

MAY CAROLS.

122
MAY CAROLS,

AND

HYMNS AND POEMS.

BY

AUBREY DE VERE.

NEW YORK:
LAWRENCE KEHOE,
145 NASSAU STREET.
1866.

PR4542
.M3

Gift.
W. L. Shoemaker
7 S '06

TO
THE VERY REVEREND HENRY EDWARD MANNING

THESE POEMS

ARE AFFECTIONATELY DEDICATED.

INTRODUCTION.

THE wisdom of the Church, which consecrates the fleeting seasons of Time to the interests of Eternity, has dedicated the month of May (the birthday festival, as it were, of Creation) to her who was ever destined in the Divine Counsels to become the Mother of her Creator. It belongs to her, of course, as she is the representative of the Incarnation, and its practical exponent to a world but too apt to forget what it professes to hold. The following Poems, written in her honor, are an attempt to set forth, though but in mere outline, each of them some one of the great Ideas or essential Principles embodied in that all-embracing Mystery. On a topic so comprehensive, converse statements, at one time illustrating the highest excellence compatible with mere creaturely existence, at another, the infinite distance between the chief of creatures and the Creator, may seem, at first sight, and to some eyes, contradictory, although in reality mutually correlative. On an attentive perusal, however, that harmony which exists among the many portions of a single mastering Truth can hardly fail to appear—and with it the scope and aim of this Poem.

With the meditative, descriptive pieces have been interspersed. They are an attempt toward a Christian rendering of external nature. Nature, like Art, needs to be spiritualized, unless it is to remain a fortress in the hands of an adverse Power. The visible world is a passive thing, which ever takes its meaning from something above itself. In Pagan times, it drew its interpretation from Pantheism; and to Pantheism—nay, to that Idolatry which is the popular application of Pantheism—it has still a secret though restrained tendency, not betrayed by literature alone. A World without Divinity, Matter without Soul, is intolerable to the human mind. Yet, on the other hand, there is much in fallen human nature which shrinks from the sublime thought of a Creator, and rests on that of a sheathed Divinity diffused throughout the universe, its life, not its maker. Mere personified elements, the Wood-God and River-Nymph, captivate the fancy and do not overawe the soul. For a bias so seductive, no cure is to be found save in authentic Christianity, the only practical Theism. The whole truth, on the long run, holds its own better than the half truth; and minds repelled by the thought of a God who stands afar off, and created the universe but to abandon it to general laws, fling themselves at the feet of a God made Man. In other words, the Incarnation is the Complement of Creation. In it is revealed the true nature of that link which binds together the visible and invisible worlds. When the "Word was made Flesh," a bridge was thrown across that gulf which had else for ever separated the Finite from the Infinite. The same high Truth which brings home to us the doctrine of a Creation, consecrates that Creation, reconstituting it into an Eden meet for an unfallen Adam and an unfallen Eve; nay, exalting it into a heavenly Jerusalem, the dwelling-place of the Lamb and of the Bride. It does this, in part, through symbols and associations founded on the all-cleansing Blood and the all-sanctifying Spirit—symbols and associations the reverse of those in which an Epicurean mythology took delight, and which the very superficial alone can confound with such. This is perhaps the aspect of Religion least above the level of poetry.

As to its form, the present work belongs to the class of serial poems, a species of composition happily revived in recent times, as by Wordsworth, in his "Ecclesiastical Sketches," and "Sonnets dedicated to Liberty," by Landor, and, with pre-eminent success, by the author of "In Memoriam." It was in common use among our earlier poets, who derived it from Petrarch and the Italians. Most often the interest of such poems was of a personal sort, as in the serial sonnets of Shakespeare, Spenser, Sidney, Drummond, Daniel, and Drayton;

as well as the "Aurora" of Lord Stirling, and the "Astrea" of Sir John Davies. Occasionally, it was of a more abstract character. In both cases, alike, advantage was derived from a method of writing which unites an indefinite degree of continuity with a somewhat lawless variety, and which gains in brevity by the omission of connecting bonds. In Herbert's "Temple," Vaughan's "Silex Scintillans," and the chief poems of Donne and Crashaw, the unity is but that of kindred thoughts, and a common subject, not of a complete design. Habington's "Castara," a noble work too little known, combines a personal with an abstract interest. In it many poems on religious and philosophical subjects are grouped for support round a single centre; that centre being the sustained homage paid by the poet to one not unworthy, apparently, of his reverence and love.

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
PROLOGUE	21

MAY CAROLS.

PART I.

Who feels not, when the spring once more	25
Upon thy face, O God, thy world	27
All but unutterable name	23
Sancta Maria	29
Dei Genitrix	30
Virgo Virginum	31
Ascending from the convent-grates	33
Adolescentulæ amaverunt te nimis	35
Mater Christi	36
Mater Christi	37
Mater Creatoris	38
Mater Salvatoris	39
Mater Dolorosa	40
Mater Dolorosa	41
Mater Admirabilis	42
Mater Amabilis	43
Mater Filii	44
Mater Divinæ Gratiae	45

	PAGE
Mater Divinæ Gratiae	46
When April's sudden sunset cold	47
As children when, with heavy tread	48
Mariæ Cliens	49
Fest. Visitationis	51
Not yet, not yet! the Season sings	52
Fest. Nativitatis B. V. M.	54
The moon, ascending o'er a mass	56
A dream came to me while the night	57
Fest. Purificationis	59
Fest. Epiphaniæ	61
The sunless day is sweeter yet	62
Legenda	64

PART II.

Conservabat in Cōrde	67
Ascensio Domini	68
Ascensio Domini	69
Elias	70
Stronger and steadier every hour	71
Speculum Justitiæ	73
Munera	75
Predestinata	76
Three worlds there are; the first of sense	78
Alas! not only loveliest eyes	80
Idolatria	82
Tota Pulchra	84
Stella Matutina	86
Janua Cœli	88
If sense of man's unworthiness	90
Causa Nostræ Lætitia	92
Stella Maris	93

	PAGE
Blossom for ever, blossoming Rod !	95
Unica	96
Magnificat	98
Mystica	99
Expectatio	101
Still on the gracious work proceeds	103
Turris Eburnea	105
Who doubts that thou art finite? Who	107
They seek not, or amiss they seek	108
A sudden sun-burst in the woods	109
Dominica Pentecostes	110
Dominica Pentecostes	112
Turris Davidica	114
"Tu sola interemisti omnes Hæreses"	115

PART III.

In vain thine altars do they heap	119
Babylon	120
The golden rains are dashed against	121
Sedes Sapientiæ	122
Sedes Sapientiæ	124
Here, in this paradise of light	125
Fest. B. V. M. de Monte Carmelo	127
Come from the midnight mountain tops	129
Advocata Nostra	130
Thronus Trinitatis	131
Cultus Sanctorum	132
Fest. S. S. Trinitatis	134
Where is the crocus now that first	136
"Ad Nives"	137
Fest. Puritatis	139
Cloud-piercing mountains! Chance and Change	141

	PAGE
Fœderis Arca	142
Domus Aurea	144
Respexit Humilitatem	145
Respexit Humilitatem	147
“Sine Labe originali Concepta”	149
“Sine Labe originali Concepta”	151
Brow-bound with myrtle and with gold	153
Corpus Christi	154
Corpus Christi	156
Pleasant the swarm about the bough	158
Sing on, wide winds, your anthems vast	159
Cœli enarrant	160
Caro factus est	162
A woman “clothed with the sun”	164
No ray of all their silken sheen	165
EPILOGUE	169

HYMNS AND POEMS.

Hymn from St. Gertrude	173
Hymn—The Feast of St. Peter’s Chair at Antioch	176
Hymn—The Feast of St. John the Baptist	180
Hymn of Praise to God	183
Hymn—The Feast of St. John the Evangelist	187
Hymn—Translation of the “Stabat Mater”	190
Hymn on the Divine Humanity of Christ	193
Maunday Thursday	196
An Ancient Legend and its Answer	198
Legenda Aurea	199
Impenitence	200
Penance	201

	PAGE
The Angel of the Way	203
Questionings	204
Trial	205
The kindly Transcience	206
Festum Maternitatis	207
Mater Christi	209
In hora Mortis	210
The Cavil	211
The Veil	212
The Letter and the Spirit	214
“ In Electis meis mitte Radices”	216
Auxilium Christianorum	217
The First Dolour	218
The Second Dolour	219
The Third Dolour	221
The Fourth Dolour	223
The Fifth Dolour	225
The Sixth Dolour	227
The Seventh Dolour	228
The True Humanity	229

PROLOGUE.

PROLOGUE.

THAT sun-eyed Power which stands sublime
Upon the rock that crowns our globe,
Her feet on all the spoils of time,
With light eternal on her robe,

She, sovereign of the orb she guides,
On Truth's broad sun may root a gaze
That deepens, onward as she rides,
And shrinks not from the fontal blaze:

But they—her daughter Arts—must hide
Within the cleft, content to see
Dim skirts of glory waving wide,
And steps of parting Deity.

'Tis theirs to watch Religion break
In types from Nature's frown or smile,
The legend rise from out the lake,
The relic consecrate the isle.

'Tis theirs to adumbrate and suggest ;
To point toward founts of buried lore,
Leaving, in reverence, unexpressed
What Man must know not, yet adore.

For where her court true Wisdom keeps,
'Mid loftier handmaids, one there stands
Dark as the midnight's starry deeps,
A Slave, gem-crowned, from Nubia's sands.

O thou whose light is in thy heart
Love-taught Submission ! without thee
Science may soar awhile ; but Art
Drifts barren o'er a shoreless sea.

MAY CAROLS.

PART I.

MAY CAROLS.

PART I.

I.

Who feels not, when the Spring once more,
Stepping o'er Winter's grave forlorn
With winged feet, retreads the shore
Of widowed Earth, his bosom burn?

As ordered flower succeeds to flower,
And May the ladder of her sweets
Ascends, advancing hour by hour
From scale to scale, what heart but beats?

Some Presence veiled, in fields and groves,
That mingles rapture with remorse;—
Some buried joy beside us moves,
And thrills the soul with such discourse

As they, perchance, that wondering pair
Who to Emmaus bent their way,
Hearing, heard not. Like them our prayer
We make:-- "The night is near us . . . Stay!"

With Paschal chants the churches ring;
Their echoes strike along the tombs;
The birds their Hallelujahs sing;
Each flower with floral incense fumes.

Our long-lost Eden seems restored;
As on we move with tearful eyes
We feel through all the illumined sward
Some upward-working Paradise.

II.

UPON Thy face, O God, Thy world
Looks ever up in love and awe;
Thy stars, in circles onward hurled,
Still weave the sacred chain of law.

In alternating antiphons
Stream sings to stream and sea to sea;
And moons that set and sinking suns
Obeisance make, O God, to Thee.

The swallow, winter's rage o'erblown,
Again, on warm May breezes borne,
Revisiteth her haunts well-known;
The lark is faithful to the morn.

The whirlwind, missioned with its wings
To drown the fleet and fell the tower,
Obeys thee as the bird that sings
Her love-chant in a fleeting shower.

Amid an ordered universe
Man's spirit only dares rebel :—
With light, O God, its darkness pierce !
With love its raging chaos quell !

III.

ALL but unutterable Name !

Adorable, yet awful, sound !

Thee can the sinful nations frame

Save with their foreheads to the ground ?

Soul-searching and all-cleansing Fire !

To see Thy countenance were to die :

Yet how beyond the bound retire

Of Thy serene immensity ?

Thou mov'st beside us, if the spot

We change — a noteless, wandering tribe :

The orbits of our life and thought

In Thee their little arcs describe.

In the dead calm, at cool of day,

We hear Thy voice, and turn, and flee :—

Thy love outstrips us on our way :

From Thee, O God, we fly — to Thee.

SANCTA MARIA.

IV.

MARY! To thee the humble cry.

What seek they? Gifts to Pride unknown.

They seek thy help—to pass thee by:—

They murmur, “Show us but thy Son.”

The childlike heart shall enter in;

The virgin soul its God shall see:—

Mother, and maiden pure from sin,

Be thou the guide: the Way is He.

The mystery high of God made Man

Through thee to man is easier made:

Pronounce the consonant who can

Without the softer vowel's aid!

DEI GENITRIX.

v.

I SEE Him: on thy lap He lies
 'Mid that Judæan stable's gloom:
 O sweet, O awful Sacrifice!
 He smiles in sleep, yet knows His doom.

Thou gav'st Him life! But was not this
 That life which knows no parting breath?
 Unmeasured life? unwaning bliss?
 Dread Priestess, lo! thou gav'st Him death!

Beneath the tree thy mother stood:
 Beneath the cross thou too shalt stand:—
 O Tree of Life! O bleeding Rood!
 Thy shadow stretches far its hand.

That God who made the sun and moon
 In swaddling bands lies dumb and bound!—
 Love's Captive! darker prison soon
 Awaits Thee in the garden ground.

He wakens. Paradise looks forth
 Beyond the portals of the grave.
 Life, life thou gavest! life to Earth,
 Not Him. Thine Infant dies to save.

VIRGO VIRGINUM.

VI.

WHEN from their lurking place the Voice
Of God dragged forth that fallen pair,
Still seemed the garden to rejoice;
The sinless Eden still was fair.

They, they alone, whose light of grace
But late made Paradise look dim,
Stood now, a blot upon its face,
Before their God; nor gazed on Him.

They glanced not up; or they had seen
In that severe, death-dooming Eye
Unutterable depths serene
Of sadly-piercing sympathy.

Not them alone that Eye beheld,
But, by their side, that other Twain,
In whom the race whose doom was knelled
Once more should rise; once more should reign.

It saw that Infant crowned with blood;—
And her from whose predestined breast
That Infant ruled the worlds. She stood,
Her foot upon the serpent's crest!

Voice of primeval prophecy!
She who makes glad whatever heart
Adores her Son and Saviour, she
In thee, that hour, possessed a part!

VII.

ASCENDING from the convent-grates,
The children mount the woodland vale.
'Tis May-Day Eve; and Hesper waits
To light them, while the western gale

Blows softly on their bannered line:
And, lo! down all the mountain stairs
The shepherd children come to join
The convent children at their prayers.

They meet before Our Lady's fane:
On yonder central rock it stands,
Uplifting, ne'er invoked in vain,
That cross which blesses all the lands.

Before the porch the flowers are flung;
The lamp hangs glittering 'neath the Rood;
The "Maris Stella" hymn is sung;
Their chant each morn to be renewed.

Ah! if a secular muse might dare,
Far off, the children's song to catch;
To echo back, or burthen bear!—
As fitly might she hope to match

The linnet's note as theirs, 'tis true :

Yet, now and then, that borrowed tone,

Like sunbeams flashed on pine or yew,

Might shoot a sweetness through her own !

ADOLESCENTULÆ AMAVERUNT TE NIMIS.

VIII.

“BEHOLD! the wintry rains are past;
 The airs of midnight hurt no more:
 The young maids love thee. Come at last:
 Thou lingerest at the garden-door.

“Blow over all the garden; blow,
 Thou wind that breathest of the south,
 Through all the alleys winding low,
 With dewy wing and honeyed mouth.

“But wheresoe'er thou wanderest, shape
 Thy music ever to one Name:—
 Thou, too, clear stream, to cave and cape
 Be sure thou whisper of the same.

“By every isle and bower of musk
 Thy crystal clasps, as on it curls,
 We charge thee, breathe it to the dusk;
 We charge thee, grave it in thy pearls.”

The stream obeyed. That Name he bore
 Far out above the moon-lit tide.
 The breeze obeyed. He breathed it o'er
 The unforgetting pines; and died.

MATER CHRISTI.

IX.

DAILY beneath His mother's eyes
Her Lamb matured His lowliness :
'Twas hers the lovely Sacrifice
With fillet and with flower to dress.

Beside His little cross He knelt :
With human-heavenly lips He prayed :
His Will within her will she felt ;
And yet His Will her will obeyed.

Gethsemané ! when day is done
Thy flowers with falling dew are wet :
Her tears fell never ; for the sun
Those tears that brightened never set.

The house was silent as that shrine
The priest but entered once a year.
There shone His emblem. Light Divine !
Thy presence and Thy power were here !

MATER CHRISTI.

x.

HE willed to lack; He willed to bear;
He willed by suffering to be schooled;
He willed the chains of flesh to wear:
Yet from her arms the worlds He ruled.

As tapers 'mid the noontide glow
With merged yet separate radiance burn,
With human taste and touch, even so,
The things He knew He willed to learn.

He sat beside the lowly door:
His homeless eyes appeared to trace
In evening skies remembered lore,
And shadows of His Father's face.

One only knew Him. She alone
Who nightly to His cradle crept,
And lying like the moonbeam prone,
Worshipped her Maker as He slept.

MATER CREATORIS.

XI.

BUD forth a Saviour, Earth! fulfil
 Thy first of functions, ever new!
 Balm-dropping heaven, for aye distil
 Thy grace like manna or like dew!

“To us, this day, a Child is born.”
 Heaven knows not mere historic facts:—
 Celestial mysteries, night and morn,
 Live on in ever-present Acts.

Calvary's dread Victim in the skies
 On God's great altar rests even now:
 The Pentecostal glory lies
 For ever round the Church's brow.

From Son and Father, He, the Lord
 Of Love and Life, proceeds alway:
 Upon the first creative word
 Creation, trembling, hangs for aye.

Nor less ineffably renewed
 Than when on earth the tie began,
 Is that mysterious Motherhood
 Which re-creates the worlds and man.

MATER SALVATORIS.

XII.

O HEART with His in just accord!
O Soul His echo, tone for tone!
O Spirit that heard, and kept His word!
O Countenance moulded like His own!

Behold, she seemed on Earth to dwell;
But, hid in light, alone she sat
Beneath the Throne ineffable,
Chanting her clear Magnificat.

Fed from the boundless heart of God,
The joy within her rose more high
And all her being overflowed,
Until the awful hour was nigh.

Then, then, there crept her spirit o'er
The shadow of that pain world-wide
Whereof her Son the substance bore:—
Him offering, half in Him she died;

Standing like that strange Moon, whereon
The mask of Earth lies dim and dead,
An orb of glory, shadow-strewn,
Yet girdled with a luminous thread.

MATER DOLOROSA.

XIII.

SHE stood: she sank not. Slowly fell
Adown the Cross the atoning blood.
In agony ineffable
She offered still His own to God.

No pang of His her bosom spared;
She felt in Him its several power.
But she in heart His Priesthood shared:
She offered Sacrifice that hour.

“Behold thy Son!” Ah, last bequest!
It breathed His last farewell! The sword
Predicted pierced that hour her breast.
She stood: she answered not a word.

His own in John He gave. She wore
Thenceforth the Mother-crown of Earth.
O Eve! thy sentence too she bore;
Like thee in sorrow she brought forth.

MATER DOLOROSA.

XIV.

FROM her He passed: yet still with her
The endless thought of Him found rest;
A sad but sacred branch of myrrh
For ever folded in her breast.

A Boreal winter void of light—
So seemed her widowed days forlorn:
She slept; but in her breast all night
Her heart lay waking till the morn.

Sad flowers on Calvary that grew;—
Sad fruits that ripened from the Cross;—
These were the only joys she knew:
Yet all but these she counted loss.

Love strong as Death! She lived through thee
That mystic life whose every breath
From Life's low harpstring amorously
Draws out the sweetened name of Death.

Love stronger far than Death or Life!
Thy martyrdom was o'er at last.
Her eyelids drooped; and without strife
To Him she loved her spirit passed.

MATER ADMIRABILIS.

XV.

O MOTHER-MAID! to none save thee
Belongs in full a Parent's name;
So fruitful thy Virginity,
Thy Motherhood so pure from blame!

All other parents, what are they?
Thy types. In them thou stood'st rehearsed
(As they in bird, and bud, and spray).
Thine Antitype? The Eternal First!

Prime Parent He: and next Him thou!
O'ershadowed by the Father's Might,
Thy "Fiat" was thy bridal vow;
Thine offspring He, the "Light of Light."

Her Son Thou wert: her Son Thou art,
O Christ! Her substance fed Thy growth:—
She shaped Thee in her virgin heart,
Thy Mother and Thy Father both!

MATER AMABILIS.

XVI.

MOTHER of Love! Thy love to Him
Cherub and seraph can but guess:—
A mother sees its image dim
In her own breathless tenderness.

That infant touch none else could feel
Vibrates like light through all her sense:
Far off she hears his cry: her zeal
With lions fights in his defence.

Unmarked his youth goes by: his hair
Still smooths she down, still strokes apart:
The first white thread that meets her there
Glides, like a dagger, through her heart.

Men praise him: on her matron cheek
There dawns once more a maiden red.
Of war, of battle-fields they speak:
She sees once more his father dead.

In sickness—half in sleep—she hears
His foot, ere yet that foot is nigh:
Wakes with a smile; and scarcely fears,
If he but clasp her hand, to die.

MATER FILII.

XVII.

OTHERS, the hours of youth gone by,
A mother's hearth and home forsake;
And, with the need, the filial tie
Relaxes, though it does not break.

But Thou wert born to be a Son.
God's Son in heaven, Thy will was this,
To pass the chain of Sonship on,
And bind in one whatever is.

Thou cam'st the Son of Man to be,
That so Thy brethren too might bear
Adoptive Sonship, and with Thee
Thy Sire's eternal kingdom share.

Transcendently the Son Thou art:
In this mysterious bond entwine,
As in a single, two-celled heart,
Thy natures, human and divine.

MATER DIVINÆ GRATIÆ.

XVIII.

“THEY have no wine.” The tender guest
Was grieved their feast should lack for aught.
He seemed to slight her mute request:
Not less the grace she wished He wrought.

O great in Love! O full of Grace!
That winds in thee, a river broad,
From Christ, with heaven-reflecting face,
Gladdening the City of thy God:—

Be this thy gift: that man henceforth
No more should creep through life content
(Draining the springs impure of earth)
With life's material element.

Let sacraments to sense succeed;
Let nought be winning, nought be good
Which fails of Him to speak, and bleed
Once more with His all-cleansing blood!

MATER DIVINÆ GRATIÆ.

XIX.

THE gifts a mother showers each day
Upon her softly-clamorous brood:
The gifts they value but for play,—
The graver gifts of clothes and food,—

Whence come they but from him who sows
With harder hand, and reaps, the soil;
The merit of his laboring brows,
The guerdon of his manly toil?

From Him the Grace: through her it stands
Adjusted, meted, and applied;
And ever, passing through her hands,
Enriched it seems, and beautified.

Love's mirror doubles Love's caress:
Love's echo to Love's voice is true:—
Their Sire the children love not less
Because they clasp a Mother too.

XX.

WHEN April's sudden sunset cold
Through boughs half-clothed with watery sheen
Bursts on the high, new-cowslipped wold,
And bathes a world half gold half green,

Then shakes the illuminated air
With din of birds; the vales far down
Grow phosphorescent here and there;
Forth flash the turrets of the town;

Along the sky thin vapors scud;
Bright zephyrs curl the choral main;
The wild ebullience of the blood
Rings joy-bells in the heart and brain:

Yet in that music discords mix;
The unbalanced lights like meteors play;
And, tired of splendors that perplex,
The dazzled spirit sighs for May.

XXI.

As children when, with heavy tread,
Men sad of face, unseen before,
Have borne away their mother dead—
So stand the nations thine no more.

From room to room those children roam,
Heart-stricken by the unwonted black:
Their house no longer seems their home:
They search; yet know not what they lack.

Years pass: Self-Will and Passion strike
Their roots more deeply day by day;
Old servants weep; and "how unlike"
Is all the tender neighbors say.

And yet at moments, like a dream,
A mother's image o'er them flits:
Like hers their eyes a moment beam;
The voice grows soft; the brow unknits.

Such, Mary, are the realms once thine,
That know no more thy golden reign.
Hold forth from heaven thy Babe divine!
O make thine orphans thine again!

MARIÆ CLIENS.

XXII.

A LITTLE longer on the earth
That aged creature's eyes repose
(Though half their light and all their mirth
Are gone); and then for ever close.

She thinks that something done long since Ill pleases God:—or why should He
So long delay to take her hence
Who waits His will so lovingly?

Whene'er she hears the church-bells toll
She lifts her head, though not her eyes,
With wrinkled hands, but youthful soul,
Counting her lip-worn rosaries.

And many times the weight of years
Falls from her in her waking dreams:
A child her mother's voice she hears:
To tend her father's steps she seems.

Once more she hears the whispering rains
On flowers and paths her childhood trod ;
And of things present nought remains
Save the abiding sense of God.

Mary! make smooth her downward way!
Not dearer to the young thou art
Than her. Make glad her latest May;
And hold her, dying, on thy heart.

FEST. VISITATIONIS.

XXIII.

THE hilly region crossed with haste,
 Its last dark ridge discerned no more,
 Bright as the bow that spans a waste
 She stood beside her Cousin's door ;

And spake:—that greeting came from God!
 Filled with the Spirit from on high
 Sublime the aged Mother stood,
 And cried aloud in prophecy,—

“Soon as thy voice had touched mine ears
 The child in childless age conceived
 Leaped up for joy! Throughout all years
 Blessed the woman who believed.”

Type of Electing Love! 'tis thine
 To speak God's greeting from the skies!
 Thy voice we hear: thy Babe divine
 At once, like John, we recognize.

Within our hearts the second birth
 Exults, though blind as yet and dumb.
 The child of Grace his hands puts forth
 And prophesies of things to come.

XXIV.

Not yet, not yet! the Season sings
Not of fruition yet, but hope;
Still holds aloft, like balanced wings,
Her scales, and lets not either drop.

The white ash, last year's skeleton,
Still glares, uncheered by leaf or shoot,
'Gainst azure heavens, and joy hath none
In that fresh violet at her foot.

Yet Nature's virginal suspense
Is not forgetfulness nor sloth:
Where'er we wander, soul and sense
Discern a blindly working growth.

Her throne once more the daisy takes,
That white star of our dusky earth;
And the sky-cloistered lark down-shakes
Her passion of seraphic mirth.

'Twixt barren hills and clear cold skies
She weaves, ascending high and higher,
Songs florid as those tracteries
Which took, of old, their name from fire.

Sing! thou that need'st no ardent clime
To sun the sweetness from thy breast;
And teach us those delights sublime
Wherein ascetic spirits rest.

FEST. NATIVITATIS B. V. M.

XXV.

WHEN thou wert born the murmuring world
Rolled on, nor dreamed of things to be,
From joy to sorrow madly whirled;—
Despair disguised in revelry.

A princess thou of David's line;
The mother of the Prince of Peace;
That hour no royal pomps were thine:
The earth alone her boon increase

Before thee poured. September rolled
Down all the vine-clad Syrian slopes
Her breadths of purple and of gold;
And birds sang loud from olive tops.

Perhaps old foes, they knew not why,
Relented. From a fount long sealed
Tears rose, perhaps, to Pity's eye:
Love-harvests crowned the barren field.

The respirations of the year,
At least, grew soft. O'er valleys wide
Pine-roughened crags again shone clear;
And the great Temple, far descried,

To watchers, watching long in vain,
To patriots grey, in bondage nursed,
Flashed back their hope—"The Second Fane
In glory shall surpass the First!"

XXVI.

THE moon, ascending o'er a mass
Of tangled yew and sable pine,
What sees she in yon watery glass?
A tearful countenance divine.

Far down, the winding hills between,
A sea of vapor bends for miles,
Unmoving. Here and there, dim-seen,
The knolls above it rise like isles.

The tall rock glimmers, spectre-white;
The cedar in its sleep is stirred;
At times the bat divides the night;
At times the far-off flood is heard.

Above, that shining blue!—below,
That shining mist! Oh, not more pure
Midwinter's landscape, robed in snow,
And fringed with frosty garniture.

The fragrance of the advancing year—
That, that assures us it is May.
Ah, tell me! in the heavenlier sphere
Must all of earth have passed away?

XXVII.

A DREAM came to me while the night
Thinned off before the breath of morn,
Which filled my soul with such delight
As hers who clasps a babe new-born.

I saw—in countenance like a child—
(Three years methought were hers, no more)
That maid and mother undefiled
The Saviour of the world who bore.

A nun-like veil was o'er her thrown;
Her locks by fillet-bands made fast,
Swiftly she climbed the steps of stone;—
Into the Temple swiftly passed.

Not once she paused her breath to take;
Not once cast back a homeward look:—
As longs the hart his thirst to slake,
When noontide rages, in the brook,

So longed that child to live for God;
So pined, from earth's enthrallments free,
To bathe her wholly in the flood
Of God's abysmal purity!

Anna and Joachim from far

 Their eyes on that white vision raised :
And when, like caverned foam or star
 Cloud-hid, she vanished, still they gazed.

FEST. PURIFICATIONIS.

XXVIII.

TWELVE years had passed, and, still a child,
In brightness of the unblemished face,
Once more she scaled those steps, and smiled
On Him who slept in her embrace.

As in she passed there fell a calm
Around: each bosom slowly rose
Like the long branches of the palm
When under them the south wind blows.

The scribe forgot his wordy lore;
The chanted psalm was heard far off;
Hushed was the clash of golden ore;
And hushed the Sadducean scoff.

Type of the Christian Church! 'twas thine
To offer, first, to God that hour,
Thy Son—the Sacrifice Divine,
The Church's everlasting dower!

Great Priestess! round that aureoled brow
Which cloud or shadow ne'er had crossed,
Began there not that hour to grow
A milder dawn of Pentecost?

FEST. EPIPHANIÆ.

XXIX.

A VEIL is on the face of Truth :
She prophesies behind a cloud ;
She ministers, in robes of ruth,
Nocturnal rites, and disallowed.

Eleusis hints, but dares not speak ;
The Orphic minstrelsies are dumb ;
Lost are the Sibyl's books, and weak
Earth's olden faith in Him to come.

But ah, but ah, that Orient Star !
On straw-roofed shed and large-eyed kine
It flashes, guiding from afar
The Magians to the Child Divine.

Gold, frankincense, and myrrh they bring—
Love, Worship, Life severe and hard :
Well pleased the symbol gifts the King
Accepts ; and Truth is their reward.

Rejoice, O Sion, for thy night
Is past : the Lord, thy Light, is born.
The Gentiles shall behold thy light ;
The kings walk forward in thy morn.

XXX.

THE sunless day is sweeter yet
Than when the golden sun-showers danced
On bower new-glazed or rivulet;
And Spring her banners first advanced.

By wind unshaken hang in dream
The wind-flowers o'er their dark green lair;
And those thin poppy cups that seem
Not bodied forms, but woven of air.

Nor bird is heard; nor insect flits.
A tear-drop glittering on her cheek,
Composed but shadowed, Nature sits—
Yon primrose not more staid and meek.

The light of pensive hope unquenched
On those pathetic brows and eyes,
She sits, by silver dew-showers drenched,
Through which the chill spring-odors rise.

Was e'er on human countenance shed
So sweet a sadness? Once: no more.
Then when his charge the Patriarch led
Dream-warned to Egypt's distant shore.

Down on her Infant Mary gazed ;

Her face the angels marked with awe ;

Yet 'neath its dimness, undisplaced,

Looked forth that smile the Magians saw.

LEGENDA.

XXXI.

As, flying Herod, southward went
That Child and Mother, unamazed,
Into Egyptian banishment,
The weeders left their work, and gazed.

The bright One spake to them and said,
“When Herod’s messengers demand,
Passed not the Infant, Herod’s dread,—
Passed not the Infant through your land?

“Then shall ye answer make, and say,
Behold, since first the corn was green
No little Infant passed this way;
No little Infant we have seen.”

Earth heard; nor missed the Maid’s intent—
As on the Flower of Eden passed
With Eden swiftness up she sent
A sun-browned harvest ripening fast.

By simplest words and sinless wheat
The messengers rode back beguiled;
And by that truthfulest deceit
Which saved the little new-born Child!

MAY CAROLS.

PART II.

PART II.

CONSERVABAT IN CORDE.

I.

As every change of April sky
Is imaged in a placid brook,
Her meditative memory
Mirrored His every deed and look.

As suns through summer ether rolled
Mature each growth the spring has wrought,
So Love's strong day-star turned to gold
Her harvests of quiescent thought.

Her soul was as a vase, and shone
Translucent to an inner ray;
Her Maker's finger wrote thereon
A mystic Bible new each day.

Deep Heart! In all His sevenfold might
The Paraclete with thee abode;
And, sacramented there in light,
Bore witness of the things of God.

ASCENSIO DOMINI.

II.

REJOICE, O Earth, thy crown is won!

Rejoice, rejoice, ye heavenly host!
 And thou, the Mother of the Son,
 Rejoice the first; rejoice the most!

Who captive led captivity—
 From Hades' void circumference
 Who led the Patriarch Band on high,
 There rules, and sends us graces thence.

Rejoice, glad Earth, o'er winter's grave
 With altars wreathed and clarions blown;
 And thou, the Race Redeemed, outbrave
 The rites of nature with thine own!

Rejoice, O Mary! thou that long
 Didst lean thy breast upon the sword—
 Sad nightingale, the Spirit's song
 That sang'st all night! He reigns, restored!

Rejoice! He goes, the Paraclete
 To send! Rejoice! He reigns on high!
 The sword lies broken at thy feet—
 His triumph is thy victory!

ASCENSIO DOMINI.

III.

I TAKE this reed—I know the hand
That wields it must ere long be dust—
And write, upon the fleeting sand
Each wind can shake, the words, “I trust.”

And if that sand one day was stone
And stood in courses near the sky,
For towers by earthquake overthrown,
Or mouldering piecemeal, what care I?

Things earthly perish: life to death
And death to life in turn succeeds.
The spirit never perisheth:
The chrysalis its Psyche breeds.

True life alone is that which soars
To Him who triumphed o'er the grave:
With Him, on life's eternal shores,
I trust one day a part to have.

Ah, hark! above the springing corn
That chime; in every breeze it swells!
Ye bells that wake the Ascension morn,
Ye give us back our Paschal bells!

ELIAS.

IV.

O THOU that rodest up the skies,
Thy task fulfilled, on steeds of fire,—
That somewhere, sealed from mortal eyes,
Some air immortal dost respire!

Thou that in heavenly beams enshrined,
In quiet lulled of soul and flesh,
With one great thought of God thy mind
Dost everlastingly refresh!

Where art thou? age succeeds to age;
Thou dost not hear their fret and jar:
With thy celestial hermitage
Successive winters wage not war.

Still as a corse with field-flowers strewn
Thou liest; on God thine eyes are bent:
And the fire-breathing stars alone
Look in upon thy cloudy tent.

Behold, there is a debt to pay!
Like Enoch, hid thou art on high:
But both shall back return one day,
To gaze once more on earth, and die.

v.

STRONGER and steadier every hour

The pulses of the season's glee,
As toward her zenith climbs that Power
Which rules the purple revelry.

Trees, that from winter's grey eclipse
Of late but pushed their topmost plume,
Or felt with green-touched finger-tips
For spring, their perfect robes assume.

Like one that reads, not one that spells,
The unvarying rivulet onward runs:
And bird to bird, from leafier cells,
Sends forth more leisurely response.

Through the gorse covert bounds the deer:—
The gorse, whose latest splendors won
Make all the fulgent wolds appear
Bright as the pastures of the sun.

A balmier zephyr curls the wave;
More purple flames o'er ocean dance;
And the white breaker by the cave
Falls with more cadenced resonance;

While vague no more the mountains stand
With quivering line or hazy hue;
But drawn with finer, firmer hand,
And settling into deeper blue.

SPECULUM JUSTITIÆ.

VI.

Not in Himself the Eternal Word
Lay hid upon creation's day:
His Loveliness abroad He poured
On all the worlds; and pours for aye.

Not in Himself the Incarnate Son,
In whom Man's race is born again,
His glory hides. The victory won,
He rose to send His "Gifts on Men."

In sacrament—His dread behests;
In Providence; in granted prayer;
Before the time He manifests
His glory, far as man may bear.

He shines not from a vault of gloom;
The horizon vast His splendor paints:
Both heaven and earth His beams illumine;
His light is glorious in His saints.

He shines upon His Church—that Moon
Who, in the watches of the night,
Transmits to man the entrusted boon;
A sister orb of sacred light.

And thou, pure mirror of His grace!—
As sun reflected in a sea—
So, Mary, feeblest eyes the face
Of Him thou lovest discern in thee.

MUNERA.

VII.

NOT for herself does Mary hold
Among the saints that queenly throne,
Her seat predestined from of old;
But for the brethren of her Son.

Pure thoughts that make to God their quest,
With her find footing o'er the clouds;
Like those sea-crossing birds that rest
A moment on the sighing shrouds.

In her our hearts; no longer nursed
On dust, for spiritual beauty yearn;
From her our instincts, as at first,
An upward gravitation learn.

Her distance makes her not remote:
For in true love's supernal sphere
No more round self the affections float—
More near to God, to man more near.

In her, the weary warfare past,
The port attained, the exile o'er,
We see the Church's barque at last
Close-anchored on the eternal shore!

PREDESTINATA.

VIII.

ETERNAL Beauty, ere the spheres
Had rolled from out the gulfs of night,
Sparkled, through all the unnumbered years,
Before the Eternal Father's sight.

Like objects seen by man in dream,
Or landscape glassed on morning mist,
Before His eyes it hung—a gleam
Flashed from the eternal Thought of Christ.

It stood the Archetype sublime
Of that fair world of finite things
Which, in the bands of Space and Time,
Creation's glittering verge enrings.

Star-like within the depths serene
Of that still vision, Mary, thou
With Him, thy Son, of God wert seen
Millenniums ere the lucid brow

Of Eve o'er Eden founts had bent,—
 Millenniums ere that second Pair
With dust the hopes of man had blent,
 And stained the brightness once so fair.

Elect of Creatures! Man in thee
 Beholds that primal Beauty yet,—
Sees all that Man was formed to be,—
 Sees all that Man can ne'er forget!

IX.

THREE worlds there are:—the first of Sense—
That sensuous earth which round us lies;
The next of Faith's Intelligence;
The third of Glory, in the skies.

The first is palpable, but base;
The second heavenly, but obscure;
The third is star-like in the face—
But ah! remote that world as pure!

Yet, glancing through our misty clime,
Some sparkles from that loftier sphere
Make way to earth:—then most what time
The annual spring-flowers re-appear.

Amid the coarser needs of earth
All shapes of brightness, what are they
But wanderers, exiled from their birth,
Or pledges of a happier day?

Yea, what is Beauty, judged aright,
But some surpassing, transient gleam;
Some smile from heaven, in waves of light,
Rippling o'er life's distempered dream?

Or broken memories of that bliss

Which rushed through first-born Nature's blood

When He who ever was, and is,

Looked down, and saw that all was good?

X.

ALAS! not only loveliest eyes,
And brows with lordliest lustre bright,
But Nature's self—her woods and skies—
The credulous heart can cheat or blight.

And why? Because the sin of man
'Twixt Fair and Good has made divorce;
And stained, since Evil first began,
That stream so heavenly at its source.

O perishable vales and groves!
Your master was not made for you;
Ye are but creatures: human loves
Are to the great Creator due.

And yet, through Nature's symbols dim,
There are with keener sight that pierce
The outward husk, and reach to Him
Whose garment is the universe.

For this to earth the Saviour came
In flesh: in part for this He died;
That man might have, in soul and frame,
No faculty unsanctified.

That Fancy's self—so prompt to lead
Through paths disastrous or defiled—
Upon the Tree of Life might feed;
And Sense with Soul be reconciled.

IDOLATRIA.

XI.

THE fancy of an age gone by,
When Fancy's self to earth declined,
Still thirsting for Divinity,
Yet still, through sense, to Godhead blind.

Poor mimic of that Truth of old,
The patriarchs' hope—a faith revealed—
Compressed its God in mortal mould,
The prisoner of Creation's field.

Nature and Nature's Lord were one!
Then countless gods from cloud and stream
Glanced forth; from sea, and moon, and sun:
So ran the pantheistic dream.

And thus the All-Holy, thus the All-True,
The One Supreme, the Good, the Just,
Like mist was scattered, lost like dew,
And vanished in the wayside dust.

Mary! through thee the idols fell:

When He the nations longed for* came—
True God yet Man—with man to dwell,
The phantoms hid their heads for shame.

His place or thine removed, ere long

The bards would push the sects aside;
And lifted by the might of song
Olympus stand re-edified.

* "The Desire of the Nations."

TOTA PULCHRA.

XII.

A BROKEN gleam on wave and flower—
A music that in utterance dies—
O Poets, and O Men! what more
Is all that Beauty which ye prize?

And ah! how oft Corruption works
Through that brief Beauty's force or wile!
How oft a gloom eternal lurks
Beneath an evanescent smile!

But thou, serene and smiling light
Of every grace redeemed from Sense,
In thee all harmonies unite
That charm a pure Intelligence.

Whatever teaches mind or heart
To God by loveliest types to mount,
Mary, is thine. Of each true Art
The parent art thou, and the fount.

Those pictures, fair as moon or star,
The ages dear to Faith brought forth,
Formed but the illumined calendar
Of her, that Church which knows thy worth.

Not less doth Nature teach through thee
That mystery hid in hues and lines:
Who loves thee not hath lost the key
To all her sanctuaries and shrines.

STELLA MATUTINA.

XIII.

SHINE out, O Star, and sing the praise
Of that unrisen Sun whose glow
Thus feeds thee with thine earlier rays—
The secret of thy song we know.

Thou sing'st that Sun of Righteousness,
Sole light of this benighted globe,
Whose beams, reflected, dressed and dress
His Mother in her shining robe.

Pale Lily, pearled around with dew,
Lift high that heaven-illumined vase,
And sing the glories ever new
Of her, God's chalice, "full of grace."

Cerulean Ocean, fringed with white,
That wear'st her colors evermore,
In all thy pureness, all thy might,
Resound her name from shore to shore.

That fringe of foam, when drops the sun
To-night, a sanguine stain shall wear:—
Thus Mary's heart had strength, alone,
The passion of her Lord to share.

"JANUA CÆLI."

XIV.

THE night through yonder cloudy cleft,
With many a lingering last regard,
Withdraws—but slowly—and hath left
Her mantle on the dewy sward.

The lawns with silver dews are strewn ;
The winds lie hushed in cave and tree ;
Nor stirs a flower, save one alone
That bends beneath the earliest bee.

Peace over all the garden broods ;
Pathetic sweets the thickets throng ;
Like breath the vapor o'er the woods
Ascends—dim woods without a song :

Or hangs, a shining, fleece-like mass
O'er half yon lake that winds afar
Among the forests, still as glass,
The mirror of that Morning Star

Which, halfway wandering from the sky,
Amid the 'rose of morn delays
And (large and less alternately)
Bends down a lustrous, tearful gaze.

Mother and home of spirits blest!
Bright gate of Heaven and golden bower!
Thy best of blessings, love and rest,
Depart not till on earth thou shower!

XV.

IF sense of Man's unworthiness

With Nature's blameless looks at strife,
Should wake with wakening May, and press
New-born contentment out of life:

If thoughts of sable breed and blind

Should stamp upon the springing flower,
Or blacker memories haunt the mind
As ravens haunt the ruined tower:—

O then how sweet in heart to breathe

Those pure Judean gales once more;
From Bethlehem's crib to Nazareth
In heart to tread that Syrian shore!

To watch that star-like Infant bring

To one of soul as clear and white
May-lilies, fresh from Siloa's spring,
Or Passion-flower with May-dews bright!

To follow, earlier yet, the feet

Of her the "hilly land" who trod
With true love's haste, intent to greet
That aged saint beloved of God.

Before her, like a stream let loose,
The long vale's flowerage, winding, ran :
Nature resumed her Eden use ;
And Earth was reconciled with Man.

CAUSA NOSTRÆ LÆTITÆ.

XVI.

WHATE'ER is floral on the earth
 To thee, O Flower, of right belongs;
 Whate'er is musical in mirth,
 Whate'er is jubilant in songs.

Childhood and springtide never cease
 For him thy freshness keeps from stain:
 Dew-drenched for him, like Gideon's fleece,
 The dusty paths of life remain.

Spirit of Brightness and of Bliss!
 Thou threaten'st none! A sinless lure,
 Thy fragrance and thy gladsomeness
 Draw on to Christ; to Christ secure.

Hope, Hope is Strength! That joy of thine
 To us is Glory's earliest ray!
 Through Faith's dim air, O star benign,
 Look down, and light our onward way!

STELLA MARIS.

XVII.

I LEFT at morn that blissful shore
O'er which the fruit-bloom fluttered free;
And sailed the wildering waters o'er,
Till sunset streaked with blood the sea.

My sleep the hoarse sea-thunders broke,
And sudden chill. Their feet foam-hid,
Huge cliffs leaned out, through vapor-smoke,
Like tower, and tomb, and pyramid.

In the black shadow, ghostly white
The breaker raced o'er foaming shoals:
From caverns of eternal night
Came wailings, as of suffering souls.

Sudden, through clearing mists, the star
Of ocean o'er the billow rose:
Down dropped the elemental war;
Tormented chaos found repose.

Star of the ocean! dear art thou,
Ah! not to earth and heaven alone:
The suffering Church, when shines thy brow
Upon her penance, stays her moan.

The Holy Souls draw in their breath;
The sea of anguish rests in peace;
And, from beyond the gates of death,
Up swell the anthems of release.

XVIII.

BLOSSOM for ever, blossoming Rod!

Thou did'st not blossom once to die:
That Life which, issuing forth from God,
Thy life enkindled, runs not dry.

Without a root in sin-stained earth,
'Twas thine to bud Salvation's flower.
No single soul the Church brings forth
But blooms from thee and is thy dower.

Rejoice, O Eve! thy promise waned;
Transgression nipt thy flower with frost:
But, lo! a mother man hath gained
Holier than she in Eden lost.

UNICA.

XIX.

WHILE all the breathless woods aloof
Lie hush'd in noontide's deep repose,
That dove, sun-warmed on yonder roof,
With what a grave content she coos!

One note for her! Deep streams run smooth:
The ecstatic song of transience tells.
O what a depth of loving truth
In thy divine contentment dwells!

All day, with down-dropt lids, I sat
In trance; the present scene foregone.
When Hesper rose, on Ararat,
Methought, not English hills, he shone.

Back to the ark, the waters o'er,
The primal dove pursued her flight:
A branch of that blest tree she bore
Which feeds the Church with holy light.

I heard her rustling through the air
With sliding plume—no sound beside
Save the sea-sobblings everywhere,
And sighs of that subsiding tide.

MAGNIFICAT.

XX.

SHE took the timbrel, as the tide
Rushed, reflux, up the Red Sea shore:
"The Lord hath triumphed," she cried:
Her song rang out above the roar

Of lustral waves that, wall to wall,
Fell back upon the host abhorred:
Above the gloomy watery pall,
As eagles soar, her anthem soared.

Miriam, rejoice! a mightier far
Than thou, one day shall sing with thee!
Who rises, brightening like a star
Above yon bright baptismal sea?

That harp which David touched who rears
Heaven-high above those waters wide?
The Prophet-Queen! Throughout all years
She sings the Triumph of the Bride!

MYSTICA.

XXI.

As pebbles flung for sport, that leap
Along the superficial tide,
But enter not those chambers deep
Wherein the beds of pearl abide;

Such those light minds that, grazing, spurn
The surface text of Sacred Lore,
Yet ne'er its deeper sense discern,
Its halls of mystery ne'er explore.

Ah! not for such the unvalued gems;
The priceless pearls of Truth they miss:
Not theirs the starry diadems
That light God's temple in the abyss!

Ah! not for such to gaze on her
That moves through all that empire pale;
At every shrine doth minister,
Yet never drops her vestal veil.

“The letter kills.” Make pure thy Will;
So shalt thou pierce the Text’s disguise:
Till then, revere the veil that still
Hides truth from truth-affronting eyes.

EXPECTATIO.

XXII.

A SWEET exhaustion seems to hold
In spells of calm the shrouded eve:
The gorse itself a beamless gold
Puts forth:—yet nothing seems to grieve.

The dewy chaplets hang on air;
The willowy fields are silver-grey;
Sad odors wander here and there;—
And yet we feel that it is May.

Relaxed, and with a broken flow,
From dripping bowers low carols swell
In mellower, glassier tones, as though
They mounted through a bubbling well.

The crimson orchis scarce sustains
Upon its drenched and drooping spire
The burden of the warm soft rains;
The purple hills grow nigh and nigher.

Nature, suspending lovely toils,
On expectations lovelier broods,
Listening, with lifted hand, while coils
The flooded rivulet through the woods.

She sees, drawn out in vision clear,
A world with summer radiance drest,
And all the glories of that year
Which sleeps within her virgin breast.

XXIII.

STILL on the gracious work proceeds;—

The good, great tidings preached anew
Yearly to green enfranchised meads,
And fire-topped woodlands flushed with dew

Yon cavern's mouth we scarce can see;

Yon rock in gathering bloom lies meshed;
And all the wood-anatomy
In thickening leaves is over-fleshed.

That hermit oak which frowned so long

Upon the spring with barren spleen,
Yields to the holy Siren's song,
And bends above her goblet green.

Young maples, late with gold embossed,—

Lucidities of sun-pierced limes,
No more surprise us—merged and lost
Like prelude notes in deepening chimes.

Disordered beauties and detached

Demand no more a separate place:
The abrupt, the startling, the unmatched,
Submit to graduated grace;

While upward from the ocean's marge
The year ascends with statelier tread
To where the sun his golden targe
Finds, setting, on yon mountain's head.

TURRIS EBURNEA.

XXIV.

THIS scheme of worlds, which vast we call,
Is only vast compared with man:
Compared with God, the One yet All,
Its greatness dwindles to a span.

A Lily with its isles of buds
Asleep on some unmeasured sea:—
O God, the starry multitudes,
What are they more than this to Thee?

Yet girt by Nature's petty pale
Each tenant holds the place assigned
To each in Being's awful scale:—
The last of creatures leaves behind

The abyss of nothingness: the first
Into the abyss of Godhead peers;
Waiting that vision which shall burst
In glory on the eternal years.

Tower of our Hope! through thee we climb
Finite creation's topmost stair;
Through thee from Sion's height sublime
Towards God we gaze through purer air.

Infinite distance still divides
Created from Creative Power;
But all which intercepts and hides
Lies dwarfed by that surpassing Tower!

XXV.

Who doubts that thou art finite? Who
Is ignorant that from Godhead's height
To what is loftiest here below
The interval is infinite?

O Mary! with that smile thrice-blest
Upon their petulance look down;—
Their dull negation, cold protest—
Thy smile will melt away their frown!

Show them thy Søn! That hour their heart
Will beat and burn with love like thine;
Grow large; and learn from thee that art
Which communes best with things divine.

The man who grasps not what is best
In creaturely existence, he
Is narrowest in the brain; and least
Can grasp the thought of Deity.

XXVI.

THEY seek not! or amiss they seek;—
The cold slight heart and captious brain:—
To Love alone those instincts speak
Whose challenge never yet was vain.

True Gate of Heaven! As light through glass,
So He who never left the sky
To this low earth was pleased to pass
Through thine unstained Virginity.

Summed up in thee our hearts behold
The glory of created things:—
From His, thy Son's, corporeal mould
Looks forth the eternal King of Kings!

XXVII.

A SUDDEN sun-burst in the woods,
But late sad Winter's palace dim!
O'er quickening boughs and bursting buds
Pacific glories shoot and swim.

As when some heart, grief-darkened long,
Conclusive joy by force invades—
So swift the new-born splendors throng;
Such lustre swallows up the shades.

The sun we see not: but his fires
From stem to stem obliquely smite,
Till all the forest aisle respire
The golden-tongued and myriad light.

The caverns blacken as their brows
With floral fire are fringed; but all
Yon sombre vault of meeting boughs
Turns to a golden fleece its pall,

As o'er it breeze-like music rolls.
O Spring, thy limit-line is crossed!
O Earth, some orb of singing Souls
Brings down to thee thy Pentecost!

DOMINICA PENTECOSTES.

XXVIII.

CLEAR as those silver trumps of old
 That woke Judea's jubilee;
 Strong as the breeze of morning, rolled
 O'er answering woodlands from the sea,

That matutinal anthem vast
 Which winds, like sunrise, round the globe,
 Following the sunrise, far and fast,
 And trampling on his fiery robe.

Once more the Pentecostal torch
 Lights on the courses of the year:
 The "upper chamber" of the Church
 Is thrilled once more with joy and fear.

Who lifts her brow from out the dust?
 Who fixes on a world restored
 A gaze like Eve's, but more august?
 Who bends it heaven-ward on her Lord?

It is the Birthday of the Bride.

The new begins; the ancient ends:
From all the gates of Heaven flung wide
The promised Paraclete descends.

He who o'ershadowed Mary once
O'ershades Humanity to-day;
And bids her fruitful prove in sons
Co-heritors with Christ for aye.

DOMINICA PENTECOSTES.

XXIX.

THE Form decreed of tree and flower,
The shape susceptible of life,
Without the infused vivific Power,
Were but a slumber or a strife.

He whom the plastic hand of God
Himself created out of earth
Remained a statue and a clod
Till spirit infused to life gave birth.

So, till that hour, the Church. In Christ
Her awful structure, nerve and bone,
Though built, and shaped, and organized,
Existed but in skeleton;

Till down on that predestined frame,
Complete through all its sacred mould,
The Pentecostal Spirit came,—
The self-same Spirit who of old

Creative o'er the waters moved.

Thenceforth the Church, made One and Whole,
Arose in Him, and lived, and loved—
His Temple she; and He her Soul.

TURRIS DAVIDICA.

XXX.

THE towered City loves thee well,
 Strong Tower of David's House! In thee
 She hails the unvanquished citadel
 That frowns o'er Error's subject sea.

With magic might that Tower repels
 A host that breaks where foe is none,—
 No foe but statued Saints in cells
 High-ranged, and smiling in the sun.

There stands Augustin; Leo there;
 And Bernard, with a maiden face
 Like John's; and, strong at once and fair,
 That Spirit-Pythian, Athanase.

Upon thy star-surrounded height
 God's angel keepeth watch and ward;
 And sunrise flashes thence ere night
 Hath left dark street and dewy sward.

“TU SOLA INTEREMISTI OMNES HÆRESES.”

XXXI.

WHAT tenderest hand uprears on high
 The standard of Incarnate God?
 Successive portents that deny
 Her Son, who tramples? She who trod

On Satan erst with starlike scorn!
 Ah! never Alp looked down through mist
 As she, that whiter star of morn,
 Through every cloud that darkens Christ!

Roll back the centuries:—who were those
 That, age by age, their Lord denied?
 Their seats they set with Mary's foes:—
 They mocked the Mother as the Bride.

Of such was Arius; and of such
 * He whom the Ephesian Sentence felled.
 † Her Title triumphed. At the touch
 Of Truth the insurgent rout was quelled.

* Nestorius.

† Dei-para.

Back, back the hosts of Hell were driven
As forth that sevenfold thunder rolled:—
And in the Church's mystic Heaven
There was great silence as of old.

MAY CAROLS.

PART III.

PART III.

I.

IN vain thine altars do they heap
With blooms of violated May
Who fail the words of Christ to keep ;
Thy Son who love not, nor obey.

Their songs are as a serpent's hiss ;
Their praise a poniard's poisoned edge ;
Their offering taints, like Judas' kiss, .
Thy shrine ; their vows are sacrilege.

Sadly from such thy countenance turns :
Thou canst not stretch thy Babe to such (Albeit for all thy pity yearns)
As greet Him with a leper's touch.

Who loveth thee must love thy Son.
Weak Love grows strong thy smile beneath :
But nothing comes from nothing ; none
Can reap Love's harvest out of Death.

BABYLON.

II.

THE watchman watched along the walls :
And lo! an hour or more ere light
Loud rang his trumpet. From their halls
The revellers rushed into the night.

There hung a terror on the air ;
There moved a terror under ground ;—
The hostile hosts, heard everywhere,
Within, without—were nowhere found.

“The Christians to the lions! Ho!”—
Alas! self-tortured crowds, let be!
Let go your wrath; your fears let go:
Ye gnaw the net, but cannot flee.

Ye drank from out Orestes' cup;
Orestes' Furies drave ye wild.
Who conquers from on high? Look up!
A Woman, holding forth a Child!

III.

THE golden rains are dashed against
Those verdant walls of lime and beech
With which our happy vale is fenced
Against the north; yet cannot reach

The stems that lift yon leafy crest
High up above their dripping screen:
The chestnut fans are downward pressed
On banks of bluebell hid in green.

White vapors float along the glen,
Or rise from every sunny brake;—
A pause amid the gusts—again
The warm shower sings across the lake.

Sing on, all-cordial showers, and bathe
The deepest root of loftiest pine!
The cowslip dimmed, the “primrose rathe”
Refresh; and drench in nectarous wine

Yon fruit-tree copse, all blossomed o'er
With forest-foam and crimson snow—
Behold! above it bursts once more
The world-embracing, heavenly bow!

SEDES SAPIENTIÆ.

IV.

O THAT the wordy war might cease!
Self-sentenced Babel's strife of tongues!
Loud rings the arena. Athletes, peace!
Nor drown the wild-dove's Song of Songs.

Alas, the wanderers feel their loss:
With tears they seek—ah, seldom found—
That peace whose volume is the Cross;
That peace which leaves not holy ground.

Mary, who loves true peace loves thee!
A happy child, not taught of Scribes,
He stands beside the Church's knee;
From her the lore of Christ imbibes.

Hourly he drinks it from her face:
For there his eyes, he knows not how,
The face of Him she loves can trace,
And, crowned with thorns, the sovereign brow.

“Behold! all colors blend in white!
Behold! all Truths have root in Love!”
So sings, half lost in light of light,
Her Song of Songs the mystic Dove.

SEDES SAPIENTIÆ.

v.

“WISDOM hath built herself a House,
And hewn her out her pillars seven.”*
Her wine is mixed. Her guests are those Who share the harvest-home of heaven.

Who guards the gates? The flaming sword
Of Penance. Every way it turns:
But healing from on high is poured
On each that fire seraphic burns.

The fruits upon her table piled
Are gathered from the Tree of Life.
Around are ranged the undefiled,
And those that conquered in the strife.

Who tends the guests? Who smiles away
Sad memories? bids misgiving cease?
A crowned one countenanced like the day—
The Mother of the Prince of Peace.

* Proverbs ix. 1.

VI.

HERE, in this paradise of light,
Superfluous were both tree and grass:
Enough to watch the sunbeams smite
Yon white flower sole in the morass.

From his cold nest the skylark springs;
Sings, pauses, sings; shoots up anew;
Attains his topmost height, and sings
Quiescent in his vault of blue.

With eyes half-closed I watch that lake
Flashed from whose plane the sun-sparks fly,
Like souls new-born that shoot and break
From thy deep sea, Eternity!

Ripplings of sunlight from the wave
Ascend the white rock, high and higher;
Soft gurglings fill the satiate cave;
Soft airs amid the reeds expire.

All round the lone and luminous meer
The dark world stretches, far and free:
That skylark's song alone I hear;
That flashing wave alone I see.

O myriad Earth! Where'er thy Word
Makes way indeed into the soul,
An answering echo there is stirred:—
Of thee the part is as the whole.

FEST. B. V. M. DE MONTE CARMELO.

VII.

CARMEL, with Alp and Apennine,
Low whispers in the wind that blows
Beneath the Eastern stars, ere shine
The lights of morning on their snows.

Of thee, Elias, Carmel speaks,
And that white cloud, so small at first
Thou saw'st approach the mountain peak
To quench a dying nation's thirst.

On Carmel, like a sheathed sword,
Thy monks abode till Jesus came;
On Carmel then they served their Lord -
Then Carmel rang with Mary's name.

Blow over all the garden; blow
O'er all the garden of the West,
Balm-breathing Orient! Whisper low
The secret of thy spicy nest.

“Who from the Desert upward moves
Like cloud of incense onward borne?
Who, moving, rests on Him she loves?
Who mounts from regions of the Morn?”

“Behold! The apple-tree beneath—
There where of old thy Mother fell—
I raised thee up. More strong than Death
Is Love;—more strong than Death or Hell.”*

* Cant. viii. 5.

VIII.

COME from the midnight mountain tops,
The mountains where the panthers play :
Descend ; the veil of darkness drops ;
Come fair and fairer than the day !

Our hearts are wounded with thine eyes :
They character in words of light
Thereon the mystery of the skies :
The "Name o'er every name" they write.

Come from thy Lebanonian peaks
Whose sacerdotal cedars nod
Above the world, when morning breaks—
The Mountain of the House of God.

The land thou lov'st—O well is she !
The ploughers on her back may plough ;
But in her vales upgrows the Tree
Of Life, and binds the bleeding brow.

ADVOCATA NOSTRA.

IX.

I SAW, in visions of the night,
Creation like a sea outspread,
With surf of stars and storm of light
And movements manifold and dread.

Then lo, within a Human Hand
A Sceptre moved that storm above:
Thereon, as on the golden wand
Of kings new-crowned, there sat a Dove.

Beneath her gracious weight inclined
That Sceptre drooped. The waves had rest
And Sceptre, Hand, and Dove were shrined
Within a glassy ocean's breast.

His Will it was that placed her there!
He at whose word the tempests cease
Upon that Sceptre planted fair
That peace-bestowing type of Peace!

THRONUS TRINITATIS.

X.

EACH several Saint the Church reveres,
What is he but an altar whence
Some separate Virtue ministers
To God a separate frankincense?

Each beyond each, not made of hands,
They rise, a ladder angel-trod:
Star-bright the last and loftiest stands—
That altar is the Throne of God.

Lost in the uncreated light
A Form all Human rests thereon:
His shade from that surpassing height
Beyond creation's verge is thrown.

Him "Lord of lords, and King of kings,"
The chorus of all worlds proclaim:—
"He took from her," one angel sings
At intervals, "His Human frame."

CULTUS SANCTORUM.

XI.

HE seemed to linger with them yet:
But late ascended to the skies,
They saw—ah, how could they forget?—
The form they loved, the hands, the eyes.

From anchored boat—in lane or field—
He taught; He blessed, and brake the bread;
The hungry filled; the afflicted healed;
And wept, ere yet he raised, the dead.

But when, like some supreme of hills,
Whose feet shut out its summit's snow,
That, hid no longer, heavenward swells
As further from its base we go,

Abroad His perfect Godhead shone,
Each hour more plainly kenned on high,
And clothed His Manhood with the sun,
And, cleansing, hurt the adoring eye;

Then fixed His Church a deepening gaze
Upon His Saints. With Him they sate,
And, burning in that Godhead's blaze,
They seemed that Manhood to dilate.

His were they: of His likeness each
Had grace some fragment to present,
And nearer brought to mortal reach
Of Him some line or lineament.

FEST. S. S. TRINITATIS.

XII.

FALL back, all worlds, into the abyss,
 That man may contemplate once more
 That which He ever was Who is:—
 The Eternal Essence we adore.

Angelic hierarchies! recede
 Beyond extinct creation's shade!
 What were ye at the first? Decreed:—
 Decreed, not fashioned; thought, not made!

Like wind the untold Millenniums passed.
 Sole-throned He sat; yet not alone:
 Godhead in Godhead still was glassed;—
 The Spirit was breathed from Sire and Son.

Prime Virgin, separate and sealed;
 Nor less of social love the root;
 Dimly in lowliest shapes revealed;
 Entire in every Attribute;—

Thou liv'st in all things, and around;
To Thee external is there nought;
Thou of the boundless art the bound;
And still Creation is Thy Thought.

In vain, O God, our wings we spread;
So distant art Thou—yet so nigh.
Remains but this, when all is said,
For Thee to live; in Thee to die.

XIII.

WHERE is the crocus now, that first,
When earth was dark and heaven was grey,
A prothalamion flash, up-burst?
Ah, then we deemed not of the May!

The clear stream stagnates in its course;
Narcissus droops in pallid gloom;
Far off the hills of golden gorse
A dusk Saturnian face assume.

The seeded dandelion dim
Casts loose its air-globe on the breeze;
Along the grass the swallows skim;
The cattle couch among the trees.

Yet ever lordlier loveliness
Succeeds to that which slips our hold:
The thorn assumes her snowy dress;
Laburnum bowers their robes of gold.

Down waves successive of the year
We drop; but drop once more to rise,
With ampler view, as on we steer,
Of lovelier lights and loftier skies.

"AD NIVES."

XIV.

BEFORE the morn began to break
The bright One bent above that pair
Whose childless vows aspired to take
The mother of their Lord for heir.

'Twas August: even in midnight shade
The roofs were hot, and hot the street:—
"Build me a fane," the vision said,
"Where first your eyes the snow shall meet."*

With snow the Esquiline was strewn
At morn!—Fair Legend! who but thinks
Of thee, when first the breezes blown
From summer Alp to Alp he drinks?

He stands: he hears the torrents dash:
Slowly the vapors break; and lo!
Through chasms of endless azure flash
The peaks of everlasting snow.

* Santa Maria Maggiore, on the Esquiline, at Rome.

He stands; he listens; on his ear
 Swells softly forth some virgin hymn:
The white procession windeth near,
 With glimmering lights in sunshine dim.

Mother of Purity and Peace!

 They sing the Savior's name and thine:—
Clothe them for ever with the fleece
 Unspotted of thy Lamb Divine!

FEST. PURITATIS.

XV.

FAR down the bird may sing of love ;
The honey-bearing blossom blow :
But hail, ye hills that rise above
The limit of perpetual snow !

O Alpine City, with thy walls
Of rock eterne and spires of ice,
Where torrent still to torrent calls,
And precipice to precipice ;—

How like that holier City thou,
The heavenly Salem's earthly porch,
Which rears among the stars her brow,
And plants firm feet on earth—the Church !

“Decaying, ne'er to be decayed,”
Her woods, like thine, renew their youth :
Her streams, in rocky arms embayed,
Are clear as virtue, strong as truth.

At times the lake may burst its dam ;
Black pine and rock the valley strew ;
But o'er the ruin soon the lamb
Its flowery pasture crops anew.

She, too, in regions near the sky
Up-piles her cloistered snows, and thence
Diffuses gales of purity
O'er fields of consecrated sense.

On those still heights a love-light glows
The plains from them alone receive ;—
Not all the Lily ! There thy Rose,
O Mary, triumphs, morn and eve !

XVI.

CLOUD-PIERCING Mountains! Chance and Change
More high than you their thrones advance.
Self-vanquished Nature's rockiest range
Gives way before them like the trance

Of one that wakes. From morn to eve
Through fissured clefts her mists make way;
At Night's cold touch they freeze, and cleave
Her crags; and, with a Titan's sway,

Flake off and peel the rotting rocks,
And heap the glacier tide below
With isles of sand and floating blocks,
As leaves on streams when tempests blow.

Lo, thus the great decree all-just,
O Earth, thy mountains hear; and learn
From fire and frost its import—"Dust
Thou art; and shalt to dust return."

He only is Who ever was;
The All-measuring Mind; the Will Supreme.
Rocks, mountains, worlds, like bubbles pass:
God is; the things not God but seem.

FCÆDERIS ARCA.

XVII.

FROM end to end, O God, Thy Will
With swift yet ordered might doth reach :
Thy purposes their scope fulfil
In sequence, resting each on each.

In Thee is nothing sudden ; nought
From harmony and law that swerves :
The orbits of Thine act and thought
In soft succession wind their curves.

O then with what a gradual care
Must thou have shaped that sacred shrine,
That Ark of grace, ordained to bear
The burthen of the Babe divine !

How many a gift within her breast
Lay stored, for Him a couch to strew !
How many a virtue lined His nest !
How many a grace beside Him grew !

Of love on love what sweet excess!

How deep a faith! a hope how high!—

Mary! on earth of thee we guess;

But we shall see thee when we die!

DOMUS AUREA.

XVIII.

SHE mused upon the Saints of old ;
Their toils, their pains, she longed to share :
Of Him she mused, the Child foretold ;
To Him her hands she stretched in prayer.

No moment passed without its crown ;
And each new grace was used so well
It drew some tenfold talent down,
Some miracle on miracle.

O golden House ! O boundless store
Of wealth by heavenly commerce won !
When God Himself could give no more,
He gave thee all ; He gave His Son !

Blessed the Mother of her Lord !
And yet for this more blessed still,
Because she heard and kept His Word—
High servant of His Sovereign Will !

RESPEXIT HUMILITATEM.

XIX.

Not all thy purity, although
The whitest moon that ever lit
The peaks of Lebanonian snow
Shone dusk and dim compared with it;—

Not that great love of thine, whose beams
Transcended in their virtuous heat
Those suns which melt the ice-bound streams,
And make earth's pulses newly beat:—

It was not these that from the sky
Drew down to thee the Eternal Word:
He looked on thy humility;
He knew thee, "Handmaid of thy Lord."

Let no one claim with thee a part;
Let no one, Mary, name thy name,
While, aping God, upon his heart
Pride sits, a demon robed in flame.

Proud Vices, die! Where Sin has place
Be Sin's familiar self-disgust.
Proud Virtues, doubly die; that Grace
At last may burgeon from your dust.

RESPEXIT HUMILITATEM.

XX.

SUPREME among the things create
Omnipotence revealed below,
More swift than thought, more strong than fate,
Such, such, Humility, art thou!

All strength beside is weakness. Might
Belongs to God: and they alone,
Self-emptied souls and seeming-slight,
Are filled with God and share his throne.

O Mary! strong wert thou and meek;
Thy meekness gave thee strength divine:
Thyself in nothing didst thou seek;
Therefore thy Maker made Him thine.

Through Pride our parents disobeyed;
Rebellious Sense avenged the crime:
The soul, the body's captive made,
Became the branded thrall of time.

With barrenness the earth was cursed ;
Inviolate she brought forth no more
Her fruits, nor freely as at first :—
Thou cam'st, her Eden to restore !

Low breathes the wind upon the string ;
The harp, responsive, sounds in turn :
Thus o'er thy Soul the Spirit's wing
Creative passed ; and Christ was born.

“SINE LABE ORIGINALI CONCEPTA.”

XXI.

MET in a point* the circles twain
Of temporal and eternal things
Embrace, close linked. Redemption's chain
Drops thence to earth its myriad rings.

In either circle, from of old,
That point of meeting stood decreed;—
Twin mysteries cast in one deep mould,
“The Woman,” and “the Woman's seed.”

Mary, long ages ere thy birth
Resplendent with Salvation's Sign,
In thee a stainless hand the earth
Put forth, to meet the Hand Divine!

First trophy of all-conquering Grace,
First victory of that Blood all pure,
Of man's once fair but fallen race
Thou stood'st, the monument secure.

* The Incarnation.

The Word made Flesh! the Way! the Door!
The link that dust with Godhead blends!
Through Him the worlds their God adore:—
Through thee that God to man descends.

“SINE LABE ORIGINALI CONCEPTA.”

XXII.

A SOUL-LIKE sound, subdued yet strong,
A whispered music, mystery-rife,
A sound like Eden airs among
The branches of the Tree of Life—

At first no more than this; at last
The voice of every land and clime,
It swept o'er Earth, a clarion blast:
Earth heard, and shook with joy sublime.

Mary! thy triumph was her own.
In thee she saw her prime restored:
She saw ascend a spotless Throne
For Him, her Saviour, and her Lord.

The Church had spoken. She that dwells
Sun-clad with beatific light,
From Truth's unvanquished citadels,
From Sion's Apostolic height,

Had stretched her sceptred hands, and pressed
The seal of Faith, defined and known,
Upon that Truth till then confessed
By Love's instinctive sense alone.

XXIII.

BROW-BOUND with myrtle and with gold,
Spring, sacred now from blasts and blights,
Lifts in a firm, untrembling hold
Her chalice of fulfilled delights.

Confirmed around her queenly lip
The smile late wavering, on she moves ;
And seems through deepening tides to step
Of steadier joys and larger loves.

The stony Ash itself relents,
Into the blue embrace of May
Sinking, like old impenitents
Heart-touched at last ; and, far away,

The long wave yearns along the coast
With sob suppressed, like that which thrills
(While o'er the altar mounts the Host)
Some chapel on the Irish hills.

CORPUS CHRISTI.

XXIV.

REJOICE, O Mary! and be glad,
Thou Church triumphant here below!
He cometh, in meekest emblems clad;
Himself he cometh to bestow!

That body which thou gav'st, O Earth,
He giveth back—that Flesh, that Blood;
Born of the Altar's mystic birth;
At once thy Worship and thy Food.

He who of old on Calvary bled
On all thine altars lies to-day,
A bloodless Sacrifice, but dread;
The Lamb in heaven adored for aye.

His Godhead on the Cross He veiled;
His Manhood here He veileth too:
But Faith has eagle eyes unscaled;
And Love to Him she loves is true.

“I will not leave you orphans. Lo!
While lasts the world with you am I.”
Saviour! we see Thee not; but know,
With burning hearts, that Thou art nigh!

He comes! Blue Heaven, thine incense breathe
O'er all the consecrated sod;
And thou, O Earth, with flowers enwreath
The steps of thine advancing God!

CORPUS CHRISTI.

XXV.

WHAT music swells on every gale ?
What heavenly Herald rideth past ?
Vale sings to vale, " He comes ; all hail !"
Sea sighs to sea, " He comes at last."

The Earth bursts forth in choral song ;
Aloft her " Lauda Sion " soars ;
Her myrtle boughs at once are flung
Before a thousand Minster doors.

Far on the white processions wind
Through wood and plain and street and court :
The kings and prelates pace behind
The King of kings in seemly sort.

The incense floats on Grecian air ;
Old Carmel echoes back the chant ;
In every breeze the torches flare
That curls the waves of the Levant.

On Ramah's plain—in Bethlehem's bound—

Is heard to-day a gladsome voice:

“Rejoice,” it cries, “the lost is found!

With Mary's joy, O Earth, rejoice!”

XXVI.

PLEASANT the swarm about the bough ;
The meadow-whisper round the woods ;
And for their coolness pleasant now
The murmur of the falling floods.

Pleasant beneath the thorn to lie,
And let a summer fancy loose ;
To hear the cuckoo's double cry ;
To make the noontide sloth's excuse.

Panting, but pleased, the cattle stand
Knee-deep in water-weed and sedge,
And scarcely crop the greener band
Of osiers round the river's edge.

But hark ! Far off the south wind sweeps
The golden-foliaged groves among,
Renewed or lulled, with rests and leaps—
Ah ! how it makes the spirit long

To drop its earthly weight, and drift
Like yon white cloud, on pinions free,
Beyond that mountain's purple rift,
And o'er that scintillating sea !

XXVII.

SING on, wide winds, your anthems vast !

The ear is richer than the eye :

Upon the eye no shape can cast

Such impress of Infinity.

And thou, my soul, thy wings of might

Put forth:—thou, too, one day shalt soar,

And, onward borne in heavenward flight,

The starry universe explore ;

Breasting that breeze which waves the bowers

Of Heaven's bright forest never mute,

Whereof perchance this earth of ours

Is but the feeblest forest-fruit.

“The Spirit bloweth where He wills”—

O Effluence of that Life Divine

Which wakes the Universe, and stills,

In Thy strong refluence make us Thine !

CŒLI ENARRANT.

XXVIII.

SOLE Maker of the Worlds! They lay
A barren blank, a void, a nought,
Beyond the ken of solar ray
Or reach of archangelic thought.

Thou spak'st; and they were made! Forth sprang
From every region of the abyss,
Whose deeps, fire-clov'n, with anthems rang,
The spheres new-born and numberless.

Thou spak'st:—upon the winds were found
The astonished Eagles. Awed and hushed
Subsiding seas revered their bound;
And the strong forests upward rushed.

Before the Vision angels fell,
As though the face of God they saw;
And all the panting miracle
Found rest within the arms of Law.

Perfect, O God, Thy primal plan—
That scheme frost-bound by Adam's sin:
Create, within the heart of Man,
Worlds meet for Thee; and dwell therein.

From Thy bright realm of Sense and Nature,
Which flowers enwreath and stars begem,
Shape Thou Thy Church; the crowned Creature;
The Bride; the New Jerusalem!

CARO FACTUS EST.

XXIX.

WHEN from beneath the Almighty Hand
The suns and systems rushed abroad,
Like coursers which have burst their band,
Or torrents when the ice is thawed ;

When round in luminous orbits flung
The great stars gloried in their might ;
Still, still, a bridgeless gulf there hung
'Twixt Finite things and Infinite.

That crown of light creation wore
Was edged with vast unmeasured black ;
And all of natural good she bore
Confessed her supernatural lack.

For what is Nature at the best ?
An arch suspended in its spring ;
An altar-step without a priest ;
A throne whereon there sits no king.

As one stone-blind that fronts the morn,
The world before her Maker stood,
Uplifting suppliant hands forlorn—
God's creature, yet how far from God!

He came. That world His priestly robe;
The Kingly Pontiff raised on high
The worship of the starry globe:—
The gulf was bridged, and God was nigh.

XXX.

A WOMAN "clothed with the sun,"*
Yet fleeing from the Dragon's rage!—
The strife in Eden-bowers begun
Swells upward to the latest age.

That woman's Son is throned on high;
The angelic hosts before Him bend:
The sceptre of His empery
Subdues the worlds from end to end.

Yet still the sword goes through her heart,
For still on earth His Church survives.
In her that woman holds a part:
In her she suffers, wakes, and strives.

Around her head the stars are set;
A dying moon beneath her wanes:
But he that letteth still must let:
The Power accurst awhile remains.

Break up, strong Earth, thy stony floors,
And snatch to penal caverns dun
That Dragon from the pit that wars
Against the woman and her Son!

* Rev. xii. 1.

XXXI.

No ray of all their silken sheen

The leaves first fledged have lost as yet :
Unfaded, near the advancing queen
Of flowers, abides the violet.

The rose succeeds—her month is come :—

The flower with sacred passion red :
She sings the praise of martyrdom,
And Him for whom His martyrs bled.

The perfect work of May is done :

Hard by a new perfection waits :—
The twain, a sister and a nun,
A moment parley at the grates.

The whiter Spirit turns in peace

To hide her in the cloistral shade :—
'Tis time that you should also cease,
Slight carols in her honor made.

EPILOGUE.

EPILOGUE.

REGENT of Change, thou waning Moon,
Whom they, the sons of night, adore,
Her feet are on thee! Late or soon
Heap up upon the expectant shore

The tides of Man's Intelligence;
Or backward to the blackening deep
Remit them: Knowledge won from Sense
But sleeps to wake, and wakes to sleep.

Where are the hands that reared on high
Heaven-threat'ning Babel? where the might
Of them, that giant progeny,
The Deluge dealt with? Lost in night.

The child who knows his creed doth stretch
A sceptred hand o'er Space, and hold
The end of all those threads that catch
In wisdom's net the starry fold.

The Sabbath comes: the work-days six
Of Time go by; meantime the key,
O salutary crucifix,
Of all the worlds, we clasp in thee.

Truth deeper felt by none than him *
Who at the Alban mountain's foot,
Wandering no more in shadows dim,
Lay down, a lamb-like offering mute.

His mighty lore found rest at last
In Faith, and woke in God. Ah, Friend!
When life which is not Life is past,
Pray that like thine may be my end.

Thy fair large front; thine eyes' grave blue:
Thine English ways so staid and plain;—
Through native rosemaries and rue
Memory creeps back to thee again.

Beside thy dying bed were writ
Some snatches of these random rhymes;
Weak Song, how happy if with it
Thy name should blend in after times.

ROME, April 27, 1857.

* Robert Isaak Wilberforce.

HYMNS AND POEMS.

HYMN FROM ST. GERTRUDE,

In which the Saints are called upon to praise God.

O God, my God! a slender voice from earth
Were weak to sing Thee. May Thy fair, strong sons,
Thronging through heaven, Thine Angels and Thy Saints,
The Hierarchies of Thy predestinate,
In triumph hymn Thee; may their song be mine.

Those Spirits Seven that stand before Thy throne,
And they the fervid hosts Thou sendest forth
Like light o'er all the earth to minister
Thy gifts and graces to the Race Redeemed,
Let them sing loud and let their song be mine.

The Four-and-twenty Elders that adore Thee;
The Patriarchs, and the Prophets, they that cast
Their crowns for ever down before Thy throne;
The Living Creatures Four, shadowed with wings,
That from Thy praises cease not day or night,
Let them sing loud and let their song be mine.

That worshipful and Apostolic Band,
High Puissances of Love, that with the might
Of their strong arms in intercession raised
Sustain (for such Thy Will) Thy sacred Church
While the vain storm of ages round it roars,
Let them sing loud and let their song be mine.

The armies of Thy Martyrs, they whose robes
Are purple ever with Thy Blood, not theirs,
Which makes, through them, all Earth a Calvary,
Let them sing loud and let their song be mine.

The shining Senate of Thy Confessors,
In blest translation from this world of sin
Lifted by Thee, henceforth Thy peace to share,
And reign with Thee in never-waning light,
Let them sing loud and let their song be mine.

Thy Virgin Choir serenely clothed upon
With the snows of incorruption, they whose brows
Flash far the splendors of Thy purity;
Who, up the hills of God ascending ever,
Where'er He goeth follow still the Lamb,
From their glad hearts resounding that new Song,
"Jesus, Thou Spouse of Virgin souls, all hail!"
Let them sing loud and let their song be mine.

May Thine Elect, whom none can know or number,
Thy People from all Nations, give Thee praise,
Thou art their God, and there is none beside :
May all Thy marvellous Works in heaven and earth,
The jubilee re-echo : may Thy Church,
And she that World material, Sisters twain,
Sustain the eternal Psalm antiphonal,
Burn in one Joy, and send Thee back a gleam,
Reflex of that high Glory Increate,
Whereof both flood and torrent-fount art Thou.

HYMN.

The Feast of St. Peter's Chair at Antioch.

I.

AT Antioch first the Name of Christ
 Came down and clothed His Race:
 Enthroned at Antioch Peter reared
 His earlier resting-place.
 O Eastern Church! Imperial Schism
 Swept from thy forehead crown and chrism:
 Loose from the fold thy Cæsars broke:
 Thy penance came—the Moslem yoke!

II.

O Eastern Church, so great of old,
 What art thou at this hour?
 God called thee! why that backward gaze
 Servile to mortal Power?
 Thou stand'st amid the salt sand-waste
 A queenly statue, fire-defaced;
 A Pillar wrecked of sentenced Pride,
 A dead Faith's Image petrified!

III.

Eastward, heaven-warned, the Empire ranged;
 Byzantium ruled, not Rome:
 Westward the Church; the Vatican
 Not Salem was her home.
 Like ships that each the other pass,
 Swift-borne through mist o'er seas of glass,
 Those Spirits of a converse lot
 Each other crossed and answered not.

IV.

Of all those Patriarchal Thrones
 Whereon the Apostles sate
 But Rome survives, the bond and seal
 Of Christ's Episcopate:
 There Peter reigns, and by his side
 That great compeer* who with him died;
 One walked the Gentiles' utmost bound,
 One sate, the Church's centre crowned.

V.

The Alexandrian altar fell,
 Jerusalem, like thine,
 Poor Reliquaries they of Faith
 This hour, no more the Shrine:

* St. Paul.

Chalcedon, Ephesus, and Nice,
The Councils like the Arts of Greece,
Their names are fair in sacred lore;
The spirit of Life is theirs no more.

VI.

Thus in the dust of centuries sleep
The glories once so bright;
Rome, Rome alone, whose vigil lasts
Through all the wondering night,
Still marks with awe and notes with care
The spots where orbs that are not were:
Her Ephemerides retain
Their names and places, not in vain.

VII.

The Pilot of the Barque divine
Still sees, as on he steers,
Sad Antioch's ever-setting star
O'erhang the seas of years;
Sees rather where it shone of old
A radiance posthumous and cold,
A monitory gleam and grand,
Impassive as a dead man's hand.

VIII.

Dread monument! 'Tis thine to lay
That warning Hand and frore
On breasts of panting kings and realms
That kings for Gods adore:
To freeze the Gentile Hope, to bind
The loftier with the lowlier mind,
And with the weight of all the past
Confirm that greatness shaped to last.

HYMN.

The Feast of St. John the Baptist.

TYPE of God's Predestinated,

Ere thy birth regenerated,

Thy Lord, Himself unborn, was thine!

Ere our sunlight yet had crowned thee

The Sun that healeth sought and found thee;

Thy Mother spake and hailed the sign!

Voice of God! the rocks, they fed thee;

Thymy paths the desert spread thee;

By the shoulders and the head

Thou wert loftier than the human;

Among all the sons of woman

None like thee for mien or tread.

Hermit-chief and monk austerest!

Nought thou lovest, nought thou fearest,

Save that Lord and God most High:

The viper generation trembled;

In vain that King his fear dissembled;

Thy words went through him, and thine eye.

A cloistered Virgin in thy rigor,
A giant athlete in thy vigor,
Not in vain didst thou, a child,
At Mary's foot lie down and nestle,
Breast to breast with Jesus wrestle
In the garden or the wild.

Say, what seek ye, crowds forth-fleeting
As though to grace some merry meeting,
A Reed with every wind that moves?
This is not a Reed that shaketh,
But God's Tempest that down breaketh
Towers of Pride and Idol groves,

"Repent, repent!" Around thee gathered
Men in prime, and men time-withered:
About thy steps the children crept:
Unbelief made dumb thy Sire:
Faith bore thy words o'er earth like fire:
The sinner heard thy voice and wept.

Foretold Precursor, Standard-bearer!
As from Michael's sword in terror
At thy voice the demons fled:
Once alone on earth or under,
A peal like thine again shall thunder,
The angelic Trump that wakes the dead.

Thy power, whence came it? From thy meekness!
Like Moses mighty in thy weakness,

Thy strength was God, the dread "I am:"
Thy life was Love: thy lips confessed it
Then when thine eye on Jesus rested,
And thou didst cry, "Behold the Lamb!"

Last of the prophets, last and greatest!
Baptist, the ancient Law that matest
With God's new Law of Grace and Love;
Pray thou that Christ's atoning merit
May cleanse our deeds; His promised Spirit
Baptize our spirits from above.

HYMN OF PRAISE TO GOD.

From St. Gertrude.

HEIGHT inaccessible of Sovran Power;
Unfathomed depth of Wisdom hid and sealed;
Limitless breadth of all-embracing Love;
None but thyself can yield Thee worthy praise:
Thyself alone canst know Thyself. Our Hymns
Are as a little breeze that dies. O then
May Thine eternal Godhead yield Thee praise:
Thy Majesty enthroned and measureless,
May It upon the altar of Itself
Offer the unceasing incense. May the expanse
Of Thy far Wisdom round Creation's shores
Murmur Thy praise. Thy Justice and Thy Might,
And all Thine Attributes unknown or known,
Like heavenly armies may they chaunt Thy name,
They most Thy piercing sweetness, and the voice
Wounding, yet healing, of Thy tender Love!

May all the Names that name Thee, may the might Of'all Thy Titles radiant o'er the gates
 Of that Jerusalem, Thy regal seat,
 Which are as banners blazoning Thee to man;
 May those mute types, revealed or latent yet
 I' the depths of thought, which like to keys unlock
 The secret chambers of Thy Mysteries,
 Bless Thee for ever, give Thee thanks for me,
 Exult in Thee, adore Thee, chaunt the praise
 Of each of Thy compassions, in old time
 Vouchsafed or now or in the years to come,
 Vouchsafed to me Thy least, or him the gréatest,
 Whoe'er he be, of all Thy heavenly Hosts.

May the adored Humanity of Christ
 Praise Thee, my God, for me. May every Act
 And Suffering of His converse here on earth
 Yield Thee a separate incense. Be they thine
 His divine Virtue and the all-wondrous Grace
 That passed miraculous from Him. May His tears
 And those Five Fountains of His Blood all pure,
 Drown my transgressions; may His precious Death
 My lack supply and glorify Thy name.

May that serenest Queen and crowned Creature
 That in the full assembly of Thy saints
 Through her humility is highest throned,
 And nearest to her Son, Mary thrice-blest,

May she, O Thou Creator of all worlds,
For me extol Thee; may the heavenly choirs,
Ten thousand times ten thousand, blissful Souls,
And singing Spirits, hymn Thee. Not alone
Standeth the great Priest in the light eterne:
His own are with Him, what He doth they do;
And, as the Shadow with the Substance moves,
They also lift their hands and chaunt Thy praise.

May our most holy Mother in all lands
The Universal Church exult in Thee,
Praise Thee for me, and sing to Thee. May they
Her Daughters Seven, the all-quickening Sacraments,
Her dread yet gentle Rites with touch air-soft,
Her reverend and decorous ceremonies,
Her Penances, her Vigils, and her prayers,
Her Psalms re-echoed far from peak or isle
Or Minster city-girt, while reigns the sun
At noon, or sink the stars beneath the sea;
May all her Sanctities and holy Woes
Praise Thee, and all her Raptures, their reward,
The still processions of her kingly Thoughts,
The angel-like ascent of Hopes and Vows,
Her sacred Longings, her divine Desires,
And each low sigh breathed from this vale of tears.

May all Thy gifts of Grace on me bestowed,
Though I be dumb, confess thee. May that Love
Which from Eternity its pitying eyes
Reposed on me, a spot amid the void,
And forth from darkness called me; may the hands
Of that strong Providence which shaped my way
Praise Thee. May all my being, all I have
Or am, self-known, or self-unknown, to Thee
Well known, my Maker, sing Thy laud. May all
My Faculties of Body, Mind, and Soul,
My nerves and veins, my sinews and my bones,
Praise Thee; they too, my Memory and my Will,
My Heart with all its groanings, and my Life
Warring to death on Sin which is Thy foe.

HYMN.

The Feast of St. John the Evangelist.

I.

His praise in all the Church is wide:
He listened to the Master's Call:
To-day his seat is set beside
The seats of Peter and of Paul.
His head upon the Saviour's breast
Had leave to lie: and 'neath the Rood,
When thunder-scattered were the rest,
Beside the Mother-Maid he stood.

II.

His name for ever shall endure:
That Mother-Maid his dwelling shared,
And to those eyes by hers made pure
The heaven of heavens their mysteries bared:
The Twelve dread Cæsars slept in dust;
Above their graves he looked, and saw
The War of Ages, and the Just Judging the Tribes of Man with awe.

III.

He opened 'mid the Church of God
 His mouth with wisdom from on high :
 Of him there went a word abroad,
 The rumor he should never die :
 Beside that lake in Galilee
 Christ, holding forth the Keys of Power,
 Thus spake to Peter, "Follow Me;"
 But Peter looked on John that hour.

IV.

Lily impearled and morning-kissed !
 Love-Star of dawn perpetual, John !
 Apostle and Evangelist,
 In whom Belief and Love were one :
 Yet awful 'mid thy sweetness ; firm
 The chaff to winnow from the grain ;
 Heart bleeding with the wounded worm,
 Yet counting tribulation gain.

V.

Seraph of all the Apostles' Band !
 Love's unconsumed, aye-burning Tree
 That light'st far off our desert land,
 This day our Guide and Patron be !

On realms that each the other tear,

On hearts worn out with bitterer strife,
Send down from heaven—such strength hath prayer—

That love which was thine earthly life.

HYMN.

Translation of the "Stabat Mater Dolorosa."

I.

By the Cross of Expiation
 The Mother stood, and kept her station,
 Weeping for her Son and Lord:
 With the nails His Hands were riven;
 Through her heart the sword was driven,
 Simeon's dread, predicted sword.

II.

O that blessed one grief-laden,
 Blessed Mother, blessed Maiden,
 Mother of the all-blessed One!
 O that silent, ceaseless mourning,
 O those dim eyes never turning
 From that wondrous, suffering Son!

III.

Who is he of nature human
 Tearless that could watch that Woman?
 Hear unmoved that Mother's moan?
 Who, unchanged in shape and color,
 Who could mark that Mother's dolour,
 Weeping with her Son alone?

IV.

For His people's sins the All-Holy
There she saw, a victim lowly,
 Bleed in torments, bleed and die;
Saw the Lord's Anointed taken;
Saw her Child in death forsaken;
 Heard His last expiring cry.

V.

Fount of love and sacred sorrow!
Mother, may my spirit borrow
 Sadness from thy holy woe:
May it love—on fire within me—
Christ, my God, till great love win me
 Grace to please Him here below.

VI.

Those Five Wounds of Jesu smitten,
Mother! in my heart be written
 Deeply as in thine they be:
Thou my Saviour's Cross who bearest,
Thou thy Son's Rebuke who sharest,
 Let me share them both with thee.

VII.

In the Passion of my Maker
Be my sinful soul partaker;

Let me weep till death with thee:
 Unto me this boon be given,
 By thy side, like thee bereaven,
 To stand beneath th' atoning Tree.

VIII.

Virgin holiest, Virgin purest,
 Of that anguish thou endurest,
 Make me bear with thee my part:
 Of His Passion bear the token
 In a spirit bowed and broken,
 Bear His Death within my heart.

IX.

May His Wounds both wound and heal me;
 His Blood enkindle, cleanse, anneal me;
 Be His Cross my hope and stay;
 Virgin, when the mountains quiver
 From that flame which burns for ever,
 Shield me on the Judgment Day.

X.

Christ! when He that shaped me calls me,
 When the advancing Death appals me,
 Through her prayer the storm make calm:
 When to dust my dust returneth,
 Save a soul to Thee that yearneth:
 Grant it then the crown and palm.

HYMN ON THE DIVINE HUMANITY OF CHRIST.

From St. Gertrude.

JESUS, Thou Son of God, true God, true Man!
May one voice more, a feeble voice from earth,
Blend with the choirs that Mystery who sing
Highest, that thrilling Influx unrevealed
Of Thy Divinity, which, like a tide
From ocean winding up an inland stream,
Creeps on through Thy Humanity for aye;
Creeps on through that Humanity enthroned
In heaven, transfigured 'mid the eternal light,
High guerdon for the Wounds that yet it bears
Deep-graved; the Wounds that wrought man's peace below.

Jesus, Thou Son of God, true God, true Man!
A voice from earth would join the choirs that sing
That breathless, ravishing, supreme delight,
Springtide of bloom for aye renewed, wherein
The sacred Eyes of Thy Humanity,
That close not, in their venerable trance
Feast on those pastures green and limitless
Irradiate by the Eternal Three in One.

Jesus, Thou Son of God, true God, true Man!
A voice from earth would join the choirs that sing
That quietude and solace high wherein
The sacred Ears of Thy Humanity
(Fruition evermore renewed) are held,
Not by the lute or viol, wind or cord,
But by those dread interior Harmonies
For ever whispering round the abyss of God,
Prime Hymeneal and perpetual psalm—
The concords of the Eternal Three in One.

Jesus, Thou Son of God, true God, true Man!
A voice from earth would join the choirs that sing
The sweet refreshment of Thy heavenly Rest;
That clear, sabbatical, and mystic clime
Whereby Thy deified Humanity,
Its suffering past, is equably embraced,
The embowering sunset of its endless peace,
And the vivific fragrance evermore
Breathed from that underlying Eden vast,
The Bosom of the Eternal Trinity.

Jesus, Thou Son of God, true God, true Man!
Humanity with Godhead crowned, all hail;
In Thy sufficiencies impassible;
With spiritual senses clothed, to earthly pain
Superior, or the attempt of earthly joys!
In place of these one kingly bliss is Thine,

Simple, inviolate, indivisible,
The inflowing of Divinity for aye
Permeant through Thy Humanity as when
All heaven distils itself through dewy woods.
Hail, Son of God, and Mary's Child! Through Thee
Within her luminous Bridal Chamber still
Humanity with God for ever holds
Commerce transcendent. Hail, for ever hail,
Christ, God and Man, that makest all things one!

MAUNDAY THURSDAY.

(The Washing of the Feet.)

ONCE more the Temple-Gates lie open wide:
 Onward, once more,
Advance the Faithful, mounting like a tide
 That climbs the shore.

Naked as Tombs the Altars stand to-day:
 The shrines are bare:
Christ of His raiment was despoiled, and they
 His livery wear.

To-day the mighty and the proud have heard
 The "Mandate New:"
That which He did, their Master, and their Lord,
 This day they do.

To-day the mitred foreheads, and the crowned,
 In meekness bend:
New tasks to-day the sceptred hands have found:
 The Poor they tend.

To-day those feet which tread in lowliest ways,
And follow Christ;
Are by the secular lords of power and praise,
Both washed and kissed.

Hail ordinance sage of hoar antiquity,
Which she retains,
That Church who teaches man how meek should be
The head that reigns.

AN ANCIENT LEGEND AND ITS ANSWER.

[“Through Alexandria there rushed of old a Woman with disordered garb that held high in one hand a Torch, and in the other bore a Jar of Water, and cried aloud, saying, ‘With this Torch I will burn up Heaven, and with this Jar of Water I will quench Hell, that henceforward God may be loved for His own sake alone.’”]

THOU Christian Mœnad, with thy Torch and Jar,
 That wouldst burn Heaven to its remotest star
 And quench all Hell, that thus, beneath—above—
 God might be God alone, and Love but Love,
 Too proud for gifts! dash down that Jar and Torch
 And learn a lowlier wisdom from the Church.
 Know this, that GOD is Heaven: with Him who dwell

Find Love’s Reward perforce: and theirs is Hell
 (Hate’s dread self-prison) who pine in endless night
 From God exiled, or blinded by His light.
 Mœnad! Thy Thyrsus is no Prophet Rod:
 Who cancels Heaven and Hell must cancel God.

LEGENDA AUREA.

SHE lived in woods ; in holy fear
Had bade her Father's Court farewell ;
"Yet ah," she said, "for gold to rear
A convent where I found a cell!"

'Twas May-Day! a Laburnum nigh
With sudden blossoms strewed the mold ;
(The same that tempted bards gone by
To babble of their "shower of gold.")

"Search thou beneath that glittering soil,"
Hope, singing like a throstle, said:
She dug and found a golden spoil
Rich as an Indian river's bed.

What placed it there but love and prayer?
Ere long, they say, her convent bell
Through crimson morning's throbbing air
Sent happy news o'er flood and fell!

IMPENITENCE.

I.

SCARCE marked my youth beside me streamed,
And passed insensibly away :
Upon the bank I slept, and seemed
To rise a man new-born each day.

Forgotten sins were mine no more !
I knew not that the slime and weed
Down-washed on Life's remoter shore
A pestilence at last would breed :

That buried guilt brings darkly forth
A wormy brood ; that unwept crimes,
Though outcast like a spurious birth,
Will haunt our doors in after times !

Round mine they sit from night to morn,
Pale portents of a day gone by ;
And wail "that ever we were born
Who loathe to live and cannot die."

PENANCE.

II.

THE pilgrim risen whilst all is night
Who nears ere morn some sleeping town,
Crossing the dark hill's barrier height
What sees he, gazing dimly down?

A blank, a shade! the fruitful plain
Is lonelier than a barren moor,
Forlornier than a moonless main,
More dolorous than a wreck-strewn shore!

The grace that basked by day, the peace
That smiled in Order's sacred bound,
Halls, hedges, flocks, ancestral trees,
In one funereal gloom are drowned.

A wan light spreads the hills beyond;
A dreary wind goes wailing by;
While, swollen with rains, the sullen pond
Gleams dully as a dead man's eye.

But lo, the sun! with golden rod
The Planet self-eclipsed he greets!
Earth brightens like a wakening God;
Once more her deep heart bounds and beats.

So leaps in life the unburthened breast
When She of Penitents the Queen
Holds out the absolving Keys of Christ,
Her hand puts forth, and says, "Be clean."

THE ANGEL OF THE WAY.

I TOILED along the public path;
Loud rang the booths with knave and clown:
Now laughter peals, now cries of wrath,
Assailed the suburb from the town.

The Circe of the kennel brimmed
Her cup for him that passed. Hard by Sabbathless labor, dust-begrimmed
Alternated the curse and sigh.

“Alas,” I wept, “no God is here!
The World, the Flesh, rule here confest:”
I heard a voice: an Angel near
On sailed; an altar touched his breast.

He placed it by me, and I knelt;
Clamor and shout and dust were gone:
I prayed, and in my prayer I felt
The peace of God, and heard, “walk on.”

QUESTIONINGS.

THROUGH all the house there stirs no sound
Save this low flickering of my fire;
In peaceful chambers all around
The men I love unheard respire.

Beside each bed a Phantom stands;
He waits his time; his name is Death.
On every breast his icy hands
He lays, and sucks each ebbing breath.

Unmoved, yet changing, there they lie,
Drawn downward in a fatal barque
Unconscious t'wards Eternity
Through caves successive of the dark.

O Night, O Dark, O dreadful nurse,
O thoughts we shun, yet cannot scorn;
Each night our death do we rehearse;
Yet meet in smiles each morrow morn.

TRIAL.

(St. Francis de Sales.)

As when for weeks the tempest blinds
Some sea-girt mountain, night and day,
So storms of trial, clouds and winds,
Besieged his soul, till not a ray

Could reach him of that glory streamed
From God upon the new-born world:
An erring star and lost he seemed
Through endless darkness onward hurled.

At last, his large heart breaking, down
He knelt his latest prayer to make,
(True heart that, shrivelling in the frown
Of God, that God would not forsake,)

“If I must lose Thee there beneath,
Lord, let me love Thee till I die!”
It sank—the black cloud’s latest wreath;
And God was his eternally!

THE KINDLY TRANSIENCE.

“LIKE flowers,” they tell us, “Life must fade!”
Ah bright-faced Friend! if flowers must die
Immortal sweets of such are made:
Thus Time bequeaths Eternity.

“Life is a fleeting shade!” What then?
The Substance doth the Shadow cast:
Essential Life, it recks not when,
Shall crown this seeming Life at last.

Thus, while autumnal eddies caught
Dead leaves, and whirled them in the sun,
Half-Truths, deciduous spoils of Thought,
Their clothing from on high put on:

And better far it seemed to plight
To earth a transient troth and trust
Than with corruption wed, and blight
The Spirit's hope with deathless dust.

FESTUM MATERNITATIS.

To lowliest creatures God permits
Maternal Love, an instinct blind
Weakness with help that softly knits,
Benignant Nature's "Law of Kind."

The human mother's happier nest,
The bird's with wing and questing bill,
Are both but Nature's; and the best
That earth can yield is earthly still.

But Mary! heavenly is her Child,
And heavenly her Maternal Love:
To her it comes, the undefiled,
Comes, like her Infant, from above.

From Him, the o'ershadowing Spirit, Him
Alone descends that Love she proves:
No mortal joy her eye makes dim:
It is the God-Man that she loves.

It is the God-Man that she loves;
Her Motherhood's sublimest part
Is this, with Him the world that moves
To share that prime Parental Heart!

MATER CHRISTI.

“BEHOLD thy Mother!” From the Cross
He gave her—not to one alone:
We are His Brethren; unto us
He gave a mother as to John.

Behold the greatest gift of Christ,
Save that wherein Himself He gives,
The wonder-working Eucharist,
Sole life of each that truly lives.

Mysterious Bread, not joined and knit
With him that eats, like mortal food,
But, fire-like, joining him with it,
And blending with the Church of God.

Mary! from thee the Saviour took
That Flesh He gives! The mercies twain,
Like streams of a divided brook,
But separate to meet again.

IN HORA MORTIS.

It was the dread last Eucharist:
The hopes and fears of earth were gone;
The latest, lingering friend dismissed;
The bed was ashes strewed o'er stone.

It was the dear last Eucharist:
The old man lay in silent prayer:
His heart was now a Shrine, and Christ
Was with His Mother whispering there.

He heard them, heard within that veil
Voices that Angels may not hear,
Not he that said to Mary, "Hail,"
Not he that watched the Sepulchre:

Voices that met with touch like light;
Murmurs that mixed, as when their breath
Two pine trees, side by side, unite:
Of Love one whispered; one of Death.

THE CAVIL.

“So great! Then wherefore whilst on earth
So still, so silent, so unknown?
What prophet sang her death or birth?
Before her steps what trump was blown?”

Ah, barren brain heaven-taught in vain!
So blind! in texts so parrot-learned!
Against the grain plain shows not plain:
Truth, grasped by sense, is undiscerned.

Her Son was God, yet seemed but Man:
She, Chief of Creatures, seemed the least,
Thus likest Him who first began,
So long concealed, at Cana's feast

His Godlike Works, yet oft forbade
To noise those Godlike Works abroad—
Inferior greatness is displayed;
The loftier hides in light with God.

THE VEIL.

FOR thirty years with her He lurked,
As secret as the unrisen sun :
In three short years His Work He worked :
That work we know. The victory won

Once more the veil descends, and shrouds
That trance of Love, the Forty Days :
Like mountains lost in luminous clouds
Their marvels cheat our yearning gaze.

The Saints who rose when Jesus died,
Lazarus, twice cast from nature's womb,
Hidden their after days abide
As Enoch's life or Moses' tomb.

The Work, the Work—no more—is told :
The lore man needs not shuns his sight :
Thy Work was this, to clothe in mould
Of Adam's race the Infinite.

Thy Motherhood thine endless Act,
In this all lesser praise is drowned:
To this to add were to detract:
Sole-throned it bideth, and self-crowned.

THE LETTER AND THE SPIRIT.

How oft that Sadducean fool
That impeded with feathers from the jay
As hard a heart, a brain as dull
As e'er were bubble-blown from clay,

How oft his half-shut eye had roved
From sacred page to page, and read
Those words that unaffirming proved
The Resurrection from the Dead!*

Texts plainer were there: "I shall go
To him; he cannot come to me"—
"Though worms consume this Body, lo!
I in my flesh my God shall see."

Such texts the Saviour challenged not:
He willed to prove that at the core
Of well-known words to reverent Thought
There lurked a mine of unknown lore.

* "The God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob." —

“What texts avouch her greatness?” Two,
For those the Letter’s mind who pierce;
The Ancient Record and the New:
In Christ they meet; and Christ is hers.

“IN ELECTIS MEIS MITTE RADICES.”

ROUGH is the shock of adverse seas:
Sudden the up-bursting of a sect:
Thou, like a Vine, by soft degrees
Didst root thyself in God's Elect.

Slow like a Palm-tree's was thy growth,
But sure: the Sun that heals stood high
Ere all thy greatness met, though loth,
Smit by His beam, the general eye.

But, like some Western hill that flings
O'er sunset vales at last its shade,
Thy power shall wax when transient things
Give place, and shapes ephemeral fade.

In the world's eve thy Star shall flash
Through reddening skies that cease to weep
While kings to earth their sceptres dash,
And angel bands the harvest reap.

AUXILIUM CHRISTIANORUM.

O STRONG in prayer! our spirits bind
To God: our bodies keep from sin:
Live in our hearts that Christ may find
An incorrupt abode therein:

That He, the Eternal Spirit, He
Who overshadowed with His Grace
The depths of thy Humility,
In us may have a resting-place.

Who love thee prosper! As a breeze
Thou waft'st them o'er the ways divine:
Strange heights they reach with magic ease
Through music-moulded discipline.

The children of the House are they,
Not strangers ranged around the gate:
The children love, and learn in play;
The strangers win their dole, but wait.

THE FIRST DOLOUR.

(The Prophecy of Simeon.)

To be the mother of her Lord—

What means it? This, a bleeding heart!
The pang that woke at Simeon's word
Worked inward, never to depart.

The dreadful might of Sin she knew
As Innocence alone can know:
O'er her its deadliest gloom it threw
As shades lie darkest on the snow.

Yet o'er her Sorrow's depth no storm
Of earth's rebellious passion rolled:
So sleeps some lake no gusts deform
High on the dark hills' craggy fold.

In that still glass the unmeasured cliff,
With all its scars and clouds is shown:
And, mellowed in that Mother's grief,
At times, O Christ, we catch Thine own!

THE SECOND DOLOUR.

(The Flight into Egypt.)

THE fruitful River slides along ;
The Conqueror's City glitters nigh ;
The Palm-groves ring with dance and song ;
Earth trembles, crimsoned from the sky.

Far down the sunset lonely stands
Some temple of a bygone age,
Slow-settling into sea-like sands,
Long served with prayer and pilgrimage.

Here ruled the Shepherd-Kings, and they
That race from Sun and Moon which drew
The unending lines of Priestly sway ;
Here Alexander's standard flew.

Here last the great Cæsarian star
Through Egypt's sunset flashed its beam,
While pealed the Roman trump afar,
And Earth's first Empire like a dream

Dissolved. But who are they—the Three
That pierce, thus late, yon desert wide?
The Babe is on His Mother's knee;
Low-bent an old Man walks beside.

What say'st thou, Egypt? "Let them come!
Of such as little note I keep
As of the least of flies that hum
Above my deserts, or my deep!"

THE THIRD DOLOUR.

(Jesus left behind in the Temple.)

THREE days she seeks her Child in vain:

He who vouchsafed that holy woe
And makes the gates of glory pain,
He, He alone its depth can know.

She wears the garment He must wear,
She tastes His chalice! From a Cross
Unseen she cries, "Where art Thou, where?
Why hast Thou me forsaken thus?"

With feebler hand she touches first
That sharpest thorn in all His Crown,
Worse than the Nails, the Reed, the Thirst,
Seeming Desertion's icy frown!

O Saviour! we, the weak, the blind,
We lose Thee, snared in Pleasure's bound:
Teach us once more Thy Face to find
Where only Thou art truly found,

In Thy true Church, its Faith, its Love
Its anthem'd Rites or Penance mute,
And that interior Life whercof
Eternal Life is flower and fruit.

THE FOURTH DOLOUR.

(The meeting on Calvary.)

SHE stands before Him on the Road:

He bears the Cross, and climbs the steep:
Three times He sinks beneath His load:
To earth He sinks: she does not weep.

She may not touch that Cross whose weight
Against His will a stranger bears:
In heart to bear it, and to wait
His upward footsteps, this is hers.

She may not prop that thorn-crowned Head:
The waves of men between them break:
Another's hand the veil must spread
Against that forehead and that cheek.

Her eyes on His are fastened. Lo!
There stand they, met on Calvary's height,
Twin mirrors of a single woe
Made by reflection infinite.

The sons of Sion round them rave :
The Roman trumpet storms the wind :
They goad Him on with spear and stave :
He passes by : she drops behind.

THE FIFTH DOLOUR.

(Beside the Cross.)

SHE stood in silence. Slowly passed
The hours whose moments dropped in blood:
Its frown the Darkness further cast:
She moved not: silently she stood.

No human sympathy she sought:
Her help was God, and God alone;
Not even the instinctive respite caught
From passionate gesture, sigh, or moan.

Her silence listened. On the air
Like death-bells tolled that prime Decree
Which bade the Eternal Victim bear
Mankind's transgression. Let it be!

The Women round her heard all day
The clash of arms, the scoffing tongue:
She heard the breaking of that spray
From which the fruit of Knowledge hung.

Behold the Babe of Bethlehem! Aye!
The Infant slumbered on thy breast;
And thou that heard'st His earliest cry
Must hear His "Consummatum est."

THE SIXTH DOLOUR.

(Jesus taken down from the Cross.)

THE Saviour from the Cross they took:
Across His Mother's knee He lies:
She wept not, but a little shook
As with dead hand she closed dead eyes.

The surface wave of Grief we know:
By us its depths are unexplored:
She treads the still abyss below,
Following the footsteps of her Lord.

Above her head the great floods roll:
That Lord, that Son, remains her Hope:
And calm, within the storms, her Soul,
Calm as the whirlpool's central drop.

The Saviour from the Cross they took:
Across His Mother's knee He lay:
O passers by! be still and look!
That Twain compose one cross for aye.

THE SEVENTH DOLOUR.

(Before the Tomb.)

BEFORE the Tomb the Mother sate
Amid the new-delved garden ground :
Her eyes upon its stony gate
Were fixed, while darkness closed around.

A wind above the olives crept :
It seemed the world's collected sigh :
That Mother's eyes their vigil kept :
She felt but this ; her Lord was nigh.

Behind her, leaning each on each,
The Holy Women waited near :
Nor any spake of comfort : speech
Was slain by sorrow, and by fear.

From realm to realm of night He passed,
That Soul which smote the dark to day :
That Mother's eyes were settled fast.
Upon the Tomb where Jesus lay.

THE TRUE HUMANITY.

SACRED Humanity of Christ, all hail!
Glorified Manhood which alone art Man;
Great Archetype in God's own image formed
From everlasting. Adam was to Thee
Second, not first. Essential Man art Thou;
We are but pigmy and distorted shades
Downcast from Adam's lightning-blasted trunk
Upon the blighted heath of mortal life,
Or timeless and abortive fruit unblest.
'True Man! true God that art alone true Man!
Thou from Whose touch deific streams that power
Which keeps from further and more bestial lapse
The race created human; hail, O hail!
Hail in Thy Paradise of lonely light
Walking with God; in Thy Regalities
The Mediatorial Realm from pole to pole
Swaying: all hail, great Pontiff, with Thyself
Lighting Thy Church: all hail, Prophetic Power
Before Whose eyes Creation yet unborn
In vision passed; and from Whose tongue her Works
Their Names received, and were what they were called.

“Not alone
Standeth the great Priest in the light eterne.”

Page 12.

This thought belongs not to St. Gertrude, but to Origen. It is, however, so completely in harmony with the spirit in which St. Gertrude writes on the Communion of Saints, that I have ventured to connect it with a hymn of hers.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

0 014 490 047 9