CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC.

This School is established for the purpose of affording superior advantages for pursuing the study of music in all of its higher branches.

The general plan of the school is similar to that of the best European Conservatories, and aims at the production of intelligent musicians of liberal culture in the various departments of musical activity.

As the course of study laid down in Colleges and Seminaries of learning is not intended to give a knowledge of any single branch, but by combining the study of Language, Mathematics, Natural Science, Metaphysics, etc., to secure to the student such an intellectual development as will form a substantial basis for future attainments, so in the Conservatory the course has been planned with reference to securing that symmetrical development of the musical faculties which is essential in the true musician, whether teacher or virtuoso.

COURSE OF STUDY.

Harmony and Composition.

FIRST TERM.

Musical Notation, Keys, Scales and Signatures, Intervals, Formation of the Triad, Chord connection. Simple part-writing from given Basses and Sopranos.

SECOND TERM.

First seven chapters of Richter's Manual of Harmony, with additional exercises in harmonizing Basses and Melodies.

THIRD TERM.

Eighth chapter to Part Third of Richter's Manual, with additional exercises, as in the second term.

FOURTH TERM.

Part Third of Richter's Manual, with additional examples and exercises, including reading and writing from sound. Harmonizing Melodies continued.

FIFTH TERM.

Modulation. Harmonizing Chorals begun.

SIXTH TERM.

Choral work continued.

SEVENTH TERM.

Single Counterpoint.

EIGHTH TERM.

Double Counterpoint.

NINTH TERM.

Canon.

TENTH TERM.

Fugue.

Analysis.

In addition to the above course, one year's work in Musical Analysis is required. This may be done during any year after the student has finished the fourth term of Harmony.

The object of this study is to train students to think musically, to become more ready readers, and to follow more intelligently the great masterpieces when listening to their performance. With this end in view, the piano is used during the lessons so that the students may learn to analyze the different movements, to distinguish the character of the different chords, etc., through the sense of hearing as well as through the eye.

The course embraces the following lectures and exercises:

- I. How we Hear from Helmholtz's "On the Sensations of Tone as a Physiological Basis for the Theory of Music."
- II. Motives Written exercises and analysis of Bach's two and three voiced Inventions.
- III. Phrases and Periods, Cadences, Accent, and Rhythm. Writing of phrases and periods, and analysis of works of composers since Bach.

- IV. Key Relationship and Modulation. Study of the character of various chords, and exercises in distinguishing chord connection by ear.
- V. The smaller Forms of Instrumental Music. Analysis of movements from Beethoven's sonatas.
- VI. Thematic Development and Motive Transformation, with written exercises.
 - VII. The Sonata Form Analysis of Beethoven's sonatas.
- VIII. The Fugue Analysis of fugues from Bach's well-tempered clavichord.
- IX. The Classical and Romantic Schools, with illustrations from the works of several composers of each school.

VESTIBULE AND OFFICE.

History.

The course comprises the history of modern music from the beginning of the Christian era to the present time, and consists of lectures, text-book work, and essays by members of the class, with illustrations and musical examples. The class is open to all conservatory students.

Piano-forte.

In this department especial attention is paid to the development of a musical touch, and a refined and intelligent school of playing.

The course of study includes:

- I. Technical exercises, which are intended to give control over the muscles of the fingers, hands, and arms, making them readily responsive to the commands of the will.
- II. Études by the best teachers and composers, which are designed to give further development to the executive powers, to bring about a finer relation between the physical and intellectual faculties and to form a connecting link between purely technical work and the higher forms of musical expression.
- III. Compositions of sterling merit by the best writers, both ancient and modern, ensemble playing, etc., for æsthetic development.

The instruction is always individual, the effort on the part of the teacher being to adapt the work to the personal needs of each student. It will readily be seen that with so large a number of students, recourse must necessarily be had to a great variety of compositions, a list of which it would be impossible to insert here.

Piano practice can be secured in Warner Hall, but those who wish to have a piano-forte in their room will generally find no difficulty in renting one in the place.

Ensemble Playing.

It is very desirable that pianists be able to play well with other instruments in concerted music. In order that advanced pupils may have the necessary drill in this, the teachers of the stringed instruments spend an hour or more each day in playing with them in duos, trios, etc. Special attention is given to securing steadiness in playing and proper balance of parts.

Stringed Instruments.

No instrument is so well adapted to the expression of every shade of musical feeling as the violin, viola, or violoncello. This requires a pure, free, and full tone, to obtain which the instruction aims, first, to secure the proper use of the bow-arm, and, second, strength and facility in the use of the fingers. The instruction is necessarily individual and is based upon the best schools for these instruments, together with études, solo pieces, and concertos by the best writers. Abundant opportunity is given for ensemble playing in string quartets, duos, trios, etc., with piano, ranging from simple compositions to the master works of the classical and modern schools, thus laying the foundation for a broad, intelligent style.

Advanced students have the further advantage of the study of orchestral music, and practice with the teachers in string quartets, etc.

ELEVATOR AND LECTURE-ROOM.

Voice.

True cultivation of the voice consists in the development of pure tone, and its easy, natural use and control in singing. Correct use of the breath, intonation, attack, legato, accent, phrasing, and pronunciation are the leading features of technical drill.

Neither the so-called method of the Italians nor that of the Germans is used exclusively; but by the adoption of what are believed to be the best features of all methods, as well as by the use of a discriminating judgment as to any peculiar needs of the particular voice under treatment, we endeavor to carry forward the formation and development of the singing voice.

At the same time, a higher ideal than the perfection of mere mechanical skill is aimed at, viz.: a musicianly style of singing, and all that is implied in the broad term "interpretation," together with a thorough appreciation of the best works of the great masters both new and old.

Thus we hope to prepare our pupils for successful teaching, for positions in church choirs and for the concert stage, and through them to advance the cause of artistic singing.

Organ.

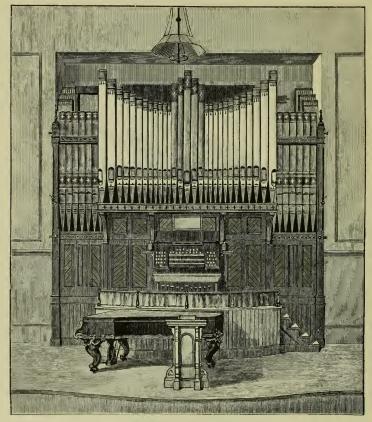

We give special prominence to the department of organ instruction. Aside from the high position which the organ holds as a means of musical culture, there is a great and growing need of well-trained organists for the churches of our country, while the opportunities for competent instruction are confessedly inadequate. We believe, therefore, that we are justified in the efforts we are putting forth to provide the facilities necessary to enable young persons of talent to fully prepare themselves for the responsible work to which a church organist is called.

The plan of work provides for thorough training in all that pertains to a mastery of the organ for church or concert use, including special exercises in playing Church Music, Voluntaries, and the Art of Improvisation, Systematic Drill in Technics, Registration, and the Art of Accompaniment. The course of study has also been arranged with special reference to giving a knowledge of the different schools of organ music as represented by the best composers in each.

The Conservatory has the exclusive use of a large and exceptionally fine concert organ which contains three manuals, forty stops, two and a half octaves of pedals, and eleven combination pedals.

This organ has been pronounced by competent judges to be one of the finest concert organs for its size in the United States, and this, in addition to the already excellent advantages afforded to students in this branch of study, places the department in a position superior to that of any other school in this country.

Organ students will do most of their practice on pedal organs and pedal pianos (with which the school is well supplied), and will in addition be allowed the use of the Conservatory organ and the large organ in the Second Church for the study of registration and preparation for public performance.

Wind Instruments.

The instruments taught in this department are the Cornet, French Horn, Clarinet, Flute, and Oboe. Practice in ensemble playing is an important part of the instruction given.

Diplomas.

Diplomas are awarded by the Trustees of the College to students who have a good English education and have given satisfactory evidence to the Conservatory Faculty of the requisite attainments in Harmony and Composition, and at least two other branches.

The time necessary for making these attainments cannot be definitely stated, depending as it does upon the previous acquirements of the student and upon his talent and diligence.

Enough time, however, is required to give him a thorough understanding of the branches pursued and a high degree of executive ability in them. Very few are able to do this in less than four years.

GENERAL INFORMATION.

Warner Hall.

This splendid stone building, the munificent gift of Dr. and Mrs. Lucien C. Warner, of New-York City, is one of the finest structures ever erected exclusively for the use of a School of Music. It has a frontage of 150 feet on North Professor street and a depth of 120 feet, and contains a fine Concert Hall, a Lecture-room, Orchestra-room, Library, Offices, thirteen Lesson-rooms, and forty Practice-rooms. It is heated throughout with steam, and is supplied with a fine passenger elevator.

The rooms are also supplied with self-winding clocks, all of which are connected by means of electricity with a central regulator which is placed in the main vestibule of the hall and regulates the entire circuit. This system of time service is the gift of Mr. Chester H. Pond, of New-York City, and is believed to be the most perfect in its working of anything of the kind that has yet been invented.

Regulations.

Students are under the regular College discipline. The regulations are few and simple, appealing to the student's self-respect and personal responsibility.

Students are required to abstain from the use of tobacco and intoxicating drinks.

No student is allowed to visit one of the other sex at a private room, except by special permission in case of severe sickness.

DIRECTOR'S OFFICE.

Students are required to attend daily prayers, in the evening at the Chapel, and in the morning in the families in which they board.

Students must register their names and pay their tuition before their lessons are assigned.

Only in case of severe illness of several weeks' duration can any deduction be made for absence from lessons. In such cases the Conservatory will share the loss equally with the student.

No student is allowed to take part in any public musical exercises without permission from the Director.

No student is allowed to engage in teaching or receiving instruction in music outside of the Conservatory.

Students should bring testimonials of good moral character.

Class and Private Instruction.

In all departments of the Conservatory, except in that of Harmony and Theory, students receive either class or private instruction, as they may elect.

In CLASS INSTRUCTION, three students are assigned to the same hour. Each student, however, receives more than twenty minutes of instruction. He has that amount of personal supervision, but in addition he receives all of the criticisms and suggestions made by the teacher to each of his classmates, which he will generally find quite as valuable as those made to himself. The instruction in the case of each student is personal, and aims to meet his individual needs, and whilé the class may or may not be studying the same composition, the suggestions and principles developed are applicable to all.

In PRIVATE INSTRUCTION only two persons are assigned to the same hour. Advanced students, and those who are giving special attention to any particular department of study, are recommended to take Private Instruction, as they in this manner have more time individually with the teacher, and at the same time they gain most of the advantages of class lessons. The difference in cost is in proportion to the difference in the amount of personal supervision in each case.

Free Privileges.

The following exercises are free to all members of the Conservatory:

- 1. Choral Class, meeting four times each week.
- 2. A course of lectures upon Art, delivered by members of the College Faculty before the Senior Class during the spring term.
- 3. Weekly rehearsals, and recitals given by teachers and students.

- 4. Lectures upon Musical Form, a class in Musical History, and Analysis of musical works, by Mr. C. P. Doolittle.
- 5. Lectures on Acoustics and Vocal Physiology by Professor Chamberlain.
- 6. The College Library, numbering 20,000 volumes, is open to the use of all Conservatory students, without extra charge.

Students' Rebearsals.

One of the most important incidental advantages of the Conservatory is the Weekly Rehearsal, at which students perform such pieces as may be assigned by their teachers, for the purpose of giving them self-control and ease in public appearance. In the rehearsals of last year, there were performed, in all, nearly one thousand works or movements, consisting of Solo pieces and Concertos for various instruments, Duos, Trios, and Quartets for Piano and Strings, Arias, Songs, Duets, Trios, and Part Songs.

Artists' Recitals.

Owing to the location of Oberlin on a main line of travel, and the large patronage bestowed upon first-class entertainments, we are able for a very small sum to secure to our students opportunities of hearing many of the great artists of the country.

Since hearing good music artistically rendered is an indispensable requisite in acquiring a thorough musical education, we advise all students to make their plans to spend from one to two dollars a term for such concerts and recitals as may from time to time be provided by the Conservatory.

Church Music.

The facilities afforded in Oberlin for studying the great Choral Works give students an opportunity seldom enjoyed for acquaintance with Oratorios and other Sacred music. For practical cultivation in this department of musical study, all students have the privilege of attending classes in Choral music; and those who are sufficiently advanced can join one of the Church Choirs and the Musical Union, a society for the study of the higher forms of sacred music.

Religious Influences.

It has always been the aim of Oberlin College so to adjust the work of the student that intellectual training and religious culture may go hand in hand.

In the case of students in music, there is especial necessity for a healthy development of the moral and religious faculties, since the musical endowment is almost invariably associated with a highly sensitive and susceptible organization. Young people of this disposition placed amid the dissipating influences of a large city, where the restraints of responsible supervision are removed, or in a European city, where the modes of life are so different from what they have before known, readily go astray; and even if their studies are not seriously disturbed by bad habits, they acquire their professional education with undermining associations, which in the end too often prove fatal to its successful exercise.

True Christian manhood is the ideal we cherish for musicians, and although we cannot undertake to give special religious training in the Conservatory, yet it is our purpose to throw around our students such safeguards as we can, and to give them such moral assistance as it may be in our power to render.

Literary Advantages.

The connection of the Conservatory with an institution of learning of the acknowledged superiority of Oberlin College affords unusual advantages for the pursuit of literary studies in connection with music.

By special arrangement, any member of the Conservatory can take a single study in the College for five dollars, which is one-half the regular fee.

It is recommended that Conservatory students, as far as practicable, avail themselves of this privilege, that they may secure symmetry and breadth of culture as well as the ability to use their musical powers to better advantage.

Physical Training.

Gymnasium practice is provided for both young men and young women under the direction of competent teachers. The apparatus includes chest-weights, clubs, horizontal bars, floor bars, dumb-bells, chest expanders, and neck machines. This work is popular, and both gymnasia are crowded. The expense to Conservatory students for use of the Gymnasium is fifty cents per term.

Miscellaneous Items.

The lesson rooms are generally furnished with grand pianofortes.

A number of Technicons have been placed in Warner Hall for the use of students.

A large and carefully selected Library of standard music, numbering between eight and nine thousand pieces, is open to students for use in practice, from which the teachers may make selections adapted to the requirements of each student. A charge of $1.00 to $3.00 a term is made, according to the amount of music required.

A lecture is given in the College Chapel, to the students of all departments, each Thursday afternoon. These lectures discuss a wide range of topics, and are delivered in turn by the President and Professors, and by invited speakers from abroad.

We have more applications every year for teachers, organists, and singers than we are able to supply, and there is scarcely a doubt that good situations can be obtained for all who are well qualified to fill them.

Students of the Conservatory will take part in the weekly rehearsals, and appear in the public exercises of the College, as they are qualified.

Students will find it to their advantage to be present at the beginning of the term; although, when this is impracticable, they will be admitted later at a reasonable reduction from full rates of tuition. Students will not be received for a shorter time than the full term, or the unexpired portion of it.

Students can deposit their money with the College Treasurer at the opening of the term and draw it out afterward, from time to time, in such sums as may be needed. The officers of the College cannot, however, undertake to exercise any special supervision of the individual expenditures of students.

VACATIONS.

A vacation of one week will occur between the Winter and Spring terms; eleven weeks between the Spring and Fall terms; two weeks between the Fall and Winter terms.

All Conservatory exercises will be suspended on Fast Day, Thanksgiving Day, and Decoration Day.

Rooms and Board.

Rooms and table board for young women and table board for young men can be had at the College halls, which are near Warner Hall, or in private families, as preferred. The College has no dormitory building for young men, but they find ample and pleasant accommodations in private houses.

Talcott Hall and Baldwin Cottage.

The Ladies' Hall, which was destroyed by fire, in January, 1885, has been replaced by two new buildings, Baldwin Cottage, the gift of Mr. E. I. Baldwin, of Cleveland, and Talcott Hall, named after its principal donors, Mr. and Mrs. James Talcott, of New-York City. These have been planned, after careful study of similar buildings elsewhere, and are unsurpassed for comfort, taste or convenience. They accommodate about one hundred young women, and afford table board for a number of young men who room elsewhere.

The Principal and Assistant Principal make their homes in these buildings. Some rooms are intended for a single occupant, and others for two. Each has a large closet, and is furnished and warmed.

Room rent in Baldwin Cottage and Talcott Hall, varies according to location and size of room, from, $9.00 to $15.00 per term, for each occupant. This includes lights, the privileges of the house, and the care of an excellent nurse in any ordinary sickness. Fuel will be charged according to actual cost.

Room rent is payable each term in advance, and table board each half-term in advance, to the Superintendent of the Hall.

Any one leaving before the end of the term will not be entitled to a return of any part of the money paid for room rent.

Application for admission to these buildings should be made to the Principal of the Ladies' Department.

Young women purposing to live in private families are expected to consult the Principal before engaging their boarding places.

Young women are not allowed to board themselves except in special cases, for which arrangements must be made with the Principal beforehand.

Living expenses vary somewhat with the cost of provisions. Students who are willing to live plainly can live at as low cost, and as well for the money, as at any other college.

At present, table board is $3.00 per week in Baldwin Cottage, and $2.65 at Talcott Hall. In private families table board and furnished rooms range in price, according to quality, from $3.00 to $4.50 per week; fuel and lights extra. There is usually no difficulty in securing board and rooms at any time of the year.

Reduced Expenses.

To meet the case of students who wish to bring their expenses down to the lowest point consistent with healthful living arrangements have been made for furnishing board and room for young women at Stewart Hall, corner of Main and Lorain streets, for $2.00 a week, or for $1.50 a week and two hours' work a day. Each room is furnished with bedstead, straw tick, table, chairs, stove, and washstand. Bedding and other articles required for furnishing the room, aside from those mentioned, are supplied by the occupant. The table fare is of the best quality, but plain dispensing with tea and coffee and expensive luxuries, for the sake of keeping the price at the lowest rate. Young men are furnished table board at Stewart Hall at $2.00 per week. Under this arrangement it is believed students are able to live as cheaply as they can board themselves, while they escape the obvious disadvantages and deprivations of self-boarding. By means of it, ninety dollars can be made to meet all necessary expenses for tuition, board, room, musical library, fuel, lights, and washing for twelve weeks.

Location and Surroundings.

The College is located at Oberlin, Lorain county, Ohio, a pleasant and healthful village of some four thousand inhabitants, thirty-five miles west of Cleveland. Situated on the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway, it is easily accessible from all parts of the country. All passenger trains reach Oberlin between the hours of 7 A. M. and 9 P. M. The place was founded as a home for the College, and the population consists chiefly of those who have been drawn there by educational attractions. gives it a special atmosphere of culture and good order, while as a home for students it is remarkably free from the temptations and dangers often surrounding school life. There are no drinking saloons in town. But those who seek bad company will find it - or make it - anywhere, and the College does not offer itself as a reformatory for young people who are too wayward for home restraints. Neither does it desire the attendance of the idle or listless. Its facilities are offered only to those who wish to give their strength to study. The churches of the place consist of two Congregational, - numbering some eight hundred members each,—two Methodist, one Protestant Episcopal, and one Baptist. Each student attends the church of his choice, but is required to attend some one church regularly.
