INTRODUCTION.

THE title 'Piers Plowman,' or as I prefer to write it, 'Piers the Plowman,' is one which has been frequently misconstrued and misunderstood by many authors, and concerning which many text-books have blundered inextricably. It is most important that the reader should have a clear idea of what it means, and as it is rather a difficult point to explain accurately, I must ask him to give me his best attention; and I cannot refrain from adding the hope that, if he succeeds in mastering the explanation of it, he will refrain from using the phrase in future in the old slovenly way.

The difficulty is two-fold, as originating in a two-fold error. The two mistakes commonly made are these. Firstly, Piers Plowman is used as though it were the name of an author^a; and secondly, two poems which are quite distinct, and the respective titles of which are familiarly expressed as The Vision of Piers Plowman and Pierce the Ploughman's Crede, have been frequently confounded together. I must ask the reader to bear in mind that, in what I am now going to say, I make no reference whatever to the Crede, and do not make any assertion about it till I again expressly mention it by its full title. Unless this be remembered, our chance of arriving at the truth is much lessened.

Just as Christian is not the author of Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, but only the subject of it, so Piers the Plowman is not the author of the Vision, but the subject of it; he is the personage seen in a dream, not the dreamer himself. Neither does the poem describe one continuous dream, but a succession of several; in some of which Piers is neither seen nor mentioned.

* The last time I saw this mistake was in 'Chaucer's England,' vol. 3, p. 230, by Matthew Browne; who should have known better.

Yet the whole poem is named from him, because he is the most remarkable figure in the group of allegorical personages who pass successively before the dreamer's sleeping sight. He is of more importance than either Lady Holy-church, Lady Meed, Falsehood, Conscience, Reason, Hunger, or the impersonations of the Seven Deadly Sins; for he is the type of a truly honest man. But we may dismiss the consideration of his character for the present.

The true name of the dreamer, the poet, is not certainly known. The poem has been ascribed to one Langland, whose Christian name has been variously given as William, Robert, and John. Yet of the author's Christian name we are sure; for in nearly all the numerous MSS. it is invariably given as William, not to mention that the author frequently calls himself Wille in various passages. The true surname is more doubtful, but we may assume it to have been Langland, for the present at least, to save ambiguity. We have then advanced clearly as far as this, viz. that one William Langland, during the latter part of the fourteenth century, wrote an alliterative poem describing a series of dreams, in some of which he beheld the person whom he calls Piers the Plowman, after whom the poem (or part of the poem, at least) was named.

Strictly speaking, only a part of the poem was at first named after Piers. The true title of the latter portion was originally Visio ejusdem de Do-wel, Do-bet, et Do-best, or the Vision of the same [William] concerning Do-well, Do-better, and Do-best; but the two portions were subsequently treated as constituting one long poem, and the name Liber de Petro Plowman was conferred upon the whole.

We must next consider the forms in which the poem exists. There are not less than forty-three MSS. of it still extant, (nearly all of which I have carefully examined at various times,) and from a comparison of these it is evident that it takes five or six distinct shapes, of which some are due merely to confusion, or to the carelessness of the scribes; still, after all allowances for such causes of variation have been made, it is clear that three of e shapes are due to the author himself. It is certain that he altered, added to, and re-wrote the whole poem, not once only, but twice. It was the great work of his life, and may have occupied him, though not continuously, during nearly thirty years. Let us call the three forms of the poem, as at different times composed, the A-text, B-text, and C-text. They differ widely, and are marked by various peculiarities, and different dates may be with some accuracy assigned to them. Let us consider them separately.

The A-text, which is distinguished by peculiar freshness and vigour, and a rather greater amount of vehemence and rapidity than either of the others, was certainly composed first, about A. D. 1362. As compared with the others, it is but a first rough sketch, and extends to not more than 2567 lines. In it, the Vision of Piers the Plowman, and the Vision of Do-wel, Do-bet, and Do-best are kept quite distinct, the former consisting of a Prologue and 8 Passus (1833 lines), and the latter of a Prologue and 3 Passus (734 lines). In the Prologue (which contains but 109 lines) the curious fable of the rats conspiring to bell the cat is entirely omitted; and in the description of the Seven Deadly Sins, the character of Wrath was, by a curious oversight, forgotten. The best MSS. of it are the Vernon MS. at Oxford, MS. Trin. Coll. Camb. R. 3. 14, Harl. 875, Univ. Coll. (Oxford) 45, and MS. Rawl. Poet. 137 in the Bodleian Library. Long extracts from the Vernon MS. are given in Mr. Morris's 'Specimens of Early English,' printed so that each long line is counted as two. A comparison of these with the corresponding passages of the present volume will shew more clearly than any detailed explanation what the A-text is like.

The B-text. The curious ending of the A-text shews clearly that the author's original intention was to wind up his poem and have done with it. Not foreseeing the extraordinary popularity which his poem was destined to enjoy, he had recourse to the not uncommon device of killing himself off, in words which may be thus modernized—

'And when this work was wrought, ere Will might spy,
Death dealt him a dint, and drove him to the earth,
And he is enclosed under clay; now Christ have his soul'^a ^b MS. Rawl. Poet. 137. Fol. 31.

And so the matter rested for nearly fifteen years. But the grief of the whole nation at the death of the Black Prince, the disquieting political events of 1377, the last year of Edward III, the dissatisfaction of the commons with the conduct of the duke of Lancaster, roused our poet as it roused other men. Then it was that, taking his text from Ecclesiasticus x. 16, Væ terræ ubi rex puer est, he composed his famous version of the well-known fable of the rats wishing to bell the cat, a fable which has never elsewhere been told so well or so effectively. Then it was that, taking advantage of his now more extensive acquaintance with Scripture, and his familiarity with the daily scenes of London life, he re-wrote and added to his poem till he had trebled the extent of it, and multiplied the number of his Latin quotations by seven. The additions are, most of them, exceedingly good, and distinguished by great freedom and originality of thought; indeed, we may say that, upon the whole, the B-text is the best of the three, and the best suited for giving us a fair idea of the author's peculiar powers. It is with the B-text that the present volume is especially concerned, and a portion of which is here printed. The complete text comprises the two Visions, viz. of Piers Plowman, and of Do-wel, Do-bet, and Do-best; the former consisting of a Prologue and 7 Passus (as here printed), and the latter of three Prologues and 10 Passus, viz. a Prologue and 6 Passus of Do-wel, a Prologue and 3 Passus of Do-bet, and a Prologue and 1 Passus of Do-best. But in many (perhaps all) of the MSS. the distinctions between the component parts are not much regarded, and in some there is no mention of Do-wel, Do-bet, and Do-best whatever, but the whole is called Liber de petro plowman, and made to consist of a Prologue and twenty Passus. Not to go into further details, it is necessary to add that there are two perfect MSS. of it which are of special excellence, and which do not greatly vary from each other; from one of these, MS. Trin. Coll. Camb. B. 15. 17, Mr. Wright printed his well-known and convenient edition of the whole poem, and upon the other, MS. Laud 581, our text is based. The reader will now readily perceive that this volume contains the whole of the B-text of the Vision of Piers the Plowman, properly so called, but does not contain the Vision of Do-wel, Do-bet, and Do-best, which is commonly appended to it and considered one with it. If then, in the notes, I quote from Passus eleven, for instance, I quote from a Passus which is strictly the third of Do-wel, but which is commonly called Passus 11 of Piers the Plowman as being a more convenient notation.

Concerning the C-text, I need not say much here. It was probably not composed till 1380 or even later, or, still more probably, it contains additions and revisions made at various periods later than 1378. Throughout these the working of the same mind is clearly discernible, but there is a tendency to diffuseness and to a love for theological subtleties. It is of still greater length, containing a Prologue and 9 Passus of Piers the Plowman, a Prologue and 6 Passus of Do-wel, a Prologue and 3 Passus of Do-bet, and a Prologue and 1 Passus of Do-best; or, according to the shorter notation, a Prologue and 22 Passus. It may be remarked that the short poem of Do-best stands almost exactly the same in both the B and C versions.

Besides this extraordinary work, with its three varying editions, I hold that we are indebted to the same author for a remarkable poem on the Deposition of Richard II, of course written in 1399, and which has been twice printed by Mr. Wright, the more convenient edition being that published for the Camden Society in 1838. This is not the place to discuss a question of some difficulty, and concerning which a careful reader may form an opinion for himself, and can come, I think, to no other conclusion. It is true that Mr. Wright has expressed a different opinion, but he was misled by a marginal note in his MS. to which he attached some importance^c.

The printed editions. The Vision concerning Piers the Plowman has been several times printed. Robert Crowley printed at least two, and probably three impressions of it in one year, A. D. 1550; from a copy of one of which Owen Rogers produced his edition of 1571. Crowley used a very good MS. of the B-text^d, and his edition is of some value. Rogers's reprint abounds in errors, and is worthless. Dr. Whitaker printed a C-text MS. in 1813, from a MS. then belonging to Mr. Heber, and now in the possession of Sir T. Phillipps. It has good readings, but is disfigured by a broadness of dialect and innumerable mistakes of the editor. Mr. Wright printed his first edition, from the Trinity B-text MS., in 1842, and his second and revised edition of the same in 1856. A complete critical edition of the whole poem, in all its three forms, from a comparison of all the best MSS., with various readings in the footnotes, is now being published by the Early English Text Society, and is being edited by myself. Vol. I., containing the A-text, was published in 1866; the second volume is now in the press, and from the proof-sheets of it the text now before the reader has been compiled and prepared.

This is, perhaps, the best place to say a few last words about Pierce the Ploughman's Crede. The facts concerning it are these, viz. that, about the year 1394, when the popularity of the 'Vision' was well established, some writer of unknown name and of narrower views, wrote a short poem of 850 lines in alliterative verse, as a satire against the friars, to which he gave the name of Pierce the Ploughman's Crede, no doubt with the view of attracting attention. His conception of the Ploughman, however, is very different. In the 'Vision,' the ploughman is a person seen in a dream, and is the personification of the honest and hardworking Christian; but in the 'Crede,' the ploughman is a poor man with whom the author meets in the flesh, whose merit is that he knows all the articles of the Creed, of which the friars knew nothing. The 'Crede' is written with great asperity, and is a very remarkable poem in many respects; but I cannot believe that Langland can have been very much pleased with the compliment paid him, as it is marked by a lack of charity totally at variance with the widely charitable views by which many passages of the Vision are distinguished, notwithstanding sharp words elsewhere. The confusion between the two poems no doubt arose from their being in the same metre, and of nearly the same date, and from the fact that the title of one was borrowed from that of the other; and this confusion has been increased by the circumstance that they have been three times printed in close contact with each other, viz. by Owen Rogers in 1561, by Dr. Whitaker in 1814^e, and by Mr. Wright. But this is not the place to enter into further details concerning it. The reader will find them fully given in my edition of the 'Crede,' published separately by the Early English Text Society in 1867. The most interesting result in connection with this poem is that the author of the 'Crede' was almost certainly the author of the 'Plowman's Tale,'² which appears in some editions of Chaucer, but which is certainly not his^f. The 'Crede' may now conveniently be finally dismissed from our consideration.

THE AUTHOR'S NAME AND LIFE.

The author's Christian name was certainly William, as has been already said. The best evidence for his surname is an entry in one of the Dublin MSS. in a handwriting of the fifteenth century, to this effect: 'Memorandum, quod Stacy de Rokayle, pater Willielmi de Langland, qui Stacius fuit generosus, et morabatur in Schiptone under Whicwode, tenens domini le Spenser in comitatu Oxon., qui prædictus Willielmus fecit librum qui vocatur Perys Ploughman.' But I am bound to add that I have lately discovered a colophon, in two MSS. of the C-text, (viz. Digby 171 and Lord Ilchester's MS.) which runs thus—'Explicit visio Willielmi. W. de Petro le Plowman. Et hic incipit visio eiusdem de Dowel.' This is testimony that may well make us hesitate, and remember that if we retain the name of Langland, we do so chiefly for convenience. Bale has a short passage concerning our author, wherein he calls him Robertus Langelande, and says that he was born at Cleobury Mortimer, in Shropshire. Shipton-under-Wychwood, mentioned above, is in Oxfordshire, four miles from Burford, and not at any very great distance from Banbury §. For all other particulars, we must trust to allusions made in the poems themselves, and if we rely upon these, and arrange the information they afford us, we may frame a brief sketch of his life which is quite consistent and which I believe to be true. I shall therefore assume their credibility, and give the reader the results, sometimes in the poet's own words.

^e Dr. Whitaker's edition of the 'Crede' is not bound up in the same volume with the 'Vision,' but was published in the same form and style, at nearly the same time.

^f Mr. Morley, in his 'English Writers' (vol. ii. 442), cites Mr. Black's opinion that the composer of the 'Plowman's Tale' was also author of a poem 'Against Lollardie,' a supposition which appears to me absurd, and like attributing a tract against reformation to Luther. The reader will observe, on the other hand, that in the Plowman's Tale we have a second instance of title-copying by Langland's imitator.

At the time of writing the B-text of Do-wel, he was forty-five years of age, and he was therefore born about A.D. 1332, probably at Cleobury Mortimer. His father and his friends put him to school (possibly in the monastery at Great Malvern), made a clerk or scholar of him, and taught him what holy writ meant. In 1362, at the age of about thirty, he wrote the A-text of the poem, without any thought of continuing or enlarging it. In this, he refers to Edward III and his son the Black Prince, to the murder of Edward II., to the great pestilences of 1348 and 1361, to the treaty of Bretigny in 1360, and Edward's wars in Normandy, and also most particularly to the great storm of wind which took place on Saturday evening, Jan. 15, 1361-2^h. This version of the poem he describes as having been partly composed in May, whilst wandering on Malvern Hills, which are thrice mentioned in the part rightly called Piers the Plowman. In the Introduction or Prologue to Do-wel, he describes himself as wandering about all the summer till he met with two Minorite Friars, with whom he discoursed concerning Do-wel. It was probably not long after this that he went to reside in London, with which he already had some acquaintance; there he lived in Cornhill, with his wife Kitte and his daughter Calote, for many long years. In 1377, he began to expand his poem into the B-text, wherein he alludes to the accession of Richard II in the words—'3if I regne any while' (4. 177), and also explicitly to the dearth in the dry month of April, 1370, when Chichester was mayor; a dearth due to the excessive rains in the autumn of 1369. Chichester was elected in 1369 (probably in October) and was still mayor in 1370. In Riley's Memorials of London, p. 344, he is mentioned as being mayor in that very month of April in that very year in the words—'Afterwards, on the 25th day of April in the year above-mentioned, it was agreed by John de Chichestre, Mayor,' &c. It is important to insist upon this, because the MS. followed by Mr. Wright, in company with many inferior ones, has a corrupt reading which turns the words—'A þousande and thre hondreth' twice thretty and ten' into 'twice twenty and ten,' occasioning a great difficulty, and misleading many modern writers and readers, since the same mistake occurs in Crowley's edition. Fortunately, the Laud MS. 581 and MS. Rawl. Poet. 38 set us right here, and all difficulty now vanishes; for it is easily ascertained that Chichester was mayor in 1369-70, and at no other time, having never been re-elected. Stowe and other old writers have the right date. In the C-text, written at some time after 1378, the poet represents himself as still in London, and in the commencement of Passus 5 (also called Passus 6, as in Whitaker), gives us several particulars concerning himself, wherein he alludes to his own tallness, saying that he is too 'long' to stoop low, and has also some remarks concerning the sons of freemen which imply that he was himself the son of a franklin or freeman, and born in lawful wedlock. He wore the clerical tonsure, probably as having taken minor orders, and earned a precarious living by singing the placebo, dirige, and 'seven psalms' for the good of men's souls; for, ever since his friends died who had first put him to school, he had found no kind of life that pleased him except to be in 'these long clothes,' and by help of such (clerical) labour as he had been bred up to he contrived not only to live 'in London, but upon London' also. The supposition that he was married (as he says he was) may perhaps explain why he never rose in the church. He has many allusions to his extreme poverty. Lastly, in the Deposition of Richard II, he describes himself as being in Bristol in the year 1399, when he wrote his last poem. This poem is but short, and in the only MS. wherein it exists, terminates abruptly in the middle of a page, and it is quite possible that it was never finished. This is the last trace of him, and he was then probably about sixty-seven years of age, so that he may not have long survived the accession of Henry IV. In personal appearance, he was so tall that he obtained the nickname of 'Longe Wille,' as he tells us in the line—

§ It is somewhat curious that the poet, in the C-text, Passus III., goes rather out of his way to mention the 'beade of Banbury,' as if he had a grudge against him.

^h That is, the year 1362, which was formerly called 1361, when the year was supposed not to begin till March. See, for these allusions, 3. 186, 188; 4. 45; and 5. 14.

'I have luyed in londe,' quod I ' my name is Longe wille¹.

This nickname may be paralleled from Mr. Riley's Memorials of London, p. 457, where we read of John Edward, 'otherwise called Longe Jacke,' under the date 1382. In Passus 15 (B-text) he says that he was loath to reverence lords or ladies, or persons dressed in fur, or wearing silver ornaments; he never would say 'God save you' to serjeants whom he met, for all of which proud behaviour, then very uncommon, people looked upon him as a fool. It requires no great stretch of imagination to picture to ourselves the tall gaunt figure of Long Will in his long robes and with his shaven head, striding along Cornhill, saluting no man by the way, minutely observant of the gay dresses to which he paid no outward reverence. It ought also to be observed how very frequent are his allusions to lawyers, to the law-courts at Westminster, and to legal processes. He has a mock-charter, beginning with the ordinary formula Sciant presentes et futuri (see p. 18), a form of making a will (see p. 70), and in one passage (B-text, Pass. xi) he speaks with such scorn of a man who draws up a charter badly, who interlines it or leaves out sentences, or puts false Latin in it, that I think we may fairly suppose him to have been conversant with the writing out of legal documents, and to have eked out his subsistence by the small sums received for doing so. The various texts of the poem are so consistent, and the different MSS. agree so well together, that I fully believe he was his own scribe in the first instance, though we cannot now point to any MS. as an autograph. Nevertheless the very neatly written MS. Laud 581 is so extremely correct as regards the sense, and is marked for correction on account of such minute errors, that we may be sure he must himself have perused it.

Respecting the poem itself there are some excellent remarks in the works of Mr. Marsh and Dean Milman, which I cannot do better than transcribe here, in part. But the reader should consult the books themselves.

In Mr. Marsh's lectures on the Origin and History of the English Language, 8vo, 1862, p. 296, we read as follows:—

'Every great popular writer is, in a certain sense, a product of his country and his age, a reflection of the intellect, the moral sentiment, and the prevailing social opinions of his time. The author of Piers Ploughman, no doubt, embodied in a poetic dress just what millions felt, and perhaps hundreds had uttered in one fragmentary form or another. His poem as truly expressed the popular sentiment, on the subjects it discussed, as did the American Declaration of Independence the national thought and feeling on the relations between the Colonies and Great Britain. That remarkable document disclosed no previously unknown facts, advanced no new political opinions, proclaimed no sentiment not warranted by previous manifestations of popular doctrine and the popular will, employed perhaps even no new combination of words, in incorporating into one proclamation the general results to which the American head and heart had arrived. Nevertheless, Jefferson, who drafted it, is as much entitled to the credit of originality, as he who has best expressed the passions and emotions of men in the shifting scenes of the drama or of song.

'The Vision of Piers Ploughman thus derives its interest, not from the absolute novelty of its revelations, but partly from its literary form, partly from the moral and social bearings of its subject—the corruptions of the nobility and of the several departments of the government, the vices of the clergy and the abuses of the church—in short, from its connection with the actual life and opinion of its time, into which it gives us a clearer insight than many a laboured history. Its dialect, its tone, and its poetic dress alike conspired to secure to the Vision a wide circulation among the commonalty of the realm, and by formulating—to use a favourite word of the day—sentiments almost universally felt, though but dimly apprehended, it brought them into distinct consciousness, and thus prepared the English people for the reception of the seed, which the labours of Wycliffe and his associates were already sowing among them^k. . . .

‘The Vision of the Ploughman furnishes abundant evidence of the familiarity of its author with the Latin Scriptures, the writings of the fathers, and the commentaries of Romish expositors, but exhibits very few traces of a knowledge of Romance literature^l. Still the proportion of Norman-French words, or at least of words which, though of Latin origin, are French in form, is quite as great as in the works of Chaucer^m. The familiar use of this mixed vocabulary, in a poem evidently intended for the popular ear, and composed by a writer who gives no other evidence of an acquaintance with the literature of France, would, were other proof wanting, tend strongly to confirm the opinion I have before advanced, that a large infusion of French words had been, not merely introduced into the literature, but incorporated into the common language of England; and that only a very small proportion of those employed by the poets were first introduced by them.

‘The poem, if not altogether original in conception, is abundantly so in treatment. The spirit it breathes, its imagery, the turn of thought, the style of illustration and argument it employs, are as remote as possible from the tone of Anglo-Saxon poetry, but exhibit the characteristic moral and mental traits of the Englishman, as clearly and unequivocally as the most national portions of the works of Chaucer or of any other native writer.

^k In other words, Long Will was certainly a prophet, a speaker-out.

^l He knew something of French, and quotes a couple of French proverbs.

^m The Prologue to Piers the Plowman and the first 420 lines of Chaucer's Prologue alike contain 88 per cent. of Anglo-Saxon words. See Marsh; Lectures on English; 1st Series, p. 124.

‘The Vision has little unity of plan, and indeed—considered as a satire against many individual and not obviously connected abuses in church and state—it needed none. But its aim and purpose are one. It was not an expostulation with temporal and spiritual rulers, not an attempt to awaken their consciences or excite their sympathies, and thus induce them to repent of the sins and repair the wrongs they had committed; nor was it an attack upon the theology of the Church of Rome, or a revolutionary appeal to the passions of the multitude. It was a calm, allegorical exposition of the corruptions of the state, of the church, and of social life, designed, not to rouse the people to violent resistance or bloody vengeance, but to reveal to them the true causes of the evils under which they were suffering, and to secure the reformation of those grievous abuses, by a united exertion of the moral influence which generally accompanies the possession of superior physical strength.’

In Dean Milman's History of Latin Christianity, vol. vi. p. 536, (ed. 1855), occurs the following excellent passage.

‘Before Chaucer, even before Wycliffe, appeared with his rude satire, his uncouth alliterative verse, his homely sense, and independence of thought, the author of Piers Ploughman's Vision. This extraordinary manifestation of the religion, of the language, of the social and political notions, of the English character, of the condition, of the passions and feelings of rural and provincial England^a, commences, and with Chaucer and Wycliffe completes the revelation of this transition period, the reign of Edward III. Throughout its institutions, language, religious sentiment, Teutonism is now holding its first initiatory struggle with Latin Christianity. In Chaucer is heard a voice from the court, from the castle, from the city, from universal England. All orders of society live in his verse, with the truth and originality of individual being, yet each a type of every rank, class, every religious and social condition and pursuit. And there can be no doubt that his is a voice of freedom, of more or less covert hostility to the hierarchical system, though more playful and with a poet's genial appreciation of all which was true, healthful, and beautiful in the old faith. In Wycliffe is heard a voice from the University, from the seat of theology and scholastic philosophy, from the centre and stronghold of the hierarchy; a voice of revolt and defiance, taken up and echoed in the pulpit throughout the land against the sacerdotal domination. In the Vision of Piers Ploughman is heard a voice from the wild Malvern Hills, the voice, it should seem, of an humble parson, or secular priest. He has passed some years in London, but his home, his heart is among the poor rural population of central Mercian England. . . . Whoever he was, he wrote in his provincial idiom, in a rhythm perhaps from the Anglo-Saxon times familiar to the popular ear; if it strengthened and deepened that feeling, no doubt the poem was the expression of a strong and wide-spread feeling. It is popular in a broader and lower sense than the mass of vernacular poetry in Germany and England. . . .

‘The Visionary is no disciple, no precursor of Wycliffe in his broader religious views: the Loller of [the author of] Piers Ploughman is no Lollard; he applies the name as a term of reproach for a lazy indolent vagrant. The poet is no dreamy speculative theologian; he acquiesces seemingly with unquestioning faith in the Creed and in the usages of the Church. He is not profane but reverent as to the Virgin and the Saints. Pilgrimages, penances, oblations on the altar, absolution, he does not reject, though they are all nought in comparison with holiness and charity; on Transubstantiation and the Real Presence and the Sacraments he is almost silent, but his silence is that of submission, not of doubt. It is in his intense absorbing moral feeling that he is beyond his age: with him outward observances are but hollow shows, mockeries, hypocrisies without the inward power of religion. It is not so much in his keen cutting satire on all matters of the Church as his solemn installation of Reason and Conscience as the guides of the self-directed soul, that he is breaking the yoke of sacerdotal domination; in his constant appeal to the plainest, simplest Scriptural truths, as in themselves the whole of religion, he is a stern reformer. The sad serious Satirist, in his contemplation of the world around him, the wealth of the world and the woe, sees no hope, but in a new order of things, in which if the hierarchy shall subsist, it shall subsist in a form, with powers, in a spirit totally opposite to that which now rules mankind. The mysterious Piers the Ploughman seems to designate from what quarter that Reformer is to arise^a. . . .

^a With Wycliffe, with the spiritual Franciscans, Langland ascribes all the evils, social and religious, of the dreary world to the wealth of the Clergy, of the Monks, and the still more incongruous wealth of the Mendicants. With them, he asserts the right, the duty, the obligation of the temporal Sovereign to despoil the hierarchy of their corrupting and fatal riches . . . With the Fraticelli, to him the fatal gift of Constantine was the doom of true religion; with them he almost adores poverty, but it is industrious down-trodden rustic poverty; not that of the impostor beggar, common in his days, and denounced as sternly as by the political economy of our own, still less of the religious mendicant. Both these are fiercely excluded from his all-embracing charity.

^a Langland is Antipapal, yet he can admire an ideal Pope, a general pacificator, reconciling the Sovereigns of the world to universal amity. It is the actual Pope, the Pope of Avignon or of Rome, levying the wealth of the world to slay mankind, who is the subject of his bitter invective. The Cardinals he denounces with the same indignant scorn; but chiefly the Cardinal Legate, whom he has seen in England riding in his pride and pomp, with lewdness, rapacity, merciless extortion, insolence in his train. Above all, his hatred (it might seem that on this all honest English indignation was agreed) is against the Mendicant orders. Of the older monks there is almost total silence. For St. Benedict, for St. Dominic, for St. Francis he has the profoundest reverence. But it is against their degenerate sons that he arrays his allegorical Host; the Friars furnish every impersonated vice, are foes to every virtue; his bitterest satire, his keenest irony (and these weapons he wields with wonderful poetic force) are against their dissoluteness, their idleness, their pride, their rapacity, their arts, their lies, their hypocrisy, their delicate attire, their dainty feasts, their magnificent buildings, even their proud learning; above all their hardness, their pitilessness to the poor, their utter want of charity, which with Langland is the virtue of virtues.

^a A sentence here follows, which is based on a misconception. The phrase 'Piers pardon the Ploughman' involves a very curious grammatical construction (not uncommon in Early English), and signifies 'the pardon of (or given by) Piers the Ploughman.' But Dean Milman treats it as a proper name, 'Piers-Pardon-Ploughman,' which it cannot possibly be. Elsewhere we have 'Piers berne the Plowman,' meaning Piers the Ploughman's barn-

'Against the clergy he is hardly less severe; he sternly condemns their dastardly desertion of their flocks, when during the great plague they crowded to London to live an idle life; that idle life he describes with singular spirit and zest. Yet he seems to recognise the Priesthood as of Divine institution. Against the whole host of officials, pardoners, summoners, Archdeacons, and their functionaries; against lawyers, civil as well as ecclesiastical, he is everywhere fiercely and contemptuously crimiatory.

'His political views are remarkable. He has a notion of a king ruling in the affections of the people, with Reason for his chancellor, Conscience for his justiciary. On such a king the commonalty would cheerfully and amply bestow sufficient revenue for all the dignity of his office, and the exigencies of the state, even for his conquests. No doubt that commonalty would first have absorbed the wealth of the hierarchy. He is not absolutely superior to that hatred of the French, nor even to the ambition for the conquest of France engendered by Edward's wars and his victories. And yet his shrewd common sense cannot but see the injustice and cruelty of those aggressive and sanguinary wars.'

After some remarks upon the language and the allegory of the poem, (some of which require to be slightly modified to make them absolutely accurate,) and a slight sketch of the general plan of the poem considered as a whole, Dean Milman sums up the whole matter in the following just words:—

'The poet who could address such opinions, though wrapt up in prudent allegory, to the popular ear, to the ear of the peasantry of England; the people who could listen with delight to such strains, were far advanced towards a revolt from Latin Christianity. Truth, true religion, was not to be found with it, was not known by, Pope, Cardinals, Bishops, Clergy, Monks, Friars. It was to be sought by man himself, by the individual man, by the poorest man, under the sole guidance of Reason, Conscience, and of the Grace of God, vouchsafed directly, not through any intermediate human being, or even Sacrament, to the self-directing soul. If it yet respected all existing doctrines, it respected them not as resting on traditional or sacerdotal authority. There is a manifest appeal throughout, an unconscious installation of Scripture alone, as the ultimate judge; the test of everything is a moral and purely religious one, its agreement with holiness and charity.'

It should be remembered that several of the above remarks apply in particular to the C-text, which Dr. Milman seems to have examined the most attentively, doubtless because it is the longest and fullest. There are several points about the poem which render caution on the reader's part very necessary, if he would avoid being misled. One is, that the effect of its double revision has been to introduce occasional anachronisms. Thus, when the poet speaks of Reason being set on the bench between the king and his son, he referred originally to Edward III. and the Black Prince, as the remark was made in 1362; but when the line was allowed to stand without change in the later versions, as occurring in a part of the poem which was not very much altered, the allusion was lost, and it must be taken merely as a general expression signifying that Reason was placed in a seat of dignity. Again, the allusion to the accession of Richard II. in the words '3if I regne any while' is of less force when retained in the C-text than when first composed and inserted in the B-text. The usual date assigned to the poem, 1362, is very misleading; for all depends upon which form of the poem is in question. It was in hand and subject to variation during at least sixteen or twenty years, the date 1362 expressing merely the time of its commencement. Hence Langland was, in fact, very much more nearly contemporaneous with Chaucer than has been supposed, and cannot fairly be said to have much preceded him. A comparison between these two great writers is very instructive; it is soon perceived that each was, in a great measure, the supplement of the other, notwithstanding the sentiments which they had in common. Chaucer describes the rich more fully than the poor, and shews us the holiday-making, cheerful, genial phase of English life; but Langland pictures the homely poor in their ill-fed, hard-working condition, battling against hunger, famine, injustice, oppression, and all the stern realities and hardships that tried them as gold is tried in the fire. Chaucer's satire often raises a good-humoured laugh; but Langland's is that of a man who is constrained to speak out all the bitter truth, and it is as earnest as is the cry of an injured man who appeals to Heaven for vengeance. Each, in his own way, is equally admirable, and worthy to be honoured by all who prize highly the English character and our own land. The extreme earnestness of our author and the obvious truthfulness and blunt honesty of his character are in themselves attractive, and lend a value to all he utters, even when he is evolving a theory or wanders away into abstract questions of theological speculation. It is in such a poem as his that we get a real insight into the inner every-day life of the people, their dress, their diet, their wages, their strikes, and all the minor details which picture to us what manner of men they were ^p.

One very curious variation occurs in the character of Piers the Plowman himself. In the A-text, he is merely the highest type of the honest small farmer, whose practical justice and Christianity are so approved of by Truth (who is the same with God the Father), that he is entrusted with a bull of pardon of more value than even the Pope's. But towards the conclusion of the B-text, the poet strikes a higher note, and makes him the type of the human nature in its highest form of excellence, the human flesh within whom dwelt the divine soul of Christ our Saviour. By a sort of parody upon the text in 1 Cor. x. 4, he asserts that Petrus est Christus, that Piers is Christ, and he likens the Saviour to a champion who fights in Piers' armour, that is to say, in human flesh—humana natura. When the fact is once fully perceived that, in a part of the poem, Piers is actually identified with our Lord and Saviour, the notion of imagining him to have been an old English author stands revealed in its complete and irreverent absurdity.

The reader should beware also of being much influenced by the mention of the Malvern hills. The name of William of Malvern has been proposed for the poet, in order to meet the objection that his surname is not certainly known. In my opinion, such a name is a very unfit one, and likely to add to the numerous misconceptions already current concerning him. One great merit of the poem is, that it chiefly exhibits London life and London opinions, which are surely of more interest to us than those of Worcestershire. He does but mention Malvern three times, and those three passages may be found within the compass of the first eight Passus of Text A. But how numerous are his allusions to London! He not only speaks of it several times, but he frequently mentions the law-courts of Westminster; he was familiar with Cornhill, East Cheap, Cock Lane in Smithfield, Shoreditch, Garlickhithe, Stratford, Tyburn, and Southwark, all of which he mentions in an off-hand manner. He mentions no river but the Thames, which is with him simply synonymous with river; for in one passage he speaks of two men thrown into the Thames, and in another he says that rich men are wont to give presents to the rich, which is as superfluous as if one should fill a tun with water from a fresh river, and then pour it into the Thames to render it fuller⁹. To remember the London origin of a large portion of the poem is the true key to the right understanding of it.

It is impossible to give here an adequate sketch of that portion of English history which the poem illustrates, but it is very important that its close connection with history should be ever borne in mind. I will merely adduce one instance of this, one to which Mr. Wright has well drawn attention, and upon which I would lay even more stress than he has done. I allude to the rebellion under Wat Tyler. It is most evident that Langland himself was intensely loyal; if he would not reverence men whom he saw going about in rich clothing, he had a most profound reverence and even affection for the king. In the Prologue to his poem upon Richard II., whom he rates soundly and spares not, he commences with words of most tender and even touching remonstrance; it evidently goes to his heart that he should be compelled by a sense of duty to administer a severe reproof to 'his sovereign, whose subject he ought to be.' He nowhere recommends or encourages revolutionary ideas, but the contrary, and he never could have intended his words to have roused the flame of rebellion. But the outspoken manner of them was just that which delighted the populace; his exaltation of the ploughman was gladly seized upon, and his bold words perverted into watchwords of insurgency. He had but lately elaborated his second text of the poem, when John Balle, 'the crazy priest of Kent,' wrote the following remarkable letter to the commons of Essex.—

'John Schep, som tyme Seynt Marie prest of 3orke, and nowe of Colchestre, greteth welle Johan Nameles, and Johan the Mullere, and Johan Cartere, and biddeth hem that thei ware of gyle in burgh, and stondeth togiddir in Goddis name, and biddeth Peres Plouzman go to his werke, and chastise welle Hobbe the robber, and taketh with 3ou Johan Trewman, and alle his felaws, and no mo, and loke scharpe 3ou to on heued, and no mo.

Johan the Muller hath ygrownde smal, smal, smal;
 The Kyngis sone of hevene shalle paye for alle.
 Be ware or ye be wo,
 Knoweth 3our frende fro 3oure foo,
 Haveth ynowe, and seythe 'Hoo';
 And do welle and bette, and fleth synne,
 And seketh pees, and holde thereynne;
 And so biddeth Johan Trewman and alle his felawes.'

For writing which, John Balle was drawn, hung, and quartered, July 15, 1381, just one month after Wat Tyler had been cut down by Sir William Walworth. See Thomæ Walsingham Historia Anglicana, ed. Riley, vol. ii. p. 33. The reader will remark the mention, not only of Peres Plousman, but of do-welle and betre; besides which, the name of Schep (or shepherd), was probably adopted from the second line of the prologue, and the name of Trewman was possibly suggested by Langland's Tomme Trew-tonge (4. 17).

It will probably assist the reader to have before him a general sketch of one of the forms of the Poem. Taking the B-text of it, it may be divided, as before explained, into two parts, viz. Piers the Plowman, properly so called, the whole of which is here printed, and the Vision of Do-wel, Do-bet, and Do-best. The former consists of an Introductory Prologue and Seven Passus, and can be subdivided into two distinct portions, which may be called: (1) The Vision of the Field Full of Folk, of Holy Church, and of Lady Meed, occupying the Prologue and Passus I-IV; and (2) The Vision of the Seven Deadly Sins and of Piers the Plowman*, occupying Passus V-VII.

I. Vision of the Field Full of Folk, of Holy Church, and of Lady Meed. In the Prologue, the author describes how, weary of wandering, he sits down to rest upon Malvern Hills, and there falls asleep and dreams. In his vision, the world and its people are represented to him by a field full of folk, busily engaged in their avocations. The field was situate between the tower of Truth, who is God the Father, and the dungeon which is the abode of evil spirits. In it there were ploughmen and spendthrifts, anchorites, merchants, jesters, beggars, pilgrims, hermits, friars, a pardoner with his bulls, and priests who deserted their cures. There was also a king, to whom an angel speaks words of advice. Then was seen suddenly a rout of rats and mice, conspiring to bell the cat, from doing which they were dissuaded by a wise mouse. There were also law-serjeants, burgesses, tradesmen, labourers, and taverners touting for custom.

* Piers is never once mentioned till we come to Pass. V. 544.

Passus I. Presently, he sees a lovely lady, of whom he asks the meaning of the tower. She tells him it is the abode of the Creator, who provides men with the necessaries of life. The dungeon is the castle of Care, where lives the Father of Falseness. He prays the lady to disclose her name, and she tells him she is Holy Church, and instructs him how great a treasure Truth is, how Lucifer fell through pride, that faith without works is dead, and that the way to heaven lies through Love.

Passus II. He asks how he may know Falsehood. She bids him turn, and see both Falsehood and Flattery (Favel). Looking aside, he sees, not them alone, but a woman in glorious apparel. He is told that she is the Lady Meed (i. e. Reward or Bribery), who is to be married to Falsehood on the morrow. Holy Church then leaves him. The wedding is arranged, and Simony and Civil read a deed respecting the property with which Falsehood and Meed are to be endowed. Theology objects to the marriage, and disputes its legality; whereupon it is agreed that all must go to Westminster to have the question decided. All the parties ride off to London, Meed being mounted upon a sheriff, and Falsehood upon a 'sisour.' Guile leads the way, and they soon reach the king's court, who vows that he will punish Falsehood if he can catch him. Whereupon all run away, except Meed alone, who is taken prisoner.

Passus III. Lady Meed is now brought before the king. The justices assure her that all will go well. To seem righteous, she confesses to a friar and is shriven, offering to glaze a church-window by way of amendment, immediately after which she advises mayors and judges to take bribes. The king proposes that she shall marry Conscience; but Conscience refuses, and exposes her faults. She attempts to retaliate and to justify herself; but Conscience refutes her arguments, quotes the example of Saul to shew the evil of covetousness, and declares that Reason shall one day reign upon earth and punish all wrong-doers. To this is appended a description of the year of jubilee, and a caution about reading texts in connection with the context, neither of which things appear in the A-text.

Passus IV. Hereupon the king orders Reason to be sent for; who comes, accompanied by Wit and Wisdom. At this moment Peace enters, with a complaint against Wrong. Wrong, knowing the complaint to be true, wins over Wit and Wisdom to his side, by Meed's help, and offers to buy Peace off with a present. Reason, however, is firm and will shew no pity, but advises the king to act with strict justice. The king is convinced, and prays Reason to remain with him for ever afterwards.

II. The Vision of the Seven Deadly Sins, and of Piers the Plowman.

Passus V. Here the dreamer awakes, but not for long; he soon falls to sleep over his prayers, and has a second dream, wherein he again sees the field full of folk, and Reason^a preaching to the assembled people, reminding them that the late tempest and pestilences were judgments of God. Many are affected by the sermon, and begin to repent and confess their sins. Of these, the first is Pride, who makes a vow of humility. The second is Luxury or Lechery, who vows henceforth only to drink water. The third is Envy, who confesses his evil thoughts and his attempts to harm his neighbours. The fourth is Wrath, a friar, whose aunt was a nun, and who was both cook and gardener to a convent, and incited many to quarrel. The fifth, Avarice, who confesses how he lied, cheated, and lent money upon usury, and who, not understanding the French word restitution, thought that it was another term for stealing. The sixth, Gluttony, who (on his way to church) is tempted into a London ale-house, of the interior of which the author gives a most life-like picture, as distinct as a drawing by Hogarth. Glutton also repents and vows amendment, but not till after he has first become completely drunk and afterwards felt ashamed of himself. The seventh is Sloth, a priest who knows rimes about Robin Hood better than his prayers, and can find a hare in a field more readily than he can read the lives of saints. Robert the robber too repents, and prays for forgiveness, and Repentance makes supplication for all the penitents^b. Then all set out to seek after Truth, but no one knows the way. Soon they meet with a palmer, who had sought the shrines of many saints, but never that of one named Truth. At this juncture Piers the Plowman for the first time appears, declaring that he knows Truth well, and will tell them the way, which he then describes.

^a In the A-text, it is Conscience who preaches.

Passus VI. The pilgrims still ask for a guide, and Piers says he will shew them, when he has ploughed his half-acre. Meanwhile, he gives good advice to ladies and to a knight. Before starting, he makes his will, and then sets all who come to him to hard work. Many shirk their work, but are reduced to subordination by the sharp treatment of Hunger. Next follow some most curious and valuable passages concerning the diet of the poor, strikes for higher wages, and the discontents engendered by a brief prosperity.

Passus VII. At this time Truth (i. e. God the Father) sends Piers a bull of pardon, especially intended for kings, knights, bishops, and the labouring poor, and even for some lawyers and merchants, in a less degree. A priest disputes the validity of Piers' pardon, and wants to see it. The dispute between him and Piers is so violent that the dreamer awakes, and the poem of Piers the Plowman (properly so called) ends with a fine peroration on the small value of the pope's pardons, and the superiority of a righteous life over mere trust in indulgences, at the Last Great Day.

The poem of Do-awell is much more discursive, and is far too full of matter to admit of a brief summary of it; it contains many passages of great interest and importance. In one of these occurs the curious prophecy, that a king would one day come and beat the religious orders for breaking their rules, and then should the abbot of Abingdon receive a knock from the king, and incurable should be the wound; a passage which excited great interest in the days of Henry VIII. In another passage is the reference to the mayoralty of John Chichester. The poem of Do-bet has a long and most singular prologue, containing, among other things, a reference to the Mahometan religion and the duty of Christians to convert the Saracens to the true faith. The poem itself is on a uniform and settled plan, designed to point out that Jesus is the only Saviour of men. It seems to me most admirable, both in conception and execution. We are introduced to Faith, personated by Abraham, and to Hope, both of whom pass by the wounded man who has been stripped by thieves. But Love, who is the Good Samaritan, and none other than Jesus in the dress of Piers the Ploughman, alone has compassion on him and saves his life. With growing power and vividness, the poem describes the death of Christ, the struggle between Life and Death and between Light and Darkness, the meeting together of Truth and Mercy, Righteousness and Peace, whilst the Saviour rests in the grave; a triumphant description of the descent of Christ into hell, and His victory over Satan and Lucifer, till the poet wakes in ecstasy, with the joyous peal of the bells ringing in his ears on the morning of Easter day. And I cannot refrain from adding here my conviction, that there are not many passages in English poetry which are so sublime in their conception as this 18th Passus. Some of the lines are rudely and quaintly expressed, but there are also many of great beauty and power, and which buoyantly express the glorious triumph of Christ. But alas! the poem of Do-best reveals how far off the end yet is. The Saviour leaves earth, and Antichrist descends upon it. The Church is assailed by many foes, and can scarcely hold her own; diseases assail all mankind; death 'pushes' to the dust kings and knights, emperors and popes, and many a lovely lady; old age can scarce bear up against despair; Envy hates Conscience, and hires flattering friars to salve Conscience with soothing but deadly remedies, till Conscience, hard beset by Pride and Sloth, cries out to Contrition to help him; but Contrition still slumbers, benumbed by the deadly potions he has drunk. With a last effort Conscience arouses himself, and seizes his pilgrim's staff, determined to wander wide over the world till he shall find Piers the Plowman. And the dreamer awakes in tears.

Dr. Whitaker once suggested that the poem is not perfect, that it must have been designed to have a more satisfactory ending, and not one so suggestive of disappointment and gloom. I am convinced that this opinion is most erroneous; not so much because all the MSS. have here the word Explicit, but from the very nature of the case. What other ending can there be?

or rather, the end is not yet. We may be defeated, yet not cast down; we may be dying, and yet live. We are all still pilgrims upon earth. That is the truth which the author's mighty genius would impress upon us in his parting words. Just as the poet awakes in ecstasy at the end of the poem of Do-bet, where he dreams of that which has been already accomplished, so here he wakes in tears, at the thought of how much remains to be done. So far from ending carelessly, he seems to me to have ceased speaking at the right moment, and to have managed a very difficult matter with consummate skill.

The last consideration that requires attention is the form of the poem, as regards its metre and language.

The metre is that known as alliterative, the only metre which in the earliest times was employed in Anglo-Saxon poetry. It also resembles the older kind of alliterative poetry in being entirely without rime. Poems thus composed may be printed either in short lines or long ones, as is most convenient. I have adopted the system of long lines, as Early English poems in this metre and of this period are invariably written in long lines in the MSS., except when written continuously, as we write prose. Every long line is divided into two short lines or half-lines by a pause, the position of which is marked in the MSS. by a point (sometimes coloured red), or by a mark resembling an inverted semi-colon, or, very rarely, by a mark resembling a paragraph mark (¶) or inverted D (∩), coloured red and blue alternately. In some MSS., but these are generally inferior ones, the mark is entirely omitted. It is also not infrequently misplaced. In the present volume the position of the pause is denoted by an inverted full-stop, and the reader will find that it almost invariably points out the right place for a slight rest in reading, and in very many places is equivalent to a comma in punctuation. If we employ the term loud syllables to denote those syllables which are more strongly accented and are of greater weight and importance, and soft syllables to denote those having a slighter stress or none at all, we may briefly state the chief rules of alliterative verse, as employed by our author and other writers of his time, in the following manner.

1. Each half-line contains two or more loud syllables, two being the usual number. More than two are frequently found in the first half-line, but rarely in the second.

2. The initial-letters which are common to two or more of these loud syllables being called the rime-letters, each line should have two rime-letters in the first, and one in the second half. The two former are called sub-letters, the latter the chief-letter.

3. The chief-letter should begin the former of the two loud syllables in the second half-line. If the line contain only two rime-letters, it is because one of the sub-letters is dispensed with.

4. If the chief-letter be a consonant, the sub-letters should be the same consonant, or a consonant expressing the same sound. If a vowel, it is sufficient that the sub-letters be also vowels; they need not be the same, and in practice are generally different. If the chief-letter be a combination of consonants, such as sp, ch, str, and the like, the sub-letters frequently present the same combination, although the recurrence of the first letter only would be sufficient.

These rules are easily exemplified by the opening lines of the prologue.

1	In a sómer sésou · whan sóft was the sónnē,	4
2	I sbópe me in sbróudēs · as I a sbépe wérc,	5
3	In hábite as an bérenite · vnþóly of wórkēs,	6
4	Went wýde in þis wórlð · wóndres to hérē,	7
5	Ac on a Máy mórnyng · on Máluerne húllēs	8
6	Me byfél a feryly · of fáiry, me thóuytē;	9
7	I was wéry forwándred · and wént me to réstē	10
8	Vnder a bróðē bánkē · bi a bórnes sidē,	11
9	And ás I láy and léned · and lóked in þe wáteres,	12
10	I slómbred in a slépyng · it swéyued so mérye.	13

Line 1 has s for its rime-letter; the sub-letters begin somer and séson; the chief-letter begins soft. The s beginning sonne may be regarded as superfluous and accidental.

Line 2 shews sb used as a rime-letter. The syllables marked with a diæresis are to be fully sounded, and counted as distinct syllables. The e at the end of sbope merely shews that the preceding o is long, and is not syllabic.

Line 3 is very regular; it reminds us that the vn- in vnholý is a mere prefix, and that the true root of the word is holý, beginning with b.

In line 4, the initial W in Went is superfluous.

In line 5, two loud syllables, viz. May and the first of mornynge, come together. This is rare, and not pleasing.

In line 6, by- in byfel is a mere prefix; and so is for- in forwanded in line 7.

In line 8, the b in bi is unnecessary to the alliteration.

In line 9, if a stress be laid upon as, there will be three loud syllables in the first half-line.

In line 10, the chief-letter is s, but the sub-letters exhibit the combination sl.

The true swing and rhythm of the lines is very easily caught. A few variations may be noticed.

(a) The chief-letter may begin the second loud syllable of the second half-line; as,—

' Vnkýnde to her kýn · and to állë cristene;' 1. 190.

(b) Sometimes there are two rime-letters in the second half-line, and one in the first. Such lines are rare; I give an example from the A-text of the poem, Pass. ii. l. 112:—

' Tyle he had syluer · for his sáwes and his sólynge.'

(c) The chief-letter is sometimes omitted; but this is a great blemish. Thus, in l. 34 of the Prologue, nearly all the MSS. have synneles, instead of giltles, which is the reading of MS. R. 3. 14 in Trinity Collegé, Cambridge.

(d) By a bold license, the rime-letter is sometimes found at the beginning of soft or subordinate syllables, as in the words for, awbil, in the lines:—

' Panne I fráinéd hir fáirë · for hým þat hir mádë;' 1. 58.

' And with him to wónye with wó · whil gód is in héuene;' 2. 106.

These last examples are among the instances which go to shew that Langland was not very particular about his metre. He frequently neglects to observe the strict rules, and evidently considered metre of less importance than the sense. This remark will suffice to dismiss the subject, since, for more perfect specimens of the metre, the poems of the Anglo-Saxon period should be studied. Of the poems in unrimed alliterative metre which are most nearly contemporaneous with Piers the Plowman, some of the principal are William of Palerne, and a fragment of a poem on Alexander (both edited by myself for the Early English Text Society in the same volume), Pierce the Ploughman's Crede, The Deposition of Richard II., Two poems (one upon Cleanness, and another upon Patience), edited by Mr. Morris for the Early English Text Society in 1864, The Destruction of Jerusalem, &c. For further information, see my essay on Alliterative Poetry in vol. iii. of the Percy Folio MS., edited by Hales and Furnivall.

As regards the language of the poem, the first point is the dialect. This is certainly of a mixed character, as it exhibits the plural forms in -en in the indicative mood (which are a mark of Midland dialect), and also plural forms in -eth (which mark the Southern). This peculiarity is by no means confined to the particular MS. here printed, but is the case with most other MSS. which I have examined. Thus, in Pass. iii. ll. 80, 81, we find—

'For þise aren men on þis molde · þat moste harme worcheth
To þe pore peple · þat parcel-mele buggen [buy].'

This mixture of the -eth ending in worcheth, and the -en ending in buggen, occurs in at least six other MSS., and a careful examination of many MSS. has convinced me that such an admixture of dialect is an essential mark of the poem, and of the dialect spoken by its composer. There are many traces of West of England speech also, and even some of Northern, but the latter may possibly be rightly considered as common to both North and West. The reader will therefore do well to remember that he has here to deal with a dialect of a peculiarly uncertain character, and that he cannot therefore always draw certain conclusions. At the same time, the dialect is far from being such as to cause much difficulty by the introduction of uncommon words. The language is fairly intelligible after a slight amount of patience has been bestowed upon the first few hundred lines, and the occasional occurrence of hard words is chiefly due to the extraordinary extent of the author's vocabulary.

Mr. Morris well observes, in his Introduction to 'Chaucer's Prologue,' &c., in the Clarendon Press Series—that the number of Norman-French words in Chaucer is so great that 'he has been accused of corrupting the language by a large and unnecessary admixture of Norman-French terms. But Chaucer, with few exceptions, employed only such terms as were in use in the spoken language, and stamped them with the impress of his genius, so that they became current coin of the literary realm.' That this remark is true is shewn by the fact that Langland does the very same thing, employing Norman-French words freely whenever he wishes to do so.

As regards the orthography, it may be remarked that the scribe of the Laud MS. seems to have added many final e's where the rules would not lead us to expect them, and has omitted many where they seem necessary. This is due, either to carelessness on his part, or to a peculiar orthographical system, or to the fact that the dialect is of a mixed character and more uncertain. The first supposition alone hardly suffices, as most MSS. of the B-text exhibit like irregularities. The chief points of the grammar are so well explained in the Introduction to Mr. Morris's Chaucer (Clarendon Press Series), pp. xxvii-xxxvi, that a very brief summary of some of them may be sufficient here.

The scribe uses þ to represent th. In a great many cases he distinguishes between the sound of th in thin, and the sound of th in thine. He denotes the former by th written at length, as in þreþeth, þinketh, and the like, and the latter by þ, as in þe, þat, þanne, and the like. This is his usual custom; but there are several instances of the contrary. He also uses ȝ, as usual, with the sound of y at the beginning of a word, as in ȝe, ȝoure, and with the guttural sound of gh in the middle of a word, as in thouȝte, nauȝt. He employs very few contractions, all of which are here denoted by italics. Most of these involve the letter r; thus a curl above the line, which is really a corruption of the old form of e, stands for er or re; as in better, preched^u. An i above the line means ri, as in crist. A roughly written a means ra, as in grace. A roughly written v means vr or ur, as in honour. A p with a straight stroke through the tail means per or par, as in persoun, parfyt. A p with a curling stroke below means pro, as in proffy. A straight stroke above a letter means n or m, as in momme, man, where the stroke is over o and a respectively. A few words are written shortly, as rē for lettre, cōe for comune, qd for quod. When these contractions and a few others of rare occurrence are mastered, the difficulty of reading MSS. is not great. To read them correctly in all cases comes by practice only.

NOUNS.

Number. The nominative plural ends commonly in -es, as in shroudes, workes; sometimes in s, as in bidders, or in z, as in diamantz. This z is written exactly like 3, the symbol for y or gb. For -es, -is is sometimes found, as in wittis; and very rarely, -us, as in folus. Some few plurals are in -en, as sustren, chylderen. A few nouns, such as folk, which were originally neuter, have no termination in the plural. Gees, men, are examples of plurals formed by vowel-change; fete and fet are various spellings of the plural of foot.

Case. The genitive singular ends in -es, sometimes corrupted into -is, as in cattes, cattis. Other endings are very rare. The genitive plural sometimes ends in -en or -ene, as in clerken, kyngene. Gbildryn is also a genitive plural. The instances of these more unusual forms are readily found by help of the references in the Glossarial Index. Mannus (for men's) occurs once only. The dative case singular commonly ends in -e, as in to beddē.

ADJECTIVES.

The distinction between definite and indefinite adjectives is difficult to follow, owing to the irregularity of the alliterative rhythm; and the scribe, not having much to guide him, may have been at fault sometimes, and has certainly added many final -e's after a long vowel, which he never intended to be pronounced as a separate syllable. He even writes fete for feet, sbope for sboop, where there is no doubt about the final e being silent, and intended to be non-syllabic. Plural adjectives should end in -e, and commonly do so, as alle. The reduplication of a consonant when a syllable is added is worth notice; thus alle is the plural of al, just as sbullen is the plural of the auxiliary verb sbal. Very rarely, plural adjectives of French origin end in -es; I believe that cardinales vertues is the sole instance; cf. the phrase maistres freres. The comparative of heigh (high) is herre, the superlative hexte. Adjectives and adverbs ending in -ly sometimes form their comparatives and superlatives in -loker, -lokest, as lightloker, lightlokest.

* These remarks are chiefly copied and adapted from Mr. Morris's Chaucer.

PRONOUNS.

The pronouns are the same as in Chaucer; but, besides scbe, the older form beo is also used^w; and, besides þei, the older form bij (by). These are instances of a confusion or admixture of dialect. Their is denoted by here, ber, or bir; them by bem. The dative case is used with impersonal verbs, as me byfel, him likede. The pronoun thou is often written toaw, and at the same time joined to its verb, as seestow, seest thou, rependedestow, repentedst thou. The genitive of awho is written awbas, 2. 18. Vch a or eche a is used for each; awbich a for what sort of a; pl. awbiche, what sort of.

VERBS.

It is chiefly here that the Laud MS. (in all other respects superior to the rest) exhibits irregularities; several of which, however, are found also in other good MSS. of the B-class. The indicative plural ends both in -en and -eth, as geten, connetb; a variety which has been already noted. The past tense of weak verbs, which should end in -ede, commonly ends in -ed only, and this not only in the singular, but in the plural, as pleyed; yet sometimes even the full plural form -eden occurs, as in lyueden.

^w The form in Chaucer is scbe, and never beo.

The student will learn much by contrasting the various endings in Langland's popular poem (which probably at all times exhibited the language rather of the educated poorer classes than that of the more wealthy), with the more regular endings found in good MSS. of Chaucer². I can only point out a few of the most striking peculiarities, and refer to Mr. Morris's Introduction to Chaucer, and to his Grammatical Introduction to 'Specimens of Early English' for further information, and for full tables of verbal forms.

The abbreviated forms sit (for sittetb), rit (for ridetb), halt (for boldetb), and the like, occur here as in Chaucer. So also bit for biddetb, rest for restetb, fet for fedetb.

In weak verbs, which should form their past tenses in -de or -te, the final -e is often dropped. Thus went is used for wente.

In strong verbs, which should terminate (in the first and third persons singular of the past tense) in a consonant, we often find an -e added, as already mentioned. Thus I shope is written for I shop or I shoop. The plural commonly has the correct termination -en, as in women, chosen.

In the infinitive mood, some verbs are found with the ending -ie or -ye, as tillie, sbonye, stekye, louye; and the final -e is sometimes dropped, as in cracby. This ending, which the West Midland and Southern dialects had in common, does not, I believe, occur in Chaucer.

The present participles end in -yng, as lybbyng, worchyng, wandryng; but the ending -inde occurs occasionally in the MSS. The prefix y- is frequently found before past participles, and sometimes even before past tenses; see Y- in the Glossary.

The anomalous verbs and negative verbs (such as nam for am not, nelle for will not), adverbs, &c., are much the same as in Chaucer.

There is one error in syntax which, in more passages than one, is so well supported by MS. authority, that we can hardly suppose it not to have been due to the author himself. It is, that he uses a singular verb with a plural noun, especially the verb is or was. A clear example is in Pass. v. 99.

Few things are more important than to pay great attention to the true force of adverbs, prepositions, and conjunctions; till these are mastered, the construction of sentences is left quite uncertain; and when a sentence appears difficult, it is often because such small words have not been understood. Thus there frequently means where; then = than; thanne = then. Bi often = with reference to, and of often = by. Vp = upon, until = unto. Or or ar = ere, before; als = as; but = except; ac = but; 3if = if; sitben = since. It is a common error to assign to words, especially words of this class, the meanings which they have now. For instance, als is seen to be another form of also, and it is therefore supposed to mean also; but it more commonly has the old meaning of al so, i. e. just as. The preposition with often has a very odd position in the sentence; see note to Pass. ii. 31. An is written for and; and, conversely, and for an, if.

GENERAL HINTS.

Several mistakes are frequently made by those who are beginning to study Old English, which are worth mention, in order to put the student on his guard.

1. It is common to disregard the spelling, and look upon it as lawless. It is true that it was not uniform, but the scribes had a law nevertheless, for their general object was to represent sounds, and the spelling is phonetic, not conventional. The variations in spelling arose from the variety of ways in which sounds can be represented. Thus i and y were considered as interchangeable, and it is a mere chance which is used.

2. The difficulty of Old English has been much exaggerated. Though it may take years to become a sound scholar, a very fair knowledge of it may be picked up in a few weeks, and is of great utility; for more grammar can thus be learnt in a short time than by reading any amount of grammatical treatises that ignore the older forms of the language.

3. Many words are regarded as entirely obsolete which are nevertheless still preserved in provincial dialects.

4. Old words are often wrongly taken in their modern sense. Thus, to allow does not mean to permit, but to approve of, the root being the Latin laudare. Again, to take is supposed always to mean to receive; whereas it commonly means to give.

5. Some forget to apply and make the most of such knowledge as they really possess. Thus, in the phrase, 'the quick and the dead,' every one knows that quick means living. Such knowledge should be put to good use; let it be remembered that quick is almost sure to mean living in Early English, and then it will not wrongly be supposed to mean quick.

As regards etymology, it must be remembered that many good dictionaries, such as Richardson's, for instance, are not always to be trusted. One of the best is Webster's, as revised by Dr. Mahn, and published by Bell and Daldy. For general information, few surpass Dr. Ogilvie's Imperial Dictionary. But by far the best work on derivations is Wedgwood's Dictionary of English Etymology, which is full of illustrations and suggestions; it is from this work that the useful book called Chambers's Etymological Dictionary is mainly compiled. Above all things, the reader should, if possible, acquire some knowledge of Anglo-Saxon, or else of Dutch or German, and should verify words cited from foreign languages as far as he can. Pocket-dictionaries of French, German, Dutch, Danish (by Ferrall and Repp), Swedish, Italian and Spanish (both by Meadows), Welsh (by Spurrell) are very useful. Actual reference to these teaches more than anything else can do; nothing should be taken on trust, but everything should be examined and verified. To doubt much, and to examine for oneself, is the best rule for making real progress.

As regards the subject-matter of Piers the Plowman, I subjoin the names of a few books which I have found especially useful, and nearly all of which are referred to either in the Notes or the Glossary.

For derivations:—Promptorium Parvulorum, ed. Way (Camden Society); Wedgwood's English Etymology; Roquefort, Glossaire de la Langue Romaine; Burguy, Grammaire de la Langue d'Écil (the third volume of which contains an excellent glossary);

Bosworth's Anglo-Saxon Dictionary; Ihre's Glossarium Suiogothicum; Egilsson's Icelandic Lexicon; Jamieson's Scottish Dictionary; Skeat's Mæso-Gothic Glossary; Halliwell's Archaic and Provincial Dictionary; Nares' Glossary; Morris's Specimens of Early English; Stratmann's Old English Dictionary; Vernon's Anglo-Saxon Guide, &c., &c.

For subject-matter. Chaucer's works; the publications of the Early English Text Society; Wright's History of Domestic Manners; Wright's Essays; Warton's History of English Poetry; Wright's edition of Piers Ploughman; Wright's Political Poems; Wright's Political Songs (Camden Society); Wright's edition of the Deposition of Richard II (Camden Society); Lingard's History of England; Liber Albus, ed. H. T. Riley; Memorials of London, ed. Riley; Thomæ Walsingham Historia, ed. Riley; Monumenta Franciscana; Fabyan's Chronicles; Brand's Popular Antiquities; Milman's History of Latin Christianity; Southey's Book of the Church; Massingberd's History of the Reformation; Hook's Church Dictionary; Timbs' Nooks and Corners of Old English Life; Our English Home; Hazlitt's Early Popular Poetry; Chambers's Book of Days; Morley's English Writers; Marsh's Lectures on English; Craik's English Literature, &c. Many of the notes from these books are purposely given as briefly as possible, to save space, and very much more information will often be found by those who consult the originals, exact references to which are always given. This is particularly the case with respect to Chambers's Book of Days, which is an excellent repertory of popular antiquities; the reader who actually refers to it will often find whole pages of information, in the places indicated in the Notes.

I have here endeavoured to point out only the most simple and obvious sources of information, although a few of these books are not always easily procurable. There are many others, such as Chaucer's England, by M. Browne, Longman's Life of Edward III., and the like, which may sometimes be of use, but it is undesirable to make too long a list.

THE VISION OF WILLIAM CONCERNING PIERS THE PLOWMAN.

INCIPIT LIBER DE PETRO PLOWMAN.

Prologus.

I N a somer seson · whan soft was the sonne,
I shope me in shroudes · as I a shepe were,
In habite as an heremite · vnholý of workes,
Went wyde in þis world · wondres to here.
Ac on a May mornynge · on Maluerne hulles, 5
Me byfel a ferly · of fairy, me thouzte;
I was wery forwandred · and went me to reste
Vnder a brode banke · bi a bornes side,
And as I lay and lened · and loked in þe wateres,
I slombred in a slepyng · it sweyued so merye. 10
Thanne gan I to meten · a merueilouse sweuene,
That I was in a wilderness · wist I neuer where;
As I bihelde in-to þe est · an hiegh to þe sonne,
I seigh a toure on a toft · trielich ymaked;
A depe dale binethe · a dongeon þere-Inne, 15
With depe dyches & derke · and dredful of sight,
A faire felde ful of folke · fonde I there bytwene,
Of alle maner of men · þe mene and þe riche,
Worchyng and wandryng · as þe worlde asketh.

Some putten hem to þe plow · pleyed ful selde, 20
 In setting and in sowyng · swonken ful harde,
 And wonnen that wastours · with glotonye destruyeth.

And some putten hem to pruyde · apparaild hem þere-after,
 In contenaunce of clothyng · comen disgised.

In prayers and in penance · putten hem manye, 25
 Al for loue of owre lorde · lyueden ful streyte,
 In hope forto haue · heueneriche blisse ;

As ances and heremites · that holden hem in here selles,
 And coueiten nought in contre · to kairen aboute,
 For no likerous lillode · her lykam to plesse. 30

And somme chosen chaffare · they cheuen the bettere,
 As it semeth to owre syzt · that suche men thryueth ;
 And somme murthes to make · as mynstralles conneth,
 And geten gold with here glee · giltles, I leue.

Ac iapers & iangelers · Iudas chylderen, 35
 Feynen hem fantasies · and foles hem maketh,
 And han here witte at wille · to worche, zif þei sholde ;

That Poule *pre*cheth of hem · I nel nought preue it here ;
Qui turpiloquium loquitur · is luciferes hyne.

Bidders and beggeres · fast aboute zede, 40
 With her belies and her bagges · of bred ful ycrammed ;
 Fayteden for here fode · fouzten atte ale ;

In glotonye, god it wote · gon hij to bedde,
 And risen with ribaudye · tho roberdes knaues ;
 Slepe and sori sleuthe · *se*weth hem eure. 45

Pilgrymes and palmers · plizted hem togidere
 To seke seynt Iames · and seyntes in rome.
 Thei went forth in here wey · with many wise tales,
 And hadden leue to lye · al here lyf after.

I seigh somme that seiden · þei had ysouzt seyntes ; 50
 To eche a tale þat þei tolde · here tonge was tempred to lye,

More þan to sey soth · it semed bi here speche,
 Heremites on an heep · With hoked staues, Wenten to Walsyngham · and here wenchis after ;
 Grete lobyes and longe · that loth were to swynke, 55
 Clotheden hem in copis · to ben knowen fram othere ;
 And shopen hem heremites · here ese to haue.
 I fonde þere Freris · alle þe foure ordres,
 Preched þe peple · for profit of hem-seluen,
 Glosed þe gospel · as hem good lyked, 60
 For coueitise of copis · construed it as þei wolde.
 Many of þis maistres Freris · mowe clothen hem at lykyng,
 For here money and marchandise · marchen togideres.
 For sith charite haþ be chapman · and chief to shryue lordes,
 Many ferlis han fallen · in a fewe 3eris, 65
 But holychirche and hij · holde better togideres,
 The most myschief on molde · is mountyng wel faste.
 Þere preched a Pardonere · as he a prest were,
 Brou3te forth a bulle · with bishopes seles,
 And seide þat hym-self my3te · assoilen hem alle 70
 Of falsched, of fastyng · of vowes ybroken.
 Lewed men leued hym wel · and lyked his wordes,
 Comen vp knelyng · to kissen his bulles ;
 He bonched hem with his breuet · & blered here eyes,
 And rau3te with his ragman · rynges and broches ; 75
 Thus þey geuen here golde · glotones to kepe.
 Were þe bischop yblissed · and worth bothe his eres,
 His seel shulde nou3t be sent · to deceyue þe peple.
 Ac it is nau3t by þe bischop · þat þe boy precheth, 80
 For the parisch prest and þe pardonere · parten þe siluer,
 That þe poraille of þe parisch · sholde haue, 3if þei nere.
 Persones and parisch prestes · pleynd hem to þe bischop,
 Þat here parissches were pore · sith þe pestilence tyme,

Alle þis route of ratones · to þis reson þei assented. 175
 Ac þo þe belle was ybouȝt · and on þe beiȝe hanged, Þere ne was ratoun in alle þe route · for alle þe rewme of Fraunce,
 Þat dorst haue ybounden þe belle · aboute þe cattis nekke,
 Ne hangen it aboute þe cattes hals · al Englonde to wyne;
 And helden hem vnhardy · and here conseilie feble, 180
 And leten here laboure lost · & alle here longe studye.
 A mous þat moche good · couthe, as me thouȝte,

Stroke forth sternly · and stode biforn hem alle,
 And to þe route of ratones · reherced þese wordes ;
 ' Thouȝ we culled þe catte · ȝut sholde þer come another, 185
 To cracchy vs and al owre kynde · þouȝ we crope vnder benches.

For-þi I conseilte alle þe comune · to lat þe catte worthe,
 And be we neuer so bolde · þe belle hym to shewe ;
 For I herde my sire seyn · is seuene ȝere ypassed, Þere þe catte is a kitoun · þe courte is ful elyng ; 190
 þat wittiseth holiwrite · who-so wil it rede,

Ve terre vbi puer rex est, &c.

For may no renke þere rest haue · for ratones bi nyȝte ;
 Þe while he caccheþ conynges · he coueiteth nouȝt owre
 caroyne,

But fet hym al with venesoun · defame we hym neuere.
 For better is a litel losse · þan a longe sorwe, 195
 Þe mase amonge vs alle · þouȝ we mysse a schrewe.
 For many mannus malt · we mys wolde destruye,
 And also ȝe route of ratones · rende mennes clothes,
 Nere þat cat of þat courte · þat can ȝow ouerlepe ;
 For had ȝe rattes ȝowre wille · ȝe couthe nouȝt reule ȝowreselue. 200

I sey for me, quod þe mous · ' I se so mykel after,
 Shal neuer þe cat ne þe kitoun · bi my conseilte be greued,
 Ne carpyng of þis coler · þat costed me neuere.
 And þouȝ it had coste me catel · biknowen it I nolde,
 But suffre as hym-self wolde · to do as hym liketh, 205
 Coupled & vncoupled · to cacche what thei mowe.

For-þi vche a wise wizte I warne · wite wel his owne.—

What þis meteles bemeneth · ȝe men þat be merye, Deuine ȝe, for I ne dar · bi dere god in heuene !
 ȝit houed þere an hondreth · in houues of selke, 210
 Seriauntz it semed · þat serueden atte barre,

Plededen for penyes · and poundes þe lawe,
 And nouȝt for loue of owre lorde · vnlese here lippes onis.
 Þow myȝtest better mete þe myste · on maluerne hulls, Þan gete a ^{momm} of here mouthe · but money were shewed. 215

Barones an burgeis · and bonde-men als
 I seiz in þis assemble · as ȝe shul here after.
 Baxsteres & brewesteres · and bocheres manye,
 Wollewebsteres · and weueres of lynnyn,
 Taillours and tynkeres · & tolleres in marketes, 220
 Masons and mynours · and many other craftes.
 Of alkin libbyng laboreres · lopen forth somme,
 As dykers & delueres · þat doth here dedes ille,
 And dryuen forth þe longe day · with ‘Dieu vous sauue, Dame Emme!’

Cokes and here knaues · crieden, ‘hote pies, hote!’ 225
 Gode gris and gees · gowe dyne, gowe!’

Tauerners vn-til hem · tolde þe same,
 ‘White wyn of Oseye · and red wyn of Gascoigne,
 Of þe Ryne and of þe Rochel · þe roste to defye.’
 Al þis seiz I slepyng · and seuene sythes more. 230

PASSUS I.

Passus Primus de visione.

WHAT this montaigne bymeneth · and þe merke dale,
 And þe felde ful of folke · I shal 3ow faire schewe,
 A loueli ladi of lere · in lynnyn yclothed,
 Come down fram a castel · and called me faire,
 And seide, ‘Sone, slepestow · sestow þis poeple, 5
 How bisi þei ben · abouten þe mase? - unity thing
 Þe moste partie of þis poeple · þat passeth on þis erthe, 1
 Haue þei worschip in þis worlde · þei wilne no better;
 Of other heuene þan here · holde þei no tale.’

I was aferd of her face · þei3 she faire were, 10
 And seide, ‘mercy, Madame · what is þis to mene?’
 ‘Þe toure vp þe toft,’ quod she · ‘treuthe is þere-Inne,
 And wolde þat 3e wrou3te · as his worde techeth;
 For he is fader of feith · fourmed 3ow alle,
 Bothe with fel and with face · and 3af 3ow fyue wittis 15
 Forto worschip hym þer-with · þe while þat 3e ben here.
 And þerfore he hy3te þe erthe · to help 3ow vchone
 Of wollen, of lynnyn · of lyflode at nede,
 In mesurable manere · to make 3ow at ese;

And comaunded of his curteisye · in comune þree þinges;
 Arne none nedful but þo · and nempne hem I thinke, 21
 And rekne hem bi resoun · reherce þow hem after.
 That one is vesture · from chele þe to saue,
 And mete atte mele · for myseise of þi-selue,

And drynke whan þow dryest · ac do nouȝt out of resoun, 25
That þow worth þe werse · whan þow worche shuldest.

For-þi drede delitable drynke · and þow shalt do þe bettere ;
Measure is medcyne · þouȝ þow moche ȝerne. deum 35
It is nauȝt al gode to þe goste · þat þe gutte axeþ,
Ne liflode to þi likam · þat leef is to þi soule.

Leue not þi likam · for a lyer hfm techeth,
That is þe wrecched worlde · wolde þe bitraye.
For þe fende and þi flesch · folweth þe to-gidere, 40
This and þat sueth þi soule · and seith it in þin herte ;
And for þow sholdest ben ywar · I wisse þe þe beste.

‘Madame, mercy,’ quod I · ‘me liketh wel ȝowre wordes,
Ac þe moneye of þis molde · þat men so faste holdeth,
Telle me to whom, Madame · þat tresore appendeth?’ 45

‘Go to þe gospel,’ quod she · ‘þat god seide hym-seluen,
Tho þe poeple hym apposed · wiþ a peny in þe temple,
Whether þei shulde þer-with · worschip þe kyng Sesar.
And god axed of hem · of whome spake þe lettre scriptura
And þe ymage ilyke · þat þere-inne stondest ? 50
“Cesaris,” þei seide · “we sen hym wel vchone.”

“Reddite cesari,” quod god · “þat cesari bifalleth.
Et que sunt dei, deo · or elles ȝe done ille.”

For riȝtful reson · shulde rewle ȝow alle,
And kynde witte be wardeyne · ȝowre welthe to kepe, 55
And tutour of ȝoure tresore · and take it ȝow at nede ;
For housbonderye & hij · holden togideres.
þanne I frained hir faire · for hym þat hir made,
‘That dongeoun in þe dale · þat dredful is of siȝte,
What may it be to mene · ma-dame, I ȝow biseche ? 60

‘þat is þe castel of care · who so cometh þerinne
May banne þat he borne was · to body or to soule.
Perinne wonieth a wiȝte · þat wronge is yhote,

Fader of falshed · and founded it hym-selue.
 Adam and Èue · he egged to ille, 65
 Conseilled caym · to kullen his brother;
 Iudas he iaped · with iuwen siluer,
 And sithen on an eller · honged hym after.
 He is letter of loue · and lyeth hem alle,
 That trusten on his tresor · bitrayeth he sonnest.' 70

Thanne had I wonder in my witt · what woman it were,
 þat such wise wordes · of holy writ shewed;
 And asked hir on þe hiege name · ar heo þennes 3eode,
 What she were witterli · þat wissed me so faire?

'Holicherche I am,' quod she · 'þow ou3test me to knowe,
 I vnderfonge þe firste · and þe feyth tau3te, 76
 And brou3test me borwes · my bidding to fulfille,
 And to loue me lelly · þe while þi lyf dureth.'

Thanne I courbed on my knees · and cryed hir of grace,
 And preyed hir pitously · prey for my synnes, 80
 And also kenne me kyndeli · on criste to bileue,
 That I mi3te worchen his wille · þat wrou3te me to man;
 'Teche me to no tresore · but telle me þis ilke,
 How I may saue my soule · þat seynt art yholden?'

'Whan alle tresores aren tried,' quod she · 'trewthe is þe best; 85

I do it on deus caritas · to deme þe soþe;
 It is as derworth a drewery · as dere god hym-seluen.

Who-so is trewe of his tonge · & telleth none other,
 And doth þe werkis þer-with · and wilneth no man ille,
 He is a god bi þe gospel · agrounde and aloft, 90
 And ylike to owre lorde · bi seynte lukes wordes.
 Þe clerkes þat knoweþ þis · shulde kenne it aboute,
 For cristene and vncristne · clameþ it vchone.

Kynges & kni3tes · shulde kepe it bi resoun,
 Riden and rappe down · in reumes aboute, 95

And taken transgressores · and tyen hem faste,
 Til treuthe had ytermyned · her trespas to þe ende.
 And þat is þe professiou appertly · þat appendeth for knyȝtes,
 And nouȝt to fasten a fryday · in fyue score wynter;
 But holden wiȝ him & with hir · þat wolden al treuthe, 100
 And neuer leue hem for loue · ne for lacchyng of syluer.

For Daud in his dayes · dubbed knyȝtes,
 And did hem swere on here swerde · to serue trewtwe euere;
 And who-so passed þat poynte · was apostata in þe ordre.

But criste kingene kyng · knyȝted ten, 105
 Cherubyn and seraphin · sūche seuene and an othre,
 And ȝaf hem myȝte in his maieste · þe muryer hem þouȝte;
 And ouer his mene meyne · made hem archangeles,
 Tauȝte hem bi þe Trinitee · treuthe to knowe,
 To be buxome at his bidyng · he bad hem nouȝte elles. 110

Lucifer wiȝ legiounes · lerned it in heuene,
 But for he brake buxumnesse · his blisse gan he tyne,
 And fel fro þat felawship · in a fendes liknes,
 In-to a depe derke helle · to dwelle þere for eure;
 And mo þowsandes wiȝ him · þan man couthe noumbre, 115
 Lopen out wiȝ Lucifer · in lothelich forme,
 For þei leueden vpon hym · þat lyed in þis manere:

Ponam pedem in aquilone, et similis ero altissimo.

And alle þat hoped it miȝte be so · none heuene miȝte hem
 holde,

But fellen out in fendes liknesse · nyne dayes togideres,
 Til god of his goodnesse · gan stable and stynte, 120
 And garte þe heuene to stekye · and stonden in quiete.

Whan thise wikked went out · wonderwise þei fellen,
 Somme in eyre, somme in erthe · & somme in helle depe;
 Ac lucifer lowest · lith of hem alle;
 For pryde þat he pult out · his peyne hath none ende; 125
 And alle þat worche with wronge · wenden hij shulle

After her deth day · and dwelle wiþ þat shrewe.
 Ac þo þat worche wel · as holiwritt telleth,
 And enden, as I ere seide · in treuthe, þat is þe best,
 Mowe be siker þat her soule · shal wende to heuene, 130
 Þer treuthe is in Trinitee · and troneth hem alle.
 For-þi I sey, as I seide ere · bi sizte of þise textis,
 Whan alle tresores arne ytried · treuthe is þe beste.
 Lereth it þis lewde men · for lettred men it knowen,
 Þat treuthe is tresore · þe triest on erþe. 135

‘ 3et haue I no kynde knowing,’ quod I · ‘ 3et mote 3e kenne me better,

By what craft in my corps · it comseth, and where.
 ‘ Þow doted daffe,’ quod she · ‘ dulle arne þi wittes ;
 To litel latyn þow lernedest · lede, in þi 3outh ;
Heu michi, quod sterilem duxi vilam iuuenilem !

It is a kynde knowyng,’ quod she · ‘ þat kenneth in þine herte 140

For to louye þi lorde · leuer þan þi-selue ;
 No dedly synne to do · dey þou3 þow sholdest :
 This I trowe be treuthe · who can teche þe better,
 Loke þow suffre hym to sey · and sithen lere it after.

For thus witnesseth his worde · worche þow þereafter ; 145

For trewth telleþ þat loue · is triacle of heuene ;
 May no synne be on him sene · þat vseth þat spise,
 And alle his werkes he wrou3te · with loue as him liste ;
 And lered it Moises for þe leuest þing · and moste like to heuene,

And also þe plante of pees · moste precious of vertues. 150

For heuene my3te nou3te holden it · it was so heuy of hym-self,

Tyl it hadde of þe erthe · yeten his fülle.

And whan it haued of þis folde · flesshe & blode taken,
 Was neuere leef vpon lynde · lister þer-after,

And portatyf and persant · as þe poynt of a nedle, 155
 That myzte non armure it lette · ne none heiȝ walles.

For-þi is loue leder · of þe lordes folke of heuene,
 And a mene, as þe Maire is · bitwene þe kyng and þe comune;

Riȝt so is loue a ledere · and þe lawe shapeth,
 Vpon man for his mysdedes · þe merciment he taxeth. 160
 And for to knowe it kyndely · it comseth bi myght,
 And in þe herte þere is þe heuede · and þe heiȝ welle;

For in kynde knowynge in herte · þere a myzte bigynneth.
 And þat falleth to þe fader · þat formed vs alle,
 Loked on vs with loue · and lete his sone deye 165
 Mekely for owre mysdedes · to amende vs alle;
 And ȝet wolde he hem no woo · þat wrouȝte hym þat peyne,
 But mekelich with mouthe · mercy he bisouȝte
 To haue pite of þat poeple · þat peyned hym to deth.

Here myztow see ensamples · in hym-selue one, 170
 That he was miȝtful & meke · and mercy gan graunte
 To hem þat hongen him an heiȝ · and his herte þirled.

For-thi I rede ȝow riche · haueth reuthe of þe pouere;
 Thouȝ ȝe be myȝtful to mote · beþ meke in ȝowre werkes.

For þe same mesures þat ȝe mete · amys other elles, 175
 ȝe shullen ben weyen þer-wyth · whan ȝe wende hennes;

Eadem mensura qua mensi fueritis, remecietur vobis.

For þouȝ ȝe be trewe of ȝowre tonge · and trewliche wyne,
 And as chaste as a childe · þat in cherche wepeth,
 But if ȝe louen lelliche · and lene þe poure,
 Such goed as god ȝow sent · godelich parteth, 180
 ȝe ne haue na more meryte · in masse ne in houres, þan Malkyn of hire maydenhode · þat no man desireth.

For Iames þe gentil · iugged in his bokes,
 That faith with-oute þe faite · is riȝte no þinge worthi,
 And as ded as a dore-tree · but ȝif þe dedes folwe; 185

Fides sine operibus mortua est, &c.

For-thi chastite with-oute charite · worth cheyned in helle ;
It is as lewed as a laumpe · þat no liȝte is Inne.

Many chapeleyne arne chaste · ac charite is away ;
Aren no men auarouere þan hij · whan þei ben auānced ;
Vnkynde to her kyn · and to alle cristene, 190
Chewen here charite · and chiden after more.

Such chastite wiþ-uten charite · worth cheyned in helle !

Many curatoures kepen hem · clene of here bodies, Thei ben acombred wiþ coueitise · þei konne nouȝt don it fram hem,

So harde hath auarice · yhasped hem togideres, 195
And þat is no treuthe of þe trinite · but treccherye of helle,
And lernyng to lewde men · þe latter for to dele.

For-þi þis wordes · ben wryten in þe gospel,
Date & dabitur vobis · for I dele ȝow alle.
And þat is þe lokke of loue · and lateth oute my grace, 200
To conforte þe careful · acombred wiþ synne.

Loue is leche of lyf · and nexte owre lorde selue,
And also þe graith gate · þat goth in-to heuene ;
For-þi I sey, as I seide · ere by þe textis,
Whan alle tresores ben ytryed · treuthe is þe beste, 205
Now haue I tolde þe what treuthe is · þat no tresore is bettere,

I may no lenger lenge þe with · now loke þe owre lorde ! 207

PASSUS II.

Passus secundus de visione, vt supra.

⁴⁰²⁴
YET I courbed on my knees · and cryed hir of grace,
 And seide, ‘mercy, Madame · for Marie loue of heuene,
 That þar þat blisful barne · þat bouzte vs on þe Rode,
 Kenne me bi somme craftē · to knowe þe fals.’
 ‘Loke vpon þi left half · and lo where he standeth, 5
 Bothe fals and fauel · and here feres manye!’
 I loked on my left half · as þe lady me taughte,
 And was war of a womman · wortheli yclothed,
 Purfild with pelure · þe finest vpon erthe,
 Y-crounede with a corone · þe kyng hath non better. 10
 Fetislich hir fyngres · were fretted with golde wyre,
 And þere-on red rubyes · as red as any glede,
 And diamantz of derrest pris · and double manere safferes,
 Orientales and ewages · enuynemes to destroye.
 Hire robe was ful riche · of red scarlet engreyned, 15
 With ribanes of red golde · and of riche stones;
 Hire arraye me rauysshed · suche ricchesse saw I neuere;
 I had wondre what she was · and whas wyf she were.
 ‘What is þis womman,’ quod I · ‘so worthily atired?’
 ‘That is Mede þe Mayde,’ quod she · ‘hath noyed me ful oft,
 And ylakked my lemman · þat lewte is hoten,
 And bilowen hire to lordes · þat lawes han to kepe.
 In þe popis paleys · she is pryue as my-self,

But sothenesse wolde nouzte so · for she is a bastarde.

For fals was hire fader · þat hath a fykel tonge, 25

And neuere sothe seide · sithen he come to erthe.

And Mede is manered after hym · rihte as kynde axeth;

Qualis pater, talis filius; bona arbor bonum fructum facit.

I auzte ben herre þan she · I cam of a better.

Mi fader þe grete god is · and grounde of alle graces,

O god with-oute gynnyng · & I his gode douzter, 30

And hath þoue me mercy · to marye with my-self;

And what man be merciful · and lilly me loue,

Schal be my lorde and I his leef · in þe heizte heuene.

And what man taketh Mede · myne hed dar I legge,

That he shal lese for hir loue · a lappe of caritatis. 35

How construeth dauid þe kyng · of men þat taketh Mede,

And men of þis molde · þat meynteneth treuthe,

And how þe shal saue þow-self · þe Sauter bereth witness,

Domine, quis habitabit in tabernaculo tuo, &c.

And now worth þis Mede ymarried · al to a mansed

schrewe,

To one fals fikel-tonge · a fendes biþete; 40

Fauel þow his faire speche · hath þis folke enchaunted,

And al is lyeres ledyng · þat she is þus ywedded.

To-morwe worth ymade · þe maydenes bruydale,

And þere mihte þow wite, if þow wolt · which þei ben alle

That longeth to þat lordship · þe lasse and þe more. 45

Knowe hem þere if þow canst · and kepe þi tonge,

And lakke hem nouzt, but lat hem worth · til lewte be iustice,

And haue powere to punyschen hem; · þanne put forth þi resoun.

Now I bikenne þe criste, quod she · and his elene moder,

And lat no conscience acombte þe · for coueitise of Mede. 50

Thus left me þat lady · liggyng aslepe,

And how Mede was ymarried · in meteles me þouzte ;
 Þat alle þe riche retenauns · þat regneth with þe false
 Were boden to þe bridale · on bothe two sydes,
 Of alle maner of men · þe mene and þe riche. 55
 To marie þis maydene · was many man assembled,
 As of kniȝtes and of clerkis · and other comune poeple,
 As sysours and sompnours · Shireues and here clerkes,
 Bedelles and Bailliues · and brokoures of chaffare, merchand
 Forgoeres and vitaillers · and vokates of þe arches ; 60
 I can nouȝt rekene þe route · þat ran aboute mede. ✓

Ac Symonye and cyuile · and sisoures of courtes
 Were moste pryue with Mede · of any men, me þouzte.
 Ac fauel was þe first · þat fette hire out of boure,
 And as a brokour brouȝte hir · to be with fals enioigned. 65
 Whan Symonye and cyuile · seiȝ here beire wille, Thei assented for siluer · to sei as bothe wolde. Whan he Thanne lepe lyer forth, and seide · ‘lo here ! a chartre,
 That gyle with his gret othes · gaf hem togidere,
 And preide cyuile to se · and symonye to rede it. 70
 Thanne Symonye and cyuile · stonden forth bothe,
 And vnfoldeth þe feffement · þat fals hath ymaked,
 And þus bigynneth þes gomes · to greden ful heiȝ :—

· Sciant presentes & futuri, &c.

Witeth and witnesseth · þat wonieth vpon þis erthe,
 Þat Mede is y-mariet · more for here goodis, 75
 Þan for ani vertue or fairenesse · or any free kynde.
 Falsenesse is faine of hire · for he wote hire riche ;
 And fauel with his fikel speche · feffeth bi þis chartre
 To be prynces in pryde · and pouerte to dispise,
 To bakbite, and to bosten · and bere fals witnesse, 80
 To scorne and to scolde · and sclaudere to make,
 Vnboxome and bolde · to breke þe ten hestes ;—

And þe Erldome of enuye · and Wrathe togideres,

With þe chastelet of chest · and chaterying-oute-of-resoun,
 Þe counte of coueitise · and alle þe costes aboute, 85
 That is, vsure and auarice · alle I hem graunte,
 In bargaines and in brokages · with al þe borghe of theft.'

Glotonye he gaf hem eke · and grete othes togydere,
 And alday to drynke · at dyuerse tauernes,
 And there to iangle and to iape · and iugge here euenecristene,
 And in fastyng-dayes to freté · ar ful tyme were. 95
 And þanne to sitten and soupen · til slepe hem assaille ;

Tyl sleuth and slepe · slyken his sides ;
 And þanne wanhope to awake hym so · with no wille to amende,

For he leueth be lost · þis is here last ende. 100

And þei to haue and to holde · and here eyres after,
 A dwellyng with þe deuél · and dampned be for eure, Wiþ al þe purtenaunces of purgatorie · in-to þe pyne of helle.
 ʒeldyng for þis þinge · at one ʒeres ende,
 Here soules to Sathan · to suffre with hym peynes, 105
 And with him to wonye with wo · whil god is in heuene.

In witnessse of which þing · wronge was þe first,
 And Pieres þe pardonere · of paulynes doctrine,
 Bette þe bedel · of Bokyngham-shire,
 Rainalde þe Reue · of Rotland sokene, 110
 Munde þe Mellere · and many moo other.

'In þe date of þe deuil · þis dede I assele,
 Bi siȝte of Sire Symonye · and cyuyles leue.'

Þenne tened hym theologie · whan he þis tale herde,
 And seide to cyuile · 'now sorwe mot þow haue, 115
 Such weddynges to worche · to wratthe with treuthe ;
 And ar þis weddyng be wrouȝte · wo þe bityde\

For Mede is moylere · of amendes engendred,
 And god graunteth to gyf · Mede to treuthe,
 And þow hast gyuen hire to a gyloure · now god gyf þe sorwe!

Thi tixt telleth þe nouzt so · treuthe wote þe sothe,
 For dignus est operarius · his hyre to haue,
 And þow hast fest hire to fals · fy on þi lawe!
 For al by lesynges þow lyuest · and lecherouse werkes,
 Symonye and þi-self · schenden holicherche,
 Þe notaries and 3ee · noyeth þe peple,
 3e shul abiggen it bothe · bi god þat me made!
 Wel 3e witen, wernardes · but if 3owre witte faille,
 That fals is faithlees · and fikel in his werkes,
 And was a bastarde y-bore · of belsabubbes kynne.
 And Mede is moylere · a mayden of gode,
 And myzte kisse þe kyng · for cosyn, an she wolde,

For-þi worcheth bi wisdom · and bi witt also,
 And ledeth hire to londoun · þere lawe is yshewed,
 If any lawe wil loken · þei ligge togederes.
 And þou3 Iustices iugge hir · to be ioigned with fals, 3et beth war of weddyng · for witty is truthe,
 And conscience is of his conseil · and knoweth 3ow vchone,
 And if he fynde 3ow in defaute · and with þe fals holde,
 It shal bisitte 3owre soules · ful soure atte laste!

Here-to assenteth cyuile · ac symonye ne wolde,
 Tyl he had siluer for his seruise · and also þe notaries.

Thanne fette fauel forth · floreyne ynowe,
 And bad gyle to gyue · golde al aboute,
 And namelich to þe notaries · þat hem none ne faille,
 And feffe false-witnes · with floreyne ynowe;
 'For he may mede amaistrye · and maken at my wille.'

Tho þis golde was gyue · grete was þe þonkyng
 To fals and to fauel · for her faire giftes,

And comen to conforte · fram care þe fals, 150
 And seiden, 'certis, sire · cesse shal we neuere
 Til Mede be þi wedded wyf · þorw wittis of vs alle.
 For we haue Mede amaistried · with owre mery speche,
 That she graunteth to gon · with a gode wille,
 To Londoun to loke · ȝif þat þe lawe wolde 155
 Iugge ȝow ioyntly · in ioye for euere.'

Thanne was falsenesse fayne · and fauel as blithe,
 And leten sompne alle segges · in schires aboute,
 And bad hem alle be bown · beggeres and othere,
 To wendenz wyth hem to Westmynstre · to witnesse þis 160 dede.

Ac þanne cared þei for caplus · to kairen hem þider,
 And fauel fette forth þanne · folus ynowe ;
 And sette Mede vpon a Schyreue · shodde al newe,
 And fals sat on a sisoure · þat softlich trotted,
 And fauel on a flaterere · fetislich atired. 165

Tho haued notaries none · annoyed þei were,
 For Symonye and cyuile · shulde on hire fete gange.

Ac þanne swore Symonye · and cyuile bothe,
 That sompnoures shulde be sadled · and serue hem vchone,
 And lat apparaille þis prouisoures · in palfreis wyse ;— 170
 'Sire Symonye hym-seluen · shal sitte vpon here bakkes.

Denes and suddenes · drawe ȝow togideres,
 Erchdekenes and officiales · and alle ȝowre Regystreres,
 Lat sadel hem with siluer · owre synne to suffre,
 As auoutrie and deuorses · and derne vsurye, 175
 To bere bischopes aboute · abroad in visytynge.

Paulynes pryues · for pleyntes in þe consistorie,
 Shul serue my-self · þat cyuile is nempned ;
 And cartesadel þe comissarie · owre carte shal he lede. ✓

180

And maketh of Iyer a longe carte · to lede alle þese othere,

As Freres and faitours · þat on here fete rennen.⁷
 And thus fals and fauel · fareth forth togideres,
 And Mede in þe myddes · and alle þise men after.
 I haue no tome to telle · þe taille þat hem folweth, 185
 Of many maner man · þat on þis molde libbeth;
 Ac gyle was forgoer · and gyed hem alle.
 Sothenesse seiȝ hym wel · and seide but a litel,
 And priked his palfrey · and passed hem alle,
 And come to þe kynges courte · and conscience it tolde, 190
 And conscience to þe kyng · carped it after.
 ‘Now by cryst,’ quod þe kyng · ‘and I cacche myȝte
 Fals or fauel · or any of his feres,
 I wolde be wroke of þo wrecches · þat worcheth so ille,
 And don hem hang by þe hals · and alle þat hem meynteneth!
 Shal neure man of molde · meynprise þe leste, 196
 But riȝte as þe lawe wil loken · late falle on hem alle.’
 And comanded a constable · þat come atte furst,
 To ‘attache þo tyrauntz · for eny thyng, I hote,
 And fettereth fast falsenesse · for enykynnes ȝiftes, 200
 And gurdeth of gyles hed · and lat hym go no further.
 And ȝif ȝe lacche lyer · late hym nouȝt ascapen
 Er he be put on þe pilorye · for eny preyere, I hote;
 And bryngeth Mede to me · maugre hem alle.’
 Drede atte dore stode · and þe dome herde, 205
 And how þe kyng comaunded · constables and seriantz, Falsenesse and his felawschip · to fettren an to bynden.
 Þanne drede went wizliche · and warned þe fals,
 And bad hym flee for fere · and his felawes alle.
 Falsenesse for fere þanne · fleiȝ to þe freres, 210
 And gyle doȝ hym to go · agast for to dye.
 Ac marchantz mette with hym · and made hym abide,
 And bishetten hym in here shope · to shewen here ware,
 And apparilled hym as a prentice · þe poeple to serue.

- Ligtliche lyer · lepe away þanne, 215
 Lorkynge thorw lanes · to-lugged of manye.
 He was nawhere welcome · for his manye tales,
 Ouer al yhowted · and yhote trusse;
 Tyl pardoneres haued pite · and pulled hym in-to house.
 They wessen hym and wyped hym · and wonden hym in cloutes, 220
 And sente hym with seles · on sondayes to cherches,
 And gaf pardou~~n~~ for pens · poundmel aboute.
 Spiceres spoke with hym · to spien here ware, 225
 For he couth of here craft · and knewe many gomme.
 Ac mynstralles and messageres · mette with hym ones,
 And helden hym an half-3ere · and elleuene dayes.
 Freres with faire speche · fetten hym þennes,
 And for knowyng of comeres · coped hym as a frere. 230
 Ac he hath leue to lepe out · as oft as hym liketh,
 And is welcome whan he wil · and woneth wyth hem oft.
 Alle fledden for fere · and flowen in-to hernes,
 Saue Mede þe Mayde · na mo durst abide.
 Ac trewli to telle · she trembled for drede,
 And ek wept and wronge · whan she was attached. 236

PASSUS III.

Passus tertius.

NOW is Mede þe Mayde · and namo of hem alle
With bedellus & wiþ bayllyues · brouzt bifor þe kyng.
The kyng called a clerke · can I nouzt his name,
To take Mede þe mayde · and make hire at ese.
'I shal assaye hir my-self · and sothelich appose
What man of þis molde · þat hire were leueste.
And if she worche bi my witte · and my wille folwe,
I wil forgyue hir þis gilte · so me god help!'

Curteysliche þe clerke þanne · as þe Kyng hight,
Toke Mede bi þe Middel · and brouzte hir in-to chaumbre,
And þere was myrthe and mynstralcy · Mede to plese.

They þat wonyeth in Westmynstre · worschiped hir alle;
Gentelliche wiþ ioye · þe Iustices somme
Busked hem to þe boure · þere þe birde dwelled,
To conforte hire kyndely · by clergise leue,
And seiden, 'mourne nought, Mede · ne make þow no sorwe,
For we wil wisse þe kyng · and þi wey shape,
To be wedded at þi wille · and where þe leue liketh,
For al conscience caste · or craft, as I trowe!'

Mildeliche Mede þanne · mercyed hem alle
Of þeire gret goodnesse · and gaf hem vchone
Coupes of clene golde · and coppis of siluer,
Rynges with rubies · and riches manye,
The leste man of here meyne · a motoun of golde.

Thanne lauzte þei leue · þis lordes, at Mede. 25

With that comen clerkis · to conforte hir þe same,
And beden hire be blithe · ‘for we beth þine owne,
For to worche þi wille · þe while þow myzte laste.’

Hendeliche heo þanne · bihight hem þe same, proceed
To ‘loue þow lelli · and lordes to make, 30

And in þe consistorie atte courte · do calle þowre names;
Shal no lewdnesse lette · þe leode þat I louye,

That he ne worth first auanced · for I am biknowen

Dere konnyng clerkes · shul clokke bihynde.’ Be... 107

Danne come þere a confessoure · coped as a Frere, 35

To Mede þe mayde · he mellud þis wordes,

And seide ful softly · in shrifte as it were,

‘Theiȝ falsenesse haued yfolwed þe · al þis fyfty wyntre,

I shal assoille þe my-selue · for a seme of whete, 107 40

And also be þi bedeman · and bere wel þi message,

Amonges kniȝtes and clerkis · conscience to torne.’

Thanne Mede for here mysdedes · to þat man kneled,

And shroue hire of hire shrewednesse · shamelees, I trowe,

Tolde hym a tale · and toke hym a noble, 45

Forto ben hire bedeman · and hire brokour als. 107

Thanne he assoilled hir sone · and sithen he seyde,

‘We han a wyndowe a wirchyng · wil sitten vs ful heigh;

Woldestow glase þat gable · and graue þere-inne þi name,

‘Siker sholde þi soule be · heuene to haue.’ 50

‘Wist I that, quod þat womman · ‘I wolde nouȝt spare

For to be þowre frende, frere · and faille þow neure;

And I shal keure þowre kirke · þowre cloystre do maken, 60

Wowes do whiten · and wyndowes glasen,

Do peynten and purtraye · and paye for þe makyng,

That eury segge shal seyn · I am sustre of þowre hous.’

But
Ac god to alle good folke · suche grauyngē defendeth,
To writen in wyndowes · of here wel dedes,
On auenture pruyde be peynted þere · and pompe of worlde;

For crist knoweþ þi conscience · and þi kynde wille,
And þi coste and þi coueitise · and who þe catel ouzte.

March
For-þi I lere þow, lordes · leueþ suche werkes,
To writen in wyndowes · of þowre wel dedes, cill Or to greden after goddis men · whan þe delen doles;
An auenture þe han þowre hire here · and þoure heuene als;

Nesciat sinistra quid faciat dextra.

Lat nouzte þi left half · late ne rathe,
Wyte what þow worchest · with þi riȝt syde;
For þus bit þe gospel · gode men do here almesse.

Meires and maceres · that menes ben bitwene þe kyngē and þe comune · to kepe þe lawes,
To punyschen on pillories · and pynnyngē-stoles
Brewesteres and bakesteres · bocheres and cokes;
For þise aren men on þis molde · þat moste harme worcheth
To þe pore peple · þat parcel-mele buggen.

For they poysoun þe peple · priueliche and oft,
Thei rychen þorw regraterye · and rentes hem buggen
With þat þe pore peple · shulde put in here wombe;
For toke þei on trewly · þei tymbred nouzt so heize,
Ne bouzte non burgages · be þe ful certeyne.

Ac Mede þe Mayde · þe Maire hath bisouzte,
Of alle suche sellers · syluer to take,
Or presentz with-oute pens · as peces of siluer,
Ringes or other ricchesse · þe regrateres to maynetene.

‘For my loue,’ quod that lady · ‘loue hem vchone,
And soffre hem to selle · somdele aȝeins resoun.’

Salamon þe sage · a sarmoun he made,
For to amende Maires · and men þat kepen lawes,

And tolde hem þis teme · þat I telle thynke ; 95
Ignis deuorabit tabernacula eorum qui libenter accipiunt munera, &c.

Amonge þis lettered ledes · þis latyn is to mene,
That fyre shal falle, and brenne · al to blo askses
The houses and þe homes · of hem þat desireth þiftes or zereszyues · bi-cause of here offices. ✓ misd.

The kynge fro conseilie cam · and called after Mede, 100
And ofsent hir alswythe · with seriauntes manye,
That brouzten hir to bowre · with blisse and with ioye.

Curteisliche þe kynge þanne · comsed to telle,
To Mede þe mayde · melleth þise wordes :
'Vnwittily, womman ! · wrouzte hastow oft, 105
Ae worse wrouztestow neure · þan þo þow fals toke.

But I forgyue þe þat gilte · and graunte þe my grace ;
Hennes to þi deth day · do so namore !

I haue a knyzte, conscience · cam late fro bizunde ;
þif he wilneth þe to wyf · wyltow hym haue ?' 110
'þe, lorde,' quod þat lady · 'lorde forbede elles !

But I be holely at zowre heste · lat hange me sone ! ✓ misd.
And þanne was conscience calde · to come and appiere
Bifor þe Kynge and his conseilie · as clerkes and othere.

Knelynge, conscience · to þe kynge louted, ✓ bound 115
To wite what his wille were · and what he do shulde.

'Woltow wedde þis womman,' quod þe kynge · 'þif I wil assente,

For she is fayne of þi felawship · for to be þi make ?'

Quod conscience to þe kynge · 'crist it me forbede !

Ar I wedde ^{þe} such a wyf · wo me bityde ! 120

For she is frele of hir feith · fykel of here speche,

And maketh men mysdo · many score tymes ;

Truste of hire tresore · treieth ful manye. ✓ believe

Wyues and widewes · wantounes she techeth,

And lereth hem leccherye · that loueth hire ȝiftes,
 ȝowre fadre she felled · þorw fals biheste,
 And hath apoysonde popis · and peired holicherche.

Sisoures and sompnoures · suche men hir preiseth ;
 Shireues of shires · were shent ȝif she nere ;
 For she doþ men lese here londe · and here lyf bothe.
 She leteth passe prisoneres · and payeth for hem ofte,
 And gyueth þe gailers golde · and grotres togideres,
 To vnfettre þe fals · fle where hym lyketh ;
 And takeþ þe trewe bi þe toppe · and tieth hym faste,
 And hangeth hym for hatred · þat harme dede neure.

To be cursed in consistorie · she counteth nouȝte a russl
 For she copeth þe comissarie · and coteth his clerkis ;
 She is assoilled as sone · as hir-self liketh,
 And may neiȝe as moche do · in a moneth one,
 As ȝowre secret seel · in syx score dayes.

For she is priue with þe pope · prouisoures it knoweth,
 For sire symonye and hir-selue · seletth hire bulles.

She blesseth þise bisshopes · þeiȝe þey be lewed,
 Prouendreth persones · and prestes meyneneth,
 To haue lemmannes and lotebies · alle here lif dayes,
 And bringen forth barnes · aȝein forbode lawes.
 There she is wel with þe kyng · wo is þe rewme,
 For she is fauorable to þe fals · and fouleth trewthe ofte.

Bi ihesus, with here ieweles · ȝowre iustices she shendeth
 And lith aȝein þe lawe · and letteth hym þe gate,
 That feith may nouȝte haue his forth · here floreines go pikke,

She ledeth þe lawe as hire list · and louedayes maketh,
 And doth men lese þorw hire loue · þat lawe myȝte wyne þe mase for a mene man · þouȝ he mote hir eure.
 Lawe is so lordeliche · and loth to make ende,

With-oute presentz or pens · she pleseth wel fewe,
 Barounes and burgeys · she bryngeth in sorwe,
 And alle þe comune in kare · þat coueyten lyue in trewthe;
 For clergeye and coueitise · she coupleth togideres.
 Dis is þe lyf of that lady · now lorde ȝif hir sorwe! 165
 And alle that meynteneth here men · meschaunce hem bite!de!
 For pore men mowe haue no powere · to pleyne hem þouȝ þei smerte; sy
 Suche a maistre is Mede · amonge men of gode,
 Thanne morned Mede · and mened hire to the kyng,
 To haue space to speke · sped if she myȝte. 170
 The kyng graunted hir grace · with a gode wille;
 'Excuse þe, ȝif þow canst · I can namore seggen,
 For conscience acusethe þe · to congey þe for euere.'
 'Nay, lorde,' quod þat lady · 'leueth hym þe worse,
 Whan ȝe wyten witterly · where þe wronge liggeth; 175
 There þat myschief is grete · Mede may helpe.
 And þow knowest, conscience · I cam nouȝt to chide,
 Ne depraue þi persone · with a proude herte.
 Wel þow wost, wernard · but ȝif þow wolt gabbe,
 Þow hast hanged on myne half · elleuene tymes, 180
 And also griped my golde · gyue it where þe liked;
 And whi þow wratthest þe now · wonder me thynketh.
 ȝit I may, as I myȝte · menske þe with ȝiftes,
 And mayntene þi manhode · more þan þow knoweste.
 Ac þow hast famed me foule · bifor þe Kyng here. 185
 For kulled I neuere no kyng · ne conseyllid þer-after,
 Ne dede as þow demest · I do it on þe kyng! #
 In normandye was he nouȝt · noyed for my sake;
 Ac þow þi-self sothely · shamedest hym ofte,
 Croke in-to a kaban · for colde of þi nailles, 190
 Wendest þat wyntre · wolde haue lasted euere,
 And draddest to be ded · for a dym cloude,

And hiedest homeward · for hunger of þi wombe.

With-out pite, piloure · pore men þow robbedest,
 And bere here bras at þi bakke · to caleys to selle.
 There I laste with my lorde · his lyf for to saue,
 I made his men meri · and mornyng lette.
 I bateder hem on þe bakke · and bolded here hertis,
 And dede hem hoppe, for hope · to haue me at wille.
 Had I ben Marschal of his men · bi Marie of heuene!
 I durst haue leyde my lyf · and no lasse wedde,
 He shulde haue be lorde of þat londe · a lengthe and a bre
 And also Kyng of þat kitthe · his kynne for to helpe, Þe leste brolle of his blode · a barounes pere!

Cowardliche þow, conscience · conseiledst hym þennes,
 To leuen his lordeship · for a litel siluer,
 That is þe richest rewme · þat reyne ouer houeth!

It bicometh to a kyng · þat kepeth a rewme,
 To ȝiue Mede to men · þat mekelich hym serueth,
 To alienes and to alle men · to honoure hem with ȝiftes;
 Mede maketh hym biloued · and for a man holden.
 Empereours and Erlis · and al manere lordes,
 For ȝiftes, han ȝonge men · to renne and to ride.
 The pope and alle prelatis · presentz vnderfongen,
 And medeth men hem-seluen · to meyntene here lawes.
 Seruauutz for her seruise · we seth wel þe sothe,
 Taken Mede of here maistre · as þei mowe acorde.
 Beggere for here biddynge · bidden men Mede;
 Mynstralles for here murthe · mede þei aske.
 Þe kyng hath mede of his men · to make pees in londe;
 Men þat teche chyldeyn · craue of hem mede.
 Prestis þat precheth þe poeple · to gode, asken mede,
 And masse-pans and here mete · at þe mele tymes.
 Alkynnes crafty men · crauen Mede for here prentis;
 Marchauntz and Mede · mote nede go togideres;

No wize, as I wene · with-oute Mede may libbe.

Quod þe kyng to conscience · ‘bi criste! as me thyngeth,
Mede is wel worthi · þe maistrye to haue!’

‘Nay,’ quod conscience to þe Kyng · and kneled to þe erthe,

‘There aren two manere of Medes · my lorde, with 30wre leue. 230

þat one, god of his grace · graunteth, in his blisse,

To þo þat wel worchen · whil þei ben here.

The prophete precheth þer-of · and put it in þe sautere,

Domine, quis habitabit in tabernaculo tuo?

‘Lorde, who shal wonye in þi wones · and with þine holi seyntes,

Or resten on þi holy hilles?’ · þis asketh dauid; 235

And dauid assoileth it hym-self · as þe sauter telleth,

Qui ingreditur sine macula, & operatur iusticiam,

‘Tho þat entren of o colour · and of on wille,

And han wrouzte werkis · with rizte and with reson;

And he þat ne vseth nauzte · þe lyf of vsurye,

And enfourmeth pore men · and pursueth treuthe; 240

Qui pecuniam suam non dedit ad vsuram, & munera super innocentem, &c.;

And alle þat helpeth þe innocent · and halt with þe riztful,

With-oute mede doth hem gode · and þe trewthe helpeth” —

Suche manere men, my lorde · shal haue þis furst Mede

Of god, at a grete nede · whan þei gone hennes.

There is an-other Mede mesurelees · þat maistres desireth;

To meyntene mysdoers · Mede þei take; 246

And þere-of seith þe sauter · in a salmes ende,

*In quorum manibus iniquitates sunt, dextera eorum
repleta est muneribus;*

And he þat gripeth her golde · so me god helpe!

Shal abie it bittere · or þe boke lyeth!

Prestes and persones · þat plesynge desireth,
 That taketh Mede and moneie · for messes þat þei syngeth,
 Taketh here mede here · as Mathew vs techeth;

Amen, amen, receperunt mercedem suam.

That laboreres and lowe folke · taketh of her maistres,
 It is no manere Mede · but a mesurable hire.

In marchandise is no mede · I may it wel a-vowe;
 It is a permutacioun apertly · a penyworth for an othre.

Ac reddestow neuere Regum · þow reccrayed Mede,
 Whi þe veniaunce fel · on Saul and on his children?

God sent to Saul · bi Samuel þe prophete,
 Þat agage of amaleke · and al his peple aftre
 Shulde deye for a dede · þat done had here eldres.

“For-þi,” seid Samuel to Saul · “god hym-self hoteth
 The be boxome at his biddynge · his wille to fulfille:
 Wende to amalec with þyn oste · and what þow fyndest þere, slee it;

Biernes and bestes · brenne hem to ded;
 Wydwes and wyues · wommen and children,
 Moebles and vnmoebles · and al þat þow myȝte fynde,
 Brenne it, bere it nouȝte away · be it neuere so riche
 For mede ne for moneie; · loke þow destruye it,
 Spille it and spare it nouȝte · þow shalt spede þe bettere.”

And for he coueyted her catel · and þe kyng spared,
 Forbare hym and his bestes bothe · as þe bible witnesseth,
 Otherwyse þan he was · warned of þe prophete,
 God seide to Samuel · þat Saul shulde deye,
 And al his sede for þat synne · shenfullich ende.
 Such a myschief Mede · made Saul þe kyng to haue,
 That god hated hym for euere · and alle his eyres after,
 The culorum of þis cas · kepe I nouȝte to shewe;
 An auenture it noyed men · none ende wil I make.
 For so is þis worlde went · wiþ hem þat han power,

That who-so seyth hem sothes · is sonnest yblamed.

I, conscience, knowe þis · for kynde witt me it tauzte, þat resouⁿ shal regne · and rewmes gouerne;
 And rihte as agag hadde · hæppe shul somme.
 Samuel shal sleen hym · and Saul shal be blamed, 285
 And dauid shal be diademed · and daunten hem alle,
 And one cristene kyng · kepen hem alle.

Shal na more Mede · be maistre, as she is nouthe,
 Ac loue and lowenesse · and lewte togederes,
 Þise shul be maistres on molde · treuthe to saue, 290

And who-so trespasseth ayein treuthe · or taketh azein his wille,

Leute shal don hym lawe · and no lyf elles.
 Shal no seriaunt for here seruise · were a silke howue,
 Ne no pelure in his cloke · for pledyng atte barre.
 Mede of mys-doeres · maketh many lordes, 295
 And ouer lordes lawes · reuleth þe rewmes.

Ac kynde loue shal come 3it · and conscience togideres,
 And make of lawe a laborere · suche loue shal arise,
 And such a pees amonge þe peple · and a perfit treuthe, þat iewes shal wene in here witte · and waxen wonder glade, þat Moises or Messie · be come in-to þis erthe, 301
 And haue wonder in here hertis · þat men beth so trewe.

Alle þat bereth baslarde · brode swerde or launce,
 Axe other hachet · or eny wepne ellis,
 Shal be demed to þe deth · but if he do it smythye 305
 In-to sikul or to sithe · to schare or to kulter;

Conflabunt gladios suos in vomeres, &c. ;

Eche man to pleye with a plow · pykoys or spade,
 Spynne, or sprede donge · or spille hym-self with sleuthe.

Prestes and persones · with placebo to hunte,
 And dyngen vpon dauid · eche a day til eue. 310
 Huntynge or haukyng · if any of hem vse,

His boſte of his benefys · worth bynome hym after.
 Shal neither kyng ne knyȝte · constable ne Meire
 Ouer-lede þe comune · ne to þe courte sompne,
 Ne put hem in panel · to don hem pliȝte here treuthe, 31
 But after þe dede þat is don · one dome shal rewarde, Mercy or no mercy · as treuthe wil acorde. lady - meire

Kynges courte and comune courte · consistorie an chapitele,
 Al shal be but one courte · and one baroun be iustice;
 (Thanne) worth trewe-tonge a tidy man · þat tened m neuere. 32

Batailles shal non be · ne no man bere wepne,
 And what smyth þat ony smytheth · be smyte þer-with to deth
Non leuabit gens contra gentem gladium, &c.

And er þis fortune falle · fynde men shal þe worste,
 By syx sonnes and a schippe · and half a shef of arwes;
 And þe myddel of a mone · shal make þe iewes to torne, 32 S And saracenes for þat siȝte · shulle synge gloria in ex- celsis, &c.,

For Makomet & Mede · myshappe shal þat tyme;
 For, melius est bonum nomen quam diuicie multe.

Also wroth as þe wynde · wex Mede in a while,
 ‘I can no latyn,’ quod she · ‘clerkis wote þe sothe.
 Se what Salamon seith · in Sapience bokes, 330
 That hij þat ȝiueth ȝiftes · þe victorie wynneth, & moche worschip had þer-with · as holiwryt telleth,
Honorem adquiret qui dat munera, &c.’

‘I leue wel, lady,’ quod conscience · ‘þat þi latyne be trewe;
 Ac þow art like a lady · þat redde a lessoun ones,
 Was, omnia probate · and þat plesed here herte, 335
 For þat lyne was no lenger · atte leues ende.
 Had she loked þat other half · and þe lef torned,

She schulde haue founden fele wordis · folwyng þer-after,
Quod bonum est tenete · treuthe þat texte made!

And so ferde 3e, madame! · 3e couthe namore fynde, 340
 Tho 3e loked on sapience · sittynge in 3oure studie.

Þis tixte þat 3e han tolde · were gode for lordes, Ac 3ow failed a cunningg clerke · þat couthe þe lef haue tornd!

And if 3e seche sapience eft · fynde shal 3e þat folweth,
 A ful teneful tixte · to hem þat taketh Mede, 345

And þat is, animam aulem aufert · accipientium, &c. :

And þat is þe taille of þe tixte · of þat þat 3e schewed,
 Þat þeize we wynne worschip · and wiþ mede haue victorie,
 Þe soule þat þe sonde taketh · bi so moche is bounde.' 349

PASSUS IV.

Passus quartus de visione, vt supra.

'CESSETH,' seith þe kynge · 'I suffre ȝow no lengere.
 ȝe shal sauȝtne for sothe · and serue me bothe.
 Kisse hir,' quod þe kynge · 'conscience, I hote.'
 'Náy, bi criste,' quod conscience · 'congeye me for euere
 But resoun rede me þer-to · rather wil I deye!'
 'And I comaunde þe,' quod þe Kynge · to conscience þanne
 'Rape þe to ride · and resoun þow fecche;
 Comaunde hym þat he come · my conseille to here.
 For he shal reule my rewme · and rede me þe beste,
 And acounte with þe, conscience · so me cryst helpe, 10
 How þow lernest þe peple · þe lered and þe lewede.'
 'I am fayne of þat forwarde' · seyde þe freke þanne,
 And ritt riȝte to resoun · and rowneth in his ere,
 And seide as þe kynge badde · and sithen toke his leue.
 'I shal arraye me to ride,' quod resoun · 'reste þe a while'— 15
 And called catoun his knaue · curteise of speche,
 And also tomme trewe-tonge · telle-me-no-tales-
 Ne-lesyng-to-lawȝe-of · for-I-loued-hem-neuere—
 'And sette my sadel vppon suffre · til-I-se-my-tyme,
 And lete warrok it wel · with witty-words gerthes, 20
 And hange on hym þe heuy brydel · to holde his hed lowe,
 For he wil make wehe · tweye er he be there.'
Thanne conscience vppon his caple · kaireth forth faste,

And resoun with hym ritte · rownynge togideres,
Whiche maistries Mede · maketh on þis erthe. 25

One waryn wisdom · And witty his fere
Folwed hem faste · for þei haued to done
In þe cheker and at þe chauncerie · to be discharged of þinges;

And riden fast, for resoun · shulde rede hem þe beste,
For to saue hem, for siluer · fro shame and fram harmes. 30

And conscience knewe hem wel · þei loued coueitise,
And bad resoun ride faste · and recche of her noither,
'Þere aren wiles in here wordes · and with Mede þei dwelleth;
There as wratthe and wranglyng is · þere wyne þei siluer,

Ac þere is loue and lewte · þei wil nouzte come þere; 35

Contricio & infelicitas in vijs eorum, &c.

þei ne gyueth nouzte of god · one gose wyng,

Non est timor dei ante oculos eorum.

For, wot god, þei wolde do more · for a dozeine chickenes,
Or as many capones · or for a seem of otes, summe
þan for loue of owre lorde · or alle hise leue seyntes.

For-þi, resoun, lete hem ride · þo riche, bi hem-seluen, 40
For conscience knoweth hem nouzte · ne cryst, as I trowe.'

And þanne resoun rode faste · þe riȝte heiȝe gate,
As conscience hym kenned · til þei come to þe kyng.

Curteisliche þe kyng þanne · come aȝein resoun,
And bitwene hym-self and his sone · sette hym on benche, 45
And wordeden wel wyseli · a gret while togideres.

And þanne come pees in-to parlement · and put forth a bille, parlement

How wronge aȝeines his wille · had his wyf taken.

'Bothe my gees & my grys · his gadelynges feccheth; 51
I dar nouzte for fere of hym · fyȝte ne chyde.

He borwed of me bayard · he brouȝte hym home neutre,

Ne no ferthyng þer-fore · for nauzte I couthe plede.
 He meyneteneþ his men · to morther myne hewen, 55
 Forstalleth my feyres · and fiȝteth in my chepyngē,
 And breketh vp my bernes dore · and bereth aweye my whete,

And taketh me but a taile · for ten quarters of otes,
 And ȝet he bet me þer-to · and lyth bi my Mayde,
 I nam nouzte hardy for hym · vneth to loke.' 60

The kyngē knewe he seide sothe · for conscience hym
 tolde,

Þat wronge was a wikked lust · and wrouzte moche sorwe.

Wronge was afered þanne · and wisdomē he souzte
 To make pees with his pens · and profered hym manye,
 And seide, 'had I loue of my lorde þe kyngē · litel wolde I recche, 65

Theiȝe pees and his powerē · pleyned hym eure!'

Þo wan wisdomē · and sire waryn þe witty,
 For þat wronge had ywrouzte · so wikked a dede,
 And warned wronge þo · with such a wyse tale;
 'Who-so worcheth bi wille · wratthe maketh ofte; 70
 I seye it bi þi-self · þow shalt it wel fynde.

But if Mede it make · þi myschief is vppe,
 For bothe þi lyf and þi londe · lyth in his grace.'

Thanne wowed wronge · wisdomē ful ȝerne,
 To make his pees wiþ his pens · handi-dandi payed. ✓ 75
 Wisdomē and witte þanne · wenten togideres,
 And toke Mede myd hem · mercy to winne.

Pees put forþ his hed · and his panne bloody;
 'Wyth-outhe gilte, god it wote · gat I þis skaþe,
 Conscience and þe comune · knowen þe sothe.' 80

Ac wisdom and witt · were about faste
 To ouercome þe kyng · with catel, ȝif þei myzte.
þe kyngē swore, bi crist · and bi his crowne bothe,

Pat wronge for his werkis · sholde wo þolye,
 And comaunded a constable · to casten hym in yrens, 85
 ‘ And late hym nouȝte þis seuene ȝere · seen his feet ones.’

‘ God wot,’ quod wysdom · ‘ þat were nauȝte þe beste ;
 And he amendes mowe make · late meynprise hym haue ;
 And be borwgh for his bale · and biggen hym bote,
 And so amende þat is mysdo · and euermore þe bettere.’ 90

Witt acorded þer-with · and seide þe same :
 ‘ Bettere is þat bote · bale adoun brynge, þan bale be ybette · & bote neuere þe bettere.’

And þanne gan Mede to mengen here · and mercy she bisought,
 And profred pees a present · al of pure golde : 95
 ‘ Haue þis, man, of me,’ quod she · ‘ to amende þi skaþe,
 For I wil wage for wronge · he wil do so namore.’

Pitously pees þanne · prayed to þe kyng
 To haue mercy on þat man · þat mys-did hym so ofte :
 ‘ For he hath waged me wel · as wysdome hym tauȝte, 100
 And I forgyue hym þat gilte · with a goode wille ;
 So þat þe kyng assent · I can seye no bettere ;
 For Mede hath made me amendes · I may namore axe.’

‘ Nay,’ quod þe Kyng þo · ‘ so me cryst helpe !
 Wronge wendeth nouȝte so awaye · arst wil I wite more ; 105
 For loupe he so listly · laughen he wolde,
 And este þe balder be · to bete myne hewen ;
 But resoun haue reuthe on hym · he shal rest in my stokkes,
 And þat as longe as he lyueth · but lowenesse hym borwe.’

Somme men redde Resoun þo · to haue reuthe on þat
 schrewe, 110

And for to conseille þe kyng · and conscience after,
 That Mede moste be meynpernour · resoun þei bisouȝte.

‘ Rede me nouȝte,’ quod resoun · ‘ no reuthe to haue,
 Til lordes and ladies · louien alle treuthe,

And haten al harlotrye · to heren it, or to mouthen it; 115
 Tyl pernelles purfil · be put in here hucche;
 And childryn cherissyng · be chastyng with 3erdes;
 And harlotes holynesse · be holden for an hyne;
 Til clerken coueitise be · to clothe þe pore and to fede,
 And religious romares · recordare in here cloistres, 120
 As seynt Benet hem bad · Bernarde and Fraunceys;
 And til prechoures prechyng · be preued on hem-seluen;
 Tyl þe kynges conseille · be þe comune profyte;
 Tyl bisschopes baiardes · ben beggeres chambres,
 Here haukes and her houndes · helpe to pore Religious; 125

And til seynt Iames be souzte · þere I shal assigne,
 That no man go to Galis · but if he go for euere;
 And alle Rome-renneres · for robberes of by3onde
 Bere no siluer ouer see · þat signe of kynges sheweþ, Noyther graue ne vngraue · golde noither siluer, 130
 Vppon forfeiture of þat fee · who-so fynt hym at Douere,
 But if it be marchaunt or his man · or messagere with letteres,
 Prouysoure or prest · or penaunt for his synnes.

And 3et, quod resoun, ' bi þe Rode · I shal no reuthe haue,
 While Mede hath þe maistrye · in þis moot-halle. 135
 Ac I may shewe ensaumples · as I se other-while,
 I sey it by my-self, quod he · ' and it so were
 That I were kyng with crowne · to kepen a Rewme, Shulde neuere wronge in þis worlde · þat I wite myzte,
 Ben vnpunished in my powere · for peril of my soule! 140
 Ne gete my grace for giftes · so me god saue!
 Ne for no Mede haue mercy · but mekenesse it make.

For nullum malum þe man · mette with inpunium,
 And badde nullum bonum · be irremuneratum.

Late 3owre confessoure, sire Kyng · construe þis vn-glosed; 145
 And 3if 3e worken it in werke · I wedde myne eres,

That lawe shal ben a laborere · and lede a-felde donge,
 And loue shal lede þi londe · as þe lief lyketh!

Clerkes þat were confessoures · coupled hem togideres,
 Alle to construe þis clause · and for þe kynges profit, 150
 Ac nouȝte for conforte of þe comune · ne for þe kynges soule.

For I seiȝe mede in the moot-halle · on men of lawe wynke,
 And þei lawghyng lope to hire · and laste resoun manye.

Waryn wisdomē · wynked vppon Mede,
 And seide, 'Madame, I am ȝowre man · what so my mouth iangleth; 155

I falle in floreines,' quod þat freke · 'an faile speche ofte.'

Alle riȝtful recorded · þat resoun treuthe tolde,
 And witt acorded þer-with · and comended his wordes,
 And þe moste peple in þe halle · and manye of þe grete, Aud leten mekenesse a maistre · and Mede a mansed
 schrewe. 160

Loue lete of hir liȝte · and lewte ȝit lasse,
 And seide it so heiȝe · þat al þe halle it herde,
 'Who-so wilneth hir to wyf · for welth of her godis,
 But he be knowe for a koke-wolde · kut of my nose!'
 Mede mourned þo · and made heuy chere. 165

Ac a sysoure and a sompnoure · sued hir faste,
 And a schireues clerke · byschrewed al þe route,
 'For ofte haue I,' quod he · 'holpe ȝow atte barre,
 And ȝit ȝeue ȝe me neuere · þe worthe of a russhe.' 170

The kyngē called conscience · and afterwardes resoun,
 And recorded þat resoun · had riȝtfullich schewed,
 And modilich vppon Mede · with myȝte þe Kyngē loked,
 And gan wax wrothe with lawe · for Mede almoste had shent
 it,

And seide, 'þow ȝowre lawe, as I leue · I lese many chetes;
 Mede ouer-maistrieth lawe · and moche treuthe letteth. 175

Ac resoun shal rekene with þow · ȝif I regne any while,
 And deme þow, bi þis day · as ȝe han deserued.
 Mede shal nouȝte meynprise þow · bi þe Marie of heuene!
 I wil haue leute in lawe · and lete be al þowre ianglyng, 180
 And as moste folke witnesseth wel · wronge shal be demed.'

Quod conscience to þe kyng · 'but the comune wil assent,
 It is ful hard, by myn hed · here-to to bryng it,
 Alle þowre lige leodes · to lede þus euene.'

'By hym þat rauȝte on þe rode' · quod resoun to þe kyng,
 'But if I reule þus þowre rewme · rende out my ribbes! 186 ȝif ȝe bidden buxomnes · be of myne assente.'

'And I assent,' seith þe kyng · 'by seynte Marie my lady,
 Be my conseilliche comen · of clerkis and of erlis.
 Ac redili, resoun · þow shalt nouȝte ride fro me, 190
 For as longe as I lyue · lete þe I nelle.'

'I am aredy,' quod resoun · 'to reste with þow euere,
 So conscience be of owre conseilliche · I kepe no bettere.'
 'And I graunt,' quod the kyng · 'goddess forbode it faille, Als longe as owre lyf lasteth · lyue we togideres.' 195

Leve Bealtes

PASSUS V.

Passus quintus de Visione.

THE kyng and his knyghtes · to the kirke wente
To here matynes of þe day · and þe masse after.
þanne waked I of my wynkyng · and wo was with-alle, þat I ne hadde sleped sadder · and yseyzen more.
Ac er I hadde faren a furlonge · feyntise me hente, 5
þat I ne myzte ferther a-foot · for defaute of slepyng;
and sat softly adown · and seide my bileue, and so I babeled on my bedes · þei brouzte me a-slepe. <
And þanne saw I moche more · þan I bifore tolde, for I say þe felde ful of folke · þat I bifore of seyde, 10 and how resoun gan arrayen hym · alle þe reume to preche, and with a crosse afor þe kyng · comsed þus to techen.
He preued þat þise pestilenc^{es} · were for pure synne, and þe southwest wynde · on saterday at euene was pertliche for pure pryde · and for no poynt elles. 15 tries and plomtrees · were puffed to þe erthe, þe ensample, 3e segges · 3e shulden do þe bettere.
eches and brode okes · were blowen to þe grounde, orned vpward her tailles · in tokenyng of drede,
at dedly synne at domesday · shal fordon hem alle. 20
Of þis matere I myzte · mamely ful longe, þat I shal seye as I saw · so me god helpe!
þow pertly afor þe poeple · resoun gan to preche.
He bad wastoure go worche · what he best couthe,

And wynnyn his wastyng · with some manere crafte. 25

And preyed peronelle · her purfyle to lete,
And kepe it in hir cofre · for catel at hire nede.

Thomme stowue he tauzte · to take two staues,
And fecche felice home · fro þe wyuen pyne. *Lucyng stow woman and pursh
mde*
He warned watt · his wyf was to blame, 30 þat hire hed was worth halue a marke · his hode nouzte worth a grote.

And bad bette kut · a bow other tweyne,
And bete betoun þer-with · but if she wolde worche.
And þanne he charged chapmen · to chasten her childeren;
'Late no wynnynge hem forweny · whil þei be zonge, 35 Ne for no pouste of pestilence · plese hem nouzte out of resoun. pruich elidren

My syre seyde so to me · and so did my dame, þat þe leuere childe · þe more lore bihoueth,
And Salamon seide þe same · þat Sapience made,

Qui parcat virge, odit filium.

þe Englich of þis latyn is · who-so wil it knowe, 40
Who-so spareth þe sprynge · spilleth his children.'

And sithen he preyed prelatz · and prestes to-gideres,
'þat 3e prechen to þe peple · preue it on 3owre-seluen,
And doth it in dede · it shal drawe 3ow to good;
If 3e lyuen as 3e leren vs · we shal leue 3ow þe bettere.' 45

And sithen he radde Religiou · here reule to holde—
'Leste þe kyng and his conseil · 3owre comunes appayre,
And ben stuardes of 3owre stedes · til 3e be ruled bettere.'

And sithen he conselled þe kyng · þe comune to louye,
'It is þi tresore, if tresoun ne were · and triacle at þi nede.'
And sithen he prayed þe pope · haue pite on holicherche, 51
And er he gyue any grace · gouerne firste hym-selue.
'And 3e that han lawes to kepe · late treuthe be 3owre coueytise,

fore þan golde or other gyftes · if 3e wil god plesse ;
 or who-so contrarieth treuthe · he telleth in þe gospel, 55 that god knoweth hym nouȝte · ne no seynte of heuene ;

Amen dico vobis, nescio vos.

And 3e þat seke seynte Iames · and seintes of Rome, seketh seynt treuthe · for he may saue 3ow alle ;
Qui cum patre & filio · þat feire hem bifalle þat suweth my sermon ;' · and þus seyde resoun. 60
 Thanne ran repentance · and reherced his teme,
 And gert ^{comen} wille to wepe · water with his eyen.

SUPERBIA.

Peronelle proude-herte · platte hir to þe erthe,
 And lay longe ar she loked · and 'lorde, mercy !' cryed,
 And byhigte to hym · þat vs alle made, 65
 She shulde vnsowen hir serke · and sette þere an heyre
 To affaiten hire flesshe · þat fierce was to synne :
 'Shal neuere heize me herte · but holde me lowe,
 And suffre to be myssayde— · and so did I neuere.
 But now wil I meke me · and mercy biseche, 70
 For al þis I haue · hated in myne herte.'

LUXURIA.

þanne lecchoure seyde 'allas !' · and on owre lady he cryed,
 To make mercy for his mis-dedes · bitwene god and his soule,
 With þat he shulde þe saterday · seuene 3ere þere-after,
 Drynke but myd þe doke · and dyne but ones. 75

INUIDIA.

Enuye with heuy herte · asked after schrifte, and carefullich mea culpa · he comsed to shewe.

He was as pale as a pelet · in þe palse he semed,
 And clothed in a ^{show}caurimaury · I couthe it nouzte discreue;
 In kirtel and kourteby · and a knyf bi his syde, 80
 Of a freres frokke · were þe forsleues.

And as a leke hadde yleye · longe in þe sonne,
 So loked he with lene chekes · louryng foule.

His body was to-bolle for wratthe · þat he bote his lippes,
 And wryngyng he 3ede with þe fiste · to wreke hym-self he pouzte 85

With werkes or with wordes · whan he seighe his tyme.

Eche a worde þat he warpe · was of an Addres tonge,
 Of chydynge and of chalangynge · was his chief lyfode,

With bakbityng and ^{coluonyng}bismer · and beryng of fals witness; 90
 Þis was al his curteyse · where þat euere he shewed hym.
 'I wolde ben yshryue,' quod þis schrewe · and I for shame
 durst;

I wolde be gladder, bi god · þat gybbe had meschaunce,
 Than þouze I had þis woke ywonne · a weye of essex chese.

I haue a neighbore neyze me · I haue ennyued hym ofte,
 And lowen on hym to lordes · to don hym lese his siluer, 95
 And made his frendes ben his foon · thorw my false tonge;
 His grace and his good happes · greueth me ful sore.

Bitwene many and many I make debate ofte,
 Þat bothe lyf and lyme · is lost þorw my speche.

And whan I mete him in market · þat I moste hate, 100
 I hailse hym hendeliche · as I his frende were;
 For he is douztier þan I · I dar do non other.

Ac hadde I maystrye and myzte · god wote my wille!

And whan I come to þe kirke · and sholde knele to þe Rode,

And preye for þe pople · as þe prest techeth, 105
 For pilgrimes and for palmers · for a le þe poeple after, Ianne I crye on my knees · þat cryste 3if hem sorwe

þat baren away my bolle · and my broke schete. ^{lost} ^{schet}

Away fro þe auter þanne · turne I myn eyghen,
And biholde how Eleyne · hath a newe cote; 110

I wisse þanne it were myne · and al þe webbe after.

And of mennes lésyng I laughe · þat liketh myn herte;

And for her wynnyng I wepe · and waille þe tyme,

And deme þat hij don ille · þere I do wel worse;

Who-so vndernymeth me here-of · I hate hym dedly after.

I wolde þat vche a wyght · were my knaue, 116

For who-so hath more þan I · þat angreth me sore.

And þus I lyue louleles · lyke a luther dogge,

That al my body bolneth · for bitter of my galle.

I myzte nouzte eet many zeres · as a man ouzte, 120

For enuye and yuel wille · is yuel to defye. ^{dryge}

May no sugre ne swete þinge · asswage my swellyng,

Ne no diapenidion · dryue it fro myne herte,

Ne noyther schrifte ne shame · but ho-so schrape my mawe? ^{scrach}

'þus, redili, quod repentaunce · and radde hym to þe

beste, 125

 Þow shalt see in þi-selue · treuthe sitte in þine herte, 615
 In a cheyne of charyte · as þow a childe were,
 To suffre hym and segge nouzte · aȝein þi sires wille.

Ac bewar þanne of wrath-þe · þat is a wikked shrewe,
 He hath enuye to hym · þat in þine herte sitteth;
 And pukketh forþ pruyde · to prayse þi-seluen. 620
 Þe boldnesse of þi bienfetes · maketh þe blynde þanne,
 And þanne worstow dryuen oute as dew · and þe dore closed,
 Kayed and cliketed · to kepe þe with-ouen;
 Happily an hundreth wyntre · ar þow est entre.
 Þus myght þow lesen his loue · to late wel by þi-selue, 625
 And neuere happiliche este entre · but grace þow haue.

Ac þere aren seuene sustren · þat seruen treuthe euere,
 And aren porteres of þe posternes · that to þe place longeth.
 Þat one hat abstinence · and humilite an other,
 Charite and chastite · ben his chief maydenes, 630
 Pacience and pees · moche poeple þei helpeth,
 Largenesse þe lady · heo let in ful manye;
 Heo hath hulpe a þousande oute · of þe deueles ponfolde.

And who is sibbe to þis seuene · so me god helpe!
 He is wonderliche welcome · and faire vnderfongen. 635
 And but if ȝe be syb · to summe of þise seuene,
 It is ful harde bi myne heued,' quod Peres · 'for any of ȝow

'By cryst,' quod a comune womman · 'þi companye wil I folwe,

Þow shalt sey I am þi sustre · I ne wot where þei bicomē.' 65 S

PASSUS VI.

Passus Sextus.

‘THIS were a wikked way · but who-so hadde a gyde
That wolde folwen vs eche a fote;’ · þus þis folke hem mened. complains

Quatz Perkyñ þe plouman · ‘bi seynt Peter of Rome,
I haue an half acre to eryl · bi þe heighe way;
Hadde I eried þis half acre · and sowen it after, 5
I wolde wende with þow · and þe way teche.’

‘Þis were a longe lettyngē’ · quod a lady in a sklayre,
‘What sholde we wommen · worche þere-whiles?’
‘Somme shal sowe þe sakke,’ quod Piers · ‘for shedyng of þe whete;

And 3e, louely ladyes · with þoure longe syngres, 10
þat 3e han silke and sendal · to sowe, whan tyme is,
Chesibles for chapelleyne · cherches to honoure.

Wyues and wydwes · wolle & flex spynneth,
Maketh cloth, I conseille þow · and kenneth so þowre douyres;

þe nedy and þe naked · nymmeth hede how hij liggeth, 15
And casteth hem clothes · for so comaundeth treuthe.
For I shal lene hem lyflode · but 3if þe londe faille,
Flesshe and bred bothe · to riche and to pore,
As longe as I lyue · for þe lordes loue of heuene.

And alle manere of men · þat þorw mete and drynke lybbeth, 20

Helpith hym to worche w^{unwilly}zliche · þat wynneth 3owre fode.¹

‘Bi crist,’ quod a kny3te þo · ‘he kenneth vs þe best;

Ac on þe teme trewly · tau3te was I neuere.

Ac kenne me,’ quod þe kny3te · ‘and, bi cryst, I wil assaye!’

‘Bi seynt Poule,’ quod Perkyn · ‘3e profre 3ow so faire, 25

þat I shal swynke and swete · and sowe for vs bothe,

And oþer laboures do for þi loue · al my lyf tyme,

In couenaunt þat þow kepe · holikirke and my-selue

Fro wastoures and fro wykked men · þat þis worlde struyeth—

And go hunte hardiliche · to hares and to foxes, 30

To bores and to brockes · þat breketh adown myne hegges,

And go affaite þe faucones · wilde foules to kille;

For suche cometh to my croft · and croppeth my whete.’

Curteislich þe kny3te þanne · comsed þise wordes,

‘By my power, Pieres,’ quod he · ‘I plizte þe my treuthe 35

To fulfille þis forward · þow3 I fi3te sholde;

Als longe as I lyue · I shal þe mayntene.’

‘3e, and 3it a poynt,’ quod Pieres · ‘I preye 3ow of more;

Loke 3e tene no tenaunt · but treuthe wil assent.

And þowgh 3e mowe amercy hem · late, mercy be taxoure, 40

And mekenesse þi mayster · maugre medes chekes,

And þowgh pore men profre 3ow · presentis and 3iftis,

Nym it nau3te, an auenture · 3e mowe it nau3te deserue;

For þow shalt 3elde it a3ein · at one 3eres ende,

In a ful perillous place · purgatorie it hatte. 45

And mysbede nou3te þi bonde-men · þe better may þow

spede;

Þowgh he be þyn vnderlynge here · wel may happe in heuene, þat he worth worthier sette · and with more blisse, þan þow, bot þou do bette · And lyue as þow shulde;

Amice, ascende superius.

For in charnel atte chirche · cherles ben yuel to knowe, 50

Or a kny3te fram a knaue þere · knowe þis in þin herte.

And þat þow be trewe of þi tonge · and tales þat þow hatie,
 But if þei ben of wisdom^{at wisdom} or of witte · þi werkmen to chaste.
 Holde with none harlot^{at harlot}es · ne here nouȝte her tales,
 And nameliche atte mete · suche men eschue; 55
 For it ben þe deueles disoures · I do þe to vnderstande.'

‘ I assente, bi seynt Iame ’ · seyde þe kniȝte þanne, ‘ Forto worche bi þi wordes · þe while my lyf dureth.’
 ‘ And I shal apparaille me,’ quod Perkyn · ‘ in pilgrimes wise,

And wende with ȝow I wil · til we fynde treuthe; 60

And cast on me my clothes · yclouted and hole,
 My cokeres^{hokers} and my coffes^{coffes} · for colde of my nailles,
 And hange myn hope^{hope} at myn hals · in stede of a scrippe;

A busshel of bredcorne · brynge me þer-inne;
 For I wil sowe it my-self · and sithenes wil I wende 65

To pylgrymage as palmers don · pardou^{or} forto haue.

Ac who so helpeth me to erie · or sowen here ar I wende,
 Shal haue leue, bi owre lorde · to lese here in heruest,

And make hem mery þere-mydde · maugre who-so bigruccheth it.

And alkyn crafty men · þat konne lyuen in treuthe, 70
 I shal fynden hem fode · þat feithfulliche libbeth.

Saue Iakke þe iogeloure · and Ionet of þe stues,
 And danyel þe dys-playere · and denote þe baude,
 And frere þe fa^{de} toure · and folke of his ordre,
 And Robyn þe Rybaudoure · for his rusty wordes. 75
 Treuthe tolde me ones · and bad me tellen it after,

Deleantur de libro viuientium · I shulde nouȝte dele with hem;
 For holicherche is hote of hem · no tythe to take,

Quia cum iustis non scribantur;

They ben ascaped good auenture · now god hem amende!’

Dame worche-whan-tyme-is · Pieres wyf hiȝte, 80
 His douȝter hiȝte do-riȝte-so · or-þi-dame-shal-þe-bete,

His sone hiȝte suffre-þi-souereynes- · to-hauen-her-wille-
 Deme-hem-nouȝte-for-if-þow-doste- · þow-shalt-it-dere-abugge.
 ‘Late god yworth with al · for so his worde techeth ;

For now I am olde and hore · and haue of myn owen, 85
 To penaunce and to pilgrimage · I wil passe with þise other.
 For-þi I wil, or I wende · do wryte my biqueste.

In dei nomine, amen · I make it my-seluen.

He shal haue my soule · þat best hath yserued it,
 And fro þe fende it defende · for so I bileue,
 Til I come to his acountes · as my credo me telleth, selues þe 90
 To haue a relees and a remissioun · on þat rental, I leue.

þe kirke shal haue my caroigne · and kepe my bones ;
 For of my corne and catel · he cræued þe tythe.
 I payed it hym prestly · for peril of my soule, 95
 For-thy is he holden, I hope · to haue me in his masse,
 And mengen in his memorye · amonge alle crystene.

My wyf shal haue of þat I wan · with treuthe and nomore,
 And dele amonge my douȝtres · and my dere children.
 For þowghe I deye to-daye · my dettes ar quitte, 100
 I bare home þat I borwed · ar I to bedde ȝede.

And with þe residue and þe remenaunte · bi þe Rode of Lukes !

I wil worschip þer-with · treuthe bi my lyue,
 And ben his pilgryme atte plow · for pore mennes sake.
 My plow-fote shal be my pyk-staf · and picche atwo þe rotes, 105

And helpe my culter to kerue · and clense þe forwes.’

Now is perkyn and his pilgrymes · to þe plowe faren ;
 To erie his halue acre · holpyn hym manye.
 Dikeres & delueres · digged vp þe balkes ;
 þere-with was perkyn apayed · and preysed hem faste. 110
 Other werkemen þere were · þat wrouȝten ful ȝerne,
Eche man in his manere · made hym-self to done,

And some to plesse perkyn · piked vp þe wedes.

At heighe pryme peres · lete þe plowe stonde,

To ouersen hem hym-self · and who-so best wrou3te, 115

He schulde be huyred þer-after · whan heruest-tyme come.

And þanne seten somme · and songen atte nale, — at ale

And hulpen erie his half acre · with ‘how! trolli-lolli!’

‘Now, bi þe peril of my soule!’ quod Pieres · al in pure tene, angw

‘But 3e arise þe rather · and rape 3ow to worche, 120

Shal no greyne þat groweth · glade 3ow at nede;

And þough 3e deye for dole · þe deuel haue þat reccheth!’

Tho were faitoures aferde · and feyned hem blynde,

Somme leyde here legges aliri · as suche loseles conneth, body prechid out

And made her mone to pieres · and preyde hym of grace: 125

‘For we haue no lymes to laboure with · lorde, y-graced be 3e!

Ac we preye for 3ow pieres · and for 3owre plow bothe,

þat god of his grace · 3owre grayne multiplie,

And 3elde 3ow of 3owre almesse · þat 3e 3iue vs here;

For we may nou3te swynke ne swete · suche sikenesse vs
eyleth.’ 130

‘If it be soth,’ quod pieres, ‘þat 3e seyne · I shal it sone asspye!

3e ben wastoures, I wote wel · and treuthe wote þe sothe! He

And I am his olde hyne · and hi3te hym to warne to

Which þei were in þis worlde · his werkemen appeyred. wasnt

3e wasten þat men wynnyn · with trouaille and with tene, 135

Ac treuthe shal teche 3ow · his teme to dryue,

Or 3e shal ete barly bred · and of þe broke drynke,

But if he be blynde or broke-legged · or bolted with yrnes,

He shal ete whete bred · and drynke with my-selue,

Tyl god of his goodnessse · amendement hym sende. 140

Ac ^{must} 3e myzte trauaille as treuthe wolde · and take mete &
huyre

To kepe kyne in þe felde · þe corne fro þe bestes,
Diken or deluen · or dyngen vppon sheues,
Or helpe make mortar · or bere mukke a-felde.

In lecherye and in losengerye · 3e lyuen, and in sleuthe, 145
And al is þorw suffrance · þat veniaunce 3ow ne taketh.

Ac ances and ^{heremites} heremytes · þat eten noȝt but at nones,
And namore er morwe · myne almesse shul þei haue,
And of my catel to cope hem with · þat han cloistres and cherches.

Ac robert renne-aboute · shal nowȝte haue of myne, 150
Ne posteles, but þey ^{preche} preche conne · and haue powerȝ of þe bisschop;

They shal haue payne and potage · and make hem-self at ese,

For it is an vnresonable Religiou · þat hath riȝte nouȝte of certeyne.

And þanne gan a wastoure to wrath hym · and wolde haue yfouȝte,

And to Pieres þe plowman · he profered his gloue; 155
A Brytonere, a braggere · a-bosted pieres als—

‘Wiltow or neltow · we wil haue owre wille,
Of þi flowre and of þi flessche · fecche whan vs liketh,
And make vs myrie þer-myde · maugre þi chekes!’ 160

Thanne Pieres þe plowman · pleyned hym to þe knyȝte,
To kepe hym, as couenaunte was · fram cursed shrewes,
And fro þis wastoures wolueskynnes · þat maketh þe worlde
dere:

‘For þo waste and wynnyn nouȝte · and þat ilke while Worth neuere plente amonge þe poeple · þer-while my plow liggeth.’ 165

Curteisly þe knyȝte þanne · as his kynde wolde,
 Varned wastoure · and wissed hym bettere,
 Or þow shalt abugge by þe lawe · by þe ordre þat I bere!^{don't really}
 'I was nouȝt wont to worche,' quod wastour · 'and now wil
 I nouȝt bigynne!'—

And lete lizte of þe lawe · and lasse of þe knyȝte, 170

And sette Pieres at a pees^{spoke} · and his plow bothe,

And manaced pieres and his men · ȝif þei mette est sone.

'Now, by þe peril of my soule!' quod pieres · 'I shal apeyre ȝow alle!'

And houped after hunger · þat herd hym atte firste :

A-wreke me of þise wastoures,' quod he · 'þat þis worlde schendeth!' 175

Hunger in haste þo · hent wastour bi þe mawe,

And wronge hym so bi þe wombe · þat bothe his eyen
 wattered;

He buffeted þe Britoner · aboute þe chekes, þat he loked like a lanterne · al his lyf after.

He bette hem so bothe · he barste nere here ribbes; 180

Ne hadde Pieres with a pese-lof · preyed hunger to cesse,

They hadde ben doluen bothe · ne deme þow non other.

'Suffre hem lyue,' he seyde · 'and lete hem ete with hogges,

Or elles benes and bren · ybaken togideres,

Or elles melke and mene ale' · þus preyed pieres for hem. 185

Faitoures for fere her-of · flouen in-to bernes,

And flapt on with flayles · fram morwe til euen,

That hunger was nouȝt so hardy · on hem for to loke,

For a potful of peses · þat peres hadde ymaked.

An heep of heremites · henten hem spades, 190

And ketten here copes · and courtpies hem made,

And wenten as werkemen · with spades and with schoueles,

And doluen and dykeden · to dryue awaye hunger.

Blinde and bedreden · were botened a þousande,

Dat seten to begge syluer · sone were þei heled. 195
 For þat was bake for bayarde · was bote for many hungry,
 And many a beggere for benes · buxome was to swynke,
 And eche a pore man wel apayed · to haue pesen for his huyre,

And what pieres preyed hem to do · as prest as a sperhauke.
 And þere-of was peres proude · and put hem to werke, 200
 And gaf hem mete as he myzte asforth · and mesurable huyre.

Þanne hadde peres pite · and preyed hunger to wende
 Home in-to his owne erde · and holden hym þere.

‘For I am wel awroke now · of wastoures, þorw þi myzte.
 Ac I preye þe, ar þow passe’ · quod Pieres to hunger, 205
 ‘Of beggeres and of bidderes · what best be to done?

For I wote wel, be þow went · þei wil worche ful ille;
 For myschief it maketh · þei beth so meke nouthe,
 And for defaute of her fode · þis folke is at my wille.

Þey are my bloddy brethren,’ quod pieres · ‘for god bouzle vs alle; 210

Treuthe tauzte me ones · to louye hem vchone,
 And to helpen hem of alle þinge · ay as hem nedeth.
 And now wolde I witen of þe · what were þe best,
 And how I myzte amaistrieþ hem · and make hem to worche.’ 214

‘Here now,’ quod hunger · ‘and holde it for a wisdom:
 Bolde beggeres and bigge · þat mowe her bred biswynke,
 With houndes bred and hors bred · holde vp her hertis,
 Abate hem with benes · for bollyng of her wombe;
 And gif þe gomeþ grucche · bidde hem go swynke,
 And he shal soupe swettere · whan he it hath deseruid. 220

And if þow fynde any freke · þat fortune hath appeyred, Bishopes yblessed · 3if þei ben as þei shulden, prestres of bothe þe lawes · þe lewed þere-with to preche, in as moche as þei mowe · amende alle synful, 15

 peres with þe apostles · (þis pardoun Piers sheweth), at þe day of dome · atte heigh deyse to sytte.
 He chauntz in þe ^{margin} margyne · hadden many zeres,
a pena & a culpa · þe Pope nolde hem graunte, he holde nouzt her halidayes · as holicherche techeth, 20 þei swere by her soule · and ‘so god moste hem
 e, þe conscience · her ^{sel} catel to selle.
 Her his secret seel · treuthe sent hem a lettre,

That þey shulde bugge boldely · þat hem best liked,
 And sithenes selle it azein · and saue þe wyynyng, 25
 And amende ^{penitence} mesondieux pere-myde · and myseyse folke helpe,

And wikked wayes · witzlich hem amende;
 And do bote to brugges · þat to-broke were,
 Marien maydenes · or maken hem nonnes;
 Pore peple and prisounes · fynden hem here fode, 30
 And sette scoleres to scole · or to somme other craftes;
 Releue Religioun · and renten hem bettere;—
 ‘And I shal sende 3ow my-selue · seynt Michel myn archangel,

þat no deuel shal 3ow dere · ne fere 3ow in 3owre deyinge,
 And witen 3ow fro wanhope · if 3e wil þus worche, 35
 And send 3owre sowles in safte · to my seyntes in ioye.’

þanne were Marchantz mery · many wepten for ioye,
 And preyseden pieres þe plowman · þat purchaced þis bulle-
 Men of lawe lest pardoun hadde · þat pleteden for Mede,
 For þe sauter saueth hem nou3te · such as taketh 3iftes, 40
 And namelich of innocentz · þat none yuel ne kunneth;

Super innocentem munera non accipies.

Pledoures shulde peynen hem · to plede for such, an helpe,
 Prynces and prelates · shulde paye for her trauaille;

A regibus & pryncipibus erit merces eorum.

Ac many a iustice an iuroure · wolde for Iohan do more,
 þan pro dei pietate · leue þow none other! 45
 Ac he þat spendeth his speche · and spekeþ for þe pore þat is Innocent and nedy · and no man appeireth, Conforteth hym in þat cas · with-oute coueytise of 3iftes,
 And scheweth lawe for owre lordes loue · as he it hath lerned,

Shal no deuel at his ded-day · deren hym a my3te, 50
 þat he ne worth sauf and his sowle · þe sauter bereth witnesse

Domine, quis habitabit in tabernaculo tuo, &c.

Ac to bugge water, ne wynde · ne witte, ne fyre þe siefthe,
 Þise foure þe fader of heuene · made to þis folde in comune;
 Þise ben treuthes tresores · trewe folke to helpe,
 Þat neuere shal wax ne wanye · with-oute god hymselue. 55

Whan þei drawn on to deye · and Indulgences wolde haue,
 Her pardoun is ful ^{small} þetit · at her partyng hennes,
 Þat any Mede of mene men · for her motyng taketh.
 Þe legistres and lawyeres · holdeth þis for treuthe,
 Þat, ^{pleaders} zif þat I lye · Mathew is to blame, 60
 For he bad me make 30w þis · and þis prouerbe me tolde, Quodcumque vultis vt faciant vobis homines, facite eis.

Alle lybbyng laboreres · þat lyuen with her hondes,
 Þat trewlich taken · and trewlich wynnyn,
 And lyuen in loue and in lawe · for her lowe hertis,
 Haueth þe same absolucioun · þat sent was to peres. 65

Beggeres ne bidderes · ne beth nouzte in þe bulle,
 But if þe suggestioun be soth · þat shapeth hem to begge.
 For he þat beggeth or bit · but if he haue nede,
 He is fals with þe fende · and defraudeth the nedy,
 And also he bigileth þe gyuere · ageines his wil. 70
 For if he wist he were nouzte nedy · he wolde giue þat an other,

Þat were more nedy þan he · so þe nediest shuld be hulpe.
 Catoun kenneth men þus · and þe clerke of þe stories,
Cui des, videlo · is catounes techyng,
 And in þe stories he techeth · to bistowe þyn almes; 75
Sit elemosina tua in manu tua, donec studes cui des.

Ac Gregori was a gode man · and bad vs gyuen alle
 Þat asketh, for his loue · þat vs alle leneth :—
Non eligas cui miserearis, ne forte pretereas illum qui meretur accipere. Quia incertum est pro quo Deo magis placeas.

For wite 3e neuere who is worthi · ac god wote who hath nede,

In hym þat taketh is þe treccherye · if any tresou^{er} wawe; ^{welle about}

For he þat 3iueþ, 3eldeth · and 3arketh hym to reste, 80

And he þat biddeth, borweth · and bryngeth hym-self in dette.

For beggeres borwen euermo · and her borghē is god almy3ti,

To 3elden hem þat 3iueþ hem · and 3et vsure more :

Quare non dedisti peccuniam meam ad mensam, vt ego ueniens cum vsuris exegissem illam ?

For-þi biddeth nou3t, 3e beggeres · but if 3e haue gret nede ;

For who-so hath to buggen hym bred · þe boke bereth witnessē, 85

He hath ynough þat hath bred ynough · þough he haue nou3t elles :

Satis diues est, qui non indiget pane.

Late vsage be 3owre solace · of seyntes lyues redyngē, þe boke banneth beggarie · and blameth hem in þis manere :

Junior fui, etenim senui ; et non vidi iustum derelictum, nec semen eius querens panem.

For 3e lyue in no loue · ne no lawe holde ; 89

Many of 3ow ne wedde nou3t · þe wommen þat 3e with delen,

And bryngeth forth barnes · þat bastardes men calleth. 92

Or þe bakke or some bone · he breketh in his 3outhē,

And sithe gon faiten with 3oure fauntes · for euermore after.

þere is moo mysshape peple · amonge þise beggeres, 95

þan of alle maner men · þat on þis molde walketh ;

And þei þat lyue þus here lyf · mowe lothe þe tyme, þat euere he was man wrou3t · whan he shal hennes fare.

Ac olde men & hore · þat helpees ben of strengthe,

And wommen with childe · þat worche ne mowe, 100

Blynde and bedered · and broken here membres, þat taketh þis myschief mekelych · as meseles and othere,

Han as pleyne pardoun · as þe plowman hym-self ;
 For loue of her lowe hertis · owre lorde hath hem graunted
 Here penaunce and her purgatorie · here on þis erthe. 105

‘Pieres,’ quod a prest þo · ‘þi pardoun most I rede,
 For I wil construe eche clause · and kenne it þe on engliche.’

And pieres at his preyere · þe pardoun vnfoldeth,
 And I bihynde hem bothe · bihelde al þe bulle.
 Al in two lynes it lay · and nouȝt a leef more, 110
 And was writen riȝt þus · in witesse of treuthe :

*Et qui bona egerunt, ibunt in vitam eternam ;
 Qui vero mala, in ignem eternum.*

‘Peter!’ quod þe prest þo · ‘I can no pardoun fynde,
 But “dowel, and haue wel · and god shal haue þi sowle,
 And do yuel, and haue yuel · hope þow non other
 But after þi ded-day · þe deuyl shal haue þi sowle !”’ 115

And pieres for pure tene · pulled it atweyne,
 And seyde, ‘si ambulauero in medio vmbre mortis, non timebo mala ; quoniam tu mecum es.

I shal cessen of my sowyng,’ quod pieres · ‘and swynk
 nouȝt so harde,

Ne about my bely-^{conscience}ioye · so bisi be namore !
 Of prayers and of penaunce · my plow shal ben her-after,
 And wepen whan I shulde slepe · þough whete-bred me
 faille. 120

Þe prophete his payn ete · in penaunce and in sorwe,
 By þat þe sauter seith · so dede other manye ;
 Þat loueth god lelly · his lyfode is ful esy :

Fuerunt michi lacrimę mee panes die ac nocte.

And, but if Luke lye · he lereþ vs bi foules,
 We shulde nouȝt be to bisy · aboute þe worldes blisse ; 125
 Ne solliciti sitis · he seyth in þe gospel,

And sheweth vs bi ensamples · vs selue to wisse.
 Þe foules on þe felde · who fynt hem mete at wynter ?

Haue þei no gernere to go to · but god fynt hem alle.'

'What!' quod þe prest to perkyn · 'peter! as me pinketh, þow art lettred a litel · who lerned þe on boke?' 131

'Abstinence þe abbesse,' quod pieres · 'myne a. b. c. me
tauzte,

And conscience come afterward · and kenned me moche more.'

'Were þow a prest, pieres,' quod he · 'þow miȝte preche
where þow sholdest,

As dedynour in deunyte · with dixit insipiens to þi teme.' 135

'Lewed lorel!' quod Pieres · 'litel lokestow on þe bible,
On salomones sawes · selden þow biholdest,

Eice derisores et iurgia cum eis, ne crescant, &c.'

þe prest and perkyn · apposeden eyther other,

And I þorw here wordes a-woke · and waited aboute,
And seighe þe sonne in þe south · sitte þat tyme, 140

Metelees and monelees · on Maluerne hulles,
Musyng on þis meteles; · and my waye ich ȝede.

Many tyme þis meteles · hath maked me to studye

Of þat I seigh slepyng · if it so be myȝte,

And also for peres þe plowman · ful pensyf in herte, 145

And which a pardoun peres hadde · alle þe peple to conforte,

And how þe prest impugned it · with two propre wordes.

Ac I haue no sauoure in songewarie · for I se it ofte faille;

Catoun and canonistres · conseillesh vs to leue

To sette sadnesse in songewarie · for, sompnia ne cures. 150

Ac for þe boke bible · bereth witnessse,

How danyel deuyned · þe dremes of a kynge,

þat was nabugodonosor · nempned of clerkis.

Daniel seyde, 'sire Kynge · þi dremeles bitokneth, þat vnkouth knyȝtes shul come · þi kyngdom to cleue; 155

Amonges lowere lordes · þi londe shal be departed.

And as danyel deuyned · in dede it felle after,

þe kyng se lese his lordship · and lower men if hadde.

And ioseph mette merueillously · how þe mone and þe
sonne,

And þe elleuene sterres · hailed hym alle. 160

Þanne iacob iugged · iosephes sweuene :

'Beau filz,' quod his fader · 'for defaute, we shullen,

I my-self and my sones · seche þe for nede.'

It bifel as his fader seyde · in pharaoes tyme,

Þat ioseph was iustice · egipte to loken, ^{judg} 165

It bifel as his fader tolde · his frendes þere hym souzte.

And al þis maketh me · on þis meteles to þynke ;

And how þe prest preued · no pardoun to dowel, ^{be well}

And demed þat dowel · indulgences passed,

Biennales and triennales · and bisschopes lettres, 170

And how dowel at þe day of dome · is dignelich vnderfongen,

And passeth al þe pardoun · of seynt petres cherche.

Now hath þe pope power · pardoun to graunte þe peple

With-outen eny penaunce · to passen in-to heuene ;

Þis is owre bileue · as lettered men vs techeth, 175

Quodcumque ligaueris super terram, erit ligatum et in celis, &c.

And so I leue lelly · (lordes forbode ellis !)

Þat pardoun and penaunce · and preyeres don saue

Soules þat haue synned · seuene sithes dedly.

Ac to trust to þise triennales · trewly me þinketh,

Is nouzt so syker for þe soule · certis, as is dowel. 180

For-þi I rede 3ow, renkes · þat riche ben on þis erthe,

Vppon trust of 3owre tresoure · triennales to haue,

Be 3e neuere þe balder · to breke þe ten hestes ;

And namelich, 3e maistres · mayres and iugges,

Þat han þe welthe of þis worlde · and for wyse men ben holden, 185

To purchase 3ow pardoun · and þe popis bulles.

At þe dredeful dome · whan dede shullen rise,
 And comen alle bifor cryst · acountis to 3elde,
 How þow laddest þi lyf here · and his lawes keptest,
 And how þow dedest day bi day · þe dome wil reherce; 190
 A poke ful of pardoun þere · ne prouinciales lettres, Theigh 3e be founde in þe fraternete · of alle þe foure ordres,
 And haue indulgences double-folde · but if dowel 3ow help,
 I sette 3owre patentis and 3owre pardounz · at one pies hele!
 For-þi I conseilte alle cristene · to crye god mercy, 195
 And Marie his moder · be owre mene bitwene,
 Þat god gyue vs grace here · ar we gone hennes,
 Suche werkes to werche · while we ben here,
 Þat after owre deth-day · dowel reherce,
 At þe day of dome · we dede as he hi3te. 200

Explicit visio willelmi de petro plowman.

CRITICAL NOTES.

The text is printed exactly as it stands in MS. Laud 581, excepting in the following instances, where improvements have been suggested by a collation of the text with several other MSS.

Prologue, l. 20. Here we must read putten, as in l. 23; but the Laud MS. has put in this line.

34. gildes is taken from the text printed by Crowley. The MSS. have synneles.

39. The words is luciferes byne are omitted in MS. Laud, but are found in the MS. in Trinity College, Cambridge, and in many others. I shall in future denote the Laud MS. by the letter L; the Trinity College MS. by T; MS. Rawlinson Poet. 38, by R; the Oriel MS. by O; and the Cambridge folio MS. (Dd. 1. 17) by C.

41. belies; so in T; but most MSS., including LCO, read bely. bagges; L has bagge, but TCO have the plural form.

67. myschief; misspelt mychief in L.

99. consistorie; so in TCO; spelt constorie in L.

140. answered; so in CTO; but LR have the present tense, answers. I may here note that when two or three MSS., as CTO, are mentioned together, I give the spelling of the one which stands first.

147. The form myd (found in MS. T) suits the alliteration; but L and others read with.

151. MSS. LT omit the second hem; but it occurs in RCO, and should be retained.

179. L omits it, which is retained in all the other MSS.

186. L has croupe instead of crope, which is the reading in R; C has crepe; T has cropen.

197. The curious spelling mannus is found both in L and R; other MSS. read mannes.

215. money is misspelt monoy in L in this place, but is rightly spelt elsewhere in our MS.

224. longe; so in TCO; but L has dere. MSS. of the A-class read longe.

226. and is miswritten a in L; MS. C has an, which is very commonly used instead of and, and shews that the final d was frequently not sounded.

Passus I, l. 37. The words þat leef is to þi soule Leue not þi likam are wrongly omitted in LTC; but they are found in RO, and in MSS. of the A-class. The omission was clearly due to the repetition of the word likam.

41. suetb; so in R. The other readings hardly make sense; they are—seest, L; seep, TO; seip in MS. L. 4. 14 in the Cambridge University Library. Many MSS. of the A-class read schendeth, which means barn. Suetb means pursue.

81. kenne; so in TCRO; L corruptly has kende.

107. myryer; so in CT. In L it is curiously spelt murger, and in R murgur.

139. The Latin quotation is evidently a hexameter, and hence quod is the right reading; but nearly all the MSS. (including L) have quia. The reading quod is adopted from a MS. in the Cambridge University Library, of which the class-mark is Ff. 5. 35.

145. For worebe (which occurs in C and O) MS. L reads worcbeib, which produces a false concord; worcbeib is plural, but how is singular.

150. plante. MSS. of the A-class shew this to be the right reading. M and L and most others of the B-class have plente.

Passus II, l. 27. In the Latin quotation, LTO have bonus instead of bona. The latter occurs in C.

59. Our MS. has cbaffre here; but see Prol. l. 31.

87. For borgbe, the reading in C and R, L has the false spelling borgib. Two MSS., T and O, have burgbe. Borgbe, burgbe are various spellings of the word now spelt borough or burgh.

116. weddynges; so in TCO; L has wendynges.

118. engendred; so in TO; LCR read engendretb.

165. flaterere; so in TCRO; but L has flaterre.

175. deuorses. In both LR we find deuorses, by a curious omission of the C has deuorses, T diuorces, and O deuorces.

227. mynstralles. This is of course right, but MS. L has mynstall (omitting r) both here and in a later passage.

Passus III, l. 17. L omits wil, retained in RT.

48. Instead of ful, as in other MSS., L has wel.

61. wbiten; so in C; spelt wbitten in L.

73. ne; so in TCR; L has no.

95. thynke; miswritten thynko in L.

97. brenne; so in TCO; preferable to berne in L.

98. L omits pat, retained in other MSS.

107. L omits þe, found in RTO, in the last two of which it is spelt þee.

127. L omits the second and, found in TRO.

187. L omits it, found in TRO.

227. Quod; so in TCRO; L has Quatz.

251, 269. monieie; so in C; L has mone.

253. receperrunt; so in O; most MSS. (L included) have recipiebant.

304. oþer, R; corruptly spelt ortber in L.

322. smytbeib, TO; smytbeib in L; smitbie, R.

337, 338. sbe; so in TC; L corruptly has se.

Passus IV. After l. 9, the MSS. of B-text have lost a line, retained in the MSS. of A-text, and in Crowley's printed text. It is—

Of Mede and of oþer mo' and what man shal ber wed.

27. for þei; retained in TO; L omits.

128. byzonde; spelt byzende in L.
 186. ribbes; so in the Vernon MS. (A-text); gutttes, L and MSS. of B-class; Passus V, l. 13. were; so in T; but most MSS. have was.
 29. felice; so in TRCO; spelt filice in L.
 76. scrifste; L has scrite; but see l. 124.
 108. baren; so in O; T has beren; L has bar.
 143. ban; so in T; L omits ban, and some MSS. insert it before the word persones, to the detriment of the sense.
 154. suffre; so in most MSS., but spelt soeffre in L.
 189. Heruy; so in most MSS., but LCR have Henri or henry.
 212. paknedle; so in most MSS., but L has batuedel.
 213. pyuned. Badly spelt pynd in L.
 214. badde; omitted in LR, but supplied by other MSS.
 232. Repentestow; so in T; L has Repentestow.
 236. The first be is omitted in L, by mistake.
 253. L has Lenestow, but T has Lentestow.
 272. L has tellatb, by mistake; tellist is in TCR.
 273. This line is from the Cambridge MS.; L omits it.
 280, 281. For the first baue LR have batb, and for Ben, they have Is. I follow CTO.
 291. L omits quasi, but it is in TCOR.
 312. For sbe, L has be, by a slip. Cf. l. 310.
 338. From the Oriel MS.; LTR omit this line.
 357. stumbled; so in TCO; trembled, L; tremled, R.
 370. wif; so in TO; witte, L; wit, C.
 388. L omits to, which occurs in TCO.
 434. L omits þe, which occurs in TCO.
 440. fernyere; so in TC; L has farnerre.
 441. fozete; miswritten fozete in L.
 447. baue is supplied from C; in TO, we find baue I; L omits it.
 448. quod; so in R; miswritten quia in L, which spoils the scansion.
 514. nos; not in L; supplied from R.
 549. fifty; so in TCO; fourty in LR. Cf. Pass. vi. 85.
 557. of bym; supplied from R; LTRO omit.
 569. Supplied from C and O; omitted by LTR.
 586. batte; so in CR; biſte, W. L has bat, which is the sing. form.
 590. fees; so in TCR; foos, L; foos, O.
 600. witb; so in TRO; L has wit.
 612. cunctis, C; cuntis, L; R only retains iterum.
 613. cliket; so in TC; LR have clikat.
 623. cliketed; so in C; spelt clikated in L.
 627. aren; so in R; L has ar.
Passus VI, l. 6. wolde; so in TO; LR have wil.
 9. L omits þe before sakke; the other MSS. retain it.
 49. This line is from C; LTRO omit it.
 138. or, TCRO; and, L; in the first instance.
 147. noſt, TCO; LR omit it.
 180. ribbes; so in the Vernon MS., others have gutttes.
 206. L omits to, which other MSS. retain.
 223. hem; so in RO; LT have lym.

228. y-worthe; so in T; LR have the inferior spelling aworthe; CO worthe. For vindicta all the MSS. have vindictam.
230. biloue; so in TCO; bilow in L; bylowe in R.
243. L omits hym by mistake.
323. L omits the r in biderward, by mistake.
325. 3ere; so in R; 3eer in O; LTC omit it.
- Passus VII, l. 16. jis; so in TCO; LR have pus.
25. wynnyng; miswritten wynnyge in L.
76. LR omit the first tua, which TCO retain.
77. In the Latin quotation, for Deo (as in T), LCRO have Deum.
83. In the quotation, exegissem is from CR; L has exigerem; TO exigere. The last word, illam, is not in the MSS. I have supplied it the Vulgate.
88. LTR omit querens panem, &c.; OC retain it.
94. And; miswritten A in L.
115. But; so in TCO; L and R have *pat.
137. In the quotation, Eice (the old spelling of Ejice) is from O; L wrongly have Ecce.
183. ten; so in CRO; LT have x.
187. dede; so in TCR; L has ded.

NOTES.

[The text generally follows MS. Laud Misc. 581, as explained in the Critical Notes.]

Title. The English title is a translation of the title found in numerous MSS., viz. 'Visio Willelmi de Petro Plowman.' The first division of the poem, or Prologue, is marked by the Latin word Prologus in one MS. only; in most others, it has no heading. In our Laud MS., however, we find here * Incipit liber de petro plowman, nearly obliterated.

1. soft, mild, warm.

2. I sbope me, &c.; I put myself into clothes, as if I were a shepherd, i.e. I put on (rough) clothes, so that I looked like a shepherd. Sbope, lit. shaped; the phrase I sbope me generally means I got myself ready, as in be sbope hym for to walken, he got ready to set off walking; Pass. xi. l. 404. We know that sbepe here means shepherd, because sbepherd is the reading of many MSS. It more often means sbeep, but a few instances of the signification sbepherd occur. Thus, in an old and very rude hexameter which gives the names of the leaders in Wat Tyler's rebellion, we have

* Jak Cbepe, Tronche, Jon Wran, Thom Myllere, Tyler, Jak Strawe; where another reading for Cbepe is Sebepe. See Political Poems, ed. Wright, vol. i. p. 230. It will be observed, that I have, in relation to the word sbope, quoted from Passus eleven. Properly speaking, the poem has but seven Passus; but in all MSS. of the B-class, it is followed by another poem, entitled Vita de Dowel, Do-bet, et Do-best, and the two are taken together so as to form one long poem, comprising a Prologue and twenty Passus. For the meaning of A-class, B-class, C-class, see the Preface.

3. In babite as an beremite. The simple shepherd's dress resembled that of a hermit. Vnboly of workes. This Dr. Whitaker paraphrases by—'not like an anchorite who keeps his cell, but like one of those unholy hermits who wander about the world to hear and see wonders.' Or it may simply be supposed to be inserted parenthetically, and to express the author's opinion of hermits in general; an opinion which he elsewhere repeats more than once.

5. May mornynge; readers of Chaucer will remember how fond he is (like other Early English poets) of the month of May. On a May morning is nearly equivalent to once upon a time. Malverne bulles; the poet mentions Malvern hills three times, here, at the end of this Prologue, and in Pass. vii. It may be that the first sketch of the poem was composed in that locality; but, at the time when it was re-cast into the shape here printed, he may have been living in London. At any rate, it is certain that he was at that time very familiar with London, and we may consider London as being the real scene of the poem. The importance of this remark will be seen as we advance.

6. A ferly, a wonder. Cf. 'And I will show you ferlies three;' Sir W. Scott: Ballad of Thomas the Rhymer. Of fairy, due to fairy contrivance. See Tyrwhitt's note to l. 6441 of the Cant. Tales. Me thoughte; lit. it thought to me, or rather, it seemed to me; seem being the old meaning of the word. Several other verbs bear a similar construction; thus, another reading for þow dryest (Pass. i. 25) is þe drieth, i. e. it drieth thee, thou art dry.

7. Forwandred, tired out by wandering. See Glossary. Went me, turned me, went; to wend originally meant to turn.

10. Sweyued so merye, sounded so pleasantly.

11. Meten, to dream; sweuene, a dream. Another word for a dream is metels or meteles. See Glossary.

13. Bibelde into the est, looked towards the east, on high, towards the sun.

14. Seigb, saw. The tower on the toft is explained (Pass. i. 12) as being the abode of Truth, i. e. of God the Father; and it may remind us of Bunyan's Celestial City. Truth's abode is afterwards minutely described (Pass. v. 594).

15. The dungeon in the deep dale is explained (Pass. i. 61) as being the castle of Care, or the abode of Falsehood or Lucifer.

17. A faire felde. The fair field is the world (Matt. xiii. 38). The poet's vision surveys heaven, hell, and the world. Fonde, found.

19. As the worlde asketh, as the way of the world requires. In many other places, aske answers to our modern require.

20. Pleyed. It should rather be pleyeden, or at least pleyede, but I have observed that -ed is constantly used as a plural ending, not only in the Laud MS., but in many others. In the Oriel MS., the ending -eden is found almost invariably. Cf. lyueden in l. 26.

21. Settyng, planting. Swonken, laboured. Ful, very; used like the German viel, though etymologically related to voll.

22. That, that which; and won that which wasteful men expend in gluttony.

24. Contenance, outward appearance. Disgised, decked out in strange guise. See a curious passage in Chaucer's Persones Tale (de superbia) about the 'strangeness and disgisines' of precious clothing.

25. A few MSS. have To instead of In; the sense is the same.

26. Ful streyte, very strictly. Observe that -e is a common adverbial ending.

27. Heuenericbe, of the kingdom of heaven. This is an instance of a neuter noun forming the genitive case in -e. This genitive in -e is not common, except in the case of feminine nouns.

28. Ancre, anchorites. The Ancren Riule, i. e. the Rule of Anchoresses, is the name of a prose work written in the early part of the thirteenth century. The word ancre is both masculine and feminine.

29. Kairen, wander, go up and down. Frequently confused with carien in the MSS., both here and in other passages.

30. For no, &c., for (the sake of) any luxurious living, to please their body. Double negatives, like the no here following nought, are very common.

31. Cbeuen, succeed.

34. Giltles. Most MSS. read synneles; but this is not so suitable for the alliteration. Langland here speaks of the guiltless or honest minstrels, who played instruments merely to gain a livelihood; but this class of men had a bad name, and he proceeds to satirize the unscrupulous jesters and slanderers. The subject of minstrels is very fully treated of in Ritson's Ancient Romances, vol. i, in Warton's History of English Poetry, Percy's Reliques, &c. See also Chambers' Book of Days, i. 430. Ritson tells us that the instruments they used were the harp, fiddle, bagpipe, pipe, tabour, cittern, hurdy-gurdy, bladder (or canister) and string, and, possibly, the Jew's-harp. The minstrels of King Edward III.'s household played the trumpet, cytole, pipe, tabret, clarion, and fiddle. When men or women were conveyed to the pillory, it was common to hire minstrels to accompany them, no doubt to call people's attention to them, and to heighten their disgrace. Much is to be learnt about them from Langland's poem, as he mentions them frequently, and in Pass. xiii. there is a long description of a minstrel who also gained a livelihood by selling cakes. Another name for them is gleemen. Janglers, Jesters, Japers, Disours (story-tellers), Jougleors or Jugglers (joculators), all belong to the same fraternity. Cf. Pass. ii. 93, 94. See also Tyrwhitt's note on Chaucer, Cant. Tales, 11453.

36. Feign fancies for themselves, and make fools of themselves, and (yet) have their wit at their will, (able) to work if they were obliged. The sentence is elliptical, and incomplete: we must mentally connect with the next line by saying—'as for such fellows, that which Paul preaches about them, I will not prove it (or adduce it) here; (else might I be blameworthy myself, since) he who speaks slander is Lucifer's servant.' The text of S. Paul which Langland does not quote is Qui non laborat, non manducet (2 Thess. iii. 10), which is written in the margin of the Oriel MS. The quotation Qui, &c., is not from S. Paul, nor does Langland say that it is; yet it has some resemblance to Eph. v. 4, Col. iii. 8.

40. Yede, went. In a long note in Warton's Hist. Eng. Poetry, vol. ii. p. 73 (ed. 1840), it is argued that yede corresponds to the A.S. eode, went, and not to ge-eode, which is transitive, and signifies entered. That is, the y does not bere answer to the A.S. prefix ge-, but is the effect of phonetic spelling, in the same way as we so often find yale, yertbe, for ale, earth. A very familiar instance is the A.S. pronoun ew, with its possessive eower, now spelt you, your.

41. Her, their. The bag or wallet was the beggar's inseparable companion, and was used for receiving the broken pieces of meat and bread bestowed upon him as alms. They also always carried a bourdon, or staff.

'That maketh beggares go with bordon and bagges.'

Song of the Husbandman; see Polit. Songs (Camd. Soc. 1839), p. 150. Yerammed, crammed, the y- being the A.S. prefix ge-.

42. Atte, at the. It is also written at the, at then, or atten; and very frequently atten ale is written atte nale. So also at the nende for at then end.

Tben or ten is the dative of the article; hence this corruption is generally found after a preposition. Another similar corruption is the tone, the toiber, from that one, that other; where the t is the sign of the neuter gender, as in tha-t, i-t; compare the Latin d in i-d, quo-d, illu-d. Ale here means an ale-house, and such is the best interpretation of it in Launce's speech in Two Gent. of Verona, ii. v.—'Thou hast not so much charity in thee as to go to the ale with a Christian;' for only just above Launce says again—'If thou wilt, go with me to the ale-house.' See Staunton's Shakesp. vol. i. p. 43.

43. Hij, they. Written for by, a variation of be, just as ij is written for ii or y in Dutch. It also appears that ij is identical with y.

44. Compare

'And ryght as Robertes men 'raken [wander] aboute,
At feires & at ful ales ' & fylten the cuppe.'

Pierce the Ploughmans Crede, l. 72.

'Robartes men, or Robertsmen, were a set of lawless vagabonds, notorious for their outrages when Piers Plowman was written. The statute of Edw. III. (an. reg. 5, c. xiv.) specifies "divers manslaughters, felonies, and robberies, done by people that be called Roberdesmen, Wastours, and drawlacbes." And the statute of Richard II. (an. reg. 7, c. v.) ordains, that the statute of King Edward concerning Roberdesmen and drawlacbes should be rigorously observed. Sir Edward Coke (Instit. iii. 197) supposes them to have been originally the followers of Robin Hood in the reign of Richard I. See Backstone's Comm. bk. iv. ch. 17.—Warton's Hist. Eng. Poetry, vol. ii. p. 95, ed. 1840. William of Nassyngton says that they tried the latches of people's doors, contrived to get into houses, and then extorted money either by telling some lying tale or playing the bully. See Pass. v. 402, and the confession of Robert the robber in the same Passus. See also Pass. vi. 154.

45. Eure = evre, ever. In early MSS., u is frequently written to denote the v-sound, and conversely words commencing with u are frequently written with v, as vp, unto. These slight difficulties are easily mastered, and there is no reason for suppressing them, as is commonly done by editors.

47. Seynt James, or Santiago. His shrine at Compostella, in Galicia, was a famous place of pilgrimage; see Southey's poem of The Pilgrim to Compostella. Cf. Pass. iv. 126. See a good popular account of him in Chambers' Book of Days, ii. 120 (July 25). A book called The Stacyns of Rome and The Pilgrim's Sea-voyage (ed. Furnivall, 1867, for the Early English Text Society), well illustrates this passage. Rome abounded with shrines at which several thousands of years of remission from purgatory could be obtained. The Sea-voyage is a satire upon the inconveniences of the pilgrimage to Compostella. For a note on Palmer, see Pass. v. 524. One of the questions put to Lord Cobham at his trial was this—'Holy chirche hath determyned that it is needeful to a crystyn man to go a pylgrimage to holy placeys, and there specyally to worschype holy relyques of seyntes, apostlys, martires, confessours, and alle seyntes approved be the chirche of Rome. How fele 30 thys artycle?'—Fasciculus Zizaniorum, p. 442.

54. Our Lady of Walsingham's shrine was much resorted to; its celebrity almost surpassed that of St. Thomas's shrine at Canterbury. In Blomefield's Norfolk we read that King Henry VIII. walked barefoot from Barsham to this shrine [no very great distance] and presented Our Lady with a necklace of great value. He also tells us that the common people had an idea that the Milky Way pointed towards Walsingham, and they called it Walsingham-way accordingly. The Wycliffites opposed such pilgrimages, and especially that to Walsingham. Ruins of the convent, with two wells called the 'wishing-wells,' are still to be seen at Old Walsingham, Norfolk. The monastery was founded for Augustinian or Black Canons. See Chambers' Book of Days, i. 795, ii. 8. 174.

56. In Chaucer's Monkes Prologue, the cope is the mark of a monk; in Pierce the Ploughman's Crede, it is that of a mendicant friar. In Chaucer's Prologue, the Frere has a semi-cope. See also l. 61.

57. And sbopen hem, and arrayed themselves as; see l. 2.

58. The four Orders of mendicant friars are severely satirized in The Ploughman's Crede; see notes in my edition on ll. 29, 486. They were the Carmelites (white friars), Augustines (Austin friars), Jacobins or Dominicans (black friars), and Minorites (gray friars). They are easily remembered by Wycliffe's jest upon them. He takes the initial letters C, A, I, M, to form the word Caim, which was the usual spelling of Cain at that date, and declares them to be of Cain's kin. To be of Cain's kin, or of Judas' kin (see l. 35 above) was a proverbial expression equivalent to being children of Satan.

60. To glose is to comment upon. The commentaries often strayed from and superseded the text. See Chaucer, Sompnoures Tale, l. 80. As hem good lyked, as it pleased them well. Lyked is very frequently thus employed as an impersonal verb. Hem is the dative case. Good is an adjective, but is used here with an adverbial force.

62. maistres Freres, master-friars. The two nominatives plural are in apposition. At lykynge, at their liking, as they like.

64. 'Since Love has turned pedlar.' This alludes to the money received by friars for hearing confessions. Besides this, the friars literally resembled pedlars when they carried about with them knives and pins to give away to women. See the description of the Frere in Chaucer's Prologue.

66. 'Except Holy Church and they [the friars] hold better together, the greatest mischief on earth will be increasing very fast.' The regular friars and secular clergy were so far from 'holding together,' that they quarrelled fiercely as to the right of hearing confessions. See Pass, v. 143.

68. See Chaucer's description of a Pardonere, in his Prologue; and Massingberd's English Reformation, p. 127.

70. Assoulen, absolve.

71. Of falsbed of fastyng, of breaking their vows of fasting. The first of belongs to assoilen.

72. Lewed, unlearned; it exactly answers to the modern adj. lay. Leued bym wel, believed him entirely.

74. He bonched, &c.; lit. he banged them with his brevet, and bleared their eyes. We should now say, he thrust his brevet in their faces. The word is bouché in Mr. Wright's edition, but my collation of MSS. shews this to be an error; and, indeed, no such word as bouch exists. To blear one's eye is a common phrase for to blind, delude, cajole.

'Wyth fantasme, and fayrte,

Thus sche blerede bys yye.'

Ly Beaus Disconus, l. 1432; Ritson's Met. Rom. vol. ii.

75. Ragman; properly a catalogue or roll of names; here applied to the charter or bull with numerous bishops' seals. But for the explanation of many of the harder words, the reader must be referred to the Glossary.

80. 'Yet it is not by the bishop's leave that the young fellow preaches; for (often) the parish-priest and he (agree to) divide the silver, which the poor people would else get.' Sometimes, instead of quarrelling, the priest and pardoner compounded matters.

84. Pestilence tyme. There were three great pestilences which were long remembered; we may even count a fourth. For the dates of the two first, see note to Pass. v. l. 13; the third lasted from July 2 to Sept. 29, 1369. The first was also called the great pestilence, and is probably here meant. In Pass. v. 13, Langland speaks of ibese pestilences, with obvious reference to the first and second ones.

85. To have, i. e. and petitioned the bishop that they might have. Cf. Chaucer, Prologue, where he says of the good parish priest,

'He sette not his benefice to huire . . .
And ran to London, unto seynte Poules,
To seeken him a chaunterie for soules.'

87. The whole of the passage in ll. 87—209 is peculiar to the B-text of the poem, and is not found in the A-text, or earliest draught. It is of much interest and importance, and refers entirely to London; it was probably inserted here, because London has just been mentioned.

88. Crounyng, tonsure.

92. Tellen, count. Formerly, the three principal courts of law, the King's Bench, the Common Pleas, and the Exchequer had a separate jurisdiction. The Exchequer decided only such cases as related to the collection of the revenue, and hence the ecclesiastics who held office in it are said here to challenge, i. e. to claim the King's debts from the various wards or divisions of the city. The wardmote is the court, or meeting, held in each ward. They also claimed for the King all waiifs and strays, i. e. property without an owner and strayed cattle. But see streyues in the Glossary.

'Summe bethe in office wid the king, and gaderen tresor to hepe,
And the fraunchise of holi cherche hii laten ligge slepe.'

Political Songs (Camd. Soc. 1839), p. 325.

We read also in the Complaint of the Ploughman (Polit. Poems, i. 325), the following account of the 'canons secular':—

'They have great prebendes and dere,
Some two or three, and some mo;
A personage to ben a playing fere,
And yet they serve the King also,
And let to ferme all that fare

To whom that woll most give therefore;' &c.

95. Wycliffe complains in the same strain—'But our Priests ben so busie about wordlie [worldly] occupation, that they seemen better Baylifs or Reues, than ghostlie Priests of Jesu Christ. For what man is so busie about marchandise, and other wordly doings, as bene Preists that should bee light of heauenlie life to al men about them.'—Two Treatises against Friars, ed. James, p. 16.

97. Messe, mass; oures, hours, or prayers repeated at stated times of the day.

99. Consistorie, also frequently spelt constorie, a church council or assembly of prelates. It is here used of the Last Great Assembly held by Christ at the day of Judgment.

102. I. e. Peter deputed the power of the Keys to the four cardinal virtues, viz. to Prudence, Temperance, Fortitude, and Justice. The old English names are Sleight, Temperance, Strength, and Doom; see Ayenbit of Inwyt, p. 124, where we read further that—'Thise uour uirtues byeth y-cleped cardinals, uor thet hi byeth heȝbest among the uirtues, huer-of the yealde [old] filosofes speke. Vor be thise uour uirtues the man gouerneth himzelue ine thise wordle, as the apostles gouerneth holy cherche be his cardinals.' In Pass. xix, Conscience reproves evildoers by telling them that without the cardinal virtues they will be lost; whereupon a shameless vicar replies that if so, many a man will be lost, and that he never knew a 'cardinal' but such as came from the pope. The same play upon the word occurs here.

104. Closyng zatis, closing gates. This is a sort of translation of the Latin cardinalis, which is derived from cardo, a hinge. The power of the keys is, as it were, made for the moment into a power of the hinges.

105. There, where. This sense of there should be carefully observed. Cf. l. 190.

107. Atte Courte, at the court, sc. of Rome.

111. I can speak more, for I have much I could say about them; yet I cannot speak more, out of reverence, for the power of electing a pope is a high and holy thing. Such seems to be Langland's meaning.

112. Tyrwhitt supposed that this part of the poem was written after the death of the Black Prince, when his son Richard was heir-apparent. But more close investigation shews that the king is really Richard II, and that the date of composition of this portion should rather be 1377 than 1376. Line 113 is very significant. In many MSS., ll. 113 and 195 are underscored as worthy of attention.

114. Kynde wytte (a very common phrase in Langland) is what we now call common sense.

117. Hem-self fynde, provide for themselves. Hem-self is ambiguous. It may mean that the king and his knights decided that the commons ought to support them, or that they ought to support themselves. It probably means both.

118. Of kynde witte craftes, handicrafts that could be pursued by help of common intelligence. Besides the king, knights, clergy, and commons there was a fifth class, of ploughmen, &c., mere tillers of the soil, who were looked upon as inferior to the rest.

123. I have no doubt that the lunatic is Langland himself. He is here expressing his favourite loyal hope that the king may so govern as to be beloved by all loyal subjects. For the use of lunatic there are three reasons; (1) it conveys a touch of satire, as though it were a mad thing to hope for; (2) a lunatic is privileged to say strange things; and (3) he expressly declares, at the beginning of Pass. xv, that people considered him a fool, and that he raued. This opinion he bitterly adopts. He makes the lunatic, however, speak clergealy, i. e. like a scholar.

126. Leue, grant. No two words have been more hopelessly confused than leue and lene. See Leue in the Glossary.

128. The angel condescends to speak, but only in Latin, since common people ought not to be told how to justify themselves; all who could not understand Latin or French had best suffer and serve. The angel's reproof to the king is in Leonine or riming verses, of which the first is a hexameter, and is put into the mouth of the king himself. The remaining six are alternate hexameters and pentameters, and contain the angel's charge to the king. The verses may have been composed by Langland himself.

It may be added, that long pieces of advice to kings are common at this period of English. Thus, in Gower's Confessio Amantis, lib. vii, is a long disquisition on politics. Again, there is Occleve's poem, entitled De Regimine Principum. Both these, and many like them, are founded on a spurious treatise ascribed to Aristotle, and entitled Secretum Secretorum. Gower, like Langland, addresses his advice to Richard II, and with much freedom. See Warton; Hist. E. P. ii. 230.

139. Goliardeys. 'Un goliardois, Fr.; Goliardus, or Goliardensis, Lat. This jovial sect seems to have been so called from Goliath, the real or assumed name of a man of wit, toward the end of the thirteenth century, who wrote the Apocalypsis Goliath, and other pieces in burlesque Latin rimes, some of which have been falsely attributed to Walter Map. . . . In several authors of the thirteenth century, quoted by Du Cange, the Goliardi are classed with the joculatores et buffones.—Tyrwhitt; note on l. 562 of Chaucer's Cant. Tales. But it would appear that Goliath is the sole invention of Walter Map, and that the original 'Goliath' poems are really his. He named his imaginary Bishop Goliath after the Philistine slain by David; not without some reference, perhaps, to the O. Fr. goule; Lat. gula, gluttony. Soon after, Goliardus meant a clerical buffoon; later still, it meant any jongleur, or any teller of ribald stories; in which sense it is used by Chaucer. See Morley's English Writers, vol. i. p. 586. Langland's Goliardeys is a glutton of words, one full of long pieces which he could recite. He is here made to quote, in an altered form, two lines which are also found as under:—

'O rex, si rex es, rege te, vel eris sine re, rex;
Nomen habes sine re, nisi te recteque regas, rex.'
Political Poems, ed. Wright, i. 278.

Compare also—

'Legem quoque dicimus regis dignitatem
Regere; nam credimus esse legem lucem,
Sine qua concludimus deviare duces.'

Political Songs (Camd. Soc.), p. 115.

143. The commons are not supposed to have understood the angel's advice given in Latin, but they just knew as much as was good for them to know; they could say—

'Precepta regis sunt nobis vincula legis.'

146. This well-known fable, of the rats and mice trying to hang a bell round the cat's neck, is nowhere so well told as here. Mr. Wright says: 'The fable is found in the old collection, in French verse of the fourteenth century, entitled Ysopet; and M. Robert has also printed a Latin metrical version of the story from a MS. of the same century. La Fontaine has given it among his fables.' It is a well-known story in Scottish history, that this fable was narrated by Lord Gray to the conspirators against the favourites of King James III, when Archibald, Earl of Angus, exclaimed, 'I am he who will bell the cat;' from which circumstance he obtained the name of Archibald Bell-the-Cat. In the present instance, the rats are the burgeses and more influential men among the commons; the mice, those of less importance. The cat can be no other than John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster, concerning whom rumours were spread that he aspired to the royal dignity; this greatly offended the people, who were fond of Richard for the sake of his father, their beloved Black Prince. The speech made by the Duke, Oct. 13, 1377, indignantly repelling all such accusations, is entered on the Parliamentary Rolls, and may be read in Lingard's History of England, 8vo., 1825; vol. iv. p. 224. Still more clearly is this shewn by the curious resolution adopted by the insurgents under Wat Tyler, who 'swore to admit of no king of the name of John,' in order to express their detestation of the Duke. See Lingard's History of England, vol. iv. p. 240.

152. Doute in Old English almost always means fear, as here. Loke, look about us; cf. l. 172.

155. Vs loibeth, it loathes us, i. e. we loathe; cf. l. 174. Or, ere.

158. Renable, contracted from reasonable. Thus, in Myrc's Duties of a Parish Priest (ed. Peacock, 1868), the Cotton MS. has 'renabulle tonge' where the Douce MS. has 'reasonable.' But it was often regarded as if formed from the verb renne, to run; hence it is still used in Norfolk in the form runnable; i. e. glib, loquacious. In the following it has, apparently, the older meaning:

* Hir maners might no man amend;
Of tong she was trew and renable,
And of hir semblant soft and stabile.*

Ywaine and Gawaine, l. 208; in Ritson's Met. Rom., vol. i. p. 10.

161. Bigbes, necklaces. Colers of crafty werk, collars of skilful workmanship; alluding to the gold or metal chains, such as are still worn by sheriffs, &c.

164. And at other times they are elsewhere, viz. away from London, living in retirement.

181. Leten, considered, esteemed; cf. Pass. iv. l. 160.

187. To lat the catte wortbe, to let the cat be, to let it alone. Wortbe is the A.S. weorðan, to be. When Alexander tamed Bucephalus, we read that

'Soone hee leapes on-loft · and lete hym wortbe
To fare as hym lyst faine · in feeelde or in towne.'

William of Palerne, &c.; ed. Skeat, 1867; p. 216.

189. Is seuene 3ere ypassed, it is seven years past, seven years ago.

190. The expressive word elyng, elenge, or elling, still common in Kent, includes the meanings sad and solitary. Henry VIII, in a letter to Anne Bullen, speaks of 'his ellengness since her departure;' Hearne's edition of Avesbury, p. 360.

191. 'Ve tibi, terra, cujus rex puer est, et cujus principes mane comedunt;' Ecclesiastes x. 16. In MS. Digby 53 is a note to this effect—

* Par þe child is kinge and þe cuerl [cburl] is alderman, and þe wale [stranger] biscop, wa þene lede [wo to the people]; unde versus,

* *Ve populo cujus puer est rex, censor agrestis,
Exterus antistes; hii mala multa movent.*'

When Robert Crowley reprinted Piers Plowman, in the time of Edward VI, he added, for obvious reasons, this sidenote: 'Omnium doctissimorum suffragio, dicuntur hec de lassius, fatuis, aut ineptis principibus, non de etate tenellis. Quasi dicat, ubi rex puerilis est.' In this and other quotations, 1 follow the peculiar spellings of the originals. The use of e for æ in Latin words is very common.

192. The wise mouse here suggests that the rats want keeping in order themselves, and that it is a pity that the true cat (i. e. the king, in this instance) is only a kitten. Also the cat may sometimes be expected to go out catching rabbits, and meanwhile he will let the rats and mice alone. 'Better a little loss than a long sorrow; (for there would, if the duke died, be) confusion amongst us all, though we be rid of a tyrant.' Langland uses the mase to mean confusion, bewilderment; l. 196 is explanatory of the 'long sorrow' mentioned above.

197. 'We mice, the lower order of commons, would eat up many men's malt, and ye rats, the burgesses, would tear men's clothes, &c.' These lines are almost prophetic. The rising of the peasantry under Wat Tyler took place but a short time afterwards, in June, 1381.

202. Observe how the cat (John of Gaunt) is here distinguished from the kitten (Richard II).

203. Ne carpyng of, nor shall there be any more talking about. Supply shal be from the line above. Costed me neuere, would never have cost me anything; for I would not have subscribed to it.

204. And, even if I had subscribed, I would not own it, but would submit to let him do as he likes; both he and the kitten may catch what they can.

209. Deuine 3e, guess ye the meaning; I dare not.

210. The rest of the Prologue is found in Text A, as well as in the later ones. The law-sergeants are here spoken of. 'Lawyers were originally priests and of course wore the tonsure; but when the clergy were forbidden to intermeddle with secular affairs, the lay lawyers continued the practice of shaving the head, and wore the coif for distinction's sake. It was at first made of linen, and afterwards of white silk;' British Costume, p. 126. The white silk hoods are again alluded to in Pass. iii. l. 293.

212. Pleteden, pleaded. This verb is derived from the O. Fr. plet, a plea, which is corrupted from the Lat. placitum, an opinion. Hence plead and please are from the same root. By the Statute of 36 Edw. III, c. 15 (A.D. 1362), it was enacted that pleadings should henceforward be conducted in English, but recorded in Latin. They were not recorded in English till the fourth year of George II. The penny was an important coin in the time of Edward III; but it should be observed that any coin, such as a florin, could be sometimes called a penny, in which case a half-penny would mean the half-florin, and a farthing (fourth-ing) the fourth part of the florin. See note to Pass. ii. 143. There is a satirical poem in praise of 'Sir Peny,' who was much sought after by all men, including lawyers.

'Sir Peny mai ful mekil auaille

To tham that has nede of cownsaill,

Als sene is in assise.'

Hazlitt; Early Popular Poetry, i. 165.

213. Vnlese, unloose, unclose.

214. 'Thou mightest better measure the mist on Malvern hills than get a mun out of their mouth, unless money should be exhibited.' The whole of this passage is imitated by Lydgate;

'Unto the common place [pleas] I yode thoo,

Where sat one with a sylken boode;

I dyd hym reverence, for I ought to do so,
 And told my case as well as I coud,
 How my goods were defrauded me by falshood,
I gat not a mum of his moutb for my meed,
 And for lack of mony, I myght not spede.'

Lydgate's London Lyckpeny; MS. Harl. 367.

216. An, and. Both spellings are common.

218. Brewesteres, female brewers. 'The trade of brewing was confined almost wholly to females, and was reckoned among the callings of low repute.'—Note to Liber Albus, ed. H. T. Riley; p. 307. At p. 312 of the same we read, 'If any brewer or brewster,' &c. Cf. Pass. v. 306.

219. Wollewebsteres, female weavers of linen. But the distinction between webbe, a male weaver, and webstere, a female weaver, is not always made. Thus, in Pass. v. 215 we find—

'My wyf was a webbe and wollen cloth made.'

222. 'Of labourers of every kind there leapt forth some.' For alkin we sometimes find alle kyn, alle kynne, alles kinnes, and (which is very extraordinary) alle skinnes. The full form is alles kynnes, of every kind. It is in the genitive case. The word labourers in the Statutes of Edward III is comprehensive, including masons, bricklayers, tilers, carpenters, ditchers, diggers, &c.

224. Dieu vous saue, dame Emme! God save you, dame Emma! Evidently the refrain of some low popular song. In another place Langland speaks of 'dame Emme of Shoreditch,' which was a low locality.

226. 'Good pigs and geese! let's go and dine!' It was the practice thus to tout for custom, standing outside the shop-door. In the same way the taverners kept crying out, 'White wine! Red wine!' &c. Here again Lydgate copies from Langland:—

'Cokes to me they toke good entent,

Called me nere, for to dyne;

And profered me good brede, ale, and wyne . . .

Then I hied me into Est Chepe;

One cries ribes of befe, and many a pie;

Pewtar potts they clatteryd on a heape;

Ther was harpe, pipe, and sawtry,' &c.

London Lyckpeny; MS. Harl. 542.

228. White and red wines, chiefly imported from France, were common. Though Osey is said to come from Portugal in the first volume of Hackluyt's Voyages, p. 188, yet the name is certainly a corruption of Alsace. Thus Ausoy is written for Alsace frequently in the Romance of Partenay, and Roquefort explains the O. Fr. Aussay to mean Alsatia. It seems to have been a sweet, straw-coloured wine. The wines of Gascony, of the Rhine, and of Rochelle, need no explanation. The roste to defye, to digest the roast meat. This is well illustrated by the following oft-quoted passage:—

'Ye shall have rumney and malmesyne,

Both ypocrasse, and vernage wyne,

Mount rose and wyne of Greke,

Both algrade, and respice eke,

Antioche, and bastarde,

Pyment also, and garnarde,

Wyne of Greke, and muscadell,
Both clare, piment, and Roebell;
The reed your stomake to defye,
And pottes of Osey set you by.'

Squyr of lowe degre; Ritson's Met. Rom. iii. 176.

NOTES TO PASSUS I.

Passus, a portion or 'fytte' of a poem. In an entertainment given to Queen Elizabeth at Kenilworth, a minstrel was to have sung a song, &c. After singing a portion, he was to have made 'a pauz and a curtezy, for primus passus,' i. e. to signify that the first part was over. See Ritson's Met. Rom. vol. i. p. ccxxii. Compare—

'Thus passed is the first pas · of this pris tale.'

William of Palerne, l. 161.

1. Bymenetb, signifies.

3. A loneli ladi of lere, i. e. A ladi, loneli of lere, A lady, lovely of countenance.

5. Sone; some copies read Wille, the poet's name. Sleepestow, sleepest thou; sestow, seest thou. The word tow, for thou, is often added thus to verbs in the second person.

6. Mase, confused medley of people.

8. Have thei worschip, if they have honour. Wilne, desire; different both from wil, intend, and wyssche, wish.

9. Holde thei no tale, they keep no account, they regard not.

11. Wbat is this to mene, what is the meaning of this? To mene takes the place of A.S. gerund, where to is a preposition governing the dative case, and mene is for mænanne, a dative formed from the infinitive mænan, to mean. Thus to mænanne is, literally, for a meaning.

12. Vp, upon. The tower is that mentioned in the Prologue, l. 14. Truþer is here synonymous with the Father of Faith, i. e. God the Father and Creator.

15. Fyue wittis, five senses, viz. of hearing, sight, speeþ, smelling, feeling, according to the enumeration in Grosteste's Castel of Love. But for speeþ we commonly have tasting. In Pass. xiv is the passage—

'Bi so that thow be sobre · of syȝte and of tonge,

In etynge and in handlyng · and in alle thi fyue wittis.'

Compare Tennyson's Song of the Owl:—

'Alone and warming his five wits,

The white owl in the belfry sits.'

17. Hygþe, commanded. To help you of, to provide you with.

21. In comune thre þingis, three things in common; these are clothing, meat, and drink. 'The chief thing for life is water, and bread, and clothing, and an house to cover shame.' Ecclus. xxix. 21; cf. xxxix. 26.

23. From cbele, &c., to keep thee from a chill.

24. For myseise, as a remedy against disease or discomfort. This curious use of for is worth notice. It is sufficiently common.

26. That thou worþ, so that thou become the worse for it.

35. 'Moderation is a remedy, though thou yearn for much.' The same line reappears in the 'Deposition of Richard II,' a poem which I attribute to Langland.

'But mesure is a meri mene, thouȝ men much yerne.'

Dep. Rich. II (Camd. Soc.), p. 12.

* 'Misure is a mery mene' is quoted as a proverb by Skelton and Heywood.
36, 37. This means—Not all which the body desires is good for the soul, nor is all that is dear to the soul a source of life to the body.

38. 'Believe not thy body, for a liar—this wretched world—teaches it, and would betray thee.'

41. 'Both this (the fiend) and that (thy flesh) pursue thy soul, and suggest things to thy heart.'

42. Fwar, wary. This is an instance of the prefix y-, the A.S. ge-, being prefixed to an adjective. It is the A.S. gewar, wary, cautious. It is not to be confused with aware, which is a corruption of A.S. on wære, in caution, on guard. I wisse, I teach, is to be distinguished from the adverb I-wis, certainly, which is only too often confounded with it; and both again are different from I wot, I know, and I wist, I knew, which are from the verb to wit.

46. 'Go to the gospel, (and see there) that which God said himself.'

50. Ilyke, like; see note to l. 42. The word was is understood before Ilyke, but is not in the MSS.

52. 'Et ait illis Jesus: Cujus est imago hæc, est superscriptio? Dicunt ei, Cæsaris. Tunc ait illis: Reddite ergo quæ sunt Cæsaris, Cæsari; et quæ sunt Dei, Deo.' Matt. xxii. 20, 21 (Vulgate).

55. Kynde witte, common sense.

56. 'And Common Sense should be preserver of your treasure, and should bestow it on you in your need.'

57. Hy, put for by, they. Holden togideres; see note to Prol., l. 66.

58. For hym, for the sake of Him.

59. The dungeon is that spoken of in Prol., l. 15.

62. To body, so as to possess a body. Cf. l. 82, where wroughte me to man means wrought me so that I became a man.

64. And founded it, and be founded it. Here it refers to falsebood, not to the castle of care; for, with our author, to found is to originate.

66. Caym, Caim. See note to Prol., l. 58.

67. Iuwen, of Jews. The gen. pl. ending is -en or -ene; see l. 105.

68. The idea that Judas hanged himself upon an elder occurs in Shakespeare, Love's Labour's Lost, v. 2; and in Ben Jonson—'He shall be your Judas, and you shall be his elder-tree to hang on;.' Every Man out of Hum. iv. 4. See Nares. On the other hand, we read that 'the Arbor Judæ is thought to be that whereon Judas hanged himself, and not upon the elder-tree, as it is vulgarly said;' Gerrard's Herbal, ed. Johnson, p. 1428; quoted by Brand, Pop. Ant. iii. 283. Mr. Wright points out a passage in Sir John Maundevile, who says that the very elder-tree was still in existence when he visited Jerusalem; see p. 93 of Halliwell's edition.

69, 70. Letter, stopper, destroyer. Lyetb bem, lieth to them. That, Those who.

73. Yeode, or yede, went. See note to Prol., l. 40.

74. Wissed, taught. See note to l. 42.

76. I underfonge þe, I received thee, viz. at baptism.

77. Borwes, sureties, viz. the sponsors in baptism.

82. Wroughte me to man, shaped me so that I became a man. There are other instances of this phrase. Cf. l. 62.

83. Teche me to, direct me to. Teach is here used in its original sense, to indicate, point out by a token or sign. This ilke, this same, this very thing. The word tresore alludes to l. 45; the dreamer now alters his question.

86. I do it on deus caritas, I appeal to the text God is love (1 John iv. 8) as my authority. Cf. Pass, iii. 187.

88. None oþer, nothing else but the truth. The Vernon MS. has not elles.

90. Bi the gospel, by what the gospel says. In the next line we are referred to St. Luke, that is, to the parable of the unjust steward, where those to whom are to be committed the 'true riches' are taught to be faithful in that which is least; Luke xvi. 10-13. See also Luke viii. 21.

93. Christians and heathens alike claim to learn the truth.

96. Tyngressores is marked in the MSS. as a Latin word. Latin words are strongly underlined, frequently with a red stroke.

98. Appendeth for, pertains to. Another reading is apendeth to.

99. A Fryday, one single Friday. A Friday generally means on Friday, but not here. Another reading is o, i. e. one.

100. Him and bir, i. e. every man and woman.

102. David, &c. This may refer to 1 Sam. xxii. 2, to 1 Chron. xi. 1-3, or, still more probably, to 1 Chron. xii. 17, 18. When King Horn was dubbed a knight, as told in the romance of that name, he was girt with a sword, his spurs were fastened on him, and he was set upon a white steed. A few lines lower, at l. 105, we find Christ described as knighting the angels.

104. An apostata was one who quitted his order after he had completed the year of his noviciate. This is very clearly shewn by the following statement of a novice,—

'Out of the ordre thof I be gone,
Apostata ne am I none,
Of twelue monethes me wanted one,
And odde days nyen or ten.'

Monumenta Franciscana, p. 606.

The writer of this was one who had been a novice in the order of St. Francis, but left it to become a Wicliffite. See my preface to Pierce the Ploughman's Crede, p. xiii.

105. Kyngene kyng, king of kings. The genitive plural in -ene is from the A. S. ending -ena, as in Witena gemote, meeting of wits (wise men). Wycliffe says, in speaking of true religion, that—'Jesu Christ and his Apostles bene chiefe knights thereof, and after them holy Martirs and Confessours'; Two Treatises against Friars, ed. James, p. 19. Ten; so in all the MSS., otherwise we should have expected nine; for the angels were generally distributed into three hierarchies of three orders each: first, seraphim, cherubim, and thrones; second, dominions, virtues, and powers; third, principalities, archangels, and angels. Langland here enumerates the seraphim and cherubim, seven such orders more, and one oþer. But the one oþer is the order over which Lucifer presided, as implied by l. 111. This makes up the ten orders, as having been the original number. And that this is the true explanation is rendered certain by a passage in Early English Homilies, ed. Morris, 1868, 219, where the preacher enumerates the nine orders, and adds that the tenth order revolted and became evil; that the elder of the tenth order was called 'leobt berinde,' i.e. light-bearing or Lucifer, who was beautifully formed, but who grew moody and said that he would sit in the north part of heaven, and be equal to the Almighty. For this sin he was driven out of heaven with his host. It must be added, that this tenth order was above, not below, the other nine; for the Franciscan Friars used to call themselves the Seraphic Order, having installed their founder, St. Francis, 'above the Seraphim, upon the throne from which Lucifer fell.' See Southey's Book of the Church, ed. 1848, p. 182. Speaking of the Chester Mystery of the Fall of Lucifer, Dean Milman says,—'This drama, performed by the guilds in a provincial city in England, solves the insoluble problem of the origin of evil through the intense pride of Lucifer. God Himself is present on the scene; the nine Orders demonstrate against the overweening haughtiness of Lucifer, who, with the devils, is cast down into the dark dungeon prepared for them.' Hist. of Lat. Christ. vi. 409. See also the Ormulum, i. 34; and Chambers' Book of Days, i. 635. Allusions to this fall of Lucifer are very common; see Wycliffe's Two Treatises, p. 35; Ayenbite of Inwyt, ed. Morris, 1868, p. 182; Genesis and Exodus, ed. Morris, 1865, p. 3; Cædmon, ed. Thorpe, p. 18, &c. See a long note by myself in Notes and Queries, 3rd S. xii. 110; and cf. next note.

118. Ponam pedem, &c. An inexact quotation from Isaiah xiv. 13, 14: 'In cælum conscendam, super astra Dei exaltabo solium meum, sedebo in monte testamenti, in lateribus aquilonis. Ascendam super altitudinem nubium; similis ero Altissimo.' It is curious that wherever the fall of Lucifer is mentioned, as in most of the places cited in the note above, there is mention also of Lucifer's sitting in the north. We find it even in Milton, P. L. v. 755-760:

'At length into the limits of the north
They came; and Satan to his royal seat,

The palace of great Lucifer, &c.

So in Skelton's Colin Clout:

'Some say ye sit in trones [thrones]
Like princes aquilonis.'

So in the Anglo-Saxon Version of the Hexameron of St. Basil, ed. Norman, 1849, p. 16, which agrees closely with Isaiah. In Text C of Piers Plowman, Langland inquires why Lucifer chose the north side, but fears he shall offend Northern men if he says much about it. Yet he hints that the north is the place for cold and discomfort, and suitable enough for the fallen angel. Chaucer's Monkes Tale begins with the Fall of Lucifer.

119. Nyne dayes. So Milton—'Nine days they fell'; P. L. vi. 871.

123. Mr. Wright says—'In The Master of Oxford's Catechism, written early in the fifteenth century, and printed in Reliquiæ Antiquæ, vol. i. p. 231, we have the following question and answer—C. Where be the anjelles that God put out of heven, and bycam devilles? M. Som into hell, and som reyned in the skye, and som in the erth, and som in waters and in wodys.' This was an easy way of accounting for all classes of fairies, some of whom were supposed to be not malignant; for the fallen spirits were supposed to be not all equally wicked. The Rosicrucians, in like manner, placed the sylphs in the air, the gnomes in the earth, the salamanders in the fire, the nymphs in the water; and as Pope says, in his Introduction to the Rape of the Lock—'The gnomes, or demons of earth, delight in mischief; but the sylphs, whose habitation is the air, are the best-conditioned creatures imaginable.'

132. The texts are, Reddite Casari, l. 52, and Deus caritas, l. 86. This line is repeated at l. 204.

134. Leretb it this lewde men, Teach it to these unlearned men. To lere is to teach, lerne to learn. Lerne sometimes also means to teach, as in prov. English, but lere is never to learn. This and thise are both used as plurals of ibis.

136. Kynde knowing, natural understanding.

139. I have not yet traced the original of this Latin rimed (or Leonine) hexameter.

140. Here the 'kynde knowyng' is identified with conscience.

147. Tbat spice, that species, that kind of remedy for sin. It refers to love, which is the theme of the succeeding context.

149. Lered it Moises, taught it Moses; viz. in Deut. vi. 5, x. 12, &c.

150. Plante, plant. MSS. of the A-type have plannte, plante, plonte, &c., which can only mean plant. Plente would mean plenty, fulness. See the Critical Note.

151. It, sc. love; here used of the love of Christ, which heaven could not contain, till it had 'eaten its fill of the earth,' i. e. participated in the human nature by Incarnation. When it had taken flesh and blood, it became light as a linden-leaf, and piercing as a needle.

161. To knowe it kyndely, to understand it by natural reason; cf. ll. 136, 140. In Pass. ix, near the beginning, there is a description of the castle of Caro (man's body), which is guarded by the constable Inwit (conscience); and it is said of Inwit and of the five senses that—

'In the herte is hir home: and hir moste reste;'¹ l. 55.

164. Tbat falletb, &c. That belongs to the Father; i. e. it is God the Father who implanted Conscience in man's heart.

167. He, sc. God the Son.

170. One, alone; dat. case of on, one, A. S. án.

176. Eadem, &c. Matthew vii. 2; Luke vi. 38. Remecietur is no misprint. Some Latin words are not always spelt alike in old MSS. Thus scintilla is frequently spelt sintilla, as in Pass. v. 291, and commodat is spelt comodat, as in Pass. v. 246.

177. A cbilde, &c. This probably means a babe who is being baptized, baptism being sometimes accompanied by tears on the part of the infant.

179. Leue the poure, lend to the poor. Poure is for poure, more frequently spelt pouere, i. e. povere.

182. Malkyn was a proverbial name for an unchaste slattern. It occurs in Chaucer's Man of Lawes Prologue.

185. For dore-tre some MSS. have dore-nayl. As dead as a door-nail is still a common proverb, but it is older even than Langland's poem, as it occurs twice in the alliterative romance of William of Palerne, written about A. D. 1350. The Vulgate edition of the Bible has—'Sicut enim corpus sine spiritu mortuum est, ita et fides sine operibus mortua est.' S. Jacob. ii. 26.

186. Worþ, shall be. The present is often used for the future in Early English, as in Anglo-Saxon. We even find it in our Bibles, 'we also go with thec,' John xxi. 3. This line is repeated below, l. 192.

187. Dan Michel, in his Ayenbite of Inwyt (ed. Morris, p. 233) says that virginity without love is as a lamp without oil, and refers to the parable of the foolish virgins. No doubt Langland also was thinking of that parable.

191. Chewen bere cbarite, &c. They chew up their charity; i. e. they eat up what they should give away, and then cry out for more. This striking expression, chewen cbarite, was copied from Langland by his imitator, the author of the Ploughman's Crede: see the Crede, ed. Skeat, l. 663.

194. Thei ben, i. e. and yet they are.

197. And lernyng, &c.; and an instruction to unlearned men, to distribute (alms) all the later, i. e. to put off giving away. For the sense of dele, see l. 199.

200. Date et dabitur vobis (S. Luke vi. 38) is the commencement of the verse already partially quoted above; see l. 176.

203. Graitb gate, direct way. The expression occurs in the History of Wallace, v. 135.

*For thair sloith-hund the graitb gate till him yeid;

i. e. their sleuth-hound went straight towards him. Cf. Pass. iv. 42.

204. Repeated from above; see ll. 132, 133.

207. Lenge the witb, linger with thee. Loke the, guard thee; i. e. may our Lord guard thee!

PASSUS II.

5, 6. 'See where he [Falsehood] stands; and not he only, but Favel [Flattery] also, and their many companions.'

8. A woman. Here Langland carefully describes the Lady Meed, who represents both Reward in general, and Bribery in particular; the various senses of Meed are explained in iii. 230—256. Female dress at this date was very extravagant, and we may compare with the text the following remarks in Lingard's History. 'Her head was encircled with a turban or covered with a species of mitre of enormous height, from the summit of which ribbons floated in the air like the streamers from the head of a mast. Her tunic was half of one colour, and half of another: a zone deeply embroidered, and richly ornamented with gold, confined her waist, and from it were suspended in front two daggers in their respective pouches;' vol. iv. p. 91. This part of Piers Plowman appears in the early text of 1362, otherwise Langland's description of Meed would have served admirably for Alice Perrers, who obtained a grant of Queen Philippa's jewels, and 'employed her influence to impede the due administration of justice in favour of those who had purchased her protection;' and against whom the following ordinance was made in 1376: 'Whereas complaint has been brought before the king, that some women have pursued causes and actions in the king's courts by way of maintenance, and for bire and reward, which thing displeases the king, the king forbids that any woman do it hereafter; and in particular Alice Perrers,' &c. See Lingard, iv. 142. Indeed it is very likely that Langland perceived this likeness in revising his poem, for the description of Meed's clothing is amplified in the B-text, and he adds the very significant line,

'I had wondre what she was · and whas wyf she were.'

How Alice treated King Edward in his last illness is well known. Whitaker suggests that the Lady Meed is the original of Spenser's Lady Munera; see Spenser, F. Q. bk. v. c. ii. st. 9.

9. Pelure, fur. The laws about the kinds of furs to be worn by different ranks were very minute. Furred hoods, in particular, were much in fashion.

14. Ennuenyms to destroye. It was a common belief that precious stones could cure diseases, and that they were as antidotes against poisons. Thus 'Richard Preston, citizen and grocer, gave to the shrine of St. Erkenwald his best sapphure stone, for curing of infirmities of the eyes,' &c. Note in Milman's Lat. Christ. vi. 375; where Milman quotes from Dugdale, p. 21.

21. Leute, Loyalty. Langland arrays Love, Loyalty, Soothness, Reason, Conscience, Wisdom, and Wit on the one side, and Meed (daughter of False), Wrong, Favel or Flattery, Simony, Civil, Liar, and Guile upon the other. Wisdom and Wit waver in their allegiance, but are won back again. Lines 27—38 are not in the A-text.

27. As kynde axeth, as nature requires or provides. For bona some MSS. have bonus, for the sake of euphony, much as in French we have mon for ma before nouns beginning with a vowel.

30. O god, one God. Wright's text has So, but it is a misprint for Oo.

31. To marye with myself; we should now arrange the words to marry myself with. Wit in Early English is always near its verb, a puzzling arrangement to a learner. So in the Crede, 'to coueren with our bones,' l. 116. So, in l. 116 below, to uratbe with treutbe means to anger Truth with. Mercy is here the dowry which Holy Church brings to the man who espouses her.

38. See Ps. xv. 1 (called xiv. in the Vulgate).

39. Mansed, cursed. The word maused in Mr. Wright's text is a misprint, as he explains in a note on p. 537, and in his Glossary.

42. Brydale, bride-ale or bridal. An ale means a feast merely. There were leet-ales, scot-ales, church-ales, clerk-ales, bid-ales, and bride-ales. The bride-ales were so called because the bride brewed some ale for her wedding-day, which her friends purchased at a high price, by way of assisting her and amusing themselves at the same time. This led to abuses, and we find in the court-roll of Hales Owen, in the 15th year of Elizabeth, an order 'that persons brewing wedding-ale to sell, should not brew above 12 strike of malt at most.' See Brand's Popular Antiquities, ed. Ellis, ii. 144.

47. Lat bem worth, &c.; let them be, till Loyalty be a justice. Cf. note to Prologue, l. 187.

49. I bikenne the criste, I commend thee to Christ; criste is the dative case of crist.

59. Brokours. In the reign of Edward I., a law was passed that 'no one shall be broker, but those who are admitted and sworn before the Mayor.' Liber Albus, ed. Riley, p. 505.

62. In Passus xx., the church is described as assailed by numerous enemies. One is Simony, who causes good faith to flee away, and falseness to abide, and who boldly vanquishes much of the wit and wisdom of Westminster Hall by the use of many a bright noble. He is also there described as contriving divorces. By Cyule is meant one skilled in the civil law.

65. Brokour is here used in the general sense of a contriver of bargains, a match-maker.

66. Here beire wille, the will of them both. See Beire in Glossary.

74. The form of this mock charter may be compared with that of the charter whereby the Black Prince was invested, in 1362 (the very year which Langland wrote the first version of his poem) with the principality of Aquitaine. It is given at length in Barnes's Life of Edward III.

78. Fefselb, grants to them; lit. enfeoffs, i.e. invests them with a fief or fee.

95. Frete, to eat, viz. before the proper time for eating arrived.

97. Here is a sudden change from the plural to the singular; bis seems to refer to Falsehood. In l. 100, there is a sudden change to the plural again, since bere means their. But other passages shew that bis and hym may be used indefinitely, as we now use one's and one.

102. A dwellyng, a habitation; the acc. after bolde.

103. In-to (invariably in Lowland Scotch, and occasionally in old English) has the force of in merely.

108. Of Paulynes doctrine, of the doctrine (or order) of the Paulines. 'In the same yere [1310] began the ordre of Paulyns, that is to say, Crouched Freres.'—A Chronicle of London (edited in 1827, and published by Longmans), p. 43. But Matthew Paris says that the order of Crutched Friars came into England A.D. 1244. In a poem called the Image of Ypocrisie, written about A.D. 1533, a list is given of orders of monks, which includes the Paulines, the Antonines, Bernardines, Celestines, &c. The word Paulynes occurs again below, l. 177.

109. Bedel. 'The duties of the beadle, in ancient times, lay more on the farm than in the law-court. . . . In many places, the bedelry and the haywardship were held together by one person,' &c. See Nooks and Corners of English Life, by Timbs; p. 233. The oath of the Bedels is given at p. 272 of the Liber Albus. They were to suffer no persons of ill repute to dwell in the ward of which they were bedels, to return good men upon inquests, not to be regrators themselves, nor to suffer things to be sold secretly. And at p. 289 of the same we find—'Item, that the bedel have a good horn, and loudly sounding.' It is remarkable that, in Text C, Langland changed Bokyngham-sbire (which may merely have been chosen for the alliteration) into 'Banbury soken.' This may have been an intentional sting at the beadle of Banbury, with whom he may have quarrelled. For it is to be noted that Banbury is at no great distance from Shipton-under-Wychwood, where Langland's father is said to have farmed land.

122. Dignus est enim operarius mercede sua; Luke x. 7.

137. Witty is truthe, wise is Truth. It must be remembered that Truth means God the Father, as in Pass. i. 12.

143. Floreines, florins; the name of which is derived from the city of Florence. We read in Fabyan (ed. Ellis, p. 455) under the year 1343—'In this yere also, kynge Edward made a coyne of fyne golde, and named it the floryne, that is to say, the peny of the value of vis. viiid., the halfe peny of the value of iiis. iiiid., and the farthyng of the value of xxd., which coyne was ordeyned for his warris in Fraunce; for the golde thereof was not so fyne as was the noble, whiche he before in his xiiii. yere of his reygne had causyd to be coyned.' So in Thomas Walsingham, vol. i. p. 262, ed. Riley. The value of a noble was also 6s. 8d. See note to Pass. iii. 45.

160. Westmynstre. Langland seems to have been very familiar with the courts of law at Westminster, as appears from the present and two following Passus. In Pass. xx, we again find him speaking of the 'false folk' who repair 'to Westmynstre.' The number of statutes enacted there in the reign of Edward III is considerable. See Liber Albus, p. 470.

162. Those who had horses could anticipate others at the court, by performing the journey more quickly, and they could thus attain a first audience and administer a bribe. In a poem on The Evil Times of Edward II. we have—

'Coveytise upon bis hors he wole some be there,
And bringe the bishop silver, and rounen in his ere.'

Polit. Songs (Camd. Soc.), p. 326.

Langland, however, supposes sheriffs and sours to serve for horses, puts saddles on the sompnours, and turns provisors into palfreys.

173-175. 'As for archdeacons, &c., cause men to saddle them with silver, in order that they may permit our sin, whether it be adultery or divorces, or secret usury.'

177. Paulines pryues. It may be that pryues is here the plural adjective, agreeing with Paulines, as French adjectives not unfrequently take s in the plural. If so, the phrase means 'the confidential Paulines.' Otherwise, it must mean 'the confidential men of the Paulines' fraternity'; which comes to much the same thing. The MSS. of the A-class read Paulines peple, i.e. the people of the Paulines. Cf. note to l. 108.

185. Tome, leisure. The adjective toom means empty. Toom tabard (empty tabard) was a nickname given to the king of Scotland, John Balliol, on account of his little wit. It occurs in Burns' Halloween: 'Because he gat the toom dish thrice,' &c. In William of Palerne, l. 3778, the bodies of the slain in battle are collected and borne

'til the tentis, til thei might haue 'tom hem to berie.'

192. And, if. And is often written for an, if; and conversely, an is often written for the copulative conjunction and, as in l. 207.

196. Meynprise, furnish bail, be security for. A person arrested for debt or any other personal action might find mainprise or bail, before the sheriffs or their clerks thereunto deputed. The person finding bail was called a mainperneur, lit. a taker by the hand, by metathesis from mainpreneur. See Liber Albus, p. 177; and cf. Pass. iv. ll. 88 and 112.

200. Enykynnes yifis, gifts of any kind. Enykynnes is the genitive singular, and is also spelt enys kynnyis, or even (which is very remarkable) eny skynnyis.

203. For eny preyere, in spite of any prayer. Cf. l. 230.

211. Dotb hym to go, prepares himself to depart. The compassion shewn to Guile by merchants, and to Liar by pardoners, grocers, and friars, is a brilliant touch of satire.

213. Sbope. For pictures of London *sbope*s, see Chambers' Book of Days, i. 350.

230. For knowyng of comeres, to prevent recognition by strangers.

PASSUS III.

13. Somme, together. Also spelt some, as in Lazamon, l. 9883. The A.S. form is gesome, a plural adjective of which the singular was not used. Cf. somen, samen, together; used by Spenser in the form sam.

'For what concord han light and darke sam?'

Shepherd's Cal. May; 168.

19. Conscience caste or craft, Conscience's contrivance or art. Conscience is a feminine genitive in -e.

22. Coupes, coppis. The MSS. carefully distinguish between the spellings of these words, and for the latter some read peces. They must not then confused. The first is difficult, but I believe it to mean coops, boops, or rings. The Dutch kuiper is a cooper; kuip, a vat; but kuipen is to bind casks with hoops. We had, in the description of the Lady Meed, her fingers 'fretted with gold wire, and thereon red rubies'; so here, we have 'boops of gold,' and 'rings with rubies.' Wedgwood explains that the radical idea of coop is to bend round. About the word coppis there is no difficulty. It is equivalent to peces (see I. 89), and therefore means simply cups. Way, in the Promptorium Parolorum, quotes the following—'A pece of siluer or of metalle, crater, cratera.'—'Crater, vas vinarium, a pyece or wyne cuppe.'—'Pece, to drinke in, tasse. Pece, a cuppe, tasse, banap.' It was called pece to distinguish it from the pot or large flagon.

'A capone rosted broght she sone,
A clene klath, and brede tharone,
And a pot with riche wine,
And a pece to fil it yne.'

Ywayne and Gawin, l. 757 (Ritson's Met. Rom. i. 33).

24. Motoun. 'Ye shall vnderstande that a motoun is a coyne vsed in Fraunce and Brytayne, and is of value, after the rate of sterlyng money, vpon v s., or thereabout.'—Fabyan's Chronicles, ed. Ellis, p. 468. It was so called from its bearing an impression of a lamb; on the other side was a figure of St. John the Baptist.

25. Laughte thei leue at, they took leave of. To lacche leue, to take leave, is a common phrase. The taking of bribes seems to have been a common failing with justices at this time. Compare—

'Hoc facit pecunia Quam omnis fere curia jam duxit in uxorem;
'Sunt iusticiarii Quos favor et denarii alliciunt a jure.'

Polit. Songs (Camd. Soc.), p. 225.

In particular, ladies seem to have had great influence:

'Sed si quædam nobilis Pulcra, vel amabilis, cum capite cornuto, auro circumvoluto,

Accedat ad iudicium, Hæc expedit negotium, ore suo muto.'

See also note above, Pass. ii. 8.

Ibid. p. 226.

32. Sbal no lewðnesse lette, no ignorance shall hinder.

34. 'Where really skilful clerks will limp along behind in the rear.' See Clokke in Glossary.

35. Frere. The knowing ones went to confession to a friar rather than to a parish priest. Wycliffe complains of this, saying—'For commonlie if there be anie cursed Jurour [swearer], extortioner, or avouter [adulterer], he will not be shruen at his owne Curate, but go to a flattering Friar, that wil assoile him falsly, for a little mony by yeare, though he be not in wil to make restitution, and leaue his cursed sinne.' Two treatises against Friars, ed. James. 1608; p. 53.

45. Take bym a noble. Tyrwhitt remarks (note to Cant. Tales, 13852), that—'to take, in our old language, is also used for to take to, to give, as in l. 13334,

He take me certain gold, I wote it wel.'

Whether the noble or florin was first coined, and what was the exact value of them, seems somewhat doubtful, unless we can depend upon the statement of Fabyan quoted above, Pass. ii. 143, and upon the following statement of the same, under the year 1339,—'In this yere also the kyngge chaungyd his coyne, and made the noble & the halfe noble of the value of vi s. viii d., which at this day is worthe viii s. ix d. or x d., & the halfe noble after the rate, if they kepe the trewe weyght,' &c. There is a similar statement in A Chronicle of London, p. 57, under the 14th year of Edward III, which seems, as in Fabyan, to signify 1339 rather than 1340:—'also the kyng made the coyne of goold: that is for to seyne, the noble, the half noble, and the ferthyng.' Walsingham gives the date 1343 for the coinage of florins; but some consider the true date to be 1344. In the English Cyclopædia, under the heading Coin, we are told that—it is from Edward III that the series of English gold coins really commences, for no more occurs till 1344, when that prince struck florins. The half and quarter-florin were struck at the same time. The florin was then to go for six shillings, though now it would be intrinsically worth nineteen. This coin being inconvenient, as forming no aliquot part of larger ideal denominations, seems to have been withdrawn. None have yet been found, but a few quarter-florins are preserved in cabinets, and one half-florin is known. In consequence, in the same year, the noble was published, of 6 s. 8 d. value, forming half a mark, then the most general ideal form of money. The obverse represents the king standing on a vessel, asserting the dominion of the sea. The noble was also attended by its half and quarter. This coin, sometimes called the rose noble, together with its divisions, continued the only gold coin, till the angels of Edward IV, 1465, and the angelets or half-angels, were substituted in their place. Henry V is said to have diminished the noble, still making it go for its former value. Henry VI restored it to its size, and caused it to pass for 10 s., under the new name of ryal,' &c. Langland clearly intimates that florins were by no means scarce, and this seems at first sight to contradict that which is said above. But the fact is simply, that most of the florins were coined abroad, chiefly at Florence; and it was ordered that florins de Escu, and florins of Florence, should be current along with the sterlings, according to their value. See Ruding's Annals of the Coinage.

48. A wyndowe. A list of people who glazed windows for a new church of the Friars Minors is given in Monumenta Franciscana, p. 515. One of the names of subscribers to the expense is that of Isabella, mother of Edward III. The practice of glazing windows is satirized also by Langland's imitator in the Crede, ll. 123—128. It was usual to introduce portraits of the benefactors in stained glass.

67. Tbi kynde wille, and tbi coste; thy natural disposition, and thy expenses.

71. Or to greden after goddis men, or to cry out for God's men, i. e. to send for the friars. Nesciat sinistra, &c. Matt. vi. 3.

75. Bit, biddeth; so ritt, contracted form of rideth, Pass. iv. 13, where most MSS. have ryt or rit, and one has ridith. Mr. Wright's edition has by, a misprint for byt.

78. Pillories. Under the xvth year of Edward IV, Fabyan tells us that—'this yere this mayer [Robert Basset, salter] dyd sharpe correccion vpon bakers for makeynge of lyght brede, in so moche that he sette dysense vpon the pylory, . . . and a woman named Agnes Deyntie was also there punysshed for sellyng of false myngyd [mixed] butter.' Lydgate has a ballad about Fraudulent Millers and Bakers, whose true heritage is the pillory

(MS. Harl. 2255). Pynnyge-stoles, stools of punishment, also called cucking-stools. The cucking-stool was a seat of ignominy; see Chambers' Book of Days, i. 211. 'In Scotland, an ale-wife who exhibited bad drink to the public was put upon the Cock stule, and the ale, like such relics of John Girder's feast as were totally uneatable (see Bride of Lammermoor) was given to the poor folk.' It was different from the ducking-stool, which was a punishment for scolds. See Brand; Popular Antiquities, iii. 102 (note), and 103. Brand seems to confound the two. Cf. note to Pass. iv. 126.

81. Parcel-mele, by small parcels, i. e. retail.

83. Regraterye, selling by retail. The wholesale dealer was called an Engrosser (whence our grocer), because he sold in the gross or great piece. The retail dealer was called a Regrater or Regrateress; cf. Pass. v. 226. The frauds and adulterations of the regraters were a constant source of annoyance, and were constantly being complained of. Compare—

'Si status conspicimus, nullus excusatur:

Quod in shopis venditur, male mensuratur;

Quilibet perjurio vel fraude lucratur,' &c.

Monumenta Franciscana, ed. Brewer, p. 593.

85. Tymbred nought, would not have built.

89. Presentz. Presents made, not in money, but in silver cups, &c.

95. The quotation is not from Solomon, but from Job xv. 34:—'fire shall consume the tabernacles of bribery.'

100. The kyng. Richard II had just ascended the throne when this revision of the poem was made, but the description was originally intended for Edward III, for whom it is much more suitable. See notes to ll. 126 and 186.

126. Alluding to the deposition and death of Edward II.

137. Grotes, lit. great coins, because, until they were coined, there was no silver coin larger than the penny. Cf. Du. groet, Fr. gros. 'In this yere [1349] the kyng caused to be coyned grotes and half grotes, the whiche lacked of the weyghte of his former coyne, ii s. vi d. in a li. [libra, pound] Troy.—Fabyan, p. 461. The groat should have been equal to four silver pennies, but was only equal to about three and a half. A drawing of one may be seen in Knight's Pictorial Hist. England, i. 837.

146. Provisors. A writ summoning one to appear for contempt of the sovereign was called præmunire, from its first word. 'Numerous statutes have defined what shall be such a contempt as amounts to a præmunire. Most of the earlier are directed against provisors, as they were called, or persons who purchased from Rome provisions for holding abbeys or priories, &c., before those benefices were vacant (25 Edw. III, Stat. 5, c. 22. Stat. 6), or for exemption from obedience to their proper ordinary (2 Hen. IV, c. 3) or bulls for exemptions from tithes,' &c.—English Cyclopædia, s. v. Præmunire. Langland seems to allude to the purchase of sees in particular, as he speaks of 'these bishops,' l. 148.

157. Louedayes. Days on which extra services were rendered to the lord in seed-time or harvest were sometimes called boon-days or love-days; 'but it more commonly meant a law-day, a day set apart for a leet or manorial court, a day of final concord and reconciliation?' as we read in the Coveantys Mysteries:—

'Now is the love-day mad of us foure fynally,
Now may we leve in pes as we were wouthe.'

'Hock-day was usually set apart for a love-day, law-day, or court-leet.'—Timbs' Nooks and Corners of English Life, pp. 224, 228. [Hock-day was the second Tuesday after Easter.] Langland uses the term again, Pas. v. l. 427, and it occurs in Chaucer, Prolog., l. 258. It was so called because the object was the amicable settlement of differences.

159. The mase, &c. 'It is bewilderment for a poor man, though he plead here ever.' Some MSS. have plede instead of mote; several omit bir, which is also spelt bire, here, beer. The verb to bear is also sometimes spelt birt. Cf. l. 167.

164. Clergye most frequently means learning, as opposed to lewdnes, ignorance. It probably means so here, as bribery makes clever men covetous.

174. It is a mark of respect for Meed to address the king in the plural number, and a mark of familiarity or contempt to address Conscience in the singular. This distinction is very carefully observed by Chaucer, Langland, and the author of William of Palerne.

180. Hanged on myne balf, hung upon my side, clung to my party. The word is never here written bals [neck] in MSS. of the B-class, although, curiously enough, the Vernon MS. has nekke, probably by mistake.

183. Yit I may, &c. 'Yet I may perhaps, as far as I might have the power, honour thee with gifts.'

186. Cf. l. 126. Meed here repudiates the charge, and appeals to the king himself (Edward III.).

188. This alludes to Edward's wars in Normandy, and, in particular, to the treaty sealed at Bretigny, near Chartres, on the 8th of May, 1360. Edward renounced his claim to the crown of France, and his claim to Normandy, Anjou, Touraine, and Maine, and restored all his conquests except Calais and Guisnes; but reserved Poitou, Guienne, and the county of Ponthieu. The dauphin agreed to pay for the ransom of his father King John, the sum of 3,000,000 scutes (escus) or crowns of gold. See Lingard, iv. 118; Thomas Walsingham, i. 290; Fabyan, p. 471. The sufferings of the English in their previous retreat from Paris to Bretagne were very great, and they encountered a most dreadful tempest near Chartres, with violent wind and heavy hail. Hence the allusions in the text to the cold, to the lengthening out of winter till May, to the dim cloud, and to the famine from which the army suffered. 'It is to be noted,' says Stow, 'that the 14 day of April, and the morrow after Easter Day (1360), King Edward with his host lay before the city of Paris; which day was full dark of mist and hail, and so bitter cold, that many men died on their horsebacks with the cold; wherefore unto this day it hath been called the Black Monday.' Meed suggests that instead of exacting money, Edward should have foregone it, or even have paid some, to secure to himself the kingdom of France. The articles agreed to at Bretigny were never fulfilled.

200. Marschal. 'When the king summoned his military tenants, the earl constable and earl mareschal held the principal command under the sovereign; but in armies raised by contract, he appointed two or more mareschals, whose duty it was to array the forces and to direct their movements.'—Lingard, iv. 190.

220. The king hath mede, &c. This was a great abuse; the king sometimes accepted a fine from a delinquent who should have been brought to justice, and who thus obtained the 'king's peace.' Cf. note to Pass. iv. 73.

224. Alkynnes crafty men, skilled men (craftsmen) of every kind.

230. Here Conscience distinguishes between the two meanings of Meed, viz. (1) divine reward, shewn by God to well-doers, and (2) corruption or bribery.

233. This and the two next quotations are from Psalm xv, called Ps. xiv in the Vulgate.

236. Assoileth it, solves the question.

237. Of o colour, of one colour, pure, spotless.

240. The quotation ends—innocentem non accepit.

241. Halt, holdeth; cf. bit, biddeth, &c.

247. Ps. xxvi. 10 (xxv. 10 in the Vulgate).

252. Matt. vi. 5. Most MSS. read recipiebant.

257. Regum, the book of Kings; i. e. the first book, generally called the first book of Samuel. See I Sam. xv.

258. There is no apparent alliteration, but Langland considers v and f to answer to one another, as in Pass. ii. 60, so that veniaunce rimes to fel; whilst in the second half of the verse Saul rimes to children (sbildren).

261. See Exod. xvii. 8 for the sin of Amalek.

262, 263. Hoteth the be boxome, bids thee be obedient.

279. 'In case it should annoy men, I make no ending,' i. e. draw no conclusion.

284. Somme, to some; dat. plural.

291. His wille, the will of Truth, i. e. of God.

292. Leute, &c. 'Loyalty and no one else, shall execute the law upon him.' See Lyf in the Glossary.

293. Silke bowue, (white) silk hood. Cf. note to Prol., 210.

295. Of mysdoeres, out of misdoers, from amongst misdoers.

296. Ouer lordes lawes, superseding lords' laws.

298. With this line Pass. iii., in the A-text, abruptly terminates. The admirable addition here made was suggested, I feel confident, by the late proclamation of a jubilee, in the last year of Edward III (Feb. 1377), proclaimed because the king had attained the fiftieth year of his reign. Taking his cue from this, the poet hopes that the new reign of Richard II, then just begun, may usher in a new era of perfect peace; but, in l. 323, he suddenly prophesies that certain rather unlikely events will first happen, thus revealing his fear that no such good time was really at hand.

303. Baselardes. * Temp. Rich. II, civilians wore swords called baselards or badelaires. Example; monument of a civilian, King's Sombourne Church, Hants, 1380.—Godwin's Handbook of English Archæology, p. 261. 'The baselard was of two kinds, straight and curved . . . By Statute 12 Rich. II, c. vi, it was provided that—"null servant de husbandrie ou laborer ne servant de artificer ne de vitailleur porte desore enavant baslard, dagger, nespee [nor sword] sur forfaiture dicelle." Priests were strictly inhibited from wearing this instrument of war, but the rule was constantly broken.—Note by Peacock to Myrc's Instructions for Parish Priests (Early English Text Society). 'The frequent enactments against the wearing of weapons by civilians, &c., in the reigns of Edward III and Richard II, shew how often this law was disregarded. See Liber Albus, pp. 335, 554, 555. See also note to l. 309, below.

306. See Isaiah ii. 4, quoted in note to l. 322.
309. To hunt (not with hounds, but) with placebo means to be diligent in singing placebo, i. e. in studying the breviary. In Pass. xv, we find the author speaking of ploughing with placebo:—
 'Sire Johan and sire Geffrey · hath a girdel of silver,
 A baselard or a ballok-knyf · with botons over-gilte,
 Ac a porthors, that sholde be his plow · placebo to sigge, Hadde he nevere servico to save silver therto · seith it with ydel
 wille.'
 Piers Plowman, ed. Wright, p. 302.
- A better spelling of portbors is portous; it means a breviary. The placebo was the Office for the Dead at Vespers, which began—'Placebo domino in regione viventium' (Ps. cxvi. 9, or cxv. 9 in the Vulgate).
316. After the dede, according to the deed; cf. 'neither reward us after our iniquities' in the Litany.
322. Isaiah ii. 4: 'Et judicabit gentes, et arguet populos multos: et confiabunt gladios suos in vomeres, et lanceas suas in falces: non levabit gens contra gentem gladium, nec exercebuntur ultra ad prælium.'
323. Fanciful prophecies were then in vogue; see those of John of Bridlington, in Political Poems, ed. Wright, vol. i. Langland has another similar one at the end of Pass. vi. This present one merely vaguely hints at a final time when Jews and Mahometans shall be converted.
327. Prov. xxii. 1.
330. The quotation is not from the book of Wisdom, but from Prov. xxii. 9. Meed quotes only half of it, for which Conscience reproves her, and quotes the rest, l. 345. The full verse is—'Victoriam et honorem acquirit qui dat munera; animam autem auferit accipientia.'
333. I leue wel, I well believe, I fully grant.
334. The lady read but half the text. It is—'Omnia autem probate, quod bonum est tenete.' I Thess. v. 21.
342. Were gode, would be good.
344. Secbe sapience eft, refer to the book of Wisdom [Proverbs] again.
349. Sonde, gift. Conscience here adds the rest of the quotation, which Meed, less accurately, had omitted.

PASSUS IV.

5. But reson rede me, unless Reason advise me.
17. Tomme trewe-tonge; mentioned before, Pass. iii. 320.
18. Lesyng, leasing, lying, an idle tale to laugh at—
 'Trotels sal i yow nane tell,
 Ne lesinges forto ger [make] yow lagh.'
 Ywayne and Gawin (Ritson's Met. Rom.), l. 150.
19. Reason tells his servant Cato (so named, probably, from Dionysius Cato, whom our author often quotes) to put a saddle upon Patience, and to restrain Patience further by means of girths and a heavy bridle, as he will be sure to shew signs of impatience before long. To make webe is to make a neighing sound, to neigh, webe being an imitation of that sound. In the Avenbite of Inwyt (ed. Morris, 1868, p. 204) is a similar passage. 'Thanne the bodiliche wyttes byeth ase thet hors thet yerth wyth-oute bridle 200 to bit deth falle his lhord, Ac the herte chaste ham of halt mid the bridle skele; i. e. then the bodily wits are as the horse that runneth without bridle, so that it causes its lord to fall. But the chaste heart restrains them with the bridle of reason.

25. Whiche, what sort of, what kind of; a common meaning of whiche.

31-41. These lines are not in the earliest version (A-text).

34. There as, where where. Contricio, &c. This quotation and the next are from Ps. xiv. 7 (xiii. 3, Vulgate):—'Contricio et infelicitas in viscerum, et viam pacis non cognoverunt: non est timor Dei ante oculos eorum.'

45. His sone, Edward the Black Prince, a great favourite with the people. He did not leave England to take possession of Aquitaine till Feb. 2, 1363. Langland having once inserted this in the earliest version of his poem, does not seem to have thought it worth while to alter it, as he retains the expression his sone even in his latest version (C-text). Cf. note to l. 173.

47. Put forþ a bille; in the Vernon MS., put up a bille, which is the more usual expression, as in Fabyan's Chronicles [1410-11]:—'The commons of this lande put up a bylle vnto the kyng,' &c.

48. Wronge is a representative of the oppressive tribe known as the king's purveyors. The peasantry often complained of them bitterly, accusing them of taking things by violence; see the next note. In the poem of King Edward and the Shepherd (printed by Hartshorne in his Ancient Metrical Tales) is the following:—

'I hade catell, now have I non;
Thay take my bestis, and don thaim slon,
And payen but a stick of tre . . .
Thai take geese, capons, and henne,
And alle that ever thei may with renne,
And reves us our catell . . .
Thei toke my hennes and my geese,
And my schepe with all the fleese,
And ladde them forth away.'

So in Political Songs (Camd. Soc. 1839), p. 186—

'Est vitii signum pro victu solvere lignum.'

So in God spede the Plough, printed at the end of Pierce the Ploughman's Crede, ed. Skeat, 1867, p. 70:—

'The kyngis puruiours also they come,
To haue whete and oys at the kyngis nede;
And over that befe and Mutton,
And butter and pulleyn [poultry], so God me spede!
And to the kyngis court we moste it lede,
And our payment shalbe a styk of A bough;
And yet we moste speke faire for drede—
I praye to God, spede wele the plough!'

58. And takeib me, &c.; and gives me a tally (and nothing else) for ten quarters of oats. The statements in the last note were often true in two senses; the (peasants) were paid (1) by a wooden tally, and (2) by a beating, as Langland says in the next line. An exchequer tally was an account of a sum lent to the Government. The tally itself was a rod of hazel, with notches on it to indicate the sum lent. It was not easy to realize this sum afterwards.

72. But if Mede, &c.; unless Meed arrange matters for you, thy rais fortune is aloft. Myschief means, in Old English, mishap, ill-luck. Vppe is here an adverb, on high, aloft, in the ascendant.

73. Lyth in bis grace. Offenders convicted of great crimes were put in the king's grace, who could hang them and confiscate their property, unless he were pleased to shew mercy. Sometimes he was satisfied with exacting a heavy fine; see ll. 88, 89.

109. But lounesse hym borwe, unless Submission go bail for him.

112. Moste be, might be. Meynpernour; see note to l. 196 of Pass. ii.

115. Harlotrye, ribaldry, buffoonery, jester's tales.

116. Pernelle or Peronelle (from Petronilla) was a proverbial name for a gaily dressed bold-faced woman; it would be long before she put away her finery in a box. May 31 was dedicated to S. Petronilla the Virgin. She was supposed to be able to cure the quartan ague; Chambers' Book of Days, ii. 389. Hucbe, a clothes-box; see Our English Home, p. 101.

117. And childryn, &c.; and the cherishing of children be, that they be chastised with rods. To cherish is to cocker, spoil. Childryn is the genitive plural, like clerken, in l. 119.

118. Harlotes, ribalds, jesters, buffoons; it is applied to both sexes, but much more commonly to males in Early English. The phrase be bolden for an byne has not been explained; but see Hyne in the Glossary. The Harleian MS. 875 reads—be preised ful bigbe.

120. And religious romares, &c.; and pilgrims stay at home and sing recordare in their cloisters. Recordare is the first word of a mass for avoiding sudden death, appointed by Pope Clement at Avignon, and the recital of which secured to the hearers 260 days' indulgence. This is best shewn by the following rubric from the Sarum Missal, 1532; fol. liij. 'Missa pro mortalitate evitanda, quam dominus papa clemens fecit et constituit in collegio, cum omnibus cardinalibus; et concessit omnibus penitentibus vere contritis et confessis sequentem missam audientibus .cclx. dies indulgentie. Et omnes audientes sequentem missam debent portare in manu vnam candelam ardentem dum missam audiunt per quinque dies sequentes; et tenere eam in manu per totam missam genibus flexis; et eis mors subitanea nocere non poterit; et hoc est certum et approbatum in auinione et in partibus circumuicinis.' Then follows—'Officium. Recordare, domine, testamenti tui, et dic angelo percutienti, cesser jam manus tua: vt non desoletur terra: et ne perdas omnem animam viuam' &c.

By Clement must be meant Clement V, who removed the papal see to Avignon in 1309, and died in 1314. It was he who first made public sale of indulgences in 1313, and whose decretals and constitutions, known as the Clementines, were collected and published in 1308.

121. Saint Benedict, founder of the Benedictine order of monks, was born about A.D. 480, and died about A.D. 542. Saint Bernard, of Cistercium or Citeaux, near Chalons, better known as S. Bernard of Clairvaux, founded the order of Cistercians or Bernardines; he was born A.D. 1091, died 1153. St. Francis of Assisi, founder of the Franciscan order of friars or Friars Minorites, was born 1182, died 1226.

124. 'Till bishops' horses be turned into beggars' chambers;' i.e. till the money spent by bishops on horses go to furnish rooms for beggars.

126. There I shal assigne, where I (Reason) shall ordain. There is no need to go to Gallicia. Compare—

'But, bi seint Jame of Galice, that many man hath souht,
The pilory and the cucking-stol beth i-mad for nouht.'

Political Songs (Camden Soc.), p. 345.

In the C-text, Reason does assign places to find S. James in; viz. prisons, poor cottages, and sick-rooms.

128. Rome-runners, runners to Rome. 'And all Rome-runners bear no silver over sea that bears the image of the king, for the sake of enriching robbers that dwell beyond sea.' Part of the procurator's oath to the English king was—'that he would not send money out of the kingdom without the royal license.'—Lingard, iv. 205. In 1376, the commons presented a petition to the king, stating that the taxes paid yearly by them to the pope amounted to five times the royal revenue. 'In the reign of Henry III, the Italians who were benefited here, drew from England more than thrice the amount of the king's revenues, fleecing, by means of priests, who were aliens also, the flock which they never fed.'—Southey; Book of the Church, p. 187 (6th ed., 1848). Fabyan says that in 1365, Peter's pence were commanded to be no more gathered, but he adds—'neuertheless at this present tyme [Henry VII.] they be gaderyd in sondry shires of Englande'; p. 477.

143. 'For the man named nullum malum met with one called inpunitum,' &c. This is merely a way of introducing the words in italics.

145. Construe this ungloused, interpret this without a commentary.

149-156. Not in the earliest version.

156. I falle in, I fall amongst, I meet with. Warin Wisdom used to find a florin, and suddenly find himself unable to plead.

173-182. Not in the earliest version. Observe that in l. 177 is the phrase—if I reign any while. This is an obvious allusion to the very recent accession of Richard II, as is also the story of belling the cat in the Prologue. The B-text seems to have been written in 1377, whereas the A-text (which omits the phrase if I reign any while) has always (rightly) been supposed to belong to the year 1362, when Edward was already in the thirty-sixth year of his long reign.

189. Be my conseil comen, when my council is come. The Trinity MS. has By my conseil commune, by my common council; which is certainly a corrupt reading.

PASSUS V.

3. Then waked I. Here the first vision ends, viz. that of the Field Full of Folk, Holy Church, and Lady Meed. In l. 8, the second vision begins, and may be called the Vision of the Seven Deadly Sins, and of Piers the Plowman. This vision begins with a view of the field before spoken of, whilst Reason preaches a sermon to the folk there collected.

13. Thise pestilences. There were three (some reckon four) terrible pestilences at this period, which were long remembered, and which proved such scourges that the land was left partly untilled, so that severe famine ensued. They took place in 1348 and 1349, 1361 and 1362, and 1369; a fourth was in 1375 and 1376. The two first are here alluded to. The first of these is computed to have begun at various dates. Mr. Wright gives an extract from one of the Cotton MSS., and says that it began May 31, 1348. Lingard says that it reached Dorchester in August, and London in September, 1348.

Fabyan says it began in August, 1348. Sir H. Nicolas, in The Chronology of History, p. 345, says May 31, 1349, which is surely the wrong year. It terminated on the 29th September, 1349. This was the plague called the black death, and which occasioned Boccaccio's Decamerone. The second pestilence is the one to which Langland more immediately alludes. It lasted from August 15, 1361, to May 3, 1362. Some records are dated from the times of these plagues.

14. Southwest wynde. Tyrwhitt first pointed out that this is an allusion to the violent tempest of wind on Jan. 15, 1362, which was a Saturday. He refers to the mention of it by Thorn, Decem Script. col. 2122; by Walsingham (see Riley's edition, vol. i. p. 296); and by the Continuator of Adam Murimuth, p. 115. The last notice is the most exact. 'A.D. m.ccc.lxii, xv die Januarii, circa horam vesperearum, ventus vehemens notus Australis Africus tantâ rabie erupit,' &c. Walsingham calls it notbus Auster Africus. It is alluded to by many other chroniclers also. Fabyan says, p. 475—'In this xxxvii yere, vpon the daye of seynt Mauryce, or the xv daye of Januarii, blew so exceedyng a wynde that the lyke therof was nat seen many years passed. This began about euynsong tyme in the South,' &c. He says it lasted for five days. We find the same notice again in A Chronicle of London, p. 65, where it is said to have taken place, in the year 1361, on 'seynt Maurys day.' This means the same year (viz. 1361-2), which was called 1361 during the months of January and February, and 1362 afterwards; according to the old reckoning. Fabyan wrongly calls it the day of St. Maurice; the 15th of Jan. is the day of St. Maur, a disciple of St. Bennet. It is noticed again in Hardyng's Chronicles, ed. Ellis, 1812, p. 330. Blomefield tells us that it blew down the spire of Norwich Cathedral. It will be observed that the second great pestilence was prevailing at the time.

24, 25. Cf. Prolog. 22, and the latter part of Pass. vi.

26, 27. Cf. note to Pass. iv. 116, and see l. 63 below.

28. Thomme Stouue, &c. A difficult passage. Whitaker has Stone and wynen, and explains it—'He taught Thom. Stone to take two sticks, and fetch home Felice, his spouse, from drinking wine.' This does not explain pyne. The MSS. have Stouue, stouue, Stowe, of stouue; in the unprinted Trinity MS. the other word is clearly wyuene. Like kyngene, clerken, it is a genitive plural, and as pyne invariably means punishment, wyuene pyne is only one more allusion to the women's punishment, the cucking-stool. I suppose the sentence to mean that Tom Stowe, who had neglected his wife and let her get into bad ways, or who had allowed her to be punished as a scold, had much better fetch her home than leave her exposed to public derision. Such an errand would require a strong arm, and two staves would be very useful in dispersing the crowd. I do not think it is meant that he is to beat her, for then one would have sufficed; nor would Reason give such bad advice.

30. Watt, the contraction of Water, which was another form of Walter, and by no means uncommon.

31. Hire bed. Nothing so invited satire as the head-dresses of the females. Chaucer makes the wife of Bath's to have weighed ten pounds! The hair was generally enveloped in a caul of network of gold, which fitted close to both sides of the face. Thus, in the Crede, we read of 'great-headed queens, with gold by the eyes,' l. 84.

33. Betoun, evidently Bette's daughter. Cf. l. 306.

36-41. These lines are not in the A-text. At the time when they were added, both the third and fourth pestilences, viz. of 1369 and 1375, had taken place. Hence there was additional reason to fear that the anxiety to rear children would lead to excessive indulgence to them.

37. The leuere childe, &c.; to the dearer child, the more teaching is necessary. This was a common proverb, as pointed out by Mr. Wright, and is found in the proverbs of Hending, written about 1300—'Luef child lore bybovetb, Quoth Hending.' See Morris's Specimen's of Early English, p. 97; or Reliq. Antiq. i. p. 110. So in the poem called How the Goodwife Taught her Daughter—

'And jif thou loue thin childryn, loke thou holde hem lowe;
 3if any of hem do amys, curse hem nought ne blowe,
 But take a smerte rodde, and bete hem alle by rowe,
 Til thei crye mercy, and be here gylte aknowe.'

Hazlitt's Early Pop. Poetry, vol. i. p. 191.

The original source is Prov. xiii. 24.—'Qui parcit virgæ, odit filium suum; qui autem diligit illum, instanter erudit.'

43. That ye prechen, that which ye preach. Cf. Pass. iv. 122.

49-56. Not in the A-text. Added, probably, in 1377, as a hint to the new king. In the latest version (C-text), he further adds some advice to the commons, not to quarrel amongst themselves. He also, in that version, lengthens out his advice to the pope; but the advice to the judges he omits.

56. Quoted from Matt. xxv. 12.

58. Seynt treutbe, i. e. the Truth of the Divine Nature, formerly spoken of as being God the Father, but here spoken of as being the Holy Ghost. MS. Harl. 3954 makes Piers Plowman equivalent to Christ, and its last Passus ends thus—'Explicit tractus de perys plowman . . . qui cum patre et spiritu sancto vivit et regnat per omnia sæcula sæculorum. Amen.' If for spiritu sancto we substitute filio, we have the true Latin ending of Reason's sermon in full. To it, however, the preacher adds a pious wish for the welfare of those who follow his advice. Compare—

'And whan this frere had sayd al his entent,
 With qui cum patre forth his way he went.'

Chaucer, Somp. Tale, 25.

61. 'Then ran Repentance, and repeated Reason's theme, and made Will weep water with his eyes.' Will means the author himself, who calls himself Will in many other places, in the same off-hand manner.

62. Superbia. One of the commonest of subjects in old authors is to talk of the Seven Deadly Sins. See Chaucer's Persones Tale, passim; an anonymous poem called 'Gyf me lysens to lyue in Ease,' and a poem of The Mirror of the Periods of Man's Life, both edited for the Early English Text Society by Mr. Furnivall, the first in Political, Religious, and Love Poems, p. 215; the second in Hymns to the Virgin and Christ, p. 58. In these, the opposites of the sins are given, as here enumerated. (1) Superbia, Pride; opposed to Humilitas, Humility. (2) Luxuria, Lechery; Castitas, Chastity. (3) Invidia, Envy; Caritas, Love. (4) Irâ, Anger; Patientia, Patience. (5) Avaritia, Covetise or Covetousness; Eleemosyna, Largeness or Bounty. (6) Gula, Gluttony; Abstinencia, Abstinence, Measure, or Moderation. (7) Accidia, Sloth; Vigilantia, Business. Of all these, Pride is the chief, and the root and spring of the rest. It is expressed in Shakespeare by ambition :—

'Cromwell, I charge thee, fling away ambition;
 By that sin fell the angels.' Henry VIII, iii. 2.

Cf. note to Pass. i. 105. It is singular that it is the only vice which Langland personifies by a female. He doubtless does so with particular reference to extravagance in dress, to repress which a special Statute was passed in 1363. See Lingard iv. 91 (note). In the C-text, however, is a long additional passage, in which the confession of Peronel Proud-heart is supplemented by that of a male example of Pride. In Pass. xix, Pride is made leader of the Vices, who attack the Church of Unity.

72. Luxuria. In all the versions of his poem, Langland purposely curtails his description of this vice. His chief warning is against getting drunk upon a Saturday, when work was over sooner than on other days, as it was the eve of Sunday. To drink with the duck (l. 75) is to drink water, as a duck does.

76. Invidia. The reader should compare the descriptions in Langland with those in Dunbar's Dance of the Seven Deadly Sins, and in Spenser's Faerie Queene, bk. i. canto iv. stanzas 8-35.

77. Mea culpa. The form of confession contained the words—'Peccavi nimis cogitatione, locutione, et opere; mea culpa.' See Procter on the Common Prayer, p. 193.

89. Bakbitynge. In the Rolls of Parliament, at the opening of the Parliament of 2 Richard II, in the year 1378, we find—'Qi sont appellez Bacbyters, sont auxi come chiens qi mangeont les chars crues,' &c. See Jesse's Anecdotes of the British Dog, v. 2. p. 94.

92. Gybbe, short for Gilbert; whence Gibbs and Gibson. A Gib-cat means a male-cat; we now say a Tom-cat. See Gib-cat in Nares.

94. Ennuyed, annoyed; the Trinity MS. has anoyed. It is not ennuyed, envied, for this would spoil the alliteration. Three MSS. have ennuyed, but they are wrong.

108. Bolle. The 'bowl' and the 'broken (i. e. torn or ragged) sheet' were things of no value, but Envy could not refrain from cursing the thief. The bowl was probably a large wooden one, used to contain scraps of broken victuals. It was sometimes large enough to contain a baby.

'And at the londes ende laye a litell erom-bolle,

And thereon lay a litell childe lapped in cloutes.' Crede, l. 437.

110. The early version has—

'How Heyne hap a new cote and his wyf anoþer.'

The coat was an article of female as well as of male attire, but the word is much more often used in the latter sense, to which it is now restricted. Cf. Solomon's Song, v. 3.

112. Of, at. That liketh, that pleases.

114. And deme, &c. 'And judge that they do ill, where I do far worse.'

127. I am sorry, &c. Surely a most clever rejoinder.

129-187. Not in the earliest version. Observe that Langland now introduces the words dwelling in London.

130. And gert, 'And caused detraction to be made by means of a broker, to find fault with other men's ware.' That is, he employed brokers to depreciate his neighbours' goods. Be is the preposition by. The oath of the brokers, given at p. 273 of the Liber Albus, obliged them not to be themselves dealers in the merchandize in which they were brokers, nor to make any bargain unless they bring buyer and seller together, and lawfully witness the sale.

134. Ira. Curiously enough, Langland entirely omitted this vice in his earliest version. Seeing his mistake, he elaborated the character with great care. He makes Wrath to have been a friar, the nephew of an abbess; he was first employed as gardener to the convent, and afterwards as cook in the kitchen. Langland doubtless refers to the terrible wrath then displayed by the secular clergy against the friars, and by the friars against them, and even by one order of friars against another. Compare the description of Ire in Chaucer, Somp. Tale, 299.

138-150. A slightly difficult, but important passage. It means—'I (continually) grafted lying tales upon limitors and lectors, till they bare leaves of servile speech, to flatter lords with, and afterwards they blossomed abroad in (my lady's) bower, to hear confessions. And now there is fallen therefrom a fruit, that folk have much rather shew their schrifts to ibem, than shrive themselves to their own parsons. And now that the parsons have found out that friars share (the profits of confession) with them, these possessioners preach (to the people) and calumniate the friars; and the friars (on the other hand) find ibem to be in fault, as people bear witness, (and say) that when they preach to the people, in many places about (it will be found), that I, i. e. Wrath, go with them, and teach them out of my books. Thus both parties talk about spiritual power, so that each despises the other, till either they are both beggars, and live by the spiritual authority which I give them; or else they are all rich, and ride about (like rich people). I Wrath never rest from following about this wicked folk—for such is my grace.' Wrath here insinuates that the quarrel generally terminates in one of two ways; either the secular clergy turn beggars like the friars, or the friars obtain wealth enough to buy horses like the secular clergy. The quarrel was, as to which should hear confessions.

138. Limitours were members of a convent to whom a certain limited district was assigned to beg in, in order that, each mendicant having a certain round to make, no family might be left unsolicited. Bread, bacon, cheese, logs of wood, &c., were often ready for the limitour when he called. See Massingberd's Eng. Reformation, p. 110; and Chaucer, ProL., l. 209; and Somp. Tale, l. 3. Listres are lectors. This is ascertained by the following entry in the Promptorium Parvulorum, A.D. 1440. 'Lyysterre [various readings lystyr, lystore, listyr] Lector.' The editor, Mr. Way, says this is 'the reader, who occupied the second place in the holy orders of the Church.' By second place is meant second in ascending order. The seven orders, excluding the bishop, were the ostiary (door-keeper), lector, exorcist, acolyth, sub-deacon, deacon, and presbyter. Some MSS. have legistres, but this would mean lawyers and would be out of place; cf. Pass. vii. 14. Mr. Wright guessed listres to mean deceivers, from A.S. list, deceit. Lye translates the A.S. lyster by the Latin fautor, one who favours or flatters. Lister as a proper name is quite a different word, being corrupted from listier, a dyer.

144. Possessioneres; see Chaucer's Sompnours Tale, l. 14. Tyrwhitt says—'An invidious name for such religious communities as were endowed with lands. The Mendicant orders professed to live entirely upon alms.' Mr. Wright says—'the regular orders of monks, who possessed landed property and enjoyed rich revenues,' &c. But it is clear that, in the present passage, a possessioner means one of the beneficed clergy, as the word persones is used as an equivalent. And it is worth remarking, that this same explanation will suit the context in Chaucer's Sompnoures Tale much better than if we suppose monks to be intended. Observe, for instance, l. 19:—

'Nought for to hold a prest jolif and gay;'

and, farther on, the friar says,—

'These curates ben ful negligent and slowe;'

'This every lewed vicory or parsoun

Can say, how ire engendreth homicide,' &c.

Nothing can give us so clear an idea of a friar as the commencement of this tale of Chaucer's.

154. Hir were leuere, &c. 'She had rather swoon or die,' &c. Lit. 'it were liefer to her.'

162. I-made is the past tense, which is sometimes, but not often, found with this prefix. Two MSS. read made. The sense of the line is—I fed them with wicked words; lit. I prepared their vegetables with wicked words. There is a sort of play upon words and worts.

163. Tbow lixte, thou liest. Cf. Crede, 542.

165. Her eyther, each of them. Olber, the other.

166. Seynt Gregorie. 'It appears that some Abbesses did at one time attempt to hear the confessions of their Nuns, and to exercise some other smaller parts of the clerical function; but this practice, I apprehend, was soon stopped by Gregory IX, who has forbidden it in the strongest terms.—Decretal. l. v. tit. 38. c. x.' Tyrwhitt, Introductio to Cant. Tales, note 7. Tyrwhitt gives the Latin text of the Decretal.

167. Were preste, should be a priest; i. e. should hear confessions.

168. Infamis; so in the MSS. It is put for the nom. plural.

186, 187. Me and my are evident blunders; but they seem to have emanated from Langland himself, as the 6 best MSS. all have this reading. It would seem also that Langland afterwards himself perceived and corrected the blunder, for in Whitaker's edition (printed from a MS. of the C-class) we find hym not me, in both places, and bus (= his) instead of my.

189. Skelton has the same name for a covetous man—

'And Haruy Hafter, that well coude picke a male.'

Skelton (ed. Dyce), i. 35.

194. Of=by. 'His beard was beslobbered, as a bondman's is by bacon.'

203. A leef o'ber tweyne, a leaf or two. Avarice talks of his first lesson in the next line, and of learning his Donat in l. 209. So here, still keeping up the metaphor of reading a book, he learns to lie for a leaf or two, as much, that is, as would fill a couple of leaves. All ambiguity is removed by a passage in the Deposition of Richard II, where the poet [Langland himself, as I firmly believe] says that his poem will do the king good if he will lock over a leaf or two of it:—'3if him list to loke: a leef o'ber tweyne;' l. 37.

205. Wy, Weyhill in Hampshire, as conjectured by Warton, in a note too long to quote entire; see Hist. Eng. Poetry, ii. 55, ed 1840. Weyhill fair is still a most famous one to this day, and lasts eight days. The fair for horses and sheep is on Oct. 10; that for cheese, hops, and general wares, on Oct. 11, and the six days following. Warton says—'One of the chief of them [the fairs] seems to have been that of St. Giles's hill or down near Winchester, to which our poet here refers. . . . In the fair, several streets were formed, assigned to the sale of different commodities; and called the Drapery, the Pottery, the Spicery,' &c. Fairs long continued to be the principal man-for purchasing necessities in large quantities. Winchester fair is mentioned temp. Edw. I; see Liber Albus, p. 201.

209. Donet, primer. 'Properly a Grammar, from Ælius Donatus, the Grammarian . . . Among the books written by bishop Pecock, there is the Donat into Christian religion, and the Follower to the Donat.'—Warton's Hist. Eng. Poet. ii. 56.

210. In 1353, statutes were passed regulating the length and breadth of cloth.—Thom. Walsingham, ed. Riley, i. 277.

211. Rayes, striped cloths. Ray means properly a ray, streak, stripe; but it was commonly used in the above sense. It was enacted—'that cloths of ray shall be 28 ells in length, measured by the list [edge], and 5 quarters in width.'—Liber Albus, p. 631. 'A long gown of raye' occurs in Lydgate's London Lyckpeny.

212. To brocbe, &c.;—'To pierce them with a packing-needle, and fasten them together; and then I put them in a press, and penned them fast in it,' &c.

215. Webbe, properly a male weaver, webster being the feminine; but the rule is not always observed. Observe stynnesteres, i.e. female spinners, in the next line.

217. Ac ibe pounde, &c. She paid the people whom she employed by the pound, and used too heavy a weight; thus cheating them of their dues.

218. Auncere, a Danish steelyard; see the Glossary. In A.D. 1356, we find 'one balance, called an auncere,' valued at 12*d.*; and 2 balances, called aunceres,' valued at 6*s.* See Riley's Memorials of London, p. 283.

220. Peny ale is common ale, thin ale, as is certain from its being spoken of as a most meagre drink, suitable for strict-living friars, in Pass. xv. Podyng-ale (pudding-ale in Trin. MS.) was probably named from its being thick like pudding. Thus in Pass. xix., a fraudulent brewer boasts of drawing thick ale and thin ale out of one hole in a cask. No doubt the penny ale was a penny a gallon, since the best ale was 4*d.* See l. 224.

221. Hymselue (not bemselue, observe) refers to the ale. This is clear from the next line, and the consideration that the use of hym for it was common. The MS. from which Crowley printed actually had itselfe.

225. In cupmel, by cups at a time. She knew better than to measure it in a gallon measure.

227. Hokkerye, i.e. the retail trade. A buckster was one who retailed ale, &c. from door to door. 'Item, that no brewer or brewster sell any manner of ale unto any buckster,' &c.—Liber Albus, p. 312.

230. Walsyngbam. See note to Prol., l. 54.

231. Rode of Bromebolme, cross of Bromholm in Norfolk. In A Chronicle of London, p. 10, we find that in 1224 [rather 1223 or 1222], 'the emperour Baldewyn, which whanne he wente to bataile to fyghte with Godes enemyes, he hadde a croos boren before hym, whiche crosse seynt Eleyne made of the crosse that Cryst deyde upon; and there was an Englyssh prest that tyme with hym that was called Sir Hughe, and he was borne in Norfolk, the whiche prest broughte the same crosse to Bromholm in Norfolk.' Mr. Wright refers to Matthew Paris (p. 268). He adds—'In the MS. Chronicle of Barthol. de Cotton, it is recorded at the date 1223—Eo tempore Peregrinatio de Bromholm inceptit.' Hence Avarice could visit Our Lady of Walsingham, and the piece of the true cross at Bromholm in one journey, and pray to be brought out of debt by having his cheating tricks forgiven him. The story of the finding of the True Cross by Helen, mother of Constantine, is well known. There is a drama on the subject by Metastasio, called Sant' Elena. Cf. Chaucer, Reves Tale, 366; Pardoneres Tale, 489.

232—303. Not in the A-text, and considerably varied in the C-text.

238. He pretends that he thought restitution was the French for robbery. Norfolk is evidently considered as one of the least refined parts of the island, being in an out-of-the-way corner. The common proverb—'Jack would be a gentleman if he could speak French'—shews that the common people had much difficulty in learning it. Trevisa fixes the date 1385 as the year, just before which children began to learn to translate Latin into English instead of French, as formerly. See Warton, Hist. Eng. Poetry, i. 5.

240. Vsure, usury. 'All usury was prohibited as a sin by the Canon Law.'—Southey; Book of the Church, p. 187.

242. Lumbardes and Jewes. 'A set of Lombards established themselves here, in connexion with the legates, to advance money upon all sums due to the Pope, for which they exacted the most exorbitant usury,' &c.—Southey, as above. Cf. Chaucer, Schipm. Tale, l. 367. The Jews were constantly accused of being the offenders, whenever clipped coin was found, which was very often. Thus in the 7th year of Edward I, 'the viii day of seynt Martyn, alle the Jewes of Engeland were taken for clippyng of money.'—A Chron. of London, p. 28.

244. And lene it, &c.; 'and to lend it for love of the cross, to appoint a pledge and get rid of the light coin,' in which case it refers to the coin; or else, 'and to lend it for love of the cross, (for the borrower) to give me a pledge and lose it,' where it is the pledge. I think the latter is the meaning, though the change of the subject of the sentence is awkward. Sir John Maundeveile says that a King of France bought the crown of thorns, sweat, and one of the nails used at the Crucifixion, from the Jews, 'to whom the Emperour had leyde hem to wedde, for a gret summe of sylvre.' For love of the cross is a clever pun, as cross refers frequently to the cross on the back of old coins, and was a slang name for a coin, as in Shakespeare. Cross-and-pile is the old name for beads and tails. It is clear enough what Avarice did: he first clipped coins and then lent them, taking a pledge which he hoped would not be redeemed. The reading of the C-text helps us out; it is—

'And lente for loue of the wed' the whiche I lette bettere

And more worth than the moneize,' &c. MS. Cott. Vesp. B. 16.

I lette bettere = I set more store by.

246. Compare—'Jucundus homo qui miseretur et commodat, disponet sermones suos in judicio.' Ps. cxii. 5 (cxi. 5 Vulgate). Avarice obtained more manors through his customers being in arrears of payment, than he could have obtained by practising liberality. Maneres is spelt manoirs in the Trinity MS.

249. In an ordinance against usurers (38 Edw. III) we find that certain persons exerted themselves to maintain usury—'which kind of contract, the more subtly to deceive the people, they call exchange or cbevisance, whereas it might more truly be called mescheauce (wickedness).'—Liber Albus, p. 319.

261. 'As courteous as a dog in a kitchen.' This alludes to an old ironical proverb, which appears in French in the form—'Chen en cosyu [cuisine] compaignie ne desire,'—in Latin in the form—'Dum canis os rodit, socius pluribus odit.'—and in Old English—'Wil the hund gnash bon, i-ferre neld he non;' i. e. While the hound gnaws a bone, companions would he none. See Wright's Essays, i. 149.

263. Lene . . the grace, lend thee grace. The word is here lene, not leue, as it is transitive,

272. And, if. Line 273 is from the Cambridge MS.

283. Ps. li. (l. in Vulgate) is called Miserere mei Deus from the first words in it. In verse 6 (8 in Vulgate) we find—'Ecce enim veritatem dilexisti : incerta et occulta sapientie tue manifestasti mihi.'

286. Ps. xviii. 25 (xvii. 26, V). 'Cum sancto sanctus eris, et cum viro innocente innocens eris.'

289. The Latin quotation is omitted in some MSS. It is not quite exact. 'Suavis Dominus univrsis : et miserationes ejus super omnia opera ejus.' Ps. cxliv. 9, Vulgate.

291. There is a parallel passage in Hampole's Pricke of Conscience, l. 6311-6319:—

'For the mercy of God es swa mykel here,

And reches over alle, bathe far and nere,

That alle the syn that a man may do,

It myght sleken, and mare thar-to.

And thar-for says Saynt Austyn thus,

A gude worde that may comfort us :

Sicut scintilla ignis in medio maris, ita omnis impietas viri ad misericordiam Dei.

"Als a litel spark of fire," says he,

"In mydward the mykel se,

Right swa alle a mans wykkednes

Un-to the mercy of God es." (Ed. Morris, p. 171.)

The nearest passage to this which I have yet found is the following:—

'Tanquam unda misericordie peccati ignis exstinguitur.'

S. August. in Ps. cxliv. 8 (Vulgate).

293. To gete the with a wastel, to get thee a cake with. See note to ii. 31.

303. Lent you of oure lordes good, lent you, of our Lord's wealth; i. e. spiritual strength.

312. Piones, seeds of the pæony. They were used as a medicine, but sometimes also as a spice, as here. See note in Liber Albus, p. 197.

313. Fastyng dayes. We learn from l. 367 that the circumstances here described took place on a Friday, a fitting day for Glutton to go to church and confess. Cf. also ll. 381, 384, 389, 416. Cesse, Cis, Cecilia. The scene here described with such vivid dramatic power took place, it is evident, in some large ale-house in London, not very far from Cock Lane, Smithfield (l. 319), from Cheapside (l. 322), and from Garlickhithe (l. 324). It was also probably very near a churcb (l. 319). It is a very curious fact, that there is absolutely no reason why the 'Boar's Head,' in Easteheap, immortalized by Shakespeare, should not have been the very tavern here meant. The Boar's Head is mentioned in a will of the date of Richard II, it boasted to be 'the chief tavern in London,' and (which is very curious) its back-windows looked out on to the burial ground of St. Michael's, a church which is now pulled down, but which gave its name to St. Michael's Lane. The will above mentioned further shews that 'the tenement called the Boar's Head' was given to a college of priests, founded by Sir William Walworth in St. Michael's Church. This is, I believe, the true reason for the name of 'the church' not being given. More than this, Langland lived at one time in Cornhill, which is close by. Glutton may be considered as the Sir John Falstaff of the scene.

319. Women of ill repute might be put in the pillory; and if so, they were afterwards to be led 'through Chepe and Newgate, to Cokkeslane, there to take up their abode.'—Liber Albus, p. 395. Cock Lane, West Smithfield, is now, I believe, pulled down. The church may have been St. Michael's; see note above. If not, it may have been St. Peter's in Cornhill; see note to l. 328. In the C-text, Langland adds to the company some pick-purses, and the hangman of Tyburn.

321. Flaunders. There were many Flemish women, mostly residing in Cock Lane.

322. Rakyer of Chepe, a scavenger of West Cheap, or Cheapside. The word rakyer, evidently meaning a raker or street-sweeper, occurs in a Proclamation made in the 31st year of Edw. III. See Riley's Memorials of London, p. 299, and Liber Albus, p. 289.

324. Garlekhithe is near Vintry Ward. Stow says—'There is the parish church of St. James, called at Garlick hithe, or Garlick hive; for that of old time, on the bank of the river Thames, near to this church, garlick was usually sold.'—Survey of London, ed. 1842, p. 93. The next landing-place, westward, is Queen Hithe.

324. It has been suggested that Griffin is an allusion to the Griffin (Griffin to the vulgar eye, though Cockatrice in the Heralds' office), which was emblazoned on the ancient shield of the principality of Wales.—Notes and Queries, 3rd S. xii. 513. The Harleian MS. 875 has Gruffith, i. e. Griffith, a common Welsh name.

328. Atte new faire, at the new fair. I am told there is a reference here to an old game called handicapping. It seems that Hikke chose Bette to be his deputy. Then Bette and one appointed by Clement tried to make a bargain, but could not settle it till Robyn was called in as umpire. By his decision Clement and Hikke had to abide. But it is clear, from Riley's Memorials of London, that 'The neue Feyre' was another name for what was afterwards called an 'Evechepyng.' In 1297, a sort of mart called 'The neue Feyre' was held in Soper Lane, now Queen Street, Cheapside. Later, there were two 'Evechepynge,' one in Cheapside, the other and principal one in Cornhill; and they were held at hostleries or taverns. The passages relating to them are too long for quotation.

353. Gleemen were frequently blind formerly, as now, and were led by a dog.

370. Wif; many MSS. read wit. Either will do; for in the C-text the line is—'His wijf and his inwit [conscience] edwited him of his sinne.'

402. Robyn Hood. This seems to be the earliest mention of Robin Hood. The next earliest is in Wyntoun's Scottish Chronicle, written about A.D. 1420, where Little John is also mentioned. But Mr. Wright thinks that one of the extant Robin-Hood ballads is really of the date of Edward II. See his Essays on England in the Middle Ages, ii. 174. Randolf erle of Chestre is either the Randulph or Randle, earl of Chester, who lived in Stephen's time, and was earl from A.D. 1128 to 1153; or else his grandson of the same name.

who married no less exalted a personage than Constance, widow of Geoffrey Plantagenet, and mother of Prince Arthur; and who was earl from 1181 to 1232. Both were celebrated men, but the latter is the more likely to be meant, as being both more famous and later in date. The lives of these earls are detailed in an exhaustive manner by Mr. Hales, in the edition of the Percy Folio MS., 1867. See vol. i. p. 258. Concerning Robin Hood, see also Chambers' Book of Days, ii. 606, and i. 580. The 'Robin-Hood games' were held on May 1.

413. Somer game of souteres, a summer game played by shoemakers. A summer game is probably the same as summering, a rural sport at Mid-summer. See Nares, who refers to Brand's Pop. Antiq., i. 240 (4to. ed.); Strutt's Sport and Pastimes, p. xxvi, and Mr. Markland's Essay on the Chester Mysteries, in the 3rd vol. of Malone's Shakespeare, p. 525, ed. Boswell. The great day was on St. John the Baptist's eve, i. e. June 23, or Mid-summer eve. Nares quotes an extract about 'May-games, wakes, summerings, and rush-bearings.' Large bonfires were always part of the sport.

419. Ite, missa est; the concluding words of the service of the mass. From this form of words the words Missa and Missal are said to be derived.

423. Solfe, sol-fa. To sol-fa is to practise singing the scale of notes. Some MSS. read solue. Whitaker's edition has solfy.

425. Beatus vir, Ps. i, or cxii. Beati omnes, l's. cxxviii.

439. I. e. unless something eatable is held in the hand.

448. A Leonine hexameter; I do not know from whom it is quoted.

452. Wolde, who would. This omission of the relative is not uncommon in Langland.

458. But sykenesse it latte, unless sickness prevent it.

467. The rode of Cbestre, the cross or rood at Chester. Mr. Wright quotes from Pennant's Tour in Wales (edit. 1778, p. 191), to shew that a famous cross once stood in a spot formerly known as the Rood-eye, i. e. Rood-island, but now known only by the corrupted name of Roodee, and used as a race-course. There was also at Chester a college of the Holy Cross. See Chambers' Book of Days, i. 428.

469. Robert. The similarity of the words robber and Robert early gave rise to a pun, whereby Robert was a common name for a thief. Mr. Wright quotes from the Political Songs, p. 49, the expression—'per Robert, robbur designatur.' See the note to Prol., l. 44. Reddite; i. e. the text—Reddite ergo omnibus debita; Rom. xiii. 7.

470. For iber was nouzte wber-of, because there was nothing wherewith to do so. Of often has the force of with or by.

473. In the apocryphal Gospel of Nicodemus, the name of the penitent thief is Dimas or Dismas, and that of the other thief, Gestas. Other names for them are Titus and Dumachus—

'Then on my right and my left side
These thieves shall both be crucified,
And Titus thenceforth shall abide
In Paradise with me.'

Longfellow's Golden Legend.

474. Memento. An allusion to the words of the thief—'Domine, memento me, cum veneris in regnum tuum.' Luke xxiii. 42.

475. Reddere ne baue, have no money to make restitution with.

476. With crafte, that I owe, by any handicraft, that which I owe. Crafte is here used in a good sense. Owe is, in Old English, both to possess and to owe in the modern sense. To obviate confusion, the scribe of the Laudian MS. has written debeo over this word, as a gloss.

482. That penitencia, &c., that he would polish his pike, called penitencia, afresh, and by help of it leap over the land (be a pilgrim) all his life-time. A pilgrim always carried a staff, generally with a spike at the end, whence it was called a pike-staff. A land-leper or land-loper was a vulgar name for a pilgrim. Thus we find in Cotgrave's French Dictionary—Villotier, m.: A vagabond, land-loper, earth-planet, continuall gadder from towne to towne. The word bym refers to the pike-staff. Cf. l. 542.

491. Ade, written for Adæ, i. e. of Adam. This is evidently a quotation from a Latin 'father,' but I have not yet found it.

494. 'And madest Thyself, together with Thy Son, and us sinful men alike.' The sense is clearer than the construction. Cf. l. 495. The two Latin quotations are from Gen. i. 26 and 1 St. John iv. 16.

495. Thi self sone, Thy Son Himself. In owre sute; here sute is the reading of most MSS., and so also in l. 504, whilst in l. 498 the word is written secte. It makes no difference, since secta (from Lat. sequi) meant, in mediæval Latin, either the right of prosecuting an action at law or the suit or action itself; where suit is from the Fr. suiure, the equivalent of sequi. And again, secta meant a suit of clothes, and suc is the meaning here. We should now say—'in our flesh.' Cf. l. 508. See 'Sect' in Wedgwood's Etymological Dictionary, which makes it clear that sect is from sequi, not secare. Secta even means a suite or set of people; cf. 'and thereupon he produced his suit'—Liber Albus, p. 342; where the Latin has sectam, i. e. his witnesses.

498. It ladde, led it (i. e. the sorrow) captive. See Eph. iv. 8, Ps. lxxviii. 18.

500. Mele-tyme of seintes, meal-time of saints. This no doubt refers to the sacrifice of the mass, when the saints feed upon Christ's body, literally, according to the Romish belief, spiritually, according to ours. Mass could be said only between dawn and midday. Midday was probably the most usual time. The quotation from Isaiah ix. 2 is explained in the apocryphal Gospel of Nicodemus with reference to the 'Harrowing of Hell,' i. e. the descent of Christ into hell to fetch out the souls of the patriarchs. Isaiah is there introduced as explaining that the moment of fulfilment of this prophecy has arrived. See the whole account, as there narrated.

504. In owre sute, in our suit, i. e. in a human body; see note to l. 495, and cf. l. 508.

506. Non veni, &c.; Matt. ix. 13. In MSS. of this date, sed is commonly spelt set, as here.

507. Ymade, composed, narrated. To make is to compose, especially in verse; but here it is applied to prose writings.

508. In owre armes, in our armour, or in arms marked with our device; a phrase taken from the terms of a tournament. The quotation is from John i. 14.

512. Ribaudes, ribalds. See a long note in Political Songs, ed. Wright, 1839, p. 369. It was chiefly applied to the lowest class of retainers, who could be relied on to do the lord's dirty work. 'In the household of the King of France there was a Rex ribaldorum, whose office was to judge disputes, &c., which might arise among retainers of his class.' And see Duncange, s.v. ribaldus and goliardix. Cf. Pass. vi. 75.

514. Hent, seized. In Ps. lxxi. 20, we find 'thou shalt quicken me again,' but the Vulgate has the past tense instead of the future—'conversus vivificasti me.'

515. Ps. xxxii. (xxxii. in the Vulgate) begins with—'Beati quorum remissæ sunt iniquitates, et quorum tecta sunt peccata.'

516. See Ps. xxxvi. 7; in the Vulgate, xxxv. 7.

520. In the A-text, or earliest version of the poem, a new Passus—Passus vi.—begins here. By this simple test, the MSS. of the A-text may be at once recognised.

523. This excellent description of a Palmer should be noted. Mr. Wright aptly draws attention to a similar description in Sir Walter Scott's Marmion, canto i. st. 23, 27. Instead of quoting these familiar lines, I give Sir Walter Scott's note—'A Palmer, opposed to a pilgrim, was one who made it his sole business to visit different holy shrines; travelling incessantly, and subsisting by charity: whereas the Pilgrim retired to his usual home and occupations when he had paid his devotions at the particular spot which was the object of his pilgrimage.' See also the romance of Sir Isumbras, who went about as a palmer; and cf. Chaucer, Prol., l. 13.

526. The bowl and bag were invariably carried; the former to drink out of, the latter to hold scraps of meat and bread.

527. The ampullæ were little phials, containing holy water or oil. They were generally made of metal, nearly flat, and stamped with a device denoting the shrine whence they were brought. On pilgrims' signs, see Chambers' Book of Days, i. 338.

528. Galice, Galicia. This refers to the famous shrine of Santiago (St. James) at Compostella in Galicia. Cf. Prol., l. 47.

529. Crucbe, cross. Hence the term Crouched Friars or Crutched Friars.

530. The alliteration is not apparent, but Langland constantly makes f alliterative with v. See vernicle in the Glossary, and see Chambers' Book of Days, i. 100.

535. Ermony, Armenia. Alisaundre, Alexandria.

544. Peter! i.e. by St. Peter. This is a very common exclamation, of which there are several instances. See e.g. Chaucer's House of Fame, ii. 526, in Morris's edition; where Tyrwhitt's edition has Parde. It possibly originated with the popes, as Innocent III used to swear by St. Peter; see Southey's Book of the Church, p. 156. As to the duties of a ploughman, here described in ll. 548–556, we should compare the poem of How the Plowman learned his Paternoster, printed in Hazlitt's Early Popular Poetry, vol. i. We there read—

'He coude eke sowe and holde a plowe,

Bothe dyke, hedge, and mylke a cowe,' &c.

See also Chambers' Book of Days, i. 96. The character of PIERS THE PLOWMAN is here introduced for the first time. When all the penitents and searchers after Truth are at fault, when even a palmer declares he never heard of any saint of that name, the homely ploughman steps forward, declaring that he knows Truth well. It was his own conscience and his native common sense that led him to this knowledge. We may here take PIERS as the type of Honesty, not without remembering that Langland afterwards identifies him with the truest of all Teachers of men, viz. our Lord Christ Jesus.

556. To paye, lit. to pleasure, i. e. to His satisfaction. By Truth is meant God the Father. Paye is not here equivalent to pay in the modern sense, notwithstanding the occurrence of buire (hire) in the next line.

566. For seynt Thomas sbryne, for all the wealth on St. Thomas' shrine at Canterbury. No shrine could boast more wealth than this of Beket, the object of the journey of Chaucer's Canterbury pilgrims.

572. The way to Truth lies through the ten commandments, most of which are named below, viz., the fifth in l. 576, the third in l. 579, the tenth in l. 582, the eighth and sixth in l. 586, the ninth in l. 589.

578. Lighbloker, lightlier, more lightly. These comparatives in -loker are not uncommon in Early English.

579. Swere-noughte, &c.; swear not unless it be necessary, and, in particular, (swear not) idly by the name of God Almighty. The whole phrase forms, in Langland's allegorical language, the name of a place.

589, 590. Bergb, a hill. Fritbed in, enclosed by a wood, wooded thickly round.

594. This description of Truth's abode may have been partly imitated from the French poem Le Chastel d'Amour, translated by Bishop Grosseteste under the title of the Castle of Love. In some particulars, it resembles the old English prose treatise known as the 'Abbaye of Saynte Spirite,' or the Abbey of the Holy Ghost; see Religious Pieces in Prose and Verse, ed. Perry, 1867 (E. E. T. S.). The originality of Langland is most surprising; this is one of the few places where there are traces of his borrowing from others. See 'Castel off Loue,' ed. Weymouth, pp. 31, 39.

612. This Latin quotation is thus Englished in MS. Harl. 7322, fol. 143:—

'þe gates of paradis þoruth eue weren iloken,
And þoruth oure swete ladi Aȝein hui beoþ nouþe open.'

Political, Rel. and Love Poems, ed. Furnivall, p. 230.

625. To late wel by thiselue, to think much of thyself; cf. l. 620.

627. Seuene sustren, seven sisters. To counteract the seven deadly sins, seven Christian virtues were enumerated by early theologians. Thus, in the Ayenbite of Inwyrt (ed. Morris, p. 159) we find this list. 'Bozsamnesse, a-ye [against] Prede. Loue, a-ye Enuye. Mildenesse, a-ye Felhede. Prouesse, a-ye Slacnesse. Largesse, a-ye Scarsnesse. Chastete, a-ye Lecherie. Sobrete, a-ye Glotounye.' See note to l. 62 above, where all the 'seven sisters' are mentioned except 'Peace,' who takes the place of Business.

638. But grace be the more, unless mercy be extended.

639. Cutpurse, thief. On cut-purses, see Chambers' Book of Days, ii. 669.

644. Mercye is identified here with the Virgin Mary, as in the quotation at l. 612.

651. Where thei bicom. The modern equivalent phrase is—'where they are going to,' or 'what becomes of them.' Cf. the first line of the next Passus.

PASSUS VI.

2. Ecbe a fote, each foot of the way, every step of the way.

4. Erye, to plough. Cf. Chaucer, Knights Tale, l. 28—

'I have, God wot, a large feeld to ere.'

19. For the lordes loue of beuene; for love of the Lord of heaven. Observe the difference of arrangement. So, in Chaucer, the Grekis hors Simon, is the borse of Sinon the Greek. Cf. l. 223 below.

28. Lord Cobham, speaking of the duties of knights, said—'They ought also to preserve God's people from oppressors, tyrants, and thieves; and to see the Clergy supported, so long as they teach purely, pray rightly, and minister the sacraments freely.'—Southey's Book of the Church, p. 204. Cf. Gower, Conf. Amant. iii. 380 (ed. Pauli).

54. Harlotes, ribalds; a term generally applied to tellers of loose stories, whence our author calls them 'the devil's diseurs,' i. e. the devil's story-tellers. They held forth in the hall 'atte mete,' whilst their employers were eating. They were men, as said in l. 55. See Warton's Hist. of Eng. Poet. i. 68 (ed. 1840).

62. For colde, as a remedy against cold. For very often has this sense of against.

72. jogeloure, juggler; Lat. joculator. See Tyrwhitt's note to Chaucer, C. T. l. 11453. 'The name of jogelour was, in a manner, appropriated to those, who, by sleight of hand and machines, produced such illusions of the senses as are usually supposed to be effected by enchantment. This species of jogelour is [also] called a Tregetour.' Cf. Chaucer's House of Fame, iii. 169—

'There saugh I pleyen jugelours,
Magiciens, and tregetours,' &c.

Tyrwhitt's note is long and full. See also Ritson, Metrical Romances, l. p. ccv. of Preface, where he insists that jogelour ought never to be misspelt jongleur, as is often done. And compare—

'There nyghtist thou see these flowtours,
Mynstrales, and eke jogelours,
That wel to syngedide her peyne.'

Chaucer: Rom. of the Rose, 763.

77. 'Deleantur de libro viventium, et cum justis non scribantur,' Ps. lxxviii. 29 (Vulgate). The last part of the quotation Langland interprets to mean that churchmen ought not to receive tithes from such people.

79. They ben ascaped, &c. Dr. Whitaker paraphrases this by—'they have escaped payment by good luck'—which is probably right. For aventure the Vernon MS. reads thrift, success.

84. Here Piers again begins speaking. Late god yworth, may God be.

88. Lines 88—101 contain Piers' biqueste, i. e. his will. It begins with a common formula—In dei nomine. He bequeaths his soul to his Maker, his body to the church to which he paid tithes, his money to his wife and children. Whitaker remarks upon this passage—'To commit the soul to Him who made it, was, in the course of a century and a half after this time, accounted so heretical, that the church would not have kept the testator's bones. For this very offence, and for omitting the names of the Virgin Mary and other saints, as joint legatees, the body of a Mr. Tracy was dug up out of his grave.' See Tracie's will in Massingberd, Eng. Ref. p. 165.

102. For Lukes, MSS. of the A-type have Cbestre; cf. Pass. v. 467. Lukes is Lucca, formerly also spelt Luca, where there was a famous cross.

107. Perkyn, little Piers or Peter; the same as Peterkin. It is merely a familiar term for Piers in this passage.

114. Higb prime. This expression occurs in a poem by Lydgate, which is better known, perhaps, than any other of his, named 'The London Lickpeny':

'Then to Westmyenster gate I presently went,
When the sonn was at bygbe pryme.'

MS. Harl. 367.

It seems to mean, when prime was ended, and it certainly marks the first break in the day's work. Prime is commonly explained to mean six in the morning, but Cotgrave explains it as the first hour of the artificial day (or day according to the sun) which begins at about 8 in winter, 4 in summer, and at 6 only at the equinoxes. Again, some explain prime to be the fourth part of the artificial day, viz. from 6 to 9 at the equinoxes; see Tyrwhitt's note, Cant. Tales, l. 3904. If we suppose the sun to have risen at 8, as it does about the time of Plough Monday (cf. l. 62), and take prime to be the 12th part of the day, it would terminate at 8h. 40m.; but if prime be the 4th part of the day, higb prime would be at 10, a very probable hour. Mr. Dyce says—'concerning this word see Du Cange's Gloss. in Prima and Horæ Canonicæ, Tyrwhitt's Gloss. to Canterbury Tales, Sibbald's Gloss. to Chron. of Scot. Poetry, and Sir F. Madden's Gloss. to Syr Gawayne.' See also Timbs, Nooks and Corners of English Life, p. 222. It is clear from ll. 115 and 116, that Piers was a 'head harvest-man.' See Knight's Pictorial Hist. of England, i. 840; and a good article on the duties of a ploughman in Chambers' Book of Days, i. 96.

117. Atte nale = atten ale or at then ale, i.e. at the ale. In the same way atten ende (at the end) was afterwards corrupted into at the nende. See Warton, Hist. E. P., vol. ii. p. 79, note.

118. 'How I trollilolli' is the burden of a song, answering nearly to the modern tol de rol. In Ritson's Ancient Songs, vol. ii. p. 7, is a song, with a burden of trolly loley occurring at every third line. Here is meant, that all which some of the men did towards ploughing the half acre was to sit and sing choruses over their cups.

122. Haue that recbeth, take him who cares. Recbeth = recketh.

123. Feyned bem blynde. Compare—'Also Fryers saien, that it is meedful to leaue the commandement of Christ, of giving of alms to poore feble men, to poore crooked men, to poore blinde men, and to bedridden men, and giue this almes to Hypocrits, that fainen hem holie and needie.'—Wycliffe; Two Treatises against Friars, p. 25.

147. 'The day's work was supposed to be completed at the ninth hour—three in the afternoon, according to our reckoning. This hour was called higb noon, and the meal then taken was called a noonshun or nuncheon.'—Timbs; Nooks and Corners, &c., p. 222. It is certain that nones originally meant about three o'clock in the afternoon at the equinoxes, though it was afterwards shifted so as to mean midday, our modern noon. See Wedgwood, s. v. Noon. There seem to have been two principal meals times, viz. dinner at about nine or ten A.M., and supper at about five or six P.M.; cf. ll. 262, 265. See Wright's Hist. of Domestic Manners, p. 155. But there is here reference to an earlier supper, at about three P.M., as in Pass. v. 378, after which hermits ate no more; which meal was perhaps also called dinner; see Chambers, Book of Days, i. 96.

163. Wolveskynnes, of the kind or nature of a wolf. Cf.

'Thei ben wilde werwolves' that wilm the folk robben.'

P. Ploughman's Crede, l. 459.

164. That ilke while worth, &c., in the mean while there will be no abundance, &c. Worth, lit. becomes; but often used as a future. Liggeth, lies idle.

191. 'And cut their copes, and made them into jackets.'

196. Bayarde, a common name for a horse. It refers to the custom of giving horses bread to eat, as is still common on the continent. Cf. l. 217. A statute of Edw. III orders—that horsebread be made only of beans and peas, without other mixture.

214. Make hem to worche. After the pestilence of 1349, there was a want of labourers. Edward published a proclamation, compelling men and women, in good health, and under sixty years of age, to work at stated wages. But it was evaded, and, in harvest-time especially, exorbitant wages were both demanded and given. See Lingard, Hist. Eng. (3rd ed.) iv. 89, and Liber Albus, p. 584.

224. Lene hem, give to them; lit. lend to them. Alter alterius, &c.: Gal. vi. 2.

226. Naughty, having naught—

'She had an idea from the very sound

That people with naught were naughty.'

Hood; Miss Kilmansegg.

228. Late god yworthe, let God alone; cf. Prolog. 187. Michi vindicta, &c.: Rom. xii. 19. Vindictam is the reading of the MSS.; I need hardly say it should be vindicta.

230. Cf. Luke xvi. 9.

235. 'In sudore vultus tui vesceris pane;'¹ Gen. iii. 19.

238. 'Propter frigus piger arare noluit; mendicabit ergo æstate, et non dabitur illi;' Prov. xx. 4. Sapience means the book of Wisdom; Langland frequently refers to the wrong book of the Bible for his quotations.

240. With mannes face. An allusion to a common representation of the evangelists, which likens Matthew to a man, Mark to a lion, Luke to a bull, and John to an eagle; Rev. iv. 7. Sometimes the arrangement varied; see the Ormulum, vol. i. p. 201.

241. Nam, a mina. It is glossed in the Laud MS. by the words—'a besaunt.' The parable occurs both in Matt. xxv. and Luke xix.; but the use of the word nam shews that our author was thinking rather of St. Luke's account, where the word μνά is used. In l. 243 we have the better spelling mnam. For the value of a besant, see Ormulum, ed. White, ii. 390.

251. Richard Rolle de Hampole, amongst others, carefully distinguishes between active life, or bodily service of God, and contemplative life or ghostly (i. e. spiritual) service. See his prose treatises, ed. Perry (E. E. T. S. 1866), p. 19; and see p. xi. of Mr. Perry's preface.

252. 'Beati omnes, qui timent Dominum, qui ambulant in viis ejus.'

Labores manuum tuarum quia manducabis: beatus es, et bene tibi erit.
Ps. cxxvii. 1, 2 (Vulgate).

269. Afyngred, greatly hungry. It is corrupted from the A.S. of-bingrian, to be very hungry. The word occurs in the Vox and Wolf, in Hazlitt's Early Popular Poetry, vol. i. p. 58, where the fox is described as afyngret.

272. Cf.

'And jit ther is another craft that toucheth the clergie,

That ben thise false fisiciens that helpen men to die.'

Polit. Songs (Camd. Soc.) p. 333.

See Chaucer's Prologue, ll. 411-444, where the Doctour of Phisik is described. A 'cloke of calabre' means a cloak trimmed with Calabrian fur. In the Coventry Mysteries, p. 242, we read—'Here colere splayed, and furred with ermyn, calabere, or satan.' A person who wore an amice trimmed with calabre was himself called a 'calaber amyse,' as appears from an extract from a Chapter Minute of Christ Church, Dublin, quoted in Todd's introduction to The Book of Obits, &c. of Christ Church, p. xcii. Cf. Notes and Queries, 3rd S. vol. xi. It appears that calabre was a grey fur, the belly of which was black.—Riley, Memorials of London, p. 329.

282. 'In the parish of Hawsted, Suffolk, the allowance of food to the labourer in harvest was, two herrings per day, milk from the manor dairy to make cheese, and a loaf of bread, of which fifteen were made from a bushel of wheat. Messes of potage made their frequent appearance at the rustic board.'—Knight, Pict. Hist. England, i. 839.

287. We find mention of 'colopys of venyson' and 'colypes of the wyld dere' in Hazlitt's Early Pop. Poetry, vol. i. pp. 24, 28. Brand says, 'Slices of this kind of meat (i. e. salted and dried) are to this day termed collops in the north, whereas they are called steaks when cut off from fresh or unsalted flesh.'—Pop. Antiq., vol. i. p. 62.

291. Lammasse, i. e. Loaf-mass, Aug. 1. In Anglo-Saxon times, a loaf was offered on this day, as an offering of first-fruits. See Chambers' Book of Days, ii. 154.

306. 'Panis de coket' is mentioned in a MS. of Jesus Coll. Oxford, 1 Arch. i. 29, fol. 268, as being slightly inferior to wastel bread. The fine kinds of white bread were called simnel bread or pain demaigne, wastel bread, coket, clere matyn, and manchet bread. The common kinds of brown bread were tourte, trete, and bis. Cf. Riley, Memorials of London, p. 644; Chambers' Book of Days, i. 119; and see Coket in the Glossary.

307. Halpeny ale. See note to Pass. v. 220, and cf. l. 311 below.

314. As to the high wages of labourers, see note to l. 214 above. The statutes concerning them are alluded to in l. 318 below.

316. Dionysius Cato is the name commonly assigned to the author of a Latin work in four books, entitled Dionysii Catonis Disticha de Moribus ad Filium. The real author is unknown, but the work may perhaps be referred to the fourth century. It was very popular, both in Latin, and in English and French versions. Langland here quotes part of the 21st distich of the first book, which runs thus:—

'Infantem nudum quum te natura crearit,

Paupertatis onus patienter ferre memento.'

324. Water, i. e. floods, cf. l. 326.

327. Great disasters were often attributed to the malign influence of the planet Saturn. Besides this, great foresight was attributed to the god Saturn. This is very well illustrated by Chaucer's Knights Tale, ll. 1585-1620. In the A-text (earliest version), the Passus ends with this line. Ll. 328-332 were added afterwards; in them, Langland imitates, not perhaps without ridicule, the mysterious prophecies which were then popular; such as, for instance, the prophecies of John of Bridlington. Lines 328, 329, are, of course, inexplicable, but the rest is clear enough. By deib is meant such a great pestilence as that which earned the name of the Black Death. The pestilence shall withdraw, Famine shall then be the judge, and Dawe the ditcher (cf. Pass. v. 320) shall die for hunger, unless God grant us a truce. As regards famines and dearths, cf. Polit. Songs (Camd. Soc.), p. 399.

PASSUS VII.

1. This Passus is called Passus Octavus in MSS. of the earliest version.

3. A pæna et culpa. On this expression see Milman, Hist. of Lat. Christianity, vi. 254 (note), 2nd edit. See l. 19 below, where it means plenary remission.

14. Bothe the lawes, i.e. our duty towards God, and towards our neighbours.

18. Many yeres, i.e. many years' remission of purgatory.

23. Treuthe, i.e. God the Father, as before. See l. 33.

26. Mesondieux, put for maisons de dieu, houses of God. A hospital was called a maison-dieu or masondeue. Halliwell remarks that, till within the last few years, there was an ancient hospital at Newcastle so called. There was another, I believe, at Ospringe, Kent.

31. Sette scoleres to scole. To pay for the education of poor scholars, especially at Oxford, was justly esteemed an excellent form of charity. Cf. Chaucer, Prol. 301, 302. In later times, the demand of poor scholars for money was a tax that fell rather heavily upon the poorer class of farmers—

'Than commeth clerkys of Oxford and make their mone,

To her scole hire they most haue money.'

God Spede the Plough, 75.

41. 'Qui pecuniam suam non dedit ad usuram, et munera super innocentem non accepit.' Ps. xiv. 5 (Vulgate). The first verse of the same Psalm, which in English Bibles is Ps. xv., is quoted below, at l. 51.

43. I do not know the source of this quotation. It somewhat resembles Ecclus. xxxviii. 2—'A Deo est enim omnis medela, et a rege accipiet donationem.'

44. Joban is apparently some great personage, probably John of Gaunt; see note to Prol. 146. This line is neither in the A- nor C-text.

50. 'No devil, at his death-day, shall harm him a mite, so that he may not be safe, and his soul too.' Worth is here a verb. The construction is awkward to express.

52. 'But to buy water, nor wind, nor wit, nor fire (which is the fourth thing) is a thing not to be permitted.' The words italicised must be understood. For ne, i.e. nor, we should now write or. Wit here takes the place of earth, along with three of the four elements.

56. Thei, i.e. they who take fees from the poor; see l. 58.

61. See Matt. vii. 12; cf. Luke vi. 31.
62. With, i. e. by means of.
68. Bit; a contracted form of biddeth, i. e. begs.
73. Catoun, Cato. See note to Pass. vi. 316. Prefixed to Cato's Distiches are some 'Breves sententiæ,' of which the twenty-third consists only of the words—Cui des, videto. Mr. Wright says that by the clerk of the stories is meant Peter Comestor, to whom Lydgate, in his Minor Poems (p. 102, ed. Halliwell) gives the title of maister of stories. The title clerk of stories would then refer to the Historia Scholastica, of which Peter Comestor was the author. He died about A.D. 1198. There are remarks on almsgiving, very similar to this, in the Compendium by Peter Cantor, who was bishop of Tournay, A.D. 1191; they may be found at p. 150, vol. 205, of Migne's Patrologiæ Cursus Completus. Peter Cantor also quotes the sentence—cui des, videto. Cf. 'Circumstantiæ eleemosynarum hæ sunt—quis, quid, quantum, cui, ubi, quando, quare.' Alani de Insulis Summa de Arte Predicatoria, ed. Migne, col. 175. 'Idem in beneficio faciam; videbo quando dem, cui dem, quemadmodum, quare.' Seneca, De Beneficiis, l. iv. cap. x.
76. Gregory the Great was pope from A.D. 590 to 604. I doubt if the quotation is really from his works. It seems rather to be from the following. 'Ne eligas cui bene facias. . . . Incertum est enim quod opus magis placeat Deo.'—S. Eusebii Hieronymi Comment. in Ecclesiasten, cap. xi.; vol. 23, col. 1103, of Migne's edition. Instead of 'Gregory,' Langland should have said 'Jerome.' The four chief 'Latin fathers' were S. Gregory, S. Jerome, S. Augustine, and S. Ambrose.
83. See Luke xix. 23.
85. Hath to buggen hym bred, hath (enough) to buy himself bread.
86. This quotation is not from the Bible. A similar statement is that of St. Paul, in 1 Tim. vi. 8.
88. See Ps. xxxvi. 25 (Vulgate).
93. He brekeþ, one of you breaketh; be is used quite indefinitely. In the next line gon = ye go.
98. Hennes fare, go hence, depart hence, i. e. die.
102. Myschief, misfortune. Meseles, lepers.
111. 'Et ibunt hi in supplicium æternum; justi autem in vitam æternam.' Matt. xxv. 46.
112. Peter! An exclamation, meaning—'by St. Peter!' Cf. Pass. v. 544, and the note.
116. See Ps. xxii. 4 (Vulgate).
121. His payn ete, ate his bread; see Ps. xli. 4 (Vulgate).
126. 'Nolite solliciti esse,' &c.; Luke xii. 22. But Langland was thinking of the parallel passage—'ne solliciti sitis,' &c.; Matt. vi. 25.
128. Fynt bem mete, finds food for them. Fynt is a contraction of fyndetþ; see l. 129.
129. Haue thi, inverted for they have.
135. Dixit insipiens, Ps. xiii. 1 (Vulgate). The priest suggests that Piers might suitably take for his text—'The fool hath spoken!'
137. Elice is old MS. spelling for Ejice. 'Ejice derisorem, et exhibit cum eo jurgium, cessabuntque causæ et contumeliæ.' Prov. xxii. 10.
141. Here is the third and last reference to Malvern hills, which were mentioned twice in the Prologue.

146. Whicb a, what sort of a. Such is the usual meaning of whicb a in Early English.

150. 'Somnia ne cures, nam mens humana quod optans,
Dum vigilat, sperat, per somnum cernit id ipsum.'

Dion. Cato; Distich ii. 31.

154 See Daniel ii. 39. But Langland seems rather to have been thinking of the handwriting on the wall, as explained to Belshazzar; cf. Dan. v. 28.

159. Gen. xxxvii. 9, 10.

162. Beau filtz, fair son. Some MSS. have Beau fitz. It does not seem, from the account in Genesis, that Jacob expected Joseph's dream to be fulfilled, but rather the contrary.

171. Dignelich vnderfongen, worthily received, held as acceptable.

175. See Matt. xvi. 19.

192. Fourc ordres, i. e. of friars. See note to Prol., l. 58.

194. Pies bele, magpie's heel (?); a curious expression. But the Cambridge MS. has pese bule, i. e. a pea's bull, a pea-shell, busk of a pea. The result is much the same.

199, 200. 'That, after our death-day, Do-well may declare, at the day of doom, that we did as he bade us.'

Here terminates the part of the poem which is strictly termed 'Visio de petro plowman.' The name of the remaining portion is 'Visio de Do-wel, Do-bet, et Do-best, secundum Wit et Resoun,' which consists of thirteen Passus, commonly numbered viii. to xx.

GLOSSARIAL INDEX.

The principal contractions used are the following :—

A. S. (or S.) = Anglo-Saxon. Dan. = Danish. Du. = Dutch. E. = English. F. (or Fr.) = French. G. = German. Gk. = Greek. Icel. = Icelandic. It. = Italian. Lat. = Latin. M. H. G. = Middle High-German. Mæso-Goth (or Goth.) = Mæso-Gothic.	O. E. = Old English. O. F. (or O. Fr.) = Old French. O. H. G. = Old High-German. Prompt. Parv. = Promptorium Parvulorum, ed. Way, Camden Society, 1865. Roq. = Roquefort's Glossaire. S. = Anglo-Saxon. Sc. = Scottish. Sp. = Spanish. Suio-Goth. = Ihre's Glossarium Suio-Gothicum (Old Swedish). W. = Welsh.
---	--

The reader is also requested to observe that the contraction v. denotes a verb in the infinitive mood; pr. s. or pt. s. means the third person singular of the present or past tense, unless 1 p. (first person) or 2 p. (second person) is added; so also pr. pl. means the third person plural of the present tense; imp. s. means the second person singular of the imperative mood, &c. Other contractions, as sb. for substantive, pp. for past participle, are readily understood. In the references, 1. 99 means Passus i. l. 99, &c.; and pr. denotes the Prologue.

- Aliri, across (?), 6. 124. Or perhaps it means—loosely stretched out. The only instance I have met with of a similar word is lirynglong, in the Spurious Prologue in Urry's ed. of Cant. Tales, p. 596, l. 310; 'He fond hir ligging lirynglong:' (found her lying lirynglong).
- Alisaundre, Alexandria, 5. 533.
- Alkin, pr. 222; Alkyn, 6. 70. Both contr. from Alkynnes (3. 224), of every kind. Alkynnes crafty men = craftsmen of every kind; it does not mean 'every kind of craftsmen,' when we have regard to its grammatical construction.
- Almes, sb. S. alms, 7. 75. The full form is Almesse, 3. 75. Cf. A. S. ælmesse, from Lat. eleemosyna, which again is from the Greek.
- Aloft, on loft, on high, 1. 90.
- Als, (1) also, 3. 72; (2) as, 4. 195. Cf. Also = as, 3. 328. From A. S. eall-swa come all-so, also, als, and as.
- Alswythe, adv. as quickly as might be, 3. 101. From als, as, and swithe, quickly. In William of Palerne we find both as swiþe and also swiþe, shewing that the first part of the word is als, not al.
- Amaistrye, v. F. to teach, instruct, govern, manage, 2. 147; Amaistrion, 6. 214; pp. Amaistried, 2. 153. Amaister, to teach, is given as a Shropshire word by Hartshorne. O. Fr. maistrier, to act as a master.
- Amerce, v. F. to amerce, fine, 6. 40.
- Amonges, prep. S. amongst, 5. 209, 7. 156. A. S. onmang, among.
- Ampulles, sb. pl. F. small phials, 5. 527. See note. Cf. 'this ampulla, or vial,' in Ben Jonson's The Fox, A. ii. sc. 1.
- An, (1) conj. and, 7. 44; (2) conj. if, 2. 132; (3) prep. on, as in an heigh = on high, pr. 13; an adventure, on adventure, in case, 3. 72; an ydel, in an idle manner, 5. 580.
- An-othre, one other, another (i. e. a tenth), 1. 106. The line means, 'Cherubin, Seraphin, seven more such, and one other.'
- Ancres, sb. pl. S. anchorites, pr. 28, 6. 147. A. S. ancra, an anchorite, from Gk. ἀναχωρητής.
- And, conj. if, 2. 192, 4. 88, 5. 91. See An in Wedgwood.
- Angreth, pr. s. makes angry, 5. 117. O. Icel. angra, to vex. Cf. A. S. ange, vexation, from the same root as Lat. angor.
- Apayed, pp. F. pleased, 6. 110, 198. O. Fr. apaier, to appease, from Lat. pacare.
- Apertly, adv. openly, in an open manner, evidently, 3. 256. Lat. apertus, open.
- Apewarde, sb. S. a keeper of apes, 5. 640.
- Apeyre, v. to injure, 6. 173; 2 pp. pl. subj. Apeyre, 5. 573. Cf. empirer, to impair, make worse, from Lat. pejus, worse.

- Apoysounde, pp. F. poisoned, 3. 127. MS. T. has empoisoned; MS. Bodley 814 has apoisoned.
- Apparaille, v. F. to apparel, 2. 170, 6. 59; pt. pl. Apparailed, pr. 23; pp. Apparailed, 5. 523. O.F. aparailer, to make to suit, from pareil, equal, which from Low. Lat. pariculus, a diminutive of par.
- Appayre, 3 p. pl. pr. subj. injure, 5. 47. See Apeyre.
- Appeireth, v. F. s. injures, 7. 47; pt. pl. Appeyred, 6. 134; pp. 6. 221. See Apeyre.
- Appendeth, pr. s. belongs, 1. 45. From Lat. pendeo.
- Appertly, adv. openly, evidently, 1. 98. See Apertly.
- Appiere, v. F. to appear, 3. 113.
- Appose, v. F. to put questions to, 3. 5; pt. s. or pl. Apposed, 1. 47; pt. pl. Apposeden, disputed, as in Apposeden cyther other, disputed one against the other, 7. 138.
- Ar, adv. S. ere, before, 1. 73, 3. 120, &c. A.S. ær, G. eber, Mæso-Goth. air, which agrees with the root of early. Though generally called an adverb, it is frequently a conjunction.
- Ar, cont. form of Aren, are, 6. 100. See Aren.
- Arches, sb. pl. used to mean the Court of Arches, 2. 60. 'The Court of Arches is an ancient court of appeal, belonging to the Archbishop of Canterbury, whereof the judge is called the Dean of Arches, because he anciently held his court in the church of St. Mary-le-Bow (Sancta Maria de Arcubus); though all the spiritual courts are now holden at Doctors' Commons.' (Hook's Church Dict.)
- Aredy, adj. S. ready, 4. 192. A.S. gerid, ready, which is a fuller form of rid, ready.
- Aren, 3 p. pl. pr. are, pr. 164, 3. 80, 4. 33, 5. 627. See Be.
- Arest, at rest; lit. on rest, 5. 234. See A, and cf. Aslepe.
- Armes, pl. sb. F. coat-armour, 5. 508. In ouvre armes = with our device upon His coat of arms.
- Armure, sb. F. armour, 1. 156.
- Arne, 3 p. pl. pr. arc, 1. 21. See Aren and Be.
- Arraye, sb. F. array, dress, 2. 17. O. Fr. arroier, from sb. roi, which is from the same root as A.S. rád, ready, and M.H.G. reiten, to set in order.
- Arraye, v. F. to set in order; hence, Arraye me, prepare myself, 4. 15; Arrayen hym, prepare himself, 5. 11.
- Arrere, adv. F. backwards, 5. 354. Lat. retro.
- Arst, adv. superl. S. erst, first, soonest, 4. 105, 5. 468. See Ar.
- Artou, art thou, 5. 260.
- Arwes, sb. pl. S. arrows, 3. 323. A.S. arws, an arrow.
- Ascapen, v. F. to escape, 2. 202; pp. Ascaped, 6. 79. O. F. eschapper, Picard escaper. See Escapt in Wedgwood.
- Askes, sb. pl. S. ashes, 3. 97. A.S. asce, pl. ascan.
- Askep, pr. s. S. asks, requires, pr. 19, 120. See Axe.
- Aslepe, asleep, lit. on sleep, 2. 51, 5. 8.
- Aspye, v. F. to espy, to spy out, 5. 170. Derived from a Teutonic source; cf. O.H.G. spibon, G. spüben, to spy.
- Assaye, v. F. to try, examine, 3. 5, 5. 310; to try, endeavour, 6. 24. From Lat. exagium, a proof; which from exigere, to examine.
- Assele, 1 p. s. pr. F. I seal, 2. 112. O. F. sael, Lat. sigillum.
- Assemble, sb. F. assembly, pr. 217. Lat. simul, together; cf. A.S. sam, samod, together, whence samian, to collect.
- Assolle, v. F. to absolve, 3. 40; Assollen, pr. 70; Assolle, 5. 270

- pt. s.* Assoiled, 3. 47; Assoiled, 5. 186; pp. Assoiled, 3. 143; pr. s. Assoileth, 3. 236. O. F. assoiler, absoiller, Lat. absolvere.
- Asspye, v. F. to espy, see, 6. 131, 225. See Aspye.
- At, prep. S. (used where we should now use of), 3. 25; (used for in) 7. 128. At ones, at once, together, 5. 163.
- Attache, v. F. to arrest, apprehend, 2. 199; pp. Attached, 2. 236. Cf. It. attaccare, to fasten, O. Du. tacken, to touch, fix, E. take, E. tack (a small nail), Lat. tangere, &c.
- Atte, at the; as in Atte mele, 1. 24; Atte dore, 2. 205; Atte stile, 5. 201, &c. Cf. note to 6. 117.
- Atweyne, in twain, lit. on twain, 7. 116. The A. S. for two is twegen in the masc., twá in the feminine. So G. zween masc., zwei fem. Hence E. twain and two.
- Atwo, in two, 6. 105. See the preceding word.
- Auarousere, pl. adj. F. more avaricious, 1. 189. Lat. avarus.
- Auanced, pp. F. advanced, 1. 189, 3. 33. F. avancer, It. avanzare, from Lat. ab ante, which gives the It. avanti or avante, before.
- Auature, sb. F. adventure, chance; bence good auature = by good luck, 6. 79. An auature, in case, 3. 72, 279; 6. 43; better written On auature, 3. 66.
- Auncere, sb. a kind of weighing machine, 5. 218. It is spelt auncere, auncer, aunser, auncel, and aunsel in the MSS. From the descriptions by Cowell (in Halliwell) and Phillips it is clearly the steelyard commonly known as the 'Danish steelyard,' which has a fixed weight and a moveable fulcrum. The derivation is not so clear. See the note.
- Auoutrie, sb. F. adultery, 2. 175.
- Lat. adulterium*, whence O. F. auulterie, avouterie.
- Auowe, sb. F. vow, 5. 457. Probably derived not from F. sb. veu, but from the vb. avouer. See next word.
- Avowe, v. to make oath concerning, 3. 255; pt. s. Avowed, made a vow, 5. 388. Lat. iurare.
- Auter, sb. F. altar, 5. 109.
- Auhte, sb. S. put for something, 5. 439; everything, 5. 489. Used adverbially, in the sense of at all, 5. 311, 540. A. S. áwibt, from á, ever, and wibt, a whit; cf. O. H. G. ewwibt, from eo or io, ever, and wibt. See Nauchte.
- Auhte, I p. s. pt. I ought, 2. 28. A. S. ic abte, I owned, possessed, from agan, to own. Cf. Mæso-Goth. aigan, to own, pr. t. ik aib, I own, pt. t. ik aibta, I owned. Note that O. E. owe, to possess, is the mod. E. own. To owe a debt is to have to pay it. See Owe, Owen.
- Awreke, imp. s. S. revenge, take vengeance on, 6. 175; pp. Awroke, avenged, 6. 204. A. S. awrekan, to avenge; cf. Mæso-Goth. wrikan, wrakjan, to persecute, Du. wreken, G. rüchen, E. wreak.
- Axe, v. S. to ask, 4. 10; Axen, v. 5. 543; pr. pl. subj. Axe, 5. 430; pr. s. Axeth, 2. 27; pt. s. Axed, 1. 49, 5. 307, 6. 298. A. S. ácsian, ácsian, ábsian, to ask.
- Ay, adv. S. aye, ever, 6. 212. A. S. á, aa, O. H. G. eo, G. je, ever.
- Ajein, prep. S. against, 3. 155, 291; in a direction opposite to; bence, come ajein = came to meet, 4. 44; in return for, 5. 437. Spelt Ayein, 3. 291. See Ajeines.
- Ajein, adv. S. again, 6. 44, 7. 25.
- Ajeines, prep. against, 4. 48, 6. 316, 7. 70. Ajeins, 3. 92. A. S. oncean is both adv. (again) and prep. (against). We do not find onceanes, but we find togeanes prep. against. Cf. Su. Goth. gen, against, gena, to go to meet, G. gegen, against.

B.

Babeled, i p. s. pt. I babbled, said my prayers in a mumbling manner, 5. 8. Du. babbelen, to chatter; Fr. babiller. A word formed from the repetition of the syllables ba, ba, by a child. Cf. Mamely.

Baberlipped, adj. having full, large, thick lips, 5. 190. Cf. Fr. babines, the lips, Du. babbel, the mouth. Formed from the sound ba, made by the lips. See word above.

Bachelers, sb. pl. F. novices in the church, pr. 87. A bachelor is a novice, generally in arms or arts. The etymology from Celtic bach, which Mr. Wedgwood adopts, is decidedly rejected by Burguy. That from bas chevalier is obviously wrong, as the present instance helps to prove.

Bad. See Bidde.

Baiardes, sb. pl. F. horses, 4. 124.

Bayard was a favourite name for horses, and originally meant a bay-horse, from Lat. badius, brown, whence Fr. bai.

Baillues, sb. pl. F. bailiffs, 2. 59.

Lat. baJulus, a tutor, O. F. baillir, to take charge of.

Bakbite, v. S. to backbite, slander,

2. 80. Back frequently means in the wrong direction, as in O. E. back-friend, a secret enemy, back-slide, to slide into error. Cf. Icel. bakbord, the left side of a ship.

Bakbitynge, sb. S. slander, 5. 89.

Bake, pp. S. baked, 6. 196; Baken, pp. 6. 295.

Bakesteres. See Baxteres.

Balder, adj. comp. S. bolder, 4. 107;

7. 182. A. S. bald, bold, Mæso-Goth. balbaba, boldly, O. H. G. balt, bold.

Bale, sb. S. evil, injury, wrong, 4.

89, 92. A. S. bealo, torment, wickedness, Mæso-Goth. balujan or baluyan, to torment.

Balkes, sb. pl. S. balks, 6. 109.

'Balk, a ridge of greensward left by the plough in ploughing, or by design, between different occupancies in a common field.' (Halliwell.) Cf. A. S. balca, (1) a heap, ridge; (2) a beam. Icel. balkr, a wooden division.

Banne, v. S. to curse, 1. 62; pr. s.

Banneth, forbids, prohibits severely, 7. 88. Cf. G. bann, a ban.

Bar, pt. s. bore. See Bere.

Barne, sb. S. a child, 2. 3; pl.

Barnes, 3. 151, 7. 92. A. S. bearn, Mæso-Goth. barn, Sw. barn, Sc. bairn. Cf. E. bear.

Barste, pt. s. S. burst, 6. 180. A. S.

berstan, to burst, break; pt. t. ic berst, I burst.

Baslarde, sb. F. 3. 303. 'The Baselard was a kind of long dagger, which was suspended to the girdle . . . Knighton tells us that Sir Wm Walworth put Jack Straw [? Wat Tyler] to death with a basillard.'—Way, in note to Promptorium Parvulorum. It was also called a badelaire, which is derived from Low Lat. balteus, a belt, which also seems to be the root of E. bauldric, baudric, or baldrick. See also the note.

Batailles, sb. pl. F. battles, 3. 321.

Batered, i p. s. pt. I battered, I patted, 3. 198. It is the frequentative of beat, which is represented both by A. S. beatan and F. battre.

Baudy, adj. dirty, 5. 197. W.

baw, dirt, bawaid, dirty.

Baxteres, sb. pl. S. bakers, (properly female bakers) pr. 218;

Bakesteres, 3. 79. A. S. bæccern, a man who bakes; bæccestre, a woman who bakes.

Bayarde, sb. F. a horse, 6. 195;

Bayard, 4. 53. See Baiardes.

Bayllynes, sb. pl. F. bailiffs, 3. 2.
See Baillives.

Be, v. S. to be, pr. 79, &c.; 1 p. pl. pr. we Beth, 3. 27; 2 p. 3e Ben, 6. 132; 3 p. they Ben, 6. 79; Aren, 3. 80; 2 p. s. pr. (in future sense) Beest, shalt be, 5. 598; 3 p. pl. Beth, shall be, 7. 60; imp. pl. 1 p. Be we, pr. 188; 2 p. Be 3e, 7. 183; imp. pl. (without ye) Beth, 2. 137; fr. s. subj. Be = if (my council) be, 4. 189; 2 p. Be þow = if thou be, 6. 207; pt. s. subj. Were, pr. 165; pp. Be, 5. 129, 155. Other parts of the verb present no forms worth notice. See Were. With A.S. beon, to be, cf. G. ich bin, I am, Lat. fui, I was, Gk. φύωαι, to be. With I was, cf. A.S. ic wæs, G. ic war, Lat. eram and esse. With we are, cf. Icel. ver erum. Possibly connected also with W. byw, to exist, to live, and Lat. vivere.

Be, prep. S. by, 5. 130.

Beau filtz, = fair son, 7. 162. Fr. beau fils.

Beches, sb. pl. S. beech-trees, 5. 18. The A.S. has both béce and bóc.

Bedel, sb. a beadle, apparitor, or summoner, 2. 109; pl. Bedelles, beades, officers, 2. 59; Bedellus, 3. 2. A S. bydel, a crier; cf. Du. pedel, a beadle, and F. bedeau.

Bedeman, sb. S. one who prays for another, 3. 41, 46. Edie Ochiltree, in the 'Antiquary,' was a King's Bedesman. A. S. béd, a prayer, Du. bede.

Bedered, S. bedridden, 7. 101. MS. T has bedreden; MS. O has bedrede. The latter is nearest to the A.S. bedredda or bedrida, one who is bedridden, from bed and rida, a rider; so that bedridden is an early corruption of bedrider. We also find the spelling Bedreden, 6. 194.

Bedes, sb. pl. S. prayers, 5. 8, 407.

To bid one's beads is, properly speaking, to pray one's prayers; but the name beads was afterwards transferred to the balls strung upon a string, by which the prayers were counted off. See Bedeman.

Beest, 2 p. s. pr. shalt be, 5. 598.

The A.S. beon, to be, was most commonly used in a future sense; thus þu eart = thou art; þu byst = thou shalt be.

Behote, 1 p. s. pr. S. I promise, vow, 5. 462. A.S. bebátan, to vow; cf. G. beissen, Du. beeten, Mæso-Goth. baitan, to name, call.

Beire, gen. pl. of both, 2. 66. It is a corruption of begra, the gen. pl. of A.S. bá, both.

Bei3, sb. S. an ornament for the neck, neck-ring, a sort of collar of bright metal, pr. 165, 176; pl. Bi3es, pr. 161. A.S. beab, a neck-ring, a crown, any circular ornament; prob. from búgan, to bend, pt. t. ic beab.

Belsabubbes, gen. case. Beelzebub's, 2. 130.

Bely, sb. S. belly, pr. 41. MS. T. has the pl. belies.

Bely-ioye, sb. appetite, delight in food, lit. belly-joy, 7. 118.

Belye, v. S. to lie against, slander, 5. 414.

Bemeneth, pr. s. S. means, signifies, pr. 208. A. S. mynan, to intend, G. meinen, Du. meenen, Lat. meminisse, Sanskrit man, to think, deem. Cf. Lat. mens, E. mind.

Ben, 3 p. pl. pr. they are, 6. 79. Observe the curious construction it ben = they are, 6. 56. So in the A. S. Gospels, ic hit eom, I it am (It is I), S. John vi. 20.

Benefys, sb. F. benefice, 3. 312.

Benes, sb. pl. S. beans, 6. 184.

Benfait, sb. F. a benefit, kind deed, 5. 436. F. bien fait, a thing well done.

- Berde, sb. S. beard, 5. 194.
- Bere, imp. s. S. bear, carry 3. 268 ;
pt. s. Bar, bare, 2. 3 ; Bare, 5. 524 ;
 2 p. s. Bere, didst bear, 3. 195 ;
pt. pl. Baren, 5. 108, 365 ; Bere,
pt. pl. subj. 5. 139. A. S. béran,
*pt. t. ic bæ*r, pl. we bæron, pp.
boren.
- Berghe, sb. S. a hill, 5. 589. A. S.
beorg or beorb, G. and Du. berg.
 Cf. Mæso-Goth. baigan, to hide,
 A. S. beorgan, G. and Du. bergen.
- Bernes, sb. pl. S. barns, 6. 186.
 A. S. barn or bern. The derivation from bere, barley, and ern, a place, is probably wrong, and due merely to a misspelling, viz. berern for beren or barn. Cf. coren for corn, where the e merely signifies that the r is pronounced with a strong burr.
- Bernes, gen. sing. barn's, 4. 57.
 See the above.
- Bestes, sb. pl. F. beasts, 6. 142.
 O. Fr. beste, whence F. bête.
- Bete, v. S. to beat, 5. 33 ; Bet, pr. s.
 (contracted form of betetb) beats,
 4. 59 ; pt. s. Bette, beat, 6. 180.
 A. S. beutan, to beat, pr. s. bet, he beats, pt. t. ic beot. This is a clear instance of a strong verb becoming a weak one at the date of the Laud MS., for the Vernon MS. has be beat in this very place.
- Bete, v. S. to amend, satisfy, remedy,
 6. 239. A. S. bétan, to make better, Du. baten, to avail, profit ; from the root of boot, better ; cf.
 Mæso-Goth. batizo, better, batista, best ; also Sc. beet, used by Burns.
- Beth, (1) we will be, 3. 27 ; (2)
 they shall be, 7. 66 ; (3) be ye,
 2. 137. See Be, Beest.
- Beton, proper name, dim. of Bette, little Bet, 5. 306 ; spelt Betoun, 5. 33. Cf. Kitoun, Ratoun.
- Bette, adv. S. better, 5. 601, 6. 49.
 A. S. bet.
- Bette, proper name, 5. 330.
- Bi, prep. S. by, 4. 134 ; in accordance with, 4. 70 ; with reference to, 4. 71, 5. 180 (cf. 1 Cor. iv. 4) ;
 By myself, as far as I am concerned, 4. 137 ; Bi my lyue, throughout my lifetime, 6. 103 ;
 Bi so, provided that, 5. 647 ; By þat, by that time, 6. 292, 301 ;
 according to that which, 7. 112.
 By þe bischop (pr. So) may mean either with reference to the bishop, or by the bishop's permission. Mr.
 Aldis Wright takes the former view (Bible Word-book, p. 83) ; but I prefer the latter, as best suiting the context, l. 78.
- Bicche, sb. S. bitch, 5. 353. A. S.
bicce.
- Bicome, pr. pl. 5. 651 ; where þei bicome = where they go, whither they arrive ; or it may be the past tense, and = where they have gone to. Cf. A. S. bicum, Du. bijkomen, to happen, G. beikommen, to reach to.
- Bicometh to, pr. s. is suitable for, becomes, 3. 208. See the preceding word.
- Bidde, v. to pray, 5. 231 ; to beg,
 6. 239 ; 1 p. s. pr. Bidde, pray
 (see Bedes), 5. 407 ; pr. s. Biddeth, begs, 7. 81 ; Bit (contracted form of biddetb), begs, 7. 68 ; bids, commands, 3. 75 ; Bidden, pr. pl.
 beg, solicit, 3. 218 ; Bidde, imp. s. pray, 5. 454 ; Biddeth, imp. pl.
 beg ye, ask ye, pray ye, 5. 610,
 7. 84 ; pt. s. Bad, commanded, 7. 5.
 A. S. biddan, to bid, to pray, Du.
bidden, G. bitten, to beseech.
- Bidders, sb. pl. S. beggars, pr. 40 ;
spelt Bidderes, 6. 206 ; 7. 66. See Bidde.
- Biddyng, sb. S. begging, sollicitation of alms, 3. 218. See Bidde.
- Bidraueled, pp. S. slobbered, covered with grease, 5. 194.
 Cf. A. S. drabbe, dregs ; Low G.
drabbelen, to slobber, drabbelbert, one who dirties his beard in eating.

- Bienfetes, sb. pl. F. (lit. benefits) good deeds, 5. 621. The phrase means presumption arising from trusting to your own good actions.
- Biennales, sb. pl. F. biennials, 7. 170. As trentals means a series of masses said daily for thirty days, so I suppose biennales to mean masses said for a space of two years, and triennales masses said for three years. They must have been expensive luxuries.
- Biernes, sb. pl. S. men, 3. 265. A. S. beorn, a chief, a man.
- Bifalle, 3 p. s. pr. subj. S. it may befall, it may happen (feire being an adv. = well), 5. 59; pr. s. Bifalleth, belongs, 1. 52; pt. s. Bifel, happened, 5. 479, 7. 164.
- Bifor, Biforn, prep. S. pr. 183, 7. 188. A. S. bifóran.
- Bigge, Biggen, v. S. to buy, 4. 89, 6. 282; 1 p. s. pr. Bigge, I buy, 5. 429. A. S. biggan, to buy.
- Bigileth, pr. s. beguiles, cheats, 7. 70. O. F. guile, from a Teutonic source; cf. A. S. wile, wiliness.
- Bigruccheth, pr. s. begrudges, repines at, murmurs at, 6. 69. O. Fr. grocer, groucher, to murmur. Cf. Gk. γρῦσις, to grumble.
- Bihelde, 1 p. s. pt. S. I beheld, 7. 109.
- Biheste, sb. S. promise, 3. 126. A. S. bebas, a promise. Cf. next word.
- Bihight, pt. s. S. promised, 3. 29. A. S. bebátan, to vow, promise. See Behote.
- Bihote, 1 p. s. pr. S. I promise, 6. 233. See Behote, Bihight.
- Bihoueth, pr. s. S. needs, requires, (not impersonal) 5. 38. A. S. bebifan, to need.
- Bikenne, 1 p. s. pr. S. I commit (thee to Christ), 2. 49. See Kenne.
- Biknowen, v. S. to acknowledge, confess, pr. 204; 1 p. s. pr. Biknowe, 5. 200; pp. Biknowen, acknowledged, well known, favourably received, 3. 33.
- Bileue, sb. S. belief, creed, 5. 7, 7. 175. Cf. A. S. geleofa, creed.
- Bille, sb. F. a bill, petition, 4. 47. Mr. Wedgwood proposes to connect it with bull, a sealed document, from Lat. bullā, a leaden seal. The diminutive of it is the F. and E. billet.
- Biloue (be), imp. s. S. make thyself beloved, 6. 230; pp. Biloued, beloved, 3. 211.
- Bilowen, pp. S. told lies about, belied, 2. 22. A. S. leógan, to lie, pt. t. ic leág, pp. logen.
- Binam, pt. s. S. took away from, 6. 243. A. S. beniman, to deprive. See Nam.
- Biqueste, sb. S. bequest, will, 6. 87. A. S. becweðan, to bequeath; from cweðan, to say. Cf. Quod.
- Birde, sb. S. lady, 3. 14. Apparently the same as bride. A. S. brýd. Cf. O. E. brid for the modern word bird.
- Bireue, v. S. bereave, take it away by force, 6. 248. A. S. beredfian, from redfian, to reave, rob. Cf. Du. berooven, from rooven, to rob; O. F. rober, Sp. robar, It. rubare, Dan. røve, to rob, Lat. rapio. Connected also with rive, rip.
- Bisette, v. S. to bestow, 5. 264, 299. A. S. settan, to set, place.
- Bishetten, pt. pl. S. shut up, 2. 213. A. S. scittan, to shut up, scittels, a bar, bolt.
- Bisitte, v. S. to sit close to, beset, 2. 140. A. S. bisittan, to sit near, besiege.
- Bisi, Bisy, adj. S. busy, 7. 118, 125.
- Bislabered, pp. beslobbered, bedabbled, dirty, 5. 302. G. schlabbern, E. slabber, slobber, slubber; cf. slop.
- Bismer, sb. S. calumny, 5. 89. A. S. bismér, reproach; from bismérian, to besmear (lit. to cover with fat, from A. S. sméran, fat).

- Biswynke, v. S. to obtain by work, to earn by labour, 6. 216. A. S. swincan, to toil.
- Bit, short for Biddeth. See Bidde.
- Bitelbrowed, adj. S. with beetling brows, having prominent brows, 5. 100. The A. S. bitel means the insect called a beetle, lit. the biter; the O. E. adj. bitel means biting, sharp; hence perhaps the meaning of toothlike, projecting.
- Bitter, sb. S. bitterness, 5. 119.
- Bittere, adv. S. bitterly, 3. 249.
- Bitwixen, prep. S. betwixt, amongst, 5. 338. A. S. betwix, betwux, between; from twá, two, tuy, double.
- Bityme, adv. S. betimes, soon, 5. 647.
- Bi:es. See Beiz.
- Bi:ete, sb. S. offspring, 2. 40. From bigitan, to obtain; cf. modern E. beget.
- Bi:unde, adv. S. beyond, 3. 109.
- Blenche, v. S. to blink, blench; hence, to flinch at, turn from, turn aside, 5. 589. Cf. Du. blinken, to glitter, A. S. blícan, to glitter, Sc. blent, a glance.
- Blent, pp. S. blinded, 5. 502. A. S. blendian, to blind.
- Blered, pt. s. made dim, blurred; blered here eyes = cast a mist over their eyes, i. e. deceived them, pr. 74. Cf. Bavarian plerren, a blotch, plerr, a mist before the eyes. Probably only another spelling of blurred.
- Blered, pp. bleared, sore, inflamed, 5. 191. Perhaps blurred; but Mr. Wedgwood makes a difference between this word and the preceding one. Cf. Suio-Goth. blira, to look with half-shut eyes.
- Blisful, adj. S. full of happiness (which He bestows on others), 2. 3.
- Blissed, pp. S. rendered happy, filled with bliss, 5. 503. A. S. blissian, to make happy, which is distinct from blessian, to bless.
- Bló, adj. S. blue, 3. 97.
- Blosmed, pt. pl. S. blossomed, 5. 140. A. S. blosmian, from blosma, a blossom, bloom.
- Blowen, pp. S. blown, 5. 18.
- Blustreden, pt. pl. wandered blindly about, 5. 521. Very rare—but 'blustreden as blynde' = 'wandered about like blind people' occurs in Alliterative Poems, B. 886; ed. Morris, 1864.
- Bochere, sb. F. a butcher, 5. 330; pl. Bocheres, pr. 218, 3. 79.
- Boden, pp. S. bidden, invited, 2. 54. See Bidde.
- Boke, sb. S. book, 7. 85, 89.
- Bolded, 1 p. s. pt. S. I emboldened, 3. 198.
- Bolle, sb. S. bowl, wooden platter, 5. 108, 369, 526. A. S. bolla.
- Bollyng, sb. swelling, 6. 21. For bollyng of her wombe = to prevent swelling of their bellies, to prevent their growing too fat. Cf. Dan. bulne, to swell, bullen, swollen. See next word.
- Bolneth, pr. s. swells, 5. 119. See the preceding word.
- Bolted, pp. S. supported by iron bands, 6. 138. A. S. bolt, an arrow; hence, a bar.
- Bonched, pt. s. struck, lit. banged, pushed, knocked about, pr. 74. 'Bunchon, tundo, trudo.' Prompt-Parv. 'To bounche or pushhe one; he buncheth me and beateth me, il me pousse.' Palsgrave. Dan. banke, Du. bonken, to knock, rap.
- Bondman, sb. S. peasant, 5. 194. A. S. bonda, a husbandman, Suio-Goth. and Dan. bonde, a peasant; from A. S. buán, Icel. bua, G. bauen, Du. bouwen, to till, of which Icel. buandi, bondi was originally the present participle. Hence É. boor, a tiller, peasant, busband, the manager of the house. No connection with bind.
- Bondemen, pl. of Bondman, q. v.; pr. 216, 6. 46.
- Borde, sb. S. board, table, 6. 267.
- Bores, sb. pl. S. boats, 6. 31.

- Borghs, sb. S. borough, town, 2. 87, 6. 308.
- Borghs, sb. S. pledge, security, 7. 8; Borwgh, surety, bail, 4. 89; pl. Borwes, 1. 77. A.S. borb, Du. borg, a pledge. Both this word and the preceding are from A.S. beorgan, to secure. See Borwe.
- Bornes, gen. s. of Borne, sb. S. a brook, bourn, pr. 8. A.S. burne, Du. borne, a stream, spring, G. brunnen. Often confused with F. borne, a bound, limit, from a quite different root. See Wedgwood.
- Borwe, v. to borrow, S. 5. 257; 1 p. s. pr. I borrow, or rather, I promise to pay, 5. 429; pr. s. Borweth, 7. 81; pr. pl. Borwen, 7. 82; 1 p. s. pt. Borwed, 6. 101; pt. s. Borwed, 4. 53; pr. s. subj. Borwe, give security for, 4. 109. See Borghs, a pledge.
- Bote, sb. S. boot, remedy, restoration, amendment, 4. 89, 6. 196, 7. 28. From the root of better.
- Bote, pt. s. bit, 5. 84. A.S. bítan, pt. t. ic bát.
- Botened, pp. S. restored, assisted, bettered, 6. 194. See Bote, sb.
- Boterased, pp. F. buttressed, furnished with buttresses, 5. 598. F. bouter, to thrust, but.
- Boure, sb. S. bower, lady's chamber, 2. 64, 3. 14, 5. 222; Bowre, 3. 102.
- Bouste, pt. s. and pl. bought, 2. 3, 3. 86, 6. 210. See Bigge.
- Bow, sb. S. bough, 5. 32; pl. Bowes, 5. 584.
- Boweth, imp. pl. S. bend, turn, 5. 575.
- Bown, adj. ready, 2. 159. Icel. buinn, pp. of vb. bua, to prepare. Now corrupted into bound, as in bound for New York.
- Boxome. See Buxome.
- Brede, sb. S. breadth, 3. 202.
- Breke, v. S. to break, 7. 183; pr. pl. Brekeith, 6. 31; 2 p. pl. pr. subj. Breke, 5. 584; pt. s. subj. Breke, should break, miss., 5. 245.
- Bren, sb. F. bran, 6. 184, 285. F. bran, bren, W. bran, a husk.

- Canoun, sb. 5. 428. As this is mentioned with the decretals, it probably means the canon-law, with special reference to that part of it which had received the assent of our kings; see Canon in Hook's Church Dictionary. Otherwise, it must mean the most solemn part of the service of the mass, called Canon Missæ, or the Canon of the Mass. See Burguy, and Proctor or the Common Prayer, p. 319. A. S. canon, a rule, from Lat. canon, Gk. κανών.
- Canonistres, sb. pl. professors of the canon-law, men skilled in ecclesiastical law, 7. 149.
- Caple, sb. a horse, 4. 23; pl. Caples, 2. 161. O. Icel. kapall, W. ceffyl, Lat. caballus, a horse.

- Chirityme, sb. cherry-time, time of gathering cherries, 5. 161.
- Chiueled, pt. pl. trembled, 5. 193. MS. Bodley 814 has cheuerid; and certainly to chiuel is only another form of O. E. chuiuer or cheuer, our modern shiver. 'Chyue-ryng as one dothe for colde'; Palsgrave. Another spelling is chymere. 'Chymerynge, or chyue-rynge, or dyderynge. Frigutus.' Prompt. Parv.
- Clamey, pr. pl. F. proclaim, publish, cry aloud, 1. 93. Lat. clamare.
- Clarice, pr. n. Clarissa, 5. 159, 319.
- Clerematyn, sb. a kind of fine white bread, 6. 306. O. F. cler,
- clear, Lat. clarus; the latter part of the word points to F. matin, morning, when perhaps it was most used; cf. O. F. matinal, breakfast.
- Clergealy, adv. in a clerly manner, pr. 124.
- Clergye, sb. F. the clergy, a body of clerks, men of letters, pr. 116, 3. 164; gen. s. Clergise, 3. 15. It has reference rather to scholarly attainments than to holy orders.
- Clerke, sb. F. a man of learning, student of letters, 3. 3. 7. 73; pl. Clerkes, Clerkis, pr. 114, 7. 151; gen. pl. Clerken, 4. 119. O. F. clerc.
- Cleue, v. S. to cleave, divide, 7. 155.
- Cliket, sb. a latchkey, 5. 613. In Shropshire, to clicket is to fasten as with a link over a staple, and Hartshorne well points out that it properly means a lateb, although Chaucer and Langland use it to mean a latchkey; see Merchant's Tale, C. T. 9990. He also shews that the derivation is quite simple, though entirely overlooked. It is simply a Celtic word, and clieid in Welsh still means a door-latch. Cf. Suio-Goth. klinka, a doorbolt.
- Cliketed, pp. fastened with a latch, or catch, 5. 623. W. clieiedu, to fasten with a latch, from the cliek-ing sound. Cf. Du. klikklakken, to clash.
- Cloches, sb. pl. clutches, pr. 154. Allied to claw.
- Cloke, sb. a cloak, 6. 272.
- Clokke, v. F. to limp along lamely, to hobble, to lag, to be left in the lurch, 3. 34. O. F. clocher, to limp, Picard cloquer.
- Cloutes, sb. pl. S. clouts, patched clothes, 2. 220. A. S. clūt, a clout.
- Clowe, v. S. to claw, clutch, pr. 154. A. S. clawian.

- Cnowe, v. S. to know, 6. 222.
- Cobelere, sb. cobbler, 5. 327. Cf. W. cobio, to thump; also observe the resemblance between E. boteb and Du. botzen, to strike.
- Coffes, sb. pl. cuffs, 6. 62.
- Cofre, sb. F. coffer, chest, 5. 27. O. F. cofre, from Gk. κόφινος, a basket.
- Cokeres, sb. pl. S. short woollen socks, or stockings without feet, perhaps worn as gaiters, 6. 62. A. S. cocer, a sheath, Du. koker, a sheath, case, quiver.
- Coket, sb. a kind of fine white bread, 6. 306. The finest kind was simmel bread, paindemaigne, or sacramental bread; the next, wastel bread; 'nearly resembling this in price and quality, though at times somewhat cheaper, was light bread or puffe, also known as French bread or cocket . . . it seems far from improbable that it was so called from the word cocket, as meaning a seal, it being a strict regulation . . . that each loaf (at all events each loaf below a certain quality) should bear the impress of its baker's seal.'—Chambers. (See note.) The word cocket, a seal, occurs in Liber Albus; p. 40.
- Cokkeslane, i. e. Cock Lane, Smithfield, 5. 319.
- Colers, sb. pl. F. collars, pr. 162. Lat. collum, the neck.
- Coloppes, sb. pl. collops, 6. 287. Suio-Goth. kollops. Ihre says—'Kollops, edulii genus, confectum ex carnis segmentis, tudite lignea probe contusis et maceratis.' Cf. Sw. klappa, Du. kloppen, to beat.
- Comen, v. S. to come, 7. 188; pt. s. Come, pr. 112, 5. 532, &c.; pt. pl. Comen, 2. 150; pp. Comen, 4. 189; pt. s. subj. Come, should come, 6. 116.
- Comeres, sb. pl. S. chance-comers, strangers, 2. 230. Cf. A. S. cuma, a comer, guest, stranger.
- Comissarie, sb. F. 2. 179, 3. 142. 'Commissary, an officer of the bishop, who exercises spiritual jurisdiction in places of the diocese so far distant from the episcopal see, that the chancellor cannot call the people to the bishop's principal consistory court, without putting them to inconvenience.'—Imp. Dict.
- Comseth, pr. s. F. commences, begins, 1. 161, &c.; pt. s. Comsed, 3. 103, &c. Corrupted from F. commencer.
- Comune, sb. F. the commonalty, 3. 77; pl. Comunes, the commons, pr. 113; assemblies, 5. 47. In the latter place, Mr. Wright suggests the meaning commons, i. e. allowances of provision.
- Comune, adj. F. common, general, pr. 148.
- Conforte, v. F. to comfort, 1. 201, 2. 150, &c.; imp. s. Conforte, 6. 223. O. F. conforter, to invigorate, from fortis. In Langland, it seems better explained by comfort than by strengthen.
- Congey, v. to bid farewell to, dismiss, 3. 173; imp. s. Congeye me, say farewell to me, 4. 4. O. F. congier, lt. congedare, to dismiss.
- Conne, pr. pl. they can, 6. 151. See Can.
- Conneth, pr. pl. they know how to, pr. 33, 6. 124. See Can.
- Conscience, gen. conscience's, 3. 19.
- Conseille, sb. F. council, pr. 147, 3. 114, &c.
- Conseille, 1 p. s. pr. F. I counsel, pr. 187, 7. 195; 2 p. s. pt. Conseilledest, 3. 205.
- Consistorie, sb. F. consistory, i. e. the ecclesiastical court of an archbishop, bishop, or commissary, pr. 99, 2. 177, 3. 141, 318. See Comissarie.
- Construe, v. F. to translate, explain, pr. 144, 5. 426, &c.

- Contenance, sb. F. outward show, display, pr. 24; favour (as opposed to right), 5. 183.
- Contrarieth, pr. s. F. acts or speaks contrary to, 5. 55.
- Contreued, pt. s. F. contrived, devised, pr. 118. F. trouver.
- Conynges, sb. conies, rabbits, pr. 193. Du. konijn, G. kaninchen. These are nearer to the English than O. F. connil, It. coniglio, Lat. cuniculus.
- Cope, v. F. to provide a cope for, 5. 269; pr. s. Copeth, 3. 142; pt. pl. Coped, 2. 230; pp. Coped, 3. 35. In the two last passages it refers to the dress of a friar in particular. E. cape, cope.
- Copes, Copis, sb. pl. F. copes (with reference to bermits), pr. 56, 6. 191; (with reference to friars) pr. 61. Not short, like our modern cape, but a large cloak reaching down to the feet. F. chappe, It. cappa. Cf. coping-stone, cope or vault of heaven. Du. kap, coping, cap. W. cop, top, E. cap.
- Coppis, sb. pl. F. cups, 3. 22. F. coupe, It. coppa.
- Corps, sb. F. body, 1. 137. Lat. corpus.
- Corseint, sb. F. a saint, lit. a holy body, but applied here to a living saint, 5. 539. Cf. Chaucer's Dream, l. 942; Morte Arthure, 1164.
- Coste, sb. F. cost, expense, expenditure, 3. 68. O. F. couster, Lat. constare.
- Costed, pt. s. F. cost, pr. 203; pp. Costed, pr. 204.
- Costes, sb. pl. F. coasts, regions, 2. 85. Lat. costa.
- Coteth, pr. s. F. provides with a coat, 3. 142. O. F. cote, a tunic.
- Coude, pt. pl. S. could, pr. 129. See Couthe.
- Coudestow, 2 p. s. pt. (= coudest pou) couldst thou, 5. 540.
- Coueitise, sb. F. covetousness, avarice, pr. 61, 3. 68, &c. Provençal cobeitos, Lat. cupidus, covetous. The O. F. sometimes wrongly inserts an n, as in convoitise, covetousness.
- Couent, sb. F. convent, 5. 155; gen. Couentes, convent's, 5. 137. O. F. covent (as in Covent Garden), Lat. conventus.
- Countè, sb. F. county, 2. 85. F. comté, from Lat. comes, a count, lit. a companion.
- Coupe, sb. F. fault, sin, 5. 305. Lat. culpa, whence F. culpable, E. culpable.
- Coupes, sb. pl. hoops or rings (?), 3. 22. See the note.
- Coupleth, pr. s. F. couples, links, fastens, 3. 164; pt. pl. Coupled hem, joined themselves, 4. 149; pp. Coupled, fastened, held in with a leash; coupled and uncoupled, whether held in or free, pr. 206.* Lat. copula.
- Courbed, 1. p. s. pt. F. I bent, bowed, knelt, 1. 79, 2. 1. Lat. curvare.
- Courte, sb. F. courtyard, 5. 594. Lat. cobors, O. F. cort, It. corte.
- Courtpies, sb. pl. pea-jackets, short coats, 6. 191. Du. kort, short, and pije, coat of a coarse woollen stuff; also the material itself; whence pea-jacket. Cf. Mæso-Goth. gopaidon, to clothe, paida, a coat.
- Couth, 1 p. s. pr. I make known, I proclaim, 5. 181. A. S. cyðan, to make known.
- Couthe, pt. s. knew, pr. 182, 5. 520; could, 1. 115; 2 p. pl. Couthe, ye could, pr. 200, 3. 340. A. S. cunnan, to know, whence ic can, I can, I can; ic cude, I knew, O. E. I coud, now misspelt could. Cf. Mæso-Goth. kunnan, to know, ik kan, I can, ik kuniba, I could.
- Cracche, Cracchy, v. to scratch, pr. 154, 126. Du. krassen, to scratch.

- Craft, Crafte, sb. craft, contrivance, 1. 137, 2. 4, 3. 19: handicraft, trade, 5. 554; pl. Craftes, employments, trades, pr. 221, 7. 31. A. S. craft, skill, faculty, G. kraft, strength.
- Crafty, adj. S. skilful, cunning, well-executed, pr. 162: alkynnes crafty men, skilled men (craftsmen) of every kind, 3. 224, 6. 70.
- Credo, sb. the creed, 6. 91; from the first word in Latin—credo.
- Cristene, adj. F. Christian, 3. 287; pl. Cristene, 1. 190, 7. 195.
- Croft, Crofte, sb. croft, small enclosed field, 5. 581, 6. 33. A. S. croft.

- Cruddes, sb. pl. curds, 6. 284. W. crwd, a round lump.
- Culled, 1 p. pl. subj. killed, pr. 185. A. S. cwellan, pt. t. ic cwealde.
- Culorum, sb. ending, conclusion, 3. 278. Evidently a corruption of sæculorum, the last word of the Gloria Patri. It only occurs, I believe, in 'Piers Plowman' and in the 'Deposition of Rich. II.' It has, besides, a stronger force than conclusion merely, as it signifies the conclusion which gives the key-note to the whole. In the Sarum Psalter, the first word or words of the Anthem (with music) and the music of the sæculorum Amen are given. The latter is denoted only by its vowels; so that under the final musical phrase we find e. u. o. u. a. e.
- Culter, sb. Lat. coulter, 6. 106. Lat. culter, from colere.
- Cupmel, sb. S. 5. 225. In cupmel—in portions such as a cup will hold, in cupfuls. A. S. mælum, in-parts, dat. pl. of mæl, a fixed time, a fixed portion. So flocmeel, by flocks, gobetmele; by pieces at a time, &c. in Wycliffe's Bible. See Parcelmele. Cf. E. piecemeal.
- Curatoures, sb. pl. F. guardians, men who are entrusted with their wards' money, 1. 193. 'Curatier, Curatour: curateur, tuteur, courtier.'—Roquefort.
- Cure, sb. F. a cure of souls, pr. 88. Lat. cura.
- Curteise, adj. F. courteous, 4. 16.
- Curteisye, sb. F. courtesy, kindness, 1. 20, 5. 437.
- Curteisliche, adj. courteously, 3. 103, 4. 44, &c.
- Cutpurs, sb. a cutpurse, thief, 5. 639.

- Defendeth, pr. s. F. forbids, 3. 64.
- Defien, v. to be digested, 5. 389; Defye, 5. 121; to digest, pr. 229. O. F. deffier, to distrust, Lat. fides. Hence O. E. defy, to reject, renounce; also to withstand, digest; see the last passage quoted.
- Dele, v. to distribute, divide, share, 6. 99; to share money or other things with others, to give away, 1. 197; 2 p. pl. pr. Delen, 3. 71; to have dealings, 6. 77; 2 p. pl. pr. Delen, 7. 90. A. S. dælan, to divide, from dæl, a portion, deal, G. theil, Du. deel.
- Dele, sb. S. a part; some dele, partly, 5. 438.
- Delitable, adj. F. delightful, pleasant, nice, 1. 34.
- Deluen, v. to dig, 6. 143; 1 p. s. pr. Delue, 5. 552. A. S. delfan, Du. deluen.
- Deueres, sb. pl. S. diggers, ditchers, pr. 223, 6. 109.
- Deluyng, sb. S. digging, 6. 250.
- Deme, v. to deem, think, judge, 1. 86, 4. 178; 1 p. s. pr. Deme, 5. 114; imp. s. Deme, 6. 83, 182; pt. s. Demed, decided, 7. 160; p. p. Demed, condemned, 4. 181. A. S. dēman, to judge, dóm, judgment, doom.
- Denote, a proper name, 6. 73.
- Departed, pp. F. divided, parted, 7. 156. O. F. despartir, Lat. dispartiri, from pars.
- Depraue, v. F. to depreciate, revile, 3. 178; pr. pl. 5. 144.
- Dere, adv. S. dearly, 6. 293; me dere liketb, it dearly pleases me, 1 like best.
- Dere, v. to injure, harm, 7. 34; Deren, 7. 50. A. S. derian, to injure, Du. deren.
- Derke, adj. S. dark, pr. 16.

- Deye, Dey, v. to die, 1. 142, 3. 261, &c.; 2 p. pl. pr. subj. Deye, 6. 122; 2 p. s. pt. Deydest, 5. 4. S. Suio-Goth. dō, Icel. dēyja, Sw. dö, Dan. døe, to die.
- Deyinge, sb. dying, death-hour, 7. 34.
- Deyned, pt. pl. F. deigned, 6. 310. Lat. dignus.
- Deyse, sb. dais, high table at the end of the dining-hall, 7. 17. O. F. dais, deis, dois, originally a table, from Lat. discus; it afterwards meant a seat of state, a canopy, or an elevated platform.
- Diademed, pp. crowned, 3. 286. Gk. διδόμα, a fillet, from δέω, to bind.

- Diamantz, sb. pl. diamonds, 2. 13.
- Diapenidion, sb. 5. 123. Evidently some kind of medicine. Mr. Wright explains it to mean 'an electuary,' and supposes it to be derived from the Greek.
- Did. See Do.
- Diete þe, 2 p. s. subj. diet thyself, 6. 270. Gk. diæta, mode of life.
- Dignelich, adv. worthily, honourably, 7. 171. Lat. dignus.
- Diken, v. to make ditches or dykes, 6. 143; 1 p. s. pr. Dyke, 5. 552; pt. pl. Dykeden, 6. 193.
- Dikeres, sb. pl. ditchers, 6. 109. See Dykere.
- Dismas, 5. 473. See note.
- Discreue. See Desoryue.
- Disgised, pp. tricked out, pr. 24. See note. O. F. desguiser, to change one's clothes, Span. guisar, to dress meat, from a Teutonic source; O. H. G. wisa, wise, G. weise, A. S. wise, Du. wijs, E. wise, guise.
- Disourcs, sb. pl. story-tellers, romance-reciters, 6. 56. O. F. diseor, a tale-teller, from dire, Lat. dicere.
- Dissheres, sb. a maker, or retailer, of metal dishes, 5. 323. 'John le Disshere' is mentioned (A. D. 1304) in Memorials of London, ed. Riley, p. 54.
- Dizte, v. S. dight, prepare, make ready, 6. 293. A. S. dibtan, to arrange.
- Do, v. to do, to cause, 2 p. s. pr. Doste, 6. 83; 2 p. pl. pr. Done, 1. 53; pr. pl. Don, 6. 66; pp. Do, ended, 5. 418. When followed by another verb, the latter is always in the infin. mood, and, if transitive, apparently receives a passive signification. Thus, do maken, I cause to be made, 3. 60; do peynten, cause to be painted, 3. 62; don saue, causes to be saved, 7. 177. But it must be remembered that the second verb is not really passive, but we have lost the idiom which enables a German to say bauen lassen, to cause to be built, and the like. Hence we rightly translate don bym lese by cause him to lose, 5. 95, &c.; do men deye, cause men to die, 6. 276; I do it on, I refer it to, I make it depend on, 1. 86, 3. 187. To done (gerund) to transact business, 4. 27; to work, 6. 112; to be done, 6. 206. Dotb bym to go, prepares himself to go off, 2. 211. Do me, make my way, 5. 459. Dotb, imp. pl. do ye, 5. 44. Dede, pt. s. did, 3. 140. Dedest, didst, 7. 190. Dede, Deden, pt. pl. 7. 122, 5. 547. Did, caused, 5. 245.
- Doel, sb. mourning, lamentation, 5. 386. O. F. doel, duil, F. deuil, Lat. dolium in the comp. cordolium. Cf. Lat. dolor.
- Doke, sb. duck, 5. 75. Du. duiker, a diver.
- Dole, sb. sorrow, grief, 6. 122. See Doel.
- Doluen, pt. pl. delled, dug, 6. 193; pp. Doluen, buried, 6. 182. See Doluen.
- Dome, sb. doom, judgment, 2. 205, 3. 316, &c. A. S. dóm, judgment.
- Domesday, sb. doom's-day, judgment-day, 5. 20. 478.
- Donet, 5. 203. See note.
- Dongeon, Dongoun, sb. donjon, pr. 15, 1. 59. The 'donjon' or keep-tower is the principal tower in a castle; in it, prisoners often were confined, whence our dungeon. Mr. Wedgwood derives it from Lat. dominio, Burguy from the Celtic (Gaelic and Irish) dùn, a fortified place. O. F. donjon, dungon, doignon, a keep-tower.
- Dore-tre, sb. S. wooden bar of a door, 1. 185.
- Dorst. See Dar.
- Doted, adj. or pp. simple, foolish, 1. 138. Cf. F. radoter, to dote. Du. dut, sleep, dotags.

- Iogeloure, sb. F. a buffoon, juggler, 6. 72. Lat. joculator, O. Fr. jougleur, often written jangleur, and confused with O. Fr. jangleur, a tattler. See Iangelers.
- Ioutes, sb. pl. pottage, 5. 158. 'Iowtys, potage. Brassica, juta.' Prompt. Parv. See Way's note. Low Lat. juta, jutta; see Ducange.
- It ben, i. e. it is, or, they are, 6. 56.
- Iugge, v. F. to judge, pr. 130, 1. 94; pt. s. Iugged, 7. 161.
- Iugges, sb. pl. F. judges, 7. 184.
- Iustice, sb. F. a justice, magistrate, 3. 319, 7. 44.
- Iuwen, gen. pl. of the Jews, 1. 67.
- K.
- Kairen, v. S. to go up and down, wander (lit. to turn), pr. 29; pr. s. Kaireth, goes, travels, 4. 23; Kaires hym, turns, betakes himself, 5. 305; cf. Kairen hem, to carry themselves, 2. 161. In all these passages some MSS. read harien, and there must be an ultimate identity of A. S. ceran, O. Fris. ker, G. kebren, Du. keeren, to turn, with F. charier, Sw. köra, E. carry.
- Kayed, pp. fastened with a key, 5. 623.
- Kenne, v. to make known, 1. 92; to explain, 5. 426, 7. 107; to teach, 1. 81; pr. s. Kenneth, teaches, 6. 22, 7. 73; pt. s. Kenned, guided, 4. 43; taught, 7. 133; pt. pl. Kenned, guided, 5. 546; imp. s. Kenne, teach, 2. 4, 6. 24; imp. pl. Kenneth, teach, 6. 14. Icel. kenna, to teach, to know; the Mæso-Goth. has kannjan, to make known, kunnan, to know.
- Kepe, 1 p. s. pr. I care, care for, desire, 3. 278, 4. 193.
- Kerneled, pp. F. furnished with

- battlements, embattled, 5. 597. F. crénald, from crénau, a battlement.
- Kerue, v. S. to carve, cut, 6. 106.
- Ketten, pl. pl. S. cut, 6. 191.
- Keure, v. F. to cover, 3. 60.
- Kidde, pl. s. exhibited towards, shewed, 5. 440. A. S. cyðan, to make known, tell, pt. t. ic cydde.
- Kingene, gen. pl. of kings, 1. 105.
- Kirke, sb. church, 5. 1. 6. 93.
- Kirtel, sb. a kind of petticoat, worn under the jacket or kourteby, 5. 80. A. S. cyrtel, Sw. kjortel.
- Kitoun, sb. a kitten, pr. 190.
- Kitthe, sb. region, country, 3. 203. A. S. cyð, a region.
- Knappes, sb. pl. knops, knobs, 6. 272. A. S. cnæp, a knop, button.
- Knaue, sb. S. a boy, lad, servant, 4. 16, 5. 116; pl. Knaues, pr. 44, 225.
- Knowe, pp. S. known, 5. 648.
- Knowes, sb. pl. S. knees, 5. 359.
- Knowing, sb. S. knowledge, 1. 136.
- Knowleched, pt. s. acknowledged, confessed, 5. 481. In Swedish, some abstract nouns end in -lek, and lek means sport; in Icel. the termination is -leikr, also meaning sport; in A. S. it is -læc, which means (1) a gift, (2) sport. Hence I would connect -leche with Mosogoth. laikan, to sport, play, and consider it distinct from the endings -ly and -like.
- Kokeney, sb. 6. 287. This word seems to have three meanings in Early English: (1) a cockered or spoilt child; cf. Ch. Cant. Ta. 4206; (2) a little cook or cook's lad, Lat. coquinator; and (3) a little cock or cockerel. The last seems to be the meaning here, but the second also makes sense; to make collops requires both something to make them of and somebody to make them. Even after perusing Mr. Wright's note, the note by Halliwell (s.v. Cockney), the two notes by Way in Prompt. Parv. (s.v. Coknay and Kokeney), and Wedgwood's note (s.v. Cockney), I cannot feel satisfied that the matter is settled. The two quotations cited by Mr. Wright are but vague.
- Kokewolde, sb. a cuckold, 4. 164, 5. 159.
- Koleplantes, sb. pl. coleworts, cauliflowers, cabbages, &c., 6. 288. A. S. cawl, Lat. caulis, G. kobl.
- Konne, pr. pl. S. can, know how to, 6. 70; 2 pl. pl. subj. Kunne, know, 6. 255; pr. pl. Kunneth, know, 7. 41.
- Konning, adj. S. cunning, clever, 3. 34.
- Kourteby, sb. 5. 80. See Court-pies.
- Kullen, v. S. to kill, 1. 66; pt. s. 1 p. Kulled, 3. 186. A. S. cwellan.
- Kulter, sb. coulter, 3. 306. The A. S. culter, E. coulter are simply borrowed from the Latin.
- Kynde, adj. S. natural, innate; kynde witte = natural intelligence, pr. 118; common sense, 1. 55.
- Kynde, sb. S. kind, pr. 186, nature, natural disposition, 2. 27.
- Kyndely, adv. intimately, 1. 81, 161, 5. 545; kindly, 3. 15.
- Kyne, sb. pl. kine, cows, 6. 142.
- Kyngriche, sb. S. kingdom, pr. 125, G. königreich.
- Kynne, sb. S. kin, kindred, 2. 130.
- Kynnes, gen. sing. in phr. any kynnes, of any kind, 5. 273. See Alkin.
- Kyrke, sb. S. church, 5. 269.

L.

- Lacche, v. to catch, 5. 355; to get, acquire, 6. 230; 2 pl. s. subj. Lacche, catch, 2. 202; pt. s. Lauzte, pr. 150; pt. pl. Lauzteleue, took leave, 3. 25. A. S. laccan, gelaccan; cf. E. latch, c-lutch,

- Lacchyng, sb. S. clutching, receiving, 1. 101.
- Ladde, led. See Lede.
- Lafte, left. See Leue (3).
- Lafte, 1 p. s. pl. remained, stayed behind (some MSS. have leftte), 3. 196. See Wright's P. Plowman, p. 440, l. 14426, but especially William of Palerne, ed. Skeat, ll. 1588, 1858.
- Laike, v. to play, sport, pr. 172. A. S. lācan, Sw. leka, Mæso-Goth. laikan, to sport; E. (slang) to lark.
- Lakke, v. to blame, find fault with, 5. 132; pr. pl. 2 p. Lakkeþ, 3. 54; imp. s. Lakke, 2. 47, 6. 227. A. S. leāban, O. Fris. lakia, Du. laken, to blame.
- Lammasse, Lammass, 6. 291.
- Lappe, sb. a portion, 2. 35; pl. Lappes, laps, 6. 295. A. S. lappa, a flap or loose border of a garment, also the lap; G. lappen, a flap, rag, lobe; cf. E. lappet, lobe, flabby, lip. See Leef.
- Largeness, sb. bounty, largesse, 5. 632.
- Lasse, adj. and adv. S. less, 2. 45, 3. 201, &c.
- Lat, Late, let. See Lete.
- Late, adv. late, 3. 73; comp. Latter, later, less readily, 1. 197.
- Laughen, v. s. to laugh, rejoice, 4. 106.
- Lauste, caught, took. See Lacche.
- Law3e of, v. to laugh at, 4. 18; pres. part. Lawghyng, 4. 153. See Laughen.
- Leche, sb. a leech or physician, 1. 202; pl. Leches, 6. 275. A. S. lācce, Mæso-Goth. lekeis.
- Lechecraft, sb. medicinal art, 6. 256.
- Lede, sb. lead, 5. 600. A. S. lead, Du. lood.
- Lede, sb. man, 1. 139, 5. 522; pl. Ledes, 3. 96. A. S. leod, G. leute, Du. lieden, people, folks.
- Cf. E. lad; also Low Lat. litus, ledus, a sort of peasant-farmer.
- Lede, v. s. to lead, guide, govern, 4. 148; to draw (a cart), 2. 179; pt. s. 1 p. Ladde, led, took, carried, 5. 251; 2 p. Laddest, didst lead, 7. 189; pt. s. Ladde, led (captive), 5. 498; imp. pl. Ledeth, conduct, 2. 134.
- Leder, sb. S. leader, governor, 1. 157; Ledere, 1. 159.
- Ledyng, sb. S. leading, guidance, 2. 42.
- Leef, sb. a bit, piece, small portion, 6. 256, 7. 110; cf. 5. 203; Leif, a leaf (of a book), 3. 337; gen. case, Leues, 3. 336. The idea of a small flat, flapping substance is expressed by lap, lappet, leaf; if the substance is rounded, by lobe, lip. See Lappe, and note that another reading for lappe (2. 35) is lippe. From signifying leaf it also means a part of a leaf, as in 5. 203, &c. See Lyppe.
- Legge, v. s. to lay, 2. 34, 6. 270.
- Legistres, sb. pl. legists, advocates, men skilled in the law, 7. 14, 59. O. F. legistre.
- Lelli, Lelly, adv. F. loyally, faithfully, verily, 1. 78, 3. 30; Lelliche, 1. 179.
- Lemman, sb. sweetheart, mistress, lover (used of both sexes), 2. 21; pl. Lemmannes, 3. 150. Contr. from leof man or lef man; A. S. leof, dear.
- Lene, v. to lend, give, 5. 244, 6. 17; 1 p. s. pr. 5. 250; 2 p. pl. pr. subj. 1. 179. A. S. lennan.

- Soft, adj. S. mild, warm, pr. 1.
- Sokene, sb. explained by Mr. Wright as 'a district held by tenure of socage,' 2. 110. Bosworth explains the Law-Latin word soca as a 'lordship enfranchised by the king, with the liberty of holding or keeping a court of his soemen or socagers, that is, of his tenants, whose tenure is hence called socagium, in Eng. socage.' See A. S. sóc in Bosworth.
- Solfe, v. to sol-fa, i. e. sing by note, to call over the notes by their names, viz. ut, re, mi, sol, fa, &c., 5. 423.
- Some dele, partly, 5. 438. See Dele, sb.
- Somer-game, sb. a summer-game, 5. 413. See the note.
- Somme, adj. pl. some, pr. 31, 222; dat. pl. to some, 3. 284. In 3. 13 it means 'together'; cf. A. S. samod, sam, together; see note.
- Sompne, v. F. to summon, 2. 158, 3. 314. Lat. summoneo.
- Sompnoure, sb. F. a summoner or sommer (an officer who summons delinquents to appear in an ecclesiastical court; now called an apparitor), 4. 167; pl. Sompnoures, 3. 133. See Chaucer's Prologue.
- Sonde, sb. 3. 349. Explained as 'a mission, sending,' by Mr. Wright; but I feel sure that the true sense is—that which is sent, viz. a present; cf. Dan. sendig, a gift, a present, from sende (A. S. sendan) to send. In Old Eng. sonde also means a portion of food sent in a dish, a present of viands. Observe the context.
- Songen, pt. pl. S. sang, 5. 345, 6. 117.
- Songewarie, sb. the interpretation of dreams, or more properly, observation of dreams, 7. 148, 150. O. F. songe, Lat. somnium, and O. F. warir, garir, A. S. warian, to guard, ward, keep.

Streyte, adv. straitly, strictly, pr. 26. O. F. estroit, Lat. strictus.
Streynes, sb. pl. estrays, pr. 94. Explained by Mr. Wright—'beasts which have gone astray'—in accordance with the present usual meaning. But the old meaning is different, viz. goods which a stranger leaves behind him at death, and which go to the king or lord for default of heirs. See estrabere in Roquefort. O. F. estrabere, estreyere, &c., from Lat. extra.
Stroke, pt. s. moved rapidly, brushed quickly past the rest and advanced, pr. 183. A. S. strican, to go, G. streichen, Du. strijken, to sweep rapidly over a surface, to graze, stroke. See Stryke.
Struyeth, pr. pl. destroy, 6. 29. O. F. destruire; cf. lt. struggere, to destroy, waste.
Stryke, imp. s. go quickly, pass quickly, 5. 586. See Stroke.
Studye, v. F. to study, muse, 7. 143.
Stues, sb. pl. F. stews, 6. 72.
Stuwardes, sb. pl. stewards, pr. 96, 5. 48. A. S. stiuward. O. Icel. stiuwardr, one whose business it is to look to the daily work of a farm, from stjá, domestic occupation, especially foddering the

- cattle; cf. stia, a sheep-house, E. sty; cf. Sw. stia, a pen for geese. Thus steward is for sty-ward. See Wedgwood.

- Synful, adj. sinful (men), 7. 15.
- Synneless, adj. sinless, 6. 232.
- Sysoure, 4. 167. See Sisoure.
- Sythes, pr. 230. See Sithes.
- Syðt, sb. S. sight, pr. 32.

T.

Tabarde, sb. F. a loose over-coat, sometimes sleeveless, sometimes with loose wide sleeves, open at the sides, 5. 196. F. tabarre, Sp. tabardo.

Taille, sb. a tally, a stick on which the amount of money is notched or scored, 4. 58. F. tailler, to cut, taille, a tally.

Taille, sb. a tally, 5. 252. See preceding word.

Taille, sb. S. a tail, end, conclusion, 3. 347; tail of followers, train, 2. 185; pl. Tailles, roots of trees, 5. 19.

Take, v. S. (1) to take; (2) to give, 1. 56; Taketh, pr. s. gives, 4. 58; Toke, pt. s. gave, 3. 45. The latter meaning is common, and occurs in Chaucer.

Tale, sb. (1) account (bolde þei no tale = take no account), 1. 9; (2) a tale, esp. a lying tale, 2. 114, 3. 45. The former is the original meaning; cf. A. S. tal, a number, reckoning, G. zahl, a number.

- Tauerners, sb. pl. F. keepers of taverns, pr. 227.

- Tixt*, sb. a text, 2. 121; Tixte, 3. 342.
- To*, prep. to; but often used in very different senses, as in to body = so as to have a body, 1. 62; to man = so as to become a man, 1. 82; after, 6. 30; upon, 5. 173; to nonne = as a nun, who is a nun, 5. 153; for, 7. 135. A.S. to, to, for, at.
- To*, adv. too, 6. 265. A.S. tō.
- To-*, prefix; (1) apart; answering to G. zer-, O. Fris. to-, te-, O. H. Germ. za-, ze-, Moso-Goth. dis-, Lat. dis-, with the force of in twain, asunder; examples, to-broke, to-lugged, to-torne, which see; (2) exceedingly, a modification of the former; example, to-bolle; (3) the prep. to- in composition, as in A.S. to-gang, approach. Of this third use there is no example in Piers the Plowman, except tofore, but it is common in German, as in zugang, approach.
- To-bolle*, pp. swelled exceedingly, swelled so as to be ready to split, 5. 84. Dan. bulne, Sw. bulna, to swell; Dan. bullen, swollen, etymologically connected with boil, ball, bole, bowel, belly, billow; cf. Lat. bulia, G. bolle. Bolled occurs in Exod. ix. 31. See To-, prefix.

- Toft*, pr. 14, 1. 12. Here, a slightly elevated, exposed site; properly, the Su.-Goth. tomt is a cleared space, area, or site; cf. Dan. tomt, a site, toft, Dan. toft, an enclosed field near a farmhouse, Icel. topt, a farm, area. See Tome.
- Togideres*, together, 1. 195, 2. 83.
- Toke*, pt. s. gave, 3. 45; toke þei on = if they added to their wealth, 3. 85. See Take.
- Tokenynge*, sb. S. token, 5. 19.
- To-kirke-ward*, i. e. towards kirk or church, 5. 305.
- Tolde*, 1 p. s. pr. I counted out, reckoned, 5. 252.
- Tolled*, pp. 5. 214. Either this means counted, in which case it should be spelt told (which is not in the MSS.), or else it is an example of the somewhat rare O. E. verb tolle, tille, tulle, to fondle, coax, also to draw; thus tolled out = drew out, were drawn out into by coaxing. That this last is the right explanation is rendered probable by the fact that some MSS. read tilled. Tulle occurs in Chaucer.
- Tolleres*, sb. pl. collectors of tolls or dues, pr. 220.
- To-lugged of*, pp. pulled about in various directions by, 2. 216. See To-, prefix.

- Tythe, sb. a tithe, 6. 78, 94. A. S. teode, the tenth.

V.

- Vche a, each, pr. 207, 5. 116.
- Vchone, each one, 1. 51, 2. 138.
- Veille, sb. 5. 450. Mr. Wright explains it by 'an old woman,' but I think it means a watcher, a waker; just as we confuse the meanings in English, and say 'a watch' for a watcher. O. F. veille, Lat. vigilia, a vigil, watch. This is confirmed by the Harleian MS. 875, which has 'Vigilate þe wakere.'
- Venesoun, sb. venison, pr. 194. Properly it means that which is taken in hunting; cf. F. venaison, Lat. venatio, from venare, to hunt.
- Venge, v. F. to avenge, 5. 128. Lat. vindicare.
- Veniaunce, sb. F. vengeance, 3. 258.
- Vernicle, sb. the vernicle, 5. 530. See the note.
- Vesture, sb. F. clothing, 1. 23.
- Vigilias, sb. pl. vigils, fasts, 5. 416. Used by Chaucer.
- Vitailleurs, sb. pl. victuallers, 2. 60.
- Vitailles, sb. pl. victuals, 5. 443. O. F. vitaille, It. vittuaglia, from Lat. vivere.
- Vmwhile, adv. for a time, 5. 345. A. S. ymbe, G. um, about, and hwil, a time. Cf. S. umquibile.
- Vnboxome, adj. S. disobedient, 2. 82. See Buxome.
- Vncoupled, pp. unfastened, loose, pr. 162, 206. See Completh.
- Vncristne, adj. pl. unchristian men, heathens, 1. 93.

- Vnderfonge, 1 p. s. pt. I received, 1. 76; Vnderfongen, pr. pl. receive, 3. 214; pp. Vnderfongen, 7. 171. See Fange.
- Vndernymeth, pr. s. reproves, reprehends, 5. 115. I cannot find that Langland uses it anywhere in the sense of 'to undertake, take possession of,' given in Mr. Wright's glossary. 'Vnderneme. Reprebendo, deprebendo, arguo, redarguo.' Prompt. Parv. See Nym.
- Vneth, adv. scarcely, 4. 60. A. S. eād, easy.
- Vnglosed, pp. without a gloss or comment, 4. 145. See Glosed.
- Vngraue, pp. not engraved, 4. 130.
- Vnhardy, adj. not hardy, not bold, timid, pr. 180.
- Vnkouth, adj. strange (lit. unknown), 7. 155. A. S. cūð, known.
- Vnlese, pt. pl. unloose, uncloze, pr. 213. A. S. lysan, to loosen.
- Vnmoebles, sb. pl. immoveable property, 3. 267. See Moebles.
- Vnsowen, v. to unsew, 5. 66.
- Vnthende, adj. small, out-of-season, 5. 177. Cf. A. S. þeōnde, increasing, growing, powerful, from þeōn, to flourish, thrive. Mr. Wright explains it 'unserved, without sauce,' which I think less likely. Some MSS. have vnbande.
- Vntil, prep. to, pr. 227.
- Vokates, sb. pl. advocates, 2. 60.
- Vp, prep. upon, 1. 12; vp gesse = upon a guess, by guess, 5. 421.
- Vpholderes, sb. pl. sellers of second-hand things, old-clothes-men, 5. 325. They were also called upboldsters, whence our upbolsterer, i. e. a furniture-broker. Palsgrave has—'Upholstar, fripier,' which was once the nearest French word in signification. From the vb. to upbold, to keep up.
- Vppe, adv. aloft, 4. 72. A. S. uppe = aloft, on high.
- 's selue, ourselves, 7. 127.
- Vsedestow, didst thou use, 5. 240.
- Vsurè, sb. F. usury, 5. 240, 7. 83; Vsurye, 2. 175.

W.

Wafrestre, sb. a female maker or seller of wafers, 5. 641.

Wage, v. to wager, engage, give surety, 4. 97; Waged, pp. 4. 100. Low Lat. vadum, O. F. gage, a pledge, connected with Mæso-Goth. wadi, A. S. wed. See Wedde.

Walshe, sb. Welshman, 5. 324. Lit. a foreigner; A. S. wealþ, a foreigner; wealþas, foreigners, Welshmen. Cf. G. wälseb, foreign, Italian.

Wan, pt. s. went, struggled forward, 4. 67. Some MSS. have wente; cf. the Scotch use of win.

Wanhope, sb. S. despair, 2. 99, 5. 286. Wan- is an A. S. prefix, expressing lack, want; from sb. wana, deficiency; cf. E. wane.

Wanye, v. to wane, 7. 55. A. S. wanian.

War, adj. S. aware, 2. 8.

Wardemotes, sb. pl. meetings of a ward, pr. 94. Cf. witena gemote, i. e. meeting of wise men.

Ware þe, imp. s. guard thyself, 5. 452. A. S. wārian, to be cautious.

Wareine, sb. a warren, pr. 163. O. F. garene, warene, a place for keeping animals, from O. F. garer, to keep. Cf. warrant, guarantee, garrison.

Warner, sb. a warrener, keeper of a warren, 5. 316.

Warpe, pt. s. uttered, 5. 87, 369. A. S. weorpan, G. werfen, to cast.

Warrok, v. to girt, fasten with girths, 4. 20. Cf. O. E. warlok, a fetter, in Prompt. Parv.

- Wastel, sb. a cake of bread of fine flour, 5. 293. O.F. gasteau, gastel, F. gâteau.
- Wastoure, sb. F. a waster, wasteful person, 6. 154; Wastoures, pl. 6. 29. Cf. Lat. vastare.
- Watt, Watte, short form of Walter, 5. 30, 316.
- Wawe, pr. s. subj. walk, go about, 7. 79. Many MSS. have walke. Cf. A. S. wágian, to wag.
- Wax, Waxen, v. to grow, increase, 7. 55, 3. 300. See Wex.
- Wayne, v. 5. 611. To wayne up is to work up, to get up by labour, lift with difficulty; cf. Sc. wín up. O. F. gaagnier, E. gain.
- Wayte, v. F. to watch, look after, 5. 202; Wayted, pp. 5. 551. See Waited.
- Webbe, sb. a web, thing woven, 5. 111.
- Webbe, sb. a female weaver, 5. 215. We find A. S. webbe, a female weaver, as well as webbestre; and wëbere for a male weaver.
- Wedde, sb. S. pledge, gage, wager, 3. 201, 5. 244. See Wage.
- Wederes, sb. pl. weathers, storms, 6. 326. A. S. weder.

- Wehe, sb. a word intended to denote by its sound the neighing of a horse, 4. 22.
- Wel, adv. well; used as an adj. 3. 65, 152; (2) very, 3. 161; wel worse = much worse, 5. 114.
- Welche, sb. 5. 199. It is perhaps hardly possible to settle the meaning of this word, respecting which MSS. differ. The Vernon MS. has walk, which is intelligible; the Trin. MS. (Mr. Wright's) has welpe, which Mr. Wright explains by walt, which is not satisfactory. The Rawl. MS. has welsch; but the best suggestion is in MS. Trin. R. 3. 15, which has—þat walssbe scarlet, evidently a contemptuous expression; for the O. E. welsch or walsch means nauseous, disgusting.
- Wende, v. to wend, go, 6. 60; Wenden, 2. 160; pr. s. Wendeth, 4. 105; pr. pl. Wenden, pr. 162; pt. pl. Wenten, 4. 76; pp. Went, gone, 6. 207; turned, changed, 3. 280; imp. s. Wende, go, 3. 264. lf, pron. acc. pl. yourselves,

3us, adv. yes, 5. 125, 233, 643. It answers questions that contain or involve a negative, and is quite distinct from the affirmative particle 3e; it is also of greater force, and signifies declaration of opinion,
whereas 3e merely assents.

3ut, adv. yet, pr. 185.
