advertisement space to be addressed to ALFRED W. GEE, Advertising Agent, 62 Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

PUBLISHING OFFICE:—108 Fleet-street, London, E.C.

TO BE SOLD, with immediate possession, the valuable lease of the premises of a wholesale and retail Optician. The buildings are very commodious, and fitted with numerous lathes, benches, and every appliance for carrying on a large and lucrative business, and are situate in a leading thoroughfare in London; well adapted for combining scientific with remunerative occupation. The Stock, Materials, Machinery, Fixtures, &c., by valuation, no charge for goodwill. Apply for further particulars to Messrs. John Bath and Co., Public Accountants, 40a. King William-street, London Bridge.

NOTICE.

FROM and after 1st of January, 1876, the business hitherto carried on by the undersigned Mr. ARCHIBALD STEWART, under the style of A. STEWART and Co., at the above address, will be carried on by Mr. D. W. LAMBE, his former partner, at his offices No. 32 WALBROOK. Mr. ALFRED HORTON has ceased to have any connection with the business.

ARCHIBALD STEWART,

D. W. LAMBE,

30 Moorgate-street, Dec. 16th, 1875.

Established 1843.

PERIODICAL SALE OF REVERSIONS, ANNUITIES, LIFE POLICIES, SHARES, &c.

MESSRS. MARSH, MILNER, AND Co., are preparing their printed particulars for the forthcoming Monthly AUCTION, which is held the FIRST THURSDAY in every month. To insure due publicity, particulars of Properties intended to be included in the next sale should be forwarded, without delay, to the City Land and Reversion Offices, 54 Cannon Street, London.

LAND, Domains, Mountain Ranges, Woods, Forests, and Important Residential Estates. Messrs MARSH, MILNER, and Co., Land Valuers and Timber Surveyors, have a number of WEALTHY BUYERS DESIROUS of INVESTING in AGRICULTURAL, SPORTING, and RESIDENTIAL ESTATES. OWNERS of marketable properties wishing to effect advantageous sales are therefore invited to forward plans and particulars, which, when received, will be judiciously placed before intending purchasers, publicity being carefully avoided, and written terms settled before any cost or liability is incurred. Address Messrs. Marsh, Milner, and Co., Land and Timber Surveyors, 54 Cannon-street, London, E.C.

MESSRS. MARSH, MILNER, AND Co.'s REGISTER of LANDED ESTATES, Town and Country Residences, and property of every description, is published Monthly, and may be obtained at the Auction, Land, and Estate Agency Offices, 54 Cannon-street, E.C., or will be forwarded by post on application.

MORTGAGES promptly NEGOTIATED upon Landed Estates, City Properties, and upon sound securities of all kinds. Messrs. MARSH, MILNER and Co., have at the present time access to large sums of Money ready to be immediately advanced upon approved securities. Apply at the City Land and Reversion Offices (Established 1842), 54 Cannon-street.

WILLIAM EDWARDS, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT AND AUDITOR,

GRANVILLE PLACE, STONE ROAD, LONGTON, STAFFORDSHIRE.

RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY AND LIQUIDATION.

CHARLES LOWDEN,

PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT,

RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY,

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

39 BROAD-STREET, BRISTOL,

JUNE 24TH, 1875.

The PARTNERSHIP hitherto existing under the Style or Firm of HANCOCK, TRIGGS, & CO., having been DISSOLVED by mutual consent, I beg to give notice that I purpose henceforth to CARRY ON BUSINESS as a PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT at the above address.

PHILIP TRIGGS.

MESSRS. BARRETT AND PATEY,

PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS,

90 LONDON WALL, E.C.

HAVING removed from No. 8 Finsbury Circus, to more commodious offices at the above address, will be pleased to hear from Accountants resident in the provincial and manufacturing towns who require agents in London.

Digitized by Google

MR. FERDINAND WOLFSKEHL,
BANKER,
9 STEINWEG, FRANKFORT A/MAIN, GERMANY,

CALLS THE ATTENTION of Investors to different Continental Government Securities, guaranteed by Acts of Parliament, through which Capital and Interest ARE SECURED BEYOND ANY DOUBT.

Every one of these Loans must be repaid as per Plan attached to each Debenture, within a limited number of years, by periodical Drawings, OFFERING ADVANTAGES PRESENTED BY NO OTHER SECURITIES, WITH BONUSES AT EACH DRAWING, varying from

£10 to £30,000.

For full particulars apply by letter, addressed care
MESSRS. WOLFSKEHL BROTHERS, BANKERS,
LORD STREET, LIVERPOOL.

LOVEWELL BLAKE, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT, RECEIVER, AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY.
SECRETARY TO THE GREAT YARMOUTH TRADERS' ASSOCIATION.
OFFICES: HALL QUAY CHAMBERS, GREAT YARMOUTH.

J. F. TITCHMARSH, PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT AND AUDITOR,
17 PRINCESS STREET, IPSWICH.

RECEIVER AND TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY AND LIQUIDATION.

TRANSLATIONS.
MR. ALFRED W. GEE,
BRITISH AND FOREIGN ADVERTISING AGENT,
62 GRACECHURCH STREET, LONDON, E.C.,

Begs to announce that in compliance with a wish expressed by some of the subscribers to the Accountant, he has made arrangements for the translation of legal and commercial documents, correspondence, &c., into the Principal European Languages. Members of the Profession are therefore respectfully informed that arrangements can be made for efficient and speedy translations into, or from, the French, German, Italian, Spanish, and Dutch Languages on Moderate Terms.

The Accountant.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

The ACCOUNTANT is printed and published in time for Friday evening's mail; price 6d. per copy, or 28s. per annum (including postage), the reduced terms for payment in advance being: annual subscription 24s. (post free); half-yearly ditto, 13s. (post free). Cheques and Post-office orders to be made payable to Mr. Alfred W. Gee, 62 Gracechurch-street, E.C., to whom applications for advertisement space, and letters relating to the general business of the paper, should also be addressed. Literary communications should be directed to the Editor of the ACCOUNTANT at the same address, and in order to ensure insertion in the current number, correspondents are respectfully requested to forward their copy as early in the week as possible.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The Proprietor desires to call the attention of Advertisers to the special advantages offered by the paper as an Advertising medium. Starting with a good guaranteed circulation, and with the entire concurrence and hearty support of the leading members of the profession, the ACCOUNTANT has achieved a large measure of success in a wide field hitherto unoccupied by any professional organ. The ACCOUNTANT thus secures to Advertisers an excellent circulation of an exclusive character; and is particularly valuable as a medium for the announcements of members of the profession, as to Estates and Declaration of Dividends, and the appointment of Trustees and Receivers; for Publishers, Printers, Law Stationers, Auctioneers, and Estate Agents; for the Advertisements of Insurance and Public Companies; and for Notices as to Investments, Vacant Partnerships, &c. Advertisements intended for insertion in the current number, should reach the office on Thursday; late announcements can, however, be received up to 12 o'clock (noon) on Friday.

N.B.—Copies may be obtained at Messrs. W. H. Smith and Sons, Strand, at their numerous Railway Bookstalls, and at the Shops of the leading City and West-End Newsvendors.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.

In consequence of numerous applications from subscribers, the proprietor has made arrangements for the supply of CASES for holding and preserving the Accountant, which may be obtained at the office on the following terms:—In green cloth (well got up), with elastics, and "The Accountant" in gold letters on front, 3s. each; same in leather, 4s. 6d. each. Subscribers' names in gold lettering, 1s. extra. Post Office Orders payable to ALFRED W. GEE, 62 Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

The Accountant.

DECEMBER 25, 1875.

The "order and disposition" clauses of the various Bankruptcy Acts have on many occasions given rise to much ingenuity of interpretation, and customs of trade are equally fertile in points of interest. Apart from questions of fraud, such as arise, in too numerous instances, under voluntary settlements, there are many cases in which the exact date of the transmutation of possession becomes of the highest importance. In discussing, a few weeks since, the doctrine of stoppage in transitu, we pointed out the refined subtleties of distinction which abound in determining the exact limits to which the right of stoppage extends; and many of our remarks will apply to the doctrine of reputed ownership. To discover at what particular time the vendor loses his right to retain his goods, and becomes a mere creditor entitled merely to a scanty dividend out of the problematical assets of his debtor, is quite as vexatious to a trustee as to determine what custom of trade or conditions of hiring will regulate his right to claim property, to all outward appearance in the possession and under the entire control of the bankrupt. But in the former instance he has the advantage of various authoritative, if obscure decisions to which to look for guidance; in the latter, he has to face a difficulty which is of comparatively modern creation. To lay down exactly the strict limits of the law as regards "agreements of hiring," is a duty imposed upon the judges, whose careful performance would be a very valuable assistance to trustees. The principle on which such cases ought to be decided is pretty well settled, but, unfortunately, the issue has not been raised in a sufficiently representative form for its decision to be of very much practical importance, and the occupants of the judicial bench are for various reasons extremely unwilling to do more than decide the exact point before them.

Digitized by Google

The practice of payment for hire of articles which after a time become the property of the hirer, is fast increasing. The purchase of a house through a building society is a recognised and convenient form of investment, and the system which Mr. Beale first introduced with a view of increasing the employment of machinery among farmers, and then extended to pianos, is often called into operation to provide the necessary furniture. But its general adoption would be very embarrassing to those called upon to administer the bankruptcy laws. As regards the ownership of a house, difficulty need seldom arise. To live in a house implies nothing beyond a tenancy, as ownership of house property is the exception rather than the rule. But, till the developments of modern commerce have altered the presumption, the furniture in a house will be looked upon as being as much the absolute property of the owner as the coat on his back. It may or may not be paid for, but it is clearly part of his property. But, under the custom of hiring, it is contended that the goods belong to their hirer only on the payment of the last instalment, and that, till that is made, the property remains in the vendor and not in the purchaser. But the creditor of the reputed owner, who knows nothing of any such agreement, may be deceived. He gives credit to a man whom he judges, by the testimony of his own eyesight, to be the possessor of a large stock of furniture; and the fact that furniture is frequently hired in the way we have mentioned is so notorious as to put the creditor upon his inquiry whether the furniture is or is not actually the property of its reputed owner. This was the point that came before the Lords Justices in the case of ex parte Powell in re Matthews. The result was disappointing, and illustrated that cautious habit of the judicial mind to which we have before referred. As is not unfrequently the case, the debtor's assets were of a very small description, and the trustee was, not unnaturally, unwilling to enter upon a course in which an adverse decision might have caused him a heavy pecuniary loss, and success would have brought him but the barren honour of having the correctness of his opinion on the particular point at issue established. Hence, as the various judges had thought there was evidence of the existence of such a custom as was contended for, the Court of Appeal declined to interfere, though evidently of opinion that the existence of such a custom was far from being conclusively established. The matter therefore remains still undecided, until some wealthy estate in which a similar question arises will pay the expense of having the doubt set finally to rest. There is one point which does not seem to have been adverted to in judgment or argument. The agreement for the hire of the furniture was registered as a bill of sale. This would be notice, of course, to any persons dealing with the debtor that the furniture was not his property, and seems to us to be tolerably decisive of the point. But in the case of a creditor who has not taken this precaution, we are inclined to think that the final advantage would rest with the trustee.

It is perhaps to the general convenience, though occasionally very troublesome to individuals, that the defects of Acts of Parliament should be brought out by judicial investigation into their meaning. No person with a proper sense of what he owes to the legal system of his country ought to grudge any expense he is put to by being so unfortunate as to give rise to the illustration of this doctrine, where his misfortune may be a beacon to light the path of his fellow-creatures through the sinuous ways of pecuniary embarrassment; but he certainly deserves our sympathy when his services in acting as a leading case only settle the law for a brief space of time. The case of Holt v. Everall, which we reported last week, is a case belonging to the latter category. It decides that a policy of insurance, to come within the protection afforded by the Married Women's Property Act of 1870, to those who insure their lives for the benefit of their wives and children, must be anew policy effected after the passing of the

Digitized by Google

Act. The importance of the decision is, however, getting less and less every day. It is scarcely possible that any one now should endeavour to settle an old policy with a view to taking advantage of the Act, and the only persons likely to be affected would be those who, becoming bankrupt, would have to show that they were able to pay their debts without the aid of the policy; and considering the very slight value that these securities bear till a large number of premiums have been paid, he would be a very hard-hearted trustee who would put a debtor upon a very rigid proof as to this. As regards Mr. Everall's case, the logical inferences seem tolerably clear. A policy effected in 1870 would now be of merely nominal value; an old policy might be a valuable asset, and to allow this to be subject to the operation of the Act would very materially prejudice creditors. But a further remarkable fact in the case is, that it shows anew how often an attempt to effect a slight saving entails a heavy loss. One year's premium only had been paid on these policies, and to surrender them and take out wholly fresh ones, which would have been protected by the Act would have cost but a very slight addition to the annual premium. It was this false economy that was fatal. Had the debtor lived, the policy would have been worth but a nominal sum, but he died within a few months of his failure, and the amount assured became immediately payable. As matters turned out the saving of a few pounds involved the loss of a thousand. That the decision, however hard it may seem, is correct can scarcely be doubted, and the creditors may possibly be as worthy of our sympathy as the family of their debtor. But a useful lesson may be learnt from the transaction,—one which though continually repeated, is as constantly neglected,—that the greater number of catastrophes are almost directly traced to some desire to effect a trifling saving. Mr. Everall's investment in a life policy proved a wise and profitable move; if he had not hesitated to pay a slightly higher premium to make his investment absolutely secure, he would have acted still more wisely.

A strange slip seems to have taken place in the order made on the petition to wind-up the London and Manchester Industrial Assurance Company, when Vice-Chancellor Malins appointed a provisional liquidator of the Company on an ex-parte motion. Without examining very deeply into the merits of the petition, or considering whether the company is likely to be materially strengthened by the revelation of its affairs, we may safely lay down that an unsuccessful petitioner should be wholly discouraged. There are many companies which were called into existence under circumstances of undoubted fraud, and which are so heavily weighted in the first instance, that under no possible circumstances can they hope to succeed. But there are many others whose existence is simply trembling in the balance. If allowed to work their way undisturbed, they may survive the crisis, but it is precisely at that time that an unfavourable rumour may destroy them. The very threat of a petition to wind-up is alarming, and is very often resorted to from improper motives. The Life Assurance Act of 1870 endeavours to remedy this by providing that a preliminary inquiry shall be held in private to satisfy the judge that there is a primâ facie case of insolvency,—a useful and beneficial rule. But to appoint a provisional liquidator without hearing any statement on the part of the company may bring about all that an unscrupulous petitioner desires. The appointment can be made public, confidence is shaken, and the final catastrophe is speedily brought about. That the appointment was made inadvertently is probable enough, but it is rather discouraging that such a mistake could possibly occur. An assurance company, however, as far as the shareholders are concerned, is less liable to damage from such an occurrence than any other. Policies may lapse in a very profitable manner, and as confidence is re-established, may be renewed on advantageous terms. But in the interest of policy-holders, it is desirable to exercise the utmost care not to take any step that may throw premature discredit on their association. That many companies have been wound-up deservedly, and that the majority of the rest stand sadly in need of such a measure, is true, but at the risk of a little delay in proper cases, too many safeguards cannot be insisted upon against the machinations of unscrupulous or revengeful petitioners.

The failure was announced, on Saturday, of Messrs. Lawton and Head, with estimated liabilities of £190,000. The business has been that of merchants, shipping and insurance agents. The books are in the hands of Messrs. Robert Fletcher and Co,

The liquidators of the Oriental Financial Corporation, Limited, have declared a further return to the shareholders of 2s. 6d. per share, to be paid at the offices of Mr. T. Fuller Carter, public-accountant, one of the liquidators, No. 2 Gresham-buildings, Basinghall-street, on Wednesday, the 5th January next, or any subsequent Wednesday, between 11 and 2.

Digitized by Google

SUPREME COURT OF JUDICATURE.

COURT OF APPEAL, LINCOLN'S-INN.

December 21.

(Before Lords Justices JAMES, MELLISH, and BAGGALLAY.)

WORTHINGTON v. CURTIS.—This case—on appeal from Vice-Chancellor Bacon—raised the question whether the proceeds of a policy of assurance for £500, effected upon the life of George Curtis, deceased, formed part of his assets, so as to be available for his creditors, or belonged to his father and administrator, by whom the policy had been effected and the premiums paid. It appeared that in 1862 the defendant, Mr. Curtis, offered to pay his son, the late George Curtis, a legacy of £400, bequeathed to him by his aunt, of whom the father was executor. The son at first demurred to receiving the legacy, on the ground of the great expense to which he had put his father in his education and maintenance; but it was at last arranged that the father should pay him the £400, and, in consideration of such payment, should, at his own cost and for his own benefit, effect a policy on the son's life for £500. Accordingly, a proposal was made to the Rock Office, and in July, 1862, a policy for £500 on the life of George Curtis, the younger, was granted by that office. The premiums on that policy were paid by the father, and the policy remained in his possession until after the death of the son in April, 1871; but no legal assignment of it was ever executed by the son to the father. Administration was granted to the father, and the policy moneys were paid to him by the Rock Office. A bill having been filed on behalf of creditors for administration of the son's estate, it was sought to recover from the father, as forming part of the son's estate, the £500 received in respect of the policy. Vice-Chancellor Bacon having held that the £500 did not form part of the son's assets, but belonged to the father absolutely, the plaintiffs now appealed. Mr. Jackson, Q.C., and Mr. Dundas Gardiner were for the appellants; Mr. Kay, Q.C., and Mr. W. P. Dickins in support of the Vice-Chancellor's order. Lord Justice Mellish, in delivering the judgment of the Court, said that the first question was whether there was sufficient evidence that, as between the father and the son, the father himself was really the owner of the policy. The statement by the father of the arrangement with the son, and that the policy was effected by him entirely for his own benefit, was confirmed by the evidence of his wife, and also by the fact that for nine or ten years the premiums were paid by the father, and that during all this time the policy was kept in his possession. Their lordships saw no reason, therefore, to differ from the Vice-Chancellor's conclusion that the policy on the son's life was effected by the father for his own benefit. But then it was contended on behalf of the appellants that such an insurance was illegal under the Statute 14 George III., cap. 48, as having been made by a person having no insurable interest in the life or death of the person insured. If the company had been sued for the amount of the policy they would have had a defence to the action under that Statute. But there being quite enough to call their attention to the circumstances under which this policy was effected, they never thought of raising that question, but voluntarily paid the amount assured without disputing the policy. The plaintiffs, who claimed the policy as forming part of the son's assets, could have no better right to it than the son himself had during his life. Now, quite apart from any question of the defence. under the Statute, which might have been raised by the company, the policy clearly belonged to the father, and the son could not have compelled him to deliver it up or maintain any action of detinue in respect of it, or even have prevented the father from surrendering the policy and receiving from the office the surrender value. As the son, therefore, had no property in the policy as between himself and his father, his creditors could not have any. The money had been paid to the father, and, even assuming that the policy was illegal, that was a defence available for the company only, and could not be relied upon by the plaintiffs in support of their claim. Under these circumstances, melior est conditio possidentis, and the appeal of the plaintiffs must be dismissed.

(Before Lords Justices JAMES, MELLISH, and BAGGALLAY, and Mr. Justice BRETT.)

MEREDITH v. TREFERY.—In this case a question of some importance was raised upon the construction of the recent Order of Court of the 28th of October, 1875, with regard to the fees to be charged on the taking of the accounts of trustees in suits which were pending at the time when the Judicature Acts came into operation. The order in question, which was made by the Lord Chancellor, with the advice and consent of other Judges of the Supreme Court, and with the concurrence of the Lords of the Treasury, under the powers conferred by the Act of 1875, provides (by Rule 1) that the fees and percentages contained in the schedule to the order shall be taken in the High Court of Justice and the Court of Appeal. Rule 4 provides that the provisions of the order "shall not apply to any of the matters following," two of which are these:—"The existing fees and percentages which shall have become due or payable before the commencement of the Judicature Acts, 1873 and 1875." "The existing fees and percentages in respect of any proceedings in any cause or matter pending at the commencement of the said Acts, and in respect of which no fee or percentage is hereby provided." By the schedule the fee "on the taking an account of a receiver, trustee, &c., or other person liable to account, when the amount found to have been received, without deducting any payment, shall not exceed £200," is fixed at 2s.; and "where such an amount shall exceed £200, for every £50, or fraction of £50," the fee is to be 6d. The schedule goes on to say:—"In the case of any such receiver, guardian, consignee, bailee, manager, liquidator, sequestrator, or execution creditor, the fees shall, upon payment, be allowed in the account, unless the Court or Judge shall otherwise direct; and in the case of taking the accounts of such other accounting parties, the fees shall be paid by the party having the conduct of the order under which such account is taken, as part of his costs of the cause or matter (unless the Court or Judge shall otherwise direct), and in such case shall be taken upon the certificate of the result of any such account; but the fees shall be due and payable, although no certificate is required, on the account taken, or on such part thereof as may be taken." Under the old practice of the Court of Chancery no fee or percentage was payable upon the taking of trustees' accounts, but a fixed fee of £1 was payable on all certificates made by the Chief Clerk; and if the parties agreed to the accounts, and no certificate was required, no fee became payable at all. But there was a percentage charged on the accounts of receivers, and it was at a higher rate than that which is specified in the above schedule. This suit was commenced before the Judicature Acts came into operation, and the question arose in it, and in some other suits which were then pending, whether, with regard to accounts hereafter taken in such suits, the old or the new scale of fees applies; and whether, as the new order provides no fee to be taken on a certificate, the old certificate fee is in such cases to be charged as well as the new fee on the taking of the accounts. In this particular case there was this further question:—The accounts of the trustees for the years 1872, 1873, and 1874 had been carried into Vice-Chancellor Hall's Chambers before the Long Vacation, and had all been vouched, with the exception of some bills of costs, the taxation of which could not be completed until after the Chambers had been closed for the Long Vacation. The question was whether in any case the new scale of fees could apply to these accounts. A difference of opinion as to the application of the above order with regard to suits pending when the Judicature Acts came into operation has existed between the Judges of the Chancery Division, the Master of the Rolls, and Vice-Chancellor Malins taking one view, the Vice-Chancellors Bacon and Hall taking another. Mr. Davey, Q.C, by the desire of Vice-Chancellor Hall, mentioned the present case to the Court of Appeal, with the view of settling the practice. Mr. John Rigby appeared for the official solicitor. The Court held that the new percentage on the taking of accounts is in substitution of the old fee on the certificate of the result of an account, and that, therefore, only one fee is chargeable; that in suits pending when the Judicature Acts came into operation the new scale of fees applies with regard to accounts which have begun to be taken in Chambers since the Acts came into operation; but that where in such suits the taking of accounts in Chambers was commenced before the Acts came into operation, even though they should not have been actually completed and certified till after that date, the old scale of fees applies. This afternoon the Court rose for the Christmas Vacation. The sittings will re-commence on the 11th of January next.

Digitized by Google

HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE.

CHANCERY DIVISION.

December 17.

(Before Vice-Chancellor Sir JAMES BACON.)

IN RE THE LONDON AND MANCHESTER INDUSTRIAL ASSURANCE COMPANY, LIMITED.—This matter was brought before the court on two applications; one was by the company to discharge an order made by Vice-Chancellor Malins on the 6th inst., on an ex-parte motion by which he appointed a provisional liquidator. The order was made in the matter of a winding-up petition by a Mr. Squires, a member. Though the petition was presented in this branch of the court, by some mistake the ex-parte application was made to Vice-Chancellor Malins, and on the matter being brought again before him, he said Vice-Chancellor Bacon must deal with the question whether the order should be discharged. The other application was an adjournment into court of a decision of the chief clerk. By the Life Insurance Act, 1870, it is provided that no petition for winding-up a life insurance company shall be as much as heard till the petitioner has satisfied the court that a primâ facie case of insolvency exists. The petitioner had failed, in chambers, to satisfy the chief clerk that the company did not appear to be solvent, and now appealed to the judge in court. The company was registered in 1869, with a capital of £50,000, of which £4,625 was subscribed for, and has all been paid up. There was evidence on both sides as to the solvency or insolvency of the company. The manager, Mr. Marriott, in support of solvency, said the premium income was about £13,000, and the company was possessed of the following assets:—£500 on deposit, in the names of two directors; upwards of £700 in the hands of agents; £664 due on loans on personal security; more than £1,700 due for premiums; some money on the current account with the Sheffield Banking Company, which was more than sufficient to discharge current liabilities; and furniture and fittings to the value of £135. He also stated that Mr. Squires, who was a director, had been removed from the office of being one of the committee of management, for which he received £3 a week, in consequence of his having taken the secretaryship of the Co-operative Credit Bank, Limited, the holding of which was considered inconsistent with the discharge of his duties as a member of that committee. Mr. Squires was stated to have given as a reason for his presenting the petition a desire for revenge, and to have issued a circular to agents calculated to damage the company. Mr. Jackson, Q.C., and Mr. E. S. Ford appeared for the company; Mr. Kay, Q.C., and Mr. Grosvenor Woods for the petitioner. The Vice-Chancellor said he must treat the order of Vice-Chancellor Malins as if it had been made by himself. The rule of the court was that a provisional liquidator could only be appointed in cases where the winding-up is not opposed; here the appointment had been made on an ex-parte application, where it could not appear whether there was to be opposition or not, and it was most irregular and improper. With regard to the conduct of the petitioner, there was evidence on the file, which had not been contradicted, that he, a director of the company, whose duty it was to protect its business, had, on account of his having been discharged from a profitable office, and through motives of revenge, instituted these proceedings. Whether the evidence were true or not, he had issued a circular, which was sent to the agents of the company throughout the country, seeking to take away the business in favour of a company of his own, not yet in existence. On the other application his Lordship also expressed a strong opinion that no primâ facie case of insolvency had been established, and said the petition would never be brought before a court. He therefore discharged the provisional liquidator, refused to vary the chief clerk's grant, and ordered Mr. Squires to pay the costs of all these proceedings.

(Before Vice-Chancellor Sir C. HALL.)

IN RE THE BRITISH IMPERIAL INSURANCE CORPORATION, LIMITED.—This was a winding-up petition presented by a creditor and shareholder. Three other petitions had been presented to Vice-Chancellor Malins, two of which were in his Lordship's paper for hearing to-day. The corporation was admitted to be insolvent. The counsel for the two last-mentioned petitions having applied that those petitions might be transferred to this branch of the court, The Vice-Chancellor, after some discussion, expressed his willingness that the two petitions in Vice-Chancellor Malins's paper should be transferred, and made a winding-up order on those two petitions, as well as on the present petition, but directed that the order should not be drawn up until the transfer had been made. No order would be made on the fourth petition, which was not ripe for hearing. Mr. Graham Hastings, Q.C., and Mr. Langworthy appeared for the present petitioner; Mr. Dickinson, Q.C., and Mr. F. C. J. Millar for the corporation; Mr. Rigby and Mr. Grosvenor Woods for shareholders and policy-holders supporting the petition; Mr. North, Mr. Ingle Joyce, and Mr. C. H. Turner for the petitioners in the other three petitions.

December 18.

(Before Vice-Chancellor Sir RICHARD MALINS.)

IN RE THE MOUNTAIN CHIEF MINING COMPANY OF UTAH, LIMITED.—In this matter a petition was presented praying for an order to wind-up the company. Mr. Glasse, Q.C., was for the petitioner; Mr. Brooksbank for the company. The Vice-Chancellor made the usual winding-up order.

IN RE THE NORTHUMBERLAND ENGINE WORKS COMPANY, LIMITED.—In this matter a petition was presented praying for an order to wind-up the company. Mr. Romer was for the petitioner; Mr. J. Pearson, Q.C., for some of the respondents, opposed the petition; Mr. Cozens Hardy was for the company; Mr. Bush and Mr. Warmington for other parties. The Vice-Chancellor made the usual winding-up order.

(Before Vice-Chancellor Sir C. HALL.)

IN RE THE ENGLISH AND FOREIGN CREDIT COMPANY, LIMITED AND REDUCED.—This was a petition of the above-named company for the confirmation by the court of a special resolution reducing the capital of the company from the sum of £300,000, divided into 20,000 shares of £15 each, to the sum of £200,000, divided into 20,000 shares of £10 each. The requisite formalities had been complied with; all the creditors of the company had been settled with, except two, whose claims amounted to £213 6s., which sum would be paid into the Bank of England; and the company had already used the words "and reduced" since April last. The Vice-Chancellor made the usual order of confirmation, and directed the company to use the words "and reduced" for a month longer. Mr. F. C. J. Millar appeared for the company.

Digitized by Google

December 21.

(Before Vice-Chancellor Sir James Bacon.)

John Bagnall and Sons, Limited, v. James Carlton and Others.—This suit is instituted for the purpose of setting aside as against the plaintiff company and its shareholders an agreement, dated the 6th of March, 1873, for the purchase of collieries and iron works, caused to be entered into on behalf of the company by the defendants, James Carlton, Albert Grant, William Henry Duignan, Lauriston Winterbotham Lewis, Rayner Blount Lewis, John Richardson, Charles Fletcher Richardson, Richard Samuel Bagnall, Richard Bagnall, Joseph Nayler, and George Bytheway, and by William Sutton Nayler, deceased, acting as promoters of the company then in the course of formation, on the ground that they did not disclose to the company and its shareholders a collateral agreement of even date with the above, whereby a sum of £85,000 was (as plaintiffs allege) secretly appropriated out of the moneys of the company, and divided amongst the defendants, J. Carlton, A. Grant, J. Richardson, and C. F. Richardson, on the pretext of commission for services on formation; and that by other concealed and collateral agreements sums of £19,000 and £1,500 were agreed to be paid out of the same moneys, the former sum to the defendants Joseph Nayler and William Sutton Nayler, deceased, and the latter to the defendants W. H. Duignan, L. W. Lewis, and R. B. Lewis, the moneys so appropriated amounting together to £105,000. The capital of the company, which was registered on the 21st of March, 1873, was £300,000, in 30,000 shares of £10 each. Mr. Kay, Q.C., and Mr. Russell Roberts now moved that the defendants, James Carlton, Albert Grant, R. S. Bagnall, Joseph Nayler, and Edward Nayler (executor of W. S. Nayler), might be restrained from parting with, disposing of, or dealing with any debentures of the plaintiff company which might be in their hands, or in the hands of any person by their order, or for their use, or under their control. They argued that the case was one of such gross fraud as prima facie to entitle the plaintiffs to have the contract wholly set aside, and, as incidental to the right to such relief, they asked that the last mentioned defendants might be prevented from dealing with such of the proceeds of the alleged fraudulent sale as were now in their hands. Mr. Swanston, Q.C., and Mr. Ingle Joyce, for the defendant Carlton, read an affidavit by him, from which it appeared that he never personally received any part of the £85,000 cash, promissory notes, and debentures in the bill mentioned, except debentures to the amount of £12,500, all of which he had sold before the date of the filing of the bill, for sums amounting to £10,476. Mr. Jackson, Q.C., and Mr. Everitt, for the defendant Albert Grant, said that he also had parted with all his debentures, but that he had not made an affidavit to this effect. Mr. Fry, Q.C., and Mr. Woodroffe, for the vendor to the company, Richard Samuel Bagnall, son and representative (with the Messrs. Nayler) of the late James Bagnall, the former owner, contended that no relief could be had against him. As vendor he was entitled to sell upon what terms he pleased, and if one of those terms was that he was to allow his agent in the matter of the sale to take one-third of the purchase money, the purchaser had no right to complain of that. If the agent in this instance had mixed himself up with the purchaser in such a way as to render himself answerable to the company, that was no affair of the vendor's. Moreover, here there had been sales by the company of part of the property, so that the subject matter of the contract could not be restored in its integrity, and the court would not, under those circumstances, decree rescision. Mr. Millar appeared for the Messrs. Nayler. Mr. Kay having replied, The Vice-Chancellor said that the case presented by the plaintiffs was reasonably plain and simple, and there were no questions of fact seriously in dispute. The plaintiff's complaint was that the company had been misled and deceived by what was called the principal agreement, which did not show the true contract between the parties. The case of the defendants was that vendors have a right to stipulate upon what terms they please with the agent whom they employ, and as to the truth of this there could not be a doubt. But the plaintiffs replied that the vendors had so behaved as to render themselves liable for their conduct to the purchasers—that they had, in fact, been party to an agreement whereby the truth was studiously concealed from the purchasing company. That was a question for the hearing of the cause, which could not now be decided; the materials were not before the Court; but in the mean time the principle was plain enough, that if a prima facie case for the rescision of a contract were made out, and the consideration for the purchase remained in the vendor's hands, with danger of its slipping away, the Court would interfere for the purpose of keeping matters as they were, so that in the result neither party should be prejudiced. No harm was being done to the defendants in the meanwhile, and the course was neither unreasonable nor contrary to the practice of the Court. The only doubt was whether the circumstance of parts of the property having been disposed of did not render rescision impossible; but upon the whole his lordship thought there had not been such an alienation as to justify the Court in refusing to interfere, and there would be an injunction as prayed against all the defendants except Carlton, who would nevertheless still remain before the Court as a defendant. Mr. Everitt asked that Mr. Grant, who was in the same position, might be included in the same exception. The Vice-Chancellor said he could not consent to this. The defendant Carlton had deposed that he had got rid of his debentures, but the defendant Grant had said nothing of the kind. The defendant Carlton's costs, however, would be specially reserved.

QUEEN'S BENCH DIVISION, Westminster.

December 16.

(Sittings in Banco, before Mr. Justice Blackburn, Mr. Justice Quain, and Mr. Justice Archibald.)

Waddling v. Oliphant.—This case raised a curious question as to the claims of creditors on earnings in literary, artistic, or professional employments. The question had arisen thus: Mr. Oliphant was editor of a weekly paper, at a salary of £200 a year, and he had become insolvent. Afterwards the proprietor of the paper became insolvent, and the trustees were ordered to pay him £100, as six months' salary. One of his creditors who had obtained judgment against him claimed the money in the hands of the trustees, while it was also claimed by the assignees under his former insolvency. The question was who was entitled to the money, which turned upon this—whether, as between the insolvent and his former creditors, he or they would be entitled to it; and this turned upon the question whether assignees of a bankrupt or insolvent are entitled to his subsequent earnings. It was admitted that they would be entitled to profits made in trade, and even to the produce of work and labour and materials, as it is clear that they are entitled to after-acquired property; but the point was whether they are entitled also to the produce of pure personal labour and skill, as in the case of an artist, an author, or any professional man. Mr. Holl appeared for the assignees; Mr. Horne Payne for the judgment creditor; Mr. Baggallay for the insolvent. It was contended for the assignees that the insolvent is only entitled to his earnings so far as necessary for his personal maintenance and support, as to which, however, Mr. Justice Quain observed that there was a difficulty in laying down a rule of law which turned upon what was necessary in each case for personal maintenance. Mr. Justice Blackburn observed that of course it would make it in each case a question of evidence. Mr. Justice Quain, upon that, observed that £200 a year did not appear more than was necessary for the personal maintenance of a literary man. Mr. Justice Blackburn observed that the argument for the judgment creditor went to the extent of insisting that, even although the insolvent received thousands a year in his profession, his former creditors could claim nothing; and it was admitted that the argument did go to this extent, which was what made the question one of some importance. Mr Justice Archibald quoted a remark of Lord Mansfield's quoted by Lord Denman that " the assignees cannot let out a bankrupt to hire." Mr. Justice Blackburn alluded to the cases as to the right of assignees to take advantage of contracts with the bankrupt, in which Lord Abinger, who differed from the other judges of his court on that question, delivered the celebrated judgment in which occurred the famous illustration, so often referred to in cases of this subject—" Suppose a contract by Sir Walter Scott with his publishers to write a novel. On his bankruptcy, could his publishers be compelled to take a novel written by his assignees? Mr. Justice Archibald said the general rule of law, no doubt, was that after-acquired property went to the assignees. There was an exception of personal earnings necessary for maintenance. Then, what was "necessary for maintenance?" That must necessarily vary with the circumstances of the person, for what would be sufficient for the maintenance of a day labourer would hardly be sufficient for an artist or a literary man. Mr. Justice Blackburn: Does "necessary maintenance" mean bare subsistence, or does it include what would be "necessaries" for a wife or for a minor—that is, every thing reasonably necessary with reference to circumstances and position? Mr. Justice Quain: In any view, is £200 a year more than enough for the maintenance of a gentleman in the position of the editor of a paper? It was urged on the part of the assignees that the £100 paid here was not paid as salary which might be presumed to be necessary for his maintenance, but as a species of compensation for the cessation of his employment. But to this it was answered that the £100 was awarded on the very ground that, by the sudden cessation of employment, the insolvent would otherwise be left destitute of support. After long argument, the Court gave judgment in favour of the trustees of the uncertificated bankrupt—that the money should be paid to them. The money claimed was awarded by the Court of Bankruptcy to the insolvent as compensation for the breach of the contract of employment in dismissal without six months' notice. It was not merely money paid by way of salary for work actually done; it was a solid sum of money paid for the loss of future employment. It was not necessary, therefore, to determine the difficult question as to what might be the position of an author or artist making a large income by his professional or literary labours, much beyond any amount that could be considered reasonably necessary for maintenance; the present case was different. Judgment for the trustees of the insolvent.

Digitized by Google

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY.

December 17.

(Before Mr. Registrar HAZLITT, sitting as Chief Judge.)

In re W. A. White.—The bankrupt, William Arthur White, was a financial broker, carrying on business in Queen Victoria-street. He had filed a petition for liquidation, but the creditors failing to pass any resolution, an adjudication was obtained against him. A statement of affairs returned debts amounting to £8,094, of which £6,191 were unsecured, with assets £120. The trustee appeared in person; Mr. Wetherfield, solicitor, represented the bankrupt. It was stated to the court that the bankrupt had sustained serious losses in connexion with various companies which were now in liquidation; and, although the deficiency was large, it was properly accounted for, and the trustee did not oppose. Mr. Registrar Hazlitt said he observed from the proceedings that an endeavour had been made to effect an arrangement with the creditors under the 28th section. What had been the result of that? The trustee replied that it had been found impraticable. The bankrupt passed his examination.

December 18.

(Before Mr. Registrar Spring-Rice.)

In re E. M. De Bussche.—This was an application to confirm a scheme of arrangement under the 28th section. The bankrupt, who is described as a steamship proprietor, of Ryde, Isle of Wight, was adjudicated some time since, and the statement of affairs filed shows total unsecured liabilities £183,177, against assets £19,250. The proceedings were originally instituted in the Newport County Court, but have since been transferred to London. The scheme come to by the creditors is for the acceptance of £7,500 in discharge of all liabilities and the payment of the costs. The money is to be paid in six equal instalments in twelve months, security being given and the bankruptcy annulled. It appeared, however, that there were some matters of detail to be arranged, and a short adjournment was ordered. Mr. Munns appeared for creditors, and Mr. Barber for the trustee.

In re E. B. and A. S. Pitchford.—This was an adjourned sitting for the public examination of Messrs. Pitchford and Pitchford, lead merchants, carrying on business at the Island Lead Mills, Limehouse. The bankruptcy took place about two years ago, in connection with that of Messrs. Burrs Brothers, and has been adjourned numerous times, pending the settlement of a large claim between the bankrupts and Messrs. Burrs and Co., involving upwards of £40,000. It was stated on behalf of the trustee that the claim had now been adjusted, and no opposition was offered to the passing of the public examination. The bankrupts accordingly passed on a statement of affairs, showing total liabilities £137,053 3s., against assets £19,544 4s. 8d.

In re W. J. Harker.—The bankrupt, who is described as of Eton-road, Haverstock-hill, passed his public examination on a statement of affairs showing debts £30,998, assets £116 10s. Mr. Baker appeared for the trustee and Mr. Doria for the bankrupt. Mr. Harker was an unsuccessful candidate for the Kirkcaldy Burghs at the general election.

In re M. L Mayer.—This debtor, who is described as of the Queen's Theatre, Holborn, and Gresham-house, theatrical manager and commission agent, has petitioned the court, estimating his liabilities at £8,000, against assets £3,000 odd. Upon the application of Mr. Doria, his Honour appointed Mr. Chatteris, accountant, Gresham-house, receiver of the estate, and granted an interim restraining order against several suing creditors.

December 20.

(Before Mr. Registrar KEENE.)

In re Galatti and Sons.—The debtors in this case carried on business in Blomfield-street, London, as J. S. Galatti, and at Alexandria as G. C. Galatti and Sons, and failed in October last, the statement showing debts to the amount of £99,564 2s., against assets £15,854 12s. Mr. Latham (Messrs. Freshfields and Co.) applied to his Honour to register the resolutions of the creditors accepting a composition of 3s. in the pound, payable in two instalments of 2s. 6d. in 14, and 6d. in 48 days, from the registration. Mr. Channell, on behalf of a Manchester creditor, opposed the registration mainly on the ground that no meeting of the separate creditors had been called. He also claimed to have a right to a double proof on a bill of exchange drawn by the Alexandria firm against J. S. Galatti, on the ground that being a separate trading he could prove against both drawer and acceptor. Evidence was taken as to any separate trading, and his Honour said he had heard nothing to show that there was a separate estate, and nothing to show that there were separate creditors. There was therefore no reason to call a separate meeting, and the objection must fall to the ground, and registration be ordered. An objection to the registration was also taken by Mr. Bigham on behalf of another creditor, but it appearing that he had not proved his debt, the learned registrar held that he had no locus standi, and therefore could not be heard.

Digitized by Google

IN RE NEROUTSOS AND CO.—His Honour, upon the application of Mr. Bigham, directed registration of the resolutions passed by the creditors liquidating this estate by arrangement with a trustee and committee of inspection. The debtors are described as merchants, carrying on business in East India-avenue and Manchester, as Neroutsos and Co. The liabilities are £22,770, against assets £13,023 9s. There were several objections to the registration, but his Honour overruled them and ordered registration. Messrs. Pritchard and Engelfield are the solicitors to the proceedings.

December 21.

(Before the Hon. W. C. SPRING-RICE.)

IN RE AUGUSTE AHLBORN.—This was a first meeting for proof of debts and the appointment of a trustee. The bankrupt, who was the well-known costumier and milliner of Regent-street, and who also carried on business at Barbican, as the Russian Fur Company, absconded about two months ago; no accounts have been consequently filed, but the liabilities are stated at about £130,000. The bankrupt was adjudicated on the 9th of the present month, on the petition of a firm in St. Paul's churchyard. Mr. Rooks, who appeared for the petitioning creditor, stated that it was proposed to appoint Mr. W. Edwards, public accountant, of King-street, Cheapside, who had been appointed receiver under a previous petition, trustee, but to dispense with the appointment of a committee of inspection. The learned Registrar said that it was contrary to the whole scope and tenor of the Act to appoint a trustee without a committee of inspection, and although that course had been sometimes pursued, it was always attended with trouble and increased expense, and cast a burden upon the Court which it was not the intention of the Legislature to impose upon it. Mr. Bagley, instructed by Mr. Hall, who also appeared for creditors, explained that in this case the bankrupt under a former petition had made an assignment of his goods to his creditors, and under that assignment they had appointed Mr. Edwards, and realised the estate in conjunction with a committee of creditors. A very considerable estate had been realised, and the creditors were afraid that to appoint a committee of inspection under this petition would have the effect of delaying the declaration of a dividend. Eventually, after some discussion, it was arranged that two of the committee of creditors should be appointed on the committee of inspection, and three or four small proofs having been admitted, Mr. Edwards was appointed trustee, and a day fixed for the bankrupt to surrender for public examination.

December 22.

(Before Mr. Registrar MURRAY.)

IN RE BRAYSHAW.—This was an application to set aside a settlement made by the debtor in favour of his wife. He carried on business at 32 Little Moorfields, and at Tenter-street, as a warehouseman and skirt manufacturer, and failed on the 8th September in last year for £4,591. Mr. Glyn, on the part of the trustee, now applied to the court under the 91st section to set aside a deed by which he had assigned his furniture at 117 Forest-road to his wife, in April, 1874. It appeared that there was a previous liquidation in the preceding year, and the debtor got his discharge under it in November. The Act makes void a settlement executed within ten years of the act of bankruptcy unless it can be proved that the debtor at the time of making it had sufficient to meet all his liabilities without such property as was comprised within the settlement, and it being proved in this case that the creditors had accepted £150 in lieu of their claims under the former liquidation, and the debtor having sworn that he was free from debt at the time of making the settlement, the learned Registrar held that it was valid, and dismissed the application of the trustee to have the furniture delivered up.

(Before Mr. Registrar PEPYS.)

IN RE LAWTON AND HEAD—LIABILITIES, £200,000.—The debtors carried on business as merchants and ship and insurance agents at India-buildings, Queen Victoria-street. They have filed a petition for the liquidation of their affairs, and made the usual statutory declaration of inability to pay their debts, which they estimate at £200,000. The value of the assets is not yet ascertained, but they are considerable, consisting of consignments abroad and cash at bankers. Mr. Bagley now applied to the court to appoint a receiver to the estate, alleging as a ground that there were remittances continually coming from abroad, which required of course to be taken care of. His Honour granted the application, and appointed Mr. Robert Fletcher, public accountant, of Moorgate-street, to the office.

Before Mr. Registrar MURRAY.

RE J. M. BESSIE.—The debtor was described upon his own petition as of the Approach-road, Lndon-bridge, cigar merchant. He had petitioned under the liquidation clauses of "the Bankruptcy Act, 1869," and had offered his creditors 1s. in the pound in discharge of liabilities amounting to about £2,000. The assets returned were of almost nominal amount, consisting, amongst other items, of book debts estimated to produce £4 15s. 6d. The resolutions providing for the composition had been registered, but Mr. Robertson Griffiths now moved upon affidavits on behalf of Messrs. Sales, Pollard, and Lloyd, tobacco merchants, for examination of the debtor and other persons at a private meeting with a view to the ultimate vacation of the Registrar. It transpired from the evidence that shortly before the filing of the petition the debtor had obtained goods from the opposing creditors, which still remained unpaid for, and about the same time had given a bill of sale over all his effects at London-bridge to his brother, an alleged creditor, mainly to secure an antecedent debt, whilst he proposed to discharge his trade liabilities by the payment of 1s. in the pound.—Mr. Winslow, Q.C., and Mr. Brough opposed the motion, which, after having been argued for several hours, was adjourned to January 12th next.

IN RE M. B. SOLOMON.—This was an adjourned sitting for the public examination of this bankrupt, who is described as of the Temple Wine Cellars, Fleet-street, wine and spirit merchant. The adjudication was made in June last upon the petition of Messrs. Donaldson and Company. The statement of affairs shows debts £3,650 14s., against assets £1,795. Mr. Baker, on behalf of the trustee, offered no opposition, and the bankrupt was allowed to pass his public examination.

WINTER ASSIZES.

NORTHERN CIRCUIT, LIVERPOOL.

December 11.

(CROWN COURT.—Before Mr. Justice MELLOR.)

DEFRAUDING CREDITORS.—John Harrison Blair was indicted for having absconded from his creditors, and taken with him a quantity of property which ought to have been divided amongst them. The charge was brought under the 12th section of the Debtors' Act. Mr. Pope, Q.C., and Mr. Yates, prosecuted: the prisoner was undefended by counsel. It was stated that before the 30th of September the prisoner was a draper and wholesale milliner in London-road, Manchester. During the months of June, July, August, and September, he carried on business there, and he obtained credit from various wholesale firms, amongst them being Messrs. Rylands and Co. and Messrs. Thorpe and Son. On the 15th September the prisoner went to the Consolidated Bank of Manchester, where he had an account, and drew out £635, and closed the account. On the 21st September, the steamer China left Liverpool for America, and the prisoner was a passenger on board. He took with him 13 packages of goods, which he had purchased from Messrs. Rylands and others, which were stated to be worth about £1000, and on his arrival in America, the prisoner distributed the goods in various places. He was traced to Lincoln City, in the State of Nebraska, where he was arrested and brought back to England. Among the witnesses for the prosecution was Mr. Marsh, a gentleman connected with the firm of Rylands and Co., who traced the prisoner to America, and who was instrumental in bringing him back to England. He was cross-examined by the prisoner as to the means he took to get him away out of the United States. It was stated that the offence being under the Bankruptcy Act was one to which the Extradition Treaty in America was not applicable. Mr. Pope: It is suggested, my lord, that this case may become a casus belli. (A laugh.) The Judge: And lead to a war? I hope not. The prisoner said the offence was not within the Extradition Treaty. Those who took him away did not wait for the necessary papers, but smuggled him on board the steamer and brought him to England. He asked the witness if he was the person who was described in the American papers as the "Hon. J. Cox Marsh Foley, ex-M.P. of England"—(laughter)—who had "so cleverly traced the swindler, thief, rogue, and forger"? (Renewed laughter.) Witness said he saw the statement in the newspaper. Prisoner: I was arrested on a fictitious charge in America. That charge was one of forgery, and I was taken on board a steamer by detective officers and brought to England. His Lordship said they were not there to discuss the international consequences of the act of which the prisoner complained. It did not matter what device brought the prisoner there; he was there, and charged with an offence against the English law, and he must be tried. It might be that the prosecution could not have got the prisoner here by any application to the courts in America; but here the prisoner was, and he must be tried. The prisoner: I asked as an American citizen on what charge I was taken to New York. I was hustled on board the steamer by three detectives, assisted by the witness Mr. Foley. His Lordship: They wanted to bring you here, and they succeeded. The prisoner: If they had asked me in a gentlemanly way. (Loud laughter.) Mr. Pope: Probably he would have declined the invitation to come. (Renewed laughter.) The prisoner: I had four lawyers to assist me. Mr. Pope: Perhaps that accounts for his being here. (Loud laughter.) The prisoner: I had four lawyers to get a habeas corpus to set me at liberty, but I would not accept it. The prisoner addressed the jury, and asked his lordship to give him a "little leeway, as he was not accustomed to the usages of the court." He urged that it had been his intention to send money home to England to meet his liabilities, and that he had no intention to defraud his creditors. The prisoner was found guilty, and was sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment with hard labour.

Digitized by Google

CHARGE AGAINST AN "ACCOUNTANT."

On the 11th inst. Frederick Wood Morphet, of No. 35 Moorgate-street, described as "an accountant," appeared on remand in discharge of his bail before Sir James Clarke Lawrence, M.P., to answer the charge of being a fraudulent bailee. Mr. Thorne Cole, instructed by Mr. Pratt (from the office of Messrs. Buchanan and Rogers), prosecuted, and Mr. Blanchard Wontner appeared for the defence. The evidence in this case showed that about the middle of October, 1874, Mr. Henry Frederick Saunders, a tailor, carrying on business at No. 118 High-street, Stoke-Newington, was in difficulties, and he applied to the defendant, who carries on business in Moorgate-street. Mr. Saunders gave him a list of his creditors, and amongst them a debt due to Messrs. Edmonds and Son, of £6 17s. 4d., and the defendant told him that he had better pay that sum in full, as the debt was so recently contracted it would bring him under the penal clauses of the Bankruptcy Court. Mrs. Saunders went to her brother, Mr. Dixon, of Southampton, and a few days afterwards he sent a post-office order to the defendant, with instructions to pay Messrs. Edmonds and Son. The defendant acknowledged the receipt of the order, and promised to pay it. It was, however, not paid, and in October, 1875, Messrs. Edmonds sued Mr. Saunders in the Shoreditch County Court and recovered a verdict, Saunders being ordered to pay £2 a month. Mrs. Saunders took the summons to the defendant, and asked him what he had to say to Edmonds' account not having been paid, and he replied that it was not paid, but that he would pay the £2 a month, but he would not pay the costs. Steps were then taken to prosecute the defendant as a fraudulent bailee. The defendant himself failed in the beginning of this year, owing both Mr. Saunders and Mr. Dixon money. Besides the amounts referred to, Mr. Dixon gave the defendant £10 10s. to pay the composition which Saunders's creditors had agreed to accept, but the Registrar refused to register the resolutions of the creditors, and the composition had not been paid, nor had the money been returned. In April last Mr. Dixon pressed the defendant for the return of that money, and also for payment of £6 on a dishonoured bill, with noting and interest amounting together to £17 6s. 6d., but as he had not the money he offered Mr. Dixon as security the duplicate of a watch and chain, which was pledged for £15, but which was worth £50. For that duplicate Mr. Dixon gave a receipt, as he alleged, for those sums, but as the defendant alleged as security for the £10 composition and Messrs. Edmonds' account, £6 17s. 4d. The receipt was produced, and Mr. Dixon now stated that it was not the one he signed, or if it was, the words in brackets (Edmonds and Co.'s claim, £6 17s. 4d., and composition £10) had been inserted after it was signed.—Mrs. Saunders also gave similar evidence, and they both stated that the receipt Mr. Dixon signed was written on blue paper and not on white, as that produced was written. A great deal of evidence was gone into as to whether the signature was of was not Dixon's, and whether if it were Dixon's the words in brackets had been added after it was signed. Mr. Wontner contended that if that receipt was a genuine one there was an end of the case, as Dixon had made a debt of the money. Sir James Clarke Lawrence adjourned the case, but admitted the defendant to bail in one surety in £100 and his own recognisances in £200.

On the 17th inst., the defendant appeared again on remand, in discharge of his bail, before Sir James Clarke Lawrence, M.P., to answer the charge of being a fraudulent bailee. Mr. Thorne Cole, instructed by Mr. Pratt, from the office of Messrs. Buchanan and Rogers, prosecuted; and Mr. Blanchard Wontner appeared for the defendant.

The evidence previously given having been read over and the depositions signed, the cross-examination of

Mr. Saunders was continued.—He had made clothes for the defendant to the value of £15, of which he had paid £6, and for the balance he gave two bills, one for £6, and one for £3 odd. He got a notice from the Bankruptcy Court informing him of the defendant's bankruptcy. He did not know that the defendant had scheduled him as a creditor for £10. He had not offered to compromise the matter since these proceedings. He wrote a letter to the defendant on the 13th of November, threatening to take criminal proceedings under the Fraudulent Bailee Act, unless he paid the money to Messrs. Edmonds, and the costs he had been put to, amounting altogether to about £12 odd. He had filed three petitions for liquidation, one of which was refused registration. The last one was on Nov. 4. The first petition he filed he paid 6s. 8d. in the pound. The second one, in which Mr. Morphet was concerned, he offered to pay 1s. in the pound, and it was agreed to be taken, but the registrar refused to register the resolution of the creditors. Mr. Dixon, his brother-in-law, was a creditor, and had a bill of sale on his furniture. He believed Mr. Dixon gave up his bill of sale and proved as an ordinary creditor. He had made no proposition to pay under the present petition, for the first meeting of creditors had not been held. Mr. Dixon and he were prosecuting in this case, and he found most of the money for it.

Digitized by Google

Mr. Charles Hodson, clerk in the head office of the Money Order Department, London, produced the money order for £6 17s. 4d. sent by Mr. Dixon to Mr. Morphet, to be paid by him to Messrs. Edmonds.

This was the case for the prosecution.

Mr. B. Wontner then addressed the court for the defendant, contending that Mr. Morphet was a gentleman of high character, and had been ten years in the service of the Bankruptcy Court, and had heretofore borne an unblemished character. He admitted that the defendant had received £10 10s. for the composition, and the £6 17s. 4d. for Messrs. Edmonds, and the reason that he held them over was because the registrar refused to register the resolution of the creditors, and there was an appeal against that decision, which would take up some considerable time. The fact was communicated both to Dixon and Saunders, and they were perfectly aware that the money was retained by him for the purpose of paying the composition when it was agreed to by the Bankruptcy Court. The money was certainly mixed up with the defendant's own, but that was not a criminal matter. When the defendant found that he was about to become a bankrupt, he felt that it would not be right to let them suffer for the money they had placed in his hands to meet the claims of the creditors of Saunders, and he gave Mr. Dixon the duplicate of his watch and chain, which were pledged for £15, but which were worth about £30. Mr. Wontner then addressed himself to the question of Mr. Dixon's receipt for that duplicate which Mr. Dixon and Mrs. Saunders declared was a forgery, or if not a forgery, there had been words interpolated, showing that the security was given for £10 10s., money given for the composition, and the money for Edmonds, £6 17s. 4d. Mr. Dixon declared that the security was for the £10 10s., for the composition, £6 for a dishonoured bill, 1s. 6d. for noting, and 15s. for interest, making together £17 6s. 6d. That, Mr. Wontner contended, was not the case, for the defendant had inserted in his schedule in the Bankruptcy Court, where he said he had given the duplicate for the watch as security for £16 17s. 4d., being the amount of the money for the composition, and the £6 17s. 4d. for Messrs. Edmonds' claim, and therefore that could not be an invention, because it was done within a few days after the occurrence. He then referred to the manner in which Mr. Dixon and Mrs. Saunders had given their evidence, and contended that they had spoken incorrectly in all they had said regarding the receipt. If that were genuine, there would be an end of the charge, as it had been made a civil matter. He would call two experts, who would prove that the signature to the receipt was the genuine signature of Mr. Dixon.

Mr. Charles Chabot said he was an expert in hand-writing, and he had not the slightest doubt the signature to the receipt was a genuine one of the writer of certain letters produced (Dixon's).

By Mr. Cole.—He had heard of what Sir James Hannen had said of him and Mr. Netherclift in the case of "Davis v. May," in the Probate Court; and he (Mr. Cole) was examining him from the newspapers, which were altogether wrong.

Sir James C. Lawrence said that his experience was that what appeared in the newspapers was generally wrong.

Mr. Chabot said that what he stated was that he could not recognise the testator's signature to that will.

Mr. Frederick George Netherclift said that the signature "A. M. Dixon" to the receipt was undoubtedly the genuine signature of Mr. Dixon. He wished to say that he believed the signature to the will to be a rank forgery, and he should believe so to the day of his death.

Sir James Clarke Lawrence retired with Mr. Martin, the chief clerk, and on returning into court said he had gone into the matter very carefully, because there was some difficulty in the case, but the main facts were admitted. The post-office order was sent up for a specific purpose, and was received by the defendant. Making all allowance for the defendant's pecuniary difficulties, there was this fact on the evidence—that there was a suppression of the fact that the money had not been paid. The defendant had several interviews with Mr. Edmonds, when he mentioned that he had given the duplicate for the watch and chain as security, and stated that there would be a balance coming to him, and out of that he would pay Messrs. Edmonds' claim. That was inconsistent with the statement that the security was given for Edmonds' debt, for he never once told Mr. Edmonds that he had given security to Dixon for his (Edmonds') debt. With regard to the hand-writing, there were some doubts about that, and the evidence was pretty evenly balanced. Under all the circumstances, it was a case that a jury must decide. He then committed the defendant for trial, but accepted bail in two sureties of £100 each and himself in £200.

LOAN SOCIETIES.—From the annual Parliamentary Return on loan societies just issued, it appears that on the 31st of December last there were in England and Wales 480 societies, of which only seven were in Wales. On that day there were 33,614 members: the amount actually advanced and paid by depositors or shareholders in the year, £199,365; "sums in borrowers' hands on the 31st of December," £407,774; the amount circulated in the year, £636,472. There were 136,427 applications for loans in the period, and 126,886 actual borrowers; the amount paid for forms of applications and inquiry £7,967. As much as £32,920 was paid for interest by borrowers and sureties. The expense of management was £19,661. The net profits, after paying the expense of management, £21,195; loss on the year, £2,316. There were 8,783 summonses issued, and 1,751 distress warrants. The summonses were issued for £19,246; the amount recovered in the year was £15,262. The societies incurred in costs £2,481, and recovered £2,122 costs.

LAW OFFICERS.—"A London Solicitor" complains of what he considers to be a grave omission and defect in the Rules of Court made by the Judges pursuant to the Judicature Act—viz. the silence of the Rules as to the hours during which the offices of the High Court of Justice shall be open. He proceeds to give one or two examples of the anomalies existing in the offices of the one court now in existence: "The old legal terms are abolished by section 26 of the Act of 1873, yet we find the offices of the Queen's Bench Division (except the Judges' Chambers) opening at 11 and closing at 5 o'clock—precisely the same hours as were adopted when 'terms' were in existence. The Common Law Judges' Chambers, on the other hand, have until the last few days been opened from 11 to 3, but a notice has just been issued stating that in future, during the Hilary, Easter, Trinity, and Michaelmas sittings, the Chambers will be opened from 11 to 4, and during vacations from 11 to 3, and during the long vacation from 11 to 2. Why should the hours differ in the same court; in fact in the same division of the court? In the Chancery Division the Record and Writ Clerk's Office opens at 10 and closes at 4; and in the Chancery Judges' Chambers business generally commences at 10.30. On the other hand, many of the Chancery offices adopt shorter hours. This confusion is very inconvenient to solicitors, and occasions much loss of time and trouble. From many years' practical experience, I am convinced that it would be a public boon if all the offices connected with the Supreme Court opened at 11 and closed at 4, except on Saturday, when, like all other Government offices, they should close at 2. Some years ago the Saturday half-holiday movement was so far recognised by the Judges that a rule was made for delivery of pleadings, &c. before 2 o'clock on Saturday, but there the recognition stopped. No effort was made to close the public offices of the Superior Courts at 2 o'clock, and, consequently, thousands of solicitors and clerks have no Saturday half-holiday."

Digitized by Google

CREDITORS' MEETINGS.

Backhouse (Bradford).—At a meeting of creditors in this matter the statement of affairs produced showed total liabilities, £1,510 13s. 6d.; assets, £528 3s. The debtor had no offer of composition to make, and a resolution was unanimously passed liquidating the estate by arrangement, and appointing Mr. W. C. Harvey (Gamble and Harvey) trustee.

Parkfield Iron Company.—At a meeting of the creditors of the Parkfield Iron Company, of Wolverhampton, held on Saturday, it was resolved to wind-up the undertaking. The liabilities amount to £35,539, and the assets to £3.627.

D. Clampett (Manchester).—The creditors of Mr. Daniel Clampett, 1 Cannon-street. Manchester, commission agent, met on the 21st inst., at the offices of Mr. T. E. Jones, solicitor, Princess-street, and resolved to liquidate by arrangement, with power to the trustee to sell the estate to the debtor. Liabilities, £1,907 14s. 4d.; assets, £257 8s. 6d.

J. Turner (Manchester).—A statutory meeting of the creditors of James Turner, of and carrying on business at 155 York-street, and Alexandra Works, Heywood, and 11 Halliwell street, Manchester, paper merchant, was held on the 21st inst., at the offices of Mr. Thomas Chorlton, 32 Brazennose-street, solicitor. The statement of affairs, prepared by the receiver, Mr. John Adam Eastwood, 57 Princess-street, accountant, showed the liabilities £2,508 16s. 3d; assets, £626 1s. 6d. The debtor's offer of 5s., payable in four, eight, and twelve months, last instalment guaranteed, was accepted.

W. G. Trice (Cardiff).—At a meeting of the creditors of William George Trice, held on the 22nd inst., at the offices of Messrs. Barnard, Clarke and Co., No. 3 Lothbury, and whose liabilities were stated to be £4,585 18s. 8d., and the assets £3,811 17s. 1d., it was resolved to wind-up the affairs by liquidation, Mr. Frederick Lucas, of 20 Great Marlborough-street, London, W., and Mr. Frank Morgan, of Cardiff, being appointed the trustees.

FAILURES.

The creditors of J & N. Rix, iron merchants, of London and Shadwell, have resolved to liquidate by arrangement, and have appointed Mr. Robert A. McLean (Messrs. Robert A. McLean and Co.) to be trustee, with a committee of inspection. The liabilities are stated to be over £30,000.

Abel Thewlis and George Thewlis, Meltham, carrying on business as woollen-cloth manufacturers, under the style or firm of "George Thewlis and Sons," filed a petition in the Huddersfield County Court on the 21st, for the liquidation of their affairs by arrangement. Their liabilities are stated to amount to £9,285 7s. 11d.; and the creditors principally reside at Huddersfield, Slaithwaite, Holmfirth, and Meltham. Mr. Martin Kidd, of Holmfirth, is the debtors' solicitor; and Mr. W. Schofield, accountant, is the receiver. The first meeting has been fixed for the 10th January.

Obtaining Credit by False Pretences.—At Bow-street, on Monday, Mr. E. S. Jervis answered to an adjourned summons, before Mr. Vaughan, charging him with having obtained credit by false pretences. Mr. Douglas Straight prosecuted; Mr. George Lewis, jun., defended. Mr. Ernest Robinson, officer of the Court of Bankruptcy, produced various files of the proceedings connected with the bankruptcy of E. S. Jervis. The first petition related to the non-payment of £300, and was adjudicated upon on the 25th of January, 1874. That adjudication was annulled in February, 1874. On the 2nd of July, 1874, there was a second petition by Rodolph Helbronner as to non-payment of a debtor's summons, £261 16s. 2d. for goods sold and delivered, and on the 21st of July, 1874, it was adjudicated upon. The first meeting of creditors was held on the 8th of September, 1874. No statement of affairs was produced or a note made to that effect. The public examination bore date 2nd of November, 1874, when no statement was made. There were two orders of the court that the defendant should file the statement of his affairs, but they were not complied with. No statement of affairs was supplied by the bankrupt; he had filed no accounts at all. There were three other petitions. On the 13th of October, 1875, the order of the court for the present prosecution was made. Cross-examined by Mr. Lewis, witness said that Mr. Knight, as trustee, had examined the defendant as to his accounts. Mr. Jos. John Saffery, public accountant, said he was trustee in the bankruptcy of E. S. Jervis. Claims were put in to the amount of £45,807 18s. against the estate. Witness allowed £37,037 19s. 5d. of these claims as just. The defendant himself admitted £10,885 as just claims. Witness had received £1,486 16s. 4d. as assets. Cross-examined, witness said he was not the first trustee appointed in this case. He was unaware that the purchase-money for Wenroe Castle had been tendered by the defendant. The case was then adjourned.

Winding-up.—A petition for continuing the voluntary winding-up of the Thetis Marine Insurance Company, Limited, subject to the supervision of the High Court of Justice, is to be heard before the Master of the Rolls.

An "Accountant" Charged with Stealing.—At Lambeth police court, on Tuesday, Henry Chandler, 33, described as "an accountant," was charged on remand with stealing a gold watch, value £10, the property of Ann Wiggins, 32 Holyoak-road, Newington Butts, and also with obtaining from her about £50 under false pretences. Mr. Mead, barrister, conducted the prosecution on the part of the Solicitor to the Treasury. The prisoner took apartments at the house of Mrs. Wiggins, a married woman, on the 28th of September last, saying he was an accountant in the service of Messrs. Morrison, solicitors, Chancery-lane. The prosecutrix being on unfriendly terms with her husband, afterwards spoke to the prisoner respecting a separation, and was told that Messrs. Morrison might draw up the deed. The prosecutrix gave him several sums to pay the costs. He said he had passed his examination as a solicitor, and would require £80 to take up his "brief." He showed her what he called his "certificate," which was read in court:—"Oct. 11, 1875. Solicitors' Examination. This is to certify that Henry Chandler proved his examination at the Inner Temple on the 11th of October, 1875. Signed, Mr. Vice-Chancellor Sewell, Mr. John Duarnal, B.C., D.C.; Mr. Thomas Haynes, Q.C.; J. Bennet, Certificate Officer, Inner Temple." To each of the names there was a small red seal, and in one corner a large seal. Mrs. Wiggins admitted that she had for a short time lived with the prisoner as his wife, as he said he would assist her in getting a divorce from her husband. The prisoner had stated that he was employed by the Treasury solicitor, but this was denied. Thomas George Philipps, printer, London-road, said he had printed the certificate produced and some cards for the prisoner. Detective-sergeant Chamberlain proved that the prisoner's name was not on the rolls. Mr. Benwell, from the Treasurer's office, Inner Temple, said no such certificate as the one read had been given. Mrs. Wiggins further stated she advanced £4 18s. for the prisoner to prove the will of a Mrs Redmond at Hammersmith, and he dressed himself in a "solemn manner" when he went to read the will. Chief Inspector Hoskisson deposed that no such person as Mrs. Redmond was to be found. Mr. Pollard asked for a further remand, to bring forward other cases. He had been so much engaged lately in the Wainwright trial, that he had not been able to attend to he matter. Mr. Chance acceded to the request.—[The name Henry Chandler does not appear in the published Lists of Accountants.—Ed. Accountant.]

Digitized by Google

APPOINTMENTS.

[The Editor will be glad to receive early notice of appointment of Liquidators and Auditors for insertion in this Column.]

Mr. John Unwin Wing, of Messrs. Wing, Wing, and Co., accountants, London and Sheffield, has to-day been appointed by the chief clerk official liquidator of the Dunraven Adare Coal and Iron Company, Limited.

Mr. W. C. Harvey (Gamble and Harvey) has been appointed receiver of the estate of W. R. Wright and Sons, late of 8 Tokenhouse-yard, and now of 93 Queen Victoria-street, E.C.; and also of 7 Portland-place, Lower Clapton, china, glass, and earthenware dealers.

Vice-Chancellor Malins has appointed Mr. Edward Hart, accountant, to be the official liquidator of the Liguria Gold Mining Company.

John Pattinson (of the firm of Harry Brett, Milford, Pattinson, and Co), of 150 Leadenhall-street, E. C., and 12 Vigo-street, Regent-street, W., public accountant, has been appointed trustee of the estate of Francis Henry Fearns, of Marlborough Works, Peckham, in the County of Surrey, philosophical instrument maker, a bankrupt. Messrs. Crook and Smith, 173 Fenchurch-street, solicitors to the trustee.

John Pattinson (of the firm of Harry Brett, Milford, Pattinson and Co.), of 150 Leadenhall-street, E.C., and 12 Vigo-street, Regent-street, W., public accountant, has been appointed trustee of the estate of Oliph Leigh Spencer, of 28 Lisle-street, Leicester-square, in the county of Middlesex, merchant, a bankrupt. James Davis, 51A Conduit-street, Bond-street, solicitor to the trustee.

EXTRADITION v. KIDNAPPING.—Under the above title the Liverpool Mercury refers as follows to a case which we report in another column:—"A case was heard at the Liverpool assizes on Saturday which was a curious commentary on the law of extradition. John Harrison Blair, a tradesman, at Manchester, having failed, packed up some of his most valuable effects, and, leaving his creditors in the lurch, made good his escape to the United States. Our extradition treaty with that country does not include the minor offence of which Blair had been guilty, and, therefore, it was reasonable to assume that he had made good his retreat with the spoil. But his creditors were men of resource, and despatched one of the smartest of their number, with detectives at his back, to secure and bring home the man who had used them so badly. Hopeless as their task seemed, they succeeded, and to that extent every honest man will be glad that Blair has received the reward of his misdeeds. But, from another point of view, what have the citizens of the stars and stripes to say about their freedom and independence? When English detectives can drag their victims from the very talons of the eagle itself, there is something wrong. It was said in court, jokingly of course, that this very case would be made a casus belli; but joking apart, the outrage on certain notions is rather marked. It was simply a case of kid napping. The one object of his pursuers was to bag their game; and they do not appear to have stuck at trifles in gaining their end. John Harrison Blair must now have a very poor opinion of the value of the protecting shadow of the eagle's wings; and even American citizens must feel uncomfortable. If an absconding bankrupt could be so neatly trapped, what is to prevent smart men from kidnapping any body they may have a fancy to, and either, after the Grecian fashion, making them pay ransom, or quietly putting them out of the way altogether? Possibly the United States police had an idea of the real state of things, and so winked at the proceeding. It would be too much to believe that so great an outrage on the republic could be perpetrated with impunity."

The receipts on account of revenue from the 1st April, 1875, when there was a balance of £6,265,322, to the 18th inst. were £51,103,300, against £50,039,143 in the corresponding period of the preceding financial year, which began with a balance of £7,442,854. The net expenditure was £51,804,544, against £51,086,463 to the same date in the previous year. The Treasury balances on the 18th inst. amounted to £4,633,519, and at the same date in 1874 to £5,133,295.

THE LEEDS MERCANTILE BANK.—The creditors of the Leeds Mercantile Bank, which failed a month since, agreed on the 23rd inst., after a stormy meeting, to liquidate the estate by arrangement. A dividend of 5s. in the pound is expected. The liabilities amount to £50,000.

BANKERS' CLEARING HOUSE.—The following is the official return of the checks and bills cleared in the Bankers' Clearing house for the week ending Wednesday, December 22:—

Thursday, December 16	£16,881,000
Friday, December 17..............	15,231,000
Saturday, December 18............	18,462,000
Monday, December 20	15,845,000
Tuesday, December 21	15,361,000
Wednesday, December 22	11,984,000
	£93,764,000

The total at the corresponding period of last year was £102,714,000.

ACCOUNTANTS may greatly facilitate their office work, and materially increase their profits, by printing liquidation notices, &c., by Zuccato's Papyrograph, which is used by a large number of London and Provincial Accountants, including John L. Lovering and Co.; Gamble and Harvey; Andrews and Mason; Nicholls and Leatherdale; Slater and Pannell; John Bath and Co.; Sydney Smith, and Co.; Ladbury, Collinson, and Viney; Arthur Barron and Co.; Edmunds, Davis, and Clarke; &c. For 2½d., 500 4to. copies can be taken upon any kind of dry paper, by an office boy in a copying-press at the rate of 10 a minute. For price list and testimonials, apply to WALTER HENRY, Papyrographic Depôt, 409 Strand, W.C.

WANTED AN EXPERIENCED ACCOUNTANT'S CLERK who thoroughly understands the duties of auditing, and the general routine of an Accountant's Office, and is competent to undertake the management of the office. Apply by letter, stating salary and references, to J. YALDEN and Co., 70 Cheapside, E.C.

MONEY to LEND to BORROWERS residing in town or Country, from £50 upwards repayable in one sum, from one to five years, at five per cent. interest on personal security; also on mortgage of freehold or leasehold property from 3 per cent., for a term of years to be agreed upon. No commission.
Apply to R. F. PRESTON, Esq., 120 Southampton-row, London, W.C.

WILLIAMS & STRAHAN,
Legal, Accountancy, & General Printers,
MANUFACTURING STATIONERS, &c
7 LAWRENCE LANE, CHEAPSIDE, LONDON.
Bankruptcy Forms, Statements of Affairs, Dividend Notices, Balance Sheets, &c., printed with despatch.
STEAM PRINTING WORKS, LAMBETH, S.E.

Digitized by Google

"The source of many a writer's woe has been discovered."

PENS! PENS!! PENS!!

"They come as a boon and a blessing to men, The Pickwick, the Owl, and the Waverley Pen."
"The misery of a bad Pen is now a voluntary infliction."

Another blessing to men! The Hindoo Pen. 1,200 Newspapers recommend them. See Graphic, 17th May, 1873.

Sold by every respectable Stationer. Post 1s.1d.

Patentees, MACNIVEN & CAMERON, 23 to 33 Blair-street, Edinburgh.

J. DEFRIES' AND SONS'

CHANDELIERS, IN CRYSTAL, BRONZE, AND ORMOLU.

TABLE GLASS AND CHINA.

Dinner Services, Gilt Pieces, £4 10s.

KEROSENE and MODERATOR LAMPS for INDIA.

Works:—London and Birmingham.

WEDDING AND BIRTHDAY PRESENTS.

NEW DECORATIONS for the DINING TABLE.

FOUNTAINS.

STORER'S Patent Perpetual Perfumed CRYSTAL TABLE FOUNTAIN, for Dining, Hall and Drawing Rooms, in Crystal and Gilt, £2 17s. 6d. to 100 guineas.

FETES AND REJOICINGS.

BALLROOMS and GARDENS, &c., DECORATED and ILLUMINATED for Evening Parties. Tents, Temporary Rooms, and Banqueting Halls erected.

CRYSTAL and BRONZED CHANDELIERS.

TABLE GLASS and CHINA LENT ON HIRE.

J. DEFRIES and SONS, 147, HOUNDSDITCH.

Five minutes' walk from the Bank of England.

RUPTURES—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS is allowed by upwards of 500 Medical Men to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided, a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the manufacturer, Mr. JOHN WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London. Price of a single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., 31s. 6d. Postage Free. Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. An Umbilical Tsusr, 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage free. P.O.O. to be made payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

TRADE MARK.

NEW PATENT ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS, &c. for Varicose Veins, and all cases of Weakness and Swelling of the Legs, Sprains, &c. They are porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and are drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price from 4s. 6d., 7s, 6d., 10s, to 16s each. Postage free.

CHEST EXPANDING BRACES, for both sexes. For gentlemen they are a substitute for the ordinary braces. For children they are invaluable; they prevent stooping and preserve the symmetry of the chest. Prices for children, 5s. 6d. and 7s. 6d. Adults, 10s. 6d., 15s. 6d., and 21s. each. Postage free.—JOHN WHITE, Manufacturer, 228 Piccadilly, London.

EPPS'S COCOA.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—See article in the Civil Service Gazette.

STAR LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY.

48 MOORGATE STREET, LONDON, E.C

DIRECTORS.

CHAIRMAN—

Mr. Alderman McArthur, M.P.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—

William Mewburn, Esq.

H. J. Atkinson, Esq.
Thomas Ball, Esq.
Walter Griffith, Esq.
George M. Kiell, Esq.
George Lidgett, Esq.
Sir Francis Lycett.
William Merry, Esq.
John Napier, Esq.
Jonathan S. Pidgeon, Esq
John Vanner, Esq.
S. D. Waddy, Esq., Q.C., M.P.

Assurance and Annuity Fund	1,216,115	13	5
Annual Income (1874)	223,613	2	0
Bonuses Apportioned	581,774	6	2
Claims Paid	1,140,151	1	8

Copies of the Report, Balance Sheet and Prospectus can be obtained on application to the Head Office.

W. W. BAYNES, Secretary.

THE ONLY AND SPECIAL "MEDAL FOR PROGRESS,"

Was awarded for "Feuerfeste Eisone Schranke und Kunstchlosser Fortschritts," to

HOBBS, HART, & CO.,

AT THE VIENNA UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION.

This Medal is only given to Exhibitors whose New Inventions testify marked Progress.

"FIRE-PROOF SAFES; AND LOCKS AND ENDLESS CHANGE LOCKS AND KEYS,"

Invented especially for Safes and Strong-Room Doors, to frustrate the use of False Keys.

N.B.—The continued security and secrecy of a Lock, fixed on a Safe or Strong-Room Door, depends on the fact that there are no false duplicate keys of that Lock in existence. The object of a Lock is twofold—security against burglars, and secrecy against prying curiosity. A new change in this Lock may at any time be obtained in five minutes by simply filing away the thickness of a hair from one or more of the steps of the Key. The Lock, by a simple movement of the Regulator, is thus made to adapt itself to the NEW KEY, after which no other Key will open the Lock.

The Lock and Key may thus be easily altered into what would be virtually a NEW LOCK and KEY, as often as may be desired, without the aid of a Lockmaker or of any second person, thus frustrating the use of fraudulent copies of the original Key (see the Safe Robbery in Dublin of £630, vide "Times," 12th September, 1875). This Lock affords effectual protection from duplicate or "Master" Keys secretly made in manufactories; very extensive robberies (in one case 13 Safes in one vault) having been effected by this means.

HOBBS, HART & CO.,
LOCK, SAFE, AND STRONG-ROOM DOOR MANUFACTURERS.
76 Cheapside, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

MANSION HOUSE CHAMBERS, 11 QUEEN VICTORIA STREET, LONDON, E.C.

First issue of Capital, £500,000, in Subscriptions of £1 and upwards. No further liability. Open to all. Each cash subscriber is entitled to interest in lieu of dividend, at the rate of £1 10s. per cent. per month, 18 per cent. per annum, which will be paid in Cash.

TRUSTEES.

Lieut.-General J. H. GASCOIGNE, C.B., Ivybridge, Devon.
The Rev. W. F. GOOD, D.D., Newton Abbott, Devon.
H. R. SNELGROVE, Esq., The Vicarage, Exmouth.
HENRY WALKER, Esq., Fowler Height, Blackburn.

ACCOUNTANTS AND AUDITORS.

Messrs. R. W. HUDSWELL AND Co., 23 Martin's Lane, Cannon Street, London, E.C.

MANAGER AND PROPRIETOR. — RICHARD BANNER OAKLEY, F.R.G.S.

Current accounts opened, and 5 per cent. interest allowed on the minimum monthly balances. Cheque Books supplied. The Bank grants credits and issues circular notes for the Continent and America, and transacts every description of sound Financial Business.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street, ISSUES GUARANTEED CHEQUES for any sum not exceeding £20 against cash deposits, without any charge for commission, the penny stamp being the only expense. These are very convenient for persons not having banking accounts, or not wishing to draw small cheques. They are payable on demand at all the Branches of the Co-operative Credit Bank, or can be passed through any bank in ordinary course.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street, is NOW ISSUING PROMISSORY NOTES from £5 upwards, payable three months after date with interest at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum if held to maturity, or payable on demand without interest. These are very useful to persons requiring short investments, and are perfectly negotiable instruments.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The ONLY SAFE and FIRM SYSTEM of BANKING.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The PEOPLE'S BANK, 11 Queen Victoria-street.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—No Promotion Money or Preliminary Expenses.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Managerial Remuneration Dependent on Profits.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Profits on the whole amount of the Liability.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Minimum of Risk, its operations being spread over a variety of subjects.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—No Liability beyond amount of subscription.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—The Secrecy and Despatch of Individual Management.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—A fixed instead of an uncertain Scale of Profits.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Eighteen per Cent. per Annum paid Monthly.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—A constantly accruing Reserve Fund.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Power of Total Withdrawal after six months on Sixty Days' Notice.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street, City.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Book-keeping in the hands of the Subscribers.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Quarterly published Balance-sheet issued and certified by the Subscribers' Accountant.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.—Current Accounts opened and Five per Cent. allowed on the Minimum Monthly Balances.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK. — Furnishes Cheque Books for Customers.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK grants Credits and issues Circular Notes for the Continent and America.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK transacts every description of Sound Financial Business.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK introduces Public Loans.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK promotes Public Companies of a bona-fide character.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK negotiates the Discount of Bills and Mortgages on a Small Commission.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK negotiates Loans on Deposit of Deeds and other valuable Securities.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK assists in the Development of Patents for Useful Inventions.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK undertakes on Commission the Purchase and Sale of Stocks and Shares.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK, Mansion House Chambers, 11 Queen Victoria-street, near the Mansion House.

THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK accepts the Agencies of Foreign and Country Banks and Merchants, and of Foreign Governments.

IF YOU WANT TO HAVE YOUR BUSINESS done Cheaply and Expeditiously, go to the CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

IF YOU WANT TO BE TREATED WITH CIVILITY, lodge your Money with the CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK.

IF YOU WANT THE BEST AND MOST RELIABLE COMMERCIAL INFORMATION OF THE DAY, ask the Manager of THE CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK,
Mansion House Chambers,
11 QUEEN VICTORIA STREET, LONDON.

BRANCHES at Bath, Blackburn, Denbigh, Dundee, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Inverness, Liverpool, Manchester, Warrington, Bristol, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Shields, Woolwich, Sunderland, Bishop Auckland, Exeter, Blyth, Bradford-on-Avon, Newton Abbott, Neath, Newport (Mon.), Middlesborough, Plymouth, South Shields, Worcester, Sheffield, Salisbury, Tow Low, Brompton, Leicester, Moreton-in-the-Marsh, Hull, Norwich, Portsmouth, Easingwold, Birmingham and Greenock.

Digitized by Google

THE METROPOLITAN AND PROVINCIAL
LAND, ESTATE, HOUSE, LICENSED VICTUALLERS' & GENERAL BUSINESS TRANSFER "SYNDICATE" AGENCY,

Registered according to Act of Parliament, Head Offices, No. 3 Craven-street, Charing Cross, W.C. The organisation and working system of the "Syndicate" are;—1st.—The Sale, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Ground of Rents, Freehold and Leasehold Land, Farms, Estates, Houses, Hotels-Public Houses, Inns, Beer Houses, Restaurants, Coffee Houses, Tobacconists, Drapers, and every other description of Business, Furniture, Objects of Art, or Goods of any description by Auction or Private Contracts 2nd.—The letting, or disposing of, as Auctioneers, or Agents, Land-Farms, Estates, Furnished, or Unfurnished Houses Chambers, or Offices under private contract. 3rd.—The Collection of Rents and the recovery of outstanding accounts. 4th.—The Surveys and Valuation of Land, Farms, Estates, and Houses; also Valuations of Furniture, Jewellery, and other Effects, for probate and other purposes. 5th.—The transaction of all other business usually transacted by Auctioneers, Surveyors, Land, House, Estate and Insurance Agents. 6th.—The negociations of partnerships, and from unlimited connection with capitalists, monetary advances on real and personal securities, as well as merchandize, and every other description of property intended forabsolute sale, or otherwise. 7th. Generally the carrying out of all things instdental or conducive to the above objects, and every of them; also the laying out of estates and surveys for delapidations, The "Syndicate" from their extended connection with the Trades' Protection Societies and other sources, undertake expeditiously for Clients and others to ascertain reliably the status of parties, and make inquiries of a private and confidential character. Liberal terms to Accountants in town or country introducing business.

OLD FALCON HOTEL, GRAVESEND.
Proprietor—W. SKILLETER.
Late Chef de Cuisine to His Grace the Duke of Argyll.

Visitors to Gravesend will find every accommodation at the Old Falcon Hotel, East Street. Public and Private Rooms facing the River, directly opposite Tilbury Fort, and with a capital view of the Thames Shipping.

FISH DINNERS AND WHITEBAIT.

BED AND BREAKFAST FOR GENTLEMEN £1 1s. PER WEEK.
And an equally low Tariff for Dejeuners, Dinners, &c.

Five Minutes' walk from North Kent Railway, and Two Minutes from the Piers, and Tilbury and Southend Railway.

RESTAURANT,
13 OXFORD STREET,
Near the corner of Tottenham-court-road.

Known as the BODEGA, now under the new management of Mr. L. BOECKER, late of 13 Idol-lane, City.

Luncheons from the joints, hot or cold, including vegetables and bread, 1s. 3d

Dinners from 12 till 4 o'clock, from the joint, with soup or fish, vegetables, cheese and bread, 2s.

Dinners from 6 till 9 o'clock, from 2s. 6d. to 10s. 6d.

Private Dining Rooms for large and small parties on the Second Floor.

THE BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY'S ANNUAL RECEIPTS EXCEED THREE MILLIONS.

HOW TO PURCHASE A HOUSE FOR TWO GUINEAS PER MONTH
With immediate Possession and no Rent to pay.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO PURCHASE A PLOT OF LAND FOR FIVE SHILLINGS PER MONTH.

With Immediate Possession, either for Building or Gardening purposes.—Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK FREEHOLD LAND SOCIETY, 29 and 30 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane.

HOW TO INVEST YOUR MONEY WITH SAFETY AT £4 PER CENT. INTEREST.

Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BANK. All sums under £50 repayable upon demand. Current Accounts opened similar to ordinary Bankers. Cheque-books supplied. English and Foreign Stocks and Shares purchased and sold, and Advances made thereon.

Office Hours from 10 till 4; on Mondays from 10 till 9, and on Saturdays from 10 till 12 o'clock.

A Pamphlet containing full particulars may be obtained post-free on application.

FRANCIS RAVENSCROFT, Manager.

H. D. RAWLINGS,

PURVEYOR OF MINERAL WATERS TO

H. R. H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.
H. R. H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH.
H. R. H. THE PRINCE CHRISTIAN.
THE LATE EMPEROR NAPOLEON III.

AND THE PRINCIPAL COURTS OF EUROPE.

Gold Medallist of the Societe Nationale Agricole Manufacturiere et Commerciale de Paris.

SODA, BRIGHTON, SELTZER and all other Mineral Waters for HOME CONSUMPTION and EXPORTATION. PRICE LISTS on Application, at the Manufactory, Nassau-street, W.

ALFRED W. GEE,
ADVERTISING AGENT,
62, GRACECHURCH STREET,
LONDON, E.C.

London Gazette Notices, and Advertisements and Announcements of all kinds for English, Colonial, and Foreign Newspapers promptly inserted.

N.B.—In the case of an ordinary Advertisement ordered for insertion in a number of Newspapers, only one MS. copy need be forwarded. Same rates charged as at the Publishing Offices.

Printed and Published for the Proprietor by WILLIAMS & STRAHAN, 7 Lawrence Lane, Cheapside. DECEMBER 25, 1875.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

PERIODICAL

RETURN TO → CIRCULATION DEPARTMENT
202 Main Library 642-3403

LOAN PERIOD 1	2	3
4	5	6

LIBRARY USE

This book is due before closing time on the last date stamped below

DUE AS STAMPED BELOW

LIBRARY USE OCT 7 1977
REC. CIR. OCT 7 '77

FORM NO. DD6A, 8m, 4'77

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, BERKELEY
BERKELEY, CA 94720

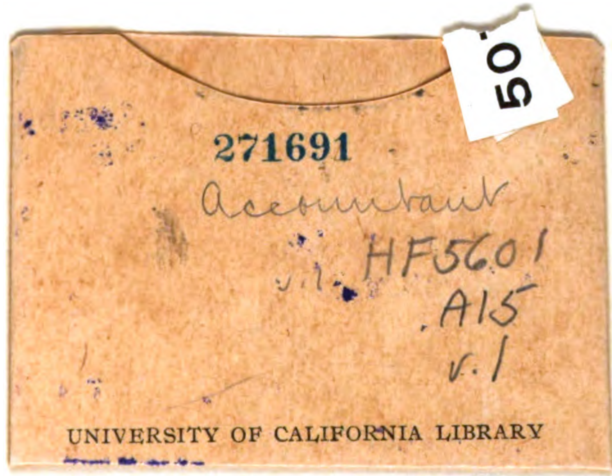
REC'D LD FEB 19'68 -10 AM

LD 21A-50m-11,'62
(D3279s10)476B

General Library
University of California
Berkeley

Digitized by Google

PERIODICAL



Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google