ADVERTISING COMMITTEE HIGHLY COMPLIMENTED

Campbell Float Causes Much Favorable Comment

One of the best pieces of advertising for Campbell and community for some time past was the industrial float entered in the booster parade at Santa Clara Friday.

The E. C. Merrill truck driven by M. Correa was decorated with banners and loaded with fruit boxes put up by Campbell packers, the Geo. E. Hyde & Co., J. C. Ainsley Co. and Farmers Union Packing Co.

Seated on these boxes was a party of Campbell girls dressed in white. The girls who enjoyed the trip and parade thus setting off the float so well were: Margaret and Pauline Blaine, Louise and Edith Billiou, Calista Atkinson, Dorothy DeSelle, Millie Downton, Winifred Davidson, Marjory Dunning, Elizabeth and Julia Hall, Bertha Kelly, Edwina Page, Ruby Reynolds, Wilma Smith, Ruth and Esther Stewart, Lucile Strong, Alice Strom. They were chaperoned by Mrs. Davidson.

On the banners over head were the fitting lines, "The Orchard City, Homes, Schools, Industry" and below "Campbell Products," Prunes Dried 20,000 tons, Apricots green 18,000 tons.

This float attracted much attention and a great deal of favorable comment, and the county papers had many nice things to say about it.

Another float that received a prominent place was the Farmers Union grocery truck driven by Herb. Wade. This float received first prize of the grocery exhibits which gave Campbell another boost.

W. H. Hinde Answers Last Call

William H. Hinde passed away at his home on Santa Clara road Thursday evening, August 19th, after a short illness.

Mr. Hinde was born in New York State, June 9th, 1844, being 71 years, 2 months, 10 days old at the time of his death. For a number of years he was in the manufacturing industry at Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, with his father. At the age of twenty-one he married Junior Kelly who has been his life helper and companion. Thirty years ago he moved to Columbus, Ga., to continue the manufacture of bagging for cotton bale wrappers and after eighteen years there he retired from active business, coming to Campbell, Cal., where he has since lived.

Mr. Hinde was one of the most highly respected men of the community, having been one of the prominent directors of the local bank and influential in church work. In his passing Campbell has suffered the loss of an honest and upright citizen.

The deceased is survived by his loving wife, a son, John K., and daughter, Miss Annie.

The funeral services were held at the late residence yesterday morning, the Rev. W. H. Lloyd, officiating, after which the remains were taken to San Jose. The pall bearers were: C. N. Cooper, S. G. Rodeck, J. F. Duncan, J. L. Hagelin, E. I. Price, J. C. Ainsley, R. Alison and H. D. Curtis. Mr. J. K. Hinde will accompany them to Columbus, Ga., where after services at his home, interment will be made.

Resolutions

The undersigned Trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Campbell, California Conference, met with the pastor, the Rev. W. H. Lloyd, at the close of the morning service, Sunday, Aug. 22nd, and passed the following resolution:

Resolved, That we take this opportunity to express the keen sense of loss with which we have learned of the death of our honored brother trustee, Mr. W. H. Hinde, who has been an active member of our board for several years.

We desire to record our appreciation of his sterling character and the fine Christian courtesy that has marked his bearing at all times. His splendid liberality has been a source of constant encouragement to his colleagues in the development of our church property and the general financial interests of the church.

To his sorrow-stricken family we extend our earnest sympathy, and we unite our prayers in imploring the blessing of our Heavenly Father upon them in their great bereavement, trusting that they may at this time know to the full the Consolation of the Gospel of Christ.

ALL PARIS IN DREAD

VISIT OF ZEPPELINS BROUGHT ABOUT REIGN OF TERROR.

Propriety and Decorum Forgotten in the Mad Rush for Safety—Panic That Ended Only With the Coming of Daylight.

The Zeppelins came to Paris. They came and lingered and departed. But oh what happened as they lingered! 'Twas one of the clock—one in the early morn. The hotel near the Etoile and not far from the Eiffel tower had settled itself to sleep, finally. Naught disturbed the quiet but snores from the room of the stray Englishman, stopping for the night, and the faint echo of rustling silks as the Russian princess wished to retirement. It was a still morning.

"Ta ra ta ta! E-one-o-one!" The jangle shattered the stillness and reshartered it. It echoed through the courtyard and beat through corridors; it shocked instant activity into all who bided in the hotel. Followed a terrific "bang, bang, ping-ping-ping-ping!" that shook the building as though it were an eggshell. Then came the clamor of doors opening, questioning voices, nervous queries, screams, and the scuttling of suddenly awakened, disheveled guests down the halls.

They scuttled in many stages of dress and undress; with hats, without hats, in dressing gowns and pajamas, all clutching little bags or packages in which were hoarded the family wealth.

Time wore on to 1:45 and guests began to whisper that it was only a joke after all, to test Paris. Down in the courtyard a dog howled. Another earth-rocking detonation. Some raced to the roof, some to the cellar.

Those who went to the roof saw the whole sky illuminated, and a glowing, transparent, cigar-shaped form directly above which was the Zeppelin. The guns of Paris were blazing toward it. But it floated, unconcerned. Those who went to the roof raced madly to the cellar.

Dragged looking Americans sat on a long, wooden table, one of them lying, full-length, asleep. Bunches of bananas and strings of sausages hung over her head, the Russian princess sat in a chair, with all her jewels on and wrapped in furs, with her feet bare. A Swedish baroness had borrowed a British army coat and cap and was smoking cigarettes in another. On the floor a cat played with her kittens.

Thus the darkness wore away. The Zeps departed anon, and guests returned to their beds. At 8:30, when the porter cleaned up the hall, he found an elegant pink silk corset hung on one of the chairs. The Russian princess forgot it in her haste.

Natural Fireworks.

The New York Sun describes a remarkable occurrence at Healdsburg, Cal., when large quantities of what is called meteoric floss fell from the sky. The shower, which began between seven and eight o'clock in the morning, and reached its maximum about ten, was seen by all the inhabitants of the town.

According to an eyewitness, the floss first appeared high up, in a perfectly clear sky, as a mass of stars, lustrous metallic sheets, and silvery ropes. It reached the earth in various shapes and sizes, ranging from minute particles to sheets 20 feet square. It fell in such quantities that long ropes and masses of it hung from the telephone and telegraph wires.

When the substance reached the warm earth it began at once to contract into fibrous masses, resembling asbestos, although tests proved that it was not that mineral. Most of it soon disappeared, although samples of it were saved and sent to the Lick observatory, and to the observatory at Urbana, Italy.

Beds for Outdoor Sleeping.

One of the best beds for outdoor sleeping is that made out of a heaping pile of balsam boughs, all laid pointing the same way and having the shiny under sides up so as to take full advantage of the spring of the boughs.

When boughs enough have been heaped up so that one actually rests several inches off the ground the heat loss in that direction is very greatly diminished. Also, the bed is a deliciously comfortable one.

Dry leaves are an autumn substitute for balsam in regions where the latter is not to be found, but they are more difficult to collect, and it takes a larger heap to give the same effect.

Where one is reduced actually to sleeping next to the ground it is always well at least to spread a canvas or slicker under one's blankets and then use the heavy one underneath. This may not seem especially sound advice at sundown, but its wisdom is apt to sink in during the night.—Outing.

New Features.

"We'll make a night of it," declared the Bostonian.

"We'll have a feast of reason and a flow of soul."

"All right," assented the New Yorker; "I never heard of them cabaret feasts, but they sound good."—Judge.

SWITZERLAND'S NEWEST SCENIC RAILWAY

SWITZERLAND'S newest scenic railway opens for traffic this summer. It runs from Brig along the line of the Furka post road and traverses a little known region of the Alps.

When the Simplon line was opened in 1906 there was probably no other city in the Rhone valley which gained more through this achievement than Brig, a delightfully quaint community at the junction of the Simplon and Furka post routes. A few years later, in the summer of 1913, the completion of the celebrated Lotschberg railway added further to the importance of the town.

The Simplon railway forms the international highway between the Lake of Geneva and the Rhone valley and Italy, and the Loetschberg line, connecting with the Simplon at Brig, has brought the Rhone valley and the Bernese Oberland in direct communication. There remained one other Alpine pass, the Furka, which had no train service. The Furka post road, forty-two and one-half miles long, runs from Brig to Andermatt, at the foot of the Oberalp pass. From Andermatt the Oberalp pass, practically a continuation of the Furka road, leads to Disentis, an ancient monastic village with recently discovered radioactive mineral springs, a distance of eighteen miles.

To cover this entire distance of sixty and one-half miles requires a diligence journey of one day between Brig and Andermatt and four and one-half hours between Andermatt and Disentis, a fascinating drive for the tourist who is fortunate enough to be able to travel with leisure, but often out of the question for those who are somewhat pressed for time. The construction of a railway to form the connecting link between Brig and Disentis came up for discussion a number of years ago and the construction of the line was started in 1911. On June 30, 1914, the inauguration of the first section between Brig and Gletsch took place, but four weeks later, when the railroad was actually ready for regular traffic, the European war broke out and in view of the new conditions it was decided that the line should only be opened for the summer season of 1915.

Many Interesting Features. The railway has steam traction. It is a narrow gauge line with rack and pinion sections and possesses an extraordinary number of interesting features from an engineering point of view. In the history of their canton they played an important role during the time of the Reformation and again in 1799, when their natural seclusion enabled them to ward off the French invasion. Cardinal Matthew Schinnerer, the famous court-bishop of Siou, was born in this district.

Picturesque Goms Valley.

Visitors to the Rhone valley are generally interested in the remarkable water conduits, or "bisses," as they are called by the natives, which are found in nearly every side valley and by which water is conveyed from a considerable distance to the villages and pastures. By means of these irrigation channels the fields are kept green even in the hottest summer weather. The ceaseless care and even peril which their construction and repair entail have been most graphically described by the Swiss writer, J. C. Heer, in his book "By the Sacred Springs."

Delightful woods fringe the extensive pastures, which are covered with soft, velvety grass on which nature has lavishly strewn the prettiest of Alpine blossoms. But the natives of Goms have no time for sentimental flower study, and men, women and children toil hard in summer to gather their not overabundant crop of hay.

The dairy and cheese industries are cultivated with great care, and certain varieties of Goms cheese are considered a special delicacy by connoisseurs. In the Binnen and Flescher valleys—two small side valleys in this district—it used to be the custom to keep cheeses of this kind for many years as a sort of family heirloom. Specimens of them, some dating back to the seventeenth century, are still shown in the city hall of Fiesch.

Conditions have, however, changed considerably with the arrival of summer guests along the Furka road. Several of the villages have become summer resorts, and the majority of the young people of Goms work no longer on their parental farms, but in Swiss hotels.

A few innovations have thus penetrated this rural region, but they have in no way affected the home life of the natives. Tiny chapels, churches and wayside shrines are dotted along the road everywhere, for the devout people of Goms have no greater interest in their lives than their religious duties.

Resort of Oberwald.

At an altitude of 4,497 feet the resort of Oberwald is reached. It is the furthest point to which the Furka railway will run in winter. It is expected that Oberwald will later join the circle of Swiss winter resorts, as its opportunities for skiing are particularly favorable.

Gletsch is the present terminus of the Furka railway and the junction of the Furka and Grimsel post roads. The Grimsel, leading to Meiringen, will in years to come also have its railway, but at present the diligence still travels twice a day in each direction through that magnificent Alpine pass.

Gletsch, as its name implies, is near the Glacier of the Rhone. In fact, the terminal face of this ice cascade is but half an hour's walk from the railway station, the path following the milky stream all along right up to its source, hewn in the purest of crystal.

The continuation of the journey to Andermatt and Disentis, which has, of course, to be made by diligence until the railroad is completed, touches many spots which have classic repute for their beauty as well as for their historic associations. Realp, Hospenthal, Andermatt and further on the quaint Grisons hamlets right to Disentis, all have some charm of their own which will help to make the Furka railway known as one of the finest scenic railways in Switzerland.

Triumphant Moment.

"Are scientists invariably cold and calculating?"

"Not always. I've seen a scientist betray wild excitement when he had discovered an infinitesimal error in some other scientist's calculations."

SNOWBALL ADOPTS MIDNIGHT

"Well," said Snowball, as he looked out of doors, "this is certainly pretty bad weather. I think I had better put on my sweater if I am going into the city with master this morning." And Snowball was right; it was bad weather, for, neither snowing nor raining, it was a little of both, and everything was covered with a glare of slippery, treacherous ice, and it was unusually cold. Kit and Puff looked with amazement when Snowball came out with the red collar of his sweater drawn as far as it would go up around his neck, completely covering his collar and partly covering his face.

"You are not going to town a morning like this?" they asked as Snowball started toward where the team was standing. "Oh, yes," said Snowball, "I'm no fireside cat like you and some of the other tabbies around here. When I have work to do I don't let a little ice and a little cold weather drive me under the stove," and, flitting his tail saucily, he jumped up on the seat of the wagon to wait for his master.

In town there were a number of long waits while goods were being bought or delivered, and one of the longest of them was in a part of the town where Snowball did not remember of having ever been before. The houses were tumbledown in appearance, with here and there a blind swinging loosely on one hinge, and not a few windows from which the glass had been broken.

"This must be the slum district," said Snowball to himself, "and I suppose there may be some pretty tough characters round about here. I shall have to keep a sharper watch than usual to see that nothing is stolen from the wagon." While he was walking about trying to watch both sides of the wagon at once he heard a faint "meow" from the ground, and going over to that side of the wagon from which the sound seemed to come he saw the most disreputable little black kitten that he had ever seen. His little body was so small and poor that his head looked two sizes too large for him, and his eyes were all watery with tears as he looked up at Snowball and meowed again.

"What's the matter, kitten?" said Snowball; "why don't you go home where it's nice and warm and get something to eat? You look hungry." "I am hungry," said the kitten; "but I ain't got no home."

Little by little Snowball learned the story of the kitten, how he had belonged to a little girl who had tired of playing with him and how he had

"Did You Ever See Such a Kitten?" been put out of doors to shift for himself, and what a hard time he had had of it in the storm.

"Well," said Snowball, "when master comes back I'll see what we can do for you. Wait around a while."

When the master was about to jump on the team Snowball slipped him and called his attention to the little kitten and told him the story he had just heard. His master agreed with Snowball that something ought to be done, and as it was about lunch time they agreed to take the kitten on to the wagon and carry him along to the place where Snowball got his usual saucer of milk. When Snowball got his milk the little kitten got a saucer, too, and he ate it as if he had never had anything good before.

"Tastes pretty good, don't it?" said Snowball as he smoothed his mustache a little after he had finished. "Won't you have a little more?" The kitten said he would and finished another saucer almost as quickly as he had the first one.

While the kitten was drinking the second saucer Snowball was over in the corner talking with his master, and as the kitten finished Snowball said to him: "I have decided to take you along with me to my home out in the country if you would like to go." The kitten was quick to say that he would, and so Snowball helped him to get upon the seat of the wagon, his master took a corner of the horse-blanket and wrapped it around him, and so with Snowball close beside him, Midnight, for that was what Snowball had already named him because of his blackness, rode out into the country to his new home. Kit and Puff were in the house under the stove when Snowball walked in with Midnight close behind him, and when they saw the kitten, they showed their displeasure by arching their backs and making their fur bristle up in the fiercest sort of manner.

"Now, none of that," said Snowball; "this kitten has come here to live. I have adopted him, and any unkind thing that you do to him you will have to answer for to me. Sit down," he said to Midnight, "and get warm, while I go and take this sweater off and get ready for dinner."

Kit and Puff sat at the far side of the room and looked scornfully at Midnight.

"Did you ever see such a looking kitten in your life?" said Puff. "Never," said Kit. "Snowball must have taken him out of an ashbarrel. What do you suppose he brought him home for, and what is he going to do with him?"

"What am I going to do with him?" said Snowball, who had returned just in time to hear the latter part of Kit's remark. "I'm going to make a cat of him, the kind of cat I would like to have been myself if I could have had my own bringing up. 'Come on,' he said, turning to Midnight, 'we'll have dinner, then I'll show you where you're going to sleep, and tomorrow morning I'll give you your first lesson in being a real cat.'"

OUR BOY AND GIRL FARMERS

Different Clubs Have Come to Be Very Important Factors in the Economy of the Farm.

Boys and girls on the farm these days are beginning to be spelled with capital B's and G's. There was never a time in the history of American agriculture when they received more attention. They are in the rays of the nation's spotlight, agriculturally speaking.

To their credit it must be said that they are taking the honors modestly. They are going ahead and proving in conclusive manner that they are justly entitled to the good things being said of them.

What the boys and girls are doing today to promote better agriculture is of inestimable value to the country at large. Not only does it tend to increase crop production, but it is making life more attractive on the farm.

Through the medium of boys' corn clubs and girls' garden and canning clubs the boys and girls are learning that there is much that is worth while in country life. With education along these lines and the unfolding of the mysteries of plant life it is becoming more difficult to lure them from the farm.

The boys' corn club work is a definite effort by the United States department of agriculture, the state agricultural colleges, and other institutions to promote and encourage increased production of corn at a reasonable cost on small areas and to offer a plan of vocational guidance by requiring club members to master a complete corn crop operation.

This begins with the selection of suitable seed and follows the operation to marketing or feeding and includes the making up of a complete crop report of the work, its cost and expenses. In this work the profit on the investment is as important as the matter of yield.

The future of American agriculture is largely dependent on the boys and girls of today, and it is the purpose of this corn club movement to assist the other forces now at work to interest, instruct and direct the boys of our villages and rural communities in the possibilities of farming as a profitable and dignified profession.

Corn growing on the one-acre basis is used as a medium of instruction and interest. As a field crop of interest and cash value it has no superior. From the standpoint of its economical relation to farm management it will encourage diversified farming, soil building by rotation of crops, the feeding of hogs, the keeping of other live stock, etc., and is considered one of the most profitable field crops grown in the grain states.

The girls' clubs are conducted along lines similar to the work of the corn clubs, only the crop is some garden crop—such as tomatoes—which can be disposed of not only as a fresh vegetable, but the product may also be canned.

A Girl's Bank.

There is a kind of savings bank for girls in Germany which might well be imitated in this country. On the birth of a girl the parents can insure her in one of these banks for a sum that will give the child on the completion of her eighteenth year, a small capital to start in life with, to follow her profession or finish her studies, or to serve as a dowry in the event of her marriage. The annual premium is a fixed sum, and comparatively light, and scarcely proves a burden. It certainly must prove a great help to a girl when she arrives at the age of discretion to find herself mistress of a snug little fund of her own.

VARIETY IN THE MENU

SUBJECT TO WHICH MORE ATTENTION SHOULD BE GIVEN.

Well for Cook to "Think Up" New Ways of Serving Food, With the Idea of Getting Away From Unappetizing Monotony.

Perhaps in no department of woman's work is it so easy to get into a groove as in catering. However good the food may be, it fails to be appreciated as it should, if it lacks variety, writes a contributor to the Queen (London). To avoid this, it is a wise plan to keep a menu book, also notes of new dishes to be tried, and also frequently to consult a cookery book to refresh the memory and stimulate one of the new ideas.

Lists are also most valuable, as it is well worth the trouble to arrange them for reference; a list of breakfast dishes, one of meats and joints, another of sweets, and one of cakes, would do much to avoid monotony.

Now breakfast dishes in these days of high-priced eggs and bacon do present a difficulty, and both forethought and extra time for preparation are needed here. Rissoles may be made out of mere scraps of meat and potatoes; half a pound of sausage meat will make quite a large dish. Remains of tongue, beef, or ham can be minced and flavored and mixed with crumbs and served on hot toast, or heated with thick gravy and served on a fried croton, or used to stuff tomatoes or eggs, or to fill a savory pancake. Ox kidney and New Zealand kidneys can be stewed, curried, or made into kidney toast; kedgeree can be made with either fish or eggs; haddock toast, or fishcakes, steaks of hake or cod fried, fillets of haddock dipped in batter and fried, grilled mackerel or herrings, are all good. The occasional bacon can be helped out with fried bread one morning, saute potatoes another, and a third used merely as a garnish to a dish of sheep's liver. Homemade potted meat, beef-and-bacon galatin, and rabbit pie or mold all help to make a change; and please add scones or hot rolls occasionally, and a dish of fresh fruit once or twice a week.

A beetroot simmered in strong, clear stock is nice, or carrots boiled in stock and put through a sieve, and the puree made the right consistency with nicely flavored stock. A puree of brussels sprouts or marrow are both good, and onion, celery, tomato, lentil, or haricot soups are all easily made; so is a smooth white soup, half milk and half water, with onions, potatoes, and leeks simmered in it, and rubber through the sieve.

Of fish, again if the more expensive kinds are tabooed, there is a fresh haddock, boiled, with parsley sauce, or stuffed and baked; cod fried in batter, with pickled walnuts; grilled whitening, stuffed or baked mackerel, or hake with horse-radish sauce.

Lemon Ice Cream.

One quart sweet cream, yokes of six eggs, white of one egg, three-fourths of a pound of sugar, juice of four lemons, juice of one orange, grated peel of three lemons.

Mix the lemon and orange juice together; add some of the sugar and boil in a double boiler. Strain to cool in a bowl and then add the peel. Let the mixture then stand an hour before freezing. In the meanwhile make a custard of the cream, eggs and sugar, cooking this carefully in a double boiler and seeing that it does not curdle; let the custard cool, then freeze it for awhile, and after this mix in the fruit juice and finish the freezing. Three or four whole eggs may be used instead of the six yolks.

Baked Halibut.

Three or four pounds of halibut. Dip the dark skin in boiling water and scrape clean. Rub well with salt and pepper. Put into pan and pour milk over it till half an inch deep. Bake about an hour, basting with the milk. When the fish is nearly done sprinkle buttered crumbs over the top. The milk keeps the fish moist, is a good substitute for pork and makes the fish brown better. Use just enough milk to baste and let it cook away toward the last. Serve with plain drawn butter, egg sauce or tomato sauce and garnish with slices of hard-boiled eggs.

Codfish Soup.

One-half turnip, one to two parsley roots (or leaves, if not roots), three onions. Slice all these and boil until done in two quarts of water, then add cupful shredded codfish and boil a little longer. Take one cupful milk, one egg, one tablespoonful flour. Beat this well together and add to the above. Let thicken and then season with little ginger and pepper. By cooking fresh fish until it can be removed from the bones you can make same as codfish soup, only add a little salt and butter size of an egg.

Orange Ice.

Four cupfuls water, two cupfuls sugar, two cupfuls orange juice, quarter cupful lemon juice, grated rind of two oranges. Make a sirup by boiling water and sugar 20 minutes, add fruit juice and grated rind; cool, strain and freeze.

To Prevent Blue From Fading.

To prevent any shade of blue from fading soak for two hours in a pail of water to which one ounce of sugar of lead has been added. Then be sure to dry well before washing and ironing.

Gambler's Luck or German Skill?
In one of Mr. Foster's clever card playing stories he explains the advantage the veteran gambler has over the novice by reason of his superior experience and nerve.

One of these characteristics, Mr. Foster says, is that when the expert sees a train of good luck coming his way, he puts his money down all over the board and reaps a harvest of skill and bravery, "pinching" his bets when luck goes against him; whereas the tyro will lose as much in his unlucky streaks as he makes in his more favored moments.

Perhaps this is nothing more than "grand strategy," which is just now so much in evidence in the German military movements. While the allies—British, French and Russian—are complaining that they have no ammunition for the men they already have in the field, and while reverses on both battle fronts are explained by this shortage, the German commanders are redoubling their activities, in the effort to make the very most of their advantage in this respect while things are coming their way.

NO DOUBT THAT RESINOL DOES STOP ITCHING

It is a fact that the moment resinol ointment touches itching skins, the itching stops and healing begins. With the aid of resinol soap, it almost always clears away all trace of eczema, Summer rashes, pimples, or similar tormenting, unsightly eruption quickly, leaving the skin clear and healthy.

And the best of it is you need never hesitate to use resinol soap and resinol ointment. Resinol is a doctor's prescription which for twenty years has been used by careful physicians for many kinds of skin affections. They know that its soothing, healing action is brought about by medication so bland and gentle as to be suited to the most delicate or irritated skin. Resinol ointment and resinol soap are sold by all druggists.—Adv.

SPURRED RESTA TO VICTORY

There is a story connected with Dario Resta's brilliant record-smashing victory in Chicago's first 500-mile international auto derby. Even happier than Dario himself, who was rewarded with the handsome sum of $23,000 for his efforts, was Mrs. Resta, who was glad to see her husband come home the victor in the contest. Her joy was increased by the fact that her husband finished without any injury to himself. The speed king admits that his wife was really the goal that spurred him on to victory. Mr. and Mrs. Resta were married shortly after the last Vanderbilt cup races, in which Resta landed first honors.

IS THE OLDEST BLACKSMITH

Michigan Man Is Eighty-six Years of Age and Still Shoes Horses.

Homer Mich.—The oldest blacksmith in Michigan—probably the oldest in the United States. That's what Jacob L. Lyon of Homer believes he is. He will be eighty-six years old next January. And if there are any competitors for the honor, Mr. Lyon hopes to remove all doubt by remaining at the anvil for many more years. "You see, my father lived to be eighty-two, but he had two brothers who lived to be ninety-four and ninety-six years old," he declares. "So I have a few more good years in me yet."

Mr. Lyon hasn't missed a day at his shop in several years. His arm is as powerful and he is as active as the man, forty years his junior, who is his employee.

IS OLDEST GERMAN BIBLE

Volume in Minnesota Historical Society Weighs More Than Fifty Pounds.
St. Paul.—The largest book in the Minnesota Historical society's library and one of the most interesting is an old German Bible bound in leather with heavy brass clasps and corners. It weighs more than fifty pounds. From a historical standpoint it is of much interest, as it contains portraits of the reigning Protestant princes of Germany during the early days of the Reformation.

HEN ROLLS THE EGGS BACK

Wyandotte Chicken Makes Owner Stop Sawing Wood So She Can Set.
Winsted, Conn.—Michael L. L. Daneby was puzzled when he found six hen's eggs on a pile of sawdust at his wood sawing plant after the gasoline-driven power had been running a short time.

Through the sawdust-filled air came two more eggs as he debated. He shut off the power to learn if possible where the eggs came from. Presently one of his Wyandotte hens appeared. Finding one of the eggs she rolled it to a nest which she had made in "V"-shaped box where the exhaust from the engine carries away the sawdust.

TYPO CLOSED UP FOR NIGHT

Fake Substitute, Taken With Pains, Turned Upper Case Down Over on the Lower One.

A printer in the Eagle office tells this: In the old days, when a typo laid off he had to provide a substitute. A printer named Jenks, wanting a lay-off, was compelled to persuade a man who was not a printer to take his place at the case, explaining to him that he could be taken suddenly sick and get away from the office before the fraud was discovered.

Shortly after the fake substitute lined up before the case with its curious little boxes full of loose type, he was seized with fake pains. "What's the matter with you?" asked the foreman, coming to his side. "I don't know," said the fake printer. "I'm terribly sick. I can't work. You can see that. I'll have to close up for the night."

SPOTTING A FAMILIAR SMELL

While Walking Streets of Brooklyn Man Detects Odor of Burning Potatoes—Cook Reading Novel.

He was walking along one of the residential streets of Brooklyn the other day when he suddenly stopped and sniffed the air in all directions. His nose had found a familiar odor, and pretty soon he traced it to a certain chimney and ascended the steps of a house and rang the bell.

"Excuse me, ma'am," he said to the woman who came to the door, "but do you keep a cook?"
"Yes, sir," she replied as she looked at him in a puzzled way.
"Is she in at the present time?"
"Yes, sir, but she doesn't want to see no agents just now."
"Oh, I'm no agent, ma'am. You just tell the cook that the water has all boiled out of the potatoes and that the said potatoes are burning. Small 'em very plainly in the street. Happens every day at my house. Cook is probably reading a novel or got a cold in the head. That's all, ma'am—no trouble at all—good evening!"

HOW TO ENCOURAGE A MAN

There is a Right Way and Wrong Way of Letting Him Know His Attentions Are Welcome.

A girl who wishes to encourage a man will often adopt a course of half-rude chaff. She will disagree with everything he says; she will argue against his pet theories, and she will be so (apparently) independent and self-reliant that he begins to feel frightened, and the moment a man feels frightened because a woman is too clever or too argumentative all pretty thoughts of tenderness or romance leave his heart.

Also it is just as much of a mistake to "show off" and "put on side"—both of which are methods adopted by some women to bring about the subjection of the Man as it is to let shyness and over-retiring diffidence get the upper hand. Neither method is successful with the average man today. And, after all, it usually is the average young man of today—not the brilliant sage or intellectual super-giant—who finds and holds the one very tender corner in our faithful feminine hearts; for, as a rule, feminine hearts are extremely faithful when the Right Man gives them a chance!

And now having considered the unsuccessful methods of encouraging this most important person—the Right Man—let us discuss those which are more likely to bring about desirable and happy results. Always welcome the right man brightly and show—you know how to make the fact quite obvious—that you are more glad to see him than you are to see other people. Never forget to inquire after any little undertakings or aspirations, the details of which he may have confided to you on the occasion of your last encounter.

Don't be afraid to make room for him to sit down by your side. Don't try to look extra cheerful when he is talking to another girl—even one touch of subdued sadness is better than this.

If he is musical, and you find pleasure in his singing, don't be afraid to tell him so. If he ardently presses your hand at parting, and by so doing cuts your rings into your flesh, bravely conceal the pain and smile up into his eyes; and when the day comes that he asks you to go all the way with him down life's long road, just show him how very, very glad you will be to start on the journey!—Nashville Tennessean.

Studying Effects.
"Shall I put a little tonic on your hair?" inquired the barber.
"No."
"It's getting quite thin."
"Let it alone. A bald head is the only thing that will give me any claim to an intellectual appearance."

That's So.
"The country is simply being ruined by this idea of rushing everything."
"Yet where would this country have been if they had arrested Paul Revere for exceeding the speed limit?"

A Little Mixed.
Inquirer—Don't you find it dangerous work knocking about in a submarine deep beneath the sea?
Engineer—Yes, but a man must do something, you know, to keep his head above water.

HAD TO.

The Old Man—Did you ever work in your life?
The Beggar—Once.
The Old Man—When was that?
The Beggar—When I was in jail.

Judicial Proceeding.
"A friend of mine who is a magistrate found his practice came in handy when he found a valuable book with a leaf loose."
"What did he do?"
"He had it bound over to keep the piece."

The Reason.
"What made Jaggs so blue the other day?"
"He went to his private cupboard the other day and found his spirits were low."

Her Opposite.
Nell—Do you believe people should marry their opposites?
Belle—Yes; my fiancé lives just across the street.

Even.
Lily—What a handsome coachman you've got!
Daisy—Yes; but you ought to see my husband's manicule!—Judge.

When We Work Best.

Autumn and spring are the best seasons of the year for all kinds of work. At a very low temperature both mental and physical work are depressing. Mental work reaches its highest efficiency at a temperature of 38 degrees, while physical work reaches its maximum at 59 degrees for men and 60 degrees for women. Recent investigations show that weather variations are distinctly good for us and promote our mental efficiency.

To Make Bandages.
Bandages can be prepared from the good parts of worn sheets or pillow slips if perfectly clean. Rolls six to eight yards in length are most convenient—one inch wide for fingers, two inches for feet, two and one-half to three inches for head and arms and four inches for legs. A good way of keeping them in condition for use is to seal the rolls in a perfectly clean glass fruit jar.

Dangerous Method.
"What are your usual modes of punishment?" was among the questions submitted to a teacher in a rural district in Ohio. Her answer was, "I try moral suasion first, and if that does not work I use capital punishment." As it was a neighborhood where moral suasion had not been a success, and the children were scarce, the committee took no risks.

Power of the Individual.
If only one person—you—makes up his mind to do his best for the meeting, from that nucleus the contagion of best-doing will spread through the society.

Easy Case to Conduct.
Soft snaps are comparatively few, but the attorney for the defense when a good-looking woman is the defendant shouldn't worry much.—Atchison Globe.

MOTHER OF SCHOOL GIRL

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Daughter's Health.

Plover, Iowa.—"From a small child my 13 year old daughter had female weakness. I spoke to three doctors about it and they did not help her any. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had been of great benefit to me, so I decided to have her give it a trial. She has taken five bottles of the Vegetable Compound according to directions on the bottle and she is cured of this trouble. She was all run down when she started taking the Compound and her periods did not come right. She was so poorly and weak that I often had to help her dress herself, but now she is regular and is growing strong and healthy."—Mrs. MARTIN HELVIG, Plover, Iowa.

Hundreds of such letters expressing gratitude for the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished are constantly being received, proving the reliability of this grand old remedy.

If you are ill do not drag along and continue to suffer day in and day out but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a woman's remedy for woman's ills.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Making the Little Farm Pay

By C. C. BOWSFIELD

Duck farms are becoming numerous in the middle west. This kind of a poultry enterprise is easily started and pays well. Ducks are hardy fowls and grow into money fast, returning a big profit on the investment and labor.

The general aim is to meet the steady demand for poultry in the large cities, and to do this ducks are supplied at all ages from six weeks to six months and at weights varying from two to eight pounds. It is one of the best features of this industry that prices have constantly advanced and that the market never has been oversupplied.

Experts have shown that general purpose ducks, preferably the Peiking breed, can be placed on the market at a total cost of 5 cents a pound where breeders are able to raise the feed and have good facilities for shipping. Those who do not have the best facilities for raising poultry will have to reckon the cost of production at something like 7 cents a pound, but even this outside figure leaves a large margin of profit. The retail price averages 25 cents a pound for young roasting ducks and 20 cents for matured stock.

It is claimed that ducks are more uniformly healthy than almost any other domestic fowl, that the percentage of loss is light, that the market prices are steady and that the product grows into dollars fast.

It is a knowledge of these facts in connection with a generally high level of prices for farm commodities that is causing the duck farms to spring up in all directions. Many of the new poultry plants are quite extensive, and perhaps the development at present is much greater with ducks than with any other class of poultry, although there is material progress also with chickens and geese.

It can be truthfully said that no class of poultry will prove safer or more profitable than ducks in the hands of amateurs or farmers whose experience along this line is limited. Many beginners with poultry enterprises fail completely or at best barely save their investment. Others clean up money fast and build up a permanent, successful trade. The reason for this difference is rather hard to define. Intelligent care and perseverance have much to do with success in poultry as well as in other lines of business. Only once in awhile is success or failure a matter of luck.

The first move in getting ready for a duck farm should be to set apart an acre or two of ground for a pasture and on which a variety of vegetables as well as grass and clover can be grown. Another early move must be to provide a clean, snug building or a series of small buildings, in which the flocks may be housed safely and comfortably. The birds at all ages need to be shut in tight at night from intruders of all kinds, and vermin must not be allowed to get a hold on the premises. A third step is the selection of stock that is known to be large and vigorous. Nothing is to be left to chance, but every detail must be carefully managed, and then there is a certainty of success, for the fowls are hardy and their food requirements simple and cheap.

A plant should not be started with less than an acre. This is sufficient to handle 500 ducks, and if more are desired a little more land should be used for range and pasture. Swimming ponds are not essential and, in fact, may be considered a detriment, but it is best to have troughs and keep them supplied with fresh water for drinking and splashing. As ducks feed largely on green material, calling for very little grain, their feeding is not expensive considering their rapid growth into marketable poultry. The main food required outside of pasture is a soft ration of mill stuffs, such as middlings. When it comes to fattening time they can be forced by adding ground corn to the diet. This grain is only needed once a day. The mash should be given twice a day, and there needs to be a supply of green food such as clover, cabbage, etc., at all times, but this can be of the most inexpensive sort.

Housekeepers may look with satisfaction on this new move to increase the supply of wholesome poultry. Duck meat at 20 cents a pound is not considered an extravagance, and it compares favorably with beef. This class of poultry might easily be raised in such quantities that it would sell for 10 cents a pound, and breeders owning a few acres of land for range, and the production of feed would find the business profitable at much lower prices than those now prevailing.

The fourth quarterly conference of the M. E. church was held at the parlors Tuesday evening. The work of the pastor was highly complimented and the Board asked the District Superintendent to use his influence to have Rev. Lloyd returned for next year.

Mrs. H. Von Arends has been entertaining her mother, Anna E. Pierce, and her sister, Phoebe Adele Chase, artists of Milwaukee. They are so pleased with our mild summer climate that this is their tenth annual trip to this coast. Mrs. Pierce expects to purchase a site in Santa Clara valley and build a summer home and studio.

John Knight was quite seriously injured Sunday morning near the Kalas-Halamieck home. The family was thrown from the buggy when the horse became frightened and the others were more or less bruised. Dr. Merrill was immediately summoned and Mr. Knight was hurried to O'Connor Sanitarium where an examination was made. Mr. Knight suffered concussion of the brain and is resting as comfortably as possible though still unconscious. His friends have hopes of his recovery.

The parlors of the Congregational church were filled Tuesday evening with those who had come to enjoy the August birthday social, and do honor to Mrs. Poor, whose 86th birthday it was.

The committee had planned a "Stunt Social," and every one entered heartily into the spirit of the entertainment and so helped along the fun for all.

Bubbie blowing, men's button sewing and girls' nail driving contests, with rhetorical feats and other events, proved very mirth provoking. A new style of "simplified spelling" match, and a round of old time songs completed the first part of the program.

The birthday table and Mrs. Poor's chair were decorated with lavender streamers, vases of amaryllis and Baby's Breath lent their beauty and fragrance to the board, while tall tapers in glass holders carried out the old time effect.

In place of the usual birthday cake, there was a birthday pie which was cut by the guest of honor and in which were found a gift for herself and "jokes" for the other birthday people.

Mrs. Poor surprised and delighted the company by reciting a very lengthy poem with great ease and expression.

Refreshments of coffee, lemonade and doughnuts were served after which the company departed with many good wishes to "Aunty Poor."

Negro Singers Coming

Campbell is to enjoy a genuine musical treat Monday evening, Aug. 30. The famous negro male quartet of Hampton Industrial School will give a concert of plantation songs at the Congregational church. No admission charge will be made but a generous free-will offering will be appreciated as the funds go for good causes. Half of the receipts will go to the Industrial School which is doing such excellent work for the negroes and Indians, and half will go toward paying the expenses of keeping open our free reading room and library which is so popular.

This concert is being given under the auspices of the Country Woman's Club that has done so much for the betterment of Campbell.

Santa Clara County A Prize Winner

Santa Clara county's fresh fruits and vegetable display, which has recently been installed on a large scale in that county's section of the California building at the Panama-Pacific International exposition, is proving to be one of the most interesting features of the section, and, incidentally, the feature has grown to such huge proportions that it has become necessary to install special ornamental stands to hold the display. At present it is planned to build a large ornamental pyramid stand, more than eight feet high, on which Santa Clara's fresh fruit will be piled.

Among the shipments of fruit and vegetables recently received from growers of the county are: Tuscan cling peaches, weighing more than 14 ounces each, H. G. Stelling, Mountain View; Beurre Clairgeau pears, Grand Duke and Wickson plums, Block Fruit Company, Santa Clara; White Astracan apples, weighing more than one and one-fourth pounds each, Ralph Husted, Saratoga; branches of Imperial prunes, A. M. Barker, San Jose; Ponderosa lemons, J. D. Enright, East San Jose; summer squash, 12 inches in diameter, F. A. Byer, San Jose.

Santa Clara county, thus far, has captured more awards than any other county at the exposition. With fresh fruit awards yet to be made, it has been officially declared that the county has won the following list: Olive oil, gold medal; educational exhibit, gold medal; industrial exhibit, two grand prix, one medal of honor and five gold medals; horticultural exhibit, grand prix, three gold and one silver medals; canned fruit, grand prix, two medals of honor, four gold and silver medals; dried fruit, grand prix, 12 gold and silver medals; alcohol, sprits, wine and champagne, six grand prix, nine medals of honor, ten gold and silver medals. This makes a total of 60 awards already won. All of these awards were taken in the exhibit palaces and have nothing to do with the display section in the California building. Displays are not entered for awards.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.
