ITALIAN CABINET ASKS PEOPLE TO UPHOLD ORDER

PROGRESSIVE COURSE, BUT NOT EXTREMISM, LLOYD GEORGE'S ADVICE

Ex Premier Says There Are Many Menaces For Britain In Present Situation; Dangers of Socialism; Dangers of Negative Policy.

Glasgow, Oct. 28.—(Associated Press)—Former Premier Lloyd George, addressing this afternoon an audience of 5,000 people here, who received him enthusiastically, declared in referring to the breaking up of the Coalition, that "the world is in such trouble, it is in such a condition, that you cannot afford to indulge in party bickerings and quarrels until the nation is on firm rock again."

He said the Conservatives wanted a Premier with less vitality. To use a golfing phrase, as he put it, they said he (Lloyd George) was very good with the niblick, excellent for getting the ball out of the rough, but that on the green he was too energetic, and they wanted somebody with a feeble stroke.

"Well," he continued, "it is not for me to say whether they have got it, but are we really out of the rough? Go to the Glasgow shipyards for your answer. Examine the number of unemployed and read the Labor manifesto and then ask the question, 'Are we out of the rough?'"

COUNTRY NOT YET OUT OF DANGER

"It is a manifesto issued to a people crushed with taxation, sore with the wounds of a great war and exhausted and worried with anxiety about their daily bread. We are not out of danger. It is a formidable challenge, and it will appeal to millions."

TO AVERT EVILS OF BAD BLUNDER

Mr. Lloyd George asserted Premier Bonar Law had said it was better to split the nation than to split the party. "I deeply deplore this decision," he said, "and all that my friends and I can do is to do our best to avert the worst evils of a bad blunder, and that is what we propose to do."

NEGATIVE POLICY NOT THE BEST

Referring to the Conservatives, the former Premier said: "I trust their negative policy is only a phrase. A negative policy is not the way to get through your troubles."

Mr. Lloyd George laid great stress upon the necessity of dealing with the after-war situation.

In Rags. "The need is great," he declared. "Europe is in rags. Many a dreary and weary year will be traveled before it gets back to what it was before the war. It is no use thinking you are going to get out by talking of tranquility and stability or by substituting Mr. Stanley Baldwin for Sir Robert Borden."

"You must look problems in the face. The war was won by co-operation of all classes. Do not say that that co-operation is to be brought to an end. The time will come when you will need the help of every man to save the community from disastrous experiments that will bring ruin upon it."

As an old mariner who has weathered many gales, I utter this warning: "There is worse hurricane coming from another quarter."

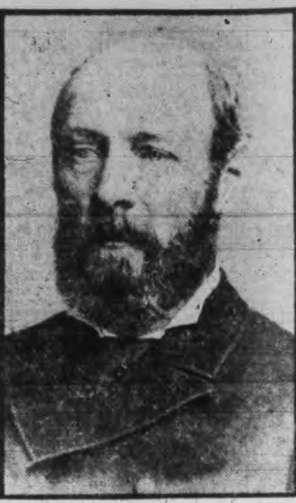

I appeal to you all not to endanger this glorious old ship by quarrels as to what officers should be upon the bridge, or what manner of color of uniform they shall wear."

Workers. "The need of taking other than a negative attitude toward the necessities of the workers," he declared.

"There is nothing more creditable in the history of the working classes of this country than the way they have behaved in the face of the privations of the last year or two. But do not say to them, when they have got to face bad times, that you can see no more. Your action towards

BROMLEY DISMISSED FROM NAVAL POST

Outcome of Raleigh Court-martial at Portsmouth Charge Was That He by Default Lost Ship

London, Oct. 28.—A second court-martial arising from the stranding of the cruiser Raleigh off the coast of Labrador in August was held at Portsmouth yesterday. Captain Arthur Bromley being charged with having negligently or by default stranded and lost the ship. It was charged that the accused was to blame for maintaining a speed of twelve knots under the weather conditions prevailing and for not causing soundings to be taken sooner. Captain Bromley pleaded not guilty and blamed the accident on inaccurate charts.

MANY WISH TO HEAR BONAR LAW

Invitations to Address Meetings Are Overwhelming

London, Oct. 28.—Applications received by Premier Bonar Law to address election meetings up and down the country are overwhelming. He has already promised to speak at Drury Lane Theatre to women next Thursday and in Leeds to-morrow week, in Manchester, November 11, while two days later he will make his final speech in his own division of Glasgow.

IMMIGRATION PLANS DISCUSSED

Federal Minister to Consider Officials' Recommendations

Ottawa, Oct. 28.—Views of leading Immigration and Colonization Department officials on the recommendations of the transportation interests for changes in the immigration laws will be submitted to Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, shortly. Mr. Stewart returned to the Capital from Edmonton yesterday.

EMPIRE ECONOMIC CONFERENCE PLAN GIVEN SUPPORT

London, Oct. 28.—A Reuter dispatch from Sydney says Sir George Fuller, Premier of New South Wales, attaches the greatest importance to the suggestion in Premier Bonar Law's election address that an Empire economic conference be held, as such a conference would help materially in the emigration of Britons to Australia to fill the empty places.

MAY LET CONTRACTS FOR CITY SERVICES TO PRIVATE FIRMS

New Plan Would Reduce Costs, Council Members Are Told

Idea Is Part of General Economy Campaign, Aldermen Hear

Practically all city services would be carried out by private companies under contract if the City Council were to adopt plans which are being urged upon Council committees by businessmen now. Under these plans, which are receiving support among members of the Council, the city would award contracts to private firms for garbage collections, street lighting, boulevard maintenance and a great deal of other work now performed by city workmen.

While a number of aldermen favor this scheme, it has raised vigorous opposition on the part of other members. Alderman S. Woodward, Chairman of the Civic Finance Committee, came out strongly against the idea to-day and declared that he would fight it when it was brought formally before the Council.

The proposed inauguration of the contract system of carrying on city services is part of a general plan of certain economies which would reduce city expenses next year, members of the City Council declared to-day. It is the plan of these forces, aldermen and members of the Council, to inaugurate in December what would be favorable to new economies and especially to sweeping cuts in educational costs. Another plan involved in this general campaign for expense reductions is understood to be regulations forcing the City Council to pay wages within the usual standard in effect in private business here.

ALDERMEN REFUSE TO SIGN WARRANTS PENDING JUDGMENT

Case Against Council Members Holds Up Finance Business

Members of the Civic Finance Committee have refused to sign warrants for City Expenditures pending the settlement of the Staneland grand case in the Police Court and, as a result, City finance business is being held up. Until Magistrate George Jay gives his decision on the charge against Mayor William Marchant and Finance Committee members, of specially paying $100 to Police Commissioner W. E. Staneland, these warrants will remain unsigned and no expenditures can be made.

FINANCE COMMITTEE DECLINES TO TAKE FURTHER RESPONSIBILITY

Members of the Finance Committee have declined to take further responsibility for the case against Council members.

FIELDING IS IN PARIS TO ARRANGE NEW TRADE PACT

Paris, Oct. 28.—(Canadian Press Cable)—Hon. W. S. Fielding, Canadian Minister of Finance, has arrived here for the purpose of concluding and signing the commercial treaty between France and Canada which will modify the existing tariff.

LLOYD GEORGE DELIVERS SPEECH IN EDINBURGH

Edinburgh, Oct. 28.—Mr. Lloyd George, who came here from Glasgow immediately after his election address, delivered a large assemblage here to-night. The former Prime Minister declared he was still the champion of national unity and stood for the country first and party afterwards.

PHILIPPINE REQUEST FOR INDEPENDENCE

MOVE TOWARD NEW COALITION

British Anti-coalitionists So View Party Agreements

Conservative and Coalition Liberal Pacts

London, Oct. 28.—Arrangements between Conservatives and Coalition Liberals not to oppose one another's candidates in certain constituencies is given a big play in to-day's anti-coalition newspapers. As they have it, the agreements for co-operation or mutual non-opposition are spreading, with an obvious drift toward re-instating coalition in the Government.

FREE STATE LEADERS SAY MEASURES WILL SUCCEED

Valera Party

Dublin, Oct. 28.—Publication of the statement of the second Dail Eireann, which has declared itself "the Republican Government," setting forth the appointment of Eamonn de Valera as its President and giving the names of those selected for a Council of State, has brought about rumors that the move signified a breakdown in the reported peace negotiations. Inquiries in Provisional Government quarters yesterday failed to confirm this. Desmond Fitzgerald, Minister of Foreign Affairs in the Dail Eireann, denied any direct peace negotiations, and described as figments of the imagination much which had been published recently concerning supposed peace negotiations.

Particulars have been received in the case of Albert Lloyd's Bank, not to make any further payments. It should at the same time have been explained that the coupons would instead be paid by the Dominion through the Bank of Montreal. British and other holders of Grand Trunk Pacific branch line securities may therefore rest easily. There has been no cancellation of interest payments, nor has any been contemplated. Instead, the position appears to be that the Dominion is responsible instead of the provinces.

CHINESE ARMIES MOVING SOUTH TO AMOY REGION

Amoy, China, Oct. 28.—Two armies flying the banners of the Peking Government are converging on the province of Fukien, where the local government recently was upset by a revolution said to have been engineered by a combination of adherents of Sun Yat Sen, deposed President of South China, supporters of Chang Tso Lin, warlord of Manchuria, and remnants of the old military clique, known as the Anfu Club.

Special to The Times. London, October 28.—Recognizing the extraordinary influence which women will exercise in the forthcoming election, Mr. Andrew Bonar Law addressed a meeting which was exclusively attended by women in the historic Drury Lane Theatre. There has been a tremendous spurt of interest by women since the date of the polling was fixed. The personality of Lloyd George naturally makes a tremendous appeal to the woman voter. Yet while imaginations are touched by appeals of the man who brought Britain victoriously out of the war, they are sensitive to the groaning cost of living and this produces a bias in favor of Bonar Law's declared policy of retrenchment.

EFFORT OF ROME IS TO SOLVE FASCISTI CRISIS PEACEFULLY

In Proclamation Government Urges People to Make No Room For Seditious Movements; No Violence Yet, But Fascisti Pressure Increasing.

Rome, Oct. 28.—The Cabinet has been in session since midnight in order to receive reports from the provinces where the Fascisti movement has taken a subversive direction and to adopt necessary measures to meet the situation.

The Cabinet decided first to issue a proclamation declaring a state of siege in all the provinces beginning at noon to-day, but later this decision was modified and a proclamation was issued urging the public to maintain order in the face of insurrectionary attempts.

The proclamation said: "Seditious movements having manifested themselves in certain provinces of Italy, having as their object the interruption of the normal functions of the state's organs and calculated to plunge the country into grave trouble, the government has, as far as possible, tried every means of conciliation in the hope of re-establishing peace and reaching a peaceful solution of the crisis."

Reports received by the Cabinet show a number of points in Central Italy where Fascisti are extending their movement with a view to exerting pressure for the formation of a Fascisti Cabinet. The Fascisti Ministry is acting with energy to re-establish order. Rome and all of the large cities have not been the scene of any disturbances since the beginning of the crisis. Victoria Chiropractors Answer Rev. A. E. Cooke

In the Colonist of Sunday, Oct. 15th, there appeared an insertion of over two columns, in length, purporting to be a report of a sermon delivered on the subject of Chiropractic and the prosecutions of Chiropractors by the Rev. A. E. Cooke of Vancouver, on the evening of Sunday September 24th.

We leave the Public to draw their own conclusions, when we make the plain statement that this insertion was an advertisement, and paid for at regular advertising rates.

We do not propose to be drawn into a war of propaganda of this sort. Had the report appeared in the ordinary news columns, we should have been very pleased to have answered it and exposed the many misrepresentations it contains.

We can however only draw the inference that Mr. Cooke's address was inspired from the same source that paid for its publication, inasmuch as the "reverend gentleman" has admitted in his sermon, that he knows no single chiropractor and subsequently in an interview with the President of the B. C. Chiropractors Association that he knows nothing whatever of Chiropractic saying that he thought Chiropractic a combination of massage and mental suggestion.

In order that we may make it perfectly clear that we are not attempting to disguise advertising as news items, this statement is paid for at regular advertising rates.

HOHENZOLLERN IS WORRYING

Bride Finds Doorn Too Dull For All-year Residence

London, Oct. 28.—Princess Hermine of Reuss who is soon to become the bride of Wilhelm Hohenzollern, former German Kaiser, seems to feel that while his secluded home at Doorn is a nice restful place and all that, she would not want to live there every day in the year. She is reported to have told Hohenzollern that she will be unable to stay at Doorn for more than four or five months each year.

Hohenzollern is worrying a good deal over complying with her wishes for certain alterations in his home, according to dispatches to The Daily News. Recently the princess gave him some rather comprehensive indications during her visits as to how the place should be changed. Accordingly Hohenzollern is doing his utmost to make the residence as agreeable for her as possible.

The Bank of Montreal has received instructions to pay the coupons November 1.

NEW CONFERENCE IS SUGGESTED

E. H. Gary Wants Discussion of Unsettled Financial Industrial Questions

New York, Oct. 27.—Another international Peace Conference in Washington for the full and frank discussion of all unsettled financial, commercial and industrial questions in which the United States is interested was suggested by Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the United States Steel Corporation in a speech to-day at a semi-annual meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute, of which he is president.

Such a conference, he said, should be participated in by able, open-minded, well-disposed representatives from the different nations, such as those who appeared at the recent Limitation of Armaments Conference.

"If there shall be such a meeting," he declared, "and the delegates are all of the type referred to, there will result incalculable good to all who are parties. They would not decide or discuss how to abolish or over-coming the old established law of supply and demand, how to avoid or repudiate existing obligations, but rather how and when to fulfill them without irreparable injury to anyone, or the sacrifice of principle. While it is true that members of such a conference would be compelled to consider and in a large measure be governed by the wishes of their respective constituencies, it is believed the large majority of the populations making up such constituencies would be considerate and honest."

War Debts. Cancellation of Europe's war debts to the United States was opposed by the speaker. The debts, he said, were voluntarily, openly and fairly contracted and can not be cancelled or disposed of on any other basis without doing violence to well-recognized principles of justice and rule of property. Publicity on both sides of industrial disputes or questions involving the welfare of the public was advocated by the speaker.

The road leading to Easy Street is littered with the trimmed remains of easy marks.

Stevens, chairman of the Columbia River Reclamation Company, paid a visit in Golden this week from London, Eng., and in company with J. A. Buckham, M. P. P., and J. L. McKay, made an inspection of the area. It is estimated that approximately 43,000 acres of rich agricultural land along the banks of the Columbia River, stretching from Golden some eighty-five miles south, could be reclaimed at a cost of about $3,000,000.

MAN FINED FOR STEALING A STEER

Vanderhoof, B. C., Oct. 28.—At a sitting of the County Court of Cariboo, held at Vanderhoof, presided over by Judge Robertson, William Redmond was charged and found guilty of stealing a roan steer, and also procuring Isaac Jones to assist in the commission of an indictable offence. Redmond was fined $400 and ordered to pay John Macmillan $55, restitution for the stolen steer. Isaac Jones was charged with a similar offence, and on being found guilty was fined $100 and costs.

RAILWAY MAN KILLED ON TRACK

Kingston, Ont., Oct. 28.—Harry Cooper, 60, a conductor, was killed yesterday at Harrowsmith. He was on the ladder of a shunting freight car and, falling off, was hit by another car. He was married and leaves a family.

The Only Milk From Home

There is only one Evaporated Milk packed in British Columbia. No matter what anyone may tell you, the only milk evaporating plants in operation are the Pacific Milk factories at Ladner and Abbotsford. Each can of Pacific Milk is, since we improved the process 43 per cent. pure cream. When you use Pacific you not only keep money at home but you are getting added value, in other words a better product than you can get anywhere else for the price.

Antone Stander Back in Seattle; Will Return to Siberia

Declares Bolsheviki Threatened His Life

Seattle, Oct. 28.—Antone Stander, who made a million dollars in the Klondike and lost it through a divorce and speculation in Seattle, is back after three years spent in Siberia. He says he found gold, but his camp burned just as he started to work, and then the Bolsheviki threatened his life. Stander made his way to Anadir, where traders gave him clothes and kept him until a vessel arrived. He says he will start prospecting again in the Spring and will come home with a fortune yet.

BODY FOUND ON ENGLISH BAY BEACH

Inquest on Death of E. T. Roberts, of Vancouver

Vancouver, Oct. 28.—Findings on the beach at English Bay last evening of the dead body of Ernest T. Roberts, who left his home at 1869 Pendrell Street on Sunday last, cleared up the mystery of the man's disappearance. The body was washed up by heavy seas, and was noticed by a passerby, who notified the authorities.

CHILD TOUCHED TRIGGER; FATHER WAS KILLED

Denver, Colo., Oct. 28.—The tiny finger of his baby snuffed out the life of Fred Kraus, 35, a farmer residing four miles south of Hudson, near here.

Kraus was leaning on the muzzle of a gun and talking to his wife. His three-year-old son, playing on the floor caught at the stock of the gun, his finger pulling the trigger. The shot blew off the top of Kraus's head.

SIDNEY RETURNED MEN PLAN DANCE ARMISTICE NIGHT

Special to The Times.
Sidney—The returned men of Sidney and district will hold a dance on Armistice night, November 11, in Berquest Hall. The veterans' wives are to have charge of the supper. Perry's orchestra will provide the music, and dancing is to be from 8.30 to 12 o'clock.

The Girls' W. A. met at the home of Mrs. Whiting, there was a good attendance, and two new members were welcomed, Miss M. Simister and Miss Cobbedick. The dance held by the Girls' W. A. was very successful. The supper arrangements were in the hands of the president, Mrs. T. Harrison, and the supper table was decorated with the colors of the W. A. Mrs. Patchell and Mr. Robertson supplied the music.

A progressive five hundred was held in the new social hall at Deep Cove. Miss G. Simpson won first prize for ladies, and Mr. North the first prize for gentlemen. The consolation prizes were won by Miss Quarman and A. Bowney.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Mears and Misses D. and P. Smith. The silver tea held at Mrs. Armstrong's, East Road, under the auspices of the Union Church Ladies' Aid was very successful. There was a stall of fancy and plain needlework in charge of Mrs. Taylor and Mrs. Clehoun. Mrs. Griffiths and Mrs. Patchell played selections on the piano, and Mrs. G. McMullen and Miss Rowlands sang.

Lloyd George Fights With His Back to the Wall

Lloyd George is down but not out, seems to be the verdict of neutral observers on the resignation of Britain's Premier, whose Coalition Government has been in power through the long stormy years since the war got under way. The London Outlook blames his decline on his handling of the Near East problem, saying: "There comes an hour in the career of many successful men when some fatal flaw of character, hidden in the years of struggle, and perhaps hardly suspected in the day of prosperity, exposes itself suddenly before the world at a moment of sudden crisis. The damage may be patched up, the idol survive some time longer in the temple of fame, and the multitude still flock to see it. But the crack is there for all who choose to look."

In defending the action of his Government at the Straits where he claimed to be a peace-maker and not a war-monger, Lloyd George states "I am told we were right in our object of keeping the Turk out of Europe, preventing a massacre at Constantinople and insuring the freedom of the Straits—all that was right, but we ought not to have used force. We ought to have argued with them, ought to have persuaded them. He is a gentleman who is very amenable to persuasion. General Harington in his message attributed the fact that he had succeeded largely to the reinforcements we had sent him, and if you have any doubt about it, just you bark back to the speech he delivered to the Turks. General Harington was doubtful whether they were going to sign, and this was his last appeal. He told the Turks that conciliation had been carried to the utmost limit, and warned Ismet Pasha that Great Britain had on the spot a very large, powerful fleet, large numbers of airplanes and guns, and by no means a negligible force of infantry—in fact, that Great Britain would be a very awkward enemy, but a very valuable friend."

One of the most interesting articles in THE LITERARY DIGEST this week, October 28th, presents journalistic opinion upon Lloyd George's resignation quoted from the English and French press. The article is illustrated with cartoons from the foremost European papers.

THE HALF-HOLIDAY.

A petition for the Council to submit the weekly half-holiday question again to the electors is being circulated and no doubt will have more than the necessary number of signatures when the time for its presentation to the City Fathers has arrived.

ITALY'S DANGER.

Political crises in Italy have been the rule rather than the exception during the last two years. But the retirement of the Facta Cabinet is not an ordinary ministerial downfall.

REAL PROGRESS.

When two leading Vancouver banks announce on the same day that they have arranged to erect new and larger headquarters buildings, with increased floor space, its significance ought not to be lost on the community.

THE EMPIRE EXHIBITION.

After a few more resignations from the executive council, a few more letters to the London newspapers, a few more painful attempts to explain away the initial errors and woeful ignorance on the part of some person or persons who should have known better, it may be that the British Empire Exhibition will not believe its name or object.

PUBLIC CLINICS.

It is a good thing for Canada that an Anti-Tuberculosis Association exists. Its activities at least remind the people that some organization is interesting itself in the welfare of the unfortunate individuals who are striving to throw off a wretched malady.

the Empire, has produced a very decided change in what appears to have been the settled plans of those responsible for this important exhibition of the Empire's wealth and resources.

The Duke of Devonshire has now written to the press and has given an assurance that it has always been the intention of the Council "to insist upon the application" of the "principle" for which the exhibition stands.

This seems to be a very tardy adoption of a policy that might easily have suggested itself at the outset. For if the gentleman who actually declared that Canada could not supply lumber for fencing purposes had gone on with the arrangements without a little advice from the Dominions in a direct way we can imagine the sort of an Empire Exhibition that would have welcomed visitors in 1924.

SOUTHERN RHODESIA.

The people of Southern Rhodesia went to the polls yesterday to decide whether they would set up a local responsible government of their own or enter the Union of South Africa.

CIVIC REFORM.

To the Editor—With the municipal election approaching, and several members of the City Council, three School Trustees, and a Police Commissioner to be elected, a great deal of public opinion is being expressed.

There is only one simple and sure way of the public obtaining the best results from their governing bodies.

Federal, Provincial and Municipal—and that is for the public to nominate and elect the men who are really worthy of confidence, and after election, actively and interestedly continue to have confidence in them.

CIVIC REFORM.

To the Editor—With the municipal election approaching, and several members of the City Council, three School Trustees, and a Police Commissioner to be elected, a great deal of public opinion is being expressed.

There is only one simple and sure way of the public obtaining the best results from their governing bodies.

Federal, Provincial and Municipal—and that is for the public to nominate and elect the men who are really worthy of confidence, and after election, actively and interestedly continue to have confidence in them.

A. E. TODD, P.O. Drawer 567, Victoria, B.C., October 26, 1922.

FLIES AND FILTH.

To the Editor—We keep our wide and open streets very clean, but often our filthy backyards are breeding places for flies.

TO THE CITY COUNCIL—TRADE LICENSES.

To the Editor—Why not continue the trade license as it now is, and collect the money for the fire-alarm, gas, and water works, and other public works, and use it for the benefit of the city?

A Strange Survival in America

And in these thousands of years during which man was making his way step by step from the barbarism of the helleolithic culture to civilization at these old-world centres, what was happening in the rest of the world?

To the north of these centres, from the Rhine to the Pacific, the Nordic and Mongolian peoples, as we have told, were also learning the use of metals; possibly they were the discoverers of metals; but while the civilizations were settling down these men of the great plains were becoming migratory and developing from a slow wandering life toward a complete seasonal nomadism.

To the south of the civilized zone, in central and southern Africa, the negro was making a slower progress, and that, it would seem, under the stimulus of invasion by whiter tribes from the Mediterranean regions, bringing with them in succession cultivation and the use of metals.

These white men came to the black by two routes: across the Sahara to the west as Herbers and Turangs and the like, to mix with the negro and create such quasi-white races as the Fulas; and also by way of the Nile, where the Bagandans (Candak-folk) of Uganda, for example, may possibly be of remote white origin. The African forests were denser then, and spread eastward and northward from the Upper Nile.

A Land Bridge to Australia. The islands of the East Indies, three thousand years ago, were probably still only inhabited here and there by stranded patches of Palaeolithic Australoids, who had wandered

Today, the giant armadillo, were still living.

These American primitive civilizations may ultimately prove of very great help to our understanding of human development because they seem to have preserved right up to the time of their extinction by the European discoverers the old and sixteenth century A.D. ideas and Records Kept With String.

In Peru the beginnings of writing were superseded by a curious and complicated method of keeping records by means of knots tied upon strings of various colors and shapes. It is said that even laws and orders could be conveyed by this code. These string bundles were called quipus, but though quipus are still to be found in collections, the art of reading them is altogether lost. The Chinese histories, Mr. L. Y. Chen informs us, state that a similar method of record by knots was used in China before the invention of writing there. The Peruvians also got to making maps and the use of counting-frames.

When the Spaniards came to America, the Mexicans knew nothing of the Peruvians nor the Peruvians of the Mexicans. Whatever links had existed were lost and forgotten. The Mexicans had never heard of the potato, which was a principal article of Peruvian diet. In 5,000 B.C. the Sumerians and Egyptians probably knew as little of one another. America lagged, in fact, 6,000 years behind the old world.

rather in these immemorial ages when there was a nearly complete land bridge by way of the East Indies to Australia. The islands of Oceania were uninhabited. The spreading of the helleolithic peoples by sea-going canoes into the islands of the Pacific came much later in the history of man, at earliest a thousand years B.C. Still later did they reach Madagascar. The beauty of New Zealand also was as yet wasted upon mankind; its highest living creatures were a great ostrich-like bird, the moa, now extinct, and the little kiwi, which has feathers like coarse hair and the merest rudiments of wings.

The Ancestors of the Indians.

In North America a group of Mongoloid tribes were now cut off altogether from the old world. They were spreading slowly southward, hunting the innumerable bison of the plains. They had still to learn, for themselves the secrets of a separate agriculture based on maize, and in South America to tame the lama to their service, and to build up in Mexico and Yucatan and Peru three separate civilizations of a very curious and distinctive type.

When men reached the southern extremity of America the megatherium, the giant sloth, and the gly-

WELL OFF, IF HE KNEW IT

A Chicago man has appealed to a court for a divorce because his wife hasn't spoken to him in eighteen years, and there occurs the thought that the court rejects his plea, he won't have any trouble affecting a trade with one of the multitude of married ones who haven't been able to choke her off in the last decade or two.—Buffalo Express.

GAINED 65 POUNDS!

"Five years ago when I was first married, I had wonderful energy. I could be on the go all day long without feeling the least bit fatigued. I had a great appetite and could eat anything. I weighed 147 pounds. I used to be busy every minute of the day and, when the day was over, I could go to bed and never waken once during the night. Thirteen months ago my first baby was born. After that my energy seemed to leave me. I was tired all the time. I had to force myself to do my household duties. Instead of being a pleasure as formerly, these duties became a real task. I lost all desire for food and nothing would tempt me. I had to make myself eat. I would go to bed at night and toss from side to side for hours at a time. After a while I would doze off only to find that I had been sleeping for ten or fifteen minutes. Naturally when morning came, not having slept, I started the day completely tired out. I was shaky and nervous. The least noise would startle me and make my heart race along. I could see that my husband was worried. I was losing weight every week and had already lost 54 pounds. I tried all kinds of tonics, but they didn't help me. One night, a night I shall never forget because it started me on the way to health and happiness again, my husband brought in a bottle of Carnol, a friend told him that Carnol had saved his wife's life, so he insisted upon my trying it. Six weeks after I began taking Carnol, my weight increased from 93 pounds to 158, an increase of 65 pounds. And, am I well these days? Every morning I fairly jump out of bed ready to tackle anything and every minute of the day is a joy to me now."

The Obsession of Blood.

This linking of these aberrant American civilizations to the idea of a general mental aberration and blood support in their obsession by the thought of shedding human blood. The Aztec (Mexican) civilization in particular ran riot; it offered the minds of its people a picture of the cutting open of living victims, the tearing out of the still beating heart, an act that dominated the mind of the people, was not indeed, by the public life, the seasonal festivities, all turned on this fantastically horrible fixed idea.

The Maya writing was not only carved on stone, but painted—and written upon skins. These manuscripts are painted brightly, and have an odd resemblance to the colored papers which are sold to

SHE BRINGS PARIS TO DAZZLE AMERICA
Art, Gowns and Jewels in Wondrous Array Come With Mile. Sorel
Comedie Francaise Actress Has Diamond Hat; Visiting Canada

New York, Oct. 25.—In Mile. Cecile Sorel, star of the Comedie Francaise and queen of French actresses, France has sent the highest of her diplomats, the brightest jewel in the crown of her art, to captivate the hearts of the American people. She will open a repertoire of classic French drama Nov. 2, the theatre to be decided later.

She has left her apartment at the Ritz for a two weeks' tour through Canada, and Dec. 15 she will return to Paris, since a special permission to leave Paris, a thing almost unheard of in the case of a member of the Comedie, lasts only two months. In a report, she discussed her much-discussed wardrobe.

"My diamond hat, which I shall wear as Katherine in Shakespeare's 'Taming of the Shrew' has gone to Montreal under guard of two detectives, and with it all the thirty-four beautiful costumes, woven and dyed and created for me by the artists of France. I am desolated that you cannot see them," said Sorel, called in France "la grande coquette."

Short, curly aquiline hair and sumptuous black velvet and fur set of the strong individual line of her profile. Pearls, long yards of them, dripped from the inside of her hat. The bright sunlight in the corner drawing room of the Ritz was not so flashing as her three-cornered smile.

"I am coming bringing the most beautiful gifts that France can offer—her great literary works of art; the comedies of Moliere, of Victor Hugo, of Alexandre Dumas and the moderns," she said. "What though the language will not be understood? I have too high an esteem for the American public to believe that they will not be able to interpret the most of emotions as it crosses my face."

"The art of the theatre is international, like the art of painting. When I play Othello I shall speak the language of the soul, just as Rembrandt's portrait speaks it. New York is now the highest tribunal of the art; from every country she has brought here, so that you have developed a very critical taste. You are almost spoiled with good things. How can I not tremble a little before the prospect of my first American appearance?"

Of all her triumphs, Sorel remembered most tenderly an evening before a group of workmen in a tiny hall in Montmartre.

She posed here for photographers. "But hurry, please do," she said in English, her only English sentence. "for I have a serious engagement at 1 o'clock. Tell them that I adore America—love the sense of the word and life it gives, and I am overjoyed to be in New York at last."

Home-made, but Has No Equal for Coughs
Makes a family supply of really dependable cough medicine. Easily prepared, and saves about $2.

If you have a severe cough or chest cold accompanied with soreness, throat tickle, hoarseness, or difficult breathing, or if your child wakes up during the night with cough and you want quick help try this reliable old home-made cough remedy. Any drug-gist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup. Instead of sugar syrup, if desired, this recipe makes 16 ounces of really remarkable cough remedy. It tastes good, and in spite of its low cost, it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. It loosens and raises the phlegm, stops throat tickle and soothes and heals the irritated membranes that line the throat and bronchial tubes with such promptness, ease and certainty that it is really astonishing. Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is probably the best known means of overcoming severe coughs, throat and chest colds. There are many worthless imitations of this mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont., Advt.

BEATRICE WILL RESUME WEDNESDAY

Maquinna Arrives From West Coast With Heavy Freight

Repairs to the steamer Princess Beatrice will be completed early next week at Yarrows, Ltd., and the vessel will resume her scheduled sailings between Vancouver and Prince Rupert on Wednesday next. It was announced to-day at the offices of the B. C. Coast Steamship Service.

Much repair work was necessary to the keel and forefoot of the C. P. R. steamer as the result of striking off the mouth of the Skeena River. With the promptness and thoroughness that is characteristic of the Yarrows' plant, the steamer will be turned over to the owners in first class shape on Tuesday. The Beatrice will leave here on Tuesday night for Vancouver, and will sail from that port the following night for Prince Rupert and intermediate ports of call.

Maquinna in Port

The steamer Princess Maquinna arrived in port at 10 o'clock this morning with passengers and a full load of freight from the west coast of Vancouver Island and cleared shortly afterwards for Port Angeles. She brought down a large shipment of pulp from Port Alice and a consignment of concentrates from Sidney Inlet.

The Princess Ena is on her way south with pulp for Seattle and fish for Vancouver.

DELEGATES GO TO SAN FRANCISCO FOR FREIGHT CONFERENCE

Seattle Oct. 28.—Fully in accord with the idea of reorganizing the Trans-Pacific Westbound Freight Rate Conference, representatives of most of the services plying out of North Pacific ports yesterday held a meeting in Seattle before departing for San Francisco to attend the meeting there Monday with officials of services plying from California ports.

Oregon, Washington and British Columbia representatives attended the meeting. Everyone was in accord on practically all matters pertaining to reorganizing the conference which was disbanded about a year ago. No definite schedule of service was submitted or suggested at yesterday's meeting as these details will be left for settlement at the conference of the entire Pacific Coast delegation.

W. D. Benson, rate and tariff expert for Frank Waterhouse & Co., who acted as chairman at the meeting, will accompany the delegation from the Northwest to San Francisco. Other Northwestern representatives are: L. L. Bates, Admiral-Oriental Line; K. D. Dawson, Columbia-Pacific Shipping Company; Portland; T. A. Lee, Furness-Withy Company; E. J. Manion, Dodwell & Co., managing agents, Blue Funnel Line; T. Ishizawa and F. L. Weir, Nippon Yusen Kaisha; K. Hashimoto and R. C. Wagner, Osaka Shosha Kaisha; T. W. Glendenning, Canadian Pacific Ocean Services; and F. Teley, Canadian Government Merchant Marine, operating in Pacific waters.

Several Japanese services operating in the trans-Pacific service are the only concerns not represented in the conference. These are Mitsui & Co., Suzuki & Co., the Tatsuzuma Kisen Kaisha and the Yamashita Kisen Kaisha, which concerns, while not participating in the conference, are understood to be in accord with the standardizing of trans-Pacific freight rates.

NOTICE TO MARINERS

Mariners are herewith notified that the unwatched acetylene gas light on Masterman Island, Queen Charlotte Sound, B. C., is reported not burning. The light will be attended to as soon as possible.

LIFT KEEL BLOCKS TO DOCK TANKER

Union Oil Ship Will Be in Yarrows' Hands For a Week

After completing the discharge of her oil cargo at the Thetis Cove tanks of the Esquimalt & Nanaimo Railway, the American tanker Santa Maria, of the Union Oil Company, will be turned over to Yarrows, Ltd., for the drydocking and general overhaul. The ship will be docked in the Government graving basin early on Monday. In the meantime the keel blocks of the drydock are being raised two feet to accommodate the big tanker.

To Dock Stern First

The tanker will completely fill the drydock. It took some close figuring to accommodate the Santa Maria, as the gates with the keel blocks raised, the vessel is 460 feet long, and is a new ship, having been built in British yards.

The Santa Maria will be in the dock two days having her hull cleaned and painted and tail shaft examined.

Engine Repairs

She will then be floated and moved over to the fitting-out wharf at Yarrows, where she will remain for the rest of the week for engine and boiler repairs.

It is said that the Union Oil Company will now give more repair business to Canadian plants.

LIQUOR RULING MAY BE BLAMED

SS. President McKinley Leaving For Orient With Light Saloon List

With less than forty passengers in her saloon accommodations, the American Shipping Board liner President McKinley, operated in the trans-Pacific service by the Admiral-Oriental Line, will leave for the Orient this evening for the Far East. It is hinted from across the border that the recent ban on liquor aboard American ships may have some connection with the small saloon list sailing by the McKinley. The stowage space on the McKinley, however, will be well filled, as 250 Asiatics have been booked. Among the saloon passengers leaving to-day by the President McKinley will be R. C. Davis, of London, England, who with his wife is en route to Australia. They intend to travel on the American ship to Manila and transfer there to an Australian Line. Also on route to Australia is Mrs. Henry Holman, wife of the assistant manager of the Imperial Hotel at Tokio, also among the passengers to leave.

Others sailing to-day will be

James Rosenberger, New York business man; Alexander Nicholson, of New York, bound for Shanghai; George Palmer, of the Columbia Pacific Shipping Company, and Mrs. Palmer, of Portland Ore.

The ship will be under the command of Capt. Gerard T. January, who has been confined to the Seattle General Hospital for the past week, but who has recovered sufficiently to take out his vessel. I. W. Rogers has been succeeded by Lee Matthews, transferred from the liner President Jackson.

The liner is taking out a capacity cargo including a special shipment of 4,000 boxes of Washington apples destined for Shanghai, Hongkong and Manila. Below decks will also be a consignment of automobiles for Shanghai. Flamingo salmon, lumber and general will round out the outgoing cargo.

Schedule to Be Changed

The liner President Jackson, which is scheduled to sail November 11, is now being overhauled at the Seattle plant of Todd Drydocks, Inc.

It marks the first time the Jackson has been drydocked since she left Seattle sixteen months ago. As this is the last long lay-over for the Jackson at Seattle it was decided to alter her next voyage to the Orient the stay at Seattle of the President Jackson and other ships of the line, will be limited to ten days under the new Admiral-Oriental Line schedule.

The five hundred and fifth anniversary of the Protestant Reformation will be celebrated at the Lutheran churches to-morrow. The St. Paul's Lutheran Church, in accordance with many other churches, will celebrate on this occasion. A programme has been arranged for the children's services, which will commence at 7.30 p. m. Rev. R. F. Kibler will speak on "Mission Work."

GRANT LEAVES YOKOHAMA TO-DAY

The American steamship President Grant, Capt. John Griffith, of the Admiral Oriental Line, sailed from Yokohama to-day on her homeward voyage to Seattle. She is due to reach Victoria November 7. The vessel has on board 5,000 tons of freight, including 4,000 packages of raw silk and silk goods. The President Grant will probably have a larger inbound list of passengers than usual as the Canadian Pacific Steamships, Ltd., had no sailing from Yokohama to-day. The liner Empress of Australia, which at the commencement of her last outward voyage returned to port for engine repairs, would have been sailing eastbound from Yokohama to-day but for the mishap to her machinery. The Australia is now at Bremerton and will resume in the Oriental service on November 23.

GRANDSON OF KARL MARX ARRIVES ON LINER MAURETANIA

Jean Louget Will Lecture on Conditions Following War and Versailles Treaty

Jean Louget, of Paris, a grandson of Karl Marx, the father of modern Socialism, was a passenger arriving at New York by the Cunard liner Mauretania.

Meeting at first with considerable opposition because of his well-known stand on socialism, the tendency being to deny him admission to the United States, the objections were finally overcome and a passport issued to him.

While in the United States Mr. Louget will give a number of lectures on the general situation in Europe following the World War and the effect of the Treaty of Versailles.

His coming has aroused great interest here among the followers of Karl Marx, who was born in Prussia in 1818, and who died in exile in London in 1883. The Great German socialist studied jurisprudence, philosophy and history at Bonn and Berlin, and in 1842 became editor of the Rheinische Zeitung at Cologne. On the suppression of which in 1843 he went to Paris, where he devoted himself to the study of sociology and political economy. He was soon expelled from France at the instance of the Prussian Government and took refuge in Brussels. On the outbreak of the revolutionary movement in Germany in 1848 he returned to Cologne, where he founded the Neue Rheinische Zeitung. He was, however, expelled from Prussia in 1849, and eventually settled in London, where he continued his socialistic agitation. He was the controlling spirit of the International from its foundation in 1864 until its disruption in 1872, "Kopfling" (1857) is considered his chief work.

It is said that the lectures of Karl Marx's grandson will be followed closely by representatives of the United States Government.

TANKER LANSING IS AGAIN IN SERVICE

San Francisco, Oct. 28.—The Union Oil tanker Lansing, which has been laid up at Antioch since last November, was taken to the plant of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation to-day to be re-conditioned preparatory to being put back into service. The Lansing will be operated between Port San Luis and San Francisco and around the Bay.

"HOLDING THE AIR" FOR S.O.S. CALLS

Radio Corporation Controlled the Ether While Liner Was Burning

How radio operators on ship and shore "held the air" while "S.O.S." calls were being sent out by the burning passenger liner City of Honolulu forms one of the most romantic bits of the engrossing story of the recent ship disaster.

From 5.58 a. m. October 12, when picked up the first report of the fire, until all essential messages concerning the fate of the liner and the sending of relief had been dispatched, says shipping Registrar, the air was "kept open" for the exclusive use of "K. P. H." the R. C. A. shore station, and the ships that were bound to the rescue, except that a couple of nearby service messages were permitted between the first calls and the "S. O. S."

Even three hours later, coastwise steamers that attempted to communicate with another shore station were politely rebuked with "B. K. S. O. S." meaning "Break S. O. S. call being made." It was not until nearly 10 a. m. that any messages were transmitted except those between the City of Honolulu, Enterprise, Thomas Manoa and the R. C. A. shore station. The practice followed in such cases is that the first shore station to pick up the "S. O. S." shall direct all radio traffic between ship and shore until the emergency has passed, and the fact that "K. P. H." was alert to catch the first distress signals gave the honor of handling the wireless messages to those on board the City of Honolulu to the Radio Corporation.

THE ROUTE OF THE "CONTINENTAL LIMITED"

In Western Canada its route is known as the "Jasper Park-Mount Robson" route, and while the line passes through some of the finest mountain scenery in the world it has the distinction of having the lowest altitude of any transcontinental railway crossing the Rockies—the highest point reached in crossing the "Great Divide" being 3712 feet. Eastbound across the prairies through Edmonton, Saskatoon and Winnipeg, the line traverses some of the finest farm lands of the west, these east from Winnipeg over the transcontinental route through the beautiful lake country of northern Ontario and into famous Cobalt mining district, reaching all southern and western points of Ontario through North Bay, thence on to Ottawa, the capital city, and Montreal, the eastern metropolis of Canada.

The equipment of the "Continental Limited" is of the latest all-steel construction and carries cars for all tourist and standard sleeping cars, with model dining and observation cars, as well as the regulation coaches for day passengers.

This train leaves for the east at 7.45 p. m. daily from the Canadian National Depot, Vancouver. Reservations and all details arranged at the Tourist and Travel Bureau, 911 Government Street.

"Save the surface and you save all" Paint & Varnish

These Millions of Dollars so needlessly lost SHOULD MAKE YOU ACT

Rust and decay collect their toll. More farm implements "rust out" and "rot out" than ever actually wear out through use. In actual money this costs the farmers of Canada millions of dollars every year—an absolutely needless loss.

The Fall is a good time to overhaul your implements.

Take them apart, clean them thoroughly, paint all the iron and wooden parts, tighten your bolts, replace worn pins and broken parts, oil the running parts, put them together again and keep them in a dry place. In the Spring you will be repaid ten times over by having a set of implements as good as new. They will look well and the paint will protect them from sun and rain.

By doing this you prolong the life of your implements many years; save hundreds of dollars for new ones; and save much loss of time and money through break-downs in the middle of your Spring and harvest work.

The cost of paint is trifling. Your farm implements need the Protection of Paint and Varnish.

Do it this Fall!

5 reasons for painting NOW

- because of proper weather conditions.
- surfaces are now to their most receptive condition, practically every trace of moisture having been eliminated by the summer sun.
- the wood being dry it absorbs paint readily and the color looks better.
- a surface needing protection should never be allowed to go over the winter without it.
- properly done, more protection during winter than at any other time.

Golfers Tuning Up For Victoria Title

Championship Will Start Next Saturday With Finals Stated For November 12—Largest Entry List in History of Competition Is Expected—Young Players Showing Form

Victoria's premier golfers and many of those who some day hope to be among the top-notchers are tuning up for the city championship, which is to be staged next Saturday, Sunday and Monday at the Colwood Golf and Country Club. Despite the recent wet days the golfers have been at the links daily trying to put another foot on their drives and overcome the little faults in their approaches and on the greens.

It is expected that the tournament will attract the largest number of entries since the championship was organized. A number of new stars, including some of the younger club-swingers, have shown surprising improvement during the summer, and are expected to make the competition exceptionally keen.

Entries Close Friday

Entries for the championship will close on Friday, November 3, and must be made to the secretary of the Colwood Club, at 614 Sayward Building. The championship is open to all members of the Victoria, Colwood, Uplands and Esquimalt golf clubs. The entrance fee will be $2. The draw will be made on Friday next and play in the qualifying round will open early the following morning.

The qualifying round will be 18 holes, and the thirty-two low men will qualify for the championship final, while the remainder will be placed in four flights. All rounds, except the qualifying round, will be match play of 18 holes, and there will be rounds on the morning and afternoon of November 5 and 6.

The present city champion is Biggerstaffe Wilson. He won the tournament conducted at the Oak Bay links last year. The previous holder was A. V. Price of the Uplands Golf Club.

The tournament to find out the best golfer in Victoria was organized several years ago, and a cup was presented by J. A. Sayward, president of the Colwood Golf Club. In the past the tournament has been staged in alternating years at the Colwood and Oak Bay courses. It is likely that as soon as the Uplands course is in shape that club will be given an opportunity to stage the competition.

LADIES BEGIN PLAY FOR TITLE MONDAY

Twenty-eight Players Seek City Golf Championship and Begg Motor Co. Cup

Twenty-eight ladies will tee off on Monday at the Colwood links in quest of the city championship. The draw was made last night and the draw will go to the winner of the championship.

Players will arrange their own starting times and obtain marked cards at the secretary's office at the club house. Play will be from the men's tee for the qualifying rounds. The finals will be staged on Thursday.

- The draw is as follows:
- Mrs. C. E. Thomas vs. Miss Richardson
 - Mrs. Philbrick vs. Mrs. P. Abell
 - Mrs. Pitts vs. Mrs. Jones
 - Mrs. Morison vs. Mrs. Nickson
 - Mrs. Henson vs. Mrs. Ross

THE PAS DOG DERBY LACKING IN SUPPORT FROM FORMER SOURCES

The Pas, Man., Oct. 28.—The Pas dog derby association will meet next Wednesday, when it will be decided what action will be necessary to successfully carry out Northern Manitoba's annual racing event. Many of the heretofore loyal contributors to the undertaking are intimating a sort of lukewarmness to the undertaking this season which may have a depressing effect on the association's efforts.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

What's in a name? Bill Shakespeare asked this question three centuries ago. Since then heaps of other folks, many less learned than friend Bill, have asked that same question. To-day the same question is asked in many quarters. One of those quarters is the club-house of the Victoria hockey players. They're all wondering what on earth a squad of hockey players is doing masquerading under the appellation of "Aristocrats."

"How'd we get it? It was just wished on us." Members of the team, as well as the fans themselves, have been anxious for a change in name. Last year after the local team had been trimmed by an odd goal after having the game practically within its grasp, Eddie Oatman, skipper of the Aristocrats, stood up in the dressing room and pointed to the big "A" on his sweater.

"That's what Eddie Oatman thinks about a name. 'When the Victoria team takes the ice this season it will have a new nickname. Just what it will be no one knows. Lester Patrick wants to get a name with a kick in it. He has already eliminated 'White Mules,' 'Moonshiners,' and the like. Anyone who thinks he has a suitable name is asked to leave it at the arena office."

Students Planning For Annual Pilgrimage to Capital; Boxers to Appear

Vancouver, Oct. 28.—The pilgrimage of the University students to Victoria for the annual inter-city athletic competitions will take place January 5 and 6 according to an announcement of Doug. Rae, president of the Athletic Association of the University. Final plans have not yet been drafted but it is probable that matches will be arranged for practically every athletic organization in the University.

In addition to the usual competitions which are featured previous trips to the capital there will be run off this year a four-mile relay instead of the half-mile relay as heretofore. An attempt is also being made to arrange for two boxing matches between representatives from the Varsity Boxing Club and some Victoria organization.

Vancouver, Oct. 28.—Old "Eagle Eye" Hughie Lehman, recognized as the boss goalkeeper in professional hockey and who has been playing in the Coast League since the inception of the sport in the West, first as a member of the New Westminster champions of 1912 and since then with Vancouver, will not be among those present when Vancouver and Seattle tangle here November 13 in the first league match. Private business will keep him in Ontario until the latter part of November. It was announced yesterday upon receipt of a wire from the East, Lehman informing the local management that he will be unable to check in before December 1.

Reed to Guard Nets

Vancouver, however, will be able to start the 1922-23 campaign with another goalkeeper of luxe guarding the cage, it was announced to-day. Through the kindness of Lloyd Turner, Calgary club owner, Charlie Reed, who is rated as the Western Canada League's leading goalie, will step into the breach here until Lehman gets on the job. The prairie league does not open for fully a month following the start of the coast race and Reed will be able to work in at least half a dozen games for the Maroons. Transportation was wired yesterday to Reed at Calgary and he is expected to arrive about the middle of next week.

MILTON MAKES MORE THAN TWO MILES A MINUTE ON SPEEDWAY

Santa Rosa, Cal., Oct. 28.—Tommy Milton, American race champion in 1921, yesterday made a shade under 125 miles an hour on the Cotati Speedway near here while practicing for Sunday's race of 100 miles. Drivers entering the race must drive at least 115 miles an hour to qualify.

AMERICAN ATHLETES WIN IN OLD COUNTRY

Oxford, Eng., Oct. 28.—In the University senior sports yesterday W. E. Stevenson, of Princeton and Balliol college, Oxford, won the quarter-mile race in 52.3 seconds. He also won his heat in the 900-yard dash, making it in 11 seconds.

Hockey Players To Hold First Workouts Saturday

(By A. P. Garvey)

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 28.—With practically every regular who propelled a stick on the Pacific Coast Hockey Association loop last year back on the job again, and a sprinkling of new talent, the Winter sport will be ushered in Monday, November 13. Players report for their first official practices on Saturday next.

GIBBONS READY TO TAKE ON DEMPSEY

New York, Oct. 28.—Championship contents are gaining prominence on Gotham's athletic calendar for the near future. Two are already scheduled and others are being arranged. Jack Britton, welterweight champion, will risk his title in the first of these bouts next Wednesday, when he boxes Mickey Walker, of Newark.

CONACHER UPHeld BY COURT IN LAWSUIT

Toronto, Oct. 28.—A bitter attack has been made on the amateur standing of the plaintiff in a style regarded by some papers as effective, remarked Justice Loggie in a decision handed down yesterday in the appeal of the Sport Publishing Company and E. J. Livingstone from order of Master-in-Chambers Cameron, who directed an officer of the company to attend for an examination on the $10,000 libel action brought against it by Lionel Conacher, well-known athlete.

DOMINION

Face a crook fighting for a princely crown? You don't have to fancy it, though. You can see it if you go to see "The Face in the Fog" at the Dominion Theatre all this week. Lionel Barrymore, playing the part of Boston Blackie Dawson, is the crook, and his princess, the Grand Duchess Tatiana of Russia, is in real life beautiful Seena Owen.

Seldom has Mr. Barrymore had a more advantageous opportunity for the display of his histrionic talents. In this picture he depicts the change of a crook into a peaceful citizen and back into a crook again—but this time he is not a crook for the crook's sake but a crook for a woman's sake. It is the only way in which Boston Blackie can save the life of the Grand Duchess Tatiana.

Jack Boyle, author of this story.

which appeared in Cosmopolitan Magazine, has made artistic and effective use of every opportunity to stir the emotions. He throws ruffians and nobles together, mixes blue blood and red, shows where Bolsheviks and the United States Government stand, and he doesn't leave out love.

"The Face in the Fog" is a first-class production. Nothing of the sort is likely to be seen here again for many weeks. No one who likes a rattling good picture will miss seeing it.

ROYAL VICTORIA

With Norma Talmadge in a dramatic role of great intensity, the production of "The Eternal Flame," which will be the first National attraction at the Royal Victoria Theatre for the last time tonight, takes on the importance of a hitherto unparalleled spectacle under the direction of Frank Lloyd, who has a number of previous superproductions to his credit.

The massive and artistic ballroom, which is just one of the many pretentious sets of the film, is far superior in detail to any similar set, according to motion picture experts.

In addition to this tremendous scene in which eight hundred actors and actresses appear, there are other

"CROSSROADS" AT ROYAL WILL BE PRESENTED MONDAY

Mack Sennett has evolved a new and popular pastime in "The Crossroads of New York," his latest six reel comedy-melodrama, which is being released through Associated First National Pictures, Inc., and will be shown at the Royal Victoria Theatre beginning next Monday. It is the pastime of a quick getaway.

The plot revolves around the fortunes of James Flint, Wall Street power and man of wealth. The financier has not only fallen hard for a Broadway vamp, but finds that he is involved beyond his financial depth. In his philanthropic heart he offered to finance a musical show in which she was to star, but he had no idea of how fast that lady could spend money.

Faced by this situation, James decided upon Alaska as a nice, cool place where, musical comedies had never established themselves. His quick departure left the management of his affairs in the hands of his new Michael, a graduate from the country, who is the main figure in the plot. The youngster has to deal with several villains who aspire to the old man's position, and a success of his job, but only after a series of thrilling dramatic and humorous incidents that involve the smashing of a Broadway show and a riotous scene on the New York Stock Exchange.

Mack Sennett's new-found art of making a serious drama a comedy has never been put to a better test than here. The production has been set with a lavish hand and some of the grandest mountings of sensational heights in their effect. Twelve prominent players appear in the cast.

"WAY DOWN EAST" DEALS WITH NEW ENGLAND STORY

The special engagement of D. W. Griffith's wonder spectacle, "Way Down East," at the Capitol Theatre next week.

This is the outstanding achievement of the theatrical year—and to miss it is to pass by the event of the current season.

"Way Down East" is a new art form combining drama, motion picture and music into a combination of stirring appeal, passing through the four seasons of New England and bringing back those quaint and delightful folks who made stage history when Lottie Blair Parker and Joe-K. Crisman introduced the famous drama to stageland. D. W. Griffith picks up the well known tale where the original dramatists were content to climax it and carries the action forward so intensely that it culminates in the most thrilling scene ever revealed in a theatre in the world. For sheer beauty of landscape and for its realism of atmospheric surrounding "Way Down East" in Griffith's hands becomes a classic and its engagement is sure that has attached to it in every quarter where it is now being presented with a measure of success that is not short of astounding.

EXPRESSES OPINION SCHOOL FEES SHOULD BE CHARGED

With a firmly written "yes" on his questionnaire against the question, "Do you think High School students should be paid for?" Alderman J. H. Gillespie gave his opinion in a condensed manner when he joined the majority of people who have turned in papers to the Citizen Committee to investigate school costs.

"Some system should be made," said Mr. Gillespie in explaining the High School education, for fees, and some free scholarships granted to take care of children of poor people.

"Generally speaking," he went on to say, "High schools should have a scale of fees. Children failing to pass out of a grade and who have to repeat pay full fees."

He also suggested that the Victoria College fees be raised to $100 per annum.

WOULD SET POLICY FOR CANDIDATES

Saanich Workmen Start New Municipal Political Idea
 Will Submit Questionnaire to All Candidates

Sounding a new keynote in Saanich municipal politics, the Saanich Workmen's Association last night, under President J. Britton, at Mark's Hall, moved to change fundamental principles.

"We want the people to make the platform for candidates to run upon and end the old plan of candidates making a platform for the people to vote upon," said one of the leaders of the 45 men present, as the meeting approved a questionnaire of thirty clauses to candidates for reeve, councillors, police commission and school trustees.

SLIDING SCALE

The questions as approved are, in general, of most definite character, as exemplified by that dealing with working conditions. This clause asks the candidates whether they will or will not support a sliding scale of wages, based on the monthly cost of living statistics of this district, as published by the Federal Government at Ottawa.

METHOD OF FINANCING

The few questions which are less definite are best illustrated by that dealing with the municipal debt. The workmen are opposed to additional debt being made to the debt, believing that public improvements should be made by yearly instalments and financed out of the annual levy.

PAVING POLICY

The meeting developed considerable heat at times, and did not break up until nearly one o'clock this morning, the chief cause of discussion being the proposal that the association should come out flat-footed in favor of a three-trail rate for permanent paving, to be carried out without regard for ward boundaries.

SAYS RIGHTS OF HUNTERS ASSAILED

Sons of Canada Pass Resolutions on Local Subjects
 Objecting to advertisements and sign posts warning hunters off the Sidney sandspit, which it is claimed has been public hunting-ground for many years, and also objecting to the alleged sale by Saanich farmers of hunting rights over their property for pheasants which have been bred here by importation and breeding conditions established at the cost of the taxpayers of the country, the Native Sons of Canada last night passed the following resolutions asking the Provincial and Federal Governments respectively to investigate:

"The Government of British Columbia has spent considerable public money importing and breeding pheasants and other game," says the first resolution. "The landowners and farmers of Saanich and other districts on Vancouver Island have within a recent date adopted an innovation—what is known as shooting rights over their land, thereby in our opinion indirectly receiving financial gain from the sale of game contrary to the spirit of the Game Regulation Act, and at the same time in a measure taking away a privilege that has been enjoyed by the people of this country."

"Therefore be it resolved that this organization respectfully requests the Provincial Government to cause an investigation to the end that the interests of the general public be protected."

"This piece of tidal land has been a common hunting ground for many years," says the resolution adopted. "A considerable portion, if not all, is covered by tidal water during certain seasons of the year. And whereas it is not common practice for the Dominion Government to grant title to land of this kind, and only in extreme cases for industrial purposes, therefore be it resolved that this organization go on record as requesting the Dominion Government to make investigation and if necessary a new survey to the end that if possible this strip of land be kept for common usage for hunting and shooting purposes."

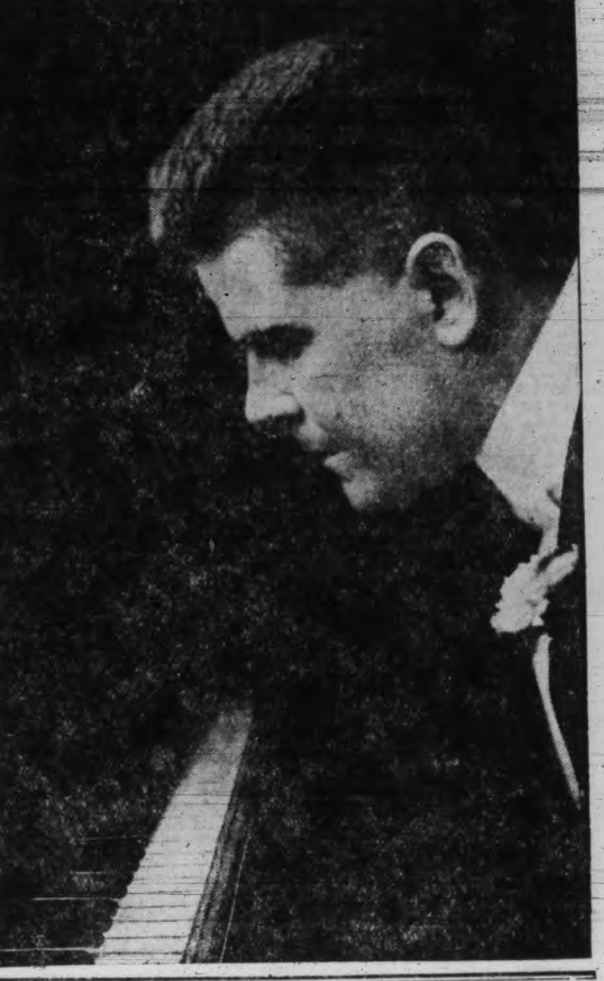

The unusual spectacle of a star having to stand in order to witness his own production was witnessed at the Criterion Theatre in New York the other night when Marion Davies, star of the Cosmopolitan picture, "When Knighthood Was in Flower," arrived too late to get a seat. Ever since this unusual picture opened on Broadway the Criterion has been sold out at every performance.

More than 5,000 motor cars from United States will tour the Kootenay district and come up through the Lake Windermere district to Golden and to Banff next summer, according to Col. J. S. Dennis, of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who has been investigating the possibilities of the Columbia River Valley.

There will also be at least a couple of thousand cars from Calgary who will come into British Columbia by way of Banff, and the new Banff-Windermere Road, which is being opened for traffic the middle of this month.

The estimate of the number of American cars to tour the district is just half the estimate of 10,000 furnished him by the highway commission of Washington, Col. Dennis explained. Cars from the south will come up by the Kootenays and Lake Windermere and return by Calgary and Idaho.

The Hon. J. H. King, Minister of Public Works for Canada, and representative of this district in the House of Commons, and J. A. Buckham, M.P. for Columbia, also made a tour of inspection of the highways miles up the new Banff-Windermere highway and through the startling Sinclair Canyon where the road is carved in underneath towering rocks.

"The road is a magnificent scenic highway and the surfacing comes near to making it perfect," said Dr. King.

"You can date the development of the Columbia Valley from now," said Herbert Cuthbert, of Seattle, chairman of the Pacific Northwest Tourist Association, on his return here after an inspection of the resources of the Columbia Valley as far as Lake Windermere. "With the completion now of these roads the Governments have been putting through, motor tourists will swarm up here by the thousands. The excellent type of road which has been constructed here and the wonderful wild scenery will make it a popular resort for Americans."

Just think, with the opening of the road to Banff you will be able to motor all the way up between the Selkirk and Rocky Mountains and then right across the Rockies on to the prairies.

"It is the publicity this district will get through the motor tourist which will lead to its permanent settlement and development."

"The road is wonderfully good, and the scenery wonderfully magnificent," said Mr. Thomson, Commissioner of the Hudson's Bay Co.

On the shores of Lake Windermere, British Columbia, there transpired recently an event which will be incorporated in the history of Canada. This was the dedication of a Memorial Fort erected to David Thompson, Canada's greatest geographer and surveyor.

The Fort, which is the largest log building in Canada, was erected by the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Hudson's Bay Company; and it will be used in future as a museum.

With faces painted in the brightest hues, and attired in colorful tribal costumes, Indians from the Kootenay and Shuswap reserves were the principal attraction at this inspiring event. Their tepees were pitched on the top of the hill surrounding the Fort. As dusk fell they lit camp fires and soon the visitors from Eastern and Western Canada and the United States were entertained with music supplied by the tom-tom augmented by the husky voices of the Braves.

The Indians had gathered to do honor to Canada's greatest surveyor who landed on the shore of Lake Windermere in 1807, and for this event they brought with them their finest costumes. Beads in rainbow shades, combined with elk's teeth and vari-colored feathers were the "materials" used for the attractive garbs of the squares. Each child and man brought to mind that one need not travel to world-famous fashion centres to obtain ideas for daring color schemes. Each child and man was arrayed in its tribal costumes with beadwork of dazzling beauty. When an Indian tribe packs its tepee and moves it is always accompanied by the "Medicine Man." He is regarded by his fellowmen as gifted with rare talents: The "Medicine Man" of the Kootenay tribe was, perhaps, the most picturesque figure of the pageant. His costume was most colorful and his headdress was unique.

Both tribes entered into the spirit of the event with keen interest and were responsible for the pageant being such a huge success. The second day's programme included activities of a more modern nature, and here, again, members of the Kootenay and Shuswap carried off prizes which they captured in almost every case, with little effort.

THE FALL WEATHER HARD ON LITTLE ONES

Canadian fall weather is extremely hard on little ones. One day it is warm and bright and the next wet and cold. These sudden changes bring on colds, cramps and colic, and unless baby's little stomach is kept right the result may be serious. There is nothing to equal Baby's Own Tablets in keeping the little ones well. They sweeten the stomach, regulate the bowels, break up colds and make baby thrive. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. Adv.

SMUGGLING BOOM ON IN ENGLAND

London, Oct. 28.—Smuggling is more rife now than it has been for over a hundred years. This is the opinion of British Customs officials. The smugglers do not belong to the old type of men who ran into quiet cover cargoes of spirits or tobacco under cover of night, and who were not afraid of a brush with the preventive officers. They now use cunning and ingenuity to deceive "the Sargers."

Every German ship that now enters a British port has among its crew a confederation of smugglers. Scarcely a week passes without a case of smuggling being reported from some of the eastern ports between Leith and Hull, and the defenders are usually Teutons.

Within seven days over twenty gallons of German brandy have been captured, and it is safe to estimate that ten times the amount has got through. The aliens find the business a paying game—if they are not caught, and few are.

The greatest ingenuity is displayed in finding hiding places for the duty-free brandy. Inside the innocent-looking couch cushions in a cabin were found several bottles of brandy. On another ship part of the engine room had to be dismantled to get at the contraband.

There is good reason to suspect that the whole crew have a share in the game. It pays. A bottle of brandy can now be had in Hamburg at 1s. It is sold to receivers in ports at 8s, leaving the smugglers 700 per cent profit.

Then the spirit is not disposed of locally, as the preventive staffs and police are keenly on the alert at ports. It finds its way through illicit agents into inland towns such as Nottingham, Sheffield, Birmingham. There the price has advanced to 15s. If it is good brandy, leaving 7s. profit to the inland smugglers, who are often smartly dressed women.

MAY BE GLAD OF CHANCE TO LOAF

"Talking of optimists and philosophers," said the colonel, "reminds me of an old story of the very best of them. The old man had to keep close while the old woman washed his only shirt and hung it out to dry. Coming in later, she said to him: 'John, I'm sorry to say the calf has taken an' eat up yer shirt.' 'Well,' he said, with a restful yawn, 'it's the way of the world. They that has must lose!'—Atlanta Constitution

HERE'S MARGOT BACK WITH ANOTHER BOOK AND MORE SECRETS

She Tells Origin of Famous Robinson Gold Mine in South Africa
 As Mother of Five She Had Passion For Children, She Says

London, Oct. 28.—Mrs. Asquith is as brilliant and entertaining in the second volume of her autobiography, which will be published shortly as in her previous writings.

The new volume, extracts from which are published in the London Sunday Times, deal with the time of the Jameson Raid and the Boer War. Early in 1896 Margot met at a dinner party the South African millionaire, Sir J. B. Robinson.

"He told me," writes Mrs. Asquith, "that he had started life in a humble way by keeping a little shop. One day a man came to him with whom he had a slight acquaintance and said that he was in great difficulties, adding that if he could be helped with a loan of fifty pounds his life would be saved."

"He promised that he would pay everything back, and Mr. Robinson lent him the money. Time passed, but he heard nothing of his debtor. Two years later he received a letter from him saying that he had been away trekking out of all reach of posts, which accounted for his silence."

There was a map attached to the letter, giving a detailed description of a field on a farm which he said would some day be of enormous value, as he had prospected it and found gold there. He enclosed his cheque, and Robinson started off up country the same day. The Boer farmer who owned the field received him with suspicion. They walked over the estate and when they came to the part indicated on the map Robinson said that it looked an arid kind of place, but that he would like to buy it, as he did not suppose it would be dear, and he wanted to start farming in a mild fashion. To his surprise, the Boer opened his mouth rather wide, asked him five hundred pounds, to which Robinson demurred. But the farmer was obstinate, so he gave away and bought the field. This was the beginning of the great Robinson Mine."

Referring to her early married life and the responsibility of a family of five children, Margot writes: "I was aware that I had undertaken serious responsibilities, and those who mistook vitality for frivolity kept a sharp eye upon me to see what I was going to do of them. From my youth I had a passion for little children, and at the time I was expecting my second baby I was working out theories upon education which I had long held and deeply considered."

Mrs. Asquith quotes what she wrote down of her theories of motherhood: "There are," she writes, "women who specialize in motherhood; they collect catalogue, and kodak themselves with their children; these are the mothers who dedicate their family to themselves, subconsciously setting up a personal worship but neglect is less suffocating than advertisement, and though it is a harsh reflection, a child left to the dull arrogance of an aunt has a better chance of finding itself, than if brought up by the self-enfolded mother."

HAS LIGHT ON NOSE TO LURE OTHER FISH

London, Oct. 28.—A rare fish, which has a phosphorescent nose, has been caught off the Eastern Pacific Coast. It rejoices in the name of Dolopictys Alector, and cruises around at about 770 fathoms deep, where there is no light at all. Its nose, or "fin-ray," therefore, when well glowing, is not only a useful lamp-post, but a cunning bait to lure other fishes to vastier depths as food for Mr. "Dolop." The fish, according to an official in the Natural History Museum at South Kensington, is so rare that there is no specimen in the possession of the British authorities. It belongs to a class known as "anglers." The phosphorescence is a chemical illumination, and not the result of a natural electric motor.

"Many phosphorescent fishes," said the informant, "are caught off the European coasts, but they are of a kind that have a row of illuminators running along the sides of their bodies."

None of these deep-sea fish can be kept in aquariums, as the great pressure to which they are accustomed cannot be maintained artificially, and when brought up from great depths they simply burst.

PROBLEMS MANY, LEADERS SCARCE, ENGLAND COMPLAINS

Strange Death of Men With Courage to Face Facts, Is Reported

Such Is Case Not Only in Political, But in Social and Economic Life

(By the Rt. Hon. The Lord Morris, K.C.M.G., K.C., LL.D., Late Premier of New Found-land.)

London, Oct. 27.—Never before has the need for wise leadership been so great and never before has the number of wise disinterested leaders been so few.

In every sphere of life, social, economic and political, there is a strange dearth of men with the courage to face the facts, to realize their significance and to take the steps which they know are necessary and fundamental to any real reconstruction of our country.

Every second man we meet will tell us what requires to be done, and often that is not there is an element of truth to be found in what he says, but seldom do we fall in with a man who is doing his best in his own sphere to set things right.

People are looking and waiting for someone to show them the way and lead them along the path of true progress. Those who know the way seem afraid to take the plunge.

Industrial Reactions Baffle. It is especially true in the world of industry. The problem of industrial relationships still remains the baffling puzzle of the moment.

As a solution seems appreciably nearer some ill-timed action or expression of opinion, all but the wisest of us who had been entertaining a better and more human understanding between master and man.

Workers are still suspicious and distrustful of their masters, and the masters even yet are slow to recognize any justice in their workers' demands.

During the war the workers had their wages raised, and now that the war is over and industry is stagnant the masters are suspected of taking the opportunity to reduce wages as a sort of reprisal.

An antagonistic feeling is still too common between master and man for any real understanding to come into being. Before there can be any lasting peace in industry, distrust and suspicion must be removed.

There are not a few who do not realize that among either the masters or men and yet those who take definite steps to bring this greatly to be desired result about are few and far between.

The attitude of these two human factors in industry is competitive rather than co-operative, instead of sympathetic and distrustful each other, and yet there is a large body of opinion in favor of conciliation whose voice is seldom heard.

Those who have confidence are eager to become a powerful factor in the councils of industry. There do not seem to be any of the present leaders who are prepared and able to lead the way towards the goal which is industrial peace and prosperity based on goodwill and mutual confidence.

Masters far too eager to get rid of the spirit of enmity and ill-will that is enslaving industry. On both sides there is a strong feeling in favor of co-operation, and conciliation—but neither seems willing to make a sacrifice or to give up even a little of their power although they know well that this must be done if they are to achieve their purpose.

Good "Captains" Scarce. If only masters would be content with a little less profit and a little less prosperity and workers with a little less resentment of wage reductions during a period of trade depression, the establishment of more confidence and trust in each other would come nearer to being a reality.

Suspicious, bred of past grievances and injustices are responsible for the caution and aloofness with which questions of industrial reform are approached. The occasion calls for wise statesmanship and courageous leadership, for men who have enough faith in their fellow-men to make their sacrifice, confident that it will not have been made in vain.

How many men have been hailed by their fellows as "captains of industry" and yet how few of them have displayed the qualities we are accustomed to associate with the name of "captain"?

It is the part of a captain to lead, to win the confidence and affection of his men, to guide their actions and forward their interests, to see to it that the good of all comes first and that justice and fairness is meted out without fear or favor.

It seems very clear to me that in the present state of affairs in England, it is not only in the political and economic spheres, but in the social and industrial spheres, that we are in need of more "captains" who are willing to lead and to sacrifice for the good of all.

Such is the case not only in the political, but in the social and economic life. The need for wise leadership has never been so great and never before has the number of wise disinterested leaders been so few.

BRITISH KEEN FOR COMEDIANS, GREAT SINGERS NEGLECTED

London Will Pay Artists Only One-tenth What New York Will

Artists Such as Caruso, McCormack and Galli-Curci Find No Place There

London, Oct. 28.—The life of singers, great and small, in this country would seem to indicate that music, at any rate in vocal form, does not stand high in the minds of the British public as a form of entertainment, and altogether from the regard they hold it in as an art.

For the last ten years at least, the national opera house, Covent Garden, has not held a single singer of real worldwide reputation as a regular performer. No celebrity exists behind the doors of this fine old house, its "glories" are not dramatic genius, or by appearance and physique, the thousands who used to attend opera years ago in London.

In England an entertainment such as opera has to be a social function, a place of gathering for the elite, where all and sundry strut about in their finest feathers or skin, because the financial or commercial success is even feasible. In such a case, a singer has long since been defunct in England. No one, literally, goes to Covent Garden now, individually, to enjoy the music, but there is no body to see, and what is perhaps of equal importance there is nobody there whose singing is worth hearing.

Those interested in the production of opera in England, on the other hand, complain that the lack of attendance on the part of the moneyed people in London makes it impossible to profitably sing such artists as Caruso, McCormack, or Galli-Curci. The ordinary individual, however, is not interested in the production of opera in England, on the other hand, complain that the lack of attendance on the part of the moneyed people in London makes it impossible to profitably sing such artists as Caruso, McCormack, or Galli-Curci.

Commons Library Getting Too Big London, Oct. 28.—The library of the House of Commons is now in process of revision, with a view to the weeding out of superfluous works. The library, consisting of nearly 100,000 volumes, is a vast collection of Parliamentary papers, bills, committee reports, and other documents. It is now being revised, with a view to the weeding out of superfluous works.

No Help for Singers. There seems to be a certain ingredient of truth in all these opinions. There is not the slightest doubt that the singers at Covent Garden, during the past few seasons, have not been either Carusos or McCormacks. But given the opportunities and encouragement, and even example, which those two great artists have had, any one of them might have risen to become great singers. That the producers of opera in this country have not done this is a matter which is worthy of careful consideration.

During the past few seasons there have been a few voices heard in Covent Garden. Singers with extraordinary talent and artistic ability have done their best for their role. But Covent Garden seems to be a little backward in its appreciation of the zenith of their endeavors. After that their only ambition can be to go somewhere else where they will be heard with greater recompense.

—America is the only place they think of—and the jump from Covent Garden to New York is no great feat. The ordinary individual, however, is not interested in the production of opera in England, on the other hand, complain that the lack of attendance on the part of the moneyed people in London makes it impossible to profitably sing such artists as Caruso, McCormack, or Galli-Curci.

It was announced last July that the princess had joined a West End dressmaking firm, and would design frocks for its clientele. The many years she spent in Paris, added to her own artistic talents, equipped her for the task.

Princess Designs Cabaret Gowns London, Oct. 28.—The names of a princess of the Romanoffs will appear on the programme list of persons supplying gowns and hats when "The Cabaret Girl" is produced at the Winter Garden Theatre. The dresses in acts one and two of this new musical comedy have been designed by Princess Andrew of Russia. Princess Andrew is one of the many members of the old Russian nobility whom the revolution has forced into the wage-earning ranks. In the days when Russia was ruled by the Czar, her clothes and jewels were famous, even in a country where a woman's little finger often bore diamonds worth a king's ransom.

Drives Golf Ball Over Castle Wall London, Oct. 21.—Driving against odds of 100 to 1, Capt. E. C. Carter teed off perfectly and put a golf ball over a castle wall and won a remarkable wager. Capt. Carter won the Welsh open championship and immediately afterwards a fashionable woman golfer offered to wager £100 that he could not put the ball to Harleek Castle, a historic structure of the thirteenth century standing on a huge rock overlooking the royal St. David's course.

It is 200 yards from the nearest point on the links to the battlements, which are 200 feet above the level of the course. Capt. Carter's first attempt failed, but he scored the second.

NOTED ENGINEER ONCE WEALTHY, TO INFIRMARY

Frederick Hall Kirby, Who Built Bombay Docks, Now Penniless

Company Promoters "Skin" Him, Then Distinguished Sons Desert

London, Oct. 28.—The tragic story of a cityman, who once earned $50,000 a year but is now in penury, was unfolded when a white-haired old man of 84, Frederick Hall Kirby, stood in the dock at Westminster Police Court charged with obtaining food and lodging by fraud and false pretences.

A detective said he found on him some pawn tickets and a few old pension papers. An old acquaintance of his, Dalziel Fisher, a solicitor, said Kirby had had a lucrative career in India, had been consulting engineer, and had held Government appointments in India.

He built the docks at Bombay and other important works, and his income was not less than £50,000. He had three sons in high positions. One was a brigadier-general, commanding officer in artillery in India, and another an engineer in charge of railways.

Late in life, continued Mr. Fisher, Kirby fell into the hands of company promoters, and the result was the loss of his large fortune. He was now almost blind, and there was no doubt that to a certain extent his mind was enfeebled, the idea of his former great undertakings still possessing him.

He had recently told him (Mr. Fisher) that he had some business going through by which he was making £400,000. Inquiries established the fact that though there had been some trading in the name, your great jewel remains always a potent cause of tragedy.

London, Oct. 28.—The growth of gambling was the subject of speeches delivered at a meeting which followed the concluding session at Swansea of the annual conference of the English Churches of the Presbyterian Church of Wales.

Dr. W. Llewellyn Williams (Cardiff) deplored that "some members of their Churches were smitten with the evil," and Dr. Collins Lewis (Swansea) declared that in Rhondda churches young men even made a bet on what was going to be the next hymn.

In Swansea, Dr. Lewis continued he saw women rushing for sporting papers and heard them talking of horses whose names they knew better than they did their children.

"Last Waltz" Reaches London London, Oct. 28.—There was a big rehearsal yesterday of Oscar Straus' newest musical comedy, "The Last Waltz," at the Gaiety Theatre. Straus' lyrical genius was again displayed in this work, which, from the musical standpoint, is far superior to anything of the kind heard in London since the war.

The critics say that the haunting air that runs through the piece will become popular. Jose Collins was highly successful in her interpretation of Straus' work, and was repeatedly acclaimed.

The so-called "comic-relief" was the weak part of the performance, but this was redeemed by the quality of the music. Robert Everett, the manager, was complimentary on the production which it was predicted will have a long run.

Husband Awakes, Finds Wife's Dyed Hair Turned Green London, Oct. 28.—A society lady who was rather proud of her abundant tresses is in retirement, while Nature restores the ravages of Art.

She became bitten with the very latest Parisian idea of having her locks dyed a startling new shade, and for this purpose obtained a bottle of specific guaranteed to produce an effect. It did.

Her husband blinked rather strangely and shuddered at this almost unknown wife who one morning greeted him. He endured this feminine whim with the grace, however.

Some peculiar chemical antipathy arose between the dye and the tresses, and now the lady is adorned with a bright green poll. Frantic consultation with eminent hair specialists have given her the cold comfort that "perhaps, some day, her locks may recover their former hue, but always, they will suffer from the effect of the dye."

Bridegroom at Altar Without Cash, Is Given Time for Wedding Fee Nottingham, Eng. Oct. 28.—A bridegroom at Mansfield found himself at the altar without the ten shillings and sevenpence due for fees. They have been allowed a fortnight's grace by the vergar, who has withheld the marriage certificate for security. As the bridegroom is a soldier, the bride must have the certificate to prove to the War Office that she is a wife.

BRITISH KEEN FOR COMEDIANS, GREAT SINGERS NEGLECTED

London Will Pay Artists Only One-tenth What New York Will

Artists Such as Caruso, McCormack and Galli-Curci Find No Place There

London, Oct. 28.—The life of singers, great and small, in this country would seem to indicate that music, at any rate in vocal form, does not stand high in the minds of the British public as a form of entertainment, and altogether from the regard they hold it in as an art.

For the last ten years at least, the national opera house, Covent Garden, has not held a single singer of real worldwide reputation as a regular performer. No celebrity exists behind the doors of this fine old house, its "glories" are not dramatic genius, or by appearance and physique, the thousands who used to attend opera years ago in London.

In England an entertainment such as opera has to be a social function, a place of gathering for the elite, where all and sundry strut about in their finest feathers or skin, because the financial or commercial success is even feasible. In such a case, a singer has long since been defunct in England. No one, literally, goes to Covent Garden now, individually, to enjoy the music, but there is no body to see, and what is perhaps of equal importance there is nobody there whose singing is worth hearing.

Those interested in the production of opera in England, on the other hand, complain that the lack of attendance on the part of the moneyed people in London makes it impossible to profitably sing such artists as Caruso, McCormack, or Galli-Curci. The ordinary individual, however, is not interested in the production of opera in England, on the other hand, complain that the lack of attendance on the part of the moneyed people in London makes it impossible to profitably sing such artists as Caruso, McCormack, or Galli-Curci.

Commons Library Getting Too Big London, Oct. 28.—The library of the House of Commons is now in process of revision, with a view to the weeding out of superfluous works. The library, consisting of nearly 100,000 volumes, is a vast collection of Parliamentary papers, bills, committee reports, and other documents. It is now being revised, with a view to the weeding out of superfluous works.

No Help for Singers. There seems to be a certain ingredient of truth in all these opinions. There is not the slightest doubt that the singers at Covent Garden, during the past few seasons, have not been either Carusos or McCormacks. But given the opportunities and encouragement, and even example, which those two great artists have had, any one of them might have risen to become great singers. That the producers of opera in this country have not done this is a matter which is worthy of careful consideration.

During the past few seasons there have been a few voices heard in Covent Garden. Singers with extraordinary talent and artistic ability have done their best for their role. But Covent Garden seems to be a little backward in its appreciation of the zenith of their endeavors. After that their only ambition can be to go somewhere else where they will be heard with greater recompense.

—America is the only place they think of—and the jump from Covent Garden to New York is no great feat. The ordinary individual, however, is not interested in the production of opera in England, on the other hand, complain that the lack of attendance on the part of the moneyed people in London makes it impossible to profitably sing such artists as Caruso, McCormack, or Galli-Curci.

Princess Designs Cabaret Gowns London, Oct. 28.—The names of a princess of the Romanoffs will appear on the programme list of persons supplying gowns and hats when "The Cabaret Girl" is produced at the Winter Garden Theatre. The dresses in acts one and two of this new musical comedy have been designed by Princess Andrew of Russia. Princess Andrew is one of the many members of the old Russian nobility whom the revolution has forced into the wage-earning ranks. In the days when Russia was ruled by the Czar, her clothes and jewels were famous, even in a country where a woman's little finger often bore diamonds worth a king's ransom.

Drives Golf Ball Over Castle Wall London, Oct. 21.—Driving against odds of 100 to 1, Capt. E. C. Carter teed off perfectly and put a golf ball over a castle wall and won a remarkable wager. Capt. Carter won the Welsh open championship and immediately afterwards a fashionable woman golfer offered to wager £100 that he could not put the ball to Harleek Castle, a historic structure of the thirteenth century standing on a huge rock overlooking the royal St. David's course.

It is 200 yards from the nearest point on the links to the battlements, which are 200 feet above the level of the course. Capt. Carter's first attempt failed, but he scored the second.

NOTED ENGINEER ONCE WEALTHY, TO INFIRMARY

Frederick Hall Kirby, Who Built Bombay Docks, Now Penniless

Company Promoters "Skin" Him, Then Distinguished Sons Desert

London, Oct. 28.—The tragic story of a cityman, who once earned $50,000 a year but is now in penury, was unfolded when a white-haired old man of 84, Frederick Hall Kirby, stood in the dock at Westminster Police Court charged with obtaining food and lodging by fraud and false pretences.

A detective said he found on him some pawn tickets and a few old pension papers. An old acquaintance of his, Dalziel Fisher, a solicitor, said Kirby had had a lucrative career in India, had been consulting engineer, and had held Government appointments in India.

He built the docks at Bombay and other important works, and his income was not less than £50,000. He had three sons in high positions. One was a brigadier-general, commanding officer in artillery in India, and another an engineer in charge of railways.

Late in life, continued Mr. Fisher, Kirby fell into the hands of company promoters, and the result was the loss of his large fortune. He was now almost blind, and there was no doubt that to a certain extent his mind was enfeebled, the idea of his former great undertakings still possessing him.

An Indoor Hobby for Children of All Ages

THE showers of the last few days serve to remind us that presently the sun will take his long vacation and on this portion of the globe it will be well for those who have a variety of indoor hobbies, to while away the rainy days of Fall and Winter. There are many hobbies that occur naturally to little people each to his, or her, own taste.

Perhaps one of the most entertaining and useful withal is that of photography. Though not a very difficult matter few amateurs take the trouble to learn how to take care of their photographs all the way through the process from the first sighting of the view to the drying of the finished product and its inclusion in some album.

Photography is a hobby that remains in vogue all the year around, for when the good light of Spring and Summer is over comes a lull that serves well for the re-printing and cataloguing of former operations. Fall time is album time surely, and what could be more entertaining than to collect all our photographs and get them into albums in orderly shape, so that the result of our season's work may serve as a pleasure and delight for our friends.

There is nothing tremendously difficult about amateur photography, for indeed, it is only in commercial picture making that the greatest pains and protracted operations are called for to produce the results desired. On the other hand the vast majority of amateurs take a great deal too little trouble with their work and so cut in half the value of their album.

While not intended for a treatise on the subject perhaps a brief sketch of an average photograph may be of help to some of our camera enthusiasts. In the recent photograph contest in these columns readers of the Children's Page submitted photography that was of a very high order indeed, but the average for all contributions was not as good as a little additional care would have made it. Let it be remembered that the best results may only be obtained by a thorough familiarity with the camera that is to be used, and this in turn comes only with patient practice and fortitude under annoying failures.

Do not, as a general rule, load a camera and then go hunting for a picture; for in that manner a large mass of pictures are taken that are not really wanted at all. First make up your mind what is required and then go after that solely. The blind snapping of pictures along the way is like the hunter, who shoots off all his shot at trees and leaves, and when the real game appears he is inoperative for lack of ammunition. That is expensive hunting, as it would be costly camera work.

Let us suppose that the picture we are desirous of getting is one of a small black spaniel, a pet. If the day be bright with plenty of good clear sun, and few clouds we will select the best spot in our lens, and then narrow the field of vision until only that portion of the lens is in operation. By cutting down the amount of lens surface we must compensate on the time, by giving our exposure longer. The liveliness of our doggie friend will quickly put a limit to this, so that the best we may do is a compromise of both our camera to operate as well as possible in regard to the prevailing light and nature of our subject, and having first seen that the lens were cleaned with a clean silk cloth, we are now ready for the posing. Dogs have a limit to their patience, and same as human beings, so we will not worry him until we find a background that we like. For a black dog we need a lighter colored background. This is a matter for individual taste but the necessary point is a background that will allow the dog to be the one prominent feature of the picture.

Having found a background next we will fix up our camera, and it would be well to have it supported on a stout box or some such contrivance for this experiment. Only after we have the scene, without the dog, all ready will we worry the spaniel. When all is in order coax the dog, and it may take hours of patience, to get him down in the place we have picked out for him. Check his appearance in the camera finder, to see he is well placed in the camera, and then watch for a choice moment. Few dogs will smile, though some do, but soon if we be patient he will look up at us and be the dearly loved little pet we wish to record in our album. Press the trigger slowly and firmly, and the deed is done.

Part two of the camera development of the picture. Plates are easy to handle but films perhaps more suitable for the amateur. In the dark room you will want a number of chemical baths and some clean cold water. Get all in order, with the baths in the easiest order to hand, and then turn out the light. From the rays of a well desiccated lamp, or the convex lens, enough to begin operations. Be very careful to have no daylight or white light in the room, and do not expose any portion of the film to even the meagre red light until it has been, for some time in its first bath, and then only momentarily.

Taking the roll from the camera we turn the paper side up to the eyes. Unroll carefully until you see the marking limits of the last picture, usually number six. Holding the roll firmly but not scrunchingly, cut the paper and film within the limits of the section (6). Drop the severed portion to the table for a moment and secure the balance of the roll with an elastic band, leaving it in a dark place. Next strip the paper from the severed exposure and taking this carefully by its extremities dip it for a second in cold water. Then soft side up (so that it would curl up if not held down by the fingers), insert it in the first bath and commence rocking. In ordinary solutions do not let the exposure be in the light for more than about three or four minutes—but do not be tempted—keep on rocking.

When the section of film under your fingers has grown quite dark in the dim light, raise it gently and peer through it at the red lantern (do not let the film near the lantern for very long). Turn the underside, or the convex side towards the light and see if the impression "has come through," that is if the figure can be made out on the reverse of the negative. When this is so the first bath is over. Dip for a moment into fresh water, until the first chemical is removed and then into the fixing bath. Many leave the film alone in this bath, but it is better not, so rock the section gently so that all parts receive equal attention, still keeping the concave or curling side face upwards. When every trace of yellow has disappeared from the back of the film you may remove it from the fixing bath and immerse in running cold water and there let it lie.

It is well at this point to cover up the remainder of the film and turn on the bright lights to examine the first negative well for defects in developing. Make sure the hypo or fixing bath is well washed off before you do this however. If the picture was taken in the right conditions, and neither under nor over exposed the negative should be clear with plenty of sharp definition, that is the figures should stand out well and be recognizable in details. If all be in order turn out the bright light and proceed with the next section, cutting and repeating as before.

This may seem very tedious, and is in fact inclined to be stuffy, but if the dark room be aired for a moment after each negative is completed matters will not be so bad, and the result will amply repay the extra trouble. Many discard this old-fashioned method and use tanks for the daylight developing. The tanks operate with despatch and efficiency but take much of the joy of photography out of the sight of the operator. Printing is a more simple operation, but care, cleanliness and patience should rule here, too. Have clean baths, keep the hands dry while handling papers and negatives in the frames, and beware of all bright light.

If glossy finished prints be desired they can be secured by a contrivance that end, or a common mirror well-cleansed and dusted with talcum powder which is then wiped off. The prints are pressed on to this surface with a "squeeze" or roller and there left to dry. Dull finished prints may be laid face up with their backs on blotting paper and if kept in a clean room will dry clean and straight.

In all the "wet" operations cleanliness is the first requisite, and care a joint consideration. Thorough washing is essential for both negative and print. Chemicals should be prepared in water that is not too cold, and care must be taken to have it cool enough to work with. Where a thermometer is not handy use solutions that are not so chilly. This is easily learned by practice and soon becomes a matter of fact. Know your dark room and do everything in regular order until presently you will be moving as freely in the darkness as you now do in the light.

Once dry, the prints should be trimmed neatly, and mounted in your album. Mounting is about the most satisfactory way, but common flour paste will serve at a pinch. The greatest variety of pictures may be handled by the use of masks, that is shields of opaque paper cut so that the picture is reproduced in only certain portions.

For instance our spaniel might be printed, singly or in a canoe, or face in a leaf and any other number of combinations desired. Take photography slowly and seriously and a never-ending fund of pleasure will be found in its wake. If you have camera problems share them with us, and perhaps mutual benefit will result.

OBSERVED NAVAL VICTORY

As has been their custom in years past the local division of the Boys Naval Brigade observed Trafalgar Day, last Saturday, with an appropriate ceremony. At a brief function at the Parliament grounds, the local division of the Boys Naval Brigade, under the Victoria branch of the Navy League of Canada, has achieved a high place in the Canadian annals of that corps, and have sent many local boys to sea to engage in careers on British merchant ships. Under their capable instructors the local division has maintained a standard that has called forth the highest encomiums from masters of merchant craft upon which the boys of the brigade have shipped.

A HUMAN STRETCHER

To be dangerously out with an axe while mountain climbing is a serious matter, for in the wilds of snow and ice on the mountain side little opportunity of getting a sufferer to safety is afforded. The heroic act of a look-out, Elijah Coalman, who in past years guarded the dangerous approaches to Mount Hood will long stand by itself. While climbing the mountain one day a party met with grave mishap. A lady slipped and in falling dropped an ice axe which fell on another member of the party and bit deeply into his abdomen. Coalman saw the accident from some distance away, rushed to the scene and rendered first aid. Then he lay down on his back and ordered the others to place the injured man on top of him and acted as a human stretcher while the patient was towed two miles on this novel sleigh to safety. Coalman was unhurt for his novel but heroic action and in all probability saved the life of the man he thus carried over ice and snow to shelter.

PIPING BY MILE

Over ten miles of piping were used in the making of a system of artificial ice in a San Francisco rink which measured 90 by 220 feet. Some 2,000 joints were necessary in the piping, these being made by the oxy-acetylene method. The ice of this rink assumes a very smooth surface and the system was kept up for many years without any major trouble.

Minute But Mighty Are Coral Builders

WORKING day and night, month after month, naval architects raise a barrier to the relentless fury of southern seas that brooks no setback; coral insects in their myriads unite to build up fortresses against which the shock of the ocean's greatest forces have little avail. The reef building corals so hardy in this respect are sensitive in other ways. They require warmth for their life and work, and only inhabit seas that fall not below 60 Fahrenheit.

They require also clear and transparent waters and will not build where mud disturbs the vision of the under depths. They cannot live at greater depths than 30 fathoms and are usually found much above that level, building their edifices in all the gaily colored pigments until these rise awash with the low tides. Their castles are the homes of thousands of tiny fishes, who have a place for a playground and a magic garden for their recreation.

The workings of the coral insect are steady and so well united to those of its fellow that whole reefs and lagoons are formed by their action, this in turn giving rise to an exotic form of marine life that beggars description. Though the coral insect does not build above low water mark his work is to be found some time hundreds of feet higher, this coming about through the changing action of the bed of the ocean and of undersea disturbances.

The Sandman Story For To-night

MR. SUNMAN'S FEATHERED BED Part II.

THE Goblin thought it best not to interrupt the fairy sleep though he did want to know why one of his fairies did not get the wand for their Queen, but in a minute he found out and he was glad he did not bother her with questions.

"The big flakes fell over us until we must have looked like a snowball," continued the fairy, "and then out came Mr. Sun's warm smile and we could see where to go and the Queen reached for her wand and held it in one hand while she drove with the other."

"If any-one but the Queen touched the wand it no longer had magic power, so none of us could help our Queen you see."

"In a minute down came more of the fluffy things but now with her wand the Queen found her way straight up to the door of Mr. Sunman's house and what do you think we saw?"

"I don't know," replied the Goblin. "What did you see?"

"A funny old lady in a cap ruffled all round her face shaking a big feather bed as hard as she could shake it and out of a little rip in the side the feathers were falling like big white snowflakes."

"You are losing some of your feathers," said the Queen, waving her wand.

"Well, so I am," answered the old lady, and she stopped shaking and out came Mr. Sunman's smiling face.

"I am glad some one can stop her," said he. "Every time she gives that bed a shaking out come the feathers and I just have to hide my face. They make me sneeze you see, get up my nose and tickle."

"All of us fairies began to laugh and the old lady who was his housekeeper began to laugh and she didn't shake the bed any more."

"You have to give them a good shaking once in a while," she told the Queen, "to make them nice and fluffy."

"Where do you get the feathers?" inquired our Queen of Mr. Sunman.

"O, my housekeeper plucks them from the snow as they fly along in the sky," said Mr. Sunman. "There she goes now with her big bag. Every time she gives my bed a shaking she has to go out for more feathers. She loses some every cleaning day."

"So you see, I was right about those big flakes that fell on us, they were not snowflakes but feathers from Mr. Sunman's bed. His old housekeeper was having a cleaning day and shook the feather bed so hard she lost some of the feathers as usual.

"And the next time you see what you think are flakes of snow falling just look up in the sky and if Mr. Sun does not come out soon after the snowstorm will be over."

"I will," said the Goblin. "Maybe if I look long enough I may see the housekeeper on her way to pluck more goose feathers."

"Yes, perhaps," said the fairy, but she knew that only fairy eyes could behold the sights she had seen.

"Thank you for telling me about the feather bed," called the Goblin, as the fairy hurried away over the tops of the bushes and then off he ran to tell his brother Goblins the story he had heard and to watch their eyes grow big and round as his had done as they listened to the fairy's story.

HAD NOVEL PLAN

An ingenious method of catching fish was planned by a recent inventor who formed a model that set out his ideas, which, however, proved a commercial failure. The plan was a specially constructed vessel which would steam at ten knots, carrying in front of it heavy wire frame nets. The nets were set in a long decline which would lead the fish eventually up into the vessel where they would be dumped on a revolving chain and taken up into the hold. A brilliant searchlight was to have been used to attract the fish to the path of the unique fishing craft. In practice it was found that few fish wanted to enter the ship at such an outrageous invitation.

DISPENSE WITH CRATES

Most forms of merchandise or freight must be carefully crated before being shipped; an exception to the general rule is the large turtle which is shipped without any protection other than its own shell. Its shipping directions are painted on the front, the animal being turned on its back during transport. Resting on its broad armored back the turtle is incapable of helping itself and is shipped for long distances without damage.

A Good Turn That Came Back With Compound Interest

"WHAT is a 'good turn,' Daddy?" queried Ralph looking up from a book he was reading.

"Why, Ralph, a good turn is a service that you do for someone that you need not and something to help them or make them happy," answered his father. "What are you reading, about good turns?"

"Well it says here a Scout does a good turn every day and I am going to be a Scout when I grow up," was the reply.

Ralph settled down again to his book, and his father forgot about the incident. Ralph's father was worried not a little by the loss of a signet ring that was given to him by his father-in-law and had been in the family for a great many generations. The ring was of little monetary worth, but highly prized as an heirloom.

Finishing his book Ralph stepped out into the garden for the daily ramble. He had not gone far when he noticed a large robin hopping about on the ground, and sat down to watch it. The bird seemed very ill at ease. It would drive its head down into some tall grasses and shake it there, only to withdraw the beak and try again at some other point. It seemed to keep its mouth open.

As he watched it occurred to the little boy that the robin had something wrong with its throat and could not close its beak. After a minute or so Ralph was sure this was the case. Boy-like he made straight for the robin which hobbled along the ground in front of him.

Ralph sat down to think it out. He was a sturdy little fellow and would have thought nothing of climbing the tree only the robin would fly away he knew. Presently the bird came down to the ground again and began to pound its open beak on the gravel walk. Ralph saw a stick had got wedged in edgewise in its beak near the base and there became fast.

Catch the bird he must, thought Ralph; else it would not be able to eat and so starve. How was he to catch it? Perplexed Ralph ran into his dad and related the occurrence. Interested at once his father went out and saw the robin at the other end of the garden.

Then the two planned a scheme to catch it. They would set a box up on a twig around which they would tie a piece of string and under the box place food. They did and went back a few yards with the end of the string in their hands. Ralph was to hold the string and pull the trap when the robin walked in.

At last his father said he would leave the honor to Ralph and walked into finish some work he was doing in the house.

Delighted at being in charge of the plot Ralph sat and continued to wait. At first he feared for the success of the plot as the robin walked and pecked away but began to beat at the other end of the garden. Slowly and by degrees it was drawing nearer to the corn under the trap. Finally it arrived and tried to eat. The stick that held its beak apart prevented it from picking up any food.

Ralph pulled the string and the bird was a prisoner. Other boys nearby had raced to the trap and taken the bird—not so with Ralph, his dad had planned this thing and he would have to be consulted.

"We caught the robin, dad," he called, and presently his father came out to the scene. Together they lifted the trap and took out the bird. It was so severely frightened that the robin did not appear to be greatly frightened. It was now seen that the stick that held its beak apart was wedged very firmly between the upper and lower portion of the mouth. Prying the beak a little further apart Ralph's father held it so and called on Ralph to remove the stick which had dropped loose.

Clasping the bird in his hand, the father placed under the trap and given food and water.

Its trouble over, and the pain no doubt gone, the robin attacked its food with eagerness.

KITE CARRIES AERIAL

A portable receiving wireless set which uses an aerial flown from a tall kite is being introduced in the amateur wireless field by manufacturers in the east. One set has a 1,200 metre tuning coil, added by a 225 metre loading coil, and uses a crystal detector. The aerial may be either flown perpendicularly from the kite or tied parallel to the kite string (see twine). The set is said to work very well, the advantages of a high aerial being many, and offsetting the disadvantages of operating out of doors. Double beam receivers are a necessity to overcome the usual defect of out of door places. The set has variable condenser of the tubular form, testing buzzer and is complete within a small box. Even the cross piece on the kite is removable, making the whole readily portable.

SCOUTS HOLD PRACTICE

In connection with the Fire Prevention Week recently staged here the scouts of several of the local troops sized up the occasion to help and in one case a fine practice in observation was gained at the same time. The Fairfield troop was given the task of posting 120 notices on telephone poles in the town area. The notices had to be posted in the most conspicuous places, and the notices were to be removed without observation by others. Every notice was placed. The lads were also told to look for some unusual occurrence, and a sheet of these was reported. The unusual ranged all the way from inverted signs purposely misplaced by merchants wishing to aid the practice to a dummy in the window of a store, the tubular form, testing buzzer and is complete within a small box. Even the cross piece on the kite is removable, making the whole readily portable.

PATIENCE SAVED LIFE

Keeping up artificial respiration long after others had lost hope enabled Sea Scout Edwin Stonner, of South Vancouver, to save the life of a little child recently. The incident is a tribute to the training and presence of mind of those in the Boy Scout movement. Stonner, a deck-hand on a tug boat, looked out over the Harrison River where his craft was plying at that time to see the arm of a child come to the surface for a moment. With another member of the crew, Fireman T. Donaldson, the sea scout rescued the child and applied artificial respiration. For 40 minutes the boy pined his knowledge without any sign of life in the little victim of the accident. After more than an hour the first faint tremors of life re-appeared and in a little while longer the rescued child was taken back to her parents on the beach, alive and little the worse for her immersion.

TREES LINE ROADS

In France first class roads are lined on both sides with avenues of tall stately trees. Second class roads have trees on one side only. Third class roads and dirt trails have no trees protecting them at all. From the air this method of road construction is particularly noticeable and the almen in the landscape were enabled by the shadows cast by the trees to tell the nature of the roads they viewed, and consequently their facility for accommodating transport.

HOW TO MAKE A SPOOL HOLDER

To LAY OUT OCTAGON, SQUARE UP STOCK ABCD, DRAW CENTER LINES AND INSCRIBE A CIRCLE O. SET BEVEL SQUARE AT 45° AND DRAW TANGENTS MN TO CIRCLE ACROSS THE CORNERS OF STOCK.

TEMPLATE

COPPER WIRE

How many times have you seen mother or sister drop a spool of thread on the floor, lose track of where it has rolled, and look for several minutes before it is located? Often it rolls under some heavy piece of furniture and has to be fished out; sometimes it even rolls down a register. With the holder shown in today's drawing such petty accidents may be avoided.

Use the best wood you can get. Mahogany or walnut is suggested. All parts are octagonal in shape. In the upper left-hand corner of the drawing, instructions for laying out an octagon are given.

Use a gouge for cupping out the depression in the tray. Make a template of thin wood for testing the depression gouged out. If you have no gouge, cut a circular piece of cardboard, cover it with a pad made of a bunch of cotton and a piece of cretonne or silk. This is then sewed to the cardboard, making a pin cushion to be glued to the 3 in. x 3 in. tray piece.

Cut the corners of the base and tray pieces to line with a saw and finish with a plane. Hold the column in a vice and first plane the piece so it is square, but tapers from 1 1/2 in. x 1 1/2 in. to 1 in. x 1 in. Then plane corners making it octagonal. Sandpaper all parts well before finishing. The pins that hold the spools are ordinary finishing nails.

Stain the finished model, apply several coats of shellac or varnish, and rub to a dull finish. Then polish with wax. You will have an article that is ornamental as well as serviceable.

A LONG VIGIL

Patrick did not usually wait long before he attacked his food. But one day his mother noticed that he was sitting resignedly before his plate of beef.

"Come along, dear," she said. "Aren't you hungry?"

"Yes, mummy, very."

"Then why don't you start?"

"Oh," said little Pat. "I'm just waiting for the mustard to cool."

MUST A COW BE EXPECTED TO READ RAILROAD SIGNS?

Lord Shaughnessy, Appreciating the Argument, Paid by Check for Illiterate Cow That Was Killed.

SOME little time ago Lord Shaughnessy was making a trip across Canada, when his train had occasion to stop at a small town, and a woman almost forced her way into his special car.

Lord Shaughnessy

After making a respectful greeting she explained that several months earlier a much valued jersey cow which belonged to her had got through some broken bars on to the railway tracks and had been killed by a passing train. What she wanted was reparation.

"But, madam, you must take it up with the department which looks after such claims," Lord Shaughnessy is reported to have told her. "I cannot go over the heads of my managers and settle any claim."

"I have gone to them," said the woman. "I've written and they've written, and so it goes—but they don't do anything for me."

"I'm sorry, madam," repeated Lord Shaughnessy, "but I don't see what I can do. The sign is there, 'Danger, railway crossing.'"

"But, my heavens, sir, my cow couldn't read," said the woman.

After a stunned moment Shaughnessy rocked with mirth—and wrote a check for the value of the illiterate cow.

Mystery Man of Europe

THIS is the latest picture of Henry Franklin Bouillon, the Warwick of France, who as French government representative seems to have talked Kemal out of his warlike intention toward England. Acknowledged one of the most powerful of political forces in France, he works behind the scenes. It was his boast that the first time he traveled to Ankara he went with a walking stick and came back with a treaty. That treaty drove the Greeks from Smyrna and almost caused another European conflagration.

Forty-five years ago, M. Bouillon was born in the island of Jersey of an English mother and a French father who was a political exile.

He has played many parts in his brief career; student at Cambridge University, tutor in Paris, war correspondent for the Paris Journal, deputy liaison officer in the war between the French and English armies, head of the inter-parliamentary committee that visited the United States, radical, ambassador extraordinary.

Fat, jovial, full of life, he still remains a mysterious force, sinister in many respects so far as England is concerned.

SCOTLAND FIRST OF ALL

FORMERLY President Wilson's confidant and right-hand man, Col. E. M. House, the American statesman, has been telling a delighted audience of his fellow countrymen the story of his meeting in London with a Scotsman to whom his name, when he was introduced, evidently meant nothing.

This was apparent because the very first question the Scotsman asked after the ceremony of introduction had been completed was, "From what land do ye come?"

"The greatest in the world," replied Col. House with a smile.

"Puir bairn!" was the Scotsman's polite comment. "Puir bairn, ye've lost yer accent!"

Catching Them on the Fly

G. KERR, K.C., a prominent barrister of Chatham, Ont., is an enthusiastic sportsman, being especially fond of game fishing. He is an expert in handling the fly rod, and prefers casting the fly to any other method of fishing. His attempt to introduce dry fly fishing at Rondeau Bay this summer was the cause of a very amusing mistake on the part of one of the cottagers at that resort.

Mr. Kerr on this occasion had come in with a beautiful string of fish, including black bass, speckled bass, bluegills, and perch and was proudly exhibiting his catch to the neighbors on his way home. He had hooked them all on light trout tackle, using an eight-ounce rod with a dry or floating fly.

"How in the world did you catch all those fish?" one incredulous woman who is an enthusiastic baseball fan. "Oh, I caught them all on the fly," the K.C. replied. He thought no more about it until stopped in town the next day by the lady's husband who surprised him with the following remark:

"My wife tells me you have a new method of fishing, catching them in the air. I'd like to know what she means," whereupon the expert had to explain the difference between catching fish on the fly and catching them in the air.

THE MOST PROSAIC FEAR THAT BURSTALL EVER MET

Always Without Quarter for Signs of Fear, General Burstall Melted Before This Practical Variety.

GENERAL SIR H. E. BURSTALL, who commanded the Canadian artillery in the late war, was reputed to have an iron nerve, and, in action, to have been one of the coolest men in the army. Nothing, it was said of him, so quickly aroused his anger as to see a man give way to fear, even momentary fear, and he seldom let such action pass in silence.

There was a story of the general and the driver who showed nerves in action under the general's eyes, which officers of his staff were very fond of relating.

It was back in the first years of the war and the general's command was somewhat smaller than it was on November 11, 1918. A battery had just gone into action, had just unlimbered, and sent over a salvo. The drivers, having tethered their horses in a clump of trees a little to the rear of the guns, were moving out into the open again. Nearby, the general and one of his staff sat astride their horses. Suddenly a German shell "swished" overhead and broke in the clump of trees, dismembering one of the battery horses.

The general saw a driver, an awkward country lad, who was near him, throw up his hands and, face blanched, stagger backwards with a moan. For a moment Burstall watched him intently, then he blazed:

"And what is it to you?" "Noth—noth—noth, sir," the man stammered, recovering himself somewhat, but shifting nervously from one foot to the other under the general's angry gaze; "noth—noth—noth—only somebody what rode here has got to be 'back."

McCubbin Accidentally Stumbled Upon a Rare "Puff Ball" Worth Its Weight in Gold

Although Civil Engineer of the City of Chatham, Geo. A. McCubbin's Fame Among Scientists, as the Discoverer of the Rare "Mycenastrum Corium," Will Probably Remain Long After Career Is Forgotten.

MOST men acquire fame through long and faithful study and application to hard work, but there are others who stumble upon it by accident, not realizing, in fact, the great importance of the things they do. George A. McCubbin, civil engineer of the city of Chatham, bids fair to be known to future generations as one of the men of the latter category.

His fame and his claim to distinction also come from the most unexpected quarter. He is known now as one of the most competent civil engineers in Western Ontario, but long after his career in engineering will have been forgotten, brilliant as that career may shine forth in the records of the men of his profession, he may yet be known to the scientists of the world as the discoverer in Western Ontario a specimen of the rare "Mycenastrum Corium."

To the uninitiated, that may sound a little mystifying, but it is very simple after all. During the course of his wanderings through the woods near Vosburg, Mr. McCubbin merely picked up a "puff ball" and brought it home, intending to eat it. He met Dr. Charles Bell, and exhibited his luscious bit of appetizing rare-bit, and then he learned that his name had been made, and he was a famous man.

The particular puff ball which he had picked up for his dinner was one of the rarest specimens of plant life known to the scientists of the world.

It was quite by accident that Mr. McCubbin took the trouble to consult his friend Dr. Bell before he put the puff ball on the frying pan.

"I found this in the woods, and it looks good to eat. Can you tell me if it is poisonous?"

"Eat!" exclaimed the surprised doctor, as he hurriedly made a closer examination of the specimen: "you don't mean to tell me you were going to eat that plant! Why, man," he continued, "that is one of the rarest plants known to scientists. It is too valuable to eat. It is worth far more than its weight in pure gold."

Then the whole story came out.

It appears that only four of these specimens have ever been discovered east of the Mississippi; Mr. McCubbin was the fifth. A few specimens have been discovered in France and Sweden, but they are very rare, and the plants which are in existence on the continent are very carefully guarded and highly cherished by scientists.

Parties from Chatham, led by Dr. Bell, have searched the Vosburg woods for additional specimens, but, to date, Mr. McCubbin holds the honor of being the one man in Ontario entitled to the fame of discovering the one specimen in existence in this country of the "Mycenastrum Corium."

For several years Mr. Zavitz has been using aeroplanes in his work of estimating and mapping the timber wealth of Ontario—in the forest regions from Lake Superior to James Bay. On his staff are several Canadian aviators who distinguished themselves in the great war.

Smith's Double Defeat By a Man Named "Gogo"

New High Court Judge Was Scotch Enough to See the Dry Side of the Case.

"BOB" SMITH, K.C. of Cornwall, who has succeeded the late Mr. Justice Sutherland on the high court bench, has a pawky humor worthy of his Scottish descent. He was Liberal M.P. for Cornwall-Stormont from 1904 to 1911, and won considerable personal popularity both in the House and in the press gallery.

His reelection seemed certain until a few weeks before the election discussion so manifested itself in the party ranks that when the convention was held Colonel Smith was defeated by a French-Canadian, who was given the nomination.

On the colonel's return to Ottawa he was asked what had happened. His reply was: "I got what was coming to a man who paid more attention to his parliamentary duties than to mending his political fences. But, anyway, I'm in a class by myself. It's not often that an M.P. is told to go twice by the same convention."

The name of the man who secured the nomination was "Gogo!"

HOW MUCH IS IT WORTH TO MARRY A YOUNG MAN?

Canon Plumtre Had No Fixed Rates, and the Question Took Him Unawares.

A RATHER ludicrous incident happened to Canon H. P. Plumtre, rector of St. James Cathedral, Toronto, on an occasion when he officiated at the marriage of a young couple in the rectory.

After the ceremony was performed the usual congratulations and good wishes were extended to the bride and groom; and as is customary the groom handed the canon a bill, for which the canon thanked him and placed it in his pocket.

Canon Plumtre noticed that the young man appeared agitated, and asked him if there was anything further he could do. He was waiting for his change, he said. The canon drew the money from his pocket. This he found to be a two-dollar bill, and enquired as to how much change he wished. The young man said, "I don't know—just take what it's worth." Canon Plumtre showed no surprise at the anomalous situation, but an amused twinkle shone in his eyes as he placed the bill in the young man's hand, and told him to buy some little present with it.

Peer in the Cart!

PROBABLY the only peer of the realm who ever drove up to the door of his club in a milk cart is Lord Aberdeen.

This happened at Edinburgh early one morning when he arrived from London by the express.

There was no cab to be had, so he left his man in charge of his luggage while he went out and hailed the only vehicle within call.

The Broken Lyre

IN this skit punch pokes fun at Dr. Robert Bridges, the poet Laureate of England, who after years of silence has now written a medical book on anatomy. His monk's garb and his occupation stand for retirement and silence. His poet's lyre is cast away. England is of the opinion that a poet Laureate should at least occasionally burst into song. Talk of his supererogation has been common, but poet Laureates, like the Pope, have hitherto been chosen for life. It is suggested that at least he might have turned his anatomy into verse, in part like this:

"The dead men are nothing but bones. Bones. Any old bones? White and yellow, grey and brown, thigh bones, skulls and cross bones, ham bones."

WOULD YOU HAVE BEEN DEAD

ALTHOUGH he is so consistent an advocate of total abstinence, Mr. "Pussyfoot" Johnson is a stickler for accuracy on the temperance platform.

"I was," he says, "converted to this view at a meeting I attended in Chicago many years ago, when the lecturer began his address as follows:

"Every glass of whiskey a man drinks shortens his life one hour."

There was a long pause, then:

"Question!" shouted a stout, red-faced man, rising in the body of the hall. "Question!"

"Well, what's your question, friend?" said the lecturer.

"Did I understand you to say, sir, that every glass of whiskey a man drinks shortens his life an hour?"

"That's what I said. Why?"

"Oh, nothing," said the stout chap, "only, I've been doing a little mental arithmetic, and I find I ought to have been dead about thirty-five years ago."

"Sure of His Reform!"

"MY friend, have you ever done anything to make the community the better for your living in it?"

"I have done much, sir," replied the other earnestly, "to purify the homes of my fellow-men."

"Ah," said the solemn one, rubbing his hands. "do you distribute tracts, may I ask?"

"No, I clean carpets!"—Pearson's Weekly.

Spain's Worst Enemy Gives In

CANADIANS fought as volunteers against Abd-el-Krim, who is shown in the picture. It was a sad holiday in Spain's foreign legion in Morocco. Fifty dejected men, including several ex-members of the Canadian expeditionary force, clothed in rags, reached England a year ago. It was a gloomy picture they painted of the conditions in the Spanish army, which, however, has gradually been reducing the rebellious tribes. Abd-el-Krim's surrender will mark the end of resistance. One year ago last August Abd-el-Krim led his tribesmen and routed the forces of Spain.

Prize Novel Written In "Peter Pan" House

Old Villager Paddled Six Miles in the Wind and Rain to Announce Grahame's Victory.

WHEN Gordon Hill Grahame, winner of the $2,500 all-Canadian prize novel competition, was a boy, he was an internationally famed amateur athlete. Among the feats which he performed were two trips to New York, one a canoe-voyage from Stoney Lake, Ontario, and the other a heel and toe passage from Toronto. When war was declared he happened to be on a similar outing, this time in charge of a number of youngsters. Landing his charge at the nearest port of safety, Grahame made for the first recruiting station and enlisted as a private. Later, offered a commission, he refused on the ground that the training for an officer's berth would hold up his entrance into action. Within ten days from the time the news of war reached his ears he was in a fighting unit. Not long after rumors began to float back, and many of them took the form of despatches to the press, that a certain "Kits" Grahame had been making a private war of his own at the front. One incident was his escape from a base hospital with a fractured arm still untreated, in order to man his gun with news of his battery's casualties reached the station. Shortly after he was made lieutenant—the first private in the Canadian army to receive a commission.

When writing the novel which was to receive the greatest literary distinction in Canada, Grahame composed, revised and typed the story in a little green shack among the trees of "Twilight Island," Stoney Lake, Ontario. It is scarcely larger than the little house in "Peter Pan" where Wendy kept her room, but it is the factory where many a Canadian novel of parts will have its beginning.

On the night of the awarding of the prize, Grahame was, as usual, busy on Twilight Island. It was raining, and the nearest telephone station (no telegraph at all) was about six miles distant by water. In the village of Stoney Lake paddled the six miles to bring the message that Grahame was wanted by long distance. They paddled back to the mainland together, where after long suspense and several cancelled calls, the message finally came through that he had won the all-Canadian prize novel competition—a contest which had drawn contributions from some of the most distinguished authors in Canada.

A SCHEME TO GET COAL

AT a banquet in Washington the other day General Pershing hit off the reparations question very neatly.

"England and America," he said, "are paying their way, but I could name one or two other countries whose financial policy is very little better than old Aunt Carline's."

"Poor old Aunt Carline!" said a young, colored girl. "She was takin' on terrible when I seen her las' ebenin'. Cold as it was, she hadn't a nickel in de house to buy coal."

"Poor old auntie!" said a second colored girl. "Has she got coal now?"

"Yep."

"How she got it?"

"She done pawn de stove."

Provincial Tax on Wagers Was Overlooked When Drury's Identity Won a Five Dollar Bet

DURING his travels through Ontario attending U. F. O. picnics, Premier Drury has often found difficulty in securing meals. His schedule of visits is not arranged with his personal convenience in mind. Just the other day the premier had to rush into a railway station at a junction town and snatch a hasty bite with other hurried travelers. As Mr. Drury was rushing out again, a man reached excitedly over the lunch counter near the door and seized him by the arm. "Wait a minute, premier," said the stranger. "You are Premier Drury, aren't you?" "Yes," said Mr. Drury smiling. "All right," shouted the other, letting him go again. "I win five dollars. I just bet my wife five dollars that the man on the stool was Premier Drury."

The premier had no time to stop and take up the question of a provincial tax on his wager. He hurried away while the crowded luncheon room smiled broadly.

Someone Loves Wilhelm Anyway.

THIS is the first and exclusive photograph of the Kaiser's future wife. It shows the Princess Hermine Von Schonath-Caralath, born Princess of Reuss, as she is to-day, very much older looking than in the pictures hitherto published, which were taken years ago. With her is her eldest daughter, Princess Carolo, fourteen years old. She has five children, the eldest being a son of fifteen years. Although gay and kindly herself, Princess Hermine comes of a family tainted with insanity. Both her father and brother suffered from this hereditary complaint. Her childhood was sacrificed to her strange, reclusive father, her young married life was spent in nursing her husband, and now, touched by pity, they say, she intends to console an exile who at the best was never too happy.
