COUNTY READY TO WELCOME HEROES

PLANS FAST BEING PERFECTED FOR COUNTY "WELCOME HOME" DAY, TO BE HELD NOVEMBER 11 AT SAN MATEO.

Plans are fast maturing for the big "Welcome Home" celebration to all men of the county who served in the war. It will be held at San Mateo Armistice Day, Tuesday, November 11th. This day has been set aside as a holiday by Governor W. D. Stephens of California and similar affairs are being arranged for the day in many parts of the state. The committee in charge of arrangements met in the city hall at San Mateo Thursday evening with Chairman Mrs. John L. McGinn presiding, and mapped out a program that gives every indication of making it a day long to be remembered in the county by all former service men and their friends. Among those present at the meeting were Mayor W. J. Eva of San Mateo, Mayor Carl Mabie of Redwood City, Mayor L. H. Traeger of San Bruno and Mayor G. W. Holston of South San Francisco, and each official assured the committee that his city would send a large number of its citizens to participate in the day's festivities and would also contribute financially to make the day a success.

As far as plans have been perfected the day's program will start with a parade at 9:45 in the morning. In this parade will be floats from schools, lodges, civic organizations, women's clubs, business houses, different towns, etc. The men of the service will take part in uniform. Special cars will be provided for all G. A. R. men. Over 1000 school children, all dressed in white, will march. There will be at least two bands, the San Mateo County Band and the Third Artillery Band from Fort Winfield Scott. At 11 o'clock, the hour the armistice was signed, the town fire whistle will be blown, the parade will stop, and everybody will stand at attention for a few moments.

At noon there will be a grand barbecue for the honored guests of the day, the service men. Arrangements are being made to accommodate about 400 of these at the open-air tables. Barbecued beef with all the "fixings" will be served to the heroes of the war.

In the afternoon a program will be held in the high school auditorium. At 2:30 the message of Governor W. D. Stephens will be read. The state's chief executive has requested that this take place at the same hour at all celebrations over the state, and has set the time for 2:30. During the afternoon's exercises the men who returned from the war will be presented with a beautiful scroll of honor the state has arranged to present to its heroes. The day will end with a grand street dance.

The program for the afternoon has been arranged as follows:

Song, "America," by the audience.
Invocation, Father Grant of Burlingame.

Reading the Oath of Allegiance, E. E. Cunningham of South San Francisco.

Selection by the Third Artillery Band.

Reading of Governor Stephens' message, J. E. McCurdy.

Calling roll of the dead and prayer, Rev. C. H. Stevens of Redwood City.

Reading of original poem, Wheaton

Third Entertainment to Be Given in New Recreation Rooms With Many Excellent Numbers Planned.

Pearson will be seen in some of his famous character sketches. Floyd Townsley, who will sing, is a baritone of wide reputation. Miss Gertrude Levin will render a violin solo and David L. Smith will play a cornet solo. Miss Elinor Werner will appear in costume, giving several fancy dancing numbers. Miss Doris Hindman will recite. The other numbers to be on the program will be announced later.

Children under 14 years of age will not be admitted unless accompanied by their parents.

Community singing will be one of the features of the program.

MURDERED MAN FOUND HERE TODAY

BODY DISCOVERED CONCEALED IN BUSHES NEAR LEIPSIK CROSSING SHOWS EVERY EVIDENCE OF BEING BRUTALLY MURDERED

The body of a man, believed to have been M. J. Needham of 454 Twenty-ninth avenue, San Francisco, and bearing every indication of having been murdered in cold blood, was found concealed in the bushes near Leipsic crossing of the San Mateo electric railroad this morning. The man's hands and feet were securely bound and a rag was tied tightly across his mouth as a gag. His head was battered, seemingly with a club or blunt instrument, while over the right ear was a mark made by a sharp tool. The forehead shows the mark of a heavy blow.

The body was found by a rancher living near by. From all indications it had lain in its hiding place about forty-eight hours. Officers working on the case believe the man was killed some time Wednesday night. The body lay about sixty feet off the highway, which rises at this point some twenty feet above a willow swamp. A long rope was attached to the body and lay stretched through the bushes to the edge of the road. Grass and weeds showed where the body had been dragged from the highway to its place of concealment.

The man was well dressed and in a pocket was a card with Needham's name and address. Officers communicated with this address, and it turned out to be a rooming house, and the person who keeps the house stated that Needham was a roomer there and had been missing for two days. Papers on the body showed that Needham had recently traded a Haynes car for a Marmon, and it is believed that he was driving this machine as a rent car and that he was murdered by passengers who took the auto. In the man's pockets was about $200 in currency and a fine gold watch, indicating that the murderers killed their victim without rifling his pockets. District Attorney Swart and Sheriff Sheehan were in town today working on the case with local officers. The body was brought to S. Neri's morgue awaiting developments.

HEARINGS TO BE HELD BEHIND CLOSED DOORS

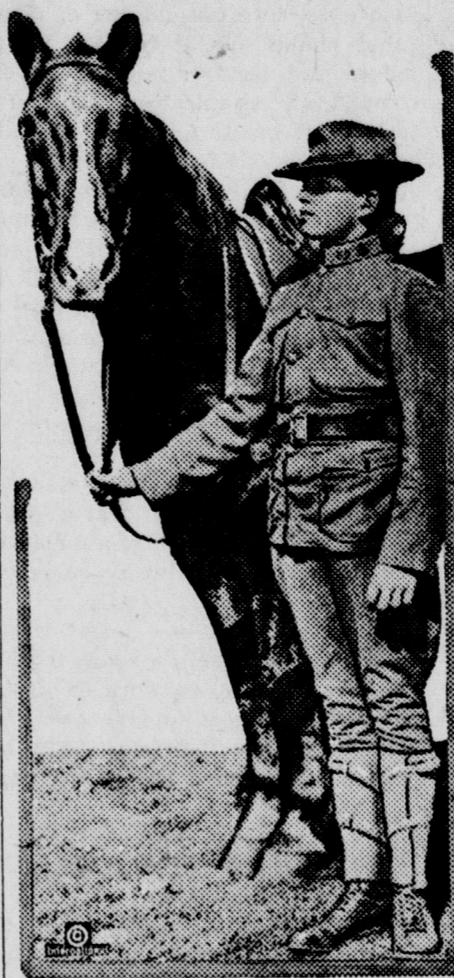

The preliminary hearings of George Perry and Louis Martin of Pescadero, whose cases involve many school children of that town in an expose of vicious practices, will be heard behind closed doors November 7th in the court of Justice Ray Griffin.

CITY MAY CONDEMN THE PROPERTY OF M. E. CHURCH

There is a persistent rumor going the rounds in town that the city will soon begin condemnation proceedings against the property of the Methodist church on Grand avenue. The city desires the property, as it is in the block where it is proposed to build the city hall. When questioned, city officials refuse to make any statement on the matter and church people state they have heard nothing regarding such proceedings.

WAS FLOGGED BY COSSACKS

Corp. Benjamin Sperling of Brooklyn, N. Y., who was arrested and flogged by Russian Cossacks in Siberia. Sperling, who is a member of the Thirty-first United States Infantry, with Capt. L. P. Johns of the Twenty-seventh United States Infantry, was at Iman, 170 miles from Vladivostok, on official business when both were arrested by Cossacks of General Rozanoff's forces. Both were in uniform. Captain Johns managed to escape and reported the incident to the American commander at Spasske. American forces were sent to effect Sperling's release and they found the Cossacks preparing to resist them. Sperling, after being flogged, was taken to Khabarovsk, headquarters of General Kalmikoff. He was later released. General Graves demanded and received an apology.

C. OF C. WANTS A CURFEW LAW IN SO. S. F.

Declares Curfew Law Greatly Needed; to Co-operate With Club to Get Ordinance.

There is every indication that the Chamber of Commerce of South San Francisco will lend its influence to get a curfew ordinance passed in this city. This was brought out at the meeting of the organization held at the city hall Tuesday evening. A letter was read from the Woman's Club asking that the Chamber give its co-operation to the getting such a measure put through in South San Francisco. The sentiment at the meeting was strongly in favor of a curfew ordinance. Secretary J. G. Walker and B. H. Truax were appointed a committee to meet with a committee from the Woman's Club, consisting of Mrs. W. J. Martin, Mrs. S. Nyland, and Mrs. W. Winterhalter, for the purpose of gathering all possible data with reference to the working of a curfew law, the committee to report to the next meeting of the Chamber of Commerce.

A letter was read from G. W. Holston stating that the period from October 18th to 31st had been set aside by the Government for a National Road Accident Prevention drive, the object being to educate the driving public to greater care with reference to railroad crossings, etc. The United States Railroad Administration hopes by this means to lessen the number of

OFFICIALS TO PAY REWARD OF $25

WANT INFORMATION AS TO WHO TURNS ON STREET HYDRANTS; HEAR PROTEST ON PAVING; PAY CELEBRATION BILLS.

The city trustees propose to find out who it is that turns on the water in hydrants where the street paving contractors are working and allows it to run to waste. Complaint was made at Monday night's meeting of the city trustees that several times of late the water had been turned on at different hydrants and allowed to run until somebody discovered it, perhaps next morning. The board voted to offer a reward of $25 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of anybody opening one of these hydrants.

A protest against the paving of the alley through the block between Grand and Miller avenues from Spruce avenue to Magnolia was read. The reading of the signatures attached showed that several persons who had signed the original petition to have the alley paved had also signed the protest against the paving. Charles J. Lindgren, San Francisco contractor, who had put in a bid for the paving, was allowed to withdraw his bid, and for the present the matter of paving the alley was dropped.

A petition from E. C. Peck and R. C. Stickle to erect a galvanized iron garage on the alley in back of the Martin building was granted.

Letters were read from two former soldiers asking that taxes paid by them be refunded, as the law specifies that the property of a former service man is exempt from taxation where such property does not exceed $1000 in valuation. The refunds asked were granted.

A number more bills for the "Welcome Home" celebration were read and ordered paid and the resolution of intention providing for the paving of Swift avenue was given its second reading.

SCHOOL BOYS ROB WORKMEN OF $183

Small Boys of This City Relieve Men of Cash Left in Suitcase and Pocket of Clothing.

Three small boys from 10 to 14 years of age and living in this city, robbed Manuel Espinoza and a fellow workman of $183.50 Thursday afternoon. Probation Officer Francis Rapp was in town this afternoon investigating the case.

The two men are roofers working on the new houses being built near the high school. Espinoza was robbed of $100, which was in a suit case, the other man being relieved of $3.50, which had been left in the pockets of his clothing which he had changed on beginning work in the morning. Espinoza lives in Daly City, the other man in San Francisco.

Local officers had no difficulty in fixing the guilt of the boys, as they were seen in the immediate neighborhood of the robbery at about the time it occurred. When interviewed the boys confessed the theft. The $183 was recovered, but the boys declared they had spent the $3.50.

It is believed there will be no prosecution because of the extreme youth of the culprits.

accidents at crossings, with their attendant injuries and loss of life. The letter was placed on file.

A communication was received from the American Red Cross asking for the appointment of a committee to aid in the Red Cross campaign from November 2d to 11th. The secretary was instructed to reply that the Chamber will do all it can to help the movement on.

The act of the city trustees in allowing the city fire truck to be kept at the Service Garage on San Bruno road, instead of at the South City Garage as heretofore, was brought up and discussed. The question was raised whether the building at the Service Garage was as well fitted for keeping the truck as the other or as well located. No action was taken on this matter.

F. A. Cunningham, appointed at the last meeting as a committee of one to assist the census taker in his work, reported that he had written to census headquarters for more information but as yet had received no reply.

OFFICIALS GET HOME SAFE, SANE, AND SOBER

The officials of this city and San Bruno, who recently trekked to Riverside in southern California to attend the convention of the League of Pacific Municipalities, returned to this city Sunday. They report having had a fine time. The convention was attended by more than 400 delegates from all over the state. The city attorneys in attendance were addressed Tuesday of last week by City Attorney J. W. Coleberd of this city on late legislation affecting cities. The party consisted of Dr. F. H. Smith, health officer of San Bruno, and S. Neri, City Marshal C. C. Conrad, City Clerk W. J. Smith, City Attorney J. W. Coleberd, and City Health Officer Dr. J. C. McGovern, all of this city.

MINISTERS OF COUNTY PLAN FOR ASSOCIATION

Rev. William Brewer, rector of the Episcopal church at Burlingame, and Mrs. Brewer entertained the ministers of the county and their wives at the rectory at Burlingame Thursday evening. Games and conversation filled a pleasant evening. The ministers discussed the forming of a county ministerial association, and a committee composed of Rev. William Brewer, Dr. Matthews of the Methodist church at San Mateo, and Dr. Bennet of the Baptist church at Burlingame, was appointed to arrange for the first meeting, which will be held at Burlingame the first Wednesday in December. It is planned to hold association meetings every two months.

THREE SCOUT TROOPS ENTER COMPETITION

Three troops of Boy Scouts, those at South San Francisco, Lomita Park and San Bruno, have entered into a novel competition under the direction of the scout commissioner of this district, Mr. Lastreto of San Francisco. The winning troop will be presented with a silver cup. Active competition begins November 1st and will last two months. The award will be made to the troop scoring the highest number of credits, the points to be given for many things on which the scout movement is founded. Attendance at meetings, punctuality, and neatness each enter into the gaining of points. Other things to be counted by the judges are lectures secured by the troop, each organization being given twenty-five points for every lecture it secures; visits of committeemen, each visit counting ten credits; hikes taken, new members secured, attendance at parades and rallies, good deeds done, etc. The schools will cooperate, too, and attendance at school, department, and scholarship will be taken into consideration. The boys of the local troop are determined that South San Francisco shall capture the trophy.

Arrangements have been made for the local scout troop to hear a lecture by Dr. T. C. Doak on first aid methods and by Dr. J. C. McGovern on care of the teeth.

The members of the scout troop of this city have begun work on a play, which they expect to give soon. Its title is "Father E-Officio." The last play the boys gave proved very successful.

CHURCH TO HOLD BAZAAR.

The members of the local Methodist church are planning on holding a bazaar at the Metropolitan Hotel November 13th and 14th. It will be held in the dining room.

Holland will give up the ex-Kaiser readily and generously. There is probably nothing that she would rather part with.

LOCAL TEACHER WRITES OF RINGS AND CAPTURES PRIZE

The many friends of Miss Rue Clifford, teacher at the local high school, are congratulating her on capturing one of the prizes offered by a San Francisco jewelry firm for the best letters on how much should be spent for an engagement ring. Miss Clifford's letter was judged fifth in merit of those submitted and a prize of $10 in merchandise given her. Here is the letter:

"An engagement ring is the outward symbol that two persons have pledged themselves to the making of a home. Since this pledge involves fidelity, purity, genuineness, and worth, its symbol should portray these qualities. It should be a man's gift of gifts to the woman of all the world whom he has chosen. No other gift will ever have the significance of this.

"He is justified in spending one-tenth of his yearly wage in the purchase of the engagement ring—not only justified but to be commended. If an immediate marriage is not contemplated, that even more might be invested in our recommendation."

MR. AND MRS. BONALANZA RETURN FROM HONEYMOON

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Bonalanza returned Monday from a week's honeymoon trip to Santa Cruz and are living at their new home on Magnolia avenue. The marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Bonalanza was the culmination of a friendship that began when they were school children together in this city, both young people having lived here practically all their lives. Mrs. Bonalanza was Miss Marie Smith, daughter of City Clerk W. J. Smith. Mr. Bonalanza is employed at the plant of the Pacific Coast Steel Company.

GROCERY CHANGES HANDS.

The grocery at 125 Juniper avenue was sold this week, its owner, A. Jacosa, transferring his interests to John Kanelopoulos & Co.

LOCAL BOYS PLAY GOOD FOOTBALL

Though outweighed fifty pounds to the man, the local high school football team showed up in good form against Mountain View high on the home gridiron last Friday. The Mountain View boys are the largest in high school on the peninsula. The fullback weighs 195 pounds. Only one man on the team weighed as little as 160.

South San Francisco uncovered some pretty plays, on one of which McMills received a forward pass from Dart and ran fifty yards for a touchdown. Conspicuous players were James McMills and Charles Dunlap for their fearless and hard-hitting tackling; Fischer, for breaking through the line and breaking up many plays before they were started, Leo Murray and John Gardner for long gains around the end, and Darrell Dart for successfully working five out of eight forward passes.

The local team played in much better form than against Redwood, showing improvement in interference and on the defensive. The team deserves a great deal of credit for the nerve to take again and again the plunges of the heavy team without wavering.

The final score was Mountain View 25, South San Francisco 6. The average weights were Mountain View 185, South San Francisco 134.

The second game with Redwood City will be played on the local field Friday, the 31st. The locals figure to show better in this game. Some very good football is expected.

SOUTH CITY GARAGE SOLD TO CHICAGO MAN

The South City Garage, owned by L. Montgomery and managed by J. R. Luttrell, has been sold to Jack Webber of Chicago. Mr. Webber will move his family here in the near future. Mr. Luttrell states that he has not as yet decided what line of work he will take up.

A word to the wise: ADVERTISE IN THE ENTERPRISE.

Editor Enterprise: Being present at the meeting of the board of trustees Monday evening when the petition of Mr. Lewis for the housing and driving of fire truck was granted, should like to reply to some of the assertions made at the Chamber of Commerce meeting Tuesday evening.

1. The Chamber of Commerce feels that this is a grave mistake.

2. It is away from the business district. Answer—The South City Garage is located two blocks from the intersection of Grand and Linden avenues; the Service Garage three blocks, or a difference of about 250 feet, and Mr. Lewis' place is four blocks nearer the factory district.

3. In case of fire, it would be necessary to come to the center of town for the firemen. Answer—Under the present arrangement, it is necessary for the fire truck to come to the center of town, blow the siren, come to a stop and wait for the firemen to assemble. Mr. Lewis agreed to furnish, if the city would install, an electric siren to be placed at this intersection, so that when an alarm was sent in the siren could be sounded and the firemen assemble, saving considerably more time than under the present arrangement.

4. That the Lewis garage has only one outlet. Answer—The fire truck would be kept 18 feet from the door, which is to be kept always clear for its accommodation.

5. That the driver of the truck must be a man on whom the town can absolutely rely. Answer—It is not known which is attacked, character or experience. Can the Chamber find a better man? Mr. Lewis has been a resident of this city a number of years and is well known. The man who has bought the South City Garage is a stranger here.

W. J. MARTIN, General Manager

He turned suddenly and flipped the little slip of paper to the second officer. "Mott, get away with you, and work up that course—we've had enough pleasure cruising toward Sumatra!"

And then it seemed that for the first time the full significance of the situation dawned upon Wallen—and it was as though a cold thing was at his heart.

"Wait!" he cried hoarsely. "What I've told you is the truth. But if you're bent on your own destruction, then for God's sake get Miss MacKay off the ship first—land her somewhere, anywhere."

It was Mott who answered—but with the locker between them.

"Not by a d—d sight!" he announced with a leer. "I'll take care of the girl."

There was something hideous in the glint of the man's eyes. As with Laynton, all veneer was gone now, and the grin on the heavy lips was an evil thing.

It brought the blood surging to Wallen's temples—and, receding, left his face a deadly white.

"Mott," he whispered queerly, "as God lives, I'll—"

"You stow your jaw, Mott," Laynton interjected, with a flippant laugh, "or you'll be giving Mr. Wallen an unfavorable idea of the discipline aboard here."

For a moment Wallen stared at Laynton without speaking—then the words came with a passionate rush:

"You're mad!" he cried. "You're going to your own death—you're taking everyone aboard this ship to theirs. This Ram Gulab Singh will have means of communication with Singapore—by wireless, or cable, or some way, if even by ship, for you can't make more than twelve knots, and you could be outsailed almost two to one by anything that had any speed at all."

"I tell you you are running into a trap that you'll never get out of alive. And there's no treasure, and never has been except in your imagination."

"Ain't there?" breathed Laynton softly. "We'll see about that!"

Wallen stood motionless for an instant. There was something ghastly ironical in the complacency of the other smugly inviting his own death.

"What are you going to do with me?" he demanded abruptly.

"Nothing!" said Laynton airily. "Nothing—until we get there, except to give you a chance to see the real life aboard the ship and let you form your own conclusions as to whether you'd better open up or not."

"And then?" asked Wallen quietly.

"And then," said Laynton musingly, "if you haven't pried your jaws open by that time, I'll take that eleven hundred dollars back and trice you up for a taste of the cat; and if that don't work I'll turn you over to the crew, you and that Indian pal of yours, and let them settle with you for the Kanaka's murder."

"You're mad!" said Wallen again.

"And of course," added Laynton, pouring rum for himself deliberately, "if you make any trouble meanwhile, I ain't saying what'll happen."

Wallen, his face set, turned slowly toward the door.

Captain Laynton raised his glass. "Here's a pleasant voyage to Arru—Mr. Wallen!" he said—and laughed as the liquor gurgled down his throat.

CHAPTER VIII.

Backs to the Wall.

"One, two, three, four"—Wallen counted the strokes.

Four bells! Six o'clock. Astern, in a wonderful glow of rose and pink-tinged clouds the sun was sinking; ahead, low on the horizon, but opening rapidly, like a pencilled line on the smooth plane of the sea, showed the land—the coast line of Arru! And away off to port, like tiny dots, he could make out a group of islands.

All the night before, all that day, figuring as accurately as he could by dead reckoning and the help Captain Laynton had unwittingly given him, he had calculated they would not do any more than just about sight Arru by four bells. He had staked everything on—four bells. So far he had been right! Was it a good augury—for what was to come!

Creeping past the corner of the wireless house on the starboard side, he caught the flutter of Gunga's loose white garments for an instant—and then he turned and looked aft. Always careful to avoid his proximity, Helen MacKay was pacing up and down the deck.

Would she never go below! He had waited until the last minute, risked more than he cared to contemplate that it might be supper time. Ordinarily she went below ten or fifteen minutes before meals, and he had counted on that too—that she would be below.

And now by some ironical perversity she appeared to be waiting for the supper bell to ring.

A jangled, drunken chorus of song rose from the fore-castle; the discord disgustingly assertive as a voice, a little more inebriated than the rest, attempted a maudlin tenor part.

Wallen glanced quickly at the girl. There was a look in her face that he had detected once or twice before in the three days that were gone when she had thought she was unobserved—a gray look, that brought a pitiful weariness to the eyes. Wallen's lips moved silently, grimly.

He smiled bitterly. Perhaps of her own accord, in another minute now, the next time she reached the lounging room entrance, she would go below—if he asked her to, she would probably only remain where she was!

Where was Gunga now?

Laynton's cunning had been Machiavellian in allowing Gunga and himself a pseudo freedom after disarming them! They had had an opportunity to see—and there was no doubt about the moral status of the crew.

The Monleigh was a floating hell!

The days and nights had been periods of blasphemy, rioting and drunkenness, until the soul was sick with it, until he knew that, failing to lead them to what did not exist, he would receive as short a shrift as would be accorded to a mad dog—until it must have rung terror and awful dread to her, the woman whose love he had thought he had awakened in response to his own, only to stand in her eyes as a blood-stained murderer, a scheming impostor, to be held as a fouler thing than the brutes around her, as the greater of the two evils!

But some things he could not understand. She knew—she must know—the peril in which she stood. No human being could be oblivious of that. And yet, for the first day at least following that scene in the wireless room, she had cultivated Mott more than ever

There seemed only one explanation—a desperate hope that she might, in her extremity, have someone to depend upon, and was blind to the fearful irony of the fact that the man she chose was the one she had most need to fear.

She knew that they were no longer bound for Sumatra. She knew that Captain Laynton had lied when he told her to answer that message and state that he was returning at once to Singapore. She knew what Laynton was after, for, on discovering a few hours after that message was sent that there was no Singapore in sight, as there should have been if Laynton had put about, she had listened, if without comment, to Gunga's story.

As for the rest, the days had been each one like some grim specter hovering over him, gibbering at him—pointing at her. A sort of horrible facetious pleasantry had reigned in the cabin. Captain Laynton was "coaxing" still. Each day he had offered Wallen suggestively the third officer's berth again.

On his plate at each meal he found the ship's position marked down on a little card.

The days, as Laynton had intended they should, had done away with all supposition or doubt on that score. And now they were off Arru and that "moment" was upon him, and—would she never go below?

From forward, under the bridge, Gunga peered cautiously around the corner of the captain's cabin, drew back as Helen MacKay turned in her restricted walk to face in that direction, and then as she wheeled again, pacing toward the stern, he darted under the bridge ladder that was opposite and within a yard of the captain's door. The next instant he had slipped like a shadow into Laynton's cabin.

Wallen's hand upon the rail gripped tightly as his face set white and hard as chiseled marble. What would the next few minutes bring? Death—for himself and Gunga? Well, they were men; he dared to hope they were men enough to face it like men. But for her it was not death; it was worse than death.

Laynton's words addressed to Mott that he had overheard the night before had rung ever since like doom in his ears: "You keep your paws off the girl until we've got what we want out of that masquerading swine or I'll bash your face into jelly. He's sweet on her, and he's the kind of fool along those lines it ain't wise to stir up until we have to. You mind what I say, Mott! Afterward—" Wallen hadn't heard any more; but it was almost that "afterward" now unless—his eyes were straining forward, and suddenly it seemed as though his heart-beat stopped.

Captain Laynton, starting abruptly to leave the bridge, stepped onto the ladder and halted near the top like a man stunned—as Gunga at the same instant emerged from the cabin.

Then, with a bellow of rage and the agility of a cat, Laynton swung himself under the handrail, leaping for the deck.

And Gunga's shout rang out: "Quick, sahib! I have got them! Run, sahib—run!"

A second sometimes spans an eternity; and it seemed to Wallen that he lived it then as he sprang across the deck. Mott, from the bridge, was hurling himself down the ladder.

Gunga was racing aft like a deer, with Laynton, screaming blasphemy, in pursuit. And Helen MacKay was standing as if turned to stone by the lounging room entrance as Wallen reached her.

"Run below!" he gasped out. "Quick! Into the saloon!"

She did not move. There was no time to speak again, to argue, to ask, to plead. He snatched her up into his arms and plunged through the doorway.

The sharp, vicious bark of a revolver shot echoed behind him; and Gunga called again:

"Go on, sahib! Go on!"

She was screaming in his arms, pounding madly at his face with her doubled fists, struggling with all the strength of her lithe young body to free herself as he reeled and staggered down the companionway.

Shouts and the pound of racing feet along the decks came from everywhere now, fore and aft. A face loomed up before him as he reached the bottom and a form blocked his way. It was the French steward from Port Said. Wallen crashed into the man.

The steward went back against the bulkhead—and was hurled from this to the floor as Gunga, behind, with the spring of a wildcat, leaping from the top to the bottom of the companionway, struck him in turn.

The day is coming when all of us who can afford trips to Europe will engage our passage in an airship. Besides speed we shall probably get good ventilation.

IDLENESS NO CREDIT.

Retail merchants are wisely adopting the theory that a man who is out of a job by his own choice is an unsafe debtor. No retail merchant can be expected to extend credit to a man who can get work and won't take it. A perfectly trustworthy man is sometimes out of employment for a short time, through no fault of his own, but in these days there are jobs for all who are willing to work. A man can, with perfect propriety, quit the job he has, but he cannot with credit to himself refuse to seek and find a new employment. The idle man, these days, if able to work, is somewhere off his system.

FARMERS NOT REVOLUTIONISTS.

Mark Sullivan shows in Collier's for October 4th that the largest single group in the population of America is the farmers, that in any presidential election the farmers contribute over a third, and close to a half, of the entire vote. No fundamental change in the economic and political structure of America can be made if it is against the interests of the farmer.

The farmers are not only the most numerous but the most independent and dependable class of voters, and they swing the country.

As the farmers in our country nearly all own their own farms they will not encourage extreme radicalism or a revolution. There is no more intense devotion to property interest anywhere than the farmer has toward his acres.

The farmer is certain to oppose anything in the nature of communism and he will not help put over any form of radicalism in politics.

Those who spend most of their lives in the cities forget this fact, but as a rule the politicians don't forget it.

Witness daylight-saving law repealed over the veto of the president—the farmer gets what he wants and keeps what he has!

The wise man is wise—sometimes. But a fool is a fool always.

Love laughs at locksmiths, but keeps its weather eye on the dollar.

Speak gently, think sweetly, and your home town will rejoice in your presence.

Most men are willing to be ruled by the majority, provided they constitute the majority.

"America First" is an excellent slogan. But "America All of the Time" is a better one.

A shave a day is one of the prime requisites for advancement in modern commercial life.

Don't complain of ennui, sister. 1920 will soon usher in a new year of thrills—and bills.

Friendship difficult to obtain is frequently the most lasting. That which comes easily goes quickly.

Never accept a woman's smile as indicative of her secret thoughts. The latter are not for you.

If the league of nations kicks up this kind of a row in the beginning, what will it do when it is firmly seated in the saddle?

Untidiness is an injury to any business house. It has caused the loss of more customers than any other one thing in commercial life.

The most fortunate man in all the world is he who has achieved the greatest success through his own honorable and unaided efforts.

Every one denies any responsibility for the high cost of living. Of course. No one is guilty. Prices just naturally jumped of their own accord.

Politics is politics, and will never be anything else but politics, until we acquire the habit of filling our public offices with some one besides politicians.

Government by the majority is rapidly approaching the point of domination by the minority. It is time for thinking men to do something besides dream.

In the good old days we used to say that "money comes easy and goes easier." But now it takes a log chain to drag it in and a shoestring to jerk it out again.

Must be that the high cost of living has invaded the sacred precincts of our national capitol. Else why this sudden and terrific blaze of protest from Washington?

It matters not whether they are bolshevists or bolsheviki. The stinger should be withdrawn, the poison eliminated, and the carcass kicked into a country more congenial to their insanity.

Marriage is a lottery only when one or both of the contracting parties insist on making it such. One must not expect perfection in his or her mate unless willing to accord the same in return.

At the city trustees' meeting Monday night one official's report mentioned the sale of the city's water wagon. We wonder if there is any significance in the fact that the town sold its water wagon about the same time it licensed its saloons for another quarter?

FALL IS THE BEST SEASON TO PLANT FLOWERING BULBS

Early in the spring the snowdrop lifts its head and from then on the bulb lover may have a constant succession of blooms. No one class of flowers, unless it is perennials, give so many blooms with so little care. With a plentiful supply of both bulbs and perennials, the one who loves flowers but has little time to give to their care can have a wealth of blooms all the flowering season.

Two standard kinds of bulbs are the tulip and narcissus. Both have numberless varieties which can be grown easily and successfully by the amateur. These bulbs should be planted in light, rich soil that has been dug to a depth of at least 10 inches. The tulip bulbs should be set 5 inches apart and 4 inches deep and narcissus bulbs about 10 inches apart and 5 inches deep. The best time for planting is in October, though any time before the cold weather will do.

In the late fall or early winter months it is well to cover the beds with a light mulch of straw or leaves to prevent injury to the young roots from the cold. This mulch should be removed in the spring as soon as growth appears above ground. The bulbs are quite hardy and are not injured by severe cold if the soil is well drained. Tulip and narcissus plants are perennials, and if they are given proper care and grown on suitable soil in good climatic conditions, will increase and multiply from year to year. The bulbs may be left in the ground two or three years or until the clumps begin to crowd.

After blossoming in the spring, from six to eight weeks should elapse to allow the bulb to die partially down, when the bulbs may be lifted with a spade or fork. Shake the soil from the roots and store the bulbs in a cool, shady place where they will ripen. When the old leaves and roots are thoroughly dry they may be easily rubbed off and the clusters of bulbs divided. The bulbs may then be planted in the same manner as original bulbs. In this way the stock may be increased in a few years.

The narcissus often become naturalized when planted in a soil of partial shade, where it will continue to grow, blossom, and multiply for many years without any attention. Simply make a small hole in the soil 5 or 6 inches deep, insert the bulb, pointed end up, press the soil over the top, and nature

Some Charming Street Shapes

Hats for street wear vary all the way from the plain, business-like banded sailor, in leathers, plush or silk beaver, and similar hats in tricorne and four-cornered shapes, to those with rolling and curved brims as new and original as those shown in the group above. The demand for variety in hats is insistent, as it is in other matters of dress. Starting with the banded sailor for example, even this plain model is shown in many variations. The crowns are sometimes high and sometimes low. They are either round or square and straight or belled. Brims are more or less wide, and they may be straight or curve upward. These hats are favorites with business women.

The shapes shown in the group are less severe and equally popular. They are cunningly thought out to suit the various types of faces. Among them soft crowns are almost universal, and the brims fashioned to prove becoming, no matter what may be the peculiarities of the wearer. Velvet, beaver, duvety, leather and other fabrics are used for making these shapes and often two colors or two materials in the same color, make a contrast between brim and crown. Innumerable small, chic feather ornaments have been made for trimming hats of this character, and those who have an imagination for ribbons conceive many tailored ribbon ornaments for them. Fancy ornamental pins, with large heads and composition ornaments, in imitation ivory, jet and other things—as tortoise shell for one—make a variety of simple trims possible.

The shape at the upper left of the group has a rolling brim that curves and is thrust out to the front in a way that proves becoming to mature faces. Just below it at the lower left is an opposite. In this shape the back of the hat is extended and the front shortened, with brim turned back. This gives the "fleeing profile," becoming to youthful faces and regular features. The shape at the upper right hand is a familiar favorite that almost any one can wear, and that at the lower right is one of those smart tricorns that delight the heart of the matron.

Holding the center of the group is one interpretation of the perennial French sailor, with brim rolling upward and a soft crown made of sections of velvet in a contrasting color. The shape's the thing to consider first in selecting millinery and there is one for every face.

Electric Washing Machine Is Just What You Need

It will wash in less than half the time required by the old scrub board way, because it cleans many pieces at the same time.

It will do away with hard labor; electricity does the washing and wringing.

It will wash the clothes cheaper than a wash woman; the electricity used costs less than a cent an hour.

It will wash cleaner without wearing out clothes and without broken buttons; because warm, soapy water is gently forced through all fabrics, cleaning heavy and fine alike, and the wear and tear of washboard rubbing is eliminated.

We recommend the electric washing machine and will gladly give you any information we may have on the subject. All electrical dealers sell electric washing machines.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of Agnes, the dearly beloved daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cochrane of Belle Air Park, and beloved wife of Elmer Abruzzini, who fell asleep in Jesus, October 27, 1918.

A light is from our household gone,

A voice we loved is stilled;

A vacant seat is in our home,

Which never can be filled.

Safe in the arms of Jesus,

Safe on His gentle breast;

There by His love o'ershaded,

Sweetly her soul doth rest.

LIBRARIES HELP IN NEW RED CROSS DRIVE

In hundreds of libraries throughout the Pacific division of the American Red Cross, including California, Arizona, and Nevada, "Library Day" will be observed tomorrow.

The opening of the third Red Cross call, which begins tomorrow and ends November 11th, "Armistice Day," is being heralded through the medium of thousands of book inserts, placed in every book taken from the library shelves today, and in many other ways the libraries of the three states are helping to spread the Red Cross appeal.

Lieutenant-General Hunter Liggett, commander of the western department of the United States army, who achieved fame as the leader of the American first army in France, provided the text of the book insert with a strong tribute to the American Red Cross and endorsement of the organization's claim to generous support from the American people.

WHEN A CRYING BABY INTERRUPTED ROOSEVELT

Roosevelt, running for vice-president, was addressing a mass meeting in one of the larger towns in Ohio. Two or three thousand people had gathered to hear him. He had spoken but a few minutes, when a baby in its mother's arms awoke and looking around began to scream at the top of his voice. The mother could not quiet him. The crowd began to scowl and mutter, for no one within range of the baby's voice could hear Roosevelt at all.

He stopped his speech and raised his hand. "That poor baby is frightened almost to death by all these people," he said. "He cannot help screaming!" Then he turned directly to the perturbed and unhappy mother. "Madam," he asked, "would you like to get out of the crowd with him?"

She nodded her head, and he said, "My friends, I know how closely you are packed in here, but if you will make yourselves just as small as you can I am sure you can open a pathway for this woman to get her poor frightened baby away from this crowd."

A pathway was made, and as the crowd settled back to a listening mood he said, with the smile that was new to people then, "You see, I know all about babies for I've had six of them myself."

The hearts of the people were touched. "I don't know," said one shrewd politician in the crowd, "but what Teddy's kindness to that mother has made more votes for him today than his speech."

OLD CLOTHING NEEDED FOR POOR OF COUNTY

The work of the Social Service Commission is to try to rehabilitate the destitute. The county aims to feed and shelter the families until such time as they may become self-supporting. The allotted funds are not sufficient to buy the shoes and clothing necessary for the families.

The commission has a room in the basement of the court house, Redwood City, where clothing is fumigated and mended and shoes repaired. A card index is kept of articles distributed and to whom.

We, therefore, appeal to all who have clothing to give to send at any time by parcels post. Address Social Service Commission, Court House, Redwood City. If bundles are large, telephone the social service commissioner of the district, Mrs. E. C. Peck, South San Francisco 220, who will see that parcels are called for. Our need is as urgent as it is constant.
