SPORT LOVERS ARE BECOMING SUSPICIOUS OF WRESTLING GAME

By JACK VEIOCK, International News Sports Editor.

New York, May 18. Are the wrestling promoters making an honest effort to run the game strictly on the up and up these days? Have they finally become convinced that wrestling under the old plan is bound to remain dormant?

When Joe Stecher broke into the limelight he came on so fast that it was to his interest to throw all corners. When he met Earl Graddock at Omaha he probably did his best to win, but he forfeited the match and his claims to the title by refusing to continue after each man had earned a fall.

These two matches, at Omaha and Chicago, were not entirely satisfactory from the spectator's standpoint, because they were not contested to a decisive finish.

Only three events were held last night in the amateur swimming contests being conducted by the Young Men's Gymnasium club.

The wrestling game has been kept clean in spots, for not all wrestlers and promoters are to be condemned, but the spots have been few and far between, and the public knows it.

Miller Huggins, who has been fighting 'em tooth and nail in the National League for to these many seasons, rises to remark that the flash shown by his pitching staff this season is far from being a flash in the pan.

"I have a fine pitching staff," says Huggins, "and collectively I don't believe there is a staff in the National League that has anything on them. Look at this fellow Watson. He's a regular pitcher, and he has been showing opposing ball clubs as fine an assortment of 'f'lers as they want to look at."

"Bill Dook is over a youngster, but there isn't a more capable spitball pitcher in the business than Bill. Then there's Bill Steele and Lee Meadows; Ed Pierce, who came from the Cubs; and Leon Ames, who has been pitching ball for years and can still stand up there and pitch with any of 'em."

Professor Sam has given the featherweight crack the several times over and sees in him a real champion. He believes, however, that the little fellow is not making the most of his natural assets.
