BIG GATHERING MARKS MEETING OF SO. GLENDALE IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION

Asks Replacement Units at Cerritos School or Expenditure of $31,500 in South Section, According to Board's Best Judgment

"SCHOOLS BEFORE PARKS" IS VOICED

Vote to Provide for Magnolia Avenue School and Retention of Both South End Schools for Original Purposes

By CORINNE ORFF

At a mass meeting called by the Southern Glendale Improvement association, attended by 150 or more, for the purpose of discussing the expenditure of $31,500 of a proposed bond issue at Cerritos or Magnolia avenue schools and other matters of vital importance to that section of Glendale, held Saturday night at the Cerritos school, there were five paramount decisions reached.

1. It was moved by Dr. Wm. C. Mabry "that it be the sense of the meeting that the advisory committee appointed at a mass meeting called by the school board be requested to revise its estimates of expenditures so as to provide for replacement unit at Cerritos school, and in case that cannot be done that the $31,500 allowed for the southern section of the city be expended to the best judgment of the school board, wherever the greatest need is."
2. It was moved by Mrs. C. E. Evans "that it be recommended to the school board that the Magnolia avenue school be provided for as well as they can see fit."
3. It was moved by M. A. Griswold that both the Cerritos and Magnolia avenue school sites be retained for school purposes.
4. That the meeting did not favor the donating of 12 feet along the entire block facing on Forest avenue for widening that street, and that no ground be donated except for rounding off the corners.
5. That the city council be reminded of a protest signed by 1600 voters protesting against using ground purchased by Forest Lawn Cemetery association on Glendale avenue and running east to the summit of the Tropico hills, being used for cemetery purposes and that it be condemned and be used for a city park.

In the absence of Stuart Streit, president of the Southern Glendale Improvement association, Mrs. E. V. Bacon was nominated chairman of the meeting. Dr. Wm. C. Mabry explained the object of the meeting as being to decide whether the $31,500 appropriated by the advisory committee for use in the southern section of the city, in addition to an amount for Glendale avenue and Atacia avenue schools, should be used at Magnolia or Cerritos avenue. Mr. Hibben, chairman of the Glendale school board, stated "at the last school bond election the board promised that Cerritos would be considered at the next bond election, and the board desired to know what the people of this section want to do with the $31,500."

Dr. Mabry stated "a committee, including Kemper Campbell, E. J. Morgan and myself, was appointed by the Southern Glendale Improvement association to interview the school board prior to the last school bond election. The school board at that time said definitely that they expected to build one of the best schools in the city on the Cerritos site. The agreement was that the next bond issue would provide for the replacement of the Columbus and Cerritos schools, two of the oldest wooden school structures in the city. It is quite possible that the school conditions at present would not warrant the board in maintaining that promise. But I do not think that the advisory committee should recommend all of the money that they have for schools that were provided for in the past bond issues without first giving something to Cerritos."

The maintaining of schools both at Cerritos and Magnolia was especially desired by parents of younger children, who in the case of abandoning either school site, would have to send their children across the dangerous thoroughfares such as Central avenue, Brand boulevard and Los Feliz road.

L. H. Wilson of the San Fernando Boulevard Improvement association was present and told of a committee which had been appointed to investigate regarding the selection of a park site in the southern section of the city and had been unable to find a suitable site at a reasonable price about the securing of either the Magnolia or Cerritos avenue school grounds.

W. F. Small raised the argument that 95 feet of the Cerritos school frontage on Brand had been purchased from the Richardson estate and in the event that it was used for other than school purposes would revert back to the estate. In addition to this, Mr. Gaede set forth the following: "It seems that we need schools rather than parks in the southern section of Glendale. The city has purchased a park on Verdugo road and you can go by there almost any time and see very few people in it. It seems that school property is more important to us than parks." Mrs. E. J. Morgan said: "The increase in children attending schools has been thirty-three and one-third per cent this year. If that rate of increase continues, we need more schools. I would rather see plenty of school room for the children than parks." The need for having every school in Glendale developed to the fullest extent was set forth by Dr. Mabry.

Regarding a park site, Dr. Mabry said: "We have a most magnificent site for a park right across Glendale avenue, where the Forest Lawn Cemetery association has purchased over 100 acres. The city already owns a reservoir site on the Tropico hills. If the city would condemn this cemetery property they would have a magnificent park. There is a protest on file at the city hall preventing the extension of the cemetery in the corporate limits of Glendale."

The secretary was instructed to furnish copies of the minutes of Saturday night's meeting to the school board and the city council.

FIREMEN SHOW WELL IN PLUG LOCATING

Glendale Fire Fighters Score High on Knowledge of Connections

The fire-plug location examination which was held in the Glendale fire department, Saturday, shows that the "laddies" of Glendale are right on their job. The examination was conducted as follows: One hundred points in Glendale were chosen and the boys were required to state where the nearest plugs to these points were located.

In this examination the following scores were made: Jesse Wilkes, 100 per cent; L. Moniet, 99 1/2 per cent; F. Kiefer, 99 per cent; J. D. Meyer, 99 per cent; George Meyer, 98 per cent; Al Penner, 97 per cent; Tom Young, 96 per cent; Dean Williams, 96 per cent; Ralph Dodsworth, 95 1/2 per cent; J. W. Gould, 94 1/2 per cent; Sam Rich, 93 1/2 per cent; Jack Rockwell, 90 per cent; Hugh Christman, 88 per cent; Joe Backer, 80 1/2 per cent.

WRIGHT LAW IS ATTACKED IN COURTS

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 8.—Arguments before the state supreme court on the validity of the Wright prohibition enforcement act were scheduled to begin today.

The case before the court will be that of Franklin Burke, arrested here the day the act went into effect, and immediately carried to the higher court as a test case.

Attorneys William Hornblower and F. D. Brown, representing the Northern California Protective association, will argue that the law is unconstitutional, while the act will be upheld by Milton T. U'Ren and J. T. O'Connor of the district attorney's office.

Have You Missed Your Goat This Bright Morning?

Come get your goat. Shortly before dusk yesterday an inoffensive-looking goat strolled leisurely up Garfield avenue. As he passed along he proceeded to collect his evening meal, consisting of house numbers, mail boxes, and the like.

When he reached the W. G. Blodgett home, 366 East Garfield, the "butter" struck a bump. Mr. Blodgett decided that to eliminate any further destruction he would tie the old boy up, which he did.

If that goat belongs to you, you can reclaim same by calling at 366 East Garfield and paying for the tinware de-voured.

NEW CHURCH ORGANIZED IN GLENDALE

Nazarenes Unite for Permanent Work in the City

HAS 17 MEMBERS

Rev. J. E. Bates of So. Cal. District Officiates at Services

On Friday evening, January 5, a Church of the Nazarene was organized in Glendale with seventeen members. Rev. J. E. Bates, district superintendent of the Southern California district Church of the Nazarene had charge of the services. He was assisted by Rev. Henry Scheideman, who has been in charge of the mission for the past year.

The election of officers for this new church will be held Monday evening, January 15, at the church headquarters on South Glendale avenue. Sunday proved to be a red letter day at the services of the church.

Dear Fellow Member: We welcome you today into fellowship in our church. It is a wonderful thing to belong to "The Body of Christ." He is the Head; we are the members of the Body; each one seeking to do what will please Him.

We are working under the "Great Commission" as found in Matt. 28:18-20. But there you will also find the "Great Promise"—"Lo, I am with you always."

We wish you to find in your new church home, comfort in time of sorrow, encouragement in time of depression, fellowship at all times, and a real joy in "Working together with God."

Service and Faithfulness are the cardinal virtues in church membership; your happiness in the church will largely depend upon your finding some part in our church work, and in being faithful in your attendance at the meetings of the church.

We are glad of your interest and fellowship, and hope that you will find here a real joy in service for the Master, and in the fellowship of your brethren.

Your pastor will always be glad to receive what aid he can. In co-operation with you and your fellow members, make our church a blessing to all who come within its reach.

Let us look up, and love, and laugh, and lift.

Sincerely, Your Pastor, (signed) ERNEST E. FORD.

SHERBORN STEPS ON WRONG FOOT

Art Sherborn, a reporter on a local newspaper, is still wondering how it all happened.

It seems Art tried to stop his touring car this morning with the wrong foot. The result was that his machine collided with tremendous impact with the car belonging to City Purchasing Agent Dixon. Dixon's car was pushed ahead and bumped into the rear end of City Manager Reeves' car.

All three machines, it is understood, are in the "hospital." Art is still scratching his head.

BAPTISTS GAIN 42 MEMBERS

Accepted Into Church on Sunday Morning at Services

MEMBERSHIP IS 560

New and Larger Edifice Is to Be Called for by Advisory Committee

Forty-two new members were accepted into the First Baptist church of Glendale, Sunday morning, this number swelling the membership of the church to 560.

A few years ago this church was but an infant with a handful of members. During the past few years the church has kept pace with the growth of the community, and now the present edifice is crowded to the doors at almost every service.

The increased membership and enlarged congregations calls for a new and larger church. This week the advisory committee will meet for the purpose of considering plans and specifications for the proposed new edifice, which will cost about $100,000.

Those taken into the church Sunday included the following: Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Carver, Irwin Carver, Doris Carver, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wells, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Sherry, Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Moffit, Mildred Veasey, Mrs. Minnie Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ladd, Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Lammers, Florence Kirk, H. B. Pitman, B. E. Anderson, Mrs. Mary L. Wells, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Tarr, Francis, Olin and Ernest Tarr, Richard Pettenger, Joseph Dimmett, Charlotte Pittman, Ella Louise May, Mr and Mrs. Thomas Meehan, Thomas Meehan, Jr., Celia Meehan, Bromley Marole, Howard Bentley, Edith Akers, Walter Reed, Kenneth Elliott and Keith Arnold.

The following letter was given by Rev. E. E. Ford, pastor of the church, to those entering the church:

Dear Fellow Member: We welcome you today into fellowship in our church. It is a wonderful thing to belong to "The Body of Christ." He is the Head; we are the members of the Body; each one seeking to do what will please Him.

We are working under the "Great Commission" as found in Matt. 28:18-20. But there you will also find the "Great Promise"—"Lo, I am with you always."

TRADE LULL HELPS

Big Operators Now Seeking Long Jobs Expected to Compete

Plans and specifications for the new high school general contract were ready today to be placed in the hands of competing contractors on the work, which will be rushed to completion before the end of September.

Plans for Glendale's new high school were not o.k'd by County Superintendent Keppel as soon as expected and so the blue prints were not printed as early as figured. It chances that there is a lull because the completion of several big jobs and the starting of other big jobs which will work out to the advantage of the school in the larger number of bids that will be received and also in the orders for steel and other materials ahead of the other big jobs mentioned that are in prospect.

FORD CAPSIZES AT VALLEY ROAD AND BRAND

Strong Top Saves Family From Serious Injury As Machine Goes Over

Travelers passing Brand and San Fernando late Sunday afternoon were horrified to see a Ford filled with passengers turn turtle as an attempt was made to make the turn to the north, the wheels miraculously continuing their revolutions in mid-air. It proved to be the machine of Demetrio Chaidze, an employe of the Sunset Canyon Country club and he was accompanied by his wife and four children, a boy of 8, two little girls of two and three and a babe in arms.

Miraculously all escaped with seemingly no serious injury, though the parents and 8-year-old son were bruised. They were taken to the Glendale Sanitarium for first aid and were then conveyed by Sergeant Royle of the Glendale police staff to friends in Burbank. By the time they arrived they were so stiff from their contusions they could scarcely get out of the machine. The sergeant considered it a marvel they were alive, and that it demonstrated the value of strong auto top.

TACOMA ISOLATED BY FLOODS AND FALLEN TREES

SEATTLE, Jan. 8.—With Kent, Thomas, Auburn and other White river valley towns either partly or wholly under water and with most roads blocked by either floods or fallen trees, Seattle's land communication with Tacoma and points to the south was practically cut off today.

Whipped by yesterday's driving gale the White river had overflowed its banks three to five feet, inundating practically the whole of its valley.

Severe as is the flood, the towns in its path were prepared for it. Outside the inconvenience no serious results have been reported.

OAKLAND TO BE GREAT CENTER

OAKLAND, CALIF., Jan. 8.—Prediction that the east bay cities of Alameda County will double their population during the next ten years, was made by President W. P. Wheelan of the Builders' Exchange of Alameda County in his annual report to the exchange.

Wheelan based his prediction on the great increase in Oakland building permits during the year 1922. Permits for 1922 totaled approximately $25,000,000 against $9,500,000 in 1920 and $15,800,000 in 1921.

Forty Rabbits Are Killed in Hutches

Dogs or some other type of animal broke into the hutches of Mr. Lambie, 460 West Doran, Saturday night, and killed about 40 of his rabbits.

Press Classified Produces Results in Chicago Town

"Chief" A. O. Martin, real estate dealer of 103 1/2 South Brand boulevard, is a firm believer in Glendale Press "Swap" liners. He says they surely pay.

Listen to this: "Chief" Martin put a "swap" for five lots in Chicago, in the Press about a month ago. Two weeks later he received a letter from Bernard McMahon of Chicago. This stated that he (McMahon) has seen Mr. Martin's ad in the Press and asked him where in Chicago the lots were located. "Chief" Martin gave him the required information. A few days later Mr. Martin received an offer on three of the lots. This has been accepted and the papers necessary to close the deal are now on their way to Chicago.

"They're some pullers—those Press liners," said the "Chief" this morning.

SAN PEDRO IS AGAIN SAILOR PORT

SAN PEDRO, Cal., Jan. 8.—After an absence of 15 years the sailing ships are again filling the harbor of San Pedro, bringing in their cargoes of lumber from the Pacific Northwest.

Lumber shipments into San Pedro from North Pacific coast ports have become so great that the number of available steam schooners is inadequate to handle the business.

Lumber charters have mounted and a large fleet of wind-jammers, tied up for a long time out of commission, have been put back into service.

SNEAK THIEVES PAY VISIT TO GLENDALE WHEN THE SUN LORES RESIDENTS TO ROADS

La Canada Couple Held Up on Verdugo Road, Three Automobiles Are Stolen, Four Houses Robbed and Car Is Looted of Tools

WEEK-END VISITATION AND CLEAN-UP

Evidently the Work of Petty Larceny Burglars Whose Loot From Homes Consists of Small Articles of Comparatively Small Value

Thieves held high carnival in and about Glendale Saturday and Sunday nights, staging a hold-up on the Verdugo road, stealing three automobiles, breaking into four homes and getting away with the loot without being detected.

The bright sunshine of the day gave opportunity for thieves to enter homes, vacated by owners, touring the roads. Three owners, however, will not go riding, since thieves took their cars away.

An automobile belonging to T. R. Andrews of 3115 Perilla avenue, Los Angeles, was stolen from the grounds of the Calla Lily Creamery company on East Adams street Friday night. The car has not yet been located by the police.

An automobile belonging to C. M. Donley, 215 South Central avenue, was stolen from in front of the American Legion hall, South Pasadena, about 3 o'clock Saturday morning. The machine has not yet been located by the police.

An automobile belonging to W. J. Hensel of 525 West California was stolen from his home about 8:45 Sunday night. The police are still looking for the missing machine.

An automobile tube, one kit of tools and a tire pump were stolen from an automobile belonging to S. E. Latourette, 604 South Belmont street, as it was standing in front of the Seventh Day Adventist church on North Isabel street, Friday night.

The home of S. S. Van den Berg, 520 North Louise street, was entered and robbed at about 7 o'clock Saturday night. The thieves took a brooch containing four pearls, also a 32-calibre revolver. Entrance to the home was gained by way of a rear window. The identity of the thieves has not been learned.

Shortly before 9 o'clock Saturday night the home of H. W. Dougherty, 368 Pioneer drive, was entered and several small articles of value were taken. No trace of the thieves has been found.

Several articles of value were taken when the home belonging to Mrs. M. L. Goram, 1328 North Central, was entered, the theft taking place about 12:30 o'clock Saturday morning. No trace of the thieves or the stolen articles has been found.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gardina, residents of La Canada, were held up and robbed on Verdugo road at about 7:30 o'clock Saturday night, as they were driving from Glendale to their home. The highwayman, whose identity has not yet been learned, took the gold wrist watch worn by Mrs. Gardina before permitting them to proceed. Local police are now investigating the case.

SAN BERNARDINO PREPARES FOR ORANGE SHOW

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Jan. 8.—Plans are going forward rapidly for the Thirteenth Annual National Orange Show which will be held here from February 16 to 26.

The officials of the organization have purchased a 50-acre tract which in the future will be the permanent home of the show.

An army of men is engaged in transforming the grounds into a garden of beauty, a proper setting for the mid-winter citrus classic.

Innovations are many in this year's show. All games of chance will be barred. There will be no Kewpie concessions such as are usually found, and no stentorian barkers will injure the ears of the guests. The committee, in making this decision, out of a revenue of $10,000, but believes it will be worth while in order to elevate the show to the proper and desired tone, in keeping with the greatness of the citrus industry.

An imposing entrance-way is being built of permanent materials. One feature is a large auto park close to the show, where out-of-town guests may drive in, purchase tickets, and do away with all turn-style bother.

The whole thing is being worked out with an eye to the future, being modeled as much for convenience and beauty as possible, after the examples set by the San Diego and San Francisco expositions of seven years ago.

SPEAKERSHIP IS MAIN ISSUE AT SACRAMENTO

Fight Overshadows Inauguration of Gov. Richardson

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 8.—Inauguration of Governor-elect Friend W. Richardson and retirement of William D. Stephens as chief executive of California is overshadowed in the halls of the state capitol today, as the forty-fifth biennial session of the state legislature convened, by the bitter contest over the speakership of the assembly.

With the new governor not slated to take the oath of office until after both houses are organized, the one big topic of the day is whether Frank Merriam of Long Beach, advocated by Richardson, or Albert Rosenhine, San Francisco assemblyman, supported by the opposing faction, will be elected speaker of the lower house.

The legislature will open its first session at noon. Early this morning, however, the corridors of the state house were filled with assemblymen, discussing the possible outcome of the speakership contest.

Merriam's supporters were extremely optimistic, claiming 55 votes for the Long Beach man. Many declared that he will be chosen on the first ballot.

Friends of Rosenhine, on the other hand, were still claiming victory. There was still a possibility this morning that a compromise candidate name be advanced. T. M. Wright of San Jose is strongly favored by several assemblymen from the rural districts as a substitute who might prove acceptable.

Organization of the senate will not be accompanied by the same spirit as will be manifest in the opening assembly session. Senator Arthur H. Breed of Piedmont will be re-elected president pro tem of the upper house, it is generally agreed.

Governor-elect Richardson's inauguration is not expected before late tomorrow, due to the anticipated delay in organization of the legislature because of the assembly contest. Both Richardson and retiring Governor Stephens have prepared speeches for the occasion which they will deliver before a joint session of the two houses.

Minor positions in the legislature will also be sought for by more than one candidate in most instances, it was indicated today. Deating the post of chief clerk of the assembly is Arthur A. Ohnimus of San Francisco, minute clerk at five session, Jesome B. Kavanagh of San Bernardino, who held the chief clerkship at the last session, is here for the openair, but is not a candidate for re-election.

C. William Booth, of Oakland, assistant minute clerk at the last session, will seek the office of minute clerk, should Ohnimus be named chief clerk.

It is expected Booth will be opposed by Walter Hicks of Sacramento.

Indications point to W. J. Leflar, Sacramento, and Joseph Nolan, Los Angeles, being re-elected sergeants-at-arms respectively of the assembly and senate.

Four ministers are reported contesting for the post of chaplain of the assembly. The Rev. W. H. Hermitage of Sacramento is reported in the race against Bishop William Moreland, the Rev. W. E. Harrison, both of Sacramento, and the Rev. George E. Gardner of Lincoln.

THE UNCHANGING NATURE OF JESUS CHRIST IS TOLD

"The Unchanging Christ" was the subject of the discourse given Sunday morning at the First Baptist church of Glendale by Rev. E. Ford, pastor. He took for his topic the following verse, "Jesus is the same, yesterday, today and forever."

hind. He is still our leader during 1923. "Jesus Christ is a conservative, in regard to the basic truth. He is a modernist in that he was not surprised at the coming of the world war. He is not surprised at the condition of Europe today. He is not only up-to-date, but is ahead of time. He has never lost control of the universe. When he enters a heart he fills it with a mighty, restful feeling."

LUTHERAN OUTLOOK IN GLENDALE IS PRESENTED

Speaking on the subject of "A New Year Meditation," Dr. Funk said, at the First Lutheran church yesterday: "The year 1922, with all its precious memories, has been numbered in the eternity of the past. And as we stand upon the threshold of the new year our minds are still fresh with the thoughts of Christmas cheer. With some feeling of satisfaction you say, 'I have remembered my friends and tried to make them happy.' That was a very gracious thing to do. Yet it is possible that there is one whom you have forgotten. Were you celebrating the anniversary of the birth of your friends? Did all of their birthdays fall on December 25? No, it was the anniversary for the birth of Christ. The wise men came bringing precious gifts to him. Did you lay a special gift upon his altar? Did you make any sacrifice for the church which He loved? Have you diligently observed her ordinances?"

PATTERN PRAYER OF LUKE 11:2-4 IS DISCUSSED

Rev. W. E. Edmonds preached Sunday morning at the Presbyterian church on the Pattern Prayer, from Luke 11:2-4. "What we call the Lord's Prayer is really the disciples' prayer. The true Lord's prayer is in John 17. The disciples had said, 'Teach us to pray.' We need to learn, to know how, to be ready for need. Our year motto is, 'Prayer changes things.' First, to know anything at all about this, we have got to be founded in certainty of the personality of God. In heaven, He hears, He sees, all. You will never get anywhere in prayer without this foundation. We know and are positive He hears and He answers, and He is acquainted with all. The Lord's prayer teaches us that all true prayer begins in recognition of the Father. We do not come to Him first as a great executive. All that the father is in the home He is plus divinity. He knows all that the child does. This presupposes that the praying one is His child. All are not His children, but those who are under the blood of Christ. Others get just as much good of all the common blessings but they are not on 'praying terms.' 'Who art in Heaven'—here we learn His majesty, sovereignty. The Old Testament full of the sublime recognition of His majesty. We need today a new realization of this, and of the awfulness of setting aside His claims. One of the best ways to get to know this is to look at the Cross and realize what it meant. Prayer brings fellowship, not only with God, but with human hearts. If you can't pray for some one, there is something wrong. Whom are you carrying in prayer? God died for all. 'Our' is a world term; if you are narrow with it you will get nowhere. All the children within a home—there is fellowship. 'Hallowed be Thy Name.' Worship, praise, is the highest element in prayer. People so much pray devotion but getting things is subordinate to praise. 'In heaven'—heaven is a place, real. Our mothers, friends, are in a place. And we believe some day God is calling us and those gates will open to us. Then don't be frightened of dying. If you are a true child, nothing can separate you. The secret key that unlocks all is 'Thy will be done.' People fear that as a death-knell to all happiness. But no; rather is it the pledge of all possible blessing. No prayer is so mighty, so sure, so full of blessing, as this. 'Is it possible for a believer to be sure, dead sure, of God's will?' Yes. There is nothing God is so anxious for as the making of His will known to you. Rex C. Kelley, Glendale Y. M. C. A. secretary, returned Saturday night from a two days' trip to the Red Triangle camp in the San Geronimo mountains. He left Friday with a group of 28 boys from the junior high school Y. M. C. A. group of Burbank, of which E. B. Thomas is leader.

INTEREST STOPS ON MANY UNITED STATES DEBENTURES

If any residents of the Twelfth Federal Reserve district, comprising California, Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Utah, Nevada, Arizona and Hawaii, are still holding 4 1/2% Victory notes of the Fifth Liberty loan with the letters A, B, C, D, E or F prefixed to their serial numbers, the treasury department desires to call to their special attention the fact that these particular notes were "called" by the secretary of the treasury for redemption on December 15, 1922, and therefore have ceased to bear interest since then. The 3 1/2% Victory notes also were "called" for redemption on June 15, 1922 and have likewise ceased bearing interest from that date. Three hundred and nineteen million dollars of Victory notes were sold in the Twelfth district, and as a considerable portion of the "called" series still remains unredemmed, it is obviously to the holders' interest to cash them immediately and put the proceeds to work through deposits in their banks or by investment in other sound securities. Otherwise, the money tied up in these expired notes will be earning nothing for its owners. The treasury department wishes also to remind all present holders of the 1918 issue of War Savings Stamps that these stamps matured on January 1, 1923. Facilities have been provided at all banks and postoffices to handle the redemptions either for cash or by exchange into Treasury Savings certificates. Bankers and postmasters can give full information on the subject. If this exchange is made before January 15, the certificates will be dated January 1, 1923, and will enjoy interest from that date; otherwise, they must bear the date they are actually issued and will draw interest from such issue-date only. As some fifty million dollars were due the citizens of this district on January 1, 1923 for the 1918 War Savings Stamps they still held, such unscrupulous effort is being made to induce those who have not yet redeemed their stamps to part with them for questionable stocks or to put the proceeds into other highly speculative ventures. In view of the wide distribution of these stamps among a very large number of small buyers, the government is greatly concerned in seeing that all holders get their full face value of $5 per stamp, and that they reinvest this money to advantage. The treasury therefore recommends and urges reinvestment of these funds through exchange of the stamps for 4% treasury savings certificates up to the limit allowed, which is $5000 maturity value of these five-year absolutely safe and profitable certificates, issued in denominations of $25, $100 and $1000. The treasury asks your valued cooperation in cautioning all stamp owners not to part with their stamps for less than their full face value, and also in awakening all holders of the "called" Victory notes to the advisability of cashing them without further delay.

LUTHERAN FOLKS INSPECT CHURCH SITE

Officials and members of the Lutheran Church are considering building plans for their new location on Kenwood between Harvard and Colorado. Believing that summer is the best season in which to build, they will probably not start operations until after the first of March. They are considering a $50,000 church on a site 100 by 150 feet. Mr. and Mrs. John Gutekunst and daughter Dorothy of Harvard street, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Williams and son Harry and Mr. and Mrs. J. Porte of Cleveland, Ohio, who are spending the winter in Glendale, enjoyed a motor trip and picnic party at Orange county park on Sunday.

SPANNING WITH ARRELL COURAGE BIGGEST ASSET IN SPORT BY HENRY L. FARELL United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Some years back Johnny McTaggart started out to be the best jockey on the track. He was one of the leading riders of the country and his services were in great demand. One day in 1918 he went down in a spill and was badly injured. When he got back in the saddle again he found his nerve had departed. He had acquired a family and he didn't like the risks. Successful riders, as successes in all sport, have to have the heart to take chances and McTaggart slipped from the successful class. He was still game in the belief it would come back to him and he was courageous enough to fight the worst of all battles—with himself. Leaving the big tracks, he went around to the smaller ones and fought and fought until the old darning came back. He returned to the big time late in the last season and rode with his former class. Trainers and owners whispered among themselves: "Johnny's got his nerve back." His comeback was rewarded with a contract to ride next season for the stable of Mrs. Payne Whitney. Two years ago the New York Yankees took south with them for spring training, a young infielder, Chick Fawcett, one of the most promising players that had come up from the minors in years. The Yanks and the Brooklyn Robins had arranged an exhibition tour on the way north and in one of the games, Fawcett was hit on the head by one of Jeff Pfeffer's fast balls, one of the speediest deliveries in the game. Fawcett lingered between life and death for weeks. Operations were necessary and his career in baseball was despaired of, because old-timers said: "They're always gun-shy after that." Recovering, Fawcett came back to the Yanks, and instead of showing timidity at the bat he seemed over-daring and the pitchers were almost afraid of him. His heart surely was there and his courage never had been weakened, but the injury left him physically weak and he was unable to play in hot weather, dizzy spells seizing him when the sun boiled down on his head. Fawcett is still in the business, still fighting to come clear back. He is expected to be one of the regulars of the Boston Red Sox next season and if his heart has anything to do with it, he will. Jack Kid Wolfe of Cleveland used to be rated several years ago as one of the greatest bantamweights in the ring. He was a near champion and was going good with featherweight. The Kid went out of his class and hit a street car and was nearly ruined. His head was all cut up and he was generally reduced almost to junk. He recovered, but his eyes were bad and his shoulders were bound. Friends patted him on the back and told him it was too bad. He had a family and he hadn't saved much money. Everyone believed he was all in, but the Kid himself. Managers all gave him the laugh when he wanted to work for them, but finally Tommy McIntyre took him and the Kid is back. He may never be a champion now, but he's got the heart of a champion and he's a first-rater, making money—one of the main ideas. During the past summer he fought Frankie Jerome in New York. Jerome knocked him down seven times in the first round and five times more in the second, but the Kid kept bobbing up and then he started. The judges gave the decision to Jerome, but it was the best-drawn anyone ever saw.

ORANGE GROWERS SEEK LLOYD'S INSURANCE

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8.—Orange growers have asked Lloyd's, the London insurance company, for insurance of their crop against frost, according to an official of the California Fruit Growers' exchange.

Whether Lloyd's will assume the risk has not yet been determined, but it is thought probable that the underwriting will be accomplished. As yet there has been no frost this season, but it is considered that the menace exists until the end of January, after which there is practically no danger of low temperatures likely to damage the fruit.

Crop conditions in the orange groves are reported as very encouraging and shipments in volume will begin this month.

At the Theaters "KNIGHTHOOD TO FLOWER" AT THE T. D. & L.

Today is the last day to see the inevitable character actor, Lon Chaney, in "Shadows," at the T. D. & L. theater, where his dramatic epic of the screen opened yesterday to capacity audiences. This picture is one of extraordinary character and offers entertainment of an unusual type. It is a good show.

Starting tomorrow, Tuesday, the picture sensation of years, "When Knighthood Was in Flower," will be the attraction at the T. D. & L. This is without doubt the most gorgeous, most pretentious film ever attempted. It contains 12 dazzling, wonderful reels, offering a two and one-half hour entertainment, making the special performance beginning at 1, 3:30, 6 and 8:30 p. m. sharp. This show is "road showed" by Paramount Pictures and as such is played to advanced admission prices—the same being: General admission, 55 cents and children 25 cents, tax included. Loges will sell at 83 cents and a few seats at $1.10, tax included. "When Knighthood Was in Flower," offers the unusual in big film productions and is acclaimed one of the greatest spectacles presented in the silent drama. It is the finest thing ever shown in Glendale or anywhere else for that matter and is therefore a cinema treat. Don't miss it. The Shrine club of Glendale will attend the last performance, Wednesday night. There will be about one hundred, including their families.

"Brothers Under the Skin" at Glendale. "There is no such thing as the silent drama," says Pat O'Malley, who plays one of the leading roles in "Brothers Under the Skin," a Goldwyn picture directed by E. Mason Hopper, which is at the Glendale Theatre for two days, commencing yesterday.

"The voice is one of the most important elements in screen acting," asserts Mr. O'Malley. "It is true that it can't be heard on the screen, but it isn't too much to say that it can be seen. I mean that the vibrations of the voice affect the play of a motion picture performer to a far greater extent than most people dream.

"In the first place, screen acting isn't pantomime. It follows closely the technique of the speaking stage, and it is silly to suppose that one could follow that technique, even with the variations demanded by the camera, and abandon the most potent force an actor possesses—the voice."

O. W. Tarr joins "Star" force of salesmen. O. W. Tarr, well known in local automobile circles, has joined the "Star" forces in Glendale and will assist in popularizing the newest baby in the auto family.

"I appreciate the opportunity to sell Star cars," said Mr. Tarr, "because I believe in the popular priced cars. There are a hundred people who can afford a Star where there is one for a Juggernaut eight. The low priced car always sells well in good times, and when times get bad, if they ever do again, the car of low price still has a very decided advantage over medium and high priced automobiles."

Recreation club to hold party tonight. The first meeting of the Glendale Community Service Recreation Leaders' Club will be in the nature of an informal party to be held at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the gymnasium room in the basement of the main high school building. An invitation is extended to the public to attend. The program of games will be in charge of the group of which Mrs. Mae Rosenberg is leader.

KEITH L. BROOKS' DISCOURSE AT BIBLE CLASS

The third Epistle of John contains no important doctrinal teaching or special revelation, said Keith L. Brooks at the Men's Bible class yesterday. It is just the outpouring of the Christian love of an old apostle to a man named Gaius of whom we know nothing except that John considered him a fellow helper for the truth. As the second epistle was directed against speculative theology, the third is directed against personal ambitions in the church. John had written to a church which had allowed one Diotrophes to operate what would now be called the "steam roller" in the church. This is not uncommon in these days, but in the new-born church it created a sensation to have one man attempt to run everything and everybody. This man rejected apostolic letters and authority and which he doth, prating against us with malicious words; and not content therewith, neither doth he himself receive the brethren, but casteth them out of the church. Diotrophes may not have held any office in the church but he was certainly the big boss and put every member of the church who would not recognize his authority. As the original more correctly reads, "He is a power-loving man." His master passion was to snap his fingers and see others jump. As the apostles would not dance when he whistled "he was opposed to them. He was like the Irishman with a very independent nature, who was wrecked at sea and thrown up on a strange island. When he saw an inhabitant he asked, "Have ye any government here?" "Yes," replied the inhabitant. "Then," said the Irishman, "we can go and tell 'em I'm again it." The desire for power in the church has often been the fruitful occasion of much trouble. One who seeks prominence is very liable to be unscrupulous in his methods. The tribe of steam roller operators in Christendom is not liable to die out in our day. Nevertheless, Christians should heed John's warning that we should not imitate such methods but rather that we should devote ourselves to going good and magnifying Jesus Christ.

While Diotrophes sets an example which John says is to be abhorred, he next mentions a man by the name of Demetrius, whose example we may well imitate. He was a man whose character was his commendation. John says that he had a "good report of all men and of the truth itself." There are some who have done big things in the world who might be glad to exchange their fame for a reputation like this. There is a sense in which all Christians should have a good report of all men. Hated as a Christian may be by the world for what he stands for, on the other hand, the man of the world should be able to say of him, "After all, he is a good man. I cannot put my hand on his life." That testimony may let us all be ambitious to have.

It would be a good thing if many a Christian could hear what his next door neighbor thinks of him. The people who have no sympathy with our religious convictions are the more rigid judges of our conduct. Do not think because you are much criticized that it is all on account of your religion. It is more apt to be on account of your inconsistencies. Let us remember what was said of Daniel in olden times; "We shall find no occasion against him except it be concerning the law of his God." Let us seek to have not only a good report of all men, but "of the truth itself." While Demetrius bore witness of the truth in the world, he witnessed of him. He himself was an epistle known and read of all men. I like the verse by Edgar Guest: "I would rather see a sermon Than hear one any day, I would rather one should walk with me Than merely tell the way. The best of all the preachers Are the men who live their creeds."

For to see good put in action Is what everybody needs.

He is a physician and surgeon in the U. S. navy and has led an adventurous life. Graduating in 1918 from a medical college in Baltimore, with high honors, he was first appointed to Admiral Winslow's flagship, but found life there too dull and was transferred to a transport. He expects now to be stationed in the coast for two years and then be sent abroad for three years.

BERKELEY, Calif., Jan. 8.—If Mrs. Anna L. Saylor, assemblywoman from the Forty-first California district, is able to put the measure through, California will have a state park on Mount Diablo, the famous mountain which is the starting point for the Northern California surveys.

"The plan for making an outdoor playground on Mount Diablo for the people of California meets with my approval," declared Mrs. Saylor, "and it is my intention to support the proposition at the coming session of the legislature as I did in 1921.

"It is natural that women throughout California who take an interest in public affairs, should take an interest in this measure, and I do not doubt that they will. Mount Diablo is so located that it is easily accessible to hundreds of thousands of home owners in this part of the state.

"I think God made Mount Diablo for a park, and I do not think that it ought to be used for any other purpose. The rapid increase in population has made it apparent that provision for the welfare of the people must be made promptly in order to prevent such places as Mount Diablo from falling into the hands of a few to the exclusion of the many."

The state has already made a beginning by authorizing the Mount Diablo park commission, appointed by the governor, to arrange for the purchase of 4,000 acres on the mountain for park purposes. Mrs. Saylor thinks that the plan will probably be accomplished soon.

MRS. NANNOWOODS RETURNS FROM TRIP NORTH

Mrs. Nanno Woods and daughter Dorothy returned yesterday from a ten-days' sojourn in San Francisco, where they added largely to their fund of musical and dramatic knowledge. Mrs. Woods as director of the Glendale Community Players, spent most of her time in delving into similar work being carried on in the northern city. She had the good fortune to meet Mr. Sam Thune, director of the San Francisco Stage Guild, and to be present at a very fine performance of "Enter Madame," given under Mr. Thune's direction at the Plaza Theatre. She was also greatly interested in the Oakland Community Players, whose paid director, Miss Katherine Livingstone, gave Mrs. Woods much valuable information. At Berkeley, the University had not yet re-opened, but at Stanford University, the dramatic director, Mr. Cavendish Bentinek, put himself at the full disposal of Mrs. and Miss Woods and helped them enormously. The Stanford theater workshop proved very interesting, as was also a try-out, conducted in the auditorium theater, of students desiring to be cast for the first play of this term. One of the most inspiring experiences was the meeting with Mrs. J. Cuddy, formerly dramatic instructor at the University Normal, and now director of the Children's Little Theatre of San Francisco. The school system of San Francisco is enthusiastically backing the Children's Theatre by allowing Mrs. Cuddy to recruit her juvenile players direct from the schools, and by placing the school rooms and auditoriums at Mrs. Cuddy's daily disposal for rehearsals and productions. Every Saturday morning at 10 o'clock a production by children for children (and adults) is given at the Plaza Theatre, admission varying from 25 cents to $1 a ticket. Mrs. Woods was fortunate to be present at one of these plays, the ever-favorite story of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," which had proved so successful that this was the fourth Saturday of the production. The theater which holds about 1400, was filled to capacity with children and adults. The scenery, sets and costumes for the Children's Theatre are all designed, and created by the students in the art department of the university. Mrs. Cuddy graciously spent an evening with Mrs. and Miss Woods at the Manx Hotel, giving them much valuable information and advice as to children's theater movements. She writes many of the juvenile plays, and has promised to allow Mrs. Woods the use of any of her writings; many of them are adaptations of fairy stories. One is a Chinese comedy specially written for children.

Mrs. Woods also visited the museums and art galleries, searching for ideas in form, color and costume; in an old book shop she came across some wonderful pictures of Oriental and especially Arabian and Persian coloring and designs. One especially valuable find was that of an illustrated edition of "Arabian Nights," from which she received many hints for the costuming and staging of the Glendale Community Players at the evening of Thursday, February 8.

FILM IN FARM WORK. The extension work of the Department of Agriculture by means of the motion picture is growing in popular favor. Thirty-three new films were completed and 21 old films were revised during the past year and work was begun on 23 new subjects. The department now has a total of 547 reels available for distribution to those who meet the requirements.

CHURCH THRIVES IN BIG PRISON

Congregation of Federal Pen at Atlanta Is Growing. ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 8.—One of the largest congregations in the South is located in the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta. The organization, which was started a year or so ago by an inmate, a former distinguished prosecuting attorney from an Indiana city, numbers several thousand members.

In addition, a regular Sunday school, with an average attendance of over 2,000 each Sunday, is held in the mammoth prison.

As the work of the prison church progressed scores of men, many of whom are in for terms amounting to practically life imprisonment, professed a desire to join. The department of justice at Washington granted these men special permission to go to a church near the prison without guards and be accepted as members. None of the prisoners have attempted to escape.

The prisoner from Indiana who organized the church has since been pardoned. Shortly after the church was organized another prisoner, upon whose testimony the attorney from Indiana was sentenced, came to the jail. At a church service he broke down and confessed that the charges against the Indiana man had been framed and gave details of the plot. Shortly afterward the attorney was released.

The expenses of the prison church are met by contributions from outside. Checks from every state in the union are received to help defray expenses. Some of the largest contributors are men who once were confined in the jail.

WINEIGERS MARK 20TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY. Last Thursday evening, January 4, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Wineiger celebrated their twentieth wedding anniversary at their beautiful home at 401 Fisher street. The guests were Rev. and Mrs. Kelso, and Mr. and Mrs. Cox, Pasadena; Mr. and Mrs. Goodwin, Eagle Rock; Mr. and Mrs. Melling, Mrs. Lahor, Mrs. Kimbrel and Mr. De Motte and daughter of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. Norton and Mr. and Mrs. Manley, of Lankershim, and Mr. and Mrs. DeBerry, of Los Angeles.

A grand turkey dinner was served. The decorations were in pink and white. There was a beautiful floral centerpiece of sweet peas. Their two charming and talented daughters, Misses Gladys and Irene gave some delightful selections of music on the piano and violin. Many beautiful gifts were received.

Mrs. Charles C. Sherrod of 207 East Broadway returned last week after a month's absence in Memphis, Tenn. While she was away, her son, Charles C. Sherrod, Jr., was employed by the postoffice for the holiday delivery rush and won a prize for efficiency. He is a junior in U. S. C.

Truths in Epigram

Emotions are stars that guide only when the heavens are clear; but reason is the magnetic needle that directs when stars are hidden and shine no more.—J. P. Richter.

Let not the sun go down upon your wrath.—New Testament.

Anger is momentary madness, so control your passion or it will control you.—Horace.

THE SPIRIT OF GAMBLING

Spirited raids are being made on the gambling rooms of Los Angeles. Police break their way through stout doors, capture players, and confiscate paraphernalia. The prisoners are forced to put up substantial bail and are heavily fined. For a long time there had been charges that gambling was being openly conducted in that city. The game that is played in secret, behind locked doors that open to callers having the pass word, is as far as possible from open.

In one sense much of life is a gamble. That is to say, everybody must take chances. "Nothing venture, nothing have." The prospector in the desert is hazarding his time and money upon the belief that out there treasure is waiting to be found. Capital is invested on faith. The individual starts for a far land hoping for better things than he is leaving. He is taking chances; gambling, but in an honorable way. One buys an insurance policy, the operation being his bet with the company as to the term of his own longevity. Purely a gamble, this, but generally a wise and proper one. These facts have no bearing on the process that goes on in a secret room with stacked cards and loaded dice. That is different. The law demands that it be suppressed. When the law becomes drastically active, rogues are being punished and the weak protected.

Because men are willing "to take a chance" is nothing to win their patronage to tricks and devices wholly devoid of the element of chance. Such are the games being broken up by police axes. They afford the player not even a vague prospect of winning. They are run for profit alone, and the profit is for the proprietor alone. One of the great evils to which they lead is the luring of men into dishonest practices. Men often steal money to bet on the gambler's table. Or they use money that belongs to their families. If they do not steal from employers or the public, they steal from their creditors. The confidence operators do not care, so long as the money gets into their unclean hands. They have no higher moral standing than the bandit of the highway. Where permitted to flourish they constitute a corrupting influence politically. It is part of their business to debauch the officials whose duty it is to suppress their traps, and drive them out.

The last honorable professional gambler was John Oakhurst. He had lived only in one of Bret Harte's most charming stories, at that.

AN ABIDING PROSPERITY

Months ago when stagnancy prevailed in the business of a large part of the country, southern California escaped its influence almost wholly. It became known as the white spot of the financial map, and this reputation is retained by it as markedly since a more healthy tone has prevailed elsewhere. In other words, southern California keeps ahead of the procession. To persons familiar with conditions throughout the United States, who have knowledge of climate, resources and opportunities, this position of leadership is not puzzling. It is the logical status. It is natural response to recognition of the possibility of development; coupled with a lively effort to promote the development.

Southern California is one of the few regions in which the suavity and evenness of climate throughout the seasons is an actual asset. It draws tourists from all over this land, and from other lands. They are charmed by a climatic environment that presents no hardships whatever. Whether summer or winter is the more delightful may be beyond determination, but they like to discuss the subject. They conclude to stay, or leaving, they tell friends at a distance. The friends come and some of them stay. So one phase of the process of growth is constant. The increase of population is steady and inevitable.

A community is made in large part by the people who are in it. The intelligent observer sees that here are endless chances for investment. He learns of cheap power, of fertile lands, of deposits of oil. He sees a magnificent harbor at San Pedro, where shipping ever becomes more in volume, and towards which the railroads reach eagerly, ready to expend millions in improvement. He catches the spirit of the people, partakes of their faith; abides with them as one of them. So, to meet the tide of wealth wrested from the earth and the sea, there is a tide of wealth in money, in enterprise and personal character, coming the other way. On these shores the tides meet; explaining the white spot.

WASTING JUDICIAL TIME

One reason that the courts are unable to transact necessary business promptly is that the dockets are cluttered up with futile controversies wholly without standing. Some of these are brought with the hope of gain, the purpose often being to procure a settlement outside the court. Pressing a groundless action sometimes leads to this desired climax, the victim consenting rather than undergo the discomfort and cost of formal defense.

An instance that may partake of this character may be discerned in a recent suit for $1,000,000 for breach of promise. The young woman bringing the suit had been married after the alleged offense. In order, apparently, to appear lone and unprotected before the jury, she had sought and been granted annulment of this marriage. Matters did not work out satisfactory, quite. The judge declared that the annulment had been brought about by fraud and perjury. He demanded the marshalling of all the facts in order that the plaintiff might be arrested on this serious charge, together with her mother, accused of aiding the scheme.

Doubtless there have been warrantable actions for breach of promise. Records will show that they are comparatively few among the total. When a woman of no particular standing in any walk of life, suddenly demands that a man, who happens to possess money, turn over to her a million or a considerable portion of such sum, the suspicion is born immediately that an activity akin to blackmail has been started. The matter having gone so far as to be on the judicial docket, the man, of course, must have the privilege of defense. But that such cases should get into the courts at all, is a waste of public time and money and a sore trial to the patience.

When a pessimist loses his mind it's a fortunate man who doesn't find it.

Height of a lazy man's ambition—to marry a woman who runs a boarding house.

The love of money may be the root of evil, but men root for the almighty dollar just the same.

THE YOUTH OF THE WORLD.

By DR. FRANK CRANE

More and more we are struck by the youth of the world, by its rawness, its immaturity, by the manifest deciduousness of all its existing institutions, ideas and beliefs.

We cannot restrain the feeling that in two or three centuries from now people are going to look back on this time with the same sort of curious amazement that we now look back upon the customs and notions of the days of Philip II, of Spain or Elizabeth of England.

There is hardly anything that we have established, anything that we have accepted as excellent or even possible, that even a little criticism cannot show to be entirely absurd.

Think first of the condition of the whole world. Think of the fifty or so nations of mankind, wasting probably nine-tenths of their surplus production in getting ready to fight each other, when they might save all that simply by uniting in some sort of a federation similar to that of the forty-eight states of America.

And think of the vast passions with which this state of things is supported, and how universally patriotism is magnified even above religion, and how we look with horror upon a man who is not willing to give his life to perpetrate this inconceivable ridiculous state of things.

Think of the institutions by which the moral convictions of the race are now cared for, of the contending religions, such as Buddhism, Mahometanism, and Christianity, which for the most part are mere war cries. Think of the enormous effort wasted in maintaining rival denominations, and in the struggle of each for precedence, and the almost entirely impossibility of inducing all people who feel religion, which at bottom is the enthusiasm for humanity, from coming together and working in harmony.

Think of the importance we attach to the actions, the properties and the ideas of people of forty years of age and over, when they will soon be dead anyhow, and of the comparatively trivial attention we bestow toward the training of children.

Think of our ugly, unharmonious hodge-podge of buildings which we call cities, where blooms the very flower of civic life, yet where there is no artistic sense sufficient to curb our rampant individualism and to build a unified and harmonious city for the labors and pleasures of man.

Think of the hostile camps of Labor and Capital, of powerful labor unions hating and fighting the very thing that gives them their tools to work with and the brain to direct them, and of the mediaeval and childish sentiment which actuates most successful capitalists, inducing them to imitate in a world of modern democracy the futile splendors of outgrown times.

Think of the almost insane ideas which govern us in our treatment of criminals, how we lock them up in prisons, punish and debate them, and finally kill them, and how we reject as childish and idle the simple, self-evident conclusion of common sense, that criminals should be cured and not hurt, and that the welfare of society does not depend upon the devilish thing called vengeance, but upon the intelligent development of the moral inhibitions among the people. It is enough to make one ardently wish that the doctrine of reincarnation might be true, so that he might come back after several generations and see how the world had outgrown these glaring and cruel immaturities.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

"Those are the kind"

Clement Whittier, East Cleveland, O.: "In today's 'Right Word' you have No. 7 corrected from 'Them are the kind' to 'Those are the kind'. I must take issue with you as I think either of the following correct:

"1. Those are the kinds—
"2. This is the kind."

"I shall be glad to learn through your column the authority for 'Those are the kind'."

Answer: Undoubtedly the first thought that flashed through Mr. Whittier's mind, as he looked at "Those are the kind", was the faulty and tabooed expression, those kind. "The Right Word" concedes without a murmur the inaccuracy of the following: those kind; those kind; kind of a box. The following are correct: this kind; that kind; kind of box; these kinds; those kinds. But "The Right Word" does not concede that either "Those are the kind" or "These are the kind" is correct. "Those are the kind" and "These kind" are not parallel cases.

The incorrectness of "Those kind" is quickly explained. Those is a plural adjective; kind is a singular noun; the two words do not, therefore, work together as a team.

But the case of "Those are the kind" is different. Those is the subject of the sentence and should be followed by a plural verb. Next, a sentence with a plural subject and a plural verb may be completed with a plural noun; as, they were my audience.

Again, kind symbolizes a class of individuals or the individuals of a class; it is a collective noun, and as such may be associated with a plural verb. Lastly, those symbolized individuals of one certain class. Therefore, whatever those symbolized are the class, not the classes, not the kinds.

If one were to point out a basket of cooking apples and also a basket of eating apples, it would then be correct to say, "Those are the kinds I want."

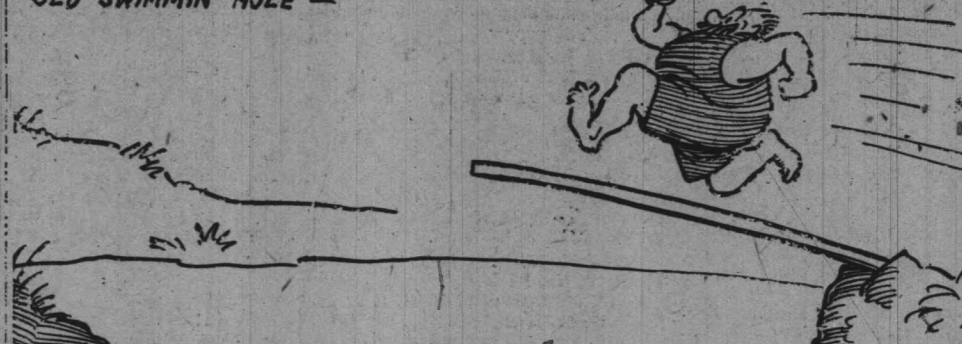

But if one were to point at cooking apples only the following would be correct: those are the kind I want (those are the individuals of the class).

"They were my audience" is correct. The foregoing sentence and "Those are the kind" are parallel grammatically. Therefore, "Those are the kind" is correct.

Songs of the Poets

Song—By Richard-Le Gallienne (1866)

Take it, love!
'Twill soon be over,
With the thickening of the clover,
With the calling of the plover,
Take it, take it, lover.

Take it, boy!
The blossom's falling,
And the farewell cuckoo's calling,
While the sun and showers are one,
Take your love out in the sun.

Take it, girl!
And fear no after,
Take your fill of all this laughter,
Laugh or not, the tears will fall,
Take the laughter first of all.

JURIES AND JURYMEN

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

Consider the jury—and weep.

Why is a jury? Because our forefathers had a hunch that a man's peers knew him better than others and would give him justice.

The facts are that a man's peers do not know him, unless by "peer" you mean any citizens of this supposed republic. Trial by jury at the present writing means trial by anybody who happens to be on a panel and who, having been drawn for service, is unable to get out of it.

In short, juries are made up of folks who need two easy dollars a day and a few unfortunates who are unable to escape service.

Now, how does a jury function? It functions as it naturally would considering its component parts. It functions by chance, by prejudice, by predilection, by hysteria, by sympathy and occasionally, by accident, according to evidence.

How could it function otherwise? You can't judge evidence unless you have been taught to discriminate. You can't decide justly if you are swayed by unadmitted sympathies and antipathies. You can't know mental conditions without experience and training in abnormal states of consciousness.

Put a jury of jealous wives to try a man killer, a wife who has been driven desperate by neglect and falsity and what do you get? Justice, probably; more likely a decision based on a secret fellow feeling for the sinner.

Anyhow, juries are responsible to nobody. They can't be punished, fined, demoted, disgraced or recalled for their decisions. They decide and "justify" themselves in public interviews. And that ends the matter.

If this nation judged financial matters as it judges criminal matters there would be an international conference to declare us a nation of morons and bar us from activity in matters of importance, such as rates of exchange, tariffs, treaties, boundary lines and wars.

But we believe in the jury system regardless of its results. That's "loyalty to our institutions," that's "100 per cent. Americanism."

Small wonder that crime increases with abounding confidence born in the soul of the criminal that justice is bunk and his chances of escape so great that he can afford to gratify his criminal instincts.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

BORAH AND RUSSIA

Before Senator Borah made his address in Boston urging recognition of the Russia government he was told that he was going to speak to the most conservative people under the American flag. His reply was that he was going to "preach the most conservative doctrine that has ever preached from a rostrum."

His critics say his argument is weak because even though the soviet regime may be firmly established it has not recognized its international obligations, such as debts and compensation for property seized from foreigners. He might ask whether or not America has made a real effort to bring about an agreement.

Senator Borah is a powerful debater and usually logical. But Senator Borah is a republican. The natural thing for him to do would be to try to convince President Harding, Secretary Hughes and Secretary Hoover privately that recognition of the Russia government would be wise. Perhaps he has tried to do this. But whether he has or not his Boston address is weakened by his gibes at the administration. He gains nothing, for instance, by referring to George Washington's cabinet as "the greatest cabinet in the history of the world, except, of course, our present cabinet. Mr. Harding and Mr. Hughes are in power, as well as Mr. Lenin.

LET 'EM TALK

In supporting General Pershing in his demand for military preparedness there is no doubt to discourage these earnest persons who would abolish war from among the probabilities of humanity. They should continue their efforts with unflinching zeal, but until they are able to offer the world some better security than hope and good intentions the United States cannot afford to lay itself naked to possible enemies.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Judge Ben. Lindsey of Denver says he thinks marriage is a failure. At least he said the other day that he did. Perhaps he was speaking in haste, and having had a talk with Mrs. Lindsey since, has modified his views. Anyhow, if the judge is going to cling to his radical theory, he will have to cite a lot of proof. The fact is that this is a world in which men and women marry and are given in marriage. Many of them have found happiness thus. They could not be persuaded, and indeed might deny with heat, that they had been the victims of a decadent and worse than useless practice.

The judge mentions the growth of divorce. Here he has put the judicial finger on a defect in the armor of society. But were the judge to follow the cases back to the beginning, perhaps he would find that that which he designates as a great evil, is not in itself more than a symptom.

Marriage is not perfect. There has yet to be suggested a better method of relationship among social units. The trouble is, not that mismatched couples separate, for far worse would it be for them not to separate, but that there are mismatched couples. This is a condition perhaps not subject to complete remedy, but the scandal and distress and confusion due to it could be greatly lessened by the application of common sense.

People totally unfit to marry at all are permitted to marry and breed whenever they find anybody foolish enough to rush into a compact with them. Marriage is indulged in by children with as little thought as they might accept an invitation to the movies. A clerk will issue a license to a pair of youngsters of grammar school age and appearance, and some justice of the people will tie the knot. Thus marriage, a serious undertaking, designed to last for life, is permitted to be an indecency and a flippancy. That is what ails it. When its real purpose is ignored, it ceases to be marriage and becomes a game to play at.

A few days ago the papers told of the beating given a woman by her husband. The account left her with broken bones, black eyes, and other evidences of the sincerity of the conjugal correction. As for the man, he was in jail, and could stay there for all of her. Yes sirree. The brute. Then her mother chipped into the game with the statement that if the daughter forgave and forgot, she would be disinherited. So passed a day.

The bruised wife crawled from her bed, gave bail for the husband, took him to their palatial home, and told the world how much she loved him. The mother-in-law of the wife beater also relented, and everybody is happy.

Date for the next beating has not been set.

One of the most popular women in Texas is in jail on the charge of having killed her husband. Whether by this circumstance she is to lose any of her popularity, remains to be determined.

In some states the right of a wife to kill her husband hardly is questioned. When she had done it, and the circumstances have been related to a jury, the chances are that twelve citizens, good and true, will pat her on the back, and tell her to go home.

Martial law in Louisiana certainly is better than ku klux rule, or no law at all. But after it has been withdrawn from the terrorized region, it is not pleasing to think of what may happen. It would be hard to cite another community with so large a percentage, who by the fact of being unchanged, are shown not to have been rewarded according to merit.

The falling of a bridge at Kelso, Washington, resulted in a number of deaths. Such an accident should not have happened. When a bridge in daily use has become unsafe, engineers may become aware of its condition if they choose. To know whether a bridge is capable of sustaining its load is quite important to the people of the community who use the structure.

A desperate criminal, celebrated for the celerity with which he escapes from prison, ascribes his activities in this direction to love for his old mother. He could not bear the thought, he says, that she needed him, and that he was being detained elsewhere. So with a score of others he shot his way to liberty.

When a son really loves his old mother, his best method of demonstration, would seem to be to behave himself, and be a man. After the sort of career this one had led, even a tolerably patient mother would have regarded his room as far better than his company.

Without the desire to be unduly harsh, the remark is ventured that the professional bad man who gets sloppy at the mention of his mother, is trying to ease his way into undeserved esteem by buncombe and bathos.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

It looks to me as though the little golden-haired widow will not be a patient of Old Doc Henneberry's much longer. They came almost to blows last night about the proper manner in which to raise a child, Doc not having any of his own, while the little widow has two. One of 'em is a husky little cuss of about nine and the other is a cute little trick of four. She has golden hair, too. When she gets old enough to be a widow there will not be a safe bachelor within range of her eyes.

"That kid of yours," Doc Henneberry told the widow, "ought to be licked, and I'm the man who'll lick him, if you will not."

Whereupon the little widow sighed and curvey and eyed our elder physician.

"You women," said Doc, "do not seem to realize that you are doing your children the worst sort of a service when you send them out in the world believing they can have their own way if they bawl loud enough. Their noddies should be thumped whenever they make nuisances of themselves. A well thumped boyish noddie guarantees its owner against a great deal of the trouble that human flesh is heir to. Whereas if the noddie's owner contracts the habit of screaming and kicking whenever he does not get his own way, the world will eventually cure him of it."

And it was at that blessed moment, just when this discussion on the proper manner in which to cure and smoke children was gaining a really elevated and dignified plane, that the nine-year-old husky came bawling in with some complaint. Old Doc, as he told me the story later, kept his hands off until the nine-year-old called his mother a few of the choice names he had gleaned at school and deliberately pushed off of a table and broke a vase which Old Doc had given Betsy—the golden-haired widow—on some recent occasion. Whereas the capable chirogeon's hands quit itching and went into action. He spanked that nine-year-old into submission.

"Now will you be good?" he asked. And the nine-year-old said he would. So that's the way Doc lost the golden-haired lady as a patient. No widow would permit a comparative stranger to man-handle a perfectly spoiled son in that fashion. One grants certain liberties to one's surgeon, but not the liberty of spanking one's brat.

"There was only one way out of it," said Old Doc. "So she took it. We'll be married tomorrow."

It's the best thing that ever happened to the nine-year-old.

INTERNAL REVENUE COLLECTOR WANTS MORE CASH

To Collect From Small Incomes on Year's Net

Collector of Internal Revenue Rex Goodcell is mailing to 190,000 taxpayers in the Southern California District who made similar returns for the year 1921. Form 1040-A, for filing individual income returns of $5,000 or less for the year 1922, and in a statement made yesterday he outlined to taxpayers the proper way to make returns, pointing out various changes in the income tax laws.

The form is in six pages, two of which provide for the return proper, and two for making a duplicate of the return. Two pages are devoted to instructions. The duplicate and the instruction pages should be detached and retained by the taxpayer, and the original return mailed to Collector Goodcell. Form 1040 for filing returns of net income in excess of $5,000 soon will be issued, and mailed to taxpayers who filed similar returns for 1921. The filing period is from January 1 to March 15, 1923.

To avoid errors which may result to their disadvantage, taxpayers are advised by Collector Goodcell to study carefully the instructions on the forms, especially those with regard to credits for personal exemptions and dependents. Married persons required to make a return on form 1040-A—those whose net income was $5,000 or less—are allowed an exemption of $2,500. The exemption for married persons whose net income was in excess of $5,000 is $2,000.

The exemption for single persons is $1,000. Also, whether married or single, the taxpayer is allowed a credit of $400 for each person dependent upon him for chief support, if such person is under 18 years of age or incapable of self-support because of being mentally or physically defective.

Collector Goodcell said it should be remembered that the requirement to file a return is placed upon every married person whose net income for 1922 was $2,000 or more or whose gross income was $5,000 or more, and upon every single person whose net income was $1,000 or more, or whose gross income was $5,000 or more. The fact that by reason of the exemptions and credits, a person's income is not taxable, does not nullify the requirement to file a return if the income equals or exceeds these specified amounts. Net income, upon which the tax is assessed, is gross income less certain deductions for business expenses, bad debts, losses, contributions, etc., provision for which is made on the forms.

A head of a family—a person who actually supports and maintains in one household one or more individuals who are closely connected with him by blood relationship, relationship by marriage or by adoption—is allowed the same exemptions as a married person.

In the returns of married persons must be included the net income of both husband and wife and dependent children. Husband and wife may make a joint return or separate returns. They receive but one personal exemption, $2,500 or $2,000, as the case may be. If they make separate returns the exemption may be taken by either or divided between them. The exemption of $400 for a dependent may be claimed only by the one who furnishes the dependent's chief support.

The taxpayer's status on the last day of the taxable year—December 31, 1922, if made on the calendar year basis—determines the amount of his exemptions and credits. If married and living with wife or husband on that day the exemption is $2,500 or $2,000, according to the amount of net income. If single and without dependents on that day he may claim but $1,000 as his exemption, even though he may have been married or the head of a family during the greater part of the year. Widowers, widows, divorcees and persons separated by mutual consent are classed as single persons.

Collector Goodcell is preparing to send into each county in the district revenue officers who will aid taxpayers in making out their returns. Similar services will be offered city residents, but the collector's advice before seeking such assistance is to read carefully the instructions. Unless the problem is particularly complex, study of the form will enable the taxpayer to make a correct return.

The normal rate of tax of 4 per cent on the first $4,000 of net income and 8 per cent on the remaining net income above the exemption remains unchanged. Surtax rates, which apply only to incomes in excess of $6,000, are lowered, ranging for the calendar year 1922 from 1 per cent on the amount of net income between $6,000 and $10,000, to 50 per cent on the amount by which the net income exceeds $200,000. For the year 1921 the surtax rates ranged from 1 per cent on the amount of net income between $5,000 and $6,000, to 65 per cent on the amount of net income in excess of $1,000,000.

THOSE UNIVERSAL NERVES

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE
Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.
(Copyright, 1923, by The Associated Newspapers)

I am asked whether statistics do not show that nervous maladies are of chief occurrence among the well-to-do, and more particularly the idle well-to-do. It may be that some statistics are available indicating this.

But if one were to scrutinize those statistics carefully it is safe to predict that their validity would soon be questioned. Certainly it would be possible to match them with other statistics indicating just as impressively that disordered nerves are an affliction mostly of the very poor.

Everything seems to depend, in a matter of this kind, on the experience of the statisticians.

If they are nerve specialists having a practice largely of the consultant type, the majority of their patients will almost surely be persons of considerable financial means. Naturally any statistics, based on the proportions of the well-to-do, fairly well-to-do, poor, and extremely poor seen by them, would point to the well-to-do and the fairly well-to-do as peculiarly subject to nervousness.

But if they are physicians active in dispensary work and the work of mental and nervous clinics, they will see mostly the poor and the very poor. Over-hastily they may then infer, and insistently affirm, that nervousness is mainly a product of poverty.

If, however, they have an extensive practice, both of the consultant and the dispensary type, the difficulty of identifying nervousness with any one social group will be acknowledged by them. The longer they continue to practice as consultants and dispensarians the more they will be brought to the opinion voiced by the eminent Geikie Cobb:

"We may safely assume that there is no marked difference in the incidence of neurasthenia among classes, and that it occurs in all people and all ranks in not markedly disproportionate figures."

On the modern psychological theory of nervousness this could hardly be otherwise. For the modern theory finds the dominant causes of nervousness not in unfavorable physical conditions, but in disturbed emotional states. Nervousness, the modern theory runs, is not due primarily to over-exhaustion or under-effort, to over-eating or under-eating, and so forth, but to dissatisfaction with life, to excessive worry, to "repressed desires," and thwarted instincts.

Manifestly, neither the very rich nor the very poor are exclusively subject to disturbances of the emotional life. Especially is this true in our era of social stress and complexity, of increasing strenuousness for every body, rich and poor alike.

And since neither among the rich nor the poor has any real effort thus far been made to secure psychic hardening and emotional control, it is hardly surprising to find nervousness rife today among all groups in every community—so rife that it may justly be described as the most truly universal of all human ailments.

HEALTH SURVEY OF PRINTING TRADE ON

Average Life of Printer Is Only 53.17 Years, It Is Reported

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—In the hope of finding means to extend the average lifetime of printers, the International Typographical Union in cooperation with government and scientific institutions, has begun a nation-wide health survey in the trade.

The average span of a printer today is 53.17 years, according to statistics, while the average for Americans of all vocations is 62 years. Twenty-five years ago the average lifetime of printers was 41.50 years. Improved conditions in the trade and shorter hours are said by union officials to have added 10 years to the span.

Special emphasis will be placed on methods of ventilation, air-pollution, lighting, eye-strain, posture and physique in the health survey. Insurance companies are taking interest in the investigation, which is in the charge of Frederick L. Hoffman, consulting statistician for an eastern insurance corporation. The United States Bureau of Labor Statistics will have charge of the social and economic phases.

"We expect to cooperate with employers in bringing about working conditions conducive to the best efforts of employees," said John McParland, president of the international. "Union members will also be asked to follow advice as to habits, postures, etc., which may be drawn from the experiences observed in the survey. In view of the achievements already attained in prolonging lives of printers it is not expected much difficulty will be encountered in winning the interested support and aid of both employers and members."

Said City Clerk is also hereby directed to publish this Resolution for two days, in the manner required by law, in said newspaper designated for that purpose, as aforesaid.

FORECAST FOR 1923 OF THE SOUTHWEST

Vice-President of First National Bank of L. A. Tells Story

By JOHN E. BARBER

A spirit of tempered optimism about the outlook for 1923 pervades the agricultural and business communities of the Pacific-Southwest. Having escaped the major adjustments to post-war conditions which have depressed other sections of the country, the general prosperity of Southern California has been well maintained during the past two years. Present indications are that in the absence of serious national or international disturbances which would affect all parts of the United States alike, this prosperity will continue at as high a level as heretofore, although spread over a wider range of agricultural and commercial endeavor.

The influx of people from other parts of the United States which has constituted one of the main factors contributing to the growth and development of Southern California, has been uninterrupted and all signs point to a continuation throughout 1923. It is estimated that the population of Los Angeles alone increased by over 100,000 in 1922, while the new capital brought into this community during the year aggregated $100,000,000.

One effect of this wave of new population is observed in the local real estate and building activity which continues higher than ever before. A year ago the most experienced old residents relying on the signs of former years predicted that the crest of real estate buying and building had been reached. Yet during 1922 building permits have averaged $10,000,000 per month—the highest on record and surpassed in amount only by New York and Chicago. These permits run mostly to homes and there is still a shortage of commercial structures. Projects already started and certain to be started assure employment to all those engaged in the building trades throughout 1923.

Sub-dividing activity is running at a high point, while speculative buying, although pronounced, is much less than on previous similar occasions. Except for outside neighborhood business properties, real estate values are still considered reasonable with a large amount of trading done by outsiders who are not so close to the local picture.

While there may be fluctuations due to "growing pains" there is no prospect of serious abridgment of real estate activity during 1923 on account of any purely local tendencies which can be detected. While opinion differs as to when the inevitable peak will be passed, the fact remains that with rents going up steadily and with an increase in population in Los Angeles of 40 to 50 per cent in the last two and one-half years, there is a strong underlying factor of safety which will undoubtedly soften the descent materially when it comes.

The agricultural season of 1922 has been one of the best in the history of the Pacific-Southwest in spite of some losses and unsatisfactory prices for certain commodities, and it is anticipated that unless unforeseen reverses occur the 1923 season will be the largest on record from the standpoint of productivity.

Although last year only a partial crop of oranges was gathered, due to cold weather, the present crop promises to be over twice as large, or in the neighborhood of 45,000 cars of oranges. These are well distributed among the different varieties which will produce an orderly movement of the crop throughout the entire year. As the quality of the fruit promises to be good and the individual sizes large, such as will appeal to the consumer, conditions should permit the marketing of the crop at fair prices.

Although a larger lemon crop is expected in 1923, prices for the first six weeks of this season have been considerably ahead of last year. Due to the fact that our heaviest crop will come off the trees during the late spring and summer, which are the heaviest consuming months of the year, and when usually the best prices are obtained, the year 1923 should prove a profitable one for the lemon growers of California.

The situation regarding beans and beets is very similar. The prospective heavy rainfall and the high prices prevailing should induce growers to plant a larger acreage and a good year's business is in prospect. Although the walnut crop for 1922 is estimated at the record figure of 24,000 tons of an approximate value of $12,000,000, the growers are figuring on the largest crop ever had for the next year because of the increase in planting and the young acreage coming into bearing.

In spite of a heavy over-production in oil, due largely to the development of four prolific oil pools in Southern California, and despite the fact that there are about 60,000,000 barrels of oil in storage, the chief reasons for anticipating that 1923 will be a satisfactory year in the California oil trade are:

- (1) Increasing consumption due to better business, and resulting in a higher price for oil.
- (2) Large exports of California crude to eastern ports, replacing oil production that was formerly drawn from Mexican fields.
- (3) The expanding export market for oil and gasoline now being developed in the Orient.
- (4) The proposed expenditure of $15,000,000 at Los Angeles Harbor by leading oil companies on load-

JONES AND I
I may say that Jones is greedy,
How am I?
That he does not help the needy,
But do I?
I may say he is not mellow,
That he has a streak of yellow,
Just a mean and grasping fellow—
What am I?

I may say he shirks his duty,
But do I?
That his spirit has not beauty,
What have I?
I may say no man is blinder,
That he's harsh, a selfish grinder,
And he should be better, kinder—
How am I?

I declare he's mean and hateful,—
How am I?
That he's selfish and ungrateful,
And am I?
He is harsh, I say, and bitter,
In the crisis he's a quitter,
Not a sport and a game hitter,
But am I?

I say he plays not squarely,
But do I?
That he judges men not fairly,
And do I?

Yes, I say with a smug ruing
Jones has trouble in the brewing,
For his best work he's not doing,
But am I?

tors being shipped East.

In cotton, one of the greatest sources of new wealth in the Pacific-Southwest, prospects for 1923 were never brighter, since it has been definitely proved that boll weevils cannot work in the dry valleys of California and Arizona. The advance in the price of cotton this year has enabled growers to clean the slate of their liabilities. Within the "Trade Territory of Los Angeles" there were, this year, about 350,000 acres under cotton, with a probable crop of close to 200,000 bales. The prospect for 1923 will see both acreage and production nearly doubled. A crop of 350,000 bales next year, if sold at the present market levels of $150 (including cotton seed), would produce a revenue from this one source alone of over $52,000,000. This cotton moves largely through Los Angeles and is financed by Commerce passing through Los Angeles Harbor is growing at a phenomenal rate. In three years the tonnage handled has almost tripled in this commodity, and with the number of shippers using the port. The major importance of the port is in domestic trade with petroleum and lumber the largest items. With the advantages of all water shipments through the canal between the eastern seaboard and the Pacific-Southwest just beginning to be realized, with the big petroleum shipments and with the increasing interest being shown in the development of business with South America and the Orient, it is expected that the increase in 1923 of business cleared through Los Angeles Harbor will be as rapid as that during 1922.

The motion picture business, which represents the largest single payroll in this community, is in the best condition of any time in the past two and one-half years. Increased attendance at the theatres throughout the country has stimulated production here and sentiment within the industry is much improved. The cattle industry is still depressed and the happiness of the grower and the romance of the range is almost forgotten. However, if the industry can survive another six months conditions should improve. The situation in the eastern market which will take the Northwestern cattle when prices have adjusted themselves, together with a shortage in Arizona cattle, due to various causes, should enable California cattle (mostly from the Imperial valley) to be sold in March and April on a higher market.

Hogs have been high, but on account of cheap corn and heavy supply, the market is lower and likely to remain so.

Sheep and lambs will maintain present prices for another year or until the duty is removed. Prevailing high prices cause people to buy less mutton meat and have a tendency to increase the demand for beef.

Retail business continues to expand with merchants sanguine that sales will be well sustained throughout 1923 but with a more normal percentage of increase. Department stores report that collections are exceptionally good with first of the year inventories showing merchandise totals well within capital and a condition more liquid than ever before.

Conditions in the copper industry in the Pacific-Southwest, although better than six months ago, are unlikely to show marked improvement in the near future. The present output of Arizona and Sonora is about two-thirds of 1916 and a large percentage of this is produced at a loss, owing to present high taxes, high freight rates on fuel, supplies and finished product, which average 25 per cent higher than in 1916, and the low productivity of the miners. In fact, the cost of this product is much higher today than the average cost of South American copper.

Industrial production is increasing, some 400 new manufacturing plants having been established in Los Angeles in 1922, and present orders indicate that it will continue heavy throughout the ensuing year. The natural advantages of Los Angeles accruing from its back country, its efficient labor, and its ability to ship by an all water route to the big consuming centers of the East should continue to permit certain products to be manufactured or assembled here in competition with the East, even if the present high trans-continental freight rate is reduced. The banking outlook is excellent, at least as far into 1923 as the gathering of the next harvest. Bank clearings curve upwards in the unbroken trend of the past 12 months. Bank rediscounts at the Los Angeles branch of the Federal Reserve bank of the Twelfth District are at the lowest total since this office was established three years ago. Demand for money should be firmly maintaining, an apparently insatiable demand for long term building and

TUBERCULAR CATTLE

The persistent campaign to eradicate tuberculosis in cattle is increasing each year. All of the states are now cooperating with each other and with the Department of Agriculture for the eradication of this disease in cattle. During the last year over 16,000 herds were accredited as free from tuberculosis and over 180,000 herds had been tested once. Compared with 1921 the testing of cattle by the area plan has increased more than tenfold and promises to become one of the ways of completely eradicating the disease in a few years.

A woman seldom laughs at a man's jokes unless she has an axe to grind.

real estate loans competing with commercial requirements. The California market for investment securities is constantly broadening and dealers anticipate even a larger business than in 1922. In short, the outlook for 1923 in the Pacific-Southwest is more encouraging as a whole than it has been for several years.

Advertising Shortens the Road to Success

Do you doubt that a new hatter could spring up in New York and, with honest hats and brilliant advertising, in five years take its place abreast of the leaders of fifty years? It has been done.

Do you doubt that a new thought could arise in pencils, and, in two years, backed by good advertising, make a place for the pencil on the desks of the nation? That, too, has been done.

Do you doubt that a New York department store, in a bad year, could, largely through the improvement in its advertising, attract 110,000 new customers to its shop? That was done, last year.

A fine old business may consider advertising as a protection for today and insurance for tomorrow but to the young growing business it is a pair of seven league boots, which bring fame, friends and volume, years before their normal advent.

R. A. Puffers on Way to Honolulu

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Puffer of 452 Vine street left Friday on the steamer H. F. Alexander for Honolulu. They expect to return by way of San Francisco, arriving there on January 26 and visiting for a few days before coming home.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jones and Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Wiley, neighbors, went down to Wilmington to see the Puffers off on their journey and report that they found their stateroom fairly overflowing with floral gifts sent down by appreciative friends of this worthy couple, who have spent a number of years in Glendale and raised two sons who are an honor to them. The steamer H. F. Alexander is the one chosen by the national Rotarians for their Honolulu trip, and the steamship company is carrying out for them an elaborate series of nightly entertainments, the first of which, a masque ball, was given last night, with great splendor.
